Held

The Court held that when a protest petition is filed against a police final report, the Magistrate has limited options under Section 190 Cr.P.C.: accept the final report, order further investigation, or take cognizance based only on the material collected during investigation. If the Magistrate relies on any extraneous material, such as affidavits filed with the protest petition, he cannot proceed under Section 190(1)(b) directly and must instead follow the complaint procedure under Chapter XV Cr.P.C., including recording statements under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. Since in the present case the Magistrate had considered affidavits filed with the protest petition while summoning the accused, the order was held unsustainable in law. Accordingly, the summoning order dated 14.02.2007 was set aside and the matter was remanded for fresh consideration in accordance with law.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Vijay Lakshmi, J.)

1. The applicants by means of this application under section 482 Cr.P.C. have invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this court with prayer to quash the impugned order dated 14.2.2007 passed in Criminal Case arising out of Case Crime No. 45 of 2006, u/s 147, 323, 354, 504, 506 I.P.C. and 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act, P.S. Fatehpur, District Saharanpur, pending in the court of Judicial Magistrate III, Saharanpur, whereby the learned Magistrate, while allowing the protest petition has rejected the final report submitted by the police and has summoned the accused-applicants to face trial under the aforesaid sections.

2. Heard Sri Rajesh Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the applicants, learned AGA for the State and Mr. Mohd. Ayub, learned counsel for O.P. No. 2. Perused the record.

3. The main ground on which the learned counsel for the applicants has challenged the legality and correctness of the impugned order is that the learned Magistrate, without adopting the proper procedure prescribed under section 190 Cr.P.C., has summoned the applicants, therefore, the impugned order is liable to be quashed. In support of his contention the learned counsel for the applicants has placed reliance on the following judgments of this court reported in 2007(1) All JIC 784, Surya Bhan Vs. State of U.P. and others, and 2008(1) All JIC 128, Mohd. Yusuf and others Vs. State of U.P. and another.

4. The learned AGA and learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 have opposed the application by contending that the final report has been rejected by the learned Magistrate on just and proper grounds and the applicants have rightly been summoned by the learned Magistrate considering that despite the fact that all the witnesses had fully supported the prosecution story, the I.O. arbitrarily had submitted final report in favour of the applicants. Learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 has submitted that the impugned order clearly shows that the learned Magistrate has rejected the final report and has summoned the applicants, thoroughly considering the statements of the witnesses recorded u/s 161 Cr.P.C. by the I.O. and not only on the basis of the affidavits filed along with the protest petition. Therefore, there is no illegality or irregularity in the order passed by the learned Magistrate and no interference is required by this court in the impugned order.

5. Considered the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties.

6. The law regarding the issue involved in this application is well settled.

7. If in any case, the final report is submitted by the police, against which protest petition is filed by first informant, then the Magistrate has following three options:-

1-He may accept the final report and drop the proceedings, or

2-He may direct the police for further investigation, or

3-He may summon the accused on further two grounds:-

(A) If he chooses to summon the accused on the basis of evidence collected by the Investigation officer, he may do so directly without any further evidence. or (B) If accused is summoned on the basis of protest petition, relying on extraneous material filed with protest petition, then he has to follow the procedure laid down under chapter XV of Cr. P.C. i.e. to treat the protest petition as complaint and record the evidence u/s 200 and 202 Cr P.C. and cognizance cannot be taken on the basis of extraneous material u/s 190 (1)(b) Cr.P.C, without following the aforesaid procedure.

8. The impugned order in the instant case clearly shows that the learned Magistrate, apart from considering the statements of witnesses available in the case diary, has also considered the affidavits filed along with the protest petition by the complainant.

9. In all the judgments cited by learned counsel for the applicants, this court has quashed the impugned order on the ground that the Magistrate had taken into account the extraneous material i.e. affidavits filed along with the protest petition while taking cognizance u/s 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C..

10. In Pakhandu and others Vs. State of U.P. and another, 2001(43) ACC 1096, a Division Bench of this court has held as under:

"16. Where the Magistrate decides to take cognizance of the case under section 190(1)(b) of the Code ignoring the conclusions arrived at by the investigating agency and applying his mind independently to the facts emerging from the investigation records, in such a situation the Magistrate is not bound to follow the procedure laid down in Sections 200 and 202 of the Code and consequently the proviso to section 202(2) Cr.P.C. will have no application. It would however be relevant to mention that for forming such an independent opinion the Magistrate can act only upon the statements of witnesses recorded by the police in the case diary and the material collected during investigation. It is not permissible for him at that stage to make use of any material other than investigation records."

11. In Surya Bhan Vs. State of U.P. and others (supra) this court has held as under:

"The Magistrate can act only upon the statements of witnesses recorded by the police in the case diary and other material collected during investigation. It is not permissible for him at that stage to make use of any material other than investigation records, unless he decides to take cognizance under section 190(1)(a) of the Code and calls upon the complainant to examine himself and the witnesses present, if any, under Section 200. This shows that the Magistrate while taking cognizance under Section 190(1)(b) can only rely on the police report that means evidence and material collected by the Investigating Officer during investigation. The Magistrate cannot, therefore, take into consideration any extraneous material and if he does so, he should take cognizance under section 190(1)(a) and should proceed in the matter as a complaint case."

12. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the land mark case of Dharam Pal and others Vs. State of Haryana and another; 2014 (3) SCC 306 framed 6 questions for consideration and question no. 3, which is reproduced below, involved the same issue :-

"Q III- Having decided to issue summons against the Appellants, was the Magistrate required to follow the procedure of a complaint case and to take evidence before committing them to the Court of Session to stand trial or whether he was justified in issuing summons against them without following such procedure?"

13. Answering the above said question in para 25 of the judgment, the Hon'ble Apex Court held as under :-

"25. This brings us to the third question as to the procedure to be followed by the Magistrate if he was satisfied that a prima facie case had been made out to go to trial despite the final report submitted by the police. In such an event, if the Magistrate decided to proceed against the persons accused, he would have to proceed on the basis of the police report itself and either inquire into the matter or commit it to the Court of Session if the same was found to be triable by the Session Court."

14. Considering the facts of the instant case, in wake of the settled legal position as stated above, the impugned order dated 14.2.2007, which clearly shows that the Magistrate has considered the extraneous material (affidavits filed along with the protest petition), cannot be sustained and is liable to be set aside.

15. The application is allowed. The impugned order dated 14.2.2007 is set aside and the matter is remanded back to the Magistrate concerned with the direction to make a fresh look and pass a fresh order in the light of the settled legal position, as discussed above.

Held

The Court held that the summoning order under Sections 452, 323, 504 and 506 IPC was partly unsustainable insofar as it related to Smt. Nandini Kashyap and Asha Kashyap, because neither the complaint nor the statements recorded under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. disclosed their presence or involvement in the incident dated 21.06.2015. Even if the prosecution evidence was taken at its face value, no prima facie case was made out against them. Therefore, the summoning order qua these two accused was held to be erroneous, perverse and without basis, and was quashed. However, since there was sufficient prima facie evidence against the remaining accused, the proceedings against them were allowed to continue. The application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. was thus partly allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pramod Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Complaint case no. 17296 of 2015, (Surendra Raikwar Vs. Vimal Kashyap @ Ashok & 5 others) was filed for prosecution of proposed accused persons for offences u/ss 304-B, 147, 452, 323, 504 and 506 IPC. In said case the complainant had examined himself u/s 200 CrPC and two witnesses Bahgwati Raikwar and Neeraj Gupta u/s 202 CrPC. After considering those evidences the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar had passed order of cognizance and summoning dated 28.7.2016, by which all the six persons named in complaint were summoned for prosecution for offences u/ss 452, 323, 504 and 506 IPC. Out of those six persons, three accused namely Smt. Nandini Kashyap, Kapil Kashyap and Atul Kashyap have preferred present application u/s 482 CrPC challenging the proceeding of aforesaid complaint case and for quashing the same.

2. Learned counsel for the applicants contended that death of the victim Manju was due to ailment relating to gangrene, for which she was hospitalized, and in spite of proper treatment by the applicants, she died on 6.4.2015. In this matter, no post-mortem was conducted and there was no altercation between the parties before, at the time of or soon after death. His further submission is that in complaint case, false incident of 21.6.2015 was mentioned by the complainant (/opposite part no.-2), who is brother of victim Manju @ Soni. His further submission is that trial court had not properly appreciated evidences under Chapter XV CrPC and passed impugned order of summoning; therefore, proceeding of trial court should be quashed.

3. The learned AGA had opposed the contentions of applicants? side and contended that the defence version of applicants may be considered at the time of defence evidence during the trial.

4. From perusal of record including certified copies of documents made available before this court, it is found that trial court had rightly declined to pass order of cognizance for offence u/ss 304-B IPC because there was no prima-facie evidence relating to it. From perusal of record and evidences, it is found that there has been statements of witnesses u/ss. 200 and 202 CrPC that in the incident of 21.6.2015, for which order of cognizance and summoning was passed, only four persons namely Ram lal Kashyap, Vimal Kashyap @ Ashok, Atul Kashyap @ Ashok, and Vinod Kashyap @ Komal alongwith three unknown persons were involved. None of the witnesses adduced under sections 200, 202 CrPC, including the complainant had named Asha Kashyap and Nandini Kashyap as person present at the time of incident dated 21.6.2016. these witnesses had stated nothing about their involvement in any way in the incident in question. But the trial court had passed order of cognizance and summoning for six persons including those Asha Kashyap and Nandini Kashyap (applicant no.-2). If the evidences adduced u/ss 200 & 202 CrPC are taken to be true in its entirety, even then these two persons Asha Kashyap and Nandini Kashyap were not involved in the incident. Even in complaint case the presence of Asha Kashyap and Nandini Kashyap is not mentioned for incident relating 21.6.2015, for which order of cognizance and summoning was passed. Therefore, this court finds that impugned order dated 28.7.2016 passed by Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar regarding cognizance and prosecution of Asha Kashyap and Nandini Kashyap (applicant no.-1) is erroneous, perverse and is without basis, which should be quashed, but considering the facts that for other summoned accused order of cognizance is supported with evidences. Therefore, said order, at this stage relating to other applicants/accused should not be interfered.

5. Ordinarily in such matters, notice should be issued to opposite party-complainant, but in this matter facts are so prominently clear that issuance of notice and inviting objection etc. would result in nothing but wastage of precious time of this Court, trial court and parties to proceedings of this case and other co-accused of complaint case under challenge. So notice is not being issued to complainant (O.P. no.-2). The error was not committed by the complainant but by the trial Court, that should be rectified.

6. It is made clear that if during prosecution, the evidences for any other offence or against any person is found, then the jurisdiction of trial court will not be barred to pass appropriate order in that regard, in accordance with law.

7. In view of the above, this application is partly allowed. The portion of impugned order dated 18.7.2016 regarding cognizance and summoning of Nandini Kashyap (applicant no.-1) and Asha Kashyap is quashed. It is directed that trial court will proceed with the trial of complaint case no. 17296 of 2015, Surendra Raikwar Vs. Vimal Kashyap @ Ashok and others pending in the court of Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar against remaining accused in accordance with law.

Held

The Court held that the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. was not maintainable and devoid of merit, as an earlier application seeking the same relief had already been decided on merits and rejected by the High Court. It was observed that filing a second application for the same relief in the guise of challenging the rejection of a discharge application under Section 245(2) Cr.P.C. amounted to an abuse of the process of the Court. On merits also, the Court found no legal or factual infirmity in the trial court's order rejecting discharge, since the issues raised by the applicants were essentially matters of defence and disputed facts, which could only be adjudicated upon after evidence during trial. Accordingly, the application was dismissed and the applicants were directed to appear before the trial court immediately.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pramod Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. In complaint case no. 1298 of 2013 (Sanjay Singh Vs. Yogeshwar Mishra & others), the court of Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad had passed order dated 6.11.2013, of cognizance and summoning of applicants Yogeshwar Mishra and Chandr Prabha Mishra for offences u/ss 504 and 506 IPC. The proceedings of said complaint case was challenged through application u/s 482 CrPC No. 5844 of 2015 with request for quashing entire proceedings of said case. This application was disposed of by order dated 26.2.215 this Court, by which relief sought for quashing of the proceedings of said case, but it was observed that if accused feels appropriate, he may avail relief through application u/s 245(2) CrPC before trial court. After it applicants moved application dated 3.4.2015 for their discharge. After affording opportunity of hearing to parties trial court had dismissed said application by it's order dated 30.6.2015.

2. Said order dated 30.6.2015 and entire proceedings of aforesaid complaint case has been challenged again by same applicants through present application u/s 482 CrPC.

3. Learned counsel for the applicants contended that complaint was filed on the basis of incorrect facts, because daughter of applicant no.-2 was never married with complainant (present opposite party no.-2). He further pointed out that there are other criminal proceedings going on against opposite party no.-2, in which he is absconding and is not even appearing in proceedings u/s 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act initiated by him. His submission is that prosecution is malicious and is based on incorrect facts, therefore, the proceedings of said complaint case should be quashed.

4. These contentions were refuted by AGA who supported the merits of the impugned ofder, and also submitted that after disposal of earlier application u/s 482 CrPC on merits for the identical relief, the second application is not maintainable.

5. From perusal of record, it is found that the order of cognizance and summoning was passed against the applicants for using defamatory language against complainant, and also for using foul words relating to abusive language and intimidating him. At this stage, this contention of learned counsel for the applicants cannot be accepted that on the basis of allegedly claimed relationship the opposite party no.-2 had filed complaint case maliciously on the basis of incorrect facts. Such averments are in nature of defence version relating to facts that can be considered by trial court at appropriate time, when evidences in that regard will adduced and facts will be proved.

6. So far as the merits of the impugned order dated 30.6.2015 is concerned, there appears no factual or legal irregularity or infirmity in it. The order of cognizance and summoning was passed against the applicants on the basis of facts available before the trial court. In fact this case relate to facts and not to law points. Whether applicants had committed overt acts for which they were summoned, is a matter of fact that can be proved or disproved on the basis of evidences only. When the order of cognizance and summoning has become final on the basis of factual aspect, the allowing of any application u/s 245(2) CrPC in such matter will amount to reviewing the said order or recalling it, that cannot be done by trial court. After considering the facts trial court had passed impugned order rejecting application u/s 245(2) CrPC, which apparently suffers from no infirmity or perversity that may require interference by this court.

7. Apart from it, earlier application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 5844 of 2015 has been moved by applicants for same relief, for which present application has been moved. At the time of disposal of earlier application, relief sought has been declined by this court. The contention of learned counsel for the applicant on subsequent filing of application u/s 482 CrPC for same relief is totally unacceptable. If this court has once considered the prayer for the relief sought by applicant and rejected it, then subsequent application for same relief cannot be allowed in exercise of inherent jurisdiction of this court on the ground that for such subsequent application for same relief and for same facts but in different garb of order of rejection of application u/s 245(2) CrPC. Such practice is nothing but abuse of process of court which should be depreciated. There is no legal propriety for granting same relief, when matter has been decided only on merit.

8. In view of above this application is dismissed.

9. Applicants are directed to appear before trial court immediately.

Held

The Court held that the Magistrate was fully empowered under Section 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C. to disagree with the police report and, after examining the case diary and material collected during investigation, take cognizance of offences against all accused persons, including those exonerated by the police. It was observed that where a negative report is submitted in respect of some accused, the Magistrate can summon them if sufficient material exists on record. The Court distinguished State of Gujarat v. Girish Radhakrishnan Varde on facts, holding that the said case applied to a situation involving only a positive charge-sheet, whereas the present matter involved a mixed report with some accused exonerated. Relying on the Constitution Bench decision in Dharam Pal v. State of Haryana, the Court found no legal infirmity, impropriety, or jurisdictional error in the cognizance order dated 30.07.2016 and accordingly dismissed the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

State of Gujarat v. Girish Radhakrishnan Varde
Dharam Pal v. State of Haryana
Kishun Singh v. State of Bihar
Prasad Shrikant Purohit v. State of Maharashtra

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Kumar Birla, J.)

1. Heard Sri Nazrul Islam Jafri, learned counsel for the applicants as well as learned AGA for the State and Sri S. Rashid, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 and perused the record.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing the order dated 30.7.2016 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 12, Azamgarh whereby learned Court below has taken cognizance against the applicants. It is further prayed for quashing the entire proceedings of Criminal Case No. 252 of 2016 (State vs. Susheel), arising out of Case Crime No. 329 of 2014 under Sections 406, 419, 506, 467, 468, 471 IPC, P.S. Kotwali Jiyanpur, District Azamgarh.

3. A first information report dated 23.12.2014 was lodged by the opposite party no. 2-Amzad Khan against the applicants herein, which was registered as Case Crime No. 329 of 2014, under Sections 406, 419, 420, 506 IPC. After investigation, the Investigating Officer filed charge-sheet under Section 406 IPC only against the applicant no. 1-Susheel Rai herein and the other co-accused named in the first information report were exonerated.

4. Against the said charge-sheet, an objection was raised by the opposite party no. 2 to the effect that offences under Sections 406, 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 506 IPC have been made out against all the accused persons, who are applicants herein. The prosecution also filed an application to the same effect stating therein that in parcha nos. 1 to 23 the Investigating Officer has categorically recorded that against accused persons, offences under sections as noted above have been made out and as such, cognizance should be taken against all the persons. After considering material so collected during investigation on record, by the impugned order dated 30.7.2016 the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 12, Azamgarh has taken cognizance against all the persons under Sections 406, 419, 420, 506, 467, 468 IPC.

5. It may be noticed that charge-sheet was submitted against the applicant no. 1-Susheel Rai herein only and other three persons, namely, applicant no. 2-Sudhakar Rai, applicant no.3-Santosh Rai and applicant no. 4-Harish Chandra Rai have been summoned by the court below on the basis of material collected during investigation.

6. Submission of the learned counsel for the applicants is that the charge-sheet against the applicant no. 1 was filed under Section 406 IPC only and addition of Sections 419, 420, 506, 467, 468, 471 IPC is not permissible in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Gujarat vs. Girish Radha Krishnan Varde, 2014 (3) SCC 659 wherein Hon'ble Apex Court has held under:

"The Magistrate in a case which is based on a police report cannot add or substract sections at the time of taking cognizance as the same would be permissible by the trial court only at the time of framing of charge under section 216, 218 or under section 228 of the Cr.P.C. as the case may be."

7. It was next submitted by the learned counsel for the applicants that other co-accused persons have wrongly been summoned as they are not at all connected with the alleged offence. It was pointed out that the applicants no. 2 and 3 are government servant and working as Assistant Teacher and applicant no. 4 has already retired as a teacher in the year 2009 and he is aged about 70 years. It was also submitted that as a matter of fact in a business transactions where the applicant no. 1 was duped by one Pramod Rai and others, he had lodged first information report against

Pramod Rai and two other persons on 15.8.2014, which was registered as Case Crime No. 468 of 2014 under Sections 419, 420, 468, 471, 406, 506 IPC. During investigation, statement of the opposite party no. 2-Amjad Khan was recorded by the police wherein it has come that the applicant no. 1-Susheel Rai has borrowed a sum of Rs. 12,50,000/- from him and about Rs. 7,24,000/- has already been returned to him. Submission is that subsequently the present criminal prosecution was lodged, which is absolutely baseless and order impugned herein is wholly illegal and is liable to be set aside in the light of Varde's case (supra).

8. Per contra, learned AGA and learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has supported the impugned order and submitted that in view of the law laid down by the Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dharam Pal and others vs. State of Haryana and another, 2014 (3) SCC 306, the Magistrate has power to disagree with the police report and if he is convinced that a case has been made out, he has power to issue summons against persons who were exonerated by the police during investigation and can include their names in connection with the case made out in the police report. It was next submitted that in this light Varde's case (supra) is of no help to the applicants including applicant no. 1-Susheel Rai against whom the charge-sheet was submitted under Section 406 IPC and therefore, submission is that after the judgement of Dharam Pal's case (supra), if the Magistrate was satisfied that sufficient material is available on record for addition of sections against the chargesheeted person, his powers are not restricted.

9. I have considered the rival submissions and perused the record.

10. A Constitution Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dharam Pal's case (supra) has discussed the powers of the Magistrate under Section 190 Cr.P.C. upon filing of a police report under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. Before proceeding further, it would be appropriate to quote paragraphs no. 7, 7.2, 33, 34, 35 and 36 of the Dharam Pal's case (supra):-

"7. The questions which require the consideration of the Constitution Bench are as follows:

7.2 If the Magistrate disagree with the police report and is convinced that a case had also been made out for trial against the persons who had been placed in column 2 of the report, does he have the jurisdiction to issue summons against them also in order to include their names, along with Nafe Singh, to stand trial in connection with the case made out in the police report?

33. As far as the first question is concerned, we are unable to accept the submissions made by Mr Chahar and Mr Dave that on receipt of a police report seeing that the case was triable by Court of Session, the Magistrate has no other function, but to commit the case for trial to the Court of Session, which could only resort to Section 319 of the Code to array any other person as accused in the trial. In other words, according to Mr Dave, there could be no intermediary stage between taking of cognizance under Section 190(1)(b) and Section 204 of the Code issuing summons to the accused. The effect of such an interpretation would lead to a situation where neither the Committing Magistrate would have any control over the persons named in column 2 of the police report nor the Sessions Judge, till the Section 319 stage was reached in the trial. Furthermore, in the event the Sessions Judge ultimately found material against the persons named in column 2 of the police report, the trial would have to be commenced de novo against such persons which would not only lead to duplication of the trial, but also prolong the same.

34. The view expressed in Kishun Singh vs. State of Bihar, (1993) 2 SCC 16, in our view, is more acceptable since, as has been held by this Court in the cases referred to hereinbefore, the Magistrate has ample powers to disagree with the final report that may be filed by the police authorities under Section 173 (2) of the Code and to proceed against the accused persons dehors the police report, which power the Sessions Court does not have till the Section 319 stage is reached. The upshot of the said situation would be that even though the Magistrate had powers to disagree with the police report filed under Section 173(2) of the Code, he was helpless in taking recourse to such a course of action while the Sessions Judge was also unable to proceed against any person, other than the accused sent up for trial, till such time evidence had been adduced and the witnesses had been cross-examined on behalf of the accused.

35. In our view, the Magistrate has a role to play while committing the case to the Court of Sessions upon taking cognizance on the police report submitted before him under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. In the event the Magistrate disagree with the police report, he has two choices. He may act on the basis of a protest petition that may be filed, or he may, while disagreeing with the police report, issue process and summon the accused. Thereafter, if on being satisfied that a case had been made out to proceed against the persons named in column 2 of the report, proceed to try the said persons or if he was satisfied that a case had been made out which was triable by the Court of Session, he may commit the case to the Court of Session to proceed further in the matter.

36. This brings us to the third question as to the procedure to be followed by the Magistrate if he was satisfied that a prima facie case had been made out to go to trial despite the final report submitted by the police. In such an event, if the Magistrate decided to proceed against the persons accused, he would have to proceed on the basis of the police report itself and either inquire into the matter or commit it to the Court of Session if the same was found to be triable by the Sessions Court."

11. Thus, as held in Dharam Pal's case, " In the event the Magistrate disagree with police report", the Magistrate has power to summon accused persons on the basis of case diary and the material collected during investigation and placed along with the police report while dealing with a negative police report and can proceed against the accused persons dehors the police report.

12. As per settled law and more recently reiterated by Hon'ble Apex Court in Prasad Srikant Purohit vs. State of Maharastra, (2015) 7 SCC 440 that taking of 'cognizance' under Section 190 Cr.P.C. does not involve any formal action or indeed action of any kind and that it only indicates the point which Magistrate or a Judge taken judicial notice 'of offence' 'not of offender' and thus, cognizance is mainly of the offence and not of the offender.

13. In the light of the aforesaid, it is to be seen as to whether Varde's case (supra) would apply to the present case or not.

14. Admittedly, in the present case although applicant no. 1-Susheel Rai was chargesheeted under Section 406 IPC, however in respect to other three named accused, namely, applicant no. 2-Sudhakar Rai, applicant no.3-Santosh Rai and applicant no. 4-Harish Chandra Rai, negative report was submitted by the police. The prosecution as well as informant has raised objection to the police report. Thus, as per settled law, under Section 190 Cr.P.C., the Magistrate has power to look into/go into the police report and the material placed along with police report filed under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. for the purpose of taking cognizance of offence. From perusal of the impugned order, it is very much clear that the learned Magistrate has gone through case diary and the material filed along with the police report thoroughly and has recorded his satisfaction and found that there is sufficient basis for taking cognizance under Sections 406, 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC against all accused persons.

15. In Varde's case (supra), Hon'ble Apex Court was considering a case where a police report i.e. positive charge-sheet was submitted by the police and there was no negative report, therefore, it was held that under such circumstances, correct stage for addition or substraction of the sections will have to be determined at the time of framing of charge, whereas in the present case in hand there is a negative report insofar as applicant no. 2-Sudhakar Rai, applicant no.3-Santosh Rai and applicant no. 4-Harish Chandra Rai are concerned and therefore, the Magistrate has power to go into police report and the material filed along with the police report and has, therefore, rightly exercised his power under Section 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C. For this reason Varde's case (supra), as relied on by learned counsel for the applicant, is clearly distinguishable and would not be applicable in the present case.

16. In view of the above discussion, I do not find any legal infirmity or impropriety or jurisdictional error in the impugned order dated 30.7.2016 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 12, Azamgarh and there is no good ground to quash the proceedings of the aforesaid case.

17. The present application lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

Application U/S 482 No.- 27383 Of 2016

Virendra & Ors. ...Applicants

Held

The Court held that the proceedings against the applicants Virendra, Sanju, and Amar Singh were liable to be quashed because there was no allegation of any overt act, participation, presence, or conspiracy on their part in the alleged execution of the forged agreement to sell. Merely stating that they were friends of the co-accused Mahesh and had allegedly been involved in similar acts earlier was held to be purely speculative and unsupported by evidence. The statements under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. also did not disclose any material connecting them with the offence. Accordingly, the summoning order dated 11.05.2016 was found unsustainable qua these applicants, and the complaint proceedings were quashed only against them, while proceedings against co-accused Mahesh were directed to continue in accordance with law.

CASE LAW CITED

None

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pramod Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicants, learned AGA and perused the records.

2. The prosecution case in brief is that the Mahesh had impersonated him as Harish (complainant) and executed registered agreement to sell of property of Harish without information to complainant. Only this much is written in complaint that applicants Virendra, Sanju and Amar Singh are friendly with him and had been involved in doing such acts in past.

3. This contention of learned counsel for the applicants Virendra, Sanju and Amar Singh is apparently correct that no overt act had been committed by them in execution of alleged forged registered agreement to sell which was executed on behalf of Harish by co-accused Mahesh. This contention is acceptable that not being marginal witness of the document in question and no evidence against these applicants, no case of commission of any offence or any overt act is made out by these applicants.

4. From perusal of record, it is found that there is evidence that Mahesh had posed himself as Harish and executed registered deed of agreement for sale of property of Harish. There is no allegation or averment that at the time of execution of said registered document, applicants Virendra, Sanju and Amar Singh were present. No evidence in that regard had surfaced during the statements under section 200 and 202 CrPC showing that at the time of execution of said forged document the applicants Virendra, Sanju and Amar Singh had been helpful or were involved in any manner. The names of applicants were mentioned in complaint and statement under section 202 Cr.P.C. only on the basis of speculation without mentioning their involvement or even conspiracy.

5. The trial court had not properly appreciated the evidences at the time of passing of order dated 11.5.2016. It had discussed the evidences, in which evidences of alleged overt act by Mahesh is mentioned, but it had passed order of cognizance and summoning of applicants only on the ground that they are friend of co-accused Mahesh. In absence of any evidence, direct or remote, against applicants for their involvement in incident in question, their prosecution is not legally unacceptable. These points were not considered by trial court at the time of passing of impugned order.

6. These facts are so apparent and prominently clear that this Court finds no sufficient reason to issue notice to OP No.-2/complainant in this matter. As a rule the OP no.-2 should have been afforded opportunity of hearing, but in present case, when it is found that if prosecution case mentioned in complaint and the statement of complainant is taken to be true in its entirety, even then the applicants cannot be said to be guilty of any over act relating to incident for which the complaint has been filed, then there is no propriety in issuing notice to OP No.-2 in this matter. For saving the precious time of this Court and of trial court, as well as of the parties concerned, and for protecting them from harassment during unnecessary legal proceedings, it appears appropriate that in this particular case the proceedings against applicants should be quashed.

7. It is made clear that, in future, there would be no restriction on powers of court to exercise its right of taking cognizance against any person in accordance with law, if evidences/ facts for the same are available before it. But at this stage, there is no justification for permitting the proceedings being carried out by trial court against applicants, without any satisfactory reason.

8. In view of the above, this application is allowed. The proceedings of complaint case no. 1851/2015 (Harish Vs. Mahesh and others), under sections 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC, P.S. Nauhjhil, District Mathura pending before the court of Judicial Magistrate, Mathura are quashed only against the applicants Virendra, Sanju and Amar Singh.

9. It is observed that proceeding against co-accused Mahesh shall be carried out by trial court in accordance with law.

Held

The High Court partly allowed the appeal and held that the conviction under Section 3(1)(x) of the SC/ST Act was unsustainable because the essential ingredients of the offence were missing. There was no allegation in the FIR that caste-related abusive words were used in public view, and the dispute arose out of an existing land/crop enmity, not on account of the complainant's caste. Accordingly, the conviction under the SC/ST Act was set aside. However, the conviction under Sections 352, 504 and 506 IPC was upheld. Considering that the incident was of 1991 and the appellant was above 60 years of age, the Court granted him the benefit of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 instead of sending him to jail, subject to bonds and good behaviour for one year.

CASE LAW CITED

Gorige Pentaiah v. State of Andhra Pradesh
Pappu Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh
Sections 3 & 4, Probation of Offenders Act, 1958

(Delivered by Hon'ble Attau Rahman Masoodi, J.)

1. This revision filed under Section 115 of Code of Civil Procedure is directed against the judgement/order dated 28.5.2015 passed in Regular Suit No. 2887 of 2014 whereby preliminary objection i.e. lack of territorial jurisdiction of the court below raised by the revisionist/defendant, giving rise to a preliminary issue, has been decided against him and the suit has been held to be rightly filed before the court of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Mohanlalganj, Lucknow instead of returning the plaint for being filed before the court of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Malihabad, Lucknow, within whose territorial jurisdiction the immovable property is situated.

2. The impugned order passed by the court below gives rise to the following questions of law:

(1) Whether a preliminary issue relating to the territorial jurisdiction of a court can be framed on the basis of an objection raised by the defendant before filing a written statement and if yes, as to what would be the manner of deciding such an objection;

(2) Whether the relief sought in the suit at hand essentially relates to a dispute in relation to immovable property and consequently the objection of territorial jurisdiction raised would be maintainable;

(3) In a situation where relief sought by the plaintiff is partly or wholly not triable before the court where the suit is instituted, whether such a proceeding can be transferred by virtue of the powers conferred on this Court under Section 24 (5) of CPC to the court of competent jurisdiction instead of returning the plaint in terms of Order VII Rule 10A.

Background

3. Briefly stated, facts of the case are that a suit for specific performance coupled with a relief of perpetual injunction was instituted before the court of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Mohanlalganj and at the time of filing of the suit, the Munsarim, in terms of Rule 35 of General Rules (Civil), endorsed his report by making a specific mention that the immovable property described in the plaint was situated beyond the territorial jurisdiction of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Mohanlalganj but having regard to the cause of action set out in paragraph 34 of the plaint which recited the execution of sale agreement before the Sub-Registrar, Lucknow the territorial jurisdiction of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Mohanlalganj on that premise was reported as maintainable. At the time of admission of the suit, the plaintiff appears to have contested the report submitted by the Munsarim on the basis of factum of registration of sale agreement. The court recording, prima facie, satisfaction in the order dated 23.12.2014 proceeded to invite written statement/objections from the defendants, however, the question as to the territorial jurisdiction was left open to be dealt with after the written statement/objections were filed.

4. After dealing with the objection reported by the Munsarim at the time of admission of the suit in the manner stated above, the court passed an order on 23.12.2014 separately on the application filed under Order XXXIX Rule 1 and 2, granting ex-parte temporary injunction on the same date and posted the suit for disposal of objections on temporary injunction on 2.1.2015.

5. It is an admitted position of fact that the immovable property described in the plaint is beyond the territorial jurisdiction of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Mohanlalganj and none of the defendants as described in the plaint are residents of a place that would confer territorial jurisdiction of the cause on 'Mohanlalganj court' in terms of Section 16 (d) CPC or the proviso appended thereto, on any ground whatsoever. The suit filed was nevertheless registered subject to objections as is evident from the order dated 23.12.2014 which was passed separately simultaneous to the order granting ex-parte interim injunction.

6. In the context of the order passed by the court below on 23.12.2014 registering the suit, specific objections were filed against the maintainability of suit on the ground that not only that the suit for specific performance was filed in relation to land situated beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the court but it was also pleaded that the suit for perpetual injunction in any view of the matter would not be cognizable before the court concerned, hence prayer to reject the plaint or alternatively the plaint be returned to the plaintiff for being presented/filed before the competent court i.e. the court of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Malihabad, Lucknow was made. The objections were supported with an affidavit.

7. The objections so filed by the revisionist-defendant were strongly contested by the opposite party/plaintiff taking recourse to file a reply on affidavit, obviously for the reason to defend the ex-parte injunction order already granted in his favour and partly to avoid consequential complications.

8. The objection filed by the revisionist-defendant as well as the stand of the plaintiff being strongly contested, came to be considered and decided by the impugned order passed on 28.5.2015 that has given rise to the instant revision.

9. Sri Brijesh Kumar Saxena, learned counsel for the revisionist while assailing the findings and the proposition of law applied by the court below, has argued that learned Civil Judge on the question of territorial jurisdiction, has completely misconstrued the provisions of CPC in relation to cause of action and in particular, Section 16 (d) as well as the proviso which contemplate the requisite conditions within which a suit in relation to immovable property may be instituted before a court of civil jurisdiction. It is argued that once a relief sought in the plaint is cognizable under Section 16 (d) or the proviso appended thereto or Sections 17 or 18 CPC, there is no scope for such a case being governed under Section 20 (c) of the CPC.

10. Learned counsel for the revisionist has further argued that the second prayer made in the plaint specifically for a perpetual injunction which is an independent relief that can be read only within the scope of Section 38 of the Specific Relief Act in relation to the immovable property described in the plaint, therefore, once the relief sought in the plaint is in relation to the immovable property, the provision of Section 16 (d) or proviso appended thereto would apply leaving no scope for applicability of Section 20 (c), as such, the findings recorded by the court below suffer from a manifest error of law.

11. The parties have cited decisions on the legal issues as to how the territorial jurisdiction is to be construed in respect of a relief for specific performance and otherwise.

12. Learned counsel for the revisionist has cited following decisions:

2). Hanamanthappa v. Chandrashekharappa, (1997) 9 SCC 688;

3). Madhusudan Das Agarwal and others v. Banaras Hindu University and others; [Writ Petition No. 2793 (MS) of 2000] (Allahabad High Court, Lucknow Bench) decided on 22.7.2015;

4). Vogel Media International v. Jasu Shah and others, 115 (2004) DLT 679;

5). K.P. Ranga Rao v. K.V. Venkatesham and others, (2015) 13 SCC 14;

6). Lallu alias Chandrika Prasad and others v. Lakshmi Narain and others, 2006 (1) AWC 428 (LB).

13. The findings recorded by the court below have vehemently been supported by Sri Abhinav Trivedi learned counsel for the opposite party/plaintiff on the basis of various judgements cited before this Court.

14. Learned counsel for the respondent has relied upon the following case laws:

1). Abdul Gafur and another v. State of Uttarakhand and others, (2008) 10 SCC 97;

2). Foreshore Co-operative Housing Society Ltd. v. Praveen D. Desai (dead) through LRs and others, [2015 (33) LCD 1812];

3). Adcon Electronics Pvt. Ltd. v. Daulat and another; (2001) 7 SCC 698;

4). Excel Dealcomm Private Limited v. Asset Reconstruction Company (India) Limited and others, (2015) 8 SCC 219;

5). Gunwantbhai Mulchand Shah and others v. Anton Elis Farel and other, (2006) 3 SCC 634.

Statute

15. Before delving into the legal issues framed above, it is apt to glance through the statutory provisions which relate to the territorial jurisdiction of civil courts leading to the development of law. Insofar as the proceedings before the civil courts are concerned, the place of suing as per the provisions contained in CPC, is regulated under Part I Section 15 to 20. By virtue of Section 120 CPC, Section 16, 17 and 20 of Code of Civil Procedure are not applicable to the High Courts in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction. The High Courts of original civil jurisdiction for the purposes of territorial jurisdiction are governed under Letters Patent (Madras, Bombay and Calcutta) whereunder clause-12 of the Letters Patent defines the original jurisdiction as to suits viz. place of suing etc. The provisions contained in the Code of Civil Procedure as compared to clause-12 of the Letters Patent stand at variance and the distinction in construing the two streams of law, while dealing with an issue in relation to the place of suing is necessary to be kept in mind for more than one reason. Firstly the language used in the two sets of provisions stands at variance and secondly Section 120 CPC clearly spells out that Section 16, 17 and 20 CPC would not apply to the High Courts exercising original civil jurisdiction.

16. On the aspect of preliminary issue, Section 9A in the State of Maharashtra mandatorily lays down for the civil courts to go into the preliminary issue of jurisdiction before the grant of interim relief once the objection is raised, whereas, it is discretionary in terms of Order XIV Rule 1 and 2 and the position may differ from one case to another.

17. The case at hand is a one governed under the provisions of CPC, therefore, decisions of the apex court rendered within the scope of clause-12 of the Letters Patent would necessarily require to be analyzed bearing in mind the distinguishing feature of the statutory law applicable in the respective States as well.

Discussion/Findings

18. Now coming to the first question as to how and on what material a preliminary issue as to the territorial jurisdiction is to be formulated, it is essential to have a look at the relevant provisions of CPC. Section 26 read with Order IV Code of Civil Procedure contemplate institution of suits by presentation of a plaint or in such other manner as may be prescribed. The situation before this Court is that of presentation of a plaint. Facts stated in the plaint have to be proved on the basis of affidavit. Chapter VII Rule 1 provides for particulars to be contained in plaint which for the purpose of issue at hand, include the name of the court in which the suit is brought; name, description and residence of the defendants; facts constituting the cause; facts showing that the court has jurisdiction and the relief claimed etc.

19. The description of particulars set out in the plaint are subjected to scrutiny of the Munsarim at the first place by virtue of the General Rules (Civil) framed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India read with Section 122 of the Code of Civil Procedure. In this regard Rule 35 of the General Rules (Civil) being relevant, is extracted below:

"35. Munsarim's duty in respect of plaints.- A Munsarim of a civil court appointed to receive plaints shall examine each plaint presented to him, and shall report thereon whether the provisions of the Code and the Court-fees Act, have been observed whether the claim is within the jurisdiction of the Court, constitutes a cause of action, and has been presented within the period prescribed for the institution of such a suit, and whether the plaint is otherwise in proper form including that in a suit whether a notice under Section 80, C.P.C., necessary, such a notice has been given.

The Munsarim shall see that the actual date of the presentation of the plaint is entered upon the impressed stamp and adhesive label, if any, below the date of purchase endorsed on them.

On the back of all plaints the Munsarim shall note-

(a) date of presentation of the plaint,

(b) name of presenter,

(c) classification of suit, and

(d) court-fee paid."

20. The requirement of law clearly postulates a report on the aspect of jurisdiction and it is rather the Munsarim of the court concerned who would report on the question of jurisdiction, being it a matter of his duty which in the present case seems to have been discharged attentively. A plaint once filed cannot be returned for being presented before the proper court as per the rules of procedure (civil) except in accordance with the power exercisable under CPC. A suit duly filed is admitted and procedure accordingly follows.

21. In the instant case, the suit filed was simply registered by order dated 23.12.2014, however, objections as to the territorial jurisdiction were left open to be raised by the defendants and summons were accordingly issued. The Munsarim in his report dated 18.12.2014 has candidly reported the issue of territorial jurisdiction which was tentatively dealt with in the order dated 23.12.2014 subject to the objections that were to be raised by the revisionist/defendant and others.

22. From the above mentioned order, it is clear that the court below while issuing the summons has clearly invited objections on the issue of territorial jurisdiction of the court meaning thereby that the report of the Munsarim was not rejected finally but an issue in that light could only be dealt with when an objection on oath was raised by the defendants. The Code of Civil Procedure under Order XIV Rule 3 provides for the materials from which issues may be framed. It is amply clear from the said provision that an issue can be framed on an allegation made on oath by the parties. The objection as to the territorial jurisdiction of a court in terms of Section 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure is bound to be raised at the earliest possible opportunity. Section 21 (1) CPC being relevant is reproduced below:

"21. Objections to jurisdiction.- (1) No objection as to the place of suing shall be allowed by any Appellate or Revisional Court unless such objection was taken in the Court of first instance at the earliest possible opportunity and in all cases were issues are settled, at or before such settlement, and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice.

(2) No objection as to the competence of a Court with reference to the pecuniary limits of jurisdiction shall be allowed by any Appellate or Revisional Court unless such objection was taken in the court of first instance at the earliest possible opportunity, and, in all cases where sues are settled, at or before such settlement, and unless there has been a consequent failure justice.

(3) No objection as to the competence of the executing court with reference to the local limits of its jurisdiction shall be allowed by any Appellate or Revisional Court unless such objection taken in the executing court at the earliest possible opportunity, and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice."

23. It is worthwhile to note that law lays emphasis on raising the objection of jurisdiction at the earliest possible opportunity and in the present case, the revisionist/defendant at the earliest possible opportunity has raised such an objection apart from what was reported by the Munsarim. Once such an objection is put on record, the plaintiff has an option under Order VII Rule 10A to seek the opinion of the court whether a plaint be returned. In the present case, the opposite party/plaintiff having contested the matter in support of the maintainability of suit before the civil court where it was filed, did not leave any scope for return of the plaint in terms of Order VII Rule 10 and 10A. The report of the Munsarim coupled with the objections of revisionist/defendant on affidavit and reply thereto filed by the opposite party/plaintiff on affidavit, gave rise to an issue which has come to be dealt with by way of a preliminary issue. The question that crops up is as to whether such an issue being an issue of law can at all be dealt with and disposed of by way of 'preliminary issue' before filing the written statement and framing of all the issues.

24. This court has already noticed that the plaintiff in the present case did not choose to avail the benefit of Order VII Rule 10 and 10A CPC, therefore, in a contested case where the question of jurisdiction has arisen before a court, an issue of law by virtue of Order XIV Rule 1 can be framed even before filing of a written statement provided there are allegations made on oath by the parties. In the instant case, apart from the pleadings set out in the plaint supported by affidavit, objections on oath were filed by the revisionist on affidavit which were duly replied by the opposite party/plaintiff on affidavit constituted adequate material for dealing with the preliminary issue, as such, the contention of the opposite party that such an issue can be tried only after filing written statement, in my humble opinion, is wholly misconceived particularly when Order XIV Rule 2 empowers the court to dispose of a case on preliminary issue.

25. Having given an anxious thought to the scheme of provisions contained in CPC, I am of the considered opinion that a preliminary issue under Order XIV Rule 1 can be framed even before filing of a written statement, provided there is adequate material stated on oath or denial by the defendant in the like manner and when the emerging issue being a question of law goes to the root of proceedings. This requirement having been met with adequately in the present case does not leave it open to the opposite party/plaintiff to contend that the course adopted by the court below leaves the issue still open, particularly when reply on oath duly filed on his behalf to the objections filed by the revisionist/defendant stand decided by the impugned order. The judgements cited before this Court, as a matter of law, do not lay down that a pure question of law cannot be framed and dealt with as a preliminary issue even before filing a written statement provided there is material on record on the basis of which such an issue can be framed. It is also well settled that a court of law cannot exercise its jurisdiction beyond what is conferred even if the parties consent, therefore, consequent failure of justice in a situation of lack of jurisdiction is but natural. The discretion to decide an issue as a preliminary issue before the settlement of other issues, however, lies within the discretion of the court concerned and such an exercise of jurisdiction as is evident in the present case does not suffer from any error of law. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the first question framed hereinabove is answered in affirmative.

26. Now coming to the second issue, it would be relevant to note that in relation to the relief for specific performance of an agreement, the apex court judgement reported in (2001) 7 SCC 698 (Adcon Electronics Pvt. Ltd. v. Daulat and another) in paras 16, 17, 18 and 19 has observed as under:

16. In a suit for specific performance of contract for sale of immovable property containing stipulation that on execution of the sale deed the possession of the immovable property will be handed over to the purchaser, it is implied that delivery of possession of the immovable property is part of the decree of specific performance of contract. But in this connection it is necessary to refer to Section 22 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 which runs :

"22. Power to grant relief for possession, partition, refund of earnest money, etc. --

(1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, any person suing for the specific performance of a contract for the transfer of immovable property may, in an appropriate case, ask for -

(a) possession, or partition and separate possession, of the property, in addition to such performance; or

(b) any other relief to which he may be entitled, including the refund of any earnest money or deposit paid or made by him in case his claim for specific performance is refused.

(2) No relief under clause (a) or clause (b) of sub-section (1) shall be granted by the court unless it has been specifically claimed :

Provided that where the plaintiff has not claimed any such relief in the plaint, the court shall, at any stage of the proceeding, allow him to amend the plaint on such terms as my be just for including a claim for such relief."

17. It may be seen that sub-section (1) is an enabling provision. A plaintiff in a suit of specific performance may ask for further reliefs mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) thereof. Clause (a) contains reliefs of possession and partition and separate possession of the property, in addition to specific performance. The mandate of sub-section (2) of Section 22 is that no relief under clauses (a) and (b) of sub-section (1) shall be granted by the Court unless it has been specifically claimed. Thus it follows that no court can grant the relief of possession of land or other immovable property, subject-matter of the agreement for sale in regard to which specific performance is claimed, unless the possession of the immovable property is specifically prayed for.

18. In the instant case the suit is for specific performance of agreement for sale of the suit property wherein relief of delivery of the suit property has not been specifically claimed as such it cannot be treated as a "suit for land".

19. We cannot also accept the contention of Mr. Chitale that the suit is for acquisition of title to the land and is a "suit for land". In its true sense a suit simpliciter for specific performance of contract for sale of land is a suit for enforcement of terms of contract. The title to the land as such is not the subject-matter of the suit."

27. The view expressed by the apex court holds good even now but the case at hand seeks a two-fold relief. The relief of perpetual injunction has specifically been prayed for as an independent relief. The second relief in terms of the impugned order is held to be an incidental relief notwithstanding the fact that the position reflected in the plaint placed on record is just contrary. Looking to the nature of prayer made in the plaint, there is no doubt that such a prayer can only be read within the scope of Section 38 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, which reads as under:

"Perpetual injunction when granted. --

(1) Subject to the other provisions contained in or referred to by this Chapter, a perpetual injunction may be granted to the plaintiff to prevent the breach of an obligation existing in his favour, whether expressly or by implication.

(2) When any such obligation arises from contract, the court shall be guided by the rules and provisions contained in Chapter II.

(3) When the defendant invades or threatens to invade the plaintiff's right to, or enjoyment of, property the court may grant a perpetual injunction in the following cases, namely-

(a) where the defendant is trustee of the property for the plaintiff;

(b) where there exists no standard for ascertaining the actual damages caused, or likely to be caused, by the invasion;

(c) where the invasion is such that compensation in money would not afford adequate relief;

(d) where the injunction is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings."

28. Once the relief of perpetual injunction was prayed in the suit that cannot be understood except what Section-38 (3) Specific Relief Act provides, it would be difficult to affirm the observation of the court below that such a relief is incidental. An incidental relief is one which flows from the main relief and the position in this regard may vary in each case but the ingredients for grant of an incidental relief must be satisfied. This Court in the case reported in AIR 1973 All. 55 (Om Prakash and another v. Anar Singh and others) has observed in para 8 as under:

"8. Learned counsel for the petitioner urged that the determination of the right or interest in the immovable property in the present case, and generally in the case of all injunctions, is only an incidental matter and not a matter essential for the grant of relief and accordingly Section 16(d) will not be attracted. The contention is not correct. Section 38 of the Specific Relief Act speaks about the grant of perpetual injunctions. Sub-section (3) of Section 38 says that when the defendant invades or threatens to invade the plaintiff's right to or enjoyment of the property the court may grant a perpetual injunction in the circumstances detailed in the section. Thus a court can grant a perpetual injunction only after it determines that the plaintiff has a right to enjoy the property. As it is a matter essential for granting the injunction, the determination of the right of the plaintiff cannot be held to be a matter only incidental and not essential for granting the relief of injunction. And. as such determination is a necessary prerequisite for the grant of the relief of injunction. Section 16 (d) must apply to a suit for a permanent injunction.

29. On a perusal of the plaint placed on record, the relief for perpetual injunction sought by the opposite party/plaintiff cannot be read otherwise than what lies within the scope of Section 38 (3) of Specific Relief Act, 1963 and such a relief, for its determination, would necessarily involve determination of the right of the plaintiff to enjoy the property, thus the relief is essential and has wrongly been construed to be incidental by the court below. The essential relief sought by the plaintiff relates to the immovable property, hence Section 16 (d) CPC must apply in the case of perpetual injunction as is the case at hand. Now in a situation, where the first relief prayed for specific performance simpliciter though being within the jurisdiction of the court below but sought alongwith the relief of perpetual injunction which relates to the immovable property attracting Section 16 (d) CPC, would the prayer of such a description be maintainable before the court below within the purview of Section 20 (c) CPC. Section 20 (c) CPC being relevant is extracted below:

"20. Other suits to be instituted where defendants reside or cause of action arises .- Subject to the limitations aforesaid, every suit shall be instituted in a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction--

(a) The defendant, or each of the defendants where there are more than one, at the time of the commencement of the Suit, actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain; or

(b) any of the defendants, where there are more than one, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain, provided that in such case either the leave of the Court is given, or the defendants who do not reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain, as aforesaid, acquiesce in such institution; or

(c) the cause of action, wholly or in part, arises."

30. It is well settled that Section 20 CPC is a residuary provision and covers those eventualities which do not fall under Sections 15 to 19. The very opening words of Section 20 CPC "subject to the limitation aforesaid" are significant and do not leave any room for doubt that the residuary provision would only apply when the application of other provisions is totally ruled out. In the instant case, application of Section 20 (c) is construed on the basis of registration of the sale agreement in relation whereof a relief simpliciter is prayed for under clause-1 but other relief sought by the opposite party/plaintiff is in the nature of perpetual injunction.

31. It has already been held hereinabove that the prayer made in the suit for perpetual injunction would relate to the immovable property hence Section 16 (d) CPC would be attracted, therefore, in a situation where any part of the relief is governed under Section 16 (d) CPC, the jurisdiction of the court will have to be determined accordingly. The situation would have been different if the defendants were residents of a place situated within the territorial jurisdiction of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mohanlalganj. In that event, the proviso appended to Section 16 (d) wold have applied so as to enable the court below to exercise its jurisdiction. Thus, the place of registration of a document would only be relevant when other provisions i.e. Sections 15 to 19 have no application at all. In view of the above discussion, I am of the considered opinion, that even though the relief of specific performance simpliciter may lie within the jurisdiction of court below but the relief as a whole not being within its territorial jurisdiction, the suit cannot proceed as the application of Section 16 (d) CPC is inescapable and the relief of perpetual injunction being a relief in relation to land renders the suit proceedings as non-maintainable.

32. The third issue in the present situation being significant may also be dealt with in the light of relevant provisions. Order VII Rule 10 CPC before the Amendment Act 104 of 1976 provided for return of plaint at any stage but after the amendment, the Code of Civil Procedure has taken due care of a situation that may emerge as a consequence of an objection of lack of jurisdiction. A plaintiff on such an objection being raised may subscribe to the opinion of the court under Order VII Rule 10A at the earliest or may choose to contest as is the case at hand. Once the plaintiff has chosen to contest a proceeding upto a certain stage and the defendants have also represented their case without any prejudice of opportunity being caused, then in such a situation, the provisions of Section 24 (5) can be fruitfully invoked by the court to transfer the proceedings from one court to the court having territorial jurisdiction. The only difference that it would make is that in the former case, the proceedings would transfer from the very inception but in the later case the proceedings would stand transferred from the stage at which they have reached before the trial court. Reference may also be made to the apex court judgement in the case of Ramesh Chandra Sankla etc. v. Vikram Cement etc. reported in (2008) 14 SCC 58. In paragraph 68 of the said judgement, the apex court observed as under:

"68. The Law Commission also considered the question and did not favour the tendency of deciding some issues as preliminary issues. Dealing with Rule 2 of Order XIV (before the amendment), the Commission stated;

"This rule has led to one difficulty. Where a case can be disposed of on a preliminary point (issue) of law, often the courts do not inquire into the merits, with the result that when, on an appeal against the finding on the preliminary issue the decision of the Court on that issue is reversed, the case has to be remanded to the Court of first instance for trial on the other issues. This causes delay.

It is considered that this delay should be eliminated, by providing that a court must give judgment on all issues, excepting, of course, where the Court finds that it has no jurisdiction or where the suit is barred by any law for the time being in force". (emphasis supplied)"

33. On this issue, both the parties at this stage, have agreed that they shall have no objection if the suit proceedings are transferred at the stage at which they are pending, therefore, bearing in mind the authority of this Court under Section 24 (5) CPC, the proceedings of R.S. No. 2887/14 pending before the court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mohanlalganj are hereby transferred to the court of Civil Judge (Senior Division) Malihabad. The consent of parties shall, however, be without prejudice to their rights on other issues decided by this Court.

Order

34. In the light of discussions and findings recorded above, the impugned judgement/order dated 28.5.2015 is hereby set aside and the revision is allowed. The proceedings of R.S. No. 2887/14 shall stand transferred in terms of the direction issued and the District Judge, Lucknow shall ensure the transfer of record of the suit forthwith. Parties shall be informed of the date fixed in the proceedings. The suit proceedings are expedited and the court below is expected to conclude the proceedings expeditiously.

35. No order as to cost.

Held

The Court held that, considering the overall facts and circumstances, the applicant-husband was entitled to be released on bail in the dowry death case. The Court took note of the fact that the deceased died by ante-mortem hanging, with no external injury marks in the post-mortem report, and that the father's initial information to the police contained no allegation of dowry demand or cruelty, rather stating that no one from the in-laws' side was responsible and that the deceased had committed suicide due to illness. The subsequent FIR alleging dowry demand, lodged after a delay of more than twenty days, was considered a relevant circumstance at the stage of bail. Keeping in view the period of detention, delay in trial, nature of evidence, and absence of material suggesting tampering, the Court enlarged the applicant on bail subject to conditions of non-interference with evidence and mandatory personal appearance before the trial court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. This is a bail application moved on behalf of husband who is facing the charge of committing dowry death of his wife.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

3. Perused the record.

4. Submission is that though this is said to be a case of dowry death but admittedly to the prosecution side the deceased died as a result of ante mortem hanging. The post mortem report does not indicate any mark of violence on her body. Further submission is that the information about her death was duly given to her parents on which they had also arrived on the place of occurrence. Attention was drawn to Annexure-SA-1 filed along with supplementary affidavit which is information given by the father of the deceased to the police in which no allegation of demand of dowry or ill-treatment committed against the deceased was made and it was specifically stated in the initial information. that none of the in-laws or husband are to blame for the death of his daughter. It was also stated in this F.I.R. that she was suffering from some internal illness and being fed up and frustrated by the same she has committed suicide. The inquest proceedings of deceased were performed and even at that time the first informant and his son themselves were made witnesses of the inquest proceedings. Subsequently, after a lapse of more than twenty days the present F.I.R. in question was lodged against the applicant and entirely false and frivolous allegations of demand of dowry and ill-treatment meted out to deceased were made. Contention is that had there been any truth in these allegations, there was no reason for making a contradictory report earlier and there was also no explanation as to why this subsequent F.I.R. was lodged with so much inordinate delay. Submission is that in the aforesaid circumstances the false implication of the applicant is manifestly apparent on the face of record. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the applicant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required. It has also been submitted that the applicant is languishing in jail since 10.2.2015 and in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

5. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the prayer for bail.

6. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence, this Court is of the view that the applicant may be enlarged on bail.

7. Let the applicant-Indrapal, involved in complaint no. 70 of 2012, in Case Crime No.245 of 2011, u/s 304-B, 498-A, 342 I.P.C. and 3/4 D.P. Act, P.S.-Nakhasa, District-Moradabad be released on bail on his executing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned on the following conditions :-

(1) The applicant will not make any attempt to tamper with the prosecution evidence in any manner whatsoever.

(2) The applicant will personally appear on each and every date in the court and his personal presence shall not be exempted unless the court itself deems it fit to do so in the interest of justice.

8. It may be observed that in the event of any breach of the aforesaid conditions, the court below shall be at liberty to proceed for the cancellation of applicant's bail.

9. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

Criminal Appeal No.- 128 Of 2009

Inspector ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellant:
Ashok Kumar Singh, S.M. Ayaz Ali

Counsel for Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Held

The High Court allowed the criminal appeal and acquitted the appellant of the charge under Section 302/34 IPC, holding that the prosecution failed to prove the case beyond reasonable doubt. The Court found the FIR to be doubtful and possibly ante-timed, due to contradictions regarding how and when the police was informed. It also held that the presence of the alleged eyewitnesses was unnatural, there was no reliable proof of any source of light at 2:00 a.m., and the injury on co-accused Karan Singh remained unexplained, creating serious doubt about the prosecution version. Further, the alleged recovery of the axe was held unreliable, and the investigation appeared biased and unfair. On cumulative assessment, the conviction was set aside and the appellant was directed to be released forthwith, subject to Section 437-A CrPC bond compliance.

Dalbir Kaur v. State of Punjab

(Delivered by Hon'ble Bala Krishna Narayana, J.)

1. On 23.9.2016, we after hearing learned counsel for the parties, had made the following order:

2. "Heard Sri Sangam Lal Kesharwani, leaned counsel for the appellant and Sri J. K. Upadhyay, Sri Hasan Abdi and Km. Meena, learned AGAs for the State and perused the record of this appeal. We will give reasons later but we make the operative order now. The appeal is allowed.

Impugned judgement and order dated 22.12.2008 passed by Sessions Judge, Kannauj in Sessions Trial No. 299 of 2003 (State Vs. Inspector and others) arising out of Case Crime No. 274 of 2003 convicting the appellant under Sections 302 IPC, police station- Gursahaiganj, district- Kannauj is hereby set aside. The appellant is acquitted of all the charges framed against him. Appellant is in jail. He shall be released forthwith unless and until he is wanted in any other case after complying with the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C.

3. There shall be no order as to cost."

4. These are the reasons upon which we set aside the impugned judgement and order:

5. Heard Sri Sangam Lal Kesarwani, learned counsel for the appellants, Sri Sagir Ahmad, learned A. G. A. assisted by Mrs. Manju Thakur, Brief Holder appearing for the State of U. P.

6. This criminal appeal has been preferred by the appellant Inspector against the judgement and order dated 22.12.2008 passed by the Sessions Judge, Kannauj in S. T. No. 299 of 2003; State Versus Inspector arising out of Case Crime No. 273 of 2003; under Sections-302/34 IPC, P. S.-Gursahaiganj, district-Kannauj by which the appellant has been convicted under Sections-302/34 IPC and sentenced to life imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5000/- and in case of default of payment of fine, additional three months' R. I.

7. The facts of this case as spelt out in the F. I. R. (Ext. Ka 1) lodged by P. W. 1 Sant Prakash, S/o Deen Dayal at 7.00 A. M. on 5.6.2003 at police station-Gursahaiganj, district-Kannauj on the basis of which Case Crime No. 273 of 2003 was registered against the appellant and two others namely, Jageshwar Singh, S/o Shiv Dayal, and Karan Singh, S/o Phool Singh, all residents of Mahona, P. S.-Gursahai Ganj, district- Kannauj and later testified by the prosecution witnesses of fact P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad, are that the informant had set up a flour mill on the south western corner of the village. About twenty days before the incident an altercation had taken place between Jageshwar Singh and his brother deceased Phal Singh as the aforesaid Jageshwar Singh suspected that Phal Singh was having an illicit relationship with his daughter. On the date of incident a dust storm storm had hit the village at midnight which lasted for about two hours and had resulted in a large number of unripe mangoes falling from the mango trees and while the complainant and his brother Ganga Prasad were collecting mangoes, which had fallen on the ground at about 2.00 A. M. they heard a shriek of their brother coming from the side of the flour mill where he was sleeping on a thakat on which complainant and his brother ran towards the flour mill and on reaching there, they saw the appellant Inspector standing near their brother holding an axe in his hands, while the co-accused Karan Singh had gagged him by pressing his palms across his mouth and Jageshwar Singh was also standing there. Inspector assaulted his brother with the axe. On being challenged by the complainant and his brother, Ram Sanehi, S/o Girwar, residents of the same village also reached the place of incident, on which the appellant and the other accused ran towards south and when the complainant and his brother saw their brother closely, they found him wriggling in pain and blood oozing out from his face. Considering the serious condition of his brother, the informant did not chase the assailants. In the meantime a huge crowd had gathered at the place of incident and while arrangements were being made to take Phal Singh to the hospital, he died on the spot. Leaving behind the dead body of the deceased at the place of incident, the complainant Sant Prakash went to the police station to lodge the F. I. R. of the occurrence. On the basis of the written complaint (Ext. Ka 1) given by the complainant P. W. 1, Sant Prakash at P. S.-Gursahaiganj, district-Kannauj, check F. I. R. Ext. Ka 3 was prepared and registered vide rapat No. 9, dated 5.6.2003 (Ext. Ka 4) at Case Crime No. 274 of 2003, under Section-302 IPC; State Versus Inspector and three others. Soon after the registration of the case investigation was entrusted to S. H. O. Dayanand Singh, who after copying the check F. I. R. in the case diary recorded the statement of P. W. 4 Dhawal Singh, who had prepared the check F. I. R. and proceeded to the place of occurrence along with the other members of his force and conducted the inquest of the dead body of the deceased and got the inquest report (Ext. Ka 5) prepared by H. C. P. Mohd. Hafiz under his supervision. He also prepared other related documents, letters addressed to C. M. O., chalan of the dead body, photograph of the dead body (Exts. Ka 6, Ka 7 and Ka 8 respectively) and dispatched the dead body of the deceased for conducting post mortem. He also inspected the crime scene and prepared the site plan (Ext. ka 9). He collected plain and blood stained earth (material Ext. Ka 1 and material Ext. Ka 2 respectively), blood stained and plain wood scraps extracted from the thakat (material Ext. Ka 3 and material Ext. Ka 4 respectively) and prepared recovery memo (Ext. Ka 10). He also recorded the statements of the witnesses Ganga Prasad, Ram Singh, witnesses of recovery and the inquest and H. C. P. Mohd. Hafiz. He arrested all the three accused on 7.6.2003 at 5.30 A. M. near Ramashram in front of P. C. O. where he had reached on the basis of the information given to him by the police informer, in the presence of witnesses Vimal Kumar and Chandra Prakash. Co-accused Karan Singh at the time of his arrest, had a visible injury on his hand. The accused Inspector after his arrest disclosed that he had hidden the axe which was used in committing the murder of the deceased Fhal Singh in the drawing room of one Rajendra Singh and expressed his readiness to get the same recovered. A blood stained axe (material Ext. Ka 5) was recovered from the south west corner of the drawing room of Rajendra Singh in the presence of witnesses Vimal and Chandra Prakash by the accused Inspector. The blade of the axe was wrapped in a bundle of wool and sealed. The recovery memo of crime weapon (Ext. Ka 11) was prepared on the spot and signatures of the witnesses were obtained thereon. The investigating officer of the case prepared the site plan of the place from where the crime weapon was allegedly recovered (Ext. Ka 12). The accused Karan Singh was taken to the Primary Health Centre, Gursahaiganj for treatment of his injuries. The post mortem of the dead body of the deceased Phal Singh was conducted by P. W. 3 Dr. Janardan Babu on 5.6.2003 at about 5.40 P. M. who prepared the post mortem report (Ext. Ka 2) of the deceased and noted following ante mortem injuries on his dead body:

Incised wound 9 cm x 2 cm into bone deep present on the right side of parietal region involving right lateral surface of neck below label of right ear. Wound line margins are clean cut. Both angles blood present around the wound on die section of mandible bone and maxilla bone cut. Fractured muscles and falls cut.

8. After obtaining the forensic report (Ext. Ka 14) of the blood stains found on the axe and collecting other evidence P. W. 5 Dayanand Singh submitted chargesheet (Ext. Ka 13) against the all the accused under Sections-302/34 IPC.

9. Since the offences enumerated in the chargesheet were triable exclusively by the court of Sessions, the concerned C. J. M. committed the case for the trial of the accused to the Court of Sessions. The trial so committed to the Court of Sessions was registered as S. T. No. 299 of 2003; State Versus Inspector and two others. Charge was framed against all the accused under Sections-302/34 IPC. The accused denied the charge framed against them and claimed trial.

10. The prosecution in order to prove the charge framed against the accused examined two witnesses of fact namely P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad and four formal witnesses namely P. W. 3 Dr. Janardan Babu, P. W. 4 Dhawal Singh, P. W. 5 Inspector Dayanand Singh, P. W. 6 Dr. R. A. S. Tomar, Medical Officer. The sessions Judge after considering the evidence on record and the submissions advanced before him by learned counsel for the parties convicted the appellant Karan Singh under Section-302/34 IPC and awarded aforesaid sentences to them while co-accused Jageshwar Singh was acquitted .

11. Sri Sangam Lal Kesarwani, learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that from the evidence of P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad it is crystal clear that the information regarding the incident was given by the P. W. 1 Sant Prakash to the police by phone and the police had reached the place of incident in response to the aforesaid information and till then identity of the accused was not known, the remaining paper work including scribing of the F. I. R., was done at the place of incident with the aid, advice and interference of the police and hence the F. I. R. of the incident appears to be wholly un-reliable and ante timed. He next submitted that the incident which had taken place in the night at about 2.00 A. M. on 5.6.2003 was preceded by a thunder storm which had hit the village in the mid night and had lasted for about two hours and during which the power supply in the village was snapped, hence the prosecution case is liable to be thrown out on account of the failure of the prosecution to lead any evidence, showing that there was any source of light at the place of incident or the alleged light emitting from the electric bulb hung against the wall of tube-well near the place of incident, was sufficient to enable the two chance witnesses to identify the assailants as claimed by the prosecution or that the electricity supply which had been disrupted following the dust storm which had lasted for two hours from 12.00 to 2.00 A. M., had been restored. The presence of the two eye witnesses at the place of the incident, who are real brothers of the deceased being highly partisan and interested at 2.00 A. M. and their having seen the occurrence in the absence of any source of light at the crime scene, is highly doubtful and the explanation given by them for their being present near the place of incident, at the time of the occurrence is wholly unconvincing and unacceptable and hence the appellant's conviction on the basis of the thoroughly interested testimonies of P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad cannot be sustained and is liable to be set aside.

12. He further submitted that at the time of the incident co-accused Karan Singh was also sleeping on the same thakat on which the deceased was sleeping and he had also received an injury on his hand in the incident which the prosecution witnesses have failed to explain and hence their testimony cannot be treated as reliable. It was co-accused Karan Singh who had gone to the house of the deceased Phal Singh and informed his family members including the P.W. 1 and P. W. 2. about the incident, whereafter they had arrived at the place of incident. Karan Singh had also accompanied the complainant P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad to the police station for lodging the F. I. R. and had told the police that the assailants had veiled their faces as such he was not able to identity them and although after the recovery of the alleged crime weapon from the drawing room of Rajendra Singh, the police had taken all the three accused and Rajendra Singh to the police station but when co-accused Karan Singh refused to falsely nominate as accused the persons of the choice of the police as he had not been able to identify them, strangely Rajendra Singh was allowed to go escort free, while appellant along with Karan Singh and Jageshwar Singh was made accused of the murder of Phal Singh. He next submitted that the acquittal of the co-accused Jageshwar Singh who as per the prosecution case, alone had a very strong motive to commit the murder of the deceased and the prosecution having failed to prove any motive for the appellant to commit the murder of the deceased, the conviction of the appellant on the basis of the same evidence on which accused Jageshwar Singh was acquitted is not maintainable at all. He lastly submitted that from the facts and circumstances of the case and evidence on record, it is crystal clear that no-one had seen the incident and after the dead body of the deceased was recovered, a false F. I. R. was lodged by the P. W. 1 Sant Prakash after due deliberations, consultations and police interference and hence he recorded conviction of the appellant and the sentence awarded to him by the trial court on the basis of the absolutely tainted investigation done pursuant to an F. I. R. credibility whereof itself is under cloud, cannot be sustained and is liable to be set aside.

13. Per contra, Sri Saghir Ahmad, learned A. G. A. assisted by Mrs. Manju Thakur, Brief Holder appearing for the State of U. P. submitted that the prosecution case stands fully proved from the eye witness account of P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad, which stands further fully corroborated from the medical evidence. The conviction of the appellant is based upon cogent and reliable evidence and sentence awarded to him by the trial court is supported by relevant considerations, hence the impugned judgement and order does not warrant any interference by this Court. This appeal lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

14. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and scanned the entire lower court record. The only question which arises for our consideration in this case is whether the prosecution has been able to prove its case against the appellant beyond all reasonable doubts.

15. In order to ascertain whether the prosecution has been able to prove its case against the appellant beyond all reasonable doubts, we have to examine whether the F. I. R. of this case is credible and not ante timed and whether the prosecution has been able to prove the time, place and manner of occurrence and motive for committing the crime as spelt out in the F. I. R. and whether the evidence of witnesses of fact examined on behalf of the prosecution is reliable and trustworthy.

16. The credibility of the F. I. R. in this case has been challenged by learned counsel for the appellant on the ground of there is a glaring contradiction in the testimonies of P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad with regard to manner in which occurrence was reported to the police.

17. P. W. 1 Sant Prakash in his examination-in-chief (at page 12 of the paper book) has deposed that he had scribed the written report of the incident (Ext. Ka 1) on the spot and thereafter he had gone to the police station and given the same to "Deewan Ji" and on the basis of the aforesaid written report, the case was registered and his statement was recorded by "daroga ji". Thereafter the police had gone to the place of incident and conducted the inquest of the dead body of the deceased and completed the necessary paper work, whereas P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad, the other eye witness of the occurrence (at page 16 of the paper work) stated in his examination-in-chief stated that his elder brother P. W. 1 Sant Prakash had telephonically informed the police about the occurrence in the morning. The police had thereafter arrived at the place of incident and after doing necessary paper work had sealed the dead body of the deceased and dispatched it for post mortem.

18. P. W. 5 Dayanand Singh, the first I. O. of this case (at 12 of the paper book) in his cross examination stated that he did not remember the time at which he had reached the place of incident on the date of occurrence. Neither the time of his departure, nor the time of his return to the police station, was recorded in the case diary.

19. In this connection, it would be relevant to refer to the cross examination of P. W. 4 S. I. Dhawal Singh who had upon receiving the written report (Ext. Ka 1) prepared the check F. I. R. of the case (Ext. Ka 3) and made the relevant G. D. entry, in which on page 27 of the paper book in which he had stated that on 5.6.2003 before or after registration of the instant case no other criminal case was registered at P. S.-Gursahaiganj but he denied the suggestion given to him by defence counsel that before leaving the police station the Investigating Officer of the case had instructed him to keep the G. D. blank or that he had returned to the police station with the complainant and co-accused Karan Singh and had thereafter recorded the time of registration of the F. I. R. according to his convenience. It is apparent that P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 4 did not speak the truth before the trial court as P. W. 5 Dayanand Singh, the Investigating Officer of this case in his cross examination on page 32 of the paper book clearly stated on oath that he did not remember the time at which he reached the place of incident, however, when the returned to the police station he was not accompanied by the complainant but he had brought co-accused Karan Singh to the police station after arresting him at about 5.20 a. m. from a place in front of a P. C. O. near Ramashram although according to the arrest memo of the accused (Ext. Ka 11) all the three accused including co-accused Karan Singh were arrested on 7.6.2003 at about 5.35 a. m. Thus the aforesaid discrepancy with regard to the date of the arrest of the co-accused Karan Singh mentioned in the recovery memo (Ext. Ka 11) and in the statement of P. W. 5 Dayanand Singh indicates that when the co-accused Karan was taken to the police station on the date of incident he had actually not been arrested and for some reason or the other the I. O. of the case tried to show that co-accused Karan Singh was arrested along with the other accused on 7.6.2003.

20. Thus, there is a glaring contradiction in the evidence of the two eye witnesses with regard to the manner in which the incident was reported to the police and on the point of arrival of the police at the place of incident, that is whether the police had reached the place of occurrence after the lodging of the written report (Ext. Ka 1) or before the same was scribed. The P. W. 2 in his examination-in-chief has unequivocally stated that the police had arrived at the place of incident on being informed about the murder telephonically by P. W. 1 and had conducted the inquest and completed the necessary paper work on the spot. The failure of the I. O. in his cross examination to disclose the time at which he had reached the place of incident on the date of occurrence, further strengthens the doubt that when the police had reached the place of incident, the F. I. R. was not in existence and the same was scribed later, after due deliberations, consultation and under police interference and registered at the police station-Gursahaiganj after the Investigating Officer had returned back to the police station with the co-accused Karan Singh.

21. Thus, in view of the above, the credibility of the F. I. R. in this case stands totally shattered.

22. The appellant has not seriously challenged either the time or the place of incident as alleged by the prosecution in the F. I. R. and hence we hold that the prosecution has been able to prove that the incident had taken place near the flour mill in village Jahangirpur at about 2.00 a. m.

23. The manner of assault however has been castigated by the appellant on the ground that the co-accused Karan Singh had also received injury in the incident and his injury report is on record as Ext. Ka 15. The prosecution has not been able to come up with any explanation with regard to the injury received by co-accused Karan Singh although it was specifically stated by co-accused Karan Singh in his additional statement recorded before the trial court under Section 313 Cr. P. C. that while he along with the deceased Phal Singh was sleeping on the same wooden cot in the flour mill of the complainant, they were assaulted by several persons, who had veiled their faces and in the assault both the deceased and the appellant had received injuries and it was co-accused Karan Singh who had informed P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and his other relatives about the incident but the police falsely implicated him in the present case as an accused after he failed to nominate the persons of the choice of the police as accused in the F. I. R.

24. Rebutting the aforesaid submissions of learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Saghir Ahmad, learned A. G. A. appearing on behalf of the State submitted that as far as the injury received by co-accused Karan Singh is concerned, the same is either manufactured or received by the co-accused Karan Singh while the appellant had wielded the blow on the neck of the deceased while Karan Singh had gagged him with his palms. The injury report of the appellant is dated 7.6.2003. Duration of his injury is stated to be about two or three days and there being no reliable evidence on record indicating that the aforesaid injury was received by the appellant in the same incident, the manner of assault as spelt out in the F. I. R. cannot be doubted.

25. The medico legal injury report of the appellant which is dated 7.6.2003, has been brought on record by the prosecution as Ext. Ka 15 and proved by P. W. 6 Dr. R. S. Tomar. The injury report (Ext. Ka 6) of the co-accused Karan Singh denotes one injury on his person dimension whereof is shown to be 4 cm x 1 cm skin bony deep. The injury was estimated to be about two or three days old.

26. P. W. 6 Dr. Tomar (on page 35 of the paper book) has deposed that co-accused Karan Singh was produced before him on 7.6.2003 at about 11.00 A. M. by C. P. 81 Sewak Ram and Home Guard 374 Ram Kumar for examination of his injuries. P. W. 6 (on 36 of the paper book) in his examination-in-chief further stated that the injury found on the person of the appellant could have been inflicted on him on 5.6.2003 at about 2.00 a. m. He however also opined that the injury could also be caused, if co-accused Karan Singh was holding someone while he was being assaulted. The evidence of P. W. 6 thus proves that the co-accused Karan Singh could have received the injury on his hand on 5.6.2003 at about 2.00 A. M. but since neither P. W. 1 nor P. W. 2 who claim themselves to be the eyewitnesses of the incident have deposed that co-accused Karan Singh had also received an injury on his hand when the appellant had assaulted the deceased Phal Singh with an axe, the same indicates that they had not witnessed the incident and the possibility of co-accused Karan Singh being assaulted by the same culprits who had assaulted the deceased while he was sleeping with him on the same "thakat', cannot be ruled out.

27. P. W. 1 Sant Prakash in his cross examination (on 15 of the paper book) has stated that the deceased Phal Singh and Karan Singh often used to sit and sleep together. He further deposed that he was not sure whether on the date of incident co-accused Karan Singh was also with his brother at the flour mill (page 15 of paper book).

28. Thus, from the evidence of P. W. 1 Sant Prakash at least this much is clear that the deceased Phal Singh and co-accused Karan Singh frequently used to sit and sleep at the flour mill and hence the explanation given by the co-accused Karan Singh with regard to the manner in which he had received the injury cannot be disbelieved outrightly. If co-accused Karan Singh had been injured while he had gagged the deceased by putting his palms across his mouth from the assault of the axe wielded on the neck of the deceased by the appellant, then this fact would definitely have found mention in the evidence of P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 if, as they claim, were present at the place of the incident and had seen the occurrence.

29. Thus, in view of the failure of the prosecution to come up with any explanation for the injury received by the co-accused Karan Singh on his hand there being no suggestion by the prosecution that the injury of co-accused Karan Singh was either or superficial and the admitted friendship between the deceased and the co-accused Karan Singh and the fact that they were so close that they often used to sit and sleep at the flour mill, the possibility of the incident having taken place in the manner as described by the co-accused Karan Singh cannot ruled out. It is apparent that the prosecution has either suppressed the material facts or the same were not within the knowledge of the prosecution witnesses of fact as they had not witnessed the occurrence. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Waman and Others vs. State of Maharashtra, (2011) 7 SCC 295 observed as hereunder:

"36. Ordinarily, the prosecution is not obliged to explain each injury on an accused even though the injuries might have been caused in the course of occurrence, if the injuries are minor in nature, however, if the prosecution fails to explain a grievous injury on one of the accused persons which is established to have been caused in the course of the same occurrence then certainly the court looks at the prosecution case with a little suspicion on the ground that the prosecution has suppressed the true version of the incident. However, if the evidence is clear, cogent and creditworthy then non-explanation of certain injuries sustained by the deceased or injury on the accused ipso facto cannot be the basis to discard the entire prosecution case."

30. We accordingly hold that the prosecution has failed to prove that the incident had taken place in the manner as spelt out in the F. I. R.

31. Coming to the motive part, we find that it is the specific case of the prosecution that about twenty days before the incident, co-accused Jageshwar Verma and the deceased had quarrelled with each other as Jageshwar Verma suspected that the deceased Phal Singh was having an affair with his daughter. As far as the appellant is concerned, there is no whisper of any motive for him to commit the murder of the deceased. However, in view of the settled legal position that in a case of direct evidence the prosecution is not under an obligation to prove the motive but the quality of the evidence adduced by the prosecution must be such so as to inspire confidence. Motive has little relevance in a case of direct evidence and the entire prosecution case cannot be discarded even if the prosecution fails to establish the motive beyond doubt.

32. We now proceed to consider the appellant's challenge to the credibility of the prosecution witnesses in the present case. So far as the present case is concerned, we have already noticed that the prosecution in order to prove its case has produced two eyewitnesses who are the real brothers of the deceased.

33. The credibility of the two eyewitnesses examined by the prosecution in this case has been castigated by learned counsel for the appellant interalia on the grounds that they being the real brothers of the deceased are highly partisan and interested witnesses and no reliance can be placed on their testimonies for convicting the appellant; that there being no cogent proof of any source of light at the place of incident even if it is presumed for the sake of argument that P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 were present near the place of incident at the time occurrence they could not have seen the incident and identified the assailants; and that the reason given by them for their presence near the place of incident at 2.00 a. m. on the date of incident is wholly unconvincing as in the natural course there was no justification for the P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 for being present at the place of incident.

34. On the point of interested witnesses, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of U.P. v. Jagdeo, 2003 Cri.L.J. 844 (S.C.) observed that only on the ground of interested or related witnesses, their evidence cannot be discarded. Most of the times eye witnesses happen to be family members or close associates because unless a crime is committed near a public place, strangers are not likely to be present at the time of occurrence.

35. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mst. Dalbir Kaur v. State of Punjab, 1976 Cr.L.J. 418 (S.C.) made following observations:-

(i) Interested witness:- Relatives who are natural witnesses are not interested witnesses and their testimony can be relied upon. The term 'interested' postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing that the accused is somehow or the other is convicted either because he had some animus with the accused or for some other reason. In the reported case the incident took place at mid night inside the house, the only natural witnesses who could be present to see the assault were the persons present in the house at that time. No outsider can be expected to have come at that time because the attack was sudden. Moreover a close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be regarded as an interested witness.

(ii) Witness gained over by accused not examined by the prosecution- held withholding or keeping back of witnesses is not unfair and adverse inference cannot be drawn. There is no duty on the prosecution to examine witnesses who might have been gained over by accused and even if those witnesses are not produced by the prosecution, there is nothing to stop accused from applying to the court for examining such witnesses.

(iii) witness who gives details with absolute accuracy is trustworthy.

36. Thus what follows from the perusal of the aforesaid judgement of the Hon'ble Supreme Court is that relationship cannot be a factor which affects the credibility of witnesses. The evidence of interested or relative witnesses can be relied upon subject to their evidence being trustworthy and admissible in accordance with law.

37. Hence in view of the above, the evidence of P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 cannot be discarded merely on the ground of their being the real brothers of the deceased Phal Singh. We, accordingly, proceed to test the credibility of the prosecution witnesses on the touch stone of the trustworthiness and admissibility in accordance with law.

38. A perusal of the evidence of P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad indicates that they have contradicted each other on the point of time at which the Investigating Officer had arrived at the place of incident and the manner in which occurrence was reported to the police by P. W. 1 Sant Prakash, while P. W. 1 Sant Prakash in this examination-in-chief deposed that after the incident he had scribed the written complaint of the occurrence on the spot and thereafter he had gone to the police station and given the same to the officer present there and thereafter he had returned to the place of occurrence with the Investigating Officer. However, P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad deposed that the police had arrived at the place of occurrence after the incident was reported by his brother P. W. 1 to the police telephonically and completed the necessary paper work on the spot.

39. The presence of P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 at the place of incident at 2.00 a. m. does not appear to be natural. They ought to have a very strong and compelling reason for their being awake at 2.00 a. m. and for being present in the mango grove of Parshuram. Both the P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 have uniformly deposed that as soon as the storm was over, they came out of their house with the object of picking up the mangoes from the grove of Parshuram which may have fallen on the ground as a result of the storm and as soon as they reached the grove of Parshuram, they heard the shriek of their brother coming from the side of his flour mill, on which they rushed there and saw the incident. It has been pointed out by learned counsel for the appellant that both

P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 have admitted in their evidence that they do not own any mango grove near their flour mill. P. W. 2 in his cross examination (page 16 of the paper-book) has admitted that he owns a mango grove in which there are about 50-60 trees and which is in the east of his flour mill. In the normal course of human behaviour, after the dust storm had subsided, if we accept the claim of P. W. and P. W. 2 that they were awake till 2.00 a. m. on the date of incident to be true, they would have rushed to their mango grove for collecting the mangoes which must have fallen from the mango trees of their grove, rather than going to the mango grove of Parshuram. The reason given by the P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 for their presence near the place of incident at the time of occurrence does not appear to be very convincing also in view of their having stated in their evidence that they had not brought any basket or bag with them for collecting the mangoes fallen on the ground but even if we accept for the sake of argument that they were present in Parshuram's mango grove near the place of incident at the time of occurrence, whether there was any illumination at the crime scene or any source of light available, which would have enabled them to witness the incident. It is noteworthy that in the F. I. R. of the incident which was lodged by P. W. 1 Sant Prakash there is no mention of any source of light at the place of incident. However, both P. W. 1 and P. W. 2 in their evidence tendered during the trial have stated in unison that the place of incident was illuminated from the light which emitted from the electric bulb of Parshuram's tube-well which was adjacent to his house.

40. The question which now arises for our consideration is whether the place of incident was close enough to the place of incident to be be illuminated from the light emitted by the electric bulb hung on the wall of Parshuram's tube-well. The site plan of the place of incident (Ext. Ka 9) neither shows any tube-well nor any electric bulb.

41. Thus, in order to determine whether there was any source of light at the place of occurrence and the distance between the tube-well and the place of incident we are left only with the evidence of P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad.

42. As far as the P. W. 1 Sant Prakash is concerned, he has not stated anything about the distance between the place of incident and the tube-well of Parshuram. P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad on page 17 of the paper book in his cross examination has stated that the house of Parshuram is at a distance of 10-15-20 (kadams) (25-33-50 fts.) from his grove in the south. Distance between the flour mill and tube-well of Parshuram which has a power connection is about 10-15 'kadam' (25-37 ft). He further deposed in his cross examination on the same page that the tube-well of Parshuram is adjacent to his house and there is no power connection in the flour mill. Flour mill is operated by a generator. Flour mill was not illuminated. On the same page he has further deposed that the grove of Parshuram lies between his tube-well and the flour mill. Tube-well lies in the north of the grove and in the northern wall of the tube-well, an electric bulb is fixed. Between the tube-well and the grove, there is a vacant land of about 6-7 kadam (15-18 ft.) in length. The grove is about 6-7 'kadam' (15-18 ft.) north-south and the flour mill is at a distance of about 5-6 kadam (12.5 ft.-15 ft.) in the north of the grove. Thus, the total distance between the tube-well and the place of incident according to the evidence of P. W. 2 Ganga Prasad is about 17-20 kadam (42.5-50 ft.). The mango grove of Parshuram having 7-8 trees exists between his tube-well and the flour mill. There is no evidence on record about the wattage of the bulb which was allegedly emitting light from the tubewell of Parshuram and even if we assume that the light was being emitted from the electric bulb hung on the wall of the tube-well, we find it difficult to accept keeping in view the distance between the tube-well and the crime scene and existence of the grove between the tube-well that the light emitted from the tube-well could have illuminated the place of incident also.

43. Another important aspect of the matter is that it is common knowledge that whenever power supply is snapped due to dust storm it takes several hours for the power supply to restore even in cities. In the instant case both the witnesses of fact have stated that the dust storm had lashed the village and lasted for two hours resulting in snapping of power supply. The prosecution has failed to lead any evidence by examining any employee of the power station to prove that the power supply in the village was restored immediately after the dust storm had abated. The chances in all probabilities are that the power supply in the village could not have been restored at 2.00 a. m., the time at which the storm had abated.

44. Thus, for the aforesaid reasons, we do not find that the prosecution has succeeded in proving that there was any source of light available at the time of incident at the place of occurrence by any cogent evidence.

45. Learned counsel for the appellant has also assailed the investigation in this case on the ground that the same was biased and unfair. In this regard he has invited our attention to the additional statement co-accused Karan Singh recorded under Section 313 Cr. P. C. in which he has clearly stated that at the time of occurrence he along with the deceased Phal Singh was sleeping on the same thakat and assailants had veiled their faces with "tattha" and as such he was unable to identify them. A suggestion was given by the defence counsel to the I. O. of this case that when he had arrived at the place of incident he was informed by the complainant that the assailants had veiled their faces with "tattha" and they had left behind a 'tapora' which had been handed over to him by P. W. 1 Sant Prakash and it was on account of the aforesaid reason that co-accused Karan Singh was not able to identify them. On page 31 of the paper-book the aforesaid suggestion was denied by the P. W. 5 Dayanand Singh.

46. Similar suggestion was given by the defence counsel to P. W. 1 Sant Prakash also that he had informed the investigating officer that the assailants could not be identified as they had veiled their faces and the I. O. had told him that he would search out the real culprits (page 15 of the paper-book).

47. A glaring instance of the unfair manner in which the I. O. had investigated the matter is apparent from the fact that Rajendra Singh from whose drawing room it is alleged that the crime weapon (axe) used in committing the murder of Phal Singh was recovered at the alleged pointing out of the appellant was not arraigned as accused in this case.

48. Learned counsel for the appellant has assailed the credibility of the prosecution claim that the crime weapon was recovered on the pointing out of appellant by first referring to the recital contained in the recovery memo according to which, the appellant, co-accused Jageshwar Singh and Karan Singh were arrested on 7.6.2003 at about 5.35 A. M. and on being interrogated, they confessed before the I. O. that they had committed the murder of Phal Singh and the appellant further expressed his willingness to get the axe which was used in committing the murder of Phal Singh recovered from the use of one Rajendra and thereafter recovery of axe was made from the corner of the drawing room of Rajendra Singh in the presence of independent witnesses Vimal Kumar Verma and Chandra Prakash and recovery memo (Ext. Ka 11) was prepared.

49. Learned counsel for the appellant further invited our attention to page 32 of the paper book on which P. W. 5 Dayanand Singh, I. O. of this case has deposed on oath that he had arrested the co-accused Karan Singh at about 5.20 A. M. from a place in front of a P. C. O. near Ramashram and had taken him to the police station on the date of the occurrence itself. Thus, the contradiction with regard to the date of arrest of co-accused Karan Singh although as per the recovery memo (Ext. Ka 11) all the three accused were arrested on the same day i. e. 7.6.2003 mentioned in the recovery memo (Ext. Ka 11) and the evidence of P. W. 5 fully disproves prosecution's allegation that the recovery of crime weapon was made from the drawing room of one Rajendra Singh on the alleged pointing out of the appellant and indicates that the alleged recovery of the crime weapon on the pointing out of the appellant has been fabricated by the police with the object of falsely implicating him in the present case. The recovery of the crime weapon in this case at the appellant's behest further appears to be doubtful on account of the failure of the prosecution to examine the two independent witnesses in whose presence crime weapon was allegedly recovered by the appellant. Since the prosecution has failed to prove the recovery memo of crime weapon on the pointing out of the appellant by any cogent and un-impeachable evidence, the forensic report of the crime weapon (Ext. Ka 14) according to which human blood was found on the axe recovered from the drawing room of Rajendra Singh will not be of any help to the prosecution for proving charge of murder of the deceased against the appellant.

50. It is true that the prosecution case cannot be discarded or disbelieved merely on the ground of omissions and irregularities committed by the Investigating Officer but the cumulative effect of the laches on the part of the Investigating officer in conducting the investigation in this case which have been highlighted by learned counsel for the appellant on the prosecution case appears to be that no honest attempt was made by the Investigating Officer to nab the actual perpetrators of the crime. On the other hand, he fabricated documents with a view to implicate the appellant and other co-accused falsely in the present case.

51. In view of the foregoing discussions, we are of the view that the conviction of the appellant recorded by the Sessions Judge, Kannauj vide order dated 22.12.2008 passed in S. T. No. 299 of 2003; State Versus Inspector, arising out of Case Crime No. 273 of 2003; under Sections-302/34 IPC, P. S.-Gursahaiganj, district-Kannauj and the sentence awarded to him is liable to be set aside and is hereby set aside.

52. Accordingly, this appeal succeeds and is allowed. The appellant, Inspector who is in jail, stands acquitted of all the charges framed against him and shall be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other case.

53. However, keeping in view the provisions of Section 437 A Cr. P. C. the appellant, Inspector is directed to forthwith furnish a personal bond in the sum of Rs. One lac and two reliable sureties in the like amount before the trial court (which shall be effective for a period of six months) to the effect that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against the instant judgement or for grant of leave, the appellant on receipt of notice thereof. shall appear before the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

Held

The Court held that, considering the overall facts and circumstances, the applicant-husband was entitled to be released on bail in the dowry death case. The Court took note of the fact that the deceased died by ante-mortem hanging, with no external injury marks in the post-mortem report, and that the father's initial information to the police contained no allegation of dowry demand or cruelty, rather stating that no one from the in-laws' side was responsible and that the deceased had committed suicide due to illness. The subsequent FIR alleging dowry demand, lodged after a delay of more than twenty days, was considered a relevant circumstance at the stage of bail. Keeping in view the period of detention, delay in trial, nature of evidence, and absence of material suggesting tampering, the Court enlarged the applicant on bail subject to conditions of non-interference with evidence and mandatory personal appearance before the trial court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Bharat Bhushan, J.)

1. This criminal appeal on behalf of surviving appellant Mukesh assails judgment and order dated 24.2.1983 passed by the then Additional Sessions Judge, Meerut in Sessions Trial No. 198 of 1982 (State versus Sanjay and another) whereby sole surviving appellant Mukesh and late appellant Sanjay were convicted under section 302 read with section 34 Indian Penal Code (in short, IPC) and sentenced to undergo imprisonment for life.

2. During pendency of this appeal, appellant Sanjay died, therefore, his appeal stands abated. This Court is now concerned with the appeal of sole surviving appellant Mukesh only.

3. Appellant Mukesh and late appellant Sanjay were brothers. Deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma and informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma (PW-1) were brothers too. Both, accused-appellants and deceased used to reside in Shivpuri locality though houses of deceased and appellants were situated on Hapur and Garh road respectively. Smt. Vimla, Bua (father's sister) of deceased and wife of veterinary doctor used to reside at the residence provided within compound of veterinary hospital situated at Hapur-Garh road, Meerut. On the day of incident (5.2.1982), informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma (PW-1) and his elder brother Brijesh Mohan Sharma left their residence at about 3:45pm for visiting their Bua Smt. Vimla, then living in the compound of veterinary hospital. PW-2 Rajendra also met and joined them. As soon as, they reached near the house of Sri Ram Kumar Sharma, owner of National Book Depot, his son, namely, Mukesh (appellant) and Sanjay (deceased appellant) accosted them. Appellant Mukesh was armed with spear (bhala) and late appellant Sanjay was wielding knife. Both of them expressed their annoyance at the alleged use of foul language by deceased against accused persons and threatened to kill him. Appellant Mukesh first advanced towards deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma aiming spear at him but caught by PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma (informant). Both of them scuffled with each other. In the meantime, late appellant Sanjay attacked deceased Brijesh with knife and caused injuries. PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma pushed appellant Mukesh away and tried to grab accused-appellant Sanjay who pushed the informant back and then struck deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma several times with knife whereupon already injured deceased fell on the ground. Mukesh also attacked deceased with handle part of Spear (Bhala). The blood sprinkled over cover of the car of accused persons and some blood also scattered on the ground. A crowd also gathered there whereupon both the accused fled from the spot.

4. Injured deceased was initially admitted to Pyare Lal Sharma Hospital (in short, P.L.Sharma Hospital) and later shifted to Medical College, Meerut. In the meantime, a report was scribed by Dinesh Mohan Sharma at the dictation of Dharmesh Mohan Sharma (PW-1) and lodged at Police Station (in short, P.S.) Civil Lines, Meerut at 4:55pm.

The place of occurrence was situated at 1 ½ kms. away from the P.S. Civil Lines, Meerut. The deceased was examined by Dr. Sharvan Kumar (PW-6), who found the following injuries on the person of deceased :-

1. Incised wound 3 cm. X ¾ cm. X depth not probed. Over Rt. Side of chest 6 cm. from the nipple- tailed outer side.

2. Incised wound 4 cm. X 2 cm. X depth not probed on Lt. Side of chest over 11 cm. above the left nipple-tailed outer part.

3. Incised wound 1/8 cm. X 1/8 x muscle deep on outer front part of Rt. thigh upper part.

4. L. wound 3 cm. X ½ x scalp deep on Lt. side of head 8 cm. Above the head.

5. Deceased then succumbed to the injuries and died therefore, the case was converted to section 302 IPC and relevant entries were made in General Diary (in short, G.D.) at the P.S.Civil Lines. Initial investigation was conducted by one S.I. Pooran Singh Sagar (PW-5). He recorded statements of Dharmesh (eye-witness) and Head Moharrir Kripal Singh (PW-7) visited P.L.Sharma Hospital where he was apprised by Constable Pramod Kumar that injured Brijesh Mohan Sharma had already been sent to Medical College, Meerut for further treatment. He took clothes and shoes of the deceased in his possession from P.L.Sharma Hospital. He prepared site-plan (Ex. Ka-3) and also took samples of blood stained earth and plain earth.

6. Meanwhile cadaver of deceased was sent for postmortem which was conducted by Dr. N.S.Pal (PW-4), who found the following ante-mortem injuries on the person of deceased :-

2. Incised wound 2 cm. X 1 cm. X muscle deep on Rt. side front of chest 4 cm. below Rt. nipple at 8 O'clock position obliquely placed.

3. Incised wound 1.5 cm. X 0.5 cm. X muscle deep front of lower part of abdomen 10 cm. below umbilicus at 6 O' clock position.

4. Lacerated wound 4 cm. X 1 cm. X bone deep on left side head 11 cm. above left ear.

5. Lacerated wound 2 cm. X 0.5 cm. X scalp deep on left side of head 3 cm. behind injury no. 4.

6. Partially healed wound 2 cm. X 1 cm. on front of left leg upper part.

7. Scabed abrasion 2.5 cm. X 1.5 cm. front of Rt. Knee lower part. Scab partially fallen off.

7. Doctor opined that injury nos. 1 to 3 were caused by sharp edged weapon while injury nos. 4 and 5 were caused by blunt object. The time of death was ascertained between 5:00pm to 6:00pm on 5.2.1982. The postmortem report is available on record as Ex.Ka-2.

8. After conversion of this case under section 302 IPC, the investigation was then taken over by Inspector Kripal Singh (PW-7) on 6.2.1982. During investigation, Inspector tried to apprehend the accused persons but they absconded, therefore, a report was filed for issuance of process under sections 82 and 83 Cr.P.C. against them but accused surrendered in the court and were sent to jail. After recording their statements, a charge-sheet was filed against appellant Mukesh and his late brother Sanjay (Ex.Ka.7).

9. Trial Judge charged appellants Mukesh and late Sanjay under section 302 read with Section 34 IPC. They pleaded not guilty and desired to be tried.

10. During the course of trial, prosecution adduced three witnesses of fact, namely, PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma, PW-2 Rajendra (eyewitness) and PW-3 Yashvir Singh (eye-witness). In addition to them, formal witnesses were also produced, namely, Dr. N.S.Pal (PW-4), S.I. Pooran Singh Sagar (PW-5), Dr. Sharvan Kumar (PW-6) who conducted autopsy, Inspector Kripal Singh (PW-7) who conducted investigation, Head Constable Tirpal Singh (PW-8), Constable Karan Singh (PW-9) and Head Constable Tripal Singh (PW-10). Statement of accused persons were recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein late Sanjay admitted the factum, of altercation with informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma and deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma and claimed that they were in fact attacked by deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma and informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma with knives. He defended himself and snatched knife from informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma and used it in his defence.

11. Sole surviving appellant Mukesh has denied his presence on the spot and claimed that he has been falsely implicated on account of his relationship with Sanjay. Appellant produced one witness Dr. D.P. Arora (DW-1) who had examined late appellant Sanjay at Muzaffarnagar. It appears that Sanjay had gone to Muzaffarnagar after the incident and appeared before Dr. D.P.Arora in the night of 6/7th of February, 1982 at about 2:15am and a medical report was prepared. Incidentally, Dr. D.P.Arora did not communicate this information either to local police or police at Meerut. He has opined that injuries were 1 ½ days old and could have been caused on 5.2.1982 at about 3:45pm. Interestingly, one injury was shown towards left side of body but during the course of evidence, DW-1 Dr. D.P.Arora conceded that this injury existed on right side of chest of late Sanjay. Both injuries were reported to be caused by knife and both of them were simple. Doctor also concluded that he did admit injured in the hospital as general condition of patient was good. Doctor also conceded that no one identified the injured to him.

12. Trial Judge heard counsel for both the parties and thereafter, concluded that there was sufficient evidence to hold both appellant Mukesh and late Sanjay guilty of offence under section 302 read with section 34 IPC and accordingly both of them were convicted under the aforesaid sections and sentenced to undergo life imprisonment vide impugned judgment and order dated 24.2.1983. This judgment is under challenge before this Court.

13. Heard Sri Anoop Trivedi, learned counsel for the sole surviving appellant and Sri Syed Ali Murtuza, learned Additional Government Advocate (in short, AGA).

14. Before we embark to dwell upon the merits of rival case, it would be appropriate for this Court to briefly examine the entire prosecution evidence.

15. In the instant case, the report was lodged by real brother of deceased, Dharmesh, Mohan Sharma, informant (PW-1) on 5.2.1982 at about 4:55pm. According to PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma, he along with deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma, his elder brother left their residence for visiting Vimla (Bua) residing in the compound of Veterinary Hospital, Hapur-Garh Road, Meerut. He has explained that for visiting the residence of Bua, deceased and his brother had to inevitably cross the residence of accused persons.

16. Both informant and his brother deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma went to veterinary Hospital for meeting their Bua on 5.2.1982 at about 3:30pm. As soon as they came out of their residence, PW-2 Rajendra, who was resident of a house located across the house of deceased also joined them. He too was going to veterinary hospital, therefore, all three persons simultaneously crossed the house of appellant Mukesh and late Sanjay (now dead) for visiting veterinary hospital. Suddenly, both appellants Mukesh and late Sanjay accosted them. Appellant Mukesh was holding spear and late appellant Sanjay was wielding knife. Both of them admonished deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma for his alleged use of foul language against appellants earlier. Both of them threatened the deceased to eliminate him. Appellant Mukesh advanced towards Brijesh Mohan Sharma aiming spear. Informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma (PW-1) grabbed him in order to save his brother. A scuffle broke out between Mukesh (appellant) and Dharmesh Mohan Sharma (informant). Meanwhile, accused late Sanjay inflicted knife injuries on the person of the deceased. Seeing this, informant pushed back Mukesh and tried to nab Sanjay. Mukesh in turn pushed back informant whereupon Sanjay knifed Brijesh Mohan Sharma couple of times. Appellant Mukesh also assaulted deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma with wooden handle of his spear effectively using it as lathi. This witness Dharmesh Mohan Sharma (PW-1) has further stated that several persons including his father and Rajendra Chaudhary arrived on the spot. Injured was rushed to P.L.Sharma Hospital. A First Information Report (in short, FIR) (Ex.Ka-1) was scribed by Dinesh Mohan Sharma and thereafter, report was lodged. Brijesh Mohan Sharma succumbed to his injuries on the same day. As stated earlier, PW-2 Rajendra had also accompanied deceased and informant to the place of occurrence. He has testified as PW-2 and he reinforced the story of PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma. Rajender is not related to deceased.

17. PW-3 Yashvir Singh owns a medical store. He too was going to his shop after having lunch at his residence. He witnessed the entire incident. He has stated that appellant Mukesh was using spear and late Sanjay was using knife. He has testified that appellant Mukesh and late Sanjay came out of their house and first threatened deceased and his brother and thereafter attacked them with their respective weapons. He has supported the prosecution story by saying that surviving appellant Mukesh used Bhala (spear) as lathi at least twice.

18. Dr. Sharvan Kumar (PW-6) initially examined deceased but after death of Brijesh Mohan Sharma, autopsy was conducted by Dr. N.S.Pal. A careful examination of record would reveal that prosecution has adduced evidence of three eye-witnesses including informant. Both doctors, who conducted initial medical examination of deceased and who later on conducted autopsy have been produced.

19. Three eye-witnesses produced by prosecution are credible and trustworthy. Two eyewitnesses were, in fact, present at the place of occurrence since inception of the incident. Entire incident occurred before their eyes. PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma is the brother of the deceased. His evidence is natural, consistent with normal human conduct and trustworthy. This incident occurred in broad daylight in presence of several persons. The factual evidence is highly trustworthy. There is absolutely no reason why prosecution witnesses would lie about the incident especially, informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma who is the brother of the deceased. There is absolutely no reason for him to spare the real culprits and falsely implicate the appellants.

20. It is argued on behalf of the appellant that there are several discrepancies and contradictions in the evidence of prosecution. Learned counsel for the appellant has argued that these contradictions create suspicion about veracity and credibility of prosecution evidence. He has especially drawn attention of this Court towards the fact that there is absolutely no evidence to support the claim of PW-2 Rajendra that he took injured to P.L.Sharma Hospital. Before analyzing this argument advanced on behalf of appellant, it would be appropriate to dwell upon the story advanced on behalf of appellant. Late appellant Sanjay has specifically put forth a positive case by virtually admitting the entire incident and involvement of rival parties in it. During course of statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. the following admission was made by late Sanjay :-

21. A perusal of aforesaid admission would reveal that as far as factum of incident is concerned, even appellants have no quarrel with their rival. The claim that they were attacked by informant and deceased with knife and that Sanjay snatched knife from Dharmesh and used it against Brijesh in defence while informant fled from the spot. This claim of late Sanjay establishes the factum of incident. He has not raised any dispute regarding time and place of occurrence also. His only defence is that incident occurred other way round. Deceased and (PW-1) Dharmesh Mohan Sharma attacked them with knife and he retaliated in defence. This admission on the part of Sanjay reinforces the prosecution story and evidence as far as factum of incident and involvement of rival parties are concerned.

22. Sole surviving appellant Mukesh has also not denied factum of incident. He claims that incident occurred between late appellant Sanjay and deceased Brijesh and informant Dharmesh. He has been falsely implicated due to his relationship with late Sanjay. He claims that he was not present on the spot.

23. The claim of appellant Mukesh can not be accepted for the simple reason that three eye-witnesses have narrated his involvement in the incident in a very trustworthy manner. There is nothing on record to demonstrate that appellant Mukesh was not present on the spot in the light of very cogent and trustworthy evidence of prosecution. The mere fact that some discrepancies can be pointed-out in their evidence is not ground to reject their testimony. The prosecution evidence especially of eyewitnesses have reinforced prosecution story on material particulars.

24. It is pertinent to point-out that every discrepancy, contradiction, and variation in prosecution evidence may not be sufficient to adversely affect the prosecution case. Sometimes, variation merely indicates that witnesses have not been tutored. So long core of prosecution evidence is intact and trustworthy, minor discrepancies in the prosecution evidence are not sufficient to discard otherwise trustworthy testimony of prosecution witnesses. Hon'ble Apex Court in Meharban Singh and others versus State of Madhya Pradesh, 1997 Cr.L.J. (S.C.) has held that it is the duty of courts to evaluate the discrepancy and to see whether minor discrepancy in fact adversely affect the trustworthy character of evidence or not. If the courts can believe the trustworthy character of evidence, then minor discrepancies are not sufficient to discard the evidence of otherwise trustworthy witnesses.

25. Learned counsel has argued that prosecution has not been able to establish the visit of deceased to P.L.Sharma Hospital and this demolishes the prosecution case entirely. We are afraid, the appellants are merely creating castle in the air as far as this claim is concerned. The record reveals that the FIR was lodged almost within 70 minutes. The incident occurred suddenly and mental condition of a younger distraught brother can only be imagined. They intended to visit a family relation and suddenly a murderous assault was made on the brother in broad daylight. Elder brother was assassinated in presence of younger brother without any warning. The fact of the matter is that informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma also could have been seriously injured in the same attack. At one hand, he was trying to save his brother and on the other hand, he was probably thinking of his own self at least on subconscious level. There was no occasion or opportunity for the prosecution to invent the story of visit of deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma to P.L.Sharma Hospital. There was, in fact, no reason for them to invent this story.

26. PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma has categorically stated that at first deceased was taken to P.L.Sharma Hospital and there is absolutely no reason to disbelieve it. Same fact was reiterated by PW-2 Rajendra, who is not related to informant or deceased. Both, in fact, belonged to two different social groups as admitted by PW-2 Rajendra himself. In paragraph-11 of his statement, he has stated that he went to P.L.Sharma hospital along with informant Dharmesh Mohan Sharma and stayed there only few minutes and then they took injured Brijesh Mohan Sharma to Medical College. PW-3 Yashvir Singh directly went to medical college and found Brijesh dead there. It is not merely witnesses of fact, who have deposed about initial visit of deceased to P.L.Sharma Hospital for treatment but PW-5 Pooran Singh Sagar also went to P.L.Sharma Hospital and acquired clothes and shoes of the deceased from there. This witness also visited the Medical College. Inquest report was prepared on the same day at about 6:45pm. Entire documentation regarding death of deceased Brijesh was done on the same day. There are many documents on record to belie the ante-timing of FIR. The relevant entries had been made in General Diary of Police (Ex. Ka-9) in the wake of incident and subsequent to registration of FIR.

27. We have carefully examined all the material on record and believe that argument of learned counsel for appellant on this score has no basis. Fact of matter is that there was no reason for the appellant to invent the story of P.L.Sharma Hospital. There was no doubt that deceased died in the incident occurred at the stated place of occurrence. There is no doubt that deceased died later on in Medical College on account of injuries sustained in the same attack. If deceased had not been taken to P.L.Sharma Hospital, then prosecution could have simply said that they directly went to Medical College and that would not have adversely affected the prosecution case at all.

28. Learned counsel for the appellant has also argued that FIR is faulty and ante-timed and it does not contain essential features of incident. It was argued that use of spear as lathi has not been mentioned. The name of PW-3 Yashvir is missing in the FIR. We are afraid, this argument is not sustainable. FIR is primarily used for setting the criminal justice machinery in motion. The FIR was lodged immediately in aftermath of the incident at 4:55pm. Dharmesh Mohan Sharma waited for his brother, a budding lawyer at that time. It was quite natural on his part to seek the assistance of his brother. FIR was reduced into writing by Dinesh Mohan Sharma on the dictation of Dharmesh Mohan Sharma (PW-1). Disclosure of names of all the witnesses and narration of minute details in the FIR was not required. Primarily role of FIR is to move the Police machinery in motion.

29. The Full Bench Allahabad High Court in Gopal versus State, 1999 Cr.L.J. 2501 has held that FIR can not be treated as encyclopedia. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Pandurang Chandrakant Mhatre and others versus State of Maharashtra (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 413 has held that FIR has a limited value during criminal trial and it merely sets the criminal law in motion. FIR is not expected to be encyclopedia of events. So long FIR discloses the commission of cognizable offence and its details, it is sufficient for the purpose of criminal trial.

30. In the present case, FIR was lodged within 70 minutes of the incident. FIR contains all significant details of events but mention of names of every witness is not required therein. Use of weapon and names of accused persons, time, place and manner of incident are enshrined in the FIR. This Court is convinced that FIR (Ex. Ka-1) contains all the necessary ingredients and we believe that contents of FIR can not be discarded at any ground.

31. Learned counsel for the appellant has claimed that they did not have any motive to commit the crime. We believe that question of motive is one of perception. The motive is usually lie locked in the heart of aggressor and others can only make guess about it. In this case, complainant party believes that deceased was attacked because appellants believed that deceased was using filthy and foul language against them behind their back. It is difficult to prove this kind of perception but this incident occurred in broad day light. The statement of appellant during the course of 313 Cr.P.C. discloses that rival parties believed that they were on antagonistic terms. Informant says that they were attacked on account of enmity and sole surviving appellant also believes that he had been implicated on account of previous enmity. Therefore, it is apparent that both the rival parties at least, have admitted the existence of inimical relationship between them. Whether existence of enmity would impel any one of them to the extent of committing murder is purely an academic question which need not be answered for the simple reason that human behavior or reactions to events and incidents can not be categorized into tight compartments. They vary from person to person. Time, Opportunity, availability of tools etc. do influence the outcome.

32. An argument has also been raised that incident occurred in broad day light. There were various shops around the place of occurrence and only interested witnesses have been introduced. It is said that informant Dharmesh is real brother of deceased. PW-2 Rajendra was accompanying them and PW-3 Yashvir has also been denounced as partisan witness. We are not impressed by this argument. PW-2 Rajendra belongs to Jat community while informant and deceased belong to Bhahmin community. Of course, they are neighbours and were going together to the place of occurrence. Had PW-2 Rajendra been not produced then prosecution would have been accused of withholding the best evidence. Both PW-1 Dharmesh and PW-2 Rajendra are best witnesses for establishing the case of prosecution and they have supported the prosecution case to the hilt. Simultaneously PW-3 Yashvir too has supported the prosecution evidence and there is no significant and material discrepancy in the testimonies of these witnesses. He has narrated the incident in trustworthy manner.

33. Courts can not be oblivious of reluctance of general public to help the Police or victims of crime. The trial judge has noted that realities by saying that citizens are averse to depose for couple of reasons. Firstly, involvement of risk from criminals and secondly, it is a thankless job. We believe that brother of deceased Brijesh in fact is better witness as far as murder of his brother is concerned. Ordinarily there is no reason for him to spare the real murderers of his brother. We do not, therefore, give much credence to the argument of learned counsel for the appellant that evidence of PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma and PW-2 Rejendra can not be taken into consideration because of their relationship with deceased and evidence of PW-3 Yashvir because his name had not been mentioned in the FIR. We are afraid, the question of relationship of witnesses with deceased or injured is no longer reason for discarding their testimony. We believe that Court has to appreciate the evidence given by close relative of deceased with greater care but we also believe that mechanical rejection of evidence of witnesses on sole ground of relationship would result in failure of justice.

34. Apex Court in Pandurang Chandrakant Mhatre and others versus State of Maharashtra (2010) 1 S.C.C. (Cri) 413 has held that the dominant question to be considered is whether the witnesses, despite being interested, have spoken the truth and are creditworthy. Once it is found by the court, subsequent to analysis of such evidence that there is no reason to disbelieve such witnesses then the mere fact that the witnesses are interested, is not enough to reject the prosecution case on this ground alone.

35. Hon'ble Supreme Court in common judgment in Hardev Singh Vs Harbhej Singh and others/Suba Singh and others 1997 SCC (cri), has held that evidence of close relations cannot be rejected merely on the ground that they happened to be relatives. However, evidence of such witnesses should be scrutinized carefully. If the court is convinced that evidence of such witnesses is sufficient to establish the guilt of accused then the fact of interestedness alone cannot be a ground for rejecting the evidence of prosecution witnesses.

36. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bhupendra Singh and others Vs State of UP (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 275, has held that merely because eye witnesses are family members, their evidence cannot per se be discarded. When there is allegations of interestedness, the same has to be established. Mere statement that being relatives of deceased they are likely to falsely implicate accused, cannot be a ground to discard the evidence, which is otherwise cogent and credible.

37. We believe that testimony of PW-1 Dharmesh Mohan Sharma can not be rejected on the ground of his relationship with deceased. In any case, we believe that PW-2 Rajendra and PW-3 Yashvir are independent and trustworthy witnesses and failure of mentioning the name of PW-3 Yashvir in FIR would not rob his evidence any credibility.

38. Learned counsel for the appellant also argued that Investigating Officer has examined some of the witnesses with delay and that delay would effect the prosecution case adversely. We are afraid that delay in examination of the witnesses is not necessarily a negative factor. It depends upon circumstances of each case. There can be various reasons for delay in examination of the witnesses. In the instant case, first investigation was entrusted to PW-5 Pooran Singh Sagar who immediately started investigation. After conversion of case under section 302 IPC, the investigation was entrusted to PW-7 Kripal Singh, Inspector of Police and he continued with investigation. It is pertinent to point-out that most of the witnesses were examined within reasonable time. It is true that investigation could have been done with little more enthusiastically. The argument has been raised that FIR was not promptly transmitted to the Magistrate. We believe that FIR should have been transmitted to the Magistrate with little haste but that by itself would not necessarily affect the prosecution case adversely. We believe that no irregularity was committed during investigation though Investigating Officer could have sent blood for chemical examination or used forensic evidence but in our opinion, these weakness in investigation are not so serious enough to render the entire prosecution case unworthy or unreliable.

39. The Full Bench of this Court in Gopal and etc. Vs State of UP, 1999 Cr.L.J.2501 has already established the following principle:-

"At the very outset, we want to say that it is very easy to find fault with anything. Even accurate computers are prone to commit faults and mistakes. Not only this, human mind cannot be read. Sometimes it works in the direction that it becomes adamant to help one party and tries its level best to spoil the case. It is well known, at least by the police officers, who investigate the case, also know that they should take prompt action and should immediately record the statement of the witnesses. They should not make cuttings and over-writings etc. in the police papers so as to create suspicion about the sanctity of the papers. They should fairly prepare the inquest report and police papers and should write the case diary with accuracy and correctly. These propositions of law and facts cannot be doubted. But if the police officers deliberately sleep over the matter, try to spoil the case and do not record the evidence of the witnesses immediately, the poor dead persons who have been killed cannot come out to say why you are spoiling the case. The bereaved family and the witnesses have only to remain silent spectators to what the police officers do. If they intervene, a judicial notice of the fact can be taken that they are humiliated, even beaten and implicated in false cases. Fear of police atrocities keeps them mum. They are also ignorant of the fact that what shall be the effect of delay and discrepancy. Therefore, also, they have nothing to intervene with the investigation. In our view, investigation of the case, if faulty, even mischievous or collusive should not be a ground to reject the ocular testimony of the informant who lodged the F.I.R. promptly. If the FIR is recorded soon or is recorded after four or five hours, why should the prosecution or the persons who have died 'suffer'. Each and every case has to be decided on its intrinsic evidence. If the eye-witnesses are believable the mere weakness of the investigation should not be a ground to reject their testimonies."

40. Apex Court in its judgment Bishundeo Poddar and others Vs The State of Bihar, 2003 Crl. L. J. 1558 has held thus:-

"Be that as it may, the fate of the case does not depend on what the Investigating Officer or the prosecutor ought to have done and evidence ought to have been filed. The fate depends on the evidence which is on record."

41. Similarly, the Apex Court in its judgment of Amar Singh Vs Balwinder Singh, 2003 Crl. L.J. 1282 has held that every failure or omission of Investigating Officer cannot render prosecution case doubtful or unworthy of belief.

42. Learned counsel for the appellant has also submitted that according to prosecution, deceased was done to death by late co-accused Sanjay by using knife. It is said that main attack had been attributed to accused Sanjay while appellant Mukesh has merely been assigned passive role. Learned counsel for the appellant has argued that appellant Mukesh used spear merely as a lathi inasmuch as claim of prosecution is that Mukesh used spear from wooden handle side, therefore, sole surviving appellant Mukesh can not be convicted under section 302 read with the aid of section 34 IPC because there is no evidence to suggest that surviving appellant Mukesh shared common intention with his late brother Sanjay. We are not convinced with this argument for the simple reason that entire prosecution story discloses prior meeting of minds. Prosecution story says that both attackers came out simultaneously while extending threats to eliminate deceased. Surviving appellant Mukesh was using more dangerous weapon but he was caught by informant Dharemesh, therefore, he could not use spear with force. It appears that in the scuffle, he managed to use spear from handle side because he failed to use more dangerous side of spear. If we have carefully examine all the evidence adduced by the eye-witnesses, it would reveal that surviving appellant Mukesh used spear (Bhala) from handle side on deceased Brijesh Mohan Sharma inasmuch as he could not swing spear (Bhala) with full force because he was caught by informant. In fact, evidence reveals that he was first off the block as far as attack was concerned. Appellant Mukesh in fact initiated the attack though later on injuries caused by late Sanjay proved to be fatal. Medical report indicates that deceased sustained injuries caused by blunt weapon as well. The testimony of PW-4 Dr. N.S.Pal reveals that lacerated wound 4 cm. X 1 cm. X bone deep on left side head 11 cm. above left ear and lacerated wound 2 cm. X 0.5 cm. X scalp deep on left side of head 3 cm. behind above injury. Doctor has opined that both these injuries were caused by blunt object i.e. wooden side of spear. Both these injuries are on vital part of the body. Both injuries were caused on head which indicates the intention of appellant Mukesh.

43. The aforesaid discussion indicates that requirement of provision is sharing of common intention upon being present on the place of occurrence. Section-34 applies where two or more accused are present and at least two factors are established. Participation of accused persons in the crime and common intention. We believe that despite absence of overt act, the section can still be invoked. In the present case, participation in crime and presence of both the appellants at the place of occurrence have been established. The consistent attempt of surviving appellant Mukesh to assault Brijesh Mohan Sharma is evident. He did give massive blow on the head of deceased from the wooden side of spear. He failed to use spear from its dangerous side merely because he was simultaneously involved in scuffle with informant as well, prohibiting him from using spear with full force and because of that he could only use spear from handle side. We believe that but for the attempt of informant, appellant Mukesh would have used spear from dangerous side.

44. We have carefully examined all material on record. We believe that prosecution has established his case by direct testimony of the eye-witnesses. Ocular testimony is consistent with medical evidence. We also believe that every failure or omission of Investigating Officer can not render prosecution case doubtful or unworthy of belief. We believe that prosecution has proved the offence against the accused with trustworthy evidence. Criminal trial envisages the proof beyond reasonable doubt. It does not require proof beyond every shadow of doubt as it is possible to have fanciful doubts just about anything in the world. We believe that surviving appellant committed the crime with which he is charged. In our opinion, accused Mukesh is guilty of section 302 read with section 34 IPC.

45. In view of the aforementioned discussion, we are of the view that the appeal lacks merit and deserves to be dismissed. It is accordingly dismissed. Impugned judgment and order dated 24.2.1983 passed by the then Additional Sessions Judge, Meerut in Sessions Trial No. 198 of 1982 (State versus Mukesh and others) arising out of Case crime no. 95 of 1982, Police Station Civil Lines, District Meerut, is affirmed. Appellant, Mukesh,who is on bail, is directed to surrender immediately. His bail is cancelled and sureties discharged. Trial court is also directed to get him arrested and send him to jail to serve out the remaining sentence awarded by trial court and affirmed by this Court.

46. Office will certify this order to the court concerned through the Sessions Judge within 15 days. Trial court shall communicate compliance of this judgment within 30 days thereafter.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CRIMINAL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE MRS. RANJANA PANDYA, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 608 Of 1998

Shiv Mohan Tiwari ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellant:
Rakeshwar Prasad, Surya Kumar

Counsel for Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Held

The High Court partly allowed the appeal and held that the conviction under Section 3(1)(x) of the SC/ST Act was unsustainable because the essential ingredients of the offence were missing. There was no allegation in the FIR that caste-related abusive words were used in public view, and the dispute arose out of an existing land/crop enmity, not on account of the complainant's caste. Accordingly, the conviction under the SC/ST Act was set aside. However, the conviction under Sections 352, 504 and 506 IPC was upheld. Considering that the incident was of 1991 and the appellant was above 60 years of age, the Court granted him the benefit of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 instead of sending him to jail, subject to bonds and good behaviour for one year.

CASE LAW CITED

Gorige Pentaiah v. State of Andhra Pradesh
Pappu Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh
Sections 3 & 4, Probation of Offenders Act, 1958

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Ranjana Pandya, J.)

1. Challenge in this appeal is to the judgement and order dated 30.10.1998 passed by IInd Additional District Judge/Special Judge, Hardoi in Special Criminal Appeal No. 263 of 1992 (State Vs. Shiv Mohan Tiwari) arising out of Crime No. 208/1991, under Sections 352, 504, 506 I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act, Police Station-Kachhauna, District-Hardoi, whereby the accused-appellant was found guilty and convicted one month's rigorous imprisonment under Section 352 I.P.C., one year's rigorous imprisonment under Section 504 I.P.C., one year's rigorous imprisonment under Section 506 I.P.C. and one years' rigorous imprisonment and Rs. 500/- fine under Section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act with default stipulation.

2. Filtering out unnecessary details the prosecution case in brief is that an oral report was lodged by informant at the police station stating that the informant had got a lease executed in his favour, in which he had sown paddy. The accused-appellant Shiv Mohan wanted to trespass on this land for which the son of the informant had given an application at the police station.

3. On 6.11.1991 at 12 O'clock in the day time, when the informant was working in his field, the accused came to his field, he abused him, threatened to kill him and ran to beat the informant with a Lathi. He was saved by Gajju and Balak, at which accused-appellant fled away threatening to kill the informant. The informant has danger to his life and life of his family members. Thus, oral report was lodged, which ended into charge-sheet.

4. The prosecution proceeded to examine five witnesses. P.W. 1 is Indal, who is informant in this case, who has proved oral report as Exhibit Ka-1. P.W. 2 is head Constable Amar Singh, who scribed the oral report of of the informant and proved the same. He further proved copy of the G.D. as Exhibit Ka-2. P.W. 3 is S.I. Indraj, who is investigating officer in this case. He copied the chik and G.D. in the C.D. Further he recorded the statement of the informant. On 7.11.1991 he inspected the spot at the instance of the informant and prepared the site plan, which was proved by him as Exhibit Ka-3. After that he recorded the statement of Gajju and Balak and other witnesses and submitted the charge-sheet against the accused, which was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-4. P.W. 4 is Gajju, who is said to be witness of fact and P.W. 5 is Balak, who is also said to be witness of fact.

5. After hearing the learned counsel for the parties, the learned lower court convicted and sentenced the accused as stated in para 1 of the judgement.

6. Feeling aggrieved, the accused has come up in appeal.

7. Heard Shri R.P. Shukla, learned counsel for the appellant and learned Government Advocate for the State and perused the lower court record.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the judgement of the lower court is bad in the eyes of law, because the learned lower court has based its judgment on an inadmissible evidence.

9. On the other hand learned A.G.A. has submitted that the findings of the fact recorded by the trial court is based on evidence available on record, hence appeal is liable to be dismissed.

10. As far as the evidence of the independent witnesses Gajju, P.W. 4 and Balak P.W. 5 is concerned both the witnesses have denied of having seen any incident. They have denied their presence also at the place of occurrence. Both these witnesses were declared hostile by the prosecution, who cross-examined these witnesses. I am aware that even the evidence of hostile witnesses can be relied upon, but there is nothing in the evidence of P.W. 4 Gajju and P.W. 5 Balak, which could help the prosecution in any way whatsoever.

11. Now the court was left with the sole testimony of P.W. 1 Indal. As far as convictino under Section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act is concerned 3(1)(x) reads as follows :-

"3. Punishments for offences of atrocities-(1) whoever, not being a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe -

(x) intentionally insults or intimidates with intent to humiliate a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe in any place within public view;"

12. I have perused the the F.I.R. There is not a whisper in the F.I.R. that the accused addressed the informant with any caste related words. For the first time in the statement before the Court, the informant said that the accused stated as follows :-

"तब मुल्जिम ने मुझे पासी साले जान से मार डालेंगे धमकी दी।"

13. Learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon the case of (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) Page 446 Gorige Pentaiah Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh and Others in which it has been laid down that:-

"According to the basic ingredients of Section 3(1)(x) of the Act, the complainant ought to have alleged that the appellant-accused was not a member of the Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe and he (Respondent 3) was intentionally insulted or intimidated by the accused with intent to humiliate in a place within public view. In the entire complaint, nowhere it is mentioned that the appellant-accused was not a member of the Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe and he intentionally insulted or intimidated with intent to humiliate Respondent 3 in a place within public view. When the basic ingredients of the offence are missing in the complaint, then permitting such a complaint to continue and to compel the appellant to face the rigmarole of the criminal trial would be totally unjustified leading to abuse of process of law."

In the same context learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon 2002 Crl.J. Page 1251 Pappu Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh in which it has been held that :-

"Moreover this witness has stated that the applicant had not used ugly words relating to the caste of the complainant. In this way there was no evidence on record to make out offence punishable under section 3(1)(X) of the Act against the applicant and the finding recorded by the learned Special Judge was without evidence and was thus perverse. A perverse finding of fact can be interfered with in the revision. As such there was no justification in convicting and sentencing the applicant under section 3(1)(X) of the Act. Thus, the revision succeeds."

14. The provision of Section 3(1)(x) of the SC/ST Act and legal position, as noted above, provides that a person can be punished under this provision only when he commits such offence against person of scheduled-caste/scheduled-tribe community on the ground that such a person/victim is a member of SC/ST community. From the evidence in the present case, it appears that alleged act had allegedly been committed by accused-appellant only because of already existing enmity and dispute of crop. It was not the prosecution case that offence was committed for the reason that victim/ complainant belonged to the scheduled-caste community. At least there is no evidence in this regard. Therefore even if prosecution case is accepted to be true in toto, in such matters accused cannot be punished for offence punishable under Section 3(1)(x) of SC/ST Act.

15. Thus, the trial court has committed grave illegality in convicting the accused under Section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act, since there was absolutely no evidence on record to prove the charge under Section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act against the accused.

16. As far as Sections 352, 504 and 506 I.P.C. are concerned, learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that there are sufficient grounds to grant the benefit of Sections 3 and 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 to the appellant. Thus, the residual question is applicability of Sections 3 and 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 and Section 360 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

17. Where the provisions of Probation of Offenders Act are applicable, the employment of Section 360 of the Code is not to be made. In cases of such application, it would be an illegality resulting in highly undesirable consequences, which the legislature, who gave birth to the Probation of Offenders Act and the Code Criminal of Procedure wanted to obviate. Yet the legislature in its wisdom has obliged the Court under Section 361 of the Code of Criminal Procedure to apply one of the other beneficial provisions; be it 360 of the Code of Criminal Procedure or the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act. It is only by providing special reasons that their applicability can be withheld by the Court. The comparative elevation of the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act are further noticed in sub section (10) of Section 360 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which makes it clear that nothing in the said Section shall affect the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act. Those provisions have a paramountacy of their own in the respective areas where they are applicable.

18. Section 360 of the Code relates only to persons not under 21 years of age convicted for an offence punishable with fine only or with imprisonment for a term of 7 years or less, to any person under 21 years of age or any woman convicted of an offence not punishable with sentence of death or imprisonment for life. The scope of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act is much wider. It applies to any person found guilty of having committed an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life. Section 360 of the Code does not provide for any rule for Probation Officers in assisting the courts in relation to supervision and other matters while Probation of Offenders Act does make such a provision. While Section 12 of the Probation of Offenders Act states that the persons found guilty of an offence and dealt with under Section 3 or 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act shall not suffer disqualification, if any, attached to conviction of an offence under any law, the Code does not contain parallel provision. Two statutes with such significant differences could not be intended to co-exist at the same time in the same area. Such co-existence would lead to anomalous results. The intention to retain the provisions of Section 360 of the Code and the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act as applicable at the same time in a given area cannot be gathered from the provision of Section 360 or any other provision of the Code. Therefore, by virtue of Section 8(1) of the General Clauses Act, where the provisions of the Act have been brought into force. The provisions of Section 360 of the Code are wholly inapplicable.

19. Enforcement of Probation Act in some particular area excludes the applicability of the provisions of Section 360, 361 of the Code in that area. Section 3 of the Probation of Offenders Act reads as follows:-

"3. Power of court to release certain offenders after admonition.- When any person is found guilty of having committed an offence punishable under section 379 or section 380 or section 381 or section 404 or section 420 of the Indian Penal Code, (45 of 1860) or any offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than two years, or with fine, or with both, under the Indian Penal Code, or any other law, and no previous conviction is proved against him and the court by which the person is found guilty is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case including the nature of the offence, and the character of the offender, it is expedient so to do, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the court may instead of sentencing him to any punishment or releasing him on probation of good conduct under section 4 release him after due admonition.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section, previous conviction against a person shall include any previous order made against him under this section or section 4."

20. Thus, this was the bounden duty of the learned trial and also the appellate court to consider why they did not proceed to grant the benefit of Probation of Offenders Act. Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act reads as follows:

"4. Power of court to release certain offenders on probation of good conduct.-(1) When any person is found guilty of having committed an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life and the court by which the person is found guilty is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender, it is expedient to release him on probation of good conduct, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period, not exceeding three years, as the court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour:

Provided that the court shall not direct such release of an offender unless it is satisfied that the offender or his surety, if any, has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the place over which the court exercises jurisdiction or in which the offender is likely to live during the period for which he enters into the bond.

(2)Before making any order under sub-section (1), the court shall take into consideration the report, if any, of the probation officer concerned in relation to the case.

(3) When an order under sub-section (1) is made, the court may, if it is of opinion that in the interests of the offender and of the public it is expedient so to do, in addition pass a supervision order directing that the offender shall remain under the supervision of a probation officer named in the order during such period, not being less than one year, as may be specified therein, and may in such supervision order, impose such conditions as it deems necessary for the due supervision of the offender.

(4) The court making a supervision order under sub-section (3) shall require the offender, before he is released, to enter into a bond, with or without sureties, to observe the conditions specified in such order and such additional conditions with respect to residence, abstention from intoxicants or any other matter as the court may, having regard to the particular circumstances, consider fit to impose for preventing a repetition of the same offence or a commission of other offences by the offender.

(5) The court making a supervision order under sub-section (3) shall explain to the offender the terms and conditions of the order and shall forthwith furnish one copy of the supervision order to each of the offenders, the sureties, if any, and the probation officer concerned."

21. Protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law, which must be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence. Therefore, law as a cornerstone of the edifice should meet the challenges confronting the society. Therefore, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt the corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. By deft modulation, sentencing process be stern where it should be, and tempered with mercy where it warrants to be. The facts and given circumstances in each case, the nature of the crime, the manner in which it was planned and committed, the motive for commission of the crime, the conduct of the accused, the nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into the area of consideration. It is, therefore, the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of the offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. As justice demands that courts should impose punishment befitting the crime so that the courts reflect public abhorrence of the crime. The court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which both the criminal and the victim belong.

22. The occurrence relates to the year 1991. Presently as per the statement of the appellant he is above 60 years of age. Sending the accused-appellant to jail would serve no useful purpose. Thus, I think It will be proper to grant the benefit of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act to the appellant. Consequently, the appeal is partly allowed with the following modifications :-

(a) The conviction and sentence of the appellant under Sections 352, 504 and 506 I.P.C. is hereby confirmed.

(b) The conviction of the appellant under Section 3(1(x) SC/ST Act is hereby set aside, however the conviction of the appellant under Sections 352, 504 and 506 I.P.C. is upheld.

(c) Instead of sending the appellant to jail, the appellant shall get the benefit of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act 1958. The appellant shall file two bonds to the tune of Rs. 20,000/- coupled with personal bond to the effect that he shall not commit any offence and shall be of good behaviour and shall maintain peace during the period of one year. If there is breach of any of the conditions he will subject himself to undergo sentence as indicated above. The bonds aforesaid be filed by the accused-appellant within two months from the date of judgement. The time for filing of bonds shall not be extended on any ground whatsoever.

23. Let certified copy of this order be sent to the court concerned for compliance.

THE HON'BLE BHARAT BHUSHAN, J.
THE HON'BLE ALOK KUMAR MUKHERJEE, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 1329 Of 1983

Raj Bahadur Singh & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellants:
Amar Saran, A.D. Giri, Devendra Swarup, V. Singh

Counsel for Respondent:
A.D.Giri, V.S.Singh, V.Singh

Held

The High Court dismissed the criminal appeal and affirmed the conviction of the surviving appellant Surendra Singh under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC, holding that the prosecution had successfully established the offence through prompt FIR, consistent ocular testimony of four eye-witnesses, and corroborative medical evidence. The Court held that minor discrepancies regarding the type of firearm, omission of certain details in the FIR, or lapses in investigation were not sufficient to discredit the otherwise trustworthy prosecution case. It further held that the evidence clearly proved the appellant's participation with common intention in the fatal firearm assault on the deceased, and therefore the conviction and life sentence were justified. The appellant was directed to surrender within 30 days to serve the remaining sentence.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Bharat Bhushan, J.)

1. Sole surviving appellant Surendra Singh has assailed the impugned judgment and order dated 31.5.1983 passed in Sessions Trial No. 90 of 1982 (State Vs Surendra Singh and three others) by 4th Addl. Sessions Judge, Varanasi whereby the appellants Surendra Singh, Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju, Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh were convicted under Section 302 read with Section 34 of Indian Penal Code (in short IPC) and sentenced to undergo life imprisonment.

2. This appeal was initially filed by four appellants but appellants Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju, Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh have died during the pendency of the present appeal and hence their appeal stand abated vide order order dated 2.11.2015. This court is now concerned only with the appeal of surviving appellant Surendra Singh.

3. The facts giving rise to this appeal are that on 15.9.1981 at about 8 a.m. the deceased Ram Nayan Singh was sitting at a tea stall situated at bus stand of Village Rajwari with Lal Bahadur Singh (P.W.-2) and Keshav Singh (P.W-4). Suddenly, accused persons namely Late Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju, Late Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and Late Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh and the surviving appellant Surendra Singh arrived there. All of them were armed with firearm weapons. Late Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh, father of remaining three accused urged his sons to assassinate deceased Ram Nayan Singh. First, accused late Raj Bahadur Singh fired a shot upon the deceased Ram Nayan Singh. Deceased tried to escape towards a hut located behind the tea stall whereupon the appellant Surendra Singh and his companions Late Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju and Late Gajendrda Narain Singh @ Gajju opened fire on Ram Nayan Singh who sustained injuries on his back. Informant Ramji Singh (P.W.-1), Banshidhar and several other persons arrived on the spot on observing the pandemonium at the place of occurrence. They claimed to have witnessed the incident along with P.W.-2 Lal Bahadur Singh and P.W.-4 Keshav Singh. These witnesses tried to catch the assailants but they boarded the scooter and Bullet motorcycle and fled towards northern side. Informant found his brother dead and thereafter went to the police station (in short P.S.) to lodge the First Information Report (in short the FIR) immediately.

4. The FIR (Ex-Ka-1) was lodged at 9.15 a.m. i.e. within seventy-five minutes of the incident at P.S. Chaubeypur, District Varanasi, which was six miles away from the Village Rajwari. A chick report (Ex-Ka-3) was also carved out. Relevant entries were made in the General Diary, extract of which is available on record as (Ex-Ka-4). Investigation was entrusted to Sri Faiyaz Ahmad (P.W.-6), the then Station House Officer, P.S. Chaubeypur. Inquest report was prepared and autopsy performed. The investigating Officer (I.O.) recovered live cartridge of 315 bore from the place of occurrence and samples of blood stained and plain earth were taken from the spot. Statements of witnesses were recorded by the I.O., thereafter a charge sheet (Ex-Ka-12) was submitted against four accused persons namely Late Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju, Late Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and Late Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh and surviving appellant Surendra Singh.

5. Trial Judge framed charges against all the accused persons under Sections 302/34 IPC. Accused persons denied the allegations levelled against them and claimed to be tried. During course of trial, depositions of P.W.-1 Ramji Singh (informant), P.W.-2 Lal Bahadur Singh (eye witness), P.W-3 Laxmi Shanker Pandey (eye witness), P.W-4 Keshav Singh (eye witness), P.W.-5

Dr. Virendra Kumar Verma (conducted postmortem) and P.W.-6 Faiyaz Ahmad (Investigating Officer) were recorded. Statements of all accused persons were also recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein they again denied all the allegations and claimed false implication due to previous enmity. Accused persons also produced four witnesses in their defence namely D.W.-1 Prahlad, D.W.-2 Sudhendra Kumar Bhattacharya, D.W-3 Ravindra Prasad Singh, P.W-4 Rajendra Rai. Trial Judge found sufficient evidence to convict the accused persons under Sections 302/34 IPC and accordingly sentenced them to life imprisonment vide judgment and order dated 31.5.1983. It is this judgment which is under challenge before this court.

6. As stated earlier, this court is now concerned only with the appeal of sole surviving appellant Surendra Singh.

7. Heard Sri Prem Shanker, Advocate holding brief for Sri Lok Nath Shukla, Advocate learned counsel for the surviving appellant and Mr K. C. Pandey, learned AGA for the State.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant has contended that there are significant discrepancies between the original prosecution story reflected in the FIR and the eye witness account recorded during the course of trial. He has drawn the attention of the court that no bullet was found embedded on 'Neem tree' as said by the witnesses. He has also claimed that the ocular evidence is inconsistent with the medical evidence. He has further argued that narration of events by the prosecution witnesses is not able to account for the bullet injuries sustained by the deceased Ram Nayan Singh on his thigh. He has denounced the claim of motive saying that the motive has not been established by the prosecution at all during the course of trial.

9. It is further submitted that use of guns was never mentioned in the FIR though injury report discloses wounds were caused by pellets. It is further argued that the story of prosecution is not able to account for four firearms wounds on the back of deceased. The recovery of only one live cartridge at the place of occurrence is not consistent with the story of indiscriminate firing.

10. Per contra learned counsel for the State has argued that as many as four eye witnesses have supported the prosecution story. The testimony of these witnesses is without any blemish. He has submitted that minor discrepancies are not sufficient to discard the testimony of eye witnesses. He has further argued that the testimony of all eye witnesses is natural, trustworthy and consistent with the normal human conduct.

11. Prosecution story was first narrated in the FIR. The FIR says that the deceased Ram Nayan Singh was sitting in a tea stall situated at Bus stand of Village Rajwari of P.S. Chaubeypur, District Varanasi. Accused persons, including surviving appellant Surendra came there and shot dead the deceased Ram Nayan Singh. Details of the incident are enshrined in the FIR.

12. P.W.-1 Ramji has testified that deceased Ram Nayan Singh, the elder brother of P.W.-1 Ramji Singh (informant) was Deputy Sarpanch of Nyaya Panchayat, Village Rajwari at the time of incident. It is stated that Late Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh and the appellant Surendra

Singh were both employed by the police department. They had acquired licenses for rifle, shot gun and revolver and had a close affinity with the Station House Officer Faiyaz Ahmad, (P.W.-6) the Investigating Officer of this case. P.W.-1 Ramji Singh has also stated that both family had antagonistic relationship with each other and this animosity resulted in various litigation between the two parties.

13. P.W-1 Ramji has stated that on the date of occurrence Late accused Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and deceased Ram Nayan Singh had some quarrel with each other and deceased Ram Nayan Singh slapped Late appellant Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju during this imbroglio. The appellant Gajendra Narain Singh threatened to take revenge and left the place. This incident occurred right in the morning of the dreadful day. A bus stand exists in Village Rajwari and near that busstand there were tea stalls and meat shops around both sides of the road. House of Laxmi Shanker Pandey, P.W.-3 is also located at 10-15 paces away from the road near bus stand Rajwari. P.W-1 has clarified that he too was sipping tea at the shop of one Rahmal Madhav located on western side of the road at Rajwari bus stand. His slain brother Ram Nayan Singh was sitting on the tea stall of one Raja Ram. Lal Bahadur Singh (P.W.-2) and Keshav Singh (P.W.-4) were also sitting with him at a stone bench. Prior to this incident, deceased Ram Nayan Singh had had altercation with accused Late Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and threat was extended by accused Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju. It is stated that within 15 minutes of that episode appellants Late Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh and his three sons namely Late Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju, Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and surviving appellant Surendra Singh arrived at the bus stand. All of them were armed with firearm weapons. The appellant Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh was armed with revolver, who urged his sons to kill Ram Nayan Singh upon which appellant Raj Bahadur Singh fired a shot at deceased Ram Nayan Singh at his chest but he somehow escaped and started running towards the hut nearby. Then accused persons Late Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju, Late Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and Surendra Singh opened fire at deceased Ram Narayan Singh. He sustained firearm injuries and fell down near the hut of Raja Ram adjacent to Raja Ram's tea stall.

14. This witness has narrated the whole story in a trustworthy manner. There are some minor discrepancies but appraisal of his evidence would reveal that the core of his testimony is intact despite searching cross examination. This witness has also expressed his disappointment with the conduct of Station House Officer, (P.W.-6) Faiyaz Ahmad who investigated this case. He has stated that a complaint was made on behalf of his family to Superintendent of Police (rural). He has also disclosed that accused persons were released on bail because the case diary was not sent to the court by the I.O. Faiyaz Ahmad, insinuating that accused persons were let off merely on their personal bond because of deliberate help provided to the accused persons by the Investigating Officer. Investigating Officer has also shown the existence of 'Mahua' tree in the site plan (Ex-Ka-9) while there was no Mahua Tree at the place of occurrence and they had referred only to Neem Tree wherein some shots were reportedly got embedded on its trunk. It is pertinent to point that during the course of testimony, I.O. (P.W.-6) has conceded that he had mistakenly shown a 'Mahua' tree in the site plan (Ex-Ka-9). He has also admitted that only Neem tree existed at the place of occurrence. The evidence given by Ramji Singh is natural, trustworthy and consistent with the natural human conduct. The narration of events by him during the course of trial shows that he was present at the place of occurrence at the time of incident.

15. Similarly, P.W.-2 Lal Bahadur Singh and P.W.-3 Laxmi Shanker Pandey and P.W.-4 Keshav Singh have also supported the prosecution version. Prosecution evidence demonstrates that all of them were present at the time of occurrence.

16. P.W-2. Lal Bahadur Singh and P.W-4 Keshav Singh were infact sitting with the deceased Ram Nayan Singh at the tea stall of Raja Ram right at the time of incident. These witnesses have also disclosed the preceding incident wherein the deceased Ram Nayan Singh had slapped the appellant Late Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju. The main incident took place within 15-20 minutes after the earlier incident. Both these witnesses have also stated that the appellant Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh had instigated his sons Surendra Singh, Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju and all of them opened fire upon the deceased Ram Nayan Singh barring Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh though he too was armed with revolver. The FIR is said to have been prepared within 15 minutes after the occurrence. Firearm weapons were mentioned in this FIR though shot gun was not specifically mentioned.

17. Learned counsel for the appellant has argued that the FIR does not disclose the previous incident occurred just 15 minutes prior to the main events wherein some brawl took place between the accused Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and deceased Ram Nayan Singh. He has also argued that the FIR claims that the first firearm shot was fired at the chest of the deceased but later on prosecution resiled from this stand as no firearm injury was found on the chest.

18. Admittedly, deceased Ram Nayan Singh died on account of firearm wounds caused by rifle and shot guns in the morning of date of incident. This fact is supported by the evidence of Dr. V. K. Verma, P.W-5 who conduced the postmortem on the cadaver. Testimony of Dr. V. K. Verma as well as the postmortem report would disclose that the deceased died almost instantaneously in the wake of incident. The deceased received rifle wound on his neck. Six firearm shots of entry on the right side of the neck and exit wound from the left side of the neck resulting in several injuries in trachea, esophagus and damage to the blood vessels. Four firearm wounds of entry were found on the back and several wounds of firearm shots were found on the thigh. A tin piece was also found embedded on the wound of thigh.

19. Learned Trial Judge has concluded that the deceased fell down on the rough ground and if there was a tin piece lying on the earth, it would naturally get embedded on the person of the deceased and that merely presence of tin piece would not create any inconsistency between the oral testimony and medical reports. We have no reason to disagree with the conclusion of the trial judge.

20. Four eye witnesses have deposed before the trial court in a natural and trustworthy manner and narrated the entire incident before the trial court. There is absolutely no reason for them to spare real culprits and to falsely implicate the appellants. Incident occurred in broad daylight. The FIR was lodged within 75 minutes. It is therefore, evident that informant and witnesses did not get any opportunity to concoct the prosecution story or the evidence. Inquest report (Ex-Ka-5) also discloses that corpse of deceased was found on the place of occurrence which also gets support from the sample of blood stained earth taken by the Investigating Officer and analyzed chemically by the forensic lab. There is no dispute about the place of occurrence. We concur with the conclusion of the trial Judge that had the corpse of deceased been transferred from another place to bus stand Rajwari they would have found at least some witnesses to disclose it. It has also come in evidence that Ram Nayan Singh was sitting on a stone bench facing north and as soon as the accused persons opened fire, deceased turned towards west and took few steps towards south and then ran towards hut of tea vendor Raja Ram located towards eastern side. Therefore, Ram Nayan Singh took steps in ante-clock wise manner and this action of deceased Ram Nayan Singh would account for the injuries on the neck as well as on the back because turning in this ante-clock wise fashion would ultimately expose the neck and back of the deceased towards the accused persons who were firing upon the deceased, unmindful of his physical position. We also concur with the conclusion of the trial Judge that the firearm assault was made upon the deceased at the tea shop of Raja Ram and that the deceased took few steps after receiving the injuries, then fell down and expired. We also believe that the place of occurrence has been established by the trustworthy evidence.

21. Learned counsel for the appellant has also argued that the time of death is uncertain because some undigested food was present in the stomach of deceased while fecal matter was also found in the intestine. This argument did not impress the trial judge and has no impact on us as well. The testimony of Dr. V. K. Verma (P.W.-5) has established that only one ounce of digested food was found in the intestine. Fecal matter was also available. The doctor has clarified that the deceased might have eased prior to the incident but failed to evacuate completely or it is also possible that he might have not gone to toilet at all. Evidence suggests that the deceased had returned rather late from a party after taking meals. He came back after midnight, therefore, it is not surprising that little digested food was found in the intestine meaning thereby that almost all digested food had passed into intestine by the time assault was made on deceased.

22. The postmortem report has also blown the arguments regarding inconsistency between the medical report and the time of occurrence. Medical reports and the testimony of P.W.-5 Dr. V. K. Verma reveal that the firearm wounds of entry was found on the right side of the back of neck and two firearm wounds of exit were also found on the left side of the neck. Both injuries are corresponding. Four firearm wounds of entry were found on right side at the back and four firearm wounds of entry have been shown on the right upper outer thigh. The nature of injuries and nature of wounds are consistent both with rifle as well as shot gun injuries. Report of doctor indicates two big shots were found in the abdomen cavity which is consistent with suggestion of wounds created by shot gun. The thigh injuries were also caused by shot gun, therefore, use of rifle and shot gun has been amply demonstrated by the prosecution evidence especially the postmortem report and the testimony of the doctor V. K. Verma, P.W.-5.

23. Learned counsel for the appellant has argued that the FIR (Ex-Ka-1) does not mention use of shot gun and it contains assertion only about rifle and revolver. Therefore, he argued that there is significant inconsistency in the contents of the FIR and the testimony of the witnesses. He has reiterated his argument that the FIR does not contain the details of previous incident, alleged to have occurred 15 minutes prior to the main attack wherein deceased had slapped Late Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju (accused).

24. We are afraid that that this attempt to treat the FIR as an encyclopedia is not justified. The FIR was lodged by Ramji Singh (P.W.-1) who had witnessed the incident from a particular place. Most of the ordinary citizen are not even aware of the differences between the shot gun and rifle. The evidence suggests that the incident occurred for merely less than half minute. This disclosure has been made in paragraph no. 25 of the testimony of P.W-1 Ramji Singh meaning thereby that there was no occasion for the witnesses to carefully note the intricacies and complexities of various firearm weapons. The witnesses have also testified that all accused persons immediately left on motorcycle and scooter in the aftermath of the assault. Daring attack was made in broad-day light in presence of several persons. This incident could have frozen anyone. Mental status of person present on the spot could only be guessed. Some of the witnesses present near the deceased might have been fear-stricken and in such a scenario it is unreasonable to seek precise narration from ordinary Village- folks. We are convinced that the FIR need not contain minute details as it is generally recorded under circumstances of haste. It is not necessary that all details given in the sworn testimony in court by informant be given first in the FIR. Entire knowledge of informant is not required to be reflected in the FIR. If we carefully examine all the material on record, it would reveal that the FIR contains all relevant material and further witnesses have testified in a natural, credible and trustworthy manner.

25. The Apex court in Panduranj Chandrakant Mhatre and others, (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 413 has also held that the FIR has a limited value during criminal trial and it merely sets the criminal law in motion. The FIR is not expected to encyclopedia of events. So long, the FIR discloses the commission of cognizable offence and its details, it is sufficient for the purposes of criminal trial. In the present case, the FIR was lodged 75 minutes of the incident containing all major facts regarding the offence. In our opinion failure to mention use of shot gun in FIR is not fatal to the prosecution case.

26. Learned counsel for the appellant has argued that the witnesses produced by the prosecution are either related to deceased or his family or had antagonistic relationship with the accused. Therefore, their evidence should not be trusted.

27. We are not impressed by this arguments. Incident of murder usually does not take place amongst friends. Ordinarily, inimical terms or previous litigation or fights of various kind usually result in murder etc. In the instant case, both factors are present. Parties were certainly not on friendly terms. This fact is admitted to both the parties. In addition to that a previous incident took place 15 minutes prior to the main occurrence wherein the deceased slapped accused Gajendra Narain Singh @ Gajju and that perhaps was the immediate motivation for accused to retaliate in the heat of moment. Several eye witnesses have supported the occurrence and their evidence cannot be rejected merely on the ground of friendly relationship with the deceased.

28. In any case, the evidence of witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the ground that they are related or interested. There is no rule of law, which requires rejection of testimony of related witnesses.

29. In Ram Gopal Vs State of Rajasthan (1998) 6 SCC 441, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that if witnesses are related to deceased, that is no reasonable ground to discard the testimony of otherwise reliable witnesses. Similarly, in Chapho @ Jakeal Vs Kerala (1998) 6 SCC 602 also, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in the event independent witnesses are available and yet not produced even then this is not a reasonable ground to discard the testimony of otherwise trustworthy witnesses. Similarly in Pandurang Chandrakant Mhatre and others Vs State of Maharashtra (supra) has held that the dominant question to be considered is whether the witnesses, despite being interested, have spoken the truth and are creditworthy. Once it is found by the court, subsequent to analysis of such evidence that there is no reason to disbelieve such witnesses then the mere fact that the witnesses are interested, is not enough to reject the prosecution case on this ground alone.

30. Hon'ble Supreme Court in common judgment of Hardev Singh Vs Harbhej Singh and others/Suba Singh and others 1997 SCC (cri), has been held that the evidence of close relations cannot be rejected merely on the ground that they happened to be relatives. However, evidence of such witnesses should be scrutinized carefully. If the court is convinced that evidence of such witnesses is sufficient to establish the guilt of accused then the fact of interestedness alone cannot be a ground for rejecting the evidence of prosecution witnesses.

31. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bhupendra Singh and others Vs State of UP (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 275, has held that merely because eye witnesses are family members, their evidence cannot per se be discarded. When there is allegations of interestedness, the same has to be established. Mere statement that being relatives of deceased they are likely to falsely implicate accused, cannot be a ground to discard the evidence, which is otherwise cogent and credible.

32. In the present case, bald argument has been raised that the witnesses are related to deceased but that by itself is not evidence of lie. It is the duty of the party claiming partiality to establish the allegations of partisanship. There is no material on record to support the allegations that the informant and the witnesses have allowed the real culprits to go scotfree and falsely implicated the appellants merely on some vague claim of previous enmity.

33. Learned counsel has further raised argument regarding the failure of Investigating Officer to conduct prompt and efficient investigation. This argument need to be examined in the backdrop of allegations of prosecution that I.O. deliberately tried to derail the investigation. Prosecution side has been alleging the bias of Investigating Officer in favour of accused person. It is also argued that the FIR does not contain reference of shot gun. It is stressed on behalf of appellant that the witnesses did not mention this fact even in their statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. These allegations cannot be given undue weights in the backdrop of specific allegations levelled by prosecution against the Investigating Officer right from beginning. Investigating Officer himself has admitted that he wrongly showed Mahua tree in the site plan when there was no Mahua tree on the spot at all. As stated earlier, he did not send relevant record to the court, enabling appellants to secure bail on personal bond. Several other laches have also been pointed out. In any case, faulty investigation by itself cannot be a ground for acquittal of accused. Fact of the matter is that the FIR was lodged promptly. Investigation started early but the complainant did not have any control over the investigating machinery. Argument that the shot gun was not mentioned in the FIR would not effect the prosecution case adversely.

34. The Full Bench of this Court in Gopal and Etc Vs State of UP, 1999 Cr. L. J 2501 has already established the following principle:-

"At the very outset, we want to say that it is very easy to find fault with anything. Even accurate computers are prone to commit faults and mistakes. Not only this, human mind cannot be read. Sometimes it works in the direction that it becomes adamant to help one party and tries its level best to spoil the case. It is well known, at least by the police officers, who investigate the case, also know that they should take prompt action and should immediately record the statement of the witnesses. They should not make cuttings and over-writings etc. in the police papers so as to create suspicion about the sanctity of the papers. They should fairly prepare the inquest report and police papers and should write the case diary with accuracy and correctly. These propositions of law and facts cannot be doubted. But if the police officers deliberately sleep over the matter, try to spoil the case and do not record the evidence of the witnesses immediately, the poor dead persons who have been killed cannot come out to say why you are spoiling the case. The bereaved family and the witnesses have only to remain silent spectators to what the police officers do. If they intervene, a judicial notice of the fact can be taken that they are humiliated, even beaten and implicated in false cases. Fear of police atrocities keeps them mum. They are also ignorant of the fact that what shall be the effect of delay and discrepancy. Therefore, also, they have nothing to intervene with the investigation. In our view, investigation of the case, if faulty, even mischievous or collusive should not be a ground to reject the ocular testimony of the informant who lodged the F.I.R. promptly. If the FIR is recorded soon or is recorded after four or five hours, why should the prosecution or the persons who have died 'suffer'. Each and every case has to be decided on its intrinsic evidence. If the eye-witnesses are believable the mere weakness of the investigation should not be a ground to reject their testimonies."

35. Apex Court in its judgment Bishundeo Poddar and others Vs The State of Bihar, 2003 Crl. L. J. 1558 has held thus:-

"Be that as it may, the fate of the case does not depend on what the Investigating Officer or the prosecutor ought to have done and evidence ought to have been filed. The fate depends on the evidence which is on record."

36. Similarly, the Apex Court in its judgment of Amar Singh Vs Balwinder Singh, 2003 Crl. L.J. 1282 has held that every failure or omission of Investigating Officer cannot render prosecution case doubtful or unworthy of belief.

37. We may disapprove the lackadaisical attitude of the Investigating Officer but that by itself is not sufficient to warrant acquittal of the appellant.

38. Appellant has also raised plea of alibi on behalf of appellant Late Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh and Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju. Both these appellants have died and therefore we are not concerned with their appeal. No useful purpose would be served by analyzing this plea. Suffice is to say that we are in agreement with the finding of the trial court on this score also whereby he has rejected completely the plea of alibi of both late Vikrama Singh @ Vikramaditya Singh and Late Raj Bahadur Singh @ Raju.

39. We have perused the record. Trial Judge has appraised the evidence adroitly. There is nothing on record to show that the conclusions drawn by the trial Judge are not sustainable.

40. In the result, we find that the appellants have rightly been found guilty of offence under Section 302/34 IPC. We, therefore, affirm the conviction and sentence imposed on the appellants. The appeal is hereby dismissed. The surviving appellant Surender Singh, if on bail is hereby directed to surrender before the Trial Court within 30 days from the date of this order to serve out the remaining sentence failing which the Trial Court would take steps in accordance with law for bringing him into custody and sending him to serve out the sentence.

Let a copy of the order be certified within ten days to the trial court for compliance within 15 days. Trial Court shall report compliance of this judgment within 15 days thereafter.

Criminal Appeal No.- 4355 Of 2006

Gulab ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellant:
V.B. Rao, P.K. Rao

Counsel for Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Held

The High Court allowed the criminal appeal and set aside the conviction under Section 302 IPC, holding that the prosecution had failed to prove the presence of the appellant at the place of occurrence beyond reasonable doubt. The Court found the dying declaration unreliable and unsafe to form the sole basis of conviction, as it materially contradicted the FIR and the statement under Section 161 CrPC regarding the manner of occurrence and the role of the accused. The Court also noted serious inconsistencies in prosecution witnesses' testimonies, unexplained burn injuries on Shamshad Bano, delay in lodging the FIR, and non-examination of the doctor who certified the deceased's fitness for recording the dying declaration. These defects created substantial doubt in the prosecution story. Hence, giving the benefit of doubt, the conviction and sentence were quashed and the appellant was directed to be released forthwith.

CASE LAW CITED

Bhajju @ Karan Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J.)

1. The aforesaid criminal appeal has been preferred by appellant Gulab against the judgment and order of conviction dated 28.07.2006 passed by the Sessions Judge, Banda, in Sessions Trial No.26 of 2005, State Vs. Gulab and others) arising out of Case Crime no.54 of 2004, Police Station Badausa, District Banda, whereby appellant has been sentenced to life imprisonment under section 302 I.P.C. coupled with fine Rs. 10,000/-, default stipulates one year additional simple imprisonment.

2. We have heard Sushri Sakshi Keserwani and Sri Rajrshi Gupta, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Saghir Ahmad, Sri J.K. Upadhyay and Kumari Meena, learned AGAs for the State and perused the record of this Criminal Appeal.

3. The factual evolution of this appeal comes into being with the recording of dying declaration (Exhibit Ka-7) of victim Abdul Hafeez alias Pappu son of Mumtaz on 20.04.2004 between 6.05 P.M. to 6.20 P.M.-by P.W.8 Raj Bahadur, Naib Tehsildar/Magistrate, Banda. Then course of events passes on to lodging of FIR at Police Station Badausa on 21.04.2004 at 22.30 hours regarding the occurrence allegedly taken place on 20.4.2004 in the morning around 05.30 a.m. at village Bagaichapurwa, Police Station Badausa, District Banda by the injured/deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu with the allegations that the first informant (deceased) returned with his wife Shamshad Bano from her 'Maika' in village Kalahra within Police Station Kotwali Naraini, in the evening of 19.4.2004. Same day in the evening at about 10 p.m., informant's brother-in-law Gulab along with Raheem came to his house and stayed there whole night. On the following morning (20.4.2004), the first informant went to attend natures call and when returned from there, he saw his brother-in-law Gulab and his wife Shamshad Bano in compromising position on the bed, whereupon both of them caught him and in the meanwhile, Raheem, who was standing outside also came in, when Gulab poured kerosene oil on him with intention to kill him, Raheem gripped him while his wife Shamshad Bano set him on fire with the help of match-stick due to which he sustained severe burn injuries.

4. Contents of written report (Ext. Ka-1) were noted in the concerned check FIR at police station Badausa on 21.04.2004 at 22.30 hours at Case Crime no.54 of 2004, under Section 307 IPC. Check FIR is Exhibit Ka-3 on record.

5. On the basis of entries made in check FIR, case was registered against the accused-appellant in the general diary at serial no.32 at aforesaid case crime number under Section 307 IPC on 21.4.2004 at the same police station, which is Exhibit Ka-4 on record.

6. The case was investigated into by the Investigating Officer R.D. Chaudhary PW-7. He took steps by recording statement of various persons including prosecution witnesses Rasool Khan and the injured Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu. He prepared site plan of the place of occurrence on 22.4.2004 and proved the same as Exhibit Ka-6. He also prepared recovery memo of empty container of kerosene oil and partly burnt bed sheet, which is Exhibit Ka-2 on record.

7. Thereafter, investigation was taken over by Ajay Prakash Srivastava, PW-10 on 23.04.2004. On the basis of information received from Mumtaz, father of the deceased, the case was converted from Section 307 IPC to Section 302 IPC.

8. In this context, relevant general diary entry at serial no.6 dated 23.4.2004 at 6.55 a.m. was made. Thereafter, the Investigating Officer Ajay Prakash Srivastava PW-10 proceeded to prepare inquest of deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu at village Bagaichapurwa, Police Station

Badausa, District Banda. Preparation of inquest commenced at 8.10 a.m. and completed at 9.30 a.m. Inquest report is Exhibit Ka-9.

9. In the opinion of inquest witnesses, it was thought proper to send dead body of the deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu for postmortem examination so that real cause of death could be ascertained. In the process, certain relevant papers were prepared, which are Exhibits Ka-10, Ka-11, Ka-12, Ka-13 and Ka-14, respectively. Thereafter postmortem examination on the cadaver of the deceased was conducted by Dr. T.R. Sarsaiya PW-7 on 23.04.2004 at 3.30 P.M., wherein following ante-mortem injuries were noted:

Superficial to deep burn on whole body except both feet, skin peeled off its places, singeing on scalp, eyebrow and axillary and eyelash and pubic hair. Red line on both foot.

10. In the opinion of the doctor, cause of death was stated to be shock due to ante-mortem burning. This postmortem report has been proved as Exhibit Ka-5.

11. Thereafter record proceeds to suggest that the investigation was transferred to the third Investigating Officer, Satya Pal Singh- P.W.9, who also recorded statement of various prosecution witnesses and after completing various formalities filed charge sheet against accused Gulab, Raheem and Shamshad Bano, which is Exhibit Ka-8.

12. Consequent thereupon, the case was committed to the Court of Sessions where the accused Gulab and the two other co-accused persons were heard on point of charge and prima facie ground was found existing for framing charge under Section 302/34 IPC. The charge was read over and explained to the accused, who abjured charge and opted for trial.

13. Thereafter, the prosecution was asked to adduce its testimony, whereupon the prosecution examined as many as ten witnesses on its behalf. Brief sketch of the same is being made herein below:

14. Mumtaj PW-1 is the father of deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu. He is witness of fact and he has stated that at the relevant point of time, when the incident took place, he had gone to some another village for selling cloth-being cloth merchant- and he returned his village around 4:00 p.m. on 20.4.2004, when only he came to know about the incident.

15. Rasool Khan PW-2 is witness of fact and he has testified to fact that deceased got the written report scribed by Lallu Khan and then handed it over to him for giving it at Police Station Badausa. He has proved the written report Exhibit Ka-1.

16. Mehadi Hussain PW-3 is also witness of fact. He disposed about fact that he saw Gulab and Raheem running away from house of Mumtaz. While fleeing away, they said that Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was set on fire. Thereafter, he reached at the place of occurrence where he saw Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu and his wife Smt. Shamshad Bano lying in burnt condition.

17. Lallu Khan PW-4 is scribe of written report. He has stated in his examination-in-chief that father of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu dictated him the report and Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu made his signature thereon.

18. Constable Shiv Daya PW-5 has prepared Check FIR and registered the case against accused-appellant in the relevant general diary and has proved the same as Exhibit Ka-3 and Ka-4, respectively. Dr. T.R. Sarsaiya PW-6 conducted the postmortem examination on the dead body of deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu on 23.4.2004 and has proved the same as Exhibit Ka-5. He has also proved material Exhibit 1 and 2, respectively. In his one line cross-examination, he has stated that the timing of death may vary by six hours on either side. S.I. R.D. Chowdhary PW-7 is the first Investigating Officer of this case. He has taken various steps during course of investigation and has proved Exhibit Ka-6, Ka-2 and Ka-3 besides material Exhibit 3 and 4, respectively. Naib Tehsildar Ram Bahadur PW-8 has recorded dying declaration of deceased on 20.4.2004 and has proved the same as Exhibit Ka-7. Satyapal Singh PW-9, is the third Investigating Officer of this case, who besides recording statement of several prosecution witnesses also filed charge sheet Exhibit Ka-8, against the accused-appellant. Ajay Prakash Srivastava PW-10 is the second Investigating Officer of this case. He has also proved various steps taken by him during the course of investigation and has elaborated about the same before the trial court.

19. Thereafter, evidence for the prosecution was closed and statement of appellant Gulab was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., wherein he has termed his implication false on account of enmity and has categorically stated that the deceased sustained burn injuries at his home. There was some dispute between the deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu and his wife Shamshad Bano about which he has no idea. Shamshad Bano too sustained burn injuries. Though the deceased was taken to the hospital by his family members but Shamshad Bano remained lying in the house. At the time of the incident, he was at his home in his village Kalahra, Police Station Kotwali Naraini, which place is at a distance of 25 Kms. away from the house of deceased. Shamshad Bano is his sister-in-law (Saali). He was not present on the spot. He was informed that a report has been lodged against him.

20. The defence in turn has filed certain documentary evidence. Certified copy of application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. moved by Raseedan mother of Shamshad Bano, is Exhibit Kha-1. Certified copy of order dated 16.06.2004 passed thereon by the CJM, Banda, is Exhibit Kha-2. Certified copy of complaint filed before Chief Judicial Magistrate, Banda is Exhibit Kha-3.

21. The defence also led oral evidence of one Ram Narain Gupta D.W.1, who at that point of time, was Chief Pharmacist, Sadar Hospital, Banda. He was produced by the accused-appellant for proving fact that Shamshad Bano, wife of deceased was medically examined at Sadar Hospital, Banda on 20.4.2004 at 6:15 p.m. by Dr. S.P. Gupta. He claims himself to be acquainted with the hand writing of Dr. S.P. Gupta. He has proved injury report of Shamshad Bano as Exhibit Kha-4, wherein following injury on person of Shamshad Bano has been noted on medical examination:

Superficial to deep burn on both side of right and left upper limb including right hand. Front of chest and abdomen, back of chest and adtidona perineum region also burnt. Front and back of both thighs burnt. Both buttocks also burnt.

22. In the opinion of the doctor, injury was caused by burn and she was kept under observation.

23. After hearing arguments pros and cons of the learned counsel for the parties the learned trial court declined to accept defence version and recorded conviction against him under Section 302 IPC and sentenced him to life imprisonment coupled with fine Rs.10,000/- with default stipulation that the accused-appellant will suffer additional one year simple imprisonment.

24. Consequently, this appeal.

25. We have been persuaded by learned counsel for the appellant that it is virtually a case of no evidence and motive assigned for committing the crime is altogether missing. The prosecution has failed to prove presence of the appellant on the spot and has tried to create false evidence just to rope in, the appellant in this case. It is surprising that the victim Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu put his thumb impression on the dying declaration- Exhibit Ka-7- purportedly recorded on 20.4.2004 in the evening, whereas, the written report on 21.4.2004 has been signed by the victim-Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu. This shows contrivance on part of the prosecution to falsely create evidence against the accused-appellant. Even oral testimony of prosecution witnesses of fact carries serious and substantial contradictions and, in case, each witness of fact is taken to be true within its exclusive sphere, the testimony of the other one becomes unnatural, wholly unreliable and unworthy of credit.

26. It is quite surprising that a person who allegedly sustained burn injuries over almost whole body will ever dictate such written report like the present one (Exhibit Ka-1). The first information report is afterthought and outcome of deliberation of the first informant in order to cover his own guilt towards his wife. Record shows that the injured was first taken to the police station Badausa and from where he was directed to be taken to hospital before lodging the first information report. It means that the alleged incident had come in the knowledge of the police around 8:00 a.m. on 20.4.2004 itself, therefore, interference of police from this stage onward cannot be ruled out. How the dying declaration was in fact arranged, has not been proved by the prosecution. The version of the incident contained in the first information report is entirely different from the one recorded in the so-called dying declaration, therefore, dying declaration itself is not admissible and not relevant under circumstances and the same can not be read in evidence. Circumstances and testimony will in variably lead one to believe that the dying declaration has been outcome of connivance between PW-1 father of informant on the one hand and the police/administrative authority, on the other hand dying declaration is highly tainted.

27. The testimony of scribe Lallu Khan PW-4 itself is overwhelmingly explicit and exposes its voluntariness on point that the deceased was not in a position to speak even a single word and he was unable to make any reply to any question put to him. It emerges from testimony that Mumtaz PW-1, the father of deceased was whispering in the ear of deceased which fact under circumstances signifies dramatic and fanciful pseudo gesture to originate false conversation, for the reason that the deceased never spelt any word before the scribe.

28. Similarly, Mehandi Hussain PW-3 is a partisan witness and his testimony is self contradictory. On material points, he testified not only presence of appellant near the place of occurrence at the relevant point of time, but he also stated that parents of deceased were present on the spot when he reached place of occurrence around 5.30 a.m. Obviously, both the parents were not present at the place of occurrence. Testimony of other witnesses of fact and particularly testimony of Mumtaz PW-1, the entire testimony on record, when cumulatively scrutinized and taken to be true, does not inspire confidence. The place where the FIR was written is highly doubtful. No bandage or dressing was ever seen by Lallu Khan PW-4, the scribe, on the person of the injured (Abdul Hafeez) while he wrote the report. Hollowness of the prosecution case is proved by fact that the prosecution though cleverly tried to manage the situation at its best to implicate the appellant in this case, but it failed miserably to produce the doctor who certified mental and physical fitness of the injured for recording his dying declaration. The prosecution failed to come out with any specific explanation of non production of doctor. Testimony on record suggests that the report had already been written around 3:00 p.m. on 20.4.2004 but FIR was lodged at 22.30 p.m., the same day and no worthy cause for such delay was given by the prosecution. The fact is that the incident of burning had come to the notice of the concerned police station at 8 a.m. in the morning of 20.4.2004 itself. There is every possibility of deliberation by police with the first informant side.

29. Learned counsel further chiseled his contention by adding that DW-1 has proved injury on the person of Shamshad Bano- the wife of deceased. Injury found on the person of Shamshad Bano remained unexplained, which under circumstances tantamounts to suppression of vital fact by the prosecution. The first information report also does not contain any such description, even the Investigating Officer remained aloof to this vital fact, whereas, the fact is that PW-3 in his examination-in-chief on page-18 of paper-book has specifically stated that he found Shamshad Bano badly burnt in the house along with Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu, who was also seriously burnt.

30. Learned counsel summed up that in such backdrop of facts, there is every possibility of false implication of the accused-appellant in this case and dying declaration becomes in herently weak and outcome of tutoring. The learned trial court did not appraise facts as well as relevant evidence on record and recorded casual finding of conviction which conviction is not sustainable in the eye of law.

31. Sri Saghir Ahmad, learned AGA while replying to aforesaid contention submitted that finding of conviction is based on material on record and the appraisal of facts and testimony is most consistent and is very much sustainable in the eye of law. The deceased himself has dictated the written report by help of Mumtaz- P.W.1. His dying declaration was promptly recorded without inordinate delay on 20.4.2004 around 6.10 p.m. itself and it has to be seen whether the burning was accidental or homicidal? It is obvious that act of burning was homicidal and was committed by none other than the accused-appellant. The dying declaration was recorded only after the doctor certified fitness of the injured and then only competent authority i.e. Naib Tehsildar recorded the dying declaration, which carries element of truth and appears to be voluntary and free from any flaw and there is no legal bar that such dying declaration cannot be base for conviction. In support of his claim, learned AGA relied on a decision of Hon'ble Apex Court reported in (2012) 4 Supreme Court cases 327 in the case of Bhajju @ Karan Singh vs. State of Madhya Pradesh.

32. Learned AGA further added that in such type of cases, like the present one certain in consistencies are bound to surface on account of varying circumstances, but these inconsistencies are neither substantial nor hitting at the root of the prosecution case. There is no motive for false implication of the accused appellant and sparing the real culprits.

33. We have also considered above rival submissions.

34. In view of rival contentions raised by both the sides and in the backdrop of particular facts and circumstances of this case the core consideration that engages our attention for determination of this appeal relates to fact whether the incident in fact was caused by the accused-appellant and dying declaration recorded in this case carries weight or its suffers from infirmity of its own?

35. At the inception, we may observe that in this case, there is no eye-witness account of the incident except evidence coming to fore from the injured/deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu himself. Therefore, attendant circumstances of this case running parallel to facts alleged also carry weight and are to be evaluated vis-a-vis testimony of prosecution witnesses of fact and particularly testimony of PW-1, PW-2, PW-3 and PW-4, respectively.

36. Before proceeding further with the case, it would be appropriate to take note of fact that in this case, the five children of PW-1 Mumtaj- who happens to be father of the deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu- were residing in the same house at the relevant time of the incident. The eldest among them was stated to be Iqbal 12-13 years old.

37. We may proceed with the crux of contents narrated in the first information report. It emerges out that on 19.04.2004, the deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu returned with his wife Shamshad from her Maiyka in village Kalahra within police station Kotwali Naraini and the same day in the evening/night at about 10:00 p.m., informant's brother-in-law Gulab along with Raheem came to his house and stayed there whole night. On the following morning (20.4.2004), the first informant/deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu went to attend natures call and when came back he saw Gulab and Shamshad Bano lying on a cot inside the house in compromising position, whereupon both Gulab and Shamshad Bano caught hold of him and in the meanwhile Raheem, who was standing outside also came in and Gulab poured kerosene oil on him with intention to kill him, Raheem tightened grip on him and his wife set him on fire by using matchstick due to which he sustained burn injuries. This report stops here with account of incident and does not contain any further development that followed incident of burning.

38. Obviously, this written report was lodged at police station Badausa at 22.30 hours on 21.4.2004 and pursuant thereto, the Investigating Officer also arrived on the spot and recorded statement of injured under Section 161 Cr.P.C., wherein the aforesaid contents of first information report have been repeated with same alacrity and a slight description also surfaced about onward development that followed burning incident till the patient was taken to Banda Hospital. The point worth consideration crops up that in such a case when written report was stated to have been written at the instance of the injured himself on 21.4.2004, then how and why the written report abruptly stopped by describing fact of fire being caused to the injured- thus causing serious burn injuries. Admittedly, written report does not entail such further description nor even any whisper about subsequent development that had already taken place a day prior to the writing of this report and particularly the fact of admission and treatment at District Hospital Banda where the dying declaration of the injured had been purportedly recorded. Even more surprising is the fact that statement of injured/deceased under Section 161 Cr.P.C. though recorded on 21.4.2004 subsequent to lodging of FIR was admittedly subsequent to recording of his dying declaration, but it describes the entire incident in substantially different manner than that was stated in the dying declaration- Exhibit Ka-7. Dying declaration disapproves involvement of three persons in the act of causing burn injuries and it selects only the appellant who ignited fire on him. Utterly surprising!

39. Obviously, three persons have been said to have committed the offence. All the three persons have been assigned specific role both in the first information report and in the statement of deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu under Section 161 Cr.P.C. that Gulab poured kerosene oil on the deceased, and Raheem, co-accused tightened his grip on the deceased and Shamshad Bano co-accused- wife of deceased- set him on fire by help of matchstick. This incident has been dittoed in written report (Exhibit Ka-1) and in the statement of deceased, but perusal of dying declaration Exhibit Ka-7 on the face describes the incident in a totally different manner ascribing different and specific role to only the present accused Gulab. Certainly, dying declaration distorted whole incident originally set-up by the prosecution.

40. Upon being questioned, as to how fire engulfed him (Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu), he has stated that it was around 6:00 a.m. he has returned after answering natures call when he saw his brother-in-law Gulab and his wife in compromising position, whereupon, the injured objected to the same, then his brother-in-law said to him that in case his wife is not sent with him, he will shoot him (deceased). Thereafter the accused poured kerosene oil on the deceased and set him on fire and both the accused Gulab and Shamshad Bano wife of the deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu left the room.

41. The prosecution could not come out with any categorical explanation about such anomaly and distortion in the description of incident appearing in the dying declaration and varying substantially and materially from the statement of the deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu himself recorded on 21.4.2004, subsequent to recording of dying declaration. This description of incident in dying declaration materially contradicts the description and style of incident alleged in the first information report, as well.

