(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh-I, J.)

1. The present petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing of the proceedings in Criminal Case no.5 of 2002 (State Vs. Dr. Dev Nath verma) pending in the court of Special Judicial Magistrate, Pollution and CBI, Lucknow and for setting aside the order dated 2.4.2003 passed by the Special Judicial Magistrate, Pollution and CBI, Lucknow rejecting the application for discharge filed by the petitioner as well as the order dated 27.2.2004 passed by the revisional court rejecting the revision filed against the order dated 2.4.2003.

2. Before coming to the merit of the case, some startling facts, which are borne out from the record, are required to be mentioned in the present case. This Court during vacation on 3.6.2004 issued notice on this petition and fixed 19.7.2004 as the next date for hearing on admission. It was also directed that till the date fixed in the case, charge should not be framed. Counter affidavit was filed by the C.B.I. and three days' time was granted for filing rejoinder affidavit. Vide order dated 19.7.2004, it was directed that the matter to be listed in the next week. However, the interim order dated 3.6.2004, which was limited till the next date of listing i.e. 19.7.2004, was not extended. The case was listed on 26.7.2004, but no order was passed. Thereafter, the case was not listed for almost an year and, therefore, the C.B.I. filed an application on 22.7.2005 for listing the present case for hearing. This Court vide order dated 25.7.2005 directed the case to be listed in the second week of August, 2005 and, disposed of the said application. On 11.8.2005 the case was listed, but no order was passed. Similar was the case on 8.11.2005. The C.B.I. thereafter, again moved an application on 16.2.2006 for listing of the case for hearing. This Court disposed of the said application on 20.2.2006 directing the case to be listed in the week commencing 27.2.2006. The case was listed on 28.2.2006, but no order was passed. The C.B.I. again moved an application on 6.9.2006 for listing the case at an early date. This Court vide order dated 8.9.2006 directed the matter to be listed in the next week. On 15.9.2006 the case was listed, but no order was passed. The C.B.I. thereafter, moved fourth application for listing of the case on 13.11.2006. This Court vide order dated 15.11.2006 noted that after 15.9.2006 the case was not listed and, therefore, directed the case to be listed in the last week of November, 2006. The case was listed on 29.11.2006, but no order was passed. On 16.3.2007 the C.B.I. moved fifth application praying for listing of the case for hearing at an early date. This Court vide order dated 19.3.2007 disposed of the said application directing the matter to be listed on its own turn. Thereafter, the matter was listed on 19.4.2007, but no order was passed. On 8.2.2008 the C.B.I. moved another application for listing of the case for hearing. The case was listed on 15.2.2008, but no order was passed. The C.B.I. again moved an application on 11.4.2008 for listing of the case for hearing, but none was present, therefore, vide order dated 21.4.2008 the case was directed to be listed in usual course. The case was listed on 4.7.2008, but no order was passed.

3. The C.B.I. thereafter, filed an application on 2.7.2008 for dismissal of the case. It was submitted by the C.B.I. that there were sufficient oral and documentary evidence available against the petitioner and, no case for quashing of the proceedings was made out. This application was listed on 1.8.2008, but no order was passed on the said application. On 1.9.2008 when the application for dismissal and the petition were listed before the Court, learned counsel for the petitioner sent illness slip to get the matter adjourned. On request of learned counsel for the C.B.I. the matter was directed to be listed in the next week. On 8.9.2008, the case was directed to be listed on the next date i.e. 9.9.2008 for hearing on the application for dismissal. On 9.9.2008 rejoinder affidavit was filed on behalf of the petitioner and, the learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned counsel for the C.B.I. were heard. Learned counsel for the petitioner, however, prayed for some time to file typed copy of the impugned order and, the Court directed that the matter to be listed in the next cause list to enable learned counsel for the petitioner.

4. The case was listed on 19.9.2008, but no order was passed. The C.B.I. thereafter, moved another application on 2.12.2008 for listing of the case as well C.M. Application No.52696 of 2009 for dismissal of the petition. This Court vide order dated 4.12.2008 directed the case to be listed on 11.12.2008. On 11.12.2008 when the application for dismissal was listed, no one appeared on behalf of the petitioner, however, learned counsel for the C.B.I. was present and the Court, therefore, directed that the matter to be listed in the next week. On 18.12.2008, the Court again directed the matter to be listed in the next month. On 9.1.2009, the matter was listed and, no one appeared on behalf of the petitioner, however, learned counsel for the C.B.I. was present. This Court directed the matter to be listed in the next week. On 16.1.2009, a request was made for listing the matter in the next week and, the case was directed to be listed in the next week. Again on 23.1.2009 and 30.1.2009, no orders were passed. On 17.4.2009 learned counsel for the petitioner again sought adjournment on the ground of his illness and, the case was adjourned and, it was directed to be listed in the next week. On 23.4.2009, the case was directed to be listed on 27.4.2009 before appropriate Bench. On 27.4.2009, learned counsel for the petitioner was on sanctioned leave. Learned counsel for the C.B.I. was present and the case was adjourned and, the matter was directed to be listed in the next week. On 6.5.2009, no order was passed. On 28.7.2009, this Court directed that the matter to be listed on 18.8.2009. From the aforesaid order-sheet, it is evident that the interim order, which was initially granted on 3.6.2004, was limited only upto 19.7.2004 and, thereafter, the said interim order was not extended. However, on 19.8.2009, the Court directed the matter to be listed in the next cause list and directed that the interim order, if any, should continue till then. The case was listed on 31.8.2009. However, on request of learned counsel for the petitioner, the case was directed to be listed on 2.9.2009, but interim order was not extended. On 2.9.2009, it appears that there was not enough time left with the Court to take up the matter and, on the request of learned counsel for the C.B.I. the case was directed to be listed in the next week. On 11.9.2009, the matter was directed to be listed in the next cause list. Thereafter, the case was listed on 10.11.2009, but no order was passed. Similarly, the case was listed on 7.4.2010, 10.2.2011 and 21.2.2011, but no orders were passed. On 21.2.2011, learned counsel for the petitioner sought adjournment on the ground that he was on sanctioned leave up 23.3.2011. Accordingly, the matter was directed to be listed on 24.3.2011 before appropriate Court. It was specifically stated that the interim order granted was not extended.

1.3.2011. On 1.3.2011, no order was passed and the case was directed to be listed in terms of order dated 21.2.2011. On 24.3.2011, 8.4.2011 and 13.7.2011, no orders were passed when the case was listed before the Court. On 21.10.2011 this Court directed the matter to be listed in the next cause list. However, interim order, which was specifically made clear that it had not been extended in the order dated 21.2.2011, was again extended. On 28.11.2011, it was directed that the mater to be listed after two weeks and, also interim order, if any, to continue till the next date of listing. On 19.12.2011 on the illness slip of learned counsel for the petitioner, the case was ordered to be listed in the second week of January, 2012. However, interim order was not specifically extended. On 13.1.2012, learned counsel for the petitioner again sought adjournment and, the case was directed to be listed after two weeks. On 20.1.2012, no order was passed and, on 25.1.2012, it was directed that the case to be listed in the next week. On 2.2.2012, no order was passed. Similarly, on 13.2.2012, no order was passed. On 27.2.2012, it was directed that the matter to be listed in the week commencing 26th March, 2012. On 14.5.2012, it was directed that the case to be listed in the month of July, 2012. The interim order which was again not extended after 28.11.2011, was extended vide order dated 16.7.2012 and, the case was directed to be listed on 18.7.2012. On 18.7.2012, the case was directed to be listed along with Criminal Misc. Case no.543 of 1993. On 24.8.2012, it was directed that the matter to be listed in the second week of September, 2012. Thereafter, the case was directed to be listed along with Criminal Misc. Case No.543 of 1998 and Writ Petition No.642(MB) of 1995 vide order dated 14.9.2012. Thereafter, the case was not listed. On 5.6.2017, no one appeared on behalf of the petitioner, however, learned counsel or the C.B.I. was present and, the case was directed to be listed in the next cause list. Again on 12.3.2018, the case was directed to be listed in the week commencing 26.3.2018. On 30.8.2018, it was directed the case to be listed in the next cause list. On 14.2.2019 when the case was called out, learned counsel for the petitioner sought adjournment and, this Court directed the case to be listed peremptorily in the next cause list. The case was listed on 27.2.2019, however, learned counsel for the petitioner did not appear even when the case was taken up in the revised call and, therefore, this Court dismissed the petition for want of prosecution and, the interim order, if any, was ordered to be vacated. This Court also directed that the office to communicate the order to the court below within ten days.

6. Thereafter, the petitioner moved an application for recall of the order dated 27.2.2019 and, this Court vide order dated 26.3.2019 recalled the order dated 27.2.2019 and, restored the petition to its original number. On 29.4.2019, this Court directed the case to be listed peremptorily along with the record of Writ Petition No.155 (MB) of 1996 and Criminal Misc. Case No.543 of 1998 in the next cause list. On request of the parties, the case was directed to be listed in the next cause list vide order dated 7.5.2019. On 14.5.2019, counsel for the C.B.I. did not appear and the Special Public Prosecutor appointed under Section 24 Cr.P.C. also did not appear and, some of his junior appeared. This Court took strong objection to his appearance and, directed that the case to be listed on 28.5.2019. On 28.5.2019, it was directed that the matter to be listed on 10.7.2019. On 10.7.2019, the case was directed to be listed on 24.7.2019. On 24.7.2019, the case was directed to be listed on 16.8.2019. On 16.8.2019, Lawyers were on strike and, the case was directed to be listed in the next cause list. Again on 21.8.2019 Lawyers were on strike and, therefore, the case was directed to be listed in the next cause list. On 28.8.2019, the case was directed to be listed in the week commencing 16.9.2019. On 16.9.2019 learned counsel for the petitioner sought adjournment, however, learned counsel for the C.B.I. was present and, the case was directed to be listed on 30.9.2019. On 30.9.2019, the case was directed to be listed on 19.10.2019. On 19.10.2019, an adjournment was sought on behalf of the learned counsel for the petitioner on the ground that he was unwell. In view thereof, the matter was directed to be listed on 31.10.2019.

7. Two very disturbing factors emerge from the narration of the orders passed in the present petition. Interim order initially granted on 3.6.2004 was limited upto 19.7.2004, which was not extended on 19.7.2004 when the matter was listed or thereafter. However, the trial court did not proceed to frame charge against the petitioner. Despite having dismissed the discharge application, there having no order by this Court after 19.7.2004. It appears that while directing the matter to be listed in the next cause list, vide order dated 19.8.2009 i.e. after five years from the date when the interim order dated 3.6.2004 got expired on 19.7.2004, it was directed that the interim order, if any, should continue till the next date of listing of the petition. The case was listed thereafter, on 31.8.2009, but the interim order was, however, not extended. Vide order dated 21.2.2011, it was specifically made clear that the interim order granted earlier was not extended. However, vide order dated 21.11.2011, it was directed that the interim order, if any, would continue till the next date of listing. On 19.12.2011, the case was adjourned on the ground of illness of learned counsel for the petitioner and, it was directed that the matter to be listed in the second week of January, 2012, but the interim order was not extended. Again the interim order, which was extended vide order dated 21.11.2011 till the next date of listing i.e. 19.12.2011, was extended vide order dated 16.7.2019 i.e. after six and half years. On 16.7.2019, it was directed that the case to be listed on 18.7.2019 and the interim order, if any, should continue till then. Thus, after 18.7.2019 there had been no order on the order-sheet extending the interim order when the case was dismissed on 27.2.2019. Despite there being no interim order, this Court is baffled to find out that why the trial court did not frame charge and proceed with the trial for all these years. The second aspect of the matter, is that as and when the matter was listed and, it was likely to be taken up for hearing, learned counsel for the petitioner has sought adjournment either on the ground of illness or he was on sanctioned leave. It is only when this Court made it categorically clear in no uncertained terms vide order dated 19.10.2019 that the case would not be adjourned on any ground on 31.10.2019, the learned counsel for the petitioner finally addressed the argument. In view of the aforesaid facts, this case remained pending for more than 15 years before this Court.

8. The purpose of mentioning the orders available on the order-sheet in detail is to highlight the manner in which the parties take up a case for hearing before this Court after an interim order is granted. From 3.6.2004 till 31.10.2019 when this Court made it clear in no uncertained terms that the case would not be adjourned on any ground on 31.10.2019, finally, learned counsel for the petitioner has made his submissions. Before this date, the order-sheet is only of adjournment of the case. This is the precise cause of huge pendency in this Court. It is expected from the Bar and the Bench to see that the precious time of the Court is not wasted in this manner, in which the matter gets adjourned on every date for 15 years. Listing of the case before the Court requires human efforts by several persons and, it consumes the time of counsels representing the parties as well as of the Bench and, therefore, it is expected that whenever the matter is listed, the counsels should make an endeavour to have fructified hearing. Once, interim order is granted, the endeavour should not be to continue the interim order in perpetuity without final hearing of the matter. This Court expects from the Bar that its members should come prepared to argue the cases and not to seek adjournment only in order to perpetuate the interim order and keep the matter alive in the Court. This does not augur well for justice delivery system. Justice delayed is justice denied. The responsibility lies on the shoulder of the Bar as well as on the Bench to see that the cases which come before the Court, are decided at the earliest.

9. The facts of the present case, in brief, are that the petitioner and his wife Smt. Savita Devi filed Writ Petition No.155 (MB) of 1996 before this Court alleging that the petitioner, a doctor (BAMS degree holder) and his wife were peace loving citizens of the country. One Phool Kumari executed a Will in favour of them on 2.2.1994 in respect of House No.142 situated at Mohalla Idgah, District Lakhimpur Kheri and, after the death of Phool Kumari, the petitioner and his wife became the absolute owner of the said house. Their application for mutation was also decided in their favour vide order dated 10.10.1995 by the Executive Officer, Nagar Palika Parishad, Lakhimpur Kheri. A copy of the Will and the alleged order dated 10.10.1995 were placed on record as Annexures No.1 and 2 to the petition.

10. It was further alleged that in the year 1992 one Nanga Ram and his sons Ram Saran, Jas Karan and Rajendra Prasad took forcible possession of the house of Phool Kumari. Phool Kumari and the petitioner approached the police authorities including the District Magistrate. The administrative authorities directed that Nanga Ram and others be evicted from the house. It was said that after the house got mutated in the name of the petitioner and his wife, they had been living in the said house. However, Ram Saran, Jas Karam and Rajendra Prasad were threatening the petitioner and his wife to vacate the house and transfer the same in their name, otherwise they would face serious consequences. It was said that the petitioner on 6.1.1996 had approached the District Magistrate, Superintendent of Police and the Station House Officer, P.S. Kotwali, Lakhimpur Kheri fearing untoward incident by Ram Saran and others inasmuch as they were trying to dispossess the petitioner and his wife from the house forcibly. It was said that no action was taken on the said application and, instead the petitioner was called by the Station House Officer at the police station and was asked to show the papers of the house. The petitioner showed all the papers to the Station House Officer. The petitioner was made to sit at the police station. It was further said that in the meantime, his son Amit came to Kotwali along with few other persons of the locality and informed that Ram Saran, who was an Ex-MLA and his two brothers Jas Karan and Rajendra Prasad along with number of persons, had come to the house of the petitioner and were taking away all belongings and, they were also assaulting the family members of the petitioner. It was said that the petitioner requested the Station House Officer to take appropriate action, but of no avail. The petitioner came to know that it was all done in collusion with the police and on instructions of high ups. No action was taken even when the petitioner approached the District Magistrate as well as the Superintendent of Police, Lakhimpur Kheri, neither FIR was lodged. It was said that the police was not acting because of political pressure and was the hands in glove with the Ex-MLA. A prayer was made in the petition for a mandamus/direction to register an FIR on the basis of the complaint given regarding the incident, which took place on 10.1.1996.

11. This Court vide order dated 19.1.1996 directed the Station House Officer, of Police Station Kotwali, Lakhimpur Kheri to remain present before the Court on the next date of listing of the petition i.e. 22.1.1996 along with relevant record. On 22.1.1996, the Court directed the Station House Officer to file an affidavit in response to the writ petition. It appears that the Station House Officer on 21.1.1996 passed an order for registration of the FIR and, thus, the FIR came to be registered on 21.1.1996 at 3.15 PM at Police Station Kotwali, Lakhimpur Kheri on the compliant of the petitioner dated 10.1.1996. On 21.8.1996, the Court passed an order in the aforesaid writ petition holding that the local police had failed to discharge its primary duty of investigating of the two FIRs and, therefore, the case was directed to be investigated by the C.B.I. It was further directed the C.B.I. would investigate the allegations made by the petitioner in the FIR besides the following points should also be investigated by the C.B.I.:-

"(i) Who was in possession on 6.1.1996 of the premises in dispute when the report Annexure-3 to the writ petition was lodged by one of the petitioners?

(ii) Whether the petitioners were forcibly dispossessed and the house was grabbed by Sri Ram Saran with the aid and connivance of the District Administration and/or police personnel of P.S. Kotwali Lakhimpur Kheri ?

(iii) To get the complete file of the record referred to above traced out and forward it along with the report to this Court. In case the complete record is not traced out, the reasons thereof."

The C.B.I. was directed to submit its report in a sealed cover within two months. The case was directed to be listed on 4.11.1996 for further orders.

12. Thus, in the manner, the FIR registered at Case Crime No.86 of 1996 on 22.1.1996 under Section 395 IPC against Ram Saran, Jas Karan and Rajednra Prasad was transferred to the C.B.I. in pursuance of the order of the Division Bench of this Court dated 21.8.1996 passed in Writ Petition No.155 (MB) of 1996 and, it was registered as CBI case on 11.9.1996. The C.B.I. undertook the investigation. It appears that the C.B.I. conducted the investigation and Deputy Superintendent, CBI, Lucknow submitted a detailed report pointing out that the petitioner was not in possession of the house on 6.1.1996 and, neither he was dispossessed on 10.1.1996 as alleged or otherwise. The C.B.I. also in its report said that record showed that no proceedings took place after 23.9.1992 and, the contention of the petitioner was not borne out from the record. The C.B.I. in its report further said that the alleged Will was forged Will. In view of the aforesaid report, this Court dismissed the writ petition summarily on the ground that there was no occasion for the Court to interfere in the controversial facts. The C.B.I. and parties were given liberty to take consequential legal proceedings.

13. After dismissal of Writ Petition No.155 (MB) of 1996 by a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 4.8.1997, the Additional Registrar of this Court filed a complaint under Section 195 Cr.P.C. in the court of Special Judicial Magistrate, CBI, Lucknow alleging that in the investigation of the C.B.I. which was carried out in pursuance of the order of this Court dated 21.8.1996 would establish that the compliant dated 6.1.1996 (Annexure-III to the petition) and complaint dated Nil (Annexure-IV to the writ petition) of Writ Petition No.155 (MB) of 1996 on the basis of which Case Crime No.86 of 1996, under Sections 395 IPC was registered on 22.1.1996 at Police Station Kotwali, Kheri were found to be false and fabricated. It was further said that the investigation conducted by the C.B.I. by collecting oral, documentary and circumstantial evidence would show that Dr. Dev Nath Verma, the petitioner and his family were not in possession of House No.142, situate at Mohalla Idgah, Lakhimpur Kheri during January, 1996 and his belongings/property were neither forcibly removed nor were looted by Sri Ram Saran and his brothers Jas Karan and Rajendra Prasad along with 10-12 persons on 10.1.1996 as alleged or otherwise. It was further said that investigation also disclosed that House No.142 at Mohalla Idgah, Lakhmpur Kheri belonged to late Smt. Phool Kumari and, the Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Lakhimpur Kheri vide order dated 30.7.1986 had allotted the said house to late Sri Nanga Ram, father of Ram Saran and others, who took possession of the said house on 14.8.1986. Against the order passed by the Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Lakhimpur Kheri, Smt. Phool Kumari filed revision before the IIIrd Additional District Judge, Lakhimpur Kheri, who vide oder dated 23.9.1992 remanded the case to the Rent Control and Eviction Officer with direction that the case be heard afresh. It was also said that the evidence collected and investigation carried out by the C.B.I. revealed that the allegations levelled by the petitioner in his complaint regarding the incident of 10.1.1996 were found to be completely false.

14. It was also said that in pursuance of the order dated 23.9.1992 passed by the IIIrd Additional District Judge in the revision filed by Smt. Phool Kumari, no hearing had taken place before the Rent Control and Eviction Officer. It was said that the contention Dr. Dev Nath Verma, the petitioner that in January, 1994 an application was moved on behalf of Smt. Phool Kumari before the district authorities for restoration of the possession of the house and, the possession of the entire house was again restored to Smt. Phool Kumari in the last week of January, 1994 were wholly false and incorrect. There was no such order reflecting listing of the case in January, 1994 and the assertions made by the petitioner in his affidavit were found to be completely false. It was also said that assertions in the affidavits of the petitioner and his wife Smt. Savita Devi that on the basis of the Will purportedly executed on 2.2.1994 by Smt. Phool Kumari and, the certificate dated 27.2.1994, House No.142 got mutated in their favour on 10.10.1995 in the records of Nagar Palika Parishad, were incorrect, false and fabricated.

15. The investigation had established that the alleged Will deed dated 2.2.1994 was neither registered nor authenticated by notary pubic. It was a forged, false and fabricated Will. The Central Forensic Science Laboratory vide report No.CFSL-97/D-99/937 dated 31.3.1997 had opined that the finger print impression appearing on page-1 of Will dated 2.2.1994 was not that of late Smt. Phool Kumari. Thus, the Will, which was annexed with the writ petition, was forged and fabricated document. It was further said that Dilip Singh and Kunwar Bhanu Pratap Singh, grand sons of Late Smt. Phool Kumari had resolutely denied the death of Smt. Phool Kumari on 27.2.1994 and, they had specifically said that Smt. Phool Kumari died on 9.3.1994 in the Medical College, Lucknow. The Birth and Death Registrar of Nagar Nigam, Lucknow too confirmed that Smt. Phool Kumari died on 8.3.1994 at Lucknow. It was further said that the averments made in affidavit by the petitioner was full of falsehood and, he deliberately attempted to obfuscate the matter of ownership of House No.142, Mohalla Idgah, Lakhimpur Kheri and, the averments made in the writ petition were incorrect, false and fabricated. It was further said that a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 4.8.1997 while dismissing the writ petition summarily, directed the concerned parties to take consequencial legal proceedings. It was said that the aforesaid facts would disclose the commission of offence punishable under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC and, also under Section 182/211 IPC. In view of the aforesaid, a request was made to proceed against the petitioner. The complaint was filed in the official capacity of the complaint as envisaged under Section 195 Cr.P.C..

16. Non-bailable warrant was issued against the petitioner. The petitioner was produced before the Special Judicial Magistrate, CBI, Lucknow on 3.3.1998. The petitioner, thereafter, moved an application under Section 239 Cr.P.C. for discharge on 18.6.1998 in Complaint Case No.30 of 1998. The learned Magistrate vide order dated 20.7.1998 rejected the discharge application of the petitioner. The petitioner, thereafter, filed Writ Petition No.2648 (MB) of 1998. However, the same was converted into a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and was numbered as 543 of 1998. This Court vide judgement and order dated 8.3.2002 allowed the said petition on the ground that the Division Bench in its order dated 4.8.1997 while dismissing Writ Petition No.155 (MB) of 1996 had not directed for filing of the compliant inasmuch as the Court had neither recorded a finding to the effect nor made a complaint thereof in writing and, it was left open to the parties to take consequential legal proceedings. It was further held that the Registrar had no authority to lodge the compliant under Section 340 Cr.P.C. as there was no order of the Court for lodging the compliant as provided under Section 340 Cr.P.C. However, it was observed that it would be open to the CBI either to submit the charge sheet or file a complaint in the court of Special Judicial Magistrate. In view thereof, the proceedings of Complaint Case No.30 of 1998 pending in the court of Special Judicial Magistrate were quashed. It was left open to the C.B.I. to file a complaint or charge sheet as the case may be and, it was said that in such proceedings bar of Section 195 Cr.P.C. would not apply inasmuch the offence of forging the Will was a distinct offence committed outside the Court proceedings.

17. The C.B.I. thereafter, filed the charge sheet dated 12.7.2002 in the case against the petitioner finding that the facts and investigation clearly disclosed the commission of the offences punishable under Sections 420, 467, 468 and 471 and, also under Section 182/211 IPC. The petitioner having been summoned, filed an application for discharge before the learned Magistrate. The learned Magistrate vide order dated 2.4.2003 had held that there was sufficient material and evidence available on record to attract the offences under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 and Section 182/211 IPC inasmuch as the petitioner had prepared forged documents to deceive, which included the Will dated 2.2.1994, death certificate of Smt. Phool Kumari and, he used these documents in the court proceedings alleging to be true and correct though he knew that these documents were forged and fabricated. Learned Magistrate, therefore, held that there was strong suspicion against the petitioner for producing the forged and fabricated documents in the Court proceedings and, held the application to be without any merit and substance. The application was dismissed and, it was ordered the case to be listed on 21.4.2003 for framing of charge.

18. The petitioner, thereafter, filed revision before the court of Additional District Judge, Court No.7, Lucknow being Criminal Revision No.72 of 2003 against the order dated 2.4.2003 passed by the learned Magistrate. The revisional court said that considering the evidence and material collected by the C.B.I. during investigation, which were available with the charge sheet, including the forensic science laboratory report in respect of the alleged Will dated 2.2.1994, at this stage on the basis of the statement of some witnesses that the Will was executed by Smt. Phool Kumari, the petitioner could not be discharged. It was said that the Will was in possession of the accused and from the statement of the grandsons of Smt. Phool Kumari, it was clear that he forged the death certificate of Smt. Phool Kumari as well. Learned revisional court, however, partly allowed the revision and held that taking cognizance against the accused under Section 182/211 IPC was not correct. The revisional court dismissed the revision in respect of taking cognizance of the offences under Sections 420, 467, 468 and 471 IPC inasmuch as there was sufficient material available on record, on the basis of which there was strong suspicion against the petitioner for commission of these offences.

19. Heard Sri Nandit Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Monoj Kumar Dixit, learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned AGA, none for C.B.I.

20. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that considering the statement of the wittinesses recorded by the C.B.I. under Section 161 Cr.P.C., no offence is made out against the petitioner. He further submits that attesting witnesses have specifically stated that the Will was executed by Smt. Phool Kumari on 2.2.1994 in favour of the petitioner and his wife. He has also tried to place reliance on the statement of some of the witnesses recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. He submits that report of the forensic science laboratory is an expert opinion and, it cannot be relied upon against the testimony of an eye witness. He, therefore, submits that there is not enough material and evidence on record to form a prima facie opinion regarding strong suspicion against the petitioner for commission of the offence and, therefore, the orders passed by the learned Magistrate as well as by the revisional court are liable to be set aside. He has also relied upon the judgements of the Supreme Court in the cases of Arjan Singh and others Vs. Hazara Singh, 1980 SCC (Cri) 309, Dilawsar Balu Kurane Vs. State of Maharashtra, 2002 SCC (Cri) 310 and Sajjan Kumar Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation (2010) 9 SCC 368.

21. On the basis of the aforesaid judgements, he submits that the trial court has cursorily passed the order though it is required to weigh the evidence for limited purpose of finding out whether a prima facie case is made out against the petitioner or not. He, therefore, submits that considering the ratio laid down by the Supreme Court in the aforesaid judgements, the application for discharge ought to have been allowed.

22. I have considered the submissions of the learned counsel for the petitioner carefully and perused the record.

23. The C.B.I. in its detail investigation, has clearly opined that the petitioner had forged the Will dated 2.2.1994 allegedly executed by Smt. Phool Kumari. The C.B.I. has brought on record the Central Forensic Science Laboratory report in respect of the Will to come to this conclusion. The death certificate of Smt. Phool Kumari was also forged by the petitioner, which is evident from the certificate issued by the Municipal Corporation, Lucknow and, the statements of the grandsons of Smt. Phool Kumari. The petitioner allegedly used these documents so that he could occupy the property of House No.142, situate at Mohalla Idgah, Lakhimpur Kheri. When the application for discharge is moved, the trial court is not required to examine and consider the evidence and material on record in detail to form an opinion whether, prima facie, case raising strong suspicion against the petitioner for commission of the offence is made out or not. The trial court at this stage, is not required to go in detail and weigh the evidence to find out whether the conviction of the accused would be secured in all likelihood. If the trial court is of the opinion that there is sufficient material and evidence on record, which raises strong suspicion against the accused for commission of the offence, the trial court is required to proceed for framing of the charge.

24. In the present case, as mentioned above, it cannot be said that there is no evidence or material on the basis of which no prima facie case against the accused is made out to raise strong suspicion of his involvement in the commission of the offence.

25. The Supreme Court in the case of State of Tamil Nadu by Inspector of Police Vigilance and Anti-corruption Vs. N. Suresh Rajan and others, (2014) 11 SCC 709 has held that at the stage of discharge, the court is required only to go into the probative value of the material and, it is not expected to go into deep the matter to hold that the material should not warrant conviction. What is required at the stage of discharge is that if, the court finds that, prima facie, the offence has been committed, it can frame charge.

Paragraphs 29, 32.4, 33 and 34 of the aforesaid judgement are extracted herein below :-

"29. We have bestowed our consideration to the rival submissions and the submissions made by Mr Ranjit Kumar commend us. True it is that at the time of consideration of the applications for discharge, the court cannot act as a mouthpiece of the prosecution or act as a post office and may sift evidence in order to find out whether or not the allegations made are groundless so as to pass an order of discharge. It is trite that at the stage of consideration of an application for discharge, the court has to proceed with an assumption that the materials brought on record by the prosecution are true and evaluate the said materials and documents with a view to find out whether the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. At this stage, probative value of the materials has to be gone into and the court is not expected to go deep into the matter and hold that the materials would not warrant a conviction. In our opinion, what needs to be considered is whether there is a ground for presuming that the offence has been committed and not whether a ground for convicting the accused has been made out. To put it differently, if the court thinks that the accused might have committed the offence on the basis of the materials on record on its probative value, it can frame the charge; though for conviction, the court has to come to the conclusion that the accused has committed the offence. The law does not permit a mini trial at this stage.

32.4. While passing the impugned orders [N. Suresh Rajan v. Inspector of Police, Criminal Revision Case (MD) No. 528 of 2009, order dated 10-12-2010 (Mad)] , [State v. K. Ponmudi, (2007) 1 MLJ (Cri) 100] , the court has not sifted the materials for the purpose of finding out whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused but whether that would warrant a conviction. We are of the opinion that this was not the stage where the court should have appraised the evidence and discharged the accused as if it was passing an order of acquittal. Further, defect in investigation itself cannot be a ground for discharge. In our opinion, the order impugned [N. Suresh Rajan v. Inspector of Police, Criminal Revision Case (MD) No. 528 of 2009, order dated 10-12-2010 (Mad)] suffers from grave error and calls for rectification.

33. Any observation made by us in this judgment is for the purpose of disposal of these appeals and shall have no bearing on the trial. The surviving respondents are directed to appear before the respective courts on 3-2-2014. The Court shall proceed with the trial from the stage of charge in accordance with law and make endeavour to dispose of the same expeditiously.

34. In the result, we allow these appeals and set aside the order of discharge with the aforesaid observations."*

26. In the case of Amit Kapoor Vs. Ramesh Chander and another, (2012) 9 SCC 460, the Supreme Court has held that at the time of considering the application for discharge, the Court is required to consider the "record of the case" and the documents submitted therewith. Where it appears to the Court and, in its opinion there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence, it shall frame the charge. The Court is not concerned with the proof, but only with strong suspicion that the accused has committed the offence. Paragraphs 17 and 19 of the aforesaid judgement are extracted herein under :-

"17. Framing of a charge is an exercise of jurisdiction by the trial court in terms of Section 228 of the Code, unless the accused is discharged under Section 227 of the Code. Under both these provisions, the court is required to consider the "record of the case" and documents submitted therewith and, after hearing the parties, may either discharge the accused or where it appears to the court and in its opinion there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence, it shall frame the charge. Once the facts and ingredients of the section exists, then the court would be right in presuming that there is ground to proceed against the accused and frame the charge accordingly. This presumption is not a presumption of law as such. The satisfaction of the court in relation to the existence of constituents of an offence and the facts leading to that offence is a sine qua non for exercise of such jurisdiction. It may even be weaker than a prima facie case. There is a fine distinction between the language of Sections 227 and 228 of the Code. Section 227 is the expression of a definite opinion and judgment of the Court while Section 228 is tentative. Thus, to say that at the stage of framing of charge, the Court should form an opinion that the accused is certainly guilty of committing an offence, is an approach which is impermissible in terms of Section 228 of the Code.

19. At the initial stage of framing of a charge, the court is concerned not with proof but with a strong suspicion that the accused has committed an offence, which, if put to trial, could prove him guilty. All that the court has to see is that the material on record and the facts would be compatible with the innocence of the accused or not. The final test of guilt is not to be applied at that stage. We may refer to the well-settled law laid down by this Court in State of Bihar v. Ramesh Singh [(1977) 4 SCC 39 : 1977 SCC (Cri) 533] : (SCC pp. 41-42, para 4)*

comes at the initial stage the duty of the court to consider the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith and to hear the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in that behalf. The Judge has to pass thereafter an order either under Section 227 or Section 228 of the Code. If "the Judge considers that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing', as enjoined by Section 227. If, on the other hand, "the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which-- ... (b) is exclusively triable by the court, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused', as provided in Section 228. Reading the two provisions together in juxtaposition, as they have got to be, it would be clear that at the beginning and the initial stage of the trial the truth, veracity and effect of the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce are not to be meticulously judged. Nor is any weight to be attached to the probable defence of the accused. It is not obligatory for the Judge at that stage of the trial to consider in any detail and weigh in a sensitive balance whether the facts, if proved, would be incompatible with the innocence of the accused or not. The standard of test and judgment which is to be finally applied before recording a finding regarding the guilt or otherwise of the accused is not exactly to be applied at the stage of deciding the matter under Section 227 or Section 228 of the Code. At that stage the court is not to see whether there is sufficient ground for conviction of the accused or whether the trial is sure to end in his conviction. Strong suspicion against the accused, if the matter remains in the region of suspicion, cannot take the place of proof of his guilt at the conclusion of the trial. But at the initial stage if there is a strong suspicion which leads the court to think that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence then it is not open to the court to say that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. The presumption of the guilt of the accused which is to be drawn at the initial stage is not in the sense of the law governing the trial of criminal cases in France where the accused is presumed to be guilty unless the contrary is proved. But it is only for the purpose of deciding prima facie whether the court should proceed with the trial or not. If the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, cannot show that the accused committed the offence, then there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial. An exhaustive list of the circumstances to indicate as to what will lead to one conclusion or the other is neither possible nor advisable. We may just illustrate the difference of the law by one more example. If the scales of pan as to the guilt or innocence of the accused are something like even at the conclusion of the trial, then, on the theory of benefit of doubt the case is to end in his acquittal. But if, on the other hand, it is so at the initial stage of making an order under Section 227 or Section 228, then in such a situation ordinarily and generally the order which will have to be made will be one under Section 228 and not under Section 227."

27. The Supreme Court in the case of State by the Inspector of Police, Chennai Vs. S. Selvi and another, (2018) 13 SCC 455 has summarised the principle while considering the application for discharge of an accused. Paragraphs 6, 7 and 8, which are relevant, are extracted herein below :-

"6. It is well settled by this Court in a catena of judgments including Union of India v. Prafulla Kumar Samal [Union of India v. Prafulla Kumar Samal, (1979) 3 SCC 4 : 1979 SCC (Cri) 609] , Dilawar Balu Kurane v. State of Maharashtra [Dilawar Balu Kurane v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 2 SCC 135 : 2002 SCC (Cri) 310] , Sajjan Kumar v. CBI [Sajjan Kumar v. CBI, (2010) 9 SCC 368 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1371] , State v. A. Arun Kumar [State v. A. Arun Kumar, (2015) 2 SCC 417 : (2015) 2 SCC (Cri) 96 : (2015) 1 SCC (L&S) 505] , Sonu Gupta v. Deepak Gupta [Sonu Gupta v. Deepak Gupta, (2015) 3 SCC 424 : (2015) 2 SCC (Cri) 265] , State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi [State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi, (2003) 2 SCC 711 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 688] , Niranjan Singh Karam Singh Punjabi v. Jitendra Bhimraj Bijjaya [Niranjan Singh Karam Singh Punjabi v. Jitendra Bhimraj Bijjaya, (1990) 4 SCC 76 : 1991 SCC (Cri) 47] and Supt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Anil Kumar Bhunja [Supt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Anil Kumar Bhunja, (1979) 4 SCC 274 : 1979 SCC (Cri) 1038] that the Judge while considering the question of framing charge under Section 227 of the Code in sessions cases (which is akin to Section 239 CrPC pertaining to warrant cases) has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out; where the material placed before the court discloses grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the court will be fully justified in framing the charge; by and large if two views are equally possible and the Judge is satisfied that the evidence produced before him while giving rise to some suspicion but not grave suspicion against the accused, he will be fully within his rights to discharge the accused. The Judge cannot act merely as a post office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution, but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the statements and the documents produced before the court, any basic infirmities appearing in the case and so on. This however does not mean that the Judge should make a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the materials as if he was conducting a trial.

7. In Sajjan Kumar v. CBI [Sajjan Kumar v. CBI, (2010) 9 SCC 368 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1371] , this Court on consideration of the various decisions about the scope of Sections 227 and 228 of the Code, laid down the following principles: (SCC pp. 376-77, para 21)

"(i) The Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under Section 227 CrPC has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out. The test to determine prima facie case would depend upon the facts of each case.

(ii) Where the materials placed before the court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the court will be fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial.

(iii) The court cannot act merely as a post office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court, any basic infirmities, etc. However, at this stage, there cannot be a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial.

(iv) If on the basis of the material on record, the court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed offence, it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused has committed the offence.

(v) At the time of framing of the charges, the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into but before framing a charge the court must apply its judicial mind on the material placed on record and must be satisfied that the commission of offence by the accused was possible.

(vi) At the stage of Sections 227 and 228, the court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to find out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. For this limited purpose, sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at that initial stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case.

(vii) If two views are possible and one of them gives rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspicion, the trial Judge will be empowered to discharge the accused and at this stage, he is not to see whether the trial will end in conviction or acquittal.

8. This Court in State v. A. Arun Kumar [State v. A. Arun Kumar, (2015) 2 SCC 417 : (2015) 2 SCC (Cri) 96 : (2015) 1 SCC (L&S) 505] , Sonu Gupta v. Deepak Gupta [Sonu Gupta v. Deepak Gupta, (2015) 3 SCC 424 : (2015) 2 SCC (Cri) 265] , State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi [State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi, (2003) 2 SCC 711 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 688] and State of T.N. v. N. Suresh Rajan [State of T.N. v. N. Suresh Rajan, (2014) 11 SCC 709 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 529 : (2014) 2 SCC (L&S) 721] has reiterated almost the aforementioned principles. However, in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal [State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 : 1992 SCC (Cri) 426] , relied upon by the counsel for Respondent 1 is not applicable to the facts of the case inasmuch as the said matter arose out of the judgment of the High Court quashing the entire criminal proceedings inclusive of the registration of first information report. The said matter was not concerned with the discharge of the accused."*

28. In the case of Asim Sharif Vs. National Investigation Agency, (2019) 7 SCC 149, the Supreme Court has again reiterated the principle that while considering the application for discharge, the court has power to sift and weigh the evidence only for limited purpose to find out whether or not prima facie case exists against the accused. If the material placed before this Court raises strong suspicion against the accused, the Court is wholly justified in framing of the charge. After taking note of the judgement in the case of Sajjan Kumar (supra), in paragraph 18 of the aforesaid judgement, the Supreme Court has held as under :-

"18. Taking note of the exposition of law on the subject laid down by this Court, it is settled that the Judge while considering the question of framing charge under Section 227 CrPC in sessions cases (which is akin to Section 239 CrPC pertaining to warrant cases) has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out; where the material placed before the court discloses grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the court will be fully justified in framing the charge; by and large if two views are possible and one of them giving rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspicion against the accused, the trial Judge will be justified in discharging him. It is thus clear that while examining the discharge application filed under Section 227 CrPC, it is expected from the trial Judge to exercise its judicial mind to determine as to whether a case for trial has been made out or not. It is true that in such proceedings, the court is not supposed to hold a mini trial by marshalling the evidence on record."

29. In the recent judgement, the Supreme Court in the case of Tarun Jit Tejpal Vs. State of Goa and other: 2019 SCC OnLine SC 1053 after taking note of the judgements in the cases of Union of India v. Prafulla Kumar Samal, (1979) 3 SCC 4 (Para 10), State of Bihar v. Ramesh Singh, (1977) 4 SCC 39 (Para 4), Stree Atyachar Virodhi Parishad v. Dilip Nathumal Chordia, (1989) 1 SCC 715, Amit Kapoor v. Ramesh Chander, (2012) 9 SCC 460, Ajay Singh v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2017) 3 SCC 330, Niranjan Singh Karam Singh Punjabi v. Jitendra Bhimraj Bijjaya, (1990) 4 SCC 76, State of T.N. v. N. Suresh Rajan, (2014) 11 SCC 709 (Para 29 to 31.3), State v. S. Selvi, (2018) 13 SCC 455, Mauvin Godinho v. State of Goa, (2018) 3 SCC 358., in paragraph 32 of the judgement held as under :-

"32. Applying the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decisions and considering the scope of enquiry at the stage of framing of the charge under Section 227/228 if the CrPC, we are of the opinion that the submissions made by the learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant on merits, at this stage, are not required to be considered. Whatever submissions are made by the learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant are on merits are required to be dealt with and considered at an appropriate stage during the course of the trial. Some of the submissions may be considered to be the defence of the accused. Some of the submissions made by the learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant on the conduct of the victim/prosecutrix are required to be dealt with and considered at an appropriate stage during the trial. The same are not required to be considered at this stage of framing of the charge. On considering the material on record, we are of the opinion that there is more than a prima facie case against the accused for which he is required to be tried. There is sufficient ample material against the accused and therefore the learned Trial Court has rightly framed the charge against the accused and the same is rightly confirmed by the High Court. No interference of this Court is called for.

"Tarun Tej Pal Vs. Goa, 2019 SCC Online 1053 after taking note of the judgement in the case of Union of India Vs. Praful .. n paragraph 20 of the judgement held as 32 it has been held as under :-

30. Thus, the law is very well settled that while considering the application for discharge or at the time of framing of charge, the Court is only required to weigh the material and evidence on record to find out whether, prima facie, case is made out against the accused, which raises strong suspicion against him to have committed the offence and, if it is found that the ingredients of the commission of the offence are available on the basis of record, the Court will proceed to frame the charge. At this stage, the Court is not required to weigh the evidence in detail to find out whether evidence would be sufficient to record conviction or not. The Court is only required to evaluate the material and evidence to find out prima facie case.

31. Considering the facts of the present case and on the anvil of law as has emerged, it cannot be said that there is not enough material for a prima facie case which raises strong suspicion against the petitioner to have committed the offences under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC and, therefore, the present petition, which has remained pending in the Court since 2004, is hereby dismissed.

32 . The learned Magistrate is directed to proceed immediately to frame charge and, conclude the trial expeditiously, preferably, within a period of one year.

5. Upkar Singh vs. Ved Prakash and others, AIR 2004 SC 4320

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. Heard Sri Gopesh Tripathi, learned counsel for the applicant, learned AGA for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. The present application 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed challenging the summoning order dated 18.10.2018 passed in Complaint Case No. 433 of 2013 as well as the revisional order dated 23.12.2015 passed in Criminal Revision No. 10 of 2014.

3. The allegations in brief leading to the filing of the present application are:

4. That the applicant is the proprietor of M/s Vikram Shastralaya and is dealing in firearm at Raebareli. The father of the opposite party no. 2 was the owner of pistol and had a licence, as he was involved in a criminal case, the same was deposited with the firm of the applicant. The father of the opposite party no. 2 sold the said Pistol No. 1680 for a consideration of Rs. 30,000/- in the year 1996 as his licence had been cancelled, however, the sale was actually effected with the permission from the District Magistrate vide order dated 10.11.2000 on 31.5.2001.

5. The opposite party no. 2 moved an application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C on 21.4.2012 with the allegation that after the death of her father on 24.4.2011, when the opposite party no. 2 went to enquire about the pistol, she was informed that the same had been sold by her father. The said application filed by the opposite party no. 2 under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was registered as Miscellaneous Case No. 173 of 2012 by the CJM who called for reports from the Police Station concerned and the District Magistrate/Licensing Authority. The City Magistrate submitted a report that the requisite permission was granted by the District Magistrate for the sale of the weapon on 10.11.2000 and the weapon was actually sold by the holder Jaswant Singh on 31.5.2001. After considering the reports, as called for, the learned CJM rejected the application filed by the opposite party no. 2 vide order dated 14.6.2012 (Annexure3 to the application), the said order attained finality and was not challenged.

6. The opposite party no. 2, without disclosing the earlier order passed by the CJM, filed a fresh complaint levelling the same allegations vide complaint dated 4.7.2012 under section 200 Cr.P.C. The CJM taking cognizance of the offence as disclosed in the complaint dated 4.7.2012 registered the case as Case No. 433 of 2012 and proceeded to record the statements under sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. and proceeded to summon the applicant under sections 504, 506, 406, 419, 420, 467, 468 and 471 IPC vide order dated 18.10.2018 (Annexure6 to the application).

7. The applicant challenged the said summoning order by filing a Criminal Revision No. 10 of 2014 disclosing the entire facts including the fact that the complaint on same allegation had already been rejected and was concealed in the present proceedings, the revision was dismissed vide order dated 23.12.2014.

8. Sri Gopesh Tripathi, learned counsel for the applicant, has strenuously argued that the proceedings initiated vide Complaint Case No. 433 of 2012 were nothing but an abuse of process of law and were not maintainable in view of the fact that the earlier complaint had been rejected vide order dated 14.6.2012 on the same allegations. He has further argued that the complaint deserves to be quashed for the reason that it discloses that no offence under the sections under which the applicant was summoned. He placed reliance upon the judgement of the Apex Court in the case of State of Haryana and others vs. Bhajan Lal and others, 1992 Supp(1) SCC 335. He has further argued that the second complaint was barred by the principles of res judicata which are in the nature of a public policy. He placed reliance upon the decision in the case of M. Nagabhushan vs. State of Karnataka and others, (2011) 3 SCC 408. He further argued that after the dismissal of the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C., on merits, a fresh complaint for the same action, is not maintainable as it does not fall within the exceptional circumstances, as laid down and explained by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Poonam Chand Jain and another vs. Farzu, (2010) 2 SCC 631, (2010) 2 SCC (cri) 1085. He lastly submits that the proceedings of summoning order and the revisional order are liable to be quashed as being an abuse of process of law.

9. The copy of the complaint, statement recorded under sections 200 Cr.P.C. and 202 Cr.P.C. are on record. It is essential to record that the weapon in question is a 32 bore pistol which is prohibited bore and cannot be held without licence.

10. A perusal of the complaint reveals that the opposite party no. 2 had alleged that after the death of her father when she contacted the applicant she was informed that the pistol had been sold to the applicant for Rs. 30,000/- by the father in the year 1996 and the permission for the said sale was granted in the year 10.11.2000, as such, it is clear that the documents of 1996 were prepared by committing forgeries. In para 10 of the complaint, it was specifically stated that a complaint in that regard was made to the Superintendent of Police vide application dated 31.3.2012, however, no action was taken. It is relevant to note that there were no disclosure of the earlier order dismissing the complaint of the opposite party no. 2 on the same allegation. In the statement recorded under section 200 Cr.P.C. also it was specifically stated that the opposite party no. 2 does not have the requisite licence to hold the prohibited bore pistol and she wants to sell the same or give it to the Government, there is no averment with regard to the earlier proceedings.

11. The counsel for the respondent has filed a counter affidavit bringing on record an affidavit of Jaswant Singh dated 13.4.1996, which is alleged to be a forged document wherein he has deposed that the deponent shall obtain the requisite permission and sell the same by giving possession to the applicant herein. It is also admitted that amount of Rs. 30,000/- was received by the deponent, it was also deposed that in the event of not being able to obtain the requisite permission, an amount of Rs. 50,000/- shall be refunded.

12. It is also contended that the sale and the affidavit was said to be executed on 15.4.1996 whereas the permission regarding the sale of pistol was granted on 10.11.2000 which clearly reveals that the sale receipt and the affidavit were prepared for undue advantage. He further argued that the second complaint with regard to the same incident is not prohibited placing reliance on the judgement of in the case of Upkar Singh vs. Ved Prakash and others, AIR 2004 SC 4320.

13. On the basis of the material on record and the arguments advanced, the sole question to be considered is whether the complaint and the statements recorded under sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C reveal the commission of offence under the sections in which the applicant has been summoned and whether the second complaint for the same incident was maintainable without disclosure of the outcome of the first complaint and whether the same can be termed as abuse of process of law.

14. The Apex Court in the case of Poonam Chand Jain vs. Farzu, (2010) 2 SCC 631, (2010) 2 SCC (cri) 1085 considered the effect of dismissal of the first complaint on merit and its consequences on the second complaint. The Apex Court relying upon the earlier judgement in the case of Pramatha Nath Talukdar and another vs. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, (AIR 1962 SC 876) held as under:

"Almost similar questions came up for consideration before this Court in the case of Pramatha Nath Talukdar and another vs. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, (AIR 1962 SC 876). The majority judgment in Pramatha Nath (supra) was delivered by Justice Kapur. His Lordship held that an order of dismissal under Section 203 of the Criminal Procedure Code (for short `the Code') is, however, no bar to the entertainment of a second complaint on the same facts but it can be entertained only in exceptional circumstances. This Court explained the exceptional circumstances as (a) where the previous order was passed on incomplete record

(b) or on a misunderstanding of the nature of the complaint (c) or the order which was passed was manifestly absurd, unjust or foolish or (d) where new facts which could not, with reasonable diligence, have been brought on the record in the previous proceedings. This Court made it very clear that interest of justice cannot permit that after a decision has been given on a complaint upon full consideration of the case, the complainant should be given another opportunity to have the complaint enquired into again. In paragraph 50 of the judgment the majority judgment of this Court opined that fresh evidence or fresh facts must be such which could not with reasonable diligence have been brought on record. This Court very clearly held that it cannot be settled law which permits the complainant to place some evidence before the Magistrate which are in his possession and then if the complaint is dismissed adduce some more evidence. According to this Court such a course is not permitted on a correct view of the law. (para 50, page 899)

This question again came up for consideration before this Court in Jatinder Singh and others vs. Ranjit Kaur (AIR 2001 SC 784). There also this Court by relying on the principle in Pramatha Nath (supra) held that there is no provision in the Code or in any other statute which debars complainant from filing a second complaint on the same allegation as in the first complaint. But this Court added when a Magistrate conducts an enquiry under Section 202 of the Code and dismisses a complaint on merits a second complaint on the same facts could not be made unless there are `exceptional circumstances'. This Court held in para 12 if the dismissal of the first complaint is not on merit but the dismissal is for the default of the complainant then there is no bar in the filing a second complaint on the same facts. However if the dismissal of the complaint under Section 203 of the Code was on merit the position will be different. Saying so, the learned Judges held that the controversy has been settled by this Court in Pramatha Nath (supra) and quoted the observation of Justice Kapur in paragraph 48 of Pramatha Nath (supra):-

".....An order of dismissal under S. 203, Criminal Procedure Code, is, however, no bar to the entertainment of a second complaint on the same facts but it will be entertained only in exceptional circumstances, e.g., where the previous order was passed on an incomplete record or on a misunderstanding of the nature of the complaint or it was manifestly absurd, unjust or foolish or where new facts which could not, with reasonable diligence, have been brought on the record in the previous proceedings have been adduced. It cannot be said to be in the interest of justice that after a decision has been given against the complainant upon a full consideration of his case, he or any other person should be given another opportunity to have his complaint enquired into....."

Again in Mahesh Chand vs. B. Janardhan Reddy and another- (2003) 1 SCC 734, a three Judge Bench of this Court considered this question in paragraph 19 at page 740 of the report. The learned Judges of this court held that a second complaint is not completely barred nor is there any statutory bar in filing a second complaint on the same facts in a case where a previous complaint was dismissed without assigning any reason. The Magistrate under Section 204 of the Code can take cognizance of an offence and issue process if there is sufficient ground for proceeding. In Mahesh Chand (supra) this Court relied on the ratio in Pramatha Nath (supra) and held if the first complaint had been dismissed the second complaint can be entertained only in exceptional circumstances and thereafter the exceptional circumstances pointed out in Pramatha Nath (supra) were reiterated.

Therefore, this Court holds that the ratio in Pramatha Nath (supra) is still holding the field. The same principle has been reiterated once again by this Court in Hiralal and others vs. State of U.P. & others- AIR 2009 SC 2380. In paragraph 14 of the judgment this Court expressly quoted the ratio in Mahesh Chand (supra) discussed hereabove.

Following the aforesaid principles which are more or less settled and are holding the field since 1962 and have been repeatedly followed by this Court, we are of the view that the second complaint in this case was on almost identical facts which was raised in the first complaint and which was dismissed on merits. So the second complaint is not maintainable. This Court finds that the core of both the complaints is the same. Nothing has been disclosed in the second complaint which is substantially new and not disclosed in first complaint. No case is made out that even after the exercise of due diligence the facts alleged in the second complaint were not within the application of the first complainant. In fact such a case could not be made out since the facts in both the complaints are almost identical. Therefore, the second complaint is not covered within exceptional circumstances explained in Pramatha Nath (supra). In that view of the matter the second complaint in the facts of this case, cannot be entertained."

15. In the present case, a perusal of the complaint and the order passed earlier rejecting the complaint makes it clear that the second complaint (under challenge in the present proceeding) is nothing but a mere repetition and nothing has been argued to demonstrate that any of the exceptional circumstances as enumerated in the judgement of Poonam Chand Jain (supra) were available while filing the second complaint.

16. On this count alone and placing reliance on the judgement of Poonam Chand Jain (supra) I have no hesitation in holding that the summoning order dated 18.10.2013 passed in Complaint Case No. 433 of 2013 as well as the revisional order dated 23.12.2015 are in ignorance the settled position of law and thus cannot be sustained and are quashed.

17. Consequently, the Complaint Case No. 433 of 2013, pending before the court of Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division)/Magistrate, Court No. 22, Raebareli is hereby quashed.

18. The application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is disposed off.

19. Let a copy of this order be sent to the court concerned for it being placed on record.

It was further alleged that while acting as a Lokayukta, the applicant has deliberately relied upon the evidences which he knew to be wrong and false and on half baked facts, which were well within the personal knowledge of the applicant and thus was guilty of wrongly relying upon non-existent evidence and knowing that the evidence was non-existent proceeded to pass an order against the provisions of the Lokayukta Act and the Lokayukta Complaint Rules, 1977. It was further alleged that the husband of the complainant had informed the applicant about the facts through written communication dated 12.8.2015 and 19.8.2015. In sum and substance, the allegations made in the complaint were that the applicant has passed a wrong order relying upon evidences which he knew were incorrect and half baked and wrong facts with a view to harm the complainant's husband. A copy of the complaint which is on record clearly reveals that the entire allegations were in relation to the order passed by the applicant in exercise of his power under the Lokayukta Act.

11. The C.J.M. vide his order dated 3.9.2015 took cognizance of the offence alleged and directed for registration of the complaint and for recording of the statements under Section 200 Cr.P.C. on 10.09.2015.

12. On 10.09.2015, one Sri Sanjay Sharma intervened in the said Complaint Case No. 8737 of 2015 and requested for rejection of the complaint and informed the C.J.M. that the cognizance of the complaint was barred under Section 17 of Lokayukta Act and Section 201 I.P.C. and the complaint was not maintainable. The C.J.M. vide his order dated 10.9.2015 held that at this stage the intervener had no right to intervene and consequently rejected his application and fixed 11.9.2015 for recording of evidence under Section 200 Cr.P.C. He subsequently proceeded to record the statement under Section 200 Cr.P.C. on 11.9.2015 and subsequently the statement under Section 202 Cr.P.C. was adjourned for recording on various dates.

13. The applicant filed the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. on 3rd May, 2016 seeking the quashing of the criminal proceedings.

14. Sri Anupam Mehrotra, Advocate has made the following submissions:-

15. That the Magistrate was not justified in registering the complaint against the petitioner who happens to be the Lokayukta as the allegations in the complaint were based upon the acts which were in discharge of the official duty as a Lokayukta. The submissions are that Section 17 (1) of the U.P. Lokayukta and Up-Lokayuktas Act, 1975, bars any prosecution for the official acts He further argues that the Magistrate received an information to that effect, however, despite being informed he proceeded to record the evidence under Section 200 of Cr.P.C. which is violative of the immunity granted to the petitioner under Section 17(1) of the Act. The next argument of Sri Anupam Mehrotra is that even in terms of the provisions of Section 197 Cr.P.C. without there being any sanction the Magistrate could not entertain the complaint and to take steps as has been done by the Magistrate. He further argues that the acts done by the petitioner in discharge of his duty as Lokayukta fell within the exceptions under Chapter IV of the Indian Penal Code. He specifically relied upon Sections 76 and 79 of Chapter IV of the Indian Penal Code, in that regard he further relied upon the judgments filed in the form of Synopsis which are taken on record. He has relied upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in the cases of M/s Pepsi Foods Ltd. and another Vs. Special Judicial Magistrate and others, 1998 SCC (Cri) 1400, Institution of A.P.

Lokayukta v. T. Rama Subba Reddy; (1997) 9 SCC 42, State of U.P. v. Sheo Shanker Lal Srivastava; (2006) 3 SCC 276, M.P. Special Police Establishment v. State of M.P.; (2004)8 SCC 788, Rang Nath Mishra v. State of U.P.; (2015) 8 SCC 117, State of Rajasthan v. Shamsher Singh; (2015) 4 SCC (Cri) 421, State of Orissa v. MESCO Steels Ltd.; (2013) 4 SCC 340, Matajog Dubey v. H.C. Bhari; AIR 1956 SC 44, Ramayya v. State of Bombay; AIR 1955 SC 287, Amrik Singh v. State of Pepsu; AIR 1955 SC 309 and N.K. Ogle v. Sanwaldas; (1999) 3 SCC 284.

"8. In many of the files of public interest litigation filed by the petitioner, examined by the Court, we find that the petitioner has raised issues within a few days when any social or political issue attracts the attention of the media. Almost all the writ petitions are filed without any research or material and based only on the newspaper reports. The petitioner appears to have a permanent presence before the Bench hearing public interest litigation matters. It appears from the records of the writ petitions and the orders that the petitioner has received a tacit encouragement in filing such petitions, which takes away substantial time of the Court leaving other important matters.

9. Most of the writ petitions, filed by the petitioner in person are not in public interest. These writ petitions have been filed covering almost every subject covered by media to be topical mostly concerning social, political economic or commercial interest. She has also allowed her children, still minor in filing writ petitions; the last one concerning the decision of the Central government awarding Bharat Ratna awards. Almost every subject under the sun which attracts her imagination becomes a subject matter of public Interest Litigation.

10. In order to save this Court from the tsunami of writ petitions filed by the petitioner who appear almost every other day in Court touching matters which hits the headline, treating it as public interest, we find it appropriate to direct that hence forth the registry of the Court will not entertain any writ petition in public interest from Dr Nutan Thakur - either in person or though counsel (either as petitioner or co-petitioner) unless the petition, filed by her, accompanies a demand of Rs.25,000/- (Twenty Five Thousand). At the time of admission of the writ petition, if the Court considers that the petitioner has raised a matter which is genuine and bonafide in public interest, the demand draft deposited by her may be returned to her. In case it is found by the Court that the Writ Petition filed by her does not involve any public interest and the writ petition is dismissed, the amount in the demand draft deposited by her will be treated as costs imposed on her, and the amount will be credited in the account of the High Court Legal Services Committee at Lucknow to be spent for activities of the Legal Services Committee of the High Court.

11. The writ petition is dismissed, with cost of Rs.25,000/- to be paid by the petitioner appear in person to be deposited by her within a month with Senior Registrar, High Court at Lucknow, failingwhich it will realized from her by the District Magistrate, Lucknow with one month thereafter for which the demand will be sent by the Senior Registrar, subject to deposit made by her within within one month."

17. On the basis of submission as recorded above, Sri Anupam Mehrotra, Advocate prays that the proceedings pending before the Chief Judicial Magistrate are liable to be quashed.

18. Thus, what is to be decided by this Court is:-

(i) whether the order dated 3.9.2015 amounts to "taking cognizance',

(ii) whether the complaint as filed is barred under Section 17(1) of the Lokayukta Act,

(iii) whether there being an absence of sanction under Section 197 Cr.P.C. the C.J.M. erred in taking cognizance of complaint and,

(iv) whether the complainant could not have filed the complaint being a habitual litigant.

19. To appreciate the arguments advanced it is essential to deal with the scope and ambit of the "Lokayukta Act' and Section 197 Cr.P.C. The scheme of the Uttar Pradesh Lokayukta and Up-Lokayuktas Act, 1975 makes it clear that the said Act was enacted for appointment and function of authorities for investigation of grievances and allegations made against Ministers, Legislatures and public servants in certain cases.

20. Section 3 of the said Act provides for the appointment of Lokayukta and Up-Lokayukta who are empowered to conduct investigations. It provides that the Lokayukta shall be appointed after the consultation with the Chief Justice of High Court of Judicature at Allahabad and the leader of the opposition in the Legislative Assembly.

21. The Act further bars the Lokayukta or the Up-Lokayukta from holding any other Office. The appointment of the Lokayukta is for a tenure as provided under Section 5 of the Act being six years from the date on which he enters his Office. Section 6 of the said Act provides for the manner of removal of Lokayukta and Up-Lokayukta. Section 7 of the said Act provides for the matter in which the investigations may be carried out by the Lokayukta or the Up-Lokayukta and Section 8 specifically bars the matters in which the investigations cannot be carried out by the Lokayukta.

22. Section 10 of the Lokayukta Act provides for the procedure to be adopted in respect of investigations and is as under:-

"10. Procedure in respect of investigations. - (1) Where the Lokayukta or an Up-Lokayukta proposes (after making such preliminary inquiry, if any, as he deems fit) to conduct any investigation under this Act, he -

(a) shall forward a copy of the complaint to the public servant concerned and the competent authority concerned;

(b) shall afford to the public servant concerned an opportunity to offer his comments on such complaint; and

(c) may make such orders as to the safe custody of documents relevant to the investigation, as he deems fit.

(2) Every such investigation shall be conducted in private, and in particular, the identity of the complainant and of the public servant affected by the investigation shall not be disclosed to the public or the press whether before, during or after the investigation :

Provided that, the Lokayukta or an Up-Lokayukta may conduct any investigation relating to a matter of definite public importance in public, if he, for reasons to be recorded in writing, thinks fit to do so.

(3) Save as aforesaid, the procedure for conducting any such investigation shall be such as the Lokayukta or, as the case may be, the Up-Lokayukta considers appropriate in the circumstances of the case.

(4) The Lokayukta or an Up-Lokayukta may, in his discretion, refuse to investigate or cease to investigate any complaint involving a grievance or, an allegation, if in his opinion -

(a) the complaint is frivolous or vexatious, or is not made in good faith; or

(b) there are no sufficient grounds for investigating or, as the case may be, for continuing the investigation; or

(c) other remedies are available to the complainant and in the circumstances of the case it would be more proper for the complainant to avail of such remedies.

(5) In any case where the Lokayukta or an Up-Lokayukta decides not to entertain a complaint or to discontinue any investigation in respect of a complaint, he shall record his reasons therefor and communicate the same to the complainant and the public servant concerned.

(6) The conduct of an investigation under this Act in respect of any action shall not affect such action, or any power or duty of any public servant to take further action with respect to any matter subject to the investigation."

23. Section 12 of the Lokayukta Act provides for the evidences that may be called for in discharge of the official functions. Section 13 provides for the manner in which the action can be taken in the case of complaints by persons who willfully or maliciously makes false complaints and Section 13 (6) confers the power to detain in custody for taking cognizance of the offence. Section 13 (6) of the said Act is as under:-

"(6) When any such offence as is described in Section 175, Section 178, Section 179 or Section 180 of the Indian Penal Code is committed in the view or presence of the Lokayukta or Up-Lokayukta, he may cause the offender to be detained in custody and may, at any time on the same day, take cognizance of the offence and, after giving the offender a reasonable opportunity of showing cause why he should not be punished under this section, sentence the offender to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or to fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or to both."

24. Section 17 of the Lokayukta Act, which is the sum and substance the sheet anchor of the arguments made by the counsel for the applicant provides for protection to the Lokayukta or the Up-Lokayukta in respect of anything which in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act. Section 17 is as under:-

"17. Protection. - (1) No suit, prosecution or other legal proceeding shall lie against the Lokayukta or the Up-Lokayukta or against any officer, employee, agency or person referred to in Section 14 in respect of anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

(2) No proceedings of the Lokayukta or the Up-Lokayukta shall be held bad for want of form and except on the ground of jurisdiction, no proceedings or decision of the Lokayukta or the Up-Lokayukta shall be liable to be challenged, reviewed, quashed or called in question in any Court."

25. Section 197 Cr.P.C. provides for prior sanction before any cognizance can be taken for allegations against Judges and public servants. Section 197 Cr.P.C. is as under:-

"197. Prosecution of Judges and public servants.-(1) When any person who is or was a Judge or Magistrate or a public servant not removable from his office save by or with the sanction of the Government is accused of any offence alleged to have been committed by him while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty, no Court shall take cognizance of such offence except with the previous sanction [save as otherwise provided in the Lokpal and Lokayuktas Act, 2013]-

(a) in the case of a person who is employed or, as the case may be, was at the time of commission of the alleged offence employed, in connection with the affairs of the Union, of the Central Government;

(b) in the case of a person who is employed or, as the case may be, was at the time of commission of the alleged offence employed, in connection with the affairs of a State, of the State Government:

[Provided that where the alleged offence was committed by a person referred to in clause (b) during the period while a Proclamation issued under clause (1) of article 356 of the Constitution was in force in a State, clause (b) will apply as if for the expression" State Government" occurring therein, the expression" Central Government" were substituted.]

[Explanation.-For the removal of doubts it is hereby declared that no sanction shall be required in case of a public servant accused of any offence alleged to have been committed under Section 166-A, Section 166-B, Section 354, Section 354-A, Section 354-B, Section 354-C, Section 354-D, Section 370, Section 375, Section 376, Section 376-A, Section 376-C, Section 376-D or Section 509 of the Indian Penal code (45 of 1860).]

(2) No Court shall take cognizance of any offence alleged to have been committed by any member of the Armed Forces of the Union while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty, except with the previous sanction of the Central Government.

(3) The State Government may, by notification, direct that the provisions of sub-section (2) shall apply to such class or category of the members of the Forces charged with the maintenance of public order as may be specified therein, wherever they may be serving, and thereupon the provisions of that sub-section will apply as if for the expression"Central Government" occurring therein, the expression" State Government" were substituted.

[(3-A) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (3), no court shall take cognizance of any offence, alleged to have been committed by any member of the Forces charged with the maintenance of public order in a State while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty during the period while a Proclamation issued under clause (1) of article 356 of the Constitution was in force therein, except with the previous sanction of the Central Government.

(3-B) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this Code or any other law, it is hereby declared that any sanction accorded by the State Government or any cognizance taken by a court upon such sanction, during the period commencing on the 20th day of August, 1991 and ending with the date immediately preceding the date on which the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1991, receives the assent of the President, with respect to an offence alleged to have been committed during the period while a Proclamation issued under clause (1) of article 356 of the Constitution was in force in the State, shall be invalid and it shall be competent for the Central Government in such matter to accord sanction and for the court to take cognizance thereon.]

(4) The Central Government or the State Government, as the case may be, may determine the person by whom, the manner in which, and the offence or offences for which, the prosecution of such Judge, Magistrate or public servant is to be conducted, and may specify the Court before which the trial is to be held."

26. Sri Anupam Mehrotra has relied upon the definition of the public servant as defined under Section 21 I.P.C. to contend that the applicant falls within the definition of a public servant and as such no cognizance could have been taken by the Magistrate without any sanction which the C.J.M. has done in the teeth of Section 197 Cr.P.C. Sri Mehrotra further submits that as the applicant is entitled to detain any person in confinement by virtue of power conferred under Section 13 (6) of the Lokayukta Act and as such he falls within the seventh category as defining public servant under Section 21 I.P.C. Section 21 I.P.C. is quoted as under:-

"21. "Public servant".--The words "public servant" denote a person falling under any of the descriptions hereinafter following; namely:-- []*

er by himself or as a member of any body of persons, any adjudicatory functions;]

Fourth. -- Every officer of a Court of Justice [(including a liquidator, receiver or commissioner)] whose duty it is, as such officer, to investigate or report on any matter of law or fact, or to make, authenticate, or keep any document, or to take charge or dispose of any property, or to execute any judicial process, or to administer any oath, or to interpret, or to preserve order in the Court, and every person specially authorized by a Court of Justice to perform any of such duties;

Fifth. -- Every juryman, assessor, or member of a panchayat assisting a Court of Justice or public servant;

Sixth. -- Every arbitrator or other person to whom any cause or matter has been referred for decision or report by any Court of Justice, or by any other competent public authority;

Seventh. --Every person who holds any office by virtue of which he is empowered to place or keep any person in confinement;

Eighth. -- Every officer of [the Government] whose duty it is, as such officer, to prevent offences, to give information of offences, to bring offenders to justice, or to protect the public health, safety or convenience;

Ninth. -- Every officer whose duty it is, as such officer, to take, receive, keep or expend any property on behalf of [the Government], or to make any survey, assessment or contract on behalf of [the Government], or to execute any revenue process, or to investigate, or to report, on any matter affecting the pecuniary interests of [the Government], or to make, authenticate or keep any document relating to the pecuniary interests of [the Government], or to prevent the infraction of any law for the protection of the pecuniary interests of [the Government] [];

Tenth. -- Every officer whose duty it is, as such officer, to take, receive, keep or expend any property, to make any survey or assessment or to levy any rate or tax for any secular common purpose of any village, town or district, or to make, authenticate or keep any document for the ascertaining of the rights of the people of any village, town or district;

[Eleventh. --Every person who holds any office in virtue of which he is empowered to prepare, publish, maintain or revise an electoral roll or to conduct an election or part of an election;]

[Twelfth. --Every person--

(a) in the service or pay of the Government or remunerated by fees or commission for the performance of any public duty by the Government;

(b) in the service or pay of a local authority, a corporation established by or under a Central, Provincial or State Act or a Government company as defined in section 617 of the Companies Act, 1956 (1 of 1956).] "

27. The expression "cognizance" and "taking cognizance" came up for interpretation before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Manharibhai Muljibhai Kakadia and Another v. Shaileshbhai Mohanbhai Patel and others; (2012) 10 SCC 517, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

"24. The procedural scheme in respect of the complaints made to Magistrates is provided in Chapter XV of the Code. On a complaint being made to a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence, he is required to examine the complainant on oath and the witnesses, if any, and then on considering the complaint and the statements on oath, if he is of the opinion that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding, the complaint shall be dismissed after recording brief reasons. The Magistrate may also on receipt of a complaint of which he is authorised to take cognizance proceed with further inquiry into the allegations made in the complaint either himself or direct an investigation into the allegations in the complaint to be made by a police officer or by such other person as he thinks fit for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding. In that event, the Magistrate in fact postpones the issue of process. On conclusion of the inquiry by himself or on receipt of report from the police officer or from such other person who has been directed to investigate into the allegations, if, in the opinion of the Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence there is no sufficient ground for proceeding, the complaint is dismissed under Section 203 or where the Magistrate is of the opinion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding, then a process is issued. In a summons case, summons for the attendance of the accused is issued and in a warrant case the Magistrate may either issue a warrant or a summons for causing the accused to be brought or to appear before him.

25. Pertinently, Chapter XV uses the expression, "taking cognizance of an offence" at various places. Although the expression is not defined in the Code, but it has acquired definite meaning for the purposes of the Code.

34. The word "cognizance" occurring in various sections in the Code is a word of wide import. It embraces within itself all powers and authority in exercise of jurisdiction and taking of authoritative notice of the allegations made in the complaint or a police report or any information received that an offence has been committed. In the context of Sections 200, 202 and 203, the expression "taking cognizance" has been used in the sense of taking notice of the complaint or the first information report or the information that an offence has been committed on application of judicial mind. It does not necessarily mean issuance of process."

28. A perusal of the order dated 3.9.2015, and the Magistrate recording the statements under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and fixing the same for recording of the statement under Section 202 Cr.P.C. clearly would amount to fall within the expression "taking cognizance", as used in Section 200 Cr.P.C. Furthermore a perusal of Section 200 Cr.P.C. makes it clear that the Magistrate after taking cognizance on an offence shall proceed to examine on oath the complainant and the witnesses present, if any. In view thereof, I have no hesitation in holding that the Magistrate had taken cognizance of the allegations levelled against the applicant by the complainant in the complaint while passing the order dated 3.9.2015.

29. The next question to be answered is whether the complaint was barred under Section 17 (1) of the Lokayukta Act. The Section 17 (1) of the Act has been incorporated in the Act to give protection to the Lokayuktas with a view to ensure the functioning of the Lokayukta in a free and fair manner. It specifically provides the protection of the actions taken/orders passed in the course of the powers entrusted upon the Lokayukta under the Act from prosecution. The said protection granted under Section 17 (1) has to be strictly interpreted without which the entire object of the Lokayukta Act and the appointment of the Lokayukta would wipe out the spirit with which the Act has been enacted. The scheme of the Act makes it clear that the Lokayukta has to be a neutral person who is required to take decision without any fear or favour and without the kind of protection as provided under Section 17 (1) of the Lokayukta Act being there, it cannot be conceived that the object of the Act would be fulfilled.

30. The complaint as filed before the C.J.M. makes allegations against the applicant with regard to the orders passed by the applicant under Section 10 (5) of the Act. The sum and substance of the allegations is that while passing the said order, the Lokayukta has relied upon non-existence evidences and half baked facts which the applicant had the personal knowledge of being contrary to the actual facts. There is no allegation whatsoever that the order passed was not in good faith. It is relevant to note that the order which led to the filing of the complaint is already a subject matter of writ petition which is pending, in which no orders have been passed. A perusal of the complaint makes it abundantly clear that the allegations levelled in the complaint were with regard to the acts of the applicant while discharging his statutory duties as a Lokayukta of State of Uttar Pradesh and thus no legal proceedings could be instituted against the applicant as prohibited under Section 17(1) of the Act and the Magistrate was clearly barred from taking cognizance of the offences as has been done by the Magistrate.

31. Now coming to the question of prior sanction required under Section 197 Cr.P.C. before taking cognizance of an offence. Section 197 Cr.P.C. specifically bars any Court from taking cognizance against a "Judge' or a "Magistrate' or a "public servant' without sanction of the Government. A bare reading of provisions of Section 197 (1) Cr.P.C. makes it clear that for attracting the provision of Section 197 Cr.P.C. it is essential that (i) the person accused of an offence should be a "Judge' or a "Magistrate' or a "public servant' (ii) and he should not be removable from his Office save by or with the sanction of the Government. Thus, if it is established that the person falls within the category of a "Judge' or a "Magistrate' or a "public servant' and he cannot be removed from his Office except with the sanction of the Government, the provisions of Section 197 Cr.P.C. shall become applicable forthwith.

32. Section 21 (Seventh Explanation) of the I.P.C. read with Section 13 (6) of the Lokayukta Act makes it clear that the applicant would fall within the definition of "public servant' and furthermore provision of Section 6 of the Lokayukta Act make it clear that a Lokayukta cannot be removed without following the procedure as prescribed under Section 6 of the Lokayukta Act and without the sanction of the Governor. Thus, on both the counts i.e. the applicant falling within the definition of a "public servant' and also "not removable except with the sanction of the Governor', the protection of Section 197 (1) Cr.P.C. squarely applies to the applicant and thus on this count also the Magistrate has erred in taking cognizance of an offence.

33. Sri Mehrotra has extensively relied upon the observations made by the Apex Court in the Constitution Bench judgment of Matajog Dubey v. H.C. Bhari; AIR 1956 SC 44, wherein the Constitution Bench was considering the proceedings the proceedings against the public servant without sanction. The Constitution Bench decision Matajog Dobey case clearly enunciates where a power is conferred or a duty is imposed by a statute or otherwise and there is nothing said expressly inhibiting the exercise of the power or the performance of the duty by any limitations or restrictions, it is reasonable to hold that it carries with it the power of doing all such acts or employing such means as are reasonably necessary for such execution because it is a rule that when the law commands a thing to be done, it authorises the performance of whatever may be necessary for executing its command. The Court was considering in the said case the allegation that the official authorised in pursuance of a warrant issued by the Income Tax Investigation Commission in connection with certain pending proceedings before it, forcibly broke open the entrance door and when some resistance was put, the said officer not only entered forcibly but tied the person offering resistance with a rope and assaulted him mercilessly causing injuries and for such an act, a complaint had been filed against the public officers concerned. This Court, however, came to hold that such a complaint cannot be entertained without a sanction of the competent authority as provided under Section 197 CrPC. This Court had observed that before coming to a conclusion whether the provisions of Section 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure will apply, the court must come to a conclusion that there is a reasonable connection between the act complained of and the discharge of official duty; the act must bear such relation to the duty that the accused could lay a reasonable claim that he did it in the course of the performance of his duty.

34. Applying the said test, it is clear that the order passed by the applicant acting as a Lokayukta was in discharge of his official capacity which he was authorised to perform under the provisions of the Lokayukta Act.

35. Sri Mehrotra has further strenuously relied upon on the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of N.K. Ogle v. Sanwaldas; (1999) 3 SCC 284, wherein the Apex Court relied upon the decision in the case of Matajog Dubey (supra) followed the same and further relying upon the case of Suresh Kumar Bhikamchand Jain v. Pandey Ajay Bhushan; (1998) 1 SCC 205 held as under:-

"In Suresh Kumar case [(1998) 1 SCC 205 : 1998 SCC (Cri) 1] relying upon Matajog Dobey case [AIR 1956 SC 44 : (1955) 2 SCR 925 : (1955) 28 ITR 941] and bearing in mind the legislative mandate engrafted in sub-section (1) of Section 197 debarring a court from taking cognizance of an offence except with previous sanction of the Government concerned, this Court has held that the said provision is a prohibition imposed by the statute from taking cognizance and, as such, the jurisdiction of the court in the matter of taking cognizance and, therefore, a court will not be justified in taking cognizance of the offence without such sanction on a finding that the acts complained of are in excess of the discharge of the official duty of the government servant concerned."

36. In view of the law as laid down by the Apex Court as extracted above, I have no hesitation in coming to the conclusion that no cognizance could be taken by the Magistrate without sanction under Section 197 Cr.P.C.

37. Coming to the argument of Sri Mehrotra that the complainant is a habitual litigant and on that score also the complaint deserves to be quashed, I am afraid, I am unable to accept the said submission merely because the complainant has been barred from instituting Public Interest Litigation, there cannot be any blanket bar against the complainant initiating or resorting to legal remedies as may be available to the complainant in the facts of the given cases. Thus, the submission of Sri Mehrotra on that count deserves to be rejected.

38. On the basis of the findings recorded above, I am of the view that the complaint as filed was specifically barred under Section 17 (1) of the Lokayukta Act and the order taking cognizance of the offence was barred under Section 197 Cr.P.C. As such, the Case No. 8737 of 2015 (Dr. Nutan Thakur v. Sri N.K. Mehrotra) pending in the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Lucknow as well as the order taking cognizance dated 3.9.2015 deserves to be quashed and are accordingly quashed.

39. The application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is disposed off in terms of the said direction.

40. No order as to costs.

41. Let a copy of this order be sent to the concerned court for it being taken on record.

A. Criminal Law-Criminal Application Under Section 482 Cr.P.C - Section 190(1)(a) and Section 203 Cr.P. C - Rejection of Complaint –It is not only the prima facie case where the Magistrate chooses to adopt the course provided under Chapter XV of the Cr.P.C. on a complaint but, the Magistrate is also required to satisfy himself of the sufficiency of the material/evidence to proceed against the accused which must be sufficient for the complainant to succeed in bringing charge home. Application of Judicial mind- The criminal justice process may not be initiated in a mechanical manner - It must be disclosed from the order that the Magistrate while taking cognizance of an offence on a complaint filed under Section 190(1)(a) Cr.P.C., applied his judicial mind to the relevant issues. It must be sufficiently incorporated in the order - If the Magistrate finds that the complaint does not disclose any cause of action upon examination of the complainant, the Magistrate should not proceed with the complaint and should dismiss it.

Glaring contradictions in the statement of the complainants, witnesses and averments in the complaint - No prima facie case made out – Magistrate refused to take cognizance. Revisional Court set aside the order on the ground that at the time of summoning the accused only prima facie case is required to be considered- Contradictions in the statement of the complainant and the averments in the complaint were minor and on that basis it could not be said that no prima facie case was made out. High Court set-aside the order of the revising authority.

B. The order passed by learned revisional court is unsustainable and the present revision (sic) Criminal Application under section 482 of the Cr.P.C.) is allowed. (Para 20,21,22,23,25,27,28)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. The petitioner is a practicing lawyer of this court. He has filed the present petition under section 482 Cr.PC for setting aside order dated 31.03.2015 passed by revisional Court/Additional Sessions Judge, Ambedkar Nagar in Criminal Revision No.231 of 2013 setting aside the order dated 20.09.2013 passed by II-Additional Civil Judge(Junior Division)/ Judicial Magistrate, Ambedkar Nagar in Complaint Case No.250 of 2013 whereby the learned magistrate had rejected the complaint of respondent No.2 under Section 203 Cr.P.C.

2. The petitioner and respondent No.2 are the resident of the same village. Petitioner's bhumidhari land is adjacent to Abadi land of the village. Respondent No.2 had constructed a house near the land of the petitioner. It is alleged that respondent No.2 had been trying to encroach upon the land of the petitioner.

3. Respondent No.2 belongs to a political party and the said political party was in power in the State at the relevant time. Respondent No.2 was making endeavour to encroach the land of the petitioner in the year 2003. Thereafter, he usurped the land of the petitioner and made construction over it. The petitioner, however, complained to the revenue authorities against the encroachment of his land by respondent No.2 and the revenue authorities evicted respondent No.2 from the land of the petitioner.

4. When respondent No.2 did not succeed in his attempt to usurp the land of the petitioner and encroach the land illegally, he filed an application dated 05.02.2013 under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. for a direction to register an FIR against the petitioner and his family members and investigate thereof.

5. Learned magistrate treated the said application filed by respondent No.2 as a complaint and proceeded to record the statement of the complainant and witness(es) under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. The case was registered as Complaint Case No.250 of 2013. Learned magistrate, however, after considering the statement of the complainant (respondent No.2) and witnesses who were brother and daughter of respondent No.2 arrived at a conclusion that there were glaring contradictions in the averments/allegation in the complaint and the statements of the complainant and the witnesses which were inconsistent and contradictory.

6. Learned Magistrate vide a reasoned order dated 20.09.2013 dismissed the complaint under Section 203 Cr.P.C.

7. Being aggrieved by the dismissal of the complaint, respondent No.2 filed a revision being Criminal Revision No.231 of 2013 in which the impugned order dated 31.03.2015 has been passed.

8. Heard Sri Satish Kumar Singh, the petitioner in-person and learned A.G.A. for the State. Despite notice no one has put in appearance on behalf of respondent No.2.

9. Learned Magistrate in the order dated 20.09.2013 after considering the statements of the complainant and the witnesses had come to the conclusion that no prima facie case was made out for summoning the proposed accused and, therefore, rejected the Complaint Case No.250 of 2013. Learned Magistrate had recorded a finding that the complainant in his statement under Section 200 Cr.P.C. had stated that at the time of incident his son, Gulab was also present with him at his agricultural field. He further said that the accused assaulted him and his son by kicks and fists. However, neither in the complaint nor in the statement of the witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C. there was any mention of his son being present at the time of incident.

10. Learned magistrate had further recorded a finding of fact that the complainant in his statement had said that the accused thereafter, assaulted him and his son inside the house and on raising alarm one Ram Charan and his daughter, Anju came there. However, the witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C. said that the accused had assaulted the complainant and his daughter inside the house but in the complaint, Anju, the daughter of the complainant was nowhere mentioned. Thus, there were glaring contradictions in the statement of the complainants, witnesses and averments in the complaint. Specific stand of the complainant was that the accused assaulted the complainant and his son, however, in the complaint it was alleged that the accused assaulted only the complainant and in the statement of the witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C. it was alleged that the accused assaulted the complainant and his daughter, Anju. It had further been observed by the learned Magistrate that according to the averments in the complaint, the accused had assaulted the complainant inside his house by lathi whereas in the statement under Section 200 Cr.P.C. the complainant did not mention the assault by Lathi and Danda. It was alleged that the accused assaulted him by kicks and cricket bat.

11. Considering these glaring contradictions in the complaint, statements of the witnesses and statement of the complainant, the learned Magistrate did not find sufficient ground to summon the accused and, therefore, dismissed complaint under Section 203 Cr.P.C.

12. Learned Revisional Court, however, has set aside the said order on the ground that at the time of summoning the accused only prima facie case is required to be considered. Contradictions in the statement of the complainant and the averments in the complaint were minor and on that basis it could not be said that no prima facie case was made out.

13. I have considered the submissions of the petitioner and learned A.G.A. for the State.

14. When a Magistrate receives a complaint, it is not necessary for the Magistrate to take cognizance for the facts alleged in the complaint which would disclose commission of an offence. The magistrate has discretion in the matter. If a complaint discloses cognizable offence, the magistrate may forward the complaint to the police for investigation under section 156(3) Cr.P.C., such a course is conducive to justice and to save the valuable time of the Magistrate from being wasted in enquiring into a matter by himself. Investigation is a primary duty of the police and, therefore, if the complaint discloses cognizable offence, the Magistrate ordinarily should refer the complaint to the police for investigation. If the Magistrate refers the complaint to the police for investigation, he is not required to examine the complaint on oath inasmuch as he is not taking cognizance of any offence therein. However, if he takes cognizance and adopts the course in chapter XV of the Cr.P.C., thereafter he would not be competent to revert back the precognizance stage.

15. When a magistrate chooses to take cognizance on a complaint, he can adopt any of the following alternatives:-

(a) He can peruse the complaint and if satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for proceeding, he can straightway issue process to the accused but before he does so, he must comply with the requirements of Section 200 and record the evidence of the complainant and his witnesses; or

(b) The Magistrate can postpone the issue of process and direct an enquiry by himself; or

(c) The Magistrate can postpone the issue of process and direct an enquiry by any other person or an investigation by the police.

16. If the Magistrate after considering the statement of the complainant and, the witnesses or as a result of the investigation and the enquiry ordered is not satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for proceeding, he can dismiss the complaint.

17. The question which arises for consideration in the present case is whether in dismissing the complaint under Section 203 Cr.P.C. after considering the contents of the complaint and the statements of the complainant and witnesses, did the learned Magistrate commit any illegality or exercised his jurisdiction improperly or violate any provision of Cr.P.C. which warranted the learned Revisional Court to interfere with the order passed by learned Magistrate?

18. Learned Magistrate after considering the averments in the complaint, statements of the complainant and the witnesses was of the opinion that there were glaring contradictions and there was no sufficient material for summoning the accused. Can it be said that the discretion vested in the Magistrate was exercised arbitrarily or against the provision of Cr.P.C.?

19. Learned Revisional court has set aside the order dated 31.03.2015 of the learned magistrate on the ground that the learned Magistrate is only required to examine whether a prima facie case is made out or not against the accused. Revisional Court has also opined that the contradictions in the statements of the complainant and witnesses and averments in the complaint are minor.

20. It is well settled that before issuing process and setting criminal proceedings in motion, the learned Magistrate is not only required to see the prima facie case but has also to be satisfied that there is sufficient material to proceed against the accused after examining the contents of the complaint and the statements of the complainant and the witnesses and other evidence.

21 . The Magistrate has to form an opinion of a prima facie case at the time of taking cognizance but when the Magistrate issuing process to summon the accused, he should see whether there is sufficient material to proceed against the accused after considering the averments of the complaint and the statements of the complainant and the witnesses as well as other evidence.

22. It is no longer res integra that summoning an accused in a criminal case is a serious matter. Criminal Law cannot be set into motion of course. It is not sufficient that a complainant files a complaint and gets his statement recorded and brings one witness for summoning the accused. Learned Magistrate is required to apply his mind to the facts of the case and law applicable thereto. He must examine the nature of allegation made in the complaint and the evidence both oral and documentary in support thereof. The evidence must be sufficient for the complainant to succeed in bringing charge home. The Supreme Court in the case of Pepsi Foods Ltd. v. Special Judicial Magistrate, (1998) 5 SCC 749 in para 28 has held as under:-

28. Summoning of an accused in a criminal case is a serious matter. Criminal law cannot be set into motion as a matter of course. It is not that the complainant has to bring only two witnesses to support his allegations in the complaint to have the criminal law set into motion. The order of the Magistrate summoning the accused must reflect that he has applied his mind to the facts of the case and the law applicable thereto. He has to examine the nature of allegations made in the complaint and the evidence both oral and documentary in support thereof and would that be sufficient for the complainant to succeed in bringing charge home to the accused. It is not that the Magistrate is a silent spectator at the time of recording of preliminary evidence before summoning of the accused. The Magistrate has to carefully scrutinise the evidence brought on record and may even himself put questions to the complainant and his witnesses to elicit answers to find out the truthfulness of the allegations or otherwise and then examine if any offence is prima facie committed by all or any of the accused.

23. Learned Magistrate has to apply his judicial mind to the contents of the complaint and the material filed therewith for taking judicial notice of an offence. The order must disclose that learned Magistrate while taking cognizance of an offence on a complaint filed under Section 190(1)(a) Cr.P.C. has applied his judicial mind to the allegations in the complaint, the statement of the complainant and, if the Magistrate finds that the complaint does not disclose any cause of action upon examination of the complainant, the Magistrate should not proceed with the complaint and should dismiss it.

24. The Supreme Court in the case of S.R. Sukumar v. S. Sunaad

Raghuram, (2015) 9 SCC 609 while explaining the meaning on taking cognizance of the offence on a complaint in paras 11 and 12 has held as under:-

11. Section 200 CrPC contemplates a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence on complaint to examine the complaint and examine upon oath the complainant and the witnesses present, if any. Then normally three courses are available to the Magistrate. The Magistrate can either issue summons to the accused or order an inquiry under Section 202 CrPC or dismiss the complaint under Section 203 CrPC. Upon consideration of the statement of the complainant and the material adduced at that stage if the Magistrate is satisfied that there are sufficient grounds to proceed, he can proceed to issue process under Section 204 CrPC. Section 202 CrPC contemplates "postponement of issue of process". It provides that the Magistrate on receipt of a complaint of an offence, of which he is authorised to take cognizance may, if he thinks fit, postpone the issue of process for compelling the attendance of the person complained against, and either inquire into the case himself, or have an inquiry made by any Magistrate subordinate to him, or an investigation made by a police officer, or by some other person for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding. If the Magistrate finds no sufficient ground for proceeding, he can dismiss the complaint by recording briefly the reasons for doing so as contemplated under Section 203 CrPC. A Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence when he decides to proceed against the person accused of having committed that offence and not at the time when the Magistrate is just informed either by the complainant by filing the complaint or by the police report about th

12. "Cognizance" therefore has a reference to the application of judicial mind by the Magistrate in connection with the commission of an offence and not merely to a Magistrate learning that some offence had been committed. Only upon examination of the complainant, the Magistrate will proceed to apply the judicial mind whether to take cognizance of the offence or not. Under Section 200 CrPC, when the complainant is examined, the Magistrate cannot be said to have ipso facto taken the cognizance, when the Magistrate was merely gathering the material on the basis of which he will decide whether a prima facie case is made out for taking cognizance of the offence or not. "Cognizance of offence" means taking notice of the accusations and applying the judicial mind to the contents of the complaint and the material filed therewith. It is neither practicable nor desirable to define as to what is meant by taking cognizance. Whether the Magistrate has taken cognizance of the offence or not will depend upon the facts and circumstances of the particular case.

25. It is also well established that it is the duty of the Magistrate while passing an order issuing process to an accused to apply his judicial mind to the relevant issues and that must be sufficiently incorporated in the order. However, it is not required that a detailed speaking and reasoned order should be passed at the stage of Sections 190 and 204 Cr.P.C. If the order does not disclose application of judicial mind, the order passed by the learned Magistrate issuing process is liable to be quashed by the High Court in exercise of its power under

26. The Supreme Court in the case of Mehmood Ul Rehman v. Khazir Mohammad Tunda, (2015) 12 SCC 420 has explained the satisfaction required on the part of the Magistrate for formation of an opinion to issue process under Section 204 IPC on a complaint under Section 190(1)(a) Cr.P.C.

22. The steps taken by the Magistrate under Section 190(1)(a) CrPC followed by Section 204 CrPC should reflect that the Magistrate has applied his mind to the facts and the statements and he is satisfied that there is ground for proceeding further in the matter by asking the person against whom the violation of law is alleged, to appear before the court. The satisfaction on the ground for proceeding would mean that the facts alleged in the complaint would constitute an offence, and when considered along with the statements recorded, would, prima facie, make the accused answerable before the court. No doubt, no formal order or a speaking order is required to be passed at that stage. The Code of Criminal Procedure requires speaking order to be passed under Section 203 CrPC when the complaint is dismissed and that too the reasons need to be stated only briefly. In other words, the Magistrate is not to act as a post office in taking cognizance of each and every complaint filed before him and issue process as a matter of course. There must be sufficient indication in the order passed by the Magistrate that he is satisfied that the allegations in the complaint constitute an offence and when considered along with the statements recorded and the result of inquiry or report of investigation under Section 202 CrPC, if any, the accused is answerable before the criminal court, there is ground for proceeding against the accused under Section 204 CrPC, by issuing process for appearance. The application of mind is best demonstrated by disclosure of mind on the satisfaction. If there is no such indication in a case where the Magistrate proceeds under Sections 190/204 CrPC, the High Court under Section 482 CrPC is bound to invoke its inherent power in order to prevent abuse of the power of the criminal court. To be called to appear before the criminal court as an accused is serious matter affecting one's dignity, self-respect and image in society. Hence, the process of criminal court shall not be made a weapon of harassment.

23. Having gone through the order passed by the Magistrate, we are satisfied that there is no indication on the application of mind by the learned Magistrate in taking cognizance and issuing process to the appellants. The contention that the application of mind has to be inferred cannot be appreciated. The further contention that without application of mind, the process will not be issued cannot also be appreciated. Though no formal or speaking or reasoned orders are required at the stage of Sections 190/204 CrPC, there must be sufficient indication on the application of mind by the Magistrate to the facts constituting commission of an offence and the statements recorded under Section 200 CrPC so as to proceed against the offender. No doubt, the High Court is right in holding that the veracity of the allegations is a question of evidence. The question is not about veracity of the allegations, but whether the respondents are answerable at all before the criminal court. There is no indication in that regard in the order passed by the learned Magistrate.

27. To form a prima facie satisfaction as to whether there are grounds for proceedings on a complaint filed under Section 190(1)(a) Cr.P.C. against the accused, the Magistrate is required to consider the averments of the complaint to examine prima facie truth and inherent improbabilities apparent in the allegations made in the complaint. If the Magistrate comes to the conclusion that the allegations are improbable without considering the defence of the accused, learned Magistrate should not proceed with the complaint.

28. In the present case, the learned Magistrate for valid and cogent reasons after considering the averments of the complaint and the statements of the complainant and the witnesses was of the opinion that there was no sufficient material/ ground to proceed against the accused. It is not only the prima facie case where the Magistrate chooses to adopt the course provided under Chapter XV of the Cr.P.C. on a complaint but the Magistrate is also required to satisfy himself of the sufficiency of the material/evidence to proceed against the accused. The learned Magistrate cannot be said to have exercised his discretion improperly or against any express provision of law. The learned Magistrate after applying his judicial mind to the evidence and material before him had dismissed the complaint under Section 203 Cr.P.C. The said order passed by the learned Magistrate should not have been interfered with by the Revisional Court.

29. In view of the aforesaid, I am of the view that the order passed by learned revisional court is unsustainable and the present revision is allowed. Judgment and order dated 31.03.2015 passed by Revisional Court is set aside.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajeev Singh, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Arun Sinha, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. Aniruddh Kumar Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. The present application has been filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing the order dated 06.07.2019 for retaining the passport of the applicant, passed by learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bahraich in Case No. 3740 of 2018, under Sections 9/27/29/31/32/39/44/48A/49B/50/51(IC)/ 52/38V of the Wildlife (Protection) Act, 1972 and Section 26 of the Forest Act, 1927, Range- Motipur, Katarniyaghat, District Bahraich and to release the passport.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that the applicant is a renowned and acclaimed Golfer who has represented India across the Globe and has been awarded Arjuna Award by Hon'ble the President of India and is having no criminal antecedents. He further submitted that the applicant was falsely implicated in the aforesaid case by the Forest Officials and nothing, as claimed by the Forest Officials, has been recovered from the applicant or from his car. The "Jungle Fowl" which is alleged to have been hunted by the applicant and allegedly recovered from the vehicle of applicant does not come in any of the Schedule of Animal and their Species as provided under Wild Life (Protection) Act, 1972.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant further submitted that the penalty in the Wild Life (Protection) Act, 1972 has been provided under Section 51, under which the accused may be punished with the imprisonment which shall not be less than three years or with fine which may extend to Rs. 25,000/- but may extend to seven years with fine which shall not be less than Rs. 10,000/-. He further submitted that the applicant was enlarged on bail by this Court in the aforesaid case vide order dated 21.02.2019 in Bail Application No.1402 of 2019 with the directions that the "accused-applicant" will co-operate in the investigation of the case and will also deposit his passport till submission of report under Section 173 Cr.P.C. , it was further directed that the decision with regard to the retention of the passport will be taken by the trial court after the report so submitted under Section 173 Cr.P.C.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant further submitted that the applicant was detained by the Forest Officials on 26.12.2018 and the Case was registered against him bearing No. 68 of 2018-19, Range- Motipur, District Bahraich and the seizure report was sent by the Forest Officials to the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bahraich. Thereafter, the complaint dated 22.02.2019 was filed in the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bahraich under Section 55 of the Wild Life (Protection) Act, 1972 and on the same date the cognizance was taken by the court below on the aforesaid complaint without considering the fact that the complaint was filed under Section 55 of Wild Life (Protection) Act it is observed that the charge sheet was filed and the cognizance was taken on the charge sheet and he further submitted that in the case of complaint he had to follow the procedure.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant further submitted that on 21.02.2019 the applicant was enlarged on bail by this Court in Bail Application No. 1402 of 2019 and on the next date, i.e., on 22.02.2019, the Complaint Case was filed and after letting off from jail, the applicant moved an application before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bahraich on 05.03.2019 and prayed for release of his passport, but the application of the applicant was rejected vide impugned order with the observation that the Prosecuting Officer has reported that in case, the passport is returned to the applicant, he may leave the country.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant further submitted that the court below has committed error in considering the report of the Prosecuting Officer and making observations since the case is to be listed for framing of the charge, therefore, the presence of accused-applicant is necessary in court as well as at the time of recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. etc. and in case, the passport is released in favour of the applicant, he may go abroad and the trial of the case would be hampered. The judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court relied by the applicant was also not considered in true sense by the court below.

8. Learned counsel for the applicant further submitted that the complaint was filed on 22.02.2019, under Section 55 of the Wild Life (Protection) Act, 1972 in the court below and though the applicant was in custody but the charge was not framed and there is no explanation recorded by the court below as to why the charge could not be framed.

9. Learned counsel for the applicant relied on the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Suresh Nanda vs. Central Bureau of Investigation (2008) 3 SCC 674, on paragraphs 18 and 19, and submitted that the trial court cannot impound the passport.

10. Learned A.G.A. opposed the prayer of the applicant and submitted that there is no illegality in the order passed, as the passport of the applicant was deposited under the order of this Court vide order dated 21.02.2019 in Bail Application No.1402 of 2019.

11. After carefully considering the arguments of the counsel for the applicant as well as learned A.G.A. and going through the records, it is found that on the basis of allegation of hunting in the Tiger Reserve Forest, the applicant was detained on 26.12.2018 and the recovery memo/seizure memo was prepared by the Forest Officials and registered the Case No. 68 of 2018-19, under Sections 9/27/29/31/32/39/44/48A/49B/50/51(IC)/ 52/38V of the Wildlife (Protection) Act, 1972 and Section 26 of the Forest Act, 1927, Range- Motipur, Katarniyaghat, District Bahraich. Thereafter, the applicant was enlarged on bail by this Court vide order dated 21.02.2019 with the condition that the accused/applicant will deposit his passport before the trial court, till the submission of report under Section 173 Cr.P.C., after the report so submitted further decision with regard to the retention of the passport will be taken by the trial court. It is also found from the record that on 22.02.2019, the complaint was filed under Section 55 of the Wild Life (Protection) Act, 1972. The provision of Section 55 (supra) is reproduced as under-

"[55. Cognizance of offences.-- No court shall take cognizance of any offence against this Act except on the complaint of any person other than--

(a) the Director of Wild Life Preservation or any other officer authorised in this behalf by the Central Government; or

[(aa) the Member-Secretary, Central Zoo Authority in matters relating to violation of the provisions of Chapter IVA; or]

[(ab) Member-Secretary, Tiger Conservation Authority; or

(ac) Director of the concerned tiger reserve; or]

(b) the Chief Wild Life Warden, or any other officer authorised in thisbehalf by the State Government 2[subject to such conditions as may be specified by that Government]; or

(c) any person who has given notice of not less than sixty days, in the manner prescribed, of the alleged offence and of his intention to make a complaint to the Central Government or the State Government or the officer authorised as aforesaid.]"

12. As no such presumption has been shown in the complaint filed by the Forest Officials that in case, the accused-applicant is released on bail, then he would flee away from the country and will not cooperate in the trial of the case, but merely on the basis of anticipation mentioned in the report of the Prosecuting Officer, the court below presumed that the applicant would flee away and the proceedings of the trial would be hampered.

13. The Provisions of the Sections 10(3) and 10(4) of the Passports Act, 1967 (hereinafter referred as "the Act") provides that the passport authorities are empowered to impound/revoke the passport in case, the criminal proceeding is pending against the holder. The Provisions of Sections 10(3) and 10(4) of The Act are reproduced as under-

"10. Variation, impounding and revocation of passports and travel documents.--

(3) The passport authority may impound or cause to be impounded or revoke a passport or travel document,--

(a) if the passport authority is satisfied that the holder of the passport or travel document is in wrongful possession thereof;

(b) If the passport or travel document was obtained by the suppression of material information or on the basis of wrong information provided by the holder of the passport or travel document or any other person on his behalf:

5[Provided that if the holder of such passport obtains another passport, the passport authority shall also impound or cause to be impounded or revoke such otherpassport.]

(c) if the passport authority deems it necessary so to do in the interests of the sovereignty and integrity of India, the security of India, friendly relations of India with any foreign country, or in the interests of the general public;

(d) if the holder of the passport or travel document has, at any time after the issue of the passport or travel document, been convicted by a court in India for any offence involving moral turpitude and sentenced in respect thereof to imprisonment for not less than two years;

(e) if proceedings in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by the holder of the passport or travel document are pending before a criminal court in India;

(f) if any of the conditions of the passport or travel document has been contravened;

(g) if the holder of the passport or travel document has failed to comply with a notice under sub-section (1) requiring him to deliver up the same;

(h) if it is brought to the notice of the passport authority that a warrant or summons for the appearance, or a warrant for the arrest, of the holder of the passport or travel document has been issued by a court under any law for the time being in force or if an order prohibiting the departure from India of the holder of the passport or other travel document has been made by any such court and the passport authority is satisfied that a warrant or summons has been so issued or an order has been so made.

(4) The passport authority may also revoke a passport or travel document on the application of the holder thereof."

14. It is not the case of the State that the Forest Officer has placed any report before the court below for impounding the passport of the accused-applicant and if no such request is moved by the Forest Officer before the court then presumption cannot be drawn at the time of passing the order for retaining the passport and the court below is bound to record its satisfaction for the same. The Forest Officials ought to have moved an application before the Passport Authority under the Provisions of The Act for impounding the passport during the trial.

15. In the case of Suresh Nanda (supra), Hon'ble Apex Court has categorically held that court cannot impound a passport. The relevant paragraphs Nos. 17, 18 and 19 of the aforesaid case are being reproduced as under-

"17. In the present case, neither the Passport Authority passed any order of impounding nor was any opportunity of hearing given to the appellant by the Passport Authority for impounding the document. It was only the CBI authority which has retained possession of the passport (which in substance amounts to impounding it) from October 2006. In our opinion, this was clearly illegal. Under Section 10-A of the Act retention by the Central Government can only be for four weeks. Thereafter it can only be retained by an order of the Passport Authority under Section 10(3).

18. In our opinion, even the court cannot impound a passport. Though, no doubt, Section 104 CrPC states that the court may, if it thinks fit, impound any document or thing produced before it, in our opinion, this provision will only enable the court to impound any document or thing other than a passport. This is because impounding of a "passport" is provided for in Section 10(3) of the Passports Act. The Passports Act is a special law while CrPC is a general law. It is well settled that the special law prevails over the general law vide G.P. Singh's Principles of Statutory Interpretation (9th Edn., p. 133). This principle is expressed in the maxim generalia specialibus non derogant. Hence, impounding of a passport cannot be done by the court under Section 104 CrPC though it can impound any other document or thing.

19. For the aforesaid reasons, we set aside the impugned order of the High Court and direct the respondent to hand over the passport to the appellant within a week from today. However, it shall be open to the respondent to approach the Passport Authorities under Section 10 or the authorities under Section 10-A of the Act for impounding the passport of the appellant in accordance with law."

16. As it is evident from the record and also from the impugned order that no any written request was made by the Forest Official for retaining the passport before the court below and only the Prosecuting Officer has made his anticipation that in case, the passport of applicant is released, he may flee away This submission must be based on the instruction of the Authority. The trial court cannot retain the passport on the request of the Prosecuting Officer.

17. The Act is the complete code read with the Passport Rules, 1980 which contains the procedure for issuance and revocation of passport, Section 10 of the Act clearly provides the procedure for impounding the passport, in case, any criminal proceeding is initiated against the holder, therefore, it is appropriate that the opposite party may approach to the Passport Authority for impounding of the passport of the applicant.

18. In view of the above facts and discussions, the present application is allowed. The impugned order dated 06.07.2019 is quashed. The passport of the applicant be handed over to him forthwith. However, it shall be open to the opposite party to approach to the Passport Authority under the Provisions of the Act for impounding the passport of the applicant in accordance with the law.

A. Criminal Law-Criminal Procedure Code, 1973, Section 482 Cr.P.C. - Scope - Quashing of entire criminal complaint proceedings. Complaint case filed on basis of improbable allegations, malice, oblique motives and vengeance- Matter falls in category no.(7) mentioned in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal 1992 SCC(Cr.) - Continuation of the proceedings on that basis is likely to result in abuse of court's process- Accordingly application is allowed and the entire proceedings of complaint in question against the accused-applicants stand quashed.

Complaint under sections 420/406 I.P.C. filed by the father-in-law of the Applicant No.4 as a counterblast to the Cases filed by the Applicant No. 4 under section 498-A I.P.C. etc. and under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. - Applicant no.4, is daughter-in-law of opposite party no.2. Allegation that she took away certain jewellery with her. (Para 5).

Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. stand quashed (E-3)

List of cases cited :-

1. St. of Haryana Vs Bhajan Lal (1992) SCC(Cr.)426.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. This application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed seeking the quashing of entire proceedings arising out of Case No. 662 of 2003, under sections 420/ 406 I.P.C., Police Station- Rajpur, District- Kanpur Dehat (Noore @ Noor Hasan vs. Multan and others) pending in the Court of Civil Judge (J.D.) Bhaganipur, Kanpur Dehat.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicants.

3. Submission of the applicants' counsel is that the complaint in question has been lodged with express mala fides only in order to add harassment to the applicants and in order to add coercive pressure upon the applicants not to pursue the matter against the opposite party which it was facing. It was pointed out that applicant no.4, Anwar Jahan was married to one Mohammad Obaid, son of opposite party no.2. Anwar Jahan was very badly treated by her husband and in-laws and because of the same a case under section 498A etc. had to be filed. Apart from this a case of refusal to maintain her under section 125 Cr.P.C. was also brought in the Court on behalf of applicant no.4, Anwar Jahan. Submission is that the proceedings of 125 Cr.P.C. was initiated on 16.4.2002 while the case under section 498A etc. was brought against the opposite party no.2 on 1.10.2002. Reliance in this regard was placed on Annexure No.1 and 2 of the application which are the copies of application under section 125 Cr.P.C. and complaint filed against the husband side. Further submission is that a lot of pressure was exercised upon the applicants that they should not pursue the matter and should enter into compromise but as Anwar Jahan was subjected to enormous cruelty the applicants did not buckle down and decided to pursue the matter against husband side against all odds. Indignated by the same the opposite party has used the present complaint case as an arm twisting device out of ire and vengeance. Submission is that malice behind the complaint is apparent on the face of record and in view of the Apex Court's decision given in Bhajanlal's case, the proceedings against applicants ought to be quashed in the wake of mala fides which are demonstrable in this case. The improbability of the allegations and the story given out in the complaint was also emphasized by the counsel. It has also been pointed out that the alleged jewellery said to have been taken away by Anwar Jahan was her own streedhan as per the allegations made in the complaint and it would hardly constitute any offence if she took it.

4. Heard learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

5. Notice on the opposite party was served but nobody is present on his behalf. The perusal of the complaint shows that so far as the jewellery part which is said to have been taken away by Anwar Jahan is concerned it is said to have been given to her in Chadhava which is a convention prevalent in Hindus whereby gifts in the form of jewellery are given to the daughter-in-law when she contracts marriage. Just as the parents give gifts to the daughter, the in-laws also confer gifts as Chadhava to the daughter-in-law. Therefore so far as the jewellery part which is said to have been taken away by Anwar Jahan is concerned, there appears substance in the submission made by the counsel in that regard and even if for the sake of argument it is taken to be true that she took away certain jewelleries with her they are according to the allegations of complaint in the nature of Chadhava which will be tantamount to her own streedhan. Therefore so far as that part of allegation is concerned it shall hardly constitute any offence. So far as the other allegations regarding amount of Rs.25,000/- having been taken away by wife is concerned the allegation appears to be not very convincing or palatable. There does not appear to be any good reason as to why the husband would put Rs.25,000/- in the suitcase of the wife and not in his own. If the relationship of husband and wife were cordial and if there was no dispute in between them and if the relationship were normal then it might be easily believed that a husband may put the cash in the suitcase of the wife. But in the wake of the bitterness which existed in between the two and in the wake of the background which is discernible from record that there was hardly any love lost between the couple though they lived together under the same roof, such kind of allegation that a sufficient by big amount of cash was put not in the suitcase of the husband or the parents but was put in the suitcase of the embittered and hostile wife does not appear to be a very probable claim of complainant and this Court would take such kind of allegation only with a pinch of salt. At any rate filing of the present complaint was done when already the criminal litigation against opposite party had started at the initiation of applicant's side, the refusal of the husband to maintain his wife having resulted in filing of the maintenance suit under section 125 Cr.P.C. while the ill-treatment that was meted out to the wife had prompted her to get the process of law started against husband and other in-laws. The factum of the the initiation of these criminal proceedings against the husband side is a proven fact and is not a matter of dispute and therefore the submission made by the counsel in this regard that the present complaint with such kind of improbable allegations was prompted by nothing except malice appears to have substance. It is not difficult to see through the oblique motive which inspired the filing of the complaint and it is not difficult to infer that motives out of ire and vengeance and mala fides are at the back of initiation of these proceedings under challenge.

6. In this regard it may be useful to keep in perspective the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal 1992 SCC(Cr.) 426, in which certain categories have been recognized on the basis of which the criminal proceeding against a certain party or the accused may be quashed. It was observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Bhajan Lal's case as follows:-

"The following categories can be stated by way of illustration wherein the extra-ordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure can be exercised by the High Court either to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised:

(1) where the allegations made in the First Information Report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) where the allegations in the First Information Report and other materials, if any, accompanying the F.I.R. do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) where the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

7. In the considered view of this Court this matter falls in category no.(7) mentioned hereinabove. This Court finds reason to hold that the complaint in question is inspired by malice and the version contained therein is full of high improbabilities and the continuation of the proceedings on that basis is likely to result in abuse of court's process, and therefore, the entire proceeding of complaint in question is liable to be quashed.

8. In this view of the matter this application is allowed and the entire proceedings of complaint in question against the accused-applicants stand quashed.

9. A copy of this order be certified to the lower court concerned forthwith.

9. A copy of this order be certified to the lower court concerned forthwith.

1. Applicant, Manager of a factory of M/s Calcom Vision Ltd, which is situated at Surajpur Industrial Area, Greater Noida has approached this Court by way of filing present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing the proceedings of Complaint Case No.1942 of 2005 (State Vs. Aijaz Gaffar) filed under Section 92 of the Factories Act, 1948, Police Station Surajpur, District Gautam Budh Nagar, pending before learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Budh Nagar, UP.

2. One Smt. Geeta Yadav, wife of Late Vijay Yadav lodged a FIR dated 11.03.2005 (Case Crime No.32/2005), under Section 304A IPC that her husband who was working as Engineer with M/s Calcom Vision Ltd. died on 09.03.2005 within the premises of the factory, due to negligence of factory management as roof of the factory which was made of cement fell down when deceased went to repair the roof.

3. On 09.03.2005, inspection of the factory was conducted under Rule 123 of the UP factories Rules 1950, wherein multiple defaults were noted under various provisions of Factories Act, 1948 (hereinafter referred as to 'the Act of 1948') and Uttar Pradesh Factories Rules, 1950 (hereinafter referred as to 'the Rules of 1950'). Accordingly, Inspection Report was prepared, shortcomings were noted under Rule 123, Section 31 Rule 56, Section 29 Rule 55A, Section 7A, Section 58 Rule 110, Rule 14-D, Rule 107 (2) Rule 303 (3), Rule 52-A etc. of the Act of 1948 and the Rules of 1950.

4. Additional Director, Factories UP, NOIDA Region, NOIDA filed complaint under Section 92 of the Act of 1948 against the petitioner for committing violation of Sections 31, 29 of the Act of 1948 read with Rules 56, 55A and 107 (2) of the Rules of 1950, before learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Budh Nagar.

5. The Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Budh Nagar took cognizance of the complaint (Complaint No.1948/2005) on 24.05.2005 and issued summons to the applicant. As the complainant and witnesses were public servant and complaint was made under act in the discharge of their official duties, complainant and witnesses were not examined.

6. Applicant has challenged the entire proceedings arising out of Complaint Case No.1943/2005 before the Court by way of filing present application under Section 482 Cr.PC.

7. This Court has passed the following order on 13.07.2006.

"Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

It is contended by the learned counsel for the applicants that on the same allegations which have been made in the complaint an F.I.R. has been lodged against the Managing Director.

Issue notice to opposite party no. 2 returnable within a period of four weeks

In view of the facts and circumstances of the case and submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. the further proceedings in Criminal Complaint Case No. 1942 of 2005 pending in the court of learned C.J.M., Gautam Buddh Nagar shall remain stayed till the next date of listing.

List after 4 weeks for orders."

8. A counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of respondent No. 2 (Assistant Director factories UP) denying averments made in the application as well as submitted that certain violation of statutory norms were found during inspection of the factory.

9. Shri Ravi Kumar Pandey, learned counsel appearing on behalf of appellant submitted that since an FIR has been lodged against the applicant, therefore, no complaint under the Factories Act would be maintainable and further documents have been filed along with present application to show that factory had "Safety and Health Policy" and inspection was done at the back of the management of the factory.

10. Per contra, Shri M.P. Singh Gaur, learned A.G.A. for the State submitted that complaint was filed after several irregularities were noticed during inspection. He further submitted that learned trial court has rightly taken cognizance and summoned the applicant.

11. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record.

12. Law is well settled regarding the summoning order passed under Section 204 Cr.P.C., which is reiterated in a latest judgment passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of State of Gujarat vs. Afroz Mohammad (Crl Appeal No.224/2019) dated 05.02.2019 reported at 2019 SCC Online SC 132 that -

"24. In summoning the accused, it is not necessary for the Magistrate to examine the merits and demerits of the case and whether the materials collected is adequate for supporting the conviction. The court is not required to evaluate the evidence and its merits. The standard to be adopted for summoning the accused under Section 204 Cr.P.C. is not the same at the time of framing the charge. For issuance of summons under Section 204 Cr.P.C., the expression used is "there is sufficient ground for proceeding....."; whereas for framing the charges, the expression used in Sections 240 and 246 IPC is " there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence...". At the stage of taking cognizance of the offence based upon a police report and for issuance of summons under Section 204 Cr.P.C., detailed enquiry regarding the merits and demerits of the case is not required. The fact that after investigation of the case, the police has filed charge sheet along with the materials thereon may be considered as sufficient ground for proceeding for issuance of summons under Section 204 Cr.P.C."

13. In view of above, there is no illegality in issuing summon against the applicant specially when the complaint has been filed by the public servant while discharging of his official duties and there are sufficient ground to proceed against the applicant in the case based on material available before the court below. It is also well settled that defence, if any, cannot be considered by the Court at this stage being falls under disputed questions of facts.

14. A co-ordinate Bench of this Court in a recent judgement in the matter of "Imran and 3 others vs. State of U.P. and another passed in Application u/s 482 No.16700 of 2019, dated 10.7.2019" has dealt with the issue of filing complaint in Special Act and also lodging FIR in Indian Penal Code on the same occurrence, has held in para 35 that :-

"35. After evaluating the submission advanced by the learned counsels for the respective parties in the light of discussion made above as well as under the conspectus of judicial pronouncements made in this regard by the various High Courts and the Apex Court, the issues involved in the present case are answered as follows:-

(i) If the act of accused makes out a cognizable offence under IPC as well as an offence under Section 21 of the MMDR Act 1957, the registration of FIR under both the enactments is not illegal , as there is no bar to investigate the matter by the police when the cognizable offence has taken place irrespective of penal provisions whether under the special enactment or general law. Since it is well settled that when there is a conflict between a special and general law, indisputably the special enactment will prevail over the general law , therefore on account of categorical bar under Section 22 of the Act 1957, the police officer cannot submit police report under Section 173 Cr.P.C. with regard to offence under Mines & Minerals(Development & Regulation) Act 1957.

(ii) Despite provisions provided under section 22 of the the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act 1957, the police authorities can not be debarred from tacking action against the persons for committing theft of sand and minerals in the manner provided under the Code of Criminal Procedure. The ingredients to constitute offence under the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act 1957 as well as offence under 378/379, etc. of Indian Penal Code are different , therefore doctrine of double jeopardy is not attracted. Hence the accused can be prosecuted simultaneously for one set of offence under two or more Acts.

(iii) On account of specific prohibition/bar, as contained in section 22 of the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act 1957, accused cannot be prosecuted on the basis of police report under section 173 Cr.P.C. And can be prosecuted only on complaint made by the officer concerned in case of contravention of section 4 of the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act 1957, but prosecution of accused on the basis of police report under section 173 Cr.P.C. for the offence under Indian Penal Code is not barred by Section 22 of the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act 1957.

(iv) As per the provisions contained in section 22 of the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act 1957, The Magistrate can not take cognizance for the offence under the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act 1957 on the police report /charge-sheet under Section 173 of The Criminal Procedure Code, but can taken cognizance for the offence under Indian Penal Code , if any on the basis of same police report without awaiting the receipt of complaint that can be filed by the offcer concerned for taking cognizance regarding contravention of provisions of the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act 1957."

(emphasis supplied)

15. In view of above, this application is also liable to be dismissed as 'FIR is also lodged against the incident against the petitioner' is no ground for quashing of summoning order. The FIR is lodged under Section 304A IPC which states that "causing death by negligence" by the wife of deceased employee and the complaint has been filed against the applicant under Factories Act for not observing requisite safety measures at the factory. There is no illegality in summoning order, therefore, the application fails being sans merit.

16. Accordingly, the application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is dismissed.

17. Interim order stands vacated.

1. The application in hand is moved under section 482 of Criminal procedure code, 1973 by learned counsel Sri Satyendra Kumar Maurya on behalf of the accused applicant involved in Case Crime No.986/2017 under Sections 406 and 506 IPC, Police Station - Kotwali, District Sitapur. The applicant seeks following reliefs-

"WHEREFORE, it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble court may kindly be pleased to exercise the power U/S 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the charge sheet dt. 1.11.2017 and summoning order dt. 18.1.2018 in crl. According to the prosecution story against the accused applicant, he has issued a receipt, on receiving from the informant of the case worth Rs.6,57,315/- as part of sale consideration for the proposed transfer of the house No.A-113, Awas vikas Colony. He assured to execute sale deed in favour of informant within three months but neither the said promise made by the applicant accused was fulfilled nor the money paid on the assurance of sale was repaid.

3. The grounds upon which the relief to quash the charge-sheet as pleaded in the application are:-

(i) false implication on the basis of fabricated facts.

(ii) that the applicant no.1 made request to the opposite party no.2 to get execution of sale deed but the informant made request some more time to pay the rest of the sale consideration.

(iii) that on the request of informant applicant no.1 given her time and agreement was renewed on 21.4.2017 in between the parties.

Criminal breach of trust.--Whoever, being in any manner entrusted with property, or with any dominion over property, dishonestly misappropriates or converts to his own use that property, or dishonestly uses or disposes of that property in violation of any direction of law prescribing the mode in which such trust is to be discharged, or of any legal contract, express or implied, which he has made touching the discharge of such trust, or wilfully suffers any other person so to do, commits "criminal breach of trust".

[Explanation 2[1].--A person, being an employer 3[of an establishment

whether exempted under section 17 of the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 (19 of 1952), or not] who deducts the employee's contribution from the wages payable to the employee for credit to a Provident Fund or Family Pension Fund established by any law for the time being in force, shall be deemed to have been entrusted with the amount of the contribution so deducted by him and if he makes default in the payment of such contribution to the said Fund in violation of the said law, shall be deemed to have dishonestly used the amount of the said contribution in violation of a direction of law as aforesaid.] 4[Explanation 2.--A person, being an employer, who deducts the employees' contribution from the wages payable to the employee for credit to the Employees' State Insurance Fund held and administered by the Employees' State Insurance Corporation established under the Employees' State Insurance Act, 1948 (34 of 1948), shall be deemed to have been entrusted with the amount of the contribution so deducted by him and if he makes default in the payment of such contribution to the said Fund in violation of the said Act, shall be deemed to have dishonestly used the amount of the said contribution in violation of a direction of law as aforesaid.]

7. By virtue of an agreement which the applicant accused has admitted and acknowledged in this application by issuing a receipt made annexure in the application, the payment by the informant as part payment of sale consideration for purchase of house which the applicant accused proposed to sale. As such the applicant accused was entrusted with the aforesaid amount under assurance of executing a sale deed of house No. A-113, Awas vikas Colony.

8. Subsequent to the failure on the part of accused-applicant to execute the sale deed of his house in favour of the informant. On failure to comply with the obligation under his assurance he had to repay the money entrusted with him by the informant. The moment he denied to repay the said amount on his failure he had misappropriated the amount in his benefit and the offence under Section 406 I.P.C. stands constituted because the allegation if taken together are fulfilling the ingredient rendered for consideration of offence therein.

9. Section 506 provides punishment for the offence of criminal intimidation, which thus reads as under:-

506. Punishment for criminal intimidation.--Whoever commits, the offence of criminal intimidation shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both; If threat be to cause death or grievous hurt, etc.--And if the threat be to cause death or grievous hurt, or to cause the destruction of any property by fire, or to cause an offence punishable with death or 1[imprisonment for life], or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, or to impute, unchastity to a woman, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both."

10. The criminal intimidation is defined in Section 503 IPC which is quoted hereunder:-

503. Criminal intimidation.--Whoever threatens another with any injury to his person, reputation or property, or to the person or reputation of any one in whom that person is interested, with intent to cause alarm to that person, or to cause that person to do any act which he is not legally bound to do, or to omit to do any act which that person is legally entitled to do, as the means of avoiding the execution of such threat, commits criminal intimidation. Explanation.--A threat to injure the reputation of any deceased person in whom the person threatened is interested, is within this section. Illustration A, for the purpose of inducing B to desist from prosecuting a civil suit, threatens to burn B's house. A is guilty of criminal intimidation.

11. In the present case the allegations are when on failure of execution of sale deed by the applicant accused the informant requests to repay the money paid to him on account of payment of sale consideration or to execute, he denied to do anything and threatened for life and limb of the informant. As such from the very allegations made in the FIR they fulfill the ingredients under Section 503 of the criminal intimidation for which Section 506 IPC is slapped upon the accused applicants.

12. So far as the argument as to the dispute being of civil nature is concerned, it is different aspect of the fact wherein execution of sale deed is denied giving cause of action on the breach of promise,but the same would civilly actionable only when the promise is under a legally enforceable agreement. In the present matter the intention seems not to execute the sale deed but to obtain money, as the applicant did not enter into a lawful written agreement for sale but given oral assurance while receiving money by issuing receipt of payment, he induced the informant of the case to believe the proposal of execution of sale deed. This is the aspect in the case which makes the transaction and conduct criminal in nature. Any finding as to the truthness or falsity of allegation in the FIR with this regard depends upon the legally adduced evidence in trial. On having been tried the allegation if proved for the purpose of conviction but so far as the FIR having allegations to the above effect are fulfiling the ingredients of offence for which the accused applicant are slapped. The charge-sheet along with the material collected by the police prima facie supporting the allegation in the FIR cannot be held a result of abuse of process or suffering from any illegality wherein the interference of the court for quashing may be exercised using extraordinary power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. The court has not to embark on evidence at this stage to make any finding as to the truthness or falsity.

13. In R. Kalyani Vs. Janak C. Mehta and Ors. reported in (2009) 1 SCC 516, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in its para-9 as under:-

"9. Propositions of law which emerge from the said decisions are :

(1) The High Court ordinarily would not exercise its inherent jurisdiction to quash a criminal proceeding and, in particular, a First Information Report unless the allegations contained therein, even if given face value and taken to be correct in their entirety, disclosed no cognizable offence.

(2) For the said purpose, the Court, save and except in very exceptional circumstances, would not look to any document relied upon by the defence.

(3) Such a power should be exercised very sparingly. If the allegations made in the FIR disclose commission of an offence, the court shall not go beyond the same and pass an order in favour of the accused to hold absence of any mens rea or actus reus.

*(4) If the allegation discloses a civil dispute, the same by itself may not be a ground to hold that the criminal proceedings should not be allowed to continue."

14. Hon'ble Apex court in the case of Mahesh Chaudhary Vs. State of Rajasthan & Anr. reported in (2009) 4 SCC 439 in its para nos.14 held as under:-

"It is also well settled that save and except very exceptional circumstances, the court would not look to any document relied upon by the accused in support of his defence. Although allegations contained in the complaint petition may disclose a civil dispute, the same by itself may not be a ground to hold that the criminal proceedings should not be allowed to continue. For the purpose of exercising its jurisdiction, the superior courts are also required to consider as to whether the allegations made in the FIR or Complaint Petition fulfill the ingredients of the offences alleged against the accused."

15. As such the prosecution is found to be legitimate. Process issued wherein for appearance are defied by the accused applicants. The accused applicant instead for putting appearance before the court having participation to get adjudicated the case on the basis of evidence adduced by them in their defence have come into the High Court invoking its jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the charge-sheet, this is nothing but an effort to stifle the lower court's proceeding.

16. The scope of interference and exercise the extraordinary power of court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is explained in para 23 and 24 of judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Inder Mohan Goswami Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2012 SCC 1, which reads as under:-

"23. This court in a number of cases has laid down the scope and ambit of courts powers under section 482 Cr.P.C. Every High Court has inherent power to act ex debito justitiae to do real and substantial justice, for the administration of which alone it exists, or to prevent abuse of the process of the court. Inherent power under section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised:

(i) to give effect to an order under the Code;

(ii) to prevent abuse of the process of court, and

(iii) to otherwise secure the ends of justice.

24. Inherent powers under section 482 Cr.P.C. though wide have to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with great caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in this section itself. Authority of the court exists for the advancement of justice. If any abuse of the process leading to injustice is brought to the notice of the court, then the Court would be justified in preventing injustice by invoking inherent powers in absence of specific provisions in the statute."

17. Hon'ble Apex Court has further in State of Haryana & Ors. Vs. Bhajan Lal & Ors. reported in 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 illustrated certain circumstances, wherein such power can be used and now repeatedly the said illustrations are relied in various judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court and those are treated as guidelines and reads as under:-

"102.(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused."

(2) where the allegations in the First Information Report and other materials, if any, accompanying the F.I.R. do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code;

(3) where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or 'complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused;

(4) where the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code;

(5) where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused;

(6) where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party;

(7) where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

18. On the basis of above discussion from the material placed on record of the case no prima facie case is made out for relief of quashing the charge-sheet and summoning order against the accused, hence, application is liable to be rejected.

Accordingly, application is dismissed as rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Kuvar Srivastava, J.)

1. The application in hand is moved under section 482 of Criminal procedure code, 1973 by learned counsel Sri Mohammad Aslam Beg on behalf of applicants accused involved in Case crime no.867/2016 under Sections 147, 323 I.P.C. & Section 3(1)(10) SC/ST Act, Police Station - Kakori, District Lucknow. The applicant seeks relief, praying to,

"quash impugned summoning order dated 17.01.2017, and charge sheet dated 06.12.2016 bearing charge sheet No.90 of 2016 in S.T No.22 of 2017 case crime No.867 of 2016 Under Section 147, 323 IPC and Section 3(1)(X) SC/ST Act Police Station Kakori District Lucknow State of U.P. Versus Sukhveer Singh and others passed by Special Judge (SC/ST Act) District-Lucknow contained in Annexure No.1 and 2 to this petition respectively."

2. Briefly stating, the prosecution story as revealed from the FIR is that the informants, Chandrika, Jitendra, Mahesh, Chandrani and Kiran belonging to the class of people falling under the scheduled castes allege that an old Naala (water channel) was passing nearby their agricultural field becomes blocked while making the Agra Expressway.

3. The fact of obstruction in the water channel was complained by the informants to the higher officials. After the local inspection on the direction of officers, the Nala was dig open and obstruction in flow of water was removed. After two days angered there by Sukhveer Singh (present applicant), Ram Singh and Rajkumar, Shivbaran, Alok, Satish Kumar Singh came along with their companions and began to ran beat the informant in their field and made them badly injured.

4. Heard the learned counsel for the applicant and the Learned AGA appearing on behalf of the state opposite parties. Perused the materials available on record.

5. The scope and circumstances for exercising the extraordinary power by the court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is explained in para 23 and 24 of judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Inder Mohan Goswami Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2012 SCC 1, which reads as under:-

"23. This court in a number of cases has laid down the scope and ambit of courts powers under section 482 Cr.P.C. Every High Court has inherent power to act ex debito justitiae to do real and substantial justice, for the administration of which alone it exists, or to prevent abuse of the process of the court. Inherent power under section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised:

(i) to give effect to an order under the Code;

(ii) to prevent abuse of the process of court, and

(iii) to otherwise secure the ends of justice.

24. Inherent powers under section 482 Cr.P.C. though wide have to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with great caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in this section itself. Authority of the court exists for the advancement of justice. If any abuse of the process leading to injustice is brought to the notice of the court, then the Court would be justified in preventing injustice by invoking inherent powers in absence of specific provisions in the statute."

6. The grounds set forth in application, upon which the relief to quash the charge-sheet and summoning order issued by Magistrate as pleaded by the applicants are:-

(a) because impugned summoning order dated 17.01.2017 is illegal and arbitrary and against provision of law.

(b) because impugned summoning order dated 17.01.2017

passed by learned court below is not only against provisions of law but also against the principle of natural justice.

(c) Because on 17.01.2017 learned court below passed summoning order in illegal and arbitrary manner without considering facts and circumstances of the case and without considering evidence on record.

(d) because police with collusion of the opposite party no.2 submitted charge sheet against the petitioners without collecting any material and evidence, in case crime No.867 of 2016 under Section 147, 323 IPC and Section 3(1)(10) SC/ST Act, Police Station Kakori, District Lucknow.

7. The offences are registered on the basis of allegations made in the FIR against the applicant under Sections 147 and 323 I.P.C. along with Section 3(1)(X) SC/ST Act (as applicable after amendment with effect from 26.1.2016) on bare reading of the aforesaid section of the Scheduled Casts & Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act provides that, "whoever not being the member of SC/ST castes corrupts or fouls the water of any spring reservoir or any other source ordinarily used by members of scheduled caste and schedule tribes SC or ST so as to render it less fit for the purpose of which it is ordinarily used. From the allegations in the FIR, it is very clear that the allegations made therein if on face value they are taken to be true in their intracity, they disclose the commission of offence from which the accused applicant is slapped.

8. This is pertinent to mention here that charge sheet after due investigation has been filed in the court, the court has taken cognizance and consequent thereupon issued summons to the applicant accused vide order dated 17.1.2017.

9. T he first issue with regard to the relief as prayed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the charge sheet and summoning order, is whether they are illegal, being arbitrary and against provisions of Law. On bare reading of the allegations made in the FIR the allegations of maar-peet having been beaten up by the accused applicant who are members of upper caste with victim (informants) belonging to a caste falling under Scheduled Caste are sufficient to constitute the offence prima facie, as the applicant accused jointly attacked with lathi, danda in their field, annoyed by their success in getting the obstruction in the watter channel's flow removed.

10. From the materials placed before the Court it is sufficiently clear that the charge sheet submitted after investigation by the Investigating Officer in aforesaid provisions before the Court and the court has taken cognizance of the offences labelled therein against the accused persons. Law requires the magistrate while when charge sheet is submitted before the court it has to satisfy itself, from the allegations in FIR and the evidence collected by the Investigating Officer during investigation, the allegations in FIR and evidence supporting the allegation are fulfilling the ingredients of the offences slapped against the accused. On the basis of those he has reason to believe that accused might have commited such offences triable by the court.

11. After its prima facie satisfaction, the court proceeds further and when the court intends to proceed further for trial of the accused as to the commission of offence, this is called 'cognizance' taken by the court of the offences. Consequent thereupon the court issue summons to the applicant accused for trial.

12. In putting the case that it attracts the exercise of the extra ordinary power under section 482 Cr.P.C. for the reason of abuse of the process by the informant and the police, the investigating officer is alleged to have been in collusion with the informants. It is further alleged that the Investigation officer, without collecting material evidences he submitted the charge sheet, falsely implicating the applicant and other accused persons. Though the vehemence of argument is upon non collection of evidence by the police during investigation but the learned counsel could neither carved out from the materials placed on record by him nor from the contents of charge sheet, which evidence apart from the evidence of injured witnesses in an incident of beating is needed. Materials with regard to injuries sustained by them is available in charge sheet. Facts of obstruction in the flow of water channel complained to the high officials and police officers, redressal of the grievance by the officers by removing the obstruction to restore the water channel to the field and ultimately annoyed thereby incident of beating to the informants by the accused, all are placed in charge sheet with supporting evidence. The police during investigation has to be collect material which it found sufficient to emanate them to believe that if they even on their face value if taken without proof, prima facie sufficient to believe that accused has committed the offence from which he is charged in the First Information Report. In support of the ground assailing the validity and legality of the charge-sheet the applicant has neither pleaded nor argued carving out from the materials on record, the illustration as to the irregularity or illegality if any committed by the investigating officer, due to which the charge sheet would become illegal document.

13. Another ground pleaded to hold the illegality of charge-sheet is the alleged 'collusion'. 'Collusion' literally means and is said to be a "secret argument especially to do something dishonest" in order to deceive or cheat some one else. The plea of Collusion is a defence against the offence, the accused is charged with and it can be proved adducing cogent and material evidence in trial.

14. Apart the bald statement of the fact of Collusion it is also not explained in pleading how it can be inferred from the attending circumstances that the charge sheet is arbitrary and illegally filed due to collision with informant. In absence of pleading to this effect it seemed to have been alleged loosely without any substance.

15. Seeking the relief of quashing of the summoning order dated 17.1.2019, applicant has assailed the 'cognizance' of the offences taken by the court on perusal of charge-sheet blaming that it is against provisions of law and principle of natural justice, therefore is illegal and arbitrary. Though, 'the law', which is said to be violated in taking cognizance is neither pleaded nor referred in the argument.

16. The next challenge to the cognizance of offence dated 17.1.2019 is that the order of summoning to the accused is violative of 'principal of natural justice'. Impliedly by referring the principal of natural justice the applicant accused opposes the summoning order on the ground that prior to issuance of summons he is not given opportunity to be heard. This seems to be suffering from a misconception of law. The Code of Criminal Procedure prescribes that after due investigation without committing any unnecessary delay, investigating officer is to submit report before the court under Section 173 before the court competent to take cognizance of the offence on a police report stating there in-

(a) the names of the parties;

(b) the nature of the information;

(c) the names of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case;

(d) whether any offence appears to have been committed and, if so, by whom;

(e) whether the accused has been arrested;

(f) whether he has been released on his bond and, if so, weather with or without sureties;

(g) whether he has been forwarded in custody under section 170.

(ii) The officer shall also communicate, In such manner as may be prescribed by the State Government, the action taken by him, to the person, if any, by whom the information relating to the commission of the offence was first given."

17. The manner and procedure prescribed for submission of charge-sheet before the court under Section 173 Cr.P.C. does not requires to provide copy of the charge sheet to the accused, prior to the application of mind by the magistrate to take judicial notice of the materials available in the charge-sheet whether or not there are reason to believe on the basis their of that any offence is committed by the accused. This is established principle of law and procedure

18. The law is settled by the courts from time and against that no violence can be done with the language of the provisions of procedural law, either by subtracting any word included by the legislative body in the statute nor to add any word which does not exist in the provision. Therefore question of violation of principle of natural justice on the ground that prior to issuance of summon or taking cognizance of offence the accused was not heard, does not stand before the law as prescribed there in the criminal procedure code.

19. It would not be out of context to have a discussion upon the word 'Cognizance'. The word 'cognizance' is not defined anywhere in the code. Virtually taking cognizance does not involve any formal action of any kind. It occurs as soon as the magistrate applies his mind to the suspected commission of an offence. It is prior to the commencement of preceding and is an indispensable requisite for holding a valid trial. Cognizance is taken of an offence and not of an accused. Section 190 of the Cr.P.C. provides about the application of judicial mind to the allegations in the complaints or those averred in the FIR and materials collected by investigating officer submitted in the charge sheet that offence is constituted. In Taking cognizance the magistrate considers wheather there is sufficient ground for proceeding further for trial. Therefore cognizance is a consideration over the fact running into the mind of magistrate so as to form opinion within a spur of moment to proceed further for trial.

20. Hon'ble Supreme Court has explained the word 'cognizance' in the case of Sanjay Singh Ram Rao Chavan Vs Dattatray Gulab Rao Phalke reported in (2015) 3 SCC 126, the relevant portion is quoted hereunder:-

"The expression "cognizance' has not been defined in the code. But the word "cognizance' is of indefinite import. It has no esoteric or mystic significance in criminal law. It merely means "become aware of' and when used with reference to a court or a Judge, it connotes "to take notice of judicially."

21. So far as the issuance of summoning order dated is concerned, virtually this amounts, providing an opportunity to the accused to appear before the court so as to enable him to put his defence against the allegations in complaint/FIR and the charge-sheet submitted by the police. If there is sufficient grounds for proceeding on the chargesheet/complaint then the magistrate can issued a process under section 204 Cr.P.C. pusuant to taking such cognizance.

22. The Magistrate has discretion to be exercised judicially in determining whether there is prima facie case to take cognizance. At this stage of cognizance, court is concerned with the involvement of the person and not of his innocence therefore any version in defence of the accused is not to be seen. Question of affording opportunity while taking cognizance for the accused to put his defence does not arise. Thus, the allegation as to the summoning order dated 17.1.2019 being violative of principle of natural justice is of no force and cannot be taken into consideration for quashing the same the reason of it's being illegal.

23. In a recent case decided by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Md. Alauddin Khan Vs. State of Bihar & Ors. reported in AIR 2019 SC 1910 where the accused were labelled with the allegation of having committed offence punishable under Sections 323, 379 read with section 34 IPC. On submission of charge-sheet the magistrate by holding that a prima facie case was made out against accused on the basis of allegations made in the complaint. The question was raised there that whether a judicial magistrate was right in holding that a prima facie case is made out against the accused person for commission of offence punishable under Sections 323, 379 read with section 34 IPC, so as to call upon them to face a trial on merit. In the circumstances the High Court held that no prima facie case has been made out against the accused. Hon'ble Supreme Court in its para 15, 17 and 19 has held as under:-

"15. The High Court should have seen that when a specific grievance of the appellant in his complaint was that respondent Nos. 2 and 3 have committed the offences punishable under Sections 323, 379 read with Section 34 IPC, then the question to be examined is as to whether there are allegations of commission of these two offences in the complaint or not. In other words, in order to see whether any prima facie case against the accused for taking its cognizable is made out or not, the Court is only required to see the allegations made in the complaint. In the absence of any finding recorded by the High Court on this material question, the impugned order is legally unsustainable.

17. In our view, the High Court had no jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence of the proceedings under Section 482 of the Code Of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (for short "Cr.P.C.") because whether there are contradictions or/and inconsistencies in the statements of the witnesses is essentially an issue relating to appreciation of evidence and the same can be gone into by the Judicial Magistrate during trial when the entire evidence is adduced by the parties. That stage is yet to come in this case.

19. In view of the foregoing discussion, the appeal succeeds and is accordingly allowed. The impugned order is set aside and the order of the Judicial Magistrate dated 13.02.2013 is restored because it records a finding that a prima facie case for taking cognizance of the complaint is made out."

24. In another case before The Hon'ble Supreme Court, Devendra Prasad Singh Vs. State of Bihar and Others decided recently on 2.4.2019 reported in 2019 4 SCC 351, the facts were that the High Court allowed the application filed by accused under section 482 of the criminal Procedure Code 1973 and quashed the order dated 21.1.2014 passed by the Judicial Magistrate first class in complaint case by which the Magistrate had taken cognizance of the offence coming out from the allegations made in the complaint against the accused for commission of offence under Sections 323, 341, 379 and 504 IPC. The question was again before the Honorable Supreme Court that whether the High Court was justified in quashing the complaint holding that there was no prima facie case made out against the accused for issuance of process of summon to him for commission of offence punishable under Sections 323, 341, 379 and 504 IPC. In para 11 and 12, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

"11. In our view, in order to attract the rigor of Section 197 of the Cr.P.C., it is necessary that the offence alleged against a Government Officer must have some nexus or/and relation with the discharge of his official duties as a Government Officer. In this case, we do not find it to be so.

12. So far as the second ground is concerned, we are of the view that the High Court while hearing the application under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. had no jurisdiction to appreciate the statement of the witnesses and record a finding that there were inconsistencies in their statements and, therefore, there was no prima facie case made out against respondent No.2. In our view, this could be done only in the trial while deciding the issues on the merits or/and by the Appellate Court while deciding the appeal arising out of the final order passed by the Trial Court but not in Section 482 Cr.P.C. proceedings."

25. In view of the aforesaid discussions, considering all the facts and materials placed on record by the applicant accused no prima facie case is made out with regard to abuse of process on the part of informant or the police. Further, it is also not convincing from the facts that quashing of charge sheet and summons is merely an effort by the applicant to stiffle a legitimate prosecution against him.

26. In para 102 of the State of Haryana & Ors. Vs. Bhajan Lal & Ors. reported in AIR 1992 SC 604, Hon'ble Supreme Court has illustrated several circumstances wherein the extraordinary power under section 482 Cr.P.C. maybe exercised for the purpose of preventing an abuse of process or to secure the ends of Justice or to enforce the order of the court. Illustrations given in para 102 quoted hereunder are treated as guidelines for the purpose of exercising of powers under section 482 CRPC:-

"102.(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused."

(2) where the allegations in the First Information Report and other materials, if any, accompanying the F.I.R. do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code;

(3) where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or 'complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused;

(4) where the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code;

(5) where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused;

(6) where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party;

(7) where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

27. The applicants-accused have no case falling under any of the categories of cases given as illustrative guidelines for the exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. by Hon'ble Apex Court in the above cited judgement State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal (supra).

28. In para 27 of the Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

"The powers possessed by the High Court under section 482 of the Code are very wide and the very plenitude of the power requires great caution in its exercise. The court must be careful to see that its decision in exercise of this power is based on sound principles. The inherent power should not be exercised to stifle a legitimate prosecution. The High Court should normally refrain from giving a prima facie decision in a case where all the facts are incomplete and hazy; more so, when the evidence has not been collected and produced before the court and the issues involved, whether factual or legal, are of such magnitude that they cannot be seen in their true perspective without sufficient material. Of course, no hard and fast rule can be laid down in regard to cases in which the High Court will exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction of quashing the proceedings at any stage."

29. In Umesh Kumar Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh reported in AIR 2014 SC 1106, Hon'ble the Apex Court has held that criminal prosecution if otherwise justifiable and possess upon adequate evidence does not become vitiated on account of malafide aur political mandata of First Information Report or complaint. In para 12 of the aforesaid judgement the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that once criminal law is put in motion and after investigation the charge sheet is filed, it requires scrutiny in the court of law only.

30. The applicant accused has itself placed the order sheet of the court below from the date of summoning order dated 17.01.2017 to 18.07.2019 in Sessions Trial No.22/2017 running before the Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Lucknow. The order sheet on reading cumulatively reveals that since date of summoning the process is being repeated for compliance and still the accused applicant instead of appearing before the court despite knowledge of the summoning order preferred to come to invoke the extraordinary power of the High Court for quashing of the charge sheet and summoning order.

31. The extraordinary power of the court should be exercised sparingly where the applicant has established prima facie case with regard to abuse of process. The materials placed by him do not impulse necessity to quash the charge sheet and summoning order.

32. Therefore, the application under section 482 Cr.P.C. moved with the relief sought therein for quashment of summoning order dated 17.1.2017 and charges sheet arisen out of case crime No.867 of 2016 Under Section 147, 323 IPC and Section 3(1)(X) SC/ST Act Police Station Kakori District Lucknow, for the reasons having no merit and is liable to be rejected and accordingly dismissed.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CRIMINAL SIDE
DATED: LUCKNOW 17.10.2019

BEFORE
THE HON'BLE VIKAS KUVAR SRIVASTAVA , J.

U/S 482/378/407 No. 7348 of 2019

Surendra Tiwari @ Surendra Prasad Tiwari & Anr. ...Applicants

Versus

State of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for the Applicants:
Sri Dev Mani Mishra.

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:
G.A.

A. Criminal Law-Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Section 482 – Sections 227/228 Cr.P.C – Accused having no criminal history - may be a relevant fact to be proved as evidence in defence. It is immaterial to consider whether or not the charge sheet is liable to be quashed.

B. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872. Section 3, Interpretation clause – Explanation (e) makes plain - That a man has a certain reputation, is a fact.". It would require proof. Thus the reputation of the applicant accused, as claimed by him is not relevant at the stage of framing of charge.

C. Criminal Law-Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Counter/Cross Case - Different versions of the parties as to one/same incident form a Cross Case – once prima facie, the offence punishable under Section 323, 504 and 506 IPC is found established from the allegations made in the F.I.R. and the evidence collected during investigation in that case, the submission of charge-sheet in such a case cannot be questioned as mechanically submitted without application of mind by the Investigating Officer.

D. Criminal Law-Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 – Section 204. Non-mention of SC/ST Act in FIR and charge sheet. Still charge under SC/ST Act may be framed. Though there is an obscurity as to that provision of law in the FIR or charge-sheet, it cannot be prima facie held that no offence is made out under provisions of the SC/ST Act. The court taking cognizance had to be reminded of its duty to evaluate the material allegations also with regard to the offence, if any, under the SC/ST Act at the time of hearing the applicant accused on framing of charges under Section 227/228 of the Cr.P.C. The court has to pass a reasoned and cogent order as to the commission of offence under SC/ST Act.

In view of the above, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing the charge-sheet and the proceeding of case crime no. 80/2019 S.T. No.319/2019 (State of U.P. Vs. Surendra Tiwari and Anr.) pending in the court of Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Pratapgarh is declined and the same is disposed of with following directions:-

(i) The accused/applicants to appear before the court promptly without any further delay.

(ii) In case the accused/applicants move any prayer for bail the same shall be decided by the court concerned as soon as practicably possible, even on the same day, keeping in mind the purpose of issuance of processes like summon, bailable warrant or non bailable warrant, as the case may be, is to procure and ensure the attendance of the accused in the trial pending against him.

(iii) The court concerned is directed to consider the prayer while hearing the accused at the time of framing of charges under Sections 227/228 of the Cr.P.C. with regard to the offences punishable under SC/ST Act with clarity as to the specific provision of law under which particularly offence therein is made out or not and accordingly to proceed further.

Registry is directed to send a copy of the order to the court concerned.

(E-3)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Kuvar Srivastava, J.)

1. The application in hand is moved under section 482 of Criminal procedure code, 1973 by learned counsel Sri Dev Mani Mishra on behalf of applicant accused involved in case crime no.

80/2019 under Sections 323, 504, 506 IPC & Section 3(1)(D) of Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribes Act (which shall hereinafter be addressed as SC/ST Act), Police Station - Aspur Deosara, District Pratapgarh. The applicant seeks following reliefs, praying to:-

"That under the facts and circumstances of the case, it is very respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to allow this petition and quash the impugned Charge sheet dated 18.07.2019, U/S- 323,504,506, I.P.C, and 3(1)(D) S.c & S.t Act. Police Station-Aspur Deosara, District- Pratapgarh, filed in F.I.r No. 0080/2019, U/S- 323,504,506, I.P.C, and 3(1)(D) S.c & S.t Act. Police Station-Aspur Deosara, District- Pratapgarh, contained and annexed as annexure no. 2 to this petition. Further it is prayed that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to quash the entire proceedings of S.T. No. 319/2019 state of U.P. versus Surendra Tiwari and Another, pending before special judge S.c & S.t Act. Pratapgarh, In the interest of justice."

2. The grounds upon which the relief to quash the charge-sheet is sought, as pleaded in the application are-

(i) applicants have no criminal history.

(ii) the allegations labelled against the applicants in the present case are nothing but an attempt to save himself from own wrong by the informant.

3. Learned A.G.A concentrating over the ground that just because the applicant has no criminal history, the FIR, charge sheet as well as criminal proceeding initiated against him do not become shaky and suspicious in itself. He further argued that each and every case is to be looked into with respect to the particular allegations made therein and so far as the fact of accused having no criminal history is concerned, it may be a relevant fact to be stated as evidence in defence, however it is immaterial for considering whether or not the charge sheet is liable to be quashed. The argument of the learned A.G.A is supported with the interpretation of word 'fact' as interpreted under Section 3 of the Evidence Act, the 'interpretation clause', which is quoted hereunder provide as following:-

"Fact". --"Fact" means and includes--

(1) any thing, state of things, or relation of things, capable of being perceived by the senses;

(2) any mental condition of which any person is conscious. Illustrations

(a) That there are certain objects arranged in a certain order in a certain place, is a fact.

(b) That a man heard or saw something, is a fact.

(c) That a man said certain words, is a fact.

(d) That a man holds a certain opinion, has a certain intention, acts in good faith, or fraudulently, or uses a particular word in a particular sense, or is or was at a specified time conscious of a particular sensation, is a fact.

(e) That a man has a certain reputation, is a fact."

4. In view of the above, the reputation of the applicant accused, as claimed by him of having no criminal antecedent is of no avail at this stage where evidence is not being appreciated for the purpose of evaluating the allegations made against him in the FIR and the charge-sheet.

5. The other ground on the basis of which the relief of quashing the charge-sheet and the entire proceeding is sought raises an issue "whether the allegations labelled against the applicants in present case, are nothing but an attempt by the informant to save himself from his own wrong" is to be examined carefully so as to prevent abuse of process, if any, is being done.

6. In R. Kalyani vs. Janak C. Mehta and Ors. (2009) 1 SCC 516, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

"9(2). For the said purpose, the court, save and except in very exceptional circumstances, would not look to any document relied upon by the defence".

7. Heard the learned counsel for the applicant and the learned A.G.A. appearing on behalf of the state opposite parties. Perused the materials available on record.

8. Before entering into merit of the present application under Section 482 of Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 (shall hereinafter be read as Cr.P.C. only) it would be relevant to keep in mind, the scope and ambit of Section 482 of Cr.P.C. and circumstances under which the extra ordinary power of the court inherent therein as provisioned in the said section of the Criminal Procedure Code can be exercised. It is explained in a plethora of judgements of the Honorable Apex Court, such as in Inder Mohan Goswami v. State of Uttaranchal (2007)12 SCC 1, is quoted hereunder:-

"23. This court in a number of cases has laid down the scope and ambit of courts powers under section 482 Cr.P.C. Every High Court has inherent power to act ex debito justitiae to do real and substantial justice, for the administration of which alone it exists, or to prevent abuse of the process of the court. Inherent power under section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised:

(i) to give effect to an order under the Code;

(ii) to prevent abuse of the process of court, and

(iii) to otherwise secure the ends of justice"

9. In the case of Parbatbhai Ahir vs. State of Gujarat (2017) 9 SCC 641, again the Hon'ble Supreme Court has had an occasion to consider whether the High Court can quash the FIR/complaint/criminal proceedings, in exercise of the inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. held as under:-

"15. Considering a catena of decisions of this Court on the point, this Court summarized the following propositions:

"(1) Section 482 CrPC preserves the inherent powers of the High Court to prevent an abuse of the process of any court or to secure the ends of justice. The provision does not confer new powers. It only recognizes and preserves powers which is inherent in the High Court.

(2) The invocation of the jurisdiction of the High Court to quash a first information report or a criminal proceeding on the ground that a settlement has been arrived at between the offender and the victim is not the same as the invocation of jurisdiction for the purpose of compounding an offence. While compounding an offence, the power of the court is governed by the provisions of Section 320 Cr.P.C. The power to quash under Section 482 is attracted even if the offence is non compoundable.

(3) In forming an opinion whether a criminal proceeding or complaint should be quashed in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482, the High Court must evaluate whether the ends of justice would justify the exercise of the inherent power.

(4) While the inherent power of the High Court has a wide ambit and plenitude it has to be exercised (i) to secure the ends of justice, or (ii) to prevent an abuse of the process of any court.

(5) the decision as to whether a complaint or first information report should be quashed on the ground that the offender and victim have settled the dispute, revolves ultimately on the facts and circumstances of each case and no exhaustive elaboration of principles can be formulate.

(6) In the exercise of the power under Section 482 and while dealing with a plea that the dispute has been settled, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the offence. Heinous and serious offences involving mental depravity or offences such as murder, rape and dacoity cannot appropriately be quashed though the victim or the family of the victim have settled the dispute. Such offences are, truly speaking, not private in nature but have a serious impact upon society. The decision to continue with the trial in such cases is founded on the overriding element of public interest in punishing persons for serious offences.

(7) As distinguished from serious offences, there may be criminal cases which have an overwhelming or predominant element of a civil dispute. They stand on a distinct footing insofar as the exercise of the inherent power to quash is concerned.

(8) Criminal cases involving offences which arise from commercial, financial, mercantile, partnership or similar transactions with an essentially civil flavour may in appropriate situations fall for quashing where parties have settled the dispute.

(9) In such a case, the High Court may quash the criminal proceeding if in view of the compromise between the disputants, the possibility of a conviction is remote and the continuation of a criminal proceeding would cause oppression and prejudice;

(10) There is yet an exception to the principle set out in Propositions (8) and (9) above. Economic offences involving the financial and economic wellbeing of the State have implications which lie beyond the domain of a mere dispute between private disputants. The High Court would be justified in declining to quash where the offender is involved in an activity akin to a financial or economic fraud or misdemeanour. The consequences of the act complained of upon the financial or economic system will weigh in the balance.

10. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in R.P. Kapur v. State of Punjab reported in (1960 CriLJ 1239) summarized some categories of cases where inherent power can and should be exercised to quash the proceedings:

(i) where it manifestly appears that there is a legal bar against the institution or continuance of the proceedings;

(ii) where the allegations in the first information report or complaint taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not constitute the offence alleged;

(iii) where the allegations constitute an offence, but there is no legal evidence adduced or the evidence adduced clearly or manifestly fails to prove the charge.

11. In State of Haryana & Ors. Vs. Bhajan Lal & Ors. reported in AIR 1992 SC 604, Hon'ble Supreme Court has illustrated several circumstances wherein the extraordinary power under section 482 of Criminal Procedure Code may be exercised for the purpose of preventing an abuse of process or to secure the ends of Justice or to enforce the order of the court. Illustrations quoted hereunder are treated as guidelines for the purpose of exercising of powers under section 482 of Criminal Procedure Code:-

"102.(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused."

(2) where the allegations in the First Information Report and other materials, if any, accompanying the F.I.R. do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code;

(3) where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or 'complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused;

(4) where the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code;

(5) where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused;

(6) where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party;

(7) where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

12. In view of the aforesaid judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court, before going into discussion, it would be necessary here to have a look upon the facts of the case in hand. Briefly stating, the F.I.R, as lodged by opposite party no.2 in the present application, bearing Crime No.80/2019 registered at Police Station - Aspur Deosara, District Pratapgarh under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3(1)(D) SC/ST Act (as amended on 18.6.2019) the present applicant (the accused in aforesaid case crime) along with his companions ran cows into the field in the night of 18.6.2019 at about 8:00 p.m. The cattles so pushed in the field began to graze the crops grown in the field. When the informant tried to stop this the applicant accused began to abuse in filthy language threatening to kill, attacked on him with lathi and danda. When the informant made hue and cry, for his rescue, the wife of informant rushed up to save him then the applicant accused assaulted her also with lathi and danda. The informant (opposite party no.2) informed the concerned police station but instead of registering his FIR he was scolded and driven away. The informant and his wife were not heard by police.

13. On the other hand with regard to the same incident the F.I.R. bearing No.76/2019 has been filed by the accused applicant on 19.6.2019, in the same Police Station under Sections 427, 452, 506, 504, 323 I.P.C. with the similar allegations, alleging that the incident occurred on 18.6.2019 at about 8:00 p.m in night wherein they were assaulted in a scuffle with the opposite party no.2 of the present case.

14. In the aforesaid reference, it has been submitted on behalf of the informant of Case Crime No.80/2019 that the accused applicant belong to the upper caste of the society and the opposite party no.2, (informant) belongs to scheduled case, due to this fact the Informant and his wife were not heard by the Police and their FIR was not registered. However, both the parties to the incident have their counter version to each other.

15. On hearing the parties, the issues arising in this application are as following:-

(i) As to which version is true out of the two counter versions with regard to the same incident in two FIR's.

(ii) whether the investigating officer without any application of mind, over the materials collected by him mechanically forwarded the charge sheet to the court concerned.

(iii) whether the court of Special Judge, SC/ST Act has applied its mind while taking cognizance of the offences on the basis of material collected and placed by the Investigating Officer in the charge sheet.

16. So far as the happening of incident with regard to which allegations are made in the FIR is concerned, the same is almost admitted and will be treated as prima facie true for the reason that the applicant accused have also lodged an FIR for the same incident.

17. The role of accused applicant in an admitted incident is to be tested on the basis of evidences which is matter of trial and any defence taken by accused at this stage cannot be entertained.

18. If an incident, of scuffling and beating each other, occurs in between two groups of people and both of them have complained of the incident to the police, putting their own versions, though incriminating each other and exculpating themselves, at least the occurrence of incident is admittedly established. In such a circumstance the counter versions of the parties to the same incident form cross cases. There is no express provision in Criminal Procedure Code for their investigation or trial separately. Therefore, the investigating officer has a duty to carefully collect the evidence with regard to the role of accused in such cases as to which one of them is aggressor in causing the incident or in defence, and also their individual role in the offence. Therefore the allegations in the F.I.R. if fulfill the ingredients of the offence, the FIR is to be treated as deserving for investigation. After collecting the prima facie evidence, the investigating officer has to place them on record along with the name and details of witnesses and documentary evidence. In the light of the above discussion it would be necessary to go through the relevant Section of I.P.C. namely Sections 323, 504 and 506 as well as those under the SC/ST Act.

19. In view of the above, it would be necessary to examine whether the allegations made in the FIR are fulfilling the ingredients of the offences with which the accused are slapped.

20. Section 323 IPC runs as under:-

S.323. Punishment for Voluntarily causing Hurt- Whoever, except in the case provided for by section 334, voluntarily causes hurt, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Section 319 of the I.P.C. defines "Hurt", whoever causes bodily pain disease or injury to any person is said to cause hurt. Section 323 of the I.P.C. is with regard to the punishment to a person who does any act with the intention thereby, causing hurt to any person, with the knowledge that he is likely thereby to cause hurt to any person, shall be punishable with the imprisonment for one year or fine of Rs.1,000/- or both as such the FIR allegations no doubt fulfill the ingredients of offence punishable under Section 323

S.504. Intentional insult with intent to provoke breach of the peace.-- Whoever intentionally insults, and thereby gives provocation to any person, intending or knowing it to be likely that such provocation will cause him to break the public peace, or to commit any other offence, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

Section 504 of the I.P.C. makes the offence of causing insult intentionally with intent to provoke breach of the peace. In the present case the accused applicant by pushing the cattle into the field of the informant with intent to destroy the crops grown therein, and when the informant forbid him to do so, the applicant accused along with other companions abusing in filthy language began to beat the informant. The FIR lodged by the applicant accused himself admits that the informant scuffled with him and also incident of beating occurred thereby. Prima facie, the aforesaid allegations coming out from both the FIR's lodged with regard to the same incident, no doubt prima facie fulfills the allegations of intentional insult with intent to provoke breach of peace.

22. Sections 503 and 506 IPC runs as under:-

S.503. Criminal intimidation.--Whoever threatens another with any injury to his person, reputation or property, or to the person or reputation of any one in whom that person is interested, with intent to cause alarm to that person, or to cause that person to do any act which he is not legally bound to do, or to omit to do any act which that person is legally entitled to do, as the means of avoiding the execution of such threat, commits criminal intimidation. Explanation.--A threat to injure the reputation of any deceased person in whom the person threatened is interested, is within this section. Illustration A, for the purpose of inducing B to desist from prosecuting a civil suit, threatens to burn B's house. A is guilty of criminal intimidation.

S.506. P*unishment for criminal intimidation.--Whoever commits, the offence of criminal intimidation shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both; If threat be to cause death or grievous hurt, etc.--And if the threat be to cause death or grievous hurt, or to cause the destruction of any property by fire, or to cause an offence punishable with death or 1[imprisonment for life], or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, or to impute, unchastity to a woman, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both.*

Section 506 IPC which makes punishable the offence of criminal intimidation as defined under Section 503 of I.P.C. is also prima facie being constituted from the allegations made in the FIR by the informant against the applicant/accused. As per the allegations made in the FIR it comes out, that when forbidden by the informant the accused applicant criminally intimidated him with threat to his life and limbs.

23. In the light of the above discussion, it is clear that prima facie the offence punishable under Section 323, 504 and 506 IPC are found established from the allegations made in the F.I.R. and as such from the evidence collected during the investigation, the submission of charge-sheet cannot be said to be forwarded mechanically without applying the mind by the Investigating Officer to the court for cognizance of offence.

24. The charge sheet has not only been submitted before the court with regard to the offences under Section 323, 504, 506 IPC but also with regard to the offence under SC/ST Act. The court has taken cognizance as pleaded in the application itself, along with other provisions of Indian Penal Code and the offence under Section 3(1)(D) of the SC/ST Act. From the material placed before this court, particularly the certified copy of the charge sheet dated 18.7.2019 filed in the court of Additional District and Sessions Court-3, SC/ST Act, Pratapgarh whereupon Sessions Trial no.319/2019 is founded the offence mentioned to be under Section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act. Section 3 (1)(x) of the SC/ST Act (as amended) runs as under:-

"intentionally insults or intimidates with the intent to humiliate a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe in any place within public view"

25. On further perusal of the material placed before the Court, it appears that the offence being entertained by Special Court on the charge sheet submitted by the police under Section 3(1)(D) of the SC/ST Act.

26. On perusal of the F.I.R., which is found registered along with Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. and under Section 3(1)(D) of the SC/ST Act. There is no section 3(1)(D) in the Act. If the same be read as Section 3(1)(d), the same runs as under:-

"(d) garlands with footwear or parades naked or semi-naked a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe;"

27. The allegations made in the FIR are prima facie though fulfilling the ingredients of offence under Section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act but not 3(1)(d) SC/ST Act, so far as the Section 3(1)(D) is concerned does not exist in the Act. There is no allegation of insult or intimidation with intent to humiliate the informant as a member of Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribes community in any place within public view. Even then the charge sheet is forwarded and the special court SC/ST Act took cognizance of the offence mechanically, with an obscurity as to which provision of law in SC/ST Act applies.

28. In para 27 of the Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

"27. The powers possessed by the High Court under section 482 of the Code are very wide and the very plenitude of the power requires great caution in its exercise. The court must be careful to see that its decision in exercise of this power is based on sound principles. The inherent power should not be exercised to stifle a legitimate prosecution. The High Court should normally refrain from giving a prima facie decision in a case where all the facts are incomplete and hazy; more so, when the evidence has not been collected and produced before the court and the issues involved, whether factual or legal, are of such magnitude that they cannot be seen in their true perspective without sufficient material. Of course, no hard and fast rule can be laid down in regard to cases in which the High Court will exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction of quashing the proceedings at any stage."