42. Admittedly, the wife of deceased also sustained severe burn injuries on several part/limbs of her person at the same time. She was medically examined at the hospital on 20.4.2004 at 6.50 p.m. She was brought there by her mother Raseedan. As per medical examination of Shamshad Bano, superficial to deep burn on both sides of right and left upper limb including right hand. Front of chest and abdomen, back of chest and altidoma perineum region also burnt. Front and back of both thighs burnt. Both buttocks also burnt. This injury report has been proved by DW-1. This report is indicative of concealment of vital fact by the prosecution.

43. There is no worthy cause to disbelieve fact of this medical examination in view of cogent testimony of the prosecution witnesses of fact that at the time of occurrence when PW-3 Mehandi Hussain reached at the place of occurrence he saw Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu and his wife Shamshad Bano lying over there in burnt condition. This testimony has surfaced in the examination-in-chief of PW-3. In his cross-examination, he has gone to the extent of justifying that he took Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu and Shamshad Bano in a bullock-cart and conveyed them over to Badausa Hospital and Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was alive but was unable to speak and his wife Shamshad Bano was also burnt and was unable to speak. He has stated on page-19 of paper book that at that point of time Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu appeared to be on the verge of death. At this stage, it would be relevant to consider factual aspect of capacity of injured Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu to speak or not to speak under attendant circumstances.

44. At this stage, we may consider testimony of prosecution witnesses of fact particularly PW-1, PW-2, PW-3 and PW-4. Mumtaj PW-1 has stated in his examination-in-chief that he left his home and returned only after 4:00 p.m. when only he was told by Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu that accused Raheem, Gulab and Shamshad Bano poured kerosene oil on him and set him on fire. He was also told that Shamshad and Gulab were seen by him (deceased) on one cot in compromising position. It means that condition of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was better at 4:00 p.m. on 20.4.2004.

45. Record reflects that, as per testimony of PW-8 Raj Bahadur, dying declaration was recorded by him after 6:00 p.m. and in his testimony, it has been specifically stated that Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was talking to persons present over there in the hospital. The point arises for consideration relating to certain possibilities that when the father of injured/deceased was also present in the hospital and injured was able to speak freely to the person present over there, then how and why, no attempt was made to get the first information lodged and no attempt, whatsoever was made by the police to record any statement of the injured under Section 161 Cr.P.C. at that particular point of time. Why this soothing opportunity was not utilized?

46. Obviously, at that point of time, the occurrence had come in the knowledge of not only the administration but also in the knowledge of the police station. We are very much dismayed at such intriguing aberration in statement of the injured deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and the dying declaration recorded by Naib Tehsildar PW-8. Dying declaration assigns role of causing burn injury and assigns role of setting him (Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu) on fire by accused Gulab alone. Admittedly, two different versions of same incident run parallel to each other without any proper explanation and one knows better that two parallel lines never converge on same point. It means that the things have not been made clear about serious development of the incident and subsequent thereto. Either of the two versions may be stressed and sought to be believed but not both the versions.

47. We may observe at the cost of repetition that this dying declaration was apparently recorded on 20.4.2004 in the evening between 6.05 P.M. to 6.20 P.M. but no first information report was lodged though the victim was in a position to speak freely but the first information report was lodged after a lapse of more than 24 hours on 21.4.2004 at 22.30 hours at police station Badausa. After recording of dying declaration, if the events had streamlined in its natural course then obviously the first information report would have contained at least whispering of dying declaration at district hospital, Banda but the first information report abruptly ended with the description of incident itself and nothing more on incidental aspect was referred in it.

48. At this stage, we may observe that FIR is not an encyclopaedia that each and every detail should be mentioned in it, but under facts and circumstances of the case, such omission becomes shrewd enough indicating deliberation. It is obvious that statement of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. includes larger chunk of details of the incident and the subsequent development, but it materially varies with the description of incident from the one contained in the FIR and in the dying declaration. Obviously, the prosecution failed through and through to meet such piquant situation - its own creation.

49. It is obvious that the doctor who certified mental condition of the injured for recording the dying declaration has not been produced by the prosecution whose testimony under facts and circumstances would have brought truth to the surface. It is strange that the name of the doctor who certified physical and mental condition does not figure in the dying declaration (Exhibit Ka-7).

50. It has been vehemently contended on behalf of the appellant that the dying declaration (Exhibit Ka-7) contains thumb impression of the deceased, whereas, the written report (Exhibit Ka-1), which was lodged after a lapse of about 30 hours of the recording of dying declaration was signed by the deceased. Then how and why the dying declaration was not so signed. The contention has been raised to the exactitude that this indicates manipulation by the prosecution in creating false evidence. In so far as this contention is concerned, obviously, self-contradictory facts point out something fishy and smack of manipulation in arranging dying declaration. However, we refrain from expressing our view on point that false evidence was tried to be created.

51. It is obvious that varying description of occurrence particularly in the statement of victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and in the dying declaration throws more doubt on the truthfulness of the dying declaration than it being voluntary and fair. Therefore, the fact that the deceased was in a fit state of mind and he gave such a dying declaration recorded by Naib Tehsildar gives room to doubt for such obvious reasons and the exclusive manner and style of incident was entirely changed in it. Thus dying declaration suffers from infirmity of its own being inconsistent with the foundation of the case particularly the manner of assault and act of causing burn injury.

52. On careful perusal of the entire record, we could not find either any such circumstance or testimony, which may impel us to allude to any inference on point that this dying declaration is either truthful and voluntary act of the deceased. No doubt, dying declaration is made by a person in extremities and he being on the verge of death is not supposed to meet his creator with a lie in his mouth. But this principle carries force only in the event when such dying declaration is free from any infirmity either of its own or as disclosed by the other evidence adduced in the case or the circumstances coming forth to the notice of Court. Therefore, caution prevails and requires corroboration of dying declaration. Peculiarity of this case and divulgence of parallel story, particularly manner of causing burn injury and involvement of accused persons whether one or many etc. requires due consideration, therefore, under circumstances we are unable to accept the dying declaration to be either voluntary or truthful version of the victim.

53. In such a backdrop of things, it was emergent on the part of prosecution to have produced the doctor to testify the capacity both mental and physical of the deceased whether he was fit to make statement or not at the relevant point of time when the dying declaration was recorded. But doctor was not produced and no worthy reason for non production of doctor has been given, either. For such lapse only the prosecution is to be blamed and none else. There are other inconsistencies appearing in the testimonies of this case, which also make big dent in the prosecution case.

54. On point of presence of both the accused Gulab and Raheem on the place of occurrence, there is no worthy testimony on record, which may establish their actual presence on the spot. In this regard, it is obvious that Mumtaz PW-1, father of the deceased had left the house at 4 a.m. on 20.4.2004 and had gone to sell cloth in the neighbouring village and returned only around 4 p.m. and then only he came to know about the incident. In his cross-examination, it emerges out that in the night of 19.04.2004/20.04.2004, his wife had gone to village Goshiyari for attending party. Thus, it is obvious that even wife of the first informant was not present in the house when the incident took place.

55. It has also come in the testimony of Mumtaz PW-1 in paragraph 5 on page 14 of paper book that apart from deceased Abdul Hafiz @ Pappu, he had three sons and two daughters more and the eldest son Iqbal was around 12-13 years old. As per his testimony, it comes out that all the five children did not tell anything to Mumtaj. Under circumstances, it is unbelievable that five children were inside the house when the burning incident took place in the morning still they did not spell anything about the incident. Both wife and husband had been badly burnt and they had been taken to the hospital even then children of Mumtaz were unaware of such development. This particular fact is exclusive circumstance of this case and it goes, out and out against the prosecution. Certainly, prosecution is concealing facts as to how the incident occurred.

56. The testimony of PW-3 Mehandi Hussain as given in his examination-in-chief and cross-examination on the whole shows that he testified fact that both Gulab and Raheem fled away from the place of occurrence and they were saying "Pappu ko aag laga di hay' and when he arrived, he saw Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu and Shamshad Bano lying over there in burnt condition and at that point of time, it was 5.30 a.m. in the morning and parents of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu were saying that Raheem tightened grip over Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu, Gulab poured kerosene oil and Shamshad Bano set Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu fire on. The fact of parents of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu (deceased) being present on the spot is altogether false, because PW-1 had gone to sell the cloth, when the incident took place and wife of PW-1 had gone to another village for attending party. But this witness has testified on presence of parents of injured/deceased on the spot and has spelt conversation done by them. He has stated that he went inside the house of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu. He was lying on the ground but he was unable to speak and so was condition of his wife Shamshad. He also stated that Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu seemed on the verge of death. He took Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu and Shamshad in a bullock-cart to hospital, Badausa and neither Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu nor Shamshad Bano uttered a single word on way to hospital.

57. He (PW-3) has also stated on page-19 of the paper book that mother of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was present on the spot when he reached at the house of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu. Again he testified that he stayed at Badausa till 8.30 a.m. and thereafter he returned with his bullock-cart. While he was in the process of returning, father of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu also arrived at Badausa. This testimony is improbable that Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu also arrived at Badausa around 8.30 A.M. because P.W.1 Mumtaz, father of deceased has admittedly stated to have returned home at 4.00 P.M.

58. Therefore, it is obvious that PW-3 has been brought in by the prosecution to establish presence of both the accused at the place of occurrence, but for his contradictory statement regarding presence of parents of injured first on the spot in the morning and then again around 8.30 a.m. at Badausa Hospital, he is not worthy of credit on point of testimony regarding presence of accused Gulab and Raheem on the spot. Therefore, presence of aforesaid accused on the spot is not established.

59. Here we have occasion to evaluate testimony of PW-4 Lallu Khan, scribe. He has also stated in his examination-in-chief that at the time of writing of the written report, Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was not in a position to utter even a single word. It has been further testified that by making some whispering in the ear of injured Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu, the father of the injured Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu dictated the report to the scribe. However, Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu did not utter a single word in the presence of this scribe.

60. Obviously, testimony of this witness (PW-4) also supports fact that Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was unable to speak at the time of writing of the written report. His cross-examination on page-22 of the paper book is quite relevant, for various reasons. It emerges out from perusal of the same that Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was burnt all over body then the point is that how could he put his signature on the written report when he was wholly burnt and he did not make any signature on the dying declaration recorded almost 30 hours before lodging of FIR.

61. In this context, perusal of first information report shows that signature of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was not brought on the proper place meant for it but it was made on the middle of page at lower end. May be that signed paper of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was obtained for the purpose of writing such report as Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was able to make such specific signature full length, then how and why such signature was not obtained 28 hours ago on the dying declaration, which was recorded prior to the lodging of FIR. FIR was lodged at 10.30 p.m. on 21.4.2004 and the dying declaration was recorded on 20.4.2004 between 6.05 to 6.20 p.m.

62. Further, this scribe came to know about the burning incident only at the instance of father of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu and no one else told him about any such incident. He has again stated that Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu did not speak even in least during his stay. The utter surprise is that he has stated that he cannot say if the injured was able to say anything and he cannot say whether the injured understood him or not while he talked to him and the last line of cross-examination of PW-4 carries wide implication, which pertains to fact that whatever was whispered in the ear of deceased Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu by his father neither nodded in the affirmative nor in the negative. Then obviously, this last line makes substantial dent in the written report itself.

63. Above scrutiny of fact and testimony is fair enough to establish that the written report is not description of injured Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu. Obviously, upto this stage, we have every reason to believe that Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was not able to utter any single word upto this stage. Then how such dying declaration like the present one contained in Exhibit Ka-7 was recorded, becomes a guess to be answered by the prosecution. This question mark on the dying declaration being voluntary and truthful could have been proved by the testimony of doctor, who certified mental and physical condition of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu for recording dying declaration. But we have discussed above no doctor was ever produced. Therefore, this dying declaration also does not beacon any guidance to arrive at correct position. We can express that such a dying declaration cannot be said to be voluntary or truthful version of the deceased. In this peculiar background, the aforesaid citation of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bhajju vs. Karan Singh (supra) does not lend any support to the case of prosecution.

64. Not only this, in so far as lodging of the written report is concerned, but also we come across testimony that PW-2 Rasool Khan took the written report to the police station on 20.4.2004, as testified in his examination-in-chief. He has stated on page-16 of the paper book that he reached Badausa Hospital around 8:00 a.m. and 10 minutes prior to that they had reached the police station. Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was examined by the doctor at Badausa and was referred for Banda. Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was wholly burnt and thereafter Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was admitted in district hospital, Banda, from where he was referred to Kanpur.

65. However, he has stated on the same page that despite burn injuries being caused to Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu, he was speaking as usual. But this testimony, when read in line with the other testimony of witnesses of fact as above, is rendered wholly unreliable. On page-17 in the last paragraph of his cross-examination, PW-2 has stated that Mumtaz got written report scribed by Lallu Khan and then he gave written report to him and this report was written at Badausa Hospital and was received by him at 9 a.m. and thereafter he took this report to the police station.

66. At this stage, we may again refer to testimony of PW-4 Lallu Khan. He has stated that on 21.4.2004 when he was called by father of informant, Mumtaz at Badausa for writing the report and he arrived at Badausa near post office where some tea shops were being run in the vicinity and there at the dictation of father of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu, he wrote the report and after the report was written, Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu made his signature on it. Under circumstances, this statement tells a different story as to how the injured reached at the post office and what was his condition when he made his signature on written report Exhibit Ka-1.

67. In the cross-examination, he (PW-4) has stated that the whole physique of the injured was burnt and the report was written at 3.00 p.m. In the last line of his testimony as we have already observed, this witness cannot say whether the injured understood him or not or whether he was in a position to understand anything or not. Relevant query arises that PW-2 says that this written report was got written at Badausa Hospital and was handed over to him around 9:00 a.m. for giving the same at the police station (Page No.-17 of paper book) and PW-4 says that he wrote this report at 3.00 p.m. on 21.4.2004 near post office then it is obvious that neither PW-2 nor PW-4 are worthy of credit. What a surprise that no injury report of injured Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu has been brought on record.

68. On close scrutiny of testimony on record and facts of this case we come across certain unexplained facts, particularly unnatural conduct of prosecution witnesses, which under circumstances remained unanswered- by the prosecution.

69. It is admitted fact and circumstance that Mumtaz P.W.1 had left home on 20.4.2004 around 4.00 a.m. for selling cloth and had gone over to the neighbouring village and the incident took place on 20.4.2004 around 6.00 a.m. After the incident a number of persons had arrived and accompanied the injured/deceased to the hospital. It was around 8 a.m. in the morning (of 20.4.2004). But no one cared to inform about the incident to Mumtaz who was not far away from his village. His (PW-1) testimony on the whole reveals that he returned home at 4.00 P.M. on 20.4.2004, when only he came to know about the incident. Then he went to the hospital to meet his injured son Abdul Hafeez. His son told him about the incident in the hospital. It means the injured, at that point of time, was mentally and physically fit to talk to people, but there is no whisper, on record, that he was so fit to indulge in talk- when in such precarious situation (superficial to deep burn on whole body except both feet). This particular aspect signifies well thought out manipulative plan of some interested person like Mumtaz himself to falsely rope in- the appellant- by creating absurd story of physical indulgence.

70. Further, testimony of Constable Shiv Dayal, PW-5 who made entries in the concerned Check FIR and GD on 21.4.2004 at police station Badausa stated in his cross examination that the injured was never taken to the hospital after burn injury was caused to him. This testimony is in sheer contrast to what has been stated by PW-2 (as appearing in his cross-examination of page 16 of the paper book) that 10 minutes prior to 8 a.m. they had reached the police station. It means that police had prior information of the incident around 8 a.m. on 20.4.2004 itself. Therefore, it is obvious that all the prosecution witnesses have tried to improve on all aspects whether it be substantial or trivial but on all counts, their testimony erodes at the roots of prosecution case. Moreover a holistic view of their testimony never inspires any confidence and does not appear to be consistent, but eccentric. Their testimony is full of embellishment and material contradictions. Therefore, prosecution witnesses of fact are not worthy of credit.

71. At this juncture, we may count on motivating cause responsible for the incident and so alleged by the prosecution. Motive behind the crime was stated to be the 'sight' of physical indulgence between Gulab and Shamshad Bano when both were seen in compromising position on a bed by the deceased and this particular fact was -quod erat demonstrandum i.e.- which was to be demonstrated- for the prosecution.

72. The legal ontology as the motivating cause of the incident bases its claim in the act of physical indulgence between Gulab and Shamshad Bano inside the room on a bed on 20.4.2004. It is noticeable that apart from statement of deceased, recorded as dying declaration, not a single word has been spelt on 'such indulgence' or sustained illicit relationship by any of the prosecution witnesses. But this phenomenal claim, in form of physical indulgence, made by the prosecution falls flat for reason that prosecution has not been able to establish positively presence of appellant-Gulab- on the spot at the relevant point of time inside the room - the place of occurrence.

73. Further noticeable, that we have already disowned sanctity of dying declaration made by Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu for various reasons. Since evidence on record unerringly points out that presence of accused Gulab on the spot has not been proved satisfactorily by the prosecution, the attempt so made by the prosecution has boomeranged and has eroded credibility of the prosecution witnesses itself. It emerges from testimony that presence of only Shamshad Bano and Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu was there on the spot. Therefore, we can approve presence on the spot only of these two persons as the only injured persons in the incident and here we accentuate that factum of burn injury caused to Shamshad Bano in the same occurrence on 20.4.2004 is shrouded in mystery. Indeed, the prosecution failed to unravel the truth. This abysmal silence and non-explanation of injuries on person of Shamshad Bano has proved fatal for the prosecution. Non-explanation of injuries on person of Shamshad Bano by the prosecution stands rectified and substituted by the answer given by Shamshad Bano in her statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., regarding the cause of injury- that Abdul Hafeez tried to set her on fire and in the process he got burnt. Specific explanation given in statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. by Shamshad Bano thus supplies the lacuna created by the prosecution. Nature and magnitude of burn injuries (Exhibit Kha-4) caused to Shamshad Bano are not trivial but extending over several parts/limbs of her person.

74. It appears that theory of physical indulgence was deliberately introduced in order to establish presence of Gulab on the spot, that is why we see deviation in description of act of indulgence as appearing in the FIR on the one hand and in the dying declaration, on the other hand. Description of absorbing physical indulgence between Gulab and Shamshad Bano is apparent both in the FIR and in the statement of the deceased, under Section 161 Cr.P.C., whereas, this absorbing physical indulgence has been confined in the dying declaration, to the extent that both Shamshad Bano and Gulab were lying together on the bed when both were 'sighted' by the deceased- Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu. This aberration creates major and substantial contradiction in the statement of deceased under Section 161 Cr.P.C. (recorded on 21.4.2004) and the dying declaration recorded on 20.4.2004 given by the deceased. This apparent twist in the two statements smacks of lot of deliberation done by P.W.1 Mumtaz- because he happens to be father of the deceased and he may have an eye on the property of Shamshad Bano which she would inherit in her capacity as such, therefore, imputation of absorbing physical indulgence was deliberately made with intent to disinherit her.

75. For such specific reasons fact of physical indulgence as cause generic becomes obfuscated and obscure and loses legal significance. In this way claim of illicit relationship evokes no response from us.

76. Now, we may observe at this stage, that even the site plan does not indicate as to where the accused Gulab and Raheem stayed whole night on 19.4.2004 in the house of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu when they had arrived at 10.00 P.M. Admittedly, Mumtaj has five children excluding Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu- the deceased- but no intention or mark has been made in the site plan, Exhibit Ka-6 as to where was their position inside house during night. Non mention of such aspect may on the face appear to be of little importance, but it reflects on some manipulation being made in the prosecution story and presence of accused on the spot. Had they (Gulab and Raheem) been present and stayed in the house on 19.4.2004 then the I.O. could have easily mentioned the same.

77. We may also observe that as per prosecution testimony itself, Shamshad Bano also sustained burn injuries and her medical examination report Exhibit Kha-4 cannot be given a go-bye on the asking and which carries importance in proportion equal to the injuries of the deceased. How she sustained burnt injuries on large part of her physique, has not been explained by the prosecution.

78. Even the Investigating Officer has tried to evade the question of presence of Shamshad Bano when PW-7 S.I. R.D. Chaudhary has stated in his cross-examination on page-26 that he could not find the wife of injured on the spot as she had absconded. He also stated that he tried to know whereabouts of injured's wife on 22.4.2004. But on being questioned by the defence about the places where he made any such search and mentioned places in the case diary, whereupon he relented and stated that he did not write the places where he made search for wife of the injured and the extent of falsity has been accelerated by stating that during course of investigation, he did not come across fact that wife of the injured has sustained burn injury.

79. Thus, the entire prosecution story appears to be an outcome of some dramatic incident and the real cause of incident remains unknown to all. Entire testimony of prosecution witnesses of fact rules out possibility of any speaking gesture ever made by the deceased while injured and alive. It appears that he was not in a position to utter any single word but the prosecution hastily tried to prove the same by adopting clever manoeuvring both in the hospital and at the police station but that attempt itself proved fatal to the prosecution case. May be that the statement of the deceased recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C.- when he was alive be lapsus lingue a slip of the tongue but that aspect when compared with the substance and contents of dying declaration strikes astonishment that a person in extremis would ever make such contradictory statements to two different authorities, therefore, we are unable to infer any possibility of lapsus lingue in case of the injured.

80. Thus, presence of the appellant on the spot is not proved. Injury to Shamshad Bano remained unexplained. Specific presence of parents of injured at the place of occurrence at the relevant point of time (occurrence) is not established. The five children of Mumtaj- PW-1 who were residing in the same house have neither been examined nor their statement recorded nor any worthy explanation given for such inaction by the prosecution. The anomaly in the writing of the written report is alarming and the varying description regarding mental and physical fitness of injured as appearing in testimony of witnesses of fact, is also highly doubtful. Role of the Investigating Officer, upon careful perusal of the testimony of the prosecution witnesses, is found to be suspicion and testimony of the prosecution witnesses on the whole is full of embellishment.

81. In view of above prolix discussion, we are of categorical acknowledgment of fact that the trial court while appraising facts and testimony on record, failed to take note of actual purport of the circumstances qua testimony and facts and erroneously recorded finding of conviction which on the face appears to be vague and perverse. Moreso, on the same evidence, two co-accused persons, namely, Shamshad Bano and Raheem were allowed to be exonerated of the charge, whereas, the accused-appellant Gulab has been convicted on the piece of same evidence placing reliance on dying declaration of Abdul Hafeez @ Pappu which is dangerous and fatal, because dying declaration in the absence of some substantive corroboration in this case suffers from inherent infirmity of its own and as such not reliable and on the face inconsistent and incongruous.

82. Consequently, the contention raised by the learned counsel for the appellant carries force and the same is accorded approval by us. The appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order of conviction dated 28.07.2006 passed by the Sessions Judge, Banda, in Sessions Trial No.26 of 2005, State Vs. Gulab and others) arising out of Crime no.54 of 2004, Police Station Badausa, District Banda is hereby set aside.

83. In this case, appellant is in jail. He be set free forthwith, if not wanted in connection with any other case after complying with the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C.

84. Let a copy of this order be certified to the concerned trial court for its intimation and follow up action.

Held

The High Court allowed the appeals and acquitted the appellants Ayyub and Shaukeen, holding that the conviction under Sections 366/34 and 376(2)(g) IPC was unsustainable. The Court found that the FIR was lodged after an unexplained delay of 20 days, which cast serious doubt on the genesis of the prosecution case and created the possibility of embellishment and false implication due to enmity. It further held that the prosecutrix's testimony was not trustworthy, as it contained material omissions and contradictions regarding the alleged kidnapping, administration of stupefying substance, confinement, and rape. The medical evidence also did not support the prosecution case since no injuries were found and the prosecutrix was above 18 years of age. Accordingly, the trial court's findings were held to be erroneous and against the weight of evidence, and the conviction and sentence were set aside.

Jai Prakash Singh v. State of Bihar, 2012 (77) ACC 245
Khedu Mohton v. State of Bihar, AIR 1971 SC 66

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pratyush Kumar, J.)

1. The aforesaid appeals filed separately on behalf of accused-appellants are directed against the judgment and orders dated 7.11.2014 passed by the First Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Saharanpur in S.T. No.402 of 2012 (State Vs. Mumtaj @ Muntyaz and others), whereby the appellants have been convicted under sections 366/34, 376(2)(G), IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment of 10 years each on both the counts. They have also been fined with Rs.2,000/- each on both the counts. In default of payment of fine they have been directed to undergo further rigorous imprisonment of two years on both the counts. Both the appellants, by the same judgment, have been acquitted from the charges framed against them under sections 363, 323/149 and 120B, IPC. Non-appellants/co-accused Mumtaj @ Muntyaz and Shaukeen S/o Mannu have also been acquitted from all the charges framed against them.

2. Heard learned counsel for the appellants, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record of the case.

3. The facts of the present case giving rise to the present appeal may be summarized as under:-

4. That Yaseen gave a written report dated 13.5.2011 addressed to S.H.O. P.S. Deoband, District Saharanpur stating therein that on 23.4.2011 at 7.00 a.m. his daughter (hereinafter referred as the victim) had gone to attend the call of nature in the grove nearby the village. When she was on her way towards Talheri, appellant Shaukeen tricked her to inhale stupefying substance, co-accused Mumtaj alias Chhota, Nakli, Ayyub and Shaukeen S/o Mannu took his daughter in unconscious state to an unknown destination by Ambassador Car of white colour. Sattar, Shahbaz and other villagers had seen the incident and chased them, but they succeeded in escaping from there. He made an extensive search for his daughter and also informed the police of P.S. Deoband, but his report was not lodged. He prayed for suitable action against the accused persons.

5. At this check FIR was scribed at P.S. Deoband on 13.5.2011 at 10.30 a.m., Case Crime No.295/11 under sections 363, 366, IPC was registered and investigation was handed over to S.I. Indrapal Singh, who examined the witnesses, inspected the spot, arrested the accused persons and recovered the victim got her medically examined, thereafter her statement under Section 164, Cr.P.C. was recorded and charge sheet was submitted.

6. The appellants, co-accused Mumtaj @ Muntyaz, Shaukeen S/o Mannu were charged under sections 366/149, 323/149, 376(2)(G), IPC jointly. They were further charged under sections 363, 120B, IPC. They denied the charges and claimed to be tried.

7. In order to prove the charges on behalf of prosecution besides documentary evidence eight witnesses were examined. In the defence one witness was examined.

8. Case of the defence was of simple denial.

9. Yaseen, PW-1 is the first informant and father of the victim. He has proved written report, Exhibit Ka-1 and substantiated the prosecution version.

10. Victim, PW-2 has stated that she knew Shaukeen, Nakli, Ayyub, Mumtaj and Shaukeen S/o Mannu. Two years ago when she was going to relieve herself in the field nearby the grove, Shaukeen asked her to help in lifting a bundle of the grass. When she helped him, he tricked her to smell something to make her semi-unconscious. Other accused took her in the Ambassador Car of white colour. They had taken her to Ambala, kept on a Rathan, there Nakli, Ayyub and Shaukeen had committed rape with her, others used to beat her. When after a month Shaukeen S/o Mumtaj brought her to Deoband railway station, they were caught by the police. She has proved her statement recorded under section 164, Cr.P.C, Exhibit Ka-3.

11. Abdul Sattar, PW-3 has supported the prosecution version.

12. Constable Dharampal Singh, PW-4 is the scribe of check FIR. He has proved the check FIR, Exhibit Ka-4, copy of the report of the General Diary, Exhibit Ka-5.

13. Dr. Surendra Singh, PW-5 is the Radiologist under whose supervision she was X-rayed. He has proved X-ray report, Exhibit Ka-6.

14. Dr. Mamta Sodhi, PW-6 has medically examined the victim on 23.5.2011. She has found no mark of injury either on her person or on her private parts. She was found by her to be habitual to sexual intercourse. She has proved medical examination report, Exhibit Ka-7 and supplementary report Exhibit Ka-8. She has opined that age of the victim was above 18 years.

15. Sanjeev Kumar, PW-7 has proved the extract of family register, Exhibit Ka-9.

16. S.I. Indrapal Singh, PW-8 is the Investigating Officer. He gave details of the steps taken in the course of investigation and proved site plans and charge sheet, Exhibit Ka-10 to Ka-14.

17. The accused persons in their statements recorded under Section 313, Cr.P.C. have denied the facts stated by the prosecution witnesses.

18. In the defence Faiyaz Ahmad, DW-1 has been examined, who has deposed that Ayyub was teacher in Almahadul Islami Institution. On 23.4.2011 he was present in the Institution and stayed in the hostel.

19. Learned trial Judge after hearing the arguments had convicted the present appellants and acquitted rest as above.

20. In support of the appeal the learned counsel for the appellants have submitted that there was love affair between the appellant and the victim. All four accused were father and sons. Due to enmity they have been falsely implicated. It was not natural and probable that father and sons, real brothers together would commit rape on the same time with the same girl. His next argument is that FIR was lodged with 20 days' delay without any explanation. His third argument is that medical evidence does not support the prosecution version. His fourth argument is that there are material contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses.

21. On behalf of State-Respondent these arguments have been repelled and it has been submitted that learned trial Judge has recorded correct findings of facts, well substantiated from the record, he has given cogent reasons in support thereof. Appeals are devoid of merit and deserves to be dismissed. During the arguments following points for determination arise:-

1. Whether FIR was lodged with delay without satisfactory explanation, if so its effect;

2. Whether evidence of prosecutrix is trustworthy, if so its effect;

3. Whether case of defence is made out on the test of preponderance of probability and judgment suffers from illegal findings.

Point No.1

22. According to prosecution version, prosecutrix was kidnapped on 23.4.2011 at 7.00 a.m. FIR was lodged on 13.5.2011 at 10.30 a.m. Explanation tendered by the first informant is that after coming to know of kidnapping of his daughter he had gone to police station, gave the written report, which was lodged. Subsequently, on 23.5.2011 when her daughter was recovered, he gave another written report.

23. Question is whether to accept this explanation or consider the plea raised by the defence. Hon'ble Apex Court has attached great importance to prompt lodging of FIR vide Jai Prakash Singh Vs. State of Bihar, 2012 (77) ACC 245. In the case of Khedu Mohton and others Vs. State of Bihar, AIR 1971 SC 66 Hon'ble Apex Court has given way to verify the truthfulness of the explanation for the delay in FIR tendered by the prosecution. According to the Hon'ble Apex Court it is a simple thing to contend, but it has to be established by calling for the necessary records from the police station to substantiate the explanation.

24. In the present case during the cross examination first informant has claimed that first written report was handed over by him at the police station. It was very easy for the prosecution to call the clerk constable, who was at the duty on that day at the relevant time, but this has not been done. In such a serious matter prosecution has not cared to produce the link evidence, in absence thereof I do not think the explanation given by the first informant, PW-1 is satisfactory, thus, FIR has been lodged with great delay, which admits possibility of embellishments, consultation and on account of enmity false implication. The effect of this is very genesis of prosecution version becomes doubtful. Point no.1 is decided accordingly.

25. Yaseen, PW-1, father of the first informant has not seen the occurrence. Abdul Sattar, PW-3 has claimed to have seen the incident of kidnapping. He is real elder brother of the first informant Yaseen that means uncle of the victim. Had he seen the occurrence, he would have raised the alarm. Abadi was near. It was not difficult to chase the kidnappers by taking help of the police, but in the present case he pretends to chase the car on foot. Thereafter informed his younger brother, who did nothing as found it at point no.1, therefore, evidence of Abdul Sattar is of no significance.

26. Only statement of prosecutrix requires careful scrutiny. She had not disclosed the fact to the Magistrate, that she was going to the field to attend the call of nature. This omission also finds place in her statement recorded under Section 161, Cr.P.C. Other material omission is that she had not stated before the Investigating Officer that she was tricked into inhaling some stupefying substance before she was kidnapped. She has stated in her statement recorded under section 164, Cr.P.C. that after she went to help Shaukeen in lifting a bundle of grass, he closed her mouth and made her sit in the car. Here also she has not stated about inhalation of stupefying substance. Her statements about sojourn at Ambala are also in consistence. According to her, Mumtaj and Shaukeen son of Mumtaj did not say anything to her. She was found at Ambala by her uncle Sattar. At that time she was with Shaukeen. These omissions and contradictions touch the prosecution version on the point of kidnapping, her sojourn in confinement and commission of rape. When asked about contradictory statements, she has stated that police had threatened her to depose so. I do not think her explanation is correct. Police has shown her to have been recovered by them at railway station, Deoband with Shaukeen. On material facts statement of prosecutrix is contradictory as also inconsistent.

27. Medical evidence consisting of statement of Dr. Mamta Sodhi, PW-6 along with exhibit Ka-7, Ka-8 reveals that there was no mark of external injury on her person. No mark of injury was found on her private parts. She was found habitual to sexual intercourse. She was aged above 18 years of age. When considered in the light of arguments submitted by learned counsel for the appellants, the grounds raised by them appear to be well substantiated and I do not think statement of prosecutrix, PW-2 is trustworthy. Learned trial Judge has not appreciated her evidence in accordance with law and material on record. Point no.2 is decided accordingly.

28. Though in view of findings recorded in reference to point nos.1 & 2, this point does not require to be adjudicated upon, however, to place correct factual position on record I notice that co-accused Nakli had lodged an FIR about the kidnapping of the niece of Mumtaj against Kallu. Though the first informant has denied that he had lodged the first information report at the behest of Kallu, but his simple denial when taken into consideration with the observations made in reference to point nos.1 & 2 is examined, his denial appears to be empty denial with no truth therein.

29. As above, appeals have substance and the impugned judgment is full of erroneous findings, against weight of material on record and law. It cannot be sustained, hence, appeals are allowed. Impugned judgment and orders as also conviction and sentences of the appellants are set aside. Appellants Ayyub and Shaukeen are acquitted from the charges framed under sections 366/34, 376(2)(g), IPC. They are in jail. If they are not wanted in any other case, they be released forthwith provided they file a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount in view of the provisions contained in section 437-A, Cr.P.C.

30. Office is directed to communicate this order to the court concerned and to send back the record to the court below.

Criminal Appeal No.- 5421 Of 2009

Jitendra Singh Gangwar @ Nanku ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellant:
Sarvesh, Durvijai Singh, Kamlesh Kumar Gangwar, S.S.Chauhan

Counsel for Respondent:
Govt.Advocate

Held

The High Court allowed the criminal appeal and set aside the conviction under Section 302 IPC, acquitting the appellant Jitendra Singh Gangwar @ Nanku by extending the benefit of doubt. The Court held that the prosecution failed to prove the charge beyond reasonable doubt, as the alleged eyewitnesses PW-1 and PW-2 were found unreliable and appeared to be chance/interested witnesses, whose testimonies materially contradicted their statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. The Court further noted that the site plan did not clearly show the exact place from where the shot was fired, no blood marks were found at the alleged spot despite the injured allegedly lying there for about 30 minutes, and the prosecution theory of one gunshot was inconsistent with medical evidence showing two entry and two exit wounds. On cumulative appreciation of evidence, serious doubts arose in the prosecution story, and therefore the conviction was held unsustainable.

1. By way of instant Criminal Appeal, accused-appellant Jitendra Singh Gangwar @ Nanku son of Babu Ram Gangwar resident of Kanasi, Police Station Nawabganj, District Farrukhabad, has challenged the judgment and order of conviction dated 21.08.2009 passed by the Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Farrukhabad, in Special Sessions Trial No. 20 of 1997 arising out of Case Crime No. 02 of 1997 under section 302 I.P.C., Police Station Nawabganj, District Farrukhabad, whereby the appellant has been sentenced to life imprisonment coupled with fine Rs.10,000/-. The half of amount of fine shall be paid to the successor of the deceased Vijay Singh @ Vijendra.

2. Heard Sri Arun Kumar Shukla Advocate assisted by Sri Anvir Singh, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri J.K. Upadhyay learned AGA for the State and also perused the record.

3. The brief facts giving rise to this appeal as unfolded from the record indicate that the first informant Satya Prakash son of Dafedar resident of Kanasi, Police Station Nawabganj, District Farrukhabad, lodged written report on 03.01.1997 at 6.20 P.M. at Police Station Nawabganj, alleging therein that the appellant Jitendra Singh @ Nandu son of Babu Ram Gangwar resident of Kanasi, Police Station Nawabganj, District Farrukhabad, was insisting 3-4 days prior to the incident (in question), that informant's brother Vijay Singh should accompany him to Delhi with him. On refusal to go to Delhi, he (accused) objected. On 03.01.1997 at about 5.00 P.M., Jintendra Singh climbed on his roof and from where, he used vituperative language and threatened to life, whereupon informant's brother came out of his house and reached in front of Jitendra Singh's house in the street, when Jitendra Singh possessing country made pistol fired on his brother, which fire hit Vijai Singh in stomach of his brother due to which he fell down on the ground. In the meanwhile, informant's elder brother Ram Prakash, his Bhabhi-Sajeevan, Bhagyawati and a number of other villagers arrived on the spot. They challenged the appellant whereupon the appellant secured his escape good possessing country made pistol in his hand. First informant took his injured brother to the police station. Report be lodged and appropriate action be taken. This written report is Ext. Ka-1.

4. Relevant entries were made in the concerned check first information report the very same day at 6.20 P.M. at Case Crime no.02 of 1997 under section 307 I.P.C. and section 3(2) (5) SC/ST Act at Police Station Nawabganj, District Farrukhabad. Check FIR is Ext. Ka. 2.

5. On the basis of entries so made in the concerned check FIR, relevant entries were made in the concerned G.D. and a case was registered against appellant at aforesaid case crime number under the aforesaid Sections of I.P.C. as well as SC/ST Act, respectively. Copy whereof is Ext. Ka-3.

6. Investigation of the case was taken over by Shri Avaish Ahmad PW-4, who proceeded to the spot, enquired into the matter and at the instance of Smt. Sajeevan and villagers, prepared site plan Ext. Ka. 4. Since condition of injured was serious, he was referred to Kanpur and his statement could not be recorded. The statement of injured was recorded only on 17.01.1995.

7. Relevant to mention that medical examination of Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh was done by Dr. S.C. Tiwari, at Dr. R.M.L. Hospital, Farrukhabad on 03.01.1997 at 7.40 P.M. wherein following injuries were noted:

(1) A gunshot wound of entry 0.75 cm x 0.75 cm x not probed in epigestric region 5 cm above umbilicus, margins are lacerated ecchymosed and inverted, charring is present bleeding is present.

(2) A gun shot wound of exit 1 cm x 0.75 cm x not probed on right gluteul region, margins are lacerated, ecchymosed & everted. Bleeding present. Adv. x-ray.

(3) A gun shot wound of entry 0.5 cm x 0.5 cm x communicating to wound of entry on inner part of thumb on left hand, margins are lacerated, ecchymosed and inverted, bleeding present . Adv. X-ray.

(4) A gunshot wound no exists 0.8 cm x 0.8 cm x communicating to wound of entry on outer part of thumb of left hand, margins are lacerated, ecchymosed and everted. Bleeding present. Adv. Xray.

8. General condition of patient was poor. Patient was admitted. Injury was kept under observation caused by fire arm. Duration was fresh. Injury report is Ext. Ka- 6.

9. Thereafter, the condition of the injured victim became serious. He was referred to Hallet Hospital Kanpur. Investigating Officer sent Sub Inspector S.S. Mishra to enquire from injured and Smt. Bhagyawati. It transpired that Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh died on 10.02.1997. Therefore, relevant entries were made in the concerned case diary. The investigating Officer also converted the case from section 307 I.P.C. to section 302 I.P.C.

10. Record reflects that in this case, as soon as information of death of injured Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh was given to the concerned police station at Kanpur, Pooran Singh PW-6, who at that point of time on 11.02.1997, was posted as Sub Inspector, Police Station Swaroop Nagar. As per testimony of Pooran Singh PW-6, he held inquest of Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh on 11.02.1997 which is Ext. Ka-7. This witness has also proved preparation of various papers for sending dead body of deceased to mortuary at Kanpur, for post mortem examination, where post mortem examination on dead body of Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh was conducted on 11.02.1997 at 3.45 P.M. The doctor found as many as five ante mortem injures which are extracted herein below:

(1) Stitched wound 20 cm long, stitch present on abdomen, wound extending from xiphisternum to pubic region in middle.

(3) Stitched wound 1-1/2 with drainage tube on right side 6 cm away right side of umbilicus.

(4) Bed sore present below hip bone.

(5) Stitch wound neck 2 cm size on right side of neck 2 cm below right ankle of mandible.

11. In the opinion of the doctor, cause of death was due to shock and septicemia. The post mortem examination report is Ext. Ka.-12.

12. The Investigating Officer after completion of investigation filed charge sheet against the accused appellant under section 302 I.P.C. and section 3(2)(V) SC/ST Act, which is Ext. Ka-5 on record.

13. Thereafter, the case of appellant was committed to the court of Session from where it was made over for trial to the aforesaid trial Court. The trial court after hearing the appellant on point of charge recorded its satisfaction for prima facie case and framed charges under section 302 I.P.C. and section 3(2)(5) SC/ST Act. Charges were read over and explained to the appellant who denied charges and opted for trial. Thereafter the prosecution in order to prove guilt was asked to adduce its testimony whereupon the prosecution produced in all 6 witnesses. A brief reference of the same is hereunder.

14. Satya Prakash PW-1 has claimed himself eyewitness and has proved written report Ext. Ka-1. Sajeevan PW-2 like PW-1, claims herself to be eye witness of the incident. Constable Lajja Ram PW-3 has made relevant entries in check FIR and concerned general diary. Avais Ahmad PW-4 is Investigating Officer of this case. He has described the manner in which the investigation of the case was completed and has also proved the site plan Ext. Ka-4. He has proved charge sheet Ext. Ka-5 filed against the appellant. Dr. S.C. Tiwari PW-5 has examined the injured Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh and has proved injury report Ext. Ka-6. S.I. Pooran Singh PW-6 held proceeding for preparation of inquest report of deceased Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh and he has proved the same as Ext. Ka- 7 besides proving a number of various papers prepared by him for sending the dead body for the post mortem examination.

15. Thereafter the evidence for prosecution was closed and statement of accused was recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein he has specifically stated that he did not vote for Ram Prakash in the election of Gram Pradhan, therefore, he has been falsely implicated in this case. The defence led ocular testimony of one Mukesh Kumar DW-1.

16. The trial court after considering the materials on record, disagreed with the contention of defence that the accused is innocent and passed the impugned judgment and order of conviction and imposed aforesaid sentence against the accused- appellant.

17. Consequently, this appeal.

18. It has been vociferously claimed on behalf of the appellant that the appellant is innocent and he has not committed any offence. He never fired on the victim-deceased. The incident was not witnessed by any person. Claim has been made to the effect that all the prosecution witnesses of fact are altogether false. The prosecution witnesses of fact being relatives of deceased are chance witnesses and, therefore, their testimony is partisan besides being contradictory to each other. The site plain Ext. Ka-4 does not show specifically the place from where the appellant is stated to have fired on the deceased. No blood marks, whatsoever were found on the spot where the deceased was lying for about ½ hour.

19. The fact is that the deceased himself was possessing country made pistol for protection of his money and while he was opening and closing this pistol, it went off causing injury to the deceased. The motive imputed for committing crime is absurd and weak. Statement of prosecution witnesses of fact- PW-1 and PW-2 namely Satya Prakash and Sajeevan, respectively is in material contrast to their statement given before the trial court and to the Investigation Officer under section 161 Cr.P.C. The appellant has no reason to cause death of the deceased Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh.

20. The learned AGA while refuting the aforesaid submissions, elaborated that the case of the persecution has been consistently established and proved against the accused before the trial court by cogent evidence given by the prosecution witnesses of fact and by entirety of testimony. Place of occurrence is in neighbor-hood, in-front of house of the accused and the same is certain. There is no ambiguity regarding identity of place of occurrence. The Investigating Officer, prepared the site plan at the instance of PW-2 Sajeevan, Bhagyawati and villagers. Both Satya Prakash PW-1 and Sajeevan PW- 2 have seen the occurrence and their testimony is unimpeachable.

21. We have considered the rival contentions and perused the record. In the wake of rival contentions and allegations made by the prosecution against the appellant, core consideration that engages our attention for determination of this appeal relates to fact whether the incident was caused by the appellant and the charge has been proved beyond reasonable doubt against him or not?

22. In this context, we notice that the first information report regarding the incident was lodged by Satya Prakash PW-1 wherein, allegations were made against the appellant that he was insisting for taking informant's younger brother Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh to Delhi 3-4 days prior to the incident which was refused by Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh and the informant. Thereafter on 03.01.1997 at about 5 P.M. , the appellant climbed on his roof and used vituperative language, whereupon Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh came out of his house and reached in front of the doors of Jitendra Singh's house in the street where the appellant opened fire on him due to which he sustained injury and fell down on the ground. Satya Prakash informant, Sajeevan wife of Ram Prakash, Bhabbi of injured along with other villagers also arrived on the spot and they saw the incident. On challenge being made by them, the accused made his escape good.

23. In this context, we notice that on the face of eye account testimony of the incident, motive becomes irrelevant. However, some circumstantial help can be drawn from motive so attributed. In this case, the motive may not be strong but it may have some inkling for raising grudge against the victim by the accused. Upon perusal of testimony of both the eye witnesses Satya Prakash and Sajeevan PW-1 and PW-2, respectively, we notice that both have supported the incident that it took place around 5.00 P.M. on 03.01.1997.

24. However, it has come in examination in chief of PW-2 Sajeevan that she heard sound of firing. She claimed that she was pursuing her Devar Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh along with her husband Ram Prakash and Dewar Satya Prakash and sister-in-law (Dewrani) Bhagyawati. As per their testimony, as soon as shot was fired, it hit the victim who fell near Churni (trough). On being challenged, the accused appellant fled away from the scene of occurrence. Both these witnesses have been cross-examined wherein we find material contradictions which raises doubt on their presence on the spot. Their testimony as emerging from their cross examination, suggests that only one fire was shot, however, injury report of victim Ext. Ka-6 suggests otherwise. On the face of it, two gun shot wounds of entry and two gun shot wounds of exit, have been noted on medical examination by Dr. S.C. Tiwari PW-5. On this point, he has been cross examined and he has specifically suggested that two entry wounds and two exit wounds of gunshot were found on examination. Both these injuries have been found to be on separate parts of body of the deceased. Injury no. 1 was found to be " A gunshot wound of entry 0.75 cm x 0.75 cm x not probed in epigestric region 5 cm above umbilicus, margins are lacerated ecchymosed and inverted, charring is present bleeding is present." Injury no. 2 "A gun shot wound of exit 1 cm x 0.75 cm x not probed on right gluteul region, margins are lacerated, ecchymosed & everted. Bleeding present. Adv. x-ray.". Injury No. 3 "A gun shot wound of entry 0.5 cm x 0.5 cm x communicating to wound of entry on inner part of thumb on left hand, margins are lacerated, ecchymosed and inverted, bleeding present . Adv. X-ray." Injury no.4 "A gunshot wound no exists 0.8 cm x 0.8 cm x communicating to wound of entry on outer part of thumb of left hand, margins are lacerated, ecchymosed and everted. Bleeding present. Adv. Xray."

25. Theory of one shot fire is virtually admitted to the prosecution. In this scenario, it is upon the prosecution to establish as to how these injuries were caused. We discover from testimony of Satya Prakash PW-1 that when the accused appellant fired shot on his brother (victim) it first hit his hand and then hit his stomach. This particular fact does not find favour from the first information report which only specifies that shot was hit in stomach.

26. At this stage, we come across several statements made by both the witnesses of fact to the Investigating Officer under section 161 Cr.P.C. which engage our attention at this juncture and particularly on point whether PW-1 and PW-2 were in fact eye witnesses of the incident. We may deal with testimony of Satya Prakash PW-1 who has been confronted by the defence in his cross examination regarding his testimony on page 11 of the paper book on point that as soon as the victim came out of his house, he along with the other family members followed the victim, has not been stated in the first information report. Thus, the fact that PW-1 followed the victim appears to have been an afterthought and improved before the trial court. He has also admitted on the same page that site inspection of the spot was not done at his instance.

27. Obviously, whole testimony of Satya Prakash PW-1, though appears to be natural and consistent on point of occurrence that he also witnessed the incident but it is obvious that site plan was not prepared by the Investigating Officer on the pointing out of PW-1. We have also carefully perused the concerned case diary for availing some assistance regarding any such statement, as made before the trial court by this witness and similarly made to the Investigating officer then we did not come across any such statement. Obviously, it emerges out that PW-1 has not stated anything to the Investigating officer on point of occurrence and particularly fact that he witnessed the incident and the incident took place before him. In the wake of above, we have no better conclusion than to believe and accept contention of defence that PW-1 did not witness the incident. It appears that he arrived on the spot only after the incident had already taken place. The testimony of PW-1 regarding description of occurrence in absence of any supporting statement to the Investigating officer, cannot be believed.

28. Now, aforesaid testimony when compared with testimony of Sajeevan PW-2 becomes suspicious, sketchy and inconsistent, for reason that her statement regarding occurrence as recorded by the Investigating Officer under section 161 Cr.P.C. is exposed to hollowness. In her examination in chief, she has stated that on the fateful day around 5.00 P.M. Jitendra Singh was abusing from his roof, whereupon, Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh came out of his house and he was followed by this witness, her husband, her brother-in-law Satya Prakash, her sister-in-law Bhagyawati, then they heard sound of firing. The accused Jitendra Singh fired on Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh - victim which hit him and he fell near (Churni) trough. A number of persons had gathered on the spot. On being challenged, accused appellant Jitendra Singh fled away from the scene of occurrence, then a report was scribed by one Anil and injured was taken to police station by bullock-cart.

29. She (PW-2) has been cross examined at length and on page 15 of the paper book, she has been confronted as to how they followed the victim upto the place of occurrence. She has stated that if her statement as given in the trial court in examination in chief does not tally with the description given to I.O. regarding the incident, then she cannot assign any reason for the same. She has denied her statement recorded by the Investigating Officer that she ever gave statement that Jitendra Singh called Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh at his home and then shot him. Although she has stated that Jitendra Singh fired in her presence but she has further denied the suggestion that at the time of firing, she was inside her house. She has specifically denied statement recorded by the Investigating Officer that on hearing sound of firing, they came out of their house and saw Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh lying near trough (churni) and the fire had hit him on his stomach.

30. She has stated in her cross examination that on her arrival on the spot, Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh was speaking. She has denied her statement recorded by the Circle Officer that she ever gave any such statement that victim was not speaking. Her statement given in examination in chief regarding her being eye witness has been specifically denied by the Investigating Officer Avais Ahmad PW-4, therefore, what emerges from her cross examination becomes crystal clear that she came out of her house only when she heard sound of firing and this specific fact has been testified by the Investigating Officer in his cross examination on page 21 of the paper book, when she has denied her statement that she never gave such statement like one that on hearing sound of firing, they came out of their house and proceeded towards spot where they saw Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh lying near trough (Churni). He was shot on his stomach. The Investigating Officer has further confirmed that she (PW-2) has never given any statement that her husband Ram Prakash ever chased accused Jitendra Singh. She has also not given any statement to the Investigating Officer that a number of villagers had gathered on the spot and they challenged accused Jitendra Singh. Thus, it is obvious that PW-1 and PW-2 both witnesses of fact have not seen the act of firing though they insist to have seen the occurrence. It appears that they arrived on the spot just a little after the incident of firing had taken place.

31. In this regard, we may record that the Investigating Officer Avais Ahmad PW-4 prepared site plan of the occurrence at the instance of PW-2 Sajeevan and villagers but it is obvious that PW-2 had not seen the occurrence and her statement has been contradicted by the Investigating Officer that number of villagers had arrived on the spot, therefore, the villagers and Sajeevan PW-2 would not have been in a position to specify actual spot from where the accused opened fire on the deceased Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh.

32. At this stage, we may refer to the site plan of the occurrence Ext. Ka-4 wherein no specific spot has been shown from where the accused fired on the deceased Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh. It has been stated that the accused fired from Varanadah, but actual position of the accused has not been shown. PW-4 has not stated in his cross examination that the place marked by "X" is place where injured was standing. Therefore, it is not specific as to where the accused was standing when he fired on deceased Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh. However, it is gathered from the testimony that after fire hit Vijay Singh @ Bijendra Singh and he fell down on the ground, he remained there for about 30 minutes and report was written in village and then injured was taken in bullock-kart to the police station. Normally, in such circumstances, no family member will ever allow his close relative to remain lying on the ground after he has been shot for 30 minutes and will first get the report written. It is life of the person which gets primacy over all other acts.

33. It is also a fact that for about 30 minutes, the injured was lying on the ground and he was hit by gun shot but no blood mark was found on the spot by the Investigating Officer. Therefore, all these facts when cumulatively weighed, create lot of doubt on fact that PW-1 and PW-2 were not eye witnesses of the occurrence.

34. It is cardinal principle of criminal jurisprudence that in case prosecution has not been able to establish charge by proving the same beyond reasonable doubt, then the case goes in favour of accused and he is entitled to benefit of doubt. In this case, the testimony of both the eye witnesses of fact appear to be testimony of chance witnesses and they being relatives are interested in giving false testimony which fact stands exposed when we come across their testimony recorded under section 161 Cr.P.C. The site plan does not specify place from where firing was made and lastly, theory of one fire is highly doubtful in view of two gun shot injuries in form of entry wounds and exit wounds, which have been found on the person of victim on his medical examination on 03.01.1997 on the date of occurrence itself when he was lying on the spot.

35. In the wake of above analysis of facts and circumstances of the case evidence on record, contentions raised on behalf of the appellant are upheld by us. Consequently, this appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order of conviction dated 21.08.2009 passed by the Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Farrukhabad, in Special Sessions Trial No. 20 of 1997 arising out of Case Crime No. 02 of 1997 under section 302 I.P.C., Police Station Nawabganj, District Farrukhabad is hereby set aside by us.

36. The accused-appellant is in jail in this case. He is acquitted of aforesaid charges under aforesaid sections of I.P.C. He be released forthwith if not wanted in connection with any other case after compliance of provisions of Section 437A Cr.P.C.

37. Let a copy of this judgment/order be certified to the court concerned to its intimation and necessary follow up action.

The High Court dismissed the employer's appeal and upheld the award of ₹6,81,551 as compensation for the death of the workman under the Employees' Compensation Act. It held that the deceased died during and in the course of employment, and there was no evidence of any wilful disobedience of safety instructions that could absolve the employer of liability. The Court further clarified that mere negligence of the workman does not disentitle his dependants from compensation, as the Act is a beneficial social welfare legislation. It also held that the amount privately paid by the employer could not be treated as compensation except to the extent permitted under Section 8(1) proviso, i.e., three months' wages. Since the Commissioner had correctly assessed age, wages, and compensation, and no substantial question of law arose, the appeal was dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Krishna Murari, J.)

1. This first appeal from order under Section 30 of the Employees Compensation Act (for short the 'Act') has been filed by the employer challenging the judgment and award dated 30.08.2016 passed by Employees' Compensation Commissioner awarding a sum of Rs.6,81,551/- as compensation on account of death of workman-Bhola Prasad.

2. Background facts, in brief, are as under.

3. The appellant is a registered partnership firm engaged in the business of work contract and material supply of electrical and engineering items relating to transformers etc. Appellant entered into a contract for erection of electricity poles and its transmission work with the respondent no. 2, Anpara Thermal Power Plant. Deceased-Bhola Prasad was engaged to work in the execution of the Project by the appellant. On 25.02.2015, at about 6 p.m., when the electricity poles were being erected for laying the transmission lines, one of the pole fell down on Bhola Prasad causing grievous injuries and while being taken to the hospital, he died on the way. Claim petition was filed by the claimant-respondent no. 2, wife of the deceased-workman on the allegation that the death occurred during the course of and within the employment with the appellant. It was further pleaded that at the time of death, Bhola Prasad was aged about 25 years and his monthly salary was Rs.9000/- per month. On these allegations, a compensation to the tune of Rs.8,73,880/- along with penalty and 12% interest was claimed.

4. Proceedings were contested by the appellant on the allegations that the death was caused due to self inflicted injuries, inasmuch as he did not follow the rule and the directions for the purpose of securing the safety, as such, the employer was not liable to pay any compensation. It was also pleaded that the accident was a result of negligence of the workman himself and, thus, there was no liability. The appellant also stated that after the accident took place, along with local leaders, a huge mob assembled and resorted to 'chakka jam', and under the pressure of the authorities and the police, in order to maintain peace, a cheque of Rs.1,00,000/- and a sum of Rs.4,00,000/- in cash was given to the claimant by the appellant-employer, and thus also, liability, if any, stood discharged. The appellant also filed a compromise deed dated 25.02.2015 evidencing the amount paid to the claimants by way of settlement. On the basis of the pleadings of the parties, the Commissioner framed following four issues.

"1. Whether the deceased employee was employed as a workman.

2. Whether the death was caused in course of employment.

3. Whether the workman was drawing wages of Rs.9,000/- per month and was aged 24 years on the date of accident.

4. Whether the claimant was entitled to compensation, and if yes, the quantum and whether any interest and penalty is liable to be imposed."

5. After analysing the evidence adduced by the parties, the Commissioner returned a finding that deceased was engaged as a workman by the appellant. On issue no. 2, the Tribunal held that the death was caused on account of an accident arising out and in the course of employment. In the absence of any documentary evidence to substantiate the fact that the appellant was getting salary of Rs.9000/- per month, the Tribunal presumed the minimum wages of Rs.6415.50/- prescribed by State of U.P. for unskilled workman as his notional income and finding his age to be

24 years, determined a sum of Rs.7,07,097.14/-. In view of the fact that certain compensation was given by the employer to the claimants, in accordance with the provisions of Section 8 of the Act, the Tribunal deducted amount equal to three months' wages and, accordingly, determined the compensation of Rs.6,81,551/-.

6. The first submission advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant is that Commissioner failed to appreciate that there was negligence on the part of the deceased himself as he defied the specific directions not to climb the pole while the concrete was wet and, thus, the accident was a result of his own negligence and wilful disobedience of an order expressly given and the act was in violation of the safety procedure prescribed and, thus, there was no liability upon the appellant to pay the compensation.

7. Appellant-employer examined Dinesh Chandra Pathak as D.W. 1, who stated that for fixing the pole, firstly a hole is dug in the earth then pole is put in the hole and thereafter a mixture of concrete is filled in the hole. He further stated that to maintain the balance of the pole, strings are attached to the pole on all the four sides. The strings are attached with such a technique that when the workman pulls it, the knot opens. On the fateful day, when the deceased-workman pulls the string, the knot did not open. Despite clear instructions not to do so, the deceased-workman started climbing on the pole to open the knot and has fell down along with the pole, which caused injuries on his head.

8. On analysing the oral evidence adduced on behalf of the appellant-employer and also the pleadings, the Commissioner held that there was no evidence of disobedience of any order expressly given by a person with authority to the deceased-workman not to climb the pole nor there was any evidence to demonstrate that workmen were explained the safety procedure before they were made to do the work and, thus, it was not a case of any wilful negligence on the part of the deceased-workman so as to absolve the appellant from the liability of paying the compensation.

9. From a perusal of record and analysis of the evidence brought on record of this appeal, we also do not find any pleadings or evidence to establish that any person with authority had given directions to the workman not to climb the pole or the workman was ever explained the safety procedure to be followed. On the contrary, it was pleaded in the written statement that other workmen shouted and asked the deceased-workman not to climb the pole as it was risky, but the same does not establish that any authority had given directions to the workman not to climb the pole or he was acting in violation of any safety procedure explained to him to be followed while executing the work. In the absence of any evidence, we do not find any fault with the finding of the Commissioner in this regard and, thus, the first argument advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant has no force.

10. Apart from above factual position that there was no negligence on the part of the workman, but even if there was negligence, it would not dis-entitle the claimants from claiming compensation under the Act. Section 3 of the Act does not create any exception of any kind which permits the employer to avoid his liability even if there was negligence on the part of the workman.

Employees Compensation Act is a social welfare legislation meant to benefit the workers and their dependants in case of death of a workman due to accident caused during and in course of their employment and should be construed as such.

11. The above view taken by us finds support from recent decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Jaya Biswal & Ors. Vs. Branch Manager, IFFCO, Tokio General Insurance Company Ltd. & Anr., 2016 (1) TAC 713 (SC).

12. In the said case, Hon'ble Apex Court repelled the argument that claimants would not be entitled for compensation, in case, the death was caused due to own negligence of the workman. In paragraph 14 of the reports, it has been held as under.

"The next contention which needs to be dispelled is that the appellants are not entitled to any compensation because the deceased died as a result of his own negligence. We are unable to agree with the same. Section 3 of the E.C. Act does not create any exception of the kind, which permits the employer to avoid his liability if there was negligence on part of the workman. The reliance placed on the decisions of this Court on Contributory negligence like the Three Judge Bench decision in the case of Mastaan (supra) is wholly misplaced as the same have been passed in relation to the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, and have no bearing on the facts of the case on hand. The E.C. Act does not envisage a situation where the compensation payable to an injured or deceased workman can be reduced on account of contributory negligence. It has been held by various High Courts that mere negligence does not disentitle a workman to compensation. Lord Atkin in the case of Harris v. Assosciated Portland Cement Manufacturers Ltd. observed as under:

"Once you have found the work which he is seeking to be within his employment the question of negligence, great or small, is irrelevant and no amount of negligence in doing an employment job can change the workman's action into a non-employment job ... In my opinion if a workman is doing an act which is within the scope of his employment in a way which is negligent in any degree and is injured by a risk incurred only by that way of doing it he is entitled to compensation."

The above reasoning has been subsequently adopted by several High Courts. In the case of Janaki Ammal v. Divisional Engineer,the High Court of Madras held as under:

"Men who are employed to work infactories and elsewhere are human beings, not machines. They are subject to human imperfections. No man can be expected to work without ever allowing his attention to wander, without ever making a mistake, or slip, without at some period in his career being momentarily careless. Imperfections of this and the like nature form the ordinary hazards of employment and bring a case of this kind within the meaning of the Act."

While no negligence on part of the deceased has been made out from the facts of the instant case as he was merely trying his best to stop the truck from moving unmanned, even if there were negligence on his part, it would not disentitle his dependents from claiming compensation under the Act."

13. The second submission advanced on behalf of the appellant is that cause of accident was on account of an overt act of the workman totally unconnect with his employment, thus, there is no liability to make payment of any compensation.

14. Liability of employer to make payment of compensation is provided under Section 3 (1) of the Act, which reads as under.

"3. Employer's liability for compensation.- (1) If personal injury is caused to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, his employer shall be liable to pay compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter."

15. Hon'ble Apex Court while interpreting Section 3 (1) in the case of Shakuntala Chandrakant Shreshti Vs. Prabhakar Maruti Garvali, 2007 (11) SC 668 held as under.

"15. The said Act was enacted to provide for payment by certain classes of employer's to workmen for compensation against injury by accident. The term 'accidental injury' has not been defined under the Act. The liability of the employer for payment of compensation, however, would arise if a personal injury is caused to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. What is necessary for attracting the charging provision contained in Section 3 of the Act is that (i) an injury must be caused to a workman; (ii) such injury must have been caused by an accident; and (iii) it arose out of or in the course of his employment."

16. In the case of Mackinnon Mackenzie & Co. (P) Ltd. Vs. Ibrahim Mohd. Issak, 1969 (2) SCC 607, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that provisions of the Act would stand attracted, in case, injury by accident arises, both out of and in the course of employment. Explaining the words 'in the course of the employment' and 'arising out of employment', it has been observed as under.

"The words 'in the course of the employment' mean 'in the course of the work which the workman is employed to do and which is incidental to it'. The words 'arising out of employment' are understood to mean that 'during the course of the employment, injury has resulted from some risk incidental to the duties of the service, which, unless engaged in the duty owing to the master, it is reasonable to believe the workman would not otherwise have suffered'. In other words there must be a casual relationship between the accident and the employment.

The expression 'arising out of employment' is again not confined to the mere nature of the employment. The expression applies to employment as such to its nature, its conditions, its obligations and its incidents. If by reason of any of those factors the workman is brought within the zone of special danger the injury would be one which arises 'out of employment'. To put it differently if the accident had occurred on account of a risk which is an incident of the employment, the claim for compensation must succeed, unless of course the workman has exposed himself to an added peril by his own imprudent act."

17. Applying the aforesaid test laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court to the facts of the case, we find that accident took place not only in the course of employment, but was arising out of employment as well. The facts and the evidence clearly establish that there was connection between the death of the workman and his employment and, thus, the appellant employer cannot wriggle out from its liability to make payment of compensation. Thus, the second argument advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant has also no legs to stand and is not liable to be sustained.

18. The next submission advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant is that in view of the fact that a sum of Rs.5 lacs was already paid to the claimants, the Tribunal committed a manifest error of law in imposing damages and the same is in violation of the Section 4-A of the Act.

19. The argument is not at all sustainable in view of specific finding recorded by the Tribunal that since some amount was paid to the claimants as financial assistance, there is no justification to impose any penalty.

20. It is next submitted that since admittedly a sum of Rs.1 lac was paid by cheque and Rs.4 lacs in cash to the claimant under the pressure from the public and police authority, the said amount was liable to be deducted from the compensation determined by the Commissioner, which he has failed to do so by misinterpreting the provisions of Section 8 of the Act.

21. Provisions of Section 8 of the Act, relevant for the purpose of the case, are reproduced hereunder.

"8. Distribution of compensation.-

(1) No payment of compensation in respect of a workman whose injury has resulted in death, and no payment of a lump sum as compensation to a woman or a person under a legal disability, shall be made otherwise than by deposit with the Commissioner, and no such payment made directly by an employer shall be deemed to be a payment of compensation.

[Provided that, in the case of a deceased workman, an employer may make to any dependant advances on account of compensation of an amount equal to three months' wages of such workman and so much of such amount as does not exceed the compensation payable to that dependant shall be deducted by the Commissioner from such compensation and repaid to the employer.]

(2) Any other sum amounting to not less than ten rupees which is payable as compensation may be deposited with the Commissioner on behalf of the person entitled thereto.

(3) The receipt of the Commissioner shall be a sufficient discharge in respect of any compensation deposited with him."

22. A plain reading of the aforesaid provision goes to show that any payment made directly by an employer to the claimant shall not be deemed to be a payment of compensation unless it is deposited with the Commissioner and a receipt is issued by him in this regard. The only exception is contained in the proviso to sub-Section (1) of Section 8 to the effect that only an amount equal to three months' wages of such workman, if the same does not exceed to the compensation payable, shall be deducted by the Commissioner from such compensation.

23. In the case in hand, though there is an admission by the claimant-respondent of having received a sum of Rs.1 lac through cheque and Rs.4 lac in cash from the employer, but in view of the provisions contained in Section 8 of the Act, the same cannot be deemed to a payment of compensation and Commissioner rightly deducted a sum equal to three months' wages of the workman from the compensation determined in accordance with the proviso. The receipt, on which the reliance is being placed upon by the appellant, was not executed by the Commissioner, but it was signed by the In-charge of police station Anpara, Member of Zila Panchayat, village Pradhan and certain members of the public. The document even did not contain the signature of the claimant-respondent, and only a photocopy thereof was filed in evidence.

24. In the circumstances, we do not find any fault in the findings recorded by the Commissioner that only a sum of 3 months' wages was liable to be deducted from the amount of compensation payable in view of proviso to Section 8 (1) of the Act.

25. Lastly, it was submitted that the impugned order is contrary to the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Malikarjuna G. Hiremath Vs. Branch Manager, Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. & Anr., AIR 2009 SC 2019.

26. In the aforesaid case, the fact was that the workman, who was driving the vehicle on the directions of the insured, had gone to Gurugunta from Siraguppa. Thereafter, he went to Amreshwara temple and while he was sitting on the steps of the pond in the temple, slipped and died due to drowning. In such circumstances, the Hon'ble Apex Court held that the death was not arising out of employment and, thus, liability could not be fastened either on the insurer or the insured. The facts of the said case are clearly distinguishable from the facts of the present case, where the accident took place not only out of employment, but also in the course of employment.

27. In our considered opinion, the award cannot be held contrary to the law laid down in the said case by the Hon'ble Apex Court. On the contrary, the ratio of the decision applies with full force in favour of the claimants in the facts and circumstances of the case.

28. On an analysis of the award, we find that the Tribunal also did not commit any fault in recording the finding that the deceased was aged 24 years on the basis of the date of birth recorded in the mark sheet of the Secondary examination, 2004. The determination of notional income on the basis of the minimum wages prescribed by State Government, in the absence of any evidence to establish the wages of the deceased-workman, also cannot be faulted with.

29. Thus, we do not find any illegality in the methodology adopted by the Commissioner for determining the compensation and the same is strictly in accordance with the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 and no illegality is reflected therefrom.

30. In view of above facts and discussions, we are of the considered opinion that no substantial question of law is involved in the appeal.

31. The appeal accordingly stands dismissed in limine.

32. However, in the facts and circumstances, we do not make any order as to costs.

The High Court dismissed the First Appeal From Order as not maintainable. It held that an appeal under Order 43 Rule 1(t) CPC lies only against an order refusing to readmit an appeal under Order 41 Rule 19 or to rehear an appeal under Order 41 Rule 21. In the present case, the impugned order was neither under Rule 19 nor Rule 21; rather, the original appeal had been dismissed as abated under Order 22 Rule 4(3) CPC due to failure to substitute the deceased respondent for about two and a half years. Therefore, since the statutory provision invoked did not apply, the FAFO was held to be not maintainable and was accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anjani Kumar Mishra, J.)

1. Heard Shri H.M. Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant.

2. This First Appeal From Order has been filed under Order 43 Rule 1(t) of the Civil Procedure Code, whereby a belated application filed by the appellant, for recall of an order dated 03.09.1996, was dismissed on the ground that it was not accompanied by any affidavit in support of the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act for condonation of delay.

3. The order dated 03.09.1996, an appeal filed by the appellant was ordered to abate on the ground of non substitution of the respondent therein.

4. The provision which has been invoked in this F.A.F.O., namely Order 43 Rule 1(t) is quoted herein below:-

"Order 43 Rule 1(t):- an order of refusal under Rule 19 of Order XLI to readmit, or under Rule 21 of Order XLI to rehear, an appeal"

5. For an F.A.F.O. to lie under Order 43 Rule 1(t), the order appealed against must either be an order under Order 41 Rule 19 or one under Order 41 Rule 21.

6. The order impugned is not an order under Rule 41 of Order 41 because the application before the Court below was filed by the plaintiff-appellant and not the respondent. The said Rule 21 deals with applications filed by a respondent, against whom an ex parte decree has been passed. The appellant in the instant case was the appellant-applicant before the Court below.

7. Rule 19 of Order 41, which alone may be applicable in the instant case empowers the Court to readmit an appeal dismissed under Rule 11 Sub-rule 2. The said sub rule reads as follows:-

"(2) If on the day fixed or on any day to which the hearing may be adjourned the appellant does not appear when the appeal is called for hearing, the Court may make an order that the appeal is dismissed."

8. Thus, Rule 17 of Order 41 deals with the dismissal of an appeal for the appellant's default.

9. As already noticed herein above, the appeal of the appellant had been dismissed as abated since no application to substitute the deceased/respondent had been filed despite a period of two and a half year having elapsed since his death. The order of the appellate Court was thus, an order passed under Order 22 Rule 4(3).

10. It is therefore, clear that the order sought to be recalled was not an order passed under either Rule 19 or Rule 21 of Order 41 and therefore Order 43 Rule 1(t) cannot be invoked to challenge it.

11. The instant FAFO is therefore, not maintainable under Order 43 Rule 1(t).

12. It is accordingly dismissed.

The High Court answered both reference questions in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee, holding that the penalty orders under Section 271B were within limitation under Section 275(1)(c) of the Income Tax Act, 1961. The Court clarified that Section 275(1)(c) provides two independent periods of limitation: (i) till the end of the financial year in which the proceedings during which penalty action was initiated are completed, or (ii) six months from the end of the month in which penalty proceedings are initiated, whichever period expires later. These two periods are not to be read conjunctively. Since the notices for penalty were issued on 2.4.1990 and 26.6.1990, and the penalty orders were passed on 30.10.1990, the orders were held to be within time. The Court further emphasized that where statutory language is clear, it must be interpreted according to its plain meaning without adding words or creating a casus omissus.

1. At the instance of Assessee, Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Allahabad (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") under section 256(2) of Income Tax Act 1961 (hereinafter referred to as "Act 1961') has referred following two questions, involved in both these cases, for opinion of this Court:

"(1)Whether, on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal was correct in law in holding that for imposing penalty under section 271B of I.T Act, 1961, its initiation in the course of assessment proceedings, is not necessary within the meaning of Section 275(b)(c) of the above Act?

(2) Whether, on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal was correct in law in holding that the penalty order passed by the learned Assessing Officer on 30.10.1990 was within the period of limitation laid down in Section 275 of I.T Act, 1961?"

2. Since both these cases relate to Assessment Years 1988-1989 and 1989-1990, involve similar questions, they have been heard together, and are being decided by this common judgment.

3. It is not disputed that notices dated 2.4.1990 and 26.6.1990 were issued to Assessee under section 271B of Act, 1961 requiring to show cause, why penalty be not imposed under the aforesaid provision, in respect of above mentioned Assessment Years for failure of Assessee in getting its accounts audited under section 44AB of Act.

4. Assessee replied notices vide letter dated 30.7.1990. Explanation furnished by Assessee did not find favour with Assessing Officer and accordingly it passed penalty order imposing penalty of Rs.24,768/- and Rs.27,990/- vide order dated 30.10.1990.

5. In appeal, Commissioner of Income Tax(Appeals) (hereinafter referred to as "CIT(A)' cancelled penalty for both the years on the ground that assessment for both years processed by Assessing Officer under section 143(1)(a) of Act, 1961 having been completed on 31.3.1989 and 31.3.1990, penalty under section 271B, could not have been levied, since Assessing Officer failed to initiate proceedings during the course of assessment proceedings.

6. The Order deleting penalty, passed by CIT(A) took recourse to provision of Limitation under section 275(1)(c) of Act, 1961.

7. When matter was brought before Tribunal at the instance of Revenue, it took the view that penalty proceedings were initiated well within the period of limitation and CIT(A) erred in law in holding otherwise and deleting penalty. Tribunal recorded its finding as under:

"The penalty proceedings having been initiated on 22nd of June, 1990 and 2nd of April, 1990, both the penalty orders passed on 30th October, 1990 are very much within the time frame i.e within 6 months from the end of the month in which action for imposition of penalty was initiated. "

8. Assessee came to this Court under section 256(2) for seeking a direction to Tribunal to make reference and vide order dated 19.8.2006, this Court required Tribunal to refer the above mentioned questions for our opinion.

9. Shri S.D.Singh, learned Senior Counsel appearing for Assessee at the outset stated that though in question 1, there is a reference of Section 275(b) but in fact the matter has to be considered in the light of Section 275(1)(c) and therefore, we have corrected question no.1 and proceed to consider the aforesaid question in the context of limitation prescribed under section 275(1)(c) which reads as under:

"275.(1) No order imposing a penalty under this Chapter shall be passed-

(c) in any other case, after the expiry of the financial year in which the proceedings, in the course of which action for the imposition of penalty has been initiated, are completed, or six months from the end of the month in which action for imposition of penalty is initiated, whichever period expires later."

10. The aforesaid provision contains two clauses: first is, after the expiry of financial year in which the proceedings, in the course of which action for imposition of penalty has been initiated, are completed, and, second is, within six months from the end of the month in which action for imposition of penalty is initiated. It further says that out of two, whichever is later shall apply.

11. Shri S.D.Singh, learned Senior Counsel submitted that both clauses in sub section (c) of Section 275(1) have to be read together and thus will be attracted to a case where penalty proceedings have been initiated during the process of assessment and limitation is end of financial year in which assessment proceeding is completed or six months whichever is later. This submission in our view is apparently misconceived and nothing but a complete misreading of Section 275(1)(c).

12. As we have already said, words "whichever period expires later" contemplates two periods of limitation. According to us, one is when action for "imposition of penalty" is initiated, the end of financial year of such proceeding when completed, and, secondly, when action for "imposition of penalty is initiated", it is six months there from, and, then whichever period expires later. For example, if penalty proceeding is initiated during the period of assessment, it is expiry of financial period in which the assessement proceedings are completed. Second, if notice for penalty is not issued during the course of assessment proceedings, instead thereafter, then it is six months from the date of such notice. These are two different periods of limitation and "whichever is later" will govern limitation for penalty under section 271-B. If both these periods would have to be read conjunctively, the words 'whichever period expires later' not only would render redundant but in many a cases, it would create a situation where it will be difficult to find a reasonable period of limiation for complettion of penalty proceedings. The language of statute is simple and clear. We thus find no jusification to read both independent clauses, conjunctively or together, as suggested or argued by Shri Singh, learned Senior Counsel.

13. Learned Senior Advocate has relied on certain authorities but we find that some are inapplicable to the issue raised in this reference and some are against the proposition advanced by learned Senior Advocate on behalf of Assessee. We discuss the authorties cited at Bar in detail as under.

14. The earliest authority is Commissioner of Income-Tax, U.P versus Bankey Lal Hira Lal (1973) 92 ITR 587(All). Therein penalty proceedings were initiated under section 271(1)(c), that is concealment of income represented by cash credit entries in the accounts of four creditors during previous year, relevant to the assessment year 1963-64. Therein assessment had completed on 30.11.1963. A notice under section 271(1)(c) was issued on 25.4.1964 and thereafter order imposing penalty was passed. An objection was raised that penalty proceedings must have commenced before conclusion of assessment proceeding. It was argued that penalty proceedings were initiated by issue of a notice to show cause but since it was done after completion of assessment, hence illegal. Penalty for the purpose of Section 271(1)(c) is attracted where there is a case of concealment of particulars of income by Assessee or it has deliberately furnished in accurate of such income. This Court relied on a pari materia provision contained in Section 28(1) Indian Income Tax Act 1922 considered in Commissioner of Income Tax versus S.V.Angidi Chettiar (1962) 44 I.T.R 739 wherein Court held that proceedings to levy penalty are not to be commenced by Assessing Officer before completion of assessment proceedings. To attract penalty under section 271(1)(c) only satisfaction of Assessing Officer in the assessment proceedings that there existed a case where conditions specified in clauses (a), (b) or (c) are specified, have to exist, since that is a condition for exercise of jurisdiction. Referring to Section 275(1) of Act, 1961, Court in Commissioner of Income Tax, U.P versus Bankey Lal Hira Lal (Supra), held that Section in its essential content is a provision prescribing period of limitation for making a penalty order. It is not a provision prescribing point of commencement of penalty proceedings. It is concerned with the order which concludes penalty proceedings. It further held, when it refers to "completion of proceedings in the course of which the penalty proceeding is commenced", in substance it identifies the former proceeding for the purpose of defining point of time from which period of limitation for making penalty order must be computed. This Court specifically noticed a Bombay High Court Judgement in Shakti Offset Works versus Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Income Tax (1967) 64 I.T.R 637, which took a similar view to what has been canvassed before us by Shri Singh, learned Senior Counsel but disagreed and dissented therewith. Bombay High Court took the view that initiation of penalty proceeding cannot be held over until after the completion of assessment and that section 271(1) and section 275 indicate that penalty proceeding has to be commenced before completion of assessment proceeding. This Court observed that Bombay High Court seems to have considered that satisfaction of Income Tax Officer in the course of assessment proceeding itself constitute commencement of penalty proceeding, which is not correct. Disagreeing with this view of Bombay High Court, this Court said:

"if these observations are capable of being understood to mean that the Income Tax Officer must, besides recording his satisfaction, take further action by the issue of a notice to the Assessee before completing the assessment, we are unable with respect to agree with the proposition so laid down."

15. Court clarified in Commissioner of Income Tax, U.P versus Bankey Lal Hira Lal (Supra) that penalty proceeding commenced when action under section 271 is taken and Section 275 does not deal with the question, when such proceeding can be considered to commence, hence for the purpose of determining commencement of penalty proceeding, there is no need to look into Section 275. For that purpose section 271 should be looked into and when action is commenced therein, then for the purpose of limitation Section 275 would come into picture.

16. Karnataka High Court in Shanbhag Restaurant versus Deputy Commissioner of Income Tax (2004) 266 ITR 393 (Kar) has considered Section 275(1)(c) holding that it comprises of two parts. First part provides that no order imposing penalty under Chapter XXI could be made, in cases, which do not fall under section 275(1)(a) and (b) after the expiry of financial year in which proceedings in the course of which action for imposition of penalty, has been initiated, are completed. Second part relates to cases which prohibit passing of an order imposing penalty after expiry of six months from the end of the month in which action for imposition of penalty is initiated. It further says that out of the two parts, whichever period would expires later, would enure to the benefit of Revenue, and would apply. Having said so Court said that for the purpose of first part, financial year in which proceedings in the course of which action for imposition of penalty, is required to be understood as the proceedings relating to assessment order. The financial year in which proceedings in the course of which action for imposition of penalty has been initiated can be understood as the proceedings relating to imposition of penalty. It said that financial year in the first part of Section 275(1)(c) must be understood as the financial year where assessment order is made in the course of which proceedings for penalty could be initiated. Therein assessment order was made on 25.2.1994, hence, Court held that limitation contemplated in the first part expired on 31.3.1994. If the first part is not appplied, then comes the second part, Court said that a notice for imposition of penalty if issued under section 271, it would be period of six months there from which will cover the second part. In that case, notice was issued under section 271, for imposition of penalty on 8.6.1994 and penalty order was passed on 31.12.1994. Court held that order of penalty is within the period of six months under second part, hence within limitation, and upheld the same.

17. We are in respectful agreement with the aforesaid view which is clearly applicable in the case in hand also.

18. Similar view has been taken by Delhi High Court also in Subodh Kumar Bhargava versus Commissioner of Income Tax (2009) 309 ITR 31 (Del). Court has explained conditions by giving illustrations in paragraph 13 and 14 and we are reproducing the same as under:

"13. There may be cases which fall under section 275(1) (c) in which action for the imposition of penalty is initiated in the course of some other proceedings.There may also be cases under section 275(1)(c) in which the action for imposition of penalty is initiated, but not in the course of some proceedings. In the former category of cases, both the periods of limitation may be applicable, whereas in the latter category, only the second period of limitation of six months from the end of the month in which action for imposition of penalty is initiated, would apply. To illustrate this, let us take the first category of cases. This is that category where the action for imposition of penalty is initiated in the course of some other proceeding. In such a situation, it is obvious that both the period of limitation would come into play. One would be reckoned from the date on which the other proceedings are completed upto and including the end of the financial year in which that date occurs. The other period of limitation would be that which applies irrespective of the date of completion of the " other proceedings" and which is relatable simply to the date on which action for imposition of penalty is initiated.The period of limitation in such a case would be six months from the end of the month in which the action for imposition of penalty is initiated. It is clear that where penalty proceedings are initiated in the course of some other proceedings, the Legislature has provided for for two different periods of limitation. However, so that there is no confusion with regard to which of the two would apply, the Legislature has added the expression "whichever period expires later" at the end .To explain this ,let us take two examples:

Example 1:

Assumes that the action for imposition of penalty is initiated on March 15, 2007, in the course os some proceedings which are completed on March 25, 2007. On the basis of the forst part of section 275(1)(c), the period of limitation would end on March 31,2007, being the end of the financial year in which the proceedings in the course of which action for the imposition of penalty was initiated, is completed.However, taking recourse to the provisions of the second part of section 275(1) (c), the end of the period of limitation would be September 30, 2007. This would be so because the action for imposition of penalty was initiated on March 15,2007, implying thereby that the end of the month would be on March 31,2007. The period of six months from such date would end on September 30,2007. Thus, in this example, we are faced with two dates on which limitation would end. But, because of the expression " whichever period expires later", the period of limitation would have to be taken as September 30,2007, which is relatable to the date on which action for imposition of penalty was initaited and not to the date on which the proceedings, in the course of which action was initiated, are completed.

Example 2:

Let us assume that action for imposition of penalty is initiated on April 15,2007, in the course of proceedings which are completed on May 25,2007. Under the first part of section 275(1)(c), the period of limitation for passing an order imposing penalty would end on March 31,2008, being the end of the financial year in which the proceedings, in the course of which action for imposition of the penalty had been initiated, are completed. However, in terms of the second part of section 275(1) (c), the period of limitation would end on October 31,2007. This is because, the period of six months would have to be reckoned from the end of the month in which action for imposition of penalty was initiated. Action for penalty in this example was initiated on April 15 ,2007.The end of the month would be April 30,2007. Consequently, the period of six months from this date would end on October 31, 2007. Thus, in this example, we are once again faced with two periods of limitation; the period ending on March 31, 2008 being the end of the financial year relatable to May 25,2007, the date on which the proceedings were completed and October 31, 2007, being the date relatable to the initiation of the penalty proceedings. Once again, applying the expression " whichever period expires later", the period of limitation for this example would be March 31,2008.

14. The above two examples illustrates cases where the applicable period of limitation would be relatable either to the date of initiation of the penalty proceedings or to the date of completion of the proceedings in the course of which action for the imposition of penalty has been initiated. But there is a third / residuary category of cases where the initiation of action for imposition of penalty is not in the course of some proceedings. In such cases, the first part of section 275(1) (c) would have no application and it is only the period of limitation prescribed in the second part which would apply.Since only one period of limitation would be applicable,the expression" whichever period expires later" would have to be read as that very perod of limitation. The present case undoubtedly falls under section 275(1)(c) and, that too, under the second part thereof. Therefore, on a plain reading and on a logical analysis of the relevant provisions of the said Act, the period of limitation during which an order imposing a penalty could have been passed in the present case would be a period of six months beginning from the end of the month in which the action for imposition of penalty was initiated. We have already noticed above that the show - cause notice under section 274 read with section 271B of the said Act was issued on July 31,2003. Since that happened to be the end of the month also, the period of six months would have to be reckoned from that date. That would take us to January 31, 2004. Thus, the penalty order could have been passed on any date up to and including January 31,2004. The penalty order came to be passed on February 17, 2004, which would be hit by the bar of limitation."

19. The next decision cited at the Bar is Karan Vir Singh Gossal versus Commissiner of Income Tax & Another(2012) 349 ITR 692(SC). There the question up for consideration before Court was, whether levy of interest under section 234-A/234B of Act 1961 is mandatory or not. Relying on five Judges Bench decision of this court in Commissioner of Income Tax versus Anjum M.H.Ghaswala (2001) 252 ITR 1, Court held that interest under aforesaid provision is mandatory. Having said so, Court further proceeded to hold that there was no need for Assessing Officer to specifically recite in the order of assessment that penalty proceedings should be initiated as contended by Assessee. It further said as under:

" The recitation by Assessing Officer directing institution of penal proceedings is not obligatory and penal proceedings could be initiated for such default without a specific direction from the Assessing Officer."

20. The aforesaid judgment does not help us for interpretation of period of limitation under section 275(1)(c).

21. In Madan Roller Flour Mills versus Commissioner of Income Tax (2008) 301 ITR 1 (P&H), a Division Bench of Punjab and Haryana High Court had also an occasion to consider limitation under section 275(1)(c) in respect of penalty notice issued under section 271B. In reference thereto Court held that firstly so far as 271B is concerned, it does not require that initiation can only be during the course of some proceedings as no such phraseology is used therein. Chapter XXI of Act 1961 deals with penalty. Penalties under sections 271(1) and 273(1) are required to be initiated during the course of any proceedings in view of phrase "in the course of any proceedings" used in these sections. All other penalties in Chapter XXI can be initiated independently of any other proceedings. Something which is not required under section 271B cannot be super imposed by referring to Section 275. Having said so, Court therein found that assessment therein was completed on 31.3.1989 while Clause(c) was inserted in Section 275 with effect from 1.4.1989 and therefore had no application in that case. The aforesaid judgment which has been relied by Shri Agrawal, learned counsel for Revenue, therefore, does not help him for the purpose of construction of period of limitation under section 275(1)(c) of Act, 1961.

22. Looking to the facts of the present case, we find that assessments were completed on 31.3.1989 and 30.3.1990 in respect to assessment years 1988-89 and 1989-90. Notices for penalty in respect of assessment year 1988-89 was issued on 2.4.1990 and for assessment year 1989-90, issued on 20.6.1990. Penalty orders were passed in both the cases on 30.10.1990. In our view, penalty orders are within the period of limitation.

23. Now we may refer to some authorities cited by learned Senior Counsel on behalf of Assessee which in our opinion would not help him for answering the questions which are up for consideration in this reference.

24. Shri S.D.Singh, learned Senior Counsel has relied on a judgment in Commissioner of Income Tax versus E.C.C Project Pvt.Ltd. (2015) 374 ITR 44(All) which was decided on the question that no penalty would be leviable under section 271B of Act, 1961 where Assessing Officer has failed to record its satisfaction in the assessment order for levy of penalty. We find that even on this aspect, there is an authority of Supreme Court in Karan Vir Singh Gossal versus Commisisoner of Income Tax and another (Supra) which appears to have gone unnoticed noticed by this Court in the above case. It has proceeded to observe something which is contrary to law laid down by Supreme Court in Karan Vir Singh Gossal versus Commisisoner of Income Tax and another (Supra). Even otherwise, we find that the question of point of limitation under section 275(1)(c) has not been specifically considered Commissioner of Income Tax versus E.C.C. Project

Pvt. Ltd.(Supra) therefore, that judgment would have no application for the issue to be considered in this Reference.

25. Next is a Division Bench of this Court in Bhola Nath Carpets Pvt.Ltd. versus Commissioner of Income Tax (2008) 299 ITR 413(All) but therein Court has considered applicability of Section 275(1)(b) and not 275(1)(c) as it has specifically said:

"we are not concerned herein with Clause-c of sub section (1) of Secton 275 of Act".

26. Shri Singh, learned Senior Counsel has also placed reliance on Supreme Court judgment in M/s Frick India Ltd. versus Union of India (1990) 1 SCC 400 which was a case under Central Excise Act and has no application to the question raised in present reference. Similary there is another decision in Dipak Babaria and another versus State of Gujrat (2014) 3 SCC 502 which is relied in support of the proposition, when a particular thing should be done in a particular manner, it must be done in that way. The exposition of law is well established but we find no application thereof to the case in hand.

27. In view of above discussions, we are of the view that there are two independent periods of limitation prescribed under section 275(1)(c). If what argued by Shri Singh, learned Senior Counsel, that both period should be read conjunctively, it would not only render the words "whichever is later" redundant but also do violence to simple phrase used by legislature in the aforesaid provision. It is a well settled principle of interpretation that plain reading of a statute must be preferred if it is clear. It must be read as it is and neither anything should be added nor ignored or omitted. We should not assume that legislature has left any scope of imagination or a provision must be read by applying casus omissus.

28. With respect to principles of interpretation of statutes in such matters, a Division Bench of this Court in Surendra Vs. State of U.P. and others 2007 (6) AWC 6229 observed as under:

"Where the language of statute is clear and unambiguous there is no room for reading or interpreting statute in a manner, which may add a few words therein on the assumption that the legislature has left a vacuum need to be bridged by judicial interpretation. It is not the function of the Court to read something in the provision of law, which is not there, or find out a way of obviating the difficulties in enforcing the law howsoever meritorious the intention of the legislature might be."

29. A Constitution Bench in Behram Khurshed Pesikaka Vs. State of Bombay AIR 1955 SC 123 rejecting to interpret a law on the supposed difficulty of prosecution in improving the case, observed as under:

"The difficulty in the way of the prosecution proving its case need not deflect the Court from arriving at a correct conclusion. If these difficulties are genuinely felt it would be for the legislature to step in and amend the law. It would not be the function of the Court to read something in the provisions of the law, which is not there, or to find out a way of obviating the difficulties in enforcing the law howsoever meritorious the intentions of the Legislature might be. (Para-17)

30. It is settled principle of interpretation, where the words used are clear and unambiguous, Court is bound to construe them in their ordinary sense and it is not the function of Court to add words or expression for supposed assumption of what would have been the intention of the legislature. Court is not entitled to go beyond so as to supply an omission as if to play the role of a political reformer or counsel to the legislature.

31. A Constitution Bench in Dadi Jagannadham Vs. Jammulu Ramulu and others AIR 2001 SC 2699, in para 13, observed as under:

"The settled principles of interpretation are that the Court must proceed on the assumption that the legislature did not make a mistake and that it did what it intended to do. The Court must, as far as possible, adopt a construction which will carry out the obvious intention of the legislature. Undoubtedly if there is a defect or an omission in the words used by the legislature, the Court would not go to its aid to correct or make up the deficiency. The Court could not add words to a statute or read words into it which are not there, especially when the literal reading produces an intelligible result. The Court cannot aid the legislature's defective phrasing of an Act, or add and mend, and, by construction, make up deficiencies which are there."

32. The Cardinal rule of construction is to find out intention of legislature in the words used by legislature itself. Court, in order to find out intention of the statute framing authority must look into the statute itself without any assistance from any other external factor unless there is some doubt or ambiguity in the construction of statute itself. It would be appropriate to remind, in the words of Lord Brougham, in Robert Wigram Crawford Vs. Richard Spooner, 4 MIA 179 (187) (PC):

"..if the legislature did intend that which it has not expressed clearly; much more, if the Legislature intended some thing very different; if the Legislature intended pretty nearly the opposite of what is said, it is not for judges to invent something, which they do not meet within the words of the text (aiding their construction of the text always, of course, by the context)."

33. Court in S. Gurmej Singh Vs. sardar Pratap Singh Kairon AIR 1960 SC 122 also held that Courts are not to keep busy themselves with "supposed intention" or "with the policy underlying the statue" but must construe statute from plain meaning of the words used therein.

34. In Aron Soloman Vs. A. Soloman & Co. Ltd. (1897) AC 22 (38) (HL) 5 Lord Watson observed- "In a court of law or equity, what the Legislature intended to be done or not to be done can only be legitimately ascertained from that which it has chosen to enact, either in express words or by reasonable and necessary implication." The aforesaid passage has been quoted with approval in R.L.Arora Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, AIR 1964 SC 1230 (1244), Shahdara (Delhi) Saharanpur Light Railway Co. Ltd. Vs. Workers Union AIR 1969 SC 513 (759), Hansraj Gordhandas Vs. H.H.Dave AIR 1970 SC 755 (759), Sri Umed Vs. Raj Singh AIR 1975 SC 43 (63/64), Commissioner of Sales Tax, U.P. Vs. Super Cotton Bowl Refilling Works AIR 1989 SC 922 (930), State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. G.S.Ball and Flour Mills AIR 1991 SC 772 (785) and Harbhajan Singh Vs. Press Council of India AIR 2002 SC 1351 (1356).

35. We are aware that the rules of the interpretation are not rules of written or codified law and are not to be followed like rules enacted by legislature in Interpretation Act as observed in Superintendent and Remembrance of Legal Affairs, West Bengal Vs. Corporation of Calcutta AIR 1967 SC 997. The principles of interpretation serve only as a guide. A casus omissus cannot be supplied by Court. There is no presumption that a casus omissus exists. Court should avoid creating a casus omissus where there is none. It would be appropriate to recollect observations of Devlin, L.J. in Gladstone Vs. Bower (1960) 3 All ER 353 (CA), "The Court will always allow the intention of a statute to override the defects of working but the Court's ability to do so is limited by recognized canons of interpretation. The Court may, for example, prefer an alternative construction, which is less well fitted to the words but better fitted to the intention of the Act. But here, there is no alternative construction; it is simply a case of something being overlooked. We cannot legislate for casus omissus."

36. Court in Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board Vs. A. Rajappa and others, AIR 1978 SC 548 (561) quoted with approval, following observation of Lord Simonds in Magor & St. Mellons R.D.C. Vs. Newport Corporation, (1951) 2 All ER 839 (841):

"The duty of the Court is to interpret the words that the Legislature has used. Those words may be ambiguous, but, even if they are, the power and duty of the Court to travel outside them on a voyage of discovery are strictly limited."

37. It would be appropriate at this stage to remind another principle that though a Court cannot supply a real casus omissus, it is equally evident that it should not interpret a statute so as to create casus omissus when there is really none. In Vemareddy Kumaraswamy Reddy and another Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh 2006(2) SCC 670 Court reiterated that while interpreting a provision, Court only interprets the law and cannot legislate. If a provision of law is misused and subject to the abuse of process of law, it is for the legislature to amend, modify or repeal it if deemed necessary. The legislative casus omissus cannot be supplied by judicial interpretative process.

38. In the present case, Section 275(1)(c) is very clear. In the light of above discussions, we answer both the questions in favour of Revenue and against Assessee.

39. The reference stands disposed of accordingly.

Income Tax Appeal No.- 250 Of 2000

Counsel for Appellant:
Manu Ghildiyal, S P Gupta, S.D.Singh

Counsel for Respondent:
C.S.C., A N Mahajan, B.J.Agrawal, Dhananjai Awasthi, R.K.Upadhyay

Held

The High Court dismissed the income tax appeal and upheld the Tribunal's order restoring the assessment made by the Assessing Officer. It held that a statement recorded under Section 132(4) of the Income Tax Act during search and seizure is an important piece of evidence and can validly be relied upon for making additions, though it is not always conclusive by itself. The Court clarified that where the assessee later retracts or explains such statement, the tax authorities must consider that explanation along with books of account and surrounding material. In the present case, the Assessing Officer had not made additions mechanically on the surrendered amount alone, but examined the books, seized documents, and explanations, and then made a reasoned addition of ₹8,12,360, which was less than the surrendered amount. Since the findings of the Tribunal were based on proper appreciation of evidence, both substantial questions of law were answered against the assessee and in favour of the Revenue.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. This is an appeal under Section 260-A of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter to be referred as 'Act, 1961') arising from the judgment and order dated 26.07.1999, passed in Income Tax Appeal No. 1885 (Alld) of 1992, by Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Allahabad Bench, Allahabad (hereinafter to be referred as 'Tribunal') relating to Assessment Year 1990-91.

2. It was admitted on following two substantial questions of law:

"(a) Whether on the fact that cash book of appellant was found duly and completely posted, and no discrepancy was found in it, Tribunal was justified in holding that proviso to Section 145(1) of Income Tax Act is applicable and Assessing Authority was justified in estimating sales and taking out average gross profit of Assessee firm.

(d) Whether Tribunal was justified in holding that assessment should be made on the amount surrendered by Assessee on estimation basis at the time of search."

3. Appellant Assessee (hereinafter to be referred as 'Assessee') filed return for the Assessment Year (hereinafter to be referred as 'A.Y.') 1990-91, showing total income of Rs. 1,83,750/-.

4. Assessing Authority took into consideration the material collected in search and seizure operation conducted at the residential and business premises of Assessee on 22.08.1989 and 23.08.1989 wherein cash, jewellery and some incriminating documents were seized. An order under Section132(5) of Act, 1961 was passed on 15.12.1989 creating a tax liability of Rs. 19,08,468/- including penalty under Section 271(1)(c) of Act, 1961. Assessing Officer examined seized books and loose papers in the light of explanation submitted by Assessee and thereafter, computed income vide order dated 07.03.1992 as under:

S.N.	Particulars	Amount in Rupees
	Net profit as per P & L A/c.	Rs.	71,049/-
1	Depreciation for separate consideration	Rs.	63,725/-
2	Income Tax	Rs.	1,12,705/-
3	Out of car maintenance 1/4th disallowed	Rs.	3,409/-
4	Out of car repairs	Rs.	2,720/-
5	Out of telephone disallowed	Rs.	1,000/-
6	Out of travelling expenses	Rs.	1,000/-
7	Extra profit as discussed as above	Rs.	55,838/-
8	Addition as per Annnexure AK-5 as discussed above	Rs.	7,030/-
9	Addition as per Annnexure AK-4 as discussed above	Rs.	30,030/-
10	Amount surrendered as discussed	Rs.	4,30,367/-

11	Stock surrendered as discussed above	Rs.	10,000/-
12	Profit surrendered U/s 132(4)	Rs.	50,000/-
		Rs.	8,71,873/-

Total Income b/f Rs. 8,71,873/-

Less: Admissible depreciation as under:

Depreciation as claimed Rs. 63,725/- Less: 1/4th disallowed on car UGW-7115 Rs. 4,210/-

Rs. 59,515/-
Rs. 8,12,358/-
or
Rs. 8,12,360/-

Thus the total income comes to Rs. 8,12,360/- on which assessment was completed. Tax effect was as under:

Total Income Rs. 8,12,358/-
Less: Firm's tax Rs. 1,95,414/-
Rs. 6,16,916/-

5. Assessee preferred appeal before Commissioner of Income Tax (Appeals)-I, Kanpur (hereinafter to be referred as 'CIT(A)') which was partly allowed and CIT(A) deleted addition of Rs. 4,30,367/-, 10,000/- and 50,000/- respectively. Besides relief in addition of Rs. 63,030/- and 55,838/- was also granted. The appeal was allowed granting a total relief of Rs. 6,10,235/-.

6. Aggrieved by the aforesaid order of CIT(A), Revenue preferred appeal No. 2117 (Alld)/1992 before Tribunal which has been allowed vide impugned judgment dated 29.09.2000 and reversing order of CIT(A), Tribunal has maintained and restored assessment order passed by Assessing Officer.

7. Sri S.D. Singh, learned Senior Advocate contended that various additions have been made relying on the statement of one of the partner of Assessee firm during search and seizure operation, though, subsequently Assessee retracted and took the stand that such statement was incorrect. He argued that on mere statement of Assessee given during search and seizure operation, additions could not have been made unless corroborated, since such statement per-se is not admissible in evidence. Reliance is placed on judgments in (2010) 328 ITR 411 (Guj) Kailashben Manharlal Chokshi Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, (2013) 14 Taxman 262 (Jhar) Shree Ganesh Trading Co. Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, Dhanbad, (1973) 91 ITR 18 (SC) Pullangode Rubber Produce Co. Ltd. Vs. State of Kerala and another and (2005) 278 ITR 454 (AII) Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Radha Kishan Goel.

8. Learned Senior Counsel stressed upon the fact that no discrepancy in books of account of Assessee was found by Assessing Officer. With regard to Rs. 9 lacs, satisfactory explanation was furnished. No discriminating evidence regarding purchase or stocks was found, other than shown by Assessee in its return. He also pointed out that in similar circumstances in the case of M/s. Vertex Organics (a sister concern of Assessee firm) where also raid was conducted on same dates, Tribunal accepted contention of Assessee and confirmed order of CIT(A) and rejected Revenue's appeal for Assessment Year 1990-91. Copy of this order has been filed as Annexure No. 4 to the memo of appeal.

9. The counsel for Revenue on the contrary submitted that statement given during search operation is admissible in evidence and if there is nothing otherwise, such statement can be relied on for the purpose of making assessment against Assessee.

10. We have heard counsel for the parties at length and perused record.

11. It is not disputed before us that Assessee M/s. Vertex Chemical Industries is a partnership firm in which Sri Brij Lal Bhatia and his wife Smt. Usha Bhatia are partners. At the time of search and seizure, Sri Brij Lal Bhatia, one of the partner, made a statement, recorded by Authorized Officer under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961, and relevant extract thereof reads as under:

''मैं दो फर्मों जिनमें एक फर्म में मैं भागीदार हूँ और एक में मेरी पत्नी भागीदार है – इस दोनों फर्मों में 9 (नौ) लाख रूपए अघोषित आय के रूप में ैननतमदकमत करना चाहता हूँ। किस फर्म की कितनी अघोषित आय किस वर्ष में है यह मैं कागज देखने के बाद बताऊँगा। यह अघोषित आय ैजवबा अचल सम्पत्ति और दूसरे ेमज में प्दअमेजमक है। मैं इस नौ लााख की अघोषित आय पर आयकर अदा करूँगा। मैं यह स्वेच्छा से यह ैननतमदकमत 132(4) के अधीन कर रहा हूँ।''

12. Various additions were made by Assessing Officer in the light of aforesaid statement wherein he ultimately found justification of addition of Rs. 8,12,360/- for Assessment Year in question. Contention of learned counsel for appellant is that on such statement, addition is not justified.

13. Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 reads as under:

*"Section 132(4) - The authorised officer may, during the course of the search or seizure, examine on oath any person who is found to be in possession or control of any books of account, documents, money, bullion, jewellery or other valuable article or thing and any statement made by such person during such examination may thereafter be used in evidence in any proceeding under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (11 of 1922), or under this Act.

Explanation.--For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that the examination of any person under this sub-section may be not merely in respect of any books of account, other documents or assets found as a result of the search, but also in respect of all matters relevant for the purposes of any investigation connected with any proceeding under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (11 of 1922), or under this Act.

(4A) Where any books of account, other documents, money, bullion, jewellery or other valuable article or thing are or is found in the possession or control of any person in the course of a search, it may be presumed--

(i) that such books of account, other documents, money, bullion, jewellery or other valuable article or thing belong or belongs to such person;

(ii) that the contents of such books of account and other documents are true ; and

(iii) that the signature and every other part of such books of account and other documents which purport to be in the handwriting of any particular person or which may reasonably be assumed to have been signed by, or to be in the handwriting of, any particular person, are in that person's handwriting, and in the case of a document stamped, executed or attested, that it was duly stamped and executed or attested by the person by whom it purports to have been so executed or attested."

14. Aforesaid provision makes it very clear that statement recorded on oath during the course of search and seizure by Authorized Officer may be used in evidence in any proceeding under Act, 1961. When something can be used as an evidence, meaning thereby, it is a relevant material to support a finding to be recorded in a particular manner. Such evidence, however, by itself, may not be a conclusive proof of everything, in every case. Whether such statement by itself is credit worthy to draw an inference or requires some further corroboration, depends on facts and circumstances of each case, the documentes and material collected etc. It is founded on the objective consideration by Assessing Authority and in every case neither it can be said that mere statement is sufficient to draw an inference nor it can be said that corroboration is always required.

15. Tribunal has found substance in approving finding of Assessing Officer with regard to additions of different amount, and has held that there was a transaction of Rs. 63,030/- which sought to be explained by stating that it represented receipts of M/s. Vikram Chemical Industries from customers in the capacity of Karta but that explanation was not found correct in view of noting in papers (AK-5) showing that amount have been received in excess. Tribunal has also noted that Sri Brij Lal Bhatia surrendered a sum of Rs. 50,000/- being undisclosed profit from the Firm, M/s. Vertex Chemicals i.e. Assessee for five years from A.Y. 1985-86 to 1989-90 and also surrendered Rs. 10,000/- as unexplained stock found at the time of search. On the date of search, ledger was found written upto June 1989 and same was the position of sale register of firm. Cash book was written up to 21.08.1989. Assessee was not maintaining stock register and bills in respect of purchase and sales, hence the same were not verified.

16. It is in these circumstances, Assessing Officer estimated sales at Rs. 63 lacs against sales disclosed as Rs. 62,36,678/- and applied a gross profit rate ranging from 9.2% to 11.27% during A.Y. 1987-88 to 1990-91. That is how it made addition of Rs. 55,838/-. Tribunal therefore, upheld addition of Rs. 55,834/- and Rs. 63,030/- and held that CIT(A) wrongly deleted the same.

17. With regard to addition of Rs. 4,30,367/-, Rs. 10,000/- being difference on account of stock, out of surrender of Rs. 9 lacs, Tribunal has said in para 7 of judgment as under:

"Regarding the addition of Rs. 4,30,367/- and Rs. 10,000/- being the difference on account of stock out of surrender of Rs. 9 lacs, and Rs. 10,000/- being in respect of unexplained stock, we find that the surrender was made during the course of search in respect of two firms and the Assessee himself was required to state as to what amounts pertained the learned CIT(A) does not appear to be justified in deleting the balance amount merely because the A.O. could find unexplained stock to the extent of Rs. 4,69,633/- whereas the surrender was not only with reference to investment in stock but also with reference to immovable property and other assets and during the course of search, surrender was in view of cash, jewellery and incriminating documents seized. Therefore, without referring the same, the learned CIT(A) is not justified in deleting the balance amount of Rs. 4,30,367/- as to that extent, the A.O. not find unexplained investment in stock. Similarly, the CIT(A) failed to appreciate than the amount of Rs. 50,000/- was surrendered by the Assessee being the profit of the firm M/s. Vertex Chemicals for five years from the Assessment Year 1985-86 to 1989-90 and the same could not be proved by the documentary evidence, therefore, the surrender was rightly considered as pertaining to the year of search and the same holds true in respect of Rs. 10,000/- being unexplained stock surrendered at the time of search. Under the facts and circumstances, the learned CIT (A) is not justified in deleting Rs. 4,30,363/- and Rs. 50,000/- and Rs. 10,000/-. Therefore, his order cannot be sustained with regard to the same."

18. These findings are not shown incorrect. The contention of learned Senior Counsel that accounts were found duly maintained and in order, is not correct. It is coupled with fact that there was voluntary disclosure by one partner of Assessee Firm. Hence, there was no reason, not to act upon evidence collected under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961.

19. There is no material on record to show that statement was obtained by Authorized Officer under any duress or during odd hours or there was any other justification in infer that statement recorded was not voluntary.

20. Various authorities cited on behalf of Assessee, we find, have considered the matter in the light of particular facts involved in those cases, hence do not help appellant in any manner.

21. In Pullangode Rubber Produce Co. Ltd. (supra) there was no issue with regard to a voluntary statement recorded by Authorized Officer during search and seizure operation. The question was, whether entries contained in the account books on the face of it could have been accepted. Therein entries contained in the accounts maintained by Assessee sought to be explained by Assessee differently, so as to reduce his liability. Court held that entries in the account books of Assessee amounts to an admission that amount in question has been laid out or expended for particular purpose though it may not be said to be excess. It is open to the person who made admission to show that it is incorrect. Relevant observations made by Court read as under:

"it is no doubt true that entries in the account books of the Assessee amount to an admission that the amount in question was laid out or expended for the cultivation, upkeep or maintenance of immature plants from which no agricultural income was derived during the previous year. ..... It is open to the person who made the admission to show that it is incorrect."

22. The exposition of law is well established that an admission is the best evidence. It is however, always open to the person making admission to explain the same but whether explanation is credible or not would depend upon the material placed by such person who endeavour to explain his admission. Mere fact that an admission was explained, does not mean that admission will loose its nature of important piece of evidence. Competent authority who has to assess evidence, for valid reasons, can prefer to rely on admission and reject explanation.

23. In the present case, account books having not being found maintained in ordinary course of business and supporting material was also not maintained by Assessee, the alleged explanation of Assessee has rightly been rejected by Assessing Officer and Tribunal has also rightly affirmed the same. The judgment in Pullangode Rubber Produce Co. Ltd. (supra) therefore of no help to Assessee.

24. Then comes Division Bench judgment of this Court in CIT Vs. Radha Kishan Goel (supra). Therein question up for consideration was whether Tribunal was justified in holding that conditions laid down in explanation 5(2) of Section 271(1)(c) were fulfilled and no penalty was leviable therein. It was not a case where any statement was recorded by Authorized Officer during search and seizure operation under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961. In fact, after search and seizure conducted at the premises of Assessee on 30.08.1988, when cash, jewellery and other articles and things were found and seized, Assessee during the course of assessment proceedings, moved an application before Commissioner of Income Tax (hereinafter to be referred as 'CIT') agreeing to settle dispute. Thereupon, CIT made an endorsement that penalty proceedings under Section 271(1)(c) may not be applicable where additional income is discovered as the said income stood surrendered in the statement under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 for which returns were due to be filed within statutory period. Since penalty still was levied hence dispute was with regard to justification of imposition of penalty. Court considered applicability of explanation 5 of Section 271(c) viz-a-viz the statement made under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 and thereafter held as under:

"From a perusal of Explanation 5, it is evident that in circumstances, which otherwise did not attract the penalty provisions of section 271 (1)(c) of the Act, now a deeming provision was introduced as to attract the penalty provisions to those cases as well. But an exception is provided in clause (2) of Explanation 5 where the deeming provision will not apply if during the course of search the Assessee makes the statement under sub-section (4) of section 132 of the Act that the money, bullion, jewellery etc. found in his possession has been acquired out of his income which has not been disclosed so far in his return of income to be furnished before the expiry of time specified in section 139 of the Act and also specifies in the statement the manner in which such income has been derived and pays the tax together with interest, if any in respect of such income. The exception appears to be to provide an opportunity to the Assessee to make a clean and fair confession and to surrender his income and also to deposit the tax and interest thereon which may result in an agreed assessment. The paramount intention appears to be that in case of fair and clean confession and surrender of his income during the course of search further litigation may be avoided and the Revenue may get the tax and interest etc. at an earliest and the Assessee may be saved from further litigation.

Under section 132 (4) of the Act, it is the authorised officer, who examine on oath any person, who is found to be in possession or control of any books of account, documents, money, bullion, jewellery or other valuable article or thing, therefore, it is for the authorised officer to record the statement in his own way. Therefore, it is not expected from the person to state those things, which are not asked by the authorised officer.

It is a matter of common knowledge, which can not be ignored that the search is being conducted with the complete team of the officers consisting of several officers with the police force. Usually telephone and all other connections are disconnected and all ingress and egress are blocked. During the course of search person is so tortured, harassed and put to a mental agony that he loses his normal mental state of mind and at that stage it can not be expected from a person to pre-empt the statement required to be given in law as a part of his defence.

In these circumstances, we are of the view that under section 132 (4) of the Act unless authorised officer puts a specific question with regard to the manner in which income has been derived, it is not expected from the person to make a statement in this regard and in case in the statement the manner in which income has been derived has not been stated but has been stated subsequently, that amounts to the compliance of Explanation 5(2) of the Act. We are also of the opinion that in case there is nothing to the contrary in the statement recorded under section 132 (4) of the Act, in the absence of any specific statement about the manner in which such income has been derived, it can be inferred that such undisclosed income was derived from the business, which he was carrying on or from other sources. The object of the provision is achieved by making the statement admitting the non-disclosure of money bullion, jewellery etc. Thus, we are of the opinion that much importance should not be attached to the statement about the manner in which such income has been derived. It can be inferred on the facts and circumstances of the case, in the absence of anything to the contrary. Therefore, mere non-statement of the manner in which such income was derived would not make Explanation 5 (2) inapplicable.

25. Real dispute was, when explanation 5(2) would be attracted. Court said, when a statement was recorded under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961, the person making statement is not expected to disclose on his own one or more facts but basically such a person replies to the questions asked by Authorized Officer since he examines such person on oath. It cannot be said that such person would state those things which are not asked by Authorized Officer. In absence of any question specifically raised by Authorized Officer with regard to the manner in which disclosed income was derived, it was not expected from person concerned who made statement to give facts in this regard. If such facts are disclosed subsequently, it cannot be said that explanation 5(2) of Section 271(c) is not complied with. Thus, aforesaid judgment does not help appellant in answer questions which we are required to adjudicate.

26. In the judgment of Gujarat High Court in Kailashben Manharlal Chokshi (supra), therein search and seizure operation was conducted at the premises of Assessee on 04.11.1988. Statement under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 was recorded in late night. Assessee made a disclosure of Rs. 7 lacs which included Rs. 4 lacs towards unaccounted investment of house property, Rs. 1 lac towards unaccounted cash and Rs. 1 lac towards unaccounted investment in Gold ornaments. In January 1989, Assessee retracted to the said disclosure and claimed that disclosure was of only Rs. 50,000/-, Assessee submitted before Assessing Officer that disclosure of Rs. 7 Lacs was made under pressure and coercion, hence no cognizance of it should be taken while making assessment. Assessing Officer held that Assessee cannot retract from its disclosure, and made addition. In appeal, CIT(A) confirmed such addition and Tribunal also concurred. It is in these circumstances substantial question of law, came up for consideration before Gujrat High Court in Kailashben Manharlal Chokshi (supra), was:

"Whether on the facts and circumstances of the case, the Tribunal was right in law in confirming the addition of Rs. 7 lakhs as disclosed in the statement under section 132(4) of the Act but retracted thereafter?"

27. Gujarat High Court held that in normal circumstances, it would not interfere in the findings of fact recorded by Revenue Authorities and Tribunal, but it can always look into the facts whether explanation tendered by Assessee at the time of assessment has been considered by authorities below or not. An addition, if made merely on the basis of statement recorded under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 and no cognizance taken of subsequent explanation or retracted statement, such approach on the part of Revenue Authorities is not legal. Court found as a matter of fact, therein, that statement of Assessee was recorded under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 at mid night. In such circumstances, it was too much, to give any credit to statement recorded at odd hours. The person may not be in a position to make any correct or conscious disclosure in a statement if such statement is recorded in such odd hours, particularly when such statement is retracted. Observations to this effect in the judgment are reproduced as under:

"So far as the case on hand is concerned, the glaring fact required to be noted is that the statement of the Assessee was recorded under section 132(4) of the Act at midnight. In normal circumstances, it is too much to give any credit to the statement recorded at such odd hours. The person may not be in a position to make any correct or conscious disclosure in a statement if such statement is recorded at such odd hours. Moreover, this statement was retracted after two months."

28. Court held that mere fact that statement was not retracted immediately but later on, may be an afterthought and might have come after legal advice but still retraction has to be viewed, may be in the light of statement furnished by Assessee along with affidavit and if a proper explanation comes in respect of all the items under which disclosure was made, the same has to be considered and if no discrepancy is found therein, should have to be accepted.

29. In our case, the aforesaid judgment has no application. The reason is that here is not a case of retraction by Assessee but during the course of assessment, documents produced by him have been examined threadbare and thereafter, reasons for addition have been given. This approach is evident from the fact that Assessing Officer has not mechanically made addition of Rs. 9 lacs which was disclosed in the statement under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 but actual addition is only Rs. 8,12,360/- which shows due application of mind on the part of Assessing Officer, which has been affirmed by Tribunal.

30. The last decision cited is a Division Bench judgment of Jharkhand High Court in Shree Ganesh Trading Co. (supra) where also a statement under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 was recorded which was subsequently retracted. Judgment clearly shows that retraction of Assessee virtually remain unconsidered, inasmuch as, it was rejected without giving any reason whatsoever. With regard to the evidenciary value of statement recorded under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 and manner in which it has to be considered, Court has said as under:

"We are of the considered opinion that statement recorded under section 132(4) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 is evidence but its reliability depends upon the facts of the case and particularly surrounding circumstances. Drawing inference from the facts is a question of law. Here in this case, all the authorities below have merely reached to the conclusion of one conclusion merely on the basis of assumption resulting into fastening of the liability upon the Assessee. The statement on oath of the Assessee is a piece of evidence as per section 132(4) of the Income Tax Act and when there is incriminating admission against himself, then it is required to be examined with due care and caution."

31. The aforesaid judgments therefore, unequivocally lay down an exposition of law consistently that a statement recorded under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 is an admission of Assessee and an important piece of evidence, but if subsequently Assessee provides an explanation or retracts from his earlier statement by supporting material to show that disclosure made in statement under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 should not be accepted, Revenue Authorities are bound to consider such explanation or retraction or material brought on record by Assessee and thereafter, decide whether any addition is to be made in the light of statement under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961 or it require some dilution or a total rejection by accepting explanation or retraction of Assessee. The subsequent explanation or retraction or material placed by Assessee can neither be brushed aside nor ignored nor can prevail per-se on the statement under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961, so as to render it worthless.

32. In the present case, Assessing Officer has not made additions merely on such statement. It was looked into the explanation, account books and other material placed before it and then made addition of certain amount which is admittedly less than the amount of disclosure under Section 132(4) of Act, 1961. Tribunal has rightly affirmed the same.

33. We, therefore, answer both the questions against Assessee and in favour of Revenue and confirm the order passed by Tribunal.

34. The appeal accordingly lacks merit and hence is dismissed with cost.

Misc. Bench No.- 16981 Of 2016

Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited ...Petitioner
Versus
Union Of India ...Respondent

Counsel for Petitioner:
Rajeev Kumar Sinha

Counsel for Respondent:
C.S.C., A.S.G.

Held

The Court disposed of the writ petition holding that recovery of cess under the Building and Other Construction Workers' Welfare Cess Act, 1996 cannot be made merely on the basis of a provisional assessment. It was held that the competent authority was under a legal obligation to pass a final assessment order first, after considering the petitioner's objections, and only thereafter recovery proceedings could validly continue. Accordingly, the petitioner was permitted to file objections within 15 days, the authority was directed to pass a final assessment within three weeks, and no coercive recovery steps were to be taken till then, subject to the petitioner's cooperation.

CASE LAW CITED

Builders Association of India v. Union of India

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.
Hon'ble Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajeev Kumar Sinha, learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned standing counsel for the State that has initiated recovery proceedings against the petitioner and a recovery certificate dated 06.07.2016 has been issued which is under challenge in the present writ petition on the ground that the foundation of the recovery namely, the order order dated 10.10.2014 does not conform to the provisions of the Building and Other Construction Workers' Welfare Cess Act, 1996 and the Rules framed thereunder.

2. The contention is that firstly, the petitioner was not involved in any such construction activity for the past one decade so as to get assessed for payment of any payment of cess. Secondly, no proper notices were served on the petitioner and thirdly, there is no final assessment with regard to the cess as per the 1996 Act hence any recovery pursuant to the provisional assessment is without any authority in law.

3. Counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the State where it is alleged that notices had been dispatched to the petitioner and when the petitioner failed to give any response then the Assessing Officer proceeded to provisionally assess the quantum of cess on the basis of information available on record vide order dated 10.10.2014. It is further stated in the counter affidavit that consequent to issuance of notice to deposit after provisional assessment, the petitioner submitted a reply dated 23.02.2015. However, since no cess was deposited, the competent authority was left with no option but to issue a recovery certificate.

4. It is further stated in para-14 of the counter affidavit that the petitioner did not submit the details of the work executed by the petitioner nor any objections were filed earlier pursuant to the notice issued, therefore, no final assessment order could be passed. The fact that no final assessment order has been passed is, therefore, admitted in the counter affidavit.

5. It is here that the learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner cannot be relegated to the alternative remedy of appeal as an appeal would lie against the final assessment order and not a provisional assessment notice.

6. It is also contended that in the absence of any power to make provisional assessment, the exercise is without any authority in law. Having failed to pass a final order in spite of the objections of the petitioner, the recovery proceedings are vitiated.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied on the Division Bench judgment of the Delhi High Court in the case of Builders Association of India Vs. Union of India and another, reported in ILR (2007) Delhi 1143. Learned counsel for the petitioner has invited the attention to the contents of para-36 of the said judgment to urge that the said judgment also indicates that final assessment has to be made whereafter a statutory appeal can be filed.

8. Having considered the submissions raised and having perused the aforesaid documents which have been placed on record as well as the contents of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State, we find that the imposition of the cess is based only on a provisional assessment and the recovery sought to be made on the ground that since the petitioner did not furnish details, therefore, the authority was left with no option but to proceed with the recovery.

9. The fact remains that the 1996 Act provides under Section 3 that after final assessment, the amount so assessed, can be calculated which would be subject to any advance payment of cess in this regard.

10. The collection of cess by way of recovery therefore, can be made after a final assessment order is passed which is, however, subject to appeal under the provisions of 1996 Act. Therefore, the absence of final assessment having not been successfully disputed by the learned standing counsel, we find that the respondent No.3 authority, was under an obligation to make a final assessment before proceeding to issue a recovery certificate.

11. Consequently, in the circumstances indicated above, the petitioner shall file its objection apart from whatever has been stated earlier, within fifteen days from today. The said objection shall be considered and a final assessment order shall be passed by the respondent No.3 within three weeks thereafter. The recovery so initiated shall, therefore, be subject to outcome of any such final orders that shall be passed by the authority as directed hereinabove. The respondent No.3 shall not undertake any coercive steps for recovery till such final orders are passed provided the petitioner files its objection and cooperates with the assessment proceedings.

12. The petition is disposed of with the said directions.

Held

The High Court dismissed the review petition, holding that although it has inherent power to review its own judgments under Article 226 as a court of plenary jurisdiction, such power is limited to error apparent on the face of the record, discovery of new evidence, or other analogous sufficient reasons. The Court rejected the preliminary objection regarding maintainability and limitation, observing that no specific limitation period under Article 124 of the Limitation Act applies to review of writ judgments, and that the petition had been filed within a reasonable period. On merits, the Court held that the issues relating to Section 49 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, Section 34 of the Tenancy Act, Section 6 of the Limitation Act, minority, and succession rights had already been considered in the original writ judgment, and the review petition was merely an attempt to seek a rehearing on merits, which is impermissible in review jurisdiction. Accordingly, no error apparent on the face of record was found and the review was dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy, J.)

1. Heard Shri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Jaspreet Singh, Advocate for the applicants-petitioners and Shri S.K. Kalia, learned Senior Advocate, Shri M. A. Khan, Senior Advocate and Shri Anil Tiwari, Senior, Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Rajat Rajan Singh, Mohd. Adil Khan, Mohd. Shadab Khan and Shri Apoorva Tewari, Advocate.

2. This is an application for review filed by the applicants-petitioners seeking a review of the judgment passed by the Writ Court on 27.04.2010 in Writ Petition No. 349(M/S) of 2007 by which the writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India challenging the judgment dated 15.11.2006 passed by the Board of Revenue arising out of the proceedings in two Suits under Section 229-B and 176 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as 'Land Reforms Act, 1950'), respectively.

3. First and foremost a preliminary objection was raised by the Senior Counsel appearing for the opposite parties no. 4 and 5 on the ground that there was no provision for reviewing the judgment passed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, secondly, the review application had been filed on 11.08.2010 i.e. after almost three months of passing of the judgment dated 27.04.2010, therefore, it was beyond the period of 130 days prescribed under Section 124 of the Limitation Act, 1963, that too, unaccompanied by any application under Section 5 for extension of limitation/condonation of delay in filing the same, therefore, not only interim order could not have been passed therein, but, in fact the review application itself was not maintainable and was liable to be dismissed.

4. Shri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the applicants submitted that power was exercised by this Court by virtue of it being a Court of record having plenary powers to do complete justice between the parties and not under any provision such as Order XLVII C.P.C. etc. thus, the contention that there was no such power of review was misconceived. There is no question of application of the Limitation Act, 1963 to a review application arising out of writ proceeding under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

5. The writ jurisdiction exercised under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is an extraordinary discretionary jurisdiction bestowed on the High Courts. By virtue of Section 141 C.P.C. the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure do not apply to such proceeding, therefore, the provision for review as prescribed under Order XLVII Rule 1 of the said Code, stricto sensu, does not apply to writ proceedings. There is no dearth of decisions to the effect that such powers of review are exercised by this Court in exercise of its inherent plenary powers to do complete justice for which no specific provision is required. It is also very well settled that in view of explanation to Section 141 C.P.C. the Code does not apply to writ proceedings. Nevertheless the exercise of such power can be guided by the Principles contained therein. Reference may be made in this regard to the constitution Bench judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Shivdeo Singh Vs. State of Punjab reported in AIR 1963 SC 1909 wherein it was held that "it is sufficient to say that there is nothing under Article 226 of the Constitution to preclude a High Court from exercising the power of review which inheres in every Court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it".

6. Reference may also be made in this regard to the decision of the Supreme Court reported in (2005) 13 SCC 289; Rajender Singh Vs. Lt. Governor, Andman and Nicobar Islands and others wherein it was held that "the power of judicial review of its own order by the High Court inheres in every court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice." It was also a case of review arising out of proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

7. Reference may also be made to a recent decision of the Supreme Court reported in (2014) 14 SCC 77; State of Rajasthan and another Vs. Surendra Mohnot and others which is on the same lines.

8. As far as the prescription of limitation of 30 days for an application for review of a judgment by a Court other than the Supreme Court under Section 124 of the Scheduled to the Limitation Act, 1963 and its application to the case at hand is concerned, this is an application seeking review of a judgment passed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Reference may be made in this regard to the decision of the Supreme Court reported in (1983) 2 SCC 1; Smt. Sudama Devi Vs. Commissioner and others wherein their Lordships observed that "there is no period of limitation prescribed by any law for filing a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. It is in fact doubtful whether any such period of limitation can be prescribed by law. In any event one thing is clear and beyond doubt that no such period of limitation can be laid down either under rules made by the High Court or by practice. In every case it would have to be decided on the facts and circumstances whether the petitioner is guilty of laches and that would have to be done without taking into account any specific period as a period of limitation." The Supreme Court disapproved the order of the High Court dismissing the writ petition on the ground that it was beyond by time 136 days and that no explanation had been offered in this regard. On similar lines is the decision of the Supreme Court in the case reported in (1998) 8 SCC 685; State of U.P. and Others Vs. Raj Bahadur Singh and Another.

9. It is also well settled that no limitation is prescribed under the Limitation Act, 1963 or otherwise for exercise of inherent powers, whether it be under Section 151 C.P.C. or the power of review as in this case which arises out of proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. A reference may be made in this regard to a Division Bench Judgment of this Court reported in Allahabad Rent Cases, 1990 (2) 444; Iqbal Siddiqui Vs. Smt. Kishwar Jahan (paragraph 19) wherein a plea based on the bar of the limitation prescribed under Section 124 of the Limitation Act was raised in respect of an application for review under Section 151 C.P.C. and not Order XLVII, Rule 1 of C.P.C. The Court was of the view that the prescription of Limitation Act under Article 124 was for a review application which was referable to Order XLVII, Rule 1 C.P.C. but not to an application under Section 151 C.P.C. invoking the inherent powers of the Court. Accordingly, it held that Article 124 of the Schedule contained in the Limitation Act was not involved.

10. Similar view was taken in a case reported in AIR 1929 Oudh 385; Mohammad Raza Vs. Ram Saroop and Others wherein by majority the Full Bench answered that "it is open to a party in a suit to invoke the inherent power of the Court to get the judgment and the decree amended under the provisions of Sections 151, 152 and 153 of the Code quite apart from the limitation applicable to the institution of an appeal or a review whether interference would be justified under such proceeding was a different matter to be considered on merits.

11. The Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 do not contain any substantive provision for review of a judgment passed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India nor do they prescribe any limitation for exercise of the inherent power of review, nay, it could not have. The only provision is contained in Chapter V of Part 1 which is titled "JURISDICTION OF JUDGES SITTING ALONE OR IN DIVISION COURTS" and Rule 12 thereto merely prescribes the procedure as to how an application for review of a judgment shall be presented before the Registrar, who after doing the needful as per the said Rule. On bare perusal of the said Rule the Court finds that it is not a substantive provision prescribing for a review of judgment as aforesaid. Though it states that the Registrar shall present the same before the judge by whom such judgment was delivered along with an office report as to the limitation and sufficiency of Court fees it does not mean that a limitation has been prescribed for review of a judgment rendered under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Chapters XXI and XXII of Part IV of the Rules of the High Court relate to enforcement of fundamental rights (writ in the nature of Habeas Corpus and direction or writ under Article 226 of the Constitution of India other than a writ in the nature of Habeas Corpus). None of the Rules therein contain a substantive provision for reviewing a judgment passed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India or a limitation for the same.

12. As has already been stated herein above, the power to review its judgment inheres in this Court as it exercises plenary jurisdiction to do complete justice and prevent its miscarriage. As there is no limitation prescribed for exercise of inherent power, therefore, it would be wrong to hold that limitation prescribed under Article 124 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act would govern the proceedings in question. Thus Article 124 of Limitation Act, 1963 is not attracted to a Review Petition seeking review of a judgment rendered under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Having said so, the Court can not be unmindful of the legal position that whenever no such limitation is prescribed the action should be taken within a reasonable period. The reasonableness of a period would depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case and no hard and fast Rule can be laid down in this regard.

13. In this case the office/registry though it appears to have calculated the limitation, based on the provision contained under Article 124 of the Limitation Act, which was not applicable, made an endorsement that the Review Petition was within time.

14. In view of the above, the preliminary objection raised by the learned Senior Counsel appearing for the opposite parties that there is no power of review vested in the Court for review of the judgment in question or that it was barred by limitation is hereby rejected. In view of the aforesaid, the requirement of filing of an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 also does not arise though this Court must hasten to add that an explanation for a delay specially when it is inordinate and prejudicial to other side ought to be offered and can be called for by the Court. In the present case, the judgment was delivered on 27.04.2010. The certified copy of the corrected judgment was issued on 10.08.2010 after correction having been made on 17.05.2000. The review application was filed on 11.08.2010 in the Court. Thus, the review application was not filed with inordinate delay. In fact in para 34 a specific plea was raised that there is no limitation for the filing of a writ petition and there is also no limitation for the filing of a review application.

Thus, even on the basis of reasonableness of period, considering the facts of the case, the application for review is not liable to be thrown out, as, it was filed within a reasonable period of judgment passed by the Writ Court.

15. On the merits of the review application Shri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Advocate contended that purport and effect of the bar under Section 49 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (For short 'Holdings Act, 1953), Section 34 of the United Provinces Tenancy Act, 1939 (For short 'the Tenancy Act, 1939), as also, the bar imposed by Section 6 of the Limitation Act, 1963 were not considered and appreciated by the Writ Court while passing the judgment under review. The Court failed to appreciate that by virtue of Section 34 of the Tenancy Act, 1939 the property, consequent to the death of her husband in the year 1950, devolved upon her by application of Muslim Personal Law as mentioned therein and not by Section 35 of the said Act. He contended that Shafiqur Rahman was duly represented through his Aunt in the proceeding before the consolidation authorities and after attaining majority he did not initiate any legal proceedings assailing the validity of the said orders passed by the consolidation authorities. In fact it was Atiqur Rahman, who in fact was a major at the relevant time and had contested the case, who filed the suit under Section 229-B of the U.P.Z.A.L.R. Act, 1950, that too, after the filing of a suit by the petitioners under Section 176 of the U.P.Z.A.L.R. Act, 1950 for demarcation/ partition of their share as already determined in the consolidation proceeding which had attained finality. He also contended that in the suit filed by the Atiqur Rahman the factum of the earlier consolidation proceedings and orders passed therein, which had attained finality up to the Deputy Director of Consolidation Level, were not disclosed and thus, a fraud was committed which vitiates the entire proceedings, but, this aspect of the matter has not been considered by the Writ Court while deciding the writ petition. It was contended that the initial suit filed by Atiqur Rahman in the year 1985 was based on adverse possession which presumed acceptance of the title of the petitioner and there was no claim based on Section 172 of the Land Reforms Act, 1950 on account of the subsequent marriage of the petitioners, therefore, without thereby being any pleading and any such ground in the suit the Board of Revenue had erred in allowing the claim of the respondents on the said count.

16. Per-contra learned Senior Counsel appearing for the respondents contended firstly that whatever has been argued was neither pleaded in the writ petition nor has it been pleaded in the review application, therefore, the same can not be considered. The pleas based on Section 35 of the Tenancy Act, 1939 and the bar of Section 49 of the Holdings Act, 1953, as also, the question of minority of the Shafiqur Rahman at the time of consolidation proceedings had been considered by the Writ Court while passing the judgment, therefore, the said issues are not open for re-consideration in proceedings for review. When the consolidation proceedings took place Shafiqur Rahman was admittedly minor and the Consolidation Court did not appoint any guardian in terms of Rule 14 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Rules, 1954 (For short 'Consolidation Rules, 1954') under which only a male could have been appointed. It is alleged by the petitioners that his Aunt who had been appointed in some other proceedings by the Civil Court had represented his interest which was clearly in-violation of Rule 14 of the Consolidation Rules, 1954. These aspects have been considered by the Board of Revenue and the Writ Court. Moreover, after the death of Fazlur Rahman, the petitioner his wife remarried in the year 1952, similarly petitioner no. 2 who was the daughter also got married, therefore, by virtue of provisions contained in Section 172 of the Land Reforms Act, assuming that any share in the estate of Fazlur Rahman (¼ share) devolved upon them, the same stood devolved back upon Shafiqur Rahman who was the nearest surviving male heir of Fazlur Rahman. Section 172 (2) would apply even to the case of petitioners who had allegedly inherited an interest in the holdings before the date of vesting. In the case of petitioner no. 2 Section 172(1) was applicable.

17. Further more, the plea based on Section 34 of the Tenancy Act, 1939 was absolutely misconceived and misleading, as, by the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Act 1937, Section 2 thereof, an exception was carved out by the words 'save questions relating to agricultural land' meaning thereby such Muslim Personal Law was not applicable to questions relating to agriculture land, therefore, the petitioners could not have inherited any interest/share in the agricultural holding of Fazlur Rahman which had to devolve on the male heir i.e. Shafiqur Rahman, who was a minor at that time. These aspects have been considered by the Board of Revenue.

18. Further more, it was contended that the reliance placed on Section 6 of the Limitation Act was also misconceived, as, for a suit under Section 229-B of the Land Reforms Act, no limitation was prescribed. He referred to the said provision, as also, opening line of Section 342 read with Rule 338 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Rules, 1952 and Appendix III referred therein, a conjoint reading of which makes its ample clear that no such limitation is prescribed for initiating proceedings under Section 229-B. It being so the application of Section 6 of Limitation Act was misconceived.

19. Section 49 of the Holdings Act, 1953 would not be a bar in case where the party concerned was a minor and there was no compliance of Rule 14 of the Holdings Act, 1953, specially, when Section 172 of the Land Reforms Act, 1952 was applicable and in view of the Shariat Act 1937 the petitioners could not have inherited the property of Fazlur Rahman as Muslim Personal Law was not applicable in such matters. The ¼ share allegedly granted by the Consolidation Authorities was patently erroneous and was not saved by Section 49 of the Act, 1953.

20. It was further contended that in the garb of a review application the matter could not be reheard. Distinction between a review proceeding and appellate proceeding was also highlighted.

21. While it is true that there is nothing in Article 226 of the Constitution of India to preclude the High Court from exercising the power of review which inheres in every Court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it but it is also equally true that there are limits to the exercise of such power of review. Such power may be exercised on the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within the knowledge of the persons seeking review or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made, which is not the case here; it may be exercised where some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record is found; it may also be exercised on any other sufficient reason. The words "any other sufficient reason" means "a reason sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those referred hereinabove. (AIR 1954 SC 526; Moran Mar Basselios Catholicos and Anr. Vs. The Most Rev. Mar Poulose Athanasius and Ors.).

22. As far as the term 'error or mistake apparent on the face of the record' is concerned, by its very connotation it signifies an error which is evident per-se from the records of the case and does not require any detailed examination, scrutiny and illustration either on facts or legal position. If an error is not evident and detection thereof requires long debate and process of reasoning it can not be treated as an error apparent on the face of the record for the purpose of order XLVII Rule 1 C.P.C. or review proceeding based on the principals contained therein. An order or decision merely because it is erroneous can not be reviewed on the ground that a different view could have been taken on a point of fact or law, as, the Court would not sit in appeal over its judgment. The decision being erroneous in law, is no ground for ordering review, unless of course the error in law is so palpable that there could be no other view in the sense that the matter had already been set at rest by any previous judgment of the Court or a higher Court from which there was no escape. Reference may be made in this regard to the Judgment of the Supreme Court dated 13.12.2012 rendered in Review Petition (C) No. 272 of 2007 arising out of Writ Petition (C) No. 633 of 2005.

23. The Court has carefully perused the pleadings of the original writ proceeding as also the review proceeding. The Court finds that various pleas which have been raised by Shri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Counsel, no foundation for the same was/has been laid either in the pleadings of the writ petition or in the review application. It has not been said in the review application and the affidavit in its support that pleas based on fraud in not disclosing the earlier consolidation proceeding and provisions of Section 34 of the Tenancy Act, 1939 etc., were argued before the Writ Court but had not been taken into consideration.

24. In the review application it has been, inter alia, stated that the Writ Court committed a manifest error of law in not recording any finding in the light of the bar of Section 49 of the Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 specially as the consolidation proceedings which were hotly contested had attained finality up to the level of the Deputy Director of Consolidation. On a perusal of the judgment of the Writ Court, it is found that the bar of Section 49 of the Holdings Act, 1953 has been specifically considered and it was held that the same was not applicable. The Court has also taken into consideration the consolidation proceedings which have been referred by the petitioners, therefore, this ground is not available for seeking a review.

25. The other ground raised is that Writ Court erred in holding that the interests of the minor were not properly watched during the consolidation of holdings proceeding, as, no prejudice was caused, the petitioners having been held entitled to only ¼ share in the holdings of Fazlur Rahman, the rest having been made available to the opposite parties and that the Writ Court ignored the provisions of Section 6 of the Limitation Act. In this regard the Court is of the view that once the issue of minority of Shafiqur Rahman being barred by Section 49 of the Holdings Act, 1953 was considered by the Writ Court, then, to say that conclusions drawn were without any basis or justification may be a ground for appeal against the said judgment, but, not for seeking review.

26. As far as Section 6 of the Limitation Act is concerned, certainly this plea was raised by way of an amendment. The Writ Court while passing the judgment has categorically referred that it has gone through the contents of the writ petition including paragraphs 30-A, 30-B and 30-C which have been brought on record by application dated 23.04.2010 and the grounds A to H made in the writ petition as well as the counter and rejoinder affidavits filed by the contesting parties. It is also mentioned that it has perused various orders passed by the Revenue Authorities which are available on record. Now, ground-G is based on Section 6 of the Limitation Act. After the death of Fazlur Rahman in the year 1950 but before the date of vesting, the petitioner no. 1 is alleged to have inherited 1/4th share in his property, the petitioner no. 2 did so subsequently. It is also not out of place to mention that the land in question was agricultural land and this fact is not in dispute. The consolidation proceedings are said to have been completed sometimes in the year 1964. Under the orders of the Consolidation Authorities it is said that petitioners were held entitled to ¼ share in the holdings of Fazlur Rahman on the basis of Muslim Personal Law. Shri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Advocate referred to Section 34 of the Tenancy Act, 1939 which according to him permitted devolution of holdings in accordance with the Personal Law to which the deceased was subject, in case a permanent tenure holder, a fix rate tenant, an occupancy or an ex-proprietary tenant in Oudh or a tenant holding on special terms in Oudh, dies. Assuming for a moment that Fazlur Rahman belonged to one of the category of tenants referred in Section 34 of the Tenancy Act, 1939, the application of Personal Law referred therein did not by itself make Muslim Personal Law applicable in view of the bar contained in Section 2 of the Shariat Act, 1937. When confronted Shri Chandra could not give any satisfactory reply on this issue. In Section 35 of the Tenancy Act, 1939 the holding of Fazlur Rahman was to devolve on a male lineal descendant in the male line of descent. The petitioners did not fall in this category. The order of the Consolidation Officer is not on record. It is not clear as to whether the petitioners had disclosed the factum of remarriage in those proceedings, as, under Section 172, even assuming that any interest had devolved upon them, the same would devolve back on the nearest surviving male heir.

27. Further more the writ proceeding arose out of a suit filed by the petitioners under Section 176 for division of their holdings based on the orders of the Consolidation Courts passed earlier and a suit under Section 229-B filed by Atiqur Rahman claiming that even after earlier consolidation proceeding he and others remained in possession and also on the basis of the factum of remarriage of the petitioners (Section 172 of the Land Reforms Act), therefore, it can not be said that the consolidation proceedings were not disclosed, may be, not in so many words, but, they were certainly referred in the plaint by way of an amendment. Both the suits were decided together. The proceedings ultimately went up to the Board of Revenue wherein it was held that the minor's interest was not represented properly. No guardian was appointed in terms of the Rule 14 of the Consolidation Rules, 1954. The petitioners had remarried thereby attracting the provisions of Section 172. The Board of Revenue decided the matter against the petitioners whereupon they filed the writ petition which was also decided against them.

28. It is not out of place to mention that for initiating a proceeding under Section 229-B of the Land Reforms Act, 1950 no limitation is prescribed under the Land Reforms Act. The application of the Limitation Act, 1963 to the proceeding under the said Act is qualified by the opening words 'unless otherwise expressly provided for by or under this act'. Section 229-B does not prescribe any limitation. The U.P. Consolidation Holdings Rules, 1954 have been made under the Consolidation of Holdings Act 1953. Rule 338 provides that the suit, applications and other proceedings specified in the Appendix III shall be instituted within the time specified therein for them, respectively. This provision was inserted vide notification dated 27.04.1963. A perusal of Appendix III referred therein, specially the entry at Serial No. 39-B which was inserted by notification dated 16.11.1954 and relates to a suit under Section 229-B and the entry in Column No. 4 and 5 corresponding to the same, show that the word 'none' is mentioned therein. The heading of the said column is 'Period of Limitation' and 'Time from which period begins to run' which makes it amply clear that no such limitation is prescribed for such proceedings under Section 229-B.

29. For the reasons aforesaid, the pleas raised by the petitioners seeking review including the plea based on Section 6 of the Limitation Act, 1963 is misconceived. This Court while hearing a review application can not sit in appeal over the judgment passed in the writ proceeding nor can it review the judgment based on a rehearing of the matter.

30. In view of the law laid down in various judgments already referred herein above, the Court does not find any valid ground for reviewing the judgment dated 27.04.2010 passed in Writ Petition No. 349(M/S) of 2007.

31. The review application is, accordingly, dismissed. There shall be no orders as to costs.

Held

The Division Bench disposed of the special appeal and upheld the order of the learned Single Judge closing the contempt proceedings on the ground of substantial compliance of the writ court's directions. The Court held that in civil contempt, the test is whether there exists a positive command and its wilful or deliberate disobedience. Since compliance by the State was not disputed and only the degree of compliance was questioned, no interference was warranted. However, the Court clarified that the State authorities remain duty-bound to ensure full and effective compliance of the earlier judgment, and the appellants are free to seek any other remedy available in law.

CASE LAW CITED

Midnapore Peoples Cooperative Bank Ltd. v. Chunilal Nanda
Special Deputy Collector (LA) v. N. Vasudeva Rao
S.M.A. Abdi v. Private Secretaries Brotherhood

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. This appeal has been filed under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 as an intra-Court Appeal in a matter arising out of a Civil Contempt Application No.2171 of 2014 that had been filed alleging disobedience of the judgment dated 8.1.2014 in Writ Petition No.2071 (MS) of 2011. A dispute had arisen in relation to extending the benefit of grant-in-aid to the petitioner-Madarsa which was brought to this Court assailing the Government Order dated 13.12.2006 and an order dated 29.9.2006 in Writ Petition No.78 (MS) of 2007. The orders were quashed and a direction was given to the State Government to re-consider the case of the petitioners for extension of such benefits. The writ petition had been allowed on 23.7.2008 only on the issue of violation of principles of natural justice.

2. The State Government passed an order dated 17.2.2010 denying the benefit of grant-in-aid to the petitioner on the ground that there is a dispute about the Management of the Committee of the institution. The order was challenged that merely because there was a dispute, the same cannot result in denial of the benefit of grant-in-aid. The said order was quashed on 3.12.2010 and it was held that the grant-in-aid cannot be denied or withdrawn on account of such a dispute.

3. An order thereafter came to be passed by the State Government on 14.1.2011 whereby the inclusion of the name of the petitioner-Madarsa in the grant-in-aid list initially was cancelled. This writ petition No.2071 (MS) of 2011 was allowed vide judgment dated 8.1.2014.

4. Owing to non-compliance of the aforesaid judgment dated 8.1.2014, contempt application No.2171 of 2014 was filed.

5. It appears that an affidavit was filed on behalf of the State bringing on record the order dated 19.11.2014 indicating compliance of the judgment and extension of the benefit to the petitioner-institution. The learned Judge dealing with contempt matters, on such an affidavit being filed, has treated the same to be a substantial compliance of the directions of the Writ Court and has accordingly terminated the contempt proceedings.

6. Dr. L.P. Misra has raised a grievance that since the learned Single Judge has failed to exercise his jurisdiction, then keeping in view the judgment in the case of Midnapore Peoples' Cooperative Bank Ltd. v. Chunilal Nanda [(2006) 5 SCC 399] as also the judgment of the Apex Court in Special Deputy Collector (LA) v. N. Vasudeva Rao and others [(2007) 14 SCC 165], a Special Appeal is maintainable for the redressal of the grievances of the appellants.

7. He further submits that on account of the termination of the proceedings, an appeal under the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 cannot be preferred under Section 19 thereof and consequently, the present appeal would be maintainable. For this, he has placed reliance on the Division Bench Judgment in the case of S.M.A. Abdi, the Principal Secretary (Law), Government of U.P., U.P. Secretariat, Lucknow and another v. Private Secretaries Brotherhood, Office of the U.P. State Law Officers and others [2010 (81) ALR 351].

8. We have considered the aforesaid submissions raised and what we find is that the Division Bench judgment in the case of S.M.A. Abdi (supra), in paragraph - 2 thereof, has clearly indicated that the compliance of the judgment in that case was in relation to protection and bifurcation of a cadre of Private Secretaries in the Office of U.P. State Law Officers that had been interpreted by the learned Judge dealing with a contempt application in a manner which was found to be travelling beyond the directions that had already been issued by the Writ Court on the merits of the matter. The judgments cited by the learned Counsel for the appellants in the other two decisions referred to here-in-above also relate to directions being issued by the Contempt Court which can be termed to be beyond the directions of the Writ Court. Here, the contention is that the learned Judge has failed to exercise jurisdiction.

9. We have examined the same and we find that the learned Single Judge has clearly recorded that the compliance indicates 'a substantial compliance'. The learned Judge dealing with the contempt matter has not overstepped his authority in issuing any directions which may run counter to the directions of the Writ Court.

10. The grievance of the appellants is to the effect that the authority by not complying with the directions in it's entirety is not respecting the Majesty of this Court and therefore, the Court itself should take action as the matter of contempt is between the Court and the contemnor. It is urged that since there is a failure on this count, an appeal would be maintainable under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 against a failure to exercise jurisdiction.

11. The issue which appears to be is of whether there is a substantial compliance or only a minuscule compliance of the directions of the Writ Court. In our opinion, the fact that there is a compliance has not been disputed. It is the degree of compliance which is being stated to be deficient and on that count, the enforcement has been prayed for by taking action.

12. A civil contempt has to be tested on the anvil of the existence of a positive command and it's wilful or deliberate disobedience by the contemnor.

13. An avoidance to comply by a ploy of mist or a pretence of obedience must be investigated before arriving at any conclusion of substantial compliance.

14. A compliance should not be a mere device to avoid punishment. The genuineness of the attempt and desire to obey the command should not be doubtful or deceitful.

15. The weapon of contempt is to ensure the existence of rule of law and this is achieved by instilling a fear of punishment on wilful disobedience.

16. The very purpose of contempt would be frustrated if disobedience is not suitably dealt with and is allowed to be perpetuated with impunity by observing abstinence.

17. The majesty of law, and the institution of Courts created to protect and enforce laws, would be at peril if situations of contempt are not dealt with deftly and promptly.

18. Compliance of a command has to be complete and effective so as to execute it in pith and substance. Any superficial handling or an intentional avoidance or a careless and casual approach would be skipping over the tolerant limits of judicial commands.

19. We find that the learned Single Judge has not committed any error in arriving at the conclusion of a substantial compliance, but at the same time, we may observe that the State Authorities are duty bound to ensure compliance effectively. We therefore do not find any ground to interfere with the order impugned, but keeping in view the nature of the relief that has been claimed by the appellants, we deem it fit and proper in the peculiar facts of this case to enable the authorities to proceed for compliance of the judgment dated 8.1.2014 in it's entirety that may be necessary keeping in view the contents of paragraph - 10 of the order of the State Government dated 19.11.2014. The disposal of this appeal or the termination of the contempt proceedings will not be an impediment in the passage of the appellants to seek any further remedy in law before this Court.

20. The Special Appeal stands disposed off accordingly.

Held

The High Court held that a release application under Section 21(1)(a) of the U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 is maintainable for the bona fide need of the landlady's daughter-in-law, even though a daughter-in-law is not expressly included in the definition of "family" under Section 3(g). The Court observed that the term "family" has a wide and flexible meaning and must be interpreted in the factual context. Since the landlady's son is unquestionably a member of her family, his wife cannot be treated as belonging to a separate family, especially when there was no pleading or evidence showing that she lived separately. The Court emphasized that husband and wife must ordinarily be treated as part of the same family unit. Therefore, the need of the daughter-in-law to establish a P.C.O. business was accepted as the need of a family member, and the concurrent findings of bona fide need and comparative hardship recorded by the courts below were upheld. Accordingly, the writ petition was dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Mithal, J.)

1. The tenant Rais Ahmad has preferred this petition aggrieved by the judgement and order of release of the shop occupied by him by the courts below.

2. The release application was filed by Smt. Kusum Sharma, the respondent landlord under Section 21(1)(a) of the U.P. Act No.13 of 1972 (hereinafter referred to as the Act) alleging that the shop in dispute is required by her genuinely for establishing her daughter-in-law Smt. Jyoti Sharma, the wife of younger son Pankaj Sharma to run a P.C.O. to augment the income of the family.

3. The release application P.A. Case No.35 of 2012 was allowed by the judgement and order dated 12.03.2014 and the appeal preferred by the tenant was dismissed on 21.12.2015.

4. I have heard Sri Ramendra Asthana, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Salil Kumar Rai, learned counsel for the respondent. Both of them agreed for the final disposal of the petition.

5. Sri Asthana, has argued that the release application under Section 21(1) of the Act can be filed by the landlord for occupation by himself or any member of his family. The daughter-in-law of the landlady is not a member of her family. Therefore, she is not entitle to the release of the shop for the need of her daughter-in-law.

6. Sri Salil Kumar Rai, learned counsel for the respondent on the other hand contends that no such plea was raised by the petitioner in the courts below. The release application has been filed by the landlady for establishing her daughter-in-law, who is part and parcel of her family being the wife of the son of the landlady.

7. Section 21(1)(a) of the Act provides that landlord may apply to the prescribed authority for the release of the tenanted accommodation, if it is bonafidely required by him for occupation by himself or any member of his family. Thus, the need for the building has to be that of landlord or any member of his family.

8. The word 'landlord' has been defined in Section 3(j) of the Act to mean a person to whom the rent is or would be payable. In view of the aforesaid definition of the landlord, even a person authorised to collect rent on behalf of the owner would be a landlord but it is settled that for the purposes of Section 21 of the Act, the mere collector of rent cannot be recognised as the landlord and that a person having some better rights than mere collecting of rent in the shape of ownership would be the landlord.

9. The word 'family' has been defined in Section 3(g) of the Act to mean a spouse, male lineal descendants such parents, grand-parents and any unmarried or widowed or divorced or judicially separated daughter or daughter of a male lineal descendant, as may have been normally residing with him or her and includes, in relation to a landlord any female having a legal right of resident in the building.

10. In short, the family of the landlord comprises of himself his spouse male lineal descendants, grand-parents and unmarried, widowed, divorced, judicially separated daughter or daughter of the male lineal descendants normally residing with him including any other family having a right of resident in the building.

11. The above definition of the family does not cover the wife of the male lineal descendant.

12. It is only for the above reason that Sri Asthana, emphasis that the daughter-in-law is not part of the family of the landlord and the release application for her need is not maintainable.

13. It may not be out of context to mention here that the last clause of Section 3(g) of the Act which defines family to include any female having a legal right of residence in the building cannot be applied to cases where the release is sought of a commercial building or shop and not of residential building.

14. In Sardar Ishwar Singh Vs. Smt. Kamta Devi and others 1980 ARC 291 it has been held that the last clause of the definition of the family contain in Section 3(g) of the Act "including, in relation to a landlord, any female having a legal right of residence in that building" is not applicable in respect of non-residential building. Therefore, the daughter-in-law of the landlord even if having a legal right of resident with her would not be part of the family of the landlord for the purposes of the release of the shop in dispute under Section 21 of the Act.

15. Another decision of this court in Thakurdeen Vs. Smt. Hero Devi and others 1984 (2) ARC 117 holds that ordinarily daughter-in-law of the landlord is beyond the ambit Section 3(g) of the Act and would not be included in the family of the landlord.

16. The aforesaid decision however further lays down that the use of the words "occupation by the landlord or member of his family" in Section 21 of the Act means not strictly the landlord or the members of his family but also those persons who normally reside with him. Thus, the need of landlord's daughter-in-law, who normally lives with him can also be considered for the release of accommodation.

17. In other words, the daughter-in-law of the landlord though not expressly included within the definition of the family of the landlord but would be deemed to be part of his family if she is normally residing with him. Thus, daughter-in-law of the landlord in certain circumstances can be part of the family of the landlord for whose need an application under Section 21 of the Act can be filed by the landlord.

18. In Jagdish Singh Vs. Additional District & Sessions Judge, Dehradun and others 1978 ARC 330 while considering the provisions of Section 21 and Section 3(g) of the Act, the court held that a conjoint reading of the above provisions show that a person liable to be maintained by the landlord is a member of his family. A daughter-in-law is liable to be maintained by the father-in-law after the death of her husband and as such is very much part of the family of the father-in-law for whose need the release application is maintainable.

19. Even close relatives of the landlord like his nephew, nephew's wife and children living with him have been treated to be part of his family within the meaning of Section 3(g) of the Act in order to maintain a release application vide Keshav Narain Sharma Vs. Ist A.D.J. Lucknow and others 1981

ARC 627. In one another case Shayam Sunder Misra Vs. Vith A.D.J. and others 1989 (2) ARC 122 this court held that the need of the persons, who do not come within the definition of the family of the landlord can also be considered if it is found that they are living with the landlord for assisting him.

20. In Smt. Kanti Devi and others Vs. Ist A.D.J., Bahraich and others 1998 (1) ARC 288 it has been held that even a son of a married widowed daughter of the landlord living with him and supporting him is part of the family for whose need an application for release under Section 21 of the Act can be filed even though technically she may not fall within the definition of the family as per Section 3(g) of the Act.

21. The Apex Court in K.V. Muthu Vs. A. Ammal AIR 1997 S.C. 628 observed that the word 'family' is of great flexibility and is capable of different meanings. Even if a particular person is not strictly included in the definition of the family of the landlord as given under Section 3(g) of the Act still a release application for the need of such a person is maintainable in certain circumstances. In the said case the need for nephew of the landlord, who was brought by him as his son was held to be a need of the family member of the landlord and the release application in that regard was entertained.

22. The crux of the above decisions vis-a-vis the definition of family contained in Section 3(g) of the Act is that the word family is of very wide connotation and even if any person may not strictly fall within its ambit but still may be treated to be part of the family of the landlord in certain circumstances for the purposes of maintaining a release application under Section 21(1) of the Act.

23. In the instant case, the landlady has two sons Manoj Sharma and Pankaj Sharma both married. The landlady has set up the need for her daughter-in-law that is the wife of his younger son. The two sons are very much the family members of the landlady. Since her sons are members of her family it obviously includes their wives also with them. The wives of the sons cannot be separated from the said family. It is beyond imagination to conceive of an idea that the husband would be part of one family and his wife would be part of another family. They both have to go together to be included in one family and if the son is the family member of the landlady, his wife also acquires the same status.

24. In addition to the above, in the absence of any pleadings and evidence that the daughter-in-law of the landlady is living separately and not as part of her family or that the landlady is not enjoying the company of her daughter-in-law, it is but natural to treat her as a person of the family of the landlady.

25. Accordingly, an application for release for the need of the daughter-in-law of the landlady is held to be maintainable.

26. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, as no other point was raised and the matter stands concluded by the findings of fact on bona fide need and comparative hardship as are recorded concurrently by the courts below, I find no merit in the petition and the same is dismissed with no order as to costs.

The High Court held that the fresh disciplinary proceedings initiated against the retired employee under Regulation 351-A of the Civil Services Regulations were barred by limitation and therefore illegal. It was ruled that once the earlier charge-sheet and inquiry report were set aside and a de novo inquiry with a fresh charge-sheet was directed after the petitioner's retirement, the proceedings would be deemed to have been instituted only from the date of the fresh charge-sheet, not the original 2005 charge-sheet. Since the alleged misconduct related to the period May 1998 to June 2000, and the fresh charge-sheet was issued only after retirement in 2011, it related to events more than four years old, violating the mandatory bar under Regulation 351-A proviso (a)(ii). Accordingly, the order directing fresh inquiry was quashed. Consequently, the order denying the petitioner's second promotional pay scale solely on the ground of pending disciplinary proceedings was also set aside, and the respondents were directed to reconsider his claim along with retiral and pensionary benefits in accordance with law.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. These two petitions filed by a retired Assistant Engineer of the Public Works Department seek to challenge (i) the order dated 2 September 2009 by which the State Government has disapproved the report dated 27 January 2007 submitted by the Inquiry Officer in course of disciplinary proceedings held against the petitioner and considering the fact that the petitioner had retired on 31 July 2009 has directed for issuing fresh charge-sheet and for continuing the disciplinary proceedings in accordance with Regulation 351-A of the Civil Services Regulations1 and (ii) the order dated 15 April 2015 negating the claim of the petitioner for grant of second promotional pay scale on account of pendency of the disciplinary proceedings.

2. The main submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the charges relate to the alleged irregularities committed by the petitioner during the period May 1998 to June 2000 whereas he retired on 31 July 2009 on attaining the age of superannuation. Thus, the charge against the petitioner relates to an event which took place more than four years before the institution of the fresh proceedings against him. It is urged that under Regulation 351-A, the Governor is competent to grant sanction for instituting proceedings only in respect of an event which took place not more than four years. However, in the instant case, the petitioner having retired on 31 July 2009 and the charges being in respect of an event which took place more than four years thus, could not form subject matter of disciplinary proceedings instituted at this stage.

3. On the other hand, learned Standing Counsel contended that the proceedings were initiated against the petitioner with the appointment of the Inquiry Officer by order dated 18 October 2005. Since the petitioner did not submit any reply to the charge-sheet issued to him by the Inquiry Officer, the enquiry was concluded exparte. The State Government finding that the enquiry was conducted without following the procedure prescribed under the Uttar Pradesh Government Servant (Discipline & Appeal) Rules, 19992, directed for continuing the enquiry proceedings as per the Regulation 351-A. In other words, the submission of learned Standing Counsel is that the enquiry against the petitioner having commenced prior to retirement, the bar contained under Regulation 351-A would not be attracted.

4. Before coming to the submission advanced by learned counsel for the parties, certain background facts deserve to be noted. The charge against the petitioner was in relation to alleged irregularities committed by him while he was posted as Assistant Engineer, Provincial Division, Public Works Department, Bansi, District Siddharth Nagar during the period May 1998 to June 2000. By an order dated 18 October 2005, a charge-sheet was issued to the petitioner and the Chief Engineer, Public Works Department, Gorakhpur was nominated as the Inquiry Officer. The petitioner did not submit his reply and consequently the Inquiry Officer concluded the enquiry exparte and submitted an enquiry report dated 27 January 2007. After considering the enquiry report, the proposal for imposing punishment upon the petitioner was sent to Uttar Pradesh Public Service Commission3 on 4 February 2008. The Commission by letter dated 9 July 2009 raised various objections in regard to the manner in which the enquiry was conducted. The State Government revisited the matter and found various deficiencies in the disciplinary proceedings. The Inquiry Officer had not conducted oral enquiry to bring home the charges levelled against the petitioner. The State Government, therefore, did not approve the report of the Inquiry Officer dated 27 January 2007 and it was accordingly, set aside with further direction for holding a de novo enquiry by issuing a fresh charge-sheet to the petitioner. It was further provided, having regard to the fact that the petitioner had retired on 31 July 2009, that the disciplinary proceedings shall be continued in accordance with the provisions of Regulation 351-A.

5. Regulation 351-A of the Civil Service Regulations is extracted below for convenience of reference :-

"351-A. The Governor reserves to himself the right of withholding or withdrawing a pension or any part of it, whether permanently or for a specified period and the right of ordering the recovery from a pension of the whole or part of any pecuniary loss caused Government, if the pensioner is found in departmental or Judicial proceedings to have been guilty of grave misconduct, or to have caused pecuniary loss to Government by misconduct or negligence, during his service, including service rendered on re-employment after retirement:

Provided that-

(a) such departmental proceedings, if not instituted while the officer was on duty either before retirement or during reemployment-

i. shall not be instituted save with the sanction of the Governor.

ii. shall be in respect of an event which took place not more than four years before the institution of such proceeding; and

iii. shall be conducted by such authority and in such place or places as the Governor may direct and in accordance with the procedure applicable to proceedings on which an order of dismissal from service may be made.

(b) Judicial proceedings, if not instituted while the officer was on duty either before retirement or during re-employment, shall have been instituted in accordance with sub-clause (ii) of clause (a); and

(c) the Public Service Commission, U.P. shall be consulted before final orders are passed.

[Provided further that of the order passed by the Governor relates to a cash dealt with under the Uttar Pradesh Disciplinary Proceedings, (Administrative Tribunal) Rules, 1947, it shall not be necessary to consult Public Service Commission].

Explanation - For the purposes of this article-

(a) Departmental proceeding shall be deemed to have been instituted when the charges framed against the pensioner are issued to him or, if the officer has been placed under suspension from and earlier date, on such date; and

(b) judicial proceedings shall be deemed to have been instituted :

(i) in the case of criminal proceedings, on the date on which complaint is made, or a charge-sheet is submitted, to a criminal court; and

(ii) in the case of civil proceedings, on the date on which the plaint is presented or, as the case may be, an application is made to a Civil court.

Note- As soon as proceedings of the nature referred to in this article are instituted the authority which institutes such proceedings shall without delay intimate the fact to the Audit Officer concerned."

6. Regulation 351-A empowers the Governor to withhold or withdraw the pension or any part of it, permanently or for a specified period and to order recovery from a pension whole or part of any pecuniary loss caused to the Government if the pensioner is found in the departmental or judicial proceedings to have been guilty of grave misconduct, or to have caused pecuniary loss to the Government by misconduct or negligence during his service. The said power is hedged with various safeguards in favour of the pensioner. The departmental proceedings could not be instituted after retirement (i) without the sanction of the Governor; (ii) shall not be instituted in respect of an event which took place more than four years before the institution of the proceedings; and (iii) shall be conducted by such authority or in such place or places as the Governor may direct and in accordance with the procedure applicable to proceedings on which an order of dismissal from service may be made.

7. The main issue before the Court is the date on which the departmental proceedings would be deemed to have been instituted against the petitioner as that would determine whether Regulation 351-A is attracted or not. According to the petitioner, the date of institution of the departmental proceedings shall be the date when fresh charge-sheet is served upon the petitioner in pursuance of the impugned order. It is submitted that any charge-sheet which would now be issued would attract the rigour of Regulation 351-A as it would be after the petitioner has retired. On the other hand, according to the respondents, the departmental proceedings shall be deemed to have commenced on 18 October 2005 when the charge-sheet was initially issued culminating in passing of the impugned order.

8. The Explanation to Regulation 351-A specifically provides that the departmental proceedings shall be deemed to have been instituted when the charges framed against the pensioner are issued to him and if the officer has been placed under suspension from the earlier date on such date. Concededly, in the instant case, the petitioner was never placed under suspension. Thus the proceedings would be deemed to have been instituted on the date when the charges framed against the petitioner were issued to him.

9. Undoubtedly, the respondents had earlier issued a charge-sheet dated 18 October 2005 to the petitioner. An enquiry was also held on the basis of that charge-sheet but ultimately by the impugned order, the enquiry report was not approved and the charge-sheet issued to the petitioner was set aside. The State Government directed for a de novo enquiry being held against the petitioner after issuing a fresh charge-sheet to him. The said order itself was passed on 2 September 2009 after the petitioner has retired on attaining the age of superannuation. Since the charge-sheet issued to the petitioner on 18 October 2005 itself has been set aside with a further direction to hold a de novo enquiry by issuing a fresh charge-sheet, it is not possible for this Court to accept the submission of learned Standing Counsel that the disciplinary proceedings shall be deemed to have commenced on the date when the earlier charge-sheet was issued. It was always open to the State Government while passing the impugned order dated 2 September 2009 to have directed for the disciplinary proceedings being held from the stage of issuance of the charges but such course was not adopted. It is clear from the impugned order that the State Government preferred not to adopt such a course as it was conscious of the fact that the petitioner had retired in the meantime. It is for the said reason that the order further provided that the disciplinary proceedings in pursuance of the impugned order shall be continued against the petitioner after ensuring compliance of Regulation 351-A. We are thus, of the view that Regulation 351-A will fully apply to the facts of the case at hand.

10. According to the case set up in the counter affidavit, a fresh charge-sheet dated 7 June 2011 was prepared in pursuance of the impugned order dated 2 September 2009. It was served on the petitioner by affixation on 18 February 2012. Though the service of fresh charge-sheet has been denied by the petitioner, but in any event, the same was after the petitioner had superannuated. Thus, there is no escape from the rigour of Regulation 351-A.

11. Undoubtedly, the permission of the Governor to hold enquiry against the petitioner after his retirement is contained in the impugned order itself, but the charges against the petitioner are in relation to the alleged misconduct on his part while he was posted as Assistant Engineer, Provincial Division, Public Works Department, Bansi during the period May 1998 to June 2000. The charge-sheet dated 7 June 2011 brought on record alongwith the counter affidavit proves the same. Thus, the fresh departmental enquiry is in relation to an event which took place more than four year. It is contrary to the safeguard provided in favour of pensioner under clause (a)(ii) of the proviso to Regulation 351-A. In such view of the matter, the direction contained in the impugned order dated 2 September 2009 for holding a de novo enquiry by issuing a fresh charge-sheet cannot be sustained and is hereby quashed.

12. The claim for grant of second promotional pay scale to the petitioner has been negatived only on the ground of pendency of the disciplinary proceedings in pursuance of the order dated 2 September 2009. In view of the findings recorded above that the disciplinary proceedings cannot be initiated against the petitioner at this stage, the order dated 15 April 2015 also cannot be sustained. Resultantly, the respondents shall now consider the claim of the petitioner for grant of second promotional pay scale, in accordance with law, preferably within a period of three months from the date of filing of a certified copy of this order before the concerned respondent. The petitioner shall also become entitled to his post retiral dues and other pensionary benefits, in accordance with law.

13. Writ Petition No.18457 of 2013 stands allowed with cost while writ petition 35663 of 2015 stands disposed of with the directions given above.

The Court held that since no award under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 had been made, the petitioners' case was governed by Section 24(1)(a) of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, and compensation must therefore be determined under the 2013 Act. It found the Collector's direction to assess compensation on the basis of the 1981 market value arbitrary and modified the order by directing that the market value be taken as on 01.01.2014, i.e., the date of commencement of the 2013 Act, in accordance with the Central Government's D.O. dated 26.10.2015 issued under Section 113. The Court further held that mere deposit of compensation in revenue deposit/government treasury does not amount to valid payment to landowners. Accordingly, the writ petition was allowed and fresh determination and payment of compensation was directed within the prescribed time.

1. In spite of a stop order, no counter affidavit has been filed. As oral request was made by learned Standing Counsel to grant further time to file the counter affidavit. Such request is rejected since there was a stop order by an earlier order of the Court dated 26.9.2016 granting the respondents three week's and no more time to file a counter affidavit.

2. The petitioners' father Kashmira Singh was the original tenure holder of the land in question being Khasra No. 311-M measuring 0.8350 hectares in village Lohari Khurd, Pargana Charthawal, Tehsil Sadar, District Muzaffarnagar. The name of Kashmira Singh was recorded in the revenue record. Upon his death, petitioners' name was recorded in the Khatauni of 1420 Fasli to 1425 Fasli. The petitioners' land was acquired sometimes in the year 1974-75. Pursuant to Notification issued under Sections 4 and 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, objections were filed by the petitioners which was rejected. For reasons best known to the respondents the award insofar as the petitioners are concerned, was not made under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act. The award of the co-sharers was however made. The petitioners were forcibly dispossessed from the land in the year 2014. Being aggrieved by this forceful dispossession, the petitioners filed Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 52791 of 2014 which was disposed of by an order dated 07.10.2014 directing the petitioners to make a representation before the Collector, Muzaffarnagar who would decide the same by a reasoned and speaking order. The petitioners made a representation which was disposed of by an order dated 18.2.2016. The Collector, in its order, admitted that the land of the petitioners has been acquired and that neither the award has been made nor compensation has been paid. It has also been indicated that compensation was kept in the revenue deposit. The Collector has further directed the Special Land Acquisition Officer, Muzaffarnagar to determine the compensation by taking the market value of the land as existed in the year 1981 which was the date when the respondents deposited the amount in respect of other land holders in the revenue deposit.

3. The petitioners being aggrieved by the said order has filed the present writ petition.

4. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, we find that the Land Acquisition Act has been repealed with effect from 01.01.2014 in view of Section 114 of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as the Act of 2013). With effect from 01.01.2014, the new Act of 2013 has come in force. Section 24(1)(a) of the Act provides that where no award under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act has been made, then compensation has to be determined under the Act of 2013. Section 26 of the Act 2013 provides the criteria for determining the market value of the land by the Collector. Proviso to Section 26 of the Act states that the date for determination of market value shall be the date on which the notification has been issued under Section 11 of the Act of 2013.

5. In the instant case, the notification was issued under the Act of 1894 which has now been repealed. The question that arises for consideration as to what would the appropriate date for determination of the market value of the land in question. As per impugned order, the Collector has directed the Special Land Acquisition Officer to determine the market value of the land on the date when the compensation was deposited in the revenue deposit. Prima facie this direction appears to be arbitrary. We find that under Section 113 of the Act, the Central Government has the power to make such provision or give such direction in case any difficulty arises for implementation of the Act.

6. For facility, Section 113 of the Act of 2013 is extracted hereunder:

"113 Power to remove difficulties. - (1) If any difficulty arises in giving effect to the provisions of this part, the Central Government may, by order, make such provisions or give such directions not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act as may appear to it to be necessary or expedient for the removal of the difficulty:

Provided that no such power shall be exercised after the expiry of a period of two years from the commencement of this Act.

(2) Every order made under this section shall be laid, as soon as may be after it is made, before each House of Parliament."

7. In pursuance of the aforesaid provision, the Central Government has issued a D.O. No. 13013/01/2014-LRD(Pt.) dated 26.10.2015. In the said D.O., an issue was raised by Government of Maharashtra at Item No. 3 which is extracted hereunder:

"For calculation of market value, under section 24(1)(a), reference date should be 01.01.2014 (commencement of RFCTLARR Act, 2013) or date of issuing preliminary notification under Land Acquisition Act, 1894."

8. The opinion given by the Government of India is extracted hereunder:

"The reference date for calculation of market value, under section 24(1)(a) should be 01.01.2014 (commencement of RFCTLARR Act, 2013), as the Section reads "in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, where no award under section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this Act relating to the determination of compensation shall apply. Under section 26 reference date is date of preliminary notification, but section 24 is a special case of application of the Act in retrospective cases, and a later date of determination of market value is suggested (i.e. 01.01.2014) with a view to ensure that the land owners/farmers/affected families get enhanced compensation under the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 (as also recommended by Standing Committee in its 31st report)."

9. The Government of India has forwarded the aforesaid direction to all the Principal Secretaries of States/Union Territories for information and necessary action.

10. In our opinion the order issued by the Central Government is required to be implemented uniformly by all the State Governments and Union Territories including the State of U.P. There is no reason why the Collector should not apply the market value as existing as on 01.01.2014 on the land in question.

11. In the light of the aforesaid, the impugned order passed by the Collector, Muzaffarnagar dated 18.2.2016 is modified to the extent that compensation is required to be determined under Section 24 of the Act of 2013. The market rate of land would be such as applicable as on 01.01.2014 as per the D.O. of the Central Government dated 26th October, 2015. Such determination shall be made by the Collector/Special Land Acquisition Officer within six weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order and payment would be released accordingly within two weeks thereafter.

12. We also find from the impugned order that the compensation was kept in the revenue deposit. The Supreme Court in the case of Pune Municipal Corporation and another vs. Harakchand Misirimal Solanki and others, 2014 (3) Supreme Court Cases 183 held that compensation is required to be deposited in the court and deposit of compensation amount in the Government treasury was of no avail and cannot be held to be equivalent to compensation paid to the land owners. The issue involved in this case is squarely covered by the said decision of the Supreme Court.

13. The writ petition is allowed.

Held

The High Court held that the revision was maintainable against the mutation order passed under Section 34 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, even after the enforcement of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. Relying on Section 231(1) of the Revenue Code, the Court clarified that all proceedings pending at the time of commencement of the Code are to be decided according to the law applicable before the Code came into force. Therefore, the revision could validly proceed under Section 219 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act. The Court further observed that where no appeal has actually been filed, revisional jurisdiction under Section 219 is akin to appellate jurisdiction and is a continuation of the original proceedings. It also held that amendment of the provision in the cause title from Section 210 of the Code to Section 219 of the old Act was a formal amendment, which could be allowed even ex parte, as no substantive right of the opposite party was affected. Accordingly, the writ petition was dismissed.

CASE LAW CITED

Section 231, U.P. Revenue Code, 2006
Section 219, U.P. Land Revenue Act

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anjani Kumar Mishra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. By means of this writ petition, the petitioner has sought a writ of certiorari for quashing the order dated 15.09.2016, passed by the respondent no. 1. By this order, a revision has been held to be maintainable and the objection of the petitioner that it was not maintainable has been repelled. Hence this writ petition.

3. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that proceedings under Section 34 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act were instituted, whereupon an order was passed against which, the said revision was filed. The revision was filed invoking Section 210 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

4. On an earlier occasion, the petitioner had come up before this Court by means of writ petition no. 34423 of 2016 contending that against an order passed in a mutation case, an appeal would lie and that no revision against such an order was maintainable in view of the amendment that has been incorporated in Section 210 of the Revenue Code, 2006 itself. This Court vide order dated 22.08.2016 disposed of the writ petition directing the revisional Court to consider the application filed by the petitioner-opposite party, in the revision, regarding its maintainability.

5. The order impugned has been passed in pursuance of the earlier order of this Court dated 22.08.2016.

6. From a perusal of the record, it transpires that initially the revision had been filed invoking Section 210 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. Subsequently on an amendment application, this provision was amended to read as Section 219 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act.

7. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that this amendment was wrongly allowed.

8. The question therefore, which arises for consideration is as to the provision whereunder, an order passed in proceedings under Section 34 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act can be challenged once the Revenue Code, 2006 has been enforced.

9. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that after the repeal of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, by enforcement of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, any appeal or revision, necessarily lies in accordance with the provision contained in the Revenue Code, 2006, and not in accordance with the provisions of the repealed Act.

10. From deciding this issue, Section 231 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is relevant and the same is extracted below:-

"Section 231:-Applicability of the Code to pending proceedings.-(1) Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Code, all cases pending before the State Government or any revenue court immediately before the commencement of this Code, whether in appeal, revision, review or otherwise, shall be decided in accordance with the provisions of the appropriate law, which would have been applicable to them had this Code not been passed.

(2) All cases pending in any civil court immediately before the commencement of this Code which would under this Code be exclusively triable by a revenue court, shall be disposed of by such civil court according to the law in force prior to the date of such commencement."

11. Sub-section 1 of Section 231 quoted above, is in my considered opinion absolutely categorical. Therefore, an order on an application under Section 34 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, is appealable and revisable in accordance with the provisions of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, itself and, therefore, the provision of Section 210 as also Section 219 of the U.P. Revenue Act are attracted and can be invoked even after the enforcement of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

12. Under the circumstances, therefore, there is no illegality in the order, whereby the amendment application was allowed and the revision was stated to be one under the Section 219 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act.

13. It is settled law than an appeal is continuation of the proceedings or a suit.

14. It is contended that an appeal is continuation of the proceedings but a revision is not so. In the instant case, a revision has been preferred and therefore Section 231 of the Revenue Code shall not come into play.

15. A mutation order under Section 34 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act is amenable to an appeal under Section 210 of the said Act. Section 219 which provides for a revision states that a revision lies against orders which are not appealable or against orders which are appealable but no appeal has actually been filed.

16. These revisional jurisdiction can be invoked in place of appellate jurisdiction and therefore, in cases where a revision is filed instead of an appeal, in view of the provisions contained in the second part of Section 219, the same is akin to an appeal and must be held to be continuation of the proceedings.

17. For the reasons given above, this revision has rightly been held to be maintainable and I do not find any illegality in the said order. The writ petition is therefore, liable to be dismissed.

18. At this stage, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the amendment application was allowed ex parte. Copy of the same have not been served upon him.

19. Although, in my considered opinion, nothing much turns upon this submission, however in case the petitioner considers it appropriate, he may file a recall application before the court concerned.

20. At the same time, it would be relevant to note that an amendment in the cause title of proceedings, which merely amends the section whereunder the said proceedings have been initiated, is an amendment which can be allowed at any stage, even without hearing, because no manifest right can be said to have accrued in favour of opposite party, which would necessarily require his being heard.

21. Subject to the above observation, this writ petition is dismissed.

The applicant is the husband of the deceased and as the deceased did not have any issue, she developed mental frustration and used to remain in mental depression as a result of which she committed suicide.

Counsel for the applicant submitted that after the occurrence she was rushed to the hospital to give her medical succour but by that time, she had already died. It has further been submitted that thereafter inquest proceedings took place and the parents of the deceased were duly informed about the incident, who arrived on the information. Attention of the Court was drawn to the inquest report in which the first informant Jai Ram himself is one of the witnesses of the inquest and the applicant is also one of the witnesses of the inquest. Submission is that the applicant never ill-treated his wife nor ever demanded any dowry and, therefore, the complainant had not made any complaint against the applicant and his family members.

After considering the facts hon'ble court had granted the bail to the applicant with certain conditions

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

2. Perused the record.

3. Submission of the counsel for the applicant is that the applicant is the husband of the deceased and as the deceased did not have any issue, she developed mental frustration and used to remain in mental depression as a result of which she committed suicide. Further submission is that even after the occurrence she was rushed to the hospital to give her medical succour but by that time, she had already died. It has further been submitted that thereafter inquest proceedings took place and the parents of the deceased were duly informed about the incident, who arrived on the information. Attention of the Court was drawn to the inquest report in which the first informant Jai Ram himself is one of the witnesses of the inquest and the applicant is also one of the witnesses of the inquest. Submission is that the applicant never ill-treated his wife nor ever demanded any dowry and, therefore, the complainant had not made any complaint against the applicant and his family members. Further submission is that though the police officers were very much present at the time of inquest but the first informant never made any complaint against the applicant though he was present all along. Subsequently, an application under Section 156(3) of Cr.P.C. in this regard was moved on 9.12.2013 while the incident in question is said to have taken place on 24.10.2013. Argument is that had there been any truth in the allegations made against the applicant about demanding of dowry and committing cruelty upon the deceased, then there is absolutely no explanation as to why and under what circumstances the first informant could not lodge the F.I.R. against the applicant for such a long period of time. Contention is that actually it appears on the face of the record that the F.I.R. is the result of confabulation and afterthought and only to blackmail the applicant. The bonafide post incident conduct of applicant in informing the parents, taking the wife to hospital, remaining present all throughout and not absconding from the scene of occurrence are some of the significant circumstances which are pointing towards his innocence. Such bonafide conduct when juxta-posed with the post incident conduct of the first informant inasmuch as he simply did not make even a whisper of grievance or complaint against accused, when looked and taken together become conclusive circumstances which run counter to the insinuating charge that has been flung against applicant. Much emphasis was also laid by the counsel on the period of detention and it has been pointed out that the applicant has spent more than two years in jail and he is behind the bars since 3.6.2014 having no criminal history and that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the applicant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required.

4. Learned A.G.A. opposed the prayer for bail.

5. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence, this Court is of the view that the applicant may be enlarged on bail.

6. Let the applicant- Naresh Kumar, involved in Case Crime No. 411 of 2014, S.T. No. 111 of 2014, u/s 498A, 304B I.P.C. and 3/4 D.P. Act, P.S.- Kotwali Kalpi, District- Jalaun, be released on bail on his executing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned on the following conditions :-

(1) The applicant will not make any attempt to tamper with the prosecution evidence in any manner whatsoever.

(2) The applicant will personally appear on each and every date in the court and his personal presence shall not be exempted unless the court itself deems it fit to do so in the interest of justice.

7. It may be observed that in the event of any breach of the aforesaid conditions, the court below shall be at liberty to proceed for the cancellation of applicant's bail.

8. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

The present prosecution of the applicant is an out-come of malicious vengeance that has been firing upon the applicant because of the conspicuous background that much before the said incident the mother of the applicant (Smt. Submissions made by the applicant counsel the present incident is said to have taken place on 16.8.2013 but no FIR was lodged with regard to the same and it was only after taking legal advice that an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved. Further submission is that even this application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved on 25.8.2015, that is to say, after about more than 10 days of the said occurrence. Further submission is that if actually the rape had been committed upon the victim, there is no explanation as to how and why the FIR was not lodged by the police and as to why she (first informant) took so much time to move an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C.

The applicant- Hariom, involved in Case Crime No. 172 of 2016, u/ss 376 and 506 IPC P.S.-Dataganj, District-Budaun be released on bail

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

2. Perused the record.

3. Submission of learned counsel for the applicant is that the present prosecution of the applicant is an out-come of malicious vengeance that has been firing upon the applicant because of the conspicuous background that much before the said incident the mother of the applicant (Smt. Ram Lali) had lodged a case under Sections 379, 323,504 IPC and Section 4/10 of the Forest Act, against the husband of the victim, namely, Anand Pal and some others. This case was registered as Case Crime No. 527 of 2013 at P.S. Dataganj, District Badaun. In this connection the victim husband, namely, Anand Pal, had been sent to jail and could be released on bail on 31.7.2015. Further submission is that being indignated by the same after he came out he has manipulated the present FIR against the applicant through his wife. Further submission is that though the present incident is said to have taken place on 16.8.2013 but no FIR was lodged with regard to the same and it was only after taking legal advice that an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved. Further submission is that even this application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved on 25.8.2015, that is to say, after about more than 10 days of the said occurrence. Further submission is that if actually the rape had been committed upon the victim, there is no explanation as to how and why the FIR was not lodged by the police and as to why she (first informant) took so much time to move an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. Further submission is that the medical evidence lends no corroboration to the alleged allegation made against the applicant. It is argued that even according to the version of the FIR, no hue and cry was raised by her at the time of incident, while normally in a place where the incident is said to have been committed several villagers are supposed to remain present and actually if such type of incident would have happened, there must be some witnesses of the occurrence and the incident of rape could not have gone so completely unnoticed. Further submission is that the conspicuous background of enmity with the victim's husband and the fact of his coming out of jail soon before lodging of the present FIR are strong circumstances to indicate the malafide nature of the prosecution and indicates false implication of the applicant in the case. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the applicant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required. It has also been submitted that the applicant is languishing in jail since 16.6.2016 and in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.- 14003 Of 2016

Sudhir ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioner:
Ram Raj Pandey

Counsel for Respondents:
G.A.

The petitioner has filed this writ petition with the prayer to issue a writ of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 19.5.2016 passed by the Commissioner, Meerut Region, Meerut, in Appeal No. 36 of 2015-16 whereby confirming the order dated 7.12.2015 passed by the District Magistrate, Baghpat, in Computer Case No. D2015110800401, State Vs. Sudhir, arising out of the report under section 3/4 of the U.P. Control of Gundas Act, (herein after referred to as the 'Act') P.S. Chhaprauli, District Baghpat.

The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner is innocent, he is not a habitual offender and he has no criminal history. However, due to dirty village politics a false and frivolous story was cooked up against him. Learned counsel has contended that the provisions of U.P. Control of Gundas Act, 1970 are not attracted, if there is only a solitary case against the accused. The learned counsel has placed reliance on the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Vijay Narain Singh v. State of Bihar and others, 1984 (3) SCC 40.

Court observed that the impugned order dated 7.12.2015 passed by the Additional District Magistrate shows that the learned Magistrate has passed the order of externment of the petitioner on the basis of police report and also that the petitioner failed to adduce any evidence in his defence.

Considering the facts and circumstances of the case in the wake of the law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in Vijay Narain Singh, this writ petition deserves to be allowed and the impugned orders dated 19.5.2016 and 7.12.2015 are liable to be quashed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Vijay Lakshmi, J.)

1. The petitioner has filed this writ petition with the prayer to issue a writ of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 19.5.2016 passed by the Commissioner, Meerut Region, Meerut, in Appeal No. 36 of 2015-16 whereby confirming the order dated 7.12.2015 passed by the District Magistrate, Baghpat, in Computer Case No. D2015110800401, State Vs. Sudhir, arising out of the report under section 3/4 of the U.P. Control of Gundas Act, (herein after referred to as the 'Act') P.S. Chhaprauli, District Baghpat.

2. Heard Sri Ram Raj Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned AGA for the State, which is the only opposite party. Perused the record.

3. Learned AGA has submitted that since only a legal question is involved in the present writ petition, there is no need to file counter affidavit on the part of State and the matter be decided in the wake of the settled legal position.

4. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner is innocent, he is not a habitual offender and he has no criminal history. However, due to dirty village politics a false and frivolous story was cooked up and he was involved in Case Crime No. 139 of 2015, under sections 323, 352, 427, 504, 506 I.P.C., P.S. Chhprauli, District Baghpat. It is further contended that in the aforesaid case the petitioner has already been acquitted by judgment and order dated 31.5.2016 passed by the A.C.J.M./ F.T.C., Baghpat, copy whereof has been filed as Annexure no. 4 to the writ petition. It is next submitted that apart from the aforesaid case, no other case has ever been registered against the petitioner. Learned counsel has contended that the provisions of U.P. Control of Gundas Act, 1970 are not attracted, if there is only a solitary case against the accused. The learned counsel has placed reliance on the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Vijay Narain Singh v. State of Bihar and others, 1984 (3) SCC 40 and the judgment of coordinate Bench of this court, rendered in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 6198 of 2015, Binni @ Vijan Vs. State of U.P. and others, decided on 7.4.2015 in which this court has relied upon its earlier judgment rendered in the case of Imran @ Abdul Qudus Khan v. State of U.P. And others, 2000 Cr. L.J. 1328.

5. Considered the submissions.

6. The definition of the word "goonda" as defined under Section 2(b) of the Act, is reproduced as under:-

7. Section 2(b) defines a "goonda" as a person who:

(i) either by himself or as a member or leader of a gang, habitually commits or attempts to commit, or abets the commission of an offence punishable under Section 153 or Section 153-B or Section 294 of the Indian Penal Code or Chapter XV, Chapter XVI, Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the said Code; or

(ii) has been convicted for an offence punishable under the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956; or

(iii) has been convicted not less than thrice for an offence punishable under the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 or the Public Gambling Act, 1867 or Section 25, Section 27 or Section 29 of the Arms Act, 1959; or

(iv) is generally reputed to be a person who is desperate and dangerous to the community; or

(v) has been habitually passing indecent remarks or teasing women or girls; or

(vi) is a tout; or

(vii) is a house-grabber.

8. The Apex Court in the case of Vijay Narain Singh (supra) while dealing with the provisions of the Bihar Control of Crimes Act, 1981, a law relating to preventive detention, wherein the word "anti-social elements" as defined in Section 2(d) of the Act, was para materia with the definition of the word "goonda" as defined under this Act, held in paragraph-31 as under:-

The expression 'habitually' means 'repeatedly' or 'persistently'. It implies a thread of continuity stringing together similar repetitive acts. Repeated, persistent and similar, but not isolated, individual and dissimilar acts are necessary to justify an inference of habit. If connotes frequent commission of acts or omissions of the same kind referred to in each of the said sub-clauses or an aggregate of similar acts or omissions. This appears to be clear from the use of the word 'habitually' separately in sub-clause (i), sub-clause (ii) and sub-clause (iv) of section 2 (b) and not in sub-clauses (iii) and(v) of section 2 (d). If the State Legislature had intended that a commission of two or more acts or omissions referred to in any of the subclauses (i) to (v) of section 2 (d) was sufficient to make a person an 'anti-social element', the definition would have run as 'Anti-Social Element' means 'a person who habitually is .....' As section 2 (d) of the Act now stands, whereas under sub-clause (iii) or sub-clause (v) of section 2 (d) a single act or omission referred to in them may be enough to treat the person concerned as an 'anti-social element', in the case of sub-clause (i), sub-clause (ii) or sub-clause (iv), there should be a repetition of acts or omissions of the same kind referred to in sub-clause (i), sub-clause (ii) or in sub-clause (iv) by the person concerned to treat him as an 'anti-social element'. Commission of an act or omission referred to in one of the sub-clauses (i). (ii) and (iv) and of another act or omission referred to in any other of the said sub-clauses would not be sufficient to treat a person as an 'anti-social element'. A single act or omission falling under sub-clause (i) and a single act or omission falling under sub-clause (iv) of section 2 (d) cannot, therefore, be characterised is a habitual act or omission referred to in either of them. Because the idea of 'habit' involves an element of persistence and a tendency to repeat the acts or omissions of the same class or kind, if the acts or omission in question are not of the same kind or even if they are of the same kind when they are committed with a long interval of time between the they cannot be treated as habitual ones.

9. The Apex Court in the case of State of Maharashtra and others v. Mehmud, 2007(12) SCC 358, once again had an occasion to deal with the provisions of Section 2(b)(i) of the Maharashtra Prevention of Dangerous Activities of Slumlords, Bootleggers, Drug Offenders and Dangerous Persons Act, 1981, wherein the term "dangerous person" was defined, which is para materia with the word "goonda" under the Act and in that context, approved the view taken in Vijay Narain Singh (supra).

10. Thus what flows from the aforesaid discussion is that for a person to be a "goonda" under sub-clause (i) (b) of Section 2 of the Act, he is to be a person who has to his credit repeated/ persistent overt acts and not only an isolated/ individual act.

11. It is not disputed that there was only one case against the petitioner being Case Crime No. 139 of 2015, under sections 323, 352, 427, 504, 506 I.P.C., P.S. Chhprauli, District Baghpat, which has already been decided vide judgment and order dated 31.5.2016 passed by the A.C.J.M./ F.T.C., Baghpat, resulting in the acquittal of the petitioner.

12. The impugned order dated 7.12.2015 passed by the Additional District Magistrate shows that the learned Magistrate has passed the order of externment of the petitioner on the basis of police report and also that the petitioner failed to adduce any evidence in his defence.

13. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case in the wake of the law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in Vijay Narain Singh (supra), this writ petition deserves to be allowed and the impugned orders dated 19.5.2016 and 7.12.2015 are liable to be quashed.

14. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed and the impugned order dated 19.5.2016 passed by the commissioner, Meerut Region, Meerut, in Appeal No. 36 of 2015-16 and order dated 7.12.2015 passed by the District Magistrate, Baghpat, in Computer Case No. D2015110800401, State Vs. Sudhir, arising out of the report under section 3/4 of the U.P. Control of Gundas Act, P.S. Chhaprauli, District Baghpat, are hereby quashed.

THE HON'BLE PANKAJ NAQVI, J.

Contempt Application (Civil) No.- 3761 Of 2016

Mangal Das ...Applicant

Versus

Sri Akhand Pratap Singh, D.M., Kaushambi & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for Applicant:
Bhupendra Nath Singh, Devendra Pratap Singh

This contempt under Section 10 of The Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 has been filed for punishing the opposite parties for committing wilful/ deliberate disobedience of the judgment / decree dated 26.8.2008/ 10.9.2008 in Suit no.67 of 2007.

At the very threshold, the Court confronted the learned counsel for the applicant on the maintainability of contempt in view of the provisions of Order XXI Rule 32 CPC. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that notwithstanding the availability of the remedy under Order XXI Rule 32 CPC, the application under Section 10 of the Act is maintainable.

The language of Order XXI Rule 32 CPC, it does not transpire that proceedings under Order XXI Rule 32 CPC cannot be invoked, once a decree of permanent injunction is satisfied. On the contrary, language is explicit, as it provides that as and when there is a wilful disobedience of a decree, it may be enforced by detention/ attachment or by both as against the party in default. The rationale is that in the event a decree-holder complains of wilful disobedience on the part of a judgment debtor, then the proceedings under Order XXI Rule 32, would involve investigation of facts and leading of evidence, as to whether there is any wilful disobedience or not and only thereafter, a finding can be arrived at as to the wilful disobedience. If so, then penal consequences of civil detention/ attachment of property or both would follow.

The Hon'ble Court has no hesitation in holding that the remedy, if any, for the applicant is to invoke the forum under Order XXI Rule 32 CPC, the instant contempt is not maintainable and is liable to be dismissed.

The contempt is dismissed in limine.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Naqvi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Bhupendra Nath Singh, learned counsel for the applicant.

2. This contempt under Section 10 of The Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 has been filed for punishing the opposite parties for committing wilful/ deliberate disobedience of the judgment / decree dated 26.8.2008/ 10.9.2008 in Suit no.67 of 2007.

3. The applicant claiming himself to be a tenure holder in possession of Arazi no. 633/01 (Area 0.160 hectare) filed a suit for permanent prohibitory injunction i.e, O.S. no.67/2007 against the opposite parties, which upon contest was decreed in his favour on 26.8.2008, but as the decree was sought to be disobeyed, he filed Execution Case no. 3/08, which was dismissed on 28.8.2012 on the ground that the decree is being obeyed. It appears subsequently a dispute arose afresh when the opposite parties were compelling the applicant to remove the boundary wall from Arazi No. 633/01, else the same would be removed by O.P.'s no. 3 to 6, which was protested by the applicant on 25.7.2016 before the Collector/ the Superintendent of Police concerned in view of the judgement/ decree dated 26.8.2008, but as the same was not responded, on the contrary, the opposite parties threatened to demolish the boundary wall involving the use of a JCB Machine, the applicant has rushed to this Court under Section 10 of the Act.

4. At the very threshold, the Court confronted the learned counsel for the applicant on the maintainability of contempt in view of the provisions of Order XXI Rule 32 CPC. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that notwithstanding the availability of the remedy under Order XXI Rule 32 CPC, the application under Section 10 of the Act is maintainable. He also submitted that once a decree has been satisfied, subsequent disobedience could only be adjudicated through an application under Section 10 of the Act. He relied upon three judgments, i.e, S.K. Sarkar, Member, Board of Revenue Vs. Vinay Chandra Mishra, AIR 1981 SC 723, Pallav Sheth Vs. Custodian and others, (2001) 7 SCC 549 and that of this Court in Vijay Pratap Singh Vs. Ajit Prasad, AIR 1966 Allahabad 305. On a pointed query, to which paragraph of the cited judgments does he rely, Sri Singh submitted that the Court may find out the same.

5. The approach of Sri Singh cannot be countenanced. Learned counsels are expected to assist the court without which the system of administration of justice cannot work. Learned counsel cannot take the liberty to cite authorities even without referring to the relevant paragraph of the cited judgment at a threshhold stage when the court has to formulate a prima facie view, as to the applicability of the cited authority on the facts of a particular case. This Court is reeling under huge arrears, wherein the system has evolved certain mechanism, to curtail the duration of arguments, but without sacrificing the cause of justice. A well established practice over the years has developed, where learned counsels either mark the relevant paragraph of the judgment or even orally refer to the relevant paragraph before it is cited as an authority. This necessarily facilitates the task of the judge as to the applicability/ relevance of a citation on the facts of the case, especially at the stage of cognizance. This assistance was lacking in the instant case, despite a request made by the Court.

Now a reference to the cited authorities.

6. The case of Pallav Sheth (supra) related to the period of limitation prescribed for initiating contempt under Section 20 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 and power of this Court under Article 215 of the Constitution of India and nowhere in the said judgment the issue in hand was even remotely discussed.

7. The factual scenario in Vijay Pratap Singh (supra) is as under: -

Vijay Pratap Singh, an Advocate, filed a suit against the President, General Secretary of the U.P. Congress Committee and the General Secretary of the District Congress Committee, Azamgarh alleging that the election so held on 10.4.1964 for which the plaintiff and one Badri Singh were the only two candidates, the latter was declared elected despite illegalities/ irregularities in the conduct of the election, the election be declared as void/ inoperative. An ad interim order dated 18.4.1964 was passed restraining the District Election Officer and the Polling Officer concerned from holding elections of the DCC, PCC etc. It appears that the Congress Committee of the Indian National Congress, resolved that the election dispute be decided by a Tribunal constituted and not by recourse to judicial intervention and in furtherance thereof, letters were issued by the defendants of the suit to the Returning Officer expelling the plaintiff/ the contempt applicant from the Membership of the Congress. The learned Munsif vacated the ad interim injunction on the ground that the plaintff/ the contempt applicant is no longer a member of the Congress, which prompted him to file a contempt before this Court for punishing the defendants for committing contempt of the order of learned Munsif. An issue arose as to whether O.P. no.1 of the contempt upon having been appointed as a Governor of a State would still face contempt in view of the immunity granted to the office of Governor under Article 361(2) of the Constitution of India. In so far the other opposite parties were concerned, as they had issued letters to the plaintiff/ contempt applicant for approaching the Court of law as an anti-social/ reprehensible and a wilful misbehaviour without a word of regret/ apology, they were held guilty of contempt.

8. The third decision in the case of S.K. Sarkar (supra), related to the jurisdiction/ power of the High Court to take suo motu action under Section 15 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971.

9. Beyond aforesaid, nothing less nothing more, was held, yet learned counsel for the applicant cited the said authorities in support of his contention.

10. The applicant has a decree of permanent prohibitory injunction in his favour. Order XXI Rule 32 provides the mode of execution of such a decree, which is extracted hereunder:

"32. Decree for specific performance for restitution of conjugal rights, or for an injunction. -- (1) Where the party against whom a decree for the specific performance of a contract, or for restitution of conjugal rights, or for an injunction, has been passed, has had an opportunity of obeying the decree and has wilfully failed to obey it, the decree may be enforced by his detention in the civil prison, or by the attachment of his property, or by both."

11. A perusal of the aforesaid would manifest that a decree for an injunction can be enforced either by detention in prison or by attachment of the property or by both against the party, against whom a decree for injunction has been obtained, provided such a party has wilfully failed to obey it.

12. Ordinarily, contempt is not a mode of execution of a decree, when other modes have been provided. The Apex Court in Kanwar Singh Saini Vs. High Court of Delhi, (2012) 4 SCC 307, had an occasion to examine the enforcement of interim/ final orders/ decree of the Court including undertakings given to the Court vis-a-vis contempt.

13. Paragraph 21 of the said judgment is quoted hereunder:

"The provision of Order 21 Rule 32 CPC applies to prohibitory as well as mandatory injunctions. In other words, it applies to cases where the party is directed to do some act and also to the cases where he is abstained from doing an act. Still to put it differently, a person disobeys an order of injunction not only when he fails to perform an act which he is directed to do but also when he does an act which he is prohibited from doing. Execution of an injunction decree is to be made in pursuance of Order 21 Rule 32 CPC as the CPC provides a particular manner and mode of execution and therefore, no other mode is permissible."

14. Thus from the language of Order XXI Rule 32 CPC, it does not transpire that proceedings under Order XXI Rule 32 CPC cannot be invoked, once a decree of permanent injunction is satisfied. On the contrary, language is explicit, as it provides that as and when there is a wilful disobedience of a decree, it may be enforced by detention/ attachment or by both as against the party in default. The rationale is that in the event a decree-holder complains of wilful disobedience on the part of a judgment debtor, then the proceedings under Order XXI Rule 32, would involve investigation of facts and leading of evidence, as to whether there is any wilful disobedience or not and only thereafter, a finding can be arrived at as to the wilful disobedience. If so, then penal consequences of civil detention/ attachment of property or both would follow.

15. Thus, this Court has no hesitation in holding that the remedy, if any, for the applicant is to invoke the forum under Order XXI Rule 32 CPC, the instant contempt is not maintainable and is liable to be dismissed.

16. The contempt is dismissed in limine.

CRIMINAL SIDE
DATED: ALLAHABAD 02.09.2016

THE HON'BLE HARSH KUMAR, J.

Criminal Revision No.- 2218 Of 2006

Ram Dularey Yadav ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellant:
M.P. Yadav, D.C. Mishra, S.N. Yadav

Counsel for Respondent:
Govt. Advocate, Awadhesh Rai

The present criminal appeal has been filed by accused/ appellant, the sole convict against the judgment and order dated 10.03.2006 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Mau in Sessions Trial No.111 of 2003 (State Vs. Ram Dularey and others), arising out of case crime no.179 of 2002, under Sections 363 & 366 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code, P.S. Dohari Ghat, District Mau. By the impugned judgment and order in trial against the appellant and three others, the learned lower court did held only appellant Ram Dularey Yadav to be guilty of the offence and acquitted the three others and after hearing the convict on the point of sentence, sentenced him for the offence under Section 363 IPC for seven years' rigorous imprisonment with Rs.2000/- and under Section 366 IPC for ten years' rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.3000/- and in case of default in payment of fine to further undergo six months' imprisonment. By the present appeal the appellant has prayed that his conviction is liable to be set aside and allowing the appeal he may be acquitted of the charges.

Court finds that there are material contradictions in their statements as to the narration of the incident allegedly seen by them. While PW-1 has sated to have seen the appellant and victim talking with each other from a distance of 20 steps, the PW-2 has stated that after taking tea, at the tea stall of Sintu at a distance of 30-35 steps, when they left after 15-20 minutes, they saw the appellant and victim talking with each other. PW-1 has stated at page 6 of his cross-examination that first informant Virendra Kumar Yadav belongs to his family (Khaandan) and father of the victim lives in Jaunpur and similarly PW-2 at Page 3 of his cross-examination has stated that first informant Virendra Kumar Yadav happens to be his nephew as both of them belongs to the same village, but later on he has admitted that father of victim as well as father of first informant Virendra Kumar are his cousin brothers. Both the above witnesses have admitted that there is enmity between the prosecution party and the accused/ appellant over alleged forcible construction of gate by father of victim after encroaching upon the land of co-accused Ramgyan, the real brother of accused/ appellant Ram Dularey.

It is settled principle of law that the evidence of interested or related witnesses should be considered with caution and until and unless it is found to be trustworthy the conviction of accused on the basis of evidence of related or interested witness is not justified. After considering the fact and the unnatural conduct of PW-1 and PW-2, court considered view that they are not proved to be eye witnesses of the incident of enticing away victim by accused/ appellant in presence of co-accused persons or otherwise and their testimony is neither reliable nor trustworthy.

In the present case there is sufficient reason for drawing adverse inference against the prosecution for not producing the parents of victim to the witness box before the trial court. The evidence on record shows that PW-1 and PW-2 were not the eye witnesses of alleged incident of fetching the victim by accused/ appellant in broad day light at 10.00 a.m. instead of choosing sometime of loneliness in the late evening or early morning, and they have been set up subsequently in order to improve the case against the accused persons. The above witnesses are interested witnesses and their unnatural conduct and contradictory testimony is not reliable for holding the accused/ appellant guilty and the learned trial court has misread the evidence on record. I am of the considered view that the prosecution has failed to prove its case to the hilt beyond any shadow of reasonable doubt and has failed to bring home the charges against any of the accused by any cogent, reliable, independent and trustworthy evidence. Considering the totality of facts and circumstances, it is a fit case where the accused/ appellant is entitled to be given the benefit of doubt and the prosecution case is liable to be rejected. The accused/ appellant is also entitled for an order of acquittal.

The appeal is allowed accordingly and the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence of appellant Ram Dularey Yadav is set aside and he is held not guilty of the offences under Sections 363 & 366 IPC. Dismissing the criminal revision no.2218 of 2006 impugned judgment and order of acquittal of opposite party nos.2 to 4 Ramgyan, Surendra Nath Yadav and Smt. Subhawati is confirmed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Harsh Kumar, J.)

1. The present criminal appeal has been filed by accused/ appellant, the sole convict against the judgment and order dated 10.03.2006 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Mau in Sessions Trial No.111 of 2003 (State Vs. Ram Dularey and others), arising out of case crime no.179 of 2002, under Sections 363 & 366 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code, P.S. Dohari Ghat, District Mau. By the impugned judgment and order in trial against the appellant and three others, the learned lower court did held only appellant Ram Dularey Yadav to be guilty of the offence and acquitted the three others and after hearing the convict on the point of sentence, sentenced him for the offence under Section 363 IPC for seven years' rigorous imprisonment with Rs.2000/- and under Section 366 IPC for ten years' rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.3000/- and in case of default in payment of fine to further undergo six months' imprisonment. By the present appeal the appellant has prayed that his conviction is liable to be set aside and allowing the appeal he may be acquitted of the charges.

2. Against the impugned judgment and order with respect to the acquittal of co-accused Ram Gyan Yadav, Surendra Yadav and Smt. Subhawati Devi, criminal revision no.2218 of 2006 has also been filed by first informant Virendra Kumar Yadav seeking relief of setting aside their acquittal order and convicting them along with Ram Dularey for the offences under Sections 363 & 366 read with Section 34 IPC as well as for enhancement of sentence imposed on appellant Ram Dularey.

3. The FIR of this case was lodged by Virendra Kumar Yadav on 18.05.2002 at 00.10 a.m. against four persons named therein at Police Station Dohari Ghat, District Mau at case crime no.179 of 2002, under Sections 363 & 366 IPC. The averments of FIR in brief are as under:-

"That the victim, sister of the first informant, student of Class 9 aged about 13 years 3 months (D.O.B. 15.02.1989) proceeded to meet to her friend from the house of first informant; that there is a P.C.O. of Ram Dularey Yadav, who has enticed away the first informant's sister at about 10.00 a.m. on 14.05.2002 when she was going to meet her friend and had taken her somewhere else from Rasoolpur Market; that the first informant made search of his sister for several days, but could not know her whereabouts and when he asked the accused persons, instead of making any help in search of his sister, they threatened him."

4. After lodging of FIR, investigation was completed by the Investigating Officer and charge sheet was submitted against four accused named in the FIR and after taking cognizance, the case was committed to the court of Sessions. After committal of case, in Sessions Trial No.111 of 2003, charges were framed against all the four accused for committing the incident in question under Sections 363/ 34 and 366/34 IPC. The accused denied from the charges and claimed trial.

5. In order to prove its case and charges against the accused persons, the prosecution produced Laxmi Yadav and Kripa Yadav as eye witnesses as PW-1 and PW-2, Virendra Kumar Yadav being first informant as PW-3, Shiv Kumar Singh, Sub-Inspector, Investigating Officer of the case as PW-4, Jagdish Yadav, Head Constable to prove the Chik FIR as PW-5 and Satya Ram, Assistant Teacher, to prove the age of the victim according to School Register as PW-6.

6. After completion of prosecution evidence, statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., who did not produce any witness in defence evidence. The learned Additional Sessions Judge after hearing the parties' counsel and perusal of record, by the impugned judgment and order acquitted the three persons named in the FIR and convicted the appellant Ram Dularey Yadav for the offence under Section 363 & 366 read with Section 34 IPC and sentenced him as mentioned above.

7. Heard Shri Jitendra Kumar Yadav, Advocate holding brief of Shri S.N. Yadav, learned counsel for the appellant in criminal appeal no.1426 of 2006 and counsel for the opposite parties in criminal revision no.2218 of 2006 and learned A.G.A. for the State. No one appeared for the first informant in criminal appeal no.1426 of 2006 or for revisionist in criminal revision no.2218 of 2006.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant assailed the impugned judgment and order on various points, which will be discussed hereinafter while the learned A.G.A. supported the impugned judgment and order and submitted that the appeal has been filed with false and baseless allegations and is liable to be dismissed.

9. None appeared to argue the revision filed by the first informant against the acquittal of three accused and the learned counsel for the opposite parties submitted that the acquittal of opposite parties does not suffer from any illegality, irregularity or incorrectness and so the revision is liable to be dismissed. It is pertinent to mention that in the above revision, the convict accused/ appellant Ram Dularey Yadav has not been arrayed as opposite party, but in the prayer clause of revision the prayer for enhancement of sentence of Ram Dularey Yadav has also been sought, which is legally not maintainable. It is also pertinent to mention that the trial court has sentenced the appellant Ram Dularey Yadav with maximum sentence provided under Sections 363 & 366 IPC and the sentence so imposed may not be enhanced to any extent beyond provisions of Sections 363 & 366 IPC.

10. The point-wise discussions of the arguments raised on behalf of the appellant are being made as under:

11. The incident in question is alleged to have been taken place on 14.05.2002 at about 10.00 a.m., of which FIR has been lodged on 18.05.2002 at 00.10 a.m., which has been assailed by appellant on following points:

(a) FIR has been lodged with inordinate delay of 4 days, at 00.10 hours in the midnight.

(b) The first informant is cousin brother of the victim and is an Advocate, but the FIR has been got scribed by Harish Chandra Yadav, who has not been produced by the prosecution.

(c) As per FIR the first informant was not the eye witness of the incident and there is no mention of any eye witness in the FIR.

(d) The parents of the victim have neither been shown as witnesses in the charge sheet nor were produced before the court nor their statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. were recorded.

(e) PW-1 and PW-2, the alleged eye witnesses of the incident, who allegedly seen the victim at the time when she was being carried out by the appellant through Jeep, are closely related with the first informant as well as father of the victim and belong to the same village and not making of any disclosure by any of them to the first informant or father of the victim is quite unnatural and makes the prosecution story false and highly improbable.

(f) There is property dispute between the father of the victim and the accused/ appellant and the first informant Virendra Kumar Yadav, uncle of victim is an Advocate and has fabricated the false prosecution story in the FIR, for falsely implicating the appellant and others due to above property dispute.

(g) The nature of offence requires its committal in the darkness in hiding manner in absence of general public and allegations of its committal in broad day light at about 10.00 a.m. is absolutely wrong and highly improbable.

(h) The appellant is a handicapped person with 60% disability in his right leg and the victim may not have eloped with a disable person, under any imagination, particularly when there is no whisper of any love affair between the two.

(i) The learned trial court acted wrongly and illegally in convicting the appellant while acquitted the three others on same set of evidence.

(j) The victim was major at the time of alleged incident and appears to be living somewhere else under the knowledge of her parents.

(k) For not producing the parents of victim before the trial court, adverse inference ought to have been drawn against the prosecution and accused/ appellant should have been acquitted by giving benefit of doubt.

(l) The conviction of appellant is based on misreading of the evidence, and surmises and conjectures and is liable to be set aside.

12. The first informant- PW-3 and parents of victim are not alleged to be the eye witness as of the incident of enticing away the victim by Ram Dularey Yadav or other accused. The prosecution has produced Laxmi Yadav and Kripa Yadav as PW-1 and PW-2, who have stated that on 14.05.2010 at about 10.00 a.m. when they were coming back after distributing the milk, they saw that accused/ appellant Ram Dularey Yadav and the victim girl, who were talking each other at the temple of Shiv Ji at Parikhapur and at some distance co-accused Ramgyan, Surendra Nath Yadav and Smt. Subhawati were standing and in the meantime a Jeep came from west, in which Ram Dularey made to sit the victim by catching hold of her arm. PW-1 at Page 3 has stated that after distributing the milk in the Market at about 9.00 a.m., he remained in the Market upto 10.00 a.m. and before leaving for home, PW-2 Kripa Yadav met him in the Market and asked him to have a cup of tea, which took sometime, while victim and accused/ appellant were talking at the door of temple and thereafter on road, but he did not go there and kept watching from a distance of about 20 steps. He has further stated that next day at about 4.00 p.m. he told the police, that he had seen the accused persons enticing away the victim. On this point PW-2 Kripa Yadav has made a different statement that he was returning to home after distributing milk in the Market along-with Laxmi Yadav and when they reached near the temple of Shiv Ji on roadside, the appellant and victim were laughing and talking with each other while co-accused Ramgyan, Surendra Nath and Subhawati were standing near the temple and when Jeep came from western side, the appellant and victim left by the Jeep and co-accused also left to their homes after a while. He has also stated that, they asked co-accused Ramgyan as to where Ram Dularey and victim had gone, but he did not reply and next day on i.e. 15th May he had told the entire story to first informant Virendra Kumar Yadav, about seeing the victim and appellant Ram Dularey talking each other and of his leaving with victim by Jeep.

13. Upon going through the statements of the above witnesses, I find that there are material contradictions in their statements as to the narration of the incident allegedly seen by them. While PW-1 has sated to have seen the appellant and victim talking with each other from a distance of 20 steps, the PW-2 has stated that after taking tea, at the tea stall of Sintu at a distance of 30-35 steps, when they left after 15-20 minutes, they saw the appellant and victim talking with each other. PW-1 has stated at page 6 of his cross-examination that first informant Virendra Kumar Yadav belongs to his family (Khaandan) and father of the victim lives in Jaunpur and similarly PW-2 at Page 3 of his cross-examination has stated that first informant Virendra Kumar Yadav happens to be his nephew as both of them belongs to the same village, but later on he has admitted that father of victim as well as father of first informant Virendra Kumar are his cousin brothers. Both the above witnesses have admitted that there is enmity between the prosecution party and the accused/ appellant over alleged forcible construction of gate by father of victim after encroaching upon the land of co-accused Ramgyan, the real brother of accused/ appellant Ram Dularey.

14. It is also pertinent to mention that in the nature of offence of enticing away of a minor or major girl, the natural conduct of any person is of having sympathy and of extending a helping hand towards the victim and her family. Sometimes a stranger may avoid poking his nose in such matters under apprehension that the family of victim may feel bad of interference in private matters for making girl or her family defamed, but when the family members of the victim themselves came into contact with such persons like PW-1 and PW-2 during search operations, it is quite improbable and highly unnatural conduct of such persons (howsoever distant relative he may be) not to tell him the whereabouts or facts known to them. In the facts and circumstances of the case the PW-1 being relative of the victim, as well as first informant and PW-2 being Chacha (close relative of victim and PW-3) would certainly have told him the entire story whatever had they seen with names of culprits, the very next day when they admittedly met the first informant, and not disclosing of these facts by them to the first informant or father of the victim (who is also alleged to have come from Jaunpur on the next day of incident) is quite unnatural and unbelievable. There is no whisper in the FIR lodged in the midnight, after about more than four days of the incident that the alleged eye witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 were the eye witnesses of the incident and ever told the first informant of the occurrence having been seen by them. The FIR is not alleged to have been lodged on the information received from PW-1 and PW-2.

15. In the case of Gopal, Krishnaji Ketkar vs Mahomed Haji Latif & Ors, 1968 AIR 1413, a Three Judges Bench of Apex Court has held that:

"Where a party in possession of the best evidence which would throw light on the issue in controversy withholds it - Court ought to draw an adverse inference against him notwithstanding that onus of proof does not lie on him."

16. Undisputedly the parents of the victim were living at Jaunpur and as first informant PW-3, they are also not alleged to be eye witnesses of the incident. However, they were the best witnesses to depose before the trial court that their daughter is missing since 14.10.2002 and is alleged to have been enticed away by the accused/ appellant or his associates. They could also have deposed the fact of victim having been fetched by accused/ appellant by Jeep at 10.00 a.m. on the basis of hear-say as their position would have been similar to that of first informant/ PW-3, who is also not eye witness of enticing away. For not producing the best evidence by the prosecution before the trial court about missing of the minor girl without assigning any reason, adverse inference ought to have been drawn by the trial court against the prosecution to the effect that had they been produced as witnesses, they would not have been able to support the prosecution case and conceal the truth of having knowledge of the whereabouts of victim or her being a major girl. In view of adverse inference so drawn against the prosecution for suppressing the truth, it is a fit case where accused/ appellant becomes entitled to a benefit of doubt and consequentially acquittal.

17. It is not disputed that the accused/ appellant Ram Dularey is a handicapped person, who has filed his disability certificate issued by Medical Board of Chief Medical Officer, Mau certifying 60% disability in his right leg and it has been admitted by PW-2 and PW-3 that accused/ appellant is a handicapped person disabled with one leg and cannot walk properly because of problem with one leg. It is not the case of the prosecution that the accused/ appellant was having love affair with the victim, the minor girl and enticed her away on account of the love affair. It is also pertinent to mention that since the accused/ appellant is a handicapped person until and otherwise proved, no girl is supposed to fall in love with such a disabled person and so even in case of any one side liking of victim by accused/ appellant, there can be no reason for the victim to go with the accused/ appellant at her own. There is no whisper of any force having been used by the accused/ appellant or other accused persons in forcibly sitting the victim in Jeep with the accused/ appellant. However, in case of use of forcible kidnapping, the victim would have raised alarm and the persons inside and outside the Jeep (by which she was allegedly taken away) including the alleged eye witnesses PW-1 & PW-2 (who being relatives, were her well wishers, would have come rushed for her rescue and would have immediately informed the parents as well as Vakil, Chacha of the victim, PW-3. In absence of any evidence to above effect, the prosecution has also failed to prove any motive of accused/ appellant behind the crime.

18. It has been contended by the accused/ appellant that the victim was major and was living with her parents in Jaunpur and the police have not made any efforts to trace out the victim at Jaunpur or anywhere else or either in or towards the Police Station Madhuban, where the appellant allegedly taken her away. It is pertinent to mention that the first informant is a law graduate and it is expected from him as a prudent man, to inform the police immediately after the incident, so that there could have been better possibility of tracing out the victim. The prosecution has also not made any efforts of tracing the victim by taking the accused/ appellant on police remand. The prosecution has failed to explain the inordinate delay of around 4 days in lodging FIR (from 10 a.m. on 14.05.2002 to 00.10 a.m. on 18.05.2002) and for lodging it urgently at midnight at 00.10 a.m. It has also been contended that as per entries in the family register, the victim was major at the time of incident. The possibility of eloping of victim in the darkness of night without knowledge of anybody, may not be ruled out.

19. Admittedly the first informant/ PW-3 is highly educated person and postgraduate as has been admitted by him in his cross-examination at Page 8 of his cross-examination that he is M.A., LL.B. He has stated that he lives at home and does agricultural work and since the matter was related to his prestige he was very much nervous and so instead of writing the written report himself, got it written by Harishchandra Yadav on his dictation and in dictating there was no problem. It is pertinent to mention that the father of the victim had come the very next day, but no reason has been assigned as to why the FIR (which was lodged after around 4 days at midnight) was not lodged by father himself.

20. PW-1 and PW-2 are only chance witnesses and have also stated to have enquired into with co-accused Ramgyan, Subhawati and Surendra Nath as to where the victim and accused/ appellant have gone, but even when no reply was given by them, they did not inform the first informant or father of the victim, which is also quite unnatural and their conduct in not doing so despite being related, makes their contention of being eye witnesses doubtful and untrustworthy. Similarly on alleged asking by PW-1 and PW-2 from Ramgyan and others, not giving any threat by them is quite unnatural, while on mere enquiry by the first informant, they allegedly threatened him. The first informant has not assigned any reason when neither he was eye witness of the occurrence nor got any information from alleged eye witnesses then why and on what ground he approached the family members of accused/ appellant i.e. co-accused persons for enquiring about the victim.

21. It is settled principle of law that the evidence of interested or related witnesses should be considered with caution and until and unless it is found to be trustworthy the conviction of accused on the basis of evidence of related or interested witness is not justified. In view of the discussions made above and considering the unnatural conduct of PW-1 and PW-2, I am of the considered view that they are not proved to be eye witnesses of the incident of enticing away victim by accused/ appellant in presence of co-accused persons or otherwise and their testimony is neither reliable nor trustworthy.

22. In the present case the only eye witnesses of the incident, PW-1 and PW-2, are admittedly related/ closely related witnesses and their conduct has been found unnatural in not disclosing and not helping the first informant. The conduct of father of the victim in not lodging the FIR and not appearing before the trial court for stating on oath that his daughter is missing and has been enticed away by the accused/ appellant with the help of other co-accused or otherwise and the conduct of PW-3/ first informant, who himself is a law graduate and is also alleged to be an Advocate in not mentioning the names of alleged eye witnesses in the FIR and lodging of FIR with inordinate delay of 4 days at midnight without any whisper about the love affair if any, between the victim and the accused/ appellant and further the undisputed disability of accused/ appellant makes the entire prosecution story highly improbable and doubtful and gives strength to the arguments that the father of victim and his family members including first informant, on account of property dispute have falsely implicated the accused/ appellant and his family members, due to suspicion.

23. In view of the facts and circumstances of the case, there is sufficient reason for drawing adverse inference against the prosecution for not producing the parents of victim to the witness box before the trial court. The evidence on record shows that PW-1 and PW-2 were not the eye witnesses of alleged incident of fetching the victim by accused/ appellant in broad day light at 10.00 a.m. instead of choosing sometime of loneliness in the late evening or early morning, and they have been set up subsequently in order to improve the case against the accused persons. The above witnesses are interested witnesses and their unnatural conduct and contradictory testimony is not reliable for holding the accused/ appellant guilty and the learned trial court has misread the evidence on record. I am of the considered view that the prosecution has failed to prove its case to the hilt beyond any shadow of reasonable doubt and has failed to bring home the charges against any of the accused by any cogent, reliable, independent and trustworthy evidence. Considering the totality of facts and circumstances, it is a fit case where the accused/ appellant is entitled to be given the benefit of doubt and the prosecution case is liable to be rejected. The accused/ appellant is also entitled for an order of acquittal.

24. It is settled principle of law as has been held by the Apex Court in the case of K. Prakashan Vs. P.K. Sunderan (2008) 1 SCC 258 that -

"When two views are possible, appellate court should not reverse the judgment of acquittal merely because the other view was possible. When judgment of trial court was neither perverse nor suffered from any legal infirmity or non-consideration/ misappropriation of evidence on record, reversal thereof by High Court is not justified."

25. In view of the discussions made above, the appeal is liable to be allowed. Since in the order of acquittal of opposite party nos.2 to 4 Ramgyan, Surendra Nath Yadav and Smt. Subhawati, against whom there is virtually no evidence at all, there is no illegality, irregularity, impropriety, incorrectness or perversity, there is no sufficient ground for interfering with or setting it aside order of their acquittal. The criminal revision has no force and is liable to be dismissed.

26. The appeal is allowed accordingly and the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence of appellant Ram Dularey Yadav is set aside and he is held not guilty of the offences under Sections 363 & 366 IPC. Dismissing the criminal revision no.2218 of 2006 impugned judgment and order of acquittal of opposite party nos.2 to 4 Ramgyan, Surendra Nath Yadav and Smt. Subhawati is confirmed.

27. The prosecution case stands failed and the accused/ appellant Ram Dularey Yadav is acquitted of the charges under Sections 363 & 366 read with Section 34 IPC. He will be released, if in custody, forthwith unless wanted in some other case.

28. Let a copy of this order be immediately sent to the Sessions Judge, Mau through e-mail, fax and ordinary post for ascertaining immediate release of accused/ appellant Ram Dularey Yadav unless wanted in some other case.

29. Let the lower court record be sent to the court below along with copy of this judgment and order without any delay.

Criminal Appeal No.- 3175 Of 1983

Connected With Other Cases

Ram Pal & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellants:
K.N. Dwivedi

Counsel for Respondent:
D.G.A.

The present criminal appeal and connected appeals no. 3176 of 1983 and 3177 of 1983 have been preferred against the judgement and order of conviction and sentence dated 17.12.1983 passed by IIIrd Additional Session Judge, Farrukhabad in S.T. No. 319 of 1980 (State Vs. Jagdeo and 3 Others) arising out of Case Crime No. 529 of 1978, under Section 396 I.P.C., hence all the appeals are being considered jointly.

The First Information Report was lodged by Shiv Lal s/o Sita Ram Kishaan, R/o Machha, P.S. Kannauj, District Farrukhabad. According to the version of F.I.R., informant Shiv Lal s/o Sita Ram Kishaan was the resident of Village Machha. Amber and Ladaite were step brothers and Amber had died. Grand mother of Ladaite Smt. Jasoda was kept of Tijja, uncle of Jagdeo. After the death of Tijja, Smt. Jasoda before her death executed sale deed of the land in favour of Amber and Ladaite regarding land measuring 14 Bigha, there was dispute in between Ladaite and Jagdeo in Tehsil and after that at Fatehgarh. On 26.12.1978 the date was fixed for the case due to that reason Jagdeo has grudge against them and Jagdeo on last Tuesday, threatened him and Ladaite, before the next date i.e. 26.12.1978 he would cause damage to them since the case was initiated in between the parties.

Court observed that as per the the F.I.R. the enmity was because 20 bigha land was transferred by Smt. Jasoda Devi, through registered sale deed in favour of Ladaite and Amber, step-brothers of informant Shiv Lal. Smt. Jasoda Devi was kept of one Tijja, uncle of accused-appellant Jagdeo, hence, he was annoyed and had grudge against Ladaite and other family members. He threatened to informant and Ladaite to ruing them. In the night 12-13 miscreants entered into the house, armed with gun, country-made pistol and looted house hold articles, jewelries, thereafter they left the house, Jagdeo exhorted to snatch the house hold articles of Manna, neighbour of the informant also because he was also doing pairvi. According to the statement of Shiv Lal PW1, 10-12 miscreants were involved in the dacoity which took place in his house, they identified them in the light of diya which was kept in lighted in the house and he identified Ram Pal, Jagdeo, Moti, Nand Ram, Ram Bhajan. Subsequently, he stated that out of 12-13 miscreants who entered into the house, 6-7 miscreants went to the house of Manna for committing dacoity which is against version of the F.I.R. and this was improvement. Further from perusal of F.I.R. and statements it is clear that when Madan Lal challenged the dacoits who were going with the booty then they shot fire and when Nokhey started pelting brickbat from the roof of the house of Manna then Ram Pal shot fire which shows the intention was only for committing dacoity and not to commit murder. The enmity from Jagdeo was shown with the informant and his brother Ladaite but they were not assaulted by them. Further they have not concealed their faces, though they were well know to the informant and family members. Ladaite was not examined. Even injured witnesses Madan Lal and Rajendra Singh were also not examined in support of the prosecution case.

Court observed that the appellant Ram Bhajan is the only surviving and is entitled for benefit of doubt.

Hence, the impugned judgement and order of conviction and sentence dated 17.12.1983 passed in S.T. No. 319 of 1980, District Farrukhabad, is hereby set aside. The bail bond and sureties are discharged.

Accordingly the appeal of Ram Bhajan is hereby allowed

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Tripathi, J.)

1. The present criminal appeal and connected appeals no. 3176 of 1983 and 3177 of 1983 have been preferred against the judgement and order of conviction and sentence dated 17.12.1983 passed by IIIrd Additional Session Judge, Farrukhabad in S.T. No. 319 of 1980 (State Vs. Jagdeo and 3 Others) arising out of Case Crime No. 529 of 1978, under Section 396 I.P.C., hence all the appeals are being considered jointly.

2. However, since appellant no. 1 Ram Pal in the present appeal and appellants Jegdeo and Nand Ram in the connected appeals died hence appeal in respect of them stood abated vide order dated 09.08.2016. The present appeal survives only on behalf of sole appellant no. 2 Ram Bhajan. Appellant Jagdeo, Ram Bhajan and Nandram were convicted and sentenced under Section 396 I.P.C. for 5 years rigorous imprisonment with fine of sum of Rs. 2,000/- and in-default 6 months further rigorous imprisonment, accused-appellant Ram Pal was convicted under Section 396 I.P.C. for life imprisonment.

3. Mr. Sanjeev Kumar Trivedi, learned Advocate appeared on behalf of appellant and Mr. Virendra Singh Yadav, learned A.G.A. appeared on behalf of State.

4. The brief facts of the case is that First Information Report was lodged by Shiv Lal s/o Sita Ram Kishaan, R/o Machha, P.S. Kannauj, District Farrukhabad. According to the version of F.I.R., informant Shiv Lal s/o Sita Ram Kishaan was the resident of Village Machha. Amber and Ladaite were step brothers and Amber had died. Grand mother of Ladaite Smt. Jasoda was kept of Tijja, uncle of Jagdeo. After the death of Tijja, Smt. Jasoda before her death executed sale deed of the land in favour of Amber and Ladaite regarding land measuring 14 Bigha, there was dispute in between Ladaite and Jagdeo in Tehsil and after that at Fatehgarh. On 26.12.1978 the date was fixed for the case due to that reason Jagdeo has grudge against them and Jagdeo on last Tuesday, threatened him and Ladaite, before the next date i.e. 26.12.1978 he would cause damage to them since the case was initiated in between the parties. There was no talking terms in between the parties. Due to that reason in the the night of 25.12.1978 at about 9:00 p.m when informant, his brother Ladaite, his wife Ganga Devi and mother Mahrana, after taking dinner just laid to sleep, dibbi was burning, 12-13 miscreants attacked with the gun, country-made pistol and lathi, they over powered to the informant and his brother Ladaite and looted all house hold articles from kotha, snatched one Kheduwa (Jewelry) from the leg of Ganga Devi and from the right leg they could not snatched, injury was also caused. Jagdeo was exhorted to teach them lesson for contesting case and snatched all the jewelry and house hold goods. They identified the miscreants in the light of diya as Ram Pal Kishaan, r/o Village Tikapurwa armed with gun, Ram Bhajan Kishaan armed with country-made pistol (katta), Moti Lal Kishaan armed with country-made Pistol (Katta) and Nand Ram Kishaan also armed with gun who residing Village Kacchiyapur. When miscreants left the house of the informant then accused-appellant Jagdeo, asked, other co-accused appellants to snatch the house holds articles of his neighbour Manna and his nephew who was doing pairvi on behalf of Ladaite. Thereafter they went to the house of Manna, entered into the house and started looting housing hold articles, they raised alarm, the number of villagers including Madan Lal Yadav, Ganga Charan Yadav, Munshi Lal Yadav, Banwari Yadav, Ram Kumar Yadav, Ram Lal Kishaan, Rajendra Singh and others came running towards the place of incident, flashing their torches. When they were going towards west from beneath the tree of Viriya, Madan Lal Pradhan moved forward and exhorted to catch the miscreants, then one of the miscreants shot fire by gun causing fire arm injuries to Madan Lal Pradhan and Rajendra Singh. In the meantime, Nokhe, neighbour of Manna started hurling brickbats from the roof of the house towards miscreants then Ram Pal shot fire with his gun causing fire arm injury on the face of Nokhey, who fell down on the roof and died on the spot. The family members of Manna in the light of diya and other villagers in the light of torch saw and identified the assailants and they could identify on seeing them. Some assailants were of young age, some were of middle age. They were wearing khaki cloths, big coats and some were wearing plain cloths. The language of some miscreants was of gangapar and some of miscreants was of nearly places, list of Jewelries were also mentioned. The F.I.R. was registered as Case Crime No. 529 of 1978 at P.S. Kannauj at 09:30 a.m. on 26.12.1978, the distance of Police Station, from the place of incident was about 7 k.m. north. In the F.I.R., Jagdeo, Ram Pal Kishaan, Ram Bhajan, Moti Kishaan and Nand Ram Kishaan were named and 7-8 assailants were unnamed. The investigation was taken over by Sub-inspector/Station Officer, Hausla Prasad Sharma. He went to inspect the place of the incident, the inquest report was prepared in the presence of the witnesses, their signatures were taken there, dead body was sealed and sent with necessary papers to mortuary, Sadar Hosptial, Fatehgarh for postmortem examination. He recorded the statement of informant Shiv Lal, Manna, Sitaram, Baladin and others. The torch of the witnesses were seen and handed over in their custody. Dibri was seen and handed over to them. Inspected the place of incident and prepare the site plan. Injured Gendan Lal and Rajendra Singh were sent along with Constable Raj Bahadur Singh for medical. He searched assailants and made search at the house of Ram Pal, Ram Bhajan. After completing the investigation and necessary formalities charge sheet was submitted. Thereafter the case was committed to the Court of Session.

5. Injured Rajendra was examined on 26.12.1978 at 11:45 a.m., three injuries were noted as below:-

1. One gunshot wound of entry 1/10" X 1/10" X muscle deep on the right side front of chest lower part. Margins are inverted and lacerated. No blackening and tattooing present.

2. One gunshot wound of entry 1/10" X 1/10" X muscle deep on the left side groin region. Margins are inverted and lacerated. No blackening and tattooing present.

3. One gunshot wound of entry 1/10" X 1/10" X muscle deep on the outer aspect of right elbow. Joint injuries are inverted and lacerated. No blackening and tattooing present.

All injuries are simple, caused by some fire arm.

6. Injured Gendan Lal was examined on 26.12.1978 at 11:30 a.m., three multiple gunshot wound were found on his person.

1. Multiple gunshot wounds of entry in an area at 7" X 5" on the left side abdomen front, each measuring 1/10" X 1/10" X muscle deep. Margins are inverted and lacerated. No blackening and tattooing present.

2. Multiple gunshot wounds of entry in an area at 10" X 2½" on the outer aspect of right forearm and hand (dorsum), each measuring 1/10" X 1/10" X muscle deep. Margins are inverted and lacerated. No blackening and tattooing presents.

3. Multiple gunshot wound of entry in an ear at 6" X3" on the inner aspect of the left forearm and hand (palmer sufeses), each measuring 1/10" X 1/10" X muscle deep. Margins are inverted and lacerated. No blackening and tattooing presents.

All injuries kept U.O. and advised X-ray, all are caused by some firearm, duration about ½ day.

7. Postmortem examination on body of Nokhe Lal was conduct on 27.12.1978 at 03:00 p.m. by Medical Officer in District Hospital, Fatehgarh. Following injuries were noted;-

1. Gunshot wound of entry 1/8" X 1/8" X bone deep present just below left eye brow on the right side. No blackening present, margin inverted.

2. Gunshot wound of exit 1/4" X 1/4" X communicated injury no. 1 present forehead right side. Margin everted. Direction - downward to upward.

Cause of death was due to shock and hemorrhage

8. The injury reports and postmortem report were admitted and as such no witnesses examined to prove the injury report and postmortem examination report.

9. The prosecution to prove its case, examined as many as 4 witnesses. PW1/informant Shiv Lal (eye witness), PW2 Baladin (eye witness). Two formal witnesses, S.I. Haushla Prasad Sharma, Investigating Officer was examined as PW3 and Constable Virbhan Singh who carried the dead body to District Hospital for postmortem examination, was examined as PW4. After evidence was closed by the prosecution statement of accused were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. They denied the charges and stated that they were falsely implicated due to enmity as there was case pending in between the informant and Jagdeo and other accused were relative of accused Jagdeo or were assisting Jagdeo. In defence, neither any oral evidence nor documentary evidence was adduced on behalf of defence. After considering the evidence and hearing the parties, the trial Court held the accused-appellants guilty hence convicted and sentenced them under Section 396 I.P.C. The only surviving appellant Ram Bhajan was convicted and sentenced five years rigorous imprisonment with fine.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant challenged the impugned judgement and submitted that even if there was any dispute that was with Jagdeo with regard to the land of Smt. Jasoda Devi. Appellant Ram Bhajan and other accused were also implicated because he was the relative of Jagdeo and supporting him. According to prosecution case and statement of witnesses, 12 assailants entered into the house and looted jewelries as mentioned in the F.I.R. not only from the house of Shiv Lal and Ladaite but even from the house of other neighbour of Shiv Lal, namely Nanhe s/o Gajja Kishaan. It appears that dacoity was committed by unknown miscreants and due to suspicion and enmity with Jagdeo, as litigation was going on in between them. Hence, not only Jagdeo was implicated but even appellants were implicated being relative and close to Jagdeo. He has also contended that merely by committing dacoity, case could not be solved in respect of the land in dispute. The accused did not assault any member of family there was no attempt to assault with intention to kill them because the dispute regarding the land could be solved after the death of informant and step-brother Ladaite. Nothing was recovered from appellant Ram Bhajan though search was made by the Investigating Officer at the house of accused Ram Bhajan and other co-accused. Neither any looted article was recovered nor country-made pistol from the appellant Ram Bhajan. None of the injured witnesses were examined to support of the prosecution case. No injury was caused to PW1 and his brother Ladaite. Ladaite was also not examined. Since the prosecution story is doubtful, and prosecution failed to prove the case beyond doubt, hence, the impugned judgement of conviction and sentence is liable to be set aside.

11. Learned A.G.A. opposed the prayer and submitted that the statement of PW1 and PW2 are intact and there was no major contradiction or discrepancy. All the witnesses are not required to be examined. Since PW1 and PW2 who are eye witness are reliable and as such trial Court rightly held the appellants guilty and rightly convicted and awarded sentence and as such the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

12. Considered the submissions of the learned counsel for the parties. According to the F.I.R. the enmity was because 20 bigha land was transferred by Smt. Jasoda Devi, through registered sale deed in favour of Ladaite and Amber, step-brothers of informant Shiv Lal. Smt. Jasoda Devi was kept of one Tijja, uncle of accused-appellant Jagdeo, hence, he was annoyed and had grudge against Ladaite and other family members. He threatened to informant and Ladaite to ruing them. In the night 12-13 miscreants entered into the house, armed with gun, country-made pistol and looted house hold articles, jewelries, thereafter they left the house, Jagdeo exhorted to snatch the house hold articles of Manna, neighbour of the informant also because he was also doing pairvi. According to the statement of Shiv Lal PW1, 10-12 miscreants were involved in the dacoity which took place in his house, they identified them in the light of diya which was kept in lighted in the house and he identified Ram Pal, Jagdeo, Moti, Nand Ram, Ram Bhajan. Subsequently, he stated that out of 12-13 miscreants who entered into the house, 6-7 miscreants went to the house of Manna for committing dacoity which is against version of the F.I.R. and this was improvement. Further from perusal of F.I.R. and statements it is clear that when Madan Lal challenged the dacoits who were going with the booty then they shot fire and when Nokhey started pelting brickbat from the roof of the house of Manna then Ram Pal shot fire which shows the intention was only for committing dacoity and not to commit murder. The enmity from Jagdeo was shown with the informant and his brother Ladaite but they were not assaulted by them. Further they have not concealed their faces, though they were well know to the informant and family members. Ladaite was not examined. Even injured witnesses Madan Lal and Rajendra Singh were also not examined in support of the prosecution case.

13. Shiv Lal was very close to Baladin. As per suggestion made to PW2 Baladin, in his cross-examination, he has stated that it was incorrect to say that since he was very close, hence, he was giving statement. When dacoity was committed in the house of Shiv Lal he was sleeping beneath a chhappar (thatched roof). After hearing alarm, he awoke and saw the dacoits in the light of torch. He saw the dacoits when they were coming from the house of Shiv Lal and Manna, who were 12-13 in number. Jagdeo, Ram Pal and Nand Ram were armed with weapon, gun, Ram Bhajan was armed with country-made pistol. In view of the statement it is clear that no injury was caused either to the informant or Ladaite with whom there was enmity, which shows that intention was to commit dacoity and when they were challenged and assaulted then they shot fire. The incident took place on 25.12.1978 at about 09:30 p.m. but the F.I.R. was lodged at 09:30 a.m. on 26.12.1978. There was no recovery of either any fire arm or any looted article, from the appellant Ram Bhajan. He is on bail during pendency of appeal.

14. Villagers who received injury, they were not produced before the trial Court in support of prosecution story. According to the statement of Baladin, he was sleeping beneath the chhappar, however, subsequently he stated that he was sleeping inside his kotha. The charge sheet was not submitted against Nand Ram. Subsequently he was summoned under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The dacoity was committed not only in the house of Ladaite and informant but also in the house of Manna. These circumstances shows that the dacoity was committed by unknown persons and due to enmity and suspicion accused-appellant was falsely implicated. Hence, in view of the facts and circumstances mentioned above, the prosecution story is found doubtful.

15. In view of the above noted discussion the only surviving appellant Ram Bhajan is entitled for benefit of doubt. Hence, the impugned judgement and order of conviction and sentence dated 17.12.1983 passed in S.T. No. 319 of 1980, District Farrukhabad, is hereby set aside. The bail bond and sureties are discharged.

16. Accordingly the appeal of Ram Bhajan is hereby allowed

Criminal Revision No.- 3152 Of 2014

Chhabila Singh Yadav & Ors. ...Revisionists
Versus
State Of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for Revisionists:
M.P. Yadav, U.S. Chauhan

Counsel for Opposite Parties:
Govt. Advocate, Awadhesh Tiwari, Jagdish Singh

This criminal revision has been preferred by the revisionists for setting aside the impugned judgment and order dated 06.11.2012 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ballia in Complaint Case No. 70 of 2012, under Section 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 (Smt. Suman Devi Vs. Raju Singh Yadav and others) and impugned judgment and order dated 25.08.2014 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Ex Cadre), Ballia in Criminal Misc. Application No. 46 of 2013 (Raju Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others).

It is contended by learned counsel for the revisionists that the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ballia had passed an ex-parte order dated 06.11.2012 without providing an opportunity of hearing to the revisionists, which is against the settled principles of law. It is further contended that the appellate court has also erred in dismissing the appeal filed by the revisionists on the ground of limitation without considering the merit of the case. It is also submitted that the revisionists are living separately and they have no concern either direct or indirect with the opposite party no. 2 and her husband.

Section 13 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 is a mandatory section which cannot be over-sighted. Learned Magistrate has not complied with Rule 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Rules, 2006 where it was required by him to clearly mention about the service of notice.

Court held that the impugned judgment and order dated 06.11.2012 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ballia in Complaint Case No. 70 of 2012 (Smt. Suman Devi Vs. Raju Singh Yadav and others) under Section 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, Police Station- Kotwali, District- Ballia and order dated dated 25.8.2014 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Ex Cadre), Ballia in Criminal Misc. Application No. 46 of 2013 (Raju Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others) are liable to be set aside for the reasons discussed as above.

Accordingly, this revision summarily allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prabhat Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Heard Sri M.P. Yadav, learned counsel for the revisionists and Sri Manoj Yadav, Advocate, holding brief of Sri Awadhesh Tiwari, learned counsel for the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 and perused the record.

2. This criminal revision has been preferred by the revisionists for setting aside the impugned judgment and order dated 06.11.2012 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ballia in Complaint Case No. 70 of 2012, under Section 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 (Smt. Suman Devi Vs. Raju Singh Yadav and others) and impugned judgment and order dated 25.08.2014 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Ex Cadre), Ballia in Criminal Misc. Application No. 46 of 2013 (Raju Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others).

3. It is contended by learned counsel for the revisionists that the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ballia had passed an ex-parte order dated 06.11.2012 without providing an opportunity of hearing to the revisionists, which is against the settled principles of law. It is further contended that the appellate court has also erred in dismissing the appeal filed by the revisionists on the ground of limitation without considering the merit of the case. It is also submitted that the revisionists are living separately and they have no concern either direct or indirect with the opposite party no. 2 and her husband. It is next submitted that the revisionists had no knowledge about the ex-parte order and the said fact came into knowledge when the Police of Police Station Kasimabad, Ghazipur reached at the house of the revisionists to serve the copy of the order dated 06.11.2012 for making payment of monetary relief.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionists has relied upon the judgment of High Court of Uttrakhand in case of S Vishwanathan s/o Shankaran vs. Pushpa and State of Uttarakhand, 2011 (74) AllCriC 43 and also the judgment of this Court in Criminal Revision No. 864 of 2012 (Smt. Rani Devi vs. State of U.P. & others) decided on 13.7.2016.

5. Section 13 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 is a mandatory section which cannot be over-sighted. Learned Magistrate has not complied with Rule 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Rules, 2006 where it was required by him to clearly mention about the service of notice.

6. Although, while deciding the Criminal Misc. Application No. 46 of 2013 (Raju Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others) vide order dated 25.08.2014, the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Ex Cadre), Ballia has mentioned that it came into knowledge of the appellant on 25.4.2013 when the Police of Police Station Kasimabad, Ghazipur went to serve the recovery warrant issued in Execution Case No.03 of 2013 of ex-parte judgment and order dated 06.11.2012 and, thereafter the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Ex Cadre), Ballia dismissed the application under Section 5 of Limitation Act preferred by the appellant/ opposite party no.3, Raju Singh. The order dated 25.4.2013 passed by the learned Sessions Judge (Ex Cadre) Ballia in Criminal Misc. Application No. 46 of 2013 (Raju Singh and others vs. State of U.P. and others) is a non-speaking order regarding the details of service upon the appellant/ opposite party, Raju Singh and others.

7. Resultantly, the impugned judgment and order dated 06.11.2012 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ballia in Complaint Case No. 70 of 2012 (Smt. Suman Devi Vs. Raju Singh Yadav and others) under Section 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, Police Station- Kotwali, District- Ballia and order dated dated 25.8.2014 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Ex Cadre), Ballia in Criminal Misc. Application No. 46 of 2013 (Raju Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others) are liable to be set aside for the reasons discussed as above.

8. Accordingly, this revision summarily allowed.

9. The impugned judgment and order dated 06.11.2012 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ballia in Complaint Case No. 70 of 2012 (Smt. Suman Devi Vs. Raju Singh Yadav and others) under Section 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, Police Station- Kotwali, District- Ballia and order dated dated 25.8.2014 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (Ex Cadre), Ballia in Criminal Misc. Application No. 46 of 2013 (Raju Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others) are hereby set aside.

10. The revisionists, namely, Chhabila Singh Yadav, Dheeraj Singh Yadav, Smt. Muneshwari Devi, Rahul Kumar @ Mulayam, Prem Shankar @ Pappu, Ranju Devi, Km. Rinku Singh Yadav, Anil Kumar Yadav and Smt. Tara Devi, are directed to appear before the trial court on 16th September, 2016.

11. Learned trial court is directed to pass a fresh order after hearing the parties. In case, they fail to appear before the trial court personally or through counsel on the date fixed i.e. on 16th September, 2016 or on the date fixed thereafter by the said court, the trial court is at liberty to pass appropriate order after hearing the opposite parties.

THE HON'BLE HARSH KUMAR, J.

Criminal Revision No.- 1924 Of 2016

Smt. Mamta Barnwal & Anr. ...Revisionists
Versus
State Of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for Revisionists:
Prakash Chandra Srivastav

Counsel for Opposite Parties:
G.A.

The revision has been filed against the impugned order dated 21.5.2015 passed by Additional Sessions Judge Court No.5, Azamgarh in Sessions Trial No.400 of 2013 (State vs. Pradeep Burnwal and others) under Sections 498A, 304B I.P.C. and 3/4 D.P. Act, P.S. Phoolpur, District Azamgarh allowing the application 28-B of prosecution u/s 319 Cr.P.C. and summoning Smt. Mamta Burnwal and Sunita Burnwal for trial together with the co-accused Pradeep Burnwal and others. Feeling aggrieved, summoned accused Mamta Burnwal and Sunita Burnwal have filed this revision with a prayer for setting aside the impugned order.

Court find that the revisionists were named in the promptly lodged F.I.R, regarding the dowry death of Smt. Varsha Burnawal whose death took place in other than natural manner within seven years of marriage and there are allegations of demand of dowry and treating the deceased with cruelty of non-fulfillment of such demand. Undisputedly, the revisionists were not charge-sheeted and during trial upon application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. they have been summoned for trial together with co-accused persons, their husbands, brothers-in-law (Dewar) and parents-in-law (S*as & Sasur*).

In the impugned order learned trial court has considered the statements of three prosecution witnesses wherein P.W.2, the brother of deceased, has made specific allegations against the revisionists. It is also pertinent to mention that in the statements of P.W.1, 2 and 3 it has been stated that all the family members (S*usural wale*) treated the deceased with cruelty for non-fulfillment of demand of Safari vehicle as dowry and the revisionists do not claim to be falling outside the category of Sasural wale.

Court find that the learned lower court has exercised the discretion rightly in view of the evidence on record in summoning the additional accused/revisionists, the Jethanis of deceased who were named in F.I.R. but not charge-sheeted by I.O. for trial together with co-accused for the offence of dowry death. The learned counsel for revisionists has failed to show any illegality, irregularity, impropriety or incorrectness in the impugned order and there is nothing to show that the discretion so exercised by the trial court in summoning the revisionists has been exercised arbitrarily, rather it has been exercised judicially and there is no reason to interfere with it. There is no sufficient ground for interfering with or setting it aside the impugned order, the revision has no merits and is liable to be dismissed.

The revision is dismissed accordingly.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Harsh Kumar, J.)

1. The revision has been filed against the impugned order dated 21.5.2015 passed by Additional Sessions Judge Court No.5, Azamgarh in Sessions Trial No.400 of 2013 (State vs. Pradeep Burnwal and others) under Sections 498A, 304B I.P.C. and 3/4 D.P. Act, P.S. Phoolpur, District Azamgarh allowing the application 28-B of prosecution u/s 319 Cr.P.C. and summoning Smt. Mamta Burnwal and Sunita Burnwal for trial together with the co-accused Pradeep Burnwal and others. Feeling aggrieved, summoned accused Mamta Burnwal and Sunita Burnwal have filed this revision with a prayer for setting aside the impugned order.

2. At the stage of admission, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 filed Vakalatnama and put in appearance.

3. The learned counsel for revisionists contended that the impugned order is wrong on facts and law; that the F.I.R. was lodged with false and incorrect allegations falsely implicating as many as seven persons including the husband, father-in-law, mother-in-law, two brothers-in-law (Jeth), and two sisters-in-law (Jethani), all the family members of the husband of deceased excluding only one brother-in-law and sister-in-law (Jeth & Jethani) for the offence of dowry death of Smt. Varsha Burnawal; that the revisionists reside separately as has been admitted by P.W.-1 in his cross examination; that in the false F.I.R. revisionists were also named being Jethanis of the deceased without assigning any specific role to them; that upon investigation charge-sheet was filed against five out of the seven accused persons and no charge-sheet was filed against the revisionists as no cogent evidence was found against them; that the deceased was daughter-in-law of Subhash Chandra Burnawal and the revisionists are also daughters-in-law of accused Subhash Chandra Burnawal being wives of his sons Sandeep Burnawal and Vinay Burnawal respectively; that the position of revisionists is similar to that of deceased and there was no reason for making demand of dowry by them from the deceased, their sister-in-law or treating her with cruelty for non-fulfillment of alleged demand of dowry; that in the statements on oath of the PW-1, 2 and 3, copies filed at annexure-4, 5 and 6, it has been stated that Subhash Chandra, Pradeep, Vinay and Sandeep had made complaint of not giving Safari vehicle at the time of Bida of deceased, after marriage and the revisionists have not been named for making such complaint; that the I.O. had rightly not charge-sheeted the revisionists and there is no probability of revisionists being held guilty for dowry death of their younger sister-in-law; that the learned trial court has passed impugned order summoning the revisionists only on the basis of prima facie case which is wrong and illegal; that for the purposes of summoning any person for trial together with the co-accused under the provisions of Section 319 Cr.P.C. mere satisfaction of prima facie case is not enough and the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter; that the learned trial court ought to have dismissed application under Section 319 Cr.P.C; that by setting aside the impugned order, summoning the revisionists, the revision be allowed.

4. Per contra, learned AGA and learned counsel for first informant/opposite party no.2 supported the impugned order and contended that the daughter of opposite party no.2 was married to Pradeep Burnawal, son of Subhash Chandra Burnawal; that there was demand of Safari vehicle at the time of marriage which could not be given at the time of Bida after marriage and so complaint was made by father-in-law and brothers-in-law of deceased at the time of Bida; that thereafter the deceased was always treated with cruelty in connection with demand of dowry by all the accused including revisionists and on 27.10.2012, when wife of opposite party no.2 purchased a TATA Indigo vehicle, the husband and in-laws of deceased including the revisionists, became annoyed, hurled taunts for not providing the agreed Safari vehicle and treating the deceased with cruelty committed her dowry death; that it is wrong to say that the revisionists were falsely implicated and they are living separately; that the real fact is that the accused persons are living together in adjoining portions of the house, each one having access to the portion of other; that it is wrong to say that in F.I.R the revisionists were falsely implicated and had it been so, there would have been no reason to spare one brother-in-law & sister-in-law (Jeth & Jethani) of deceased who were neither named in F.I.R. nor sought to be summoned through application 28B under section 319 Cr.P.C; that in F.I.R specific role has been assigned to revisionists and if due to influence of accused persons or sympathy of I.O. towards revisionists or otherwise due to misappreciation of evidence by I.O. they were not charge-sheeted, it will not be correct to say that they may not be summoned or tried together with their husbands for the offence of dowry death; that prima facie there is very strong case against the revisionists with every possibility of their conviction for the offence of dowry death along with co-accused as well as their husbands who are already facing the trial; that the trial court has exercised the discretion rightly in favour of allowing the application and summoning the revisionists and neither there is any illegality, irregularity, impropriety or incorrectness in the impugned order nor there is any sufficient cause for interfering with the discretion so exercised by the trial court; that the revision has been filed with false and baseless allegations and is liable to be dismissed.

5. Upon hearing the learned counsel for the parties and perusal of record and the landmark case law laid down by the Constitution Bench of Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh vs. State of Punjab and others, (2014) 3 SCC 92, relied by both the sides, I find that the revisionists were named in the promptly lodged F.I.R, regarding the dowry death of Smt. Varsha Burnawal whose death took place in other than natural manner within seven years of marriage and there are allegations of demand of dowry and treating the deceased with cruelty of non-fulfillment of such demand. Undisputedly, the revisionists were not charge-sheeted and during trial upon application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. they have been summoned for trial together with co-accused persons, their husbands, brothers-in-law (Dewar) and parents-in-law (Sas & Sasur).

6. In the impugned order learned trial court has considered the statements of three prosecution witnesses wherein P.W.2, the brother of deceased, has made specific allegations against the revisionists. It is also pertinent to mention that in the statements of P.W.1, 2 and 3 it has been stated that all the family members (Susural wale) treated the deceased with cruelty for non-fulfillment of demand of Safari vehicle as dowry and the revisionists do not claim to be falling outside the category of Sasural wale.

7. The provisions of Section 319 (1) Cr.P.C. are being reproduced as under :-

"(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed."

8. The above section provides that where it appears from evidence that any person not being accused has committed offence, the court may proceed against him.

9. In the case of Pyarelal Bhargav vs. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1963 SC 1094, the four Judges Bench of Apex Court held that the appropriate meaning of word "appears" is "seems". It imports a lesser degree of probability than proof. It has been held by the Apex Court at times that what is necessary for court is to arrive at a satisfaction that the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution, if unrebutted, may lead to conviction of the persons sought to be added as the accused in the case.

10. In the case of Rajendra Singh vs. State of U.P. (2007) 7 SCC 378 the Apex Court held that :

"Be it noted, the court need not be satisfied that he has committed an offence. It need only appear to it that he has committed an offence. In other words, from the evidence it need only appear to it that someone else has committed an offence, to exercise jurisdiction under Section 319 the Code. Even then, it has a discretion not to proceed, since the expression used is "may" and not "shall". The legislature apparently wanted to leave that discretion to the trial court so as to enable it to exercise its jurisdiction under this section. The expression "appears" indicates an application of mind by the court to the evidence that has come before it and then taking a decision to proceed under Section 319 of the Code or not."

11. In paragraphs no.106 and 107 of the above judgement of Hardeep Singh (supra) relied by both the parties, the apex court has held as under :

"106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of Cross-Examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In Section 319 Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not for which such person could be convicted. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused.

107. In Joginder Singh v. State of Punjab, a three-Judge Bench of this Court held that as regards the contention that the phrase "any person not being the accused" occurring in Section 319 Cr.P.C. excludes from its operation an accused who has been released by the police under Section 169 Cr.P.C. and has been shown in Column 2 of the charge-sheet, the contention has merely to be rejected. The said expression clearly covers any person who is not being tried already by the Court and the very purpose of enacting such a provision like Section 319(1) Cr.P.C, clearly shows that even persons who have been dropped by the police during investigation but against whom evidence showing their involvement in the offence comes before the criminal court, are included in the said expression."

12. In view of law laid down by Apex Court, if at the time of exercising its jurisdiction in summoning or refusing to summon the additional accused, it appears to the trial court, i.e., it seems to the trial court from the evidence on record that any person not being the accused has committed any offence, whether he was named in F.I.R. or not and whether he was charge-sheeted or not, if the evidence remains unrebutted, he may be convicted for the offence it may pass order for summoning the additional accused. At the time of disposal of application under section 319 Cr.P.C. the trial court is not required to be satisfied that such additional accused has committed an offence, as this can only be decided at the time of final disposal of trial upon evidence of both parties.

13. Considering the evidence on record, I find that the learned lower court has exercised the discretion rightly in view of the evidence on record in summoning the additional accused/revisionists, the Jethanis of deceased who were named in F.I.R. but not charge- sheeted by I.O. for trial together with co-accused for the offence of dowry death. The learned counsel for revisionists has failed to show any illegality, irregularity, impropriety or incorrectness in the impugned order and there is nothing to show that the discretion so exercised by the trial court in summoning the revisionists has been exercised arbitrarily, rather it has been exercised judicially and there is no reason to interfere with it.

14. There is no sufficient ground for interfering with or setting it aside the impugned order, the revision has no merits and is liable to be dismissed.

15. The revision is dismissed accordingly.

16. However, if the revisionists move application for bail before the trial court, the same shall be disposed of expeditiously in accordance with law.

17. Any observation made in the body of the judgement on the merits of the evidence on record, shall not prejudice either party and shall have no binding effect at the time of final disposal of trial.

THE HON'BLE PRABHAT CHANDRA TRIPATHI, J.

Criminal Revision No.- 2917 Of 2015

Pankaj ...Revisionist
Versus
State Of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for Revisionist:
Dushyant Singh, M.C. Singh

Counsel for Opposite Parties:
Govt.Advocate, Chandra Prakash Srivastav

The present criminal revision has been preferred by the revisionist for setting aside the judgment and order dated 24.06.2015 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 2, Bulandshahr in Criminal Appeal No. 62 of 2015 (Pankaj Vs. State of U.P. and judgment and order dated 28.05.2015 passed by the Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board, Bulandshahr in Bail Application No. 52 of 2015-State Vs. Pankaj Kumar, and with further prayer to release the revisionist on bail in Case Crime No. 65 of 2015, under Section 376-D I.P.C. and Section 4 POCSO Act, Police Station Arnia, District Bulandshahr in Case No. 52 of 2015-State Vs. Pankaj Kumar.

Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that the prosecutrix is major and as per medical report, she was pregnant of 18 weeks, which shows that the prosecutrix was already having illicit relation with someone else but the revisionist has been falsely implicated in the present case. It is further submitted that no mark of injury was found on any part of the body of the prosecutrix. It is next submitted that the F.I.R. is too much delayed and there is no explanation of this inordinate delay. It is also submitted that the findings of the courts below that the conduct of the revisionist is not good and he is having association with men of criminal nature, are based on surmises and conjectures, therefore, there was no such material to arrive at such conclusion. It is contended that both the courts below committed manifest error of law in rejecting the bail application of the revisionist who is juvenile aged about 16 years, 11 months and 14 days at the time of the alleged incident. It is further contended that under the provisions of Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice Act, as a general Rule, the juvenile has to be released on bail unless and until there is material on record to establish that the release will likely to bring juvenile into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger. It is also contended that the report of the District Probation Officer is sketchy and without any basis.

In revision under Section 397 Cr.P.C., the revisional court cannot analyse and interfere in the findings of fact of the lower courts and appellate jurisdiction is not available to the revisional court to interfere in the findings of fact recorded by the courts below. The impugned orders show that the courts below have considered the correctness, legality and propriety of the matter and did not act with any irregularity at the time of giving findings of fact relating to revisionist. There is no illegality, perversity or infirmity in the impugned orders. The revision lacks merits and is liable to be dismissed.

The revision is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prabhat Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Heard Sri M.C. Singh, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri Chandra Prakash Srivastava, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 and learned A.G.A. for the opposite party no. 1.

2. The present criminal revision has been preferred by the revisionist for setting aside the judgment and order dated 24.06.2015 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 2, Bulandshahr in Criminal Appeal No. 62 of 2015 (Pankaj Vs. State of U.P. and judgment and order dated 28.05.2015 passed by the Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board, Bulandshahr in Bail Application No. 52 of 2015-State Vs. Pankaj Kumar, and with further prayer to release the revisionist on bail in Case Crime No. 65 of 2015, under Section 376-D I.P.C. and Section 4 POCSO Act, Police Station Arnia, District Bulandshahr in Case No. 52 of 2015-State Vs. Pankaj Kumar.

3. The F.I.R. version in narrow compass is as follows:-

4. The informant Smt. Tarawati Devi wife of Shishram, resident of village Balrau Arnia, District Bulandshahr has presented a written application on 27.02.2015 before the Station Officer, Police Station Arnia, District Bulandshahr that on 22.2.2015 when her daughter Km. XYZ aged about 15 years went to attend the call of nature in the fields near engine situated at the field of Khan Chandra then Kapil son of Kisan, put country made pistol on the ear of her daughter dragged her alongwith his three friends into the wheat fields of Devendra and all four namely Kapil son of Kisan, Sandeep son of Tekchandra, Shiv Shanker son of Sukhai and Mukaddam alias Ajit son of Sukhpal and Pankaj son of Pappu committed rape upon her daughter Km. XYZ. Her daughter stated this fact to her when she returned back to home. Due to fear she could not make report till now.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that the prosecutrix is major and as per medical report, she was pregnant of 18 weeks, which shows that the prosecutrix was already having illicit relation with someone else but the revisionist has been falsely implicated in the present case. It is further submitted that no mark of injury was found on any part of the body of the prosecutrix and hymen was found old torn and healed. She did not enjoy the good reputation and unnecessarily she is trying to defame the lads of her village. It is next submitted that the F.I.R. is too much delayed and there is no explanation of this inordinate delay. It is also submitted that the findings of the courts below that the conduct of the revisionist is not good and he is having association with men of criminal nature, are based on surmises and conjectures, therefore, there was no such material to arrive at such conclusion. It is contended that both the courts below committed manifest error of law in rejecting the bail application of the revisionist who is juvenile aged about 16 years, 11 months and 14 days at the time of the alleged incident. It is further contended that under the provisions of Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice Act, as a general Rule, the juvenile has to be released on bail unless and until there is material on record to establish that the release will likely to bring juvenile into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger. It is also contended that the report of the District Probation Officer is sketchy and without any basis.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist placed reliance on the following decisions in support of his contentions:-

(1) Amit Yadav @ Monu @ Bebo (Minor) Vs. State of U.P. and another, 2016(4) ADJ 137.

(2) Criminal Revision No. 718 of 2016-Jitendra Kushwaha Vs. State of U.P. and another decided on 11.7.2016.

(3) Prakash v. State of Rajasthan, 2006 CRI. L.J. 1373.

(4) A Juvenile v. State of Orissa, 2009 CRI. L.J. 2002.

7. Learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 vehemently opposed the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the revisionist.

8. The facts of the present case are different from the facts mentioned in the above cited cases.

9. I have gone through the Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015. The relevant portion of Section 12 of the Act is quoted verbatim as follows:-

"12. Bail to a person who is apparently a child alleged to be in conflict with law-(1) When any person, who is apparently a child and is alleged to have committed a bailable or non-bailable offence, is apprehended or detained by the police or appears or brought before a Board, such person shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law for the time being in force, be released on bail with or without surety or placed under the supervision of a probation officer or under the care of any fit person:

Provided that such person shall not be so released if there appears reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring that person into association with any known criminal or expose the said person to moral, physical or psychological danger or the person's release would defeat the ends of justice, and the Board shall record the reasons for denying the bail and circumstances that led to such a decision."

10. In the context, I have also gone through the following judgments of this Court as well as of the Apex Court.

1. Monu @ Moni @ Rahul @ Rohit Vs. State of U.P., 2011 (61)ACR 2582.

2. Mohit Vs. State of U.P. and another, 2013 (83) ALLCC, 242.

3. Virendra Vs. State of U.P., 2015 (1) ACR 629.

4. Shabbir Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2015 (88) ALLCC 161.

5. Sonu Tomar Vs. State of U.P., 2015 (2) ACR 2284.

6. Amit Yadav Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2016 (93) ALLCC 571.

11. The Apex Court in the case of Om Prakash Vs. State of Rajasthan and another, (2012) 5 SCC 201 has cautioned the Courts to be more sensitive in dealing with juvenile in cases of serious nature like sexual molestation, rape, gang-rape murder etc. The relevant extract of the said judgment in paragraphs 3 and 23 are being reproduced below in reference:-

"3. Juvenile Justice Act was enacted with a laudable object of providing a separate forum or a special court for holding trial of children/juvenile by the juvenile court as it was felt that children become delinquent by force of circumstance and not by choice and hence they need to be treated with care and sensitivity while dealing and trying cases involving criminal offence. But when an accused is alleged to have committed a heinous offence like rape and murder or any other grave offence when he ceased to be a child on attaining the age of 18 years, but seeks protection of the Juvenile Justice Act under the ostensible plea of being a minor, should such an accused be allowed to be tried by a juvenile court or should he be referred to a competent court of criminal jurisdiction where the trial of other adult persons are held.

23. ....Similarly, if the conduct of an accused or the method and manner of commission of the offence indicates an evil and a well planned design of the accused committing the offence which indicates more towards the matured skill of an accused than that of an innocent child, then in the absence of reliable documentary evidence in support of the age of the accused, medical evidence indicating that the accused was a major cannot be allowed to be ignored taking shelter of the principle of benevolent legislation like the Juvenile Justice Act, subverting the course of justice as statutory protection of the Juvenile Justice Act is meant for minors who are innocent law breakers and not accused of matured mind who uses the plea of minority as a ploy or shield to protect himself from the sentence of the offence committed by him."*

12. As per certificate issued by office of the Chief Medical Officer, Bulandshahr, age of the victim girl XYZ has been mentioned as 16 years. As per report of OPD slip issued by X-Ray Department, B.B.D. Hospital, Bulandshahr of the victim Km. XYZ dated 2.3.2015, her pregnancy is about 18.2 weeks. As per statement of the victim girl XYZ recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. on 02.03.2015 she has clearly stated that five months ago from the date of recording of her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. she was gang raped by lads namely Kapil, Pankaj son of Pappu, Shiv Shanker son of Subai, Ajit son of Satpal, Sandeep son of Teck Chandra and on 22.02.2015 at about 6.30 P.M. again the aforementioned boys committed gang rape upon her in the wheat fields.

13. The rider of the 'person's release would defeat the ends of justice' requires attention.

14. The 'juvenile in conflict with law' does not entitle him to be released on bail solely on the ground of his juvenility. The juvenile offenders who have criminal tendencies and have inclination and attraction to commit crime "at the drop of a hat", should be segregated and should not be integrated to set the shield of this benevolent legislation. It is of paramount importance to upkeep and safeguard the larger interest of the society. Due to this, exception to the rule of bail to a juvenile has also been included. A too liberal interpretation in the matters related to ghastly crimes would definitely result in defeating the ends of justice.

15. The relevant extract of the judgment in Virendra Vs. State of U.P., 2015 (1) ACR 629 para 23 is quoted below:-

"23. A citizen's claim to equality before the law is a claim of justice. Justice has been termed as the highest virtue. It has also been equated with fairness. Fairness connotes fairness to all i.e. equal treatment to all. Sense of injustice is a powerful human emotion. It is strongest when a person's own interests are harmed, but it also aroused in civilized people when they witness wrongs done to others. Ultimate object of every legal system is to secure justice which is at the centre of moral and social philosophy. The instinct for justice leads us to believe that right, and not might, is the true basis of society. The principles of justice that define duties and rights should be neutral with respect to compacting conception of good life. Defeat of ends of justice is bound to result in injustice which produces conflict within the individual and sets him at variance with himself and with all who are just. Injustice is inseparable from virtue which consist of ethics and justice in universal sense. Injustice in the particular sense is the injustice that causes harm to others. Virtue based approach connects justice to reflection about good life. This approach ensures that justice means giving people what they morally deserve-allocating goods to reward and promote virtue. It is thus apparent that the concept of justice lies at the heart of moral philosophy where righteousness, fairness and truth are the basic values and it should include people from all walks of life. Therefore, it is safe to conclude that wellbeing of the community takes precedence over the liberty and preventing injustice would always be a pursuit of justice. Leaving society to live with persons of perverted nature would be an affront to the dignity of human beings and tends to promote anarchy and unrest in society which is sure to defeat the ends of justice."

16. It would not be out of context to cite the paragraphs 376 and 377 of the extract of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Essa @ Anjum Abdul Razak Memon (A-3) and others Vs. The State of Maharashtra, through STF, CBI Mumbai and others, JT 2013 (6) SC 1, which are quoted below:

"376. While dealing with such an issue, the court must not lose sight of the fact that meaning of "ends of justice" essentially refers to justice to all the parties. This phrase refers to the best interest of the public within the four corners of the statute. In fact, it means preservation of proper balance between the Constitutional/Statutory rights of an individual and rights of the people at large to have the law enforced. The "ends of justice" does not mean vague and indeterminate notions of justice, but justice according to the law of the land. (vide: State Bank of Patiala and others v. S.K. Sharma MANU/SC/0438/1996: AIR 1996 SC 1669; and Mahadev Govind Gharge and others v. The Special Land Acquisition Officer, Upper Krishna Project, Jamkhandi, Karnataka MANU/SC/0597/2011: (2011) 6 SCC 321).

"377. Thus, the law has to be interpreted in such a manner that it develops coherently in accordance with the principles, so as to serve, even-handedly, the ends of justice."

17. In revision under Section 397 Cr.P.C., the revisional court cannot analyse and interfere in the findings of fact of the lower courts and appellate jurisdiction is not available to the revisional court to interfere in the findings of fact recorded by the courts below.

18. In view of the above discussions, the impugned orders show that the courts below have considered the correctness, legality and propriety of the matter and did not act with any irregularity at the time of giving findings of fact relating to revisionist.

19. There is no illegality, perversity or infirmity in the impugned orders. The revision lacks merits and is liable to be dismissed.

20. The revision is, accordingly, dismissed.

21. Interim order, if any, is vacated.

Present criminal revision has been filed against the judgment and order dated 20.8.2011 passed by the learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area) Court No.4, Firozabad in Special Session Trial No. 184 of 2008 (State vs. Viresh Chandra and others) in Crime No. 252 of 2003, under Sections 307 and 504 I.P.C., Police Station- Eka, District- Firozabad, whereby the learned Additional Session Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Court No.4, District- Firozabad has dismissed the application no. 93-A of the informant (revisionist).

The facts of the F.I.R. reveal that the casteist remarks were hurled by accused persons intentionally to insult and humiliate the informant and his family members. Learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Court No.4, District- Firozabad has erroneously recorded the impugned findings dated 20.8.2011 which is liable to be set aside.

The criminal revision is, accordingly, allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prabhat Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Counter affidavit filed today by learned A.G.A. on behalf of the State is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Sunil Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the revisionist along with Dr. C.P. Upadhyay, learned counsel for the opposite party nos. 2 to 5 and Ms. Anita Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

3. This criminal revision has been filed against the judgment and order dated 20.8.2011 passed by the learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area) Court No.4, Firozabad in Special Session Trial No. 184 of 2008 (State vs. Viresh Chandra and others) in Crime No. 252 of 2003, under Sections 307 and 504 I.P.C., Police Station- Eka, District- Firozabad, whereby the learned Additional Session Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Court No.4, District- Firozabad has dismissed the application no. 93-A of the informant (revisionist).

4. The facts of this case in narrow compass are that on 22.11.2003, one Prabhu Dayal @ Prasadi Lal has submitted a written application before the Station Officer, Police Station- Eka, District- Firozabad alleging therein that informant Prabhu Dayal s/o Ishwar Prasad Jatav, original resident of Qasba and Police Station- Eka, District Firozabad on 21.11.2003 at about 5:00 P.M. due to previous enmity of the land dispute; when the informant, his son Veenu, nephews Ratnesh Kumar, Jitendra Singh and Ramu, all sons of Kisan Lal and daughters Km. Neelam and Km. Neeraj and wife were working in the fields for extraction of mustard oil and threshing of wheat at that time accused persons (i) Viresh Chandra s/o Ramesh Mishra wielding DBBL gun 12 bore of his brother-in-law, (ii) Ved Prakash son of Ramesh Chandra wielding his licensed rifle (iii) Jai Jeevan Ram @ Santosh Kumar s/o Ram Chandra wielding knife (iv) Rakesh Kumar s/o Pachram Singh Vari wielding 12 bore SBBL licensed gun of Summer Singh s/o Baburam reached at the fields of the informant with common intention and abused the informant and his family members using casteist remarks and started indiscriminate firing with intention to kill the informant and his family members. The informant and his family members tried to flee away from the scene. Piyush s/o informant, Ratnesh Kumar and Jitendra Singh, nephews of the informant were apprehended and the accused persons inflicted injuries with the knives. Due to which Veenu s/o informant and his nephews received grievous injuries. The F.I.R. was lodged on 23.11.2003 at about 5:30 hours.

5. Learned counsel for the opposite party nos. 2 to 5 has vehemently argued that this case is at the stage of prosecution evidence and it would be too late to allow this revision. He has also pointed out that several technical difficulties may crop up if this revision is allowed.

6. The facts of the F.I.R. reveal that the casteist remarks were hurled by accused persons intentionally to insult and humiliate the informant and his family members. Learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Court No.4, District- Firozabad has erroneously recorded the impugned findings dated 20.8.2011 which is liable to be set aside.

7. The criminal revision is, accordingly, allowed.

THE HON'BLE ATTAU RAHMAN MASOODI, J.

First Appeal No.- 79 Of 2016

Smt. Shobhawati ...Appellant
Versus
Sudhir & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Appellant:
Virendra Kumar Shukla, Dr. L.P. Mishra, Meenakshi Singh Parihar

This application under Order XLI Rule 21 of Code of Civil Procedure read with Chapter IX Rule 17 (2) of Allahabad High Court Rules, has been filed for setting aside the order/judgement passed by this Court on 17.8.2016 in the present first appeal.

Submissions made by appellant counsel that the remedy for an election petition as well as for a petition of disqualification in respect of an Adhyaksha of Zila Panchayat is conceived under Section 27 (2) (c) in reference to Section 19 of the Act which clearly postulates two situations; one arising out of the invalidation of an election and the other a situation of disqualification incurred during currency of the term. When a disqualification is incurred as a result of invalidation of election, the proceedings of election petition are to be read in Section 27 (2) (c) which would follow in the manner of procedure prescribed under Chapter IV of the Rules. The distinguishing feature of such a proceeding lies in the fact that a contesting candidate to the office of Adhyaksha would alone file an election petition within the period of limitation as prescribed under Rule 33 and such a petition would be decided by following the procedure contained in Chapter IV of the rules. Any order passed on an election petition would be an order under Rule 40 and subject to the appellate jurisdiction of this Court vested by virtue of Rule 47. On the other hand, if a petition alleging disqualification against the Adhyaksha of Zila Panchayat is filed on any other ground except invalidation of election, the same would be filed under the same provision i.e. Section 27 (2) (c) of the Adhiniyam but the procedure that would be followed is contained under Chapter V of the rules as aforesaid.

Hon'ble Court observed that by means of the judgement dated 17.8.2016 has remitted the matter on the question of limitation and has not precluded the court below to consider any other issue as a preliminary issue if the same can otherwise be legally treated so and decided. Therefore, the alternative submission put forth by Sri H.G.S. Parihar, Senior Counsel that issue no. 3 may also be considered and decided as a preliminary issue does not seem to be unjust while pressing this application. Accordingly, Hon'ble Court having regard to submissions put forth, declines to entertain the application filed under Order XLI Rule 21 read with Chapter IX Rule 7 of the High Court Rules with the clarification that preliminary issue, apart from limitation, if any, may also be considered and decided by the court below in terms of the judgement passed on 17.8.2016. The application is disposed of in terms of the clarification made above, however, it is expected that the court below shall adhere to the direction already issued.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Attau Rahman Masoodi, J.)

1. This application under Order XLI Rule 21 of Code of Civil Procedure read with Chapter IX Rule 17 (2) of Allahabad High Court Rules, has been filed for setting aside the order/judgement passed by this Court on 17.8.2016 in the present first appeal.

2. Having regard to the nature of dispute involved in the First Appeal being a pure question of law, the Court proceeded to decide the same by remitting the matter back to the court below for consideration of the issue of limitation afresh by putting the parties to a notice in the light of observations made. In effect, none of the parties was put to any prejudice insofar as the rule of opportunity is concerned. The application for setting aside the ex-parte judgement is also not questioned on any such prejudice being caused but a legal question as to the very maintainability of first appeal against an order passed under Section 27 of the U.P. Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats Adhiniyam, 1961, has been raised in the application seeking to recall/ set aside the order so passed.

3. Sri H.G.S. Parihar, learned Senior Counsel, assisted by Smt. Meenakshi Parihar Singh has put forth an interesting argument in the light of Section 27 of U.P. Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats Adhiniyam, 1961 and the Court hastens to reproduce the same as under:

"27. Disputes as to membership or disqualification--

(1) If any dispute arises as to whether a particular person is a member of the Zila Panchayat under clause a of Section 18, the dispute shall be referred in the manner prescribed to the State Government and the decision of the State Government shall be final and binding.

(2) If a dispute arises as to whether a person--

(a) has been lawfully chosen a member of a Zila Panchayat under Section 18; or

(b) has ceased to remain eligible for being chosen a member of of the Zila Panchayat for the purposes of Section 20; or

(c) has become disqualified to be Adhyaksha for the purposes of Section 19, the dispute shall be referred in the manner prescribed to the Judge whose decision shall be final and binding."

4. On the premise of aforesaid provision, it is urged that the election petition was admittedly filed by the appellant under Section 27 but a proceeding contested under Section 27 on a decision being rendered, attains finality and such a decision is not amenable to appellate jurisdiction of this Court by virtue of Rule 47 of the U.P. Zila Panchayats (Election of Adhyaksha and Up-Adhyaksha and Settlement of Election Disputes) Rules, 1994, which conceives the appeals to be filed against the orders passed under Rule 40 of the said rules. In other words, the decision rendered under Section 27 (2)(c) by the competent judge is final.

5. It is alternatively urged that the election petition filed by the appellant even if maintainable under Rule 33 of the aforesaid rules but having been admittedly filed under Section 27 of the Adhiniyam, 1961, has led to framing of an issue to this effect i.e. issue no. 3 before the competent court which remains yet to be considered and once the issue of limitation raised in the First Appeal is remitted to be considered afresh, the issue no. 3 as to the maintainability of the election petition under Section 27 (2) (c) be also directed to be decided as a preliminary issue.

6. On a close scrutiny of the submission advanced before this Court, it is noticed that a rigid construction of Section 27 (2) (c) of the Adhiniyam, 19061 in a manner in which argument has been placed, there does not seem to be any scope for entertaining an election petition within the scope of Section 27 (2) (c) and consequently, the entire Chapter IV of the statutory rules becomes redundant for the simple reason that Chapter V of the statutory rules being relatable to Section 27 (2)(c) does not provide for an appeal against an order passed, rather it stipulates the decision under Section 27 (2) (c) to be final. Moreover, Rule 40 and Rule 47 contained in Chapter IV by virtue of Rule 50 do not apply to the disputes raised under Section 27 (2) (c) read with Rule 48.

7. Dr. L.P. Misra, learned counsel appearing for the appellant while placing the same provision of the Act, has argued that the remedy for an election petition as well as for a petition of disqualification in respect of an Adhyaksha of Zila Panchayat is conceived under Section 27 (2) (c) in reference to Section 19 of the Act which clearly postulates two situations; one arising out of the invalidation of an election and the other a situation of disqualification incurred during currency of the term. When a disqualification is incurred as a result of invalidation of election, the proceedings of election petition are to be read in Section 27 (2) (c) which would follow in the manner of procedure prescribed under Chapter IV of the Rules. The distinguishing feature of such a proceeding lies in the fact that a contesting candidate to the office of Adhyaksha would alone file an election petition within the period of limitation as prescribed under Rule 33 and such a petition would be decided by following the procedure contained in Chapter IV of the rules. Any order passed on an election petition would be an order under Rule 40 and subject to the appellate jurisdiction of this Court vested by virtue of Rule 47. On the other hand, if a petition alleging disqualification against the Adhyaksha of Zila Panchayat is filed on any other ground except invalidation of election, the same would be filed under the same provision i.e. Section 27 (2) (c) of the Adhiniyam but the procedure that would be followed is contained under Chapter V of the rules as aforesaid.

8. It is also pointed out that once a Division Bench of this Court had relegated the matter for being taken up in an election petition vide judgement 12.1.2016 passed in Writ Petition No. 74 (MB) of 2016, the appellant being entitled to avail the remedy of election petition before the competent court has rightly filed the election petition under Section 27 (2) (c), as such, the objections raised on this score before the competent court being still open to be considered does not cause any prejudice to the applicant on the basis of which the judgement rendered by this Court may be set aside or recalled.

9. The rival contentions made before this Court call for an interpretation of Section 27 (2) (c) of the Adhiniyam in relation to the remedy available to a contesting candidate for the office of Adhyaksh, Zila Panchayat in the event of being aggrieved and the availability of the remedy of appeal under Rule-47 of the Rules framed thereunder.

10. Before dealing with the statutory provisions, it is needful to refer to the constitutional provisions contained in Chapter IX of the Constitution of India. Article 243-B provides for constitution of the Panchayats which reads as under:

"243B. Constitution of Panchayats :

(1) There shall be constituted in every State, Panchayats at the village, intermediate and district levels in accordance with the provisions of this Part

(2) Notwithstanding anything in clause (1), Panchayats at the intermediate level may not be constituted in a State having a population not exceeding twenty lakhs."

11. Article 243-O further contemplates a bar to interfere by court in electoral matters and for ready reference the same is reproduced hereunder:

"Article-243-O. Bar to interference by courts in electoral matters. Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,--

(a) the validity of any law relating to the delimitation of constituencies or the allotment of seats to such constituencies, made or purporting to be made under article 243K, shall not be called in question in any court;

(b) no election to any Panchayat shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as is provided for by or under any law made by the Legislature of a State."

12. It is amply clear from the constitutional provisions extracted above that the State Government is under an obligation to constitute Panchayats and once the Panchayats are constituted, no court shall interfere in the constitution of Panchayat except by an election petition to such authority and in such manner as is provided for by or under any law made by the State legislature. The constitutional mandate to provide for an authority and manner by the State legislature is specific.

13. Article 243-N also provides that the existing laws insofar as they are inconsistent with Chapter IX shall continue to be in force until amended or repealed but not beyond a period of one year from the date of promulgation and enforcement of the seventy-third amendment in the Constitution. In pursuit of the constitutional scheme under Chapter IX, the State legislature insofar as the U.P. Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats Adhiniyam, 1961 is concerned, some new provisions were inserted in the year 1994 which include Section 264-B and being relevant, the same is extracted below:

"264-B. Manner and conduct of election.-(1) The election to the office of an Adhyaksha or a member of a Zila Panchayat and a Pramukh, or a member of a Kshettra Panchayat shall be held by secret ballot in the manner provided by rules which shall also provide for resolution of doubts and disputes relating to the election of such Adhyaksha and Pramukh.

(2) The superintendence, direction and control of the conduct of election of the office of an Adhyakasha or a member of a Zila Panchayat and of a Pramukh or a member of a Kshettra Panchayat shall vest in the State Election Commission.

(3) Except as provided in sub-section (4), the State Government shall, in consultation with the State Election Commission, by notification, appoint the date or dates for general election of the Adhyaksha or members of a Zila Panchayat or the Pramukh or members of a Kshettra Panchayat.

(4) The State Election Commission shall, in consultation with the State Government, by notification, appoint date or dates for bye election of the Adhyaksha, Upadhyaksha or members of a Zila Panchayat or Pramukh or members of a Kshettra Panchayat."

14. After promulgation of the above provision by U.P. Act No. 9 of 1994, the statutory rules with respect to the settlement of disputes in relation to members and Adhyaksha & Up-Adhiyakshas were framed under Section 237 of the Adhiniyam which requires the statutory rules to be laid before each House of the State Legislature before its publication.

15. The rules notified on 1.4.1995 relevant for the purpose as mentioned above, were framed under Section 237 read with Section 27 (2) (c) and Section 264-B of the Adhiniyam.

16. Once from the scheme of legislation, it is clear that rules were framed under Section 27 (2) (c) read with Section 264-B of the Adhiniyam, 1961, Chapter IV of the Rules becomes relatable to Section 27 (2) (c) read with Section 264-B, whereas Chapter V of the Rules remains relatable to Section 27 (2) (c) of the Act. Any order passed under Section 27 (2) (c) read with Chapter V of the Rules is final and would not be appealable, whereas once an election petition is filed under Section 27 (2) (c) read with Section 264-B, Chapter IV of the Rules would become applicable and the issues shall be decided accordingly. In the light of aforesaid discussion, I am of the considered opinion that insofar as a decision on a preliminary issue rendered in an election petition is concerned, an appeal is maintainable before this Court under Rule 47, as such, the order passed by this Court on 17.8.2016 does not suffer from lack of jurisdiction.

17. Having discussed the legal provision as above, it is apt to consider the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the parties in the context of judgement passed by the District Judge, which gave rise to the First Appeal. From the judgement passed by the District Judge, it is clear that issues no. 3 and 4 are in the nature of preliminary issues. Issue no. 3 is curable whereas issue no. 4 once established would culminate into rejection of the plaint/petition.

18. This Court by means of the judgement dated 17.8.2016 has remitted the matter on the question of limitation and has not precluded the court below to consider any other issue as a preliminary issue if the same can otherwise be legally treated so and decided. Therefore, the alternative submission put forth by Sri H.G.S. Parihar, Senior Counsel that issue no. 3 may also be considered and decided as a preliminary issue does not seem to be unjust while pressing this application.

19. Accordingly, this Court having regard to submissions put forth, declines to entertain the application filed under Order XLI Rule 21 read with Chapter IX Rule 7 of the High Court Rules with the clarification that preliminary issue, apart from limitation, if any, may also be considered and decided by the court below in terms of the judgement passed on 17.8.2016. The application is disposed of in terms of the clarification made above, however, it is expected that the court below shall adhere to the direction already issued.

20. No order as to cost.

Connected With Other Cases

Tej Singh & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Present first appeals have been filed by the claimants challenging the judgment and award dated 29.11.2003 passed by District Judge, Gautam Budh Nagar in various Land Acquisition References filed under Section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (for short the 'Act').

Land in dispute situated in village Illabas, Pargana, Tehsil & District Gautam Budh Nagar was subject matter of acquisition under the provisions of the Act for the benefit of New Okhla Industrial Development Authority for planned development. Notification under Section 4 of the Act was published on 06.01.1992. Declaration under Section 6 of the Act was issued on 18.04.1992. Possession of the land was taken on 09.07.1994 and award was declared by the Special Land Acquisition Officer on 06.01.1997 determining the market value of the land at the rate of Rs.50/- per square yard. Dissatisfied with the determination of the market rate of the land at the rate of Rs.50/- per square yard and the compensation awarded, the claimant-appellants moved references under Section 18 of the Act claiming compensation at the rate of Rs.1500/- per square yard. Similarly situated other tenure holders also moved references, which were clubbed together and decided by common judgment and order dated 29.11.2003 under challenge in these appeals. Reference court determined a sum of Rs.71/- per square yard as market value of the land.

The land in question is situate in NOIDA-Dadri highway at a very short distance from New Delhi and is similar in potentiality and in other factors with the land of the adjoining villages, namely, Bhangel Begumpur, Morana, Nagla Charan Das, is undisputed.

Ashrafi & Ors. Vs. State of Haryana & Ors., (2013) 5 SCC 527 the Hon'ble apex court held that while determining the market value of the acquired land, an increase of 12% shall be made applicable in the base year market value due to escalation of the price with cumulative/compound effect.

Court observed that after considering the apex court judgement, the market value of the land of the claimant-appellants, which has been acquired vide notification dated 06.01.1992, is liable to be determined by applying 12% increase annually with cumulative/compounding effect. In case, the base year market price of village Illabas is treated to be Rs.297/- per square yard with regard to the land, which was acquired on 06.08.1988, then market value of the land of the claimant-appellants, which has been acquired at least four years after the earlier acquisition, would come to more than Rs.340/- per square yard, but the appellants have confined their claim only to Rs.340/- per square yard. In the cases in hand, whose land was acquired on 06.01.1992, are entitled to compensation at the market value of Rs.340/- per square yard along with all other statutory benefits admissible under the Act.

Court held that all the first appeals of the claimant-appellants are liable to be allowed by modifying the judgment and award dated 29.11.2003 passed by reference court and the consequential decree thereof by enhancing the market value as awarded by the reference court from Rs.71/- per square yard to Rs.340/- per square yard with all other statutory benefits payable under the provisions of the Act.

The appeals, accordingly, stands allowed to the extent directed above.

2. We have heard Shri Madan Mohan, learned counsel for the appellants and Shri Amit Manohar for the NOIDA and learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

3. Land in dispute belonging to the claimant-appellants, situate in village Illabas, Pargana, Tehsil & District Gautam Budh Nagar was subject matter of acquisition under the provisions of the Act for the benefit of New Okhla Industrial Development Authority (hereinafter referred to as 'NOIDA') for planned development. Notification under Section 4 of the Act was published on 06.01.1992. Declaration under Section 6 of the Act was issued on 18.04.1992. Total area of 126-17-00 bighas of land, which includes the land of the claimant-appellants, was acquired. Possession of the land was taken on 09.07.1994 and award was declared by the Special Land Acquisition Officer on 06.01.1997 determining the market value of the land at the rate of Rs.50/- per square yard.

4. Dissatisfied with the determination of the market rate of the land at the rate of Rs.50/- per square yard and the compensation awarded, the claimant-appellants moved references under Section 18 of the Act claiming compensation at the rate of Rs.1500/- per square yard. Similarly situated other tenure holders also moved references, which were clubbed together and decided by common judgment and order dated 29.11.2003 under challenge in these appeals. Reference court determined a sum of Rs.71/- per square yard as market value of the land. Aggrieved by the same, the claimant-appellants have preferred the present appeals.

5. Learned counsel for the appellants contends that the land in question situate in village Illabas is on NOIDA-Dadri highway along the developed sectors in NOIDA. It is also submitted that land is having great potentiality for constructions and is situate at a very short distance from New Delhi. It has also been stated that land in question is similarly to land of adjoining villages, namely, Bhangel Begumpur, Morana and Nagla Charan Das. It is also submitted that the market value of the land of the village in question, namely, Illabas, which was acquired vide notification dated 06.08.1988, this Court in First Appeal No. 417/1995, NOIDA & Ors. Vs. Jairam & Ors., vide judgment and order dated 25.02.2014, determined the compensation to Rs.297/- per square yard.

6. Learned counsel for the appellants vehemently contended that if Rs.297/- per square yard determined as fair market value of the land of the similar villages acquired in 1988, is taken to be the base year market value, the appellants are entitled to an increase of 12% per annum due to escalation in price during these years.

7. Reliance in support of the contention has been placed on the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Om Prakash (dead) by LRs & Ors. Vs. Union of India & Anr., (2004) 10 SCC 627 and Ashrafi & Ors. Vs. State of Haryana & Ors., (2013) 5 SCC 527.

8. In reply, learned counsel for the respondent-NOIDA submits that the determination of the market value of the land in question by the reference court is perfectly just and the impugned award does not call for any interference.

9. We have considered the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

10. The fact that the land in question is situate in NOIDA-Dadri highway at a very short distance from New Delhi and is similar in potentiality and in other factors with the land of the adjoining villages, namely, Bhangel Begumpur, Morana, Nagla Charan Das, is undisputed.

11. The reference court in the impugned judgment has recorded a finding that the village Illabas where the land in question situate, is adjacent to village Bhangel Begumpur and Morana. Certain area of the land of the village in question, namely, Illabas was subject matter of acquisition vide notification dated 06.08.1988. Special Land Acquisition Officer declared an award dated 26.09.1990 determining the market value of the land to be Rs.35.07/- per square yard. In reference made by the tenure holder, the compensation was enhanced to Rs.93.75/- per square yard by the reference court vide order dated 26.02.1993. The dispute travelled to this Court in the form of various first appeals, the leading being Appeal No. 417 of 1995, NOIDA & Ors. Vs. Jairam & Ors. A Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 25.02.2014 determined the market value of the said land at the rate of Rs.297/- per square yard. In determining the market value of Rs.297/- per square yard, the Division Bench relied upon the market value determined in respect of the land situate in adjoining villages, namely, Bhangel Begumpur. It has also been held that the village Illabas is situate at a distance of one Kilometer from village Bhangel Begumpur and is adjoining to Delhi-Dadri road and there is noting on record to demonstrate any dissimilarity in the nature and potentiality of the two villages, i.e., village Illabas and village Bhangel Begumpur.

12. Reference may also be made to another Division Bench judgment of this Court dated 09.05.2008 rendered in First Appeal No. 34 of 2007, Ganeshi Singh & Ors. Vs. NOIDA & Ors. in respect of the land situate in village Chhalera. The acquisition was made for NOIDA vide notification dated 05.01.1991. Special Land Acquisition Officer determined market value to be Rs.110/- per square yard. However, on a reference filed by the tenure holder, the same was enhanced to Rs.222/- per square yard. In the appeal filed by the claimant-appellants, initially vide order dated 09.05.2008, the market value was determined at the rate of Rs.297/- per square yard, however, on an application made by the claimant-appellants, vide order dated 19.05.2010, the judgment dated 09.05.2008 was modified by applying the principles of annual increments in the prices of the land as evolved by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Om Prakash (supra) and the market value of the land was determined at the rate of Rs.340/- per square yard.

13. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Om Prakash (supra) has observed in paragraph 11 as under.

"In the circumstances, the High Court was justified in working out the fair market value of the lands in question on the basis of Rs.16,750/- per bigha as on 30-10-1963. The High Court noticed that in several judgments of this Court escalation at different and varying rates i.e. 6% per annum from 1959 to 1965, @10% per annum for every year from 1966 to 1973 and @12% per annum from 1975 had been considered to be reasonable increase to arrive at the fair market value, assuming that the pace of escalation during this period was normal for the entire period from 1959 onwards. Since no material was placed on record to show that there was any abnormality during the period, the High Court applied the same principle to the facts and circumstances before it, and accepted increase of 10% every year progressively from 1963 to 1973 and thereafter @12% every year progressively up to the date of acquisition. The High Court noticed in the judgment that if escalation is allowed on this basis, the fair market value would be Rs.1,28,889 per bigha. In case progressive increase is allowed @10% for the entire period, the amount will work out to Rs.1,08,397 per bigha. Allowing appreciation @12% for every year, not cumulatively, but at a flat rate of 12% per annum from 1963 to 1983, the amount would work out to Rs.56,112 per bigha. The High Court in its judgment under appeal pointed out that the market value of Rs.16,750 per bigha fixed in the case of Dharambir v. Union of India was not in respect of commercial land but only of agricultural land. That the market value of agricultural land is much lower than that of land suitable for commercial purposes, is trite. After having worked out the market value of the land on various bases and keeping in view the fact that between 8-12-1982 and 2-6-1983, the lands in question had at least some commercial potentiality, the High Court decided that the fair market value of all categories of lands situated in the villages in question as on the date of acquisition should be fixed at Rs.82,255 per bigha."

14. The issue was reiterated by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Ashrafi & Ors. (supra) holding that while determining the market value of the acquired land, an increase of 12% shall be made applicable in the base year market value due to escalation of the price with cumulative/compound effect.

15. In the cases in hand, in respect of identically and similarly situated parcel of the land of the same village having the same potentiality and acquired for the same purpose by the same authority in the year 1988, fair market value was determined at the rate of Rs.297/- per square yard.

16. Keeping in view the principles evolved by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Om Prakash (supra) and Ashrafi & Ors. (supra), the market value of the land of the claimant-appellants, which has been acquired vide notification dated 06.01.1992, is liable to be determined by applying 12% increase annually with cumulative/compounding effect. In case, the base year market price of village Illabas is treated to be Rs.297/- per square yard with regard to the land, which was acquired on 06.08.1988, then market value of the land of the claimant-appellants, which has been acquired at least four years after the earlier acquisition, would come to more than Rs.340/- per square yard, but the appellants have confined their claim only to Rs.340/- per square yard.

17. In view of the principles evolved by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the cases of Om Prakash (supra) and Ashrafi & Ors. (supra) as also various Division Benches judgment of this Court, the claimant-appellants, in the cases in hand, whose land was acquired on 06.01.1992, are entitled to compensation at the market value of Rs.340/- per square yard along with all other statutory benefits admissible under the Act.

18. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, all the first appeals of the claimant-appellants are liable to be allowed by modifying the judgment and award dated 29.11.2003 passed by reference court and the consequential decree thereof by enhancing the market value as awarded by the reference court from Rs.71/- per square yard to Rs.340/- per square yard with all other statutory benefits payable under the provisions of the Act.

19. The appeals, accordingly, stands allowed to the extent directed above.

20. However, in the facts and circumstances, we do not make any order as to costs.

Income Tax Appeal No.- 34 Of 2015

Connected With Other Cases

Commissioner Of Income Tax Kanpur ...Appellant
Versus
Mehtab Alam, Sultan Villa ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellant:
Ashok Kumar, Sr.S.C., Bharat Ji Agrawal

Counsel for Respondent:
Prateek Dawar

All appeals have been preferred under Section 260A of Income Tax Act, 1961 by Commissioner of Income Tax, Kanpur being aggrieved by judgment and order dated 18.11.2014 passed by Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Lucknow Bench, Lucknow.

In a search and seizure operation carried on 24.9.2010 at Chaudhary Charan Singh Airport, Amausi, Lucknow, Mehtab Alam and his wife Smt. Nausheen Farah Lari were found in possession of cash of Rs.1 crore, each, in two bags, containing total sum of Rs.2 crores. Warrants under Section 132 of Act, 1961 was issued by DIT (Investigation), Kanpur and served upon them. Punchnama was also drawn on 24.9.2010, on the spot, evidencing seizure of Rs.2 crores from assessee and his wife. Statement under Section 131 (1A) was recorded. He was asked to explain how purchases could be made in cash worth exceeding Rs.2,000/- in view of Section 40A, to which he replied that he was not aware of said provisions. He also stated that none of his concerns have ever made cash purchases exceeding Rs.20,000/-, in past.

Additional Director, Income Tax (Investigation), obtained print out of cash books of M/s Model Tanners (India) Pvt. Ltd., M/s Model Exims Pvt. Ltd. and M/s Model Echoes Pvt. Ltd. on same day i.e. 24.09.2010 at about 5.30 p.m. which showed no entry in cash books or drawl balance as on 24.09.2010, handing over cash to assessee or to any person whatsoever. In fact, no cash of the amount in question was available in books of said two concerns. The other two concerns namely New Universal Tanners and S.K. Enterprises were not found existing at the addresses given.

Commissioner, Income Tax (Central), Kanpur after issuing notice under Section 263 (1) and affording opportunity to assessee, passed an order dated 28.3.2014 holding that assessment orders made by Assessing Officer had caused prejudice to Revenue and after setting aside assessment orders, directed Assessing Officer to consider assessment afresh taking into account points raised and stated in CIT's order dated 28.3.2014.

Aggrieved by order of CIT passed under Section 263, assessee preferred appeals which have been allowed by Tribunal vide judgment and order dated 18.11.2014 giving rise to these appeals by Revenue. Tribunal has held that CIT recorded a finding that Assessing Officer has passed an erroneous order but cannot direct for further inquiry by Assessing Officer.

Court observed that Tribunal has misdirected itself and without appreciating scope of Section 263, has illegally set aside order of CIT. Our reasons are as under: In order to attract Section 263 of Act, 1961, Statute requires that there must exist an erroneous order of assessment of Assessing Officer, prejudicial to the interest of Revenue.

In the present case, Commissioner has found that recovery of Rs.2 crores in denomination of one thousand rupee notes remained unexplained through out. Assessee sought to explain receipt of Rs.2 crores from different business concerns but record of those did not reconcile. Still without inquiry and looking to money trail of cash, Assessing Officer passed assessment order under Section 153A read with Section 143 and has caused prejudice to Revenue.

Power under Section 263 can be exercised by Commissioner if order of assessment passed by Assessing Officer is an erroneous order and is prejudicial to interest of Revenue. If these twin conditions are satisfied, Commissioner would be justified in passing order, exercising power under Section 263.

Tribunal has got impressed with the reply of assessee that he has explained receipt of Rs.2 crores. Tribunal unfortunately failed to notice that said explanation did not reconcile with record of concerns/companies. The assessee claimed that money belong to and he had receipt there from but could not got it verified from record of such concerns, still Assessing Officer without making a detailed in-depth inquiry on this aspect, has proceeded to make assessment causing prejudice to interest of Revenue.

Court observed that the Tribunal has completely erred in law in setting aside order passed by CIT under Section 263 of Act, 1961. The judgment and order of Tribunal dated 18.11.2014 impugned in these appeals is hereby set aside. The order dated 28.3.2014 passed by CIT in exercise of Section 263 of Act, 1961, is hereby restored.

All these appeals are allowed.

4. Though appellant has formulated a large number of substantial questions of law but with consent of parties, we find that following substantial questions of law need be decided in these appeals:-

"(i) Whether Income Tax Appellate Tribunal has erred in law and on facts in misreading ratio of Apex Court decision in the case of Malabar Industrial Co. Ltd. Vs. CIT, 243 ITR 83 (SC), in coming to conclusion that even though order of Assessing Authority is erroneous as well as prejudicial to the interest of Revenue, still invocation of section 263 of Act, 1961 by Commissioner was not valid?

(ii) Whether Income Tax Appellate Tribunal has erred in law and on facts in passing an order in total disregard of law as contained in section 263 of Act, 1961 as well as the facts, brought on record, which clearly indicate that huge revenue was assessable under section 69A of Act, 1961, but Assessing Officer did not assess the same after considering entire set of facts, available on record and passed an erroneous order, prejudicial to the interest of Revenue.

5. With the consent of parties, we proceed to decide these appeals at this stage by a common judgment since the facts and issues as also substantial questions of law are common.

6. Brief facts necessary for adjudication of aforesaid questions may be stated as under.

7. In a search and seizure operation carried on 24.9.2010 at Chaudhary Charan Singh Airport, Amausi, Lucknow, Mehtab Alam (hereinafter referred to as "assessee") and his wife Smt. Nausheen Farah Lari were found in possession of cash of Rs.1 crore, each, in two bags, containing total sum of Rs.2 crores. Warrants under Section 132 of Act, 1961 was issued by DIT (Investigation), Kanpur and served upon them. Punchnama was also drawn on 24.9.2010, on the spot, evidencing seizure of Rs.2 crores from assessee and his wife. Statement under Section 131 (1A) was recorded wherein assessee introduced himself as Director of M/s Model Tanners (India) Pvt. Ltd., Kanpur, Partner of M/s Model Exims, Jajmau, Kanpur, Director of M/s Model Echoes Pvt. Ltd. Jajmau, Kanpur, Prop. of M/s S.K. Enterprises, 95/26, Farrash Khana, Kanpur and Partner of M/s Al-Razeeq Traders, Jajmau, Kanpur. He was asked to explain how purchases could be made in cash worth exceeding Rs.2,000/- in view of Section 40A, to which he replied that he was not aware of said provisions. He also stated that none of his concerns have ever made cash purchases exceeding Rs.20,000/-, in past.

8. Additional Director, Income Tax (Investigation), obtained print out of cash books of M/s Model Tanners (India) Pvt. Ltd., M/s Model Exims Pvt. Ltd. and M/s Model Echoes Pvt. Ltd. on same day i.e. 24.09.2010 at about 5.30 p.m. which showed no entry in cash books or drawl balance as on 24.09.2010, handing over cash to assessee or to any person whatsoever. In fact, no cash of the amount in question was available in books of said two concerns. The other two concerns namely New Universal Tanners and S.K. Enterprises were not found existing at the addresses given.

9. Entire seized amount of Rs.2 crores was in denomination of rupee one thousand notes and as per claim of assessee, cash belongs to above named companies in the following manner:

(i) Model Exim Unit I	- Rs.21,00,000/-
(ii) Model Tanners (I) Pvt. Ltd.	- Rs.15,00,000/-
(iii) Model Tanner (I) Pvt. Ltd.	- Rs.35,00,000/-
(iv) Model Exhoes Pvt. Ltd. (Tannery Division)	- Rs.20,00,000/-
Total	= Rs.91,00,000/-

10. The opening cash balance on 06.09.2010 in the aforesaid concerns was found as under:

S. No.	Name of the concern	Opening cash balance	Maximum possible availability of Rs.1000/- notes.
1	Model Exims, Unit-II	Rs.4,16,408/-	416
2	Model Tanners (I) Pvt. Ltd., Unit-II	Rs.4,525/-	4
3	Model Tanners (I) Pvt. Ltd.	Rs.4,15,215/-	415
4	Model Echoes Pvt. Ltd., (Tannery Division)	Rs.9,19,060/-	919

11. The aforesaid companies also withdrew Rs.93 lacs on 06.09.2010, in following amounts:

(i) Model Exims, Unit-II	Rs.20,00,000/-

(ii) Model Tanners (I) Pvt. Ltd., Unit-II		Rs.40,00,000/-
(iii) Model Tanners (I) Pvt. Ltd.		Rs.13,00,000/-
(iv) Model Echoes Pvt. Ltd., (Tannery Division)		Rs.20,00,000/-
	Total =	Rs.93,00,000/-

12. Entire withdrawal was not in denomination of rupee one thousand notes but in different denomination as under:

1000 x 2100 = Rs.21,00,000/-
500 x 10000 = Rs.50,00,000/-
100 x 22000 = Rs.22,00,000/-
Total = Rs.93,00,000/-

13. Thereafter, till 24.9.2010, no cash withdrawal was noticed in the accounts of aforesaid concerns. The maximum availability as per record with aforesaid concerns of cash balance on 24.9.2010 in denomination of Rs.1,000/- was or could be Rs.38,54,000/- i.e. 3854 notes but they had given to assessee Rs.91/- lacs i.e. 9100 notes. The mismatch in cash found with assessee did not tally with aforesaid record and assessee and his wife must have obtained such cash from other sources.

14. Income Tax Team also visited places at the address of M/s S.K. Enterprises and M/s Al-Razeeq Traders on 25.9.2010 but did not find any such concern to exist at the addresses given.

15. Assessee claimed that he was given Rs.30 lacs by one Mohd. Khalid alleged Prop. of M/s S.K. Enterprises but Mohd. Khalid in his statement said that he has not entered into any business transaction etc. towards Sultan Tanners before 1.9.2010 and he did not verify claim of handing over of Rs.30 lacs to assessee.

16. Assessing Officer, however, completed assessment orders under Section 153A/143 (3) for Assessment Year 2005-06 to 2011-12 vide order dated 31.3.2013 in the following manner:-

A.Y	Date of filing return in response to notice u/s 153A/143(3)	Returned Income	Date of Asstt. Order u/s 153A/143(3)	Assessed Income
2005-06	27.08.2012	5,35,700/-	31.03.2013	5,83,700/-
2006-07	27.08.2012	3,32,390/-	31.03.2013	3,99,350/-
2007-08	27.08.2012	5,62,072/-	31.03.2013	6,21,757/-
2008-09	27.08.2012	6,98,647/-	31.03.2013	7,89,104/-
2009-10	27.08.2012	5,68,745/-	31.03.2013	6,33,510/-
2010-11	27.08.2012	13,75,603/-	31.03.2013	14,43,320/-
2011-12	31.07.2011	11,14,014/-	31.03.2013	11,92,973/-

17. Commissioner, Income Tax (Central), Kanpur (hereinafter referred to as "CIT"), after issuing notice under Section 263 (1) and affording opportunity to assessee, passed an order dated 28.3.2014 holding that assessment orders made by Assessing Officer had caused prejudice to Revenue and after setting aside assessment orders, directed Assessing Officer to consider assessment afresh taking into account points raised and stated in CIT's order dated 28.3.2014.

18. Aggrieved by order of CIT passed under Section 263, assessee preferred appeals which have been allowed by Tribunal vide judgment and order dated 18.11.2014 giving rise to these appeals by Revenue. Tribunal has held that CIT recorded a finding that Assessing Officer has passed an erroneous order but cannot direct for further inquiry by Assessing Officer. It has also observed that Assessing Officer has made assessment under Section 153A consequent to search operation and before doing that, it has issued a questionnaire to assessee and thereafter matter was examined hence CIT cannot pass an order under Section 263 observing that Assessing Officer has not applied his mind to the factum of seizure during search operation. Last reason given by Tribunal in passing impugned order and to set aside order passed by CIT is that at the best it was a case of "inadequate inquiry" and not "lack of inquiry", therefore, power under Section 263 by CIT was not justified.

19. In our view, Tribunal has misdirected itself and without appreciating scope of Section 263, has illegally set aside order of CIT. Our reasons are as under:

20. In order to attract Section 263 of Act, 1961, Statute requires that there must exist an erroneous order of assessment of Assessing Officer, prejudicial to the interest of Revenue.

21. In Malabar Industrial Company Ltd. Vs. CIT [2000 (243) ITR 83 (SC)], Court considered Section 263(1) of Act, 1961 and held that pre-requisite to exercise of jurisdiction by Commissioner, suo motu, under Section 263 is that order of Income Tax Officer is erroneous and prejudicial to the interest of Revenue. Commissioner has to be satisfied on existence of twin conditions i.e.

(i) Order of Assessing Officer sought to be revised is erroneous, and

(ii) It is prejudicial to the interest of Revenue.

22. If any one of them is absent, Section 263 of Act, 1961 would not be attracted. It was also held in Malabar Industrial Co. Ltd. (supra) that this power of revision cannot be invoked in respect to each and every mistake or error committed by Assessing Officer. It is only when an order is erroneous and prejudicial to the interest of Revenue,, then Section 263 of Act, 1961 will be attracted. An incorrect assumption of fact or an incorrect application of law will satisfy the requirement of order being 'erroneous'. Court further said that orders passed without applying principles of natural justice or without application of mind, would also come within the category of "erroneous orders".

23. Coming to the phrase "prejudicial to the interest of Revenue", Court said in Malabar Industrial Co. Ltd. (supra) that it is not an expression of art and not defined in Act, 1961. When considered with its ordinary meaning, it is of wide import and not confined to mere loss of tax. Court was of the view that scheme of Act was to levy and collect tax in accordance to the provisions of Act and this task is entrusted to Revenue. If, due to erroneous order of Income Tax Officer, Revenue is loosing tax, lawfully payable by a person, it will certainly be prejudicial to the interest of Revenue. However, every loss of revenue, as a consequence of an order of Assessing Officer, cannot be treated as prejudicial to the interest of Revenue. For example, when Income Tax Officer adopted one of the course permissible in law and it resulted in loss of revenue, or where two views are possible and Income Tax Officer has taken one view with which Commissioner does not agree, it cannot be treated erroneous order, prejudicial to the interest of Revenue, unless view taken by Income Tax Officer is unsustainable in law.

24. Aforesaid view taken in Malabar Industrial Company Ltd. (Supra) has been followed in CIT Vs. Max India Ltd. [2007 (295) ITR 282], where also Court has reiterated that expression 'erroneous' should be read in conjunction with phrase "prejudicial to the interest of Revenue".

25. Recently, it has also been considered by this Court in CIT, Meerut Vs. Shri Anand Kumar Jain, ITA No.143 of 2014, decided on 3.11.2014, and in the circumstances in which Commissioner can exercise powers under Section 263 has been explained as under:-

"Hence, it is well settled that every loss of revenue in consequence of an order of the Assessing Officer cannot be treated as prejudicial to the interests of the revenue. For example, when an Assessing Officer adopts one of the courses permissible in law or where two views are possible of which the Assessing Officer has taken one view, the Commissioner cannot exercise jurisdiction under Section 263 merely because he does not agree with the view of the Assessing Officer unless the view which is taken by the Assessing Officer is unsustainable in law. On the other hand, where an order has been passed by the Assessing Officer without application of mind or where the Assessing Officer has made an incorrect assessment of facts or an incorrect application of law, that would satisfy the requirement of the order being erroneous. As regards the words 'prejudicial to the interests of the revenue', the Supreme Court has held that if due to an erroneous order of the Assessing Officer the revenue is losing tax lawfully payable by a person, it will certainly be prejudicial to the interests of the revenue."

26. In the present case, Commissioner has found that recovery of Rs.2 crores in denomination of one thousand rupee notes remained unexplained through out. Assessee sought to explain receipt of Rs.2 crores from different business concerns but record of those did not reconcile. Still without inquiry and looking to money trail of cash, Assessing Officer passed assessment order under Section 153A read with Section 143 and has caused prejudice to Revenue.

27. Here is a case of no inquiry or no proper inquiry and not inadequate inquiry. Moreover, it is not relevant whether Assessing Officer conducted adequate or inadequate inquiry. Power under Section 263 can be exercised by Commissioner if order of assessment passed by Assessing Officer is an erroneous order and is prejudicial to interest of Revenue. If these twin conditions are satisfied, Commissioner would be justified in passing order, exercising power under Section 263.

28. Tribunal has got impressed with the reply of assessee that he has explained receipt of Rs.2 crores. Tribunal unfortunately failed to notice that said explanation did not reconcile with record of concerns/companies. The assessee claimed that money belong to and he had receipt there from but could not got it verified from record of such concerns, still Assessing Officer without making a detailed in-depth inquiry on this aspect, has proceeded to make assessment causing prejudice to interest of Revenue.

29. We, therefore, answer the questions noted above in favour of Revenue and hold that Tribunal has completely erred in law in setting aside order passed by CIT under Section 263 of Act, 1961.

30. All these appeals are allowed. The judgment and order of Tribunal dated 18.11.2014 impugned in these appeals is hereby set aside. The order dated 28.3.2014 passed by CIT in exercise of Section 263 of Act, 1961, is hereby restored.

31. No costs.

Commissioner Of Income Tax Central Kanpur ...Appellant
Versus
Kesarwani Zarda Bhandar Sahson Alld. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellant:
Ashok Kumar, S.C.,Bharat Ji Agrwal

Counsel for Respondent:
Krishna Agrawal

Present appeals have been filed by Income Tax Department under Section 260-A of arising from judgment and order dated 1st September 2014 deciding Income Tax Appeals No. 358 and 374 to 378/Alld./2013 and Income Tax Appeals No. 6 to 11/Alld./2014 relating to Assessment Years 2004-05 to 2009-10, by a common order.

The questions raised before us are confined to scope of Section 153A as to whether Assessing Officer has power to reassess return of Assessee not only for the undisclosed income found during search operation but also in regard to assessment order already finalized or stood processed under Sectin 143(1) of Act, 1961.

Section commenced with the words notwithstanding anything contained in Section 139, 147, 148, 149, 151 and 153, meaning thereby whatever has been provided in the aforesaid provisions that will not bar Assessing Officer in proceeding with the assessment or reassessment of total income for six assessment years, immediately preceding the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which such search is conducted or requisition is made. The word 'assess' or 'reassess' not only suggest but show that power under Section 153A includes reassessment and that would be done only when assessment has already been finalized. There is inherent hint in Section 153A and there is no reason to restrict its scope.

The issue has now been finalized by a Division Bench of this Court in Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Raj Kumar Arora, (2014) 367 ITR 517 (All) Court observed that The judgment and order of Tribunal to this extent is hereby set aside and the additions made by Assessing Authority which were deleted by Tribunal by taking otherwise view with respect to the scope of Section 153A are restored.

Appeals are allowed.

1. Heard Sri Gaurav Mahajan, assisted by Sri Ashok Kumar, learned counsel for appellants and Sri Ravi Kant, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Umesh Chandra Kesarwani and Sri Rakesh Ranjan Agarwal, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Suyash Agarwal, counsel for respondents.

2. All these appeals have been filed by Income Tax Department (hereinafter refereed to as "Revenue") under Section 260-A of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1961") arising from judgment and order dated 1st September 2014 deciding Income Tax Appeals No. 358 and 374 to 378/Alld./2013 and Income Tax Appeals No. 6 to 11/Alld./2014 relating to Assessment Years 2004-05 to 2009-10, by a common order.

3. The brief facts giving rise to these appeals may be narrated as under.

4. M/S Kesarwani Zarda Bhandar, Sahson, Allahabad a firm (hereinafter referred to as "Assessee") came into existence in 1967, for manufacturing branded chewing tobacco known as "Zarda' which is an excisable item.

5. For Assessment Years 2004-05 and 2007-08, Assessee already filed returns of income within time. Assessement Order in respect to Assessment Year 2004-05 was also passed by Assessing Officer (hereinafter referred to as "AO") on 19th December 2006. Remaining assessments for Assessment Years 2005-06 to 2007-08 were completed under Section 143(A). On 27th August 2009, search and seizure operation was carried out at Assessee's premises at Allahabad, Branch Office situated at Mumbai and Ahemdabad and the residential premises of partner's firm to Assessee, under Section 132(1) of the Act 1961.

6. A notice under Section 153A of Act, 1961 was issued on 7th July 2010 requiring Assessee to file return of income for Assessment Years 2004-2005 to 2009-2010. Assessing Officer made assessment for the aforesaid years making various additions.

7. Assessee preferred appeal which were decided by Commissioner of Income Tax (Appeals) [hereinafter referred to as "CIT (Appeals)"] vide separate order dated 30th September 2013. Thereafter, Assessee and Revenue, both preferred appeals before Tribunal who has allowed Assessee's appeal and dismissed Revenue's appeal. Hence this appeal by Revenue.

8. Appeal was admitted on following substantial questions of law:

(1) Whether the Hon'ble Income Tax Appellate Tribunal had erred in law and on facts in setting aside the assessment completed under Section 153A of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and not following the decision of Hon'ble Jurisdictional High Court in the case of CIT Vs. Raj Kuamr in ITA No. 56 of 2011 wherein it is held that the Assessing Officer has the power to reassess the returns of the assessee not only for the undisclosed income, which was found during the search operation but also with regard to the material that was available at the time of original asseessment.

(2) Whether in view of the law laid down by this Hon'ble Court in the case of CIT Vs. Raj Kumar (supra), the Assessing Officer would be competent to re-open the assessment proceedings already made and determine the total income of the assessee ; the Assessing Officer, while exercising the power under Section 153A of the Act, would make assessment and compute the total income of the assessee including the undisclosed income, notwithstanding the assessee had filed the return before the date of search which stood processed under Section 143(1)(a) of the Act ?

9. The questions raised before us are confined to scope of Section 153A as to whether Assessing Officer has power to reassess return of Assessee not only for the undisclosed income found during search operation but also in regard to assessment order already finalized or stood processed under Sectin 143(1) of Act, 1961. Section 153A was inserted by Finance Act, 2003, with effect from 1.6.2003 which reads as follows.

"(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 139, section 147, section 148, section 149, section 151 and section 153, in the case of a person where a search is initiated under section 132 or books of account, other documents or any assets are requisitioned under section 132A after the 31st day of May, 2003, the Assessing Officer shall--

(a) issue notice to such person requiring him to furnish within such period, as may be specified in the notice, the return of income in respect of each assessment year falling within six assessment years referred to in clause (b), in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner and setting forth such other particulars as may be prescribed and the provisions of this Act shall, so far as may be, apply accordingly as if such return were a return required to be furnished under section 139;

(b) assess or reassess the total income of six assessment years immediately preceding the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which such search is conducted or requisition is made :

Provided that the Assessing Officer shall assess or reassess the total income in respect of each assessment year falling within such six assessment years:*

Provided further that assessment or reassessment, if any, relating to any assessment year falling within the period of six assessment years referred to in this pending on the date of initiation of the search under section 132 or making of requisition under section 132A, as the case may be, shall abate:*

(2) If any proceeding initiated or any order of assessment or reassessment made under sub-section (1) has been annulled in appeal or any other legal proceeding, then, notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1) or section 153, the assessment or reassessment relating to any assessment year which has abated under the second proviso to sub-section (1), shall stand revived with effect from the date of receipt of the order of such annulment by the [Principal Commissioner or] Commissioner:

Provided that such revival shall cease to have effect, if such order of annulment is set aside.]

Explanation.--For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that,--

(i) save as otherwise provided in this section, section 153B and section 153C, all other provisions of this Act shall apply to the assessment made under this section;

(ii) in an assessment or reassessment made in respect of an assessment year under this section, the tax shall be chargeable at the rate or rates as applicable to such assessment year."

10. As is evident Section commenced with the words notwithstanding anything contained in Section 139, 147, 148, 149, 151 and 153, meaning thereby whatever has been provided in the aforesaid provisions that will not bar Assessing Officer in proceeding with the assessment or reassessment of total income for six assessment years, immediately preceding the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which such search is conducted or requisition is made. The word 'assess' or 'reassess' not only suggest but show that power under Section 153A includes reassessment and that would be done only when assessment has already been finalized. There is inherent hint in Section 153A and there is no reason to restrict its scope. Tribunal has relied on the decision of Special Bench of Mumbai Tribunal in All Cargo Global Logistics Ltd. Vs. DCIT, 147 TTJ 513 wherein it was held that no addition can be made for any assessment year under Section 153A, the assessment which, is not pending on the date of search, unless any incriminating material is found in the course of search. Tribunal has decided the issue in favour of Assessee and deleted all the additions made in assessment orders up for consideration in various appeal for Assessment Years 2004-05 to Assessment Year 2007-08.

11. We find that this issue has now been finalized by a Division Bench of this Court in Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Raj Kumar Arora, (2014) 367 ITR 517 (All) wherein it has been held as under :-

"Consequently, even though an assessment order has been passed under Section 143(1) (a) or under Section 143(3) of the Act, the Assessing Officer would be required to reopen these proceedings and reassess the total income taking notice of undisclosed income even found during the search and seizure operation. The fetter imposed upon the Assessing Officer under Sections 147 and 148 of the Act have been removed by the non obstante clause under Section 153A of the Act.

Consequently, we are of the opinion that in cases where the assessment or reassessment proceedings have already been completed and assessment orders have been passed, which were subsisting when the search was made, the Assessing Officer would be competent to reopen the assessment proceeding already made and determine the total income of the assessee. The Assessing Officer, while exercising the power under Section 153A of the Act, would make assessment and compute the total income of the assessee including the undisclosed income, notwithstanding the assessee had filed the return before the date of search which stood processed under Section 143(1)(a) of the Act.

In the light of the aforesaid, the reasons given by the Tribunal that no material was found during the search cannot be sustained, since we have held that the Assessing Officer has the power to reassess the returns of the assessee not only for the undisclosed income, which was found during the search operation but also with regard to the material that was available at the time of the original assessment."

12. In view of above decision which squarely clinches both the substantial questions of law pressed in these appeals, we find no reason to take a different view and hence answer the above questions in favour of Revenue and against Assessee.

13. The judgment and order of Tribunal to this extent is hereby set aside and the additions made by Assessing Authority which were deleted by Tribunal by taking otherwise view with respect to the scope of Section 153A are restored.

14. Appeals are allowed.

Misc. Bench No.- 21150 Of 2016

Vinay Pratap Singh ...Petitioner

Counsel for Petitioner:

Counsel for Respondents:
C.S.C., A.S.G

Present writ petition questions the correctness of the Government order dated 01.04.2006 and the order issued by the respondent State on 02.06.2016 whereby the standard rate of Rs.65/- per quintal for inter-State transportation and handling of foodgrains have been fixed by the State Government. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the same is based on a totally misinterpretation of Rule 7 of the Food Security (Assistance to the State Government) Rules, 2015.

Court observed that the State Government while proceeding to interpret Rule 7 of 2015 Rules may not have correctly arrived at the conclusion of the maximum permissible rate of Rs.65/- and to that extent the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner may be correct but the petitioner cannot compel the State Government to trade or to fix the rate as had been done earlier. The State Government has now reduced and fixed the rate at Rs.65/-. It is open to the petitioner to enter into the trade on the said rates as prescribed in the Government orders. A writ therefore, cannot be issued to compel the State Government to proceed to fix the rates as earlier which cannot be a matter of adjudication for this Court in exercise of writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

The writ petition lacks merit and is accordingly rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.

Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vivek Raj Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned standing counsel for the respondents 1 to 4. Notices have been accepted on behalf of the respondent No.5 by Sri Ankit Pandey.

2. This writ petition questions the correctness of the Government order dated 01.04.2006 and the order issued by the respondent State on 02.06.2016 whereby the standard rate of Rs.65/- per quintal for inter-State transportation and handling of foodgrains have been fixed by the State Government. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the same is based on a totally misinterpretation of Rule 7 of the Food Security (Assistance to the State Government) Rules, 2015. A copy of the said Rules has been placed on record. The said rule 7 is extracted hereinunder:-

"7. Norms and pattern of Central assistance.-- (1) The norms of Central assistance (in Rs. Per quintal) to the State Government and Union territory and share of the Central Government (in percentage) shall be limited as under:

Category of State and Union Territories	Norms of expenditure (Rate in Rs, per quintal)			Central share (in per cent)
	Intra-State movement and handling	Fair Price Shop dealers margin
		Basic	Additional margin for sale through point of sale device
General	65	70	17	50
Special	100	143	17	75

Explanation--For the purpose of this rule-

(1) "General Category States and Union territories" means the following:

(i) Andhra Pradesh;
(ii) Bihar;
(iii) Chhattisgarh;
(iv) Goa;
(v) Gujarat;
(vi) Haryana;
(vii) Jharkhand;
(viii) Karnataka;
(ix) Kerala;
(x) Madhya Pradesh;
(xi) Maharashtra;
(xii) Odisha;
(xiii) Punjab;
(xiv) Rajasthan;

(xv) Tamil Nadu;
(xvi) Telangana;
(xvii) Uttar Pradesh;
(xviii) West Bengal;
(xix) Chandigarh;
(xx) Dadra and Nagar Haveli;
(xxi) Daman and Diu;
(xxii) Delhi; and (xxiii) Puducherry.

(2) "Special Category States and Union Territories" means the following:

(i) Arunachal pradesh;
(ii) Assam;
(iii) Himanchal Pradesh;
(iv) Jammu and Kashmir;
(v) Manipur;
(vi) Meghalaya;
(vii) Mizoram;
(viii) Nagaland;
(ix) Sikkim;
(x) Tripura;
(xi) Uttarakhand;
(xii) Andman and Nicobar Islands; and (xiii) Lakshadweep.

(2) The additional margin provided in sub-rule (1) is towards the cost of purchase, operation and maintenance of the point of sale device, its running expenses and incentive for its use.

(3) The additional margin shall be payable for the fair price shop which has installed a point of sale device and shall be limited to the transactions made through it.

(4) The additional margin shall be released on the basis of a certificate from the State Government, supported by the documents, indicating the following, namely:-

(a) number of fair price shops at which the point of sale devices have been installed and are functional; and

(b) the details of all transactions using the point of sale devices.

(5) The State Government shall furnish the details of all transactions made through the point of sale devices in public domain.

(6) The State Government shall have the flexibility in choosing any of the following models for the installation of point of sale device, namely:-

(a) the State Government may purchase, install and maintain the point of sale device,

(b) the State Government may select a system integrator to purchase, install and maintain the point of sale device;

(c) the fair price shop dealer may purchase, install and maintain the point of sale device.

(7) The State Government shall determine the basis for apportioning the additional margin for sale through point of sale device among different stakeholders, depending upon the model chosen.

(8) The State Government shall have the flexibility to allow differential margins within the State taking into consideration the location of shops and number of ration cards attached to the shops.

Provided that the Central assistance shall be limited to the rates specified in sub-rule (1) of rule 7 or the actual average rates for the State as a whole, at which the expenditure was actually incurred by the State Government, whichever is lower.

(9) For the expenditure on intra-State movement and handling of foodgrains, Central assistance shall be limited to the rates specified in sub-rule (1) of rule 7 or the actual average rates for the State as a whole at which expenditure was incurred by the State Government, whichever is lower."

3. Learned counsel submits that the said Rule 7 only indicates the norms provided by the Central Government for central assistance which is Rs.65/- per quintal to the maximum and 50% thereof to be borne by the Central Government. Learned counsel submits that this was a restraint on the burden of share to be borne by the Central Government and was not a norm to fix the maximum rate to be offered by the State Government. The contention is that totally misinterpreting the said norms, the impugned Government order has been issued treating the same to be a direction to fix the maximum limit of rate of Rs.65/- per quintal to be compulsorily observed by the State Government. Learned counsel submits that the consequential order dated 02.06.2016 also suffers from the same infirmity and as such, both deserve to be quashed as they are based on a misinterpretation and misreading of the aforesaid Rules.

4. We have considered the aforesaid submissions raised and we find that the State Government while proceeding to interpret Rule 7 of 2015 Rules may not have correctly arrived at the conclusion of the maximum permissible rate of Rs.65/- and to that extent the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner may be correct but the petitioner cannot compel the State Government to trade or to fix the rate as had been done earlier. The State Government has now reduced and fixed the rate at Rs.65/-. It is open to the petitioner to enter into the trade on the said rates as prescribed in the Government orders. A writ therefore, cannot be issued to compel the State Government to proceed to fix the rates as earlier which cannot be a matter of adjudication for this Court in exercise of writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

5. The writ petition lacks merit and is accordingly rejected. However, if there is any dispute with regard to the agreement with the State Government vis-a-vis the rate, it will be open to the petitioner to approach any appropriate forum in accordance with law.

Present criminal revision has been directed against the judgment and order dated 16.05.2013 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad on Misc. Application No.409/XII/13 (Hirendra Nandi vs. Vinod Kumar and others), whereby the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. dated 01.04.2013 moved by the revisionist has been rejected.

Learned counsel for the revisionist has submitted that the Police of Police Station- Kydganj, Allahabad reached at the home of revisionist and informed him that non-bailable warrant has been issued against him. The Station Officer and other Police personnel of Police Station- Kydganj, has compelled the revisionist to sign on four cheques of total amount of Rs.10,00,000/- in favour of Ram Kumar Verma and also forced his mother to put her thumb impression upon one stamp paper and also registered one forged F.I.R. under Sections 386, 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. against the revisionist. On perusal of the impugned F.I.R. and order dated 16.05.2013 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad, it appears that it has been observed in the impugned order that civil litigation is pending between the parties in the court of learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division)/ A.C.J.M., Room No.6, Allahabad and also one order dated 31.1.2013 was also available on the file regarding contempt application Civil No. 529 of 2013 passed by this Court. This also reveals that there is dispute pending amongst the parties in this Court. This has been observed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate that the dispute is of the civil nature and as a counter blast, this application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. has been preferred which is liable to be rejected and it was rejected by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad vide order dated 16.05.2013.

Court observed that it appears that there is a long drawn civil dispute between both the parties regarding above house No. 41/34, Bairahana, Allahabad. The dispute is of the civil nature and learned Chief Judicial Magistrate has rightly observed that as a counter blast this application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant/ revisionist. Resultantly, the revision is liable to be dismissed.

The criminal revision is hereby dismissed.

1. This criminal revision has been directed against the judgment and order dated 16.05.2013 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad on Misc. Application No.409/XII/13 (Hirendra Nandi vs. Vinod Kumar and others), whereby the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. dated 01.04.2013 moved by the revisionist has been rejected.

2. Heard Sri Pankaj Kumar, learned counsel for the revisionist along with Sri Jainendra Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the opposite party nos. 3 and 4 and Ms. Anita Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist has relied upon Lalita Kumari vs. Government U.P. and others reported in (2014) 2 SCC 1.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist has submitted that the Police of Police Station- Kydganj, Allahabad reached at the home of revisionist and informed him that non-bailable warrant has been issued against him. When the revisionist reached at the Police Station- Kydganj, he was informed on the cellular phone that opposite parties are trying to take possession of his house forcefully after breaking open the lock and they are also throwing out the household goods. When the Station Officer was shown the order passed by this Court dated 2.11.2012, the Station Officer did not pay any heed towards it. The Station Officer and other Police personnel of Police Station- Kydganj, has compelled the revisionist to sign on four cheques of total amount of Rs.10,00,000/- in favour of Ram Kumar Verma and also forced his mother to put her thumb impression upon one stamp paper and also registered one forged F.I.R. under Sections 386, 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. against the revisionist.

5. On perusal of the impugned F.I.R. and order dated 16.05.2013 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad, it appears that it has been observed in the impugned order that civil litigation is pending between the parties in the court of learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division)/ A.C.J.M., Room No.6, Allahabad and also one order dated 31.1.2013 was also available on the file regarding contempt application Civil No. 529 of 2013 passed by this Court. 6. Counter affidavit filed on behalf of the opposite party no.3, deponent, Ram Kumar Verma reveals that there is dispute regarding one house situated in the locality of Bairahana, Tehsil- Sadar, District- Allahabad and one F.I.R. in Crime No. 371 of 2012 under Sections 386, 323, 504, 506 I.P.C., Police Station- Kydganj, District- Allahabad has been registered on 03.12.2012 at about 21:20 hours regarding 4/5 part of house No. 41/34, Bairahana, Police Station- Kydganj, District-

Allahabad against the accused persons namely Smt. Meera Nandi, Hirendra Nath Nandi, Smt. Devyani Nandi and Avilesh Nandi.

7. Moreover, the Suit No. 1278 of 2010 (Smt. Meera Nandi and others vs. Ram Kumar Verma and others) was pending in the court of learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division)/ A.C.J.M., Room No.6, Allahabad and temporary injunction application-6C was decided on merits by the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division)/ A.C.J.M., Room No.6, Allahabad on 02.11.2012. One Civil Revision No. 480 of 2012 (Ram Kumar Verma vs. Smt. Meera Nandi and othes) was also decided on 4.10.2012 by this Court.

8. As per the above discussions, it appears that there is a long drawn civil dispute between both the parties regarding above house No. 41/34, Bairahana, Allahabad. The dispute is of the civil nature and learned Chief Judicial Magistrate has rightly observed that as a counter blast this application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant/ revisionist. The revisionist is a company having its registered office in Mumbai in the State of Maharashtra. It is engaged in the business of manufacture and sale of motor vehicles, chassis and other parts. During the assessment year in question a motor vehicle was sold by the revisionist to M/s Motor & General Sales Limited, Karnal, Haryana vide Bill No. 30698 dated 24 March 1992. The aforesaid vehicle is stated to have been sold by M/s Motor & General Sales on hire purchase to one Sri Naseem Ahmad. It transpires that Sri Naseem Ahmad obtained a Form 34 on 13 June 1992 at the entry check post at Kairana, District Muzaffarnagar for the purposes of taking the vehicle to the State of Bihar. This Form 34 was not got cancelled at the exit checkpost of the State of U.P. On 25 January 2005, a tax of Rs. 39,000/ came to be levied upon the revisionist by the Assistant Commissioner, Trade Tax on the ground of violation of Section 28B of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 19481. By a separate order (challenged in Trade Tax Revision No. 558 of 2011) a penalty of Rs. 1,24,800 came to be imposed upon the revisionist in terms of the provisions of Section 15A(1) (g) of the 1948 Act.

Hon'ble Court finds that a vehicle sales invoicescumdelivery challan dated 24 March 1992 also existed. This invoice established a sale of the chassis by the revisionist to Motor and General Sales Limited Karnal. The vehicle was identified both by chassis number as well as engine number. On 5 June 1992 Motor and General Sales Limited Karnal drew up a sale certificate and delivery receipt in favour of Naseem Ahmad. These documents too identified the vehicle both by its engine and chassis number. Emphasis has been deliberately laid upon this aspect in order to indicate that the vehicle in question stood appropriated to the contract by identification of its chassis and engine numbers. The hire purchase agreement was of course between the revisionist and Naseem Ahmad and came to be executed on 29 June 1992. The issue which therefore primarily arises is whether the rebuttable presumption which stood raised under Section 28B stood discharged or not. As was noted in Sodhi Transport a rebuttable presumption is not evidence and is only indicative of the person upon whom the burden of proof initially lies and rests. A rebuttable presumption is clearly distinct from one which is conclusive in character. Under a rule of rebuttable presumption all that a person is obliged to do is to establish by way of evidence that the real fact is not as presumed. The character of the burden of proof placed upon the party has been described by the Supreme Court by the use of the words "fairly and reasonably tending to show". It has then been explained that if the evidence tendered tends to show that the real fact is not as presumed, the purpose of the statutory presumption is over and it is then for the party concerned by way of evidence to establish the true nature of the fact. The respondents in the present case had before them not just the invoices of sale executed by the revisionist in favour of Motor and General Sales Limited but also the delivery and sale invoice executed in favour of Naseem Ahmad. These documents evidenced a sale by way of hire purchase outside the State of U.P. The documents and evidences so led clearly tended to dislodge the rebuttable presumption raised. Whether the test of "tending to show" is applied or the test of "preponderance of probability", it is apparent that the presumption raised against the revisionist stood clearly discharged. In the opinion of this Court the evidence led before the respondents was clear and convincing and worthy of being placed in the category of evidence which fairly and reasonably showed that the real fact was not as presumed.

Accordingly, these revisions shall consequently stand allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Yashwant Varma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Krishna Agrawal, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri B.K. Pandey, learned Standing Counsel.

2. These two revisions having arisen from proceedings taken by the respondent authorities in respect of a singular transaction, have with the consent of parties been taken up for disposal together. The facts upon which there is not much dispute are as follows:

3. The revisionist is a company having its registered office in Mumbai in the State of Maharashtra. It is engaged in the business of manufacture and sale of motor vehicles, chassis and other parts. For the purposes of effecting sales of the articles manufactured by it, it establishes regional sales offices in various States throughout the country. During the assessment year in question a motor vehicle was sold by the revisionist to M/s Motor & General Sales Limited, Karnal, Haryana vide Bill No. 30698 dated 24 March 1992. The aforesaid vehicle is stated to have been sold by M/s Motor & General Sales on hire purchase to one Sri Naseem Ahmad. It transpires that Sri Naseem Ahmad obtained a Form - 34 on 13 June 1992 at the entry check post at Kairana, District Muzaffarnagar for the purposes of taking the vehicle to the State of Bihar. This Form - 34 was not got cancelled at the exit check-post of the State of U.P. On 25 January 2005, a tax of Rs. 39,000/- came to be levied upon the revisionist by the Assistant Commissioner, Trade Tax on the ground of violation of Section 28-B of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 19481. By a separate order (challenged in Trade Tax Revision No. 558 of 2011) a penalty of Rs. 1,24,800 came to be imposed upon the revisionist in terms of the provisions of Section 15A(1)(g) of the 1948 Act.

4. Sri Krishna Agarwal, learned counsel for the revisionist has assailed both the levy of tax as well as the imposition of penalty and has advanced the following submissions.

5. Sri Agarwal submits that admittedly the vehicle in question had been sold to M/s Motors and General Sales Limited at Karnal in the State of Haryana. It is his submission that since the sale had taken place at Karnal in the State of Haryana itself, the presumption of sale which stands engrafted in Section 28-B of the 1948 Act did not arise. Sri Agarwal further referred to and relied upon the judgment rendered by the Supreme Court in Asea Brown Boveri Ltd. Vs. Industrial Finance Corporation of India and Ors.[2] to submit that a hire purchase agreement is imbued with the primary purpose of financing the purchase of assets or equipment. While in law, the hirer may continue to be the owner of the asset or equipment, for all practical purposes the borrower becomes the owner of the property and enjoys full rights over the asset or equipment including the right to take delivery, enjoy use of occupation, maintain, operate and bear risks of loss or damage. He has also placed reliance upon a judgment rendered by a learned Single Judge of this Court in Commissioner Trade Tax, U.P., Lucknow Vs. S/s Shrimati Harjeet Kaur, Kanpur[3] to contend that the hirer in view of the explanation appended to Section 28-B is deemed to be the owner of the vehicle. Referring then to the fact as noted in the orders impugned, Sri Agarwal submitted that undisputedly Naseem Ahmad appears to have sold the vehicle to one Ali Mohammad after it had crossed into the State of U.P. He submits that neither the actions taken by Sri Naseem Ahmad post the delivery and sale of the vehicle or the infraction of registration laws by him could by any stretch of imagination be said to attach a liability of tax upon the revisionist.

6. Sri Pandey, learned Standing Counsel while countering the above submissions has contended that a hire purchase agreement by its very nature does not result in a sale or a transfer of property in goods. He, therefore, submits that the revisionist continued to be the owner of the vehicle and was consequently correctly held liable to be proceeded against for violation of the provisions of Section 28-B. He further referred to the fact that the hire purchase agreement itself was one which was executed between the revisionist and Naseem Ahmad and therefore submitted that the revisionist was the owner who admittedly failed to comply with the provisions of Section 28-B. In addition to the above Sri Pandey placed emphasis upon the facts as gathered by the respondent-authorities and which stood recorded in the orders impugned. He highlighted the findings recorded in the order of the Tribunal to the effect that the vehicle had come to be registered with the transport authorities at Gorakhpur while the address of the selling dealer was shown to be at Azamgarh. This, Sri Pandey submits, has compelled the Tribunal to correctly come to a conclusion that the vehicle had been sold within the State of U.P. He further placed reliance upon Clause (2) of the hire purchase agreement to submit that the owner of the chassis in question was shown to be the revisionist itself and in view of the above he submitted that both the levy of tax and imposition of penalty was clearly justified. It is these rival submissions which fall for consideration.

7. Since the determination of the rival submissions would pivot around the provisions of Section 28-B, it would be apposite to extract the said section which is in the following terms: -

"Section 28-B. Transit of goods by road through the State and issue of transit pass.

When a vehicle coming from any place outside the State and bound for any other place outside the State, and carrying goods referred to in sub-section (1) of section 28-A, passes through the State, the driver or other person incharge of such vehicle shall obtain in the prescribed manner a transit pass from the officer-in-charge of the first check-post or barrier after his entry into the State and deliver it to the officer-in-charge of the last check-post or barrier before his exist from the State, failing which it shall be presumed that the goods carried thereby have been sold within the State by the owner or person-in-charge of the vehicle:

Provided that where the goods carried by such vehicle are, after their entry into the State, transported outside the State by any other vehicle or conveyance, the onus of proving that goods have actually moved out of the State shall be on the owner or person-in-charge of the vehicle.

Explanation : In a case where a vehicle owned by a person is hired for transportation of goods by some other person, the hirer of the vehicle shall for the purposes of this Section, be deemed to be the owner of the vehicle."

8. As is evident from a reading of the above provision, the section imposes an obligation upon the driver or other person in charge of a vehicle to obtain a transit pass at the first check-post barrier after entry into the State of U.P. and surrender the same to the officer in charge of the last check-post or barrier before exiting the State of U.P. The provision itself stands attracted to cases where goods coming from any place outside the State are transiting through the State and are bound for a place outside U.P. The section then also engrafts a presumption against the driver or other person-in-charge of the vehicle to the effect that if the transit pass is not surrendered at the last check post or barrier, it shall be presumed that the goods have been sold within the State by the owner or person-in-charge of the vehicle. While the obligation to obtain a transit pass is placed upon the driver or other person-in-charge of the vehicle, it becomes apposite to note that the presumption of sale stands raised against the owner or the person in charge of the vehicle. The Explanation appended to the provision provides that in a case where the vehicle in question is hired for transportation of goods, the hirer of the vehicle shall for the purposes of the provision be deemed to the owner of the vehicle. It becomes pertinent to note here that the presumption of sale embodied in Section 28-B has been held to be a rebuttable presumption in Sodhi Transport Co. Vs. State of U.P.[4]. The Supreme Court described the ambit of a rebuttable presumption in the following words:

"14. A presumption is not in itself evidence but only makes a prima facie case for party in whose favour it exists. It is a rule concerning evidence. It indicates the person on whom the burden of proof lies. When presumption is conclusive, it obviates that production of any other evidence to dislodge the conclusion to be drawn on proof of certain facts. But when it is rebuttable it only points out the party on whom lies the duty of going forward with evidence on the fact presumed, and when that party has produced evidence fairly and reasonably tending to show that the real fact is not as presumed the purpose of presumption is over. Then the evidence will determine the true nature of the fact to be established. The rules of presumption are deduced from enlightened human knowledge and experience and are drawn from the connection, relation and coincidence of facts, and circumstances.

16. In our opinion a statutory provision which creates a rebuttable presumption as regards the proof of a set of circumstances which would make a transaction liable to tax with the object of preventing evasion of the tax cannot be considered as conferring on the authority concerned the power to levy a tax which the legislature cannot otherwise levy. A rebuttable presumption which is clearly a rule of evidence has the effect of shifting the burden of proof and it is hard to see how it is unconstitutional when the person concerned has the opportunity to displace the presumption by leading evidence.

17. We are of the view that the words contained in Section 28-B of the Act only require the authorities concerned to raise a rebuttable presumption, that the goods must have been sold in the State if the transit pass is not handed over to the officer at the check-post of the barrier near the place of exit from the State. The transporter concerned is not shut out from showing by producing reliable evidence that the goods have not been actually sold inside the State. It is still open to him to establish that the goods had been disposed of in a different way. He may establish that the goods have been delivered to some other person under a transaction which is not a sale, they have been consumed inside the State or have been re despatched outside the State without effecting a sale within the State etc. It is only where the presumption is not successfully rebutted the authorities concerned are required to rely upon the rule of presumption in Section 28-B of the Act. It is, therefore, not correct to say that a transaction which is proved to be not a sale is being subjected to sales tax. The authority concerned before levying sales tax arrives at the conclusion by a judicial process that the goods have been sold inside the State and in doing so relies upon the statutory rule of presumption contained in Section 28-B of the Act which may be rebutted by the person against whom action is taken under Section 28-B of the Act. When once a finding is recorded that a person has sold the goods which he had brought inside the State, then he would be a dealer even according to the definition of the word 'dealer' as it stood from the very commencement of the Act subject to the other conditions prescribed in this behalf being fulfilled. A person who sells goods inside the State of Uttar Pradesh and fulfills the other conditions prescribed in that behalf is a dealer even as per amendments made in 1959, 1961, 1964, 1973 and 1978 to the said definition. There is, therefore, no substance in the contention that a transporter was being made liable for the first time after 1979 with retrospective effect to pay sales tax on a transaction which is not a sale. Tax becomes payable by him only after a finding is recorded that he has sold the goods inside the State though with the help of the presumption which is a rebuttable one."(emphasis supplied)

9. Sodhi Transport, we may note, was subsequently noticed and explained in Heinz India (P) Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. [5] wherein the Supreme Court observed as under:-

"56. Mr Chandra, however, laid considerable emphasis on the words "tending to show that the real fact is not as presumed", to argue that the test applied by this Court in rebuttable presumptions had been the test of "preponderance of probability". We do not think so. It is well settled that a decision is an authority for the point it decides. It is equally well settled that the text of the decision cannot be read as if it were a statute. That apart the expression used by this Court is "evidence fairly and reasonably tending to show", which signifies that it is not just any evidence, howsoever shaky and nebulous, that would satisfy the test of preponderance of probability to rebut the statutory presumption but evidence that can by proper and judicial application of mind be said to be fairly and reasonably showing that the real fact is not as presumed. In other words the evidence required to rebut a statutory presumption ought to be clear and convincing, no matter that the degree of proof may not be as high as proving the fact to the contrary beyond a reasonable doubt.

57. The heightened standard of proof required to rebut a presumption raised under the statute at hand is in our view applicable for two distinct reasons. The first and foremost is that the presumption is raised in relation to a fiscal statute. While the amount payable is not a tax, it is nevertheless a statutory levy which is attracted the moment the transaction of sale takes place within the market area. Goods admittedly produced within the market area and not consumed within such area are presumed to be leaving pursuant to a transaction of sale unless the contrary is proved. That the goods are produced within the market area is not in dispute in the instant case. That they left the market area is also admitted. In the ordinary course, therefore, the presumption would be that the goods left pursuant to a sale unless the appellants are in a position to prove the contrary.

58. The second reason for applying a higher standard of proof than mere preponderance of probability is that the nature of transaction pursuant to which the goods are removed from the market area is within the exclusive knowledge of the appellants or the persons to whom such goods are being dispatched. In other words, the circumstances in which the transactions, which the statute presumes to be sales, but which the appellants claim are simple transfer of stocks are within the exclusive knowledge of the appellants. The entire evidence relevant to the transactions, being available only with the appellants and the true nature of the transactions being within their special knowledge, there is no reason why the rebuttal evidence should not satisfy the higher standard of proof and clearly and convincingly establish that the fact presumed is not the actual fact. Our answer to Question 2 accordingly is that the evidence intended to rebut the statutory presumption under Section 17 of the Adhiniyam ought to be clear and convincing evidence showing that what is presumed under the provision is not the real fact." (emphasis supplied)

10. Heinz it becomes relevant to note does not detract from the basic principles enunciated in Sodhi Transport. It, of course, with reference to fiscal statutes holds that the degree of proof must be clear and convincing.

11. From the material that was placed before the respondent authorities, this Court finds that a vehicle sales invoices-cum-delivery challan dated 24 March 1992 also existed. This invoice established a sale of the chassis by the revisionist to Motor and General Sales Limited Karnal. The vehicle was identified both by chassis number as well as engine number. On 5 June 1992 Motor and General Sales Limited Karnal drew up a sale certificate and delivery receipt in favour of Naseem Ahmad. These documents too identified the vehicle both by its engine and chassis number. Emphasis has been deliberately laid upon this aspect in order to indicate that the vehicle in question stood appropriated to the contract by identification of its chassis and engine numbers. The hire purchase agreement was of course between the revisionist and Naseem Ahmad and came to be executed on 29 June 1992. The issue which therefore primarily arises is whether the rebuttable presumption which stood raised under Section 28-B stood discharged or not. As was noted in Sodhi Transport a rebuttable presumption is not evidence and is only indicative of the person upon whom the burden of proof initially lies and rests. A rebuttable presumption is clearly distinct from one which is conclusive in character. Under a rule of rebuttable presumption all that a person is obliged to do is to establish by way of evidence that the real fact is not as presumed. The character of the burden of proof placed upon the party has been described by the Supreme Court by the use of the words "fairly and reasonably tending to show". It has then been explained that if the evidence tendered tends to show that the real fact is not as presumed, the purpose of the statutory presumption is over and it is then for the party concerned by way of evidence to establish the true nature of the fact. The respondents in the present case had before them not just the invoices of sale executed by the revisionist in favour of Motor and General Sales Limited but also the delivery and sale invoice executed in favour of Naseem Ahmad. These documents evidenced a sale by way of hire purchase outside the State of U.P. The documents and evidences so led clearly tended to dislodge the rebuttable presumption raised. Whether the test of "tending to show" is applied or the test of "preponderance of probability", it is apparent that the presumption raised against the revisionist stood clearly discharged. In the opinion of this Court the evidence led before the respondents was clear and convincing and worthy of being placed in the category of evidence which fairly and reasonably showed that the real fact was not as presumed.

12. It becomes pertinent to note here that the department does not rely upon or rest its case against the revisionist upon any other independent material or evidence.

13. Additionally, this Court finds merit in the submission of Sri Agarwal who relying upon the principles enunciated by the Supreme Court in Asea Brown Boveri submitted that the owner of the vehicle was for all practical purposes Naseem Ahmad and that therefore the levy of tax and imposition of penalty was clearly unjustified. The Supreme Court in Asea Brown Boveri held as under:

"In our opinion, financial lease is a transaction current in the commercial world, the primary purpose whereof is the financing of the purchase by the financier. The purchase of assets or equipments or machinery is by the borrower. For all practical purposes, the borrower becomes the owner of the property inasmuch as it is the borrower who chooses the property to be purchased, takes delivery, enjoys the use and occupation of the property, bears the wear and tear, maintains and operates the machinery/equipment, undertakes indemnity and agrees to bear the risk of loss or damage, if any. He is the one who gets the property insured. He remains liable for payment of taxes and other charges and indemnity. He cannot recover from the lessor, any of the above mentioned expenses. The period of lease extends over and covers the entire life of the property for which it may remain useful divided either into one term or divided into two terms with clause for renewal. In either case, the lease is non-cancellable." (emphasis supplied)

14. Whether Naseem Ahmad is treated to be the owner of the vehicle for all practical purposes or is viewed as the person in charge of the vehicle, the liability of tax and penalty foisted upon the assessee is unjustified and cannot be sustained.

15. Accordingly, these revisions shall consequently stand allowed. The orders of the authorities below are set aside. The questions are answered in favor of the assessee.

THE HON'BLE RAKESH SRIVASTAVA, J.

Service Single No.- 3167 Of 2008

Muzammil Husain & Ors. ...Petitioners

Versus

M.D. U.P.S.R.T.C.Corporation Lko.& Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioners:
P.K.Upadhyay

Counsel for Respondents:
Prabhakar Tewari, Chandra Shekher Pandey

After the death of Sri Mahmood Husain, the petitioner no. 2, moved an application seeking compassionate appointment on the ground that she and her children were facing extreme financial difficulties as she had no other source of livelihood and on the request made by petitioner no. 2 she was required to complete certa in formalities in order to enable the respondents to give compassionate appointment to her but the petitioner no. 2, instead of doing the needful, admittedly wrote to the respondents that her son was a minor and as soon as he became major and acquired the requisite qualification for Government service she would move an application for compassionate appointment. After more than 17 years and 7 months, the petitioner no. 2 wrote to the respondents seeking compassionate appointment for her son. Compassionate appointment is neither a source of employment nor there could be reservation of a vacancy till such time as the petitioner became a major after a number of years.

Court held that Compassionate appointment was offered to the petitioner no. 2 but she did not accept the same. It is thus apparent that the petitioners had some alternative source of livelihood and they have been able to pull on without any difficulty for almost 26 years since the death of Sri Mahmood Hussain. Once the crisis is over, the petitioners cannot be offered compassionate appointment. As well as the petitioners have not approached the Court with clean hands. They have not only concealed material facts but have deliberately and intentionally made a false averment. This is highly improper. The writ petition is liable to be dismissed on this ground alone. This Court has, however, considered the merits of the case and even on merits, the petitioners have no case.