29. In Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra), Hon'ble Apex Court in para 28 observed as under:-

"28. This Court in State of Karnataka v. L. Muniswamy and Ors. reported in 1977CriLJ1125 observed that the wholesome power under section 482 Cr.P.C. entitles the High Court to quash a proceeding when it comes to the conclusion that allowing the proceeding to continue would be an abuse of the process of the court or that the ends of justice require that the proceeding ought to be quashed. The High Courts have been invested with inherent powers, both in civil and criminal matters, to achieve a salutary public purpose. A court proceeding ought not to be permitted to degenerate into a weapon of harassment or persecution. The court observed in this case that ends of justice are higher than the ends of mere law though justice must be administered according to laws made by the legislature. This case has been followed in a large number of subsequent cases of this court and other courts."

30. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Madhavrao Jiwajirao Scindia & Others v. Sambhajirao Chandrojirao Angre & Others (1988) 1 SCC 692 observed as under:

"7. The legal position is well settled that when a prosecution at the initial stage is asked to be quashed, the test to be applied by the court is as to whether the uncontroverted allegations as made prima facie establish the offence. It is also for the court to take into consideration any special features which appear in a particular case to consider whether it is expedient and in the interest of justice to permit a prosecution to continue. This is so on the basis that the court cannot be utilized for any oblique purpose and where in the opinion of the court chances of an ultimate conviction is bleak and, therefore, no useful purpose is likely to be served by allowing a criminal prosecution to continue, the court may while taking into consideration the special facts of a case also quash the proceeding even though it may be at a preliminary stage."

31. In the present case, when there is no prima facie case as to the abuse of process on the basis whereof the charge sheet and the order of the Magistrate taking cognizance be quashed, the other ground taken by the applicant accused that the summon was not issued to him after cognizance is baseless from the perusal of the order of Magistrate of taking cognizance. Moreover, if the accused have knowledge of the pendency of criminal proceeding against him and approaches to the High Court for the quashing of charge sheet and summoning order then he cannot be said to be unaware of the issuance of summon and its pendency. If the allegations as to the non service of summons is taken as true, then also merely because of that the FIR and the charge sheet which are found legal and without any error quashing of further proceeding would not be justified on the said ground of alleged non service of summon.

32. So far as the infringement of personal liberty is concerned, the applicant accused when knows about the process issued by the court against him for his appearance it is not good and bonafide on his part to disobey the process by not appearing there, but to approach the High Court for quashing the charge sheet and cognizance order on frivolous grounds. The purpose of issuing process like summons, despite service of summon and on defiance on the part of the accused in not appearing, issuance of bailable warrant and when that too is avoided issuance of non bailable warrant, all are aimed only to procure and ensure the attendance of applicant accused in court for trial. When he appears before the court for trial, he would have sufficient opportunity at every stage therein of being heard by putting defence against prosecution.

33. In the present case, so far as the proceeding under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. is concerned, the submission of charge sheet as well the taking of cognizance of the offence by the court therein is free of any impunity. Simultaneously the cognizance of offence under the Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribes is concerned, prima facie, from the allegations made in the FIR and the material in the charge-sheet seems to be discrepant with regard to the provision of SC/ST Act wherein the cognizance of the offence is taken. There is an obscurity as to the provision. However, only for the reason that the provision of law as quoted in the FIR or charge-sheet is obscure it cannot be prima facie held that from the allegations in the FIR no offence is being made out in any provisions of the SC/ST Act. There as allegations in the FIR as to the humiliation and criminal intimidation of the informant. As such in the present case the prosecution cannot be said illegitimate.

34. The court concerned which has took cognizance under the SC/ST Act is to be reminded of its duty to evaluate the material allegations with regard to the offence whether or not being constituted under any relevant provision thereto, existing in Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribes Act at the time of hearing the applicant accused on framing of charges under Section 227/228 of the Cr.P.C. The court has to pass a reasoned and cogent order as to the commission of offence under SC/ST Act.

35. The accused applicant though not pleaded in their application, but argued that in the alternative, if the case is not made out with regard to the abuse of process or on any other ground under Section 482 Cr.P.C. then benefit of interim stay of the arrest be given in view of the settled law laid by this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2004 (57) ALR 290 as well as judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court reported in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P.

36. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra) under the head "Personal liberty and the interest of the State" held as under:-

Personal liberty and the interest of the State Civilized countries have recognized that liberty is the most precious of all the human rights. The American Declaration of Independence 1776, French Declaration of the Rights of Men and the Citizen 1789, Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Covenant of Civil and Political Rights 1966 all speak with one voice - liberty is the natural and inalienable right of every human being. Similarly, Article 21 of our Constitution proclaims that no one shall be deprived of his liberty except in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law.

48. The issuance of non-bailable warrants involves interference with personal liberty. Arrest and imprisonment means deprivation of the most precious right of an individual. Therefore, the courts have to be extremely careful before issuing non-bailable warrants.

49. Just as liberty is precious for an individual so is the interest of the society in maintaining law and order. Both are extremely important for the survival of a civilized society. Sometimes in the larger interest of the Public and the State it becomes absolutely imperative to curtail freedom of an individual for a certain period, only then the non-bailable warrants should be issued.

When non-bailable warrants should be issued

Non-bailable warrant should be issued to bring a person to court when summons of bailable warrants would be unlikely to have the desired result. This could be when:

 it is reasonable to believe that the person will not voluntarily appear in court; or*  the police authorities are unable to find the person to serve him with a summon;*

 it is considered that the person could harm someone if not placed into custody immediately.*

50. As far as possible, if the court is of the opinion that a summon will suffice in getting the appearance of the accused in the court, the summon or the bailable warrants should be preferred. The warrants either bailable or non-bailable should never be issued without proper scrutiny of facts and complete application of mind, due to the extremely serious consequences and ramifications which ensue on issuance of warrants. The court must very carefully examine whether the Criminal Complaint or FIR has not been filed with an oblique motive.

51. In complaint cases, at the first instance, the court should direct serving of the summons along with the copy of the complaint. If the accused seem to be avoiding the summons, the court, in the second instance should issue bailable-warrant. In the third instance, when the court is fully satisfied that the accused is avoiding the court#s proceeding intentionally, the process of issuance of the non-bailable warrant should be resorted to. Personal liberty is paramount, therefore, we caution courts at the first and second instance to refrain from issuing non-bailable warrants.

52. The power being discretionary must be exercised judiciously with extreme care and caution. The court should properly balance both personal liberty and societal interest before issuing warrants. There cannot be any straight-jacket formula for issuance of warrants but as a general rule, unless an accused is charged with the commission of an offence of a heinous crime and it is feared that he is likely to tamper or destroy the evidence or is likely to evade the process of law, issuance of non-bailable warrants should be avoided.

53. The Court should try to maintain proper balance between individual liberty and the interest of the public and the State while issuing non-bailable warrant.

37. The grant of interim order as to surrender and applies for bail before the court concerned is not justifiable as prima facie the allegations in the FIR and materials in charge-sheet tend to fulfill the ingredients of offence under relevant provision of SC/ST Act which stand parallel to the offence under Sections 323, 504, 506 of the IPC. As such the prosecution is found legitimate. Any such grant of interim stay on arrest, impliedly would have effect of diluting the rigour of the legislative intention behind the enactment of Section 18 in the said Act.

38. In view of the above, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing the charge-sheet and the proceeding of case crime no. 80/2019 S.T. No.319/2019 (State of U.P. Vs. Surendra Tiwari and Anr.) pending in the court of Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Pratapgarh is declined and the same is disposed of with following directions:-

(i) The accused/applicants to appear before the court promptly without any further delay.

(ii) In case the accused/applicants move any prayer for bail the same shall be decided by the court concerned as soon as practicably possible, even on the same day, keeping in mind the purpose of issuance of processes like summon, bailable warrant or non bailable warrant, as the case may be, is to procure and ensure the attendance of the accused in the trial pending against him.

(iii) The court concerned is directed to consider the prayer while hearing the accused at the time of framing of charges under Sections 227/228 of the stay of arrest till the accused applicant Cr.P.C. with regard to the offences punishable under SC/ST Act with clarity as to the specific provision of law under which particularly offence therein is made out or not and accordingly to proceed further.

Registry is directed to send a copy of the order to the court concerned.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Kuvar Srivastava, J.)

1. The application in hand is moved under section 482 of Criminal procedure code, 1973 by learned counsel Sri Dhananjai Kumar Tripathi on behalf of applicant accused involved in case crime no 1312 of 2017 registered under Section 354(Ka)(Ga) I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(xi) of SC/ST Act (which shall hereinafter be addressed as SC/ST Act), Police Station Risia District- Bahraich. The applicant seeks following reliefs, praying to:-

"WHEREFORE, it is most humbly prayed that this Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to quash the impugned charge sheet (Police Report) bearing No.63 of 2017, dated 02.11.2017, vide case crime No.1312 of 2017, under Section - 354(Ka)(Ga) IPC and Section 3(1)(xi) at Police Station Risia, District Bahraich and the order of cognizance and summoning order dated 24.11.2017 as well as non bailable warrant dated 05.07.2018, passed by learned Special Judge SC/ST Act, Bahraich, in Special Criminal Case No.261 of 2017. In Re:- "State Versus Mithun Kumar" and further proceedings of the case in pursuance thereof, in the ends of justice."

2. The grounds upon which the relief to quash the charge-sheet as pleaded in the application are-

(i) That petitioner is quite innocent, he has committed no offence as alleged in the impugned first information report and he has been falsely implicated in the alleged offence by the complainant/opposite party no.2 due to enmity.

(ii) That no offence under Section - 354(Ka)(Ga) I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(xi) SC/ST is made out against the applicant.

(iii) applicant is a law abiding and peace loving person.

(iv) no summon whatsoever has ever been served upon the petitioner till date.

3. Heard the learned counsel for the applicant and the Learned A.G.A. appearing on behalf of the state opposite parties. Perused the materials available on record.

4. Before entering into merit of the case it would be relevant to keep into mind the scope and ambit of section 482 of Criminal Procedure Code and circumstances under which the extra ordinary power of the court inherent therein as provisioned in the said Section of the Criminal Procedure Code can be exercised. It is explained in a plethora of judgement of the Honorable Apex Court. One of those judgement is Inder Mohan Goswami v. State of Uttaranchal (2007)12 SCC 1, para 23 is quoted here under:-

"23. This court in a number of cases has laid down the scope and ambit of courts powers under section 482 Cr.P.C. Every High Court has inherent power to act ex debito justitiae to do real and substantial justice, for the administration of which alone it exists, or to prevent abuse of the process of the court. Inherent power under section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised:

(i) to give effect to an order under the Code;

(ii) to prevent abuse of the process of court, and

(iii) to otherwise secure the ends of justice"

5. On bare reading of F.I.R., it reveals that applicant belonging to upper caste at about 4:00 p.m. when informant was taking bath in her house peeping her through a hole in the bathing place from the wall of his house. When a girl belonging to scheduled caste, the informant protested the applicant came at the bathing place and caught hold her and told her daringly, earlier I was peeping you but now will see directly standing in front of you. Simultaneously he vegan to tease her by touch on her private parts doing indecent activities. He insisted to marry with him, threatening to make viral some pornographic photos of the informant prepared by him. When the informant made noise, the applicant-accused fled away threatening to forcibly marry her. Thereafter the informant immediately approached to the police station. FIR was not lodged. The incident is of 26 of May, 2017. They sent the information to S.P., Bahraich through Registered Post on 29.5.2017 but FIR could be lodged only on order of Magistrate passed under Section 156 (3) of the Criminal Procedure Code. The correlative Section under Scheduled Caste and Schedule Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act as amended up to date dealing with punishment for shown offences committed under Indian Penal Code against a member of Scheduled Caste runs as under:-

"3(1)(xi) assaults or uses force to any woman belonging to a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe with intent to dishonour or outrage her modesty;"

6. From the allegations in the FIR, it is very clear that allegations made therein even if on their face value be taken to be true in their entirety, they disclose the commission of offence from which the accused applicant is slapped as they fulfill the ingredients of Section 354(Ka)(Ga) of the I.P.C., which runs as under:-

354A. Sexual harassment and punishment for sexual harassment-

(1) A man committing any of the following acts?

(i) physical contact and advances involving unwelcome and explicit sexual overtures; or

(ii) a demand or request for sexual favours; or

(iii) showing pornography against the will of a woman; or

(iv) making sexually coloured remarks, shall be guilty of the offence of sexual harassment.

(2) Any man who commits the offence specified in clause (i) or clause (ii) or clause (iii) of sub-section (1) shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

(3) Any man who commits the offence specified in clause (iv) of sub-section (1) shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both.

354C. Voyeurism-*

Any man who watches, or captures the image of a woman engaging in a private act in circumstances where she would usually have the expectation of not being observed either by the perpetrator or by any other person at the behest of the perpetrator or disseminates such image shall be punished on first conviction with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than one year, but which may extend to three years, and shall also be liable to fine, and be punished on a second or subsequent conviction, with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than three years, but which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine. Explanations-

(1) For the purpose of this section, "private act" includes an act of watching carried out in a place which, in the circumstances, would reasonably be expected to provide privacy and where the victim's genitals, posterior or breasts are exposed or covered only in underwear; or the victim is using a lavatory; or the victim is doing a sexual act that is not of a kind ordinarily done in public.

(2) Where the victim consents to the capture of the images or any act, but not to their dissemination to third persons and where such image or act is disseminated, such dissemination shall be considered an offence under this section."

7. This is pertinent to mention here that charge sheet after due investigation has been filed in the court, the court has taken cognizance and consequent thereupon issued summons to the applicant accused.

8. In para 102 of the State of Haryana & Ors. Vs. Bhajan Lal & Ors. reported in AIR 1992 SC 604, Hon'ble Supreme Court has illustrated several circumstances wherein the extraordinary power under Section 482 of Criminal Procedure Code maybe exercised for the purpose of preventing an abuse of process or to secure the ends of Justice or to enforce the order of the court. Illustrations given in para 102 quoted hereunder are treated as guidelines for the purpose of exercising of powers under section 482 of Criminal Procedure Code:-

"102.(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused."

(2) where the allegations in the First Information Report and other materials, if any, accompanying the F.I.R. do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code

except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code;

(3) where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or 'complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused;

(4) where the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code;

(5) where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused;

(6) where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party;

(7) where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

9. On perusal of the FIR allegations in the light of the provisions under Section 354A and 354C that the activities of the applicant accused as alleged fulfill the ingredients of the aforesaid Sections of IPC which prima facie shows the act of outraging the modesty of a women or to cause her dishonored trying to sexual exploit her. SC/ST Act also provides that if a person other than scheduled caste and schedule tribe use force to any women belonging to scheduled caste and scheduled tribe with intention to dishonor or outrage her modesty is said to have committed an offence under the SC/ST Act. As such prima facie there are sufficient material on record in the shape of charge sheet whereupon the Magistrate took cognizance of the offence and issued summons to the applicant-accused.

10. The offence as prima facie appears to have been committed on perusal of FIR and from materials collected by police, does not fall within the ambit of any of the illustration given in the decision of Apex Court.

11. In para 27 of the Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

"The powers possessed by the High Court under section 482 of the Code are very wide and the very plenitude of the power requires great caution in its exercise. The court must be careful to see that its decision in exercise of this power is based on sound principles. The inherent power should not be exercised to stifle a legitimate prosecution. The High Court should normally refrain from giving a prima facie decision in a case where all the facts are incomplete and hazy; more so, when the evidence has not been collected and produced before the court and the issues involved, whether factual or legal, are of such magnitude that they cannot be seen in their true perspective without sufficient material. Of course, no hard and fast rule can be laid down in regard to cases in which the High Court will exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction of quashing the proceedings at any stage."

12. When there is no prima facie case as to the abuse of process on the basis whereof the charge sheet and the order of the Magistrate taking cognizance be quash, the another ground taken by the applicant accused that the summons was not issued to him after cognizance is baseless from the perusal of the order of Magistrate of taking cognizance. Moreover, if the accused have knowledge of the pendency of criminal proceeding against him and approaches to the High Court for the quashing of charge sheet and summoning order then he cannot be said unaware of the pendency for reason of service of summons. If the allegations as non service of summons is taken as true then also merely because of that the FIR and the charge sheet which are found legal and without any error cannot be quashed. So far as the ground as to the infringing a personal liberty is concerned, the applicant accused when knows about the process issued by the court against him for his appearance it is not good on his part of disobey the process of not appearing their and approaching the High Court for quashing the charge sheet and cognizance order. The purpose of issuing process like summons, despite service on defying by the accused on appear, issuing bailable warrant and when that is different defying by not appearing before the Court when issuing non bailable warrant. All are aimed only to procure and ensure the attendance of applicant accused in court.

13. In the present case a legitimate prosecution is pending against the accused, therefore, quashing of charge sheet or the order of Magistrate taking cognizance there on would not be liable to be quashed exercising power under Section 482 of Criminal Procedure Code.

14. The accused applicant though not pleaded in their application but argued that in the alternative, if the case is not made out with regard to the abuse of process or in any other ground of Section 482 Cr.P.C. then benefit of interim stay of the arrest be given in view of the settled law laid by this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2004 (57) ALR 290 as well as judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court reported in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P.

15. With regard to the law laid down in the above decisions of our own High Court and affirmed by Hon'ble Supreme Court, it would be pertinent that the direction contained therein as to grant of interim bail or interim stay of arrest, was issued when Section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code was not applicable in State of U.P. Now the said provision of Cr.P.C. for granting anticipatory bail is made applicable to the State of U.P. also.

16. Since, the matter is of an offence under SC/ST Act and same is found prima facie established, the question is whether the accused may be given order of grant of interim protection to him form arrest. Section 18 of the SC/ST Act provides as under:-

"18. Section 438 of the Code not to apply to persons committing an offence under the Act.?Nothing in section any case involving the arrest of any person on an accusation of having committed an offence under this Act."

17. In Vilas Pawar v. State of Maharashtra, (2012) 8 SCC 795 : 3 SCC (Cri) 1062, the nature and scope of Section 18 of the SC/ST Act is held as under:-

"Nature and scope- Section 18 of the SC/ST Act creates a bar for invoking Section 438 Cr.P.C. However, a duty is cast on the court to verify the avernments in the complaint and to find out whether an offence under Section 3(1) of the SC/ST act has been prima facie made out. In other words, if there is a specific avernment in the complaint, namely insult or intimidation with intent to humiliate by calling with caste, name the accused persons are not entitled to anticipatory bail. When an offence is registered against a person under the provisions of the SC/ST Act, no court shall entertain an application for anticipatory bail, unless it prima facie finds that such an offence is not made out, Vilas Pawar v. State of Maharashtra, (2012) 8 SCC 795 : 3 SCC (Cri) 1062."

18. In the present case from the FIR allegations the offence under Section 3(1)(xi) SC/ST 18. Act as amended on 18.6.2019 is found prima facie constituting the offence where the court has taken cognizance and issued process for trial to the accused applicant, if he failed to appear or intentionally defied the process, whatsoever may be arresting the stay in the meantime prior to the date the accused appears/surrenders and applies for the bail shall not be permissible as the same would be dilution of the express prohibition made under Section 18 of the SC/ST Act.

438 of the Code shall apply in relation to

19. The petition being not tenable and baseless and accordingly dismissed

A. Criminal Law-Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 – Section 167 (2) Cr.P.C.- Charge sheet not filed although mandatory period of 90 days expired. Even more than fourteen months' period has lapsed since the accused-petitioner is in judicial custody-Offences under Sections 3/4/5/9 of the Official Secret Act-Complaint under those sections has not been filed and sanction for prosecution has not been obtained-Detention of the petitioner is prima facie illegal-Matter remanded back. (Para 3,5,6,7,8)

Application u/s 482 Cr.Pc disposed of (E-3)

Case Law relied upon/discussed: -

1. Sayed Mohd. Ahmad Kazmi Vs St. (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) and ors., (2012) 12 SCC 1

2. Suresh Kumar Bhikamchand Jain Vs St. of MH & anr., (2013) 3 SCC 77

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mahmood Alam, learned counsel for the petitioner/ applicant and Sri Santosh Mishra, learned AGA.

2. By means of this petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the petitioner has assailed the order dated 4.10.2019 passed by the Special Chief Judicial Magistrate (Economic Offences), Lucknow rejecting the bail application of the petitioner whereby benefit of Section 167 (2) Cr.P.C. has been prayed submitting that charge sheet has not been filed within the statutory period so prescribed, therefore, the petitioner may not be detained under judicial custody. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further submitted that this is settled proposition of law of the Hon'ble Apex Court that if statutory period prescribed under Section 167 (2) Cr.P.C. expires, the accused-applicant is entitled for bail and in that circumstances/ eventuality his/ her right for bail accrues and discretion of the court does not play any role.

3. In the present case, the petitioner-accused has been sent under judicial custody on 19.9.2018 in Crime No.5/2018, under Sections 419, 420, 121, 121A IPC read with Section 66D I.T. Act relating to Police Station - ATS Lucknow. Perusal of the impugned order dated 4.10.2019 clearly reveals that the charge sheet has not been filed since 19.9.2018 when the present petitioner-accused has been sent for judicial custody, therefore, the mandatory period of 90 days has already expired, even more than fourteen months' period has lapsed since the accused-petitioner is in judicial custody. Therefore, he has contended that in these circumstances, the present applicant may not be denied bail and therefore, the order dated 4.10.2019 is patently illegal, unwarranted and has been passed in utter violation of the settled proposition of law.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn attention of the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re; Sayed Mohd. Ahmad Kazmi v. State (Government of NCT of Delhi) and others, (2012) 12 SCC 1 and Suresh Kumar Bhikamchand Jain v. State of Maharashtra and another, (2013) 3 SCC 77, contending that if the charge sheet is not filed within the statutory period so prescribed under Section 167 (2) Cr.P.C., the accused-petitioner is legally entitled to be released from jail/ judicial custody. The impugned order dated 4.10.2019 further provides that besides crime case wherein the petitioner has been sent for judicial custody, the culpability of the present petitioner-accused has been seen under Sections 3/4/5/9 of the Official Secret Act; however even the complaint under those sections have not been filed and sanction for prosecution is required in that case and admittedly till the passing of impugned order dated 4.10.2019 sanction for prosecution has not been obtained. The impugned order dated 4.10.2019 further reveals that the learned court below has passed the order in compliance of the order dated 13.5.2019 passed by this Court in Bail No.1191 of 2019 whereby this Court while rejecting the bail of the petitioner granted six months' time to conclude the trial. Since those sections in Crime No.5/2018 have already been expunged, therefore, no trial can be conducted and concluded in such crime case i.e. Crime No.5/2018.

5. I have also noted one fact that wrong fact regarding submission of the charge sheet has been placed before this Court when Bail No.1191 of 2019 was being opposed inasmuch as the charge sheet was not filed on 13.5.2019, even the charge sheet has not been filed till date and now since those sections have been expunged, there is no question of filing charge sheet.

6. It appears that in the given circumstances, detention of the present petitioner is prima facie illegal and while rejecting the application of the present petitioner, learned court below should have considered these facts and circumstances vis-a-vis the legal provision including the dictums of the Hon'ble Supreme Court carefully. Prima facie, it appears that no such things have been considered and perused by the learned court below while rejecting the application of the petitioner on 4.10.2019, therefore, I find that the order dated 4.10.2019 is not sustainable in the eyes of law and liable to be set aside.

7. Accordingly, I hereby set aside the order dated 4.10.2019 passed by the learned court below in Case Crime No.5/2018, Police Station - ATS, Lucknow.

8. I hereby remand this matter to the learned court below to pass a fresh order considering the aforesaid facts and circumstances as well as the legal proposition of law including the dictum of the Hon' ble Apex Court on the subject and reasoned and speaking order be passed, with expedition, preferably within a period of fifteen days from the date of production of certified copy of the order of this Court.

9. The petition is accordingly disposed of.

Application u/s 482 Cr.Pc accordingly disposed of. (E-3)

1. St. through CBI New Delhi Vs Jitender Kumar Singh, Criminal Appeal No.943 of

(2008) with Criminal Appeal No.161 of (2011), (2014)11SCC724

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Pranshu Agrawal, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri S.B. Pandey, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Kazim Ibrahim, Advocate for the C.B.I.

2. By means of this petition, the petitioner has assailed the order dated 11.10.2019 by means of which the application (B-37) filed by the petitioner in the court below for transmitting the record of case to the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Lucknow on the ground that the learned court below may not try the offences committed on various sections of Prevention of Corruption Act.

3. Sri S.B. Pandey, learned Senior Advocate has opposed the aforesaid prayer of the petitioner referring the provisions of Section 223 of Cr.P.C., which categorically explains about the persons who may be charged jointly. Section 223 (d) Cr.P.C. provides that the persons may be charged and tried together if those are accused on different offences committed in the course of some transactions. Therefore, the petitioner may be charged along with Branch Manager, namely, Vijay Kumar Nagar, who is said to have committed an offence under Sections 13 (2) of Prevention of Corruption Act and as the present petitioner is co-accused so invoking the provisions of Section 120-B I.P.C. the joint trial of the present petitioner with Sri Vijay Kumar Nagar is permissible as per Section 223 Cr.P.C.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that undisputedly the present petitioner is a private person and is not serving in any government/non-government organisation/ instrumentality of the State. Therefore, he may not be treated as a "Public Servant" in any manner whatsoever. The trial under the Prevention of Corruption Act is meant for "Public Servant" who has committed any offence under the said Act.

5. Sri Pranshu Agrawal, learned counsel for the petitioner has further submitted that even by invoking Section 120-B I.P.C. no one can be charged and tried under various sections of Prevention of Corruption Act if the person is not a "Public Servant". He has further submitted that by means of impugned order, the petitioner has been summoned for framing of the charges and view of the learned court below is that the charges against the petitioner may be framed under Section 13 (2) of Prevention of Corruption Act read with Section 120-B I.P.C.

6. Sri Pranshu Agrawal has placed reliance upon the dictum of Hon'ble Supreme Court in re: State through CBI New Delhi vs. Jitender Kumar Singh rendered in Criminal Appeal No.943 of 2008 with Criminal Appeal No.161 of 2011, which has been decided by Hon'ble Supreme Court on 05.02.2014. The relevant para-45 is being reproduced here-in-below:-

"45. We may now examine Criminal Appeal No. 161 of 2011, where the FIR was registered on 2.7.1996 and the charge-sheet was filed before the Special Judge on 14.9.2001 for the offences under Sections 120B, 420 IPC read with Sections 13(2) and 13 (1) of the PC Act. Accused 9 and 10 died even before the charge-sheet was sent to the Special Judge. The charge against the sole public servant under the PC Act could also not be framed since he died on 18.2.2005. The Special Judge also could not frame any charge against non-public servants. As already indicated, under sub-section (3) of Section 4, the special Judge could try non-PC offences only when "trying any case" relating to PC offences. In the instant case, no PC offence has been committed by any of the non-public servants so as to fall under Section 3 (1) of the PC Act. Consequently, there was no occasion for the special Judge to try any case relating to offences under the PC Act against the Appellant. The trying of any case under the PC Act against a public servant or a non-public servant, as already indicated, is a sine-qua-non for exercising powers under sub-section (3) of Section 4 of PC Act. In the instant case, since no PC offence has been committed by any of the non- public servants and no charges have been framed against the public servant, while he was alive, the Special Judge had no occasion to try any case against any of them under the PC Act, since no charge has been framed prior to the death of the public servant. The jurisdictional fact, as already discussed above, does not exist so far as this appeal is concerned, so as to exercise jurisdiction by the Special Judge to deal with non-PC offences."

7. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record.

8. Since the learned counsel for the parties are agreeable that the matter may be decided finally at the admission stage, therefore, I hereby decide the matter finally.

9. As per the material available on record, the present petitioner is non-public servant and has not prima facie committed any offence which could attract the provisions of Section 13 (2) read with Section 13 (1) (d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, however, he is a co-accused with Mr. Vijay Kumar Nagar, the Branch Manager, who is said to have committed such offences. The consideration would have been different had the charges under various sections of Prevention of Corruption Act been framed against the petitioner earlier but admittedly no charges under those sections of Prevention of Corruption Act have been framed and the petitioner has been summoned by the learned trial court for framing the charges. Therefore, before framing the charges against the petitioner under Section 13 (2) read with Section 13 (1) (d) of Prevention of Corruption Act, the learned court below shall consider the settled proposition of law on the point as per the Cr.P.C. and also in view of the dictum of Hon'ble Supreme Court in re: Jitender Kumar Singh (supra) as to whether the petitioner may be charged under Section 13 (2) read with Section 13 (1) (d) of Prevention of Corruption Act invoking the provisions of Section 120-B I.P.C. when undisputedly the petitioner is not a "Public Servant". Learned counsel for the Prosecution may also cite some case laws and legal provisions before the learned court below to satisfy the court as per their point of view. Such satisfaction of the learned court below should be speaking and reasoned one.

10. In view of the aforesaid terms, the petition is disposed of.

Magistrate rejected police report and took cognizance under Section 190(1)(c) Cr.P.C. relying on affidavits filed before him by the complainant along with Protest Petition - Not legal and permissible for the Magistrate to adopt that procedure.

If Magistrate finds lack of material with investigation of Police, option available to him is to take into account original complaint and follow procedure prescribed in Section 200 and 202 for taking cognizance-Magistrate cannot mix-up the material placed by complainant along with Protest Petition to take cognizance after rejecting Police Report but without following the procedure prescribed under Chapter 15. (Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Praveen Kumar Srivastava, Advocate, holding brief of Sri Sushil Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for applicant and learned AGA for State.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing orders dated 09.05.2003, 16.08.2003 and 12.09.2003 and also to quash proceeding against applicant in Case Crime No. 163 of 2000, under Sections 427, 166, 392 IPC, Police Station Tilhar, District Shahjahanpur, pending in the Court of Civil Judge, Junior Division, Tilhar, Shahjahanpur.

3. The facts disclosed in the application are that applicant, at the relevant point of time, was posted on the post of Executive Officer, Nagar Palika Parishad, Tilhar, Shahjahanpur in 2002. Opposite party-3 was permitted to install a khokha (Thatchment) on a land belong to Nagar Palika, measuring 6 X 3 meters on 13.09.1994, with a licence fee of Rs. 50/- per month. Said licence was for a period of six months. There was a clear condition that licensee shall not make any permanent construction over the allotted land. Licence was renewed upto 12.09.1997.

4. After expiry of period of licence, opposite party-3 instead of evicting the premises, filed an Injunction Suit No. 94/97 in the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Tilhar, Shahjahanpur impleading Nagar Palika Parishad, Tilhar and Executive Officer Nagar Palika Parishad, Tilhar as defendants. Suit was decreed with the direction that defendants would not evict plaintiff from the said premises except following the procedure prescribed in law. Taking undue advantage of the injunction order, opposite party-3 attempted to raise permanent construction on the land of Nagar Palika whereupon Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tilhar passed an order dated 21.03.2000 directing applicant to take necessary steps for preventing unauthorized construction and removal thereof, since it is a public premises and responsibility to restrain anyone from unauthorized possession and unauthorized construction lie upon Nagar Palika.

5. Pursuant to order of Sub-Divisional Magistrate dated 21.03.2000, applicant took steps and prevented opposite party-3 from raising illegal construction. Again, opposite party-3 filed Original Suit (hereinafter referred to as "OS") No. 21 of 2000 in the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Tilhar, Shahjahanpur stating that he is entitled to raise construction on disputed property and carry on his business and defendants have no right to interfere, therefore, a permanent injunction be issued restraining them from interfering in possession. The relief sought in aforesaid suit read as under:-

''अ. यह कि स्थाई निषेधाज्ञा विरूद्ध प्रतिवादीगण इस आशय की पारित की जावे कि प्रतिवादीगण स्वयं, उनके कर्मचारी, ठेकेदार, सहयोगी आदि वादी की विवादित सम्पत्ति जिसका ब्यौरा वाद पत्र के अन्त में दिया है, में वादी के शांतिपूर्वक निर्माण कार्य करने एवं उसके कब्जा व दशल इस्तेमाल में किसी भी प्रकार का हस्तक्षेप करने से बाज रहे।

ब. यह कि वादी को हर्जा व खर्चा मुकदमा प्रतिवादी से दिलाया जावे।

स. यह कि अनुतोष न्यायालय के अनुसार बहक वादी मुफीद हो वह भी वादी के प्रतिवादीगण से दिलाया जावे।''

"A. That an order in the nature of permanent injunction may be passed against defendants restraining them, their employees, contractors, companions, etc from any sort of interfering with peaceful construction, possession and use by the plaintiff on his property in question whose details are mentioned on the end of the plaint.

B. That the compensation and expenses may be paid to the plaintiff by the defendants.

C. That any other relief which the Court deems proper in favour of the plaintiff may be paid to him by the defendants."

(English Translation by Court)

6. Opposite party-3 had constructed three side walls of about five feet height. Applicant, in the light of orders issued by Sub-Divisional Magistrate, sought police help to remove such an unauthorized construction on the land of Nagar Palika. Thereupon, opposite party-3 filed an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. before Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned, whereupon a police report was called which was submitted by Inspector, Police Station Tilhar on 26.07.2000. Chief Judicial Magistrate, however, passed an order directing police to register report, whereupon FIR being Case Crime No. 163 of 2000, under Sections 427, 166, 392 IPC was registered. After investigation, police submitted final report dated 15.10.2000 whereagainst a protest petition was filed by opposite party-3 on 22.04.2003. Magistrate vide order dated 09.05.2003 rejected final report dated 15.10.2000 and taking cognizance under Section 190(1)(c) Cr.P.C., for the offences under Sections 427, 166, 392 IPC, summoned accused-applicant and others.

7. It is contended that Magistrate has proceeded in the case as State case and not a complaint case without following the procedure prescribed for complaint case. In order to reject final report, it has relied on the evidence placed before it by opposite party-3 along with its protest petition. Where Magistrate rely on evidence placed by complainant in a protest petition in order to reject police case, law is that Magistrate in such a case, would treat protest petition as complaint and proceed in the matter as complaint case and not as a State case.

8. In my view, submission of counsel for applicant has substance.

9. Chapter XIV, Cr.P.C. deals with conditions requisite for initiation of proceedings and also the powers of cognizance of a Magistrate. Section 190, relevant for our purpose, is reproduced as under:

"190. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any Magistrate of the first class, and any Magistrate of the second class specially empowered in this behalf under sub-section (2), may take cognizance of any offence-

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed.

(2) The Chief Judicial Magistrate may empower any Magistrate of the second class to take cognizance under sub- section (1) of such offences as are within his competence to inquire into or try."

10. Chapter XV, thereafter has four Sections, i.e., Sections 200 to 203, which deal with complaint to Magistrate. Chapter XVI deals with commencement of proceedings before Magistrate and Section 204 empowers a Magistrate to issue summons or a warrant, as the case may be, to secure attendance of an accused, if in the opinion of Magistrate, there is sufficient ground to proceed and take cognizance of offence.

11. If magistrate finds that Police has not made proper investigation and submitted final report, it can direct police to make further investigation in the matter, or, if there is sufficient material, he can pass order taking cognizance and summoning accused.

12. As long back as in 1977, Supreme Court in Tula Ram Vs. Kishore Singh AIR 1977 SC 2401 said that Magistrate can ignore a final report submitted by Police including the conclusion and take cognizance of case under Section 190(1)(b) on the basis of material collected during investigation and issue process, or in the alternative, he may take cognizance of original complaint, examine the complainant and his witnesses and thereafter issue process to accused, if he is of opinion that case should be proceeded with.

13. In M/s India Carat Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of Karnataka 1989 (26) ACC 280 (SC), Court has observed in para 16 of judgment that Magistrate can take into account statements of witnesses examined by Police during investigation, take cognizance of offence complained of, order to issue a process to accused. Section 190(1)(b) does not lay down that a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence only if the Investigating Officer gives an opinion of making out a case against accused. Magistrate can ignore conclusion arrived at by Investigating Officer, independently applying his mind to the facts emergent from investigation and can take cognizance of case or in alternative he can take cognizance of original complaint and examine complainant and his witness and thereafter issue process to accused, if he is of opinion that the case should proceed. Following observations of Court fortify what is observed above:

"16. The position is, therefore, now well settled that upon receipt of a police report under Section 173(2) a Magistrate is entitled to take cognizance of an offence under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code even if the police report is to the effect that no case is made out against the accused. The Magistrate can take into account the statements of the witnesses examined by the police during the investigation and take cognizance of the offence complained of and order the issue of process to the accused. Section 190(1)(b) does not lay down that a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence only if the investigating officer gives an opinion that the investigation has made out a case against the accused. The Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the investigating officer and independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case, if he thinks fit, in exercise of his powers under Section 190(1)(b) and direct the issue of process to the accused. The Magistrate is not bound in such a situation to follow the procedure laid down in Section 200 and 202 of the Code for taking cognizance of a case under Section 190(1)(b) though it is open to him to act under Section 200 or Section 202 also. The High Court was, therefore, wrong in taking the view that the Second Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate was not entitled to direct the registration of a case against the second respondent and order the issue of summons to him.

17. The fact that in this case the investigation had not originated from a complaint preferred to the Magistrate but had been made pursuant to a report given to the police would not alter the situation in any manner. Even if the appellant had preferred a complaint before the learned Magistrate and the Magistrate had ordered investigation under Section 156(3), the police would have had to submit a report under Section 173(2). It has been held in Tula Ram and others Vs. Kisohre Singh 1978 (1) SCR 615 that if the police, after making an investigation, send a report that no case was made out against the accused, the Magistrate could ignore the conclusion drawn by the police and take cognizance of a case under Section 190(1)(b) and issue process or in the alternative he can take cognizance of the original complaint and examine the complainant and his witnesses and thereafter issue process to the accused, if he is of opinion that the case should be proceeded with."

(emphasis added)

14. The observations made in para 16 and 17 in M/s India Carat Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of Karnataka (supra) make it very clear that Magistrate if proceed to take cognizance on Police report, material which can be examined by him would be such which has been collected during investigation. If Magistrate finds that Police has not properly made investigation and appropriate material has not been collected, it is always open to him to direct Police for further investigation but if Magistrate finds fault with investigation made by Police and still finds justification to proceed with the matter taking into account complaint made by complainant, in such case he has to examine complainant and his witness and thereafter issue process.

15. In Gangadhar Janardan Mhatre vs. State of Maharashtra and others 2004 (7) SCC 768, the Court reiterating above view said as under:

"The Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the Investigating Officer and independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case, if he thinks fit, exercise of his powers under Section 119(1)(b) and direct the issue of process to the accused."

(emphasis added)

16. Having said so, Court has also made it clear that while proceeding to issue process considering facts emergent from investigation and taking a different view than what has been reported by Police, Magistrate need not apply procedure laid down in Section 200 and 202. However, if Magistrate finds lack of material with investigation of Police, option available to him is to take into account original complaint and if that is adopted by Magistrate, he is bound to follow procedure prescribed in Section 200 and 202 for taking cognizance, but he can not mix-up the material placed by complainant along with Protest Petition to take cognizance after rejecting Police Report but without following the procedure prescribed under Chapter 15.

17. A similar view has also been expressed in Rakesh and another Vs. State of U.P. And another 2014 (13) SCC 133 where Court referred to and relied on the decision in H.S. Bains Vs. State (UT of Chandigarh) 1980 (4) SCC 631.

18. In Minu Kumari and another Vs. State of Bihar and others 2006 (4) SCC 359, Court said as under:

"11. When a report forwarded by the police to the Magistrate under Section 173(2)(i) is placed before him several situations arise. The report may conclude that an offence appears to have been committed by a particular person or persons and in such a case, the Magistrate may either (1) accept the report and take cognizance of the offence and issue process, or (2) may disagree with the report and drop the proceeding, or (3) may direct further investigation under Section 156(3) and require the police to make a further report. The report may on the other hand state that according to the police, no offence appears to have been committed. When such a report is placed before the Magistrate he has again option of adopting one of the three courses open i.e., (1) he may accept the report and drop the proceeding; or (2) he may disagree with the report and take the view that there is sufficient ground for further proceeding, take congnizance of the offence and issue process; or (3) he may direct further investigation to be made by the police under Section 156(3). The position is, therefore, now well-settled that upon receipt of a police report under Section 173(2) a Magistrate is entitled to take cognizance of an offence under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code even if the police report is to the effect that no case is made out against the accused. The Magistrate can take into account the statements of the witnesses examined by the police during the investigation and take cognizance of the offence complained of and order the issue of process to the accused. Section 190(1)(b) does not lay down that a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence only if the Investigating Officer gives an opinion that the investigation has made out a case against the accused. The Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the Investigating officer and independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case, if he thinks fit, exercise of his powers under Section 190(1)(b) and direct the issue of process to the accused."

19. In Sunil Bharti Mittal Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation 2015 (4) SCC 609, Court said:

"... even if a person is not named as an accused by the police in the final report submitted, the Court would be justified in taking cognizance of the offence and to summon the accused if it feels that the evidence and material collected during investigation justifies prosecution of the accused (See Union of India v. Prakash P. Hinduja and Anr.

2003 (6) SCC 195. Thus, the Magistrate is empowered to issue process against some other person, who has not been charge-sheeted, but there has to be sufficient material in the police report showing his involvement. In that case, the Magistrate is empowered to ignore the conclusion arrived at by the investigating officer and apply his mind independently on the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case. At the same time, it is not permissible at this stage to consider any material other than that collected by the investigating officer."

20. This Court has also followed a similar line and some authorities, relevant in this regard, may be noticed for reference.

21. In Pakhando and others Vs. State of U.P. 2001 (43) ACC 1096, a Division Bench of this Court after considering Section 190 Cr.P.C. has held, if upon investigation Police comes to conclusion that there was no sufficient evidence or any reasonable ground of suspicion to justify forwarding of accused for trial and submits final report for dropping proceedings, Magistrate shall have following four courses and may adopt any one of them:

(I) He may agreeing with the conclusions arrived at by the police, accept the report and drop the proceedings. But before so doing, he shall give an opportunity of hearing to the complainant;

(II) He may take cognizance under Section 190(I)(b) and issue process straightway to the accused without being bound by the conclusions of the investigating agency, where he is satisfied that upon the facts discovered or unearthed by the police, there is sufficient ground to proceed; or

(III) He may order further investigation, if he is satisfied that the investigation was made in a perfunctory manner; or

(IV) He may, without issuing process or dropping the proceedings decide to take cognizance under Section 190(I)(b) upon the original complaint or protest petition treating the same as complaint and proceed to act under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. and thereafter decide whether complaint should be dismissed or process should be issued. (Emphasis added)

22. Thus the "material" which can be examined by Magistrate when Police submitted final report and upon notice issued to complainant, Protest Petition is filed along with some material by complainant is confined to investigation only. When matter has been investigated by Police after registering a report, Magistrate obviously is not proceeding according to procedure prescribed in Chapter XV. I find that it would not be appropriate for Magistrate not to follow procedure under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. but straightway relying on affidavits filed before him by complainant along with Protest Petition, take cognizance and summon accused after rejecting Police Report. This is not legal and permissible.

23. In Mohammad Yusuf Vs. State of U.P. 2007 (9) ADJ 294, Police submitted final report which was not accepted by Magistrate, not on the basis of material collected by Police, but, relying on Protest Petition and accompanying affidavit Magistrate issued process. Court disapproved the aforesaid procedure adopted by Magistrate and said:

"Where the magistrate decides to take cognizance under section 190 (1) (b) ignoring the conclusions reached at by the investigating officer and applying his mind independently, he can act only upon the statements of the witnesses recorded by the police in the case-diary and material collected during investigation. It is not permissible at that stage to consider any material other than that collected by the investigating officer. In the instant case the cognizance was taken on the basis of the protest petition and accompanying affidavits. The Magistrate should have adopted the procedure of complaint case under Chapter XV of the Code of Criminal Procedure and recorded the statements of the complainant and the witnesses who had filed affidavits under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. The Magistrate could not take cognizance under section 190 (1) (b) Cr.P.C. on the basis of protest petition and affidavits filed in support thereof. The Magistrate having taking into account extraneous material i.e. protest petition and affidavits while taking cognizance under section 190 (1) (b) Cr.P.C. the impugned order is vitiated." (Emphasis added)

24. In Kallu and others Vs. State of U.P. 2010 (69) ACC 780, Court said:

"Therefore, in present case also, if the material in the case diary was not sufficient for summoning the accused persons to face the trial, then the protest petition filed by the complainant against the final report ought to have been registered as complaint and after following the procedure laid down in section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C."

25. Court further held:

"If after taking evidence under section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C., the magistrate decides to take cognizance against the accused persons, final report has to be rejected, but in any case, cognizance cannot be taken merely on the basis of affidavits or other material filed by the complainant in support of the protest petition against final report without following the procedure laid down under Chapter XV Cr.P.C., if the material in the case diary is not sufficient to take cognizance." (Emphasis added)

26. In Mitrasen Yadav Vs. State of U.P. 2010 (69) ACC 540, Court said that on the basis of Protest Petition and documents filed therewith, no cognizance under Section 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C. can be taken.

27. In Criminal Revision No. 1601 of 2015, Mukeem and 2 others Vs. State of U.P. and another, decided on 07.08.2015, Court while deprecating procedure followed by Magistrate by relying on Protest Petition and its documents, without following procedure of complaint, said:

"The impugned order shows that the Magistrate summoned accused persons presuming that oral evidence on behalf of first informant was adduced on protest petition, which is possible only when the protest petition was ordered to be treated as a complaint. The record shows that neither protest petition was ordered to be registered as complaint nor any oral evidence of the witnesses was recorded. Summoning of the accused persons on the basis of the oral evidence indicates that the Magistrate was satisfied with the fact that in evidence collected by the I.O, there was no sufficient material for taking cognizance. The learned Magistrate has also observed that the I.O. has committed a mistake in not recording the evidence of other witnesses. Summoning is also based on facts mentioned in the protest petition and documentary evidence, as mentioned in the order impugned which is erroneous in view of the law cited above." (Emphasis added)

28. In Writ Petition- Misc. Single No. 3776 of 2012, Mohammad Shafiq Khan and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, decided on 24.03.2014, Court, in para 9, held as under:

"9. Therefore, it is clear from the above that the Magistrate on the basis of protest petition can reject the final report, he may treat the protest petition as complaint, he may also direct for further investigation. But in the facts of this case the Magistrate while rejecting the final report has also taken into consideration the affidavits filed along with protest petition and this approach of the Magistrate was not in accordance with law." (Emphasis added)

29. Looking to exposition of law, discussed above, I find that in the present case Magistrate has not referred to any material placed before him as collected by Investigating Officer. Instead it has rejected final report on the basis of facts stated in Protest Petition and thereafter summoned accused-applicant. Magistrate has not given any reason for rejecting Police report and nothing has been said in this regard. This approach on the part of Magistrate, I find is contrary to what has been laid down in the above authorities and the same cannot be sustained.

30. In the result, application is allowed. Impugned orders dated 09.05.2003, 16.08.2003 and 12.09.2003 and further proceedings in Case Crime No. 163 of 2000, under Sections 427, 166, 392 IPC, Police Station Tilhar, District Shahjahanpur, pending in the Court of Civil Judge, Junior Division, Tilhar, Shahjahanpur are hereby set aside.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajul Bhargava, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed by learned counsel for the applicants is taken on record.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed with the prayer to quash the entire proceedings of Complaint Case No.3610 of 2016 (Chaman Kumar Satyarthi v. Shiv Kumar and others), pending in the court of Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Court No.3, Kanpur Nagar as well as summoning order dated 12.8.2016.

3. Heard Sri Shiv Nath Singh, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri D.P.S. Chauhan, learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Keshari Nandan Singh, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 as well as learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

4. In brief, the background of the case is that the opposite party no.2 moved an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. before the C.M.M., Kanpur Nagar for lodging of F.I.R. against the applicants and two others, however, the same was treated as a complaint case by the Magistrate. It is alleged in the application that the cousin brother of opposite party no.2 and his wife Smt. Kamla Devi executed a sale deed of a joint property, a part of which belongs to his father by a registered sale deed on 18.12.2013 and besides their own share also sold 48 square yards of the land belonging to his father and, thus, committed forgery. It is further stated that the applicants who are the vendees of the aforesaid sale deed after hatching conspiracy committed forgery by executing unregistered sale deed of a part of House No.35 belonging to his father on which eight shops existed and thereafter extended threats to the tenants of the aforesaid shops and also attempted to get the tenants evicted from the same. In the aforesaid manner, the applicants and other co-accused have committed cheating and forgery and they are intended to take illegal possession over the rented shops belonging to his father. After recording statements under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. of the witnesses, the Magistrate summoned the applicants and other co-accused under Sections 419, 420, 468, 471 I.P.C. The applicants have challenged the impugned complaint and the summoning order on the ground that even if the entire allegations contained in the complaint and in the statements recorded under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. are accepted to be true on its face value, neither any offence of cheating nor of forgery is made out.

5. Before submitting legal submissions, learned Senior Advocate has submitted brief facts of the case in order to understand the entire controversy between the applicants and opposite party no.2. In para 9 of the affidavit, it is stated that the disputed House No.35 belonged to one Smt. Mohaniya and after her death the same devolved on her sons namely Heera Lal an Sunder Lal. The opposite party no.2, Chaman Kumar Satyarthi is the son of Sunder Lal, whereas, non-applicant, Shiv Kumar is the son of Heera Lal and both the brothers had half shares in the aforesaid house. The non-applicant, Shiv Kumar executed a sale deed of his share in favour of applicant no.3, Smt. Manorama. The applicant no.1, Munna Lal and his son, Sunny were contesting the cases on behalf of Smt. Manorama. It is categorically stated that the applicant nos. 1 and 2 had nothing to do with the property, except, they were pleading the cases of Smt. Manorama in the Rent Control Act and other matters.

6. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2 has argued that in fact, prima facie, offences of cheating and forgery are made out against the applicants and other co-accused, inasmuch as, the non-applicant, Shiv Kumar knowing fully well that he is the owner of only half of the share of House No.35, yet with a wrongful intention in order to make wrongful gain to himself and wrongful loss to opposite party no.2 executed a sale deed more than that of his share on which eight shops existed and the rent was being collected by his father. He further submits that the applicants in collusion with other co-accused had also instituted proceedings before the Rent Control Court claiming themselves to be owner of the shop and by misrepresentation and playing fraud upon the court got certain orders from the Rent Control Court. Learned counsel has also given details of the manner in which the applicants on the basis of forged unregistered sale deed of eight shops belonging to his father attempted to obtain eviction of the tenants. He further argues that it is well settled that even if the dispute between the parties is partly civil in nature and also contains the ingredients of criminal nature and if it is so, they can also be tried by criminal courts. In the present case as the offence of cheating and forgery is, prima facie, established, therefore, the submission of learned counsel for the applicants cannot be accepted that the present proceedings instituted on complaint are not maintainable. Thus, the application is bereft of any merits and the same is liable to be dismissed.

7. Learned Senior Advocate has argued that there is no dispute that non-applicant, Shiv Kumar has inherited the share of his father Heera Lal and also had a joint ownership in House No.35 along with opposite party no.2. Even if, for the sake of argument, the averments made in the complaint are assumed to be true that non-applicant, Shiv Kumar executed registered sale deed in favour of Smt. Manorama more than that of his share measuring 48 square yards on which certain shops existed, then neither offence of cheating nor forgery on the part of the accused is attracted. There is no evidence of hatching any conspiracy against the applicant no.3 who is in fact a bona fide purchaser for consideration.

8. Therefore, the question arises for consideration is whether the material on record, prima facie, constitute any offence against the accused. The contention of learned counsel for the applicants is that if the allegations made in the complaint and in the statements in support thereof, even if accepted to be true in entirety does not disclose the ingredients of any offence of forgery under Sections 467, 468, 471 or cheating under Section 420 I.P.C. At the very outset, I may record that the Hon'ble Apex Court has time and again drawn attention to the growing tendency of complainants attempting to give the cloak of a criminal offence to matters which are essentially and purely civil in nature, obviously either to apply pressure on the accused, or out of enmity towards the accused, or to subject the accused to harassment. Criminal courts should ensure that proceedings before it are not used for settling scores or to pressurize parties to settle civil disputes. But at the same, it should be noted that several disputes of a civil nature may also contain the ingredients of criminal offences and if so, will have to be tried as criminal offences, even if they also amount to civil disputes. Reference may be made to the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Apex Court in G. Sagar Suri v. State of U.P. (2000) SCC 636 and Indian Oil Corporation v. NEPC India Ltd. (2006) 6 SCC 736.

9. According to applicants, the sale deed executed by non-applicant, Shiv Kumar obviously does not fall in any of the category of making of false documents, even for the sake of arguments it is accepted that he has executed a sale deed of the joint property more than of his share i.e. 48 square yards and then the applicants/vendees attempted to get the tenants evicted on the basis of the aforesaid sale deed. In the present case, it is not disputed by opposite party no.2 that non-applicant, Shiv Kumar has not acted as an impostor of opposite party no.2 or his father but he executed the sale deed in his capacity as the owner of the property.

10. Section 464 defining "making a false document" is extracted below :

"464. Making a false document.- A person is said to make a false document or false electronic record;

First.- Who dishonestly or fraudulently-

(a) makes, signs, seals or executes a document or part of a document;

(b) makes or transmits any electronic record or part of any electronic record;

(c) affixes any digital signature on any electronic record;

(d) makes any mark denoting the execution of a document or the authenticity of the digital signature, with the intention of causing it to be believed that such document or a part of document, electronic record or digital signature was made, signed, sealed, executed, transmitted or affixed by or by the authority of a person by whom or by whose authority he knows that it was not made, signed, sealed, executed or affixed; or

Secondly.- Who, without lawful authority, dishonestly or fraudulently, by cancellation or otherwise, alters a document or an electronic record in any material part thereof, after it has been made, executed or affixed with digital signature either by himself or by any other person, whether such person be living or dead at the time of such alternation; or

Thirdly.- Who dishonestly or fraudulently causes any person to sign, seal, execute or alter a document or an electronic record or to affix his digital signature on any electronic record knowing that such person by reason of unsoundness of mind or intoxication cannot, or that by reason of deception practised upon him, he does not know the contents of the document or electronic record or the nature of the alteration.

Explanation 1 - A man's signature of his own name may amount to forgery.

Explanation 2 - The making of a false document in the name of a fictitious person, intending it to be believed that the document was made by a real person, or in the name of a deceased person, intending it to be believed that the document was made by the person in his lifetime, may amount to forgery.

[Note: The words `digital signature' wherever it occurs were substituted by the words `electronic signature' by Amendment Act 10 of 2009]." (emphasis supplied)

11. The condition precedent for an offence under sections 467 and 471 is forgery. The condition precedent for forgery is making a false document (or false electronic record or part thereof). This case does not relate to any false electronic record. Therefore, the question is whether the non-applicant, Shiv Kumar, in executing and registering the sale deed purporting to sell a part of the property (even if it is assumed that it did not belong to him), can be said to have made and executed false documents, in collusion with the other accused.

12. An analysis of section 464 of Penal Code shows that it divides false documents into three categories:

In short, a person is said to have made a `false document', if (i) he made or executed a document claiming to be someone else or authorized by someone else; or (ii) he altered or tampered a document; or (iii) he obtained a document by practising deception, or from a person not in control of his senses.

13. The sale deeds executed by first appellant, clearly and obviously do not fall under the second and third categories of `false documents'. It therefore remains to be seen whether the claim of the complainant-opposite party no.2 that the execution of sale deed by Shiv Kumar who was in no way connected with a part of joint property, amounted to committing forgery of the documents with the intention of wrongful gain to himself in collusion with the applicants would bring the case under the first category.

14. There is a fundamental difference between a person executing a sale deed claiming that the property conveyed is his property, and a person executing a sale deed by impersonating the owner or falsely claiming to be authorized or empowered by the owner, to execute the deed on owner's behalf. When a person executes a document conveying a property describing it as his, there are two possibilities. The first is that he bonafide believes that the property actually belongs to him. The second is that he may be dishonestly or fraudulently claiming it to be his even though he knows that it is not his property. But to fall under first category of `false documents', it is not sufficient that a document has been made or executed dishonestly or fraudulently. There is a further requirement that it should have been made with the intention of causing it to be believed that such document was made or executed by, or by the authority of a person, by whom or by whose authority he knows that it was not made or executed.

15. When a document is executed by a person claiming a property which is not his, he is not claiming that he is someone else nor is he claiming that he is authorised by someone else. Therefore, execution of such document purporting to convey some property a part of which he is not the owner as alleged is not execution of a false document as defined under section 464 of the Code. If what is executed is not a false document, there is no forgery. If there is no forgery, then neither section 467 nor section 471 of the Code are attracted.

16. Let us now examine whether the ingredients of an offence of cheating are made out. The essential ingredients of the offence of "cheating" are as follows:

(i) deception of a person either by making a false or misleading representation or by dishonest concealment or by any other act or omission;

(ii) fraudulent or dishonest inducement of that person to either deliver any property or to consent to the retention thereof by any person or to intentionally induce that person so deceived to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived; and

(iii) such act or omission causing or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property.

17. To constitute an offence under section 420, there should not only be cheating, but as a consequence of such cheating, the accused should have dishonestly induced the person deceived

(i) to deliver any property to any person, or

(ii) to make, alter or destroy wholly or in part a valuable security (or anything signed or sealed and which is capable of being converted into a valuable security).

18. When a sale deed is executed conveying a property claiming ownership thereto, it may be possible for the purchaser under such sale deed, to allege that the vendor has cheated him by making a false representation of ownership and fraudulently induced him to part with the sale consideration. But in this case the complaint is not by the purchaser. On the other hand, the purchaser is made a co-accused i.e. applicants.

19. It is not the case of the complainant that any of the accused tried to deceive him either by making a false or misleading representation or by any other action or omission, nor is it his case that they offered him any fraudulent or dishonest inducement to deliver any property or to consent to the retention thereof by any person or to intentionally induce him to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived. Nor did the complainant allege that the first appellant pretended to be the complainant while executing the sale deeds. Therefore, it cannot be said that the non-applicant by the act of executing sale deeds in favour of the second accused or the second accused by reason of being the purchaser, or the third, fourth and fifth accused, by reason of being the witness, scribe and stamp vendor in regard to the sale deeds, deceived the complainant in any manner.

20. As the ingredients of cheating as stated in section 415 are not found, it cannot be said that there was an offence punishable under sections 417, 418, 419 or 420 of the Code.

A clarification

21. When it is stated that execution of a sale deed by a person, purporting to convey a property which is not his, as his property, is not making a false document and therefore not forgery, it should not be understood as holding that such an act can never be a criminal offence. If a person sells a property knowing that it does not belong to him, and thereby defrauds the person who purchased the property, the person defrauded, that is the purchaser, may complain that the vendor committed the fraudulent act of cheating. But a third party who is not the purchaser under the deed may not be able to make such complaint.

22. In the light of aforesaid, the averments made in the complaint if assumed to be true do not make any offence under Section 419, 420, 468, 471 I.P.C. and, therefore, the continuance of the proceedings arising out of the impugned complaint is nothing but an abuse of process of court and, thus, in the exercise of inherent power, I deem it fit to quash the impugned complaint and the summoning order.

23. Considering the overall facts and circumstances of the case and taking the entire allegations made in the complaint and in the statements recorded under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C., this Court is satisfied that, prima facie, commission of cognizable offence is not made out against the applicants and non-applicant, Shiv Kumar and his wife Smt. Kamla Devi.

24 . Accordingly, the complaint and the proceedings arising therefrom including the summoning order are hereby quashed.

The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is, accordingly, allowed.

Liability of partners is co-extensive along with that Firm and is a legal liability- Partners of a Firm qua share of profit in the Firm business do not stand in the capacity of creditor and debtor but being Owners of the Firm are jointly and severally liable. Term 'Liability' not attracted in respect to money or amount, which is claimed to be the share in profit of a partner- For dispute arising out of distribution of share, remedy lies to the partner to file suit for accounting in common law, but Section 138 of N. I. Act would not be attracted. (Para 5,7,8 & 9)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vikrant Rana, learned counsel for applicant, learned A.G.A. for State and Sri Vibhu Rai, Advocate holding brief of Sri Anoop Trivedi, learned counsel for respondent-2.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed praying for quashing of proceedings of complaint under Section 138 of The Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as "N.I.Act") in Case No.246 of 2004 pending in the Court of Judicial Magistrate, Mawana, Meerut (Rajveer Singh vs. Naththu Singh).

3. It is submitted that cheque in question was issued by Firm, signed by authorized signatories i.e. three partners but complaint has been made without impleading the Firm and, therefore, it was not maintainable. In this regard reliance has been placed on Supreme Court's decision in Aneeta Hada Vs. Godfather Travels and Tours Private Limited, (2012) 5 Supreme Court Cases 661 and in Himanshu Vs B. Shivamurthy and Another, (2019) 3 Supreme Court Cases 797.

4. When questioned learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel appearing for respondent 2 could not dispute aforesaid expositions of law.

5. From record it is evident that though cheque has been sent by partners of Firm, but it is by the Firm and on behalf of Firm i.e. M/S Nathu Singh and Others. This is evident from page 19 of paper book. So far as liability is concerned, in the matter of Firm, liability of partners is co-extensive. It is also of that Firm registered with Registrar of Firms and Societies and is a legal liability. Copy of partnership is on record and it shows that there were seven partners namely Sri Nathu Singh s/o Sri Shiv Charan Singh, Sri Lov Kush s/o Sri Rajbir Singh, Sri Jugberr s/o Sri yadram, Sri Arun Kumar s/o Sri Anand Pal Singh, Sri Arvind Kumar s/o Sri Rohtash Singh, Sri Rajbeer Singh s/o Sri Yadram Singh and Sri Rajbeer Singh s/o Sri Bhopal Singh.

6. As per averments in para 5 of complaint, the Firm was practically being run by Nathu Singh. In February 2004 all the partners decided to separate whereupon accused-applicant assured that share of partners in total profit shall be given to them and in respect thereto Cheque No.965804 for Rs.3,10,000/- dated 20.02.2004 was issued.

7. On above averment, it is evident that it is the share/profit of one of partner in the Firm for which cheque was issued by another partner. Section 138 of N.I. Act will apply only when cheque is issued for payment of any amount of money to another person for discharging of any debt or other liability. Profit or share in a Partnership Firm is not a debt on any of the partner against another partner. In common parlance, a debt is something owed to another and liability is an obligation, a chosen action which is capable of being assigned by creditor to some other person.

8. Here two partners of a Firm qua share of profit in the Firm business, do not stand in the capacity of creditor and debtor. Both are in capacity of Owners of the Firm and being Owners of the Firm, partners are also jointly and severally liable. If for distribution of share, there is some dispute, under the provisions of The Partnership Act, 1932 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1932"), remedy lies to the partner to file suit for accounting in common law, but to bring it within the term of any debt or liability attracting Section 138 of N. I. Act, in my view is clearly erroneous. Here one partner do not owe anything to another partner. All the partners have their specified shares in the Firm and if there is any dispute with regard to receipt of such share between partners, the same can be settled by initiating proceeding of accounting, but not by taking recourse to Section 138 of N.I. Act.

9. Similarly, to attract the term 'liability', it is difficult to hold that one partner owes liability to another partner in respect to money or amount, which is claimed to be the share in profit, since, profit is earned by Firm and all the partners having similar and equal status in the Firm, it can be distributed amongst themselves as per their consent or taking remedy in common law, but Section 138 of N. I. Act would not be attracted, hence, proceedings under Section 138 N. I. Act, are wholly without jurisdiction.

10. In view thereof, application is allowed. The proceedings of Case No.246 of 2004, under Section 138 of N.I. Act, pending in the Court of Judicial Magistrate, Mawana, Meerut (Rajveer Singh vs. Naththu Singh) is hereby quashed.

3. The present application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed to quash the summoning order dated 15.12.2015 as well as entire proceeding of Complaint Case No. 2658 of 2015 (Shahnawaz Vs. Daud & Ors.), under Sections 302, 307, 459 I.P.C., Police Station Kiratpur, District- Bijnor.

4. Learned counsel for the applicants submits, in the first place, there is non-compliance of the mandatory provision of law being the proviso to sub-section (2) of Section 202 Cr.P.C. Relying on the application filed by the opposite party no.2/complainant dated 03.11.2015 (to examine Dr. Upendra Singh and Dr. Prem Prakash) and another application to examine Dr. Ram Kumar and Sri Kuldeep Singh, it has been submitted, in the context of a complaint case, the offence alleged being triable exclusively by a Court of Sessions, it was mandatory for the learned Magistrate to first record the statements of all the aforesaid four witnesses before proceeding to issue process against the applicants. Also, in response to the decision cited by the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 in Shivjee Singh Vs. Nagendra Tiwary & Ors., (2010) 7

SCC 578, it has been submitted, in that case, the facts were entirely and fundamentally different, inasmuch as the complainant in that case had given up the remaining two witnesses. Therefore, the ratio of that decision is distinguishable.

5. Second, it has been submitted, the prosecution lodged against the present applicants is wholly mala fide. In this regard, it has been submitted, on 18.07.2015, the incident had taken place wherein close relatives of complainant had assaulted the applicant no.1, his father and others. In that incident, the father of the applicant no.1 died of a gun-shot injury while applicant no.1 also received a gun-shot injury. Injuries to both persons had been caused from close range. Also, in the indiscriminate firing by the assailants, one of them i.e. Chhuttan also suffered a gun-shot injury. The panchnama and site-plan were prepared by the police authorities. The place of incident was found to be an open place from where blood stains and empty cartridges were recovered by the police. During investigation, four country-made pistols were recovered from Faizan, Imran, Rizwan and Azad.

6. Consequently, charge-sheet was submitted on 27.08.2015. Cognizance was taken and thereafter the case was committed for trial to the Court of Sessions on 06.11.2015 being S.T. No. 552/2015. Therein evidence was led and arguments heard. However, upon administrative order passed by the learned District Judge that trial case was transferred two days before the date fixed for delivery of judgement. The matter is thus pending. As to the present prosecution, it has been submitted, the same had been lodged with mala fide intention only to set up a completely false defence to the prosecution story in S.T. No. 552/2015. A wholly unbelievable case has been set up by the complainant that too 15 days after the incident, that he and others had been assaulted by the applicants inside their residence when certain injuries were suffered by Chhuttan as also the applicant and his father suffered gun shot injuries. Thus, it has been submitted, the complaint is nothing but an eye-wash and a pretence set up only to pressure the applicants to withdraw from the criminal case lodged by them. It is wholly mala fide. He has also relied on a decision of the Supreme Court in the case of M/s. Eicher Tractor Ltd. & Ors. Vs. Harihar Singh & Anr., (2009) 64 ACC 296. In that context, he has further placed reliance on para 102 (7) of the earlier decision of the Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana & Ors. Vs. Bhajan Lal & Ors., (1992) Supp 1 SCC 335.

7. Opposing the present application, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 and learned AGA would submit that in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Shivjee Singh Vs. Nagendra Tiwary & Ors. (supra), it is no longer res integra whether the proviso to the sub-section (2) of Section 202 Cr.P.C. is mandatory i.e. whether it is necessary for the learned Magistrate to first record statements of all witnesses named by the complainant before proceeding to issue process against the accused person. The choice being of the complainant to examine such witness as he may choose, merely because an application may have been filed earlier to examine some other witness as well, it would not bind the learned Magistrate to first record their statements also, even though prima facie he feels satisfied that a case was made out to take cognizance and issue process.

8. Merely because some other witnesses had not been examined did not prevent the learned Magistrate from taking cognizance and issuing process, at an earlier point in time, upon examination of other witnesses. In this regard, it is submitted, six witnesses had been examined in support of the complaint and the impugned order itself reflects that P.W.-1 Zaheer Ahmad; P.W.-2 Chhuttan; P.W.-3 Gulbahar Alam; P.W.-4 Rizwan and; P.W.-5 Ram Kumar had been examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C. while the complainant had also been examined under Section 200 Cr.P.C. It is after considering those statements and the complaint allegations that, at present, the learned Magistrate felt prima facie satisfied to proceed further. Therefore, relying on the decision of the Supreme Court in Shivjee Singh Vs. Nagendra Tiwary & Ors. (supra), it has been submitted, there is no illegality committed by the learned Magistrate.

9. As to the allegations of mala fide prosecution, it has been submitted, the present is a case where there are two narrations of one incident, one being made by the mother of the applicant no.1 and the other made by opposite party no.2 Shahnawaz. Inasmuch there is death caused on one side and grievous hurt injury caused on the other, it cannot be disputed that there is prima facie basis for the accusations made by both sides. The cause of the injury or death or the manner in which they were caused is what requires a trial to be held. According to the applicants, all injuries had been caused by the close relatives and associates of opposite party no. 2 and that fact allegation may be tried in S.T. No. 552/2015. However, the facts are otherwise. That fact allegation may be examined only in the trial that may arise on the complaint lodged by the opposite party no. 2. Both sides having led evidence to establish existence of prima facie case, it would be premature to reach a conclusion that the allegations made by opposite party no.2 are mala fide. It would remain a matter to be examined upon detailed evidence to be led by both sides. Only then the truth may be established.

10. In any case, it has been submitted that the present summoning order was challenged by one of the co-accused Shadab in Criminal Revision No. 6 of 2016 filed before the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Bijnor. It was dismissed by order dated 04.03.2017, a copy of which has been annexed along with the counter affidavit. Therefore, it has been submitted that, in any case, the ground of mala fide allegations may not be entertained in the present proceedings in view of the fact that the summoning order has already been affirmed by the revisional court (though at the behest of a co-accused) and which order has attained finality.

11. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, it is true that in Shivjee Singh Vs. Nagendra Tiwary & Ors. (supra), as a fact, the complainant had, after recording evidence of two out of four witnesses, given up the remaining two witnesses for reason of his apprehension that they had been won over by the accused. However, that distinction of the fact apart, the Supreme Court has, after making detailed consideration of the various provisions falling under Chapters XV and XVI of the Cr.P.C. and existing precedent, culled out the legal situation emanating therefrom. In paragraph no. 22 of that decision, the Supreme Court considered the usage of the word "all" appearing in the proviso to Section 202 (2) Cr.P.C. and found it to be qualified by the word "his", i.e. the complainant. It was then reasoned that such qualification implied that the complainant was not bound to examine all the witnesses named in the complaint or whose names may have been disclosed in response to the order passed by the learned Magistrate.

12. It was further clarified only those witnesses were required to be examined whom the complainant may consider material to make out a prima facie case for issue of process. It is then left to the choice of the complainant to examine or to not examine other witnesses once prima facie case had been made out according to him, i.e. the complainant. As to the consequence of non-examination of other witnesses, it was further held, the same is to be considered at the stage of trial and not earlier. The Magistrate has also not been required to make any detailed discussion on the merits or demerits of the case, at this stage. In view of that reasoning contained in the decision of the Supreme Court, it is not possible to draw a distinction being claimed by the learned counsel for the applicants. The distinction of fact, pointed out by learned counsel for the applicant, is, on the reasoning of the Supreme Court found to be inconsequential for the purposes of issuance of process.

13. It may have been a different case if, in the absence of any specific expression or application made by the complainant not to examine any further witness, the learned Magistrate has chosen to dismiss the complaint. In that case, the complainant may have felt aggrieved and sought remedies against such action. However, that reasoning is not available to the accused persons, since they have been summoned upon prima facie satisfaction having been recorded as to their complicity in the offence alleged being reached on the basis of statements already recorded. It is not the case of the applicants that on the basis of the statements recorded by the learned Magistrate, no offence was made out.

14. Thus, in view of the ratio of law laid down by the Supreme Court, it is not for the accused person to voice any grievance that no further witnesses named by the complainant had been examined and, therefore, the applicants had been prematurely summoned. Since it is not the case of the applicants that no prima facie case is made out against them on the basis of the complaint read with the statements already recorded, the argument advanced by learned counsel for the applicants, does not call for any further discussion. It is rejected.

15. As to the second objection raised that the complaint is mala fide, suffice it to observe, at present, there is nothing to doubt the occurrence of the injuries claimed by the complainant, inasmuch as even, according to the case of the present applicants, Chhuttan had received a gun shot injury in the incident that had taken place. As to which of the two versions of the incident is correct, it is not for this Court to hazard a guess at this stage to reach a conclusion that the present complaint is mala fide.

16. Though, there can be no doubt that the mala fide complaint or prosecution can never be allowed to proceed in the view of the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana & Ors. Vs. Bhajan Lal & Ors. (supra) as followed in M/s. Eicher Tractor Ltd. & Ors. Vs. Harihar Singh & Anr. (supra), however, to reach that conclusion, the facts must be unequivocally clear to the court. At present, there is sufficient doubt as to which version of the same event is correct. Therefore, the plea of mala fide prosecution is also rejected, at this stage.

17. Further, in this regard, it also cannot be lost sight that in case of the co-accused Shadab, the summoning order that is under challenge in the present proceedings, has been upheld by the lower revisional court and that order has not been assailed by that co-accused Shadab. Though the applicants may not be bound by that order, however, in exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the court cannot be unmindful of that order having been attained finality. In such fact circumstances and background of legal remedy availed by the said Shadab, he is likely to stand trial on the same fact allegations. For that reason also, I am disinclined to exercise the inherent jurisdiction of this Court, on behalf of other co-accused persons, facing the same fact allegations. The interest of justice and concern to prevent abuse of process of court appears to lie not in quashing the complaint at this stage but rather in allowing the complaint to proceed further.

18. Accordingly, the present application lacks merit. The prayer made to quash the complaint is declined.

19. However, in case the applicants appear before the learned court below within a period of 45 days and apply for bail, the learned court below shall deal with their bail application as expeditiously as possible, strictly in accordance with law, without being influenced by any observations made in this order.

20. With the aforesaid observations, the present application is disposed of.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee J.)

1. This application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been moved on behalf of applicants seeking the quashing of complaint dated 27.10.2004 and impugned order dated 16.9.2005 as well as entire proceedings arising out of Case No.1847 of 2005 (Surendra Pal vs. Ram Singh and others), u/s 435 I.P.C. pending in the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bijnore.

2. List has been revised. Despite repeated calls none has appeared on behalf of opposite party no.2 to oppose this application. Learned A.G.A. is present. This application is of year 2005. In the wake of heavy pendency of cases in this Court where dockets are already bursting on their seams there is no justifiable reason to further procrastinate the matter. This Court, therefore, deems it fit to proceed in the matter with the assistance of the learned AGA representing the State.

3. Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A.

4. It appears from the perusal of the record that an F.I.R. under section 435 Cr.P.C. was lodged by the complainant but after investigating into the case a final report was submitted. The complainant was summoned who protested against the submission of final report and as it was within the powers of Magistrate to do so, he took the cognizance in the matter treating the protest as complaint and proceeded in the matter following the right procedure. During the course of inquiry the complainant was examined under section 200 Cr.P.C. and then under section 202 Cr.P.C. P.W.1, Omprakash, P.W.2, Rohtash Kumar and P.W.3, Gyanchand were examined. On the basis of the material that was adduced during the course of enquiry the Court below thought it fit to proceed to summon the accused in order to face the trial. The version that appears to have been brought forward by the complainant is to the effect that there were some prior enmity going on between the complainant and the accused persons. On the day of occurrence i.e. to say on 12.3.2004 at about 4:00 a.m. when the complainant and his brother Rajendra Kumar had gone to attend the call of nature he found that co-accused Ram Singh, Dhyan Singh, Surendra Kumar, Mahavir and Veerpal were putting fire to the sugarcane crop that were there in his fields. The complainant and his brother raised hue and cry which attracted a number of witnesses which included witnesses Rohtash Singh, Rampal Singh, Omprakash, Gyan Chandra and Satyendra etc. who arrived on the spot and helped quenching the fire. This version has been by and large reiterated by witnesses Omprakash, Gyanchandra and Rohtash who have been examined under section 202 Cr.P.C. on behalf of complainant. Being satisfied by the material adduced, the Court proceeded to summon the accused persons to face the trial under section 435 Cr.P.C.. Submission of the counsel in defense of the applicant is that story as has been alleged on behalf of complainant is highly improbable and the witnesses who claimed to have seen the occurrence are shear chance witnesses and their presence on the spot appears to be suffering with the element of high improbability. It has been contended that the incident is said to have taken place at about 4:00 a.m. in the morning. It is too much of coincidence to believe that just the moment when the complainant and his brother had gone near their own fields, it was just at that point of time that the accused came over there and set the crop ablaze. According to the counsel if the complainant was already present on the spot, there was no reason for the accused to have indulged in this act in their presence. They could have done it much earlier throughout the night which preceded the time of occurrence and they could also have committed this offence after the complainant had left the spot. Submission is that such kind of allegation is militating against the normal ways of conduct which is to screen oneself from being seen by others committing the crime. The very fact that the said occurrence is said to have taken place in the wee hours shows that whosoever has done it had taken care of to conceal himself from being witnessed by others. In such circumstances, the claim of the complainant that the occurrence took place in the presence of multiple witnesses is by itself a highly unnatural claim and is not worth placing reliance upon. Further submission is that witnesses Gyanchandra and Rohtash who claimed to have seen the accused persons setting the crop ablaze again suffers the same criticism of high improbability. It has also been submitted that putting fire into the crop does not take much time and if what has been alleged was true then task of setting ablaze would have ended within minutes and therefore it further appears to be a very incredible, unnatural and improbable story that at that brink of time when the accused were setting ablaze the crop the other witnesses would also have landed on the spot and could find the occasion to have seen accused committing the offence in question in their presence. Submission is that the presence of the witnesses in the wee hours at 4:00 a.m. in the morning is a claim which does not inspire confidence and it appears that if at all there was some crop which suffered some loss by fire then the implication of the accused has been made only as a result of wild guess and as a result of conjectures alone. In the same context the counsel has further added the argument about the delay in lodging F.I.R.. The incident is said to have taken place on 12.3.2004 while the F.I.R. was lodged on 16.3.2004. Submission is that this yawning gap and the huge delay in lodging F.I.R. remains wholly unexplained on behalf of complainant. If the incident had taken place on 12.3.2004 there was no justification to wait for so long and lodge the F.I.R. after so much of delay. Submission is that this yawning gap in lodging the F.I.R. is well consistent with the probability that this time was consumed in finding out the possible offenders and ultimately when after confabulation and consultations the suspicion matured against the present applicants, the F.I.R. was lodged. In addition to it contention of the counsel is that initially after investigation the allegations were not found substantiated by investigating officer and as a result of the same the final report was also submitted. The Court below while rejecting the final report did not at all consider the circumstances and the material collected by investigating officer which persuaded him to file his final report in favour of accused. The exercise of summoning the accused has been done in a rather mechanical manner and lacks actual application of judicial mind. Argument is that the continuation of the proceedings against the applicants will result in nothing except abuse of court's process.

5. Perused the record in the light of submissions made at the bar.

6. Perusal of the record shows that the time of incident as is said to have taken place was at 4:00 a.m. in the morning. This Court finds substance in the submissions raised by the counsel that the presence of the complainant and his brother at that hour cannot be said to be a very natural presence. The presence of other witnesses also appears to be merely coincidental and not natural. The claim of the complainant that all of them had the occasion to witness the accused setting ablaze the crop also appears to be a highly improbable claim and it is too much to believe such a coincidence. Delay in lodging F.I.R. is also wholly unexplained phenomenon which shall go to the root of the matter. Submission of the counsel about the confabulations made during this period appears to have substance and it is not difficult to see that the implication of the accused appears to be more as a result of wild conjectures based on previous enmity rather than on any basis of truth. There are strong circumstances to indicate that the incident remained unwitnessed by anybody and implication of the accused is just a result of prior enmity and in such circumstances this Court is of the view that the application deserves to be allowed.

7. So far as the law on the point of quashing criminal proceedings against the accused is concerned this aspect has been expatiated upon by Hon'ble Supreme Court in a number of cases. It would be necessary to site the relevant observations made by Apex Court in perspective the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal 1992 SCC(Cr.) 426, in which certain categories have been recognized on the basis of which the criminal proceeding against a certain party or the accused may be quashed. It was observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Bhajan Lal's case as follows:-

"The following categories can be stated by way of illustration wherein the extra-ordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure can be exercised by the High Court either to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised:

(1) where the allegations made in the First Information Report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) where the allegations in the First Information Report and other materials, if any, accompanying the F.I.R. do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) where the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

8. In the considered view of this Court this matter falls in category no.(7) mentioned hereinabove. This Court finds reason to hold that the proceedings in question are inspired by malice or the part of complainant and the version contained therein is full of high improbabilities and the continuation of the proceedings on that basis is likely to result in abuse of court's process, and therefore, the entire proceeding of complaint in question is liable to be quashed.

9. In this view of the matter this application is allowed and the entire proceeding of complaint in question against the accused-applicants stand quashed.

10. A copy of this order be certified to the lower court concerned forthwith.

A. Criminal Law -Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 – Section 482 – Scope - Suicide Note- The genuineness of the suicide note can only be finally adjudicated upon and decided at the trial. High Court cannot examine such issue under section 482 Cr.P.C.

The suicide note is admissible and relevant under Section 32 of Indian Evidence Act as the same relates to the cause of death and also to the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death- Like any other fact the instigation or the abetment is also provable by circumstantial evidence and it cannot be said either as a matter of rule of law or even of prudence that unless there is direct evidence of instigation available the charge will remain unproved-Only a prima facie satisfaction of the court about the existence of sufficient ground to proceed in the matter is required.

B. Delay in lodging of the F.I.R. - May also be reckoned as a strong circumstance to suggest that the first informant never had any motive to falsely implicate the accused and he reported the facts as they emerged and came to his knowledge in the process of time gradually-The perusal of the F.I.R. and the material collected by the Investigating Officer and specially the suicide note of the deceased on the basis of which the charge sheet has been submitted makes out a prima facie case against the accused at this stage and there appear to be sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. 1. This application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed seeking the quashing of charge sheet dated 25.07.2018 as well as the entire proceedings of Case No.45169 of 2018 (State vs. Shyam Lal and others) arising out of Case Crime No.411 of 2018, u/s 306, 406 I.P.C., pending in the Court of A.C.M.M.-II, Kanpur Nagar.

2. Heard applicants' counsel and learned A.G.A.

3. Entire record has been perused.

4. Submission of learned counsel for the applicants is that the date of incident of the present case when it took place was 29.3.2018 whereas the F.I.R. has been lodged on 10.4.2018 i.e. after 12 days of the incident which is suggestive of manipulation and fabrication on the part of the prosecution. Further submission is that the alleged suicide notes appear to have been manipulated by the first informant so as to falsely implicate the applicants. It was also submitted that there is no direct evidence on record to prove instigation or abetment made by the applicants on the basis of which it may be said that the death of the deceased directly owes its genesis to or has nexus with any such conscious culpable act committed by accused which may be tantamount to abetment. Therefore, the offence punishable under Section 306 I.P.C. is not made out against the applicants. Certain other contentions have also beeen raised by the applicants' counsel but all of them relate to disputed questions of fact. The court has also been called upon to adjudge the testimonial worth of prosecution evidence and evaluate the same on the basis of various intricacies of factual details which have been touched upon by the learned counsel. The veracity and credibility of material furnished on behalf of the prosecution has been questioned and false implication has been pleaded. Contention is that the charge-sheet and consequent proceedings should therefore be quashed.

5. The law regarding sufficiency of material which may justify the summoning of accused and also the court's decision to proceed against him in a given case is well settled. The court has to eschew itself from embarking upon a roving enquiry into the last details of the case. It is also not advisable to adjudge whether the case shall ultimately end in conviction or not. Only a prima facie satisfaction of the court about the existence of sufficient ground to proceed in the matter is required.

6. Through a catena of decisions given by Hon'ble Apex Court this legal aspect has been expatiated upon at length and the law that has evolved over a period of several decades is too well settled. The cases of (1) Chandra Deo Singh Vs. Prokash Chandra Bose AIR 1963 SC 1430 , (2) Vadilal Panchal Vs. Dattatraya Dulaji Ghadigaonker AIR 1960 SC 1113 and (3) Smt. Nagawwa Vs. Veeranna Shivalingappa Konjalgi 1976 3 SCC 736 may be usefully referred to in this regard.

7. The Apex Court decisions given in the case of R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab AIR 1960 SC 866 and in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal 1992 SCC(Cr.) 426 have also recognized certain categories by way of illustration which may justify the quashing of a complaint or charge sheet. Some of them are akin to the illustrative examples given in the above referred case of Smt. Nagawwa Vs. Veeranna Shivalingappa Konjalgi 1976 3 SCC 736. The cases where the allegations made against the accused or the evidence collected by the Investigating Officer do not constitute any offence or where the allegations are absurd or extremely improbable impossible to believe or where prosecution is legally barred or where criminal proceeding is malicious and malafide instituted with ulterior motive of grudge and vengeance alone may be the fit cases for the High Court in which the criminal proceedings may be quashed. Hon'ble Apex Court in Bhajan Lal's case has recognized certain categories in which Section-482 of Cr.P.C. or Article-226 of the Constitution may be successfully invoked.

8. Illumined by the case law referred to herein above, this Court has adverted to the entire record of the case.

9. A perusal of the record shows that on 30.3.2018 the first informant had given a written information at P.S. Kalyanpur, Kanpur Nagar that his son namely Ram Kishore had committed suicide. This information was duly entered into the concerned police station as G.D. No. 30 dated 30.3.2018 at 10:12 hours. Later on, the opposite party no. 2 had moved an application at the concerned police station on 10.4.2018 with the allegation that while cleaning the room of the deceased Ram Kishore he had got a suicide note of the deceased in which the deceased himself had narrated the reasons for committing suicide. In the said suicide notes the deceased had narrated the details of atrocious trauma inflicted upon him by the present applicants which compelled him to commit suicide. On the aforesaid application of the opposite party no. 2 an F.I.R. being Case Crime No. 411 of 2018 was lodged against the applicants for the offences punishable under Sections 306, 406 I.P.C. The investigating officer investigated the present case and after recording the statement of several witnesses as well as after going through the suicide notes written by the deceased, submitted charge sheet against the applicants for the offences punishable under Sections 306, 406 I.P.C. A supplementary affidavit has been filed by the applicants annexing therewith the copies of suicide notes which the prosecution alleges to have been written by the deceased himself. A perusal of the these suicide notes which runs in several parts and several pages show that the applicants were continuously blackmailing the deceased, due to which he was compelled to commit suicide. One of the suicide notes which appears to be dated 29.3.2018 finds endorsement by the deceased which has been mailed to PMO. Another application which is addressed to the Chief Minister of U.P. wherein it has been written by the deceased that he is going to commit suicide and it was the applicants who were responsible for the same. The detailed allegations as well as complete narration of facts which compellingly drove the deceased to commit suicide has been mentioned in the suicide notes which runs from page no. 28 to 35 of the supplementary affidavit. It has been mentioned in the suicide notes that when the deceased was a student of B.Tech. Ist year the applicant no.1 asked him to give tuition to her child. Thereafter the applicant no.1 purposely introduced her own sister and had given proposal for marriage with the deceased. Later on the applicants facilitated the deceased to enter into relationship with the sister of the applicant no. 1 namely Pooja. It further transpires from the overall reading of the suicide note that the relationship of the deceased with the aforesaid Pooja was made by the accused a clever contrivance to exploit the deceased emotionally and economically both. By illusing the relationship as a blackmailing tool the process of squeezing out money from the deceased was engineered by the accused. The accused claimed to be in possession of some objectionable photographs of the deceased with aforesaid Pooja and he having been put under the sting of such blackmail, was asked to cough up more and more money. Even half of the share of some land was also demanded and it also appears from the suicide note that roughly about Rs. 1,84,000/- were also extracted out from the deceased over a period of time. It also appears that the deceased having been put under the mortifying fear of infamy, humiliating social exposure and the loss of honour was compelled to give Rs. 3,000/- per month to the accused on insistent demand of the accused. But the rapacity of the accused still did not get satiated and they started demanding further more. An amount of Rs.5000/- per month was further pressed for. The suicide note also reveals that the applicant no. 1 was in fact, cousin of the deceased whereas the applicant no.2 is the wife of the applicant no.1 and the applicant no.3 is the father-in-law of the applicant no.1. The perusal of the suicide note would further reveal that the deceased had been so much mentally tortured by the applicants which compelled the beleaguered deceased to think that he was not having any other choice but to commit suicide and eventually after facing incessant emotional trauma and blackmailing which continued for 2 to 3 years by the applicants, the deceased committed suicide. The suicide note contains some very pathetic description about the mental agonising ordeal through which the deceased underwent and which was caused and inflicted upon him by the calculated overt acts of blackmail by the accused. So far as the delay in lodging of the F.I.R. is concerned, it is clear that as soon as the first informant got the suicide note of the deceased, he at once approached the police station and got registered the present F.I.R. In fact the said delay in lodging the F.I.R. may also be reckoned as a strong circumstance to suggest that the first informant never had any motive to falsely implicate the accused and he reported the facts as they emerged and came to his knowledge in the process of time gradually. The genuineness of the suicide note upon which the prosecution is claiming reliance can only be finally adjudicated upon and decided in the trial. Apparently the suicide note is admissible and relevant under Section 32 of Indian Evidence Act as the same relates to the cause of death and also to the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death.

10. So far as the submission of counsel with regard to non-availability of any direct evidence to prove instigation or abetment done by the applicants is concerned, it may be observed that it depends upon the facts of each case and the court has to proceed to see whether the ingredients of charge are actually made out or not. There may be cases where we may find direct evidence of instigation resulting in the commission of suicide. But there may be cases where we may find enough circumstances to show that the mental harassment to which the deceased was subjected was a calculated one and was so sustained and intense that the same was so very likely to drive a man of normal sensitivities to commit suicide. Like any other fact the instigation or the abetment is also provable by circumstantial evidence and it cannot be said either as a matter of rule of law or even of prudence that unless there is direct evidence of instigation available the charge will remain unproved. We find in the present matter that there is a sustained history of mental harassment to which the deceased was subjected and for the perpetration of which the accused were responsible. Whether ultimately the charge shall stand proved or not is quite a different matter and the eventual verdict has to be arrived at through the evaluation of evidence by a full fledged trial. Whether the conviction will be upheld or not is also to be seen at the time of final adjudication on the point of guilt or innocence of the accused. But for the purposes of evaluating the sufficiency of material which may justify the summoning of applicants and call him upon to face the trial this Court finds enough material from the suicide note itself which reveals that the deceased was pushed to the wall by the accused and was constantly being kept at tenterhooks and was incessantly being blackmailed and harassed to the extent that he found no other way than to put an end to the journey of his life. It also does not appear to be a case in which it may be said that the act of suicide committed by the deceased was an act of disproportionately abnormal or ultra sensitive person. Normally, we do not come across a suicide note with such profusely elaborate details. The entire emotional catharsis has been vented out in the last words which were penned out by the deceased and which are in the nature of a tell-tale story. How he got trapped in the situation and how the accused were constantly subjecting him to a blackmailing emotional torture, the narration of the suicide notes furnishes all such material and this Court finds that the accused must face trial and be called upon to answer the charge. Submission of charge sheet in a matter like this cannot be said to be unjustified therefore. This certainly does not appear to be a case in which the venue of judicial probe should be shutdown and foreclosed or where this Court should feel inclined to scuttle the prosecution of the accused at the very threshold even before it sets on. Whether such kind of highly immoral and culpably incriminating conduct of the accused was in ordinary circumstances sufficient to drive a man of normal sensitivities and self respect to commit suicide and thereby amount to instigation and abetment or not, may be adequately adjudicated upon only through a proper trial and finding in that regard must be returned by the trial court which possesses primary jurisdiction to pronounce judicially on these aspects of the case.

11. The submissions made by the applicants' learned counsel call for adjudication on pure questions of fact which may be adequately adjudicated upon only by the trial court and while doing so even the submissions made on points of law can also be more appropriately gone into by the trial court in this case. This Court does not deem it proper, and therefore cannot be persuaded to have a pre-trial before the actual trial begins. A more elaborate discussion of various facts and circumstances, as they emerge from the allegations made against the accused, is being purposely avoided by the Court for the reason, lest the same might cause any prejudice to either side during trial. But it shall suffice to observe that the perusal of the F.I.R. and the material collected by the Investigating Officer and specially the suicide note of the deceased on the basis of which the charge sheet has been submitted makes out a prima facie case against the accused at this stage and there appear to be sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. I do not find any justification to quash the charge sheet or the proceedings against the applicants arising out of them as the case does not fall in any of the categories recognized by the Apex Court which may justify their quashing.

12. The prayer for quashing the same is refused as I do not see any abuse of the court's process either.

13. The application therefore stands dismissed.

A. Criminal Law- Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 – Sections 173(2), 173 (8), 190(1)(b) - Final Report submitted by the prosecution, after conducting investigation u/s 173 (8) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, can only be considered by the court along with the Police Report / Chargesheet filed u/s 173 (2) of the Cr.Pc, at the stage of framing of Charge.

The investigating agency is empowered to conduct further investigation in any criminal case, according to the need thereof and the only rider applicable upon such authority of investigating agency is that the concerned court should be apprised with the requirement of further investigation.

There is sufficient hiatus between the submission of charge sheet u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C. and the subsequent filing of the report regarding further investigation u/s 173(8) Cr.P.C. The court while deciding upon the point of framing of the charge shall naturally look into the material furnished by prosecution and made available before it which includes the report regarding further investigation u/s 173(8) Cr.P.C. also.

The adjudication on the disputed factual aspects and issues involved in the matter falls within the domain of concerned court below, which may properly evaluate the materials available in case diary as well as the outcome of both the reports submitted u/s 173(2) and 173(8) of Cr.P.C. at the stage of framing of the charge.

Even in the cases where a final report is submitted in favour of accused at the very outset or the cases where the police may submit a charge sheet and again submit a final report on the basis of further investigation made by it, in all such cases if the Magistrate at the stage of taking cognizance itself forms the opinion on the collective consideration of both the reports that the material available constitutes an offence, he can very well take cognizance of the offence u/s 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C., notwithstanding the contrary opinion of the police expressed in the final report. (Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed on behalf of applicants as well as power filed today by Shri Ajatshatru Pandey, Advocate on behalf of opposite party no.2 are taken on record.

2. The applicants Rajesh Malik and Randeep Waraich have invoked inherent jurisdiction of this Court u/s 482 of Cr.P.C. for quashing of impugned charge sheet dated 03.9.2018, cognizance order dated 08.10.2018 passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Budh Nagar as well as entire proceedings in Criminal Case No.2009 of 2019 (State vs. Rajesh Malik and others) arising out of Case Crime No.1201 of 2018, u/s 406, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 34 I.P.C., Police Station-Sector 20 Noida, District-Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. In nutshell the controversy involved in the present matter is that opposite party no.2 Amit Gupta along with Sanjay Rastogi, Paramjit Gandhi and PTC Mouldings Pvt. Ltd. lodged an F.I.R.

dated 22.7.2018 against Rajesh Malik, Randeep Waraich and M/s Cornoustie Management (India) Pvt. Ltd. with the allegations of cheating forgery and fraud and conspiracy by stating that the accused persons have cheated them for an amount of almost Rs.5,36,89,000/- (Five crore thirty six lakh eighty nine thousand only) by dishonestly enticing and selling them (complainants) non-existent plots in Noida. It has been alleged in the F.I.R. that in the year 2011-12, Rajesh Malik and Randeep Waraich represented themselves to be the Director of M/s Cornoustie Management (India) Pvt. Ltd. It was made to appear by these persons that Cornoustie was the sole legal heir of several plots/land in Sectors-96, 97 and 98 in Noida which were being developed by a company known as Unitech Group as a part of its large project known as Unitech Grande. These persons further made to appear that they received these plots from Unitech for valid consideration and were therefore in position to further sell those plots to third parties. It was further made to appear to the complainants that Unitech Hi Tech Developers Ltd. had allotted several plots to Carnoustie including plot Nos.D3, D4, D5, D6 and D7 in Sectors 96, 97 and 98 in Noida, in respect of which the site plans were shown to the complainants by pointing out the location of the plots, on the basis of which the complainants found these plots to be contiguous and well situated. It has also been alleged in the F.I.R. that in order to deceive the complainants, the accused Rajesh Malik and Randeep Waraich made continuous representations to make the complainants believe that they were the sole owners of these plots and would enter into formal documentation to transfer ownership to the successful purchasers. Upon such fraudulent and dishonest representation of facts, the complainants made payments of huge amounts on different dates by way of cheque/RTGS, total of which comes to the tune of Rs.9,14,78,000/-. The F.I.R. further discloses the amount, date and mode of total 13 different payments made in the year 2012 and 2013 through bank transactions. It is further alleged in the F.I.R. that Sanjay Rastogi purchased two plots being D6 and D7 and the seller signed one agreement for plot No.D7 but dillydallied signing of another agreement for plot No.D6. It has been further alleged in the F.I.R. that M/s Cornoustie Management (India) Pvt. Ltd. with a dishonest intention to perpetuate fraud and cause loss to the complainant, executed as many as seven documents in the form of agreement to sale, irrevocable letter of authority, indemnity/undertaking, allotment letter etc. in favour of Amit Gupta and Sanjay Rastogi. It has been further submitted that the complainants have now learnt that the representations and claims of these persons were not only false but were false to the knowledge of Rajesh Malik and Randeep Waraich at the time of making these representations and claims and hence, the object of cheating is clear. It is further alleged in the F.I.R. that these persons began to delay the identification of plots and completing the documentation in favour of complainants on one pretext or other and ultimately refused to complete the allocation process and to give possession of these plots to the representative complainants. It is further alleged that accused persons began stating that they were having talks with Unitech for early release of plots, despite representing themselves as sole owner at the initial stage of negotiations in the year 2011-12. It is further alleged that the complainants apprehended that there was some collusion with the accused persons and the Unitech Company and as such, when the complainants started asking for refund of their hard earned money along with interest together with compensation, from the accused persons, they started avoiding their calls, and in the year 2017 Rajesh Malik refused to return money and threatened the complainants that he would in turn embroil them and their families into false cases and legal prosecutions. The present F.I.R. dated 22.7.2018 containing the aforesaid allegations was registered as Case Crime no.1201 of 2018 u/s 406, 409, 417, 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 474, 34 and 120-B I.P.C. at Police Station-Noida, Sector-20, District-Gautam Budh Nagar.

4. The record reveals that the local police conducted investigation of crime in question and after recording statements u/s 161 Cr.P.C. of various persons, supposed to be acquainted with the facts of the case, and after collecting documents/material etc, submitted the charge sheet dated 3.9.2018 against both the applicants Rajesh Malik, Randeep Waraich as well as against M/s Cornoustie Management (India) Pvt. Ltd., upon which the concerned court below took cognizance of the offence vide order dated 08.10.2018 and the criminal case was registered in the court below as Criminal Case No.2009 of 2019 (State vs. Rajesh Malik). There is nothing on record to show as to when summons were issued against the applicants and another co-accused but record reveals that the report dated 25.3.2019 was submitted by the Additional Superintendent of Police, Crime, Bulandshahr before S.S.P., Bulandshahr stating various reasons to conduct further investigation in the matter u/s 173 (8) of Code of Criminal Procedure. The record further reveals that on 25.6.2019, the complainant approached the concerned court below i.e. A.C.J.M.-III, Gautam Budh Nagar seeking issuance of non bailable warrants against the accused persons, upon which the concerned court below observed in the order-sheet dated 25.6.2019 that the accused Rajesh Malik had moved application before the court below to provide charge sheet and case diary for the purposes of further investigation, whereupon appropriate order dated 04.5.2019 was passed. The Court below also observed in the order dated 25.6.2019 that the bailable warrants of Rs.20,000/- were continuing against accused Rajesh Malik and Randeep Waraich and though service report thereof has not been returned but because of the fact that application of the accused Rajesh Malik has already been heard, it is presumed that accused Rajesh Malik had complete knowledge of the proceedings of criminal case, despite which he has not appeared before the court. With such observations, the court of A.C.J.M.-III, Gautam Budh Nagar issued non bailable warrants against accused Rajesh Malik and issued bailable warrants of Rs.20,000/- against accused Randeep Waraich and fixed next date 18.7.2019. The record further reveals that on 5.7.2019 a supplementary report u/s 173(8) of Cr.P.C. was submitted by the Station House officer under instructions of higher authorities which was taken on record and the next date was fixed as 18.7.2019. It is also born out from perusal of record that the opposite party no.2 preferred Criminal Misc. writ Petition No.13732 of 2019 before the Division Bench of this Court against the order of further investigation in the crime in question, which was dismissed vide order dated 17.7.2019. With such factual backdrop this criminal application has come up before this Court for adjudication upon the reliefs pressed by the applicants.

5. Heard Shri Anoop Trivedi, learned Senior Advocate appearing for applicants, Shri G.S. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate appearing for opposite party no.2 and learned Additional Government Advocate for the State.

6. Main submission raised by applicants' counsel is that though in the initial investigation the charge-sheet was submitted against the applicants but on further investigation the inference drawn by the Investigating Officer was in favour of applicants that no offence against the applicants is made out. This report regarding further investigation has not been considered or taken into account so far by the Magistrate. According to counsel for the applicants, the material collected through further investigation and its resultant report are relevant documents to decide whether cognizance in the matter should have been taken or not, and therefore, the court should have once again reconsidered its decision whereby it had taken cognizance of the matter and should have dropped the proceedings in view of favourable report submitted by the Investigating Officer who conducted further investigation into the case. According to applicants' counsel, if the subsequent further investigation contains material favourable to the accused or if the subsequent Investigating Officer has drawn favourable inference, there is no good reason to continue the criminal proceedings going on against the accused. Further submission is that one company Unitech was given a licence to develop a plotted colony. The layout was sanctioned by the Development Authority in favour of Unitech. Unitech allotted these plots to Carnoustie Management Private Limited company in 2007. According to the agreement executed in favour of the aforesaid company the plots were further transferred to certain persons including the informant/opposite party no.2. This took place in the year 2012 but the possession was not given to the buyers by the Unitech. Multiple persons therefore felt aggrieved by the same and the matter was taken up to the Supreme Court. Certain aggrieved persons who had formed an association had also preferred an application in the Supreme Court. The Hon'ble Supreme Court passed an order on 6.4.2017 which would show that in the Supreme Court, Unitech had given the undertaking that it shall not disturb any of the rights of the members of association. Thus the interim application got disposed of by the Apex Court in view of the undertaking given regarding the protection of the rights of the aggrieved. But later on F.I.R. in this regard was also brought against the applicants' company and applicants, who are the directors of the company. Submission is that therefore the F.I.R. is an overreach and is not tenable and is premature.

7. Learned Senior Counsel appearing for first informant-opposite party no.2 has in rebuttal submitted that so far as the result of the further investigation is concerned, the law in that regard is that after being submitted in the Court the same would form part of the record and as in the present case the charge has not yet been framed the material so collected may be considered at the stage of framing of the charge. The mere fact that some favourable inference was drawn by the investigating officer in the subsequent further investigation will not efface the material collected earlier on the basis of which the charge-sheet was submitted nor the subsequent report by itself shall preside upon the liquidation of the earlier charge-sheet. The eventual impact and consequence of the material collected subsequently and also the inference drawn by the subsequent Investigating Officer may be duly considered by the Court at appropriate stage during the proceedings and may also be used by the applicants as the law might permit. But it shall not vitiate either the process of taking cognizance in the matter or the proceedings of summoning which has been done on the basis of material which existed on that particular point of time when the cognizance was taken and summons were issued. Senior counsel appearing for the opposite party no.2 has further submitted that the respondents had paid the money to Carnoustie company and not to Unitech company and surprisingly enough subsequent to the said payment of money to the Carnoustie company for the purpose of allotment of plots, Unitech company purchased the shares of Carnoustie on the valuation of Rs.51 crores, despite the fact that initially those shares were valued for a meager amount of Rs.1 lakh only. Submission is that this internal factual aspect speaks loud about an unholy nexus in between Carnoustie company and Unitech Company. Submission is that if opportunity of trial is given, aforesaid facts may be confirmed and substantiated by documents. It was vehemently contended that the opposite party was given the assurance that Carnoustie was in actual possession of the plots and was in a position to hand it over to the opposite party. It was only after having been duped by this misleading assurance that a lot of money was handed over to the Carnoustie. But subsequently, it was found that those plots did not exist as promised and were not identifiable and the assurance in this regard was nothing except a ruse and a rank bluff and therefore not only the offence of cheating is made out but the dishonest intention is apparent on the face of record from the very outset of the transaction. So far as the Supreme Court litigation is concerned, according to Senior Counsel, the opposite party no.2 was never the party in that litigation and was not a member of that association which was party in the Apex Court litigation. It has also been submitted that even the submission raised on behalf of applicants regarding the undertaking given by the Unitech in the said proceeding that took place in Apex Court, would in fact go to lend to a very great extent a kind of recognition to the genuineness to the claim of the opposite party and the same is not at all incompatible with the allegation made by the first informant and shall hardly go to help or exonerate the accused-applicants from their liability or for being hands in gloves with Unitech. Even otherwise aforesaid proceedings referred to by the defence side would relate to the civil rights of the parties involved and would not at all absolve the accused from the criminal liability with regard to the offences which they have committed and with regard to which the charge sheet against them has been submitted in the Court. Deception, fraud, dishonest inducement, dishonest concealment of true facts and thereby causing wrongful loss and making wrongful gains, all these aspects are writ large from the very outset and the bare perusal of the F.I.R. would reveal the sinister design which actuated the entire criminal transaction, as a result of which the first informant and the other aggrieved persons have suffered huge economic losses and the accused must be tried and punished for the criminal liability which accrues to them. The civil rights and liabilities are decided on the preponderance of probabilities while the criminal charge has to be proved beyond reasonable doubt and the proceedings with regard to both of them can simultaneously go together and are not mutually exclusive to each other. According to counsel this is certainly not a case which may be said to be essentially civil in nature or where the alleged offences are not made out from the F.I.R. or where it may be said that deliberately a criminal complexion has been lent to an otherwise dispute of pure civil nature.

8. Learned A.G.A. while supporting the stand taken by the opposite party No.2, has submitted that such a dispute of factual nature raised by the applicants for the purpose of quashing of charge sheet as well as entire proceeding is not liable to be considered by this Court considering the stage of criminal proceeding at which they are pending and such factual controversy should be left for adjudication by the concerned court below at an appropriate stage of proceeding and as such, no interference is required by this Court.

9. In the light of rival submissions of the parties this Court has the occasion to peruse the record which discloses that there are two different reports of investigation conducted in the crime in question which are part of record of the concerned court below, out of which one report submitted u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C. is against the applicants disclosing commission of offences by them and another report dated 15.6.2019 is of further investigation submitted u/s 173(8) Cr.P.C., which according to the claim of applicants, is in their favour. An extract or a part of the case diary relating to the said report dated 15.6.2019 has been placed before this court by means of supplementary affidavit. Before proceeding further in the matter, it would be appropriate to consider as to what is the position of law with regard to status and scope of reports submitted by the investigating Officer u/s 173(2) and Section 173 (8) of Cr.P.C. In this regard, we may find the procedure provided under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, according to which after completion of regular investigation, if the Investigating Officer comes to the conclusion that certain cognizable offences are made out against some accused persons, he is obliged to prepare a report u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C. and to forward it along with case diary containing the material in support thereof to the concerned Magisterial court having jurisdiction in the matter, upon which the concerned Magisterial court applies its mind and finds out as to whether any offence is made out or not. If the police report so submitted and the material collected by investigation discloses that the offence is made out, the cognizance of such offence is taken u/s 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C. and the proceeding is registered for further course of action. In due course issuance of process follows against the accused persons, who are prima facie found to have committed the offences and who are to be called upon to face the trial. There are other optional modes also available to the concerned Magesterial court while considering report u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C. but those other modes are not relevant in the present controversy and need not be discussed.

10. On the other hand, Section 173(8) Cr.P.C. provides authority to the Investigating Agency to conduct further investigation in any criminal case, as and when such situation arises and to submit report of such further investigation before the concerned court. For ready reference Section-173(8) of Cr.P.C. is quoted herein below :

"173(8)- Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude further investigation in respect of an offence after a report under sub- section (2) has been forwarded to the Magistrate and, where upon such investigation, the officer in charge of the police station obtains further evidence, oral or documentary, he shall forward to the Magistrate a further report or reports regarding such evidence in the form prescribed; and the provisions of sub- sections (2) to (6) shall, as far as may be, apply in relation to such report or reports as they apply in relation to a report forwarded under sub- section (2)."

11. There is no dispute with the position of law that on the strength of Section 173(8) of Cr.P.C., the investigating agency is empowered to conduct further investigation in any criminal case, according to the need thereof and the only rider applicable upon such authority of investigating agency is that the concerned court should be apprised with the requirement of further investigation in criminal case and the Investigating Officer should desirably take permission from the concerned court to conduct further investigation. It is needless to give reference to the case laws in this regard, as this position of law is being consistently followed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as this Court. What is material in this regard is the status of both the reports u/s 173(2) and 173(8) of Cr.P.C. as well as the scope and stage of consideration by the concerned court upon such reports. For this purpose, it would be useful to refer the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Vinay Tyagi Versus Irshad Ali @ Deepak & Ors reported in 2013 (5) SCC 762, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court extensively dealt with the term 'further investigation/reinvestigation/fresh investigation/de-novo investigation' and discussed catena of earlier judgements of Hon'ble Supreme Court. Regarding consideration of further report u/s 173(8) of Cr.P.C., the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as follows :

"41. Having discussed the scope of power of the Magistrate under Section 173 of the Code, now we have to examine the kind of reports that are contemplated under the provisions of the Code and/or as per the judgments of this Court. The first and the foremost document that reaches the jurisdiction of the Magistrate is the First Information Report. Then, upon completion of the investigation, the police are required to file a report in terms of Section 173(2) of the Code. It will be appropriate to term this report as a primary report, as it is the very foundation of the case of the prosecution before the Court. It is the record of the case and the documents annexed thereto, which are considered by the Court and then the Court of the Magistrate is expected to exercise any of the three options afore-noticed. Out of the stated options with the Court, the jurisdiction it would exercise has to be in strict consonance with the settled principles of law. The power of the magistrate to direct "further investigation' is a significant power which has to be exercised sparingly, in exceptional cases and to achieve the ends of justice. To provide fair, proper and unquestionable investigation is the obligation of the investigating agency and the Court in its supervisory capacity is required to ensure the same. Further investigation conducted under the orders of the Court, including that of the Magistrate or by the police of its own accord and, for valid reasons, would lead to the filing of a supplementary report. Such supplementary report shall be dealt with as part of the primary report. This is clear from the fact that the provisions of Sections 173(3) to 173(6) would be applicable to such reports in terms of Section 173(8) of the Code.

42. Both these reports have to be read conjointly and it is the cumulative effect of the reports and the documents annexed thereto to which the Court would be expected to apply its mind to determine whether there exist grounds to presume that the accused has committed the offence. If the answer is in the negative, on the basis of these reports, the Court shall discharge an accused in compliance with the provisions of Section 227 of the Code.

12. In another judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dharmatma Singh Versus Harminder Singh & Ors. Reported in 2011 (6) SCC 102 observations similar to Vinay Tyagi's case (supra) were reiterated, which are being usefully quoted herein below:

"15. A reading of provisions of sub-section (2) of Section 173, Cr.P.C. would show that as soon as the investigation is completed, the officer in charge of the police station is required to forward the police report to the Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence stating inter alia whether an offence appears to have been committed and if so, by whom. Sub-section (8) of Section 173 further provides that where upon further investigation, the officer in charge of the police station obtains further evidence, oral or documentary, he shall also forward to the Magistrate a further report regarding such evidence and the provisions of sub-section (2) of Section 173, Cr.P.C., shall, as far as may be, apply in relation to such report or reports as they apply in relation to a report forwarded under sub-section (2). Thus, the report under sub-section (2) of Section 173 after the initial investigation as well as the further report under sub-section (8) of Section 173 after further investigation constitute "police report" and have to be forwarded to the Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence.

16. It will also be clear from Section 190 (b) of the Cr.P.C. that it is the Magistrate, who has the power to take cognizance of any offence upon a "police report" of such facts which constitute an offence. Thus, when a police report is forwarded to the Magistrate either under sub-section (2) or under sub-section (8) of Section 173, Cr.P.C., it is for the Magistrate to apply his mind to the police report and take a view whether to take cognizance of an offence or not to take cognizance of offence against an accused person.

17. It follows that where the police report forwarded to the Magistrate under Section 173 (2) of the Cr.P.C. states that a person has committed an offence, but after investigation the further report under Section 173 (8) of the Cr.P.C. states that the person has not committed the offence, it is for the Magistrate to form an opinion whether the facts, set out in the two reports, make out an offence committed by the person. This interpretation has given by this Court in Abhinandan Jha & Ors. v. Dinesh Mishra [AIR 1968 SC 117] to the provisions of Section 173 and Section 190 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, which were the same as in the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973.

18. In Abhinandan Jha (supra), para 15 at page 122 of the AIR this Court observed:

"... The police, after such investigation, may submit a charge-sheet, or, again submit a final report, depending upon the further investigation made by them. If ultimately, the Magistrate forms the opinion that the facts, set out in the final report, constitute an offence, he can take cognizance of the offence, under Section 190(1)(b), notwithstanding the contrary opinion of the police, expressed in the final report."

20. In the facts of the present case, the police in its report submitted to the Judicial Magistrate, First Class, Ludhiana, on 02.02.2006 had filed two challans, one against the appellant, his father Mohan Singh and Bhupinder Singh stating that they had committed offences under Sections 452, 323, 326, 506 read with Section 34 of the IPC and the other challan against the respondent Nos. 1 and 2 and some others stating that they had committed offences under Sections 342, 323, 324, 148 IPC.

21. Pursuant to permission granted by the learned Magistrate on 27.07.2006 for further investigation, a further report has been made by the Superintendent of Police, City-II, Ludhiana, stating that respondent no.1 for his self-defence had caused injuries to the appellant and others and hence the cross-case against the respondent no.1 is required to be cancelled. This further report has to be forwarded to the learned Magistrate and as has been held by this Court in Abhinandan Jha (supra) and Mrs. Rupan Deol Bajaj (supra) it was for the learned Magistrate to apply judicial mind to the facts stated in the reports submitted under sub-sections (2) and (8) respectively of Section 173, Cr.P.C., and to form an opinion whether to take cognizance or not to take cognizance against the respondent no.1 after considering the objections, if any, of the complainant, namely, the appellant."

13. Now coming to the factual situation of the present case it appears that it is not a case in which the material collected through further investigation or the report based thereupon u/s 173(8) Cr.P.C. was available before the court below at the time when it took cognizance of the offences on the basis of the charge sheet submitted u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C. earlier. The report u/s 173(8) Cr.P.C. has been admittedly submitted in the court subsequently much later. The Court could have adverted its mind only on the material which was made available before it. If the charge sheet and the case diary contained enough material to justify taking of the cognizance and thereupon summoning the accused, there is absolutely no reason to find fault in the same. The allegations, as have been made against the accused-applicants, have already been set forth earlier in this order and it is not difficult to see that prima-facie offences are well made out against the accused-applicants on the basis of the F.I.R. itself. The act of taking cognizance and summoning the accused upon the material which was furnished before the court does not suffer from any flaw. The submission of the counsel that even if the report of further investigation was submitted at some later point of time subsequently, the court was still obliged to once again sit upon judgement regarding the act of taking cognizance and should have given a relook to its decision regarding the summoning of the accused, does not appear to be a very tenable argument. The statutory course provided in the Criminal Procedure Code has to be followed as has been prescribed. In the circumstances of the case there is hardly any occasion to put the clock back. In fact the Courts dealing with criminal matters have no authority to review or recall the orders of import or substance. It is only Section-362 of Criminal Procedure Code which contemplates such a possibility but the same is confined to a very limited class of circumstances. The act of taking cognizance and summoning the accused and the order in that regard as has been done in the present case does not contain any clerical or arithmetic error on the basis of which the same could have been altered or reviewed. There is sufficient hiatus between the submission of charge sheet u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C. and the subsequent filing of the report regarding further investigation u/s 173(8) Cr.P.C. The stage to frame the charge is yet to be arrived at and the accused shall have all the opportunity of being heard at that stage. The court while deciding upon the point of framing of the charge shall naturally look into the material furnished by prosecution and made available before it which includes the report regarding further investigation u/s 173(8) Cr.P.C. also. Both such reports are now available before the concerned court below and it is needless to observe that the concerned court is obliged to consider both the reports at an appropriate stage of the proceedings of criminal case in question, in accordance with the scheme of Code of Criminal Procedure and there is no reason to apprehend otherwise. It has been observed by Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraph no.42 of its decision given in the case of Vinay Tyagi (supra) that both these reports shall be read conjointly and shall be adverted to by the court and it shall apply its mind to them in order to determine whether there exists grounds to presume that the accused has committed the offence or not. If the Court would find the answer in negative on the basis of the material, it may proceed to discharge the accused in compliance with the provisions of Section-227 of the Code. It shall be for the court below to look into those aspects and to come to its own independent conclusion. As such, the submissions raised by the applicants' counsel seeking the quashing of proceedings as well as the charge sheet in exercise of inherent jurisdiction merely on the ground of filing of a purportedly favourable further report by investigating agency does not appear to be a sound plea so as to be entertained by this Court. The adjudication on the disputed factual aspects and issues involved in the matter falls within the domain of concerned court below, which may properly evaluate the materials available in case diary as well as the outcome of both the reports submitted u/s 173(2) and 173(8) of Cr.P.C. at the stage of framing of the charge. This Court while exercising its inherent jurisdiction does not deem it appropriate to step into the shoes of the trial court and usurp that jurisdiction. It shall be a judicial overreach which this Court does not see any reason to indulge into. This Court also does not want to enter into any detailed discussion about the merits of the case and make observations in that regard, lest the same may go to prejudice either side or may go to adversely prejudice the mind of the lower court this way or that way. Suffice it to observe that so far as the criminal proceedings presently going on against the applicants based upon the charge sheet submitted earlier are concerned, they are just the logical legal sequel which followed the act of taking cognizance of the offence and are consequential in nature following the act of thereafter summoning the accused on the basis of material contained in the case diary which was available at that point of time and are perfectly within the four corners of law and there is no good reason to quash the same at this stage.

14. So far as the submission on behalf of applicants regarding the order dated 06.04.2017 passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Civil Appeal Nos.8814-8816 of 2016 is concerned, the factum of membership of opposite party no.2 in the Association which was party in the Apex Court litigation, has been seriously disputed and it is not born out from the available record of the present case as to whether the opposite party no.2 was actually the party in the application filed by the Association of UG Noida Villa Owners through its President Sumer Sarin in the said civil appeal (Annexure No.7 to the paper-book). Likewise the aspect of sanctioning of lay out by the development authority in favour of Unitech company and further allotment of plots to the Cornoustie Management Pvt. Ltd. company are such factual disputes, which cannot be appreciated by this Court for want of complete record of initial investigation as well as that of further investigation and is an issue which is well within the realm of the trial court to go into.

15. Be that as it may, the rival submissions regarding disputed questions of facts are outside the scope of inherent jurisdiction to be exercised by this Court u/s 482 of Cr.P.C., which is to be used so sparingly only in very appropriate cases. The only legal and procedural question in the present matter was regarding the scope of both the reports u/s 173(2) and 173(8) of Cr.P.C. as well as the stage of its consideration and the power of concerned court below in this regard. The said issue does not need further elaboration in view of law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, as quoted above, according to which it is for the concerned court below to appreciate the same at an appropriate stage of proceedings of criminal case in question. It may not be out of place to mention here at this stage that even in the cases where a final report is submitted in favour of accused at the very outset or the cases where the police may submit a charge sheet and again submit a final report on the basis of further investigation made by it, in all such cases if the Magistrate at the stage of taking cognizance itself forms the opinion on the collective consideration of both the reports that the material available constitutes an offence, he can very well take cognizance of the offence u/s

190(1)(b) Cr.P.C., notwithstanding the contrary opinion of the police expressed in the final report. The law on this point is trite and is no more res integra. The observations made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Abhinandan Jha (supra) have already been quoted in the earlier part of the order and this aspect of law does not need further elaboration and the power of the court below in this regard stands well recognized. The mere filing of a final report or filing of a favourable report to the accused will not obliterate or eradicate the allegations of the F.I.R. or the incriminating material collected in support of it by the Investigating Officer on the basis of which the charge sheet was submitted. It is for the court below to exercise its judicial discretion judiciously in this regard whenever it is called upon to evaluate and appreciate the facts of the case and adjudicate upon the sufficiency or insufficiency of material on the basis of which the cognizance may be taken in a given case or the summoning of the accused may be done or the charges against the accused may be framed in a particular case. The law regarding the required standards of sufficiency of material which may justify the summoning of an accused or the framing of charges in a particular case is also too well settled to be referred to in any great detail and the relevant law as has been laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court and by this Court in this regard has to be kept in perspective at the appropriate stages or at different stages as they may arrive in a given case.

16. In view of aforesaid discussion, the impugned criminal proceedings do not call for any interference by this Court.

17. The applicants must submit to the jurisdiction of the trial court. If they have not sought their bail so far, they may appear before the court below and do the needful in that regard. If an application of seeking bail is duly moved within a period of five weeks from now, the same shall be decided expeditiously in accordance with law by the court concerned. In the aforesaid period or till the date of appearance of the accused in the court below, whichever is earlier, no coercive measures shall be taken or given effect to.

18. For reasons as discussed above, the prayer contained in this application cannot be allowed. The application in that regard therefore stands dismissed.

19. It is made clear that any observations made in the order must not be construed to have any reflection upon the ultimate merits of the case.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. The applicant, by means of this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., has invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this Court with prayer to quash the summoning order dated 24.04.2018, passed by the Civil Judge (J.D.) / Judicial Magistrate, Chandausi, District Sambhal in Complaint Case No. 66 of 2017 (arising out of Case Crime No. 655 of 2016), under Sections 352, 504, 506, 406 I.P.C., Police Station Chandausi, District Sambhal as well as entire proceedings of above mentioned case, pending in the Court of Civil Judge (J.D.) / Judicial Magistrate, Chandausi, District Sambhal.

2. Heard learned counsel for applicant, learned A.G.A. for State and perused the record.

3. Learned counsel for applicant argued that it is a malicious prosecution with false concoction. A case was got registered, in which final report was submitted. Thereafter, protest petition was filed, which was treated as complaint, wherein complainant was examined under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and his witnesses were examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C. Thereafter, summoning order was passed, whereas the facts were not constituting offences, for which applicant was summoned.

4. Learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the aforesaid prayer.

5. From the perusal of first information report, lodged as Case Crime No. 655 of 2016, it is apparent that complainant Sanjeev Kumar Varshneya got this case lodged against Aniruddha Sharma for offence punishable under Sections 352, 504, 506, 406 I.P.C. This was investigated and resulted in submission of final report. Notice was issued to complainant, who appeared and filed protest petition. Trial court treated it as complaint case. Thereafter, complainant was examined under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and his witnesses were examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C. Thereafter, summoning order was passed, against which this proceeding has been filed. The very contention of protest petition has been reiterated by complainant in his statement recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C. This has further been corroborated by testimony of PW-2 and PW-3 examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C. Trial court on the basis of above evidence passed impugned summoning order.

6. This Court in exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is not expected to appreciate and analise factual aspect of case because the same is a question of evidence before trial Court. Whatever is there on record is the basis of summoning of Aniruddha Sharma for offence punishable under Sections 352, 504, 506, 406 I.P.C.

7. Saving of inherent power of High Court, as given under Section 482 Cr.P.C, provides that nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Meaning thereby this inherent power is with High Court (I) to make such order as may be necessary to give effect to any other order under this Code (II) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court (III) or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. But Apex Court in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. LJ 3844 has propounded that "While exercising jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent Hamida v. Rashid, (2008) 1 SCC 474, hon'ble Apex Court propounded that "Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent in hearing those appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which after filed with some oblique motive in order to circumvent the prescribed procedure, or to delay the trial which enable to win over the witness or may disinterested in giving evidence, ultimately resulting in miscarriage of Justice". In again another subsequent Monica Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2008) 8 SCC 781, the Apex Court has propounded "Inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself." While interpreting this jurisdiction of High Court Apex Court in Popular Muthiah v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, (2006) 7 SCC 296 has propounded "High Court can exercise jurisdiction suo motu in the interest of justice. It can do so while exercising other jurisdictions such as appellate or revisional jurisdiction. No formal application for invoking inherent jurisdiction is necessary. Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised in respect of substantive as well as procedural matters. It can as well be exercised in respect of incidental or supplemental power irrespective of nature of proceedings".

8. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court in Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494 has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482 could quash the proceedings but there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

9. Meaning thereby, exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits, propounded as above.

10. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, there seems to be no ground for interfering in the aforesaid case.

11. The application is accordingly rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for applicant and learned A.G.A. for State.

2. This application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed seeking quashing of the entire proceeding including summoning order dated 17.06.2019 in Complaint Case No. 333 of 2019, under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C., Police Station Expressway Noida, District Gautam Budh Nagar, Diwakar Pratap Singh Versus Shipra Singh, pending before Civil Judge (Senior Division) F.T.C. / A.C.J.M., Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. Learned counsel for applicant argued that applicant Shipra Singh is wife of Diwakar Pratap Singh and there occurred an occurrence, for which first information report was got lodged against Diwakar Pratap Singh and his mother, in which charge sheet was filed. As a counter blast, this complaint was filed with malicious prosecution, wherein complainant Diwakar Pratap Singh has given a false statement under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and his two witnesses were of false contention under Section 202 Cr.P.C. The summoning for offence punishable under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. was malicious having no evidence for it. Hence, this application with above prayer.

4. Learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 argued that this complaint was filed prior to registration of first information report lodged against Diwakar Pratap Singh and his mother upon report of Shipra Singh on 08.12.2018. The contention was said in complaint and it was reiterated in statement recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C., which was having full corroboration in the testimony of two witnesses examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C. The trial Magistrate has passed the impugned summoning order well within jurisdiction on the basis of evidence placed on record. Hence, this application be rejected accordingly.

5. Learned A.G.A. vehemently opposed the aforesaid prayer.

6. Having heard learned counsel for both sides and gone through material placed on record, it is apparent that an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved by Diwakar Pratap Singh with contention that he was married with Shipra Singh and a daughter Amishi Singh, aged about eight years, was blessed by this marriage. Marriage was of 15.02.2008. The behaviour of Shipra Singh was torturous towards Diwakar Pratap Singh. She used to abuse very often. He was under wait that things will become normal, but of no avail. Rather she developed illicit relation with a co-worker. Complainant left his home, but she under nefarious design on 24.10.2018 took Rs.45,000/- along with golden and silver ornaments from a Bank locker, being operated jointly. Again on 26.10.2018 cash and jewellery was taken, which was reported to be opened by Shipra Singh on 26.10.2018. Again a threat with abuse was extended through telephonic call on 28.10.2018. Complainant was offensive of future of his daughter, aged about eight years, but Shipra Singh used to beat her very often, which was recorded in C.C.T.V. footage. Shipra Singh hatched conspiracy for killing complainant under assistance of others. A report was made at police station as well as to Senior Superintendent of Police, Gautam Buddh Nagar, but of no avail. Hence, this application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved. It was registered as complaint case, wherein complainant was examined under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and his two witnesses were examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C. The very contention of complaint was reiterated and corroborated in those testimony and after perusal of same learned Magistrate passed impugned summoning order for offence punishable under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C.

7. Previous institution of case by Shipra Singh against Diwakar Pratap Singh and his mother is an evidence of motive or cause either in execution of offence or in defence by either side. The same is a question of evidence and of fact to be seen in trial court. In present case the summoning order is passed on the basis of evidence obtained under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C.

8. Saving of inherent power of High Court, as given under Section 482 Cr.P.C, provides that nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Meaning thereby this inherent power is with High Court (I) to make such order as may be necessary to give effect to any other order under this Code (II) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court (III) or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. But Apex Court in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. LJ 3844 has propounded that "While exercising jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent Hamida v. Rashid, (2008) 1 SCC 474, hon'ble Apex Court propounded that "Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent in hearing those appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which after filed with some oblique motive in order to circumvent the prescribed procedure, or to delay the trial which enable to win over the witness or may disinterested in giving evidence, ultimately resulting in miscarriage of Justice". In again another subsequent Monica Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2008) 8 SCC 781, the Apex Court has propounded "Inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself." While interpreting this jurisdiction of High Court Apex Court in Popular Muthiah v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, (2006) 7 SCC 296 has propounded "High Court can exercise jurisdiction suo motu in the interest of justice. It can do so while exercising other jurisdictions such as appellate or revisional jurisdiction. No formal application for invoking inherent jurisdiction is necessary. Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised in respect of substantive as well as procedural matters. It can as well be exercised in respect of incidental or supplemental power irrespective of nature of proceedings".

9. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court in Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494 has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482 could quash the proceedings but there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

10. In exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C., this Court is not to analise the factual aspect because the same being question of trial and of fact to be seen before trial Court. Hence, in overall appreciation of facts and law, mentioned as above, this application merits its dismissal.

11.The application is accordingly dismissed.

This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by Ram Sahay, Shriram, Nisha Devi, Vandana and Ajay against State of U.P. and Hari Lal Yadav with prayer for quashing entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 4314 of 2019, Harilal Yadav Vs. Ram Sahay and others, under Sections 323, 504, 452, 379 I.P.C., P.S. Saraimeer, district Azamgarh, pending in court of A.C.J.M, Court No. 12, Azamgarh.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. for the State. Perused the records.

3. Learned counsel for applicants argued that it is a false case got registered after lapse of two years for an occurrence for which Case Crime No. 101 of 2015 was got registered on 7.6.2015 for the offences punishable u/s 147, 148, 452, 352, 323, 325, 504 I.P.C. against Harilal, Kalpu Yadav, Shailendra, and three others, wherein investigation resulted in submission of charge sheet and the same is pending. The same occurrence has been complained in the present complaint and general allegations against six accused persons were levelled, but one Ravindra was not summoned and others five applicants have been summoned for the offences punishable u/s 323, 504, 452, 379 I.P.C., whereas this was apparently a counter blast with a view to harass informant and prosecution witnesses of above previously instituted case and those medical documents were of 7.6.2015, whereas medico legal reports of the applicants were of 6.6.2015 i.e. instant medical report. Hence this application be allowed and thereby proceeding of complaint case be quashed.

4. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the application

5. Having heard learned counsel for applicants and learned AGA, it is apparent that the occurrence of 6.6.2015 is undisputed fact. The same occurrence has been complained in the present complaint. Name of accused persons is there in above previously registered F.I.R. Accused persons are complainant in the present case. They too have suffered injuries, which were examined on 7.6.2015. They have moved application before police authority for getting their case registered, but this was not registered. Hence this complaint was filed. The trial Judge has recorded statements of complaint u/s 200 Cr.P.C. as well as of witnesses u/s 202 Cr.P.C. They are in full corroboration with each other having full reiteration of statement of complainant and on the basis of same learned trial Magistrate passed the summoning order. Minute details, being argued, being appreciation of facts and evidence, are not be made in the proceeding u/s 482 Cr.P.C. in exercise of inherent power.

6. Saving of inherent power of High Court, as given under Section 482 Cr.P.C, provides that nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Meaning thereby this inherent power is with High Court (I) to make such order as may be necessary to give effect to any other order under this Code (II) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court (III) or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. But Apex Court in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. LJ 3844 has propounded that "While exercising jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent Hamida v. Rashid, (2008) 1 SCC 474, hon'ble Apex Court propounded that "Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent in hearing those appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which after filed with some oblique motive in order to circumvent the prescribed procedure, or to delay the trial which enable to win over the witness or may disinterested in giving evidence, ultimately resulting in miscarriage of Justice". In again another subsequent Monica Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2008) 8 SCC 781, the Apex Court has propounded "Inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself." While interpreting this jurisdiction of High Court Apex Court in Popular Muthiah v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, (2006) 7 SCC 296 has propounded "High Court can exercise jurisdiction suo motu in the interest of justice. It can do so while exercising other jurisdictions such as appellate or revisional jurisdiction. No formal application for invoking inherent jurisdiction is necessary. Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised in respect of substantive as well as procedural matters. It can as well be exercised in respect of incidental or supplemental power irrespective of nature of proceedings".

7. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court in Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494 has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482 could quash the proceedings but there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

8. Meaning thereby, exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits, propounded as above.

9. Hence, under above facts and circumstances, there is no ground for this application.

10. Accordingly, the application is rejected.

11. However, in case the applicants surrender before before the court concerned within 30 days from today and apply for bail, it will decide their bail application in wake of the law laid down by this Court in the Full Bench decision of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P., 2005 Cri.L.J 755 affirmed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. (2009) 4 SCC 437.

12. For a period of 30 days from today, which shall not be extended further in any case, no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants, in the above mentioned case.

A. Criminal Law -Criminal Procedure Code, 1973, Section 482 – Scope - Where the summoning order is passed on the basis of evidence obtained under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. there was prima-facie sufficient evidence to pass summoning order. No scope for the High Court to analyse meticulously the evidence placed on record. It is the jurisdiction and domain of trial court.

The statement of complainant recorded u/s 200 Cr.P.C. is in full reiteration of the contents of the complaint. The same is corroborated by the statements recorded u/s 202 Cr.P.C. From very perusal of those statements, prima-facie sufficient evidence exists to pass summoning order, as above.

B. Criminal Procedure Code, 1973, Section 482 – Ground for interference - Previous complaint - against fair price shop dealer may be a motive for either side. This court in exercise of inherent jurisdiction u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is not to analyse meticulously the evidence placed on record. Rather that is jurisdiction and domain of trial court.

C. Criminal Procedure Code, 1973, Section 482 – Ground for interference – malicious complain/counterblast-Previous institution of case may be a motive for either side which is a question of evidence and of fact to be seen in trial court. No ground to interfere.

Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. rejected. (E-3)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by applicants Brajesh Kumar Yadav, son of Sarnam Singh Yadav, Sarnam Singh, son of Sarman Yadav and Deepchandra, son of Asha Ram, against State of U.P. and Shambhu Dayal with prayer for quashing entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 59 of 2017, under Sections 392, 452, 504, 506 I.P.C., P.S. Punchh, district Jhansi, pending in court of Special Judge (D.A.A. Act)/ Additional Sessions Judge, Jhansi, as well as summoning order dated 2.8.2019 passed in above mentioned complaint case.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. for the State. Perused the records.

3. Learned counsel for applicants argued that a complaint was made against fair price shop run by complainant- O.P. No. 2, wherein Sub Divisional Magistrate suspended fair price shop of O.P. No. 2. Though, subsequently it was revived and owing to above enmity this false accusation was got lodged against applicants, which was with no truth and learned Trial Judge had summoned applicants for offences, as above. It was mere counter blast by complainant. Hence misuse of process of court. Application be allowed and prayed relief be granted.

4. Learned A.G.A. vehemently opposed the application.

5. Having heard learned counsel for both sides and gone through impugned order as well as material placed on record, it is apparent that a complaint was filed by Shambhu Dayal before court of Special Judge (D.A.A. Act)/ Additional Sessions Judge, Jhansi, as Complaint Case No. 59 of 2017 against Brijesh Kumar Yadav, Sarnam Singh and Deepchandra, for offences punishable u/s 392, 393, 387, 432, 504, 506 I.P.C., P.S. Punchh, District Jhansi, with this contention that complainant Shambhu Dayal is a fair price shop dealer at village Khilli. Brijesh Kumar Yadav, Sarnam Singh and Deepchandra are bullies of society. They have created terror there at, but no one dare to complain against them. They very often lodge complaint against fair price shop dealer, which were found to be false. On 8.8.2017 at 1.30 P.M. when complainant was busy with his business at his fair price shop, those accused Brijesh Kumar Yadav, Sarnam Singh and Deepchandra came there. They did criminal trespass in the shop and asked for two bags of rice and 50 liters of Kerosene oil. This demand could not be fulfilled without ration card and entry of it in the register. They did assault with complainant and abused with derogative language. They abused him by the name of his caste and extended threat of dire consequences and robbed Rs.10,000/- with other Rs.1000/- lying at counter. Persons of Mohalla Rajesh, Santram, Lakshmi, Sushil etc. came there and intervened then the accused persons ran from the spot while extending threat of dire consequences. Matter was tried to be lodged at police station, but they compelled the complainant to compromise and ultimately it was reported to the S.S.P., Jhansi, but was of no avail. Then this complaint was filed, wherein statement of complainant u/s 200 Cr.P.C. and of his witnesses Santram and Lakshmi Prasad were recorded u/s 202 Cr.P.C. The trial court after hearing learned counsel for complainant passed impugned summoning order, wherein applicants Brijesh Kumar Yadav, Sarnam Singh and Deep Chandra were summoned to face trial for offences punishable u/s 392, 452, 504, 506 I.P.C. vide order dated 2.8.2019. The statement of complainant recorded u/s 200 Cr.P.C. is in full reiteration with contention of complaint. The same is with corroboration by statements recorded u/s 202 Cr.P.C. and from very perusal of those statements, there was prima-facie sufficient evidence to pass summoning order, as above. Accordingly, impugned summoning order has been passed. Previous complaint against fair price shop dealer may be a motive for either side, but this court in exercise of inherent jurisdiction u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is not to analyse meticulously the evidence placed on record. Rather that is jurisdiction and domain of trial court.

6. Saving of inherent power of High Court, as given under Section 482 Cr.P.C, provides that nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. But Apex Court in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent Hamida v. B. Criminal Law -Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 – Section 156(3) – Ground - variance in allegations in two applications filed by the same complainant for the same occurrence – It is a question of fact to be seen at the trial. It was not within jurisdiction of revisional court or this court in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction u/s 482 Cr.P.C. to meticulously examine the facts. From the contention made in complaint, there is sufficient accusation for offences on basis of which the applicant has been summoned. (Para 5,8)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by applicant Dr. Jaipal Gupta @ Jai Prakash Gupta against State of U.P. and Dr. Pankaj Sharma with prayer to quash order dated 7.9.2019 passed by Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No. 15, Meerut, in revision and the summoning order dated 30.4.2016 passed by A.C.J.M.-V, Meerut, as well as entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 414 of 2016, Dr. Pankaj Sharma Vs. Dr. J. P. Gupta, under Sections 420, 504, 506 I.P.C., pending in court of A.C.J.M.-V, Meerut.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. representing the State. Perused the records.

3. Learned counsel for applicant argued that for the same occurrence an application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. was filed by complainant and the same was dismissed for want of prosecution. Again, accusation got filed u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C., wherein above fact of previous application was not disclosed and this application was treated as a complaint, wherein statements of complainant recorded u/s 200 Cr.P.C. and of his witnesses u/s 202 Cr.P.C. were at variance with previous statement made in previously instituted application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. and Trial Judge passed summoning order, as above. This was challenged before Court of revision and learned Additional Sessions Judge in the body of order mentioned the objection raised by applicant and the argument advanced by counsel for applicant, but did not give any finding about same and dismissed revision, which was abuse of process of court. Hence this proceeding with above prayer.

4. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the application.

5. Admittedly, previous application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. was dismissed for want of prosecution i.e. it was not decided on merit. The application moved u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. was with prayer for directing Station Officer concerned to register and investigate the case, which remained pending for more than a year and owing to absence of applicant, it was dismissed for want of prosecution. Hence dismisssal of this application was neither on merit nor was at bar for subsequent proceeding. Second application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C., moved with same contention, was treated as a complaint, wherein complainant was examined u/s 200 Cr.P.C., who reiterated his version and this was supported by two witnesses in their statements recorded u/s 202 Cr.P.C. Though there is variance regarding amount and place of its delivery this is the second application with same but delivery under deceit is there in both applications. Hence it is a question of fact to be seen by trial court at the stage of trial, but it was not within jurisdiction of revisional court or before this court in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction u/s 482 Cr.P.C. as meticulous examination of facts, which are question of facts, are to be made by trial court during trial. But from the contention made in complaint, there is sufficient accusation for offences for which summoning order is there. Same is with full reiteration by statements of complainant and his witnesses recorded u/s 200 and 202 Cr.P.C.

6. Saving of inherent power of High Court, as given under Section 482 Cr.P.C, provides that nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Meaning thereby this inherent power is with High Court (I) to make such order as may be necessary to give effect to any other order under this Code (II) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court (III) or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. But Apex Court in State of Andhra Pradesh v. Gaurishetty Mahesh, JT 2010 (6) SC 588: (2010) 6 SCALE 767: 2010 Cr. LJ 3844 has propounded that "While exercising jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable apprehension of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge/Court". In another subsequent Hamida v. Rashid, (2008) 1 SCC 474, hon'ble Apex Court propounded that "Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent in hearing those appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which after filed with some oblique motive in order to circumvent the prescribed procedure, or to delay the trial which enable to win over the witness or may disinterested in giving evidence, ultimately resulting in miscarriage of Justice". In again another subsequent Monica Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2008) 8 SCC 781, the Apex Court has propounded "Inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself." While interpreting this jurisdiction of High Court Apex Court in Popular Muthiah v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, (2006) 7 SCC 296 has propounded "High Court can exercise jurisdiction suo motu in the interest of justice. It can do so while exercising other jurisdictions such as appellate or revisional jurisdiction. No formal application for invoking inherent jurisdiction is necessary. Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised in respect of substantive as well as procedural matters. It can as well be exercised in respect of incidental or supplemental power irrespective of nature of proceedings".

7. Regarding prevention of abuse of process of Court, Apex Court in Dhanlakshmi v. R.Prasana Kumar, (1990) Cr LJ 320 (DB): AIR 1990 SC 494 has propounded "To prevent abuse of the process of the Court, High Court in exercise of its inherent powers under section 482 could quash the proceedings but there would be justification for interference only when the complaint did not disclose any offence or was frivolous vexatious or oppressive" as well as in State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1989) Cr LJ 1005: AIR 1989 SC 1, Apex Court propounded "In exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not".

8. Meaning thereby, exercise of inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is within the limits, propounded as above.

9. Hence, under above facts and circumstances, there is no ground for this application.

10. Accordingly, the application is rejected.

11. However, in case the applicant surrenders before before the court concerned within 30 days from today and applies for bail, it will decide his bail application in wake of the law laid down by this Court in the Full Bench decision of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P., 2005 Cri.L.J 755 affirmed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. (2009) 4 SCC 437.

12. For a period of 30 days from today, which shall not be extended further in any case, no coercive action shall be taken against the applicant, in the above mentioned case.

A. Service Law - Education Service - Appointment/Recruitment - Re-evaluation - The qualifying examination is being conducted for the TET i.e. for seeing whether the person is qualified to become a teacher and thereafter to face examination for recruitment as Teacher. The instant examination pertains to the syllabus of Class 1st to 5th and children have an active and inquisitive mind and, thus, the NCTE as well as the Examination Authority have correctly framed the question having difficulty standard and linkages up to the secondary stage in as much as a child cannot be restricted from asking questions, which may be beyond the syllabus prescribed. (Paras 30, 37)

The questions were asked as per the guidelines issued for conducting the TET examination, therefore, Single Judge committed error of law in holding the questions to be out of syllabus. (Para 32) Single Judge issued mandamus commanding the Secretary, Examination Regulatory Authority to make fresh evaluation of all the answer sheets of the candidates by deleting 14 questions from total questions of the question papers of UPTET Examination 2017. It was pleased that the questions were outside the syllabus, ambiguous, were not clear, were capable of having two or more answers or for that matter, the question was incapable of being answered. It was also pleaded that regulatory authority while setting the question paper was not empowered to reassign the marks when NCTE guidelines had indicated marks to be assigned to respective segments of the question paper. (Paras 11, 22).

C. Service Law - Education Service - Appointment/Recruitment - The Court should not at all re-evaluate or scrutinize the answer sheets of the candidates. It has no exercise in the matter and academic matter are best left open to academics. The Court should presume the correctness of the key answers and proceed on that assumption. In the event of a doubt, the benefit should go to the examination authority rather than to the candidate. (Paras 33 to 35)

It is clear that the authority conducting the examination may permit re-evaluation of an answer sheet or scrutiny of answer sheet as a matter of right only if a statute, rule or regulation governing the examination permits it. The Court may permit re-evaluation or scrutiny only in rare and exceptional cases

D. Service Law - Education Service - Appointment/Recruitment – Challenge to entire examination - Only because some candidates are disappointed the entire examination process does not deserve to be derailed.

Only 3 questions out 150 questions were found doubtful. The method adopted by the examination regulatory authority by granting 3 marks to all the candidates would be fair and should not cause prejudice to any candidate, as the framing of doubtful questions cannot be attributed to the candidates. 2) This intra-Court appeal has been filed challenging the judgment and order dated 06.03.2018 passed by learned Single Judge in Writ Petition No.28222 (S/S) of 2017; Mohd. Rizwan and 103 others Vs. State of U.P. and others, whereby the learned Single Judge issued mandamus commanding the Secretary, Examination Regulatory Authority to make fresh evaluation of all the answer sheets of the candidates by deleting 14 questions as stated in paragraph Nos.85 and 86 of the order from total questions of the question papers and the Secretary, Examination Regulatory Authority was directed to declare the result on the basis of above direction, as expeditiously as possible, preferably, within a period of one month and thereafter, the examination of the post of Assistant Teachers Recruitment Examination, 2018 shall be conducted and it was observed that it is needless to direct that till the completion of aforesaid exercise, the examination of the Assistant Teacher Recruitment Examination, 2018 be postponed for further date.

3) Factual matrix of the case is that a writ petition was filed before the learned Single Judge by the Shikshamitras, who were reverted as Assistant Teachers of primary schools run and managed by the Board of Basic Education, U.P. during the period 19.02.2006. The Shikshamitras were appointed and were imparting education to the children of the State in the primary schools run and managed by the Board of Basic Education.

4) After enforcement of Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009 the National Council for Teacher's Education (NCTE) was declared the academic authority by the Central Government. The NCTE laid down the minimum qualification for a candidate to be appointed as Teacher in Class 1st to Class 8th vide notification issued on 23.08.2010, wherein passing of Teachers Eligibility Test (herein after referred as "TET") to be conducted by the appropriate Government in accordance with the guidelines framed by NCTE was made one of the minimum qualification.

5) Thereafter, NCTE issued detailed guidelines on 11.02.2011 for conducting the TET and structure and contents of examination papers and nature and standard of questions etc. were also provided in the said guideline.

6) The State Government issued a Government Order on 24.12.2014, wherein the detailed guidelines relating to syllabus, structure and contents of examination papers and standard of question etc. were issued.

7) The petitioners, who were Shikshamitras had been given appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher in the primary schools run by Board of Basic Education, therefore, the absorption was nullified by the Full Bench of this Court vide order dated 12.09.2015 in Writ-A No.34833 of 2014; Anand Kumar Yadav and others Vs. Union of India and others. The judgment passed by the Full Bench of this Court was upheld by Hon'ble Supreme Court vide order dated 25.08.2017, however, the Supreme Court directed to the State Government to provide opportunity of participation of two consecutive recruitments in case the Shikshamitras acquire the requisite qualification of TET.

8) In compliance of the judgment and order passed by the Full Bench of this Court as well as affirmed by Hon'ble Supreme Court, the State Government issued direction to the Examination Regulatory Authority to conduct the U.P. TET, 2017 providing certain conditions of relaxation in age and weightage of experience of the post of Shikshamitras upto 25 marks in the recruitment process. In pursuance thereof, the U.P. TET Examination, was held on 15.10.2017, wherein the respondents-writ petitioners appeared.

9) The answer key was issued, to which objections were invited and a final answer key was, thereafter, issued. The candidates appearing in the said examination raised plea of there being incorrect or confusing questions with incorrect or multiple answers by filing Writ Petition No.28222 (S/S) of 2017 on the following relief:

"Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the answer key of UP-TET Examination 2017 (Paper-1) dated 06.11.2017 issued by Examination Controlling Authority, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad for the appointment of teachers for Class I to V.

Issue a wri, order or direction in the nature of mandamus to revise the result and to grant grace marks to the petitioners for the questions which were wrong and which were out of syllabus in the Uttar Pradesh Teacher Eligibility Test 2017 conducted by the respondent no. 3

Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus to direct the respondent authorities for redressing the grievance of the petitioners by appointing the High Level Expert Committee and giving the opportunity of hearing to the petitioners by fixing date and time before declaration of the examination result i.e 30.11.2017.

Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus thereby directing the respondent authorities to delete the questions from the question paper, the questions which were wrong and which were out of syllabus and thereafter declare the result of UP-TET 2017.

Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus to stay the declaration of the examination result UP-TET 2017 which shall be declared on 30.11.2017 by the respondent no. 3 till the redressal of the grievance of the petitioners Issue a writ , order or direction that this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case.

And allow this writ petition with cost."

10) The learned Single Judge decided the issue involved in the writ petition vide impugned judgment and order dated 06.03.2018, against which, Special Appeal No.93 of 2018 was preferred by the respondent-appellants.

11) Before the learned Single Judge, various grounds were taken by the respondent-appellants contending that the questions were ambiguous in as much as the questions were not clear or the questions were capable of having two or more answers or for that matter, the question was incapable of being answered. A plea was also taken that the questions were out side the syllabus and that once the NCTE guidelines had indicated marks to be assigned to respective segments of the question paper, then the regulatory authority while setting the question paper was not empowered to reassign the said marks to other segments of the question paper.

12) Several other special appeal Nos.86 of 2018, 101 of 2018, 107 of 2018 and 119 of 2018 were filed before this Court, wherein, the Division Bench of this Court vide judgment and order dated 17.04.2018 passed the following judgment and order :

"36. Keeping in view the aforesaid discussion and the report received from the subject experts dated 11.04.2018, Special Appeal No. 93 of 2018 is partly allowed to the following extent:

(i) The 10 questions found by the learned Single Judge to be incorrect and were directed to be deleted, will stand modified to the extent that out of those 10 questions only three questions are found to be incorrect based upon the report of the panel of experts and we direct that the Examination Regulatory Authority shall award grace marks for those three questions containing incorrect answer in the answer key.

(ii) The 4 questions which were found out of syllabus by the learned Single Judge are held to be within syllabus and to that extent the direction issued for deleting those 4 questions will stand modified.

37. In Special Appeal No.101 of 2018, 6 questions which were alleged to be containing wrong answers or wrongly framed, were sent to the experts and their answers have been found to be matching with the answers contained in the final answer key of the Examination Regulatory Authority, as such the said appeal is dismissed.

38. In Special Appeal No.86 of 2018, the relief relating to 4 additional questions being wrongly framed or containing incorrect answers stands rejected in view of the fact that no objections were taken with regard to those 4 questions before the Examination Regulatory Authority at the time when opportunity was given after the declaration of first answer key and further the 5 questions being alleged to be out of syllabus also does not find merit and as such the said appeal is dismissed. Further relief in the said appeal claimed with regard to improper layout of the question paper being not in conformity to the Government Order dated 24.12.2014 and with regard to comprehension also does not find any merit and is rejected.

39. Special Appeal No.107 of 2018 stands disposed of in view of the fact that we have awarded grace marks instead of deleting the questions in view of the relief claimed in the said special appeal.

40. No one has pressed Special Appeal No.119 of 2018 although hearing continued for a good number of days, as such we dismiss this appeal for want of prosecution. However, we have dealt with all the objections raised regarding questions containing wrong answers, questions themselves are wrong, question being out of syllabus and awarding of grace mark. As such said appeal does not require any further consideration and the same is dismissed. "

13) The judgment and order passed by the Division Bench in the aforesaid special appeals was subject matter of challenge before the Hon'ble Supreme Court by the petitioners of Writ Petition No.28222 (S/S) of 2017 in Civil Appeal No.10876 of 2018, wherein a judgment and order was passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court on 26.10.2018, which is being quoted below:

"Leave granted.

We have heard learned counsel for the parties.

The appellants before us filed a writ petition which was allowed bythe learend Single Judge vide judgment and order dated 06.03.2018.

Feeling aggrieved by the judgment and order passed by the learned Single Judge, the State of U.P. preferred an appeal only in one of the writ petitioners out of a batch of writ petitions.

In the appeal, the State of U.P. did not make the present appellants as respondents although they were vitally affected having succeeded before the learned Single Judge. Despite this, the matter was heard by the Division Bench of the High Court in the absence of the appellants. Vide judgment and order dated 17.04.2018, the order passed by the learned Single Judge was partly set aside.

Since the appellants were vitally affected in the matter, they should have been made parties in the appeal before the Division Bench. In any event, the appellants were entitled to be heard by the Division Bench having succeeded before the learned Single Judge.

Under these circumstances, we set aside the impugned judgment and order passed by the High Court and remand the matter to the Division Bench of the High Court for reconsideration on merits. The appellants will be made party - respondents in the High Court.

Any appointment (s) made will be subject to the outcome of the decision rendered by the Division Bench of the High Court.

The civil appeal stand disposed of."

14) It is, however, made clear that the civil appeal was filed before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in one of the writ petition out of batch of writ petitions.

15) Hon'ble Supreme Court set aside the judgment and order passed by the Division Bench of this Court in Civil Appeal No.10876 of 2018 and remanded the matter to the Division Bench of the High Court for reconsideration on merits by impleading the respondents-appellants before the Hon'ble Supreme Court as respondents with the further rider that any appointment shall be subject to outcome of the decision rendered by the Division Bench of the High Court and disposed of the appeal.

16) In compliance of the order passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, the respondents-appellants were impleaded as respondent Nos.106 to 132 in the appeal and the appeal was heard on merits.

17) Learned Advocate General placed before this Court certain material

18) In the light of the provisions referred herein above, learned Advocate General produced the syllabus introduced from Class 1st to Class 12th and submitted that the questions of the TET are not out of syllabus. The questions were within the syllabus as prescribed under the guidelines. Reference may be made regarding question Nos.121, 133, 140 and 150, from the syllabus introduced by the NCERT from class 1st to secondary level, which is as under:

19) In view of the aforesaid, his submission is that the learned Single Judge holding the question Nos.121, 133, 140 and 150 to be out of syllabus is erroneous in nature and without taking into consideration the material brought before learned Single Judge at the time of submission made in the writ petition.

20) His next submission is that the learned Single Judge has also erred in law in passing the judgment and order holding himself to be expert on the subject matter ignoring the judgment passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ran Vijay Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others; 2018 (2) SCC 357.

21) Per contra, Sri Sandeep Dixit, learned Senior Advocate for the respondents submitted that the learned Single Judge has committed no error in law in passing the judgment and order dated 06.03.2018. He further submitted that question Nos.121, 133, 140 and 150 cannot be questioned from the syllabus of Environmental Studies and on the basis of information received from the National Council for Education Research and Training (NCERT), he submitted that question Nos.121, 1331, 140 and 150 may be part of the Political Science, therefore, his submission is that the argument advanced by learned Advocate General is not acceptable on the point addressed by him.

22) Sri Sandeep Dixit, learned Senior Advocate for the respondents further submitted that in accordance with the provisions of sub Section (1) of Section 23 of Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009, the NCTE has laid down minimum qualification for a person to be eligible for appointment as teacher in Class 1st to Class 8th.

23) He further submitted that procedure for selection of Assistant Teachers in primary schools is regulated by the U.P. Basic Education (Teachers) Service Rules, 1981 and vide 20th amendment dated 09.11.2017 in Rule 8 along with TET, Assistant Teachers Recruitment Examination has been added. In support of his submission, he placed reliance upon certain judgments, which are as under:

a) Bhanu Pratap Singh Vs. State of Uttarakhand and others; Special Appeal No.886 of 2019 decided on 27.09.2019.

b) Richal and others Vs. Rajasthan Service Commission and others; (2018) 8 SCC 81.

24) We have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and the record placed along with the appeal, counter affidavit and supplementary counter affidavit in as much as the judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the parties and the material placed by learned Advocate General and Sri Sandeep Dixit, learned Senior Advocate and the guidelines issued by NCERT showing the questions to be of political science.

25) In regard to the submission of learned counsel for the respondents that environmental studies was limited syallabus confined to family and friends, food, shelter, water, travel, things. Questions pertaining to adoption of National Anthem by the Constitution Assembly, the number of permanent members of UN Security Council, Fundamental duties etc. would not fall in the syllabus of Environmental Studies, we have considered the material and guidelines placed before this Court.

26) On its perusal, it is established that the questions fall in part V pertaining to paper of environmental studies. From perusal of the same, it is also reflected that the test for first paper will be based on topics of the prescribed syllabus for Class 1st to Class 5th, but their difficulty standard and linkages up to secondary stage. On examination of the syllabus produced we found that these questions are of Environmental Studies, thus, the submission advanced by learned counsel for the respondents and the finding returned by learned Single Judge that these questions are out of syllabus are erroneous in nature and are not acceptable in law.

27) On perusal, we find and what clearly comes out is that the prescribed book for the syllabus of "पर्यावरण अध्ययनष includes "विज्ञान और समाजिक विज्ञान की वियाप्ती और संबंध" for which the book prescribed is "हमारा परिवेश". In case the difficulty level up to the secondary level is seen, then it clearly comes out that answers pertaining to National Anthem, Security Council, International Court of Justice and Fundamental Duties i.e those four questions which were held to be outside the syllabus are all questions for which the difficulty standard and linkages can easily be ascertained and seen up to the secondary stage from the books themselves.

28) Keeping this view point into consideration and in order to have a broader perspective, this Court has gone through the definition of "हमारा परिवेश" the prescribed book for Class-Vth. As per dictionary meaning the word "परिवेश translates to "Environment" or "Surroundings" as per Google. The meaning of the word " परिवेशण" as per Oxford Hindi-English Dictionary, is " Surrounding; Enclosing". The New Lexicon Webseter's Dictionary defines Environment as " Surroundings". Likewise the Illustrated Oxford Dictionary defines the word Environment as " The totality of the physical conditions on the Earth or a part of it". As per the source-:
http://mhrd.gov.in/sites/upload_files/mhrd /files/Learning_outcomesPdf Pages-88,86,97,98,99, uploaded by NCERT the learning outcomes in Environmental Studies at the primary stage has been introduced for the purpose exposing children to the real situations in their surrounding to help them connect, be aware of, appreciate and be sensitised towards the prevailing environmental issues (natural, physical, social and cultural). It also indicates that the Environmental Studies not only helps children to get acquainted with their own environment but it also strengthens their bond with it.

29) Further, as the issue of certain questions being out of syllabus has been raised that once the paper was of Environmental Studies, anything not related to the Environment Studies in its strict sense could not have been asked by the paper setter.

30) Here, we have to see that the qualifying examination is being conducted for the Teacher Eligibility Test (TET) i.e for seeing whether the person is qualified to become a teacher and thereafter to face examination for recruitment as Teacher. The instant examination pertains to the syllabus of Class Ist to Vth and children have an active and inquisitive mind and, thus, in our opinion the NCTE as well as the Examination Authority have correctly framed the question having difficulty standard and linkages up to the secondary stage in as much as a child cannot be restricted from asking questions, which may be beyond the syllabus prescribed.

31) The material produced by Sri Sandeep Dixit, learned Senior Advocate in the shape of NCERT guidelines reflects that these questions belong to Political Science is not disputed. It is indicated in the syllabus of Class 1st to Class 5th, and permitted to be considered upon secondary level by adding it in the syllabus with the specific stipulation in the guidelines that the question can be asked from the environmental studies.

32) Upon careful examination of the prescribed books from class 1st to secondary level, it is evident that the questions were asked as per guidelines issued for conducting the TET examination, therefore, we are of the view that learned Single Judge has committed manifest error of law in holding the questions to be out of syllabus.

33) Learned Advocate General assailing the judgment of the learned Single Judge placed heavy reliance upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ran Vijay Singh (Supra) and submitted that learned Single Judge has committed patent error of law acting himself to be subject expert. It has been also submitted that learned Single Judge did not himself record any independent finding about any fault or block in the questions based on material placed and had proceeded to hold the questions to be incorrect or out of syllabus on the basis of submission advanced by learned Counsel for the petitioners. Relevant portion of the judgment relied upon by learned Advocate General in the case of Ran Vijay Singh (Supra) is being quoted herein below:

"29. In appeal, this Court set aside the decision of the High Court and reiterating the view already expressed by this Court from time to time and allowing the appeal of the CBSE it was held: (SCC p. 526, paras 9-11)

"9. We find that a three-Judge Bench of this Court in Pramod Kumar Srivastava v. Bihar Public Service Commission has clearly held relying on Maharashtra State Board of Secondary and Higher Secondary Education v. Paritosh Bhupeshkumar Sheth that in the absence of any provision for the re-evaluation of answer books in the relevant rules, no candidate in an examination has any right to claim or ask for re-evaluation of his marks. The decision in Pramod Kumar Srivastava v. Bihar Public Service Commission was followed by another three-Judge Bench of this Court in Board of Secondary Education v. Pravas Ranjan Panda in which the direction of the High Court for re- evaluation of answer books of all the examinees securing 90% or above marks was held to be unsustainable in law because the regulations of the Board of Secondary Education, Orissa, which conducted the examination, did not make any provision for re- evaluation of answer books in the rules.

10. In the present case, the bye-laws of the All India Pre-Medical/Pre-Dental Entrance Examination, 2007 conducted by the CBSE did not provide for re-examination or re-evaluation of answer sheets. Hence, the appellants could not have allowed such re-examination or re-evaluation on the representation of Respondent 1 and accordingly rejected the representation of Respondent 1 for re-examination/re-evaluation of her answer sheets.....

11. In our considered opinion, neither the learned Single Judge nor the Division Bench of the High Court could have substituted his/its own views for that of the examiners and awarded two additional marks to Respondent 1 for the two answers in exercise of powers of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution as these are purely academic matters. ....."

30. The law on the subject is therefore, quite clear and we only propose to highlight a few significant conclusions. They are:

30.1. If a statute, Rule or Regulation governing an examination permits the re-evaluation of an answer sheet or scrutiny of an answer sheet as a matter of right, then the authority conducting the examination may permit it;

30.2. If a statute, Rule or Regulation governing an examination does not permit re-evaluation or scrutiny of an answer sheet (as distinct from prohibiting it) then the Court may permit re-evaluation or scrutiny only if it is demonstrated very clearly, without any "inferential process of reasoning or by a process of rationalisation" and only in rare or exceptional cases that a material error has been committed;

30.3. The Court should not at all re-evaluate or scrutinize the answer sheets of a candidate - it has no expertise in the matter and academic matters are best left to academics;

30.4. The Court should presume the correctness of the key answers and proceed on that assumption; and

*30.5. In the event of a d*oubt, the benefit should go to the examination authority rather than to the candidate. "

34) On perusal of the paragraphs referred herein above, it is clear that if a statute, rule or regulation governing the examination permits the re-evaluation of an answer sheet or scrutiny of answer sheet as a matter of right, then the authority conducting the examination may permit it, if statute, rule or regulation governing the examination does not permit re-evaluation or scrutiny of an answer sheet, then the Court may permit re-evaluation or scrutiny only if it is demonstrated very clearly without any inferential process of reasoning or by a process of rationalization and only in rare and exceptional cases that material error has been committed.

35) The Court should not at all re-evaluate or scrutinize the answer sheets of the candidates it has no exercise in the matter and academic matter are best left open to academics. The Court should presume the correctness of key answers and proceed on that assumption. In the event of a doubt, the benefit should go to the examination authority rather than to the candidate.

36) It has further been reflected that sympathy or compassion does not play any role in the matter of directing or not directing re-evaluation of an answer sheet. Only because some candidates are disappointed or dis-satisfied or perceived, some injustice having been caused to them, the entire examination process does not deserve to be derailed. It has also been recorded that inference by the Courts in the result of examination, the examination exercise concludes with an air of uncertainty.

37) Once a Teacher is recruited for the purpose of teaching, it is expected that he would be having a wider perspective so far as the subject being taught is concerned and obviously the teacher cannot be allowed to put down or restrict the questioning of a child, which is beyond syllabus.

38) Sri Sandeep Dixit, learned Senior Advocate for the respondents submitted that primafacie learned Single Judge found that there are discrepancies in evaluation of answer sheets and there are two or three answers of the correct answers. In support of submission advanced and to justify the order passed by learned Single Judge, he placed reliance upon following judgments:

a) Bhanu Pratap Singh Vs. State of Uttarakhand and others (Supra):

"9. In an intra-court appeal, the Division Bench exercises the very same jurisdiction which the learned Single Judge exercises under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. As the learned Single Judge is not a court subordinate, interference by a Division Bench, in an intra-court appeal, would be justified only if the order under appeal suffers from a patent illegality. Even if two views are possible, and the view taken by the learned Single Judge is a possible view, the Division Bench would still not intervene, even if it is satisfied that the other view, canvassed before it by the appellant, is more attractive. It is only if the view taken by the learned Single Judge is not even a possible view, or it suffers from a patent illegality, would interference be justified. It is evident from a bare reading of the Writ affidavit that the order of regularization dated 31.05.2012 has been subjected to challenge after more than seven years in the year 2019. It cannot, therefore, be said that the learned Single Judge has committed a patent illegality in non-suiting the appellant-writ petitioner on the ground of delay and laches."

b) Richal and others Vs. Rajasthan Service Commission and others (Supra):

"20.Learned counsel for the appellants have also pointed out several other questions in paper No.1 which according to the learned counsel for the appellants have not been correctly answered by the Expert Committee. We have considered few more questions as pointed out and perused the answers given by the Expert Committee and we are of the view that no error can be found with the answers of the Expert Committee with regard to three more questions which have been pointed out before us. The Expert Committee, constituted to validation of answer key, has gone through every objection raised by the appellants and has satisfactorily answered the same. The Commission has also accepted the Report of the Expert Committee and has proceeded to revised the result of 311 appellants before us. We, thus, are of the view that Report of the Expert Committee which has been accepted by the Commission need to be implemented.