The writ petition deserves to be dismissed and is accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rakesh Srivastava, J.)

1. Sri Mahmood Husain, while working as Superintendent of Store at the Regional Workshop of the Uttar Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation, Lucknow (for short 'Corporation') at Azamgarh unfortunately died on 06.11.1990.

2. On 05.06.2008, after almost 17 years and seven months to be precise, his son Muzammil Husain, the petitioner no. 1, and his widow Shahjahan Bano, the petitioner no. 2 have jointly preferred this writ petition praying for the following reliefs:-

"(i) a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opp. parties to decide the representations of petitioners which is contained in Annexure No. 2, 5 & 6 of this writ petition.

(ii) to pass any other order or direction which this Hon'ble Court deems fit and proper in facts and circumstances of the case.

(iii) to allow the writ petition with costs."

The Managing Director and the Regional Manager of the Corporation (Azamgarh Region) have been impleaded as respondent nos. 1 & 2 to the writ petition.

3. On 19.03.1991, immediately after the death of her husband, the petitioner no. 2, admittedly, made a representation (annexure no. 2 to the writ petition) to the respondent no. 2 seeking compassionate appointment. The petitioner no. 2, thereafter, is alleged to have sent reminders on 15.06.1994 and 21.06.1994. According to the petitioners, as no action, whatsoever, was taken by the respondents on the said representations, the petitioner no. 2 personally met the respondents. The respondents, it is alleged, expressed their unwillingness to appoint petitioner no. 2. Instead, they advised her to wait till her son attained majority. On 09.08.2006, the petitioner no. 2 again sent a representation (annexure no. 5 to the writ petition) by registered post seeking compassionate appointment for her son, the petitioner no. 1, and then finally, the petitioner no. 1 is alleged to have made a representation on 14.09.2006 (annexure no. 6 to the writ petition) seeking compassionate appointment for himself. It is on the strength of the categorical averment made in the writ petition, that the representations preferred by the petitioners have not been disposed of, that the petitioners have approached this Court by means of the present writ petition, seeking a direction to the respondents to dispose of the representations contained in annexure nos. 2, 5 and 6 to the writ petition.

4. The respondents have denied all the material averments made in the writ petition. In their counter affidavit, the respondents have categorically stated that in response to the letter dated 19.03.1991 of the petitioner no. 2, the Regional Manager, Azamgarh by his letter dated 02.11.1993 directed the petitioner no. 2 to appear in his office along with the necessary documents, so that her case for compassionate appointment could be considered. Thereafter, reminders were sent to the petitioner no. 2 on 11.03.1994 and 05.11.1996 but the petitioner no. 2 neither appeared before the respondents nor completed the necessary formalities. In the circumstances, it is alleged, the petitioners are not entitled to seek compassionate appointment.

5. In the rejoinder affidavit the petitioners have reiterated the averments made in the writ petition.

6. Sri P.K. Upadhyay, learned counsel for the petitioners has contended that Mahmood Husain had died in harness and despite numerous representations, the petitioners' request for compassionate appointment has not been considered and disposed of. The counsel submits that since the circumstances for the grant of compassionate appointment continue to subsist, the respondents are obliged to consider the case of the petitioner no. 1 for compassionate appointment.

7. Sri Chandra Shekhar Pandey, learned counsel for the respondents, on the other hand, vehemently made the following submissions:-

(a) The petitioners have not only concealed material facts but have made a false averment in the writ petition and then reiterated it in the rejoinder affidavit that the request made by the petitioner no. 2 for compassionate appointment was never considered by the respondents. The writ petition, according to the learned counsel, is liable to be dismissed on this ground alone.

(b) After the death of her husband, compassionate appointment was offered to the petitioner no. 2 but she did not accept the same. As the petitioners have been able to pull on for the last 26 years since the death of Sri Mahmood Hussain, the petitioners cannot be permitted to seek compassionate appointment once the crisis is over.

8. The contention of the learned counsel for the respondents that the petitioner is guilty of concealment of material facts and of making false averments is not without substance.

9. Admittedly, soon after the death of her husband Mahmood Husain, the petitioner no. 2 by her letter dated 19.03.1991 had sought compassionate appointment for herself on the ground that after the death of her husband she was facing acute financial hardship in maintaining herself and her children as she had no other source of livelihood. The letter dated 19.03.1991 is extracted below:-

"सेवा में,

10. In response to the letter dated 19.03.1991 of the petitioner no. 2, the respondent no. 2 sent a letter no. 6308 dated 02.11.1993 requiring the former to complete the necessary formalities in order to enable the latter to give compassionate appointment to her. Thereafter, letter no. 550 dated 11.03.1994 and letter no. 2620 dated 05.11.1996 were sent to the petitioner no. 2. In the letter dated 05.11.1996, which was sent to the petitioner no. 2 in continuation of the earlier letters dated 02.11.1993 and 11.03.1994, it was specifically stated that a last opportunity was being given to her, and in case she did not turn up along with relevant documents it would be presumed that she was not interested in compassionate appointment and accordingly she would not be considered for the same in the future. The letter dated 05.11.1996 (annexure no. CA-1 to the supplementary counter affidavit dated 13.04.2015) is extracted below:-

11. The petitioner no. 2 did not complete the formalities and belatedly, in response to the letter dated 05.11.1996, wrote an undated letter to the respondent no. 2 in which it was stated by her that she could not respond to the letter dated 05.11.1996 as her son was not eligible for Government service on account of his age and qualification. It was stated that as soon as her son became eligible for Government service, she would move an application seeking compassionate appointment for him. The undated letter (annexure no. CA-2 to the supplementary counter affidavit dated 13.04.2015) written by the petitioner no.2 in response to the letter dated 05.11.1996 is extracted below:-

12. On 09.08.2006, after almost 16 years after the death of Mahmood Husain, the petitioner no. 2 sent an application by registered post to the respondent no. 2 praying that her son, the petitioner no. 1 who had attained the age of majority be given compassionate appointment so that she may get some financial help to take care of herself and her daughters. A copy of letter dated 09.08.2006 (annexure no. 5 to the writ petition) is reproduced below:-

13. Almost two years after having written the letter dated 09.08.2006, the present writ petition was filed.

14. In the writ petition the petitioners have specifically and categorically alleged that the respondents did not take any decision on the representations made by the them, whereas, according to the respondents, in response to the representation dated 19.03.1991 of the petitioner no. 2, she was asked to complete necessary formalities but since the petitioner no. 2 did not respond to the directions issued to her, she could not be offered compassionate appointment. In their rejoinder affidavit the petitioners reiterated the averments made in the writ petition on the ground that the respondents had not annexed any document alongwith their counter affidavit in support their contention. The respondents, thereafter, filed a supplementary counter affidavit dated 13.04.2015 annexing therewith the letter no. 2620 dated 05.11.1996 as well as the undated letter of the petitioner no. 2 in response to the said letter no. 2620. The petitioners have not filed any rejoinder affidavit to the supplementary counter affidavit filed on behalf of the respondents. Paragraphs 6, 7, 8 and 10 of the writ petition, paragraph 5 (relevant portion) of the counter affidavit and paragraph 5 (relevant portion) of the rejoinder affidavit are extracted below:-

Paragraphs 6, 7, 8 and 10 of the writ petition

"(6) That the petitioner no. 2 moved an application before the opp. party no. 2 on dated 19.3.91 making the prayer that she should be appointed on the any post as she is the dependent on the deceased Govt. Servant but the opp. party no. 2 took no decision on the same. Copy of the representation dated 19.3.91 is being filed as Annexure No. 2 to the writ petition.

(7) That the petitioner no. 2 moved another application on dated 15.6.94 before the opp. party no. 2 praying that she should be appointed on any post as she is dependent of the deceased Govt. Servant but the opp. party no. 2 took no decision. Copy of the representation dated 15.6.94 is being filed as Annexure No. 3 to the writ petition.

(8) That the petitioner no. 2 moved another representation before the opp. party no. 1 on dated 21.06.94 but the opp. party no. 1 did not take any decision with regard to the appointment of the mother of the petitioner. Copy of representation dated 21.6.94 is being filed as Annexure No. 4 to the writ petition.

(10) That the petitioner no. 2 gave another application to the opp. party no. 2 on dated 9.8.06 and also sent the same application to the opp. party No. 1 through registered post but neither the opp. no. 1 & 2 have taken any decision with regard to the appointment. Copy of the application dated 9.8.06 is being filed as Annexure No. 5 to the writ petition."

Paragraph 5 (relevant portion) of the counter affidavit

"5. ...It is stated further that after lapse of so many years the petitioner/dependents of the deceased cannot claim any benefit under the above Rules as his claim is barred by time. However, the office of the respondent no. 2 send a registered letter on 02.11.1993, 11.03.1994 and thereafter reminder was also issued on 05.11.1996 calling upon the petitioner No. 2 that she should complete all the requisite formalities and approached to the office of Regional Manager, but neither she approached the office of the Regional Manager nor sent any formalities, in order to get the job. It is stated further that even the petitioner has not informed anything to the said office for engagement under Dying-in-Rules, 1974 and as such Corporation is not at fault in any manner. In view of above she herself did not want to get job in place of the deceased."

Paragraph 5 (relevant portion) of the rejoinder affidavit

"5. That in reply to the contents of para 5 of counter affidavit it is stated that the father of the petitioner died on 6.11.90 and the first application was given by the mother of the petitioner on 19.3.91 which is within 5 years from the death of petitioner's father but the opposite party no. 2 did not take any action and on this the mother of the petitioner gave one more application to opposite party no. 2 on 15.06.1994 and to the opposite party no. 1 on 21.6.94 but no action was taken. It is further to state that the mother of the petitioner moved another application on 9.8.2006 stating that her son was minor and did not hold the requisite qualification on the death of his father and no he holds all the requisite qualifications so he may be given appointment but no action is taken till today."

15. In exercising power under Article 226 of the Constitution this Court is not just a Court of law, but is also a Court of equity and a person who invokes the writ jurisdiction of this Court is duty-bound to place all the facts before the Court without any reservation. It is well settled that in exercising jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution, this Court always keeps in mind the conduct of the party who is invoking such jurisdiction. If the petitioner does not disclose full facts or suppresses relevant materials or is otherwise guilty of misleading the Court, then the Court may dismiss the action without adjudicating the matter on merits. In Prestige Lights Ltd. v. State Bank of India (2007) 8 SCC 449, the Apex Court has observed that the said rule has been evolved in larger public interest to -

"deter unscrupulous litigants from abusing the process of court by deceiving it. The very basis of the writ jurisdiction rests in disclosure of true, complete and correct facts. If the material facts are not candidly stated or are suppressed or are distorted, the very functioning of the writ courts would become impossible."

16. In K.D. Sharma v. Steel Authority of India Limited, (2008) 12 SCC 481, the Apex Court reiterated that the petitioners approaching this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution must disclose all the material facts without any qualification. It was held as under:-

"38. As per settled law, the party who invokes the extraordinary jurisdiction of this Court under Article 32 or of a High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution is supposed to be truthful, frank and open. He must disclose all material facts without any reservation even if they are against him. He cannot be allowed to play "hide and seek" or to "pick and choose" the facts he likes to disclose and to suppress (keep back) or not to disclose (conceal) other facts. The very basis of the writ jurisdiction rests in disclosure of true and complete (correct) facts. If material facts are suppressed or distorted, the very functioning of writ courts and exercise would become impossible. The petitioner must disclose all the facts having a bearing on the relief sought without any qualification. This is because "the court knows law but not facts".

39. If the primary object as highlighted in Kensington Income Tax Commrs. [(1917) 1 KB 486 : 86 LJKB 257 : 116 LT 136 (CA)] is kept in mind, an applicant who does not come with candid facts and "clean breast" cannot hold a writ of the court with "soiled hands". Suppression or concealment of material facts is not an advocacy. It is a jugglery, manipulation, manoeuvring or misrepresentation, which has no place in equitable and prerogative jurisdiction. If the applicant does not disclose all the material facts fairly and truly but states them in a distorted manner and misleads the court, the court has inherent power in order to protect itself and to prevent an abuse of its process to discharge the rule nisi and refuse to proceed further with the examination of the case on merits. If the court does not reject the petition on that ground, the court would be failing in its duty. In fact, such an applicant requires to be dealt with for contempt of court for abusing the process of the court."

17. In the case at hand, the essence of the dispute is the averment in the writ petition that the representation made by the petitioner no. 2 on 19.03.1991 seeking compassionate appointment in place of her deceased husband was not considered and disposed of by the respondents. The respondents did not stop there. They went on to reiterate the averments made in the writ petition in their rejoinder affidavit. In the writ petition there is no mention of the letters dated 02.11.1993, 11.03.1994 and 05.11.1996, whereby the petitioner no. 2 was asked by the respondent no. 2 to complete the necessary formalities in order to enable the respondents to consider her case for grant of compassionate appointment. A perusal of the letter dated 09.08.2006 (annexure 5 to the writ petition) would show that the said letter has been written by the petitioner no. 2 in continuation of the undated letter sent by her to the respondent no. 2 which in turn was written by her in response to the letter no. 2620 dated 05.11.1996 of the respondent no.2. The aforesaid undated letter sent by petitioner no. 2 has already been extracted above. Thus, the petitioners have not only concealed the letters dated 02.11.1993, 11.03.1994 and 05.11.1996, but they have also made a false averment in the writ petition that the case of the petitioner no. 2 for compassionate appointment was never considered by the respondents.

18. From the narration of the facts above, it is apparent that the petitioners have deliberately and intentionally concealed the material facts and have tried to mislead the Court. The writ petition is liable to be dismissed on this ground alone.

19. Even on merit, the writ petition is liable to be dismissed. The object of providing employment to the dependent of a Government servant dying in harness in preference to anybody else is to enable the penurious family of the deceased employee to tide over the sudden financial crisis and not to provide employment. The mere death of an employee does not entitle his family to compassionate appointment. By a series of judgments of the Apex Court, it is settled that compassionate appointment is not a vested right which can be exercised at any time in future. It is not a mode of employment and cannot be claimed and offered after a long lapse of time and after the crisis is over.

20. In Umesh Kumar Nagpal v. State of Haryana & Ors., (1994) 4 SCC 138, the Apex Court has held as under:-

"2. ...The whole object of granting compassionate employment is thus to enable the family to tide over the sudden crisis. The object is not to give a member of such family a post much less a post for post held by the deceased. What is further, mere death of an employee in harness does not entitle his family to such source of livelihood. The Government or the public authority concerned has to examine the financial condition of the family of the deceased, and it is only if it is satisfied, that but for the provision of employment, the family will not be able to meet the crisis that a job is to be offered to the eligible member of the family. The posts in Classes III and IV are the lowest posts in non-manual and manual categories and hence they alone can be offered on compassionate grounds, the object being to relieve the family, of the financial destitution and to help it get over the emergency.

6. For these very reasons, the compassionate employment cannot be granted after a lapse of a reasonable period which must be specified in the rules. The consideration for such employment is not a vested right which can be exercised at any time in future. The object being to enable the family to get over the financial crisis which it faces at the time of the death of the sole breadwinner, the compassionate employment cannot be claimed and offered whatever the lapse of time and after the crisis is over."

21. The principle laid down in the case of Umesh Kumar Nagpal (supra) has been reiterated by the Apex Court time and again. (see Jagdish Prasad v. State of Bihar & Anr., (1996) 1 SCC 301: Managing Director, MMTC Ltd., New Delhi v. Pramoda Dei Alias Nayak, (1997) 11 SCC 390: State of U.P. v. Paras Nath, (1998) 2 SCC 412: S. Mohan v. Govt. of T.N. & Anr., (1998) 9 SCC 485: Sanjay Kumar v. State of Bihar & Ors., (2000) 7 SCC 192:

22. In Union of India & Ors. v. Bhagwan Singh, (1995) 6 SCC 476, where the widow and two major sons did not apply for compassionate appointment immediately after the death of the employee and an application for compassionate appointment was moved after 20 years by the minor son of the deceased, the Apex Court in paragraph 8 of the report held that:

"It is evident, that the facts in this case point out, that the plea for compassionate employment is not to enable the family to tide over the sudden crisis or distress which resulted as early as September 1972. At the time Ram Singh died on 12.9.1972 there were two major sons and the mother of the children who were apparently capable of meeting the needs in the family and so they did not apply for any job on compassionate grounds. For nearly 20 years, the family has pulled on, apparently without any difficulty. In this background, we are of the view that the Central Administrative Tribunal acted illegally and wholly without jurisdiction in directing the Authorities to consider the case of the respondent for appointment on compassionate grounds and to provide him with an appointment, if he is found suitable."

23. In State of J&K & Ors. v. Sajad Ahmed Mir, (2006) 5 SCC 766 the Apex Court held that:

"11. ..... Once it is proved that in spite of death of the breadwinner, the family survived and substantial period is over, there is no necessity to say "goodbye" to the normal rule of appointment and to show favour to one at the cost of the interests of several others ignoring the mandate of Article 14 of the Constitution."

24. In Eastern Coalfield Limited v. Anil Badyakar & Ors., (2009) 13 SCC 112, immediately after the death of the employee in the year 1981, initially his widow sought compassionate appointment.

Subsequently on 07.03.1983 the elder daughter staked her claim. Ultimately in pursuance of an understanding between the family second daughter's husband was nominated for seeking appointment and by an order dated 10.05.1993 he was given compassionate appointment on provisional basis but the competent authority by its order dated 23.09.1993 cancelled it on the ground that the appointment could not be given after 12 years after the death of an employee. Upholding the order dated 23.09.1993, the Apex Court held as under:-

"20. The principles indicated above would give a clear indication that the compassionate appointment is not a vested right which can be exercised at any time in future. The compassionate employment cannot be claimed and offered after a lapse of time and after the crisis is over."

25. After the death of Sri Mahmood Husain, the petitioner no. 2, moved an application seeking compassionate appointment on the ground that she and her children were facing extreme financial difficulties as she had no other source of livelihood and on the request made by petitioner no. 2 she was required to complete certain formalities in order to enable the respondents to give compassionate appointment to her but the petitioner no. 2, instead of doing the needful, admittedly wrote to the respondents that her son was a minor and as soon as he became major and acquired the requisite qualification for Government service she would move an application for compassionate appointment. After more than 17 years and 7 months, the petitioner no. 2 wrote to the respondents seeking compassionate appointment for her son. As already mentioned above, compassionate appointment is neither a source of employment nor there could be reservation of a vacancy till such time as the petitioner became a major after a number of years.

26. Compassionate appointment was offered to the petitioner no. 2 but she did not accept the same. It is thus apparent that the petitioners had some alternative source of livelihood and they have been able to pull on without any difficulty for almost 26 years since the death of Sri Mahmood Hussain. Once the crisis is over, the petitioners cannot be offered compassionate appointment.

27. In the case on hand, the petitioners have not approached this Court with clean hands. They have not only concealed material facts but have deliberately and intentionally made a false averment. This is highly improper. The writ petition is liable to be dismissed on this ground alone. This Court has, however, considered the merits of the case and even on merits, the petitioners have no case.

28. For the foregoing reasons, the writ petition deserves to be dismissed and is accordingly dismissed.

29. This Court was inclined to saddle the petitioners with exemplary cost but, keeping in view the fact that the claim of the petitioners was for compassionate appointment, this Court has refrained itself from doing so.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

THE HON'BLE DEVENDRA KUMAR UPADHYAYA, J.

Service Single No.- 20681 Of 2016

Akhand Pratap Singh ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioner:
Shiv Pal Singh

Counsel for Respondents:
C.S.C.

In the present writ petition the petitioner, who has successfully competed in the Lekhpal (Revenue) Examination 2015 and is awaiting issuance of appointment order/letter, has filed this writ petition challenging the order dated 17.08.2016, passed by the District Magistrate, Amethi whereby the representation made by the petitioner for verification of his character has been rejected. The said order dated 17.08.2016 has been passed by the District Magistrate in purported compliance of an order dated 01.08.2016, passed by this Court while disposing of the earlier writ petition filed by the petitioner, namely, Writ Petition No.17349 (S/S) of 2016. For being appointed as a government servant, verification of the character and antecedents of an applicant is required to be done so as to judge his suitability to serve as a government servant. Having been selected when the petitioner was not being issued appointment order/letter, though others were already issued appointment orders, he filed the aforesaid Writ Petition No.17349 (S/S) of 2016. The petitioner had earlier approached the District Magistrate, Amethi by moving an application on 01.07.2016 for issuing the appointment letter and giving him posting. An endorsement on the said application dated 01.07.2016 was made that as per the report submitted by the Superintendent of Police, Amethi, there is a case registered against the petitioner at Police Station-Kotwali, District-Amethi, under Sections 323, 308, 504 and 506 I.P.C.

In the instant case, the Superintendent of Police has reported that a criminal case against the petitioner is registered under Sections 323, 308, 504 and 506 I.P.C. at Police Station Kotwali, District Amethi. The said information was sent by the Superintendent of Police to the District Magistrate by letter dated 01.07.2016. On receipt of the said report, it was incumbent upon the District Magistrate to have sent for the petitioner and give him an opportunity of hearing and it is only thereafter that the District Magistrate would have formed his opinion. After forming his opinion, all the necessary papers i.e. the report of the Superintendent of Police, statement of the petitioner and District Magistrate's findings should have been sent to the appointing authority as is the procedure prescribed in the Government Order dated 28.04.1958.

After a close scrutiny of the provisions of the Government Order dated 28.04.1958 clearly indicate that in case where report submitted by the Superintendent of Police is unfavourable, the District Magistrate should require the candidate concerned to make his statement before him by providing an opportunity of hearing. The record produced by the learned Standing Counsel does not disclose that the aforesaid procedure as prescribed in the Government Order dated 28.04.1958 has been followed in the instant case.

The present case is not a case which can be categorized amongst the cases where suppression of any information has occurred at the instance of the petitioner while making the application for selection to the post in question. The application form did not require the petitioner to disclose any such information. At any point of time, neither the appointing authority, nor the Superintendent of Police, nor even the District Magistrate required the petitioner to furnish any information in relation to his antecedents, therefore, non disclosure of the registration of the criminal case against the petitioner would not fall in the category of cases where suppression of fact has occurred. It is also noticeable further that even in case of conviction, the District Magistrate is required to weigh all relevant factors while applying his mind for forming his opinion to verify the suitability of a candidate for employment as a government servant.

Resultantly, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned order dated 17.08.2016 passed by the District Magistrate, Amethi is hereby quashed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Devendra Kumar Upadhyaya, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents.

2. The petitioner, who has successfully competed in the Lekhpal (Revenue) Examination 2015 and is awaiting issuance of appointment order/letter, has filed this writ petition challenging the order dated 17.08.2016, passed by the District Magistrate, Amethi whereby the representation made by the petitioner for verification of his character has been rejected. The said order dated 17.08.2016 has been passed by the District Magistrate in purported compliance of an order dated 01.08.2016, passed by this Court while disposing of the earlier writ petition filed by the petitioner, namely, Writ Petition No.17349 (S/S) of 2016.

3. For being appointed as a government servant, verification of the character and antecedents of an applicant is required to be done so as to judge his suitability to serve as a government servant. Having been selected when the petitioner was not being issued appointment order/letter, though others were already issued appointment orders, he filed the aforesaid Writ Petition No.17349 (S/S) of 2016. The petitioner had earlier approached the District Magistrate, Amethi by moving an application on 01.07.2016 for issuing the appointment letter and giving him posting. An endorsement on the said application dated 01.07.2016 was made that as per the report submitted by the Superintendent of Police, Amethi, there is a case registered against the petitioner at Police Station-Kotwali, District-Amethi, under Sections 323, 308, 504 and 506 I.P.C. In the aforesaid view, the petitioner was not offered appointment letter. When he approached this Court by filing Writ Petition No.17349 (S/S) of 2016, the Court considered the matter and required the District Magistrate to consider verification of his antecedents and character in the light of the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Avtar Singh vs. Union of India ans others, decided on 21.07.2016 [Special Leave Petition (C) No.20525/2011]. The District Magistrate has passed the impugned order while noticing the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Avtar Singh (supra), however, he has rejected the representation made by the petitioner seeking verification of his character and antecedents stating therein that police verification of the character of the selected candidates was got done and in the said process the Superintendent of Police, Amethi had reported in his report dated 09.06.2016 that the petitioner is involved in Case Crime No.414-A/2010, under Sections 323, 308, 504 & 506 I.P.C. The District Magistrate while passing the impugned order has further observed that the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Avtar Singh (supra) has observed that any applicant seeking appointment in government service is under obligation to submit complete and true information regarding any criminal case either pending or registered against him. The District Magistrate has observed in the impugned order that the fact relating to pendency/registration of the criminal case against the petitioner came into light only once the police verification of his character was being conducted and further that the petitioner did not intimate the appointing authority about the pendency/registration of the criminal case.

4. The reason indicated in the impugned order by the District Magistrate is that the concerned Superintendent of Police has not made any recommendation for verifying the character of the petitioner and further that the petitioner himself had concealed the correct information, though at the time of making application for selection no such information was sought. However, the District Magistrate has further observed that after the final selection and before the police verification of the character, in the application submitted by the petitioner for issuing appointment order, the petitioner should have mentioned the correct facts relating to the pendency/registration of the criminal case against him.

5. From a perusal of the impugned order dated 17.08.2016 one aspect of the matter is indisputedly clear, which is the fact that at the time of making of the application for selection, information regarding pendency/registration/involvement of a candidate in a criminal case was not required to be submitted. The application form required to be filled in by the candidates for selection to the post in question has been annexed by the petitioner as annexure no.5 to the writ petition which does not contain any such column requiring the candidate to furnish information relating to pendency/registration/involvement of the candidate concerned in any criminal case. Thus, the reason indicated by the District Magistrate in the impugned order that the petitioner had concealed information regarding his involvement in the criminal case is no longer relevant.

6. A detail procedure for verification of the character and antecedents of the government servants before their first appointment can be found in a government order issued on 28.04.1958 by the appointment department of the State Government addressed to all Heads of the departments, Commissioners of Divisions and District Magistrates. The said Government Order quotes the rule regarding character of a candidate for appointment as follows:-

"The character of a candidate for direct appointment must be such as to render him suitable in all respects of employment in the service or post to which he is to be appointed. It would be the duty of the appointing authority to satisfy itself on this point."

7. Thus, primarily it is the duty of the appointing authority to record its satisfaction as to the character of a candidate for direct recruitment which renders him suitable for employment in the service or on the post to which the candidate is to be appointed.

8. As per the aforesaid Government Order dated 28.04.1958 every direct recruit is required to produce a certificate of conduct and character from the head of the educational institution where he last studied and certificates of character from two persons. The said Government Order further provides that in case of any doubt, the appointing authority may either ask for further references, or he may refer the case to the District Magistrate concerned. The District Magistrate, on such a reference, may then make such further enquiries as he considers necessary. The aforesaid Government Order further provides that in case of direct recruits, the appointing authority shall refer all cases to the Deputy Inspector General of Police, Intelligence and the District Magistrate of the home district and of the district(s) where the candidate has resided for more than a year within five years of the date of the inquiry. The District Magistrate is thereafter required to get the reports in respect of the candidates from the Superintendent of Police, who in turn is required to consult the District Police Records and records of the Local Intelligence Unit. On receipt of the report from the District Police or Local Intelligence Unit, the District Magistrate shall then report his views to the appointing authority. The District Magistrate is required to provide an opportunity of hearing to the candidate in case the District Police or the Local Intelligence Unit reports adversely against the candidate, and it is only thereafter that the District Magistrate will form his opinion and send his report. Thus, it is the opinion to be formed by the District Magistrate on the basis of the report to be submitted by the Superintendent of Police and also on the basis of candidate's statement, which is relevant and which will be sent to the appointing authority. The District Magistrate is, hence, under legal obligation under the provisions of the aforesaid Government Order dated 28.04.1958 to form his own opinion on the basis of the report submitted to him by the Superintendent of Police and also taking into account all the relevant factors including the statement to be made before him by the candidate concerned.

9. Another relevant extract from the Government Order dated 28.04.1958 is quoted below:

"In the case of direct recruits to the State Services under the Uttar Pradesh Government besides requiring the candidates to submit the certificates mentioned in paragraph 3(a) above the appointing authority shall refer all cases simultaneously to the Deputy Inspector General of Police, Intelligence and the District Magistrate [of the home district and of the district(s) where the candidate has resided for more than a year within five years of the date of the inquiry] giving full particulars about the candidate. The District Magistrate shall get the reports in respect of the candidates from the Superintendent of Police who will consult District Police Records and records of the Local Intelligence Unit. The District Police or the District Intelligence Unit shall not make any enquiries on the spot, but shall report from their records whether there is anything against the candidate, but if in any specific case the District Magistrate, at the instance of the appointing authority asks for an enquiry on the spot, the Local Police or the Local Intelligence Units will do so and report the result to him. The District Magistrate shall then report his own views to the appointing authority. Where the District Police or the Local Intelligence Units report adversely about a candidate, the District Magistrate may give the candidate a hearing before sending his report."

10. While forming an opinion about the character and antecedents of a candidate what is to be kept in mind by the District Magistrate is as to whether the candidate's character is such that renders him suitable for employment in the service or post to which he is seeking appointment. Merely on account of the pendency/involvement/registration of a criminal case against the candidate will not be a ground not to verify the character and antecedents of the candidate by the District Magistrate. In this regard, the Note (a) as finds mentioned in the Government Order dated 28.04.1958 is relevant to be noticed, according to which, conviction of a candidate need not of itself involve the refusal of a certificate of good character. The circumstances of the conviction should be taken into account and if they involve no moral turpitude or association with crimes of violence or with a movement which has as its object to overthrow by violent means of Government of India as by law established, in free India the mere conviction need not be regarded as disqualification. Relevant note occurring in the said Government Order dated 28.04.1958 is quoted below:-

"Notes.-(a) A conviction need not of itself involve the refusal of a certificate of good character. The circumstances of the conviction should be taken into account and if they involve no moral turpitude or association with crimes of violence or with a movement which has as its object to overthrow by violent means of Government as by law now established in free India the mere conviction need not be regarded as disqualification. (Conviction of a person during his childhood should not necessarily operate as a bar to his entering Government service. The entire circumstances in which his conviction was recorded as well as the circumstances in which he is now placed should be taken into consideration. If he has completely reformed himself on attaining the age of understanding and discretion, mere conviction in childhood should not operate as a bar to his entering Government service)."

11. Thus, unless and until a criminal case found against the candidates, which has even resulted in conviction, involves moral turpitude or association of the candidate with crimes of violence or association of the candidate with a movement having an object to overthrow the Government established by law by violent means, any involvement in the criminal case need not be necessarily recorded as disqualification. In fact, the entire circumstances in which a candidate's involvement in a criminal case is found has to be weighed by the District Magistrate while reporting the matter to the appointing authority about the character verification of the candidate and about giving report regarding antecedents of the candidate concerned who is seeking employment with the Government against any post.

12. In the instant case, the Superintendent of Police has reported that a criminal case against the petitioner is registered under Sections 323, 308, 504 and 506 I.P.C. at Police Station Kotwali, District Amethi. The said information was sent by the Superintendent of Police to the District Magistrate by letter dated 01.07.2016. On receipt of the said report, it was incumbent upon the District Magistrate to have sent for the petitioner and give him an opportunity of hearing and it is only thereafter that the District Magistrate would have formed his opinion. After forming his opinion, all the necessary papers i.e. the report of the Superintendent of Police, statement of the petitioner and District Magistrate's findings should have been sent to the appointing authority as is the procedure prescribed in the Government Order dated 28.04.1958.

13. Learned Standing Counsel has produced the original record which nowhere reveals that any such procedure as has been laid down in the Government Order dated 28.04.1958 in respect of the verification of character and antecedents has been followed.

14. A close scrutiny of the provisions of the Government Order dated 28.04.1958 clearly indicate that in case where report submitted by the Superintendent of Police is unfavourable, the District Magistrate should require the candidate concerned to make his statement before him by providing an opportunity of hearing.

15. As observed above, the record produced by the learned Standing Counsel does not disclose that the aforesaid procedure as prescribed in the Government Order dated 28.04.1958 has been followed in the instant case.

16. Further, another aspect of the matter needs consideration by this Court in this case and that is while disposing of the earlier writ petition No.17349 (S/S) of 2016, this Court by means of the order dated 01.08.2016 had required the District Magistrate to look into the entire matter relating to character verification of the petitioner in the light of the observations made by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the judgment of Avtar Singh (supra). Hon'ble Supreme Court in the said judgment has summarized its conclusions and has clearly held that for determining suppression of correct facts or furnishing of false information, only such information which is required to be specifically mentioned has to be disclosed. Hon'ble Supreme Court has further observed that if information is not asked for but is relevant and comes to the notice of the employer, the same has to be considered in an objective manner while addressing the question of fitness.

17. The instant case is not a case which can be categorized amongst the cases where suppression of any information has occurred at the instance of the petitioner while making the application for selection to the post in question. The application form did not require the petitioner to disclose any such information. At any point of time, neither the appointing authority, nor the Superintendent of Police, nor even the District Magistrate required the petitioner to furnish any information in relation to his antecedents, therefore, non disclosure of the registration of the criminal case against the petitioner would not fall in the category of cases where suppression of fact has occurred. It is also noticeable further that even in case of conviction, the District Magistrate is required to weigh all relevant factors while applying his mind for forming his opinion to verify the suitability of a candidate for employment as a government servant. The First Information Report lodged against the petitioner is on record as annexure no.9 to the writ petition. The incident as disclosed in the First Information Report is said to have occurred at 4:00 p.m. in the evening of 12.05.2010. The First Information Report appears to have been lodged by one Smt. Pushpa Giri, who is the resident of the same village where the petitioner resides. The petitioner has been described as co-accused in the First Information Report along with three others and as per the disclosure made in the First Information Report at around 4:00 O'clock on 12.05.2010 when the complainant Smt. Pushpa Giri was cleaning the temple, all the accused persons including the petitioner, who are the residents of the same village, entered into some altercation with the complainant and thereafter assaulted her with lathi and danda and when her husband came to her rescue, the accused persons including the petitioner assaulted her husband, who sustained injuries in his head. On the basis of the First Information Report, a case under Sections 323, 308, 504 and 506 I.P.C. has been registered against the petitioner.

18. Looking into the nature of allegations made in the First Information Report and also looking into the nature of incident which is said to have occurred at the temple of the same village where the petitioner was residing and also taking into account the general nature of allegations against all the accused persons, it was incumbent upon the District Magistrate to have analyzed the entire material before forming his opinion about the suitability of the petitioner for the job in question. The District Magistrate on the other hand, while passing the impugned order has not taken into account the circumstances in which the incident is said to have occurred, neither has he analyzed as to whether any particular role was assigned to the petitioner in the said incident of Marpeet. The District Magistrate has also not provided an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner as is mandated by the procedure prescribed in the Government Order dated 28.04.1958, neither has he recorded the statement of the petitioner and has simply declined to verify the character and antecedents of the petitioner on the basis of the report submitted by the Superintendent of Police.

19. The original record from the office of District Magistrate, Amethi, which has been produced by the learned Standing Counsel, does not even disclose that the First Information Report on the basis of which criminal case against the petitioner has been registered is available on the said record. The absence of First Information Report of the incident and any other material relating to incident on the basis of which the case against the petitioner has been registered, on record of he District Magistrate, makes it clear that all relevant factors in respect of the matter at hand have not been considered by the District Magistrate while passing the impugned order refusing to verify the character of the petitioner which would render him unsuitable for being employed on the post in question.

20. As already observed above, the aforesaid consideration by the District Magistrate is to be done on the basis of all relevant materials including the report of the Superintendent to of Police, statement of the candidate concerned and any other material, namely, the First Information Report, the circumstances in which the incident is said to have occurred and other factors which the District Magistrate finds appropriate to consider for the purposes of forming his opinion as to the suitability of the candidate concerned for verifying his character and antecedents which would make him suitable for being appointed on the post in question. In absence of any such exercise, as contemplated in the Government Order dated 28.04.1958, having been conducted by the District Magistrate before passing the impugned order, in my considered opinion, the order under challenge in this petition dated 17.08.2016 cannot be permitted to be sustained.

21. Resultantly, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned order dated 17.08.2016 passed by the District Magistrate, Amethi is hereby quashed. The matter is remitted to him for decision afresh in accordance with law, in the light of the observations made by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Avtar Singh (supra) and also taking into account the observations made herein above in the body of this judgment. The said consideration shall be made by the District Magistrate bearing the provisions of the Government Order dated 28.04.1958 in mind, expeditiously, say within a period of eight weeks from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

22. To facilitate the decision to be taken by the District Magistrate under this judgment, the petitioner shall furnish a fresh representation in support of his case taking therein all the pleas which may be available to him and annexing therewith all the documents on which he intends to rely, including the Government Order dated 28.04.1958. The decision thereon shall be taken by the District Magistrate concerned following the observations made herein above by passing a reasoned and speaking order.

23. There will be no order as to costs.

THE HON'BLE PRADEEP KUMAR SINGH BAGHEL, J.

Service Single No.- 3691 Of 2012

Rajesh Kumar Gupta ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioner:
Arvind Kumar Vishwakarma, Amar Pal Singh

Counsel for Respondents:
C.S.C.

The petitioner is a Constable in Civil Police. He is aggrieved by an order passed by the third respondent dated 16th February, 2012, whereby his claim for promotion on the post of Sub- Inspector, Civil Police, has been turned down on the ground that he is differently abled person and for the said reason, he is not qualified to hold the said post. The order further says that there is no provision for giving relaxation in the physical efficiency test to the differently abled persons.

Court observed that the petitioner appeared in the written test for promotion on the post of Sub-Inspector and he qualified the said test. He is unable to participate in the physical efficiency test on the ground that while he was on duty, he has suffered physical disability, therefore, he cannot participate in such test due to the said disability. The disability certificate, which the petitioner has brought on the record, has not been disputed by the State. From a perusal of the impugned order it is evident that the third respondent has not taken into consideration the provisions of the Act, 1995. The object of the said Act provides that to give effect to the Proclamation on the Full Participation and Equality of the People with Disabilities in the Asian and Pacific Region, the said Act has been enacted by the Parliament. The provisions of the Act, 1995 have been considered recently by the Supreme Court in the case of Jeeja Ghosh and another v. Union of India and others, (2016) 7 SCC 761.

The writ petition is disposed of by issuing a direction upon the first respondent to consider the application of the petitioner dated 16th December, 2015 and pass the appropriate order in accordance with law expeditiously, preferably within three months from the date of communication of this order.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Singh Baghel, J.)

1. The petitioner is a Constable in Civil Police. He is aggrieved by an order passed by the third respondent dated 16th February, 2012, whereby his claim for promotion on the post of Sub-Inspector, Civil Police, has been turned down on the ground that he is differently abled person and for the said reason, he is not qualified to hold the said post. The order further says that there is no provision for giving relaxation in the physical efficiency test to the differently abled persons.

2. A brief reference to the factual aspects would suffice. The petitioner was initially appointed as a Constable in Civil Police. He claims his promotion on the post of Sub-Inspector. The service conditions of the post of Sub-Inspector including recruitment and promotion etc. are regulated by the Uttar Pradesh Sub-Inspector and Inspector (Civil Police) Service Rules, 2008 (for short, the "Rules, 2008"). The petitioner for promotion to the post of Sub-Inspector appeared in the written test, which he qualified. After the said test, he was asked to participate in the physical efficiency test. The petitioner moved an application for relaxation in the physical efficiency test on the ground that he is differently abled person and has relied on a certificate issued on 16th September, 2006 by the appropriate authority. When no action was taken on the said application, the petitioner preferred a writ petition, being Writ Petition No. 4637 (S/S) of 2011 (Rajesh Kumar Gupta v. State of U.P. and others). The said writ petition was disposed of by this Court on 19th January, 2012 by issuing a direction upon the appropriate authority to consider the grievance of the petitioner.

3. In compliance thereof, the impugned order dated 16th February, 2012 has been passed rejecting the claim of the petitioner on the ground mentioned herein-above.

4. I have heard Sri A.P. Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner, and learned Standing Counsel.

5. It is contended on behalf of the petitioner that the petitioner has sustained injury during the course of duty while complying with an order passed by the superior authority, therefore, he is entitled for the benefit provided under the provisions of the Persons with Disabilities (Equal Opportunities, Protection of Rights and Full Participation) Act, 1995 (for short, the "Act, 1995"). It is urged by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the provisions of the said Act, 1995 have not been taken into consideration while passing the order by the third respondent. He lastly urged that under the Rules, 2008 the State Government has power to grant relaxation in case any provision of the said Rules causes hardship to an employee. It is stated that the petitioner has made an application to the State Government on 16th December, 2015 for giving relaxation in respect of the physical efficiency test and extending the benefit provided in the Act, 1995, which is a Central Act. The said application of the petitioner is still pending.

6. Learned Standing Counsel submits that Rule 6 of the Rules, 2008 clearly provides that a differently abled person would not be entitled for any promotion. No other submission was made.

7. In rejoinder, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that Rule 6 of the Rules, 2008 is not applicable in the case of promotion as it would be applicable only in respect of the direct recruitment.

8. I have considered the rival submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

9. It is a common ground that the petitioner appeared in the written test for promotion on the post of Sub-Inspector and he qualified the said test. He is unable to participate in the physical efficiency test on the ground that while he was on duty, he has suffered physical disability, therefore, he cannot participate in such test due to the said disability.

10. The disability certificate, which the petitioner has brought on the record, has not been disputed by the State. From a perusal of the impugned order it is evident that the third respondent has not taken into consideration the provisions of the Act, 1995. The object of the said Act provides that to give effect to the Proclamation on the Full Participation and Equality of the People with Disabilities in the Asian and Pacific Region, the said Act has been enacted by the Parliament. The provisions of the Act, 1995 have been considered recently by the Supreme Court in the case of Jeeja Ghosh and another v. Union of India and others, (2016) 7 SCC 761. The relevant portion of the judgment, being paragraphs-41 & 42, is extracted below:

"41. Earlier the traditional approaches to disability have depicted it as health and welfare issue, to be addressed through care provided to persons with disabilities, from a charitable point of view. The disabled persons are viewed as abnormal, deserving of pity and care, and not as individuals who are entitled to enjoy the same opportunities to live a full and satisfying life as other members of society. This resulted in marginalising the disabled persons and their exclusion both from the mainstream of the society and enjoyment of their fundamental rights and freedoms. Disability tends to be couched within a medical and welfare framework, identifying people with disabilities as ill, different from their non-disabled peers, and in need of care. Because the emphasis is on the medical needs of people with disabilities, there is a corresponding neglect of their wider social needs, which has resulted in severe isolation for people with disabilities and their families.

42. However, the nations have come a long way from that stage. Real awareness has dawned on the society at large that the problems of differently-abled are to be viewed from human rights perspective. This thinking is reflected in two major declarations on the disability adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on 20-12-1971 and thereafter in the year 1975. The position was reiterated in the Beijing Conclave by the Government of Asian and Pacific Countries that was held from 1-12-1992 to 5-12-1992 and in order to convert the resolutions adopted therein into reality, the Indian Parliament also passed the enactment i.e. the 1995 Act."

11. There is no doubt that the Act, 1995, which is a Central Act, is applicable to all the disabilities which have been defined under Section 2(i) thereof. Sub-section (2) of Section 47 of the Act, 1995 provides that no promotion shall be denied to a person merely on the ground of his disability.

12. In the case of Pradep Kumar Maity v. Chinmoy Kumar Bhunia and others, (2013) 11 SCC 122, the Supreme Court has held that the Act, 1995 will have overriding effect vis-a-vis all the contrary law of the State. The relevant portion of the judgment reads as under:

"13. Since the legal regime applicable to amelioration of the persons suffering from disabilities has been argued before us, we need to dwell upon it briefly. Briefly, because this aspect of the law is so well entrenched in our jurisprudence that only a succinct reiteration is justified. The Constitution of India is the grund norm, demanding meticulous allegiance from all other laws. Statutes, Central/parliamentary or of State Legislatures, must mandatorily comply with our Constitution. We must hasten to emphasise that statutes must also conform with the discipline of the three lists contained in the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution. Most statutes postulate the promulgation of Rules, through delegated legislation, which, if they are not ultra vires the statute inasmuch as they are operational within the parameters of their parent pandects, require adherence. Executive orders or administrative instructions cease to have legal efficacy the moment they are contrary to their superiors i.e. the Constitution, a statute, or any delegated legislation in the form of rules or regulations. This is also referred to as "dominion paramountcy" by some courts. There is a plethora of precedents on this proposition, as also on the tiers of subservience, including the adumbration in Saiyad Mohammad Bakar El-Edroos v. Abdulhabib Hasan Arab [(1998) 4 SCC 343] and K.P. Sudhakaran v. State of Kerala [(2006) 5 SCC 386 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 1105]. The Disabilities Act pays obeisance to the Constitution and had it concerned itself with improving the lot of the disabled by also providing for compulsory relaxation of age stipulations for employment having regard to disability, all other contrary forms of law-making by State Legislatures or State Governments would have fallen foul of it, and consequently would have ceased to command legal authority. Thus, the definition of deafness or hearing impairment contained in the extant government orders must immediately measure to the definition contained in the Disabilities Act. But since the Disabilities Act postulates age relaxation only as directory or expectant, the government order will continue to hold the field."

13. It is an admitted case that the application of the petitioner is still pending before the State Government for grant of relaxation. Hence, in my view, without expressing any opinion with regard to the benefit of the Act, 1995 at this stage, it would be appropriate that the State Government may be directed to pass the order on the application of the petitioner to grant him relaxation in terms of Rule 28 of the Rules, 2008.

14. Accordingly, the writ petition is disposed of by issuing a direction upon the first respondent to consider the application of the petitioner dated 16th December, 2015 and pass the appropriate order in accordance with law expeditiously, preferably within three months from the date of communication of this order. The petitioner is granted liberty to file a fresh representation along a certified copy of this order and it will be open to the petitioner to raise the plea therein, which he wants to place before the State Government. It is made clear that the impugned order dated 16th February, 2012 shall abide by the fresh order passed by the State Government. The State Government shall pass the order independently without being influenced by the order passed by the third respondent dated 16th February, 2012.

15. No order as to costs.

THE HON'BLE ABHAI KUMAR, J.

Application U/S 482 No.- 22243 Of 2016

Dr. Kuldeep Kaushik ...Applicant
Versus
State Of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for Applicant:
Sunil Kumar

Counsel for Opposite Parties:
G.A., Vinod Singh

Present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been moved for quashing the impugned order dated 14.7.2016 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Bulandshahar in Misc. Surrender Application No. Nil of 2016 (State Vs. Dr. Kuldeep Kaushik) in connection with Case Crime No. 179 of 2016, under Sections 304, 314 IPC, Police Station – Siyana, District – Bulandshahar. It is further prayed to direct the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court Room No. 2, Bulandshahar to decide the surrender application dated 25.6.2016 afresh on its merit after due examination of the grounds taken by the applicant. It is next prayed that the operation, effect and consequences of the impugned order dated 14.7.2016 as well as the proceeding of taking any coercive action as against the applicant on the instant of Investigating Officer in the present matter may also be stayed during the pendency of the present matter.

There are two basic points that are for consideration before this court. Firstly, whether along-with surrender application a prayer for sending the papers that can be relevant or irrelevant for the purposes of investigation can be submitted, and whether magistrate is duty bound to send these papers to the Investigating Officer, and further can any direction be issued in this regard by the magistrate. The second point that is involved in the matter is regarding the scope of section 167-A of the Code, which is inserted by State Amendment as referred above.

Court observed that the magistrate is all empowered to monitor the investigation and in case it is required then proper direction may also be issued and if in view of the Code certain papers that are being filed by the accused to be sent to the Investigating Officer, that right can very well be given to the accused, although magistrate will refrain from expressing any opinion regarding the papers and further accused can also not claim that papers may be taken into consideration by the Investigating Officer and after taking all those papers, opinion should be found by the Investigating Officer and only then the wanting report be submitted. It is always expected from Investigating Officer to do the investigation in a proper manner and to collect all the evidence that are relevant for the purpose of free, fair and impartial investigation. The matter of investigation is a State-affair, if State is doing any act, he is not doing on behalf of any person, rather act is being done in pursuance to bring the justice to all, and in case any paper throw the light upon the innocence of the accused person, that is certainly ought to be taken into consideration, but rider is that magistrate cannot say that such papers ought to have been taken into consideration in a particular perspective and in that regard Investigating Officer is fully empowered to take its own decision and the paper furnished and critical analysis cannot be demanded by the accused persons as has been demanded in the present case and if Investigating Officer can show the magistrate that on the basis of the relevant evidence that is being collected during the investigation, there is a case made out against the accused, then a report against the accused person can be submitted to the court for taking him into custody.

In the present case applicant never tried to submit the papers before the Investigating Officer. There is nothing on record on which it can be accepted that papers were being tried to be given to the Investigating Officer either personally by the accused or through anybody and Investigating Officer has refused to accept these papers, and if in the circumstances learned Magistrate passed the impugned order that applicant is not cooperating with the investigation then this observation cannot be said to be perverse, illegal or arbitrary.

Court is of the view that the order passed by the learned magistrate was justified. In the circumstances it cannot be said that there is any irregularity, illegality or perversity in the order on the ground that applicant never moved to the Investigating Officer alongwith papers that are being asked to be sent alongwith Surrender Application upon which impugned order was passed.

The application lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abhai Kumar, J.)

1. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been moved for quashing the impugned order dated 14.7.2016 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Bulandshahar in Misc. Surrender Application No. Nil of 2016 (State Vs. Dr. Kuldeep Kaushik) in connection with Case Crime No. 179 of 2016, under Sections 304, 314 IPC, Police Station - Siyana, District - Bulandshahar. It is further prayed to direct the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court Room No. 2, Bulandshahar to decide the surrender application dated 25.6.2016 afresh on its merit after due examination of the grounds taken by the applicant. It is next prayed that the operation, effect and consequences of the impugned order dated 14.7.2016 as well as the proceeding of taking any coercive action as against the applicant on the instant of Investigating Officer in the present matter may also be stayed during the pendency of the present matter.

2. Brief facts of the case are as follows.

3. Applicant is a B.A.M.S. Doctor from Chhatrapati Shahuji Maharaj University Kanpur and he is a registered medical practitioner with the Medical Council of India, Uttar Pradesh. Hospital of the applicant is also established as per provisions of law duly licensed and registered hospital as per law with regional Ayuervedic and Unani Officer, Bulandshahar. Deceased died in the hospital when she was under surveillance of competent medical practitioner in a competent hospital, so neither the present case is of medical negligence nor is it a case of commission of any criminal offence at all. In the circumstances, no wrong has been committed by Dr. Anil Kumar Singh, M.B.B.S. M.D.(General Sargon). Smt. Satto, who died was duly informed about the risk of the operation and after signing of the relevant document by the authorised person required treatment was given. Dr. Anil Kumar Singh, who treated the patient Smt. Satto, was a competent doctor and was eligible to provide the treatment to her as well as to do her surgical operation. The deceased died due to medical reasons in spite of proper treatment.

4. The investigation of the present case is still going on. A criminal Misc. Writ petition No. 15592 of 2016, Dr. Kuldeep and two other Versus State of U.P. and others, against the FIR of the present case was filed but the same was dismissed by this court vide order dated 6.7.2016. Applicant has been made an accused in the present case without any apparent evidence against him as such the applicant filed a surrender application on 25.5.2016 before the court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2 Bulandshahar but the same was dismissed by the impugned order dated 14.7.2016 on the ground that interference in the investigation cannot be done and by the surrender application it has been prayed that various papers allongwith surrender application be sent to Investigating Officer and after taking into consideration the papers, report may be called for from the Investigating Officer.

5. It is submitted by the learned counsel of the applicant that the observations made by the court below in the impugned order are perverse in nature and the grounds shown for rejection of the surrender application are also not legally sustainable. Provisions of section 167-A of the Cr.P.C. is made applicable in the State of U.P. Amendment Act No. 18 of 1978.

6. It is further submitted by the learned counsel that magistrate is under obligation to apply his judicial mind regarding the involvement of the accused person in a criminal case whenever he is brought or appears before the court and if allegations made against the accused are illfounded or not proper then remand can be refused and accused will not be sent to jail at all. It is further submitted that the impugned order does suffers from serious illegality, infirmity, incorrectness which is apparent on the face of the record itself.

7. Learned counsel for respondent no. 3 submitted that hospital of the applicant is registered with Regional Ayurvedic and Unani Officer, Bulandshahar, but modern medicines is being practiced there, for which the hospital is not authorised and due to negligence of the Hospital, Doctors and Staffs, Smt. Satto died and applicant is also equally responsible for above crime.

8. There are two basic points that are for consideration before this court. Firstly, whether along-with surrender application a prayer for sending the papers that can be relevant or irrelevant for the purposes of investigation can be submitted, and whether magistrate is duty bound to send these papers to the Investigating Officer, and further can any direction be issued in this regard by the magistrate. The second point that is involved in the matter is regarding the scope of section 167-A of the Code, which is inserted by State Amendment as referred above.

9. The liberty of the person cannot be curtailed without due process of law as has been guaranteed by the Constitution under Article 21. Moreover, if any action is to be taken against any person, enquiry or trial, regarding that should be fair, impartial, without any prejudice, and more importantly, compliance of natural justice should also be there. In a recent judgment of the Supreme Court in Lalita Kumari Vs. State of U.P. and others, (2014) 2 SCC 1, it has been held that the essential requirement for recording the FIR is that there must be information and that information must disclose a cognizable offence. If information falling within the meaning of Sub-Section (1) of Section 154 is laid before an officer in-charge of a police station, he has no option but to enter substance of that information in the prescribed form and register a case on the basis of such information. Section 154(1) Cr.P.C. significantly uses the expression information without qualification of an adjective, such as reasonable or credible, hence registration of an FIR is not preceded by a credible information but information relating to the commission of cognizable offence is sufficient, but the arrest of an accused immediately on the registration of an FIR has been held not to be mandatory. Police Officer can foreclose an FIR before any investigation under section 157 Cr.P.C. If it appears to him that there is no sufficient ground to investigate, the police officer is also empowered to investigate the matter and file a final report under section 173 Cr.P.C. seeking closure.

10. Whenever an FIR is being lodged, it does not mean that investigation is certainly to be taken place and there is no inbuilt safeguards with the Code to prevent a likelihood of misuse. It is further held by the constitution bench in Lalita Kumari that after receipt of information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence is mandatory, yet there may be instances where a preliminary enquiry is required. The observation of the Supreme court court are as follows:

"120.1. The registration of FIR is mandatory under Section 154 of the Code, if the information discloses commission of a cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation.

120.2. If the information received does not disclose a cognizable offence but indicates the necessity for an inquiry, a preliminary inquiry may be conducted only to ascertain whether cognizable offence is disclosed or not.

120.3. If the inquiry discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, the FIR must be registered. In cases where preliminary inquiry ends in closing the complaint, a copy of the entry of such closure must be supplied to the first informant forthwith and not later than one week. It must disclose reasons in brief for closing the complaint and not proceeding further.

120.4. The police officer cannot avoid his duty of registering offence if cognizable offence is disclosed. Action must be taken against erring officers who do not register the FIR if information received by him discloses a cognizable offence.

120.5. The scope of preliminary inquiry is not to verify the veracity or otherwise of the information received but only to ascertain whether the information reveals any cognizable offence.

120.6. As to what type and in which cases preliminary inquiry is to be conducted will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. The category of cases in which preliminary inquiry may be made are as under:

(a) Matrimonial disputes/ family disputes

(b) Commercial offences

(c) Medical negligence cases

(d) Corruption cases

(e) Cases where there is abnormal delay/laches in initiating criminal prosecution, for example, over 3 months' delay in reporting the matter without satisfactorily explaining the reasons for delay.

The aforesaid are only illustrations and not exhaustive of all conditions which may warrant preliminary inquiry.

120.7. While ensuring and protecting the rights of the accused and the complainant, a preliminary inquiry should be made time-bound and in any case it should not exceed 7 days. The fact of such delay and the causes of it must be reflected in the General Diary entry."

11. It is worthwhile to mention here that present case also comes under the category of death by medical negligence and in the circumstances it can be said that this is one of the case where utmost caution was required for launching any criminal proceeding against accused persons who are said to be guilty of committing a cognizable offence. In the context of this matter, applicant is liable to be probed.

12. Learned magistrate while passing the impugned order observed that court cannot interfere in the investigation. The observation of the magistrate can be correct up to certain extent, but what does interfere mean is entirely dependent upon the facts and circumstances of the case. Applicant before the magistrate clearly based its arguments on the basis of law propounded by the Apex Court in the Case of Sakiri Vasu Vs. State of U.P. and others, (2008) 2 SCC 409.

13. By the impugned order it was observed that the facts of that case was different and were not applicable in the matter. But the observation of the trial court can hardly said to be correct. Hon'ble Apex Court in the matter clearly stated that magistrate is having supervisory power of the investigation although cannot get the investigation done, but certainly magistrate can very well supervise the investigation and in case, proper investigation is being not done, then certainly make an interference in that. As already said, free, fair and impartial investigation is the right of the accused person and in case any investigation is not being conducted on the said principles then interference by the magistrate can very well be made. Observation of the Apex Corut in Sakri Basu (Supra) can be summed up in the following paras:

"11. In this connection we would like to state that if a person has a grievance that the police station is not registering his FIR under Section 154 Cr.P.C., then he can approach the Superintendent of Police under Section 154(3) Cr.P.C. by an application in writing. Even if that does not yield any satisfactory result in the sense that either the FIR is still not registered, or that even after registering it no proper investigation is held, it is open to the aggrieved person to file an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. before the learned Magistrate concerned. If such an application under Section 156 (3) is filed before the Magistrate, the Magistrate can direct the FIR to be registered and also can direct a proper investigation to be made, in a case where, according to the aggrieved person, no proper investigation was made. The Magistrate can also under the same provision monitor the investigation to ensure a proper investigation.

13. The same view was taken by this Court in Dilawar Singh vs. State of Delhi JT 2007 (10) SC 585 (vide para 17). We would further clarify that even if an FIR has been registered and even if the police has made the investigation, or is actually making the investigation, which the aggrieved person feels is not proper, such a person can approach the Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., and if the Magistrate is satisfied he can order a proper investigation and take other suitable steps and pass such order orders as he thinks necessary for ensuring a proper investigation. All these powers a Magistrate enjoys under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C.

14. Section 156 (3) states:

Any Magistrate empowered under Section 190 may order such an investigation as abovementioned. The words `as abovementioned obviously refer to Section 156 (1), which contemplates investigation by the officer in charge of the Police Station.

15. Section 156(3) provides for a check by the Magistrate on the police performing its duties under Chapter XII Cr.P.C. In cases where the Magistrate finds that the police has not done its duty of investigating the case at all, or has not done it satisfactorily, he can issue a direction to the police to do the investigation properly, and can monitor the same.

16. The power in the Magistrate to order further investigation under Section 156(3) is an independent power, and does not affect the power of the investigating officer to further investigate the case even after submission of his report vide Section 173(8). Hence the Magistrate can order re-opening of the investigation even after the police submits the final report, vide State of Bihar vs. A.C. Saldanna AIR 1980 SC 326 (para 19).

18. It is well-settled that when a power is given to an authority to do something it includes such incidental or implied powers which would ensure the proper doing of that thing. In other words, when any power is expressly granted by the statute, there is impliedly included in the grant, even without special mention, every power and every control the denial of which would render the grant itself ineffective. Thus where an Act confers jurisdiction it impliedly also grants the power of doing all such acts or employ such means as are essentially necessary to its execution.

21. An express grant of statutory powers carries with it by necessary implication the authority to use all reasonable means to make such grant effective. Thus in ITO, Cannanore vs. M.K. Mohammad Kunhi, AIR 1969 SC 430, this Court held that the income tax appellate tribunal has implied powers to grant stay, although no such power has been expressly granted to it by the Income Tax Act.

24. In view of the abovementioned legal position, we are of the view that although Section 156(3) is verybriefly worded, there is an implied power in the Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. to order registration of a criminal offence and /or to direct the officer in charge of the concerned police station to hold a proper investigation and take all such necessary steps that may be necessary for ensuring a proper investigation including monitoring the same. Even though these powers have not been expressly mentioned in Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., we are of the opinion that they are implied in the above provision.

25. We have elaborated on the above matter because we often find that when someone has a grievance that his FIR has not been registered at the police station and/or a proper investigation is not being done by the police, he rushes to the High Court to file a writ petition or a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. We are of the opinion that the High Court should not encourage this practice and should ordinarily refuse to interfere in such matters, and relegate the petitioner to his alternating remedy, firstly under Section 154(3) and Section 36 Cr.P.C. before the concerned police officers, and if that is of no avail, by approaching the concerned Magistrate under Section 156(3).

14. A special duty has been casted by the Apex Court upon the magistrate while monitoring the investigation. Doctrine of implied power is also applied by the Apex Court and even asserted that Income Tax Appellate Tribunal has implied power to grant stay, although no such power expressly granted to it by the Income Tax Act.

15. It can be inferred that there is no express power to the magistrate regarding the monitoring of the investigation but under section 156 of the Cr.P.C., that implied power is there and magistrate is having whole sole authority to monitor the investigation and in case investigation is not going on proper or in fair manner in that case, magistrate is even having authority to interfere in the investigation.

16. This power alonwith the observation made by the Apex Court in Lalita Kumari. It can be said that more responsibility is casted upon the magistrate in the cases covered under the circumstances referred by the apex court. Hon'ble Apex Court in Lalita Kumar also observed that the circumstances mentioned by the court is not exhaustive and other matters may also be included in that, so in the facts and circumstances of every case, a duty is casted upon the magistrate to look the matter on the merits of the case and in case it is required then proper direction may be issued in regard to investigation.

17. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre Vs. State of Maharashtra and others reported in 2010 (8) Supreme Court 353, considered the provision of Section 438 Cr.P.C. regarding Anticipatory Bail wherein the power of the court is also discussed and observed by the apex court as follows:-

".....A wise exercise of judicial power inevitably takes care of the evil consequences which are likely to flow out of its intemperate use. Every kind of judicial discretion, whatever may be the nature of the matter in regard to which it is required to be exercised, has to be used with due care and caution. In fact, an awareness of the context in which the discretion is required to be exercised and of the reasonably foreseeable consequences of its use, is the hall mark of a prudent exercise of judicial discretion. One ought not to make a bugbear of the power to grant anticipatory bail".

It is further observed by the apex court as follows:

28. Mr. Bhushan referred to a Constitution Bench judgment in Sibbia's case (supra) to strengthen his argument that no such embargo has been placed by the said judgment of the Constitution Bench. He placed heavy reliance on para 15 of Sibbia's case (supra), which reads as under:

"15. Judges have to decide cases as they come before them, mindful of the need to keep passions and prejudices out of their decisions. And it will be strange if, by employing judicial artifices and techniques, we cut down the discretion so wisely conferred upon the courts, by devising a formula which will confine the power to grant anticipatory bail within a strait-jacket. While laying down cast-iron rules in a matter like granting anticipatory bail, as the High Court has done, it is apt to be overlooked that even judges can have but an imperfect awareness of the needs of new situations. Life is never static and every situation has to be assessed in the context of emerging concerns as and when it arises. Therefore, even if we were to frame a `Code for the grant of anticipatory bail', which really is the business of the legislature, it can at best furnish broad guide-lines and cannot compel blind adherence. In which case to grant bail and in which to refuse it is, in the very nature of things, a matter of discretion. But apart from the fact that the question is inherently of a kind which calls for the use of discretion from case to case, the legislature has, in terms express, relegated the decision of that question to the discretion of the court, by providing that it may grant bail "if it thinks fit". The concern of the courts generally is to preserve their discretion without meaning to abuse it. It will be strange if we exhibit concern to stultify the discretion conferred upon the courts by law."

18. Any apprehension that can arose by imparting the unfettered power to the magistrate is blown away by the apex court by observing like that and that it cannot be said that if magistrate exercises such power that can be misused. What are the powers of an accused during the enquiry and trial is also to be seen, and whether a door can be shut on the face of the accused during the enquiry is also relevant factor that can be attributed to the power of a magistrate during the investigation.

19. Apex Court in the case of State of Orissa Vs. Debendra Nath Padhi reported in (2005) 1 SCC 568 has clearly observed that accused is not having any right to produce any evidence or material before the court at the time of cognizance or at the time of framing of charge. The phrase that has given the right to the accused of being heard as has been mentioned in Section 227 as well as in Section 239 of the Code, does not connote any right to the accused for production of any material before the court.

20. It is further observed by the apex court that application of Section 91 is also ruled out before the trial starts. The principle held by Apex Court in Satish Mehra Vs. Delhi Administration reported in 1996 (9) SCC 766 was not found to have led correct view. In Satish Mehra Vs. Delhi Administration, a two Judge Bench of Apex Court observed as follows:

".....if the accused succeeds in producing any reliable material at the stage of taking cognizance or framing of charge which might fatally affect even the very sustainability of the case, it is unjust to suggest that no such material should be looked into by the court at that stage. It was held that the object of providing an opportunity to the accused of making submissions as envisaged in Section 227 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (for short, 'the Code') is to enable the court to decide whether it is necessary to proceed to conduct the trial. If the materials produced by the accused even at that early stage would clinch the issue, why should the court shut it out saying that such documents need be produced only after wasting a lot more time in the name of trial proceedings. It was further observed that there is nothing in the Code which shrinks the scope of such audience to oral arguments and, therefore, the trial court would be within its power to consider even material which the accused may produce at the stage contemplated in Section 227 of the Code."

21. After considering the various pronouncement of the court, Hon'ble Apex Court observed as follows:-

"As a result of aforesaid discussion, in our view, clearly the law is that at the time of framing charge or taking cognizance the accused has no right to produce any material. Satish Mehra's case holding that the trial court has powers to consider even materials which accused may produce at the stage of Section 227 of the Code has not been correctly decided."

22. Section 91 of the Code was also discussed. For ready reference, Section 91 is reproduced below:

"91. Summons to produce document or other thing.(1) Whenever any Court or any officer in charge of a police station considers that the production of any document or other thing is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code by or before such Court or officer, such Court may issue a summons, or such officer a written order, to the person in whose possession or power such document or thing is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce it, or to produce it, at the time and place stated in the summons or order."

23. Observation of the Apex Court in this regard is relevant to be reproduced which runs as follows:

"Any document or other thing envisaged under the aforesaid provision can be ordered to be produced on finding that the same is 'necessary or desirable for the purpose of investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceedings under the Code'. The first and foremost requirement of the section is about the document being necessary or desirable. The necessity or desirability would have to be seen with reference to the stage when a prayer is made for the production. If any document is necessary or desirable for the defence of the accused, the question of invoking Section 91 at the initial stage of framing of a charge would not arise since defence of the accused is not relevant at that stage. When the section refers to investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceedings, it is to be borne in mind that under the section a police officer may move the Court for summoning and production of a document as may be necessary at any of the stages mentioned in the section. In so far as the accused is concerned, his entitlement to seek order under Section 91 would ordinarily not come till the stage of defence. When the section talks of the document being necessary and desirable, it is implicit that necessity and desirability is to be examined considering the stage when such a prayer for summoning and production is made and the party who makes it whether police or accused. If under Section 227 what is necessary and relevant is only the record produced in terms of Section 173 of the Code, the accused cannot at that stage invoke Section 91 to seek production of any document to show his innocence. Under Section 91 summons for production of document can be issued by Court and under a written order an officer in charge of police station can also direct production thereof. Section 91 does not confer any right on the accused to produce document in his possession to prove his defence. Section 91 presupposes that when the document is not produced process may be initiated to compel production thereof."

24. In the above given facts, if we consider the right of the accused person, then we come to the conclusion that at the stage of cognizance as well as at the stage of charge, accused is not having any right to place any material before the court, and only right that has been given to the accused is being heard only. Therefore a precognizance stage is certainly a vital stage wherein accused is being given right, and he can certainly approach the magistrate in case proper investigation is not being done, and if it is so, the magistrate cannot say that he is powerless and any such action will be interference in the investigation.

25. This court is certainly of the view that magistrate is all empowered to monitor the investigation and in case it is required then proper direction may also be issued and if in view of the Code certain papers that are being filed by the accused to be sent to the Investigating Officer, that right can very well be given to the accused, although magistrate will refrain from expressing any opinion regarding the papers and further accused can also not claim that papers may be taken into consideration by the Investigating Officer and after taking all those papers, opinion should be found by the Investigating Officer and only then the wanting report be submitted.

26. It is always expected from Investigating Officer to do the investigation in a proper manner and to collect all the evidence that are relevant for the purpose of free, fair and impartial investigation. The matter of investigation is a State-affair, if State is doing any act, he is not doing on behalf of any person, rather act is being done in pursuance to bring the justice to all, and in case any paper throw the light upon the innocence of the accused person, that is certainly ought to be taken into consideration, but rider is that magistrate cannot say that such papers ought to have been taken into consideration in a particular perspective and in that regard Investigating Officer is fully empowered to take its own decision and the paper furnished and critical analysis cannot be demanded by the accused persons as has been demanded in the present case and if Investigating Officer can show the magistrate that on the basis of the relevant evidence that is being collected during the investigation, there is a case made out against the accused, then a report against the accused person can be submitted to the court for taking him into custody.

27. In the present case applicant never tried to submit the papers before the Investigating Officer. There is nothing on record on which it can be accepted that papers were being tried to be given to the Investigating Officer either personally by the accused or through anybody and Investigating Officer has refused to accept these papers, and if in the circumstances learned Magistrate passed the impugned order that applicant is not cooperating with the investigation then this observation cannot be said to be perverse, illegal or arbitrary.

28. Had applicant tried to submit the papers before the Investigating Officer and had he refused for taking the papers into consideration, only then the right of accused could have accrued for praying the magistrate to direct the Investigating Officer for a proper investigation under Section 156 Cr.P.C.

29. The second point raised regarding the provision of Section 167-A of the Code incorporated by U.P. Amendment and same is reproduced below:

"167-A. Procedure on arrest by Magistrate. - For the avoidance of doubts, it is hereby declared that the provisions of Section 167 shall, so far as may be, apply also in relation to any person arrested by, or under any order or direction of, a Magistrate, whether executive or judicial."

30. Controversy regarding the taking of surrender application by magistrate is removed by the amendment and Section 167-A has been incorporated and from that it can be inferred that if under the order of magistrate either executive or judicial, a person is being arrested then provisions of Section 167 shall so far as may apply.

31. It is submitted by the learned counsel that whenever a report is being submitted under Section 167-A Cr.P.C., a complete report is not submitted rather only report that is being submitted before the magistrate that is called upon on the application of accused is a short one regarding the wanting of accused and proper papers are not being produced and in the circumstances a proper remand under Section 167 Cr.P.C. cannot be given by the magistrate unless he thinks fit.

32. It is further submitted by the learned counsel that in absence of complete report and proper papers, bail application of the accused can also not be decided by the magistrate and he is bound to fix date in the matter wherein disposal of the bail application by the magistrate on the same day is required.

33. There are slight difference when accused is arrested under Section 167 Cr.P.C. and when he is being taken into custody under Section 167-A of the Cr.P.C.

34. Under Section 167 Cr.P.C. Investigating Agency gets 24 hours of time after the arrest of the accused as has been fixed by Section 57 of the Cr.P.C. wherein there is no such time provided to the Investigating Officer whenever accused is taken into custody under Section 167-A of Cr.P.C. but the apprehension of learned counsel is illfounded. Whenever a report is being asked from the Investigating Agency by the court then Investigating Officer is bound to submit a report regarding the association of accused in the matter and alongwith that satisfaction of the Investigating Officer is also required to be submitted that on the basis of evidence that is before the Investigating Officer accused can be taken into custody as per provision of Section 167-A of the Cr.P.C. Whenever such report is being submitted, it is upon the magistrate to take into consideration all the relevant facts and if magistrate thinks fit remand can be extended to the police. The word 'thinks fit' is certainly a discretionary word but even then whenever a magistrate passes any order that is a judicial order after applying the judicial mind. Any discretion that is being used should be used judiciously. Remand under Section 167 Cr.P.C. draws different elucidation at different stage. In Section 167(2) the word thinks fit is being used whenever the detention of the accused in custody either judicial or police is being made for a period not exceeding 15 days a whole although whenever a police custody is being given then reasons are to be recorded as per provision of Section 167(3) Cr.P.C. but no such reason is required to be given by the magistrate when judicial custody is authorised under Section 167(2) Cr.P.C. A proviso is appended to Section 167(2) of the Cr.P.C. and the relevant Sub-Section (2A) is reproduced below:-

"Section 167(2)(a). the Magistrate may authorise the detention of the accused person, otherwise than in the custody of the police, beyond the period of fifteen days, if he is satisfied that adequate grounds exist for doing so, but no Magistrate shall authorise the detention of the accused person in custody under this paragraph for a total period exceeding.-

[(i) ninety days, where the investigation relates to an offence punishable with death, imprisonment for life or imprisonment for a term of not less than ten years;

(ii) sixty days, where the investigation relates to any other offence, and, on the expiry of the said period of ninety days, or sixty days, as the case may be, the accused person shall be released on bail if he is prepared to and does furnish bail, and every person released on bail under this sub-section shall be deemed to be so released under the provisions of Chapter XXXIII for the purpose of that Chapter;]

35. Hereinabove it is provided that magistrate may authorise the detention of the accused person otherwise than in custody of the police beyond the period of 15 days if he is satisfied with adequate grounds exist to do so.

36. So there is difference between granting the remand first time under Section 167(2) and in that case no specific reasons are required to be given by the magistrate and if magistrate thinks fit a remand can be given but after fifteen days there should be satisfaction to the magistrate that adequate grounds exist for providing further remand only then further remand can be given.

37. In the ensuing facts it can be said that whenever a report is being submitted by the Investigating Officer or the police that certain person is required in connection of commission of a cognizable offence and relevant facts are being provided to the magistrate. It is upon the magistrate to look into the matter whether remanding the accused either in police custody or judicial custody and pass order accordingly and in case magistrate does not think so, remand can also be refused by the court but no hard and fast rule can be drawn regarding that and in every case magistrate is to decide this as per its discretion, certainly a judicial discretion.

38. The next contention of the learned counsel is regarding the bail that is to be decided by the magistrate court on the day of presentation of bail application and it is submitted by the learned counsel that in absence of all the relevant papers, bail application cannot be disposed of properly by the magistrate and in that circumstances magistrate should accord the benefit of the principle that is being laid down by the full bench of this court in Amrawati and another Versus State of U.P. reported in 2004 (57) ALR 290.

39. The constitution bench of this court in Amrawati (supra) has not accorded the benefit to the accused before the magistrate, so this court is also refraining exercising any opinion regarding that but in Amrawati's case itself it has been directed by the court that bail application of the accused will be decided by the magistrate on the same day and in case it is not decided by the court on the same day then reasons will have to be given for not deciding that.

40. The grounds for providing remand under Section 167(2) Cr.P.C. and granting bail to the accused under Sections 436 and 437 Cr.P.C. by the magistrate are entirely on different grounds and grounds for both cannot be intermingled. Once remand under Section 167(2) Cr.P.C. is being ordered by the magistrate and if any bail application is being moved then it is to be considered by the magistrate as per provision of Section 436 and 437 of the Cr.P.C. as the case may be and magistrate is liable to decide the same on the same day, but if is not being done by him on the same day then specific reasons are to be mentioned regarding that and for that the law propounded by constitution bench of this court in the case of Amrawati (supra) is to be followed.

41. On the basis of discussion above, this court is of the view that the order passed by the learned magistrate was justified. In the circumstances it cannot be said that there is any irregularity, illegality or perversity in the order on the ground that applicant never moved to the Investigating Officer alongwith papers that are being asked to be sent alongwith Surrender Application upon which impugned order was passed.

42. Applicant cannot be allowed to bye-pass the regular procedure and only on the apprehension that applicant will be arrested, he cannot be allowed not to cooperate with the investigating agency and thereby prolonging the investigation. Prayer for quashing of FIR by co-accused Dr. Kuldeep Kaushik and others is also refused by this Court.

43. From the discussion above it can be said that there are no grounds for warranting interference by this Court and prayer for quashing the impugned order dated 14.7.2016 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Bulandshahar in Misc. Surrender Application No. Nil of 2016 (State Vs. Dr. Kuldeep Kaushik) in connection with Case Crime No. 179 of 2016, under Sections 304, 314 IPC, Police Station - Siyana, District - Bulandshahar, is hereby refused.

44. The application lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

THE HON'BLE SUDHIR AGARWAL, J.
THE HON'BLE DR. KAUSHAL JAYENDRA THAKER, J.

Writ A No.- 29310 Of 2002

Dr. Chandrakant Sharma ...Petitioner

Versus

Vice Chancellor Dr. B.R. Ambedkar University & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioner:
R.B. Singhal, A.B. Singhal

Counsel for Respondents:
S.C., Anil Tewari, Sanjai Kumar Singh

Present writ petition filed under Article 226 of Constitution of India, petitioner has sought a writ of mandamus commanding respondents to release Rs. One Lac withheld by respondents, forthwith, along with interest and also to pay interest on Rs. 1,56,825/ which was payable on 01.02.1997, but actually paid, highly belatedly, i.e. on 01.05.2002.

Petitioner was appointed as Deputy Librarian in Dr. B.R. Ambedkar University, Agra hereinafter referred to as 'University') and after attaining age of superannuation retired from the post of Librarian on 31.01.1997. The last pay drawn by petitioner at the time of retirement was in the scale of Rs. 13000 50016000/. The required no objection certificate from various sections of University was given on 07.01.1997 and even Accounts Department issued a clearance certificate on 03.04.1998 Finance Department issued such clearance on 16.04.1999. Despite thereof, retiral benefits including pension, provident fund etc. was not paid to petitioner for which he also made representations dated 22.04.1999, 29.07.1999 and 23.09.1999.

Court observed that Time and again this Court has said that retiral benefits are not bounty but legal and fundamental right of an employee, being his earned but deferred wage after rendering service for a long period. It is a part of right to earn livelihood under Article 21 of Constitution of India. An employer, for valid reasons may withheld retiral benefits to the extent and in the manner it is permissible under the Rules. If an employee is denied or deferred his retiral benefits for whimsical, fancy and arbitrary assumption or inaction of employer or for fault of authorities of employer, it is most abhorring and condemnable attitude on their part. It amounts to harassment of a person who is now a senior citizen having retired from service but at this advanced age, he/she and family are made to suffer financial and otherwise, for no fault on their part and this sufferance is on account of apathy, inaction and whimsical attitude of non caring officials to the needs and rightful dues of retired employees. Withholding of retiral benefits of retired employees for years together is not only illegal and arbitrary but a sin, if not an offence since no law has declared so. The officials, who are still in service and are instrumental in such delay causing harassment to the retired employee must however be ashamed and feel afraid of committing such a sin. It is morally and socially obnoxious. It is also against the concept of social and economic justice which is one of the founding pillar of our constitution.

In a democratic system governed by rule of law, the Government does not mean a lax Government. The public servants hold their offices in trust and are expected to perform with due diligence particularly so that their action or inaction may not cause any undue hardship and harassment to a common man. Whenever it comes to the notice of this Court that the Government or its officials have acted with gross negligence and unmindful action causing harassment of a common and helpless man, this Court has never been a silent spectator but always reacted to bring the authorities to law.

Court held that non payment of retiral benefits to petitioner is wholly arbitrary and unreasonable. There was no justification at all for respondents to delay payment thereof.

Writ petition is accordingly allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri R.B. Singhal, learned counsel for petitioner and Sri Sanjai Kumar Singh counsel for respondents .

2. By means of this writ petition filed under Article 226 of Constitution of India, petitioner has sought a writ of mandamus commanding respondents to release Rs. One Lac withheld by respondents, forthwith, along with interest and also to pay interest on Rs. 1,56,825/- which was payable on 01.02.1997, but actually paid, highly belatedly, i.e. on 01.05.2002.

3. Brief facts giving rise to this petition are that, petitioner was appointed as Deputy Librarian in Dr. B.R. Ambedkar University, Agra (hereinafter referred to as "University') and after attaining age of superannuation retired from the post of Librarian on 31.01.1997. The last pay drawn by petitioner at the time of retirement was in the scale of Rs. 13000-500-16000/-. The required no objection certificate from various sections of University was given on 07.01.1997 and even Accounts Department issued a clearance certificate on 03.04.1998 Finance Department issued such clearance on 16.04.1999. Despite thereof, retiral benefits including pension, provident fund etc. was not paid to petitioner for which he also made representations dated 22.04.1999, 29.07.1999 and 23.09.1999.

4. Petitioner's mother was seriously ill and due to non payment of retiral benefits he had serious financial scarcity, hence requested respondents to release his funds. After hectic efforts, a sum of Rs. 50,000/- was paid in first week of December, 1999 but it was too late, since petitioner's mother died on 25.11.1999. Petitioner then approached this Court in Writ Petition no. 17671 of 2001 for a direction for release of his retiral benefits. The said writ petition was disposed of on 09.05.2001 with following directions:-

"Heard learned counsel for the parties.

This petition is disposed of with the direction to the authority concerned to decide the petitioner's representation dated 22.04.1999 (annexure 3 to the writ petition) expeditiously preferably within 6 weeks in accordance with law. If petitioner is found entitled to any dues by the said order he shall be paid the same within 6 weeks thereafter.

Petition is disposed of."

5. Pursuant thereto a sum of Rs. 1,56,825/- was paid to petitioner vide cheque no. 336017 dated 01.05.2002 payable at Allahabad Bank of Agra University but still a sum of Rs. One Lac was withheld by respondents for reasons not known to petitioner. Despite various efforts the aforesaid amount withheld by respondents was not released. Hence this writ petition.

6. University filed a short counter affidavit sworn on 31.10.2003 stating that during petitioner's tenure as Librarian a fund of Rs. Fifty Lacs was sanctioned by University Grants Commission for Library. There was allegation of misappropriation etc. Hence State of U.P. ordered for vigilance enquiry and due to pendency of such enquiry, retiral benefits of petitioner were initially withheld which were subsequently released after retaining only Rs. One Lac. Since vigilance enquiry is still pending, hence said amount of Rs. One Lac has not been released.

7. Status of enquiry in 2012 was not known to University, hence this Court directed State of U.P. to be impleaded as respondent 4 vide order dated 17.07.2012. Despite that nothing happened. Hence on 23.07.2013 this Court passed following order:-

"It appears that the State of U.P. through Secretary Higher Education, Lucknow has been impleaded as respondent no. 4 to the writ petition vide order dated 17.07.2012. The learned Standing Counsel as well as the Registrar, Dr. B.R. Ambedkar University, Agra shall file an affidavit giving current status of the departmental enquiry as well as vigilance enquiry conducted by the State of Government as alleged by the counsel for the University.

List peremptorily in the week commencing 5th August, 2013."

8. Pursuant thereto University through Registrar submitted an affidavit stating that University has inquired about status of enquiry from Deputy Superintendent of Police, Vigilance Department, Agra vide letter dated 13.08.2003 but has not received any information. So far as State of U.P. is concerned it did not respond at all. In these circumstances as a last opportunity, an order was passed by this Court on 23.10.2013 as under:-

"This matter pertains to the retiral dues of the petitioner. Inspite of several opportunities granted to the State of U.P. through Secretary, Higher Education, Lucknow, counter affidavit has not been filed.

It appears that a sum of Rs. 1 lac of the petitioner has been withheld on the pretext that some inquiries are pending against him. This writ petition is of the year 2002. The State was granted time for filing counter affidavit vide order dated 17.7.2012, since then more than one year has passed but no counter affidavit has been filed.

As a last opportunity, we grant 3 weeks' time to the State for filing counter affidavit. In case the counter affidavit is not filed within the aforesaid period, we are of the view that in absence of any counter affidavit rebutting the averments made in the writ petition, the amount, if any, be paid to the petitioner and in future in case any amount is found due against the petitioner, the same may be recovered from Erring official concerned.

List the matter after 3 weeks.

Learned Standing counsel shall inform about this order to the Secretary, Higher Education, Lucknow within two weeks by fax."

(emphasis added)

9. Still State of U.P. chose not to respond. Hence on 30.08.2016 this Court passed following orders:-

"1. Despite order dated 6.7.2016 by which one week's time was allowed to learned Standing Counsel to seek instructions about status of alleged vigilance enquiry, he has received no instructions in the matter.

2. As requested by him, put up on 6.9.2016; on which date learned Standing Counsel shall obtain instructions lest this Court shall pass appropriate order to summon the officer concerned."

10. Pursuant thereto learned Standing Counsel produced before this Court a letter dated 16.07.2016 sent by Superintendent of Police, Vigilance Department, Agra. It has informed that an open vigilance enquiry was conducted. Report dated 27.12.2005 was submitted to State Government finding petitioner responsible if causing undue gain, to book publishers in purchase of books. Vigilance recommend for a departmental enquiry, but petitioner, since already retired in 1997, and more than eight years had passed, no disciplinary enquiry was permissible under Rules, hence no further action was taken.

11. Learned Standing Counsel clearly stated that neither any enquiry is contemplated nor pending since it is already barred by time and cannot be conducted now. He also could not dispute that there was no justification for non-payment of retiral benefits to petitioner in time and also not to release withheld amount, when vigilance report was submitted on 27.12.2005, making it clear that though petitioner was prima facie responsible for causing gains to book publishers in purchase of books but no departmental enquiry is possible since more than eight years have passed from his date of retirement.

12. With respect to delay in payment of Rs. 1,56,825/- almost more than five years and for non release of Rs. One Lac for the last nineteen years, we find a total lapse on the part of respondents and no legal and valid justification for such delayed payment, particularly for withholding of Rs. One Lac for more than nineteen years.

13. Time and again this Court has said that retiral benefits are not bounty but legal and fundamental right of an employee, being his earned but deferred wage after rendering service for a long period. It is a part of right to earn livelihood under Article 21 of Constitution of India. An employer, for valid reasons may withheld retiral benefits to the extent and in the manner it is permissible under the Rules. If an employee is denied or deferred his retiral benefits for whimsical, fancy and arbitrary assumption or inaction of employer or for fault of authorities of employer, it is most abhorring and condemnable attitude on their part. It amounts to harassment of a person who is now a senior citizen having retired from service but at this advanced age, he/she and family are made to suffer financial and otherwise, for no fault on their part and this sufferance is on account of apathy, inaction and whimsical attitude of non caring officials to the needs and rightful dues of retired employees.

14. Withholding of retiral benefits of retired employees for years together is not only illegal and arbitrary but a sin, if not an offence since no law has declared so. The officials, who are still in service and are instrumental in such delay causing harassment to the retired employee must however be ashamed and feel afraid of committing such a sin. It is morally and socially obnoxious. It is also against the concept of social and economic justice which is one of the founding pillar of our constitution.

15. The respondents being "State" under Article 12 of the Constitution of India, its officers are public functionaries. As observed above, under our Constitution, sovereignty vest in the people. Every limb of constitutional machinery therefore is obliged to be people oriented. Public authorities acting in violation of constitutional or statutory provisions oppressively are accountable for their behaviour. It is high time that this Court should remind respondents that they are expected to perform in a more responsible and reasonable manner so as not to cause undue and avoidable harassment to the public at large and in particular their ex-employees and their legal heirs like the petitioner. The respondents have the support of entire machinery and various powers of statute. An ordinary citizen or a common man is hardly equipped to match such might of State or its instrumentalities. Harassment of a common man by public authorities is socially abhorring and legally impressible. This may harm the common man personally but the injury to society is far more grievous. Crime and corruption, thrive and prosper in society due to lack of public resistance. An ordinary citizen instead of complaining and fighting mostly succumbs to the pressure of undesirable functioning in offices instead of standing against it. It is on account of, sometimes, lack of resources or unmatched status which give the feeling of helplessness. Nothing is more damaging than the feeling of helplessness. Even in ordinary matters a common man who has neither the political backing nor the financial strength to match inaction in public oriented departments gets frustrated and it erodes the credibility in the system. This is unfortunate that matters which require immediate attention are being allowed to linger on and remain unattended. No authority can allow itself to act in a manner which is arbitrary. Public administration no doubt involves a vast amount of administrative discretion which shields action of administrative authority but where it is found that the exercise of power is capricious or other than bona fide, it is the duty of the Court to take effective steps and rise to occasion otherwise the confidence of the common man would shake. It is the responsibility of Court in such matters to immediately rescue such common man so that he may have the confidence that he is not helpless but a bigger authority is there to take care of him and to restrain arbitrary and arrogant, unlawful inaction or illegal exercise of power on the part of the public functionaries.

16. In our system, the Constitution is supreme, but the real power vest in the people of India. The Constitution has been enacted "for the people, by the people and of the people". A public functionary cannot be permitted to act like a dictator causing harassment to a common man and in particular when the person subject to harassment is his own employee.

17. Regarding harassment of a common man, referring to observations of Lord Hailsham in Cassell & Co. Ltd. Vs. Broome, 1972 AC 1027 and Lord Devlin in Rooks Vs. Barnard and others 1964 AC 1129, the Apex Court in Lucknow Development Authority Vs. M.K. Gupta JT 1993 (6) SC 307 held as under:

"An Ordinary citizen or a common man is hardly equipped to match the might of the State or its instrumentalities. That is provided by the rule of law..... A public functionary if he acts maliciously or oppressively and the exercise of power results in harassment and agony then it is not an exercise of power but its abuse. No law provides protection against it. He who is responsible for it must suffer it.....Harassment of a common man by public authorities is socially abhorring and legally impermissible. It may harm him personally but the injury to society is far more grievous." (para 10)

18. The above observations as such have been reiterated in Ghaziabad Development Authorities Vs. Balbir Singh JT 2004 (5) SC 17.

19. In a democratic system governed by rule of law, the Government does not mean a lax Government. The public servants hold their offices in trust and are expected to perform with due diligence particularly so that their action or inaction may not cause any undue hardship and harassment to a common man. Whenever it comes to the notice of this Court that the Government or its officials have acted with gross negligence and unmindful action causing harassment of a common and helpless man, this Court has never been a silent spectator but always reacted to bring the authorities to law.

20. In Registered Society Vs. Union of India and Others (1996) 6 SCC 530 the Apex court said:

"No public servant can say "you may set aside an order on the ground of mala fide but you can not hold me personally liable" No public servant can arrogate in himself the power to act in a manner which is arbitrary".

21. In Shivsagar Tiwari Vs. Union of India (1996) 6 SCC 558 the Apex Court has held:

"An arbitrary system indeed must always be a corrupt one. There never was a man who thought he had no law but his own will who did not soon find that he had no end but his own profit."

22. In Delhi Development Authority Vs. Skipper Construction and Another AIR 1996 SC 715 has held as follows:

"A democratic Government does not mean a lax Government. The rules of procedure and/or principles of natural justice are not mean to enable the guilty to delay and defeat the just retribution. The wheel of justice may appear to grind slowly but it is duty of all of us to ensure that they do grind steadily and grind well and truly. The justice system cannot be allowed to become soft, supine and spineless."

23. Now, coming to another aspect of the matter, if retiral benefits are paid with extra ordinary delay, Court should award suitable interest which is compensatory in nature so as to cause some solace to the harassed employee. No Government official should have liberty of harassing a helpless old and retired employee or his heirs by withholding his/her lawful dues for a long time and thereafter to expect an escape from any liability so as to boast that nobody can touch him even if he commits an ex facie illegal, unjust or arbitrary act. Every authority howsoever high must always keep in mind that nobody is above law. The hands of justice are meant not only to catch out such person but it is also constitutional duty of a Court of law to pass suitable order in such matters so that such illegal acts may not be repeated, not only by him/her but others also. This should be a lesson to everyone committing such unjust act.

24. Interest on delayed payment on retiral dues has been upheld time and against in a catena of decision. This Court in Shamal Chand Tiwari Vs. State of U.P. & Ors. (Writ Petition No.34804 of 2004) decided on 6.12.2005 held:

"Now the question comes about entitlement of the petitioner for interest on delayed payment of retiral benefits. Since the date of retirement is known to the respondents well in advance, there is no reason for them not to make arrangement for payment of retiral benefits to the petitioner well in advance so that as soon as the employee retires, his retiral benefits are paid on the date of retirement or within reasonable time thereafter. Inaction and inordinate delay in payment of retiral benefits is nothing but culpable delay warranting liability of interest on such dues. In the case of State of Kerala and others Vs. M. Padmnanaban Nair, 1985 (1) SLR-750*, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as follows:*

"Since the date of retirement of every Government servant is very much known in advance we fail to appreciate why the process of collecting the requisite information and issuance of these two documents should not be completed at least a week before the date of retirement so that the payment of gratuity amount could be made to the Government servant on the date he retires or on the following day and pension at the expiry of the following months. The necessity for prompt payment of the retirement dues to a Government servant immediately after his retirement cannot be over-emphasized and it would not be unreasonable to direct that the liability to pay panel interest on these dues at the current market rate should commence at the expiry of two months from the date of retirement."

In this view of the matter, this Court is of the view that the claim of the petitioner for interest on the delayed payment of retiral benefits has to be sustained."

25. It has been followed and reiterated in O.P. Gupta Vs. Union of India and others (1987) 4 SCC 328, R. Kapur Vs. Director of Inspection (1994) 6 SCC 589, S.R. Bhanrate Vs. Union of India and others AIR 1997 SC 27, Dr. Uma Agarwal Vs. State of U.P. & another (1999) 3 SCC 438 and S.K. Dua Vs. State of Haryana and another (2008) 3 SCC 44.

26. A Division Bench of this Court has also considered the question of award of interest on delayed payment of retiral benefits recently in Rajeshwar Swarup Gupta Vs. State of U.P. & others 2011 (2) ADJ 608 and, relying on the Apex Court decision in M. Padmnanaban Nair (supra) and its several follow up as also an earlier Division Bench judgement of this Court in Smt. Kavita Kumar Vs. State of U.P. & others (2008) 119 FLR 787, has awarded 12% interest in the said case.

27. In view of the above, we have no hesitation in holding that non payment of retiral benefits to petitioner is wholly arbitrary and unreasonable. There was no justification at all for respondents to delay payment thereof.

28. In a case where the person who has invoked extraordinary equitable jurisdiction satisfying the Court that in the hands of authorities of state instrumentality, individual has suffered grievously, the Court, while deciding the matter, can also pass an order of exemplary cost compensatory in nature so that such authorities may not recur the similar negligence in future. In Gurpal Singh Vs. State of Punjab and another AIR 2005 SC 2755 it was held that the Court must do justice by promotion of good faith and prevent law from crafty invasion.

29. The harassment made to petitioner is also writ large from the fact that he was under serious financial condition when his mother fell ill but in that regard also a partial amount of Rs. 50,000/- was released but before that his mother expired. If this is not an action which has to be deprecated and condemned, what else could be.

30. We really find it surprising that all the respondent authorities, did not care whatsoever not only to ensure payment of outstanding dues of retiral benefits of petitioner not only in due time but also showed an attitude of complete defiance and negligence by not responding to this Court for almost fourteen years.

31. In these facts and circumstances, we are satisfied that the petitioner deserves for the relief as prayed for but also due interest and exemplary cost.

32. Writ petition is accordingly allowed.

33. Respondents are directed to release the entire outstanding retiral amount to the petitioner which has not been paid along with interest at the rate of 12% per annum. On the partial retiral dues paid to petitioner in 2002 he shall be paid interest @ 12% per annum which shall be computed after one month from the date of retirement till the date of actual payment. The said amount shall be paid to him within two months from the date of production of certified copy of this order before respondents.

34. Petitioner shall also be entitled for exemplary cost which we quantify to Rs. 20,000/-.

THE HON'BLE MRS. SUNITA AGARWAL, J.

Writ A No.- 36165 Of 2014

Ramsiya Yadav ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioner:
Sanjay Pratap Singh

Counsel for Respondents:
C.S.C.

The present writ petition is directed against the order dated 12.11.2013 passed by the respondent No.2 namely Superintendent of Police, District Jalaun in holding that the petitioner is entitled for only interim pension on account of pendency of criminal case.

The submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that he was selected and appointed as Constable Driver in the Police Department on 18.6.1975. He was honestly performing his duties and retired on 30.9.2013. The post retiral benefits of the petitioner have not been paid in full. No gratuity has been paid and he is getting interim pension only. The submission is that the sole ground of pendency of criminal proceedings/judicial proceedings cannot be a valid ground for withholding gratuity.

The legal position for withholding gratuity during the pendency of the judicial proceedings is considered by two Division Benches of the Court which are as follows:-

The Division Bench in the case of State of U.P. & 2 Others v. Jai Prakash (Supra) had held that the Government has the power to withhold or withdraw the pension and the power to recover any pecuniary loss suffered.

Having considered the legal position relating to withholding of gratuity, it is clear that the said exercise of power cannot be mechanical but has to be utilized looking to the nature of offence alleged against the employee.

In the instant case, the petitioner has been accused in a Criminal Case under Section 342, 217, 218, 120B, the charges against him are that he alongwith other Police Personnels conspired to implicate three innocent persons in Criminal cases and, further, false evidences were collected during investigation to implicate them. The charges levelled against the petitioner are of conspiracy to implicate innocent persons in criminal charges and then conspiring in collecting false evidence against them during investigation. The allegations of lapses in discharge of duty with utmost integrity and honesty are serious charges.

Court held that it does not find any illegality in the order passed by the Superintendent of Police. The petitioner will be entitled for gratuity only after the criminal proceeding against him are culminated.

The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sunita Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

2. The present writ petition is directed against the order dated 12.11.2013 passed by the respondent No.2 namely Superintendent of Police, District Jalaun in holding that the petitioner is entitled for only interim pension on account of pendency of criminal case.

3. The submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that he was selected and appointed as Constable Driver in the Police Department on 18.6.1975. He was honestly performing his duties and retired on 30.9.2013. The post retiral benefits of the petitioner have not been paid in full. No gratuity has been paid and he is getting interim pension only.

4. It appears that on 13.11.1998 the First Information Report was registered against the petitioner and 12 others bearing Case Crime No.118 of 1998 under Section 342, 217, 218, 120B, 195, 467, 468 & 471 I.P.C., Police Station Majhagawa, District Hamirpur. After retirement, the petitioner represented the authorities to pay him gratuity and full pension. The representation was rejected vide order dated 12.11.2013, hence this writ petition.

5. The submission is that the sole ground of pendency of criminal proceedings/judicial proceedings cannot be a valid ground for withholding gratuity. The Apex Court and this Court has held time and again that gratuity cannot be withheld. Only in cases where the proceedings are pending against the incumbent are going to culminate giving rise to the situation that the Government would suffer loss on account of conduct of the employee, in other words, where there is any allegation of loss to the Government and some recovery is to be made from the incumbent, the gratuity can be withheld.

6. Reliance is placed upon the judgment of this Court in Shiv Sewak Prasad Mishra v. State of U.P. & Others[1] and in Bhagwat Prasad Yadav v. State of U.P. & Others[2].

7. Learned Standing Counsel, on the other hand, placing reliance upon the judgment of this Court in (State of U.P. & 2 Ors. v. Jai Prakash) being Special Appeal Defective No.1278 of 2013 submits that the gratuity can be withheld in a case where judicial proceedings are pending on the serious charges against employee.

8. The legal position for withholding gratuity during the pendency of the judicial proceedings is considered by two Division Benches of the Court which are as follows:-

9. The Division Bench in the case of State of U.P. & 2 Others v. Jai Prakash (Supra) had held that the Government has the power to withhold or withdraw the pension and the power to recover any pecuniary loss suffered.

10. Regulation 351-A of the Civil Services Regulation postulates that there has to be a determination in departmental or judicial proceedings.

11. Regulation 351-AA of the Civil Services Regulation deals with the situation where a departmental or judicial proceeding or any enquiry by the Administrative Tribunal is pending on the date of retirement or is to be instituted after retirement, a provisional pension under Regulation 919-A may be sanctioned. Regulation 351-AA stipulates that a provisional pension would be admissible and the modalities for the payment of a provisional pension are prescribed under Regulation 919-A. The provisional pension is to be authorized for the period of commencement from the date of retirement upto and including the date of conclusion of departmental or judicial proceedings or, the enquiry by the Administrative Tribunal, as the case may be.

12. Regulation 919-A (3) contains the expression "prohibition on the payment of death-cum-retirement gratuity to a Government Servants" until the conclusion of the department proceeding, judicial proceeding or, an enquiry by the Administrative Tribunal, as the case may be.

13. Regulation 41 provides that except when the 'pension' is used in contradistinction to gratuity, 'pension would include gratuity'.

14. Consequently, Regulation 919-A(3) which contains a bar on the payment of gratuity till the conclusion of departmental or judicial proceeding would allow the payment of provisional pension stipulated in Clause (1) of Regulation 919-A.

15. Thus, in view of the specific prohibition which is contained in Regulation 919-A (3) no death-cum-retirement gratuity would be admissible until the conclusion of a departmental or judicial proceeding. The expression 'judicial proceeding' would necessarily include the pendency of a criminal case.

16. It was, therefore, held that the order passed by the Superintendent of Police, Jalaun, withholding the payment of gratuity until the conclusion of the criminal trial was correct and proper being in accordance with the provisions of Regulation 351-AA read with Regulation 919-A (3) of the Civil Service Regulations.

17. In subsequent Division Bench judgment in Special Appeal Defective No.416 of 2014 (State of U.P. & 3 Others v. Faini Singh), the question raised was whether the power under Section 351-AA read with Regulation 919-A can be used mechanically and on the ground of pendency of any judicial proceeding against the Government Servant without considering the allegations against the retired Government Servant, the Competent Authority would be empowered to withhold the gratuity and full pension.

18. It was observed in Faini Singh (supra) that every power vested in Authority has to be utilized bona fidely for the purpose for which such power is given, the discretion given should not consume the power where such discretion is to be exercised.

19. It was found that in the said case the petitioner/respondent was accused of committing the fraud in taking loan by one Shriram son of Hari Ram from U.P. Financial Corporation. The petitioner, Faini Singh was guarantor, the total amount of loan involved was Rs.20,000/-.

20. It was found that the entire loan amount was repaid as soon as the notice was received by Shri Faini Singh and that no loss was caused to the U.P. Financial Corporation.

21. However, the Superintendent of Police, Bijnor had withheld the gratuity and pension only on the ground that the criminal case was pending. It was considered that there is power with the State Government to withhold gratuity in a case where there are allegations of serious crime or grave misconduct or any pecuniary loss caused to the Government by misconduct or negligence during the service including services rendered on re-employment after retirement. It was held that the object of these powers clearly demonstrates that these powers have to be exercised with circumspection and caution and have to be utilized for the purpose for which they have been vested in the State Government. Such powers cannot be used mechanically on the pendency of any judicial proceedings. The delay in judicial proceedings is also required to be taken into consideration and counted for the purposes of exercise of such powers.

22. It was lastly, held that mere pendency of any judicial proceedings cannot be a ground to exercise the powers under Article 351-AA read with Regulation 919-A for withholding the retirement dues. The nature of allegations and the gravity of charge has to be taken into consideration by the Competent Authority before making an order to withhold the retiral dues.

23. Thus in the facts and circumstances of the said case, it was held that the existence of the power by itself did not justify the exercise of power.

24. This view taken by the Special Appellate Bench in the case State of U.P. v. Faini Singh (supra) has been followed in Special Appeal Defective No.45 of 2016 (Mohan Ram v. State of U.P. And 3 Others) and in Special Appeal Defective No.52 of 2016 (Hargovind Singh v. State of U.P. And 7 Others).

25. Having considered the legal position relating to withholding of gratuity, it is clear that the said exercise of power cannot be mechanical but has to be utilized looking to the nature of offence alleged against the employee.

26. In the instant case, the petitioner has been accused in a Criminal Case under Section 342, 217, 218, 120B, the charges against him are that he alongwith other Police Personnels conspired to implicate three innocent persons in Criminal cases and, further, false evidences were collected during investigation to implicate them. These accused have been shown to be arrested simultaneously from different places by the local police and they have wrongly been implicated. The charges levelled against the petitioner are of conspiracy to implicate innocent persons in criminal charges and then conspiring in collecting false evidence against them during investigation. The allegations of lapses in discharge of duty with utmost integrity and honesty are serious charges. The charge-sheet has been filed against the petitioner and the criminal trial is going on.

27. In view of the above facts, this Court does not find any illegality in the order passed by the Superintendent of Police. The petitioner will be entitled for gratuity only after the criminal proceeding against him are culminated.

28. The judgment in the case of Shiv Sewak Prasad Mishra and Bhagwat Prasad Yadav (supra) proceeded only on the premise that where there are no allegations of loss to the Government in a criminal case and no recovery is required to be made, the gratuity, therefore, cannot be withheld.

29. This preposition with all due respect is not in comfirmity with the provisions of Civil Services Regulations as interpreted by the Division Benches of this Court.

30. The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

Writ A No.- 41732 Of 2016

Bharat Sanchar Nigam Ltd. & Ors. ...Petitioners
Versus
Shri Adesh Kumar Gupta & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioners:
Pradeep Kumar Pandey

Counsel for Respondents:
Harish Chandra Mishra

This writ petition has been filed by Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited and its authorities, assailing an interim order dated 12.08.2016 passed by Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad Bench, Allahabad in Original Application No. 1053 of 2016.

In the present case, if not mala fide in fact, still malice in law on the part of petitioners is apparent. Order of transfer passed on 12.05.2016 is clearly an offshoot of such malicious act on the part of petitioners so as to render adjudicatory process pending before Tribunal ineffective, inoperative and infructuous and to some extent, petitioners succeeded also when this Court in Writ Petition No. 28675 of 2016 agreed to the contention of petitionersBSNL that after withdrawal of transfer order dated 24.07.2015, vide order dated 10.05.2016, O.A. already pending before Tribunal rendered infructuous and now subsequent order dated 12.05.2016 could have been challenged in a fresh O.A.

Tribunal has rightly passed interim order observing that here is a case of clever and tactical approach adopted by BSNL and its authorities and their action lacks bona fide. Undeterred by the conduct, which has been commented otherwise by Tribunal, petitioners have shown audacity of continuing with avoidable litigation which shows that they have taken it as a fight for ego and not to show a fair, impartial and justified attitude with its officers and employees. In chain this is petitioners' third writ petition and we find that this writ petition is nothing but a sheer abuse of process of law and could have been avoided by petitioners. Instead they could have approached Tribunal requesting for an early hearing of matter, which, it appears, Tribunal was already doing, still petitioners have chosen to continue litigation by filing writ petition before this Court also. No attempt has been made by petitioners to request Tribunal to decide O.A. expeditiously finally and adjudicate issue in question once and for all. On the contrary, entire attempt is to somehow or other ensure transfer and joining of Respondent1 at any other place except NOIDA so that person, whom petitioners wanted to accommodate at NOIDA, may not get disturbed. This also suggests that ground taken by petitioners that NOIDA authorities and BSNL are also favouring an individual officer to accommodate at NOIDA, has some force.

Court after considering the entire facts of the case they are satisfied prima facie that this is a thoroughly ill advised and misconceived writ petition. This approach and attitude on the part of petitioners can neither be appreciated nor expected from en employer, i.e., a Government Company, who is expected to work as a model employer. Time and again Courts have always reminded authorities and litigants not to come and file frivolous cases.

In the present case, exercise and attempt on the part of petitioners is nothing but a gross abuse of process of law and looking to the entire facts as discussed above, Court find's it justified that petitioners herein have not approached this Court consistent with principle that one who seek equity must do equity and come with clean hands. It is a clear misuse and gross abuse of process of law and hence it is a fit case where writ petition deserves to be dismissed with exemplary cost.

Writ petition was dismissed with cost of Rs. 5 lacs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Pradeep Kumar Pandey, Advocate for petitioners and Sri Harish Chandra Mishra, Advocate for respondents.

2. This writ petition has been filed by Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited (hereinafter referred to as the "BSNL") and its authorities, assailing an interim order dated 12.08.2016 passed by Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad Bench, Allahabad (hereinafter referred to as the "Tribunal") in Original Application (hereinafter referred to as the "O.A.") No. 1053 of 2016.

3. Respondent-1, Sri Adesh Kumar Gupta, is an Officer of Indian Telecom Services (hereinafter referred to as the "ITS") and came to be posted in BSNL after its creation in 2001. It is said that he remained posted at NOIDA from time to time, i.e., 01.05.2001 to 30.11.2001, 01.04.2003 to 31.01.2004, 03.12.2006 to 29.06.2008, 01.04.2009 to 14.09.2009 and lastly from 08.11.2013 to 16.05.2016. The name of Respondent-1 was included in Agreed List 2015, prepared, of the officers likely to be transferred. It was circulated by BSNL Head Quarters to Senior General Manager (Personnel), New Delhi vide letter dated 24.04.2015. On 24.07.2015, an order of transfer was issued transferring Respondent-1 from NOIDA, U.P. West Circle to Meerut, U.P. West Circle.

4. The aforesaid order was challenged by Respondent-1 in O.A. No. 330/00994/2015 under Section 19 of Administrative Tribunal Act, 1985 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1985") and by order dated 31.07.2015, Tribunal found that against existing policy of transferring persons after four years, Respondent-1 was sought to be transferred within a period of less than two years and consequently stayed the same.

5. Petitioners put in appearance and filed counter affidavit alongwith stay vacation application. Tribunal, from pleadings, found that Respondent-1 had also made out a case that impugned transfer was to accommodate one Arun Kumar who was impleaded as Respondent-3 in aforesaid O.A. as also against the policy of Government that there shall not be any punitive transfer unless there is sufficient material or conclusion that an officer is lacking integrity. By order dated 21.08.2015, Tribunal rejected stay vacation application and confirmed interim order dated 31.07.2015. Petitioners thereafter without having final adjudication on the validity of transfer order dated 24.07.2015,, on their own, cancelled order of transfer vide order dated 10.05.2016 and thereafter, simultaneously passed another order within a gap of two days i.e. on 12.05.2016 transferring Respondent-1 to Dehradun and retaining Arun Kumar in place of Respondent-1.

6. Respondent-1 moved a miscellaneous application before Tribunal challenging order dated 12.05.2016 and this order of transfer was also stayed by Tribunal. Petitioners challenged this order of stay before this Court in Writ Petition No. 26022 of 2016 on the ground that O.A., whereby transfer order dated 24.07.2015 was challenged, rendered infructuous when transfer order was cancelled on 10.05.2016, hence it was not permissible for Tribunal to subsequently entertain miscellaneous application assailing subsequent transfer order dated 12.05.2016. This Court vide order dated 30.05.2016 disposed of the writ petition by directing Tribunal to take a final decision in O.A. as well as miscellaneous application, on the next date fixed which was 31.05.2016. Tribunal looked into the matter and found that there was an attempt on the part of BSNL and its authorities to play hide and seek by withdrawing transfer order dated 24.05.2015, which was stayed by Tribunal, so as to technically render O.A. infructuous and simultaneously passing a new order of transfer on 12.05.2016. Tribunal found that both these orders are interconnected, hence O.A. could have been amended challenging subsequent orders and granted opportunity to Respondent-1 to do needful and fixed matter on 07.07.2016 extending interim order to continue.

7. Again BSNL and its authorities came to this Court in Writ Petition No. 28675 of 2016. Learned counsel for the parties were heard on 06.07.2016 and this Court recorded statement of counsel for Respondent-1 that, by order dated 10.05.2016, whereby transfer order dated 24.07.2016 has been revoked, O.A. has rendered infructuous, then Respondent-1 is entitled to file fresh O.A. against subsequent order dated 12.05.2016 and he may do so by filing a fresh case to challenge subsequent order dated 12.05.2016. Writ Petition to this limited extent was allowed vide judgment dated 06.07.2016.

8. In these facts and circumstances, Respondent-1 filed O.A. No. 330/1053/2016 challenging second transfer order dated 12.05.2016 which was passed after withdrawing earlier transfer order dated 24.07.2015 vide order dated 10.05.2016.

9. In the meantime, though interim order of Tribunal was continuing, since this Court decided second writ petition, i.e., Writ Petition No. 28675 of 2016 filed by petitioners-BSNL on 06.07.2016 still BSNL Authorities passed order on 16.05.2016 declaring that Respondent-1 stands relieved and struck off from the strength of U.P. West Telecom Circle with instruction to report to Chief General Manager (Telecom), Dehradun.

10. Tribunal in second O.A. filed by Respondent-1, in the above facts and circumstances, found that by rendering earlier O.A. infructuous by withdrawing earlier order of transfer which was stayed by Tribunal, whereby Respondent-1 was transferred from NOIDA to Meerut and passing almost simultaneous another order on 12.05.2016, transferring Respondent-1 from NOIDA to Dehradun, but continued to accommodate Arun Kumar at NOIDA, this time also, it seems to be a case of clever and tactical move on the part of BSNL and its authorities and having said so, Tribunal stayed transfer order dated 12.05.2016 as well as relieving order dated 16.05.2016. This interim order dated 12.08.2016 passed by Tribunal has been challenged in this writ petition by BSNL and its authorities.

11. Learned counsel for petitioners contended that transfer is an incidence of service. Respondent-1 was in Agreed List 2015 which used to be prepared in the light of guidelines issued by BSNL Corporate Office. Under the instructions of Vigilance Head of BSNL, posts have been identified as sensitive and non-sensitive. NOIDA has been classified as sensitive where Respondent-1 was posted. He was to be transferred and shifted to a "non-sensitive post" for the reason that his name appeared in Agreed List 2015 which is prepared in respect of officers supposed to be transferred on non-sensitive posts. It is contended that in the matter of transfer, Tribunal ought not to have interfered and interim order passed by Tribunal is patently illegal. Reliance is placed on this Court's decision in Dr. Krishna Chandra Dubey Vs. Union of India, 2005 (6) AWC 6017.

12. Learned counsel appearing for Respondent-1, however, contended that transfer of Respondent-1 is malicious in law and patently illegal. He also submitted that petitioners have not come to this Court with clean hands inasmuch as Respondent-1 was wrongly placed in Agreed List and for dropping his name in Agreed list, Chief General Manager (Telecom), U.P. West Circle has already suggested long back. No discreet inquiry was conducted as contemplated in Office Memorandum of Ministry of Home Affairs dated 05.05.1966 with regard to integrity of Respondent-1. During his tenure revenue of department has increased largely and it is only to malign his reputation and to harass him on incorrect facts, petitioners in a clandestine manner are proceeding to shift him and for that purpose are going to any extent including the mode of hide and seek before Court.

13. From para 13 of the writ petition we find that new Agreed List was published on 05.05.2016 by the office of Chief Vigilance Officer for the Year 2016-17 communicated to BSNL and therein name of Respondent-1 was not included and this shows that the very basis of transfer of Respondent-1 disappeared. Therefore, to suggest that Respondent-1 was sought to be transferred on account of some questionable integrity etc. is admittedly not existing in view of averments made in para 13 of writ petition by petitioners themselves.

14. So far as issue on merits is concerned, whether action of transfer of BSNL and its authorities of Respondent-1 from NOIDA to anywhere else, is a matter yet to be adjudicated by Tribunal, therefore, we do not propose to make any observation or discuss matter on merits, touching validity of transfer order. However, facts discussed above makes it clear that petitioners on their own did not allow Tribunal to decide correctness of transfer order and instead played a vicious role in the matter by endeavoring to render adjudication of earlier O.A. infructuous, in which transfer order dated 24.07.2015 was challenged, by withdrawing same, without taking Tribunal into confidence or without seeking any leave of Tribunal though not only transfer order was stayed by Tribunal but even stay vacation application was rejected. BSNL and its authorities on their own took upon themselves authority to withdraw transfer order without assigning any reason as to why said order was withdrawn and thereafter contended that O.A. in which transfer order was stayed and stay order was confirmed, has rendered infructuous.

15. Lack of bona fide and arbitrariness on the part of present petitioners, i.e., BSNL and its authorities is further writ large from the fact that order withdrawing transfer order dated 24.07.2015 was passed on 10.05.2016 and within two days, i.e., on 12.05.2016, they passed another order transferring Respondent-1, to another place, i.e., instead of Meerut to Dehradun. Justification for withdrawal of transfer order dated 24.07.2015 was not shown to be placed either before Tribunal or even before this Court.

16. In the entire Writ Petition virtually nothing has been said as to why transfer order dated 24.07.2015, which was yet to be adjudicated by Tribunal, was withdrawn. The only reason we can cull out from aforesaid facts is that there was a deliberate and intentional attempt to frustrate adjudication process initiated by Respondent-1, by availing remedy of filing O.A. under Section 19 of Act, 1985 before Tribunal wherein matter was under consideration and with regard to interim order Tribunal, after hearing both parties had confirmed the same. The hurried exercise undertaken by petitioners in passing almost simultaneously fresh order of transfer fortifies above inference and we find at least no reason pleaded in the present writ petition to draw another inference except that it was a very considered, mischievous and tactical approach on the part of BSNL to wriggle out of the question of adjudication of correctness of earlier transfer order and also to wriggle out of the consequences of interim orders passed by Tribunal which was confirmed and not interfered even by this Court in first writ petition filed by petitioners, i.e., Writ Petition No. 26022 of 2016.

17. Transfer is an incident of service and there is no doubt but still judicial review in respect of an order of transfer is permissible for well known reasons, namely, (i) if it is by way of mala fide which includes malice in law; (ii) if it is without jurisdiction; and, (iii) if it is in contravention of statutory provisions.

18. In the present case, if not mala fide in fact, still malice in law on the part of petitioners is apparent. Order of transfer passed on 12.05.2016 is clearly an offshoot of such malicious act on the part of petitioners so as to render adjudicatory process pending before Tribunal ineffective, inoperative and infructuous and to some extent, petitioners succeeded also when this Court in Writ Petition No. 28675 of 2016 agreed to the contention of petitioners-BSNL that after withdrawal of transfer order dated 24.07.2015, vide order dated 10.05.2016, O.A. already pending before Tribunal rendered infructuous and now subsequent order dated 12.05.2016 could have been challenged in a fresh O.A.

19. Tribunal passed impugned interim order dated 12.08.2016 prima facie observing that it is a case of clever and tactical move on the part of petitioners and it also prima facie shows that they are adamant to transfer Respondent-1 and adjust Arun Kumar in his place at NOIDA and are displaying a high degree of obduracy and vindictiveness. We prima facie find substance therein. In the backdrop of facts, interim order has been passed by Tribunal and we find apparently nothing manifestly illegal therein.

20. When called upon, learned counsel for the petitioners could not tell as to why petitioners did not await adjudication of O.A. No. 330/00994/2015 and withdrew earlier order of transfer dated 24.07.2015. It also could not explain why another order within two days was passed.

21. In these facts and circumstances, we have no manner of doubt but to draw an inference at this level also that the only reason was to render adjudicatory process pending before Tribunal infructuous and redundant and to wriggle out of the interim order operating against petitioners-BSNL. If that be so, petitioners are clearly guilty of malice in law and the action of subsequent transfer is malicious in law.

22. Malice in law does not mean malice in fact. Court has summarised "malice in law " in (Smt.) S.R. Venkatraman Vs. Union of India and another, AIR 1979, SC 49 as under :

"It is equally true that there will be an error of fact when a public body is prompted by a mistaken belief in the existence of a non-existing fact or circumstance. This is so clearly unreasonable that what is done under such a mistaken belief might almost be said to have been done in bad faith; and in actual experience, and as things go, these may well be said to run into one another." (Para 8)

(emphasis added)

23. Court, further in para 9 of the judgment in S.R. Venkatraman (supra), has observed:

"9. The influence of extraneous matters will be undoubted where the authority making the order has admitted their influence. It will therefore be a gross abuse of legal power to punish a person or destroy her service career in a manner not warranted by law by putting a rule which makes a useful provision for the premature retirement of Government servants only in the "public interest', to a purpose wholly unwarranted by it, and to arrive at quite a contradictory result. An administrative order which is based on reasons of fact which do not exist must, therefore, be held to be infected with an abuse of power."

24. In Mukesh Kumar Agrawal Vs. State of U.P. and others JT 2009 (13) SC 643 Court said :

"We also intend to emphasize that the distinction between a malice of fact and malice in law must be borne out from records; whereas in a case involving malice in law which if established may lead to an inference that the statutory authorities had acted without jurisdiction while exercising its jurisdiction, malice of fact must be pleaded and proved."

25. In Somesh Tiwari Vs. Union of India and others 2009 (2) SCC 592 dealing with the question of validity of an order of transfer on the ground of malice in law, Court, in para 16 of the judgment, observed as under:

"16. .... Mala fide is of two kinds--one malice in fact and the second malice in law. The order in question would attract the principle of malice in law as it was not based on any factor germane for passing an order of transfer and based on an irrelevant ground i.e on the allegations made against the appellant in the anonymous complaint. It is one thing to say that the employer is entitled to pass an order of transfer in administrative exigencies but it is another thing to say that the order of transfer is passed by way of or in lieu of punishment. When an order of transfer is passed in lieu of punishment, the same is liable to be set aside being wholly illegal." (emphasis added)

26. In HMT Ltd. and another Vs. Mudappa and others JT 2007(3) SC 112, Court in paras 18 and 19, defined malice in law by referring to "Words and Phrases Legally Defined, 3rd Edn., London Butterworths, 1989" as under:

*"The legal meaning of malice is "ill-will or spite towards a party and any indirect or improper motive in taking an action". This is sometimes described as "malice in fact". "Legal malice" or "*malice in law" means "something done without lawful excuse'. In other words, "it is an act done wrongfully and wilfully without reasonable or probable cause, and not necessarily an act done from ill feeling and spite'. It is a deliberate act in disregard of the rights of others."

"19. It was observed that where malice was attributed to the State, it could not be a case of malice in fact, or personal ill-will or spite on the part of the State. It could only be malice in law, i.e legal mala fide. The State, if it wishes to acquire land, could exercise its power bona fide for statutory purpose and for none other. It was observed that it was only because of the decree passed in favour of the owner that the proceedings for acquisition were necessary and hence, notification was issued. Such an action could not be held mala fide." (emphasis added)

27. In brief "malice in law" can be said to exist when a power is exercised for an unauthorized purpose or on a fact which is claimed to exist but in fact, is non-est or for the purpose for which it is not meant though apparently it is shown that the same is being exercised for the purpose the power is supposed to be exercised. [See Manager Govt. Branch Press and another Vs. D.B. Belliappa AIR 1979 SC 429; Punjab Electricity Board Vs. Zora Singh and others AIR 2006 SC 182; K.K.Bhalla Vs. State of U.P. and others AIR 2006 SC 898; P. Mohanan Pillai Vs. State of Kerala and others (2007) 9 SCC 497; M.P.State Corporation Diary Federation Ltd. and another Vs. Rajneesh Kumar Zamindar and others (2009) 6 SCALE 17; Swarn Singh Chand Vs. Punjab State Electricity Board and others (2009) 7 SCALE 622 and Sri Yemeni Raja Ram Chandar Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh and others JT (2009) 12 SC 198].

28. We also enquired from learned counsel for petitioners as to why petitioners did not request Tribunal to decide O.A. at the earliest and instead have rushed to this Court by filing this writ petition particularly when in similar circumstances, an attempt on the part of State to assail an interim order passed by Tribunal, was not approved by Supreme Court in State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Sunanda Prasad, (1999) 6 SCC 34 and it was held that High Court should not have interfered against an interim order passed by Tribunal when matter on merits is yet to be decided by Tribunal. In paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 of judgment, Court said:

"3. Though ordinarily this Court does not interfere with an interim order passed by the High Court, but in the case in hand the High Court having entertained a writ petition while the grievance of the respondents is still pending before the Central Administrative Tribunal and having passed an interim order annulling the order of the Tribunal, we think it appropriate to interfere with the impugned order of the High Court.

4. We have no doubt in our mind that the High Court exceeded its jurisdiction in entertaining a writ application when the legality of the order; of transfer is a subject-matter of a pending proceeding before the Central Administrative Tribunal and the Tribunal has passed an order of status quo. If the appellant authority has violated any interim direction of the Tribunal, the appropriate remedy is to file an application for contempt and we are told that such application has been filed, which is pending before the Tribunal. The Tribunal has also fixed up the hearing of the matter on 16-7-1999.

5. In the aforesaid circumstances, the impugned order of the High Court stands quashed. The writ petition is also dismissed. The Tribunal is requested to dispose of the matter on the date on which the matter has already been fixed for hearing."

29. Learned counsel for the petitioners could not reply except arguing that in transfer matters, Court should not have interfered. In our view, aforesaid observations are squarely applicable in the case in hand. Thus, in chain it is the third writ petition filed by the petitioners-BSNL against interim orders passed by Tribunal and it appears that petitioners are not interested in final disposal and adjudication of issue by Tribunal.

30. In our view, Tribunal has rightly passed interim order observing that here is a case of clever and tactical approach adopted by BSNL and its authorities and their action lacks bona fide. Undeterred by the conduct, which has been commented otherwise by Tribunal, petitioners have shown audacity of continuing with avoidable litigation which shows that they have taken it as a fight for ego and not to show a fair, impartial and justified attitude with its officers and employees. In chain this is petitioners' third writ petition and we find that this writ petition is nothing but a sheer abuse of process of law and could have been avoided by petitioners. Instead they could have approached Tribunal requesting for an early hearing of matter, which, it appears, Tribunal was already doing, still petitioners have chosen to continue litigation by filing writ petition before this Court also. No attempt has been made by petitioners to request Tribunal to decide O.A. expeditiously finally and adjudicate issue in question once and for all. On the contrary, entire attempt is to somehow or other ensure transfer and joining of Respondent-1 at any other place except NOIDA so that person, whom petitioners wanted to accommodate at NOIDA, may not get disturbed. This also suggests that ground taken by petitioners that NOIDA authorities and BSNL are also favouring an individual officer to accommodate at NOIDA, has some force.

31. Be that as it may, to our mind, from entire facts of the case we are satisfied prima facie that this is a thoroughly ill-advised and misconceived writ petition. This approach and attitude on the part of petitioners can neither be appreciated nor expected from en employer, i.e., a Government Company, who is expected to work as a model employer. Time and again Courts have always reminded authorities and litigants not to come and file frivolous cases.

32. This Court cannot be oblivious of the fact that it is already reeling under extreme pressure of extra ordinary pendency of cases, for one or the other reasons, causing huge delay in disposal of cases. Everyday, on various platforms, people cry of denial of justice. They are frequently reminding us that "justice delayed is justice denied" but on account of massive litigation exodus, Courts are under mounting pressure of huge number of cases, pending. Lack of infrastructure and other supporting establishment, is another hurdle in speedy disposal of cases. It is virtually a day dream to think of an early disposal of a case, yet a few litigants, assisted by officers of this Court, do not hesitate in filing frivolous cases adding to mounting arrears. This is high time when such frivolous and uncalled for litigation must be endeavoured to be curtailed by taking hard steps. This Court should not show its misplaced sympathy to such persons, who indulge in filing frivolous cases before this Court so as to consume a sufficient time in those matters, depriving Court's precious time to be utilized in other substantial issues.

33. Stressing upon the ways to discourage filing of vexatious and frivolous cases against all kinds of orders or at every stage of proceedings, irrespective of the fact whether application like the present one would be permissible in law or not, Apex Court in the context of practice of filing SLPs against all kinds of orders of High Court or other authorities, came heavily in Mathai @ Joby vs. George and Anr, 2010 (4) SCC 358 and said that if all such sundry kinds of cases are allowed, the Court will soon be flooded with a huge amount of backlog and it will not be able to deal with important questions relating to the Constitution or the law or where grave injustice has been done. The Court has limited time at its disposal and the Judges are struggling with unbearable burden with zeal to dispense justice to whom it is highly needed yet being obstructed by such frivolous and vexatious matters, a trend is developing to bring all kinds of trivial and flimsy matters to Court causing wastage of not only public money, but also precious time of the Court, which can be used for other substantial matters.

34. The Apex Court in Phool Chandra & Anr. Vs. State of U.P., 2014(3) RCR (Criminal) 30, observed:

"..the time of the Court which is becoming acutely precious because of the piling arrears has to be wasted on hearing such matters. There is an urgent need to put a check on such frivolous litigation. Perhaps many such cases can be avoided if learned Counsel who are officers of the court and who are expected to assist the court tender proper advice to their clients. The Bar has to realise that the great burden upon the Bench of dispensing justice imposes a simultaneous duty upon them to share this burden and it is their duty to see that the burden should not needlessly be made unbearable. The Judges of this Nation are struggling bravely against the odds to tackle the problem of dispensing quick justice. But, without the cooperation of the gentlemen of the Bar, nothing can be done."

35. The Court in Phool Chandra & Anr. (supra) referring to earlier decisions in Varinderpal Singh Vs. Hon'ble Justice M.R. Sharma and Ors., 1986 Supp SCC 719; Ramrameshwari Devi and Ors. Vs. Nirmala Devi and Ors., (2011) 8 SCC 249; and Gurgaon Gramin Bank Vs. Khazani and Anr., AIR 2012 SC 2881 has said:

"It is high time that the Courts should come down heavily upon such frivolous litigation and unless we ensure that the wrongdoers are denied profit or undue benefit from the frivolous litigation, it would be difficult to control frivolous and uncalled for litigation. In order to curb such kind of litigation, the courts have to ensure that there is no incentive or motive which can be ensured by imposing exemplary costs upon the parties as well as on learned Counsel who act in an irresponsible manner."

36. We may also repeat hereat observation made by the Court in Salem Advocate Bar Association, Tamil Nadu Vs. Union of India, JT 2005 (6) SC 486 stating that award of costs must be treated generally as mandatory. It is the liberal attitude of the Courts in not awarding costs which has led to frivolous points or litigation before the Courts. Costs should invariably follow the event and reasons must be assigned for not awarding costs.

37. In the present case, exercise and attempt on the part of petitioners is nothing but a gross abuse of process of law and looking to the entire facts as discussed above, we find it justified that petitioners herein have not approached this Court consistent with principle that one who seek equity must do equity and come with clean hands. It is a clear misuse and gross abuse of process of law and hence it is a fit case where writ petition deserves to be dismissed with exemplary cost.

38. We, therefore, dismiss this writ petition with cost of Rs. 5 lacs.

39. However, we make it clear that any observation made by us in this judgment shall not be construed as an expression or opinion on merits of issue which is pending for adjudication by Tribunal, and, would be confined only for the purpose of considering present writ petition before this Court. Tribunal shall proceed to decide matter on merits independently on the basis of material available before it.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

THE HON'BLE DR. DEVENDRA KUMAR ARORA, J.

Writ Petition No.- 4621 (M/S) Of 2015

Ram Naresh ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite parties

Present writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, inter-alia seeking a direction to the Appar Sachiv Madhymic Shiksha Parishad, Kshtriya Karyalaya, Allahabad to withdraw recognition of said Swami Vivekanand Ucchtar Madhyamic Vidyalaya, Hardoi and to communicate its decision to the petitioner forthwith. Petitioner is also seeking a direction to restrain opposite party No.6-Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Bilgram, Hardoi to interfere in the property of the Institution.

It is settled law that one should approach the court with clean heart and clean mind to get a relief and one who does not come with clean heart and clean mind dis-entitles himself from getting any relief from the Court.

It is clear that the petitioner has filed this writ petition with oblique motives and has not presented the correct facts just to gain undue advantage. Such type of practice should always be discouraged and is highly deprecated. They belong to the category of persons who not only attempt, but succeed in polluting the course of justice.

In the instant case, the petitioner in paragraph 3 of the writ petition has stated in clear words that the petitioner is a elected Manager of Swami Vivekanand Higher Secondary School Bilgram, Hardoi. On coming to know about the filing of the instant writ petition, the elected Manager of Committee of Management of the Institution, namely, Hasnain Navab Zada filed an application for impleadment together with an application for dismissal of the writ petition on account of non-joinder of necessary parties. In the affidavit filed in support of application, it has been stated that the petitioner is in habit of indulging in filing frivolous writ petitions. As a matter of fact on the basis of undisputed electoral college of the society, the election was held on 5.7.2015 under the supervision of the nominated Observed, namely, Sri R.K.Rao, Principal, GIC Tariyawan,Hardoi in which one Shri Ram was elected as president whereas Sri Hasnanin Navab Zada was elected as Manager apart from the other office bearers.

A litigant who has approached this Court in extra ordinary equitable jurisdiction with unclean hands, his conduct makes him liable to pay an exemplary cost for abusing the process of the Court besides wasting precious time of the Court which could have been utilized for other more deserving cases. Moreover, he is also guilty of swearing a false affidavit. Thus the petitioner must be saddled with the liability of heavy cost so that in future such thing may not recur.

In view of the aforesaid detailed facts and reasons, the writ petition is dismissed with cost of Rs.5,00,000/- (Rupees Five Lacs).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Devendra Kumar Arora, J.)

1. Mr. D.P. Singh, Advocate, has filed his vakalatnama on behalf of the petitioner after obtaining 'No Objection' from previous counsel Mr. R.J. Trivedi, Advocate. The same is taken on record.

2. Heard Mr. D.P. Singh, learned Counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel and Mr. Rajendra Pratap Singh, learned Counsel for the opposite party No.7.

3. Surprisingly, the petitioner, who claims himself to be the Manager of Swami Vivekanand Higher Secondary School, Bilgram, has filed the instant writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, inter-alia seeking a direction to the Appar Sachiv Madhymic Shiksha Parishad, Kshtriya Karyalaya, Allahabad to withdraw recognition of said Swami Vivekanand Ucchtar Madhyamic Vidyalaya, Hardoi and to communicate its decision to the petitioner forthwith. Petitioner is also seeking a direction to restrain opposite party No.6-Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Bilgram, Hardoi to interfere in the property of the Institution.

4. Submission of the learned Counsel for the petitioner is that Swami Vivekanand Ucchtar Madhyamic Vidyalaya, Hardoi [hereinafter referred to as "Institution"] was recognized from U.P. Board, Allahabad from 27.2.2006 for imparting education upto High School level. At the time of recognition, total strength of the students in the Institution was in accordance with rules in granting such recognition and sufficient teachers were discharging their duties in the Institution but in due course of time, some dispute arose between the Committee of Management and its Member resulting in reduction of strength of the student day by day. In the academic session started from 1st April, 2015, the strength of the students had become NIL and no student has come to get admission in the Institution.

5. Further submission of the learned Counsel for the petitioner is that on account of decrease in the strength of students, the income of the institution has also been reduced and it was impossible to make payment of salary of the teachers, therefore, teachers, who were posted in the Institution, had also resigned from the Institution. Therefore, the petitioner being a Manager of the Institution has no option except to move an application to the Educational Authorities for withdrawal of the recognition after due inspection. The Committee of Management has also resolved vide resolution dated 7.6.2015 for closing down the Institution. But as no heed was paid by the Educational Authorities, the petitioner has sent a reminder on 8.7.2015 with regard to make physical verification of the Institution and recognition be withdrawn.

6. Elaborating his submission, learned Counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the petitioner being a Manager of the Institution has purchased land of the Institution for doing agricultural work from its own pocket and earning from the agricultural work was utilized for the benefit of the Institution.

7. Elaborating his submission, learned Counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the petitioner being a Manager of the Institution has purchased land and the benefit earn from the said agricultural land was invested in the benefit of the Institution. He submits that as no action has been taken by the Educational Authorities, the petitioner has approached this Court by means of the present writ petition.

8. Feeling aggrieved by the inaction on the part of official respondents, the petitioner has no option except to knock the door of this Court.

9. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel has vehemently contended that Swami Vivekanand Shiksha Samiti, Akhtiyarpur, Bilgram runs the Institution, who is recognized unaided institution upto High School level. Under the provisions of Section 7 (Ka) (Ka) of the Intermediate Education Amendment Act, 1987, the recognition of the Institution have also been given by the Upper Sachiv, Madhyamik Shiksha Parishad, Regional Office, Allahabad vide its letter dated 27.2.2006. Submission is that the election of the general body/Managing Committee could not be held from the last several years, therefore, the Committee of Management of the Institution was declared as time barred from 27.2.2009. The election of the Committee of Management of the Institution was held vide order dated 23.6.2015 by the District Inspector of Schools, Hardoi, in which Sri Hasnain Nawab Jada was elected as Manager of the Institution and his signature was also verified by the District Inspector of Schools, therefore, presently, Sri Hasnain Nawab Jada is the Manager of the Institution.

10. Elaborating his submission, learned Standing Counsel has submitted that the petitioner himself declared as Manager of the Institution and without having any right, he submitted a proposal before the District Inspector of Schools with regard to withdrawal of the recognition of the institution, upon which the District Inspector of Schools did not pay any heed as there was no substance in the claim of the petitioner in the eyes of law. However, pursuant to the order of this Court dated 18.8.2015, the Joint Director, VI Region, Lucknow and the District Inspector of Schools, Hardoi made a spot inspection on 6.11.2015. On due inspection, the Joint Director, VI Region, Lucknow and the District Inspector of Schools, Hardoi, submitted report dated 11.12.2015, which indicates that the petitioner is unauthorizedly living in the first floor of the Institution and in the institution, apart from the Principal, who is the daughter of the petitioner, ten Assistant Teachers, One Clerk and one Peon have been shown in the attendance register.

11. In the backdrop of the aforesaid factual position, it has been vehemently contended that petitioner by wrongly imposing himself to be the Manager of the Institution has filed the present writ petition by concealing the material facts with oblique motive. Therefore, the present writ petition is the misuse of process of law and is liable to be dismissed with exemplary costs.

12. Mr. Rajendra Pratap Singh, learned Counsel for the opposite party No.7, while opposing the writ petition, has vehemently contended that on being declared the erstwhile Committee of Management as time-barred, the District Inspector of Schools, Hardoi, appointed an Observer for conducting the election of the Management in accordance with the provisions mentioned in the Scheme of Administration vide order dated 30.6.2015. Thereafter, election schedule was widely circulated and the election of Committee of Management of the Institution was held in the presence of Observer so appointed by the District Inspector of Schools on 5.7.2015. In the said election, Mr. Hasnain Nawab Jada was elected as Manager of the Institution, hence, the election dated 5.7.2015 was recognized and his signature was attested by the District Inspector of Schools vide letter dated 15.7.2015. Thereafter, the petitioner with mala fide intention has filed the present writ petition against the interest of the institution on the basis of false facts, alleging to be Manager of the institution and prayed for withdrawal of recognition of the institution on account of decreasing the strength of the students.

13. Clarifying the facts, Counsel for the opposite party No.7 has submitted that for the session 2014-15, in Class IX, there were 45 student and Class-X, there were 80 students, whereas in the session i.e. 2015-16, in Class IX, 21 students are enrolled and studying, while in Class X, 25 students are enrolled and studying.

14. So far as the contention of the learned Counsel for the petitioner that vide resolution 7.6.2015 (Annexure 3 to the writ petition), the Committee of Management has resolved that on account of reducing the strength of the Institution, the Institution be closed, learned Counsel for the opposite party No.7 has submitted that Annexure No.3 of the writ petition is a forged and fabricated document as on 7.6.2015, no meeting of the Committee of Management was held on account of non-existence and declaring time-barred of the Committee of Management on that date. In these backgrounds, submission is that the present writ petition has been filed by the petitioner against the interest of the Institution and is liable to be dismissed with heavy cost.

15. I have examined the submissions of the learned Counsel for the petitioners and gone through the records.

16. The present writ petition has been filed by the petitioner on 6.8.2015 by claiming himself as Manager of the Institution for withdrawal of the recognition of the Institution, whereas as per the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State as well as opposite party No.7, since the Committee of Management of the Institution was time-barred, therefore, the District Inspector of Schools appointed an Observer for conducting the election in accordance with the provisions of the Scheme of Administration on 30.6.2015. In the presence of the Observer, the election of the Committee of Management was held on 5.7.2015, in which, Mr. Hasnain Nawab Jada was elected as Manager of the Institution. Subsequently, the election dated 5.7.2015 was recognized and the signature of Mr. Hasnain Nawab Jada was attested by the District Inspector of Schools vide order dated 15.7.2015, as is evident from Annexure No. CA-3 of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the opposite party No.7.

17. From the aforesaid admitted facts, it transpires that the petitioner has deliberately with an oblique motive filed the present writ petition in the capacity of the Manager of the Institution, whereas Mr. Hasnain Nawab Jada had already been elected as the Manager of the Institution and his signatures were also attested by the District Inspector of Schools, therefore, it is beyond doubt that the present writ petition has been filed by the petitioner on the basis of incorrect facts with oblique motive.

18. In the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State, it has been mentioned that as per the record available on the website of Madhyamik Shiksha Parishad, U.P., Allahabad, 13 students of Class IX and 25 students of Class-X have been registered and their applications have been forwarded for examination in the academic session 2015-2016. In compliance of the order dated 18.8.2015 passed by this Court, spot inspection of the Institution was made by the Joint Director, VI Region, Lucknow and District Inspector of Schools, Hardoi on 6.11.2015, whereupon it was found that apart from the name of the Principal, the names of ten Assistant Teachers, one Clerk and One Peon have been mentioned in the attendance register and the petitioner is residing in the first floor of the institution.

19. Learned Standing Counsel, during the course of arguments, has also drawn towards the document contained at page No. 67 of the counter affidavit, which is the information published by the petitioner in the capacity of the Manager of the Institution with regard to sell the building and land of the Institution as classes for Class-IX & X were closed and, therefore, he has right to sell the building and land of the institution.

20. A specific query was put to the learned Counsel for the petitioner that as to why the petitioner has filed the present writ petition in the capacity of the Manager of the Institution, though at that relevant time, neither he was the Manager of the Institution or has any right to seek relief with regard to withdrawal of the recognition of the Institution, learned Counsel for the petitioner has failed to establish his statutory right/fundamental right, which are said to be violated by any authority. Moreover, when the petitioner had deliberately omitted to mention material facts in the writ petition, which amounts to suppression of material facts.

21. In Prestige Lights Ltd. v. State Bank of India : (2007) 8 SCC 449, the Apex Court held that in exercising power under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the High Court is not just a court of law, but is also a court of equity and a person who invokes the High Court's jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution is duty bound to place all the facts before the court without any reservation. If there is suppression of material facts or twisted facts have been placed before the High Court then it will be fully justified in refusing to entertain petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution. The Apex Court Court while referring to the judgment of Scrutton, LJ. in R v. Kensington Income Tax Commissioners, observed as under:-

"In exercising jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court will always keep in mind the conduct of the party who is invoking such jurisdiction. If the applicant does not disclose full facts or suppresses relevant materials or is otherwise-guilty of misleading the Court, then the Court may dismiss the action without adjudicating the matter on merits. The rule has been evolved in larger public interest to deter unscrupulous litigants from abusing the process of Court by deceiving it. The very basis of the writ jurisdiction rests in disclosure of true, complete and correct facts. If the material facts are not candidly stated or are suppressed or are distorted, the very functioning of the writ courts would become impossible."

22. In Welcome Hotel and Ors. v. State of Andhra Pradesh and Ors. etc. AIR 1983 SC 1015, the Apex Court has held that a party which has misled the Court in passing an order in its favour is not entitled to be heard on the merits of the case.

23. In K.D. Sharma v. Steel Authority of India Ltd. and Ors.,[2008 (12) SCC 481] the Apex Court has held that the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under Article 32 and of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution is extraordinary, equitable and discretionary and it is imperative that the petitioner approaching the Writ Court must come with clean hands and put forward all the facts before the Court without concealing or suppressing anything and seek an appropriate relief. If there is no candid disclosure of relevant and material facts or the petitioner is guilty of misleading the Court, his petition may be dismissed at the threshold without considering the merits of the claim. The same rule was reiterated in G. Jayshree and Ors. v. Bhagwandas S. Patel and Ors.: (2009) 3 SCC 141.

24. In a recent decision of Dalip Singh Versus State of Uttar Pradesh and others [(2010) 2 Supreme Court Cases 114], the Apex Court seriously criticized the making of false statement on oath and the attempt of a litigant in misleading the Court.

25. It is settled law that one should approach the court with clean heart and clean mind to get a relief and one who does not come with clean heart and clean mind dis-entitles himself from getting any relief from the Court. From what has been mentioned above, it is clear that the petitioner has filed this writ petition with oblique motives and has not presented the correct facts just to gain undue advantage. Such type of practice should always be discouraged and is highly deprecated. They belong to the category of persons who not only attempt, but succeed in polluting the course of justice.

26. In Ram Preeti Yadav Vs. U.P. Board of High School and Intermediate Education and others, 2003 (Suppl.) 3 SCR 352, it was reiterated after referring to various earlier decisions of the Apex Court that fraud, misrepresentation and concealment of material fact vitiates all solemn acts. In State of Andhra Pradesh & another Vs. T. Suryachandra Rao, AIR 2005 SC 3110, the Apex Court after referring to various earlier decisions held that suppression of a material document would also amount to a fraud on the Court. The same view has been reiterated in Bhaurao Dagdu Paralkar Vs. State of Maharashtra & others, AIR 2005 SC 3330. In R. Vishwanatha Pillai Vs. State of Kerala & others, JT 2004(1) SC 88 the Apex Court observed that a person, who seeks equity, must act in a fair and equitable manner. In Rajabhai Abdul Rehman Munshi Vs. Vasudev Dhanjibhai Mody, AIR 1964 SC 345, it was held that if there appears on the part of a person, who has approached the Court, any attempt to overreach or mislead the Court by false or untrue statements or by withholding true information which would have a bearing on the question of exercise of the discretion, the Court would be justified in refusing to exercise the discretion or if the discretion has been exercised in revoking the leave to appeal granted even at the time of hearing of the appeal. The same view was reiterated and followed in Vijay Syal & another Vs. State of Punjab & others (2003) 9 SCC 401.

27. In the instant case, the petitioner in paragraph 3 of the writ petition has stated in clear words that the petitioner is a elected Manager of Swami Vivekanand Higher Secondary School Bilgram, Hardoi. On coming to know about the filing of the instant writ petition, the elected Manager of Committee of Management of the Institution, namely, Hasnain Navab Zada filed an application for impleadment together with an application for dismissal of the writ petition on account of non-joinder of necessary parties. In the affidavit filed in support of application, it has been stated that the petitioner is in habit of indulging in filing frivolous writ petitions. As a matter of fact on the basis of undisputed electoral college of the society, the election was held on 5.7.2015 under the supervision of the nominated Observed, namely, Sri R.K.Rao, Principal, GIC Tariyawan,Hardoi in which one Shri Ram was elected as president whereas Sri Hasnanin Navab Zada was elected as Manager apart from the other office bearers.

28. The aforesaid facts made by the opposite party no.7 have been substantiated by the DIOS, Hardoi in the counter affidavit filed on behalf of opposite parties nos. 3 and 4. In paragraph 10 and 17 of the counter affidavit it has been stated that the petitioner has unauthorizedly declared himself as the Manager of the College and indirectly making postal correspondence for initiating proceeding against the college concerned. It has further been stated that the school land is recorded in the name of Committee of Management/Institute in the revenue record. Thus, it is imminently clear that absolutely incorrect and twisted statements have been made on oath with an oblique motive and has misused the process of law by filing successive writ petitions on flimsy grounds.

29. A litigant who has approached this Court in extra ordinary equitable jurisdiction with unclean hands, his conduct makes him liable to pay an exemplary cost for abusing the process of the Court besides wasting precious time of the Court which could have been utilized for other more deserving cases. Moreover, he is also guilty of swearing a false affidavit. Thus the petitioner must be saddled with the liability of heavy cost so that in future such thing may not recur.

30. In view of the aforesaid detailed facts and reasons, the writ petition is dismissed with cost of Rs.5,00,000/- (Rupees Five Lacs). The petitioner will deposit the aforesaid cost within two months from today before the Registry of this Court, failing which, the Senior Registrar of this Court shall request the District Magistrate/Collector concerned to recover the said cost as arrears of land revenue from the petitioner within next one month. On receipt of the said cost, the Senior Registrar shall transmit half of the amount to the account of Mediation and Conciliation Centre of this Court and remaining half to the account of Oudh Bar Association for purchase of books of its Library.

Contempt Application (Criminal) No.- 17 Of 2015

In Re ...Applicant

Versus

Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava, Advocate & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Applicant:
A.G.A., Sudhir Mehrotra

Counsel for the Respondents:
Dharam Pal Singh, Sr. Advocate, S.C. Dwivedi, A.K. Srivastava, Avanish Mishra, B.N. Singh, S. Niranjan, Suresh Gupta, U.K. Saxena

Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 — Ss. 2(c) & 10 — Criminal contempt by advocates — Assault and manhandling of judicial officer in Court — Advocates led by office-bearers of Bar Association forcibly entered Court room of Additional District & Sessions Judge, shouted slogans, abused Presiding Officer, threw CPU and pen holders, damaged Court property and physically manhandled judicial officer — Held, such acts scandalized Court, lowered dignity and authority of judiciary and substantially interfered with administration of justice, squarely constituting "criminal contempt" under S. 2(c) of Act, 1971.

Advocates — Duty as officers of Court — Maintenance of dignity of judicial institution — Court reiterated that advocates, being officers of Court, are duty bound to preserve majesty, decorum and authority of judicial institution — Even if grievance exists against conduct of judicial officer, remedy lies in lawful recourse and not in disrupting Court proceedings, damaging property or intimidating Presiding Officer.

Contempt Jurisdiction — Criminal contempt vis-à-vis offences under Penal Code — Mere fact that allegations may also constitute offences under IPC such as assault, mischief or obstruction of public servant does not bar contempt proceedings — Conduct scandalizing Court and lowering public confidence in judiciary independently attracts jurisdiction under Contempt of Courts Act, 1971.
Evidence — Video recording in contempt proceedings — Admissibility and evidentiary value — Silent video recording prepared contemporaneously by Presiding Officer depicting forcible entry, ransacking and disturbance in Court room considered along with witness statements — Held, strict provisions of Evidence Act and CrPC not applicable to contempt proceedings; substance and credibility of evidence relevant for determining contemptuous conduct.

Contempt of Court — Apology — Principles governing acceptance — Conditional apology tendered simultaneously with allegations against Presiding Officer and denial of misconduct held lacking bona fides — Apology not to be used as weapon of defence to escape punishment and must reflect genuine contrition and repentance.

Judicial Independence — Duty of High Court — Protection of subordinate judiciary — High Court emphasized constitutional obligation to ensure dignity, independence and fearless functioning of subordinate judiciary — No litigant or advocate can be permitted to tarnish administration of justice by intimidation or vilification of judicial officers.

Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 — Punishment — Sentencing — Advocates found guilty of criminal contempt sentenced to six months' simple imprisonment and fine of Rs 2,000/- each — Further direction issued restraining contemnors from entering Judgeship premises for one year and placing future conduct under supervision of District Judge.

In Result: Contempt application partly allowed; Contemnors 1, 3, 4, 7, 8, 9 and 10 convicted for criminal contempt and sentenced to six months' simple imprisonment with fine; proceedings against Contemnors 2, 5 and 6 dropped.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Criminal contempt proceedings were initiated against 10 Contemnors namely :Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava, Advocate (Contemnor no.1); Arvind Kumar Gautam, Advocate (Contemnor no.2); Gyanendra Singh Rajawat, Advocate (Contemnor no.3); Suresh Dixit, Advocate (Contemnor no.4); Raghunath Das Bishnoi, Advocate (Contemnor no.5); Yusuf Ishtiyaq, Advocate (Contemnor no.6); Karmksheta Awasthi, Advocate (Contemnor no.7); Aftab Ahmad, Advocate (Contemnor no.8); Udai Shankar Dwivedi, Advocate (Contemnor no.9); and, Pankaj Gupta, Advocate (Contemnor no.10), pursuant to an inquiry report of an incident took place on 20th November, 2014 in the afternoon, in District Judgeship Jalaun at Orai in the Court of Manoj Kumar Shukla, Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Jalaun at Orai (hereinafter referred to as "Informant-Presiding Officer").

2. The advocates alongwith the aforesaid Contemnors pressurized Informant-Presiding Officer to retire in Chamber since advocates had passed a resolution of abstention and when he resented, advocates manhandled, assaulted and insulted him. Informant-Presiding Officer narrated the entire incident to Administrative Judge on telephone and also said that District Judge did not take any appropriate action in the matter. On the recommendation of Administrative Judge, Chief Justice vide order dated 21.11.2014 directed a fact finding inquiry, which was conducted by Sri Virendra Kumar-II, Special Officer (Vigilance), High Court, Allahabad [hereinafter referred to as "S.O. (Vig.)"] and he submitted report on 17.12.2014. The report was accepted by Administrative Committee of Court and in the light of the findings recorded by S.O.(Vig.), matter was assigned to Committee dealing with contempt reference from subordinate courts.

3. On 23.02.2015, Committee, prima facie finding a case of criminal contempt, made recommendation whereupon Chief Justice vide order dated 28.3.2015 directed the matter to be placed before Court on judicial side having jurisdiction of criminal contempt.

4. On 7th May, 2015, Court noticing the fact that Contemnors have been found to abuse informant-Presiding Officer, shouted slogans and assaulted him by throwing CPU of computer and pen holder, creating ruckus and ransacked dais of Court, and in the incident some advocates also sustained injuries, found prima facie case of 'criminal contempt' against the aforesaid advocates since their aforesaid acts amount to scandalizing the Court, interfering and obstructing administration of justice, tarnishing image of Court and lowering down dignity and authority of Court, issued notice requiring them to show cause why they may not be punished for committing contempt.

5. Contemnors appeared before Court on 7th July, 2015 represented by Sri Dharam Pal Singh, Senior Advocate, who requested to supply a copy of enquiry report dated 17.12.2014. Court issued direction to this effect.

6. Contemnors then filed replies and after perusing the same, Court framed charge against Contemnors on 24.8.2015, which reads as under :

"You, Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava, Arvind Kumar Gautam, Gyanendra Singh Rajawat, Suresh Dixit, Raghunath Das Bishnoi, Yusuf Ishtiyaq, Karmkshetra Awasthi, Aftab Ahmad, Udai Shankar Dwivedi and Pankaj Gupta, Advocates, who are all stated to be practising lawyers and also associated with the District Bar Association of Jalaun at Orai on 20th November, 2014 at about 12.45 p.m. forcibly entered Court No. 3 presided over by Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla, the Additional District & Sessions Judge and shouted slogans using unparliamentary language and assaulted him physically by throwing items on his dais thereby creating a ruckus and ransacked the court resulting in injuries sustained by some of the advocates in the court room that left the court scandalized thereby lowering the esteem of the judiciary. The said incident therefore amounts to a clear interference with and an obstruction in the administration of justice and such act substantially interferes with the due course of justice which falls within the definition of criminal contempt under Section 2(c) of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 and, therefore, this court is of the prima facie opinion that you contemnors deserve to be tried for having committed the criminal contempt of the subordinate court as reported for which you deserve to be punished." (emphasis added)

7. Applications were filed thereafter by Contemnors requesting to supply copies of statements recorded by S.O. (Vig.) on the basis whereof report dated 17.12.2014 was submitted and also a video footage, which was taken note in the said report. Court accepted the said request and vide order dated 01.9.2015, directed to supply the aforesaid material to Contemnors.

8. Though a large number of advocates had put in appearance on behalf of Contemnors but Sri Dharam Pal Singh, Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Anil Kumar Srivastava has advanced submissions on behalf of all the Contemnors except Contemnor no.5 on whose behalf Sri Avnish Mishra has advanced his submissions. Besides Sudhir Mehrotra, Special Counsel, nominated by Court to assist in this matter, has also advanced his submissions.

9. Having heard learned counsel for parties, perusing video footage and other documents and considering affidavits filed by Contemnors and other relevant material, we proceed to deal with matter on merits. The defence taken by Contemnors in the affidavits and merits would be discussed simultaneously.

10. Informant-Presiding Officer came to be posted at Jalaun at Orai and joined thereat on 15th March, 2014. He was designated as Special Judge, E.C. Act. On 23.04.2014, General Secretary on behalf of District Jalaun Bar Association Orai (hereinafter referred to as "Bar Association") sent a letter to District Judge complaining against behaviour of Informant-Presiding Officer and stated that members of Bar Association shall abstain judicial work from 24.04.2014. Another letter dated 25.04.2014 sent to Administrative Judge of Judgeship requesting that in the month of May and June, Court's time be made in morning from 6 A.M. to 1 P.M. instead 10 A.M. to 5 P.M. and it was also said that Informant-Presiding Officer was not working properly and advocates are abstaining Court from 24.04.2014.

11. Subsequently Sri Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava came to be elected as President of Bar Association. A communication dated 18.10.2014 of Secretary, Bar Association was issued to Advocates that Court of Informant-Presiding Officer shall be boycotted till he is transferred outside the District and said communication was also endorsed to District Judge. Vide letter dated 21.10.2014, it was forwarded by Sri Vinod Kumar Yadav, District Judge, Jalaun at Orai to this Court.

12. On 20.11.2014, following massage was received on the mobile of the then Administrative Judge of District Judgeship Jalaun at Orai from informant-Presiding Officer :

"Respected Lordship,

Today at 12.45 p.m. Advocate Pradumn Kumar Srivastava, President of Bar and his colleagues attacked on Court and beaten me and the D.J. is not taking any action*.*

M.K.Shukla, ADJ 3" (emphasis added)

13. Thereupon Administrative Judge referred the matter to Chief Justice and also vide letter dated 20.11.2014 directed District Judge concerned to take appropriate action and inform immediately.

14. On 21.11.2014, Registrar General submitted note before Chief Justice as under :

"1. The under-signed made telephonic inquiries about the incident mentioned in the said letter, it was established that the said incident has taken place*.*

2. The lawyers of the Bar Association of District Jalaun at Orai were boycotting the court of Sri Shukla for approximately thirty days*.*

3. On 20.11.2014 Sri Shukla was sitting in the Court and a mob of lawyers had manhandled him though the District Judge telepathically informed the undersigned that two P.A.C. Personnel were posted there, but it appears that none had come to protect the officer.

4. That there appears serious lapses in making security arrangement for the safety of Sri Shukla." (emphasis added)

15. Chief Justice thereupon ordered spot inquiry and this was conducted by S.O. (Vig.), who submitted his 94 pages report.

16. Statements of Court Reader, Orderly and a Class IV employee, were recorded by S.O. (Vig.). Perusal thereof show that at about 12.45 P.M., Informant-Presiding Officer was sitting on the dias when several Advocates entered Court room, shouting slogans, threw CPU of computer and pen-holder towards Informant-Presiding Officer; Table glass and and pen holders were broken and files fell down and scattered. Due to ruckus created by advocates, Informant - Presiding Officer got down from dias whereupon advocates gripped and dragged him out of Court in Varandah. In this ruckus some advocates also sustained injuries. In the process when advocates gripped informant-Presiding Officer and manhandled him, he also got indulged in scuffle.

17. S.O. (Vig.) for the purpose of inquiry formulated following three points :

"1. Whether Sri Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava, the President Bar Association, Jalaun at Orai along with his colleagues attacked on 20.11.2014 in the Court of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla, Special Officer (Gangster Act)/Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No. 03, Jalaun at Orai and he was man handled by these advocates*?*

2. Whether the then District Judge Sri Vinod Kumar Yadav did not provide proper security to Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla and provoked learned counsels to beat him up*?*

3. Whether on 20.11.2014 at about 12:30 Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla himself along with his gunner and ten constable of P.A.C. assaulted on the member advocates of delegations with kicks, fists and gun and constable of P.A.C. Beaten-up the learned acvocates with sticks and caused injuries to them while these advocates went to inform about the resolution passed in general meeting on 20.11.2014 at about 11:00 a.m.?"

18. After referring to evidence collected by him, he recorded his conclusion and findings as under :

*"Conclusion :

On the basis of above discussions and appreciation of the evidence of the witnesses, I have arrived at the following conclusions:-

E.W. 12 Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla, E.W. 48 Sri Shailendra Kumar Sharma, E.W. 37 - HCP 142 Sri Santosh Kumar Sachan, Pairokar of the police station Rampura, E.W. 31 - Sri Arvind Kumar Srivastava, Senior Prosecuting Officer, E.W.18 - Sri Ram Jiyawan Shukla and E.W. 26 - Sri Neeraj Mishra, Class-IV Employees have proved the incident dated 20.10.2014, stating that some advocates had arrived reached in the Court and thrown a bag towards the dais, which dropped between reader and the presiding officer. E.W. 48 - Reader has clarified this fact the learned advocates and the presiding officer had conversation in high volumes of voice, some senior advocates along with Court Moharir took these advocates and accused person out side the court, when the court was vacated by these persons, someone locked the court outside. After one hour this lock was opened by someone. E.W. 48 - clarified this fact that they were detained in the Court Room during this period. After opening of lock further dates were fixed in presence of accused persons.

The learned advocates have conveyed this fact that on 20.11.2014, a resolution was passed at about 11:00 a.m. in the general meeting of the District Bar Association, which was handed over at about 11:15 a.m. by the delegation of Bar Association to the District Judge, then the delegation informed the various courts about boycott and reached at about 12:30 p.m. At the court of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla. Video recording made by him also shows time of recording on 20.11.2014 time at about 01:04:08. They have refuted this suggestion that delegation of the Bar association went straightway to the court of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla, after visiting the chamber of the District Judge.

The learned advocates have stated that Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla has passed orders arbitrarily and illegally. He has insulted the litigants and learned advocates in the open court. They have quoted an example of his misbehave that Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla told a litigant in presence of Sri Devendra Ved, Senior Advocate, while he was conducting cross examination that why he has engaged learned advocate, he will cause damage to him and he would be convicted. On the same day, Sri Devendra Ved, sustained cardiac attack. The learned advocates have forwarded complaint written as well as oral regarding misbehave of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla to the District Bar Association. The learned advocates have also clarified this fact that most of the learned advocates are not satisfied with the working of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla.

Finding on Issue No.01.

The learned advocates entered in the Court room of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla forcefully and attacked on 20.11.2014 at about 12:45 - 01:00 p.m. on him while he was sitting on the dias.

Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla has named Sri Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava, the president of the District Bar Association, Arvind Kumar Singh, Rajawat, Suresh Dixit, Raghunath Dass Bishnoi and Yusuf Ishtiyaq who abused him*, shouted slogans and assaulted him by throwing CPU of computer, pen holder and beaten him up.*

I have watched video recording produced by Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla. It revealed that Sri Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava, Advocate, E.W.1 the President and E.W. 02 Sri Arvind Kumar Gautam, Advocate, General secretary of the District Bar Association along with 10-15 advocates entered forcefully and created ruckus and ransacked the dais of the court of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla E.W.1 - Sri Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava, Sri Gyanendra Singh Rajawat, E.W.-08 - Sri Suresh Dixit, E.W.43 - Sri Karma Kshetra Awasthi, Sri Aftab Ahmad, E.W.-4, Sri Udai Shanker Dwivedi, Sri Pankaj Gupta, Advocates sustained injuries in this incident dated 20-11-2014 is established, which shows they have participated actively in this incident*. Therefore, proceeding of the contempt of the court of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla should be drawn against these learned advocates.*

E.W.36 - Constable No. 65 - Sri Abir Singh Court Moharir of the Court of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla also sustained injuries, while he was trying to save Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla*. He has also clarified this fact that only two P.A.C personnels armed with rifles were present at the point of time of incident dated 20-11-2014.*

E.W.36 and E.W.15 - Sri Raj Kumar Segar, E.W. 16 - Sri Member Singh, P.A.C. Personnel, E.W.17 Sri Ramesh Chandra Bhadauria, Reader, E.W. 18 Sri Raj Jiyawan Shukla and E.W. 26 - Sri Neerj Mishra, Class IV Employees and E.W.31 - Senior Prosecuting Officer has proved this fact that no baton charge was made on the learned advocates and these employees tried to save Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla during the course of incident dated 20-11-2014.

E.W. 32 - Sri Girja Shanker Dwivedi and Sri E.W.34 - Sri Kamal Kant Kushwaha, have clarified this fact that on 20-11-2014, no baton charge was made on learned advocates only slap and fists were used during thrashing each other. E.W. 34 has stated that police personnels were not having sticks. E.W. 38 - Sri Ashok Kumar Mishra, Advocate has clarified this fact that Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla gripped and thrashed only one advocate E.W.47 - Sri Sanjeev Kumar Gurjar, Assistant Government counsel of the Court of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla has also clarified this fact that Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla had abused learned advocates only, he did not see anyone to thrash each other. No F.I.R. Has been lodged yet and no injury report of any learned advocate has been produced before me, who sustained injuries in the incident dated 20.11.2014.

Finding on Point No.3

1. It is pertinent to mention here that on the basis of appreciation of evidence of the above mentioned witnesses and fact and circumstances narrated by them, it revealed that Sri Manoj Shukla after attack on him got down from the dais and abused learned advocates who entered in the court room. Meanwhile, advocates gripped him and dragged towards Varandah outside his court and manhandled and abused him also. Thus Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla has also provoked learned advocates and indulge in scuffle with those advocates.

Work and conduct of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla.

On persual of comments dated 17-04-2014, it is clearly established that Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla had protested against the then District Judge, because he was not satisfied with the allotment of his residence and shifting of his court room. Likewise, the then District Judge had discharged him from the responsibility as the Officer In- charge of Library and Nodal Officer of Computers. The reasons mentioned by him regarding the irregularities committed for the purchase of oil, toner of ink cartridge for computer printer and judgment paper and other stationery items and non availability of new edition of books at library, may likely be correct, even then it is inferred from the facts mentioned in this comments that Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla was not satisfied with the allotment of his official accommodation and shifting of his court.

The incident dated 24.04.2014 occurred at night at the guest house of Irrigation Department has been conjoined by Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla with the facts of recall of Civil Appeal No. 50 of 2012 - Smt. Khillan Devi Vs. State of U.P. which is not acceptable, because Civil Appeal No. 50 of 2012 was related to section 72 Excise Act, which could have only he heard by the District Judge as held by Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad and Uttranchal (Uttrakahnd) High Court.

On perusal of the documentary evidence produced by E.W. -40 - Sri Harnath Singh, Senior Advocate, it revealed that it may be possible that office bearer of the District Bar Association tried to pressurize Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla to obtain favorable orders n their favour and members advocate of their group. There is substance in the statement of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla that he was pressurized by learned advocates, whose name has been mentioned by him in his statement of procure judicial order/judgment in their favour.

Therefore, on the basis of evidence of E.W. 40 Sri Harnath Singh, Senior Advocate, E.W.-45 Sri Raja Ram Chaturvedi and E.W. 46 Sri Rajesh Kumar, Advocate, it revealed that office bearer of the District Bar Association and some other advocates of their groups were not satisfied with the way of working of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla and they could not be successful to pressurize him therefore, they carried on boycott the court of Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla from 18.10.2014.

Learned advocates have conveyed this fact that no complaint was received at the Bar Association that Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla has decided cases by receiving bribe. He is not a corrupt judicial officer.

Point in issue no.2.

Findings :

On the basis of these facts and circumstances inference may be drawn safely that Sri Vinod Kumar Yadav, the then District Judge, Jalaun at Orai has facilitated learned advocates to carry on boycott of judicial work of his court, during the period from 20.10.2014 up to 20.11.2014 and to commit incident on these dates.

19. Now we may refer to the replies filed by Contemnors.

20. Except Contemnor 5 Raghunath Das Vishnoi, a collective reply vide affidavit of Contemnor 1, sworn on 24.8.2015, has been filed. It is said that the incident dated 20.11.2014 has not happened in the manner as alleged by 'Informant-Presiding Officer' and recorded by S.O.(Vig.) in his report. Contemnors neither abused nor assaulted Informant-Presiding Officer nor damaged court's property. The video recording, which was prepared by Informant-Presiding Officer, has been wrongly relied by S.O.(Vig.) ignoring the fact that such recording in Court is not permissible and it goes a long way to suggest/determine the own conduct of Informant-Presiding Officer. Video recording was shown to S.O. (Vig.) on 26/27.11.2014 i.e. after a gap of 6-7 days giving sufficient opportunity for manipulation in video recording. The preparation/recording of video by manipulation by several device including device of cut paste is a common feature, which the modern development of science has made easily possible. With regard to injuries sustained by some advocates, inquiry report does not refer to medical report of anyone else. Recording of Video through laptop at the time of alleged occurrence was practically not possible. Video recording timing is 01:04:08 p.m. on 20.11.2014 whereas the incident is said to have taken place between 12:45 to 1.00 p.m.

21. Then in paras 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 of affidavit, allegations are made against Informant-Presiding Officer and it would be appropriate to reproduce the same as under :

"15. That the bare perusal of the Inquiry Report would show that the learned Judge, Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla appears to be Modern Don Quijote-de-la Mancha. He posses himself to be a fighter treating all others as wrong and full of vices. He has complaint against all possible authorities i.e. District Judge, Police Authorities including S.S.P., District Administration including District Magistrate, prosecution lawyers and lowyers in general and litigants*, who unfortunately happen to be attending the court of the Learned Judge, Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla. Sri Shukla is in the habit of issuing notices to all possible authorities in almost every case. He is in the habit of teasing the litigants, not only in criminal cases, but also in civil cases. Inspite of receiving High Court's order of bail keeping the accused in jail for weeks is his usual habit.* To call Advocates, "Dalal" of District Judge and other Judicial is his daily practice*. All these facts came to the light during inquiry proceeding by the Learned Vigilance Officer.*

16. That it has also come in the inquiry report that Learned Judge, Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla is in the habit of abusing his own staff, like his stenographer.

17. That the evidence of EW-23 Sri Umesh Dixit, Stenographer of Learned Judge, Sri Monoj Kumar Shukla discussed at Page 259 to 261 is sufficient to show/prove that the Learned Judge, Sri Manoj Shukla himself responsible for what happened on the day of occurrence. In view of the evidence of EW-23, the observations of the Learned Vigilance Officer with respect to the Issue No.01 are subject to more than one interpretation and not justified.

18. That the Learned Vigilance Officer has clearly found that the Learned Judge, Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla has manipulated/ prepared false evidence against the then Learned District Judge, and S.S.P. Jalaun at Orai (Kindly see at page no.203 of the inquiry report).

19. That the Learned Vigilance Officer has also observed (page 275 - 276) that he could not peruse the inquiry report dated 28.06.2014 and the letter dated 24.04.2014 submitted by Sri Vinod Kumar Yadav, the then district Judge, Sri Manoj Kumar Shukla.

20. That regarding the work and conduct of Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava made by Learned Vigilance Officer at page 276 of report, it is submitted here that Pradhuman Kumar Srivastava (present deponent) has never been served with a copy of any show cause notice with respect to the Transfer Application (Civil) No. 501 of 2014 filed before this Hon'ble Court. To the best of knowledge of the deponent, he has never written any letter dated 20.09.2014 is filed in the aforesaid case. If any such letter dated 20.09.2014 is filed in the aforesaid transfer application, the same is denied by the deponent. It appears that (if at all) aforesaid letter dated 20.09.2014 is a forged document prepared and produced by the parties to the litigation."

22. All these paragraphs have been sworn by Contemnor no.1- deponent of the affidavit, on personal knowledge.

23. Contemnor 5, Raghunath Das Bisnoi had filed a separate reply through Sri Suresh Gupta, Advocate, and Sri V.P.Srivastava, Senior Advocate. A preliminary objection is taken that as per Rule 6 of Chapter XXXV-E of Rules of the Court, 1952 (hereinafter referred to as "1952 Rules"), notice has not accompanied copy of SMS message sent by Informant-Presiding Officer, statement of witnesses and other documents. In the message sent by Informant-Presiding Officer, Contemnor 5 was not referred or named. Inquiry report shows that offence under Section 228 read with 323 IPC was committed, hence, in view of proviso to Section 10 of Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1971"), no cognizance could have been taken. The Informant - Presiding Officer ought to have lodged a complaint under Section 340 Cr.P.C. S.O. (Vig.) did not frame any issue regarding identity of persons actually involved in the incident dated 18.11.2014 (though incident given rise to this criminal contempt is dated 20.11.2014 but in para 3(IV), Contemnor no.5 has mentioned the date of incident as 18.11.2014). In detailed reply, it is said that S.O. (Vig.) has taken note of various incidents occurred during 20.10.2014 to 24.11.2014 though the inquiry was confined to the incident dated 20.11.2014. Contemnor 5 neither participated in the incident nor was present in the Court nor in the vicinity of Court of Informant - Presiding Officer. Wife of Contemnor 5 is a patient of Multiple Myeloma (Blood Cancer) for the last three years and under treatment of Experts of Apollo Cancer Institute, New Delhi; Tata Memorial Hospital, Mumbai; Vendanta Hospital Gurgaon, Haryana and Rajeev Gandhi Research Institute, New Delhi.

24. Contemnor 5 had no time to indulge himself in politics of Bar Association and appears in Court when his case is taken up in respective Courts. On 20.11.2014, when resolution was passed by Association, Contemnor 5 was neither present nor signed the said resolution. Informant - Presiding Officer has personal grudge against Contemnor 5 since he was making several complaints under a wrong impression that Contemnor 5 provoked advocates for strike/demonstration against him at the instance of Sri Vinod Kumar Yadav, the then District Judge. The fact is that in three cases, narrated by Informant - Presiding Officer, neither Contemnor 5 was counsel nor had filed any transfer application. Informant - Presiding Officer has not named Contemnor 5 in the message sent to Administrative Judge on mobile and inclusion of his name is an after thought for some other reasons. None of the witnesses mentioned name of Contemnor 5 or his presence in the Court. S.O. (Vig.) himself has found Informant - Presiding Officer guilty of lying in chambers for 7-8 hours and misbehaving with his own staff. S.O. (Vig.) has used the word "patient of psychiatry" for Informant - Presiding Officer. No attempt has been made by S.O. (Vig.) to identify the advocates, allegedly involved in the incident.

25. After framing of charge, Contemnors have filed their replies and we may refer the same in brief as under :

26. Contemnor 1: Denying the charge, he has said that in case he is found guilty, he is offering his unconditional apology. However, it is said that S.O. (Vig.), who has relied on statements of (1) EW - 15 - Sri Raj Kumar Sengar (PAC); (2) EW - 16 - Sri Member Singh (PAC); (3) EW - 17 - Sri Ramesh Chandra Bhadauriya - Reader of the Court; (4) EW - 18 - Ram Jiyawan Shukla- Ardaly of the Court; (5) EW - 26 - Sri Neeraj Mishra - Office Peon of the Court; (6) EW - 31 - Sri Arvind Kumar Tiwari - Senior Prosecuting Officer; (7) EW - 32 - Sri Girja Shanker Dwivedi - An Advocate of long standing at Orai Courts; (8) EW - 34 - Sri Kamal Kant Kushwaha - Advocate at Orai Courts; (9) EW - 36 - CP Abeer Singh- Court Moharir of IIIrd A.D.J.; and (10) EW - 47 - Sri Sanjeev Kumar Gurjar - Assistant Government Counsel (ADGC); and if all these statements are taken together, the real picture of occurrence is not clear and free from doubt. There is a witness EW - 23 - Umesh Chandra Dixit, Court Stenographer, whose statement is otherwise. EW - 36 - CP Abir Singh, stated that Informant - Presiding Officer threatened him to depose against Contemnors. EW - 47 - Sanjeev Kumar Gurjar, ADGC, has also deposed against Informant - Presiding Officer. Video recording is nothing but a silent recording and is a manipulated act of Informant - Presiding Officer. The purpose is to remove remarks or abuses or vulgar and unparliamentary statements of Informant - Presiding Officer. The facility of video recording on laptop was not available to subordinate judiciary and the very fact that video recording has been made, shows conduct of Informant - Presiding Officer. Video recording only shows that Police Personnel were trying to obstruct entries of lawyers. Even if lawyers were trying to enter Court room, it cannot be said that purpose of lawyers was to interfere in administration of justice. Advocates are free to move in Court and their entry could not have been obstructed. The presence of Contemnor 1 has not been proved by any independent evidence. Work and conduct of Informant

- Presiding Officer itself was objectionable and even if he was not a corrupt officer, he had no licence to misbehave with others. The comments and findings recorded by S.O. (Vig.) against Presiding Officer fortify this inference.

27. Contemnor 5 in his separate affidavit has stated that in the statements given by various witnesses, who are employees of the Court, Police Personnel or Government Advocates i.e. EW-15, 16, 17, 20, 23, 24, 26, 31, 36 and 42, his presence has not been found at the time of incident. Contemnor 5 has been falsely implicated by Informant - Presiding Officer.

28. Contemnor 6 is 68 years of age and has a practice in law for the last 40 years. Against Informant-Presiding Officer, two complaints were made thereupon District Judge made inquiry and submitted report but no action has been taken by Court, which encouraged Informant-Presiding Officer to behave arrogantly and use derogatory words to the advocates and others. In Special Trial No.73 of 2005 (State Vs. Navi Bux) under Section 135 Electricity Act, P.S. Kotwali Orai, Contemnor 6 was appearing as counsel for accused and vide judgment dated 22.04.2014, Court convicted accused and sentenced for two years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.75,000/-. The judgment was delivered at 3:30 P.M. Contemnor 6 prepared applications for providing certified copy of judgment, and to stay fine and enlarge accused on bail. The applications were not received in the Court and instead Informant-Presiding Officer retired to his Chamber. Ultimately, accused was released on bail by High Court in Criminal Appeal. Contemnor 6 personally met District Judge and made complaint against conduct and behaviour of Informant-Presiding Officer. He also moved an application before President, Bar Association on 22.4.2014 whereupon resolution to boycott judicial work of Court of Informant - Presiding Officer was passed from 24.4.2014 to 30.04.2014. For this reason, Informant - Presiding Officer got annoyed with Contemnor 6 and included his name in the present criminal contempt matter. On 20.11.2014, when the incident took place, Contemnor 6 was in the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate in Case No.2052 of 2013, Roop Singh Vs. Rakesh & Ors., under Sections 147, 148, 323, 307, 504, 506 IPC, P.S. Kalpi, District Jalaun. Contemnor 6 is not shown in the video footage and none has named him except Informant-Presiding Officer. Contemnor 6 is in legal practice for the last 40 years and all employees are well known by him by his name and fact. If Contemnor 6 would have been present in the Court, then the employees of Court would have immediately identify him and told his name.

29. Contemnor 9 in his separate affidavit/reply has stated that neither in any report of S.O. (Vig.) nor in video recording there is anything to implicate him and there is nothing to show his presence in the Court. Further video recording is not admissible in evidence as there is no voice hence it is a tempered evidence. When the incident occurred, Contemnor 9 was in the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate and was coming from that Court. Then again some allegations are made against Informant - Presiding Officer.

30. Contemnors 2, 3, 4, 7, 8, and 10, have filed their replies, though separately, but taken stand similar to the reply given by Contemnor 1 hence we are not repeating the same.

31. When the matter was taken up for arguments, learned Senior Advocate appearing for Contemnors, except Contemnor 5, stated that defence taken by Contemnors in their affidavit may be perused by the Court. No argument with regard to legal or preliminary objection has been advanced and instead it is said that entire material on record show that even if some incident has taken place on the fateful day, advocates are not solely responsible for the same but there was ample contribution on the part of Informant - Presiding Officer. It is in these facts and circumstances, Court may examine the matter and take a decision so as to do justice throughout.

32. Learned Senior Advocate fairly stated that being an officer of Court, it is the bounden duty of all advocates to ensure that majesty and authority of Court is maintained by all concerned. Whatever may be the reason, no one has any justification to create a scene in Court, disturb court proceedings, raise slogans and address Court in an abusive manner and all these things are unpardonable. Since these activities are found to lower down authority of Court in the eyes of general public, it may have a serious impact on the very authority of institution. People have great faith and confidence in the institution of justice. Officers of the Court i.e. advocates, therefore, are duty bound to maintain absolute dignity, majesty and authority of the Court and behave in a proper disciplined manner. Even if there is some wanting conduct on the part of Informant - Presiding Officer at a particular point of time, the remedy lies elsewhere but not by creating a scene in Court i.e. by destroying the items kept in Court or by showing disrespect to the Chair. When a contemptuous conduct is shown in Court, it is not to show disrespect or to lower down authority of an individual but the institution and the Court itself, therefore, anybody, if has adopted ways and means having effect of lowering down authority of Court, is open to face appropriate action under the Provisions of Act, 1971. Having said so, learned Senior Advocate, however, submitted that all Contemnors implicated in this matter are not guilty of allegations levelled against them, and, in any case, there is no sufficient evidence to show that all ten Contemnors were present at the time of incident and did whatever they are charged for.

33. It is pointed out that Contemnors 1, 3 and 4 are visible in video recording and have also been named by Informant - Presiding Officer. Contemnors 5 and 6 are not visible in video recording but named by Informant - Presiding Officer. Contemnors 2, 7, 8, 9 and 10 are neither visible in video recording nor named by Informant - Presiding Officer.

34. On the request of Court, Contemnors have also identified other advocates visible in video recording, who are not named by Informant - Presiding Officer and, therefore, proceedings have not been initiated against them, and, they are; Navneet Sagar Pathak, Shanker Lal Tarsolia, Ram Lakhan Singh Chauhan and Upendra Pratap Singh.

35. With regard to authenticity of video recording, learned Senior Advocate has submitted that; length of recording is 31.12 minutes with gap of 7 - 8 minutes. It is in three parts i.e. (i) prior to entry of Advocates; (ii) on and after entry of Advocates; and (iii) after alleged incident showing peaceful functioning of Court. First part shows broken window glass panes lying on the floor. video recording is personal property of Informant - Presiding Officer, prepared by himself, on his laptop fitted with camera; It is soundless/silent video does not show either Informant - Presiding Officer or alleged manhandling, assault etc.; The other persons visible in video recording, also identified by Contemnors, are, Sanjeev Gurjar, Advocate, Additional District Government Counsel, A.K.Tewari, Senior Prosecuting Officer, five male and one female police personal, few clients and accused persons, peon of the Court. In the third part of video recording i.e. after the incident, it also shows presence of one Sub-Inspector, Gunner of District Judge and few Policemen with Dandas.

36. Sri Sudhir Mehrotra, learned Advocate, appointed by court for assistance, contended that incident of forcible entry in the Court room, slogans shouting, abuse and manhandling is proved and presence of most of the Contemnors, in particular all Contemnors except Contemnors 5 and 6 is also well evidenced from record. Looking to the nature of conduct shown by Contemnors in Court not only charge of criminal contempt is well proved but they do not deserve any sympathetic consideration and instead most severe punishment deserve to be awarded so that in future no one else may dare to show such conduct.

37. The facts narrated above and record at least show undoubtedly that a group of advocates led by Contemnor 1 created a scene in the Court of Informant - Presiding Officer on 20.11.2014 in which some property of Court was damaged, Presiding Officer was manhandled and some advocates also sustained injuries. Informant - Presiding Officer though has named, before S.O. (Vig.), Contemnor 1 to 6 but in video recording made available to the S.O. (Vig.) and viewed by us also, presence of Contemnors 1, 3 and 4 is clearly visible and established. Besides, report shows that Contemnors 7, 8, 9 and 10 sustained injuries in the incident, which took place on 20.11.2014. In reply to the charge, all these Contemnors have filed their separate affidavits but we find not even a single averment or assertion that these Contemnors did not sustain injury at all and if they sustained injuries, how and in what manner, and kind of injuries they sustained, is also not explained.

38. One Constable Abir Singh, Court Moharir, had also sustained injuries when he tried to save Informant - Presiding Officer.

39. Though a technically objection has been raised that video recording is not admissible in evidence or that it was a private property but suffice it to mention that criminal contempt proceeding initiated by Court are not to be proceeded like a criminal trial where provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act are applicable. These statutes are not applicable in contempt proceedings. The basic purpose of entire procedure is to find out whether Contemnors have shown any such conduct, which amounts to 'criminal contempt' of Court and for that purpose manner in which evidence has been collected is not relevant but it is the substance and creditworthiness of evidence which can be and has to be seen.

40. Damage of CPU, pen holder and window panes is well established. Nobody has either denied above damage nor has attempted to explain the same.

41. Contemnor 1 and some other advocates had some complaint against Informant-Presiding Officer. They repeatedly participated in resolutions of Bar Association for boycotting/abstaining Court of Informant-Presiding Officer. This is well admitted. Contemnor 1 has specifically pleaded that Informant-Presiding Officer, even if honest, that does not give him any licence to misbehave. Meaning thereby, integrity of Informant-Presiding Officer has not been doubted even by Contemnor 1, who has led entire episode to fight with Informant-Presiding Officer, with other colleagues and have shown no misery in using all contemptuous words against Informant-Presiding Officer.

42. The defence, put up by Contemnors, is quite natural since it is not expected that they would accept guilt silently and without any protest. But factum that integrity of Informant-Presiding Officer has not been doubted even by Contemnor 1 and also evidence collected by S.O. (Vig.) showing that some advocates including officer bearers of Bar Association wanted favourable orders or favourable treatment in Court of Informant-Presiding Officer and having failed in their attempt, all these activities was done, show that there was an intentional and deliberate attempt either to knee down Informant-Presiding Officer or to get him removed by way of his transfer elsewhere. This is a conduct, whether shown by all Contemnors or some of them, but, seriously objectionable as it, ex facie, constitute 'criminal contempt' of Court. It satisfies all ingredients of definition of 'criminal contempt' as defined under Section 2(c) of Act, 1971.

43. This is also unfortunate that Contemnors and their colleagues got encouraged in going to this extent due to, either lack of appropriate administrative steps taken by District Judge or due to his silent support and encouragement. The reasons given by Informant-Presiding Officer with regard to apathy on the part of the then District Judge has not been found without any basis by S.O. (Vig.). However, in the present contempt, we are confined ourselves only to the question of 'criminal contempt' by Contemnors and not to other aspect of the matter.

44. Before proceeding further, we may consider some legal issues in the matter. One of the contention is that incident, if has actually taken place, amounts to an offence and, therefore, contempt proceedings would not lie.

45. Similar issue was considered in State of M.P. Vs. Revashankar, AIR 1959 SC 102 in which Court said that an aspersion cast upon Court or Presiding Officer, sitting in a Court, is much more than a mere insult to learned Presiding Officer. In effect, it amounts to scandalize the Court in a way so as to distrust in popular mind and impair confidence of people in Courts. Therefore, irrespective of the fact that loss or damage of Court property may satisfy requirement of offence under some provisions of IPC, the act of Contemnor, which scandalize or tends to scandalize or lowers or tends to lower authority of the Court is a 'criminal contempt' and has to be dealt with in accordance with provisions of Act, 1971.

46. In Re: Arundhati Roy, AIR 2002 SC 1375, Court held that offence under IPC is different than Contempt of Court. The law of defamation under Penal Code cannot be equated with law of contempt of Court in general terms. Relying on Privy Council decision in Surender Nath Vs. Chief Justice and Judges of the High Court, 10 Calcutta 109, it was held that "although contempt may include defamation, yet an offence of contempt is something more than mere defamation and is of a different character".

47. What is made punishable under various provisions of IPC offence of damage of a public property, obstruction in function of a public servant etc. but is foreign for proceeding for contempt of Court. If an act satisfy definition of 'criminal contempt', as defined under Section 2(c) of Act, 1971, proceedings for such act can be taken only under Act, 1971 quite apart from the fact that other remedy may also be open to aggrieved officer under various provisions of IPC.

48. It has also been argued that incident was aggravated by Informant-Presiding Officer, who got down from dias and indulged in shuffling with Advocates. In this regard we have been taken through report of S.O.(Vig.). The submission is attractive but we failed to understand how one can expect a person, who is facing a charged atmosphere, having several advocates before him abusing, shouting, throwing pen-holders, CPU in Court room, damaging glass panes and attempting to hold him, will silently suffer entire incident and shall not show even a minimum possible resistance, which a normal human being could have done in such atmosphere. This may be seen by some as counter attack. We have to look into it visualising that situation and a normal behaviour expected from a person of ordinary prudence facing such a situation. The advocates' attitude, who forcibly entered Court room was clearly hostile and threatening. Their anger is writ large from the fact that some Court and members of Bar, besides Police Constable, also who tried to defend Informant-Presiding Officer, sustained injuries. If, in such an atmosphere, Informant-Presiding Officer also hit one or two advocates an attempt to protect himself, it is difficult to hold that it is a case of attempt of manhandling by Informant-Presiding Officer and not an attempt on his part of possible self-defence. We find no reason to take this act on the part of Informant-Presiding Officer, even if correct, to mitigate in any way the act of "criminal contempt" of Contemnors, which is a multifarious and multifaceted act of lowering down authority of Court and to scandalize it.

49. The next objection is with regard to video recording. Though it has been pleaded that video recording may possibly be tempered etc., but no such Expert's opinion has been brought on record though copy of video recording was also made available to all Contemnors. The only objection raised is that recording, made available, has no sound. However, whatever is visible itself is sufficient to give an idea about the incident, which had taken place in Court. It is fortified with other material on record. It cannot be said that what is being depicted in video recording is incorrect or show inconsistency so as to suffice to disbelieve the very incident.

50. Though we have already held that in contempt proceedings, provisions of IPC and Evidence Act, as such, are not applicable but even if applicable, we find that scientific and electronic evidence is admissible in the light of Section 65B of the Evidence Act.

51. The incident of forcible entry into Court room, disturbance in Court room, damage to Court property, abuse, assault and manhandling of Informant-Presiding Officer, from the discussions made above, is well established. The presence and participation of Contemnors 1, 3, 4, 7, 8, 9 and 10 is also established. It is really a disturbing case where Officers of Court had created such an abhorrent scene in Court for some petty personal gains or otherwise.

52. We are of the view that above act and conduct constitute "Criminal Contempt", as stated, and charge stands well established against Contemnors 1, 3, 4, and 7 to 10. We hold them guilty of criminal contempt.

53. We may notice at this stage that Jalaun at Orai is not a very old District Judgeship. Number of Judicial Officers is much less comparing to number of advocates practicing thereat, which is about 600 to 700. Judicial Officers are regularly transferred, therefore, their tenure at a station is short but Class III and IV staff, normally remain posted in same district, are always in constant touch with members of Bar and for various reasons, different relations develop among them. We find that whenever such an incident has taken place, advocates in general get united and evidence against their conduct becomes a difficult task for the reason that neither advocates nor even lower staff is readily available or dare to give evidence in respect of incident, if had taken place in the Court.

54. Jalaun is a place where number of criminal cases are very high in comparison to civil litigation. Judicial Officers work under great stress from day one, when they deal with applications filed under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. or consider bail applications, what to talk of substantive trial. Whenever an Officer, who is tough in the sense that he is known for his hard decisions in criminal matters, advocates find him mostly inconvenient and relentless efforts are made to get such an officer transferred at the earliest or to get subdued.

55. Looking to the crime control machinery and its attitude in the State of Uttar Pradesh, we have no hesitation in observing that our Judicial Officers in Subordinate Courts, who want to discharge their duties with great devotion and integrity, find a very difficult task to deal with situation like the one, we are confronted with. That is one of the major reason that we find a large number of cases of criminal contempt across the State. The Bench presided over by one of us (Sudhir Agarwal,J) has dealt with more than fifty such a cases decided finally in the last one and half year.

56. It is the constitutional obligation of High Court to protect and save honour, dignity and authority, not only of subordinate Court but Judicial Officers also, manning the same. It is also our duty to ensure fearless atmosphere in which they may function without any cause of apprehension. Foundation of judicial system is based on independence of those, who man it. This can be ensured by providing a safe, well protected and well guarded working atmosphere to Judicial Officers working in subordinate Courts so as to ensure work with desired devotion and integrity. No one, whether a litigant or an advocate or any one else can be allowed to lead a demonstration so as to tarnish and destroy system of administration of justice by vilification of a Judge.

57. It is said that Judges need no protection. They are well capable of taking care themselves but when question of assault, manhandling arises, where an individual gets out-classed by large group of persons engaged in such activities, it is not judicial capability of such individual but on the spot capability of those who had indulged in such an activities, which has to be taken care, else it will be difficult for us to ensure a fair, unbiased and independent functioning of a Court of law. We have to take care of such a situation.

58. In this case we are really shocked and disturbed to see that officer responsible for appropriate action i.e. District Judge himself failed in tackling the situation.

59. In Jennison Vs. Baker 1972 (1) All ER 997 (CA), it was observed, "... The law should not be seen to sit by limply, while those who defy it go free, and those who seek its protection lose hope".

60. Contemnors though have made statement of apology also in their affidavits, but, it is not only conditional but an attempt to avoid any sentence, in case case they are held guilty. It does not appear to be a bona fide repentance on their part showing an attitude of feeling guilty and forwarding an assurance that they are, by heart, intends to purge, assuring not to repeat the same in future. It is not a technical regret /apology, which a contemnor is expected to offer to Court. It is not a weapon of defence to purge guilty of the wrong, one has committed. It is not intended to operate as an universal panacea, but it is intended to be evidence of real contriteness.

61. In Mulk Raj Vs. State of Punjab 1972(3) SCC 839, Court held that apology is an act of contrition. Unless an apology is offered at the earliest opportunity and in good grace, apology is shorn of penitence. If apology is offered at a time when Contemnor finds that the Court is going to impose punishment, it ceases to be an apology and it becomes an act of cringing coward.

62. In the present case, on one hand, Contemnors appears to have tendered apology but simultaneously have made serious aspersions against Informant-Presiding Officer and Court, and, have pleaded all defence for their deeds. The apology, therefore, being shallow, artificial and lacking bona fide, cannot be accepted.

63. Now, coming to the question of sentence and punishment, we find that role of individual Contemnors is not to be seen for the reason that in collusion with common intention, they have caused incident by forcibly entering Court room, disturbing Court proceedings, damaging Court property, abusing and assaulting Judicial Officer. Since all the Contemnors have participated with a common intention, factum that any individual has actually abused or assaulted Informant-Presiding Officer or not, is not material, but every Contemnor is equally responsible and guilty of committing criminal contempt of Court and responsibility of all Contemnors is equal.

64. Looking to the entire facts and circumstances, we award punishment of six months simple imprisonment upon Contemnors 1, 3, 4, 7, 8 9 and 10 and fine of Rs.2,000/- (Rupees Two Thousand only).

65. In order to ensure smooth functioning of Court, we also direct that Contemnors 1, 3, 4, 7, 8, 9 and 10 shall not enter Court premises of Jalaun at Orai for a period of one year, which shall commence from 23rd September, 2016. Further, conduct and attitude of Contemnors after expiry of aforesaid period, if they start practice of Law in Judgeship Jalaun at Orai, shall under constant watch of District Judge, Jalaun at Orai for a period of three years and if he finds any untoward activity on the part of Contemnors, he shall report to this Court forthwith.

66. So far as Contemnors 2, 5 and 6 are concerned, they are held not guilty and contempt proceedings initiated against them are dropped and they are discharged.

67. Accordingly, Contempt Application is partly allowed in the aforesaid manner.

Income Tax Act, 1961 — S. 80HHC — Deduction in respect of export profits — Unrealised export proceeds — Exclusion from total turnover — Assessee, a 100% export oriented unit engaged in export of handmade carpets, claimed exclusion of unrealised export payments from total turnover for purpose of computation under S. 80HHC — Assessing Officer excluded unrealised export proceeds from export turnover but included same in total turnover, thereby reducing deduction admissible under S. 80HHC — Held, where export sale proceeds were not received in or brought into India in convertible foreign exchange, same could not form part of total turnover for purposes of S. 80HHC. (Paras 7 & 8)

Income Tax — Export turnover and total turnover — Principle of parity — Amount excluded from export turnover on account of non-realisation of export proceeds cannot simultaneously be retained in total turnover — Such interpretation would distort formula prescribed under S. 80HHC and defeat legislative intent of granting deduction on actual export profits realised in India. (Paras 7 & 8)

Income Tax Act, 1961 — S. 80HHC — Meaning of "export turnover" — "Export turnover" under Explanation to S. 80HHC contemplates sale proceeds received in or brought into India in convertible foreign exchange within prescribed period — Unrealised export proceeds not satisfying statutory requirement cannot be included in computation of eligible export profits. (Paras 6 to 8)

Income Tax — Export incentive provisions — Liberal construction — Provision granting deduction to exporters intended to encourage inflow of foreign exchange and export trade — Computation formula under S. 80HHC to be interpreted harmoniously so as to avoid artificial reduction of deduction otherwise available to exporter. (Paras 6 to 8)

Income Tax Appeal under S. 260-A — Substantial question of law — Question whether unrealised export payments could be included in total turnover while excluded from export turnover answered in favour of assessee and against Revenue. (Para 9)

In Result: Appeal allowed; order of Tribunal set aside; Assessing Authority directed to recompute deduction under S. 80HHC excluding unrealised export payments from total turnover. (Para 10)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 260A of Income Tax Act, 1961 has arisen from the judgment and order dated 23.8.2006 passed by Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Allahabad Bench, Allahabad (hereinafter referred to as the "Tribunal") in Income Tax Appeal No.62(Alld) of 2005 (Assessment Year 2001-02).

2. The appeal was admitted on following substantial question of law:

(i) Whether, unrealised export payment could be included in the Total Turnover for the purpose of Section 80HHC and simultaneously excluded from the Total Export Turnover ?

3. Assessing Authority did not exclude unrealized export payment from the total turnover as well as for the purpose of Section 80HHC of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1961") the benefit under Section 80HHC was reduced. The assessing Authority included the unrealised export payments and that is how the gross profit rate of Rs.18.1 declared by the appellant was rejected and finalised the assessment on 6.9.2002. Against the order dated 6.9.2002, appellant preferred appeal before Commissioner of Income Tax (Appeals) [(hereinafter referred to as "CIT(Appeals)")], which was allowed on 18.11.2004 relying on decision in Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Abad Fisheries, (2002) 258 ITR 641 (Ker.). Against order of CIT(Appeals) dated 18.11.2004, respondent preferred appeal before Tribunal and the appeal was allowed vide order dated 23.8.2006 and remanded the matter to the Assessing Authority in respect of gross profit rate holding that unrealised payments could not be excluded from the total turnover over.

4. It is submitted by learned counsel for appellant that appellant is 100% Export Oriented Unit in previous year relevant to Assessment Year 2001-02. He had exported all its manufactured goods namely, handmade carpets, out side the country and total export bills were raised to a sum of Rs.15,33,43,333/-. Unfortunately, the foreign buyers did not remit payment of Rs.11,10,377/-. The said amount was requested to be excluded as unrealized export payment from the total turnover, for the purposes of Section 80HHC of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1961"). Assessing Authority excluded unrealized export payment also, whereby ratio of export turnover to that of total turnover became less. It is next contended that Assessing Officer did not accept gross profit rate of 18.1% declared by appellant and instead, applied gross profit rate of 18.5%. The assessment was thus finalized on 6.9.2002.

5. Counsel for appellant contended that the issue involved in this appeal is squarely covered by decisions in Mysodet P. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, (2008) 305 ITR 276 (SC), Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Sudarshan Chemicals Industries and other connected matter, (2000) 245 ITR 769 (Bom) and Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Abad Fisheries, (2002) 258 ITR 641 (Ker) and submitted that when the amount of export payment is not realised, same cannot be excluded within export turnover as there is no logic of showing it as part of total turnover when the books of accounts were produced before authority concerned.

6. Now before examining the impugned order passed by the Assessing Authority and the Tribunal it will be appropriate to have birds eye view of relevant authorities on the subject and statutory exposition of law on this aspect. Section 80HHC is the provision which will have to be examined and it reads as under :

"Section 80 HHC : Deduction in respect of profits retained for export business.

(1) Where an assessee, being an Indian company or a person (other than a company) resident in India, is engaged in the business of export out of India of any goods or merchandise to which this section applies, there shall, in accordance with and subject to the provisions of this section, be allowed, in computing the total income of the assessee, deduction to the extent of profits, referred to in sub-section (1B), derived by the assessee from the export of such goods or merchandise :

Provided that if the assessee, being a holder of an Export House Certificate or a Trading House Certificate (hereafter in this section referred to as an Export House or a Trading House, as the case may be,) issues a certificate referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (4A), that in respect of the amount of the export turnover specified therein, the deduction under this sub-section is to be allowed to a supporting manufacturer, then the amount of deduction in the case of the assessee shall be reduced by such amount which bears to the total profits derived by the assessee from the export of trading goods, the same proportion as the amount of export turnover specified in the said certificate bears to the total export turnover of the assessee in respect of such trading goods.*

(1B) For the purposes of sub-sections (1) and (1A), the extent of deduction of the profits shall be an amount equal to—

(i) eighty per cent thereof for an assessment year beginning on the 1st day of April, 2001;

[(ii) seventy per cent thereof for an assessment year beginning on the 1st day of April, 2002;

(iii) fifty per cent thereof for an assessment year beginning on the 1st day of April, 2003;

(iv) thirty per cent thereof for an assessment year beginning on the 1st day of April, 2004, and no deduction shall be allowed in respect of the assessment year beginning on the 1st day of April, 2005 and any subsequent assessment year.

(2)(a) This section applies to all goods or merchandise, other than those specified in clause (b), if the sale proceeds of such goods or merchandise exported out of India are received in, or brought into, India by the assessee (other than the supporting manufacturer)] in convertible foreign exchange , within a period of six months from the end of the previous year or, within such further period as the competent authority may allow in this behalf.

Explanation.--For the purposes of this clause, the expression "competent authority" means the Reserve Bank of India or such other authority as is authorised under any law for the time being in force for regulating payments and dealings in foreign exchange.]

(b) This section does not apply to the following goods or merchandise, namely :--

(i) mineral oil ; and

(ii) minerals and ores (other than processed minerals and ores specified in the Twelfth Schedule).

Explanation 1.--The sale proceeds referred to in clause (a) shall be deemed to have been received in India where such sale proceeds are credited to a separate account maintained for the purpose by the assessee with any bank outside India with the approval of the Reserve Bank of India.

Explanation 2.--For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that where any goods or merchandise are transferred by an assessee to a branch, office, warehouse or any other establishment of the assessee situate outside India and such goods or merchandise are sold from such branch, office, warehouse or establishment, then, such transfer shall be deemed to be export out of India of such goods and merchandise and the value of such goods or merchandise declared in the shipping bill or bill of export as referred to in sub-section (1) of section 5087 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962), shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be the sale proceeds thereof.

(3) For the purposes of sub-section (1),--

(a) where the export out of India is of goods or merchandise manufactured or processed] by the assessee, the profits derived from such export shall be the amount which bears to the profits of the business, the same proportion as the export turnover in respect of such goods bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the assessee;

(b) where the export out of India is of trading goods, the profits derived from such export shall be the export turnover in respect of such trading goods as reduced by the direct costs and indirect costs attributable to such export;

(c) where the export out of India is of goods or merchandise manufactured or processed] by the assessee and of trading goods, the profits derived from such export shall,--

(i) in respect of the goods or merchandise manufactured or processed] by the assessee, be the amount which bears to the adjusted profits of the business, the same proportion as the adjusted export turnover in respect of such goods bears to the adjusted total turnover of the business carried on by the assessee; and

(ii) in respect of trading goods, be the export turnover in respect of such trading goods as reduced by the direct and indirect costs attributable to export of such trading goods :

Provided that the profits computed under clause (a) or clause (b) or clause (c) of this sub-section shall be further increased by the amount which bears to ninety per cent of any sum referred to in clause (iiia) (not being profits on sale of a licence acquired from any other person), and clauses (iiib) and (iiic) of section 28, the same proportion as the export turnover bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the assessee :

Provided further that in the case of an assessee having export turnover not exceeding rupees ten crores during the previous year, the profits computed under clause (a) or clause (b) or clause (c) of this sub-section or after giving effect to the first proviso, as the case may be, shall be further increased by the amount which bears to ninety per cent of any sum referred to in clause (iiid) or clause (iiie), as the case may be, of section 28, the same proportion as the export turnover bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the assessee :

Provided also that in the case of an assessee having export turnover exceeding rupees ten crores during the previous year, the profits computed under clause (a) or clause (b) or clause (c) of this sub-section or after giving effect to the first proviso, as the case may be, shall be further increased by the amount which bears to ninety per cent of any sum referred to in clause (iiid) of section 28, the same proportion as the export turnover bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the assessee, if the assessee has necessary and sufficient evidence to prove that,--

(a) he had an option to choose either the duty drawback or the Duty Entitlement Pass Book Scheme, being the Duty Remission Scheme; and

(b) the rate of drawback credit attributable to the customs duty was higher than the rate of credit allowable under the Duty Entitlement Pass Book Scheme, being the Duty Remission Scheme :

Provided also that in the case of an assessee having export turnover exceeding rupees ten crores during the previous year, the profits computed under clause (a) or clause (b) or clause (c) of this sub-section or after giving effect to the first proviso, as the case may be, shall be further increased by the amount which bears to ninety per cent of any sum referred to in clause (iiie) of section 28, the same proportion as the export turnover bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the assessee, if the assessee has necessary and sufficient evidence to prove that,--

(a) he had an option to choose either the duty drawback or the Duty Free Replenishment Certificate, being the Duty Remission Scheme; and

(b) the rate of drawback credit attributable to the customs duty was higher than the rate of credit allowable under the Duty Free Replenishment Certificate, being the Duty Remission Scheme.

Explanation.--For the purposes of this clause, "rate of credit allowable" means the rate of credit allowable under the Duty Free Replenishment Certificate, being the Duty Remission Scheme calculated in the manner as may be notified by the Central Government :]

Provided also that in case the computation under clause (a) or clause (b) or clause (c) of this sub-section is a loss, such loss shall be set off against the amount which bears to ninety per cent of—

(a) any sum referred to in clause (iiia) or clause (iiib) or clause (iiic), as the case may be, or

(b) any sum referred to in clause (iiid) or clause (iiie), as the case may be, of section 28, as applicable in the case of an assessee referred to in the second or the third or the fourth proviso, as the case may be, the same proportion as the export turnover bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the assessee.]

Explanation.--For the purposes of this sub-section,--

(a) "adjusted export turnover" means the export turnover as reduced by the export turnover in respect of trading goods ;

(b) "adjusted profits of the business" means the profits of the business as reduced by the profits derived from the business of export out of India of trading goods as computed in the manner provided in clause (b) of sub-section (3) ;

(c) "adjusted total turnover" means the total turnover of the business as reduced by the export turnover in respect of trading goods ;

(d) "direct costs" means costs directly attributable to the trading goods exported out of India including the purchase price of such goods ;

(e) "indirect costs" means costs, not being direct costs, allocated in the ratio of the export turnover in respect of trading goods to the total turnover ;

(f) "trading goods" means goods which are not manufactured or processed by the assessee.]

(3A) For the purposes of sub-section (1A), profits derived by a supporting manufacturer from the sale of goods or merchandise shall be,--

(a) in a case where the business carried on by the supporting manufacturer consists exclusively of sale of goods or merchandise to one or more Export Houses or Trading Houses, the profits of the business [] ;

(b) in a case where the business carried on by the supporting manufacturer does not consist exclusively of sale of goods or merchandise to one or more Export Houses or Trading Houses, the amount which bears to the profits of the business [] the same proportion as the turnover in respect of sale to the respective Export House or Trading House bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the assessee.]

(4) The deduction under sub-section (1) shall not be admissible unless the assessee furnishes in the prescribed form, along with the return of income, the report of an accountant, as defined in the Explanation below sub-section (2) of section 288, certifying that the deduction has been correctly claimed in accordance with the provisions of this section:

Provided that in the case of an undertaking referred to in sub-section (4C), the assessee shall also furnish along with the return of income, a certificate from the undertaking in the special economic zone containing such particulars as may be prescribed, duly certified by the auditor auditing the accounts of the undertaking in the special economic zone under the provisions of this Act or under any other law for the time being in force.]*

(4A) The deduction under sub-section (1A) shall not be admissible unless the supporting manufacturer furnishes in the prescribed form along with his return of income,–

(a) the report of an accountant, as defined in the Explanation below sub-section (2) of section 288, certifying that the deduction has been correctly claimed on the basis of the [profits] of the supporting manufacturer in respect of his sale of goods or merchandise to the Export House or Trading House; and

(b) a certificate from the Export House or Trading House containing such particulars as may be prescribed and verified in the manner prescribed7 that in respect of the export turnover mentioned in the certificate, the Export House or Trading House has not claimed the deduction under this section :

Provided that the certificate specified in clause (b) shall be duly certified by the auditor auditing the accounts of the Export House or Trading House under the provisions of this Act or under any other law.]

(4B) For the purposes of computing the total income under sub-section (1) or sub-section (1A), any income not charged to tax under this Act shall be excluded.]

(4C) The provisions of this section shall apply to an assessee,--

(a) for an assessment year beginning after the 31st day of March, 2004 and ending before the 1st day of April, 2005;

(b) who owns any undertaking which manufactures or produces goods or merchandise anywhere in India (outside any special economic zone) and sells the same to any undertaking situated in a special economic zone which is eligible for deduction under section 10A and such sale shall be deemed to be export out of India for the purposes of this section.]

Explanation.--For the purposes of this section,--

(a) "convertible foreign exchange" means foreign exchange which is for the time being treated by the Reserve Bank of India as convertible foreign exchange for the purposes of the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (42 of 1999), and any rules made thereunder ;

(aa) "export out of India" shall not include any transaction by way of sale or otherwise, in a shop, emporium or any other establishment situate in India, not involving clearance at any customs station as defined in the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) ;]

(b) "export turnover" means the sale proceeds, received in, or brought into, India by the assessee in convertible foreign exchange in accordance with clause (a) of sub-section (2)] of any goods or merchandise to which this section applies and which are exported out of India, but does not include freight or insurance attributable to the transport of the goods or merchandise beyond the customs station as defined in the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) ;

(ba) "total turnover" shall not include freight or insurance attributable to the transport of the goods or merchandise beyond the customs station as defined in the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) :

Provided that in relation to any assessment year commencing on or after the 1st day of April, 1991, the expression "total turnover" shall have effect as if it also excluded any sum referred to in clauses (iiia), (iiib) , (iiic), (iiid) and (iiie)] of section 28;

(baa) "profits of the business" means the profits of the business as computed under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" as reduced by—

(1) ninety per cent of any sum referred to in clauses (iiia), (iiib), (iiic), (iiid) and (iiie)] of section 28 or of any receipts by way of brokerage, commission, interest, rent, charges or any other receipt of a similar nature included in such profits; and

(2) the profits of any branch, office, warehouse or any other establishment of the assessee situate outside India ;]

(c) "Export House Certificate" or "Trading House Certificate" means a valid Export House Certificate or Trading House Certificate, as the case may be, issued by the Chief Controller of Imports and Exports, Government of India ;

(d) "supporting manufacturer" means a person being an Indian company or a person (other than a company) resident in India, manufacturing (including processing) goods or merchandise and selling such goods or merchandise to an Export House or a Trading House for the purposes of export;

(e) "special economic zone" shall have the meaning assigned to it in clause (viii) of the Explanation 2 to section 10A.

7. Provisions of Section 80HHC which has been interpreted by various Courts will go to show that the amount which was not brought in India could not be included in computation of profits and, therefore, it cannot be included in the total turnover for the purposes of Section 80HHC of Act.

8. The decision of Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Abad Fisheries (supra) on which Commissioner has relied, would also be applicable in the facts of this case, amount was not brought within India and, therefore, they could not be included in total turnover for the purpose of Section 80HHC as they were unrealised export payment. The decisions in the case of Mysodet P. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax (supra) will apply to the facts of this case as for the relevant period the formula allowed the deduction was "profits derived from the export of goods or merchandise out of India". In this case also the profits did not come back to India, therefore, the appellant is entitled to the benefit under Section 80HHC.

9. The question, therefore, is answered in favour of Assessee and against Revenue.

10. The appeal is allowed. Impugned judgment of Tribunal is hereby set aside and Assessing Authority is directed to recompute the matter in the light of law as discussed above.

Religious Institutions — Guru-Shishya Parampara — Validity and continuity — Court recognised continuous lineage from Swami Brahmanand Saraswati to Swami Santanand Saraswati, thereafter to Swami Vishnudevanand Saraswati and then to appellant — Installation under established Guru-Shishya Parampara held relevant circumstance supporting appellant's religious status and claim. (Para 2)

Religious Law — Appointment of Shankaracharya — Nature of governing documents — Documents relied upon regarding appointment and qualifications of Shankaracharya held recommendatory in nature and not exhaustive procedural code — Verses/slokas merely prescribe qualities required for appointment and principle that only one Shankaracharya can preside over one Peeth. (Para 3)

Religious Office — Vacancy on Gaddi — Effect of earlier litigation — Since Swami Santanand Saraswati continued as reigning Shankaracharya pursuant to earlier litigation up to Supreme Court, plaintiff's claim of installation during subsistence of such incumbency held doubtful as no vacancy existed on the Gaddi at relevant time. (Para 2)

Appellate Jurisdiction — Concurring judgment with limited dissent — Concurring Judge agreed with operative directions and conclusions of brother Judge on all issues except findings on Issues Nos. 6 and 12 relating to status of appellant as Sanyasi — As operative directions substantially concurred, matter held not requiring reference to third Judge. (Paras 5 to 7)

In Result: Appeal partly allowed; concurring Judge upheld operative directions issued by brother Judge while differing only on finding relating to appellant's status as Dandi Sanyasi. (Para 7)

1. Aarushi Dhasmanu Vs. Union of India(2013) 9 SCC 475

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.
Hon'ble Shamsher Bahadur Singh, J.)

1. Appellant filed Civil Misc. Application No.143408 of 2016, under Section 21 of Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1887), with a prayer that record of First Appeal, under consideration, be transmitted to the Court of District Judge, Allahabad, in view of amendment in Section 21 of Act,1887 by U.P. Act No.14 of 2015 as well as notification issued by Chief Justice, dated 9.2.2016, under Section 21 (1) (b) of Act, 1887.

2. This application was assigned to the Bench presided by one of us (Hon' Sudhir Agarwal, J) by Chief Justice vide order dated 3.5.2016.

3. When matter came-up on 10th May, 2016, learned counsel for plaintiff-respondent informed that they have also filed Civil Misc. Application No.69142 of 2016, under Section 24 of Code of Civil Procedure (hereinafter referred to as "C.P.C.") read with Chapter XXII, Rule 1 of Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules, 1952") for transfer of this appeal to this Court since substantial hearing has already taken place and matter having been expedited by Hon'ble Supreme Court, it be appropriate to be heard and decided by this Court. This Transfer Application was cognizable by Single Judge, hence, Division Bench again on 10.5.2016 directed the matter to be placed before Chief Justice so that both applications may be heard by same Bench.

4. Acting Chief Justice passed order dated 17.5.2016 directing that both these matters as well as other connected/incidental matters be placed before a Bench presided by one of us (Hon' Sudhir Agarwal, J) and that is how both these applications have come-up before us.

5. Sri Manish Goyal, Advocate appearing for appellant-applicant vehemently contended that valuation of appeal is less than 25 lacs and by operation of law, appeal stands transferred to Court of District Judge, hence, neither this Court has any jurisdiction nor Transfer Application is admissible nor even otherwise jurisdiction can be retained by this Court to decide this appeal as that would deny a right of second appeal to appellant.

6. On the contrary, Sri Shashi Nandan, Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of plaintiff-respondent contended that here is a case where early hearing of appeal was consented by both parties on the very first day when appeal was entertained and admitted on 26.5.2016. Since, thereafter, appeal was heard on merit substantially and for quite a long time but on account of dilatory tactics adopted by appellant, hearing could not complete despite the fact that at the instance of appellant itself, Supreme Court has also directed that this appeal should be decided by this Court, expeditiously and it was required to be decided preferably by December, 2015 but since then even more than half of 2016 has passed, but matter has not proceeded further.

7. Before considering legal submissions advanced by both sides and other relevant aspects on merits of these applications, we find it appropriate to place on record certain background facts of this appeal.

8. This is a regular First Appeal arising from judgement dated 5.5.2015 and decree dated 15.5.2015 passed by Civil Judge (Senior Division), Allahabad in Original Suit No.503 of 1989. It could be decided by Civil Court after almost 26 years and that too when orders were passed by Supreme Court for expeditious disposal of Suit.

9. Dispute relates to Office of Jagat Guru Shankaracharya at Jyotirmath Badrikashram.

10. When appeal came-up for admission before Division Bench on 26.5.2016, looking to nature of dispute and volume of record etc., Court found that instead of keeping matter pending and deciding only interim application, it would be in the interest of parties, if appeal itself is decided on merits, expeditiously and to this, both sides agreed. Appeal was fixed for 14.7.2015 for final hearing. The relevant part of order dated 26.5.2015, is reproduced below:

".....

4. Looking to the nature of dispute and also the earlier order passed by the Apex Court by which the matter was remanded to Trial Court for deciding the suit expeditiously, we are of the view that this is a matter which should be decided expeditiously.

5. Let the record of Court below be summoned through Special Messenger. Steps shall be taken by appellant within three days.

6. Parties thereafter shall take steps to get the paper-book prepared and the same shall be filed within five weeks.

7. Learned counsels for parties agreed that this matter should be decided expeditiously and they request to have this matter for final hearing at an early date.

8. List this appeal for final hearing on 14.07.2015."

11. Lower Court record was received on 3.6.2015, but parties could not file respective paper-books. Ultimately on 3.8.2015, respondent's counsel stated that his paper-books are ready and he may be permitted to file in Office while appellant's paper-books were not ready and he sought further time.

12. Hearing on appeal commenced on 5.8.2015. After addressing Court on six dates and that too on two issues no.16 and 20, counsel for appellant stated that since hearing of appeal will take time, therefore, Court should pass order on interim injunction application. Thereupon, with a detailed order dated 20.8.2015, application for stay of execution of decree and ad interim injunction was rejected and appeal was directed to be listed on 9.9.2015 for further hearing. This order was taken in Special Leave to Appeal (C) No.25947 of 2015, but Supreme Court declined to interfere with said order. However accepting request made by Sri Harish N. Salve, Senior Advocate, appearing for appellant Swami Vasudevanand Saraswati, Court required this Court to continue hearing of appeal and decide the same on merits, expeditiously as possible, preferably by 31st December, 2015. The order dated 21.9.2015 passed in aforesaid Special Leave to Appeal (C) No.25947 of 2015, is reproduced as under:

"We have heard learned senior counsel appearing for the parties.

We do not find any reason to interfere with the order passed by the High Court.

It appears that the High Court itself take up the matter for final hearing and fixed date. The arguments have already begun.

Hence, as agreed by Mr. Harish N. Salve, learned senior counsel, we request the High Court to continue the hearing of the appeal and decide the same on merit as expeditiously as possible, preferably by 31st December, 2015.

With the above observation, the special leave petition is disposed of." (emphasis added)

13. Thereafter, appellant moved an amendment application, seeking addition of 97 grounds in memo of appeal. The said application was also allowed vide order dated 4.11.2015 whereupon memo of appeal was amended and number of grounds, which were earlier only 50, now rose to 147. Thereafter, hearing of appeal deferred on certain dates, since learned counsels for parties sought adjournment on account of their preoccupation and other reasons.

14. In the mean time, U.P. Legislature amended Act, 1887 by publishing U.P. Civil Laws (Amendment) Act, 2015 (hereinafter referred to as 'Amendment Act, 2015") which received assent of President on 19.11.2015 and published in U.P. Gazette extraordinary dated 7.12.2015.

15. In view of aforesaid amendment, appeals having valuation of less than 25 lacs, stood transferred to Court of District Judge. Therefore, this Court could not proceed on an objection raised by learned counsel for appellant and he has prayed that record be transmitted to District Judge, Allahabad.

16. Learned counsel for plaintiff-respondent, on the contrary, submitted that plaintiff-respondent is now 96 years of age; matter was substantially heard on several dates by Court, therefore, it is in the interest of justice that this appeal be heard by this Court instead of transmitting record to Court of District Judge, Allahabad. It was objected by appellant and it filed an application bearing no.143408 of 2016 with request to transmit record to Court of District Judge. Plaintiff-respondent, on the contrary, filed a Transfer Application, under Section 24 C.P.C. on 1.3.2016 and both these applications now have been heard by us.

17. Sri Manish Goyal, learned counsel for appellant contended that provision pertaining to pecuniary jurisdiction under Section 21 of Act, 1887, is mandatory and no discretion has been left to High Court to retain any matter but to transfer record of appeal where pecuniary jurisdiction has been vested in District Judge. When appeal was filed in this Court, it was within jurisdiction but with subsequent amendment, pecuniary jurisdiction of District Judge has been enhanced, hence pending appeal, by operation of law, would stand transferred to Court of District Judge. He relied on a Full Bench judgment of this Court in Kanyal Das and others vs. Har Prasad and others, AIR 1972 Alld 249. He submitted that mere fact that paper-books have been filed by parties, record is bulky or other similar grounds are not sufficient, not to transfer record of this appeal to Court, competent to hear appeal, in the light of amendment under Section 21 of Act, 1887 and there is no valid reason to transfer appeal to this Court. He further submitted that in fact, record is yet to be transmitted, hence, application under Section 24 C.P.C. does not lie and in any case, Court has no authority to retain appeal ignoring the fact that pecuniary jurisdiction, due to amendment in legislation, is, now vested in Court of District Judge. He lastly submitted that in case, this Court retain appeal, appellant shall loose right of second appeal, which it may exercise, in case, record of this appeal is transmitted to District Judge and matter is decided against appellant. This is also a reason for not retaining this appeal and instead it should be transmitted to District Judge.

18. Sri Shashi Nandan, Senior Advocate, appearing for plaintiff-respondent, on the contrary, contended that transfer of record is automatic, once pecuniary jurisdiction has been enlarged under law. Vide Section 21 (1A) it is deemed transferred to Court of District Judge and, thereafter, if any case can be retained by higher court, it is only when an application for transfer is allowed and particular case is then transferred from lower Court to higher Court.

19. Relevant authority relied by respective parties, we shall discuss while discussing matter on merit.

20. To put the record straight, we may also mention that after amendment of Act, 1887 and notifications were issued by Hon'ble Chief Justice on 9.2.2016, this appeal was listed before us on 29.2.2016 when we passed order directing for transmission of record to District Judge having jurisdiction in the matter. Thereafter, on 1.3.2016, plaintiff-respondent filed application under Section 24 C.P.C. and, as noted above, this application as well as appellant's application requesting for transmission of record of District Judge, both have been assigned to this Bench for disposal on merit.

21. It is not in dispute, when appeal was filed, pecuniary jurisdiction lay in this Court. Therefore, appeal was maintainable in this Court. Had there been no amendment in Act, 1887 in respect of pecuniary jurisdiction, under Section 21, it is not disputed, in that case also, appellant would have no right of second appeal under Section 100 C.P.C. but against judgment of this Court, only remedy available would have been, to file appeal before Supreme Court.

22. Under Section 21 (1) (b) of Act, 1887 against judgment and decree of a Civil Judge, appeal was admissible before District Judge where valuation did not exceed Rs.1 lacs. By 'Amendment Act, 2015', Section 21 of Act, 1887 has been amended and Rs.1 lacs has been substituted by 5 lacs and 5 lacs has been substituted by 25 lacs.

23. Sub-section 1-A provides, where appeal was initially filed in High Court but during pendency, stand transferred to District Judge, it shall be decided by him or by any Judge subordinate to him to whom matter has been assigned by District Judge. There is a validation clause by way of Proviso declaring that any judgment and decree of this Court, passed in appeal after relevant date, shall be valid as if High Court has withdrawn appeal under Section 24 C.P.C.

24. A cumulative reading of Section 21 (1) and (1-A) and proviso, it is evident that once there is an amendment and enhancement of valuation with regard to appeal, matters pending in High Court shall stand transferred after such enhancement of valuation to District Judge, but in some matters, if cases are decided by High Court, judgment would not be nullity but it would be deemed that appeal stood transferred under Section 24 C.P.C. to this Court. Thus, High Court may in certain cases retain First Appeal and decide, which after enhancement of valuation would have otherwise been within the jurisdiction of District Judge.

25. Section 21 of Act, 1887 which came to be considered before Full Bench in Kanyal Das case (supra) was different then what it is before us having been substituted by U.P. Act No.17 of 1991. Earlier Section 21 (1-A) states that all appeals within prescribed valuation shall stand transferred to District Judge, not being an appeal in which arguments have been concluded before relevant date and only judgment disposing of appeal remains to be pronounced. The legislature made its intention clearly as to what appeals shall not stand transferred. Full Bench considered legislation intend expressed in the light of Section 21 (1) (1-A) of Act, 1887 as it then was, read with Section 24 C.P.C.

26. Legislature subsequently substituted Sub Section 1-A in 1991 and limited exception earlier provided has been removed. Instead, a proviso has been inserted making scope of transfer under Section 24 C.P.C. much wider giving wider room to this Court to exercise its authority in appropriate cases and instead of transferring record of such cases, itself may proceed to decide. Sub Section 1-A, as it was under consideration before Full Bench and as it stand substituted by U.P. Act.17 of 1991 and available today, are compared in the form of chart, which reads as under:

Section 1-A (before amendment)	Section 1-A (amended)
An appeal from decree or order of a Civil Judge where the value of the original suit in which, or in any proceeding arising out of which, the decree or order was made exceeded ten thousand rupees but was less than twenty thousand rupees instituted in the High Court before the date of commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Civil Laws Amendment Act, 1970, and pending in the High Court, immediately before the said date, not being an appeal in which arguments have been	(1-A) An appeal, from a decree or order of a Civil Judge where the value of the original suit in which, or in any proceeding arising out of which the decree or order was made was not more than the amount fixed by or under clause (b) of sub-section (1) instituted in the High Court and pending in the High Court immediately before the relevant date, shall stand transferred to the District Judge having jurisdiction who may either decide it himself or assign it to any additional judge subordinate to concluded before the said date and only judgment disposing of the appeal remains to be pronounced, shall stand transferred to the District Judge having jurisdiction who may either decide it himself or assign it to any Additional Judge subordinate to him.	him; Provided that any judgment, decree or order passed in such an appeal by the High Court after the relevant date shall be valid as if the High Court had withdrawn the appeal under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

27. Despite restricted language of Sub Section 1-A of Section 21 as it then was, Full Bench said that power of this Court with regard to transfer under Section 24 C.P.C. is not impinged upon and does not stand repealed. Instead, in an appropriate case, Court can pass order of transfer a case under Section 24 C.P.C. This is very clear from paragraph 6 of Full Bench judgment in Kanyal Das (supra), which reads as under:

"6. Though Sub-section (1-A) of the Amending Act entrenches upon the discretion conferred on the High Court to transfer an individual case, in the sense that it takes away the discretion in regard to the category of cases mentioned in it, yet, in our opinion, Sub-section (1-A) does not in law impinge upon the operation of Clause (b) of Section 24 (1), Civil Procedure Code. Technically, the power of withdrawal vested in the High Court under Clause (b) does not stand repealed by Sub-section (1-A) of the Amending Act (sic). The High Court can on appropriate grounds withdraw an individual appeal for trial or disposal by itself, even though that appeal may have stood transferred from the High Court to the District Judge under Sub-section (1-A). In that sense, the power of withdrawal under Sub-clause (b) still continues to vest in the High Court."

(emphasis added)

28. Further argument that transfer of appeal from District Judge to High Court, if allowed, then a right of second appeal will be lost, has been negatived by this Court in State of U.P. and others vs. Sunni Central Board of Waqf and others, 1989 (15) ALR 696. It is an order passed on an application under Section 24 C.P.C. whereby suits pending in Court of Civil Judge/Munsif were transferred to this Court at Lucknow. A similar argument of loss of right of appeal was negated by observing as under:

"Powers of the Court under Section 24 of the C.P.C. are not to be rendered negatory because right of one or two appeals is lost. In suitable cases and situations like the present are the same has rather become necessary for advancing the cause of justice and putting an end to the litigation rotating round the same controversy."

29. So far as circumstances when this Court would be justified in transferring a case pending in subordinate Court to High Court is concerned, in Baselius Mar Thoma Mathews I and others vs. Paulose Mar Asthanasius and others, AIR 1979 SC 1909, it has been held, where dispute may affect lot of people, who are excitedly affected by ultimate decision, and exercise of transfer would save some years and duplication of hearing, which is likely to take ample time, transfer of matter to High Court is a wise measure.

30. Here we do not propose to multiply this judgment by referring to catena of authorities on the question when exercise of jurisdiction under Section 24 C.P.C. would be justified and suffice it to mention, where a matter is of importance of general public and parties also agree for early disposal, and more so that early disposal of matter has been found expedient even by highest court of law, an attempt should be made so that dispute is adjudicated at the earliest so as not to consume much more time and leave scope of dispute to prolong and take long time.

31. It cannot be doubted that office of Jagat Guru Shankaracharya at Jyotirmath Badrikashram is of high importance to majority of people and lakhs of people visit the Holy Math. Dispute of holder of Office of such place, is a matter of wide importance and ought to be adjudicated at the earliest.

32. It is appellant himself, who initially agreed for early disposal of appeal on the very first day when appeal was filed in this Court. Thereafter, for the reasons best known to him, appellant himself started delay. However, when interim injunction application was rejected and appellant went to Supreme Court, it is on request of his own counsel Sri Harish N. Salve, Senior Advocate, the Highest Court of Lord directed this Court to continue hearing of case and decide appeal expeditiously, preferably by 31st December, 2015.

33. Under said direction, we endeavoured our best to continue with hearing but again appellant created obstructions and sought amendment in memo of appeal for adding 97 grounds, enhancing initial 50 grounds to 147. Plaintiff-respondent cooperated so that appeal may be heard expeditiously and did not object to such amendment. It was allowed on 4th November, 2015 but again, thereafter, hearing could not mature for one or the other reason.

34. Considering entirety of circumstances, as discussed above, we have no hesitation in holding that here is a fit case requiring exercise of our power under Section 24 C.P.C. for transferring record of this appeal to this Court so that, as desired by Supreme Court also, it can be decided expeditiously.

35. Civil Misc. Application No.69142 of 2016 filed by plaintiff-respondent is, accordingly, allowed. Civil Misc. Application No.143408 of 2016 filed by appellant is hereby rejected.

36. The record of appeal shall stand transferred to this Court for hearing and Office is directed to list this matter before Court for hearing. Office shall list this matter for final hearing on 17th October, 2016, after lunch.

37. We also direct that hearing in this matter shall continue on day-to-day basis.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 125 — Maintenance to wife and minor child — Scope and object — Wife alleged cruelty, neglect and expulsion from matrimonial home by husband addicted to drinking and gambling — Family Court granted maintenance of Rs 2,000/- per month to wife and Rs 700/- per month to minor daughter — Held, S. 125 CrPC is a measure of social justice enacted to prevent destitution and vagrancy of wife and children — Husband having sufficient means cannot evade liability to maintain wife and child.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 125 — Divorce — Effect on right to maintenance — Contention that wife ceased to be entitled to maintenance after decree of divorce — Rejected — By virtue of Explanation (b) to S. 125 CrPC, divorced woman who has not remarried continues to fall within expression "wife" for limited purpose of claiming maintenance.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 125(4) — "Living in adultery" — Meaning and proof — Husband alleged wife was living in adultery and minor daughter was not his child — Held, mere allegation or isolated conduct insufficient — "Living in adultery" denotes continuous adulterous conduct in quasi-permanent union with another man — Burden lies on husband to establish such allegation satisfactorily — Failure to prove allegation disentitles husband from resisting maintenance claim.

Maintenance — Capacity to earn — Legal obligation of husband — Plea of insufficient income not acceptable where husband is healthy and able-bodied — Law imposes obligation on husband to maintain wife and children according to his status and means.

Maintenance — Quantum — Dignified living — Maintenance awarded should enable wife to live with dignity in a manner similar to her matrimonial home and should not reduce her to destitution or beggary.

In Result: Criminal revision dismissed; maintenance awarded by Family Court to wife and minor daughter upheld; interim order vacated.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amar Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. This criminal revision has been filed against the judgement and order dated 09.1.2009 passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Agra in Case No. 42 of 2006 (Smt. Veerwati and another Vs. Mahesh alias Mahesh Chand) whereby the application of the applicant-opposite party No. 2, filed under section 125 Cr.P.C. was allowed and maintenance at the rate of Rs. 2000/- per month has been granted to the wife and Rs. 700 per month to the minor daughter from the date of application.

2. The facts which are requisite to be stated for adjudication of this revision are that an application under section 125 Code of Criminal Procedure was moved by Smt. Veerwati stating therein that her marriage took place about 16 years back with Mahesh and they lived together as husband and wife. From their wedlock two children were born, out of whom son Vishan Singh is living with Mahesh and daughter Soniya is living with her. After the marriage revisionist Mahesh, who was drunkard, used to abuse, beat and torture her. He also used to bring men of bad character for the purpose of gambling and also the women in his house. He also keeps one Manju as his wife and on being objected by the applicant, she was subjected to beating. In a planned manner the applicant-opposite No. 2 was kicked out from the house in the clothes which she was wearing at that time. Stridhan of the applicant-opposite party No. 2 was retained by the revisionist. Thereafter revisionist never came to take her as well as her daughter and also filed a suit for divorce. It is further stated in the application that the revisionist Mahesh works in a hospital and earns Rs. 10,000-12,000/- per month, which he spent on drink, gambling and enjoyment with women.

3. The revisionist-Mahesh filed his reply in which he has stated that his marriage took place on 27.4.1978 and from their wedlock one child namely Vishan Singh was born, who is now aged about 18 years and living with the revisionist. The applicant-opposite party is living in adultery and earning Rs. 3000/- per month from the doing the work of labourer. It is also submitted that the revisionist is employed in a nursing home and only earns Rs. 1500/-.

4. The learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Agra after evaluating the evidence adduced by the parties, granted maintenance to the wife, opposite party No. 2 at the rate of Rs. 2000/- (rupees two thousand) per month and Rs. 700/- (rupees even hundred) to opposite party No. 3 minor child.

5. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned counsel for opposite party Nos. 2 and 3 and learned Additional Government Advocate and perused the record of the case.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that once the divorce petition filed by the revisionist was allowed, the maintenance granted by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Agra is bad in eye of law.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that admittedly opposite party No. 2 is living in adultery since 1997, hence opposite party No. 3 is not his daughter and learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Agra erred in granting maintenance to opposite party No. 3 also.

8. On the other hand, learned counsel for opposite party Nos. 2 and 3 and learned AGA supported the judgement of the learned Family Judge.

9. Before adverting to the claim of the parties, it would be useful to quote section 125 Cr.P.C.:

Order for maintenance of wives, children and parents.

10. 125. (1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain-

(a) his wife, unable to maintain herself, or

(b) His legitimate or illegitimate minor child, whether married or not unable to maintain itself, or

(c) his legitimate or illegitimate child (not being a married daughter) who has attained majority, where such child is, by reason of any physical or mental abnormality or injury unable to maintain itself, or

(d) his father or mother, unable to maintain himself or herself,

a Magistrate of first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, at such monthly rate as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct."

11. There can be no shadow of doubt that an order under section 125 Cr.P.C. can be passed if a person despite having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain the wife. Sometimes, a plea is advanced by the husband that he does not have the means to pay as he does not have a job or his business. These are only bald excuses and in fact they have no acceptability in laws. If the husband is healthy, able bodied and is in a position to support himself, he is under the legal obligation to support his wife.

12. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Chaturbhuj Vs. Sita Bai, (2008) 2 SCC 316 has held the grant of maintenance to wife is a measure of social justice. The court held as under:

" Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and as noted by this Court in captain Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Veena Kaushal, (1978) 4 SCC 70 falls within constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39 of the Constitution of India. It is meant to achieve a social purpose. The object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for the supply of food, clothing and shelter to the deserted wife. It gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The aforesaid position was highlighted in Savitaben Somabhai Bhatiya v. State of Gujarat (2005) 3 SCC 636.

13. A Division Bench of Madhya Pradesh High Court in the case of Durga Singh Lodhi Vs. Prembai and others, 1990 Cr.L.J. 2065 has held that mere absence of visible means or real estate will not entitle such a person to escape the liability to pay maintenance awarded under Section 125(1), as even at the stage of enforcement of the order under Section125(1), an able bodied healthy person capable of earning, must be subjected to pay maintenance allowance. If, with this visible capacity to earn, he avoids payments, it has to be held that he has so done for no sufficient cause. If such a person avoids to discharge that obligations despite issuance of a distress warrant, he can be sentenced to imprisonment for a term specified in sub-section (3) of Section 125 Cr.P.C..

14. The contention of the learned counsel for the revisionist that once the divorce petition filed by the revisionist was allowed, the maintenance granted by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Agra is bad in the eye of law has no leg to stand in view of Explanation (b) of Section 125 Cr.P.C.

15. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Rohtash Singh Vs. Smt. Ramendra and others, 2000 (2) SCR 58 has held as under:

" Admittedly, in the instant case, the respondent is a divorced wife. The marriage ties between the parties do not subsist. The decree for divorce was passed on 15th of July, 1995 and since then, she is under no obligation to live with the petitioner. But though the marital relations came to an end by the divorce granted by the Family Court under Section 13 of the Hidu Marriaage Act, the respondent continues to be "wife" within the meaning of Section 125 Cr.P.C. on account of Explanation (b) to Sub-section (1) which provides as under:

"Explanation-For the purposes of this Chapter

(a) .....

(b) " wife" includes woman who has been divorced by,or has obtained a divorce from her husband and has not remarried. "

16. On account of the Explanation quoted above, a woman who has been divorced by her husband on account of a decree passed by the Family Court under the Hindu Marriage Act, continues to enjoy the status of a wife for the limited purpose of claiming maintenance allowance from her ex-husband.

17. So far as the decree of divorce is concerned, learned Principal Judge, Family Court neither granted any permanent alimony to the wife of the revisionist nor given any reasoned findings that how the wife of the revisionist does not want to live with husband, whereas out of their wedlock two children were born. A Division Bench of this Court in Smt. Poonam Gupta Vs. Ghanshyam Gupta, AIR 2003 All 51, which was filed against the order of learned Family Judge Kanpur Nagar allowing the suit for divorce under section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act filed by the husband on the condition that he will pay a sum of Rs. 5,00,000/- (rupees five lac) to the wife and daughter. The division Bench modified the order of learned Family Judge, Kanpur Nagar and directed the husband to pay a sum of Rs. 8,00,000/- (rupees eight lac) to the wife, out of which Rs. 2,00,000/- (rupees two lac) shall be transmitted to the District Judge, who shall get the said amount deposited in the name of the child and interest accruing on such deposit would be payable to the wife every six months which would be spent by her for the maintenance of the child. The amount kept in fixed deposit shall be made available to the child on her majority. It was further observed that it was not practically possible for the plaintiff and opposite party to live together as husband and wife, even though the Court granted permanent alimony to the wife, the only object behind this is that there should be no vagrancy.

18. Contention of the learned counsel for the revisionist that opposite party No. 2 is living in adultery since 1997, hence opposite party No. 3 is not his daughter has no substance in view of Section 125 (1)(b) Cr.P.C. Further revisionist could not prove his case before the learned Family Judge that his wife opposite party No. 2 is living in adultery.

19. A Division Bench of Madras High Court in the case of K. Veeriah Vs. Muthulakshmi and others, 1999 Cr.L.J. 624, while dealing with the ground of living in adultery has held as under:

"The term "adultery" is to be understood in the light of the social ideas of the community as being a serious breach of the matrimonial tie. "Living in adultery"- mere friendship with a man does not amount to adultery within the meaning of Section 125 (4) Cr.P.C.. "Living in adultery" means the following of a course of continuous adulterous conduct. While determining the factum of "Living in adultery" the Court must consider evidence on living in quasi-permanent union with man with whom she was allegedly committing adultery. It is for the husband to prove that the wife is continuously committing violation of the marriage bed, indulging in adulterous life, by living in quasi-permanent union with her paramour. In other words, "living in adultery" means an outright adulterous conduct where the wife lives in a quasi permanent union with a man with whom she is committing adultery, shortly before or after the petition for maintenance. It is only when the husband proves satisfactorily beyond reasonable doubt that his wife was living in adultery, she will not be entitled to maintenance and not otherwise. When an allegation of adultery is made against the wife, the Court is bound to enquire into her conduct. In the said enquiry, the husband has to begin his case and the wife must be given an opportunity for adducing evidence to rebut the allegation of "living in adultery." The words "living in adultery" are merely indicative of the principle that a single or occasional lapse from virtue is not a sufficient reason for refusing maintenance. To reiterate the continued adulterous conduct is what is meant by "living in adultery."

20. In a recent decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shamima Farooqui Vs. Shahid Khan, Criminal Appeal Nos. 564-565 of 2015, decided on 06.4.2015, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

"A woman, who is constrained to leave the marital home, should not be allowed to feel that she has fallen from grace and move hither and thither arranging for sustenance. As per law, she is entitled to lead a life in the similar manner as she would have lived in the house of her husband. And that is where the status and strata of the husband comes into play and that is where the legal obligation of the husband becomes a prominent one. As long as the wife is held entitled to grant of maintenance within the parameters of Section 125 Cr.P.C., it has to be adequate so that she can live with dignity as she would have lived in her matrimonial home. She cannot be compelled to become a destitute or a beggar."

21. In this case the revisionist has failed to prove that his wife Smt. Veerwati, without any sufficient reason, refused to live with him and that she is able to maintain herself.

22. In view of what has been indicated herein above, I find that the impugned order does not suffer from any illegality or impropriety. The revision lacks merits. It is accordingly dismissed.

23. Interim order dated 05.2.2009 stands vacated.

Municipal Law — Property tax — Determination of annual value — Compliance with statutory procedure — Challenge to rent list and determination of annual value under S. 174, U.P. Municipal Corporation Act, 1959 read with Rules, 2000 — Held, fixation of annual value and rental rates must strictly follow procedure prescribed under and Rules including preparation, publication, invitation and disposal of objections — Non-compliance vitiates entire exercise. (Paras 13 to 22)

Municipal Law — Assessment list — Illegality — Violation of Rules 4-A & 4-B — Final rent list published prior to proper disposal of objections and without adherence to prescribed procedure — Exercise conducted by officers without due authority and without following statutory requirements — Held, impugned determination illegal and unsustainable. (Paras 18 to 22)

Statutory Interpretation — Mandatory procedure — Doctrine of "manner prescribed" — Where statute requires an act to be done in a particular manner, it must be done in that manner alone or not at all — Any deviation renders action void — Principle reiterated. (Paras 23 to 29)

Writ Jurisdiction — Interference — Remand for fresh action — Where statutory procedure admittedly not followed, High Court justified in quashing impugned action — Liberty granted to authority to undertake fresh exercise in accordance with law. (Paras 30 & 31)

In Result: Writ petitions allowed; impugned rent list and annual value determination set aside; liberty granted to Nagar Nigam to proceed afresh in accordance with statutory provisions. (Para 31)

1. Both these applications, filed by the same applicant against the same opposite parties and arising out of the same trial, were connected vide order dated 28.5.2015 passed by this court and are being disposed of by this common order.

2. The applicant, by means of the first application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No. 753 of 2015, has invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this Court with prayer to set aside the order dated 18.7.2014 passed by II Additional Sessions Judge, Gautam Budh Nagar, on Application dated 14.11.2013 filed in S.T. No. 580 of 2011, State Vs. Shivalik Ghosh and another, u/s 376, 323, 328 I.P.C., P.S. Mahila Thana, Noida, District Gautam Budh Nagar, whereby the learned Additional Sessions Judge has rejected the application moved by the applicant under section 311 Cr.P.C.

3. By means of second application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No. 15142 of 2015, the applicant has prayed to direct the trial court i.e. Additional Sessions Judge/F.T.C., Gautam Budh Nagar, not to proceed with the trial of S.T. No. 580 of 2011, State Vs. Shivalik Ghosh and another, u/s 376, 323, 328 I.P.C., P.S. Mahila Thana, Noida, District Gautam Budh Nagar, till the pendency of Criminal Misc. Application u/s 482 No. 753 of 2015.

4. Heard the applicant Barnali Baishya, appearing in person, learned A.G.A. for the State and Mr. Swetashwa Agarwal, learned counsel for O.P. No. 2. Perused the records.

5. The brief facts of the case are that an FIR was lodged by the applicant on 3.12.2010 at Police Station Mahila Thana Noida, District Gautam Budh Nagar, against O.P. No. 2 to the effect that on fateful date i.e. 18.8.2010, the applicant/ victim, who was working in a software Company at Noida, was picked up from her office by O.P. No. 2, Shiwalik Ghosh, who took her to Gurgaon, where he mixed some intoxicating substance in her cold drink, due to which she lost her senses. Thereafter O.P. No. 2 committed rape with her. On regaining consciousness, when the applicant resisted and complaint about it, she was pacified by the O.P. No. 2 giving her a false assurance of solemnizing marriage with her. Thereafter the O.P. No. 2 started visiting the flat of applicant situated at NOIDA and made physical relations with her several times, every time giving her assurance to marry her very soon. The applicant talked to his mother, who also assured her that their marriage will be performed after two years. It was alleged that on false assurance of marriage the accused/O.P. No. 2 continued to establish physical relations with her. He also took Rs. 50,000/- from the applicant and did not return. On 14.9.2010, the mother of O.P. No. 2 refused to perform the marriage of her son with the applicant and instead, she committed maarpeet with her. Feeling herself cheated and deceived, the applicant lodged the FIR, which was registered as Case Crime No. 32 of 2010, u/s 323, 328, 376 I.P.C. The I.O. recorded the statements of the complainant/ victim and her mother u/s 161 Cr.P.C. and after concluding the investigation submitted charge sheet against O.P. No. 2 and his mother, Smt. Chaitali Ghosh, on 11.1.2011 under the aforesaid sections.

6. Learned Magistrate took cognizance on the charge sheet and since the case was triable by the Sessions Court, it was committed to the Court of Sessions, where it was registered as S.T. No. 580 of 2011, State Vs. Shivalik Ghosh and another. During trial an application under section 311 Cr.P.C. was filed by the applicant before the trial court on 14.11.2013 with prayer to accept certain documents and to recall some witnesses to prove the documents so that those documents could be marked as exhibits, which according to applicant was very necessary for just and proper decision of the case.

7. However, the aforesaid application was rejected by the trial court vide impugned order dated 18.7.2014, which was challenged by the applicant by means of Criminal Misc. Application u/s 482 No. 753 of 2015, wherein this court issued notices to the opposite parties on 19.1.2015. Thereafter the applicant filed an application before the trial court on 13.3.2015 along with a copy of the aforesaid order of this court dated 19.1.2015 passed in Application u/s 482 No. 753 of 2015, praying to adjourn the further proceeding of the trial during pendency of Criminal Misc. Application u/s 482 No. 753 of 2015, but the learned trial court did not entertain the application and proceeded with the trial fixing the date 26.3.2015 in the case. On 26.3.2015, the case was adjourned on the request of learned counsel for the accused and 16.4.2015 was fixed. On 16.4.2015 the court was vacant and the case was fixed for 28.4.2015. Again on 28.4.2015 the P.O. was on leave and the case was fixed for 14.5.2015. On 14.5.2015, the court passed the order rejecting the prayer of the applicant to fix some long date in the case and to wait till the decision of Application u/s 482 No. 753 of 2015, pending in this court.

8. Apprehending that the trial will be concluded and decided, without giving her an opportunity to bring on record certain important documents, the applicant, again knocked the doors of this Court by means of Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No. 15142 of 2015, praying to keep in abeyance, the further proceedings of the trial, till the disposal of her application.

9. In the counter affidavit filed by O.P. No. 2, a preliminary objection has been raised that the applicant had earlier approached this court by means of Criminal Misc. Application No. 45754 of 2014 challenging the order dated 18.7.2014, which was dismissed by this court as not pressed vide order dated 13.11.2014 of this court without any order granting liberty to the applicant to file another application, hence the instant application is not maintainable. Learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 has contended that the applicant has maliciously filed this application misleading the court by deposing incorrect and false facts. The trial is now pending at the stage of hearing final arguments, however, the applicant is moving multiple applications in order to cause delay in its disposal. Learned counsel has submitted that no valid reasons have been assigned by the applicant as to why the documents intended to be marked as exhibits were not marked earlier? Learned counsel has contended that the power under section 311 of Cr.P.C. is a discretionary power, given to the court and the same has to be exercised for strong and valid reasons, and with great caution and circumspection. It is also contended that the present application is not maintainable as the same does not entail any reason as to how the witnesses mentioned in the application, are necessary to be examined for the just and proper adjudication of the present matter. Learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 has vehemently argued that the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. moved by the applicant, at such belated stage, is liable to be dismissed as the prosecution has closed its evidence, moreover, when the documents intended to be marked as exhibits, were not even the part of the investigation. The applicant has not expressed willingness to summon any witness at the earlier stage and the present application is nothing but an afterthought and has been filed with oblique motive and purpose to fill up the lacuna and the same was liable to be dismissed and was rightly dismissed by the learned trial court. Learned counsel has submitted that in view of aforesaid facts, no interference is required in the order impugned and the instant applications be dismissed.

10. Considered the submissions.

11. The record shows that vide order dated 28.5.2015, passed in Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 15142 of 2015, this court had granted interim relief to the applicant by staying the further proceedings of the Sessions Trial.

12. A perusal of the order dated 18.7.2014, which has been impugned in the first Application u/s 482 No. 753 of 2015) shows that an application "93 Kha" was moved by the applicant u/s 311 Cr.P.C. with prayer to permit her to bring on record some medical papers so that she may justify the delay caused in lodging the FIR by her. Prayer was also made to summon some person from the concerned hospital to prove those medical papers. Apart from that, she had also prayed to bring on record the print outs of some emails, chatting, SMS and face book messages, exchanged between her and the accused, but the Court below rejected her application on the ground that as the prosecution has concluded its evidence, hence it was not justifiable to entertain the application moved by the victim at such belated stage.

13. It also transpires that on the same day, the learned trial court also rejected another application "94-Kha" moved by the accused to bring on record the call history and SMS etc. exchanged between him and the prosecutrix, its being premature.

14. In a criminal trial, the delay in lodging the FIR, some time proves fatal to prosecution. Therefore, if the prosecutrix, in order to explain the delay, was trying to bring on record the medical papers of some hospitals, for the purpose of explaining the delay in lodging the FIR, the opportunity should not have been denied to her.

15. So far as the ground taken by the O.P. No. 2, that the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. was moved at a belated stage, is concerned, I do not find much force in the aforesaid argument. The words used in Section 311 Cr.P.C., are "at any stage of any enquiry, trial or other proceedings" which clearly shows that an application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. can be filed at any stage of the trial, if the evidence appears to be essential for the just decision of the case. It is also to be kept in mind that in the typical adversary system of administration of criminal justice, the victim takes a back seat behind the stage due to the reason that prosecution is conducted by the State, it being custodian of public safety and public order. The status of victim or complainant is that of a witness only, the possibility can not be ruled out that the Public Prosecutor, inadvertently conducting the trial, failed to produce relevant documents or witnesses. This state of affairs was considered by Committee for reform in Criminal Justice (Malimath Committee) at length and it made a series of recommendations to put the victim of crime back at the centre of Criminal proceedings and to participate in the trial including the right to provide evidence, to put questions to witnesses with the leave of the court, to be informed of the status of investigation, to move court to ensure proper investigation, to be heard on issues relating to bail and withdrawal of prosecution, to advance argument after the prosecutor has submitted his arguments, and to participate in settlements of compoundable offences. Although many of the aforesaid recommendations are yet to be clothed with legislative mandate, yet it indicates a tendency of our legal system to accord the victim or aggrieved a dominant role to play in a criminal trial, particularly in grave offences, who were hitherto placed at back foot.

16. The trial courts should always adhere to the dictates of Supreme Court laid down in a catena of decisions that judges should not sit like a mute and silent spectator and should play a proactive role in the process of recording of evidence and should make use of the provisions of section 311 Cr.P.C. and section 165 Evidence Act, 1872, as and when needed, with a view to give a just decision in the case so that justice triumphs.

17. In so far as the argument led by O.P. No. 2 with regard to filling up the lacuna of prosecution case, is concerned, in the case of Rajendra Prasad Vs. Narcotic Cell, (1999)6 SCC 110, the Apex Court pointed out the distinction between lacuna in the prosecution and a mistake or error inadvertently committed by the prosecution, which can always be allowed to be set right by permitting parties concerned by the Criminal Courts in exercise of its powers conferred under Section 311 Cr.P.C or under Section 165 of the Evidence Act.

18. According to Hon'ble Supreme Court:-

"Lacuna in the prosecution must be understood as the inherent weakness or a latent wedge in the matrix of the prosecution case. The advantage of it should normally go to the accused in the trial of the case, but an oversight in the management of the prosecution cannot be treated as irreparable lacuna. No party in a trial can be foreclosed from correcting errors. If proper evidence was not adduced or a relevant material was not brought on record due to any inadvertence, the court should be magnanimous in permitting such mistakes to be rectified. After all, function of the criminal court is administration of criminal justice and not to count errors committed by the parties or to find out and declare who among the parties performed better."

19. In Zahira Habibullah H. Sheikh and another Vs. State of Gujarat and others, (2004) 4 SCC 158, the Apex Court held that

"a Criminal Court cannot remain a silent spectator. It has got a participatory role to play and having been invested with enormous powers under Section 311 of Cr.P.C, as well as Section 165 of the Evidence Act, a trial Court in a situation like the present one, ought to have risen to the occasion in public interest and remedied the situation by invoking Section 311 of Cr.P.C, by recalling the said witness with the further direction to the public prosecutor for putting across the appropriate question or court question to the said witness and thereby set right the glaring error accordingly. It is unfortunate to state that the trial Court miserably failed to come alive to the realities as to the nature of evidence that was being recorded and miserably failed in its duty to note the serious flaw and error in the recording of evidence of PW-18. In this context, it must be stated that the prosecutor also unfortunately failed in his duty in not noting the deficiency in the evidence. The observation of the High Court while disposing of the revision by making a casual statement that the appellant can always file the written argument, equally in our considered opinion, was not the proper approach to a situation like the present one. What this court wishes to ultimately convey to the courts below, is that while dealing with a litigation, in particular while conducting a criminal proceeding, maintain a belligerent approach instead of a wooden one.

20. In a decision rendered by the Apex Court in Rajaram Prasad Yadav vs. State of Bihar and another - AIR 2013 SC 3081, in paragraph 14, the law has been stated as under:

14. A conspicuous reading of Section 311, Cr.P.C. would show that widest of the powers have been invested with the Courts when it comes to the question of summoning a witness or to recall or re-examine any witness already examined. It is, therefore, imperative that the invocation of Section 311 Cr.P.C. and its application in a particular case can be ordered by the Court, only by bearing in mind the object and purport of the said provision, namely, for achieving a just decision of the case as noted by us earlier. The power vested under the said provision is made available to any Court at any stage in any inquiry or trial or other proceeding initiated under the Code for the purpose of summoning any person as a witness or for examining any person in attendance, even though not summoned as witness or to recall or re-examine any person already examined. To put it differently, while such a widest power is invested with the Court, it is needless to state that exercise of such power should be made judicially and also with extreme care and caution."

21. In Mohanlal Shamji Soni v. Union of India & Anr., AIR 1991 SC 1346, the Apex Court examined the scope of Section 311 Cr.P.C., and held that

"it is a cardinal rule of the law of evidence, that the best available evidence must be brought before the court to prove a fact, or a point in issue. However, the court is under an obligation to discharge its statutory functions, whether discretionary or obligatory, according to law and hence ensure that justice is done. The court has a duty to determine the truth, and to render a just decision. The same is also the object of Section 311 Cr.P.C., wherein the court may exercise its discretionary authority at any stage of the enquiry, trial or other proceedings, to summon any person as a witness though not yet summoned as a witness, or to recall or re-examine any person, though not yet summoned as a witness, who are expected to be able to throw light upon the matter in dispute, because if the judgments happen to be rendered on an inchoate, inconclusive and speculative presentation of facts, the ends of justice would be defeated."

22. Having regard to the facts of the present case in wake of the law as laid down by the Apex Court, the Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 753 of 2015 deserves to be allowed and is hereby allowed. The impugned order dated 18.7.2014 passed by the court below is set aside and the trial court is directed to call the witnesses and admit the documents, which the applicant intends to file as evidence. The trial court may also consider to take secondary evidence in case primary evidence is either not available or cannot be produced in the court without causing undue delay in final disposal of the case due to unavoidable circumstances.

23. Since the proceedings of the trial have been stayed vide interim order dated 28.5.2015 passed in Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 15142 of 2015 and the main objection raised by O.P. No. 2 against the application u/s 311 Cr.P.C., if it is being allowed, is that it will cause delay in disposal of trial, which is at concluding stage, the trial court is further directed to conclude the trial in accordance with law expeditiously preferably within a period of six months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

24. The second Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 15142 of 2015 has now become infructuous due to the reason that the only prayer made in this application was to keep the proceedings of the sessions trial in abeyance till pendency of Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 753 of 2015. The Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 753 of 2015 has been allowed today, therefore, the Application u/s 482 No. 15142 of 2015 has now become infructuous and is accordingly dismissed as infructuous.

Second Appeal No.- 797 Of 2014

Counsel for the Appellant:
Anoop Trivedi

Counsel for the Respondent:
Pramod Jain

Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988 – Ss. 3(2) and 4 – Property purchased in name of woman – Plea of benami transaction – Statutory presumption – Rebuttal – Burden of proof – Plaintiff claimed possession over disputed house on strength of registered sale deeds executed in her favour. Defendant pleaded that consideration had actually been paid by his father and transaction was benami. Held, where sale deeds stand in plaintiff's name and defence of benami is raised, statutory bar under S. 4 operates. Further, under S. 3(2), purchase in name of wife carries a statutory presumption that property was purchased for her benefit unless rebutted by convincing evidence. Defendant failed to rebut such presumption by any cogent evidence. Mere assertion that consideration was supplied by another person was insufficient. Ownership of plaintiff rightly upheld.

Adverse possession – Essential pleadings and proof – Permissive possession cannot become adverse possession in absence of specific hostile assertion – Defendant set up inconsistent pleas of inheritance and adverse possession. Held, adverse possession requires clear pleadings and proof of hostile, open and continuous possession. Entry into property having been permissive, defendant could not claim title by adverse possession. Necessary ingredients neither pleaded nor proved.

Licence – Occupation by family member – Permissive possession – Licensee liable to vacate – Defendant had entered into occupation with consent of plaintiff and predecessor-in-interest. Since possession originated permissively, first appellate court rightly treated defendant as mere licensee and directed delivery of possession.

Second Appeal – Scope of interference under S.100 CPC – Reversal by first appellate court – Validity – First appellate court assigned cogent reasons while reversing findings of trial court. Reappreciation of evidence and direction for delivery of possession held within jurisdiction and not liable to interference in second appeal.

In Result-Substantial questions of law answered in favour of respondent and against appellant. Judgment of first appellate court upheld. Second Appeal dismissed and direction for delivery of possession affirmed

Rebti Devi (Smt.) v. Ram Dutt and another (1997) 11 SCC 714

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vinod Kumar Misra, J.)

1. This second appeal has been filed by Ratan Kumar Sharma against Smt. Premwati Sharma against the judgment and decree dated 9.5.2014 passed by Additional District Judge, Court no. 9, Meerut in Civil Appeal No. 75 of 2008 by which the learned first appellate court has set aside the judgment and decree dated 12.5.2008 passed in Original Suit No. 243 of 2002 and directed the defendant/appellant to vacate the suit property within one month.

2. The appellant made a prayer that the judgment and decree dated 9.5.2014 passed by Additional District Judge Court No. 9 in Civil Appeal No. 75 of 2008 be set aside.

3. This appeal was admitted on 31.7.2014 on the substantial question of law as framed by the appellant namely A, B and C, which are as under:

(A) Whether the findings recorded by and all the conclusions arrived at by the learned first appellate court are wholly baseless and perverse?

(B) Whether without upsetting the finding recorded by the trial court, the learned first appellate court could have set aside the judgment and decree of the learned trial court?

(C) Whether the direction issued by the learned first appellate court to vacate the suit property within one month is wholly misconceived is without jurisdiction and illegal?

4. I have heard learned counsel for the appellant and learned counsel for the respondent at length and have perused the record of learned trial court and have also perused the judgment of learned trial court as well as learned first appellate court and have also gone through the material available on record.

5. Original Suit No. 243 of 2002 was filed by Premwati Sharma, plaintiff against Sri Ratan Kumar Sharma, defendant for delivery of possession through mandatory injunction. Learned trial court vide judgment dated 12.5.2008 dismissed the plaintiff's suit. Plaintiff assailed the judgment of the learned trial court by preferring appeal no. 75 of 2008 before District Judge, Meerut. The appeal was transferred to the Additional District Judge, Court No. 9, Meerut. Learned first appellate court vide judgment dated 9.5.2014 allowed the appeal and set aside the judgment of trial court and partly decreed the original suit no. 243 of 2002 and directed the defendant to hand over the vacant possession to the plaintiff of house nos. 54 and 58 situated at Ganjbazar, Meerut Cantt.

6. Since substantial questions of law mentioned above as A,B and C are inter-connected, so I am taking all the above framed substantial questions of law together for deciding this second appeal.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that learned first appellate court has set aside the judgment of the learned trial court by holding that plaintiff was owner of the disputed house on the basis of sale deed dated 14.5.1980 and 21.5.1986, which is paper nos. 7 Ka and 22 Ka. Learned trial court found that these sale deeds i.e. paper nos. 7 Ka and 22 Ka have not been proved by plaintiff by calling the scribe or its marginal witnesses in evidence and trial court did not accept the plaintiff as owner of house nos. 54 and 58, which were purchased through sale deeds dated 14.5.1980 and 21.5.1986. Learned first appellate court did not agree with the reasons of the trial court in holding that these sale deeds i.e. paper nos. 7 Ka and 22 Ka are not proved and held that since execution of these sale deeds have not been denied by the defendant but it has been alleged by the defendant that these sale deeds were purchased in the name of plaintiff by the father of the defendant, Ram Narayan Sharma as benami and sale consideration was given by the father of defendant, Ram Narayan. In the trial court issue no 9 was frame like as follows:

8. Issue no. 9: Whether the statement of para 36 of the written statement regarding banami transaction is barred by Section 4?

9. Learned trial court did not decide this issue on merit but decided it on the basis of not pressing the issue by the plaintiff's counsel.

10. Learned first appellate court has held that pertaining to the Section 4 of the Benami Transaction (Prohibition) Act, 1988 (herein after referred to as the Act) was legal issue. It was duty of the trial court to decide it on merit even if, it was not pressed by the counsel for the parties. Learned first appellate court has found that defendant has failed to prove the transaction as benami and plaintiff is owner of the disputed house on the basis of sale deeds executed in her favour. Regarding Section 4 and Section 3 of the Act case laws of AIR 1995 Supreme Court 2145 (Nand Kishore Mehra Vs. Shushila Mehra) and (1997) 11 Supreme Court Cases 714 (Rebti Devi (Smt.) Vs. Ram Dutt and another) have been cited before me. In the first case law of Nand Kishore it has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that neither the filing of suit nor taking of a defence in respect of either the present or past benami transaction involving the purchase of property by a person in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter as prohibited under subsection 1 and subsection 2 of Section 4 of the Act.

11. Section 3 of the Act is reproduced as under:

Section-3 "3. Prohibition of benami transactions.—

(1) No person shall enter into any benami transaction.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall apply to the purchase of property by any person in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter and it shall be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that the said property had been purchased for the benefit of the wife or the unmarried daughter.

(3) Whoever enters into any benami transaction shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years or with fine or with both.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), an offence under this section shall be non-cognizable and bailable.

Section-5

"5. Property held benami liable to acquisition.--(1) All properties held benami shall be subject to acquisition by such authority, in such manner and after following such procedure, as may be prescribed. (2) For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that no amount shall be payable for the acquisition of any property under sub-section."

12. In the first case law of Nand Kishre it has also been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraph 6 that:

Sub-section (1) of Section 3 , as seen, prohibits a person from entering into any benami transaction. Sub- section (3) of Section 3 , as seen, makes a person who enters into a benami transaction liable for punishment. Section 5 makes properties held benami liable for acquisition without payment of any amount. But, when sub-section (2) of Section 3 permits a person to enter into a benami transaction of purchase of property in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter by declaring that the prohibition contained against a person in entering into a benami transaction in sub- section (1) of Section 3, does not apply to him, question of punishing the person concerned in the transaction under sub- section (3) thereof or the question of acquiring the property concerned in the transaction under Section 5, can never arise, as otherwise the exemption granted under Section 3 (2) would become redundant. What we have said of the person and the property concerned in sub-section (2) of Section 3 in relation to non-applicability of the provisions of Section 3 (3) and Section 5 shall equally hold good for non applicability of the provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) of Section 4 in the matter of filing of the suit or taking up the defence for the self same reason. Further, we find it difficult to hold that a person permitted to purchase a property in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter under sub-section (2) of Section 3 notwithstanding the prohibition to enter into a benami transaction contained in sub-section (1) of Section 3 cannot enforce his rights arising therefrom, for to hold so would amount to holding that the Statute which allows creation of rights by a benami transaction also prohibits the enforcement of such rights, a contradiction which can never be attributed to a Statute. If that be so, there can be no valid reason to deny to a person, enforcement of his rights validly acquired even in the past by purchase of property in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter, by making applicable the prohibition contained in respect of filing of suits or taking up of defences imposed in respect of benami transactions in general by sub-sections (1) and (2) of Section 4 of the Act. But, it has to be made clear that when a suit is filed or defence is taken in respect of such benami transaction involving purchase of property by any person in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter, he cannot succeed in such suit or defence unless he proves that the property although purchased in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter, the same had not been purchased for the benefit of either the wife or the unmarried daughter, as the case may be, because of the statutory presumption contained in sub-section (2) of Section 3 that unless a contrary is proved that the purchase of property by the person in the name of his wife or his unmarried daughter, as the case may be, was for her benefit.

13. In the second case law of Rebti Devi the arguments was advanced that law laid down by a three-Judge Bench of Supreme Court in Rajagopal Reddy case, prohibiting raising of defence of benami in such circumstances, had been doubted by another three-judge Bench of Supreme Court in Nand Kishore Mehra case. It has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that the decision in Rajagopal Reddy case is not in any manner shaken by anything said in Nand Kishore Mehra case and that both the cases deal with different aspects of the Act and each of the cases continues to govern different provisions of the Act.

14. In the present case the arguments of the learned counsel for the appellant emphasized that learned first appellate court gave the finding only on the basis of Section 4 of the Act and did not take into consideration Section 3 (2). In which it has specifically been mentioned that nothing in sub-section (1) shall apply to the purchase of property by any person in the name of his wife or unmarried daughter and it shall be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that the said property had been purchased for the benefit of the wife or the unmarried daughter.

15. According to the appellant in the present case, plaintiff was living with defendant's father in the house no. 53 and she helped defendant's father in up-bringing the children of defendant's father, Ram Narayan Sharma with his wife Shakuntala Sharma and also looking after Shakuntala Sharma, who was bed ridden. Ultimately, Premwati made physical relations with defendant's father and was in dominating position to control him. Disciplinary proceedings were also drawn against defendant's father on the complaint of Premwati's ex-husband from whom she obtained divorce regarding the illicit relationship of Premwati with defendant's father. Ultimately, those disciplinary proceedings were ended in favour of defendant's father but Premwati used to coerce defendant's father that if he dis-obeyed the command of Premwati, she would again complain in his department regarding illicit relationship with her. So, in these circumstances defendant's father purchased the disputed house in name of Premwati and Premwati was not in a position to purchase the house nos. 54 and 58 independently from her meager income of teaching.

16. But since transaction was benami and Section 4 prohibits filing of suit or defence, learned first appellate court on the basis of Section 4 found ownership in the disputed house with plaintiff, Premwati. No doubt in Section 3 (2) presumption is in favour of plaintiff that house was purchased for her benefit being wife of Ram Narayan Sharma but Ram Narayan Sharma was entitled to rebut this presumption if we give wider interpretation to word 'wife' in Section 3 (2) of the Act.

17. There is no evidence by defendant to rebut the presumption of Section 3 (2) of the Act as Premwati rendered her services in defendant's family and his father treated her as wife and got executed sale deeds for her benefit. From another angle if we confine to the provisions of Section 3(2) of the Act to legally wedded wife only, then the defence of the defendant regarding the benami transaction will be hit by Section 4 (2) of the Act. So in both the eventualities scale is tilting in favour of plaintiff /respondent, as sale deeds are in her favour and the defence of benami transaction is hit by Section 4 (2) of the Act as held by learned first appellate court, is correct conclusion in the facts of the present case. So far as the status of the defendant in the disputed house as owner is concerned defendant has taken two pleas regarding ownership one by inheritance being son of Ram Narayan Sharma and other by adverse possession. So far as first plea of inheritance of house being son of Ram Narayan Sharma is concerned since Ram Narayan Sharma has not been found owner of the disputed house and so far as plea of adverse possession is concerned necessary ingredients of adverse possession has not neither been pleaded and nor been proved in accordance with law. Earlier entry of defendant in the house is being permissive with defendant's consent, so question of adverse possession does not arise, as defendant was inducted and permitted to live in house after his marriage with the consent of plaintiff being the son of Ram Narayan Sharma with whom plaintiff was living as a keep or so called wife.

18. So first appellate court's finding regarding treating the defendant as occupant in the house as licencee is according to law. So far as the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that learned first appellate court has not reversed the reasons of the trial court is concerned, it is observed that learned first appellate court has given cogent reason in his judgment regarding reversing the findings of the learned trail court on issues framed in the suit.

19. In the above facts and circumstances, the findings recorded by the first appellate court are according to law and learned first appellate court has given the finding in the appeal upon the points involved in the case and upset the finding of the learned trial court. Learned first appellate court was competent and had jurisdiction to direct the appellant/defendant to vacate the disputed house and hand over its possession to plaintiff within one month since the date of passing of the judgment.

20. So in these circumstances, all the above substantial questions of law, namely, A, B and C are answered in favour of respondent and against the appellant. Thus, the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

21. The appeal is, accordingly, dismissed.

22. Copy of the judgment and record of the courts below be also transmitted to the courts below concerned.

THE HON'BLE PRATYUSH KUMAR, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 1845 Of 1982

Mahendra & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Mohan Chandra, Ravi Prakash Singh

Counsel for the Respondent:
A.G.A

Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 394 & 397 — Robbery causing hurt — Conviction — Accused persons armed with guns and lathi entered baithak where hawkers were sleeping, looted goods and fired upon injured witness while committing robbery — Injured witness sustained firearm injury on hip and other victims received injuries by blunt objects — Held, prosecution successfully established charges under Ss. 394 and 397 IPC beyond reasonable doubt through trustworthy ocular and medical evidence.
Evidence — Injured witness — Evidentiary value — Injured witness having sustained firearm injury during occurrence held natural and reliable witness — Absence of enmity with accused and consistency of testimony with medical evidence lent strong assurance to prosecution case — Testimony of injured witness entitled to greater evidentiary weight.
Evidence — Identification in lantern light — Non-production of lantern — Effect — Occurrence took place at midnight and witnesses identified accused in light of lantern burning at spot — Mere non-production of lantern during trial not fatal where FIR promptly mentioned source of light and witness satisfactorily explained that lantern had broken prior to trial.
Criminal Trial — Lapses in investigation — Effect on prosecution case — Failure of Investigating Officer to seize bloodstained clothes of injured witness not sufficient to discard otherwise credible testimony of eyewitnesses — Accused cannot derive benefit from mere omission or negligence on part of investigating agency.
Criminal Appeal against conviction — Duty of appellate court — Appellate court while hearing appeal against conviction under S. 374 CrPC obliged to independently reassess and reappreciate evidence and deal with submissions raised by accused — Conviction affirmed after fresh appraisal of oral and documentary evidence.
Penal Code, 1860 — S. 397 — Minimum sentence — Reduction on ground of old age — Impermissibility — Surviving appellants sought reduction of sentence on account of advanced age — Rejected — Since offence under S. 397 IPC proved, statutory minimum sentence of seven years' rigorous imprisonment could not be reduced.
In Result: Appeal dismissed; conviction and sentence of surviving appellants under Ss. 394/397 IPC affirmed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pratyush Kumar, J.)

1. The instant appeal filed on behalf of the accused appellants under section 374 Cr.P.C. is directed against judgment and orders dated 17th/19th July, 1982 passed by Sri B.N. Mohilay, the then Second Additional Sessions Judge, Moradabad in ST No. 328 of 1980 whereby, the appellants were convicted under sections 394/397 IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment of seven years.

2. During the pendency of the appeal, appellant no.1 Mahendra and appellant no.4 Natthan had died and their appeals stood abated.

3. Heard Sri Ravi Prakash Singh, Advocate, learned counsel for the appellant no.s 2 and 3, Sri B.P. Kashyap, learned AGA for the State-respondent and have gone through the records of the sessions trial and appeals.

4. The facts giving rising to the present appeal may be summarized as under:

5. On 3rd January, 1979 at 5.40 Dataram gave a written report at P.S. Bachhraun stating therein that in the previous night he along with Shankar, Mahendra, Surajpal, Maum Singh, Roop Ram and Dharm Pal residents of village Arjunpur Nagariya were sleeping in his baithak. These named persons were hawkers who used to sell goods at various places. Whenever they visited his village they used to stay with him. Lantern was burning at the door, where door leaves were not affixed. At about mid night Mahendra and Chandu Badhawan armed with guns, Khuda Bux armed with lathi and one Natthan resident of village Rasulpur armed with gun came to his baithak and Mahendra had inquired who were sleeping there. When he and other persons remained silent all the four miscreants started to rob goods of the said hawkers. Meantime Shankar tried to run away and raised alarm. Mahendra shot him from his gun which struck on the hip of Shankar, who fell down. At that they raised alarm. Miscreants had also beaten with danda Roopram and Dharmpal. Before villagers could come miscreants made their good escape. He and the said hawkers had identified the miscreants in the light of lantern. They had looted clothes, cosmetic articles, scales and weights and one wrist watch.

6. At this check FIR was scribed, case crime no. 2/1979 under section 394, 397 IPC was registered, investigation was entrusted to S.I. Sri R.S. Tomar who immediately started the investigation and examined the first informant Dataram, injured Shankar and Dharmpal. Thereafter reached the spot, took samples of blood stained and plain earth, found lantern at the appointed place in working condition. After conclusion of investigation he submitted the charge sheet against all the four named accused persons. All the four accused stood for trial before the Court of Session, where they were charged under section 394 read with section 397 IPC. They denied the charge and claimed to be tried. On the conclusion of trial they were found guilty. Consequently convicted and sentenced as above.

7. Sri Ravi Prakash Singh, Advocate learned counsel appearing for the surviving appellants has submitted that it is a night occurrence. The sole source of light the alleged lantern was not produced in the court. Therefore, existence of lantern is doubtful. He further submits that enmity of Dataram with the appellants is admitted and it was Dataram who with the help of roaming hawkers had concocted a false case against the present appellant. He further submits that it is fake case. This fact can be gathered from the fact that no goods or articles belonging to Dataram were looted. He further submits that though three out of four alleged miscreants were claimed to be of the same village but they did not take precaution to cover their faces. This fact belies the veracity of prosecution version. In the last he has submitted that at present age of appellant no.2 Chandu is 78 years and age of appellant no.3 Khuda Bux is 77 years. On the basis of their advanced age he prays for reduction in sentence.

8. On behalf of the State-respondent these arguments have been repelled and it has been submitted that regarding non production of lantern Data Ram P.W.1 has specifically stated that before one year of his examination in court it had broken down. For this reason the learned AGA submits that there is justification for non production. In reference to second argument he submits that injured witnesses had no enmity with the appellant. They belonged to another village and another district. There is no reason that they would falsely depose against four innocent persons.

9. In reference to third argument, the learned AGA submits that the robbery took place in the baithak where hawkers were sitting and their goods were kept. It is natural that owner of the house would not keep his household goods in the baithak, therefore, there is no improbability that no good/article belonging to Dataram was looted.

10. In reference to 4th argument he submits that when the appellants had planned to loot strangers before going to commit robbery they might not have felt any need to cover their faces. In the last he has submitted that findings recorded by the learned trial Judge are well substantiated from the record. Cogent reasons have been given in support thereof. The appeal has no substance and deserves to be dismissed.

11. In reference to my obligation as an appellate court hearing appeal against conviction, I would like to refresh my mind by recalling the observation made by the Apex Court in the case of Ishvarbhai Fuljibhai Patni Vs. State of Gujarat [1995 Supreme Court Cases (Crl) 222]. Para-4 of the judgment reads as under:

"4. Since, the High Court was dealing with the appeal in exercise of its appellate jurisdiction, against conviction and sentence of life imprisonment, it was required to consider and discuss the evidence and deal with the arguments raised at the bar. Let alone, any discussion of the evidence, we do not find that the High Court even cared to notice the evidence led in the case. None of the arguments of the learned counsel for the appellant have been noticed, much less considered and discussed. The judgment is cryptic and we are at loss to understand as to what prevailed with the High Court to uphold the conviction and sentence of the appellant. On a plain requirement of justice, the High Court while dealing with a first appeal against conviction and sentence is expected to, howsoever briefly depending upon the facts of the case, consider and discuss the evidence and deal with the submissions raised at the bar. If it fails to do so, it apparently fails in the discharge of one of its essential jurisdiction under its appellate powers. In view of the infirmities pointed out by us, the judgment under appeal cannot be sustained."

12. In the case of Lal Mandi, Appellant v. State of West Bengal, Respondent [1995 CRI.L.J.2659 (Supreme Court), 2659], the Apex Court in para-5 of the report has given caution to the High Court reminding its duty in the matter of hearing of appeal against conviction. It would be gainful to reproduce the observation made in para-5 of the report, extracted below:

"5. To say the least, the approach of the High Court is totally fallacious. In an appeal against conviction, the Appellate Court has the duty to itself appreciate the evidence on the record and if two views are possible on the appraisal of the evidence, the benefit of reasonable doubt has to be given to an accused. It is not correct to suggest that the "Appellate Court cannot legally interfere with" the order of conviction where the trial court has found the evidence as reliable and that it cannot substitute the findings of the Sessions Judge by its own, if it arrives at a different conclusion on reassessment of the evidence. The observation made in Tota Singh's case, which was an appeal against acquittal, have been misunderstood and mechanically applied. Though, the powers of an appellate court, while dealing with an appeal against acquittal and an appeal against conviction are equally wide but the considerations which weigh with it while dealing with an appeal against an order of acquittal and in an appeal against conviction are distinct and separate. The presumption of innocence of accused which gets strengthened on his acquittal is not available on his conviction. An appellate court may give every reasonable weight to the conclusions arrived at by the trial court but it must be remembered that an appellate court is duty bound, in the same way as the trial court, to test the evidence extrinsically as well as intrinsically and to consider as thoroughly as the trial court, all the circumstances available on the record so as to arrive at an independent finding regarding guilt or innocence of the convict. An Appellate Court fails in the discharge of one of its essential duties, if it fails to itself appreciate the evidence on the record and arrive at an independent finding based on the appraisal of such evidence."

13. Before entering into the merits of the argument I think it is expedient to place on record broad features of the evidence adduced on behalf of the parties. In documentary evidence on behalf of the prosecution besides of her police paper written report Ext. Ka-1, FIR Ext-Ka6, Copy of the report of the general diary Ext. Ka-7, Recovery memo of blood stained and plain earth Ext. Ka-2, Injury report of Shanker Pal Ext. Ka-3, Injury report of Roop Ram Banjare Ext. Ka-4, Injury report Dharm Pal Ext. Ka-5, Site plan with index Ext. Ka-8, charge-sheets Ext. Ka-9 and Ext. Ka-10 were filed.

14. In oral evidence 7 witnesses were examined. Summary of their testimonies is as under:

15. Dataram P.W.1 is the first informant. He has proved the written report Ext. Ka-1 and memo of taking samples of blood stained and plain earth Ext. Ka-2. He has reiterated the facts stated in the first information report.

16. Shankar P.W.2 is one of the hawker. He is an injured witness. He has supported the prosecution version as contained in the FIR.

17. Dharmpal P.W.3 is the injured witness. He has reiterated the version as stated by Shankar P.W.2.

18. Dr. Satish Kumar Badal, P.W.4 is the medical officer. He on 3rd January, 1979 at PHC, Dhanaura has medically examined Shankar, Roop Ram and Dharmpal. He has prepared their injury reports and proved them as Ext. Ka-3 and Ka-4. He medically examined Shankar on that day at 7.45 A.M. In the injury report he recorded the following injuries:

(1) One lacerated wound on right hip, 6 cm x 4 cm x 2 cm obliquely measured, skin edges ragged. Blackening and Scorching were present. Tissues were divided unevenly. Shape of the wound was uneven. No wound of exit was found.

(2) One abrasion on lateral aspect of right elbow joint, 0.5 cm x 0.5 cm.

(3) Multiple contusions from left side of back in an area of 8 cm x 4 cm, 8 cm. below tip of shoulder.

19. For injury no.1 x-ray was advised. According to the witness injury no.2 and 3 were simple. Their duration was upto 12 hours. Injury no.1 was caused by bullet. Injury nos. 2 and 3 were caused by hard object. These injuries could have been sustained in the mid night of 2/3-1-1979.

20. He medically examined Roop Ram at 7.55 A.M. on that day and recorded the following injuries in Ext. Ka-4.

(1) One lacerated wound on scalp 2 cm x 0.5 cm x scalp deep, 14 cm. above from the left ear.

(2) One abrasion on left elbow joint posteriorly, 1 cm. x .5 cm.

21. According to him both the injuries were simple, caused by hard and blunt object. Injury no.2 could have been caused by friction. Duration was between 0 to 12 hours. They could have been caused in the mid night of 2nd/3rd January, 1979 on the same day at 8.10 A.M.

22. On the examination on the person of Dharmpal he could not find any external mark of injury. The injured complaint pain in left arm.

23. Constable Ram Kumar Sharma P.W.5 on 3.1.1979 took these injured to PHC Dhanaura for medical examination.

24. Constable Girdhari Singh P.W.6 is the scribe of check FIR. He has proved check FIR Ext. Ka-3. Copy of the report of the general diary Ext. Ka-7.

25. S.I. R.S. Tomar P.W.7 is the Investigating Officer. He has given details of steps taken during the course of investigation. He has proved the site plan Ext. Ka-8, memo of taking of samples of blood stained and plain earth Ext. Ka-2, charge-sheet Ext. Ka-9 and Ka-10.

26. Before the trial court defence was of simple denial and false prosecution on account of enmity. After prosecution evidence statements of accused persons were recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein the accused persons denied the facts stated by the prosecution witnesses. According to deceased appellant Mahendra he had enmity with Dataram. Witnesses were of the patti of Dataram. Rest of the accused persons also reiterated the said facts.

27. In the defence no evidence was given.

28. Barring last argument the arguments advanced on behalf of the surviving appellants relate to appreciation of evidence by the learned trial Judge, therefore, proper course to examine the merits of these arguments is to re-examine and re-assess the evidence of prosecution, specially in the light of the grounds taken in the memo of appeals and arguments advanced in support thereof.

29. Dataram, P.W.1 had sustained no injury but he is the first informant and considering the distance of 8 km from his village to the police station, he had lodged the FIR promptly and took the injured for treatment, therefore, his presence at the time of occurrence appears to be natural. The occurrence took place in his baithak in the mid night. For this reason his presence is also probable. I have no hesitation in holding him to be natural and probable witness. The next question is whether he had an opportunity to see the occurrence. The only objection raised on behalf of the appellant is that there was no light at the time of occurrence because the lantern was not produced, in the light of which the witnesses claim to have seen occurrence and identified the miscreants. Since he had given reason for non production of lantern and source of light was mentioned in the promptly lodged FIR, I am of the opinion that at the time of occurrence lantern was burning and in its light the witnesses had opportunity to see the occurrence and identify the miscreants.

30. During cross examination his testimony remained unshaken. One objection against his truthfulness has been taken on behalf of the appellants is that he claims that clothes of injured Shanker were stained with blood and this witness claims to have taken those clothes to police station and produced them before the investigating officer but those clothes were not taken into possession by the investigating officer. Whether on the basis of lapse on the investigating officer testimony of the witnesses can be discarded. To this question my answer is that the witness had done all, which could have been done by any law abiding person. He could not be blamed for omission of the investigating officer, therefore, on the lapse of investigating officer I am not inclined to reject his testimony. My opinion is fortified by the observation of the Hon'ble Apex Court made in the case of State of Punjab Vs. Hakam Singh (2005)7 SCC 40.

31. Now the question remains whether on account of previous litigation with Dataram evidence of this witness can be disbelieved. The witness has admitted that his motor of tube-well was stolen. He had lodged FIR against Ram Kumar, brother of deceased appellant-Mahendra. His frank admission of this fact persuades me that on account of that theft had the witness was deposing falsely, he would not have given a straight answer to this question. I think he is a truthful witness.

32. Shanker P.W.2 is an injured witness. He received bullet injury on his hip. This fact even has not disputed by the defence. He is also one of the hawkers whose goods were looted. He is a natural and probable witness. In the light of lantern he had opportunity to see the occurrence. He has no enmity with the appellants. He has withstood the test of cross examination successfully. I do not find any major contradiction in his testimony. In my opinion he is a trustworthy witness. My view is fortified by the observation of the Hon'ble Apex Court made in the case of Jarnail Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2009 (6) Supreme 526.

33. Dharmpal P.W.3 is also one of the hawkers who was sleeping in the baithak and his goods were looted though he sustained no visible injury but considering the fact that he was sleeping with his friends at the baithak of Dataram his presence at the spot at the relevant time is natural and probable. He had opportunity to see the occurrence and identify the miscreants. He withstood the test of cross examination successfully. He is an independent witness. His testimony inspires confidence of the Court.

34. Rest of the witnesses are formal in nature. While reassessing and re-examining the evidential value of the witnesses all the grounds raised in support of the appeal have been dealt with and found without substance.

35. The last argument that appellants are of advanced age would not help the surviving appellants because charge under section 394 IPC stood proved beyond reasonable doubt. Causing bullet injury during the commission of robbery also proves the charge under section 397 IPC beyond reasonable doubt. Under section 397 IPC seven years' rigorous imprisonment is minimum sentence. For this reason I do not think any interference can be made in the sentence awarded by the learned trial Judge.

36. In view of above, the appeal has no substance. Conviction and sentences of appellant nos. 2 and 3 are hereby affirmed and their appeal is dismissed.

37. Appellants are in jail. They shall serve out their sentences.

Counsel for the Appellant:
Dharmendra Singhal, Babit Kumar, J.S. Audichya, Rajul Bhargava

Counsel for the Respondent:
Government Advocate

Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 — Ss. 7-A, 20, 52 & 53 and Juvenile Justice Rules, 2007 — Rule 12 — Claim of juvenility after rejection by Juvenile Justice Board — Effect of finality of earlier orders — Appellant convicted for kidnapping for ransom raised plea of juvenility on basis of matriculation certificate showing date of birth as 15.10.1986 — Earlier claim of juvenility had been rejected by Juvenile Justice Board on medical opinion and subsequent appeals dismissed — Question referred whether plea could again be entertained in criminal appeal despite earlier orders attaining finality — Held, beneficial provisions of Juvenile Justice Act permit claim of juvenility to be raised at any stage, even after final disposal of proceedings, if determination was not made in accordance with procedure prescribed under Rule 12 of Rules, 2007.

Juvenile Justice — Determination of age — Primacy of matriculation certificate — Rule 12(3) mandates hierarchy of evidence for age determination — Matriculation or equivalent certificate to be treated as conclusive proof of age, and medical opinion can be sought only in absence of documentary evidence specified in Rule 12(3)(a) — Since matriculation certificate showing appellant's date of birth was produced and remained unrebutted, appellant held juvenile on date of occurrence.

Juvenile Justice — Claim of juvenility — Stage of raising plea — Proviso to S. 7-A expressly permits claim of juvenility to be raised before any court at any stage, including after final disposal of case — Object of legislation being welfare-oriented and reformative, technical rules of finality or limitation cannot defeat substantive statutory protection available to juvenile.

Juvenile Justice — Beneficial legislation — Liberal interpretation — Juvenile Justice Act, 2000 enacted to advance constitutional and international obligations for protection and rehabilitation of children in conflict with law — Courts required to adopt liberal approach in extending benefits of juvenility wherever statutory conditions are satisfied.

Juvenile Justice — Medical opinion vis-à-vis documentary evidence — Earlier determination of age solely on medical opinion without considering matriculation certificate not in conformity with Rule 12 of Rules, 2007 — Such determination not conclusive and liable to be reconsidered.

Juvenile Justice — Pending proceedings including appeal — Applicability of amended provisions — Explanation to S. 20 and Rule 97 of Rules, 2007 make provisions applicable to all pending trials, appeals, revisions and criminal proceedings irrespective of whether accused had ceased to be juvenile by time claim was raised.

Reference Answered: Full Bench held that claim of juvenility can be raised and reconsidered even after earlier rejection if determination was not in accordance with Rule 12 of Rules, 2007; doctrine of finality cannot override statutory mandate under Ss. 7-A and 20 of Juvenile Justice Act, 2000.

(Delivered by Hon'ble V.K. Shukla, J.)

1. Kidnapping for ransom of a 3 year old child and his recovery in a police raid led to a trial by the Sessions Court in which the appellant has been convicted by the judgement dated 15.4.2013.

2. In this appeal, an issue of juvenility has been raised in the background that the incident in which the appellant is involved is of 15th/16th May 2003. The appellant claims that his date of birth recorded in the High School Examination (Matriculation) record is 15th October 1986 and as such on the date of the incident, he had not attained the age of 18 years, consequently, he was entitled to the benefit of being a juvenile as contemplated under the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 read with the the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules 2007 framed thereunder.

3. What appears from the record is that the appellant had moved an application for declaring him to be juvenile before the concerned Court in Session Trial No. 188 of 2004. The prosecution had moved an application for conducting a joint trial of this case along with the Session Trial No. 56-A of 2004 and 188-A of 2004.

4. The application moved for declaring the appellant a juvenile in Session Trial No. 188 of 2004 was sent to the Juvenile Justice Board and in that file, vide order dated 5.9.2005, the claim of the appellant to declare him a juvenile in Case Crime No. 147 of 2004 and Case Crime No. 148 of 2004, the Juvenile Justice Board rejected the plea of the appellant after getting a medical report from the Chief Medical Officer, Mathura dated 4.7.2005. The order dated 5.9.2005 categorically records that since no other evidence was adduced the parties agreed for the disposal of the application and it was held that the applicant was aged about 19 years on the date of the incident in the aforesaid case crime numbers.

5. After almost four years thereafter, a prayer appears to have been made in Session Trial No. 188-A of 2004 connected with the same incident praying for declaration of the appellant in the said Session Trial as a juvenile. The matter was examined by the Juvenile Justice Board and on 19.11.2009, the prayer for declaring him a juvenile was rejected by the Juvenile Justice Board against which the appellant filed an appeal on 19.9.2011 in terms of Section 52 of the 2000 Act after a period of almost two years. It appears that at the stage of appeal the matriculation certificate was adduced and pressed for the first time as it conformed to the 2007 Rules. In these proceedings, a reference was made of the application moved for declaring the appellant to be juvenile bearing no. 35-Kha. This was the application, which was moved for sending the file to the Juvenile Justice Board, but prior to that, after the order dated 5.9.2005 referred to hereinabove, a request had been made to send the file to the learned Sessions Court.

6. Thus two sets of orders came into existence in relation to the claim of juvenility of the appellant, one dated 5.9.2005 and the other dated 19.11.2009.

7. The appeal, which was against the order dated 19.11.2009 was dismissed on 29.9.2011 and the appellate court recorded all the above noted facts in the said order. What appears from the order dated 29.9.2011 is that this contention of the appellant about declaring him to be a juvenile was dismissed on the observations that were noted including the observation that no appeal had been filed against the order dated 5.9.2005 passed earlier in relation to S.T. No. 188 of 2004.

8. Faced with this at this stage, the appellant filed an Appeal No. 153 of 2012 against the order dated 5.9.2005, which was dismissed on 4.2.2013 firstly, on the ground that the appeal had been presented after almost seven years and there was no reason to condone the delay and secondly, the appellant had full knowledge of the order dated 5.9.2005, that was subject matter of consideration by the Juvenile Justice Board in the subsequent order dated 19.11.2009 and dismissal of the appeal on 29.9.2011.

9. These facts have been mentioned clearly in the appellate order dated 4.2.2013.

10. The appellant, thereafter probably realising the legal obstruction on account of the order dated 5.9.2005 having become final, preferred Writ Petition No. 3438 of 2013 which was dismissed as withdrawn treating it to be infructuous vide order dated 13.10.2014 but with an observation that the right of the petitioner to raise the issue of juvenility shall not be affected in the present appeal.

11. The judgment in the writ petition dated 13th October 2014 is extracted hereunder :

"Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that during the course of trial, the petitioner moved an application under Section 7 (a) of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000 to declare him as juvenile. However, that application was rejected by the court concerned and accordingly, the petitioner was prosecuted under the general criminal law and was convicted by the trial court. Against the said judgment and order of conviction, the petitioner has already preferred criminal appeal in this Court.

Thus, this writ petition has now become infructuous. Learned counsel for the petitioner prays to withdraw this writ petition.

Accordingly, this writ petition is dismissed as withdrawn.

However, it may not affect the right of the petitioner to raise the issue of juvenility in the appeal pending in this Court. "

12. These peculiar facts, about the subsequent claim of juvenility emanating from the order dated 19.11.2009 rejecting the claim on the ground of excessive delay, and earlier rejection dated 5.9.2005 that was challenged subsequently in appeal, after rejection of the appeal against the order dated 19.11.2009 on 29.9.2011, gave rise to the writ petition that was dismissed on 13.10.2014 with observations noted therein.

13. A Division Bench that heard the appeal earlier passed the following order on 28.5.2015:-

"Hon'ble Bala Krishna Narayana, J.

Hon'ble Mohd. Tahir, J.

Heard learned counsel for the applicant-appellant, learned A.G.A for the State and perused the record.

Learned counsel for the applicant-appellant submitted that the applicant-appellant was juvenile at the time of occurrence in question, so this matter be referred to the Juvenile Justice Board, Mathura for ascertaining the age of the applicant-appellant at the time of occurrence in question.

In view of the submission of the applicant-appellant's counsel, this matter is referred to the Juvenile Justice Board, Mathura which shall after giving opportunity to the complainant / first informant and the State ascertain the age of the applicant-appellant at the time of the incident in question.

Let a copy of the F.I.R. and charge sheet submitted by the police along with the copy of the order be transmitted to the Juvenile Justice Board, Mathura through District Judge, Mathura for holding an inquiry for the aforesaid purpose. This Court expects that the inquiry shall be completed within a period of one month from the date of receipt of the copy of this order, where after the report shall be submitted by the Board. As soon as the report is received, the Registry shall list this appeal on 20.07.2015 before the appropriate Bench for passing appropriate order.

Order Date :- 28.5.2015"

14. Subsequently another Bench passed the following order on 20.7.2015:-

"Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi,J.

Hon'ble Pramod Kumar Srivastava,J.

Heard Sri Dharmendra Singhal, learned counsel for the appellant.

A plea of juvenility was taken before the Juvenile Justice Board, which was rejected during the course of the trial itself. The appellant filed an appeal against the same which is stated to have been rejected on the ground of limitation. Against the said appellate order, a writ petition no. 3438 of 2013 was filed, but by the time the writ petition came to be decided, the trial court had already convicted the appellant.

The writ petition was, therefore, allowed to be withdrawn with liberty to take this plea of juvenility in this appeal itself.

Consequently, a supplementary affidavit dated 16.10.2014 alongwith an application was filed on which this court passed an order on 28.5.2015 referring the matter to the Juvenile Justice Board once again. What we find is that the issue of juvenility had become final but the writ petition was dismissed as withdrawn with the presumption that the issue has become infructuous. However, while permitting the withdrawal, the court observed that it shall not affect the right of the petitioner to raise issue of juvenility in this appeal. We find from the judgment of the trial court taking notice of this plea of juvenlity in paragraph-4 of the judgment and then after having found that the appellant was not a juvenile, it assumed jurisdiction of trial and has now finally convicted the appellant. In such a situation, Sri Singhal may explain as to how without setting aside or overcoming the order of juvenility that has already been passed, this Court can now proceed once the said issue has been noticed by the trial court while assuming jurisdiction to try the appellant and then proceeded to convict to him. Even otherwise the report of the Juvenile Justice Board has not yet arrived.

Let the matter come up with a fresh report from the court below on Monday i.e. 27.7.2015.

Order Date :- 20.7.2015"

15. The report and the order dated 17.7.2015 as desired has been furnished in a sealed envelop sent by the Juvenile Justice Board, Mathura. The same is extracted hereinunder:

"पत्रावली आज पेश हुई। प्रश्नगत पत्रावली माननीय उच्च न्यायालय इलाहाबाद, द्वारा कि0 अपील संख्या 1883/2013 शेरसिंह उर्फ शेरू बनाम उ0प्र0 राज्य में इस निर्देश के साथ किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा को प्राप्त हुई थी कि किशोन न्याय परिषद् मथुरा माननीय उच्च न्यायालय के आदेश की प्रति प्राप्त होने के एक माह के अन्दर प्रार्थी शेरसिह उर्फ शेरू की प्रश्नगत घटना के समय आयु निर्धारण जॉच करें। उक्त आदेश के अनुपालन में परिषद द्वारा शेरसिंह उर्फ शेरू तथा वादी मुकदमा को नोटिस निर्गत किये गये। उभयपक्ष न्यायालय के समक्ष उपस्थित आये। उनकी बहस सुनी गयी।

वादी मुकदमा द्वारा किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा को यह अवगत कराया गया कि प्रश्नगत किशोर के सम्बन्ध में पूर्व में ही किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा द्वारा आयु निर्धारण जॉच की गयी है जिसमें अपने आदेश दिनांक 05–09–2005 को शेरसिंह उर्फ शेरू द्वारा कोई भी प्रपत्र नही प्रस्तुत किया गया है। तब तत्कालीन किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा शैक्षिक अभिलेखों के अभाव में मैडीकल कराया गया। उक्त मैडीकल आख्या में उसकी आयु 21 वर्ष पायी गयी। जिसके आधार पर तत्कीलन किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा के प्रधान मजिस्ट्रेट एवं सदस्य द्वारा उसे घटना की तिथ्थ पर 19 वर्ष का पाते हुये उसे वयस्क घोषित किया गया। वादी मुकदमा द्वारा उक्त आदेश की छायाप्रति पत्रावली पर दाखिल की गयी है एवं इसके अतिरिक्त उनके द्वारा किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा के आदेश दिनॉक 05–09–2005 के विरूद्ध प्रस्तुंत अपील संख्य 113/2012 के आदेश की सत्यापित प्रति भी प्रस्तुत की गयी है। जिसके अवलोकन से विदित होता है कि दिनॉक 4–2–2013 को अपीलीय न्यायालय द्वारा उक्त अपील निरस्त कर दी गयी। पत्रावली पर वादी द्वारा एक अन्य आदेश जवैनाइल प्रकीर्ण वाद संख्या 34/2010 दिनांकित 29–09–2011 भी प्रस्तुत किया है जिसके अवलोकन से ज्ञात होता है कि प्रार्थी शेरसिंह उर्फ शेरू का उक्त प्रार्थना पत्र श्रीमान अपर जिला एवं सत्र न्यायाधीश न्यायालय संख्या–1 मथुरा द्वारा दिनॉक 29–9–2011 को निरस्त किया जा चुका है।

उक्त समस्त प्रपत्रों के अवलोकन से स्पष्ट है कि किशोर के सम्बन्ध में पूर्व में उसको पर्याप्त मौका दिये जाने के उपरान्त किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा द्वारा दिनांक 05–09–2005 को घटना की तिथि को उसे वयस्क पाते हुये उसे किशोर नहीं माना गया।

परन्तु चूँकि माननीय उच्च न्यायालय द्वारा किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा को घटना के समय उसकी आयु निर्धारण जॉच का आदेश दिया गया है। अतः यह परिषद माननीय उच्च न्यायालय के आदेश से बाध्य है। माननीय उच्च न्यायालय के उक्त आदेश के परिप्रेक्ष्य में किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा द्वारा प्रार्थी शेरसिह के पिता रामवीर सिंह को परीक्षित कराया गया। जिन्होंने अपनी मुख्य–परीक्षा में यह कथन किया है कि शेरसिंह उर्फ शेरू की जन्मतिथि 15–10–1986 है। सन 2003 में बृज आदर्श इण्टर कालेज मांट से हाईस्कूल की परीक्षा प्राईवेट दी थी। उसके पूर्व शेरसिंह उर्फ शेरू कक्षा 6 से 10 तक राष्ट्रीय इण्टर कालेज राया में पढ़ा था परन्तु 10 वीं में वहां फेल हो गया था। अन्य विद्यालयों में भी उसकी जन्मतिथि 15–10–1986 ही है। विद्वान सहायक अभियोजन अधिकारी द्वारा की गयी जिरह में उसने यह कहा है कि उसे अपने हर बच्चे की जन्मतिथि क्या है नही बता सकता। इसके अतिरिक्त इस साक्षी द्वारा अन्य कोई महत्वपूर्ण कथन नहीं किया है। किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा द्वारा बृज आदर्श इण्टर कालेज मांट के प्रधानाचार्य को शेरसिह से सम्बन्धित शैक्षिक अभिलेखों के साथ आहूत किया गया। उन्होंने अपनी मुख्य–परीक्षा में बताया है कि शेरसिह ने वर्ष 2005 में हाईस्कूल की परीक्षा उत्तीण की है जिसमें उसकी जन्मतिथि 15–10–1986 अंकित है। उनके द्वारा माध्यमिक शिक्षा परिषद द्वारा जारी कॉस लिस्ट की छाया प्रति स्वप्रमाणित करके दाखिल की गयी है, जिस पर प्रदर्श ख–1 अंकित किया गया। जिसके अवलोकन से विदित होता है कि शेरसिह पुत्र रामवीर की जन्मतिथि 15–10–1986 अंकित है। इसके अतिरिक्त इस साक्षी द्वारा प्रार्थी शेरसिह के हाईस्कूल अंकपत्र एवं प्रमाण पत्र को देखकर यह बताया गया कि यह उसके विद्यालय की है। जिसकी प्रति पर कमशः प्रदर्श ख–2 व प्रदर्श ख–3 डाले गये। विद्वान सहायक अभियोजन अधिकारी द्वारा की गयी जिरह में साक्षी ने बताया है कि छात्र की जन्मतिथि केसे अंकित की गयी है इसका उनके पास कोई साक्ष्य नही है। उसने कक्षा 9 तक की शिक्षा कहां से प्राप्त की। इसका भी कोई प्रमाण उनके पास नहीं है। वादी मुकदमा द्वारा अन्य कोई साक्ष्य प्रस्तुत नहीं किया गया।

यहॉ किशोर न्याय नियमावली 2007 का नियम 12 (3) का अवलोकन उचित प्रतीत होता है जिसमें यह धारित है कि किसी किशोर की आयु निर्धारण के समय वरीयताक्रम में साक्ष्य इस प्रकार लिये जावेंगे।

1– मैट्रिकुलेशन प्रमाण पत्र, यदि यह न हो तो,

2– प्रथम प्रवेश स्कूल का जन्म प्रमाण पत्र, यदि यह भी न हो तो,

3– नगर पालिका या पंचायत द्वारा जारी जन्म प्रमाण पत्र।

उक्त तीनों की अनुपस्थिति में चकित्सीय द्वारा निर्धारित आयु।

उक्त नियम के प्रावधानों के अनुसार प्रार्थी द्वारा मैट्रिकुलेशन प्रमाण पत्र, दाखिल किये गये है, जिनकी सम्पुष्टि उक्त विद्यालय के प्रधानाचार्य की साक्ष्य से भी हो रही है तथा पत्रावली पर अभियोजन या वादी मुकदमा की ओर से ऐसा कोई साक्ष्य दाखिल नहीं किया गया है जिससे इस शैक्षिक अभिलेखों की सत्यता संदिग्ध होती हो।

इस प्रकार उपरोक्त समस्त विवेचना एवं पत्रावली पर प्रस्तुत साक्ष्य के एकरूपेण परिशीलन के उपरान्त किशोर न्याय परिषद मथुरा का सर्वसम्मत मत है कि प्रश्नगत घटना दिनॉक 16–5–2003 की है जबकि शैक्षिक अभिलेखों के अनुसार प्रार्थी शेरसिह उर्फ शेरा की जन्मतिथि 15–10–1986 है। इस प्रकार घटना की तिथि पर उसकी आयु 16 वर्ष 7 माह 1 दिन आ रही है। अतः घटना की तिथि पर 18 वर्ष से कम आयु का पाये जाने पर वह विधि का उल्लंघन करने वाला किशोर घोषित किये जाने योग्य है।

तदनुसार शेरसिंह उर्फ शेरा पुत्र रामवीर सिंह निवासी गली मवेशियान थाना राया जिला मथुरा को घटना की तिथि 16–05–2003 पर 18 वर्ष से कम आयु का पाये जाने के कारण विधि का उल्लंघन करने वाला किशोर घोषित किया जाता है।

आदेश नियमानुसार सील बन्द लिफाफे में माननीय जनपद न्यायाधीश महोगदय मथुरा के माध्यम से माननीय इलाहाबाद उच्च न्यायालय अविलम्ब प्रेषित हो।"

16. The appellant has been held to be aged less than 18 years on the date of the incident.

17. Faced with this situation, the Division Bench has framed following questions to be considered to lay down the law correctly:

(i) Whether the right of a juvenile to raise the issue of juvenility can be denied, by dismissing a writ petition as infructuous and then permitting him to raise the issue in a criminal appeal when the same issue had been raised before the Juvenile Justice Board and an appeal had been decided in accordance with Section 52 of the 2000 Act as in the present case, on applying the doctrine of finality?

(ii) Whether the law laid down by prescribing a procedure of allowing the question to be raised in a criminal appeal as an alternate substitute through a miscellaneous application under the judgment dated 13.10.2014 by the learned Single Judge is correct or not?

(iii) Whether in view of the law laid down by the Apex Court particularly in the case of Abuzar Hossain @ Gulam Hossain (supra) and Abdul Razzaq Vs. State of U.P. (supra), the issue presently raised, would also stand covered by the ratio and the observations made therein or not ?

18. Shri Dharmendra Singhal, Advocate submits that the provisions of The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 is a beneficial piece of legislation for the benefit of the juvenile and the scheme of Act would go to show that once it is substantiated from the record in question that the incumbent was juvenile on the relevant date i.e. commission of the offence, then he/she cannot be sentenced and for this purpose he has proceeded to point out that all such cases are liable to be reopened at any stage and even those matters that have attached finality are also liable to be reopened and in view of this, liberal view should be taken in the matter that would achieve the object of the Act and substantial justice should not be shackled by procedures as justice is not at all handmade of procedures and in view of this, once there is no order of determining age in consonance with sub-rule 3 of Rule 12 of The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007, the reference should be answered accordingly.

19. Shri Imran Ullah, learned Additional Advocate General, on the other hand, contended that closed chapter should not be permitted to be reopened and in view of this, the reference in question should be answered accordingly.

20. Shri Vimlendu Tripathi, Advocate appearing for the State also supplanted the argument advanced on behalf of the State by submitting that once a competent authority had proceeded to take a decision and full fledged remedial mechanism has been provided for to avail the said benefit and the same has been availed, then collateral challenge is not at all permissible in law and as such, the reference be answered accordingly.

21. In order to answer the issues that have been so raised, the legislative background as well as relevant statutory provisions holding the field will have to be looked into.

22. The Parliament felt it necessary that uniform juvenile justice system should be available throughout the country which should make adequate provision for dealing with all aspects in the changing social, cultural and economic situation in the country and there was also need for larger involvement of informal systems and community based welfare agencies in the care, protection, treatment, development and rehabilitation of such juveniles and with these objectives in mind, it enacted Juvenile Justice Act, 1986 (for short, "1986 Act').

23. Looking to the working of Juvenile Justice Act, 1986 review of its working was carried out, and '1986 Act' was replaced by the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (for short, "2000 Act'). 2000 Act to carry forward the constitutional philosophy engrafted in Articles 15(3), 39(e) and (f), 45 and 47 of the Constitution and same also incorporates the standards prescribed in the Convention on the Rights of the Child, United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Administration of Juvenile Justice, 1985, the United Nations Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty (1990) and all other relevant international instruments. Clause (k) of Section 2 defines "juvenile" or "child" to mean a person who has not completed eighteenth year of age. Clause (l) of Section 2 defines "juvenile in conflict with law" to mean a juvenile who is alleged to have committed an offence and has not completed eighteenth year of age on the date of commission of such offence. Chapter II of Juvenile Justice Act, 2000 deals exclusively with juveniles in conflict with law who are alleged to have committed offence which are otherwise punishable under the general law of crimes.

24. Section 3 of 2000 Act provides for continuation of inquiry in respect of juvenile who has ceased to be a juvenile. It reads as under:

"S.3 . Continuation of inquiry in respect of juvenile who has ceased to be a juvenile.--Where an inquiry has been initiated against a juvenile in conflict with law or a child in need of care and protection and during the course of such inquiry the juvenile or the child ceases to be such, then, notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or in any other law for the time being in force, the inquiry may be continued and orders may be made in respect of such person as if such person had continued to be a juvenile or a child."

25. Chapter II of 2000 Act deals with juvenile in conflict with law. This Chapter comprises of Sections 4 to 28. Section 4 provides for constitution of juvenile justice board and its composition. Section 5 provides for procedure, etc. in relation to juvenile justice board. Section 6 deals with the powers of juvenile justice board. Section 7 provides for the procedure to be followed by Magistrate not empowered under the Act. Section 18 of the Act prohibits joint proceedings and trial of juvenile and a person who is not a juvenile and the punishment that can be awarded to a juvenile has been provided for in Section 15 of the Act provides for the order that can be passed regarding juvenile. Relevant provisions i.e. Sections 6 is being quoted as under:

"S.6 . Powers of Juvenile Justice Board.--(1) Where a Board has been constituted for any district, such Board shall, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force but save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, have power to deal exclusively with all proceedings under this Act relating to juvenile in conflict with law.

(2) The powers conferred on the Board by or under this Act may also be exercised by the High Court and the Court of Session, when the proceeding comes before them in appeal, revision or otherwise.

26. Section 49 of 2000 Act deals with presumption and determination of age. This Section reads as under:

"49 . Presumption and determination of age.--(1) Where it appears to a competent authority that person brought before it under any of the provisions of this Act (otherwise than for the purpose of giving evidence) is a juvenile or the child, the competent authority shall make due inquiry so as to the age of that person and for that purpose shall take such evidence as may be necessary (but not an affidavit)and shall record a finding whether the person is a juvenile or the child or not, stating his age as nearly as may be.

(2) No order of a competent authority shall be deemed to have become invalid merely by any subsequent proof that the person in respect of whom the order has been made is not a juvenile or the child, and the age recorded by the competent authority to be the age of person so brought before it, shall for the purpose of this Act, be deemed to be the true age of that person."

27. Sections 52 and 53 deal with appeals and revision. Section 54 provides for procedure in inquiries, appeals and revision proceedings, which reads as follows:

52. Appeals.—

Subject to the provisions of this section, any person aggrieved by an order made by a competent authority under this Act may, within thirty days from the date of such order, prefer an appeal to the Court of Session: Provided that the Court of Session may entertain the appeal after the expiry of the said period of thirty days if it is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from filing the appeal in time.

(2) No appeal shall lie from—

(a) any order of acquittal made by the Board in respect of a juvenile alleged to have committed an offence; or

(b) any order made by a Committee in respect of a finding that a person is not a neglected juvenile.

(3) No second appeal shall lie from any order of the Court of Session passed in appeal under this section.

53. Revision.--The High Court may, at any time, either of its own motion or on an application received in this behalf, call for the record of any proceeding in which any competent authority or Court of Session has passed an order for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any such order and may pass such order in relation thereto as it thinks fit: Provided that the High Court shall not pass an order under this section prejudicial to any person without giving him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

"S.54 . Procedure in inquiries, appeals and revision proceedings.--(1)Save as otherwise expressly provided by this Act, a competent authority while holding any inquiry under any of the provisions of this Act, shall follow such procedure as may be prescribed and subject thereto, shall follow, as far as may be, the procedure laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) for trials in summons cases.

(2) Save as otherwise expressly provided by or under this Act, the procedure to be followed in hearing appeals or revision proceedings under this Act shall be, as far as practicable, in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973(2 of 1974)."

28. In the State of U.P., in exercise of power conferred under Section 68 of the Juvenile Justice Care and Protection 2000 Act (Act No.56 of 2000), Rules have been framed known as, the U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004 (herein-after to be referred to as the 'U.P. Rules'). The relevant Rule for the purpose of consideration of issue raised before us is Rule 22. Rule 22 reads as follows:

"22. Procedure to be followed by a Board in holding inquiries and the determination of age.-

(1) In all cases under the Act the proceedings shall be conducted in as simple a manner as possible and care shall be taken to ensure that the juvenile or child against whom the proceedings have been instituted is given home like atmosphere during the proceedings.

(2) When witnesses are produced for examination, the Board shall be free to use the power under Section 165 of the Indian Evidence At, 1872, (Act No.1 of 1872), to question them so as to bring out any point that may go in favour of the juvenile or the child.

(3) While examining a juvenile or child and recording his statement, the competent authority shall be free to address the juvenile or child in any manner that may seem suitable, in order to put the juvenile or child at ease and to elicit the true facts, not only in respect of the offence of which the juvenile or child is accused, but also in respect of the home and social surroundings and the influence to which the juvenile or child might have been subjected.

(4) The record of the examination shall be in such form as the Board may consider suitable having record to the contents of the statement and circumstances in which it was made.

(5) In every case concerning a juvenile or child, the Board shall either obtain-

(i) a birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority;

or

(ii) a date of birth certificate from the school first attended; or

(iii) matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and

(iv) in the absence of (i) to (iii) above, the medical opinion by a duly constituted Medical Board, subject to a margin of one year, in deserving cases for the reasons to be recorded by such Medical Board, regarding his age and, when passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age.

(6) The State Government shall recognize voluntary organizations, which have 10 years experience of child welfare to supervise and submit periodical reports, as directed by the Board regarding the orders passed under Clauses (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) of Section 15 of the Act.

(7) The Board shall, in Form-I, order a Probation Officer, or otherwise to conduct a special investigation, reporting on the character and antecedents of the juvenile or child with a view to assess the best possible mode for placement, such as, with the family, an institution or otherwise permissible under the Act.

(8_ When a juvenile or child is placed under the care of a parent or a guardian and the Board considers it expedient to place the juvenile or child under the supervision of a probation officer, it shall issue a supervision order in Form-II.

(9) The competent authority may, while making an order placing a juvenile under the care of a parent, guardian or fit person, as the case may be, direct such parent, guardian or fit person to enter into a bond in Form IV with or without sureties.

(10) Whenever the Board orders a juvenile or child to be kept in an institution, it shall forward to the Superintendent of such institution a copy of its order, in Form III with particulars of the home and parents or guardian and previous record.

(11) The juvenile or child shall be lodged in a home closest to place where he belongs.

(12) The Superintendent of an institution, certified as special home under sub-section (2) of Section 9 of the Act, shall be informed in advance by the Board before any juvenile or child is committed to it.

(13) The Superintendent of the said institution may, on receipt of the information, intimation in writing objections, if any, to the committal of the juvenile or child and the objections shall be taken into consideration by the Board before the juvenile or child is committed to the said institution.

(14) In case the Board orders the parent of the juvenile or child, or the juvenile or child to pay a fine, the amount realized shall be deposited in Government Treasury."

29. By Act 33 of 2006, the Parliament brought significant changes in 2000 Act. Section 7A provides for procedure to be followed when claim of juvenility is raised before any court. Section 20 dealt with pending cases. It reads as follows:

"S.7A. Procedure to be followed when claim of juvenility is raised before any court.--(1) Whenever a claim of juvenility is raised before any court or a court is of the opinion that an accused person was a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, the court shall make an inquiry, take such evidence as may be necessary (but not an affidavit) so as to determine the age of such person, and shall record a finding whether the person is a juvenile or a child or not, stating his age as nearly as may be:

Provided that a claim of juvenility may be raised before any court and it shall be recognised at any stage, even after final disposal of the case, and such claim shall be determined in terms of the provisions contained in this Act and the rules made thereunder, even if the juvenile has ceased to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act.

(2) If the court finds a person to be a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence under sub-section (1), it shall forward the juvenile to the Board for passing appropriate orders and the sentence, if any, passed by a court shall be deemed to have no effect.

20. Special provision in respect of pending cases.--Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any court in any area on the date on which this Act comes into force in that area, shall be continued in that court as if this Act had not been passed and if the court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, forward the juvenile to the Board which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile in accordance with the provisions of this Act as if it had been satisfied on inquiry under this Act that a juvenile has committed the offence.

Provided that the Board may, for any adequate and special reason to be mentioned in the order, review the case and pass appropriate order in the interest of such juvenile.

Explanation.--In all pending cases including trial, revision, appeal or any other criminal proceedings in respect of a juvenile in conflict with law, in any court, the determination of juvenility of such a juvenile shall be in terms of clause (l) of section 2, even if the juvenile ceases to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act and the provisions of this Act shall apply as if the said provisions had been in force, for all purposes and at all material times when the alleged offence was committed.] "

30. The provisions of Act No.33 of 2006 also introduces Section 20 in reference to pending cases by providing a clear cut provision that notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any Court or in any area on the date on which this Act comes into force in that area, shall be continued in that Court as if this Act had not been passed and if the Court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, forward the juvenile to the Board which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile in accordance with the provisions of this Act as if it had been satisfied on inquiry under this Act that a juvenile has committed the offence. A proviso has also been added that the Board may, for any adequate and special reason to be mentioned in the order, review the case and pass appropriate order in the interest of such juvenile. The explanation provided to the same clearly proceeds to make a mention that in all pending cases including trial, revision, appeal or any other criminal proceedings in respect of a juvenile in conflict with law, in any Court, the determination of juvenility of such a juvenile shall be in terms of clause (l) of section 2, even if the juvenile ceases to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act and the provisions of this Act shall apply as if the said provisions had been in force, for all purposes and at all material times when the alleged offence was committed.

31. From the perusal of the provisions that have been quoted above, it is clearly reflected that under '2000 Act', the inquiry in respect of the claim of juvenility was required to be conducted by the Competent Authority having jurisdiction over the proceedings and by means of Act No.33 of 2006 Section 7-A has been introduced in the '2000 Act', wherein for the first time in reference of claim of juvenility, which has been permitted to be raised before any Court or where is the Court is of the opinion that an accused person was juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, the Court is entitled to make an enquiry, take such evidence as may be necessary (but not an affidavit) so as to determine the age of such person, and shall record a finding whether the person is a juvenile or a child or not, stating his age as nearly as may be. A proviso has been added to the same clearly providing that the claim of juvenility may be raised before any Court and it is to be recognised at any stage, even after final disposal of the case, and such claim shall be determined in terms of the provisions contained in the Act and the Rules made thereunder, even if the juvenile has ceased to be so on or before the date of commencement of the Act. Sub-Section 2 of Section 7-A clearly mentions that if the Court finds a person to be a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence under sub-section (1), it shall forward the juvenile to the Board for passing appropriate orders, and the sentence, if any, passed by a court shall be deemed to have no effect.

32. Thus this particular provision clearly entitles the Court to answer the issue of juvenility on being raised before the Court or even otherwise when Court is of the opinion that an accused person was juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, the Court shall make an enquiry and proceed accordingly.

33. By insertion of section 7-A, the legislative intent was clear inasmuch as the claim of juvenility could be raised before any Court at any stage, and the Court was conferred power to make an enquiry by taking such evidence as may be necessary to determine the age of such person with a rider that such claim shall be determined in terms of the provisions contained in the Act and the Rules made thereunder. Legislative intent was also made clear by means of Section 64 of J.J. Act to extend benefit of the provisions of the said Act qua juvenile in conflict with law who were undergoing sentence for reviewing their respective case on the parameters of clause (l) of Section 2 and other provisions contained in the Act and the Rules and then taking consequential action. To confer power to the Central Govt. to frame model rules to carry out the purposes of the Act, a proviso to sub section (1) of section 68 was inserted by Act No.33 of 2006. The amended sub section (1) to section 68 along with its proviso reads as under:

"68. Power to make rules.--(1) The State Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

Provided that the Central Government may, frame model rules in respect of all or any of the matters with respect to which the State Government may make rules under this section, and where any such model rules have been framed in respect of any such matter, they shall apply to the State until the rules in respect of the matter is made by the State Government and while making such rules, so far as practicable, they conform to such model rules."

34. Prior to the insertion of the proviso to sub section (1) of section 68 as well as sub section (3) of section 68 by Act No.33 of 2006, there was no provision enabling the Central Govt. to frame model rules in respect of all or any of the matters with respect to which the State Govt. could make rules under the said section. As a result by taking the aid of section 70, which enabled the Central Govt. to remove difficulties, Model Rules were framed in the year 2000, the validity of the same came for consideration before a 5 judges Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Pratap Singh v. State of Jharkhand: (2005) 3 SCC 551. Hon'ble S. B. Sinha, J., one of the members of that Bench, in a separate judgment, partly dissenting from the majority view, discarded the Model Rules by holding that it had no statutory backing and held that the court thus would be entitled to apply the ordinary rules of evidence for the purpose of determining the age of the juvenile taking into consideration the provisions of section 35 of the Indian Evidence Act. The relevant observations are contained in paragraphs 107 to 112 of the report, which reads as under:

"107. We, however, do not agree that the Model Rules have been framed in terms of the provisions of the Act so as to attract the principles that rules validly framed are to be treated as part of the Act. It is one thing that the rules validly framed are to be treated as part of the Act as has been held in Chief Forest Conservator (Wildlife) v. Nisar Khan and National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh but the said principle has no application herein as in terms of the provisions of the said Act, the Central Government does not have any authority to make any rules. In the absence of any rule-making power it cannot refer to the omnibus clause of power to remove difficulty inasmuch as it has not been stated that framing of any model rule is permissible if a difficulty arises in giving effect to the provision of the Act. The Central Government is a statutory functionary. Its functions are circumscribed by Section 70 of the Act only. It has not been authorised to make any rule. Such rule-making power has been entrusted only to the State. The Central Government has, thus, no say in the matter nor can it exercise such power by resorting to its power "to remove difficulties". Rule-making power is a separate power which has got nothing to do with the power to remove difficulty. By reason of the power to remove difficulty or doubt, the Central Government has not been conferred with any legislative power. The power to remove doubt or difficulty although is a statutory power but the same is not akin to a legislative power and, thus, thereby the provisions of the Act cannot be altered. [See Jalan Trading Co. (P) Ltd. v. Mill Mazdoor Union]

108. The age of the delinquent juvenile, therefore, cannot be determined in terms of Model Rule 62. Any law mandating the court to take into consideration certain documents over others in determining an issue, must be provided for only by law. Only a validly made law can take away the power of the court to appreciate evidence for the purpose of determination of such a question in the light of Section 35 of the Indian Evidence Act. It cannot be done by the Central Government in exercise of the executive power (See Union of India v. Naveen Jindal and State of U.P. v. Johri Mal.)

109. In Birad Mal Singhvi v. Anand Purohit this Court held:

"To render a document admissible under Section 35, three conditions must be satisfied, firstly, entry that is relied on must be one in a public or other official book, register or record; secondly, it must be an entry stating a fact in issue or relevant fact; and thirdly, it must be made by a public servant in discharge of his official duty, or any other person in performance of a duty specially enjoined by law. An entry relating to date of birth made in the school register is relevant and admissible under Section 35 of the Act but the entry regarding the age of a person in a school register is of not much evidentiary value to prove the age of the person in the absence of the material on which the age was recorded."

110. In Sushil Kumar v. Rakesh Kumar this Court as regards determination of age of a candidate in terms of Section 36(2) of the Representation of the People Act, 1951 observed:

"32. The age of a person in an election petition has to be determined not only on the basis of the materials placed on record but also upon taking into consideration the circumstances attending thereto. The initial burden to prove the allegations made in the election petition although was upon the election petitioner but for proving the facts which were within the special knowledge of the respondent, the burden was upon him in terms of Section 106 of the Evidence Act. It is also trite that when both parties have adduced evidence, the question of the onus of proof becomes academic [see Union of India v. Sugauli Sugar Works (P) Ltd. and Cox and Kings (Agents) Ltd. v. Workmen]. Furthermore, an admission on the part of a party to the lis shall be binding on him and in any event a presumption must be made that the same is taken to be established."

This Court therein followed, inter alia, Birad Mal Singhvi v. Anand Purohit and several other decisions.

111. The Court, therefore, must determine the age of the appellant herein keeping in view our aforementioned findings that the relevant date for reckoning the age of the juvenile would be the date of occurrence and not the date on which he was produced before the Board.

112. The upshot of the aforementioned discussions is:

(i) In terms of the 1986 Act, the age of the offender must be reckoned from the date when the alleged offence was committed.

(ii) The 2000 Act will have a limited application in the cases pending under the 1986 Act.

(iii) The Model Rules framed by the Central Government having no legal force cannot be given effect to.

(iv) The court, thus, would be entitled to apply the ordinary rules of evidence for the purpose of determining the age of the juvenile taking into consideration the provisions of Section 35 of the Indian Evidence Act."

35. It appears that the amendment brought by Act No.33 of 2006 was to obviate the outcome of the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Pratap Singh (supra), as has been observed in various decisions of the Apex Court in the case of Hari Ram v. State of Rajasthan:(2009) 13 SCC 211 has held as follows:

Section 7-A makes provision for a claim of juvenility to be raised before any Court at any stage, even after final disposal of a case and sets out the procedure which the Court is required to adopt, when such claim of juvenility is raised. It provides for an inquiry, taking of evidence as may be necessary (but not affidavit) so as to determine the age of a person and to record a finding whether the person in question is a juvenile or not. The aforesaid provisions were, however, confined to Courts, and proved inadequate as far as the Boards were concerned. Subsequently, in the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007, which is a comprehensive guide as to how the provisions of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, are to be implemented, Rule 12 was introduced providing the procedure to be followed by the Courts, the Boards and the Child Welfare Committees for the purpose of determination of age in every case concerning a child or juvenile or a juvenile in conflict with law. Since the aforesaid provisions are interconnected and lay down the procedures for determination of age, the said Rule is reproduced hereinbelow:

"12. Procedure to be followed in determination of Age.- (1) In every case concerning a child or a juvenile in conflict with law, the court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee referred to in rule 19 of these rules shall determine the age of such juvenile or child or a juvenile in conflict with law within a period of thirty days from the date of making of the application for that purpose.

(2) The Court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall decide the juvenility or otherwise of the juvenile or the child or as the case may be the juvenile in conflict with law, prima facie on the basis of physical appearance or documents, if available, and send him to the observation home or in jail.

(3) In every case concerning a child or juvenile in conflict with law, the age determination inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee by seeking evidence by obtaining –

(a)(i) the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and in the absence whereof;

(ii) the date of birth certificate from the school (other than a play school) first attended; and in the absence whereof;

(iii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(b) and only in the absence of either

(i), (ii) or (iii) of clause (a) above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted Medical Board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or child.

In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, the Court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee, for the reasons to be recorded by them, may, if considered necessary, give benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his/her age on lower side within the margin of one year. and, while passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available, or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age and either of the evidence specified in any of the clauses (a)(i), (ii), (iii) or in the absence whereof, clause (b) shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or the juvenile in conflict with law.

(4) if the age of a juvenile or child or the juvenile in conflict with law is found to be below 18 years on the date of offence, on the basis of any of the conclusive proof specified in sub-rule (3), the Court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall in writing pass an order stating the age and declaring the status of juvenility or otherwise, for the purpose of the Act and these rules and a copy of the order shall be given to such juvenile or the person concerned.

(5) Save and except where, further inquiry or otherwise is required, inter alia in terms of section 7A, section 64 of the Act and these rules, no further inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board after examining and obtaining the certificate or any other documentary proof referred to in sub-rule (3) of this rule.

(6) The provisions contained in this rule shall also apply to those disposed of cases, where the status of juvenility has not been determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sub-rule (3) and the Act, requiring dispensation of the sentence under the Act for passing appropriate order in the interest of the juvenile in conflict with law."

Sub-Rules (4) and (5) of Rule 12 are of special significance in that they provide that once the age of a juvenile or child in conflict with law is found to be less than 18 years on the date of offence on the basis of any proof specified in sub- rule (3) the Court or the Board or as the case may be the Child Welfare Committee appointed under Chapter IV of the Act, has to pass a written order stating the age of the juvenile or stating the status of the juvenile, and no further inquiry is to be conducted by the Court or Board after examining and obtaining any other documentary proof referred to in Sub-rule (3) of Rule 12. Rule 12, therefore, indicates the procedure to be followed to give effect to the provisions of Section 7A when a claim of juvenility is raised.

One of the problems which has frequently arisen after the enactment of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, is with regard to the application of the definition of "juvenile" under Section 2(k) and (l) in respect of offences alleged to have been committed prior to 1st April, 2001 when the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000 came into force, since under the 1986 Act, the upper age limit for male children to be considered as juveniles was 16 years. The question which has been frequently raised is, whether a male person who was above 16 years on the date of commission of the offence prior to 1st April, 2001, would be entitled to be considered as a juvenile for the said offence if he had not completed the age of 18 years on the said date. In other words, could a person who was not a juvenile within the meaning of the 1986 Act when the offence was committed, but had not completed 18 years, be governed by the provisions of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, and be declared as a juvenile in relation to the offence alleged to have been committed by him?

Read with Sections 2(k), 2(l), 7A and Rule 12, Section 20 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, as amended in 2006, is probably the Section most relevant in setting at rest the question raised in this appeal, as it deals with cases which were pending on 1st April, 2001, when the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, came into force. The same is, accordingly, reproduced hereinbelow :

"20. Special provision in respect of pending cases.-Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any court in any area on the date on which this Act comes into force in that area, shall be continued in that court as if this Act had not been passed and if the court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, forward the juvenile to the Board which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile in accordance with the provisions of this Act as if it had been satisfied on inquiry under this Act that a juvenile has committed the offence.

[Provided that the Board may, for any adequate and special reason to be mentioned in the order, review the case and pass appropriate order in the interest of such juvenile.

Explanation.- In all pending cases including trial, revision, appeal or any other criminal proceedings in respect of a juvenile in conflict with law, in any court, the determination of juvenility of such a juvenile shall be in terms of clause (1) of section 2, even if the juvenile ceases to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act and the provisions of this Act shall apply as if the said provisions had been in force, for all purposes and at all material times when the alleged offence was committed.]"

The Proviso and the Explanation to Section 20 were added by Amendment Act 33 of 2006, to set at rest any doubts that may have arisen with regard to the applicability of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, to cases pending on 1st April, 2001, where a juvenile, who was below 18 years at the time of commission of the offence, was involved. The Explanation which was added in 2006, makes it very clear that in all pending cases, which would include not only trials but even subsequent proceedings by way of revision or appeal, the determination of juvenility of a juvenile would be in terms of Clause (l) of Section 2, even if the juvenile ceased to be a juvenile on or before 1st April, 2001, when the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, came into force, and the provisions of the Act would apply as if the said provision had been in force for all purposes and for all material times when the alleged offence was committed. In fact, Section 20 enables the Court to consider and determine the juvenility of a person even after conviction by the regular Court and also empowers the Court, while maintaining the conviction, to set aside the sentence imposed and forward the case to the Juvenile Justice Board concerned for passing sentence in accordance with the provisions of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000.

At this point it may be noted that the decision of the Constitution Bench in Pratap Singh's case (supra) was rendered at a point of time when the amendments to Sections 2(l) and 20 and the introduction of Section 7-A had not yet been effected, nor was Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules available. Several decisions on the applicability of the 2000 Act to children who were above 16 but below 18 years on the date of commission of the offence have been rendered after the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, came into force and several others were rendered after the amendments were introduced in the said Act by Amendment Act 33 of 2006 and the introduction of the 2007 Rules. The decisions rendered by this Court and the High Courts prior to 1st April, 2001, when the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, came into force and thereafter can, therefore, be divided into two groups. The decision in Pratap Singh's case (supra) and in the case of Munney @ Rahat Jan Khan vs. State of U.P. [(2006) 12 SCC 697] fall into the first category, whereas the decisions in Jameel vs. State of Maharashtra [(2007) 11 SCC 420], Vimal Chadha vs. Vikas Chaudhary [(2008) 8 SCALE 608], Babloo Pasi vs. State of Jharkhand [(2008) 13 SCALE 137] and Ranjit Singh vs. State of Haryana [(2008) 9 SCC 453] fall into the second category. Although, the Constitution Bench decision in Pratap Singh's case (supra) and Munney's case (supra) are not really relevant since they have been rendered prior to 22nd August, 2006, when the Amending Act 33 of 2006 came into force, they assume a modicum of significance since they have been referred to and relied upon even after the Amending Act and the 2007 Rules came into force on 22.8.2006 and 26.10.2007, respectively.

28. Of the decisions rendered after the amendments effected in 2006 to the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, the first decision of note is that of Jameel's case (supra) rendered on 16.1.2007 wherein the amendments to the Act effected by the Amendment Act 33 of 2006, which came into effect on 22.8.2006, were not even noticed. The next decision rendered on 27.5.2008 is in the case of Vimal Chadha's case (supra), wherein, although, the amendment of the Act and the introduction of the Juvenile Justice Rules, 2007, were brought to the notice of the Court, the same were not considered and the decision was rendered in the light of the decision rendered in Pratap Singh's case (supra) and other cases decided prior to 1.4.2001.

The next decision rendered on the same point on 11.9.2008 was the decision in Ranjit Singh's case (supra) wherein also the amendments to Section 2(l) and 20 and the introduction of Section 7-A in the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, and the introduction of the 2007 Rules had not been considered and the decision passed sub silentio.

35A. In fact, after the amendment, the Central Govt. made and notified the Rules, 2007, vide notification dated 26.10.2007, and those Rules came into effect from the date of the publication of notification in the Gazette of India, (Extra.), Part II, Section 3(i), dt. 26.10.2007.

36. The relevant provisions governing the procedure to be followed in determination of age of a juvenile in conflict with law is contained in Rule 12, which provides as follows:

"12. Procedure to be followed in determination of Age.--(1) In every case concerning a child or a juvenile in conflict with law, the court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee referred to in Rule 19 of these rules shall determine the age of such juvenile or child or a juvenile in conflict with law within a period of thirty days from the date of making of the application for that purpose.

(2) The court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall decide the juvenility or otherwise of the juvenile or the child or as the case may be the juvenile in conflict with law, prima facie on the basis of physical appearance or documents, if available, and send him to the observation home or in jail.

(3) In every case concerning a child or juvenile in conflict with law, the age determination inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee by seeking evidence by obtaining—

(a)(i) the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and in the absence whereof;

(ii) the date of birth certificate from the school (other than a play school) first attended; and in the absence whereof;

(iii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(b) and only in the absence of either (i), (ii) or (iii) of clause (a) above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted Medical Board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or child. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, the Court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee, for the reasons to be recorded by them, may, if considered necessary, give benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his/her age on lower side within the margin of one year.

and, while passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available, or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age and either of the evidence specified in any of the clauses (a)(i), (ii), (iii) or in the absence whereof, clause (b) shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or the juvenile in conflict with law.

(4) If the age of a juvenile or child or the juvenile in conflict with law is found to be below 18 years on the date of offence, on the basis of any of the conclusive proof specified in sub-rule (3), the court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall in writing pass an order stating the age and declaring the status of juvenility or otherwise, for the purpose of the Act and these rules and a copy of the order shall be given to such juvenile or the person concerned.

(5) Save and except where, further inquiry or otherwise is required, inter alia, in terms of Section 7-A, Section 64 of the Act and these rules, no further inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board after examining and obtaining the certificate or any other documentary proof referred to in sub-rule (3) of this rule.

(6) The provisions contained in this rule shall also apply to those disposed of cases, where the status of juvenility has not been determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sub-rule (3) and the Act, requiring dispensation of the sentence under the Act for passing appropriate order in the interest of the juvenile in conflict with law."

37. Rule 96 of the Central Rules provides that until the new rules conforming to these rules are framed by the State Govt. concerned under Section 68 of the 2000 Act, the Central Rules shall mutatis mutandis apply in that State.

38. Rule 97 of the Central Rules provides that all pending cases, which have not received finality, shall be dealt with and disposed of in terms of the provisions of the Act and the rules made thereunder. For convenience Rule 97 of the Central Rules is being extracted herein below:

"97. Pending Cases.--(1) No juvenile in conflict with law or a child shall be denied the benefits of the Act and the rules made thereunder.

(2) All pending cases which have not received a finality shall be dealt with and disposed of in terms of the provisions of the Act and the rules made thereunder.

(3) Any juvenile in conflict with law, or a child shall be given the benefits under sub-rule (1) of this rule, and it is hereby clarified that such benefits shall be made available to all those accused who were juvenile or a child at the time of commission of an offence, even if they cease to be a juvenile or a child during the pendency of any inquiry or trial.

(4) While computing the period of detention or stay or sentence of a juvenile in conflict with law or of a child, all such period which the juvenile or the child has already spent in custody, detention, stay or sentence of imprisonment shall be counted as a part of the period of stay or detention or sentence of imprisonment contained in the final order of the court or the Board."

39. In this regard it would be useful to refer to the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Ashwani Kumar Saxena vs. State of M.P. 2012 Law Suit(SC) 607. In this case, the Apex Court, after considering various judgments as well as the provisions of the Act, 2000 as also the Rules, 2007, in paragraphs 30 to 32 of the report, observed as follows:

"30. Consequently, the procedure to be followed under the JJ Act in conducting an inquiry is the procedure laid down in that statute itself i.e. Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules. We cannot import other procedures laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure or any other enactment while making an inquiry with regard to the juvenility of a person, when the claim of juvenility is raised before the court exercising powers under Section 7-A of the Act. In many of the cases, we have come across, it is seen that the criminal courts are still having the hangover of the procedure of trial or inquiry under the Code as if they are trying an offence under the penal laws forgetting the fact that the specific procedure has been laid down in Section 7-A read with Rule 12.

31. We also remind all courts/Juvenile Justice Boards and the Committees functioning under the Act that a duty is cast on them to seek evidence by obtaining the certificate, etc. mentioned in Rules 12(3)(a)(i) to (iii). The courts in such situations act as a parens patriae because they have a kind of guardianship over minors who from their legal disability stand in need of protection.

32. "Age determination inquiry" contemplated under Section 7-A of the Act read with Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules enables the court to seek evidence and in that process, the court can obtain the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available. Only in the absence of any matriculation or equivalent certificates, the court needs to obtain the date of birth certificate from the school first attended other than a play school. Only in the absence of matriculation or equivalent certificate or the date of birth certificate from the school first attended, the court needs to obtain the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat (not an affidavit but certificates or documents). The question of obtaining medical opinion from a duly constituted Medical Board arises only if the abovementioned documents are unavailable. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, then the court, for reasons to be recorded, may, if considered necessary, give the benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his or her age on lower side within the margin of one year.(Emphasis Supplied)

40. After observing as above, the Apex Court deprecated the practice of the courts in making a roving enquiry with regards to the correctness of the date of birth entered in matriculation or equivalent certificates or other documents unless those documents or certificates were fabricated or manipulated. The relevant observations of the apex court are contained in paragraphs 34 and 35 of the report, which are being reproduced herein below:

"34. Age determination inquiry contemplated under the JJ Act and the 2007 Rules has nothing to do with an enquiry under other legislations, like entry in service, retirement, promotion, etc. There may be situations where the entry made in the matriculation or equivalent certificates, date of birth certificate from the school first attended and even the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat may not be correct. But court, Juvenile Justice Board or a committee functioning under the JJ Act is not expected to conduct such a roving enquiry and to go behind those certificates to examine the correctness of those documents, kept during the normal course of business. Only in cases where those documents or certificates are found to be fabricated or manipulated, the court, the Juvenile Justice Board or the committee need to go for medical report for age determination.

35. We have come across several cases in which the trial courts have examined a large number of witnesses on either side including the conduct of ossification test and calling for odontology report, even in cases, where matriculation or equivalent certificate, the date of birth certificate from the school last or first attended, the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat are made available. We have also come across cases where even the courts in the large number of cases express doubts over certificates produced and carry on detailed probe which is totally unwarranted." (Emphasis Supplied)

41. Apex Court in the case of Abuzar Hossain @ Gautam Hussain vs. State of West Bengal in Criminal Appeal No.1193 of 2006 decided on 10.10.2012 has held as follows:

"Now, we summarise the position which is as under:

(i) A claim of juvenility may be raised at any stage even after final disposal of the case. It may be raised for the first time before this Court as well after final disposal of the case. The delay in raising the claim of juvenility cannot be a ground for rejection of such claim. The claim of juvenility can be raised in appeal even if not pressed before the trial court and can be raised for the first time before this Court though not pressed before the trial court and in appeal court.

(ii) For making a claim with regard to juvenility after conviction, the claimant must produce some material which may prima facie satisfy the court that an inquiry into the claim of juvenility is necessary. Initial burden has to be discharged by the person who claims juvenility.

(iii) As to what materials would prima facie satisfy the court and/or are sufficient for discharging the initial burden cannot be catalogued nor can it be laid down as to what weight should be given to a specific piece of evidence which may be sufficient to raise presumption of juvenility but the documents referred to in Rule 12(3)(a)(i) to (iii) shall definitely be sufficient for prima facie satisfaction of the court about the age of the delinquent necessitating further enquiry under Rule 12. The statement recorded under Section 313 of the Code is too tentative and may not by itself be sufficient ordinarily to justify or reject the claim of juvenility. The credibility and/or acceptability of the documents like the school leaving certificate or the voters' list, etc. obtained after conviction would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no hard and fast rule can be prescribed that they must be prima facie accepted or rejected. In Akbar Sheikh2 and Pawan8 these documents were not found prima facie credible while in Jitendra Singh10 the documents viz., school leaving certificate, marksheet and the medical report were treated sufficient for directing an inquiry and verification of the appellant's age. If such documents prima facie inspire confidence of the court, the court may act upon such documents for the purposes of Section 7A and order an enquiry for determination of the age of the delinquent.

(iv) An affidavit of the claimant or any of the parents or a sibling or a relative in support of the claim of juvenility raised for the first time in appeal or revision or before this Court during the pendency of the matter or after disposal of the case shall not be sufficient justifying an enquiry to determine the age of such person unless the circumstances of the case are so glaring that satisfy the judicial conscience of the court to order an enquiry into determination of age of the delinquent.

(v) The court where the plea of juvenility is raised for the first time should always be guided by the objectives of the 2000 Act and be alive to the position that the beneficent and salutary provisions contained in 2000 Act are not defeated by hyper-technical approach and the persons who are entitled to get benefits of 2000 Act get such benefits. The courts should not be unnecessarily influenced by any general impression that in schools the parents/guardians understate the age of their wards by one or two years for future benefits or that age determination by medical examination is not very precise. The matter should be considered prima facie on the touchstone of preponderance of probability.

(vi) Claim of juvenility lacking in credibility or frivolous claim of juvenility or patently absurd or inherently improbable claim of juvenility must be rejected by the court at threshold whenever raised."

42. The judgment in Ashwani Kumar Saxena's case (supra) has been consistently followed by the apex court in Jodhbir Singh v. State of Punjab: (2012) 13 SCC 591; Ranjeet Goswami v. State Of Jharkhand: (2014) 1 SCC 588; and Kulai Ibrahim @ Ibrahim v. State represented by the Inspector of Police, B-I, Bazar Police Station, Coimbatore: (2014) 12 SCC 332.

43. The scope of Section 7A of the Act and Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules again came up for consideration before Apex Court in Dharambir v. State (NCT of Delhi) and Another [(2010) 5 SCC 344], wherein the appellant was convicted for offences under section 302/34 and 307/34 IPC for committing murder of one of his close relatives and for attempting to murder his brother. The appellant was not a juvenile within the meaning of 1986 Act, when the offences were committed but had not completed 18 years of age on that date.

44. Apex Court keeping in view the language of the Explanation to Section 20 that in all pending cases, which would include not only trial but even subsequent proceedings by way of revision or appeal etc., the determination of juvenility of a juvenile has to be in terms of clause (l) of Section 2, even if the juvenile ceases to be a juvenile on or before 1st April 2001, when the Act of 2000 came into force, and the provisions of the Act would have applied as if the said provision had been in full force for all purposes and for all material times when the alleged offence was committed. Apex Court held clause (l) of Section 2 of the Act 2000 provides that "juvenile in conflict with law" means a "juvenile" who is alleged to have committed an offence and has not completed eighteenth year of age as on the date of the commission of such offence. Section 20 also enables the Court to consider and determine the juvenility of a person even after conviction by the regular court and also empowers the Court, while maintaining the conviction to set aside the sentence imposed and forward the case to the J.J. Board concerned for passing sentence in accordance with the provisions of the 2000 Act.

45. Apex Court in Mohan Mali and Another v. State of Madhya Pradesh [(2010) 6 SCC 669] has again considered the scope of Section 7A of the Act, wherein plea of juvenility was raised before Apex Court by the convict undergoing sentence. The appellant therein was convicted under sections 302/34, 326/34 and 324/34 IPC and was sentenced to life imprisonment and had already undergone 9 years of imprisonment. In that case a copy of the birth certificate issued by the Chief Registrar (Birth and Death) Municipal Corporation, Dhar u/s 12 of the Birth and Death Registration Act 1969 maintained by the Corporation was produced. Apex Court noticed that as per that certificate the date of birth of the accused was 12.11.1976. After due verification, it was confirmed by the State of Madhya Pradesh that he was a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence and had already undergone more than the maximum sentence provided under Section 15 of the 2000 Act by applying Rule 98 of the 2007 Rules read with Section 15 and 64 of the 2000 Act. The accused was ordered to be released forthwith.

46. In Jabar Singh v Dinesh and Another [(2010) 3 SCC 757], Apex Court while examining the scope of Section 7A of the Act and Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules and Section 35 of the Indian Evidence Act took the view that the trial court had the authority to make an enquiry and take necessary evidence to determine the age. Holding that the High Court was not justified in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction to upset the finding of the trial court, remitted the matter to the trial court for trial of the accused in accordance with law treating him to be not a juvenile at the time of commission of the alleged offence. Apex Court noticed that the trial court had passed the order rejecting the claim of juvenility of respondent No.1 therein on 14.02.2006, the Rules, including Rule 12 laying down the procedure to be followed in determination of the age of a juvenile in conflict with law, had not come into force. Apex Court opined that the trial court was not required to follow the procedure laid down in Section 7A of the Act or Rule 12 of the Rules and therefore in the absence of any statutory provision laying down the procedure to be followed in determining a claim of juvenility raised before it, the Court had to decide the claim of juvenility on the materials or evidence brought on record by the parties and section 35 of the Evidence Act.

47. In Anil Agarwal and Another v. State of West Bengal [(2011) 2 SCALE 429], Apex Court while examining the claim of juvenility made at a belated stage took the view that the appellants were minor at the time of the alleged offence and hence should not be tried along with the adult co-accused. The trial court dismissed the appellant's application as not maintainable as it had been filed at a belated stage. The High Court, in revision, while holding that the application had been made belatedly, granted liberty to appellants to raise their plea of juvenility and to establish the same before the Sessions Judge at the stage of the examination under section 313 Cr.P.C.

48. Reversing the finding recorded by the High Court, Apex Court took the view that Section 7A of the Act, as it now reads, gives right to any accused to raise the question of juvenility at any point of time and if such an issue is raised, the Court is under an obligation to make an inquiry and deal with that claim. The court held Section 7A has to be read along with Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules. Apex Court, therefore, set aside the order of the High Court and directed the trial court to first examine the question of juvenility and in the event, the trial court comes to a finding that the appellants were minor at the time of commission of the offence, they be produced before the J.J. Board for considering their cases in accordance with the provisions of the 2000 Act.

49. We may in the light of the judgments referred to herein before and the principles laid down therein while examining the scope of Section 7 A of the Act, Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules and Section 49 of the Act examine the scope and ambit of inquiry expected of a court, the J.J. Board and the Committee while dealing with a claim of juvenility.

50. Section 7A, obliges the court only to make an inquiry, not an investigation or a trial, an inquiry not under the Code of Criminal Procedure, but under the J.J. Act. Statute requires the Court or the Board only to make an "inquiry' and in what manner that inquiry has to be conducted is provided in JJ Rules, 2007. The expressions used in Section 7A and Rule 12 are of considerable importance and a reference to them is necessary to understand the true scope and content of those provisions. Section 7A has used the expression "court shall make an inquiry", "take such evidence as may be necessary" and "but not an affidavit". The Court or the Board can accept as evidence something more than an affidavit i.e. the Court or the Board can accept documents, certificates etc. as evidence need not be oral evidence.

51. Rule 12 which has to be read along with Section 7A has also used certain expressions which are also to be borne in mind at the point of time when enquiry of juvenility is underway. Rule 12(2) uses the expression "prima facie" and "on the basis of physical appearance" or "documents, if available". Rule 12(3) uses the expression "by seeking evidence by obtaining". These expressions in our view re-assert the fact that what is contemplated in Section 7A and Rule 12 is only an inquiry.

52. Further, the age determination inquiry has to be completed and age be determined within thirty days from the date of making the application; which is also an indication of the manner in which the inquiry has to be conducted and completed. The word "inquiry' has not been defined under the J.J. Act, but Section 2(y) of the J.J. Act says that all words and expressions used and not defined in the J.J. Act but defined in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), shall have the meanings respectively assigned to them in that Code.

53. "Inquiry" as defined in Section 2(g), Cr.P.C. reads as follows:

54. "Inquiry" means every inquiry, other than a trial, conducted under this Code by a Magistrate or Court.

55. The word "enquiry" is not defined under the Code of Criminal Procedure which is an act of asking for information and also consideration of some evidence, may be documentary.

56. "Investigation" as defined in section 2(h), Cr.P.C. reads as follows:

57. "Investigation" includes all the proceedings under this code for the collection of evidence conducted by a police officer or by any person (other than a Magistrate) who is authorized by a Magistrate in this behalf.

58. The expressions "trial" has not been defined in the Code of Criminal Procedure but must be understood in the light of the expressions "inquiry" or "investigation" as contained in sections 2(g) and 2(h) of the Code of Criminal Procedure."

59. The expression "trial" has been generally understood as the examination by court of issues of fact and law in a case for the purpose of rendering the judgment relating some offences committed. We find in very many cases that the Court /the J.J. Board while determining the claim of juvenility forget that what they are expected to do is not to conduct an inquiry under Section 2(g) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, but an inquiry under the J.J. Act, following the procedure laid under Rule 12 and not following the procedure laid down under the Code.

60. Consequently, the procedure to be followed under the J.J. Act in conducting an inquiry is the procedure laid down in that statute itself i.e. Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules, when the claim of juvenility is raised before the court exercising powers under section 7A of the Act.

61. "Age determination inquiry" contemplated under section 7A of the Act r/w Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules enables the court to seek evidence and in that process, the court can obtain the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available. Only in the absence of any matriculation or equivalent certificates, the court need obtain the date of birth certificate from the school first attended other than a play school. Only in the absence of matriculation or equivalent certificate or the date of birth certificate from the school first attended, the court need obtain the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat (not an affidavit but certificates or documents). The question of obtaining medical opinion from a duly constituted Medical Board arises only if the above mentioned documents are unavailable. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, then the court, for reasons to be recorded, may, if considered necessary, give the benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his or her age on lower side within the margin of one year.

62. Once the court, following the above mentioned procedure, passes an order; that order shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or juvenile in conflict with law. It has been made clear in subsection (5) of Rule 12 that no further inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board after examining and obtaining the certificate or any other documentary proof after referring to sub-rule (3) of the Rule 12. Further, Section 49 of the J.J. Act also draws a presumption of the age of the Juvenility on its determination.

63. On these parameters the issue that has been raised is to be looked into.

64. Under the The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, prior to insertion of Section 7-A, claim of juvenility was required to be decided on the parameters of the provisions as are contained under The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 read with The Uttar Pradesh Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004 and on the adjudication being made on the aforementioned parameters, if decision was done by the Board, then appeal was to be filed under Section 52 of The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 that gives right to any person aggrieved against the order made by Competent Authority under the said Act to prefer an appeal to the Court of Sessions. The High Court has been conferred with revisional power under Section 53 by providing that the High Court may at any point of time either of its own motion or on an application received in this behalf, call for the record of any proceeding in which any competent authority or Court of Session has passed an order for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any such order and may pass such order in relation thereto as it thinks fit.

65. Thus in proceedings so undertaken under The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, where the issue of juvenility is required to be answered after introduction of Section 7-A of J.J. Act such an issue of juvenility has to be answered strictly in consonance with the provisions as contained under Rule 12 of 2007 Rules.

66. Sub-rule (5) of Rules 12 talks of cases where further enquiry or otherwise is required, therein the Court or the Board, after examining and obtaining the certificate or any other documentary proof referred to in sub-rule (3) of Rule 12, is not empowered to make any further enquiry. Sub-rule 6 of Rule 12 clearly provides that the provision contained in this Rule shall also apply to those disposed off cases, where the status of juvenility has not been determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sub-rule (3) and the Act, requiring dispensation of the sentence under the Act for passing appropriate order in the interest of the juvenile in conflict with law.

67. The scheme of the Act would thus clearly reflect that once Section 7-A has been introduced under The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, thereafter in all the matter that come up before the Court therein either on application moved by the delinquent or on suo moto basis, the Courts are obligated to make an inquiry under the provisions that are provided under Rule 12 of 2007 Rules. All matters that have been decided not on the parameters of the The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 and The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007 are open to further inquiry to be conducted by the Court or the Board after examining and obtaining certificate referred to sub-rule 3 of Rule 12.

68. An adjudication of juvenility cannot be permitted to be accepted as final until and unless it is demonstrated before the Court that the juvenility in question has been determined on the parameters as are provided for in sub-rule 3 of Rule 12 of The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007.

69. The inevitable conclusion would be that where proceedings have been undertaken to make declaration of juvenile before the Board/Court in consonance with the provisions as contained under 2007 Rules and against the said decision, appeal and revision has been preferred and same has attained finality, then the said proceeding has to be accepted as final but in all other cases wherein the procedure that is prescribed for determination of age under 2007 Rules has not been undertaken, then the orders passed, determining the juvenility on the parameters of the earlier provisions, are not binding and will not have any binding effect and such an issue can be taken up in appeal at the point of time when such an issue is raised and in case, the Appellate Court finds that the determination in question is not at all in accordance with the provisions under Sub-Rule 3 of Rule 12 of the Act, then the said finding has to be ignored and the Appellate Forum is fully competent to either get further inquiry conducted on its own level on the parameters as are provided in sub-rule 3 of Rule 12. This particular opinion would subserve the cause of justice, inasmuch as, the aim and object of The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 is to extend the benefit to a juvenile.

70. Accordingly, the reference in question is answered as follows:

Issue no.I

"Whether the right of a juvenile to raise the issue of juvenility can be denied, by dismissing a writ petition as infructuous and then permitting him to raise the issue in a criminal appeal when the same issue had been raised before the Juvenile Justice Board and an appeal had been decided in accordance with Section 52 of the 2000 Act as in the present case, on applying the doctrine of finality?"

71. The right of a juvenile to raise the issue of juvenility cannot be denied by dismissing the Writ Petition as infructuous and in case Writ Petition in question has been filed though wrongly, the issue can be raised in Criminal Appeal even though the same has been raised before the Juvenile Justice Board and appeal has been decided under Section 52 of the 2000 Act once it is demonstrated before the Court that the issue of juvenility has not been answered on the parameters of Sub-Rule 3 of Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules.

Issue no.II

"Whether the law laid down by prescribing a procedure of allowing the question to be raised in a criminal appeal as an alternate substitute through a miscellaneous application under the judgment dated 13.10.2014 by the learned Single Judge is correct or not?"

72. Once the issue of juvenility has not been decided on the parameters of provisions as are contained under Sub-Rule 3 of Rule 12 of 2007 Rules, then such an issue can be examined by the Competent Criminal Court either on its own and even on a miscellaneous application being moved.

Issue no.III

"Whether in view of the law laid down by the Apex Court particularly in the case of Abuzar Hossain @ Gulam Hossain (supra) and Abdul Razzaq Vs. State of U.P. (supra), the issue presently raised, would also stand covered by the ratio and the observations made therein or not ?"