21. One of the submissions raised by the appellants is that marks of deleted questions ought not to have been redistributed in other questions. It is submitted that either all the candidates should have been given equal marks for all the deleted questions or marks ought to have been given only to those candidates who attempted those questions.

22. The questions having been deleted from the answers, the question paper has to be treated as containing the question less the deleted questions. Redistribution of marks with regard to deleted questions cannot be said to be arbitrary or irrational. The Commission has adopted a uniform method to deal with all the candidates looking to the number of the candidates. We are of the view that all the candidates have been benefited by the redistributed of marks in accordance with the number of correct answers which have been given by them. We, thus, do not find any fault with redistribution of marks of the deleted marks. The High Court has rightly approved the said methodology. "

40) A report of the subject experts was placed before the earlier Division Bench, wherein vide order dated 11.04.2018, this Court has examined the report in regard to 16 questions referred to the subject experts. Out of 16 questions, 3 questions were having wrong answers, as per key answers indicated by the regulatory authority and on the assurance of learned Advocate General, grace marks of question Nos.16, 18 and 131 were given on the agreement with the learned counsel for the parties.

41) In regard to the questions, which were directed to be examined by subject experts under the order of this Court after the report submitted is on record. We have perused the same, which reflects that only three questions out of total 150 questions were found doubtful. Consequently, the method adopted by the examination regulatory authority by granting three marks to all the candidates would be fair and should not cause prejudice to any candidate, as the framing of doubtful questions cannot be attributed to the candidates. Moreover, the TET examination being a qualifying examination, in case more number of candidates qualify, the same would certainly result in increasing the level of competitiveness rom amongst the candidates appearing for the examination which would ultimately result in the best amongst the best being selected in order to teach the young and impressionable minds of children.

42) We also perused the report submitted by the subject experts on 11.04.2018, which reveals that three questions were found to be doubtful having different answers, therefore, we are with the agreement of the report submitted by the subject experts being based on concensus of the learned advocates appearing for the parties.

43) In view of the above, the special appeal is liable to be allowed.

44) Accordingly, the judgment and order passed by learned Single Judge dated 06.03.2018 is hereby set aside. The special appeal succeeds and is allowed.

45) However, the Examination Regulatory Authority is directed to treat four questions to be within the syllabus and award marks accordingly.

46) It is further directed to award marks against 13 questions treating to have correct answers and grace marks for three questions containing incorrect answers in the answer key.

47) Accordingly, the Secretary, Examination Regulatory Authority is directed to declare the result within a period of two months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order and to conduct the Assistant Teachers Recruitment Examination within a period of two months, thereafter.

Present petition challenges orders dated 07.03.2018 and 25.05.2012, passed by District Magistrate, Ballia and Up-Ziladhikari, Ballia respectively.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vineet Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. Petitioner came to be appointed temporary Seasonal Collection Amin on 7 February 1978, in pay scale 200-320 and thereafter, was granted regular pay scale of Collection Amin from 1982, until his retirement on attaining the age of superannuation on 31 July 2010. Petitioner was granted increments, bonus, leave encashment and income tax was regularly deducted from his salary. The pay scale was revised from time to time. During service, petitioner filed several petitions seeking regularization under 35% quota provided under the Uttar Pradesh Collection Amins Service Rules, 1974 (for short "the Rules 1974"). The petition being Writ- A No.20531 of 2010 came to be disposed of on 24 November 2014, directing the Collector, Ballia, to consider the claim of the petitioner for regularization on the post of Collection Amin under the Rules, 1974. The District Magistrate, Ballia, vide order dated 4 April 2015, rejected the claim of the petitioner on the ground that he was not found suitable. The petitioner immediately after retirement filed a petition being Writ-A No.75928 of 2011, claiming pension alongwith interest. The petition came to be disposed of on 27 November 2017, directing the District Magistrate, Ballia, to consider the claim of the petitioner for post retiral dues including pension.

3. The petition assailing the order dated 4 April 2015, passed by the District Magistrate, Ballia, rejecting the claim of the petitioner for regularization and the petition being Writ-A No.31488 of 2015, came to be disposed of in terms of the aforesaid order dated 27 November 2017. Pursuant to the directions of this Court, petitioner submitted a comprehensive representation for arrears of pension, retiral dues and assailed the order rejecting the claim of the petitioner for regularization.

4. By the impugned order dated 7 march 2018, the District Magistrate, Ballia, declined to grant post retiral benefits, as well as, pension on the ground that petitioner is not entitled under the Rules, 1974, for the pensionery benefits after retirement from service.

5. It is urged that by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner came to be appointed in 1978 and retired on 31 July 2010, having rendered service for three decades as temporary employee appointed against a post, therefore, is entitled to pension.

6. The Division Bench of this Court in Hari Shankar Asopa Versus State of U.P. and another1, was considering as to whether a temporary government servant appointed against substantive post and continued as lecturer, reader and professor of surgery is entitled to retiring pension upon seeking to retire voluntarily. The Court upon considering the Articles 465 and 465A of the Civil Service Regulations read with Financial Hand Book Volume-II Part 2 to 4 made the following observation:

"16. The requirement of employment being substantive and permanent, which is one of the three basis constituents of "qualifying service', envisaged in Articles 465 and 465-A has ceased to be sine qua non for earning a retiring pension by service under the Government of Uttar Pradesh after 7th June, 1975 with effect from which date the Uttar Pradesh Fundamental Rule 56 (amendment and Validation) Act, 1975 U.P. Act No. 24 of 1975), amending Rule 56 of the Rules and rescinding Articles 465 and 465-A of the Regulations, has been enforced. Now the source for attaining the right to retiring pension in R. 56.....

Clause (e) of Rule 56 unequivocally recognises, declares and guarantees retiring pension to every Government servant who retires on attaining the age of superannuation or who is prematurely retired or who retires voluntarily. To be precise, every Government servant (whether permanent or temporary) who retires under Cl. (a) or Cl. (b). or who is required to retire, or who is allowed to. Retire under Cl. (c) of R. 56, becomes entitled for a retiring pension, provided, of course, the first and third conditions stipulated in Article 361 of the Regulations are satisfied."

7. The Court accordingly held that person appointed temporarily against a substantive vacancy is entitled to retiring pension in view of Rule 56 of the Fundamental Rules.

8. In Shakuntala @ Brahmo Devi (Smt.) Versus Director of Pension2, the learned Single Judge of this Court was called upon to consider whether a temporary government servant rendering 34 years of service upon being compulsory retired is entitled to pensionary benefit. While deciding the issue the Government Order dated 1 July 1989, provided that government servants not rendering ten years of regular service are not entitled for pensionary benefits. The Court taking note of the provisions of Articles 361, 424, 465 of the Civil Service Regulations and Fundamental Rule 56 observed as follows:

"10.....By Government order dated 1.7.1989, it was provided that temporary Government servants who have rendered ten years regular service are also entitled for the retirement benefits. The aforesaid Government order was issued with intent to extend the pensionary benefits to temporary Government servants, which is clear from the first paragraph of the Government order. Paragraph 2 of the Government order further provides that those temporary Government servants who have completed minimum ten years regular service on the date of retirement/superannuation or who have been declared invalid by the appointing authority will be entitled to the superannuation/invalid pension, gratuity, family pension as admissible to a permanent employee. Paragraph 3 further provides that this provision will also be applicable in those cases where permission has been granted for voluntary retirement in accordance with the fundamental Rule 56. The Government order does not specifically provide that the persons who are compulsorily retired will not be given the benefit.....

11..... Thus, the intendment of Rule 56 (e) is to provide retirement pension to every Government servant who retires or is required to retire under Rule 56. Thus the intendment of statutory Rule 56 (e) is to extend benefit of retiring pension to both category of persons, i.e., persons compulsory retired or persons voluntarily retired. From the above intendment of rule, it is clear that no distinction or discrimination has been maintained with regard to payment of retiring pension to persons voluntarily retired or compulsorily retired. Thus, by Government order dated 1.7.1989 the temporary Government servant compulsorily retired cannot be excluded from benefits of retiring pension. When the statutory Rule, i.e., 56 (e) does not maintain any distinction with regard to payment of retiring pension to persons compulsorily retired and voluntarily retired, no such classification can be created by a Government order, which is an executive order. The object of the Government order as noted above was to extend pensionary benefits to temporary Government servants who have rendered ten years regular service. Thus, the persons compulsorily retired cannot be excluded from the pensionary benefits and if it is accepted that the Government order dated 1.7.1989 creates such classification, then the said classification will be arbitrary and unreasonable. It is thus held that the benefit of Government order dated 1.7.1989, is also available to the temporary Government servants who are compulsorily retired. There is no rational basis for any such classification nor there can be any valid object for such classification."

9. The Court upon perusal of the Government order dated 1 July 1989 was of the opinion that the Government order refers to "regular service" and not "substantive service". The Court explained what was meant of regular service. Relevant portion of the order reads thus:

*"12.....The words nl o"kZ dh fu;fer lsok iw.kZ dj yh gks*A used in the Government order dated 1.7.1989, means completion of ten years regular service. Words "regular service" has not been defined in the Government order. From a reading of the Government order, it is clear that the word "ten years regular service" has been referred to the service rendered and not to the status of employee, an employee substantively appointed and permanent is automatically entitled for pension. The Government order dated 1.7.1989 does not contemplate ten years substantive service. The word "regular service" used in the Government order is not anonymous to substantive service. Admittedly, the benefit by Government order is to be extended to temporary Government servants. The temporary Government servant cannot be said to have substantive or regular service. Thus, the word "regular service" used in the Government order dated 1.7.1989 has not been used as specifying the capacity or status of its holder rather. The word "regular service" has been used to denote and specify the nature of service rendered. The emphasis is that service should be "regular". While defining the word 'regular', the Apex Court in Mrs. Raj Kanta v. Financial Commissioner, Punjab and another, AIR 198O SC 1464, has held in paragraph 10 as under :*

"To begin with, the word "regular" is derived from the word "regula" which means 'rule' and its first and legitimate signification, according to Webster, is conformable to a rule, or agreeable to an established rule, law, or principle, to a prescribed mode. In Words and Phrases (Vol. 36A P. 241) the word "regular" has been defined as 'steady or uniform in course, practice or occurrence, etc., and implies conformity to a rule, standard, or pattern'. It is further stated in the said Book that 'regular' means steady or uniform in course, practice, or occurrence, not subject to unexplained or irrational variation. The word 'regular' means in a regular manner, methodically, in due order. Similarly, Webster's New World "Dictionary defines 'regular' as 'consistent or habitual in action', not changing, uniform, conforming to a standard or to a generally accepted rule or mode of conduct'."

13. From the above passage of the Apex Court's judgment, it is clear that service of a temporary employee should be in regular manner, methodically, in due order.

14. Government order dated 1.7.1989 meant ten years of temporary Government servant should be regular in nature meaning thereby that if the temporary Government servant has performed his duties irregularly, i.e, with gaps of years, his service may not be treated to be regular. ....."

10. The decision was considered by the subsequent Division Bench in Board of Revenue and others Versus Prasidh Narain Upadhyay3. The issue before the Court was whether a seasonal collection peon subsequently confirmed is entitled to pension on rendering 36 years of the continuous service. The plea of the State-respondent that since the petitioner therein had not completed 10 years of substantive service after confirmation is not entitled to pension was rejected.

11. In Yashwant Hari Katakkar v. Union of India and ors.4, it was held that an employee who has served more than 20 years is entitled to pension and denial of retiring pension to the petitioner on the ground of not being permanent on any post clearly is violative of Clause (e) of Fundamental Rules, 56. The department cannot keep a person temporary or on daily wages indefinitely.

12. In A.P. Srivastava v. Union of India and Ors.5, the Supreme Court has clearly taken a view that in case of a temporary employee who has rendered 20 years of service is entitled to pension. In the expression 'substantive capacity' the emphasis imparted by the adjective 'substantive' is that a thing is substantive if it is essential part of the constituent or relating to what is essential. Therefore, when a post is vacant, however, designated in officilase, the capacity in which the person holds the post has to be ascertained by the State. The substantive capacity refers to capacity in which person holds the post and not necessarily to the nature and character of the post. Thus, a person is said to hold a post in a substantive capacity when he holds it for an indefinite period especially for a long duration in contradistinction to a person who holds it for a definite or a temporary period or holds it on probation subject to confirmation. ((Refer Ram Pratap V. State of U.P.6, Babu Singh V. State of U.P.7, Kedar Ram-I v. State of U.P.8, Ram Sajiwan Maurya v. State of U.P. and others9, Kanti Devi v. State of U.P.10, Kishan Singh v. State of U.P.11, Awadh Bihari Shukla v. State of U.P.12)

13. The Division Bench of this Court in State of U.P. and others v. Mahendra Chaubey13, allowed the claim of pension of a seasonal collection amin whose temporary service was followed by substantive appointment despite the petitioner therein having not rendered 10 years substantive service after regularization.

14. The principle that emerges from the spectrum of decisions is that a temporary employee appointed on the regular establishment of the Government is entitled to pension under Fundamental Rule 56.

15. A three Judge Bench of the Supreme Court in Prem Singh vs. State of Uttar Pradesh14 was considering the question, as to whether, Rule 3(8) of the U.P. Retirement Benefits Rules, 196115 and Regulation 370 of the Civil Services Regulation of Uttar Pradesh should be struck down having regard to the fact that the Supreme Court had upheld the pari materia provision enacted in the State of Punjab which excluded computation of the period of work-charged services from qualifying service for pension.

16. The appellant before the Supreme Court was a work-charged employee having put in more than three decades of service, pension was declined as the appellant had not put in 10 years of regular service after regularisation. The question posed was whether after regularization employees are entitled to count their past service. The Court made the following observations:

"29. We are not impressed by the aforesaid submissions. The appointment of the work-charged employee in question had been made on monthly salary and they were required to cross the efficiency bar also. How their services are qualitatively different from regular employees? No material indicating qualitative difference has been pointed out except making bald statement. The appointment was not made for a particular project which is the basic concept of the work charged employees. Rather, the very concept of work-charged employment has been misused by offering the employment on exploitative terms for the work which is regular and perennial in nature. Payment used to be made monthly but the appointment was made in the pay scale of Rs.200-320. Initially, he was appointed in the year 1978 on a fixed monthly salary of Rs.205 per month. They were allowed to cross efficiency bar also as the benefit of pay scale was granted to them during the period they served as work-charged employees they served for three to four decades and later on services have been regularized time to time by different orders*. However, the services of some of the appellants in few petitions/appeals have not been regularized even though they had served for several decades and ultimately reached the age of superannuation.*

30. In the aforesaid facts and circumstances, it was unfair on the part of the State Government and its officials to take work from the employees on the work-charged basis. They ought to have resorted to an appointment on regular basis. The taking of work on the work-charged basis for long amounts to adopting the exploitative device. Later on, though their services have been regularized. However, the period spent by them in the work-charged establishment has not been counted towards the qualifying service. Thus, they have not only been deprived of their due emoluments during the period they served on less salary in work charged establishment but have also been deprived of counting of the period for pensionary benefits as if no services had been rendered by them. The State has been benefitted by the services rendered by them in the heydays of their life on less salary in work- charged establishment.

31. In view of the note appended to Rule 3(8) of the 1961 Rules, there is a provision to count service spent on work charged, contingencies or non pensionable service, in case, a person has rendered such service in a given between period of two temporary appointments in the pensionable establishment or has rendered such service in the interregnum two periods of temporary and permanent employment. The work-charged service can be counted as qualifying service for pension in the aforesaid exigencies.

32. The question arises whether the imposition of rider that such service to be counted has to be rendered in-between two spells of temporary or temporary and permanent service is legal and proper. We find that once regularization had been made on vacant posts, though the employee had not served prior to that on temporary basis, considering the nature of appointment, though it was not a regular appointment it was made on monthly salary and thereafter in the pay scale of work-charged establishment the efficiency bar was permitted to be crossed. It would be highly discriminatory and irrational because of the rider contained in Note to Rule 3(8) of 1961 Rules, not to count such service particularly, when it can be counted, in case such service is sandwiched between two temporary or in-between temporary and permanent services. There is no rhyme or reason not to count the service of work-charged period in case it has been rendered before regularisation. In our opinion, an impermissible classification has been made under Rule 3(8). It would be highly unjust, impermissible and irrational to deprive such employees benefit of the qualifying service. Service of work-charged period remains the same for all the employees, once it is to be counted for one class, it has to be counted for all to prevent discrimination. The classification cannot be done on the irrational basis and when respondents are themselves counting period spent in such service, it would be highly discriminatory not to count the service on the basis of flimsy classification. The rider put on that work-charged service should have preceded by temporary capacity is discriminatory and irrational and creates an impermissible classification.

33. As it would be unjust, illegal and impermissible to make aforesaid classification to make the Rule 3(8) valid and non discriminatory, we have to read down the provisions of Rule 3(8) and hold that services rendered even prior to regularisation in the capacity of work-charged employees, contingency paid fund employees or non- pensionable establishment shall also be counted towards the qualifying service even if such service is not preceded by temporary or regular appointment in a pensionable establishment.

34. In view of the note appended to Rule 3(8), which we have read down, the provision contained in Regulation 370 of the Civil Services Regulations has to be struck down as also the instructions contained in Para 669 of the Financial Handbook.

35. There are some of the employees who have not been regularized in spite of having rendered the services for 30-40 or more years whereas they have been superannuated. As they have worked in the work-charged establishment, not against any particular project, their services ought to have been regularized under the Government instructions and even as per the decision of this Court in Secretary, State of Karnataka and others vs. Uma Devi, 2006 (4) SCC 1. This Court in the said decision has laid down that in case services have been rendered for more than ten years without the cover of the Court's order, as one time measure, the services be *regularized of such employees. In the facts of the case, those employees who have worked for ten years or more should have been regularized. It would not be proper to relegate them for consideration of regularisation as others have been regularised, we direct that their services be treated as a regular one. However, it is made clear that they shall not be entitled to claiming any dues of difference in wages had they been continued in service regularly before attaining the age of superannuation. They shall be entitled to receive the pension as if they have retired from the regular establishment and the services rendered by them right from the day they entered the work-charged establishment shall be counted as qualifying service for purpose of pension.

36. In view of reading down Rule 3(8) of the U.P. Retirement Benefits Rules, 1961, we hold that services rendered in the work-charged establishment shall be treated as qualifying service under the aforesaid rule for grant of pension. The arrears of pension shall be confined to three years only before the date of the order. Let the admissible benefits be paid accordingly within three months. Resultantly, the appeals filed by the employees are allowed and filed by the State are dismissed."

17. The short question that arises in the instant writ petition is as to whether the temporary Seasonal Collection Amin is entitled to post retiral benefits. It is evident from the material placed on record that the petitioner was appointed Seasonal Collection Amin in 1978, thereafter, was given regular pay scale of Collection Amin from 1982, income tax was regularly deducted from his salary. The regular pay scale of the petitioner came to be revised from time to time. In the service book, petitioner has been referred to as a temporary employee. In the circumstances, it is not open to the respondents to deny pension discarding past services rendered by the petitioner as a temporary employee in the regular establishment of the State Government. Substantive appointment is not a condition precedent for entitlement of pensionery benefit. The appointment has to be a regular appointment on the pensionable establishment of the Government to earn pension.

18. In the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the petitioner admittedly came to be appointed Seasonal Collection Amin in regular pay scale admissible to the post. The revised pay was paid from time to time. Income tax was deducted from the salary of the petitioner. In the circumstances, the law declared in Prem Singh (supra) entitles the petitioner to pension and retiral dues.

19. In view thereof, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned orders dated 7 March 2018 and 25 May 2012, passed by the third respondent-District Magistrate, Ballia and fourth respondent-Up-Ziladhikari, Ballia, respectively, are set aside and quashed. Petitioner is entitled to pension. The arrears of pension shall be confined to three years before the date of order. The respondents to pay the admissible retiral benefits within three months from the date of communication of the order.

20. No cost.

Present petition challenges suspension order dated 04.08.2019, passed by Secretary, Cooperative, Government of U.P., Lucknow.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri H.R. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner and Sri Ajit Singh, learned Additional Advocate General for the State-respondents.

2. Petitioner, a Assistant Commissioner & Assistant Registrar, (Agriculture), Cooperative Societies, Varanasi Mandal, Varanasi, is assailing the impugned suspension order dated 4 August 2019 passed by the first respondent, Secretary, Cooperative, Government of U.P., Lucknow.

3. The allegation against the petitioner, inter-alia, is based on a preliminary enquiry report dated 3 August 2019, pertaining to Adarsh Krishi Sahkari Samiti, Umbha, District Sonbhadra (for short " the Adarsh Society"). The report in so far it relates to the petitioner primarily records that petitioner had not followed the mandatory provisions in the discharge of his duty under the Uttar Pradesh Cooperative Societies Act, 1965 (for short "Act, 1965). Consequently, petitioner was placed under suspension pending contemplation of enquiry. The respondents have filed counter affidavit and supplementary counter affidavit bringing on record the charge sheet dated 16 September 2019, leveling three charges. First charge alleges that a society under the Act, 1965 can be constituted by the farmers by pooling their land, but in the instant case, the Adarsh Society was constituted against the provisions of Section 77-A. The matter pertaining to cancellation of registration of the Adarsh Society is pending before the Deputy Registrar, Cooperative Society, Vindhyachal Division, Mirzapur, and the Assistant Registrar Cooperative Society, Sonbhadra. The fact finding enquiry posed a question to the petitioner as to whether he had ever conducted any inspection/enquiry against the society, but the petitioner did not reply nor any inspection and/or enquiry in terms of Section 66 of the Act, 1965 was constituted/conducted against the Adarsh society. The second charge against the petitioner is that no audit was conducted against the society in terms of Rule 367 of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Rules, 1968, nor any attempt to that effect was made by the delinquent officer. The third charge against the petitioner is that the election to the society is to be held every five years under the Uttar Pradesh State Cooperative Societies Election Rules, 2014, in the presence of an observer appointed by the office of the District Magistrate/District Cooperative Election Commissioner, however, no such election was conducted.

4. The allegation primarily against the petitioner is that the petitioner failed in his duties by not contacting the concerned officers of the Cooperative at District Sonbhadra/Mirzapur for taking appropriate action against the Adarsh society.

5. In the aforesaid backdrop, it is urged by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner that the allegation in the impugned suspension order and in the charge sheet, taken on face value do no constitute misconduct within the meaning of Uttar Pradesh Government Servant (Discipline & Appeal) Rules,1999 (for short "Rules, 1999'). It is further contended that admittedly the alleged society came to be registered at District Sonbhadra on 10 October 1952, under the old Act and was re-registered in 1970 under the provisions of Act, 1965. The proceedings with regard to cancellation of registration of the society is pending before the competent authority. Petitioner came to be appointed by promotion as Assistant Commissioner and Assistant Registrar, Cooperative, on recommendation of the Uttar Pradesh Public Service Commission (UPPSC) Allahabad, on 29 May 2015 . The first posting of the petitioner was at District Sultanpur where he joined on 14 July 2015, thereafter, he was transferred and posted in the same capacity at Varanasi vide order dated 31 July 2018. Petitioner joined the post on 2 August 2018. The administrative jurisdiction of the office of Assistant Commissioner and Assistant Registrar, Cooperative Societies, Varanasi, comprises of five divisions viz. Varanasi Division, Mirzapur Division, Azamgarh Division, Gorakhpur Division and Basti Division comprising 22 districts.

6. It is urged that an unfortunate incident occurred on 17 July 2019 in village Umbha, Police Station and Tehsil Ghorawal, District Sonbhadra, ten persons died and 28 persons were injured in a dispute pertaining to land. Pursuant thereof, the State Government vide Office Memorandum dated 17 July 2019 appointed three member enquiry committee, headed by Additional Chief Secretary, Revenue and two other members i.e. Commissioner, Vindhyachal Division, Mirzapur and Additional Chief Secretary Revenue and Basic Education, Government of U.P. The fact finding enquiry committee submitted report dated 3 August 2019 recommending the suspension of the petitioner and other officials of the Revenue and also directed that First Information Report be lodged against the officials including the petitioner. The allegation against the petitioner is confined to the charges leveled against the petitioner in the charge sheet. There is no imputation of misconduct spelled out in the charges with regard to the role or involvement of the petitioner leading to the incident at village Umbha. The responsibility, if any, of the officials of the Co-operative would have to be identified at district Sonbhadra/Mirzapur under which the alleged society was functioning. The petitioner, being the head and incharge of five divisions could not have been placed under suspension on vague and general allegations. The charge is merely an opinion/inference expressed by the enquiry committee not based on any material.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the respondents are bound to follow the provisions mandated under Rules, 1999 governing disciplinary proceedings. Rule 4 provides for suspension, whereunder, Government Servant against whose conduct an inquiry is contemplated or is proceeding may be placed under suspension pending conclusion of the inquiry in the discretion of the Appointing Authority provided that suspension should not be resorted to unless the allegations against the Government Servant are so serious that in the event of being established may ordinarily warrant major penalty. Rule 4 for the purpose of the instant case is extracted :

"4. Suspension

(1) A Government Servant against whose conduct an inquiry is contemplated, or is proceeding may be placed under suspension pending the conclusion of the inquiry in the discretion of the Appointing Authority:

Provided that suspension should not be resorted to unless the allegations against the Government Servant are so serious that in the event of their being established may ordinarily warrant major penalty:

Provided xx xx xx

Provided xx xx xx

(2) A Government Servant in respect of, or against whom an investigation, inquiry or trial relating to a criminal charge, which is connected with his position as a Government Servant or which is likely to embarrass him in the discharge of his duties or which involves moral turpitude, is pending, may at the discretion of the appointing Authority or the Authority to whom the power of suspension has been delegated under these rules, be placed under suspension until termination of all proceedings relating to that charge.

(3) (a) A Government Servant shall be deemed to have been placed or as the case may be, continued to be place under suspension by an order of the Authority Competent to suspend, with effect from the date of his detention , if he is detained in custody, whether the detention is on criminal charge or otherwise , for a period exceeding forty eight hours."

8. Further, it is contended that the appointing authority of the petitioner is the Principal Secretary/Secretary Cooperative, Government of U.P. The impugned order has been passed based on the fact finding enquiry report mechanically without application of mind as to whether the allegation prima facie constitutes misconduct in sofar it relates to the petitioner. It is further contended that even assuming that there was negligence in not complying the provision of the Act and Rules it cannot be said that the office of Assistant Commissioner and Assistant Registrar at Varanasi was remotely responsible for the death of innocent villagers arising out of land dispute at district Sonbhadra.

9. In rebuttal, the learned Additional Advocate General submits that the mandatory duties assigned upon the Assistant Registrar for inspection of the societies and mandating audit was not done, therefore, petitioner is also responsible for the incident that occurred in village Umbha. It is further urged that had the petitioner been vigilant the incident could have been avoided. It is, therefore, urged that the allegations are serious and in the event of charges being proved, it would warrant imposition of major penalty. Criminal prosecution is also pending against the petitioner.

10. On specific query, learned counsel appearing for the respondent admits that the alleged society came to be registered in 1952 and since then it is functioning, the proceedings pertaining to cancellation of registration of the Adarsh society is pending before the competent authority of the Cooperative at district Mirzapur and Sonbhadra. It is not being disputed that the petitioner came to be appointed Assistant Registrar in 2015 and his second posting at Varanasi was made, one year before the occurrence of the incident at Sonbhadra. It is also not being disputed that petitioner has five divisions comprising 22 districts under his jurisdiction and Adarsh Society falls under the jurisdiction of Deputy Registrar/Assistant Registrar, Cooperative at Mirzapur and Sonbhadra. Petitioner has not been suspended pending criminal proceedings, nor has the petitioner been arrested. The only material relied upon while passing the impugned suspension order or framing of the charge sheet is the fact finding enquiry report.

11. The Division Bench of this Court in Jeetendra Nath Singh Versus State of U.P. and others (Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 33269 of 2007) decided on 2 November 2017, while considering the suspension order passed on the recommendation of an official who had no concern either with department or the appointing authority, the Court held that the order of suspension passed by the Inspector General, Registration, U.P., Lucknow, on the recommendation of Deputy Inspector General of Police, Railway, Allahabad Region, Allahabad, is without application of mind, exercise of independent discretion, and passed in a mechanical manner against the mandate of Rule 4 of Rules, 1999. It was further held that pursuant to the First Information Report petitioner therein was not detained. In the circumstances, the impugned order of suspension came to be quashed.

12. The Division Bench in Shabih Haider Versus State of U.P. and others, [2018(1) ADJ 327 (DB)(LB)], held that the order of suspension is not to be passed in a routine manner but the competent authority is required to consider the gravity of the misconduct sought to be enquired into or investigated and the nature of the evidence placed before the appointing authority. The power of the State Government to place government servant under suspension is creature of the statute and/or contract and the decision be taken keeping in view the letter and spirit of the statute. The power of suspension arises when on an objective consideration the appointing authority is of the view that a formal disciplinary inquiry is expected or is proceeding. It was also held placing reliance on the decision of a Five Judge Bench of this Court in State of U.P. v. Jai Singh Dixit (Alld.), 1974 ALJ 92, that mere lack of efficiency or skill does not ipso facto constitute misconduct and call for suspension of a government servant.

13. This Court normally would decline to interfere in disciplinary proceedings and the impugned suspension order unless it is shown that it is in violation of statutory rules and does not constitute allegations of misconduct to warrant imposition of major penalty taking the allegations on face value.

14. The three charges at a glance would convey the impression that the petitioner was not a very efficient officer. Some negligence is being attributed to him and lack of qualities expected of an officer of the rank of Assistant Commissioner and Assistant Registrar. The question, therefore, is whether lack of efficiency or competence can be elevated to acts and omission to constitute misconduct. The answer can be found in the observation of the Supreme Court in Union of India and others Versus J. Ahmed1, which is extracted:

"The five charges listed above at a glance would convey the impression that the respondent was not a very efficient officer. Some negligence is being attributed to him and some lack of qualities expected of an officer of the rank of Deputy Commissioner are listed as charges. to wit, charge No. 2 refers to the quality of lack of leadership and charge No. 5 enumerates inaptitude, lack of foresight, lack of firmness and indecisiveness. These are qualities undoubtedly expected of a superior officer and they may be very relevant while considering whether a person should be promoted to the higher post or not or having been promoted, whether he should be retained in the higher post or not or they may be relevant for deciding the competence of the person to hold the post, but they cannot be elevated to the level of acts of omission or commission as contemplated by Rule 4 of the Discipline and Appeal Rules so as to incur penalty under rule 3. Competence for the post, capability to hold the same, efficiency requisite for a post, ability to discharge function attached to the post, are things different from some act or omission of the holder of the post which may be styled as misconduct so as to incur the penalty under the rules....."

15. The allegation does not disclose the imputation of the allegation constituting misconduct. The charges do not list/disclose the acts and omission to constitute misconduct under the Conduct Rules.

16. Having due regard to the facts and circumstances and to the allegations made against the petitioner, this Court, prima facie, is of the opinion that the mandate of proviso to Rule 4 is not made out. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned suspension order dated 4 August 2019 passed by the first respondent, Secretary, Cooperative, Government of U.P., Lucknow, is set aside and quashed. Petitioner shall be reinstated, however, the pending disciplinary proceedings against the petitioner shall continue and be concluded expeditiously preferably within four months from the date of receipt of certified copy of this order, provided the petitioner cooperates and there is no other impediment.

17. No cost.

2. Harish Kumar Sharma, IFS Vs St. of Pun. & anr. (2017) 4 SCC 366 (Para 8)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri H.P. Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner and Dr. Uday Veer Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. By means of this writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for the following reliefs:-

"(I) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the opposite parties to open the sealed cover procedure, wherein recommendation of the D.P.C. held in the year 2016 has been kept in sealed cover procedure, while the juniors to the petitioner has been promoted vide order dated 30.09.2016.

(II) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to promote the petitioner with all the incidental and consequential service benefits including arrears of salary for the post of Additional Director (Level-V) in the pay scale of Rs.37400-67000 grade pay Rs.8900 with effect from 30.09.2016.

(III) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to extend the benefits of the 4th A.C.P. on completion of 24 years continuous satisfactory service with effect from 01.12.2008."

3. The contention of Sri H.P. Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner is that one departmental inquiry, which was initiated against the petitioner in the year 2011, has been finally concluded on 27.10.2017 as office memo to that effect has been issued by the Secretary of the Department, which is contained as Annexure No.6 to the writ petition. On account of the aforesaid inquiry, the candidature of the petitioner was kept under sealed cover and since the said inquiry has been concluded wherein the petitioner has been exonerated, the sealed cover should be opened.

4. In the meantime, the petitioner has been informed that vide office memo dated 20.11.2015 one more departmental inquiry was initiated, therefore, the petitioner preferred a representation dated 05.02.2016, which is contained as Annexure No.8 to the writ petition, demanding the copy of the charge-sheet, if any, from the Enquiry Officer i.e. the Additional Director, Medical Health & Family Welfare, Agra Division, Agra. Even the Enquiry Officer has also preferred a letter dated 12.11.2018 to the Director General, Medical & Health Services, U.P., Lucknow for providing the charge-sheet to the petitioner. However, on 01.11.2019, the statement was given by the State Counsel before the Court that the charge-sheet has been served upon the petitioner. Therefore, this Court vide order dated 01.11.2019 directed the learned Standing Counsel to produce the copy of the charge-sheet with the proof of service fixing the date on 04.11.2019.

5. On 05.11.2019, Dr. Uday Veer Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing counsel has produced the copy of the charge-sheet. On 05.11.2019, this Court has passed the order as under:-

"Heard Sri H.P. Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner and Dr. Udai Veer Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

This Court has passed the order dated 01.11.2019 as under:-

"Learned Standing Counsel states that chargesheet is served upon the petitioner and enquiry would completed within one month. However, he does not have copy of the chargesheeet. He prays for a day's time to produce before this court the service report of the chargesheet upon the petitioner.

Put up this case on 04-11-2019."

In compliance of the aforesaid order, learned Add.C.S.C. has produced the copy of letter dated 04.11.2019 preferred on behalf of the Director General, Medical & Health Services, U.P., Lucknow addressing to the Chief Standing Counsel, High Court, Lucknow Bench, Lucknow enclosing therewith the copy of one letter dated 22.10.2019 preferred by one Sri J. L.Yadav, Under Secretary, Government of U.P., Lucknow to the Additional Director, Medical, Health and Family Welfare, Agra Division, Agra and the charge-sheet dated 22.10.2019 relating to the petitioner and another charge-sheet dated 22.10.2019 relating to one Dr. V.K. Gupta have been enclosed. The photocopy of the aforesaid instructions letter and the documents are being taken on record.

The perusal of the aforesaid letters clearly reveals that the issue in question is of the year 2015 and it appears that no charge-sheet has been issued against the petitioner since 2015 till date. Even the charge-sheet dated 22.10.2019, which is said to have been issued against the petitioner, has not been served upon the petitioner, as no service report has been indicated in these letters. Further, even the single charge, which has been levelled against the petitioner vide charge-sheet dated 22.10.2019, does not indicate any culpability of the petitioner in the issue.

Prima-facie, it appears that this is half hearted exercise being carried out, resultant thereof, the petitioner is approaching the competent authorities time to time but to no avail. As a matter of fact, these letters do not satisfy the query of the Court dated 01.11.2019.

Dr. Udai Veer Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel prays for and is granted 24 hours time to seek complete instructions in the matter, particularly on the point as to whether any charge-sheet has been prepared, which is directly relating with the allegations against the petitioner, and if so, as to whether the same has been served upon the petitioner or not.

List / put up this case on 07.11.2019 in the additional cause list."

6. Today, Dr. Uday Veer Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has apprised the Court that the said charge-sheet has been provided to the Enquiry Officer but there is no service report with him to show the Court as to whether the said charge-sheet has been served upon the petitioner or not.

7. Sri H.P. Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted with vehemence that till date no charge-sheet has been served upon the petitioner.

8. In support of his submission, Sri Gupta has placed reliance upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court rendered in Union of India etc. vs. K.V. Jankiraman etc. reported in 1991 (4) SCC 109 wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has categorically held that the initiation of the departmental inquiry would be considered to be commenced with effect from the date of service of the charge-sheet and if the charge-sheet is not served upon the employee, it may not be said that the departmental inquiry against the incumbent is pending. The aforesaid dictum of Hon'ble Supreme Court has been considered in various cases by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as by this Court. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in re: Harish Kumar Sharma, IFS vs. State of Punjab and another reported in (2017) 4 SCC 366 has followed the dictum of K.V. Jankiraman (supra) and held in paras-16 and 17 as under:-

"16. The employee in respect of whom chargesheet has been issued and the disciplinary proceedings are pending or in respect of whom prosecution for criminal charge is pending, his assessment is to be kept in a sealed cover and is not to be given effect to. The question is as to when prosecution for criminal charge is treated to have been 'pending'. This aspect came up for consideration in K.V. Jankiraman's case and the Court held that sealed cover procedure is to be resorted to only after the charge memo/chargesheet is issued, as is clear from the following passage in para 16 of the judgment:

"16. On the first question, viz., as to when for the purposes of the sealed cover procedure the disciplinary/criminal proceedings can be said to have commenced, the Full Bench of the Tribunal has held that it is only when a charge-memo in a disciplinary proceedings or a charge-sheet in a criminal prosecution is issued to the employee that it can be said that the departmental proceedings/criminal prosecution is initiated against the employee. The sealed cover procedure is to be resorted to only after the charge-memo/charge-sheet is issued. The pendency of preliminary investigation prior to that stage will not be sufficient to enable the authorities to adopt the sealed cover procedure. We are in agreement with the Tribunal on this point. The contention advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant-authorities that when there are serious allegations and it takes time to collect necessary evidence to prepare and issue charge-memo/charge-sheet, it would not be in the interest of the purity of administration to reward the employee with a promotion, increment etc. does not impress us. The acceptance of this contention would result in injustice to the employees in many cases. As has been the experience so far, the preliminary investigations take an inordinately long time and particularly when they are initiated at the instance of the interested persons, they are kept pending deliberately. Many times they never result in the issue of any charge-memo/charge-sheet. If the allegations are serious and the authorities are keen in investigating them, ordinarily it should not take much time to collect the relevant evidence and finalise the charges. What is further, if the charges are that serious, the authorities have the power to suspend the employee under the relevant rules, and the suspension by itself permits a resort to the sealed cover procedure. The authorities thus are not without a remedy..."

17. In view of the aforesaid law laid down by this Court, the crucial aspect is as to whether the prosecution for criminal charge was pending against the appellant when the DPC meeting was held. In K.V. Jankiraman's case, this Court gave imprimatur to the order of the CAT holding that if the chargesheet is filed in a criminal court, sealed cover procedure can be resorted to. This was conclusion No.4 of the CAT judgment, which was upheld by this Court, and this conclusion reads as under:

"(4) the sealed cover procedure can be resorted to only after a charge memo is served on the concerned official or the charge-sheet filed before the criminal court and not before..." (emphasis supplied)

9. Considering the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perusing material available on record and also considering the dictum of Hon'ble Supreme Court in re: K. V. Jankiraman (supra), I am of the considered opinion that in the given circumstances the sealed cover envelope in the case of the petitioner should be opened atonce as the charge-sheet has yet not been served upon him.

10. Accordingly, the writ in the nature of mandamus is issued commanding the opposite parties to open the sealed cover procedure, within three weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, wherein the recommendation of the D.P.C. held in the year 2016 has been kept in the sealed cover procedure and act upon the recommendation of D.P.C. The petitioner shall also be entitled for all consequential service benefits strictly in accordance to law.

11. The writ petition is, therefore, allowed.

12. No order as to cost.

Present petition challenges impugned orders dated 26.06.2019, passed by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Prayagraj.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashwani Kumar Mishra, J.)

1. This bunch of writ petitions are directed against orders dated 26th June, 2019, passed by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Prayagraj, whereby all the petitioners have been terminated from service. The identical worded orders passed in respect of all the petitioners record that the petitioners while undergoing on the job training, sat on a protest (dharna) on 5.6.2019, and also blocked the road in front of training centre for raising their grievances that were extremely ordinary/trivial in nature, and were otherwise based mostly on rumours. Such act of indiscipline, while on training in a disciplined organization has been viewed seriously as an act of misconduct. Show cause notice was accordingly issued to them, to which a reply has also been submitted. The explanation submitted by present petitioners to the show cause notice has not been found satisfactory and it is observed that chances of petitioners becoming good police personnels do not exist. Jurisdiction under Rule 20(4) of the U.P. Police Constable and Head Constable Service Rules, 2015 read with Regulation 541(2) of the U.P. Police Regulations has been invoked to terminate the services of the present petitioners. Aggrieved by such orders of termination the petitioners are before this Court.

2. Before coming to the issues on merits, it would be worth noticing some of the background facts. State of Uttar Pradesh initiated process to recruit 41520 Constables in Civil Police and Pradeshiya Armed Constabulary (PAC), vide advertisement dated 14.1.2018. Petitioners also applied against the advertisement and having cleared the recruitment process were ultimately selected on 18.2.2019. All the petitioners were allotted Allahabad (Prayagraj) for undergoing on the job training. The first part of the JTC Training Course was successfully completed by the petitioners w.e.f. 16.5.2019 to 31.5.2019. The next round of training was to be undertaken at Regional Training Centre at Varanasi (hereinafter referred to as the RTC) w.e.f. 3rd June, 2019. It is on record that 300 female constables joined the RTC at Varanasi on 1st June, 2019, while 47 other female constables joined on 2nd June, 2019. Their training commenced on 3rd June, 2019. It is at this stage that the incident is said to have happened giving rise to passing of the orders of termination.

3. Alongwith the writ petition various newspaper reports have been annexed. The first of such newspaper report published in Hindi Daily 'Amar Ujala' from Varanasi is of 6th June, 2019. The headline of the news item quotes the lady trainee constables that their videos were prepared while they were having bath. The incident in question reportedly occurred in the night of 4/5th June, 2019, as per the newspaper report. A protest was reportedly organized by the female trainee constables demanding adequate security arrangement for them and for proper boundary etc. to be raised for their safety and security. Similar reports got published in other prominent newspapers including Dainik Jagaran etc., which are also annexed. Newspaper reports, ipso facto, may not be acceptable, but in view of what has been brought on record of the writ petitions, as would be elaborated later, it is apparent that serious issues relating to safety, security and breach of privacy for female constables on training had arisen resulting in a protest by them.

4. It transpires that on the very next morning a protest was made to highlight the problems faced by the lady police constables. Their protest ended with an assurance received from the Senior Superintendent of Police that their security and safety would be duly looked after. The incident, however, did generate concerns and was apparently taken as an act of serious breach of discipline on part of trainee constables by the higher police officers. The SSP Varanasi on 5th May, 2019 itself constituted a Committee to inquire into the protest by lady constables. This Inquiry Committee comprising of three officers submitted its fact finding report on 8th June, 2019. Copy of this report has been placed on record alongwith the counter affidavit. Its copy has also been served upon the writ petitioners alongwith the show cause notice. This inquiry report is the only material relied upon for taking the action against the writ petitioners.

5. Reference to this report would be necessary at this stage. The fact finding report, dated 8.6.2019, runs into 42 pages and records statement of 50 persons. It includes statement of 33 lady constables who were undergoing training, apart from other police personnels some of whom were present at the training centre. In order to protect the identity of lady constables the names of lady constables in the report is not being mentioned. The statement of first trainee police constable discloses that during the night of 4/5th June, 2019, she heard loud voices at the door of her barrack and when this constable came out she found that many of the female trainees present were weeping and informing the officer of the training centre about entering of some boy in the training centre. The next statement is also of a lady trainee constable narrating similar facts and also that the broken door of her barrack was repaired only on 4.6.2019 in the evening. Their statements are extracted hereinafter:-

"बैरिक से बाहर निकलने पर काफी लडकियां रो रही थी तथा सभी सर को बता रही थी कि मैने किसी लडके को बैरिक के तरफ आते हुए देखा है तो सभी सर सीसीटीएनएस कार्यालय के आस – पास जाकर देखा, वहां कोई नही मिला। सभी लडकियां रो रही थी, जिन्हें सर समझा रहे थे। मै अपने बैरिक में वापस चली गयी।

2. बयान म0 रि0 आ0 ..... मै एल बैरक में रहती हूं। मेरे कमरे में दरवाजा टूटा हुआ था उसके बारे मे हमने मेजर सर का दिनांक 04.06.2019 को बताया था। दिनांक 04.06.2019 की शाम को ही दरवाजा ठीक करवा दिया गया तथा हमें उन्होने पूर्ण रुप से सुरक्षा का भरोसा दिलाया। दिनांक 04/05.06.2019 करीब रात्रि में 12 बजे काफी शोर–गुल हो रहा था। हम लोग अपने बैरक से बाहर निकले तो जानकारी हुई कि दिनांक 04/05.06.2019 को करीब 11.45 बजे टोली नं0 13 की बैरक डियूटी की महिला ..... ने 02 लडको को परिसर में आते देखा है तथा उसके कुछ समय बाद टोली नं0 11 की .... द्वारा किसी लडके को बैरक मे हाथ डालते हुए देखने की बात बताई जा रही थी। कुछ देर बाद मेजर सर और कुछ आईटीआई, पीटीआई वहां पहुंचे। कुछ देर बाद छोटेलाल सर पहुंचे और लडकियों को रोते और घबडाते हुए देखकर उन्हें सुरक्षा का भरोसा दिलाते हुए घटना के बारे में जांच की बात भी कही और सुरक्षा डियूटी पर 04 आरक्षी की डियूटी तथा 02 महिला आरक्षी की डियूटी लगायी।

"प्रश्न – क्या आप द्वारा दिनांक 01.06.2019 से 04/05.06.2019 की रात्रि तक किसी लडके को बैरक अथवा वाशरुम में देखा गया है ?

उत्तर – श्रीमान जी नही, केवल दिनांक 04/05.06.2019 की रात्रि को सीसीटीएनएस कार्यालय के छत पर एवं कुछ देर बाद किसी व्यक्ति को खिडकी के बगल से भागते हुए देखी थी।"

6. The statements of all 33 lady police constables are unanimous, inasmuch as, they came to know of an incident occurring in the intervening night of 4/5th June, 2019, on account of which all the lady constables were frightened and were immensely concerned about their safety and security. It has also been stated by most of these female constables that they could not even dare to go alone to the toilets for the fear of their security. Statements of these constables suggests that two boys came on a bike and entered the training campus and that one of them tried to harm one of the lady trainee constables. The statements also suggest that basic facilities were not satisfactory and that water supply in the toilets was resumed only on 4.6.2019. Trainees had to go about 200 meters just to get drinking water. It is to be remembered that first week of June is the peak summer period when temperature in Varanasi can go upto 48 degree centigrades. Lack of regular water supply for drinking and fir use in toilets can well be visualized. The report further acknowledges that it was very hot and some of the coolers were got repaired while process was initiated to buy more coolers. Moreover due to low voltage even faces were not running properly.

7. It is not necessary to refer to all the statements but suffice it to note that the statements given by all trainee constables were consistent about an incident having occurred on the fateful night as also about lack of basic facilities at the centre. The questions that have been posed to these lady constables appear to suggest that anxiety on part of the concerned authorities was more to emphasize that there was no fault on their part; that basic facilities existed for them; that none of the candidates had specifically admitted outraging of her modesty; and that on an unfounded hearsay misreporting by one of the candidates the other trainee recruits overreacted and had blown the incident out of proportion.

8. There is an apparent noticeable flaw in the fact finding report. The tenor of report shows insensitivity to the concern of trainee constables who had stayed only for a couple of days and were new to the place. It is but natural that none of the recruits would have wished to be identified for an attempted outraging of her modesty, nor would have dared to speak-up against administration for lack of basic amenities provided to them. The authorities also failed to appreciate the consistent statement of almost all the lady trainee constables that they were in a state of fear and shock and were apprehensive about their safety. In almost all the statements it has surfaced that two boys on a bike entered the training camp with one of them going on roof while the other went near the office. The alleged undesirable acts were attributed to these two intruders. The three member committee, however, disbelieved the concern of lady constables by a curious process of reasoning. It observed as under:-

"जहां तक दिनांक 04.06.2019 को समय करीब 12.00 बजे रात्रि बैरक नम्बर 11 में खिडकी से किसी अज्ञात युवक द्वारा अन्दर हाथ डालने सम्बन्धी आरोप है। खिडकी के ठीक सामने म0 रि0 आ0 ..... का बेड है एवं उसके बगल मे म0 रि0 आ0 ..... का एवं उसके सामानान्तर द्वितीय पंक्ति में .....व ..... का बेड लगा हुआ है। उक्त के संदर्भ मे म0 रि0 आरक्षियों से बयान लिया गया जिसमें से म0 रि0 आ0 ..... व ..... द्वारा रात्रि के समय करीब 12 बजें के बीच किसी अज्ञात व्यक्ति के हाथ का अन्दर देखना बताया गया। इस संदर्भ में उल्लेखनीय है कि म0 रि0 आरक्षियों के सुरक्षात्मक दृष्टिकोण से इनकी आवासीय व्यवस्था भी पुलिस लाइन के अन्तिम कोने में स्थापित किया गया है। जो लगभग दोनो तरफ 08 फीट व उससे उंची दीवार से घिरा है, जो सुरक्षित स्थान है। हम अधिकारीगणों द्वारा `बमदम.तम. बवदेजतनबजपवद (दृश्य पुनर्संरचना) करके देखा गया तो खिडकी से बेड की दूरी 03 फीट से अधिक की थी। अतः स्पष्ट है कि खिडकी से बेड तक किसी व्यक्ति के हाथ का पहुंचना सम्भव नही है अतः छेडछाड की नियत से उक्त घटना का कारित किया जाना तार्किक प्रतीत नही होता।

भी इनकार नही किया जा सकता कि किसी शरारती लडकी द्वारा शरारतवश वहां किसी गलत नियत से उस स्थान पर गयी हो जैसा कि म0 रि0 आ0 ..... द्वारा अपने बयान मे बताया गया कि उक्त युवक/ व्यक्ति सफेद रंग का टी–षर्ट पहने हुआ था और बैरक के समस्त म0 रि0 आ0 सफेद रंग का टी–षर्ट धारण करती है। चूंकि दीवार के पीछे आम सडक है। अतः यह भी सम्भाव्य है कि कोई व्यक्ति चोरी की नियत से प्रवेश किया हो। किन्तु सीसीटीवी के न होने से एवं म0 रि0 आरक्षियों द्वारा स्पष्ट रुप से हाथ को नही देखे जाने के कारण उक्त आरोप की वास्तविकता पर कुछ भी स्पष्ट रुप से कहा जाना सम्भव नही है।

हम अधिकारीगणों द्वारा दिनांक 05.6. 2019 म0 रि0 आरक्षियों के प्रत्येक बैरकों का भौतिक सत्यापन को किया गया तो पाया गया कि लगभग सभी बैरकों में पर्याप्त संख्या मे पंखे लगे हुए है। जिन बैरकों मे यदि कोई पंखे खराब थे तो उनकी तत्काल मरम्मत हेतु प्रतिसार निरीक्षक वाराणसी को निर्देशित किया गया। म0 रि0 आरक्षियों द्वारा पूर्व मे गर्मी ज्यादा होने की समस्या बताने पर प्रतिसार निरीक्षक रिजर्व पुलिस लाइन वाराणसी द्वारा लाइन में उपलब्ध कूलरों को म0 रि0 आरक्षियों के कक्ष मे लगवाया गया एवं अन्य कूलरों के क्रय सम्बन्धी प्रकिया पूर्व में ही प्रारम्भ की जा चुकी है। जहां तक विद्युत व्यवस्था में वोल्टेज के कम होने की समस्या है जिसका प्रत्यक्ष रुप से पुलिस विभाग से कोई सम्बन्ध नही है। बीच में मात्र 01 दिवस वोल्टेज सम्बन्धी समस्या आयी जिससे बैरको के पंखे धीरे – धीरे चल रहे थे जो कालान्तर में स्वतः ठीक हो गया।

म0 रि0 आरक्षियों द्वारा बतायी गयी समस्या में एक बाथरुम का होना व एक टोटी का होना बताया गया है। जबकि मौके पर भौतिक सत्यापन करने पर पाया गया कि 42 बाथरुम प्रयोगात्मक अवस्था में सही स्थिति में पाये गये। अतः म0 रि0 आरक्षियों की संख्या के अनुपात से पर्याप्त बाथरुम उपलब्ध पाये गये तथा म0 रि0 आ0 द्वारा बाथरुम से सम्बन्धित छोटी – मोटी समस्याओं के बारे में बताया गया उनका वर्तमान में तत्काल प्रभाव से मरम्मत करा दिया गया है। जहां तक म0 रि0 आ0 द्वारा बाथरुम अथवा शौचालय का दूरी पर स्थित होना बताया गया के सम्बन्ध मे भौतिक सत्यापन करने पर पाया गया कि बैरक से बाथरुम अथवा शौचालय की अधिकतम दूरी लगभग 20 मीटर व न्यूनतम दूरी 04 मीटर पर है, जो बहुत अधिक नही है। अतएव उक्त आरोप असत्य एवं निराधार है। जहां तक शौचालय सम्बन्धी समस्या है तो उसके सम्बन्ध में भौतिक सत्यापन करने पर पाया गया कि 50 शौचालय साफ – सुथरे एवं सुव्यवस्थित दशा में पाये गये जो म0 रि0 आरक्षियों की संख्या के सापेक्ष पर्याप्त है।

म0 रि0 आरक्षियों द्वारा बतायी गयी समस्याओ में से एक बडी समस्या पानी की बतायी गयी कि उन्हे पानी लेने हेतु बैरक से आर0 ओ0 प्लाण्ट जिसकी दूरी लगभग 200 मीटर होगी जाना पडता है। साथ ही पानी रखने हेतु किसी पात्र की व्यवस्था भी नही है। उक्त समस्या के सन्दर्भ में जांच करने पर पाया गया कि दिनांक 04.06.2019 को प्रातः उक्त समस्या के संदर्भ मे म0 रि0 आरक्षियों द्वारा प्रतिसार निरीक्षक के संज्ञान में लाया गया जिसपर प्रतिसार निरीक्षक द्वारा तत्काल संज्ञान लेते हुए 20 ली0 वाले 70 गैलनों व घडो का क्रय कर वितरित कराया गया व बैरकों तक शीतल पेयजल पहुंचाने की व्यवस्था की गयी। अतः उक्त समस्या का समयबद्ध तरीके से निदान कराया गया। जहां तक म0 रि0 आ0 द्वारा पानी हेतु पैसा लिए जाने सम्बन्धी आरोप का प्रश्न है, के सम्बन्ध मे स्पष्ट करना समीचीन होगा कि म0 रि0 आ0 से पानी हेतु कोई पैसा नही लिया गया है, जैसा कि प्रतिसार निरीक्षक के बयान से स्पष्ट है।''

9. The Committee ultimately went on to hold that in respect of extremely common and simple problems the lady constables overreacted. Findings have ultimately been returned by the Inquiry Committee in following terms:-

"सम्पूर्ण जांच एवं साक्ष्य विश्लेषण से यह पाया गया कि 04 म0 रि0 आ0 जिनमें 01.....02.....03.....व .....04.....सम्मिलित है को पुलिस जैसे अनुशासित बल मे रहते हुए इन 04 म0 रि0 आ0 ने अन्य महिला रि0 आरक्षियों में असंतोष फैलाया और उन्हे सडक जाम करने हेतु उत्प्रेरित कर रिजर्व पुलिस लाईन गेट पर ले जाया गया। अधिकारियों के साथ अभद्र व्यवहार व तर्क – वितर्क करते हुए अनुशासनहीनता का परिचय दिया गया। इन महिला रि0 आरक्षियों द्वारा स्वयं व अन्य म0 रि0 आ0 को पुलिस लाईन गेट पर धरना देने के लिए उत्प्रेरित करने से पुलिस विभाग की छवि धूमिल हुई। यह स्थिति तैयार करने के लिए इन 04 म0 रि0 आ0 को प्रमुख रुप से दोषी पाया जाता है।

इसके अतिरिक्त 13 महिला रिकूट आरक्षियों जिनमे क्रमशः 01.....02.....03.....04.....05.....06.....07.....08.....09.....10.....11.....12.....13.....को अधिकारियों के साथ वाद – विवाद करना, सडक पर बैठना, बार – बार कहने के बाद भी सडक से न हटना एवं माहौल सामान्य करने में सहयोग न करने की दोषी पायी जाती है। भविष्य में इस बात से इंकार नही किया जा सकता कि इनके द्वारा ऐसी सुनी – सुनायी बातों के प्रभाव में आकर अनुशासन पर प्रतिकूल प्रभाव डाला जा सकता है। अतः भविष्य में इनके प्रशिक्षण पर सतर्क दृष्टि रखा जाना अपेक्षित है। अतएव उक्त 13 म0 रि0 आ0 को अन्यत्र आर0 टी0 सी0 में स्थानान्तरित किया जाना विचार करने योग्य है।

जांच आख्या अवलोकनार्थ सादर सेवा में प्रेषित है।"

10. The three member committee has fastened responsibility of organising protest and instigating others upon the petitioners. They are also accused of misbehaving with senior officers. The committee has also recommended transfer of thirteen lady constables to other training centres and further observed that in respect of some of the lady trainee recruits, who have shown acts of minor indiscipline, separate proceedings be undertaken to identify them and to take action, accordingly. It is admitted on record that apart from this fact finding inquiry no other inquiry has been held.

11. Alongwith the counter affidavit an order of the Deputy Inspector General of Police (Personnel), dated 11th June, 2019 has been annexed, which directs the SSP Prayagraj to take recourse to Rule 20(4) of the Rules of 2015 read with Regulation 541(2) of the Police Regulations and after affording an opportunity of hearing to the lady constables, take appropriate action. It is in furtherance of this direction that a show cause notice has been issued to all the petitioners. The petitioners have denied the allegations levelled against them in the show cause notice. In the leading writ petition, the petitioner has referred to the statement of the lady constable who had noticed entry of two unauthorised persons in the training centre on a bike and that on account of their attempting to outrage the modesty of one of the constables the trainee constables got frightened and raised their voice. They also informed the authorities about it. She has denied having taken any part in the protest or having instigated anyone else. Similar stand is taken by other petitioners. The petitioners have also denied having violated any provision of law or having indulged in any act of indiscipline. The explanation submitted by the petitioners have been rejected holding it to be not satisfactory. Consequently, orders of termination have been passed. No disciplinary proceedings have, nevertheless, been initiated against the petitioners.

12. The orders impugned are challenged primarily on the ground that as petitioners have been terminated on specific charges of indiscipline and misconduct, without conducting any disciplinary inquiry against them, as such, the orders are contrary to law. It is also stated that adequate opportunity has been denied to the petitioners to prove their innocence and that the procedure contemplated in law has otherwise been violated. The petitioners further urge that in view of the nature of allegations levelled against them an inquiry under Rule 14(1) of the U.P. Police Officers of Subordinate Ranks (Punishment and Appeal) Rules, 1991 was imperative which has not be done and consequently the order impugned is unsustainable. Submission is also advanced that Rule 20(4) of the Rules of 2015 have no applicability in the facts of the present case since the termination is founded on misconduct, without holding any enquiry, and not upon assessment of their work upon conclusion of the probation period. Petitioners have placed reliance upon a Division Bench Judgement of this Court in Paras Nath Pandey Vs. Director North Central Zone, Cultural Center, Allahabad passed in Special Appeal No. 798 of 2000. It has also been argued that petitioners' reply has not been considered and the impugned action is otherwise grossly disproportionate so as to shock the conscience of a prudent person.

13. A counter affidavit has been filed stating that due procedure has been followed before passing the order and that the grievance regarding violation of principles of natural justice is not made out. Petitioners have filed a rejoinder affidavit denying averments made in the counter affidavit and have reiterated averments made in the writ petition.

14. I have heard Sri Vijay Gautam, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Atipriya Gautam, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the respondents and perused the materials brought on record.

15. Facts giving rise to the present controversy have already been noticed and, therefore, requires no reiteration. It is admitted that petitioners have been terminated from service on a specific charge of misconduct. According to respondents for extremely ordinary grievances the petitioners went on a protest and blocked the road, outside the training centre, instigated others and misbehaved with higher authorities which is clearly an act unbecoming of a police personnel for which termination is justified.

16. It is not in issue that petitioners services in the matter of alleged misconduct on their part are governed by the provisions of the Rules of 1991. Once a trainee police constable is proposed to be terminated on a specific charge of misconduct, it is imperative that the procedure contemplated under Rule 14 is followed before proceeding to impose major punishment. It is not in issue that no procedure contemplated under Rule 14 of the Rules of 1991 has been followed. No regular disciplinary proceeding has been instituted; none of the witnesses have been produced in presence of the petitioners and they have also been denied an opportunity to cross examine them. The only inquiry conducted in the matter is at best a fact finding inquiry which cannot be a substitute for a regular disciplinary inquiry contemplated under the Rules of 1991. The petitioners grievance about denial of opportunity to defend themselves is also substantiated on record. Violation of the provisions of Rule 14 is also disclosed. The order impugned in the present writ petition, therefore, is liable to be set aside on this short ground alone.

17. The respondents apparently have invoked Rule 20(4) of the 2015 Rules as also para 541(2) of the U.P. Police Regulations to pass the order impugned. Rule 20(4) of the Rules of 2015 is reproduced:-

''यदि परिवीक्षा अवधि या बढ़ायी गयी परिवीक्षा अवधि के दौरान किसी भी समय या उसके अन्त में नियुक्ति प्राधिकारी को यह प्रतीत हो कि परिवीक्षाधीन व्यक्ति ने बढ़ायी गयी परिवीक्षा अवधि के दौरान नियुक्तिप्राधिकारी के संतोषानुसार पर्याप्त सुधार नहीं किया है तो उसे उसके मौलिक पद पर, यदि कोई हो, प्रत्यावर्तित किया जा सकता है और यदि उसका किसी पद पर धारणाधिकार न हो, तो उसकी सेवायें समाप्त की जा सकती है।''

18. Rule 20(4) confers jurisdiction upon the appointing authority to assess the working of a probationer with an intent to either confirm his services or to extend the period of probation or discontinue his employment on account of unsatisfactory work and failure to improve despite opportunity.

19. On facts, exigency to invoke Rule 20(4) of the 2015 Rules has not arisen. The respondents were not assessing the performance of probationer with the object of extending probation or confirming the services. The petitioners have hardly worked for a month. Their termination is on grounds of misconduct and not assessment of their working during the period of probation. The order impugned, therefore, is also liable to be set aside as it suffers from colourable exercise of power.

20. Para 541(2) of the U.P. Police Regulations provides as under:-

"In any case in which either during or at the end of the period of probation, the Superintendent of Police is of opinion that a recruit is unlikely to make a good police officer he may dispense with his service. Before, however this is done the recruit must be supplied with specific complaints and grounds on which it is proposed to discharge him and then he should be called upon to show cause as to why he should not be discharged. The recruit must furnish his representation in writing and it will be duly considered by the Superintendent of Police before passing the orders of discharge."

21. Though Police Regulations have been held to have binding force in Chandra Prakash Sahi vs. State of U.P. reported in (2000) 5 SCC 152 but the regulations ultimately remains a compendium of executive instructions. The Police Regulations would therefore remains subservient to the statutory service regulations in vogue. In areas where field is occupied by statutory regulations the authorities cannot be permitted to act in violation of statutory rules by having resort to the provisions of Police Regulations.

22. In the matter of holding of disciplinary inquiry rule 14 of the Rules of 1991 occupies the field and specifies the manner of conduct of disciplinary inquiry. The requirement of adherence to rule 14 cannot be obviated by relying upon para 541(2) of the U.P. Police Regulations. Rule 20(4) of the Rules of 2015 and para 541(2) of Police Regulations operate in different field altogether i.e. assessment of work by a probationer and would not be attracted in a case of misconduct.

23. In case of termination on the proved charges of misconduct the authorities would be required to act as per Rule 14(1) of the Rules of 1991 even if the police personnel is on probation. Law in that regard stands settled in Parshotam Lal Dhingra Vs. Union of India; AIR 1958 SC 36. The proposition of law in that regard has remained consistent and has been reiterated in a recent judgment of the Apex Court in State Bank of India vs. Palak Modi reported in (2013) 3 SCC 607. In Palak Modi (supra) services of private respondents were not terminated on account of any deficiency in their performance during probation period but foundation of termination was the alleged use of unfair means in confirmation examination which constituted misconduct. Inquiry in the manner contemplated was not done on the premise that the private respondents were probationer. The Apex Court held the termination to be unsustainable.

24. A Division Bench of this Court in Paras Nath Pandey Vs. Director North Central Zone, Cultural Center, Allahabad reported in 2008 (10) ADJ 283 held as under in para 57 to 59:-

"57. From the above discussions, the principles discernible to find out whether a simple order of termination/discharge of a temporary employee or probationer is punitive or not, broadly, may be stated as under :

(a)The termination of services of a temporary servant or probationer under the rules of his employment or in exercise of contractual right is neither per se dismissal nor removal and does not attract the provisions of Article 311 of the Constitution.

(b)An order of termination simplicitor prima facie is not a punishment and carries no evil consequences.

(c)Where termination simplicitor is challenged on the ground of casting stigma or penal in nature, the Court initially would glance the order itself to find out whether it cast any stigma and can be said to be penal or not. If it does not, no further enquiry shall be held unless there is some material to show certain circumstances, preceding or attending, shadowing the simplicitorness of the said order.

(d)The Court is not precluded from going beyond the order to find out as to whether circumstances, preceding or attending, makes it punitive or not. If the circumstances, preceding or attending, show only the motive of the employer to terminate, it being immaterial would not vitiate the order unless it is found that order is founded on such act or omission constituting misconduct.

(e)If the order visits the public servant with evil consequences or casts aspersions against his character or integrity, it would be an order by way of punishment irrespective of whether the employee was a mere probationer or temporary.

(f)"Motive" and "foundation" are distinct, though the distinction is either very thin or overlapping. "Motive" is the moving power, which impels action for a definite result, or to put it differently. "Motive" is that which incites or stimulates a person to do an act. "Foundation", however, is the basis, i.e., the conduct of the employee, When his acts and omissions treated to be misconduct, proved or founded, it becomes a case of foundation.

(g)If an order has a punitive flavour in cause or consequence, it is dismissal, but if it falls short of it, it would not.

(h)Where the employer is satisfied of the misconduct and the consequent desirability of termination, it is dismissal even though the order is worded innocuously. However, where there is mere suspicion of misconduct and the employer does not wish to bother about it, and, instead of going into the correctness of guilt, feel like not to keep the employee and thus terminate him, it is simpliciter termination and not punitive.

(i)Where the termination simplicitor is preceded by an enquiry, preliminary or regular , the Court would see the purpose, object of such enquiry as also the stage at which, the order of termination has been passed.

(j)Every enquiry preceding the order of termination/discharge, would not make it punitive. Where an enquiry contemplated in the rules before terminating an probationer or temporary employee is held, it would not make the order punitive.

(k)If the enquiry is to find out whether the employee is fit to be confirmed or retained in service or to continue, such an enquiry would not render termination punitive.

(l)Where the employer hold a formal enquiry to find out the correctness of the alleged misconduct of the employee and proceed on the finding thereof, such an order would be punitive, and, cannot be passed without giving an opportunity to the concerned employee.

(m)If some formal departmental enquiry commenced but not pursued to the end. Instead a simple order of termination is passed, the motive operating in the mind of the authority would be immaterial and such an order would be non punitive

(n)When an order of termination is assailed on the ground of mala fide or arbitrariness, while defending the plea of mala fide, if the authority has referred certain facts justifying the order of discharge relating to misconduct, negligence or inefficiency of the employee in the appeal or in the affidavit filed before the Court, that would not make the order founded on any misconduct.

(o)Sometimes when some reason is mentioned in the order, that by itself would not make the order punitive or stigmatic. The following words mentioned in the order have not been held to be punitive.

i."want of application",

ii."lack of potential",

iii."found not dependable",

iv."under suspension",

v."work is unsatisfactory",

vi."unlikely to prove an efficient officer".

(p)Description of background facts also have not been held to be stigmatic

(q)However, the words "undesirable to be retained in Government service", have been held stigmatic.

(r)If there is (i) a full scale formal enquiry, (ii) in the allegations involving moral turpitude or misconduct, (iii) which culminated in a finding of guilt; where all these three factors are present, the order of termination would be punitive irrespective of the form. However, if any one of three factors is missing, then it would not be punitive.

58. The aforesaid are not exhaustive, but lay down some of the principles to find out whether termination of an employee is simplicitor or punitive. Each and every case has to be considered in the light of the facts and circumstances of the case, but broadly the aforesaid are the factors to find out whether termination of an employee is punitive or not.

59. Considering the facts of this case in the light of the legal principles, as discussed above, we are clearly of the view that the impugned order of termination is nothing but punitive one and, therefore, cannot sustain."

25. In Mathew P. Thomas vs. Kerala State Civil Supply Corporation Ltd. and others, (2003) 3 SCC 263, the Apex Court observed that if form and language of the termination of probationer clearly indicate that is punitive in nature then there would be no requirement to go into the details of the background and surrounding circumstances in testing whether the order of termination is simplicitor or punitive. This judgment would clearly be attracted in the facts of the present case inasmuch as the very perusal of termination order makes it explicit that termination of petitioners probationer are founded upon misconduct.

26. The petitioners are young unmarried females who have just joined the police force and have worked for less than a month as trainee constables. Their action in reacting to perceived threat to their security and violation of privacy has to be viewed with greater care and concern and in keeping with prevalent societal values. Their response to the situation even if had breached the settled norms of discipline in a police force but it cannot be viewed as an grave act of misconduct so as to warrant extreme punishment of termination from service.

27. The respondents have proceeded against the petitioners on the premise that on insignificant and non existent causes an act of indiscipline is performed by them. This premise, on facts, is found not to be correct. Statement of large number of lady trainee constables clearly shows occurrence of some incident during the night of 4/5th June, 2019 which generated serious concerns relating to safety and security of young ladies. These young ladies were extremely frightened. The facilities at the training centre for them was otherwise not adequate. It was in this background that they raised an alarm by going on protest for a duration of about half an hour and thereafter continued with their training.

28. Raising of concerns regarding security for young lady constables, on account of the incident happened on the previous night, cannot be treated as protest raised for no valid reasons. It, also, could not be treated as an insignificant issue. Even if protest was impermissible yet it could not be treated as an act so serious so as to justify ouster of lady constables in the peculiar facts of the present case.

29. At the threshold of their career and being new to the organization these constables could have been counselled or warned at best. It was not necessary for the authorities to reciprocate an alleged disproportionate response to the situation by the female constables with a shockingly disproportionate response on their part. Even the inquiry committee had only recommended shifting of some of these constables to other training centres and not their termination. The inquiry report recommended a further inquiry to identify other culprits in an appropriate proceedings which was never conducted.

30. Apart from action being in derogation of the applicable statutory provision as also Article 311(2) of the Constitution of India, the impugned action is grossly disproportionate and is shocking to the very conscience of a prudent person. In Ranjit Thakur vs. Union of India, (1987) 4 SCC 611, their Lordships of the Apex Court observed that sentence has to suit the offence and the offender. It should not be vindictive or unduly harsh. It should not be so disproportionate to the offence as to shock the conscience and amount in itself to conclusive evidence of bias. The doctrine of proportionality, as part of the concept of judicial review, would ensure that even on the aspect, which is otherwise, within the exclusive province of the competent authority would be interfered with if is in outrageous defiance of logic.

31. In Bhagat Ram vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, AIR 1983 SC 454 the Apex Court observed that the penalty imposed must be commensurate with the gravity of the misconduct and if it is disproportionate then would be violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

32. In S. R. Tiwari vs. Union of India, (2013) 6 SCC 602, the law on proportionality has been elucidated with reference to Article 14 of the Constitution of India in following words in para 6 and 25:-

"6. Thus, the questions that arise for consideration of this Court are whether the punishment of compulsory retirement awarded by the disciplinary authority is proportionate to the delinquency proved and whether the respondents in the contempt petitions wilfully violated the order dated 5-10-2012 [S.R. Tewari v. Union of India, SLPs (C) Nos. 22263-64 of 2012, order dated 5-10-2012 (SC), wherein it was directed:"Heard the learned counsel for the parties. We are of the view that it is desirable that the petitioner may move a representation before the competent authority and if he does so within a period of one week raising all grievances, the same will be decided by a speaking and reasoned order within a period of two weeks thereafter and the order shall not be given effect to immediately and shall be placed before this Court on the next date of hearing. List this matter after four weeks."] passed by this Court holding that the punishment should not be given effect to until it is produced before the Court at the time of the next hearing.

25. In B.C. Chaturvedi v. Union of India [(1995) 6 SCC 749 : 1996 SCC (L&S) 80 : (1996) 32 ATC 44 : AIR 1996 SC 484] , this Court after examining its various earlier decisions observed that in exercise of the power of judicial review, the court cannot "normally" substitute its own conclusion or penalty. However, if the penalty imposed by an authority "shocks the conscience" of the court, it would appropriately mould the relief either directing the authority to reconsider the penalty imposed and in exceptional and rare cases, in order to shorten the litigation, itself impose appropriate punishment with cogent reasons in support thereof. While examining the issue of proportionality, the court can also consider the circumstances under which the misconduct was committed. In a given case, the prevailing circumstances might have forced the accused to act in a certain manner though he had not intended to do so. The court may further examine the effect, if the order is set aside or substituted by some other penalty. However, it is only in very rare cases that the court might, to shorten the litigation, think of substituting its own view as to the quantum of punishment in place of punishment awarded by the competent authority."

33. It was in this context that when writ petition was entertained this Court noticed the submissions advanced on behalf of the petitioners in following words:-

"The order impugned is assailed on the ground that though it has been passed on specific charges but no opportunity of hearing has been given and no proceedings as per law have otherwise been undertaken. It is also submitted that petitioner had only pointed out various shortcomings and had not indulged in any act of misconduct. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that petitioner undertakes not to commit any such act in future. Learned counsel for the petitioner states that petitioner otherwise would submit an undertaking not to repeat any such act in future.

Sri S.K. Dubey, learned Chief Standing Counsel may obtain instructions in the matter, by the next date fixed.

Post as fresh on 2nd September 2019."

34. The respondents, however, have chosen to contest the matter and that is how the writ petition has been heard on merits.

35. The reply submitted by the petitioners to the show cause notice denying the allegations levelled against them has also not been considered. Explanation of petitioners, on merits, denying the allegations have been discarded by observing that they are not satisfactory. However, no reasons are given as to why petitioners' explanations is found unsatisfactory. No inquiry has otherwise been conducted to prove the charges. The reasons to reject petitioners reply, in the facts and circumstances of the case, is found to be absolutely cryptic and arbitrary.

36. In light of the discussions made above, this Court finds that the impugned action is wholly arbitrary, unreasonable and unsustainable in law. Consequently, order impugned dated 26th June, 2019, passed by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Prayagraj, cannot be sustained and is quashed. The writ petitions are, accordingly, allowed.

37. The petitioners shall submit an unconditional apology and would also submit an undertaking not to indulge in any form of protest of this kind in future. If such an undertaking is submitted alongwith certified copy of this order, the appointing authority shall pass appropriate orders by taking a sympathetic view in the matter, in light of the observations made above, for petitioners to complete their ongoing training. It would be open for the respondents to shift the petitioners to any other training centre as also recommended by the fact finding committee. Needful orders in that regard would be passed within six weeks from the date of presentation of certified copy of this order.

38. In the facts of the present case the parties shall bear their own costs.

Present petition challenges order dated 10.07.2019, passed by Settlement Officer of Consolidation, District – Unnao.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri S.S. Rajawat, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel for opposite parties no.1 to 4.

2. In view of the proposed order, notice to opposite party no.5 is hereby dispensed with.

3. By means of this petition, the petitioner has assailed the order dated 10.7.2019 passed by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation, District - Unnao whereby the application of the petitioner dated 18.6.2019 withdrawing the application for voluntary retirement dated 23.5.2019 has been rejected and application for voluntary retirement dated 23.5.2019 has been accepted.

4. The petitioner has submitted his application for voluntary retirement on 23.5.2019, which is contained in Annexure No.7 to the writ petition. Said application is an unconditional application. Thereafter, the competent authority has issued a letter dated 24.5.2019 to the petitioner, which is contained in Annexure No.9 to the writ petition, directing the petitioner to indicate the period as to when he is willing to be retired voluntarily. In the said application, it has categorically been indicated that if the petitioner does not indicate the period, he shall be deemed to be retired w.e.f. 22.8.2019 i.e. after expiry of three months' period w.e.f. 23.5.2019. Thereafter, the petitioner submitted an application on 18.6.2019 prior to 22.8.2019, withdrawing his voluntary retirement application dated 23.5.2019. In said application, the petitioner has narrated so many facts and circumstances but at the end he requested that since his voluntary retirement application has not been accepted by the department, therefore, the said application may not be accepted. After receiving the aforesaid application dated 18.6.2019, the authority competent has passed the order dated 10.7.2019, which is contained in Annexure No.1 to the writ petition, rejecting the application of the petitioner dated 18.6.2019 whereby he had withdrawn his voluntary retirement application dated 23.5.2019.

5. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that while rejecting the application of the petitioner dated 18.6.2019, the authority competent has dealt such application of the petitioner, by means of the impugned order, as if the application for compulsory retirement is being dealt with inasmuch as so many allegations have been levelled against the petitioner regarding his work, conduct and performance of duties. The impugned order goes to the extent that considering the entire service record of the petitioner and his work and conduct, he should not be retained in Government service, however no separate proceedings to that effect have ever been drawn against the petitioner. In the aforesaid backdrop, the impugned rejection order dated 10.7.2019 which has been passed by the competent authority appears to have exercised his jurisdiction in a whimsical and arbitrary manner, therefore, the order dated 10.7.2019 may be quashed.

6. Per contra, Sri Ran Vijay Singh has referred the relevant provision, which deals compulsory retirement i.e. Rule 56 of the Financial Hand Book, Volume II, Part II to IV. Sri Singh has referred Clauses (c) and (d) of the aforesaid Regulation 56, which are as under:-

"(c) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (a) or clause (b) the appointing authority may, at any time, by notice to any Government servant (whether permanent or temporary) without assigning any reason, require him to retire after he attains the age of 50 years, or such Government servant may, by notice to the appointing authority, voluntarily retire at any time after attaining the age of [forty five years] or after he had completed qualifying service of 20 years.

(d) The period of such notice shall be three months:

Provided that –

(i) any such Government servant may by order of the appointing authority, without such notice or by a shorter notice, be retired forthwith at any time after attaining the age of 50 years, and on such retirement the Government servant shall be entitled to claim a sum equivalent to the amount of his pay plus allowances, if any, for the period of the notice or, as the case may be, for the period by which such notice falls short of three months, at the rates at which he was drawing them immediately before his retirement;

(ii) it shall be open to the appointing authority to allow a Government servant to retire without any notice or by a shorter notice without requiring the Government servant to pay any penalty in lieu of notice:

Provided further that such notice given by the Government servant against whom a disciplinary proceeding in pending or contemplated, shall be effective only if it is accepted by the appointing authority, provided that in the case of a contemplated disciplinary proceeding the Government servant shall be informed before the expiry of his notice that it has not been accepted;

Provided also that the notice once given by a Government servant under clause (c) seeking voluntary retirement shall not be withdrawn by him except with the permission of the appointing authority."

7. Sri Singh has submitted that the second proviso of Regulation 56 (d) categorically provides that notice once given by the Government servant under Clause (c) seeking voluntary retirement shall not be withdrawn by him except with the permission of the appointing authority and since in the case in hand, the appointing authority has not found any plausible reason to accept the withdrawal application of the petitioner, therefore, rejected the same vide order dated 10.7.2019. As per Sri Singh, there is no infirmity or illegality in the order dated 10.7.2019.

8. Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel has also submitted that Annexure No.3 to the writ petition is a letter preferred by the petitioner directly to the Chief Minister, which is misconduct on the part of the petitioner. Sri Singh has further submitted with vehemence that the petitioner has not withdrawn his application for voluntary retirement vide letter dated 18.6.2019 unconditionally but has indicated so many conditions casting aspersions on the superior authorities, therefore, the authority concerned has passed the order dated 10.7.2019 considering those circumstances and facts.

9. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the relevant material available on record, I am of the considered opinion that the authority competent has not passed the order dated 10.7.2019 strictly in accordance with law and he has dealt the issue of resignation/ voluntary retirement as if it is an issue of compulsory retirement.

10. The case in hand is a case of voluntary retirement. Sometimes voluntary retirement and resignation are taken in a similar way. Both the resignation and the voluntary retirement expressed the voluntary desire of an employee to cease his/ her occupation and all duties that go along with it. They may result from number of reasons, including personal grievances or a disability that prevents the satisfactory completion of work. Neither, however, inherently conveys any sense of wrong doing. Both exist strategies require one to provide advance written notice to the employer, with a final day of service that is clearly delineated and unconditional. Therefore, one thing is for sure that the application for voluntary retirement and resignation should be unconditional and before the said application is accepted, it can be withdrawn. However, in the case of voluntary retirement, the said withdrawal would be permissible subject to the prescription of law as applicable but it is not the case regarding resignation. Further, the touchstone and thumb rules in both the cases may largely be similar while considering a particular issue.

11. In the case of resignation, the law is settled that resignation must be unconditional and having intention to operate as such in view of the dictum of the Hon'ble Apex Court in re; Dr. Prabha Atri v. State of U.P. and others, (2003) 1 SCC 701. In the present case, the withdrawal application of the petitioner is unconditional, therefore, it qualifies this test. This analogy may be accepted in case of voluntary retirement.

12. Secondly, resignation can be withdrawn before the same has been accepted by the competent authority. In the instant case, the application of the petitioner regarding voluntary retirement had not been accepted and it was deemed to be accepted w.e.f. 22.8.2019 i.e. the period of three months from tendering such application but the petitioner has withdrawn his said application on 18.6.2019. The Hon'ble Apex Court in re; Balram Gupta v. Union of India and another, 1987 (Supp) SCC 228, has considered more or less identical circumstance and held in para-13 as under:-

"13. We hold, therefore, that there was no valid reason for withholding the permission by the respondent. We hold further that there has been compliance with the guidelines because the appellant has indicated that there was a change in the circumstances, namely, the persistent and personal requests from the staff members and relations which changed his attitude towards continuing in Government service and induced the appellant to withdraw the notice. In the modern and uncertain age it is very difficult to arrange one's future with any amount of certainty, a certain amount of flexibility is required, and if such flexibility does not jeopardize Government or administration, administration should be graceful enough to respond and acknowledge the flexibility of human mind and attitude and allow the appellant to withdraw his letter of retirement in the facts and circumstances of this case. Much complications which had arisen could have been thus avoided by such graceful attitude. The court cannot but condemn circuitous ways "to ease out" uncomfortable employees. As a model employer the government must conduct itself with high probity and candour with its employees."

13. The competent authority could have passed any order indicating other reasons except those which have been considered in the impugned order relating to appreciation of his service records, work and conduct etc. of the petitioner. Had the petitioner been retired compulsorily under Regulation 56, the findings of competent authority vide order dated 10.7.2019 would have been justified but this is a case of voluntary retirement, which was withdrawn by the employee before it has been accepted, therefore, the findings of impugned order dated 10.7.2019 are absolutely unwarranted and uncalled for. The High Court of Delhi has considered more or less identical issue in re; Poonam Garg Vs. IFCI Venture Capital Funds Ltd. through its Managing Director & others, W.P. (C) 9304/2019 & C.M. No.38360/2019 (stay) following various dictums of the Hon'ble Apex Court on the subject, which has been decided on 27.9.2019 and paragraphs 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 & 21 are relevant for the present issue, which are being quoted herein below:-

"16. The question as to when an employee can be allowed to withdraw his request for resignation or voluntary retirement and the employer"s right to reject such request for withdrawal has been considered by the Supreme Court from time to time and the common thread running through all these decisions is that in normal circumstances, an employee can withdraw its resignation before it comes into effect or operation. In this regard, reference may be made to paragraph 41 of Union of India Vs. Gopal Chandra Misra (1978) 2 SCC 301.

"41. The general principle that emerges from the foregoing conspectus, is that in the absence of anything to the contrary in the provisions governing the terms and conditions of the office/post, an intimation in writing sent to the competent authority by the incumbent, of his intention or proposal to resign his office/post from a future specified date can be withdrawn by him at any time before it becomes effective, i.e. before it effects termination of the tenure of the office/post or the employment."

17.The Apex Court in Air India Express Limited and Ors. Vs. Gurdarshan Kaur Sandhu 2019 (11) SCALE 310 has in paragraph 17 of its decision, after considering its earlier decisions in Gopal Chandra Misra (supra), Balram Gupta (supra), Punjab National Bank Vs. P.K. Mittal 1989 Supp (2) SCC 175 and J.N. Srivastava (supra), summarised the circumstances in which withdrawal of a request for voluntary retirement can be permitted by observing as under:

"17. It is thus well settled that normally, until the resignation becomes effective, it is open to an employee to withdraw his resignation. When would the resignation become effective may depend upon the governing service regulations and/or the terms and conditions of the office/post. As stated in paragraphs 41 and 50 in Gopal Chandra Misra, "in the absence of anything to the contrary in the provisions governing the terms and conditions of the office/post" or "in the absence of a legal contractual or constitutional bar, a "prospective resignation" can be withdrawn at any time before it becomes effective". Further, as laid down in Balram Gupta, "If, however, the administration had made arrangements acting on his resignation or letter of retirement to make other employee available for his job, that would be another matter."

18. The petitioner's application for voluntary retirement, having been made in accordance with paragraph 33 of the Regulations, as also the fact that the contentions raised by both sides revolve around the language of paragraphs 33(2)(i), (ii) and (v), it would be apposite to reproduce the same for the facility of reference. The relevant extracts of paragraphs 33 (2)(i), (ii), (iii) and (v) of the Regulations read as under:-

"33. Superannuation and Retirement .....….

(i) An employee who has attained the age of 50 years shall have an option to retire anytime thereafter by giving to the Company three months' notice in writing.

(ii) Without prejudice to the sub regulation 2(i), the employee of the Company may voluntary retire at any time after the completion of 20 years of qualifying service (even though he has not attained the age of 50 years), after giving to the competent authority three months notice in writing. Provided that this sub regulation shall not apply to an employee who is on deputation or study leave abroad, unless after having been transferred or having returned to India, he has resumed the charge of the post in India and served for a period of not less than one year.

Provided further that this sub regulation, shall not apply to an employee who seeks retirement from service for being absorbed permanently in an autonomous body or a public sector undertaking to which he is on deputation at the time of seeking voluntary retirement.

(iii) The notice or voluntary retirement given under sub-Regulation (ii) shall not be valid unless it is accepted by the Competent Authority, Provided that where the Competent Authority does not communicate its decision not to accept such notice before the expiry or period specified in the notice, the retirement shall become effective from the date of expiry of such period.

(v) An employee, who has elected to voluntarily retire, pursuant to sub-Regulation 2 (ii) and has given notice for the purpose, shall not be entitled to withdraw the notice, except with the permission of the Competent Authority, provided that the request for such withdrawal shall be made before the intended date of his retirement."

19. The petitioner has, by placing reliance on paragraph 33(2)(v), contended that the Regulations clearly envisage that an employee seeking voluntary retirement would be entitled to withdraw the said request subject to such withdrawal being made prior to the intended date of retirement. On the other hand, the respondents have vehemently contended that the petitioner"s application for voluntary retirement was covered under paragraph 33(2)(i) of the Regulations which entitles an employee to seek withdrawal of its request for voluntary retirement; it is only cases governed by paragraph 33(2)(ii) when an application seeking withdrawal of an earlier request can be entertained by the management, but even this withdrawal is subject to the permission of the Competent Authority. The respondents have, therefore, contended that no employee has an absolute right to seek withdrawal of his application for voluntary retirement. Upon a careful perusal of the Regulations, I am unable to accept the respondents" contentions that paragraph 33(2)(v) is not applicable to cases where voluntary retirement has been sought under paragraph 33(2)(i). Once paragraph 33(2)(ii) states in no uncertain terms that it operates without prejudice to the provisions of paragraph 33(2)(i), it is evident that any request for withdrawal envisaged under paragraph 33(2)(v) would include requests for voluntary retirement made under both paragraphs 33(2)(i) and (ii) and, therefore, the respondents" plea that the petitioner was not entitled to seek withdrawal under Paragraph 33(2)(v) is wholly unmerited.

20. In any event, even if the respondents" plea that paragraph 33(2)(v) of the Regulations was not applicable to paragraph 33(2)(i) were to be accepted, it would only imply that there is no provision in the Regulations dealing with the withdrawal of an application made under paragraph 33(2)(i) while an application made under paragraph 33(2)(ii) can be withdrawn subject to conditions prescribed in paragraph 33(2)(v). Thus, as per the case sought to be pleaded by the respondent, once there is no specific provision for withdrawal of an application made under paragraph 33(2)(i), a necessary corollary thereof is that there is neither any specific bar nor any conditions attached to seeking withdrawal of a request for voluntary retirement made under paragraph 33(2)(i). In these circumstances, any requests for withdrawal of an application made under paragraph 33(2)(i) would necessarily be covered by general principles which provide that even in the absence of any specific provision in the regulations, an employee can seek withdrawal of his request for resignation or voluntary retirement. Reference in this regard may be made to the observations of the Supreme Court as contained in paragraph 8 in P.K. Mittal (supra), which read as under:-

would have come normally to an end in terms of his letter dated 21-1-1986. But, by that time, he had exercised his right to withdraw the resignation. Since the withdrawal letter was written before the resignation became effective, the resignation stands withdrawn, with the result that the respondent continues to be in the service of the bank. It is true that there is no specific provision in the regulations permitting the employee to withdraw the resignation. It is, however, not necessary that there should be any such specific rule. Until the resignation becomes effective on the terms of the letter read with Regulation 20, it is open to the employee, on general principles, to withdraw his letter of resignation. That is why, in some cases of public services, this right of withdrawal is also made subject to the permission of the employer. There is no such clause here. It is not necessary to labour this point further as it is well settled by the earlier decisions of this Court in Raj Kumar v. Union of India [(1968) 3 SCR 857 : AIR 1969 SC 180 : 1969 Lab IC 310] , Union of India v. Gopal Chandra Misra [(1978) 3 SCC 301 : 1978 SCC (L&S) 303 : (1978) 3 SCR 12] and Balram Gupta v. Union of India [1987 Supp SCC 228 : 1988 SCC (L&S) 126]"

21. Thus, when looked at from any angle it is evident that the petitioner was well within her right to seek withdrawal of her request for voluntary retirement before its effective date. If paragraph 33(2)(v) is taken as not being applicable to the petitioner"s case, then her request had to be considered as per the general principles laid down by the Supreme Court, which as noted hereinabove prescribe that a request for resignation can be withdrawn anytime before it becomes effective. The petitioner"s voluntary retirement was to be effective from 07.09.2019, not only as per her application but even as per the alleged acceptance of the respondent. Her withdrawal application, therefore, having been made much earlier, was liable to be accepted. On the other hand, if paragraph 33(2)(v) is taken as being applicable to the petitioner"s case, the only rider therein is that the leave of the Competent Authority was required before seeking such withdrawal, but as rightly contended by the petitioner the Competent Authority cannot be permitted to exercise its discretion in this regard in a wholly whimsical and arbitrary manner. The petitioner has served the Company for 24 years without any complaint whatsoever against her and had been promoted as a General Manager, yet its impugned order assigns no reason whatsoever for rejecting her request. There is also no reason as to why the Company should not permit the petitioner to seek withdrawal of her request, especially since she sought the same within barely 6 days of her making the application for voluntary retirement. It is not even the case of the Company that they had appointed any new person to assume the duties of the petitioner or had in any manner invested in training any new employee for the post which she was holding. Merely because the respondent No.1 had issued an order on 11.06.2019 redistributing the duties of its employees, would not be a ground to deprive the petitioner of the right available to her under law. Once the Company"s Regulations do not require an employee to provide reasons at the time of seeking voluntary retirement or seeking withdrawal thereof, the petitioner"s failure to provide any reasons either at the time of submitting her application seeking voluntary retirement or while seeking withdrawal thereof cannot be a ground to reject her request for withdrawal. In the facts of the present case, when the withdrawal was sought within a short span of time when neither any new personnel had been appointed nor any substantial reorganisation of personnel had been carried out by the Company, the rejection of the petitioner"s request for withdrawal was wholly unjustified. Even the contention of the respondents that the petitioner is habituated to requesting voluntary retirement as a manner of protesting her transfer remains unsubstantiated as nothing has been placed on record in support thereof."

14. Before the Delhi High Court the relevant rule applicable in the case was cited in Regulation 33 of the Regulations and Sub-clause (v) of Regulation 33 is pari materia of second proviso of Sub-clause (d) of Regulation 56 and the Delhi High Court has dealt the issue and has found that such condition may not be treated as rider if the application for voluntary retirement is withdrawn before its acceptance. In the said case before the Delhi High Court, while rejecting the application of that petitioner whereby resignation was withdrawn no condition was imposed, however, in the present case those conditions have been imposed, which could have not been imposed while disposing of the issue of voluntary retirement. Therefore, it appears that discretion of the competent authority rejecting the application of the petitioner dated 18.6.2019 is wholly whimsical and arbitrary.

15. Before parting with, it is needless to say that if the petitioner has shown serious indiscipline in his entire service career as his application dated 18.6.2019 and that application which has directly been addressed to the Chief Minister are an example of gross indiscipline as per learned counsel for the opposite parties, any appropriate orders can be passed by the authority concerned but strictly in accordance with law, however, while disposing of the application for withdrawal of the application of voluntary retirement, his entire service record and his behaviour, work and conduct may not be appreciated in a manner as if it is a case of compulsory retirement. The separate mode has been prescribed if the order of compulsory retirement is passed. The authority cannot use the application of voluntary retirement for retiring the employee compulsorily.

16. In view of the above, the order dated 10.7.2019 passed by opposite party no.4 is not sustainable in the eyes of law and liable to be quashed. Accordingly, the order dated 10.7.2019 passed by opposite party no.4 is hereby quashed.

17. The liberty is given to the opposite parties to pass a fresh order strictly in accordance with law within a period of six weeks from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

18. A writ in the nature of mandamus is issued commanding the opposite parties to permit the petitioner forthwith to continue on the post in question on which he was discharging his duties before submitting his application for voluntary retirement and pay him his salary and other consequential services benefits with promptness, say within a period of four weeks, as per law.

19. The writ petition is accordingly allowed.

20. No order as to costs.

THE HON'BLE ATTAU RAHMAN MASOODI , J.

Service Single No.28414 of 2019

Sanjay Tewari ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Sunil Kumar Mishra, Sri Ghufran Hussain, Sri Vineet Bihari Patel.

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri Puneet Chandra.

A. Service Law- Disciplinary Proceedings – Uttar Pradesh Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999 - Rule 7(IV); U.P Fundamental Rules: Rule 56(a) – Commencement of Departmental Enquiry. Service or dispatch through permissible mode of service and not preparation or signing of the charge-sheet would constitute commencement of the Disciplinary Proceedings.

Whether a retired public servant can be visited with a charge- sheet in his afternoon of his last working day in office when he is understood to have retired? Merely for the fact that the charge sheet is dated a day prior to the date of retirement, would not amount to the initiation of the disciplinary proceedings unless a copy thereof was duly served upon the petitioner or at least the same was dispatched to him through the permissible mode of service. (Para 6, 18, 21). The issuance of charge-sheet in relation to an occurrence having taken place after more than a year of petitioner's transfer would stand vitiated for want of service before 12 O'clock on 28.02.2019 (date of retirement) and sending the charge-sheet by e-mail in the afternoon was thus hit by a jurisdictional error. (Para 15)

B. Uttar Pradesh Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999: Rule 7(IV) - None of the punishments envisaged under Rules 1999 would at all stand attracted in a situation where a public servant has retired from service. Therefore, the purpose of initiating disciplinary proceedings under the Rules 1999 cannot be allowed to travel to invade upon the protection which the Rules provide for a retired public servant. (Para 10, 14)

C. Civil Service Regulations: Regulation 351-A - Once a public servant has retired, the proceedings can be initiated only by following the procedure under Regulation 351-A of the Civil Service Regulations, provided there is no bar -

The disciplinary proceedings with the issuance of charge-sheet treating him a public servant was erroneous and invades upon the power of Governor. (Para 21)

1. State of M.P. Vs. Onkar Chand Sharma, (2001) 9 SCC 171 (Para 19)

Present petition challenges charge-sheet dated 27.02.2019 and show-cause notice dated 14.08.2019.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Attau Rahman Masoodi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Manish Kumar learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Ghufran Hussain learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri N.K. Seth learned counsel assisted by Sri Puneet Chandra learned counsel for the opposite parties. Shri Alok Sharma learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has put in appearance for the State.

2. At the very outset, a preliminary objection was raised by Sri N.K. Seth learned Senior Counsel appearing for the opposite parties that the present writ petition as against the charge-sheet and show cause notice is not maintainable. The show cause notice dated 14.8.2019 is contained as annexure 1 to this writ petition whereas the charge-sheet dated 27.2.2019 is contained as annexure 2.

3. It is well settled that ordinarily this Court in exercise of writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India would not entertain a writ petition arising out of the charge-sheet and show-cause notice but if the charge-sheet and show cause notice issued by an authority suffer from lack of jurisdiction, the Court may overrule an objection and proceed on merit.

4. Learned counsel for the opposite parties has placed reliance upon the judgments of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Special Director and another versus Mohd. Ghulam Ghouse and another reported in (2004)3 SCC 440 and case of Union of India and another versus Kunisetty Satyanarayana reported in (2006)12 SCC 28 as well as the order passed by this Court in Writ-A No. 11382 of 2015(Vijay Pal Singh versus State of U.P. and 3 others). The judgments mentioned above propound the same principle as has been appreciated herein-above.

5. The present case however is a case where lack of jurisdiction in the issuance of charge-sheet and consequently show cause notice on the basis of inquiry report submitted is prima facie made out. Thus, the preliminary objection raised by learned Senior counsel for the opposite parties is overruled. The prayer for seeking time to file counter affidavit in a situation where pure question of law is involved would merely prolong the case for no purpose, hence the same is declined.

6. Proceeding to consider the matter on merit, it may be stated that the petitioner while holding the post of Chief Engineer attained the age of superannuation on 28.2.2019. It is on 28.2.2019 that a charge-sheet dated 27.2.2019 came to be served upon him. Merely for the fact that the charge-sheet is dated 27.2.2019 would not amount to the initiation of the disciplinary proceedings unless a copy thereof was duly served upon the petitioner or at least the same was dispatched to him through the permissible mode of service.

7. On the aspect of dispatch of the charge-sheet, the only mode adopted by the opposite parties as has been explained before this Court is through an email sent on 28.2.2019 at 12.20 p.m. That apart, the charge-sheet was also served upon the petitioner on 28.2.2019 at 5.47 p.m. personally. Both the modes of service as disclosed before this Court by the opposite parties on the basis of instructions are clearly in the afternoon on 28.2.2019. There is no proof of service of charge-sheet through any other mode except what has been stated above.

8. This being the factual position, learned counsel for the petitioner taking aid of Rule 56(a) of the Fundamental Rules has argued that a public servant is deemed to have retired from service in the afternoon of the last working day of his service tenure. Therefore, the issuance of charge-sheet after public servant has retired is impermissible and would serve no purpose of the Discipline and Appeal Rules which postulate minor and major punishments.

9. For ready reference, Rule 56 of the Fundamental Rules is produced hereunder:-

"56. (a) Except as otherwise provided in this rule, every Government servant shall retire from service on the afternoon of the last day of the month in which he attains the age of sixty years:

Provided that a Government servant, whose date of birth is the first day of a month, shall retire from service on the afternoon of the last day of the preceding month on attaining the age of sixty years:

Provided further that a Government Servant, who has attained the age of fifty-eight years on or before the first day of the November, 2001 and is on extension in service, shall retire from service on expiry of his extended period of service.

(a-1) No Government servant shall be granted extension in service beyond the age of retirement of sixty years:

Provided that a Government servant dealing with budget work or working as a full time member of a committee which is to be wound up within a short period of time may be granted, by the Government, extension of service for a period not exceeding thre*e months in public interest.*

Provided further that a Government servant holding highly specialized technical job whose replacement has not been possible to the arranged before his retirement even after efforts made in this regard, may be granted extension of service up to the age of sixty-two years, if such extension is unavoidable in public interest and the grounds for such extension are recorded in writing:

Note- Each case for extension of service under this clause shall be put up for orders to the Chief Minister through the Chief Secretary.

(a-2) Notwithstanding any thing to the contrary contained in clause (a) or clause (a-1) of this rule, a Government servant may, if considered necessary, in public interest, so to do, be granted extension of service up to the age of sixty-two years with the prior approval of the Cabinet.

Provided that in the cases of extension in service under clauses(a-1) and (a-2) of this rule, Government shall have the right to terminate the extension of service before expiry of such extension by giving a notice in writing of not less than three months in the case of a permanent or, of one month in the case of a temporary Government servant, or pay and allowances in lieu of such notice".

10. There is no dispute on the aspect that the service Rules applicable to the government servants are equally applicable to the present petitioner who is serving in U.P. Rajya Vidyut Vitaran Nigam Limited. There is yet another ground which goes to the root of the impugned disciplinary proceedings initiated under U.P. Government Servant(Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999(hereinafter referred to as the Rules, 1999). The reason is that none of the punishments envisaged under the Rules-1999 would at all stand attracted in a situation where a public servant has retired from service. Looking to the nature of punishments envisaged under the Discipline and Appeal Rules, 1999 the interpretation of Rule 56(a) of the Fundamental Rules has to be made so as to serve the purpose of Discipline and Appeal Rules as well as Regulation 351-A of the Civil Service Regulations. The phrase 'afternoon' in common parlance is referable to a point of time after 12 O' clock in the day.

11. Looking to the factual position in the present case, once it is clear that the charge-sheet was attempted to be communicated to the petitioner after 12 O' clock in the day on 28.2.2019, there is no reason for this Court to understand the service of charge-sheet prior to 12 O' clock on 28.2.2019. The question of jurisdiction would thus arise as to whether a retired public servant can be visited with a charge-sheet in the afternoon of his last working day in office when he is understood to have retired.

12. Learned counsel or the petitioner in order to substantiate the argument has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Union of India and others versus Dinanath Shantaram Karekar and others reported in 1998(16) LCD-1274. The judgment cited by the petitioner lends support to the argument purforth.

13. Sri N.K. Seth, learned Senior counsel in reply to the submission has argued that the charge-sheet having been drawn on 27.2.2019 was in fact served upon the petitioner on 28.2.2019, as such, it is quite possible that the petitioner may have evaded service on the same very day. It is however not disputed that apart from the mode of service through e-mail or personal service, any other mode of service was adopted. It is well known that the service through email is the most expeditious mode of service which too has been invoked on 28.2.2019 at 12.20 pm. This Court would have appreciated dispatch through any other mode of service provided the e-mail was not sent but in the present case, the e-mail itself was sent in the afternoon. The last day of working in one's service tenure is recognized only up to the noon and this has a definite purpose that the officer soon thereafter becomes functus officio. Any other understanding of the rule would do violence to the very purpose of Fundamental Rule 56(a). The purpose of Discipline and Appeal Rules is not only to initiate the disciplinary proceedings but to achieve the purpose of punishments envisaged therein.

14. Even if it is assumed that the charge-sheet was served on 28.2.2019 yet none of the punishment as envisaged under the Rules, 1999 can be inflicted upon the petitioner. Once all the punishments envisaged under the Rules, 1999 are incapable of being inflicted upon the petitioner, the purpose of initiating disciplinary proceedings under the Rules, 1999 cannot be allowed to travel to invade upon the protection which the Rules provide for a retired public servant. Nothing beyond the scope of Rules was in fact a subject matter of consideration before the competent authority at the time of taking such a decision.

15. Thus, the issuance of charge-sheet in relation to an occurrence having taken place after more than one year of petitioner's transfer would stand vitiated for want of service before 12 O' clock on 28.2.2019 and sending the charge-sheet by e.mail in the afternoon was thus hit by a jurisdictional error.

16. For ready reference, the punishments envisaged under the Rules 1999 are reproduced hereunder :-

3. Penalties. -The following penalties may, for good and sufficient reasons and as hereinafter provided, be imposed upon the Government servants :

Minor Penalties :

(i) Censure;

(ii) Withholding of increments for a specified period;

(iii) Stoppage at an efficiency bar;

(iv) Recovery from pay of the whole or part of any pecuniary loss caused to Government by negligence or breach of orders;

(v) Fine in case of persons holding Group 'D' posts;

Provided that the amount of such fine shall in no case exceed twenty-five percent of the month's pay in which fine is imposed.

Major Penalties :

(i) Withholding of increments with cumulative effect;

(ii) Reduction to a lower post or grade or time scale or to a lower stage in a time scale;

(iii) Removal from the service which does not disqualify from future employment;

(iv) Dismissal from the service which disqualifies from future employment.

Explanation. - The following shall not amount to penalty within the meaning of this rule, namely :

(i) Withholding of increment of a Government servant for failure to pass a departmental examination or for failure to fulfil any other condition in accordance with the rules or orders governing tire service;

(ii) Stoppage at the efficiency bar in the time scale of pay on account of ones not being found fit to cross the efficiency bar;

(iii) Reversion of a person appointed on probation to the service during or at the end of the period of probation in accordance with the terms of appointment or the rules and orders governing such probation;

(iv) Termination of the service of a person appointed on probation during or at the end of the period of probation in accordance with the terms of the service or the rules and orders governing such probation.

17. The only course open to the opposite parties is to proceed against the petitioner treating him to have retired from service in accordance with the rules as may be applicable to a retired public servant. The case at hand is not the one where the opposite parties have taken aid of Discipline and Appeal Rules, 1999 treating the petitioner having retired. The period subsequent to the afternoon of last day of service tenure is a privileged period for the public servant to commemorate his contribution and association with his colleagues and subordinate staff. He becomes functus officio in the afternoon. It is for this purpose that a public servant is understood to have retired in the afternoon of last working day otherwise a decision taken prior to retirement would make no difference whether it is issued before or after retirement. The disciplinary proceedings after the date of retirement have to be commenced on a different consideration altogether. It is for this reason that Regulation 351-A of Civil Service Regulations has used a guarded language. Regulation 351-A is reproduced below :-

"351-A. The Governor reserves to himself the right of withholding or withdrawing a pension or any part of it, whether permanently or for a specified period and the right of ordering the recovery from a pension of the whole or part of any pecuniary loss caused to Government, if the pensioner is found in departmental or judicial proceedings to have been guilty of grave misconduct, or to have caused pecuniary loss to Government by misconduct or negligence, during his service, including service rendered on re-employment after retirement.

Provided that -

(a) such departmental proceedings, if not instituted while the officer was on duty either before retirement or during re-employment-

(i) shall not be instituted save with the sanction of the Governor.

(ii) shall be in respect of an event which took place not more than four years before the institution of such proceeding; and

(iii) shall be conducted by such authority and in such place or places as the Governor may direct and in accordance with the procedure applicable to proceedings on which an order of dismissal from service may be made.

(b) Judicial proceedings, if not instituted while the officer was on duty either before retirement or during re-employment, shall have been instituted in accordance with sub-clause (ii) of clause (a); and

(c) the Public Service Commission, U.P. Shall be consulted before final orders are passed.

[Provided further that of the order passed by the Governor relates to a cash dealt with under the Uttar Pradesh Disciplinary proceedings,(Administrative Tribunal) Rules, 1947, it shall not be necessary to consult Public Service Commission]

Explanation- For the purposes of this article-

(a) Departmental proceedings shall be deemed to have been instituted when the charges framed against the pensioner are issued to him, or, if the officer has been placed under suspension from an earlier date, on such date;

(b) judicial proceedings shall be deemed to have been instituted :

(i) in the case of criminal proceedings, on the date on which compliant is made, or a charge-sheet is submitted, to a criminal court; and

(ii) in the case of civil proceedings, on the date on which the plaint is presented or, as the case may be, an application is made to a Civil court".

18. Regulation 351-A maintains continuity of disciplinary proceedings initiated before retirement. It further provides that the disciplinary proceedings shall be deemed to have been instituted when the charges framed against the pensioner are issued. The charges in the present case were issued in the afternoon on 28.2.2011 when the petitioner had ceased to be in service and had assumed the status of a pensioner for having retired. Thus, the proceedings cannot be deemed to have been instituted. Therefore, once a public servant has retired, the proceedings can be initiated only by following the procedure under Regulation 351-A of the Civil Service Regulations, provided there is no bar.

19. There is yet another judgment rendered by Hon'ble the Apex Court reported in (2001), 9 SCC 171(State of M.P. versus Onkar Chand Sharma) which the Court may notice in absence of any assistance rendered by learned counsel for the parties.

20. In the abovementioned case, the dispute which fell for consideration before Hon'ble the apex Court was as to when the disciplinary proceedings can be said to have been initiated. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the circumstances of the case where an officer was placed under suspension has held that the disciplinary proceedings are to be treated to have been initiated on the date when the charge-sheet was signed.

21. In the present case, the petitioner was not placed under suspension, therefore, the initiation of the disciplinary proceedings is to be understood within the scope of the plain reading of the relevant Rules. Regulation 351-A of the Civil Service Regulations as well as Rule 7(IV) of the U.P. Government Servants Discipline and Appeal Rules, 1999 make it clear that unless the charge-sheet is issued, neither the disciplinary proceedings can be said to have been initiated nor the period of 15 days for reply can be computed from any other date. The issue of charge is thus relevant. It is to be noted that the issuance of charge-sheet in the present case on 28.2.2019 at 12.20 p.m. by e-mail leaves no manner of doubt that the charges framed were issued in the afternoon on 28.2.2019 and at that time, the petitioner had entered into the retiral age by virtue of Rule 56(a) of the fundamental Rules. Once the status of the petitioner was recognized as that of a retired public servant from the afternoon on 28.2.2019 i.e. last working day, this Court is of a clear opinion that the disciplinary proceedings with the issuance of charge-sheet treating him a public servant was erroneous and invades upon the power of Governor. This Court for the reasons aforesaid would thus draw a distinction insofar as the applicability of apex Court judgment mentioned above to the present case is concerned. Moreover, the earlier judgment of the apex Court reported in 1998(16) LCD-1274(supra) does not seem to have been considered in the later judgment. That apart the statutory Rules under consideration also stand at variance.

22. This Court would have adhered to the well settled principle of not entertaining this writ petition as against the charge-sheet coupled with consequential proceedings but for the fact that the charge-sheet in respect of an occurrence having taken place after more than one year of petitioner's transfer was not served prior to noon on 28.2.2019, therefore, the impugned action lacks authority of law and could not be legally continued under Regulation 351-A of Civil Service Regulations read in conjunction with Discipline and Appeal Rules, 1999. The ground for interference is made out. In these circumstances, prolonging this case any further for no useful purpose would be unjust. However, liberty is open to the opposite party to proceed against the petitioner in accordance with law.

23. The writ petition is accordingly allowed. The impugned charges-sheet dated 27.2.2019 along with the consequential proceedings are hereby set aside. Consequences to follow. There shall be no order as to cost.

Precedent followed:-

1. Ashok Kumar Singh Vs St. of U.P. & ors. [(2006) 3 UPLBEC 2247] (Para 13, 14, 15, 16)

Present petition challenges suspension order dated 14.08.2019, passed by Additional Director of Education (Basic), U.P., Prayagraj.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Manish Kumar, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Ajay Pratap Singh, Advocate for the petitioner, Dr. Uday Veer Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents and Sri J.B.S. Rathour, learned counsel for the opposite party No.4.

2. Learned counsel for the petitioner has filed the supplementary affidavit, today in the Court, the same is taken on record.

3. In compliance of order dated 19.11.2019, Sri J.B.S. Rathour has produced the copy of letter dated 21.11.2019 preferred by the District Basic Education Officer, Sultanpur addressing to his counsel wherein the authority has indicated that at the time of suspension of the petitioner he was serving on the post of Personal Assistant Grade-II. The letter dated 21.11.2019 is taken on record.

4. By means of this writ petition, the petitioner has assailed the impugned suspension order dated 14.08.2019 passed by the Additional Director of Education (Basic), U.P., Prayagraj.

5. The main ground to assail the suspension order is that the impugned suspension order has not been passed by the Competent Authority inasmuch as as per the learned counsel for the petitioner the petitioner was serving on the post of Steno-cum-Clerk when the suspension order was passed and placing any Clerk under suspension is an authority vested with the Joint Director of Education (Basic).

7. Sri Manish Kumar, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioner has strongly objected the contents of the instructions letter dated 21.11.2019 produced by Sri Rathour wherein it has been indicated that the petitioner was serving on the post of Personal Assistant Grade-II at the time of suspension by submitting that the petitioner was promoted on the post of Personal Assistant Grade-II vide order dated 16.10.2017 (Annexure No.8 to the writ petition), whereby as many as 103 Stenos have been promoted on the post of Personal Assistant.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn attention of this Court towards Annexure No.9 of the writ petition, whereby the petitioner has preferred a representation to the District Basic Education Officer, Sultanpur forgoing his promotion order so made on 16.10.2017.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further drawn attention of this Court towards Annexure No.10 of the writ petition, which are salary certificates of the petitioner issued on 02.01.2019, which indicate that the petitioner is serving on the post of Steno and has been getting salary as admissible for the post of Steno.

10. Further, Sri Manish Kumar, learned Senior Advocate has demonstrated the letter dated 25.06.2019 (Annexure No.2 to the writ petition) preferred by the Joint Secretary, Government of U.P., to the Director of Education (Basic), U.P., Lucknow apprising about the suspension of the petitioner wherein the designation of the petitioner has been indicated as Clerk. Not only the above, Annexure No.6 which is a preliminary inquiry report relating to one Sri Kaustubh Kumar Singh, the then District Basic Education Officer, Sultanpur the designation of the petitioner in the finding has been indicated as Clerk, therefore, Sri Kumar has submitted that the aforesaid letter of the department and the government order clearly indicate that the petitioner was serving on the post of Clerk.

11. Sri Manish Kumar has further drawn attention of this Court towards Annexure No.SA-1 of the supplementary affidavit, which is Uttar Pradesh Shiksha Lipik Varga Sewa Niymawali, 1985 and Appendix-Ka thereof clearly indicates that the Appointing Authority for the post of Steno is Regional Joint Director of Education. By means of Annexure No.SA-2 of the supplementary affidavit, the Government Order dated 12.12.1995 has been enclosed whereby the division of works amongst the Superior Authorities of the Education Department has been indicated. The appendix of the aforesaid Government Order clearly provides that the Joint Director of Education shall have various powers and Item No.5 of the aforesaid Appendix clearly reveals that for making appointment, promotion and imposing any sort punishment the authority competent would be the Joint Director of Education.

12. Therefore, in view of the above, it is clear that the petitioner was serving on the post of Clerk when the suspension order has been issued by the Additional Director of Education (Basic), who is not the Competent Authority to pass such order being a Superior Authority to the Competent Authority.

13. Sri Manish Kumar, learned Senior Advocate has also drawn attention of this Court towards the Division Bench judgment of this Court in re: Ashok Kumar Singh vs. State of U.P. & others reported in [(2006) 3 UPLBEC 2247] referring paras-13 and 14 thereof whereby the Division Bench of this Court has categorically held that the order of suspension can be passed only by the Disciplinary Authority. However, the order to initiate the disciplinary proceedings may be passed by the Superior Authority. The relevant paras-13 and 14 of the judgment are being quoted below:-

"13. In the case of Ram Narain Tiwari (supra) this Court held that an authority higher in rank than the appointing authority cannot pass the order of suspension and if such order of suspension is passed, the same would be incompetent and void. In the case of Bharat Lal (supra) another Division Bench of this Court held that it is only the appointing authority which can pass an order of suspension. So far as the law laid down in the case of Director General ESI v. T. Abdul Razak (supra) is concerned, the Hon'ble Apex Court held that "the legal position is well settled that it is not necessary that the authority competent to impose the penalty must initiate the disciplinary proceedings and that the proceedings can be initiated by any superior authority who can be held to be the controlling authority who may be an officer subordinate to the appointing authority. (See State of M.P. v. Shardul Singh (1993) 1 SCC 419, P.V. Srinivasa Sastry v. Comptroller (1993) 1 SCC 419 and Auditor General and Inspector General of Police v. Thavasiappan) ((1996) 2 SCC 145:"

14. The initiation of disciplinary inquiry and passing of an order of suspension are two things. Disciplinary inquiry against a public servant can be initiated even by an authority higher to the appointing authority but so far as the order of suspension is concerned, that will have to be passed by the appointing authority or by the authority lower in rank which has been delegated with such power but not by any other authority."

14. In the judgment of Division Bench of this Court in re: Ashok Kumar Singh (supra), the reference of some judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court has been given and therefore, there may not be any dispute to the effect that the suspension order can only be passed by the Appointing Authority. In the present case, the suspension order has not been passed by the Appointing Authority but the Superior Authority to the Appointing Authority, therefore, the suspension order vitiates.

15. On the other hand, Dr. Uday Veer Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has tried to defend the suspension order dated 14.08.2019 but in view of the material available on record and also in the light of the decision of Division Bench of this Court in re: Ashok Kumar Singh (supra), he could not defend the said order.

16. Considering the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perusing the material available on records as well as the judgment of Division Bench of this Court in re: Ashok Kumar Singh (supra), I am of the considered opinion that since the suspension order dated 14.08.2019 has not been passed by the Competent Authority, therefore, it is liable to be quashed and accordingly the impugned suspension order dated 14.08.2019, which is contained as Annexure No.1 to the writ petition, is hereby quashed.

17. However, the liberty is given to the Competent Authority to pass appropriate orders, if it is so warranted, considering the seriousness of the allegations but that order should be passed strictly in accordance with law.

18. The writ in the nature of mandamus is issued commanding the opposite parties reinstate the petitioner and post him at any place where the Competent Authority deems fit and proper but such order shall be passed with expedition preferably within a period of two weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order and the petitioner shall be entitled for all consequential benefits ignoring the suspension order dated 14.08.2019.

19. The writ petition is allowed.

20. No order as to cost.

Service Single No.34236 of 2018

Sharwan Kumar ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Amit Kumar Srivastava, Sri Divyanshu Sahay.

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.,Sri Sudeep Seth.

A. Service Law - Payment of Salary – Constitution of India – Article 226 r/w Civil Procedure Code, 1908 - Order II Rule 2 - Maintainability of present/second petition – Held – Relief now claimed was barred on principle of res-judicata or constructive res-judicata as that relief was not sought in earlier petition filed by the petitioner. Consequently, the present petition would not be maintainable. (Para 22, 23)

The relief prayed by the petitioner pertain to fixation of salary in terms of 5th and 6th Pay Revision along with consequential benefits of dearness allowance, salary, gratuity, leave encashment, annual increments etc. The petitioner had approached this Court by filing two petitions, namely, WP (S/S) No. 2766 of 2011 and WP (S/S) No. 217 of 2015 praying for being given the benefit of 5th and 6th Pay Revision and in Writ Petition (S/S) No. 217 of 2015. It was categorically held that the said relief was barred on account of principle of res-judicata or constructive res-judicata, consequently the present petition would not be maintainable praying for the said relief. (Para 22, 23)

B. Administrative Law - It is settled preposition of law that whatever is prohibited by law to be done, cannot legally be affected by an indirect and circuitous contrivance. - If certain resolutions have been passed for extension of the benefit which has already been denied, the same would not give rise to any fresh cause of action as the said orders can only be considered to be a consequence to the initial order. (Para 24, 27)

C. Constitution of India – Article 226 – Scope upon earlier decision by Supreme Court - Liberty granted by the Apex Court in the order deciding Contempt Petition would only have to be seen in the context of what was there before the Apex Court when the said liberty was granted i.e. what was prayed in the petition, against the order of which, the contempt petition was filed. Cannot be enlarged. (Para 20, 26)

Writ Petition dismissed (E-4)

1. Farhat Hussain Azad Vs St. of U.P. & ors., (2005) (2) AWC 1221 (Para 24)

2. P. Bandopadhya Vs U.O.I., (2019) SCC Online SC 398 (Para 25)

Precedent distinguished: -

1. U.O.I. Vs Assc. of Unified Telecom Service Providers of India & ors., (2011) 10 SCC 543 (Para 16, 26)

3. (11) SCC 99 (Para 16, 22)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Moin, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed today by learned counsel for the petitioner be kept on record.

2. Heard Sri Divyashnu Sahay, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel and Sri Himanshu Hemant Gupta, learned counsel appearing for the respondents/Corporation.

3. By means of the present petition, the petitioner has prayed for the following reliefs:-

"(i) Issue an appropriate writ mandamus direction or order to the Respondents directing them to disburse arrears of salary alongwith emoluments, gratuity, leave encashment as also annual increments to the petitioner in terms of the G.O. dated 10.7.1998 read with G.O. dated 17.12.1998 and Office Order dated 28.1.2017 (Annexure-16) and G.O. dated 08.12.2008 read with G.O. dated 29.12.2016 and Resolution dated 06.06.2018 of ITTUP (Annexure-23) after giving benefit of the policy of Assured Career Progression notified by G.O. dated 02.12.2000; and dearness allowance payable in terms of G.O. dated 22.9.2005 but not paid since 01.01.2001.

(ii) Issue an appropriate mandamus direction or order to the Respondents pay interest at the rate of 15% p.a. to the arrears of salary due to the Petitioner on account of Fifth Pay Revision w.e.f. 01.01.1996, Sixth Pay Revision w.e.f. 1.01.2006, and dearness allowance withheld from 01.01.2001.

(iii) Allow the present writ mandamus with costs.
(iv) Pass any other order as this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and necessary in the interest of justice"

4. The case set forth by the petitioner is that the petitioner is an employee of the Institute of Tool Room Training U.P. (hereinafter referred to as the ITTUP) who retired on 30.4.2011.

Earlier, the petitioner had filed Writ Petition No.375 of 1985 In re: Sharvan Kumar vs. Institute of Tool Room Training, U.P. and others before this Court praying for the following reliefs:-

"(i) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the opposite parties no.1 to 3 not to make any hostile discrimination between the petitioner and the opposite parties no.4 to 6 regarding grant of annual increments in the wage revision.

(ii) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the opposite parties no.1 to 3 to grant petitioner also atleast five annual increments.

(iii) issue any other writ, order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit in the circumstances of the case, in favour of the petitioner.

(iv) award costs of this petition to the petitioner."

5. The said writ petition was disposed of with a direction to the respondents to consider the representation of the petitioner. When the representation of the petitioner was rejected, the petitioner filed Writ Petition No.9651 of 1988 In re: Sharvan Kumar vs. State of U.P. and others, which writ petition was dismissed vide judgment and order of this Court dated 27.7.1999. Though the copy of the said judgments dated 27.7.1999 and 21.8.2008 have not been filed yet the learned counsel for the petitioner has passed on a copy of the said judgments which are taken on record. Upon a challenge being raised to the said judgment dated 27.7.1999 by the petitioner by filing Special Appeal No.354 of 1999, the said special appeal was also dismissed vide judgment and order dated 21.8.2008. The judgment and order dated 21.8.2008 passed in the special appeal was challenged by the petitioner by filing Civil Appeal No.8902 of 2010 In re: Sharwan Kumar vs. State of U.P. and others before the Hon'ble Apex Court. The Hon'ble Apex Court vide order dated 29.7.2015, a copy of which is Annexure-6 to the writ petition, did not interfere with the judgment dated 21.8.2008 passed in special appeal, but considering the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant that the salary of the appellant (Sharvan Kumar) was withheld for about 10 years and it was released only after the contempt petition was filed, directed the respondents to look into the matter and see that if the salary was not paid as per the revised pay scale and increments had not been given, the same would be calculated and released in favour of the appellant. For the sake of convenience, the order of the Hon'ble Apex Court dated 29.7.2015 is reproduced below:-

"This appeal by special leave is directed against the judgment and order dated 21.8.2008 passed by the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, Lucknow Bench, Lucknow in Special Appeal No.354 (SB) of 1999.

After hearing learned counsel for the parties, we do not find any reason to interfere with the impugned order. This appeal is, accordingly, dismissed.

However, learned counsel appearing for the appellant submitted that the salary of the appellant was with-held for about 10 years and it was released only after the contempt petition was filed, that too, without giving any increment and revision of pay. The respondents are directed to took into the matter and see that if the salary was not paid, as per the revised pay scale and increments have not been given, the same shall be calculated and released in favour of the appellant within a period of two months from today."

6. It is contended that when the compliance of the said order of the Hon'ble Apex Court dated 29.7.2015 was not made, the petitioner was constrained to file Contempt Petition (C) No.111 of 2016 In re: Sharwan Kumar vs. Mahesh Kumar Gupta and others before the Hon'ble Apex Court. Incidentally in paragraphs 1 and 2 of the contempt petition, a copy of which has been filed as Annexure SA-4 to the supplementary affidavit 17.10.2019, following averments have been made:-

"1. That this Hon'ble Court vide its order dated 29.7.2015 passed in Civil Appeal No.8902 of 2010, inter alia, passed the following order:

"This appeal by special leave is directed against the judgment and order dated 21.8.2008 passed by the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, Lucknow Bench, Lucknow in Special Appeal No.354 (SB) of 1999.

After hearing learned counsel for the parties, we do not find any reason to interfere with the impugned order. This appeal is, accordingly, dismissed.

However, learned counsel appearing for the appellant submitted that the salary of the appellant was withheld for about 10 years and it was released only after the contempt petition was filed, that too, without giving any increment and revision of pay. The respondents are directed to look into the matter and see that if the salary was not paid, as per the revised pay scale and increments have not been given, the same shall be calculated and released in favour of the appellant within a period of two months from today."

True copy of the order dated 29.7.2015 passed by this Hon'ble Court in Civil Appeal No.8902 of 2010 is filed herewith and marked as ANNEXURE P-1 (Pg.14 to 16.).

2. That present contempt petition has been filed as the aforesaid order has been violated by Alleged/Contemnor No.1, 2 & 3 by not paying the revised pay scales and increments to appellant as directed by this Hon'ble Court.".

7. A counter affidavit to the contempt petition was filed by the respondents to which a rejoinder affidavit was also filed and ultimately the contempt petition was disposed of by the Apex Court vide order dated 27.11.2017, a copy of which is Annexure-7 to the writ petition, whereby the Hon'ble Apex Court recorded its satisfaction that the order has been satisfactorily complied with. However, it was also provided that in case the petitioner is still aggrieved by the action taken, he can question it in the appropriate proceedings before the appropriate forum. For the sake of convenience, order of the Hon'ble Apex Court dated 27.11.2017 passed in contempt petition is reproduced below:-

"We have seen the reply filed by the respondent no.3.

We are satisfied that the order has been substantially complied with. In case the petitioner is still aggrieved by the action taken, he can question it in the appropriate proceedings before the appropriate forum. The contempt petition is hereby dismissed with the aforesaid observations."

8. Meanwhile, the petitioner filed Writ Petition (S/S) No.2766 of 2011 In re: Sharwan Kumar vs. State of U.P. and others challenging an order dated 18.4.2011 passed by the ITTUP whereby the petitioner was retired at the age of 58 years instead of 60 years. Apart from the other reliefs, the petitioner in the said writ petition had also prayed for payment of salary on the basis of 5th and 6th Pay Commission. The said writ petition was disposed of by this Court vide judgment and order dated 29.1.2014 with a direction to the Principal Secretary, Industrial Development Department as well as the Secretary of the Department of Technical Education to take a decision in the matter. Copy of the judgment and order dated 29.1.2014 is Annexure-1 to the writ petition.

9. Aggrieved against the said judgment and order dated 29.1.2014, the petitioner filed Special Leave to Appeal (Civil) No.12015 of 2014 In re: Sharwan Kumar vs. State of U.P. and others which was dismissed as withdrawn after extending the time to enable the petitioner to submit a representation in pursuance to the judgment of this Court vide order dated 8.5.2014, a copy of which has been filed as Annexure-2 to the writ petition.

10. When the representation of the petitioner was rejected, he filed Writ Petition (S/S) No.217 of 2015 In re: Sharwan Kumar vs. State of U.P. and others, inter alia, praying for the following reliefs:-

"i) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 22.7.2014 passed by the opposite party no. 1and order dated 4.4.2014 passed by the opposite party no. 2 as contained in Annexure Nos. 1 and 2 respectively to this writ petition;

ii) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 18.4.2011 passed by the opposite party no.8 and subsequent order dated 30.4.2011 passed by an incompetent authority on behalf of opposite party no.8 as contained in Annexure Nos. 3 and 4 respectively to this writ petition ;

iii) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 23.5.2013 passed by opposite party no.8, order dated 2.7.2013 passed by the opposite party no.4, order dated 10.7.2013 passed by the opposite party no.8, order dated 29.7.2013 passed by the opposite party no.6 and order dated 12.8..2013 passed by opposite party no.8 as contained in Annexure 5,6,7,8 and 9 respectively to this writ petition;

iv) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the opposite parties to provide the benefits of retirement at the age of 60/62 years instead of 58 years ;

v) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the opposite parties to sanction and pay the difference amount of encashment of leave forthwith, along with compound interest @ 18% per annum since the due date till the actual payment to the petitioner ;

vi) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the opposite parties to sanction and give the benefits of 5th and 6th Pay Commission report as paid to the other diploma level technical institutions ;

vii) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the opposite party no. 1 and 4 to take action against the opposite party nos. 7 and 8 for not completing the norms of AICTE and Board of Technical Education U.P., and to direct the opposite party no. 3 to take action against the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 for not complying the norms of AICTE and Board of Technical Education, U.P."

11. In the said petition, a preliminary objection was taken by the learned counsel for the respondents/Corporation of the petition being not maintainable based on the principles of res-judicata and constructive res-judicata as regards the maintainability of the second writ petition. This Court, after considering all aspects of the matter disposed of the said writ petition vide judgment and order dated 28.1.2016, a copy of which is Annexure-5 to the writ petition. So far as the payment of revised pay scale was concerned, with which the present controversy is concerned, the Court was of the view that as this issue (i.e. issue of benefits of payment of 5th and 6th Pay Commission) was raised by the petitioner in the earlier writ petition, therefore, it was not open for the petitioner to raise it all over again as the same would be barred by the principles res-judicata or constructive res-judicata.

12. Now, by means of the present petition, the petitioner has prayed for the reliefs as have already been quoted above.

13. Sri Gupta, learned counsel for the respondents/Corporation has taken a preliminary objection that the present petition primarily seeks the same relief pertaining to the 5th and 6th Pay Commission which in the earlier round of litigation, more particularly in the judgment and order dated 28.1.2016, has already been held to be barred by principles of res-judicata or constructive res-judicata. As regards the prayer of the petitioner for payment of leave encashment, annual increments, assured career progression and dearness allowance, Sri Gupta contends that once the petitioner had retired from service on 30.4.2011 and had earlier approached this Court by filing two petitions and the aforesaid reliefs had not been prayed for by him in the said petitions, consequently taking into consideration the provisions of Order II Rule 2 of the C.P.C. which are applicable in writ proceedings also, the present petition praying for the aforesaid reliefs would not be maintainable.

14. Replying to the aforesaid, Sri Sahay submits that the present petition has been filed taking into consideration the liberty granted by the Apex Court in its order dated 27.11.2017 and in view of the fresh resolution of the ITTUP dated 6.6.2018, a copy of which is Annexure-23 to the writ petition, as well as the Office Memorandum dated 20.1.2017 along with letter dated 16.11.2015, copies of which have been filed as Annexure-16 and 15 respectively to the writ petition. It is also argued that this Court vide judgment and order dated 28.1.2016 had considered the order of Apex Court dated 29.7.2015 and had observed that the respondents are bound to comply with the same.

15. Replying to the aforesaid, Sri Gupta, learned counsel for the respondents/Corporation submits that the liberty dated 27.11.2017 as had been granted by the Hon'ble Apex Court has to be read in consonance to what had been directed by the Apex Court in its initial order against which the contempt petition had been filed. Sri Gupta submits that the earlier order of the Apex Court dated 29.7.2015, which has already been reproduced above, was for the purpose of payment of salary for a period of 10 years as per the revised pay scale and increments if not granted to the petitioner, which order had been passed in Civil Appeal No.8902 of 2010 against the order of this Court dated 27.7.1999 passed in Writ Petition No.9651 of 1988 as upheld in Special Appeal No.354 of 1999 vide judgment and order dated 21.8.2008. The petitioner when filed Contempt Petition (C) No.111 of 2016 although against the order dated 29.7.2015 yet has indicated before the Apex Court in the contempt petition that the contempt petition is being filed on account of the violation by the alleged contemnor by not paying the revised pay scales and increments to the appellant. Once there was no such order of the Apex Court for grant of revised pay scale rather the order was for grant of salary for a period of 10 years, consequently it is apparent that the correct pleading had not been made in the Apex Court while filing the contempt petition. Even otherwise, Sri Gupta argues, that even if the liberty granted by the Apex Court is seen, the said liberty was granted after seeing the reply of the respondents. In the meanwhile, the petitioner had already approached this Court praying for grant of 5th and 6th Pay Commission and two judgments had already been passed, although the first judgment only pertained to disposal of the representation but in the second petition itself it had been held conclusively by this Court that the prayer made by the petitioner for grant of 5th and 6th Pay Commission was barred by the principles of res-judicata and constructive res-judicata. Thus Sri Gupta argues that the liberty granted by the Apex Court through the order dated 27.11.2017 cannot be construed in the manner in which the learned counsel for the petitioner has argued.

16. To this, Sri Sahay argues that the order of the Apex Court dated 27.11.2017 has to be seen in the context of the order dated 23.10.2017 that had been passed in the contempt petition, copy of which has been filed as Annexure SA-9 to the supplementary affidavit dated 17.10.2019, and the liberty cannot be seen in isolation. It is contended that the Apex Court was fully conscious while requiring the respondents to file reply to the issues before it and thus the said liberty dated 27.11.2017 would entail the petitioner to approach this Court again despite the earlier two rounds of litigation and in the judgment and order dated 28.1.2016 the writ Court having conclusively held that the reliefs of the petitioner so far as it pertains to grant of 5th and 6th Pay Commission was barred on the principles of res-judicata and constructive res-judicata. It is also contended that the judgment and order dated 28.1.2016 as passed by the writ Court had also been brought to the knowledge of the Apex Court and considering all the facts the said liberty had been granted. In this regard, Sri Sahay has placed reliance on a judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Union of India and others vs. Association of Unified Telecom Service Providers of India and others reported in (2011)10 SCC 543 to contend that once once a liberty has been granted by the Apex Court, consequently all issues are open to be agitated. Reliance has also been placed on the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Union of India vs. Balbir Singh Turn reported in 2018(11) SCC 99 to argue that the relief of ACP prayed for by the petitioner is a part of pay structure as even if it was not prayed for in the earlier petitions and it is being a part of the pay structure, would also be covered by the liberty granted by the Apex Court vide order dated 27.11.2017.

17. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

18. From a perusal of the pleadings on record and the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the contesting parties, it comes out that the petitioner had earlier filed writ petition in the year 1985 praying for being granted 5 annual increments. The said petition was disposed of with a direction to the respondents to consider the representation of the petitioner. On the representation being rejected, the petitioner challenged the said order by filing writ petition in the year 1988 namely Writ Petition No.9651 of 1988, which petition was dismissed vide judgment and order dated 27.7.1999. Though a copy of the said writ petition has not been brought on record yet from a perusal of the judgment and order dated 27.7.1999 it comes out that the reliefs that had been prayed for by the petitioner in the said writ petition were for grant of increments in the wage revision, 5 annual increments and promotion, meaning thereby that there was no prayer for being granted the 5th and 6th Pay Revision as has been prayed for in the instant petition. Upon the said petition having been dismissed vide judgment and order dated 27.7.1999, the petitioner filed Special Appeal No.354 of 1999 which special appeal was also dismissed vide judgment and order dated 21.8.2008. The petitioner raised a challenge to the said judgment by filing Civil Appeal No.8902 of 2010 before the Apex Court and the Apex Court vide order dated 29.7.2015 did not interfere with the judgment and order dated 21.8.2008 passed in the special appeal but considering the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant that his salary was withheld for about 10 years, directed the respondents to look into the matter and see that if the salary was not paid as per the revised pay scale and increments had not been given, the same would be calculated and released in favour of the appellant. Thus the order dated 29.7.2015 passed by the Apex court would have to be seen in the context of the reliefs that had been prayed for by the petitioner before the writ Court which were not for payment of the 5th and 6th pay revision but were for grant of annual increments in the wage revision, grant of 5 annual increments and for grant of promotion. When the compliance of the order passed by the Apex Court dated 29.7.2015 was not made, the petitioner filed Contempt Petition (C) No.111 of 2016 alleging contempt of the order dated 29.7.2015 passed by the Apex Court which could only have been to the extent of the reliefs that had been prayed for by the petitioner in the writ Court. However, the petitioner cleverly worded the contempt petition and indicated in paragraphs 1 and 2 of the contempt petition that the alleged violation by the respondents is by not paying the revised pay scale and increments to the appellant. At the risk of repetition, it is to be noted that in the writ Court in the petition of 1985 and thereafter in the year 1988, there was no prayer for payment of revised pay scales as per the 5th and 6th Pay Revision. After the Apex Court issued notice of contempt, the matter remained pending before the Apex Court. The petitioner being perfectly aware that no relief had either been prayed for by him in the writ petition of 1985 or 1988 for payment of the pay scales as per the 5th and 6th Pay Revision, filed Writ Petition (S/S) No.2766 of 2011 before this Court praying for various reliefs including payment of salary on the basis of 5th and 6th Pay Revision. Why this fact is essential is that the petitioner was perfectly conscious of the fact that the issue before the Apex Court in Civil Appeal No.8902 of 2010 was not covering the 5th and 6th Pay Revision and payment of salary on the basis of 5th and 6th Pay Revision. The said writ petition was disposed of by this Court vide judgment and order dated 29.1.2014 with a direction to the respondents to look into the matter. Being unsatisfied with the said order, the petitioner preferred Special Leave to Appeal (Civil) No.12015 of 2014 which was dismissed as withdrawn but after extending the time to enable the petitioner to present the matter in pursuance of the judgment of the writ Court. When the representation of the petitioner was rejected, he preferred another petition namely Writ Petition (S/S) No.217 of 2015, inter alia, praying for quashing the order whereby his representation was rejected as well as making a specific prayer, apart from other reliefs, of being given the benefits of 5th and 6th Pay Revision. Again, while filing the said petition, the petitioner was conscious of the fact that the issue before the Apex Court in Civil Appeal No.8902 of 2010 was not pertaining to 5th and 6th Pay Revision.

19. The writ Court in Writ Petition (S/S) No.217 of 2015 vide judgment and order dated 28.1.2016, so far as relief pertaining to revised pay scales was concerned, categorically held that it was not open for the petitioner to raise the said issue all over again as the same would be barred by principles of res-judicata and constructive res-judicata. However, considering the order dated 29.7.2015 passed by the Apex Court directing that the revised pay scale and increments shall be calculated and released in favour of the appellant, the writ Court observed that as there is already an order of the Apex Court, the respondents are bound to comply with the same. However, no positive mandamus was issued by the writ Court for compliance of any order. Sri Sahai has categorically stated that the judgment of this Court dated 28.1.2016 has attained finality as the same has not been challenged either before this Court by filing special appeal or before the Apex Court, hence the findings recorded therein pertaining to res-judicata or constructive res-judicata so far as it pertains to the 5th and 6th Pay Revision have attained finality. Subsequent thereto, the Apex Court decided the contempt petition after perusal of the reply filed by the respondents and being satisfied that the order (dated 29.7.2015) has been substantially complied with. However, it was provided that in case the petitioner is still aggrieved by the action taken, he can question it in the appropriate proceedings before the appropriate forum.

20. What would be relevant is that the order of the Apex Court dated 27.11.2017 has to be seen in the context of the order dated 29.7.2015 against which the contempt petition had been filed by the petitioner. As already indicated above, the order dated 29.7.2015 cannot be construed to be an order with respect to 5th and 6th Pay Revision as no such prayer had been made in the petition against which special leave petition had been filed by the petitioner. Thus, the liberty granted by the Apex Court vide order dated 27.11.2017 that in case the petitioner is still aggrieved by the action taken, he can question it in the appropriate proceedings, has to be seen in the context of what had been prayed for in the writ petition against the order in which initially order dated 29.7.2015 had been passed by the Apex Court, meaning thereby that neither before the writ Court in the year 1988 in Writ Petition No.9651 of 1998 or before the Apex Court, the 5th and 6th Pay Revision were involved. This would also be apparent from the conduct of the petitioner that he was perfectly conscious of the fact that the Apex Court while dealing with the Civil Appeal No.8902 of 2010 was not seized with the relief pertaining to 5th and 6th Pay Revision as in the interregnum period, the petitioner had already filed two writ petitions before the writ Court i.e. Writ Petition (S/S) No.2766 of 2011 and Writ Petition (S/S) No.217 of 2015 in which apart from other reliefs, the relief pertaining to 5th and 6th Pay Revision had also been prayed for. Thus, by no analogy or by any stretch of imagination can the liberty of the Apex Court dated 27.11.2017 be considered as giving liberty to the petitioner to again file a writ petition for grant of 5th and 6th Pay Revision in view of the detailed discussion made above.

21. Having thus summed up the litigations as entered into between the petitioner and the respondents and the issues involved therein, the preliminary objection pertaining to maintainability of the present petition would have to be seen.

22. The present petition, as already indicated above, has been filed for payment of salary along with emoluments, gratuity, leave encashment as also annual increments after giving benefit of the policy of Assured Career Progression, dearness allowance and for arrears of salary on account of 5th and 6th Pay Revision. The Orders as have been referred to by the petitioner as detailed above pertain to the orders that had been passed by the ITTUP for extending the benefit of 6th Pay Revision. Thus, primarily the reliefs as have been prayed for by the petitioner pertain to fixation of salary in terms of the 5th and 6th Pay Revision along with consequential benefits of dearness allowance, salary, gratuity, leave encashment, annual increments etc. The reliefs can be viewed in two ways. Firstly, when the petitioner had approached this Court by filing two petitions, namely, Writ Petition (S/S) No.2766 of 2011 and Writ Petition (S/S) No.217 of 2015 praying for being given the benefit of 5th and 6th Pay Revision and in Writ Petition (S/S) No.217 of 2015 it was categorically held that the said relief was barred on account of principle of res-judicata or constructive resjudicata, consequently the present petition would not be maintainable praying for the said relief. Once the ACP, dearness allowance, gratuity, leave encashment would all flow out after fixation of the pay of the petitioner in terms of the 5th and 6th Pay Revision keeping in view the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Balbir Singh Turn (supra) but once the relief pertaining to 5th and 6th Pay Revision cannot be granted to the petitioner in the present petition keeping in view the judgment of this Court in Writ Petition (S/S) No.217 of 2015, consequently there cannot be any occasion for granting the consequences flowing therefrom in the present petition i.e. gratuity, leave encashment, annual increments, ACP etc.

23. Secondly, if the gratuity, leave encashment ACP and dearness allowance are said to not flow after giving benefit of 5th and 6th Pay Revision then too the present petition would not be maintainable taking into consideration the principle of Order II, Rule 2 of the CPC wherein in case the petitioner did not pray for any relief to the said effect in the earlier two petitions filed by him in the year 2011 and 2015, consequently he would be precluded from making the said prayer by means of the present petition. Thus in both the views, the present petition would not be maintainable taking into consideration the principle of res-judicata or constructive res-judicata and principle of Order II, Rule 2 of the C.P.C.

24. Suffice to state that it is no longer res-integra that the principle of constructive res-judicata enshrined in Order II, Rule 2 of the C.P.C. would also be applicable in writ proceedings. In this regard, the Full Bench of this Court in the case of Farhat Hussain Azad vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 2005((2) AWC 1221 has held as under:-

"69. What is, however, disturbing us is the fact that some of the petitioners had earlier filed writ petitions for quashing the seniority list dated 14.12.2001 and even though these petitions had been dismissed by a detailed judgment and order dated 27.2.2004, the said petitioners have again filed these writ petitions claiming in substance the same releifs, i.e., re-determination of the seniority as referred to above herein.

70. Even if it is accepted that these reliefs had not been prayed for earlier as sought now, as contended by the learned Counsel for the petitioners, we are of the view that petitions are barred by the principles of constructive res judicata enshrined in Order II, Rule 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure (hereinafter called 'CPC'). The said Rule provides that suit must include the whole claim. If a relief which could have been claimed is not claimed, party cannot claim it in a subsequent suit. (Mohd. Khalil Khan v. Mahbub Ali Mian, AIR 1949 PC 78).

71. The Rule is directed to securing the exhaustion of the relief in respect of a cause of action and not to the inclusion in one and the same action of different causes of action, even though they arise from the same transaction. One great criterion, when the question arises as to whether the cause of action in the subsequent suit is identical with that in the first suit, is whether the same evidence will maintain both actions.

72. A Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gurubux Singh

v. Bhooralal, AIR 1964 SC 1810, held that even if a party does not pray for the relief in the earlier writ petition, which he ought to have claimed in the earlier petition, he cannot file a successive writ petition claiming that relief, as it would be barred by the principle of constructive res judicata enshrined in Explanation IV to Section 11 and Order I, Rule 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure. In Order II, Rule 2 CPC, as has been explained, in unambiguous and crystal clear language by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in D. Cawasji and Co. v. State of Mysore, AIR 1975 SC 813; Commissioner of Income Tax v. T.P. Kumaran, (1996) 10 SCC 561;Union of India and Ors. v. Punnilal and Ors., (1996) 11 SCC 112; Dilip Singh v. Mehar Singh Rathee and Ors., (2004) 7 SCC 650; and Executive Engineer ZP Engineering Division and Anr. v. Digambara Rao and Ors., (2004) 8 SCC 262.

73. It is settled proposition of law that what cannot be done "per directum is not permissible to be done per obliquum" meaning thereby, whatever is prohibited by law to be done, cannot legally be affected by an indirect and circuitous contrivance on the principle of "quando aliquid prohibetur, prohibetur at omne per quod devenitur ad ilud".

74. In Jagir Singh v. Ranbir Singh, AIR 1979 SC 381, the Apex Court has observed that an authority cannot be permitted to evade a law by "shift or contrivance". While deciding the said case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court placed reliance on the judgment in Fox v. Bishop of Chester, (1824) 2 B 7 C 635, wherein it has been observed as under :

"To carry out effectually the object of a statute, it must be considered as to defeat all attempts to do or avoid doing in an indirect or circuitous manner that; which it has prohibited or enjoined."

75. Law prohibits to do something indirectly which is prohibited to be done directly. [Vide Commissioner of Central Excise v. ACER India Ltd., (2004) 8 SCC 173]. Similar view has been reiterated by the Apex Court in M.C. Mehta v. Kamal Nath and Ors., AIR 2000 SC 1997, wherein it has been held that even the Supreme Court cannot achieve something indirectly which cannot be achieved directly by resorting to the provisions of Article 142 of the Constitution, which empowers the Court to pass any order in a case in order to do "complete justice."

76. In view of the above, it is not permissible to seek the relief indirectly, for which earlier petitions have already been dismissed/pending."

25. Recently, the Apex Court in the case of P. Bandopadhya vs. Union of India reported in 2019 SCC Online SC 398 has held as under:-

"61. The decision in S.V. Vasaikar & Ors. v. Union of India & Ors. [2003 (2) Mh. L.J. 691 : 2003 (4) Bom CR 79] was not challenged before the Supreme Court, and has since attained finality. Therefore, the relief sought by the Appellants before the High Court was barred by the principle of res judicata.

62. Reference can be made to the decision of the Constitution Bench in Direct Recruit Class II Engineering Officers' Association v. State of Maharashtra & Ors. wherein Sharma, J., on behalf of the five-judge bench, held:

"35...It is well established that the principles of res judicata are applicable to writ petitions. The relief prayed for on behalf of the petitioner in the present case is the same as he would have, in the event of his success, obtained in the earlier writ petition before the High Court. The petitioner in reply contended that since the special leave petition before this Court was dismissed in limine without giving any reason, the order cannot be relied upon for a plea of res judicata. The answer is that it is not the order of this Court dismissing the special leave petition which is being relied upon; the plea of res judicata has been pressed on the basis of the High Court's judgment which became final after the dismissal of the special leave petition. In similar situation a Constitution Bench of this Court in Daryao v. State of UP held that where the High Court dismisses a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution after hearing the matter on the merits, a subsequent petition in the Supreme Court under Article 32 on the same facts and for the same reliefs filed by the same parties will be barred by the general principle of res judicata. The binding character of judgments of courts of competent jurisdiction is in essence a part of the rule of law on which the administration of justice, so much emphasised by the Constitution, is founded and a judgment of the High Court under Article 226 passed after a hearing on the merits must bind the parties till set aside in appeal as provided by the Constitution and cannot be permitted to be circumvented by a petition under Article 32..." (emphasis supplied)

63. Albeit the decision of the Constitution Bench was in the context of a Writ Petition filed under Article 32, it would apply with greater force to bar a Writ Petition filed under Article 226, like the one filed by the present Appellants, by the operation of the principle of res judicata.

26. So far as the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Association of Unified Telecom Service Providers of India (supra), which has been cited by the learned counsel for the petitioner in order to argue that the present petition would be maintainable taking into consideration the liberty granted by the Apex Court, there cannot be any quarrel to what has been laid down by the Apex Court in the aforesaid judgment but then again the aforesaid judgment would not be applicable in facts of the present, as have already been indicated above, whereby the said liberty which forms the sheet anchor of the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner for the purpose of maintainability of the present petition, would only have to be seen in the context of what was there before the Apex Court when the said liberty was granted.

27. So far as the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner that as a fresh resolution dated 6.6.2018 has been issued by the ITTUP and further as the office memorandum dated 20.1.2017 along with letter dated 16.11.2015 have been issued by the respondents for the purpose of 6th Pay Revision and the approval has also been sought from the Government all which give rise to a fresh cause of action, suffice to state that when the present petition for grant of 5th and 6th Pay Revision would itself be not maintainable taking into consideration the earlier judgment of this Court which has attained finality, consequently even if certain resolutions have been passed for extension of the said benefit, the same would not give any fresh cause of action as the said orders can only be considered to be a consequence to the initial order of 5th and 6th Pay Revision. Thus all the aforesaid orders would not, in the opinion of this Court, give any fresh cause of action to the petitioner to maintain the present petition.

28. Accordingly, the preliminary objection raised by Sri Gupta, learned counsel for the respondents/Corporation is upheld. The writ petition is dismissed.

A. Service Law- Dismissal - It is the primary duty of the Disciplinary Authority to record reason of its own - if an authority has failed to consider the reply/explanation to the show cause notice while dealing with the matter of imposition of proposed penalty then it is a case where it has to be held that an authority has virtually failed to discharge its primary duty. (Para 13)

Present petition challenges orders dated 29.04.2011, passed by Disciplinary Authority, 27.07.2011, passed by appellate authority, 03.10.2012, passed in revision and 02.05.2016, while deciding the representation.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Satya Prakash Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. Invoking the extraordinary jurisdiction of this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution, the petitioner has questioned the decision making process in the matter of disciplinary proceeding which has culminated in the imposition of penalty of maximum punishment of dismissal from service.

3. Briefly stated facts of the case are that the petitioner, who was working as Clerk with the Police Department, is alleged to have been assigned the duty relating to the files in respect of compassionate appointments under the office order dated 26.03.1997. It is alleged that one Jagan Singh had obtained compassionate appointment fraudulently and in the process of preparing forged documents, the petitioner had a crucial role being the Clerk dealing with the cases of compassionate appointments at that time. It is alleged that the appointment took place only because of the involvement of the people working in the office of the Police Department. The petitioner was issued with the charge sheet, to which the petitioner submitted reply and then the departmental inquiry was held in the matter. The petitioner while denied the charges, also duly participated in the inquiry and in the inquiry report, the charges against the petitioner were found to be proved.

4. The petitioner was issued with a show cause notice to which he submitted a detailed reply. However, disciplinary authority relying upon the inquiry report rejected the reply of the petitioner as not being satisfactory and imposed major penalty of dismissal from service vide order dated 24.04.2011. The petitioner against the said order preferred departmental appeal and then revision and both the forums dismissed the case of the petitioner vide order dated 27.07.2011 and 03.10.2012 respectively and finally the representation filed by the petitioner under the relevant rules also came to be dismissed on 2nd May, 2016.

5. Assailing the order passed by the disciplinary authority confirmed in appeal and revision, the learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that the findings returned by the inquiry officer were perverse as the petitioner had taken specific plea to the effect that he had been handed over the charge relating to the files of compassionate appointments by the then dealing clerk only on 20.11.1997, whereas, the records relating to the claim of compassionate appointment of Jagan Singh had already been completed on 19.05.1997 and forwarded to the Police Headquarter and which is quite proved from the letter of Police Headquarter dated 20.05.1997. The further plea taken was that file of Jagan Singh was not the file mentioned in the charge list. However, the disciplinary authority, according to petitioner, dealt with the reply of the petitioner to the show cause notice in a quite casual manner and without referring to the grounds taken and submissions made in the reply questioning the findings returned by the inquiry officer, has brushed aside the reply on the ground that the reasons/ facts stated in the explanation to the show cause notice, were not of such nature which might render any help to the petitioner and therefore, the explanation of the petitioner, being devoid of reasons, have been rejected and the penalty of dismissal has been awarded.

6. He further argues that the appellate authority has simply affirmed the order passed by the disciplinary authority in its order dated 27.07.2011 and therefore, the inherent defect with which the order of disciplinary authority suffered, did not stand cured and therefore, the order of appellate authority is also liable to be quashed. He further submits that the authority sitting in revision has again without discussing any fact stated in the explanation to the show cause notice has simply affirmed the inquiry report and the order passed by disciplinary as well as appellate authority and the said order also deserves to be quashed. The order passed on his representation has also been questioned on the same grounds.

7. Per contra, the argument advanced by learned Standing Counsel is that the petitioner, in his reply to the show cause notice, has stated that his reply already submitted to the charge sheet should be taken as a reply to the show cause notice as well and nothing new has been stated in the explanation submitted to the show cause notice which could have required consideration by the disciplinary authority and, therefore, according to him the disciplinary authority is right in recording fact that the petitioner having not stated anything new which would have supported his claim and would have given benefit to him to question the inquiry report.

8. In such above view of the matter, therefore, it is submitted on behalf of the State that the disciplinary authority has rightly rejected the explanation submitted by the petitioner to the show cause notice.

9. It is further submitted that in matters of disciplinary proceedings, this Court would not ordinarily interfere in the findings of fact arrived by the Inquiry Committee and then affirmed by the disciplinary authority unless such perversity is pointed out which would go to the root of charges to question the finding on the proof of charges and then the propriety in conducting the inquiry and non consideration of such material aspect as would have vitiated the findings and would have contributed to the charge of lack of due procedure to be adopted by the disciplinary authority rendering entire action in law being bad. He submits that there is no such legal error much less a substantial one traceable in the entire conduct of disciplinary authority to interfere with the orders passed by the disciplinary authority confirmed in appeal and revision. The writ petition, therefore, according to him, deserves to be dismissed.

10. I have heard learned counsels for the parties and submissions advanced across the bar and perused the record.

11. The petitioner has brought on record the explanation submitted by him to the show cause notice before the disciplinary authority. From the perusal of the reply it is revealed that the petitioner has questioned the findings of the Inquiry Committee on various factual grounds which according to the petitioner, if considered, would have made the Inquiry Officer to arrive at a different finding of fact exonerating him from the charges but I find that in its order passed by the disciplinary authority, though various legal aspects have been mentioned regarding continuance of disciplinary proceeding along with criminal prosecution, but in its ultimate paragraph no. 3, the authority has recorded finding only in three lines. The Court fails to understand as to when the facts were detailed out in the explanation submitted to the show cause notice why the authority has chosen not to refer the same before arriving at a finding that the reply/ explanation submitted by the petitioner was not satisfactory.

12. In the above facts and circumstances, this Court finds merit in the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner that the Disciplinary Authority has virtually failed to address the basic charge in the light of the explanation submitted by him and, therefore, it is rightly submitted that the Disciplinary Authority is not justified in rejecting the explanation submitted by the petitioner to the show cause notice in such a cursory manner.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed heavy reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Umesh Kumar Singh v. State of U.P. and others (2018 5 ADJ 587, in which this Court while considering various other aspects has held that it is primary duty of the Disciplinary Authority to record reason of its own and if an authority has failed to consider the reply/ explanation to the show cause notice while dealing with the matter of imposition of proposed penalty then it is a case where it has to be held that an authority has virtually failed to discharge its primary duty. Such an exercise of power in the said case was held to be an arbitrary exercise of power that cannot pass testing the anvil of the Article 14 of the Constitution. As I have noticed in the present case that the Disciplinary Authority while referring to the various other aspects of the matter in the order impugned, it was necessary to refer the contents of the reply/ explanation submitted by the petitioner to the show cause notice, an effort much less than the discussion on the same. It appears that the Disciplinary Authority has got swayed away by the findings returned by the Inquiry Committee though that were questioned by the petitioner in his explanation to the show cause notice and in a very casual manner rejecting the same it held in one line that reply was unsatisfactory.

14. The argument advanced by learned Standing Counsel that this Court will not ordinarily interfere in matters of disciplinary proceedings cannot be questioned but the issue is what would be the import of the word 'ordinarily'. In several English dictionaries the word 'ordinarily' is defined as 'usually' or 'generally'. In my view ordinarily means and includes a situation where not only the procedure adopted is followed as per the prescribed one but there has been due application of mind, to make it just and fair to hold that there has been due process of law. A procedure prescribed would entail details of various steps to arrive at a final result but then to make it worth calling an action not judicially reviewable, every such steps in the process of arriving at final result, should have due application of mind. Findings, in inquiry, its approval rejecting the reply and imposition of penalty all require an articulated effort at the end of the authorities accountable under the rules. It is in the above sense if proceedings are held and the procedure adopted can be justified that this Court would not 'ordinarily' interfere with the findings arrived at, by the disciplinary authority. However, on facts of this case, I do not see any due application of mind by the disciplinary authority.

15. The further argument advanced by the learned Standing Counsel that the appellate authority has dealt with the matter of the inquiry report and has found no error and, therefore, the order of Disciplinary Authority cannot be accepted either. The appellate authority has simply relied upon the findings returned by the Inquiry Committee and has affirmed the decision of the Disciplinary Authority without referring to the explanation submitted by the petitioner. In the case of Allahabad Bank & others v. Krishna Narayan Tewari (2017) 2 SCC 308, the Court has already held that if there is no proper appreciation at the end of the Disciplinary Authority and if it has failed to record any reason for the conclusion drawn by it and if the appellate authority has simply referred to the findings returned by the Disciplinary Authority and Inquiry Committee, such authority has also faulted in discharge of its duty resulting in miscarriage of justice. Further, in the case of Mohammad Yunus Khan v. State of U.P. (2010) 10 SCC 539, the Court has already held that if there is a defect at the initial stage rendering proceedings bad, null and void, such an inherent defect with which the order suffers, cannot be cured at the appellate stage. So also, in my view, the orders passed by the authority in revision and representation are bad and deserves to be set aside.

16. In view of the above, the writ petition succeeds and is hereby allowed. The orders passed by the Disciplinary Authority dated 29th April, 2011 and of the appellate authority dated 27th July, 2011 and of the authority deciding the revision dated 3rd October, 2012 and 2nd May, 2016, Annexures- 2, 3, 5 and 7 respectively are hereby quashed.

17. The matter is remitted to the Disciplinary Authority to revisit the matter from the stage of show cause notice and explanation already submitted by the petitioner. The status of the petitioner shall be that of the suspended employee in the light the of judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Managing Director, Ecil, Hyderabad v. B. Karunakar (1993) 4 SCC 727, and shall be abide by the ultimate decision to be taken by the Disciplinary Authority as directed hereinabove within a period of three months from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

Civil Misc .Writ Petition No. 35705 of 2013
Connected with
WRIT -A No.43960 of 2012

Manoj Kumar & Ors. ...Petitioners
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:

A.ServiceLaw-Appointment/Recruitment - Irrigation Department Patrols Service Rules, 1953: Rule 5, 12, 14, 15 - 'Wait list' is not 'wait list in perpetuity'.

Petitioners approached the Court in the year 2013-14 for appointment against four vacancies which occurred in the year 2012-13, on the basis of a 'wait list' dated 21.10.2011. High Court held that the expression "wait list" (wait list of approved candidates) used in Rule 14 to the list which is prepared for the purpose of appointment under sub-rule (1) & (2) of Rule 15 cannot be given the meaning as contended by the petitioners, of being a "wait list in perpetuity" for substantive appointment against the future vacancies. (Para 33, 36)

B. Service Law – Appointment – Wait List- Under the statutory scheme though the "wait list" prepared under Rule 14 (kha) of "approved candidate" has not been given a limited life but it cannot be accepted that the said "wait list" is to be used for filling the vacancies not available in the year of recruitment.

(Para 35)

By the reading of 15(1), (2) and (3) together, there remains no doubt that "wait list" as contemplated in Rule 14 (kha) is to be used for the purpose of permanent appointment against existing or anticipated vacancies, and may be used for any adhoc or temporary appointment against substantive vacancies, which may occur in the department at a later point of time. The purpose of keeping the "wait list" is, thus, for making stop-gap-arrangement. (Para 40, 41)

C. General Rule of construction od statute is not only to look at the words but to look at the context. The Court must have regard to the aim, object and scope of statute in its entirety.

Precedent referred: -

1. Naseem Ahmad & ors. Vs St. of U.P. & anr. (2011) 2 SCC 734 (Para 18)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sunita Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashok Khare learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Utkarsh Birla learned Advocate for the petitioners and Sri Vishal Tandon learned Brief Holder for the State-respondents.

2. The two connected writ petitions have been filed in the months of August, 2012 and May, 2013 by (12+4) petitioners; respectively, for the common relief seeking a writ of mandamus commanding the respondents to give appointment to them to the post of Sinchpal (Patrol) in pursuance of the selection proceeding initiated vide advertisement dated 20.9.2011 published in the daily newspaper 'Amar Ujala' within a specified period and to pay them salary regularly month by month from the date of their appointment.

3. During the pendency of the present writ petition, the amendment application dated 25.3.2014 had been filed in Writ Petition No. 43960 of 2012 (Syyad Rizwan Abbash and Others vs. State Of U.P. and Others) seeking for a writ of certiorari for quashing of the order dated 2.4.2012 passed by the Executive Engineer, Sharda Canal Division, Shahjahanpur for cancellation of the wait list of 26 persons in Group 'C' with immediate effect.

4. From the record, it appears that the said amendment application is pending. No counter affidavit to the amendment application has been filed. The question to consider the relief sought by way of amendment would be considered in the later part of this judgment at an appropriate stage.

5. The facts in brief relevant is to decide the controversy at hands are that all the petitioners claimed to have been selected by the Selection Committee constituted to assess their general suitability and that they were kept in the wait list of the selected candidates.

6. As per the submission of four petitioners in Writ Petition No. 35705 of 2013 (Manoj Kumar and 3 Others vs. State Of U.P. and 3 others), they were interviewed by the Selection Committee between 14.6.2009 to 18.6.2009 and the wait list dated 21.10.2011 of selected candidates containing their names is appended as Annexure-'2' to the said writ petition.

7. As per the claim of 12 petitioners in Writ Petition No. 43960 of 2012, they were interviewed by the Selection Committee between 18.10.2011 to 25.10.2011 and three wait lists of the same date 29.10.2011, were prepared by the Selection Committee (appended as Annexure-'4' to the said writ petition) which contained their names.

8. All the petitioners claimed that after their selection, they had successfully undergone three months training as unpaid apprentices and were given certificates on completion of the said training. They had also cleared the departmental examination held on 29.2.2012, result of which was declared on 1.3.2012. The contention is that the wait-lists dated 21.10.2011 and 29.10.2011, as aforesaid, were prepared in accordance with the Rule 14 of the Irrigation Department Patrols Service Rules, 1953 (In short as "the Rules, 1953"), which provides for preparation of a wait list of the candidates selected by the selection committee as per Rule 12 of the Rules, 1953. The said list had been prepared against the existing as also future vacancies of the department.

9. In Writ Petition No. 35705 of 2013, it is stated in paragraph '11' that in the Irrigation Department, there were 25 posts of Sinchpal (Patrols), 8 posts of Sinch Paryavekshak and one post of Ziledar. Out of total 34 posts in view of the provisions of Rule 14 of the Rules, 1953, 20% candidates (of the total posts), who were found suitable in the selection proceedings, had to be kept in the wait list, accordingly, six candidates were placed in the wait list prepared on 21.10.2011 pursuant to the selection proceedings held between 14.6.2009 to 18.6.2009.

10. In Writ Petition no. 43960 of 2012, it is contended in paragraph '12' that in Sharda Nahar Khand, Shahjahanpur, there were 94 posts of Sinchpal (Patrols), 22 Amins, 3 Ziledars and 11 Munsies. Thus, total 130 posts were duly sanctioned by the State Government. 20% of the said total number of posts comes to 26 and accordingly, a wait list of selected candidates (26 in number) was prepared.