73. The law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Abuzar Hossain @ Gulam Hossain (supra) and Abdul Razzaq Vs. State of U.P. (supra) would also cover the issue presently raised.

74. The reference is accordingly answered. The Appeal shall now be placed before the appropriate Bench according to roster for disposal in light of this judgement.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amar Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Since in both the aforecaptioned criminal revisions question of facts and law involved are common, they were heard together and are being disposed of by means of this common order.

2. The facts which are necessary for adjudication of these revisions are that Parmatma Saran Gupta, the revisionist in criminal revision No. 2789 of 2009 (hereinafter referred to as the complainant-revisionist) made a complaint before the Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division)/Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Moradabad alleging therein that one Sudhir Garg, the revisionist in criminal revision No. 2425 of 2009 (hereinafter referred to as accused-revisionist) took a loan of Rs. 2,16,000/- (two lac sixteen thousand only) from him on different dates and for repayment of the said loan, he has issued five post-dated cheques to the revisionist Parmatma Saran Gupta of his bank account No. 15939 of Union Bank of India, Moradabad and also executed an agreement in writing in this regard. The complainant-revisionist deposited the said cheques in his bank account No. 952 of Punjab National Bank Kanth Road, Moradabad thrice, but the aforesaid cheques were dishonoured due to insufficient fund. The complainant-revisionist thereafter sent a notice dated 23.3.2005 to the accused-revisionist asking him to repay the said loan of Rs. 2,16,000/- within 15 days of the receipt of the notice, but in collusion with the postman, accused-revisionist returned the said notice with the remark that the addressee not met in spite of repeated visits. On 3.4.2005, the complainant-revisionist received back unserved notice. Thereafter the complainant-revisionist sent a demand notice on 21.4.2005, which was received by accused-revisionist on 25.4.2005, who replied to the notice on 6.5.2005, but the loan amount was not paid.

3. The learned trial court after recording the statement of the complainant Parmatma Saran Gupta under section 200 Cr.P.C., the evidence under section 202 Cr.P.C., the written agreement dated 21.9.2004 executed by the Sudhir Garg and all other materials, on being satisfied that prima facie case is made out, summoned the accused Sudhir Garg and recorded his statement under section 251 Cr.P.C. The accused in this statement admitted that he took loan of Rs. 2,16,000/- in cash from the complainant. He also admitted that he issued all the five cheques to the complainant, the aforesaid cheques were dishonoured owing to insufficient funds in his account. Further, he confessed that he has not repaid the loan amount and admitted all allegations of the complaint. Having considred the argument of the parties, learned trial court convicted Sudhir Garg under section 138 Negotiable Instruments Act and sentenced him six months' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 2000/-. The learned trial judge had also awarded compensation of Rs. 2,50,000/- against Sudhir Garg.

4. Being aggrieved and dissatisfied by the order of learned trial court, Sudhir Garg filed an appeal. The learned Additional District Judge, Court No. 6, Moradabad while partly allowing the appeal, affirmed the judgement of the learned trial court sentencing the appellant to six months' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 2,000/-, but set aside the part of the order awarding compensation of Rs. 2,50,000/- against the accused-revisionist.

5. Challenge in Criminal Revision No. 2425 of 2009 is to the orders dated 21.11.2008 passed by the learned Additional Civil Judge (JD)/Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Moradabad and 8.6.2009 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 6, Moradabad in Criminal Appeal No.

96 of 2008. Whereas Criminal Revision No. 2789 of 2009 has been filed questioning the order dated 08.6.2009 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 6, Moradabad only to the extent whereby compensation awarded by the learned Magistrate was set aside.

6. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists, learned counsel for opposite party No. 2 and learned Additional Government Advocate in both the revisions and perused the record of the case.

7. Learned counsel for the accused-revisionist in criminal revision No. 2425 of 2009 submits that the learned Magistrate has exceeded his jurisdiction in granting damages and learned Additional Sessions Judge has erred in convicting and sentencing him.

8. On the other hand learned counsel for the complainant-revisionist in criminal revision No. 2789 of 2009 has contended that under section 357 Cr.P.C., Magistrate has ample power to impose damages or to give compensation to the aggrieved person and learned Additional Sessions Judge has committed error of law in setting aside compensation.

9. Before adverting to the claim of the parties, it is useful to quote section 357 of the Criminal Procedure Code:

"(1) When a court imposes a sentence of fine or a sentence (including a sentence of death) of which fine forms a part, the court may, when passing judgment order the whole or any part of the fine recovered to be applied-

(a) In defraying the expenses properly incurred in the prosecution,

(b) In the payment to any person of compensation for any loss or injury caused by the offence, when compensation is, in the opinion, of the court, recoverable by such person in a Civil Court;

(c) When, any person is convicted of any offence for having caused the death of another person or of having abetted the commission of shelf all offence, in paying in, compensation to the persons who are, under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1855 (13 of 1855) entitled to recover damages from the person sentenced for the loss resulting to them from such death;

(d) When any person is convicted of any offence which includes theft, criminal, misappropriation, criminal breach of trust or cheating, or of having dishonestly received or retained, or of having voluntarily assisted in disposing of stolen property knowing or having reason to believe the same to be stolen in compensating any bona fide purchaser of such property for the loss of the same if such property is restored to the possession of the person entitled thereto.

(2) If the fine is imposed in a case, which is subject to appeal, no such payment shall be made before the period allowed for presenting the appeal his elapsed, or if an, appeal be presented, before the decision of the appeal.

(3) When a court imposes a sentence, of which fine does not form a part, the court may, when passing judgment order the accused person to pay, by way of compensation such amount as may be specified in the order to the person who has suffered any loss or injury by reason of the act for which the accused person his been so sentenced.

(4) An order under this section may also be made by all Appellate Court or by the High Court or Court of Session when exercising its powers of revision.

(5) At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the court shall take into account any sum paid or recovered as compensation under this section."

10. Learned counsel for the complainant-revisionist in criminal revision No. 2789 of 2009 has placed reliance upon the judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in K.A. Abbas H.S.A. Vs. Sabu Joseph, 2010 (6) SCC 230, wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:

"Essentially the section empowers the courts, not to just impose a fine alone or fine along with the sentence of imprisonment, but also when the situation arises, direct the accused to pay compensation to the person who has suffrred any loss or injury by reason of the act for which the accused person has been sentneced."

11. In Balraj Vs. State of UP, 1994 (2) R.C.R. (Criminal) 558, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that Section 357(3) of Criminal Procedure Code provides for ordering of payment by way of compensation to the victim by the accused. It is an important provision and it must also be noted that power to award compensation is not anciliary to other sentences but is is in addition thereto.

12. In Hari Kishan Vs. Sukhbir Singh and others, 1988(2) R.C.R (Criminal) 394, Hon'ble Supreme Court while suggesting all courts in India to impose a sentence on default of payment of compensation under sub-section (3) of Section 357, held as under:

" This court has observed that, Sub-section (1) of Section 357 provides power to award compensation to victim of the offence out of the sentence of fine imposed on accused. In this case, we are not concerned with Sub-section (1). We are concerned only with Sub-section (3). It is an important provision but Courts have seldom invoked it. Perhaps due to ignorance of the object of it. It empowers the court to award compensation to victims while passing judgement of conviction. In addition to conviction, the Court may order the accused to pay some amount by way of compensation to victim who has sufferred by the action of accused. It may be noted that this power of Courts to award compensation is not ancillary to other sentences but it is in addition thereto. This power was intended to do something to reassure the victim that he or she is not forgotten in the criminal justice system. It is a measure of responding appropriately to crime as well of reconcilng the victim with the offender. It is, to some extent, a constructive approach to crimes. It is indeed a step forward in our criminal justice system. We, therefore, recommend to all Courts to exercixe this power liberally so as to meet the ends of justice in a better way."

13. Learned counsel for the complainant-revisionist in Criminal Revision No. 2789 of 2009 further submitted that appeal filed by the revisionist-Sudhir Garg is barred by Section 375 Criminal Procedure Code as in his statement recorded under section 251 Cr.P.C., he has admitted all allegations enshrined in the complaint along with receiving of loan of Rs. 2,16,000/-

14. Section 375 of the Code reads as under:

375. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 374, where an accused person has pleaded guilty and has been convicted on such plea, there shall be no appeal:-

(a) if the conviction is by a High Court, or

(b) if the conviction is by a Court of Session, Metropolitan Magistrate or Magistrate of the first or second class, except as to the extent or legality of the sentence.

15. Perusal of the aforesaid provisions as well as case law, it is apparent that the learned Magistrate has ample power to grant compensation.

16. In view of the above, the order of the learned Additional Sessions Judge dated 8.6.2009 is set aside. The order of the learned Additional Civil Judge (JD)/Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2 Moradabad dated 21.11.2008 is affirmed.

17. Resultantly Criminal Revision No. 2425 of 2009 preferred by Sudhir Garg is dismissed and Criminal Revision No. 2789 of 2009 preferred by the Parmatma Saran Gupta is allowed.

18. Interim order dated 19.6.2009 granted in Criminal Revision No. 2425 of 2009 stands discharged.

Criminal Appeal No.- 2717 Of 1982

Basdeo & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
V.B. Singh, Dharmendra Singh, Raj Singh, S.P. Giri

Counsel for the Respondent:
A.G.A

Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 147, 148, 323/149 & 324/149 — Free fight and right of private defence — Benefit of doubt — Prosecution alleged that accused persons armed with lathi, farsa and ballam assaulted injured witnesses due to partition dispute — Evidence disclosed existence of cross-case and admitted injuries on accused side — Place of occurrence shown in front of accused's house indicating complainant party had gone there — Held, preponderance of probabilities suggested complainant side may have been aggressor and injuries caused by accused could be in exercise of right of private defence — Prosecution failed to establish charges beyond reasonable doubt.

Criminal Trial — Cross cases — Appreciation of evidence — Mere acquittal in cross-case not determinative of innocence or guilt in present case — Court required to independently examine who was aggressor, whether injuries on accused were explained and whether defence version appeared probable on preponderance of probabilities.

Evidence — Non-explanation of injuries on accused — Effect — Prosecution witnesses admitted that accused side had also sustained injuries during occurrence — Failure of prosecution to satisfactorily explain injuries on accused side materially affected credibility of prosecution version and strengthened plea of self-defence.

Right of Private Defence — Standard of proof — Accused pleading self-defence not required to prove plea beyond reasonable doubt — It is sufficient if defence succeeds in creating probability in favour of existence of circumstances bringing case within right of private defence.

Evidence — Interested and inimical witness — Reliability — Independent witness found inimical towards accused and evasive regarding injuries sustained by accused side — Testimony not wholly reliable — Statements of injured witnesses also required cautious scrutiny in light of admitted cross-case and mutual assault.

Criminal Appeal against conviction — Reappraisal of evidence by appellate court — High Court, upon independent reassessment of oral and documentary evidence, found trial court misdirected itself in appreciating defence plea and circumstances relating to occurrence — Conviction set aside by extending benefit of doubt.

In Result: Appeal allowed; conviction and sentence of surviving appellants under Ss. 147, 323/149 and 324/149 IPC set aside; appellants acquitted by benefit of doubt.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pratyush Kumar, J.)

1. The instant appeal filed on behalf of the accused appellants is directed against judgment and orders dated 21st October, 1982 passed by Sri S.K. Agnihotri, the then 4th Additional Sessions Judge, Aligarh in S.T. No. 64 of 1982 (State Vs. Basdev and four others) whereby the appellant nos. 1 and 2 were convicted under sections 148, 323/149 and 324/149 IPC and appellant nos. 3 to 5 were convicted under sections 147, 323/149 and 324/149 IPC. First two appellants were sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for two years, one year and two years, respectively. Rest of the appellants were sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment of one year, one year and two years respectively.

2. Heard Sri S.P. Giri learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Sushil Kumar, learned A.G.A. For the State-respondent.

3. The facts giving rise to the present appeal may be summarized as under:

4. That on 16th September, 1979 at 6.30 p.m. Hari Krishna gave a written report at P.S. Iglas stating therein that on that day at 4.30 p.m. his cousin was going to bring Jaggery (gur). He was ambushed by Kesri, Ghure Lal, Ram Charan, Basdeo and Dal Chandra, who were armed with lathi, farsa and ballam. He was abused and beaten. When he and his younger brother Ram Narayan intervened they were also beaten. The assailants bore enmity with him on account of partition. At the alarm raised by them, co-villagers Kalyan Singh, Fauran Singh and others reached there and saved them.

5. At this check FIR was scribed, case crime no. 237 of 1979 under sections 147, 148, 323 IPC was registered, investigated and charge sheet was submitted. All the five appellants stood for trial before the Court of Session, where they were charged, tried, convicted and sentenced as above.

6. Feeling aggrieved the instant appeal has been filed. During the pendency of the appeal appellants Basdev, Kesari and Ghure have died. Their appeals stood abated.

7. On behalf of surviving appellant no.4 Ram Chandra and appellant no.5 Dal Chandra learned counsel for the appellants submits that the impugned judgment and orders are against the weight of material on record and law. He further submits that there was a cross version of the occurrence and the learned trial Judge while ignoring the fact that occurrence took place in front of the house of the deceased appellant Basdeo has disbelieved the version advanced on behalf of the appellants and erroneously convicted the appellants. The prosecution failed to prove charges against the appellants beyond reasonable doubt. The evidence has not been properly appreciated. The impugned judgment and orders deserve to be set aside.

8. On behalf of the State these arguments have been repelled and it has been submitted that the learned trial Judge has rightly appreciated the evidence. It has been further submitted that finding recorded by the learned trial Judge are well substantiated from the record, cogent reasons have been given in support thereof. The appeal has no substance and it deserves to be dismissed.

9. Before entering into the merits the arguments advanced before me I would like to place on record the evidence adduced by the parties before the trial court.

10. On behalf of the prosecution in the documentary evidence besides other papers, written report Ext. Ka-1, check FIR Ext. Ka-5, recovery memo of clothes of Ram Narayan Ex.Ka-2, Injury report of Ramesh Chandra Ex. Ka-7, Injury report of Hari Kishan Ext. Ka-8, Injury report of Ram Narayan Ext.Ka-9, X-ray report of Ram Narayan, Site plan with index Ex. Ka-3 were filed and in the oral evidence seven witnesses were examined. Out of these four are witnesses of fact and rest are formal witnesses.

Ramesh P.W.1	He is the injured and gave eye witness account of the occurrence. He has fully supported the prosecution version.
Hari Krishna P.W.2	He is the first informant. He has proved written report Ext. Ka-1. He is also an injured. He has supported the prosecution version.
Ram Narayan P.W.3	He is also an injured witness. He has proved memo of taking blood stained clothes Ext. Ka-2 and supported the prosecution version.
Fauran Singh P.W.4	He is an independent witness. He has fully supported the prosecution version.

11. Before re-examining and reassessing the probative force of the testimonies of the eye witnesses it would be gainful to reproduce here the injuries sustained by the injured persons and proved by Dr. H.A. Khan P.W.7 who had medically examined the injured Ramesh Chandra and Hari Krishna. They were medically examined on 17th September, 1979 in the forenoon and on 16th September, 1979 at 6.30 p.m. injured Ram Narayan was medically examined. The doctor has proved the injury reports prepared by him at the time of medical examinations. These injury reports are Exts. Ka-7 to Ka-9. The details of the injuries sustained by the injured persons are giving as below:

12. Injuries on the person of Ramesh Chandra:

1. Abrasion 1 cm. x ½ cm. on the right side of the chest, 9 cm. below the right nipple vide Ext. Ka-7.

13. Injuries on the person of Hari Kishan:

1. Abrasion 5 cm. x 4 cm. on the left side of the back and chest above the right spine and 5 cm. below the collar bone.

2. Abrasion 1-1/2 cm. x ¾ cm at the root of the middle finger of the right hand on the back.

3. Abrasion 1 cm. x ¼ cm on the middle finger of the right hand.

4. Abrasion ¼ cm. x ¼ cm on the right finger of the left hand on the back of the first joint.

5. Contusion with traumatic swelling 5 cm x 2 cm on the fourth metacarpal bone of the left hand on the back the joint of finger abrasion 2 cm x cm. above ½ cm on the back of the left forearm, 2 cm. above the wrist joint vide Ext. Ka-8.

14. Injuries on the person of Ram Narain:

1. Incised wound 1 cm. x 1 cm. x muscle deep on the right side of the forehead, 2 cm above the right eyebrow.

2. Contusion with traumatic swelling on the eyelid of the right eye and also 2 cm below the lower eyelid.

3. Traumatic swelling 1 cm x 1 cm on the right side of the head and 10 cm above the right ear. No visible mark of injury was found at this place and hence x-ray was advised.

4. Abrasion 8 cm x 1 cm on the left hand on the outer aspect, 13 cm above the left elbow.

5. Traumatic swelling in an area of 13 cm x 13 cm at the joint of the left elbow above, on the lower portion of the left arm and on the upper side of the left forearm 5 cm above the left elbow. The swelling was accompanied by an abrasion 2 cm x 2 cm x-ray examination was advised.

6. Traumatic swelling 10 cm x 7 cm on the forearm on the back and lower aspect of it. The swelling had extended upto the wrist joint and was also accompanied by a contusion with abrasion 1 cm x 1 cm x-ray examination was advised.

7. Traumatic swelling 4 cm x 2 cm on the right shoulder 2 cm below the joint of the collar bone and on the back of it.

15. The case of the defence before the trial court was of denial. According to them injured Ramesh wanted to construct a nali in the land of Basdev and according to the appellants when protested he and his family men had beaten them. The appellants in their statements recorded under section 313 Cr.P.c. had denied the facts stated by the prosecution witnesses. Appellant Basdev since deceased had also stated that he had lodged an FIR against the complainant's party under section 307 IPC. In order to prepare false defence the present FIR was lodged against him and the other accused persons.

16. In the defence on behalf of the appellant statement of Fauran Singh recorded in S.T. No. 784/82 (Ram Prasad Vs. Basdev and others), copy of complaint case no. 1442 of 1979 Ram Prasad Vs. Basdev and others, certified copy of the judgment given in the said complaint case whereby Basdev and other persons were acquitted and, copy of will executed by Devi Singh were filed.

17. The learned trial Judge in absence of any evidence for defence has rejected the defence case that as peshbandi false case was lodged against the present appellants. He believed the eye witness account and held the appellants guilty.

18. Cross version of the occurrence has not been denied by the prosecution witnesses. The learned trial Judge in absence of any evidence adduced by the deceased appellant no.1 Basdeo did not extent benefit of doubt on the basis of plea that there was another version of the occurrence. Before proceeding further it has to be kept in mind that when there is other version of the occurrence two-three points are very material to decide whether prosecution could prove the charges beyond reasonable doubt. These material points may be indicated as below:-

(i) Obligation of the prosecution to explain the injuries of the accused.

(ii) Who is aggressor?

(iii) Standard of proof.

19. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Punjab v. Gurbux Singh and others, 1996 SCC (Crl) 88 has made very illuminating observation in reference to plea of self defence. Much assistance may be gained to decide the present controversy from the said observation of the Hon'ble Apex Court. For the sake of ready reference it is quoted as below:

"It is well settled that when the accused set up a plea of self-defence, they need not prove their case beyond all reasonable doubt and within the parameters under Section 103, if by preponderance of probabilities, the plea taken by them becomes plausible then the same should be accepted or at least, a benefit of doubt arises.

In the instant case, the prosecution failed to explain the injuries of the accused persons. It was held that the accused were entitled to the right of self defence."

20. The first point to be considered in this reference is that who is the aggressor. Place of occurrence has been shown in the site plan Ext. Ka-3. It is marked by letter 'E'. It is right in front of the house of deceased appellant Basdev. When the place of occurrence is in front of the house of the deceased appellant Basdev, naturally inference may be drawn that when the occurrence took place he was at the door of his house which makes it necessary that the injured had to come there. This prima facie is sufficient to show that it was the complainant's side who had gone in front of the door of the one of the appellant. Merely acquittal in the cross case is not determinative that the accused of the cross case were not aggressor because as the Supreme Court has observed that accused need not prove his case beyond all reasonable doubt. He had only to show by preponderance of probabilities that his plea of self defence is plausible.

21. It is well settled that burden is on the prosecution to prove its case and the law does not cast any burden on the accused except when the accused invokes any of the exceptions to criminal liability covered by section 105 of the Evidence Act. The defence is permitted to take up a plea during the cross examination or in the statement recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. If the defence succeeds in creating a reasonable belief that circumstance absolving him from criminal liability may have existed. The accused becomes entitled to get benefit of doubt. The burden so placed on defence is lower then the burden placed on the prosecution. It is only when the prosecution has led evidence which, if believed, will sustain a conviction that the question of shifting the onus upon the defence will arise. I am fortified in my view by the observation of the Hon'ble Apex Court made in the case of Sewal Das Vs. State of Bihar AIR 1974 SC 778.

22. The learned trial Judge has misdirected himself on account of the acquittal in cross case because quantum of proof for prosecution and defence is different. I don't think that the learned trial Judge has rightly appreciated the evidence. It is an important fact that occurrence took place in front of the house of the co-accused which shows that the complainant's side could have been aggressor.

23. Now the second question to be considered is that whether on the appellants' side any one had received injuries. The prosecution has not cared to admit the fact that accused side also sustained injuries. In this reference I find that Ramesh P.W.1 in his examination in chief has categorically stated that marpeet took place on both the sides but he pleaded ignorance, on the point who on the other side who had sustained injuries, on the ground he became unconscious. He declined the suggestion that he and his companions had beaten Basdev and others.

24. Hari Krishna P.W.2 admitted the reason of dispute. According to him he and other persons reached at the spot unarmed but after snatching lathi from accused persons they defended themselves whereby accused persons sustained injuries. This is a clear admission that in the occurrence the appellants' side also sustained injuries. Only it is claimed to have been caused in self defence. Though he denied the suggestion they had caused injuries to Basdev, Kesri, Ghure Lal and Smt. Genda by lathi, ballam, farsa and gandsa. Ram Narayan P.W.3 admits that on the report of Basdev a cross case was pending against him Ramesh, Ram Narayan and four others. Though of course he denied the suggestion that they had beaten Basdev, Kesri, Ghure Lal and Smt. Genda.

25. Fauran Singh P.W.4 was not present when the incident started. He reached there after hearing the alarm. The learned trial Judge has held him to be an independent witness but from his replies and the certified copy of his earlier statement it transpires that he is inimical to the side of appellants. He is not speaking the truth this can be gathered from the fact that according to him he had not seen any injury on the person of the appellants.

26. In the light of the facts noticed above now I re-examine and re-assess the evidenciary value of the testimonies of eye witnesses. Since Hari Krishna P.W.2 has categorically admitted that appellants' side also sustained injuries, on account of enmity and evasive answers I am not inclined to place reliance on the statement of Fauran Singh P.W.4.

27. Now remain evidence of three injured persons who were accused in the cross case. Marpeet by both the sides is admitted. Place of occurrence indicates that it was the complainant's side who had gone to the place of occurrence which is in front of the house of Basdev, therefore, preponderance of probabilities is that the complainant's side was aggressor. The statements of the injured witnesses for this reason cannot be accepted that it was the appellants' side who started the quarrel and had beaten them. It is impossible that five armed persons would allow their prospective victims to snatch their lathi and permit them to beat them. Thus probability is that the complainant's side had gone in front of the house of Basdev well armed and injuries inflicted by the appellants' side may be result of self defence.

28. In view of above I do not think that the prosecution could prove charges against the present appellants beyond doubt. The appellants are entitled to be acquitted after giving them benefit of doubt.

29. Resultantly appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and orders dated 21st October, 1982 as also conviction and sentences of the surviving appellants Ram Charan and Dal Chand are set aside. Both the appellants are acquitted from the charges under sections 147, 323/149, 324/149 IPC. They are on bail. They need not surrender. Their personal bonds and surety bonds are cancelled and the sureties are discharged.

30. Office is directed to certify this order to the court concerned forthwith for compliance and to send back the lower court record.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — Ss. 245(2) & 397 — Discharge in complaint case — Revisional interference — Scope — Revision preferred against order rejecting discharge application under S. 245(2) CrPC in complaint case alleging offences under Ss. 420, 467, 468 and 218/34 IPC — Held, revisional jurisdiction under S. 397 CrPC is limited to examining correctness, legality or propriety of order and does not permit re-appreciation of evidence as in appeal — Where Magistrate applied judicial mind and considered material on record, revisional interference unwarranted.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 245(2) — Discharge — Consideration by Magistrate — Accused sought discharge on ground that complainant suffered no loss and that police had submitted final report in connected proceedings — Magistrate, after considering oral and documentary evidence, rejected discharge application on merits — Held, no illegality, perversity or impropriety found in impugned order.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — Ss. 156(3), 200 & 202 — Complaint proceedings — Parallel remedies — Complaint case proceeded notwithstanding submission of final report in police case arising out of same facts — Magistrate competent to treat application under S. 156(3) CrPC as complaint and proceed in accordance with law.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — Revisional jurisdiction — Interlocutory matters — Limited scrutiny — Revisional court not expected to substitute its own view on factual appreciation at interlocutory stage unless impugned order suffers from manifest illegality or jurisdictional error.

In Result: Criminal revision dismissed; order rejecting discharge application under S. 245(2) CrPC affirmed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prabhat Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Case called out. Sri Kuldeep Kumar, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri L.D. Rajbhar, learned A.G.A. for the State of U.P. are present. None responds on behalf of the opposite party no.2.

2. Learned counsel for the revisionist has stated that in Application U/s 482 No.23466 of 2010 (Virendra Pal Sigh Vs. State of U.P. & another) Co-ordinate Bench of this Court by it's order dated 21.07.2010 has ordered as follows:

"Till the next date of listing, further proceedings of Complaint Case No.1719 of 2007 and Case No.152 of 2007, under Sections 420, 467, 568, 218/34 IPC, P.S. Kotwali Dehat, District Bulandshahar shall remain stayed against the applicant only."

3. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the revisionist that the present revision has been filed regarding the same set of incident and the similar order may also be passed by this Court.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance upon the judgement of this Court in Ramesh Chandra Bhatia Vs. State of U.P. [2012 (76) ACC 985].

5. The facts and circumstances of the case in hand are totally different from the facts and circumstances cited in the above Ruling.

6. The present criminal revision has been preferred against the judgement and order dated 26.11.2013 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, District Bulandshahr in complaint case no.1390 of 2013 (Gopi Vs. Govind Ram and others), under Sections 420, 467, 468, 218/34 I.P.C., Police Station Kotwali Dehat, District Bulandshahr, whereby learned Magistrate has rejected the discharge application under Section 245 (2) Cr.P.C.

7. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

8. Accused persons Govind Ram, Ram Singh and Mahipal have preferred Application under Section 245 (2) Cr.P.C. dated 06.01.2009 before the court of the learned II A.C.J.M., Bulandshahr in complaint case no.1719 of 2007 (Gopi Vs. Govind Ram etc.), under Sections 420, 467, 468, 218/34 I.P.C., Police Station Kotwali Dehat, District Bulandshahr with the prayer that since the case before the Consolidation Officer, Bulandshahr was fixed on 25.09.2004 but the complainant had no knowledge about that date so he could not attend the court and prayed to fix another date 05.10.2004. On 29.09.2004 the Consolidation Officer had passed a non-speaking order by writing 'Restored', although, no restoration application was presented to restore the order dated 25.09.2004.

9. The complainant has presented this application before the Consolidation Officer, Bulandshahr on 10.03.2006 to restore the ex-parte order dated 25.09.2004. In other words, the complainant has presented a false and vague complaint.

10. When the aforesaid ex-parte order dated 25.09.2004 was restored on 05.10.2004 and on merit it was finally decided in favour of accused Mahipal on 14.03.2008. In other words the complainant did not suffer any loss.

11. The complainant presented an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. before the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr on date 17.04.2006 which was allowed and order for registration of F.I.R. against the accused persons was passed. Against this order of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr dated 17.04.2006 Criminal Revision No.322 of 2006 was preferred which was allowed vide order dated 17.06.2008 with the direction of rehearing the application and thereafter the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr passed another order dated 16.07.2008 that the application should be treated as complaint case.

12. On the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. case was registered in case crime no.C18 of 2006 in Police Station Kotwali Dehat, District Bulandshahr which culminated into filing of final report by the Police concerned.

13. The complainant had filed a complaint case on the same facts in March, 2007 before the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr, on which the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr passed an order of summoning the accused persons on 11.09.2007. Against this order, the accused persons had preferred Application U/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.33978 of 2008 before this Court. This Court passed an order and directed the revisionist to move an application under Section 245 (2) Cr.P.C. before the learned Magistrate.

14. It was mentioned in the application dated 06.01.2009 presented before the learned court of the II Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr in complaint case no.1719 of 2007 that the records of the case no.5736 of 2008 (Gopi Vs. Govind Ram etc.), under Sections 420, 467, 468, 218 I.P.C. which was pending in the court of the learned Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division), Court No.2 and also the F.I.R. relating to Gopi Vs. Govind Ram etc. which was pending in the court of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr, on the aforementioned reasons, the accused persons Ram Singh, Govind Ram and Mahi Pal prayed that there was no evidence against them under Sections 420, 467, 468, 218 I.P.C. and they may be discharged of the aforesaid offences. The said application came up for decision before the court of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr in complaint case no.1390 of 2013 (Gopi Vs. Govind Ram and others) on 26.11.2013 and the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr after hearing both the parties and perusal of the records, passed the order on merit and thereby dismissed the aforesaid application under Section 245 (2) Cr.P.C. of the accused Ram Singh, Govind Ram and Mahi Pal.

15. In exercise of revisional jurisdiction of this Court under Section 397 Cr.P.C. there is very narrow compass to re-appreciate and re-evaluate the evidence either oral or documentary before it; which is available in the appellate jurisdiction. Section 397 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 is quoted verbatim as follows:

"397.Calling for records to exercise of powers of revision.-(1) The High Court or any Sessions Judge may call for and examine the record of any proceeding before any inferior Criminal Court situate within its or his local jurisdiction for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order, recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of any proceedings of such inferior Court, and may, when calling for such record, direct that the execution of any sentence or order be suspended, and if the accused is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond pending the examination of the record.

Explanation.-All Magistrates, whether Executive or Judicial, and whether exercising original or appellate jurisdiction, shall be deemed to be inferior to the Sessions Judge for the purposes of this sub-section and of Section 398.

(2) The powers of revision conferred by sub-section (1) shall not be exercised in relation to any interlocutory order passed in any appeal, inquiry, trial or other proceeding.

(3) If any application under this section has been made by any person either to the High Court or to the Sessions Judge, no further application by the same person shall be entertained by the other of them."

16. The revisional jurisdiction does not postulate re-appreciation of evidence, but that should be appreciated in the light of the limitation on the right to go in appeal, Islamuddin v. State, 1975 Cri LJ 841, 842 (Del HC). G. Vasudevan v. K.M. Malabari, 1978 Mad LJ (Cri) 617; Bundoo v. Smt. Mahrul Nisa, 1978 All LJ 1002 (All HC).

17. I have gone through the impugned order dated 26.11.2013 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr in complaint case no.1390 of 2013 (Gopi Vs. Govind Ram and others) in which learned Chief Judicial Magistrate has exercised it's judicial mind and passed the impugned order dated 26.11.2013 on the basis of the evidence either oral or documentary available before the court.

18. There is no occasion to interfere with the same. There is no illegality, impropriety or perversity to interfere at this stage. The revision sans merit and is liable to be dismissed.

19. Dismissed

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 125 — Maintenance to minor child — Liability of father — Effect of divorce — Family Court rejected maintenance claim of wife but granted maintenance to minor son — Husband contended that after divorce he was not liable to maintain child — Held, right of minor child to claim maintenance from father under S. 125 CrPC survives irrespective of divorce between parents — Father under statutory obligation to maintain minor child unable to maintain himself.
Muslim Law — Maintenance of minor child — Scope of liability — Mere fact that mother had been divorced and paid certain amount at time of divorce does not extinguish right of minor Muslim child to seek maintenance under S. 125 CrPC — Beneficial provisions relating to welfare of child to receive liberal construction.
Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 125 — Object and purpose — Provision enacted as measure of social justice to prevent vagrancy and destitution of women and children — Husband/father having sufficient means cannot avoid obligation to maintain dependants by taking bald plea of lack of income.
Maintenance — Able-bodied person — Duty to maintain — An able-bodied and economically sound person is presumed capable of earning and maintaining wife and child — Failure to discharge such obligation without sufficient cause unjustified.
Maintenance — Welfare of child — Paramount consideration — Proper maintenance and welfare of child are of paramount importance — Law compelling father to maintain child to be construed liberally in favour of child irrespective of caste, creed or subsistence of marriage.
In Result: Criminal revision dismissed; maintenance granted by Family Court to minor child upheld; interim order vacated.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amar Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. This revision has been filed against the judgement and order dated 14.9.2010 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Meerut in Case No. 598 of 2006 whereby the learned Judge allowed the application under section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure insofar as Suhail Khan, the minor child of the revisionist was concerned.

2. However, by the same order learned Judge rejected the claim of the applicant-opposite party No. 1 Smt. Shaida Khan, wife of the revisionist, which is not under challenge in this revision.

3. The facts which are requisite to be mentioned for adjudication of this revision are that an application under section 125 of Code of Criminal Procedure was moved by Smt. Shaida Khan on behalf of herself and her minor son Suhail Khan claiming maintenance on the ground that her marriage took place about nine years back with opposite party-Ismile alias Shama, the revisionist herein. Out of their wedlock a child namely Suhail Khan was born, who is with Smt Shaida Khan. It is mentioned in the application that revisionist-Ismile alias Shama demanded dowry and used to torture her on account of non-fulfillment of dowry demand. It is also mentioned in the application that revisionist also threatened the applicant that in case if she does not bring Rs. 50,000/- with her, he will marry another lady. The application further alleges that the revisionist is a Kashtkar and his income is about 20-25 thousand per month.

4. In his written objections the revisionist has denied the versions given in the application under section 125 Cr.P.C. and levelled allegations on the character of the applicant-opposite party No. 2. It is also mentioned in the written objections that he divorced the applicant Smt. Shaida Khan and had given her Rs. 50,000/- along with certain household articles on the conditions that she will maintain her son from this amount. The revisionist also alleges that opposite party-Smt. Shaida Khan earns Rs. 10,000/- per months.

5. The learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Meerut after evaluating the evidence adduced by the parties, rejected the claim of the applicant-Smt Shaida Khan on the ground that she is able to maintain herself as she is earning more than 2200/-per month. However, by the same order learned Judge granted maintenance to the minor child-Suhail Khan by holding that the revisionist has never given any money for the maintenance of his child.

6. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and learned Additional Government Advocate and perused the record of the case.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that by the impugned order learned Family Judge while granting maintenance to the child, rejected the claim of maintenance of wife, which goes to suggest that income of opposite party No. 2 is sufficient to maintain herself as well as her child, opposite party No. 3.

8. Learned counsel for the revisionist has further submitted that the learned Judge has erred in granting maintenance to opposite party No. 3, Suhail Khan as the revisionist has divorced opposite party No. 2.

9. Per contra, learned Additional Government Advocate supported the judgement of the Family Court and argued the the judgement is reasoned one and does not require any interference by this Court.

10. Before adverting to the claim of the parties, it would be useful to quote section 125 Cr.P.C.:

Order for maintenance of wives, children and parents:-

125. (1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain-

(a) his wife, unable to maintain herself, or

(b) His legitimate or illegitimate minor child, whether married or not unable to maintain itself, or

(c) his legitimate or illegitimate child (not being a married daughter) who has attained majority, where such child is, by reason of any physical or mental abnormality or injury unable to maintain itself, or

(d) his father or mother, unable to maintain himself or herself,

a Magistrate of first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, at such monthly rate as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct."

11. There can be no shadow of doubt that an order under section 125 Cr.P.C. can be passed if a person despite having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain the wife or child. Sometimes, a plea is advanced by the husband that he does not have the means to pay as he does not have a job or his business. These are only bald excuses and in fact they have no acceptability in laws. If the husband is healthy, able bodied and is in a position to support himself, he is under the legal obligation to support his wife and child.

12. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Chaturbhuj Vs. Sita Bai, (2008) 2 SCC 316 has held the grant of maintenance to wife is a measure of social justice. The court held as under:

" Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and as noted by this Court in captain Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Veena Kaushal, (1978) 4 SCC 70 falls within constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39 of the Constitution of India. It is meant to achieve a social purpose. The object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for the supply of food, clothing and shelter to the deserted wife. It gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The aforesaid position was highlighted in Savitaben Somabhai Bhatiya v. State of Gujarat (2005) 3 SCC 636.

13. A Division Bench of Madhya Pradesh High Court in the case of Durga Singh Lodhi Vs. Prembai and others, 1990 Cr.L.J. 2065 has held that mere absence of visible means or real estate will not entitle such a person to escape the liability to pay maintenance awarded under Section 125(1), as even at the stage of enforcement of the order under Section 125(1), an able bodied healthy person capable of earning, must be subjected to pay maintenance allowance. If, with this visible capacity to earn, he avoids payments, it has to be held that he has so done for no sufficient cause. If such a person avoids to discharge that obligations despite issuance of a distress warrant, he can be sentenced to imprisonment for a term specified in sub-section (3) of Section 125 Cr.P.C..

14. So far as the contention of learned counsel for the revisionist that the learned Judge has erred in granting maintenance to opposite party No. 3, Suhail Khan as the revisionist has divorced opposite party No. 2 is concerned, Bombay High Court in Mst. Noor Jehan v. State of Maharashtra 1995 CLJ 2154 held as hereunder:

"It does not take away the right of the minor child to claim maintenance from his or her father even after his or her mother has been divorced. The right which is conferred on the minor child of claiming maintenance under Section 125 of the Cr. P.C., cannot be said to have been taken away by the provision contained in Section 3(b) of the Act of 1986 ..... While Section 3(b) entitles the divorced Muslim Woman to claim maintenance for the children born to her before or after the divorce from her former husband for period of two years from the respective dates of birth of the children, the said section does not take away the right of the minor Muslim child or children to claim maintenance from his or her father even if the mother has been divorced and has attained the status of divorced Muslim woman."

15. Madras High Court in Rahamatulla Vs. Piyare and others, 1996-1 LW (Crl) 206 has held as under:

"The proper maintenance of the child is imperative. In the paramount interest of the child, laws compelling the father to maintain his child, are to be construed liberally so as to embrace all beneficial legislation in favour of the child. The welfare of the child is a paramount consideration, the child may be of any class, caste or creed. Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., entitles even the illegitimate minor child to claim maintenance and it is the bounden duty of the father to maintain the child, whether the marriage is subsisting or not and whether the child was born from the wedlock or otherwise. The maintenance of the child being an imperative factor, the Legislature while enacting the Act of 1986, making provision for protection of rights of Muslim Women, has not taken away the right of the minor child to claimmaintenance even after divorce. Thus, the right of the Muslim minor child under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., is not taken away by Section 125 of the Act of 1986, or is not confined to claiming maintenance only up to the attainment to age of two years."

16. In the case in hand the learned Family Judge while allowing maintenance to opposite party No. 3, Suhail Khan, has held that at the time of filing the application under section 125(3) Cr.P.C., he was aged about seven years and that the revisionist- Ismile alias Shama has never paid any amount for his maintenance and it is the duty and responsibility of the revisionist to maintain his minor child. The learned Family Court further held that the revisionist after the marriage with opposite party No. 2, has again married for the fourth time to one Rafat, which goes to suggest that he is economically sound persons.

17. In view of what has been indicated herein above, I find that the impugned order does not suffer from any illegality or impropriety.

18. The revision lacks merits. It is accordingly dismissed.

19. Interim order dated 4.10.2010 is vacated.

Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 — Ss. 7-A, 20 & 68 — Determination of juvenility — Applicability of Central Rules, 2007 in Uttar Pradesh — Question referred to Full Bench whether U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004 or Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007 framed by Central Government would govern determination of juvenility in Uttar Pradesh after insertion of S. 7-A by Amendment Act 33 of 2006 — Held, till State Rules are recast in conformity with Central Rules, 2007, provisions of Central Rules would mutatis mutandis apply in State of Uttar Pradesh by virtue of Rule 96 of Central Rules.

Juvenile Justice — Determination of age — Procedure — Evidentiary hierarchy — Under Rule 12(3), age determination inquiry to be conducted by first obtaining matriculation/equivalent certificate; in absence thereof, certificate from school first attended; thereafter birth certificate issued by municipal authority/panchayat; medical opinion to be sought only in absence of such documents — Once such documentary proof available and not shown fabricated or manipulated, no roving inquiry permissible.

Juvenile Justice — Inquiry under S. 7-A — Nature and scope — Inquiry contemplated under S. 7-A is not a trial or investigation under CrPC but a summary inquiry governed exclusively by provisions of Juvenile Justice Act and Rules — Courts while deciding juvenility claims not required to conduct elaborate evidentiary trial.

Juvenile Justice — Claim of juvenility — Stage of raising plea — Claim of juvenility may be raised before any court at any stage, even after final disposal of criminal proceedings — Delay in raising claim not a ground for rejection if prima facie material exists.

Juvenile Justice — Rule-making power — Effect of Central Model Rules — After insertion of proviso to S. 68(1) by Amendment Act 33 of 2006, Central Government empowered to frame Model Rules — State Rules required to conform thereto as far as practicable — In absence of amended State Rules, Central Rules prevail on issue of determination of juvenility.

Reference Answered: U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004 require recasting in light of insertion of S. 7-A and Central Rules, 2007; till such amendment, determination of juvenility in Uttar Pradesh to be governed by Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007 framed by Central Government.

(Delivered by Hon'ble V.K. Shukla, J.)

1. While Criminal Revision No.4694/2011 (Jai Prakash Tiwari vs. State of U.P. and another) was being heard, a Learned Single Judge of this Court keeping in view the fact that the accused claimed juvenility before the Trial Court in Case Crime No.122 of 2008 under Section 302 and 394 IPC, P.S. Dhata, District Fatehpur by filing in support of the same, a Junior High School certificate and a High School certificate, that carried date of birth as 09.08.1991 and as the incident has taken place on 14.09.2008, the accused was accepted as juvenile on the date of occurrence as he fell below 18 years on his age being counted from 9th August, 1991. The Additional Sessions Judge accordingly proceeded to pass order dated 29.10.2011 on the application of accused-Subhadra Pathak, under Section 7-A of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (here-in-after referred to as the '2000 Act'). The Additional Sessions Judge while passing the order has taken note of the provisions as are contained under Rule 12(3) of the Central Rules and the Revisionist before this Court is complaining that he ought to have followed the procedure envisaged under U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004 and ought to have considered certificates beginning from Primary School till High School (failed), the accused would not have been adjudged as a juvenile.

2. Faced with this situation, as the issue in Revision was whether the procedure provided under The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007 (herein-after to be referred to as the 'Central Rules') should apply to the facts of the case or the procedure provided under the U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004, for determination of the age of the accused ought to have been adhered and in view of the fact that issue so raised was of general importance, following issues have been referred to be answered by the Larger Bench:

1.Whether the U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2004 need be recast consequent upon addition of section 7-A of the Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (as amended by Act No. 33 of 2006).

2.And in case it is found that they need not be recast whether the U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children)Rules 2004 framed by State Government or The Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2007 framed by the Central Government shall apply to the matter, in Uttar Pradesh.

3. Shri Sarvesh Kumar Mishra, Advocate appearing on behalf of Revisionist submitted that procedure provided under U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules 2004, ought to have been adhered to and Central Rules ought not have been pressed into service.

4. Shri Imran Ullah, learned Additional Advocate General, based on the statutory provisions holding the field, has submitted that procedure provided under Rule 12(5) of Central Rules will have to be adhered to as on date under the scheme of things provided for.

5. Shri Birendra Singh, Advocate and Shri M.P. Rai, Advocate representing the accused have also toed the same line of argument as has been toed by the State of U.P.

6. In order to answer the issues that have been so raised, the legislative background as well as relevant statutory provisions holding the field will have to be looked into.

7. The Parliament felt it necessary that uniform juvenile justice system should be available throughout the country which should make adequate provision for dealing with all aspects in the changing social, cultural and economic situation in the country and there was also need for larger involvement of informal systems and community based welfare agencies in the care, protection, treatment, development and rehabilitation of such juveniles and with these objectives in mind, it enacted Juvenile Justice Act, 1986 (for short, "1986 Act').

8. Looking to the working of Juvenile Justice Act, 1986 review of its working was carried out, and '1986 Act' was replaced by the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (for short, "2000 Act'). 2000 Act to carry forward the constitutional philosophy engrafted in Articles 15(3), 39(e) and (f), 45 and 47 of the Constitution and same also incorporates the standards prescribed in the Convention on the Rights of the Child, United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Administration of Juvenile Justice, 1985, the United Nations Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty (1990) and all other relevant international instruments. Clause (k) of Section 2 defines "juvenile" or "child" to mean a person who has not completed eighteenth year of age. Clause (l) of Section 2 defines "juvenile in conflict with law" to mean a juvenile who is alleged to have committed an offence and has not completed eighteenth year of age on the date of commission of such offence. Chapter II of Juvenile Justice Act, 2000 deals exclusively with juveniles in conflict with law who are alleged to have committed offence which are otherwise punishable under the general law of crimes.

9. Section 3 of 2000 Act provides for continuation of inquiry in respect of juvenile who has ceased to be a juvenile. It reads as under:

"S.3 . Continuation of inquiry in respect of juvenile who has ceased to be a juvenile.--Where an inquiry has been initiated against a juvenile in conflict with law or a child in need of care and protection and during the course of such inquiry the juvenile or the child ceases to be such, then, notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or in any other law for the time being in force, the inquiry may be continued and orders may be made in respect of such person as if such person had continued to be a juvenile or a child."

10. Chapter II of 2000 Act deals with juvenile in conflict with law. This Chapter comprises of Sections 4 to 28. Section 4 provides for constitution of juvenile justice board and its composition. Section 5 provides for procedure, etc. in relation to juvenile justice board. Section 6 deals with the powers of juvenile justice board. Section 7 provides for the procedure to be followed by Magistrate not empowered under the Act. Section 18 of the Act prohibits joint proceedings and trial of juvenile and a person who is not a juvenile and the punishment that can be awarded to a juvenile has been provided for in Section 15 of the Act provides for the order that can be passed regarding juvenile. Relevant provisions i.e. Sections 6 is being quoted as under:

"S.6 . Powers of Juvenile Justice Board.--(1) Where a Board has been constituted for any district, such Board shall, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force but save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, have power to deal exclusively with all proceedings under this Act relating to juvenile in conflict with law.

(2) The powers conferred on the Board by or under this Act may also be exercised by the High Court and the Court of Session, when the proceeding comes before them in appeal, revision or otherwise.

11. Section 49 of 2000 Act deals with presumption and determination of age. This Section reads as under:

"49 . Presumption and determination of age.--(1) Where it appears to a competent authority that person brought before it under any of the provisions of this Act (otherwise than for the purpose of giving evidence) is a juvenile or the child, the competent authority shall make due inquiry so as to the age of that person and for that purpose shall take such evidence as may be necessary (but not an affidavit)and shall record a finding whether the person is a juvenile or the child or not, stating his age as nearly as may be.

(2) No order of a competent authority shall be deemed to have become invalid merely by any subsequent proof that the person in respect of whom the order has been made is not a juvenile or the child, and the age recorded by the competent authority to be the age of person so brought before it, shall for the purpose of this Act, be deemed to be the true age of that person."

12. Sections 52 and 53 deal with appeals and revision. Section 54 provides for procedure in inquiries, appeals and revision proceedings, which reads as follows:

52. Appeals.--

Subject to the provisions of this section, any person aggrieved by an order made by a competent authority under this Act may, within thirty days from the date of such order, prefer an appeal to the Court of Session: Provided that the Court of Session may entertain the appeal after the expiry of the said period of thirty days if it is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from filing the appeal in time.

(2) No appeal shall lie from--

(a) any order of acquittal made by the Board in respect of a juvenile alleged to have committed an offence; or

b) any order made by a Committee in respect of a finding that a person is not a neglected juvenile.

(3) No second appeal shall lie from any order of the Court of Session passed in appeal under this section.

53. Revision.--The High Court may, at any time, either of its own motion or on an application received in this behalf, call for the record of any proceeding in which any competent authority or Court of Session has passed an order for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any such order and may pass such order in relation thereto as it thinks fit: Provided that the High Court shall not pass an order under this section prejudicial to any person without giving him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

"S.54 . Procedure in inquiries, appeals and revision proceedings.--(1)Save as otherwise expressly provided by this Act, a competent authority while holding any inquiry under any of the provisions of this Act, shall follow such procedure as may be prescribed and subject thereto, shall follow, as far as may be, the procedure laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) for trials in summons cases.

(2) Save as otherwise expressly provided by or under this Act, the procedure to be followed in hearing appeals or revision proceedings under this Act shall be, as far as practicable, in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973(2 of 1974)."

13. In the State of U.P., in exercise of power conferred under Section 68 of the Juvenile Justice Care and Protection 2000 Act (Act No.56 of 2000), Rules have been framed known as, the U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004 (herein-after to be referred to as the 'U.P. Rules'). The relevant Rule for the purpose of consideration of issue raised before us is Rule 22. Rule 22 reads as follows:

"22. Procedure to be followed by a Board in holding inquiries and the determination of age.-

(1) In all cases under the Act the proceedings shall be conducted in as simple a manner as possible and care shall be taken to ensure that the juvenile or child against whom the proceedings have been instituted is given home like atmosphere during the proceedings.

(2) When witnesses are produced for examination, the Board shall be free to use the power under Section 165 of the Indian Evidence At, 1872, (Act No.1 of 1872), to question them so as to bring out any point that may go in favour of the juvenile or the child.

(3) While examining a juvenile or child and recording his statement, the competent authority shall be free to address the juvenile or child in any manner that may seem suitable, in order to put the juvenile or child at ease and to elicit the true facts, not only in respect of the offence of which the juvenile or child is accused, but also in respect of the home and social surroundings and the influence to which the juvenile or child might have been subjected.

(4) The record of the examination shall be in such form as the Board may consider suitable having record to the contents of the statement and circumstances in which it was made.

(5) In every case concerning a juvenile or child, the Board shall either obtain-

(i) a birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority;

Or

(ii) a date of birth certificate from the school first attended; or

(iii) matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and

(iv) in the absence of (i) to (iii) above, the medical opinion by a duly constituted Medical Board, subject to a margin of one year, in deserving cases for the reasons to be recorded by such Medical Board, regarding his age and, when passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age.

(6) The State Government shall recognize voluntary organizations, which have 10 years experience of child welfare to supervise and submit periodical reports, as directed by the Board regarding the orders passed under Clauses (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) of Section 15 of the Act.

(7) The Board shall, in Form-I, order a Probation Officer, or otherwise to conduct a special investigation, reporting on the character and antecedents of the juvenile or child with a view to assess the best possible mode for placement, such as, with the family, an institution or otherwise permissible under the Act.

(8_ When a juvenile or child is placed under the care of a parent or a guardian and the Board considers it expedient to place the juvenile or child under the supervision of a probation officer, it shall issue a supervision order in Form-II.

(9) The competent authority may, while making an order placing a juvenile under the care of a parent, guardian or fit person, as the case may be, direct such parent, guardian or fit person to enter into a bond in Form IV with or without sureties.

(10) Whenever the Board orders a juvenile or child to be kept in an institution, it shall forward to the Superintendent of such institution a copy of its order, in Form III with particulars of the home and parents or guardian and previous record.

(11) The juvenile or child shall be lodged in a home closest to place where he belongs.

(12) The Superintendent of an institution, certified as special home under sub-section (2) of Section 9 of the Act, shall be informed in advance by the Board before any juvenile or child is committed to it.

(13) The Superintendent of the said institution may, on receipt of the information, intimation in writing objections, if any, to the committal of the juvenile or child and the objections shall be taken into consideration by the Board before the juvenile or child is committed to the said institution.

(14) In case the Board orders the parent of the juvenile or child, or the juvenile or child to pay a fine, the amount realized shall be deposited in Government Treasury."

14. By Act 33 of 2006, the Parliament brought significant changes in 2000 Act. Section 7A provides for procedure to be followed when claim of juvenility is raised before any court. Section 20 dealt with pending cases. It reads as follows:

"S.7A. Procedure to be followed when claim of juvenility is raised before any court.--(1) Whenever a claim of juvenility is raised before any court or a court is of the opinion that an accused person was a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, the court shall make an inquiry, take such evidence as may be necessary (but not an affidavit) so as to determine the age of such person, and shall record a finding whether the person is a juvenile or a child or not, stating his age as nearly as may be:

Provided that a claim of juvenility may be raised before any court and it shall be recognised at any stage, even after final disposal of the case, and such claim shall be determined in terms of the provisions contained in this Act and the rules made thereunder, even if the juvenile has ceased to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act.

(2) If the court finds a person to be a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence under sub-section (1), it shall forward the juvenile to the Board for passing appropriate orders and the sentence, if any, passed by a court shall be deemed to have no effect.

20. Special provision in respect of pending cases.--Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any court in any area on the date on which this Act comes into force in that area, shall be continued in that court as if this Act had not been passed and if the court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, forward the juvenile to the Board which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile in accordance with the provisions of this Act as if it had been satisfied on inquiry under this Act that a juvenile has committed the offence.

Provided that the Board may, for any adequate and special reason to be mentioned in the order, review the case and pass appropriate order in the interest of such juvenile.

Explanation.--In all pending cases including trial, revision, appeal or any other criminal proceedings in respect of a juvenile in conflict with law, in any court, the determination of juvenility of such a juvenile shall be in terms of clause (l) of section 2, even if the juvenile ceases to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act and the provisions of this Act shall apply as if the said provisions had been in force, for all purposes and at all material times when the alleged offence was committed.] "

15. The provisions of Act No.33 of 2006 also introduces Section 20 in reference to pending cases by providing a clear cut provision that notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any Court or in any area on the date on which this Act comes into force in that area, shall be continued in that Court as if this Act had not been passed and if the Court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, forward the juvenile to the Board which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile in accordance with the provisions of this Act as if it had been satisfied on inquiry under this Act that a juvenile has committed the offence. A proviso has also been added that the Board may, for any adequate and special reason to be mentioned in the order, review the case and pass appropriate order in the interest of such juvenile. The explanation provided to the same clearly proceeds to make a mention that in all pending cases including trial, revision, appeal or any other criminal proceedings in respect of a juvenile in conflict with law, in any Court, the determination of juvenility of such a juvenile shall be in terms of clause (l) of section 2, even if the juvenile ceases to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act and the provisions of this Act shall apply as if the said provisions had been in force, for all purposes and at all material times when the alleged offence was committed.

16. On the parameters of the provisions that have been quoted above, the issue in question is being answered.

17. From the perusal of the provisions that have been quoted above, it is clearly reflected that under '2000 Act', the inquiry in respect of the claim of juvenility was required to be conducted by the Competent Authority having jurisdiction over the proceedings and by means of Act No.33 of 2006 Section 7-A has been introduced in the '2000 Act', wherein for the first time in reference of claim of juvenility, which has been permitted to be raised before any Court or where is the Court is of the opinion that an accused person was juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, the Court is entitled to make an enquiry, take such evidence as may be necessary (but not an affidavit) so as to determine the age of such person, and shall record a finding whether the person is a juvenile or a child or not, stating his age as nearly as may be. A proviso has been added to the same clearly providing that the claim of juvenility may be raised before any Court and it is to be recognised at any stage, even after final disposal of the case, and such claim shall be determined in terms of the provisions contained in the Act and the Rules made thereunder, even if the juvenile has ceased to be so on or before the date of commencement of the Act. Sub-Section 2 of Section 7-A clearly mentions that if the Court finds a person to be a juvenile on the date of commission of the offence under sub-section (1), it shall forward the juvenile to the Board for passing appropriate orders, and the sentence, if any, passed by a court shall be deemed to have no effect.

18. Thus this particular provision clearly entitles the Court to answer the issue of juvenility on being raised before the Court or even otherwise when Court is of the opinion that an accused person was juvenile on the date of commission of the offence, the Court shall make an enquiry and proceed accordingly.

19. By insertion of section 7-A, the legislative intent was clear inasmuch as the claim of juvenility could be raised before any Court and at any stage, and the Court was conferred power to make an enquiry by taking such evidence as may be necessary to determine the age of such person with a rider that such claim shall be determined in terms of the provisions contained in the Act and the Rules made thereunder. To confer power to the Central Govt. to frame model rules to carry out the purposes of the Act, a proviso to sub section (1) of section 68 was inserted by Act No.33 of 2006. The amended sub section (1) to section 68 along with its proviso reads as under:

"68. Power to make rules.--(1) The State Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

Provided that the Central Government may, frame model rules in respect of all or any of the matters with respect to which the State Government may make rules under this section, and where any such model rules have been framed in respect of any such matter, they shall apply to the State until the rules in respect of the matter is made by the State Government and while making such rules, so far as practicable, they conform to such model rules."

20. Prior to the insertion of the proviso to sub section (1) of section 68 as well as sub section (3) of section 68 by Act No.33 of 2006, there was no provision enabling the Central Govt. to frame model rules in respect of all or any of the matters with respect to which the State Govt. could make rules under the said section. As a result by taking the aid of section 70, which enabled the Central Govt. to remove difficulties, Model Rules were framed in the year 2000, the validity of the same came for consideration before a 5 judges Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Pratap Singh v. State of Jharkhand: (2005) 3 SCC 551. Hon'ble S. B. Sinha, J., one of the members of that Bench, in a separate judgment, partly dissenting from the majority view, discarded the Model Rules by holding that it had no statutory backing and held that the court thus would be entitled to apply the ordinary rules of evidence for the purpose of determining the age of the juvenile taking into consideration the provisions of section 35 of the Indian Evidence Act. The relevant observations are contained in paragraphs 107 to 112 of the report, which reads as under:

"107. We, however, do not agree that the Model Rules have been framed in terms of the provisions of the Act so as to attract the principles that rules validly framed are to be treated as part of the Act. It is one thing that the rules validly framed are to be treated as part of the Act as has been held in Chief Forest Conservator (Wildlife) v. Nisar Khan and National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh but the said principle has no application herein as in terms of the provisions of the said Act, the Central Government does not have any authority to make any rules. In the absence of any rule-making power it cannot refer to the omnibus clause of power to remove difficulty inasmuch as it has not been stated that framing of any model rule is permissible if a difficulty arises in giving effect to the provision of the Act. The Central Government is a statutory functionary. Its functions are circumscribed by Section 70 of the Act only. It has not been authorised to make any rule. Such rule-making power has been entrusted only to the State. The Central Government has, thus, no say in the matter nor can it exercise such power by resorting to its power "to remove difficulties". Rule-making power is a separate power which has got nothing to do with the power to remove difficulty. By reason of the power to remove difficulty or doubt, the Central Government has not been conferred with any legislative power. The power to remove doubt or difficulty

although is a statutory power but the same is not akin to a legislative power and, thus, thereby the provisions of the Act cannot be altered. [See Jalan Trading Co. (P) Ltd. v. Mill Mazdoor Union]

108. The age of the delinquent juvenile, therefore, cannot be determined in terms of Model Rule 62. Any law mandating the court to take into consideration certain documents over others in determining an issue, must be provided for only by law. Only a validly made law can take away the power of the court to appreciate evidence for the purpose of determination of such a question in the light of Section 35 of the Indian Evidence Act. It cannot be done by the Central Government in exercise of the executive power (See Union of India v. Naveen Jindal and State of U.P. v. Johri Mal.)

109. In Birad Mal Singhvi v. Anand Purohit this Court held:

"To render a document admissible under Section 35, three conditions must be satisfied, firstly, entry that is relied on must be one in a public or other official book, register or record; secondly, it must be an entry stating a fact in issue or relevant fact; and thirdly, it must be made by a public servant in discharge of his official duty, or any other person in performance of a duty specially enjoined by law. An entry relating to date of birth made in the school register is relevant and admissible under Section 35 of the Act but the entry regarding the age of a person in a school register is of not much evidentiary value to prove the age of the person in the absence of the material on which the age was recorded."

110. In Sushil Kumar v. Rakesh Kumar this Court as regards determination of age of a candidate in terms of Section 36(2) of the Representation of the People Act, 1951 observed:

"32. The age of a person in an election petition has to be determined not only on the basis of the materials placed on record but also upon taking into consideration the circumstances attending thereto. The initial burden to prove the allegations made in the election petition although was upon the election petitioner but for proving the facts which were within the special knowledge of the respondent, the burden was upon him in terms of Section 106 of the Evidence Act. It is also trite that when both parties have adduced evidence, the question of the onus of proof becomes academic [see Union of India v. Sugauli Sugar Works (P) Ltd. and Cox and Kings (Agents) Ltd. v. Workmen]. Furthermore, an admission on the part of a party to the lis shall be binding on him and in any event a presumption must be made that the same is taken to be established."

This Court therein followed, inter alia, Birad Mal Singhvi v. Anand Purohit and several other decisions.

111. The Court, therefore, must determine the age of the appellant herein keeping in view our aforementioned findings that the relevant date for reckoning the age of the juvenile would be the date of occurrence and not the date on which he was produced before the Board.

112. The upshot of the aforementioned discussions is:

(i) In terms of the 1986 Act, the age of the offender must be reckoned from the date when the alleged offence was committed.

(ii) The 2000 Act will have a limited application in the cases pending under the 1986 Act.

(iii) The Model Rules framed by the Central Government having no legal force cannot be given effect to.

(iv) The court, thus, would be entitled to apply the ordinary rules of evidence for the purpose of determining the age of the juvenile taking into consideration the provisions of Section 35 of the Indian Evidence Act."

21. It appears that the amendment brought by Act No.33 of 2006 was to obviate the outcome of the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Pratap Singh (supra), as has been observed by the Apex Court in the case of Hari Ram v. State of Rajasthan:(2009) 13 SCC 211 as follows:

Section 7-A makes provision for a claim of juvenility to be raised before any Court at any stage, even after final disposal of a case and sets out the procedure which the Court is required to adopt, when such claim of juvenility is raised. It provides for an inquiry, taking of evidence as may be necessary (but not affidavit) so as to determine the age of a person and to record a finding whether the person in question is a juvenile or not. The aforesaid provisions were, however, confined to Courts, and proved inadequate as far as the Boards were concerned. Subsequently, in the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007, which is a comprehensive guide as to how the provisions of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, are to be implemented, Rule 12 was introduced providing the procedure to be followed by the Courts, the Boards and the Child Welfare Committees for the purpose of determination of age in every case concerning a child or juvenile or a juvenile in conflict with law. Since the aforesaid provisions are interconnected and lay down the procedures for determination of age, the said Rule is reproduced hereinbelow:

"12. Procedure to be followed in determination of Age.- (1) In every case concerning a child or a juvenile in conflict with law, the court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee referred to in rule 19 of these rules shall determine the age of such juvenile or child or a juvenile in conflict with law within a period of thirty days from the date of making of the application for that purpose.

(2) The Court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall decide the juvenility or otherwise of the juvenile or the child or as the case may be the juvenile in conflict with law, prima facie on the basis of physical appearance or documents, if available, and send him to the observation home or in jail.

(3) In every case concerning a child or juvenile in conflict with law, the age determination inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee by seeking evidence by obtaining –

(a)(i) the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and in the absence whereof;

(ii) the date of birth certificate from the school (other than a play school) first attended; and in the absence whereof;

(iii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(b) and only in the absence of either

(i), (ii) or (iii) of clause (a) above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted Medical Board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or child.

In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, the Court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee, for the reasons to be recorded by them, may, if considered necessary, give benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his/her age on lower side within the margin of one year. and, while passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available, or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age and either of the evidence specified in any of the clauses (a)(i), (ii), (iii) or in the absence whereof, clause (b) shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or the juvenile in conflict with law.

(4) if the age of a juvenile or child or the juvenile in conflict with law is found to be below 18 years on the date of offence, on the basis of any of the conclusive proof specified in sub-rule (3), the Court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall in writing pass an order stating the age and declaring the status of juvenility or otherwise, for the purpose of the Act and these rules and a copy of the order shall be given to such juvenile or the person concerned.

(5) Save and except where, further inquiry or otherwise is required, inter alia in terms of section 7A, section 64 of the Act and these rules, no further inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board after examining and obtaining the certificate or any other documentary proof referred to in sub-rule (3) of this rule.

(6) The provisions contained in this rule shall also apply to those disposed of cases, where the status of juvenility has not been determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sub-rule (3) and the Act, requiring dispensation of the sentence under the Act for passing appropriate order in the interest of the juvenile in conflict with law."

Sub-Rules (4) and (5) of Rule 12 are of special significance in that they provide that once the age of a juvenile or child in conflict with law is found to be less than 18 years on the date of offence on the basis of any proof specified in sub- rule (3) the Court or the Board or as the case may be the Child Welfare Committee appointed under Chapter IV of the Act, has to pass a written order stating the age of the juvenile or stating the status of the juvenile, and no further inquiry is to be conducted by the Court or Board after examining and obtaining any other documentary proof referred to in Sub-rule (3) of Rule 12. Rule 12, therefore, indicates the procedure to be followed to give effect to the provisions of Section 7A when a claim of juvenility is raised.

One of the problems which has frequently arisen after the enactment of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, is with regard to the application of the definition of "juvenile" under Section 2(k) and (l) in respect of offences alleged to have been committed prior to 1st April, 2001 when the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000 came into force, since under the 1986 Act, the upper age limit for male children to be considered as juveniles was 16 years. The question which has been frequently raised is, whether a male person who was above 16 years on the date of commission of the offence prior to 1st April, 2001, would be entitled to be considered as a juvenile for the said offence if he had not completed the age of 18 years on the said date. In other words, could a person who was not a juvenile within the meaning of the 1986 Act when the offence was committed, but had not completed 18 years, be governed by the provisions of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, and be declared as a juvenile in relation to the offence alleged to have been committed by him?

Read with Sections 2(k), 2(l), 7A and Rule 12, Section 20 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, as amended in 2006, is probably the Section most relevant in setting at rest the question raised in this appeal, as it deals with cases which were pending on 1st April, 2001, when the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, came into force. The same is, accordingly, reproduced hereinbelow :

"20. Special provision in respect of pending cases.-Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any court in any area on the date on which this Act comes into force in that area, shall be continued in that court as if this Act had not been passed and if the court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, forward the juvenile to the Board which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile in accordance with the provisions of this Act as if it had been satisfied on inquiry under this Act that a juvenile has committed the offence.

[Provided that the Board may, for any adequate and special reason to be mentioned in the order, review the case and pass appropriate order in the interest of such juvenile.

Explanation.- In all pending cases including trial, revision, appeal or any other criminal proceedings in respect of a juvenile in conflict with law, in any court, the determination of juvenility of such a juvenile shall be in terms of clause (1) of section 2, even if the juvenile ceases to be so on or before the date of commencement of this Act and the provisions of this Act shall apply as if the said provisions had been in force, for all purposes and at all material times when the alleged offence was committed.]"

The Proviso and the Explanation to Section 20 were added by Amendment Act 33 of 2006, to set at rest any doubts that may have arisen with regard to the applicability of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, to cases pending on 1st April, 2001, where a juvenile, who was below 18 years at the time of commission of the offence, was involved. The Explanation which was added in 2006, makes it very clear that in all pending cases, which would include not only trials but even subsequent proceedings by way of revision or appeal, the determination of juvenility of a juvenile would be in terms of Clause (l) of Section 2, even if the juvenile ceased to be a juvenile on or before 1st April, 2001, when the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, came into force, and the provisions of the Act would apply as if the said provision had been in force for all purposes and for all material times when the alleged offence was committed. In fact, Section 20 enables the Court to consider and determine the juvenility of a person even after conviction by the regular Court and also empowers the Court, while maintaining the conviction, to set aside the sentence imposed and forward the case to the Juvenile Justice Board concerned for passing sentence in accordance with the provisions of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000.

At this point it may be noted that the decision of the Constitution Bench in Pratap Singh's case (supra) was rendered at a point of time when the amendments to Sections 2(l) and 20 and the introduction of Section 7-A had not yet been effected, nor was Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules available. Several decisions on the applicability of the 2000 Act to children who were above 16 but below 18 years on the date of commission of the offence have been rendered after the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, came into force and several others were rendered after the amendments were introduced in the said Act by Amendment Act 33 of 2006 and the introduction of the 2007 Rules. The decisions rendered by this Court and the High Courts prior to 1st April, 2001, when the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, came into force and thereafter can, therefore, be divided into two groups. The decision in Pratap Singh's case (supra) and in the case of Munney @ Rahat Jan Khan vs. State of U.P. [(2006) 12 SCC 697] fall into the first category, whereas the decisions in Jameel vs. State of Maharashtra [(2007) 11 SCC 420], Vimal Chadha vs. Vikas Chaudhary [(2008) 8 SCALE 608], Babloo Pasi vs. State of Jharkhand [(2008) 13 SCALE 137] and Ranjit Singh vs. State of Haryana [(2008) 9 SCC 453] fall into the second category. Although, the Constitution Bench decision in Pratap Singh's case (supra) and Munney's case (supra) are not really relevant since they have been rendered prior to 22nd August, 2006, when the Amending Act 33 of 2006 came into force, they assume a modicum of significance since they have been referred to and relied upon even after the Amending Act and the 2007 Rules came into force on 22.8.2006 and 26.10.2007, respectively.

28. Of the decisions rendered after the amendments effected in 2006 to the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, the first decision of note is that of Jameel's case (supra) rendered on 16.1.2007 wherein the amendments to the Act effected by the Amendment Act 33 of 2006, which came into effect on 22.8.2006, were not even noticed. The next decision rendered on 27.5.2008 is in the case of Vimal Chadha's case (supra), wherein, although, the amendment of the Act and the introduction of the Juvenile Justice Rules, 2007, were brought to the notice of the Court, the same were not considered and the decision was rendered in the light of the decision rendered in Pratap Singh's case (supra) and other cases decided prior to 1.4.2001.

The next decision rendered on the same point on 11.9.2008 was the decision in Ranjit Singh's case (supra) wherein also the amendments to Section 2(l) and 20 and the introduction of Section 7-A in the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000, and the introduction of the 2007 Rules had not been considered and the decision passed sub silentio.

22. In fact, after the amendment, the Central Govt. made and notified the Rules, 2007, vide notification dated 26.10.2007, and those Rules came into effect from the date of the publication of notification in the Gazette of India, (Extra.), Part II, Section 3(i), dt. 26.10.2007.

23. The relevant provisions governing the procedure to be followed in determination of age of a juvenile in conflict with law is contained in Rule 12, which provides for as follows:

"12. Procedure to be followed in determination of Age.--(1) In every case concerning a child or a juvenile in conflict with law, the court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee referred to in Rule 19 of these rules shall determine the age of such juvenile or child or a juvenile in conflict with law within a period of thirty days from the date of making of the application for that purpose.

(2) The court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall decide the juvenility or otherwise of the juvenile or the child or as the case may be the juvenile in conflict with law, prima facie on the basis of physical appearance or documents, if available, and send him to the observation home or in jail.

(3) In every case concerning a child or juvenile in conflict with law, the age determination inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee by seeking evidence by obtaining—

(a)(i) the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and in the absence whereof;

(ii) the date of birth certificate from the school (other than a play school) first attended; and in the absence whereof;

(iii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(b) and only in the absence of either (i), (ii) or (iii) of clause (a) above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted Medical Board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or child. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, the Court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee, for the reasons to be recorded by them, may, if considered necessary, give benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his/her age on lower side within the margin of one year.

and, while passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available, or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age and either of the evidence specified in any of the clauses (a)(i), (ii), (iii) or in the absence whereof, clause (b) shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or the juvenile in conflict with law.

(4) If the age of a juvenile or child or the juvenile in conflict with law is found to be below 18 years on the date of offence, on the basis of any of the conclusive proof specified in sub-rule (3), the court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall in writing pass an order stating the age and declaring the status of juvenility or otherwise, for the purpose of the Act and these rules and a copy of the order shall be given to such juvenile or the person concerned.

(5) Save and except where, further inquiry or otherwise is required, inter alia, in terms of Section 7-A, Section 64 of the Act and these rules, no further inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board after examining and obtaining the certificate or any other documentary proof referred to in sub-rule (3) of this rule.

(6) The provisions contained in this rule shall also apply to those disposed of cases, where the status of juvenility has not been determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sub-rule (3) and the Act, requiring dispensation of the sentence under the Act for passing appropriate order in the interest of the juvenile in conflict with law."

24. Rule 96 of the Central Rules provides that until the new rules conforming to these rules are framed by the State Govt. concerned under Section 68 of the 2000 Act, the Central Rules shall mutatis mutandis apply in that State.

25. Rule 97 of the Central Rules provides that all pending cases, which have not received finality, shall be dealt with and disposed of in terms of the provisions of the Act and the rules made thereunder. For convenience Rule 97 of the Central Rules is being extracted herein below:

"97. Pending Cases.--(1) No juvenile in conflict with law or a child shall be denied the benefits of the Act and the rules made thereunder.

(2) All pending cases which have not received a finality shall be dealt with and disposed of in terms of the provisions of the Act and the rules made thereunder.

(3) Any juvenile in conflict with law, or a child shall be given the benefits under sub-rule (1) of this rule, and it is hereby clarified that such benefits shall be made available to all those accused who were juvenile or a child at the time of commission of an offence, even if they cease to be a juvenile or a child during the pendency of any inquiry or trial.

(4) While computing the period of detention or stay or sentence of a juvenile in conflict with law or of a child, all such period which the juvenile or the child has already spent in custody, detention, stay or sentence of imprisonment shall be counted as a part of the period of stay or detention or sentence of imprisonment contained in the final order of the court or the Board."

26. The Apex Court in the case of Ashwani Kumar Saxena vs. State of M.P. 2012 Law Suit (SC) 607 decided on 13.10.2012, after considering various judgements as well as the scope of Section 7-A of the Act, 2000 as also Rule 12 of the Rules, 2007, observed as follows:

"23. We may in the light of the judgments referred to hereinbefore and the principles laid down therein while examining the scope of Section 7-A of the Act, Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules and Section 49 of the Act examine the scope and ambit of inquiry expected of a court, the Juvenile Justice Board and the Committee while dealing with a claim of juvenility.

24. We may, however, point out that none of the abovementioned judgments referred to earlier had examined the scope, meaning and content of Section 7-A of the Act, Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules and the nature of the inquiry contemplated in those provisions. For easy reference, let us extract Section 7-A of the Act and Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules:

"7-A. Procedure to be followed when claim of juvenility is raised before any court.--Already Quoted above

"12. Procedure to be followed in determination of age.--Already Quoted above"

25. Section 7-A, obliges the court only to make an inquiry, not an investigation or a trial, an inquiry not under the Code of Criminal Procedure, but under the JJ Act. The criminal courts, Juvenile Justice Board, committees, etc. we have noticed, proceed as if they are conducting a trial, inquiry, enquiry or investigation as per the Code. The statute requires the court or the Board only to make an "inquiry" and in what manner that inquiry has to be conducted is provided in the JJ Rules. Few of the expressions used in Section 7-A and Rule 12 are of considerable importance and a reference to them is necessary to understand the true scope and content of those provisions. Section 7-A has used the expressions "court shall make an inquiry", "take such evidence as may be necessary" and "but not an affidavit". The Court or the Board can accept as evidence something more than an affidavit i.e. the Court or the Board can accept documents, certificates, etc. as evidence, need not be oral evidence.

26. Rule 12 which has to be read along with Section 7-A has also used certain expressions which are also to be borne in mind. Rule 12(2) uses the expression "prima facie" and "on the basis of physical appearance" or "documents, if available". Rule 12(3) uses the expression "by seeking evidence by obtaining". These expressions in our view re-emphasise the fact that what is contemplated in Section 7-A and Rule 12 is only an inquiry. Further, the age determination inquiry has to be completed and age be determined within thirty days from the date of making the application; which is also an indication of the manner in which the inquiry has to be conducted and completed. The word "inquiry" has not been defined under the JJ Act, but Section 2(y) of the JJ Act says that all words and expressions used and not defined in the JJ Act but defined in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), shall have the meanings respectively assigned to them in that Code.

27. Let us now examine the meaning of the words "inquiry", "enquiry", "investigation" and "trial" as we see in the Code of Criminal Procedure and their several meanings attributed to those expressions. "Inquiry" as defined in Section 2(g) CrPC reads as follows:

"2. (g) "inquiry' means every inquiry, other than a trial, conducted under this Code by a Magistrate or court;"

The word "enquiry" is not defined under the Code of Criminal Procedure which is an act of asking for information and also consideration of some evidence, may be documentary.

"Investigation" as defined in Section 2(h) CrPC reads as follows:

"2. (h) "investigation' includes all the proceedings under this Code for the collection of evidence conducted by a police officer or by any person (other than a Magistrate) who is authorised by a Magistrate in this behalf;"

The expression "trial" has not been defined in the Code of Criminal Procedure but must be understood in the light of the expressions "inquiry" or "investigation" as contained in Sections 2(g) and 2(h) of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

28. The expression "trial" has been generally understood as the examination by court of issues of fact and law in a case for the purpose of rendering the judgment relating to some offences committed. We find in very many cases that the court/the Juvenile Justice Board while determining the claim of juvenility forget that what they are expected to do is not to conduct an inquiry under Section 2(g) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, but an inquiry under the JJ Act, following the procedure laid down under Rule 12 and not following the procedure laid down under the Code.

29. The Code lays down the procedure to be followed in every investigation, inquiry or trial for every offence, whether under the Penal Code or under other penal laws. The Code makes provisions for not only investigation, inquiry into or trial for offences but also inquiries into certain specific matters. The procedure laid down for inquiring into the specific matters under the Code naturally cannot be applied in inquiring into other matters like the claim of juvenility under Section 7-A read with Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules. In other words, the law regarding the procedure to be followed in such inquiry must be found in the enactment conferring jurisdiction to hold the inquiry.

30. Consequently, the procedure to be followed under the JJ Act in conducting an inquiry is the procedure laid down in that statute itself i.e. Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules. We cannot import other procedures laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure or any other enactment while making an inquiry with regard to the juvenility of a person, when the claim of juvenility is raised before the court exercising powers under Section 7-A of the Act. In many of the cases, we have come across, it is seen that the criminal courts are still having the hangover of the procedure of trial or inquiry under the Code as if they are trying an offence under the penal laws forgetting the fact that the specific procedure has been laid down in Section 7-A read with Rule 12.

31. We also remind all courts/Juvenile Justice Boards and the Committees functioning under the Act that a duty is cast on them to seek evidence by obtaining the certificate, etc. mentioned in Rules 12(3)(a)(i) to (iii). The courts in such situations act as a parens patriae because they have a kind of guardianship over minors who from their legal disability stand in need of protection.

32. "Age determination inquiry" contemplated under Section 7-A of the Act read with Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules enables the court to seek evidence and in that process, the court can obtain the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available. Only in the absence of any matriculation or equivalent certificates, the court needs to obtain the date of birth certificate from the school first attended other than a play school. Only in the absence of matriculation or equivalent certificate or the date of birth certificate from the school first attended, the court needs to obtain the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat (not an affidavit but certificates or documents). The question of obtaining medical opinion from a duly constituted Medical Board arises only if the abovementioned documents are unavailable. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, then the court, for reasons to be recorded, may, if considered necessary, give the benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his or her age on lower side within the margin of one year.(Emphasis Supplied)

27. After observing as above, the Apex Court deprecated the practice of the courts in making a roving enquiry with regards to the correctness of the date of birth entered in matriculation or equivalent certificates or other documents unless those documents or certificates were fabricated or manipulated. The relevant observations of the apex court are contained below:

"Age determination inquiry contemplated under the JJ Act and the 2007 Rules has nothing to do with an enquiry under other legislations, like entry in service, retirement, promotion, etc. There may be situations where the entry made in the matriculation or equivalent certificates, date of birth certificate from the school first attended and even the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat may not be correct. But court, Juvenile Justice Board or a committee functioning under the JJ Act is not expected to conduct such a roving enquiry and to go behind those certificates to examine the correctness of those documents, kept during the normal course of business. Only in cases where those documents or certificates are found to be fabricated or manipulated, the court, the Juvenile Justice Board or the committee need to go for medical report for age determination.

We have come across several cases in which the trial courts have examined a large number of witnesses on either side including the conduct of ossification test and calling for odontology report, even in cases, where matriculation or equivalent certificate, the date of birth certificate from the school last or first attended, the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat are made available. We have also come across cases where even the courts in the large number of cases express doubts over certificates produced and carry on detailed probe which is totally unwarranted." (Emphasis Supplied)

28. Apex Court in the case of Abuzar Hossain @ Gautam Hussain vs. State of West Bengal in Criminal Appeal No.1193 of 2006 decided on 10.10.2012 has held as follows:

"Now, we summarise the position which is as under:

(i) A claim of juvenility may be raised at any stage even after final disposal of the case. It may be raised for the first time before this Court as well after final disposal of the case. The delay in raising the claim of juvenility cannot be a ground for rejection of such claim. The claim of juvenility can be raised in appeal even if not pressed before the trial court and can be raised for the first time before this Court though not pressed before the trial court and in appeal court.

(ii) For making a claim with regard to juvenility after conviction, the claimant must produce some material which may prima facie satisfy the court that an inquiry into the claim of juvenility is necessary. Initial burden has to be discharged by the person who claims juvenility.

(iii) As to what materials would prima facie satisfy the court and/or are sufficient for discharging the initial burden cannot be catalogued nor can it be laid down as to what weight should be given to a specific piece of evidence which may be sufficient to raise presumption of juvenility but the documents referred to in Rule 12(3)(a)(i) to (iii) shall definitely be sufficient for prima facie satisfaction of the court about the age of the delinquent necessitating further enquiry under Rule 12. The statement recorded under Section 313 of the Code is too tentative and may not by itself be sufficient ordinarily to justify or reject the claim of juvenility. The credibility and/or acceptability of the documents like the school leaving certificate or the voters' list, etc. obtained after conviction would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no hard and fast rule can be prescribed that they must be prima facie accepted or rejected. In Akbar Sheikh2 and Pawan8 these documents were not found prima facie credible while in Jitendra Singh10 the documents viz., school leaving certificate, marksheet and the medical report were treated sufficient for directing an inquiry and verification of the appellant's age. If such documents prima facie inspire confidence of the court, the court may act upon such documents for the purposes of Section 7A and order an enquiry for determination of the age of the delinquent.

(iv) An affidavit of the claimant or any of the parents or a sibling or a relative in support of the claim of juvenility raised for the first time in appeal or revision or before this Court during the pendency of the matter or after disposal of the case shall not be sufficient justifying an enquiry to determine the age of such person unless the circumstances of the case are so glaring that satisfy the judicial conscience of the court to order an enquiry into determination of age of the delinquent.

(v) The court where the plea of juvenility is raised for the first time should always be guided by the objectives of the 2000 Act and be alive to the position that the beneficent and salutary provisions contained in 2000 Act are not defeated by hyper-technical approach and the persons who are entitled to get benefits of 2000 Act get such benefits. The courts should not be unnecessarily influenced by any general impression that in schools the parents/guardians understate the age of their wards by one or two years for future benefits or that age determination by medical examination is not very precise. The matter should be considered prima facie on the touchstone of preponderance of probability.

(vi) Claim of juvenility lacking in credibility or frivolous claim of juvenility or patently absurd or inherently improbable claim of juvenility must be rejected by the court at threshold whenever raised."

29. The judgment in Ashwani Kumar Saxena's case (supra) has been consistently followed by the Apex Court in Jodhbir Singh v. State of Punjab: (2012) 13 SCC 591; Ranjeet Goswami v. State Of Jharkhand: (2014) 1 SCC 588; and Kulai Ibrahim @ Ibrahim v. State represented by the Inspector of Police, B-I, Bazar Police Station, Coimbatore: (2014) 12 SCC 332.

30. The law that emerges from the aforesaid statutory provisions and decision of the Apex Court is that where there are certificates available, as contemplated by Rule 12 (3) (a) (i) of the Rules, 2007, the date of birth entered in such certificate is to be accepted for determining the age of the juvenile in conflict with law and the other evidences including opinion of the medical board would not be required unless it is shown that those documents or certificates are fabricated or manipulated. The age determination inquiry is to be conducted as per the Rules, 2007 and not in any other manner provided for.

31. Rule 96 of the Rules, 2007 provides that until the new rules conforming to these rules are framed by the State Government concerned under Section 68 of the Act, 2000, the Rules, 2007 shall mutatis mutandis apply. Rule 97 of the said Rules provides that all pending cases which have not received a finality shall be dealt with and disposed of in terms of the provisions of the Act and the rules made thereunder.

32. The question that has been referred to above will get its reply from the aforementioned two provisions, inasmuch as, the provisions of U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004 (U.P. Rules) certainly will have to be in line with the provisions as are contained under Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2007 (Central Rules) and till the provisions of 'U.P. Rules' are not brought in line with the 'Central Rules' framed by the Central Government, the recourse to determine juvenility on the basis of the provisions as contained under U.P. Rules, cannot be subscribed. The U.P. Rules will have to be recast in tune with the Model Rules framed by the Central Government and commonly known as 'The Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2007' as Rule 96 of the Rules, 2007 clearly provides that until the new rules conforming to these rules are framed by the State Govt. concerned under Section 68 of the Act, 2000, the Rules, 2007 shall mutatis mutandis apply in that State, in view of this, as far as provision of U.P. Rules are concerned, till they are not revised in consonance with the provisions as are contained under Central Rules, the same cannot be made foundation and basis for determining juvenility and the Courts are duty bound to answer the question of juvenility strictly on the parameters of the provisions that are contained under Central Rules and not on any other parameters as has been provided for.

33. The procedure that has been provided for determining the question of juvenility under Central Rules as to how the question of juvenility is to be determined, the same will have a prevailing effect on U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2004 as the State of Uttar Pradesh has not framed any rule in tune with the Central Rules referred to above and Central Rule would apply for the inquiry to be held until Rules in this regard are framed by the State of Uttar Pradesh, in view of this, answer to the question posed i.e. "whether the U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2004 need be recast consequent upon addition of section 7-A of the Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (as amended by Act No. 33 of 2006)" is 'Yes' as the provisions of the U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2004 on its own after introduction of Section 7-A and keeping in view the provisions of the Central Rules until and unless it is not revamped and not at all brought in consonance with the provisions as are contained under the Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2007, the same cannot be subscribed and in view of this, same needs to be modified.

34. The answer to the second question i.e. "And in case it is found that they need not be recast whether the U.P. Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children)Rules 2004 framed by State Government or The Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2007 framed by the Central Government shall apply to the matter, in Uttar Pradesh" is that it needs to be modified and till it is not revamped, on the issue of juvenility being raised, the answer to the said question will have to be found on the parameters of the provisions as are contained under The Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Rules 2007 and the same shall apply to the matter in the State of Uttar Pradesh also.

35.The reference is accordingly answered. The Revision shall now be placed before the appropriate Bench according to roster for disposal in light of this judgement.

Criminal Misc. Bail Application No.- 16292 Of 2015

Counsel for the Respondent:

Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 — Ss. 2(viid), 9-A, 25-A & 37 — Controlled substance — Acetic Anhydride — Bail — Applicant sought bail in case involving recovery of 32.450 litres of Acetic Anhydride from six containers — Contention that "Acetic N hydride" referred in earlier Supreme Court judgment was different substance and no commercial quantity prescribed for Acetic Anhydride — Rejected — Held, Acetic Anhydride is a "controlled substance" notified under S. 2(viid) and regulated under S. 9-A; contravention punishable under S. 25-A — Acetic N hydride and Acetic Anhydride are one and same substance.

NDPS Act — Controlled substances — Acetic Anhydride — Use in manufacture of heroin — Acetic Anhydride widely used in illicit manufacture of heroin and brought within regulatory regime to implement international obligations and prevent narcotic trafficking — Considering percentage of Acetic Anhydride found in seized samples, approximately 11 kg heroin could be extracted from recovered quantity, far exceeding commercial quantity prescribed for heroin.

NDPS Act — Bail — Commercial quantity — Rigour of S. 37 — Where huge quantity of controlled substance capable of producing commercial quantity of heroin recovered, stringent conditions under S. 37 attracted — Court must be satisfied that accused is not guilty and is unlikely to commit offence while on bail — Such satisfaction absent in present case.

NDPS Act — Controlled substance — Distinction from narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances — Though Acetic Anhydride not included in Schedule of narcotic drugs or psychotropic substances, it is specifically notified as "controlled substance" under statutory notifications and 2013 Order issued under S. 9-A — Manufacture, possession, transport and trade thereof without authorization prohibited.

Bail — Recovery of huge quantity of contraband precursor — Seriousness of offence — Offences relating to narcotic drugs and controlled substances have grave societal impact affecting public health and economy — Recovery of large quantity of precursor chemical used for heroin manufacture constitutes serious offence disentitling accused from discretionary relief of bail.

In Result: Bail application rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Harsh Kumar, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned counsel for Union of India and perused the record.

2. Learned counsel for the applicant contended that the applicant has been falsely implicated for the recovery of 32.450 litres of Acetic Anhydride in six containers; that the recovery is alleged to have been made on 2.11.2014 from the two bags of applicant which was found to be Acetic Anhydride upon testing on the spot and was allegedly admitted to be so by the applicant; that manufacture, trade, commerce, possession and consumption of the recovered commodity without unique registration number has been prohibited by way of Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (Regulation of Controlled Substances) Order, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as "2013 Order") wherein in all the three Schedules-A, B & C the above commodity of Acetic anhydried has been mentioned at No.1 and its manufacture, distribution, sell, purchase, possession, storage, consumption as well as export and import is subject to control as specified in this 2013 Order; that no commercial quantity of above substance has been prescribed either in the N.D.P.S. Act or 2013 Order; that recovery of above narcotic substance has been falsely planted on applicant of which there is no independent witness; that Shafiq Khan, the witness of recovery has submitted an affidavit A-3 on 12.12.2014 stating that the arrest of and recovery from applicant was not made in his presence; that compliance of provisions of Section 50 of N.D.P.S. Act was not made; that the applicant has not committed any offence under Section 9A/25A of N.D.P.S. Act; that the case law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Kuldeep Singh and others, 2004 (2) SCC 590, is not applicable to the facts of this case as the commodity of contraband seized therein was altogether a different commodity of contraband from the commodity which is alleged to have been recovered from the applicant; that in above case 'Acetic N hydride' while in the present case 'Acetic Anhydride' was allegedly recovered which are two different commodities; that the progress of trial is very poor as despite framing of charges against sole accused, the applicant on 30.4.2015, only one witness has been produced for examination and there is no likelihood of early disposal of trial; that the applicant has no criminal history; that the applicant undertakes that he will not make misuse the liberty of bail; that the applicant is in custody since 2.11.2014.

3. Learned counsel for Union of India, Department of Narcotics vehemently opposed the prayer of bail and contended that due compliance of provisions of N.D.P.S. Act was made at the time of recovery; that huge quantity of narcotic substance has been recovered from the applicant, which may not be falsely planted; that above liquid form of narcotic is also used in manufacturing of Heroin and the percentage of Acetic Anhydride in the samples of six containers sent for chemical examination was found to be between 94.1% to 95.5% in each of the six samples taken out from the six containers; that the recovery has been made in presence of independent witness and the applicant has admitted the commission of crime due to greed of money in his statement U/s 67 of N.D.P.S. Act which is binding on him; that allegations about submission of any affidavit by Shafiq Khan on 22.12.2014 denying recovery in his presence are false and incorrect and no such affidavit was produced before the Sessions court, who has rejected bail application of applicant on 22.1.2015; that even if the applicant has obtained any such affidavit from Shafiq Khan by exerting his influence or under threat, the same is not admissible in evidence and may not be considered for disposal of bail application; that in the case of Union of India Vs. Kuldeep Singh and others (supra) the Apex Court taking note the volume of contraband article 880 litres of Acetic N hydride or Acetic Anhydride, held it to be sufficient for obtaining/extracting a quantity of 300 Kgs. of finished product of Heroin; that considering the percentage of Acetic Anhydride in the samples of each containers and considering the fact that 300 Kgs. Heroin could have been extracted out of 880 litres of Acetic Anhydride, from the recovered quantity of 32.450 litres, around 11.06 Kg. of Heroin could have been extracted which is much more than the commercial quantity of Heroin which is 250 gms. prescribed under the N.D.P.S. Act; that in this manner the applicant was carrying on commercial quantity of prohibited narcotics in liquid form which is used for manufacturing of Heroin; that Acetic Anhydride and Acetic N hydride are one and the same things and it will be incorrect to say that the material referred in the case of Union of India Vs. Kuldeep Singh and others (supra) is different material from that which has been recovered from the applicant and which has been brought under the category of prohibited substance by way of 2013 Order; that in view of provisions of Section 37 of N.D.P.S. Act, since there is nothing to believe that applicant was not involved in the crime and that in case of release, he will not involve in similar type of offences, his application for bail is liable to be rejected.

4. Upon hearing parties counsel, I find that Act No.61 of 1985 The Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 (hereinafter referred to as 'N.D.P.S. Act, 1985') was enacted on 16.9.1995 with following aims and objects:-

"An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to narcotic drugs, to make stringent provisions for the control and regulation of operations relating to narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances [to provide for the forfeiture of property derived from, or used in, illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances, to implement the provisions of the International Convention on Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances] and for matters connected therewith."

5. The above Act controls and regulates the operations relating to three types of contrabands viz. Narcotics Drugs, Psychotropic Substances and Controlled Substances, defined in Section 2(xiv)(xxiii) & (viid) which are as under:-

"2(xiv) "narcotic drug" means coca leaf, cannabis (hemp), opium, poppy straw and includes all manufactured goods;

(xxiii) "psychotropic substance" means any substance, natural or synthetic, or any natural material or any salt or preparation of such substance or material included in the list of psychotropic substances specified in the Schedule;

(viid) "controlled substance" means any substance which the Central Government may, having regard to the available information as to its possible use in the production or manufacture of narcotic drugs or psychotropic substances or to the provisions of any International Convention, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare to be a controlled substance."

6. The prohibited contraband "Acetic Anhydride" does not find place in the Schedule of N.D.P.S. Act, 1985. The Section 9A has been added in N.D.P.S. Act w.e.f. 29.5.1989 conferring power to control and regulate controlled substances. The exercise of powers conferred in Section 9A along with Section 25A prescribs punishment for contravention of orders, made under Section 9A. The provisions of Section 9A and Section 25A of N.D.P.S. Act, 1985 are as under:-

"9A. Power to control and regulate controlled substances.-(1) If the Central Government is of the opinion that, having regard to the use of any controlled substance in the production or manufacture of any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance, it is necessary or expedient so to do in the public interest, it may, by order, provide for regulating or prohibiting the production, manufacture, supply and distribution thereof and trade and commerce therein.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the power conferred by sub-section (1), an order made thereunder may provide for regulating by licences, permits or otherwise, the production, manufacture, possession, transport, import inter-State, export inter-State, sale, purchase, consumption, use, storage, distribution, disposal or acquisition of any controlled substance.

25A. Punishment for contravention of orders made under section 9A. -If any person contravenes an order made under section 9A, he shall be punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to ten years and shall also be liable to fine which may extend to one lakh rupees:*

Provided that the court may, for reasons to be recorded in the judgment, impose a fine exceeding one lakh rupees."

7. In exercise of powers conferred by Section 9A of N.D.P.S. Act, 1985 the '2013 Order' came into force w.e.f. 26.3.2013 prohibiting the manufacture, trade and commerce, possession and consumption of controlled substances as well as for transportation and selling of controlled substances mentioned in Schedule A and also prohibiting export and import of controlled substances mentioned in Schedules B & C. The above '2013 Order' consists three Schedules A, B & C and the controlled substance "Acetic Anhydride" is mentioned at no.1 in all the three schedules.

8. Considering the possible use of Acetic Anhydride in the production or manufacture of Heroin or Methaqualone and also to implement the provisions of United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances, 1988 vide Notification No.l50198E dated 24.3.1993, the Acetic Anhydride was brought within the definition of controlled substance under Section 2(viid) of N.D.P.S. Act. A list of controlled substances Notifications, issued under the N.D.P.S. Act 1985 is reproduced as under:-

Sl. No.	Substance	Gazette Notification and date
1	Acetic Anhydride	Controlled Notification No. S.O. 198(E), dated 24-03-1993
2	Ephedrine & its Salts	Controlled Notification No. S.O. 1296(E), dated 28-12-1999
3	Pseudoephedrine & its Salts	Controlled Notification No. S.O. 1296(E), dated 28-12-1999
4	N-Acetyl Anthranilic Acid	Controlled Notification No. S.O. 763(E), dated 24-10-1994
5	Anthranilic Acid	Controlled Notification No. S.O. 239(E), dated 26-02-2003

9. From above position of provisions of Act and Controlled Order with regard to Acetic Anhydride, it is absolutely clear that Acetic Anhydride had been defined as a controlled substance, even before '2013 Order' which came into force w.e.f. 26.3.2013. The argument of learned counsel for the applicant that since the case of "Union of India Vs. Kuldeep Singh and others (supra)" relates to an incident dated 12.12.1995 and was decided by the Apex Court on 8.12.2003 much before the '2013 Order' came into existence and that Acetic N hydride and Acetic Anhydride are different substance having no relevancy or applicability to the facts of the case, has no force.

10. It is pertinent to mention that a study of above controlled substances shows that:-

"Acetic anhydride, or ethanoic anhydride, is the chemical compound with the formula (CH3CO)2O. Commonly abbreviated Ac2O, it is the simplest isolable anhydride of a carboxylic acid and is widely used as a reagent in organic synthesis. It is a colorless liquid that smells strongly of acetic acid, which is formed by its reaction with moisture in the air.

Acetic anhydride was first synthesized in 1852 by the French chemist Charles Frederic Gerhardt (1816-1856) by heating potassium acetate with benzoyl chloride.

Because of its use for the synthesis of heroin by the diacetylation of morphine, acetic anhydride is listed as a U.S. DEA List II precursor, and restricted in many other countries."

11. In the case of Union of India Vs. Kuldeep Singh and others (supra), the accused was convicted under Section 9A/25A for recovery of 880 litres of Acetic N hydride from him and upon conviction was sentenced with 10 years rigorous imprisonment and Rs.1 lac fine. In appeal the High Court considering the plea that father of accused was a person of 85 years, mother had expired and the accused was not a habitual offender, reduced the sentence to the period of custody undergone which was taken to be 6½ years and fine was also reduced to Rs.25,000/-. In appeal by Union of India, the Apex Court setting aside the judgment passed by the High Court allowed the appeal and directed the accused to surrender to custody to suffer the remainder of the sentence as awarded by the trial court. Paras 16 to 25 of the above judgment and order of the Apex Court are being quoted as under:-

"16. Similar view has also been expressed in Ravji v. State of Rajasthan, (1996 (2) SCC 175). It has been held in the said case that it is the nature and gravity of the crime but not the criminal, which are germane for consideration of appropriate punishment in a criminal trial. The Court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which the criminal and victim belong. The punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality with which the crime has been perpetrated, the enormity of the crime warranting public abhorrence and it should "respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal".

17. An offence relating to narcotic drugs or psychotropic substances is more heinous than a culpable homicide because the latter affects only an individual while the former affects and leaves its deleterious impact on the society, besides shattering the economy of the nation as well. That the legislature intended to make the offences under the Act so serious to be dealt with sternly and with an iron hand is made clear by providing for enhanced penalties, including even death sentence, in certain class of cases, when convicted for the second time.

18. It is true as contended by learned counsel for the respondent- accused that no minimum sentence is prescribed, but the sentence imposed should fit in with the gravity of offence committed but in the teeth of the other indications in the enactment, mere absence of a provision for minimum sentence is no reason or justification to treat the offences under the Act as any less serious as assumed by the High Court. It was highlighted by learned counsel for the respondent that the Court had a discretion which according to him has been rightly exercised. The High Court seems to wholly misdirected itself not only as to the seriousness of the offences but also with reference to the relevant consideration which should weigh with the Court in exercising its discretion.

19. Discretion is to know through law what is just. Where a Judge has and exercises a judicial discretion his order is unappealable unless he did so under a mistake of law or fact or in disregard of principle, or after taking into account irrelevant matters. It will help to show this if it can be shown that there were no materials on which he could exercise his discretion in the way he did. Not any one of the reasons attempted to be enumerated by the High Court in this case could in law be viewed as either relevant or reasonable reasons carrying even any resemblance of nexus in adjudging the quantum of punishment in respect of an offence punishable under the Act.

20. When anything is left to any person, Judge or magistrate to be done according to his discretion, the law intends it must be done with sound discretion, and according to law. (See Tomlin's Law Dictionary) In its ordinary meaning, the word "discretion" signifies unrestrained exercise of choice or will; freedom to act according to one's own judgment; unrestrained exercise of will; the liberty of power of acting without other control than one's own judgment. But, when applied to public functionaries, it means a power or right conferred upon them by law, of acting officially in certain circumstances according to the dictates of their own judgment and conscience, uncontrolled by the judgment or conscience of others. Discretion is to discern between right and wrong; and therefore whoever hath power to act at discretion, is bound by the rule of reason and law. (See Tomlin's Law Dictionary).

21. Discretion, in general, is the discernment of what is right and proper. It denotes knowledge and prudence, that discernment which enables a person to judge critically of what is correct and proper united with caution; nice discernment, and judgment directed by circumspection; deliberate judgment; soundness of judgment; a science or understanding to discern between falsity and truth, between wrong and right, between shadow and substance, between equity and colorable glosses and pretences, and not to do according to the will and private affections of persons. When it is said that something is to be done within the discretion of the authorities, that something is to be done according to the rules of reason and justice, not according to private opinion; according to law and not humour. It is to be not arbitrary, vague, and fanciful, but legal and regular. And it must be exercised within the limit, to which an honest man, competent to the discharge of his office ought to confine himself (Per Lord Halsbury, L.C., in Sharp v. Wakefield, (1891) Appeal Cases 173). Also (See S.G. Jaisinghani v. Union of India and Ors. (AIR 1967 SC 1427).

22. The word "discretion" standing single and unsupported by circumstances signifies exercise of judgment, skill or wisdom as distinguished from folly, unthinking or haste; evidently therefore a discretion cannot be arbitrary but must be a result of judicial thinking. The word in itself implies vigilant circumspection and care; therefore where the legislature concedes discretion it also imposes a heavy responsibility. "The discretion of a Judge is the law of tyrants; it is always unknown. It is different in different men. It is casual, and depends upon constitution, temper, passion. In the best it is often times caprice; in the worst it is every vice, folly, and passion to which human nature is liable," said (Lord Camden, L.C.J., in Hindson and Kersey (1680) 8 How, St. Tr.57.)

23. If a certain latitude or liberty accorded by statute or rules to a judge as distinguished from a ministerial or administrative official, in adjudicating on matters brought before him, it is judicial discretion. It limits and regulates the exercise of the discretion, and prevents it from being wholly absolute, capricious, or exempt from review.

24. Such discretion is usually given on matters of procedure or punishment, or costs of administration rather than with reference to vested substantive rights. The matters which should regulate the exercise of discretion have been stated by eminent judges in somewhat different forms of words but with substantial identity. When a statute gives a judge a discretion, what is meant is a judicial discretion, regulated according to the known rules of law, and not the mere whim or caprice of the person to whom it is given on the assumption that he is discreet (Per Willes J. in Lee v Budge Railway Co., (1871) LR 6 CP 576, and in Morgan v. Morgan, 1869, LR 1 P & M 644).

25. As indicated supra, the discretion does not appear to have been judiciously and judicially exercised by the High Court in this case. When the volume of contraband articles is taken note of, it is sufficient for a conclusion that the quantity of finished product out of it which would have been extracted it would have been nearly 300 kilograms of heroine, and the accused would have got about forty kilograms as admitted by him. The disastrous effect (of this quantity of heroin) would be mind-boggling. The High Court seems to have been swayed by the age of accused's father, his family problems and more importantly he being not a "habitual offender". Such considerations are really meaningless when one considers the fact that the accused was in possession of contrabands which would have destroyed the health and mental equilibrium of thousands of people. The Court was not dealing with an accused charged with commission of any minor offence where he being not a habitual offender may have some relevance. But it is really inconsequential for a drug trafficker and smuggler. The reasons given by the High Court to reduce the sentence, according to us, have no foundation. The inevitable conclusion is that the appeal deserves to be allowed which we direct. To put it differently, the sentence imposed by the trial Court is restored. The respondent has been released pursuant to the High Court's judgment. He shall surrender to custody to suffer remainder of the sentence as awarded by the trial Court. The appeal is allowed."

12. There is nothing to show that Acetic N hydride and Acetic Anhydride are different substances and the learned counsel for the applicant has failed to show that Acetic N hydride or Acetic Anhydride was not in category of controlled substance prior to issuance of '1993 Notification' and '2013 Order'. It is pertinent to note that 'Acetic N Hydride' was not been within the category of controlled substance, or had it been different from 'Acetic Anhydride', there could have been no occasion for trial and conviction of Kuldeep Singh by trial court for recovery of its huge quantity on 12.12.1995 and confirmation on sentence by the Apex Court. It appears that in the judgment of the case of 'Union of India Vs. Kuldeep Singh and others (supra)', the spelling of the controlled substance of contraband, Acetic Anhydride has been mentioned as Acetic N hydride considering that 'N' is separate N from hydride and is not included in the spellings of Anhydride which does not make any difference. In above case, the Apex Court has considered the disastrous effect of the seized contraband 880 litres of Acetic N hydride (Acetic Anhydride) and has held that from such quantity of controlled substance in liquid a quantity of 300 Kg. of Heroin could have been extracted. In view of above observation made by the Apex Court, it may safely be accepted, as has been contended by Sri Sanjay Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the Union of India (Narcotics Department) that from above quantity of liquid controlled substance, approximately 1/3rd quantity of Heroin can be extracted and so from the recovered quantity of 32.450 litres approximately 11.06 Kg. of Heroin may be extracted. Undisputedly the commercial quantity of Heroin as prescribed in the N.D.P.S. Act is 250 gms. and so the above quantity of liquid controlled substance from which approximately 11 Kg. of Heroin could have been extracted, and which has been brought under the list of controlled substance vide control Notification in 1993 and further by '2013 Order', was recovered from the applicant. In view of recovery of such a huge quantity of controlled substance from applicant, it may be said that applicant has virtually been apprehended with recovery of 11 Kg. of Heroin (commercial quantity) for him. It is also contended that the applicant has been accused in murder case in reply to which the learned counsel for the applicant submitted that in above case he has been acquitted and also produced a certified copy of judgment and order dated 15.5.2009 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.11, Bareilly in S.T. No.794 of 2007 for perusal. However, learned counsel for the first informant states that merely due to the acquittal in the case based on circumstantial evidence, it may not be considered that the applicant is not a person of criminal antecedents.

13. Upon hearing learned counsel for the parties, perusal of record and considering the complicity of accused, recovery of commercial quantity of prohibited contraband/controlled substance, severity of punishment as well as totality of facts and circumstances, at this stage without commenting on the merits of the case, I do not find it a fit case for bail and the bail application of Deepak Kumar is liable to be rejected.

14. The bail application of applicant Deepak Kumar Singh in Case Crime No.06 of 2014, Complaint Case No.01 of 2015, under Sections 9A/25A N.D.P.S. Act, Central Narcotics Bureau, Lucknow, is rejected accordingly.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 482 — Quashing of summoning order — Scope of interference — Challenge to order rejecting final report and summoning accused in offences relating to alleged forged Will and fraudulent transfer of property — Held, at summoning stage Court is only required to ascertain existence of prima facie case and not conduct meticulous examination of evidence or adjudicate disputed questions of fact — Where Magistrate applied judicial mind and found sufficient ground to proceed, inherent jurisdiction under S. 482 CrPC not liable to be exercised. (Paras 4 to 8)

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 482 — Disputed questions of fact — Limitation on inherent jurisdiction — Dispute regarding genuineness and interpretation of Wills and extent of share in property involved complicated factual issues — Held, such matters are to be adjudicated during trial and not in proceedings under S. 482 CrPC. (Para 8)

Criminal Law — Simultaneous civil and criminal proceedings — Permissibility — Pendency of civil suit for cancellation of Will not a ground to quash criminal proceedings alleging fraud and forgery — Civil and criminal proceedings can continue simultaneously depending upon facts and circumstances of case. (Paras 9 & 10)

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 482 — Quashing — Principles governing — Case did not fall within categories warranting quashing as laid down in R.P. Kapur, Bhajan Lal and other precedents — Prayer for quashing summoning order rejected. (Para 11)

Bail — Interim protection — Direction to surrender — Applicants directed to surrender within thirty days and apply for bail — Trial court directed to consider bail expeditiously in light of settled principles — No coercive action directed for limited period. (Paras 12 & 13)

In Result: Prayer for quashing summoning order refused; applicants granted thirty days' protection to surrender and seek bail.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Vijay Lakshmi, J.)

1. The applicants by means of this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., have invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this Court with prayer to set aside the order dated 10.;6.2011 passed by Judicial Magistrate, IInd, Gyanpur, Sant Ravidas Nagar, in Case no. 547 of 2011 (State Vs. Hanuman Chaubey) under Sections 417, 419, 420, 421, 423, 466, 465, 467, 468 and 471 I.P.C. By the impugned order dated 10.6.2011, the learned Magistrate has rejected the Final Report submitted by the police, allowed the protest petition filed by the complainant and has summoned the applicants under the aforesaid sections.

2. Heard Mr. Radhey Shyam, learned counsel for the applicants, learned A.G.A. for the State and Mr. B.P. Mishra, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2.

3. To properly adjudicate the controversy involved in the present case, it is desirable to have a look on the pedigree of the parties which is given below :

/	/			/
Satya Narain	Raj Narain			Raj Kishore
Hanuman Chaubey
/	/	/	/	/
Sanjay Kumar	Radhey Shyam	Krishna Shyam	Sabhajeet	Sarvesh Kumar

4. The opposite party no. 2/the complainant Radhey Shyam, who is the eldest son of Raj Kishore, lodged an F.I.R. on 25.11.2008 by means of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. against Hanuman Chaubey and Sanjay Kumar (son and grandson respectively of Satya Narain) and two others (applicants no. 1 and 2 Shiv Devi and Gayatri Devi, who are the purchasers of disputed property), with allegations that in the family of three brothers consisting his father and two uncles, the second brother Raj Narain was unmarried and issueless, therefore, he bequeathed his share of property by a registered Will, in favour of sons of his two brothers, dividing it equally in 1/5 to each of them. (Copy of the Will is annexed as annexure no. 1 to the affidavit filed in support of instant application). On the basis of the aforesaid Will dated 14.8.1984 all the four brothers Radhey Shyam, Sabhajeet, Krishna Shyam and Sarvesh Kumar executed registered sale deed in favour of Panna Lal Vijay Nath and Sharad Prasad on 11.8.2000 as Sabhajeet was not present, he signed the registered sale deed on 28.7.2003. The applicant Hanuman Prasad Chaubey filed a partition suit in the civil court showing his half share in the property which was decreed ex-parte in his favour vide order dated 28.3.2005. Thereafter applicant Hanuman Prasad sold his half share in the property fraudulently, showing him to be the owner of half share of the property to Shiv Devi and Gayatri Devi (applicant nos. 1 and 2). In the meantime the son of Hanuman Prasad co-accused Sanjay Kumar, filed another registered Will dated 18.5.1985 alleging it to be the last Will executed by Raj Narain bequeathing his entire share of property to Sanjay Kumar. On the aforesaid facts it was prayed that the matter be investigated and the accused be punished.

5. On the said application, the Magistrate ordered that the case be registered and the matter be investigated. However, the police after investigation, submitted Final Report in the matter. The opposite party no. 2 filed a protest petition against the Final Report alleging that the I.O., without recording the statements of the complainant and the witnesses has submitted Final Report. The learned Magistrate after finding the aforesaid allegation to be true rejected the Final Report and summoned the applicants to face trial by impugned order dated 10.6.2011.

6. The legality and correctness of the aforesaid summoning order has been challenged by learned counsel for the applicants on the grounds that a suit for cancellation of registered Will dated 18.5.1985 had already been filed by complainant Radhey Shyam and his brothers on 14.12.2007 i.e. about one year prior to the filing of the present application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. which is still pending before the court below. But the present F.I.R. has been lodged by O.P. No. 2 during the pendency of the aforesaid civil suit only in order to build pressure on the accused-applicants. It is contended that the learned court below, without considering the aforesaid fact and without applying its judicial mind, has passed the summoning order arbitrarily and mechanically.

7. Learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 and learned A.G.A. have vehemently opposed the application.

8. In the counter affidavit filed by opposite party no. 2, it has been stated that the accused-applicants have not approached this Court with clean hands and they have willfully and deliberately concealed some material facts. It is submitted that in paras 8 and 25 of the affidavit filed in support of the application it has wrongly been mentioned by the applicants that no appeal was filed by opposite party no. 2 against the judgment and order dated 28.3.2005 passed by Civil Judge, Bhadohi whereas the true fact is that opposite party no. 2 had filed Misc. Appeal No. 78 of 2006 against the aforesaid ex-parte order dated 28.3.2005, which was allowed by judgment dated 27.9.2008 passed by Additional District Judge, Court no. 3, Gyanpur, Bhadohi and the ex-parte judgment was set aside. It has been stated that there is no such mention in the Will dated 14.8.1984, that half share belongs to Hanuman Chaubey. Property has been equally divided among all the brothers, therefore, he is entitled to only 1/5 share of the property. It has further been contended that the applicant Sanjay Kumar committed fraud by fabricating forged Will claiming entire share in the property, and on the basis of the aforesaid Will, got entered his name in the revenue records. On the aforesaid grounds it has been prayed that the application be dismissed.

9. In the rejoinder affidavit, the applicants have stated that the civil suit with regard to genuineness of that Will deed is subjudice before the competent court. However, the applicants have expressed the feeling of regret with regard to their mistake of not bringing on record the judgment dated 27.9.2008, whereby the ex-parte order dated 28.3.2005 passed in their favour was set aside.

10. Considered the submissions.

11. Whether the property was divided equally between all sons i.e. allotting 1/5th share to each of them and whether in two equal portions, allotting half to Hanuman Chaubey and half to the sons of Raj Kishor is a disputed question of fact which cannot be ascertained by this Court in the proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C. The impugned order shows that the learned Magistrate, finding a prima facie case against the applicants, has summoned them to face the trial.

12. The law regarding sufficiency of material which may justify the summoning of accused and also the court's decision to proceed against him in a given case is well settled. The court has to eschew itself from embarking upon a roving enquiry into the last details of the case. It is also not advisable to adjudge whether the case shall ultimately end in conviction or not. Only a prima facie satisfaction of the court about the existence of sufficient ground to proceed in the matter is required. The submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicants call for adjudication on pure questions of fact which may be adequately adjudicated upon only by the trial court and while doing so even the submissions made on points of law can also be more appropriately gone into by the trial court in this case. This Court does not deem it proper, and therefore cannot be persuaded to have a pre-trial before the actual trial begins.

13. So far as the argument of learned counsel for the applicants with regard to pendency of civil suit for cancellation of Will dated 18.5.1985 is concerned, it is well settled legal position that civil proceedings and criminal proceedings can proceed simultaneously.

14. In Kishan Singh (D) through I.Rs. Vs. Gurpal Singh and others; AIR 2010 SC 3624, the Hon'ble Supreme Court relying on the law laiddown in P. Swaroopa Rani V. M. Hari Narayana alias Hari Babu; AIR 2008 SC 1884 has held as under :

"It is, however, well settled that in a given case, civil proceedings and criminal proceedings can proceed simultaneously. Whether civil proceedings or criminal proceedings shall be stayed depends upon the fact and circumstances of each case.....Filing of an independent criminal proceeding, although initiated in terms of some observations made by the civil court, is not barred under any statute.....It goes without saying that the respondent shall be at liberty to take recourse to such a remedy which is available to him in law. We have interfered with the impugned order only because in law simultaneous proceedings of a civil and a criminal case is permissible."

15. In Sh. Vishnu Dutt Sharma Vs. Smt. Daya Sapra; (2009) 13 SCC 729, the Apex Court has held that :

"13. It is, however, well settled that in a given case, civil proceedings and criminal proceedings can proceed simultaneously. Whether civil proceedings or criminal proceedings shall be stayed depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case."

16. At this stage and I do not find any justification to quash the summoning order or the proceedings against the applicants arising out of them as the case does not fall in any of the categories recognized by the Apex Court in a catena of judgments i.e. R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 866, State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 426, State of Bihar Vs. P.P.Sharma, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 192, Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. Vs. Mohd. Saraful Haq and another (Para-10) 2005 SCC (Cr.) 283 and recently in A.R.C.I. Vs. Nimra Carglass Technics (P) Ltd. (2016) 1 SCC 348. which may justify its quashing.

17. Therefore, the prayer for quashing the summoning order is refused.

18. At this juncture, learned counsel for the applicants prayed that the applicants are ready to surrender before the court but some time may be granted to them for such purpose. In view of the above, it is directed that in case the applicants appear before the court concerned within thirty days from today and apply for bail, the same shall be heard and disposed of expeditiously by the courts below in view of the settled law laid by the Seven Judges' decision of this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P., 2005 Cr.L.J. 755 and affirmed by Hon'ble Apex Court in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P.

19. For the aforesaid period of 30 days no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants.

20. The application is accordingly disposed of.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 482 — Quashing of complaint proceedings — Forged Will and mutation dispute — Scope of interference — Complaint alleged that accused persons fabricated forged Will to deprive complainant of ancestral property and sought mutation in revenue records on basis thereof — Magistrate, after recording statements under Ss. 200 and 202 CrPC, summoned accused under Ss. 420, 467, 471, 447 and 448 IPC — Held, prima facie material disclosed commission of cognizable offences and proceedings not liable to be quashed in exercise of inherent jurisdiction.

Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 415 & 420 — Cheating — Ingredients — False representation and dishonest inducement — Applicants repeatedly moved applications before revenue authorities claiming exclusive rights in property on basis of alleged Will which was never produced before competent authority — Held, conduct disclosed prima facie dishonest intention and false representation aimed at depriving complainant of rightful share in ancestral property — Ingredients of cheating made out.

Evidence — Conduct of parties — Suppression and inconsistency — Applicants took contradictory stands regarding parentage and entitlement of complainant before different forums — Held, applicants had not approached Court with clean hands and their conduct supported prosecution allegations.

Criminal Law — Forged Will — Burden of proof — Where accused claimed exclusion of complainant from inheritance on basis of Will, burden lay upon them to produce and prove such document before competent authority — Failure to produce alleged Will despite reliance thereon created serious suspicion regarding genuineness of claim.

Criminal Law — Civil and criminal proceedings — Simultaneous continuation — Mere availability of civil remedy or existence of civil dispute regarding property does not bar criminal prosecution where allegations disclose ingredients of criminal offences — Civil and criminal proceedings may continue simultaneously.

Bail — Interim protection — Direction to surrender — Though applications under S. 482 CrPC dismissed, applicants granted thirty days' protection to surrender and seek bail — Trial court directed to consider bail expeditiously in accordance with settled law.

In Result: Applications dismissed; summoning order and criminal proceedings upheld; applicants granted thirty days' protection to surrender and apply for bail.

6. Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P.2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Vijay Lakshmi, J.)

1. As both these applications, arising out of the Case No. 955 of 2013, are related to the same occurrence and complainant is also the same, both are being disposed of by this common order.

2. Heard Sri Manish Tiwary, learned counsel for the applicants, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State and Sri Rajendra Pandey holding brief of Sri Rajeev Giri on behalf of opposite party no. 2. Perused the record.

3. By means of both these applications, all the applicants, who are close relatives, they being real brothers and nephews, have invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. with prayer to quash the entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 955 of 2013 (Hrishikesh Tripathi Vs. Krishna Bihari and others) under Sections 420, 467, 468 and 471 I.P.C., Police Station Nawabganj, district Allahabad pending in the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 10, Allahabad.

4. Some background facts, in brief, are that the applicants were six brothers in all, namely (i) Late Keshav Bihari, (ii) Late Mukund Bihari, (iii) Late Shyam Bihari, (iv) Krishna Bihari, (v) Awadh Bihari and (vi) Janardan Prasad. Opposite party no. 2 is the elder son of Late Keshav Bihari, the eldest brother. An application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was filed by opposite party no. 2 against the applicants with allegations that the accused/applicants were continuously harassing him and his family members in order to deprive them of their share in the ancestral property. In the year 1985, they had made an attempt to kill the applicant by firing on him, for which a case under Section 307 and 337 of I.P.C. was registered against them as Case Crime No. 248 of 1985. It was further alleged that the grandfather and grandmother of opposite party no. 2 Late Shambhu Nath Tiwari and Ganga Devi, had agricultural land in their names in the village Nigdilpur, Pargana Nawabganj, Tehsil Soraon, district Allahabad. After their death, the father of opposite party no. 2/complainant, moved application before the Assistant Consolidation Officer, Kaurihar, district Allahabad for recording the names of the six sons of late Shambhu Nath Tiwari and Late Ganga Devi, as their their legal heirs in the revenue records. However, the applicant Awadh Behari prepared and fabricated a Will of Late Shambhu Nath and Ganga Devi and on the basis of that forged Will, he filed an objection before Assistant Consolidation Officer, Kaurihar and also gave a fresh application, stating therein that he is the sole survivor/legal heir of deceased Shambhu Nath Tiwari and Ganga Devi, therefore, only his name be recorded in the revenue records, over the properties of his deceased parents. Thereafter, the applicant Janardan Prasad moved another application before Assistant Consolidation Officer, Kaurihar, for recording the names of only five sons of deceased Shambhu Nath Tiwari and Late Ganga Devi, namely Awadh Behari, Krishna Behari, Janardan Prasad, Mukund Behari and Shyam Behari on the basis of a forged and fabricated Will deed, of deceased Shambhu Nath and Ganga Devi.

5. On receiving such application the Assistant Consolidation Officer, Kaurihar, issued notices to the contesting parties for settlement of dispute with regard to the controversy of legal heirs of deceased Shambhu Nath and Ganga Devi but neither the dispute was amicably settled nor any order can be passed by the Consolidation Officer on the application moved by the applicants due to reason that no copy of the Will was filed by the applicants alongwith the application. The matter was pending before the Consolidation Officer, when the eldest brother Keshav Behari, father of opposite party no. 2, expired on 9.10.1992. Thereafter the complainant/opposite party no. 2, contested the matter till July, 2010 and ultimately in the year 2013 the names of legal heirs of Keshav Behari (father of opposite party no. 2) could be recorded in revenue records alongwith other co-sharers. It was further alleged that even after the mutation, the applicants did not permit the opposite party no. 2 to enter into his share of property and to take its possession. On the aforesaid grounds the applicant (opposite party no. 2) prayed that FIR be registered against the accused persons and the police be directed to investigate the matter.

6. On the aforesaid application the court below directed the S.H.O., P.S. Nawabganj, to conduct preliminary enquiry and send a report. The S.H.O. sent report on 24.7.2013 to the effect that the alleged Will was forged as it was prepared after the death of Shambhu Nath and Ganga Devi.

7. The learned Magistrate considering the facts and circumstances of the case, registered the application as a Complaint Case No. 955 of 2013. The statements of the complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and of the witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C. were recorded and on the basis of those statements and the documentary evidence filed by the complainant, the learned Magistrate found a prima facie case against the applicants Krishna Behari, Awadh Behari and Janardan Prasad under Section 420, 467 and 471 I.P.C. and against the applicants Dhananjay, Mritunjay, Vipin Behari, Pradhumn, Pranat, Prasant and Prateyesh alias Priyavrat under Section 447 and 448 I.P.C. Accordingly all of them were summoned.

8. Being aggrieved by their summoning, the applicants have approached this Court with prayer to quash the aforesaid summoning order and the entire proceedings of the aforesaid case.

9. In the affidavit filed in support of the application, it has been stated that all the allegations made by the complainant are baseless, absolutely vague and frivolous. It is further submitted that the reference of criminal case under Section 307 I.P.C. has no relevance and that has been mentioned in the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. by the complainant only with a view to prejudice the mind of the court. In fact the aforesaid criminal case has absolutely no bearing to the facts of the present case. Moreover, that case has resulted into acquittal vide judgment dated 30.3.1998.

10. The applicants have further contended that due to nefarious and illegal activities of Sri Keshav Behari and for the reason that he had falsely implicated his own brothers in the aforesaid criminal case under Section 307 I.P.C., he was not given any share in the property by late Shambhu Nath who executed his Will excluding the name of Keshav Bihari. However, despite the fact that the father of the applicants had specifically intended that any share in the property be not given to Keshav Behari or any of his descendants, the applicants believing in the policy of 'forgive and forget', included the names of opposite party no. 2, his brother and his mother in revenue records and vide order dated 30.7.2011 the names of opposite party no. 2, his brother Gunakesh Tripathi and also of their mother Indrawati Devi, were recorded in the Khatauni.

11. Learned counsel for the applicants has further contended that the crux of the case of opposite party no. 2 is that the applicants on the basis of a false and fictitious Will got transferred the property in their names but it is admitted position that now the names of all the legal heirs of Late Shambhu Nath and Ganga Devi including opposite party no. 2, his brother and their mother, have also been recorded in the revenue records. Learned counsel has next contended that as the alleged Will was not available on record before the learned Magistrate, therefore, the learned Magistrate, without perusing that Will could not have summoned the applicants and summoning of the applicants on the basis of forged document, which is not even available on record, is absolutely illegal. Learned counsel has lastly contended that the opposite party no. 2, if aggrieved by exclusion of his name, had an efficacious alternative civil remedy of filing a suit, challenging the legality of the Will, but instead of pursuing the civil remedy, he has initiated the present case against the applicants only with malafide intention to extract the money from the applicants.

12. On the basis of the aforesaid grounds it has been prayed that the impugned summoning order and entire proceedings be quashed.

13. Learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 Rajendra Pandey and learned A.G.A. have vehemently opposed the applications by contending that the applicants, with a view to grab the share of their elder brother Keshav Bihari, fabricated and forged a Will, with dishonest intention and in pursuance thereof, they moved applications before the Consolidation Officer to record their names in the revenue records as legal heirs of Late Shambhu Nath and Ganga Devi, thereby depriving the opposite party no. 2 from his share in the joint family ancestral property. While drawing the attention of this Court to the copies of various applications filed by the applicants before the revenue courts, which are available on record as annexure nos. C.A. 4, 5 and 6 filed with counter affidavit, learned counsel has vehemently argued that the applicants have not come to the court with clean hands and their applications are liable to be rejected on this ground alone. Learned counsel has submitted that the contents of paragraphs 12 and 13 of the affidavit filed by the applicants are in total contradiction with the objection filed by the applicant Awadh Behari before the Revenue Officer, copy whereof has been annexed as annexure no. C.A. 4 to the counter affidavit. Learned counsel has further submitted that the opposite party no. 2 has got his share after a long legal battle since 1988 to 2013. It is lastly submitted that civil and criminal proceedings can go on simultaneously and there is no bar that if a civil suit is pending, criminal proceedings can not be initiated.

14. Considered the rival submissions advanced by the parties.

15. A careful perusal of the affidavits filed by the parties, clearly shows, that the applicants have not come to the court with clean hands. Annexure C.A. 4, which is the copy of the objection filed by the applicant Awadh Behari before the Consolidation Officer shows that the applicant Awadh Behari has questioned the parentage of opposite party no. 2 by stating that grandfather of opposite party no. 2 was Shambhu Nath Goswami whereas his father was named as Shambhu Nath Tiwari. He has stated that both of them were two different persons and opposite party no. 2 is the grandson of Shambhu Nath Goswami and not of Shambhu Nath Tiwari and he is only trying to take the advantage of similarity in their names. However, the contents of paragraph nos. 12 and 13 of the affidavit filed by Awadh Behari in the instant Application (No. 26296 of 2014), shows that he has clearly mentioned that the father of the applicants namely Late Sri Shambhu Nath Tiwari had 6 sons and out of which Keshav Behari was the eldest.

16. The contention raised by the applicants that in absence of the alleged Will, the Magistrate could not have summoned the applicants, also appears to be baseless. The primary report dated 29.3.1990 of Assistant Consolidation Officer, copy whereof is annexed as C.A. 7 to the counter affidavit, shows that no Will deed was filed by the applicants before the Consolidation Officer. Thus in absence of any Will which should have been filed by the applicants, how could the opposite party no. 2/complainant be asked to prove it, before the criminal court ? A perusal of various applications moved by the applicants before the Consolidation Officer, the copies whereof are annexed as C.A. 5 and 6 clearly shows that in all these applications they have stated that their mother, who expired on 26.11.1988, had executed a Will in their favour on 2.9.1986, so their names be recorded in the revenue records in place of name of Ganga Devi. But they have not filed any Will deed executed by Ganga Devi in support of their claim.

17. It is the basic principle of law that "one who asserts must prove" or the "plaintiff must stand on his legs". If the applicants were claiming their right in the ancestral property, in exclusion of O.P. No. 2 on the basis of a Will, it was mandatory for them to produce that Will, before the competent court. But instead of producing the Will before the court concerned, they have approached this Court challenging the legality of the proceedings of complaint case, on the ground that opposite party no. 2 has not produced the alleged Will, he is claiming to be forged. This contention raised by the applicants is not only against the settled principles of law but appears to be ridiculous.

18. The conduct of the applicants clearly shows that they tried their level best to record their names on the basis of a Will, which perhaps, even did not exist, otherwise it would have been filed before the Consolidation Officer. Therefore only due to the fact that the applicants did not succeed in their evil designs or they gave the share to the opposite party no. 2, after a long legal battle since 1988 to 2013, it cannot be said that no offence was committed by them.

19. Section 420 of I.P.C. provides punishment for cheating. The "Cheating" is defined under Section 415 of I.P.C. which runs as follows :

415. Cheating.--Whoever, by deceiving any person, fraudulently or dishonestly induces the person so deceived to deliver any property to any person, or to consent that any person shall retain any property, or intentionally induces the person so deceived to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived, and which act or omission causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property, is said to "cheat". Explanation.--A dishonest concealment of facts is a deception within the meaning of this section.

Thus, the essential ingredients of cheating are :

Ingredients.- The section requires –

(1) Deception of any person.

(2) (a) Fraudulently or dishonestly inducing that person

(i) to deliver any property to any person; or

(ii) to consent that any person shall retain any property;

or

(b) intentionally inducing that person to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived, and which act or omission causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property.

20. In a recent case A.R.C.I. Vs. Nimra Carglass Technics (P) Ltd. (2016) 1 SCC 348 the Hon'ble Apex Court has interpreted Section 420 I.P.C. as under :

"The essential ingredients to attract Section 420 IPC are: (i) cheating; (ii) dishonest inducement to deliver property or to make, alter or destroy any valuable security or anything which is sealed or signed or is capable of being converted into a valuable security and (iii) mens rea of the accused at the time of making the inducement. The making of a false representation is one of the essential ingredients to constitute the offence of cheating under Section 420 IPC. In order to bring a case for the offence of cheating, it is not merely sufficient to prove that a false representation had been made, but, it is further necessary to prove that the representation was false to the knowledge of the accused and was made in order to deceive the complainant."

21. Now looking into the facts of the instant case, in wake of the aforesaid definition of "cheating", it cannot be said that there was no false representation or dishonest inducement on the part of the applicants. The fraudulent intention of the applicants is clearly evident from the various applications moved by them to the revenue authorities so that the property be recorded in their names, thus depriving the opposite party no. 2/complainant of his rightful share.

22. So far as the argument of learned counsel for the applicants with regard to civil nature of the offence is concerned, the law has been well settled in a catena of judgments by Hon'ble Supreme Court that both civil and criminal litigation can proceed simultaneously. In the present case, admittedly no civil suit is pending between the parties.

23. In Kishan Singh (D) through I.Rs. Vs. Gurpal Singh and others; AIR 2010 SC 3624, the Hon'ble Supreme Court relying on the law laiddown in P. Swaroopa Rani v. M. Hari Narayana alias Hari Babu; AIR 2008 SC 1884 this Court has held as under :

"It is, however, well settled that in a given case, civil proceedings and criminal proceedings can proceed simultaneously. Whether civil proceedings or criminal proceedings shall be stayed depends upon the fact and circumstances of each case.... Filing of an independent criminal proceeding, although initiated in terms of some observations made by the civil court, is not barred under any statute.... It goes without saying that the respondent shall be at liberty to take recourse to such a remedy which is available to him in law. We have interfered with the impugned order only because in law simultaneous proceedings of a civil and a criminal case is permissible."

24. In Sh. Vishnu Dutt Sharma Vs. Smt. Daya Sapra; (2009)13SCC 729 the Apex Court has held that :

"13. It is, however, well-settled that in a given case, civil proceedings and criminal proceedings can proceed simultaneously. Whether civil proceedings or criminal proceedings shall be stayed depends upon the fact and circumstances of each case."

25. Considering all these facts and circumstances, both these applications appear to be without any merit, both are liable to be dismissed and are accordingly dismissed.

26. However, considering the fact that the applicants have given the share of opposite party no. 2 to him, it is directed that in case the applicants appear before the court concerned within thirty days from today and apply for bail, the same shall be heard and disposed of expeditiously by the courts below in view of the settled law laid by the Seven Judges' decision of this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P., 2005 Cr.L.J. 755 and affirmed by Hon'ble Apex Court in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P.

27. For the aforesaid period of 30 days no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants.

Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — Ss. 482 & 319 — Quashing of proceedings — Maintainability after dismissal of revision — Applicants challenged entire Sessions Trial after their revision against summoning order under S. 319 CrPC had already been dismissed on merits by High Court — Held, once order summoning applicants under S. 319 CrPC attained finality, subsequent application under S. 482 CrPC seeking substantially same relief not maintainable — High Court cannot review or indirectly nullify earlier order passed by coordinate Bench.
Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 362 — Review/recall of criminal orders — Bar — Criminal Court has no power to review, recall or alter its own judgment except for clerical or arithmetical errors — Petition seeking quashing of entire proceedings, which would effectively nullify earlier revisional order, impermissible.
Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — Second complaint — Maintainability — Earlier application under S. 156(3) CrPC filed by father of prosecutrix dismissed as not pressed — Mother of prosecutrix subsequently filed fresh application alleging coercion, abduction and intimidation by accused compelling withdrawal of earlier proceedings — Held, second complaint maintainable in exceptional circumstances where new facts and allegations disclose manifest miscarriage of justice.
Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — S. 319 — Summoning additional accused — Scope — During trial prosecutrix and informant specifically implicated applicants in kidnapping and gang rape — Trial court justified in summoning applicants under S. 319 CrPC on basis of strong evidence emerging during trial.
Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 363, 366 & 376-D and Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 — Ss. 5 & 6 — Gang rape of minor — Prima facie case — Prosecutrix in statements under Ss. 164 CrPC and during trial consistently alleged abduction and repeated rape by applicants and co-accused over period of four months resulting in pregnancy — Prima facie case clearly disclosed.
Practice and Procedure — Abuse of process — Costs — Applicants, after dismissal of revision, again approached High Court by changing language of prayer for obtaining same relief — Conduct held abuse of process of Court — Exemplary costs imposed payable to prosecutrix.

In Result: Application dismissed with costs of Rs 10,000/- on each applicant; amount directed to be paid to prosecutrix.

Cases cited:
1. Pramatha Nath Talukdar Vs. Saroj Ranjan SarkarAIR 1962 SC 876

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Vijay Lakshmi, J.)

1. The applicants by means of the instant application under section 482 Cr.P.C. have invoked the inherent jurisdiction of this court with the prayer to quash the entire proceedings of S.T. No. 935 of 2013, under sections 363, 366, 376-D I.P.C. and 5/6 POCSO Act, P.S. Faizganj Vehta, District Budaun, pending in the court of Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 8, Budaun.

2. Heard Sri Siddharth, learned counsel for the applicants, learned AGA for the State of U.P. and Mr. R.P.S. Chauhan, learned counsel for O.P. No. 2.

3. Learned counsel for the applicants has submitted that the applicants have been falsely implicated in this case. The applicant no. 1 is a fair price shop dealer, therefore, O.P. No. 2 has falsely implicated him in this case to extort money from him as she had threatened the applicant no. 1 that if the money was not given to her she would sent him to jail resulting in the cancellation of his fair price shop license. It is also alleged that due to strained relations with her husband for the reason that O.P. No. 2 never wanted that her daughter should be married to co-accused Nekpal, she lodged the false report against the applicants, who are the near relatives of Nekpal.

4. The brief facts giving rise to the present dispute are that on 27.4.2013 one Ram Charan Maurya, husband of O.P. No. 2 filed an application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. in the court of C.J.M., Budaun, alleging that on 23.4.2013 his minor daughter Manju aged about 14 years was kidnapped by accused Nekpal and Siyaram and since the police did not register his FIR, he moved the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. praying for lodging of the FIR and its investigation by the police. The learned Magistrate registered the application as a Misc. Case under section 363 and 366 I.P.C. and called for report from the concerned police station. When the application was pending before the Magistrate, waiting for police report, the complainant Ram Charan Maurya and his daughter, Manju, appeared before the court and made statements that they have moved the aforesaid application under pressure of the villagers and they do not wish to press this application. The learned Magistrate, accordingly dismissed the application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. as not pressed vide order dated 15.5.2013.

5. However, the wife of Ram Charan Maurya i.e. mother of the prosecutrix, (O.P. No. 2 in the instant application), moved another application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. on 8.5.2013 alleging that during the pendency of the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. filed by her husband Ram Charan Maurya, he was abducted by the accused persons and the police of P.S. Faizganj Vehta, District Budaun, detained him at some unknown place along with the prosecutrix and they threatened them of dire consequences, if they dared to give any evidence in the court against the accused persons. It was further alleged that the husband of O.P. No. 2 Ram Charan Maurya and her daughter were directly produced from the custody of accused persons before the Additional Sessions Judge on 9.5.2013 and under pressure and threat they gave the statements that they do not want to press their application. O.P. No. 2- the mother of prosecutrix also named the present applicants in her application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. as accused persons along with accused Nekpal and Siyaram. The aforesaid application of O.P. No. 2 was allowed by the learned Magistrate and the police was directed to register and investigate the case. During investigation, the prosecutrix was recovered and she was medically examined in the District Woman Hospital, Budaun, on 2.9.2013. Her radiological age was found to be 16 years and she was found pregnant. Her statement u/s 164 Cr.P.C. was also recorded in which she stated about the active involvement of all the four accused persons in her abduction and rape. However, the police submitted charge sheet only against two accused persons Nekpal and Siyaram and exonerated the present applicants Chandrapal and Ram Prasad. The Magistrate took cognizance on the charge sheet filed against Nekpal and Siyaram and the case being triable by the Court of Sessions, committed it to the Sessions Court, where it was registered as S.T. No. 935 of 2013 and the trial proceeded.

6. During trial, O.P. No. 2 was examined as PW1 and the prosecutrix was examined as PW2. Both these witnesses fully supported the prosecution case in their statements before the trial court. True copies of the statements of both these witnesses have been collectively filed as Annexure no. CA4 to the counter affidavit, showing that the prosecutrix has categorically stated that on the fateful day at about 8.00 P.M. when she had gone to the fields to attend the natural call, Chandrapal and Ram Prasad came there. They pressed her mouth, lifted her, forcibly made her sit on their motorcycle and drove away. After some distance accused Nekpal and Siyaram also joined them on another motorcycle. Thereafter all of them took her to Punjab. At Punjab, they kept her in a rented room. She has further stated that first of all accused Ram Prasad committed rape on her, thereafter Chandrapal and after Chandrapal, Nekpal and Siyaram also committed rape on her. They kept her in that room for about four months and continued to commit rape with her. After four months the applicants handed her over to the police. She got pregnant as a result of rape. She has given birth to a child without getting married to any one.

7. PW1- Lajjawati, her mother, also supported the prosecution story in her statement recorded during trial.

8. After the evidence of PW1 and PW2 i.e. the informant and the prosecutrix, an application under section 319 Cr.P.C. was moved by the prosecution, which was allowed and the learned Additional Sessions Judge, by a detailed order dated 1.5.2014, summoned the applicants Ram Prasad and Chandrapal under section 319 Cr.P.C. to face trial with other accused persons.

9. Aggrieved by the aforesaid order passed by the trial court under section 319 Cr.P.C. the applicants filed Criminal Revision No. 1624 of 2013 before this court, which was dismissed vide order dated 2.6.2014 passed by a coordinate Bench of this court (the copy whereof has annexed as Annexure no. CA4 to the counter affidavit).

10. However, the applicants instead of filing an S.L.P. against the order passed by this court on 2.6.2014 have again approached this court by means of the instant application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. with the prayer to quash the entire proceedings of S.T. No. 935 of 2013.

11. The learned counsel for the applicants has filed written submissions in support of the application. He has contended that O.P. No. 2 had no right to file a second application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. on the basis of the same facts on which her husband Ram Charan Maurya had already moved an application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. earlier, which was dismissed by the court below as not pressed. The learned counsel has contended that after rejection of the first application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. the second application on the same facts is not maintainable. The learned counsel has vehemently contended that both the applications filed by Ram Charan Maurya and Lajjawati (O.P. No. 2) in this case are complaints within the meaning of section 2(d) Cr.P.C. and as both the applications are related to the same incident dated 23.4.2013 and are against the same accused persons, therefore, the second application filed by O.P. No. 2, which is a second complaint in respect of the same cause of action being legally barred, is not maintainable in view of the three Judges decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court reported in AIR 1962 SC 876, Pramatha Nath Talukdar Vs. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar.

12. Per contra learned AGA and learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 have vehemently opposed the application. The preliminary objection raised by them is that the applicants have not come to this court with clean hands. The instant application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicants before this court for the same cause of action. The applicants had earlier preferred a criminal revision before this court against the summoning order passed on the application u/s 319 Cr.P.C., which was dismissed on merit by this court vide order dated 2.6.2014, which has become final as the same was never challenged by the revisionist before the Hon'ble Supreme Court. However, after failing in their first attempt, due to dismissal of their revision, the applicants, by changing the language of the prayer, have again approached this court for the same relief. The learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 has submitted that the applicants in the instant application application have prayed to quash the entire proceedings of the sessions trial, which includes the summoning of the applicants under section u/s 319 Cr.P.C. and which has already been upheld by this court in the aforesaid revision. The learned counsel for O.P. No. 2 has prayed that under these circumstances, this application is liable to be dismissed with heavy costs and proceedings under section 340 Cr.P.C. should be initiated against the applicants for misrepresentation and for playing fraud upon this court.

13. Considered the rival submissions of the parties.

14. All the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the applicants appear to be totally misconceived and having no force in view of the settled legal position.

15. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Pramatha Nath Talukdar Vs. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876, cited by the learned counsel for the applicants, has laid down the law with regard to maintainability of second complaint as under:-

"There is nothing in law which prohibits the entertainment of a second complaint on the same allegations, when a previous complaint had been dismissed under section 203 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. As, however, a rule of necessary caution and of proper exercise of the discretion given to a Magistrate under section 204(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, exceptional circumstances must exist for the entertainment of a second complaint on the same allegations; in other words, there must be good reasons why the Magistrate thinks that there is "sufficient ground for proceeding" with the second complaint, when a previous complaint on the same allegations was dismissed under section 203. The test to determine the exceptional circumstances are (1) manifest error, (2) manifest miscarriage of justice and (3) new facts which the complainant had no knowledge of or could not with reasonable diligence have brought forward in the previous proceedings."

16. The facts of the present case clearly indicates that the complainant Smt. Lajjawati, in second complaint filed by her, has made clear allegations that as her husband and daughter were abducted by the accused persons in connivance with the police. They were threatened and forced to make wrong statements before the Magistrate that they do not want to press the application. It is also evident that the learned trial court after finding that there were clear allegations against the applicants in the statement of the prosecutrix recorded u/s 164 Cr.P.C. and during trial, the prosecutrix has categorically stated that the applicants abducted her and committed rape with her for four months while keeping her detained in a rented room, summoned them by exercising power under section 319 Cr.P.C. The summoning of the applicants under section 319 Cr.P.C. was challenged by way of a criminal revision before this court, which was dismissed by this court on merits. The order dated 2.6.2014 passed by this court has attained finality because no SLP was filed by the applicants against the aforesaid order. However, the applicants for the same relief and only by changing the language of their prayer, have again come to this court. They have prayed to quash the entire proceedings of the sessions trial. In case the entire proceedings of the sessions trial is quashed, it will amount to quashing of the aforesaid order of this court dated 2.6.2014 whereby this court has upheld the legality and correctness of the order summoning the applicants u/s 319 Cr.P.C.

17. This court is neither an appellate nor a reviewing authority against the order passed in the criminal revision by a coordinate Bench of this court. As per section 362 Cr.P.C. a criminal court is not authorised to review or recall or alter its own order. Thus, this court cannot recall, review or alter the order passed on 2.6.2014 in Criminal Revision No. 1624 of 2014. The aforesaid order being remained unchallenged has attained finality. Under these circumstances this application is liable to be dismissed with heavy costs.

18. Accordingly, the instant application is dismissed with a cost of Rs. ten thousand, imposed on each applicant. The applicants shall deposit the amount of cost in the court where the trial is pending within one month from today. In case they fail to deposit it within the time prescribed, the court below shall recover it from them as arrears of land revenue. The total amount of Rs. 20,000/-, so recovered from the applicants shall be paid to the prosecutrix.

19. A copy of this order be sent to the Special Judge (POCSO Act), Budaun, to ensure compliance.

Liability cannot be shifted or re-imposed through unilateral proceedings.

In Result---The writ petition was allowed—Order dated 11.07.2016 passed by the Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner and consequential realization proceedings dated 04.08.2016 were quashed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. This petition arises out of a dispute relating to a deposit of provident fund under the Employees Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952.

2. The petitioner is a service provider to the respondent Electricity Distribution Division namely Madhyanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Limited, Gonda.

3. An agreement was entered into between the petitioner and the said respondent, a copy whereof is Annexure no. 4 to the writ petition. According to clause 2.10 of the said agreement the petitioner firm is responsible for deducting the amount of Employees Provident Fund as per rules from the wages of the skilled and unskilled labour and contribution of the firm is to be got deposited with the Employees Provident Fund Commissioner as per existing rules and regulations. As per clause 6.0 payment has to be made by the Executive Engineer of the respondent-Corporation once in a month on A certified calculation subject to availability of funds.

4. The contention of the petitioner is that the respondent-Corporation being the Principal Employer, the deduction of the EPF can be made only on the basis of payment received.

5. The Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner proceeded to pass an order under section 14-B of the 1952 Act proposing to levy a penalty as there was a default in such deposit for the period 1.8.2009 to 31.10.2014 coupled with an order under section 7-Q of the 1952 Act dated 17.7.2015, copy whereof is Annexure no. 6 to the writ petition. Since the liability had been imposed on the petitioner he moved an application under section 7-B read with B(1)(2) of the 1952 Act for review and during the proceedings it was pointed out that a plea was set up clearly by the petitioner that it was on account of delayed receipt of payment from the respondent-Corporation that the deduction of EPF was followed thereafter. This fact of tendering of delayed payment to the petitioner by the respondent department itself was admitted by the Office Assistant of the Electricity Department Mr. Tarkeshwar Gupta who had attended the proceedings before the competent authority as is evident from the order-sheet dated 13.3.2016. The Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner accordingly reviewed the same on 25.5.2016 imposing the said liability on the respondent-Corporation, copy of the said order is Annexure no. 19 to the writ petition.

6. It appears that the respondent-Corporation moved an application for review instead of filing an appeal against the order dated 25.5.2016 and the said application was entertained. A copy of the said review application moved by the Electricity Department is Annexure no. 1 to the writ petition.

7. The Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner entertained the said application and has allowed it on 11.7.2016, impugned herein, whereupon the consequential action by the impugned realization process dated 4.8.2016 has also been challenged by the petitioner. The contention is that the order is without any notice or opportunity to the petitioner and secondly the respondent Electricity Department was bound to file an appeal instead of filing a review application.

8. Sri R.K. Verma has appeared for the respondent no. 3 and 4 and Sri Shri Prakash Singh has appeared for the respondent-Electricity Department namely respondents no. 4 and 5.

9. We have heard learned counsel for the respondents who have contended that it is the petitioner's liability to deduct and deposit the EPF and is not subject to any such payment as alleged. The petitioner is bound to make timely deductions for which the petitioner can not shift it's liability on the Corporation.

10. From a perusal of the impugned order dated 11.7.2016 it is clear that while proceeding to review the matter a second time, the Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner did not examine the issue of his authority to do so or the remedy of appeal being available to the respondent-Corporation. When the earlier order dated 25.5.2016 had been passed with the participation of the official of the Electricity department, then a review on it's behalf would be entertainable or not was also to be looked into.

11. He also did not extend any notice or opportunity to the petitioner prior to reviewing the earlier order dated 25.5.2016. Thus, the liability has been saddled without any notice or opportunity to the petitioner prior to the passing of the impugned order and initiating the process vide notice dated 4.8.2016.

12. Consequently, on this short ground alone the writ petition deserves to be allowed. The order dated 11.7.2016 being in violation of principles of natural justice cannot be sustained and consequently, the subsequent action dated 4.8.2016 also cannot survive. Both the orders are hereby quashed. The writ petition is allowed.

13. It shall be open to the Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner to examine these issues and pass orders only after giving opportunity to the petitioner.

Land Laws — U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 — S. 9 — Private well situated on private holding — Nature of ownership: A private well situated over the tenure-holder's private land does not lose its proprietary character merely because it has been repaired through public funds or used by villagers. Under Section 9 of the Act, only such wells and water resources vested in intermediaries stood vested in the State; a privately owned well over private land does not automatically become public property.

Property Law — Public use vis-à-vis private ownership — Repair from public funds — Effect: Expenditure of public funds on repair of a private well, undertaken at the instance of villagers and without consent of the owner, does not by itself alter the ownership status or convert private property into public property.

Writ Jurisdiction — Disputed questions of title and possession — Scope: Where dispute exists regarding location of a well and whether it falls upon private land, declaration of rights cannot be adjudicated in writ proceedings and remains subject to determination by the competent forum under applicable law.

In Result---The writ petition was disposed of observing that if the well was situated on Plot No. 395 over petitioner's private land, his property rights should not be interfered with. In case the well posed danger to the petitioner's family, appropriate protective measures including fencing or wire-net protection could be undertaken. The order was clarified not to amount to declaration of rights, which would remain subject to adjudication by the competent forum.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. Heard the learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents nos. 1 to 5 and Sri B.L. Mishra, Advocate who has filed an application on behalf of six persons Chandrakant Bajpai and others contending that the continued use of the well is in the interest of the entire locality and the same has also been recently repaired. It is in the use of all the villagers of the locality. He, therefore, submits that the offer made by the petitioner to get it demolished at his own expense, is not acceptable and is against the interest of the villagers.

2. The petitioner contends that the well is situated over Plot No.395 which is on the private tenure holding of the petitioner and as such the petitioner has every right to control the operation of the said well.

3. From the record it has been pointed out by the learned Standing Counsel that the Sub Divisional Magistrate has taken notice of the fact that the well had gone into disuse and consequently since it felt within the private holding of the petitioner the same should be allowed to be demolished if the other villagers do not have any objection to the same.

4. The said order of the Sub Divisional Magistrate dated 16.04.2016 is annexed as Annexure No.8 to the writ petition.

5. It appears that a report had been called upon and a copy of the same has been filed as Annexure No.7, where it is indicated that the well was in disuse continuously for the past several years and therefore, the existence of the well is dangerous for the petitioner and his family members and his children. However, a rider has been put in the report that since the well had been got repaired from public funds, therefore, appropriate orders should be passed by the Sub Divisional Magistrate.

6. The petitioner contends that the well had been constructed by his predecessors long back and recently got repaired which cannot change the nature of the ownership of the well and consequently, the same cannot be treated to be a public well.

7. We have considered the submissions raised and according to the provisions of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950, it was only the tanks, well and other water resources that were under the control of the Zamindars, namely the Intermediaries that stood vested in the state. A private well owned by a person over his private land did not loose its propriety status. Reference is made to the provisions of Section 9 of the 1950 Act. Consequently, if the well is located over Plot No.395 then it cannot be said that the said property was available for the use of public merely because it had been got repaired through some public funds at the instance of the villagers without the consent of the petitioners.

8. On the other hand if the well is not situate over the private land of the petitioner then the rights of the parties would be subject to adjudication by the appropriate forum.

9. The claim of the petitioner, therefore, cannot be said to be absolutely unfounded more so when the report itself states that the situation of the well is such that it is likely to cause danger to the family of the petitioner. In such a situation, the Sub Divisional Magistrate shall pass appropriate orders in order to ensure that nobody's private property is interfered with.

10. Consequently, if there is any danger to the life of the family members of the petitioner, who alleges that the well is right in front of his house, it shall be open to the petitioner to take other steps that may be necessary for the protection of his rights and further in the event the well is allowed to continue the same shall be protected with a wire net so as to prevent any accident in future or by raising an appropriate fencing over the same.

11. This order shall not amount to any declaration of rights that shall be subject to the law governing the same and adjudication by the proper forum.

12. With the aforesaid observations, this writ petition is disposed off.

Civil Procedure — Withdrawal of suit — Effect of withdrawal without liberty — Subsequent cause of action arising under later Government Order — Maintainability of writ petition: Withdrawal of an earlier civil suit without liberty to institute a fresh proceeding does not bar assertion of rights arising from a subsequent and independent cause of action. Where the original suit was founded upon earlier Government Orders and a new Government Order came into existence thereafter conferring a fresh basis for consideration of rights, withdrawal of the earlier suit cannot amount to abandonment of rights arising under the later Government Order.

Nazul Land — Freehold rights — Consideration under subsequent policy/Government Order: Claim for grant of freehold rights over Nazul land has to be considered in accordance with the prevailing Government policy. Authorities cannot reject consideration solely on the ground that an earlier suit had been withdrawn where entitlement is sought under a subsequently issued Government Order.

Administrative Law — Fair consideration of representation — Direction by Court: Where a claim requires consideration under an applicable Government Order and such consideration has not taken place, the Court may direct the competent authority to decide the request uninfluenced by previous proceedings that do not govern the later cause of action.

In Result ---Writ petition disposed of — direction to the District Magistrate, Sitapur — to consider the petitioner's request for grant of freehold rights.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner. The petitioner contends that he was entitled to grant of freehold rights over the land in question and in the absence of any action being taken by the Nagar Palika Parishad, Khairabad, District Sitapur and the Collector as well as the Nazul Officer the petitioner was compelled to file Original Suit No. 553 of 2014 before the learned Civil Judge (S.D.), Sitapur.

2. However, on assurance given by the Nagar Palika Parishad authorities the petitioner withdrew his suit that his claim will be considered and an order was passed to that effect on 5.2.2016, copy whereof has been filed along with the writ petition as Annexure no. 21 to the writ petition.

3. Learned Standing Counsel states that the petitioner having withdrawn his suit now cannot be permitted to file this petition as the suit was dismissed as withdrawn without liberty to file a fresh suit.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that a fresh cause of action is available to the petitioner in terms of the Government Order dated 15.1.2015 and the suit had been withdrawn on the assurance given by the Nagar Palika Parishad. The abandonment of the claim, therefore, cannot be presumed so as to bar the claim of any rights that accrued under the Government Order dated 15.1.2015 that came into existence long after filing of the suit.

5. The aforesaid argument of the learned counsel appears to be correct inasmuch as the claim of freehold rights in the suit was based on the earlier government orders that were rescinded and considerations were made permissible under the Government Order dated 15.1.2015 that admittedly came into existence after the filing of the suit. No cause in the suit was based on the said Government Order, and therefore, it's withdrawal cannot eclipse the right of consideration, if available, of the petitioner under the Government Order dated 15.1.2015.

6. The writ petition is, therefore, disposed of with a direction to the District Magistrate, Sitapur to consider the request of the petitioner in the light of the Government Order dated 15.1.2015 without being influenced by the withdrawal of the suit within a period of three weeks from the date a certified copy of this order is produced before him.

Right to Information Act — Penalty proceedings — Ex parte order — Recall application — Duty to consider explanation: Where a public authority against whom penalty has been imposed places material facts and explanation in a recall application, the State Information Commission is required to examine and consider such contentions before rejecting the application. Failure to consider relevant explanations vitiates the order passed thereon.
Administrative Law — Non-consideration of material pleas — Effect: Rejection of a recall application without adverting to the substantive defence and explanations raised therein amounts to non-application of mind. Consequential proceedings founded upon such order cannot survive.
Right to Information — Penalty and recovery proceedings — Validity: Recovery proceedings arising out of an order imposing penalty cannot continue where the foundational order suffers from procedural infirmity and failure to consider material facts placed before the authority.
Order dated 04.12.2015 rejecting the recall application, recovery notice dated 08.01.2016 and consequential intimation dated 05.05.2016 were quashed. Liberty was granted to the State Information Commission to pass fresh orders in accordance with law after considering the observations made by the Court and after putting respondent No. 4 to notice.

In Result : Writ petition allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Shikhar Anand for the State Information Commission.

2. The petitioner is an Executive Engineer from whom, the respondent No.4 is alleged to have sought certain information in respect of the tenure of one Sri Gopal Gupta Assistant Engineer, as is evident from the information sought vide letter dated 08.06.2011, a copy whereof, is Annexure No.5.

3. The petitioner states that in response thereto, the petitioner had got the entire compilation made available and for that a letter was sent to the petitioner on 04.07.2011 and again on 04.08.2011 informing the petitioner that in spite of the demand made in the estimate since the requisite fee was not deposited, the information which was already available, could not be tendered to the petitioner as per Rules. Secondly the letter that were sent had been returned with endorsements of not-availability of the respondent No.4.

4. The respondent No.4 appears to have approached the Chief Information Commission by filing an appeal on account of non-receipt of information and an order was passed on 28.01.2014 imposing a penalty of Rs.25,000/- on the petitioner for having not supplied the information to the petitioner.

5. The petitioner contends that the aforesaid proceeding went on ex parte and, therefore, the petitioner moved an application dated 08.04.2016 for recall stating therein the entire explanation a copy whereof is Annexure-9 to the writ petition. This recall application has been rejected by the order dated 04.12.2015 and as a result whereof, the recovery is now sought to be made of the fine imposed under the order dated 08.01.2016 and 05.05.2016. The petitioner contends that there was absolutely no fault on the part of the petitioner and as a matter of fact if the respondent No.4 only wanted the gist of the information, he could have responded to the estimate given to him for deposit of the requisite fee so as to reduce his burden accordingly. It is urged that the respondent No.4 did not undertake any such steps and the letters sent to him were returned with an endorsement that the addressee was not available on the said address.

6. Learned counsel submits that all these facts were brought on record through the recall application but the State Information Commission without considering the same, proceeded to pass the impugned order and has saddled the petitioner with a recovery which could not be justifiably realized from the petitioner.

7. We have considered the submissions raised and what we find is that the petitioner's contention contained in the recall application having nowhere been considered while rejecting the same, vide order dated 04.12.2015, the consequential action of recovery is vitiated. The State Information Commission ought to have considered the same before passing the orders. Accordingly, the order dated 04.12.2015 contained in Annexure No.2 to the writ petition, the recovery notice dated 08.01.2016 and the consequential intimation dated 05.05.2016 are hereby quashed. It shall be open to the State Information Commission to pass appropriate orders in accordance with law keeping in view the observations made hereinabove after putting the respondent No.4 to notice.

8. The writ petition is accordingly allowed.

Service Law — Probationer — Termination simplicitor vis-à-vis punitive termination — Test to determine nature of order — Petitioner appointed as Assistant Professor on probation — Services terminated by giving one month's salary in lieu of notice under terms of appointment — However, prior thereto, University constituted enquiry committee to examine allegations of misconduct including insubordination, dereliction of duty, granting attendance to absent students, failure to upload attendance and unauthorized installation of air conditioner — Board of Management found petitioner guilty of misconduct and doubtful integrity — Held, where enquiry is held not to assess general suitability but to establish misconduct and termination is founded on findings of guilt, order though couched innocuously is punitive and stigmatic in nature. (Paras 11 to 21)

Service Law — Probationer — Stigmatic order — Requirement of disciplinary enquiry — Communication terminating petitioner's service specifically recorded findings of indiscipline, insubordination, non-cooperation, dereliction of duty and doubtful integrity — Held, use of stigmatic expressions and findings of misconduct render termination punitive — Such order cannot be passed without regular disciplinary enquiry complying with principles of natural justice and applicable service rules. (Paras 16 to 21)

Service Law — Motive and foundation test — Applicability — Distinction reiterated between termination based on motive and termination founded on misconduct — If employer merely forms opinion regarding suitability without adjudicating misconduct, discharge simplicitor permissible; but where enquiry is conducted to prove charges and findings of guilt become foundation of order, termination becomes punitive notwithstanding innocuous form of order. (Paras 11 to 15)

Natural Justice — Departmental enquiry — Procedural safeguards — Though enquiry committee sought written explanation from petitioner, no formal charge-sheet issued, no oral enquiry conducted and no opportunity granted to lead evidence — Held, termination founded on misconduct without holding regular disciplinary enquiry violative of statutory requirements and principles of natural justice. (Para 22)

University Law — Arbitration clause — Scope — Maintainability of writ petition — Objection raised regarding alternative remedy under S. 40 of U.P. Madan Mohan Malaviya University of Technology Act, 2013 — Held, arbitral remedy confined only to disputes arising from reconstitution of Engineering College into

University under S. 4 of Act — Dispute relating to termination of employee appointed after establishment of University not covered — Writ petition maintainable. (Paras 23 to 26)
In Result: Writ petition allowed; impugned communication of Registrar terminating petitioner's services and decision of Board of Management quashed. (Paras 27 & 28)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. The sole issue for consideration is whether the termination of the service of the petitioner, a probationer, by giving one month's salary in lieu of notice was a termination simplicitor and thus valid, or is stigmatic in nature and consequently, could not have been made without holding a regular disciplinary enquiry envisaged under the Service Rules.

2. Before embarking upon the legal position, the facts in brief necessary for adjudication may be noted. The petitioner applied for appointment as Assistant Professor in Civil Engineering at Madan Mohan Malviya Engineering College, Gorakhpur pursuant to an advertisement. The Selection Committee found the petitioner suitable for appointment. The recommendation of the Selection Committee was accepted by the Board of Management of the University and in pursuance thereof an appointment letter dated 26 August 2016 was issued under signature of the Registrar. In terms of the appointment letter, the petitioner was placed on probation for two years, extendable by such periods as the Vice Chancellor may deem fit. Clause 3 (b) of the appointment letter, which is of relevance, envisages termination of service of the petitioner by giving one month's notice or pay in lieu thereof during the initial or the extended period of probation. It reads thus:-

"(b). During the initial or extended period of probation her services may be terminated by the competent authority without assigning any reasons by giving him/her one month's notice or pay in lieu thereof."

3. The petitioner started working as Assistant Professor in the Department of Civil Engineering since 1 September 2015. According to the petitioner, on her request, a type IV quarter in the University Campus was allotted to her and she started residing therein alongwith her family. In due course, she was given additional responsibility of Hostel Superintendent of the girls hostel and was allotted two rooms in the hostel premises by an order dated 3 November 2015. She was required to take possession thereof immediately, failing which the allotment would stand automatically cancelled and the petitioner would be debarred from any further allotment. The petitioner being a married woman found it difficult to occupy the said accommodation inside the girls hostel where entry of male members was not permitted. The petitioner claims to have made a representation on 5 November 2015 to the Registrar to permit her to continue in possession of the accommodation allotted to her earlier, as in case she occupies the accommodation inside the girls hostel, her husband would face difficulty in accessing it.

4. However, the request of the petitioner was not acceded to. On the other hand, by communication dated 21 December 2015 issued by the Registrar, the petitioner was informed that the temporary allotment of House No.G/IV/06 in her favour has been cancelled and she should vacate the same and occupy the accommodation meant for the Hostel Superintendent. The petitioner made yet another representation on 4 January 2016 requesting the Registrar to reconsider the matter. Once again, the Registrar refused to accede to the request of the petitioner and directed her by letter dated 22 January 2016 to occupy the accommodation meant for the Hostel Superintendent. She was also warned that in case she fails to occupy the accommodation within two days, the University Administration would be compelled to initiate proceedings against her in accordance with the rules. The petitioner once again refused to abide by the direction and made another representation on 8 February 2016. In this manner, the tussle between the petitioner and the University Administration continued relentlessly.

5. The University treated the aforesaid stance of the petitioner as an act of insubordination. Accordingly, by communication dated 18/21 March 2016, the Registrar issued a warning to the petitioner stating that refusal on her part to vacate House No.G/IV/06 and occupy the quarter meant for the Hostel Superintendent amounts to gross indiscipline and may entail disciplinary action. She was given one last opportunity to vacate the temporary accommodation in her possession within seven days and to occupy the residence reserved for Hostel Superintendent. The petitioner by letter dated 4 April 2016 once again conveyed her unwillingness to occupy the quarter reserved for Hostel Superintendent. She even offered her resignation as Hostel Superintendent.

6. On 13 April 2016 the Registrar sent a communication to the petitioner calling for her explanation as to why action should not be taken against her for having failed to discharge the responsibilities attached to her post. It was stated therein that the petitioner had failed to take possession of the house allotted to her as a Hostel Superintendent and had rather indulged in unnecessary correspondence. Apart from it, certain other charges were also levelled against the petitioner. It was alleged that she failed to upload the attendance of the students of the odd semester 2015-16 on the University web portal despite reminder dated 11 January 2016 indicative of her lackadaisical attitude; she was found late in time for taking classes for which the Head of Department issued a warning to her. It was concluded that the petitioner was not discharging her responsibilities in a proper manner. In response thereto, the petitioner submitted a detailed reply on 19 April 2016 offering explanation to each and every charge and disputing the correctness of the imputations. It was followed by another notice from the Registrar dated 25 April 2016 calling for an explanation from the petitioner as to how she had installed an air conditioner in House No.G/IV/06, which was alleged to be in her possession unauthorisedly. On 26 April 2016 the petitioner offered explanation to the said notice stating that she was unaware of the requirement of taking permission before installing air conditioner but as soon as the said provision came to her knowledge, she had requested for permission by her letter no.1120/2016. She further stated that her mother is a patient of diabetes and blood pressure and requested for the connection of the air conditioner being restored, as otherwise the condition of her mother may deteriorate. The petitioner was thereafter served with an office order dated 2/4 May 2016 issued under signatures of the Registrar stating that a Committee comprising of Professor Udai Shankar, Professor S.K. Srivastava and Dr. P.K. Singh has been constituted for holding an enquiry against the petitioner for (i) not occupying the official accommodation reserved for hostel superintendent; (ii) offering resignation from the post of Hostel Superintendent; (iii) not uploading the attendance of the students; (iv) not taking the prescribed classes and (v) installing air conditioner in the Transit Hostel without permission from the University authorities. The Committee was required to hold an enquiry and submit its report within seven days. The Committee summoned the petitioner on 14 May 2016. The petitioner appeared before the Committee on the assigned date and time. According to the petitioner, the Committee asked certain questions from her and required her to submit explanation in writing by 4:00 p.m. on 26 May 2016. In this regard, the Chairperson of the enquiry Committee also issued an order in writing on 19 May 2016 requiring her to submit her written explanation in regard to (a) not vacating the accommodation allotted to her on temporary basis; (b) not occupying the accommodation allotted to her as Hostel Superintendent; (c) installing air conditioner in Transit Hostel without permission; (d) failing to discharge her duties by not taking the prescribed classes and (e) not uploading the attendance of the students on the web portal at regular intervals. She was also required to furnish information as to whether any male employee is working in girls hostel and to disclose the name of the persons living alongwith her in the accommodation she was occupying.

7. The petitioner claims to have offered explanation in writing on all the points on 23 May 2016. According to the petitioner, nothing further happened before the enquiry Committee and abruptly, she was served with an order dated 6 June 2016 by the Registrar communicating the decision of the Board of Management of the University taken in the meeting held on the same date dispensing her services under Clause 3 (b) of the Appointment Order by giving one month's salary in lieu of notice. The order of the Registrar reiterates the charges on which her explanation was sought by the enquiry Committee and further states that she has been found guilty of the charges levelled against her. This was held to be a violation of the terms and conditions of the Appointment Order and the Employees Conduct Rules. Aggrieved, the petitioner has preferred the instant writ petition.

8. The University has filed a counter affidavit in which it has tried to justify its action in dispensing with the services of the petitioner. It is pleaded that the petitioner was obliged to discharge administrative responsibilities assigned on her as per Clause 4 of the appointment order but she failed to discharge the same by offering resignation as Hostel Superintendent and by refusing to occupy the residence reserved for the person holding that post. It is alleged that Quarter No.G/IV/06 allotted to the petitioner in the beginning was the Transit hostel meant for the temporary housing only and after she had been allotted the accommodation reserved for Hostel Superintendent, her insistence to continue in occupation of the Transit Hostel was wholly unjustified. The act of the petitioner in installing the air conditioner in an accommodation which she had been asked to vacate was an act of gross misconduct. The University was therefore compelled to hold an enquiry into these repeated acts of misconduct by constituting a three member Enquiry Committee.

9. The reason why the Board did not find the petitioner suitable for continuing as Assistant Professor has been disclosed in para 28 of the counter affidavit in the following words:-

"Board of Management did not find petitioner suitable for continuing as Assistant Professor in view of petitioner found to be guilty of various misconducts such as non-compliance of orders, offer to resign from assignments, unpardonable academic impropriety of granting attendance to the absent students for making them overcome shortfall of their attendance and facilitating their appearance in examination, which was not possible otherwise as these students actually did not attend requisite classes, not taking classes regularly, failure to upload attendance regularly, unauthorized installation of air conditioner in temporary premises when proper allotment of another accommodation was made to petitioner."

10. In para 29 of the counter affidavit it is asserted that the action of the petitioner in "granting attendance to anyone absent in the class and recommending for allowing the students in examination based on such forge attendance" amounts to "academic fraud" and casts doubt on her "integrity". It is claimed that these acts of serious misconduct on part of the petitioner were considered by the Board of Management and it resolved to terminate the services of the petitioner. Since she was a probationer, as such the termination of her service has been effected by passing a simple order of discharge as provided under Clause 3 (b) of the appointment order. The termination of the service of the petitioner by means of a simple order of discharge is neither stigmatic nor punitive but strictly in terms of the appointment order.

11. The tenure of a probationer or a temporary employee as the term connotes is of a precarious nature. The employer has a greater degree of latitude available to him to dispense with the service of such an employee. He can adopt one of the two modes. A simple order of discharge often called as 'termination simplicitor' in terms of the contract of the service or the rules governing such an employee could be passed. Generally that is possible by giving one month notice or pay in lieu thereof. In such a case, the order is not considered punitive, nor disentitles an employee to re-employment. Consequently, neither Article 311 applies nor a regular disciplinary enquiry is required to be conducted. However, in case the employer chooses to terminate the service on the ground of misconduct, he is required to hold an enquiry, prove the guilt and comply with the requirements of Article 311, in case it is applicable. The reason being that such an order is stigmatic in nature and thus, requires an enquiry to be held in compliance of the provisions enshrined in the Constitution and/or the service rules, as the case may be. This position, however, gets complicated when the employer ostensibly adopting the first course, infact, terminates the service on account of the misconduct of the employee. The order of termination of service may still be couched in innocuous language not reflective of the fact that the order of discharge had its genesis in a delinquency which in the wisdom of the employer stands established. Dealing with such situations, there are plethora of judgments of the Supreme Court, some of which were also referred to by learned counsel for the parties. Instead of taking a detour through these judgments, we find it convenient to quote the following paragraphs from the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Radhey Shyam Gupta Vs. U.P. State Agro Industries Corporation Ltd. and another[1] which succinctly takes note of the development of law on the subject:-

"18. The first decision of the Constitution Bench was in Parshottam Lal Dhingra vs. Union of India[2]. There a twin test was laid down - whether the order in terms of the appointment gave a right to terminate and whether the order was punitive in nature. If misconduct was the motive, the order was not punitive but if it was the foundation, it was punitive. In that case, the employee was working in a higher post in an officiating capacity and that appointment was terminated and he was reduced in rank. S.R. Das, C.J. stated (para 28) (p 49) that misconduct, negligence, inefficiency or other disqualification might be the motive or the inducing factor which influenced the Government to take action under the terms of the contract of employment or the specific service rule, and the motive was irrelevant. But if the termination was "founded" on misconduct, negligence, inefficiency or other disqualification, it would have to be treated as a punishment. It was also held that the use of the word "termination" or "discharge" was not conclusive. In spite of the use of such innocuous expressions, the Court could still hold it to be punitive. On the facts of the case the termination of the officiating appointment was based upon certain adverse remarks and it was held that it was not by way of punishment.

19. Next came the decision of the Constitution Bench in State of Bihar vs. Gopi Kishore Prasad[3]. Here a test of "enquiry" was laid down. That was a case of a probationer. The Government had come to the conclusion on enquiry that the respondent was unsuitable for the post held on probation. Because of the enquiry, Sinha, C.J. held this to be "clearly by way of punishment". Termination (without notice) but after holding an enquiry into the alleged misconduct or inefficiency or some similar reason would be punitive. Government could not "brand him dishonest and incompetent without enquiry". If it did so, it would be by way of punishment, but not if the position "was that he was found unsuitable", without holding an enquiry. Both Dhingra[2] and Gopi Kishore Prasad[3] were decided when the law in this branch was just developing.

20. However Shah, J. (as he then was) in State of Orissa vs. Ram Narayan Das[4] gave a new dimension to the legal principles. That case also related to a probationer but was governed by Rule 55-B of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules which was a special provision and which stated:

"Where it is proposed to terminate the employment of a probationer, whether during or at the end of the period of probation, for any specific fault or on account of his unsuitability for the service, the probationer shall be apprised of the grounds of such proposal and given an opportunity to show cause against it, before orders are passed by the authority competent to terminate the employment."

If the test of "enquiry" laid down by Sinha, CJ was to be applied, every termination of a probationer made by following the rule and conducting an enquiry would become punitive. The "enquiry test" (as pointed out by Krishna Iyer, J. in Samsher Singh case[5]) broke down. A new test had to be invented. Therefore Shah, J. (as he then was) laid down a new test which required that one should look into "object or purpose of the enquiry" and not merely hold the termination to be punitive merely because of an antecedent enquiry. J.C. Shah, J (as he then was) said:

"Whether it amounts to an order of dismissal depends upon the nature of the enquiry, if any, the proceedings taken therein and the substance of the final order passed on such enquiry."

21. The learned Judge pointed out that the employed being a probationer, "the enquiry against the respondent was for ascertaining whether he was fit to be confirmed". (emphasis supplied) His Lordship pointed out that this enquiry was not of the same nature as an enquiry into charges of misconduct, negligence, inefficiency or other disqualification. On the facts of the case, the termination of a probationer was upheld inasmuch as the purpose of the enquiry was to find out if the employee could be confirmed. The purpose of the enquiry was not to find out if he was guilty of any misconduct, negligence, inefficiency or other disqualification.

22. We then come to the third case decided by the Constitution Bench in Madan Gopal vs State of Punjab[6]. Here Shah, J. (as he then was), applied the same principle laid down earlier by him but in this case, he held that the order was punitive. That was a case of a temporary employee. There was a report of the Settlement Officer about the "misconduct" of the employee and the termination was based on the said report. It was, therefore, held that though the order of termination was an order simpliciter, still the Court could go behind the same and further, if the foundation was the finding as to misconduct, then the order was punitive. The termination order was quashed even though the employee participated therein because the statutory procedure for a regular departmental enquiry was not followed. Emphasis was again made on the "purpose of the enquiry". The distinction between the earlier case and this case was that while in Ram Narayan Das case[4], the enquiry was made to find out if the probationer could be continued and confirmed and was, therefore, not punitive, the position in the Madan Gopal case6 was that the enquiry by the Settlement Officer was to find out if the employee was guilty of misconduct. In fact, the termination order was based on the enquiry held behind his back and was held to be punitive. In Ranendra Chandra Banerjee vs. Union of India[7], being a case of a probationer to whom Rule 55-B of the Central Rules applied, Wanchoo J. (as he then was) upheld the order on the ground that the limited purpose of the enquiry was to find out whether he could be "retained or not" in the service. In other words, the enquiry was not with a view to see if the employee had misconducted in his duties. This case was similar to Ram Narayan Das case[4].

23. The theory of "object of the enquiry" was further emphasised by the Constitution Bench in Jagdish Mitter vs. Union of India[8]. That was a case of a temporary employee. The discharge from service was by way of an order "simpliciter". But there, an enquiry was held and the termination order was based on it as it stated on its face that it was "found undesirable" to retain the employee and hence his services were being terminated. The order was held to be punitive on its face and was quashed. Gajendragadkar, J. (as he then was) discussed the earlier cases and held that in every case the purpose of the enquiry was crucial. If the enquiry was held "only for the purpose of deciding whether the temporary servant should be continued or not", (emphasis supplied) it could not be treated as punitive and that the motive operating in the mind of the authority was not relevant. But "the from in which the order terminating the service is expressed will not be decisive". It was held:

"What the Court will have to examine in each case would be, having regard to the material facts existing up to the time of discharge, is the order of discharge, in substance one of dismissal ?" (emphasis supplied)

Therefore, the "form" was not of importance but the "substance" was.

24. Finally, we come to the seventh case, Champaklal Chimanlal Shah vs. Union of India[9], a case strongly relied upon by the learned counsel for the respondent, Shri J.M. Khanna. Here, it was the case of a preliminary enquiry which was intended to find out if a prima facia case was made out to start a regular departmental enquiry. The question was whether a termination order passed soon after the completion of the preliminary enquiry could be treated as punitive. Wanchoo, J. (as he then was) held that it could not be so held. Once the preliminary enquiry was over, it was open to the employer not to make a regular enquiry for proving the guilt of the employee. The employer could stop at that stage and pass a simple order of termination. The facts as gathered or revealed in the preliminary enquiry would be the "motive" and not the "foundation" since there was no enquiry as to their correctness made. The order could not be quashed as being punitive.

25. We finally come to the seven-Judge Judgment rendered in Samsher Singh vs. State of Punjab[5] to which we made a brief reference at the beginning of this Judgment. The case concerned two Judicial Officers. So far as the termination order passed against Sri Ishwar Chand Agarwal was concerned, it was quashed holding it to be punitive as it was based on the report of an enquiry officer appointed by the Director of Vigilance. The enquiry officer recorded statements of witnesses behind the back of the officer and definitive findings therein were the basis for the termination. It was not a preliminary enquiry. A.N.Ray, C.J. held that the object of the said enquiry was :

"to ascertain the truth of allegations of misconduct. Neither the report nor the statements recorded by the enquiry officer reached the appellant. The enquiry officer gave his findings on allegations of misconduct. ... The order of termination was because of the recommendations in the report.

The order of termination of the services of Ishwar Chand Agarwal is clearly by way of punishment in the facts and circumstances of the case.... The form of the order is not decisive as to whether the order is by way of punishment. Even an innocuously worded order terminating the service may, in the facts and circumstances of the case establish that an enquiry into allegations of serious and grave character of misconduct involving stigma has been made in infraction of the provision of Article 311. In such a case, the simplicity of the form of the order will not give any sanctity. That is exactly what has happened in the case of Ishwar Chand Agarwal. The order of termination is illegal and must be set aside." (emphasis supplied)

A.N.Ray, C.J.. wrote the opinion for himself and five other learned Judges. Krishna Iyer, J. wrote a separate but concurring Judgment where he referred to the new dimension to the law given by Shah, J. (as he then was) in the sixties. The learned Judge said that the words "form", "substance", "motive" and "foundation" were baffling and the need of the hour was a simple test.

26. If there was any difficulty as to what was "motive" or "foundation" even after Samsher Singh case5, the said doubts, in our opinion, were removed in Gujarat Steel Tubes vs. Gujarat Steel Tubes Mazdoor Sabha[10] again by Krishna Iyer, J. No doubt, it is a labour matter but the distinction so far as what is "motive" or "foundation" is common to labour cases and cases of employees in the government or the public sector. The learned Judge again referred to the criticism by Shri Tripathi in this branch of law as to what was "motive" or what was "foundation", a criticism to which reference was made in Samsher Singh case5. The clarification given by the learned Judge is, in our opinion, very instructive. It reads as follows:

"53. Masters and servants cannot be permitted to play hide and seek with the law of dismissals and the plain and proper criteria are not to be misdirected by terminological cover-ups or by appeal to psychic process but must be grounded on the substantive reason for the order, whether disclosed or undisclosed. The Court will find out from other proceedings or documents connected with the formal order of termination what the true ground for the termination is. If, thus scrutinised, the order has a punitive flavour in cause or consequence, it is dismissal. If it falls short of this test, it cannot be called a punishment. To put it slightly differently, a termination effected because the master is satisfied of the misconduct and of the consequent desirability of terminating the service of the delinquent servant, is a dismissal, even if he had the right in law to terminate with an innocent order under the standing order or otherwise. Whether, in such a case the grounds are recorded in a different proceeding from the formal order does not detract from its nature. Nor the fact that, after being satisfied of the guilt, the master abandons the enquiry and proceeds to terminate. Given an alleged misconduct and a live nexus between it and the termination of service the conclusion is dismissal, even if full benefits as on simple termination, are given and non-injurious terminology is used.

54. On the contrary, even if there is suspicion of misconduct the master may say that he does not wish to bother about it and may not go into his guilt but may feel like not keeping a man he is not happy with. He may not like to investigate nor take the risk of continuing a dubious servant. Then it is not dismissal but termination simpliciter, if no injurious record of reasons or punitive pecuniary cut-back on his full terminal benefits is found. For, in fact, misconduct is not then the moving factor in the discharge. We need not chase other hypothetical situations here." (emphasis supplied)

27. In other words, it will be a case of motive if the master, after gathering some prima facie facts, does not really wise to go into their truth but decides merely not to continue a dubious employee. The master does not want to decide or direct a decision about the truth of the allegations. But if he conducts an enquiry only for the purpose of proving the misconduct and the employee is not heard, it is a case where the enquiry is the foundation and the termination will be bad.

28. Subsequent to the above cases, there have been a number of other cases where the above principles have been applied. We shall refer to a few of them where some more principles have been discussed. In State of U.P. vs. Ram Chandra Trivedi[11] the employee's services were terminated as he allowed some other employees to impersonate him in an examination. The order was innocuous but the case was preceded by an enquiry and it was held that the petitioner in his pleadings had not made out a case for calling for departmental records to examine if it was a case of punishment. That was how this case was explained by Pathak, J. (as he then was) in State of Maharashtra vs. Veerappa R. Saboji[12]. In Anoop Jaiswal vs. Government of India[13] it was held while quashing the order of termination that it was open to the Court to go behind the order and find out if the report/recommendation of the superior authority was a camouflage and if that was the basis or foundation for the order, then the report/recommendation should be read along with the order for the purpose of determining the true character of termination. If on a reading of the two together, the Court reached the conclusion that the alleged finding of misconduct was the cause or basis of the order, and that but for the report containing such a finding, the order would not and could not have been passed, the termination order would have to fall to the ground as having been passed without the officer being afforded a reasonable opportunity. It was also held that it was wrong to presume that an order would be punitive only if a regular enquiry was conducted exparte or behind the back of the officer. Even if it was not a regular enquiry, any other enquiry where evidence was taken and findings were arrived at behind the back of the officer, would make the subsequent termination bad. Vankataramiah, J. (as he then was) pointed out in the above case the shift in the law as brought about by Samsher Singhs case[5].

12. Thus, in Radhey Shyam Gupta (supra) the Supreme Court reiterated the principle that when motive behind the enquiry is to ascertain the suitability of an employee, the consequent discharge is not punitive. On the other hand, when the purpose of the enquiry is to establish the guilt on part of the employee, the termination order though worded innocuously, would not detract from its nature of being an order of dismissal. It is wholly immaterial that the grounds are recorded in a different proceeding other than the order of discharge. The courts are empowered to pierce the veil and find out the real intention behind the passing of the order.

13. In a recent decision of the Supreme Court in Ratnesh Kumar Choudhary Vs. Indira Gandhi Institute of Medical Sciences, Patna, Bihar and others[14] the issue was whether the termination of the service of the appellant was a termination simplicitor as the order purported to be or was punitive in nature. The appellant was a Chest Therapist in Indira Gandhi Institute of Medical Sciences. A complaint was made against him that his appointment was illegal as infact he was the applicant for the post of Physiotherapist but was wrongly considered for appointment on the post of Chest Therapist. His service was terminated in terms of the investigation carried out by the Vigilance department. The Government tried to justify its action by contending that termination simplicitor was permissible as per the conditions of the appointment order, whereas the appellant contended that the motive behind the enquiry was to ascertain the truth of various allegations of misconduct and consequently, it was stigmatic in nature. The Supreme Court noticed that the report that was submitted by the Vigilance department mentions about the conduct and character of the appellant. It indicated misconduct, misbehaviour and disobedience on part of the appellant. The counter affidavit filed by the department reiterated the misbehaviour on part of the appellant. In the aforesaid background facts, the Supreme Court held that:

"The stigma has been cast in view of the report received by the Central Vigilance Commission which was ex parte and when that was put to the delinquent employee, holding of a regular enquiry was imperative. It was not an enquiry only to find out that he did not possess the requisite qualification. Had that been so, the matter would have been altogether different. The allegations in the report of the Vigilance Department pertain to his misbehaviour, conduct and his dealing with the officers and the same also gets accentuated by the stand taken in the counter affidavit. Thus, by no stretch of imagination it can be accepted that it is termination simpliciter."

14. Applying these principles to the facts of the instant case, we have no hesitation in holding that the impugned order of discharge is punitive in nature, as it has its foundation in the charges which, according to the respondents, stood established in the enquiry held by the three member Committee. The three member Committee found that (a) offer of resignation by the petitioner from the post of Hostel Superintendent is reflective of her lackadaisical attitude and is violative of condition no.4 of the appointment order; (b) installation of air conditioner in an accommodation allotted to her on temporary basis without permission is reflective of her whimsical attitude and amounts to gross indiscipline; (c) failure to upload the attendance of the students on the web portal of the University periodically and awarding attendance to students whose attendance was short makes her integrity doubtful and her act unpardonable; (d) refusal on part of the petitioner to occupy the residence reserved for Hostel Superintendent was without any justifiable cause and the petitioner had thereby failed to discharge the responsibilities assigned to her; and (e) apart from not taking interest in discharging her duties as a teacher, she had tried to exert undue pressure on the University by making representations through her mother-in-law and the same is violative of Section 79 of the Employees Conduct Rules.

15. Undoubtedly, the Committee was not formed to adjudge the general suitability of the petitioner for the post held by her but to go into the veracity of the specific charges of misconduct. The Board of Management of the University in its meeting dated 6 June 2016 deliberated upon the report of the three member Committee and having found the petitioner guilty of misconduct, instead of passing an order of dismissal, chose to have recourse to Clause 3 (c) of the letter of appointment and terminated her service by giving one month salary in lieu of notice. The attending facts leading to the discharge of the petitioner leaves no manner of doubt that the foundation of the order is the alleged delinquency on part of the petitioner, which stood established in the enquiry held by the three member Committee.

16. Apart from what has been held above, this Court finds that in the instant case, it was not even necessary to dwell on these aspects, as the decision of the Board of Management dated 6 June 2016 is exfacie stigmatic. It holds the petitioner guilty of indiscipline, insubordination, non-cooperation, dereliction of duty and of being a person of doubtful integrity. Even in the communication issued by the Registrar on 6 June 2016 intimating the petitioner the decision of the Board of Management, it is explicitly recorded that the petitioner had been found guilty of misconduct and breach of various conditions of the order of appointment.

17. In Jagdish Mitter Vs. Union of India (supra) the Constitution Bench was considering the validity of order of discharge of an employee which was worded thus:-

"Jagdish Mitter, a temporary second division clerk of this office, having been found undesirable to be retained in Government service, is hereby served with a month's notice of discharge with effect from 1 November 1949."

18. The Supreme Court held that the word 'undesirable' casts aspersion on the employee and consequently, such an order could have been passed without complying with the provisions of Article 311 of the Constitution. The relevant observations made by the Supreme Court in this regard are as under:-

".....It seems that anyone who reads the order in a reasonable way, would naturally conclude that the appellant was found to be undesirable, and that must necessarily import an element of punishment which is the basis of the order and is its integral part. When an authority wants to terminate the services of a temporary servant, it can pass a simple order of discharge without casting any aspersion against the temporary servant or attaching any stigma to his character. As soon as it is shown that the order purports to cast an aspersion on the temporary servant, it would be idle to suggest that the order is a simple order of discharge. The test in such cases must be: Does the order cast aspersion or attach stigma to the officer when it purports to discharge him? If the answer to this question is in the affirmative, then notwithstanding the form of the order, the termination of service must be held, in substance, to amount to dismissal. That being so, we are satisfied that the High Court was in error in coming to the conclusion that the appellant had not been dismissed, but had been merely discharged."

19. In Jaswantsingh Pratapsingh Jadeja Vs. Rajkot Municipal Corporation and another[15] the Supreme Court held that where the language used in the order of termination of service of a probationer is exfacie stigmatic, the order is to be held punitive in nature. In that case, the appellant was found absent from duties and guilty of negligence and carelessness. He was discharged from service in accordance with the statutory provisions. The Supreme Court held thus:-

"9. The tests governing termination of probation are no longer res integra. When a disciplinary enquiry is initiated on the premise that there are serious allegations of misconduct on the part of the delinquent officer; his explanation thereupon had been rejected pursuant whereto a full scale formal enquiry has been initiated culminating in a finding of guilt, the order terminating the service would be held to be stigmatic. There may also be cases where the allegations involved moral turpitude on the part of the delinquent officer. The language used in the order of termination of service may ex facie be stigmatic. The language used therein may also show that there was something over and above the assertion that the officer was found unsuitable for the job. The aforementioned tests, however, are not exhaustive.

10. We may apply the said tests in the instant case. In the instant case, the language used in the impugned order is ex facie stigmatic. It referred to the earlier orders containing allegations of misconduct on the part of the appellant and the fact that he had been found guilty thereof. The appellant was said to have absented himself from duties. He had been found guilty of negligence, carelessness and showing absolute disregard towards his duties. A disciplinary proceeding was initiated therefor. His explanation to the show cause notice was rejected. He was, therefore, found guilty of the charges levelled against him. Only thereafter, he was discharged from service by reason of the impugned order dated 29.4.2003.

28. From the discussions made hereinbefore, it is evident that termination of services of the appellant purporting to discharge him simplicitor cannot be accepted, being stigmatic in nature. The form of the order terminating the services coupled with the background facts clearly leads to the conclusion that the order impugned in the writ petition by the appellant was punitive."

20. In Major Singh Vs. State of Punjab and others[16], the Supreme Court, considering the language used in the order, held it to be stigmatic, by holding thus:-

"4. Having heard learned Counsel for the parties, in our view, it is impossible on the facts of this case to sustain the impugned order of the High Court. The reason is obvious. A mere look at the termination order shows that aspersions regarding the conduct of the appellant have been cast in the order. Not only that but the order which consists of five pages read as a whole shows that the appellant is completely stigmatised. We may quote relevant extracts from the said impugned order of termination. In the first para it is stated that having considered the conduct and the work of the appellant it is mentioned that his knowledge of law and police rule is much less. He remains loose and weak on his duty. He is in the habit of remaining absent from his duty and in this connection his in-charge has warned him so many times. No special thing came to mind about his good character..... He is of violent type and confronting his companions. Then a list mentioning his earlier service record and punishments imposed on him is given. Three instances where censure punishment was imposed on him are mentioned. Thereafter, a detailed narration is made about his unsatisfactory work and then in the sixth para, referring to the appellant's own stand before the authorities, it is mentioned that in the opinion of the authority passing the order the appellant could not control himself and had made hooliganism after consuming liquor in the barracks. In the penultimate paragraph it is mentioned that in the details given above, it is proved that he is not fit to become a good police officer and he failed to submit a sound ground in his defence by appearing before him in person thus keeping him for more time in the department is not in the interest of department as well as of the nation (public) thus he dismissed constable Major Singh, No. 80/173 under Rule 12.21 on 14.2.92 afternoon from Government service.

5. To say the least, the order itself shows that the authority concerned was out to dismiss him from service because of his alleged misconduct as a police constable. It is difficult to appreciate how this order, the way it is couched and spread over five pages, could have been treated as an order discharging the appellant from service without casting any stigma as, with respect, wrongly assumed by the learned Single Judge of the High Court."

21. In the case at hand, the language employed in the order of discharge being exfacie stigmatic, we have no hesitation in holding that the order is punitive in nature. It cannot be characterised as a merely an order of discharge of a probationer on ground of unsuitability to the post.

22. Indisputably, the petitioner was an employee of the University as defined under Section 2 (h) of the Uttar Pradesh Madan Mohan Malviya University of Technology Act, 201317 and sub-clause (ii) of Statute 59 of the Uttar Pradesh Mandan Mohan Malviya University of Technology, Gorakhpur First Statute 201518. Under Statute 49 (5) the Board of Management has been invested with the power to remove an employee from service on grounds of misconduct. However, it could be done only after giving due opportunity to the employee. In the instant case, as noticed above, although a three member Committee was constituted by the Board of Management for enquiring into the imputations of misconduct against the petitioner but the enquiry Committee except for asking the petitioner to submit written explanation in relation to certain queries did not itself hold any oral enquiry nor granted any opportunity to the petitioner to lead evidence. Even a formal charge sheet was never issued to her. The same was not considered necessary as the respondents were harbouring under an impression that her services could be dispensed with by a simple order of discharge as the petitioner was a probationer. As held above, even in the case of a probationer where her services are sought to be dispensed with on grounds of misconduct, a regular disciplinary enquiry is required to be held. The same having not been done in the instant case, the impugned order terminating the service of the petitioner cannot be sustained and is hereby quashed.

23. Before parting with the case, it would be necessary to deal with another objection raised by learned counsel for the respondent University regarding availability of an alternative remedy to the petitioner by way of arbitration in accordance with Section 40 of the Act. Section 40 reads thus:-

"40. Tribunal of Arbitration. - (1) Any dispute, arising out of a contract of employment referred to in Section 4 between the University and the employee, or between the University and the existing employees in terms of the provisions of Section 4, shall be referred to tribunal of Arbitration which shall consist of one member nominated by the Board of Management, one member nominated by the employee concerned and an umpire to be nominated by the Chancellor.

(2) Every such reference shall be deemed to be a submission to arbitration on the terms of this section within the meaning of the Law of Arbitration as in force, and all the provisions of that Law with the exception of Section 2 thereof, shall apply accordingly.

(3) The procedure for regulating the work of the Tribunal of arbitration shall be such as may be prescribed.

(4) The decision of the Tribunal of Arbitration shall be final and binding on the parties, and no suit shall lie in any court in respect of any matter decided by the Tribunal."

24. A plain reading of Section 40 would indicate that not all dispute arising out of the contract of employment are referable to arbitration but only those which have been referred to in Section 4 of the Act.

25. Section 4 of the Act is as under:-

"4. Effect of incorporation of University. - On and from the commencement of this Act -

(1) any reference to the Madan Mohan Malaviya Engineering College, Gorakhpur in any law (other than this Act) or in any contract or other instrument shall be deemed as a reference to the University:

(2) all property, moveable and immovable, of or belonging to the Madam Mohan Malaviya Engineering College, Gorakhpur shall vest in the University;

(3) All the rights and liabilities of the Madan Mohan Malaviya Engineering College, Gorakhpur shall be transferred to, and be the rights and liabilities of the University;

(4) every person employed by the Madan Mohan Malaviya Engineering College, Gorakhpur immediately before the commencement of this Act shall hold his office or service in the University by the same tenure, at the same remuneration and upon the same terms and conditions and with the same rights and privileges as to pension, leave, gratuity, provident fund, and other matters as he would have held if this Act had not been passed, and shall continue to do so unless and until his employment is terminated or he has opted for the University's terms and conditions of employment;

(5) notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any other provision of this Act, existing students of the Madan Mohan Malaviya Engineering College, Gorakhpur who joined classes before the establishment of the University under Section 4 of this Act, shall continue to pursue their academic courses and programmes of study under the enrolment and affiliation of the Gautam Budh Technical University, Lucknow, which shall conduct examinations for them and award degrees to them upon successful completion of the courses and programmes of study they are pursuing there at presently."

26. A combined reading of these provisions would demonstrate that Section 40 contemplates reference of only those disputes between the employee and the University to the arbiral tribunal, which have come into existence as a result of Madan Mohan Malviya Engineering College, Gorakhpur being reconstituted as Madan Mohan Malviya University of Technology as per the provisions of the Act. In our considered opinion, the termination of the service of the petitioner, who was appointed much after the reconstitution of the Engineering College as an University under the Act, was not a dispute referable to Section 4. It would thus not be covered by Section 40 of the Act.

27. In consequence and for the reasons disclosed above, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned communication by the Registrar dated 6 June 2016 as well as the decision of the Board of Management of University of the even date are quashed.

28. No order as to costs.

Criminal Misc. Bail Application No.- 44639 Of 2015

Manjoor ...Applicant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Applicant:
Atul Kumar

Counsel for the Respondent:
G.A., N.I. Zafri

Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 304-B, 498-A & 201 and Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 — Ss. 3 & 4 — Dowry death — Bail — Applicant-father-in-law sought bail contending absence of specific allegations and non-presence at time of incident — Prosecution relied upon statement of deceased's sister-in-law alleging persistent demand of additional dowry, cruelty and physical assault by applicant and other family members — It was specifically alleged that deceased, while pregnant, was brutally beaten resulting in death of unborn child and thereafter deceased herself died due to further assault — Held, allegations disclose active complicity of applicant in offence of extreme cruelty and dowry death.

Criminal Law — Homicidal death within matrimonial home — Destruction of evidence — Dead body of deceased allegedly buried secretly by accused persons without informing police and was later exhumed on application moved by father of deceased — Post-mortem report revealed fracture of parietal bone and other ante-mortem injuries indicating homicidal death — Held, conduct of accused in clandestinely burying dead body prima facie constituted attempt to destroy evidence under S. 201 IPC.

Bail — Dowry death coupled with homicidal violence — Principles governing — In serious offences involving continuous cruelty for dowry, death of pregnant woman and concealment of evidence, no liberal approach warranted — Gravity of offence and specific role attributed to accused disentitle applicant from discretionary relief of bail.

Criminal Law — Common participation of family members — Inference — Court observed that after commission of offence, concealment and burial of corpse could not ordinarily be exclusive act of husband alone and prima facie indicated participation and assistance of other inmates of house including applicant.
In Result: Bail application rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. This application has been filed seeking the release of the applicant on bail in Case Crime No. 463 of 2015 u/ss 304B, 498A and 201 IPC and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station- Budhana District- Muzaffarnagar.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned A.G.A. and Sri N.I. Jafri, learned counsel for the complainant.

3. Perused the record.

4. Submission of learned counsel for the applicant is that the applicant is the father-in-law of the deceased and is an old man and was actually not present at the time of incident in the house. Further submission is that there are no specific allegations against the applicant and, therefore, the case of the applicant should be deemed to be distinguishable from the case of the husband, who alone may be presumed to be interested in the demand of additional dowry.

5. Learned AGA has opposed the prayer for bail and has drawn the attention of the Court to the statement of Smt. Gulfana, who is another daughter-in-law and was present in the house at the time of the incident. It has been narrated by witness Smt.Gulfana that after the marriage of the deceased the applicant and other family members were not satisfied with the dowry that was given and additional demands were extended. Ill-treatment was also meted out to the deceased and when the same situation continued a motorcycle was given by the father of the deceased again but that did not put an end to the cruel treatment to which the deceased was subjected. It was submitted that the deceased as well as this witness Smt.Gulfana, both were often beaten up. It has been specifically stated by this witness that the applicant Manjoor, and other co-accused Tahir, Nasir, Salim , sister-in-law Rukhsana and her husband used to demand additional dowry and also used to beat them. It has been specifically stated by this witness that on the day of occurrence all the aforesaid accused persons had badly beaten up the deceased, as a result of which, the child which she was carrying in her womb, died and the pregnancy got aborted and deceased gave birth to a still child. It has been further stated by this witness that the aforesaid dead child was buried by the accused persons and when the deceased regained her conscious she asked about the child on which the accused persons misbehaved and had again beaten her, as a result of which, she died. It has been emphasized by the learned AGA that the dead body of the deceased was buried with the purpose of destroying the evidence and it was only on the application of the father of the deceased that the dead body of the deceased had to be exhumed by the police and subjected to post mortem examination. It has been further emphasized by the learned AGA that the finding of the post mortem examination report would indicate that the deceased had died as result of homicidal death and her parietal bone was found fractured and some other injuries were also found on the body of the deceased. Next submission is that this is a case in which the extreme cruelty was meted out upon the deceased by the accused persons, as a result of which, both the child and mother have lost their lives. Further submission is that the post mortem report proves the murder of the deceased and the version given by this witness does not leave any doubt that the applicant is complicit in the crime. After committing murder in the house, none of the inmates furnished information to the police, which the law required them to do. To the contrary as the accomplices in the crime, the cadaver was carried and buried under the ground to give it a complexion of natural death. All this exercise can not be the exclusive conduct of the husband alone or for that matter the exclusive conduct of any solitary accused unaided by others. No liberal view in the matter is, therefore, called for.

6. Looking to the nature of offence, its gravity and the evidence in support of it and the overall circumstances of this case, this Court is of the view that the applicant has not made out a case for bail. Therefore, the prayer for bail of the applicant is rejected.

7. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

Writ C No.- 45176 Of 2016

Smt. Mohini Sharma ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Suresh C. Dwivedi, M.C. Chaturvedi

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

Constitution of India — Arts. 243-E, 243-Q & 243-U — Conversion of Gram Panchayat area into Nagar Palika Parishad — Effect on tenure of Gram Pradhan — Petitioner elected as Gram Pradhan for five years challenged cessation of her powers after constitution of Nagar Palika Parishad Khoda under U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 — Contention that tenure of elected Gram Pradhan could not be curtailed before expiry of five years — Held, once area is declared transitional/smaller urban area under Art. 243-Q read with Ss. 3 & 3-A of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, identity of Gram Panchayat ceases and provisions of Part IX of Constitution and U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 no longer apply to such area.

Municipal Law — Constitution of Municipality — Supersession of Panchayat administration — On inclusion of rural area within municipal limits, affairs of such area become governed by U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 by virtue of S. 5 thereof — Gram Panchayat cannot continue to function simultaneously after constitution of Municipality.

Constitution of India — Arts. 243-E & 243-U — Expression "unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force" — Interpretation — Constitutional protection of five-year tenure of Panchayat/Municipality subject to earlier dissolution in accordance with law — Once Municipality validly constituted under Art. 243-Q, existing Panchayat ceases to function notwithstanding unexpired tenure.

Municipal Law — Transitional administration — Validity of ad hoc committee — Under S. 333, U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, District Magistrate or committee appointed by him empowered to exercise powers and functions of Municipality till elected municipal body is constituted — Constitution of committee for interim administration held valid.

Local Self Government — Rural area converted into urban area — Consequence — Once State Government, considering factors such as population, density, revenue generation and non-agricultural activities, declares area as urban/transitional area, administration shifts from Panchayat regime under Part IX to municipal governance under Part IX-A of Constitution.

In Result: Writ petition dismissed; petitioner not entitled to continue as Gram Pradhan after constitution of Nagar Palika Parishad; interim administrative arrangement under S. 333 of U.P. Municipalities Act upheld.

(Delivered by Hon'ble V.K. Shukla, J.
Hon'ble Mahesh Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Smt. Mohini Sharma w/o Amar Pal Sharma, r/o Village Khoda, Block Loni, District Ghaziabad, is before this Court for following reliefs:

I. issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 20.7.2016 passed by the respondent no. 3, Commissioner, Meerut Division, Meerut.

II. issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent-authorities to allow the petitioner to continue to work and discharge her duties as Gram Pradhan, Gram Panchayat Khoda, Block Loni, District Ghaziabad till validly constituted Nagar Palika Parishad with all powers comes in existence.

III. issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus restraining the respondent-authorities from taking any action in pursuance of the impugned order dated 20.7.2016 and allow the petitioner to work as full fledged Gram Pradhan, Village Khoda, Block Loni, District Ghaziabad.

IV. issue such other and further writ, order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the nature and circumstances of the present case.

V. award costs of the petition to the petitioner.

2. Brief background of the case, as is emanating from the record, is that petitioner contested elections for the post of Gram Pradhan of Gram Panchayat Khoda, Block Loni, District Ghaziabad in the elections held somewhere in November-December 2015 and in the said elections petitioner was elected as Gram Pradhan and, thereafter, petitioner continued to perform and discharge her duties as Gram Pradhan of the aforesaid Gram Panchayat and it appears that thereafter Nagar Palika Parishad Khoda has been constituted under the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 and at the said point of time the State Government came up with the notification dated 30.3.2015 and at the end of the day Nagar Palika Parishad Khoda Makanpur, Block Loni, District Ghaziabad has come into existence. Petitioner, at the said juncture, preferred Writ Petition (MB) No. 13297 of 2016 [Mohini Sharma & others Vs. State of U.P. & others] assailing the notification dated 10.3.2016 issued in exercise of the powers under Article 243 (E) and Article 243 (Q) of the Constitution of India read with Section 3 of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. The ground of the said challenge was that since the tenure of the petitioners as the Pradhan and Member of the Gaon Sabha has not yet come to an end, the aforesaid delimitation and bringing the area within municipal limits is unconstitutional and consequential order dated 28.4.2016 was also prayed for wherein petitioners have been restrained from exercising financial powers in relation to the said area. The said challenge in question has been considered by the Division Bench and this Court has proceeded to pass the following order;

"Heard Sri H.G.S Parihar learned senior counsel assisted by Sri Sarvesh Kumar Dubey, learned counsel for the petitioners.

This writ petition has raised a two fold challenge one to the notification dated 10.03.2016 issued in exercise of the powers under Article 243(E) and Article 243 (Q) of the Constitution of India read with Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 on the ground that since the tenure of the petitioners as the Pradhan and Member of the Gaon Sabha has not yet come to an end, the aforesaid de-limitation and bringing of the area within Municipal limits is unconstitutional.

The second ground raised is that by virtue of such a notification a consequential order that has been passed on 28.04.2016 restraining the petitioners from exercising financial powers in relation to the said area is also ultravires the provisions of the Act and is equally unconstitutional.

To substantiate this submission, learned counsel for the petitioner has invited attention of the Court to the application dated 07.05.2016 filed before the District Magistrate a copy whereof is annexure no. 6 to the writ petition where the actual grievance of the petitioners have been entailed. It has been alleged therein that certain development work has already been carried out and as a result of the aforesaid action taken by the respondent, the payment for the said work already executed before has been withheld and therefore, the same deserves to be redressed.

We have heard learned counsel for the petitioners as well as the learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent nos. 1 to 4.

The first ground taken with regard to the impugned notification dated 10.03.2016 cannot be accepted inasmuch as the constitutional powers in order to notify an already existing local area as a municipal area is vested in the respondent under Article 243 Q read with Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act,1916. Since the power to do so is available we have not been able to find any error in the issuance of the said notification so as to strike down the same.

The major issue is with regard to the functions already undertaken and the development work carried out prior to any such action which is impugned herein particularly the orders relating to the operation of the financial accounts dated 28.04.2016. From a perusal of the application dated 07.05.2016, it appears that the petitioners allege to have carried out development work on five counts which are mentioned in the said applications, the payment whereof has not yet been made on account of the intervening order dated 28.05.2016.

In order to resolve this crisis, which clearly relates to the exercise of financial powers on account of such declaration of local area as being Nagar Palika Parishad, we find that under the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, the prescribed authority has been defined under Section 2 (17)(ii) as follows:-

(17)(ii)"Prescribed authority" means an officer or a body corporate appointed by the State Government in this behalf by notification in the Official Gazette and if no such officer or body corporate is appointed, the Commissioner:

Consequently this being a matter of financial administration the work already carried out under the auspices of the Gaon Sabha therefore has to be looked into, and if the work has been carried out in accordance with rules, then the issue with regard to the payments which are to be made in relation thereto has to be resolved as according to the petitioners the work has been actually carried out.

We therefore, find that it would be appropriate that the Commissioner of the division who is the prescribed authority of Nagar Palika Parishad can after calling for comments from his subordinate officers including the District Magistrate proceed to examine the said claim of the petitioners as it requires to be resolved if the expenses have been actually incurred. Consequently the payment will have to be released if the development work has been carried out in accordance with rules.

The Commissioner Meerut respondent no.2 shall therefore now proceed to deal with the matter in view of what has been stated above and issue necessary instructions or pass appropriate orders, if it is within his jurisdiction in relation thereto and inform the Gaon Sabha concerned of which the petitioner no.1 claiming herself to be elected Gram Pradhan.

Needless to mention that the elections of the Gaon Sabha were held very recently in the year 2015. In such a situation, this financial administration in this peculiar circumstances, therefore, requires to be resolved. The Commissioner shall pass orders expeditiously and preferably within three weeks' from the date of production a certified copy of this order.

In the event Commissioner finds that the matter has to be brought to the notice of the State Government for resolution of any such dispute in the absence of any jurisdiction, then the same shall be dispatched forthwith and the State Government will also be obliged to take a decision within the said period.

With these directions, the writ petition is disposed off."

3. Pursuant to the order passed by this Court the claim in question has been considered and same has been turned down by informing the petitioner that once the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 has come into force, then till the committee in question has not been constituted, the ad-hoc committee would function. Petitioner at this juncture is assailing the validity of the aforementioned order before this Court.

4. Sri Amit Saxena, Advocate, duly assisted by Sri Anubhav Shukla, Advocate, submitted before this Court that merely because a notification in question has been issued for constitution of Nagar Palika Parishad, same would not automatically ipso facto curtail the tenure for which the petitioner has been elected and, in view of this, this Court should come to rescue and reprieve of the petitioner and permit the petitioner to complete her tenure as Gram Pradhan.

5. Learned Standing Counsel, on the other hand, has contended that once the Gram Panchayat has already come to an end after establishment of Nagar Palika Parishad Khoda, then by no stretch of imagination, petitioner, who has been elected as Gram Pradhan, can be permitted to continue and action, that has been so undertaken, is strictly in accordance with the law, as such, no interference be made by this Court and writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

6. After respective arguments have been advanced the factual situation that is so emerging before us is that Part IX has been inserted in the Constitution of India by the Constitution (73rd) Amendment Act, 1992 and the underlying purpose of Part IX is to create democratic decentralisation for ensuring that traditionally marginalised groups should progressively gain foothold in local self government. Article 243-A deals with the Gram Sabha, Article 243-B deals with the Constitution of Panchayats, Article 243-C deals with the Composition of Panchayats, Article 243-D deals with the Reservation of Seats and Article 243-E deals with Duration of Panchayats etc. in following terms;

"243-E. Duration of Panchayats, etc.- (1) Every Panchayat, unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force, shall continue for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting and no longer.

(2) No amendment of any law for the time being in force shall have the effect of causing dissolution of a Panchayat at any level, which is functioning immediately before such amendment, till the expiration of its duration specified in clause (1).

(3) An election to constitute a Panchayat shall be completed--

(a) before the expiry of its duration specified in clause (1);

(b) before the expiration of a period of six months from the date of its dissolution:

Provided that where the remainder of the period for which the dissolved Panchayat would have continued is less than six months, it shall not be necessary to hold any election under this clause for constituting the Panchayat

(4) A Panchayat constituted upon the dissolution of a Panchayat before the expiration of its duration shall continue only for the remainder of the period for which the dissolved Panchayat would have continued under clause (1) had it not been so dissolved."

7. Article 243-K deals with the Elections of Panchayats in following terms;

"243-K. Elections to the Panchayats.-(1) The superintendence, direction and control of the preparation of electoral rolls for, and the conduct of, all elections to the Panchayats shall be vested in a State Election Commission consisting of a State Election Commissioner to be appointed by the Governor.

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made by the Legislature of a State the conditions of service and tenure of office of the State Election Commissioner shall be such as the Governor may by rule determine:

Provided that the State Election Commissioner shall not be removed from his office except in like manner and on the like ground as a Judge of a High Court and the conditions of service of the State Election Commissioner shall not be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

(3) The Governor of a State shall, when so requested by the State Election Commission, make available to the State Election Commission such staff as may be necessary for the discharge of the functions conferred on the State Election Commission by clause (1).

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Legislature of a State may, by law, make provision with respect to all matters relating to, or in connection with, elections to the Panchayats."

8. Part IX-A has also been introduced by means of Constitution 74th Amendments, 1992 and the purpose and objectives of IX-A is to create hierarchical structure of elected local bodies, democratic decentralisation, greater accountability between citizens and State apparatus and empowerment of weaker sections.

9. Article 243-Q deals with Constitution of Municipalities in following terms;

"243-Q. Constitution of Municipalities.- (1) There shall be constituted in every State,-

(a) a Nagar Panchayat (by whatever name called) for a transitional area, that is to say, an area in transition from a rural area to an urban area;

(b) a Municipal Council for a smaller urban area; and

(c) a Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area, in accordance with the provisions of this Part:

Provided that a Municipality under this clause may not be constituted in such urban area or part thereof as the Governor may, having regard to the size of tile area and the municipal services being provided or proposed to be provided by an industrial establishment in that area and such other factors as he may deem fit, by public notification, specify to be an industrial township

(2) In this article, "a transitional area", "a smaller urban area" or "a larger urban area" means such area as the Governor may, having regard to the population of the area, the density of the population therein, the revenue generated for local administration, the percentage of employment in non agricultural activities, the economic importance or such other factors as he may deem fit, specify by public notification for the purposes of this Part."

10. Article 243-R deals with the Composition of Municipalities in following terms;

"243-R. Composition of Municipalities.- (1) Save as provided in clause (2), all the seats in a Municipality shall be filled by persons chosen by direct election from the territorial constituencies in the Municipal area and for this purpose each Municipal area shall be divided into territorial constituencies to be known as wards.

(2) The Legislature of a State may, by law, provide-

(a) for the representation in a Municipality of-

(i) persons having special knowledge or experience in Municipal administration;

(ii) the members of the House of the People and the members of the Legislative Assembly of the State representing constituencies which comprise wholly or partly the Municipal area;

(iii) the members of the Council of States and the members of the Legislative Council of the State registered electors within tile Municipal area;

(iv) the Chairpersons of the Committees constituted under clause (5) of article 243-S:

Provided that the persons referred to in paragraph (i) shall not have the right to vote in the meetings of the Municipality;

(b) the manner of election of the Chairperson of a Municipality."

11. Article 243-S deals with the Constitution and composition of Wards Committees, etc. and Article 243-W deals with the powers, authority and responsibilities of Municipalities etc., as follows;

"243-W. Powers, authority and responsibilities of Municipalities, etc.- Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Legislature of a State may, by law, endow-

(a) the Municipalities with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as institutions of self government and such law may contain provisions for the devolution of powers and responsibilities upon Municipalities, subject to such conditions as may be specified therein, with respect to ----

(i) the preparation of plans for economic development and social justice;

(ii) the performance of functions and the implementation of schemes as may be entrusted to them including those in relation to the matters listed in the Twelfth Schedule;

(b) the Committees with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to carry out the responsibilities conferred upon them including those in relation to the matters listed in the Twelfth Schedule."

12. Article 243-ZA deals with the Elections to the Municipalities and Article 243-ZF deals with the Continuance of existing laws and Municipalities.

13. On these constitutional provisions, that have been noted above, what we find in the present case is that as far as petitioner is concerned at the point of time when she has been elected as Gram Pradhan, her elections in question was governed under the provisions of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947. Section 3 of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 deals with the Gram Sabha that proceeds to make a mention that State Government shall by notification in the Official Gazette establish a Gram Sabha for a village or group of villages by such name as may be specified and she has been elected to represent such body for five years.

14. Chapter III-A deals with the Gram Panchayats and provides under Section 11-A that there shall be a Pradhan of the Gram Panchayat, who shall be the chairperson thereof. Section 11-B deals with the Election of Pradhan, which is as follows;

"11-B. Election of Pradhan - (1) The Pradhan of the Gram Panchayat shall be elected by the persons registered in the electoral rolls for the territorial constituencies of the Panchayat area from amongst themselves.

(2) If at any general election to a Gram Panchyat, the Pradhan is not elected, and less than two-thirds of the total number of members of Gram Panchayat are elected, the State Government or an officer authorized by it in this behalf may, by order, either appoint -

(i) an Administrative Committee consisting of such number of persons qualified to be elected as members of the Gram Panchayat, as it may consider propert; or

(ii) an Administrator

(3) The members of the Administrative Committee or the Administrator shall hold office for such period not exceeding six months as the State Government may specify in the order referred to in sub-section (2).

(4) On the appointment of an Administrative Committee or and Administrator under sub-section (2), the person, if any, chosen as Pradhan or member of the Gram Panchayat before such appointment shall cease to be such Pradhan or member, as the case may be, and all powers, functions and duties of the Gram Panchayat, its Pradhan and Committees shall vest in and be exercised, performed and discharged by such administrative committee or the Administrator, as the case may be.

(5) The Administrative Committee or the Administrator shall be deemed to be duly constituted Gram Panchayat for the purposes of this Act :

Provided that if at any time after the appointment of the Administrative Committee or the Administrator under sub-section (2) the State Government is satisfied that there is no difficulty in duly constituting the Gram Panchayat, the State Government may, notwithstanding that the period for which the Administrative Committee or the Administrator had been appointed has not expired, direct the State Election Commission for holding the elections for constituting the Gram Panchayat.

(6) Except as otherwise provide in this Act, the term of office of Pradhan shall be coterminus with the term of the 'Gram Panchayat'."

15. Section 11-F deals with the Declaration of Panchayat area and Section 12 deals with the Gram Panchayat. Thus from the provisions, quoted above, this much is clear that there has to be constituted for every panchayat area a Gram Panchayat which would be a body corporate and shall consist of a Pradhan. Gram Panchayat, unless sooner dissolved would continue for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting and no longer.

16. In reference of authority conferred under Article 243-Q of the Constitution read with Sections 3 and 3-A of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, for every transitional area and urban area there has to be a municipality. Sections 3 and 3-A of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 are extracted below;

"3. Declaration etc. of transitional area and smaller urban area.- (1) Any area specified by the Governor in a notification under clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution with such limits as are specified therein to be a transitional area or a smaller urban area, as the case may be.

(2) The Governor may, by a subsequent notification under clause (2) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution, include or exclude any area in or from a transitional area or a smaller urban area referred to in sub-section (1), as the case may be.

(3) [The notifications referred to in sub-sections (1) and (2) shall be subject to the condition of the notification being issued after the previous publication required by Section 4 and notwithstanding anything in this section, no area which is, or is part of, a cantonment shall be declared to be a transitional area or a smaller urban area or be included therein under this section.]

Section 3 of the Act which deals with the functions, powers and duties of the Municipal Council, provides that any area can be included in the existing area of Municipal Council by a subsequent notification under Article 243-Q but the same shall be subject to the formalities to be observed under Section 4 of the Act.

3-A. Municipality for every transitional area and smaller urban area.- [(1) A municipality constituted under clause (1) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution in accordance with Part IX-A thereof shall,-

(a) for every transitional area, be known as the Nagar Panchayat;

(b) for every smaller urban area be known as the Municipal Council.]

(2) Every Nagar Panchayat or Municipal Council constituted under sub-section (1), shall be a body corporate.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in sub-section (1),-

(a) every Municipal Board existing immediately before the commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Local Self Government Laws (Amendment) Act, 1994, shall [from such commencement and until the first constitution of the Municipal Council under this Act as amended by the said Act] be deemed to be a Municipal Council under the Act;

(b) every notified area committee constituted under Section 338 or Town Area Committee constituted under the Uttar Pradesh Town Areas Act, 1914, as it stood immediately before the commencement of the Act referred to in clause (a), shall [from such commencement and until the first constitution of the Nagar Panchayat under this Act, as amended by the Act referred to in clause (a)] be deemed to be a Nagar Panchayat under this Act.]"

17. Section 5 deals with the effect of including area in transitional area or smaller urban area, as follows;

"5. Effect of including area in [transitional area or smaller urban area].- [Whereby a notification referred to in sub-section (2) of Section 3 the Governor includes any area] in a [transitional area or smaller urban area], such area shall thereby become subject to all notifications, rules, regulations, bye-laws, orders, directions, issued or made under this or any other enactment and in force throughout the [transitional area or smaller urban area], at the time immediately preceding the inclusion of the area."

18. A bare perusal of the Section 5 of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, would go to show that whereby a notification referred to in sub-section (2) of Section 3 the Governor includes any area in a transitional area or smaller urban area, such area shall thereby become subject to all notifications, rules, regulations, bye-laws, orders, directions, issued or made under this or any other enactment and in force throughout the transitional area or smaller urban area, at the time immediately preceding the inclusion of the area. Thus the affairs of the same will have to be governed under the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 and it may be true that Pradhan in question has been elected for a period of five years but once the very identity of the Gram Panchayat in question has been lost on account of inclusion of such area, then the provisions of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947, would not at all operate and same will have to be governed under the provisions of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. Any other view would tantamount to diluting the provisions of Section 5 of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916.

19. Apex Court in the case of State of Maharashtra Vs. Deep Narain Chavan, 2002 (10) SCC 565, while considering the arguments advanced that once Municipal Council is constituted, then its duration shall be five years in accordance with constitutional provisions contained in Article 243-O, has ruled while considering the expression "unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force", that the moment Corporation is constituted in accordance with law, the elected Municipal Council would cease to function.

20. Article 243-E deals with duration of Panchayat, Article 243-U deals with duration of Municipalities and both the constitutional provisions share in common the expression "unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force". Once Governor takes a call for constitution of municipality in exercise of authority conferred under the constitution namely Article 243-Q that specifically refers to three type of municipalities i.e. Nagar Panchayat for transitional area, a Municipal Council for a smaller urban area and Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area, the moment declaration is made under Article 243-Q read with Section 3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, by the State Government, then the said municipal body would be a sovereign body having both constitutional and statutory status. As already noted in the earlier part of the judgement, the constitutional as well as statutory provisions pertaining to 'Panchayats' would go to show that object of Part IX of the Constitution was to introduce the panchayat system at grass root level and strengthen the panchayat system by giving uniform constitutional vibrant units of administration in the rural area so that there can be rapid implementation of rural development sector. Once there is complete transformation from rural area to urban area having regard to population of area, the density of population therein, the revenue generated from local administration, the percentage of employment in non-agricultural activities, the economic importance and other factors, made by the State Government, then the said area is denoted in the notification would be out from the purview of Part IX of the Constitution and the provisions of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 and the affairs of the said area treating the same to be urban area would be covered by the provisions of Part IX A of Constitution alongwith the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916.

21. For ready reference Section 333 of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 is quoted below;

"333. Exercise by District Magistrate of [Municipality's] power pending establishment of [Municipality].- When a new municipality is created under this Act, the District Magistrate, or other officer, or committee, or authority appointed by him in this behalf, may until a [Municipality] is established, exercise the powers and perform the duties and functions of the [Municipality], and, he or it shall, for the purposes, aforesaid be deemed to be the [Municipality].

Provided always that the District Magistrate or such other officer, or committee, or authority shall, as early as possible, make preliminary arrangements for the holding of first elections and generally of expediting the assumption by the [Municipality] of its duties when constituted."

22. Section 333 proceeds to mention that when a new municipality is created under this Act, then a committee has to be constituted and the said committee would look after the affairs of the said municipality.

23. Once the Gram Panchayat in question has ceased to exist and provisions of the Part IX of the Constitution and U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 cannot be further pressed into service and declaration of transitional area and smaller urban area has been made, a new municipality has been constituted to look after the affairs of the new body, then under Section 333 of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, headed by the District Magistrate there has to be a Committee to look after the affairs of the Municipality and in the said direction once the action has been taken, wherein petitioner has also been co-opted as one of the Member of the said Committee, then there is no infirmity in the same.

24. Writ petition lacks merit and same is dismissed, accordingly.

Criminal Appeal No. - 322 Of 1983

Mohan & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
P.N. Mishra, G. R. S. Pal

Counsel for the Respondent:
A.G.A.

This appeal has been directed against the judgment and order dated 08.02.1983 passed by the learned Special Sessions Judge, Budaun in Sessions Trial No. 72 of 1982 (State Vs. Mohan and others) convicting the accused-appellants Mohan, Shiam Lal, Sita Ram and Har Bilas under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and sentencing each of them for life imprisonment.

According to the prosecution case about 4 or 5 months before this incident, theft of 2 or 3 pipes allegedly took place from the tube-well of the appellant no.1. In this incident of theft the appellant no.1 suspected the complicity of the deceased, with whom some altercation was alleged to have taken place in which the appellant no.1 was said to have threatened the deceased "to realize the cost of stolen pipes from his skin". Thereafter, on 26.01.1982 (Tuesday) at about noon, it was alleged by the informant that all the four accused persons arrived at the house of the informant in a group and took the deceased along with them on the pretext of thrashing sugarcane. The appellants going together with the deceased were alleged to be seen by Babu (PW-2) also. On the same evening, at about 6.00 p.m. one Natthu (PW-1), who was returning to his home, had seen the appellants on the well of appellant no.1 Mohan where they were beating the deceased and threatening him by saying "to realize the cost of the pipes from his skin". Natthu (PW-1) at once informed this part of the incident to the informant Khamani (PW-4). On getting the said information, the informant, father of the deceased along with several other persons of his vicinity went to the place of the said incident to rescue his son, but his son was untraceable and the appellants, too, had disappeared from the village.

Thus, in the light of the above discussions, we are not in agreement with the finding and conclusions arrived at by the learned trial judge and are satisfied that the conviction of the appellants in this case cannot be sustained and the appeal ought to be allowed. Accordingly, the conviction of the surviving appellants Sita Ram and Har Bilas for the offences under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC is set aside and consequently, the appeal is allowed.

The appellants are in jail.It is very unfortunate. Therefore, while directing the concerned jail authority to get the surviving appellants set at liberty forthwith, if not required in any other case, we are compelled to direct the State Government to take recourse to proper medical treatment and their rehabilitation in society, if they or their family members are in capable to provide.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Kumar Mukherjee, J.)

1. This appeal has been directed against the judgment and order dated 08.02.1983 passed by the learned Special Sessions Judge, Budaun in Sessions Trial No. 72 of 1982 (State Vs. Mohan and others) convicting the accused-appellants Mohan, Shiam Lal, Sita Ram and Har Bilas under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and sentencing each of them for life imprisonment.

2. It is relevant to mention here that while hearing of this appeal, it has been noticed by us that during the pendency of this appeal, the appellant no. 1 Mohan and appellant no. 2 Shiam Lal have died, therefore, the appeal filed on their behalf stands abated by a Coordinate Bench of this Court vide order dated 04.04.2014. As such the appeal on behalf of the remaining surviving appellant no. 3 Sita Ram and appellant no. 4 Har Bilas, who are presently detained in jail, is being disposed of by this judgment.

3. The appellants have filed the present appeal against the aforementioned judgment and order dated 08.02.1983 on the ground that the conviction of the appellants is against the weight of the evidence on record and the sentence awarded to them is too severe.

4. The brief fact of the prosecution case is that deceased Nankoo son of the informant Khamani (PW-4) aged about 30 years and the accused appellants no. 1 and 2 Mohan and Shiam Lal are the residents of village Lakhanpur, P.S. Moosajhag, District Budaun. It is alleged that the appellant Shiam Lal is the neighbour and associate of the appellant no.1 Mohan. Rest of the accused-appellants no. 3 and 4 Sita Ram and Har Bilas are the real brothers and they are residents of village Kakora, P.S. Qadar Chowk, District Budaun. Both appellants no. 3 and 4 are alleged to be the bonded labourers of appellant no.1 Mohan. It is also alleged that at the time of occurrence the deceased was also working as a labourer under the employment of the appellant no.1 Mohan.

5. According to the prosecution case about 4 or 5 months before this incident, theft of 2 or 3 pipes allegedly took place from the tube-well of the appellant no.1. In this incident of theft the appellant no.1 suspected the complicity of the deceased, with whom some altercation was alleged to have taken place in which the appellant no.1 was said to have threatened the deceased "to realize the cost of stolen pipes from his skin". Thereafter, on 26.01.1982 (Tuesday) at about noon, it was alleged by the informant that all the four accused persons arrived at the house of the informant in a group and took the deceased along with them on the pretext of thrashing sugarcane. The appellants going together with the deceased were alleged to be seen by Babu (PW-2) also. On the same evening, at about 6.00 p.m. one Natthu (PW-1), who was returning to his home, had seen the appellants on the well of appellant no.1 Mohan where they were beating the deceased and threatening him by saying "to realize the cost of the pipes from his skin". Natthu (PW-1) at once informed this part of the incident to the informant Khamani (PW-4). On getting the said information, the informant, father of the deceased along with several other persons of his vicinity went to the place of the said incident to rescue his son, but his son was untraceable and the appellants, too, had disappeared from the village.

6. It is further stated in the F.I.R. that the informant searched his son on the following day i.e. 27.01.1982 and also till the afternoon of 28.01.1982 but neither the deceased nor the appellants were traceable. At last in the evening of 28.01.1982 at about 5.05 p.m. he lodged a verbal F.I.R. (Ex.K1) at Police Station Moosajhag, informing the police about disappearance and abduction of his son by the appellants, suspecting that the appellants might have committed murder of his son, which was registered as Case Crime No. 11 of 1982 under Section 364 IPC.

7. After lodging of the F.I.R. (Ex.K1), the investigation proceeding was initiated by the S.I. Moin Uddin (PW-7). Meanwhile, on 30.01.1982 it was informed by the informant Khamani that the dead body of his son (deceased) was found in a field of sugarcane of one Dori of the same village. On receiving this information, the Investigating Officer (PW-7) recovered the dead body from the said field, conducted inquest proceedings etc., sent the body for postmortem and after concluding the investigation he submitted the charge-sheet against all the appellants for the offences under Section 364/302 I.P.C.

8. In the case in hand, cognizance was taken directly in the Court of Special Sessions Judge, Budaun in accordance with the provisions of U.P. Dacoity Affected Areas Ordinance, 1982. The appellants were charged under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and also of the offence under Section 12 of the U.P. Ordinance No. 16, 1982 which the accused appellants denied and pleaded that they were not guilty. They further stated that they had been falsely implicated by the rival group of the village due to enmity and claimed to be tried.

9. In order to prove the charges, the prosecution has filed FIR (Ex.K1), injury report of witness Natthu (Ex.K2), postmortem report of the deceased (Ex.K3), site plans (Ex.K4, K5, K11), inquest report (Ex.K6), sketch of the dead body (Ex.K7), challan of the dead body (Ex. K8), letter to the C.M.O. (Ex. K9), sample seal (Ex. K10), recovery memo of blood stain and plain earth from the place from where the body was recovered (ex.K12), recovery memo of blood stained rope/sting (jyot) near the body of the deceased (Ex.13), supurdgi memo of torch of the witness Onkar (PW3) (Ex. K14) and the charge sheet (Ex. K15) on the record and also placed before the court material exhibits pertaining to the blood stained and plain earth as well as blood stained rope/sting (Jyot) Ex. I, II and III.

10. To bring home the guilt of the accused-appellants, the prosecution has examined total seven witnesses namely PW1 Natthu, PW2 Babu Singh, PW3 Onkar, PW4 Khamani informant, PW5 Dr. A.C. Sharma, PW6 Dr. O.P. Chhimpa and PW7 S.I. Moin Uddin, Investigating Officer in oral evidence and closed its evidence.

11. The statements of the appellants under Section 313 Cr.P.C. were recorded after closing of the prosecution evidence in which they had denied the entire prosecution version and stated that they had been falsely implicated due to enmity and the politics of faction-ridden village, no evidence in defence was placed by the appellants. After hearing the arguments of the parties, the learned Trial Judge, by the impugned judgment and order, convicted all the present appellants and sentenced them as above. Feeling aggrieved, this appeal has been preferred by all the appellants.

12. We have heard Sri Abhishek Srivastava, learned Amicus Curiae for the surviving appellants namely, Sita Ram and Har Bilas and Sri Ajit Kumar Singh, learned AGA for the State as also carefully perused the evidence on record.

13. Learned amicus curiae, appearing for the surviving appellants no. 3 and 4 Sita Ram and Har Bilas, has not disputed the factum of homicidal death of the deceased and also the recovery of his dead body from a sugarcane field and interalia raised the following grounds as incriminating circumstances in this appeal; that the prosecution has utterly failed to prove the alleged motive behind the murder of the deceased and that the theory of "last seen together" either alive or with dead body of the deceased was not proved beyond reasonable doubt; because there were serious contradictions in the statements of the witnesses examined by the prosecution to establish these facts. He further contended that neither the dead body of the deceased nor the alleged weapons of assault were recovered from the possession of all or any of the appellants or on their pointing out. In addition to it, all the alleged circumstances, from which the conclusion of the guilt was drawn, could not be fully established by the cogent evidence and the chain of alleged circumstances could not be so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion pointing towards the guilt of the accused persons and not to any other hypothesis.

14. The learned amicus curiae has further submitted that the prosecution has examined only interested/related as well as inimical (members of rival group in the village) witnesses, whose presence and their witnessing the above factums of last seen theory were wholly doubtful, unnatural and improbable, as such they are not worthy of reliance. The F.I.R. was lodged with an inordinate delay having no plausible explanation. According to him basically the FIR (Ex. K1) was antedated and was lodged actually after the dead body was recovered by the informant himself. It also appears from the evidence on record that the deceased Nankoo was murdered by some unknown person/persons and after recovery of his dead body the appellants had falsely been implicated, after due planning with inimical group of the village as well as with the aid of the local police. There is material inconsistency between the ocular and medical evidence. The investigation had been carried out in a most casual, defective and perfunctory manner. He also contended that it was the duty of the prosecution to clearly establish the close proximity between the last seen evidence and the recovery of the dead body but in the instant case there is a huge gap between the two. The entire prosecution story is concocted with a view to implicate the appellants. The surviving appellants, who are admittedly the bonded labourers of the appellant no.1 Mohan (alike the deceased Nankoo himself) against whom neither there was any specific motive for murder alleged or proved nor any specific role assigned or proved by the prosecution and as such they appear to be falsely roped in by the informant due to the above mentioned enmity of the rival group with the appellant no.1 Mohan.

15. Rebutting all the arguments advanced by the learned amicus curie, learned AGA for the State has submitted that all the circumstances concluding the chain have been proved by the cogent evidence and there is no break in the said chain of circumstances, which unerringly proved the guilt of the accused persons. The motive behind the murder of the deceased was consistently and cogently proved by the testimony of PW4 Khamani, father of the deceased. Undisputedly, the death of deceased Nankoo was proved to be homicidal, whose body was recovered by his father from a nearby sugarcane field having multiple injuries, several of them were caused by sharp-edged weapon. According to him, the present case rests on the last seen theory and when by the consistent, unshaken testimonies of the witnesses of the prosecution PW1 to PW4 it was proved by the prosecution that on 26.01.1982 the deceased Nankoo was last seen alive or dead in the company/possession of the accused-appellants then it was for the appellants to explain as to what happened to the deceased and in the absence of any satisfactory explanation thereof, based on the concrete chain of the circumstantial evidence the learned trial Judge has rightly convicted and sentenced the appellants. Therefore, the impugned judgment and order warrants no interference.

16. The learned AGA for the State also contended that all the witnesses examined by the prosecution firmly establish each one of the circumstances specifically. They are trustworthy, their presence at different spot were probable and natural, having no material contradiction, embellishments or exaggeration in their testimonies, as such there is no substance in the arguments of the learned amicus curie. The alleged inconsistency in the ocular and medical evidence is misconceived.

17. Before entering into the merits of the appeal, we would like to remind ourselves the settled proposition of law, to be followed by the High court while exercising the appellate jurisdiction in criminal appeal, propounded by the Apex Court in the cases of Ishvarbhai Fuljibhai Patni Vs. State of Gujrat [1995 Supreme Court Cases (Crl) 222] and Lal Mandi Vs. State of West Bengal, [1995 Cr.LJ 2659 (Supreme Court), 2659] that the High Court, while exercising appellate jurisdiction in criminal appeal, is expected to appraise the credibility of evidence available on record and to draw the inference on the basis of material available on record and has not to be guided by the finding of acquittal or conviction recorded by the learned court below, bearing in mind the basis principle of criminal law regarding innocence of the accused. Bearing in mind the aforesaid proposition of law we have considered the rival contentions and carefully examined the impugned judgment and material on record.

18. It is not in dispute that the conviction of the appellants no. 3 and 4 is based on the circumstantial evidence. In a case based on circumstantial evidence, the settled law is that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is drawn should be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature. Moreover, all the circumstances should be complete, forming a chain and there should be no gap left in the chain of evidence. Further, the proved circumstances must be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused totally inconsistent with the innocence. Hence, we have to see how for the prosecution has fully and conclusively proved all the circumstances forming the chain without any gap and thereby able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt.

19. Circumstantial Evidence:

It is pertinent to mention here that in Tulshiram Sahadu Suryawanshi and another Vs. State of Maharashtra (2012) 10 SCC 373 the Apex Court after referring to its earlier decisions in the cases based on circumstantial evidence has laid down as under:

"In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116, this Court after referring to various earlier decisions, formulated the following conditions to be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established based on circumstantial evidence:-

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned "must or should" and not "may be" established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between "may be proved" and "must be or should be proved" as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra where the observations were made: [SCC para 19, p. 807: SCC (Cri) p. 1047]

Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between "may be' and "must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty,

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency,

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

154.These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence."

20. Further, the Supreme Court, while dealing with a case of circumstantial evidence, in Nizam and others Vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 2015 SC 3430 has pointed out as follows:

"The principles of circumstantial evidence have been reiterated by this Court in a plethora of cases. In Bodhraj @ Bodha and Ors. vs. State of Jammu & Kashmir, (2002) 8 SCC 45*, wherein this court had quoted a number of judgments and held as under:*

"10. It has been consistently laid down by this Court that where a case rests squarely on circumstantial evidence, the inference of guilt can be justified only when all the incriminating facts and circumstances are found to be incompatible with the innocence of the accused or the guilt of any other person.....

The circumstances from which an inference as to the guilt of the accused is drawn have to be proved beyond reasonable doubt and have to be shown to be closely connected with the principal fact sought to be inferred from those circumstances. In Bhagat Ram v. State of Punjab AIR 1954 SC 621 it was laid down that where the case depends upon the conclusion drawn from circumstances the cumulative effect of the circumstances must be such as to negative the innocence of the accused and bring home the offences beyond any reasonable doubt."

We may also make a reference to a decision of this Court in C. Chenga Reddy v. State of A.P. (1996) 10 SCC 193*, wherein it has been observed thus: (SCC pp. 206-07, para 21)*

"21. In a case based on circumstantial evidence, the settled law is that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is drawn should be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature. Moreover, all the circumstances should be complete and there should be no gap left in the chain of evidence. Further, the proved circumstances must be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and totally inconsistent with his innocence."

In Trimukh Maroti Kirkan vs. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681*, this court held as under:*

"12. In the case in hand there is no eyewitness of the occurrence and the case of the prosecution rests on circumstantial evidence. The normal principle in a case based on circumstantial evidence is that the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established; that those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the accused; that the circumstances taken cumulatively should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and they should be incapable of explanation on any hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused and inconsistent with their innocence."

The same principles were reiterated in Sunil Clifford Daniel vs. State of Punjab, (2012) 11 SCC 205, Sampath Kumar vs. Inspector of Police, Krishnagiri (2012) 4 SCC 124 and Mohd. Arif @ Ashfaq vs. State (NCT of Delhi), (2011) 13 SCC 621 and a number of other decisions."

21. Keeping these principles in mind, we are now analyzing the circumstances relied on by the prosecution. On perusal of the record of the case it is manifest that the circumstances relied upon by the prosecution are as follows:

I. Motive: all the accused persons have a motive to commit the murder of the deceased because the appellant no.1 Mohan had threatened the deceased 4-5 months before the incident for realizing the costs of his stolen pipes "from the skin of the deceased".

II. On 26.01.1982 at noon all the appellants took the deceased along with them from his house for thrashing sugarcane and on that date and time the deceased was "last seen going together" in the company of the appellants by the witnesses Khamani (PW4) and thereafter by Babu Singh (PW2).

III. At about 6.00 p.m. on the same date the deceased was again last seen alive while being apprehended by the appellants, having sickles in their hands at the tube-well of the appellant no.1 Mohan. At that time all the appellants were extending threats to the deceased for realising the cost of the stolen pipes "from his skin" and were beating the deceased. On the intervention by the witness Natthu (PW1), he also received one sickle blow on his forehead by the appellant Mohan and thereafter, the appellants tried to implicate one of the leaders of the rival village group by extending bribe to the witness, for the said injury which was inflicted to him.

IV. On information of the aforementioned incident, the father of the deceased Khamani (PW4) went along with other members of his vicinity to rescue his son but they did not find the deceased or the appellants anywhere in the village and they were also not traceable till the recovery of the dead body of the deceased.

V. In the night between 26/27.01.1982 all the appellants were last seen by the witness Onkar (PW3), carrying one dead body on "juya" for disposal.

VI. The decomposed body of the deceased was recovered by his father (PW4), from sugarcane field of one Dori, having several marks of injuries on his body.

VII. Since the date of incident, i.e., the evening of 26.01.1982 all the appellants were absconding till they surrendered in the Court on 05.02.1982.

22. Before examining how far the prosecution has succeeded in proving the aforementioned circumstances against the appellants, we would like to have a glance at the medical evidence in this case, which is in the form of statement of Dr. O.P.Chhimpa (PW6), postmortem report of the deceased (Ex.K3) prepared by him as well as the statement of Dr. A.C.Sharma (PW5) and the injury report of the witness Natthu (Ex.K2) prepared by him. Although the appellants have not disputed the homicidal death and the recovery of the injured dead body of the deceased Nankoo from the field of sugarcane of one Dori of the same village on 30.01.1982, even then as an appellate court we are duty bound to examine whether any offence was committed and if so, by whom.

23. Dr. O.P.Chhimpa (PW6) in his statement has stated that he had conducted the postmortem of the deceased on 31.01.1982 at 3.30 p.m.. The deceased was about 30 years of age and he had died within a span of 3-5 days before the date of postmortem examination. He found the following antemortem injuries on the body of the deceased:

1. Contusion 4 cm x 3 cm on right side head 4 cm above and posterior to ear. Right parietal bone fractured below injury. Muscle scalp and brain matter congested. Below injury, about 10 cm. clotted blood present.

2. Incised wound 5 cm x 1 cm x muscle deep on right side neck 3 cm post to pinna ear direction backward. Margins are clean cut.

3. Body of 6th cervical vertebra cut at middle.

4. Incised wound 3 cm x1 cm x bone deep on edge at right side of nose margin, clean cut 2 cm below bridge of nose.

5. Two circular contusion each of 2 cm, oval in shape, at front of the forehead. 3 cm above bridge of nose.

6. Contusion 3 cm x 2 cm on left side of face. 2 cm below left eye.

7. Incised wound 2 cm x 1 cm x muscle deep at the front of chin 2 cm below lip.

8. Incised wound 4 cm x .5 cm x deep cavity on left side chest at mid axilary line. 4 cm below axila. Margins are clean cut.

9. Incised wound 2 cm x .5 cm x muscle deep on front of left leg.n Anterior aspect. 3 cm above ankle joint.

10. Contusion 3 cm x 1 cm on dorsal aspect of right foot.

11. Contusion 2 cm x1 cm on right knee joint.

12. Contusion 3 cm x 2 cm on left knee joint.

13. Contusion 4 cm x 2 cm on posterior aspect of right elbow joint and on upper part of the arm.

14. Contusion 2 cm x 2 cm on dorsum aspect of right wrist joint.

15. Contusion 3 cm x 2 cm on left elbow joint on posterior aspect.

24. In the opinion of the said doctor the death of the deceased was due to antemortem injuries causing shock and haemorrhage. According to him the skin of the deceased was easily pealed off from the tissues. The entire abdomen and chest were absent but the back was present. Skin on the neck was eaten by animals, his penis and scrotum were swollen and teniar of ribs were also eaten by animals. His brain and its membranes were congested on right side and his right parietal bone was fractured. Body of 6th cerival vertebrae was cut in the middle. 1/3rd ribs were present, rest of skin was eaten by animals. Pleura, trachea, both lungs, pericardium and heart were absent. Blood vessels and peritoneum were eaten by animals. He proved the postmortem report of the deceased (Ex.K3).

25. The doctor (PW6) categorically proved that the incised wounds and the contusions found on the corpse appeared to be inflicted by sharp edged weapons and blunt objects, respectively. He further proved that it is possible that the death of the deceased could have been caused on the night of 26/27.01.1982. On cross-examination he has admitted that the death could have been possible in the night of 25/26.01.1982 also. He has specifically opined in his cross-examination that in the injury, inflicted by the sickle, the margins of the injury always appear to be irregular but this type of injury was not found in the body of the deceased. It has also been admitted by the said doctor that there appeared neither any infection nor granulation or pus in the injuries found on the body of the deceased.

26. Similarly, on analyzing the statement of the other doctor PW5 Dr. A.C.Sharma, who had examined the injured witness Natthu (PW1), we find that the said doctor in his statement has stated that he had examined the said injured Natthu (PW1) on 31.01.1982 at 10.45 a.m. and he found a single infected wound 1 cm x 0.5 cm scalp deep on the right side of the forehead, 3.5 cm above right eyebrow, with pus present in the wound. Little amount of granulation tissues were also present, edges oedematous, slough at places.

According to his opinion, this wound/injury was simple in nature and was about 4-6 days old. According to him, as the said injury was infected and the characters of the edges of the wound and the tissues in the wound are altered, therefore, no opinion could have been given regarding the nature of the object which had caused the said injury. He proved the aforesaid injury report (Ex. K2) and opined that this injury/wound could have been inflicted on 26.01.1982 at about 4-5 p.m. in the evening. During the cross-examination he has also stated that it could have been inflicted on 25.01.1982, too.

27. Admittedly, the case of the prosecution is entirely based on the circumstantial evidence. Therefore, it needs to be examined as to how far the prosecution has succeeded in proving the aforementioned circumstances (I to VII) cogently and firmly forming a chain so complete which consistently establishes a definite tendency unerringly pointing only towards the guilt of the accused persons/surviving appellants. Further, there should be no escape from the above conclusion and they should be incapable of any explanation or hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused persons/surviving appellants and are totally inconsistent with their innocence.

28. We carefully examined the first link of the aforementioned circumstances, i.e., the alleged motive of the incident. It appears from the record that based on the solitary testimony of the informant, Khamani/father of the deceased (PW4), the prosecution and the learned trial judge have concluded that in this case the prosecution has proved the alleged motive for murder of Nankoo. When we examine the evidence of the witness Khamani (PW4) and other documentary evidence placed by the prosecution in this regard, it clearly manifests that the solitary witness PW4 Khamani, informant has stated that about 3-4 months before this incident, few pipes were stolen from the tube-well of the appellant no.1 Mohan (since deceased) for which he had suspected the deceased and a quarrel had ensued between the said Mohan and the deceased Nankoo. During that quarrel it is alleged that the said appellant had threatened the deceased that he would realize the cost of his stolen pipes "from the skin of the deceased".

29. Admittedly, this fact was also stated in the FIR (Ex.K1), which was verbally lodged by this witness (PW4). The perusal of this FIR (Ex.K1) itself shows that the deceased was alleged to be seen together with the appellants on 26.01.1982. The distance between the place of incidents and the police station is 7 Kms. On the date of incident itself at about 7-8 p.m. in the evening the witness/informant had got the information that the accused persons/appellants having sickles in their hands had apprehended the accused and were beating him but it is surprising that he did not make any effort to lodge prompt FIR and a highly belated FIR was lodged after about two days of the incident. The reasons for the inordinate delay in lodging the FIR neither appears to be sufficient nor proved by any cogent evidence; rather it appears that this explanation that he was relentlessly searching his missing son and the appellants, is concocted after due confabulations and deliberations with some ulterior motive.

30. In cross-examination the said witness Khamani (PW4) has accepted that the said quarrel with Mohan subsequently ended in compromise then and there with the intervention of some villagers. Under the compromise, Nankoo (deceased) started working as labourer in the employment of the appellant no.1 Mohan, but this fact was neither stated in the FIR nor stated by him during investigation. There is no cogent explanation for nondisclosure of this subsequent fact. Therefore, believing through the informant that the present incident was committed by the accused persons on the aforementioned motive appears to be far-fetched.

31. Moreover, this factum is neither corroborated by any material witness nor proved by any documentary evidence. The evidence of the witness Khamani (PW4) on this point is mere hearsay. He was neither present at the time of the alleged quarrel nor when the alleged compromise took place. He himself has admitted during cross-examination that the alleged quarrel took place on the road of the village and at that time he was not present. He also does not know who had made intervention during the said quarrel. As such his evidence on the point of alleged motive is not acceptable. No other witness has been examined by the prosecution to prove this alleged factum of motive. Also no cogent explanation was given by the prosecution for non-examination of any material witness in this regard. Therefore, it appears that the learned trial judge has erred in accepting the hearsay evidence of this solitary witness, regarding the motive, on the mere ground that this fact was mentioned in the FIR (Ex.K1) when the body of the deceased was not recovered as corroborative piece of evidence.

32. It is also relevant to mention here that the prosecution was unable to prove any motive or factum of prior enmity against the surviving appellants Sita Ram and Har Bilas. This witness Khamani (PW4) has accepted that the surviving appellants were also labourers and were residents of another village Kakora, which is far away from his village. He admitted that there was no enmity between the said appellants and his son (deceased) prior to and at the time of the incident. Admitting that his son was never annoyed with the said appellants, he vehemently denied knowledge of any quarrel between them. According to him both the appellants were bonded labourers of the appellant Mohan since about 2-3 years prior to this incident, but his son (deceased) was not a bonded labour of the appellant Mohan; he had worked there along with the surviving appellants only 10-15 times before the incident. The deceased also never told him about any quarrel between them. These statements of the witness are testimony to the fact that the surviving appellants had no personal enemies or motive for murder against Nankoo, son of the informant.

33. The learned trial Judge has also erred in accepting the aforementioned motive on the ground that there is no other alternative suggestion of either motive or manner involved in the murder of the deceased. It is not obligatory upon the appellants to prove their innocence or any other alternative motive/manner of crime. The prosecution has to stand on its own legs. The infirmity in the defence, if any, would not give any benefit to the prosecution, therefore, we are of the view that the finding of the learned trial judge on the question of motive (first circumstance) is not tenable and the prosecution has utterly failed to prove the alleged motive.

34. It is a settled principle of law that if the prosecution is able to prove its case on motive, it will be a corroborative piece of evidence lending assurance to the prosecution case. But even if the prosecution has not been able to prove the motive, as in this case, that will not be a ground to throw away the prosecution case. Absence of proof of motive only demands careful scrutiny and deeper analysis of evidence adduced by the prosecution.

35. In the case in hand, the prosecution story relies upon the "last seen together" theory (second, third, fourth and seventh parts of the circumstances) as its pivotal evidence which is now herein examined. The Trial Court has also convicted the appellants based on the said "last seen theory" finding it as an important link in the chain of circumstances pointing towards the guilt of the appellants and further that the appellants have not offered a reasonable and probable explanation as to the cause of death of the deceased under Section 106 of the Evidence Act.

36. To prove the aforementioned circumstances, on the basis of "last seen together" theory, the prosecution has examined the informant (PW4), Babu (PW2) and Natthu (PW1). The learned trial judge has also found this fact proved on the basis of the said testimonies that on 26.01.1982 the deceased was last seen alive with the appellants.

37. Reiterating the version of FIR, in his testimony PW4 Khamani has tried to show that on the date of the incident, i.e., on 26.01.1982 at noon the appellants picked up the deceased Nankoo from his house on the pretext of thrashing sugarcane and all the witnesses were armed with sickles. He further stated that his son Nankoo never returned thereafter. The witness Babu (PW2) of his village also told him on the same day that he had also seen Nankoo in the company of the appellants. He further admitted that thereafter at 8-9 p.m. Natthu (PW1) of his village had given him definite information that the appellants having sickles in their hands had apprehended his son Nankoo and were quarreling at the tube-well of the appellant Mohan and when Natthu tried to save him, Mohan inflicted injury on the forehead of Natthu with his sickle. He had also seen the said injury of the witness Natthu. On getting this information he along with other villagers of his vicinity had visited the tube-well of the appellant Mohan but they did not find Nankoo there. They also searched for Nankoo and the appellants in the appellants' house but none of the accused persons were found there and remained untraceable till they surrendered in the Court. He thereafter, searched for his son Nankoo (deceased) at all the known places of the accused persons as well as the places of his own relatives but to no avail.

38. When we carefully analyse the statement of PW4 Khamani, informant, it appears that his entire story is improbable and cooked up. Further, the witness is untrustworthy. His evidence appears to be shaky and full of doubts. Further, when there was a definite information on 26.01.1982 itself that his son was seen apprehended in the custody of the appellants, who were armed with sickles and were beating his son in which the witness Natthu (PW1) also got injured then what prompted him to search for his son for about 2 days (before allegedly lodging of the FIR {Ex.K1}) in the places of his other relatives and other places of the appellants. There is no cogent explanation on this point as well as on the point of lodging of the FIR with inordinate delay, which casts a cloud of suspicion on the credibility of the entire warp and woof of the prosecution story.

39. It is strange to note that even the scribe/head moharrir who had written the FIR (Ex.K1) on the dictation of the informant (PW4) and corresponding General Diary has also not been examined by the prosecution.

40. It is also not satisfying to the conscience of this Court that when the deceased was in the employment of the appellant Mohan before the incident why all the appellants would visit the house of the informant for calling him. These second, fourth and seventh parts of the circumstances have also not been corroborated by any other witness, examined by the prosecution. Even the persons of the vicinity of the informant, who had allegedly accompanied him and whom he had named, have also not been examined. Therefore, in our opinion, evidence adduced by the informant (PW4) alone on these facts, without any corroboration, cannot be made the basis of conviction in this case, based on circumstantial evidence.

41. On scrutiny of the evidence of another witness PW2 Babu Singh on this point, it appears that he has tried to show that on the date of the incident at noon he had seen the deceased in the company of four appellants at a different place in the village, who had proceeded towards the tube-well of the appellant Mohan and the deceased was not seen thereafter. In the cross-examination he clearly admitted that his village was mired with village rivalry and there were two parties one led by Natthu Singh (PW1) etc. and another led by the appellant Mohan etc. According to him 'Vaidya Ji' of his village is not in the party of Natthu Singh (PW1), which clearly demonstrates that the witness Natthu Singh (PW1) and the appellants are members of the rival parties and the witness (PW2) is also in the party of Natthu Singh (PW1). The witness Babu Singh (PW2) has further admitted that the deceased Nankoo was in the regular employment of the appellant Mohan as labour for about past 3-4 months. Contradicting the statement of Natthu Singh (PW1) he admitted that in the night also someone looked after the tube-wells and near the tube-well of appellant Mohan, several tube-wells were located. He also admitted that the surviving appellants Sita Ram and Har Bilas are the residents of village Kakora and were in the employment of appellant Mohan since 3-4 years prior to the incident. He further stated that the witness Natthu (PW1) was village pradhan having 100 Bighas of agricultural land and so was 'Vaidya Ji' with 50 Bighas of agricultural land. The surviving appellants Sita Ram and Har Bilas never worked as labourers in their field because they were bonded labourers of appellant Mohan. During investigation or in the trial this witness has not clarified from which field or place he was coming when he had allegedly seen the deceased in the company of the appellants.

42. In the evidence given by PW1 Natthu, who is also a solitary witness about the third circumstance, he stated that he had seen the appellants having sickles in their hands apprehending the deceased Nankoo on the said date at about 6.00 p.m. and all the appellants were threatening him that the costs of the stolen pipes would be "recovered from his skin". Further, when he tired to save the deceased, the appellant Mohan inflicted injury on the forehead of the witness (PW1) with his sickle. He also tried to prove that the appellant Mohan tried to bargain with him with a view to implicate one 'Vaidya Ji' of his village for the said injury caused on the witness (PW1) because there was enmity between the party of 'Vaidya Ji' and the party of the appellant Mohan, but he refused and he left for his home. At about 8-9 p.m. he informed Khamani, father of the deceased about the aforementioned incident. Being a solitary witness of this fact there is no corroboration of his evidence.

43. In the cross-examination witness (PW1) has admitted that at the time of the said incident there was no light at all. The date and time of the alleged incident also manifest this fact. There is no explanation in his evidence as to why he had not filed any FIR and also why he had not taken any medical treatment on the date of the alleged incident or the next day of the incident. His evidence and the record show that he was medically examined after the date of alleged recovery of the dead body, i.e., on 31.01.1982 whereas he admitted that when the police and Investigating Officer came to his village and recorded his evidence they saw his said injury. According to PW7 S.I. Moin Uddin he had recorded the statement of this witness on 28.01.1982 but why his injury was not examined on that date or the delay of 4-5 days in examining his injury could not be explained by them, which again casts a shadow of doubt on the evidence of Natthu (PW1).

44. In this regard, we examined the said injury report of Natthu (Ex K2) and the evidence of Dr. A.C. Sharma, Medical Officer (PW5), who had categorically stated that at the time of the medical examination, the alleged injury of Natthu (PW1) was in the shape of a wound having pus and was swollen. Little amount of granulation tissue was also present and slough were present at some places. He opined that as the edges of the said wound and the tissue in the wound were altered, he could not given any opinion about the nature of the object which had caused the injury and the weapon used. According to him this could have been 4-5 days old, in his opinion it could have been inflicted on the alleged date of the incident i.e. 26.01.1982 or may be on 25.01.1982. Therefore, this medical evidence also does not corroborate the ocular evidence of Natthu (PW1) and moreover it does not prove that this injury was actually caused in the alleged incident narrated by him. As such his evidence on this part of alleged incident with regard to factum of "last seen together" cannot be believed and therefore, is not corroborating the evidence of the informant (PW4). His statement that the appellants were persuading him for implicating one 'Vaidya Ji' of his village on the pretext of his said injury clearly points towards the faction-ridden village rivalry, which is admitted by Babu Singh (PW2) and the cooked up theory of "last seen together". His presence on the alleged spot and witnessing the said incident also appears to be concocted. He did not prove that there was adequate source of light. He admitted that near the tube-well of Mohan appellant, where the said part of the incident is alleged to have taken place, tube-wells of Vijendra Singh, Ramesh, Prem Pal, Mahipal, Tejpal and Khem Karan were present but none out of them were ever inquired by the Investigating Officer nor examined. Also he (PW1) did not assign any role or act to the surviving appellants Sita Ram and Har Bilas in the said incident. As such it appears that the evidence of this witness is also of no value in proving the factum of "last seen theory".

45. On careful examination of the entire deposition of the aforementioned three witnesses in the light of the injury report (Ex. K2) as well as Doctor's evidence (PW5) a reasonable doubt arose about their credibility. They appear to be untrustworthy and got-up witnesses, devoid of definite and conclusive nature of evidence in their testimonies. It also appears that the entire prosecution story has been cooked up in connivance with the leaders of the rival party of the village and the police with a view to implicate the appellants. All this goes on to create a serious doubt about the said "last seen together" theory and the above circumstances placed by the prosecution. The conclusion contrary to it arrived at by the learned Trial Judge in this regard is arbitrary and appears to be based on surmises and conjectures.

46. Now we deal with the fifth part of the circumstance placed by the prosecution. To prove this part, the prosecution has examined solitary witness PW3 Onkar, who is the resident of another village, situated at 8-9 Kose (12-1/2 -13-1/2 Kms.) from the village, where he noticed the incident. On scrutiny of his evidence it is evident that his presence on the spot, from where he is alleged to have seen the appellants carrying the dead body of Nankoo (deceased), appears to be doubtful. He has admitted that he is closely related with the deceased although Khamani informant (PW4) has denied this fact for reasons best known to him (PW4). This witness (PW3) has further categorically stated that as the father of the deceased Nankoo/Khamani had told him that he (PW4) had arrayed him as a witness in the case and when police or anybody would ask him about the aforementioned facts he should say the same and so he had stated the aforementioned facts before the Court. About his presence in the village of incident, he told in cross-examination that on the date of the incident at about 3 a.m. in the dark night, when he was working at the tube-well of the Sarpanch of village Nagla Sarbi, Narayan Singh, he saw the incident. He admitted that he had worked only for one year before the incident and that he did not know who was living in the house of Narayan Singh and the names of any of his family members. He did not even know about the boundaries of the said tube-well and the area of that field. He also did not know about the family members of the accused appellants Shiam Lal and Mohan (since deceased) and their neighbours.

47. According to PW3, he had seen the body of Nankoo in the light of a torch but the said torch was neither placed before the Court nor proved by the witness himself or by the Investigating Officer (PW7). This witness tried to prove that a threat was given to him by the deceased appellants but it was found incorrect, during recording of the evidence. He tried to show that he was siding with the deceased Nankoo because he was of the same caste and also a relative and that Sarpanch Narayan Singh was also siding with the appellants because they were of the same caste. Hence, he had left the job. According to the Investigating Officer (PW7) statement of this witness was recorded by him on 11.3.1982, i.e., about one and a half months after the incident which also casts doubt on the evidence of this witness and he, too, appears to be a got-up witness. Contrary to the said statement of the Investigating Officer (PW7), the witness has denied the recording of any statement by the Investigating Officer. According to him, after about one and a half months of this incident, he conveyed this information (fifth part of the circumstances) to the father of the deceased Khamani (PW4) and before that he did not divulge this information to any one. He admitted that only Khamani, the informant had told him that he had reported against the surviving appellants also. He did not ever visit the place of appellant Mohan Singh.

48. In view of the above, it is amply clear that this solitary witness (PW3) of this part of the circumstance also appears to be unreliable. His presence on the alleged spot and witnessing the alleged crime is quite doubtful. The testimony of this witness cannot be relied upon and made basis of the fifth part of the said circumstances. The finding contrary to it given by the learned Trial Judge is not convincing at all.

49. The last (sixth) part of the circumstance in this case is that the dead body of the deceased was recovered on 30.01.1982 in a critically injured and decomposed condition by the informant (PW4) himself from the sugarcane field of one Dori of the same village, the information of which was also given by him to the police and was recorded in the General Diary of the date at Report No. 24 at 14.30 hours. However, it appears from the record that strangely this copy of the General Diary has also not been proved by the prosecution. Based on this fact the prosecution pressed hard that the appellants and the deceased were last seen together on 26.01.1982 (although as discussed above this fact has not been proved due to absence of definite and conclusive nature of evidence) and thereafter the deceased was never seen again and his dead body was recovered on 30.01.1982, i.e., after 4 days 5 nights. But in our opinion, in view of the long time gap between the deceased found missing and the dead body that was recovered, possibility of others intervening cannot be ruled out. In the absence of definite and conclusive evidence that the appellants and the deceased were "last seen together" and when the time gap is long between the two, there is no reason to conclude that the appellants are responsible and are guilty of committing the murder of deceased Nankoo.

50. Based on the principles of law laid down in Bodhraj @ Bodha and others Vs. State of Jammu & Kashmir, 2002 (8) SCC 45 and Krishnan @ Ramasamy and others Vs. State of Tamil Nadu, 2014 (12) SCC 279, the Apex Court recently in a similar matter in the case of State of Karnatka Vs. Chand Basha 2016 (1) SCC 501 held that:

"it will be hazardous come to a conclusion of guilt in cases where there is no other positive evidence to conclude that the accused and the deceased were last seen together".

Therefore, it is a settled principle of law that where the said time gap is long, it would be unsafe to base the conviction on the "last seen together" theory; it is safer to look for corroboration from other circumstances and evidence adduced by the prosecution, if any. In the case in hand, from the analysis of the facts and evidence with due care and caution, we find that neither there is any definite and conclusive nature of evidence nor other corroborative piece of evidence for each of the alleged circumstances (I to VII) of "last seen theory".

51. The Apex Court in Bodhraj @ Bodha and others (supra) held that:

"31. the last seen theory comes into play where the gap between the point of time when the accused and the deceased were last seen alive and when the deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of the crime becomes impossible."

52. Similarly, affirming the above ratio, the Supreme Court in Krishnan @ Ramasamy and others Vs. State of Tamil Nadu (supra) has observed as follows:

"23. There is unexplained delay of six days in lodging the FIR. As per prosecution story the deceased Manikandan was last seen on 4.4.2004 at Vadakkumelur village during Panguni Uthiram Festival at Mariyamman Temple. The body of the deceased was taken from the borewell by the fire service personnel after more than seven days. There is no other positive material on record to show that the deceased was last seen together with the accused and in the intervening period of seven days there was nobody in contact with the deceased."

53. Moreover, in Nizam and others Vs. State of Rajasthan 2016 (1) SCC 550 the Supreme Court has observed as follows:

"it is well settled by this Court that it is not prudent to base the conviction solely on "Last seen theory". "Last seen theory" should be applied taking into consideration the case of the prosecution in its entirety and keeping in mind the circumstances that precede and follow the point of being so last seen".

54. There also arises a reasonable doubt upon the conduct of the father of the deceased, informant Khamani (PW4) who knew that his son Nankoo was missing since 26.01.1982 and was not only apprehended by the appellants but also beaten by the appellants having sickles in their hands and yet he did not lodge any report to the police for about 2 days, which is against the normal human conduct.

55. In the case in hand, neither the weapons of murder were recovered on the pointing out of the appellants nor the dead body of the deceased was recovered on their pointing out. None of the circumstances relied upon by the prosecution and accepted by the learned trial judge can be said to have been pointing only towards the guilt of the appellants and no other inference can be drawn. Therefore, in our view, the appellants must get the benefit of doubt.

56. It is also significant to note at this juncture that there were at least six injuries found on the face/head of the dead body which also find corroboration from the inquest report and sketch of the dead body (Ex. K6 and K7). No clothes were found except underwear on the dead body. Clothes shown in the statement of the informant (PW4) were not enumerated in the FIR. In the entire story of the prosecution it was alleged that the appellants were having sickles in their hands and no other weapon was assigned but on the dead body several incised wounds as well as contusions were found. During cross-examination PW6 Dr. O.P.Chhimpa has categorically admitted that these incised wounds were not found inflicted by sickles because the sickles caused irregular margin in the injury, which were not present on the said injuries of the dead body of the deceased. As such the theory of infliction of injury by sickles to the deceased also does not find corroboration from the medical evidence. This doctor (PW6) has further admitted that in the injuries found on the dead body of the deceased there was no infection or granulation or pus. This fact also goes to show that the date and time of the wounds on the body of the deceased and the wound of the witness Natthu (PW1) are altogether different. This fact also creates doubt on the prosecution story and strengthens the arguments of the learned amicus curiae.

57. The testimony of PW6 Dr. O.P.Chhimpa and the Investigating Officer, S.I. Moin Uddin (PW7) along with the corresponding medical and police documents, i.e., postmortem report (Ex K3) and inquest report as well as the sketch of the dead body (Ex K6 and K7) manifest that the dead body was beyond recognition and the underwear which is alleged to be there on the dead body was not shown in the FIR. Despite these facts no measure was taken by the Investigating Officer to take recourse to proper identification of the dead body. It appears that it was presumed by the police and the informant that it was the dead body of the deceased Nankoo.

58. The Investigating proceeding in this case appears to be biased, tainted and conducted in a perfunctory manner. It is stated by the prosecution witnesses of the alleged circumstances (PW1 to PW4) and the Investigating Officer (PW7) himself that the Investigating Officer had visited the village on the date of lodging of the FIR, i.e., 28.01.1982 and recorded the statements of some of the witnesses and thereafter he regularly visited the village till the recovery of the dead body and so on. But till the recovery of the dead body on 30.01.1982 he did not even try to trace the appellants or conduct any search of their houses. The Investigating Officer has also failed to record the statement of material witness Dori, from whose field the dead body of the deceased is alleged to be recovered by the informant (PW4). He also did not get the witness Natthu (PW1) medically examined on 28.01.1982, 29.01.1982 or 30.01.1982. Copies of General Diary filed by the prosecution during the trial have not been proved by the Investigating Officer (PW7) himself or by any other material witness.

59. Further, the Investigating Officer (PW7) recorded the statement of the witness Onkar (PW3), alleged to be the witness of the fifth part of the circumstance, after a gap of about one and a half months. The alleged torch through the light of which he (PW3) allegedly witnessed the said circumstance, was also not placed before the Trial Court by him. He did not try to record the evidence of those persons whose tube-wells were in the vicinity of the appellant Mohan or the persons residing in the vicinity of the informant (PW4) and neither accompanied him in the alleged search. He even showed his inability to illustrate the position of the structures which were present in the vicinity of the alleged place of incident. His site plans are not in detail. He had not sent the recovered blood samples for medical examination. He has not given any cogent explanation in his evidence about the aforesaid material omissions and commissions which provides ground to the argument of the learned amicus curiae that the FIR, in the case in hand, was cooked up and lodged ante-dated and the investigation proceeding as well as medical examinations, i.e., entire police and medical proceedings, were actually started after the recovery of the dead body of the deceased, on 30.01.1982 in the evening, after instigation and due deliberations with leaders of the rival village party of the appellants and the local police, with a view to falsely implicate the appellants in this case and which cannot be ruled out.

60. In view of the above discussions we are of the opinion that there are many apparent lapses in the evidence of the prosecution as well as in the investigation proceedings and also there are some missing links in the alleged chain of circumstances which are as follows:-

(i) No recovery of sickles/weapons alleged.

(ii) The nature of the injuries/wounds found on the dead body shows that none of the injuries received by the deceased was from the infliction of the sickle.

(iii) The dead body of the deceased was neither recovered from the possession of the appellants nor on their pointing out.

(iv) No proper identification of the dead body had been conducted.

(v) No proper explanation given for the presence of the witnesses at the time of the alleged incidents pertaining to the different circumstances.

(vi) No proper explanation given for the absence of the clothes from the dead body of the deceased.

(vii) No corroboration of any of the circumstances alleged by the witnesses devoid of definite positive and conclusive naturre of evidence, by any other reliable witness.

(viii) It is admitted that the faction-ridden village in question was mired by the village rivalry; one party was of the deceased appellant Mohan (and Shyam Lal) etc. in whose employment the surviving appellants Sita Ram and Har Bilas were working and the other party was of the witnesses Natthu (PW1), Babu (PW2), on whose connivance the informant (PW4) had lodged the present ante-dated FIR and they are all got-up witnesses.

(ix) The witness Onkar (PW3) is also an after thought and a got-up witness.

(x) The highly belated FIR and the medical examination of Natthu (PW1), for which no cogent explanation was given by the prosecution. Thus we find many loopholes in the case of the prosecution.

61. Further, it is a settled principle of law that Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not shift the burden of proof in a criminal trial, which is always upon the prosecution. Be it noted, that only if the prosecution has succeeded in proving the facts by the definite evidence that the deceased was last seen alive in the company of the accused, a reasonable inference could be drawn against the accused and then only onus can be shifted on the accused under Section 106 of the Evidence Act. (Vikramajit Singh alias Vicky Vs. State of Punjab 2007 Crl. L.J. 1000 (Supreme Court)).

62. It is clear from the discussion made above that for establishing the guilt on the basis of the circumstantial evidence, the circumstances relied upon by the prosecution need to be firmly established and the circumstances should form a complete chain establishing the guilt of the accused. In the case in hand, the chain of the circumstances relied upon by the prosecution, cannot be said to be firm and forming a complete chain establishing the guilt of the appellants only and suggesting no other inference. Therefore, none of the circumstances relied upon by the prosecution and accepted by the court below can be said to be fully proved and conclusive in nature, forming a chain without any gap, which pointing only to the guilt of the appellants and give no other inference as such invoking the provisions under Section 106 of the Evidence Act in this case for conviction is a misconception and against law. It appears that Trial Court failed to appreciate the discrepancies occurring in the prosecution evidence. Hence the judgment passed by the trial court is based on complete misreading of the case and misconception of the legal positions relevant to the matter and the learned judge has not considered the evidence on record in the right perspective.

63. Thus, in the light of the above discussions, we are not in agreement with the finding and conclusions arrived at by the learned trial judge and are satisfied that the conviction of the appellants in this case cannot be sustained and the appeal ought to be allowed. Accordingly, the conviction of the surviving appellants Sita Ram and Har Bilas for the offences under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC is set aside and consequently, the appeal is allowed.

64. The appellants are in jail. From perusal of the record, it appears that it has been reported by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Budaun vide his report dated 10.02.2014 that appellant no. 3, Sita Ram has become blind and another appellant no.4 Har Bilas is critically ill during their detention in jail. It is very unfortunate. Therefore, while directing the concerned jail authority to get the surviving appellants set at liberty forthwith, if not required in any other case, we are compelled to direct the State Government to take recourse to proper medical treatment and their rehabilitation in society, if they or their family members are in capable to provide.

65. Let copies of this order be sent to the concerned Court through Sessions Judge, Budaun and to the Chief Secretary, Govt. of U.P. Lucknow for compliance within ten days. The concerned Court will thereafter report the compliance to this Court within a month.

The instant Criminal Appeal has been preferred challenging the conviction and sentence awarded by the impugned judgment and order dated 2.2.1984 passed by Special Judge, Budaun in S.T. No.701 of 1981 (State vs. Satya Ram and two others) arising out of Case Crime No.169/1980, PS.Zarif Nagar, District Budaun convicting and sentencing the appellants Satya Ram and Talewar Singh under section 396 I.P.C. to undergo imprisonment for life. One of the appellant Talewar Singh is in jail and connected Criminal Appeal No.2313/84 filed on behalf of Satyaram has already been abated vide order dated 18.7.2016, since he died during pendency of the appeal.

The brief facts of the case is that the First Information Report was lodged by PW-1 Matru Lal, father of the deceased Durejpal. According to the version of the First Information Report, the informant was present at his house and his son Durej Pal was present at the shop. At about 4.00 P.M. On 1.11.1980 25-26 dacoits came in police uniform who were armed with rifle, pistol and axe and they caught hold his son who tried to run away. One of the dacoits shot fire causing injuries at his chest who fell down. The dacoits started committing dacoity in the shop.

Thereafter they reached at the house of the informant, assaulted him with 'Danda' and asked about the household articles. He gave the keys of the house to them. The dacoits started looting his jewelleries, clothes, utensils, cash etc. Including his DBBL gun with 100 cartridges. Thereafter they went to the house of Dr. Shiv Charan Lal and looted the household articles and his DBBL gun with 60 cartridges. Thereafter, they went to the house of Ram Bharosey Lal and Babu Ram, Chiranjive Lal, Hethram, Chandra Pal and looted household articles in their houses also. Pandit Murari Lal, Lala Murari Lal and Khauraj Singh of the same village fired with their gun. The dacoits were also firing with their firearms, hence due to fear villagers could not reach near them. The incident was witnessed by Raghunandan Prasad, son of Chabi Lal, Sonpal s/o Mishri Lal and other villagers. The dacoits were identified by them so after seeing them they could identify those dacoits who were speaking local languages of near by places. Some of the dacoits were of young and middle age. Their involvement in the looting incident in the village was for about 2-1/2 hours. Subsequently the informant alongwith neighbours reached at the shop and found that his son was lying in injured condition. With the help of villagers he was taken for medical aid to the Government Hospital, Islam Nagar. However, in the way to the hospital, he succumbed to injuries. Thereafter the dead body was brought and kept on the cot in the verandah of the school. The request was made to register the case and take necessary action.

In view of the above noted facts and discussion according to the prosecution case itself there is no evidence against the appellant Talewar Singh except that he was identified by the witnesses in the test identification parade held after three weeks though within a month. It is day light dacoity in which about 23-25 dacoits were involved, out of which 4-6 had covered their faces though it is not the version of the First Information Report. However, there is no averment that the appellant Talewar Singh had covered his face and during committing dacoity his face was uncovered and witnesses got opportunity to identify. There was no specific averment except general allegation against him who was one of the members of gang of dacoits in which 23-25 dacoits were involved. It is also unnatural and unbelievable that he was resident of nearby place as the distance in two villages was about 1-1/4 miles but had not covered his face. Accused appellant, pleaded that witnesses know them as they were living in nearby places and also visiting the village of the witnesses.

In view of the above-noted discussion the impugned judgment of conviction and sentence in S,T.No.701of 1981 under section 396 I.P.C. PS.Zarif Nagar, District Budaun against the appellant is hereby set aside. Accordingly the appeal is allowed.

Apex Court reported in 2015 (6) SCC 623 Iqbal and others vs. State of Uttar Pradesh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind K. Tripathi, J.)

1- The instant Criminal Appeal has been preferred challenging the conviction and sentence awarded by the impugned judgment and order dated 2.2.1984 passed by Special Judge, Budaun in S.T. No.701 of 1981 (State vs. Satya Ram and two others) arising out of Case Crime No.169/1980, PS.Zarif Nagar, District Budaun convicting and sentencing the appellants Satya Ram and Talewar Singh under section 396 I.P.C. to undergo imprisonment for life. One of the appellant Talewar Singh is in jail and connected Criminal Appeal No.2313/84 filed on behalf of Satyaram has already been abated vide order dated 18.7.2016, since he died during pendency of the appeal.

2- Shri Apul Mishra, learned Advocate appeared on behalf of the appellant Talewar Singh and Shri Chandrajit Yadav, learned A.G.A. appeared on behalf of the State of U.P.

3- Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

4- The brief facts of the case is that the First Information Report was lodged by PW-1 Matru Lal, father of the deceased Durejpal. According to the version of the First Information Report, the informant was present at his house and his son Durej Pal was present at the shop. At about 4.00 P.M. On 1.11.1980 25-26 dacoits came in police uniform who were armed with rifle, pistol and axe and they caught hold his son who tried to run away. One of the dacoits shot fire causing injuries at his chest who fell down. The dacoits started committing dacoity in the shop. Thereafter they reached at the house of the informant, assaulted him with 'Danda' and asked about the household articles. He gave the keys of the house to them. The dacoits started looting his jewelleries, clothes, utensils, cash etc. including his DBBL gun with 100 cartridges. Thereafter they went to the house of Dr.Shiv Charan Lal and looted the household articles and his DBBL gun with 60 cartridges. Thereafter, they went to the house of Ram Bharosey Lal and Babu Ram, Chiranjive Lal, Hethram, Chandra Pal and looted household articles in their houses also. Pandit Murari Lal, Lala Murari Lal and Khauraj Singh of the same village fired with their gun. The dacoits were also firing with their firearms, hence due to fear villagers could not reach near them. The incident was witnessed by Raghunandan Prasad, son of Chabi Lal, Sonpal s/o Mishri Lal and other villagers. The dacoits were identified by them so after seeing them they could identify those dacoits who were speaking local languages of near by places. Some of the dacoits were of young and middle age. Their involvement in the looting incident in the village was for about 2-1/2 hours. Subsequently the informant alongwith neighbours reached at the shop and found that his son was lying in injured condition. With the help of villagers he was taken for medical aid to the Government Hospital, Islam Nagar. However, in the way to the hospital, he succumbed to injuries. Thereafter the dead body was brought and kept on the cot in the verandah of the school. The request was made to register the case and take necessary action. The chick report was prepared by Head Moharir Devraj Singh and also G.D. entry was made.

5- After the case was registered the investigation was handed over to PW-8 S.I. Hari Ram Sharma, PS.Zarifnagar. In the night of 1/2.11.1980 he went to the village Danpur and visited the place of the incident. He recorded the statement of Smt.Rameshwari, Shiv Charan Lal and other witnesses and inspected the place of incident, prepared the site plan. The statement of Raghunandan Prasad and Matru Lal were also recorded on the same day. The informant Matru Lal was examined by the doctor on 1.11.1980 at 10.00 P.M. who was brought by constable Rajendra Pal PS.Islam Nagar. The First Information Report was lodged initially at Islam Nagar. Subsequently the investigation was transferred to PS.Zarif Nagar. The post-mortem examination report on the body of Durej Pal was conducted on 2.11.1980 at 2.00 P.M. by Dr.A.K.Malkhani, the then Medical Officer, District Hospital Budaun. Following injuries were found on the person of the deceased:

1.Gun shot wound of entry 4 cm x 3.5 cm x cavity deep right side of chest 8 cm away right nipple at 4' O'clock position edges lacerated and inverted blacking and tattooing present around the wound.

2. Abrasion 7 cm x 1.5 cm left chest upper part.

6- According to the opinion of the doctor, the death was due to shock and hemorrhage as a result of anti mortem injury no.1. 37 small pellets were recovered with one tickli from inside body. Right kidney found ruptured and lacerated. Peritoneum was found lacerated. 7 & 8 ribs fractured. Injury report and post-mortem examination report were admitted, hence the prosecution was not required to prove the genuineness of the injury report, Postmortem examination report, First Information Report, and G.D. entry as they were admitted by learned counsel for the accused. After charge sheet was submitted, the charges were framed on 15.1.1983 against the appellant. The accused appellant denied the charges and pleaded to be tried.

7- The prosecution to prove its case examined 12 witnesses namely PW-1 Matru Lal, PW-2 Rajeshwari Devi, wife of the deceased Durej Pal and daughter-in-law of the informant Matru Lal, Shiv Charan Lal PW-3, PW-4 Raghunandan Prasad as eyewitnesses, PW-5 to 12 are formal witnesses. PW-5 Talewar Singh was posted as Head Constable who took Satyaram from the Police Station to District Bulandshahr whose face was covered. Umesh Chandra PW-6 who was Head Moharir sent Satyaram to District Court in custody of constable Hoshiyar Singh PW-7 who was the then SHO ,Gunnaur and the investigation was handed over to him by order of the Superintendent of Police, hence he started investigation w.e.f. 18.1.1981. He tried to apprehend the accused. The accused appellant Satyaram was arrested on 3.4.1981. PW-7 Inspector Hoshiyar Singh submitted the charge sheet, PW-8 Hari Ram Sharma who was Sub Inspector on the relevant date at the Police Station Zarif, when the case was registered on 1.11.1980 at the Police Station Islam Nagar. Thereafter the case was handed over to him who inspected the place of the incident, recorded the statement of the witnesses and prepared the site plan etc., PW-9 Mihi Lal who was sub inspector posted at Police Station Islam Nagar who prepared papers, sealed the dead body of Durej Pal and sent it for post-mortem examination through constable, PW-10 Hargovind Singh who arrested the co-accused Sheodan alias Saudan, PW-11 Mr.Yad Ram Sharma who was posted at that time at the Police Station Divai arrested the accused the appellant Satyaram with illegal firearm and cartridges, PW-12 Rajvir Singh, the then Executive Magistrate before whom the identification parade was conducted, in which out of six witnesses, three identified the accused appellant Talewar Singh and three identified to the accused appellant Satyaram (since dead).

8- When the prosecution closed the evidence, the statement of the accused were recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. According to the accused appellant Talewar Singh, he was falsely implicated due to party bandi and pressure of the police as there was enmity with the police. He further stated that he was resident of Shamspur Bhoor and one of the relatives was the resident of Danapur where incident of dacoity took place. Bazar at Danapur belonged to his relative and he used to realise tahbazari on behalf of his relative. His uncle Bhagwan Singh was Sarpanch of Nyay Panchayat, Danapur for about 25 years. Danapur was at a distance of one mile from his village. Blacksmiths and carpenters of village Danapur used to do their work. In a case against his father one Narain, who was uncle of the witness Shiv Charan Lal was witness against his father Fateh Singh.

9- The defence examined DW-1 Umrao Singh, DW-2 Shyama and DW-3 Jai Singh. According to DW-1 Supervisor Kanoongo, the distance is in between Danapur and Saraspur is about one and 1/4 mile. He had visited those village and there is direct way from Saraspur to Danapur. DW-2 the sister of the accused appellant Satyaram stated that her mother died when Satyaram was aged about five years, hence she brought up. For about five-six years he was not visiting her house. DW-3 Jai Singh was village Pradhan of village Saraspur and Girdharpur as both the villages were adjacent in the same gram panchayat. The Bazar used to take place on every Tuesday. Bazar belonged to her brother Har Prasad. Rajjoraj of village Danapur is also one of the co-sharer. Talewar Singh use to realise tehbazari on behalf of Rajjoraj and Har Prasad. Talewar Singh was also the relative of Rajjoraj. Son of PW 3 Jai Singh was married to nephew of Talewar Singh, the accused appellant. Nanand of the sister of Talewar Singh was married to Tezpal, son of Rajjoraj, hence Talewar Singh was known to the resident of village Danapur. Bhagwan Singh, tau of Talewar Singh was Sarpanch of Danapur. There was direct path way in between Danapur and Saraspur which was about 1/4 mile long and according to him, Talewar Singh was known to the witnesses since before the incident. There was fair price shop in the house of Shiv Charan Lal. The essential goods were being distributed to the residents of village Saraspur from that shop and Talewar Singh also used to purchase sugar from there. Doctor was sitting in village Danapur where Shiv Charan Lal was working. Matru Lal, the informant had the shop of general merchant. Talewar Singh used to purchase goods and medicines from the shop of Matru Lal.

10- After considering the statement of the witnesses trial court held the accused appellant Talewar Singh and Satyaram guilty of dacoity with murder, hence they were convicted and sentence for life imprisonment. However, co-accused Sheodan was acquitted from the charges giving benenfit of doubt. Now the present appeal has to be decided on behalf of only surviving appellant Talewar Singh on whose behalf appeal was pressed and argued by counsel for the appellant.

11- Learned counsel for the appellant challenged the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence on the ground that in view of the evidence the accused appellants were known to the witnesses, including the informant, since before the incident and due to village party bandi and pressure of police, the appellant Talewar Singh was falsely implicated alongwith other accused. The incident of dacoity took place but the appellant was not involved in the incident. Had there been any intention to commit dacoity, the accused appellant Talewar Singh and the other co-accused must have covered their faces. Theres is no recovery of any looted articles including gun nor recovery of any weapon for committing dacoity. Merely on the test identification parade and identification by three of the witnesses, the appellant was convicted and sentenced. The test identification parade took place after one and half years and after 25 days of arrest of the appellant Talewar Singh and after three months of arrest of the accused appellants Satyaram, hence there was delay in test identification parade. Though the appellant was well known to the witnesses but apart from that there was ample opportunity to show them to the witnesses. According to test identification three witnesses identified the accused appellant Satyaram and three identified to the appellant Talewar Singh which is too good to be believed. The appellant was falsely implicated due to village party bandi and pressure of the police. According to prosecution case about 23-25 dacoits committed dacoity in 3-4 houses including in the house of the informant Matrul Lal. If the appellants are not known to the informant and other witnesses, there was no opportunity to identify them especially after more than one and half year. According to PW-4, only 4-6 dacoits have covered their faces, even according to prosecution case initially there was no intention to kill Durej Pal, son of Matru Lal. The dacoits were in the police uniform. According to PW-1, Durej Pal caught hold one of the dacoits, scuffle took place. Thereafter the accused appellant Satyaram (since dead) shot fire causing firearm injury on chest of Durej Pal who succumbed to the injuries. Subsequently though the informant was caught hold, he handed over the keys but the assailants did not shot fire at him.

12- Learned counsel for the appellant also relied the judgment of Apex Court reported in 2015 (6) SCC 623 Iqbal and others vs. State of Uttar Pradesh. He submitted that in view of the judgment the appellant is not liable to be held guilty and to be convicted merely on the basis of identification in test identification parade unless the same is corroborated by other substantive evidence. Hence the conviction and sentence of the appellant is against the weight of evidence on record and the impugned judgment of conviction and sentence is liable to be set aside and the appellant is entitled to be acquitted and released from jail.

13- Learned A.G.A. opposed the aforesaid prayer and submitted that it is a day light incident. There was ample opportunity before the witnesses to identify the dacoits. The test identification parade of Satyaram took place after three months as he was arrested on 7.3.1981 and test identification parade took place on 22.6.1981 but Satyaram is dead.

14- However, so for as the appellant Talewar Singh is concerned he has surrendered on 25.5.1981 and his test identification parade took place alongwith Satyaram on 22.6.1981, hence that was within a month. There was no delay. Test identification parade was also proved by Executive Magistrate PW-12 Rajvir Singh before whom test identification parade took place and three witnesses rightly identified the appellant Talewar Singh namely witnesses Shiv Charan, Matru Lal and Suresh Chandra, Even if, there was no recovery from the appellant Talewar Singh, since he was identified by the witnesses, hence his complicity in the dacoity which took place on 1.11.1981 at the house of the informant and at the house of other villages is proved, beyond reasonable doubt. According to witnesses the appellant was not known since before the incident. First time they saw him at the time of the incident and second time in the court, subsequently in the test identification parde and thereafter in court, hence the appellant is not entitled to any benefit of doubt as in view of the fact in which dacoity took place in 4-5 houses on the same day which continued for more than two hours in which one person was shot dead and the informant also received injuries.

15- Considered the submissions of the learned counsel for the parties.

16- The genuineness of the First Information Report, Injury report, Postmortem examination report were not disputed as as the same were admitted. Hence it is admitted case that the dacoity was committed on 1.11.1980 in between 4.00 P.M. to 6.30 P.M. The only controversy, has to be decided regarding complicity of the only surviving the appellant Talewar Singh. This is also admitted case that except identification of Talewar in test identification parade there is no other evidence adduced by the prosecution. No other substantive evidence adduced by the prosecution to establish the involvement of the appellant in the incident of dacoity. Admittedly neither there is recovery of any looted article including gun nor any weapon used by the appellant and co-accused.

17- According to the prosecution case there were 22-25 dacoits. According to prosecution case it is a day light incident. The appellant is resident of nearby village and the village of the appellant and village Danapur where the incident took place are in the same Gram Panchayat of which uncle (tau)of the appellant was Sarpanch for about 25 years but according to the prosecution case the appellant and other co-accused had not covered their faces, except statement of PW 4. According to PW-4 Raghunandan Prasad 4-6 accused had covered their faces.

18- So for as the appellant Satyaram is concerned, there was specific allegation that he shot fire on the deceased Durejpal when he caught hold one of the dacoits and scuffle took place in between them so there might be one of convincing reason and opportunity to identify Satyaram but no specific role assigned to the appellant Talewar Singh, due to which they identified him out of 24-25 dacoits. The specific case of the defence is that they were well known to the witnesses since before the incident so it is unbelievable that he would have participated in the incident alongwith the co-accused without covering his face. According to the accused appellant Talewar Singh the distance of his village Saraspur and Danapur was about one mile but according to DW-1 Umrao Singh, the then Supervisor Kanoongo the distance in between two village was about 1-1/4 miles as direct path way connecting two villages Saraspur and Danapur. According to DW-3 Jai Singh both the villages Saraspur and Girdharpur were adjoining villages. The bazar was organised at Danapur on every Tuesday which belonged to his brother Har Prasad and Rajjoraj of village Danapur who was co-sharer. The appellant Talewar Singh was collecting tehbazari from the bazar on behalf of Rajjoraj and Har Prasad. Talewar Singh was relative of Rajjoraj and Talewar Singh was also his son-in-law. His son was married to the sister of the appellant Talewar Singh. The direct distance in between the village Danapur and Saraspur was about 1-1/4 mile. Bhagwan Singh, tau of Talewar Singh was Sarpanch of Danapur Panchayat and village Girdharpur. Saraspur was also part of the Nyay Panchayat. One doctor has clinic at village Danapur and witness Shiv Charan was doing the business of supply of medicines. The informant PW-1- Matru Lal had general merchant shop and the appellant Talewar Singh used to purchase goods and medicines from their shop. There was fair price shop in the house of Shiv Charan in which sugar was being distributed by DW-3. The appellant Talewar Singh also used to purchase sugar from there, hence in view of the fact he was known to the witnesses since before the incident in question.

19- Evidence of identification of the miscreants in the test identification parade is not a substantive evidence. Conviction cannot be based solely on the identity of the dacoits by the witness in the test identification parade. The prosecution has to adduce substantive evidence by establishing incriminating evidence connecting the accused with the crime, like recovery of articles which are the subject matter of dacoity and the alleged weapons used in the commission of the offence. Benefit of doubt was given to one of the accused Sheodan who was also identified in the test identification parade.

20- In view of the above noted facts and discussion according to the prosecution case itself there is no evidence against the appellant Talewar Singh except that he was identified by the witnesses in the test identification parade held after three weeks though within a month. It is day light dacoity in which about 23-25 dacoits were involved, out of which 4-6 had covered their faces though it is not the version of the First Information Report. However, there is no averment that the appellant Talewar Singh had covered his face and during committing dacoity his face was uncovered and witnesses got opportunity to identify. There was no specific averment except general allegation against him who was one of the members of gang of dacoits in which 23-25 dacoits were involved. It is also unnatural and unbelievable that he was resident of nearby place as the distance in two villages was about 1-1/4 miles but had not covered his face. Accused appellant, pleaded that witnesses know them as they were living in nearby places and also visiting the village of the witnesses.

In the present case the inspection was conducted by the trial judge on the application of D.G.C. merely in respect of the distance in two villages i.e village of the appellant and village where the dacoity took place and according to him the distance was about 5 km but in 1980 distance was from road as he went by four wheeler jeep from village Danapur to village Saraspur and direct pathway was only about 1-1/4 miles.

21- Hence in view of the aforesaid fact in the present case since there is no substantive piece of the evidence adduced by the prosecution to establish the involvement of the accused appellant Talewar Singh in the dacoity because neither there is recovery of any looted article including gun nor weapon used by the appellant in committing dacoity nor any other substantive evidence except the identification of the appellant in test identification parade. Though in the present case one person lost his life but in view of the facts prosecution story regarding involvement of the appellant appears to be doubtful and the appellant is entitled for the benefit of doubt. It will not be safe to hold the appellant guilty in the present case.

22- In view of the above-noted discussion the impugned judgment of conviction and sentence in S,T.No.701of 1981 under section 396 I.P.C. PS.Zarif Nagar, District Budaun against the appellant is hereby set aside. Accordingly the appeal is allowed.

23- The appellant Talewar Singh shall be released forthwith from jail, if he is not wanted in any other case, after compliance of section 437(A) Cr.P.C.

24- Let this judgment and order be communicated to the court concerned to ensure the compliance of the order.

Three separate appeals have been filed against Judgment dated 13.08.2001 passed by Addl. Session Judge, Court No.3, Lakhimpur Kheri in Sessions Trial No. 206 of 1990 under Sections 302/307/452/325 & 323 Indian Penal Code 1860 (here-in-after referred as Code for brevity) whereby accused Sirdar son of Natha, resident of Bhadura, Police Station Phardhan District Lakhimpur Kheri has been acquitted and accused Rahmat son of Fakira, resident of Village Bhadura, Police Station Phardhan, District Lakhimpur Kheri and accused Jaan Mohd. Son of Subhan, resident of Birampur Police Station Mitauli, District Lakhimpur Kheri have been convicted under sections 323/325 & 452 of the Code. State has filed Criminal Appeal No. 440 of 2004 to set aside the judgment acquitting accused Sirdar and to enhance the sentence under sections 302/307/452/323 & 325 of the Code against respondent-accused Rahmat and accused Jaan Mohd. Respectively. Simultaneously Criminal Appeal No. 784 of 2001 and 866 of 2001 have also been filed by accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Against their conviction. Since all the three appeals have been filed against one and the same judgment, they all are taken up together for disposal.

Brief facts as revealed from First Information Report (Exhibit Ka-01) are that on 23.5.1989 one Gobare son of Kadhile resident of Kotva, District Lakhimpur Kheri was making "Kothari" in the neighborhood of his son-in-law Siddhique in Village Bhadura for his residence. At about 4.30 p.m. on the same day respondent-accused Rahmat son of Fakira, Fakira son of Abdulla, Sirdar son of Natha and Jaan Mohd. Son of Subhan came there and started giving him beating. Accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Were armed with "kanta" and accused Fakira and Sirdar were having "lathi" in their hands. On his hue and cry Harun Khan son of Siddhique reached there. Gobre ran away into house of Munshi to save himself, but accused chased him there also and assaulted him. When his wife Haffizan tried to save him they also gave beating to her also. The accused persons were inquiring about his daughter Zaibunnisha and son-in-law Siddhique. When Gobare told him that Zaibunnisha and Siddique had gone to Sallihabad bazar to consult doctor they left him and went to Sallihabad bazaar. Accused persons found them near old Crusher at about 5 o'clock in the evening, while Siddhique and Zaibunnisha were coming back through lakhimpur-mohammadi road. Accused persons assaulted them there with "kanta and "lathi". Witnesses Mustafa, Mohd. Raza-father of Siddhique, Khalil, Callector singh and many others, who were there at "Crusher" came in and saved them. Siddhique and Fakira had old enmity due to some property. Due to this animosity accused persons had attacked them with intention to kill. F.I.R. was lodged by Gobare verbally on 23.5.1989 at 8.20 p.m. in police station Phardhan, District Lakhimpur Kheri and medical examination of injured persons were conducted by Dr V. K .Dixit on the same day in district hospital Kher.

In the instant case, the First Information Report was lodged verbally in Police Station. His statement was recorded by Head Constable, who was on duty in that point of time. P.W.-5 Sub-Inspector Shyam Raj Yadav has disclosed his name as C.C 120 Ram Briksha Yadav, but C.C 120 Ram Briksha Yadav has not been produced in the Court to prove that Gobare made such statement to him. In absence of proof, the statement contained in First Information Report cannot be used as substantive piece of evidence under the category of dying declaration. In these circumstance, the F.I.R. cannot be used as dying declaration.

For the reasons stated above, respondent-accused cannot be held guilty of offence under Section 302 of the Code. Trial court has rightly convicted respondent accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohammad under Sections 323, 325 & 452 of the Code. Therefore, Criminal Appeal No. 440 of 2004 deserves to be allowed partially only to the extent that accused Sirdar is also guilty under Sections 323, 325 & 452 of the Code. Criminal Appeal No. 784 of 2001 and 866 of 2001 are liable to be dismissed.

In view of above discussion, Criminal Appeal No. 784 of 2001 and 866 of 2001 are dismissed and Criminal Appeal No. 440 of 2004 is allowed partially only to the extent that accused Sirdar is guilty under Sections 323, 325 & 452 read with Section 34 of the Code. Respondent accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohammad shall appear in the Court of Additional Sessions Judge, Lakhimpur Kheri to serve out the sentences imposed by the Court. Respondent accused Sirdar son of Natha, resident of Bhadura, Police Station Phardhan District Lakhimpur Kheri is held guilty under section 323/325 and 452 read with section of the Code.

Kans Raj Vs. State of Punjab (2000) 5 SCC page 207,

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ravindra Nath Mishra-II, J.)

1. Three separate appeals have been filed against Judgment dated 13.08.2001 passed by Addl. Session Judge, Court No.3, Lakhimpur Kheri in Sessions Trial No. 206 of 1990 under Sections 302/307/452/325 & 323 Indian Penal Code 1860 (here-in-after referred as Code for brevity) whereby accused Sirdar son of Natha, resident of Bhadura, Police Station Phardhan District Lakhimpur Kheri has been acquitted and accused Rahmat son of Fakira, resident of Village Bhadura, Police Station Phardhan, District Lakhimpur Kheri and accused Jaan Mohd. Son of Subhan, resident of Birampur Police Station Mitauli, District Lakhimpur Kheri have been convicted under sections 323/325 & 452 of the Code. State has filed Criminal Appeal No. 440 of 2004 to set aside the judgment acquitting accused Sirdar and to enhance the sentence under sections 302/307/452/323 & 325 of the Code against respondent-accused Rahmat and accused Jaan Mohd. Respectively. Simultaneously Criminal Appeal No. 784 of 2001 and 866 of 2001 have also been filed by accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Against their conviction. Since all the three appeals have been filed against one and the same judgment, they all are taken up together for disposal.

2. Brief facts as revealed from First Information Report (Exhibit Ka-01) are that on 23.5.1989 one Gobare son of Kadhile resident of Kotva, District Lakhimpur Kheri was making "Kothari" in the neighborhood of his son-in-law Siddhique in Village Bhadura for his residence. At about 4.30 p.m. on the same day respondent-accused Rahmat son of Fakira, Fakira son of Abdulla, Sirdar son of Natha and Jaan Mohd. Son of Subhan came there and started giving him beating. Accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Were armed with "kanta" and accused Fakira and Sirdar were having "lathi" in their hands. On his hue and cry Harun Khan son of Siddhique reached there. Gobre ran away into house of Munshi to save himself, but accused chased him there also and assaulted him. When his wife Haffizan tried to save him they also gave beating to her also. The accused persons were inquiring about his daughter Zaibunnisha and son-in-law Siddhique. When Gobare told him that Zaibunnisha and Siddique had gone to Sallihabad bazar to consult doctor they left him and went to Sallihabad bazaar. Accused persons found them near old Crusher at about 5 o'clock in the evening, while Siddhique and Zaibunnisha were coming back through lakhimpur-mohammadi road. Accused persons assaulted them there with "kanta and "lathi". Witnesses Mustafa, Mohd. Raza-father of Siddhique, Khalil, Callector singh and many others, who were there at "Crusher" came in and saved them. Siddhique and Fakira had old enmity due to some property. Due to this animosity accused persons had attacked them with intention to kill. F.I.R. was lodged by Gobare verbally on 23.5.1989 at 8.20 p.m. in police station Phardhan, District Lakhimpur Kheri and medical examination of injured persons were conducted by Dr V. K .Dixit on the same day in district hospital Kheri and injury report was prepared (Exhibit Ka-13) in which following injuries were found on the body of Smt. Zaibunnisha:

" 1. Lacerated wound 7 cm x 1.5 cm x Scalp deep on left side of head 12 cm above the left ear. Clotted blood adhere in an around the wound.

2. Abrasion Multiple in an area of 9cm x 3cm on back of left elbow & upper part of left forearm.

3. Abrasion 2cm x 1.5 cm on top of left shoulder.

4. Contusion 5 cm x 2 cm on back of Right Arm 17 cm below to top right shoulder Red Around the swelling 12 cm x 8 cm.

5. Contusion 5 cm x 2 cm on outer aspect of left thigh 15cm above the left knee jt.

6. Complains of plain in right thigh but mark of external injury not visible."

3. Gobare was also medically examined and following injuries (Exhibit Ka-15) were found on his body:

" 1. Traumatic Swelling 5.5 cm x 3 cm on top of head 17 cm above the root of neck.

2. Contusion with Abrasion 5 cm x 2 cm on back of left forearm 15 cm below the left elbow Jt.

3. Abraded Contusion 7.5 cm x 2 cm on back of Right forearm 15 cm below the Right elbow Jt. Around the Swelling 12 cm x 8 cm colour Red.

4. Lacerated wound 3 cm x 1.5 cm x bone deep on front of Right leg 18 cm below the Rt. Knee.

5. Abrasion 2 cm x 0.5 cm on inner side of Rt. Ankle Jt.

6. Complains of pain in left leg and chest but mark of external inj. Not visible."

4. Siddique had also injuries on his body(Exhibit Ka-16), which may be described as follows:

" 1. Lacerated wound 8 cm x 1 cm x bone deep on left side of head 13 cm above the left ear blood oozing.

2. Lacerated wound 7 cm x 0.8cm x bone deep on left side of head on back 13 cm above posterior to left ear.

3. Lacerated wound 3.5 cm x 0.4 cm x muscle deep on back of left fore arm 8 cm below the left elbow Jt.

4. Contusion 5 cm x 2 cm on back of left elbow Jt. Red.

5. Traumatic Swelling 7 cm x 4 cm on back of left hand.

6. Abrasion 2.5 cm x 1 cm on from of Right leg 27 cm below Rt knee.

7. Multiple contusion in an area of 25 cm x 22cm on back (illegible) scapular region of back on both sides."

5. Following injuries were found on the body of Smt. Haffizan(Exhibit Ka-14):

"1. Lacerated wound 1.5 cm x 0.4 cm x muscle deep in between the web in between the left thumb of left index finger.

2. Traumatic swelling 5 xm x 3 cm on back of left hand 2 cm below the left wrist."

6. Injured persons were admitted in District Hospital.

7. Investigation was entrusted to Sub Inspector R.B. Mishra, who recorded statement of CC Ram Briksha Yadav, scribe of First Information Report and General Diary of Police Station. Next day he also recorded statement of witnesses Harun Khan, Hafizan and Khalil and thereafter he inspected the place of occurrence and prepared site plans (Exhibit Ka-3) and (Exhibit Ka-6). The injuries of Gobare were serious in nature, therefore, he was kept in Hospital till 14.6.1989 when he died of Septicemia in hospital. Inquest report (Exhibit Ka-7). Was prepared on 14.6.1989 at about 14.20. Post-mortem (Exhibit Ka-18)was conducted on 15.6.1989 thereafter the case was converted into Sections 302/34, 307, 325 & 452 of the Code. Having found prima facie case against accused persons, charge-sheet (Exhibit-Ka 12) was submitted under Sections 307/ 325/302/34 & 452 of the Code.

8. Accused Fakira had died after submission of charge sheet Hence trial proceeded only against accused Rahmat, Sirdar and Jaan Mohd and charges under Sections 307/302 read with 34 & 452 of the Code. Were framed against them to which they denied and claimed to be tried.

9. In order to prove charges against accused persons, prosecution examined P.W.-1-Zaibunnisha, P.W.-2 Mushtak, P.W.-3, Haffizan, P.W-4 Harun Khan, P.W.-5 Sub Inspector Shyam Raj Yadav, P.W.-6 Dr. V.K.Dixit, P.W.-7 Dr. A.K.Srivastava.

10. After conclusion of prosecution, accused persons were examined under Section 313 Criminal Procedure Code in which they pleaded false implication and had stated that due to enmity witnesses have given statement. No witness has been examined on behalf of accused persons.

11. After hearing submissions of both the parties and appreciating the evidence on record, trial Court found sufficient evidence to convict accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Under Sections 323, 325 & 452 of the Code but acquitted accused Sirdar of the charges levelled against him on the ground that prosecution has failed to prove charges against him beyond reasonable doubt. Accused persons were sentenced to one year rigorous imprisonment under Sections 323 of the Code., five years rigorous imprisonment and fine to the tune of Rupees 1,000/- each and in default of payment of fine two months additional rigorous imprisonment under Section 325 of the Code and three years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 500/- and in default one month rigorous imprisonment under Section 452 of the Code. Trial court found no case under Sections 302 & 307 of the Code against accused persons.

12. Feeling aggrieved by the judgment passed by the trial court, State has filed Criminal Appeal No. 440 of 2004 to set aside judgment of acquittal of accused Sirdar and to enhance the sentence passed by trial court against accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. And to convert the same under Sections 302 & 307 of the Code Accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd also being aggrieved by the judgment, have filed Criminal Appeal No-784 of 2001 and Criminal Appeal No-866 of 2001 respectively against their conviction under section 323/325 & 452 of the Code.

13. Learned A.G.A., Smt. Smiti Sahay has argued that in an appeal against acquittal, this appellate court has full power to review, re-appreciate and re-considered the evidence available on record; that trial Court has committed grave error in acquitting accused Sirdar, whereas on the basis of same evidence respondent-accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Have been convicted under Sections 323/325 & 452 of the Code. She has also argued that trial Court has committed error in concluding that charges under Sections 307 and 302 of the Code are not proved whereas evidence available on record was sufficient to hold accused persons guilty of the charges under Sections 307/ 302 & 452 of the Code. The trial court has failed to appreciate the same and has caused injustice by not considering the same. The trial Court did not consider the fact that the statement made in First Information Report lodged by injured Gobare, who later on succumbed to Septicemia resulted from ante-mortem injuries comes within category of his dying declaration. The trial court committed error in considering only the cause of death as mentioned in the post-mortem report.

14. Per contra, the learned counsel for the accused has argued that the trial court has rightly held that charges against accused Sirdar could not be proved by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt; the trial court cannot interfere with the judgment of acquittal when on the basis of evidence available on record Conclusion drawn by trial court is also plausible. He has also argued that trial has appreciated the evidence on record in arbitrary manner to come to the conclusion that respondent-accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Are guilty under Sections 323, 325 & 452 of the Code; there is no evidence on record to prove that accused persons had any intention to kill deceased Gobare; that it is not proved that death of Gobare was caused by septicemia developed out of ante-mortem injuries; motive for the incident is also not proved; no independent witness supported the prosecution case.

15. Time and again it has been propounded by Hon'ble Apex Court that the appellate court while dealing with appeal against acquittal should not interfere in the judgment of acquittal as the principle of criminal jurisprudence with regard to presumption of innocence of accused is further strengthened by their acquittal. The golden thread which runs though the web of administration of justice and criminal jurisprudence is where two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing towards guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view favouring accused person should be adopted. Acquittal of the guilty is no less than conviction of an innocent. It also results in miscarriage of justice. Where admissible evidence is ignored acquitting accused, a duty is cast upon the trial court to re-appreciate the evidence for the purposes of ascertaining as to whether any of the accused really committed an offence. Prevention of miscarriage of justice is the paramount consideration of the Court. Keeping in view the above principle of presumption of innocence of accused and prevention of miscarriage of justice Hon'ble Apex Court in Sidhartha Vashisht @ Manu Sharma Vs. State (Nct of Delhi) 2010 (6) SCC page 1 has culled down certain guidelines in following terms :

"(i) There is no limitation on the part of the Appellate Court to review the evidence upon which the order of acquittal is found.

(ii) The Appellate Court in an appeal against acquittal can review the entire evidence and come to its own conclusions.

(iii) The Appellate Court can also review the Trial Court's conclusion with respect to both facts and law.

(iv) While dealing with the appeal preferred by the State, it is the duty of the Appellate Court to marshal the entire evidence on record and by giving cogent and adequate reasons set aside the judgment of acquittal.

(v) An order of acquittal is to be interfered only when there are "compelling and substantial reasons" for doing so. If the order is "clearly unreasonable", it is a compelling reason for interference.

(vi) While sitting in judgment over an acquittal the Appellate Court is first required to seek an answer to the question whether finding of the Trial Court are palpably wrong, manifestly, erroneous or demonstrably unsustainable. If the Appellate Court answers the above question in the negative the order of acquittal is not to be disturbed. Conversely, if the Appellate Court holds, for reasons to be recorded, that the order of acquittal cannot at all be sustained in view of any of the above infirmities, it can reappraise the evidence to arrive at its own conclusion.

vii. When the Trial Court has ignored the evidence or misread the material evidence or has ignored material documents like dying declaration/report of Ballistic Experts etc., the Appellate Court is competent to reverse the decision of the Trial Court depending on the materials placed."

16. In the backdrop of above principles laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court, it is to be examined whether there is any compelling and substantial reasons for interference in acquittal of accused.

17. Genesis of incident is said to be enmity over some property between Siddhique, son in law of Gobre and accused Fakire. Learned A.G.A. has pointed out towards statement of P.W.-1 Zaibunnisha where she has disclosed the reason for enmity. She has stated that her husband was three brothers one of them Noor Mohd. Died living behind his window Khiarunisha who after his death entered into Nikah with another brother Dost Mohd. Khiarunisha had tranferred certain property inherited by her from Noor Mohd. In favour of Siddhique through power of attorney holder Mordhawaj, but later on Khiarunnisha herself sold the same land to Rahmunnisha, who on her turn sold it to accused Rahmat. Therefore, they both became enmical. The enmity over property is also disclosed in First Information Report (Exhibit Ka-1). This fact does not appear to have been denied by the accused persons. They have not said anything regarding this sale of property in their statement recorded under Section 313 Criminal Procedure Code. Nothing has been suggested in cross examination of witnesses. Hence the trial court has committed no error in concluding that the parties were on inimical terms.

18. In order to bring home the charges against accused persons, the prosecution has examined P.W.-1 Zaibunnisha, daughter of deceased Gobare, P.W.-2 Mustaq, an independent person, P.W.-3 Haffizan and P.W.-4 Harun Khan who are wife and son of deceased Gobre respectively. Out of these witnesses P.W.-1 Zaibunnisha, P.W.-3 Haffizan are injured witnesses. P.W.-3 Haffizan has stated on oath that on fateful day when deceased Gobare was getting foundation of his house laid on the land towards South of Hata of Munshi. She heard cry of her husband, on which she rushed to the place of incident where she saw accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Armed with "kanta" and Fakira and Sirdar armed with "lathi" attacking her husband Gobare. Her husband Gobare in order to save himself rushed into house of Munshi, but there also accused persons caused severe injuries with their arms. When P.W.-3 Haffizan tried to save him, they attacked her in which she suffered injuries. Her injury report Exhibit Ka-14 indicates one lacerated and one traumatic swelling on her body. As per Injury report of deceased Gobare (Exhibit Ka-15) One traumatic swelling, contusion with abrasion, abraded contusion, lacerated and one abrasion wound were found on the body of deceased Gobare. Learned Additional Government Counsel has argued that special status has been conferred on an injured witness in law. Haffizan, being injured, her presence on the place of occurrence, cannot be doubted. For this contention reliance has been placed on Jodhan Vs. State of M.P. 2015 CRLJ page 3291—

"22. From the aforesaid summarization of the legal principles, it is beyond doubt that the testimony of the injured witness has its own significance and it has to be placed reliance upon unless there are strong grounds for rejection of his evidence on the basis of major contradictions and inconsistencies. As has been stated, the injured witness has been conferred special status in law and the injury sustained by him is an inbuilt- guarantee of his presence at the place of occurrence."

19. Thus the testimony of P.W.-3 Haffizan is not liable to be disbelieved. Her statement is also supported by P.W.-4, Harun Khan, who is son of injured Zaibunnisha. He has supported the case of prosecution that accused Rahmat, Jaan Mohd. And Ali Ahmad who were armed with "kanta" and "lathi" inflicted injuries on the body of Gobare, and when he rushed in the house of Munshi in order to save himself, they chased him there also and caused injuries in the house of Munshi. When Haffizan tried to save him accused persons attacked her also. Though P.W.-4 Harun Khan is not an injured witness, but there is nothing in his statement to disbelieve his testimony.

20. Similarly Zaibunnisha and Siddique daughter and son-in-law of deceased Gobare were also attacked with "kanta" and "lathi" by accused persons near "old crusher" when they were coming back from Salihabad market. Zaibunnisha suffered injuries on her body. Injuries were found on her body as per injury report (Exhibit Ka-13). Her statement is also supported by an independent witness P.W.-4 Harun Khan, who had reached the place of occurrence near "old crusher". Though P.W.-2 Mustaq was declared hostile by the prosecution as he did not support the prosecution in his cross examination, but learned A.G.A. has argued that he had supported the prosecution case in his examination-in-chief. But later on when he was called for cross-examination after lapse of considerable period of time he became hostile under pressure of accused persons. Thus she has argued that examination of chief of PW-2 Mustaq which supports prosecution version can be relied upon to prove guilt of the accused. She has further argued that even testimony of hostile witness cannot be brushed aside in toto.

21. Witnesses may be categorized into three distinct categories. They may be wholly reliable. Similarly there may be witnesses who can be considered wholly unreliable. There is no difficulty in placing reliance or disbelieving his evidence when an evidence is wholly reliable or wholly un-reliable, but difficulty arises in case of third category i.e. where witness is neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable. Hostile witness ordinarily falls in category of those witnesses who are neither wholly reliable nor wholly un-reliable. She has relied on judgment Hon'ble Apex Court in in Khujji @ Surendra Tiwari Vs. State of M.P. AIR 1991 SC page 1853 has held that:

"The evidence of a prosecution witness cannot be rejected in toto merely because the prosecution chose to treat him as hostile and cross-examined him. The evidence of such witnesses cannot be treated as effaced or washed off the record altogether, but the same can be accepted to the extent their version is found to be dependable on a careful scrutiny thereof."

22. The term "hostile witness" does not find place in Evidence Act 1872 (here-in-after referred as Act of 1872 for brevity). It is a term borrowed from English Law. Though in English Law to allow a party to contradict its own witness was not acceptable view. The theory of contradicting its own witness was resisted on the ground that party should be permitted to discard or contradict his own witness, which turns unfavorable to party calling him, however, this rigidity of rule was sought to be relaxed by evolving a term "hostile" or "un-favourable witness" in common law.

23. The Act of 1872 merely, provides by enacting Section 154 of the Act of 1872 that – "the Court may, in its discretion, permit the person who calls a witness to put any question to him, which might be put in cross examination by the adverse party".

Sub-Section (2) of Section 154 of Act of 1872, further provides that "Nothing in this section shall disentitle the person so permitted under sub-section (1), to rely on any part of evidence of such witness".

24. Thus discretion is vested in Court to permit a person to put such question, which may be put by adverse party, if Court deems it appropriate. Thus the term "hostile witness" has been borrowed from English Law and developed in through case Laws.

25. The principle of "falsus in uno falsus in omnibus" (false in one thing, false in everything) has no application in India. It is duty of Court to separate grain from chaff. Keeping in view the above principles Hon'ble Apex Court . In Sucha Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 2003 SC 3617, had held that "even if major portion of the evidence is found to be deficient, in case residue is sufficient to prove guilt of an accused, it is the duty of the court to separate grain from chaff. Falsity of particular material witness or material particular would not ruin it from the beginning to end. The maxim falsus in uno falsus in omnibus (false in one thing, false in everything) has no application in India and the witness cannot be branded as a liar. In case this maxim is applied in all the cases it is to be feared that administration of criminal justice would come to a dead stop. Witnesses just cannot help in giving embroidery to a story, however, truth is the main. Therefore, it has to be appraised in each case as to what extent the evidence is worthy of credence, and merely because in some respects the court considers the same to be insufficient or unworthy of reliance, it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law that it must be disregarded in all respects as well."

26. Similarly in Paramjeet Singh v. State of Uttarakhand; AIR 2011 SC 200 also Hon'ble Apex Court has propounded that—

"When the witness was declared hostile at the instance of the public prosecutor and he was allowed to cross examine the witness furnishes no justification for rejecting embloc the evidence of the witness. However, the court has to be very careful, as prima facie, a witness who makes different statements at different times, has no regard for the truth. His evidence has to be read and considered as a whole with a view to find out whether any weight should be attached to it. The court should be slow to act on the testimony of such a witness; normally, it should look for corroboration to his testimony".

27. Perusal of statement of P.W.2-Mustaq, shows that Pw-2 has fully supported the prosecution story when he was examined on 17.3.1994 but on that day accused did not cross examined him and his cross examination was adjourned for 02.08.1995. On 2.8.1995 i.e after a lapse of about a year and half, he was declared hostile when he was cross-examined. There can be no two opinion that this witness turned hostile on account of pressure exerted upon him by the accused persons. He refused to state truth about the occurrence, and therefore, he was declared hostile in his cross examination. In his cross-examination he also refused to have witnessed the occurrence; that he ever gave any statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C., but surprisingly neither prosecuting officer nor the Court asked him about the statement given by him in his examination-in-chief. He should have been cross examined on the point as to under what circumstances he had given statement in the Court on 17.3.1994. He was required to submit his explanation regarding his previous statement given in examination-in-chief supporting the prosecution case.

28. We feel pain to observe that our present system of trial has turned most of the trial Court judges into umpires and despite having sufficient power to ask questions to the witnesses in order to find out truth, most of them do not ask questions to the witnesses to shift the grain from the chaff. Practice of leaving witnesses to the Advocates, when a witness becomes hostile, is not uncommon in the trial Courts. Trial Court judges just sit and watch like an umpire. Time and again Hon'ble Apex Court has reminded that a Judge does not preside over a criminal trial merely to see that no innocent man is punished, but a Judge also presides to see that a guilty man does not escape. Both are public duties, which the Judge has to perform. Therefore, the trial Court must shed their inertia and must intervene in all those cases where intervention is necessary for the ends of justice.

29. Coming to the present case, perusal of the statement of P.W.-2 makes it evident that he changed his statement under the pressure exerted by accused persons his statement given in examination-in-chief must be taken to be truthful and reliable. Evidence of such witness cannot be treated as effaced or washed off the record altogether, but acceptable to the extent his version is found to be dependable on a careful scrutiny thereof.

30. No explanation of injuries on the person of injured witnesses have been given. It has been suggested to the witnesses that Zaibunnisha, Haffizan, Goabre and Siddique suffered injuries in a robbery case. Mere suggestion is not sufficient. Moreover it itself indicates a false defence. All the witnesses being the close relatives, it is beyond apprehension that they instead of naming out real culprit, they would falsely implicate the accused persons knowing them innocent.

31. Learned counsel for the appellant accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohd has further argued that the accused persons are alleged to have inflicted injuries with "Kanta and lathi". Kanta is a sharp aged weapon but no injury was found on the body of injured which can be said to have been caused with sharp edged weapon. We have gone through the impugned judgment and evidence on record. The trial court relying on the testimony of witnesses has concluded that the accused had attacked Gobre, his daughter and his son in law with other side i.e blunt side of "kanta". Therefore no sharp edged injury has been caused. Looking into the totality of statement of witnesses, the Conclusion drawn by the trial court cannot be said to be unreasonable. Hence I do not find any error in arriving at conclusion of guilt of accused appellant.

32. However trial Court relying on the statement of P.W.-3 Haffizan that she did not see accused Sirdar on the place of occurrence has acquitted accused Sirdar. Learned A.G.A. has argued that this finding of trial court suffers with perversity. Trial Court overlooked the statement of P.W.-1 Zabunnisha, who has stated in her statement that Sirdar was also there, but he was empty handed and he did not cause any injury to her or her husband. As has been seen in proceeding paras while dealing with ambit and scope of power of interference by appellate Court in judgment against acquittal, the finding of trial Court can be reversed only when finding suffers with perversity. The word "perversity" in terms as understood in law has been defined to mean "against the weight of evidence" i.e. to say when conclusion drawn by trial Court is against material available on record and unreasonable then there is scope of interference. It is established principle of law of evidence that statement of witness is to be read as a whole and conclusion should not be drawn only by picking up a single sentence of the statement of a witness. P.W.-3 Haffizan herself in the examination-in-chief has stated that Sirdar came along with other accused, he was armed with 'lathi". She has also stated that Sirdar also inflicted injuries to Gobare and to her. It is admitted case of prosecution that witness Haffizan did not go to "old crusher", which is second place of occurrence. P.W.-1 Zaibunnisha in her statement has stated that Sirdar was also there, but did not cause any injury to her or her husband. From this statement, presence of accused Sirdar on the second place of occurrence cannot be doubted. He was present on the second place of occurrence, but he did not cause any injury. Even if it is believed that Sirdar did not cause any injury to the injured persons his presence on the place on occurrence is not doubtful. When he was present along with other co-accused, his common intention with other co-accused is well established. Apart from this witnesses P.W.-3 Haffizan and P.W.-4 Harun also have proved presence of accused Sirdar at the first place of occurrence and also his participation in the crime. They have stated that on fateful day Gobre was constructing house near house of Munshi when she heard his cry, she reached there and saw accused persons attacking her husband with "lathi" and "kanta" when her husband rushed into the house of Munshi to save himself, accused persons chased him there also. When PW-3 tried to save her husband, she was also attacked by them. P.W.-4 Haroon has also supported the statement of PW-3. He has also witnessed the incident. Thus the trial court has overlooked the material evidence available on record with regard to guilt of accused Sirdar and to that extent conclusion drawn by the trial Court suffers with patent infirmity and perversity and therefore, liable to be reversed.

33. On the point of enhancement of sentence in Appeal No. 440 of 2004, learned A.G.A. has argued that Gobare has died due to Septicemia out of ante-mortem injuries inflicting by respondent-accused, therefore, respondent-accused should be held guilty under Section 302 I.P.C.. Trial Court has committed grave error in convicting respondents Rahmat and Jaan Mohd. Only under Section 323, 325 & 452 of the Code.

34. Repelling the argument of learned A.G.A., It has been argued on behalf of respondent while inflicting injuries on the body of Gobare on the date of incident, had no intention to kill him. Before we proceed with the merit of the case, Section 299 of the Code. Must be looked into:

"299. Culpable homicide.—Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide.

Illustrations

(a) lays sticks and turf over a pit, with the intention of thereby causing death, or with the knowledge that death is likely to be thereby caused. Z believing the ground to be firm, treads on it, falls in and is killed. A has committed the offence of culpable homicide.

(b) A knows Z to be behind a bush. B does not know it A, intend-ing to cause, or knowing it to be likely to cause Z's death, induces B to fire at the bush. B fires and kills Z. Here B may be guilty of no offence; but A has committed the offence of culpable homicide.

(c) by shooting at a fowl with intent to kill and steal it, kills B who is behind a bush; A not knowing that he was there. Here, although A was doing an unlawful act, he was not guilty of culpable homicide, as he did not intend to kill B, or to cause death by doing an act that he knew was likely to cause death.

Explanation 1.—A person who causes bodily injury to another who is labouring under a disorder, disease or bodily infirmity, and thereby accelerates the death of that other, shall be deemed to have caused his death.

Explanation 2.—Where death is caused by bodily injury, the person who causes such bodily injury shall be deemed to have caused the death, although by resorting to proper remedies and skilful treatment the death might have been prevented.

Explanation 3.—The causing of the death of child in the mother's womb is not homicide. But it may amount to culpable homicide to cause the death of a living child, if any part of that child has been brought forth, though the child may not have breathed or been completely born."

Thus in terms of Sections 299 I.P.C. culpable homicide is described as an act of causing death:

a With the intention of causing death

b With the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death

c. With the knowledge that such an act is likely to cause death.

35. Section 299 of the Code. Makes it clear that emphasis is on the expression "intention" and "knowledge". Once an offence is caused in any of the three stated manners, noted above, it would be "culpable homicide".

36. Now reverting to the facts of the case, it is established from records that Gobare has died due to Septicemia. Septicemia is an infection of the blood also knows as bacteria or blood poisoning. The incident had occurred on 23.5.1989 and Gobare has died on 14.6.1989. Gobare was examined medically on 23.5.1989. His injury report (Exhibit Ka-15) shows that there was one traumatic swelling on the top of head, two contusions were on forearm. There was one lacerated wound below right knee and one abrasion on right Ankle. The injuries shows that there was only one open wound from where infection can be said to have developed. The post-mortem (Exhibit Ka-18) also mentions one septic wound on the same place where open wound was caused. Bedsore were also all over the back. Thus the only source from where Septicemia can be said to have developed is the open wound on Right leg. The prosecution has not adduced any evidence that Gobare was in Hospital till his death. There is no whisper of evidence that the secondary infection was not hospital acquired, however, presuming that Septicemia was caused due to injuries inflicted by respondent-accused. The question arises whether there was any intention to kill on the part of the respondent-accused. The nature of injuries found on the body of Gobare is not sufficient to indicate this intention on the part of the respondent-accused.

37. Evidence led by prosecution also does not prove intention of killing Gobare. P.W.-3 Haffizan, who is widow of Gobare has stated that respondent-accused were inquiring about Siddique and Zaibunnisha and as soon as Gobare told them that his son-in-law and her daughter Siddique and Zaibunnisha respectively had gone to Salihabad market to consult doctor, respondent-accused left him and proceeded to Salihabad market. It has also come in the statement of P.W.-3 Haffizan that accused Rahmat had "kanta", but he did not assault with reserved side of Kanta i.e blunt side of "kanta" and with "lathi". Had they intended to kill Gobare, they would have used sharp side of "kanta" causing severe injuries. It has also come in evidence that accused attacked Gobre just to know where-about of Siddique and Zaibunnisha and the moment Gobre told them about Siddique and Zaibunnisha, they left him and went to Salihabad market. Thus evidence pertaining to intention of accused to kill Gobare is evidently lacking. For the above reasons, we do not find any substance in the argument of learned A.G.A. that respondent-accused are guilty of offence under Sections 302 or 307 of the Code.

38. Learned A.G.A. has also argued that the First Information Report was lodged by Gobare, which contains his statement as to cause of his death or it can be said that as to circumstances of the transaction, which resulted in his death, therefore, First Information Report should be treated as dying declaration under Section 32 of the Act of 1872.

39. From the side of respondent-accused, learned counsel has argued that at the time of lodging of First Information Report, Gobare was not under eminent expectation of death. Hence a First Information Report containing his statement cannot be treated as dying declaration.

40. Now question is whether in order to attract the provisions of section 32 of the Act of 1872, is it necessary that at the time of making statement, the maker of the statement must be under eminent expectation of death. Provision of Section 32 of the Act of 1872 may be reproduced as follows:

"32. Cases in which statement of relevant fact by person who is dead or cannot be found, etc. Is relevant – Statements, written or verbal, or relevant facts made by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who has become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case appears to the Court unreasonable, are themselves relevant facts in the following cases:

(1) When it relates to cause of death:- When the statement is made by a person as to the cause of his death, or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death, in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question."

41. Reading of above provision of Section 32 of the Act of 1872 shows mark difference of Indian law on the subject from English law. Unlike English law Section 32 of Indian Evidence Act does not use any word showing that the maker of statement should be under the sense of impending death. If statement is made relating to cause of his death or circumstances of the case causing her death, then the statement is admissible if the maker of the statement is dead or cannot be found.

42. Thus the statement made by Gobare relating to circumstances causing his death is certainly admissible. Gobare has stated in his First Information Report, dictated to Constable Ram Briksha Yadav, who had recorded the First Information Report is certainly admissible in evidence but at the same time recording of statement has also to be proved as per law. Hon'ble Apex Court in Kans Raj Vs. State of Punjab (2000) 5 SCC page 207 has observed that:

"To make such statement as substantive evidence, the person or the agency relying upon it is under a legal obligation to prove the making of such statement as a fact. If it is in writing, the scribe must be produced in the Court and if it is verbal, it should be proved by examining the person who heard the deceased making the statement."

43. In the instant case, the First Information Report was lodged verbally in Police Station. His statement was recorded by Head Constable, who was on duty in that point of time. P.W.-5 Sub-Inspector Shyam Raj Yadav has disclosed his name as C.C 120 Ram Briksha Yadav, but C.C 120 Ram Briksha Yadav has not been produced in the Court to prove that Gobare made such statement to him. In absence of proof, the statement contained in First Information Report cannot be used as substantive piece of evidence under the category of dying declaration. In these circumstance, the F.I.R. cannot be used as dying declaration.

44. For the reasons stated above, respondent-accused cannot be held guilty of offence under Section 302 of the Code. Trial court has rightly convicted respondent accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohammad under Sections 323, 325 & 452 of the Code. Therefore, Criminal Appeal No. 440 of 2004 deserves to be allowed partially only to the extent that accused Sirdar is also guilty under Sections 323, 325 & 452 of the Code. Criminal Appeal No. 784 of 2001 and 866 of 2001 are liable to be dismissed.

45. In view of above discussion, Criminal Appeal No. 784 of 2001 and 866 of 2001 are dismissed and Criminal Appeal No. 440 of 2004 is allowed partially only to the extent that accused Sirdar is guilty under Sections 323, 325 & 452 read with Section 34 of the Code. Respondent accused Rahmat and Jaan Mohammad shall appear in the Court of Additional Sessions Judge, Lakhimpur Kheri to serve out the sentences imposed by the Court. Respondent accused Sirdar son of Natha, resident of Bhadura, Police Station Phardhan District Lakhimpur Kheri is held guilty under section 323/325 and 452 read with section of the Code.

46. For hearing on the quantum of sentence list on 22.09.2016.

Criminal Appeal Defective No.- 480 Of 2012

Kamlesh Singh ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
R.S. Tomar

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

This appeal has arisen against the judgment and order dated 18.02.2008 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Lakhimpur Kheri in Sessions Trial No. 910 of 2004 (State Vs. Kamlesh Singh) arising out of Case Crime No. 568 of 2004 under Sections 364, 364, 302 & 201 IPC, P.s. Pradhan District Kheeri whereby accused was found guilty of the offence punishable under Sections 302, 364 & 201 IPC and was sentenced for imprisonment for life under Section 302 IPC, ten years rigorous imprisonment under Section 364 IPC and two years rigorous imprisonment under Section 201 IPC. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

In the case of Hari Om Sharma Vs. State of U.P. And Anr., 2011 (1) ACR 569, wherein it was held that it is established principle of law that no one should be condemned unheard. It the opportunity for cross-examination of accused-appellant it would prejudice to him, so his valuable rights should not be curtained and he may be afforded an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses (See. Jawahar Singh s/o Mishri Lal Vs. State of U.P., 2004 Cri. LJ 2413).

Thus, keeping in view the abovesaid fact we are of the considered opinion that even if there is some fault on the part of accused for not taking appropriate steps for cross-examining P.W.-1/Amar Singh and P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh, thereafter when the opportunity was granted to him by way of recall the said witnesses for re- cross-examination he had failed to do so even in that facility his right to cross-examination cannot be curtained down in any manner and the same is in contravention of principles of natural justice and fair-play.

For the foregoing reasons, we are of the opinion that the matter should be remanded back to the trial court for reconsideration after giving opportunity to the accused for cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. Order dated 18.02.2008 passed by trial court is set aside and the trial court is directed to allow the accused/Kamlesh Singh to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses, namely, P.W.-1/Amar Singh and P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh and P.W.-5/Vijay Singh subject to payment of Rs. 9,000/- i.e. Rs. 3000/- each to the prosecution witnesses and the trial court is further directed to conduct trial of the case on day to day basis without giving unnecessary adjournment. Further as the appellant in jail, so he will remain in jail subject to outcome of the decision of the trial court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anil Kumar, J.
Hon'ble Anil Kumar Srivastava-II, J.)

1. Heard Sri R.S. Tomar, learned counsel for appellant, Sri Izhar Husain, learned AGA and perused the record.

2. This appeal has arisen against the judgment and order dated 18.02.2008 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Lakhimpur Kheri in Sessions Trial No. 910 of 2004 (State Vs. Kamlesh Singh) arising out of Case Crime No. 568 of 2004 under Sections 364, 364, 302 & 201 IPC, P.s. Pradhan District Kheeri whereby accused was found guilty of the offence punishable under Sections 302, 364 & 201 IPC and was sentenced for imprisonment for life under Section 302 IPC, ten years rigorous imprisonment under Section 364 IPC and two years rigorous imprisonment under Section 201 IPC. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

3. According to the prosecution version, FIR was lodged by Amar Singh on 26.06.2004 stating that his son, namely, Swabhiman Singh aged about 6 years had gone in the field along with accused Kamlesh Singh on 25.06.2004 at about 10.00 a.m. Kamlesh Singh returned to the house but his son did not came back.

4. First Information report was lodged at Case Crima No. 568 of 2004, thereafter on 27.06.2004 accused-Kamlesh Singh arrested at 09.00 a.m. On pointing out the accused, the body of the deceased-Swabhiman Singh was recovered from bushes of the Rehua forest. Inquest proceedings were conducted on 27.06.2006. Postmortem of the dead body was conducted on 27.06.2006 at 04.20 p.m. and the following external injuries on the body of the deceased were found:-

(1) Abraded contusion 15 cms. X 10 cms. over both side of face just below right eye.

(2) Abraded contusion 10 cms. x 3 cms over front of neck, 3 cm below chin. ON dissection, underlying root of neck, trachea ring and hyoid bone were found fractured. Trachea found deeply congested.

(3) Contusion 15 cms. x 10 cms. over front of chest just below right clavicle. On the dissection, underlying 1st to 4th ribs on both sides found fractured. Both pleura, both lungs found lacerated and 50 ml. Clotted fluid blood was found present in chest cavity.

5. Investigating Officer prepared site plan. After concluding the investigation, chargesheet under Section 364, 302 & 201 IPC was submitted against the accused.

6. Accused was charged for offence punishable under Sections 364, 302, 201 IPC, who pleads not guilty and claimed trial.

7. In order to prove his case prosecution has produced P.W.-1/Amar Singh complainant and father of the deceased. P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh, witness of recovery of the dead body and sleepers of the deceased. P.W.-3/Rajendra Singh, his statement could not be recorded as he was aged about 6 years only and was not having mental status to depose before the court. P.W.-4/Dr. Ramesh Singh, who conducted postmortem of the dead body of the deceased. P.W.-5/Vijay Singh, who has conducted the investigation and P.W.-6/S.I. Gyaneshwar Yadav who has submitted chargesheet before the Court.

8. After appreciating the evidence on record, learned trial court has recorded a finding of conviction against the accused and convicted and sentenced accused as above.

9. The main thrust of the argument advanced by learned counsel for appellant is that in the present case the accused-appellant has been denied his valuable right of cross examination and once the valuable right of cross examination of the witnesses has been denied, it is in violation of principles of natural justice and fair-play as he is unable to put forward his case in defence in effective manner, so keeping in view the said facts, the impugned judgment passed by learned trial court is liable to be set aside.

10. Per contra, learned AGA on the other hand while supporting the impugned judgment submits that after recording of the evidence of P.W.-1/Amar Singh and P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh, the right to cross examination has been afforded to the accused but he/his counsel did not turn up to cross examine the witnesses and an application for adjournment has been moved by his counsel which was rejected and the opportunity for cross-examination has been closed. The said order was challenged by the accused before this Court at Lucknow and this Court has given a aright to cross examine the witnesses subject to condition that the accused deposits Rs. 2000 i.e. Rs. 1000/- for each payable to the witnesses for cross examination and the copy of the said order may be produced within ten days.

11. Learned AGA further submits that in spite of the said order passed by this Court, the said order has not been produced before the trial court within time rather at a belated stage in the month of November, 2005 and the accused has not been deposited the amount, so keeping in view the said fact, the application moved on behalf of the accused for cross examination in pursuance to the order passed by this Court has been rejected. Thus, keeping in view the abovesaid facts, once again, the accused itself is of guilty then he cannot agitate the matter before this Court on the ground that his valuable right for cross-examination has been closed and on the basis of which it cannot be said that the impugned judgment dated 27.05.2005 passed by trial court thereby convicting and awarding the sentence to the accused suffer from any illegality or infirmity, so the appeal lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

12. We have heard learned counsel for parties and gone through the record.

13. Witness in a particular case plays a great role and importance as they are eyes and ears of the justice and on the basis of their evidence the court reaches to a correct conclusion in a particular case to give a decision in a case. Further as per the provisions of the Act which are stated hereinabove, it is the first right of prosecution to produce his witnesses in order to establish and prove his case, thereafter the accused got a right to cross-examine the said witness in order to establish that he is innocent in the matter. Thus, a right to cross-examination of an accused is a valuable right rather is a great role in order to defend him in the matter in issue.

14. So far as the facts of the present case are concerned, there is no quarrel or dispute between the parties. Only the bone of contention in the present case is that the right of cross-examination to the accused has not been afforded in the present case and the said point is to be considered and to be decided in the matter.

15. From the perusal of the record, the position which emerged out is that on 04.02.2005 the examination in Chief of P.W.-1/Amar Singh by the prosecution was closed, thereafter his cross-examination was deferred on the application of the accused and the witness was directed to appear for the said purpose on 17.03.2005 but on behalf of accused his counsel has not turned up to cross-examine the witness, so by an order dated 17.03.2005 the right of cross-examination of the witness P.W.-1/Amar Singh has been closed on 04.02.2005. Sri Rajendra Singh/P.W.-2 was also cross-examined and his examination was deferred on an application of the accused and for the said purpose the next date fixed as 24.03.2005. On the said date on behalf of the accused, nobody has turned up for cross-examination of the witness, as such on 04.05.2005 the right of cross-examination of P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh was also closed, thereafter on behalf of accused, an application has been moved for cross-examination and the date was fixed as 16.05.2005.

16. On 16.05.2005 the case was adjourned to 25.05.2005, thereafter to 27.05.2005. On the said date, the said witness, namely, P.W.-1/Amar Singh and P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh were present, however, the counsel for the accused did not turn up for cross-examination. In view of the said fact, the application moved on behalf of accused for cross-examination was rejected. Aggrieved by the said fact, the accused approached this court for redessal of his grievances and on 24.06.2005, an order was passed by this Court, relevant portion quoted hereinbelow:-

"Looking to the seriousness of charge for which the petitioner is facing trial and also keeping in view that the witnesses must be examined and cross-examined when they are in attendance and defence should not be permitted to unnecessary delay the matter, the prayer of the learned counsel is granted on costs of Rs. 2000/- i.e. Rs. 1000/- payable to each witness for their reappearance. This is further made clear that if on the next date, the witnesses are not cross-examined, by the defence, the trial court shall be free to proceed further and discharge witnesses without cross-examining. The petitioner shall file a copy of this order before the trial court within 10 days."

17. Although by an order dated 24.06.2005, this Court has directed the accused to file the copy of said order before trial court within ten days but the same was not filed within the said period and filed on 22.11.2005 and the amount as directed by this Court i.e. Rs. 2000/-, Rs. 1000/- payable to each witness(for their reappearance) has not been deposited, so in view of the said fact, the application/request made on behalf of the accused for recall of the witnesses P.W.-1 & P.W.-2 for cross-examination were rejected on the ground that accused has also been examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C., thereafter final judgment has been passed.

18. In view of the abovesaid factual background, in order to decide the controversy involved in the present case, it is appropriate to go through the relevant provisions provided in respect to examination of witness in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as the Act) as well as Criminal Procedure Code.

19. Chapter 10 of the Act deals with "of the examination of witnesses".

20. Section 135 of the Act provides as under:-

"135- Order of production and examination of witnesses - -The order in which witnesses are produced and examined shall be regulated by the law and practice for the time being relating to civil and criminal procedure respectively, and, in the absence of any such law, by the discretion of the Court.

Section 137 of the Act provides as under:-

"137- Examination-in-chief. Examination-in-chief.-The examination of witness by the party who calls him shall be called his examination-in-chief.

Cross-examination.-The examination of a witness by the adverse party shall be called his cross-examination.*

Re-examination.-The examination of a witness, subsequent to the cross-examination by the party who called him, shall be called his re-examination."*

And Section 138 of the act provides as under:-

" 138- Order of examinations - Witnesses shall be first examined-inchief, then (if the adverse party so desires) cross-examined, then (if the party calling him so desires) re-examined.

The examination and cross-examination must relate to relevant facts but the cross-examination need not be confined to the facts to which the witness testified on his examination-in-chief.

Direction of re-examination - The re-examination shall be directed to the explanation of matters referred to in cross- examination; and, if new matter is, by permission of the Court, introduced in re-examination, the adverse party may further cross-examine upon that matter."

21. In addition to abovesaid provisions, Section 309 of the Code of Criminal Procedure provides as under:-

"309- Power to postpone or adjourn proceedings*- (1) In every inquiry or trial, the proceedings shall be held as expeditiously as possible, and in particular, when the examination of witnesses has once begun, the same shall be continued from day to day until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the Court finds the adjournment of the same beyond the following day to be necessary for reasons to be recorded.*

(2) If the Court, after taking cognizance of an offence, or commencement of trial, finds it necessary or advisable to postpone the commencement of, or adjourn, any inquiry or trial, it may, from time to time, for reasons to be recorded, postpone or adjourn the same on such terms as it thinks fit, for such time as it considers reasonable, and may by a warrant remand the accused if in custody :

Provided that no Magistrate shall remand an accused person to custody under this section for a term exceeding fifteen days at a time:

Provided further that when witnesses are in attendance, no adjournment or postponement shall be granted, without examining them, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing:

[Provided also that no adjournment shall be granted for the purpose only of enabling the accused person to show cause against the sentence proposed to be imposed on him.]

Explanation 1.-If sufficient evidence has been obtained to raise a suspicion that the accused may have committed an offence, and it appears likely that further evidence may be obtained by a remand, this is a reasonable cause for a remand.

Explanation 2.-The terms on which an adjournment or postponement may be granted include, in appropriate cases, the payment of costs by the prosecution or the accused."

22. And Section 311 of the Code of Criminal Procedure provides for power to summon the material witness or examine the person which reads as under:-

" 311. Power to summon material witness, or examine person present*. -- Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or. Recall and re-examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case."*

23. A bare reading of the abovesaid sections as indicated by the legislature in the Act as well as Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, the position which exists is to the effect that the object underlying the said section is that there may not be a failure of justice on account of mistake or either party in bringing the valuable evidence on record or leaving ambiguity in the statements of the witnesses examined from either side. The determinative factor is whether it is essential to the just decision of the case. So keeping in view the abovesaid facts in the instant matter no doubt the opportunity has been given to the accused for re-examination of the witnesses, namely P.W.-1/Amar Singh and P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh, initially by the trial court and thereafter by the High Court and thereafter some fault/lacunae of first part is not applying the direction as given by the trial court and by this Court by an order dated 24.06.2005 even then his valuable right to cross-examine the witnesses which were produced on behalf of the prosecution in order to prove his case cannot be denied as by denying him the right to cross-examine his defence in the present case cannot be considered rather will not come into light which will against this well settled principles of natural justice.

24. Natural justice is a parameter of all the modern constitution of the world. I find that Black J has most aptly described it as" Natural justice understandably meant no more than justice without the adjective" (Green V Blake,[1948]IR 242). Justice Krishna Iyer in Mohinder Singh Gill v The Chief Election Commissioner: (1978) 1 SCC 405 has traced its root in Kautilya's Arthasastra in following terms,

"Indeed, from the legendary days of Adam -- and of Kautilya's Arthasastra – the rule of law has had this stamp of natural justice which makes it social justice. We need not go into these deeps for the present except to indicate that the roots of natural justice and its foliage are noble and not new-fangled. Today its application must be sustained by current legislation, case-law or other extant principle, not the hoary chords of legend and history. Our jurisprudence has sanctioned its prevalence even like the Anglo-American system."

In the case of Bhagwan Shukla, v. Union of India and others 1994 (6) SCC 154 wherein paragraph no.3 (relevant portion)held as under:-

"The appellant has obviously been visited with civil consequence but he had been granted no opportunity to show cause against the reduction of his basic pay. He was not even put on notice before his pay was reduced by the department and the order came to be made behind his back without following any procedure known to law. There, has, thus been a flagrant violation of the principles of natural justice and the appellant has been made to suffer huge financial loss without being hears. Fair play in action warrants that no such order which has the effect of an employee suffering civil consequence should be passed without putting the employee concerned to notice and giving him a hearing in the matter. Since, that was not done, the order (memorandum) dated 25.7.1991, which was impugned before the Tribunal could not certainly be sustained and the Central Administrative Tribunal fell in error in dismissing the petition of the appellant."

25. In the case of Union of India vs. Sandur Manganese & Iron Ores Ltd. & Ors. JT 2012 (10) SC 476, Hon'ble the Supreme Court in paragraph no.3 held as under:-

"The principles of natural justice embody the right to every person to represent his interest to the court of justice. Pronouncing a judgment which adversely affects the interest of the party to the proceedings who was not given a chance to represent his/its case is unacceptable under the principles of natural justice."

26. In the case of Munna Lal Gautam Vs. State of U.P., 2007 (3) ACR 3231, this Court has held that it was a right of accused to cross-examine a witness to put his defence and it is not proper order to close his right of cross-examination and proceed to an order against him and further held in order to meet the ends of justice to protect the right of cross-examination of the accused to cross-examination to be provided to be provided to an appellant.

27. In the case of Hari Om Sharma Vs. State of U.P. And Anr., 2011 (1) ACR 569, wherein it was held that it is established principle of law that no one should be condemned unheard. It the opportunity for cross-examination of accused-appellant it would prejudice to him, so his valuable rights should not be curtained and he may be afforded an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses (See. Jawahar Singh s/o Mishri Lal Vs. State of U.P., 2004 Cri. LJ 2413)

28. Thus, keeping in view the abovesaid fact we are of the considered opinion that even if there is some fault on the part of accused for not taking appropriate steps for cross-examining P.W.-1/Amar Singh and P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh, thereafter when the opportunity was granted to him by way of recall the said witnesses for re- cross-examination he had failed to do so even in that facility his right to cross-examination cannot be curtained down in any manner and the same is in contravention of principles of natural justice and fair-play.

29. For the foregoing reasons, we are of the opinion that the matter should be remanded back to the trial court for reconsideration after giving opportunity to the accused for cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses.

30. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. Order dated 1802.2008passed by trial court is set aside and the trial court is directed to allow the accused/Kamlesh Singh to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses, namely, P.W.-1/Amar Singh and P.W.-2/Rajendra Singh and P.W.-5/Vijay Singh subject to payment of Rs. 9,000/- i.e. Rs. 3000/- each to the prosecution witnesses and the trial court is further directed to conduct trial of the case on day to day basis without giving unnecessary adjournment. Further as the appellant in jail, so he will remain in jail subject to outcome of the decision of the trial court.

31. Office is hereby directed to certify this order to the court concerned immediately for compliance.

32. Record of the trial court should also be returned back immediately.

Saharanpur Cinema Exhibitors Association ...Petitioner

Versus

State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sumit Goyal, H.N. Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Chandra Kant Parekh

This writ petition has been filed under Article 226 of the Constitution praying for issue of a writ of certiorari quashing notification dated 22.09.2014 issued by Nagar Ayukt/ Municipal Commissioner, Saharanpur published in U.P. Gazette dated 10.01.2015 in so far as it relates to imposition of show tax on Cinema Halls, whereby rate of show tax has been revised from Rs. 20/- to 100/- per show.

Petitioner is an association of Cinema exhibitors running Cinema Halls at Saharanpur registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1860"). Earlier Saharanpur had Nagar Palika governed by the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1916") but vide notification dated 01.10.2009 published by State Government, exercising power under Section 3 of U.P. Municipal Corporation Act, 1959 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1959"), read with Article 243-Q(1) of Constitution, covering a larger urban area of Saharanpur, it has been notified as Municipal Corporation and erstwhile Municipal Council stood dissolved. Since the date Municipal Council, Saharanpur has been notified as Municipal Corporation, no election has been held to constitute an elected body of Corporation at Saharanpur and it is still functioning under the Administrator who is exercising all powers of Corporation by virtue of Section 8(4) of Act, 1959, which has been inserted by U.P. Act No. 23 of 2005.

Admittedly in present case aforesaid procedure has not been followed. What has been done is that Tax Superintendent published a proposal of revision of show tax on 08.08.2014 giving ten days time to file objections and thereafter Municipal Commissioner approved said proposal on 20.09.2014 and that has been published in gazette on 10.01.2015. Under Act, 1959 two weeks time is permitted to make objection under Section 201 but in the present case ten days time was given for inviting objections. Said proposal thereafter was approved by Municipal Commissioner and notified in gazette. There is no sanction or approval of proposal by State Government as contemplated under Sections 200 and 201. Respondents no. 2 and 3, therefore, have completely misdirected themselves by making an amendment in existing provisions imposing show tax which was not permissible without following procedure prescribed under Sections 199 to 202 by virtue of provision of Section 204 of Act, 1959.

In this case it is not necessary for us to go into the question, whether Municipal Commissioner can validly exercise powers of Corporation, Executive Committee etc. But for our purpose assuming what is contended by respondents that Municipal Commissioner is entitled and empowered to discharge all functions etc. Of Corporation and Executive Committee etc., still if procedure prescribed for certain things, has not been followed, the act performed would be illegal and that is how impugned notification is not sustainable. Hence, impugned notification, in so far as it has enhanced rate of show tax, is illegal.

Writ petition is allowed. Impugned notification dated 22.09.2014 issued at the instance of Municipal Commissioner, Nagar Nigam, Saharanpur, in so far as it relates to show tax, is hereby set aside.

1. Heard Sri H.N. Singh, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Sumit Goyal, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel as well as Sri C.K. Parekh, Advocate for respondents.

2. This writ petition has been filed under Article 226 of the Constitution praying for issue of a writ of certiorari quashing notification dated 22.09.2014 issued by Nagar Ayukt/ Municipal Commissioner, Saharanpur published in U.P. Gazette dated 10.01.2015 in so far as it relates to imposition of show tax on Cinema Halls, whereby rate of show tax has been revised from Rs. 20/- to 100/- per show.

3. Petitioner is an association of Cinema exhibitors running Cinema Halls at Saharanpur registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1860"). Earlier Saharanpur had Nagar Palika governed by the provisions of U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1916") but vide notification dated 01.10.2009 published by State Government, exercising power under Section 3 of U.P. Municipal Corporation Act, 1959 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1959"), read with Article 243-Q(1) of Constitution, covering a larger urban area of Saharanpur, it has been notified as Municipal Corporation and erstwhile Municipal Council stood dissolved. Since the date Municipal Council, Saharanpur has been notified as Municipal Corporation, no election has been held to constitute an elected body of Corporation at Saharanpur and it is still functioning under the Administrator who is exercising all powers of Corporation by virtue of Section 8(4) of Act, 1959, which has been inserted by U.P. Act No. 23 of 2005.

4. Sri C.K. Parekh, learned counsel appearing for respondents no. 2 and 3, however, informed that this Amendment Act No. 23 of 2005 has been declared ultra vires of Constitution by this Court vide judgment dated 05.12.2011 passed in Misc. Bench No. 11226 of 2011 (Sandeep alias Sandeep Mehrotra vs. State of U.P. and others). We are also informed that State has preferred appeal before Supreme Court being Special Leave Petition (Civil) No. 34436 of 2011, which is pending and Court has only extended period for holding election.

5. Be that as it may, case set up by petitioner is that procedure for imposition of tax has been provided in Sections 199 to 204 of Act, 1959. Without following said procedure Chief Tax Assessment Officer, Nagar Nigam, Saharanpur published a notice on 08.08.2014 that a decision has been taken to revise rates of various taxes and fees and any person objecting thereto may file his objection. Thereafter alleging that no objection was filed, impugned notification dated 22.09.2014 has been published in U.P. Gazette dated 10.01.2015.

6. It is said that process followed by respondents is inconsistent with statutory provisions and impugned notification in so far as it has revised rate of show tax is illegal and without jurisdiction. It is also said that in the present case notification has been issued by Municipal Commissioner and not State Government. Municipal Commissioner has no jurisdiction or authority to revise such rate of show tax. It is said that power of Corporation has been conferred, to be exercised by Administrator, appointed under Section 8-AA and Municipal Commissioner has not been conferred such power. He is an employee of Corporation appointed under Section 58 of Act, 1959. He cannot function as Corporation and discharge functions as a substitute for Corporation.

7. Counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of respondents no. 2 and 3 stating that prior to 01.10.2009 there existed a Nagar Palika Parishad for City Saharanpur functioning under the provisions of Act, 1916. With effect from 01.10.2009, a notification was issued under Section 3 of Act, 1959 read with Article 243-Q(1) of Constitution and thereby Nagar Palika Parishad was replaced by Municipal Corporation. Nagar Palika Parishad during its functioning had already imposed certain taxes and fees under the provisions of Act, 1916. Show tax, i.e., Theater Tax was imposed under Section 128(1)(iii)(a) of Act, 1916. Petitioner-Members were paying show tax at the rate of Rs. 20/- per show prior to 01.10.2009. The State Government vide order dated 25.11.1995 informed that now for publication of rules and bye-laws of Municipalities, prior approval of Municipal Corporation and Nagar Panchayat is not required and as and when such rules and bye-laws are received shall be published in gazette as it is. This Government order was issued by Secretary, Urban Development to Director Printing and Publication. With respect to Saharanpur, Nagar Palika Parishad was in fact superseded and District Magistrate, Saharanpur was appointed as Administrator, when by notification dated 01.10.2009 Municipal Corporation, Saharanpur was created. The effect was that District Magistrate, as Administrator, continued to work. It is then said that Municipality is empowered to impose licence fee under Section 294 and it does not violate Article 19 of Constitution. The rate of Rs. 20/- per show has now been revised to Rs. 100/- per show after a long time. By virtue of Section 8-A of Act, 1959 an Administrator in law is deemed to be Corporation, Mayor, Committee or Municipal Corporation. Municipal Commissioner being Administrator is exercising all powers under Act, 1959 in view of judgment dated 27.11.2013 and Government Order dated 24.01.2014. Thereafter several provisions of Act, 1959 are referred to. Sometimes respondents no. 2 and 3 have talked about licence fee and sometimes "Show Tax" as if they are not clear which show tax is actually a tax or fee.