11. In the counter affidavits to the aforesaid writ petitions, the averments as noted above have not been denied.

12. In reply to paragraph '12' of the Writ Petition No. 43960 of 2012, it is stated therein that 8 posts of Sinchpal (Patrols) were vacant and hence the same were advertised to be filled through a regular selection. However, the said selection was challenged in Writ Petition No. 60334 of 2011 (Sichai Sangh and others vs. State of U.P. and others), the services of six Sinchpal appointed pursuant to the said selection were terminated vide order dated 26.10.2012. Remaining 2 selected candidates had been transferred to another division and resultantly services of all 8 persons selected as Sinchpal pursuant to the advertisement dated 20.9.2011 had been dispensed with. The wait list of 26 persons had been cancelled vide order dated 2.4.2012. Further the notification dated 14.9.2011 issued by the Engineer-in-Chief, Department of Irrigation, U.P., whereunder the advertisement dated 20.9.2011 was issued, had also been stayed by this Court in Writ Petition No. 60334 of 2011 vide order dated 3.11.2011.

13. In the counter affidavit to the Writ Petition No. 35705 of 2013, it is contended that the wait list dated 21.10.2011 of 26 candidates had lapsed with the completion of the selection proceedings i.e. preparation of the select list and, moreover, it had lost its validity after a period of one year. As eight selected candidates were given appointment and joined against the vacant posts and no one was given appointment from the wait list, the petitioners therein cannot claim appointment.

14. Further four posts of Sinchpal, which became vacant in the year 2012-13 could not be filled from the wait list of the previous years selection 2010-11.

15. In the rejoinder, the petitioners taking aid of the Rule 14 of Rules, 1953 submit that the wait list was to be kept alive in perpetuity and the stand of the respondents that it had outlived its life after one year, is incorrect.

16. In the supplementary rejoinder affidavit filed in Writ Petition No. 35705 of 2013, it is contended that out of total 94 posts of Sinchpal in Sharda Nahar Khand, Shahjahanpur, 55 posts became vacant during pendency of the present writ petition. The selected candidates, whose appointments were cancelled vide termination order dated 13.9.2012 filed a Writ Petition No. 60830 of 2012 (Vinay Kumar Singh and others vs. State of U.P. and others), which had been allowed vide judgment and order dated 26.11.2012, resulting in restoration of their appointment. Resultantly, six selected persons had been reinstated vide office orders dated 27.4.2013.

17. In the light of the above pleadings, it is vehemently contended by the learned Senior Advocate for the petitioners that as per the scheme of Rule 14 of the Rules, 1953, the wait listed candidates were to be appointed against the subsequent vacancies, till the said lists were exhausted. It was not open for the respondents either to cancel the wait list of 26 persons (dated 29.10.2011) by order dated 2.4.2012 or to take stand with regard to the six wait listed persons (of the list dated 21.10.2011) that the same had outlived its life after one year from the date of selection. It is, thus, contended that all the writ petitioners herein were entitled to get appointmemt against the vacancies to the post of Sinchpal (Patrol) which arose in the department subsequent to selection of eight candidates against the then existing vacancies, till the aforesaid wait lists were exhausted.

18. Reliance has been placed on the observations made by the Apex Court in paragraphs '20' and '21' of the report in Naseem Ahmad and others vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another1 to submit that where the wait list has no limited life under the statutory rule, the appointment of wait listed candidates against the subsequent vacancies cannot be held illegal.

19. Sri Vishal Tandon learned Brief Holder for the State-respondents, on the other hand, vehemently contends that the wait list contemplated in Rule 14 of the Rules, 1953 is in fact the select list was prepared by the Selection Committee for the purpose of appointment made under Rule 15 of the Rules, 1953, as against the substantive permanent vacancies and further on temporary or adhoc basis in stop-gap-arrangement only. The wait listed candidates cannot claim appointment against subsequent substantive vacancies as the said list stood exhausted with the completion of selection. Moreover, the wait listed candidates could claim appointment only against the existing and anticipated vacancies in a year of recruitment which was 2011-12 in the present case. As against the vacancies of the subsequent years, the petitioners cannot be considered as the said vacancies have to be notified for Direct recruiment as per Rule 5 of the Rules, 1953.

20. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record, in view of the stand taken by the learned Senior Advocate for the petitioners that all wait listed candidates herein are entitled to substantive appointment under the Rules, 1953, inasmuch as, the wait list is a list of selected candidates in perpetuity, it would be apt to go through the entire scheme of the Rules, 1953 which governs the recruitment to th

21. Rule 2(kha) of the definition clause of the Rules, 1953 provides the meaning of "Committee" "being the Selection Committee" constituted under the rules. Rule 5 states that appointment to the services under the Rules, 1953 would be by direct recruitment. Rules 8 to 11 provides for eligibility/qualification and the maximum age limit for appointment in the services under the Rules, 1953.

22. Rules 12, 13, 14 and 15 relevant for the purpose of present controversy are to be quoted hereunder:-

"12- भर्ती की रीति- समिति निम्नलिखित बातों का ध्यान रखते हुये उम्मीदवारो में से चुनाव करेंगी:- (1) अच्छा शरीर- गठन,

23. A conjoined reading of the above noted provisions indicate that under Rule 12 which provides for method of recruitment, the Selection Committee has to prepare a list of suitable candidates division-wise after assessment of general suitability of the candidates.

24. In the instant case, the said assessment was made with the interview of the candidates.

25. Rule 13 states that the selected candidates (as per Rule 12) shall be sent for three months training as unpaid apprentice and at the end of the said training, they shall be required to pass a practical examination. All those candidates who have been declared successful will be given a certificate.

26. Rule 14(ka) provides that all selected candidates under Rule 12 shall be kept in a list below the approved candidates (whose names have already been kept there), subject to the condition that they will clear/pass departmental examination (practical examination as aforesaid).

27. Rule 14(kha) further states that the Division wise approved list of candidates shall not be of more than 20% of the total posts in the divisional cadre including all Ziledars, Amin (Patrols) and Munshi.

28. Rule 14(ga) states that names of all such candidates shall be deleted from the aforesaid list who refuse to work in stop-gap-arrangement or on adhoc basis or attain the age of 25 years without ever working on adhoc basis against a vacant post.

29. Rule 15 provides for appointment both on regular as well as adhoc basis in a stop-gap-arrangement. As per sub-rule (1) of Rule 15 appointment against the permanent vacant post will be made from the list of candidates prepared under Rule 14, as far as possible, in the same order as they have been placed in the said list.

30. Sub-rule (2) of Rule 15 provides that temporary appointment against the vacant posts can be made by the Executive Engineer only of such persons who are eligible to get permanent appointment. Sub-rule (3) of Rule 15 further states that in case of non-availability of approved candidates, the Executive Engineer can make appointment on temporary or adhoc basis against a vacant post of such person whose name has not been found in the wait list, subject to the condition that such an appointment would not be made for more than a period of six months.

31. The aforesaid scheme of the Rules, 1953, thus, makes it clear that the select list which has been termed as "wait list" in Rule 14(ka) is a tentative list prepared by the Selection Committee as per Rule 12 of the Rules, 1953 of those candidates who are found suitable by it. The condition is that the said wait listed candidates shall be kept below the approved candidates in one list. The "wait listed candidates" shall have to complete apprenticeship and clear departmental examination for being termed as "approved candidates" for the purpose of appointment under rule 15 (1)&(2) of the Rules, 1953. The appointment against substantive vacant post on permanent basis has to be made from the list mentioned in Rule 14(kha) which is a list of "approved candidates" after fulfilling conditions of Rule 14(ka).

32. From the further reading of sub-rules (2) and (3) of Rule 15, it is clear that even temporary or adhoc appointment against a substantive vacancy has to be made by the Executive Engineer from the list of eligible candidates prepared under Rule 14. But in any case appointment against substantive vacancies, can be made only through direct recruitment as per Rule 5 of the Rules, 1953. That means, the vacancies have to be notified for inviting applications from eligible candidates. The candidates kept in the wait list under Rule 14(ka) prepared under Rule 12 by the Selection Committee have to complete training and pass practical examination so as to become eligible or "approved candidates" for being kept in the Division wise list prepared under Rule 14(kha).

33. From the reading of clause (ga) of Rule 14 alongwith sub-rule (2) and (3) of Rule 15, it appears that the aforesaid list of "approved candidates" is being kept alive for the purpose of making temporary arrangement against the vacant posts subject to regular selection. The expression "wait list" used in Rule 14 to the list which is prepared for the purpose of appointment under sub-rule (1) & (2) of Rule 15 cannot be given the meaning as contended by the petitioners, of being a "wait list in perpetuity" for substantive appointment against the future vacancies. In other words, the "wait list of approved candidates" as contemplated under Rule 14 (ka) and (kha) cannot be said to be a "wait list in perpetuity" for appointment against substantive vacancies under Rule 15(1) of the Rules, 1953 which do not exist in the given year of selection.

34. In the opinion of the Court, the expression "wait list" has been used in Rule 14 in view of scheme of clause (ka) which contemplates that a list of suitable candidates be prepared by the Selection Committee subject to them passing the departmental examination under Rule 13 and Clause (kha) which provides for preparation of a "wait list of approved candidates" to the extent of 20% of the total posts, who can be given appointment on temporary or adhoc basis against substantive vacancies occuring from time to time. And for this reason only clause (ga) of Rule 14 provides that if an "approved candidate" refuse to work on adhoc basis or had not worked as such uptil the age of 25 years, his name would be deleted from the said list.

35. Under the statutory scheme though the "wait list" prepared under Rule 14(kha) of "approved candidate" has not been given a limited life but it cannot be accepted that the said "wait list" is to be used for filling the vacancies not available in the year of recruitment i.e. for future vacancies occurring in the department over the years, on substantive basis, more so, when appointment in services is by direct recruitment. The scheme of direct recruitment in service as per Rule 5 of the Rules, 1953 itself contemplates notification of substantive vacancies and assessment of suitability of all applicants as per Rule 12 and 13 of the Rules, 1953 for filling the same.

36. The expression "wait list" in Rule 14 of the Rules, 1953 by no stretch of imagination can be said to be a "wait list in perpetuity", to be used or exhausted against future substantive vacancies which were not either anticipated or likely vacancies. Such an interpretation to the said expression would lead to incongruity and ambiguity.

37. To be more precise, the Rules 1953 in essence are for providing procedure for direct recruitment to the services concerned (in question). Rule 12 to 14 of the Rules, 1953 provide for different stages of selection. At the first stage of selection as per Rule 12, the wait list of suitable candidates under clause (ka) of Rule 14 is to be prepared. As is clear from the language of Rule 14 (ka), the candidates who were found suitable by the Selection Committee under Rule 12 have to be kept below the candidates who have been approved for selection, subject to the conditions that they clear the departmental examination under Rule 13.

38. Rule 14(kha) speaks of "अनुमोदित सूची" means list of "approved candidates" of those who have been selected finally after clearing all stages of selection, i.e. those who have to be given appointment against substantive vacancies in order of their merit. The list as contemplated in Rule 14(ka) and 14(kha) are, thus, two different lists prepared at two stages of selection.

39. The lists in question i.e. the wait lists dated 21.10.2011 and 29.10.2011 in the instant case, can be clearly understood as the "wait list" prepared at the first stage of selection [as per Rule 14(ka)] after assessment of suitability of all candidates by the Selection Committee. The candidates kept in the said list cannot have any legitimate expectation for appointment against the vacancies notified in the advertisement dated 20.9.2011.

40. They can at best, only be understood as the "prospective candidates" waiting for their place in the final select list of "approved candidates" [as per Rule 14(kha)] after completion of training and passing of the departmental examination. There is no dispute about the fact that all the petitioners herein had completed requisite training and also passed the departmental examination but they could not get a chance for selection against the existing vacancies as "approved candidates" who were higher placed in the list were given appointment against the existing vacancies. It is not the case of the petitioners that any of the appointee was below them in the merit list or ineligible for appointment. The appointment of none of them has been challenged.

41. Going further, though the expression "wait list" in rule 14 is used both for the list prepared at the first stage under sub-clause(ka) of "suitable candidates" and the final list under sub-clause (kha) of the "approved candidates" to the extent of 20% of the total posts in the Divisional cadre. But by reading of Rule 15(1), (2) and (3) together, there remains no doubt that the "wait list" as contemplated in Rule 14(kha) is to be used for the purpose of permanent appointment against existing or anticipated vacancies, and may be used for any adhoc or temporary appointment against substantive vacancies, which may occur in the department at a later point of time. The purpose of keeping the "wait list" is, thus, for making stop-gap-arrangement.

42. This becomes more clear from the reading of sub-rule (3) of Rule 15 which provides that if a candidate from the "wait list" is not available (who is eligible for regular appointment), short term appointment in temporary or adhoc basis can be made not exceeding six months.

43. Giving any other interpretation to the expression "wait list" would render the entire rule of procedure for selection to the services by direct recruitment unworkable.

44. The General Rule of construction of statute is not only to look at the words but to look at the context, the collocation and the object of such words relating to such matter and interpret the meaning according to what would appear to be the meaning intended to be conveyed by the rules of the words under the circumstances. Reference Jagir Singh and others vs. State of Bihar and another2.

45. In State of West Bengal vs. Union of India3, the then Chief Justice Mr. B.P. Sinha, speaking for the majority has said that in considering the true meaning of words or expression used by the Legislature, the Court must have regard to the aim, object and scope of the statute to be read in its entirety. The Court must ascertain the intention of the Legislature by directing its attention not merely to the clauses to be construed but to the entire Statute; it must compare the clause with the other parts of the law, and the setting in which the clause to be interpreted occurs.

46. The Constitution Bench in Union of India vs. Elphinstone Spinning and Weaving Co. Ltd. and others4 has held that when the question arises as to the meaning of a certain provision in a Statute it is not only legitimate but proper to read that provision in its context. The context means; the statute as a whole, the previous state of law, other statutes in pari materia, the general scope of the statute and the mischief that it was intended to remedy. With reference to Corocraft Ltd. vs. Pan American Airways Inc.5 and State of Haryana vs. Sampuran Singh6 , it is noted therein that:-

"The duty of judges is to expound and not to legislate is a fundamental rule. There is no doubt a marginal area in which the courts mould or creatively interpret legislation and they are thus finishers, refiners and polishers of legislation which comes to them in a state requiring varying degrees of further processing."

47. In National Insurance Co. Ltd vs. Anjana Shyam and others7, taking note of the proposition propounded in 1846 by Dr. Lushington in Queen V. Eduljee Byramjee [(1846) 3 MIA 468] it is held that the proposition that to ascertain the true meaning of a clause in a statute the court must look at the whole statute, at what precedes and at what succeeds and not merely at the clause itself, has been accepted and reiterated by the Apex Court in innumerable cases.

48. Even in the judgment relied by the learned Senior Advocate for the petitioners, the Supreme Court has observed that the "wait list" as contemplated therein can be co-related to the number of vacancies either available in the year of recruitment or likely to become available in the succeeding year i.e. in proportion to the existing and anticipated vacancies. In the said case, the Apex Court had permitted the appellants therein to continue as they were appointed within one year of the declaration of the result.

49. In the light of the aforesaid, the claim of the petitioners that the select list or the wait list prepared under Rule 14 was to be kept alive in perpetuity so as to give appointment to all wait-listed candidates against future vacancies occurring in the year 2013 onwards, is not worthy of acceptance.

50. Before parting with this judgment, relevant is to note that the wait list of 26 candidates (with reference to the Writ Petition No. 43960 of 2012) was cancelled vide order dated 2.4.2012, which was admittedly received by the said petitioners in the month of October, 2012. The said order was also brought on record of the said writ petition along with the counter affidavit filed in the month of November, 2012.

51. For the reasons best known to the petitioners therein, they did not challenge the said order within a reasonable period of time. The amendment application filed on 25.3.2014, therefore, cannot be allowed to assail the said order as no explanation has been offered by the petitioners for inordinate delay in seeking amendment.

52. For the four petitioners in Writ Petition No. 35705 of 2013 who are claiming appointment on the basis of the list dated 21.10.2011, relevant is to note that they had approached this Court in the year 2013-14 for appointment against four vacancies which occurred in the year 2012-13. Their prayer for appointment against the future vacancies made after a period of approximately two years from the date of declaration of result, is not acceptable.

53. For the above discussions, both the writ petitions are found devoid of merits and hence dismissed.

Present petition challenges order dated 13.04.2015, passed by Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Saharanpur, dismissing application u/s 29A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Surya Prakash Kesarwani, J.)

"Whether in view of the provision of Section 69(2) of the Partnership Act, 1932, an unregistered firm can maintain a suit or a case for enforcement of statutory right under Section 29A(5) of the U.P. Act XIII of 1972" is one of the main questions involved in the present writ petition.

1. Heard Sri Ashish Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the applicant-landlords/ petitioners and Sri N.C. Rajvanshi, learned senior advocate assisted by Sri Vishesh Rajvanshi, learned counsel for the tenant-respondent Nos.2 to 6.

FACTS:-

2. Briefly stated facts of the present case are that the original owner and landlord of the disputed immovable property being khasra plot No.800, area 0.584 hectares situate in village Daramilkana Ander Hadud Saharanpur, was one Sri Raja Ram son of Babu Moti Ram who had let out the disputed property to the respondent No.2 herein by a registered rent deed dated 12.12.1945 for a period of 50 years from 01.01.1946. Thus, the period of tenancy expired on 31.12.1995. After the death of the original owner and landlord Sri Raja Ram, the disputed property was inherited by his successors, namely the applicant-petitioner No.2 and proforma respondent Nos.7, 8 and 9. Thus, they became the owners and landlords of the disputed property. The owners and landlords formed a partnership firm, i.e. the petitioner No.1 herein by a partnership deed dated 01.09.2012 which includes the owners and landlords also as partners. The partnership firm and the owners and landlords filed an application under Section 29A of the U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as 'U.P. Act XIII of 1972') before the Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Saharanpur, which has been dismissed by the impugned order dated 13.04.2015, not on merits but on maintainability on two grounds - firstly, applicant-petitioner No.1 - partnership firm is not a registered partnership firm and, therefore, the partnership deed dated 01.09.2012 is not admissible in evidence under Section 69(2) of the Partnership Act, 1932 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act 1932') and, secondly, the landlord-tenant relationship is not proved.

3. Aggrieved with the aforesaid order dated 13.04.2015 passed by the Additional District Judge (A)/ Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Saharanpur, the applicant-landlords/ petitioners have filed the present writ petition.

SUBMISSIONS:-

4. Learned counsel for the applicant-petitioners submits as under:

(i) Provisions of Section 69(2) of the Act 1932 has no application in the present set of facts inasmuch as the application under Section 29A of U.P. Act XIII of 1972, was filed by the applicant-petitioners for enforcement of a statutory right. It was not an application for enforcement of a contract. Even the rent contract under the rent deed dated 12.12.1945, has expired on 31.12.1995.

(ii) The applicant-petitioner No.1 is the partnership firm consisting of true owners and landlords of the disputed property. The applicant petitioner No.2 is admittedly co-owner and landlord of the disputed property. Further, it is admitted case of the tenants-respondents that they were paying rent to the petitioner-landlords. Therefore, the tenant-landlord relationship was proved on record. But, without examining the facts, the Rent Control and Eviction Officer abruptly drawn conclusion that there is no landlord-tenant relationship. Such a finding is perverse and therefore, deserves to be set aside.

(iii) The impugned order is wholly arbitrary and illegal and, therefore, it deserves to be quashed.

5. Sri N.C. Rajvanshi, learned senior advocate admits that the applicant-petitioner No.2 is the co-owner and the landlord of the disputed property but supports the impugned order. He submits that there was a rent agreement between the landlord and tenant-respondents dated 12.12.1945 and, therefore, the application filed by the applicant-petitioners shall be deemed to be an application for enforcement of a right under a contract dated 12.12.1945. He supports the impugned order.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS:-

6. I have carefully considered the submissions of the learned counsels for the parties.

7. Undisputedly, the applicant-petitioner No.2 herein is the co-owner and the landlord of the disputed property. He is also partner in the petitioner No.1 firm along with other co-owners. It is also not in dispute that the respondent-first set was the tenant of the disputed property and was paying rent under the rent agreement dated 12.12.1945 to the owners and landlords. Thus, the finding of the Rent Control and Eviction Officer in the impugned order that landlord-tenant relationship could not be proved by the applicant-petitioners, is perverse and wholly without application of mind. Therefore, this finding is set aside.

8. By the impugned order, the application of the applicant-petitioners under Section 29A of U.P. Act XIII of 1972 has been dismissed also on another ground that the partnership deed dated 01.09.2012, is not admissible and the application is not maintainable in view of the provisions of Section 69(2) of the Act 1932. This finding of the Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Saharanpur is not wholly illegal but also shows his poor understanding of the provisions of Section 69(2) of the Act 1932 and Section 29A of the U.P. Act XIII of 1972.

9. Sub-Section (2) of Section 69 of the Act 1932 provides that "No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract shall be instituted in any court by or on behalf of a firm against any third party unless firm is registered and persons suing are or have been shown in the Register of Firm as partners in the firm." Thus the bar created under Sub-Section (2) of Section 69 of the Act 1932, is only in respect of enforcement of a right arising from a contract. It does not bar filing of a suit by an unregistered firm for enforcement of statutory right. Section 29A(5) of the U.P. Act XIII of 1972, gives a statutory right to the landlord or the tenant to move an application before the District Magistrate to determine the annual rent payable in respect of such land @ 10% per annum of the prevailing market value of the land, and such rent shall be payable, except as provided in sub-Section (6) from the date of expiration of the term for which the land was let or from the commencement of this section, whichever is later. This sub-Section (5) casts a statutory right duty the District Magistrate to adjudicate the application so filed by the landlord or the tenant. Thus, the application filed by the applicant-petitioners was for enforcement of statutory right and not for enforcement of a right arising from a rent agreement/ contract dated 12.12.1945. Even the aforesaid rent agreement/ contract dated 12.12.1945 has expired by efflux of time on 31.12.1995. Therefore, the finding of the Additional District Magistrate (A)/ Rent Control Eviction and Eviction Officer, Saharanpur on the point of maintainability of the application of the applicant-petitioners for reason that the applicant petitioner No.1 is not an registered partnership, is wholly arbitrary, illegal and in conflict with the provisions of Section 69(2) of the Act 1932 and Section 29A of the U.P. Act XIII of 1972.

10. In M/s Raptakos Brett and Company Ltd. v. Ganesh Property, AIR 1998 SC 3085, Hon'ble Supreme Court examined the maintainability of suit filed by a registered firm in the context of provisions of Section 69(2) of the Partnership Act 1932 and held that the suit filed by an unregistered firm is not barred under Section 69(2) of the Act 1932 if it is based on a statutory right or a common law right. It also observed that the right to evict a tenant upon expiry of the lease was not a right "arising from a contract" but was a statutory right conferred under the provisions of Transfer of Property Act, 1882. The decision in M/s Raptakos Brett and Company Ltd. (supra) was referred with approval in M/s Haldiram Bhujiawala and another v. M/s Anand Kumar Deepak Kumar and another, AIR 2000 SC 1287. Similar view has been taken by a bench of this court in Punjab and Sind Banki and another vs. M/s. Manoram Agencies and others, 2008 (4) ADJ 248.

11. For all the reasons afore-stated, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned order dated 13.04.2015 in Case No.1 of 1998 (M/s Saharanpur Estates vs. Saharanpur Cold Storage Ltd.) under Section 29A of U.P. Act XIII of 1972 passed by the Additional District Magistrate (A)/ Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Saharanpur, cannot be sustained and is hereby quashed. Matter is remitted back to the respondent No.1 to decide the aforesaid Case No.1 of 1998 in accordance with law, expeditiously, preferably within four months from the date of presentation of a certified copy of this order, after affording reasonable opportunity of hearing to the parties.

Order on Application No.9 of 2018 under Section 340, Cr.P.C. filed by the tenant-respondent

Learned counsel for the tenant-respondent states that the application may be dismissed as not pressed.

In view of the aforesaid, the application is dismissed as not pressed.

CIVIL SIDE
DATED: ALLAHABAD 23.10.2019

BEFORE THE HON'BLE SUNEET KUMAR , J.

Writ A No. 54211 of 2016

Shakuntala Singh ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Samir Sharma, Sri Satyendra Singh, Sri Anil Kumar Bajpai.

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri Sri Prakash Singh, Sri Abhinav Ojha, Sri Rajmani Yadav.

A. Service Law– Pension - Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973: Sections 5(1), 5-A, 24, 55, 56, 59(4); Uttar Pradesh Development Authorities Centralized Services Retirement Rules, 2011: Rule 1(iii), 4, 7, 16, 21, 30; U.P. Development Authorities Centralized Services Rules, 1985: Rules 3, 34, 37; Uttar Pradesh Palika (Centralized) Services Retirement Benefit Rules, 1981: Rules 7, 37.

Government Orders pertaining to pension/family pension applicable to Government Servants would automatically apply to the members of the Centralized Services of Development Authority – Joint reading of Rule 4 and 7 of the U.P. Development Authorities (Centralized Services) Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011 along with Section 24 of Development Act, 1973 makes it evident that the rules/orders applicable to the employees of the State Government and the formula for computation of pension and family pension would apply by reference to the employees of the Development Authority. (Para 40)

B. Legislation by incorporation and legislation by reference - There is a distinction between legislation by incorporation and that by reference inasmuch as in the latter case the amendments made in the earlier legislation would be applicable to the referring legislation. The Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011 makes applicable the Government Orders insofar it relates to pension/family pension, by reference. The subsequent amendments made thereto would therefore also apply. (Para 43)

The Development Authority has not, and cannot, adopt a formula other than that applicable to the government servants while computing pension and family pension of its employees. The Development Authority lacks the power of authority to override, deviate or rewrite the Rules framed by the State Government governing and regulating pension/family pension. (Paras 48, 49)

C. Development Authority does not require any approval of the State Government before the recommendations of the respective Pay Commissions are made applicable to the government servants through various Government Orders - Development Authority constituted under the Development Act, 1973 is an autonomous body. The State Government does not fund the Development Authorities. The Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, nowhere prohibits the Development Authorities from implementing the Government Orders without the prior approval of the State Government. Rather, the Rule mandates that the Government Orders, pertaining to pension/family pension issued in respect of Government Servants gets applicable and enforced upon the employees of the Development Authority by operation of law, no further act of approval is required at the end of the State Government or the resolution of the Development Authority. (Paras 53, 55)

D. The test for a valid classification may be summarized as a distinction based on a classification founded on an intelligible differentia, which has a rational relationship with the object sought to be achieved - It is not open for the Authorities to distinguish between the retirees only on the basis of the date of the retirement by fixing an artificial cut-off date not founded on an intelligible differentia so as to distinguish persons that are grouped together. All pensioners are eligible to receive revised family pension based on the formula approved by the State Government. Conversely, it is always open for the State Government to decide uniformly for government servants and other employees of the Local Bodies and the Development Authorities, the date from which beneficial provision in the Government Order would apply so long as the treatment is equal and uniform. No relief can be given beyond what is conferred by the Government Order.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Samir Sharma, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Satyendra Singh, learned counsels for the petitioner, Shri Sri Prakash Singh, learned counsel appearing for the fifth respondent and Shri Abhinav Ojha, learned counsel appearing for the Allahabad Development Authority and the learned Senior Counsel for the state respondents.

2. The petitioner, primarily seeks a direction in the nature of mandamus, commanding the respondents to compute her pension/family pension admissible her as per the Government Orders applicable to the Government Servants, issued from time to time.

3. The facts that emerge from the pleadings and averments of the learned counsel for the parties, briefly stated, is that the husband of the petitioner, Shri Surendra Singh, a member of the Development Authorities Centralized Services1 of the Development Authority, retired on attaining the age of superannuation on 30 September 2001, from the post of Chief Engineer at Allahabad Development Authority2 (presently, "Prayagraj Development Authority'). The employee rendered 24 years 5 months and 5 days qualifying service. The last basic salary drawn by the employee was at Rs. 16,300/- in the pay-scale 14300-400-18300.

4. Pursuant to Government Orders dated 17 March 1983 and 29 September 1983, the employees of the Centralized Services retiring from Development Authorities were paid pension at par with Government Servants until 4 April 1999. The State Government vide Government Order dated 5 April 1999, withdrew the pension of the employees of the Development Authorities. Aggrieved, the association of pensioners challenged the Government Order in Praveen Kumar Agrawal vs. State of U.P.3, decided on 20 November 2010.

5. The Court quashed the Government Order dated 5 April 1999. The operative portion of the order reads thus:

"A writ in the nature of certiorari is issued quashing the impugned order dated 5.4.1999 and 9.11.2004 with consequential benefits. A writ in the nature of mandamus is issued commanding the opposite parties to ensure the payment of regular pension to the petitioners and other similarly situated employees forthwith in accordance with Rules applicable to Government employees. Let decision be taken in pursuance of the observations made in the body of the present judgment expeditiously say, within three months from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this order. Respondents shall also ensure the payment of arrears of salary expeditiously say, within six months. "

6. Consequently, the State Government in exercise of powers conferred under Section 55 read with Sub-section (1) of Section 5 of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning and Development Act, 19734, framed the Uttar Pradesh Development Authorities Centralized Services Retirement Rules, 20115. In compliance of the judgment and pursuant to Sub-clause (iii) of Rule 1 of the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, Government Order dated 22 December 2011, came to be issued by the State Government conferring pension to all the employees of the Development Authorities, including those, who retired prior to the commencement of the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011.

7. Pursuant to the Government Order and Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, husband of the petitioner made an application on 6 February 2012, in the prescribed proforma for computation of his pension. However, died on 29 July 2012, before the pension could be sanctioned. After the death of her husband, petitioner applied for arrears of pension and family pension. The respondent authorities kept the matter pending. The fourth respondent, Finance Controller, Allahabad Development Authority, for the first time on 19 December 2015 sent the Pension Pay Order (PPO) to the office of the fifth respondent, Finance Controller, Lucknow Development Authority for approval. It appears that the PPO came to be rejected by the fifth respondent. The fourth respondent again on 17 March 2016 prepared a PPO which was sent to the fifth respondent for approval which again came to be returned/rejected with objections on 10 June 2016 stating therein that the family pension of the petitioner was wrongly computed. In the meantime, the State Government and other Local Bodies including the Development Authorities, accepted and implemented the recommendations of the 6th Pay Commission. Accordingly, petitioner apprised the fourth respondent to compute the family pension in the light of Government Orders dated 8 December 2008 read with 21 January 2016. It appears that nothing was done by the respondent authorities despite the petitioner being made to run from post to pillar. Finally, petitioner lodged a formal complaint before the third respondent, Vice Chairman, Allahabad Development Authority. It appears, thereafter, the fourth respondent vide communication dated 6 September 2016 computed the pension of the husband of the petitioner at Rs. 13677/- plus dearness allowance and family pension at Rs. 11052/- plus dearness allowance.

8. The harassment of the petitioner at the hands of the respondent authorities did not end there, the PPO dated 17 March 2016, which came to be rejected earlier was approved by the fifth respondent vide communication dated 6 September 2016. Accordingly, the bank was informed vide communication/order dated 26 September 2016. It is urged that authorities to further harass the petitioner had deliberately referred the family pension as "basic retirement pension' and petitioner was referred to as "retired Chief Engineer' in the communication issued to the bank. Consequently, the bank declined to honour the communication in view of the blatant errors. According to the petitioner it was wilful and deliberate. It is urged that even after filing the instant writ petition in November 2016, the alleged mistakes was not rectified, consequently, the petitioner did not receive family pension. It was on the intervention of this Court that the arrears of pension was paid to her but the communication to the bank was not rectified/corrected, petitioner, therefore, was not receiving pension on month to month basis.

9. That apart the, primary grievance of the petitioner is that while computing the pension and family pension, the respondent authorities have not followed the computation tabulation provided in the Government Orders issued since 8 December 2008 until 21 January 2016. According to the petitioner revised basic pension of her husband is required to be computed at Rs. 23050, and the revised basic family pension at Rs. 13830 upon implementation of the 6th Pay Commission recommendations w.e.f. 1 January 2006 by the State Government.

10. In the aforesaid backdrop, petitioner primarily seeks the following reliefs:

" i. Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari, quashing clause-6 of the Government Order dated 5 July 2016 (Annexure No. 1 to the writ petition) so far as it denies the payment of arrears of revised pension w.e.f. 01.01.2006 to the late husband of the petitioner.

ii. issue an appropriate writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding upon the respondents to disburse all the benefits engrafted in the Government Order dated 5.7.2016, including the arrears of the pension payable to the late husband of the petitioner w.e.f. 1.10.2001 along with 12% interest forthwith.

iii. Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to re-determine and pay the pension of the petitioner strictly in accordance with the Government Order dated 21.1.2016 issued by the State Government along with 12% interest."

11. It is urged by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the husband of the petitioner was a member of the Centralized Services, he retired from the post of Chief Engineer in 2001. After promulgation of Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, husband of the petitioner and the petitioner is entitled to pension/and family pension, respectively as per Government Orders. Under the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, read with the Government Orders issued from time to time, the employees of the Centralized Services are entitled to pension at par with the Government Servants, including, revised pension pursuant to the recommendations of the respective Pay Commissions. It is contended that the respondents have arbitrarily not computed/revised the pension/family pension of the petitioner pursuant to the formula/computation provided by the Government orders duly accepted and notified by the State Government.

12. It is further urged that it is admitted by the respondents that the recommendations of the Pay Commissions (VI and VII) have been duly applied to the employees of the Development Authorities in the State of Uttar Pradesh. It is not being disputed by the respondents that employees of the Centralized Services retiring as on date are receiving pension computed as per the recommendations of the 7th Pay Commission. In view thereof, it is urged that the employees, who retired earlier cannot be discriminated, being members of the same pension scheme, hence, are entitled to revised pension. The respondents cannot create a class within a class of pensioners, who stand on equal footing in the common pension scheme that came to be implemented in 2011 and is applicable uniformly to all the pensioners including those, who retired prior to the promulgation of Retirement Rules, 2011. Accordingly, it is submitted that petitioner is entitled to revised pension computed and implemented at par with State Government employees.

13. In rebuttal, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the first and second respondent, and learned counsels appearing for the third, fourth and fifth respondents submit that Development Authorities are autonomous bodies and the Government Orders issued from time to time pertaining to salary and pension are not automatically applicable upon the employees of the Development Authorities. It is upon adoption of the Government Orders by respective Development Authorities, the employees are entitled to pension/family pension. The Development Authorities are not bound to accept the Government Orders in totally issued intermittently revising the family pension, including, computation formula thereof. It is open to the respective Development Authority, depending upon the financial capacity to partially adopt the Government Order.

14. Learned counsel appearing for the third, fourth and fifth respondents submit that the Development Authority has not revised the pension and family pension of retirees and they continue to receive the pension plus dearness allowance that they were entitled to at the time of retirement or upon the death of the employee. The approval and sanction of the State Government with regard to revised pension/family pension pursuant to the recommendation of the 7th Pay Commission is pending with the State Government. It is accordingly urged that the petition lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

15. Rival submissions falls for consideration.

16. The point for determination is (i) whether the Government Orders pertaining to pension/family pension applicable to Government Servants would automatically apply to the members of the Centralised Services of the Development Authority (ii) whether Development Authority is required to take approval from the State Government before implementing the Government Orders revising the pension/family pension pursuant to the recommendations of the Pay Commission accepted by the State Government.

17. Before proceeding to consider the rival contentions and submissions, it would be apposite to examine the Act, Rules and Government Orders governing the employees of the Development Authorities, in particular, members of the Centralized Services with regard to salary, pension and family pension.

18. State Legislature promulgated the Development Act, 1973 (U.P. Act 30 of 1974). The Act was enacted for the development of certain areas of Uttar Pradesh according to plan and for matters ancillary thereto. The State Government constituted Development Authorities in the State in relation to Development Area, constituted as per the provisions of Section 4, upon notification in the Gazette.

19. Section 5 of Development Act, 1973, provides for staff of the Development Authority. Section 5 reads thus:

"5. Staff of the Authority:

(1) The State Government may appoint two suitable persons respectively as the Secretary and the Chief Accounts Officer of the Authority who shall exercise such powers and perform such duties as may be prescribed by regulations or delegated to them by the Authority or its Vice-Chairman.

(2) Subject to such control and restrictions as may be determined by general or special order of the State Government, the Authority may appoint such number of other officer and employees as may be necessary for the efficient performance of its functions and may determine their designations and grades.

(3) The Secretary, the Chief Accounts Officer and other Officers and employees of the Authority shall be entitled to receive from the funds of the Authority such salaries and allowances and shall be governed by such salaries and allowances and shall be governed by other conditions of service as may be determined by regulations made in that behalf."

20. On bare reading, Section 5 empowers the State Government to appoint Secretary and Chief Accounts Officer of Development Authority, who shall exercise such powers and duties as may be prescribed by the regulations or delegated to them by the Development Authority subject to such control and restrictions as may be determined by the general or special order of the State Government. The Development Authority has been conferred power to make appointment of officers and employees as may be necessary for the efficient performance of its functions and determine their designations and grades. The Secretary, Chief Accounts Officer and other officials and employees of the Development Authority shall be entitled to receive salaries and allowances from the funds of the Development Authority and shall be governed by such other conditions of service as may be determined by the regulations made in that behalf.

21. Section 5-A confers power upon the State Government by notification to create one or more Centralized Services for such posts, other than the post mentioned in Sub-section (4) of Section 59, common to all the Development Authorities. The post as per Sub-section (6) is transferable from one Development Authority to another Development Authority. Relevant portion of Section 5-A for the purposes of instant case is being extracted:

"5-A. Creation of Centralised Services:

(1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in Section 5 or in any other law for the time being in force, the State Government may at any time, by notification create one or more 'Development Authorities Centralised Services for such posts, other than the posts mentioned in Sub-Section (1) of Section 59, as the State Government may deem fit, common to all the Development Authorities, and may prescribe the manner and conditions of recruitment to and the terms and conditions of service of person appointed to such service.

(2) Upon creation of a Development Authorities Centralised Service, a person serving on the posts included in such service immediately before such creation, not being a person governed by the U.P. 22. On specific query, the learned counsel for the State-respondents informs that there are twenty four Development Authorities in the State having single Centralized Services common to all Development Authorities governed by the same conditions of service.

23. Chapter VII of Development Act, 1973, provides for Finance, Accounts and Audit. Section 24, thereunder, provides for pension and provident fund. Section 24 reads thus:

*"24. Pension and Provident Funds: -

(1) The Authority may constitute for the benefit of its whole time paid members and of its officers and other employees in such manner and subject to such conditions, as the State Government may specify, such pension or Provident funds as it may deem.

(2) Where any such person, or provident fund has been constituted, the State Government may declare that the provisions of the Provident Funds Act, 1925, shall apply to such fund as if it were Government Provident Fund."

24. Section 56 confers power upon the Development Authority to make regulations with the previous approval of the State Government for administration of the affairs of the Development Authority including salaries, allowances and conditions of service of its employees. Relevant portion of Section 56 is extracted:

"56.Power to make regulations.-

(1) An Authority may,with the previous approval of the State Government, make regulations not inconsistent with this Act and the rule made thereunder for the administration of the affairs of the Authority.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such regulations may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely-

25. The State Government in exercise of power conferred under Section 5A of Development Act, 1973, notified the U.P. Development Authorities Centralized Services Rules, 19856, on 25 June 1985, applicable to all the Development Authorities [Sub Rule (2) of Rule 1]. The cadre and strength of service has been provided under Rule 3. The age of superannuation and retiring pension is provided under Rule 34. Rule 37 mandates that any matter not covered by these Rules or by special orders, the members of service shall be governed by the rules, regulations and orders applicable generally to the Government Servants of Uttar Pradesh. Rule 34 & 37 of the Centralised Services Rules, 1985, is extracted:

"34. Age of retirement.- (1) Subject to the provisions of Sub-rules (2) and (3), the age of retirement from service of all officers and other employees of the service shall be sixty years beyond which no one shall ordinarily be retained in the service.

(2) xxxxxx

37. Regulation of other matters.- (1) If any dispute of difficulty arises regarding interpretation of any of the provisions of these rules, the same shall be referred to the Government whose decision shall be final.

(3) Matters not covered by sub-rules (1) and (2) above shall be governed, by such orders as the Government may deem proper to issue."

26. Rule 31 provides for leave, leave allowances, officiating pay, fee and honorarium as is admissible to the Government Servants of like status under the U.P. Financial Hand Book, Volume II, Parts II and IV.

27. Admittedly, all the employees working earlier in Nagar Palika, Nagar Nigam and later on, whose services were merged/absorbed with the Centralised Services, were being paid regular pension in view of the provisions of Section 59 of Development Act, 1973, and pursuant to Government Orders dated 17 March 1983 and 29 September 1983, until April 1999. Thereafter, pension was stopped and was not being paid to the employees of the Development Authority.

28. Prior to April 1999, until framing of the Retirement Benefit Rules 2011, under the Development Act, 1973, the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Palika (Centralized) Services Retirement Benefit Rules, 19817, was applicable to the employees of the Development Authorities. Family pension is provided under Rule 7 of Chapter III which reads thus:

''भाग–तीन
पारिवारिक पेंशन

7. पारिवारिक पेंशन–

किसी केन्द्रीयित सेवा में नियुक्त किसी व्यक्ति के परिवारिक पेंशन उत्तर प्रदेश के कार्यकलापों के सम्बन्ध में सेवारत सरकारी सेवकों पर लागू संयुक्त नियमों द्वारा विनियमित होगी।''

"Part - 3
Family pension

7. Family pension-

The family pension of any person appointed in any Centralized Service shall be regulated in terms of common rules applicable to serving Uttar Pradesh government servants attending to its affairs."

(Translation by the Court)

29. The Government order dated 4 April 1999, stopping the pension was set aside in Praveen Kumar Agrawal2, State Government, thereafter, framed the Retirement Benefits Rules, 2011, which governs the payment of pension/family pension of the employees of the Development Authorities. Part–I deals with ''Pension and Gratuity'. Rule 4 provides calculation of pension and gratuity according to the procedure and formula applicable to employees of the State Government. Relevant portion of Rule 4 is extracted:

"4. Calculation of Pension and Gratuity-

(1) The amount of superannuation, retirement, invalid and compensation pension and gratuity shall be appropriate amount calculated according to the procedure and formula applicable to the employees of the Uttar Pradesh Government.

xxx xxx xxx xxx

xxx xxx xxx xxx

(2) xxx xxx xxx xxx

(3) The expression "invalid and compensation pension" will have the same meaning as is assigned to it in respect of the employees of the State Government."

30. Part-III of the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, provides for family pension, regulated by the relevant rules applicable to Government Servants of the State of Uttar Pradesh. Rule 7 is extracted:

"7. The Family Pension to the family of a member of the service shall be regulated by the relevant rules applicable to Government Servants services in connection with the affairs of the State of Uttar Pradesh."

31. The Government in exercise of power conferred under proviso to Sub-clause (3) of Rule 1 of Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, and in compliance of the decision rendered in Praveen Kumar Agrawal2, issued Government Order conferring the benefit of pension/family pension to all the employees of Development Authority, who retired prior to 11 November 2011. In other words, the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, covered all the employees and members of the Centralized Services retiring prior to 2011 and thereafter. Husband of the petitioner pursuant thereunder applied for pension, however, died on 29 July 2012. Petitioner, thereafter, pursued the matter with the respondent-authorities for arrears, pension and family pension, revised from time to time, with effect from the date of retirement of the husband of the petitioner i.e. 30 September 2001.

32. The State Government vide Government Order dated 8 December 2008, accepted the recommendation of the Sixth Central Pay Commission proposed by the Uttar Pradesh Pay Committee. The Government Order was made applicable to all the employees of the State Government retired prior to 1 January 2006. Along with Government Order, a tabular chart showing existing Basic Pension/Family Pension without dearness allowance, Basic Pension/Family Pension with dearness allowance and the consolidated Pension/Family Pension was appended for computation of pension/revised pension. The Government Order further provided that the amount of family pension shall not be lower than 30% of the sum minimum of the pay in the pay-band and grade pay corresponding to the pay scale in which the government servant retired prior to 1 January 2006. Clause 4(1) of the Government Order, however, provides a rider that pension will be reduced pro rata where the pensioner had less than 33 years of service. According to the petitioner, minimum basic pension of the deceased-employee would be computed as under:

Pension vide 5th Pay Commission i.e. Prior to 01.01.2006	As per formula in Clause 4(1) w.e.f. 01.01.2006 (as per Pension Table)	As per proviso of Para4-(1) (after pro-rata reduction as per rider of 33 years of service)	As per Proviso of Clause 4-(1). (without applying rider of 33 years service)
Rs.6,051/-	Rs.13,677/-	Rs.17,113/-	Rs.23,050/-

33. Similarly, the minimum basic family pension of the petitioner w.e.f. 1 January 2006 works out to be:

As per formula in Clause 4(1)	As per Proviso of Clause 4(1)
Rs.11,052/-	Rs.13,830/-

34. Relevant portion of Government Order dated 8 December 2008 is extracted:

(iii)- The dearness relief, currently admissible, is equal to 24 percent of original pension/original family pension and dearness pension on the basis of AICPI536 (on the basis of 100 in 1982); and by converting the amount equal to 50 percent of the dearness relief into dearness pension in terms of the Government Order No. Sa-2-1746/X-2005-308/2004, dated 02nd December, 2005,

37. The State Government, thereafter, issued corrigendum dated 19 July 2010, along with a Table showing the revised pay structure and corresponding minimum pensions. Item No. 18 of the Table shows the corresponding minimum revised basic pension admissible to the husband of the petitioner at Rs.23,000+D.A. per month. Similar Government Order/Corrigendum dated 12 October 2010, came to be issued by the State Government revising minimum basic pension. Item No. 12 of the enclosed Table to the Government Order shows the minimum basic family pension admissible to the petitioner at Rs.13,830/-. Thereafter, State Government again issued a Government Order/Corrigendum dated 7 November 2014 & 14 July 2014 revising the pension and family pension of certain lower pay scales which is not applicable to the facts of the instant case. Subsequently, the State Government issued Government Order dated 21 January 2016, clarifying that family pension shall not be less than thirty percent of the basic pension. The Table enclosed along with the Government Order reflects that the revised basic pension of the husband of the petitioner is at Rs. 23,050/- and revised basic family pension admissible to the petitioner is at Rs.13,830/-.

38. Grievance of the petitioner is that petitioner is entitled to the revised pension computed by the State Government as against the pension/family pension computed/approved and sanctioned by the respondents at Rs.13,677/- and 11,052/- respectively.

39. Having considered the provisions of the Act, Rules and the Government Orders, I proceed to consider the rival submissions of the parties.

40. Facts, interse, parties are not in dispute. This Court in Praveen Kumar Agrawal2 held that the members of the Centralized Services are entitled to pension admissible to the employees of the State Government. Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, in particular Rule 4 and 7 categorically provides that the amount of pension and family pension shall be "calculated according to the procedure and formula applicable to the employees of the Uttar Pradesh Government". The family pension is regulated by the "relevant rules applicable to the Government Servants services in connection with the affairs of the State of Uttar Pradesh". On joint reading of Rule 4 and 7 along with Section 24 of Development Act, 1973, it is evident that the rules/orders made applicable to the employees of the State Government and the formula for computation of pension and family pension thereunder would apply by reference to the employees of the Development Authority. The Rules are binding upon the Development Authorities. Prior to the enactment of Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, similar provision was contained in the Rules, 1981, and Rules, 1985, which was applicable upon the employees of the Development Authority. Rule 37 of Rules, 1981 clearly provided that family pension admissible to the employees of the State Government and the rules framed thereunder would apply. In other words, the employees including the members of the Centralized Services were receiving pension/family pension and revised family pension at par with the government servants determined by the State Government from time to time. The employees of Development Authorities, thereafter, are entitled to pension/family pension at the rate admissible to Government Servants.

41. In Pepsu Road Transport Corporation Patialia vs. Mangal Singh and others8, the Supreme Court held that Rules/Regulations validly made is legislative in nature and binding upon the statutory bodies and the employees.

"The Regulations validly made under statutory powers are binding and effective as the enactment of the competent legislature. The statutory bodies as well as general public are bound to comply with the terms and conditions laid down in the Regulations as a legal compulsion. Any action or order in breach of the terms and conditions of the Regulations shall amount to violation of Regulations which are in the nature of statutory provisions and shall render such action or order illegal and invalid. Even in the case of non-statutory Regulations, specifically providing for the grant of pensionary benefits to the employee qua his employer shall be governed by the terms and conditions encapsulated in such non-statutory Regulations."

42. It is clear that the government order/resolution of Development Authority cannot supersede provisions of Act/or statutory Rules. The view is fortified by the judgment of the Supreme Court in Union of India versus Charanjeet S. Gill9 and Public Service Commission, Uttaranchal Versus JCS Bora10, the relevant portion reads thus:

"28.....It is settled proposition of law that the executive orders cannot supplant the Rules framed under the proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution of India. Such executive orders/ instructions can only supplement the Rules framed under the proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution of India."

43. Where an earlier legislation is incorporated into a later legislation, the provisions of earlier law which are incorporated into the later law become part and parcel of the later law. The amendments made in the earlier law after the date of incorporation, which are not expressly made applicable to the subsequent Act, cannot, by their own force, be read into the later Act. Similarly, repeal of the earlier Act by a third Act does not affect the incorporating Act. There is a distinction between legislation by incorporation and that by reference inasmuch as in the latter case the amendments made in the earlier legislation would be applicable to the referring legislation. Applying the principle in the instant case the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, makes applicable the Government Orders, insofar it relates to pension/family pension, by reference. The subsequent amendments made thereto would therefore also apply.

44. Supreme Court in Bajaya v. Gopikabai11 explained the distinction between legislation by reference and incorporation.

"Legislation by referential incorporation falls in two categories, (a) where a statute by specific reference incorporates the provisions of another statute as of the time of adoption : and (b) where a statute incorporates by general reference the law concerning a particular subject, as a genus. In case (a) the subsequent amendments made in the referred statute cannot automatically be read into the adopting statute. But in the category (b) it may be presumed that the legislative intent was to include all the subsequent amendments also made from time to time in the generic law on the subject adopted by general reference."

(Refer: Western Coalfields Limited vs. Special Area Development Authority, Korba12)

67. The Division Bench of this Court in Chandra Pal Singh & others vs. State of U.P. through Principal Secretary Housing Civil Secretariat & others13, was called upon to consider the plea of retired employees of the U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad, a statutory authority constituted under the U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965, whether the petitioners therein were entitled to revised pay as per Sixth Pay Commission w.e.f. 1 January 2006. The Government order dated 8 December 2008, which is relied upon in the instant case, was considered. The Court was of the view that statutory regulations framed by the Parishad providing pension/family pension admissible to the officers and employees of the State Government stands incorporated by reference. Relevant portion of para-24 is extracted:

"Considering the submissions of the parties, we are of the considered opinion that statutory regulations for the employees of the Parishad have been notified on 19th May, 2009, by virtue of which, employees of the Parishad are held entitled to payment of pension/family pension and gratuity as is admissible to the officers and employees of the State Government which has not been disputed also. The relevant Government Orders, as well as statutory scheme i.e. U.P. Civil Services Regulation, Pensions Rules, U.P. Retirement Benefit Rules, 1961, New Family Pension Scheme, 1965 and all orders of Finance Department in relation to pension/family pension/ gratuity as are applicable to the employees of the State Government stands incorporated by reference..... Except for the Government Order No. 1508 dated 8th December, 2008, there is no other Government Order regulating grant of financial benefits under the Sixth Pay Commission Report or payment of pension and gratuity to the employees of the State Government. This Government Order, therefore, would apply in its entirety to the employees of the Parishad by virtue of statutory Regulations of 2009. The exclusionary part under the Government Order dated 8th December, 2008 insofar as it exempts its applicability upon the employees of Public Enterprises and local bodies, would have to be read down and held to be inapplicable, so far as employees of the public corporations are concerned. This construction would be obvious in as much as the employees of Parishad would have to be treated at par with the employees of the State Government and the Government Orders issued for the employees of Government Corporations etc by bureau of Public Enterprises would have no applicability."

45. The pleadings setforth by the respondents is relevant. Counter affidavit filed by the the Principal Secretary Department of Housing and Urban Planning, Government of Uttar Pradesh, has stated that the Government Orders issued from time to time, in particular Government Order dated 8 December 2008 and 21 January 2016, are applicable upon the retired employees of the State Government and is not applicable to the petitioner. However, it has been accepted that the pensioners of Centralized Services are governed by the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011. Para 8 and 29 are extracted:

"8. That in reply to the contents of the paragraph no.-4 of the writ petition, it is submitted that the government orders dated 08.12.2008 and 21.01.2016 have been issued in respect of retired employees of State Government. Retirement benefits of pensioners of Development Authority Service are governed by Uttar Pradesh development Authorities Centralized Service Retirement Benefits Rules 2011. The Government Orders issued in respect of pensioners of state government are not applicable on pensioners of Development Authorities Service.

29. That in reply to the contents of the paragraph no.-37 of the writ petition, it is stated that the detailed reply has already been given in the preceding paragraphs of the instant counter affidavit. However, it is further stated that as far as Clause 4(i) of the said Government Order is concerned it is clarified that at that point of time calculation was made as per the procedure of the government order but this does not mean that the future amendments made by the State Government from time to time will automatically apply in totality upon the Development Authorities because Development Authorities are self financed autonomous body who are dependent on their own sources of income. The Development Authorities are totally dependent upon their own financial resources to make the payment of salary of their employees and their other expenses. These bodies do not receive any financial aid from the State Government for the purpose of payment of salary and the pension to their employees. The Government Orders issued by the State Government are not directly applicable upon the employees of the Authorities unless and until, it has been adopted/approved by the Board of the authorities keeping in view of their own financial condition."

46. The second respondent, Principal Secretary Department of Finance, Government of Uttar Pradesh filed counter affidavit stating therein that the Finance Department is an advisory department and the service matters of employees and departmental rules are administered by the concerned administrative departments. The pensionary benefits admissible to the employees of the Centralized Services is governed by the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011. Paragraphs 4 and 7 of the counter affidavit filed by second respondent are extracted:

"4. That, as per the information made available by the Housing and Urban Planning Department, Government of Uttar Pradesh, Late Surendra Singh, petitioner's husband, joined his services in the Centralized Services of the development authority on 25/04/1977 and retired on 30/09/2001 on superannuation from Allahabad Development Authority. He passed away on 29/07/2012. Late Surendra Singh was granted pension as per the U.P. Development |Authority Centralize Service Retirement Benefits Rules, 2011, hereinafter referred to as the "Rules of 2011*", which are applicable to the members of the Centralized Services of Deveoopment Authorities of Uttar Pradesh. After his death, his wife Mrs. Shakuntala Singh, who is the petitioner in the instant writ petition is being paid family pension as per the said rules.*

7. That the petitioner is claiming the benefit of pension as per the Government Order dated 08/12/2008, which is applicable to the State pensioners and this Government order is not binding upon the development authorities."

47. The third and fourth respondents in their counter affidavit do not deny the facts and state that the pension of the ex-employee and the family pension of the petitioner was calculated as per the recommendations of Sixth Pay Commission w.e.f. 1 January 2006 on pro rata basis after reducing the qualifying service of the ex-employee being less than 33 years. It is further stated that the Government Orders dated 8 December 2008 does not apply to the members of the Centralized Services. Paragraphs 24, 33, 35, 40 of the counter affidavit filed by the third and fourth respondent are extracted:

"24. That in reply to the contents of paragraph no's. 37 & 38 of the writ petition, it is stated that the averments made in paragraphs under reply are incorrect and are denied. The true and correct facts are that the government order dated 08.12.2008 has further been substituted by the government orders dated 19.07.2010, 14.07.2014 & 21.01.2016. The judgment was delivered by the Lucknow bench of this Hon'ble court on 20.11.2010 and thereafter the G.O. dated 14.07.2014 and 21.01.2016 have been issued. As the government orders dated 14.07.2014 and 21.01.2016 have not yet been applicable to the employees of the Development Authorities, the payment of pension etc. has to be done as per the old procedure. The same is clearly explicit from the letter No.575/,Q0lh0@ds0is0@,y0Mh0,0@201 6&2017 issued by the Lucknow Development Authority whereby the arrears of pension for the period of 01.10.2001 to 29.10.2016 for a sum of Rs. 28,21,540/- payable to the petitioner has been issued.

33. That in reply to the contents of paragraph no. 51 of the writ petition, it is stated that the averments made in paragraph under reply are not admitted in the manner stated. Only this much is admitted that the government orders dated 14.07.2014 and 21.01.2016 are not applicable to the petitioner, as the same are subsequent to the judgment delivered by the Hon'ble Lucknow bench of this Hon'ble court. The crux of the matter is that the government order issued by the state government upto 12.10.2010 alone can be applied. Thus the settled position is that the pension of the husband of the petitioner has been calculated by applying the formula vkSlr ifjyfC/k;k x sosk lekgh (vf/kdre 66)@2 x 66o As is evident from the letter No. 575/fo0fo0lh0@ds0ih0@,y0Mh0,0@2016&17 @ issued by the Lucknow Development Authority.

35. Only this much is admitted that the statement government has issued the government order dated 8.12.2008. However, the G.O. dated 8.12.2008 is in respect of the employees of the statement government and is not applicable to the employees of the centralized/non Centralized Services of the Development Authority.

40. Accordingly the pension of the husband of the petitioner as per the 6th pay commission was calculated from 01.01.2006 on basic pension of Rs. 6051/- revised to 13,677.00 plus D.A. upto 29.07.2012. Surendra Singh the husband of the petitioner died on 29.07.2012 and therefore the family pension was calculated on Rs. 11052.00 plus D.A. As per above the Area of Rs. 28,21,540.00 has been paid by L.D.A."

48. On perusal of the averments made in the counter affidavit, there appears to be consensus amongst the respondents that Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, apply to the petitioner. Further, the Government Orders issued subsequent to the High Court judgment i.e. after 2010 has not been applied to the employees of the Development Authority. In other words the contention of the petitioner that subsequent Government Orders pertaining to pension/family pension has not been applied by the respondents in computing the revised pension/family pension has been admitted. The stand of the respondents is self contradictory and in teeth of the mandatory provision of the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, as per their own saying, mandating that Government Orders applicable to the Government Servant would apply to the employees of the Development Authority.

49. In the instant case, the respondents have taken oscillating and contradictory stand but on specific query, it is admitted by the learned counsel for the respondents that no alternate formula for computation of pension/family pension, other than that provided by the State Government, was followed and applied to the petitioner. The fifth respondent custodian of pension fund has not evolved a formula for computation of pension and family pension insofar as it relates to the employees of the Development Authorities. It is rather not open to the respondent-Development Authority on reading of the provisions of the Retired Benefit Rules, 2011, to adopt a formula other than that applicable to the Government Servants. In the event of the Development Authorities doing so, it will violate of the mandatory provisions of Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, read with Section 24 of Development Act, 1973. The Development Authority lacks power and authority to override, deviate or rewrite the Rules framed by the State Government governing and regulating pension/family pension. It is accordingly held.

50. The implementation of the recommendations of the 7th Pay Commission insofar it relates to retirees, is pending approval with the State Government. It is, though, admitted that the Development Authority has sufficient funds to meet the expenses of the recommendations of the 7th Pay Commission from its own sources to pay revised pension to its employees.

51. The fifth respondent in the compliance affidavit has stated that the fifth respondent has been corresponding with the State Government for providing benefit of the increased/revised pension/family pension according to the recommendation of the 7th Pay Commission to the retired employees/family members of the Centralized Services. The approval from the State Government is awaited. It is further stated that the fifth respondent, Secretary, Lucknow Development Authority, vide communication dated 10 October 2017, addressed to the Joint Secretary Housing and Urban Planning Government of Uttar Pradesh has conveyed that the Development Authority is having the capacity to bear the expenses to finance the enhanced pension/revised family pension recommended by the 7th Pay Commission to the employees retired prior to 1 January 2016. Similar, subsequent communications until 24 August 2019, has been brought on record. Paragraphs 26 and 27 of the compliance affidavit are extracted:

"26. That the pension has been paid to the petitioner, in accordance with the Sixth Pay Commission.

27. That as stated aforesaid, several letters have been sent to the state government for providing the approval for applicability of seventh pay commission to the employees of Centralized Services, and the same is still pending for approval before the state government."

52. In the backdrop of the stand taken by the fifth respondent, the ancillary question that arises is as to whether, the Development Authority is bound to take approval of the State Government before implementing the recommendations of the respective Pay Commissions made applicable to the government servants through various Government Orders.

53. On having scanned the provisions of Development Act, 1973, and the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, it is clearly evident that Development Authority constituted under the Development Act, 1973, is an autonomous body, having separate fund and common Pension Fund. The salary, pension etc. of its employees are funded by the Development Authority from their own resources. The State Government does not fund the Development Authorities. The Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, framed by the Government, being legislative, is binding upon the Development Authorities uniformally and even upon the State Government. The Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, nowhere prohibits the Development Authorities from implementing the Government Orders without the prior approval of the State Government. Rather, what the Rule mandates is that the Government Orders, pertaining to pension/family pension issued in respect of Government Servants gets applicable and enforced upon the employees of the Development Authority by operation of law, no further act of approval is required at the end of the State Government or the resolution of the Development Authority. The stand of the respondents that the Government Orders do not apply to Development Authority and it is only upon adoption thereof by the respective Development Authority lacks merit. Further, the stand is negation of the concept of a common Centralized Services created by the State Government for all the Developments Authorities by enacting Rules 1985. The members thereunder are governed by uniform conditions of service, including, salary and pension. In view thereof, it is not open to the Development Authority to alter the condition of service by passing a resolution against the Act/Rules. Despite repeated query no such resolution defying the Government Orders referred herein above, has been placed on record.

54. In State of Uttar Pradesh versus Preetam Singh and others16, one of the issues before the Supreme Court was, as to whether, the Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad constituted under Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965, is required to take prior approval of the State Government before formulating the Pension Scheme for its employees in lieu of Contradictory Provident Fund (C.P.F.). The Court upon perusal of the Adhiniyam held that the previous approval of the State Government to frame regulations governing the conditions of service of its employee, including, pension was not required to be obtained by Parishad from the State Government.

55. In the facts of the instant case, the State Government in exercise of its powers under Development Act, 1973, framed the Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, which govern the computation and payment of pension/family pension to the employees and their dependents. The Rules nowhere requires that the Government Orders issued by the State Government from time to time governing pension and family pension is required to be implemented by the Development Authority after obtaining approval from the State Government. Since the fifth respondent has taken a stand that they have the requisite amount in the Pension Fund, constituted under Rule 16 of Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, the Development Authority can immediately without any approval implement the Government Orders revising the pension/ family pension of its employees pursuant to the Government Orders implementing the 7th Pay Commission. Rather the Government Orders comes into force the moment it is issued by the State Government.

56. The next question that arises is as to whether the Development Authorities can artificially fix cut of date to deprive the retirees revised pension. It is accepted by the respondents that the employees retired prior to 1 January 2006 are receiving pension/family pension as per the recommendations of the 6th Pay Commission, though, subsequent Government Orders providing the formula for computing pension/family pension, including, minimum family pension has not been applied to the retirees of Development Authority. The provision constituting the Pension Fund may be perused, in order to appreciate the submission.

57. Part VI of Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, provides for establishment of Pension Fund and the procedure for payment therefrom. The fund is established under the control of the fifth respondent i.e. Finance Controller, Lucknow Development Authority, which is a common pension fund known as the "Uttar Pradesh Development Authorities Centralized Services Pension Fund'. Rule 16 is extracted:

"16. Pension Fund- There shall be established under the control of the Finance Controller, Lucknow Development Authority a common pension fund to be known as the "Uttar Pradesh Development Authorities Centralized Services Pension Fund", hereinafter referred to as the "fund'. The amount of pensionary contributions payable by the Authority under rule 11 shall be credited into this fund."

58. Rule 21 provides for sanction and preparation of Pension Payment Order. Relevant Portion of Rule 21 is extracted:

"21. Pension payment order- After the amount of pension/family pension/gratuity has been sanctioned under rule 13 of these rules "pension payment order in Form "M" shall be issued by the Vice Chairman. Development Authority for the payment of pension/family pension/gratuity sanctioned in each case. The copies of this order shall be endorsed to the pensioner. Finance Controller, Lucknow Development Authority: the Bank and Director, Local Fund Accounts, Uttar Pradesh:

Provided that the Vice Chairman, Development Authority may, if he is satisfied that there is a possibility of considerable delay in sanctioning pension/family pension/gratuity in a particular case, sanction, interim pension/family pension/gratuity against a declaration in Form ''N' made by the member of service concerned; but this amount shall not be more that 75 percent of the amount of the pension and gratuity assessed. Similarly, before sanctioning interim family pension and gratuity a declaration in Form "O' shall be taken from the legal heir of the deceased member of service."

59. Rule 30 provides for investment of pension fund which reads thus:

"30. Investment of Pension Fund- The amounts of pension fund shall be invested in Government securities or in long term deposits/time deposit/and other savings accounts in a Scheduled Bank/Post Office as the Finance Controller, Lucknow Development Authority may deem proper but the balance in the current account shall always be maintained as much as it is sufficient to meet the requirements of monthly pension to be paid to the members of service. Investments have entered in an Investment Register will maintained in Form "T".

60. Division Bench of this Court in M.P. Tandon, Allahabad vs. State of U.P., Lucknow and others17, wherein, writ of mandamus was sought by the petitioner therein to make payment of pension and other benefits including gratuity, family pension in accordance with the latest Government order. The State Government had changed the formula for calculation of pension as a result of which the enhanced amount of pension became payable to those Government servants who retired from service on or after March, 1979. The Government order denied the benefits of revised scale of pension to those Government servants who retired on or before the cut of date.

61. The question before the Court was whether the classification of pensioners made by the State Government on the basis of their retirement, before or after the specified dates, is reasonable and whether it has any nexus with the object sought to be achieved. The Division Bench placing reliance on the decision rendered in Deoki Nandan Prasad v. State of Bihar18, and State of Punjab v. Iqbal Singh19 allowed the petition and issued direction to pay the liberalized pension to the petitioner being part and parcel to the common pension scheme.

62. Similarly in the case of FCI Versus Ashis Kumar Ganguly and others20, the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraph 29 has held as under:

"29. A statutory authority or an administrative authority must exercise its jurisdiction one way or the other so as to enable the employees to take recourse to such remedies as are available to them in law, if they are aggrieved thereby. The question which, however arises for consideration is as to whether having exercised its jurisdiction in favour of a class of employees, a statutory authority can deny a similar relief to another class of employees. In a case of this nature, in our opinion, the writ court was entitled to declare such a stand taken by the statutory authority as discriminatory on arriving at a finding that both the classes are entitled to the benefit of a statutory rule."

63. Recently, in All Manipur Pensioners Association through its Secretary vs. The State of Manipur and others21, the short question posed before the Supreme Court was, whether the State Government would be justified in creating two classes of pensioners, viz., pre-1996 retirees and post-1996 retirees for the purpose of payment of revised pension, salary on the ground of financial constraint. The State Government justified the cut-off date for payment of revised pension solely on the ground of financial constraint. On no other ground, the State tried to justify the classification.

64. The Supreme Court rejecting the cut of date held as follows:

"Even otherwise on merits also, we are of the firm opinion that there is no valid justification to create two classes, viz., one who retired pre-1996 and another who retired post-1996, for the purpose of grant of revised pension, In our view, such a classification has no nexus with the object and purpose of grant of benefit of revised pension. All the pensioners form a one class who are entitled to pension as per the pension rules. Article 14 of the Constitution of India ensures to all equality before law and equal protection of laws. At this juncture it is also necessary to examine the concept of valid classification. A valid classification is truly a valid discrimination. It is true that Article 16 of the Constitution of India permits a valid classification. However, a very classification must be based on a just objective. The result to be achieved by the just objective presupposes the choice of some for differential consideration/treatment over others. A classification to be valid must necessarily satisfy two tests. Firstly, the distinguishing rationale has to be based on a just objective and secondly, the choice of differentiating one set of persons from another, must have a reasonable nexus to the objective sought to be achieved. The test for a valid classification may be summarised as a distinction based on a classification founded on an intelligible differentia, which has a rational relationship with the object sought to be achieved."

65. D.S. Nakara and others v. Union of India22 was followed, wherein, the Supreme Court held that homogeneous class of pensioners cannot be divided arbitrarily for the purpose of upward revised pension. Para-42 of the judgment reads thus:

"42. If it appears to be undisputable, as it does to us that the pensioners for the purpose of pension benefits form a class, would its upward revision permit a homogeneous class to be divided by arbitrarily fixing an eligibility criteria unrelated to purpose of revision, and would such classification be founded on some rational principle?..... If the State considered it necessary to liberalise the pension scheme, we find no rational principle behind it for granting these benefits only to those who retired subsequent to that date simultaneously denying the same to those who retired prior to that date. If the liberalisation was considered necessary for augmenting social security in old age to government servants then those who, retired earlier cannot be worst off than those who retire later. Therefore, this division which classified pensioners into two classes is not based on any rational principle and if the rational principle is the one of dividing pensioners with a view to giving something more to persons otherwise equally placed, it would be discriminatory."

66. It is not being disputed by the respondents that the recommendation of the 6th Pay Commission and 7th Pay Commission in respect of the employees of Development Authorities has been accepted by the State Government and implemented by the Development Authorities pursuant to the Government orders w.e.f. 1 January 2006 and 1 January 2016 respectively. But in the same breath, it is urged that the retired employees are not being paid revised pension pursuant to the Government Orders, however, the employees of the Development Authorities who have retired after 1 January 2006 & 1 January 2016 respectively are being paid revised pension as per the recommendation of the respective Pay Commissions. In other words, the date implementing each of the Pay Commission recommendation has been taken to be the cut of date to deprive the pensioners the benefits of revised pension/family pension. Such an artificial classification is not founded on an intelligible differentia so as to distinguish persons that are grouped together from and others left out. Petitioner, therefore, is entitled to revised family pension based on the formula approved by the State Government in implementing 6th / 7th Pay Commissions.

68. The contention of the petitioner that her family pension should be computed as per the formula applicable to the Government Servants has merit, which cannot be denied in view of the mandatory provisions. The Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, does not confer upon the Development Authority power and authority to determine its own formula for computation of pension/family pension. The Rule by reference adopts the formula pertaining to pension/family pension applicable to the employees of the State Government. The Government Orders apply to the Development Authority automatically on being issued without any further approval of the Government or resolution of the Development Authority.

69. In view thereof, the Government Order dated 8 December 2008 and subsequent clarificatory Government Orders until 5 July 2016 would apply to the petitioner in computation of family pension. The tabular chart, made part of the Government Orders dealing with the computation and revision would apply in totality without modification. It is not in dispute that the ex-employee retired on the last drawn salary at Rs. 16300 in pay-scale 14300-18300, which as per the Government Order dated 8 December 2008, the corresponding pay-band of the above pay-scale is at 37400-67000 and grade-pay at 8700. Further, para 4(1) of the Government Order clearly provides that while computing pension the amount so calculated, in no case, shall be less than 50% of the minimum pay in the pay-band plus the grade-pay corresponding to the pre-revised pay-scale from which the petitioner retired. The pro-rata principle of deducting pension on the length of service was done away with. According to the petitioner, as per the formula stipulated in the Government Orders, the minimum revised pension of her husband would be at Rs. 23050/- and minimum revised family pension at Rs. 13830/-.

70. The petitioner finally has sought quashing of Clause (6) of Government Order dated 5 July 2016, insofar it denies arrears of revised pension w.e.f. 1 January 2006, to the ex-employee (husband). It is not the case of the petitioner that the Government Order denying arrears of revised pension is being paid to the Government Servants. It is not a case of discrimination and it is always open for the State Government to decide uniformly for the Government Servants and other employees of the Local Bodies and Development Authorities the date from which the Government Order would apply. In case, the contention and relief sought by the petitioner is accepted, then in that event the Government Servants would be discriminated against. Further, Retirement Benefit Rules, 2011, provides that the Government Orders pertaining to pension and family pension applicable to Government Servants would apply to the employees of the Development Authorities. In that event, petitioner cannot claim anything beyond that what is conferred by the Government Order. In view thereof, the plea for arrears of revised pension w.e.f. 1 January 2006 is untenable, accordingly, rejected.

71. It is not being disputed by the respondent-Development Authority that the retiral dues was paid to the petitioner in two installments at a belated stage after four years from the due date. That apart, petitioner has been subjected to harassment at the hands of the fifth respondent by sending defective and wrong PPO and communication to the bank which deprived her of her monthly family pension for considerable long period. The PPO was not rectified despite knowledge and information to the fifth respondent. In the circumstances, petitioner is entitled to interest on delayed payment.

72. In D.D. Tewari v. Uttar Haryana Bijli Vitran Nigam Ltd.23, Supreme Court held that the pension and gratuity are not bounty to be distributed by the Government to its employees on their retirement, but are valuable rights and property in their hands and any culpable delay in settlement and disbursement thereof is to be dealt with the penalty of payment of interest. The Court directed payment of interest @ 9% on the delayed payment within stipulated period failing which interest thereon @ 18% per annum would need to be paid.

73. Having due regard to the facts and law, the writ petition is allowed subject to the following orders:

i.) the respondents are directed to compute the pension of the ex-employee and family pension of the petitioner strictly, in accordance with the formula set forth in the Government Orders made applicable to Government Servants implementing recommendations of 6th and 7th Pay Commissions;

ii.) on computation/determination as per (i) above, petitioner shall be entitled to arrears of pension/family pension as provided for in the Government Orders; iii.) petitioner shall be entitled to interest @ 8% per annum on the delayed payment of post retiral dues from the due date;

iv.) arrears of pension/family pension and the interest payable on the delayed payment of retiral dues shall be computed and paid to the petitioner within two months, from the date of service of certified copy of the order, failing which, petitioner shall be entitled to interest @ 12% on the entire amount from the due date;

v.) the prayer for quashing Clause (6) of Government Order dated 5 July 2016 is rejected;

74. Cost of litigation assessed at Rs. 50,000/- to be paid to the petitioner by the third respondent, Allahabad Development Authority.

A. Service Law - Education Service - Payment of Salary - U.P. Recognized Basic School Recruitment (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978: Rule 4(1); U.P. Basic Education Act, 1972; U.P. Junior High School (Payment of Salary of Teachers and other employees) Act, 1978 - Unamended Rule 4(1) of the Rules, 1978 did not recognize the B.Ed qualification as a training qualification for recruitment of teachers in recognized Junior Basic Schools.

The use of words "such as" in Rule 4(1) (original Rule, 1978) cannot be said to be inclusive and is not open for scrutiny before this Court. Relying upon various precedents the Court held that prescribed training qualification under the unamended Rule 4(1) of the Rules, 1978 did not recognize the B.Ed qualification as a training qualification for recruitment of teachers in recognized Junior Basic Schools. The Amending Rules' of 2008 was not clarificatory and the appointment made prior to the said amendment would be governed by the unamended rule. (Para 29)

B. Service Law - Education Service – Termination – Petitioners had not obtained appointment by any fraudulent method. Therefore, the impugned order and the consequential orders of the Manager of the Institution discontinuing their services w.e.f. 10.11.2012 were quashed. (Para 34)

Present petition challenges order dated 22.10.2012, passed by Director of Education (Basic) U.P., Lucknow.

1. Heard Sri Ashok Khare learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Siddharth Khare learned Advocate for the petitioners in the leading writ petition, Sri Utpal Chatterji learned Advocate for the petitioners in the connected Writ Petition Nos. 9223 of 2013 (Smt. Parveen Philip vs. State of U.P. Thru Principal Secretary & others) and 9228 of 2013 (Smt. Veena Menon vs. State of U.P. Thru. Principal Secretary & others), Sri T.K. Mishra learned Advocate for the petitioner in the connected Writ Petition Nos. 13433 of 2013 (Smt. Santosh Singh vs. State of U.P. Thru. Secy & others), Sri Shivam Yadav learned Advocate for the District Basic Education Officer, Meerut and Finance & Accounts Officer (Basic), office of the District Basic Education Officer, Meerut and learned Standing Counsel for the State respondent nos. 1 and 2.

2. The above noted five connected petitions have been filed against the common order dated 22.10.2012 passed by the Director of Education (Basic) U.P, Lucknow whereby the representations moved by the petitioners for payment of salary from the State Exchequer had been rejected on the ground that they did not fulfill the minimum eligibility qualification as per the U.P Recognized Basic School Recruitment (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Services of Teachers) Rules, 1978 (In short termed as Rules, 1978 hereinafter).

3. The petitioners contend that they had been appointed as Assistant Teacher on 1.7.1989 (for petitioners Neeta James, Ms.Venna Menon and Smt Santosh Singh) and 11.11.1989 and 25.6.1989 (for remaining two petitioners Rubina Swami and Parveen Philip) in Church city Junior High School, Sadar Meerut. They claim to possess requisite eligibility qualification for appointment as Assistant Teacher in the aforesaid institution which is a recognized and aided Junior High School and is governed by the provisions of the U.P Basic Education Act, 1972 and the rules framed thereunder. The U.P Junior High School (Payment of Salary of Teachers and other employees) Act, 1978 is applicable to the said institution. The institution-in-question was brought on the grant-in-aid list with effect from 1988.

4. It is not disputed that the temporary appointment of all the petitioners was approved by the District Basic Education Officer by orders passed in the year 1990 and they were working continuously and getting salary from the State Exchequer. In the year 2007, husband of one of the Assistant Teachers namely Priyadarshini Sharma working in the same institution filed a Writ Petition no.21422 of 2007 to challenge the appointment of 21 Assistant Teachers including the petitioners herein. The said writ petition was disposed of by the judgment and order dated 1.7.2007 wherein this Court had directed the Director of Education (Basic) to call for the records from the office of Basic Education Officer and examine the illegality of the appointment and payment, if any, made to the teachers and other staff of the said institution. Pursuant to the said directions, the Director of Education (Basic) passed an order dated 2.11.2007 holding 18 Assistant Teachers being ineligible for appointments in terms of 1978' Rules and that they were not entitled to receive salary with the further directions of making recovery of salary already paid to them.

5. Aggrieved, the petitioners herein filed writ petitions separately challenging the order dated 2.11.2007 wherein initially interim order was passed directing for payment of salary in Untrained-grade to the petitioners. One of the writ petition was, however, finally allowed after exchange of pleadings vide judgment and order dated 1.6.2012. Similar orders were passed in ten writ petitions tagged in a bunch. While setting aside the order passed by the Director of Education dated 2.11.2007, the matter was relegated for fresh decision after giving opportunity of hearing to the petitioners therein. Consequently, order impugned dated 22.10.2012 had been passed.

6. The learned Senior Advocate, Sri Ashok Khare and Sri Utpal Chatterji learned Advocate for the petitioners vehemently submit that there was absolutely no reason for raising controversy after approximately two decades of appointment and continuous working of the petitioners. They submit that some of the petitioners possessed B.Ed degree at the time of their appointment and this was the reason for holding all of them ineligible in terms of the Rules, 1978. It is contended that minimum qualification criteria as provided in the Original Rule 4 of 1978 Rules was inclusive, in as much as, the rule reads as under:-

4. Minimum qualification:- (1) The minimum qualification for the post of Assistant teacher of a recognised school shall be Intermediate Examination of the Board of High School and Intermediate Education, Uttar Pradesh or equivalent examination (with Hindi and a teacher's training course recognised by the State Government or the Board such as Hindustani Teaching Certificate, Junior Teaching Certificate, Basic Teaching Certificate or Certificate of Training).*

(2) The minimum qualifications for the appointment to the post of Headmaster of a recognized school shall be as follows:

(a) A degree from a recognised University or an equivalent examination recognized as such;

(b) A teacher's training course recognised by the State Government or the Board, such as Hindustani Teaching Certificate, Junior Teaching Certificate, Certificate of Training or Basic Teaching Certificate; and

(c) Three years' teaching experience in a recognised school.

7. From the language employed in Rule 4(1) of the original Rule, 1978. It is contended that words "such as" used therein gives a clear indication that the eligibility training qualification prescribed therein was only illustrative and not exhaustive. It, therefore, could not be said that if a candidate possessed B.Ed degree or any other training course which was recognized by the State Government or the Board, he or she was ineligible for appointment. For the first time, amendment of Rule 4 in 1978 Rules had been brought by the notification dated 12.6.2008 which came into effect from 12.6.2008 from the date of publication in the Gazette. Under the amended Rule, the minimum eligibility training qualification was made exhaustive with the words "as follows" by including a regular B.Ed degree course from a duly recognized institution, with educational qualification being graduation degree to replace the original rule wherein intermediate or equivalent examinations was the educational qualification. The submission, thus, is that with the addition of B.Ed degree as one of the training qualification in the minimum eligibility criteria, it could not be said in the year 2012 that the petitioners were ineligible to continue as Assistant Teachers as B.Ed was not a recognized training qualification.

8. It is further contended that the entire enquiry had been initiated at the instance of Sanjay Sharma, husband of the above referred teacher who herself was having B.Ed degree, as her wife was harbouring vengeance against other teachers. She was shown favour by the office order dated 22.10.2007 on the plea that she had rendered long services. The said order obtained by the petitioners under Right to Information Act has been appended as Annexure-'12' to the writ petition no.13433 of 2013. The attention of the Court is invited to the contents of the said order which records the fact that Smt. Priyadarshini Sharma who was appointed as Assistant Teacher Church City, Junior High school, (Meerut) did not possess eligibility qualification at the time of appointment. She was appointed in the year 1999 on the strength of the approval order of the District Basic Education Officer wherein her qualification was shown as Intermediate and B.T.C. In the year 2005, an enquiry was instituted by the State Government wherein she submitted her B.A and B.Ed certificates, it was, then, transpired that she had completed B.Ed course in the year 1993. She further denied having produced B.T.C certificate as her training qualification at the time of her appointment. It is contended that despite concealment a lenient view was taken and though direction was given to her to deposit salary received from the State Exchequer but no action was taken against her. By placing the said order, it is further vehemently contended by the learned Senior Advocate for the petitioners that the respondents have acted in a discriminatory manner in denying salary to the petitioners while protecting appointment of the complainant who did not possess requisite training qualification at the time of appointment.

9. Sri Utpal Chatterji, learned Advocate for the petitioners in the connected petitions submits that the petitioners to whom he represents were having training qualification such as N.T.T, (Nursery teachers' training) and B.T.C (Basic Training Course) from another State, ie; outside the State of U.P. The contention is that the Director of Education (Basic) while passing the order impugned had conveniently ignored this aspect of the matter. Though the individual training qualification of each of the petitioners has been narrated in the order impugned but while concluding for rejection of claim for salary of the petitioners he simply ignored that they possessed B.T.C or NTT training qualification. With regard to the said petitioners, the order impugned is simply required to be set aside on the ground of non-application of mind.

10. Learned Standing counsel, on the other hand, defended the order impugned on the plea that appointments of the petitioners were made in the institution-in-question after it had been brought on the grant-in-aid list in the year, 1988. Admittedly, all the provisions of the Rules, 1978 were applicable at the time of appointment of the petitioners wherein B.Ed was not the eligibility training qualification. Any subsequent amendment in the rules would be of no benefit to the petitioners for the settled legal position that the eligibility qualification is to be determined with reference to date of appointment. Illegality in the appointment of petitioners cannot be regularised as possession of minimum eligibility qualification both (educational and training) was a pre-requisite to the appointment. The enquiry into the matter, ie; correctness of appointment of the petitioners was conducted pursuant to the orders passed by this Court and once after the said enquiry it was found that the petitioners were ineligible, there was no option before the respondent but to deny them salary from the State Exchequer.

11. The counsel for the District Basic Education Officer relying on the averments in the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the said respondents submits that the petitioners are getting salary of untrained teacher pursuant to an interim order dated 13.5.2013 passed in Writ Petition no.16757 of 2013 though the answering respondents since the beginning stressed that they were not entitled to remain in service and could not be granted benefit of regular teacher. It is contended that in view of the requirement of the Rule, 1978 the petitioners cannot be paid full salary of the trained teacher. The amendment application filed by the petitioners in the connected writ petitions seeking for the relief for payment of full salary of trained teacher is, thus, being repelled.

12. Reference has been made to the Division Bench judgment of this Court in Sanjay Kumar Tyagi vs State of U.P reported in (2005) 1 ESC 713, by the respondent to submit that B.Ed degree cannot be considered as a "Teachers Training Course" for the purpose of possessing "minimum qualification" under the 1978, Rules. The submission is that the said view of the Division Bench has been upheld by the Full Bench of this Court in Ram Surat Yadav vs State of U.P reported in (2014) 1 ADJ 1.

13. Sri Utpal Chatterji, learned counsel for the petitioner in rejoinder placed reliance on the Full Bench of this Court in Jitendra Kumar Soni and others vs State of U.P and others reported in 2010 7 ADJ to submit that the teachers training course from an Institution outside the State of U.P cannot be said to be invalid for appointment of Assistant Teachers within the State of U.P.

14. Sri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Advocate in rejoinder placed the judgment of a learned Single Judge in Writ petition no.14989 of 2018 (Alka Singh vs State of U.P and 4 others) to submit that the petitioner therein who was holder of B.Ed degree and was appointed prior to 2008, was protected taking clue from the order of the Apex Court in Civil Appeal no. 3904 of 2013 wherein the Apex Court has held that the appointment of the appellants therein ought not be disturbed only on the ground of alleged disputed lack of qualification when they have been in service for a long period.

15. Heard learned counsels for the parties and perused the record.

16. Before examining the merits of the arguments of learned counsels for the parties, it would be apt to go through the provisions governing appointment of teachers in a recognized Basic School with upto-date amendments and also the legal pronouncements pertaining to the field. The U.P Basic Education Act, 1972 was enacted for establishment of the Board of Basic Education and to deal with the matters connected therein. As per section (2), the definition Clause, the "Basic Education" means education up to the VIIIth Class imparted in schools other than high schools or intermediate college. "Junior Basic School" means a Basic School in which education is imparted up to Class-V. "Junior High School" means a basic school in which education is imparted to boys and girls or to both from Class-VI to Class-VIII. Section 3 contemplates setting of the Board of Basic Education. The function of the Board under Section 4 (1) is to organize, coordinate and control the imparting of basic education and teachers' training in the State in order to raise its standards and to co-relate it with the system of education as a whole in the State.

17. In exercise of powers conferred under section 19 of the Act 1972, to carry out the purposes of the Act, three sets of Rules have been framed regulating the recruitment and conditions of service of persons appointed to the post of teachers. The "U.P recognized Basic schools (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers and other Conditions) Rules, 1975" was framed to govern the recognized Basic Schools imparting education up to Class-V, not being an institution belonging to or wholly maintained by the Board or any local body. The "U.P recognized Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) Recruitment and Conditions of Services of Teachers Rules 1978" was framed to govern the service conditions of teachers of recognized Junior High School, ie; an institution other than a High School or Intermediate College imparting education from Class-VI to Class-VIII (both inclusive). The "U.P Basic Education Teachers Service Rules, 1981" was framed to govern the service conditions of teachers of the Junior Basic Schools imparting instructions in Nursery and Class I to VIII established by the U.P Board of Basic Education. The academic/eligibility qualifications for appointment to the post of Assistant Teacher in a Nursery and Junior Basic Schools (I to V) established by the Board as per 1981' Rules are as follows:-

(i) Mistress of Nursery School Bachelors degree from a University established by law in India or a degree recognised by the Government equivalent thereto together with certificate of teaching (Nursery) from recognised training institution of Uttar Pradesh and any other training course recognised by the Government as equivalent thereto and teacher eligibility test passed conducted by the Government or by the Government of India.

(ii) Assistant Master and Assistant Mistress of Junior Basic School established by law in India or a degree recognised by the Government equivalent thereto together with any other training course recognised by the Government as equivalent thereto together with the training qualification consisting of a Basic Teacher's Certificate (BTC), two years BTC (Urdu) Vishisht BTC. Two year Diploma in Education (Special Education) approved by the Rehabilitation Council of India or four year degree in Elementary Education (B.EI.Ed.), two year Diploma in Elementary Education (by whatever name known) in accordance with the National Council of Teacher Education (Recognition, Norms and Procedure) Regulations, 2002 or any training qualifications to be added by National Council for Teacher Education for the recruitment of teachers in primary educationand teacher eligibility test passed conducted by the Government or by the Government of India and passed Assistant Teacher Recruitment Examination conducted by the Government.	(ii)(a) Bachelors degree from a University

18. In 1981' Rules, a Junior Basic School has been defined to mean a Basic School where instructions are imparted from Class-I to V; whereas a "Senior Basic School" means a Basic School where instructions are imparted from Class-VI to VIII. A "Nursery school," on the other hand, means a school in which children ordinarily of the age up to 8 years are taught in the Class lower than Class-'I'.

19. In so far as Rules, 1975 governing service conditions of teachers of a recognized Junior Basic School (Class-I to V) is concerned, Rule 9 thereof provides that for appointment on a teaching post in any recognized school a person must possess such qualification as are specified by Board in this behalf and previous approval to whose appointment has been granted by the District Basic Education Officer in writing.

20. Under Rules, 1978 pertaining to service conditions of teachers in a recognized Senior Basic School or Junior High School, (Class VI to VIII) the minimum qualification as provided in Rule 4 of the Original Rule has been quoted in the foregoing part of this judgment.

21. Rule 5 of the Original Rules, 1978 further puts a condition that no one shall be appointed as Assistant Teacher in substantive capacity in any recognized school; unless (a) he possess minimum qualification prescribed for such post; (b) he is recommended for such appointment by the Selection Committee.

22. On 3rd September, 2001 the N.C.T.E (National Council for Teacher Education), a national expert body set up by the Central Government under Section 3 of the N.C.T.E Act, 1993 notified "The National Council for Teacher Education (Determinations of minimum qualifications for recruitment of teachers in schools) Regulations, 2001" in exercise of power conferred under clause d(i) of sub-section (2) of Section 32 read with section 12 (d) of "The National Council for Teacher Education, Act 1993". Regulation 2 of the Regulations' 2001 provides that the same shall be applicable for recruitment of teachers in all formal schools established, run or aided or recognized by the Central or State Governments and other authorities for imparting education at elementary (primary and upper primary/middle school), secondary and senior secondary stages. Regulation 3(i) provides that the qualifications for recruitment of teachers in educational institutions mentioned in Regulation 2 shall be as prescribed in the First Schedule for teaching schools subjects. Regulation 4 provides that the existing recruitment Rules may be modified within a period of three years so as to bring them in conformity with the qualifications prescribed in the Schedules therein. Meanwhile, teachers appointed in accordance with the existing recruitment qualifications, subsequent to the issuance of the Regulations, would be required to acquire the qualifications as prescribed in the Schedules. As per the First Schedule to the Regulations, 2001, a teacher for Primary Classes must possess educational qualification up to Intermediate level with the teachers training qualification of Diploma or Certificate in basic teachers' training of a duration of not less than two years or Bachelor of Elementary Education. Whereas, a teacher in the Upper Primary (Middle school section) may possess an alternative qualification of a degree of Bachelor in Education (B.Ed) or its equivalent. The note appended to the First Schedule reads as follows:-

Level	Minimum Academic And Professional Qualifications
I Elementary a. Primary	(i) Senior Secondary School certificate or Intermediate or its equivalent; and (ii) Diploma or certificate in basic teachers' training of a duration of not less than two years. OR Bachelor of Elementary Education (B.El.Ed)
b. Upper Primary (Middle School section)	i.Senior Secondary School certificate or Intermediate or its equivalent; and ii.Diploma or certificate in elementary teachers training of a duration of not less than two years. OR Bachelor of Elementary Education (B.El.Ed) OR Graduate with Bachelor of Education (B.Ed) or its equivalent.
II Secondary/ High School	II Secondary/High School Graduate with Bachelor of Education (B.Ed.) or its equivalent OR Four years' integrated B.Sc., B.Ed or an equivalent course.

III Senior Secondary/ PUC/Inter mediate	Master's Degree in the relevant subject with Bachelor of Education (B.Ed) or its equivalent. OR Two years' integrated M.Sc.Ed. Course or an equivalent course.

Note:

1. For appointment of teachers for primary classes, basic teachers' training programme of 2 years' duration is required. B.Ed is not a substitute for basic teachers' training."

23. Thus, B.Ed was included as permissible qualification for appointment of teachers to the Upper Primary (Middle school section) w.e.f 3.9.2001 under the N.C.T.E Regulations' 2001. The said regulations, however, contemplated that there were existing recruitment rules enforced in various States of the country and, therefore, provided under Rule 4 that the existing recruitment rules may be modified within a period of three years so as to bring them in conformity with the qualifications prescribed in the Schedules.

24. The effect of the said enactment was considered by the Apex Court in Basic Education Board, U.P vs Upendra Rai and others and (2008) 3 SCC 432. The Supreme Court held that the N.C.T.E Act does not deal with ordinary educational qualifications like primary schools, High Schools, Intermediate Colleges or universities and would, consequently, not override the U.P Basic Education Act and the Rules made thereunder. It was held that the N.C.T.E Act and U.P Basic Education Act operate in two different fields, first with regard to teachers training institute and the second with regard to ordinary Primary Schools in the State of U.P, the concept of primacy under Article 254 of the Constitution, as such, has no application. The correctness of the judgment in Upendra Rai was referred to the larger bench by the Supreme Court in Irrigineni Venkata Krishna and others vs. Government of Andhra Pradesh and another reported in (2010) 1 ESC 42 (SC) . During pendency of the said reference, Parliament enacted the National Council for Teaching Education (Amendment) Act, 2011 (Act no.18 of 2011), w.e.f 01.06.2012. The Amending Act introduced Sub-section (4) in Section 1 to provide that the Act shall apply, inter alia, to schools imparting pre primary, primary, upper primary, secondary or senior secondary institutions and colleges providing Senior Secondary or Intermediate education. Section 12-A was also inserted which provides as follows:-

"12 A. For the purpose of maintaining standards of education in schools, the Council may, by regulations, determine the qualifications of persons for being recruited as teachers in any pre-primary, primary, upper primary, secondary, senior secondary or intermediate school or college, by whatever name called, established, run, aided or recog

25. The Amending Act 2011, thus, came into force with prospective effect. The validity of the provisions of the N.C.T.E Act and the amendment Act have been upheld by Full Bench of this Court in Shiv Kumar Sharma and others vs State of U.P and others reported in 2013 (6) ADJ 310 wherein it is held that the N.C.T.E is fully empowered to prescribe qualifications for the persons to be recruited as teachers from pre-primary to the Intermediate school or college level.

26. The Rule 4 of 1978' Rules has been substituted w.e.f 12.6.2008 and sub-Rule (1) of Rule 4, thereafter, reads as follows;

"4.Minimum qualification:- (1) The minimum qualification for the post of Assistant teacher of a recognized school shall be Graduation Degree from a University recognized by U.G.C and a teachers training course recognized by the State Government or U.G.C or the Board as follows:-

1.Basic Teaching Certificate.

2.A regular B.Ed degree from a duly recognized Institution.

3.Certificate of Teaching

4.Junior Teaching Certificate

5.Hindustani Teaching Certificate

Rule 4 has further been substituted by notification dated 5.12.2012 (w.e.f 5.12.2012). The amended sub-Rule 1 as it now stands reads as follows:-

"4.Minimum qualification*:-* (1) The minimum qualifications for the post of Assistant teacher of a recognized school shall be Graduation Degree from a University recognized by U.G.C and a teachers training course recognized by the State Government or U.G.C or the Board as follows:-

1.Basic Teaching Certificate.

2.A regular B.Ed degree from a duly recognized Institution.

3.Certificate of Teaching.

4.Junior Teaching Certificate

5.Hindustani Teaching Certificate

And

Teacher eligibility test passed conducted by the Government of Uttar Pradesh or by the Government of India.

27. The question with regard to the eligibility qualification for recruitment of teachers in a Junior High School prior to the enactment of the NCTE Amending Act 18 of 2011 and the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education, Act' 2009 came up for consideration before a Full Bench of this Court in Ram Surat Yadav and others vs State of U.P and others reported in (2014) 1 ADJ 1, in view of the conflicting decisions of the Division Benches of this Court. After considering the minimum eligibility qualification provided in Rules' 1978 and the decisions of the Apex court in Mohd Sartaj and another vs State of U.P and others reported in (2006) 2 SCC 315, it was held therein that once the Rules which have been framed under the Statute prescribes the eligibility qualifications, those qualifications have to be adhered and a candidate who does not fulfill the required qualification has no entitlement to hold the post even if such an appointment is made, it would be contrary to law. It was held that the plea that B.Ed Course can be taken as a superior course to the B.T.C had been expressly turned down in the judgments of the Supreme court in PM Latha and another vs State of Kerala reported in 2003 3 SCC 541, Yogesh Kumar and others vs Govt. of NCT, Delhi and others reported in 2003 3 SCC 548, Dilip kumar Ghosh and others vs Chairman reported in 2005 7 SCC 567. The decisions of the Division

Benches in Sanjay Kumar Tyagi vs State of U.P and others reported in 2005 1 ESC 713 and in Smt Madhubala Upadhyay vs State of U.P decided on 19th January, 2009 and Akhilesh Kumar Pandey vs State of U.P reported in (2009) 9 ADJ 9 had been held to be good law wherein the effect of subsequent amendment of Rules' 1978 in 2008 was considered and it was held that the Amending rules of 2008 would not apply to a situation where an appointment was made under the unamended rule. It was held that the Amendment of 2008 was not clarificatory. The B.Ed degree was not a prescribed training qualification under the original Rule 4(1) of the Rules' 1978.

28. In this background, the judgment of the Division Bench in Rishikant Sharma vs State of U.P and others reported in 2011 (6) ADJ 1 wherein it was held that since the question whether the B.Ed Degree course can be taken as a superior course to B.T.C was a long standing dispute and it was later included as eligibility qualification in the year 2008, the teachers appointed prior to amended qualification would be treated as eligible, was held as not laying down the correct principle of law. The said decision was overruled by the Full Bench; firstly, on the fundamental principle that when requirement of eligibility is prescribed in the Statutory Rules which govern selection, appointment of a person who does not fulfill the norms of eligibility cannot be regarded as lawful; Secondly, that when a selection process is initiated in pursuance of an advertisement which lays down the conditions of eligibility, a person who does not fulfill the required qualifications can have no legitimate entitlement to hold the post; Thirdly, that the view taken by the Division Bench in RishiKant Sharma (supra) was contrary to the law laid down by the Apex Court in the line of authority as noted in PM Latha, Yogesh Kumar, Dilip Kumar Ghosh and Pramod Kumar (supra); Fourthly, on the ground that the decision in Mohd Sartaj (supra) had been distinguished on erroneous grounds.

29. In this backdrop, the question whether the B.Ed degree can be regarded as eligibility qualification for appointment to the post of Assistant Teachers in a recognized Junior High School under the Rules 1978, is no longer res integra. The contentions of the learned Advocates for the petitioners that the essential qualification prescribed in unamended original Rule 4(1) of 1978' Rules is inclusive for the use the words "such as" therein is not open for scrutiny before this Court. With the decisions of the Division Benches in Sanjay Kumar Tyagi (supra), Smt Madhubala and Akhilesh Chandra Pandey (supra), held to be good law in Ram Surat Yadav (full bench), it is settled that the prescribed training qualification under the unamended Rule 4(1) of the Rules' 1978 did not recognize the B.Ed qualification as a training qualification for recruitment of teachers in a recognized Junior Basic Schools. The Amending Rules' of 2008 was not clarificatory and the appointment made prior to the said amendment would be governed by the unamended rule.

30. It, therefore, cannot be said that the persons who possess B.Ed degree as training qualification were eligible for appointment to the post of Assistant Teacher in a recognized Junior High School.

31. In the present bunch, the petitioner namely Ms. Neeta James had completed Bachelor of Education (B.Ed) course in the year 1991-92 and was appointed in the year 1989. The objection taken by the respondent with regard to identity of the said petitioner in the order impugned for difference in her name in the educational certificates is not sustainable as it is clear from the record that she was daughter of Sri S.G.Beechan. But it is held that having completed B.Ed training course that too after appointment, she was not entitled for appointment to the post of Assistant Teacher to teach in Junior and Senior Basic School ie Class-I to VIII, however, having been qualified N.T.T (Nursery Teachers' Training) course she could have been appointed to teach children at the Elementary or Nursery level only. Further having noticed the fact that the said petitioner was appointed in the year 1989 and had continued to work as Assistant Teacher uninterruptedly till the year 2007 when dispute regarding her qualification was raised on a petition filed by husband of a fellow teacher, and also that the said petitioner is working and must have been at the verge of retirement, this Court finds it proper to let her continue as an untrained teacher in the institution-in-question. It is also noteworthy that by the order impugned, the approval granted by the District Basic Education Officer in the year 1990 to the appointment of said petitioner has not been cancelled or revoked. There is no whisper of any misrepresentation or concealment on the part of the said petitioner. It would, therefore, be appropriate that the petitioner namely Ms. Neeta James be allowed to continue as an untrained Assistant Teacher in the School namely Church City, Junior High School, Meerut till she attains the age of superannuation. At the same time, the management of the Institution shall be liable to pay salary to the said petitioner for the entire period of her working in the institution-in-question, regularly, month by month and shall not in any way interfere in the working of the petitioner on the premise that her appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher in Junior High School was invalid. It would be open for the Management to take work of Nursery Teacher from her.

32. Similar is the position with regard to another petitioner Ms.Rubina Swami who has appended her educational and training certificates as Annexure-'1' to the writ petition filed by her. After passing intermediate, she had completed Nursery Teachers' Training Course in the year 1985-86. She, therefore, cannot be said to have possessed the requisite training qualification for appointment to the post of Assistant Teacher in a Junior High School (Class-I to VIII) but she is found qualified to teach children of Elementary/Nursery Classes. For the fact of continuance of the petitioner Ms.Rubina Swami since 11.11.1989 and that she must have been at the verge of retirement, it is provided that she shall be allowed to continue as Assistant Teacher in the school-in-question and salary of an untrained teacher shall be paid to her by the Management, regularly month by month till she attains the age of superannuation. It is clarified that the petitioner shall be given due assignments and there shall be no interference in the working of the said petitioner by the Management till her superannuation.

33. As far as the remaining two petitioners namely Ms. Parveen Philip and Ms. Veena Menon are concerned, the educational and training certificates appended by them alongwith the writ petition indicate that they had completed "Basic Teachers Training Course" prior to their appointments in the year 1988 and 1989; respectively. The certificates issued by the Bihar Pradesh Shiksha Parishad appended as Annexure-'3' to the writ petitions filed by them are not disputed in the counter affidavit. The order impugned though records that they had completed B.T.C. Course from the State of Bihar but there is no consideration of the said training qualification not being recognized in the State of U.P. Only reason for rejection of claims of these petitioners in the order impugned is that B.Ed was not approved training qualification for appointment of Assistant Teachers in Junior High School prior to 12.6.2008 and that the amendments in the rules are prospective in nature and for the said reason, the said petitioners were held ineligible for appointment. Looking to the reasons given in the order impugned as also the training certificates appended by the said petitioners Ms. Veena Menon and Ms.Parveen Philip, it cannot be said that they were not eligible for appointment as Assistant Teachers, in as much, as they possess requisite Basic Teachers Training Course Certificate, approved qualification for holding the post of Assistant Teacher in a Basic School. The qualification possessed by them being akin to the training qualification required in the unamended Rules, 1978 they are found eligible and are held entitled to continue and salary attached to the post in question from the State Exchequer.

34. It is not the stand of the Management that they had obtained appointment by any fraudulent method. The action of the Management in discontinuance of their services on the basis of the order of the Director of Education, therefore, cannot be sustained. The prayer made by the petitioners namely Ms. Veena Menon and Ms. Parveen Philip for quashing of the order dated 22.10.2012 passed by the Director of Education (Basic) as also the consequential orders of the Manager of the Institution discontinuing their services w.e.f 10.11.2012, thus, are found unsustainable. While quashing the aforesaid orders with respect to the two petitioners namely Ms.Parveen Phillip and Ms.Veena Menon, they are held entitled to continue till the age of superannuation and payment of salary of trained teacher from the State Exchequer.

35. As regards the petitioner Ms. Santosh Singh, as per the certificates appended by her as Annexure-'1' to the writ petition, it is evident that she had completed "Nursery Teachers' Training Course" in the year 1989, ie: prior to her appointment as Assistant Teacher w.e.f July, 1989. As far as Basic Teachers Training Course (page-'20' of the paper book), she had completed the same in the year 1994-95, ie after getting appointment. She was continuing in the institution-in-question as an Assistant Teacher on the strength of the approval being granted by the Basic Education Officer, Meerut vide letter dated 6.6.1990.

36. It is, therefore, difficult to accept that she had completed "Basic Teachers Training" Qualification while discharging the duties of a full time teacher in the institution-in-question. At the best, she could have been appointed for teaching children in pre-primary or nursery classes. Having due regard to the fact Ms. Santosh Singh is working in the institution-in-question as an Assistant Teacher since the year 1989, it is provided that she be allowed to continue to work as Assistant Teacher till she attains the age of superannuation. The salary from the State Exchequer, however, is not admissible to her. She will, accordingly, be entitled for salary of an untrained teacher to be paid by the Management of the institution-in-question for the period of continuance.

37. Lastly, it is provided that all the petitioners herein who have been paid salary from the State Exchequer pursuant to the interim orders passed by this Court shall be entitled to retain the same; ie, there shall be no recovery of the salary already paid to them till the date of passing of this order.

38. It is clarified that the aforesaid directions are given in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case and shall not be treated as precedent in any other matter.

39. Subject to above observations and directions, all the five writ petitions are disposed of.

40. There shall be no order as to costs.

Suit No.04 of 2006 was decreed and and the defendants-tenants/revisionists were directed to be evicted and were held liable to pay balance amount of rent from 01.01.2006 to 16.01.2006 and, thereafter, damages @ Rs.18,515/- per month from 17.01.2006 till actually vacating the disputed accommodation.

4. Civil Revision No.141 of 2007 has been filed by the plaintiffs-landlords/revisionists challenging the impugned judgment, whereby damages have been awarded to the tune of monthly rent of Rs.18,515/- as against the damages claimed @ 32 per square feet, i.e. Rs.64,000/- per month.

Facts of the Case:-

5. Briefly stated facts of the present case are that plaintiff Nos. 2 and 3, namely Aditya Kumar and Anupam Kumar are the sons of plaintiff No.1 Ajay Kumar. They are co-owners and landlords of House No.C-21/4A-1, Maldahiya Varanasi. A registered lease deed dated 13.02.1981 of the disputed shop, was executed by the plaintiff No.1 Ajay Kumar for himself and on behalf of his two sons (other co-owners, namely Aditya Kumar and Anupan Kumar, who were minor at that point of time) in favour of the defendants/revisionists, namely Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram (a Society registered under the Societies Registration Act having its office at Shalimar, Ghazipur, through its Secretary), whereby an area of 2000 square feet being part of aforesaid house No.C-21/4A-1, Maldahiya Varanasi, was let out by the plaintiff/respondents to the defendants/revisionists for a period of nine years at the monthly rent of Rs.4,000/- for the first three years, Rs.4,600/- for the second term of three years and Rs.5,290/- for the third term of three years. The term of the aforesaid registered lease deed expired on 12.02.1990

6. Thereafter, on 06.03.1990 the defendants/revisionists sent a letter to the plaintiffs/respondents requesting for tenancy for further nine years on certain terms and conditions. On this letter, plaintiff No.1 for himself and on behalf of two minor sons (plaintiff Nos.2 and 3) gave their acceptance on 03.02.1990. Accordingly, the defendants/revisionists continued as a tenant of the disputed shop for a further period of 9 years ending in February, 1999.

7. The defendants/revisionists again wrote a letter dated 23.02.1999 to the plaintiff No.1 Sri Ajay Kumar requesting him to extend the tenancy of the disputed shop for a period of nine years on certain terms and conditions. This letter/ offer was accepted only by the plaintiff No.1. As per this letter dated 23.02.1999, the defendants/revisionists offered to pay for first three years monthly rent @ Rs.4,000/-, monthly maintenance Rs.6,000/- and monthly security Rs.4,000/-. In the next three years, the rent was offered Rs.4,600/- per month, maintenance expenses Rs.6,900/- per month and security expenses Rs.4,600/- per month. For the last three years, the rent was offered to be Rs.5,300/- per month, maintenance expenses Rs.7,915/- per month and security expenses Rs.5,300/- per month, total Rs.18,515/- per month.

8. By a notice dated 12.12.2005 sent by registered post, the plaintiffs gave 30 days' notice determining the tenancy and clearly indicated that they do not want to keep the defendants/revisionists as tenant of the disputed shop. It was further stated that if the disputed shop is not vacated and its vacant possession is not handed over, then after expiry of 30 days the defendants/revisionists shall be liable to pay damages @ Rs.32/- per square feet, i.e. Rs.64,000/- per month.

9. Since the aforesaid notice was not complied with by the tenants-defendants/ revisionists, therefore, the plaintiffs-respondents filed S.C.C. Suit No.4 of 2006 (Ajay Kumar and two others vs. Kshetriya Sri Gandhi Ashram and another) praying for a decree of eviction against the defendants and decree for arrears of rent and damages. The pleadings were exchanged and the evidences were led by the parties. Thereafter, the aforesaid S.C.C. suit was decreed by the impugned judgment dated 31.01.2007. Eleven issues were framed in the said suit. Crucial issues were with regard to period of tenancy on the basis of letter/ lease dated 23.02.1999 and default in payment of rent which all were decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants. Aggrieved with the aforesaid impugned judgment, the tenants-defendants/ revisionists have filed Civil Revision No.561 of 2014 for setting aside the judgment and the plaintiffs have filed Civil Revision No.141 of 2007 on the quantum of damages.

10. With the consent of learned counsels for the parties, the following questions are framed for determination in these two revisions:

Questions:

(a) Whether a lease for nine years by letter dated 23.02.1999 is a valid lease?

(b) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case, the letter/ lease dated 23.02.1999 (paper No.39ka/ 45ka) is a document inadmissible in evidence under Section 17 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 and, therefore, it was rightly held by the court below to be not admissible in evidence?

(c) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case, even if the lease deed dated 23.02.1999 is found to be not valid in law, yet the tenancy of the defendants-revisionists would be governed by the provisions of Section 116 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and in that event all the terms and conditions of the original lease deed dated 13.02.1981, would apply to the parties and in that situation, the tenancy could be determined only on breach of the conditions of the registered lease deed dated 13.02.1981 by the defendants-tenants?

(d) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case, the plaintiffs were entitled for damages @ Rs.32/- per square feet per month for an area of 2000 square feet, i.e. Rs.64,000/- per month or any other amount higher than the rent of Rs.18,515/-?

Submissions on behalf of the tenants-defendants/ revisonists:-

11. Sri Pankaj Agarwal, learned counsel for the defendantstenants/ revisionists submits, as under:-

(i) After filing the original lease letter dated 23.02.1999 being paper No.45ka, the plaintiffs are stopped to deny its execution even though this letter bears only the signature of plaintiff No.1 -

Sri Ajay Kumar who has always been representing his sons, namely the plaintiff Nos.2 and 3 and all the plaintiffs have been regularly accepting the rent and other amounts at the revised rates. The lease/ letter dated 23.02.1999 was not the result of any fraud by the tenants-defendants/ revisionists rather it was executed/ accepted by the plaintiffs by their own free-will. Therefore, the plaintiffs are stopped from raising any objection against the lease/ letter dated 23.02.1999.

(ii) In view of own admission of the plaintiffs regarding execution of the renewed lease deed/ letter dated 23.02.1999 and filing it as paper No.45ka, the non-registration of the aforesaid renewed lease deed/ letter dated 23.02.1999 looses its importance. Therefore, the paper No.45ga was a document admissible in evidence but the court below committed a manifest error of law to hold otherwise. Reliance is placed upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in S. Kaladev vs. U.R. Somasundaram and others, (2010) 5 SCC 401 (Paras-16 and 17), Thulasidhara and another vs. Narayanappa and others, (2019) 6 SCC 409 (Paras 9.3 to 9.4), in which it has been held that in cases, where execution of a deed is established by admission then non-registration is of no consequence. Reliance is also placed upon a judgment of this court in Shiv Ram and others vs. Lakshman and others, 2013 (6) ADJ 348 (Para-21) holding that even an inadmissible document could be looked into for collateral purposes.

Alternative argument of the tenants-defendants/ revisionists

(iii) Even after the term of original lease deed dated 13.02.1981 expired on 12.02.1990, the tenant continued in possession and the plaintiffs-landlords have always been regularly accepting the enhanced rent and other amounts. Therefore, the status of the tenants-defendants/ revisionists would be "tenant holding over" under Section 116 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and not an unauthorised occupant. The tenants-defendants/ revisionists continued in possession of the disputed accommodation with the assent of the plaintiffs-landlords. Therefore, the tenancy could be determined only as per provisions of Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and not otherwise. Since there is a contract between the parties as evident from the lease deed dated 13.02.1981, therefore, unless any of its conditions are violated, the tenancy could not be determined by the plaintiffs-landlords.

On Revision No.141 of 2007

(iv) Damages for the period covered by lease/ letter dated 23.02.1999, cannot be granted as the occupation of the disputed accommodation by the tenants-defendants/ revisionists was not unauthorised occupation. For the period subsequent to the expiry of the period of Lease/ letter dated 23.02.1999, damages can be determined at an appropriate rate in a separate suit and not in the suit in question. Therefore, the defendants are not liable to pay damages @ Rs.32 per square feet, which has no basis and in any case, it is highly excessive.

12. Learned counsel for the plaintiffslandlords/ respondents submits as under:

i. The lease has expired on 03.02.1999. Mere acceptance of rent, thereafter, would not mean that a valid lease deed came into existence. The terms of the lease deed, which expired on 12.02.1990, came to an end by expiry of the period of tenancy under the said lease deed.

ii. Even if the submission of the learned counsel for the tenants/petitioners with reference to the provisions of Section 116 and Section 106 of the Act 1882 is considered, it would only mean that after expiry of the lease deed on 12.02.1990, the tenancy was on month to month basis and the tenancy could be determined by notice under Section iii. By notice dated 12.12.2005 the plaintiffs/landlords determined the tenancy of the defendants-revisionists. After expiry of the period given in the notice the tenants-revisionists became an illegal occupant. Since the disputed shop was not vacated by the defendants-tenants/ revisionists, therefore, the plaintiffs filed S.C.C. Suit No. 04/2006 which has been lawfully decreed by impugned judgment dated 31.01.2007.

iv. The findings recorded in the impugned judgment dated 31.01.2007 are findings of fact based on consideration of relevant evidences on record which cannot be interfered in revisional jurisdiction. The findings recorded in the impugned judgment do not suffer from any perversity.

13. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the plaintiff-landlord/respondent relied upon judgment of this Court dated 07.12.2018 in Civil Revision No. 126 of 2010 (Rahul Dixit & another v. Shri Chandra Kumar Agarwal) reported in 2019 (1) A.R.C. 160 (paragraph nos. 13 to 17), Rajesh Kumar Gupta v Shri Satish Chandra Khera, 2009, A.C.J. 1185 (paragraph no. 7), Punjab National Bank v. Smt. Geeta Devi in Civil Revision No. 130 of 2012 decided on 30.03.2012, Central Bank of India v. Mahohar Lal & Ors. 1997 All C.J. 1257 (paragraph nos. 13, 14, and 17) and a judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Criminal Appeal No. 1371 of 2019 (Bajrang Shyamsunder Agarwal v. Central Bank of India & Anr.), judgment dated 11.09.2019 (paragraph nos. 21 and 34).

Discussion and findings

14. I have carefully considered the submissions of the learned counsel for the parties.

15. Before I proceed to examine the questions framed above, it would be appropriate to reproduce the relevant provisions of Section 17 and Section 49 of the Registration Act, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as the Act, 1908) (as amended by U.P. Act 57 of 1976) and Section 106 and 116 of the Transfer of Property Act 1882 (hereinafter referred to as the Act 1882), as under :-

Registration Act 1908

Sec.17. Documents of which registration is compulsory

(1) The following documents shall be registered, if the property to which they relate is situate in a district in which, and if they have been executed on or after the date on which, Act No. XVI of 1864, or the Indian Registration Act, 1866, or the Indian Registration Act, 1871, or the Indian Registration Act, 1877 or this Act came or comes into force, namely:-

(a) .....…
(c) .....…
(d) leases of immovable property from year to year, or for any term exceeding one year, or reserving a yearly rent;
(e) PROVIDED that the State Government may, by order published in the Official Gazette, exempt from the operation of this sub-section any leases executed in any district, or part of a district, the terms granted by which do not exceed five years and the annual rent reserved by which do not exceed fifty rupees.

Sec. 49. Effect of non-registration of documents required to be registered (As made applicable in Uttar Pradesh, by U.P. Act 57 of 1976)

No document required by section 17 [or by any provision of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (4 of 1882)], or of any law for the time being in force to be registered shall-

(a) affect any immovable property comprised therein, or
(b) confer any power or create any right or relationship, or
(c) be received as evidence of any transaction affecting such property or conferring such power or creating such right or relationship, unless it has been registered:

Provided that an unregistered document affecting immovable property and required by this Act or the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (4 of 1982), to be registered may be received as evidence of any collateral transaction not required to be effected by registered instrument.

Transfer of Property Act,1882

Sec. 106:- Duration of certain leases in absence of written contract or local usage.--

(1) In the absence of a contract or local law or usage to the contrary, a lease of immovable property for agricultural or manufacturing purposes shall be deemed to be a lease from year to year, terminable, on the part of either lessor or lessee, by six months' notice; and a lease of immovable property for any other purpose shall be deemed to be a lease from month to month, terminable, on the part of either lessor or lessee, by fifteen days' notice.
(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the period mentioned in subsection (1) shall commence from the date of receipt of notice.
(3) A notice under sub-section (1) shall not be deemed to be invalid merely because the period mentioned therein falls short of the period specified under that sub-section, where a suit or proceeding is filed after the expiry of the period mentioned in that sub-section.
(4) Every notice under sub-section (1) must be in writing, signed by or on behalf of the person giving it, and either be sent by post to the party who is intended to be bound by it or be tendered or delivered personally to such party, or to one of his family or servants at his residence, or (if such tender or delivery is not practicable) affixed to a conspicuous part of the property.]

Sec. 116. Effect of holding over.--If a lessee or under-lessee of property remains in possession thereof after the determination of the lease granted to the lessee, and the lessor or his legal representative accepts rent from the lessee or under-lessee, or otherwise assents to his continuing in possession, the lease is, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, renewed from year to year, or from month to month, according to the purpose for which the property is leased, as specified in section 106. Illustrations

(a) A lets a house to B for five years. B underlets the house to C at a monthly rent of Rs. 100. The five years expire, but C continues in possession of the house and pays the rent to A. C's lease is renewed from month to month.

(b) A lets a farm to B for the life of C. C dies, but B continues in possession with A's assent. B's lease is renewed from year to year.

COMMENTS

Holding Over: The holding over, if inferred by the conduct of parties, will bring out a new tenancy even though many of the terms thereof the expired lease deed exist. Therefore, to constitute a valid assent under section 116 of the Act, bilateral contract must exist between the lessor and the lessee: R.S. Iron Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Calcutta Pinkjarapole Society, AIR 2013 Cal 94.

Tenant at sufferance: A person who is a tenant at sufferance has no estate or interest in the leasehold property. A tenant holding after the expiry of his term is a tenant at sufferance, which is a term useful to distinguish a possession rightful in its inception but wrongful in its continuance from a trespass which is wrongful both in its inception and in its continuance. A co-owner can maintain a suit by himself in ejectment of a trespasser or a tenant at sufferance; B. Valsala v. Sundram Nadar Bhaskaran, AIR 1994 Ker 164.

Questions (a) and (b)

16. Questions (a) and (b) are interlinked and therefore, both are being considered together.

Principles of admissibility of an unregistered document and consequence of non registration:

17. In K.B. Saha and Sons Private Limited v. Development Consultant Limited, (2008) 8 SCC 564 (para 34) the Hon'ble Supreme Court considered its various judgments as well as judgments of various High Courts and laid down the law as under:

I. A document required to be registered is not admissible into evidence under Section 49 of the Registration Act.

II. Such unregistered document can however be used as an evidence of collateral purpose as provided in the Proviso to Section 49 of the Registration Act.

III. A collateral transaction must be independent of, or divisible from, the transaction to effect which the law required registration.

IV. A collateral transaction must be a transaction not itself required to be effected by a registered document, that is, a transaction creating, etc. any right, title or interest in immoveable property of the value of one hundred rupees and upwards.

V. If a document is inadmissible in evidence for want of registration, none of its terms can be admitted in evidence and that to use a document for the purpose of proving an important clause would not be using it as a collateral purpose.

18. The principles laid down in the case of K.B. Saha & Sons (P.) Ltd. (supra) as reproduced above, have been reiterated by Hon'ble Supreme Court in S.Kaladevi vs V.R.Somasundaram & Ors. (2010) 5 SCC 401 (para 13).

19. Thus, in view of the provisions of Sections 17 and 49 of the Act, 1908 and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in K.B. Saha & Sons (P.) Ltd. (supra) and S.Kaladevi (supra) it can be safely concluded that if a document compulsorily required to be registered under Section 17 of the Act, 1908, is not registered, then it is not admissible into evidence under Section 49 of the Act, 1908. However, such unregistered document can be used as an evidence of collateral purpose in terms of the proviso to Section 49. A collateral transaction must be independent, or divisible from, the transaction to effect which the law required registration. A collateral transaction must be a transaction not itself required to be effected by a registered document, i.e., the transaction creating etc. any right, title or interest in immovable property of the value of 100/- Rupees and upwards. If a document compulsorily required to be registered under Section 17 of the Act, is not registered, then it is not admissible into evidence, for want of registration, and none of its terms can be admitted in evidence and that to use a document for the purpose of proving an important clause would not be using it as a collateral purpose. As per exceptions provided in the proviso to Section 49 of the Act 1908, an unregistered document affecting immovable property and required under the Act 1908 or the Act 1882 to be registered, may be received as evidence of any collateral transaction not required to be affected by a registered instrument.

20. Exceptions of non admissibility of an unregistered document can be summarised as under:

I. Those as provided in the proviso to Section 49 of the Act, 1908.

II. Certain family arrangements with regard to properties and family settlement resulting in complete estoppal. Reference in this regard may be had to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kale & Others v. Deputy Director Of Consolidation(1976) 3 SCC 119, S. Shanmugam Pillai And Ors v. K. Shanmugam Pillai And Ors (1973) 2 SCC 312 and Thulasidhara v. Narayanappa, (2019) 6 SCC 409 (paras 9.3 and 9.4).

III. An unregistered sale deed can be received in evidence in suit for specific performance as proof of oral agreement to sale, vide para 34 of the judgment in case of K.B. Saha & Sons (P.) Ltd. (supra) and para nos. 12 to 15 of the judgment in S.Kaladevi (supra).

IV. A lease deed of an immovable property for any term exceeding one year can be made only by an registered instrument in view of the provisions of Section 105 readwith Section 107 of the Act, 1882, subject to the proviso to Section 107 but claim arising from an unregistered lease deed of a period exceeding one year can be granted on the basis of other uncontroverted evidence available on record supporting the claim of rent and determination of the question whether there was in fact lease other wise than through such lease deed. Reference in this regard may be had to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ahmedsaheb v. Sayed Ismail (2012) 8 SCC 516 (paras 5 to 19).

V. If under the evidence Act a document is receivable in evidence for a collateral purpose, then Section 49 of the Act 1908, shall not bar it, vide Mattapalli Chelamayya And Anr. v. Mattapalli Venkataratnam, 1972 3 SCC 799 (para 10).

Admissibility of an unregistered lease deed/ rent deed for a period of one year or more and claim of right there under by the tenant.

21. Section 105 of Act 1882 defines the word "lease". It provides that lease of immoveable property is a transfer of a right to enjoy such property, made for a certain time, express or implied, or in perpetuity, in consideration of a price paid or promised, or of money, a share of crops, service or any other thing of value, to be rendered periodically or on specified occasions to the transferor by the transferee, who accepts the transfer on such terms. Section 107 provides that a lease of immovable property, from year to year, or for any term exceeding one year, or reserving yearly rent can be made only by a registered instrument.

22. Section 49 of the Act 1908 provides for the consequence of non registration of documents required to be registered under Section 17. It provides (as amended by U.P. Act 57 of 1976) that no document required by Section 17 or by any provision of the Transfer of Property Act 1882 to be registered shall, affect any immovable property comprised therein, or confer any power or create any right or relationship, or be received as evidence of any transaction affecting such property or conferring such power, unless it has been registered, provided that an unregistered document affecting immovable property and required under the Act 1908 or the Act 1882 to be registered may be received as evidence of any collateral transaction not required to be effected by registered instrument. Thus, as an exception an unregistered document affecting immovable property as aforesaid may only be received as evidence of any collateral transaction not required to be effected by registered instrument.

23. Therefore, the alleged letter dated 23.02.1999 allegedly creating a lease of the disputed shop for nine years is not admissible into evidence under Section 49 of the Act, 1908. None of its terms can be admitted in evidence. Therefore, all its terms i.e. the terms of the letter/ lease dated 23.02.1999 were inadmissible. There can be no estoppal against the statute. An unregistered lease deed can be relied upon for limited purpose for showing that the possession of the lessee is lawful possession or for some collateral transaction.

24. The conclusions as reached in just preceding paragraphs are also fortified by the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bajaj Auto Limited vs Behari Lal Kohli, 1989 4 SCC 39 (paras 7 and 8), Rai Chand Jain vs Miss Chandra Kanta Khosla (1991) 1 SCC 422 (para 10),K.B. Saha and Sons Private Limited v. Development Consultant Limited, (2008) 8 SCC 564 (paras 29 to 34), M/S Sms Tea Estates P.Ltd vs M/S Chandmari Tea Co.P.Ltd , 2011 14 SCC 66 (paras 11, 22 and 23).

25. In Samir Mukherjee vs Davinder K. Bajaj & Ors, (2001) 5 SCC

259 (para 6 and 7) Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"6. Section 106 prescribes the procedure for execution of a lease between the parties. Under the first paragraph of this section a lease of immovable property from year to year or for any term exceeding one year or reserving yearly rent can be made only by registered instrument and remaining classes of leases are governed by the second paragraph that is to say all other leases of immovable property can be made either by registered instrument or by oral agreement accompanied by delivery of possession."

7. In the case in hand we are concerned with an oral lease which is hit by the first paragraph of Section 107 of the Transfer of Property Act. Under Section 107 parties have an option to enter into a lease in respect of an immovable property either for a term less than a year or from year to year, for any term exceeding one year or reserving a yearly rent. If they decide upon having a lease in respect of any immovable property from year to year or for any term exceeding one year, or reserving yearly rent, such a lease has to be only by a registered instrument. In absence of a registered instrument no valid lease from year to year or for a term exceeding one year or reserving a yearly rent can be created. If the lease is not a valid lease within the meaning of the opening words of Section 106 the rule of construction embodied therein would not be attracted. The above is the legal position on a harmonious reading of both the sections."

26. In M/S Park Street Properties (Pvt) Ltd. vs Dipak Kumar Singh And Anr , 2016 9 SCC 268 Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in absence of registration of a document, what is deemed to be created is a month to month tenancy, the termination of which is governed by Section 106 of the Act. Since the alleged unregistered letter dated 23.02.1999 providing for lease of the disputed shop for a period of 9 years is an unregistered document, therefore, the tenancy can be deemed to be a month to month tenancy and the termination of tenancy is governed by Section 106 of the Act, 1882. Paragraph 17 and 19 of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/S Park Street (supra) are reproduced below:

"17. A perusal of Section 106 of the Act makes it clear that it creates a deemed monthly tenancy in those cases where there is no express contract to the contrary, which is terminable at a notice period of 15 days. The section also lays down the requirements of a valid notice to terminate the tenancy, such as that it must be in writing, signed by the person sending it and be duly delivered. Admittedly, the validity of the notice itself is not under challenge. The main contention advanced on behalf of the respondents is that the impugned judgment and order is valid in light of the second part of Section 107of the Act, which requires that lease for a term exceeding one year can only be made by way of a registered instrument.

19. It is also a well settled position of law that in the absence of a registered instrument, the courts are not precluded from determining the factum of tenancy from the other evidence on record as well as the conduct of the parties. A three Judge bench of this Court in the case of Anthony v. KC Ittoop & sons (4), held as under:

"A lease of immovable property is defined in Section 105 of the TP Act. A transfer of a right to enjoy a property in consideration of a price paid or promised to be rendered periodically or on specified occasions is the basic fabric for a valid lease. The provision says that such a transfer can be made expressly or by implication. Once there is such a transfer of right to enjoy the property a lease stands created. What is mentioned in the three paragraphs of the first part of Section 107 of the TP Act are only the different modes of how leases are created. The first paragraph has been extracted above and it deals with the mode of creating the particular kinds of leases mentioned therein. The third paragraph can be read along with the above as it contains a condition to be complied with if the parties choose to create a lease as per a registered instrument mentioned therein. All other leases, if created, necessarily fall within the ambit of the second paragraph. Thus, dehors the instrument parties can create a lease as envisaged in the second paragraph of Section which reads thus..... When lease is a transfer of a right to enjoy the property and such transfer can be made expressly or by implication, the mere fact that an unregistered instrument came into existence would not stand in the way of the court to determine whether there was in fact a lease otherwise than through such deed.

..... Taking a different view would be contrary to the reality when parties clearly intended to create a lease though the document which they executed had not gone into the processes of registration. That lacuna had affected the validity of the document, but what had happened between the parties in respect of the property became a reality. Non registration of the document had caused only two consequences. One is that no lease exceeding one year was created. Second is that the instrument became useless so far as creation of the lease is concerned. Nonetheless the presumption that a lease not exceeding one year stood created by conduct of parties remains un-rebutted." (emphasis laid by this Court) Thus, in the absence of registration of a document, what is deemed to be created is a month to month tenancy, the termination of which is governed by Section 106 of the Act." (emphasis supplied by me)

27. For all the reasons, aforestated I hold that the alleged lease of the disputed shop by letter dated 23.02.1999 for a period of 9 years is not admissible in evidence in view of the provisions of Section 107 of the Act 1882 and Sections 17 and 49 of the Act, 1908. Therefore, the Court below has not committed any error of law to hold that the aforesaid alleged lease deed/ letter dated 23.02.1999 is not admissible in evidence. Question nos. a and b are answered accordingly.

Question no. c.

28. The contractual tenancy created by the plaintiffs-landlords in favour of the tenant-defendant/ revisionist by a registered lease deed dated 13.02.1981 came to end on expiry of its period of 9 years i.e. on 12.02.1990. Further, continuance of the defendanttenant/ revisionist under letter dated 06.03.1990 and thereafter, by letter dated 23.02.1999 accepted only by the plaintiff no. 1, resulted in month to month tenancy. In absence of any valid registered lease deed it become a month to month tenancy under Section 106 of the Act 1882. Similar view has been taken by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/S Park Street (supra) wherein, Hon'ble Supreme Court clearly held (para 19) that in absence of registration of a document, what is deemed to be created is a month to month tenancy, the termination of which is governed by section 106 of the Act, 1882. In view of the settled law as discussed above, the condition of the registered lease deed dated 13.02.1981 shall also not be admissible in evidence and none of its terms and conditions can be pressed or any right there under can be claimed by the defendant-tenant/revisionist since the said registered lease deed expired by efflux of time on 12.02.1990.

29. Section 116 of the Act 1882 provides that if a lessee or under lessee of an immovable property remains in possession thereof after the determination of the lease granted to lessee, and the lessor or his legal representative accepts rent from the lessee or under lessee, or other wise assents for continuing in possession, the lease is, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, renewed from year to year, or from month to month, according to the purpose for which the property is leased, as specified under Section 106 of the Act 1882. Thus, applying Section 116 of the Act, 1882 on the fats of the present case, the best case of the defendant-tenant/ revisionist may be that he is a tenant from month to month. Undisputedly, the letter dated 23.02.1999 issued by the defendant-tenant/ revisionist and accepted by the plaintiff no. 1 for lease of the disputed shop for 9 years, is an unregistered document. Therefore, in absence of registration, the tenancy shall be deemed to be a month to month tenancy and its termination is governed by Section 106 of the Act 1882 as also held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s Park Street (supra). If a tenant remains in possession after determination of the lease, he is called a tenant on sufferance. If a tenant continues in possession after determination of the term with the consent of the landlord then he is a tenant at will or a tenant holding over. Since, the disputed accommodation is a shop, therefore, in terms of section 106 readwith section 116 of the Act 1882, the tenancy in question would be a month to month tenancy which has been lawfully determined by the plaintiffs-landlords by notice dated 12.12.2005.

30. In Bhawanji Lakhamhi & Ors vs Himatlal Jamnadas Dani & Ors. 1972 1 SCC 388 (para 13), Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

" Learned counsel for the appellants argued that whenever rent is accepted by a landlord from a tenant whose tenancy has been determined, but who continues in possession, a tenancy by holding over is created. The argument was that the assent of the lessor alone and not that of the lessee was material for the purposes of Section 116. We are not inclined to accept this contention. We have already shown that the basis of the, section is a bilateral contract between the erstwhile landlord and the erstwhile tenant If the tenant has the statutory right to remain in possession, and if he pays the rent, that will not normally be referable to an offer for his continuing in possession which can be converted into a contract by acceptance thereof by the landlord. We do not say that the operation of Section 116 is always excluded whatever might be the circumstances under which the tenant pays the rent and the landlord accepts it. We have earlier referred to the observations of this Court in Ganga Dutt Murarka v. Kartik Chandra Das regarding some of the circumstances in which a fresh contract of tenancy may be inferred. We have already held the whole basis of Section 116 of the Transfer of Property Act is that, in case of normal tenancy, a landlord is entitled, where he does not accept the rent after the notice to quit, to file a suit in ejectment and obtain a decree for possession, and so his acceptance of rent is an unequivocal act referable only to his desire to assent to the tenant continuing in possession. That is not so where Rent Act exists; and if the tenant says that landlord accepted the rent not as statutory tenant but only as legal rent indicating his assent to the tenant's continuing in possession, it is for the tenant to establish it. No attempt has been made to establish it in this case and there is no evidence, apart from the acceptance of the rent by the landlord, to indicate even remotely that he desired the appellants to continue in possession after the termination of the tenancy. Besides, as we have already indicated, the animus of the tenant in tendering the rent is also material. If he tenders the rent as the rent payable under the statutory tenancy, the landlord cannot, by accepting it as rent, create a tenancy by holding over. In such a case the parties would not be id idem and there will be no consensus. The decision in Ganga Dutt Murarka v. Kartik Chandra Das, Which followed the principles laid down by the Federal Court in Kai Khushrao Bezonjee Capadia v. Bai Jerbai Hirjibhoy Warden and another(1) is correct and does not require reconsideration."

31. In Burmah Shell Oil Distributing vs Khaja Midhat Noor And Others (1988) 3 SCC 44 (para 5 and 6) Hon'ble Supreme Court held that after expiry of the lease period under the registered lease deed, the tenancy automatically stood determined. When thereafter, lessee is allowed to continue to be in possession of the property without executing any fresh registered lease deed, the lessee must be treated as holding over month to month.

32. In Anthony v. K.C.Itloop and sons and Ors. 2000 6 SCC 394 (para 8 to 16) Hon'ble Supreme Court considered a case where a lease of a building for a period of 5 years was granted by an unregistered instrument and held that such an instrument can not create the lease on account of three-pronged statutory inhibitions i.e. section 107 of the Act 1882, section 17 (1) and section 49 of the Act 1908. However, Supreme Court held that when lease is a transfer of a right to enjoy the property and such transfer can be made expressly or by implication, the mere fact that an unregistered instrument came into existence would not stand in the way of the Court to determine whether there was in fact a lease other wise than through such deed. It further held on facts of that case that the tenant was inducted into the possession of the building by owner thereof and the tenant was paying monthly rent or had agreed to pay rent in respect of the building, therefore, the legal character of the tenants possession has to be attributed to a jural relationship between the parties and such a jural relationship, on the fact and situation of the case can not be placed anything different from that of lessor and lessee falling within purview of section 107 of the Act 1882. Thus, applying the principles laid down in case of Anthony (supra), the presumption would be that a lease not exceeding one year stood created by conduct of the parties. Therefore, the plaintiffs-landlords lawfully determined the lease by notice dated 12.12.2005. Since the disputed shop was not vacated by the defendant-tenant/ revisionist despite notice dated 12.12.2005, therefore, the plaintiffs-landlords filed SCC Suit No. 4 of 2006 which has been lawfully decreed by the impugned judgment dated 31.01.2007. The question no. (c) is answered accordingly.

Question no. (d)

33. The contention of the plaintiffs-landlords that for his entitlement to damages @ Rs. 32/- per square feet per month for an area of 2000 square feet i.e. Rs. 64,000/- per month or any other amount higher than Rs. 18,515/- per month, is not supported by any evidence. The plaintiffs-landlords failed to lead any evidence to justify his demand of damages at the rate of Rs. 32/- per square feet per month. Therefore, the Court below has not committed any error of law in not accepting the claim for damages @ Rs. 32 per square feet per month. Thus, I do not find any manifest error of law in the impugned judgment with regard to quantum of damages.

34. For all reasons aforestated, I do not find any merit in both the Civil Revisions. Therefore, the Civil Revision No. 561 of 2014 filed by the tenant and Civil Revision No. 141 of 2007 filed by the landlords, are dismissed. However, there shall be no order as to costs.

A. Criminal Law -National Security Act, 1980 - Section 3(2) - Indian Penal Code,1860 - Sections 323/376 r/w Section ¾ POCSO Act- quashing of detention order - accused committed rape-people started sloganeering against the nature of offence - due to adverse affect on the public order, respondent authorities passed the detention order against his release on bail- the propensity of a person repeating the offence can be gathered either by criminal antecedents or some other material -District Magistrate has recorded that if the petitioner is enlarged on bail, there is likelihood of the petitioner indulging in similar offences thereby adversely affecting the public order, but there is no material on record to justify the said satisfaction as the petitioner did not have any criminal antecedents-detention order passed by the District Magistrate does not satisfy the test as laid down by the Apex Court and the rigours of law which are required to be established before taking a decision of preventive detention. 17. Kumail Vs. State of U.P. & Ors, judgment in Habeas Corpus Petition No. 437 of 2019

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. Heard Sri Saurabh Kesarwani for the petitioner, Sri Deepak Mishra, learned A.G.A. for the respondents 2, 3 and 4, Sri Prahlad Kumar Khare for the Union of India and perused the record.

2. The present habeas corpus petition seeks release of the petitioner Mahmood currently in detention in pursuance to the detention order dated 20th May, 2019 passed by the District Magistrate, Bijnor (respondent no. 3) in exercise of powers under Section 3(2) of the National Security Act, 1980 (hereinafter referred to as the "N.S.A. Act').

3. A perusal of the record reveals that an F.I.R. dated 27.3.2019 was registered as Case Crime No. 178 of 2019, under Sections 323/376 IPC read with Section 3/4 POCSO Act, at Police Station Najibabad, District Bijnor. In pursuance to the said F.I.R., the detenue (petitioner) was arrested on 29.3.2019 and is in detention since then. It has been brought on record that after the arrest of the petitioner, during the investigation of the case, the statement of prosecutrix namely Wasiya, aged about 10 years, was recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. on 28.3.2019 (Annexure-10 to the petition). The Investigating Officer also recovered the blood stained clothes of the prosecutrix from the home of the informant on 28.3.2019 and the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. of the victim was recorded on 30th March, 2019 (Annexure-13 to the petition).

4. A perusal of the F.I.R. in question reveals that the informant disclosed that on 26.3.2019 at about 7:30 P.M. the younger sister of the informant, namely, Wasiya, aged about 10 years, had gone to purchase certain things to Jalalabad Bazar and when after sufficient time having elapsed, she did not return back home, then the informant and his brother Islam went in search of Wasiya. They reached the softy shop of one Prakash, who informed them that a little while ago, a small girl had come with a boy, who has purchased softy for her and has taken her with him. It was also stated that there were two persons, namely, Altaf son of Ismail and Mukeem son of Ehsan, both residents of Jalalabad, who informed that they had seen the petitioner taking the girl with him after purchasing a softy. On receiving the said information, they searched for the girl here and there and found her in a bad condition behind the shop of Sarfaraj Hardware. She was physically injured and mentally disturbed with many marks on her face and other places of her body. On questioning, Wasiya informed that the petitioner, whom the girl recognizes, had done wrong things to her. With the said allegations, the F.I.R. was lodged against the petitioner. Thereafter, the informant gave a statement which was in consonance with the allegations levelled in the F.I.R. He also stated that when the girl was brought back home, the wife of the informant was informed that blood was coming out of the private parts of the girl.

5. The Investigating Officer also recorded the statement of the prosecutrix Km. Wasiya under Section 161 Cr.P.C., wherein she deposed that she was sent for purchasing certain goods where Mahmood, the petitioner, met her and give money to her and purchased a softy for her and thereafter at a secluded place assaulted her and on her shouting he left her. Subsequently, the statement of the prosecutrix was also recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C., wherein she deposed that the petitioner had done wrong things to her. She further stated that at about 11:00 A.M. she had gone to the Bazar to find her sister where the petitioner, under the pretext of purchasing softy, took her with him and thrashed her and, after removing her clothes, did wrong things to her.

6. To secure detention of the petitioner under the N.S.A. Act, the Inspector In-charge of Police Station Najibabad, District Bijnor, sent a report, dated 8.5.2019, to the S.P. Bijnor (Annexure-3 to the petition). In the said report, besides the details of the aforesaid offence committed by the petitioner, it was stated that on account of the said incident, the public order was disturbed as the people of the area started sloganeering and protesting by shutting their shops against the nature of offence that was allegedly committed by the petitioner. It was also reported that on account of the said incident, the people were closing their doors and were worried about the safety of their children and were also apprehensive in sending their children to the school. It was also reported that to control the situation additional force had to be deployed and people had to be assured with regard to arrest of the accused. It was also reported that the said incident was widely published in the newspaper on the next date, which corroborates that there had been adverse affect on the public order on account of the said incident. Finally, it was reported that the petitioner is in custody at the District Jail, Bijnor and is trying for his release on bail; that he has filed a bail application through his advocate in the Court of Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No. 1/POCSO Court, Bijnor, which is pending for hearing; and there the accused is likely to be released on bail. It was reported that on being free from the prison, there is all likelihood that he may commit the offence again which will disrupt the public order.

7. The Superintendent of Police, District Bijnor, vide his report dated 16.5.2019 sent to the District Magistrate, Bijnor (Annexure-6 to the petition) after repeating what has been reported to him reported that the petitioner is in custody in the District Prison and is trying for his release on bail, for which an application has been filed through his advocate and if he is released on bail, then there are all chances of his repeating similar offences which are likely to have an adverse affect on the public order. Thus he recommended petitioner's detention under the N.S.A. Act.

8. Based upon the said two reports, District Magistrate formulated the grounds of detention and proceeded to pass an order of detention on 20th May, 2019.

9. In the grounds of detention, the District Magistrate after narrating the entire incident and what was reported to him observed that there is all likelihood of the petitioner being released on bail and there are chances that on being released on bail, a similar offence may be repeated which will have an adverse affect on the public order.

10. The detention order dated 20th May, 2019 was duly confirmed by the State of U.P. vide order dated 29.5.2019 (Annexure-2 to the petition).

11. Counsel for the petitioner has argued that the petitioner has no criminal antecedents; that based upon a solitary incident, the respondent authorities were not justified in passing the detention order, as the petitioner is already facing criminal trial for the offences; that there is no reason recorded by the District Magistrate as to on what basis he was satisfied that the petitioner is likely to be released on bail; that the incident in question can in the worst case scenario be termed as a law and order problem and in no way can it be treated as to have disturbed public order; and that there is no material on record for the District Magistrate to have been satisfied that on being released on bail, the petitioner would commit a similar offence. He has also argued that as the petitioner was already under custody there was no valid reason to passing a detention order. He has also informed the Court that the bail application filed by the petitioner and pending at the time of passing of the detention order was not pressed and as on date there is no bail application pending consideration before any court.

12. Counsel for the petitioner has extensively relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the cases of Sudhir Kumar Saha v. The Commissioner of Police, Calcutta and Ors, AIR 1970 SC 814, Rameshwar Shaw v. District Magistrate, Burdwan and Ors, AIR 1964 SC 334 and judgment of this Court in the case of Akhtar Hussain v. Union of India and Others, judgment dated

13. Learned A.G.A. on the other hand has argued that the offences committed by the petitioner were so heinous that they had an adverse affect on the public order which is described in detail in the grounds of detention as well as the report submitted before the District Magistrate. He has further argued that the incident in question cannot be treated like a normal case of rape inasmuch as the petitioner was a stranger to the prosecutrix and thus offence committed by him has to be seen keeping in mind the depravity of the mental state of the petitioner. He has thus argued that his release would be detrimental to the public order. Hence, he has prayed that the petition be dismissed.

14. Learned A.G.A. placed reliance on the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Arun Ghosh v. State of West Bengal, AIR 1970 SC 1228 so as to contend that where activities of a person are such that it breeds a sense of insecurity in the mind of girls of the community at large, the same would affect public order. The learned A.G.A. relied on decision of this Court dated 17.09.2019 passed in Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 562 of 2019: Aashif v. State of U.P. and others so as to contend that even a solitary incident could form basis of satisfaction to preventively detain a person.

15. Considering the submissions made at the bar as well as on perusal of the record and on plain reading of the provisions of the N.S.A. Act, what is to be seen is whether the offence in question warranted detention of the petitioner in exercise of powers under Section 3(2) of the N.S.A. Act.

16. It is well settled that personal liberty as guaranteed under Article 21 read with Article 22 of the Constitution of India is sacrosanct and is at the highest pedestal of the freedoms guaranteed under the Constitution of India and the same can be taken away only as per the procedure prescribed by law. Section 3(2) of the N.S.A. Act is as follows:-

"(2) The Central Government or the State Government may, if satisfied with respect to any person that with a view to preventing him from acting in any manner prejudicial to the security of the State or from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order or from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of supplies and services essential to the community it is necessary so to do, make an order directing that such person be detained.

Explanation.--For the purposes of this sub-section, "acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of supplies and services essential to the community" does not include "acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of supplies of commodities essential to the community" as defined in the Explanation to sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Prevention of Blackmarketing and Maintenance of Supplies of Essential Commodities Act, 1980 (7 of 1980), and accordingly, no order of detention shall be made under this Act on any ground on which an order of detention may be made under that Act."

17. From a plain reading of the provisions of the Act, it is clear that the Central Government or the State Government prior to passing of the detention order has to be satisfied that any person, if not detained, is likely to act in any manner which is:-

a. prejudicial to the security of the State; or

b. prejudicial to the maintenance of the public order; or

c. prejudicial to the maintenance of supply and services essential to the community.

18. Now, we shall consider the various precedents cited at the Bar.

19. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Arun Ghosh (Supra) while deciding the question of validity of a detention order passed in the case of a person who was facing charges on the grounds such as anti social activities including rioting, assault and undue harassment of respectable young ladies in the public street of Malda town, having been made accused of doing such acts on as many as eight occasions, proceeded to observe as under:-

"An act by itself is not determinant of its own gravity. In its quality it may not differ from another but in its potentiality it may be very different.

Take the case of assault on girls. A guest at a hotel may kiss or make advances to half a dozen chamber maids. He may annoy them and also the management but he does not cause disturbance of public order. He may even have a fracas with the friends of one of the girls but even then it would be a case of breach of law and order only. Take another case of a man who molests women in lonely places. As a result of his activities girls going to colleges and schools are in constant danger and fear. Women going for their ordinary business are afraid of being waylaid and assaulted. The activity of this man in its essential quality is not different from the act of the other man but in its potentiality and in its affect upon the public tranquillity there is a vast difference. The act of the man who molests the girls in lonely places causes a disturbance in the even tempo of living which is the first requirement of public order. He disturbs the society and the community. His act makes all the women apprehensive of their honour and he can be said to be causing disturbance of public order and not merely committing individual actions which may be taken note of by the criminal prosecution agencies.

It means therefore that the question whether a man has only committed a breach of law and order or has acted in a manner likely to cause a disturbance of the public order is a question of degree and the extent of the reach of the act upon the society."

20. The Apex Court further recorded that all the acts of molestation were directed against the family of one person and not against the women in general from the locality and even the assaults were individual and after recording that the conduct may be reprehensible but it does not add up to the situation where it may be said that the community at large was being disturbed proceeded to quash the detention order.

21. The Apex Court relying on the earlier judgment of Dr. Ram Manohar Lohiya v. State of Bihar, 1966 CrLJ 608 held that whether an "act' has adversely affected the "public order' is to be determined in the facts of each case.

22. The learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that the present case is based upon a solitary incident and by no stretch of logic can it be said that the said act would affect the community at large.

23. The next decision relied upon by the counsel for the petitioner is in the case of Akhtar Hussain (Supra). In the said case, the detention order was passed against a person who was a Gram Pradhan and had assaulted a young girl in connection with which an F.I.R. was registered against the said Gram Pradhan under Sections 376, 452, 506, 504 I.P.C. and Section 3 /4 POCSO Act. In pursuance of the said F.I.R., a detention order was passed under N.S.A. Act. It was argued before the Court that it was a case of solitary incident and there was nothing on record to show that the detaining authority had applied its mind with regard to the criminal antecedents of the accused. It was also argued that the detaining authority erred while recording the satisfaction that there was a likelihood of the petitioner being released on bail and on release would again indulge in similar offences affecting the public order. The Court after considering the submissions made before it, by relying upon the judgments of the Apex Court in the cases of Shashi Agarwal v. State of U.P. and others, 1988 (1) SCC 436 and Rameshwar Shaw v. District Magistrate, Burdwan & another, AIR 1964 SC 334 and also judgments of this Court in Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 55685 of 2017, Haji Akhlakh vs. Union of India and others (decided on 30.3.2018); Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 3094 of 2018, Istakaar and Another vs. Union of India and others (decided on 4.9.2018); and Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 3181 of 2018, Sudhir vs. Union of India and others (decided on 8.10.2018), observed as under:-

"We are constrained to observe that no material justifying the apprehension that detenue would indulge in prejudicial activities in case of his being released on bail was placed before the respondent no.3. In our opinion the bald statement made in the grounds of detention that the petitioner upon being released on bail would repeat his criminal activities prejudicially affecting the maintenance of public order, was not enough to justify passing of an order of preventive detention against him. We stand fortified in our view by the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Shashi Agarwal Vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 1988 (1) SCC 436 and Rameshwar Shaw Vs. District Magistrate, Burdwan & another reported in AIR 1964 SC 334."

24. The Court had also considered the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Dharmendra Suganchand Chelawat & Suganchand Kanhaiyyalal vs. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1196, wherein it was held that to detain a person already in jail the detention order must pass the following tests: (i) that the detaining authority was aware of the fact that the detenue is already in detention; and (ii) that there were compelling reasons justifying such detention despite the fact that the detenue is already in detention. The expression "compelling reasons" in the context of making an order of detention with regard to a person already in custody implies that there must be cogent material before the detaining authority on the basis of which it has to be satisfied that (a) the detenue is likely to be released from custody in near future and (b) taking into account the nature of the antecedent activities of the detenue, it is likely that after his release from custody he would indulge in prejudicial activities and it is necessary to detain him in order to prevent him from engaging in such activities. In Akhtar Hussain's case (supra) this Court on the basis of material on record found that there was nothing to hold that there was any likelihood of the petitioner, after release on bail, indulge in prejudicial activities affecting the public order. Thus, the detention order, which was based on a solitary case, was quashed. .

25. The next judgment referred to buttress the argument is the judgment of this Court in the case of Kumail (Supra) wherein this Court, while dealing with a detention order passed against a person who was already in judicial custody, upon a conspectus of case laws culled out the legal principles as under:

"A conspectus of the decisions of the apex court noticed above would show that the law is that even in the case of a person in custody a detention order can validly be passed (1) if the authority passing the order is aware of the fact that he is actually in custody; (2) if he has reason to believe on the basis of reliable material placed before him (a) that there is a real possibility of his being released on bail, and (b) that on being so released he would in all probability indulge in prejudicial activity and (3) if it is felt essential to detain him to prevent him from so doing. If the authority passes an order after recording his satisfaction in this behalf, such an order cannot be struck down on the ground that the proper course for the authority was to oppose the bail and if bail is granted notwithstanding such opposition, to question it before a higher court. The reason to believe that there is likelihood or real possibility of the person being released on bail must be based on cogent material and not mere ipse dixit of the authority. Such satisfaction can be drawn on the basis of reports of the sponsoring authority, the nature of the offence(s) in connection with which the detenu is in jail as also the facts and circumstances of that case including grant of bail to co-accused or general practice of courts in such matters. But once challenge is laid with regard to existence of such satisfaction, then the detaining authority in its return / affidavit must disclose existence of such satisfaction and the materials on the basis of which it has been drawn. However, if in the return it is demonstrated that satisfaction was drawn and there existed material to draw such satisfaction, the same cannot ordinarily be interfered with on the ground of insufficiency of material."

26. After noticing the legal position, the Court proceeded to quash the detention order.

27. The next case cited at the bar is the judgment in the case of Aashif (Supra) wherein this Court after noticing the decision of the nine-judges Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Attorney General For India v. Amratlal Prajivandas and others, 1994 (5) SCC 54 as well as the case of Surya Prakash Sharma v. State of U.P. and Others, 1994 (Supp.) (3) SCC 195 on the issue as to when on the basis of solitary case a detention order may be justified, held as under:-

"From the decisions noticed above, what is clear is that though ordinarily a solitary act may not be sufficient to sustain an order of preventive detention but where that act is of such a nature that it is reflective of, or has manifestation of, an organized criminal activity, or is so grave that it reflects the propensity of that person to repeat such an act, then even a solitary act could well be made basis for passing an order of preventive detention."

28. In another case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court while considering the validity of detention order in a case where person is already in custody, in the case of Huidrom Konungjao Singh v. State of Manipur and Others, (2012) 7 SCC 181, placing reliance on earlier judgment in the case of Rekha v. State of T.N., held as under:-

"9. In view of the above, it can be held that there is no prohibition in law to pass the detention order in respect of a person who is already in custody in respect of criminal case. However, if the detention order is challenged the detaining authority has to satisfy the Court the following facts:

(1) The authority was fully aware of the fact that the detenu was actually in custody.

(2) There was reliable material before the said authority on the basis of which it could have reasons to believe that there was real possibility of his release on bail and further on being released he would probably indulge in activities which are prejudicial to public order.

(3) In view of the above, the authority felt it necessary to prevent him from indulging in such activities and therefore, detention order was necessary.

In case either of these facts does not exist the detention order would stand vitiated. The present case requires to be examined in the light of the aforesaid settled legal proposition.

12. In Rekha v. State of T.N. [(2011) 5 SCC 244 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 596] this Court while dealing with the issue held: (SCC pp. 250-51 & 254-55, paras 7, 10 & 27)

"7. A perusal of the above statement in Para 4 of the grounds of detention shows that no details have been given about the alleged similar cases in which bail was allegedly granted by the court concerned. Neither the date of the alleged bail orders has been mentioned therein, nor the bail application number, nor whether the bail orders were passed in respect of the co-accused on the same case, nor whether the bail orders were passed in respect of other co-accused in cases on the same footing as the case of the accused. ...

10. In our opinion, if details are given by the respondent authority about the alleged bail orders in similar cases mentioning the date of the orders, the bail application number, whether the bail order was passed in respect of the co-accused in the same case, and whether the case of the co-accused was on the same footing as the case of the petitioner, then, of course, it could be argued that there is likelihood of the accused being released on bail, because it is the normal practice of most courts that if a co-accused has been granted bail and his case is on the same footing as that of the petitioner, then the petitioner is ordinarily granted bail. ... A mere ipse dixit statement in the grounds of detention cannot sustain the detention order and has to be ignored.

27. In our opinion, there is a real possibility of release of a person on bail who is already in custody [Ed.: Matter between two asterisks emphasised in original as well.] provided he has moved a bail application which is pending [Ed.: Matter between two asterisks emphasised in original as well.] . It follows logically that if no bail application is pending, then there is no likelihood of the person in custody being released on bail, and hence the detention order will be illegal. However, there can be an exception to this rule, that is, where a co-accused whose case stands on the same footing had been granted bail. In such cases, the detaining authority can reasonably conclude that there is likelihood of the detenu being released on bail even though no bail application of his is pending, since most courts normally grant bail on this ground."

Thus, it is evident from the aforesaid judgment that it is not the similar case i.e. involving similar offence. It should be that the co-accused in the same offence is enlarged on bail and on the basis of which the detenu could be enlarged on bail.

15. In the instant case, admittedly, the said bail orders do not relate to the co-accused in the same case. The accused released in those cases on bail had no concern with the present case. Merely, because somebody else in similar cases had been granted bail, there could be no presumption that in the instant case had the detenu applied for bail could have been released on bail. Thus, as the detenu in the instant case has not moved the bail application and no other co-accused, if any, had been enlarged on bail, resorting to the provisions of the Act was not permissible. Therefore, the impugned order of detention is based on mere ipse dixit statement in the grounds of detention and cannot be sustained in the eye of the law."

29. In yet another case, a three-judges bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in its judgment, reported in (2012) 2 SCC 176, Yumman Ongbi Lembi Leima v. State of Manipur and others, proceeded to hold as under:-

"6. On a perusal of the grounds of detention, it is clear that the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority is founded on the belief that after having availed of the bail facility, the appellant's husband could indulge in commission of further prejudicial activities. An alternative preventive measure was, therefore, immediately needed in the circumstances.

23. Having carefully considered the submissions made on behalf of the respective parties, we are inclined to hold that the (sic exercise of) extraordinary powers of detaining an individual in contravention of the provisions of Article 22(2) of the Constitution was not warranted in the instant case, where the grounds of detention do not disclose any material which was before the detaining authority, other than the fact that there was every likelihood of Yumman Somendro being released on bail in connection with the cases in respect of which he had been arrested, to support the order of detention.

24. Article 21 of the Constitution enjoins that:

"21. Protection of life and personal liberty.--No person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty except according to procedure established by law."

In the instant case, although the power is vested with the authorities concerned, unless the same are invoked and implemented in a justifiable manner, such action of the detaining authority cannot be sustained, inasmuch as, such a detention order is an exception to the provisions of Articles 21 and 22(2) of the Constitution.

25. When the courts thought it fit to release the appellant's husband on bail in connection with the cases in respect of which he had been arrested, the mere apprehension that he was likely to be released on bail as a ground of his detention, is not justified.

26. In addition to the above, the FIRs in respect of which the appellant's husband had been arrested relate to the years 1994, 1995 and 1998 respectively, whereas the order of detention was passed against him on 31-1-2011, almost 12 years after the last FIR No. 190(5)98 IPS under Section 13 of the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act. There is no live link between the earlier incidents and the incident in respect of which the detention order had been passed.

27. As has been observed in various cases of similar nature by this Court, the personal liberty of an individual is the most precious and prized right guaranteed under the Constitution in Part III thereof. The State has been granted the power to curb such rights under criminal laws as also under the laws of preventive detention, which, therefore, are required to be exercised with due caution as well as upon a proper appreciation of the facts as to whether such acts are in any way prejudicial to the interest and the security of the State and its citizens, or seek to disturb public law and order, warranting the issuance of such an order. An individual incident of an offence under the Penal Code, however heinous, is insufficient to make out a case for issuance of an order of preventive detention.

28. In our view, the detaining authority acted rather casually in the matter in issuing the order of detention and the High Court also appears to have missed the right to liberty as contained in Article 21 of the Constitution and Article 22(2) thereof, as well as the provisions of Section 167 of the Code of Criminal Procedure."

30. The Hon'ble Supreme Court further in the case of (2012) 2 SCC 386, Munagala Yadamma v. State of Andhra Pradesh and Others held as under:-

"7. Having considered the submissions made on behalf of the respective parties, we are unable to accept the submissions made on behalf of the State in view of the fact that the decision in Rekha case [(2011) 5 SCC 244 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 596] , in our view, clearly covers the facts of this case as well. The offences complained of against the appellant are of a nature which can be dealt with under the ordinary law of the land. Taking recourse to the provisions of preventive detention is contrary to the constitutional guarantees enshrined in Articles 19 and 21 of the Constitution and sufficient grounds have to be made out by the detaining authorities to invoke such provisions."

31. On the basis of the judgments cited above, what is to be considered is whether the preventive detention of the petitioner under National Security Act was justified considering the fact that the petitioner was already in detention. A close perusal of the reasons for detention does not reveal that there was any material before the District Magistrate except the bail application (Annexure-61 to the grounds of detention) to record a satisfaction that the petitioner was likely to be released on bail. The reasons for detention do not disclose any application of mind keeping in view the fact that the petitioner did not have any criminal antecedents except for this solitary case, in which the petitioner was an accused. As to how the District Magistrate could record a satisfaction that the petitioner if enlarged on bail is likely to repeat the offence of the nature of which the petitioner is accused, adversely affecting the public order, is any body's guess.

32. The propensity of a person repeating the offence can be gathered either by criminal antecedents or on some other material showing the propensity of the accused to commit or repeat an offence. We are afraid no such material existed on record before the District Magistrate leading to an inference or justifying the satisfaction that detenue if released on bail shall indulge in similar act.

33. In the present case although the District Magistrate has recorded that the petitioner is likely to be released on bail but there is no material as to how the said finding was recorded when only the bail application was before him. There was no material placed before the District Magistrate either by the Superintendent of Police or the Inspector except their opinion which cannot be said to be "material' enough to form a subjective satisfaction, particularly, when offences in respect of sexual assault punishable under POCSO Act are considered very serious and bail is not ordinarily granted in such cases. Although, the District Magistrate has recorded that if the petitioner is enlarged on bail, there is likelihood of the petitioner indulging in similar offences thereby adversely affecting the public order, but there is no material on record to justify the said satisfaction as the petitioner did not have any criminal antecedents and there was no other report on record to indicate the propensity of the petitioner for repeating the offence of the nature for which he was accused and facing trial.

34. On the consideration of the law as extracted above as well as the material placed before us, we have no hesitation in holding that the detention order passed by the District Magistrate does not satisfy the test as laid down by the Apex Court and the rigours of law which are required to be established before taking a decision of preventive detention. The detention order is thus liable to be quashed.

35. The habeas corpus petition is allowed and the detention order dated 20th May, 2019 is quashed. The petitioner shall be released forthwith unless wanted in any other case.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Misra,J.
& Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. We have heard Sri Mahendra Pratap, assisted by Sri Anurag Yadav, Sri Avinash Kumar Pandey and Sri Chaman Lal Chaudhary, for the petitioner; Sri Jitendra Prasad Mishra for Union of India; Sri Deepak Mishra, learned AGA for the respondents no. 2, 3 and 4; and have perused the record.

2. The instant petition seeks quashing of the detention order dated 06.06.2019 passed by the District Magistrate, Gautam Budh Nagar in exercise of his power conferred upon him by sub-section (3) of section 3 of the National Security Act, 1980 (in short the 'Act 1980') read with sub-section (2) of section 3 thereof. The petition also challenges the order of confirmation as well extending the period of detention from three months to six months starting from the date of detention with a prayer that the petitioner be set at liberty.

3. Before we proceed to notice the grounds of detention, we may observe that from a perusal of paragraphs 3 and 14 of the return filed by the Jailor, District Jail, Gautam Budh Nagar it appears that while the petitioner was confined in District Jail, Gautam Budh Nagar, pursuant to judicial orders of remand passed in connection with six cases, namely: (i) Case Crime No. 52 of 2019 under section 25/ 27 Arms Act, P.S. Knowledge Park, Ghaziabad; (ii) Case Crime No.977 of 2015 under section 307, 353 IPC, P.S. Kasna, District Gautam Budh Nagar; (iii) Case Crime No.247 of 2018, under sections 430, 379, 411, 447 IPC and section 3 of Public Property Prevention of Damages Act, P.S. Knowledge Park, District Gautam Budh Nagar; (iv) Case Crime No.264 of 2018, under sections 2/3 Gangsters Act, P.S. Knowledge Park, District Gautam Budh Nagar; (v) Case Crime No.20 of 2019, under sections 147, 148, 149, 364, 302, 323, 504, 506 IPC, P.S. Knowledge Park, district Gautam Budh Nagar; and (vi) Case Crime No.50 of 2019, under sections 147, 148, 149, 186 188, 332, 353 I.P.C., P.S. Kowledge Park, District Gautam Budh Nagar, he was served with the impugned order of detention. The return reveals that till the date of swearing the return, which is 20th September 2019, the petitioner apart from being detained under the provisions of the Act, 1980 is in judicial custody in six cases mentioned above. The grounds of detention served upon the petitioner though, in paragraph 6 enumerates the criminal history of the petitioner of 16 cases but, in paragraph 10 thereof, awareness of the petitioner being in jail is with respect to only three of those six cases, namely, case crime no.264 of 2018 (supra); case crime no.20 of 2019 (supra); and case crime no.247 of 2019. That apart, satisfaction that the petitioner is likely to be released on bail has been drawn by observing that the petitioner has been granted bail in case crime no.247 of 2018 (supra) and has applied for bail in case crime nos.20 of 2019 and 264 of 2016 wherein dates have been fixed for their consideration. Even the report of the S.S.P. Gautambudh Nagar, dated 04.06.2019, at page 43 of the paper book, discloses that the petitioner is currently incarcerated in only three cases, which is in direct conflict with the statement made by the Jailor in his return as noticed above. Thus, it is clear that the detaining authority at the time of passing the detention order and formulating the grounds of detention was not aware that the petitioner is in under detention in three other cases also. Moreover, no satisfaction has been recorded by him with regard to likelihood of the petitioner being released on bail in those three cases.

4. Coming to the grounds of detention, a perusal thereof would reveal that satisfaction to detain the petitioner under section 3(2) of the Act, 1980 has been drawn on the basis of petitioner's activity of illegal sand mining from Yamuna river bed with reference to case crime no.247 of 2018 by referring to past criminal history of the petitioner which discloses, that apart from other offences, there were cases registered against the petitioner in the past also in respect of illegal mining. However, the main ground is with reference to the activity of the petitioner that gave rise to case crime no.247 of 2018 (supra), dated 11.07.2018.

5. The allegation in the grounds of detention is that on 11.7.2018, the employees of the Irrigation Department had found that at a distance of 15.800 kilometer from the embankment, which has been made to protect Noida region from the flood water of river Yamuna, an artificial embankment, by dumping mud, has been made by sand mafia on the river bed to carve out a road to carry out illegal sand mining operations from the river bed, which had the disturbed the flow of the river thereby diverting the river flow and allowing stagnation of water. It is alleged that this illegal check on the even course of the river water has potential to disturb the ecology of the river system, its flora and fauna, and may even spread diseases and thereby disturb the public order. It is alleged that the petitioner with his father has been involved in such activity and because of their strong hold and past antecedents no body dares to report against them or be a witness against them, therefore, as the petitioner is currently in jail in three cases, out of which he has obtained bail in case crime no.247 of 2018 and has applied for bail in the remaining two cases mentioned above, and there is likelihood that he would be released on bail and repeat such activity, with a view to prevent him from repeating such act, which has potentiality to disturb public order, his detention under the Act was considered necessary.

6. The learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the grounds of detention nowhere alleges that the illegal mining on the river bed was being done by challenging the police authorities or the officials of the Mining Department. It has been argued that although it has been narrated that the alleged illegal mining had the potential to cause floods, spread of diseases but there is nothing in the grounds of detention which may reflect that any such event actually occurred. It has also been argued that the grounds of detention enumerates the past criminal history of the petitioner but the relevant details of those cases such as the current status of those cases, the FIR of those cases, bail orders, etc have not been supplied. Hence, there is suppression of relevant material. It has also been urged that the petitioner was in jail in connection with six cases but, while recording satisfaction that there is likelihood of the petitioner being released from jail, awareness of incarceration in respect of three cases only has been shown and no awareness of his incarceration in three other cases has been shown. This has vitiated the satisfaction due to non application of mind on relevant material. It has also been urged that copy of the bail application and the bail order passed in respect of case crime no.247 of 2018 has not been placed before the detaining authority, which was a relevant material, and, therefore, the satisfaction has vitiated for non consideration of relevant material. In a nutshell, the points placed by the learned counsel for the petitioner to assail the order of detention can be summarized as follows:

(a) The illegal mining activity of the petitioner referred to in the grounds of detention does not have the potential to disturb public order as is the case taken inasmuch as it is a mere breach of law and order for which detention under the Act, 1980 is not justified. More so, when only apprehension of disturbance of the ecological system is expressed and not that it was actually disturbed.

(b) The grounds of detention reflects that the petitioner has a criminal history of 16 cases but neither the relevant documents / materials with reference to the narrated criminal history have been provided nor the current status of those cases have been disclosed, particularly, when several of the cases mentioned were over five years old and were therefore stale.

(c) The detaining authority has shown awareness with regard to incarceration of the petitioner in Case Crime Nos. 264 of 2018; 20 of 2019; and 247 of 2018 (in respect of which bail order had already been passed), whereas from the counter filed by the Jailor it transpires that at the time of passing and issuance of the order of detention, since much before, the petitioner was incarcerated in District Jail, Gautam Budh Nagar in connection with three other cases also. Lack of awareness in respect of incarceration of the petitioner in three other cases and non-recording of satisfaction with regard to the petitioner's likely release on bail in those three other cases also, has vitiated the detention order as there, therefore, existed no real possibility that the petitioner was likely to be released from jail in near future and indulge in activity prejudicial to the maintenance of public order.

(d) That the bail application and the bail order in respect of case crime no.247 of 2018, which was relevant material as it contained the defence of the petitioner, has not been supplied to the detaining authority hence the subjective satisfaction is vitiated for non-application of mind on relevant material.

(e) That on similar grounds an order of detention was passed against the father of the petitioner, namely, Sanjay Chaudhary, on 28.8.2018, which was challenged by him through Habeas Corpus Petition No. 4024 of 2018, which was allowed on 11.4.2019, after exchange of affidavits, but the District Magistrate has not been apprised by the sponsoring authority that the detention of co-accused, Sanjay Chaudhary, has been set aside, therefore, the satisfaction of the District Magistrate stands vitiated for non-application of mind on relevant material.

7. Per contra, Sri Deepak Mishra, learned AGA, who has appeared on behalf of the respondents no. 2, 3 and 4, and the learned counsel for the Union of India, submitted that the grounds of detention are referable to breach of public order inasmuch as the activity of the petitioner had the potentiality to disrupt the ecology of the river system resulting in flood, stagnation of water, disruption of supply of potable water and spread of diseases, therefore the activity of the petitioner affects the community at large. Hence, the District Magistrate was legally justified in taking a decision to pass an order of detention to prevent the petitioner from indulging in activity prejudicial to the maintenance of public order.

8. It has been contended on behalf of the state respondents that the past criminal antecedents have been enumerated to demonstrate that the petitioner has propensity for such illegal mining activities and is likely to repeat the same on being released whereas for the purposes of taking decision to impose order of detention the current activity of the petitioner in connection with case crime no.247 of 2018 has been taken into account which by no means can be considered stale.

9. Sri Mishra further contended that the order of detention passed against the father of the petitioner was not set aside on merits but on the ground that there had been delay in consideration of the representation submitted by the detenu therefore continued detention of that petitioner was rendered illegal. Hence, the same was not a relevant material.

10. In respect of petitioner's counsel submission that the detention order is vitiated because no awareness has been shown that the petitioner was already in jail in three other cases, the learned AGA submitted that the district magistrate has shown awareness that the petitioner is in jail and that there is likelihood of his being released on bail therefore the detention order would not vitiate even if he has not recorded satisfaction in respect of three other cases.

11. In respect of non-supply of copy of bail order and bail application of the petitioner in case crime no.247 of 2018 it has been submitted that as to how the said bail application and bail order was relevant has not been demonstrated and therefore nothing much turns on that.

12. We have given thoughtful consideration to the rival submissions and perused the record carefully.

13. From a perusal of the record, we find that the Case Crime No. 247 of 2018, which has been made basis for passing the order of detention, was registered at the instance of Dheeraj Kumar, Sinch Pal, an employee of the Irrigation Department. The FIR of that case was lodged on 12.7.2018 against unknown person. The allegation in the FIR is to the effect that for the purposes of providing protection to the area (Noida) from the water of river Yamuna, a dam has been put at Yamuna Doab near Hindon river. At a distance of about 15.800 kilometer from that dam, near Village Tilbara, illegal sand mining was being carried out. The FIR alleges that a pavement was made on the river bed to carry out mining operations which had affected proper flow of the river. In the FIR, it is alleged that unknown persons use the pavement for mining in the night hours though no mining machine was seen during day hours.

14. In the grounds of detention it has been stated that during investigation it was found that these mining operations were carried out by the petitioner in association with his father and others in an organized manner with the help of machines and excavators and the operations were so large scale that the river flow was affected thereby causing serious threat to the ecology and the river system. Though it may not have been shown that this activity was accompanied by act of violence but there is subjective satisfaction shown with regard to serious ecological impact which had the potentiality to affect the community at large. In State of T.N. v. Kethiyan Perumal, (2004) 8 SCC 780, the apex court had approved the detention order where it was passed on the ground that large scale illegal felling of sandalwood trees was impacting the ecological system which had the potentiality to disturb the public order. In the instant case, it is not illegal sand mining alone but also diversion of the river stream for that end. Such activity, in our view, would have the potentiality to disturb the public order as it would affect the life of the community at large by exposing them to the threat of floods, breeding of mosquitoes in stagnant pool of water, contamination of water resources resulting in spread of diseases, etc. We may observe that power to detain a person under section 3(2) of the Act, 1980 can be exercised to prevent a person from acting in any manner prejudicial to the security of the State or from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order or from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of supplies and services essential to the community. As the object of the Act, 1980 and its provisions is to prevent an act prejudicial to the maintenance of public order or security of State or supplies and services essential to the community, and not to punish for its breach, once satisfaction is recorded that a person's activity has the potentiality to prejudice the maintenance of public order, power under section 3 (2) of the Act, 1980 can lawfully be exercised notwithstanding whether any substantial damage to the river system and its ecology had actually taken place or not. Under the circumstances, the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that petitioner's activity was not at all referable to the grounds on which a detention order could be passed under the Act, 1980 is rejected.

15. However, we find merit in the points (c) and (d) raised by the petitioner's counsel, as culled out above. But before we proceed to disclose the reasons as to why those grounds have appealed to us, it would be useful for us to examine the law as to when a preventive detention order can be passed against a person who is already in jail in connection with some case. The law as to when a preventive detention order can be passed in respect of a person who is already in jail started developing from the observations made by a Constitution Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Rameshwar Shaw v. D.M. Burdwan, AIR 1964 SC 334. In Rameshwar Shaw's case (supra), the apex court held as follows:

"13. The question which still remains to be considered is: can a parson in jail custody, like the petitioner, be served with an order of detention whilst he is in such custody? In dealing with this point, it is necessary to State the relevant facts which are not in dispute. The petitioner was arrested on January 25, 1963. He has been in custody ever since. On February 15, 1963 when the order of detention was served on him, he was in jail custody. On these facts, what we have to decide is: was it open to the detaining authority to come to the conclusion that it was necessary to detain the petitioner with a view to prevent him from acting in a prejudicial manner when the petitioner was locked up in jail? We have already seen the logical process which must be followed by the authority in taking action under Section 3(l)(a). The first stage in the process is to examine the material adduced against a person to show either from his conduct or his antecedent history that he has been acting in a prejudicial manner. If the said material appears satisfactory to the authority, then the authority has to consider whether it is likely that the said person would act in a prejudicial manner in future if he is not prevented from doing so by an order of detention. If this question is answered against the petitioner, then the detention order can be properly made. It is obvious that before an authority can legitimately come to the conclusion that the detention of the person is necessary to prevent him from acting in a prejudicial manner, the authority has to be satisfied that if the person is not detained, he would act in a prejudicial manner and that inevitably postulates freedom of action to the said person at the relevant time. If a person is already in jail custody, how can it rationally be postulated that if he is not detained, he would act in a prejudicial manner? At the point of time when an order of detention is going to be served on a person, it must be patent that the said person would act prejudicially if he is not detained and that is a consideration which would be absent when the authority is dealing with a person already in detention. The satisfaction that it is necessary to detain a person for the purpose of preventing him from acting in a prejudicial manner is thus the basis of the order under Section 3(1)(a), and this basis is clearly absent in the case of the petitioner. Therefore, we see no escape from the conclusion that the detention of the petitioner in the circumstances of this case, is not justified by Section 3(1)(a) and is outside its purview. The District Magistrate, Burdwan who ordered the detention of the detenu acted outside his powers conferred on him by Section 3(1)(a) when he held that it was necessary to detain the petitioner in order to prevent him from acting in a prejudicial manner. That being so we must hold that Mr Garg is right when he contends that the detention of the petitioner is not justified by Section 3(1)(a)."

(Emphasis Supplied)

16. Following the decision rendered in Rameshwar Shaw's case (supra), in Binod Singh v. District Magistrate, Dhanbad, (1986) 4 SCC 416 : 1986 SCC (Cri) 490, in absence of recording of satisfaction by the detaining authority, either in the grounds of detention or the order of detention, with regard to the detenu being already in jail and that there was imminent possibility of his being released on bail, a two-judges Bench of the Apex Court scrutinized the affidavit filed by the District Magistrate to find out whether there existed any satisfaction in that regard. Upon finding that there existed none, the apex court quashed the order of detention. The relevant portion of the judgment is extracted below:

"5.....From the affidavit of the District Magistrate it does not appear that either the prospect of immediate release of the detenu or other factors which can justify the detention of a person in detention were properly considered in the light of the principles noted in the aforesaid decision and especially in the decisions in Rameshwar Shaw v. District Magistrate, Burdwan and Ramesh Yadav v. District Magistrate, Etah, though there was a statement to the effect that the petitioner was in jail and was likely to be enlarged on bail. But on what consideration that opinion was expressed is not indicated especially in view of the fact that the detenu was detained in a murder charge in the background of the fact mentioned before. His application for bail could have been opposed on cogent materials before the court of justice.

6. In this case there were grounds for the passing of the detention order but after that the detenu has surrendered for whatever reasons, therefore the order of detention though justified when it was passed but at the time of the service of the order there was no proper consideration of the fact that the detenu was in custody or that there was any real danger of his release. Nor does it appear that before the service there was consideration of this aspect properly. In the facts and circumstances of this case, therefore, the continued detention of the detenu under the Act is not justified.

7. It is well settled in our constitutional framework that the power of directing preventive detention given to the appropriate authorities must be exercised in exceptional cases as contemplated by the various provisions of the different statutes dealing with preventive detention and should be used with great deal of circumspection. There must be awareness of the facts necessitating preventive custody of a person for social defence. If a man is in custody and there is no imminent possibility of his being released, the power of preventive detention should not be exercised. In the instant case when the actual order of detention was served upon the detenu, the detenu was in jail. There is no indication that this factor or the question that the said detenu might be released or that there was such a possibility of his release, was taken into consideration by the detaining authority properly and seriously before the service of the order. A bald statement is merely an ipse dixit of the officer. If there were cogent materials for thinking that the detenu might be released then these should have been made apparent. *Eternal vigilance on the part of the authority charged with both law and order and public order is the price which the democracy in this country extracts from the public officials in order to protect the fundamental freedoms of our citizens. I*n the affidavits on behalf of the detaining authority though there are indications that transfer of the detenu from one prison to another was considered but the need to serve the detention order while he was in custody was not properly considered by the detaining authority in the light of the relevant factors. At least the records of the case do not indicate that. If that is the position, then however disreputable the antecedents of a person might have been, without consideration of all the aforesaid relevant factors, the detenu could not have been put into preventive custody. Therefore, though the order of preventive detention when it was passed was not invalid and on relevant considerations, the service of the order was not on proper consideration.

17. In N. Meera Rani v. Govt. of T.N., (1989) 4 SCC 418 : 1989 SCC (Cri) 732, a three-judges Bench of the Apex Court in paragraphs 22 and 23 of the judgment, as reported, observed /held as follows:

"22. We may summarise and reiterate the settled principle. Subsisting custody of the detenu by itself does not invalidate an order of his preventive detention and the decision must depend on the facts of the particular case; preventive detention being necessary to prevent the detenu from acting in any manner prejudicial to the security of the State or to the maintenance of public order etc. ordinarily it is not needed when the detenu is already in custody; the detaining authority must show its awareness to the fact of subsisting custody of the detenu and take that factor into account while making the order; but, even so, if the detaining authority is reasonably satisfied on cogent material that there is likelihood of his release and in view of his antecedent activities which are proximate in point of time he must be detained in order to prevent him from indulging in such prejudicial activities, the detention order can be validly made even in anticipation to operate on his release. This appears to us, to be the correct legal position.

23. Applying the above settled principle to the facts of the present case we have no doubt that the detention order, in the present case, must be quashed for this reason alone. The detention order read with its annexure indicates the detaining authority's awareness of the fact of detenu's jail custody at the time of the making of the detention order. However, there is no indication therein that the detaining authority considered it likely that the detenu could be released on bail." (Emphasis Supplied)

18. In Kamarunnissa v. Union of India, (1991) 1 SCC 128 : 1991 SCC (Cri) 88, a two-judges Bench of the Apex Court, after going through the earlier decisions including the decision in Rameshwar Shaw's case (supra), observed and summarized the legal principles as follows:

"12. In Vijay Narain Singh this Court stated that the law of preventive detention being a drastic and hard law must be strictly construed and should not ordinarily be used for clipping the wings of an accused if criminal prosecution would suffice. So also in Ramesh Yadav v. District Magistrate, Etah this Court stated that ordinarily a detention order should not be passed merely on the ground that the detenu who was carrying on smuggling activities was likely to be enlarged on bail. In such cases the proper course would be to oppose the bail application and if granted, challenge the order in the higher forum but not circumvent it by passing an order of detention merely to supersede the bail order. In Suraj Pal Sahu v. State of Maharashtra the same principle was reiterated. In Binod Singh v. District Magistrate, Dhanbad it was held that if a person is in custody and there is no imminent possibility of his being released therefrom, the power of detention should not ordinarily be exercised. There must be cogent material before the officer passing the detention order for inferring that the detenu was likely to be released on bail. This inference must be drawn from material on record and must not be the ipse dixit of the officer passing the detention order. Eternal vigilance on the part of the authority charged with the duty of maintaining law and order and public order is the price which the democracy in this country extracts to protect the fundamental freedoms of the citizens. This Court, therefore, emphasized that before passing a detention order in respect of the person who is in jail the concerned authority must satisfy himself and that satisfaction must be reached on the basis of cogent material that there is a real possibility of the detenu being released on bail and further if released on bail the material on record reveals that he will indulge in prejudicial activity if not detained. That is why in Abdul Razak Abdul Wahab Sheikh v. S.N. Sinha, Commr. of Police this Court held that there must be awareness in the mind of the detaining authority that the detenu is in custody at the time of actual detention and that cogent and relevant material disclosed the necessity for making an order of detention. In that case the detention order was quashed on the ground of non-application of mind as it was found that the detaining authority was unaware that the detenu's application for being released on bail was rejected by the Designated Court. In N. Meera Rani

v. State of Tamil Nadu the case law was examined in extenso. This Court pointed out that the mere fact that the detenu was in custody was not sufficient to invalidate a detention order and the decision must depend on the facts of each case. Since the law of preventive detention was intended to prevent a detenu from acting in any manner considered prejudicial under the law, ordinarily it need not be resorted to if the detenu is in custody unless the detaining authority has reason to believe that the subsisting custody of the detenu may soon terminate by his being released on bail and having regard to his recent antecedents he is likely to indulge in similar prejudicial activity unless he is prevented from doing so by an appropriate order of preventive detention. In Shashi Aggarwal v. State of Uttar Pradesh it was emphasized that the possibility of the court granting bail is not sufficient nor is a bald statement that the detenu would repeat his criminal activities enough to pass an order of detention unless there is credible information and cogent reason apparent on the record that the detenu, if enlarged on bail, would act prejudicially. The same view was reiterated in Anand Prakash v. State of Uttar Pradesh and Dharmendra case. In Sanjay Kumar Aggarwal v. Union of India the detenu who was in jail was served with a detention order as it was apprehended that he would indulge in prejudicial activities on being released on bail. The contention that the bail application could be opposed, if granted, the same could be questioned in a higher forum, etc. was negatived on the ground that it was not the law that no order of detention could validly be passed against a person in custody under any circumstances.

13. From the catena of decisions referred to above it seems clear to us that even in the case of a person in custody a detention order can validly be passed (1) if the authority passing the order is aware of the fact that he is actually in custody; (2) if he has reason to believe on the basis of reliable material placed before him (a) that there is a real possibility of his being released on bail, and (b) that on being so released he would in all probability indulge in prejudicial activity and (3) if it is felt essential to detain him to prevent him from so doing. If the authority passes an order after recording his satisfaction in this behalf, such an order cannot be struck down on the ground that the proper course for the authority was to oppose the bail and if bail is granted notwithstanding such opposition, to question it before a higher court. What this Court stated in the case of Ramesh Yadav was that ordinarily a detention order should not be passed merely to pre-empt or circumvent enlargement on bail in cases which are essentially criminal in nature and can be dealt with under the ordinary law. It seems to us well settled that even in a case where a person is in custody, if the facts and circumstances of the case so demand, resort can be had to the law of preventive detention."

19. In Rekha v. State of T.N., (2011) 5 SCC 244 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 596, before a three-judges Bench of the Apex Court a question arose whether a preventive detention order can be lawfully passed against a person already in jail even if he had not applied for bail. While holding that, in certain circumstances, it can be passed, in paragraphs 8 to 11 of the judgment, the apex court observed / held as follows:

"8. It has been held in T.V. Sravanan v. State, A. Shanthi v. Govt. of T.N., Rajesh Gulati v. Govt. of NCT of Delhi, etc. that if no bail application was pending and the detenu was already, in fact, in jail in a criminal case, the detention order under the preventive detention law is illegal. These decisions appear to have followed the Constitution Bench decision in Haradhan Saha v. State of W.B. wherein it has been observed: (SCC p. 209, para 34):

"34. ... where the person concerned is actually in jail custody at the time when an order of detention is passed against him and is not likely to be released for a fair length of time, it may be possible to contend that there could be no satisfaction on the part of the detaining authority as to the likelihood of such a person indulging in activities which would jeopardise the security of the State or public order."

9. On the other hand, Mr Altaf Ahmed, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the State of Tamil Nadu, has relied on the judgments of this Court in A. Geetha v. State of T.N. and Ibrahim Nazeer v. State of T.N. wherein it has been held that even if no bail application of the petitioner is pending but if in similar cases bail has been granted, then this is a good ground for the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority to pass the detention order.

10. In our opinion, if details are given by the respondent authority about the alleged bail orders in similar cases mentioning the date of the orders, the bail application number, whether the bail order was passed in respect of the co-accused in the same case, and whether the case of the co-accused was on the same footing as the case of the petitioner, then, of course, it could be argued that there is likelihood of the accused being released on bail, because it is the normal practice of most courts that if a co-accused has been granted bail and his case is on the same footing as that of the petitioner, then the petitioner is ordinarily granted bail. However, the respondent authority should have given details about the alleged bail order in similar cases, which has not been done in the present case. A mere ipse dixit statement in the grounds of detention cannot sustain the detention order and has to be ignored.

11. In our opinion, the detention order in question only contains ipse dixit regarding the alleged imminent possibility of the accused coming out on bail and there was no reliable material to this effect. Hence, the detention order in question cannot be sustained."

20. In Champion R. Sangama Vs. State of Meghalay and another (2015) 16 SCC 253, the Apex Court, after following its decision in Kamarunnissa's case (supra), quashed the order of detention upon finding that the detenu was already in jail and the detaining authority had not recorded satisfaction that there was reliable material before the authority on the basis of which it would have reason to believe that there was real possibility of his release on bail. The relevant portion of the decision is found in paragraphs 14 and 15 of the judgment, as reported, and the same is extracted below:

"14. In the instant case, though the detention order and even the grounds of detention record the factum of the appellant's being in custody, no satisfaction has been recorded by the detaining authority that there was reliable material before the authority on the basis of which it would have reasons to believe that there was real possibility of his release on bail. It is not mentioned as to whether any bail application was even moved by the appellant or not, what to take out likely fate of such an application. The order is also conspicuously silent on the aspect as to whether there was any probability of indulging in activity if the appellant would be released on bail. On the contrary, we are amazed that the averments made in the counter-affidavit which are self-defeating and clinching the issue against the respondent at p. 171 Para 3 of the paper book which reads as under:

"3. I state that the submission of the learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner that the detaining authority was satisfied that there was some likelihood of the petitioner being released on bail and thereafter the detention order was passed to prevent such contingency is completely unfounded. In fact the detention order was passed on 29-1-2013 and from the detention order it no way reflects that with a view to pre-empt the petitioner from getting the bail in the pending 8 criminal cases that the detention order 2013 was passed. In fact after noticing the fact that the petitioner was arrested by the police in various unlawful activities and crimes like extortion, dacoity, kidnapping, murder and robbery with deadly weapons for ransom, for disruption of public order, etc. and being satisfied that if the petitioner is allowed to remain at large he would act in a manner prejudicial to the security of the State and shall be a constant threat to peace that the detention order was passed under Section 3(1) of the Meghalaya Preventive Detention Act, 1995."

15. We, thus, have no option but to hold that the detention order suffers from material illegality, thereby vitiating the same. This appeal is accordingly allowed, setting aside the impugned judgment of the High Court and quashing the detention order."

21. In the case of Union of India and Another v. Dimple Happy Dhakad (Criminal Appeal No.1064 of 2019, arising out of SLP (Cri) No.5459 of 2019, decided on 18th July, 2019, the detention under question was under the COFEPOSA Act and the detenu was already in jail in connection with an offence punishable under Section 135 of the Customs Act, 1962, for which the maximum sentence is seven years, in the context of the facts of that case, without disturbing the law already settled earlier, the Apex Court observed, in paragraph 35 of its judgment, that though in the detention orders, the detaining authority has not specifically recorded that the "detenu is likely to be released", it cannot be said that the detaining authority has not applied its mind. The Apex court in that case found that the detaining authority had noticed the antecedents of the detenues and recorded its satisfaction that detenues Happy Dhakad and Niyasar Aliyar have high propensity to commit such offences in future. The Apex Court observed in paragraph 36 of the judgment that the satisfaction of the detaining authority that the detenu is already in custody and he is likely to be released on bail and, on being released, he is likely to indulge in the same prejudicial activities is the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority and, when based on materials, is not to be interfered with. In that background, the Apex Court set aside the order of the High Court, which had quashed the detention order on the ground that the detaining authority had not expressly recorded a finding that there was real possibility of the detenues being released on bail.

22. After noticing all the above decisions, a Division Bench of this court in Habeas Corpus Petition No.437 of 2019 : Kumail v. State of U.P. & others, decided on 1.8.2019, summarized the legal position as under:

"A conspectus of the decisions of the apex court noticed above would show that the law is that even in the case of a person in custody a detention order can validly be passed (1) if the authority passing the order is aware of the fact that he is actually in custody; (2) if he has reason to believe on the basis of reliable material placed before him (a) that there is a real possibility of his being released on bail, and (b) that on being so released he would in all probability indulge in prejudicial activity and (3) if it is felt essential to detain him to prevent him from so doing. If the authority passes an order after recording his satisfaction in this behalf, such an order cannot be struck down on the ground that the proper course for the authority was to oppose the bail and if bail is granted notwithstanding such opposition, to question it before a higher court. The reason to believe that there is likelihood or real possibility of the person being released on bail must be based on cogent material and not mere ipse dixit of the authority. Such satisfaction can be drawn on the basis of reports of the sponsoring authority, the nature of the offence(s) in connection with which the detenu is in jail as also the facts and circumstances of that case including grant of bail to co-accused or general practice of courts in such matters. But once challenge is laid with regard to existence of such satisfaction, then the detaining authority in its return / affidavit must disclose existence of such satisfaction and the materials on the basis of which it has been drawn. However, if in the return it is demonstrated that satisfaction was drawn and there existed material to draw such satisfaction, the same cannot ordinarily be interfered with on the ground of insufficiency of material."

23. Thus, from the law noticed above, what is clear is that where a person is already in jail at the time of issuance of preventive detention order, the detaining authority must not only be aware that the person is already in jail but must, inter alia, have reason to believe on the basis of reliable material placed before it that there is a real possibility of his being released on bail. It necessarily follows that where a person is in jail in connection with many criminal cases, satisfaction that he is likely to be released on bail would have to be drawn by keeping in mind all those cases because how could one gain freedom by getting bail in one case when there are other cases also to detain him in jail. Hence, the detaining authority ought to be aware of all those cases, particularly those that relate to non-bailable offences, in connection with which the detenu is already in jail, at the time of passing/ issuance of the order of preventive detention. A fortiori, the sponsoring authority is under an obligation to provide information to the detaining authority of all those cases in connection with which the detenu is already in jail, particularly those which concern non-bailable offences, so that the detaining authority has all the material before it, at the time of passing/ issuance of detention order, to draw satisfaction whether an order of preventive detention is required or not.

24. In Ahamed Nassar v. State of T.N., (1999) 8 SCC 473, the apex court observed: "A man is to be detained in the prison based on the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority. Every conceivable material which is relevant and vital which may have a bearing on the issue should be placed before the detaining authority. The sponsoring authority should not keep it back, based on his interpretation that it would not be of any help to a prospective detenu. The decision is not to be made by the sponsoring authority. The law on this subject is well settled; a detention order vitiates if any relevant document is not placed before the detaining authority which reasonably could affect his decision."

25. In A. Sowkath Ali v. Union of India, (2000) 7 SCC 148, the apex court had observed: "This Court has time and again laid down that the sponsoring authority should place all the relevant documents before the detaining authority. It should not withhold any such document based on its own opinion. All documents, which are relevant, which have bearing on the issue, which are likely to affect the mind of the detaining authority should be placed before him. Of course a document which has no link with the issue cannot be construed as relevant."

26. From the law noticed above, it is clear that at the time of issuance of the detention order the sponsoring authority has to place before the detaining authority all those materials that are in its possession and are likely to affect the mind of the detaining authority whether to pass the order of detention. In absence whereof, the subjective satisfaction gets vitiated due to non-application of mind on relevant material.

27. In the instant case, we find from the return of the Jailor that the petitioner was under judicial custody in connection with six cases whereas, in the grounds of detention, awareness regarding detention has been shown with reference to three cases only. Moreover, from the report of the sponsoring authority also it does not appear that the detaining authority was informed that the petitioner was in jail in connection with three other cases also, as noticed above. It thus becomes clear that the information in respect of incarceration of the petitioner in three other cases was not placed before the detaining authority at the time of passing the order of detention. We may put on record that the three other cases with regard to which no awareness is shown by the detaining authority were case crime nos. 51 of 2019; 977 of 2015 (appears to be 2014 from the chart); and 50 of 2019. All these cases related to non-bailable offences. In case crime no.977 of 2014 one of the charging section was 307 IPC in which, ordinarily, bail is not for the asking. Therefore, in absence of awareness about incarceration of the petitioner in those cases also and non-disclosure of satisfaction that there is likelihood of the petitioner being released on bail in those cases also, one of the necessary conditions that must exist to enable exercise of power to detain a person already in jail, under preventive detention laws, is lacking, which, in our view, has vitiated the impugned order of detention inasmuch as it was possible that had the detaining authority been made aware that there were three more cases to prevent the petitioner from coming out of jail he might not have considered necessary to pass the order of detention. We, accordingly, accept the point (c) raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner to challenge the order of detention.

28. In respect to point (d) raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner to assail the detention order, we find that admittedly the petitioner was granted bail in case crime no.247 of 2018 by the time of issuance of the detention order. In paragraph 39 of the petition the petitioner has stated that neither the bail order nor copy of the bail application was placed before the detaining authority of which there is no specific denial in paragraph 28 of the counter affidavit which deals with paragraph 39 of the petition. Rather, in paragraph 28 of the counter affidavit, it is stated that since the bail application was filed by the petitioner himself therefore he is aware of its contents hence he suffered no prejudice by its non-supply to him. The said reply is neither here nor there as the petitioner had stated that the bail application and bail order, which was relevant material, was not placed before the detaining authority, but to evade a reply to the said statement an altogether different statement has been made. Thus, it can be assumed that copy of the bail application and bail order passed in reference to case crime no.247 of 2018 was not placed before the detaining authority.

29. Ordinarily, a bail application contains the defence of the applicant and when that gets allowed by the court, the bail application and the bail order assumes importance to demonstrate possibility of false implication. Sometimes, bail is conditional. Those conditions, at times, may be relevant as to whether, keeping in mind those conditions, a detention order is required. Hence, the apex court has held (vide M. Ahamedkutty v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCC 1; P.U. Abdul Rahiman v. Union of India, 1991 Supp (2) 274; Rushikesh Tanaji Bhoite v. State of Maharashtra, (2012) 2 SCC 72) that, ordinarily, a bail application and bail granting order, particularly, when it is a speaking order, concerning a non-bailable offence, is a relevant material which ought to be placed before the detaining authority before issuance of the order of detention and in absence whereof the satisfaction gets vitiated due to non-application of mind on relevant material.

30. As we have already found that there is no specific denial to the statement made in paragraph 39 of the writ petition that the bail application and the bail order of the petitioner in reference to case crime no.247 of 2018, which was relevant, was not placed before the detaining authority, in our considered view, on this ground also, the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority stood vitiated as it failed to take notice of the contents of the bail application and the bail order passed in favour of the petitioner pertaining to case crime no.247 of 2018.

31. Since we have already found that the impugned detention order got vitiated on account of withholding of relevant material / information from the detaining authority, we do not propose to examine the other two points urged by the learned counsel for the petitioner.

32. For the reasons recorded above, the habeas corpus petition is allowed. The impugned detention order dated 06.06.2019 and the subsequent order of confirmation and extension of the period of detention are hereby quashed. The petitioner shall be set at liberty forthwith unless wanted in any other case. There is no order as to costs.

A. Civil Law-UP Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 - Rule 15 (3) - Rent case- release application under Section 21(1) of the Act- decided within two months from the date of its presentation- expeditious disposal of rent cases is the statutory mandate- the defendant-tenant/petitioner is very affluent person- grossly abused the process of Court to delay the disposal of the P.A. Case filed by the poor landlord- contesting the case from last more than 35 years to get the disputed shop so as to carry on his business but on one pretext or the other the defendant-tenant/petitioner is not allowing the matter to be concluded-The appeal is being kept pending by moving successive applications-Frivolous and groundless filings constitute a serious menace to the administration of justice. They consume time and clog the infrastructure-duty of every court to firmly deal with such situations. The imposition of exemplary costs is a necessary instrument which has to be deployed to weed out, as well as to prevent the filing of frivolous cases.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Surya Prakash Kesarwani, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mohd. Sarwar Khan, learned counsel for the defendant-tenant/petitioner and Sri Dharmendra Kumar Dwivedi, learned counsel for the plaintiffs-landlords/respondents.

2. Briefly stated facts of the present case are that the plaintiff - Deepchand was the owner and landlord of house bearing Municipal No.246/1 (New No.276/1), Mohalla - Tartala, Pargana -

Haveli, District - Jaunpur. There is a shop in the said house in which one Ram Krishna Rokadia (original tenant) was a tenant at a monthly rent of Rs.10/-. After the death of the original tenant, the tenancy was succeeded by his three sons, namely, Purshottam, Ram Niwas and Sri Niwas. The aforesaid original owner and landlord filed a P.A. Case No.16 of 1984 for eviction of the defendant-tenant/petitioner on the ground of his bonafide need of the disputed shop for setting up business. It was stated in paragraph 5 of the Release Application dated 01.08.1984, that the plaintiff No.1 is intermediate pass and trained in electronics and want to do his business, plaintiff nos. 2 and 4 are Karigar (Artisan) of sweetmeat but due to non availability of a shop they are unemployed and plaintiff no.3 is carrying on tea stall on Chabutara (raised platform) of Arya Samaj Mandir. The plaintiff gave details of huge immovable properties and houses owned by the defendant-tenant in Jaunpur City and Malegaon in Nasik. They stated that the defendant no.3 - Sri Niwas is a Government Servant employed as Entertainment Inspector. It has also been stated that the defendants owned a big house at the main road, Mandi Naseeb Khan, Jaunpur, measuring 90 feet x 25 feet in which about 50 shops have been constructed. Thus, briefly on these facts the plaintiffs-landlords/respondents filed the aforesaid P.A. Case No.16 of 1984, under Section 21(1) of the U.P. Act XIII of 1972, which was allowed by the Prescribed Authority by judgment dated 28.07.1986, against which the defendant-tenant/petitioner filed a Rent Appeal No.16 of 1986 which was allowed by judgment and order dated 06.12.2005 and the matter was remanded to the Prescribed Authority. The order of remand was challenged by the plaintiffs in Writ - A No.14687 of 2006, which was dismissed by this Court by Order dated 02.01.2013. During remand proceedings before the Prescribed Authority, the defendant-tenant moved successive applications. One such application was moved for issue of Commission which was ultimately allowed by this Court by order dated 01.10.2015 in Writ Petition No.56071 of 2015 and the Commission submitted his report dated 21.11.2015. In the mean time on 29.07.2015, the defendant-tenant filed an additional written submissions making averment that the Gumti (Kiosk) kept on Chabutara of Arya Samaj for carrying out tea stall by the plaintiff, has been converted in Pakka construction.

3. Thereafter on 20.12.2016, the defendant-tenant/petitioner filed an application 380 Ga and also an application 384 Ga for issue of Commission which were rejected by order dated 05.01.2017, passed by the Prescribed Authority/Civil Judge (S.D.), Jaunpur. In the said order the Prescribed Authority observed that earlier a Commission was issued in the year 1985 which submitted its report being paper No.91 Ga and 92 Ga that the plaintiff has kept a Gumti over the Arya Samaj Mandir land/Chabutara to carry on tea stall. The Prescribed Authority also observed about the conduct of the defendant-tenant as under:-

" मुकदमा 33 वर्षो से लम्बित है और विपक्षी कोई न कोई प्रार्थना–पत्र देकर मुकदमें को विलम्बित करता चला आ रहा है। विपक्षी का प्रार्थना–पत्र मैलाफाइडी है और पोषणीय नही है। ----------

प्रार्थना–पत्र 380ग और 384ग दोनों ही प्रार्थना–पत्र विपक्षी पक्ष की ओर से वाद को लम्बित रखने की मंशा से प्रस्तुत किया जाना दर्शित होता है और पत्रावली के सम्यकरूपेण परिशीलन से विपक्षी पक्ष का जो आचरण दर्शित होता है, वह यह दर्शित होता है कि पूर्व में भी विपक्षी पक्ष का आचरण येन–केन–प्रकारेण वाद को विलम्बित रखने का रहा है। विपक्षी पक्ष न केवल वाद के विचारण को इस न्यायालय के समक्ष विलम्बित कर रहा है, बल्कि माननीय उच्च न्यायालय की मंशा को भी विफल करना चाहता है और जिसे स्वीकार नहीं किया जा सकता है। उपरोक्त परिस्थितियों में प्रार्थना–पत्र 380ग एवं 384ग निरस्त होने योग्य है ही परन्तु उक्त दोनो प्रार्थना–पत्र भारी हर्जाने के साथ निरस्त होने योग्य है ताकि इस प्रकिया को हतोत्साहित किया जा सके कि आशयपूर्वक कोई भी पक्षकार वाद को विलम्बित न करें और न ही माननीय उच्च न्यायालय की मंशा को विलम्बित करने का प्रयास कर सके।''

4. Against the aforesaid order of the Prescribed Authority, dated 05.01.2017, rejecting the application 380 Ga and 384 Ga, the defendant-tenant/petitioner - Sri Kant filed Writ - A No.2381 of 2017 and the writ petition was disposed of observing that there is no good reason to entertain it. However, it was left open to the petitioner to challenge the correctness of the order and raise appropriate pleading before the appellate court in the event the Prescribed Authority takes a decision against the tenant-petitioner. Thereafter, the aforesaid P.A. Case No.16 of 1984 was allowed by judgment and order dated 03.04.2017, passed by the Prescribed Authority/Civil Judge (S.D.), Jaunpur, and the disputed shop was released. A finding of fact was also recorded that the tea stall being carried on over the Chabutara of Arya Samaj Mandir is temporary and it is not owned by the plaintiff and Plaintiff's bonafide need for the disputed shop and comparative hardship to be in his favour was found proved.

5. Aggrieved with the judgment and order of the Prescribed Authority dated 03.04.2017, the defendant-tenant/petitioner Sri Kant filed a Rent Control Appeal No. 1 of 2017 (Sri Kant and others Vs. Mool Chand and Others).

6. In the said appeal, the defendant-tenant/petitioner again started moving successive applications. He moved application 46 Ga for the same purpose for which he earlier moved an application 380 Ga and 384 Ga which were rejected by the Prescribed Authority by order dated 05.01.2017 and the Writ - A No.2381 of 2017, challenging it was disposed of by order dated 18.01.2017 as aforementioned. The application 46 Ga has been rejected by order dated 20.04.2019, passed by the 4th Additional District Judge, Jaunpur. Against this order the defendant-tenant/petitioner moved a recall application 55 Ga which has been rejected by the impugned order dated 09.07.2019.

7. Aggrieved with these two orders, namely, the orders dated 20.4.2019 and 09.07.2019, the defendant-tenant/petitioner has filed the present writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

8. Despite insistence learned counsel for the tenant-petitioner has not made any submission except that the matter may be considered leniently.

9. Learned counsel for the plaintiffs-landlords/respondents supports the impugned orders.

10. I have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsels for the parties.

11. Rule 15 (3) of the UP Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972, provides that every release application under Section 21(1) of the Act shall as far as possible be decided within two months from the date of its presentation. Thus, expeditious disposal of rent cases is the statutory mandate.

12. I have very briefly noted facts of the present case which leaves no manner of doubt that the defendant-tenant/petitioner is very affluent person. He has grossly abused the process of Court to delay the disposal of the P.A. Case filed by the poor landlord. The poor landlord is contesting the case from last more than 35 years to get the disputed shop so as to carry on his business but on one pretext or the other the defendant-tenant/petitioner is not allowing the matter to be concluded. The appeal is being kept pending by moving successive applications. Liberty was granted to the defendant-tenant/petitioner by this Court by order dated 18.01.2017 in Writ A No.2381 of 2017 to challenge the correctness of the order dated 05.01.2017 in appeal if the Prescribed Authority takes decision against him but instead of arguing the appeal on merits the defendant-tenant/petitioner continued with his design to move successive applications to delay disposal of the Appeal. He moved application 46 Ga for the same purpose for which he earlier moved application 380 Ga and 384 Ga which were rejected on merit.

13. Deliberately, the defendant-tenant/petitioner has not filed copy of the judgment and order dated 03.04.2017, passed by the Civil Judge (S.D.)/Prescribed Authority, Jaunpur, deciding the P.A. Case No.16 of 1984. However, on being asked a photo stat copy of it has been produced by the learned counsel for the defendant-tenant/petitioner.

14. In the impugned order, the appellate court has recorded cogent reasons for rejecting the application 46 Ga. Therefore, the impugned order dated 20.04.2019 requires no interference. Since the order dated 20.04.2019 was passed on merit, therefore, the recall application 55 Ga was lawfully rejected by the Appellate Court by the impugned order dated 09.07.2019.

15. Apart from above, It is settled law that local inspection or Commission by court is made only in those cases where on the evidence led by the parties, Court is not able to arrive at a just conclusion either way or where the court feels that there is some ambiguity in the evidence which can be clarified by making local inspection or Commission. Local inspection or issue of Commission by the court cannot be claimed as of right by any party. Such inspections are made to appreciate the evidence already on record and Court is not expected to visit the site for collecting evidence.

16. In the case of Avinash Chandra Tiwari Vs. ADJ 2010(2) ARC 84 the Lucknow bench of this court referred to several decisions on the question of issue of commission and held as under:

"11. To go for local inspection or issue of commission for the proper disposal of the controversy pending is a sole prograative of the Court to decide whether to move the same or not. Hence, it is late in a day to quarrel that it is not mandatory on the part of the Court to issue commission. When an application is moved for the said purpose. The local inspection or commission by court is made only in those cases where on the evidence led by the parties, Court is not able to arrive at a just conclusion either way or where the court feels that there is some ambiguity in the evidence which can be clarified by making local inspection or commission. Local inspection or issue a commission by the court cannot be claimed as of right by any party. Such inspections are made to appreciate the evidence already on record and Court is not expected to visit the site for collecting evidence. (See Randhir Singh Sheoran Vs. 6th Additional District Judge, 1997(2) JCLR 860 and Radhey Shyam Vs. A.D.J., Court no. 13, Lucknow and others, [2010(2) A.D.J., 758].

12. Further, in the present case as stated herein above, the opposite party no. 1 on the basis of the material facts on record given a categorical finding that at this stage, it is not necessary to issue commission, accordingly, rejected the application for issue of the Advocate/Commissioner, moved by the petitioner. Further the court below held that if the application for issue of commission is allowed the same will linger the matter unnecessary, as appeal is pending since the year 2006. The said view taken by the opposite party no. 1 is in accordance with law as laid down by this Court in the case of Sonpal Vs. 4th Additional District Judge, Aligarh and others, 1992 2 ARC, 596.

13. In the case of Smt. Shamshun Nisha Vs. Ist Additional District Judge, Lucknow and others 1992, (1) ARC page 423, it is held as under :

"By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner challenges the order, dated 13.05.1991, passed by Ist Additional District Judge, Lucknow, contained in Annexure No. 6 by which the petitioner's request for local inspection was rejected by the appellate Court. The appellate Court pointed out that the petitioner had been given sufficient opportunity to rebut the evidence of the expert. However, the fact is not disputed that the appeal is still pending and in appeal only an application for local inspection of the site by the Advocate Commissioner has been rejected. Therefore, in my opinion, the said order cannot be challenged in the writ petition."

14. So far as, the judgment which is relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner, the M/s Harihar Sugandh (p) Ltd, Anandi Das Kannauj through it's M.D. Vs. Add. Civil Judge (Senior Division), Court no. 3, Kanpur Nagar [2004(57) ALR 224], (435) Special Duty Collector LA.(Supra) and Radheshyam Rastogi (supra) are not applicable in view of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the instant case.

15. Further in the case of Anandi Das Kannauj through it's M.D. Vs. Add. Civil Judge (Senior Division), Court no. 3, Kanpur Nagar [2004(57) ALR 224], it was held that if an application for issue a commission is rejected then, the same can not be res-judicata for moving another application for issue of the commission for collection of evidence, and in the case of Okhla Enclave Plot holder Welfare Association Vs. Union of India and Others(2009 LAR 51(SC) the Hon'ble Supreme Court after hearing and examining issues involved in the present case deemed fit to direct appointment of Commissioner, however, in the present case the court below on the basis of the material evidence on record, come to the conclusion that there was no necessity for issue of the commission so the petitioner cannot derive any benefit form the above said judgments.

16. Accordingly, as it is a sole domain of the Court to issue a commission or not and the local inspection or commission can not be claimed as a matter of right by a party, so there is neither any illegality nor infirmity in the order under challenge.

17. For the foregoing reason, the present writ petition filed by the petitioner lacks merit and is dismissed."

17. The principles aforementioned are also supported by the law laid down by this Court in Mohd. Ali Vs. Prescribed Authority, Moradabad and others, Writ - A No. 31854 of 2017 decided on 29.08.2017 and in M/s. Gujrati Namkeen Bhandar Vs. Ratan Lal Gupta & 3 Ors (Matters Under Article 227 No. 5625 of 2017) decided on 12.09.2017.

18. Thus, for all the reasons aforestated, I find that the present writ petition is a frivolous petition which has been filed to delay disposal of the Rent Control Appeal No.1 of 2017 arising from the P.A. Case No.16 of 1984. The prescribed Authority has also observed in the order dated 05.01.2017 (relevant portion quoted in para 3 above) about the conduct of the tenant petitioner regarding abuse of process of court.

19. In the case of Dnyandeo Sabaji Naik and another Vs. Pradnya Prakash Khadekar and others 2017(5) SCC 496 (paras 12,13 & 14) Hon'ble Supreme Court commended all courts to deal strongly with frivolous petition. The judgement in the case of Dnyandeo Sabaji Naik (supra) has been followed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the Case of Haryana State Cooperative Labour and Construction Federation Limited Vs. Unique Cooperative Labour and Construction Cooperative Society Limited and another, (2018)14 SCC 248.

20. In the case of Dnyandeo Sabaji Naik (supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court held that "Court must view with disfavour any attempt by a litigant to abuse the process. The sanctity of the judicial process will be seriously eroded if such attempts are not dealt with firmly. A litigant who takes liberties with the truth or with the procedures of the Court should be left in no doubt about the consequences to follow. Others should not venture along the same path in the hope or on a misplaced expectation of judicial leniency. Exemplary costs are inevitable, and even necessary, in order to ensure that in litigation, as in the law which is practised in our country, there is no premium on the truth. Courts across the legal system - this Court not being an exception - are choked with litigation. Frivolous and groundless filings constitute a serious menace to the administration of justice. They consume time and clog the infrastructure. Productive resources which should be deployed in the handling of genuine causes are dissipated in attending to cases filed only to benefit from delay, by prolonging dead issues and pursuing worthless causes. No litigant can have a vested interest in delay. Unfortunately, as the present case exemplifies, the process of dispensing justice is misused by the unscrupulous to the detriment of the legitimate. The present case is an illustration of how a simple issue has occupied the time of the courts and of how successive applications have been filed to prolong the inevitable. The person in whose favour the balance of justice lies has in the process been left in the lurch by repeated attempts to revive a stale issue. This tendency can be curbed only if courts across the system adopt an institutional approach which penalizes such behaviour. Liberal access to justice does not mean access to chaos and indiscipline. A strong message must be conveyed that courts of justice will not be allowed to be disrupted by litigative strategies designed to profit from the delays of the law. Unless remedial action is taken by all courts here and now our society will breed a legal culture based on evasion instead of abidance. It is the duty of every court to firmly deal with such situations. The imposition of exemplary costs is a necessary instrument which has to be deployed to weed out, as well as to prevent the filing of frivolous cases. It is only then that the courts can set apart time to resolve genuine causes and answer the concerns of those who are in need of justice. Imposition of real time costs is also necessary to ensure that access to courts is available to citizens with genuine grievances. Otherwise, the doors would be shut to legitimate causes simply by the weight of undeserving cases which flood the system. Such a situation cannot be allowed to come to pass. Hence it is not merely a matter of discretion but a duty and obligation cast upon all courts to ensure that the legal system is not exploited by those who use the forms of the law to defeat or delay justice".

21. Hon'ble Supreme Court commended all courts to deal frivolous filings in the same manner. The law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Dnyandeo Sabaji Naik (supra), is a binding precedent under Article 141 of the Constitution of India. The subordinate courts are also bound to deal frivolous petitions and abuse of process of Court in the manner as has been commended by Hon'ble Supreme Court as aforesaid.

22. For all the reasons aforestated, I do not find any merit in this writ petition. Consequently, the writ petition fails and is hereby dismissed with exemplary cost of Rs.50,000/- for blatant abuse of process of Court by defendant-tenant/petitioner to delay the disposal of the appeal and for filing frivolous petition. The cost shall be deposited by the defendant-petitioner with the court below within two months from today and on deposit it may be withdrawn by the plaintiffs.

23. It is further provided that the appellate court shall decide the aforesaid Rent Control Appeal No. 1 of 2017, in accordance with law, without being influenced by any of the observations made in the body of this order; within three months from the date of presentation of a certified copy of this order without granting any unnecessary adjournment to either of the parties.

Order on Writ Petition

FACTS OF THE CASE

4- Briefly stated facts of the present case are that the original plaintiff Kishan Chandra was the owner and landlord of the disputed house situate in Qasba Jalesar District Etah, measuring 14' x 38". In the said house, the entire ground floor portion, except a shop measuring 3' 9" x 10' 3", was occupied by the father of the petitioner, namely, Sri Prem Chandra as tenant at a monthly rent of Rs.20/-. The aforesaid` other shop measuring 3' 9"x10' 3" was occupied by another tenant Sri Girraj Kishore.

5- The original plaintiff Kishan Chandra was carrying on his business of cloth from a tenant shop which was owned by one Sri Hari Om, who filed a release application under Section 21 of the U.P. Act XIII of 1972 being Case No.47 of 1983, which was decreed and the appeal filed by the original plaintiff/petitioner was dismissed and the shop has been vacated by the plaintiff. Thus, the petitioner was in the need of a shop to start his business.

6- The original tenant Prem Chandra died and the tenancy of the disputed shop was succeeded by his sons, namely, Padam Chandra Jain, Subhash Chandra Jain, Dinesh Chandra Jain, one daughter Smt. Shailesh Jain and the widow Smt. Prabhawati Devi.

7- On the ground of bonafide need of the disputed shop for his business and also for employment of his sons, the original plaintiff/petitioner filed P.A. Case No.02 of 1994 (Kishan Chandra Jain v. Padam Chandra Jain and others), which was decreed after about 20 years by judgment dated 23.2.2006, passed by the Prescribed Authority/Civil Judge (Junior Division), Etah and the disputed shop was directed to be vacated.

8- Against the aforesaid judgment dated 22.3.2006 one of the defendant-tenant/respondent no.1 filed Rent Control Appeal No.02 of 2006 (Dinesh Chandra v. Kishan Chandra and others), which was conditionally allowed by the impugned judgment dated 23.8.2014, passed by the District Judge, Etah directing as under :

"यह रेन्ट कन्ट्रोल अपील अंशतः सशर्त स्वीकार की जाती है तथा विद्वान नियत प्राधिकारी/सिविल जज (जुनियर डिवीजन), एटा द्वारा पारित आदेश दिनांकित 23-02-2006 अंशतः इस प्रकार संशोधित किया जाता है कि भवन स्वामी/प्रत्यर्थी, अपीलार्थी/किरायेदार को विकल्प में रामगोपाल की किरायेदारी वाली दुकान जिस पर चार मंजिल दुकान की इमारत बनी है अथवा अपनी पत्नी व अपने पुत्र प्रदीप के स्वामित्व वाली दुकान जिसमें चार मंजिल भवन बन रहा और उसमें दो मंजिल पूर्ण हो चुकी है, में से कोई एक दुकान भूतल पर अपीलार्थी/किरायेदार को मार्केट रेट के किराये पर दो माह के अन्दर उपलब्ध करा दे तो अपीलार्थी/किरायेदार प्रश्नगत दुकान को रिक्त करके उसका कब्जा भवन स्वामी/प्रत्यर्थी को दे दे। यदि भवन स्वामी इस विकल्प को स्वीकार नहीं करता है तो यह अपील स्वीकार समझी जायेगी।"

9- Aggrieved with the aforesaid impugned judgment, the original plaintiff/landlord has filed the present writ petition.

10- During pendency of the petition, the original plaintiff Kishan Chandra died on 08.01.2019, leaving behind his widow Vijay Lakshmi, four sons, namely, Pradeep Kumar, Sanjay Kumar, Mukesh Kumar and Rajnedra Kumar and five daughters, namely, Km. Rajni, Km. Alta, Km. Pinki, Km.Bobby and Rupesh Kumari who have been substituted.

11- The P.A. Case No.47 of 1983 filed by the original plaintiff for release of the small shop in occupation of the tenant Giriraj Kishore was allowed by the Prescribed Authority. The tenant Girraj Kishore brought the matter up to this Court by filing Writ-A No.49335 of 2014 (Girraj Kishore v. Kishen Chandra) which was dismissed by this Court by order dated 15.9.2014 holding as under:

"Heard Sri A.K. Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner. Sri P.K. Jain, Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Rishi Kant Singh, learned counsel has appeared for the respondent.

The petitioner has filed this writ petition challenging the judgments and orders of the courts below allowing the release application of the respondent under Section 21(1)(a) of the U.P. Act No.13 of 1972 (hereinafter referred to as the Act) whereby the shop in dispute has been ordered to be released in favour of the respondent after holding his need to be bona fide and that he would suffer comparatively more hardship than the petitioner.

The submission of Sri A.K. Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner is that there are two shops. One bigger and the other smaller which is in dispute. The respondent had applied for the release of both the shops. The release application in respect of both of them have been allowed but the appellate court while allowing the release application in respect of the bigger shop has issued direction that the respondent will provide the tenant of the said shop with an alternative accommodation elsewhere on the prevailing market rent whereas no such direction while releasing the smaller shop in dispute has been given though both the judgments are identical and similarly worded.

In allowing the release application under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act it is not incumbent upon the court to direct for providing any alternative accommodation to the tenant. No provision of law has been shown where the tenant can get an alternative accommodation in the event the application of the landlord for the release of the shop has been allowed under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act.

The argument that direction to this effect has been given in favour of the tenant of the bigger shop is of no substance. First for the reason that there is no provision to such an effect. Secondly, the case of the petitioner is different from that of the tenant of the other shop. The petitioner is found to be having an alternative accommodation where he can shift his business. Therefore, it was not considered proper and necessary to issue any direction for providing some alternative accommodation to him.

Sri A.K. Gupta has argued that the appellate court in recording the above finding has not considered the affidavit of the petitioner which was before the prescribed authority that he has no alternative shop with him.

The prescribed authority in its judgment on consideration of the entire evidence has recorded a finding that the petitioner is in possession of a one another shop apart from the shop in dispute which is on rent and that he is having two residential houses which are big enough with sufficient rooms vacant and as such has accommodation available with him to easily shift his business.

In view of above finding of the prescribed authority, it is clear that the petitioner is having an alternative accommodation and therefore, it was not necessary for the appellate court to have issued any direction for providing any additional alternative accommodation to the petitioner.

Sri Gupta, in the end prayed for some reasonable time to vacate the shop in dispute.

Sri Jain, though opposes the prayer but leaves it upon the discretion of the court to grant some reasonable and suitable time if necessary.

In view of above, four months from today is allowed to the petitioner to vacate the shop in dispute provided an undertaking on affidavit is given before the prescribed authority within a period of one month that the petitioner would vacate and handover peaceful possession of the shop in dispute within time allowed as above and at the same time pays all the upto date dues.

Accordingly, the writ petition has no merit and is dismissed with the above condition. "

(Emphasis supplied by me)

SUBMISSIONS-

12- Sri P.K. Jain, learned counsel for the plaintiff-landlord/petitioner submits that during pendency of the release application, the sons of the original plaintiff, namely, Rajendra Kumar and Pradeep Kumar purchased some accommodation in which they raised certain constructions and are occupying those premises for their self use. The original plaintiff was the owner of half portion of the shop under tenancy of Sri Ram Gopal, which was a very small shop measuring 5' x 9' 8" as has also been stated in paragraph-4 and 24 of the writ petition which has not been specifically denied by the defendant-tenant/respondent in paragraph nos. 4 and 16 of the counter affidavit. After the said shop was subsequently vacated by the tenant Ram Gopal, the original plaintiff's son Rajendra Kumar is carrying on business in it after reconstruction. In the inner side of the said shop a stair case has been made to go on the upper floor as reflected in the photographs also. There is no separate passage for the upper floor. That apart, now there are ten co-owners and landlords of the shop vacated by Sri Ram Gopal. Thus, the appellate court has wrongly directed to provide an alternative accommodation to the defendant-tenant/landlord-respondent no.1 either in the building (Ram Gopal's shop) or in the building owned by Pradeep Kumar or Rajendra Kumar. The lower court has not recorded any finding to reject the bonafide need of the plaintiff. There is no provision under the Rent Control Act, which empowers the court to issue such a direction as given in the impugned judgment. Such a direction is in conflict with law laid down by this Court in Girraj Kishore's case (supra). Except a very small portion, the entire ground floor portion has been occupied by the defendant-tenant/respondent no.1, while the plaintiff was having no place for his business. He, therefore, submits that the impugned judgment of the appellate court deserves to be set aside and the judgment of the trial court deserves to be restored.

13- Sri Swapnil Kumar, learned counsel for the defendant-tenant/respondent no.1 submits that only the defendant-tenant/respondent no.1 is occupying the disputed shop. The other defendant-tenant/respondent nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 are not carrying on the business from the disputed shop. Bonafide need of the original plaintiff came to an end on account of his death on 08.01.2019. The original plaintiff and his two sons have several accommodation and, therefore, the appellate court has rightly directed that the disputed shop be released subject to the condition that the plaintiff may provide an alternative accommodation to the defendant-tenant/respondent no.1. The plaintiffs have constructed four storied building on the accommodation vacated by the tenant Ram Gopal and, therefore, the court below rightly directed for providing a shop to the defendant-tenant/respondent in the aforesaid four storied building.

14- The small shop of the tenant Girraj Kishore, adjoining the disputed shop has also been vacated. Therefore, there is no need of the plaintiff for the disputed shop. The sons and daughters of the original plaintiff have become the co-owner and landlord of the disputed shop. Thus, since, the sons themselves have become the owner and landlords of the disputed shop, therefore, the need of the original plaintiff cannot be looked into.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS-

15- I have carefully considered the submissions of the learned counsel for the parties.

16- There is no dispute of landlord-tenant relationship between the plaintiff-petitioner and the defendants-respondents. There is also no dispute that the original plaintiff/petitioner was carrying on business in a rented shop which was got vacated by its owner and landlord and, therefore, he was in bonafide need of the disputed shop to carry on his business.

Reg. Building of Ram Gopal's Shop

17- The original plaintiff owned the disputed shop and half portion in the shop under tenancy of one Ram Gopal. The other half portion of the shop of Ram Gopal was subsequently, purchased by the eldest son of the original plaintiff, namely, Rajendra Kumar. Thus, Rajendra Kumar and the original plaintiff became co-onwer of the disputed shop which is a four storied building admittedly measuring 5' 9" x 18' and from inside the shop on the ground floor a stair case has been made for approach to the upper floor. This shop being very small having no separate access and partly owned by the aforesaid Rejendra Kumar, who is carrying on business from it, could not have been directed by the court below for providing a portion in it to the defendant-tenant/petitioner as an alternative accommodation for vacating the disputed shop of the plaintiff Kishan Chandra.

Reg. Building owned by the plaintiff's son Pradeep Kumar

18- So for as the other building owned by the other son of the plaintiff, namely, Sri Pradeep Kumar is concerned, it has not been disputed before me that Sri Pradeep Kumar is carrying on his business from it. He is co-owner. The other co-owner is the wife of the original plaintiff. Therefore, there was also no occasion for the court below to issue direction for providing a shop in the accommodation owned by Sri Pradeep Kumar.

Bonafide Need

19- It could not be established by the defendant-tenant/respondent no.1 that the plaintiff was having no bonafide need for the disputed shop. The release application was filed by the plaintiff for his bonafide need for starting cloth business and also for the employment of his sons. Finding of fact has been recorded by the Prescribed Authority that the plaintiff is in bonafide need of the disputed shop. This finding of fact has not been set aside by the appellate court by the impugned judgment in Rent Control Appeal No.02 of 2006. Therefore, findings of fact recorded by the Prescribed Authority in P.A. Case No.02 of 1994 on the point of bonafide need, requires no interference and is upheld.

Crucial date for bonafide need in an application for release and effect of subsequent event of death of landlord.

20- The submission in this regard made by the learned coiunsel for the tenant-respondent, has no substance. In the case of Kamleshwar Prasad v. Pradumanju Agarwal (Dead) by LRs., (1997) 4 SCC 413 (Paragraph No.3), Hon'ble Supreme Court laid down the law that the fact that the landlord needed premises in question for starting a business in the eye of law must be the day of application for eviction which is the crucial date when the tenant incurred the liability of being evicted from the premises. Even if the landlord died during pendency of the writ petition in the High Court, the bonafide need cannot be said to have lapsed as the business in question can be carried on by his widow or any other son.

21- In Phul Rani & Ors. vs Naubat Rai Ahluwalia, 1973(1) SCC 688, a two Judges Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court framed three questions. While answering one of the questions, it held that the requirement of the occupation of the other members of the family of the original landlord was his personal requirement and ceased to be the requirement of the members of his family on his death. The law so laid down in Phul Rani's case (supra), was over ruled by a larger bench in Shantilal Thakordas & Ors vs Chimanlal Maganlal Telwala 1976 (4) SCC 417. The Larger Bench in Shantilal Thakordas & Ors. (supra) held as under:

"If the law permitted the eviction of the tenant for the requirements of the landlord "for occupation as a residence for himself and members of his family" then the requirement was both of the landlord and the members of his family. On his death, the right to ' sue did survive to the members of the family of the deceased landlord. We are unable to take the view that the requirement of the occupation of the members of the family of the original landlord was his requirement and ceased to be the requirement of the members of his family on his death."

22- In Shakuntala Bai and others v. Narayan Das and others, (2004) 5 SCC 772 (Paragraph Nos. 10.1 and 11), Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"10.1 With regard to this category of cases it was held that the estate is entitled to the benefit which, under a decree, has accrued in favour of the plaintiff and, therefore, the legal representatives are entitled to defend further proceedings, like an appeal, which constitute a challenge to that benefit. Even otherwise, this appears to be quite logical. In normal circumstances after passing of the decree by the trial Court, the original landlord would have got possession of the premises. But if he does not and the tenant continues to remain in occupation of the premises it can only be on account of the stay order passed by the appellate Court. In such a situation, the well known maxim "actus curiae neminem gravabit" that "an act of the Court shall prejudice no man" shall come into operation. Therefore, the heirs of the landlord will be fully entitled to defend the appeal preferred by the tenant and claim possession of the premises on the cause of action which had been originally pleaded and on the basis whereof the lower Court had decided the matter and had passed the decree for eviction. However in regard to the case before the court it was held that the requirement pleaded in the ejectment application on which the plaintiff founded his right to relief was his personal requirement and such a personal cause of action must perish with the plaintiff. On this ground it was held that the plaintiff's right to sue will not survive to his heirs and they cannot take the benefit of the original right to sue.

11. In Shantilal Thakordas v. Chimanlal Maganlal Telwala (1976) 4 SCC 417, a larger Bench overruled the decision rendered in Phool Rani v. Naubat Rai Ahluwalia insofar it held that the requirement of the occupation of the members of the family of the original landlord was his personal requirement and ceased to be the requirement of the members of his family on his death. The Court took the view that after the death of the original landlord the senior member of his family takes his place and is well competent to continue the suit for eviction for his occupation and occupation of the other members of the family. Thus, this decision held that the substituted heirs of the deceased landlord were entitled to maintain the suit for eviction of the tenant. The ratio of this decision by a larger Bench does not in any manner affect the view expressed in Phool Rani (1973)1 SCC 688 that where the death of the landlord occurs after a decree for possession has been passed in his favour, his legal representatives are entitled to defend further proceedings like an appeal and the benefit accrued to them under the decree. In fact, the ratio of Shantilal Thakordas (1976)45 417 would reinforce the aforesaid view. There are several decisions of this Court on the same line. In Kamleshwar Prasad v. Pradumanju Agarwal 1997(4) SCC 413 it was held that the need of the landlord for premises in question must exist on the date of application for eviction, which is the crucial date and it is on the said date the tenant incurred the liability of being evicted therefrom. Even if the landlord died during the pendency of the writ petition in the High Court, the bona fide need cannot be said to have lapsed as the business in question can be carried on by his widow or any other son. In Gaya Prasad v. Pradeep Srivastava (2001) 2 SCC 604 it was held that the crucial date for deciding as to the bonafides of requirement of landlord is the date of his application for eviction. Here the landlord had instituted eviction proceedings for the bona fide requirement of his son who wanted to start a clinic. The litigation continued for a long period and during this period the son joined Provincial Medical Service and was posted at different places. The subsequent event i.e. the joining of the service by the son was not taken into consideration on the ground that the crucial date was the date of filing of the eviction petition. Similar view has been taken in G.C. Kapoor v. Nand Kumar Bhasin (2002)1 SCC 610. Therefore, the legal position is well settled that the bona fide need of the landlord has to be examined as on the date of institution of proceedings and if a decree for eviction is passed, the death of the landlord during the pendency of the appeal preferred by the tenant will make no difference as his heirs are fully entitled to defend the estate."

23- Thus, in view of the decision made above and respectfully following the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the judgments referred above, I hold that the legal position is well settled that the bonafide need of the landlord has to be examined as on the date of institution of proceedings and if a decree of eviction is passed, the death of the landlord during the pendency of the appeal or writ petition or a petition under Article 227 preferred by the tenant will make no difference. The heirs of the landlord will be fully entitled to claim possession of the premises on the cause of action which had been originally pleaded and on the basis whereof the lower court had decided the matter and had passed the decree for eviction. Death of the landlord during the pendency of the petition before this Court, would not mean that the bonafide need has lapsed, as the business in question can be carried on by his widow or any other son. Landlord's death will not make any difference as his heirs are fully entitled to defend the estate. If the subsequent event like the death of landlord is to be taken note of at every stage till the decree attains finality, there will be no end to litigation.

24- In the present set of facts the P.A. Case No.02 of 1994 was instituted by the landlord-petitioner and after about 20 years it was decreed by the Prescribed Authority/Civil Judge (Junior Division), Etah by judgment dated 23.2.2006. However, due to pendency of Rent Appeal No.02 of 2006 filed by the tenant-respondent, the decree could not be instituted and the tenant could not be evicted. Eight years were exhausted to decide the appeal and now from five years the present petition is pending before this Court and ultimately, the landlord died recently on 8.1.2019. The tenant continued in occupation of the disputed premises because of some interim order in the appeal. In such a situation the well known maxim "actus curiae neminem gravabit" that "an act of the Court shall prejudice no man" shall also come into operation.

25- In view of the discussions, all the submissions made by the tenant-respondent are rejected.

Whether Appellate Court can direct the landlord to provide an alternative accommodation to the tenant in the premises owned or partly owned by his son or wife.

26- The directions given by the appellate court to the plaintiff for providing an alternative accommodation is in conflict with the law laid down by this Court in the case of the other tenant Girraj Kishore (supra), which has been reproduced in para 11 above. Therefore, the impugned judgment of the appellate court can also not be sustained in view of the law laid down by this Court in Girraj Kishore's case (supra) and the discussion made above. Besides, it is well settled that the appeal is a creation of Statute. Section 22 of the U.P. Act XIII of 1972, provides for a statutory remedy of appeal against an order passed under Section 21 or Section 24 of the Act. Section 21 does not provide for a direction to the landlord to make available an alternative accommodation to the tenant as per provision of Section 22 read with Section 10 of the Act, the appellate court may confirm, vary or rescind the order, or remand the case. No power has been conferred to issue a direction to the landlord to provide an alternative accommodation to the tenant as a condition for release of the disputed accommodation. Therefore, the direction of the appellate court to the landlord to provide an accommodation to the respondent-tenant is without jurisdiction. Thus. the appellate court has exceeded its jurisdiction to issue such a direction.

Conclusion in Brief

27- The discussion and conclusions made above are briefly summarized as under:

(i) Finding of fact has been recorded by the Prescribed Authority that the plaintiff is in bonafide need of the disputed shop. This finding of fact has not been set aside by the appellate court by the impugned judgment in Rent Control Appeal No.02 of 2006. Therefore, findings of fact recorded by the Prescribed Authority in P.A. Case No.02 of 1994 on the point of bonafide need, requires no interference and is upheld.

(ii) The need of the landlord for premises in question must exist on the date of application for eviction, which is the crucial date and it is on the said date the tenant incurred the liability of being evicted therefrom. Even if the landlord died during the pendency of the writ petition in the High Court, the bona fide need cannot be said to have lapsed as the business in question can be carried on by his widow or any other son. In Gaya Prasad v. Pradeep Srivastava (2001) 2 SCC 604 it was held that the crucial date for deciding as to the bonafides of requirement of landlord is the date of his application for eviction.

(iii) The bonafide need of the landlord has to be examined as on the date of institution of proceedings and if a decree of eviction is passed, the death of the landlord during the pendency of the appeal or writ petition or a petition under Article 227 preferred by the tenant will make no difference. The heirs of the landlord will be fully entitled to claim possession of the premises on the cause of action which had been originally pleaded and on the basis whereof the lower court had decided the matter and had passed the decree for eviction.

(iv) Death of the landlord during the pendency of the petition before this Court, would not mean that the bonafide need has lapsed, as the business in question can be carried on by his widow or any other son. Landlord's death will not make any difference as his heirs are fully entitled to defend the estate. If the subsequent event like the death of landlord is to be taken note of at every stage till the decree attains finality, there will be no end to litigation.

(v) In the present set of facts the P.A. Case No.02 of 1994 was instituted by the landlord-petitioner and after about 20 years it was decreed by the Prescribed Authority/Civil Judge (Junior Division), Etah by judgment dated 23.2.2006. However, due to pendency of Rent Appeal No.02 of 2006 filed by the tenant-respondent, the decree could not be instituted and the tenant could not be evicted. Eight years were exhausted to decide the appeal and now from five years the present petition is pending before this Court and ultimately, the landlord died recently on 8.1.2019. The tenant continued in occupation of the disputed premises because of some interim order in the appeal. In such a situation the well known maxim "actus curiae neminem gravabit" that "an act of the Court shall prejudice no man" shall also come into operation.

(vi) The directions given by the appellate court to the plaintiff for providing an alternative accommodation is in conflict with the law laid down by this Court in the case of the other tenant Girraj Kishore (supra), which has been reproduced in para 11 above. The appeal is a creation of Statute. Section 22 of the U.P. Act XIII of 1972, provides for a statutory remedy of appeal against an order passed under Section 21 or Section 24 of the Act. Section 21 does not provide for a direction to the landlord to make available an alternative accommodation to the tenant as per provision of Section 22 read with Section 10 of the Act, the appellate court may confirm, vary or rescind the order, or remand the case. No power has been conferred to issue a direction to the landlord to provide an alternative accommodation to the tenant as a condition for release of the disputed accommodation.

28- For all the reasons aforestated, the impugned judgment dated 23.8.2014 in Rent Control Appeal No.02 of 2006 (Sri Dinesh Chandra v. Kishan Chand and others), passed by the District Judge Etah, cannot be sustained and is hereby set aside. The judgment of the Prescribed Authority/Civil Judge (Junior Division), Etah, dated 23.2.2006 passed in P.A. Case No.2 of 1994 (Sri Kishan Chandra v. Sri Padam Chandra Jain and others), is restored and upheld. The petition is allowed with costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. Vakalatnama filed today by Sri Akhilesh Kumar Singh and Sri Harish K. Yadav on behalf of O.P. No. 2 is taken on record.

2. Heard learned counsel for applicant, learned AGA for the State and learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 over this application under section 438 Cr.P.C. by Lavink Tyagi moved for grant of anticipatory bail in Case Crime No. 1290 of 2019, u/s 420, 376, 493, 494, 495, 496 I.P.C., P.S. Kotwali Shamli, District Shamli.

3. Learned counsel for applicant argued that accused applicant is innocent. He has been falsely implicated in this very case crime number, whereas the complainant herself is a Police Constable, well educated and law knowing lady. The alleged occurrence is said to be of the year 2014, whereas this report has been lodged in the year 2019. There was no misconception of fact regarding marriage entered in between nor there was any deception nor there was any unreasonable belief about the fact stated by the complainant. It has specifically been stated in the F.I.R. lodged upon her written report as well as in her statement recorded u/s 164 Cr.P.C. that she entered in marriage with applicant Lavink Tyagi and she was blessed with a son. Subsequently she was again blessed with a son. Then after this situation changed, when behaviour of applicant Lavink Tyagi was changed in changed circumstances. She made application before the S.P. concerned and the applicant Lavink Tyagi was put under suspension. Subsequently, this suspension was revoked as complainant could not establish the fact of misconception of fact or marriage under deception made by accused. She was entered with marital status of 'unmarried' in her service record, whereas the accused- applicant was shown with marital status of 'married' in his service record. The complainant, being a police constable and fully acquainted with legal procedure, was expected to go through marital status of applicant given in his service record and she did it. Hence, it was never misconception of fact nor any deception by applicant. It was a bonafide marriage and it never converts the physical relation in definition of rape provided under section 375 I.P.C. and under exception (2) appended to the section. It was with conscience and consensual physical relation with wife and with no deception. There was no reason to believe deception. Hence the department did not lodge report for this offence. Rather this report was subsequently lodged by complainant. The judgment of Apex Court reported in (2008) 1 SCC 180, Seema (Smt.) Vs. Ashwani Kumar, makes a provision that marriage must be registered, even if there occurred some marriage. It was not got registered by complainant, who herself is a police constable and well known about law. Hence, it was lack on her part itself. Further judgment of Apex Court reported in 2019 Law Suit (SC) 1504, Pramod Suryabhan Pawar Vs. State of Maharashtra & another, has elaborately discussed 'misconception of fact' and 'reasonable belief', wherein the circumstances making conclusion about misconception of fact and ingredients of deception with circumstances creating a reason to believe has been elaborately discussed by their Lordships. In the present case too, there is no question of any misconception. Learned counsel for applicant pressed para 26 of the judgment reported in AIR 1993 SC 1167, Joti Parshad Vs. State of Haryana, wherein 'reason to believe' has been elaborately discussed. Hence, there is no offence punishable u/s 376 I.P.C. For rest of offences, mentioned as above, there is lack of ingredients for those offences. Hence, this anticipatory bail application with prayer for quashing the rejection order passed by learned Sessions Judge, who failed to appreciate the facts and law placed before it. Thereby for allowing application moved by applicant for grant of anticipatory bail.

4. Learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 has vehemently opposed above arguments with this contention that it was a sheer misconception of fact under which complainant entered in marriage with accused and cohabited. Accused was Sub Inspector of Police and complainant, being a police constable, was under control and supervision of accused-applicant. Hence, the offence punishable u/s 376(3) I.P.C. will also come into play. Whereas argument advanced is regarding offence punishable u/s 376(2) I.P.C. itself. The previous marriage and blessing of two kids had been concealed by accused and upon his assurance and stating of facts, this second marriage was performed by the applicant. She was blessed with one son. But under connivance and deception this was reported to be dead, whereas he was alive.

Again she was blessed with another son. Then after she was compelled to hide from the scene and to elope from the life of accused- applicant, for which threat was extended. In between, a telephonic call was received from the erstwhile wife of accused-applicant, who disclosed about previous marital status and two kids from the earlier marriage. Then after this report was got lodged and prior to it a complaint was made to the department i.e. Police Head of District Shamli, who initiated an enquiry and the accused-applicant was put under suspension. Subsequently, it was revoked. Hence, the offences, for which this case crime number has been registered, are of heinous nature particularly committed by a government servant. There is mandatory prohibition of bigamy by a U.P. State Government Servant.

5. Learned AGA has vehemently opposed bail with this contention that marital status, shown in service record, was of the time of entering in the service and at that time this complainant-constable was unmarried and that is why she entered her marital status 'unmarried'. But the disclosure of marital status of accused was not under her knowledge. Rather it was under knowledge of applicant that he was married and his marital status was of 'married'. But this fact was concealed by him and subsequent marriage was got entered. Hence this non-mentioning of marital status of complainant is of no avail.

6. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the material placed on record, it is apparent that this application is for grant of anticipatory bail. At this juncture, neither evidence nor circumstances are to be meticulously analysed in hair splitting manner by this court, because it may prejudice investigation, enquiry and trial. Hence, U.P. State amendment in Code of Criminal Procedure by Code of Criminal Procedure (Uttar Pradesh Amendment) Act, 2018 has brought insertion in section 438 of Cr.P.C. with a provision of consideration by the court, while dealing with anticipatory bail application, the nature and gravity of the accusation; the antecedents of the applicant including the fact as to whether he has previously undergone imprisonment on conviction by a Court in respect of any cognizable offence; the possibility of the applicant to flee from justice; and where the accusation has been made with the object of injuring or humiliating the applicant by having him so arrested; either reject the application forthwith or issue an interim order for the grant of anticipatory bail. There are certain exceptions in which the provisions of this section 438 Cr.P.C. is not applicable. The ingredients for grant or non- grant of anticipatory bail have been given in this amendment. Hence, this Court is to consider as to whether those ingredients for grant or for rejection of anticipatory bail is there? The Apex Court in State of U.P. Vs. Naushad, AIR 2014 SC 384 has propounded that if consent is given by the prosecutrix under a misconception of fact, it is vitiated. Accused committed sexual intercourse with the prosecutrix by giving false assurance that he would marry her, after she got pregnant, he refused to do so. From this it is evident that he never intended to marry her and procured her consent only for the reason of having sexual relationship with her consent, which was consent obtained under misconception of fact, as defined under section 90 of the I.P.C. In the present case, marriage in between is not denied, previous marriage and two kids are also not denied. The accused being a government servant is not denied. He being legally bound not to marry during lifetime of his wife under U.P. Government Servant Service Conduct Rule, 1956 is not denied. He entered in marriage with complainant is also not denied. He said himself to be unmarried and under his assurance and persuasion this marriage took place, has been said by prosecutrix in her report and in her statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. She was blessed with a child, who was born alive, but was reported to be dead by accused-applicant. It has been said by her in her report. Subsequently, she was blessed with another child. Then after she was compelled to be away from the life of accused, for which threat was extended. This has been mentioned in the report as well as in her statement recorded u/s 164 Cr.P.C. Under all these facts and circumstances it seems a case in which no indulgence is required from this Court.

7. Accordingly, this application is rejected.

8. However, it is made clear that the trial court as well as Investigating Officer will not be influenced from any finding recorded in this order.

A. Criminal Law-Code of Criminal Procedure,1973 - Section-227/228 – Application - while considering an application for discharge, the court is required to consider the record of the case to decide whether the allegations against accused are made out or not-it is not required to weigh and sift all the evidence-if the material placed before the court discloses grave suspicion against the accused, the court is justified in framing the charge-application of discharge is dismissed-it is well settle that the confession of a co-accused is a substantive evidence against other co-accused persons in the same trial.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. The present revision petition has been filed against the order dated 31.01.2007 passed in Sessions Trial No.1058 of 2006 by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.23, Lucknow whereby an application of discharge filed by the revisionist under Section 227 Cr.P.C. has been dismissed.

2. Brief facts of the case are that, the complainant, respondent No.2 gave a written report at the police station on 07.04.2006 bringing it to the notice of the police that her husband, Mr. Sudhir Kumar Sharma went out from the residence on 04.04.2008 at around 4:45 P.M. and, he did not come back till giving the complaint at the police station.

3. On the basis of aforesaid complaint, Sub-Inspector, A.K. Sachan registered the information in G.D. and started investigation. From the investigation and examination of the call record of Mr. S.K. Sharma, the investigating officer was of the opinion that Mr. S.K. Sharma was kidnapped for ransom. In this kidnapping etc., prima facie involvement of Devvrat Mishra, Executive Engineer and his son residents of 21 Hydel Colony, Vivekanand Puri Road, Mahanagar, Lucknow, Baccha Pandey s/o Ramjage Pandey who was relative of Devvrat Mishra and, Pawan Tiwari, the revisionist herein who was friend of son of Devvrat Mishra was found.

4. After finding prima facie involvement of these persons, a complaint was given for registering the FIR under Section 364A IPC. The investigating officer, thereafter, recorded the statement of the wife of S.K. Sharma, Dr. Savita Sharma who initially gave the complaint at the police station regarding her husband going missing with effect from 04.04.2006.

5. Dr. Savita Sharma was residing at Banaras Hindu University and working as Assistant Curator in-charge of Coin Section, Bharat Kala Museum. She gave the statement that her husband, Mr. Sudhir Kumar Sharma was Chairman of the Electricity Board. He got retired from the service on 28.02.2004 and was residing at Vivekanandpuri, Hydel Colony. Along with him, servant Subhash was also living. On 04.04.2006 and 05.04.2006 she spoke to them. On 06.04.2006 she spoke to her husband from Banaras. She was asked by her husband to come to Lucknow. She reached Lucknow by Kashi Vishwanath Express. When she was in tempo from Charbagh Railway Station to reach Vivekanandpuri, Hydel Colony, a telephone call came at around 9-10 P.M. from Mr. S.K. Sharma asking her where was she. She told her location to him and, then he said that she was required to arrange Rs.15,00,000/-. He directed her to go to Citi Bank in the morning. When she asked that where was he, he said that he would talk to her later. He said that she should reach home. He also said that without taking money, they would not leave him alive. On 07.04.2004 again Mr. S.K. Sharma rang her at around 9-10 A.M. and said that she should go to Citi Bank and withdraw money from the Bank. On 07.04.2006 she went to the residence of Mr. Devvrat Mishra who had called her. Mr. Devvrat Mishra was subordinate to her husband and was also residing at Hydel Colony. She gave mobile numbers of her and Devvrat Mishra to investigating officer. Mr. Devvrat Mishra told her that Mr. S.K. Sharma called him and said that he was in some difficulty as he had been abducted. Mr. S.K. Sharma had asked him to make arrangement of money. Mr. Mishra further said that S.K. Sharma had asked him not to give information to the police otherwise, his life would be in jeopardy.

6. Devvrat Mishra further told Dr. Savita Sharma that S.K. Sharma had asked him to arrange Rs.15,00,000/-. In this respect, Devvrat Mishra had spoken to the Manager of Citi Bank and, he said that Police should not be informed. When the conversation between Devvrat Mishra and Dr. Savita Sharma was taking place, Rohit Mishra son of Devvrat Mishra was present there and, he heard everything.

7. On 07.04.2006, Dr. Savita Sharma went to the Citi Bank along with Devvrat Mishra. The Manager of the Bank told her that it would take sometime to encash the mutual funds. She further said that Subhash told her one of the two persons who came to pick up Mr. S.K. Sharma looked like Rohit Mishra. She also said that Rohit Mishra was watching her movements. After 07.04.2006 no telephone call was received by her from her husband or anybody and, Rohit Mishra went absconding. She apprehended that Devvrat Mishra and his son were involved in abduction/kidnapping of her husband and, the fact that they took her to the City Bank etc., was sufficient indication of their involvement.

8. The investigating officer thereafter, recorded the statement of Subhash Yadav who was the servant at the household of Mr. S.K. Sharma. He said that on 04.04.2006 at around 4:00 P.M., S.K. Sharma came from the office and, told him that two people would come in a black car to pick him up. As soon as they would come, he should inform him because he had to go with those people. Sometime thereafter, one car came. He described the two occupants of the car. One occupant was aged around 23-24 years, came to the residence asking whether S.K. Sharma resided here? By that time, S.K. Sharma was ready to go dressed in blue shirt and black pant. He instructed Subhash to prepare food for dinner and, thereafter, he had not come back. He further said that he spoke to S.K. Sharma twice or thrice on the said date then, S.K. Sharma said that he would come back in the night. On 05.04.2006 again he called on the mobile number of S.K. Sharma from a P.C.O. as land line of the house was out of order but S.K. Sharma did not pick up the phone, however, somebody else picked up the phone. Next day, at round 11-12 A.M., he called S.K. Sharma. Mr. S.K. Sharma told him that he was in Delhi, and he would come on 6th April. He gave the mobile numbers of S.K. Sharma and telephone number of the residence as well. On 06.04.2006 also he did not come, however, two persons came on a motorcycle, Bajaj CT-100 of black color. They had keys of room and almirah of S.K. Sharma. When they asked them not to open the room and almirah, then they made him to talk to S.K. Sharma. S.K. Sharma asked him to allow them to open almirah. Then almirah got opened but no money was found there. Out of these two persons who came on a motorcycle, one was the same who came in the car to take Mr. S.K. Sharma. He described the second person who came in the motorcycle having fair complexion who had covered his face and was wearing helmet, he was looking like the son of Devvrat Mishra. When he reached the house of Devvrat Mishra on asking of Dr. Savita Sharma, he did not find Rohit Mishra in the house. He spoke to Devvrat Mishra on his mobile. Mr. Devvrat Mishra told him that S.K. Sharma had taken money from several persons and he had been kidnapped.

9. Rohit Mishra gave statement to the investigation officer that he along with his friend, Pawan Tiwari, the revisionist herein and his father had a dream that he should pursue MBA from Spain. For the aforesaid purpose, money was required. To collect money they thought of kidnapping a wealthy person. He said that Mr. S.K. Sharma, Chairman of Electricity Board who was living nearby was set to retire on 28.02.2006. He had taken huge amount from several persons in the name of giving employment. He was also involved in a scam of Rs.3,00,00,000/- at Obra. He had deposited huge amount in mutual funds. He also said that he used to visit frequently the house of S.K. Sharma, therefore, he thought of kidnapping of S.K. Sharma.

10. After retirement, S.K.Sharma was to get around 25-30 Lakhs rupees in his P.F. Account. His wife was living in Banaras and, Mr. S.K. Sharma was living with his servant. He said that S.K. Sharma was to move out after retirement from the Hydel Colony and, therefore, he planned to kidnap S.K. Sharma with Bachha Pandey, his relative, who was living in Vishwas Khand, Gomti Nagar and was working in VLCC.

11. He said that he decided to invite Mr. S.K. Sharma for drinking and debauchery as Mr. Sharma was fond of women and wine. Bachha Pandey agreed to make arrangements. He also said that Guddu Pandey @ Ram Kishore and Pawan Pandey also agreed to help in execution of this plan.

12. For this purpose, he took a Mobile Phone connection No.9838476603 in the name of Alok by forging documents and he used this number in kidnapping of Mr. S.K. Sharma. He said that he made plan with Pawan Tiwari and lured Mr. Sharma for a girl and also to give him money for providing employment to some persons in the electricity Department. Mr. Sharma got ready. According to the plan, he borrowed a car from his friend, Siddhartah Singh and went to the house of Mr. S.K. Sharma along with Baccha Pandey. Baccha Pandey went to the residence and brought Mr. S.K. Sharma from the house and, thereafter, all three went to Vishwas Khand where Guddu Pandey, Lalji, Pawan Tiwari were present. S.K. Sharma was kept on the first floor and, he was provided drinks etc. Demand for Rs.1,00,00,000/- was made from him. However, Mr. S.K. Sharma refused and said that he did not have that much money. He said that he would give Rs.15,00,000/- which was deposited in his Syndicate Bank. In the night Mr. S.K. Sharma received a telephonic call from his servant and, he was asked to tell the servant that he would come in the morning on the next day. On 05.04.2006 again when his servant called, Mr. S.K. Sharma was asked to tell him that he was in Delhi and would come back on the next day.

13. When Mr. S.K. Sharma was asked that without cheque book how the money would be withdrawn, then Mr. Sharma asked him to bring cheque book from almirah and, then he along with Baccha Pandey, went to the house of Mr. S.K. Sharma. At that time he covered his face by a handkerchief and wore a helmet so that the servant did not recognise him. They thought that they would get good amount of money from almirah but no amount was received and cheque book was also not found there. Mr. Sharma used to take some medicines for which they asked for the prescription but the servant could not give the prescription. He further said that he made Ms. Sharma to talk to his father Mr. Devvrat Mishra. His father said that he would help Ms. Sharma to withdraw money from the Bank. However, the Bank informed them that the money could be withdrawn after 3-4 days. From the driver of Mr. Sharma, it was known that Ms. Sharma had informed the police and, then fearing their arrest, the accused gave injection of Sensoran and strangulated Mr. Sharma. Dead body of Mr. S.K. Sharma was brought in a Ford Car at Ramnagar, Barabanki crossing where he met Pawan Tiwari, Baccha Pandey, Rajan Pandey. These persons along with one Guddu Pandey threw the dead body in the river.

14. It appears that after recording the statement of as many as 34 witnesses and collecting the evidence including the call details of the cell phones used by the accused as well as deceased, charge sheet under Sections 364-A, 302, 201, 120-B IPC was filed against the accused including the revisionist herein. The revisionist thereafter filed an application under Section 227 Cr.P.C. for discharge from the case.

15. Learned Sessions judge has rejected the application of the accused revisionist vide impugned order dated 31.01.2007.

16. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and learned A.G.A. for the State.

17. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that except for the confessional statement of the co-accused, Rohit Mishra given to the police, there is no other evidence to connect the accused-revisionist with the commission of the offence. He further submits that the confessional statement of the accused given to the police cannot be relied on for framing the charge against the present accused-revisionist. He also submits that statements of co-accused, Baccha Pandey, Pawan Pandey, Rohit Mishra were recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and, they have not made any statement before the learned Magistrate under section 164 Cr.P.C. Further, learned Sessions Court in the impugned order has held that for the first time the accused's name came to the light in the statement of Sub-Inspector, A.K. Sachan on 14.04.2006. In his statement, he said that two mobile numbers i.e. 9838384515 and 9835616862 were used in the commission of the offence. It was further said that the accused was using Mob.No.9839616862 which was in the name of Rohit Mishra. Pawan Pandey and Rohit Mishra were best friends and Pawan Pandey was also absconding.

18. The Trial Court while rejecting the application has held that the deceased, S.K. Shamra was abducted for ransom. An amount of Rs.15,00,000/- was asked to be withdrawn from the Bank by her wife. After committing the murder of Mr. S. K. Sharma, dead body was thrown in the river and the evidence collected by the investigating officer during the investigation including the statement of the witnesses recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. established commission of the offence by the accused and, therefore, he rejected the application of discharge filed by the accused and other co-accused.

19. In support of his submissions that the statement of a co-accused cannot be relied on, learned counsel for the revisionist has cited judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of State of Tamilnadu versus Jayalalitha : (2000) 5 SCC 440.

Para 11 of aforesaid report on which reliance has been placed is extracted herein below:-

"11. We may, at the outset, point out that there is no use of the said statement attributed to the third accused Venkataraman on account of two reasons. First is that the said author of the statement has already been arraigned in the case and a charge has been framed against him. Second is that on a reading of the statement we have noticed that it is exculpatory in nature. Hence the said statement can only lie in store and no court can possibly treat it as evidence."

20. However, learned counsel for the revisionist has missed para 34 of aforesaid judgment which throws enough light on what needs to be considered at the time of framing of the charge.

Para 34 of the aforesaid judgment reads as under:-

"34. We would choose to refrain from dealing with the above contention, lest any comment made by us turn out to be detrimental to one or the other side of the case. Nevertheless, it is for the prosecution to explain how certain relevant sheets were found missing and whether the respondent had any knowledge of and also why the respondent should have caused them to be removed. This is not the stage for weighing the pros and cons of all the implications of the materials nor for sifting the materials presented by the prosecution. The exercise at this stage should be confined to considering the police report and the documents to decide whether the allegations against the accused are "groundless" or whether "there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed the offences". Presumption therein is always rebuttable by the accused for which there must be opportunity of participation in the trial."

21. Thus, at the time of framing of charge, it is not required to weigh all the evidence and implication of the material before the court nor it is required to sift the material presented by the prosecution. The court is required to consider the police report and documents to decide whether the allegations against the accused are made out or not. If the Court forms an opinion prima facie that the accused has committed the offence, he cannot be discharged.

22. The second judgment on which learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance is Param Hans Yadav and Sadanand Tripathi versus State of Bihar and others: (1987) 2 SCC 197 to submit that the confessional statement of a co-accused is not a substantive evidence against the other co-accused in the trial.

In support of his contention he has cited paras 9 and 10 which are extracted herein below:-

"9. It is well settled that the confession of a co-accused is not substantive evidence against other co-accused persons in the same trial. As this Court pointed out in Kashmira Singh v. State of M.P. [AIR 1952 SC 159 : 1952 SCR 526 : 1952 Cri LJ 839] the confession of a co-accused is not substantive evidence against the other accused persons at the trial but could only be used for lending reassurance if there be any other substantive evidence to be utilised or acted upon.

10. In Hari Charan Kurmi v. State of Bihar [AIR 1964 SC 1184 : (1964) 6 SCR 623 : 1964 (2) Cri LJ 344] this Court observed:

"Thus, though confession may be regarded as evidence in that generic sense because of the provisions of Section 30, the fact remains that it is not evidence as defined by Section 3 of the Act. The result, therefore, is that in dealing with a case against an accused person, the court cannot start with the confession of a co-accused person; it must begin with other evidence adduced by the prosecution and after it has formed its opinion with regard to the quality and effect of the said evidence, then it is permissible to turn to the confession in order to receive assurance to the conclusion of guilt which the judicial mind is about to reach on the said other evidence.

...that the confession of a co-accused person cannot be treated as substantive evidence and can be pressed into service only when the court is inclined to accept other evidence and feels the necessity of seeking for an assurance in support of its conclusion deducible from the said evidence.""

23. The investigating officer had not only relied on the confessional statement of the co-accused but also had collected other evidence. This is evident from the fact that the mobile number which was in the possession of the revisionist was used in the commission of the offence and that mobile number was in the name of co-accused, Rohit Mishra. It would be seen at the time of trial whether there is substantive evidence to support the case of the prosecution besides confessional statement of the co-accused. At the stage of framing of the charge, the Court is not required to consider all the evidence but it has to find out whether prima facie offence has been committed by the accused or not. Therefore, this judgment is also of no help to the petitioner to say that since there is no other evidence except for the confessional statement, the petitioner should have been discharged.

24. Learned counsel for the revisionist has also placed reliance on one more judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Satish Mehra vs Delhi Administration & Anr: (1996) 9 SCC 766 which delineates on the scope of Sections 227, 228, 239 Cr.P.C. etc., Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that considering the ratio of aforesaid judgment since there is no other evidence except for confessional evidence against the revisionist herein, the valuable time of court should not be wasted for holding a trial for formality as the trial should not be an exercise in-futility, therefore, the application ought not to have been rejected inasmuch as there is no scope for the revisionist to be convicted.

12. An incidental question which emerges in this context is whether the Sessions Judge can look into any material other than those produced by the prosecution. Section 226 of the Code obliges the prosecution to describe the charge brought against the accused and to state by what evidence the guilt of the accused would be proved. The next provision enjoins on the Sessions Judge to decide whether there is sufficient ground to proceed against the accused. In so deciding the Judge has to consider (1) the record of the case and (2) the documents produced therewith. He has then to hear the submissions of the accused as well as the prosecution on the limited question whether there is sufficient ground to proceed. What is the scope of hearing the submissions? Should it be confined to hearing oral arguments alone?

13. Similar situation arises under Section 239 of the Code (which deals with trial of warrant cases on police report). In that situation the Magistrate has to afford the prosecution and the accused an opportunity of being heard besides considering the police report and the documents sent therewith. At these two stages the Code enjoins on the court to give audience to the accused for deciding whether it is necessary to proceed to the next stage. It is a matter of exercise of judicial mind. There is nothing in the Code which shrinks the scope of such audience to oral arguments. If the accused succeeds in producing any reliable material at that stage which might fatally affect even the very sustainability of the case, it is unjust to suggest that no such material shall be looked into by the court at that stage. Here the "ground' may be any valid ground including insufficiency of evidence to prove the charge.

14. The object of providing such an opportunity as is envisaged in Section 227 of the Code is to enable the court to decide whether it is necessary to proceed to conduct the trial. If the case ends there it gains a lot of time of the court and saves much human efforts and cost. If the materials produced by the accused even at that early stage would clinch the issue, why should the court shut it out saying that such documents need be produced only after wasting a lot more time in the name of trial proceedings. Hence, we are of the view that Sessions Judge would be within his powers to consider even materials which the accused may produce at the stage contemplated in Section 227 of the Code.

15. But when the Judge is fairly certain that there is no prospect of the case ending in conviction the valuable time of the court should not be wasted for holding a trial only for the purpose of formally completing the procedure to pronounce the conclusion on a future date. We are mindful that most of the Sessions Courts in India are under heavy pressure of workload. If the Sessions Judge is almost certain that the trial would only be an exercise in futility or a sheer waste of time it is advisable to truncate or snip the proceedings at the stage of Section 227 of the Code itself.

25. However, from perusal of the order impugned, it is not only confessional statement which is against the accused, there are 34 persons whose statements have been recorded besides other evidence which has been collected. Therefore, the judgment cited by the learned counsel for the revisionist is of not much relevance to say that the revisionist would get acquittal and in no circumstance would be convicted.

26. While considering an application for discharge under Section 227 of the Code, the Court is required to consider the "record of the case" to form an opinion whether there is a ground for presumption and strong suspicion that the accused has committed an offence. After considering the material if the trial Court is of the opinion that there is strong/grave suspicion of involvement of the accused in commission of the offence, the accused cannot be discharged. At the stage of Sections 227/228 (or 239 in warrant case) the Court is only required to see that the material on record and the facts of the case are enough to raise grave suspicion that the accused has committed the offence. If there is no material to arrive at such a satisfaction of suspicion, the accused should be discharged.

27. The scope of Sections 227 and 228 Cr.P.C. has been explained in the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of State of Bihar v. Ramesh Singh, (1977) 4 SCC 39 in para 4 has held as under:-

"4. Under Section 226 of the Code while opening the case for the prosecution the Prosecutor has got to describe the charge against the accused and state by what evidence he proposes to prove the guilt of the accused. Thereafter comes at the initial stage the duty of the Court to consider the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith and to hear the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in that behalf. The Judge has to pass thereafter an order either under Section 227 or Section 228 of the Code. If "the Judge considers that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing", as enjoined by Section 227. If, on the other hand, "the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which-- ... (b) is exclusively triable by the Court, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused", as provided in Section 228. Reading the two provisions together in juxtaposition, as they have got to be, it would be clear that at the beginning and the initial stage of the trial the truth, veracity and effect of the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce are not to be meticulously judged. Nor is any weight to be attached to the probable defence of the accused. It is not obligatory for the Judge at that stage of the trial to consider in any detail and weigh in a sensitive balance whether the facts, if proved, would be incompatible with the innocence of the accused or not. The standard of test and judgment which is to be finally applied before recording a finding regarding the guilt or otherwise of the accused is not exactly to be applied at the stage of deciding the matter under Section 227 or Section 228 of the Code. At that stage the Court is not to see whether there is sufficient ground for conviction of the accused or whether the trial is sure to end in his conviction. Strong suspicion against the accused, if the matter remains in the region of suspicion, cannot take the place of proof of his guilt at the conclusion of the trial. But at the initial stage if there is a strong suspicion which leads the Court to think that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence then it is not open to the Court to say that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. The presumption of the guilt of the accused which is to be drawn at the initial stage is not in the sense of the law governing the trial of criminal cases in France where the accused is presumed to be guilty unless the contrary is proved. But it is only for the purpose of deciding prima facie whether the Court should proceed with the trial or not. It the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, cannot show that the accused committed the offence, then there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial. An exhaustive list of the circumstances to indicate as to what will lead to one conclusion or the other is neither possible nor advisable. We may just illustrate the difference of the law by one more example. If the scales of pan as to the guilt or innocence of the accused are something like even, at the conclusion of the trial, then, on the theory of benefit of doubt the case is to end in his acquittal. But if, on the other hand, it is so at the initial stage of making an order under Section 227 or Section 228, then in such a situation ordinarily and generally the order which will have to be made will be one under Section 228 and not under Section 227."

28. Once the trial Court forms an opinion on the basis of material available on record about the prima facie case of grave suspicion against the accused, the revisional Court ordinarily should not interfere with such an order inasmuch as the jurisdiction of the Court under Section 397 Cr.P.C. is to be exercised so as to examine the correctness, legality or propriety of order passed by the lower Court.

29. The Supreme Court in its judgment in the case of Amit Kapoor v. Ramesh Chander : (2012) 9 SCC 460 in para 20 has explained the scope of the power under Section 397 Cr.P.C. as under:-

"20. The jurisdiction of the court under Section 397 can be exercised so as to examine the correctness, legality or propriety of an order passed by the trial court or the inferior court, as the case may be. Though the section does not specifically use the expression "prevent abuse of process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice", the jurisdiction under Section 397 is a very limited one. The legality, propriety or correctness of an order passed by a court is the very foundation of exercise of jurisdiction under Section 397 but ultimately it also requires justice to be done. The jurisdiction could be exercised where there is palpable error, non-compliance with the provisions of law, the decision is completely erroneous or where the judicial discretion is exercised arbitrarily. On the other hand, Section 482 is based upon the maxim quando lex aliquid alicui concedit, concedere videtur id sine quo res ipsa esse non potest i.e. when the law gives anything to anyone, it also gives all those things without which the thing itself would be unavoidable. The section confers very wide power on the Court to do justice and to ensure that the process of the court is not permitted to be abused."

30. In para 27 of the same judgment principle regarding quashing of the charge either in exercise of jurisdiction under Section 397 Cr.P.C. or under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been explained as under:-

"27.1. Though there are no limits of the powers of the Court under Section 482 of the Code but the more the power, the more due care and caution is to be exercised in invoking these powers. The power of quashing criminal proceedings, particularly, the charge framed in terms of Section 228 of the Code should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in the rarest of rare cases.

27.2. The Court should apply the test as to whether the uncontroverted allegations as made from the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith prima facie establish the offence or not. If the allegations are so patently absurd and inherently improbable that no prudent person can ever reach such a conclusion and where the basic ingredients of a criminal offence are not satisfied then the Court may interfere.

27.3. The High Court should not unduly interfere. No meticulous examination of the evidence is needed for considering whether the case would end in conviction or not at the stage of framing of charge or quashing of charge.

27.4. Where the exercise of such power is absolutely essential to prevent patent miscarriage of justice and for correcting some grave error that might be committed by the subordinate courts even in such cases, the High Court should be loath to interfere, at the threshold, to throttle the prosecution in exercise of its inherent powers.

27.5. Where there is an express legal bar enacted in any of the provisions of the Code or any specific law in force to the very initiation or institution and continuance of such criminal proceedings, such a bar is intended to provide specific protection to an accused.

27.6. The Court has a duty to balance the freedom of a person and the right of the complainant or prosecution to investigate and prosecute the offender.

27.7. The process of the court cannot be permitted to be used for an oblique or ultimate/ulterior purpose.

27.8. Where the allegations made and as they appeared from the record and documents annexed therewith to predominantly give rise and constitute a "civil wrong" with no "element of criminality" and does not satisfy the basic ingredients of a criminal offence, the court may be justified in quashing the charge. Even in such cases, the court would not embark upon the critical analysis of the evidence.

27.9. Another very significant caution that the courts have to observe is that it cannot examine the facts, evidence and materials on record to determine whether there is sufficient material on the basis of which the case would end in a conviction; the court is concerned primarily with the allegations taken as a whole whether they will constitute an offence and, if so, is it an abuse of the process of court leading to injustice.

27.10. It is neither necessary nor is the court called upon to hold a full-fledged enquiry or to appreciate evidence collected by the investigating agencies to find out whether it is a case of acquittal or conviction.

27.11. Where allegations give rise to a civil claim and also amount to an offence, merely because a civil claim is maintainable, does not mean that a criminal complaint cannot be maintained.

27.12. In exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 228 and/or under Section 482, the Court cannot take into consideration external materials given by an accused for reaching the conclusion that no offence was disclosed or that there was possibility of his acquittal. The Court has to consider the record and documents annexed therewith by the prosecution.

27.13. Quashing of a charge is an exception to the rule of continuous prosecution. Where the offence is even broadly satisfied, the Court should be more inclined to permit continuation of prosecution rather than its quashing at that initial stage. 27.15.The Court is not expected to marshal the records with a view to decide admissibility and reliability of the documents or records but is an opinion formed prima facie.

27.14. Where the charge-sheet, report under Section 173(2) of the Code, suffers from fundamental legal defects, the Court may be well within its jurisdiction to frame a charge.

27.15. Coupled with any or all of the above, where the Court finds that it would amount to abuse of process of the Code or that the interest of justice favours, otherwise it may quash the charge. The power is to be exercised ex debito justitiae i.e. to do real and substantial justice for administration of which alone, the courts exist.

27.16. These are the principles which individually and preferably cumulatively (one or more) be taken into consideration as precepts to exercise of extraordinary and wide plenitude and jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code by the High Court. Where the factual foundation for an offence has been laid down, the courts should be reluctant and should not hasten to quash the proceedings even on the premise that one or two ingredients have not been stated or do not appear to be satisfied if there is substantial compliance with the requirements of the offence."

31. The principles for framing of charge and discharge under Sections 227, 228, 238 and 239 Cr.P.C. have been summarized by the Supreme Court in its judgment, State v. S. Selvi, (2018) 13 SCC 455. It has been held that if on the basis of material on record, the Court prima facie forms an opinion that the accused may have committed the offence, it can frame charges. At the time of framing of charge, the Court is required to proceed on presumption that the material produced by the prosecution is true. At that stage, the Court is not expected to go deep into the matter and hold that the material produced does not warrant conviction.

Jitendra Bhimraj Bijjaya,* (1990) 4 SCC 76 : 1991 SCC (Cri) 47] and Supt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Anil Kumar Bhunja [Supt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Anil Kumar Bhunja, (1979) 4 SCC 274 : 1979 SCC (Cri) 1038] that the Judge while considering the question of framing charge under Section 227 of the Code in sessions cases (which is akin to Section 239 CrPC pertaining to warrant cases) has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out; where the material placed before the court discloses grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the court will be fully justified in framing the charge; by and large if two views are equally possible and the Judge is satisfied that the evidence produced before him while giving rise to some suspicion but not grave suspicion against the accused, he will be fully within his rights to discharge the accused. The Judge cannot act merely as a post office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution, but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the statements and the documents produced before the court, any basic infirmities appearing in the case and so on. This however does not mean that the Judge should make a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the materials as if he was conducting a trial.

7. In Sajjan Kumar v. CBI [Sajjan Kumar v. CBI, (2010) 9 SCC 368 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1371] , this Court on consideration of the various decisions about the scope of Sections 227 and 228 of the Code, laid down the following principles: (SCC pp. 376-77, para 21)

"(i) The Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under Section 227 CrPC has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out. The test to determine prima facie case would depend upon the facts of each case.

(ii) Where the materials placed before the court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the court will be fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial.

(iii) The court cannot act merely as a post office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court, any basic infirmities, etc. However, at this stage, there cannot be a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial.

(iv) If on the basis of the material on record, the court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed offence, it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused has committed the offence.

(v) At the time of framing of the charges, the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into but before framing a charge the court must apply its judicial mind on the material placed on record and must be satisfied that the commission of offence by the accused was possible.

(vi) At the stage of Sections 227 and 228, the court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to find out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. For this limited purpose, sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at that initial stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case.

(vii) If two views are possible and one of them gives rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspicion, the trial Judge will be empowered to discharge the accused and at this stage, he is not to see whether the trial will end in conviction or acquittal.""

32. The Supreme Court further in the case of Asim Shariff v. NIA*, (2019) 7 SCC 148 has dealt with the scope of Section 227 of the Cr.P.C. for discharge of an accused. In the aforesaid judgment, it has been held that in exercise of the power under Section 227, 228 Cr.P.C. in the Sessions Court (Section 239 Cr.P.C. pertaining to warned cases), the Trial Court has power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out. If the material placed before the Court discloses grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the Court is justified in framing the charge. It has also been held that if two views are possible and one of them gives rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspension, the trial Judge would be empowered to discharge the accused. The trial judge is expected to exercise his judicial mind to determine as to whether the case of trial is made out or not.

Para 18 of the said report is extracted hereinbelow:-

"18. Taking note of the exposition of law on the subject laid down by this Court, it is settled that the Judge while considering the question of framing charge under Section 227 CrPC in sessions cases (which is akin to Section 239 CrPC pertaining to warrant cases) has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out; where the material placed before the court discloses grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the court will be fully justified in framing the charge; by and large if two views are possible and one of them giving rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspicion against the accused, the trial Judge will be justified in discharging him. It is thus clear that while examining the discharge application filed under Section 227 CrPC, it is expected from the trial Judge to exercise its judicial mind to determine as to whether a case for trial has been made out or not. It is true that in such proceedings, the court is not supposed to hold a mini trial by marshalling the evidence on record."

33. The Supreme Court again in the case of Tarun Jit Tejpal versus State of Goa and other: 2019 SCC OnLine SC 1053 has taken note of case law in detail while explaining the powers under Sections 227/228 Cr.P.C. and reiterated the principle as enumerated in State v. S. Selvi (supra) and Sajjan Kumar versus C.B.I.: (2010) 9 SCC 368. In para 32 it has been held as under:-

"32. Applying the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decisions and considering the scope of enquiry at the stage of framing of the charge under Section 227/228 if the CrPC, we are of the opinion that the submissions made by the learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant on merits, at this stage, are not required to be considered. Whatever submissions are made by the learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant are on merits are required to be dealt with and considered at an appropriate stage during the course of the trial. Some of the submissions may be considered to be the defence of the accused. Some of the submissions made by the learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant on the conduct of the victim/prosecutrix are required to be dealt with and considered at an appropriate stage during the trial. The same are not required to be considered at this stage of framing of the charge. On considering the material on record, we are of the opinion that there is more than a prima facie case against the accused for which he is required to be tried. There is sufficient ample material against the accused and therefore the learned Trial Court has rightly framed the charge against the accused and the same is rightly confirmed by the High Court. No interference of this Court is called for."

34. Thus, in view of the law as has been explained in several decisions including which have been relied on above and, the fact that the trial Court having considered the record of the case and evidence brought by the prosecution has formed an opinion prima facie of involvement of the revisionist in commission of offence, this revision is dismissed. The Trial Court is directed to frame charge and proceed with the trial and conclude the same expeditiously preferably within a period of one year.

Criminal Revision No. 348 OF 2019

Counsel for the Revisionists:
Sri Sunil Kumar Singh, Sri Abhishek Tripathi

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:

A. Criminal Law -Code of Criminal Procedure,1973 - Section 319 - application - an additional accused can be summoned even on the basis of examination-in-chief of a single witness but it depends upon the facts and circumstances of each individual case-the standards of sufficiency of evidence which may justify the summoning of an additional accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. is on higher footing. Such a power must not be exercised in a casual manner-summoning of the accused reflects that neither the ratio nor the obiter of the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court has been followed in the right spirit- in the instant case neither the cross-examination of the witness was allowed to take place nor any further evidence had been allowed to come that would have given more material ot assess the worth and credibility of the allegations that have been brought against the two revisionists-summoning of revisionists is set-aside. (Para 3,4, 6, 7, 8)

Revision allowed (E-6)

List of cases cited:-

1. Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab and Ors, (2014) 3 SCC-92

2. Brijendra Singh and Ors Vs. State of Rajasthan,(2017) LawSuit(SC) 484

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. This revision has been filed seeking the quashing of impugned order dated 12.12.2018 passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Auraiya, as well as the entire proceedings of Case No.1377 of 2014 (State vs. Radhey Shyam Batham and others), under sections 354, 323, 504 I.P.C., Police Station- Dibiyapur, District-Auraiya.

2. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists.

3. Submission of the counsel is that the implication of the revisionists has been done on the basis of bad blood which existed in between the parties. The background of the case is that a plot was purchased by the mother of the revisionists on 5.9.2013 but as the opposite party was attempting to illegally possess the plot and encroach upon the same, a case in that regard was filed on 25.9.2013 as original suit no.455 of 2013 in the court of Civil Judge Senior Division, Auraiya which is still pending. When the other side came to know about the legal proceedings initiated by the family of the revisionists on 1.10.2013 the opposite party no.2 along with certain other family members became aggressive and made an assault and attacked upon the house of the revisionists as a result of which mother of the revisionists sustained injuries and a report in this regard was lodged as N.C.R. No.97 of 2013 on 1.10.2013 in Police Station Dibiyapur. Reliance in this regard was placed upon

Annexure No.2 of the revision. In this matter a charge-sheet was submitted under sections 323, 324, 452, 504, 506 I.P.C. Again because of the report lodged against the opposite parties the other side felt indignated and out of ire and vengeance entered into confabulations in order to bring an entirely false case against the revisionists and their family members. It was this reason that a number of days after the said occurrence of aggression made by the opposite side they have lodged the present F.I.R. on 5.10.2013. There is hardly any good explanation for this inordinate delay in lodging the F.I.R. and the explanation offered in this regard is quite unpalatable, unconvincing and is incapable of inculcating any belief in the same. After lodging of F.I.R. against the revisionists the investigation took place and it was found that none of the accused persons of the case had any complicity in the crime and as a result of the same the final report was submitted against all the accused persons. Later on, further investigation again took place and though the charge-sheet was submitted against certain other family members of the revisionists but the complicity of the revisionist nos.1 and 2 both remained unsubstantiated on the basis of material collected by the investigation which included the statements of witnesses affirming the absence of both the revisionists at the place of occurrence at the time of the said incident. Subsequently, when the trial took place the examination-in-chief of P.W.1 was recorded and as was expected she repeated the same false allegations made against revisionists. The application under section 319 Cr.P.C. was moved and both the revisionists who are brother and sister, have been summoned by the court without even allowing any cross-examination upon the victim. Submission of the counsel is that though technically speaking, it is permissible under law that an additional accused can be summoned even on the basis of examination-in-chief of a single witness but it all depends upon the facts and circumstances of each individual case which have to be considered before assessing the legitimacy of such exercise. In this particular case where the fact was apparent on the face of record that the implication of both the revisionists was found false by investigation and the evidenciary material collected was highly indicative about their innocence and even their presence at the place of occurrence was not substantiated and the allegations to that effect was found false, and repeatedly the final report was submitted in their favour twice, it would have been a better course and more advisable for the trial Court to have at least allowed the cross-examination of the witness so that the actual worth of the testimony could be better assessed. The Court could also, in a case like this, have proceeded to summon the additional accused after examining more than one witness. According to the counsel the ratio and obiter as has been settled by the Constitution Bench of Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh vs. State of Punjab and others, 2014 (3) SCC-92, the power to be exercised under section 319 Cr.P.C. is qualitatively different from the power to be exercised under section 204 Cr.P.C. for summoning the accused to face the trial. The standards of sufficiency of evidence which may justify the summoning of an additional accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. is on the higher footing. Such a power must not be exercised either in a casual or caviller manner or in a routine manner. There has to be some very serious circumspection before exercising such power. It is also true that it is not necessary that the Court should conclude on the basis of evidence produced during the course of trial that evidence is of such nature that must entail the conviction of the accused. That is never the requirement. Such a rigorous assessment is not called for. Nevertheless, the measure of the degree of sufficiency of evidence that should persuade the Court to summon an additional accused must be of a convincing nature which may inspire confidence. Submission is that the order impugned reflects that it is a very casually passed order in which the ipse dixit of the victim who in the circumstances was not expected to say anything other than what she said earlier in the F.I.R. or could not have been expected not to reiterate her earlier allegation has been rather credulously brought to serve and become the sole basis to summon the revisionists-accused. Her testimony could have been allowed to be estimated on the anvil of some questions at least in the background of the fact that the false implication of the aforesaid two accused was repeatedly found and affirmed twice in the course of investigations that took place earlier in the case. Submission is that the summoning of the accused reflects that neither the ratio nor the obiter of the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court has been followed in the right spirit and therefore the impugned order is not tenable in the eyes of law.

4. Counsel appearing for the opposite party has submitted that once the witness states about the complicity of a particular accused and there is no ambiguity about the same in her statement then the material collected during the course of investigation is wholly irrelevant and does not deserve to be seen at all. The cross-examination is not a condition precedent to act upon the testimony of a witness for the purpose of exercising the power u/s 319 Cr.P.C. and there is nothing illegal about it if the accused-revisionists have been summoned on the basis of a single examination-in-chief of P.W.1. Therefore there is nothing wrong in the order and trial must go on against the additional accused as such.

5. Heard learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

6. After going through the entire record of the case and considering the Constitution Bench's decision in Hardeep Singh (supra) and after considering the Apex Court's decision given in Brijendra Singh and Ors Vs. State of Rajasthan. 2017 LawSuit(SC) 484, this Court is of the opinion that the trial Court did not act in the right manner and the least that may be said is that it was an order passed almost in haste. The background of the case which was apparently available to indicate that the complicity of both the accused persons was found unsubstantiated even when the case was investigated twice, was completely ignored by the Court below. Even otherwise, the role assigned to the lady does not appear to be a very probable allegation. But this Court does not propose to enter into that aspect of the case at any great length lest it may cause prejudice to the trial either way. This Court also finds some discrepancies in the details of descriptions and also does not feel very convinced about the nature of allegations that have been made against the revisionist no.2 specially when he has been found to have been absent on the spot. The revisionist no.2 summoned under section 319 Cr.P.C. is said to be a doctor employed in V.S.R. Memorial Medical Institute, Rasulabad, Kanpur Dehat. It may be clarified that this observation of this Court must not be construed to have any reflection upon the ultimate merits of the case and the trial Court shall be at liberty to proceed in the matter independently remaining completely unprejudiced by the observations of this Court. But as this Court is dealing with the task of assessing the legitimacy or the appropriateness of summoning of the additional accused some sort of reflections are bound to come during the course of discussions.

7. At any rate, this Court is of the considered opinion that the summoning of the revisionists was, to speak the least, at this stage a kind of hasty act resulting into the passing of the impugned order in question which cannot be called a very mature or prudent order. Neither the cross-examination of the witness was allowed to take place nor any further evidence had been allowed to come that would have given more material to assess the worth and credibility of the allegations that have been brought against the two revisionists. The impugned order is certainly not in keeping with the spirit of the Constitution Bench's decision of the Apex Court given in the case of Hardeep Singh vs. State of Punjab and others, 2014 (3) SCC-92. The trial court would do well to keep in perspective the sound age old principle that to have power to do something is different from having the judicial ability to know how that power is to be exercised. This Court therefore finds good reason to allow the revision.

8. The impugned order dated 12.12.2018 is hereby set-aside. The revision stands allowed. The summoning of revisionists is also set-aside.

9. It may be observed that if at some future stage more convincing and more sufficient evidence is brought on record which may justify the summoning of the additional accused persons, the trial Court shall be at liberty to proceed further in accordance with law as it may deem fit to do.

Om Prakash Pandey ...Revisionist
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for the Revisionist:
Sri Vimlendu Tripathi

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:

A. Criminal Law -Code of Criminal Procedure,1973 - Section 133 - the proceedings under section 133 of Cr.P.C. are summary in nature and are meant for the cases of imminent danger to the public tranquillity and peace and the same should not be used or rather misused to scuttle the valuable right of owner of property and that is why, the legislature has in its wisdom used the words "any reliable evidence" in support of such denial, in the event and in case of which he shall stay the proceedings until the matter of the existence of such right has been decided by a competent Court. (Para 12 to 17)

B. Criminal Law -The procedure prescribed u/s 141 Cr.P.C. in the case where the order u/s 136 of Cr.P.C. is made absolute, is that the removal of unlawful obstruction or nuisance is done by the person against whom the order is made, the Magistrate has to give notice to such person requiring him to perform the act within a time framed fixed in the notice and in the event of disobedience such person is held liable to the penalty u/s 188 IPC and in the case of disobedience the Magistrate may also cause such act to be performed and may also recover the cost of performing it from the properties of such person.in the instant case this procedure has not been adopted for the reason not known to this court and only best known to the third respondent who reflected unjustified and unmindful performance of statutory obligations bestowed upon him. 3. Md. Basar Ali Molla and Ors Vs. State of W.B. and Ors,MANU/WB/0583/2006

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. This criminal revision has been preferred against the impugned order dated 11.01.2019 passed by the City Magistrate, Gorakhpur u/s 133(1) of Cr.P.C. in Case No.D201805310000230 of 2017 (Mohd. Salim vs. Om Prakash Pandey), P.S.-Cantt., District-Gorakhpur.

2. Matter was taken up on 15.02.2019 by the preceding bench of this Court and the effect and operation of order dated 11.01.2019 passed by the City Magistrate was stayed until further orders. It was also specifically directed that status-quo with regard to nature of possession of land shall also be maintained. Certain directions were also given to the District Magistrate with regard to immediate measurement of the spot in question. Subsequently on 13.3.2019 Shri Himanshu Pandey, Advocate appeared on behalf of opposite party no.2. Matter was thereafter listed to come up on 3rd April, 2019 with the direction to learned A.G.A. to file counter affidavit. Later on case was again taken up on 31.4.2019 and the compliance report about the directions issued by this Court was filed on behalf of State. Matter was fixed up for final disposal on 17th April, 2019 and last opportunity to file counter affidavit was given to opposite party. Rejoinder affidavit if any, was also directed to be filed in the meantime. It further transpires that a listing application was moved to list the matter earlier as a result of which the matter was fixed up for today. The same has thus come up before this Bench and been taken up today by the Court.

3. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of revisionist at the very outset has submitted that despite the stay orders of this Court, the boundary wall in question has been demolished in complete violation of the Court's direction and not only a gross defiance of the order has been done but the authorities have acted in contempt of the same and a contempt application has already been moved before the appropriate bench of this Court in that regard. The urgency of the matter was placed before the Court.

4. On the query raised by the Court, learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel appearing for opposite party no.2 have submitted that so far no counter affidavit has been filed. Some further time in that regard has once again been sought. This Court in the circumstances of the case feels that the matter was initially taken up on 15.2.2019 and since then sufficient time has been there to file counter affidavit. Last opportunity has already been given. This Court does not see any good justification to give further time for that purpose in the circumstance of the case. The matter has already been fixed for final disposal by the preceding Bench.

5. While going through the record of the case in hand, this Court has the occasion to go through the orders of this Court passed by the preceding Bench presided by Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J. whereby not only precise and detailed directions have been given regarding the measurement of the land in question but after receiving the compliance report sent on behalf of the District Magistrate and after going through the same, the Court had proceeded to make pithy observations of significance regarding the lackadaisical manner in which the concerned authorities have acted in this matter. It would not be out of place to quote the order passed by the preceding Bench on 03.4.2019, which reads thus:

"1. This Criminal Revision is directed against the order dated 11th January, 2019 passed by the City Magistrate, Gorakhpur, directing for removal of the boundary wall of the present applicant to the North of the graveyard on account of it being a public passage.

2. The grievance raised in the revision petition is that the revenue records were not examined by the City Magistrate and in exercise of the power which is quasi-judicial in nature. The City Magistrate, therefore, overlooking the records directed for removal of constructions, as if the constructions had resulted in public nuisance causing blockade of a public passage.

3. This Court while entertaining the revision petition, passed a detailed order on 15th February, 2019 directing the District Magistrate/ Collector, Gorakhpur to get the immediate measurement of the spot so as to ascertain whether the land in question is really a public passage or is a part of the land held by the applicant by virtue of sale deed. It was also directed that the revenue official of the concerned Tehsil shall be asked to render help with reference to the relevant revenue records while preparing the report. This Court also stayed the effect and operation of the order dated 11th January, 2019 fixing 13th March, 2019.

4. On 13th March, 2019 Sri Himanshu Pandey, learned Advocate, had put in appearance on behalf of opposite party no. 2 by filing vakalatnama and the Additional Government Advocate was granted further time to submit the report fixing 3rd April, 2019.

5. Today an affidavit of compliance on behalf of the State-respondents, including the opposite party no. 3, has been filed annexing therewith a report of the District Magistrate, Gorakhpur dated 12th March, 2019 in which it has been stated that a team for inspection and preparation of report was constituted headed by Niab-Tehsildar, Sadar. The inspection team reported that as far as plot no. 243/29 area 0.295 hectare is concerned, the same belongs to the graveyard and in the revenue record there is no public passage shown to the east and north of the graveyard, however, there is a 16 feet wide passage in which bricks have been placed with the help of the villagers. The sketch map that has been appended to the report shows that the land in dispute is to the north and east of the graveyard which belongs to the applicant and is adjacent to the graveyard where land/ passage in dispute has been shown.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant has also drawn the attention of the Court to the order dated 30th December, 2011 passed by the then District Magistrate, Gorakhpur permitting construction of boundary wall to the south of the land of the present applicant and there is also order the Sub-divisional Officer dated 3rd July, 2013 in which the direction was issued to the in-charge Inspector, Police Station Cantt. to ensure that nobody could cause obstruction in the construction of the boundary wall of the present applicant.

7. In matter of public nuisance, while the administrative authorities adjudicate under Section 133 Code of Criminal Procedure, it calls for an absolute objective consideration of the allegations and appreciation of revenue records before the authorities come to conclude that a place is a public passage or a public place and that on account of some deliberate activity a public nuisance is caused. The authorities are hide bound in law to look into the records of such land over which public nuisance is complained of.

8. Prima facie, therefore, I find that in the present matter the third respondent has acted quite carelessly and mechanically with least application of mind, and as the records reflect.

9. However, this Court before proceeds to pass final order in the matter and since the position on the spot has been altered, in view of the order impugned here in this revision petition, the counsel for the other side is afforded one last opportunity to file his counter affidavit within ten days from today.

10. Let the matter be placed on board for final disposal on 17th of April, 2019 in the meanwhile after receiving the counter affidavit, the applicant may file rejoinder affidavit.

11. List on 17th April, 2019 showing the name of Sri Himanshu Pandey, as counsel for private respondent. "

6. In the aforesaid backdrop, this Court deems it proper to decide this revision finally.

7. Heard Shri Vimlendu Tripathi, learned counsel for the revisionist, Shri Himanshu Pandey, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and learned A.G.A. for the State.

8. The crux of factual dispute, as reflects from the record is that the revisionist claims himself to be the owner of land in question, which was purchased by him through registered sale deed dated 01.4.2010 regarding Arazi No.243/28/1/4 and 243/28/1/5 admeasuring 33.75 decimal (1367.56 Sq. Mtr.) and also through registered sale deed dated 07.10.2014 regarding Arazi No.243/28/1/2 and 243/28/1/3 admeasuring 217.5 Air situated in Village-Mahadev Jharkhandi, Tappa and

Pargana-Haveli, Tehsil-Sadar, District-Gorakhpur. The revisionist further claims that in the year 2011 itself, he had moved an application before the District Magistrate, Gorakhpur regarding a dispute of measurement of land in question and the construction of boundary wall thereupon, in respect of which the Revenue Inspector conducted inspection of land in question and also conducted measurement of land and submitted the report which was in his favour, upon which the District Magistrate passed order dated 30.12.2011 and issued instructions to the Tehsildar, Sadar, Gorakhpur to maintain law and order and to ensure that in case the revisionist raises construction of boundary wall only on his own land, no interference be permitted by any third person. According to the revisionist, one another application dated 17.4.2013 was also moved by him for the similar controversy of measurement of land in question and on that occasion also, reports of revenue authorities dated 03.7.2013 and 28.6.2013 were forwarded in favour of revisionist on the basis of which necessary order was passed by the administrative authorities to give protection to the construction raised by the revisionist and to maintain law and order on the site. It was only thereafter that the revisionist had raised construction of boundary wall over his land in the year 2014 and also sold a few plots of the said land. According to the averments made in the affidavit accompanied with the memo of revision, further claim of revisionist is that his land is positioned adjacent to east and north side of one graveyard situated in Khasra No.243 having an area of 0.2950 hectare and the said graveyard is recorded as Clause 6-3/graveyard in the revenue record. The boundary wall constructed by the revisionist is situated on the south and west side of his land and the north side of the land is secured by the boundary wall of engineering college and the east side of his land is open. It has been also claimed by the revisionist that for the purpose of selling plots in his land, he developed a thirty feet Kharanja road on the east side of said graveyard in the horizontal direction (from east to west) up to the boundary of said graveyard. Further claim of revisionist is that few persons namely Sakoor, Abdul Sattar and Abdul Gaffar, being owner of some plot of land of main Gata No.243 and some adjacent land in other gata numbers of village Mahadev Jharkhandi, executed one registered agreement to sale dated 17.8.2016 in favour of one Santosh Sahi for the part of land admeasuring 0.405 decimal, which land is also situated adjacent to the graveyard but on the different side. These persons, according to the claim of revisionist, joined hands with each other and one complaint dated 19.7.2017 was moved before the administrative authorities on the date of Janta Darshan organized on 22.7.2017 and in the said complaint it was alleged that three sides of graveyard are surrounded by a public way and is being used by the villagers since long time for their movements and also for performing Janaza process and the present revisionist purchased land of said public way from a few land owners by using force, in respect of which proceedings are pending in the court and about 20 days before, the revisionist raised the boundary wall on his land by encroaching upon the said public way whereby the village residents are facing serious difficulties and are feeling aggrieved and in case no immediate action is taken, any untoward situation may arise. This application dated 19.7.2017 was treated as complaint u/s

133 of Cr.P.C. and Case No.201805310000230 of 2017 was registered and report was called from the local police, upon which two reports dated 03.8.2017 and 10.10.2017 along with handmade map of the land in question were submitted by the local police before the City Magistrate, Gorakhpur, who has been arrayed in his individual capacity as third respondent in this criminal revision. The erstwhile city Magistrate passed preliminary order dated 06.11.2017 u/s 133 of Cr.P.C. calling response of revisionist for removal of boundary wall or for showing cause as to why the order should not be confirmed. The revisionist submitted his objection dated 02.02.2018 denying existence of public way adjacent to the graveyard and explained that neither revenue record nor municipal record discloses any public passage on the land in question and also disclosed that the land in question was purchased by him through registered sale deeds and also stated that no encroachment has been done by him on any public passage and the entire story of complainant is concocted and false lacking all factual basis. The complainant, who has been arrayed as second respondent in this criminal revision, filed his replica dated 11.4.2018 against objection filed by the revisionist and also moved an application for spot inspection. Thereafter, third respondent got posting as City Magistrate, Gorakhpur and conducted spot inspection on 28.12.2018 in respect of which a hand written site map was prepared and the joint statement of few residents of the vicinity was recorded and was placed on record. Thereafter the third respondents passed final order dated 11.01.2019 u/s 133 of Cr.P.C., against which the present criminal revision has been preferred.

9. Submission of counsel for the revisionist is that the claim of public way or chak road or chak nali is not supported with any government record or revenue record or municipal record and is merely based upon the statement of few persons, who are adversely interested and inimical for vested reasons. Further submission is that the land in question is not a public place or public passage or public way or chak road or chak Nali and in fact it is the private land of the revisionist, upon which the boundary wall in question was constructed in the year 2004 with the strength of orders passed by the District Magistrate and his subordinates after due measurement of land of the revisionist. It has been further submitted that initial complaint dated 19.7.2017 as well as joint statement allegedly recorded during the proceedings u/s 133 of Cr.P.C. has been signed by Sakoor and Abdul Gaffar, who executed agreement to sale in favour of Santosh Sahi and they all are in fact instrumental for issuance of impugned order dated 11.01.2019. Further submission is that there is no justification and reason to hold that the land in question is public way and to hold that there is any encroachment over any public way. Submission is that the third respondent being City Magistrate passed the impugned order in complete ignorance of factual aspects of the case as well as settled position of law in this regard and actually the impugned order is an outcome of bias and prejudice of third respondent, who seemed inclined to favouring the above named Santosh Sahi. Counsel for the revisionist further submits that the unfair bias of opposite party no.3 is apparent on the face of record in view of the subsequent act of demolition of boundary wall at his instance, despite having knowledge of the interim stay order dated 15.02.2019 passed by this Court, which act amounts to deliberate defiance of the order passed by this Court and even attracts the provisions of Contempt of Court Act. In this respect, reliance has been placed on supplementary affidavit dated 22.02.2019 filed by revisionist.

10. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. supports the order dated 11.01.2019 by submitting that the same is based upon two reports of local police and the inspection of third respondent himself and hence no interference is required.

11. Supporting the submission of learned A.G.A., learned counsel for second respondent i.e. the complainant, has attempted to make a halfhearted faint submission that the public passage was existing at the place since long and was being used by the villagers and due to efflux of time, the land in question being used as public passage cannot be encroached by the revisionist, as his title is disputed and as such, the order dated 11.01.2019 is justified.

12. The law in respect of proceeding u/s 133 of Cr.P.C. is well settled inasmuch as such proceeding is summary in nature and the factual dispute about existence of public passage is required to be adjudicated upon in the light of denial of opposite party about existence of public passage and in case there is some substance or there is any reliable evidence in support of such denial, the Magistrate shall stay the proceedings until the matter of existence of such right is decided by a competent court and if he finds that there is no such evidence, he shall proceed as provided u/s 138 of Cr.P.C. In this regard, relevant provisions of law are being reproduced herein below :

(2) If in such inquiry the Magistrate finds that there is any reliable evidence in support of such denial, he shall stay the proceedings until the matter of the existence of such right has been decided by a competent Court; and if he finds that there is no such evidence, he shall proceed as laid down in section 138.

(3) A person who has, on being questioned by the Magistrate under sub-section (1), failed to deny the existence of a public right of the nature therein referred to, or who, having made such denial, has failed to adduce reliable evidence in support thereof, shall not in the subsequent proceedings be permitted to make any such denial.

139. Power of Magistrate to direct local investigation and examination of an expert

141. Procedure on order being made absolute and consequences of disobedience

(1) When an order has been made absolute under section 136 or section 138, the Magistrate shall give notice of the same to the person against whom the order was made, and shall further require him to perform the act directed by the order within a time to be fixed in the notice, and inform him that, in case of disobedience, he will be liable to the penalty provided by section 188 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)

(2) If such act is not performed within the time fixed, the Magistrate may cause it to be performed, and may recover the costs of performing it, either by the sale of any building, goods or other property removed by his order, or by the distress and sale of any other movable property of such person within or without such Magistrate's local jurisdiction and if such other property is without such jurisdiction, the order shall authorise its attachment and sale when endorsed by the Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction the property to be attached is found.

(3) No suit shall lie in respect of anything done in good faith under this section.

143. ....."

13. The scope of above quoted provisions has been discussed by this Court on many occasions. In the case of Raghubar Dutt vs. Suresh Chandra and others, 1987 ACR 566, this Court has discussed the scope of Section-137 of Cr.P.C. and observed as follows :

"5. A bare reading of Section 137 would indicate that the provisions therein are to prevent the Magistrate from arrogating himself the power of civil court. Further the Magistrate need not hold an elaborate enquiry regarding the rights of the parties. The ambit of the enquiry is to find out if there is some prima facie reliable evidence in support of the denial of public right. The Magistrate is not called upon to weigh the evidence in order to determine the rights and title or truth of the denial. But he has just to be satisfied as to whether there is some evidence which could indicate prima facie that it was possible for a competent court to place reliance upon the same. It does not obviously mean that evidence of such a character would definitely establish title of the land. Otherwise in that case the legislature would not have used the words 'just reliable evidence',, rather the words used would have been that the Magistrate would decide on the basis of evidence being led as to whether the person against whom the said order has been passed, has a right in the land to create unlawful obstruction in the public way. The language of Section 137(2) of the Code is couched in such a way that the reliable evidence would depend upon the circumstances of each case. To put it differently, it only connotes where the evidence was such that if unrebutted, it would prove the non-existence of public right as alleged by the person against whom conditional order was passed See Lala Bissoomal v. State, 1957 AWR 551, T. N. Sudhakaran v. Dr. L. M. George, 1977 Cri.LJ 542 and Jaswant Singh v. Jagir Singh, MANU/PH/0080/1972 : 1972 CriLJ 792. Further the legislature did not use the word 'evidence' which definitely establishes the right to claim. In other words, reliable evidence can be taken to be a form of evidence which is not the basis of unreliable or forged evidence. The duty of a Magistrate is merely to see whether the evidence in support of denial of public right is reliable.

6. In the instant case it is better to refer to the evidence led by the opposite parties to prove the denial of public way or the unlawful obstruction created. It was alleged by the opposite parties that plot No. 394 did not contain public way and there was no such entry like public way in plot No. 394 in revenue papers. Similarly in Khatauni for 1387 to 1392F an area of 8 biswa of plot No. 394 was entered as Goth and there was no mention about any public way or Rasta. Similarly extract of Khasra for the years 1374 to 1379 F also mentions the area of 8 biswa of plot No. 3 94A as Goth. There was no mention of any public way or Rasta. It was for the applicant to move an application Under Section 133 to explain as to how this entry of Goth was converted into Rasta. This was the question pertaining to right and title. The aforesaid extracts of Khasra and Khatauni were certainly reliable evidence within the meaning of Section 137(2) of the Code. On the basis of such evidence the Magistrate ought to have stayed the proceedings until the matter of existence of such right of public way was decided by a competent court. The Sessions Judge has correctly allowed the revision by the impugned order."

14. In Wali Uddin and others vs. State of U.P. and others, 1988 (12) ACR 1, this Court has elaborated the language of Section-137(1) of Cr.P.C. and concluded in following terms :

"23. It is also to be noticed that under Section 137(1) the Legislature has used the word "that after the denial of such right by opposite party the Magistrate shall inquire into the matter" and not that the Magistrate shall adjudicate upon or decide the matter or controversy between the parties. The word 'inquire', means eager, to acquire information. The word 'inquire', according to Shorter Oxford English Dictionary means to search into, to seek knowledge, to make inquisition, to make investigation, to seek information by questioning, to seek or to try to find out. The word reliable evidence having been used and the Magistrate having been directed to inquire into the matter and not to decide or adjudicate upon, it is clear that the person denying the public right has to put forward a just and bonafide claim. In case the Magistrate finds that there is some reliable evidence and certainly not a conclusive evidence in support of the denial of any public right to get the matter decided by a competent Court. I am however, of the view that the Section does not make it clear as to who is the person as to whether first party or the second party, who has to approach the Civil Court. One thing more may be clarified that in case the Magistrate finds that there is no such reliable evidence in that event he shall proceed in view of the provisions of Section 138 of the Code. In the instant case what has been done is entirely different. Even though the Magistrate confirmed the conditional order but the revision has been disposed of by the learned Additional Sessions Judge in total disregard of the provisions of Section 133 read with Section 137 of the Code. The learned Sessions Judge was exercising the same jurisdiction as was to be exercised by the learned Magistrate. He must have also proceeded to decide the case just with a view to make an enquiry as to whether there was some reliable evidence led by the opposite party No. 2 who denied the existence of such right and in case he found that there was reliable evidence his jurisdiction ceases and it was for the civil Court to decide the same. "

15. The Calcutta High Court in the case of Md. Basar Ali Molla and others vs. State of West Bengal and others, MANU/WB/0583/2006 has considered the aspect of emergency attached with the dispute regarding public nuisance and has held that it does not apply to private nuisance and private dispute and it is never intended to settle a private dispute. The relevant paragraphs of Md. Basar Ali Molla's case (supra) are being reproduced herein below :

"7. Section 133 Cr. PC relates to passing of order for removal of public nuisance in case of emergency. It does not apply to private nuisance and private dispute and it is never intended to settle a private dispute.

8. It has been laid down in the case reported in MANU/MP/0136/1958 : AIR1958MP350 that Chapter X of the Code of Criminal Procedure deals with "Public Nuisances" and not with private nuisances. The remedy for the latter is the civil suit although what constitutes nuisance may be common to both classes. Section 133 Cr. PC provides a speedy and summary remedy in case of urgency where danger to public interest or public health is concerned. In all other cases the party should be referred to the remedy under the ordinary law.*

9. Reference may also be made in the case reported in MANU/KE/0077/1964 : AIR1964Ker252 where it has been held that Section 133 Cr. PC can be used only where there has been an invasion of public rights. The case reported in MANU/BH/0076/1958 : AIR1958Pat210 is also relevant in this case' where it has been held that Section 133 Cr. PC cannot be used as a short cut to achieve what one would like to achieve in a Civil Court. The whole object of Section 133 Cr. PC is that the public should not suffer and that such dangers or obstructions caused by the members of the public should be removed at the earliest possible moment.*

10. In that case a decision of Allahabad High Court reported in MANU/UP/0008/1914 was referred. In that case it was held now it is certainly expedient that in all proceedings initiated under Section 133 of the Code of Criminal Procedure the Magistrate should bear in mind that he is supposed to be acting purely in the interests of the public and should be on his guard against tendency to use this section as substitute for litigation in the Civil Courts in order to the settlement of a private dispute.*

11. In the case reported in MANU/UP/0013/1942 : AIR1943All19 it has been stated that the proceedings under Section 133 Cr. PC is not intended to settle private dispute between two members of the public.

12. Reference can also be made in the case reported in MANU/MH/0210/1991 where it has been held that Chapter XB of Criminal Procedure Code deals with "public nuisances" and provides a speedy and summary method for dealing with them, in cases of great emergency and where there is imminent danger to the public interest.

13. In the instant case there are no dependable materials to hold that the disputed pathway was being used by the public at large but it appears that the same was used by the students and teachers of Sisu Siksha Kendra from 2003 to last week of February, 2005 and the same was not being used from the last week of February, 2005 as existence from the said pathway was destroyed and the same merged with the fishery. So, it does not appear that the public at large is being affected and there was any obstruction of public way or public way has been destroyed and the same requires repair. So, no case of sufferance of public is made out and it does not appear that the Magistrate had to act purely in the interest of the public. There is no invasion of public right. If it assumed that obstruction is caused to the use of the pathway in question by the students, teachers and guardians of students of Sisu Siksha Kendra by the petitioners then it is an obstruction not to the public at large but to a handful of persons and remedy for said obstruction cannot be had by resorting to provision of Section 133 Cr.PC. If there is any nuisance the same is purely a private nuisance for which Civil Court may be approached for appropriate remedy according to law. There is room for contention that Section 133 Cr.PC also does not contemplate any order for repairing of road which has been abolished and also any order in connection with such repair.

14. In view of my above discussions I hold that both the impugned orders dated 17.1.2006 and 7.7.2006 cannot stand and the same are liable to be set aside. In the result, the instant applications succeed and the same are allowed. The impugned orders passed by the learned Executive Magistrate are hereby set aside. I make no order as to costs. "

16. The crux of above quoted statutory law and the precedents is that the authority under section 133 of Cr.P.C. can be exercised by the executive magistrate, when any unlawful obstruction or nuisance is alleged on any public place or on any way, which is or may be lawfully used by the public, as is the controversy in the present case. However, to ascertain the justification of such allegation, the executive magistrate is required to see as to whether the person against whom the show cause has been issued under Section 133(1) of Cr.P.C. has placed "any reliable evidence" in denial of such allegation or not. While doing so, the executive magistrate is not required to ask for any conclusive evidence and he has to consider the evidence brought on record by the person denying existence of unlawful obstruction or nuisance with an understanding as to whether such evidence can be said to be reliable enough. If that is so, the executive magistrate should not proceed further in the matter and should relegate the parties to the competent civil court for determination of their rights. Even otherwise, the entry in government record regarding the land or passage in question has a direct bearing upon the claim of existence of "any public place" or "any way, which is or may be lawfully used by the public". When the person denying existence of unlawful obstruction or nuisance comes with an explanation that the land or passage in question is actually the land purchased by him through registered sale-deed and such land is not entered in the revenue or municipal record as "public place or public way or government/ municipal land", the executive magistrate should not casually brush aside such counter claim or explanation without giving any convincing reason in that regard and proceed only on the basis of some unsubstantiated statements of a few persons.

17. The proceedings under section 133 of Cr.P.C. are summary in nature and are meant for the cases of imminent danger to the public tranquility and peace and the same should not be used or rather misused to scuttle the valuable right of owner of property and that is why, the legislature has in its wisdom used the words "any reliable evidence" in support of such denial, in the event and in case of which he shall stay the proceedings until the matter of the existence of such right has been decided by a competent Court as provided under Section 137(2) of Cr.P.C., which is certainly having a different import and connotation than the word 'conclusive evidence'. This language used by the legislature has a limiting influence and works as a guideline while exercising authority under section 133 of Cr.P.C.

18. In the light of rival submissions made at the bar, this Court has had the occasion to peruse the entire record of the case, according to which neither the complaint dated 19.7.2017 nor two reports of local police dated 03.8.2017 and 10.10.2017 nor the inspection report of third respondent dated 28.12.2018 discloses any such details of revenue record which may go to demonstrate that the land in dispute was or is entered into any government record as public passage. The perusal of compliance report dated 12th March, 2019 sent on behalf of District Magistrate, Gorakhpur also clearly mentions that the passage shown in the map does not find place in the revenue record, though it has been sought to be shown in the report that at present, one 16 feet wife Kharanja is existing on the side which has been constructed by the village residents collecting common fund. It would be useful to quote the relevant part of inspection report dated 08.3.2019 :

"नायब तहसीलदार, पिपराइच द्वारा जांचोपरांत अपनी जांच आख्या दिनांक27.2.2019 (पताका- ग) प्रस्तुत करते हुए उल्लिखित किया गया है कि आ०नं०243/29 रकबा 0.295 हे० कब्रिस्तान के पूरब उत्तर नजरी नक्शे में प्रदर्शित रास्ते का अंकन राजस्व अभिलेख में नहीं है। मौके पर वर्तमान में16 फीट की चौड़ाई में रास्ता कायम है जिस पर खड़ंजा लगा है। उक्त रास्ता ग्राम निवासियों द्वारा चन्दा लगाकर बनवाया गया है (रास्ते का फोटोग्राफ तथा ग्रामवासियों का चन्दे से रास्ता बनवाए जाने का बयान संलग्न)"

19. The said inspection report dated 08.3.2019 is the enclosure of the report of District Magistrate dated 12.3.2019, which is based thereupon. Both the said reports dated 8.3.2019 and 12.3.2019 mention several other aspects of the land in question regarding its sale and purchase as well as regarding deficiency of stamp, which aspects are absolutely irrelevant for the purpose of adjudication of the case.

20. In the light of aforesaid factual aspects of the matter, this court has proceeded to consider the legality and veracity of impugned order dated 11.01.2019. The perusal of impugned order reveals observation of the third respondent to the effect that denial of revisionist regarding public passage is not reliable and that is why the removal of encroachment on public passage is justified. The third respondent has also observed that the inspection of site was conducted by him, during which statements of certain persons who were present on the spot were recorded, which disclosed that there was a chak road and chak Nali on the north and east side which has been demolished by the revisionist and road has been constructed. It has also been observed that the said chak road was going towards village via kabristan and the said passage having width about 16 feet near the kabristan has been squeezed by the revisionist and because of wall raised on the public passage, only 8 feet passage is available on the spot and the passage has been encroached. With such observations, the third respondent i.e. the City Magistrate, Gorakhpur has passed order u/s 133 (1) of Cr.P.C., whereby the revisionist has been asked to remove his wall on the passage within a week, so that the passage being used by the villagers may not have any hindrance. There is a recital in the said order about communication thereof to the local police station Cantt. for appropriate action and after due action the file has been ordered to be consigned to record.

21. The above noted observations and findings of third respondent do not disclose any detail about entry of public passage in government record and also do not disclose as to why the denial of the revisionist about existence of public passage was not found reliable.

22. On the anvil of above discussed statutory provisions as well as position of case law in that regard, it is undoubtedly clear that the impugned order is not only cryptic but is also bereft of any good reasoning which may justify the exercise of authority vested under Section-133 of Cr.P.C. Considering the facts of the case, in fact the revisionist appears to have placed sufficiently reliable evidence in the form of details of purchase of land in support of denial of public right in the face of which there appears no occasion for the third respondent to have passed the final order u/s 133 of Cr.P.C. for removal of boundary wall of the revisionist from the land in question. There is one another aspect of the matter that the inspection reports dated 8.3.2019 and 12.3.2019 submitted before this Court on behalf of the District Magistrate, Gorakhpur reveal that at present a 16 feet wide passage is existing having Kharanja thereupon, which has been constructed by the village residents through the collection of money. The procedure prescribed u/s 141 of Cr.P.C. in the case where the order u/s 136 of Cr.P.C. is made absolute, is that the removal of unlawful obstruction or nuisance is done by the person against whom the order is made and in this respect, the Magistrate has to give notice to such person requiring him to perform the act within a time frame fixed in the notice and in the event of disobedience such person against whom the order is made, is held liable to the penalty provided u/s 188 of the Indian Penal Code and in the case of disobedience the Magistrate may also cause such act to be performed and may also recover the cost of performing it from the properties of such person. In the present matter, this procedure has not been adopted for the reason not known to this Court and only best known to the third respondent. To observe the least, the manner in which the impugned order has been passed by third respondent reflects much about an unjustified and unmindful performance of statutory obligations bestowed upon him and the state of affairs leave much to be desired.

23. So far as the submission made on behalf of revisionist regarding demolition of boundary wall even after attaining knowledge of interim order passed by this Court on 15.02.2019 is concerned, this Court finds that the revisionist has already invoked contempt jurisdiction of this Court in a separate proceeding and as such this Court abstains itself from making any observation, lest it may cause prejudice to the rights of the parties to the contempt proceeding, which is subjudice according to submission made by the counsel for the revisionist.

24. Resultantly the revision succeeds and is allowed and the impugned order dated 11.01.2019 passed by the City Magistrate, Gorakhpur is hereby set aside.

(Para 7to 15)

B. It cannot be doubted that prosecution, when challenged, must satisfy that notice issued under section 13(2) has been served upon the accused but where accused at the stage of revision raise such plea for non-compliance of section 13(2), the court would not allow accused to take such factual plea when the stand taken before courts below shows that service of notice was not disputed. The mere fact that mention of wrong Court was an issue raised before court below is sufficient to prove the fact that notice was actually served upon the revisionist. (Para18 to 22)

11. Vijendra Vs. State of U.P. and Ors(Cri. Ap. 1167 of 2019)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mukhtar Alam, Advocate, for Revisionist and learned A.G.A. for respondents.

2. This criminal revision under Section 401 read with Section 397 Cr.P.C. has been filed aggrieved by judgment and order dated 15.03.1985 passed by Special Judicial Magistrate, Nagina, Bijnor in Case No. 1335 of 1982 convicting Revisionist under Section 7/16 of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1954") and sentencing him to undergo six months' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1000/- Thereagainst Accused-Revisionist preferred Criminal Appeal No. 78 of 1985 which has been dismissed by 2nd Additional Sessions Judge, Bijnor vide judgment and order dated 28.06.1980.

3. The prosecution story, inter alia, is that on 30.04.1982 at about 07.00 AM, Sri Virendra Kumar, Food Inspector found Accused-Revisionist, Shamim Ahmad, carrying about 20 liters of buffalo milk in two canes on his cycle for sale on Nethaur Road in Village Mehmoodpur, District Bijnor. Food Inspector suspected the milk to be adulterated and thereupon after disclosing his identity and serving necessary notice, took a sample of 660 M.Ls. buffalo milk from Accused-Revisionist and paid the cost. Necessary receipt was issued to Revisionist who put thumb mark on it. Sample was divided into three parts and after observing all formalities, one was sent to Public Analyst for examination and rest two were deposited in the Office of Chief Medical Officer, Bijnor. Public Analyst found the milk deficient in fat contents by 17 per cent and non fatty contents by 1 per cent. After obtaining necessary sanction from Chief Medical Officer, Bijnor, complaint was filed by Food Inspector against Accused-Revisionist in the Court.

4. Accused-Revisionist was prosecuted for the offence under Section 7/16 of Act, 1954. In his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. he denied to have sold any sample of milk to Food Inspector. According to him, he did not carry on the profession of selling milk but he was a Labourer. He was doing labour in the Hospital, Kotwali, Food Inspector wanted to take work from him to which he did not agree and thereupon Food Inspector got his thumb impression on the alleged notice Ex. Ka-1 and receipt Ex. Ka.-2.

5. Prosecution, in support of its case, examined Sri Virendra Kumar, Food Inspector, as PW-1, Sri Athar Husain, Clerk in office of Chief Medical Officer as PW-2 and Sri Mool Chand, Vaccinator, as PW-3. Revisionist in defence examined Raees Ahmad as DW-1.

6. After recording oral testimony and perusing material on record, Trial Court convicted and sentenced Accused-Revisionist, as stated above, vide judgment and order dated 15.03.1985 which has been confirmed by Appellate Court by dismissing Revisionist's appeal, vide judgment and order dated 28.06.1980. This revision has been filed challenging both the aforesaid orders.

7. Judgements of Courts below have been challenged on the grounds that; (1) there was non compliance of Section 10(7) of Act, 1954 inasmuch there was no independent witness for sample taken by Food Inspector, (2) before taking sample, milk was not properly shaken which is mandatory requirement, (3) copy of Public Analyst Report was not supplied to Revisionist in time and there was a complete non compliance of Section 13(2) of Act, 1954.

8. So far as first aspect is concerned, it is now well settled that when independent witnesses are not available, Food Inspector can proceed to take sample and mere non-availability of independent witness will not vitiate proceedings. A three Judges Bench of Apex Court in Shri Ram Labhaya Vs. Municipal Corporation of Delhi and another, 1974(4) SCC 491 has held that if no independent witness was willing to cooperate, Food Inspector cannot compel their presence. Hence, proceedings will not be vitiated for non availability of independent witness and Section 10(7) will not help the accused at all.

9. Now coming to second aspect, it cannot be doubted that milk is a primary product containing fat content and the fat content would also depend on the manner in which sample is taken after stirring. Supreme Court in K. Harikumar Vs. Food Inspector, Punaloor Municipality 1995 Supp. (3) SCC 405 has held that stirring and churning of milk before taking sample is necessary. Therefore, it was necessary to establish that the sample was taken in a proper manner after stirring which would make the fat and non-fat into homogenous mixture.

10. In the present case, record shows that Food Inspector though stated that he stirred and churned the milk before taking sample, but it is contended that there is no other evidence to corroborate the same. I find that on this aspect, there is no cross-examination. For mere absence of corroboration, Food Inspector's evidence cannot be disbelieved particularly when I do not find any otherwise evidence to doubt the testimony of Food Inspector. It has been repeatedly held that mere fact that if a Police official has given evidence, the same is not to be disbelieved if not corroborated by any other evidence.

11. If the evidence of police officer is found acceptable, it would be an erroneous proposition that Court must reject prosecution version solely on the ground that no independent witness was examined. In Pradeep Narayan Madqaonkar & others vs. State of Maharashtra 1995 (4) SCC 255, it was held:

"Indeed, the evidence of the official (police) witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the ground that they belong to the police force and are, either interested in the investigation of the prosecuting agency but prudence dictates that their evidence needs to be subjected to strict scrutiny and as far as possible corroboration of their evidence in material particulars should be sought. Their desire to see the success of the case based on their investigation, requires greater care to appreciate their testimony."

12. In Balbir Singh Vs. State 1996(11) SCC 139, Court has repelled a similar contention based on non-examination of independent witnesses. The same legal position has been reiterated time and again by Apex Court vide Paras Ram vs. State of Haryana 1992 (4) SCC 662, Sama Alana Abdulla vs. State of Gujarat 1996 (1) SCC 427 and Anil alias Andya Sadashiv Nandoskar vs. State of Maharashtra 1996 (2) SCC 589.

13. In Subhash Singh Thakurshyam vs State (Through CBI) (1997) 8 SCC 732, a Two Judge Bench of the Apex Court comprising of Hon'ble M. Mukherjee and Hon'ble K. Thomas JJ, in para 90 observed:

"....We should not forget that the time of the raid was during the odd hours when possibly no pedestrian would have been trekking on the road nor any shopkeeper remaining in his shop nor a hawker moving around on the pavements."

14. In State of U.P. v. Zakaullah 1998 Cri. L.J. 863 in para-10, it is said:

"The necessity for "independent witness" in cases involving police raid or police search is incorporated in the statute not for the purpose of helping the indicted person to bypass the evidence of those panch witnesses who have had some acquaintance with the police or officers conducting the search at some time or the other. Acquaintance with the police by itself would not destroy a man's independent outlook. In a society where police involvement is a regular phenomenon many people would get acquainted with the police. But as long as they are not dependent on the police for their living or liberty or for any other matter, it cannot be said that those are not independent persons. If the police in order to carry out official duties, have sought the help of any other person he would not forfeit his independent character by giving help to police action. The requirement to have independent witness to corroborate the evidence of the police is to be viewed from a realistic angle. Every citizen of India must be presumed to be an independent person until it is proved that he was a dependent of the police or other officials for any purpose whatsoever."

15. Referring to some of the the aforesaid decisions, Court in Girja Prasad Vs. State of M.P. (2007) 7 SCC 625 held:

"It is well-settled that credibility of witness has to be tested on the touchstone of truthfulness and trustworthiness. It is quite possible that in a given case, a Court of Law may not base conviction solely on the evidence of Complainant or a Police Official but it is not the law that police witnesses should not be relied upon and their evidence cannot be accepted unless it is corroborated in material particulars by other independent evidence. The presumption that every person acts honestly applies as much in favour of a Police Official as any other person. No infirmity attaches to the testimony of Police Officials merely because they belong to Police Force. There is no rule of law which lays down that no conviction can be recorded on the testimony of Police Officials even if such evidence is otherwise reliable and trustworthy. The rule of prudence may require more careful scrutiny of their evidence. But, if the Court is convinced that what was stated by a witness has a ring of truth, conviction can be based on such evidence." (para 25)

16. In the present case, it is not the case of Revisionist that when sample was taken, any independent witness was present and that should have been produced to corroborate the testimony of Food Inspector that before taking sample, milk was properly stirred. Moreover, Food Inspector has given a categorical statement on this aspect and since defence has not cross-examined on this aspect, I find no reason to disbelieve the otherwise testimony of Food Inspector on this aspect. Accordingly, even the second contention, noticed above, has no substance and is rejected.

17. Therefore, even the second contention, I find has no force.

18. Now coming to third submission, I find that despatch of Public Analyst Report has been shown as a proper compliance of Section 13 (2) of Act, 1954 but there is nothing to show that the said report was actually acknowledged or received or served upon Revisionist. Complaint was lodged in the Court on 16.08.1982 and notice was sent under Section 13(2) to revisionist on 19.08.1982. The revisionist appeared in the Court on 30.10.1982 and was released on bail. The issue of compliance of Section 13(2) has been decided by Courts below only on the ground that Revisionist did not apply for examination of food material by Central Food Laboratory and, therefore, cannot raise any grievance of non-compliance of Section 13(2) of Act, 1954 but here I find that service of notice upon accused was necessary to be proved by Prosecution so as to prove compliance of Section 13(2) of Act, 1954. This is mandatory. This aspect has been considered by Supreme Court very recently in Vijendra Vs. State of U.P. and others (Criminal Appeal No. 1167 of 2019) (Arising out of S.L.P. (Criminal) No. 4314 of 2015) decided on 31.07.2019 and in para 15 of judgment, Court has said as under:

"The very purpose of furnishing such report is to enable the Accused to seek for reference to the Central Food Laboratory for analysis if the Accused is dissatisfied with the report. Such safeguard provided to the Accused Under Section 13(2) of the Act is a valuable right. In that view even if the despatch of the report on 07.04.1980 is taken as substantial compliance though it is beyond the period of 10 days from 18.03.1980 i.e., the date on which the prosecution was lodged, in the absence of there being proof of delivery of the report to the Accused; in the instant facts the valuable right available to the Accused/Appellant to seek for reference within the period of 10 days stands defeated. In that circumstance when the Appellant/Accused is made to suffer the penal consequences, it will have to be construed strictly. In the facts and circumstances of this case, since as already noticed above the report of the Analyst has not in fact been served on the Appellant and the mere despatch of the report as per the statement of PW-2 was not sufficient." (emphasis added)

19. Learned A.G.A., at this stage, did not dispute that service of notice under Section 13(2) is necessary but pointed out that in the present case, factum that notice was received by Revisionist was not disputed at all for the reason that issue raised before Lower Appellate Court was that notice received by Revisionist has wrong mention of Court which shows that notice was actually received by Revisionist and issue raised before this Court is contrary to what was contended in Courts below.

20. I find substance in what is said by learned A.G.A. Judgment of Lower Appellate Court, in para-9 shows that while arguing that there was non-compliance of Section 13(2) of Act, 1954, Accused-Revisionist argued that name of Court was wrongly mentioned in the notice. This argument was not found correct by Lower Appellate Court as is evident from following findings:

"9. It has next been argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that there has not been any compliance of Rule 13(2) of the Act in as much as in the information given to the appellant the name of the Court has been written as Munsif Magistrate Nagina whereas the complaint was filed in the Court of Ist Addl. Munsif Magistrate, Nagina. This contention too is not acceptable as in the present case, complaint was filed in the Court of Ist Addl. Munsif Magistrate on 16.8.82. The information u/s 13(2) of the Act was sent to the appellant on 19.8.82 by registered post which is Ext. Ka.-1. In this information it has been mentioned that the complaint had been filed against him on 16.8.82 in the Court of Munsif Magistrate, Nagina Distt. Bijnor." (emphasis added)

21. I have gone through the judgment of Courts below carefully and find that there was no complaint made before Court below that notice under Section 13(2) was not received by Accused-Revisionist at all, and, therefore, his right under Section 13(2) was violated. In fact, Revisionist sought to challenge the said notice on different ground which has not been found of any substance by Courts below.

22. Therefore, as a proposition of law, it cannot be doubted that prosecution, when challenged, must satisfy that notice issued under Section 13(2) has been served upon accused but where accused at the stage of Revision raise such plea that notice has not been served upon him and there is non-compliance of Section 13(2), but no such issue was raised in Courts below particularly, Lower Appellate Court, this Court would not allow accused to take such factual plea when as a matter of fact, the stand taken before Courts below shows that service of notice was not disputed, instead notice was challenged on another ground. The mere fact that mention of wrong Court was an issue raised before Court below is sufficient to prove the fact that notice was actually served upon Revisionist. Hence, even third submission has no force.

23. No other point has been argued.

24. The revision lacks merits. Dismissed.

25. The Revisionist, Shamim Ahmad, is on bail. His bail bonds and surety bonds are cancelled. The Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bijnor shall cause him them to be arrested and lodged in jail to serve out sentence passed against him. The compliance shall be reported within two months.

26. Certify this judgment to the Lower Court immediately.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arpit Agarwal, learned counsel for revisionist and learned A.G.A. for State.

2. This Criminal Revision under Section 401 read with Section 397 Cr.P.C. has been filed aggrieved by judgment and order dated 09.05.1991 passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magisrate, Nageena, Bijnor in Criminal Case No. 1865 of 1990 convicting and sentencing revisionist under Section 7/16 of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1954'). Thereagainst accused-revisionist preferred Criminal Appeal No. 43 of 1992 which has been dismissed by Sessions filed challenging both the aforesaid orders.

3. Counsel for revisionist contended that revisionist is entitled for benefit under Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1958") but I find that punishment has been awarded under the provisions of Food Adulteration Act, wherein minimum sentence of six months and fine of Rs. 1000/- has been provided and hence in such a case, Act, 1958 will no apply as held by Supreme Court in State through S.P., New Delhi vs. Ratan Lal Arora (2004) 4 SCC 590, followed in State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Vikram Das (2019) 4 SCC 125.

4. It is next contended that there is non compliance of Section 13(2) of Act, 1954 inasmuch the report of Public Analyst was not served upon revisionist and Court below treated compliance of Section 13(2) only on the ground that report was sent by registered post on the address of revisionist is sufficient compliance.

5. I find force in the submission.

6. Learned A.G.A. could not dispute that this approach of Courts below is not consistent with the exposition of law laid by Supreme Court very recently in Vijendra Vs. State of U.P. and others (Criminal Appeal No. 1167 of 2019) (Arising out of S.L.P. (Criminal) No. 4314 of 2015) decided on 31.07.2019 and in para 15 of judgment, Court has said as under:

"The very purpose of furnishing such report is to enable the Accused to seek for reference to the Central Food Laboratory for analysis if the Accused is dissatisfied with the report. Such safeguard provided to the Accused Under Section 13(2) of the Act is a valuable right. In that view even if the despatch of the report on 07.04.1980 is taken as substantial compliance though it is beyond the period of 10 days from 18.03.1980 i.e., the date on which the prosecution was lodged, in the absence of there being proof of delivery of the report to the Accused; in the instant facts the valuable right available to the Accused/Appellant to seek for reference within the period of 10 days stands defeated. In that circumstance when the Appellant/Accused is made to suffer the penal consequences, it will have to be construed strictly. (emphasis added)

7. Therefore, as a proposition of law, it cannot be doubted that prosecution, when challenged, must satisfy that notice issued under Section 13(2) has been served upon accused because it is right of accused and prosecution must prove that not only report of Public Analyst was sent by registered post, but it was actually served upon accused-Revisionist, which has not been done in the case in hand.

8. In the result, this revision is allowed. Impugned judgements and orders dated 09.05.1991 and 14.08.1992 are hereby set aside.

A. Criminal Law -Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 - Section 38 - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - S ection 376D - application-providing the help of interpreter to the seven year old victim for recording the evidence- challenge to - violation of section 38-interpreter can only be provided to a physically or mentally disabled person - disability is quite a distinct thing from inability - providing interpreter to a child who is unable to communicate is not to be treated as disabled person-the word 'unable to communicate' are in consonance with the provision of section 119 Evidence Act.

B. 2. K.K. Patel and Ors Vs. State of Gujrat, AIR (2000) SC 3346

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Kunvar Srivastav, J.)

1. The present revision is moved on behalf of the accused-applicants involved in Case Crime No. 287 of 2017, under Section 376-D Indian Penal Code, 1860 and Section 7/8 of Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (hereinafter which shall be referred as 'POCSO' in short), Police Station PGI, District Lucknow. The revision is directed against the order of Addl. Sessions Judge/Special Judge POCSO Act, Lucknow dated 22.07.2019, made Annexure no. 1 to this revision.

2. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State on the point of admission of the revision. Learned A.G.A. termed the order, impugned in this revision, in nature, 'interlocutory order'. He further argued, since revision is moved under Section 397/401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, therefore there is a bar as to the admissibility contained under sub Section (2) of Section 397 Cr.P.C.

3. For easy reference Section 397 (2) is quoted below:.

"(2) The powers of revision conferred by sub- section (1) shall not be exercised in relation to any interlocutory order passed in any appeal, inquiry, trial or other proceeding."

4. Learned A.G.A. argued that in view of the aforesaid Clause (2) of Section 397 Cr.P.C., there is a clear bar on the admissibility of the revision, being moved against an interlocutory order, hence must be dismissed at the very stage of admission.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionists, despite the contention of learned A.G.A. as to the bar on admissibility of revision, without addressing the issue, emphasized on the point that the impugned order is passed by the Special Court, in utter violation of the law, misconstruing the provisions of Section 38 of the POCSO Act which occasioned a serious illegality, causing grave injustice to the accused-revisionist, hence the revision lies and impugned order is liable to be interfered exercising power of revision by the Court.

6. In the light of arguments, examined the impugned order alongwith the other materials, placed on record, whether it is passed misconstruing the provisions of Section 38 of the POCSO Act read with the relevant provision of Indian Evidence Act, 1872, applicable to recording of the statement of a victim of sexual offences, during trial.

7. Before discussing the arguments, raised by learned counsel for the revisionists, it would be helpful in judging the legality of the order to look into the facts of the incident, as well as proceeding of the trial before Special court.

8. The First Information Report, briefly stating, discloses that the victim, 5 years' old girl-child, was being sexually abused in the premises of her school "Allen House Public School," Vrindavan Yojna, Lucknow. She, in the age of 4 years, got admission in the said school. On 10.05.2017, the informant lodged First Information Report when she (the mother) noticed that intermittently her daughter suffers sickness with complaint of burning and difficulty while urinating. At the relevant time of lodging the FIR, the child was of 5 years in age. She noticed further that private part of her daughter has some swelling. When she asked the daughter, her reply disclosed that in her school a bhaiya of elder age, who had magic tricks and stories of fairies, on the pretext of entertaining her with magic and stories, used to insert fingers and some other things in her private part. She further told that there were several boys elder in age, students of Class-10, who used to be dressed like her father, also taken her in a room in the school premises where an aunty caught her hold from back and then those elder boys inserted finger and some other things in her private part. Several other like allegations made in the FIR were investigated. The accused-revisionists came into picture as one of the culprits. Naturally, a case alongwith relevant Sections of the Indian Penal Code and Section 3/4 of the 'Prevention of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012' were slapped against the accused-revisionist. During trial, by Special Judge, in the course of recording evidence, the victim child who at the relevant time grew old of 7 years, when subjected to question in cross examination as to the incident how happened with her, the court and the parents felt that she is unable to communicate her answer due to lisping tongue as well as to understand the question in their true sense and answer them. Consequent thereupon, on the application of the parents, learned court exercised it's jurisdiction under Section 38 of the POCSO Act and ordered to provide the victim an 'interpreter' on the cost of the informant.

9. This order, providing the help of interpretor to the aforesaid victim, is challenged in this revision on the ground that 'interpretor' can only be provided to a physically or mentally disabled person and not to a person who is free from such ailments or disability. Submission of learned counsel is that learned Special Judge, going beyond the power given to him under Section 38 of the POCSO Act, has provided the help of interpreter to the victim during cross-examination, which is illegal.

10. The vehemence of the argument is only upon the said fact. Learned counsel has avoided to argue on the point that whether the impugned order, which is passed in the proceeding so as to make furtherance of the proceeding, can be challenged in the revision despite a bar under Section 397(2) of the Cr.P.C.

11. In the wake of insisting argument of learned counsel for the revisionist, the point raised as to the illegality of the order, is taken first to consider, whether the learned court exercised its jurisdiction beyond the power vested in it under the POCSO Act and therefore the said order is illegal.

12. For easy reference and convenience, Section 38 of the POCSO Act is quoted hereunder:

"(1) Wherever necessary, the Court may take the assistance of a translator or interpreter having such qualifications, experience and on payment of such fees as may be prescribed, while recording the evidence of the child.

(2) If a child has a mental or physical disability, the Special Court may take the assistance of a special educator or any person familiar with the manner of communication of the child or an expert in that field, having such qualifications, experience and on payment of such fees as may be prescribed to record the evidence of the child."

13. Obviously the aforesaid provision of Section 38 of POCSO Act is having two parts. The vehemence of the argument by learned counsel for the revisionists is upon sub Section (2) of Section 38 of the POCSO Act. Reading over Clause 2 of Section 38 of the Act, learned counsel emphasized that unless the girl suffers from any physical or mental disability, the 'interpreter' could not be given to her. Arguing on the point as to over exercise of the jurisdiction, learned counsel ignored sub Section (1) of Section 38 of the POCSO Act where the opening words used are "Wherever necessary", the Court may take the assistance of a translator or interpreter having such qualifications, experience and on payment of such fees as may be prescribed, while recording the evidence of the child". The said words 'wherever necessary' emanate the Court to exercise it's discretion in appropriate case.

14. Under the POCSO Act, the 'child' is defined as a person below the age of 18 years. The term therefore includes child being newly born or of tender age from months to years below the age of 18 years. A child having the age of adolescence or a child due to lack of sufficient vocabulary of a particular language or having no acquaintance with the dialect of the language being used by the speaker may be unable to speak, understand or communicate in that particular language. The child may or may not know the words used by other person making conversation with him/her. Even the nature, true meaning/sense of conversation being made to him/her by another person would not be assessable by the child. "To communicate" with any person who is talking with him/her in a particular language, even if known by reason of immaturity of mind would not be understandable to a child. Naturally, he or she would feel 'unable to communicate' with the speaker. These all and other like things make a child 'unable to communicate'.

15. In the present case the girl being a child of tender age (7 years) when subjected to examination in Court for recording her evidence as victim, the questions made to her by some one else (in the present case the defence counsel), to whom she had earlier never heard might have felt herself "unable to understand" the questions. Even if understandable to her, she might have felt 'inability to communicate' properly and correctly, by reason of lack of vocabulary and lisping tongue. The trouble of the child when noticed by the parents and Court, it made them apprehensive of recording of incorrect evidence of the child. In such circumstance, it always would be necessary for the Court to endevour the witness to make him/her expressive of thoughts running in the mind while trying to answer the question in true sense and aspect of the fact.

16. The opening words of Section 38(1) "whenever necessary" signify the discretion of the court to be exercised in any such circumstance while recording the evidence of a child. The court on the application of the parents or on its own observation may gather from the circumstance which necessitate to provide a translator or the interpreter as the case may be.

The difference between 'Unable' and 'Disable'

17. Considering the argument of learned counsel as to the word used in Section 38(2) of the Act to circumspect the necessity for providing help of translator/interpreter to a child while recording the evidence in the case of 'disability' of a child (mental or physical disability), it would not be out of relevance to mention that sub Section (1) of Section 38 does not use the word 'disable'. There is a lot of difference between the words 'unable' and 'disable'. In the present context, it would be necessary to see that both the words have different meaning. 'Unable' literally means a person who is not able while 'disable' means a person incapable of using body part by the action. It clearly means that the 'disability' is quite a distinct thing from 'inability'. One can take example of a child (person) who is dumb/deaf, mentally sick or a person suffering from any other such incapacity to hear, speak or communicate is called severe form of "disability". Section 38(2) of the POCSO Act applies to such persons, whereas Section 38(1) of the POCSO Act applies to a child who is not disable but 'unable to communicate'. The words pronounced by a child varies according to her age. In the present case the victim at the relevant time of recording of evidence in Court is 7 years old with lisping tongue, naturally she would be unable to communicate or any communication made to her by other person, would be much difficult than that made to a well grown child reaching to age of 18 years.

Section 38(1) of POCSO Act in consonance with proviso to amended provision of Section 119 Evidence Act

18. Further, the POCSO Act came into force on 03.02.2013. Section 38 of the Act when came into operation, the provision of Evidence Act, 1872 was also amended. Before the amendment, Section 119 of the Evidence Act was as under:

"[Dumb witnesses- a witness who is unable to speak may give his evidence in any other manner in which he can make it intelligible, as by writing or by signs; but such writing must be written and the signs made in open Court. Evidence so given shall be deemed to be oral evidence."]"

19. Section 119 in The Indian Evidence Act, 1872 as amended vide amending Act no. 13 of 2013 w.e.f. 03.02.2013 runs as under:

[119. Witness unable to communicate verbally-A witness who is unable to speak may give his evidence in any other manner in which he can make it intelligible, as by writing or by signs; but such writing must be written and the signs made in open Court. Evidence so given shall be deemed to be oral evidence:

provided that if the witness is unable to communicate verbally, the court shall take the assistance of an interpreter or a special educator in recording the statement, and such statement shall be videographed.

20. On perusal of the amended and unamended Section of the Evidence Act, 1872, it can clearly be seen that after 03.02.2013 when the amended Act came into force, Section 38(1) of POCSO Act in it's spirit and effect seems to have taken place in the proviso of amended provision of Section 119. It is note worthy that amended Section 119 of the Evidence Act in it's proviso, uses the words 'unable to communicate verbally', the words 'unable to communicate' are in consonance with Section 38 (1) of the POCSO Act.

21. As such, on the basis of above discussion, the argument of learned counsel for the revisionists that the court below while passing the impugned order went beyond the jurisdiction vested in it and wrongly exercised his power to appoint interpreter for victim-child, aged about 7 years, during cross-examination, is incorrect, baseless and suffers from misconception as to the provisions of Evidence Act and the relevant Section 38 of the POCSO Act. In my view courts are made competent under Section 38(1) of POCSO Act read with proviso appended to Section 119 of the Evidence Act (as amended vide Act No. 13 of 2013, w.e.f. 03.02.2013) to provide help of translator or interpreter as the case may be in appropriate cases, to a victim child who is unable to communicate verbally, while recording evidence.

22. Coming on the second point as to the bar of Section 397 (2) of the Cr.P.C., undoubtedly on bare reading of the impugned order providing the interpreter, to the child subjected to cross-examination by a well skilled advocate in defence, is not a final order. Nothing is doing, when this order exists, to culminate the proceeding or finally decide the right of the accused, adversely affecting his defence. In deciding whether an order challenged is interlocutory or not so far as Section 397(2) Cr.P.C. is concerned, the sole test is not whether such order was passed during the interim stage, if the order, under challenge, culminates the criminal proceeding as a whole or finally decided the right and liability of the parties then the order passed is not interlocutory. This is laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of M/s Bhaskar Industries Limited Vs. Bhiwani Denim and Apparels Ltd. and Others reported in [AIR 2001 SC 3625] and in the case of K.K. Patel and others Vs. State of Gujrat [AIR 2000 SC 3346].

23. The impugned order is purely interlocutory which cannot be amenable in revision under Section 397 Cr.P.C. and suffers from the bar under Sub-Section (2) of Section 397 Cr.P.C.

24. On the above two scores, I find that the revision is not admissible and, therefore, the same is dismissed at the very threshold.

A. Civil Law- Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 - Section 94 - Determination of age of juvenile - Age of juvenile can be determined on the basis of high school certificate/marks-sheet or school record if there is no doubt with regards to genuineness and authenticity thereof - Court has to be sure about the genuineness and authenticity of such certificate/marks-sheet, particularly when there is sufficient material on record to create doubt on such certificate/marks-sheet :- When there arises reasonable doubt in respect thereof, the same cannot be relied blindly and the court is empowered under law to ignore the same - Accused cannot be allowed to abuse the statutory protection by attempting to prove himself as a minor when the documentary evidence to prove his minority gives rise to a reasonable doubt about his assertion of minority. (Para 13, 14)

Held:- Whatever information was provided with regards to the education of Mandeep Singh was highly suspicious and contradictory. In view of contradictions in school record of Mandeep, the JJ Board, finding no other option determined the age on the basis of the medical evidence - Juvenile Justice Board, declared the age of Mandeep Singh to be 20 years and 4 months on the basis of medical report after deducting one year from the age determined in medical report. 10. Ashwani Kumar Saxena Vs St. of M.P. 2012 (79) ACC 748.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri B.K. Srivastava, Senior Advocate assisted by Ms. Poooja Srivastava, learned counsel for the revisionist, Shri Subhash Chandra Pandey, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2, Sri M.P. Singh, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. This revision has been filed against the judgement and order dated 01.04.2014 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 2, Rampur in Criminal Appeal No. 66 of 2013 (Smt. Valajindra Kaur Vs. State of U.P and another) dismissing the appeal and affirming the order of Juvenile Justice Board dated 09.10.2013.

3. Aggrieved by the impugned judgement, this revision has been filed challenging the impugned judgement on the ground that the impugned judgement is against the material evidence on record, arbitrary, illegal and suffers from manifest error of law and is based on conjectures and surmises. The court below has not applied its judicial mind. In absence of the matriculation certificate the date of birth recorded in the school first attended has to be taken into consideration, in which the date of birth was recorded to be 01.02.1995 and the same was proved by principal of concerned school. In the family register also the same date of birth was mentioned and the extract of the family register was proved by the Secretary, Gram Panchayat. Instead of relying on these evidence, Juvenile Justice Board relied on medical report with regards to the age of Mandeep Singh which is contrary to law as medical evidence is not binding and the school admission register, transfer certificate and extract of family register was on record and were proved by the witnesses. Therefore, the revisionist has prayed to set aside the impugned judgement as well as the judgement of Principal Judge, Juvenile Justice Board dated 09.10.2013 in Case Crime No. 1563 of 2011 by which prayer to declare Mandeep Singh juvenile has been turned down.

4. The revisionist is the mother of Mandeep Singh who gave an application before the Juvenile Justice Board that the date of birth of Mandeep Singh is 01.02.1995, and at the time of incident he was aged about 16 years 10 months. The learned counsel for the revisionist has submitted that earlier the Juvenile Justice Board by order dated 20.02.2013, declared Mandeep Singh to be juvenile within the meaning of Juvenile Justice Act on the basis of school record. Against the judgement of the Juvenile Justice Board an appeal was preferred by the complainant side and the same was dismissed on 26.04.2013. Against that order, revision was filed before the High Court and by the order dated 04.07.2013 passed in Criminal Revision No. 1546 of 2013 (Darshan Singh Vs. State of U.P), the High Court set aside the impugned order dated 26.04.2013 and the order dated 20.02.2013 passed by Juvenile Justice Board for taking afresh decision on the juvenility after taking evidence regarding education of Mandeep Singh from class-I to class-V. Opposite party no. 2 was directed to assist the Board in providing information regarding his school first attended. It was further directed that if such information is not provided and information is withheld from the Board, the Board shall be at liberty to take decision on the basis of opinion of Medical Board in accordance with Rule 12(3) of Rules 2007. The present revision pertains to second stage of litigation on that point as after the case was remanded by this court by order dated 04.7.2013, the Juvenile Justice Board, after taking evidence and hearing both the sides, rejected the application of the revisionist declaring the age of Mandeep Singh to be 20 years and 4 months on the basis of medical report after deducting one year from the age determined in medical report. Against this order of the Juvenile Justice Board, an appeal was preferred by the revisionist and the same was dismissed by the impugned judgement dated 01.04.2014.

5. Section 7A of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children Act, 2007) provides as follows:-

"7A. Procedure to be followed when claim of juvenility is raised before any court. (1) Whenever a claim of juvenility is raised before any court or a Act and the rules made thereunder, even if the juvenile has ceased to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act.

(2) If the court finds a person to be a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence under sub-section (1), it shall forward the juvenile to the Board for passing appropriate order, and the sentence if any, passed by a court shall be deemed to have no effect."

Determination of the question of Juvenility

6. Section 2(l3) of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 which contains almost similar provision to that of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children Act, 2007), defines a child in conflict with law "as a child who is alleged or found to have committed an offence and who has not completed eighteen years of age on the date of commission of such offence". Section 2(35) defines juvenile as "a child below the age of eighteen years."

7. Section 9(2) makes provision for a claim of juvenility to be raised before any court at any stage, even after final disposal of a case and sets out the procedure which the court is required to adopt, when such claim of juvenility is raised. It provides for an inquiry, taking of evidence as may be necessary (but not affidavit) so as to determine the age of a person and to record a finding whether the person in question is a juvenile or not.

8. The proviso adds that a claim of juvenility may be raised before any court at any stage, even after final disposal of the case. The claim of such a juvenile shall be considered, even if the juvenile has ceased to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act.

9. Section 94 of the Act provides the procedure to be followed by the courts or the Boards for the purpose of determination of age in every case concerning a child in conflict with law. It provides that the Court or Board shall determine the age by undertaking the process of age determination by seeking evidence by obtaining as follows:-

(i) the date of birth certificate from the school, matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board if available; and in the absence thereof;

(ii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(iii) and only in the absence of (i) and(ii) above, age shall be determined by an ossification test or any other latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the committee or the Board;

10. It has been further provided that such age determination shall be completed within 15 days from the date of order of the Board and the age so determined shall be deemed to be true age of the person for the purpose of this Act.

11. Earlier Rule 12 (3) of Rules, 2007 provided similar but slightly different provision from section 94 of the new Act of 2015 so for as it has brought all school certificate under one umbrella under sub-section (1) which provides 'the date of birth certificate from the school, matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board if available;' as the first requirement. Rule 12 (3) reads as follows:

"In every case concerning a child or juvenile in conflict with law, the age determination inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee by seeking evidence by obtaining--

(a) (i) the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and in the absence whereof;

(ii) the date of birth certificate from the school (other than a play school) first attended; and in the absence whereof;

(iii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or panchayat;

(b) and only in the absence of either (i), (ii) or (iii) of clause (a) above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted Medical Board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or child. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, the Court or the Board, as the case may be, the Committee, for the reasons to be recorded by them, may, if considered necessary, give benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his/her age on lower side within the margin of one year; and, while passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available, or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age and either of the evidence specified in any of the clauses (a)(i), (ii), (iii) or in the absence whereof, clause (b) shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or the juvenile in conflict with law."

12. In Shah Nawaz vs. State of U.P. (SC), 2011(5) ALJ 580, referring to Raju and Anr. vs. State of Haryana (2010) 3 SCC 235 where the Court had admitted "mark sheet" as one of the proof in determining the age of the accused person, Hari Ram vs. State of Rajasthan & Anr., (2009) 13 SCC 211, Ravinder Singh Gorkhi vs. State of U.P. (2006) 5 SCC 584 where the issue of School Leaving Certificate was involved and the Court took the view that such certificate in order to become evidence of age, it should be shown that it was issued in the ordinary course of business of the school and the said date of birth was recorded in a register maintained by the school in terms of the requirements of law as contained in Section 35 of the Evidence Act. It was held that the entry relating to date of birth entered in the mark sheet is one of the valid proof and evidence for determination of age of an accused person. Therefore, the matriculation marks-sheet and certificate is a conclusive evidence of age and there remains no further need to seek any other proof of age. Again, in Ashwani Kumar Saxena vs State of MP (2012) 9 SCC 750 and Jodhbir Singh vs State of UP2013(1) SC Cri. R36, it has been held that if matriculation certificate/marks-sheet is available, there is no opportunity for the Board to go for other evidence for the determination of the age of juvenile. Even though, new Act has been enforced, the above view still holds the field as there is hardly any difference in respect of determination of age of juvenile.

13. But having said so, the court has to be sure about the genuineness and authenticity of such certificate/marks-sheet, particularly when there is sufficient material on record to create doubt on such certificate/marks-sheet. In Om Prakesh vs. State of Rajasthan, 2012(77) ACC 654 (SC), the trial court itself could not arrive at a conclusive finding regarding the age of the accused on the basis of school record and therefore, it was held that the opinion of the medical experts based on X-ray and ossification test will have to be given precedence over the shaky evidence based on school records. The Supreme Court remarked that if there is a clear and unambiguous case in favour of the juvenile accused that he was a minor below the age of 18 years on the date of the incident and the documentary evidence at least prima facie proves the same, he would be entitled for this special protection under the Juvenile Justice Act. But when an accused commits a grave and heinous offence and thereafter attempts to take statutory shelter under the guise of being a minor, a casual or cavalier approach while recording as to whether an accused is a juvenile or not cannot be permitted as the courts are enjoined upon to perform their duties with the object of protecting the confidence of common man in the institution entrusted with the administration of justice. Hence, while the courts must be sensitive in dealing with the juvenile who is involved in cases of serious nature like sexual molestation, rape, gang rape, murder and like offences, the accused cannot be allowed to abuse the statutory protection by attempting to prove himself as a minor when the documentary evidence to prove his minority gives rise to a reasonable doubt about his assertion of minority. The benefit of the principle of benevolent legislation attached to Juvenile Justice Act would thus apply to only such cases wherein the accused is held to be a juvenile on the basis of at least prima facie evidence regarding his minority as the benefit of the possibilities of two views in regard to the age of the alleged accused who is involved in grave and serious offence which he committed and gave effect to it in a well planned manner reflecting his maturity of mind rather than innocence indicating that his plea of juvenility is more in the nature of a shield to dodge or dupe the arms of law, cannot be allowed to come to his rescue.

14. The purpose of the above discussion is that the age of juveni1ity can be determined on the basis of high school certificate/marks-sheet or school record if there is no doubt with regards to genuineness and authenticity thereof. When there arises reasonable doubt in respect thereof, the same cannot be relied blindly and the court is empowered under law to ignore the same.

15. The learned counsel for the revisionist has argued that when the school record first attended by Mandeep Singh was on record there was no occasion for the courts below to go for medical report in order to determine the age of Mandeep Singh. In support of this contention the judgement of this Court in Smt. Neha Bee and others Vs. State of U.P, 2011 (74) ACC 139, Parashu Ram Singh Vs. State of U.P, 2013 (83) ACC 392 and judgement in Criminal Revision no. 3919 of 2015 (Farzana Vs. State of U.P) decided on 06.05.2016 and the judgement of the Supreme Court in Ashwani Kumar Saxena Vs. State of M.P, 2012 (79) ACC 748 have been referred. The last case being decided by the Supreme Court, the following observations appears to be material for the purpose of this case:-

"Age determination inquiry", contemplated under Section 7-A of the Act read with Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules enables the Court to seek evidence and in that process, the Court can obtain the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available. Only in the absence of any matriculation or equivalent certificates, the Court need obtain the date of birth certificate from the school first attended other than a play school. Only in the absence of matriculation or equivalent certificate or the date of birth certificate from the school first attended, the Court need obtain the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat (not an affidavit but certificates or documents). The question of obtaining medical opinion form a duly constituted Medical Board arises only if the above mentioned documents are unavailable. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, then the Court, for reasons to be recorded, may, if considered necessary, give the benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his or her age on lower side within the margin of one year.

Once the Court, following the above mentioned procedures, passes an order; that order shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or juvenile in conflict with law. It has been made clear in subsection (5) of Rule 12 that no further inquiry shall be conducted by the Court or the Board after examining and obtaining the certificate or any other documentary proof after referring to the sub-rule(3) of the Rule 12. Further, Section 49 of the Juvenile Justice Act also draws a presumption of the age of the juvenility on its determination."

16. As mentioned above, that aforesaid order dated 04.07.2013 passed in Criminal Revision No. 1546 of 2013, this Court clearly laid down that the Juvenile Justice Board shall determine the age of Mandeep Singh after taking evidence from his side about his education from class-I to class-V and it was also expected that from the side of Mandeep Singh necessary information shall be provided regarding the school he has attained such education. Failing to provide the above two informations the Juvenile Justice Board was given liberty to take decision on the basis of report of Medical Board. From the side of revisionist the said information were not provided and whatever information was provided with regards to the education of Mandeep Singh was highly suspicious and contradictory. Moreover, information of voting and extract of voting list also shows that the school record of Mandeep was highly suspicious. Therefore, the Juvenile Justice Board proceeded to determine the age on the basis of medical report.

17. This Court in aforesaid revision made following observations:-

"Admittedly, opposite party no.2 has not passed matriculation examination and, therefore, there is no matriculation or equivalent certificate to show his date of birth. In the absence of matriculation certificate, the date of birth recorded in the school first attended has to be taken into consideration. No documentary or oral evidence was led to show the date of birth recorded in the school first attended. It was the case of the complainant that opposite party no. 2 studied in village school. Even from the affidavit, it is apparent that opposite party no. 2 passed class V examination in the year 2003-04. There was no difficulty in filing the documentary evidence regarding date of birth recorded in the school first attended but the same evidence appears to be deliberately withheld by opposite party no. 2. Even if no evidence was led on behalf of opposite party no. 2 to show his date of birth recorded in the school first attended, it was the duty of the Board to summon the relevant documents from the village school or the school where opposite party no. 2 studied from class I to class V and a decision regarding age of opposite party no. 2 could have been taken on that basis but the Board did not consider it proper to summon any such records or witnesses.

A person cannot be permitted to play hide and seek with the court. He cannot be permitted to claim juvenility on the basis of entries of class VI and withholding the records of class I to class V. According to Rule 12 (3), the entry in the school first attended is relevant and the entries in the has not properly conducted enquiry as envisaged under the provisions of Juvenile Justice Act and matter has to be remanded for a fresh decision. The Sessions Court has also not considered this aspect of the matter."

18. From the perusal of both the judgements, it appears that as directed by this Court vide aforesaid judgement dated 04.07.2013 no evidence regarding education of Mandeep Singh from class-I to class-V was filed before the Juvenile Justice Board. Therefore, both the courts below took a view that the revisionist failed to comply with the order of the High Court. Both the courts have also noted that Allahabad High Court has noted in the aforesaid judgement that Mandeep Singh got admission in class-VI on 05.07.2004 in Guru Nanak Inter College, Bilaspur on the basis of the affidavit of his father but there was no evidence given that he passed the examination of class-V in the year 2003-04, which was necessary to show that said

Mandeep Singh got education from class-I to class-V in some school. On the contrary, it was found that leaving certificate which was produced before the Juvenile Justice Board shows that he got admission in U.K.G on 04.07.2001 and he passed class-II on 31.03.2003. Therefore, it was necessary to give educational record of Mandeep Singh showing that he passed the examination of class III, IV, V from some institution, but no such school record was given. The lower courts below found it highly suspicious that when Mandeep Singh passed class-II in year 2003 how he could get admission in class-VI on 05.07.2004 as there is difference of at least three years for getting admission in class-VI. In a natural way, if a person has passed class-II on 31.03.2003 he can get admission in class-VI only after 31.03.2006. On this basis the learned courts below found the date of birth (01.07.1995) shown in the leaving certificate of National Public School, Bilaspur to be highly suspicious particularly when all these points have been elaborately discussed in the aforesaid judgement of the High Court. In the aforesaid order of the High Court, this fact also finds mention that in respect of admission in Guru Nanak Inter College, the affidavit was filed narrating that Mandeep Singh has passed class-V in the year 2003-04 but despite the order of this Court no evidence was led to show in which school Mandeep Singh studied from class-I to class-V nor any such certificate to that effect was filed.

19. In view of the above anomaly and contradictions in school record of Mandeep, the JJ Board, finding no other option and in view of the aforementioned direction of this court, determined the age on the basis of the medical evidence and the order so passed was further affirmed by impugned judgement in appeal. It is pertinent to make a mention that the courts do not reject the claim of juvenility in a routine way unless there exists good cause. I do not find any material irregularity or illegality or jurisdictional error in the impugned order and judgement of the courts below. The revision has got no force and is liable to be dismissed.

20. The revision is therefore dismissed. Stay order if any shall stand vacated.

For summoning a person as accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. if the court feels satisfied from the evidence which has come on record that there was much stronger evidence which showed not merely probability of complicity of the said person of being involved in commission of offence rather the evidence was found of such level that if the same was left unrebutted, it would result in conviction of the said person as an accused then accused shall be summoned – Held - Victim has consistently given her statements in support of the prosecution case narrated by her in FIR. 3. Before appreciating the arguments of the learned counsel for the revisionists as well as the learned counsel for opposite parties, it would be appropriate to give the facts of this case in brief, which are as follows:

4. The opposite party no. 2 Mamta lodged an FIR on 15.10.2016 at 10.00 A.M. through an application u/s 156 (3) Cr.P.C. stating therein that one Satish @ Satto was her neighbour who was harassing her. On 24.4.2016 at 5.00 P.M. when husband of opposite party no. 2 had gone to Agra, Satish @ Satto, Lokesh, revisionist no. 1, Manoj, revisionist no.2, Vasu Dev @ Vaso revisionist no. 3 forcibly abducted her at the point of country made pistol. All these accused had also stolen Rs.10,000/- and jewellery which were kept in her house. All these accused had given narcotic substance to her and committed gang rape upon her. When she raised alarm then they fled from there giving threat that they would kill her husband. These accused had also taken few indecent photographs of her and have also obtained her signatures on blank papers. They had told her not to disclose about this to anyone and not to take any action, failing which her indecent photographs would be placed on internet. On 26.8.2016 at 4.00 A.M. they came to the village alongwith opposite party no. 2, then opposite party no. 2 disclosed entire facts to her husband. On the same day her husband Naresh went to the house of Satish @ Satto at about 4.00 p.m., then father of Satish @ Satto namely Mansho Ram, accused-revisionist no. 5, father of Manoj namely Keshav, accused revisionist no. 4 and three unknown persons had badly assaulted the opposite party no.2 by kicks and fists and her hairs were cut by scissor by daughter of Mansho Ram namely Chando, accused-revisionist no. 6. They all had threatened her that she would be made to go around the village with her face blackened. This occurrence was witnessed by Nando, Brijesh and Vishnu. The opposite party no. 2 had gone to lodge report of this occurrence at police station Farah, which was not recorded as the accused revisionist no. 3, Vasu Dev had good relation with the police and thereafter on 7.9.2016 an application was given by her to the S.S.P., Mathura but nothing was done. Thereafter, on this application, subsequent to the order passed by the Court, this FIR was recorded on the above date.

5. After investigation of this case, the police has submitted charge-sheet against the accused Satish @ Satto only under section 376 and 366 IPC while rest of the accused were exonerated.

6. During trial the statement of only one witness i.e. opposite party no. 2 as PW1 has been recorded and thereafter an application 22-Ka was moved by opposite party no. 2 to summon other co-accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. to face trial. The said application has been allowed by the trial court vide impugned order dated 17.04.2019 summoning the accused-revisionist Lokesh, revisionist no.1, Manoj, revisionist no.2, Vasu @ Vasu, revisionist no. 3 to face trial under section 376D, 363, 366 and 379 IPC while other co-accused Keshav revisionist no. 4, Mansho Ram, revisionist no.5 and Km. Chando revisionist no. 6 have been summoned to face trial under sections 323, 504, 506 IPC.

7. The arguments made from the side of the revisionists are that the informant had illicit relationship with co-accused Satish @ Satto with whom she had eloped on 24.4.2016, six days thereafter her husband had lodged an NCR on 01.05.2016 against co-accused Satish @ Satto under section 498 IPC at P.S. Farah, District Mathura wherein he had admitted that the informant of this case had fled with the co-accused Satish @ Satto of her own free will, the said NCR is annexed as Annexure-1. Next it is argued that two months thereafter the informant returned home with Satish @ Satto and was living with her husband, but no complaint was moved by the husband of informant or any of his family members regarding this incident. Thereafter, after four months of the occurrence, informant moved an application under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C before J.M. II, Mathura in respect of this occurrence because her husband and other family members had put pressure upon her to lodge the report against co-accused Satish @ Satto. The informant was medically examined by the doctor but no injuries were seen. The statements of independent witnesses, who are 10 in number, which include the husband of the informant, were recorded. It is stated that no such incident had occurred. It was mentioned that there existed illicit relationship between informant and co-accused Satish @ Satto. These statements are annexed as Annexure-6. Next it is argued that the Investigating Officer after collecting the evidence and examining the statement of informant and her husband as well as independent witnesses, exonerated all the accused persons except the co-accused Satish @ Satto against whom charge-sheet no. 10/17 was filed under section 366 and 376 IPC. The said co-accused has been granted bail vide order dated 29.03.2017. The trial had started and two years thereafter the informant moved the present application on 01.01.2019 for calling the accused-revisionists under section 319 Cr.P.C to face trial which has been erroneously allowed by the trial court. The opposite party no. 2 is a major lady of 40 years of age having five children aged about 13, 12, 10, 6 and 3 years. It is admitted by her in the statement under section 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. that co-accused Satish @ Satto was doing job of manufacturing carpet (Galicha) for about 10-12 years with her husband. Further, it is mentioned in her statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. that the informant admitted illicit relationship with co-accused Satish @ Satto and has admitted that she had gone with the said accused and spent two months time with each other as husband and wife. Further, it is argued that the revisionist nos. 1 and 2 are cousin brothers. Revisionist nos. 3 and 4 are uncle. The revisionist no. 5 is father and revisionist no. 6 is real sister of co-accused Satish @ Satto, hence they all belong to the family members of co-accused Satish @ Satto. Since the husband of the informant and his family members wanted to settle all criminal cases lodged against them, in order to create pressure upon the revisionists, this false case has been lodged. Further, it is argued that the revisionist no. 6 (sister of co-accused Satish @ Satto) had filed a complaint against the family members of the informant under section 354B, 323, 504, 506, 452 IPC at P.S. Farah District Mathura on 18.9.2016, copy of which is annexed as Annexure-11. Revisionist no. 5(father of the co-accused Satish @ Satto) has filed a complaint against the family members of the informant under sections 147, 148, 149, 354B, 323, 504, 506 and 452 IPC at P.S. Farah, District Mathura, copy of which is annexed as Annexure-12. Further, it is argued that the revisionist no. 5 had already lodged an FIR against the family members of the informant being case crime no. 419 of 2016 under section 307 IPC at P.S. Farah on 17.11.2016, hence the impugned order deserves to be quashed as the same has been passed by the trial court erroneously over looking the fact that the said application was moved by the opposite party no.2 under pressure from her husband and family members in order to put pressure upon the revisionists to compromise the cases which were filed from their side against family members of the opposite party no. 2. Moreover, police has also not found prima-facie case made out against the accused-revisionists and accordingly charge-sheet was not filed against them under abovementioned sections. The independent witnesses including husband of the informant had not supported the prosecution version. These aspects have not been taken into consideration by the trial court while passing the impugned order.

8. No counter affidavit has been filed from the side of the opposite party no. 2 as well as from the side of learned A.G.A. although learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the prayer for quashing of the charge-sheet and argued that the impugned order does not suffer from any infirmity as in the statement under section 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. as well as in her statement given before the trial court as PW1, the victim/opposite party no. 2 has supported the prosecution version and discrepancies which appear in the version mentioned in FIR as well as her statements at three stages, cannot be seen in proceedings under section 482 Cr.P.C. hence, this revision deserves to be dismissed.

9. I have gone through the statement of the informant recorded under section 161 Cr.P.C. in which she has stated that her husband does work of manufacturing carpet (Galicha). Her neighbourer Satish @ Satto also used to work with her husband. On 24.4.2016 when her husband had gone to bring wool from Agra, at about 5.00 p.m. Satish @ Satto, Lokesh, Manoj and Vasu Dev came to her house and forcibly had taken her away in a car and on way some narcotic substance was given to her by which she fainted. Thereafter, she was taken to Jaipur and was kept at various unknown places and all of them had committed rape upon her. They had also stolen away Rs.10,000/- and jewellery from her house and on 26.8.2016 they had brought her back to her village and then she disclosed all this to her husband Naresh and when thereafter she and Naresh went to the house of Satish @ Satto, co-accused, then Vasu Dev, Mansho Ram and Shimbhu, Lokesh, Manoj, Keshav and Chanddo who were present there, had beaten and abused her, her husband and had threatened that in case they make a complaint about this incident at police station, they would not be allowed to live in village. The statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C., which is annexed at page 44 of the paper book, contains the same facts, which have been mentioned in her statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. apart from the fact that in this statement it is also stated that when she and her husband went to the house of Satish @ Satto, they had beaten both of them badly and her hair were also cut. She has five children aged between 3 to 12 years. In her statement given in examination-in-chief it is stated that Satish @ Satto was her neighbour, who used to tease her. On 24.4.2016 at 5.00 p.m. when her husband had gone to Agra, accused-revisionist nos. 1 to 3 along with co-accused Satish @ Satto had abducted her on the point of pistol and had also stolen R.10,000/- as well as jewellery from her house and had taken her in a vehicle. She was given narcotic substance and was kept at some unknown place in Jaipur. All the four accused had gang raped her. When she tried to raise alarm, they have threatened that her husband would be killed. Lokesh and Manoj had made few dirty video with co-accused Satish @ Satto of her and her signatures were also obtained on some blank papers and had threatened that in case she discloses about this occurrence, her dirty video would be placed at internet. She continued to be kept at different places during four months period while she was being raped repeatedly by them and on 26.8.20016 they had brought her back in the village at about 4.00 a.m. and then she narrated the entire episode to her husband. When her husband had taken her to the house of Satish @ Satto where father of Satish @ Satto namely Mansho Ram and father of Manoj namely Keshav and three unknown persons had beaten her and her husband by kicks and fists and the daughter of Mansho Ram namely Chando had cut her hair and had threatened her that her face would be blackened and she would be made to move around the village. This occurrence was witnessed by Nando, Brijesh and Vishnu.

10. In cross-examination, she has proved her statement under section 164 Cr.P.C. as paper no. Ka and her application given under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as exhibit Ka-1.Further she has submitted that she is an illiterate lady. Her marriage was performed 17 years ago and that she used to often visit her parent's house which is located in Agra. In her house the work of manufacturing of carpet is done and her husband had also done the same work. They did not employ any person for the said work. The house of Satish @ Satto was about 10-12 houses away from her house. She did not know who Satish was. Satish had never worked any work of manufacturing of carpet at her place. She had not mentioned in her complaint that Satish @ Satto used to do the work of manufacturing Galicha in her house. The Investigating Officer had interrogated her to whom she had not stated that Satish @ Satto used to do work of manufacturing of Galicha in her house. The occurrence is of 24.4.2016 and thereafter she had stated on her own that she had gone to lodge report on 26.8.2016 and during this four months, she never made any report nor does she know as to whether her husband had lodged any report or not. Further having read out the paper no. 4A/21, She stated that her husband had not lodged the said report at police station and further pointed out that her husband was sitting at the back on chair. On the date of occurrence, she was alone in her house and in front of her house lives Shiv Ganesh Thakur, who has a "Thela', in his house his mother, daughter-in-law and children reside. On the date of occurrence Shiv Ganesh was not at home. She often visits his house. Co-accused Satish @ Satto used to make frequent visit to her house but her husband would not go to the house of Satish @ Satto nor had he gone in marriage etc. at the house of Satish. On the date of occurrence he did not know Satish @ Satto nor did she know his family members. She was living in the said village Parkham for the last six years, prior to that she was living in Agra. Her daughter aged about 15 years also stated to have studied in class IX at Parkham. She has further stated in cross examination that the Investigating Officer had recorded her statement under threat. The threat was given by Investigating Officer that if she gives any statement against these four accused persons, the same act would be committed with her by him which act was committed by these accused persons with her. She had made complaint orally to the Magistrate about this threat. She does not know the name of the Investigating Officer. First of all the co-accused Satish @ Satto, Manoj, Vasu and Pankaj had taken her to Jaipur in a factory which was deserted where they had kept her for 15 days. There was no house and shop near that factory. All these four accused had lived with her for 2-3 days and thereafter only Satish @ Satto was left behind. There was a Chawkidar in the said factory who was given some money by the accused. The Chawkidar had left the factory on the very first day. In the meantime, no one came in the factory. She had narrated about this fact to the Investigating Officer which has not been recorded by him. About this fact that she was taken to the factory was not mentioned by him in his report but she could not tell its reason. Satish and Manoj are the real brothers. Lokesh is also brother and Vasu is uncle. All these four accused had committed rape upon her. She did not like Satish @ Satto nor any other co-accused. She had suffered internal injury but she was not medically examined for the same. She had told the Investigating Officer about the places where the accused had taken her and fled leaving her behind. She had not told the Investigating Officer that the accused was working in her house for manufacturing the carpet because of which she had developed illicit relationship with him. If the same has been recorded by him, she could not tell its reason. It is wrong to say that Satish had worked in her house for manufacturing of carpet (Galicha). She had denied that because of enmity, she has lodged this report against the members of the family of the co-accused Satish.

11. After perusal of the statements which have been cited above, I have gone through the impugned order passed by the trial court and find that the trial court has recorded in the impugned judgment that the victim has supported the prosecution version as mentioned in the FIR, in her statement given under section 164 Cr.P.C. and also the same version has been given by her in her statement before the Court against the accused revisionist Lokesh, Manoj, Vasu, therefore, he has summoned them for offence under section 376D, 363, 366 and 379 IPC which are prima-facie made out against them and as regard other co-accused Keshav, Mansho Ram and Km. Chando offence under section 323, 504, 506 IPC are made out. He has also cited principle upon which he has found the prima-facie case made out against the accused-revisionist because he has mentioned that there was no necessity at this stage to make microscopies analysis of the statements of the witnesses and only prima-facie it was to be as to whether the same was made out or not in view of that the court below has exercised its discretion for summoning the accused-revisionists for offence under the abovementioned sections. I see no infirmity in the impugned order. It would be appropriate to mention here the legal principles which have been pronounced by Supreme Court in catena of judgments as to under what circumstances the accused may be summoned under section 319 Cr.P.C.

12. In Dev Wati vs. State of Haryana, (2019) 4 SCC 3219, in this case a missing complaint was lodged by the brother of the deceased and after two days the dead body of the deceased was found. Three accused were put to trial under section 302 read with 34 IPC apart from other offence. When evidence was being recorded, PW9 (brother of the deceased) deposed before the sessions court impleading the appellant. Thereafter, the application filed by PW9 under section 319 Cr.P.C. before the Sessions Court was allowed and the appellants were summoned to face trial, which was upheld by the High Court reiterating that word "appear' means "clear to the comprehension' or a phrase near to, if not synonymous with "proved", and imparts a lesser degree of probability then proof. Though only a prima-facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the Court, it requires much stronger evidence than a mere probability of the complicity of the persons against whom the deponent has deposed. The test that has to be applied is of a degree of satisfaction which is more than that a prima-facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge but short of satisfaction to an extent that evidence, if goes unrebutted, may lead to conviction of the proposed accused. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising the power under section 319 Cr.P.C. On considering deposition of PW9, it was held that no valid ground was found to take a different view from that of High Court and the Sessions Court and it was recorded that no interference with the impugned order was warranted.

13. In view of above proportion of law, it is quite evident that for summoning a person as accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. if the court feels satisfied from the evidence which has come on record that there was much stronger evidence which showed not merely probability of complicity of the said person of being involved in commission of offence rather the evidence was found of such level that if the same was left unrebutted, it would result in conviction of the said person as an accused then accused shall be summoned. In the present case, if the said interpretation of the provision of section 319 Cr.P.C. is applied, I find that the victim has consistently given her statements in support of the prosecution case narrated by her in FIR. The case which she established in FIR was corroborated by her in statements under sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. with slight variation and also in her statement given before the trial court, in which she has also been cross-examined at length. The defence of the accused-revisionists is that since from the side of the revisionists several cases were filed against the family members of the husband of the opposite party no.2 therefore, under influence / pressure from the side of her husband exerted upon opposite party no. 2, she has lodged this false FIR, this is a subject matter of evidence which would be decided by the trial court. Therefore, at this stage, for this Court it would not proper to express any opinion in this regard in proceedings u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No doubt this Court finds that there are several discrepancies and also it is found that allegation of gang rape is leveled against two brothers and uncle of accused Satish @ Satto which seems unusual that real brothers would indulge in this kind of act together, it appears to be subject matter of evidence. No opinion can be expressed in this regard and as regards accused nos. 4 to 6, they are found to have committed offences under section 323, 504, 506 IPC only which are not serious offences, hence this Court deems it proper to grant them relief to the extent that they may approach the trial court within 30 days and seeks bail.

14. The prayer for quashing the proceedings is refused with regard to revisionist nos. 1 to 3.

15. However, it is provided that if the revisionist nos. 4 to 6 appear and surrender before the court below within 30 days from today and apply for bail, then the bail application of the revisionist nos. 4 to 6 be considered and decided in view of the settled law laid-down by this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2004 (57) ALR 290 as well as judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court reported in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. For a period of 30 days from today or till the disposal of the application for grant of bail whichever is earlier, no coercive action shall be taken against the revisionist nos. 4 to 6. However, in case, the revisionist nos. 4 to 6 do not appear before the Court below within the aforesaid period, coercive action shall be taken against them.

16. With aforesaid direction, this revision is finally disposed of.

A. Criminal Law -Domestic Violence Act, 2005 - Section 12 - Object - Provides for speedy disposal of application under section 12 by curtailing unnecessary delay so that the wife might not be deprived of the relief provided under the Act. The Act prescribes a time frame of 60 days for disposal of application. (Para 17)

B. Domestic Violence Act, 2005 - Section 2(q) - A complaint can be filed and relief can be granted under the Act against the female relatives of the husband also. (Para 22)

C. Domestic Violence Act,2005 - Recall of order - when not permissible.

Held:- A very simple order against revisionist passed that he will not commit any domestic violence against the wife. No use in recalling the impugned judgment.

Before the court below, father of the husband-revisionist examined along with uncle and maternal uncle. So closely related persons like father were contesting the case, it cannot be believed that the husband was not having any information. Even though the father of the husband was contesting before the court, the husband did not turn up, untill the ex-parte judgment was passed.

Application under section 12 given by wife in September, 2012 and has been decided in May, 2014, whereas, it should have been decided within 60 days. Therefore, recall thereof, if permitted, will cause great hardship to the wife and son who have been forced to leave the matrimonial house. (Para 15, 16, 17)

Criminal revision dismissed (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri Sudhanshu Pandey, learned counsel for the revisionist, Shri V.K. Twivedi, Advocate holding breif of Shri Bipin Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 and Shri M.P. Singh Gaur, learned AGA for the State.

2. This revision has been filed against the impugned judgment and order dated 07.07.2017 passed by the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court no. 1, Gorakhpur in Criminal Appeal No. 226 of 2016 (Pramod Kumar Singh vs. State of U.P.) and order dated 03.11.2016 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-I, Gorakhpur in Misc. Case No. 8829 of 2014 (Pramod Kumar Singh Vs. Pratima Singh), P.S. Kaptanganj, District Gorakhpur by which the learned court below has rejected the application of the husband to set aside the judgment and order dated 31.5.2014 by which application of wife was allowed under section 12 Domestic Violence Act.

3. The impugned orders have been challenged on the ground that the impugned orders are based on misreading of record, non- appreciation of fact/evidence and illegal application of law. Learned Additional Judicial Magistrate, Gorakhpur disposed of the application of opposite party no. 2 under Domestic Violence Act on 31.05.2014 and the order was passed ex-parte against the revisionist. A recall application to recall the order dated 31.05.2014 was given by the applicant-revisionist and the same was rejected by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-I, Gorakhpur by impugned order dated 03.11.2016 and the Appellate Court has committed grave error in dismissing the appeal filed by the appellant-revisionist. The impugned order is based on surmises and conjecture. Service of notice on revisionists is not in accordance with law and the learned Magistrate has not complied with Rule 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Rules, 2006. The revisionist no. 1 was not made party in the application filed under section 12 of the Act and no notice was served upon him, but the learned court below passed order against him, which is totally illegal and even then the recall application has been rejected. From perusal of the order dated 31.05.2014, it is evident that the learned court below proceeded in the matter ex-parte against the revisionists and their family members on the basis of presumption of service of notice which is illegal and the same is vitiated under law, as no opportunity of hearing is provided to the revisionist. Revisionist no. 2 is already regularly paying Rs. 3000/- to the respondent no. 2 under an order dated 01.08.2013 passed by the Principle Judge, Family Court, Gorakhpur in case no. 659 of 2012 filed by respondent nos. 2 and 3, under section 125 Cr.P.C. The impugned orders of the courts below is contrary to record and the same is liable to be set aside.

4. The brief facts of the case is that the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 gave an application before the court of Judicial Magistrate-II, Gorakhpur under section 12 Domestic Violence Act for providing protection order and maintenance stating that she was married with opposite party no. 1 on 20.04.2006 according to Hindu rituals. Some times after marriage the opposite parties started mentally and physically harassing her, demanding Rs. 2 lakhs and a house in the name of opposite party no. 1, situated in Bharwaliya Bujurg. On 31.03.2009 son Arsh Kumar was born and after some time she was sent to her parents house and while going back, the opposite party (husband) repeated his demand of Rs. 2 lakhs. On being refused, he slapped her and twisted her hand due to which her bangles were broken and her hand started bleeding. The wife after some time came back to her matrimonial house and again opposite party started harassing her for dowry. On 20.04.2009, she and her son were forced to leave matrimonial house and her stri dhan was also taken by them. In the last week of April, 2012, opposite party (husband) came to her parents house and started talking with her younger sister Nidhi @ Smriti Singh and on 30.04.2012, he enticed her to run away with him and at present he is living with her in a rented room after marrying her in Gorakhpur. Against it, a case was registered as Case Crime no. 22 of 2012, under section 498A, 323, 504, 506, 406, 363, 366, 494 IPC and section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act. The wife is living a dejected life and she has no means to maintain herself. Opposite party (husband) is Head Constable, working as Radio Operator in BSF and at present working on deputation in National Security Guard, Maneshar Hariyana and he is getting Rs. 40,000/- as monthly pay. On that basis she claimed Rs. 25,000/- as monthly maintenance for herself and her son.

5. Opposite party Chhail Bihari Singh (father of revisionists) filed his written objection/written statement in which marriage between revisionist no. 2 and opposite party no.1 and birth of a son has been admitted and remaining pleadings has been denied. Opposite party no. 3 died during the course of proceedings and the case was abated in respect of her. Against the revisionists (husband and his brother), ex-parte proceedings took place, opposite party nos. 2 and 3 filed their written statement. The wife examined herself as PW-1. Opposite party Chhail Bihari examined himself as DW-1 and DW-2 Rama Shankar Singh and DW-3 Durg Vijay Singh have also been examined in support. Thereafter, the learned court below allowed the application by order dated 31.05.2014 awarding protection against domestic violence, order for alternative residence or shared house, monetary relief to the tune of Rs. 5000/- for the wife and Rs. 2000/- for the son.

6. Thereafter the husband and his brother gave an application for recall of the said order, stating that the order was ex-parte. On that application, he was heard and by order dated 03.11.2016 the recall application was rejected. An appeal was filed against this rejection order and the Appellate Court by order dated 07.07.2017 dismissed the appeal.

7. The submission of the learned counsel is that the case was proceeded against him exparte and his simple request was that the ex-parte judgment should be recalled and he should be given an opportunity of hearing. The application for recall is at page 63 and it has been stated in that application that no summon was issued nor was served on him and the whole proceeding was ex-parte. The impugned ex-parte order was obtained secretly and the recall application is well within time and therefore, the same should be recalled. Similarly when the application was rejected an appeal was also filed in which briefly almost the same facts were repeated.

8. In Indra Sarma Vs V.K. Sarma, AIR 2014 SC 309, the supreme court said that 'Domestic Violence' is undoubtedly a human rights issue, which was not properly taken care of in our country despite various International Conventions and Declarations acknowleded that domestic violence was undoubtedly a human rights issue and the member countries should take steps to protect women against violence of any kind, especially that occurring within the family, a phenomenon widely prevalent in India. Presently, when a woman is subjected to cruelty by husband or his relatives, it is an offence punishable under Section 498-A, IPC. The Civil Law, it was noticed, did not address this phenomenon in its entirety. Consequently, the Parliament, to provide more effective protection of rights of women guaranteed under the Constitution under Articles 14, 15 and 21, who are victims of violence of any kind occurring in the family, enacted the Domestic Violence Act.

9. The Domestic Violence Act provides various measures for protection of a woman who is facing domestic violence of different forms. It incorporates remedies in terms of residence order (section 19), protection order to stop violence (section 18), monetary relief like maintainence (section 20), custody order (section 21) and compensation order (section 22). Section 12 provides:

"Application to Magistrate.-(1) An aggrieved person or a Protection

Officer or any other person on behalf of the aggrieved person may present an application to the Magistrate seeking one or more reliefs under this Act:

Provided that before passing any order on such application, the Magistrate shall take into consideration any domestic incident report received by him from the Protection Officer or the service provider.

(2) The relief sought for under sub-section (1) may include a relief for issuance of an order for payment of compensation or damages without prejudice to the right of such person to institute a suit for compensation or damages for the injuries caused by the acts of domestic violence committed by the respondent:

Provided that where a decree for any amount as compensation or damages has been passed by any court in favour of the aggrieved person, the amount, if any, paid or payable in pursuance of the order made by the Magistrate under this Act shall be set off against the amount payable under such decree and the decree shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), or any other law for the time being in force, be executable for the balance amount, if any, left after such set off.

(3) Every application under sub-section (1) shall be in such form and contain such particulars as may be prescribed or as nearly as possible thereto.

(4) The Magistrate shall fix the first date of hearing, which shall not ordinarily be beyond three days from the date of receipt of the application by the court.

(5) The Magistrate shall endeavour to dispose of every application made under sub-section (1) within a period of sixty days from the date of its first hearing."

10. Section 17 of the Act provides for right to reside in a shared household. It reads:

"(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, every woman in a domestic relationship shall have the right to reside in the shared household, whether or not she has any right, title or beneficial interest in the same.

(2) The aggrieved person shall not be evicted or excluded from the shared household or any part of it by the respondent save in accordance with the procedure established by law."

11. Section 18 speaks of protection orders to be issued by the Magistrate in favour of the aggrieved person and prohibit the respondent from committing any act of domestic violence. Section 19 authorizes the magistrate, on being satisfied that domestic violence has taken place, pass a residence order restraining the respondent from dispossessing or in any other manner disturbing the possession of the aggrieved person from the shared household. Section 20 provides for Monetary reliefs to meet the expenses incurred and losses suffered by the aggrieved person and any child of the aggrieved person as a result of the domestic violence. Section 22 authorizes the Magistrate to pass an order directing the respondent to pay compensation and damages for the injuries, including mental torture and emotional distress, caused by the acts of domestic violence committed against her.

12. Section 23 confers power on magistrate to grant interim and ex parte orders in any proceeding before him under this Act as he deems just and proper. Such power is exercised by the Magistrate on satisfaction that the application prima facie discloses that the respondent is committing, or has committed an act of domestic violence or that there is a likelihood that the respondent may commit an act of domestic violence, he may grant an ex parte order on the basis of the affidavit of the aggrieved person under section 18, section 19, section 20, section 21 or section 22 of the Act.

13. Section 25 lays down as follows:

"Duration and alteration of orders.-(1) A protection order made under section 18 shall be in force till the aggrieved person applies for discharge.

(2) If the Magistrate, on receipt of an application from the aggrieved person or the respondent, is satisfied that there is a change in the circumstances requiring alteration, modification or revocation of any order made under this Act, he may, for reasons to be recorded in writing pass such order, as he may deem appropriate."

14. For achieving the ends of justice and statutory objective, section 28 gives power to the court to evolve own procedure. Even a mixed process and procedure as provided in civil and criminal law may be adopted simultaneously to meet the ends of justice.

15. From perusal of both the impugned order, it appears that initially the Magistrate took note of the fact that the case was contested by the father of the revisionist and elder father and maternal uncle of the husband. On the point of having knowledge of the case, the learned Magistrate has mentioned that before the court below, father of the husband has been examined along with uncle and maternal uncle, therefore, the court concluded that where so closely related persons like father were contesting the case, it cannot be believed that the husband was not having any information. The leaned Magistrate has also noted that even though the father of the husband was contesting before the court, the husband did not turn up, untill the ex-parte judgment was passed.

16. So far as the revisionist no. 1 is concerned, the learned Magistrate has pointed out that a very simple order against him was passed that he will not commit any Domestic Violence against the wife. Therefore, the learned Magistrate concluded that there is no use in recalling the impugned judgment. From perusal of the order of the Appellate Court, it appears that the learned Appellate Court upheld the order of the learned Magistrate on the basis that the father of the husband was contesting the matter and he had stated in his evidence that he informed about the case to his son, therefore, it was concluded that just to delay the whole case the husband waited till the disposal of the case ex-parte and thereafter, as a second inning, he started giving application for recall etc. On this basis and other grounds also mentioned in the impugned judgment, the Appellate Court affirmed the view taken by the learned Magistrate.

17. Clearly, the view adopted by both the court below appears to be in consonance with the sublime object of the Domestic Violence Act which provides for speedy disposal of application under section 12 by curtailing unnecessary delay so that the wife might not be deprived of the relief provided under the Act, so necessary for her and her son's survival. The Act prescribes a time frame of 60 days for disposal of application. In this case the application under section 12 has been given by wife in September, 2012 and has been decided in May, 2014, whereas, it should have been decided within 60 days. Therefore, recall thereof, if permitted, it will cause great hardship to the wife and son who have been forced to leave the matrimonial house. It should also be noted that the application of the wife has been allowed for a total amount of Rs. 5000/- for her and Rs. 2000/- for the son, even though she has claimed maintenance of Rs. 25,000/-. Both the court below adopted a logical approach in awarding the said amount.

18. Learned counsel to the revisionist has submitted that he is already paying Rs. 3000/- to the wife according to the order of the Family Court passed in the Case No. 659 of 2012 under section 125 Cr.P.C. and this fact has not been considered by the court below. It is pertinent to mention that the wife along with her son had claimed Rs. 25,000/- and there is no denial of the fact that the husband is getting the salary of Rs. 40,000/- per month, therefore, awarding only Rs. 7,000/- for both wife and son is not excessive any way and even if Rs. 3000/- awarded for maintenance under section 125 Cr.P.C. is added the whole amount will come to Rs. 10,000/- which is much less than what was claimed by the wife and it goes to 1/4th of the pay of the husband.

19. It has been further submitted by the learned counsel to the revisionist that the wife is running a coaching center and is working as lecturer of Zoology in Dr. Ram Manohar Lohiya Girls Inter College and she is earning about Rs. 30,000/- per month. Learned counsel for the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 has mentioned that this fact has never been alleged by the husband neither before the learned Magistrate nor before the Appellate Court, there is no proof at all of this income and therefore, it has been submitted that this cannot be believed. Even if it is believed, section 25 (2) of the Act provides for modification of order in case of change in the circumstances and it provides that If the Magistrate, on receipt of an application from the aggrieved person or the respondent, is satisfied that there is a change in the circumstances requiring alteration, modification or revocation of any order made under this Act, he may, for reasons to be recorded in writing pass such order, as he may deem appropriate.

20. Therefore, if considered from that angle also, this fact may be brought before the learned court below by the husband by filing a further application showing this fact and claiming for reduction of the amount. This is permissible within the scheme of Domestic Violence Act. But as a note of caution, it is made clear that unless a conclusion is arrived at by the learned Magistrate on this point, he (revisionist) will continue making payment of maintenance awarded to the wife and will not in any way flout the order of Magistrate giving other protections to the wife. If it is not done by the revisionists or his relatives, the learned Magistrate can out rightly reject such application given under section 25(2) of the Act and proceed further. It is also made clear that the violation of the protection order is crime and if the protection orders are violated, a criminal proceeding may be drawn according to the Domestic Violence act.

21. There is one more argument advanced by the learned counsel to the revisionists that the learned magistrate has allowed the application of the wife against Anita singh who is a woman, whereas, woman has been excluded from the definition of 'Respondent' by section 2(q) of the Act.

Section 2(q) of the Domestic Violence Act is as follows:

" 'respondent' means any adult person who is, or has been, in a domestic relationship with the aggrieved person and against whom the aggrieved person has sought any relief under this Act:

Provided that an aggrieved wife or female living in a relationship in the nature of a marriage may also file a complaint against a relative of the husband or the male partner."

22. The controversy in this regard has been set at rest by the supreme court in Sandhya Manoj Wankhade vs Manoj Bhimrao Wankhade, 2011 Cri LJ 1687(SC) where it has been held that the Act is gender neutral and is not restricted to husband, male partner or their male relatives and a complaint can be validly filed against female relatives also. In Hiralal P. Harsora vs Kusum Narottamdas Harsora, 2017 Cri LJ 509(SC), the court went a step further and held that the use of expression 'adult male person' in section 2(q) of the Act is contrary to object of affording protection to women who suffered from domestic violence of any kind and is violative of Article 14 of the Constitution. Therefore, the court struck down the words 'adult male' occurring in section 2(q) of the Act. In view of the aforesaid judgments, I find no force in this argument of the learned counsel and hold that a complaint can be filed and relief can be granted under the Act against the female relatives of the husband also.

23. The Domestic Violence Act is a special legislation which has adopted progressive approach of protecting the wife who is victim and who is suffering or has suffered domestic violence of any kind as defined under the Act, by providing shelter, freedom from fear, economic support, medical relief and legal help to overcome the problem and to survive and live with dignity. The reliefs provided under the Act are urgent in nature and law requires that such applications should be disposed of without delay and efforts should be made by magistrate to dispose the same in 60 days. Domestic violence is a crime against women which is linked to their deprived and disadvantageous position in the society and it refers to violence which takes place in matrimonial home. In order to address this problem, beneficial provisions have been enacted and the magistrate has been conferred authority to adopt stringent procedure by recourse to civil or criminal law or to evolve a procedure to ensure expeditious and meaningful response against a mischievous husband and his relatives. It includes curtailment and situational alteration in procedure applied for disposal of application. The Act is a reminder that the Constitution of our country promises justice, equal opportunity and status to all women and they cannot be left to bear the burnt of discrimination, disparity and injustice in family as well as public life.

24. On the basis of above discussion, I do not find any material irregularity or illegality or jurisdictional error in the impugned order and the revision has got no force.

25. The revision is dismissed.

B. Code of Criminal Procedure,1973 - Section 319 - Powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised only where strong and cogent evidence are found against a person and not in a casual and cavalier manner. Held: – In view of Section 32 of the Evidence Act, dying declaration is a material piece of evidence, which is much more than prima facie and sufficient to summon the person concerned under Section 319 Cr.P.C. as an additional accused – Whether first dying declaration is genuine or second dying declaration is genuine is a subject matter of appreciation of evidence by the trial court at the appropriate stage –Specific allegation as well as motive against the present revisionist is very much on record in the second dying declaration. – Since the specific allegation has been levelled by the deceased in her second dying declaration only against present revisionist, therefore, the said evidence is sufficient to summon the revisionist. 1. Sri Rahul Saxena, learned Advocate has filed his Vakalatnama on behalf of opposite party no.2, which is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Abhishek Srivastava and Priyanka Srivastava, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri Ramesh Kumar Pandey, learned Additional Government Advocate assisted by Sri Ashish Kumar Tripathi, learned Brief Holder for the State/opposite party no.1, Sri Rahul Saxena, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and perused the record with the assistance of learned counsel for the parties.

3. This criminal revision under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the revisionist (Priti Devi) against the order dated 14.08.2019 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.6, Pilibhit in exercise of powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. in S.T. No. 222 of 2018 (State Vs. Rajesh Kumar and others), under Sections 498A, 304B Indian Penal Code and 4 Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station Jahanabad, District Pilibhit, whereby application no. 33 kha dated 8.7.2019 under Section 319 Cr.P.C. of opposite party no.2/informant has been partly allowed and revisionist has been summoned under Sections 498A, 304B I.P.C. and under Section 4 of D.P. Act as an additional accused to face trial in the aforesaid case.

4. Filtering out unnecessary details, the basic facts of the case, in brief, are that the revisionist is sister-in-law as well as bhabhi of the deceased (Gaytri) and opposite party no.2/informant is father of the deceased as well as father-in-law of the revisionist. Marriage of the deceased was solemnized with co-accused Rajesh on 17.05.2013. On 28.5.2018, opposite party no.2 lodged FIR under Sections 498A, 304B IPC and Section 3/4 D.P. Act against Rajesh (husband) and Ramotar (father-in-law) of the deceased, registered as case crime no. 0191 of 2018 at Police Station Jahanabad, District Pilibhit alleging therein that his daughter was burnt in her matrimonial house by the accused persons on account of non-fulfillment of demand of dowry. She was admitted in district hospital, Pilibhit, and thereafter, she was admitted in Ram Kishore hospital, Bareilly. Subsequently, she was taken to Guru Tej Bahadur Hospital, where she died during her treatment. In this case there are two dying declarations of the deceased.

The First dying declaration of the deceased was recorded on 7.5.2018 by Naib Tehsildar, Pilibhit, Sadar when she was admitted in district hospital, Pilibhit which is reproduced herein-below:-

5. The Investigating Officer after investigation submitted charge-sheet only against Rajesh Kumar (husband) and Ramotar (father-in-law of the deceased), under Sections 498A, 304B IPC and Section 3/4 D.P. Act. Before the trial court, statement of PW-1 Omkar (father of the deceased), PW-2 Jaswant Singh (brother of the deceased and husband of revisionist) and PW-3 Km. Kanchan were recorded. Thereafter, on 8.7.2019, opposite party no.2 (father of the deceased) moved an application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. for summoning Preeti Devi (revisionist), Nannhi (mother-in-law) and Vikash (brother-in-law) of the deceased as an additional accused to face trial. The said application of opposite party no.2 has been partly allowed by impugned order dated 14.08.2019, whereby only present revisionist Preeti Devi has been summoned to face trial. The said order dated 14.08.2019 is under challenge in the instant revision.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist assailing the impugned order dated 14.08.2019 submitted that:-

(i) Revisionist Preeti Devi is sister of deceased's husband Rajesh as well as wife of Jaswant Singh (brother of the deceased), as such opposite party no.2/informant of this case is father of the deceased and father-in-law also of the revisionist. Since, the revisionist was harassed and tortured in her matrimonial home, therefore, father of the revisionist had lodged FIR on 17.09.2014 against her husband and other family members of the deceased (parents, brother and sister of the deceased), in which charge-sheet was submitted against Omkar/opposite party no.2, Jaswant Singh, Ramkali and Km. Kanchan.

(ii) Revisionist also filed a case under Section 125 Cr.P.C. against her husband Jaswant Singh (who is brother of the deceased and PW-2 in the present case), which has been allowed by ex-parte order dated 26.06.2019 directing PW-2 Jaswant Singh to pay an amount of Rs. 2,500/- as maintenance to the revisionist.

(iii) Being annoyed against the action of revisionist, family members of the deceased Gaytri Devi in collusion with each other moved an application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. against the revisionist on 8.7.2019 with mala fide intention.

(iv) There are contradiction in both dying declarations dated 7.5.2018 as well as 18.5.2018, therefore, there was no occasion to allow the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. of the prosecution.

(v) The trial court without properly evaluating the material available before him and without considering the statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and first dying declaration of the deceased dated 7.5.2018 allowed the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. of opposite party no.2 and summoned the revisionist to face trial, which is illegal and not sustainable in the eye of law.

(vi) Cause of death of deceased as per post mortem report is contradictory to the prosecution case.

(vii) Lastly, it is submitted that the revisionist has been falsely implicated in this case and no offence is made out against the revisionist. Hence, impugned order dated 14.08.2019 against the revisionist is liable to be quashed by this Court.

7. Per contra, learned Additional Government Advocate and learned brief holder for the State as well as learned counsel appearing on behalf of opposite party no.2 refuting the submissions advanced on behalf of the revisionist submitted that PW-1 Omkar, PW-2 Jaswant Singh and PW-3 Km. Kanchan in their statements have made allegation against the present revisionist Priti as well as mother-in-law and brother-in-law of the deceased. It is also submitted that revisionist has not filed post mortem report of deceased. In second dying declaration dated 18.05.2018 of the deceased specific allegation has been levelled against the revisionist Priti Devi. It is submitted that as per the second dying declaration dated 18.05.2018, the deceased received burn injury by the deliberate act of revisionist Priti Devi, who on account of skirmish took place between them, thrown kerosene bottle on the gas stove when deceased was cooking tea and thereafter Gaytri died in hospital during her treatment, therefore, the revisionist was rightly summoned by the order dated 14.08.2019 to face trial and the present revision is liable to be dismissed.

8. After having heard the submissions of the learned counsel for the parties and perusing the entire record, I find that it is true that the revisionist is neither named in the First Information Report nor in the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of the informant, but it is also admitted facts on record that in this case there are two dying declarations of the deceased. First dying declaration was recorded on 7.5.2018 by Sher Bahadur Singh, Naib Tehsildar, Sadar, Pilibhit when deceased was admitted in district hospital, Pilibhit, while second dying declaration was recorded on 18.5.2018 by Ravindra Pratap Singh, Naib Tehsildar, Bareilly when deceased was shifted and admitted in Sri Ram Kishore Memorial Hospital, Bareilly. Though, both the dying declarations are contradictory to each other, but both dying declarations have been recorded by the Government Official competent to record the same. In both the dying declarations, it is mentioned that patient Gayatri Devi is fully conscious and is able to give statement in her full sense, therefore, genuineness or otherwise of both the aforesaid dying declaration can be taken into consideration by the trial court at the appropriate stage in the light of facts, circumstances and material evidence on the record of the case. At this stage, it cannot be said by this Court that which dying declaration is correct and which dying declaration will prevail over other dying declaration. This Court is of the view that whether first dying declaration is genuine or second dying declaration is genuine is a subject matter of appreciation of evidence by the trial court at the appropriate stage. Specific allegation as well as motive against the present revisionist is very much on record in the second dying declaration dated 18.05.2018.

9. A dying declaration is relevant evidence as declared by Section 32 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. The Apex Court in case of Paniben (Smt) Vs. State of Gujarat 1992 SCC (Cri.) 403 has discussed certain circumstances with regard to dying declaration. The relevant paragraph nos. 18 and 19 of the said judgment are as follows:-

"18. Though a dying declaration is entitled to great weight, it is worthwhile to note that the accused has no power of cross-examination. Such a power is essential for eliciting the truth as an obligation of oath could be. This is the reason the Court also insists that the dying declaration should be of such a nature as to inspire full confidence of the Court in its correctness. The Court has to be on guard that the statement of deceased was not as a result of either tutoring, prompting or a product of imagination. The Court must be further satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind after a clear opportunity to observe and identify the assailants. Once the Court is satisfied that the declaration was true and voluntary, undoubtedly, it can base its conviction without any further corroboration. It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that the dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction unless it is corroborated. The rule requiring corroboration is merely a rule of prudence. This Court has laid down in several judgments the principles governing dying declaration, which could be summed up as under:

(i) There is neither rule of law nor of prudence that dying declaration cannot be acted upon without corroboration. Munnu Raja Vs. State of M.P. (1976) 3 SCC 104.

(ii) If the Court is satisfied that the dying declaration is true and voluntary it can base conviction on it, without corroboration. State of U. P. Vs. Ram Sagar Yadav, (1985) 1 SCC 552; Ramavati Devi Vs. State of Bihar (1983) 1 SCC 211.

(iii) This Court has to scrutinise the dying declaration carefully and must ensure that the declaration is not the result of tutoring, prompting or imagination. The deceased had opportunity to observe and identify the assailants and was in a fit state to make the declaration. K. Rama Chandra Reddy Vs. Public Prosecutor (1976) 3 SCC 618

(iv) Where dying declaration is suspicious it should not be acted upon without corroborative evidence. Rasheed Beg Vs. Sate of Madhya Pradesh (1974) 4 SCC 264

(v) Where the deceased was unconscious and could never make any dying declaration the evidence with regard to it is to be rejected. (Kake Singh Vs. State of M. P. 1981 supp SCC 25

(vi) A dying declaration which suffers from infirmity cannot form the basis of conviction. Ram Manorath Vs. State of U.P. (1981) 2 SCC 654

(vii) Merely because a dying declaration does not contain the details as to the occurrence, it is not to be rejected. (State of Maharashtra Vs. Krishnamurthi Laxmipati Naidu 1980 Supp SCC 455

(viii) Equally, merely because it is a brief statement, it is not be discarded. On the contrary, the shortness of the statement itself guarantees truth. Surajdeo Oza Vs. State of Bihar 1980 Supp SCC 769

(ix) Normally the court in order to satisfy whether deceased was in a fit mental condition to make the dying declaration look up to the medical opinion. But where the eye witness has said that the deceased was in a fit and conscious state to make this dying declaration, the medical opinion cannot prevail. (Nanahau Ram Vs. State of M.P 1988 Supp SCC 152

(x) Where the prosecution version differs from the version as given in the dying declaration, the said declaration cannot be acted upon. (State U.P. Vs. Madan Mohan (1989) 3 SCC 390.

19. In the light of the above principles, we will consider the three dying declarations in the instant case and we will ascertain the truth with reference to all dying declaration made by the deceased Bai Kanta. This Court in Mohan Lal Gangaram Gehani Vs. State of Maharashtra (1989) 1 SCC 700 held:

"Where there are more than one statement in the nature of dying declaration, one first in point of time must be preferred".

Of course, if the plurality of dying declarations could be held to be trust worthy and reliable, they have to be accepted."

10. Issue of multiple dying declaration has also been considered by the Apex Court in case of Kundula Bala Subrahmanyam Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh (1993) SCC (Cri.) 655. Relevant observations made by the Apex Court in para 18 of the said judgment are as follows:-

"18. Section 32 (1) of the Evidence Act is an exception to the general rule that hearsay evidence is not admissible evidence and unless evidence is tested by cross-examination, it is not credit-worthy. Under Section 32, when a statement is made by a person, as to the cause of death or as to any of the circumstances which result in his death, in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question, such a statement, oral or in writing, made by the deceased to the witness is a relevant fact and is admissible in evidence. The statement made by the deceased, called the dying declaration, falls in that category provided it has been made by the deceased while in a fit mental condition. A dying declaration made by person on the verge of his death has a special sanctity as at that solemn moment, a person is most unlikely to make any untrue statement. The shadow of impending death is by itself the guarantee of the truth of the statement made by the deceased regarding the causes or circumstances leading to his death. A dying declaration, therefore, enjoys almost a sacrosanct status, as a piece of evidence, coming as it does from the mouth of the deceased victim. Once the statement of the dying person and the evidence of the witnesses testifying to the same passes the test of careful scrutiny of the courts, it becomes a very important and a reliable piece of evidence and if the court is satisfied that the dying declaration is true and free from any embellishment such a dying declaration, by itself, can be sufficient for recording conviction even without looking for any corroboration. If there are more than one dying declarations, then the court has also to scrutinise all the dying declarations to find out if each one of these passes the test of being trustworthy. The Court must further find out whether the different dying declarations are consistent with each other in material particulars before accepting and relying upon the same."

11. Recently, the Apex Court in its judgment dated 4th September, 2019 in case of Jagbir Singh Vs. State (N.C.T. of Delhi) 2019 SCC Online SC 1148 has laid down parameter for considering the multiple dying declaration in a case. Relevant paragraph no. 30 of the said judgment is as follows:-

"30. A survey of the decisions would show that the principles can be culled out as follows:

a. Conviction of a person can be made solely on the basis of a dying declaration which inspires confidence of the court;

b. If there is nothing suspicious about the declaration, no corroboration may be necessary;

c. No doubt, the court must be satisfied that there is no tutoring or prompting;

d. The court must also analyse and come to the conclusion that imagination of the deceased was not at play in making the declaration. In this regard, the court must look to the entirety of the language of the dying declaration;

e. Considering material before it, both in the form of oral and documentary evidence, the court must be satisfied that the version is compatible with the reality and the truth as can be gleaned from the facts established;

f. However, there may be cases where there are more than one dying declaration. If there are more than one dying declaration, the dying declarations may entirely agree with one another. There may be dying declarations where inconsistencies between the declarations emerge. The extent of the inconsistencies would then have to be considered by the court. The inconsistencies may turn out to be reconciliable.

g. In such cases, where the inconsistencies go to some matter of detail or description but is incriminatory in nature as far as the accused is concerned, the court would look to the material on record to conclude as to which dying declaration is to be relied on unless it be shown that they are unreliable;

h. The third category of cases is that where there are more than one dying declaration and inconsistencies between the declarations are absolute and the dying declarations are irreconcilable being repugnant to one another. In a dying declaration, the accused may not be blamed at all and the cause of death may be placed at the doorstep of an unfortunate accident. This may be followed up by another dying declaration which is diametrically opposed to the first dying declaration. In fact, in that scenario, it may not be a question of an inconsistent dying declaration but a dying declaration which is completely opposed to the dying declaration which is given earlier. There may be more than two.

i. In the third scenario, what is the duty of the court? Should the court, without looking into anything else, conclude that in view of complete inconsistency, the second or the third dying declaration which is relied on by the prosecution is demolished by the earlier dying declaration or dying declarations or is it the duty of the court to carefully attend to not only the dying declarations but examine the rest of the materials in the form of evidence placed before the court and still conclude that the incriminatory dying declaration is capable of being relied upon? " (emphasis supplied)

12. In the light of dictum of the Apex Court in above mentioned judgments, it is well settled that if in a case there are more than one dying declaration and both are contradictory to each other, it is the duty of trial court to carefully examine the dying declarations in the light of materials facts and circumstances as well as evidence placed before the Court. Where there are more than one dying declaration, no straight jaket formula can be laid down. In the circumstances, case must be decided on the facts of each case. In the present case, the trial court has partly allowed the application no. 33 kha under Section 319 Cr.P.C. of the prosecution with finding that since the specific allegation has been levelled by the deceased in her second dying declaration only against present revisionist, therefore, the said evidence is sufficient to summon the revisionist. Since there were no corroborative material against Nannhi Devi (mother-in-law) and Vikash (brother-in-law) except the statements of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, therefore, prayer for summoning them has been refused by the trial court. So far as submission of learned counsel for the revisionist regarding false implication of the revisionist on account of FIR dated 17.09.2014 lodged by father of the revisionist against opposite party no.2 and his family members as well as proceedings of maintenance case no. 214 of 2018 filed by the present revisionist Preeti Devi are concerned, the same has been taken into consideration by the trial court, while passing the impugned order dated 14.08.2019.

13. Issues relating to scope and object of summoning the accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C. has been well considered and settled by Constitutional Bench consisting of five Judges of Apex Court in case of Hardeep Singh and others vs. State of Punjab and others 2014(3) SCC 92. Relevant paragraph nos. 105 and 106 of the said judgment are reproduced herein-below:-

"105. Power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extra-ordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of Cross-Examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In Section 319 Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence' is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not "for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

14. The aforesaid principles laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh (supra) has been reiterated further in case of Brijendra Singh and others vs. State of Rajasthan; 2017(7) SCC 706 as well as in the case S Ahmad Ispahni vs. Yogendra Chandak and others; 2017 (16) SCC 226 observing that powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised only where strong and cogent evidence are found against a person and not in a casual and cavalier manner. The decree of satisfaction before summoning the offence under Section 319 Cr.P.C. must be more than prima facie, which is warranted at the time of framing of charges against the accused.

15. The Apex Court in case of Periyasamik and others vs. S.Nallasamy 2019 (4) SCC 342 has also held that the additional accused cannot be summoned under Section 319 of the Code in casual and cavalier manner in the absence of strong and cogent evidence. Under Section 319 of the Code additional accused can be summoned only if there is more than prima facie case as is required at the time of framing of charge but which is less than the satisfaction required at the time of conclusion of the trial convicting the accused.

16. The grounds taken in the criminal revision reveal that many of them are disputed question of facts. This Court is of the view that in view of Section 32 of the Evidence Act, dying declaration is a material piece of evidence, which is much more than prima facie and sufficient to summon the person concerned under Section 319 Cr.P.C. as an additional accused. It is also well settled that the appreciation of evidence is a function of the trial court. This Court in exercise of power under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C. cannot assume such jurisdiction and put to an end to the process of trial provided under the law. The disputed question of facts and defence of the accused cannot be taken into consideration at this pre-trial stage. Factual submissions and defence as raised in the criminal revision can be more appropriately gone into by the trial court at the appropriate stage.

17. Under the facts and circumstances of the case, I do not find any material illegality or perversity in the order dated 14.08.2019 of the trial court, therefore, the same is not liable to be interfered with, as the same is impeccable.

18. As a fallout and consequence of above discussions, the revision lacks merit, and is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajiv Lochan Shukla, learned Senior counsel assisted by Sri Ravi Kant Shukla, appearing for the revisionists, Sri I.K. Chaturvedi, learned Senior counsel assisted by Sri Pawan Kumar Mishra, appearing for the opposite party no.2, the learned A.G.A. for the State and also perused the record.

2. This revision has been filed by the revisionist, Manidhar Mishra and Gangadhar Mishra @ Ankur Mishra against the judgement and order dated 05.09.2019 passed by learned Sessions

Judge, Basti on the application (Paper No.77Kha) moved by opposite party no.2 Pradeep Kumar Tiwari in S.T. No. 211 of 2016 (State Vs. Roop Narayan Giri) in Case Crime No. 0568 of 2016 under section 302 I.P.C., Police Station Captainganj, District Basti.

3. Submission of the learned counsel for the revisionist is that initially an application was moved from the side of prosecution under section 319 Cr.P.C. and the learned Sessions Judge, Basti passed an order dated 28.10.2017 by which he rejected the application.

4. Against that order, a revision being Revision No. 236 of 2018 was filed before this Court and vide order dated 08.07.2019, that revision was partly allowed in respect of two accused persons Ankur Mishra and Manidhar Mishra remanding the file with the direction that in respect of both of them, learned trial court shall reconsider and re-visit as to whether Ankur Mishra and Manidhar Mishra may be summoned in exercise of power under section 319 Criminal Procedure Code in the light of the guidelines provided in the case of Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab (2014) 3 SCC 92 and shall pass fresh order in respect of summoning of these two accused persons. For remaining revisionists, revision was rejected finding no illegality and infirmity in the order of the learned trial court in respect of them. Therefore, matter remained pending in respect of Ankur Mishra and Manidhar Mishra and the learned Sessions Judge, Basti was expected to pass fresh order. Subsequently, learned Sessions Judge, Basti, after hearing both the sides, passed the impugned order by which he summoned the accused, Ankur Mishra and Manidhar Mishra for the offence under Section 302 /34 I.P.C. under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

5. Aggrieved by this order, the present revision has been filed by the revisionists, Ankur Mishra and Manidhar Mishra challenging the impugned order on the basis that the learned trial court, after the case was remanded back to him, did not consider the directions given in the order of this Court and without considering the guidelines of the aforesaid judgements, impugned order was passed. It was not considered that Investigation Officer did not submit charge-sheet against them. Impugned order is based on the testimony of P.W.2, Ashutosh Tiwari. During trial the statement of P.W.1Pradeep Kumar Tiwari, the applicant/ complainant was also recorded but the same has not been considered while passing the said order. The testimony of P.W.1 and P.W.2 were inconsistent and as such was not reliable at all. It appears that they are not even eye witnesses of the case and the complainant has implicated all the family members of accused persons. Post-mortem report also did not support the prosecution version and only three injuries were found on the body of the deceased, hence, order is not sustainable in the eye of law and deserves to be quashed. It has been further submitted that the revisionist no.1 is employed as Government Servant whereas revisionist no.2 is in search of job.

6. it has been further submitted that in the judgement passed by this Court in the aforesaid Revision, an observation was made by this Court that 'so far as the complicity of Ankur Mishra, Manidhar Mishra are concerned appears to be specific role has been attributed to them in the testimony of PW-2'. For remaining persons, this Court absolutely did not find any case and to that effect observation has been incorporated in the judgement of this Court. The learned trial court passed the impugned order on the basis of aforesaid observation which is not justified in view of the judgement of this Court in the earlier Revision.

7. Submission of the learned counsel for the revisionists is of two folds; firstly, that the guidelines which were required to be considered by the learned trial court in view of the order of this Court was not at all considered while summoning the revisionists and secondly, learned trial court did not consider the statement of witnesses in detail as directed by this Court.

8. It is pertinent to mention that initially the F.I.R. was lodged naming 8 accused persons. After investigation, charge-sheet was filed only against one Roop Narayan Giri and other 7 accused persons were given clean chit in the matter.

9. Since copy of the CD in which Investigation Officer has recorded the statements of witnesses is not on record, therefore, it is not possible to take some assistance in order to test as to on what ground, Investigation Officer did not submit charge-sheet against the revisionists/ accused persons. Therefore, I have to confine to the statement which was recorded during trial. Before the learned trial court, P.W.2 has been examined. It is admitted fact from both the sides that P.W.1 is not an eye witness and he made statement on the basis of information given to him on mobile and on receiving information, he came to lodge F.I.R. P.W. 2 has been examined as eye witness before the trial court and he has given his statement before the trial court in which involvement of the accused persons/revisionists has been clearly stated. From the statement of P.W.2, it appears that he has specifically stated that at the time of the incident, accused Roop Narain Giri was carrying sabbal and accused Ankur Mishra was also carrying sabbal whereas accused Manidhar Mishra was armed with knife and lathi. The witness has stated that when they started beating his grand-father, he saw the said incident himself and with him, his grand-mother also saw the incident. The learned trial court has further referred to the statement of PW-3 Smt Ketaki Tiwari who has stated that she saw her husband surrounded by the accused persons on his cot. On noise, her grand son told her that her husband was being beaten. She saw her husband was being beaten by accused Roopnarain Giri and Ankur Misra hitting her husband by sabbal and others were carrying lathi and have surrounded him. Seeing that all the accused persons surrounded her husband and beating him, she cried and fainted. Thus, the learned trial court found that both PW-2 and PW-3 are eyewitnesses and have stated that accused Roop Narayan Giri and Ankur Mishra were carrying sabbal and other accused Manidhar Misra with lathi were striking the deceased. Thus, the learned trial court found enough evidence against the accused persons showing their involvement in the commission of offence.

10. Learned counsel for the revisionists has referred to the judgement rendered in the Case of Sunil Kumar Gupta and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, [2019 (108) ACC 29), in which Supreme Court visited the law on the point of Section 319 Cr.P.C., that refers to the judgement of Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab, (2014) 3 SCC 92 and Sarabjit Singh and another Vs. State of Punjab and another, (2009) 16 SCC 46 and has concluded that for summoning the accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. much stronger evidence than mere probability of complicity of such persons is required and it should appear that if such evidence remains un-rebutted, the trial would result in conviction. It is also to be seen as to whether impugned order which has been passed in consonance with the said guidelines and the law laid down.

11. Section 319 Cr.P.C. reads as under :-

"319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.-

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub - section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced a fresh, and the witnesses re- heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

12. In Hardeep Singh (supra), the Constitution Bench has settled the law in respect of Section 319, Criminal Procedure Code. that the standard of proof employed for summoning a person as an accused under Section 319 is higher than the standard of proof employed for framing a charge against an accused. The Supreme Court observed for the purpose of Section 319 as under:

".....what is, therefore, necessary for the Court is to arrive at a satisfaction that the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution, if unrebutted, may lead to the conviction of a person sought to be added as the accused in the case."

Regarding the degree of satisfaction necessary for framing a charge, the Court observed:

"However, there is a series of cases wherein this court while dealing with the provisions of Sections 227, 228, 239, 240, 241, 242 and 245 of the Cr.P.C., has consistently held that the court at the stage of framing of the charge has to apply its mind to the question whether or not there is any ground for presuming the commission of an offence by the accused.

The court has to see as to whether the material brought on record reasonably connect the accused with the offence. Nothing more is required to be enquired into. While dealing with the aforesaid provisions, the test of prima facie case is to be applied. The court has to find out whether the materials offered by the prosecution to be adduced as evidence are sufficient for the court to proceed against the accused further".

The Court concluded as below:

"106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction....."

13. In Babubhai Bhimabhai Bokhiria vs. State of Gujarat, 2014 (5) SCC 568, the aforesaid view of Hardeep Singh (supra) has been further quoted with approval and the Supreme Court has held as under :-

"Section 319 of the Code confers power on the trial court to find out whether a person who ought to have been added as an accused has erroneously been omitted or has deliberately been excluded by the investigating agency and that satisfaction has to be arrived at on the basis of the evidence so led during the trial. On the degree of satisfaction for invoking power under Section 319 of the Code, this Court observed that though the test of prima facie case being made out is same as that when the cognizance of the offence is taken and process issued, the degree of satisfaction under Section 319 of the Code is much higher."

14. In Brijendra Singh vs State of Rajasthan, AIR 2017 SC 2839, the supreme court discussed the meaning of 'evidence' in section 319, Criminal Procedure Code and expressed the view that the examination-in-chief of prosecution witnesses is to be considered and there is no need to wait for cross-examination. The prima facie opinion and satisfaction with regards to complicity of the person in commission of the offence is not mere probability of involvement. It requires stronger and cogent evidence. In this case, the IO investigated the offence and did not submit charge-sheet for the reason that at the time of incident the appellant was at a distance of 175 km from the place of occurrence. The supreme court set aside the summoning order and observed that no doubt, the trial court can summon the person on the basis of the statement of witnesses given during trial. However, where plethora of evidence was collected by the IO including documentary evidence indicating his plea of alibi to be correct, the trial court is duty bound to consider the evidence so collected by IO while forming opinion and recording satisfaction regarding prima facie case for the purpose of section 319 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

15. The view expressed in Hardeep Singh (supra) has been further reiterated in Labhuji Amaratji Thakor vs State of Gujarat, AIR 2019 SC 734 and has laid down that the test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. The Supreme Court set aside the order of the High Court and up held the order of Court below rejecting the application under section 319.

16. In Rakesh vs State of Haryana, AIR 2019 SC 2168, It appears that the facts of the case was quite similar in the case before the Supreme Court as in that case also the name of the persons was not mentioned in the FIR and when the statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded by the Investigating Officer, the name of these persons did not find mention. The supreme court again considered the ambit of section 319 and laid down as follows:

"Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction."

17. What is important is that the learned trial court discussed the statement of PW-2 and PW-3 and found sufficient evidence showing involvement of and for proceeding against the revisionists Ankur Mishra and Manidhar Mishra for the offence under Section 302/34 IPC. After reaching this conclusion, the learned trial court took support in favour of the conclusion by referring to the observation of this court in the judgement of earlier Revision in which this court has observed to the effect that in the testimony of PW-2, specific role has been attributed to two accused persons Ankur Mishra and Manidhar Mishra. I do not find anything wrong in it and it cannot be said that the learned trial court has summoned the revisionists only on the basis of the aforesaid observation of this Court.

18. So far as submission of the learned counsel for the revisionists with regard to non mentioning of judgement of the Supreme Court is concerned which has been pointed out in the earlier judgement of this Court in the said revision, of course, it appears to be missing, but, this revision is not to be decided on this basis or on the basis why the learned trial court did not mention or discuss those references.

19. In the situation like this, where two eyewitnesses supported the prosecution version and have stated the involvement of these two accused persons in commission of the offence and if the same remains unrebutted, the prosecution will certainly succeed, and also considering the fact that these two accused persons/revisionists were named in the F.I.R., I find that there remains no reason as to why and how otherwise conclusion could be reached by the learned trial court with regard to these two accused person.

20. In view of the above, I am of the view that there is no substance in the arguments of the learned counsel to the revisionists and the impugned order does not suffer from any illegality, infirmity or jurisdictional error. Revision has no force and is liable to be dismissed.

21. The revision is accordingly, dismissed.

6. Thereafter, the trial proceeded and Mustafa was examined as P.W.-2 and after completing examination-in-chief of P.W.-2 the application was decided a fresh by the impugned order dated 21.08.2019 and the accused persons /revisionists were summoned under section 319 Cr.P.C.

7. Aggrieved by this order, this revision has been filed challenging the impugned order on the basis that in passing the said order the evidence was not properly weighed and the same is illegal, without consideration of the facts and evidence on record. This was not considered by the learned court below that there was no allegation in the FIR against the revisionists and no specific role was assigned to them in commission of the offence. The deceased sustained only one fire arm injury and none other have sustained any injury, therefore, the impugned order is illegal and against the provisions of law and is liable to be set aside.

8. It has been admitted by both the sides is pertinent that in revision only three aspects are considered- material irregularity, illegality and jurisdictional error in passing the impugned order. The Revisional Court is not required to enter into the factual matrix in such cases and needless to say that the jurisdiction of the Revisional Court is enough restricted, so far as the factual matrix is concerned.

9. From the perusal of the F.I.R. it appears that the accused persons who are summoned under section 319 Cr.P.C. were all named in the F.I.R., therefore, it was necessary to look into the reasons, why and how, I.O. submitted charge-sheet only against single accused. It is strange to see that in the charge-sheet there is specific mention of section such as 147, 148 IPC and it requires that the particular offence must have been committed by a group of persons who must have constituted an unlawful assembly with the common object of committing the offence. Therefore, there appears to be apparent absurdity that the I.O. submitted charge-sheet only against a single accused and incorporated in the charge-sheet that the offence under section 147 and 148 IPC was also constituted. It is also very significant to mention that the learned trail court has also framed charge including these two sections alongwith section 149 IPC, therefore, while submitting the charge-sheet it was in the mind of the I.O. that the offence has been committed by an unlawful assembly with the common object to commit that offence and the same must have been present while framing charge.

10. Now, there are two witnesses who have been examined as yet, PW-1 Murtaza who was already earlier examined and who has lodged F.I.R. and the second is PW-2 Mustafa who is eyewitness.

11. It is also pertinent to mention that the cross-examination of PW-1 has been completed from the side of the accused and thereafter, PW-2 has been examined. Admittedly the offence was committed in the mid night and for committing the offence the place of occurrence has been shown to be the house of deceased and the place around his house. The learned counsel to the revisionist has laid emphasis on the fact that when the fire took place, the informant was in his room, therefore, he could not be said to be an eyewitness of the incident. May be so, it is one angle of viewing the situation but in his statement it has clearly come that when he and his wife came out side the house they saw the accused persons 9 or 10 in numbers, armed with pistols in their hands, after committing the offence, were indulged in firing targeting other family members and creating alarm and threatening to all of them escaped from the place.

12. Now, saying that this witness is not an eyewitness has to be looked into by the learned trial court. A finding on this aspect is not expected in revision, but this much is clear that they saw the accused persons come out from the house and running away from the place firing towards the family members.

13. Section 319 Cr.P.C. reads as under :-

"319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.-

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub - section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced a fresh, and the witnesses re- heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

14. In Hardeep Singh (supra), the Constitution Bench has settled the law in respect of Section 319, Criminal Procedure Code. that the standard of proof employed for summoning a person as an accused under Section 319 is higher than the standard of proof employed for framing a charge against an accused. The Supreme Court observed for the purpose of Section 319 as under:

".....what is, therefore, necessary for the Court is to arrive at a satisfaction that the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution, if unrebutted, may lead to the conviction of a person sought to be added as the accused in the case."

Regarding the degree of satisfaction necessary for framing a charge, the Court observed:

"However, there is a series of cases wherein this court while dealing with the provisions of Sections 227, 228, 239, 240, 241, 242 and 245 of the Cr.P.C., has consistently held that the court at the stage of framing of the charge has to apply its mind to the question whether or not there is any ground for presuming the commission of an offence by the accused.

The court has to see as to whether the material brought on record reasonably connect the accused with the offence. Nothing more is required to be enquired into. While dealing with the aforesaid provisions, the test of prima facie case is to be applied. The court has to find out whether the materials offered by the prosecution to be adduced as evidence are sufficient for the court to proceed against the accused further".

The Court concluded as below:

"106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction....."

15. In Babubhai Bhimabhai Bokhiria vs. State of Gujarat, 2014 (5) SCC 568, the aforesaid view of Hardeep Singh (supra) has been further quoted with approval and the Supreme Court has held as under :-

"Section 319 of the Code confers power on the trial court to find out whether a person who ought to have been added as an accused has erroneously been omitted or has deliberately been excluded by the investigating agency and that satisfaction has to be arrived at on the basis of the evidence so led during the trial. On the degree of satisfaction for invoking power under Section 319 of the Code, this Court observed that though the test of prima facie case being made out is same as that when the cognizance of the offence is taken and process issued, the degree of satisfaction under Section 319 of the Code is much higher."

16. In Brijendra Singh vs State of Rajasthan, AIR 2017 SC 2839, the supreme court discussed the meaning of 'evidence' in section 319, Criminal Procedure Code and expressed the view that the examination-in-chief of prosecution witnesses is to be considered and there is no need to wait for cross-examination. The prima facie opinion and satisfaction with regards to complicity of the person in commission of the offence is not mere probability of involvement. It requires stronger and cogent evidence. In this case, the IO investigated the offence and did not submit charge-sheet for the reason that at the time of incident the appellant was at a distance of 175 km from the place of occurrence. The supreme court set aside the summoning order and observed that no doubt, the trial court can summon the person on the basis of the statement of witnesses given during trial. However, where plethora of evidence was collected by the IO including documentary evidence indicating his plea of alibi to be correct, the trial court is duty bound to consider the evidence so collected by IO while forming opinion and recording satisfaction regarding prima facie case for the purpose of section 319 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

17. The view expressed in Hardeep Singh (supra) has been further reiterated in Labhuji Amaratji Thakor vs State of Gujarat, AIR 2019 SC 734 and has laid down that the test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. The Supreme Court set aside the order of the High Court and up held the order of Court below rejecting the application under section 319.

18. In Rakesh vs State of Haryana, AIR 2019 SC 2168, It appears that the facts of the case was quite similar in the case before the Supreme Court as in that case also the name of the persons was not mentioned in the FIR and when the statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded by the Investigating Officer, the name of these persons did not find mention. The supreme court again considered the ambit of section 319 and laid down as follows:

"Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction."

19. in this case P.W.-2 is the eyewitness who has seen the occurrence and he has also stated the same thing in his statement. He has stated that on the said time, date and place, the accused persons came in the mid night. He saw them who were 9 or 10 in numbers carrying pistol in their hands. He recognized them in the electric light and they all were the resident of same village and were very much acquainted with him. He has further stated that they all had caught hold of deceased on his cot and on the exhortation of Smt. Sanjeeda @ Moti accused Mohsin shot him on his chest. On hearing noise his brother Mustafa and his wife Smt. Julekha, a neighbor Sahid @ Bhuru reached there and they challenged the accused persons, thereupon, while stepping done from the staircase, they all fired on them with intention to cause death. Thereafter, threatening of dire consequences they went away from the place. This is the evidence on record for the purpose of disposal of application under section 319 Cr.P.C.

20. The learned trial court has considered the evidence on record and has found sufficient evidence on record for establishing involvement of these accused persons in the commission of the offence. At the cost of the repetition it must be remembered that the Investigating Officer while submitting the charge-sheet when mentioned section 147 and 148 IPC, the natural inference is that by concluding investigation he has found that the offence was committed by unlawful assembly. The statement of witnesses certainly goes to show that these accused persons constituted an unlawful assembly and at the the time of incident they were the members of unlawful assembly. The requirement for the application of section 319 Cr.P.C. appears to have been established by statement of two witnesses. All these accused persons are named accused persons in the FIR and the FIR has not been delayed to support the idea that in the written report the name of so many persons was deliberately included while lodging the F.I.R. in a situation, where the crime has been committed in mid night and that too in the house of deceased, it appears natural and more probable that a single accused will not alone go and commit such crime in other's house and place unless accompanied by other accused persons, otherwise, the possibility may be always there that the single person may be overpowered by other side. Therefore, the conclusion reached by the learned trial court is logical and justified.

21. In view of the above discussions, I find that there is no material irregularity or illegality in the impugned order nor there is any jurisdictional error and therefore, the revision has got no force and is liable to be dismissed.

22. The revision is dismissed accordingly.

In the opinion of the doctor death of the deceased occurred due to shock and coma as a result of ante-mortem injuries. P.W.9- Dr. C.N. Shukla has stated to have prepared the postmortem report in his hand writing and signatures as Ex. Ka-8.

8. Due to the death of injured Raja Ram on 29.3.1994 at about 12.00 P.M. at District Hosptial, Hardoi, investigation of the case was altered under Section 304 IPC vide G.D. entry no.12 dated 31.3.1994.

9. The investigating officer after completion of the investigation submitted charge sheet against all appellants under Sections 304, 323, 325 and 504 IPC.

10. On the case being committed to the court of sessions the charges under Sections 302/34, 325/34, 323/34, 506 IPC were framed against all appellants, who denied the charges and claimed trial.

11. Prosecution in order to prove its case relied on following documentary evidence.:-

12. We have noticed the statement of prosecution witnesses as under:-

P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, who is the son of the deceased Raja Ram, has stated about the existence of enmity in between his father and appellants pertaining to use of the passage which falls in front of the houses of appellants by deceased Raja Ram for his tractor-trolley. This witness has further stated that on the fateful night at about 8.00 P.M. when his father was going to extend Holi Greetings and reached in front of the house of Kaptan Singh all appellants started assaulting him with sticks. He further stated that on alarm raised by his father, he along with his uncle Ram Ratan, aunt Smt. Nanhi Devi, brother Vinod Kumar, Ram Swaroop, Hari Shankar and Majanu arrived at the spot and attempted to save his father, on which he and other persons of his side were assaulted by appellants by sticks. On a noise made by them, Babu Ram, Ram Lal and other villagers came at the spot and saved them. Appellants after hurling abuses and intimidating them fled away from the scene of occurrence. He further stated that on the next morning all injured persons and his father Raja Ram went to Police Station Manjhila and lodged the report scribed by Tula Ram. He identified the signatures of his father on the First Information Report and also acknowledged that Tula Ram has only written what was stated by his father-Raja Ram. He also stated that due to deteriorated condition of his father he was admitted in District Hospital, Hardoi. However, due to the injures sustained by him, he died in the hospital during the course of treatment.

P.W.2- Ram Ratan, who is the brother of the deceased- Raja Ram has corroborated the story of prosecution as stated in the First Information Report and has stated that on the fateful night when he and his brother Raja- Ram were going to extend Holi Greetings all appellants, who were carrying sticks with them, assaulted them in front of the house of Kamta @ Kaptan Singh. According to him, on an alarm raised by them, Vinod, Ram Swaroop, Dinesh Kumar, Smt. Nanhi Devi, Hari shankar and Majanu came at the spot who were also beaten by the appellants. Thereafter other villagers and his brother Babu Ram came and appellants after abusing and intimidating them fled away from the scene. He further stated that appellants were having enmity with his brother- Raja Ram on the basis of dispute pertaining to the passage of the tractor-trolley from the 'Galiyara' situated in front of the house of Data Ram. He stated that the injuries of the injured persons were treated at Government Hospital, Shahabad from where he and his brother Raja Ram was referred to District Hospital, Hardoi. He acknowledged that the Investigating Officer recorded his statement.

P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi, who is the wife of P.W.2- Ram Ratan has stated about the enmity of the appellants with the brother of her husband Ram Ratan (Raja Ram)for the reason that the tractor trolley owned by Raja Ram from used the passage situated in front of the houses of the appellants. She further stated that on the fateful day and time when her 'Jeth' (Raja Ram) arrived in front of the house of Kamta Nai, appellants started beating him with lathis and on an alarm made by Raja Ram, she and other family members of her house rushed to the scene of occurrence and they were also assaulted by the appellants. She claimed that on alarm being raised by them, her Jeth- Babu Ram and many other villagers came at the scene. She along with other injured persons went to Police Station Manjhila and got their injuries examined at Government Hospital, Shahabad. Her husband and Jeth Raja- Ram were referred to District Hospital, Hardoi, where Raja Ram died. She also acknowledged that her statement was recorded by the Investigating Officer.

P.W.4- Ram Swaroop has been declared hostile, who in his statement has stated that on the fateful night at about 8.00 P.M. when he was in his house, he heard an alarm being raised by Raja Ram and Ram Ratan and when he arrived at the scene of the occurrence, near the house of Kaptan Singh, he was also assaulted by some one by striking a blow of lathi on his head, whereby he became unconscious and could not see appellants assaulting Ram Ratan and Ram Sewak. On being cross examined by the public prosecutor he admitted that he went to the Police Station Majhila and Government Hospital Shahabad on the next day, where his injuries were treated and Ram Ratan, Raja Ram and Vinod Kumar who were severely injured, were referred to District Hospital, Hardoi.

P.W.5- Chhabi Nath is a witness of Inquest (Panchayat Nama) who acknowledged his signatures on the inquest report.

P.W.6- S.I. Mewa Singh has stated that he performed the inquest of the body of deceased Raja Ram and also prepared necessary papers for the purpose of postmortem and has proved those papers as Ex. Ka-1 to Ex. Ka-7.

P.W.7- Tula Ram is the scribe of FIR, who stated that he wrote the FIR Ex. Ka-1, which and the report was signed by Raja Ram and thereafter it was given to the clerk of the Police Station.

P.W.8- Dr.C.N. Shukla has stated that he performed postmortem on the body of deceased Raja Ram. He stated to have prepared the postmortem report in his signatures and hand writing and also stated about the injuries and other examination made by him which has been elaborately discussed in paragraph 7 of this judgment.

P.W.9- Dr. A.K. Jain has also stated to have examined the injuries of injured persons from the informant side. He has proved the injury reports of the injured persons Smt. Nanhi Devi, Majanu, Hari Shankar, Vinod Kumar, Ram Swaroop, Dinesh Kumar, Ram Ratan and Raja Ram under his signatures and hand writing as Ex. Ka-9 to Ka-16. Detailed description of the injuries found by him on the body of injured persons has been elaborately stated in paragraph 5 of this judgment.

13. After closure of evidence of prosecution statement of all appellants were recorded under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C., wherein they have denied to have caused injuries to the informant or other injured persons and claimed that in fact appellants- Ram Sewak and Data Ram were assaulted by Ram Ratan and others and a cross FIR pertaining to that incident was lodged by appellant Data Ram and he was also medically examined. However, appellants choose not to adduce any witness in their favour.

14. The appellants after recording their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C. have filed four documents in their defence by list 61B, along with application 60 B, which were taken on record vide order of trial Court dated 24.2.2005. The detail of these documents is as under ;

The first document 61B/2, filed by appellants in their defence is a certified copy of the FIR, Chick no. 44/94 lodged by appellant- Data Ram on 28.3.1994 at 10.45 A.M. against Raja Ram, Ram Ratan, Hari Shankar and Shiv Raj under Sections 323, 504 IPC which was registered as NCR and was modified as Case Crime No. 78/95 on 17.6.1995 under Sections 325, 323, 504 IPC on the basis of X-ray report, with the allegations that on 27.3.1994 at 8.00 P.M. when Data Ram was extending greetings of Holi, in front of his house the above accused persons assaulted him, his brother- Ram Sewak and son of Data Ram. It is further alleged that witnesses named therein and other villagers saved them.

Next document 61B/4, is a certified copy of the Final Report (Closure Report) submitted by the Investigation Officer, pertaining to the above case stating that the investigation of the case is closed as the allegations of the FIR were found false.

Third document 61B/6 is a certified copy of Site Plan of the alleged occurrence of the above mentioned case lodged by appellant Data Ram.

Fourth document i.e. 61B/8, is a certified copy of the complaint of complaint case no. 2971 of 2003 filed by appellant Data Ram on 18.9.2003 against Ram Ratan and Hari Shankar under Sections 323, 325, 504 and 506 iPC.

Apart from above documents one report dated 18.4.1994 submitted by Medical Officer, District Jail Hardoi to J.M. Hardoi, is also on record which stated that under orders of the Court dated 12.4.1994, Xray of Data Ram and Ram Sewak was performed, in District Hospital Hardoi, wherein a finger of Ram Sewak was found fractured. However, no fracture has been found on the person of Data Ram.

15. Learned trial Court after appreciating the evidence available on record came to the conclusion that the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and therefore convicted all the appellants for committing the offences under Sections 302/34, 325/34 and 323/34 IPC and sentenced all the appellants in the manner stated herein before, in paragraph two of this judgment.

16. Aggrieved by the judgment and order of the trial court the appellants have challenged the same by filing instant appeals.

17. Learned counsel for the appellants, while referring to the judgment of the trial court submits that the trial court in order to convict the appellants has relied on inadmissible evidence, completely ignoring the fact that it is a case where the appellants had claimed that it was actually the informant's side who had assaulted the appellants and by such assault appellants sustained injuries on their persons, which were not explained by the prosecution. Therefore, he submits that the trial court has committed an illegality by not appreciating the evidence available on record in the light of the cross case and cross version of the incident.

He further submits that the prosecution has not explained the injuries sustained by the appellant- Data Ram and others while it was the incumbent duty of the prosecution to explain as to how the injuries have been sustained by the appellants.

It is further submitted that independent witnesses have not been produced by the prosecution and the witnesses of the fact who have been produced by the prosecution i.e. P.W.1- Dinesh, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and PW-.3- Smt. Nanhi, are all blood relatives, therefore he submits that the prosecution purposely withheld the independent witnesses and have produced only those witnesses, who are relatives of the deceased.

He further submits that the evidence of the prosecution witnesses is not reliable and they are not truthful, therefore, the trial court has erred in convicting the appellants.

He further submits that even if the story of the prosecution is taken on its face value the alleged act of appellants could not travel beyond 325 IPC, as there was no intention of the appellants to cause death of deceased- Raja Ram and this fact has been completely ignored by the trial court.

Learned counsel for the appellants relied on following case laws:-

(1) Mani Vs. State of Kerala and others (2019) 2 SCC Crl. Page 1.

(2) Ranbir Vs. State (NCT) of Delhi (2019) 2 SCC Crl. 746.

(8) Atul Thakur Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh (2018) 1 SCC Crl. 743.

(9) Mahendra Mulji Kerai Patel Vs. State of Gujrat (2008) 14 SCC 690.

18. Learned AGA while supporting the judgment of the trial court submits that requisite standard of proof beyond reasonable doubts has been achieved by the prosecution before the trial court and all prosecution eye witnesses who were produced before the court below are injured witnesses and therefore their testimony could not be easily brushed aside, therefore no error has been committed by the trial court in accepting the reliable testimony of injured eye witnesses.

He further submits that the appellants have not specifically taken the plea of self defence and they have never said that they in exercise of any right of private defence had assaulted the deceased and other injured persons, therefore the trial Court was not obliged to consider their reluctant plea of private defence, however the trial Court has elaborately considered this issue and recorded a finding that no right of private defence was available to the appellants and therefore there appears no illegality or error in the judgment of the trial court.

He further submits that prosecution is not obliged to explain the superficial injuries found on the person of appellant, unless it is proved that the injuries were sustained in the same incident.

He further submits that testimony of all eye witnesses is reliable and truthful and the medical evidence also corroborates the same. The enmity in between the parties is an admitted fact, as they were having 'ranjish' with regard the passage of tractor-trolley of Raja Ram through ''Galiyara' situated in front of house of appellant- Data Ram and it has also come in the evidence that two days prior to the incident a wall of the house of Data Ram was demolished by the trolley of deceased- Raja Ram. Otherwise also in a case based on direct evidence, the motive looses its significance.

He further submits that the court below has not committed any illegality or irregularity either in appreciation of evidence or application of law and therefore, no interference in the judgment of the trial court is warranted as from the conduct of the appellants it was apparent that they were having a common intention to cause death of deceased- Raja Ram and to inflict injuries to the injured persons. Therefore the trial Court has committed no error in convicting the appellants.

19. Having heard the submissions of Ld. Counsel for the parties we deal with the first argument of Learned counsel for the appellants that the informant's side actually assaulted the appellants whereby the appellants- Data Ram and others sustained injuries and a cross report pertaining to this incident was lodged by appellant- Data Ram but the court below has ignored this material fact.

The law relating to the right of private defence of person and property is found under Section 96 to 106 of the Indian penal code. The provisions contained in these sections give authority to a man to use necessary force against an assailant or wrong-doer for the purpose of protecting ones body and property when immediate aid from the state machinery is not readily available and in doing so he is not answerable in law for his deeds.

Honble Supreme Court in a landmark decision Darshan Singh Vs. State of Punjab and Ors. reported in MANU/SC/0044/2010 after analyzing many judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as of High Courts formulated following principles :-

"58. .....

(i) Self-preservation is the basic human instinct and is duly recognized by the criminal jurisprudence of all civilized countries. All free, democratic and civilized countries recognize the right of private defence within certain reasonable limits.

(ii) The right of private defence is available only to one who is suddenly confronted with the necessity of averting an impending danger and not of self-creation.

(iii) A mere reasonable apprehension is enough to put the right of self defence into operation. In other words, it is not necessary that there should be an actual commission of the offence in order to give rise to the right of private defence. It is enough if the accused apprehended that such an offence is contemplated and it is likely to be committed if the right of private defence is not exercised.

(iv) The right of private defence commences as soon as a reasonable apprehension arises and it is co- terminus with the duration of such apprehension.

(v) It is unrealistic to expect a person under assault to modulate his defence step by step with any arithmetical exactitude.

(vi) In private defence the force used by the accused ought not to be wholly disproportionate or much greater than necessary for protection of the person or property.

(vii) It is well settled that even if the accused does not plead self-defence, it is open to consider such a plea if the same arises from the material on record.

(viii) The accused need not prove the existence of the right of private defence beyond reasonable doubt.

(ix) The Indian Penal Code confers the right of private defence only when that unlawful or wrongful act is an offence.

(x) A person who is in imminent and reasonable danger of losing his life or limb may in exercise of self defence inflict any harm even extending to death on his assailant either when the assault is attempted or directly threatened."

Honble Supreme Court in Babulal Bhagwan Khandare and Ors. Vs. State of Maharashtra reported in MANU/SC/1026/2004 , opined as under :-

"26.....Only other question which needs to be considered, is the alleged exercise of right of private defence. Section 96, IPC provides that nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of the right of private defence. The Section does not define the expression 'right of private defence'. It merely indicates that nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of such right. Whether in a particular set of circumstances, a person legitimately acted in the exercise of the right of private defence is a question of fact to be determined on the facts and circumstances of each case. No test in the abstract for determining such a question can be laid down. In determining this question of fact, the Court must consider all the surrounding circumstances. It is not necessary for the accused to plead in so many words that he acted in self-defence. If the circumstances show that the right of private defence was legitimately exercised, it is open to the Court to consider such a plea. In a given case the Court can consider it even if the accused has not taken it, if the same is available to be considered from the material on record. Under Section 105 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (in short 'the Evidence Act'), the burden of proof is on the accused, who sets up the plea of self-defence, and, in the absence of proof, it is not possible for the Court to presume the truth of the plea of self-defence. The Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances. It is for the accused to place necessary material on record either by himself adducing positive evidence or by eliciting necessary facts from the witnesses examined for the prosecution. An accused taking the plea of the right of private defence is not necessarily required to call evidence; he can establish his plea by reference to circumstances transpiring from the prosecution evidence itself. The question in such a case would be a question of assessing the true effect of the prosecution evidence, and not a question of the accused discharging any burden. Where the right of private defence is pleaded, the defence must be a reasonable and probable version satisfying the Court that the harm caused by the accused was necessary for either warding off the attack or for forestalling the further reasonable apprehension from the side of the accused. The burden of establishing the plea of self-defence is on the accused and the burden stands discharged by showing preponderance of probabilities in favour of that plea on the basis of the material on record.....

27. The number of injuries is not always a safe criterion for determining who the aggressor was. It cannot be stated as a universal rule that whenever the injuries are on the body of the accused persons, a presumption must necessarily be raised that the accused persons had caused injuries in exercise of the right of private defence. The defence has to further establish that the injuries so caused on the accused probabilise the version of the right of private defence. Non- explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance. But mere non-explanation of the injuries by the prosecution may not affect the prosecution case in all cases. This principle applies to cases where the injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, consistent and credit- worthy, that it far outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries. [See Lakshmi Singh v. State of Bihar MANU/SC/0136/1976 : 1976CriL J1736]. A plea of right of private defence cannot be based on surmises and speculation. While considering whether the right of private defence is available to an accused, it is not relevant whether he may have a chance to inflict severe and mortal injury on the aggressor. In order to find whether the right of private defence is available to an accused, the entire incident must be examined with care and viewed in its proper setting....."

(Emphasis Ours)*

In Laxman Singh Vs. Poonam Singh ,MANU/SC/0692/2003, Hon'ble Supreme Court resolved as under :-

*"8. The number of injuries is not always a safe criterion for determining who the aggressor was. It cannot be stated as a universal rule that whenever the injuries are on the body of the accused persons, a presumption must necessarily be raised that the accused persons had caused injuries in exercise of the right of private defence. This principle applies to cases where the injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, consistent and credit-worthy, that it far outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries."

It is apparent from the above decisions that existence of any right to defend the person or property either of self or of any other person is not necessarily required to be proved by accused persons by tendering direct evidence and the same may also be proved by referring to the evidence of prosecution and from the contradictions occurred therein and also by referring to other proved facts and circumstances available on record.

Keeping in view the above settled legal position pertaining to the proof of right of private defence and the extent of its exercise, we proceed to examine whether the appellants were having any right to defend their person and whether the same has been exercised within the limitations enumerated and highlighted in the above mentioned case laws and scheme as provided in Section 96 to 105 of Indian Penal Code.

Appellant- Ram Swaroop in his statement recorded under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. has stated that Ram Sewak and Data Ram were assaulted by Ram Ratan and others and a first information report with regard to this incident was lodged by Data Ram and he was also medically examined. Similar was the answer of appellants- Ram Ratan, Data Ram and Siya Ram.

From the above statements of the appellants recorded under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. it is apparent that a specific plea of exercise of right of private defence has not been taken by the appellants, as they have not stated to have assaulted or used force in exercise of such right but only stated that in fact they were beaten by the informant's side.

Perusal of record further reveals that P.W.-9 Dr. A.K. Jain on 28.3.1994 from 12.30 p.m. onwards has examined the injuries of 8 injured persons from informant side, namely, Raja Ram, Ram Ratan, Hari Shankar, Majnu, Smt. Nanhi Devi, Vinod Kumar , Ram Swaroop and Dinesh Kumar. The appellants in their defence has produced four documents which are certified copies of (i)Cross FIR (ii) Final Report submitted by police (iii) Site Plan of cross case and (iv) Complaint filed by appellant Data Ram. Therefore no copy of any injury report has been filed by the appellants on record nor any Doctor was examined by them which may suggest that some injuries were sustained by the appellant Data Ram or Ram Sewak in the incident. However During the course of pendency of matter at the stage of commital two illegible Photostat copies of injury reports of Data Ram and Ram Sewak were produced, perusal of which shows that appellant Data Ram has sustained two injuries on his head and some injuries on various parts of his body and appellant Ram Sewak has also sustained some injuries. All these injuries were simple and these were about one day old. Though these Photostat copies of the injury reports are not admissible in evidence, without proof in accordance with the provisions contained in the Indian Evidence act, but keeping in view the fact that the appellants may prove the existence of any right of private defence in their favor by the standard of preponderance of probabilities, we take these documents in consideration only for the limited purpose of evaluating the existence of any right of private defence in favor of appellants.

Perusal of the documents filed by the appellants before the Court below in their defence further reveals that it was alleged by the appellant that they were assaulted by informant's side in front of the house of appellant Data Ram and an FIR in the matter was also lodged by appellant Data Ram. However after investigation Final report was submitted by the police and thereafter a complaint case was filed by the appellant Data Ram. It has further been stated by learned counsel for the appellants, during the course of argument before this Court, that the complaint case filed by the appellants was dismissed and persons arrayed as accused persons therein were not summoned to face trial.

However, the copy of the FIR, Final Report, Site Plan and complaint case submitted by the appellants reveal that the appellants have taken a defence that informant's side actually assaulted them and on an alarm raised by them some villagers came there and in order to save the appellants, they used force by lathis (sticks), whereby Raja Ram and Ram Sewak sustained injuries and Raja Ram ultimately died and one finger of appellant- Ram Sewak also sustained fracture. Significantly the date and time of the incident mentioned in the cross FIR and complaint filed by appellant is the same which has been stated by the prosecution in the instant case i.e. 22.3.1994 at 8.00 P.M. So far as the place of occurrence is concerned informant stated that the incident occurred in front of the house of Kaptan, while appellants stated that it occurred in front of the house of appellant Data Ram. However there is not such distance in between these places. It is also pertinent to mention here that during cross examination suggestion has also been given by the appellants to P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar that Raja Ram and others went to the house of Data Ram to assault him and ladies of the appellant's house, in order to save them, assaulted Raja Ram whereby the informant's side received injuries. In the same manner a suggestion was also given to P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi by the appellants that informant's side assaulted them and on an alarm raised by them, their neighbours and other villagers used force to save the appellants, whereby the injured persons from informant's side received injuries.

In this view, from perusal of the evidence and material made available by the appellants on record it transpires that the appellants have taken a defence that informant and other persons of their side assaulted them on 27.3.1994 at 8.00 p.m. in front of the house of appellant Data Ram and when they raised an alarm, other villagers came at the scene and in order to save them, used sticks whereby Ram Sewak and Raja Ram got injuries and Raja Ram died subsequently.

There cannot be any doubt in the proposition that the accused persons of a crime, during trial, may put forth their defence in many ways. They may put their defence by way of suggestions given to the prosecution witnesses or through their statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. as well as by tendering oral or documentary evidence.

In the instant case two fold defence has been put forth by the appellants, at first they had taken a defence that they had been beaten by informant's side and in order to save them, ladies of their house used force by lathis and secondly that when they were being beaten by the informant side, neighbours and other villagers responded and assaulted informant's side, whereby the informant's side sustained injuries.

Having perused the evidence available on record, we are of the considered opinion that the appellants have miserably failed to prove the existence of any right of private defence in their favour. No witness has been examined by the appellants in support of their defence. The cross FIR lodged by the appellant Data Ram culminated into Closure Report(Final Report) and thereafter a complaint case was filed by appellant Data Ram. No document has been filed by the appellants which may show as to what has happened to the complaint case filed by Data Ram and only a statement has been made by Ld. counsel for the appellant before this Court that the complaint case filed by them has been dismissed. Therefore, the documents filed by appellants in their defence, at the most, may only suggest that there was a cross version of the incident which was not found true by the Investigating Officer and a final report was submitted and thereafter a complaint case was filed, which was also dismissed. Therefore, the evidence and material submitted by the appellants is not sufficient, even on the parameter of preponderence of probability, to establish any right of private defence in favour of appellants.

Now, when no witness has been produced by the appellants to establish any right of private defence and the documentary evidence produced by the appellants has also been found not sufficient to prove existence of any such right, we look into the evidence led by prosecution, in order to satisfy ourself, as to whether any right of private defence could be inferred in favour of appellants, which may justify use of force by them to the extent of killing one of the injured persons of the informant's side namely Raja Ram.

We have carefully perused the statements of P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi and have found that there is nothing in their evidence which may even remotely suggest that either the appellants or their ladies, neighbours or other villagers were having any right of private defence, in exercise of which, inflicting of injuries by them, on informant side, may be justified. It is also apparent from record that injuries of appellants - Data Ram and Ram Sewak have not been duly proved by appellants. Moreover the injuries found on the person of appellants- Data Ram and Ram Sewak are of such nature which might have been sustained by them during the course of scuffle or even by the co-appellants under the duress of their assault. All injuries sustained by these two appellants have been found simple in nature and only one injury sustained by Data Ram on his forehead appears to be of some substance, but in absence of any reliable evidence in support of the defence, this injury alone is not enough to reject the otherwise truthful and reliable evidence of prosecution witnesses, specially in the background that eight persons from the side of informant have sustained injuries in the occurrence and in order to save himself any of the injured person may ignorantly cause such injuries to these two appellants. No reliable evidence has been tendered by the appellants either before the trial court or before this Court, which may suggest that apart from minor injuries to Data Ram and Ram Sewak any other appellant have sustained any injury and photo copy of the injury reports of Data Ram and Ram Sewak, filed along with the bail application before the trial court, could not be read in evidence unless duly proved in accordance with law. Even otherwise all injuries claimed by these two appellants have been found simple and it is after many days of the occurrence that a report has been submitted by the medical officer of District Jail Hardoi pertaining to the fracture found in the finger of Ram Sewak.

Having gone through the reliable evidence of the prosecution injured eye witnesses, namely, P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi, we are of the considered opinion that the occurrence has taken place in front of the house of Kaptan @ Kamta and there is nothing on record which may suggest that the informant's side went to the house of appellant- Data Ram and assaulted them. The names of the ladies of the house of appellants or the name of any villager or even any neighbour, who allegedly exercised the right of private defence on behalf of the appellants, has not been stated by the appellants either during the trial or before this Court. Therefore the plea of existence of a right of private defence in favour of the appellants has not been found proved and the only corollary of this is that appellants have miserably failed to prove any right of private defence available to them or to any other person to defend their person . It is also established by the truthful evidence of injured eye witnesses presented by prosecution that on 27.3.1994 at 8.00 P.M., it was the informant's side, which was assaulted by appellants by sticks, resulting into injuries to eight persons of the informant's side, out of which, Raja Ram died during the course of treatment in the District Hospital, Hardoi. The appellants by referring to the injuries allegedly sustained by appellants- Data Ram and Ram Sewak have been successful only in establishing that the appellant- Data Ram and Ram Sewak, along with other appellants were present at the scene of occurrence and at the most it may be a case of free fight, but certainly no right of private defence was available either to the appellants or to any other person, against informant and other injured persons as they have not been found aggressor. We accordingly do not find any substance in this submission of Ld. Counsel for appellants.

20. The next submission by Ld. Counsel for the appellants is that independent witnesses have not been produced by the prosecution and the witnesses of the fact who have been testified by the prosecution i.e. P.W.1- Dinesh, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and PW-.3- Smt. Nanhi, are all blood relatives, therefore he submits that the prosecution purposely withheld the independent witnesses and have produced only those witnesses, who are relatives to the deceased and the trial Court has committed an illegality in accepting the testimony of these interested witnesses.

In Appabhai and Ors. vs. State of Gujarat, MANU/SC/0028/1988 Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under :-

"Experience reminds us that civilized people are generally insensitive when a crime is committed even in their presence. They withdraw both from the victim and the vigilante. They keep themselves away from the Court unless it is inevitable. They think that crime like civil dispute is between two individuals or parties and they should not involve themselves. This kind of apathy of the general public is indeed unfortunate, but it is there everywhere whether in village life, towns or cities. One cannot ignore this handicap with which the investigating agency has to discharge its duties.

The court, therefore, instead of doubting the prosecution case for want of independent witness must consider the broad spectrum of the prosecution version and then search for the nugget of truth with due regard to probability if any, suggested by the accused."

In Sucha Singh and Ors. vs. State of Punjab, MANU/SC/0527/2003 Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed as follows :-

"15. In Dalip Singh and Ors. v. The State of Punjab MANU/SC/0031/1953 : [1954]1SCR145 it has been laid down as under:-

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely, Ordinarily a close relation would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalization. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gangabhavani vs. Rayapati Venkat Reddy and Ors. , MANU/SC/0897/2013 held as under :-

"11. It is a settled legal proposition that the evidence of closely related witnesses is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon.(Vide: Bhagaloo Lodh and Anr. v. State of U.P. MANU/SC/0700/2011 : AIR 2011 SC 2292; and Dhari and Ors. v. State of U.P. MANU/SC/0848/2012 : AIR 2013 SC 308).

12. In State of Rajasthan v. Smt. Kalki and Anr. MANU/SC/0254/1981 : AIR 1981 SC 1390*, this Court held:*

"5A. As mentioned above the High Court has declined to rely on the evidence of P.W. 1 on two grounds: (1) she was a "highly interested" witness because she "is the wife of the deceased".....For, in the circumstances of the case, she was the only and most natural witness; she was the only person present in the hut with the deceased at the time of the occurrence, and the only person who saw the occurrence. True it is she is the wife of the deceased; but she cannot be called an 'interested' witness. She is related to the deceased. 'Related' is not equivalent to 'interested. A witness may be called 'interested' only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of a litigation; in the decree in a civil case, or in seeing an accused person punished. A witness who is a natural one and is the only possible eye witness in the circumstances of a case cannot be said to be 'interested'. In the instant case P.W. 1 had no interest in protecting the real culprit, and falsely implicating the Respondents."(Emphasis added)(See also: Chakali Maddilety and Ors. v. State of A.P. MANU/SC/0609/2010 : AIR 2010 SC 3473).

13. In Sachchey Lal Tiwari v. State of U.P. MANU/SC/0865/2004 : AIR 2004 SC 5039, while dealing with the case this Court held:

"7....Murders are not committed with previous notice to witnesses; soliciting their presence. If murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a street, only passers-by will be witnesses. Their evidence cannot be brushed aside or viewed with suspicion on the ground that they are mere 'chance witnesses'. The expression 'chance witness' is borrowed from countries where every man's home is considered his castle and everyone must have an explanation for his presence elsewhere or in another man's castle. It is quite unsuitable an expression in a country where people are less formal and more casual, at any rate in the matter explaining their presence."

14. In view of the above, it can safely be held that natural witnesses may not be labelled as interested witnesses. Interested witnesses are those who want to derive some benefit out of the litigation/case. In case the circumstances reveal that a witness was present on the scene of the occurrence and had witnessed the crime, his deposition cannot be discarded merely on the ground of being closely related to the victim/deceased."

In Bhagaloo Lodh and Ors. vs. State of U.P. reported in MANU/SC/0700/2011, It was held as under :-

"14. Evidence of a close relation can be relied upon provided it is trustworthy. Such evidence is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before resting of conclusion to convict the accused in a given case. But where the Sessions Court properly appreciated evidence and meticulously analysed the same and the High Court re-appreciated the said evidence properly to reach the same conclusion, it is difficult for the superior court to take a view contrary to the same, unless there are reasons to disbelieve such witnesses. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are inter-related to each other or to the deceased."

It is therefore settled that merely because witnesses are close relatives of victim, their testimonies cannot be discarded. Relationship with deceased is not a factor that affects credibility of a witness, more so, a relative would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegation against an innocent person. However, in such a case Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse the evidence of such witness to find out, whether he is a natural witness and whether in the facts and circumstances of the case his evidence is cogent and credible. Keeping in view the above factual and legal matrix, we do not find any substance in the submissions of Ld. Counsel for appellants that the testimony of the PW-1 Sri Dinesh, PW-2 Ram Ratan and PW-3 Smt. Nanhee be discarded only on the basis of their relation with the deceased. However, in the facts and circumstances of the case, the same has to be appreciated with care and caution with due regard to the fact that these witnesses are also injured witnesses.

21. The next argument which has been advanced by learned counsel for the appellants is that the prosecution has not been able to prove motive of the crime and therefore the story of the prosecution is not believable.

Per contra learned AGA submits that it is a case of direct evidence and the motive is not of much significance in the instant case.

A three Judges Bench Of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Molu and others v. State of Haryana AIR 1976 SUPREME COURT 2499 opined as under :-

"11. Finally it was argued by the appellants, following the reasons given by the Sessions Judge, that there was no adequate motive for the accused to commit murder of two persons and to cause injuries to others. It is well settled that where the direct evidence regarding the assault is worthy of credence and can be believed, the question of motive becomes more or less academic. Sometimes the motive is clear and can be proved and sometimes. however, the motive is shrouded in mystery and it is very difficult to locate the same. If, however, the evidence of the eye-witnesses is credit-worthy and is believed by the Court which has placed implicit reliance on them, the question whether there is any motive or not becomes wholly irrelevant. For these reasons, therefore, we agree with the High Court that the prosecution has been able to prove the case against the appellants beyond reasonable doubt."

In Praful Sudhakar Parab v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 2016 SUPREME COURT 3107 Hon'ble Supreme Court stated as under :-

"16. One of the submissions which has been raised by the learned amicus curiae is that the prosecution failed to prove any motive. It is contended that the evidence which was led including the recovery of bunch of keys from guardroom was with a view to point out that he wanted to commit theft of the cash laying in the office but no evidence was led by the prosecution to prove that how much cash were there in the pay office. Motive for committing a crime is something which is hidden in the mind of accused and it has been held by this Court that it is an impossible task for the prosecution to prove what precisely have impelled the murderer to kill a particular person. This Court in Ravinder Kumar and another v. State of Punjab, 2001 (7) SCC 690 : (AIR 2001 SC 3570), has laid down following in paragraph 18:

"18.....It is generally an impossible task for the prosecution to prove what precisely would have impelled the murderers to kill a particular person. All that prosecution in many cases could point to is the possible mental element which could have been the cause for the murder. In this connection we deem it useful to refer to the observations of this Court in State of Himachal Pradesh v. Jeet Singh {1999 (4) SCC 370 : (AIR 1999 SC 1293)}:

"No doubt it is a sound principle to remember that every criminal act was done with a motive but its corollary is not that no criminal offence would have been committed if the prosecution has failed to prove the precise motive of the accused to commit it. When the prosecution succeeded in showing the possibility of some ire for the accused towards the victim, the inability to further put on record the manner in which such ire would have swelled up in the mind of the offender to such a degree as to impel him to commit the offence cannot be construed as a fatal weakness of the prosecution. It is almost an impossibility for the prosecution to unravel the full dimension of the mental disposition of an offender towards the person whom he offended."

Keeping in view the above stated law we are of the considered opinion that the prosecution is not obliged to prove those facts which are either impossible for the prosecution to prove or which are locked up in the mind of the accused persons, as to what made them to commit the crime. Therefore, the cases which are based on direct evidence of the witnesses should be decided on the basis of the quality and probative value of the evidence of such eye witnesses.

Having gone through the prosecution evidence available on record, it is apparent that it is a case of direct evidence as the occurrence has been witnessed by P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi, who are themselves injured persons. Therefore when the case of the prosecution is based on the testimony of those witnesses who have seen the occurrence and have also received injuries in the incident, the same should be decided on the quality of their evidence keeping in view the golden rule of proof beyond reasonable doubt. Record further reveals and it has been stated in the evidence by the prosecution eye witnesses that the parties were inimical towards each other on account of the use of passage by Raja Ram for the purpose of his Tractor- Trolley. This fact has also found place in the FIR as well as in the statement of eye witnesses. P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, in his evidence in cross examination has also admitted that a wall of the house of Data Ram was demolished by tractor-trolley of Raja Ram about two days before the incident and Data Ram, though did not lodge any FIR, had hurled filthy abuses on them. Therefore it transpires that just two days before the incident a wall of the house of Data Ram-appellant was demolished by tractor trolley of deceased- Raja Ram and there was sufficient motive available to the appellant to commit the crime. Moreover the appellants have also admitted the occurrence, though with a different version, that they have been beaten by informant side. Therefore when the occurrence, with a cross version has been admitted to the appellants and it is otherwise apparent on the face of record that the parties were inimical towards each other from before the incident, we do not find any force in this submission of learned counsel for the appellants.

21. Learned counsel also submits that the place of occurrence has also not been established and in fact the appellants have been assaulted by the informant side in front of the house of Data Ram, therefore, the case of the prosecution is not acceptable on this score also.

Perusal of record shows that in the FIR no place of occurrence has been mentioned and only the incident has been narrated. P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar who is the son of the deceased, Raja Ram has stated that his father and Ram Ratan were assaulted in front of the house of Kaptan Singh @ Kamta. In cross examination he stated that the house of Kaptan Singh is situated towards north of passage (Galiyara). He further stated that his brother Virendra Kumar took Daroga Ji to the place of occurrence and he did not accompany them. P.W.2 - Ram Ratan in his evidence has also fixed the place of occurrence as in front of the main door of Kaptan Singh's house. He has narrated topography of the passage and surrounding in detail. However, in his cross examination he stated that "marpeet' happened near the tree of 'Pakar' which is situated near the southern wall of Kaptan Singh's house. P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi also corroborated the evidence of above witnesses when she stated that "marpeet' happened near the house of Kaptan Singh. Even hostile witness P.W.4- Ram Swaroop in his statement has stated the place of occurrence as near the house of Kaptan Singh. In lengthy cross examination of these witnesses much emphasis has not been given on the scene of crime and appellants in cross FIR filed by them have stated the scene of occurrence as the front of appellant- Data Ram's house and also that Marpeet has been done by the informant side wherein appellants- Data Ram and Ram Sewak were injured. The site plans prepared in both the cases are also available on record. A perusal of these site plans reveals that there is slight difference in the version of appellants and informant, so far as the places of occurrence is concerned. The informant side stated the place of occurrence as in front of Kaptan Singh's house while the appellants stated the same to be in front of appellant- Data Ram's house. The distance between the houses of Kaptan Singh and Data Ram is only less than hundred meters and assault on them has also been admitted to have happened in-front of Data Ram's house. Therefore keeping in view the fact that appellants' version of the incident was not found truthful and Final Report was submitted by the Investigating Officer and Complaint case filed by them was also dismissed and no reliable evidence has been submitted by them in this case, it is proved that incident had occurred near the house of Kaptan Singh.

22. Learned counsel for the appellants forcefully submits that the testimony of the prosecution witness is full of material contradictions and there are inherent lacuna in the story of the prosecution and therefore the prosecution witnesses are not reliable, moreover the injuries sustained by the appellants- Data Ram and Ram Sewak have not been explained by the prosecution and therefore the appellants are liable to be acquitted.

Learned AGA has, however submitted that the prosecution is not obliged to explain superficial injuries of the appellants in the back ground of the fact that eight persons from the side of prosecution were injured in the incident. Moreover, it has not been proved on record that any injury has been sustained by appellants- Ram Sewak and Data Ram, as neither any injury report has been proved nor any doctor or witness has been examined, which may prove the contention of appellants.

Having regard to the argument of Ld. Counsel for the appellants pertaining to the appreciation of the evidence of witnesses, the law is well settled that in a criminal trial it is the duty of the Court, while appreciating the evidence on record, to exercise due diligence. The Court must bear in mind the facts and circumstances where the crime has been committed, the quality of evidence, nature of the witnesses, their level of understanding and power of perception and reproduction. All efforts must be to find the truth from the evidence available on record. It must also remain in the mind that there cannot be a prosecution case without any fault and therefore obligation lies on the court to analyze the evidence on record and to make sincere judicial scrutiny on the yard stick of settled principles pertaining to appreciation of evidence. The contradictions, infirmities of the evidence must be assessed on the yardstick of probability and unless infirmities and contradictions are of such a magnitude, so as to go to the core of the prosecution case, over emphasis should not be attached to such minor contradictions or infirmities. Experience reminds us that even most honest and truthful witnesses may differ in some details under the duress of cross examination, which may not affect the core of the prosecution case and their evidence therefore must be appreciated keeping in consideration their social status, their power of observation and reproduction as well as the human conduct and due regard must also be given to the fact that memory also fades by the passage of time.

Honble Apex Court long back in the matter of Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai v State of Gujarat as reported in AIR 1983, 753, MANU/SC/0090/1983 laid down the following principles :-

(1) By and large a witness cannot be expected to possess a photographic memory and to recall the details of an incident. It is not as if a video tape is replayed an the mental screen.

(2) Ordinarily it so happens that a witness is overtaken by events. The witness could not have anticipated the occurrence which so often has an element of surprise. The mental faculties therefore cannot be expected to be attuned to absorb the details.

(3) The powers of observation differ from person to person. What one may notice, another may not. An object or movement might emboss its image on one person's mind, whereas it might go unnoticed on the part of another.

(4) By and large people cannot accurately recall a conversation and reproduce the very words used by them or heard by them. They can only recall the main purport of the conversation. It is unrealistic to expect a witness to be a human tape recorder.

(5) In regard to exact time of an incident, or the time duration of an occurrence, usually, people make their estimates by guesswork on the spur of the moment at the time of interrogation. And one cannot expect people to make very precise or reliable estimates in such matters. Again, it depends on the time-sense of individuals which varies from person to person.

(6) Ordinarily a witness cannot be expected to recall accurately the sequence of events which take place in rapid succession or in a short time span. A witness is liable to get confused, or mixed up when interrogated later on.

(7) A witness, though wholly truthful, is liable to be overawed by the Court atmosphere and the piercing cross-examination made by counsel and out of nervousness mix up facts, get confused regarding sequence of events, or fill up details from imagination on the spur of the moment. The sub-conscious mind of the witness sometimes so operates on account of the fear of looking foolish or being disbelieved though the witness is giving a truthful and honest account of the occurrence witnessed by him - perhaps it is a sort of a psychological defence mechanism activated on the spur of the moment."

In Krishna Mochi and Ors. vs. State of Bihar, MANU/SC/0327/2002 held as under :-

"As observed by this Court in State of Rajasthan v. Smt. Kalki and Anr. MANU/SC/0254/1981 : 1981CriLJ1012 , normal discrepancies in evidence are those which are due to normal errors of observation, normal errors of memory due to lapse of time, due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence and those are always there however honest and truthful a witness may be. Material discrepancies are those which are not normal, and not expected of a normal person. Courts have to label the category to which a discrepancy may be categorized. While normal discrepancies do not corrode the credibility of a party's case, material discrepancies do so. Accusations have been established against accused-appellants in the case at hand."

In Shajahan and Ors. Vs. State of Kerala and Ors.,MANU/SC/1094/2007, Hon'ble Supreme Court Of India held as under :-

"9. In another important case Lakshmi Singh and Ors. v. State of Bihar MANU/SC/0136/1976 : 1976CriLJ1736 , after referring to the ratio laid down in Mohar Rai's case (supra), this Court observed:

Where the prosecution fails to explain the injuries on the accused, two results follow:

(1) that the evidence of the prosecution witnesses is untrue; and (2) that the injuries probabilise the plea taken by the appellants.

It was further observed that:

In a murder case, the non-explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of the occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance from which the Court can draw the following inferences:

(1) that the prosecution has suppressed the genesis and the origin of the occurrence and has thus not presented the true version;

(2) that the witnesses who have denied the presence of the injuries on the person of the accused are lying on a most material point and, therefore, their evidence is unreliable;

(3) that in case there is a defence version which explains the injuries on the person of the accused assumes much greater importance where the evidence consists of interested or inimical witnesses or where the defence gives a version which competes in probability with that of the prosecution one.

But non-explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused may assume greater importance where the defence gives a version which competes in probability with that of the prosecution. But where the evidence is clear, cogent and creditworthy and where the Court can distinguish the truth from falsehood the mere fact that the injuries are not explained by the prosecution cannot by itself be a sole basis to reject such evidence, and consequently the whole case. Much depends on the facts and circumstances of each case. These aspects were highlighted by this Court in Vijayee Singh and Ors. v. State of U.P. MANU/SC/0284/1990 : 1990CriLJ1510 .

10. Non-explanation of injuries by the prosecution will not affect the prosecution case where injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, consistent and creditworthy, that it outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of prosecution to explain the injuries. As observed by this Court in Ramlagan Singh v. State of Bihar MANU/SC/0216/1972 : 1973CriLJ44 prosecution is not called upon in all cases to explain the injuries received by the accused persons. It is for the defence to put questions to the prosecution witnesses regarding the injuries of the accused persons. When that is not done, there is no occasion for the prosecution witnesses to explain any injury on the person of an accused. In Hare Krishna Singh and Ors. v. State of Bihar MANU/SC/0181/1988 : 1988CriLJ925 , it was observed that the obligation of the prosecution to explain the injuries sustained by the accused in the same occurrence may not arise in each and every case. In other words, it is not an invariable rule that the prosecution has to explain the injuries sustained by the accused in the same occurrence. If the witnesses examined on behalf of the prosecution are believed by the Court in proof of guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt, question of obligation of prosecution to explain injuries sustained by the accused will not arise. When the prosecution comes with a definite case that the offence has been committed by the accused and proves its case beyond any reasonable doubt, it becomes hardly necessary for the prosecution to again explain how and under what circumstances injuries have been inflicted on the person of the accused. It is more so when the injuries are simple or superficial in nature. In the case at hand, trifling and superficial injuries on accused are of little assistance to them to throw doubt on the veracity of the prosecution case. (See Surendra Paswan v. State of Jharkhand MANU/SC/0978/2003 : (2003)12SCC360 and Anil Kumar v. State of U.P. MANU/SC/0762/2004 : 2004(7)SCALE684 ."

(Emphasis Ours)

We have perused the record in the back ground of submissions made by learned counsel for rival parties and have found that P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi have given reliable account of the incident. All these three injured eye witnesses have established the place of occurrence as in front of or near the main door of house of Kaptan Singh. They have stated that all the appellants participated in the assault with sticks. P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi have stated to have reached at the spot after hearing the alarm raised by deceased Raja Ram and injured Ram Ratan along with other injured persons Dinesh Kumar, Hari Shankar, Majnu, Vinod and Ram Swaroop and as per their reliable evidence they were also assaulted with "lathis' by all appellants. Deceased Raja Ram, P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, P.W.2- Ram Ratan, P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi, Hari Shankar, Majnau, Vinod Kumar and Ram Swaroop, all have sustained injuries in the incident. Their injuries have been medically examined under the police protection and P.W.9- Dr. A.K. Jain, who examined all injured persons on 28.3.1994 from 12.30 P.M. onwards, has clearly deposed that all injuries found on the person of the injured were one day old and were caused by hard and blunt object. He further opined that these injuries might have been sustained on 27.3.1994 at 8.00 P.M. Similarly P.W.8- Dr. C.N. Shukla who performed postmortem on the body of the deceased- Raja Ram has also opined that the injuries found on the person of the deceased were possible to have been caused by 'lathi- dandas'. Therefore, the medical evidence fully corroborates the reliable ocular evidence of P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi.

Though there appears minor contradictions in the testimony of these three injured/ eye witnesses with regard to the fact as to whether Raja Ram was coming back or going to extend Holi greetings at the time of incident and with regard to the fact whether Ram Ratan was actually accompanying him, but all these contradictions are minor ones which do not have any bearing on the core of the prosecution case. It is also to be taken into consideration that P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar was examined on 4.10.2002 while P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi were examined as witnesses before the trial Court on 28.10.2003, therefore all these witnesses of fact have been examined before the trial court after 8 long years of the incident and even after minute analysis and appraisal of their evidence, we do not find any material inconsistency or major contradictions in their evidence. Therefore, in our considered opinion, the evidence of these eye witnesses is reliable, truthful and acceptable. All these witnesses have sustained injuries in the incident and their presence on the spot is proved. Hence in view of above we do not find any illegality in the finding of the court below that the evidence of all three prosecution witnesses is reliable, trustworthy and can be acted upon. The fact that some injuries allegedly found on the person of the appellants- Data Ram and Ram Sewak have not been explained by the prosecution is of no consequence, as firstly no injury reports of either Ram Sewak or Data Ram was produced on record by appellants in their defence, while they filed some documents in their defence. Secondly there is only photo copy of the injuries reports of Data Ram and Ram Sewak, which are illegible and were filed along with the bail application of appellants. We are surprised that no attempt has been made by the appellants to get these medical reports proved by the doctor who had allegedly examined them. It is also apparent that the appellants after closure of evidence of prosecution and after recording their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C. have filed some documents in their defence i.e. Chick FIR, final report, Site Plan pertaining to cross case and also copy of Complaint case, whereby it is alleged that it was informant's side which assaulted the appellants and some villagers used force to save appellants, due to which Raja Ram sustained injuries and died subsequently. Why certified copies of these injury reports pertaining to these two appellants were not brought on record and as to why their injuries were not proved by summoning the doctor, who examined them and also why any witness(s) has not been produced, who may establish their version of the incident, are questions which have not been answered by the appellants, neither before the trial court nor before this Court. This court can only take into consideration that evidence which is admissible in the facts and circumstances of the case and has also been duly proved in accordance with the provisions contained in the Indian Evidence Act. Therefore in absence of any proof of injury reports of appellants- Data Ram and Ram Sewak, It could not be presumed that they actually received injuries in the same occurrence happened on 27.3.1994.

Even if it is admitted for a moment that Ram Sewak and Data Ram got some injuries, out of which, one injury sustained by Ram Sewak, resulted in the fracture of his finger, the same would not discredit the reliable and truthful testimony of three injured eye witnesses and it is possible that while assaulting the informant side, the appellant- Ram Sewak got himself injured or any injured person from the side of informant while defending himself/ herself, unknowingly inflicted any injury on him. But keeping in view the fact that from the side of prosecution as many as eight persons had received injuries, out of which one, namely, Raja Ram died, no adverse inference could be drawn by simple injuries sustained by appellants- Ram Sewak and Data Ram, which has also not been found duly proved in the facts and circumstances of the case.

23. Therefore, firstly, no injury has been proved to have been sustained by the appellants - Ram Sewak and Data Ram and even if the photo copies of injury reports filed with bail application and one report of Medical Officer of District Jail, Hardoi are taken into consideration, injuries allegedly sustained by Ram Sewak and Data Ram are not such that non explanation of which may adversely affect the case of the prosecution and at the most these injuries may suggest that the incident may be a case of free fight.

24. In our considered opinion the evidence of all three injured eye witnesses, namely, P.W.1- Dinesh Kumar, P.W.2- Ram Ratan and P.W.3- Smt. Nanhi Devi, is reliable, trustworthy. All these witnesses are injured witnesses and keeping in view the totality of facts there is a ring of truth around the testimony of these witnesses. Therefore the prosecution has been able to prove its case against the appellants beyond any reasonable doubt that appellants assaulted Raja Ram and other injured persons in front of the house of Kaptan Singh, whereby injured persons received injuries, as a result of which Raja Ram died. It is also established that no right of private defence was available to appellants or to any other person to cause harm to the informant's party.

25. We as a Court of first appeal are conscious of our duty to ensure that to convict appellants the evidence of prosecution must be of such strength that the standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt is achieved. In our opinion, it is the paramount duty of this Court to deliberate even those issues which have not been highlighted by the appellants and which may have some bearing on the merits of the case. After carefully examining the record of the case for this purpose we find that Investigation Officer of this case has not been examined. We have perused the record of the case to find out as to why the Investigating Officer was not produced by the prosecution during trial and why the trial Court did not think it better to summon the Investigating Officer under section 311 of the Code Of Criminal Procedure. Perusal of record for this purpose reveals that when almost all the measures required for the attendance of the Investigating Officer were exhausted and his presence could not be procured, the trial Court closed the evidence of prosecution. Strangely the trial Court did not bother to summon the secondary evidence for the purpose. It shows that the trial Court was not conscious of its role in the criminal trial. The role of the presiding Judge of a criminal Court is not of a referee or umpire, he is required to get himself involved actively in the process of adjudication to know the truth. Unfortunately in this case the trial Judge was ignorant about the importance of its role in a criminal trial. The fact thus remains that the Investigating Officer of this case has not been examined. The law with regard to the consequences which may flow from non examination of the Investigating Officer in a criminal trial are no more res integra.

In Behari Prasad and Ors. vs. State of Bihar, MANU/SC/0752/1996, where Investigating Officer has not been examined, Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under :-

"23..... It, however, appears to us that the entire case diary should not have been allowed to be exhibited by the learned Additional Sessions Judge. In the facts of the case, it appears to us that the involvement of the accused in committing the murder has been clearly established by the evidences of the eye witnesses. Such evidences are in conformity with the case made out in F.I.R. and also with the medical evidence. Hence, for non examination of investigating Officer, the prosecution case should not fail. We may also indicate here that it will not be correct to contend that if an Investigating Officer is not examined in a case, such case should fail on the ground that the accused were deprived of the opportunity to effectively cross examine the witnesses for the prosecution and to bring out contradictions in their statements before the police. A case of prejudice likely to be suffered by an accused must depend on the facts of the case and no universal straight jacket formula should be laid down that non examination of investigating Officer per se vitiates a criminal trial. These appeals, therefore, fail and are dismissed. The appellants who have been released on bail should be taken into custody to serve out the sentence."

In similar situation Hon'ble Supreme Court Bahadur Naik vs. State of Bihar (11.05.2000 - SC) : MANU/SC/0405/2000, held as under :-

"2. The appellant has not been able to shake the credibility of the eye-witnesses. No material construction in the case of the prosecution has been shown to us. Under these facts and circumstances, the non-examination of the Investigating Officer as a witnesses is of no consequences. It has not been shown what prejudice has been caused to the appellant by such non-examination."

In Rakesh Kumar vs. State (Delhi Admn.), MANU/SC/1242/ 1994, Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under :-

"7. The learned Counsel appearing for the appellant first contended that non-examination of S.I. Sube Singh who investigated into the case, raised a great suspicion about the truth and bone fides of the prosecution story. We do not find any substance in this contention. It appears that in spite of best efforts the prosecution could not produce him and therefore no adverse presumption can be drawn against the prosecution for his non-examination. That apart, nothing was elicited in cross examination of any of the prosecution witnesses wherefrom it could be said that the Investigating Officer's production was essentially required to give an opportunity to the defence to cross examine him with reference to statements recorded by him under section 161 Cr. P.C. or any steps taken by him during investigation. His non-examination, therefore, did not in any way affect the prosecution case nor prejudice the appellant in his defence."

In Ram Gulam Chaudhury and Ors. vs. State of Bihar, MANU/SC/0582/ 2001, Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under:-

"27. In the case of Ram Dev v. State of U.P. reported in, this Court has held that it is always desirable for the prosecution of examine the Investigating Officer. However, non examination of the Investigating Officer not in any way create any dent in the prosecution case much less affect the credibility of otherwise trustworthy testimony of the eye witnesses.

29. In the case of Ambika Prasad v. State (Delhi Admn.) reported in MANU/SC/0036/2000 : 2000CriLJ810, it was held that the criminal trial is meant for doing justice not just to the accused but also to the victim and the society so that law and order is maintained. It was held that a Judge does not preside over criminal trial merely to see that no innocent man is punished. It was held that a Judge presides over criminal trial also to see that guilty man does not escape. It was held that both are public duties which the judges has to perform. It was held that it was unfortunate that the Investigating Officer had not stepped into the witness box without any justifiable ground. It was held that this conduct of the Investigating Officer and other hostile witnesses could not be a ground for discarding evidence of P.Ws,5 and 7 whose presence on the spot was established beyond any reasonable doubt. It was held that non-examination of the Investigating Officer could not be a ground for disbelieving eye witnesses."

30. In the case of Bahadur Naik v. State of Bihar reported in MANU/SC/0405/2000 : 2000CriLJ2466, it was held that non-examination of an Investigating Officer was of no consequences when it could not be shown as to what prejudice had been caused to the appellant by such non-examination.

31. In our view, in this case also non-examination of the Investigating Officer has caused no prejudice at all. All the Mr. Mishra could submit was that the examination of the Investigating Officer would have shown that the occurrence had taken place not in the courtyard but outside on the road. The Investigating Officer was not an eye witness. The body had already been removed by the Appellant. The Investigating Officer, therefore, could not have given any evidence as to the actual place of occurrence. There were witnesses who have gave creditable and believable evidence as to the place of occurrence. Their evidence cannot be discarded merely because the Investigating Officer was not examined. The non-examination of the Investigating Officer has not lead to any prejudice to the Appellants. We, therefore, see no substance in this submission.

In State of Karnataka vs. Bhaskar Kushali Kotharkar and Ors., MANU/SC/0702/2004, after considering the ratio propounded in Bahadur Naik and Bihari (Supra), held as under :-

"10. There is very strong and convincing evidence to prove that these respondents along with others had attacked deceased Prakash, PW-1 and PW-2. The Sessions Judge had given valid reasons for finding these respondents guilty. The Single Judge was not justified in reversing the conviction and sentence solely on the ground that investigating officer was not examined by the prosecution. As the respondents were not prejudiced by the non-examination of the investigating officer and also the constable who recorded the FI statement. The finding of the learned Single Judge is erroneous, therefore, we set aside the same."

26. Keeping in view the aforesaid legal position if we look into the facts and evidence of prosecution led in the instant case, we find that the appellants have admitted the occurrence with a cross version and have claimed that informant's side had actually assaulted them in-front of the house of appellant Data Ram. Appellants, in their defence, amongst other documents, have also filed a certified copy of the site plan prepared by the investigating officer of the case lodged by them, wherein the incident has been shown to have occurred in-front of the house of appellant Data Ram . Therefore the happening of the incident on 27.03.1994 at about 08.00 p.m. is also admitted to the appellants. The House of Dataram is situated at a short distance from the house of Kaptan singh, as is evident by the site plans prepared in both cases and the prosecution claimed that the incident in the instant matter occurred in-front of the house of Kaptan. We have gone through the evidence of all the prosecution eye witnesses and have found no infirmity either with regard to the consistency or reliability of these witnesses. All eye witnesses PW-1 Dinesh Singh, PW-2 Ratan Singh and PW-3 Smt. Nanhi are injured witnesses and have given truthful account of the incident. There are no material contradictions in their statements . The spot where incident occurred has been established by these witnesses. No material improvements or contradictions are evident in their testimony. We do not find any thing in the statement of these witnesses which may suggest that the appellant in any manner have been prejudiced by non presentation of investigating Officer and perhaps for this reason this issue was not raised either at thae stage of trial or even before this Court. Therefore in the facts and circumstances of the case non examination of Investigating Officer is not fatal to the prosecution and it is not a ground to disbelieve the otherwise reliable and trustworthy prosecution witnesses. As mentioned above, evidence, facts and circumstances of this case do not reflect that any prejudice has been caused to the appellants on account of non examination of the Investigating Officer. The evidence of the ocular witnesses further shows that no material contradictions were put to them regarding the facts stated by the eye witnesses, from their statements recorded under Section 161 of Cr. P.C. or about the place of occurrence. There was also no effective cross examination regarding the place of occurrence stated by the witnesses to infer any prejudice and as such the appellants were not put to any prejudice by non examination of Investigating Officer and therefore, we find that non examination of Investigating Officer in this case has not resulted in any kind of prejudice to the appellants.

27. Now we come to the next question, as to what offence has been committed by the appellants. The trial Court, vide impugned judgment and order has convicted the appellants for committing the offences under Sections 302/34, 325/34, 323/34 IPC. The proved facts in brief are that on 27.3.1994 at 8.00 P.M. appellants on the basis of previous enmity pertaining to the passage, whereby deceased- Raja Ram used to bring his tractor- trolley, at first assaulted Raja Ram and Ram Ratan and when they raised an alarm, rest of the injured persons who went to save them were also assaulted. The injury reports of all injured persons and injury report and postmortem report of deceased Raja Ram clearly reveal that the injuries sustained by the deceased and injured persons have been caused by the use of sticks. It is also proved that all appellants have participated in the assault and also that they were acting in furtherance of their common intention. The law on this point is well settled that common intention to commit any offence may be formed instantly at the spur of the moment at the spot or even during the course of fight.

28. Hon'ble Supreme Court Of India in Arjun and Ors. Vs State of Chhattisgarh reported in MANU/SC/0153/2017, wherein the appellants assaulted the deceased with katta, gandasa and stone and deceased fell down and sustained injuries on his head and his brain matter came out and he died on the way to the hospital has held as under :-"20. To invoke this exception (4), the requirements that are to be fulfilled have been laid down by this Court in Surinder Kumar v. Union Territory of Chandigarh MANU/SC/0589/1989 :

(1989) 2 SCC 217, it has been explained as under:

7. To invoke this exception four requirements must be satisfied, namely, (i) it was a sudden fight; (ii) there was no premeditation; (iii) the act was done in a heat of passion; and (iv) the assailant had not taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. The cause of the quarrel is not relevant nor is it relevant who offered the provocation or started the assault. The number of wounds caused during the occurrence is not a decisive factor but what is important is that the occurrence must have been sudden and unpremeditated and the offender must have acted in a fit of anger. Of course, the offender must not have taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. Where, on a sudden quarrel, a person in the heat of the moment picks up a weapon which is handy and causes injuries, one of which proves fatal, he would be entitled to the benefit of this exception provided he has not acted cruelly.....

21. Further in the case of Arumugam v. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, Tamil Nadu MANU/SC/8108/2008 : (2008) 15 SCC 590, in support of the proposition of law that under what circumstances exception (4) to Section 300 Indian Penal Code can be invoked if death is caused, it has been explained as under:

18. The help of Exception 4 can be invoked if death is caused (a) without premeditation; (b) in a sudden fight; (c) without the offender's having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner; and (d) the fight must have been with the person killed. To bring a case within Exception 4 all the ingredients mentioned in it must be found. It is to be noted that the 'fight' occurring in Exception 4 to Section 300 Indian Penal Code is not defined in the Penal Code, 1860. It takes two to make a fight. Heat of passion requires that there must be no time for the passions to cool down and in this case, the parties had worked themselves into a fury on account of the verbal altercation in the beginning. A fight is a combat between two and more persons whether with or without weapons. It is not possible to enunciate any general Rule as to what shall be deemed to be a sudden quarrel. It is a question of fact and whether a quarrel is sudden or not must necessarily depend upon the proved facts of each case. For the application of Exception 4, it is not sufficient to show that there was a sudden quarrel and there was no premeditation. It must further be shown that the offender has not taken undue advantage or acted in cruel or unusual manner. The expression 'undue advantage' as used in the provision means 'unfair advantage'.

23. When and if there is intent and knowledge, then the same would be a case of Section 304 Part I Indian Penal Code and if it is only a case of knowledge and not the intention to cause murder and bodily injury, then the same would be a case of Section 304 Part II Indian Penal Code. Injuries/incised wound caused on the head i.e. right parietal region and right temporal region and also occipital region, the injuries indicate that the Appellants had intention and knowledge to cause the injuries and thus it would be a case falling Under Section 304 Part I Indian Penal Code. The conviction of the Appellants Under Section 302 read with Section 34 Indian Penal Code is modified Under Section 304 Part I Indian Penal Code. As per the Jail Custody Certificates on record, the Appellants have served 9 years 3 months and 13 days as on 2nd

March, 2016, which means as on date the Appellants have served 9 years 11 months. Taking into account the facts and circumstances in which the offence has been committed, for the modified conviction Under Section 304 Part I Indian Penal Code, the sentence is modified to that of the period already undergone."

In Surinder Kumar v. Union Territory, Chandigarh MANU/SC/0589/1989 (1989) 2 SCC 217, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that if on a sudden quarrel a person in the heat of the moment picks up a weapon which is handy and causes injuries out of which only one proves fatal, he would be entitled to the benefit of Exception of section 300 IPC provided he has not acted cruelly. It was held that the number of wounds caused during the occurrence in such a situation was not the decisive factor. What was important was that the occurrence had taken place on account of a sudden and unpremeditated fight and the offender must have acted in a fit of anger. Dealing with the provision of Exception 4 to Section 300 this Court observed:

"..... To invoke this exception four requirements must be satisfied, namely, (i) it was a sudden fight; (ii) there was no premeditation; (iii) the act was done in a heat of passion; and (iv) the assailant had not taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. The cause of the quarrel is not relevant nor is it relevant who offered the provocation or started the assault. Where, on a sudden quarrel, a person in the heat of the moment picks up a weapon which is handy and causes injuries, one of which proves fatal, he would be entitled to the benefit of this exception provided he has not acted cruelly."

In Ghapoo Yadav and Ors. v. State of M.P. (2003) 3 SCC 528, MANU/SC/0124/2003, it is held as under :-

"...The help of Exception 4 can be invoked if death is caused (a) without premeditation, (b) in a sudden fight: (c) without the offender's having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner; and (d) the fight must have been with the person killed. To bring a case within Exception 4 all the ingredients mentioned in it must be found. It is to be noted that the 'fight' occurring in Exception 4 to Section 300. IPC is not defined in the IPC. It takes two to make a fight. Heat of passion requires that there must be no time for the passions to cool down and in this case, the parties have worked themselves into a fury on account of the verbal altercation in the beginning. It is a question of fact and whether a quarrel is sudden or not must necessarily depend upon the proved facts of each case. For the application of Exception 4 It is not sufficient to show that there was a sudden quarrel and there was no premeditation. It must further be shown that the offender has not taken undue advantage or acted in cruel or unusual manner. The expression 'undue advantage' as used in the provision means 'unfair advantage'."

In Sukbhir Singh v. State of Haryana (2002) MANU / SC/016/2002 3 SCC 327, the appellant caused two Bhala blows on the vital part of the body of the deceased that was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the appellant had acted in a cruel and unusual manner in following words :-

"...All fatal injuries resulting in death cannot be termed as cruel or unusual for the purposes of not availing the benefit of Exception 4 of Section 300 IPC. After the injuries were inflicted and the injured had fallen down, the appellant is not shown to have inflicted any other injury upon his person when he was in a helpless position. It is proved that in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel followed by a fight, the accused who was armed with Bhala caused injuries at random and thus did not act in a cruel or unusual manner."

For considering the question whether the act of the appellant will fall under Section 304 Part I or Part II of the IPC, we notice the distinction between these two parts of that provision as drawn by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Alister Anthony Pareira v. State of Maharashtra (2012) 2 SCC 648, MANU/SC/0015/2012 which is in the following words:

"..... For punishment under Section 304 Part I, the prosecution must prove: the death of the person in question; that such death was caused by the act of the accused and that the accused intended by such act to cause death or cause such bodily injury as was likely to cause death. As regards punishment for Section 304 Part II, the prosecution has to prove the death of the person in question; that such death was caused by the act of the accused and that he knew that such act of his was likely to cause death...."

In Basdev v. The State of PEPSU AIR 1956 SC 488, Hon'ble Supreme Court drew distinction between motive, intention and knowledge in the following words:

"....Of course, we have to distinguish between motive, intention and knowledge. Motive is something which prompts a man to form an intention and knowledge is an awareness of the consequences of the act. In many cases intention and knowledge merge into each other and mean the same thing more or less and intention can be presumed from knowledge. The demarcating line between knowledge and intention is no doubt thin but it is not difficult to perceive that they connote different things..."

Hon'ble Supreme Court in Pulicherla Nagaraju @ Nagaraja Reddy v. State of Andhra Pradesh (2006) 11 SCC 444, MANU/SC/8419/2006 enumerated some of the circumstances relevant to find out whether there was any intention to cause death on the part of the accused relevant portion of which is extracted herein below:

"...Therefore, the court should proceed to decide the pivotal question of intention, with care and caution, as that will decide whether the case falls under Section 302 or 304 Part I or 304 Part II. Many petty or insignificant matters - plucking of a fruit, straying of a cattle, quarrel of children, utterance of a rude word or even an objectionable glance, may lead to altercations and group clashes culminating in deaths. Usual motives like revenge, greed, jealousy or suspicion may be totally absent in such cases. There may be no intention. There may be no pre- meditation. In fact, there may not even be criminality. At the other end of the spectrum, there may be cases of murder where the accused attempts to avoid the penalty for murder by attempting to put forth a case that there was no intention to cause death. It is for the courts to ensure that the cases of murder punishable under Section 302, are not converted into offences punishable under Section 304 Part I/II, or cases of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, are treated as murder punishable under Section 302. The intention to cause death can be gathered generally from a combination of a few or several of the following, among other, circumstances : (i) nature of the weapon used; (ii) whether the weapon was carried by the accused or was picked up from the spot; (iii) whether the blow is aimed at a vital part of the body; (iv) the amount of force employed in causing injury; (v) whether the act was in the course of sudden quarrel or sudden fight or free for all fight; (vi) whether the incident occurs by chance or whether there was any pre-meditation; (vii) whether there was any prior enmity or whether the deceased was a stranger; (viii) whether there was any grave and sudden provocation, and if so, the cause for such provocation; (ix) whether it was in the heat of passion; (x) whether the person inflicting the injury has taken undue advantage or has acted in a cruel and unusual manner; (xi) whether the accused dealt a single blow or several blows. The above list of circumstances is, of course, not exhaustive and there may be several other special circumstances with reference to individual cases which may throw light on the question of intention..."

In the case of Surain Singh Vs. State of Punjab reported in MANU/SC/0399/2017 (2017) 5 SCC 796, Hon'ble Supreme Court has reiterated the settled legal position about the purport of Exception 4 to Section 300 of IPC. In this case, the accused had repeatedly assaulted the deceased with a Kirpan and caused injuries resulting into death. After restating the legal position, the Court converted the offence to one under Section 304 Part-II instead of Section 302 IPC and observed as under:-

"15. The weapon used in the fight between the parties is 'Kirpan' which is used by 'Amritdhari Sikhs' as a spiritual tool. In the present case, the Kirpan used by the Appellant-accused was a small Kirpan. In order to find out whether the instrument or manner of retaliation was cruel and dangerous in its nature, it is clear from the deposition of the Doctor who conducted autopsy on the body of the deceased that stab wounds were present on the right side of the chest and of the back of abdomen which implies that in the spur of the moment, the Appellant-accused inflicted injuries using Kirpan though not on the vital organs of the body of the deceased but he stabbed the deceased which proved fatal. The injury intended by the Accused and actually inflicted by him is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death or not, must be determined in each case on the basis of the facts and circumstances. In the instant case, the injuries caused were the result of blow with a small Kirpan and it cannot be presumed that the Accused had intended to cause the inflicted injuries. The number of wounds caused during the occurrence is not a decisive factor but what is important is that the occurrence must have been sudden and unpremeditated and the offender must have acted in a fit of anger. Of course, the offender must not have taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. It is clear from the materials on record that the incident was in a sudden fight and we are of the opinion that the Appellant-accused had not taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. Where, on a sudden quarrel, a person in the heat of the moment picks up a weapon which is handy and causes injuries, one of which proves fatal, he would be entitled to the benefit of this Exception provided he has not acted cruelly.

16. Thus, if there is intent and knowledge then the same would be a case of Section 304 Part I and if it is only a case of knowledge and not intention to cause murder and bodily injury then the same would fall Under Section 304 Part II. We are inclined to the view that in the facts and circumstances of the present case, it cannot be said that the Appellant-accused had any intention of causing the death of the deceased when he committed the act in question. The incident took place out of grave and sudden provocation and hence the Accused is entitled to the benefit of Section 300 Exception 4 of the Indian Penal Code."

Therefore the role of appellants, in commission of crime, is to be analyzed and appreciated in the background of above mentioned legal position.

29. Careful perusal of evidence available on record reveals that the occurrence on the fateful day has been proved to have happened in two parts. At first, Raja Ram and Ram Ratan were assaulted by the appellants with sticks and when other injured persons came to their rescue, they were also assaulted. The appellants have failed to prove that they were having any right of private defence and they also failed to prove the photo copies of injury reports filed with the application of bail with regard to appellants- Data Ram and Ram Sewak, but a report sent by Medical Officer, District Jail, Hardoi to Judicial Magistrate, Hardoi on 18.4.1994 is also available on record, whereby it was informed that Ram Sewak got a fracture in his finger. However, this report could not prove the existence of any right of private defence in favour of appellants but these photo copies of injury reports coupled with the above mentioned report of Medical Officer, District Jail, Hardoi may suggest that both the appellants i.e. Data Ram and Ram Sewak might have sustained some simple injuries in the occurrence, therefore, it appears that some resistance was also offerred by the informant side, though, the same may be without any intention to cause harm to any one and might be only to defend themselves. The 'marpit' in the incident is also proved to have occurred in front to the house of Kaptan Singh and this place falls at equal distance from the house of Data Ram and informant/ deceased Raja Ram. Therefore, it is not a case where ;the appellants had come to the house of Raja Ram for the purpose of assaulting him. Per contra the incident had happened when Raja Ram and Ram Ratan were going to extend Holi greetings to the villagers and the appellants were not having any prior information about their arrival. It is also apparent that incident had occurred without premeditation, in the spur of moment and keeping in view the weapon of assault i.e. Lathi and number of injuries caused to the deceased Raja Ram and also the fact that from amongst the injuries sustained by the deceased only one injury has been found fatal, there appears no common intention of appellants to commit murder of Raja Ram. It is also apparent that appellants had not acted in a cruel manner and did not take undue advantage of the situation. It is also worth consideration that the First information report of the case was initially registered under Sections 323, 504, 506 IPC and deceased Raja Ram, even after sustaining injuries, remained in his house for the whole night and approached the Police Station, the next day. Therefore it is not established beyond reasonable doubt on record that appellants were having any intention to commit murder of Raja Ram, but keeping in view the fact that it was only one blow of lathi, inflicted on the head of the deceased- Raja Ram which resulted in the laceration of his brain and membranes and that hematoma was also found beneath this injury and also the fact that some injuries sustained by other injured persons were also found simple in nature, what is found proved is that the appellants were certainly having sufficient common intention/knowledge that their act is likely to result in the death of deceased- Raja Ram or of any other injured person and that they have not acted in a cruel or brutal manner and also have not taken undue advantage of the situation. Thus, in the facts and circumstances of the case they are found to have committed the offence punishable under Section 304 part (II) of the IPC instead of Section 302.

30. In Afrahim Sheikh and Ors. vs. State of West Bengal reported in MANU/SC/0055/1964 Hon'ble Supreme Court while considering the issue as to whether the accused persons could be convicted under Section 304 part II of the IPC with the aid of section 34 of the IPC, opined as under :-

"15. The question is whether the second part of s. 304 can be made applicable. The second part no doubt speaks of knowledge and does not refer to intention which has been segregated in the first part. But knowledge is the knowledge of the likelihood of death. Can it be said that when three or four persons start beating a man with heavy lathis, each hitting his blow with the common intention of severely beating him and each possessing the knowledge that death was the likely result of the beating, the requirements of s. 304, Part II are not satisfied in the case of each of them ? If it could be said that knowledge of this type was possible in the case of each one of the appellants, there is no reason why s. 304, Part II cannot be read with s. 34. The common intention is with regard to the criminal act, i.e., the act of beating. If the result of the beating is the death of the victim, and if each of the assailants possesses the knowledge that death is the likely consequence of the criminal act, i.e., beating, there is no reason why s. 34 or s. 35 should not be read with the second part of s. 304 to make each liable individually."

Above principle was approved by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bhaba Nanda Sarma and Ors. vs. State of Assam ,MANU/SC/0078/1977.

In Saravanan and Ors. vs. State of Pondicherry, MANU/SC/0952/2004 relying on Afrahim Sheikh (Supra),Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under :-

"10. In the leading case of Barendra Kumar Ghosh v. Emperor (AIR 1925 PC 1, the appellant was charged under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC for murder of a Post Master. The evidence disclosed that while the Post Master was in the office counting money, three persons of whom appellant was one, fired pistols at him asking him to hand over cash. The trial Judge directed the Jury that if they were satisfied that the Post Master was killed in furtherance of the common intention of all the three, the appellant could be held guilty of murder whether or not he had fired the fatal shot. The appellant was accordingly convicted. Being aggrieved by such conviction, the appellant approached the Privy Council. It was contended on behalf of the prisoner that he was outside the room. He was in the courtyard and was frightened. He did not participate in the crime and hence, he could not have been convicted for an offence punishable under Section 302 IPC by invoking Section 34 IPC. The contention was, however, negatived. It was held that once it is established that an act was committed in furtherance of the common intention of all, Section 34 could be attracted and all could be held liable irrespective of their individual act.

11. The Judicial Committee observed that the distinction between two types of offenders (i) principals in the first degree, that is, who actually commit the crime; and (ii) principals in the second degree, that is, who aid in commission of the crime, as found in English law has not been strictly adhered to in India. In the circumstances, according to their Lordships, Section 34 would be attracted provided that it is proved that the criminal act was done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all.

12. Dealing with the argument on behalf of the appellant that he had not fired any shot, the Judicial Committee observed that if two men tie a rope round the neck of third man and pull opposite ends of the rope till he is dead, each can be held liable for the ultimate act, i.e. death of the victim. If the contention on behalf of the appellant would be upheld that each should be held liable for his act only, each can successfully contend that the prosecution had not discharged the onus inasmuch as nothing more was proved against each of them, than an attempt to kill which might or might not have succeeded. "Thus both will be acquitted of murder, and will only be convicted of an attempt, although the victim is and remains a murdered man." Referring to Sections 33, 34, 37 and 38 IPC, it was held that even if the appellant did nothing as he stood outside the door, he could be held liable. It is to be remembered that in crimes as in other things "they also serve who only stand and wait."

31. Therefore, in view of aforesaid discussion all appellants are required to be convicted under Section 304 part (II) read with Section 34 of the IPC, instead of Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC. In view of above, both the appeals filed by the appellants are partly allowed and their conviction under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the IPC is altered from Sections 302/34 to Section 304 Part II read with Section 34 of the IPC and all appellants are now convicted for committing the offence under Section 304 part (II) read with Section 34 of the IPC.

Keeping in view the fact that the incident is of the year 1994 and only one injury on the head of the deceased Raja Ram has been found to be fatal and it is not clear as to who is the author of this fatal injury and the appellants are being convicted, as they were sharing common intention/knowledge that their acts are likely to result in the death of Raja Ram, in our considered opinion, imprisonment for 9 years for committing the offence under Section 304 (II) IPC, will meet the ends of justice. Therefore, the appellants no. (1) Siya Ram (2) Data Ram (3) Ram Ratan and (4) Ram Sewak are convicted under Section 304(II) read with section 34 of IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for 9 years and fine of Rs. 10,000/- each and in default of payment of fine they will further undergo simple imprisonment for six months.

So far as conviction and sentence of appellants as ordered by the trial court with regard to Sections 325 and 323 read with Section 34 IPC is concerned we do not find any infirmity in the same and therefore the same is maintained. All punishment will run concurrently and appellants will also get the benefit of Section 428 of Crpc. The judgment and order of the trial court is modified accordingly.

The appellants are reported to be on bail, their bail bonds are canceled and they are directed to surrender before the trial court within 20 days from today. They shall be lodged in jail to serve out the sentence as modified by this Court.

Copy of this judgment be immediately sent, along with the record, to the court below for information and compliance.

A. Criminal Law -Indian Penal Code,1860 - Sections 376, 302 and 201 IPC – Death Penalty – Court would consider cumulative effect of both aggravating and mitigating circumstances and has to strike a balance between the two and see towards which side the scale/balance of justice, tilts - The true import of proposition of law is that awarding of life imprisonment for offence under Section 302 IPC is the rule and death sentence is an exception. To award death sentence, Courts should specify the aggravating and mitigating circumstances of the case.

B. Criminal Law -Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Death penalty – Mitigating & Aggravating circumstances - What are - would depend upon the facts of each case - Trial Court has to compare mitigating and aggravating circumstances to come to the inference as to the punishment to be awarded.

No material has been placed by prosecution to suggest, that accused will be a threat to society and there is no probability of his reformation and rehabilitation. - here is a case where there are certain mitigating circumstances but no aggravating circumstance – held - punishment of death for the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. cannot be justified – Death punishment is highly excessive and deserves to be remitted to life imprisonment. - Reference is hereby rejected - Capital Cases (Appeals) are partly allowed and judgment of Trial Court stands modified only in respect of punishment awarded for offence under Section 302 I.P.C. and substituted by life imprisonment - The punishment imposed for the offences under Sections 376 and 201 I.P.C. are maintained. (Para-3, 100,115,118,120,121,131)

C. Indian Evidence Act, 1860 - Circumstantial Evidence of 'last seen' - It is not necessary that in a criminal trial only when an eye witness is present, conviction can be held and not otherwise - Where circumstantial evidence is such which leads to the inference that it was the accused only who committed the crime and none else, the accused can be convicted and sentenced appropriately - the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn "must" or "should be" and not merely "may be" fully established. Chain of circumstance must be complete leaving no doubt that it was the appellant alone and none else who had committed the crime for which he has been charged.

Present case is not founded on ocular version proving directly that crime has been committed by accused-appellant - It is founded on the circumstantial evidence of last seen as also recovery of various objects including dead body and pathological and Forensic Reports - (Para-73 ,74, 83)

D. Indian Evidence Act, 1860 - Sections 25 and 26, Section 27 - Section 27, exists by way of a proviso to Sections 25 and 26. A statement made by way of confession in police custody that distinctly relates to the fact discovered is admissible in evidence against the accused. (Para - 86 ,87, 88)

21. Second report, of the Joint Director of FSL, Agra is dated 29.10.2009, Ex.Ka-20, and findings are as under:-

(vi) Blood stains on the frock of Km. Jyoti were not fit for classification.

22. Third FSL report Ex.Ka-19 dated 16.01.2010 is with respect to sample of blood stained and simple pieces of stones slab. Accused-appellant was examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. on 24.02.2011, he stated that prosecution story is false; he had not taken Jyoti with him from house of Informant; allegation that he had made Km. Jyoti drunk water is false and concocted; witness Budh Singh in connivance with Lakhan Singh had got FIR registered to implicate him falsely; he did not commit rape or murder and has falsely been implicated; all the documents are false and incorrect; he pleaded ignorance about the postmortem on deceased; site plan had been prepared at the instigation of Informant in order to implicate him; police had arrested him from the chabutra situated out side his house; he did not make any statement to Police and Police has recorded false statement; he did not get any dead body recovered; he pleaded ignorance about blood stains on stone slab; he denied of any underwear belong to him taken by Police; he was not aware as to whose underwear had been recovered; on the instigation of Informant and witnesses, he has been implicated under Section 376 IPC; he also pleaded ignorance about sending articles to FSL for examination; Informant and witnesses are relatives and friends and want to usurp his property after throwing him out of village.

24. On 03.03.2011, accused-appellant was again examined by Court under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein he was confronted with the reports regarding sample of smear in three slides. He said that the same are wrong and he has no knowledge about those reports.

25. On appreciation of evidence available on record and after hearing both the parties, Trial Judge recorded capital punishment against the accused-appellant under Section 302 IPC; life imprisonment under Section 376 IPC and two years' RI under Section 201 IPC as stated above.

26. Trial Court has given verdict of conviction, broadly, recording its finding on the following aspects :-

(i) Dead body of victim (Km. Jyoti) was discovered on the pointing by accused on 05.05.2009.

(ii) Accused has taken victim with him and Informant PW-1 was an eye witness to this fact and also proved the pretext on which accused allured victim to accompany him.

(iii) PW-2 Budh Singh verified the fact that he has seen accused along with victim while he was helping victim to drink water at the hand-pump in front of the house of Bhanwar Singh.

(iv) Possibility of rape could not be ruled out by PW-4 Dr. A.K. Tripathi due to ruptured hymen.

(v) Cause of death of victim due to asphyxia as a result of throttling was proved by PW-4 who proved post mortem report.

(vi) Blood stains were found on the underwear of accused as per forensic report dated 29.10.2009 (Ex.Ka-20) and remained unexplained by accused.

(vii) There was no delay in lodging F.I.R. inasmuch as victim had gone with accused at around 5:00 PM in the evening in front of PW-1 and when she did not return up to 7:00 PM, PW-1 and other family members searched for her. PW-2 Budh Singh during search met Informant and told that he has seen accused along with victim getting her to drink water at the hand-pump in front of the house of Bhanwar Singh and thereafter went together and on this information further search continued and when none could be traced out thereafter report was lodged at 2:00 AM in the Police Station.

(vii) Accused was arrested at 5:00 AM on 05.05.2009 and on his pointing out dead body of the victim was recovered.

(viii) Post mortem was conducted on 05.05.2009 at 3:30 PM and as per statement of PW4 death might have been occurred about 24 hours earlier and / or in the night of 4/5.05.2009.

(ix) Victim was last seen with accused and thereafter her dead body was recovered. The time lapse between the last seen and recovery of dead body is closer ruling out any possibility of the victim having gone with anybody else in the meantime.

(x) Accused pleaded enmity with Informant stating that he wanted to grab his property but neither any evidence was adduced to prove this nor any such suggestion was made to PW-1 and PW-2 in cross-examination.

(xi) Though defence was taken that PW-1 and PW-2 are relatives but this fact could not be proved adducing any evidence.

(xii) No evidence was brought to show that there was previous enmity with the witnesses of fact and more particularly, the Informant and accused. Accused also did not adduce any evidence to show that he had any personal property in the village.

(xiii) Site plan Ex.Ka-9 was proved by I.O., PW-5, S.I. Girwar Giri, showing that the houses of accused and Informant i.e. father of victim are opposite to each other.

(xiv) The place where accused stated to have committed rape upon victim as also the place where her dead body was concealed were clearly mentioned in site plan and I.O. also proved G.D. (Ex.Ka-18) wherein the fact of taking statement of accused explaining the manner in which he committed crime, is mentioned.

(xv) The stone slab on which rape was committed measured 2' 10" by 1' 8" and had blood stains in large amount.

(xvi) The stone slab, underwear of accused and deceased frock were found to have human blood of same nature.

(xvii) Though underwear of accused and underwear and frock of deceased, as per the report (Ex.Ka-2) of PW-6, did not contain spermatozoa but as per forensic report, spermatozoa was found on deceased's frock.

(xviii) In the panchayatnama, swelling in vagina was mentioned and as per post mortem report also hymen was found ruptured which supports that rape was committed upon the victim.

(xix) The defence that accused was juvenile was not found correct and as per record, it was found that accused was 19-1/2 years at the time of incident.

27. Trial Court, therefore, found accused guilty of committing offences under Sections 376, 302 and 201 I.P.C. and has convicted and sentenced him in the manner as stated above.

28. Against conviction and sentence Capital Case Appeal No.4173 of 2011 has been filed by accused-appellant Santosh @ Tidkey through Sri S.P. Sharma, Advocate, Capital Case Appeal No.2330 of 2011 has been filed by same accused-appellant through Senior Superintendent District Jail, Jhansi and Reference No. 06 of 2011 has been made by Trial Court for confirmation of Capital punishment.

29. We have heard Sri S.P. Sharma, learned Counsel for the appellant and Sri M.C. Joshi, learned AGA for State at length and have gone through record carefully with the valuable assistance of learned Counsel for parties.

30. Learned counsel for the accused-appellant contended that there is no eye witness of the incident; there was no motive for accused to commit the crime for which he has been charged; chain of events is not complete so as to draw a conclusion that it is only the accused appellant who could have committed crime and none else; the dead body of the victim was found by Police on its own and accused has been implicated falsely; as per vaginal smear test, no spermatozoa was found and the charge of rape is not proved; prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt; and, lastly that since evidence adduced by prosecution is not sufficient to point out with due reasonableness that it is only the appellant who has committed crime for which he has been charge, accused is entitled to benefit of doubt. On the question of sentence, it is contended that accused at the time of committing crime was a young man of 19-1/2 years with no criminal history and there was no aggravating factors so as to justify death sentence hence Court below in awarding capital punishment has committed manifest error.

31. Per contra Sri M.C. Joshi, learned AGA for the State contended that admittedly, it is not a case of ocular evidence but there are two reliable and unimpeachable witnesses who have proved the fact that the accused had taken the girl with him and she was last seen with him where-after her dead body was recovered and that too, on pointing out by accused-appellant, hence, chain of circumstances was complete; the short time within which incident had taken place and other relevant factors of presence of blood stains on the underwear, stone slab and frock of deceased of same nature support the inference that it is only the accused who had committed crime and none else; and accused has not offered any explanation as to how blood stains were found on his underwear. So far as the sentence is concerned, it is contended that a minor girl aged about 3 and 1/2 years has been dishonoured and murdered in a very cruel manner and accused-appellant, not only committed rape and murder, but even hide her dead body and showed no repentance, hence, Trial Court has rightly treated it as case of rarest of rare nature and awarded capital punishment which warrants no interference and Reference made by Trial Court deserves to be confirmed.

32. Before coming to the merits of the matter we find it appropriate to place on record that during pendency of appeals, accused-appellant moved an application under Section 7-A of Juvenile Justice Board (Care and Protection) Act, 2000 (hereinafter referred to as the Act, 2000) with prayer that accused-appellant be declared juvenile and the matter should be decided in accordance with provisions of Act, 2000. This plea was raised by accused before Trial Court also. The matter was examined and thereafter Trial Court passed order dated 07.07.2010 rejecting application of accused for declaring him juvenile offender in Trial relating to Case Crime No. 66 of 2009 under Sections 302 and 201 I.P.C., P.S.Chirgaon. The matter was taken in Criminal Revision No. 4154 of 2010 by accused-appellant Santosh @ Tidkey wherein order dated 07.07.2010 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Jhansi was challenged. This Court confirmed findings of Trial Court after considering material on record and dismissed revision vide judgement dated 18.1.2017. It is not in dispute that aforesaid judgement of Revisional Court has attained finality therefore, counsel of appellant did not press issue of juvenility before this Court at the time of final hearing of these appeals and Reference and has addressed this Court on merits.

33. Now we proceed to consider the merits of the matter.

34. In the light of rival submissions, two questions have arisen requiring adjudication by this Court :-

(i) Whether prosecution has adduced enough evidence to prove beyond reasonable doubt that accused appellant has committed crime for which he was charged.

(ii) Whether facts of this case bring it within the parameters of 'rarest of rare', so as to justify Capital punishment, i.e. death sentence.

35. Before examining above questions, we find it appropriate to have re-look of entire evidence on record which was brought by prosecution before Court below and thereafter we shall proceed to examine "whether evidence is sufficient to bring home the findings of guilt / conviction against the accused appellant".

36. Documentary evidence placed by prosecution includes written report dated 05.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-1); F.I.R. dated 05.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-6); recovery memo of blood stained stone dated 05.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-3); and recovery memo of wrapper Chka-Chak; and red-yellow Mala, dated 05.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-4); recovery memo of dead body of Km. Jyoti dated 05.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-5); recovery memo of blood stained Chaddhi (underwear) dated 05.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-6); vaginal semen report dated 08.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-22); post mortem report dated 05.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-8); and Forensic Laboratory Reports dated 16.01.2010 (Ex.Ka-19), dated 29.10.2010 (Ex.Ka-20) and dated 26.10.2010 (Ex.Ka-21).

37. Oral evidence examined by prosecution comprised of six witnesses whereof Mehtab Singh PW-1 is the Informant and father of victim / deceased; PW-1 and Budh Singh PW-2 are the witnesses of fact having seen victim along with accused-appellant in the evening of 04.05.2009; Constable, Brijmohan, prepared Chick No. 77 of 2009 (Ex.Ka-6) and G.D. No. 3 at 2:00 AM dated 05.05.2009 (Ex.Ka-7) and these documents were proved by him; Doctor A.K. Tripathi, Senior Consultant, District Hospital, Jhansi, PW-4, had conducted post mortem and proved post mortem report (Ex.Ka-8); Investigating Officer, S.I., Girwar Giri, PW-5 proved site plan (Ex.Ka-9) and also the fact of arrest of accused and discovery of dead body of Km. Jyoti on the pointing out of accused-appellant; recovery memo of dead body and Panchayatnma; collection of blood sample of stone; recovery of underwear of accused-appellant and forensic reports received as (Ex.Ka-19, Ka-20 and Ka-21) and lastly, Dr. Smt. Mohini Saxena, PW-6 who examined three slides of vaginal smear received from Dr. A.K. Tripathi and proved the report (Ex.Ka-22).

38. The Informant PW-1 and Budh Singh PW-2 are witnesses of fact and rest are formal witnesses.

39. PW-1, Mehtab Singh, father of deceased in examination in chief stated that he is well acquainted with accused Santosh @ Tidkey who was residing in front of his house; his daughter Km. Jyoti aged about 3 and 1/2 years at around 5:00 PM on 05.05.2009 was playing in front of door of the house and PW-1 and his wife were present in the house; Accused-appellant on the pretext of getting Mehadi applie on the hand of Km. Jyoti, took her with him in front of Informant and his wife and thereafter Km. Jyoti did not return; they tried to find out but failed. Lakhan Lal and Budh Singh, two persons residing in the village, during search, met Informant and told that they had seen accused Santosh @ Tidkey in front of the house of Bhanwar Singh where he was getting Km. Jyoti to drink water and had seen both of them going together; Santosh @ Tidkey is a mischievous person which led Informant to believe that he (accused) had murdered Km. Jyoti and hide her dead body somewhere; thereafter he lodged report in Police Station i.e. Ex.Ka-1. On 05.05.2009, Police arrested Santosh @ Tidkey at the temple of Kuchbadiya Baba where he was hiding; Santosh @ Tidkey in front of all told that he had killed Km. Jyoti and hide her dead body in the ruins of the house of Hemraj and also that he can get her dead body discovered; thereafter, he got body discovered from the ruin of the house of Hemraj. I.O. prepared panchayatnama of dead body of Km. Jyoti on the spot in front of villagers as well as Informant and PW-2. PW-1 Informant and other villagers signed panchayatnama; at the time of preparing panchayatnama, private part of deceased Km. Jyoti had blood stains and it appeared that after committing rape upon her she was murdered; PW-1 proved his signature on panchayatnama which is marked as Ex.Ka-2. I.O. also collected stone slab having blood stains, it was cut with an Axe and blood stained stone piece was taken in custody and Fard (memo) was prepared which was also signed by Informant and another witness Sudama and it was marked as Ex.Ka-3; from the spot, one Mala, a blank wrapper of 'Chka chak' and Mehadi was recovered for which also Fard (memo) was prepared and signed by Informant as well as Sudama which was marked as Ex.Ka-4. Dead body of girl was sent for post mortem; Four stone pieces kept in a sealed bundle were opened in Court and during examination in chief, Informant saw those pieces and verified that the same were those which were collected by I.O. from the place where dead body was found and where, as per information given by accused, he committed rape and murder of Km. Jyoti and these articles were marked as material Exhibits-1 to 4; out of four stone pieces, one was without any blood stain. In cross examination PW-1 said that they are three brothers, Parvat Singh, Mehtab Singh and Ram Prakash; Parvat Singh is residing outside; Hemraj Singh belongs to his family and in relation is grandfather (Baba) aged about 72 to 75 years; Hemraj has three sons, Budh Singh, Mithlesh and Bahadur Singh; Lakhan Lal belongs to the same caste as that of Informant and his father's name is Gokul; House of Lakhan Lal is at a quite distance from the house of Informant. Lakhan Lal has two houses in the village; one house is after about 8-9 houses from the house of Informant; house of accused was in front of Informant's house and in between there is a five feet passage; there is no Chabutara in front of house of Informant and Informant's house has four rooms; accused Santosh @ Tidkey are two brothers and since childhood he has been residing in the same house; accused is not undergoing education and PW-1 is not aware as upto which class accused has studied; he is not aware as to whether accused was facing any other criminal case; accused is unemployed and just wanders hither and thither; accused was born in front of Informant and there were some complaints of theft committed by accused, made by villagers, but they were all settled; he was not aware as to whose goods were stolen by accused; Informant had four daughters and Km. Jyoti was playing in front of door of his house where he was sitting, Santosh came out from his house and in the presence of Informant took her with him; Informant did not raise objection when accused was taking Km. Jyoti though he asked as to why he was taking her, whereupon he said that he is taking Km. Jyoti for putting Mehadi on her hand; this happened at around 5:00 PM; at that time other neighbours were not present; he did not stop Santosh @ Tidkey from taking Km. Jyoti as he was not aware that Santosh @ Tidkey would murder her; when she did not return up to 7:00 PM, search was made but she could not be found and then Informant was let to believe that Santosh had taken her and might have murdered her, hence he lodged F.I.R.; during search when the girl was not found, two village people Budh Singh and Lakhn Singh told Informant that they had seen Km. Jyoti accompanying Santosh @ Tidkey and she was drinking water from the hand pump in front of the house of Bhanwar Singh Rajpoot and those two persons had seen Km Jyoti going with Santosh @ Tidkey; these persons met Informant arount 7.15 PM, where-after, search continued up to 11:30 PM and then report was lodged at 2:00 AM on 05.05.2009; first of all search was made at the house of Santosh @ Tidkey where his mother was present but Santosh @ Tidkey and Km. Jyoti was not present; both were searched in the entire area; nobody except Budh Singh and Lakhan Singh told that Santosh and Km. Jyoti were going together; Informant came back to his house around 3:00 AM after lodging report and by that time, accused Santosh @ Tidkey could not be found; Informant and others were sitting in the house in the night; body of Km. Jyoti was found in the ruins of house of Hemraj, who was not brother of Informant but belongs to the family; Informant has no relation with Hemraj and was not aware with the name of his father; about 15 houses away is the house of Hemraj; dead body of Km. Jyoti was recovered by Police; Informant had reached the site and Hemraj had also come; dead body was discovered in front of Hemraj, Informant and Ram Prakash; Hemraj and Ram Prakash did not sign documents i.e. recovery memo; Police arrested Santosh @ Tidkey at around 5:00 AM or 5:30 AM in the morning when a lot of people had gathered; after arrest of Santosh @ Tidkey, Informant did not visit Police Station; Informant's statement was recorded by I.O. and Informant told him about the place where-from Santosh @ Tidkey had taken Km. Jyoti; the place where dead body was discovered is around 70 to 80 paces from the house of Informant; he did not visit the entire village with I.O. and Police did not arrest any member of family of Santosh @ Tidkey and only Santosh @ Tidkey was arrested; Informant had no dispute regarding property or house with Santosh @ Tidkey.

40. PW-1 therefore, is not a witness of crime as such, but he has proved that Santosh @ Tidkey had taken Informant's minor daughter, aged about 3-1/2 years, in the evening of 04.05.2009 and when she did not come back by 7:00 PM, search started and during that process.

Informant met Budh Singh also told that Santosh @ Tidkey and Km. Jyoti were going together. PW-1 is also a witness of recovery of dead body of victim in the ruins of house of Hemraj and condition of dead body is mentioned in panchayatnama. He is witness to panchayatnama and recovery memo on which he has put his signature.

41. In cross examination, we do not find anything otherwise extracted by defence to discredit the above facts stated by Informant in his evidence. To this extent evidence of Informant is clear, consistent and in our view, trustworthy. It is not expected that a father will make a wrong statement and shield real culprit when his own daughter and that too a minor girl of 3-1/2 years is subjected to heinous crime committed upon her causing her death.

42. Evidence of PW-1, Informant proved the fact that Santosh @ Tidkey resides in a house, in front of Informant and, therefore, was well know to Informant since his birth. Informant did not give any instance on account whereof there could be any occasion of enmity or bad blood between Informant and accused. Whatever has transpired or he had seen, he stated. He said that Santosh @ Tidkey, on the pretext of putting Mehadi on the hand of victim, took her with him and there being no otherwise reason of suspicion, Informant did not prevent accused from taking her with him for the aforesaid purpose i.e. putting Mehadi on her hand.

43. There is no scope of any identity dispute nor any scope of malice. The statement of Informant to the extent that it is the accused who had taken the girl with him, stating that he would get Mehadi put on her hand and the accused was well known to the Informant is proved by PW-1. These facts remain uncontroverted and nothing otherwise could be extracted in his cross-examination.

44. PW-2, Budh Singh is also a witness of last seen and has stated in his oral deposition that on 04.05.2009 he along with Lakhan Singh was coming from 'Bada' on 04.05.2009 at around 5:00 PM; when they reached near the house of Bhanwar Singh, saw Santosh @ Tidkey getting water drunk to Km. Jyoti from the hand-pump and thereafter both went towards 'Bada'. He told this fact to Ghanaram and Mehtab Singh who is father of Km. Jyoti; she did not return till night and when their family members searched for her, she could not be found where-after her family members reported the matter to Police; it came on 05.05.2009 and recovered dead body of Km. Jyoti from 'Bada' on the pointing out of Santosh @ Tidkey; Police prepared recovery memo of dead body and it was signed by PW-2 also; the said recovery memo, Paper No. 11-A was shown to PW-2 and he verified his signature as also of one Suresh Kumar and it was exhibited as Ex.Ka-5.

45. Police got underwear of Santosh @ Tidkey in its possession which was having blood stains and it was a blue coloured underwear. Recovery memo of underwear was also prepared and it was also signed by PW-2 and Suresh and on proving, document was exhibited as Ex.Ka-6.

46. PW-2 stated that dead body of Km. Jyoti was discovered on the pointing out by Santosh @ Tidkey from the ruins of house of Hemraj. He also identified Santosh @ Tidkey, present in Court, stating that he belongs to the village of PW-2 and has seen him going with Km. Jyoti. Budh Singh son of Hemraj is a farmer. If he had work, he used to go in the morning but when he had no work, normally stays at his residence. Whenever he has work, goes to the field and there is no time of his return. He had normal relation with the family of accused Santosh @ Tidkey. His father Hemraj was alive who had also normal relations with the family of accused Santosh @ Tidkey. The incident is of 04.05.2009 and he reiterated this fact in his examination in chef and in cross-examination as well. In the cross-examination, he said to have seen both of them i.e. Santosh and Jyoti from a distance of only five paces from hand-pump, where she was drinking water and Santosh @ Tidkey was getting her drunk water with his hands. Santosh @ Tidkey was wearing white shirt and pant while Jyoti was wearing frock and underwear. Hand-pump was installed out side the house of Bhanwar Singh and it belongs to Bhanwar Singh. There was no boundary wall around hand-pump. When Santosh @ Tidkey was getting Jyoti drunk water, doors of house of Bhanwar Singh were open and mother of Bhanwar Singh was outside the house. After drinking water, both went towards 'Bada'. 'Bada' is not bound / fenced from all four sides and has no gate. He did not ask from Santosh @ Tidkey and Jyoti as to where they were going. He new Mehtab Singh, father of Km. Jyoti with whom he met in the evening, at around 7:00 PM, when he (Mehtap Singh) told that he was searching his daughter, Km. Jyoti. PW-2 told that he had seen Km. Jyoti with Santosh @ Tidkey outside the house of Bhanwar Singh where Km. Jyoti was drinking water with the help of Santosh @ Tidkey from the hand pump. The condition of Km. Jyoti was normal at the time of drinking water. Santosh @ Tidkey was never prosecuted earlier nor arrested by Police in past. When he was getting Km. Jyoti drunk water, it was not night but there was sun light. No body resides in the 'Bada' of PW-2 i.e. the ruins of the house of Hemraj where the incident had taken place. PW-2 said that Informant went to lodge report around 8:00-9:00 PM and PW-2 had not accompanied him. Informant came back at around 12:00 PM after lodging report and at that time PW-2 was sitting in the locality. When Mehtab Singh had come, he was searching Jyoti. Between 7:00 to 12:00 PM in the night, they also went at the house of Santosh @ Tidkey and inquired about him. PW-2 had Suresh and Lakhan Singh of the village with him, besides 3 to 4 other persons, at that time, but Santosh @ Tidkey was not found at his residence. His brother was found. Santosh was searched in the entire village but could not be found. In the morning, around 5:00 AM, Police came and arrested Santosh @ Tidkey from temple of Kuchbadiya Baba. There was no permanent priest in the said temple and it is open from all the sides. The aforesaid temple was about 1 Km. away from the village. PW-2 had not seen Police while arresting Santosh @ Tidkey but when he was brought in the village, PW-2 saw him. Police made inquiry from Santosh @ Tidkey but did not beat him. Interrogation was made in the present of villagers as well as PW-2. On the pointing of Santosh @ Tidkey dead body of Km. Jyoti was discovered by Police. At that time, PW-2 was also there. In fact entire village was there. The Informant Mehtab Singh was also present.

47. Blue coloured underwear from a sealed cover envelop was opened when witness PW-2 was recalled for examination on the application of prosecution and he proved it. The blue coloured underwear, stating it was the same underwear which accused appellant was wearing at the time of incident and it was taken in custody by Police from the accused-appellant. The aforesaid underwear was marked as Ex.Ka-5. In cross-examination, he reiterated that underwear was seized by Police before him from accused who was wearing the said underwear under the pant. Police got stripped off pant and underwear of accused and took underwear in its custody. The underwear was stained with blood. Police also seized a stone. On the recovery memo of underwear PW-2 and Suresh put their signature.

48. The aforesaid witness PW-2, therefore, has proved three facts :-

(i) He saw accused-appellant Santosh @ Tidkey along with Jyoti in front of house of Bhanwar Singh at the hand-pump where Santosh @ Tidkey with his hands was helping Km. Jyoti to drink water and after drinking water both Jyoti and Santosh @ Tidkey went towards 'Bada' i.e. ruins of the house of PW-2 and Hemraj, whose ruins have been stated by PW-1 is the father of PW-2 Budh Singh.

(ii) Secondly, he has verified and proved the fact that underwear seized by Police belongs to accused-appellant and when he was arrested, Police taken out from the accused the said underwear and seized it. Before seizure the underwear was inspected and it was found containing blood stains and recovery memo was signed by PW-2.

(iii) Discovery of dead body of Km. Jyoti was on the pointing out by accused and at that time not only PW-2 but PW-1 and other villagers were also present.

49. In the cross-examination, we do not find anything adverse which could have been extracted by defence. So far as the above facts stated by PW-2 are concerned, to this extent PW-2 is clear categorical and uncontroverted hence to this extent his evidence, we find wholly trustworthy.

50. Counsel for the accused appellant stated that with respect to the time of lodging of F.I.R., PW-2 has stated that Informant had gone to lodge a report around 8:00 to 9:00 PM and returned back around 12:00 PM in the night while report itself was lodged at 2:00 AM on 05.05.2009 i.e. early morning and there is clear contradiction on this aspect in the statement of PW-2 but we find that this inconsistency in statement of PW-2 is not material vis vis the fact which he has stated in his examination-in-chief and more so, his own statement that he did not accompany Informant for lodging report, therefore, he was not a witness to prove the time of lodging the report was lodged.

51. Minor contradiction regarding time of lodging a report has also arrest of accused, we find that in villages and the incident like above are happening when cannot accept that persons will record the incident keeping a complete time record watching completely wrist watches. Times are mentioned approximately and unless we find some serious contradictions so as to render entire evidence and untrustworthy. There is no reason to discard the evidence which is otherwise truth and trustworthy.

52. In this case, all the above stated factors are minor inconsistencies and same do not affect the substance of testimony of witnesses. In all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observations, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Where the omissions amount to a contradiction, creating a serious doubt about truthfulness of the witness and other witnesses also make material improvement while deposing in the court, such evidence cannot be safe to rely upon. However, minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. Court has to form its opinion about the credibility of witness and record a finding, whether his deposition inspires confidence. Exaggerations per se do not render the evidence brittle, but can be one of the factors to test credibility of the prosecution version, when entire evidence is put in a crucible for being tested on the touchstone of credibility. Therefore, mere marginal variations in the statement of a witnesses cannot be dubbed as improvements as the same may be elaborations of the statements made by the witnesses earlier. Only such omissions which amount to contradictions in material particulars i.e. go to the root of the case/materially affect the trial or core of the prosecution's case, render the testimony of the witness liable to be discredited. [Vide: State Represented by Inspector of Police v. Saravanan & Anr., AIR 2009 SC 152; Arumugam v. State, AIR 2009 SC 331; Mahendra Pratap Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2009) 11 SCC 334; and Dr. Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta & Ors. v. State of Maharashtra, JT 2010 (12) SC 287]. We therefore, find no force in this submission also.

53. Moreover, incident had taken place on 04.05.2009. The aforesaid examination of PW-2 was conducted on 24.1.2011 i.e. after 1 and ½ years. The time lapse can always cause minor aberrations in the statement of a witness who cannot be expected to depict the entire scene like a scripted story as and when required to tell. Any person who is a witness to an incident react in his own way and it differs from person to person. Mostly such aspects which a person thinks to be of most importance or of highest importance are noticed and reflected in his mind but details aspects do not get registered in mind and memory and there may be some variations on such minor aspects. Every contradiction or variation in statement of witnesses is not material and will not render statement of a witness untrustworthy.

54. We have gone through the entire evidence very carefully, as have also discussed above, and find no material contradiction, so as to disbelieve the prosecution case or the individual witness. Minor contradictions are bound to occur but the same will not be fatal to prosecution who has otherwise produced trustworthy witness to prove the guilt of accused.

55. In Sampath Kumar v. Inspector of Police, Krishnagiri, (2012) 4 SCC 124, Court has held that minor contradictions are bound to appear in the statements of truthful witnesses as memory sometimes plays false and sense of observation differs from person to person.

56. In Sachin Kumar Singhraha v. State of Madhya Pradesh in Criminal Appeal Nos. 473-474 of 2019 decided on 12.3.2019, Supreme Court has observed that Court will have to evaluate evidence before it keeping in mind the rustic nature of depositions of the villagers, who may not depose about exact geographical locations with mathematical precision. Discrepancies of this nature which do not go to the root of the matter do not obliterate otherwise acceptable evidence. It need not be stated that it is by now well settled that minor variations should not be taken into consideration while assessing the reliability of witness testimony and the consistency of the prosecution version as a whole.

57. Lest we forget that no prosecution case is foolproof and the same is bound to suffer from some lacuna or the other. It is only when such lacunae are on material aspects going to the root of the matter, it may have bearing on the outcome of the case, else such shortcomings are to be ignored. Reference may be made to a recent decision in Smt. Shamim v. State of (GNCT of Delhi), 2018(10) SCC 509.

58. When such incident takes place, one cannot expect a scripted version from witnesses to show as to what actually happened and in what manner it had happened. Such minor details normally are neither noticed nor remembered by people since they are in fury of incident and apprehensive of what may happen in future. A witness is not expected to recreate a scene as if it was shot after with a scripted version but what material thing has happened that is only noticed or remembered by people and that is stated in evidence. Court has to see whether in broad narration given by witnesses, if there is any material contradiction so as to render evidence so self contradictory as to make it untrustworthy. Minor variation or such omissions which do not otherwise affect trustworthiness of evidence, which is broadly consistent in statement of witnesses, is of no legal consequence and cannot defeat prosecution.

59. In all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observations, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Where the omissions amount to a contradiction, creating a serious doubt about truthfulness of the witness and other witnesses also make material improvement while deposing in the court, such evidence cannot be safe to rely upon. However, minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. Court has to form its opinion about the credibility of witness and record a finding, whether his deposition inspires confidence. Exaggerations per se do not render the evidence brittle, but can be one of the factors to test credibility of the prosecution version, when entire evidence is put in a crucible for being tested on the touchstone of credibility. Therefore, mere marginal variations in the statement of a witnesses cannot be dubbed as improvements as the same may be elaborations of the statements made by the witnesses earlier. Only such omissions which amount to contradictions in material particulars i.e. go to the root of the case/materially affect the trial or core of the prosecution's case, render the testimony of the witness liable to be discredited. [Vide: State Represented by Inspector of Police v. Saravanan & Anr., AIR 2009 SC 152; Arumugam v. State, AIR 2009 SC 331; Mahendra Pratap Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2009) 11 SCC 334; and Dr. Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta & Ors. v. State of Maharashtra, JT 2010 (12) SC 287].

60. Thus after analysing entire evidence with the settled principle of law as discussed above, we are of the view that contradiction pointed out are not fatal to prosecution case and do not affect the veracity of prosecution witnesses therefore, above arguments also have no substance.

61. In the present case, the fact of last seen, and recovery of dead body as well as underwear of victim and accused and their identification are the facts proved by witnesses. We find, on these aspects, nothing otherwise material has been extracted to contradict or disbelieve statement of PW-2. Hence, we find no reason to discard his evidence for minor contradictions. Trial Court has also rightly believed his statement.

62. PW-3 Constable Brijmohan has proved date, time and the person who lodged report and is consistent with regard to time when the F.I.R. as well as statement of PW-1 was recorded. Nothing adverse could be extracted in his cross-examination.

63. PW-4 Dr. A.K. Tripathi is a witness to prove post mortem report since he had conducted post mortem and submitted report. Besides others, he proved the fact that blood was coming out from vagina and blood clots were also present. He prepared slides and sent for pathological examination and proved, on the basis of post mortem report, possibility of rape and killing of girl by throttling. He also proved that death could have occurred in the night of 04/05.05.2009.

64. In cross-examination, PW-4 reiterated that the injuries on neck show that some body has throttled the neck. He denied suggestion that rape was not committed upon the girl. He also said in cross-examination that rupture of hymen can be caused due to rape or on account of injuries by any other object.

65. PW-5, I.O., Girwar Giri has stated that he was assigned investigation where upon he made inquiry from the Informant and recorded his statement. Then he searched village and tried to find out Km. Jyoti and accused Santosh @ Tidkey, accompanied by Informant and other witnesses. He also recorded statement of Usha, wife of Informant and this is mentioned in C.D. On the same day, on the pointing out of Informant, he prepared site plan where-from accused had taken Km. Jyoti along with him and it was marked as Ex.Ka-9. He recorded statement of Prem Narayan and Mithlesh. When received information that accused was hiding in temple of Kuchbadiya Baba, accompanied by police officials and villagers, PW-5 went to the temple of Kuchbadiya Baba and searched in the rooms where he found accused Santosh @ Tidkey, who was identified by the villagers also and taken in custody at around 6:00 AM. The documents of his arrest were prepared and the same were Paper no. 12-A/1 to 12-A/5 in record of Trial Court. After taking accused in custody, he was interrogated whereupon he admitted his guilt and said that on the pretext of getting Menhdi put on the hands of Jyoti, he took her from her house. In the way Jyoti drank water and thereafter she was taken in the ruins of house of Budh Singh i.e. son of Hemraj, where he inserted his finger in the vagina which resulted in bleeding whereupon she cried. Accused immediately put her frock on her mouth and throttled her neck and thereafter committed rape upon her, on the stone piece. Later he kept stone piece on her dead body and after concealing the same, ran away. He stated to get dead body of Jyoti discovered on the pointing out by accused from the ruins of house of Budh Singh after removing stone piece. In respect of recovery memo, Paper No. 11-A was prepared. On the spot panthayatnama was also prepared which was duly signed by Panchas and marked as Ex.Ka-10.

66. I.O., PW-5 collected blood stained stone pieces which had blood stains at several places and the same were taken after breaking the stone slab. Sample of three pieces of blood stained stone and one simple was taken in possession and memo was prepared which was exhibited as 3. On the spot he found a blank wrapper mentioning in English 'Chaka Chak', a Cone of 'Prem Dulhan Mehadi' and Mala of red and white beads. I.O. also prepared Fard as Ex.Ka-4. During investigation accused stated that he was wearing same underwear which he had worn while committing rape upon Km. Jyoti. Police immediately got him stripped off the accused and took out underwear with blood stains thereon. It was taken in custody and Fard / memo was prepared and marked as Exhibit-6. On the basis of statement of accused given to the Police and injuries found on the dead body of Km. Jyoti, Section 376 I.P.C. was added and this fact was mentioned in C.D. Medical examination of accused was conducted and copy of report is a part of C.D. and fact of preparation of panchayatnama is also mentioned therein.

67. I.O. sent related material for examination to FSL at Agra. Vaginal smear slide report from pathology was received by him and on the basis thereof, charge sheet against accused under Sections 302, 376 and 201 I.P.C. was submitted. The site plan of the place where dead body was recovered, was also proved and marked as Ex.Ka-17.

68. The FSL report was also proved by PW-5 and marked as Ex.Ka-19, Ka-20 and Ka-21. The sealed bundle containing blank wrapper of 'Chaka Chak', Tube of 'Prem Dulhan Mehadi', red and white beads Mala were taken out and identified by PW-5 and these were marked as material exhibits-6, 7 and 8. From the sealed envelop red colour underwear was taken out, which was identified as of Km. Jyoti and blue colour underwear was identified to be of accused Santosh @ Tidkey. PW-5 also identified the frock which Km. Jyoti was wearing and seized from her dead body and it was marked as material Ex.-9. This witness has been subjected to a lengthy cross-examination. With regard to underwear of accused, in cross examination, he has explained the manner in which it was seized from accused and said :-

"मौके पर मुल्जिम की चढडी उतराकर कब्जा मे ली गई थी। तथा उसे दूसरी चढडी पहनाई गई थी । मौके पर दूसरी चढडी मुल्जिम के घर वालो से मंगाई गई थी । अभियुक्त की चढडी विधि विज्ञान प्रयोग शाला भेजी गई थी । विधि

विज्ञान प्रयोग शाला की रिपोर्ट आने से पहले मैने धारा 376 आई0पी0सी0 की बड़ोत्तरी की थी ।''

Underwear of accused was got put of from him and taken in possession on the spot and he was made to put at another underwear, was brought at the spot from the villagers of the accused. Underwear of accused was sent to F.S.L. I had made addition of Section 376 I.P.C. prior to receipt of report of FSL." (English Translation by Court)

69. He also verified and proved that accused told about the death of Km. Jyoti. When he was interrogated by Police, he said that he has murdered her and also committed rape upon her. These facts were stated by accused on spot and mentioned in C.D.

70. We do not find anything contradictory extracted by defence in lengthy cross-examination of PW-5 and the witness has withstood the facts stated in his examination in chief.

71. The last formal witness is Dr. Smt. Mohini Saxena who was posted as Senior Consultant in Pathology in woman Hospital, Jhansi and has tested three slides of vaginal smear sent for pathological test. She said that spermatozoa was not found in all three slides but in the the same report she found R.B.C.S. Testing report was proved by her and marked as Ex.Ka-22. She explained meaning of R.B.C.S. as the blood elements. In cross examination, she withstood her statement. When questioned said that it was not possible to tell as to blood was that of Km. Jyoti or the accused Santosh @ Tidkey since it would have been possible only after D.N.A. test.

72. The statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. of accused's is of complete denial. While answering question no. 24, he said that he will tender defence evidence when given opportunity, but as a matter of fact, has not given any evidence at all. Answering question no. 21, he said that witnesses and Informant are relatives and friends and with the intent to get the accused appellant exiled from village they are deposing so as to acquire his (accused's property) but give no evidence to prove it. While answering question nos. 19 and 20 with respect to FSL report Ex.Ka-19, Ka-20 and Ka-21 and material Ex.-1 to 9, he said that he has no information about that.

73. The examination of the aforesaid evidence in detail shows that present case is not founded on ocular version proving directly that crime has been committed by accused-appellant. It is founded on the circumstantial evidence of last seen as also recovery of various objects including dead body and pathological and Forensic Reports. It is not necessary that in a criminal trial only when an eye witness is present, conviction can be held and not otherwise. Where circumstantial evidence is such which may lead to an inference that it is the accused only who has committed crime and none else, the accused can be convicted and sentenced appropriately.

74. In the case in hand, prosecution rests on circumstantial evidence. There cannot be any dispute as to the well settled proposition that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn must or "should be" and not merely "may be" fully established. The facts so established should be consistent only with the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explicable through any other hypothesis except that the accused was guilty. Moreover, the circumstances should be conclusive in nature. There must be a chain of evidence so complete so as to not leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused, and must show that in all human probability, the offence was committed by the accused.

75. In Hanumant Govind Nargundkar & Anr. v. State of M.P., AIR 1952 SC 343, on appreciation of evidence, when a case depends only on circumstantial evidence, where Court said:

"... circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved..... it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

76. In Hukam Singh v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1977 SC 1063, Court said, where a case rests clearly on circumstantial evidence, inference of guilt can be justified only when all the incriminating facts and circumstances are found to be incompatible with innocence of accused or guilt of any other person.

77. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1984 SC 1622, Court, while dealing with a case based on circumstantial evidence, held that onus is on prosecution to prove that chain is complete. Infirmity or lacuna, in prosecution, cannot be cured by false defence or plea. Conditions precedent before conviction, based on circumstantial evidence, must be fully established. Court described following condition precedent :-

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established. The circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established.

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty.

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused. (emphasis added)

78. In Ashok Kumar Chatterjee v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1989 SC 1890, Court said:

"...when a case rests upon circumstantial evidence such evidence must satisfy the following tests :-

(1) the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn, must be cogently and firmly established;

(2) those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards guilt of the accused;

(3) the circumstances, taken cumulatively; should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and none else; and,

(5) the circumstantial evidence in order to sustain conviction must be complete and incapable of explanation of any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused and such evidence should not only be consistent with the guilt of the accused but should be inconsistent with his innocence."

(emphasis added)

79. In C. Chenga Reddy and Others v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 1996(10) SCC 193, Court said:

"In a case based on circumstantial evidence, the settled law is that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is drawn should be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature. Moreover, all the circumstances should be complete and there should be no gap left in the chain of evidence. Further, the proved circumstances must be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and totally inconsistent with his innocence."

(emphasis added)

80. In Bodh Raj @ Bodha and Ors. v. State of Jammu and Kashmir, 2002(8) SCC 45 Court said :

"(1) the facts alleged as the basis of any legal inference must be clearly proved and beyond reasonable doubt connected with the factum probandum;

(2) the burden of proof is always on the party who asserts the existence of any fact, which infers legal accountability;

(3) in all cases, whether of direct or circumstantial evidence the best evidence must be adduced which the nature of the case admits;

(4) in order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation, upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt

(5) if there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted." (emphasis added)

81. The above principle in respect of circumstantial evidence has been reiterated in subsequent authorities also in Shivu and Another v. Registrar General High Court of Karnataka and Another, 2007(4) SCC 713 and Tomaso Bruno v. State of U.P., 2015(7) SCC 178.

82. When we collect the relevant circumstances and chain thereof in the light of evidence discussed above, the following facts proved by the witnesses emerge before us :-

(i) On 04.05.2009 around 5:00 PM, accused residing in front of the house of Informant as well as deceased, came and told the deceased that he would get Mehadi put on her hand and on that pretext took her with him.

(ii) Identity of accused is not doubted since he was well known to both the witnesses of fact i.e. PW-1 and PW-2.

(iii) On the way, accused helped deceased in drinking water from hand-pump installed in front of the house of Bhanwar Singh and at that very time, both were seen by Budh Singh, PW-2, who was coming along with one Lakhan Singh from the side of ruins of his house.

(iv) After drinking water by deceased, both i.e. accused and deceased went towards the ruins of the house of Hemraj i.e. father of Budh Singh, PW-2, and till this stage both were seen by PW-2 Budh Singh.

(v) Both the accused and victim did not return in night.

(vi) After making all efforts to search out them in village, information was lodged to police at around 2:00 AM on 05.05.2009.

(vii) Around 5:00 or 6:00 AM in the morning of 05.05.2009, Police arrested accused from the temple of Kuchbadiya Baba, in front of PWs-1, 2 and other villagers.

(viii) On the pointing out of accused, dead body of Km. Jyoti was discovered by Police from the ruins of the house of Hemraj i.e. father of Budh Singh PW-2 which was concealed under a stone slab.

(ix) The dead body and various injuries found therein show that she was raped and murdered by throttling.

(x) In front of PW-1 and PW-2, Police collected underwear worn by accused at the time of arrest which contained blood stains and on examination, it was found that blood stains are that of human blood which could not be explained by accused.

(xi) Blood stains and Spermatozoa were found on the frock of the deceased.

(xii) Except PW-1 and Budh Singh PW-2, who saw accused and deceased going together, none other has seen the deceased going with anybody else, since the time she left her house with accused till recovery of her dead body by the Police.

(xi) From the post mortem report and the statement of PW-4 i.e. Doctor who conducted autopsy, rape and murder by throttling the girl is proved.

83. These facts clearly point out to the guilt of accused-appellant and, in our view, chain of circumstances is complete leaving no doubt that it is the appellant alone and none else who had committed the crime for which he has been charged.

84. At this stage, we may also point out that in charge-1 the mention of place is door of the house of Informant but that is a place where from the accused had taken the girl with him and actual crime was committed in ruins of house of Hemraj i.e. father of Budh Singh PW-2 and to this extent place mentioned in Charge-1 is not consistent with Charge-2 but neither on this aspect any issue has been raised before court below nor before us and, in fact, it is not in dispute that dead body was discovered from the ruins of the house of Hemraj, i.e. father of Budh Singh PW-2 and as per the prosecution story, crime of rape, murder and concealment of evidence were committed thereat. Hence, nothing turned out from this error so as to help the accused-appellant.

85. Learned counsel for the appellant contended that statement of accused appellant claimed to have been made to I.O. is not admissible in evidence, therefore, same cannot be treated to be an admission. We have no objection in accepting the said contention. In fact while consideration evidence, we have not taken into account this statement and neither it has been treated as evidence of admission nor admissible in evidence, but under Section 27 such part of statement which results in recovery of certain material on the pointing out by accused while in custody of Police, is admissible in evidence and to that extent, statement of appellant which has been treated to be his information on the basis whereof dead body of Km. Jyoti was discovered by Police is admissible under Section 27 and we have taken this fact as an evidence and part of the chain of evidence to reach the conclusion of guilt against the appellant.

86. Section 27 of Act, 1872 provides for how much of information received from accused who is in custody of police may be proved. It reads as under:

"27. How much of information received from accused may be proved.-- Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved."

87. Aforesaid provision is by way of proviso to Sections 25 and 26 of Act, 1872. An statement even by way of confession made in police custody which distinctly relates to the fact discovered is admissible in evidence against the accused.

88. In Delhi Administration vs. Bal Krishan and Ors., 1972(4) SCC 659 Court said that Section 27 permits proof of so much of information which is given by persons accused of an offence when in custody of a Police Officer as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, irrespective of whether such information amounts to a confession or not. Sections 25 and 26 of Act, 1872 provides that no confession made to a Police Officer whether in custody or not can be proved as against the accused. Section 27, therefore, is proviso to above Sections and statement even by way of confession, which distinctly relates to the fact discovered is admissible as evidence against accused in the circumstances stated in Section 27.

89. In Mohmed Inayatullah vs. The State of Maharashtra, 1976(1) SCC 828 Court observed that though interpretation and scope of Section 27 has been subject of consideration in several authoritative pronouncement but its application to concrete cases is not always free from difficulty. In order to make its application swift and convenient Court considered the provision again and said:

"12. The expression "Provided that" together with the phrase "whether it amounts to a confession or not" shows that the section is in the nature of an exception to the preceding provisions particularly Sections 25 and 26. It is not necessary in this case to consider if this section qualifies, to any extent, Section 24, also. It will be seen that the first condition necessary for bringing this section in to operation is the discovery of a fact, albeit a relevant fact, in consequence of the information received from a person accused of an offence. The second is that the discovery of such fact must be deposed to. The third is that at the time of the receipt of the information the accused must be in police custody. The last but the most important condition is that only "so much of the information" as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered is admissible. The rest of the information has to be excluded. The word "distinctly" means "directly", "indubitably", "strictly", "unmistakably". The word has been advisedly used to limit and define the scope of the provable information. The phrase "distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered" is the linchpin of the provision. This phrase refers to that part of the information supplied by the accused which is the direct and immediate cause of the discovery. The reason behind this partial lifting of the ban against confessions and statements made to the police, is that if a fact is actually discovered in consequence of information given by the accused, it affords some guarantee of truth of that part, and that part only, of the information which was the clear, immediate and proximate cause of the discovery. No such guarantee or assurance attaches to the rest of the statement which may be indirectly or remotely related to the fact discovered."

90. Idea behind Section 27 has been explained by Court in para 20 of judgment in Bodh Raj @ Bodha and Ors. vs. State of Jammu and Kashmir (supra) as under:

"20. If all that is required to lift the ban be the inclusion in the confession information relating to an object subsequently produced, it seems reasonable to suppose that the persuasive powers of the police will prove equal to the occasion, and that in practice the ban will lose its effect. The object of the provision i.e. Section 27 was to provide for the admission of evidence which but for the existence of the section could not in consequence of the preceding sections, be admitted in evidence. It would appear that under Section 27 as it stands in order to render the evidence leading to discovery of any fact admissible, the information must come from any accused in custody of the police. The requirement of police custody is productive of extremely anomalous results and may lead to the exclusion of much valuable evidence in cases where a person, who is subsequently taken into custody and becomes an accused, after committing a crime meets a police officer or voluntarily goes to him or to the police station and states the circumstances of the crime which lead to the discovery of the dead body, weapon or any other material fact, in consequence of the information thus received from him. This information which is otherwise admissible becomes inadmissible under Section 27 if the information did not come from a person in the custody of a police officer or did come from a person not in the custody of a police officer. The statement which is admissible under Section 27 is the one which is the information leading to discovery. Thus, what is admissible being the information, the same has to be proved and not the opinion formed on it by the police officer. In other words, the exact information given by the accused while in custody which led to recovery of the articles has to be proved. It is, therefore, necessary for the benefit of both the accused and prosecution that information given should be recorded and proved and if not so recorded, the exact information must be adduced through evidence. The basic idea embedded in Section 27 of the Evidence Act is the doctrine of confirmation by subsequent events. The doctrine is founded on the principle that if any fact is discovered as a search made on the strength of any information obtained from a prisoner, such a discovery is a guarantee that the information supplied by the prisoner is true. The information might be confessional or non-exculpatory in nature but if it results in discovery of a fact, it becomes a reliable information. It is now well settled that recovery of an object is not discovery of fact envisaged in the section. Decision of Privy Council in Palukuri Kotayya v. Emperor AIR 1947 PC 67 is the most quoted authority for supporting the interpretation that the "fact discovered" envisaged in the section embraces the place from which the object was produced, the knowledge of the accused as to it, but the information given must relate distinctly to that effect. (see State of Maharashtra v. Danu Gopinath Shirde and Ors. 2000 CriLJ 2301). No doubt, the information permitted to be admitted in evidence is confined to that portion of the information which "distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered". But the information to get admissibility need not be so truncated as to make it insensible or incomprehensible. The extent of information admitted should be consistent with understandability. Mere statement that the accused led the police and the witnesses to the place where he had concealed the articles is not indicative of the information given."

91. Similar issue has been considered recently in Raju Manjhi vs. State of Bihar, AIR 2018 SC 3592. Therein Court held that Act, 1872 provides that even when an accused being in the custody of police makes a statement that reveals some information leading to the recovery of incriminating material or discovery of any fact concerning to the alleged offence, such statement can be proved against him. Court held that recoveries of used polythene pouches of wine, money, clothes, chains and bangle were all made at the disclosure by the accused which corroborates his confessional statement and proves his guilt and such confessional statement stands and satisfies the test of Section 27 of Act, 1872.

92. With regard to delay of F.I.R., we find no substance for the reason that the daughter of Informant was taken by accused around 5:00 PM and after making all efforts to search of them, the report was lodged at about 2:00 AM on 05.05.2009. The distance of Police Station is about 4 Km. from the village of Informant and looking to the entire facts it cannot be said that F.I.R. is belated to the extent that it justifies an inference in lodging of F.I.R. without due deliberation and improvements. Even otherwise mere delay in F.I.R. is not a ground to reject prosecution version.

93. It is also well settled, if delay in lodging FIR has been explained from the evidence on record, no adverse inference can be drawn against prosecution merely on the ground that the FIR was lodged with delay. There is no hard and fast rule that any length of delay in lodging FIR would automatically render the prosecution case doubtful. In "Ravinder Kumar & Anr. Vs. State of Punjab", (2001) 7SCC 690, Court has held;

"The attack on prosecution cases on the ground of delay in lodging FIR has almost bogged down as a stereotyped redundancy in criminal cases. It is a recurring feature in most of the criminal cases that there would be some delay in furnishing the first information to the police. It has to be remembered that law has not fixed any time for lodging the FIR. Hence a delayed FIR is not illegal. Of course a prompt and immediate lodging of the FIR is the ideal as that would give the prosecution a twin advantage. First is that it affords commencement of the investigation without any time lapse. Second is that it expels the opportunity for any possible concoction of a false version. Barring these two plus points for a promptly lodged FIR the demerits of the delayed FIR cannot operate as fatal to any prosecution case. It cannot be overlooked that even a promptly FIR is not an unreserved guarantee for the genuineness of the version incorporated therein. When there is criticism on the ground that FIR in a case was delayed the court has to look at the reason why there was such a delay. There can be a variety of genuine causes for FIR lodgment to get delayed. " (emphasis added)

94. In Amar Singh Vs. Balwinder Singh & Ors. (2003) 2 SCC 518, Court held :

"There is no hard and fast rule that any delay in lodging the FIR would automatically render the prosecution case doubtful. It necessarily depends upon facts and circumstances of each case whether there has been any such delay in lodging the FIR which may cast doubt about the veracity of the prosecution case and for this a host of circumstances like the condition of the first informant, the nature of injuries sustained, the number of victims, the efforts made to provide medical aid to them, the distance of the hospital and the police station etc. have to be taken into consideration. There is no mathematical formula by which an inference may be drawn either way merely on account of delay in lodging of the FIR."

(emphasis added)

95. In this connection it will also be useful to take note of the following observation made in Tara Singh V. State of Punjab AIR (1991) SC 63.

"The delay in giving the FIR by itself cannot be a ground to doubt the prosecution case. ... unless there are indications of fabrication, the court cannot reject the prosecution version as given in the FIR and later substantiated by the evidence merely on the ground of delay. These are all matters for appreciation and much depends on the facts and circumstance of each case." (emphasis added)

96. In Sahebrao and another Vs. State of Maharashtra (2006) 9 SCC 794, Court held:

"The settled principle of law of this Court is that delay in filing FIR by itself cannot be a ground to doubt the prosecution case and discard it. The delay in lodging the FIR would put the Court on its guard to search if any plausible explanation has been offered and if offered whether it is satisfactory." (emphasis added)

97. From the above discussed exposition of law, it is manifest that prosecution version cannot be rejected solely on the ground of delay in lodging FIR. Court has to examine the explanation furnished by prosecution for explaining delay. There may be various circumstances particularly number of victims, atmosphere prevailing at the scene of incidence, the complainant may be scared and fearing the action against him in pursuance of the incident that has taken place. If prosecution explains the delay, Court should not reject prosecution story solely on this ground. Therefore, the entire incident, as narrated by witnesses, has to be construed and examined to decide whether there was an unreasonable and unexplained delay which goes to the root of the case of prosecution. Even if there is some unexplained delay, Court has to take into consideration whether it can be termed as abnormal.

98. Recently in Palani V State of Tamilnadu, Criminal Appeal No. 1100 of 2009, decided on 27.11.2018, it has been observed by Supreme Court that in some cases delay in registration of FIR is inevitable. Even a long delay can be condoned if witness has no motive for falsely implicating the accused.

99. Considering the entire discussions made above, we are clearly of the view that accused-appellant has committed crime to which has been charged by the Court below and court below has rightly held him guilty of those charges. The prosecution has well succeeded in proving offences committed by appellant, i.e., murder under Section 302 I.P.C., rape under Section 376 I.P.C. and hiding of dead body with an objective to screen himself from punishment, under Section 201 I.P.C. The judgement of conviction passed by the Court, therefore is confirmed.

100. Now we come to the question of penalty. Appellant has been awarded death sentence for committing offence under Section 302 I.P.C., life imprisonment for offence under Section 376 I.P.C. and two years rigorous imprisonment for the offence under Section 201 I.P.C. First of all, we propose to examine whether award of punishment of death penalty for committing offence under Section 302 I.P.C. is justified in the present case.

101. Before looking to the facts of present case on the question of sentence of death penalty, it would be appropriate to advert to judicial authorities on the matter throwing light and laying down principles for imposing penalty, in a case, particularly death penalty.

102. One of the earliest case, in the matter is Bachan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1980) 2 SCC 684. In para 164, Court said that normal rule is that for the offence of murder, accused shall be punished with the sentence of life imprisonment. Court can depart from that rule and impose sentence of death only if there are special reasons for doing so. Such reasons must be recorded in writing before imposing death sentence. While considering question of sentence to be imposed for the offence of murder under Section 302 IPC, Court must have regard to every relevant circumstance relating to crime as well as criminal. If Court finds that the offence is of an exceptionally depraved and heinous character and constitutes, on account of its design and the manner of its execution, a source of grave danger to the society at large, Court may impose death sentence.

103. Relying on the authority in Furman v. Georgia, (1972) SCC OnLine US SC 171 Court noted the suggestion given by learned counsel about aggravating and mitigating circumstances in para 202 of the judgement in Bachan Singh (supra) which read as under :-

"202. ... 'Aggravating circumstances: A court may, however, in the following cases impose the penalty of death in its discretion:

(a) if the murder has been committed after previous planning and involves extreme brutality; or

(b) if the murder involves exceptional depravity; or

(c) if the murder is of a member of any of the armed forces of the Union or of a member of any police force or of any public servant and was committed--

(i) while such member or public servant was on duty; or

(ii) in consequence of anything done or attempted to be done by such member or public servant in the lawful discharge of his duty as such member or public servant whether at the time of murder he was such member or public servant, as the case may be, or had ceased to be such member or public servant; or

(d) if the murder is of a person who had acted in the lawful discharge of his duty under Section 43 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, or who had rendered assistance to a Magistrate or a police officer demanding his aid or requiring his assistance under Section 37 and Section 129 of the said Code."

104. Thereafter in para 203, Court said that broadly there can be no objection to the acceptance of these indicators noted above but Court would not fetter judicial discretion by attempting to make an exhaustive enumeration one way or the other. Thereafter in para 206 of judgment in Bachan Singh (supra), Court also suggested certain mitigating circumstances as under :-

"206. ... 'Mitigating circumstances.--In the exercise of its discretion in the above cases, the court shall take into account the following circumstances:

(1) That the offence was committed under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance.

(2) The age of the accused. If the accused is young or old, he shall not be sentenced to death.

(3) The probability that the accused would not commit criminal acts of violence as would constitute a continuing threat to society.

(4) The probability that the accused can be reformed and rehabilitated. The State shall by evidence prove that the accused does not satisfy conditions (3) and (4) above.

(5) That in the facts and circumstances of the case the accused believed that he was morally justified in committing the offence.

(6) That the accused acted under the duress or domination of another person.

*(7) That the condition of the accused showed that he was mentally defective and tha*t the said defect impaired his capacity to appreciate the criminality of his conduct."

105. Again in para 207 in Bachan Singh (supra), Court further said that mitigating circumstances referred in para 206 are relevant and must be given great weight in determination of sentence. Thereafter referring to the words caution and care, in Bachan Singh (Supra) Court observed that it is imperative to voice the concern that Courts, aided by the broad illustrative guidelines, will discharge onerous function with evermore scrupulous care and humane concern, directed along the highroad of legislative policy outlined in Section 354(3), viz., that for persons convicted of murder, life imprisonment is the rule and death sentence an exception. A real and abiding concern for the dignity of human life postulates resistance to taking a life through law's instrumentality. That ought not to be done save in the rarest of rare cases when the alternative option is unquestionably foreclosed.

106. Then in Machhi Singh v. State of Punjab, (1983) 3 SCC 470 stress was laid on certain aspects namely, manner of commission of murder, motive thereof, antisocial or socially abhorrent nature of the crime, magnitude of crime and personality of victim of murder. Court culled out certain propositions emerging from Bachan Singh (supra), in para 38 and said as under :-

"The following propositions emerge from Bachan Singh case:

"(i) The extreme penalty of death need not be inflicted except in gravest cases of extreme culpability.

(ii) Before opting for the death penalty the circumstances of the ''offender' also require to be taken into consideration along with the circumstances of the ''crime'.

(iii) Life imprisonment is the rule and death sentence is an exception. In other words death sentence must be imposed only when life imprisonment appears to be an altogether inadequate punishment having regard to the relevant circumstances of the crime, and provided, and only provided, the option to impose sentence of imprisonment for life cannot be conscientiously exercised having regard to the nature and circumstances of the crime and all the relevant circumstances.

(iv) A balance sheet of aggravating and mitigating circumstances has to be drawn up and in doing so the mitigating circumstances have to be accorded full weightage and a just balance has to be struck between the aggravating and the mitigating circumstances before the option is exercised."

107. The three-Judges Bench in Machhi Singh (supra) further said that following questions must be answered in order to apply the guidelines :-

"(a) Is there something uncommon about the crime which renders sentence of imprisonment for life inadequate and calls for a death sentence"

(b) Are the circumstances of the crime such that there is no alternative but to impose death sentence even after according maximum weightage to the mitigating circumstances which speak in favour of the offender?" (Emphasis added)

108. In Haresh Mohandas Rajput v. State of Maharashtra, (2011) 12 SCC 56, after referring to Bachan Singh (supra) and Machhi Singh (supra), Court expanded the "rarest of rare" formulation beyond the aggravating factors listed in Bachan Singh (supra) to cases where the "collective conscience" of community is so shocked that it will expect the holders of judicial power centre to inflict death penalty irrespective of their personal opinion as regards desirability or otherwise of retaining the death penalty, such a penalty can be inflicted. Court, however, underlined that full weightage must be accorded to the mitigating circumstances of the case and a just balance had to be struck between the aggravating and the mitigating circumstances.

109. In para 20 of the judgment in Haresh Mohandas Rajput (supra), Court observed that the rarest of the rare case comes when a convict would be a menace and threat to the harmonious and peaceful coexistence of society. The crime may be heinous or brutal but may not be in the category of "the rarest of the rare case". There must be no reason to believe that the accused cannot be reformed or rehabilitated and that he is likely to continue criminal acts of violence as would constitute a continuing threat to the society. The accused may be a menace to the society and would continue to be so, threatening its peaceful and harmonious coexistence. The manner in which the crime is committed must be such that it may result in intense and extreme indignation of the community and shock the collective conscience of the society. Where an accused does not act on any spur of the momentary provocation and indulges himself in a deliberately planned crime and meticulously executes it, the death sentence may be the most appropriate punishment for such a ghastly crime. The death sentence may be warranted where victims are innocent children and helpless women. Thus, in case the crime is committed in a most cruel and inhuman manner which is an extremely brutal, grotesque, diabolical, revolting and dastardly manner, where his act affects the entire moral fibre of the society, death sentence should be awarded.

110. In Dhananjoy Chatterjee v. State of West Bengal, (1994) 2 SCC 220, Court opined that imposition of appropriate punishment is the manner in which Courts respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminals. Justice demands that Courts should impose punishment befitting the crime so that Courts reflect public abhorrence of the crime. Courts must not only keep in view the rights of the criminal but also the rights of the victim of crime and the society at large while considering imposition of appropriate punishment.

111. After referring to earlier authorities including Bachan Singh (supra) and Machhi Singh (supra), Supreme Court in Ramnaresh and others v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2012) 4 SCC 257 tried to lay down a nearly exhaustive list of aggravating and mitigating circumstances and in para 76 said as under :-

"Aggravating circumstances

(1) The offences relating to the commission of heinous crimes like murder, rape, armed dacoity, kidnapping, etc. by the accused with a prior record of conviction for capital felony or offences committed by the person having a substantial history of serious assaults and criminal convictions.

(2) The offence was committed while the offender was engaged in the commission of another serious offence.

(3) The offence was committed with the intention to create a fear psychosis in the public at large and was committed in a public place by a weapon or device which clearly could be hazardous to the life of more than one person.

(4) The offence of murder was committed for ransom or like offences to receive money or monetary benefits.

(5) Hired killings.

(6) The offence was committed outrageously for want only while involving inhumane treatment and torture to the victim.

(7) The offence was committed by a person while in lawful custody.

(8) The murder or the offence was committed to prevent a person lawfully carrying out his duty like arrest or custody in a place of lawful confinement of himself or another. For instance, murder is of a person who had acted in lawful discharge of his duty under Section 43 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. When the crime is enormous in proportion like making an attempt of murder of the entire family or members of a particular community. When the victim is innocent, helpless or a person relies upon the trust of relationship and social norms, like a child, helpless woman, a daughter or a niece staying with a father/uncle and is inflicted with the crime by such a trusted person.

(9) When murder is committed for a motive which evidences total depravity and meanness.

(10) When there is a cold-blooded murder without provocation.

(11) The crime is committed so brutally that it pricks or shocks not only the judicial conscience but even the conscience of the society.

Mitigating circumstances

(1) The manner and circumstances in and under which the offence was committed, for example, extreme mental or emotional disturbance or extreme provocation in contradistinction to all these situations in normal course.

(2) The age of the accused is a relevant consideration but not a determinative factor by itself.

(3) The chances of the accused of not indulging in commission of the crime again and the probability of the accused being reformed and rehabilitated.

(4) The condition of the accused shows that he was mentally defective and the defect impaired his capacity to appreciate the circumstances of his criminal conduct.

(5) The circumstances which, in normal course of life, would render such a behaviour possible and could have the effect of giving rise to mental imbalance in that given situation like persistent harassment or, in fact, leading to such a peak of human behaviour that, in the facts and circumstances of the case, the accused believed that he was morally justified in committing the offence.

(6) Where the court upon proper appreciation of evidence is of the view that the crime was not committed in a preordained manner and that the death resulted in the course of commission of another crime and that there was a possibility of it being construed as consequences to the commission of the primary crime.

(7) Where it is absolutely unsafe to rely upon the testimony of a sole eyewitness though the prosecution has brought home the guilt of the accused."

(Emphasis added)

112. The principles laid down in Bachan Singh (supra) and Machhi Singh (supra) were sought to be followed and applied subsequently for deciding as to what sentence should be awarded but later on it was felt that the principles laid down in the above authorities are not being correctly applied and have led to inconsistency in sentencing process in India. It was also observed that the list of categories of murder crafted in Machhi Singh (supra) in which death sentence ought to be awarded are not exhaustive and needs to be given even more expansive adherence owing to changed legal scenario.

113. A three-Judge Bench in Swamy Shraddananda v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 13 SCC 767, in para 43 of the judgment, said :-

"43. In Machhi Singh the Court crafted the categories of murder in which `the Community' should demand death sentence for the offender with great care and thoughtfulness. But the judgment in Machhi Singh was rendered on 20-7-1983, nearly twenty-five years ago, that is to say a full generation earlier. A careful reading of the Machhi Singh categories will make it clear that the classification was made looking at murder mainly as an act of maladjusted individual criminal(s). In 1983 the country was relatively free from organised and professional crime. Abduction for ransom and gang rape and murders committed in the course of those offences were yet to become a menace for the society compelling the Legislature to create special slots for those offences in the Penal Code. At the time of Machhi Singh, Delhi had not witnessed the infamous Sikh carnage. There was no attack on the country's Parliament. There were no bombs planted by terrorists killing completely innocent people, men, women and children in dozens with sickening frequency. There were no private armies. There were no mafia cornering huge government contracts purely by muscle power. There were no reports of killings of social activists and `whistle blowers'. There were no reports of custodial deaths and rape and fake encounters by police or even by armed forces. These developments would unquestionably find a more pronounced reflection in any classification if one were to be made today. Relying upon the observations in Bachan Singh, therefore, we respectfully wish to say that even though the categories framed in Machhi Singh provide very useful guidelines, nonetheless those cannot be taken as inflexible, absolute or immutable. Further, even in those categories, there would be scope for flexibility as observed in Bachan Singh itself."
(Emphasis added)

114. In a recent judgment in Mukesh and another v. State (NCT of Delhi) and others, (2017) 6 SCC 1, a three-Judges Bench has confirmed death sentence in two concurring judgments rendered by Hon'ble Dipak Misra,J. (for himself and Hon'ble Ashok Bhusan,J.) and by Hon'ble R. Banumathi,J.

115. After referring to catena of decisions, earlier rendered on the question of sentence, it is observed that Court would consider cumulative effect of both factors i.e. aggravating and mitigating circumstances and has to strike a balance between the two and see towards which side the scale/balance of justice, tilts.

116. Hon'ble R. Banumathi,J. observed that factors like poverty, young age, dependants, absence of criminal antecedents, post crime remedies and good conduct in imprisonment cannot be taken as mitigating circumstances to take out the case in the category of rarest of rare case. In para 516 of concurring judgment, Hon'ble R. Banumathi,J. Court said :-

"Society's reasonable expectation is that deterrent punishment commensurate with the gravity of the offence be awarded. When the crime is brutal, shocking the collective conscience of the community, sympathy in any form would be misplaced and it would shake the confidence of public in the administration of criminal justice system. As held in Om Prakash v. State of Haryana, (1999) 3 SCC 19, the Court must respond to the cry of the society and to settle what would be a deterrent punishment for what was an apparently abominable crime."

(Emphasis added)

117. In para 497 of the judgment in Mukesh and another v. State (NCT of Delhi) and others (supra), in concurring judgment by Hon'ble R.Banumathi,J. it is observed :-

" ... Courts have further held that where the victims are helpless women, children or old persons and the accused displayed depraved mentality, committing crime in a diabolical manner, the accused should be shown no remorse and death penalty should be awarded."
(Emphasis added)

118. The true import of aforesaid settled propositions of law is that awarding of life imprisonment for offence under Section 302 IPC is the rule and death sentence is an exception. Death sentence should only be awarded in cases which come under the purview of "rarest of rare case". Supreme Court, time and again has ruled that for awarding death sentence, Courts should specify the aggravating and mitigating circumstances of the case. What are the aggravating and mitigating circumstances would depends upon the facts of each case.

119. Mitigating circumstances are categorized as the manner and circumstances in and under which offence was committed; the age of the accused; the chances of the accused in not indulging in commission of the crime again and the probability of the accused being reformed and rehabilitated; if the condition of the accused shows that he was mentally defective and the defect impaired his capacity to appreciate the circumstances of his criminal conduct and the circumstances which, in normal course of life would render such a behaviour possible and could have the effect of giving rise to mental imbalance. Mitigating circumstances may also be that if upon appreciation of evidence Court is of the view that crime was not committed in a preordained manner and that the death resulted in the course of commission of another crime. Court has to see, if it is 'rarest of rare' case for awarding death sentence and in the opinion of Court any other punishment i.e. life imprisonment would be completely inadequate and would not meet the ends of justice then only extreme punishment would be awarded. Moreover, aggravating circumstances are in relation to crime and victim while mitigating circumstances are broadly in relation to criminal. Balance between the two has to be ascertained by Court while determining "Rarest of rare" case. Circumstances discussed in aforesaid decisions are example but not exhaustive. No fixed formula has been set to formulate aggravating and mitigating circumstances and the discretion is left with Court which has to evaluate, depending on the facts and circumstances of each case.

120. Applying the exposition of law as discussed above to the facts of the present case, we find that Trial Court has discussed the question of sentence and got itself impressed with the facts that the minor girl of 3-1/2 years has been murdered by accused-appellant after committing rape upon her which is a heinous crime, that too against women and thereafter she has been murdered therefore, the crime committed by accused-appellant comes within the category of rarest of rear case to justify capital punishment of death sentence. Unfortunately, we find that Trial Court has not compared mitigating and aggravating circumstances to come to the inference as to what should be punishment in the case in hand. It cannot be doubted that offence committed by accused-appellant comes within the category of 'heinous crime' but for this reason alone indictment of punishment of death sentence has not been appreciated by Courts in various authorities, as discussed above.

121. In the present case, one of the mitigating circumstance is, age of accused. In para 206 (2) of judgment in Bachan Singh (supra) it has been held that if the accused is young or old, he shall not be sentenced to death. In the present case, as per finding recorded by Court below, accused was about 19 years of age at the time when crime was committed. He was obviously a very young boy having just attained majority. Another mitigating factor is probability that accused can be reformed and rehabilitated. In para 206 (4) in Bachan Singh (supra) Court has said that this should be shown by prosecution that accused does not satisfy conditions (3) and (4), i.e., probability that the accused would not commit criminal acts of violence as would constitute a continuing threat to society and that there is no probability of reformation and rehabilitation of accused. No such material has been placed by prosecution in the case in hand and there is nothing on this aspect which has been substantiated or addressed before Court, even to suggest, that accused will be a threat to society and there is no probability of his reformation and rehabilitation. The various aggravating circumstances as detailed in para 76 of judgment in Ramnaresh and others v. State of Chhattisgarh (supra), we find absent in the case in hand. Therefore, here is a case where there are certain mitigating circumstances but no aggravating circumstance. Hence, punishment of death, in our view, for the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. cannot be held to be justified; this is highly excessive and deserves to be remitted to life imprisonment. We, therefore, modify sentence awarded to accused-appellant for offence under Section 302 I.P.C. and sentence him for life imprisonment.

122. Then comes, punishment awarded for the offences committed under Sections 376 and 201 I.P.C. Here, adequacy and sufficiency of punishment has to be considered on the principle that when an offence has been committed, law also imposes obligation upon Court to award proper sentence.

123. In the matter of awarding punishment multiple factors have to be considered by this Court. The law regulates social interests, arbitrates conflicting claims and demands. Security of individuals as well as property of individuals is one of the essential functions of the State. The administration of criminal law justice is a mode to achieve this goal. The inherent cardinal principle of criminal administration of justice is that the punishment imposed on an offender should be adequate so as to serve the purpose of deterrence as well as reformation. It should reflect the crime, the offender has committed and should be proportionate to the gravity of the offence. Sentencing process should be sterned so as to give a message to the offender as well as the person like him roaming free in the society not to indulge in criminal activities but also to give a message to society that an offence if committed, would not go unpunished. The offender should be suitably punished so that society also get a message that if something wrong has been done, one will have to pay for it in proper manner irrespective of time lag.

124. Further sentencing process should be sterned but tampered with mercy where-ever it is so warranted. How and in what manner element of leniency shall prevail, will depend upon multifarious reasons including the facts and circumstances of individual case, nature of crime, the matter in which it was committed, whether preplanned or otherwise, the motive, conduct, nature of weapon used etc. But one cannot be lost sight of the fact that undue sympathy to impose inadequate sentence would do more harm to justice system as it is bound to undermine public confidence in the efficacy of law. The society cannot long endure such serious threats. It is duty of the court to give adequate, proper and suitable sentence having regard to various aspects, some of which, are noticed above.

125. In Ahmed Hussein Vali Mohammed Saiyed and another Vs. State of Gujrat, 2009 (7) SCC 254, Court confirmed that:

"any liberal attitude by imposing meager sentences or taking too sympathetic view merely on account of lapse of time in respect of such offences will be result-wise counter productive in the long run and against the interest of society which needs to be cared for and strengthened by string of deterrence inbuilt in the sentencing system." (Emphasis added)

126. In Jameel Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, 2010 (12) SCC 532, Court held:

"It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of the offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. The sentencing courts are expected to consider all relevant facts and circumstances bearing on the question of sentence and proceed to impose a sentence commensurate with the gravity of the offence."

127. In Guru Basavaraj @ Benne Settapa Vs. State of Karnataka, 2012 (8) SCC 734, Court said:

"The cry of the collective for justice, which includes adequate punishment cannot be lightly ignored."

128. In Gopal Singh Vs. State of Uttarakhand, 2013 (3) JT 444, court said that:

"Just punishment is the collective cry of the society. While the collective cry has to be kept uppermost in the mind, simultaneously the principle of proportionality between the crime and punishment cannot be totally brushed aside. The principle of just punishment is the bedrock of sentencing in respect of a criminal offence"

129. In Hazara Singh Vs. Raj Kumar and another, 2013 (9) SCC 516, Court observed:

"We also reiterate that undue sympathy to impose inadequate sentence would do more harm to the justice system to undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of the offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. The Court must not only keep in view the rights of the victim of the crime but also the society at large while considering the imposition of appropriate punishment."

(Emphasis added)

130. A feeble attempt was made by learned counsel for appellant to suggest that punishment awarded under Sections 376 and 201 I.P.C. may also be reduced but neither he could give any valid justification for the same nor we find any such reason to dilute sentence awarded to appellant by Court below under Sections 376 and 201 I.P.C. Therefore, judgment of Court below in respect to sentence awarded for offences under Sections 376 and 201 I.P.C. is hereby confirmed.

131. In view of above discussions, Reference No. 6 of 2011 is hereby rejected. Capital Cases (Appeals) No. 2330 of 2011 and 4173 of 2011 are partly allowed and judgment of Trial Court stands modified only in respect of punishment awarded for offence under Section 302 I.P.C. and substituted by life imprisonment. The punishment imposed for the offences under Sections 376 and 201 I.P.C. are maintained.

132. Let a copy of this judgment along with the Trial Court record be sent to the Court concerned for compliance. Copy of the judgment be also sent to accused-appellant through Jail Superintendent concerned for intimation. Compliance report be also submitted to this Court.

A. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act,1872 – Ocular evidence - direct evidence - Incident took place in day light - presence of injured witnesses cannot be easily ignored - testimony of an injured witness is accorded a special status in law - Non-availability of blood at the door of deceased does not falsify prosecution case - where direct evidence is trustworthy, it can be believed. Then motive does not carry much weight. Merely because witnesses are close relatives of the deceased, their testimonies cannot be discarded - Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible evidence - medical evidence is totally compatible with ocular version - discrepancies, variation and contradiction in the prosecution case do not go to the root of case - accused-appellant committed murder of deceased and caused injuries to PW-1 and 2 at the time, date and place as stated by prosecution - PW-1 and PW-2 are natural witnesses - prosecution is not obliged to produce an independent witness - prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt - punishment should be proportionate to gravity of offence - Trial Court has rightly convicted and sentenced him.(Para 19,28,31,34,35,38,43, 45, 51, 53,54)

5. PW-7, Dr. Gyan Chandra, conducted autopsy over dead body of deceased-Govind Vishwakarma and prepared postmortem report Ex.Ka-7 under his signature, expressing his opinion that death of deceased was possible on 27.11.2008 at about 5:00 p.m. due to shock and hemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem injuries found on the person of deceased which might have been caused by some sharp cutting weapon like knife. Doctor found ante-mortem injuries on the body of deceased as under :-

6. PW-6, Dr. D.P. Singh, conducted medical examination of PW-1 Shatrughan Vishwakarma and prepared medico-legal report Ex.Ka-6. Doctor found a linear abrasion of 3 cm, incised, obliquely situated over left side of chest, and opined that it might have been caused by some sharp weapon on 27.11.2008 at about 5:00 p.m. and was simple in nature.

7. PW-10, Doctor Chadra Prakash conducted medical examination of Ganesh Sharma, PW-2 and prepared injury report Ex.Ka-12. Doctor found one penetrating wound 3.5cm x 0.5cm x 3.5cm present over left side back about 8.0 cm below left scapula.

8. PW-8, Ravinder Kumar Ravi, commenced investigation, recorded statement of PW-1, Shatrughan Vishwakarma, and other witnesses, visited spot, prepared site plan Ex.Ka.-9, collected blood stained and simple earth from spot, prepared memo thereof Ex.Ka-8. On 04.12.2008, he arrested accused and on his pointing, recovered blood stained knife, allegedly used in commission of offence, from bushes of Bamboo near his house, prepared memo thereof Ex.Ka-4. Investigating Officer recorded statement of other witnesses and after completion of necessary formalities, submitted charg-sheet, Ex.Ka-11, against accused under Sections 302, 307, 504 and 506 IPC before Chief Judicial Magistrate, concerned.

9. Case, being exclusively triable by Court of Sessions, was committed by Chief Judicial Magistrate to Sessions Court wherefrom, it was transferred to Additional Sessions Judge (FTC), Court No.3, Gorakhpur for disposal in accordance with law.

10. Trial Court, after considering the entire material on record, framed charges against accused-appellant under Section 302 IPC on 28.05.2009 and under Sections 307, 504 and 506 IPC on 04.08.2009, which read as under:

11. Accused denied charges levelled against him and claimed trial.

12. In order to substantiate its case, prosecution examined as many as ten witnesses in the following manner :

Sr. No.	Name of PW	Nature of witness	Paper proved
1	Shatrughan	Fact	Ex.Ka-1

	Vishwakarma		& Ex. Ka-2
2	Ganesh Sharma	Fact	Ex.Ka-11
3	HC Ramkesh	Formal	Ex.Ka-2 & Ex. Ka-3
4	Dwarika Nath Vishwakarma	Formal	Ex.Ka-4 (recovery memo)
5	Jitendra Vishwakarma	Formal	Ex.Ka-5 (inquest)
6	Dr. DP Singh	Formal	Ex.Ka-6
7	Dr. Gyan Chandra	Formal	Ex.Ka-7
8	Ravindra Kumar Ravi (IO)	Formal	Ex.Ka-4, Ex.Ka-8 and Ex.Ka-11
9	Vijay Kumar (constable)	Formal	Ex. Ka-10
10	Dr. Chandra Prakash	Formal	Ex.Ka-12 (Injury report)

13. Subsequent to closure of prosecution evidence, statement of accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded by Court explaining all incriminating circumstances and other evidence. Accused denied prosecution story in toto and all formalities of investigation were said to be wrong. He claimed false implication on account of enmity and statement of witnesses were said to be wrong. In response of question 6, accused answered that informant and his brother (deceased) had come with knife and Danda to his house, assaulted him, due to which he sustained injury on his head and they wanted to take his life by cutting his neck. Complainant side must have suffered injuries while making defence. Accused examined DW-1, Jai Kirshna Mishra, in defence.

14. After hearing counsel for parties and analyzing entire evidence led by prosecution on record, Trial Court has found accused-appellant guilty and convicted him, as stated above. Feeling aggrieved and dissatisfied with impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence, present appeal has been filed through Jail.

15. We have heard Sri I.P. Singh, Amicus Curiae for accused-appellant and Sri Nikhil Chaturvedi, learned A.G.A for State-respondents, at length, and have gone through record carefully with valuable assistance of learned counsel for parties.

16. Learned Amicus Curiae appearing for accused-appellant took us through record and challenged conviction and sentence of accused-appellant, advancing his submissions, in the following manners :-

i. There is no independent witness of the incident. PW-1 is a relative witness. No independent witness came forward to support prosecution case. PW-1 and deceased themselves had come to the house of accused-appellant to take his life.

ii. There is no motive to accused-appellant to commit murder of Govind Vishwakarma and cause injuries to PW-1.

iii. There are several contradictions rendering prosecution doubtful.

iv. Prosecution story inspires no confidence.

v. Witnesses are not natural. Prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. Accused-appellant is entitled to benefit of doubt and deserves acquittal.

vi. Trial Court did not appreciate prosecution evidence with full care and cautious.

vii. Medical evidence also does not go with prosecution version.

17. Per contra learned AGA supported impugned judgment and submitted that it is a day light murder and a case of direct evidence, in which, victim sustained knife injuries and succumbed to death. PW-1 and 2 also received injuries in the same incident, that is why, their presence on the spot cannot be doubted. Even otherwise, accused-appellant himself admitted to be present on the spot on the date of incident. Thus, Trial Court has rightly convicted and sentenced him.

18. Although time, date, place of incident and murder of victim, could not be disputed from the side of defence but according to learned counsel for accused-appellant, he is not responsible for committing murder of Govind Vishwakarma and causing injuries to PW-1 and 2. From statements of PW-1, 2, 6 and 7 and defence witness also time, date, place of incident and presence of deceased on the spot stand proved.

19. Admittedly, this is a case of direct evidence, in which, Govind Vishwakarma was murdered and PW-1 and 2 were injured. Incident took place in day light. Accused-appellant and complainant, being resident of same village, are known to each other. Accused-appellant has himself admitted his presence on the date of incident in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C.

20. Thus, two questions are up for consideration of this Court i.e. "Whether accused-appellant is responsible for committing murder of victim-Govind Vishwakarma and causing serious injuries to PW-1 and PW-2" and "Whether Trial Court has rightly convicted accused-appellant or not?"

21. We now proceed to consider briefly, evidence of prosecution and some relevant judgments.

22. PW-1 deposed that on 27.11.2008, at about 5:00 pm, a goat of accused-appellant was grazing in his field. His brother, Govind Vishwakarma (victim), caught and tied it in his house. When PW-1, Govind Vishwakarma (victim) and Ganesh Sharma (PW-2) went to the house of accused-appellant to make a complaint, they saw that accused-appellant was beating his wife whereupon they objected and asked why he was beating his wife and told him that his goat was grazing in his field and they tied it at the door. Accused-appellant started abusing and threatening them of taking their life. When they objected him for abusing, accused-appellant, with intention to kill, took out knife, and stabbed in chest of victim. He and Ganesh Sharma tried to apprehend accused-appellant but accused attacked them with knife, resultantly, PW-1 himself, and Ganesh Sharma (PW-2) received knife injuries. Victim rushed to his house, fell down in Varandah and succumbed. Many persons of village have seen the incident. It is further deposed that he got scribed Tehrir, Ex. Ka-1, by one Sadhu Saran Sharma (not examined), put his signature and presented to Police Station concerned. Witness got injured while saving his brother in incident.

23. PW-2, Ganesh Sharma, deposed that on 27.11.2008, a goat of accused-appellant was grazing in the field of victim whereupon he caught and tied it on the door of his house. Thereafter, at 5:00 pm, he (witness), victim Govind Vishwakarma, Satrughan Vishwakarma, PW-1, went to the house of accused-appellant for making complaint and witnessed that he was beating his wife. They asked him why he was beating his wife that they took his goat who was grazing in the field. Accused-appellant started abusing in filthy language and threatened them. When victim objected him for abusing, accused stabbed knife in chest of victim. He and Shatrughan, PW-1, rushed to save him, accused-appellant attacked them with knife. He received injury on his back. Accused-appellant ran away towards Banswari. Victim, Govind Vishwakarma, succumbed to death in his house. He was also medically examined in Sadar Hospital. Incident was witnessed by Lok Nath Sharma and many persons also.

24. Both PW-1 and PW-2 withstood lengthy cross examination but nothing material could be brought so as to disbelieve their testimony. Evidently, PW-1 and PW-2 got injured in the same incident, hence their presence cannot be doubted.

25. PW-6, Dr. D.P. Singh, deposed that on 28.11.2008, he was posted, as Medical Officer; medically examined Shatrughan Vishwakarma; and found a linear abrasion of 3 cm incised obliquely situated over the left side of chest and opined that it might have been caused by some sharp weapon on 27.11.2008 at about 5:00 p.m. and was simple in nature.

26. PW-10, Dr. Chand Prakash, deposed that on 27.11.2008, while posting in District Hospital Gorakhpur, he medically examined Ganesh Sharma and found one penetrating wound 3.5 x 0.5 cm x 3.5 cm present over left side back about 8.0 cm below left scapula.

27. Evidently, PW-1 and 2 sustained injuries in the same incident. PW-1, Shatrughan Vishwakarma, sustained one injury caused by sharp object and PW-2, Ganesh Sharma, sustained penetrating wound caused by sharp pointed object. All the injuries are simple in nature and fresh. Injury report Ex.Ka-6 and 12 respectively corroborate this fact which also find support from the evidence of Dr D.P. Singh, PW-16, and Dr. Chandra Prakash, PW-10.

28. It is settled that presence of injured witnesses cannot be easily ignored. Normally an injured witness would enjoy greater credibility because he has suffered himself,thus, there will no occasion for such a person to state an incorrect version of occurrence or to involve anybody falsely and in the bargain, protect real culprit. We need not discuss more elaborately the weightage that should be attached by this Court to the testimony of injured persons since this aspect of criminal jurisprudence is no more res-inegra.

29. In Abdul Sayeed Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2010) 10 SCC 259, Court held as under :-

"28. The question of the weight to be attached to the evidence of a witness that was himself injured in the course of the occurrence has been extensively discussed by this Court.

Where a witness to the occurrence has himself been injured in the incident, the testimony of such a witness is generally considered to be very reliable, as he is a witness that comes with a built-in guarantee of his presence at the scene of the crime and is unlikely to spare his actual assailant(s) in order to falsely implicate someone. "Convincing evidence is required to discredit an injured witness." [Vide Ramlagan Singh v. State of Bihar, Malkhan Singh v. State of U.P., Machhi Singh v. State of Punjab, Appabhai v. State of Gujarat, Bonkay vs. State of Maharashtra, Bhag Singh, Mohar v. State of U.P. (SCC p. 606b-c), Dinesh Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, Vishnu v. State of Rajasthan, Annareddy Sambasiva Reddy v. State of A.P. And Balraje v. State of Maharashtra.]

29. While deciding this issue, a similar view was taken in Jarnail Singh v. State of Punjab, where this Court reiterated the special evidentiary status accorded to the testimony of an injured accused and relying on its earlier judgments held as under: (SCC pp. 726-27, paras 28-29) "28. Darshan Singh (PW 4) was an injured witness. He had been examined by the doctor. His testimony could not be brushed aside lightly. He had given full details of the incident as he was present at the time when the assailants reached the tubewell. In Shivalingappa Kallayanappa v. State of Karnataka this Court has held that the deposition of the injured witness should be relied upon unless there are strong grounds for rejection of his evidence on the basis of major contradictions and discrepancies, for the reason that his presence on the scene stands established in case it is proved that he suffered the injury during the said incident.

30. In State of U.P. v. Kishan Chand (2004) 7 SCC 629, referring the judgement of Krishna vs State Of Haryana on 12 July, 1994, a similar view has been reiterated by Court, observing that testimony of a stamped witness has its own relevance and efficacy. The fact that the witness sustained injuries at the time and place of occurrence, lends support to his testimony that he was present during the occurrence. In case the injured witness is subjected to lengthy cross-examination and nothing is elicited to discard his testimony, it should be relied upon.

31. The law on the point can be summarised to the effect that testimony of an injured witness is accorded a special status in law. This is as a consequence of the fact that the injury to the witness is an inbuilt guarantee of his presence at the scene of crime. Such witness will not want to let his actual assailant go unpunished merely to falsely implicate a third party for the commission of the offence. Thus, the deposition of injured witness should be relied upon unless there are strong grounds for rejection of his evidence on the basis of major contradictions and discrepancies therein.

32. According to learned counsel for accused-appellant, evidently, dead body was found at the door of Informant, while blood was not found at the door of deceased, therefore, dead body was shifted from anywhere to the door of deceased and it was not the prosecution case.

33. Admittedly, dead body was found at the door of deceased and inquest report was prepared there. It has also come in evidence of PW-8 that blood was not found at the door of deceased but PW-1 and PW-2 categorically stated in his statement that accused-appellant stabbed knife in front of his house; victim ran to his house; fell down and succumbed to injuries at his door. PW-8 stated that blood stained was seen on the way leading to informant' house from accused-appellant's house.

34. Non-availability of blood at the door of deceased does not falsify prosecution case for the reasons that incident took place in front of accused-appellant's house, which was proved by PW-1, PW-2 and PW-8 and victim rushed to his house, where he fell down and died. Therefore, submission of learned counsel for accused-appellant is not acceptable and we reject the same.

35. So far as motive is concerned, it is well settled that where direct evidence is worthy, it can be believed, then motive does not carry much weight. It is also notable that mind set of accused persons differs from each other. Thus merely because that there was no strong motive to commit the present offence, prosecution case cannot be disbelieved. We do not find any substance in the argument advanced by learned counsel for appellant.

36. In Lokesh Shivakumar v. State of Karnataka, (2012) 3 SCC 196, Court has held under :-

"As regards motive, it is well established that if the prosecution case is fully established by reliable ocular evidence coupled with medical evidence, the issue of motive looses practically all relevance. In this case, we find the ocular evidence led in support of the prosecution case wholly reliable and see no reason to discard it."

37. Next argument of learned counsel for accused-appellant is that PW-1 is real brother of victim and he is not an independent witness. We are not impressed upon with the same for the reasons that testimony of related witness cannot be discarded only on the ground of relationship with victim or accused.

38. It is settled law that merely because witnesses are closely relative to deceased, their testimonies cannot be discarded. Relationship with one of the parties is not a factor that affects credibility of witness, more so, a relative would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegation against an innocent person. However, in such a case Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible evidence.

39. Testimony of eye witness merely because he happens to be a relative of the deceased cannot be discarded as a 'close relative' would be last one to screen out the real culprit and implicate innocent person as held in Dilip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR,1953, SC 364. Court has held:-

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause' for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

40. In Dharnidhar v. State of UP (2010) 7 SCC 759, Court has observed:-

"There is no hard and fast rule that family members can never be true witnesses to the occurrence and that they will always depose falsely before the Court. It will always depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case. In the case of Jayabalan v. U.T. of Pondicherry [(2010)1 SCC 199], this Court had occasion to consider whether the evidence of interested witnesses can be relied upon. The Court took the view that a pedantic approach cannot be applied while dealing with the evidence of an interested witness. Such evidence cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from a person closely related to the victim"

41. In Ganga Bhawani v. Rayapati Venkat Reddy and Others, 2013(15) SCC 298, Court said :-

"11. It is a settled legal proposition that the evidence of closely related witnesses is required to be carefully scrutinised and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon.

(Vide: Bhagalool Lodh & Anr. v. State of UP, AIR 2011 SC 2292; and Dhari & Ors. v. State of U. P., AIR 2013 SC 308*)."*

42. So far as the genesis of prosecution story and medical evidence is concerned, PW-1 and PW-2 categorically deposed that on the date of incident, goat of accused was grazing in field of victim who brought it and tied at the door of his house and went to house of accused for making complaint where above incident took place.

43. PW-1 and PW-2 supported prosecution case. PW-6, Investigating Officer, found blood in Varandah of accused. In this way, genesis of prosecution stands established. PW-6, Dr. DP Singh, PW-7 Dr. Gyan Chandra, and PW-8, Dr. Chand Prakash, proved medical reports. All three doctors opined that injury found on the person of deceased injured might be caused by sharp weapon, like knife, at the relevant time and date as stated by prosecution, therefore, medical evidence is totally compatible with ocular version.

44. PW-1 and PW-2 are natural witnesses who have supported prosecution. House of Informant is at the distance of 50-60 mtr. away from accused-appellant. Since goat of accused was grazing in the field of deceased, therefore, coming of deceased and witnesses to the house of accused-appellant for making complaint and their presence on spot cannot be easily doubted. It is often seen that no villagers come forward to give evidence in support of prosecution against accused-appellant in heinous offence, like murder, due to fear of evil and it is settled principle of law that prosecution is not obliged to produce an independent witness.

45. So far as discrepancies, variation and contradiction in the prosecution case are concerned, we have analysed entire evidence in consonance with the submissions raised by learned counsel's and find that the same do not go to the root of case.

46. In Sampath Kumar v. Inspector of Police, Krishnagiri, (2012) 4 SCC 124, Court has held that minor contradictions are bound to appear in the statements of truthful witnesses as memory sometimes plays false and sense of observation differs from person to person.

47. In Sachin Kumar Singhraha v. State of Madhya Pradesh in Criminal Appeal Nos. 473-474 of 2019 decided on 12.3.2019, Supreme Court has observed that Court will have to evaluate evidence before it keeping in mind the rustic nature of depositions of villagers, who may not depose about exact geographical locations with mathematical precision. Discrepancies which do not go to the root of the matter do not obliterate otherwise acceptable evidence. It need not be stated that it is by now well settled that minor variations should not be taken into consideration while assessing the reliability of witness testimony and the consistency of the prosecution version as a whole.

48. Lest we not forget that no prosecution case is foolproof and the same is bound to suffer from some lacuna or the other. It is only when such lacunae are on material aspects going to the root of the matter, it may have bearing on the outcome of the case, else such shortcomings are to be ignored. Reference may be made to a recent decision of the Apex Court (3 Judges) in Criminal Appeal No. 56 of 2018, Smt. Shamim v. State of (NCT of Delhi), decided on 19.09.2018.

49. When such incident takes place, one cannot expect a scripted version from witnesses to show as to what actually happened and in what manner it had happened. Such minor details normally are neither noticed nor remembered by people since they are in fury of incident and apprehensive of what may happen in future. A witness is not expected to recreate a scene as if it was shot after with a scripted version but what material thing has happened that is only noticed or remembered by people and that is stated in evidence. Court has to see whether in broad narration given by witnesses, if there is any material contradiction so as to render evidence so self contradictory as to make it untrustworthy is Minor variation or such omissions which do not otherwise affect trustworthiness of evidence, which is broadly consistent in statement of witnesses, is of no legal consequence and cannot defeat prosecution.

50. In all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observations, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Where the omissions amount to a contradiction, creating a serious doubt about truthfulness of the witness and other witnesses also make material improvement while deposing in the court, such evidence cannot be safe to rely upon. However, minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. Court has to form its opinion about the credibility of witness and record a finding, whether his deposition inspires confidence. Exaggerations per se do not render the evidence brittle, but can be one of the factors to test credibility of the prosecution version, when entire evidence is put in a crucible for being tested on the touchstone of credibility. Therefore, mere marginal variations in the statement of a witnesses cannot be dubbed as improvements as the same may be elaborations of the statements made by the witnesses earlier. Only such omissions which amount to contradictions in material particulars i.e. go to the root of the case/materially affect the trial or core of the prosecution's case, render the testimony of the witness liable to be discredited. [Vide: State Represented by Inspector of Police v. Saravanan & Anr., AIR 2009 SC 152; Arumugam v. State, AIR 2009 SC 331; Mahendra Pratap Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2009) 11 SCC 334; and Dr. Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta & Ors. v. State of Maharashtra, JT 2010 (12) SC 287]. We therefore, find no force in this submission also.

51. Considering entire facts and circumstances of the case, statement of PWs as well documentary evidence produced by prosecution and legal proposition discussed herein before, we have no hesitation to come to conclusion that accused-appellant committed murder of Govind Vishwakarma and caused injuries to PW-1 and 2 at the time, date and place as stated by prosecution and prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. Trial Court has rightly convicted and sentenced him. Appeal lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

52. So far as sentence is concerned, it is always a difficult task requiring balancing of various considerations. The question of awarding sentence is a matter of discretion to be exercised on consideration of circumstances aggravating and mitigating in the individual cases.

53. It is settled legal position that appropriate sentence should be awarded after giving due consideration to the facts and circumstances of each case, nature of offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. It is obligation of court to constantly remind itself that right of victim, and be it said, on certain occasions person aggrieved as well as society at large can be victims, never be marginalized. The measure of punishment should be proportionate to gravity of offence. Object of sentencing should be to protect society and to deter the criminal in achieving avowed object of law. Further, it is expected that courts would operate the sentencing system so as to impose such sentence which reflects conscience of society and sentencing process has to be stern where it should be. The court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against individual victim but also against society to which criminal and victim belong. Punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality which the crime has been perpetrated, enormity of crime warranting public abhorrence and it should 'respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal'. [Vide : (Sumer Singh vs. Surajbhan Singh and others, (2014) 7 SCC 323, Sham Sunder vs. Puran, (1990) 4 SCC 731, M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554, Ravji v. State of Rajasthan, (1996) 2 SCC 175].

54. In view of above propositions of law, the paramount principle that should be the guiding laser beam is that punishment should be proportionate to gravity of offence.

55. Hence, applying the principles laid down by Apex Court in the aforesaid judgments and having regard to the totality of facts and circumstances of case, nature of offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed, we find that punishment imposed upon accused appellant by the Trial Court in the impugned judgment and order is not excessive or exorbitant and no occasion arises to interfere in the matter on the point of punishment imposed upon the accused-appellant.

56. Consequently, Appeal lacks merit and is hereby dismissed.

57. Lower Court record alongwith a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to District Court and Jail concerned for compliance and apprising the accused-appellant.

58. Before parting, we provide that Sri I.P. Singh, Advocate, who has appeared as Amicus Curiae for appellant in present Jail Appeal, shall be paid counsel's fee as Rs. 11,500/- for his valuable assistance. State Government is directed to ensure payment of aforesaid fee through Additional Legal Remembrancer, posted in the office of Advocate General at Allahabad, without any delay and, in any case, within one month from the date of receipt of copy of this judgment.

of the deceased from the Doctor - the investigating officer recorded two statements of the deceased which have been duly proved by the investigating officer - apparent from the contents of the dying declaration that it is the appellant who burnt the deceased after pouring kerosene oil on her - It is a settled proposition of law that after the death of the deceased, her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. can be treated as her dying declaration - the dying declarations of the deceased have been duly proved by the witnesses - enough evidence on record to suggest that deceased was in a position to speak and at least she was in a fit state of mind to make her statement - the complicity of the appellant in committing the murder of the deceased, has been duly proved - The trial court was fully justified in convicting the appellant.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pritinker Diwaker, J.)

1. This appeal arises out of impugned order and judgment dated 09.12.1988 passed by VIIth Additional Sessions Judge, Meerut in Sessions Trial No. 96 of 1988 convicting the appellant under Section 302 and 498A of IPC and sentencing him to undergo rigorous life imprisonment under Section 302 and one year rigorous imprisonment under Section 498A, with a direction that both the sentences shall run concurrently.

2. In the present case, name of the deceased is Khalida Begum wife of the accused-appellant. Their marriage was solomnised on 01.04.1985 and she died in her matrimonial house on 09.11.1987 after suffering 95% burn injuries. On 31.10.1987 itself, on the basis of written report Ex.Ka-1 lodged by PW-1, Nisar Ahmad, father of the deceased, FIR Ex.Ka-4 was registered against the accused-appellant and two acquitted accused under Sections 307 and 498A of IPC. On 31.10.1987 itself, dying declaration of the deceased Ex.Ka-3 was recorded by PW-5, Mukesh Kumar Gupta, Executive Magistrate wherein she has categorically stated that she was burnt by the appellant. On 01.11.1987, case diary statement Ex.Ka-14 of the deceased was recorded in which also she named the appellant to be the accused. Likewise, on 02.11.1987, in another diary statement of the deceased Ex.Ka-15, she has stated that she was burnt by the appellant. Deceased also made oral dying declaration before PW-4, Shajda Begum implicating the appellant as the main accused.

3. After the death of the deceased, inquest on her dead body was conducted on 9.11.1987 vide Ex.Ka-16 and the body was sent for post-mortem which was conducted on 10.11.1987 by PW-3, Dr. S.C. Gupta vide Ex.Ka-2.

4. As per Autopsy Surgeon, following ante-mortem injuries were found on the body of deceased:

(I) superficial to deep burn present on whole body except lower part of abdomen, genatal region and a small portion of back i.e. inter scapula region of left side into supra scapula region of left side.

(II) cut open mark present on right leg inner and lower one third.

The cause of death of the deceased was due to shock as a result of extensive burn.

5. While framing charge, the trial judge has framed charge against accused-appellant under Sections 302, 304B and 498A of IPC whereas against two acquitted accused namely Mohd. Mohsin and Smt. Amna, charges were framed under Sections 304B/34 and 498A/34 of IPC.

6. So as to hold accused persons guilty, prosecution has examined nine witnesses, whereas three defence witnesses have also been examined. Statements of accused persons were recorded under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. in which they pleaded their innocence and false implication.

7. By the impugned judgment, the trial judge has acquitted co-accused Mohsin and Smt. Amna of all the offences, whereas appellant has been convicted under Section 302 and 498A of IPC. Hence this appeal.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant submits:-

(I) that on the same set of evidence, once co-accused has been acquitted, the trial court was not justified in convicting the appellant.

(II) that dying declaration of the deceased Ex.Ka-3 recorded by the Executive Magistrate is not reliable as at the time of making the said statement, the deceased was not in a fit state of mind. Learned counsel submits that endorsement made by the Doctor in dying declaration has been obtained after it was recorded and, therefore, it has no legal sanctity.

(III) that diary statements Ex.Ka-14 and Ex.Ka-15 of the deceased are nothing but concocted piece of evidence.

(IV) that deceased died an accidental death but unfortunately appellant has been made escape goat just because he happens to be the husband of the deceased.

(V) that it is the appellant, who hospitalized the deceased and, therefore, even assuming that any such incident had taken place, case of the appellant would not fall under Section 302 of IPC.

9. On the other hand, supporting the impugned judgment, it has been argued by the State Counsel:

(I) that conviction of the appellant is in accordance with law and there is no infirmity in the same.

(II) that there is no reason for this Court to disbelieve the dying declaration Ex.Ka-3 of the deceased recorded by PW-5, Mukesh Kumar Gupta, Executive Magistrate. He submits that 161 Cr.P.C. statements of the deceased Ex.Ka-14 and Ex.Ka-15 are to be treated as her dying declaration after her death.

(III) that the oral dying declaration was also made by the deceased before PW-4, Shajda Begum and that also supports the prosecution case.

(IV) that the mere fact that the appellant hospitalized the deceased, will not give him any leniency because after the incident, the appellant may have felt fear in his mind of being punished by the police and that is why, he hospitalized the deceased. In any case, the heinous act of the appellant cannot be diluted just because he hospitalized the deceased.

10. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. PW-1, Nisar Ahmad is a father of the deceased and the informant, has stated that marriage of the deceased was solemnized with the appellant on 01.04.1985 and in the marriage, sufficient dowry was given by him. Since beginning, accused persons used to harass the deceased for demand of various articles like fridge and motorcycle. On 31.12.1987, he came to know about the incident and then he lodged the report.

12. PW-2, Bharat Singh, Constable, took the body for postmortem.

13. PW-3, Dr. S.C. Gupta, conducted postmortem on the body of the deceased and noticed 90% to 95% burn injuries on the body of the deceased.

14. PW-4, Shajda Begum, is the mother of the deceased, states that since the date of marriage, the deceased was subjected to cruelty for demand of dowry and various articles were given to her. She further states that the deceased made oral dying declaration before her as to the manner in which she was burnt. In cross-examination, this witness was subjected to various questions including tricky ones but she remained firm and has reiterated as to the manner in which the deceased discloses her about the incident and the ill-treatment meted to her.

15. PW-5, Mukesh Kumar Gupta, is the Executive Magistrate, who recorded the dying declaration of the deceased. He has stated that before recording the dying declaration of the deceased, he obtained medical certificate of the deceased from the Doctor and only after due certification, he recorded the statement in which the deceased had disclosed that she was burnt by the accused-appellant. He has duly proved the dying declaration Ex. Ka-3.

16. PW-6, Bhagat Singh Visth, has recorded the FIR.

17. PW-7, Ahsan Ilahi, is a maternal uncle of the deceased, has stated that he saw accused-appellant burning the deceased and that after the incident deceased was crying and shouting by saying that she was burnt by other two accused persons.

18. PW-8, G.S. Verma, is an Investigating Officer. He also recorded the diary statement of the deceased Ex.Ka-14 and Ex.Ka-15, wherein deceased has stated as to the manner in which she was burnt by the appellant.

19. PW-9, Dr. V.P. Goel, medically examined the deceased when she was first admitted in Chaurasiya Nursing Home and he has also proved the injury report of the deceased Ex.Ka-25. This witness has also proved the fitness certificate of the deceased given by him at the time of recording the dying declaration by the Executive Magistrate.

20. DW-1, Hafizuddin, has stated that in the marriage of appellant and the deceased, no dowry was settled and that the couple was living happily.

21. DW-2, Matin has stated that it is the appellant, who extinguish the fire.

22. DW-3, Dr. S.K. Singh, has stated that after injecting pathedrin and calmpose, patient would be semi-conscious. He, however, has stated that even in the case of 100% burn injury, at times, patient can speak and can also keep quiet.

23. Before we appreciate the evidence adduced by the prosecution, we feel it appropriate to refer certain judgments of the Apex Court governing the law of the dying declaration.

24. In State of Gujarat v. Jayrajbhai Punjabhai Varu, the Supreme Court held as under:

"15. The courts below have to be extremely careful when they deal with a dying declaration as the maker thereof is not available for the cross- examination which poses a great difficulty to the accused person. A mechanical approach in relying upon a dying declaration just because it is there is extremely dangerous. The court has to examine a dying declaration scrupulously with a microscopic eye to find out whether the dying declaration is voluntary, truthful, made in a conscious state of mind and without being influenced by the relatives present or by the investigating agency who may be interested in the success of investigation or which may be negligent while recording the dying declaration.

16. In the case on hand, there are two sets of evidence, one is the statement/declaration made before the police officer and the Executive Magistrate and the other is the oral dying declaration made by the deceased before her father who was examined as PW-1. On a careful scrutiny of the materials on record, it cannot be said that there were contradictions in the statements made before the police officer and the Executive Magistrate as to the role of the respondent herein in the commission of the offence and in such circumstances, one set of evidence which is more consistent and reliable, which in the present case being one in favour of the respondent herein, requires to be accepted and conviction could not be placed on the sole testimony of PW-1.

17. A number of times the relatives influence the investigating agency and bring about a dying declaration. The dying declarations recorded by the investigating agencies have to be very scrupulously examined and the court must remain alive to all the attendant circumstances at the time when the dying declaration comes into being. In case of more than one dying declaration, the intrinsic contradictions in those dying declarations are extremely important. It cannot be that a dying declaration which supports the prosecution alone can be accepted while the other innocent dying declarations have to be rejected. Such a trend will be extremely dangerous. However, the courts below are fully entitled to act on the dying declarations and make them the basis of conviction, where the dying declarations pass all the above tests.

18. The court has to weigh all the attendant circumstances and come to the independent finding whether the dying declaration was properly recorded and whether it was voluntary and truthful. Once the court is convinced that the dying declaration is so recorded, it may be acted upon and can be made a basis of conviction. The courts must bear in mind that each criminal trial is an individual aspect. It may differ from the other trials in some or the other respect and, therefore, a mechanical approach to the law of dying declaration has to be shunned.

19. On appreciation of evidence on record, we are of the considered view that the dying declarations of the deceased recorded by the police officer as well as the Executive Magistrate are fully corroborated and there is no inconsistency as regards the role of the respondent herein in the commission of offence. From a perusal of the statement recorded by Bhiku Karsanbhai, P.S.O., the thumb impression of Rekhaben (since deceased) which had been identified by her father-Sri Vala Jaskubhai Suragbhai as also his cross-examination in which he admitted that police had already come there and he had identified her thumb impression and Mamlatdar had gone inside to record statement, there is no reason as to why Rekhaben would give names of her husband and her in- laws in the alleged statement given to her father. A dying declaration is entitled to great weight. The conviction basing reliance upon the oral dying declaration made to the father of the deceased is not reliable and such a declaration can be a result of afterthought. This is the reason the Court also insists that the dying declaration should be of such a nature as to inspire full confidence of the Court in its correctness. The Court has to be on guard that the statement of deceased was not as a result of tutoring, prompting or a product of imagination. The Court must be further satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind after a clear opportunity to observe and identify the assailants. Once the Court is satisfied that the declaration was true and voluntary, undoubtedly, it can base its conviction without any further corroboration. It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that the dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction unless it is corroborated. The rule requiring corroboration is merely a rule of prudence.

20. The burden of proof in criminal law is beyond all reasonable doubt. The prosecution has to prove the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt and it is also the rule of justice in criminal law that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other towards his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted."

25. In Gaffar Badshaha Pathan v. State of Maharashtra,it was held as under:

"5. Dr. A.U. Masurkar was the Chief Medical Officer of the hospital at the relevant time. The High Court has held that the recording of the dying declaration and story stated therein apparently appears to be false and concocted for the various reasons noticed in the impugned judgment. It has to be borne in mind that the fact whether the dying declaration is false and concocted has to be established by the prosecution. It is not for the accused to prove conclusively that the dying declaration was correct and the story therein was not concocted. The fact that the statement of the deceased was recorded at about 9.00 p.m. by the Head Constable cannot be doubted though an attempt to the contrary seems to have been made by the prosecution. The statements of the prosecution witnesses (PW 5 and PW 11) also show that the statement was recorded by the Head Constable. According to PW 5, it was only a show made by the Head Constable of recording statement, since according to the said witness, the deceased was not in a position to speak at that time. Even PW 11, a doctor in the hospital, has deposed about the recording of the statement by the Head Constable though he has not formally proved the dying declaration but has certified the correctness of the endorsement of Dr. A.U. Masurkar on the dying declaration. PW 11 was shown the dying declaration. He has deposed that the certificate recorded on the dying declaration is in the handwriting of Dr. Masurkar, Chief Medical Officer of the hospital. He has further deposed that Dr. Masurkar is in the hospital since the last 12 to 15 years and that he had degree in MS and was estimated to be an honest and expert surgeon of the area. One of the reasons which had strongly weighed with the High Court in rejecting the dying declaration is that the endorsement of the doctor is only about the deceased lady being conscious and not that she was in a fit condition to make the statement. The High Court went into distinction between consciousness and fitness to make statement. On the facts of the present case, we are unable to sustain the approach adopted by the High Court. It is one thing for an accused to attack a dying declaration in a case where the prosecution seeks to rely on a dying declaration against an accused but it is altogether different where an accused relies upon a dying declaration in support of the defence of accidental death. The burden on the accused is much lighter. He has only to prove reasonable probability. Under these circumstances, the dying declaration could not have been rejected on the ground that it does not contain the endorsement of the doctor of the fitness of the lady to make the statement as the certificate of the doctor only shows that she was in a conscious state. The endorsement of the doctor aforequoted is not only about the conscious state of the lady but is that she made the statement in a conscious state."

26. In P. Mani v State of Tamilnadu, while considering the suspicious dying declaration, it has been held by the Apex Court that the conviction can be based solely on the basis of dying declaration alone, but the same must be wholly reliable and trustworthy. Para 14 of the said judgment reads thus:

"14. Indisputably conviction can be recorded on the basis of dying declaration alone but therefore the same must be wholly reliable. In a case where suspicion can be raised as regard the correctness of the dying declaration, the court before convicting an accused on the basis thereof would look for some corroborative evidence. Suspicion, it is trite, is no substitute for proof. If evidence brought on records suggests that such dying declaration does not reveal the entire truth, it may be considered only as a piece of evidence in which event conviction may not be rested only on the basis thereof. The question as to whether a dying declaration is of impeccable character would depend upon several factors; physical and mental condition of the deceased is one of them. In this case the circumstances which have been brought on records clearly point out that what might have been stated in the dying declaration may not be correct. If the deceased had been nurturing a grudge against her husband for a long time, she while committing suicide herself may try to implicate him so as to make his life miserable. In the present case where the Appellant has been charged under Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code, the presumption in terms of Section 113A of the Evidence Act is not available. In absence of such a presumption, the conviction and sentence of the accused must be based on cogent and reliable evidence brought on record by the prosecution. In this case, we find that the evidences are not such which point out only to the guilt of the accused."

27. In Lakhan v. State of MP, the Supreme Court after discussing number of judgments on the point of dying declarations summarized the law in this regard, as under:

"20. In view of the above, the law on the issue of dying declaration can be summarized to the effect that in case, the Court comes to the conclusion that the dying declaration is true and reliable, has been recorded by a person at a time when the deceased was fit physically and mentally to make the declaration and it has not been made under any tutoring/duress/prompting; it can be the sole basis for recording conviction. In such an eventuality no corroboration is required. In case, there are multiple dying declarations and there are inconsistencies between them, generally, the dying declaration recorded by the higher officer like a Magistrate can be relied upon, provided that there is no circumstance giving rise to any suspicion about its truthfulness. In case, there are circumstances wherein the declaration had been made, not voluntarily and even otherwise, it is not supported by the other evidence, the Court has to scrutinize the facts of an individual case very carefully and take a decision as to which of the declarations is worth reliance."

28. In Shudhakar v. State of MP, the Supreme Court held as under:

"18. In the case of Laxman (supra), the Court while dealing with the argument that the dying declaration must be recorded by a Magistrate and the certificate of fitness was an essential feature, made the following observations. The court answered both these questions as follows:

"3. The juristic theory regarding acceptability of a dying declaration is that such declaration is made in extremity, when the party is at the point of death and when every hope of this world is gone, when every motive to falsehood is silenced, and the man is induced by the most powerful consideration to speak only the truth. Notwithstanding the same, great caution must be exercised in considering the weight to be given to this species of evidence on account of the existence of many circumstances which may affect their truth. The situation in which a man is on the deathbed is so solemn and serene, is the reason in law to accept the veracity of his statement. It is for this reason the requirements of oath and cross-examination are dispensed with. Since the accused has no power of cross-examination, the courts insist that the dying declaration should be of such a nature as to inspire full confidence of the court in its truthfulness and correctness. The court, however, has always to be on guard to see that the statement of the deceased was not as a result of either tutoring or prompting or a product of imagination. The court also must further decide that the deceased was in a fit state of mind and had the opportunity to observe and identify the assailant. Normally, therefore, the court in order to satisfy whether the deceased was in a fit mental condition to make the dying declaration looks up to the medical opinion. But where the eyewitnesses state that the deceased was in a fit and conscious state to make the declaration, the medical opinion will not prevail, nor can it be said that since there is no certification of the doctor as to the fitness of the mind of the declarant, the dying declaration is not acceptable. A dying declaration can be oral or in writing and any adequate method of communication whether by words or by signs or otherwise will suffice provided the indication is positive and definite. In most cases, however, such statements are made orally before death ensues and is reduced to writing by someone like a Magistrate or a doctor or a police officer. When it is recorded, no oath is necessary nor is the presence of a Magistrate absolutely necessary, although to assure authenticity it is usual to call a Magistrate, if available for recording the statement of a man about to die. There is no requirement of law that a dying declaration must necessarily be made to a Magistrate and when such statement is recorded by a Magistrate there is no specified statutory form for such recording. Consequently, what evidential value or weight has to be attached to such statement necessarily depends on the facts and circumstances of each particular case. What is essentially required is that the person who records a dying declaration must be satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind. Where it is proved by the testimony of the Magistrate that the declarant was fit to make the statement even without examination by the doctor the declaration can be acted upon provided the court ultimately holds the same to be voluntary and truthful. A certification by the doctor is essentially a rule of caution and therefore the voluntary and truthful nature of the declaration can be established otherwise."

29. In Ramakant Mishra v. State of UP, the Supreme Court observed as under:

"9. Definition of this legal concept found in Black's Law Dictionary (5th Edition) justifies reproduction:

"Dying Declarations - Statements made by a person who is lying at the point of death, and is conscious of his approaching death, in reference to the manner in which he received the injuries of which he is dying, or other immediate cause of his death, and in reference to the person who inflicted such injuries or the connection with such injuries of a person who is charged or suspected of having committed them; which statements are admissible in evidence in a trial for homicide (and occasionally, at least in some jurisdictions, in other cases) where the killing of the declarant is the crime charged to the defendant. Shepard v. U.S., Kan., 290 U.S. 96, 54 S.Ct. 22, 78 L.Ed. 196.

Generally, the admissibility of such declarations is limited to use in prosecutions for homicide; but is admissible on behalf of accused as well as for prosecution. In a prosecution for homicide or in a civil action or proceeding, a statement made by a declarant while believing that his death was imminent, concerning the cause or circumstances of what he believed to be his impending death is not excluded by the hearsay rule. Fed. Evid.R. 804 (b) (2).

10. When a person makes a statement while being aware of the prospect that his death is imminent and proximate, such a statement assumes a probative value which is almost unassailable, unlike other statements which he may have made earlier, when death was not lurking around, indicating the cause of his death. That is to say that a person might be quite willing to implicate an innocent person but would not do so when death is knocking at his door. That is why a Dying Declaration, to conform to this unique specie, should have been made when death was in the contemplation of the person making the statement/declaration."

24. In the present case, the dying declaration of the deceased Ex.Ka-3 recorded by PW-5, Executive Magistrate reads as under:-

" थानाध्यक्ष कोतवाली की सूचना पर मैं मुकेश कुमार गुप्ता सिटी मजिस्ट्रेट मेरठ चौरसिया नर्सिगं होम पर रोगी श्रीमती खालिदा का बयान लेने पहुॅचा। मौके पर उपस्थित डा0 की राय पर कि रोगी बयान देने में मानसिक व शारीरिक रूप से स्वस्थ है रोगी का बयान लेना प्रारम्भ किया। रोगी से प्रश्न पूछे गये जिसके उत्तर निम्न हैं।

25. The above dying declaration has been recorded by the PW-5, Mukesh Kumar Gupta, Executive Magistrate and has been duly endorsed by PW-9, Dr. V.P. Goel. In the Court, PW-5, Executive Magistrate has categorically stated that it is he, who recorded the dying declaration after obtaining the certificate from the Doctor and likewise PW-9, V.P. Goel, who gave the certificate, has also affirmed this fact that after his certificate, dying declaration was recorded by the Executive Magistrate. Considering the evidence available on record, we have absolutely no doubt about the authenticity of the dying declaration recorded by PW-5, Mukesh Kumar Gupta, Executive Magistrate.

26. From the contents of the dying declaration, it is apparent that it is the appellant who burnt the deceased after pouring kerosene oil on her. Apart from the above dying declaration, the investigating officer recorded two diary statements of the deceased on 1.11.1987 and 2.11.1987 vide Ex. Ka-14 and Ex.Ka-15. These two documents have been duly proved by the investigating officer. It is a settled proposition of law that after the death of the deceased, her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. can be treated as her dying declaration.

In the present case, diary statements of the deceased were recorded on 01.11.1987 and 2.11.1987 and she died on 09.11.1987. After the death of the deceased, these two statements made by the deceased becomes her dying declaration. Law in this respect is well settled.

30. In Rafique alias Rauf and Ors. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, the Apex Court held as under:

"16. The important question for consideration, therefore, is whether the said statement made by the deceased can be taken as a dying declaration and reliance can be placed upon the same.

17. The High Court while relying upon the said statement has noted certain circumstances, namely, the evidence of P.W.6, Investigating Officer, who deposed that the deceased was fully conscious when he was brought to the police station with injuries on his face, chest and other parts of the body and that he recorded his statement. It was also noted that after recording his statement the Investigating Officer referred him to the hospital for medical examination and treatment. The High Court, thereafter, noted the evidence of P.W.5 the postmortem doctor who categorically stated in his cross-examination that the injured was also in a position to speak and that it was not necessary that in all cases after sustaining injury in the brain a person cannot retain his conscience or will not be in a position to speak. The High Court noted the further statement of the doctor that it is not necessary that in every such case the patient would immediately go to a coma stage.

18. The High Court, therefore, reached a conclusion that the deceased Zahiruddin, was in a position to speak and that the statement under Ext.Ka-9 was given by him who expired on the next day evening. It further stated that since it was the last statement of the deceased to the Investigating Officer it can very well be treated as a dying declaration. The High Court was conscious of the fact that the trial Court did not place any reliance on the said statement which in the opinion of the High Court was erroneous.

19. In this context when we make reference to the statutory provisions concerning the extent of reliance that can be placed upon the dying declaration and also the implication of Section 162(2) Cr.P.C. vis-à-vis Section 32(1) of the Evidence Act, 1872, we feel that it will be appropriate to make a reference to the decision of this Court reported in Khushal Rao vs. State of Bombay - AIR 1958 SC 22. Justice Sinha speaking for the Bench after making further reference to a Full Bench decision of the High Court of Madras headed by Sir Lionel Leach, C.J., a decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and ''Phipson on Evidence' - 9th Ed., formulated certain principles to be applied to place any reliance upon such statements. We feel that the substance of the principles stated in the Full Bench decision and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and the author Phipson's view point on accepting a statement as dying declaration can also be noted in order to understand the principles ultimately laid down by this Court in paragraph 16.

20. The Full Bench of the Madras High Court in Guruswami Tevar - AIR 1940 Mad 196 in its unanimous opinion stated that no hard-and-fast rule can be laid down as to when a dying declaration should be accepted, except stating that each case must be decided in the light of its own facts and other circumstances. What all the Court has to ultimately conclude is whether the Court is convinced of the truthfulness of the statement, notwithstanding that there was no corroboration in the true sense. The thrust was to the position that the Court must be fully convinced of the truth of the statement and that it should not give any scope for suspicion as to its credibility. This Court noted that the High Court of Patnant decision of this Court reported in Sri Bhagwan v. State of U.P. - (2013) 12 SCC 137, to which one of us was a party, the Court dealt with more or less an identical situation and held as under in paras 21 and 22: and Nagpur also expressed the same view in the decisions reported in Mohd. Arif v. Emperor - AIR 1941 Pat. 409 and Gulabrao Krishnajee v. Emperor - AIR 1945 Nag. 153.

26. In a recent decision of this Court reported in Sri Bhagwan v. State of U.P. - (2013) 12 SCC 137, to which one of us was a party, the Court dealt with more or less an identical situation and held as under in paras 21 and 22:

"21. As far as the implication of 162(2) CrPC is concerned, as a proposition of law, unlike the excepted circumstances under which 161 statement could be relied upon, as rightly contended by learned Senior Counsel for the respondent, once the said statement though recorded under Section 161 CrPC assumes the character of dying declaration falling within the four corners of Section 32(1) of Evidence Act, then whatever credence that would apply to a declaration governed by Section 32(1) should automatically deemed to apply in all force to such a statement though was once recorded under Section 161 CrPC. The above statement of law would result in a position that a purported recorded statement under Section 161 of a victim having regard to the subsequent event of the death of the person making the statement who was a victim would enable the prosecuting authority to rely upon the said statement having regard to the nature and content of the said statement as one of dying declaration as deeming it and falling under Section 32(1) of Evidence Act and thereby commend all the credence that would be applicable to a dying declaration recorded and claimed as such.

Keeping the above principle in mind, it can be stated without any scope for contradiction that when we examine the claim made on the statement recorded by PW-4 of the deceased by applying Section 162(2), we have no hesitation in holding that the said statement as relied upon by the trial Court as an acceptable dying declaration in all force was perfectly justified. We say so because no other conflicting circumstance was either pointed out or demonstrated before the trial Court or the High Court or before us in order to exclude the said document from being relied upon as a dying declaration of the deceased. We reiterate that having regard to the manner in which the said statement was recorded at the time when the crime was registered originally under Section 326 IPC within the shortest time possible within which it could be recorded by PW-4 in order to provide proper medical treatment to the deceased by sending him to the hospital, with no other intention pointed out at the instance of the appellant to discredit contents of the said statement, we hold that the reliance placed upon the said statement as the dying declaration of the deceased was perfectly justified. Having regard to our above conclusion, the said submission of the learned counsel for the appellant also stands rejected."....

27. Apart from the above three dying declarations, the deceased also made oral dying declaration before PW-4 and the said witness has also proved the oral dying declaration.

28. Taking the cumulative effect of the evidence, we have no reason to disbelieve the dying declarations of the deceased which have been duly proved by the witnesses. The mere fact that certain medicines were given to treat the deceased does not mean that she was not in a fit state of mind to make the dying declaration. There is enough evidence on record to suggest that from 31.10.1987 to 09.11.1987, deceased was in a position to speak and at least she was in a fit state of mind on 31.10.1987, 01.11.1987 and 02.11.1987 to make her statement.

29. Considering all these aspects of the case, the complicity of the appellant in committing the murder of the deceased, has been duly proved.

30. We find no substance in the argument of the defence that as the appellant hospitalized the deceased, some leniency be shown to him. The appellant might have hospitalized the deceased because of fear in his mind but that does not entitle him for any leniency. The trial court was fully justified in convicting the appellant.

31. The appeal has no substance and the same is, accordingly, dismissed.

32. Accused-appellant is reported to be on bail. His bail bond stands cancelled and he be taken into custody immediately for serving the remaining sentence.

33. We appreciate the assistance rendered by Sri Ajay, Amicus and we direct the State Government to pay Rs. 5,000/- towards his remuneration.

A. Criminal Law -Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012, sections 3 / 4; Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 376, 506 & Code of Criminal Procedure - Section 374(2) of Cr.P.C. - Quantum of punishment - in case of conviction under Section 376 I.P.C as well as for penetrative sexual assault, punishable under Section 4 of POCSO Act, the sentencing is to be made under Section 4 of the POCSO Act. , because it is for graver degree sentence.

B. Sentencing - Modification of sentence - The convict-appellant has no criminal antecedent - There is likelihood of him being brought in the main stream of society after repent and reformation - sentence of seven years with fine of Rs.15,000/- and in default six months' additional imprisonment under Section 4 of POCSO Act was adequate and proper sentence - Imposed sentence under Section 376 I.P.C. was not permissible as per section 42 of POCSO Act. Appeal partly allowed regarding quantum of sentence for imprisonment, awarded under Section 376 I.P.C. - dismissed for rest of sentence awarded under Section 506 I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act, - The sentence awarded by trial judge substituted - Convict-appellant sentenced for offence punishable under Section 506 I.P.C. with one year simple imprisonment - further sentenced with seven years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.15,000/- and in default six months' additional imprisonment for offence punishable under Section 3/4 of POCSO Act. (Para 3,4,7, 8)

Appeal partly allowed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 374(2) of Code of Criminal Procedure (hereinafter referred to as 'Cr.P.C.') has been filed by convict-appellant Shyam Sunder against judgment of conviction and sentence made therein in Special Sessions Trial No. 579 of 2013 (State Vs. Shyam Sunder), arising out of Case Crime No. 351 of 2013, under Sections 376, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3/4 POCSO Act, Police Station Kalyanpur, District Kanpur Nagar, passed by Court of Special Judge (POCSO Act) / Additional Session Judge, Court No. 14, Kanpur Nagar.

2. Memo of appeal contends that trial court failed to appreciate facts and evidence placed on record. There was inordinate delay in lodging the F.I.R. and it was without any explanation. There was inconsistency in medical report and oral testimony, resulting improvement and exaggeration in prosecution case. Owing to dispute of tenancy, this false implication was made. Hence, this appeal with a prayer for setting aside impugned judgment of conviction and sentence made therein.

3. At the very outset, it is mentioned by Sri P.K. Singh, learned counsel for appellant that he is not challenging the judgment of conviction, wherein convict-appellant has been convicted for offence punishable under Sections 376, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3/4 of POCSO Act. Rather, quantum of punishment has been challenged because trial court has convicted and sentenced the convict-appellant with ten years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.10,000/- and in case of default six months' additional rigorous imprisonment under Section 376 I.P.C. with further sentence for one year's simple imprisonment under Section 506 I.P.C. with additional imprisonment of seven years' imprisonment with fine of Rs.15,000/- and in case of default six months' additional rigorous imprisonment under Section 3/4 of POCSO Act. There had been a direction for concurrent running of sentences and adjustment of previous imprisonment in this very case, towards above sentence awarded. Whereas, as per Section 42 of the Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (Act No. 32 of 2012) "Alternate Punishment-Where an act or omission constitutes an offence punishable under this Act and also under Sections 166A, 354A, 354B, 354C, 354D, 370, 370A, 375, 376, 376A, 376C, 376D, 376E or Section 509 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), then, notwithstanding anything contained in any law for the time being in force, the offender found guilty of such offence shall be liable to punishment under this Act or under the Indian Penal Code as provides for punishment which is greater in degree." i.e. punishment may not be made in both the provisions of Indian Penal Code as well as of POCSO Act. Rather, the punishment, which is higher in degree, for one and same offence, as provided under POCSO Act as well as I.P.C. is to be chosen and that is to be awarded. The awarded sentence by trial court under Section 376 I.P.C. was ten years' rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.10,000/- and in default, six months' additional rigorous imprisonment. Again for same offence of penetrative sexual assault i.e. rape, defined under Section 375 I.P.C. as well as Section 3 of POCSO Act, punishable under Section 376 I.P.C. and Section 4 of POCSO Act, trial court has awarded sentence of seven years imprisonment with fine of Rs.15,000/- and in default six months' additional imprisonment. Hence, it was apparently erroneous.

4. For determination of this point regarding higher degree of sentence, Section 376 I.P.C. provides whoever except in the cases provided for in sub-section (2), commits rape, shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than seven years, but which may extend to imprisonment for life or for a term which may extend to ten years and shall also be liable to fine, unless the woman raped is his own wife and is not under 12 years of age, in which case he shall be punished with either description for a term which may extend to two years or fine or with both. Meaning thereby, punishment under this section is of two categories. First is not less than seven years, which may extend to life. The second one is for a term, which may extend to ten years and shall also be liable to fine. The trial Judge in present case has invoked jurisdiction for this second part because fine has been imposed along with ten years rigorous imprisonment, which is not provided in first part. Whereas under POCSO Act under Section 4 the punishment for penetrative sexual assault is "whoever commits penetrative sexual assault shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than seven years, but which may extend to imprisonment for life, and shall also be liable to fine i.e. imprisonment not less than seven years extending up to life imprisonment, along with fine has been provided in this Section 4. Hence, it is a graver punishment in degree. Because under Section 376 I.P.C., the punishment of life imprisonment was with no fine and a punishment which was with fine was up to ten years only. Whereas under Section 4 of POCSO Act punishment provided is up to life imprisonment, but not less than seven years coupled with fine. Hence, it is a graver punishment. Hence, as per Section 42 of POCSO Act, in case of conviction under Section 376 I.P.C as well as for penetrative sexual assault, punishable under Section 4 of POCSO Act, the sentencing is to be made under Section 4 of the POCSO Act. Because it is of graver degree sentence. The trial Judge, in impugned judgment, has awarded ten years' rigorous imprisonment with fine for offence punishable under Section 376 I.P.C. and he has further sentenced rigorous imprisonment of seven years with fine and in default additional imprisonment, under Section 4 of POCSO Act. Hence, prayer for setting aside sentence provided under Section 376 I.P.C. has been made.

5. Sri K.K. Rajbhar, learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed this contention by mentioning that sentence awarded in

I.P.C. was in view of the provisions given under the Code, whereas under Section 4 of POCSO Act, it was within provision of the above Act. The Court had taken care for a direction for concurrent running of sentences and it cannot be said that twice sentencing is there. Hence, this appeal, against quantum of punishment, be dismissed.

6. From the very perusal of legal provision of Section 376 I.P.C., which provides for punishment of rape and Section 4 of POCSO Act, which provides punishment for penetrative sexual assault, it is apparently clear that sentence to be provided under Section 4 of POCSO Act is greater in degree then of I.P.C.. Because under POCSO Act the minimum sentence is seven years, which may extend to life imprisonment and it is to be coupled with fine. Whereas under Section 376 I.P.C. minimum sentence as the Code was in effect on that date is seven years imprisonment, which may extend up to life imprisonment, but there is not provision for fine and if fine is to be imposed then it is for second category where the maximum sentence is up to 10 years coupled with fine. Hence, the learned trial Judge was to sentence under Section 4 of POCSO Act because of Section 42 of POCSO Act and under Section 4 of POCSO Act, sentence awarded is of seven years' imprisonment with fine and in default additional imprisonment of six months, which was in accordance with the provision of Section 4. The punishment awarded for offence punishable under Section 376 I.P.C. i.e. ten years' rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.10,000/- was not to be awarded as per Section 42 of POCSO Act. Hence, this part of quantum of sentence is to be set aside. There is no State appeal for enhancement of punishment awarded under Section 4 of POCSO Act.

7. The factual aspect of this case is that prosecutrix was held to be of 15 years in medical age determination, though she was said to be of 11 years in F.I.R. (Ext.Ka-1) and other statement recorded. But from the perusal of first information report, it is apparent that this report was got lodged for above offence of rape after repeated rape being said to be made by convict-appellant. In between, neither prosecutrix disclosed the occurrence nor ever protest was raised. The last occurrence of rape was said to be of Chaitra Navratra of year 2013 i.e. a delayed report. The convict-appellant is of no criminal antecedent. There is likelihood of him being brought in the main stream of society after repent and reformation. Hence, sentence of seven years with fine of Rs.15,000/- and in default six months' additional imprisonment under Section 4 of POCSO Act was adequate and proper sentence.

8. Under above facts and circumstances, imposed sentence under Section 376 I.P.C. was not permissible as per section 42 of POCSO Act. Hence, appeal is liable to be partly allowed regarding quantum of sentence for imprisonment, awarded under Section 376 I.P.C.. But for rest of sentence awarded under Section 506 I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act, the same is to be dismissed. Accordingly, it is being partly allowed. The sentence awarded by trial judge is being substituted as below.

Order

Convict-appellant Shyam Sunder is being sentenced for offence punishable under Section 506 I.P.C. with one year simple imprisonment. He is further sentenced with seven years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.15,000/- and in default six months' additional imprisonment for offence punishable under Section 3/4 of POCSO Act. Both the sentences shall run concurrently and adjustment of previous imprisonment in this case crime number shall be made against above awarded sentence.

9. Copy of the judgment along with lower Court record be transmitted to trial Court for amendment of warrant of conviction and sentence as per above conviction and sentence and for follow up action.

A. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act,1872 - Medical evidence (postmortem report) fully corroborates the prosecution version as well as testimony of prosecution witnesses - ocular evidence has been fully supported by medical evidence - The presence of witnesses is proved to be natural and their statements are nothing but disclosure of actual facts relating to the occurrence - There is nothing on record to show that PW-2 had any animous against the accused appellants - The testimony of prosecution witnesses of fact are cogent credible and trustworthy - both the witnesses of fact have proved the prosecution version and their testimonies is fully supported by medical evidence therefore motive loses its significance - there are some minor contradictions in the depositions of the prosecution witnesses of facts that too in regard to the subsequent events and not to the actual incident - minor contradictions, inconsistencies or insignificant embellishments do not affect the core of the prosecution case and should not be taken to be a ground to reject the prosecution evidence. The omission should create a serious doubt about the truthfulness or creditworthiness of a witness. It is only the serious contradictions and omissions which materially affect prosecution case but not every contradiction or omission - findings of conviction for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. recorded by the trial court are well substantiated by the evidence on record - the conviction recorded against the accused appellants under Section 302 I.P.C. is hereby maintained and affirmed. (Para 6 ,58,59,64,69,71)

B. Indian Evidence Act,1872 - Section 25, Section 26 , Section 27 - Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act is in the nature of an exception to the general rules contained in the two preceding sections i.e. under section 25 and 26 - Being an exception to the general rule it has to be strictly construed - The section does not permit the admission in evidence of the whole of the confession, but of such portion only of it as can be said to relate distinctly to the fact discovered - The accused appellants were arrested by the police personnel and two pistols and cartridges were recovered from their possession - In view of this the portion of the alleged joint statement by the accused appellants wherein they admitted that they had committed the murder with the pistols recovered from their possession, this fact would be admissible in evidence. 1. This appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 23.04.2009 passed by Additional Sessions Judge Court No. 9, Muzaffarnagar in Sessions Trial No. 405 of 2005 (State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Hasam and another) arising out of Case Crime No. 06 of 2005 under Section 302 Indian Penal Code (here-in-after referred to as "I.P.C."), Police Station- Chhapar, District- Muzaffarnagar whereby both the appellants Hasam and Nazam have been convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for life with a fine of Rs. 10,000/- under Section 302 I.P.C. with default stipulation.

In his presence, F.I.R. of the Case Crime No. 06/2005 under Section 302 I.P.C. was registered on the basis of the written report of the complainant Mohabbat Ali, brother of deceased. Investigation of the case was taken up by PW-4 Virendra Singh. He directed to Sub-Inspector Prem Prakash Giri PW-5 to conduct and prepare the inquest report in dragon light and petromax. He has recorded statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of the complainant Mohabbat Ali and eye witness Haneef. On 17.01.2005, he has recorded statement of the witnesses of the inquest and eye witness Aladeen. He inspected the spot on the pointing of complainant and prepared site plan which is exhibit as Ka-3. On 22.01.2005 at 8:40 a.m. he arrested both the accused Hasam and Nazam near the Kabristan on Basera Madak Road. He recovered one Tamancha 315 bore and one live cartridge from the possession of accused Hasam and one Tamancha 12 bore, two live cartridges from the possession of Nazam. Against Hasam and Nazam cases were registered under the Arms Act as Case Crime No. 16 of 2005 & Case Crime No. 17 of 2005 under section 25/27 Arms Act respectively. He sent the recovered firearms to Forensic Science Laboratory, Agra for examination. He recorded the statement of Sub-Inspector Prem Prakash Giri, Constable Harpal Singh and Udaiveer Singh. After investigation he has submitted charge-sheet against both the appellants Hasam and Nazam in aforesaid crime no. ;6 of 2005 under aforesaid section 302 I.P.C. Charge-sheet is marked as exhibit Ka- 5.

6. In the process, case of both the accused was committed to court of sessions where the Case Crime No. 6 of 2005 under section 302 IPC was numbered as Sessions Trial No. 405 of 2005. It will be proper to mention here that separate sessions trial under Section 25 Arms Act were registered as Sessions Trial No. 672 of 2005 and Sessions Trial No. 673 of 2005 against each of the accused person for the recovery of firearms from them. The trial was entrusted to the court of Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 9 Muzaffarnagar. The trial of cases under Section 25/27 Arms Act were also proceeded and decided with the trial of this case resulting into acquittal of the accused appellants from the charfges of section 25 Arms Act.

7. The trial court after hearing the prosecution as well as defence and perusing the material available on record framed the charges against the accused-appellants under section 302 IPC. The charges framed against them were read over and explained to them. The accused appellants abjured the guilt and claimed to be tried. Thus prosecution was directed to produce all its testimonies by which it proposes to prove guilt of the accused person. The prosecution has examined as many as seven witnesses, the brief sketch of these witnesses is as here-under:-

8. The prosecution had examined informant Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1), Aladeen (P.W.2) as eye witness, Dr. Rajesh Singh (P.W.3), S.H.O.Virendra Singh (P.W.4), Sub-inspector Prem Prakash Giri (P.W.5) , constable Virendra Kumar P.W 6 , Sub-inspector and Harpal Singh (P.W.7) as formal witnesses.

9. After conclusion of the prosecution evidence, the accused appellants namely Hasam and Nazam were examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C.In their statement they denied all the charges attributed against them and pleaded for innocence. They stated that they have been falsely implicated in the present case due to animosity. They demanded opportunity to produce evidence in defence. They produced Rishipal Singh Radio Station Officer as D.W.1.

10. The prosecution in order to corroborate its stand examined Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1) on 1.2.2006. who is the brother of deceased and the complainant eye witnesses of the incident . He deposed that he is well acquainted with the accused appellants Hasam and Nazam. The accused appellants are belonging to his village and are his neighbours. He is also knowing to deceased Ajaz who was his real younger brother. The occurrence had taken place on 16.1.2005 at about 4 to 4.30 p.m. He in association with Haneef, Aladeen (PW-2) and his brother Ajaz (now deceased) were peeling sugarcane in the field. At that place, the accused persons namely Hasam and Nazam came at around 4 to 4-30 p.m. and on reaching at that place they exposed that Ajaz was doing the pairvi of cases in the civil court hence today they shall not spare him. Both the accused persons namely Hasam and Nazam were equipped with country made pistol. They fired at Ajaz, the brother of the complainant. The first fire hit at the right side chest and the second fire hit on his left eye as a result of which he succumbed to injuries on the spot.

Thereafter accused persons fled from the spot unleashing reign of terror by extending threats and hurling abusive and vituperative words. P.W.1 Mohabbat Ali immediately rushed at the police chawki. It was informed by the personnel posted at the police chowki to get the first information report registered at the police station. The first informant got the report written sitting at the house by his nephew Hakim Ali. The report was written verbatum by Hakim Ali at the dictate of the complainant. The report was heard by him on the recital of Hakim Ali. Thereafter the written report was handed over at the police station concerned. P.W.1 Mohabbat Ali had identified the writing and signature of Hakim Ali. He had seen him reading and writing. The paper no.5 was read to P.W.1 Mohabbat Ali. He proved that it was the same report which was got written by Hakim Ali and was handed over at the police station concerned. The said written report was marked as Ext.Ka.1.

11. P.W.1 Mohabbat Ali divulged that his house and the house of accused persons are situated in the same vicinity. Prior to 5 to 6 months of the incident, there was rift between the complainant and the accused persons on the issue of exit of water. The said issue was pacified on the intervention of some dignified persons of the locality. He had acquiesced proposal put forth by the persons of the locality and was satisfied but the accused persons were nurturing animus and grudge against him. On account of former animosity, the accused persons namely Hasam and Nazam had done to death his brother Ajaz by firing upon him.

12. In cross examination he unravelled that Hakim Ali is practicing in civil court at Muzaffrar Nagar who is standing behind him. The sun had set on after one hour of the incident. The police personnel had come at the spot after enshrouding of sun. He could not ascertain as to whether the police personnel who came on the spot were hailing to Basere or Chhapar. When the P.W.1 Mohabbat Ali reached at the police station concerned, the Station Officer were present there. He informed to the Station Officer concerned that such an occurrence had taken place in which his brother was done to death with firing. He stayed at the police station concerned about 15-20 minutes. His nephew Hakim Ali was also associated with him. P.W.1 Mohabbat Ali proceeded from the police station firstly and the police personnel departed from the police station concerned later on. He reached at the place of occurrence with police personnel. When the complainant and other persons reached at the place of occurrence, the sky was darkened but it was not night. The person standing at a distance of 20 yards was visible. No higher officer of the police had reached at the place of occurrence in his presence. At the place of occurrence there were three police officer and the rest were police personnel. He could not ascertain who was the Station Officer, who was the Circle Officer and who was the Senior Superintendent of Police. It is wrong to say that he was not present on the spot and had not seen the incident. He has also stated position of Ajaz (deceased) and the witnesses on spot at the time of incident. He could not divulge the duration of stay of police personnel whether they stayed two hours, or four hours or six hours. He proved his presence at the place of occurrence.

He had examined the corpse of Ajaz s/o Gafoor brought by constable C.P.1255 Harpal Singh and Constable CP 906 Udaiveer Singh , Police Station Chhapar District Muzaffar Nagar. He had found the seal intact affixed on the dead body of Ajaz. The post-mortem of deceased Ajaz was done by him on 17.1.2005 at about 2.40 p.m. The age of the deceased Ajaz was approximately 40 years. He was a man of average built. Both chambers were empty weighing to 250 grams ascending aorta ruptured. Thorax cavity containing 2500 ml blood clotted below chest. The injuries found on the person of deceased Ajaz have already been discussed in the preceding paragraph.

30. The papers were brought by the constable with dead body of Ajaz. The injuries found on the person of the deceased was about one day old. The death of Ajaz had occurred on account of fire arm injuries. The death of Ajaz was opined to have been caused at 4.30 p.m. on 16.1.2005. 32. The corpse takes two to three hours in starting rigor mortis in the month of January. The rigor mortis disseminates in the entire body withiin twelve hours. Ascending aorta denotes the blood oozing from the ventricles. There was no blackening in injury no.3. Injury no.3 was caused from more than 6 feet below to 5 cm from scapula. Injury no.3 has clearly been shown in the post mortem report. The approximate time shown in the post mortem report is probably correct. There will not be variation of two to four or six hours. The assessment of death is made on the basis of rigor mortis present on the body. Rigor mortis can disseminate within 12 hours and can exist next 22 hours. The stomach of the deceased Ajaz was empty. According to the post mortem examination, injury was caused on the vital part of the body with fire arm. It is correct to say that the word "shock haemmorhage ' has not been used but the inference can be drawn that the injuries were caused on the vital part with the shooting of fire arms. There is no mention of tearing of clothes in the post mortem report. Whatever papers were brought during the course of post mortem were thoroughly examined and then a conclusion is drawn. He does not express distinct opinion on account of being any variation in the police report. He notes down the elements found during the course of post mortem. 33. The prosecution has examined Station Officer Virendra Singh posted at Purkaji District Muzaffar Nagar on 17.10.2006. He stated on oath that he was posted on 16.1.2005 at police Station Chhapar in the cap;acity of Station Officer. On that very date in his presence, Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1) got a report registered against Hasam and Nazar vide Case Crime No. 6 of 2005 under section 302 IPC. He proceeded from the police station concerned having requisite papers i.e. chick FIR, inquest in association with Prem Prakash Giri (Sub-inspector) and Constable Ishwar Chand (HCP), Anek Singh HCP on police geep driver Rajpal. On the place of occurrence HCP Asarpal, Constable Udaiveer Singh, Constable Satyapal , Constable Harpal of Chawki Basera were present at the place of incident. On reaching at the spot, S.I. Sri Giri was instructed to make arrangement of dragon light or petromax for carrying out the Panchayatnama of deceased Ajaz.

The statement of Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1) was recorded on the spot. The statement of eye witness Haneef was recorded on the place of occurrence. Sri Prem Prakash Giri (S.I.) collected the plain and blood stained soil from the place of occurrence in two distinct containers of which fard was prepared and was noted in the case diary. Thereafter the police team raided at the house of the assailants but they were not arrested. He (P.W.4 Station Officer) and police personnel stayed at the police chawki Basera in the night.

34. Next day, on 17.1.2005 the Panchayatnama was copied. The statement of the witnesses of Panchayatnam was recorded. The statement of ocular witness Aladeen was also recorded. He made spot inspection in association with complainant Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1) and prepared the site plan which was duly marked as paper no.2 and the same was proved by him. This document was marked as Ext.Ka.3. On 22.1.2005, the police personnel raided at the house of assailants but they could not be arrested. Both the accused persons namely Hasam and Nazam were arrested by him and HCP Asarpal at about 8.40 a.m. on the Madak road near the burial ground on the tip off of spy of police .The police team recovered 315 bore pistol with a cartridge and 12 bore pistol with two cartridges. No public witness has come forward prior to arrest of the accused persons. The police team had searched to others but no incriminating articles were recovered from their possession. Both the pistols were fit for firing. Both the accused could not show licence for keeping the pistol and cartidges. Both the pistols and cartidges were sealed in different bundles giving clear nomenclature. The fard was duly prepared and the signature of the witnesses was obtained. The copy of the Fard was given to the accused persons and their thumb impression and signatures were obtained. The fard was duly proved by the P.W.4 Virendra Singh which was exhibited Ka.4. A bundle duly sealed was uncovered before the court from which 315 bore pistol and a live cartridge was taken out. On seeing that pistol and cartridge, the witness told that the said pistol and cartridge were recovered from Hasam. The pistol, cartridge and clothes were marked as Ext. 1,2 & 3. The next bundle was opened before the court from which a 12 bore pistol with two cartidges were taken out. On seeing to that, the witness (P.W.4) told that the said pistol and cartridges were recovered from accused Nazam. The pistol was maked as Ext.Ka.4 and the live cartidges were marked as Ext. 5 & 6. The bundle of these articles was marked as Ext.Ka.7. The statement of the accused Hasam and Nazam was recorded on the spot. The accused were brought at the police station and the case was registered.The case crime No.16 of 2005 under section 25 Arms Act Act registered against Hasam and the case no. 17 of 2005 under section 25 Arms Act was registered against Nazam. On 29.1.2005 the post mortem report of deceased Ajaz was received which was duly noted in the case diary. The recovered articles were sent to Forensic Laboratory Agra on 2.2.2005 through constable 790 Sumer Singh. On 3.2.2005 the statement of S.I. Prem Prakash Giri, Constable Harpal Singh and Constable Udaiveer Singh was recorded. On 5.2.2005 after collecting clinching and credible evidence, charge sheet no. 7 of 2005 was submitted against Hasam and Nazam which was duly signed and prepared by him. The said charge sheet was marked as Ext.Ka.5. On 6.2.2005, the statement of scribe of the FIR constable/clerk 1035 Virendra Pawar was recorded. On 24.9.2005, the report received from the Forensic Laboratory was sent to the court concerned.

35. The prosecution witness no.4 Virendra Singh Station Officer was cross-examined by the accused counsel. During cross examination, he deposed that the investigating officer uses one case diary in a case. It was divulged by him that from 16.1.2005 to 22.1.2005 he had conducted the investigation of this case. He had other investigations also. In the parcha of 22nd January, the Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned had examined from 22nd January 2005. It is correct that the parcha of 17th February 2005, the Chief Judicial Magistrate had examined and dated as 4th February 2005.The parcha of 22nd January had ended in zig zag manner. There is no mention of starting and ending of investigation in any parcha. He had not unfolded the name of the eye witnesses in the return G.D.to whom he had examined during investigation. He had not made any copy in the case diary with regard to weapon recovered from the accused persons. It is wrong to say that he had prepared the entire case diary anti-dated and anti-time. P.W.4 Viredra Singh was messed up with regard to information given to him with regard to this murder. The case was registered in his presence. No information was conveyed from police station Chhapar through wireless set that Ajaz (deceased) was loading trunks of sugar cane and the assailants had done to his death. It is wrong to say that the information with regard to the murder of Ajaz (deceased) was received in police station Chhapar prior to 5.15 p.m. He had rested at the police chawki in the night after arriving at the spot. He could not recollect as to whether any police officer had reached at the spot or not. In case during investigation, the circle officer concerned come and gives some directions, it is not necessary to incorporate the same in the case diary as there is no such rule. He (P.W.4 Virendra Singh) had reached at the spot at about 6.30 p.m. and got prepared the Panchayatnama in about two hours. He admitted that on the Panchayatnama and other related documents, he had not put his signature. He proved his presence at the moment of preparation of Panchayatnama but could not show as to why he had not put his signature. The light of dragon light was very intensive and radical. In the said light, the work of preparation of Panchayatnama and other things could be done easily. He could not ascertain as to whether Prem Prakash S.I. had taken blood saturated soil and plain soil prior to preparation of Panchayatnama but he admitted that he had not put his signature. The corpse of Ajaz (deceased) was sent after 8.30 p.m. but he could not divulge exact time. The receiving of papers of the dead body are to be submitted in the police line. The dead body was sent with Tempo. The papers relating to the dead body of Ajaz were entered in the police line on 17.1.2005 at 8.00 a.m.

36. The spot inspection was made by him before afternoon on 17.1.2005 but he could not unravel exact time. In exhibit Ka.3 at no point it has been displayed that the blood was lying on the particular place. The place of occurrence was encircled with sugar cane crops from three side. The place of occurrence Basera-Barwa is existing at half furlong from the main road. He could not ascertain the correct direction. It is wrong to say that he did not have knowledge of correct direction because the site plan was prepared at the police station. It is correct that in Ext.Ka.3 he had mentioned about the directions. He could also not recollect as to whether there is other ways to arrive at the place of occurrence. He (P.W.4 Virendra Singh) had seen peeled sugar cane and trunk of sugar cane at the spot but he had not noted in the case diary as to whether these articles were soaked with blood. There is no mention in the case diary with regard to Daranti or Palkati. This fact has also not been incorporated in the site plan. There is no mention of blood lying on it. It is wrong to say that S.I. Giri was sent at Muzaffar Nagar mortuary for filling up the Panchayatnama. At the place of occurrence no eye was found lying. The witness Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1) did not inform him that he was holding trunks at the time of occurrence rather he had divulged the fact of putting fodder near the cart. It was not unfolded by P.W.1 Mohabbat Ali that he had earlier gone at the police chawki and the police personnel present at the Chawki directed him to go at the police station concerned to get the first information report lodged.

37. Aladeen (P.W.2) had stated that at the time of incident, he was peeling sugar cane. The witness Aladeen had unfolded the name of Hasam who had told that Ajaz was doing pairvi in the civil court. He had not collected any paper with regard to case pending in the civil court during investigation. Aladeen (P.W.2) had not specifically told when two shots were fired and they did not chase the assailants on account of unleashing the reign of terror rather he told that both the assailants had fired single shot each.

38. The miscreants were arrested on 22.1.2005 on the tip of prior information. He had written in the Fard that the pistol recovered from Hasam was in functioning condition. The same fact was incorporated for the second accused that the pistol recovered from him was functional. Both the pistols were not sent by him for ballistic examination because the cartridges were neither recovered at the spot nor subsequently. Both the pistols were sealed on which his signature was made in the capacity of witness. He proved that the incriminating articles including pistols were recovered from the assailants. The charge sheet was submitted against the accused after collecting credible and clinching materials showing their complicity.

39. The prosecution has examined S.I.Prem Prakash Giri on 27.2.2007 as P.W.5. He was at that time posted at Special Investigation Department District Ghaziabad. He stated on oath that on 16.1.2005, he was posted as S.I.at police station Chhapar. On that day, the Case Crime No. 6 of 2005 under section 302 was registered against Hasam and others. He in association with Station Officer Virendra Singh as well as police personnel and the then Station Officer with requisite papers reached at the place of occurrence Gram Basera. On the direction of the then Station Officer, he prepared the Panchayatnama vide Ext.Ka.6 and other requisite papers in relation to deceased Ajaz s/o Gafoor on which he had put his signature. He prepared the photo Nash, letter to R.I., letter to C.M.O. He prepared the Fard of blood stained and plain soil , Challan lash these were marked as Ext. Ka.7,Ka.8, Ka.9 Ka.10 and Ka.11. After carrying out the Panchayatnama and other necessary papers, the corpse of Ajaz was sealed and was sent for post mortem under the vigil of constable Harpal Singh and constable Udaiveer Singh.

40. During cross examination, it was divulged by him that Panchayatnama (Ext.Ka.6) was prepared at the direction of the then Station Officer Virendra Singh but Virendra Singh Station Officer had not put his signature on the Panchayatnama. Panchayatnama was not prepared on the dictate of the the Station Officer.The then Station Officer had directed him to fill up the Panchayatnama. He could not recollect as to whether complainant was present or not.The panchayatnama was being prepared in the dragon light and petromax light. He could not ascertain what papers were being prepared by the then Station Officer. The panchayatnama was prepared from 6.30 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. The witnesses of the Panchayatnama had not partcipated in any activity from 6.30 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. He had seen the injury sustained on the right side under arm and the left eye. The dead body of the deceased Ajaz was saturated with blood. He had not shown any injury on the back side of deceased (Ajaz) in the challan lash. The corpse of Ajaz was lying in the north side of the village concerned at a distance of one kilometre. There was no road near the place of occurrence. He could not divulge how long he stayed at the place of occurrence. He could not recollect how long he stayed at the place of occurrence after 8.30 p.m.In his presence, Circle Officer concerned came but he could not recollect how long the circle officer remained there. He did not have knowledge from whom the circle officer concerned enquired . The corpse of deceased (Ajaz) was lying in the mid of the field. The sugar cane was lying scattered on the spot. After the incident, he had gone only once to fill up the Panchayatnama at the place of occurrence. He had departed from the police station concerned in association with Station Officer concerned at about 5.15 p.m. for visting the spot. The complainant of the case was going with them. He could not recollect as to whether on 17.1.2005 he was present at the police station concerned in the morning or not. He did not visit to Muzaffar Nagar mortuary on 17.1.2005. He denied that the Panchayatnama of the deceased (Ajaz) was completed in the mortuary at Muzaffar Nagar and the time which has been narrated by him for proceeding to the place of occurrence, at that moment the name of any miscreant did not surface. He could not remind at what time in the night he had collected blood stained and plain soil.He denied that the Fard was prepared at the police station concerned.

41. The prosecution has examined C.C.No. 1035 Virendra Kumar on 27.2.2007 who was posted at Police Station Purkaji District Muzaffar Nagar. He stated on oath that on 16.1.2005, he was posted as Constable Clerk at police station Chapar. He had registered the Case Crime No. 6 of 2005 under section 302 IPC on the written information of Mohabbat Ali (P,.W.1). He had prepared the Chick FIR , paper No.4 of this case which has been written and signed by him and was marked as Ext.Ka.12.This case was entered in G.D.No. 24 at 17.15 hours on 16.1.2005. The carbon copy of the G.D.paper no.1/6 which has been prepared by him in the shape of original was duly written and proved.The original G.D.was before him. The corbon copy was marked as Ext. Ka. 13.On 22.1.2005, the then Station Officer Virendra Singh had arrested both the accused namely Hasam and Nazam s/o Malkhoo at about 11.30 a.m. with 12 bore country made pistol and cartridges and 315 bore pistol and cartridges. The accused persons were brought at the police station concerned and the Case Crime No. 16 of 2005 and 17 of 2005 under sections 25/27 Arms Act were registered against Hasam and Nazam. The fard of recovery of fire arms with cartridges was duly prepared and annexed with the Chick FIR as Ext.Ka.14. The particulars of this case was duly entered in G.D.No. 16 at about 11.30 a.m. on 22.1.2005. The carbon copy of the G.D.written and signed by him was duly proved and was marked as Ext.Ka.15.

42. During cross examination, it was averred by the P.W.6 Virendra Kumar that prior to registration of this case, Station Officer Virendra Singh had departed with police Geep in investigation of Rapat No.19 at 12.45 p.m. His return is mentioned in Rapat No.22 at 17 hours. No case was registered at police station on 16.1.2005 prior to the instant case. He had not given information of this case to Control Room Muzaffar Nagar. The information of this incident was given by the then Station Officer because the case was registered at the police Station in his presence. There is no mention in the G.D. for sending the special report on 16.1.2005 till 12.00 (Night). There is no mention in the G.D. As it is not required for the arrival of the High Officers of the Police. It had taken about 15 to 20 minutes in preparing the chick and GD of this case at the police station concerned. At that moment, the Station Officer Virendra Singh was writing the case diary. He proved that the case was registered on the same day. He denied that the chick or GD with regard to case registered under section 25 Arms Act was prepared at the inkling and connivance of the station officer concerned.

43. The prosecution has examined S.I. Harpal Singh as P.W.7 on 27.2.2007 who was posted at Police Station Kotwali District Bulandshahar. He stated on oath that he was posted as S.I. at Police Station Chhapar on 22.1.2005. The Case Crime No. 16 of 2005 and 17 of 2005 under section 25 Arms Act were registered on the same day. Thereafter, its investigation was entrusted to him. He recorded the statement of the accused Hasam and Nazam who were in the lock up. He entered the fard of recovery and the arrest of the accused in the C.D. He has recorded the statement of Constable Virendra kumar, scribe of FIR. On 30.1.2005, he recorded the statement of complainant Virendra Singh, witnesses Pramod Kumar, Parvesh Kumar HCP Asarpal Singh and also made spot inspection. He prepared the site plan on the spot . During cross examination he proved the same to have been written & signed by him. The site plan was duly marked as Ext.Ka.16. He collected credible and clinching evidence against the accused appellants thus they were charge sheeted under section 25/27 Arms Act. The charge sheet was duly marked as Ext.Ka.17 & 18 site plan of Hasam case Ext.as Ka.19 and was submitted before the court concerned for cognizance. He proved the charge sheet which was written and signed by him. The same was sent to the District Magistrate for concurrence. He sanctioned the same on 11.3.2005. The signature of the then District Magistrate was duly identified by him. This was exhibited as Ka.20. The sanction in respect of Hasam was obtained on 11.3.2005 which is paper no.8. He proved the signature of the then District Magistrate Raj Kumar on the same which was also signed by him (P.W.7) vide Ext.Ka.21. In his cross examination he deposed that the charge sheet against Hasam and Nazam was sent to the concerned court on 30.1.2005. It is wrong to say that the entire recovery and other course of action of this case viz. Statement and site plan etc. was done in clandestine and bogus manner inside the police station concerned.

44. In support of defence Rishipal Singh, Radio Station Officer City Control Room, Muzaffarnagar was examined as D.W.1 on 13.8.2007. He stated on oath that on 16.1.2005 he was posted as Radio Station Officer City Control Room Muazaffar Nagar. He has proved photo copy of the log book dated 16.01.2005 of city control room, Muzaffarnagar in which the entry was made by the then operator on duty at 17:05 p.m. that deceased Ajaz was shot dead in his field by assailants.

45. After hearing counsel for the parties and considering the merit of the case, learned court below has recorded conviction of both the accused and passed the sentence

46. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid judgment and order of the trial court dated 23.4.2009, this appeal has been preferred by the accused-appellants.

47. We have heard Shri Nazrul Islam Jafri Senior Advocate assisted by Shri S.I. Jafri, learned counsel for appellants and Shri Vikas Sahai, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing on behalf of State and perused the entire material on record.

48. It is submitted by Sri Shri N.I. Jafri learned senior counsel appearing on behalf of the appellants that the presence of alleged eye witnesses PW-1 Mohabbat Ali and PW-2 Aladeen on spot at the time of incident is highly doubtful. The occurrence was not witnessed by anyone. PW-1 Mohabbat Ali being the brother of the deceased is highly entrusted witness. There was no field or house of PW-2 Aladeen near the spot therefore he had no occasion to be present on the spot at the time of incident. Name of one witness Haneef was also mentioned in F.I.R. as eye witness but he has not been examined.There are major contradictions and inconsistencies in the statements of both the witnesses of fact on material points. Their testimonies inspire no confidence. There was no strong motive for committing the murder of Ajaz. Motive assigned to the accused appellants has not been proved. F.I.R. is ante-timed. According to the prosecution case, the incident has taken place at about 4.30 p.m. and the first information report has been registered at 17.15 hours covering a distance of 16 kilometres which creates serious doubt about the verity and genuineness of the first information report lodged within 45 minutes. The first information report was not in existence at the time of conducting the inquest of the deceased. The investigatingt officer had not found any cart or darati from the spot. The prosecution has to stand on its own legs.

49. Learned counsel for the appellants further submitted the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the accused appellants but the learned Sessions Judge has erroneously convicted and sentenced the accused appellants relying upon untrustworthy and uncorroborated testimonies of the prosecution witnesses. The judgment and order passed by the learned trial judge is not tenable in the eyes of law hence deserves to be set aside and the appeal may be allowed.

50. Per contra Shri Vikas Sahai, learned A.G.A. appearing on behalf of State contended that the prosecution version is consistently proved and established by testimonies of prosecution witnesses on fact as well as other formal prosecution witnesses and is fully supported by medical evidence. The presence of witnesses is proved to be natural and statements are nothing but truthful disclosure of actual facts, leading to the occurrence. It will not be permissible for the court to discard the statement of such witnesses on account of minor contradictions on some points because witnesses are rustic villagers. In criminal cases prosecutioin is not bound to prove motive. It is well settled principle of law that when incident has been proved by the ocular evidence, there is no need to prove motive. F.I.R. is not ante time but it has been promptly registered. It has been further contended that wholesome study of the evidence on record establishes guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. Learned Trial Judge took into consideration every aspect of the case and rightly convicted the appellants for charges under Section 302 I.P.C. The direct evidence of Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1) and Aladeen (P.W.2) suppored by medical evidence pointing guilt against the accused appellants are consistent with the prosecution version ,hence the plea of the accused appellants with regard to presence of mens rea fully stands proved. Even if there is absence of motive, it would not benefit the accused when there is reliable and acceptable version of the eye witnesses supported by medical evidence pointing against them. The prosecution is not bound to prove the motive of any offence in a criminal case, in as much as motive is known only to the perpetrator of the crime and may not be known to others if the motive is proved by the prosecution, the court has to consider it and see whether it is adequate.The testimony of the prosecution witnesses are cogent, credible and trustworthy and have a ring of truth hence it cannot be stifled or overshadowed on account of minor variation which only indicates that they are not tutored.

51. Now we have to scrutinize and evaluate the ocular version of the prosecution witnesses on fact because it has been contended on behalf of appellants that the prosecution witnesses were not present on the spot and they have not witnessed the incident as claimed by them and their testimonies are contradictory and under circumstances does not inspire confidence.Prosecution has examined PW-1 Mohabbat Ali, PW-2 Aladeen as witnesses of fact. We now take into consideration the relevant portion of the testimony of the aforesaid witnesses to decide reliablity of their testimony. PW-1 Mohabbat Ali brother of deceased is the complainant of the incident. He has stated that on 16.01.2005 he along with Haneef, Aladeen (PW-2) and his brother Ajaz (deceased) were doing the work of removal of peels of sugarcane in his field. At around 4 - 4:30 p.m. in the day, both the accused Hasam and Nazam who belong to his village came there with tamancha in their hands. They stated that Ajaz (deceased) was doing pairokar work against them in pending civil case, he would not be spared alive. Both of them fired on Ajaz with the firearm in their hand. The first fire hit on right back of the deceased and the second fire hit on left eye and he died on spot. He further stated that house of the accused person is nearby his house and there was dispute regarding drainage due to which they committed the murder of his brother Ajaz (deceased). In his cross examination he has deposed that at the time of incident he was present on the spot and has seen the incident. He has also stated position of Ajaz (deceased) and the witnesses on spot at the time of incident. He has also stated that he had shown each and every place to the Investigating Officer at the time of spot inspection by him. PW-2 Aladeen is an independent eye witness, he has explained his presence on the spot at the time of incident. He has deposed that he is resident of the same village. He has no field near the spot but on getting information regarding peeling work of the sugarcane, he had reached there for doing the work of removal of peels from the sugarcane and at the time of incident he was present there and had seen the incident from a distance of 20 paces. He has also stated that both the accused Hasam and Nazam appeared on spot about 4- 4:30 p.m. with tamancha in their hands. Both of them fired on Ajaz with firearm in their hand. Before firing, accused Nazam exhorted saying that Ajaz is the pairokar of the pending civil case, he would not be spared. He has supported the statements of PW-1 Mohabbat Ali and stated that fire of accused Nazam hit on right back side of the deceased and other fire opened by Hasam hit on left eye of the deceased. He has identified both the accused present in the court during the trial. He stated that Ajaz died on the spot. In his cross examination, he has deposed the fact that both the accused fired on Ajaz, he has fully supported the testimony of PW-1 Mohabbat Ali.

52. In detailed cross examination of PW-1 Mohabbat Ali and PW-2 Aladeen, there are some contradictions and ambiguity of time and place of inquest of the deadbody of the deceased. There are some contradictions on the point of time of incident and time of registration of F.I.R. but there is no contradiction or inconsistency on the point of manner, place, motive of incident and identification of the accused persons. There is complete consistency and coherence in examination-in-chief and cross examination of the statement of both the witnesses on above points of manner, place, motive of incident and identification of the accused. It is settled law that it is only the serious contradiction and omission which materially effects prosecution but not every contradiction or omission as held in Mritunjoy Biswas Vs. Pranab Alias Kuti Biswas and Another reported in (2013) 12 SCC 796 that minor contradictions, inconsistencies or insignificant embellishments that do not affect core of prosecution case should not be taken to be a ground to reject the prosecution evidence.

53. It is also relevant here that PW-1 Mohabbat Ali and PW-2 Aladeen, both are illiterate and rustic villagers. On the basis of some contradictions their testimonies cannot be discarded. Their evidence should be considered as a whole and from the point of view of trustworthiness.

54. In the case of State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Krishna Master and Anothers (2012) 12 Supreme Court Cases 324, it has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court that a rustic winess, who subjected to fatiguing, taxing and tiring cross-examnation for days together, is bound to get confused and make some inconsistent statements. Some discrepancies are bound to take place if a witness is cross-examined at length for days together. Therefore, the discrepancies noticed in the evidence of a rustic witness who is subjected to gruelling cross-examination should not be blown out of proportion. To do so is to ignore hard realities of village life and give undeserved benefit to the accused who have perpetrated heinous crime. In the present case cross of Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1) and Aladeen (P.W.2) continued for several months as such any embellishment or exaggeration in their testimonies cannot be discarded if the same is otherwise credible.

55. It has been contended by learned counsel for appellants that PW-2 Aladeen has deposed on last page of his cross examination that the complainant (PW-1) had met him on the next day of incident and told him that he had lodged F.I.R. against the accused-appellants Hasam and Nazam. On the basis of this fragment statement of PW-2, he contended that PW-2 Aladeen was not present on the spot at the time of incident but no conclusion can be drawn on the basis of fragment of the statement of witness but whole statement is to be seen. In his examination-in-chief and many places in cross examination PW-2 has clearly stated that he was present on the spot at the time of incident and has witnessed entire incident.

56. Learned counsel for appellants contended that PW-1 Mohabbat Ali being brother of the deceased Ajaz, is an interested and partisan witness. As regard statement of interested witness, there is no bar in law on examining family members as witness. In case of murder involving family members, it is family member who comes forward to lodge F.I.R. and discloses correct facts. If the statement of a witness is bound to be credible, reliable and trustworthy there would not be any reason for the court to reject such evidence merely on the ground that witness was a family member or interested witness or a person known to the effected party as laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Amit Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in (2012) 4 SCC 107 that an interested witness must have some direct interest in having accused somehow convicted for some extraneous reason and a near relative of victim is not necessarily an interested witness.

57. In Hukum Singh Vs. State of Rajastan, (2000) 7SCC 490, Hon'ble the Supreme Court has held that only premise for dubbing them as "interested witnesses" is that they were the kith and kin of the deceased. Why should such witnesses be termed as interested witnesses? If they had seen the occurrence they would certainly have the interest to bring the offence of the murder of their breadwinner to book. Normally the kith and kin of the deceased, if they had seen the occurrence would not absolve the real offenders and involve innocent persons in that murder.

58. Learned counsel for appellants submitted that in F.I.R. presence of eye witness Haneef has also been mentioned but this witness was not examined for reason best known to the prosecution. As regards non examination of the witness Haneef who is named in F.I.R., it is not requirement of law to examine each and every witness to prove the prosecution case. It is quality and not quantity which determines the adequacy of evidence as has been provided under Section 134 of Evidence Act.

59. Medical evidence (postmortem report) fully corroborates the prosecution version as well as testimony of prosecution witnesses. In postmortem report exhibit Ka-2 of the deceased firearm injuries are found on right side back of the chest and on left eye of the deceased. Thus ocular evidence has been fully supported by medical evidence.

60. The presence of witnesses is proved to be natural and their statements are nothing but disclosure of actual facts relating to the occurrence. There is nothing on record to show that PW-2 Aladeen had any animous against the accused appellants. The testimony of prosecution witnesses of fact are cogent credible and trustworthy.

61. Learned counsel for appellants contended that there was no strong motive on the part of the accused persons to commit murder of the deceased and motive assigned has not been proved. Perusal of record shows that in this case motive has been mentioned in the F.I.R. PW-1 Mohabbat Ali and PW-2 Aladeen, both have stated that there was dispute of drainage between complainant and accused persons and this was the cause of committing murder. PW-1 has stated in his cross examination that there was a civil case pending in the court in which (deceased) was pairokar. Learned counsel for the appellants contended that no documentary evidence of alleged pending case has been filed and alleged motive has not been proved. So far as motive is concerned, it is settled law that motive is not a sine qua non for commission of a crime. Failure to prove motive or absence of evidence on point of motive would not be fatal to the prosecution case where guilt is proved from the reliable evidence. In fact motive is primarily known to the accused himself and it may not be possible for the prosecution to explain what actually prompted or excited him to commit a particular crime.

62. In case of Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that proof of motive satisfies the judicial mind about the likelihood of the authorship but its absence only demands deeper forensic search and cannot undo the effect of evidence otherwise sufficient. Motives of men are often subjective, submerged and unamenable to easy proof that Courts have to go without clear evidence thereon if other clinching evidence exists.

63. In Vijay Shankar v. State of Haryana, (2015) 12 SCC 644, Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in each and every case, it was not incumbent on the prosecution to prove the motive for the crime. Often, motive is indicated to heighten the probability of the offence that the accused was impelled by that motive to commit the offence. Proof of motive only adds to the weight and value of evidence adduced by the prosecution.

If the prosecution is able to prove its case on motive, it will be a corroborative piece of evidence. But even if the prosecution has not been able to prove its case on motive that will not be a ground to throw the prosecution case nor does it corrode the credibility of the prosecution case. Absence of proof of motive only demands careful scrutiny of evidence adduced by the prosecution.

64. In Abdul Waheed v. State of U.P.,(2016) 1 SCC 583, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that proof of motive of the accused towards the deceased heightens the possibility of the crime. Proof of motive adds weight and value to the evidence of the eyewitnesses.

65. In case in hand both the witnesses of fact have proved the prosecution version and their testimonies is fully supported by medical evidence therefore motive loses its significance.

66. So far as the contention of learned counsel for appellants is concerned that Buggi (Bullock Cart) and instruments of peeling the sugarcane (Daranti and Palkati) which were said to be with the witnesses at the time of incident were not recovered by the I.O., in fact it was the duty of the I.O. to take in possession and prepare memo of the case properties but if there is any laxity on the part of the I.O. in this regard, it could not be a ground to doubt the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 which were clear and cogent. The consistent and reliable testimony of PW-1 Mohabbat Ali and PW-2 Aladeen cannot be disbelieved on ground of any act or omission on the part of the investigating officer. As held by Full Bench of this Court in case of Gopal Vs. State of U.P. reported in 1999 (39) ACC 98 that investigation of the case if found faulty, even mischievous and collusive could not be a ground to reject ocular testimony of the informant who lodged the F.I.R. promptly. If eye witness is believable the mere weakness of investigation should not be a ground to reject the testimony.

67. So far as this argument is concerned that the F.I.R. is ante timed, it is correct that according to chick F.I.R., it was lodged within 45 minutes after covering a distance of 16 Kms. In F.I.R. time of incident has been mentioned as 4:30 p.m. distance of police station from the spot 16 Kms. and it was registered at 05:15 p.m. but only on this basis it cannot be said that F.I.R. is ante timed. Nowadays there are several fast modes of covering distance and it has not been asked by the informant (PW-1) in his statement that by what means he covered a distance of 16 Kms. in 45 minutes to reach to the police station for lodging F.I.R. Therefore lodging the F.I.R. after covering a distance of 16 Km. can be said as prompt F.I.R. The informant PW-1 is an illiterate man of village atmosphere, it may also be possible that the time of incident mentioned in F.I.R. may be approximate and not exact 4:30 p.m. In his written report informant has stated time of incident as about 4:30 p.m. In his statement PW-1 Mohabbat Ali and PW-2 Aladeen both eye witnesses have stated that incident occurred around 4:00 to 4:30 p.m.

68. Defence has examined DW-1 Rishipal Singh who was posted on 16.01.2005 as Radio Statioin Officer City control room Muzaffarnagar who has proved photo copy of original log book dated 16.01.2005. In his statement he has stated that then operator Ranjit Singh has made entry at 17:05 hrs. in it that it was informed by police station that Ajaz (deceased) was shot dead by assailants in the field. On the basis of aforesaid statement, learned counsel for appellants contended that time of incident was different from time mentioned in F.I.R. and F.I.R. is ante timed. As regards information of murder of deceased by the assailants sent by the police station to city control room prior to the registration of the F.I.R. as contended by learned counsel for appellants is concerned, on this basis it cannot be said that F.IR. was ante timed because there may be possibility of getting the information before registration of F.I.R. by some other means.

69. As discussed above, both the witnesses of fact are rustic witnesses there may be some difference in mentioning accurate time of incident. In chick F.I.R. and concerned G.D. time of registration of F.I.R. is clearly mentioned and proved by PW-6 Constable Virendra Kumar PW-5. Sub-Inspector Prem Prakash Giri has conducted inquest on the same day and prepared the inquest report. In the inquest report crime number and the time of incident are mentioned which has been proved by PW-5 in his statement. There was no delay in lodging the F.I.R. In view of the entire facts and circumstances it cannot be said that F.I.R. is ante timed and lodged after consultation with police.

70. It is true that there are some minor contradictions in the depositions of the prosecution witnesses of facts that too in regard to the subsequent events and not to the actual incident. Considering the entire facts. and circumstances of the case, we are of the considered opinion that contradictions are not so material which goes to the root of the case and materially affect the core of the prosecution case. Therefore, minor contradictions cannot be taken to be a ground to reject the testimony of the prosecutions witnesses of facts. In the deposition of witnesses there are always normal discrepancies due to normal errors of observation, loss of memory, mental disposition of the witnesses and the like. Unless, therefore, the discrepancies are "material discrepancies" so as to create a reasonable doubt about the credibility of the witnesses, the Court will not discard the evidence of the witnesses. If the evidence is untrustworthy and cannot be accepted by the test of prudence, then it may create a dent in the prosecution version. If an omission or discrepancy goes to the root of the matter and ushers in incongruities, the defence can take advantage of such inconsistencies. It needs no special emphasis to state that every omission cannot take place of a material omission and, therefore, minor contradictions, inconsistencies or insignificant embellishments do not affect the core of the prosecution case and should not be taken to be a ground to reject the prosecution evidence. The omission should create a serious doubt about the truthfulness or creditworthiness of a witness. It is only the serious contradictions and omissions which materially affect prosecution case but not every contradiction or omission.

71. The learned trial judge has drawn wrong inference against the accused appellants with regard to recovery of fire arms with cartidges from their possession. The medical evidence is consistent with the use of the fire arms. The fire arms have been recovered at the pointing of the accused appellants from their possession. Even though the offence under the Arms Act is quite distinct from the different sections of the Indian Penal Code but the acquittal under one provision of law will not exculpate the accused appellants from the offence under the penal provisions . Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act is in the nature of an exception to the general rules contained in the two preceeding sections i.e. under section 25 and 26. Section 25 makes inadmissible any confession by an accused person to a police officer. Under section 26 no confession by any person while he is in the custody of a police officer shall be proved against such person unless it be made in the presence of a Magistrate. Section 27 says that such part of the information given by an accused person while in the custody of a police officer may be proved against him as distinctly relates to the fact which is thereby discovered. It therefore makes admissible a confession made while in police custody if the other conditions laid in it are fulfilled. Being an exception to the general rule it has to be strictly construed. The section does not permit the admission in evidence of the whole of the confession, but of such portion only of it as can be said to relate distinctly to the fact discovered. There does not seem to be any controversy on this aspect of the section. The accused appellants were arrested on 22.1.2005 at 8.40 a.m. by the police personnel and two pistols and cartridges were recovered from their possession In view of this the portion of the alleged joint statement by the accused appellants wherein they admitted that they had committed the murder of Ajaz with the pistols recovered from their possession, this fact would be admissible in evidence. Mere acquittal of the accused appellants for the charges under sections 25/27 Arms Act for the reasons given by the learned trial court would not give any benefit to the accused appellants whose presence on the spot and by whose firing the deceased succumbed to the injuries has been fully proved by the evidence of Mohabbat Ali (P.W.1) and Aladeen (P.W.2). The learned trial court swayed by the so called irrelevant technicalities which resulted into the acquittal of the appellants under the Arms Act

72. On the basis of discussion made here-in-above and also considering the material evidence on record, we are of the considered opinion that findings of conviction for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. recorded by the trial court are well substantiated by the evidence on record. The trial court has appreciated the evidence in the right perspective. We do not find any justification to interfere with the finding of conviction recorded for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C., therefore the conviction recorded against the accused appellants under Section 302 I.P.C. is hereby maintained and affirmed. The instant appeal is dismissed accordingly.

73. The order dated 23.04.2009 passed by Additional Sessions Judge Court No. 9 Muzafar Nagar in Sessions Trial No. 405 of 2005 (State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Hasam and another) arising out of Case Crime No. 6 of 2005 under Section 302 Indian Penal Code Police Station- Chhapar, District- Muzaffarnagar, is hereby affirmed. Accused-appellants are in jail. They shall serve out the sentence as awarded by the learned trial court and affirmed by this Court.

74. Let a copy of the judgment be certified and sent along with the lower court record to the court below immediately for compliance and necessary entry be made in the relevant register.

BEFORE
THE HON'BLE SUDHIR AGARWAL, J.
THE HON'BLE RAJENDRA KUMAR-IV, J.

Jail Appeal No. 3231 of 2015

Arvind Bajpai ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
From Jail, Sri A.N. Mishra, Sri Lal Chandra Mishra (A.C.)

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
Sri Syed Ali Murtaza (A.G.A.)

A. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act,1872 – Section 32 - Dying declaration – Statement under section 161 Cr.P.C - Only evidence against the accused-appellant is the statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of the victim. It does not find support from any other evidence - statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. that was relied upon as the dying declaration, does not fulfill the requirement of law and fact - Dying declaration was not recorded by the Investigating Officer before two reliable witnesses, therefore, statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. does not qualify as a 'dying declaration'.

B. Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Conviction - Where on the evidence, two possibilities are available or open one which goes in favour of prosecution and other which benefits an accused, the accused is undoubtedly entitled to benefit of doubt - no iota of evidence to hold accused-appellant guilty - No incriminating circumstances and cogent evidence - Trial Court has convicted and sentenced accused-appellant in a serious offence on the basis of statement of victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C assuming it 'dying declaration' without any corroboration - accused-appellant is entitled to benefit of doubt and deserves acquittal. 1. Accused-appellant stood for trial in Sessions Trial No. 762 of 2012 (State v. Arvind Bajpai, Crime No. 464 of 2012), under Section 302, Police Station Barra, district Kanpur Nagar, pending in the Court of Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.6, Kanpur Nagar and came to be decided by the said Court vide judgment and order dated 09.04.2015 convicting and sentencing him under Section 302 IPC to undergo imprisonment for life and fine of Rs. 5,000/-. Appellant sought interference of this Court by filing this Jail Appeal from Jail through Jail Superintendent concerned.

2. Prosecution story, in brief, is that PW-1 Vishal Bajpai, submitted a written Tehrir Ex. Ka-1 getting it scribed by PW-2 in the Police Station Barrar stating that his mother Smt. Aneeta Bajpai was present in the house at 8:00 a.m. on the fateful day i.e. 25.05.2012. Accused (his father) came there and set her at fire by pouring kerosene oil on her. PW-1 and 2 went to take water at that time. When they came back to house, came to know that accused (father) set victim at fire. Accused started to abuse PW-1 and 2 also. Ex.Ka-1 further recites that incident was witnessed by Vinod Tiwari and Kalka Prasad (both unexamined), residents of same vicinity. Victim was taken to hospital, where she was admitted for medical treatment.

3. On the basis of written Tehrir, chick First Information Report (herein after referred to as 'FIR') was registered by Head Constable clerk, Arvind Kumar, PW-4, as Case Crime No. 464 of 2012 under Sections 307, 323, 504 IPC against accused-appellant and entry of case was made by him in General Diary, copy whereof is Ex. Ka-4. During course of treatment, victim Smt. Aneeta Bajpai succumbed to burn injuries on 07.06.2012.

4. PW-3, Dr. Sanjeev Kumar, who was posted on 03.06.2012, as Medical Officer in District Hospital, Kanpur Nagar, conducted autopsy over dead body of Smt. Aneeta Bajpai, aged about 40 years, wife of Arvind Bajpai and prepared postmortem report Ex. Ka-2. Doctor opined that Smt. Aneeta Bajpai died due to burn injuries and infection.

5. PW-6, SI Chandra Prakash Bhatt, held inquest over dead body of deceased, prepared panchayat-nama, Ex. Ka-6, and case was converted to Sections 304, 323 and 504 IPC. Later on, Court directed it to be converted in Section 302 IPC.

6. PW-5, SI Ghanshyam Yadav, undertook investigation and during the course of investigation recorded statements of Panch witnesses and other witnesses. After completing entire formalities of investigation, he submitted charge-sheet Ex.Ka-7 against accused.

7. Case, being exclusively triable by Court of Sessions, was committed to Sessions Judge, wherefrom, it was transferred to Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 6, Kanpur Nagar for disposal in accordance with law.

8. Trial Court framed charge on 10.01.2013 against accused under Section 302 IPC, which reads as under :-

"मैं, अमरजीत त्रिपाठी अतिरिक्त जिला एवं सत्र न्यायाधीश, 'न्यायालय कक्ष संख्या–6', कानपुर नगर आप अरविन्द बाजपेई के विरूद्ध अधोलिखित आरोप विरचित करता हूँ :–

That on 25.05.2012 at 8:00 a.m. at the House No. EWS 285, Gunjan Vihar, Karrahi, Police Outpost and PS - Barra, District - Kanpur Nagar, you, with the intention to kill your wife, poured her with kerosene and set her a fire, resulting in her death, thereby you committed an offence of murder. Accordingly, this act of yours is an offence punishable under Section 302 IPC and is in the cognizance of this court.

I hereby direct you that for the aforesaid charges, you be tried by this court.

The aforesaid charges were read over and explained to the witnesses who pleaded not guilty and sought trial."

(English Translation by Court)

9. Accused denied charges leveled against and claimed trial.

10. In order to substantiate its case, prosecution examined as many as seven witnesses in the following manner :-

Sr. No.	Name of PWs	Nature of witness	Paper proved
1	Vishal Bajpai	Fact	Ex. Ka-1
2	Vikas Bajpai	Fact	Ex.Ka-12
3	Dr. Sanjeev Kumar	Formal	Ex.Ka-2
4	HC Arvind Kumar	Formal	Ex.Ka-3 and 4
5	SI Ghanshyam Yadav	Formal	Ex.Ka-7, 8, 9, 10 and 14
6	SI Chandra Prakash Bhatt	Formal	Ex.Ka-5

11. On closure of prosecution evidence statement of accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded by Court explaining all incriminating evidence and circumstances. Accused denied prosecution story in toto and all formalities of investigation were said to be wrong. He claimed false implication and statement of witnesses is said to be wrong. He did not choose to adduce evidence in defence. In response of question no.9, he answered that his wife herself died.

12. After hearing counsel for the parties and analyzing entire evidence led by prosecution on record, Trial Court has found accused-appellant guilty and convicted him, as stated above. Feeling aggrieved and dissatisfied with impugned order of conviction and sentence, present appeal has been filed through Jail.

13. We have heard Sri Lal Chandra Mishra, Advocate (Amicus Curiae) for appellant and Sri Syed Ali Murtaza, learned A.G.A for State-respondent at length and have gone through the record carefully with valuable assistance of learned Counsel for parties.

14. Learned Amicus Curiae assailed order of conviction and sentence advancing following submissions :-

i. There is no motive to accused-appellant to commit murder of his wife.

ii. PW-1 and PW-2 are not eye-witnesses. As per FIR, they were not present in the house at the time of incident. Later, they both turned hostile.

iii. Witness named in FIR namely Vinod Kumar and Kalka were not produced from the side of prosecution.

iv. Victim is said to be admitted in the Hospital for medical treatment but eventually her dying declaration under Section 32 of Indian Evidence Act has not been recorded till her death with no proper explanation.

v. It is a case of no evidence but Trial Court has wrongly convicted accused relying on statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. made by victim before Investigating Officer during investigation.

vi. Prosecution has failed to establish its case beyond reasonable doubt.

15. Learned A.G.A. opposed the submission of learned counsel for accused-appellant and submitted that accused-appellant is named in FIR, Investigating Officer recorded statement of victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C., in which she has given statement against her husband, which is admissible in evidence under Section 32 of Indian Evidence Act,1872 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act,1872,) after her death. Incident took place in the house of accused-appellant and accused-appellant has been rightly convicted by Trial Court.

16. Although place, time and date of occurrence, death of victim due to burn injuries could not be disputed from the side of prosecution but according to learned counsel counsel for accused-appellant, he is not responsible for the present crime. Even otherwise PW-1 and PW-2, though have turned hostile but they proved that their mother got injured by burn injuries in the house and evidence of doctor shows that victim died due to burn injuries. In this way, time, date and place of incident and death of Smt. Aneeta Bajpayee due to burn injuries stand established.

17. Thus, only two questions remain for consideration of this Court are "Whether accused-appellant is responsible for causing burn injuries to victim-Aneeta Bajpayee due to which, she succumbed to death" and "Whether Trial Court rightly convicted him or not?"

18. We may now proceed to consider the rival submissions of learned counsel for parties and briefly consider evidence of prosecution.

19. PW-1, Vishal Bajpayee, Informant, did not support prosecution case and turned hostile. He deposed in his statement that on 25.05.2012, at about 8:00 am, his father (accused) neither entered the house, nor assaulted her mother, nor poured kerosene oil on her. In his cross-examination, he deposed that he submitted written report, Ex.Ka-1, against her father at the behest of other people and signed it without reading. His mother herself was burnt with oil. Witness was declared hostile on the request of prosecution and was subjected to lengthy cross-examination.

20. PW-2, Vikash Bajpayee, also did not support prosecution case. Witness was declared hostile on the request of State Counsel. In his cross examination, he deposed that he did not see the incident by his own eyes and he was not present in the house at the time of incident.

21. Both the witnesses withstood lengthy cross-examination by prosecution but nothing could be brought so as to support prosecution case and their statement could be disbelieved. As per FIR itself, both witnesses did not appear to be eye-witnesses.

22. PW-3, Dr. Sanjeev Kumar deposed that on 3.6.2012 he was posted in District Hospital, Kanpur Nagar and on postmortem duty, at about 2:50 pm, he conducted autopsy over the dead body of Smt. Aneeta Bajpayee and found superficial deep burn injuries over her body. Line of redness was also present. He noted ante-mortem injuries as under :-

"About 60% superficial to deep burn injury our back, abdomen."

23. Doctor opined that death was possible one day prior to postmortem and might have occurred due to Coma and infection due to ante mortem burn injuries.

24. PW-5, SI Ghanshyam Yaday, deposed that on 24.6.2010, he commenced investigation, recorded statements of Vishal Bajpayee, victim-Aneeta Bajpayee, witness Vikas Bajpayee under Section 161 Cr.P.C., visited spot on pointing out of Vishal and prepared site plan, Ex.Ka-5. In statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C., victim told him that her husband poured kerosene oil and set her at fire. He arrested accused and recorded his statement. On the death of Aneeta Bajpayee on 7.6.2012, PW-6, SI Chand Prakash, held inquest, prepared inquest report Ex. Ka-6, case was converted into under Section 302 IPC and he submitted charge-sheet under Section 302 IPC against the accused-appellant. In his cross-examination, he deposed that victim remained alive 12-13 days after the incident and her dying declaration could not be recorded for the reason that she died before he took investigation.

25. PW-6, SHO Chand Prakash Bhatt, deposed that on 26.5.2012, he was posted as In-charge, outpost, PS Barrar, District Kanpur Nagar. He took investigation of case Crime No. 364 of 2012 under Section 307 IPC, recorded statement of Smt. Aneeta Bajpayee, in which, she stated that on 25.5.2012, at about 8:00 am, her husband entered the house, started abusing, poured kerosene oil and set her at fire. She rushed out of her house and jumped into a dirty canal to save herself. People of the same vicinity took out her from the Canal. She sustained burn injuries on her body. He visited spot, prepared site plan and on receiving information of her death, he held inquest over the dead body of Aneeta Bajpayee.

26. It is thus evident from record that victim died after 12-13 days from the incident due to burn injuries. It is said that her statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. has been recorded by PW-6 but no statement under Section 32 of Act, 1872 was recorded where as victim remained alive 12-13 day after the incident took place. Only evidence against accused-appellant is statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of victim said to have been made before Investigating Officer, which does not find support from any other evidence. Reason shown by prosecution for not recording statement under Section 32 of Act, 1872 does not appear to be cogent and convincing. Apart from that, PW-2 specifically stated in his cross-examination that it was wrong to say that his mother told Investigating Officer that her husband set her at fire.

27. Before us, it was contended on behalf of appellant that the said statement of victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C. cannot be accepted as dying declaration for the reason that it was recorded by Investigator as statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and not as statement under Section 32 of Act, 1872 and admittedly statement of victim was not attested by two respectable witness as required in Police Regulation.

28. Paragraph 115 of Police Regulations reads as under :-

"The officer investigating a case in which a person has been so seriously injured that he is likely to die before he can reach a dispensary where his dying declaration can be recorded should himself record the declaration at once in the presence of two respectable witnesses, obtaining the signature or mark of the declarant and witnesses at the foot of the deceleration." (Emphasis added)

29. Section 32(1) of Act, 1872, provides as under:-

"32. Cases in which statement of relevant fact by person who is dead or cannot be found, etc., is relevant- Statements, written or verbal, of relevant facts made by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who has become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, appears to the Court unreasonable, are themselves relevant facts in the following cases:-

(1) When it relates to cause of death.- When the statement is made by a person as to the cause of his death, or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death, in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question.

Such statements are relevant whether the person who made them was or was not, at the time when they were made, under expectation of death, and whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of his death comes into question."

30. Going by Section 32(1) of Act, 1872, it is quite clear that such statement would be relevant even if the person who made statement was or was not at the time when he made it under the expectation of death. Having regard to extraordinary credence attached to such statement fall under Section 32(1) of Act, 1872 time and again Court has cautioned as to the extreme care and caution to be taken while relying upon such evidence recorded as a 'dying declaration'.

31. As far as implication of 162 (2) of Cr.P.C. is concerned, as a proposition of law, unlike the excepted circumstances under which 161 statement could be relied upon, as rightly contended by learned senior counsel for the respondent, once the said statement though recorded under Section 161Cr.P.C. assumes the character of dying declaration falling within the four corners of Section 32(1) of Act, 1872, then whatever credence would apply to a declaration governed by Section 32(1), should automatically deemed to apply with all force to such a statement though recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. The above statement of law would result in a position that a purported recorded statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of a victim having regard to the subsequent event of death of the person making statement who was a victim would enable prosecuting authority to rely upon the said statement having regard to the nature and content of the said statement as one of dying declaration as deeming it and falling under Section 32(1) of Act, 1872 and thereby commend all the credence that would be applicable to a dying declaration recorded and claimed as such.

32. We now propose to deal the validity of the dying declaration. Court in Paniben vs. State of Gujarat, (1992) 2 SCC 474, laid down certain principles regarding dying declaration, which are as under :-

"Though a dying declaration is entitled to great weight, it is worthwhile to note that the accused has no power of cross-examination. Such a power is essential for eliciting the truth as an obligation of oath could be. This is the reason the Court also insists that the dying declaration should be of such a nature as to inspire full confidence of the Court in its correctness. The Court has to be on guard that the statement of deceased was not as a result of either tutoring, prompting or a product of imagination. The Court must be further satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind after a clear opportunity to observe and identify the assailants. Once the Court is satisfied that the declaration was true and voluntary, undoubtedly, it can base its conviction without any further corroboration. It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that the dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction unless it is corroborated. The rule requiring corroboration is merely a rule of prudence. this Court has laid down in several judgments the principles governing dying declaration, which could be summed up as under:-

(i) There is neither rule of law nor of prudence that dying declaration cannot be acted upon without corroboration. (Mannu Raja v. State of M.P.).

(ii) If the Court is satisfied that the dying declaration is true and voluntary it can base conviction on it, without corroboration. (State of M.P. v. Ram Sugar Yadav, Ramawati Devi vs. State of Bihar).

(iii) This Court has to scrutinise the dying declaration carefully and must ensure that the declaration is not the result of tutoring, prompting or imagination. The deceased had opportunity to observe and identify the assailants and was in a fit state to make the declaration. (Ram Chandra Reddy v. Public Prosecutor).

(iv) Where dying declaration is suspicious it should not be acted upon without corroborative evidence. (Rasheed Beg v. State of Madhya Pradesh).

(v) Where the deceased was unconscious and could never make any dying declaration the evidence with regard to it is to be rejected. (Kake Singh v. State of M.P).

(vi) A dying declaration which suffers from infirmity cannot form the basis of conviction. (Ram Manorath v. State of U.P.).

(vii) Merely because a dying declaration does not contain the details as to the occurrence, it is not to be rejected. (State of Maharashtra v. Krishnamurthi Laxmipati Naidu).

(viii) Equally, merely because it is a brief statement, it is not be discarded. On the contrary, the shortness of the statement itself guarantees truth. (Surajdeo Oza v. State of Bihar).

(ix) Normally the court in Order to satisfy whether deceased was in a fit mental condition to make the dying declaration look up to the medical opinion. But where the eye witness has said that the deceased was in a fit and conscious state to make this dying declaration, the medical opinion cannot prevail. (Nanahau Ram and Anr. v. State of M.P.).

(x) Where the prosecution version differs from the version as given in the dying declaration, the said declaration cannot be acted upon. (State of U.P. v. Madan Mohan).

33. In the case in hand we thus found that statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. which was relied upon as dying declaration, does not fulfill the requirement of every provisions of law and fact.

34. PW-6, Chandra Prakas Bhatt, deposed that on 26.05.2012, he undertook investigation, recorded statement of Smt. Aneeta Bajpai (injured). He further deposed in cross-examination that dying declaration was not got recorded because she had come to her house after getting cured from hospital. He did not take container and Match box in his possession from spot; she died after five days from the date of incident. Thus, it is very clear, when Investigator recorded statement of victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C., she was not under the expectation of death and she remained alive about two weeks. Evidently, dying declaration was not recorded by Investigating Officer before two reliable witnesses, therefore, statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. does not fall under the category of 'dying declaration' under Section 32 of Act,1872.

35. It is well settled that where on the evidence, two possibilities are available or open one which goes in favour of prosecution and other which benefits an accused, the accused is undoubtedly entitled to benefit of doubt.

36. In Bhagwan Singh & Others v. State of M.P. (2002) 4 SCC 85, Court repeated one of the fundamental principles of criminal jurisprudence that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. Court observed as under:-

*"7. The golden thread which runs through the web of administration of justice in criminal case is that if t*wo views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. Such is not a jurisdiction limitation on the appellate court but a Judge made guidelines for circumspection. The paramount consideration of the court is to ensure that miscarriage of justice is avoided." (Emphasis added)

37. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra AIR 1984 SCC 1622, Court said that at any rate, the evidence clearly shows that two views are possible - one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other leading to his innocence. It may be very likely that the appellant may have administered poison (potassium cyanide) to Manju but at the same time a fair possibility that she herself committed suicide cannot be safely excluded or eliminated. Hence, on this ground alone appellant is entitled to benefit of doubt resulting in his acquittal.

38. In Kali Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh, 1973 AIR 2773, Court made following observations:

"Another golden thread which runs through the web of the administration of justice in criminal cases is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. This principle has a special relevance in cases where in the guilt of the accused is sought to be established by circumstantial evidence."

(Emphasis added)

39. We have deeply considered entire evidence available on record to connect accused-appellant with present crime but find no iota of evidence to hold accused-appellant guilty.

40. We are surprised as to how without any incriminating circumstances and cogent evidence, Trial Court has convicted and sentenced accused-appellant in a serious offence on the basis of statement of victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C assuming it 'dying declaration' without any corroboration. Sentencing of accused-appellant in this manner erodes public faith on judicial system.

41. Considering the entire facts and circumstances and evidence led by the prosecution, in entirety, we do not find any cogent and convincing evidence against accused-appellant to connect him with present crime and, in our considered opinion, accused-appellant is entitled to benefit of doubt and deserves acquittal.

42. Appeal is, accordingly, allowed. Impugned judgment and order dated 09.04.2015 passed, in Sessions Trial No. Sessions Trial No. 762 of 2012 (State v. Arvind Bajpai, Crime No. 464 of 2012), by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.6, Kanpur Nagar, is hereby set aside. Appellant is acquitted of charges levelled against him. He is in jail and shall be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other case.

43. Keeping in view provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C., appellant is directed to furnish a personal bond and two sureties before Trial Court to its satisfaction, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in event of filing of Special Leave Petition against instant judgment or for grant of leave, appellant on receipt of notice thereof shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

44. Lower Court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to District Court concerned for compliance and further necessary action.

45. Before parting, we provide that Sri Lal Chandra Mishra, Amicus Curiae for appellant in present Jail Appeal, shall be paid counsel's fee as Rs. 11,500/-. State Government is directed to ensure payment of aforesaid fee through Additional Legal Remembrancer, posted in the office of Advocate General at Allahabad, without any delay and, in any case, within one month from the date of receipt of copy of this judgment.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajendra Kumar-IV, J.)

1. Present jail appeal has been directed by accused-appellant Gajendra against the judgement and order dated 08.08.2012 passed by Govind Ballabh Sharma, Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Ghaziabad in Session Trial No.1281 of 2011 (State Vs. Gajendra Singh) under Section 376 and 506 IPC, P.S. Loni, District Ghaziabad. By the impugned judgement and order dated 08.08.2012, accused-appellant Gajendra has been convicted under Section 376 I.P.C. and sentenced to imprisonment for life with a fine of Rs.1,00,000/- and in default of payment of fine, he shall undergo one year additional rigorous imprisonment; and further he has been convicted under Section 506 I.P.C. and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for seven years with a fine of Rs. 5,000/- and in default of payment of fine, two years additional rigorous imprisonment.

2. Brief facts of the case emerging in First Information Report (hereinafter referred to as "FIR") is that PW-1 Madhubala wife of Gajendra submitted a written report, Ex.Ka-1, in Police Station Loni, District Ghaziabad, stating that on 09.06.2011 at about 3:00 PM, she had gone to market to purchase vegetables. Her husband i.e. accused-appellant Gajendra and her minor daughter aged about 14 years (victim's name is withheld by us) were present in the house. When she returned after taking vegetables, she saw that genitals of her daughter was bleeding and she was weeping. On being asked, she told that accused-appellant (father of victim) committed rape with her and put wooden cylinder (Lakadi ka Belan) in her genitals. When she asked her husband, why he has done so, he threatened her to kill, due to which she was afraid and remained silent. She went to her parental house with victim daughter and narrated entire story to her family members. Thereafter, she got victim medically examined in a private hospital, later due to not getting any relief, she took her in G.T.B. Hospital, Sahadara, Delhi.

3. On the basis of written report Ex.Ka-1, Constable Rahul Kumar (not examined), registered Chick F.I.R. Ex.Ka-5 as Case Crime No. 708 of 2011, under Section 376 and 506 I.P.C. against accused-appellant. Entry of case was made by him in General Diary, copy whereof is Ex.Ka-6.

4. PW-5 lady Doctor Nitasha Gupta, medically examined victim and prepared her medical report Ex.Ka-4. She found G.C. conscious oriented; pulse fair, BP-110/70 mm/hg; pubic hair present, not matted; external genitalia (N); hymen torned; posterial wall-tear present 7 cm, clots present; faecal seen through tear; abdomen tenderness present, rigidity present, guarding present.

5. PW-4 S.I. Rajpal Singh, undertook investigation of case, commenced investigation, recorded statement of constable registering F.I.R., Informant PW-1 Madhubala, PW-2 victim and other witnesses; visited spot; prepared site plan Ex.Ka-3. On 15.06.2011, accused-appellant Gajendra was arrested by Investigating Officer. He got recorded statement of victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C. before Magistrate concerned and after completing entire formalities of investigation submitted charge sheet Ex.Ka-4 against accused in the Court of C.J.M. concerned.

6. Case, being exclusively triable by Court of Sessions, was committed by C.J.M. to Sessions Court, Ghaziabad where-from it was transferred to Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Ghaziabad for disposal according to law.

7. Trial Court framed charges accused-appellant Gajendra on 07.02.2011 under Sections 302 and 506 IPC which read as under :-

Charge

I, Govind Ballabh Sharma, Addl Session Judge, Court No 3, Ghaziabad charge you, Gajendra Singh, as under:

1 . That on 9.6.2011 at around 3 pm in your house situated at Mohalla Amar Vihar Loni, P.S. Loni, Distt Ghaziabad, you forcibly committed rape on your daughter Km Surekha, minor, aged 14 years, thereby committing an offence punishable u/s 376 IPC which is in my cognizance.

It is hereby directed that the aforesaid charges be tried against you by this court.

8. Accused-appellant denied the charges against him and claimed to be tried.

9. In order to substantiate its case, prosecution examined as many as five witnesses out of whom PW-1 Madhubala, PW-2 victim and PW-3 Santu are witnesses of fact whereas PW-4 S.I. Rajpal Singh and PW5 Dr. Nitasha Gupta are formal witnesses.

Srl. No.	Name of PW	Nature of witness	Paper proved
1.	Madhubala	Fact	Ex.Ka-1
2.	Victim	Fact	Ex.Ka-2
3.	Santu	Fact	---
4.	Rajpal Singh	Formal	Ex.Ka-3, 4, 5 and 6
5.	Dr. Nitasha Gupta	Formal	Ex.Ka-4, M.L.C.

10. Subsequent to closure of prosecution evidence, statement of accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded by Trial Court explaining entire evidence and other incriminating circumstances. In the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., accused-appellant denied prosecution story in toto. Entire prosecution story is said to be wrong and concocted. In response of question no. 13, he said that Informant and victim implicated him falsely. Victim was subjected to rape by his maternal uncle but he was implicated. Accused-appellant did not chose to lead any evidence in defence.

11. Trial Court, after hearing learned counsel for the parties and appreciating entire evidence, oral and documentary, found accused-appellant guilty and convicted and sentenced him as stated above.

12. Feeling aggrieved and dissatisfied with impugned judgement and order of conviction, accused-appellant preferred present appeal through Jail.

13. We have heard Sri Prateek Samadhiya, learned Amicus Curiae appearing for appellant and Sri Mahesh Chandra Joshi, learned A.G.A for State-respondent at length and travelled through the record with the valuable assistance of learned counsel for the parties.

14. Learned Amicus Curiae for appellant assailing verdict of conviction of accused-appellant, advanced his submissions in following manners :-

(i) Accused-appellant has falsely been implicated in the present case.

(ii) There is no motive or occasion for accused to commit the present crime.

(iii) No body has seen accused-appellant to commit crime.

(iv) PW-1 and PW-3 are not eye witnesses. Victim was subjected to rape by her maternal uncle and accused-appellant has been implicated with the collusion of PW-1 and PW-2.

(v) Medical evidence is not compatible with oral version.

(vi) Victim PW-2 has given evidence against the accused-appellant under the pressure of her mother and maternal uncle.

(vii) Prosecution failed to establish its case beyond reasonable doubt; Trial Court did not appreciate evidence on record in the right perspective and has committed error in convicting accused. Therefore, accused-appellant is liable to be acquitted.

15. Learned AGA vehemently opposed the submissions advanced by learned counsel for appellant and submitted that accused-appellant is named in F.I.R.; he committed rape upon her own minor daughter; he deserves no sympathy; victim PW-2 and Madhubala PW-1 (mother of victim) supported prosecution story and gave evidence against accused-appellant; medical evidence is also compatible with oral evidence. Trial Court right convicted the accused-appellant and appeal is liable to be dismissed.

16. Now we may proceed to consider rival submissions of learned counsel for parties and evidence of prosecution available on record.

17. PW-1 Madhubala deposed that accused-appellant is her own husband. On the fateful day at about 3:00 PM, she had gone to market to purchase vegetables, her husband (accused-appellant) and her minor daughter (PW-2) aged about 14-15 years were present in the house. When she returned to her house after some time with vegetables, she saw that genitals of victim was bleeding, she was weeping and nervous. On being asked victim told that her father committed rape with her and put wooden cylinder (Lakadi ka Belan) in her genitals. When she asked her husband, why he did so, accused threatened her to take away his life. She was afraid and not allowed to go out of house. She went to her parental house with victim and there she narrated entire story to her family members. Victim was medically treated by private doctors but later on she admitted in G.T.B. Hospital, Sahadara, Delhi. She got report of incident scribed by village Pradhan Sohan Lal. She proved written report marked as Ex.Ka-1. In cross examination, PW-1 stated that she was married to accused-appellant 17 years prior. She has five issues with her valid wedlock. She withstood a lengthy cross-examination but nothing adverse material could be extracted so as to disbelieve her statement. It is evident from her statement that when she went to market, her husband and victim were in house and when she returned home she found both of them there but victim was nervous and her genitals was bleeding.

18. PW-2 victim deposed that accused-appellant Gajendra is her father. On the fateful day, she was in the house and her father was also there. When her mother went to market for taking vegetables at about 3:00 PM, her father closed the door from inside and committed rape upon her forcibly and put wooden cylinder (Lakadi ka Belan) in her genitals due to which it was bleeding. When her mother returned to home, she narrated entire incident to her. Her father threatened her mother to kill her. Her mother took her to the house of her maternal uncle about two days after where she was medically treated but due to not getting any relief, she was taken to G.T.B. Hospital, Sahadara, Delhi where she remained admitted for one month and she is not felling well so far. In cross-examination, she stated that after the incident, she left studies. She remained in her maternal uncle's house from her childhood and came to the house of her father with her mother one month prior to incident. When incident took place, her brothers were not in the house. When her father raped her, she raised alarm but nobody came there. Witness withstood length cross-examination but nothing could be brought on record so as to disbelieve her statement. Certain minor variations occurred in her statement but they are not of such nature which may dent the root of case.

19. PW-3 Santu deposed that Informant PW-1 Madhubala is his real sister. His sister came to his house along with her daughter victim and told him that accused-appellant Gajendra committed rape upon her daughter and her genitals was bleeding much. She was admitted in G.T.B. Hospital, Sahadara, Delhi for treatment, where victim underwent three operations but she was not still feeling well. This witness is not eye witness, therefore, his statement does not require much scrutiny.

20. PW-5 Dr. Nitasha Gupta deposed that on 15.6.2011, she was posted in G.T.B. Hospital, Sahadara, Delhi. On the same day, she examined victim aged about 14 years, brought by her mother and maternal uncle, and found the victim unconscious, hymen torned, vagina and anus were both united, fecal mater was coming through genitals.

21. In the present case victim PW-2 is real daughter of accused-appellant. PW-1 is the wife of accused and closed to victim as well as accused. There is no occasion for PW-1 and PW-2 to implicate accused-appellant falsely. Incident took place in the house of accused. It has come in the statement of PW-2 that door was closed from inside and at the time of incident, she cried but nobody came, therefore, was no occasion for anyone to save her. In the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., accused-appellant simply denied the crime committed by him but he has not given any plausible explanation why his real wife and daughter were giving false evidence against him.

22. In State of Punjab Vs. Gurmeet Singh and others, 1996 (2) SCC 384, Court has held that:

"A rapist not only violates the victims privacy and personal integrity, but inevitably causes serious psychological as well as physical harm in the process. Rape is not merely a physical assault, it is often destructive of the whole personality of the victim. A murderer destroys the physical body of the victim, a rapist degrades the very soul of the helpless female. The Courts, therefore, on its shoulder has a great responsibility while trying an accused on charges of rape. They must deal with such cases with utmost sensitivity. The Courts should examine the broader probabilities of a case and not get swayed by minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix, which are not of a fatal nature to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case".

23. In State of Maharastra Vs. Chandra Prakash Kewalchand Jain AIR 1990 SC 658, Court has held that a woman, who is the victim of sexual assault, is not an accomplice to the crime but is a victim of another person's lust and, therefore, her evidence need not be tested with the same amount of suspicion as that of an accomplice.

24. A prosecutrix of a sex-offence cannot be put on par with an accomplice. She is in fact a victim of the crime. The Evidence Act nowhere says that her evidence cannot be accepted unless it is corroborated in material particulars. She is undoubtedly a competent witness under Section 118 and her evidence must receive the same weight as is attached to an injured in cases of physical violence.

25. In State of Punjab Vs. Gurmit Singh and others AIR, 1996 SC 1383, Court held that:

"In cases involving sexual harassment, molestation etc. the court is duty bound to deal with such cases with utmost sensibility. Minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of prosecutrix should not be a ground for throwing out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. Evidence of the victim of sexual assault is enough for conviction and it does not require any corroboration unless there are compelling reasons for seeking corroboration. The cause may look for some assurance of her statement to satisfy judicial conscience. The statement of the prosecutrix is more reliable than that of an injured witness as she is not an accomplice".

26. In State of H.P. Vs. Raghubir Singh (1993) 2 SCC 622, Court held that:

"There is no legal compulsion to look for any other evidence to corroborate the evidence of the prosecutrix before recording an order of conviction. Conviction can be recorded on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix, if her evidence inspires confidence and there is absence of circumstances which militate against her veracity".

27. So far as motive is concerned, it is well settled that where direct evidence is worthy, it can be believed, then motive does not carry much weight. It is also notable that mind set of accused persons differs from each other. Thus merely because that there was no strong motive to commit the present offence, prosecution case cannot be disbelieved.

28. In Lokesh Shivakumar v. State of Karnataka, (2012) 3 SCC 196, Court has held as under :-

"As regards motive, it is well established that if the prosecution case is fully established by reliable ocular evidence coupled with medical evidence, the issue of motive looses practically all relevance. In this case, we find the ocular evidence led in support of the prosecution case wholly reliable and see no reason to discard it."

29. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case, evidence of prosecution in entirety, we have no hesitation to state that accused-appellant Gajendra committed rape upon her daughter PW-2 and put wooden cylinder (Lakadi Ka Belan) in her genitals, an offence punishable under Section 376 I.P.C., and threatened his wife when she sought to enquire from him, why he committed rape upon his own daughter.

30. In view of facts discussed hereinabove, we find that Trial Court has rightly analyzed evidence led by prosecution and found accused guilty and convicted him for having committed rape, an offence punishable under Sections 376 and 506 IPC. Conviction and sentence awarded by Trial Court is liable to be maintained and confirmed. No interference is warranted by this Court. Jail appeal lacks merit and liable to be dismissed.

31. So far as sentencing of accused-appellant is concerned, it is always a difficult task requiring balance of various considerations. The question of awarding sentence is a matter of discretion to be exercised on consideration of circumstances aggravating and mitigating in individual cases.

32. It is settled legal position that appropriate sentence should be awarded after giving due consideration to the facts and circumstances of each case, nature of offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. It is obligation upon court to constantly remind itself that right of victim, and be it said, on certain occasions or person aggrieved as well as society at large can be victims, never be marginalised. The measure of punishment should be proportionate to gravity of offence. Object of sentencing should be to protect society and to deter the criminal in achieving avowed object of law. Further, it is expected that courts would operate the sentencing system so as to impose such sentence which reflects conscience of society and sentencing process has to be stern where it should be. The Court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against individual victim but also against society to which criminal and victim belong. Punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality which the crime has been perpetrated, enormity of crime warranting public abhorrence and it should 'respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal'. [Vide: Sumer Singh vs. Surajbhan Singh and others, (2014) 7 SCC 323, Sham Sunder vs. Puran, (1990) 4 SCC 731, M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554, Ravji v. State of Rajasthan, (1996) 2 SCC 175].

33. Hence, applying the principles laid down in the aforesaid judgments and having regard to the totality of facts and circumstances of case, nature of offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed, we find that punishment awarded to accused-appellant by Trial Court in impugned judgment and order is not excessive and it appears fit and proper and no question arises to interfere in the matter on the point of punishment imposed upon him.

34. In view of above discussion, the appeal lacks merit and is accordingly, dismissed. Impugned judgement and order dated 08.08.2012, is maintained and confirmed.

35. Lower Court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to District Court and Jail concerned for compliance and apprising the accused-appellant.

36. Before parting, we provide that Sri Prateek Samadhiya, Advocate, who assisted as Amicus Curiae, appearing for appellant in present Jail Appeal, shall be paid counsel's fee as Rs. 11,500/- for his valuable assistance. State Government is directed to ensure payment of aforesaid fee through Additional Legal Remembrancer, posted in the office of Advocate General at Allahabad, without any delay and, in any case, within one month from the date of receipt of copy of this judgment.

A. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act,1872 – Circumstantial evidence - no eye witness of occurrence - chain of circumstantial evidence leading guilt of accused-appellant is not complete - the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn must or "should be" and not merely "may be" fully established - The facts so established should be consistent only with the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explicable through any other hypothesis except that the accused was guilty. The circumstances should be conclusive in nature - There must be a chain of evidence so complete so as to not leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused, and must show that in all human probability, the offence was committed by the accused. Where on the evidence, two possibilities are available or open which goes in favour of the prosecution and other which benefits an accused, the accused is undoubtedly entitled to benefit of doubt - Trial Court has not marshalled entire evidence on record with care and caution - not correct in convicting accused-appellant, solely relying on the statement of PW-1, that too not supported by any other witnesses and overlooking other major contradictions in their evidence and missing chain of circumstantial evidence - accused-appellant is entitled to benefit of doubt - prosecution failed proving guilt of accused-appellant beyond reasonable doubt. (Delivered by Hon'ble Rajendra Kumar-IV, J.)

1. Present jail appeal has been directed by accused-appellant Pappu @ Nandu Pandey against the judgement and order dated 11.5.2015 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.14, Meerut in Session Trial No.1395 of 2011 (State Vs. Pappu @ Nandu Pandey) under Section 302, 376 IPC, P.S. Partapur, District Meerut whereby Trial Court has convicted accused Pappu @ Nandu Pandey and sentenced him to rigorous imprisonment for ten years with fine of Rs.10,000/- under Section 376 IPC, in default of payment of fine, one years additional imprisonment; and rigorous imprisonment for life with fine of Rs. 20,000/- under Section 302 I.P.C., in default of payment of fine, two years additional imprisonment.

2. Factual matrix of the case as emerging from First Information Report (hereinafter referred to as "FIR") as well as material placed on record is as follows.

3. PW-1, Jai Pakash submitted a written Tehrir Ex.Ka-1 on 31.10.2011 in Police Station Partapur, District Meerut stating therein that his own house was broken and it was not liveable, so his mother lived alone in the house of Sudhir (his cousin) and as usual, she slept in the night of 30.10.2011 in that house. His sister in law (Bhabhi) Smt. Kamlesh PW-2 was living in her own house and look after his mother (victim). In the morning on 31.10.2011 PW-2 Kamlesh came to see victim and saw that door was closed from inside. She tried to get it opened by giving voice but no response came from inside, so a boy was sent from the house of neighbouring Jogendra to open the door from inside. On opening door, PW-2 Kamlesh found his mother Bhagwati dead. There was a lot of bruises and blood on her face. Many people gathered on the spot. F.I.R. further recites that on 30.10.2011, PW-1 was present in the house of his Bhabhi, at about 10:00 PM. PW-1 and his nephew Yogesh, PW-3, after taking dinner, came to walk in the street towards his mother and saw that house of his mother was locked. They saw accused-appellant Pappu @ Nandu Pandey going towards roof of Jogendra from Sudhir's roof. All cloths of mother were removed from her body and she was half necked. It was suspected by PW-1 that victim was raped and murdered by accused-appellant Pappu @ Nandu Pandey.

4. On the basis of written Tehrir Ex.Ka-1, a Chick F.I.R. Ex.Ka-19 was registered by H.M., Naresh Kumar as Case Crime no. 530 of 2011, under Section 302 and 376 I.P.C. against accused-appellant. Entry of case was made in General Diary.

5. PW-8, Inspector, Rampal Singh, under the direction of PW-9 B.D. Pushkar, the then Inspector, held inquest over the dead body of Smt. Bhagwati, prepared inquest report Ex.Ka-10 and other papers relating thereto.

6. PW-6 Dr. Ravindra Singh, conducted autopsy over the dead body of Smt. Bhagwati and prepared post mortem report Ex.Ka-8, expressing his opinion that death of victim was possible two days prior to post-mortem due to coma on account of head injuries. He found three ante-mortem injuries as under :-

(i) Lacerated wound 3 cm x 1 cm x bone deep on left side of forehead eyebrow.

(ii) Bilateral black eyes.

(iii) Lacerated wound 2 cm x 1 cm x bone deep on right side of chin (not clear in the P.M. report).

7. PW-7 Dr. Vikram Singh examined smear slide of Smt. Bhagwati and prepared his examination report, Ex.Ka-9, expressing his opinion that dead spermatozoa was found in the slide.

8. PW-9 B.D. Pushkar undertook investigation, visited spot with Informant PW-1, prepared site plan Ex.Ka-16, recorded statement of Informant, collected one blood stained pillow and one blood stained bed sheet, blood stained and simple earth, one bangle (Kada made by steal) and prepared memos thereof, collected one Jeans pant, underwear and baniyan belong to accused and taken into custody and prepared Fard thereof; recorded statement of other witnesses. After completing all formalities of investigation submitted charge sheet Ex.Ka-18 against accused-appellant.

9. Case, being exclusively triable by Court of Sessions, was committed to Sessions Court for trial.

10. Trial Court, framed charges against accused-appellant Pappu @ Nandu Pandey under Section 302 and 376 IPC on 01.02.2012 which read as under :

आरोप

Charge

"I, Sadhna Rani, Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 15, Meerut, hereby charge you, Pappu @ Nandu Pandey with the following offences:-

Firstly, you at any time on the night of 30.10.2011 forcibly committed rape on the complainant Jai Prakash Singh's mother sleeping in Sudhir's house located in village - Dhidhala, PS - Paratapur, and District - Meerut; thereby committing an offence punishable u/s 376 IPC, which is in the cognisance of this court.

Secondly, on the aforesaid date, time and place, you, having committed rape on the complainant's mother, inflicted injuries on her person with the intention to kill her, and murdered her; thereby you committed an offence punishable u/s 302 IPC, which is in the cognisance of this court.

It is hereby ordered that you shall be tried for the aforesaid charges by this court."

11. Accused-appellant pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

12. In order to substantiate its case, prosecution examined as many as nine witnesses out of whom PW-1 Jai Prakash, PW-2 Kamklesh, PW-3 Yogesh and PW-4 Beena are witnesses of fact and PW-5 Shiv Raj Singh, PW-6 Dr. Ravindra Singh, PW-7 Dr. Vikram Singh, PW-8 Inspector Rampal Singh and PW-9 the then Inspector B.D. Pushkar are formal witnesses.

13. Subsequent to closure of prosecution evidence, statement of accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded by Court explaining entire evidence and other incriminating circumstances. In the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., accused-appellant denied prosecution story in toto, story and statement of witnesses are said to be wrong and under the pressure of police. He claimed false implication in the present case.

14. Trial Court, after hearing learned counsel for the parties and appreciating entire evidence led by prosecution on record found accused-appellant guilty and convicted him as stated above. Feeling aggrieved and dissatisfied with impugned judgement and order of conviction, present appeal has been filed through Jail.

15. We have heard Sri Prem Shanker Tiwari, learned Amicus Curiae appearing for appellant and Sri Nikhil Chaturvedi, learned A.G.A for State-respondent at length and gone through the record carefully.

16. Learned counsel for appellant assailing impugned judgement and order of conviction of accused-appellant, advanced his submissions, in the following manners :-

(i) This is a case of circumstantial evidence where there is no direct evidence against accused-appellant.

(ii) There is no complete chain of circumstantial evidence produced by prosecution.

(iii) There is no motive to accused to commit the present crime. Motive is completely missing in the prosecution case.

(iv) PW-3 Yogesh states nothing in support of PW-1 regarding landing of accused-appellant on Yogendra's roof.

(v) Except PW-1, no other witness states anything about the fact of case.

(vi) It is apparent from the prosecution case that accused was present on spot before registration of case which leads innocence of accused.

(vii) Seeing the age of deceased, there is no possibility of rape with victim by any one. Medical evidence does not support theory of rape with victim.

(viii) There are many contradictions in evidence of witnesses rendering the case doubtful.

(ix) Prosecution, totally, failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt but Trial Court wrongly appreciated evidence and held accused-appellant guilty without proper application of mind.

17. Learned AGA opposed submissions of leaned counsel for appellant and submitted that accused is named in F.I.R.; he has been arrested immediately after the crime; his steal bangle (Kada), pant and underwear contained blood which was found to be human blood in the report of F.S.L. was recovered from the spot; PW-1 saw him landing on the roof of Yogendra from the house of Sudhir on 10:00 PM in the night on 30.10.2011 in which crime was committed; hence, prosecution has proved entire chain of circumstantial evidence and Trial Court rightly convicted accused-appellant.

18. Although, time, date, place and assassination of victim Bhagwati was not challenged from the side of defence but according to Advocate for appellant he is not responsible for the present crime. Death of Smt. Bhagwati and place where she was assassinated stand established from the evidence of prosecution.

19. Thus only question for consideration of this Court is, "whether accused-appellant is responsible for committing present crime and Trial Court has rightly convicted accused-appellant for the offence punishable under Sections 376 and 302 I.P.C. or not?"

20. Now we may proceed to consider rival submissions of learned counsel for parties and evidence of prosecution as well as some important decisions.

21. PW-1 Jai Prakash deposed that on 30.10.2011 he had gone to the house of PW-2 Kamlesh; his mother (deceased) was living in the house of his cousin; PW-2 Kamlesh was looking after the victim; in the evening on 10:00 PM, he was coming from the house of his Bhabhi PW-2 after taking meal along with his nephew Yogesh; door of his mother's house was closed whereupon he began to come back; he saw that accused-appellant Pappu @ Nandu Pandey was landing on Yogesh roof; he and his nephew Yogendra PW-3 came back to his house and slept; when on the next day, as usual, his sister-in-laws PW-2 Kamlesh visited the house of victim to provide tea and knocked door but it was not opened, then a boy was sent inside to open the door through Yogesh house's roof, who opened the door from inside; PW-2 saw that victim was lying on cot in naked position and there was sign of injuries on her face; he and other people present there saw the victim lying dead; and it was suspected that victim was killed by accused-appellant Pappu @ Nandu Pandey. In cross-examination at page 28 of paper book, he admitted that he had seen accused-appellant first time in the night of incident. He further deposed that when accused-appellant was caught by villagers and handed over to police, he saw him. When accused-appellant Pappu @ Nandu Pandey told in police station that he was resident of Bihar, he came to know about his residence. He further deposed in cross-examination at page 30 of paper book that there was an electric pole near the house of Yogendra. House of Yogendra and Sudhir are adjacent to each other. When he went to his mother's house in the night, there was electric light.

22. It is relevant to mention here that there is no description of electric pole in FIR. It is evident from the statement of PW-1 that there was light of electric when he went to the house of his mother but PW-1 says that he saw accused landing on the roof of Yogendra in the light of mobile torch which inspires no confidence.

23. PW-2 Kamlesh deposed that on 30.10.2011 her mother-in-law Smt. Bhagwati (victim) was sleeping in the house of Sudhir after taking meal; at about 10:00 PM her son Yogesh PW-3 and Dewar Jai Prakash PW-1 went to see her mother-in-law but door was closed from inside and they came back; they saw accused-appellant landing on the roof of Yogendra from the house of Sudhir in the light of mobile torch; next morning, she, as usual, went to her mother-in-law, door was closed; she sent one Ankit in the house of Sudhir where mother slept, who opened the door from inside and she saw that victim Bhagwati was lying on cot with blood and her cloths were scattered all around; she cried whereupon many people around came there and then she came to know that accused-appellant committed rape and killed her (victim).

24. PW-3 Yogesh deposed that PW-1 is his uncle and he wrote a tehrir Ex.Ka-1 on the dictation of PW-1 Jai Prakash. In cross-examination, he deposed that Ex.Ka-1 was scribed in police station in the presence of police officials.

25. PW-4 Smt. Beena deposed that deceased Bhagwati happens to be her Tai (aunt) who lived in her other house in the village. On 30.10.2011, victim slept in the night after taking meal. In the next morning, when she and PW-2 Kamlesh went to that house and found door was closed from inside. She knocked door but no response. When she sent one Ankit in the house through Yogendra house who opened the door from inside, she entered the house and saw that victim Bhagwati was lying dead with blood on cot and her cloths scattered all around. On hearing noise of weeping, PW-1 Jai Prakash and PW-3 Yogesh came there and informed police. Police inquired accused-appellant who confessed that he was in drunken position, committed rape upon Bhagwati and killed her.

26. From the evidence of PW-1, PW-2, PW-3 and PW-4, it appears that except PW-1, no other witnesses saw accused landing on the roof of Yogendra house from the roof of Sudhir in the night of 30.10.2011.

27. PW-5 Shiv Raj Singh is not eye witness and he proved Fard / memo prepared by police.

28. Only circumstantial evidence against accused-appellant is :-

(i) PW-1 Jai Prakash saw accused-appellant landing on the roof of Yogendra's house from the roof of Sudhir's house where victim slept;

(ii) Sign of rape appeared over the body of deceased;

(iii) Alleged underwear of accused-appellant bearing siemens, one Jeans Pant with blood allegedly belonged to accused-appellant.

29. As per report dated 6.4.2013 of F.S.L., Agra, human blood was found but no spermatozoa was found on the cloths allegedly belong to accused.

30. PW-5 Shiv Raj Singh deposed that police has taken one steal bangle (Kada), one pant, one underwear and one baniyan with spot of blood from the accused and prepared Fard. In his cross-examination, he admitted that when he reached the spot at about 7:00 AM and remained there by 10:00 AM, police was there from before with accused-appellant whereas Chick FIR Ex.Ka-19 reveals that it was registered in the police station concerned at about 8:30 AM on 31.10.2011, meaning thereby police arrived at spot before registration of case and accused was already present there. PW-4 Beena herself admitted that accused-appellant Pappu @ Nandu Pandey came there and police inquired from him.

31. PW-9 B.D. Pushkar, Investigating Officer stated in his cross-examination that accused-appellant was not present on spot.

32. PW-1 Jai Prakash states that he along with his nephew Yogesh, after taking meal at about 10:00 PM, went to the house of his mother. PW-3 Yogesh states nothing in his statement about these fact. Thus, he does not support statement of PW-1. PW-5 states that he reached on spot at about 7:00 AM in the morning and before reaching to spot, police and accused were present there whereas Chick FIR reveals that it has been registered in police station concerned at 8:30 AM in the presence of Investigating Officer.

33. F.S.L. report does not talk of any spermatozoa over the cloths of accused-appellant. Presence of accused-appellant on spot before registration of case leads his innocence. If he had committed any offence, he would not have remained present there.

34. Statement of PW-6 Dr. Ravindra Singh, conducting post mortem of deceased on 31.10.2011 at about 4:40 PM, shows that death was possible two days prior to post mortem due to Coma on account of head injury, while according to prosecution, victim was alive before 10:00 AM in the night of 30.10.2011, thus, medical evidence is not compatible with oral version.

35. Theory of accused-appellant landing on roof of Yogendra's house from the roof of Sudhir's house at about 10:00 PM in the night of 30.10.2011 inspires no confidence, therefore, we find that chain of circumstantial evidence leading guilt of accused-appellant is not complete.

36. In a case, which rests on circumstantial evidence, law postulates twin requirements to be satisfied. First, every link in chain of circumstances, necessary to establish the guilt of accused, must be established by prosecution beyond reasonable doubt; and second, all circumstances must be consistent only with guilt of accused.

37. In the case in hand there is no eye witness of occurrence. Case of prosecution rests on circumstantial evidence. There cannot be any dispute as to the well settled proposition that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn must or "should be" and not merely "may be" fully established. The facts so established should be consistent only with the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explicable through any other hypothesis except that the accused was guilty. Moreover, the circumstances should be conclusive in nature. There must be a chain of evidence so complete so as to not leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused, and must show that in all human probability, the offence was committed by the accused.

38. In Hanumant Govind Nargundkar & Anr. v. State of M.P., AIR 1952 SC 343, a basic judgment of Supreme Court on appreciation of evidence, when a case depends only on circumstantial evidence, where Court said:

*"... circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved..... it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

39. In Hukam Singh v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1977 SC 1063, Court said, where a case rests clearly on circumstantial evidence, inference of guilt can be justified only when all the incriminating facts and circumstances are found to be incompatible with innocence of accused or guilt of any other person.

40. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1984 SC 1622, Court, while dealing with a case based on circumstantial evidence, held that onus is on prosecution to prove that chain is complete. Infirmity or lacuna, in prosecution, cannot be cured by false defence or plea. Conditions precedent before conviction, based on circumstantial evidence, must be fully established. Court described following condition precedent :-

*(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established. The circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established.

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty.

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

(emphasis added)

41. In Ashok Kumar Chatterjee v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1989 SC 1890, Court said:

"...when a case rests upon circumstantial evidence such evidence must satisfy the following tests :-

(1) the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn, must be cogently and firmly established;

(2) those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards guilt of the accused;

(3) the circumstances, taken cumulatively; should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and none else; and,

(5) the circumstantial evidence in order to sustain conviction must be complete and incapable of explanation of any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused and such evidence should not only be consistent with the guilt of the accused but should be inconsistent with his innocence."

(emphasis added)

42. In C. Chenga Reddy and Others v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 1996(10) SCC 193, Court said:

"In a case based on circumstantial evidence, the settled law is that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is drawn should be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature. Moreover, all the circumstances should be complete and there should be no gap left in the chain of evidence. Further, the proved circumstances must be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and totally inconsistent with his innocence."

(emphasis added)

43. In Bodh Raj @ Bodha and Ors. v. State of Jammu and Kashmir, 2002(8) SCC 45 Court said :

"(1) the facts alleged as the basis of any legal inference must be clearly proved and beyond reasonable doubt connected with the factum probandum;

(2) the burden of proof is always on the party who asserts the existence of any fact, which infers legal accountability;

(3) in all cases, whether of direct or circumstantial evidence the best evidence must be adduced which the nature of the case admits;

(4) in order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation, upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt

*(5) if there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted."

(emphasis added)

44. The above principle in respect of circumstantial evidence has been reiterated in subsequent authorities also in Shivu and Another v. Registrar General High Court of Karnataka and Another, 2007(4) SCC 713 and Tomaso Bruno v. State of U.P., 2015(7) SCC 178.

45. It is well settled that where on the evidence, two possibilities are available or open which goes in favour of the prosecution and other which benefits an accused, the accused is undoubtedly entitled to benefit of doubt.

46. In Bhagwan Singh & Others v. State of M.P. (2002) 4 SCC 85, Court repeated one of the fundamental principles of criminal jurisprudence that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. Court observed as under:-

"7. The golden thread which runs through the web of administration of justice in criminal case is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. Such is not a jurisdiction limitation on the appellate court but a Judge made guidelines for circumspection. The paramount consideration of the court is to ensure that miscarriage of justice is avoided.

47. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra AIR 1984 SCC 1622, Court said that at any rate, the evidence clearly shows that two views are possible - one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other leading to his innocence. It may be very likely that the appellant may have administered the poison (potassium cyanide) to Manju but at the same time a fair possibilitiy that she herself committed suicide cannot be safely excluded or eliminated. Hence, on this ground alone appellant is entitled to the benefit of doubt resulting in his acquittal.

48. In Kali Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh, 1973 AIR 2773, Court made following observations:

"Another golden thread which runs through the web of the administration of justice in criminal cases is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted This principle has a special relevance in cases where in the guilt of the accused is sought to be established by circumstantial evidence."

49. In the present case, there is no eye witness. None has seen accused-appellant murdering deceased - Smt. Bhagwati. PW-1 to 5 failed to establish guilt of accused-appellant. There is no other evidence on record to connect accused-appellant with the present crime. Hence it can be said that crime could have been committed by someone else. There is no complete chain of circumstances to indicate that accused-appellant is the only person who murdered Smt. Bhagwati.

50. Looking into entirety of facts and circumstances of the case, as discussed above, we are of the view that Trial Court has not marshalled entire evidence on record with care and caution and is not correct in convicting accused-appellant, solely relying on the statement of PW-1, that too not supported by any other witnesses, overlooking other major contradictions in their evidence and missing chain of circumstantial evidence. In our view, accused-appellant is entitled to benefit of doubt and it cannot be said that prosecution has been successful in proving guilt of accused-appellant beyond reasonable doubt.

51. In the result, appeal succeeds and is allowed. Impugned judgment and order dated 11.5.2015 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 14, Meerut in Sessions Trial No.1395 of 2011 is hereby set aside. Accused-appellant is acquitted of charges leveled against him. He is in jail and shall be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other case.

52. Keeping in view provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C., accused-appellant is directed to furnish a personal bond and two sureties before Trial Court to its satisfaction, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in event of filing of Special Leave Petition against instant judgment or for grant of leave, appellant on receipt of notice thereof shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

53. Lower Court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent immediately to District Court concerned for compliance and further necessary action.

54. Before parting, we provide that Sri Prem Shanker Tiwari, Advocate, who has appeared as Amicus Curiae for appellant in present Jail Appeal, shall be paid counsel's fee as Rs. 11,500/-. State Government is directed to ensure payment of aforesaid fee through Additional Legal Remembrancer, posted in the office of Advocate General at Allahabad, without any delay and, in any case, within one month from the date of receipt of copy of this judgment.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 374(2) read with Section 383 of Code of Criminal Procedure (hereinafter referred to as 'Cr.P.C.') has been filed against the judgment of conviction and sentence made therein by Court of Additional Sessions judge, Court No. 5, Ghaziabad, in Sessions Trial No. 572 of 2013, arising out of Case Crime No. 1469 of 2011, under Sections 363, 366 and 376 of I.P.C., Police Station Loni, District Ghaziabad, wherein convict-appellant Sharif son of Babu has been convicted for offence punishable under Section 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C. and thereby he has been sentenced with three years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 3,000/- and in default of making payment of fine, rigorous imprisonment of six months under Section 363 of I.P.C., five years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs. 5,000/-, and in default one years additional rigorous imprisonment for offence punishable under Section 366 of I.P.C., ten years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 10,000/-, and in default two years additional rigorous imprisonment under Section 376 I.P.C., with a direction for concurrent running of sentences and adjustment of previous imprisonment, if any, in this very case crime number, as per Section 428 of Cr.P.C.

2. Memo of appeal contends that trial Court failed to appreciate facts and law placed upon record. There was no proof of rape with victim nor it was medically corroborated. First Information Report was delayed and no reason for this delay, was given. Prosecutrix was major, thereby, capable to understand her wellness. It was a fleeing with someone else but convict-appellant has been falsely implicated in this case crime number, having no independent eye-witness account. He was having no concern with prosecutrix. No circumstantial evidence was against him nor it was medically corroborated for offence of rape. Even then, judgment of conviction was awarded by trial Court, which was based on surmises and conjunctures. Prosecution failed to prove charge beyond reasonable doubt and convict-appellant was entitled for benefit of doubt. Prosecutrix is mother of one healthy child and she never said that convict-appellant is father of that child. Hence, this appeal.

3. From the very perusal of record of lower court, it is apparent that First Information Report, Ex.Ka-1, was got lodged at Police Station Loni, District-Ghaziabad on 28.12.2011 at 09:15 hrs., for an occurrence of 11.12.2011, upon the report of Jameel, son of Mateen, against Sharif, Sheru and Sonu son of Babu and Noor Hasan son of Ismail, all resident of Badarpur, Loni, Ghaziabad, for an offence punishable under Sections 363, 366 I.P.C., with contention that Jameel's daughter prosecutrix "R", aged about 15 years, was enticed and taken away on 11.11.2011 by Sharif son of Babu, aged about 45 years with 5 kids. Sharif was residing in a rented portion of a house of Nanhe, situated at Yamuna city. He was used to visit applicant's house. On above date of occurrence, entire family members, except prosecutrix "R", were out of home, for attending a marriage ceremony and prosecutrix "R" was all alone at home. Prosecutrix "R" had taken cash of Rs.1,00,000/- and ornaments, with her. She was vehemently searched. But of no trace. This fleeing was assisted by his brothers Sheru, Shabu both son of Babu and his brother-in-law Noor Hasan son of Ismail, resident of Badarpur, Loni, Ghaziabad. Sheru and others are aware of their trace. Hence, this report for legal action.

4. On 05.01.2012, while S.I. Rajpal Singh Tomar along with his police team, after moving from police station vide G.D. Entry No. 17 by 08:35 p.m., with regard to investigation and search of prosecutrix of Case Crime No. 1469 of 2011 under Sections 363, 366 I.P.C., was busy in area of his police station, he met with police team led by other Sub-Inspector and an information was received that prosecutrix along with accused, is present at Loni triangle. They were in get up of someone else. Police team rushed on spot, on the way, informant Jameel, father of prosecutrix, met together. They went on spot. Jameel identified his daughter. The person present thereat could manged to run from spot. Prosecutrix "R" was apprehended at 10:00 A.M. Recovery memo, Ex. Ka-2, was prepared on spot. Her statement, under Section 164 of Cr.P.C. was got recorded. She was medically examined and her Medico Legal Report was got prepared. Her age determination test was got conducted, wherein she was held to be of 18 years. Spot map, Ex. Ka-4, was prepared. Investigation resulted submission of charge-sheet Ex.Ka-6, for offence punishable under Sections 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C. against Sharif, Sheru, Sabu, Sanu and Noor Hasan. Magistrate took cognizance over it on 31.3.2013. As offences punishable under Sections 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C. were exclusively triable by Court of Session, hence, file was committed to Court of Session by Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ghaziabad, where Session Judge, vide order dated 28.3.2013, registered sessions trial number and then after vide order dated 28.3.2013, file was made over to A.S.J. Ist, Ghaziabad, wherein, learned counsel for the State and learned counsel for the defence, were heard and vide order dated 2.4.2013, charge for offences punishable under Sections 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C. were framed against Sharif whereas charge for offences punishable under Sections 363 and 366 were framed against Sheru, Sabu, Sonu and Noor Hasan. The same is being written in its English translation by Court itself, the vernacular part is not being reproduced.

I, Shankar Lal, Additional District and Session Judge, Ghaziabad, Court No. 5, do hereby, charge you, Sharif:

"(1) That on 11.11.2011 at any time at Jamuna City, Badarpur, within area of Police Station Loni, District Ghaziabad along with your other friends enticed minor girl of Jameel, prosecutrix, aged about 15 years and thereby kidnapped from her lawful guardianship of her legal guardians. Thereby you committed offence of kidnapping punishable under Section 363 of I.P.C. within the cognizance of above Court.

(2) That on above date, time and place, you did kidnapping of minor daughter of informant Jameel, from his legal guardianship with intent that she will be compelled to marry or likely to marry or likely that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse, thereby committed offence punishable under Section 366 of I.P.C. within the cognizance of above Court.

(3) That on above date, time and place, you enticed and thereby kidnapped minor prosecutrix daughter of informant and took her somewhere else where you committed rape against her wishes. Thereby, committed offence punishable under Section 376 of I.P.C. within the cognizance of this Court."

----------Sd----------

I, Shankar Lal, Additional District and Session Judge, Ghaziabad, Court No. 5, do hereby, charge you, Sheru, Sabu, Sonu and Noor Hasan:

"(1) That on 11.11.2011 at any time at Jamuna City, Badarpur, within area of Police Station Loni, District Ghaziabad along with your other friends enticed minor girl of Jameel, prosecutrix, aged about 15 years and thereby kidnapped from her lawful guardianship of her legal guardians. Thereby you committed offence of kidnapping punishable under Section 363 of I.P.C. within the cognizance of above Court.

(2) That on above date, time and place, you did kidnapping of minor daughter of informant Jameel, from his legal guardianship with intent that she will be compelled to marry or likely to marry or likely that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse, thereby committed offence punishable under Section 366 of I.P.C. within the cognizance of above Court."

5. Charges were read over to accused persons. Who pleaded not guilty and claimed for trial. Prosecution examined informant PW-1 Jameel, PW-2 and prosecutrix 'R', daughter of Jameel, PW-3, Dr. Sumata Talib, PW-4 Sarfaraj, PW-5 Smt. Vakeela, PW-6 Investigating Officer S.I. Rajpal Singh Tomar, PW-7 Constable Rahul Kumar.

6. With a view to obtain explanation, if any, and version of accused persons, their statements were got recorded under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. wherein each of accused persons gave one and same answer to each of the questions put to them under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. In answer of each questions that testimony of PW-2, PW-6 are wrong. Regarding testimony of PW-3 Dr. Sumata

Talib about Ex. Ka-3 and Medico Legal Examination made on prosecutrix as well as testimony of PW-6, regarding preparation of recovery memo Ex. Ka-2, thereby determination of age by medico legal age determination wherein age of prosecutrix was held to be of 18 years, has not been submitted. Each of accused persons replied that they are innocent and they have been falsely implicated in this very case crime number.

7. No evidence in defence was there.

8. After hearing learned Additional District Government Counsel (Cri) and learned counsel for the defence, the impugned judgment of conviction and sentence was made therein, regarding convict Sharif for offence punishable under Section 363, 366 and 376 and judgment of acquittal of those charges, leveled against Sheru, Sabu, Sonu and Noor Hasan, was passed.

9. No state appeal or appeal by prosecutrix or informant, against judgment of acquittal, passed for accused Sheru, Sabu, Sonu and Noor Hasan, is there on record. This appeal is limited against judgment of conviction and sentence passed therein for convict-appellant Sharif, who has been convicted and sentenced as above.

10. Heard Sri Madhvendra Singh, Advocate, holding brief of Sri Awadhesh Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the appellant as well as Sri Munne Lal, learned AGA for the State.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant argued that charge was made for offence of kidnapping of a minor girl of informant, whereas she has been held to be of 18 years of age in medical age determination. Hence, neither she was minor nor of unsound mind. Being above 18 years, offence punishable under Section 363 I.P.C. is not made out. Same was the situation for offence punishable under Section 366 I.P.C. Because in Ex.Ka-1, itself it was mentioned that prosecutrix had eloped herself with preparation by taking Rs. 1 lac in cash and golden ornaments. She was major and held to be of 18 years in medical age determination, hence, she went upon her own volition, after making preparation by taking Rs. 1 lac and golden ornaments, while fleeing. Hence, it was not kidnapping or abduction, with above essential ingredients of having intention that she will be compelled to marry or likely to marry or likely that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse. Co-accused persons Sheru, Sabu, Sonu and Noor Hasan, against whom, same set of evidence was there, have been acquitted of the offence of kidnapping and abduction with a view that she will be compelled to marry or likely to marry or likely that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse. No appeal against above judgment of acquittal is there. Hence, there was no proof beyond reasonable doubt for those offences against convict-appellant Sharif too. Regarding offence of rape, there is material contradiction, exaggeration and embellishment, with no corroboration from medical evidence or independent eye-witness account. Even then, above conviction with above deterrent punishment, is there.

12. There remained single testimony of prosecutrix, that too, with major contradiction. Convict-appellant has been sentenced with ten years rigorous imprisonment, which is the highest one for offence punishable under Section 376 I.P.C. and he is languishing in jail since 11.11.2011. Punishment awarded is of maximum ten years, out of which seven years has been served by convict-appellant. Whereas, punishment for offence of rape, provided under Section 376 of I.P.C., was imprisonment of either description of a term, which shall not be less than seven years, which may be for life or for a term which may extend to ten years and shall also be liable to fine and the maximum sentence of ten years with fine of Rs. 10,000/-, has been imposed whereas minimum sentence was seven years without fine but the Presiding Judge has sentenced with ten years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 10,000/-, which shows that second portion of punishment has been exercised, in which maximum sentence of ten years with fine of Rs. 10,000/-, has been awarded. Hence, this Court of appeal to give a sentence for period already undergone.

13. Sri Munne Lal, learned AGA argued that trial judge has rightly appreciated facts and law, placed before it and has convicted appellant Sharif for offence punishable under Section 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C., wherein sentence of three years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs. 3,000/-, and in default six months additional imprisonment under Section 363 I.P.C., five years rigorous imprisonment and with fine of Rs. 5,000/-, and in default one year additional imprisonment under Section 366 I.P.C. and ten years rigorous imprisonment and with fine of Rs. 10,000/-, and in default one year additional imprisonment under Section 376 I.P.C. has been awarded, which was adequate sentence in perspective of fact of circumstances, in which accused being relative of prosecutrix and of being 45 years of age, enticed prosecutrix, was minor and committed rape with her. He was having siblings, even then committed this offence. Hence, even on the point of sentence, appeal be dismissed.

14. Apex Court in Narbada Prasad vs Chhagan Lal And Ors AIR 1969 SC 393, has held that in an appeal the burden is on the appellant to prove how the judgment under appeal is wrong? He must show where the assessment has gone wrong? In criminal trial Apex Court in Kali Ram vs State Of Himachal Pradesh AIR 1973 SC 2773, has propounded that the onus is upon the prosecution to prove the different ingredients of the offence and unless it discharges that onus, the prosecution cannot succeed. In Partap vs The State of U.P. AIR 1976 SC 966, Apex Court has held that prosecution has to prove case beyond all reasonable doubt whereas accused is to prove only establishing preponderance of probabilities. Though Apex Court in Shankarlal Gyarasilal Dixit vs State Of Maharashtra AIR 1981 SC 765 has propounded that feasibility of defence does not shape prosecution case and suspicion how so strong cannot take place of proof.

15. Section 363 I.P.C. provides:- "whoever kidnaps any person from India or from lawful guardianship, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine." Kidnapping from lawful guardianship has been defined under Section 361 I.P.C. that "whoever takes or entices any minor under sixteen years of age, if a male, or under eighteen years of age if a female, or any person of unsound mind, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor or person of unsound mind, without the consent of such guardian, is said to kidnap such minor or person from lawful guardianship, i.e. for punishment of offence under Section 363 I.P.C." Section 361 I.P.C. and its ingredients are to be proved, which requires taking or enticing of a minor under 16 if male and under 18 if female, from lawful guardianship or a person of unsound mind of any age, without consent of that guardian. Apex Court in Thakorlal D. Vadgama vs The State Of Gujarat AIR 1973 SC 2313, has propounded the words "whoever takes or entices any minor" under Section 361 I.P.C. and observed as to what actually means. According to the Supreme Court, the word "takes", does not necessarily connote taking by force and does not confined to use of force, actual or constructive. These words merely mean "to cause to woke", "to support" or "to get into possession". The gravamen of this offence under Section 361 I.P.C. lies in the taking or enticing of a minor, specified in this section out of the keeping of the lawful guardianship without the consent of such guardian.

16. On a plain reading of this Section, the consent of the minor, who is taken or enticed, is wholly immaterial, it is only the guardian's consent which takes the case within its purview. Nor is it necessary that the taking or enticing must be shown to have been by means of force or fraud. Persuasion by the accused person, which creates willingness on the part of minor to be taken out of the keeping of the lawful guardianship would be sufficient to attract this Section 361 I.P.C., as has been held by Apex Court in State of Haryana Vs. Raja Ram AIR 1973 SC 819. In the present case, Ex. Ka-1, First Information Report was got lodged by PW-1 Jameel, who, in his cross-examination, has said prosecutrix to be of 15 to 16 years and she was missing since evening of 11.11.2011. This occurred, while this informant and other family members, were not at their house and prosecutrix eloped with cash of Rs. 1 lac and ornaments of gold and silver and when being searched, it was apprised by Sarfaraz and his wife that Sharif had come and had taken prosecutrix with him. Meaning thereby, Ex.Ka-1, was got reported on the basis of information given by Sarfaraz and his wife and this witness is not eye-witness account of same. He, in his cross-examination, has specifically said that he is not aware as to when and with whom his daughter went. Whereas, prosecutrix has been held to be of 18 years of age in medico legal examination, wherein, she was written to be of 18 years by Medical Board of Chief Medical Officer, Ghaziabad. She, in her examination, was having with no mark of injury over her person. Hence, prosecutrix being of 18 years, was major and she had gone with preparation by taking cash of Rs. 1 lac and golden and silver jewelry with her. Hence, this was not an enticing or kidnapping of any person from India or from lawful guardianship because the essential ingredients of kidnapping from lawful guardianship, provided under Section 361 of I.P.C., could not be proved. Hence, the conviction and sentence awarded by trial Court for offence punishable under Section 363 of I.P.C., was not substantiated with evidence on record, for which this appeal is to be partly allowed.

17. Regarding offence punishable under Section 366 of I.P.C., prosecutrix being major had gone with convict appellant with preparation by taking Rs. 1 lac in cash and golden and silver ornaments with her, as was written in Ex. Ka-1. Recovery memo, Ex. Ka-2, reveals that prosecutrix was recovered from Loni Tiraha and she had never made any protest or any complaint in between leaving house and recovery at Loni. Prosecutrix, in her statement recorded under Section 164 of Cr.P.C., Ex. Ka-1, has said herself to be of 15 years and has admitted that she went with Sharif with cash of Rs. 1 lac at Agra, where she resided for two months. But she never lodged any protest or any report about his abduction or kidnapping. Hence, offence punishable under Section 366 of I.P.C. was also not proved beyond reasonable doubt. Rather, it was a consensual fleeing by prosecutrix, who was major and had left her home with preparation by taking Rs. 1 lac in cash and golden and silver ornaments. Hence, the conviction and sentence awarded for this offence punishable under Section 366 of I.P.C., was not substantiated by evidence on record, for which this appeal merits its allowance.

18. Regarding charge No. 3 i.e. offence of rape, punishable under Section 376 I.P.C., Section 375 of I.P.C. provides "A man is said to commit "rape" who, except in the case hereinafter excepted, has sexual intercourse with a woman under circumstances falling under any of the six following descriptions:--

(Secondly) --Without her consent.

(Thirdly) -- With her consent, when her consent has been obtained by putting her or any person in whom she is interested in fear of death or of hurt.

(Fourthly) --With her consent, when the man knows that he is not her husband, and that her consent is given because she believes that he is another man to whom she is or believes herself to be lawfully married.

(Fifthly)-- With her consent, when, at the time of giving such consent, by reason of unsoundness of mind or intoxication or the administration by him personally or through another of any stupefying or unwholesome substance, she is unable to understand the nature and consequences of that to which she gives consent.

(Sixthly) -- With or without her consent, when she is under sixteen years of age. Explanation.--Penetration is sufficient to constitute the sexual intercourse necessary to the offence of rape.

(Exception) --Sexual intercourse by a man with his own wife, the wife not being under fifteen years of age, is not rape.

19. Section 376 I.P.C. provides for punishment of rape that - (1) "Whoever, except in the cases provided for by sub-section (2), commits rape shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may be for life or for a term which may extend to ten years and shall also be liable to fine unless the women raped is his own wife and is not under twelve years of age, in which cases, he shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years or with fine or with both: Provided that the court may, for adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment, impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than seven years."

20. Prosecutrix, PW-2, in her statement recorded under Section 164 of Cr.P.C., Ex. Ka-1, has categorically said that she was forcibly subjected to rape. She has proved her testimony recorded under Section 164 of Cr.P.C., Ex. Ka-1. In her cross-examination, there is no material contradiction, exaggeration or embellishment on this part of her testimony. Rather, she has reiterated that the accused was subjecting her to rape. Though, a lengthy cross-examination at various stages has been made by learned counsel for the defence but rather offence of rape, there is no material variance.

21. PW-3, Dr. Sumata Talib, in her testimony has formally proved Ex.Ka-3 (Medico Legal Report). There is no contest on her testimony.

22. PW-6, Sub-Inspector Rajpal Singh Tomar, in his testimony, has proved that while deputed as Investigation Officer of this case crime number, he got prosecutrix medically examined. Then after, her statement was got recorded under Section 164 of Cr.P.C. Spot map was got prepared. Formal proof of Ex. Ka-4 and Ex.Ka-5, was made by this witness.

23. PW-7, Constable-Clerk Rahul Kumar, who has formally proved registration of this case crime number, chick FIR and G.D. Entry of same, Ex.Ka-6 and Ex.Ka-7. There is no variance in his testimony.

24. PW-4, Sarfaraz, is hostile witness, who has denied that he had ever disclosed the fact that Sharif had taken prosecutrix and this was disclosed by him to informant.

25. PW-5, Shakeela, wife of Sarfaraz, who too, had resiled from this statement of informant PW-1. These were the evidence, who given by prosecution on record. Hence, under all above evidence, the offence punishable under Section 376 of I.P.C. was proved beyond doubt and for which there was conviction by trial Judge.

26. Moreso, learned counsel for the appellant has pressed his appeal on the point of sentence, with request of imposing sentence of period undergone. Hence, judgment of conviction is not so being disputed.

27. Regarding Section 376 I.P.C., the minimum sentence provided for offence of rape is seven years and in case of punishment, less than seven years, Court is required to write reasons being adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment for imposing a sentence of imprisonment for a term less than seven years.

28. Apex Court in Gopal Singh vs State Of Uttarakhand (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 608 has propounded:-

"Just punishment is the collective cry of the society. While the collective cry has to be kept uppermost in the mind, simultaneously the principle of proportionality between the crime and punishment cannot be totally brushed aside. The principle of just punishment is the bedrock of sentencing in respect of a criminal offence. A punishment should not be disproportionately excessive. The concept of proportionality allows a significant discretion to the Judge but the same has to be guided by certain principles. In certain cases, the nature of culpability, the antecedents of the accused, the factum of age, the potentiality of the convict to become a criminal in future, capability of his reformation and to lead an acceptable life in the prevalent milieu, the effect - propensity to become a social threat or nuisance, and sometimes lapse of time in the commission of the crime and his conduct in the interregnum bearing in mind the nature of the offence, etc. etc."

29. Though in a case of rape, when an adult commits rape on a girl of tender age, deterrent punishment is called for, taking a lenient view is out of question. Once a person is convicted for offence of rape, he should be treated with heavy hands and undeserved indulgence or liberal attitude in not awarding adequate sentence is improper. As per law laid down by Apex Court in State of U.P. vs. Babu Lal, AIR 2008 SC 582, the adequate and proper sentencing is to be made.

30. In the present case, convict-appellant has been sentenced with ten years rigorous imprisonment. Prosecutrix, who was major, was subjected to rape. Under all above facts and circumstances, award of eight years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs. 10,000/-, and in default two years rigorous imprisonment will proved to be adequate sentence.

31. Accordingly, this appeal is to be partly allowed regarding conviction and sentence awarded for offence punishable under Sections 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C., hence, the conviction and sentence awarded by trial Court is being amended as follows:-

Order

(1) Convict-appellant Sharif is being convicted for offence punishable under Section 376 I.P.C. He is being sentenced with eight years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 10,000/-, and in default two years additional rigorous imprisonment for offence punishable under Section 376 I.P.C. His previous incarceration in this very case crime number shall be counted towards this sentence under Section 428 of I.P.C. He is being acquitted of the charge leveled for offence punishable under Sections 363 and 366 of I.P.C.

(2) Copy of the judgment along with lower Court record be transmitted to trial Court for amendment of warrant of conviction and sentence as per above conviction and sentence and for follow up action.

A. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act,1872 – Circumstantial evidence - last seen - no eye witness of occurrence - the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn must or "should be" and not merely "may be" fully established - The facts so established should be consistent only with the guilt of the accused - the circumstances should be conclusive in nature -There must be a chain of evidence so complete so as to not leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused, and must show that in all human probability, the offence was committed by the accused - it is not prudent to base conviction solely on "last seen theory" - "Last seen theory" should be applied taking into consideration the case of prosecution in its entirety and keeping in mind circumstances that precede and follow the point of being so last seen - There is no evidence or any other link circumstantial leading to guilt of accused-appellant - complete chain of circumstantial evidence could not be established - prosecution could not prove complete links of circumstantial evidence beyond reasonable doubt against the accused-appellant - Trial Court committed an error in holding accused-appellant guilty under Section 302/34 IPC ignoring the missing link of circumstantial evidence and material contradiction in the statement of PWs. (Delivered by Hon'ble Rajendra Kumar-IV, J.)

1. This jail appeal has been filed by accused-appellant, Mukesh @ Murari through Superintendent of District Jail, Kannauj against impugned judgment and order dated 30.11.2016 passed by Smt. Preeti Srivastava, Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Kannauj in Session Trial No. 340 of 2008, (State v. Mukesh and others), arising out of Case Crime No. 1020 of 2008, Police Station Kannauj, District Kannauj, under Sections 302 read with 34 IPC. In the event of default of payment of fine, he has to undergo further two years simple Imprisonment.

2. 3. PW-7 Sub Inspector R.V. Singh Chauhan, on the said information held

4. PW-5 Dr. Nanhoomal conducted postmortem over the dead body of unknown person aged about 25 years and found one ligature mark 32 x 4 cm around the neck as ante mortem injury. Doctor further opined that death was possible due to shock asphyxia as a result of strangulation on account of ante mortem ligature mark and three days prior to postmortem. He prepared postmortem report Ex.Ka-4.

5. PW-6 C.P. Rajkumar Srivastava converted the matter at crime no.1020 of 2008, under Section 302 IPC against unknown person on the basis of postmortem report dated 22.07.2008 and entry of the case was made in General Diary, copy whereof is Ex.Ka-5.

6. PW-8, Dayanand Singh the then Inspector In-charge of Police Station Kannauj, District Kannauj, on 22.07.2008 under took investigation of case crime no.1020 of 2008, under Section 302 IPC and commenced investigation, recorded statement of witnesses, visited spot and prepared site plan Ex.Ka-11. On 28.07.2008 he tried to know about the deceased.

7. On 05.08.2008, PW-1 Munni Devi submitted a written report Ex.Ka-1 in Police Station Kannauj stating that his son Sunder Lal was taken by accused Mukesh @ Murari in the morning of 19.07.2008 from her house and since then he is missing. She came to know that a dead body of unknown person was found in the Village Haibatpur Katra and prayed that she may be permitted to see the clothes of dead body, so as to know where about of her son. She was shown photographs and clothes of deceased whereupon it was recognized to be of Sunder Lal.

8. PW-8 SI Dayanand Singh further recorded statement of PW-1 Smt. Munni Devi, PW-4 Smt. Suman; Rajesh, Smt. Sarojini and Babu Ram (not examined); arrested accused Mukesh @ Murari and Shera, recorded their statements and after completing entire formalities of investigation, submitted charge-sheet against Moolchand, Shera and accused-appellant Mukesh @ Murari.

9. After taking cognizance of the offences, case being exclusively triable by Court of Sessions was committed to Sessions Court, where from it was transferred to Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Kannauj for disposal according to law.

In this manner you people committed an offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. read with Section 34 I.P.C., which is in my cognizance.

I, hereby direct that the trial of you accused persons for the aforementioned charge shall be conducted by this court. "

(English Translation by Court)

11. Accused persons denied the charge levelled against them, claimed false implication, pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

12. Other accused persons, namely, Moolchand and Shere died during trial and their case stood abated as mentioned in para 8 of the judgement of Court below.

13. In order to substantiate its case, prosecution examined as many as eight witnesses, out of whom PWs 1, 2 and 4 are witnesses of fact and rest are formal witnesses.

14. PW-1 is mother of deceased Sunder Lal, she proved last seen theory and written report Ex.Ka-1 which was submitted by her in Police Station concerned. PW-2 Gauri and PW-4 Smt. Suman, sisters of deceased Sunder Lal also proved last seen theory. PW-3 is a Village Chaukidar who submitted report Ex.Ka-2 informing Police about the dead body. PW-5 is Doctor who conducted postmortem over the dead body of unknown person, later identified as Sunder Lal and prepared postmortem report Ex.Ka-4. PW-6 C.P. Raj Kumar converted case under Section 302 IPC against unknown person on the basis of postmortem report. PW-7 SI R.V. Singh Chauhan held inquest report over the dead body of deceased and prepared inquest report and other relevant papers. PW-8 Dayanand Singh, the then Inspector In-charge of Police Station Kannauj conducted investigation and submitted charge-sheet.

15. Subsequent to closure of prosecution evidence, statement of accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded by Trial Court, explaining entire evidence and other incriminating circumstances. In the statement, accused-appellant gave an usual answer by submitting that entire story of prosecution was wrong; statement of witnesses are wrong and he desired to lead evidence. Further in response of question no.15, he stated that he is a labour, his parents are old and he was implicaed falsely in the present case by Police because one day he refused to work of Police without money.

16. He examined Smt. Ram Sarojini wife of Sher Singh @ Shera as DW-1. She deposed that she has contested an election of Member of Block Development Council in 2005. Rakesh son of Radhey Shyam contested against her but she won the election, due to which Rakesh had grudge with her. At that time Constable Raj Bahadur used to visited the house of Rakesh. Her husband was taken to Police Station by Constable Raj Bahadur stating that some inquiry is to be made whereupon she also went to Police Station with her husband. Her husband was detained in Police Station saying that he would be free by evening but he was kept about four days and falsely challaned thereafter.

17. Trial Court, after hearing learned counsel for both the parties and considering entire evidence (oral and documentary) led by prosecution, found accused-appellant guilty of committing an offence of murder of Sunder Lal punishable under Section 302 IPC, convicted and sentenced, as stated above.

18. We have heard Sri Ashok Kumar Yadav, learned Amicus Curiae for appellant and Sri Syed Ali Murtuza, learned AGA for State and travelled through record with valuable assistance of learned counsel for parties.

19. Learned counsel for accused-appellant assailed impugned judgement and order of conviction and sentence, took us through the record and advanced following submissions :-

i. No body has seen accused-appellant committing murder of Sunder Lal.

ii. Case rests on circumstantial evidence. PWs 1, 2 and 4 are the member of same family and related to deceased. They are only witnesses of last seen.

iii. There is no other evidence direct or circumstantial to connect accused-appellant with the present crime.

iv. There is no motive to accused-appellant to commit murder of Sunder Lal.

v. As per prosecution case, dead body of Sunder Lal was allegedly lying in the field of one Shovran Lal resident of Haibatpur Katra, Police Station Kannauj. There is no missing report of victim. Body of deceased was identified after two weeks from his murder by PW-1 on the basis of photographs and his clothes along-with other articles.

vi. There is no complete chain of circumstantial evidence leading to guilt of accused-appellant.

vii. There are major contradiction in the statement of witnesses rendering prosecution case doubtful and unreliable.

viii. Prosecution failed to establish its case beyond reasonable doubtful and accused-appellant is entitled to benefit of doubt.

20. Learned AGA opposed the submissions and submitted that there is no reason to prosecution to falsely implicate or connect accused-appellant with the present crime like murder; deceased Sunder Lal was identified by her mother by seeing his clothes and other articles; PWs 1, 2 and 4 established last seen theory that they have seen victim last in the association of accused-appellant; it is only the accused-appellant who can offer explanation what happened with the victim and who murdered him; accused-appellant has not offered any proper explanation; accused-appellant is only and only person who committed murder of Sunder Lal; hence Trial Court has rightly convicted accused-appellant.

21. Although murder of Sunder Lal could not be disputed from the side of defence but according to his Advocate for accused-appellant, he is not responsible for the death of Sunder Lal. Evidence of PW-3 Kishori Lal, PW-7 SI R.V. Singh Chauhan and PW-5 Dr. Nanhoomal established that dead body of unknown person, later on identified as Sunder Lal was found in the field of one Shovran resident of Haibatpur Katra and he was assassinated by some one by compressing his neck and ante mortem ligature mark was found on his neck.

22. Thus the only question remains for consideration is "whether accused-appellant has committed murder of Sunder Lal or not and Trial Court has rightly convicted him as stated above or not?"

23. It would be appropriate for us to consider, briefly, statements of witnesses of prosecution as well as the rival submissions of learned Counsel for parties.

24. PW-1 Munni Devi deposed that on the fateful day at about 08:00 AM, she was present in her house along-with her daughter Gauri and her son Sunder Lal; accused-appellant Mukesh came and took her son Sunder Lal on the pretext of work (majdoori); when her son refused to go with him, accused-appellant assured to come after some time and accused-appellant and her son went together; thereafter victim did not come back to his house; in the morning, she contacted accused Mukesh and asked about her son Sunder Lal (victim), who answered that he left him (victim) near Phoolmati Mandir; Mukesh disappeared thereafter; after three days, she came to know that one dead body was found in the field in Haibatpur Katra; she identified dead body as her son Sunder Lal in Police Station on seeing photographs and his clothes; and she admitted in her cross-examination that there was no enmity between both.

25. PW-2 Gauri, happens to be sister of deceased, deposed that on the day of incident at about 08:AM, she (Gauri), her mother (PW-1 Munni Devi) and victim (Sunder Lal) were in the house; accused-appellant Mukesh came to her house and took victim with him on the pretext of work (majdoori); when he did not come back, she and her mother searched him every where but after a drastic search victim was not found; in the same night and next morning, he asked accused-appellant Mukesh about his brother but he answered that he had left victim near Phoolmati Mandir; three days after, she came to know that a dead body was found in Haibatpur Katra, she went to Police Station and saw photographs, and Jeans pants, green shirt and black sleeper of her brother and recognized them to be of his brother Sunder Lal; Police told him that legs of body were tied with one towel which was shown to him, and she recognized it to be that of Mukesh.

26. PW-3 Kishori Lal, Chaukidar of Village Haibatpur, deposed that he has submitted a written report Ex.Ka-2 stating that a dead body was one unknown person was lying in the filed of one Shovran situated at Haibatpur Katra.

27. PW-4 Smt. Suman, sister of deceased Sunder Lal, deposed that she was living along-with her husband and children in the house of her mother; deceased Sunder Lal was her brother; on the fateful day at about 07:30 AM, accused-appellant Mukesh took his brother on the pretext of work (majdoori) in his presence; at that time her mother, sister Gauri and Sita were also present in the house; when his brother Sunder Lal did not return to his house in the evening, her mother went to the house of accused-appellant Mukesh but neither he (Mukesh) nor his brother (Sunder Lal) was found there; third day when she came to Saraimeer, she saw accused Moolchand near water tank; about 15 or 16 day, after the incident, she came to know that a dead body of unknown person was found in Haibatpur Katra, then she, her sister Gauri and her mother went to Police Station along-with Santosh and Babu, and seeing the photographs and clothes of her brother; they identified it to be of victim Sunder Lal.

28. PWs 1, 2 and 4 are the witnesses of last seen, who have seen the victim last in the company of accused-appellant. There is no other evidence to connect accused-appellant with the present crime. Evidently from the date, victim is said to have been taken by accused-appellant on the pretext of work (majdoori). PW-1 appeared in Police Station first time after two weeks of incident while PWs 2 and 4 stated that they came to know about the dead body of one person in Haibatpur Katra after two or three days.

29. In a case, which rests on circumstantial evidence, law postulates, twin requirements to be satisfied. First, every link in chain of circumstances, necessary to establish the guilt of accused, must be established by prosecution beyond reasonable doubt; and second, all circumstances must be consistent only with guilt of accused.

30. In the case in hand there is no eye witness of occurrence and case of prosecution rests on circumstantial evidence. There cannot be any dispute as to the well settled proposition that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn must or "should be" and not merely "may be" fully established. The facts so established should be consistent only with the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explicable through any other hypothesis except that the accused was guilty. Moreover, the circumstances should be conclusive in nature. There must be a chain of evidence so complete so as to not leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused, and must show that in all human probability, the offence was committed by the accused.

31. In Hanumant v. The State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1952 SC 343, as long back as in 1952, Hon'ble Mahajan, J. expounded various concomitant of proof of a case based purely on circumstantial evidence and said:

*"... circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved..... it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

(emphasis added)"

32. In Hukam Singh v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1977 SC 1063, Court said, where a case rests clearly on circumstantial evidence, inference of guilt can be justified only when all the incriminating facts and circumstances are found to be incompatible with innocence of accused or guilt of any other person.

33. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1984 SC 1622, Court while dealing with a case based on circumstantial evidence, held, that onus is on prosecution to prove that chain is complete. Infirmity or lacuna, in prosecution, cannot be cured by false defence or plea. Conditions precedent before conviction, based on circumstantial evidence, must be fully established. Court described following condition precedent :-

*"(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established. The circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established.

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty.

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(emphasis added)

34. In Ashok Kumar Chatterjee v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1989 SC 1890, Court said:

"...when a case rests upon circumstantial evidence such evidence must satisfy the following tests :-

*(1) the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn, must be cogently and firmly established;

*(2) those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards guilt of the accused;

(3) the circumstances, taken cumulatively; should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and none else; and,

(4) the circumstantial evidence in order to sustain conviction must be complete and incapable of explanation of any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused and such evidence should not only be consistent with the guilt of the accused but should be inconsistent with his innocence."

(emphasis added)

35. In C. Chenga Reddy and Others v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 1996(10) SCC 193, Court said:

"In a case based on circumstantial evidence, the settled law is that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is drawn should be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature. Moreover, all the circumstances should be complete and there should be no gap left in the chain of evidence. Further, the proved circumstances must be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and totally inconsistent with his innocence. "

(emphasis added)

36. In Bodh Raj @ Bodha and Ors. v. State of Jammu and Kashmir,

2002(8) SCC 45 Court quoted from Sir Alfred Wills, "Wills' Circumstantial Evidence" (Chapter VI) and in para 15 of judgment said:

"(1) the facts alleged as the basis of any legal inference must be clearly proved and beyond reasonable doubt connected with the factum probandum;

(2) the burden of proof is always on the party who asserts the existence of any fact, which infers legal accountability;

(3) in all cases, whether of direct or circumstantial evidence the best evidence must be adduced which the nature of the case admits;

(4) in order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation, upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt,

*(5) if there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted."

(emphasis added)

37. The above principle in respect of circumstantial evidence has been reiterated in subsequent authorities also in Shivu and Another v. Registrar General High Court of Karnataka and Another, 2007(4) SCC 713 and Tomaso Bruno v. State of U.P., 2015(7) SCC 178.

38. In State of U.P. vs. Satish, 2005(3) SCC 114, Court said :-

"The last seen theory comes into play where the time-gap between the point of time when the accused and the deceased were seen last alive and when the deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of the crime becomes impossible. It would be difficult in some cases to positively establish that the deceased was last seen with the accused when there is a long gap and possibility of other persons coming in between exists. In the absence of any other positive evidence to conclude that the accused and the deceased were last seen together, it would be hazardous to come to a conclusion of guilt in those cases."

39. In Jaswant Gir v. State of Punjab, 2005(12) SCC 438, Court also said that in absence of any other links in chain of circumstantial evidence, it is not possible to convict appellant solely on the basis of last seen evidence, even if, version of witnesses of fact in this regard is believed.

40. It is settled that it is not prudent to base conviction solely on "last seen theory". "Last seen theory" should be applied taking into consideration the case of prosecution in its entirety and keeping in mind circumstances that precede and follow the point of being so last seen.

41. In the present case, only evidence against the accused-appellant to connect him with the present crime is last seen theory as set forth by PWs 1, 2 and 4. There is no evidence or any other link circumstantial leading to guilt of accused-appellant. Evidence of PWs 1, 2 and 4 also inspires no confidence for the reasons that there are major contradiction in their evidence. PWs 1 and 2 talk of knowledge of dead body in Haibatpur Katra after three days of his disappearance while PW-4 deposed that after 14-15 days from disappearance of his brother, she came to know that one dead body was found in Haibatpur Katra thereupon she along-with her mother and sister went to Police Station and recognized photographs and other articles belonged his brother Sunder Lal. Evidently PW-1 went to Police Station concerned two weeks after disappearance of her son and submitted written report Ex.Ka-1. There is no plausible explanation as to why missing report of victim was not got registered in Police Station earlier. Other links of circumstantial evidence are completely missing.

42. Considering the entire evidence of last seen theory and legal preposition discussed above. In our view, complete chain of circumstantial evidence could not be established. Other point raised by learned Counsel for accused-appellant need not be discussed.

43. In our considered opinion, we are of the view that prosecution could not prove complete links of circumstantial evidence beyond reasonable doubt against the accused-appellant and Trial Court committed an error in holding accused-appellant guilty under Section 302/34 IPC ignoring the missing link of circumstantial evidence and material contradiction in the statement of PWs.

44. In view of aforesaid discussion and legal preposition, present jail appeal is hereby allowed. Impugned judgment and order dated 30.11.2016 passed by Smt. Preeti Srivastava, Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Kannauj in Session Trial No. 340 of 2008, (State v. Mukesh and others), arising out of Case Crime No. 1020 of 2008, Police Station Kannauj, District Kannauj, under Sections 302 read with 34 IPC is set aside.

45. Accused-appellant is acquitted of charged levelled against him. He shall be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other crime.

46. Keeping in view provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C., appellant is directed to furnish a personal bond and two sureties before Trial Court to its satisfaction, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in event of filing of Special Leave Petition against instant judgment or for grant of leave, appellant on receipt of notice thereof shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

47. Lower Court record along-with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to District Court concerned and also copy of this judgment be sent to Superintendent Jail concerned through District Judge concerned for immediate compliance and further necessary action.

48. Before parting, we provide that Sri Ashok Kumar Yadav, Advocate, who has appeared as Amicus Curiae for appellant in present Jail Appeal, shall be paid counsel's fee as Rs. 10,000/-. State Government is directed to ensure payment of aforesaid fee through Additional Legal Remembrancer, posted in the office of Advocate General at Allahabad, without any delay and, in any case, within one month from the date of receipt of copy of this judgment.

Counsel for the Opposite Party:

A. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act,1872 – Time, date and place of incident and murder of victim stand established - PW-5 is only the alleged eye witness - Conduct of PW-5 like not informing the owner or Police about incident till PW-8 arrived is not natural - Explanation submitted by him is not cogent and convincing - PW-5 has failed to establish the guilt of accused-appellant - no other evidence on record to connect accused-appellant with the present crime - it can be said that crime could have been committed by someone else - prosecution failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against accused-appellant - Trial Court has not appreciated the entire evidence in right prospective and committed manifest error in convicting the accused-appellant.(Para 21,39,40)

B. Evidence Law-Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Section 134 - Number of witnesses - No particular number of witnesses required for the proof of any fact." - conviction can be based on single and sole testimony but it must be cogent, natural and reliable - if there are doubts about the testimony, Court will insist on corroboration - Time-honoured principle is that evidence has to be weighed and not counted - It is, therefore, open to a competent court to fully and completely rely on a solitary witness and record conviction - where on the evidence, two possibilities are available or open which goes in favour of the prosecution and other which benefits an accused, the accused is undoubtedly entitled to benefit of doubt.(Para 29,30,31, 35)

12. Accused-appellant pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

13. In order to prove guilt of accused-appellant, prosecution examined as many as nine witnesses, in the following manner:-

Sr. No.	Name of PW	Nature of witness	Paper proved
1	Indrajeet	Fact	Ex.Ka-1
2	Constable Satish Kumar	Formal	Ex.Ka-2
3	Dr. Dinesh Mohan	Formal	Ex.Ka-3

	Saxena
4	Munna Bhai	Formal	Ex.Ka-1
5	Teeka Ram	Fact	Ex.Ka-4
6	S.I. Ram Sewak	Formal	Ex.Ka-9
7	Constable Jeet Singh	Formal	Ex.Ka- 10 & 11
8	Murli Dhar Sharma	Fact	Ex.Ka-12
9	S.I. Arun Kumar Singh	Formal	Ex.Ka-15

14. PW-1 Indrajeet is brother of deceased Raju and informant but he is not eye witness; PW-2 Constable Satish Kumar is witness of inquest who was present at the time of inquest, Body was handed over to him for postmortem; PW-3 Dr. Dinesh Mohan Saxena conducted autopsy on the dead body of deceased and prepared postmortem report Ex.Ka-3; PW-4 Munna Bhai is a scribe of written tehreer Ex.Ka-1, he scribe Ex.Ka-1 at the dictation of PW-1; PW-5 Teeka Ram is eye witness of incident; PW-6 SI Ram Sweak is a formal witness and held inquest over the dead body of Raju; PW-7 Constable Jeet Singh registered chick FIR Ex.Ka-11 and made an entry in G.D. PW-8 Murli Dhar Sharma, owner of Hotel, is witness of fard of blood stained and simple earth, he is not eye witness; and PW-9 SI Arun Kumar Singh is Investigating Officer of the case and arrested accused-appellant and recorded his disclosure statement and on his pointing out, recovered Danda allegedly used in commission of crime and submitted charge sheet against accused Ashok.

15. Subsequent to closure of prosecution evidence, statement of accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded by the Trial Court on 07.06.2011, explaining entire evidence and other incriminating circumstances and evidence. Accused-appellant in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. claimed false implication and denied the prosecution story in toto, entire proceeding of investigation was said to be wrong and he did not choose to lead any evidence in his defence.

16. Ultimately case came to be heard and decided by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.5, Gautam Budh Nagar. On appreciation of evidence available on record and after hearing both the parties, Trial Court recorded verdict of conviction and sentence against the accused-appellant as stated above.

17. Feeling aggrieved and dissatisfied with the impugned judgement and order, accused-appellant approached this Court through Superintendent of District Jail, Ghaziabad, assailing the impugned judgement.

18. We have heard Sri Uttar Kumar Goswami, learned Amicus Curiae for appellant and Sri Ratan Singh, learned AGA for State at length and have gone through the record carefully with the valuable assistance of learned Counsel for parties.

19. Learned Amicus Curiae for accused-appellant assailing impugned judgement and order of conviction and sentence, took us through the record and advanced following submissions :-

1. It is a case of direct evidence but no cogent and convincing evidence has come against the accused.

2. Except PW-5, no other eye witness has been produced from the side of prosecution. PW-5 is not reliable witness and his evidence is not worthy to credence.

4. Evidence of PW-5 is self contradictory.

5. Prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt.

6. Trial Court did not appreciated the evidence in right prospective and wrongly convicted the accused-appellant.

20. Learned AGA opposed the submissions and submitted that accused-appellant is named in the FIR, evidently he was present on spot with victim and some quarrel has taken place between accused-appellant and deceased Raju before the incident which lead to incident; Danda allegedly used in the commission of offence has been recovered at the pointing out of accused-appellant; Prosecution successfully established its case and Trial Court has rightly convicted the accused-appellant.

21. Although time, date, place of incident and death of victim Raju could not be challenged from the side of the defence but according to Advocate he is not responsible of murder of Raju. Even otherwise from evidence of PW-3 Dr. Dinesh Mohan Saxena, PW-5 Teeka Ram and PW-6 SI Ram Sweak. Time, date and place of incident and murder of victim stand established.

22. Thus the only question remains for consideration of Court is "whether accused-appellant committed murder of Raju by inflicting blunt object injury on his head and Trial Court has rightly convicted him or not?"

23. Now we may proceed to consider rival contentions made by learned Counsel for parties and briefly evidence of prosecution witnesses.

24. PW-1 Indrajeet happens to be brother of deceased Raju, deposed that victim Raju worked in Sharma Hotel; Teekaram, Deepu and Ashok also worked there. On the fateful night i.e. 03.05.2010 at about 11:00 PM there was quarrel between accused-appellant Ashok and victim Raju over making much bread in the Hotel whereupon accused-appellant Ashok attacked Raju with Danda. He was told this fact by Teekaram and Deepu. Thus it is very clear that PW-1 is not eye witness of the incident, hence his statement required no much scrutiny.

25. PW-5 Teekaram is only alleged eye witness, deposed that on 23.05.2010, he, accused-appellant Ashok, victim Raju and one Deepu were present in the Hotel which belonged to Murli Dhar Sharma, PW-8. Accused-appellant Ashok used to make bread on Tandoor and victim Raju cooked other material; Raju was close to owner of the Hotel; On the fateful night i.e. 03.05.2010, owner of the Hotel and his son went to his house at about 10:00 PM taking entire money; he (PW-5), victim Raju, accused-appellant Ashok and Deepu remained in Hotel; In the night there was a quarrel between accused-appellant Ashok and victim Raju over making more breads; both used to drink. Victim Raju had taken liquor, accused-appellant started abusing Raju who objected and laid on the cot and was mumbling. Both were lying close by; he and Deepu laid on the roof of Leelawati Dharamkanta at the distance of 100 yards from place of incident; accused-appellant Ashok went towards Jungle and took a Danda from there and attacked on the head of Raju three times with Danda and fled away from there with Danda, they could not speak anything due to fear of evil; in the morning they narrated entire story to owner of Hotel when he came with his son; 2nd or 3rd day of incident police apprehended accused-appellant Ashok and took Hotel by vehicle and on his pointing out, recovered a thick Danda with blood allegedly used in the commission of offence from the sand at about 04:00 PM on 05.05.2010; and recovery memo thereof Ex.Ka-4 was prepared before him, he signed over it.

26. In the cross-examination, he (PW-5) deposed that Accused-appellant took out the danda (stick) from the pile of sand and Leelawati Dharamkanta is at the distance of 100 yards from Hotel. Raju and Ashok used to sleep in the Varanda of Hotel while he and Deepu used to sleep at Leelawati Dharamkanta. Accused-appellant Ashok and Raju slept on the cot in the fateful night and there was dark at 11:00 PM in the night but there was two lighting in the Hotel, he saw accused-appellant going towards western side of jungle, after five minutes accused-appellant returned with danda; the said danda was made of Eucalyptus having three nails; he does not know where owner owner's of Hotel resides and Hotel was on the main road; they went to sleep to Leelawati Dharamkanta at about 10:45 PM; accused-appellant Ashok ran away from spot and head of victim Raju was bleeding, he was in the Hotel till Ashok was arrested, at the time of incident Deepu was also awake. Thus it is apparent from the evidence of this witness (PW-5) that at the time of incident he was on the roof of Leelwati Dharamkanta which is at 100 yards far from the place of incident and there was dark and it was not possible to him to witness how many nails were fixed in the danda. He further admitted that he did not see touching it and it was of old wood. Accused-appellant ran away from spot with Danda.

27. More so other witness Deepu did not come forward to support prosecution story and prosecution did not give any proper explanation for not producing him in evidence. It has also come in the evidence of this witness that deceased Raju, among other servants, was very close to owner of the Hotel. There is no explanation to this witness, why he did not inform Police or owner of Hotel, until owner of Hotel arrived in the morning. The witness further states that there was nobody except victim and accused-appellant in Varanda and after the incident, he came in the Hotel when owner arrived.

28. PW-5 is only eye witness who has been produced from the side of prosecution in support of its case. Evidence of this witness found no corroboration with any other evidence. It has come in the statement of this witness that Deepu and two other persons were also present in Leelawati Dharamkanta but he could not tell the name of those persons who are said to be present in Leelawati Dharamkanta in the fateful night. In absence of any corroboration evidence of PW-5 inspires no confidence.

29. It is settled legal position that conviction can be based on single and sole testimony but it must be cogent, natural and reliable. In view of Section 134 of Indian Evidence Act,1872

(hereinafter referred to as 'Act,1872'). Section 134 of Act, 1872, reads as under:-

"134. Number of witnesses.--No particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact."

30. Law is well-settled that as a general rule, Court can and may act on the testimony of a single witness provided he/she is wholly reliable. There is no legal impediment in convicting a person on the sole testimony of a single witness. That is the logic of Section 134 of Act, 1872. But if there are doubts about the testimony, Court will insist on corroboration. In fact, it is not the numbers, the quantity, but the quality that is material. Time-honoured principle is that evidence has to be weighed and not counted. Test is whether evidence has a ring of truth, cogent, credible and trustworthy or otherwise.

31. In Namdeo v. State of Maharashtra (2007) 14 SCC 150, Court re-iterated the view observing that it is the quality and not the quantity of evidence which is necessary for proving or disproving a fact. The legal system has laid emphasis on value, weight and quality of evidence rather than on quantity, multiplicity or plurality of witnesses. It is, therefore, open to a competent court to fully and completely rely on a solitary witness and record conviction. Conversely, it may acquit the accused inspite of testimony of several witnesses if it is not satisfied about the quality of evidence.

32. In Kunju @ Balachandran vs. State of Tamil Nadu, AIR 2008 SC 1381 a similar view has been taken placing reliance on earlier judgments including Jagdish Prasad vs. State of M.P., AIR 1994 SC 1251; and Vadivelu Thevar vs. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614.

33. In Yakub Ismailbhai Patel Vs. State of Gunjrat reported in (2004) 12 SCC 229, Court held that :-

"The legal position in respect of the testimony of a solitay eyewitness is well settled in a catena of judgments inasmuch as this Court has always reminded that in order to pass conviction upon it, such a testimony must be of a nature which inspires the confidence of the Court. While looking into such evidence this Court has always advocated the Rule of Caution and such corroboration from other evidence and even in the absence of corroboration if testimony of such single eye-witness inspires confidence then conviction can be based solely upon it."

34. In State of Haryana v. Inder Singh and Ors. reported in (2002) 9 SCC 537, Court held that it is not the quantity but the quality of the witnesses which matters for determining the guilt or innocence of the accused. The testimony of a sole witness must be confidence-inspiring and beyond suspicion, thus, leaving no doubt in the mind of the Court.

35. It is well settled that where on the evidence, two possibilities are available or open which goes in favour of the prosecution and other which benefits an accused, the accused is undoubtedly entitled to benefit of doubt.

36. In Bhagwan Singh & Others v. State of M.P., (2002) 4 SCC 85, Court repeated one of the fundamental principles of criminal jurisprudence that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. Court observed as under:-

"7. .....The golden thread which runs through the web of administration of justice in criminal case is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. Such is not a jurisdiction limitation on the appellate court but a Judge made guidelines for circumspection. The paramount consideration of the court is to ensure that miscarriage of justice is avoided....."

37. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1984 SCC 1622, Court said that at any rate, the evidence clearly shows that two views are possible - one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other leading to his innocence. It may be very likely that the appellant may have administered the poison (potassium cyanide) to Manju but at the same time a fair possibilitiy that she herself committed suicide cannot be safely excluded or eliminated. Hence, on this ground alone the appellant is entitled to the benefit of doubt resulting in his acquittal.

38. In Kali Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh, 1973 AIR 2773, Court made following observations:

"Another golden thread which runs through the web of the administration of justice in criminal cases is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted This principle has a special relevance in cases where in the guilt of the accused is sought to be established by circumstantial evidence."

39. In the present case, PW-5 is only the alleged eye witness. Conduct of PW-5 like not informing the owner or Police about incident till PW-8 arrived is not natural. Explanation submitted by him is not cogent and convincing. Thus PW-5 has failed to establish the guilt of accused-appellant. There is no other evidence on record to connect accused-appellant with the present crime. Hence it can be said that crime could have been committed by someone else.

40. Considering the entire fact and evidence produced by prosecution, in its entirety and legal proposition discussed herein before, in our considered view, prosecution failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against accused-appellant and Trial Court has not appreciated the entire evidence in right prospective and committed manifest error in convicting the accused-appellant, hence the appeal succeed and liable to be allowed.

41. Present jail appeal is hereby allowed. Impugned judgment and order dated 13.07.2011 passed by Sri Mohammad Ibrahim, Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No. 05, Gautambudh Nagar in Session Trial No. 441 of 2010 arising out of Case Crime No. 450 of 2010, Police Station Kasna, District Gautam Budh Nagar, under Section 302 IPC is set aside. He shall be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other crime.

42. Keeping in view provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C., appellant is directed to furnish a personal bond and two sureties before Trial Court to its satisfaction, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in event of filing of Special Leave Petition against instant judgment or for grant of leave, appellant on receipt of notice thereof shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

43. Lower Court record along-with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to District Court concerned and also copy of this judgment be sent to Superintendent Jail concerned through District Judge concerned for immediate compliance and further necessary action.

44. Before parting, we provide that Sri Uttar Kumar Goswami, Advocate, who has appeared as Amicus Curiae for appellant in present Jail Appeal, shall be paid counsel's fee as Rs. 10,000/-. State Government is directed to ensure payment of aforesaid fee through Additional Legal Remembrancer, posted in the office of Advocate General at Allahabad, without any delay and, in any case, within one month from the date of receipt of copy of this judgment.

2. This writ petition has been filed, seeking a writ of mandamus, directing the respondent concerned, not to arrest the petitioners, with a further prayer for quashing the impugned FIR dated 15.7.2019 registered as Case Crime no. 0559 of 2019, under Sections 376, 452, 323, 506 IPC, P.S. Handiya, District Prayagraj (Allahabad).

3. It is submitted by learned counsel for the petitioners that as parties have amicably settled their dispute, victim herself filed an application to the Superintendent of Police that the FIR was lodged on false allegations, no offences are made out, FIR be quashed, in the light of Gian Singh v. State of Punjab, 2012(10) SCC 303 and Narinder Singh vs. State of Punjab (2014) 6 SCC 466.

4. The Apex Court in State of M.P. Vs. Laxmi Narayan & Ors. (3 Judges), AIR 2019 SC 1296, while resolving the conflict between Narinder Singh (supra) and State of Rajasthan Vs. Shambhu Kewat (2014) 4 SCC 149, as regards quashment of proceedings under Article 226 / Section 482 CrPC on the ground of compromise / settlement, held as under: -

"10. Now so far as the decision of this Court in the case of Narinder Singh (supra) is concerned, this Court in paragraph 29.6 admitted that the offences under Section 307 IPC would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore are to be generally treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone. However, this Court further observed that the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 IPC in the FIR or the charge is framed. Its further corroboration with the medical evidence or other evidence is to be seen, which will be possible during the trial only. Hence, the decision of this case in the case of Narinder Singh (supra) shall be of no assistance to the accused in the present case.

11. ...

12. ...

13. Considering the law on the point and the other decisions of this Court on the point, referred to hereinabove, it is observed and held as under:

i) that the power conferred under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings for the non-compoundable offences under Section 320 of the Code can be exercised having overwhelmingly and predominantly the civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes and when the parties have resolved the entire dispute amongst themselves;

ii) such power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involved heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society;

iii) similarly, such power is not to be exercised for the offences under the special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender;

iv) offences under Section 307 IPC and the Arms Act etc. would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore are to be treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone, and therefore, the criminal proceedings for the offence under Section 307 IPC and/or the Arms Act etc. which have a serious impact on the society cannot be quashed in exercise of powers under Section 482 of the Code, on the ground that the parties have resolved their entire dispute amongst themselves. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 IPC in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of Section 307 IPC is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to framing the charge under Section 307 IPC. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delegate parts of the body, nature of weapons used etc. However, such an exercise by the High Court would be permissible only after the evidence is collected after investigation and the charge sheet is filed/charge is framed and/or during the trial. Such exercise is not permissible when the matter is still under investigation. Therefore, the ultimate conclusion in paragraphs 29.6 and 29.7 of the decision of this Court in the case of Narinder Singh (supra) should be read harmoniously and to be read as a whole and in the circumstances stated hereinabove;

v) while exercising the power under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings in respect of non-compoundable offences, which are private in nature and do not have a serious impart on society, on the ground that there is a settlement/compromise between the victim and the offender, the High Court is required to consider the antecedents of the accused; the conduct of the accused, namely, whether the accused was absconding and why he was absconding, how he had managed with the complainant to enter into a compromise etc."

5. The upshot of the above legal position is that non-compoundable offences can be quashed under Article 226 of Constitution of India/ 482 CrPC, which are overwhelmingly and predominantly of civil character arising out of commercial transactions, matrimonial / family disputes and parties have resolved their disputes amicably, as such offences are private in nature having no impact on the society. But heinous and serious offences involving mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity etc and the offences under the special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity cannot be quashed on the basis of settlement / compromise. However, where the High Court finds that these offences are merely incorporated without any material to support, it can quash the proceedings relating to such offences. For this purpose, it would be open for the High Court to examine whether the materials collected, if proved, would lead to framing of charge. This exercise is only permissible, when a charge sheet is filed or a charge is framed and / or during the trial, not when the matter is under investigation.

6. In the present case, an offence of rape is alleged to have been committed by the accused, matter is still under investigation, FIR cannot be quashed at the initial stage on the basis of settlement/ compromise between the parties, as the alleged offence is heinous and against the society.

7. The writ petition is dismissed.

Aforesaid application was partly allowed by Court below vide order dated 24.11.2008 and only a sum of Rs. 10,000/- was awarded to appellant towards litigation expenses. Feeling aggrieved by order dated 24.11.2008, since no interim maintenance was awarded, appellant filed review application (Paper No.69 Ka) seeking review of order dated 24.11.2008. However, same was rejected by Court below vide order dated 6.2.2009. Orders dated 24.11.2008 and 6.2.2009, passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Allahabad. The same have been challenged by appellant in First Appeal No. 157 of 2016 (Dr. Prachi Sharma Vs. Dr. Shailendra Kumar).

7. Suit filed by plaintiff Dr. Shailendra Kumar was contested by appellant. She filed a written statement dated 18.5.2009 (Paper No. 82 Ka) whereby, not only she denied plaint allegations but also raised additional pleas. According to appellant, she, after completing M.A. (Economics) Course, joined as a research scholar in Allahabad University and ultimately, submitted her thesis. Upon knowledge of the fact that appellant is unmarried and her marriage is to be settled, father of plaintiff himself proposed marriage of his son plaintiff with appellant. Father of plaintiff sent his bio-data and expected bio date of appellant along with photograph. Father of appellant, sent bio-data and her photographs to father of plaintiff. Later on father of plaintiff demanded horoscope of appellant, which was duly sent. Father of plaintiff intimated that horoscope of boy and girl are tallying and therefore, he (father of plaintiff) is desirous of marrying his son with appellant. In furtherance of aforesaid, father of plaintiff desired to have a look at the girl that is appellant. As such, aforesaid ceremony was held in a rented house of elder brother of appellant, at L-113 Sarojni Nagar, New Delhi. The aforesaid ceremony was attended by plaintiff along with his parents and brother. They saw appellant and also had conversation with her. Plaintiff separately met appellant and talked to her. Appellant duly disclosed about her educational qualifications and research papers. Later on father of plaintiff gave his consent for marriage of plaintiff with appellant and fixed 14.1.2002 as date for holding "Bagdan Ceremony", which is an important pre marriage ritual performance in the caste of parties. Accordingly, on 14.1.2002, the said ceremony was solemnized at Scientific Apartment. In the aforesaid ceremony, parents of plaintiff, his Bhabi and younger brother came. As per his capacity, father of appellant, gave cash, goods and jewellery. In reciprocation, parents of plaintiff gave a ring, two sarees as well as fruits and sweets to appellant. In this ceremony, plaintiff and appellant stayed together for two hours and understood eachother. Father of plaintiff-expressed his desire to send certificates and mark-sheets, pertaining to educational qualification of appellant. Later on father of plaintiff send application form to appellant for applying in Chandigarh University. However, as appellant was not awarded Ph. D degree upto that stage, she could not apply. Appellant, categorically denied factum regarding sufferance from any diecease. Before marriage she was suffering from jaundice but upon proper medical treatment she recovered. As per opinion of Doctor, appellant was only having weakness and therefore, advised to have restricted diet. Inspite of aforesaid fact having been disclosed and papers relating to medical prescription of appellant, having been given, yet family of plaintiff gave greasy food to appellant which was not conducive for her health. She never suffered from Tuberculosis, Piereia, Hepatitis disease or abdominal pain. Lastly, it is also pleaded that father of appellant had given a cheque of Rs.1,00,000/- and Rs. 5,75,000/- in cash towards dowry along with other goods, jewellery and costly sarees. Plaintiff and his family raised a demand of Rs. 20,00,000/- towards dowry. As part of their technique, plaintiff on the pretext of taking appellant to a doctor, dropped her at her brother's place in New Delhi on 1.12.2002. Later on father of plaintiff called father of appellant at Delhi and took him to Kurukshetra. Some papers were got executed at Kurukshetra, in respect of which, F.I.R. was lodged at New Delhi. Appellant is younger to plaintiff by three years. Marriage was solemnized after holding due enquiry, when parents of appellant could not fulfil illegal demand of plaintiff, suit for annulment of marriage has been filed maliciously on false grounds.

8. Plaintiff filed replication (paper no.37 Ga) whereby he denied contents of written statement and reiterated pleadings raised in plaint.

9. It may be noticed that initially, matrimonial petition was filed in the Court of District Judge, Kurukshetra. Subsequently, appellant filed Transfer Application (Civil) No. 772 of 2013 (Smt. Prachi Sharma Vs. Shailendra Kumar) before Supreme Court. Same was allowed vide order dated 8.8.2005 and Matrimonial Petition, pending in Court of District Judge, Kurukshetra, was transferred to Court of District Judge, Allahabad. Later on, District Judge, Allahabad transferred matrimonial petition to Family Court, Allahabad. Accordingly, same came to be registered as Matrimonial Petition No. 37 of 2002 (Shailendra Kumar Vs. Prachi).

10. After exchange of pleadings, parties went to trial. Court below on the basis of pleadings of parties, framed following issues for determination:

(I) Whether marriage of appellant has been solemnized with plaintiff by playing fraud as ailment of appellant prior to her marriage as well as at the time of marriage was deliberately concealed from plaintiff. If yes, it's effect?

(II) Whether in the bio-data of appellant, her age was wrongly shown to be less, deliberately concealing her real age. If yes, it's effect.

(III) Whether on account of physical and mental ailment of appellant, no conjugal relationship could be established between the parties. If yes, it's effect?

(IV) Whether appellant and her father have committed cruelty upon plaintiff and his family members?

(V) Whether plaintiff has abandoned appellant after subjected her to cruelty for demand of dowry. If yes, it's effect?

(VI) Relief.

11. Court below upon consideration of pleadings of parties, oral and documentary evidence adduced by parties, proceeded to decide above mentioned issues framed by it. Plaintiff, in order to prove his case, adduced himself as P.W.1. No other witness was adduced by plaintiff. He also filed documentary evidence, which are mentioned in the impugned judgement.

12. Appellant in order to prove her defence, adduced herself as D.W.1, Ramesh Prasad Kala as D.W.2, Professor Dr. Girish Chandra Tripathi as D.W.3, Brij Lal Nagpal as D.W.4. Appellant also filed documentary evidence which has also been described in impugned judgement.

13. It may be noticed here that plaintiff took as many as seven grounds in support of his plea regarding declaration of marriage as nullity in terms of section 12 of Act 1955. It was pleaded by plaintiff that appellant has a very weak eye sight. Consequently, she cannot perform her house hold job without spectacles. But aforesaid fact was concealed by parents of appellant at the time of marriage. Plaintiff further pleaded that appellant is suffering from incurable form of disease in teeth. She is suffering from Pyria and Peritonitis but the same was not disclosed before marriage or at the time of marriage. In addition to aforesaid grounds, it was also alleged that appellant is suffering from Jaundice and abdominal pain, which facts were never disclosed. The age of appellant at the time of marriage was disclosed as 30 years whereas, appellant actually was aged about 38 years at the time of marriage. When appellant, after marriage came to her marital home, her behaviour was abnormal and unnatural like that of a psychotic patient; She was suffering from mental disorder. It was also alleged that appellant is suffering from tuberculosis and aforesaid fact was not disclosed either before marriage or at the time of marriage. Lastly, it was urged that parents of appellant did not disclose either before marriage or at the time of marriage that appellant was hard of hearing and used hearing aid.

14. Out of the aforesaid seven grounds pleaded by plaintiff, only one ground was accepted by Court below i.e. parents of appellant did not disclose either before marriage or at the time of marriage that appellant was hard of hearing and using hearing aid. Other grounds taken by plaintiff could not be established in evidence, as such disbelieved by Court below.

15. Issue Nos. I, II and III were decided together. Court below concluded that appellant was not suffering from any of the diseases, alleged by plaintiff. It further held that appellant is younger to plaintiff by three years. It also held that marriage between parties was solemnized on 27.11.2002. Appellant came to her matrimonial home on 29.11.2002. Thereafter, she went to her brother's house on 1.12.2002, as such, marital relations between the parties, were never established. Court below further held that parents of appellant did not disclose to family of plaintiff either before marriage or at the time of marriage that appellant was hard of hearing and used a hearing aid. Issue No. IV was not decided by Court below on the ground that the same has been framed unnecessarily, as such, no finding is required to be returned on the point whether appellant and her father committed cruelty upon plaintiff and his family members. Issue No.V was decided in favour of plaintiff and it was held that appellant was not subjected to cruelty for demand of dowry nor she was disowned by plaintiff. Lastly, Court below concluded that plaintiff is entitled to decree of annulment of marriage as it was got solemnized by parents of appellant by playing fraud.

16. Learned counsel for appellant has challenged findings recorded by Court below on the point that marriage of parties has been obtained by practising fraud as disability of appellant i.e hard of hearing and using a hearing aid was never disclosed, either before marriage or at time of marriage. As such, marriage between parties was got solemnized by playing fraud and therefore liable to be declared a nullity in terms of section 12 of Act 1955. He submits that marriage of parties has been declared, a nullity, by a decree of Court under section 12 of Act 1955. The only ground on which Court below has passed aforesaid decree is that appellant was having defect in hearing at the time of marriage and was using a hearing aid which fact was concealed from plaintiff. According to learned counsel for appellant, above ground by itself is not sufficient/enough to anull marriage of parties as the same does not fall within the ambit of section 12 or section 5 of Act 1955. In order to pass a decree of nullity of marriage under section 12 of Act 1955, Court below is mandatioraily required to declare marriage to be voidable at the instance of plaintiff on the grounds mentioned in clauses a,b,c and d of sub-section (1) of section 12 of Act 1955. The ground taken by Court below is not at all sufficient to declare marriage of parties, voidable, at the instance of plaintiff. He further submits that marriage of plaintiff was finalized with appellant by father of plaintiff. However, father of plaintiff was not adduced as a witness to prove the element of fraud, alleged to have been played by family members of appellant in the settlement of marriage, nor there is any pleading raised in plaint as to how and by whom alleged fraud was played. He, lastly submits that ceremonies solemnized before actual marriage completely bely the case of plaintiff since he and his family members had duly seen and talked with appellant. Court below has erroneously shifted burden to prove pre-marraige ceremonies upon appellant. Filing of petition by plaintiff after more than a period of one year from the date of marriage is a malicious design on the part of plaintiff to a decree of nullity of marriage on non existent ground.

17. Mr. Ghanshyam Dwivedi, learned counsel representing plaintiff has supported impugned judgement and decree on the basis of findings recorded therein.

18. Before proceeding to consider correctness of findings recorded by Court below that marriage between parties has been obtained by fraud inasmuch as it was not disclosed either before marriage or at the time of marriage by parents of appellant that she was hard of hearing and consequently, used a hearing aid, it shall be useful to reproduce section 12 of Act 1955, which relates to voidable marriages:

"12 Voidable marriages . (1) Any marriage solemnised, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, shall be voidable and may be annulled by a decree of nullity on any of the following grounds, namely:-

(a) that the marriage has not been consummated owing to the impotence of the respondent; or]

(b) that the marriage is in contravention of the condition specified in clause (ii) of section 5; or

(c) that the consent of the petitioner, or where the consent of the guardian in marriage of the petitioner 13 [was required under section 5 as it stood immediately before the commencement of the Child Marriage Restraint (Amendment) Act, 1978 (2 of 1978)], the consent of such guardian was obtained by force or by fraud as to the nature of the ceremony or as to any material fact or circumstance concerning the respondent; or

(d) that the respondent was at the time of the marriage pregnant by some person other than the petitioner.

*(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), no petition for annulling a marriage:-

(a) on the ground specified in clause (c) of sub-section (1) shall be entertained if-

(i) the petition is presented more than one year after the force had ceased to operate or, as the case may be, the fraud had been discovered; or

*(ii) the petitioner has, with his or her full consent, lived with the other party to the marriage as husband or wife after the force had ceased to operate or, as the case may be, the fraud had been discovered;

(b) on the ground specified in clause (d) of sub-section (1) shall be entertained unless the court is satisfied

(i) that the petitioner was at the time of the marriage ignorant of the facts alleged;

(ii) that proceedings have been instituted in the case of a marriage solemnised before the commencement of this Act within one year of such commencement and in the case of marriages solemnised after such commencement within one year from the date of the marriage; and

(iii) that marital intercourse with the consent of the petitioner has not taken place since the discovery by the petitioner of the existence of the said ground."

(Emphasis added)

19. Section 11 of Act 1955 relates to void marriages. As per section 11 of Act 1955 any marriage solemnized after commencement of Act 1955 shall be null and void, if it contravenes any one of the conditions specified in clauses (i), (iv) and (v) of Section 5 of Act 1955. As noted above, section 12 on the other hand deals with "voidable marriages". Any marriage solemnized whether before or after commencement of Act 1955 shall be voidable and may be annulled by a decree of nullity on the grounds detailed in section 12 of Act 1955 itself.

20. The terms 'void' and 'voidable' are not defined in Act 1955. The aforesaid terms are defined in the Contract Act, 1872 as under:

Section 19. Voidability of agreements without free consent.--When consent to an agreement is caused by coercion, fraud or misrepresentation, the agreement is a contract voidable at the option of the party whose consent was so caused.

A party to contract, whose consent was caused by fraud or misrepresentation, may, if he thinks fit, insist that the contract shall be performed, and that he shall be put in the position in which he would have been if the representations made had been true.

Exception --If such consent was caused by misrepresentation or by silence, fraudulent within the meaning of section 17, the contract, nevertheless, is not voidable, if the party whose consent was so caused had the means of discovering the truth with ordinary diligence.

Explanation.--A fraud or misrepresentation which did not cause the consent to a contract of the party on whom such fraud was practised, or to whom such misrepresentation was made, does not render a contract voidable.

20. Agreement void where both parties are under mistake as to matter of fact.--Where both the parties to an agreement are under a mistake as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement the agreement is void.

Explanation.--An erroneous opinion as to the value of the thing which forms the subject-matter of the agreement, is not to be deemed a mistake as to a matter of fact.

21. When an agreement is enforceable at law, it becomes a contract. Based on validity, there are several types of contract, i.e. valid contract, void contract, illegal contract, etc. Void contract and voiadable contract are quite commonly miscontrued, but they are different. Void contract, implied a contract which lacks enforceability by law, whereas voidable contract, alludes to a contract wherein one party has the right to enforce or rescind the contract, i.e. the party has to right to put the contract to end.

22. For better appreciation a comparison chart is given herein below, giving differences between void and voidable contract:

Void Contract	Voidable Contract
The type of contract which cannot be enforceable is known as void contract.	The contract in which one of the two parties has the option to enforce or rescind it, is known as voidable contract.
Section 2 (j) of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.	Section 2 (I) of the Indian Contract Act, 1872
The Contract is valid, but subsequently becomes invalid due to some reasons.	The contract is valid, until the party whose consent is not free, does not revokes it.
Subsequent illegality or impossibility of any act which is to be	If the consent of the parties is not independent.

performed in the future.
No right in favour of parties to the contract which is void	Yes, but only to the aggrieved party.
Not given by any party to another party for the non-performance, but any benefit received by any party must be restored back.	Damages can be claimed by the aggrieved party.

23. Thus a void contract may be defined as a contract which is not enforceable in the Court of law. At the time of formation of the contract, the contract is valid as it fulfils all the necessary conditions required to constitute a valid contract, i.e. free consent, capacity, consideration, a lawful object, etc. but due to a subsequent change in any law or impossibility of an act, which are beyond the imagination and control of the parties to the contract, the contract cannot be performed, and hence, it becomes void. Further, no party cannot sue the other party for the non-performance of such contract.

24. Voidable contract on the other hand is a contract which can be enforceable only at the option of one of two parties to the contract. In this type of contract, one party is legally authorized to make a decision to perform or not to perform his part. The aggrieved party is independent to choose the action. The right may arise because the consent of the concerned party is influenced by coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation, etc. The contract becomes valid until aggrieved party does not cancel it. Moreover, the party aggrieved has the right to claim damages from the other party.

25. Similarly, term 'fraud' has not been defined in Act 1955. The same has been defined in Section 17 of Contract Act,1872 as follows:

"17. "Fraud" defined.--"Fraud" means and includes any of the following acts committed by a party to a contract, or with his connivance, or by his agent1, with intent to deceive another party thereto or his agent, or to induce him to enter into the contract:--

(1) the suggestion, as a fact, of that which is not true, by one who does not believe it to be true;

(2) the active concealment of a fact by one having knowledge or belief of the fact;

(3) a promise made without any intention of performing it;

(4) any other act fitted to deceive;

(5) any such act or omission as the law specially declares to be fraudulent.

Explanation.--Mere silence as to facts likely to affect the willingness of a person to enter into a contract is not fraud, unless the circumstances of the case are such that, regard being had to them, it is the duty of the person keeping silence to speak2, or unless his silence, is, in itself, equivalent to speech."

26. The issues which evolve for consideration are "whether plaintiff duly pleaded that marriage of parties was got solemnized by playing fraud and burden to plead and prove the same was upon plaintiff?" Secondly, " whether non disclosure by parents of appellant that she was having hearing deficiency and used a hearing aid either before marriage or at time of marriage, is a ground on which a decree of nullity of marriage, can be passed".

27. Marriage in Hindus is a pious social obligation which is required to be performed for continuation of society in an orderly manner and also for satisfaction of physical desire of men and women. Apex Court in Hirachand Srinivas Managaonkar V. Sunanda, 2001 (4) SCC 125 has therefore observed that object of Act 1955 is to maintain marital relationship and not to encourage snapping of such relationship. Following was observed in paragraph 16 of aforesaid judgement:

"At the cost of repetition it may be stated here that the object and purpose of the Act is to maintain the marital relationship between the spouses and not to encourage snapping of such relationship."

28. In the present case, plaintiff is a Doctor whereas, appellant has obtained her Doctrate Degree i.e. Ph.D. in Economics. Upon perusal of plaint, we find that there is no averment in the entire plaint as to how marriage of parties was finalized. It is only in the testimony of witnesses, manner in which marriage of parties came to be finalized, has been unearthed.

29. Learned counsel for appellant took us to testimony of P.W.1 Shailendra and thereafter, to testimony of D.W.1 Dr. Prachi and D.W.2. Ramesh Kala, father of appellant. From perusal of statement-in-chief/examination-in-chief of D.W.2, we find that marriage on behalf of plaintiff was initiated and finalized by his father. However, for reasons best known to plaintiff, he did not adduce his own father, who admittedly had finalized marriage between parties on his behalf to explain as to how marriage between parties came to be finalized.

30. Secondly, as noted above, plaint of marriage petition filed by plaintiff is completely silent as to how 'fraud' was committed upon plaintiff. Order VI Rule 4 C.P.C. clearly provides for the manner in which pleadings are to be made where fraud is alleged. For ready reference Order VI Rule 4 C.P.C. is quoted herein under:

"Particulars to be given where necessary" - In all cases in which the party pleading relies on any misrepresentation, fraud, breach of trust, willful default, or undue influence, and in all other cases in which particulars may be necessary beyond such as are exemplified in the forms aforesaid, particulars (with dates and items if necessary) shall be stated in the pleading."

31. Unfortunately, we find that Court below while deciding divorce petition completely overlooked aforesaid facts. Even though plaint is completely silent regarding manner in which fraud was played, Court below has proceeded to consider this issue. It has completely lost sight of the fact that no amount of evidence can be looked into until and unless a fact has been pleaded. Once the factum regarding fraud having been played in settlement of marriage, was sought to be relied upon by plaintiff, it was incumbent upon him to categorically plead as to how marriage came to be finalized between parties and by whom by giving exact date and specific particulars. The absence of material facts in this regard by plaintiff in plaint clearly establish that plaintiff did not approach Court below with clean hands.

32. Having taken notice of Section 12 of Act 1955, we repeatedly asked learned counsel for plaintiff as to how ground pleaded by plaintiff for annulment of marriage could be covered under section 12 of Act 1955. Learned counsel for plaintiff took us through impugned judgement and highlighted with emphasis on observations made by Court below, whereby Court below erroneously shifted burden upon appellant to establish that fraud was not played. It is well established that it is always the positive fact which is required to be proved. Therefore, burden was upon plaintiff himself to plead and prove the element of fraud in solemnization of marriage of parties. Plaintiff has to stand on his own legs and he cannot derive benefit from weakness in the defence of defendant.

33. When analysed from aforesaid point of view, we find that Court below has erroneously shifted burden to prove fraud upon appellant. Furthermore, after having perused section 12 of Act 1955, we find that ground pleaded by plaintiff for grant of a decree of nullity of marriage solemnized between parties is not covered within ambit and scope of section 12.

34. When confronted with the facts as noted above, learned counsel for plaintiff could not urge any thing new but supported impugned judgement on the strength of findings and observations contained therein.

35. First Appeal No. 107 of 2016 (Shailendra Kumar Vs. Prachi) has been filed by plaintiff Shailendra Kumar challenging the findings recorded by Court below on Issue Nos. I, II and III. Learned counsel for plaintiff did not press this appeal. Consequently, same is liable to be dismissed.