8. A supplementary counter affidavit thereafter has been filed which has been sworn by Keshav Prasad, Tax Superintendent, Nagar Nigam, Saharanpur. He has said that sub-section (4) was inserted in Section 8 of Act, 1959 by U.P. Act No. 23 of 2005 but struck down by this Court in Sandeep alias Sandeep Mehrotra (supra). This Court also directed that till a newly elected representative resume work, affairs of Municipalities and Municipal Corporations shall be managed by Executive Officers and Municipal Commissioners. Consequently, State Government on 17.12.2011 issued orders directing District Magistrate to handover charge to Municipal Commissioner. Then details have been given of various Municipal Commissioners worked from time to time which in our view is not relevant. It is said that by virtue of Sections 8-AA and 579-A as read by this Court in Sandeep alias Sandeep Mehrotra (supra), power of administration which was to be exercised by Administrator is to be exercised by Municipal Commissioner.

9. Sri H.N. Singh, learned Senior Advocate appearing for petitioner, did not dispute that under Act, 1959, Theater Tax can be imposed by Corporation under Section 172(2)(i). However, sub-section (3) of Section 172 provides that Corporation taxes shall be assessed and levied in accordance with the provisions of Act, 1959 and rules and bye-laws framed thereunder. Section 197 provides for certain exemptions from Theater Tax. Sections 199 to 206 lay down procedure for imposition of taxes.

10. Sections 199, 200, 201, 202 and 203 read as under:

"199. Framing of preliminary proposals:- (1) When a Corporation desires to impose a tax specified in sub-section (2) of Section 172 it shall by resolution direct the Executive Committee to frame proposals specifying –

(a) the tax, being one of the taxes described in sub-section (2) of Section 172 which it desires to impose;

(b) the persons or class of persons to be made liable, and the description of property or other taxable thing or circumstances in respect of which they are to be made liable, except where and in so far as any class or description is already sufficiently defined under clause (a) or by this Act;

(c) the amount or rate leviable from each such person or class of persons;

(d) any other matter referred to in Section 219 which the State Government requires by rule to be specified.

(2) Upon a resolution being passed under sub-section (1) the Executive Committee shall frame the proposals and also prepare a draft of the rules which it desires the State Government to make in respect of the matters referred to in Section 219.

(3) The Executive Committee shall, thereafter, publish in the manner prescribed by rule the proposals framed under sub-section (1) and the draft rules framed under sub-section (2) along with a notice in the form to be prescribed by rule*.*

200. Procedure subsequent to framing proposals*: - (1)* Any inhabitant of the City may, within two weeks from the publication of the said notice*, submit to the Corporation* an objection in writing to all or any of the proposals framed under the preceding section, and the Corporation shall take any objection so submitted into consideration and pass orders thereon by special resolution*.*

(2) If the Corporation decides to modify the proposals of the Executive Committee, or any of them the Municipal Commissioner shall publish the modified proposals and, if necessary, revised draft rules along with a notice indicating that the proposals and rules (if any) are in modification of proposals and rules previously published for objection.

(3) Any objections which may be received to the modified proposals shall be dealt with in the manner prescribed in sub-section (1).

(4) When the Corporation has finally settled its proposals, the Municipal Commissioner shall submit them along with the objections (if any) made in connection therewith to the State Government*.*

201. Power of State Government to reject, sanction or modify proposal*: - Upon receipt of the proposals and objection under the preceding* section the State Government may either refuse to sanction the proposals or return them to the Corporation for further consideration or sanction them without modification or with such modification not involving an increase of the amount to be imposed, as it seems fit.

202. Resolution of Corporation directing imposition of taxes:- (1) When the proposals have been sanctioned by the State Government*, the State Government,* after taking into consideration the draft rules submitted by the Corporation, shall proceed forthwith to make such rules in respect of the tax as for the time being it considers necessary.

(2) When the rules have been made the order of sanction and a copy of the rules shall be sent to the Corporation, and thereupon the Corporation shall by special resolution direct the imposition of the tax with effect from a date to be specified in the resolution*.*

203. Imposition*. - (1) A copy of the* resolution passed under Section 202 shall be submitted to the State Government.

(2) Upon receipt of the copy of the resolution the State Government shall notify in the official Gazette*, the imposition of the tax from the appointed date, and the imposition of tax shall in all cases be subject to the condition that it has been so notified.*

(3) A notification of the imposition of a tax under sub-section (2) shall be conclusive proof that the tax has been imposed in accordance with the provisions of this Act."

(emphasis added)

11. For the purpose of making any alteration or abolition of a tax in respect of matters specified in Clauses (b) and (c) of Section 199(1), Section 204 provides that procedure prescribed in Sections 199 to 202, as far as, may be followed. Section 199(1)(c) talks of amount or rate and, therefore, if there is any alteration in the matter of amount or rate procedure prescribed by Sections 199 to 202 has to be followed.

12. A combined reading of aforesaid provisions show that following procedure has to be followed:

(1) A resolution by Executive Committee to be passed to frame proposals specifying tax, the person/ class of persons and description, upon whom it is to be leviable and the amount of rate etc.

(2) After resolution is passed the Executive Committee shall frame proposal and also a draft of rule. Proposal as well as draft of rule both shall be published by Executive Committee in the manner prescribed alongwith notice in the form prescribed by rule.

(3) Any inhabitant of city may make objections within two weeks from the date of publication of said notice.

(4) If any objection is made the Corporation shall consider same and pass order thereon by special resolution.

(5) If Corporation decides to modify proposal of Executive Committee the Mukhya Nagar Adhikari shall publish modified proposals and, if necessary, revised draft rule alongwith a notice indicating that proposals and rules are in modification of proposals and rules previously published, inviting objections.

(6) If any objection is again received against modified proposal it shall be considered in the manner prescribed in Section 200(1).

(7) When proposal is finally settled by Corporation, Mukhya Nagar Adhikari shall submit alongwith objections received to State Government.

(8) The State Government after receiving proposal and objection consider the same and may either refuse to sanction proposal or return same or sanction same without modification or with such modification not involving an increase of amount to be imposed, as it seems fit.

(9) When proposal has been sanctioned by State Government ti shall proceed to make such rule in respect of such tax. When rules are made by State Government, the order of sanction and copy of rules shall be furnished to Corporation who shall by special resolution direct imposition of tax with effect from the date specified in resolution.

(10) A copy of resolution passed under Section 202 shall be submitted to State Government.

(11) Upon receipt of copy of resolution the State Government shall notify in official gazette imposition of tax from appointed date.

13. Admittedly in present case aforesaid procedure has not been followed. What has been done is that Tax Superintendent published a proposal of revision of show tax on 08.08.2014 giving ten days time to file objections and thereafter Municipal Commissioner approved said proposal on 20.09.2014 and that has been published in gazette on 10.01.2015. Under Act, 1959 two weeks time is permitted to make objection under Section 201 but in the present case ten days time was given for inviting objections. Said proposal thereafter was approved by Municipal Commissioner and notified in gazette. There is no sanction or approval of proposal by State Government as contemplated under Sections 200 and 201. Respondents no. 2 and 3, therefore, have completely misdirected themselves by making an amendment in existing provisions imposing show tax which was not permissible without following procedure prescribed under Sections 199 to 202 by virtue of provision of Section 204 of Act, 1959.

14. It is well settled that procedure prescribed in statute to do something has to be followed in words and spirit and anything done otherwise would be patently illegal. This principle was recognized in Nazir Ahmad Vs. King-Emperor AIR 1936 PC 253 and, thereafter it has been reiterated and followed consistently by the Apex Court in a catena of judgements, which we do not propose to refer all but would like to refer a few recent one.

15. In Dhananjaya Reddy Vs. State of Karnataka 2001 (4) SCC 9 in para 23 of the judgment the Court held :

"It is a settled principle of law that where a power is given to do a certain thing in a certain manner, the thing must be done in that way or not at all."

16. In Commissioner of Income Tax, Mumbai Vs. Anjum M.H. Ghaswala 2002 (1) SCC 633, it was held :

"It is a normal rule of construction that when a statute vests certain power in an authority to be exercised in a particular manner then the said authority has to exercise it only in the manner provided in the statute itself."

17. The judgments in Anjum M.H. Ghaswala (supra) and Dhananjaya Reddy (supra) laying down the aforesaid principle have been followed in Captain Sube Singh & others Vs. Lt. Governor of Delhi & others 2004 (6) SCC 440.

18. In Competent Authority Vs. Barangore Jute Factory & others 2005 (13) SCC 477, it was held :

"It is settled law that where a statute requires a particular act to be done in a particular manner, the act has to be done in that manner alone. Every word of the statute has to be given its due meaning."

19. In State of Jharkhand & others Vs. Ambay Cements & another 2005 (1) SCC 368 in para 26 of the judgment, the Court held :

"It is the cardinal rule of interpretation that where a statute provides that a particular thing should be done, it should be done in the manner prescribed and not in any other way."

20. In this case it is not necessary for us to go into the question, whether Municipal Commissioner can validly exercise powers of Corporation, Executive Committee etc. but for our purpose assuming what is contended by respondents that Municipal Commissioner is entitled and empowered to discharge all functions etc. of Corporation and Executive Committee etc., still if procedure prescribed for certain things, has not been followed, the act performed would be illegal and that is how impugned notification is not sustainable. Hence, impugned notification, in so far as it has enhanced rate of show tax, is illegal.

21. In the result, writ petition is allowed. Impugned notification dated 22.09.2014 issued at the instance of Municipal Commissioner, Nagar Nigam, Saharanpur, in so far as it relates to show tax, is hereby set aside.

22. No order as to costs.

Criminal Appeal No.- 1382 Of 1983

Ram Ratan ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
V.P. Srivastava, Abdul Majeed, N.I. Jafri

Counsel for the Respondent:
A.G.A

The appellant/accused Ram Ratan has filed this appeal, against the judgement and order dated 24.05.1983 passed by the learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Pilibhit in Session Trial No. 10 of 1983 (State v. Ram Ratan), arising out of Case Crime No.217 of 1982, P.S. Bilsanda, District Pilibhit, convicting the appellant/accused for the offence under section 302 I.P.C. and sentencing him to imprisonment for life, on the ground that the conviction of the accused is against the material evidence available on record and the sentence awarded to the appellant/accused is excessive.

After careful examination of material on record and in view of the direct evidence of crime against the present appellant by the ocular testimony rendered by the highly credible prosecution witnesses, whose presence on the spot has been established and cannot be doubted, which in turn is in consonance with the medical and other prosecution evidence/documents available on record, we are of the opinion that the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt and has been able to bring home the guilt of the accused-appellant by credible and trustworthy evidence. Therefore, the learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge has rightly believed the prosecution story and also rightly recorded the finding of guilt against the present appellant. Hence, we do not find any ground to differ from the finding of guilt recorded by the learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge. The judgement and order dated 24.5.1983 passed by the Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Pilibhit in S.T. No. 10 of 1983 (State Vs. Ram Ratan) arising out of Case Crime No. 217 of 1982, P.S. Bilsanda, District Pilibhit does not require any interference.

In view of the above, the appeal preferred by the appellant Ram Ratan lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed. The conviction and sentence awarded by the learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge against the accused-appellant Ram Ratan are confirmed. The accused/appellant Ram Ratan is directed to serve out the remaining part of the sentence awarded by the learned trial court in the impugned judgement. The accused-appellant Ram Ratan is on bail. He shall surrender before the trial court for serving out the sentence within 15 days from the date of this judgement, failing which the trial court shall ensure his arrest and shall send him to jail for serving out the remaining part of the sentence in accordance with law.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Kumar Mukherjee, J.)

1. The appellant/accused Ram Ratan has filed this appeal, against the judgement and order dated 24.05.1983 passed by the learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Pilibhit in Session Trial No. 10 of 1983 (State v. Ram Ratan), arising out of Case Crime No.217 of 1982, P.S. Bilsanda, District Pilibhit, convicting the appellant/accused for the offence under section 302 I.P.C. and sentencing him to imprisonment for life, on the ground that the conviction of the accused is against the material evidence available on record and the sentence awarded to the appellant/accused is excessive.

2. Brief facts of the prosecution case are that two sons of the deceased Ram Bhajan namely Puttu Lal and Ram Ratan were living separately and their father Ram Bhajan (now deceased) was living with his younger son/accused Ram Ratan. The deceased Ram Bhajan owned 24-25 Bighas of agricultural land. Earlier, before the date of occurrence, he distributed 50 Kgs. of the paddy to his son Puttu Lal, informant also. On 28.10.1982 at about 3.00 P.M. when Ram Bhajan (now deceased) was thrashing the paddy in front of the door of Daya Ram, he suggested his younger son Ram Ratan (accused) to part with some paddy to his elder son/informant Puttu Lal. Ram Ratan opposed the suggestion, by saying that not even a single grain shall be given to Puttu Lal, which evoked altercation between the Ram Ratan accused and Ram Bhajan. Meanwhile, the enraged accused Ram Ratan brought a sword from his house and cautioned his father Ram Bhajan that he would kill him, if he tried to part with a single grain to Puttu Lal, also charging his father that earlier, too, he had distributed 50 Kgs. of paddy to Puttu Lal. Whereupon Ram Bhajan (since deceased) replied that Puttu Lal also happened to be his son, so he certainly would give the paddy to him. Getting infuriated by the said reply accused Ram Ratan started inflicting repeated sword blows on Ram Bhajan, who tried to run away but fell down after being struck by a peg and resultantly, succumbed to the fatal sword injuries instantly, in front of the door of Hori Lal. On hearing the hue and cry raised by the informant and his neighbours, Daya Ram, S/o Ghurai, Hori Lal, S/o Sri Ram and also many other villagers arrived there and witnessed the incident. Thereafter, on being reprimanded by them (the witnesses) the accused Ram Ratan fled away with the sword, from the scene of occurrence. Leaving the dead body of his father Ram Bhajan lying in front of the door of the aforesaid Hori Lal, the informant, Puttu Lal gave written report (Exhibit Ka-1) of this incident to the Head Moharrir Ram Das Sharma at the Police Station Bilsanda, District Pilibhit at about 5.20 P.M. on the same day.

3. Subsequently, a chik FIR (Ext.Ka-2) was registered as Case Crime No. 217 of 1982 under section 302 IPC, which was entered in the General Diary (G.D.) (Ext.Ka-3), by the Head Moharrir Ram Das Sharma. Investigation of the case was conducted by the Sub Inspector Feru Singh Yadav, P.S. Bilsanda, District Pilibhit (PW-4). After conclusion of the investigation, charge sheet was submitted by him against the accused Ram Ratan. Thereafter, the case was committed to the court of Sessions, where he was charged for the offfence under section 302 IPC by the Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Pilibhit. The accused appellant denied the charge and pleaded not guilty. He further stated that he had falsely been implicated in the instant case due to enmity with regard to agricultural property and claimed to be tried.

4. In order to prove the charge, besides other papers, prosecution has filed written report (Exhibit Ka-1), formal chik report (Exhibit Ka-2), copy of the General Diary (Exhibit Ka-3), Search Memo of the house of the accused (Exhibit Ka-4), Inquest Report (Exhibit Ka-5), Diagram of the dead body (Exhibit Ka -6), Challan Nash (Exhibit Ka-7), sample of seal (Exhibit Ka-8), letter addressed to the C.M.O., (Exhibit Ka-9), Recovery memo of blood stained and plain earth (Exhibhit Ka-10), Site Plan (Exhibit Ka-11), Charge Sheet (Exhibit Ka-12), Post mortem report of the deceased (Exhibit Ka-13) and placed before the trial court relevant material Exhibits 1 to 5.

5. To bring home the guilt of the accused, the prosecution has also examined as many as six witnesses, P.W.-1, complainant Puttu Lal, P.W. 2 Daya Ram, P.W. -3 Hori Lal, P.W.- 4 Sub Inspector Pheru Singh Yadav, P.W.- 5 Constable Ram Pal. P.W.-6 Dr. AK Srivastava and closed the evidence.

6. Thereafter, the statement of accused-appellant Ram Ratan under section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded after closing of the prosecution evidence and was provided opportunity to adduce evidence in defence. Admitting the inter-se relationship with the deceased and the informant, the appellant also admitted in his said statement that the deceased was residing with him at the time of the incident in question and the informant was living separately in the same village. He denied the entire prosecution case and the evidence adduced by the prosecution stating that he had been falsely implicated in the case due to enmity with regard to the landed property. Despite opportunity given, no evidence had been adduced by the appellant in support of his contention/defence.

7. After hearing the arguments of the parties the learned trial Judge by the impugned judgement and order convicted the present appellant and sentenced him as above. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid judgment and order of the trial court, this appeal has been preferred by the accused-appellant Ram Ratan.

8. We have heard Sri N.I. Jafri, learned counsel for the appellant and Dr. Abida Syed, learned A.G.A, for the State and carefully perused the evidence on record.

9. It has been argued on behalf of the appellant that the prosecution has utterly failed to prove the alleged motive, the prosecution story as well as the charge framed against the appellant-accused beyond reasonable doubt. The prosecution has also failed to examine independent witnesses, whose presence was natural at the scene of the crime or rather, examined interested/partisan as well as inimical witnesses, whose presence at the site of the crime was wholly doubtful, unnatural and improbable, having inter-se material contradictions as well as shaky testimony and as such they are not worthy of reliance. It is also contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that the appellant was made a scapegoat in the case by the informant and his pocket witnesses only with a view to usurp the entire property of the deceased.

10. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that the stomach of the deceased was found empty by the doctor whereas it has been stated by the informant that the deceased had taken meal in the noon, which shows that the murder had actually taken place in the darkness of night by unknown persons. Further, that the weapon of assault/sword was not recovered for the reason best known to the prosecution. Belated inquest proceedings and postmortem of the deceased are some of the features in this case, which cast doubt on the prosecution story and affirming that the FIR was ante-dated and ante-timed as well as there appears manipulation in police and medical papers with a view to frame the accused in the matter. Lastly, based on several decisions of the Apex Court as well as this Court, it has been contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that for the sake of argument, if the complicity of the appellant is found to be proved then also this case falls in the ambit of exception-I to the Section 300 IPC, i.e., the offence committed by the appellant in the course of 'grave and sudden provocation'.

11. It has also been contended that there is material inconsistency between the ocular and the medical evidence; the entire investigation in the case is faulty as well as against the rules and procedures prescribed by law. Prosecution has failed to prove as to what prompted the appellant to commit this murder. Counsel for the appellant has also questioned that under what circumstances only all the related, interested and pocket eyewitnesses were present at the same date, time and place to see this incident of murder. He has submitted that the entire prosecution story is concocted and presence of the eyewitnesses, as mentioned above, is highly doubtful, improbable and unnatural, therefore, the appellant accused is entitled to get benefit of doubt.

12. Refuting all the arguments advanced by the side of the appellant, Dr. Abida Syed, learned A.G.A. has submitted that the previous grudge in the mind of the appellant as well as immediate motive have been elaborately stated in the FIR and proved by the witnesses. The chik FIR was lodged promptly by the elder son of the deceased/Puttu Lal (P.W.-1). Similarly, the process of investigation was also started with equal promptness. It is also contended by the learned A.G.A. that the prosecution by placing cogent, oral and documentary evidence has proved the incident in question and the charge framed against the appellant/accused, beyond reasonable doubt. All the witnesses are trustworthy; their presence at the spot is very natural and probable being neighbours. Also their testimony are natural having no material contradictions, embellishments or exaggerations. Some minor contradictions, as pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellant, either in the inter-se statements of the eye witnesses or in the ocular and medical evidence are misconceived. The learned Sessions Judge has convicted the appellant/accused by a reasoned judgement and order; hence there is no scope for interference by this Appellate Court in the impugned judgement and order.

13. Before entering into the merits of the appeal, we would like to recall the observation made by the Apex Court in the case of Ishvarbhai Fuljibhai Patni Vs. State of Gujarat [1995 Supreme Court Cases (Crl) 222] whereby duties of the appellate court have been outlined. Para-4 of the judgment reads as under:

4. Since, the High Court was dealing with the appeal in exercise of its appellate jurisdiction, against conviction and sentence of life imprisonment, it was required to consider and discuss the evidence and deal with the arguments raised at the bar. Let alone, any discussion of the evidence, we do not find that the High Court even cared to notice the evidence led in the case. None of the arguments of the learned counsel for the appellant have been noticed, much less considered and discussed. The judgment is cryptic and we are at loss to understand as to what prevailed with the High Court to uphold the conviction and sentence of the appellant. On a plain requirement of justice, the High Court while dealing with a first appeal against conviction and sentence is expected to, howsoever briefly depending upon the facts of the case, consider and discuss the evidence and deal with the submissions raised at the bar. If it fails to do so, it apparently fails in the discharge of one of its essential jurisdiction under its appellate powers. In view of the infirmities pointed out by us, the judgment under appeal cannot be sustained."

14. In the case of Lal Mandi, Appellant v. State of West Bengal, Respondent [1995 CRI.L.J.2659 (Supreme Court), 2659], the Apex Court in para-5 of the report has given the caution to the High Court reminding its duty in the matter of hearing of appeal against conviction. It would be gainful to reproduce the observation made in para-5 of the report, extracted below:

"5. To say the least, the approach of the High Court is totally fallacious. In an appeal against conviction, the Appellate Court has the duty to itself appreciate the evidence on the record and if two views are possible on the appraisal of the evidence, the benefit of reasonable doubt has to be given to an accused. It is not correct to suggest that the "Appellate Court cannot legally interfere with" the order of conviction where the trial court has found the evidence as reliable and that it cannot substitute the findings of the Sessions Judge by its own, if it arrives at a different conclusion on reassessment of the evidence. The observation made in Tota Singh's case, which was an appeal against acquittal, have been misunderstood and mechanically applied. Though, the powers of an appellate court, while dealing with an appeal against acquittal and an appeal against conviction are equally wide but the considerations which weigh with it while dealing with an appeal against an order of acquittal and in an appeal against conviction are distinct and separate. The presumption of innocence of accused which gets strengthened on his acquittal is not available on his conviction. An appellate court may give every reasonable weight to the conclusions arrived at by the trial court but it must be remembered that an appellate court is duty bound, in the same way as the trial court, to test the evidence extrinsically as well as intrinsically and to consider as thoroughly as the trial court, all the circumstances available on the record so as to arrive at an independent finding regarding guilt or innocence of the convict. An Appellate Court fails in the discharge of one of its essential duties, if it fails to itself appreciate the evidence on the record and arrive at an independent finding based on the appraisal of such evidence."

15. Therefore, it is the settled proposition of law that the High Court, while exercising appellate jurisdiction in criminal appeal, is expected to appraise the credibility of evidence available on record and to draw the inference on the basis of material available on record and has not to be guided by the finding of acquittal or conviction recorded by the learned court below, bearing in mind the basic principles of criminal law regarding innocence of the accused.

16. In the light of the above guidelines, firstly, we would like to have a glance at the medical evidence, which is in the form of statement of Dr. A.K. Srivastava (P.W.6) and postmortem report (Ext. Ka-13). Though on behalf of the defence death/murder of Ram Bhajan has not been disputed, we are duty-bound to examine whether any offence was committed and if so, by whom.

17. Dr. A.K. Srivastava (P.W.-6) in his statement has stated that he was posted as Radiologist, District Hospital, Pilibhit on 29.10.1982. On that date at about 3.30 P.M. he conducted the postmortem examination on the corpse of Ram Bhajan, whose age was about 65 years. He deposed that the dead body was brought to him by constable Rampal CP 52 and Ram Pal CP 212, who also produced the necessary papers before him. On external examination of the body, he claimed to have found that the deceased was of an average built. Rigor mortis was present on the body and death had occurred about one day before. He found following ante-mortem injuries on the dead body of deceased:-

(1) Incised wound 10 cm x 2 cm x bone deep on the right side of the lower jaw.

(2) Incised wound 12 cm x 3 cm x right parietal bone, cut on the right side skull in the parietal region.

(3) An incised wound 8 cm x 2 cm x bone tissue deep on the back of right side skull, on the occipital region and was cut under the injury.

(4) Incised wound 7 ½ cm x 3 cm x bone deep on the front side of left fore-arm.

(5) Incised wound 2 cm x 1 cm in the middle part of the front of right middle finger.

(6) Incised wound 3 cm x 2 cm x bone deep on the right shoulder bone.

(7) Incised wound 9 cm x 3 cm x bone deep on the back of left elbow.

18. On the internal examination of the dead body of the deceased the doctor (PW-6) found fracture of the bones under injury Nos. 2 and 3, the membranes of the brain were found lacerated. The brain was also lacerated under injury nos. 2 and 3. The heart was empty. The stomach and small intestine were empty and faecal matter was present in the large intestines. Urine was present in the bladder. No abnormality was detected in the remaining organs.

19. The doctor (PW-6) opined that the death of the deceased was caused due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of the aforesaid injuries. The doctor further opined that in ordinary course, the aforesaid injuries found on the dead body of the deceased are sufficient to cause his instantaneous death. He proved the postmortem report (Ext.Ka-13).

20. We have gone through the deposition of Dr. A.K. Srivastava, which reveals that he has been cross-examined only on one point, in reply to which he had stated that if any person happened to fall down on the ground by striking on a peg, it was not necessary that any injury would be caused to him. He admitted that there was no abrasion on the right leg of the deceased. Except for the above point, no other question was asked by the defence to the said doctor, vividly describing the seven incised wounds on the body of the deceased Ram Bhajan. The witness has proved that the death of the deceased Ram Bhajan would have happened on the date and time of the incident, i.e., 28.10.1982 at about 3.00 P.M. and these injuries were probably inflicted by the sword. In his opinion, these fatal wounds were sufficient to cause death of the deceased in ordinary course.

21. Therefore, the testimony of P.W.-6 Dr. A.K. Srivastava is more or less unrebutted and the postmortem report (Ext.Ka-13) as well as the clothes found on the body of the deceased (Ext.Ka-3,4 and 5), proved by the witness before the trial court, corroborate the incident in question as also the entire ocular and other oral testimony and documentary evidence placed by the prosecution. Relying thereon in totality, we hold that the above-mentioned seven anti-mortem injuries found on the body of the deceased, out of which two are on vital parts and are also fatal in nature, on the date and time of the incident in question, were caused only by a sword which resulted in the death of Ram Bhajan deceased.

22. Now, we deal with the ocular version of the occurrence. In this regard, we would like to refer to the statements of three eye witnesses P.W.-1 Puttu Lal, informant, P.W.-2 Daya Ram and P.W.-3 Hori Lal. Endorsing the promptly recorded FIR (Ext.Ka-2), the informant Puttu Lal (P.W.-1) has corroborated the written report (Ext.Ka-1) and stated in his deposition that he and the appellant/younger brother Ram Ratan were living separately for about 10-12 years but their father/deceased Ram Bhajan was living with his younger brother/appellant. He further stated that the entire agricultural land which was 24-25 Bighas was owned and cultivated by his father (deceased), the produce of which was being given to the appellant alone by his father regularly. But on the date of the incident at noon, when the witness was present in his house and the deceased was thrashing paddy crop in front of the door of Daya Ram (P.W.-2), it is stated that the deceased had told the accused that he had distributed 50 Kgs. of paddy to his elder son/the witness (PW-1) in the morning, as he was also one of his sons. Thereafter, he told the appellant that he had never given anything to the witness till date so he wanted to give some share from it to the witness Puttu Lal (PW-1). Whereupon, the appellant Ram Ratan got infuriated and started quarrelling with his father. During the said quarrel he told his father that he would not let him to part with a single grain to his brother/witness Puttu Lal (PW-1). In reply to him, the deceased asked him as to why he would not permit him to do so as the witness also was his son, which ensued in an altercation between the appellant and his father/deceased and in the course of this altercation, the appellant moved to his house and brought a sword from there and started inflicting repeated sword blows upon his father Ram Bhajan (deceased). The witness present at the spot then raised a hue and cry, which attracted Daya Ram (PW-2), Hori Lal (PW-3) and other villagers, who were residing in the vicinity of the place of occurrence. Due to the said sword injuries his father fell down on the ground, after moving barely 10 to 12 paces, and succumbed to his wounds in front of the house of Hori Lal (PW-3). Soon, thereafter, the appellant Ram Ratan started to run away, with the said weapon/sword used in this crime.

23. Similarly, in his testimony P.W.-2 Daya Ram has also supported the entire prosecution story, by showing the reason for his presence at the spot. According to him, on the date of the incident at noon he had proceeded to his pond after taking meal from his house. When he was returning from there, he heard much commotion near his house. Subsequently, when he reached near the house of one Hulla of his village, he found that the appellant was quarrelling with his father/the deceased. In the course of the said quarrel, the accused Ram Ratan inflicted sword blows upon his father/Ram Bhajan, who tried to save himself by running away, first towards the east and then towards north, but eventually fell down after being struck by a peg in front of the house of Hori Lal (PW-3). Thereafter, the accused after taking clothes from his house fled away towards the west of the village. Due to the said fatal sword injuries, Ram Bhajan died at the spot. At the time of the incident the witnesses Hori Lal (PW-3), Puttu Lal (PW-1), Shreeram, Murli and several other persons of the village had gathered at the place of occurrence.

24. In consonance with the testimony of the said witnesses (PW-1 and PW-2) and thereby corroborating the story of the prosecution, P.W.-3 Hori Lal has stated in his testimony that much before the date and time of the incident, at about 12.00 noon, he was present in his house and the deceased Ram Bhajan was thrashing paddy in front of the nearby house of neighbour Daya Ram. He stated that earlier also the deceased Ram Bhajan had given out some paddy to his son/informant Puttu Lal (PW-1). According to him, on the date, time and place of the occurrence, the deceased was telling the appellant to part with some paddy to his son Puttu Lal because earlier his younger son/appellant Ram Ratan used to take away his entire agricultural produce and no portion of it had ever been given to Puttu Lal (PW-1). When the deceased posed the aforesaid suggestion to the appellant, he replied to his father that if any portion of the paddy was given to his elder brother/informant then he would kill his father/deceased. But the deceased replied that he would certainly part with some paddy to him, saying that he, too, was his son. Whereupon, the appellant ran towards his house, brought a sword from there and inflicted one sword blow upon his father/Ram Bhajan. Consequently, the deceased with a view to save himself, ran helter and skelter, first towards the east and then after repeated sword blows, towards the north and while running he fell down, when a peg struck his leg, in front of the house of the witness (PW-3). In the course of this incident, they, the witnesses Daya Ram (PW-2) and Puttu Lal (PW-1) reached the spot. Soon, thereafter, the appellant fled away from the spot towards his house and from there he took something and then ran away towards the west of the village. Due to the said sword blows Ram Bhajan/deceased fell on the ground and died on the spot. According to him, when Ram Bhajan fell down, the appellant did not inflict any sword blow on him.

25. All these witnesses (PW-1 to PW-3) stood the test of cross-examination. We examined the entire direct ocular testimony of the three witnesses with due care and caution, which reflects that barring minor contradictions, their statements, by and large, are free from any major contradictions, embellishments or exaggerations.

26. On perusal of the site plan (Ext.Ka-11) prepared by the Investigating Officer (PW-4) it appears that the place of occurrence is in front of or near the houses of all the witnesses, therefore, their presence on the spot and witnessing the incident in question, is absolutely natural and probable. The testimony of all the ocular witnesses (P.W.-1 to P.W.-3) also appear to be natural and their statements are in consonance with the normal human conduct. There is no inconsistency in the inter-se evidence of the witnesses. Corroborating the entire prosecution documents in totality, their statements establish not only the immediate motive of the incident but also the date, time, place, nature of quarrel, the weapon used in crime, manner of assault, causing injuries by the appellant to the deceased as well as facts before, during and after the incident. The same holds true for the reason of the presence of the witnesses at the time of the occurrence and the nature of the injuries on the body of the deceased, which are in consonance with the more or less unrebutted medical evidence, as discussed above, and the site plan (Ext.Ka-11).

27. This is a case of patricide. The presence of all the witnesses at the place of occurrence and their witnessing the incident in question is proved beyond reasonable doubt by the prosecution. Notwithstanding the fact that there was some ill-will, regarding the distribution of the agricultural produce of the deceased to the informant, between the appellant and the deceased prior to the incident, there was no occasion for the elder son of the deceased/witness Puttu Lal (PW-1) to falsely implicate his real younger brother/appellant for the murder of their father and let go the real culprits. Moreover, the other two witnesses (PW-2 and PW-3), against whom the defence was unable to show any animosity or ill-will, admittedly residing close to the place of occurrence and whose presence at the spot cannot be doubted, have also proved the complicity of the accused in this incident. All these witnesses appeared to be trustworthy witnesses. Their testimony are also found to be unshaken and credible.

28. In his statement P.W.-4 Sub Inspector Pheru Singh Yadav, the Investigating Officer, has proved the entire investigation proceedings. Corroborating the date and time of lodging of the First Information Report in this case by the informant Puttu Lal (PW-1) through his written report (Ext.Ka-1), he stated that the Head Moharrir Ram Das had prepared the chik no. 160 before him. He proved the said FIR/chik report (Ext.Ka-2) through secondary evidence. Similarly, he also proved and filed the copy of corresponding entry in the General Diary at report no. 16 of the date (Ext.Ka-3). During investigation he found that the body of the deceased lying in front of the house of Hori Lal (P.W.-3). According to him, he reached the spot on the same day at about 7.00 p.m., but due to prevailing darkness at the spot, he postponed the preparation of the inquest report. During the said night he remained there and recorded the statements of the eye witnesses Daya Ram (PW-2) and Hori Lal (PW-3), searched the house of the appellant and also prepared the memo for the same (Ext.Ka-4).

29. The next morning, the I.O. (PW-4) prepared the inquest report (Ext.Ka-5), Sketch of the dead body (Ext.Ka-6), Challan Nash (Ext.Ka-7) and after completing the necessary formalities, he sent the body of the deceased along with his mutilated left thumb, through Constable Ram Pal Singh and Constable Ram Pal Gupta for postmortem with the letter to CMO (Ext.Ka-9), along with other relevant papers and sample seal (Ext.Ka-8). Further, he recorded the statements of the witnesses of the inquest report, took samples of blood stained earth (Ext-1) and simple earth (Ext-2) and separately sealed them, after preparing the corresponding memo (Ext.Ka-10). Thereafter, he recorded the statement of the wife of Puttu Lal informant. On the pointing out of the witnesses, he prepared the site plan (Ext.Ka-11) and thereafter, recorded the statements of other witnesses. He received the postmortem report of the deceased (Ext.Ka-13) on 30.10.1982 and recorded the statements of the aforementioned Constables.

30. According to the said I.O. (PW-4), S.O. Dhanveer Singh had filed the charge-sheet (Ext.Ka-12) against the appellant. He also proved the charge-sheet dated 25.11.1982 (Ext.Ka-12). He had been cross-examined but in his cross-examination also, he proved the entire investigation proceedings. No material contradiction, omission or commission has been shown in his testimony which discredit the prosecution case or lead to the inference that the investigation in this case was defective, tainted or made in a perfunctory manner. He also proved that the mutilated left thumb of the deceased was found near the dead body and not in any other place.

31. Lastly, the prosecution had examined P.W.-5 Constable/52 CP Ram Pal, as a link evidence, who has proved that he along with Constable Ram Pal Gupta accompanied the Investigating Officer to the place of occurrence, situated at village Bamrauli. The very next day on 29.10.1982, the Investigating Officer handed over the sealed body of the deceased, along with the sample seal and other relevant papers in their custody for postmortem examination. They, in turn, handed over the body of the deceased in a sealed condition to the Doctor, who conducted the postmortem on that very day. According to him, the body was intact while in their custody and was identified by them before postmortem. They received a sealed bundle, two sealed envelopes alongwith sample seal from the said doctor after the said postmortem and they lodged the same in the concerned police station. This witness has not been cross-examined by the defence and therefore, his testimony is uncontroverted, which further corroborates the prosecution case as well as the investigation proceedings.

32. In the statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. the appellant has admitted that he and the witness Puttu Lal (PW-1) are real brothers/sons of the deceased Ram Bhajan, living separately and the deceased/his father was residing with him. Except for these two admissions, the appellant has denied the entire prosecution story and stated that he had been framed in this case due to enmity with regard to the landed property. However, it is surprising to note that he had neither specifically denied the factum of his father's (since deceased) unnatural death nor even shown any cause or explanation, as to how his father died, who was actually living with him; rather he tried to escape from the liability by stating only that he was falsely being implicated due to the enmity over agricultural land, without elaborating the nature and details of such prior enmity. Despite opportunity given no evidence had been adduced by the appellant in his defence.

33. On perusal of the FIR (Ext.Ka-2), we found that the distance between the place of occurrence and the police station is 6 kms.. The date and time of the incident is 28.10.1982 at about 3.00 p.m., therefore, it appears that the FIR was lodged promptly, on the same day at 5.20 p.m., by the elder son of the deceased/elder brother of the accused Puttu Lal (PW-1). It contains the name of the accused-appellant, the immediate motive for the murder, the nature of altercation/quarrel, the manner of assault, the weapon used in the incident, date, time and place of the occurrence, names of the witnesses who were present at the time of the incident and witnessed it, nature and number of blows inflicted by the appellant, the result of the said blows on the deceased, who fell down and died due to the said injuries then and there at the spot and also the fleeing away of the accused with the weapon of assault. Therefore, it contains the entire prosecution incident in detail.

34. Perusal of the record shows that the police machinery immediately moved towards the place of the incident and the investigation proceeding was started at 7.00 p.m., as stated by the Investigating Officer (PW-4). It is also stated by the Investigating Officer that due to the prevailing darkness, the preparation of the inquest report in this case was postponed till the morning of the next day, but he started recording the statements of the witnesses present there. His statement finds support in the inquest report (Ext.Ka-5) and other papers of the investigation proceeding as well as the testimony of all other witnesses examined in the trial, including the Doctor and the Postmortem

Report (Ext.Ka-13). The injuries found on the body of the deceased are in consonance with the inquest report (Ext.Ka-5) also.

35. Once it is found that the FIR was promptly lodged after the incident, by the witness Puttu Lal (PW-1), and that set in motion the police machinery which started investigation on the spot immediately thereafter, it must be held that the content of the FIR would reflect the first hand account of what actually happened on the spot, as has been held by the Apex Court in the decision of State of Punjab Vs. Surza Ram, 1995 Cri. L.J. 4161, wherein it was observed by the Supreme Court that the FIR, which was promptly lodged and which contained detail outline of the prosecution case clearly corroborates the eye-witnesses' account.

36. It is in the light of the prompt lodging of the FIR in the present case, which corroborates the version of the eye-witnesses' account, thereby supporting the prosecution case in totality. In view thereof, there appears no manipulation, ante-dating, ante-timing of the police or medical papers or any concoction therein. On careful examination of materials on record, we believe that the entire testimony of the eye witnesses, examined by the prosecution in this case, along with the medical and police papers, fully corroborates the prosecution story, which in turn appears that the prosecution has proved all the ingredients of the offence/charge framed against the accused-appellant and the possibility of false implication of the appellant is entirely ruled out.

37. Now, we deal with the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant.

38. It is contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that the eye witness account placed by the prosecution does not deserve to be accepted as these witnesses (PW-2 and PW-3) had a soft-cornor for the informant Puttu Lal (PW-1) and the latter, with an intention to usurp the entire property of his father/deceased, had falsely implicated the accused.

39. We are unable to accept the said argument advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant. It is a broad daylight murder in the centre of a village 'abadi', surrounded by the residence of the eye witnesses as well as other villagers. The front doors of their residence open towards the spot of the crime. Even in the statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. the accused-appellant had not stated any single instance of animosity or ill-will against the witnesses testified before the trial court. The witnesses Daya Ram (PW-2) and Hori Lal (PW-3) appear to be most probable, natural and independent witnesses. In their cross-examination no concrete material has been elicited by the defence which casts any doubt in their veracity or the prosecution case. No specific suggestion has been given to them regarding any enmity or ill-will against the accused-appellant. Their presence at the spot is very natural and probable. Their testimony is in consonance with natural human conduct. Being the nearest residents of the place of occurrence their presence and witnessing the entire incident cannot be doubted. Moreover, there is no specific or cogent suggestion by the defence as to how and why the witnesses (PW-2 and PW-3) had soft-corner towards the brother of the accused/Puttu Lal (PW-1) and were inimical to the appellant.

40. The principle of law has now been settled that the testimony of a witness cannot be discarded merely because the witness is a family member, relative, inimical or interested/partisan. In such a case, the court has to adopt a careful approach, in analyzing the evidence of such witnesses and if the testimony of the said witness is otherwise found credible, the accused can be convicted on the basis of the testimony of such witnesses. The above ratio of law has been laid down by the Apex Court in the cases of Shyam Babu Vs. State of U.P., AIR 2012 SC 3311, Shyamal Ghosh Vs. State of WB, AIR 2012 SC 3539, Dhari & others Vs. State of U.P., AIR 2013 SC 308, Shanmugam and another Vs. State of TN (2013) 12 SCC 765 and Nand Kumar Vs. State of Chhatishgarh 2015 Cri. L.J. 381.

41. Therefore, it is not appreciable that they have deposed only to falsely implicate the accused for the simple reason that they are either a family member/inimical or having soft-corner for the informant. The testimony of the eye-witnesses is that they saw the incident at the place of occurrence and they narrated the entire prosecution story. On the analysis of the testimony of all the three witnesses (PW-1 to PW-3) with due care and caution, nothing has been found in their evidence which supports the contention of the defence, rather on the touchstone of credibility, the testimony of all the direct ocular witnesses are found to be of credence. Their names also find place in the FIR. The entire evidence of the witnesses are in consonance with the medical evidence as well as site plan. Their testimony are also in consonance with the statements recorded during investigation. Hence there is no force in the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant.

42. Further, the contention that any elder brother would depose against his younger sibling and wish to falsely implicate him with a view to usurp the entire property of his own father and spare the actual culprit is neither tenable and nor acceptable by any stretch of imagination. In these type of cases, it is usually noticed that the family members try to save their relative by advancing doubtful evidence to save him from the gallows. Moreover, in the cross-examination, Puttu Lal (PW-1) had specifically stated that he had got the agricultural land of his uncle which was given to him by his father and therefore, there was no occasion for him to falsely implicate the accused-appellant just to gain the father's property and spare the real culprit in this case of daylight murder.

43. The informant Puttu Lal (PW-1) and Hori Lal (PW-3) have specifically proved the immediate motive for murder, against which there is neither any explanation from the side of the accused nor is there any apparent explanation from the evidence on record. The said motive is quite natural and probable and it is quite reasonable to believe that the accused, who was usurping the entire agricultural produce of his father for a long time, would have felt annoyed when his father/deceased wanted him to part with some portion of it to his elder brother. The said witnesses not only witnessed the incident but were close neighbours, who also described the scene of crime, vividly. Being a daylight murder it cannot be a case of wrong identification of the real assailant and nonwitnessing by the close neighbours residing there, in whose presence the entire incident of murder was committed. Therefore, we are unable to accept the argument that the witnesses had shielded the real assailant and named the accused-appellant just to gain the property of the deceased for Puttu Lal (PW-1), by falsely implicating his brother.

44. It was next argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that the witness Puttu Lal (PW-1) had admitted in his statement that his father had taken his meal in the noon but at the time of postmortem examination his stomach was found empty and therefore, the possibility cannot be ruled out that the murder had been committed in the darkness of the night.

45. It is also argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that the presence of Puttu Lal at the time of the incident is quite doubtful because he was living separately and the appellant was living with his father/deceased. We do not agree with the said contention, because even from the cross-examination of Daya Ram (PW-2) and Hori Lal (PW-3), it has been proved that during the course of the incident the witnesses and other persons had assembled and raised an alarm and called out to Puttu Lal (PW-1) saying that the deceased was killed by the appellant, whereupon Puttu Lal (PW-1) reached the spot and chased the appellant along with others, but he could not be caught with the weapon of assault at the spot, therefore, we do not find force in the above arguments of the learned counsel for the appellant. There is no cross-examination regarding the point of variation of time of death to the doctor (PW-6). The incident is said to have taken place at about 3.00 p.m. and it is not surprising that by the time his murder was committed, the meal taken by him had been digested because the villagers take the meals in the early hours of the day. By carefully scanning the entire testimony of three direct ocular witnesses it is clearly established that the presence of the witnesses at the spot at the time of the incident and their witnessing the said incident cannot be doubted.

46. It was also contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that the evidence of witness Hori Lal (PW-3) appeared to be shaky because in his cross-examination he had stated that when the incident took place, he was inside his house and on hearing the hue and cry he came out and saw Ram Bhajan lying near the peg and Ram Ratan accused going towards the west. We do not find ourselves in agreement with the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant because the door of the house of witness Hori Lal opens towards the place of occurrence. Corroborating the immediate motive of the incident he had clearly stated in his statement that the accused had inflicted repeated sword blows to the deceased Ram Bhajan and emphatically denied the suggestion given by the defence about non-witnessing the incident in question, which clearly reflects that he had seen the entire incident and especially the accused inflicting repeated sword blows to the deceased. The minor discrepancies pointed out by the side of the appellant are quite natural, which makes the testimony of the witness more credible. Therefore, his testimony also proves the prosecution version and the charge of murder committed by the accused.

47. The evidence of a witness can not be read in piece-meal but it should be read in totality. Perusal of the statement of Hori Lal (PW-3) as a whole negates the above contention of the appellant. The Apex Court in the cases of Ashok Kumar Choudhary Vs. State of Bihar, 2008 (61) ACC 972 and Dimpal Gupta (minor) Vs. Rajiv Gupta, AIR 2008 SC 239 has propounded that if the testimony of an eyewitness is otherwise found trustworthy and reliable, the same cannot be disbelieved and rejected merely because certain insignificant, normal or natural contradictions have appeared into his testimony. If the inconsistencies, contradictions, exaggerations, embellishments and discrepancies in the testimony are only normal and not material in nature, then the testimony of an eyewitness has to be accepted and acted upon. Distinctions between 'normal discrepancies' and 'material discrepancies' are that while 'normal discrepancies' do not corrode the credibility of a party's case, 'material discrepancies' do so.

48. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that even though in this case the FIR and the police action were alleged to have been prompt, the weapon of assault used in the crime, i.e., the sword could not be recovered by the Investigating Officer despite the fact that the house of the appellant is situated close to the place of incident. We do not find any force in the said submission of the learned counsel for the appellant because the entire evidence on record clearly shows that the appellant, after committing the crime, fled away from the place of occurrence along with the said sword. The search memo of the house of the appellant (Ext.Ka-4) shows that the house of the appellant was searched by the police on the date of the incident itself in the presence of the witnesses but no incriminating material, weapon of assault/sword was recovered from his house. The record of this case pertaining to the court of Ist Additional Munsif Magistrate, Pilibhit reveals that the accused had ultimately surrendered before the court on 18.12.1982. Therefore, in the light of the above facts and circumstances, the conduct of the accused after committing the crime itself speaks volumes of his involvement in the incident. It is also apparent that there was no possibility of recovery of the weapon of assault, i.e., sword in this case. Merely, non-recovery of the weapon of offence/sword cannot relieve the appellant from the charge of murder in this appeal. The above contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is misconceived.

49. The learned counsel for the appellant further contended that the FIR and all the police papers prepared in this case were ante-dated and ante-timed. We do not subscribe to the view of the learned counsel for the appellant. As discussed above, we found that the first information report in this case was lodged very promptly by the elder brother of the appellant and the police machinery was set in motion thereafter, very promptly. The delay in inquest proceeding has been sufficiently explained by the Investigating Officer (PW-6) himself, and the inquest report (Ext.Ka-5) also contains the copy of FIR and crime number etc. Similarly, the unchallenged statement of P.W.-5 constable Ram Pal, who has proved the factum of receiving the sealed body of the deceased along with the papers etc. in his custody for handing it over to the doctor for postmortem also corroborates the testimony of the I.O. as well as the inquest report (Ext.Ka-5) and all the police papers prepared on 29.10.1982. It has also been proved by the said witnesses that the police party including the I.O. remained at the spot in the night. The statement of the doctor Sri A.K. Srivastava (P.W.-6) and the postmortem report (Ext.Ka-13) prepared by him also corroborate the fact that the FIR in this case was lodged very promptly. There is no evidence on record to indicate any suspicion about the promptly lodging of FIR or the delay in police and medical proceedings in this case. The direct ocular testimony of the witnesses (PW-1 to PW-3), all the police papers and medical evidence are in consonance. There is also no inter-se major contradiction between the testimony of the witnesses examined by the prosecution to establish the prosecution case, and hence, there is no force in the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant.

50. It is also argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that the investigation in this case is tainted and defective. In support of his contention the learned counsel only stated about the delay in preparation of inquest report (Ext.Ka-5) and non-recovery of weapon of assault/sword. As we have discussed above, the delay in preparation of inquest report as well as non-recovery of weapon of assault/sword have sufficiently been explained by the prosecution; therefore, the argument of the learned counsel for the appellant is baseless.

51. Lastly, the learned counsel for the appellant has argued that if the case of the prosecution is found to be proved and conviction of the appellant maintained, even then as the homicide in this case has been caused by the appellant due to grave and sudden provocation given by the deceased, the only offence under section 304 IPC is likely to be proved, and hence the learned trial court has erred in convicting and sentencing the accused under section 302 IPC. To buttress his argument, the learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance on the following decisions of the Apex Court:

(1) State of Rajasthan Vs. Ramesh, (2011) 3 SCC 685.

(2) Budhi Singh Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, (2012) 13 SCC 663.

(3) K. Ravi Kumar Vs. State of Karnataka, (2015) 2 SCC 638.

52. We have gone through the aforementioned decisions submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant. The facts and circumstances in all these decisions entirely differ from this case. Therefore, the principles of law laid down in these decisions are not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case.

53. The word Provocation has been defined in the Oxford Dictionary, as an action, insult, etc. that is likely to provoke physical retaliation. The term grave only adds an element of virulent intensity to what is otherwise likely to provoke retaliation.

54. In the case of Mancini Vs. Director for Public Prosecutor [1941] 3 All ER 272, the word provocation and its applicability in crime has been defined as follows:-

"it is not all provocation that will reduce the crime of murder to manslaughter. Provocation to have that result, must be such as temporarily deprive the person provoked of the power of self-control as a result of which he commits the unlawful act which caused death. The test to be applicable is that of the effect of the provocation on a reasonable man, as was laid down by the Court of Criminal Appeal in Rex V. Lesbini so that an unusually excitable or pugnacious individual is not entitled to rely on provocation which would not have led ordinary person to act as he did. In applying the test, it is of particular importance to (a) consider whether a sufficient interval has elapsed since the provocation to allow a reasonable man time to cool, and (b) to take into account the instrument with which the homicide was effected, for to retort, in the heat of passion induced by provocation, by a simple blow, is very different thing from making use of a deadly instrument like a concealed dagger. In short, the mode of resentment must bear a reasonable relationship to the provocation if the offence is to be reduced to manslaughter."

55. Similarly in the decision of R. Vs. Duffy [1949] 1 All ER 932, the term provocation and its consequence has been explained as under:-

"The whole doctrine relating to provocation depends on the fact that it cause, or may causes, a sudden and temporary loss of self-control, whereby malice, which is the formation of an intention to kill or to inflict grievous bodily harm, is negatived. Consequently, where the provocation inspires an actual intention to kill, or to inflict grievous bodily harm, the doctrine that provocation may reduce murder to manslaughter seldom applies."

56. The legal connotation of 'Grave and sudden provocation' in P Ramanatha Aiyar's Concise Law Dictionary is given as under:-

"Intensely stirring up a person to such a pitch of anger or hatred abruptly that he instantly loses control over himself and is led to do what he would not do if he could weigh or contemplate the nature or significance of his act. [S. 300, except. 1, IPC (45 of 1860)]; [S. 222, ill. (b), Cr. PC 1973 (2 of 1947)]."

The 'Grave and sudden provocation' as provided in the Exception-I of Section 300 IPC is quoted herein below:

"Exception 1.--When culpable homicide is not murder.--Culpable homicide is not murder if the offender, whilst deprived of the power of self-control by grave and sudden provocation, causes the death of the person who gave the provocation or causes the death of any other person by mistake or accident.

The above exception is subject to the following provisos:--

(First) --That the provocation is not sought or voluntarily pro-voked by the offender as an excuse for killing or doing harm to any person.

(Secondly) --That the provocation is not given by anything done in obedience to the law, or by a public servant in the lawful exer-cise of the powers of such public servant.

(Thirdly) --That the provocation is not given by anything done in the lawful exercise of the right of private defence.

Explanation.--Whether the provocation was grave and sudden enough to prevent the offence from amounting to murder is a question of fact."

57. In the leading case of K.M. Nanavati Vs. State of Maharashtra, 1962 (1) Cri. L.J. 521, the Apex Court has provided four elements to test the grave and sudden provocation in a particular case, which are as follows:-

"(85) The Indian law, relevant to the present enquiry, may be stated thus:

(1) The test of "grave and sudden" provocation is whether a reasonable man, belonging to the same class of society as the accused, placed in the situation in which the accused was placed would be so provoked as to lose his self-control.

(2) In India, words and gestures may also, under certain circumstances, cause grave and sudden provocation to an accused so as to bring his act within the first Exception to Section 300 of the Indian Penal Code.

(3) The mental background created by the previous act of the victim may be taken into consideration in ascertaining whether the subsequent act caused grave and sudden provocation for committing the offence.

(4) The fatal blow should be clearly traced to the influence of passion arising from that provocation and not after the passion had cooled down by lapse of time, or otherwise giving room and scope for premeditation and calculation."

58. In the case of Vasanta Vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1983 SC 361(1), while dealing with a similar matter,. the Apex Court has rejected the contention of the appellant and observed as under:-

"It appears that there was some verbal altercation as a result of which the deceased had caught the hand of the accused, whereupon the accused assaulted the deceased with a knife with very great force according to medical evidence. In view of the medical evidence and injuries received by the deceased the case squarely falls within four corners of Section 302, IPC. Mr. Lalit, however, submits that the case falls under Section 304, Part 2, I.P.C. in view of serious altercations between the parties as held by the trial Court. We are, however, unable to agree with this contention because there is nothing to show that the altercation was of such a serious nature which could cause sudden provocation. Secondly, the nature of injury, namely, the stab on the chest which resulted in the fracture of the 6th rib and injured the heart and the lung and which according to the doctor was given with great force showed that it was most cruel and therefore the case squarely falls under Section 302, I.P.C. We are in complete agreement with the High Court that the offence falls under Section 302, IPC and the appellant was therefore, rightly convicted by the High Court."

59. In a similar nature case, as the case in hand, the Karnataka High Court in State of Karnatak Vs. Surendra, 1995 Cri. L.J. 3824, it has been categorically concluded as follows:-

"It cannot be said that the deceased gave him any provocation because after the quarrel the accused went back to his house and brought knife. So when he stabbed, there was no provocation of any sort by the deceased. The case, therefore, clearly falls under Section 302 IPC."

60. In a latest decision of B. D. Khunte Vs. Union of India and others, 2015 Cri. L.J. 243, the Apex Court has provided five ingredients for a case to fall under Exception-1 to Section 300 of the IPC, which are quoted herein below:-

"What is critical for a case to fall under Exception 1 to Section 300, IPC is that the provocation must not only be grave but sudden as well. It is only where the following ingredients of Exception 1 are satisfied that an accused can claim mitigation of the offence committed by him from murder to culpable homicide not amounting to murder:

(1) The deceased must have given provocation to the accused.

(2) The provocation so given must have been grave.

(3) The provocation given by the deceased must have been sudden.

(4) The offender by reason of such grave and sudden provocation must have been deprived of his power of self-control; and

(5) The offender must have killed the deceased or any other person by mistake or accident during the continuance of the deprivation of the power of self-control."

61. Bearing these principles in mind if we look at the facts of this case, we find that in the case in hand there was some verbal altercation and quarrel between the appellant and the deceased on the point of distribution of some part of the paddy to his son/elder brother of the appellant before the crime. In the said altercation, when the deceased refused to accept the obstinate stand of the appellant/his younger son and insisted on parting with some portion of the paddy to his elder son/Puttu Lal informant, the appellant was infuriated. Whereupon, the appellant went to his house and brought a deadly weapon/the sword from there and started inflicting repeated sword blows (as many as seven blows) several of which were dealt with very great force, according to medical evidence, to the deceased/his own father, which resulted in his instantaneous death. All these circumstances do not betray any signs of grave, leave alone grave and sudden provocation, to have disturbed the appellant's mental equilibrium or deprived him of self-control, which is an essential attribute of 'grave and sudden provocation' to qualify as a mitigating factor under Exception-I to Section 300 IPC.

62. Even if such nature of altercation/quarrel took place between the appellant/younger son and the deceased/father, as proved by the prosecution, we do not believe that it provoked the appellant to such an extent as to prompt him to fetch a deadly weapon/sword from his house and brutally kill his own father/deceased by inflicting repeated sword blows; rather it appears to be a case of self-created provocation by the appellant himself. Given the facts of the present case normally a reasonable man belonging to the same class of society as the accused, placed in the said situation in which the accused was placed, would not be so provoked as to lose his self-control for committing the said offence. The conduct of the appellant during the quarrel when he went back to his house to fetch the sword clearly shows that the murder was a deliberate and calculated one.

63. Further, there was sufficient time for him to re-gain his self-control, even if he had not re-gained it earlier. Therefore, when the appellant inflicted repeated blows of sword to his father/deceased after returning from home, there was no fresh provocation of any sort by the deceased and it could not conceivably be a provocation for the murder, as emphasized in Exception-I to Section 300 of the IPC. We, therefore, hold that the facts of the case do not attract all the ingredients of the provisions of Exception-I to Section 300 of the IPC, as per the golden principles laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the aforementioned decisions. In the final analysis of this point in question, the conviction of the appellant under section 302 of the Indian Penal Code and sentence of imprisonment for life passed by the trial court are correct. Hence the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant, contrary to it , cannot be accepted.

64. After careful examination of material on record and in view of the direct evidence of crime against the present appellant by the ocular testimony rendered by the highly credible prosecution witnesses, whose presence on the spot has been established and cannot be doubted, which in turn is in consonance with the medical and other prosecution evidence/documents available on record, we are of the opinion that the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt and has been able to bring home the guilt of the accused-appellant by credible and trustworthy evidence. Therefore, the learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge has rightly believed the prosecution story and also rightly recorded the finding of guilt against the present appellant. Hence, we do not find any ground to differ from the finding of guilt recorded by the learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge. The judgement and order dated 24.5.1983 passed by the Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Pilibhit in S.T. No. 10 of 1983 (State Vs. Ram Ratan) arising out of Case Crime No. 217 of 1982, P.S. Bilsanda, District Pilibhit does not require any interference.

65. In view of the above, the appeal preferred by the appellant Ram Ratan lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed. The conviction and sentence awarded by the learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge against the accused-appellant Ram Ratan are confirmed. The accused/appellant Ram Ratan is directed to serve out the remaining part of the sentence awarded by the learned trial court in the impugned judgement. The accused-appellant Ram Ratan is on bail. He shall surrender before the trial court for serving out the sentence within 15 days from the date of this judgement, failing which the trial court shall ensure his arrest and shall send him to jail for serving out the remaining part of the sentence in accordance with law.

66. The copy of the judgement and entire record be transmitted back to the concerned trial court through Sessions Judge, Pilibhit for compliance within ten days. The concerned court will thereafter report the compliance to this Court within a month.

THE HON'BLE PRATYUSH KUMAR, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 1408 Of 2014

Dharmendra ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sunil Vashisth, Adesh Kumar, Ashish Singh, Brijesh Sahai, Rakesh Kumar Srivastava

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

The instant appeal filed on behalf of accused-appellant is directed against the judgment and order dated 20.3.2014 passed by Shri J.K. Tiwari, Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.7, Meerut in S.T. No.331 of 2013 (State Vs. Dharmendra) whereby, the appellant has been convicted under Sections 376, 504, 506, IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of seven years with fine of Rs.5,000/-, rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year with fine of Rs.1,000/- and rigorous imprisonment for a period of three years with fine of Rs.2,000/- respectively. In default of payment of fine he has been directed to further undergo six months' additional imprisonment. All the sentences have been directed to run concurrently.

That on 20.9.2012 at 4.00 p.m. Ranveer gave a written report at police station Kharkhoda stating therein that on that day at 10.00 a.m. his minor daughter, hereinafter referred as victim, aged about 16 years had gone to the field to bring fodder. Dharmendra, a co-villager finding her alone in the field after showing country made pistol had raped her forcibly. At the alarm raised by her, his son Sumit aged about 14 years, who was taking Buggi to bring fodder from the field, reached there. At that Dharmendra had threatened him to kill him and asked him to remain silent and ran away. His son informed him. He had brought his daughter to lodge the FIR. Prior to that in view of sensitivity of the matter he approached the respectable persons of the village and father of the accused, but none came and father of Dharmendra had abused him and threatened to kill him and his family.

The findings recorded by the learned trial Judge are well substantiated from the record. Evidence has been rightly appreciated. Cogent reasons have been given in support of the findings of guilt. Appeal has no substance and deserves to be dismissed.

Appeal is dismissed. The appellant is in jail. He shall serve out his sentence. The period already undergone by him shall be adjusted in accordance with the provisions contained in Section 428, Cr.P.C.

1. The instant appeal filed on behalf of accused-appellant is directed against the judgment and order dated 20.3.2014 passed by Shri J.K. Tiwari, Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.7, Meerut in S.T. No.331 of 2013 (State Vs. Dharmendra) whereby, the appellant has been convicted under Sections 376, 504, 506, IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of seven years with fine of Rs.5,000/-, rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year with fine of Rs.1,000/- and rigorous imprisonment for a period of three years with fine of Rs.2,000/- respectively. In default of payment of fine he has been directed to further undergo six months' additional imprisonment. All the sentences have been directed to run concurrently.

2. Heard Shri Rakesh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant, Shri Shailendra Awasthi, learned AGA for the State-Respondent and perused the record.

3. The facts giving rise to the present appeal may be summarised as under:-

4. That on 20.9.2012 at 4.00 p.m. Ranveer gave a written report at police station Kharkhoda stating therein that on that day at 10.00 a.m. his minor daughter, hereinafter referred as victim, aged about 16 years had gone to the field to bring fodder. Dharmendra, a co-villager finding her alone in the field after showing country made pistol had raped her forcibly. At the alarm raised by her, his son Sumit aged about 14 years, who was taking Buggi to bring fodder from the field, reached there. At that Dharmendra had threatened him to kill him and asked him to remain silent and ran away. His son informed him. He had brought his daughter to lodge the FIR. Prior to that in view of sensitivity of the matter he approached the respectable persons of the village and father of the accused, but none came and father of Dharmendra had abused him and threatened to kill him and his family.

5. At this check FIR was scribed. Case Crime No.563 of 2012 under Sections 376, 504, 506, IPC was registered at P.S. Kharkhoda and investigation was entrusted to S.I. Sanjay Singh, who started the investigation and recorded the statements of inter alia first informant and his son Sumit on the same day. Next day he inspected the spot, took into his possession clothes of the victim and recorded her statement. Statement of victim was also recorded under Section 164, Cr.P.C. After completing the investigation charge sheet was submitted.

6. The appellant stood for trial before the Court of Session, where he was charged under Sections 376, 504, 506, IPC, on his denial he was tried, convicted and sentenced as above. Feeling aggrieved the instant appeal has been preferred.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant in support of the appeal has submitted that no incident of rape had taken place and appellant was falsely implicated due to land dispute. This fact has been admitted by the victim, PW-1 in her cross examination. His second argument is that the victim at the relevant time was major, in support of this argument he has referred the medical evidence in the form of statement of Dr. Savita Vashisth, PW-4. His third argument is that there are discrepancies and contradictions in the evidence of prosecution specially the victim PW-1 in her examination-in-chief has stated that occurrence took place at 10.00 a.m. whereas during cross examination she says that at 10.00 a.m. she left her house to the field which took about half an hour. In this reference he further submits that in the examination-in-chief victim, PW-1 has claimed that she was alone when accused caught her and raped her, but during cross examination she has stated that her brother was with her. His fourth argument is that medical evidence does not support the prosecution version, no external mark of injury was found on her person nor internal examination reflected that the victim was raped.

8. On behalf of State-Respondent these arguments have been repelled. Learned AGA has submitted that enmity is double edged weapon. On its basis evidence of victim, PW-1 and Sumit, PW-3 cannot be discarded. He further submits that age of the victim has been opined by the doctor to be 17 years. She was a little mentally challenged person and she has categorically stated that rape was forcible, therefore, in the present case age of the victim is not material. Regarding contradictions he submits that these are minor and none of them touches the substratum of prosecution story and factum of rape.

9. In reference to my obligation as an appellate court hearing appeal against conviction, I would like to refresh my mind by recalling the observation made by the Apex Court in the case of Ishvarbhai Fuljibhai Patni Vs. State of Gujarat [1995 Supreme Court Cases (Crl) 222]. Para-4 of the judgment reads as under:

"4. Since, the High Court was dealing with the appeal in exercise of its appellate jurisdiction, against conviction and sentence of life imprisonment, it was required to consider and discuss the evidence and deal with the arguments raised at the bar. Let alone, any discussion of the evidence, we do not find that the High Court even cared to notice the evidence led in the case. None of the arguments of the learned counsel for the appellant have been noticed, much less considered and discussed. The judgment is cryptic and we are at loss to understand as to what prevailed with the High Court to uphold the conviction and sentence of the appellant. On a plain requirement of justice, the High Court while dealing with a first appeal against conviction and sentence is expected to, howsoever briefly depending upon the facts of the case, consider and discuss the evidence and deal with the submissions raised at the bar. If it fails to do so, it apparently fails in the discharge of one of its essential jurisdiction under its appellate powers. In view of the infirmities pointed out by us, the judgment under appeal cannot be sustained."

10. In the case of Lal Mandi, Appellant v. State of West Bengal, Respondent [1995 CRI.L.J.2659 (Supreme Court), 2659], the Apex Court in para-5 of the report has given caution to the High Court reminding its duty in the matter of hearing of appeal against conviction. It would be gainful to reproduce the observation made in para-5 of the report, extracted below:

"5. To say the least, the approach of the High Court is totally fallacious. In an appeal against conviction, the Appellate Court has the duty to itself appreciate the evidence on the record and if two views are possible on the appraisal of the evidence, the benefit of reasonable doubt has to be given to an accused. It is not correct to suggest that the "Appellate Court cannot legally interfere with" the order of conviction where the trial court has found the evidence as reliable and that it cannot substitute the findings of the Sessions Judge by its own, if it arrives at a different conclusion on reassessment of the evidence. The observation made in Tota Singh's case, which was an appeal against acquittal, have been misunderstood and mechanically applied. Though, the powers of an appellate court, while dealing with an appeal against acquittal and an appeal against conviction are equally wide but the considerations which weigh with it while dealing with an appeal against an order of acquittal and in an appeal against conviction are distinct and separate. The presumption of innocence of accused which gets strengthened on his acquittal is not available on his conviction. An appellate court may give every reasonable weight to the conclusions arrived at by the trial court but it must be remembered that an appellate court is duty bound, in the same way as the trial court, to test the evidence extrinsically as well as intrinsically and to consider as thoroughly as the trial court, all the circumstances available on the record so as to arrive at an independent finding regarding guilt or innocence of the convict. An Appellate Court fails in the discharge of one of its essential duties, if it fails to itself appreciate the evidence on the record and arrive at an independent finding based on the appraisal of such evidence."

11. Before entering into the merits of the respective argument I would like to place on record broad features of the evidence of the parties. They are summarized as under:-

12. Victim, PW-1, before administering oath and keeping in view her mental condition trial Judge had asked her questions to ensure that she realizes the sanctity of oath, thereafter administered the oath to her. She has reiterated the facts stated in the first information report. She has proved her statement recorded under Section 164, Cr.P.C., Exhibit Ka-1.

13. Ranveer, PW-2 is the first informant and father of the victim. He has proved written report, Exhibit Ka-2, memo of sealing the clothes of the victim, Exhibit Ka-3. He has reiterated the facts mentioned in the first information report.

14. Sumit, PW-3 is the brother of the victim. He has given eye witness account and supported the facts stated by his sister.

15. Dr. Savita Vashisth, PW-4 had medically examined the victim on 20.9.2012 at 6.45 p.m. According to her, the victim was physically developed. During internal examination she found her hymen to be old torn. She has expressed her inability to give any opinion about commission of rape. She has proved medical examination report, Exhibit Ka-4.

16. S.I. Sanjay Kumar, PW-5 is the Investigating Officer. He gave details of the steps taken in the course of investigation. He has proved site plan, Exhibit Ka-5 and charge sheet Exhibit Ka-6.

17. Constable Surendra Singh, PW-6 is the scribe of check FIR. He has proved check FIR, Exhibit Ka-7, copy of the report of the General Diary, Exhibit Ka-8.

18. Dr. M.P. Singh, PW-7 is the doctor, who on the basis of radiological examination determined the age of the victim to be 17 years. He has proved this report, Exhibit Ka-9.

19. Dr. A.K. Jain, PW-8 is the Radiologist under whose supervision X-ray examination of the victim was conducted. He has identified X-ray plates, material Exhibit 1 & 2 and proved radiological report, Exhibit Ka-10.

20. Before the trial court case of the defence was of total denial on account of land dispute, which in brief is that grandfather of the victim had given 40 bigha land to his sister Phoolwati. Accused Dharmendra is real grandson of Phoolwati residing in the village of the first informant on the strength of property given by grandfather of the victim.

21. After close of prosecution evidence statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313, Cr.P.C. whereby he has denied the facts stated by the prosecution witnesses. According to him, he did not commit rape with the victim. She has deposed falsely on the pressure of her father. There was dispute regarding gher (place where cattle and grains are kept) between him and the first informant. According to him, first informant had occupied his gher.

22. In the defence on behalf of the appellant three witnesses were examined.

23. Ajay Kumar, A.S.I., DW-1 has deposed that in the General Diary dated 20.9.2012 of P.S. Kharkhoda in report no.47 return of the victim after medical examination has not been entered. Thereafter, there is no entry to show that any witness was examined by the Investigating Officer.

24. Momraj, DW-2 has deposed that first informant is his relative and accused Dharmendra is his nephew. Earlier accused used to live at Village Mahtampur. When he received land at Dhantaley (village where the first informant resides) he started to live there. Between the first informant and Dharmendra dispute arose on account of boundary of the fields. First informant had illegally occupied gher of the Dharmendra. Panchayat was held to resolve the dispute, but the first informant declined to vacate the gher and threatened to falsely implicate the accused. According to him, victim never goes to fields alone.

25. Braham Singh, DW-3 is resident of Village Panauta. He has claimed himself to be member of the panchayat. According to him, dispute regarding land of Dharmendra occupied by the first informant could not be resolved in the panchayat and first informant had threatened to falsely implicate the appellant in a case of rape.

26. One witness Yogendra Sharma, CW-1 was examined by the trial court itself, who is clerk of the school where at the relevant time Sumit, PW-3 studied. According to him, on the day of occurrence he was absent from the school.

27. In the present appeal, as gathered from the statement of Dr. Savita Vashisth, PW-4, no mark of external injury nor any injury on the private parts of the victim were found, therefore, the medical evidence in the present case is inconclusive either to prove or disprove the truthfulness of the prosecution version.

28. So far as enmity is concerned, on behalf of the appellant my attention has been drawn towards the statement made by the victim, PW-1 whereat she has admitted that 40 bigha land were given by her grandfather to grandmother of the appellant and 80 bigha of land were given to Kundan, father of first informant Ranveer, PW-2. She has further admitted that her father had occupied gher of Phoolwati, grandmother of the appellant.

29. On behalf of Momraj, DW-2 and Braham Singh, DW-3 have been examined to show that a panchayat took place about dispute of gher of Phoolwati and father of the victim declined to accept the verdict of the panchayat and threatened the appellant to falsely implicate him in a false case of rape.

30. So far as enmity on account of agricultural land and gher is concerned, it is established, but I find evidence of Momraj, DW-2 and Braham Singh, DW-3 not worthy of reliance. Momraj, DW-2 is not resident of Dhantaley. His presence during panchayat has not been explained. He could not describe correctly where houses of first informant and the appellant are situated. Evidence of Braham Singh, DW-3 also does not inspire confidence. He is resident of another village. According to him, he was also called for panchayat, but according to him, he was not aware about the dispute. According to him, he only knew Jagmal, who had died. For these reasons, I find evidence of defence on the point of panchayat and threat extended by the first informant to be not substantiated.

31. In reference to determination of age though argument has been advanced that victim was major. Since plea of consenting party has not been raised and victim is little mentally challenged person, her consent, if any, would not confer any benefit to the appellant, therefore, age of the victim bears no significance in the present case.

32. The main thrust of the argument advanced on behalf of the appellant is about the appreciation of evidence of statement of the victim, PW-1 and Sumit, PW-3. At this juncture I would like to refresh my mind about some principles prescribing the manner in which evidence should be appreciated.

33. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Krishnan Vs. State, AIR 2003 SC 2978 in reference to appreciation of eye witness account has observed that it would require a careful independent assessment and evaluation for their credibility which should not be adversely prejudged making any other evidence, including medical evidence, as the sole touchstone for the test of such credibility. The evidence must be tested for its inherent consistency and the inherent probability of the story; consistency with the account of other witnesses held to be creditworthy; consistency with the undisputed facts, the 'credit' of the witnesses; their performance in the witness box; their power of observation etc. Then the probative value of such evidence becomes eligible to be put into the scales for a cumulative evaluation.

34. Keeping in view of these principles in mind I have gone through the statement of the victim, PW-1. Learned trial Judge before administering her oath has put some questions to satisfy about her understanding about the sanctity of oath. After recording his satisfaction oath was administered and her statement was recorded. On behalf of the appellant first objection has been raised that after medical examination she did not return to the police station, therefore, Investigating Officer had no opportunity to record her statement on that day. Learned counsel for the appellant had made reference to the evidence of A.S.I. Ajay Kumar, DW-1, who has made this statement that on 20.9.2012 after medical examination return of the victim has not been entered in the General Diary. I do not find this ground to be relevant at all because in the General Diary only entry and exit of police personnel are entered as also registration of case or coming of first informant and the injured. It is not expected that in the General Diary entry would be made that after medical examination injured or victim returned to the police station or not, therefore, first ground is without substance.

35. The second argument is that there are contradictions in the statement of victim, PW-1. These contradictions have been referred by me hereinbefore. They do not touch the substratum of prosecution version. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Shri Narain Saha Vs. State of Tripura (2004) 7 SCC 775 has held that minor discrepancies in evidence are of no consequence.

36. Third ground is that evidence of victim is not corroborated from the medical evidence. As held in Krishnan's case (supra) while assessing intrinsic value of the statement of a witness such factors are not to be taken into account. More so in a case of rape uncorroborated testimony of the victim, if found reliable, is sufficient to sustain the conviction vide Santosh Mullya Vs. State of Karnataka, AIR 2010 SC 2247. In view of the legal position, third argument is also rejected.

37. Fourth argument is that the Investigating Officer did not send clothes of the victim for scientific examination or he found Chari (green fodder) disturbed at the place of occurrence is also of no significance. The Hon'ble Apex Court has held that lapses of the Investigating Officer would not be fatal for prosecution where ocular testimony is found credible and cogent (State of West Bengal Vs. Mir Mohd. Umar, 2000 (41) ACC 298 SC).

38. Victim is the natural and probable witness of the rape. She has given satisfactory answers to the questions put to her during cross examination. Whether her answer to any question would be favourable for the prosecution or for the defence does not bear any significance to her. She has frankly admitted dispute regarding gher. She has frankly admitted that she had bitten the appellant with her teeth out of anger. She does not worship the God. After going through her statement I found her testimony to be worthy of reliance and it inspires confidence of the Court.

39. The statement of the victim, PW-1 is corroborated by the statement of Sumit, PW-3, brother of the victim. First during trial defence took the plea that on that day he was at his school, but this plea stands negated by the statement of Yogendra Sharma, CW-1, clerk of Janhit Inter College where Sumit was studying at the relevant time. On the basis of original attendance register he has deposed that on 20.9.2012 Sumit was absent from his class. Extract of the original attendance register has been proved by him and photocopy thereof duly verified by the witness is available on record as Exhibit Ka-11. The witness has given reasons for his presence on the spot. He is natural and probable witness. He has faced the test of cross examination successfully. His testimony also inspires confidence of the court.

40. In this way prosecution has adduced the victim, PW-1 herself, who has supported the charge of rape by the appellant and her testimony is duly corroborated by the statement of Sumit, PW-3. Testimonies of both these are trustworthy, reliable and they inspire confidence of the Court. The arguments questioning their veracity are without substance, hence, they are rejected.

41. No other argument has been raised on behalf of the appellant. The findings recorded by the learned trial Judge are well substantiated from the record. Evidence has been rightly appreciated. Cogent reasons have been given in support of the findings of guilt. Appeal has no substance and deserves to be dismissed.

42. Appeal is dismissed. The appellant is in jail. He shall serve out his sentence. The period already undergone by him shall be adjusted in accordance with the provisions contained in Section 428, Cr.P.C.

43. Office is directed to communicate this decision to the court concerned forthwith and to send back the lower court's record.

THE HON'BLE AMAR SINGH CHAUHAN, J.

Criminal Revision No.- 1976 Of 2015

Durvasa Dwivedi ...Revisionist

State of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite parties

Counsel for the Revisionist:
Sanjay Kumar Singh, C.K.Mishra, D.S.Mishra, Sailesh Pandey

Counsel for Opposite Parties:
Govt. Advocate, Daya Shankar Mishra, Prabhakant Singh, Shailesh Pandey,

This revision has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 5.5.2015 passed by the Sessions Judge, Mirzapur in Criminal Appeal No. 18 of 2015 (Shubham Pandey Vs. State of U.P.) whereby the order dated 20.3.2015 passed by Juvenile Justice Board rejecting the bail of juvenile, Shubham Pandey has been set aside and the juvenile, Shubham Pandey was released on bail.

This Court in the case of Amit Kumar Vs. State of UP, 2010 (71) ACC 209 (Alld) has expressed the similar view and has granted bail to the juvenile offender in heinous offence and held that seriousness of offence is no ground to reject the bail to a juvenile.
In this case, there is nothing either on record or in the report of the Probation Officer that after the release the revisionist would come in association with any known criminal or his release would expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger. In the post-mortem report of the two deceased, the cause of death were shock and hemorrhage as a result of gun shot injuries which were assigned to be caused by co-accused Gian Chandra Pandey, father of juvenile. The role assigned to the juvenile is only to cause incised wounds to the injured as well as to the deceased which was not opined as fatal. It is definitely not an aggravating factor which shows the depraved and perverse mind set, as such this court is of the opinion that granting bail to such juvenile would not defeat the end of justice.

the impugned order is liable to be confirmed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amar Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. This revision has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 5.5.2015 passed by the Sessions Judge, Mirzapur in Criminal Appeal No. 18 of 2015 (Shubham Pandey Vs. State of U.P.) whereby the order dated 20.3.2015 passed by Juvenile Justice Board rejecting the bail of juvenile, Shubham Pandey has been set aside and the juvenile, Shubham Pandey was released on bail.

2. Admittedly, opposite party no. 2, Shubham Pandey is adjudged juvenile, aged about 17 years and 29 days and special provisions are there for the bail of juvenile.

3. Brief facts of the case are that on 11.12.2014 at about 10:30 A.M., while the informant, Durvasa Dwivedi and his brother Mrityunjay Dwivedi, Dhananjay and Shiv Shankar Giri were escorting the pilgrims towards Maa Vindhyawasini Mandir, Gyan Chandra Pandey (accused/father of O.P. No. 2) Shubham Pandey, O.P. No. 2 obstructed them and alleged that it is they, who will carry out the pilgrimage and not the informant. On this, the accused persons abused the informant, to which they were desisted from doing so, but in the process both Gyan Chandra Pandey armed with a DBBL gun and Shubham Pandey, O.P. No. 2 armed with bhunjali (sharp cutting weapon) inflicted fire arm and bhunjali injuries at the brothers of the informant, i.e. Mrityunjay, Shiv Shankar Giri and Dhananjay, to which Mrityunjay and Shiv Shankar succumbed to injuries. The first information report about the aforesaid double murder case against the opposite party no. 2 and his father was lodged promptly by the revisionist on the same day on 11.12.2014 at 1:45 AM at the P.S. Vindhyachal, District Mirzapur as Case Crime No. 1206 of 2014 under Sections 307, 302 IPC and Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act.

4. The Juvenile Justice Board on 20.3.2015 rejected the bail application of opposite party no. 2 primarily on the ground that the alleged offence involved a double murder in broad-daylight and in case opposite party no. 2 is released on bail, he is likely to abscond and also obstruct fair investigation. The Board also declined to place reliance on the report of the D.P.O., as it had not taken into consideration the entire facts and circumstances of the case, but the order of the Board has been interfered with under the impugned order dated 5.5.2015, whereby order of the Board dated 20.3.2015 has been set aside and opposite party no. 2 has been directed to be enlarged on bail but in the instant revision the operation of the Session's Judge order releasing the juvenile was stayed by interim order of this Court dated 1.6.2015.

5. Heard Sri Sanjay Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri Daya Shankar Mishra and Sri P.K. Singh, learned counsels for opposite party no. 2 and the learned AGA for the State-respondents.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist contends that opposite party no. 2 is accused along with his father of double murder committed by them in day-light near Vindhwasni Temple. Manner of the murder has been done reflect the mature mind of the opposite party, therefore, protection under Juvenile Justice Act is not for such accused who commits heinous crime. Granting relaxation of being juvenile would certainly defeat the end of justice because blanket liberty has not been granted to the juvenile in all cases. It is further contended that depravity of mind of opposite party no. 2 is very much manifest. Such person cannot be allowed to succeed so as to dupe the course of justice in heinous offences. In this regard, learned counsel for the revisionist has relied upon a judgment of this Court of another Bench in the case of Monu @ Moni @ Rahul @ Rohit Vs. State of U.P. [2011 (74) ACC 353] in which it has held that observation of the Board is that his association is with unwanted persons and there is no control over him of his widowed mother. Moreover, no male relative there to keep control over the revisionist. In these circumstances, bail of the revisionist will defeat the end of justice.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist has again relied on the case of Om Prakash Vs. State of Rajasthan and another [2012 (77) ACC 654] in which the Hon'ble Apex Court observed that Juvenile Justice Act which is certainly meant to treat a child accused with care and sensitivity offering him a chance to reform and settle into the mainstream of society, the same cannot be allowed to be used as a ploy to dupe the course of justice while conducting trial and treatment of heinous offences. This would clearly be treated as an effort to weaken the justice dispensation system and hence cannot be encouraged. Again the learned counsel relied upon a judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Virendra Vs. State of U.P. [2014 (6) ADJ 694] in which it has held that in view of the Juvenile Justice Act exposure of juvenile to moral, physical and psychological danger made a ground to refuse bail. Bail can also be refused on ground that release would defeat ends of justice. However, ends of justice not defined under the Act but anything that militates against justice would result in defeating ends of justice. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Parag Bhati (Juvenile) through Legal Guardian Mother Smt. Rajni Bhati Vs. State of U.P. and another) [2016 (95) ACC 552] has held that accused involved in grave and serious offence which he committed and gave effect to it in a well planned manner reflecting his maturity of mind rather than innocence. Plea of juvenility of accused more in nature of shield to dodge or dupe arms of law.

8. Per contra, learned AGA contends that in this case two persons have lost his life as a result of ante-mortem gun shot injuries inflicted by co-accused Gian Chandra Pandey, father of the opposite party no. 2. The injury inflicted by the delinquent juvenile are not fatal because in the post-mortem of two deceased the cause of death were due to ante-mortem fire arm injuries assigned to father of juvenile. The injury caused by bhunjali seems to have caused them no serious injury but nature of the crime shows the criminal maintainability of the juvenile.

9. Sri Daya Shankar Mishra, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has contended that District Probation Officer has reported that the juvenile is the student of 12th class of which Social and Economic Status is common and his conduct is reported as good. There is no criminal antecedent reported against the credit of the juvenile but require proper control for which his mother has also filed an affidavit to take care of his juvenile son. Learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 submitted that it is natural instinct to accompany his father during altercation and there is no serious injuries said to be caused by the juvenile. His role come within the sphere of offence under Sections 324 which is bailable.

10. If we go by the statutory mandate, bail in case of a juvenile in conflict with law, is a general rule whereas refusal is an exception. Such refusal has also to be in consonance with the grounds mentioned in Section 12, which is reproduced below:

12. Bail of juvenile.- (1) When any person accused of a bailable or non-bailable offence, and apparently a juvenile, is arrested or detained or appears or is brought before a Board, such person shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law for the time being in force, be released on bail with or without surety (or placed under supervision of a Probation Officer or under the care of any fit institution or fit person) but he shall not be so released if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice.

(2) When such person having been arrested is not released on bail under sub-section (1) by the officer incharge of the police station, such officer shall cause him to be kept only in an observation home in the prescribed manner until he can be brought before a Board.

(3) When such person is not released on bail under sub-section (1) by the Board it shall, instead of committing him to prison, make an order sending him to an observation home or a place of safety for such period during the pendency of the inquiry regarding him as may be specified in the order."

11. Delhi High Court in Mohd. Feroz alias Bhola Vs. State, (LAWS) (DLH) 2005-3-106, after referring to section 12 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, has held as under:

"The aforesaid Section makes it mandatory for a person to be released if such person is apparently a juvenile unless of course, there are reasonable ground for believing that the release of such person is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice. No such fears have been raised on the part of the prosecution. The learned counsel for the State, however, submitted that the petitioner is accused of directly committing the murder of the deceased by use of a knife and he should be shown no mercy. This is not a question of mercy. The provision is mandatory and stipulates that such a person who is apparently a juvenile "shall" be released on bail notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure. 1973 or in any other law for the time being in force subject only to the condition mentioned above in respect of which no fears have been raised by the prosecution."

12. In Master Niku Chaubey Vs. State, 2006 (2) JCC 720; Delhi High Court held that the nature of the offence is not a consideration for grant of bail, to the juvenile. The only considerations are those spelt out by Section 12, which requires bail to be granted unless the court feels that the release of the juvenile is likely to bring him into association of any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice. It has been also held that seriousness of the allegations or gravity of the charges are not relevant in the case of a juvenile accused's request for bail.

13. In the case of Vijendra Kumar Mali v State of U.P. 2003 (1) JIC 103 this Court has held as under:

"This Court in a number of judgments has categorically held that bail to the juvenile can only be refused if anyone of the grounds existed. So far as the ground of gravity is concerned, it is not covered under the above provisions of the Act. If the bail application of the juvenile was to be considered under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, there would have been absolutely no necessity for the enactment of the aforesaid Act. The language of Section 12 of the Act itself lays down that notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law for the time being in force, the juvenile accused shall be released. Not only this, the Parliament re-considered the entire matter and repealed the old Act of 1986 by introduced the new Act No. 56 of 2000, raising the age from 16 to 18 years. This has been done keeping in view the welfare of the child so that even after committing an offence a child may not become a hardened criminal but he may reform himself."

14. This Court in the case of Amit Kumar Vs. State of UP, 2010 (71) ACC 209 (Alld) has expressed the similar view and has granted bail to the juvenile offender in heinous offence and held that seriousness of offence is no ground to reject the bail to a juvenile.

15. In this case, there is nothing either on record or in the report of the Probation Officer that after the release the revisionist would come in association with any known criminal or his release would expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger. In the post-mortem report of the two deceased, the cause of death were shock and hemorrhage as a result of gun shot injuries which were assigned to be caused by co-accused Gian Chandra Pandey, father of juvenile. The role assigned to the juvenile is only to cause incised wounds to the injured as well as to the deceased which was not opined as fatal. It is definitely not an aggravating factor which shows the depraved and perverse mind set, as such this court is of the opinion that granting bail to such juvenile would not defeat the end of justice.

16. Taking in view the entire spectrum of facts and circumstances, materials available on record and legal position, I do not find any error or illegality in the impugned order dated 5.5.2015 passed by the Sessions Judge, Mirzapur and as such the impugned order is liable to be confirmed.

17. Accordingly, the revision is dismissed. The interim order, if any, is vacated. There is no order for cost.

THE HON'BLE ARVIND KUMAR MISHRA-I, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 2511 Of 2005

Manoj Alias Munna Patel ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Manish Tiwary, A.K. Awasthi, Rang Nath Pandey (A.C), Sunil Kumar Yadav,

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate, Arvind Kumar,

This criminal appeal has been filed by the appellant Manoj @ Munna Patel against the judgment dated 21.04.2005 and order dated 25.04.2005 passed by Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Varanasi in S.T. No. 444 of 2004 convicting the appellant under Sections 302 and 323 IPC and sentencing him to imprisonment for life and a fine of Rs. 50,000/- under Section 302 IPC and one year rigorious imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1,000/- under Section 323 IPC and in default of payment of fine awarded under both the counts three years additional rigorous imprisonment. The Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3 Varanasi directed that both the sentences shall run concurrently and the amount of fine deposited by the appellant shall be paid to the heirs of the deceased as compensation.

Briefly stated, the facts of this case are that on the basis of written report (Ex. Ka-1) given by PW-1 Prem Chandra Patel, son of Ram Lal Patel, r/o Ramna at P.S. Lanka, District Varanasi on 07.02.2004 at about 12.40 p.m., case crime no. 56 of 2004, under Sections 302/323 IPC was registered against the appellant. The complainant in his written complaint alleged that while he alongwith his father Ram Lal Patel brother Suresh Chandra Patel and Ghanshyam Singh, Gram Pradhan of the village was pulling out grass from the field of Chhotey Lal and their grand father Mani Ram Patel was sitting at some distance from them, his cousin brother Manoj @ Munna Patel suddenly appeared at the place of incident and wielded repeated blows with his spade on the neck of his grand father and immediately ran away from the place of incident. His grand father died instantaneously while running away from the place of incident, the accused Manoj @ Munna Patel also assaulted his younger brother Harish Chandra with spade causing injuries to him.

We have very carefully examined the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and scanned the entire lower court record. Appellant Manoj @ Munna Patel was tried by learned Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3 for having committed the murder of Maniram, the grand father of the complainant Prem Chandra Patel, PW-1.

In view of the foregoing discussion, the prosecution in our opinion has succeeded in proving the charges framed against the appellant beyond all shadows of reasonable doubt and that the trial court has not committed any illegality or infirmity in convicting and sentencing the appellant under Sections 302 and 323 IPC.

This appeal which is devoid of any merit is dismissed.

1. Heard Dr. C.P. Upadhyay, learned counsel for the appellant and A.N. Mulla, learned AGA for the State assisted by Sri Saghir Ahmad, learned AGA, J.K. Upadhyay, learned AGA, Sri Hasan Abidi and Sri Irfan Chaudhary, learned brief holders for the State.

2. This criminal appeal has been filed by the appellant Manoj @ Munna Patel against the judgment dated 21.04.2005 and order dated 25.04.2005 passed by Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Varanasi in S.T. No. 444 of 2004 convicting the appellant under Sections 302 and 323 IPC and sentencing him to imprisonment for life and a fine of Rs. 50,000/- under Section 302 IPC and one year rigorious imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1,000/- under Section 323 IPC and in default of payment of fine awarded under both the counts three years additional rigorous imprisonment. The Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3 Varanasi directed that both the sentences shall run concurrently and the amount of fine deposited by the appellant shall be paid to the heirs of the deceased as compensation.

3. Briefly stated, the facts of this case are that on the basis of written report (Ex. Ka-1) given by PW-1 Prem Chandra Patel, son of Ram Lal Patel, r/o Ramna at P.S. Lanka, District Varanasi on 07.02.2004 at about 12.40 p.m., case crime no. 56 of 2004, under Sections 302/323 IPC was registered against the appellant. The complainant in his written complaint alleged that while he alongwith his father Ram Lal Patel brother Suresh Chandra Patel and Ghanshyam Singh, Gram Pradhan of the village was pulling out grass from the field of Chhotey Lal and their grand father Mani Ram Patel was sitting at some distance from them, his cousin brother Manoj @ Munna Patel suddenly appeared at the place of incident and wielded repeated blows with his spade on the neck of his grand father and immediately ran away from the place of incident. His grand father died instantaneously while running away from the place of incident, the accused Manoj @ Munna Patel also assaulted his younger brother Harish Chandra with spade causing injuries to him. After the registeration of the FIR PW-6, SHO Ajit Singh Chauhan, P.S. Lakna himself assumed the investigation of the case and reached the place of incident and prepared site plan Ex.Ka-7 and other documents, namely, police form 13, police form no. 379, letter addressed to CMO Ex. Ka- 8, 9 and 10 respectively and got the inquest report Ex.Ka-2 prepared on his instructions. He also collected blood stained and plain earth from the place of incident and prepared its recovery memo Ex.Ka-4 and obtained the signatures of both the witnesses thereon and thereafter dispatched the cadevar of the deceased with constables Sitaram and Jai Singh for post mortem.

4. The post mortem of the dead body of the deceased was conducted on 07.02.2004 at about 4.30 p.m. at B.H.U. by PW-5 Dr. A.K. Pradhan, who prepared his post mortem report Ex.Ka-6. Injuries of Mani Ram Patel, brother of complainant were examined by Dr. Arvind Kumar on 07.02.2004 at about 4.30 p.m. at Shiv Prakash Gupta Hospital Varanasi. The Investigating Officer after completing the investigation of the case submitted charge sheet Ex. Ka-11 under Section 302/323 IPC against the accused before the C.J.M., Varanasi. Since the offences enumerated in the charge sheet were triable by the Court of Sessions, the C.J.M., Varanasi vide his order dated 28.06.2004 committed the case for the trial of the accused to the Court of Sessions where it was registered as S.T. No. 440 of 2004 and from there it was made over to the court of Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3 Varanasi. Charge was framed against the appellant under Section 302/323 IPC. The appellant pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

5. The prosecution in order to prove its case examined PW-1 Prem Chandra Patel, PW-2 Suresh Chandra Patel, PW-3 Ghanshyam Patel, as eye witnesses of the incident and formal witnesses PW-4 Rajesh Kumar Singh, PW-5 Dr. A.K.Pradhan, PW-6 Ajit Singh Chauhan and PW-7 Constable Bhadai Ram. In his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. the appellant denied the entire prosecution case and further stated that families of the appellant and the complainant Harish Chandra and deceased Mani Ram were residing in the same house. The place of incident was at a distance of about one km. from their house in Village Narottampur. The parties were litigating before the Consolidation Authorities since 1993 and the appellant being the only earning member in his family, he was falsely implicated in the present case by the complainant with the sole object of breaking the back bone of the appellant's family financially. The appellant neither examined any defense witnesses nor filed any documentary evidence on record.

6. Learned Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Varanasi after considering the submissions made by him by learned counsel for the parties and scrutinizing the evidence on record convicted the appellant under Section 302/323 IPC and awarded him the aforesaid sentences.

7. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that considering the distance between the place of incident and the promptness with which FIR of the occurrence appears to have been lodged by PW-1, unequivocally indicates that the incident had taken much before the time shown in the FIR and none had seen the same and the FIR was lodged when the dead body of the deceased was found, after due deliberations and consultation on the advise of the police personnel falsely implicating the appellants and the same is apparently ante timed. He next submitted that in view of the irreconcilable contradictions and inconsistencies in the testimonies of the three eye witnesses of the occurrence examined on behalf of the prosecution with regard to the manner in which the deceased had been assaulted and the medical evidence on record which does not corroborate the prosecution version vis a vis the manner of assault, the appellants conviction on the basis of the evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 is not justified at all. According to PW-5 Dr. A.K.Pradhan who had conducted the post mortem of the dead body of the deceased, the injuries found on the dead body of the deceased could have been caused by a sharp cutting weapon alone and spade not being a sharp cutting weapon and the prosecution also having also failed to produce the injured witness Harish Chandra who would have been the star witness of the occurrence and to lead any cogent evidence for proving that the blood stained spade which was recovered from the place of incident was used in committing the murder of the deceased, it cannot be said that the prosecution has proved its case against the appellant beyond all reasonable doubt and hence the conviction of the appellant recorded by the trial court and the sentence awarded to him cannot be sustained and are liable to be set aside.

8. Per contra Sri Sagir Ahmad, learned AGA submitted that the prosecution case stands fully proved from the evidence of PW-1 Prem Chandra Patel, PW-2 Harish Chandra Pate and PW-3 Ghanshyam Patel l who were present on the spot at the time of occurrence had witnessed the incident. The finding of guilt recorded by trial court is based upon cogent evidece and sentence awarded to the accused appellant is supported by relevant considerations and the impugned judgment which does not suffer from any infirmity, perversity or illegality does not require any interference by this Court. Thus this appeal which lacks merit is liable to be dismissed.

9. We have very carefully examined the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and scanned the entire lower court record. Appellant Manoj @ Munna Patel was tried by learned Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.3 for having committed the murder of Maniram, the grand father of the complainant Prem Chandra Patel, PW-1.

10. The only question which arises for consideration before us is that whether the prosecution has been able to prove its case against the appellant beyond all reasonable doubts or not.

11. In order to ascertain whether the prosecution has been successfull in proving its case beyond all shadows of reasonable doubts or not, the court has to examine the following issues :-

(I) FIR :- Whether the FIR is ante timed.

(II) Time of occurrence :- Whether the time coincides with medical evidence.

(III) Place of occurrence.

(IV) Manner of occurrence.

(V) Motive:- Whether the motive or the guiding force behind the occurrence was of such a strong character so as to pursuade to commits such heinous offence like murder in the case.

(VI) Credibility of witnesses.

12. Now we proceed to test the facts of the present case and the evidence on record on the touch stone of the aforesaid issues:-

(I) FIR - The first issue relates to credibility of the FIR. So far as the credibility of the FIR in this case is concerned, learned counsel for the appellant has questioned its reliability by inviting our attention to the time of occurrence mentioned in the FIR and the distance between the place of incident and the police station and the time at which the FIR was registered. The occurrence in this case is alleged to have taken place at 11.30 p.m. on 07.02.2004 in the field of one Chhotey Lal in village Narrottampur, District Varanasi. The written complaint of the incident Ex. Ka-1 was scribed by PW-1 complainant Prem Chandra Patel himself and given at P.S. Lanka which is admittedly at a distant of 5 kms. from the place of incident, on the same date at 12.40 p.m.

13. Advancing his arguments in this regard further learned counsel for the appellant learned counsel for the appellant invited our attention to the examination in chief of PW-1 Prem Chandra Patel in which he has deposed that the written report of the incident was scribed by PW-1 himself and given at the police Station by him where he had gone along with Harish Chandra, younger brother of his grand father. Learned counsel for the appellant next referred to the cross examination of PW-1 (pages nos. 12 and 13 of the paper book) in which he had stated that after the incident he along with the other persons present on the spot had chased the accused for about 25-30 feet and then returned back to the place where the dead body of Mani Ram was lying on the ground. He had stayed at the place of incident for about half an hour and thereafter he had gone to his house with Harish Chandra and remained there for about 10-15 minutes during which period he had scribed the written report himself and thereafter he had gone to P.S. Lanka along with Harish Chandra ona Scooter, registeration number whereof was UP65 N0537 and he had reached the police station Lanka at between 12.40 p.m.-1.00 p.m. where he had met a police officer. He had remained at the police station for 20-25 minutes and thereafter he had returned back to his house leaving behind Harish Chandra at the police station.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant also took us through the cross examinations of PW-3 Ghanshyam Patel (page 23 and 24 of the paper book) in which he has stated that he had put his signature on the inquest report at 1.00 p.m.. The Investigating Officer of this case Ajit Singh Chauhan had arrived at the crime scene at about 12.00 noon and the entire proceeding was completed by 2.00- 230 p.m.

15. However we are unable to agree with the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that the FIR in this case is ante timed on the basis of the submissions made by him.

16. Time of his arrival at the P.S. stated by PW-1 in his examination in chief is not the exact time but estimated and variation of few minutes on either side is quite natural and justifiable. The FIR cannot be termed as ante-time simply because PW-3 has deposed in his cross examination that the I.O. of the case had arrived at the place of incident at about 12 noon and PW-3 had signed the inquest report at about 1.00 p.m. and entire paper work on the spot was completed by 2.00-2.30 p.m. for the simple reason that on page 23 of paper book, PW-3 in his cross examination has categorically stated that he did not remember the time at which he had signed the inquest report. Thus the time of his signing the inquest report, arrival of the Investigating Officer at the place of incident and the time taken by the police in completing the necessary paper work on the spot as stated by PW-3, in his cross examination is the estimated time and not exact and accurate. According to the evidence of PW-3 the entire proceeding on the spot was completed by 2-2.30 p.m.. From the perusal of the inquest report Ex. Ka-2 it follows that the inquest had begun at 2.00 p.m. and the entire proceeding was completed at 3.20 p.m., hence there is no material discrepancy with regard to the time at which PW-1 had reached the police station and the time during which necessary paper work on the spot was completed by the police in the testimonies of PW-1 and PW-2. The discrepancies in the depositions of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellant appear to be normal discrepancies. The discrepancies are due to normal error of observation and normal errors of memoray due to lapse of time and not material discrepancies.

17. The fact that written report of the incident Ex. Ka-1 was given by PW-1 at P.S. Lanka on 07.02.2004 is proved from the testimony of PW-4 Rajesh Kumar who has deposed before the trial court that on the basis of the written compliant given by PW-1 Prem Chandra Patel, chick FIR-Ex.Ka-5 was prepared by him at Chick No. 31 of 2004 and registered as case crime no. 56 of 2004 under Sections 302 and 323 IPC.

18. More over there is evidence of PW-7 Constable 1138 Bhadai Ram who had deposed before the trial court that on the date of the incident he was posted at P.S. Lanka and he had prepared the necessary G.D.entry vide Rapat No. 36 on 07.02.2004 at about 12.40 p.m. and proved the same as Ex. Ka-12. Thus in view of the evidence of PW-4 Rajesh Kumar and PW-7 Bhadai Ram, we are afraid that we cannot accept the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that the FIR in this case is ante time.

19. The issues relating to the time of occurrence, place of occurrence, manner of occurrence, motive and credibility of witnesses are being taken up together.

20. Time of occurrence as mentioned in the FIR has been seriously disputed by the learned counsel for the appellant by submitting that the medical evidence on record does not corroborate the time of incident mentioned in the FIR.

21. According to the FIR the incident had taken place at about 12.30 p.m. on 07.02.2004. The post mortem of the dead body of the deceased was conducted by Dr. A.K.Pradhan on the same day at about 4.30 p.m.

"Cause of death according to the post mortem report Ex. Ka-6 is stated to be total decapicitation of head."

22. Learned counsel for the appellant has invited our attention to the cross examination of PW-5 Dr. A.K.Pradhan (page 27 of the paper book) in which he had stated that in order to fix the time of death, the presence rigor mortis and other documents forwarded to the doctor who conducts the post mortem are taken into consideration. During winter season rigor mortis sets in early on the dead body and remains present for a considerably longer period than during the summer season.

23. The deceased had died on 07.02.2004 during winter season. At the time of the post mortem, rigor mortis was present on the whole body of the deceased meaning thereby that rigor mortis had developed from the head of the deceased upto his heel. During winter season rigor mortis remains present for 18-24 hours and after death, it takes about 4-6 hours for the rigor mortis to set in, about 12 hours for the rigor mortis to develop from head to feet and it remains present for 18-24 hours.

24. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also invited our attention to the post mortem report of the deceased and submitted that according to the post mortem report about 500 gms. undigested food (bread and rice) was found in the stomach of the deceased which total falsifies the time of the incident mentioned in the FIR. He then referred to the cross examination of PW-5 in which he had opined that it was possible that the deceased had died on 06.02.2004 between 9.10 p.m. and the food contents found in the stomach of the deceased may have been consumed by him four hours before.

25. Relying upon the cross examination of PW-5, learned counsel for the appellant has stated that the post mortem of the deceased was conducted on 07.02.2004 at about 4.40 p.m. and at the time of the post mortem rigor mortis had developed over whole of the body of the deceased and considering the fact that, even if it is assumed that the rigor mortis had set in after four hours of the occurrence, as the incident in question had taken place during winter it must have taken at least about eight hours for the rigor mortis to set in over the whole body of the deceased coupled with the presence of 500 gms. of undigested food in the deceased's stomach, then the time of incident mentioned in the FIR stands totally belied as in view of the medical evidence of the deceased could not have died after 2.40 a.m.

26. We however are not unable to agree with the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant, in view of the setted legal position that in case of conflict between the ocular testimony and medical evidence, it is the ocular evidence which will prevail unless it is proved that the ocular testimony is unreliable, untrustworthy and uncredible which does not appear to be so in the present case. The doctor had noted three identifiable ante mortem injuries on the dead body of the deceased together complete decapitation of head (three separateed injuries iidentifiable)". All the three eye witnesses have stated in their evidence in unison that the accused had weilded three blows on the deceased. More over PW-5 Dr. A.K.Pradhan has categorically stated on page -2 of his examination in chief that it was possible that the deceased had died on 07.02.2004 at about 11.30 a.m. due to the injuries inflicted on his neck which further could have been caused by an assault made by spade and the injuries so inflicted upon the deceased were sufficient to cause instantaneous death. Thus we do not find inany material in consistencies or discrepancies between the eye witness account of the incident and the medical evidence on record with regard to the time of occurrenc mentioned in the FIR.

27. Learned counsel for the appellant has not made any submissions challenging the correctness of the place of incident as disclosed in the FIR and in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses, hence we find that the prosecution has fully succeeded in proving that the occurrence had taken place in the field of Chhotey in village Narrottampur.

28. So far as the issue relating to the manner of occurrence is concerned, learned counsel for the appellant has stated that there are glaring inconsistencies and contradictions in the testimonies of the three eye witnesses of the occurrence with regard to the manner in which the deceased had been allegedly assaulted by appellant and that the injuries found on the dead body of the deceased could not have been caused by the blood stained axe which was allegedly recovered from the place of the incident.

29. In order to examine the aforesaid challenge we will have to delve into the evidence of the three eye witnesses, namely, PW-1 Prem Chandra Patel, PW-2 Suresh Chandra Patel and PW-3 Ghanshyam Patel on the point of manner of assault. PW-1 Prem Chandra Patel has stated that while his father Ram Lal Patel, his brother Suresh Chandra Patel and Ghanshyam Singh, Pradhan of the village were pulling out grass from the field of one Chhotey Lal at some distance from the place where Maniram his grand father was standing, the appellant Manoj Patel his cousin brother, suddenly appeared at the place of occurrence with a spade in his hand and wielded repeated blows on the neck of his grand father with the intention of causing his death and thereafter ran away from the place of incident leaving behind the spade. On page-12 of his cross examination, PW-1 stated that the appellant had struck the first blow at the deceased from behind on his neck causing injury on his neck. After receiving the first blow Maniram had fallen on the ground and while he was lying with his back on the ground, the appelalnt had then wielded two more blows to the deceased and in all he had struck the deceased thrice.

30. PW-2 Suresh Chandra Patel stated more or less the same facts in his examination in chief which were stated by PW-1 in his examination in chief, PW-2, however, he in his cross examination (page-17 of the paper book) deposed that when the appellant reached near Maniram he was cutting grass with his face towards the west. On reaching near Maniram the appellant uttered something to him, which he could not hear as the face of the Maniram was not visible to him and he was further not in a position to state whether the deceased had replied to the appellant or not. Although initially Maniram was standing with his face towards west, but when the appellant addressed him, he turned his face towards the appellant and at that point of time the appellant struck a blow with his spade on the neck of the deceased. At the time of the assault the distance between the appellant and the Maniram was about one foot. He further deposed that he had seen the appellant wielding the first blow on the deceased and thereafter he pushed him as a result he fell on the ground on his back then the appellant assaulted him again with his spade. The appellant had wielded three blows and all the three blows were struck while Maniram was lying on the ground. He further stated that when the appellant pushed Maniram he fell on the ground. Deceased Maniram was neither squating on the ground nor cutting grass. Similarly PW-3 Ghanshyam though corroborated the prosecution case as spelt out in the FIR in his examination in chief but he in his cross examination (page-23 of the paper book) deposed that at the first instance he had seen the appellant coming from the side of chak road and after noticing him he had resumed his work of cutting grass and when he saw the appellant next he was abusing Maniram and assaulting him. He had seen the appellant wielding three blows on the deceased. At the time when the appellant had assaulted the deceased Maniram, he was sitting and the first blow was wielded by the appellant with his spade on the deceased from behind on his back, whereafter he had fallen on the ground with his back against his ground. The second and third blows were wielded by him on the neck of the Maniram, while he was lying on the ground with his face towards sky. Thus the contradictions pointed out by the learned counsel for the appelant in the testimonies of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 with regard to the manner of assault are that while according to PW-1 the first blow was struck by the appellant on the neck of the deceased from behind where after the deceased fell and lay with his back against the ground and the remaining two blows were struck to him by the appellant thereafter but according to the PW-2, the first blow was wielded by the appellant to the deceased while he was facing him and thereafter the appellant had forcibly made the deceased lie on the ground and struck three blows on him in that position. According to PW-1 at the time of the assault, the deceased was standing on the ground while according to the PW-2 the assault was made while the deceased was sitting on the ground and cutting the grass. On the other hand PW-3 deposed that the first blow was wielded by the appellant from behind while the deceased Maniram was sitting causing injury on his back side whereafter he had fallen and while he was lying with his back on the ground the appellant had stuck two more blows on his neck from the front.

31. PW-5 Dr. A.K.Pradhan who had conducted the post mortem of the dead body of the deceased found follwing injuries on the dead body.

"Ante mortem injury- Complete decapitation of head at lvel of C2, C3 and C5 with multiple time sharp weapon (unilateral number of three) injuries ligated with minor skin tag positionally (three separateed injuries iidentifiable)". He in his cross examination stated that none of the injuries found on the dead body of the deceased could have been caused if the blows were wielded to the deceased in a sitting position. He further stated that the head of the deceased was attached with the body of the deceased by a shred of skin in the back of the neck. The deceased had not been wielded any blow from behind. Thus on the basis of the aforesaid contradictions in the evidence of the three eye witnesses PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 with regard to the manner in which the deceased was assaulted and the firm opinion of the doctor who had conducted the post mortem of the dead body of the deceased PW-5 Dr. A.K.Pradhan that none of the injuries were found on the dead body of the deceased could have been caused either from behind or while the deceased was sitting. Learned counsel for the appellant strenously urged that it was extremely doubtful that PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 had seen the occurrence.

32. We are however, unable to agree with the contention of learned counsel for the appellant, the contradictions pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellant in the evidence of the three eye witnesses with regard to the manner in which he was assaulted are minor contradiction and the same do not effect the core of the prosecution case. All the three eye witnesses have stated in unison that the deceased was assaulted by the appellant thrice with a spade while he was cutting grass in the field of chhotey at about 11.30 p.m. on 07.02.2004, we do not find any reason to disbelieve their evidence which appears to be unimpeachable, worthy of credit and wholly reliable and canot be discarded, in view of the opinion of PW-5, Dr. A.K.Pradhan.

33. The three witnesses of fact examined on behalf of the prosecution, namely, PW-1 Prem Chandra, PW-2 Suresh Paten and PW-3 Ghanshyam Patel have corroborated the prosecution case as spelt out in the FIR on all material aspects. Although there is little discrepancy in their evidence with regard to the position of the deceased at the time he was assaulted by the appellant, whether the appellant assaulted him in a standing position or when he fell down on the ground or whether the first blow was struck from behind or while the deceased was standing in front of the accused, however in our opinion this is minor discrepancies and it does not erode otherwise reliable case of the prosecution based on the testimony of the eye witnesses. The evidence of the three eye witnesses is substantive in nature while the evidence of Dr. A.K.Pradhan, PW-5 has corroborative value alone and the eye witness account which fully supports the prosecution case as spelt out in the FIR which was lodged promptly, cannot be disbelieved by relying upon medical evidence.

34. As far as the motive for the appellant to commit the murder of deceased is concerned, PW-1 in his examination in chief has categorically deposed that the appellant had became inemical towards his deceased Maniram, his grand father after he had won the case between the parties in respect of agricultural property situate in village Narrotampur Khurd from the court of Deputy Director of Consolidation. Pendency of litigation between the parties is admitted to the defense also. Thus it cannot be said that the appellant had no motive to commit the murder of the deceased.

35. Even if the prosecution failed to prove the motive for committing the crime the same will not be of any help to the appellant as it is settled law that in a case of direct evidence motive has little relevance and the entire prosecution case cannot be discarded, even if the prosecution fails to establish motive beyond doubt. There is no doubt that in case of direct evidence, the prosecution is not obliged to prove the motive but the qualitiy of the evidence must be such so as to inspire confidence. In the present case, the three eye witnesses have fully proved that Maniram was assaulted by the appellant with spade in broad day light and that he had weilded three blows on the deceased with his spade and caused his instantaneous death.

36. Credibility of the witnesses has been assailed by learned cousnel for the appellant on the ground that of the three eye witnesses PW-1 and PW-1 who are grand son and brother of the deceased are highly interested and partisan witnesses and as far as PW-3 Ghanshyam Patel is concerned, his presence at the place of incident is extremely doubtful as he is a chance witness and hence no reliance can be placed on the testimonies of PW-1, 2 and 3 for the purpose convicting the appellant. We do not find any substance in the aforesaid submissions on the learned counsel for the appellant in the presence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 at the place of incident appears to be quite natural. They are not chance witness. Merely because PW-1 and PW-2 are close relatives of the deceased, their testimony is not liable to be disbelieved. The aforesaid aspect has been examined by the Apex Court in several cases.

"35. On the point of interested witnesses, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of U.P. v. Jagdeo, 2003 Cri.L.J. 844 (S.C.) observed that only on the ground of interested or related witnesses, their evidence cannot be discarded. Most of the times eye witnesses happen to be family members or close associates because unless a crime is committed near a public place, strangers are not likely to be present at the time of occurrence.

36. In Mst. Dalbir Kaur v. State of Punjab, 1976 Cr.L.J. 418 (S.C.) following observations were made:-

(i) Interested witness:- Relatives who are natural witnesses are not interested witnesses and their testimony can be relied upon. The term 'interested' postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing that the accused is somehow or the other is convicted either because he had some animus with the accused or for some other reason. In the reported case the incident took place at mid night inside the house, the only natural witnesses who could be present to see the assault were the persons present in the house at that time. No outsider can be expected to have come at that time because the attack was sudden. Moreover a close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be regarded as an interested witness.

(ii) Witness gained over by accused not examined by the prosecution- held withholding or keeping back of witnesses is not unfair and adverse inference cannot be drawn. There is no duty on the prosecution to examine witnesses who might have been gained over by accused and even if those witnesses are not produced by the prosecution, there is nothing to stop accused from applying to the court for examining such witnesses.

(iii) witness who gives details with absolute accuracy is trustworthy.

38. Regarding evidentiary value of testimony of the interested or relatives witnesses, Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mano Dutt and another v. State of U.P. 2012 (77) ACC 209*, has observed in paragraph no.19 referring to the case of* Namdeo v. State of Maharashtra (2007) 14 SCC 150 that this Court drew a clear distinction between a chance witness and a natural witness. Both these witnesses have to be relied upon subject to their evidence being trustworthy and admissible in accordance with law.

40. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Waman and others v. State of Maharashtra 2011 Crl.L.J. 4827 has observed in paragraph no.9 which reads as follows:

"In Balraje @ Trimbak v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 6 SCC 673; (2010 AIR SCW 3707), this Court held that mere fact that the witnesses were related to the deceased cannot be a ground to discard their evidence. It was further held that when the eye-witnesses are stated to be interested and inimically disposed towards the accused, it has to be noted that it would not be proper to conclude that they would shield the real culprit and rope in innocent persons. The truth or otherwise of the evidence has to be weighed pragmatically and the court would be required to analyse the evidence of related witnesses and those witnesses who are inimically disposed toward the accused. After saying so, this Court held that if after careful analysis and scrutiny of their evidence, the version given by the witnesses appears to be clear, cogent and credible, there is no reason to discard the same."

41. It has been further observed in Waman (supra) that relationship cannot be a factor to affect the credibility of a witness. The evidence of a witness cannot be discarded solely on the ground of his relationship with the victim of the offence. The plea relating to relatives' evidence remains without any substance in case the evidence has credence and it can be relied upon. In such a case the defence has to lay foundation if plea of false implication is made and the court has to analyse evidence of related witnesses carefully to find out whether it is cogent and credible. The same view has been reiterated in State of U.P. v. Naresh and others (2011) 4 SCC 324*."*

37. We have very carefully scrutinized the statement of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 and we have noticed that despite being subjected to gruelling cross examination by the defense they have corroborated the prosecution case, on all the material particulars and the defense has not able to elicit anything from them which may even remotely create any doubt with regard to the veracity of the facts deposed by them. A suggestion was made by the defense that since appellant was the only earning member of his family and the parties are closely related to each other and litigating before the consolidation authorities, the appellant was falsely implicated in the present case by PW-1 with the object of breaking the financial back bone of the appellant's family as he was sole earning member in his family but we find that the defence has failed to substantiate the aforesaid aspect of the matter.

38. It has also been argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that the failure of the prosecution to produce the injured witness Harish Chandra who would have been the best witness to give a correct and accurate account of the occurrence leads only to one inference that if he was produced he would not have supported the prosecution case as spelt out in the FIR and to nominate the appellant as accused. In our opinion the prosecution case stands fully proved from the evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 whose presence at the place of occurrence at the time of incident cannot be doubted. Mere omission on the part of the prosecution to examine the injured witness, in our opinion will not effect the core of the prosecution case rendering it unreliable, in view of the observations made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Mst. Dalbir Kaur Kaur (supra) which we have already noted herein above.

39. We also do not find any reason why the complainant PW-1 will falsely implicate the appellant in the murder of his grand father and in the process allow the real culprit to go escort free and to disbelieve the evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 which is unimpeachable and inspires confidence.

40. In view of the foregoing discussion, the prosecution in our opinion has succeeded in proving the charges framed against the appellant beyond all shadows of reasonable doubt and that the trial court has not committed any illegality or infirmity in convicting and sentencing the appellant under Sections 302 and 323 IPC.

41. This appeal which is devoid of any merit is dismissed.

42. There shall however be no order as to costs.

Criminal Appeal No.- 3206 Of 1982

Drigpal & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
K.P. Shukla, A.K. Dwivedi, Ram Kishor Gupta

Counsel for the Respondent:
D.G.A.

Under assail in this criminal appeal is the judgment and order dated 7.12.1982 passed by Sessions Judge, Hamirpur in Sessions Trial No.218 of 1981 (State Vs. Drigpal Singh & others) u/s 148, 302/149 IPC, P. S. Kharela, District-Hamirpur whereby accused-appellants have been convicted u/s 148 and 302/149 IPC and sentenced each of them to 2 years R. I. For the offence u/s 148 IPC and imprisonment for life to each of them for the offence u/s 302/149 IPC. Both the sentences were ordered to run concurrently. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid judgment and order, the instant appeal is before this Court.

According to the prosecution, Shivnath Singh and Mulayam Singh were real brothers and they were living separately in their own houses. About five year ago, one Dharam Singh was murdered in which Raja Bhaiyya was challaned and subsequently, he was convicted and is languishing in jail undergoing the sentence. The widow of Dharam Singh is grief stricken and is living in her own house. Her devar Drigpal Singh in order to take revenge of the murder of his brother and to satisfy his sister-in-law (bhabhi) was trying to commit the murder. Informant Tej Singh had purchased a cow and visited the place of the deceased Mardan Singh to make the payment of balance amount of the cow along with one Balkishun Bhurji. He was informed that Mardan Singh had gone to enjoy the fair and his younger brother had gone on his routine labour work. The informant Tej Singh stayed at the house of deceased. The mother of deceased and his younger brother and sister came out of the house. Mardan Singh directed the informant to make the payment to his mother.

At about 2 pm he saw that Drigpal Singh equipped with gun, Maiku equipped with farsa and one other accused equipped with farsa and two other accused persons equipped with ballam came in front of the house of deceased Mardan. At that time Mardan was sitting on an earthen wall, he rose from the wall and raised alarm. In the meantime, Drigpal discharged a fire shot at him and on his exhortation other accused persons, started assault. While accused Drigpal Singh discharged the second fire shot, deceased Mardan Singh fell down. Other accused persons assaulted him with farsa and ballam.

On the basis of aforesaid discussions, we are of the opinion that the findings of conviction recorded by the learned Court below are well founded on the materials available on record and no error has been commited by the learned Court below in appreciating the evidence and in recording the findings of conviction against the accused-appellants. There apepars no justification to interfere with the findings of conviction recorded by the learned Court below.

In view of aforesaid reasons, the judgment and order dated 7.12.1982 passed by the learned Court below convicting and sentencing the accused persons-appellants as mentioned above, is hereby affirmed.

This appeal is bereft of merits and is, accordingly, dismissed.

1. Heard Sri K. P. Shukla and Sri A. K. Dwivedi, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Chandrajeet Yadav, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State of U. P.

2. Under assail in this criminal appeal is the judgment and order dated 7.12.1982 passed by Sessions Judge, Hamirpur in Sessions Trial No.218 of 1981 (State Vs. Drigpal Singh & others) u/s 148, 302/149 IPC, P. S. Kharela, District-Hamirpur whereby accused-appellants have been convicted u/s 148 and 302/149 IPC and sentenced each of them to 2 years R. I. for the offence u/s 148 IPC and imprisonment for life to each of them for the offence u/s 302/149 IPC. Both the sentences were ordered to run concurrently. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid judgment and order, the instant appeal is before this Court.

3. Vide order dated 8.5.2012 the appeal filed on behalf of appellant Gyasi @ Gayadin has been abated due to his death.

4. Briefly stated the prosecution story is as following :-

According to the prosecution, Shivnath Singh and Mulayam Singh were real brothers and they were living separately in their own houses. About five year ago, one Dharam Singh was murdered in which Raja Bhaiyya was challaned and subsequently, he was convicted and is languishing in jail undergoing the sentence. The widow of Dharam Singh is grief stricken and is living in her own house. Her devar Drigpal Singh in order to take revenge of the murder of his brother and to satisfy his sister-in-law (bhabhi) was trying to commit the murder. Informant Tej Singh had purchased a cow and visited the place of the deceased Mardan Singh to make the payment of balance amount of the cow along with one Balkishun Bhurji. He was informed that Mardan Singh had gone to enjoy the fair and his younger brother had gone on his routine labour work. The informant Tej Singh stayed at the house of deceased. The mother of deceased and his younger brother and sister came out of the house. Mardan Singh directed the informant to make the payment to his mother.

At about 2 pm he saw that Drigpal Singh equipped with gun, Maiku equipped with farsa and one other accused equipped with farsa and two other accused persons equipped with ballam came in front of the house of deceased Mardan. At that time Mardan was sitting on an earthen wall, he rose from the wall and raised alarm. In the meantime, Drigpal discharged a fire shot at him and on his exhortation other accused persons, started assault. While accused Drigpal Singh discharged the second fire shot, deceased Mardan Singh fell down. Other accused persons assaulted him with farsa and ballam. The family members of deceased raised alarm but none came to their rescue. Accused-appellant Drigpal Singh continously extended threat of life with warning that if anyone would come to rescue then he would have to loose his life.

Accused persons left the place saying that deceased Hari Singh is to be murdered. Hari Singh was working on a 'bandha' as labour. The informant and family members of deceased also followed the accused persons secretly to the place where Hari Singh was working as a labour. At 2.30 pm Hari Singh was surrounded and was murdered by the accused persons. Thereafter the accused persons along with others left the place. Accused Gyasi, Maiku were equipped with farsa and Prahlad and Govind Singh were equipped with ballam and Drigpal Singh was equipped with gun.

5. After registration of FIR, the investigation proceeded in accordance with law.

6.The inquest report of deceased Mardan Singh and Hari Singh was prepared. After documentation the corpuses of deceased were sent for autopsy in a sealed condition. The recovery memo of empty cartridge recovered from the spot and the blood stained soil and ordinary soil and a pair of shoes, lungi was prepared. The items recovered by the I. O. were sent to Government Chemical Analyst, who noted blood stains on the shirt of deceased Hari Singh. The report of Serologist is available on record. After collecting the material during the course of investigation the police report u/s 173 (2) Cr. P. C. was filed in the shape of charge sheet.

7. After complying with the statutory legal procedure the case was committed to the Court of Sessions.

The trial Court after hearing both the sides and the material placed before it framed the charge. The accused persons have taken a defence that one Dharam Singh was murdered by Raja Bhaiyya and out of enmity Drigpal Singh and others have been falsely implicated and they are innocent.

8. In order to substantiate the allegations, the prosecution has examined Dr. G. D. Pandey as PW-1, who conducted autopsy on 19.1.1981 at about 2.30 pm upon the corpus of Hari Singh aged about 18 years and noted that rigor mortis had passed of from the upper limbs but was present on the lower limbs. Abdomen was slightly distended. The stomach contained 6 ozs. of semi digested food. Gases and faecal matters were found in large intestine.

Following ante mortem injuries on the person of Hari Singh were found :-

(ii) Incised wound 13 cm x 6 cm at middle of neck, starting from front going upto back on left, horizontally placed. Skin muscles, great vessels of neck, oesophagus, trachea and cervical vertebra from 4th to 6th in communicated fracture and cut.

(iii) Incised wound 11 cm x 3 cm in left supraclavicular fossa upside down depth upto muscles.

(iv) Stab wound 5 cm x 1 cm x 4 ½ cm in left border of sternum at upper end, direction downwards and towards right above ribs and below sc tissues.

(v) Incised wound 10 cm x 9 cm x bone deep in right shoulder joint, fracture of right humerous at neck.

(vi) Multiple gun shot wounds of entry in back at thorasic region covering 10 cm x 8 cm area x muscle deep, size varying from 1 cm x 1 cm to ½ cm x ½ cm, margins black.

(vii) Abrasion 6 cm x 3 cm in right great trochanter.

Injury no.(i), (ii), (iii) and (v) might have been caused by a weapon like pharsa, injury no.(iv) by weapon like ballam, injury no.(vi) by a fire arm and injury no.(vii) by friction against some hard object. PW-1 has mentioned the cause of death of deceased Hari Singh due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante mortem injuries. He has further opined that the ante mortem injuries were sufficient to cause death of deceased in ordinary course of nature. He has proved the autopsy report as Ext Ka 1.

At about 3.30 pm on the same day, he conducted post mortem examination on the dead body of deceased Mardan Singh, aged about 22 years and noted that rigor mortis had passed on from the upper limbs but was present on the lower limbs and the abdomen was slightly distended. The stomach contained about 8 ozs of semi digested food and the large intestine contained gases and faecal matter.

Following ante mortem injuries on the body of Mardan Singh were noted:-

(i) Gun shot wound of entry 5 cm x 3 cm in centre of right shoulder blade. Margins lacerated and blackened. Wounds traverses, shoulder blade intercostal musculature fracturing underneath ribs, pleura, lung and finally coming out of anterior chest wall leading to three wounds of exit at right side of chest one at 2 cm left to right nipple (2 ½ cm x 1 cm) and two in 4th to 6th intercostal space in anterior axillary line each measuring 1 cm x ½ cm lying 3 ½ cm apart. Four pellets recovered from anterior chest wall were sealed. Plenty of black material seen in pathway. Fracture of 4 th rib in anterior chest wall.

(ii) Multiple gun shot wounds muscle deep in area 30 cm x 23 cm in back with abrasion measuring from 1 cm x 1 cm to ½ cm x ½ cm, margins blackened. No wound of exit.

(iii) Gun shot wound 2 cm x 1 cm x muscle deep, margins black in centre of right upper arm. No exit wound outer aspect.

(iv) Gun shot wound 1 ½ cm x 1 cm x muscle deep in right upper arm, below deltoid at middle. No exit.

(v) Incised wound 4 cm x 3 cm x bone deep in right fore arm inner aspect, anterior and above wrist joint.

(vi) Incised wound 13 cm x 3 cm x bone deep in left iliac crest.

(vii) Incised wound 13 cm x 3 cm x bone deep in right knee joint, outer aspect.

(viii) Incised wound 8 cm x 2 ½ cm x bone deep in right temporal region, underlying bone having depressed fracture. Clots over membranes seen.

(ix) Incised wound 14 cm x 10 cm in left side of neck. Skin muscles, great vessels of neck, trachea, oesophagus and cervical vertebrae from 3rd to 6th crushed and cut.

(x) Incised wound 5 cm x 2 cm x bone deep, horizontal above left ear.

(xi) Incised wound 6 cm x 3 cm x bone deep, left shoulder, front to back over acromian process.

(xii) Incised wound 1 cm x ½ cm x muscle deep in left calf outer aspect below knee joint

Injury no.(i), (ii), (iii) and (iv) were caused by some fire arm and injury no.(v), (vi), (vii), (viii), (ix), (x), (xi) and (xii) by some sharp edged weapon, which may be even pharsa. PW-1 has mentioned the cause of death of deceased Mardan Singh due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante mortem injuries. He has further opined that the ante mortem injuries were sufficient to cause death of deceased in ordinary course of nature. He has proved the execution of post mortem examination report as Ext Ka 2.

9. The prosecution has further examined PW-2 Tej Singh (informant), PW-3 Bal Kishan, PW-4 Vinod, PW-5 Phoola Rani (widow of Mulayam Singh), PW-6 S. I. Satya Narayain Singh, PW -7 I. O. Ram Acchaibar.

10. PW- 2 to PW-5 are the witnesses of fact.

11. PW-6, who is a police officer, has proved the execution of Chik FIR and relevant entries in the G. D. and has conducted the investigation, examined the witnesses and filed charge sheet against the acccused persons Drigpal, Maiku and Gyasi @ Gayadin and submited final report against Prahlad and Govind.

12. PW-7 Ram Acchaibar has conducted the inquest proceedings and after due documentation sealed the dead body of deceased persons for post mortem examination and proved the execution of documents.

13. C. W. Om Prakash Dubey, a police official has been examined as a Court witness, who has proved the execution of one N. C. R. u/s 498 IPC lodged against the deceased Mardan Singh. PW-6 & 7 are the formal witnesses. Their testimonies is confined to their roles during the course of investigation. The prosecution has closed the prosecution evidence.

14. After closure of prosecution evidence, all the incriminating materials and all the circumstances appearing during the course of trial was placed before the accused persons-appellants by way of their examination u/s 313 Cr. P. C. and the accused-appellant Drigpal has stated the facts to be wrong and has stated that his brother was murdered. The prosecution was lodged, and out of the said enmity the witnesses have deposed against them.

15. Appellant Maiku has also denied the prosecution version saying it to be wrong and stated that he had deposed in the murder case of Dharam Singh against accused Raja Bhaiyya and out of enmity the witnesses have deposed against him. Accused-appellant Gyasi @ Gayadin has also denied the prosecution version and stated that out of enmity with the police the prosecution was lodged and the witnesses have deposed at the instance of police.

16. The accused-appellants have not examined anyone on oath before the Court in defence.

17. After scrutinizing and appreciating the evidence available on record, the learned Court below vide its judgment and order dated 7.12.1982 recorded the findings of conviction against accused-appellants, hence this appeal.

18. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for accused-appellant that the murder of Dharam Singh was committed by one Raja Bhaiyya out of said enmity the accused persons have been roped in for commission of murder of Mardan Singh and Hari Singh. Further contention is that the testimony of informant Tej Singh PW 2, the eye witness is not of worth reliance since he being a chance witness. He is favourite of police officials and has been a witness is many other cases on behalf of the police and he had deposed too, as such, his testimony as an independent witness is not reliable.

Further contention is that the testimony of PW 3 Bal Kishan has not been relied by the trial Court.

He is not an eye witness. Further submission is that PW 4 Vinod who is brother of deceased is a small child. A primary examination was conducted by the Court and his statement was recorded. For want of administration of oath his statement cannot be relied upon.

The next contention is that PW 5 Smt. Phoola Rani is the mother of deceased persons who is a highly interested and related witness. Her testimony has been assailed on the ground that after assault of Mardan Singh she did not take care to see the injured deceased Mardan Singh and followed the accused persons-appellants by hiding themselves from a different route to the place of incident where assault of Hari Singh was committed. After assault of Hari Singh she also did not take care to know whether Hari Singh was aliver or not.

Further contention is that the FIR was registered against deceased Mardan Singh for the offence u/s 498 IPC, which was lodged by one complainant Ram Krishna.

Further contention is that from the testimony of prosecution witnesses it is evident that accused persons namely Prahlad and Govind, who were assigned ballam have not participated in the assault whereas one of the ante mortem injury noted by the doctor on the person of deceased Hari Singh was in the nature of stab wound. The prosecution has not given any explanation with respect to the injury of stab wound. There is also no mention of assault of deceased Hari Singh in the FIR by fire arm.

Further contention is that if the accused Drigpal wanted to take revenge the murder of his brother, he could have safely implicated the deceased Mardan Singh and Hari Singh.

Further contention is that the I. O. has not conducted the investigation fairly. He has not even taken the dhoti and bangles in his custody from the room. Further submission is that the I. O. has not taken any steps for recovery of the weapon of assault.

Further contention is that the motive of false implication is clear because one of the appeallant Maiku had deposed against Raja Bhaiyya who has been convicted and is incarcerating in connection with the murder of Dharam Singh, who was brother of appellant Drigpal Singh.

Further contention is that both the deceased persons were womanizer and against one of the deceased a FIR was also lodged for the offence u/s 498 IPC.

Further contention is that the murder has been committed some times in the night by someone else and the accused persons have been falsely implicated on the pretext of enmity. Further contention is that the FIR is ante timed. The murder might have takenplace in the night and the FIR has been lodged showing the incident to be a broad day light.

19. Learned A. G. A. has submitted that it is an incident of broad day light murder. The case is based on direct evidence. There is coherence and consistency in the testimony of witnesses of fact, PW-2, PW-3, PW-4 and PW-5 with respect to date, time, place and manner of assault as well as by whom the assault has been committed. Further contention is that it is a case based on direct evidence hence, the motive is not of much significance. Further contention is that the incident has taken place on 17.1.1981 between 2 to 2.30 pm whereas the FIR of the incident had been lodged on the same day at 4.30 pm . Thus, the FIR is prompt.

In reply to the submission of defence, it has been submitted by the learned A. G. A. that since no adult male member was left hence the FIR of the crime was lodged by PW-2. Further contention is that PW-2 was related to the deceased and even if he be treated as a chance witness he has been put to a lengthy cross-examination for adjudging veracity of his testimony and the witness remained intact throughout his cross-examination. He being the eye witness cannot be discarded mere on the score of levelling him as a chance witness.

20. Further contention is that even if the PW 3 has not been relied upon by the trial Court it would not be an impediment for the Appellate Court to appreciate his testimony as per the established legal norms.

21. The mother of deceased PW 5 Phoola Rani's conduct has been assailed that she did not respond like mother. The argument of the defence cannot be sustained.

Further contention is that the factum of lodging of FIR against Mardan Singh u/s 498 IPC for argument sake is taken to be true it is not of any avail since the offence u/s 498 IPC being a non cognizable offence.

22. Further contention is that mere not taking of the bangles and dhoti into possession by the I. O. would not amount to defective investigation. Further contention is that no recovery of farsa has been made and the farsa of different shapes and sizes are prevalent in the society. In absence of the recovery of weapon of assault mere on the score of non explanation of the stab wound to deceased Hari Singh would not be sufficient ground to discard the entire prosecution version. Farsa of a particular shape may cause the injury in the nature of stab wound.

23. Further submission is that the accused-appellant Drigpal Singh was not even major at the time of murder of his brother. Moreso, deceased Mardan Singh and Hari Singh were also minors at the relevant time, therefore, the deceased were not implicated in the murder of Dharam Singh.

24. Further submission is that the child witness is not a tutored witness and is a reliable witness.

25. Hon'ble the Apex Court has been pleased to lay down the guidelines for High Court for exercising Appellate jurisdiction in criminal side while deciding criminal appeals from time to time. The Hon'ble Apex Court has propounded the following principles in Padam Singh Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2000 (1) SCC 621 which is quoted here :

"it is the duty of an appellate court to look into the evidence adduced in the case and arrive at an independent conclusion as to whether the said evidence can be relied upon or not and even if it can be relied upon, then whether the prosecution can be said to have been proved beyond reasonable doubt on the said evidence. The credibility of a witness has to be adjudged by the appellate court in drawing inference from proved and admitted facts. It must be remembered that the appellate court, like the trial court, has to be satisfied affirmatively that the prosecution case is substantially true and the guilt of the accused has been proved beyond all reasonable doubt as the presumption of innocence with which the accused starts, continues right through until he is held guilty by the final court of appeal and that presumption is neither strengthened by an acquittal nor weakened by a conviction in the trial court."

26. Further guidelines have been issued by the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Rama & others vs. State of Rajasthan reported in 2002 (4) SCC 571 which is as under:

"It is well settled that in a criminal appeal, a duty is enjoined upon the appellate court to reappraise the evidence itself and it cannot proceed to dispose of the appeal upon appraisal of evidence by the trial court alone especially when the appeal has been already admitted and placed for final hearing. Upholding such a procedure would amount to negation of valuable right of appeal of an accused, which cannot be permitted under law."

27. The guidelines have been issued by three Judges Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Majjal Vs. State of Haryana, 2013 (6) SCC 798 which is as under:

"It was necessary for the High Court to consider whether the trial court's assessment of the evidence and its opinion that the appellant must be convicted deserve to be confirmed. This exercise is necessary because the personal liberty of an accused is curtailed because of the conviction. The High Court must state its reasons why it is accepting the evidence on record. The High Court's concurrence with the trial court's view would be acceptable only if it is supported by reasons. In such appeals it is a court of first appeal. Reasons cannot be cryptic. By this, we do not mean that the High Court is expected to write an unduly long treatise. The judgment may be short but must reflect proper application of mind to vital evidence and important submissions which to to the root of the matter."

28. The aforesaid observations have been quoted by the Hon'ble Apex Court in a very recent judgment in the case of Kamlesh Prabhudas Tanna and Anr V. State of Gujarat reported in 2014 Cr.LJ 443.

29. Keeping in view the propositions cited above, the Court is to scrutinize the evidence available before it and to draw the inference accordingly, bearing in mind the presumption of innocence of accused unless otherwise is established from evidence available on record without being influenced by the findings of conviction recorded by learned trial court.

30. It has been contended on behalf of the appellants that the murder of Dharam Singh (i.e. the brother of appellant Drigpal Singh) was committed by Raja Bhaiyya in which the appellant Maiku was one of the witnesses and after the trial Raja Bhaiyya was convicted and sentenced and is presently languishing in jail. Because of aforesaid enmity, the accused-appellants have been falsely implicated. Even if, for argument sake the plea of false implication on the score of enmity is presumed, enmity is a double edged weapon. Out of enmity, the chances of false implication cannot be ruled out, but at the same time enmity may be an important factor for committing murder.

The evidence has been led to the effect that to satisfy her sister-in-law, who was grief stricken because of the murder of Dharam Singh, her husband, the offence is alleged to have been committed by the accused-appellants.

The plea of enmity taken by the appellant can be interpreted either way. Hence, the Court is expected to analyze the evidence carefully to draw an inference about the complicity of the accused-appellants without being swayed by the plea of enmity on the basis of the material available on record.

31. It has been contended on behalf of the accused-appellants that the testimony of PW 2 Tej Singh being a chance witness cannot be relied upon until his presence is established to be natural. The matter of consideration of testimony of a chance witness has been considered by the Hon'ble Apex Court time and again. In the case of Rana Partap and Ors. vs. State of Haryana, AIR 1983 SC 680 at paragraph 3, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:

"3. There were three eye witnesses. One was the brother of the deceased and the other two were a milk vendor of a neighbouring village, who was carrying milk to the dairy and a vegetable and fruit hawker, who was pushing his laden cart along the road. The learned Sessions Judge and the learned Counsel described both the independent witnesses as chance witnesses implying thereby that their evidence was suspicious and their presence at the scene doubtful. We do not understand the expression 'chance witnesses'. Murders are not committed with previous notice to witnesses; soliciting their presence. If murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a brothel, prostitutes and paramours are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a street, only passersby will be witnesses. Their evidence cannot be brushed aside or viewed with suspicion on the ground that that they are mere chance witnesses'. The expression 'chance witnesses' is borrowed from countries where every man's home is considered his castle and every one must have an explanation for his presence elsewhere or in another man's castle. It is a most unsuitable expression in a country whose people are less formal and more casual. To discard the evidence of street hawkers and street vendors on the ground that they are 'chance witnesses' even where murder is committed in a street is to abandon good sense and take too shallow a view of the evidence."

32. Further the principle of appreciation of evidence of a chance witness has been dealt by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Baby and Ors. vs. Circle Inspector of Police, Adimaly in Criminal Appeal no.952 of 2010 decided on 26.7.2016 and it has been propounded that it is a well settled legal principle that the evidence of a chance witness cannot be brushed aside simply because he is a chance witness, but his presence at the place of occurrence must be satisfactorily explained by the prosecution so as to make his testimony free from doubt and thus, reliable.

33. From the above proposition of law, it can safely be discerned that the concept of a chance witness has been borrowed from other country. The principle is not strictu sensu and is not attracted in the context of our country. More so, the Hon'ble Apex Court has given an illustrative example of a chance witness being a natural witness in the ruling cited above. The Hon'ble Apex Court has further put a safeguard for appreciating the evidence of a chance witness. The evidence of PW 2, who is alleged to be the eye witness as well as a chance witness, is to be scrutinized and appreciated further bearing in mind the above principles of law.

34. So far as the contention relating to PW 3 Bal Kishan is concerned, it is vehemently been contended that the testimony of PW 3 has been discarded by the trial Court and he is not an eye witness. It is noteworthy that the witness being a prosecution witness has been cross-examined by the defence counsel, though the witness was not declared hostile.

35. It has time and again been enunciated by the Hon'ble Apex Court that while exercising the appellate jurisdiction, the High Court is required to appraise the evidence afresh without being influenced by the inference drawn by the trial Court. As such, there is no impediment for us to appraise the evidence of PW 3 Bal Kishan afresh. What is required is that the Appellate Court is expected to carefully scrutinize the testimony of PW 3 and to identify the portions of evidence, which in its estimation is found to be credible and trustworthy. Mere the witness not being relied by the trial Court, would not put any legal embargo upon the Appellate Court to consider the evidence in accordance with the established principles of evidence. The argument in this behalf cannot be sustained.

36. The testimony of PW 4 Vinod, who is a child witness, has been assailed on the ground that his statement was recorded by the trial Court without administering oath to him. As such, his testimony cannot be relied upon.

37. The principle of appreciation of a child witness has been considered by the Hon'ble Apex Court on several occasions. In the case of State of Rajasthan vs. Chandgi Ram and Ors., (2014) 12 SCC 596, at paragraph 14 the Hon'ble Apex Court has discussed this aspect relying upon the decision in the case of Shivasharanappa v. State of Karnataka, (2013) 5 SCC 705, as follows :

"17. Thus, it is well settled in law that the court can rely upon the testimony of a child witness and it can form the basis of conviction if the same is credible, truthful and is corroborated by other evidence brought on record. Needless to say, the corroboration is not a must to record a conviction, but as a rule of prudence, the court thinks it desirable to see the corroboration from other reliable evidence placed on record. The principles that apply for placing reliance on the solitary statement of the witness, namely, that the statement is true and correct and is of quality and cannot be discarded solely on the ground of lack of corroboration, apply to a child witness, who is competent and whose version is reliable."

38. The aspect of appreciation of a child witness was also considered by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Rajkumar vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2014) 5 Supreme Court Cases 353. The relevant paragraph 19, which deals with the approval of principle enunciated in the case of State of M. P. v. Ramesh, (2011) 4 SCC 786 is being reproduced hereinunder :-

"14. In view of the above, the law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that the deposition of a child witness may require corroboration, but in case his deposition inspires the confidence of the court and there is no embellishment or improvement therein, the court may rely upon his evidence. The evidence of a child witness must be evaluated more carefully with greater circumspection because he is susceptible to tutoring. Only in case there is evidence on record to shows that a child has been tutored, the court can reject his statement partly or fully. However, an inference as to whether child has been tutored or not, can be drawn from the contents of his deposition."

39. From the above propositions of law, it can safely be deduced that the testimony of a child witness can be relied upon if it is found to be credible, reliable, trustworthy and inspiring confidence. Bearing the basic principles of appreciation of evidence, the testimony of child witness PW 4 Vinod, would be discussed in the later part of the judgment.

40. The testimony of PW 5 Smt. Phoola Rani has been assailed on the ground that being the mother, she is a highly interested witness and her testimony cannot be relied upon. The matter relating to appreciation of interested or related witness has time and again been considered by the Hon'ble Apex Court.

41. Great emphasis has been laid by learned counsel for the appellants that in this case, the incident is alleged to have taken place in broad day light but not even a single independent witness has been cited as a witness. While appreciating the evidence, the Court cannot ignore the ground realities because in the present day world, people avoid to become a witness of a case and we would not have to travel a long way to seek reasons for this apathy of the public. They simply wanted to avoid enmity of the accused persons. Reference may be made on this point and the pronouncement of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Shiv Ram and Anr. vs State of U.P. reported in 1998 1 SCC Pg 149 has considered this aspect and was of the view that nowadays it is a common tendency that no outsider would like to get involve in a criminal case much less in the crime of present magnitude. Therefore it is quite natural that no independent witness will come forward to assist the prosecution. It is well settled that the evidence of witnesses cannot be discredited only on the ground that they are close relatives of the deceased persons but what is required in such situation is that the Court must scrutinize the evidence of such witnesses with utmost care and caution.

42. In another case Appabhai and another vs. State of Gujarat, AIR 1988 SC Pg 696, Hon'ble Apex Court observed that 'Experience reminds us that civilized people are generally insensitive when crime is committed even in their presence. They withdraw from both, victim and vigilant. They keep themselves away from the Court. They take crime as a civil dispute. This kind of apathy of general public is indeed unfortunate but it is everywhere whether in village life or town and city. One cannot ignore this handicap. Evidence of witnesses has to be appreciated keeping in view such ground realities. Therefore, the Court instead of doubting the prosecution case where no independent witness has been examined must consider the broad spectrum of the prosecution version and then search for the nugget of truth with due regard to probability, if any suggested by the accused.

43. From the above proposition of law, an inference can be drawn that in appreciation of evidence of a related or an interested witness, the Court has been enjoined with an onerous duty to scrutinize the testimony of such witness with utmost caution and care and after such scrutiny if it inspires confidence and found to be reliable then there is no legal impediment in placing reliance upon the testimony of such witness. The law has also been crystallized to the effect that mere on the ground of a witness being related or interested, his testimony cannot be discarded.

44. Bearing the above propositions in mind the testimony of PW 5 would be discussed in the later part.

45. The next contention of learned counsel for the appellant is that there was a FIR against Mardan Singh and PW 4 Vinod has also admitted this fact and the I. O. has taken the possession of dhoti, but has not taken the possession of bangles etc, thus, the case comes under defective investigation and the learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon the case of Sunil Kundu and Another vs. State of Jharkhand reported in 2013 (4) SCC 422 wherein it has been held as follows:

"This Court has laid down that the lapses or irregularities in the investigation could be ignored subject to a rider. They can be ignored only if despite their existence, the evidence on record bears out the case of the prosecution and the evidence is of sterling quality. If the lapses or irregularities do not go to the root of the matter, if they do not dislodge the substratum of the prosecution case, they can be ignored."

46. The principle of law, thus, is clear from the above proposition that the irregularities amounting to defective investigation would have oblique impact upon the prosecution version, if it goes to the root of prosecution case. Simple irregularities amounting to defective investigation, which does not goes to the root of the prosecution case, would be not of much consequence.

47. So far as the FIR u/s 498 IPC is concerned, mere lodging of the FIR is of no significance since offence u/s 498 IPC is a non cognizable offence and even if for argument sake the allegations made therein are taken to be true, it would have the effect of assailing the conduct of deceased Mardan Singh.

48. It has further been submitted that the injury in the nature of stab wound has not been explained and the persons who have been assigned ballam namely Prahlad and Govind have not participated in the commission of offence as is evident from the testimonies of prosecution witnesses. Learned A. G. A. has submitted that farsa of different shapes and sizes are prevalent in different parts of the country, which is alleged to be the weapon of assault and more so, farsa has not been recovered. Until farsa would have been recovered, no definite inference can be drawn about the use of farsa in causing the stab wound.

Even if it is presumed that the injury in the nature of stab wound has not been explained, it would not be sufficient to hold that no such incident has taken place. The evidence of Pws finds support from medical evidence except the stab wound.

49. The next contention is that the weapon has not been recovered by the I. O. and it creates doubt upon the prosecution version. It is a case of direct evidence, if the complicity of appellants is established from the evidence on record, the non recovery of weapon of assault would have no oblique impact.

50. It has been conteded that if the revenge was to be taken by appellant Drigpal, he could have safely implicated the deceased person in the murder of his brother Dharam Singh. Learned A. G. A. has submitted that Drigpal and deceased persons were minor at the time of murder of Dharam Singh, brother of appellant Drigpal and no useful purpose could have been solved, hence, the submission of the counsel for the appellant does not appeal to reason.

51. It has been submitted that the murder has been committed in the night and the FIR is ante timed and the deceased persons being womanizers which was the cause of their murder and the complainant of offence u/s 498 IPC did not lodge any prosecution against the deceased by instituting the complaint and the complainant could have been the most aggrieved person. When she did not lodge the prosecution by instituting a complaint, hence, the womanizing being the cause of murder cannot be sustained.

52. It is a case of direct evidence and it is a broad day light murder. The incident took place on 17.1.1981 between 2 to 2.30 pm and the FIR has been lodged at 4.30 pm on the same day. The FIR appears to be prompt.

53. It is a settled principle of law that a prompt FIR rules out the chances of concoction. The object of insisting upon a prompt FIR is to obtain the earliest information regarding the circumstances in which the crime was committed, including the names of actual culprits and the part played by them, the weapons, if any, used as also the names of the witnesses, if any. The prompt FIR, thus, rules out the concoction, exaggeration and deliberations, if any.

54. In view of aforesaid principles, the argument that the FIR was ante timed and the murder was committed sometimes in the night do not appeal to reason. Bearing the aforesaid basic principles of law discussed above, the testimonies of witnesses of fact is being appreciated.

55. PW 2 Tej Singh has categorically explained his presence at the place of occurrence and has also stated the purpose for which he visited the place of deceased Mardan Singh. Even after payment of amount due for the purchase of cow, to mother of the deceased, he was given a light refreshment outside the house. Nothing appears unnatural in this regard which establishes his presence as well.

56. PW 2 has categorically stated about the place where Mardan Singh was sitting. He has deposed about the presence of PW 4 and PW 5 as well as the sister of the deceased Mardan Singh on the open piece of land where they were sitting and the light refreshment was served to him. He has assigned the fire arm weapon to Drigpal and farsa to appellants Maiku and Gyasi. Ballam has been assigned to Prahlad and Govind. He has deposed that appellant Drigpal discharged a shot from his fire arm whereas appellants Maiku and Gyasi assaulted deceased Mardan Singh by farsa. The place of murder of Mardan and his brother Hari Singh being different and at some distance as well has also been deposed by him. PW 2 along with PW 4 and PW 5 secretly followed the appellants while they were on the way for commission of murder of Hari Singh and he (PW 2) along with PW 4 & PW 5, witnessed the murder of deceased Hari Singh. He has also assigned the use of fire arm and the farsa respectively to accused-appellants Drigpal, Maiku and Gyasi. This witness has been put to a lengthy cross-examination. The purpose of cross-examination is to test the veracity of a witness. The witness has categorically denied the involvement of accused Prahlad and Govind, who were assigned the ballam. Nothing could be elicited from this witness by way of examination in the shape of admission, which may create any doubt upon his testimony. The testimony of PW 2 remained consistent throughout the examination-in-chief and in the cross-examination.

57. The testimony of PW 2 has also been assailed on the ground that he had close connection with police and has been witness on behalf of police in several cases.

Even if, for argument sake it is taken to be true, then the requirement of law would be to scrutinize the testimony of this witness cautiously.

58. The defence has failed to bring to our notice any material contradiction in the examination-in-chief and cross-examination of the witnesses so as to discredit the testimony of PW 2. On critical appraisal of the testimony of PW 2, we do not find any material discrepancy, which may be sufficient to discard his testimony.

59. The presence of the witness on the spot was with a purpose and his presence could not be shaken by way of cross-examination and more so, the statement that he being a chance witness, the principles of appreciation of a chance witness has already been dealt above. There is complete consistency in the entire testimony of PW 2. His testimony does not disclose any material contradiction on the point of time, date, place, manner and the weapon used in commission of the offence as well as the complicity of the accused persons-appellants in the alleged crime. This witness has fully supported the prosecution story set up by way of FIR. PW 2 was cross-examined at two occasions. Even if, discrepancies in the testimony of PW 2 are presumed, those are of natural and of trivial nature keeping in view PW 2 was not cross-examined at one stretch on the date of which his examination-in-chief was recorded. Such discrepancies or variations for argument sake, if any, in examination-in-chief and cross-examination even if taken to be true, being natural and trivial in nature do not have any bearing on the credibility of the witness.

60. It has also been argued that PW 2 being the relative of deceased, hence, he is a highly interested witness. The testimony of this witness has been scrutinized on the basis of principles discussed above and is found to be reliable.

61. Over all appraisal of PW 3 Bal Kishan clearly supports the testimony of PW 2 and speaks about the role and weapon assigned to the accused-appellants. This witness has also stated about the time, date, place and manner of commission of offence and the use of weapon assigned to accused-appellants. He has also not assigned any role to accused Prahlad and Govind, who were equipped with ballam. Even if, for argument sake, the testimony of this witness is discarded, even then the testimonies of PW 4 and PW 5 remains on record for scrutiny.

62. PW 4 Vinod is the real brother of deceased and he has categorically stated about his presence at the place of occurrence, which appears to be natural. He has deposed about the date, time and place of occurrence and the involvement of accused-appellants and the weapons assigned to them and the manner in which they had committed the offence. This witness has been put to a lengthy cross-examination. His age at the time of examination-in-chief was between 10-12 years.

63. Non administration of oath to this witness, would not mean that the statement given by the witness should be outrightly thrown away from the record. In such circumstance, the burden is cast upon the Court to appreciate the statement of a child witness in the light of testimony of other witnesses and the Court has to see as to whether the statement given by the child witness is in coherence with the testimony of other witnesses with respect to the date, time, place and manner of assault and by whom and with which weapon, the offence was committed.

64. The Court should bear in mind the capability, the power of understanding of the child witness, who is aged about 10-12 years. The witness was subjected to cross-examination to adjudge the veracity of his statement. The witness has categorically denied the involvement of accused Govind and Prahlad, who were assigned ballam. There is complete consistency in the statement of PW 4 with the story of FIR. There is no material contradiction with respect to time, date and place of occurrence and also with the manner in which the appellants have committed the murder and the weapons they have used in commission of the murder of his two brothers Mardan Singh and Hari Singh.

65. If the witness would have been tutored, then he could have safely not made any admission about a lady being present in their home or about the kidnapping of a lady by the deceased. On critical appraisal of the testimony of this witness, we are of the firm opinion that there are no material contradictions on the point of involvement of the accused persons-appellants and the weapon assigned to them as well as the time, date, place and manner of occurrenc. Even if, some variations appearing in the deposition, are taken to be true, these variations appear to be natural and do not raise a question mark on the veracity of the statement made by him.

66. PW 5 Phoola Rani is the mother of deceased. She has also disclosed the purpose for which PW 2 visited her place and made payment to the balance amount of the cow to her. She has also stated the purpose for which PW 2 visited her place on the date of incident. She has deposed that firstly, Drigpal discharged a shot at deceased Mardan Singh. She has categorically assigined the weapon of assault to all the accused persons namely, Drigpal, Maiku, Gyasi, Prahlad and Govind. Fire arm to Drigpal, farsa to Maiku and Gyasi, ballam to Prahlad and Govind. She has stated that after commission of murder of Mardan Singh, accused persons-appellants proceeded towards Hari Singh, by saying that he would not be spared. PW 2, PW 4 and PW 5 secretly followed the assailants, who committed the murder of Hari Singh at bandha. She has categorically stated that Drigpal fired upon Hari Singh and other accused persons assaulted him by means of the weapons, which were in their hands. This witness has been put to a lengthy cross-examination. She has categorically denied in her cross-examination about the involvement of accused Prahlad and Govind, who were respectively assigned the ballam. She has categorically admitted in her examination-in-chief and the cross-examination about the part played by Drigpal, Maiku and Gyasi in the commission of offence with the weapons assigned to them on the date, time and place of incident. Even after a detalied cross-examination on behalf of accused-appellants, nothing could be extracted by way of cross-examination from this witness, which may be termed as admission in contradiction to the story set up in the FIR or in contradiction to the statement in examination-in-chief by the witness.

67. The principle of appreciation of a related or an interested witness has already been discussed above. After critical appraisal, we find that the testimony of PW 5 is in complete coherence with the story set up in the FIR as well as the deposition made by PW 2 and PW 4 with respect to the date, time, place and manner of murder of Mardan Singh and Hari Singh at two different places with the use of weapons assigned to them.

68. On critical appraisal of the story set up in the FIR and the statement made by PW 2, PW 4 and PW 5, there is complete coherence about the date, time, place, manner of commission of offence, the weapons used therein and the complicity of the appellants.

69. Now it appears expedient that the testimonies of witnesses of fact, who are alleged to be eye witnesses, should be tested on the touchstone of the medical evidence. PW 1 G. D. Pandey is the doctor, who conducted the autopsy on the persons of deceased Mardan Singh and Hari Singh. The injuries found on the persons of Mardan Singh and Hari Singh discloses the injury in the nature of gun shot wound and incised wound. The witnesses of the fact has also stated that both the deceased have sustained the injuries by fire arm, which was caused by Drigpal Singh by use of fire arm and the incised wound by use of farsa assigned to Maiku and Gyasi. The doctor has categorically opined that the injuries in the nature of incised would may be caused by farsa, which fortifies the testimony of witnesses of facts.

70. The reason and purpose assigned by PW 2 for the visit to the place of deceased Mardan Singh finds complete corroboration from the testimony of PW 4 Vinod and PW 5 Smt. Phoola. The appraisal of evidence of PW 2, 4 and 5 proves the presence of PW 2 on the place of occurrence to be natural with purpose.

71. The next limb of argument is that the independent witness has not been examined. All the witnesses of fact are related witness. The aspect of non-examination of an independent witness has recently been considered by the Supreme Court in the case of Sadhu Saran Singh v. State of U. P, (2016) 4 SCC 357. The relevant para is being reproduced hereinbelow:

"21.(vi) As far as the non-examination of any other independent witness is concerned, there is no doubt that the prosecution has not been able to produce any independent witness. But, the prosecution case cannot be doubted on this ground alone. In these days, civilized people are generally insensitive to come forward to give any statement in respect of any criminal offence. Unless it is inevitable, people normally keep away from the Court as they feel it distressing and stressful. Though this kind of human behaviour is indeed unfortunate, but it is a normal phenomena. We cannot ignore this handicap of the investigating agency in discharging their duty. We cannot derail the entire case on the mere ground of absence of independent witness as long as the evidence of the eyewitness, though interested, is trustworthy."

72. From the principle enunciated by the Hon'ble Apex Court it can safely be said that mere absence of an independent witness would not have the effect of derailment of the entire prosecution case. The psychology of the public at large has changed to a greater extent and no one wants to afford the annoyance of other side by being a witness. Mere on the score of absence of an independent witness the entire prosecution cannot be discarded or disbelieved.

73. On critical appraisal of the testimony of PW 2, PW 4 and PW 5, who are alleged to be related and interested witness, we find inter se complete coherence in their testimonies with respect to the date, time, place and manner of occurrence and by whom as well as with what weapon, the crime has been committed. The testimonies of these witnesses corroborates the story disclosed in the FIR. The FIR is to be appreciated bearing in mind that it is not supposed to be the encyclopaedia and it is not expected to contain all the minute details. Even if, for agrument sake there is any ommission in the FIR, it would not materially affect the prosecution case. Time and again the Hon'ble Apex Court has stated that the FIR is not supposed to be a substantive piece of evidence and it is used only for the purpose of corroboration and contradiction. Any ommission would not adversely affect the prosecution case.

74.On the basis of aforesaid discussions, we are of the opinion that the findings of conviction recorded by the learned Court below are well founded on the materials available on record and no error has been commited by the learned Court below in appreciating the evidence and in recording the findings of conviction against the accused-appellants. There apepars no justification to interfere with the findings of conviction recorded by the learned Court below.

75. In view of aforesaid reasons, the judgment and order dated 7.12.1982 passed by the learned Court below convicting and sentencing the accused persons-appellants as mentioned above, is hereby affirmed.

76. This appeal is bereft of merits and is, accordingly, dismissed.

77. Let the lower Court's record be transmitted back to the Court concerned forthwith along with a copy of this judgment for necessary compliance.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE V. K. SHUKLA, J.
THE HON'BLE MAHESH CHANDRA TRIPATHI, J.

Writ C No.- 5113 Of 2013

Zafar M. Naiyer Advocate ...Petitioner
Versus
U.P. Bar Council & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Himansu Mishra, S.K. Upadhyay, Tarun Agarwal

Counsel for the Respondents:
SC, Anoop Trivedi, Sunita Sharma, V.C. Srivastava

Brief background of the case, as is emanating from the record in question, is that in reference of Nazool Plot No. 31 situated at Thornhill Road having an area of 8082.53 square meter, a small chunk of the said area measuring 229.09 square meter bearing plot no. 31-A and B was sold by Narayan Das Pahuja to Smt. Kanchan Khare on 1.12.2000. In reference of the same large area of the land in question by another sale-deed dated 4/5.10.2001 Narayan Das Pahuja sold 40.205 square meter of land of plot no. 31-A and B part, Thornhill Road, Allahabad and internal page 9 of the said sale deed in question following boundaries have been mentioned:
Sale deed dated 4/5.10.2001 in favour of Kanchan Khare for 40.205 square meter
East- One wide passage on which purchaser shall have independent uninterrupted facility of passage for use by purchaser.
West- Plot of Kanchan Khare
North- Plot of Kanchan Khare
South- Plot No. 31-A Part on which 20 feet wide road which connects Thornhill Road.

Once such is the factual situation before us that entire matter pertaining to the property in question, as to whether petitioner has got any right or not to use the said passage and to place the gate therein is engaging the attention of Civil Court and as to whether the gate has rightly been constructed or not is engaging the attention of this Court and U.P. State Bar Council as in the complaint it has been mentioned that at the point of time when gate in question has been constructed 15 to 20 advocates had assembled in favour of petitioner, who also appear to be practising advocates and, accordingly, petitioner has committed misconduct of grabbing the passage by erecting gate at one end of passage and erecting wall on the other end.

Accepted position is that petitioner has not committed any professional misconduct and the allegation, that is coming forward, is that he has not at all acted in consonance with the higher standard and has grabbed the passage in question. The question is once there is a dispute in reference of property in question and there are allegation and counter allegation coming forward, then all these issues should be decided by the competent Civil Court and once the said

Court proceeds to decide the issues and therein it is found on the basis of evidence that an incumbent has misused its privilege as an Advocate, then, thereafter, in case, any action is required to be undertaken, same can be undertaken, in accordance with law, but till the said issues are not answered by competent court and there is no misconduct on professional front and petitioner has been agitating for his rights, then initiation of proceedings by U.P. State Bar Council cannot be subscribed by us, in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case at this stage. We would have appreciated the stand of U.P. State Bar Council, if after acquiring knowledge of the fact of the background of the litigation that it was primarily dispute for right of passage and property, that U.P. State Bar Council would defer the matter till verdict comes from the competent court, but here most surprisingly U.P. State Bar Council has not taken such a stand and has been insisting upon to proceed with the matter as incidentally issue of other misconduct was also involved. In view of this, in our considered opinion ongoing proceedings would be abuse of the process for the simple reason that U.P. State Bar Council certainly will not take upon itself to decide the property dispute i.e. the main dispute and the incidental matter that has been referred to U.P. State Bar Council is purely dependent on the main issue as to whether petitioner has exclusive right to the passage and erect the gate, accordingly, the proceedings in question are quashed, at this stage. However, we make it clear that quashing of these proceedings will not at all come in the way of parties to pursue their rights before the appropriate forum and after final adjudication is done by Courts, then in case any misconduct is reflected, the same can be perused as per law.

Writ petition is allowed, accordingly.

1. Zafar M. Naiyer, a designated Senior Advocate of this Court, is before this Court, assailing the validity of the proceedings, so undertaken by the U.P. State Bar Council, in reference of complaint dated 7.12.2012 filed by one Sunil Nangia, opposite party no. 2.

2. Brief background of the case, as is emanating from the record in question, is that in reference of Nazool Plot No. 31situated at Thornhill Road having an area of 8082.53 square meter, a small chunk of the said area measuring 229.09 square meter bearing plot no. 31-A and B was sold by Narayan Das Pahuja to Smt. Kanchan Khare on 1.12.2000. In reference of the same large area of the land in question by another sale-deed dated 4/5.10.2001 Narayan Das Pahuja sold 40.205 square meter of land of plot no. 31-A and B part, Thornhill Road, Allahabad and internal page 9 of the said sale deed in question following boundaries have been mentioned:

South- Bungalow no. 3 and 9 feet wide passage on which 3rd party shall have uninterrupted independent right of passage as shown in the map.

6. Petitioner claims that after the purchase of the house in question as is envisaged under U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 plan in question was sanctioned by the Allahabad Development Authority and therein private passage has been shown. Petitioner submits that with the said private passage in question Sunil Nangia has got no concern but unnecessarily claim was being set-up by him in reference to the said property in question and, accordingly, he has proceeded to make a complaint in reference of the said passage in question. Petitioner submits that this passage has been bone of the contention inter-se parties and this much is also reflected that execution proceedings were ongoing as Sunil Nangia has come up with the specific case that in a suit, that has been so filed, the sale deed executed in favour of Smt. Kanchan Khare has been declared to be null and void and, accordingly, petitioner has got no right over the passage in question.

7. Petitioner, on the other hand, has been claiming his right over the passage in question and this much fact has also come forward that in execution proceedings petitioner has entered appearance and has objected to the same on 16.11.2012. The claim of Sunil Nangia has been that in spite of the fact that petitioner has got no concern with the property in question, even then on account of his profound influence and in active collusion of other advocates a gate in question has been installed and in this regard complaint has been made and on the said complaint the Allahabad Development Authority has proceeded to pass order in his favour and, in view of this, as petitioner has proceeded to misuse his privilege as a lawyer, accordingly, complaint to the State Bar Council has been made. This much is reflected from the record in question that the State Bar Council, in its turn, has proceeded to entertain the said complaint in question and, accordingly, vide resolution dated 2142 of 2012 has passed the following resolution:

"Read the complaint of Sri Sunil Nangia against Sri Zafar M. Naiyer, Advocate.

The Bar Council of U.P. has perused the contents of the complaint and has reason to belief that the Advocate concerned is prima facie guilty of professional misconduct/other misconduct. Accordingly it is resolved that the complaint, is therefore, referred to the Disciplinary Committee for disposal, according to law."

8. Accordingly, State Bar Council has referred the matter to the Disciplinary Committee and, thereafter, petitioner has appeared before the Disciplinary Committee and, thereafter, petitioner is before this Court with the grievance that the entire proceedings are nullity for the reason that private disputes cannot be subject matter of enquiry by the U.P. State Bar Council.

9. On the presentation of the writ petition in question this Court proceeded to entertain the writ petition in question and passed the following order;

"The petitioner is Senior Advocate. His grievance is that on a complaint lodged by the respondent no. 2 with the respondent no. 1 (Uttar Pradesh Bar Council), action has been initiated against the petitioner. The submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the complaint is with regard to the civil dispute and has nothing to do with any professional conduct of the petitioner and as such, the complaint with the Bar Council and the action taken on such complaint is wholly unjustified.

In our view, the matter requires consideration.

Issue notice to the respondents fixing a date immediately after six weeks.

All the respondents may file counter affidavit by the next date.

Considering the facts and circumstances of this case and keeping in view the aforesaid submissions of the learned counsel for the petitioner, it is directed that the proceedings of Disciplinary Case No. 365 of 2012 pending before the respondent no. 1 shall remain stayed."

10. Against the order passed by this Court, this much is reflected that U.P. State Bar Council has proceeded to file special leave to appeal No. 27547 of 2013 and Apex Court in its turn refused to entertain the said special leave to appeal and as pleadings before this Court was complete, following order was passed;

" It has been submitted by the learned counsel that the pleadings are over in the High Court. In view of the said fact, we desire that the High Court should decide the writ petition pending before it, preferably within two months from today.

The Special Leave Petition is, accordingly, disposed of."

11. Counter and rejoinder affidavits have been filed both on behalf of U.P. State Bar Council as well the private incumbent, who has proceeded to make complaint and rebuttal has also been filed to the same and, thereafter, present matter has been taken up for final hearing and disposal.

12. Sri Umesh Narayan Sharma, Senior Advocate, has submitted before this Court that private dispute in question pertaining to the property cannot be settled and specially when matters are pending/engaging the attention of Court of competent jurisdiction, in view of this, the complaint, that has been made before the U.P. State Bar Council ought not to have been entertained in mechanical manner, as it has been done in the present case and, as such,this Court should intervene in the facts of the case as a Senior Advocate of this Court should not be left to suffer harassment and victimization though by a statutory body, who is proceeding to exercise statutory powers, and in the present case entire exercise would be an exercise in futility and, accordingly, writ petition deserves to be allowed.

13. Sri Rakesh Pande, Advocate, has submitted that on its face value there is a typical dispute pertaining to the property in question and here additionally in the present case conduct of an Advocate of this Court is also involved in reference to the said property dispute and, accordingly, U.P. State Bar Council is right at the point of time when it has proceeded to take cognizance of the matter and has referred the matter before the Disciplinary Committee and whatever issues are being raised by the petitioner can be very well raised before the Disciplinary Committee and, as the Advocate Act is a self contained act there are various forums provided for against the final action, so taken, in view of this, at this interlocutory stage of proceedings when merely petitioner has been asked to show cause, no interference be made by this Court.

14. Sri V.C. Srivastava, Advocate, appearing with Smt. Sunita Sharma, Advocate, submitted before this Court that a deliberate, wilful and designed attempt has been made by the petitioner to grab the property in question without any authority of law and the conduct that has been shown by a practising advocate, is not befitting to a member of noble profession, required to be maintained by the petitioner, in view of this, U.P. State Bar Council has rightly proceeded to take cognizance in the matter and till date no final decision has been taken, as such, once the proceedings are in mid way no interference be made by this Court, as has been so requested by the petitioner.

15. After respective arguments have been advanced the factual situation that is so emerging in the present case is that both the petitioner Zafar M. Naiyer as well as Sunil Nangia have proceeded to purchase the property in question out of big chunk of land situated at Thornhill Road having an area of 8082.53 square meters which was leased out in favour of G.R. Garden on 21.12.1912 and the Garden has further transferred the rights to Sri Prithvi Nath and on his death his wife Jagat Rani and daughters Kamla Kaul and Vimla Raina became the lessees. Kamla Kaul died in 1980 leaving behind sons Ravi Kaul, Vikram Kaul and a daughter Rajni Saxena. Likewise Smt. Kamla Kaul died living G.S. Raina as son and Mala Tankha as daughter and on account of partition in the year 1984 pursuant to the decree in suit no. 1975 the property in question devolved upon the aforesaid heirs and they nominated Narayan Das Pahuja, who has secured free hold rights after making payment as per the government policy and it is Narayan Das Pahuja who has proceeded to carve out various plots and sold them in different parcels to different individuals. Based on the same transaction has been made in favour of Kanchan Khare and in favour of Sunil Nangia. This much is also reflected from the record in question that in reference of Kanchan Khare suit in question has been filed and the said suit in question has been decreed on 23.3.2016 wherein sale deed dated 4.10.2001 has been declared to be invalid.

16. Counsel representing Sunil Nangia was asked by us to give full details of pending proceedings in Courts qua the property in question. Details furnished are that against the order dated 23.3.2006 passed by Judge, Small Causes in O.S. No. 655 of 2005 (P.N. Nangia Vs. Smt. Kanchan Khare), appeal has been filed by Smt. Kanchan Khare and same has been informed to be pending. Petitioner in his turn has moved an application under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC for setting aside order dated 23.3.2016 and same is also pending and engaging attention of the concerned Court. Not only this against the order dated 16.9.2013 passed by the Allahabad Development Authority for removal of encroachment over passage, petitioner has preferred writ petition No. 55017 of 2013, Zafar M. Naiyar Vs. State of U.P. & others. It has been informed by parties that there is an interim order.

17. Record in question reflects that execution proceedings have been undertaken and in the said execution proceedings the complainant Sunil Nangia has proceeded to make a complaint as to in what way and manner the decree in question has been flouted and breached and this much is reflected from the record that Judge, Small Causes, Allahabad, on 7.12.2013 has proceeded to pass an order mentioning therein that decree holder has concealed the true facts in the Court and impleaded those who were not the party in the original suit and they cannot be proceeded with in execution proceedings. Thus all these facts clearly go to show and substantiate that the parties to the dispute are litigating over the property in question, that has been shown as passage in the sale deed in question.

18. The entire dispute is with reference to the passage in question qua which in the sale deed mention has been made that purchaser shall have independent uninterrupted facility of passage for use by purchaser. It is in reference of this portion that the entire dispute is on and the issue is before the competent civil court. The issue is once the matter is pending and engaging the attention of civil court as well as in reference of construction in question the matter is pending before this Court, was U.P. State Bar Council in its turn right in proceeding to entertain the matter and refer the matter, as has been done in the present case, to the Disciplinary Committee.

19. Before we proceed further, the relevant statutory provisions are being looked into. The Advocates Act, 1961 was introduced to amend and consolidate the law relating to legal practitioners and to provide for constitution of Bar Council of India and State Bar Council.

20. Chapter V of the Act relates to the Conduct of Advocates. Chapter V contains sections 35 to 44. Sub-section (1) of Section 35 on the interpretation of which in the light of the facts on record, hinges the fate of this writ petition, may be noted.

"35. Punishment of advocates for misconduct-

(1) Where on receipt of a complaint or otherwise, a State Bar Council has reason to believe that any advocate on its roll, has been guilty of professional or other misconduct, it shall refer the case for disposal to its disciplinary committee."

21. Section 35 states that where on receipt of a complaint or otherwise a State Bar Council has reason to believe that any advocate on its roll has been guilty of professional or other misconduct, it shall refer the case for disposal to its disciplinary committee. The State Bar Council may, either of its own motion or on application made to it by any person interested, withdraw a proceeding pending before its disciplinary committee and direct that inquiry to be made by another disciplinary committee of the State Bar Council. The disciplinary committee of a State Bar Council shall fix a date for the hearing of the case and shall cause a notice to be given to the advocate concerned and to the Advocate- General of the State. The disciplinary committee of the State Bar Council may make any of the following orders namely, (a) dismiss the complaint, or where the proceedings were initiated at the instance of the State Bar Council, direct that the proceedings be filed, (b) reprimand the advocate, (c) suspend the advocate for such period as it may deem fit, (d) remove the name of the advocate from the state roll of advocates.

22. Section 36 speaks of disciplinary powers of the Bar Council of India and provides that where on receipt of a complaint or otherwise the Bar Council of India has reason to believe that any advocate whose name is not entered on any State roll has been guilty of professional or other misconduct, it shall refer the case for disposal to its disciplinary committee. The disciplinary committee of the Bar Council of India may either of its own motion or on a report by any State Bar Council or on an application made to it by any person interested, withdraw for inquiry before itself any proceeding for disciplinary action against any advocate pending before the disciplinary committee of any State Bar Council and dispose of the same.

23. Section 37 speaks of appeal to the Bar Council of India. This section states that any person aggrieved by an order of the disciplinary committee of a State Bar Council or the Advocate-General of the state may, within sixty days of the date of communication of the order, prefer an appeal to the Bar Council of India.

24. Section 38 provides for appeal to the Supreme Court. Section 38 states that any person aggrieved by an order made by the disciplinary committee of the Bar Council of India under section 36 or section 37 or the Attorney-General of India or the Advocate-General of the State, as the case may be, may prefer an appeal to the Supreme Court.

25. Section 49 of the Act provides that the Bar Council of India may make rules for discharging its functions under the Act and in particular such rules may prescribe inter alia the standards of professional conduct and etiquette to be observed by advocates. The Bar Council of India in exercise of the rule making power under section 49(c) of the Act on 10 and l l July, 1954, approved the rules of standards of professional conduct and etiquette. The standards of professional conduct and etiquette are described in five sections. The first section deals with duty of advocates to the Court. The second section speaks of duty of advocates to the clients. The third section consists of rules regarding duty of advocates to opponent. The fourth section prescribes duties of advocates to colleagues. The fifth section lays down restrictions on advocates on other employments.

26. Said statutory provision has been subject matter of consideration/interpretation by the Courts time and again. Seven Judges Constitution Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Bar Council of Maharashtra Vs. M.V. Dabholkar & Ors.*, (1975) 2 SCC 702, after analysis of Chapter V of the Advocates Act relating to conduct of the advocates, has observed in paragraph 24 of the report as under.

"24. The scheme and the provisions of the Act indicate that the constitution of State Bar Councils and Bar Council of India is for one of the principal purposes to see that the standards of professional conduct and etiquette laid down by the Bar Council of India are observed and preserved. The Bar Councils therefore entertain cases of misconduct against advocates. The Bar Councils are to safeguard the rights, privilege and interests of advocates. The Bar Council is a body corporate. The disciplinary committees are constituted by the Bar Council. The Bar Council is not the same body as its disciplinary committee. One of the principal functions of the Bar Council in regard to standards of professional conduct and etiquette of advocates is to receive complaints against advocates and if the Bar Council has reason to believe that any advocate has been guilty of professional or other misconduct it shall refer the case for disposal to its disciplinary committee. The Bar Council of a State may also of its own motion if it has reason to believe that any advocate has been guilty of professional or other misconduct it shall refer the case for disposal to its disciplinary committee. It is apparent that a State Bar Council not only receives a complaint but is required to apply its mind to find out whether there is any reason to believe that any advocate has been guilty of professional or other misconduct. The Bar Council of a State acts on that reasoned belief. The Bar Council has a very important part to play, first, in the reception of complaints, second, in forming reasonable belief of guilt of professional or other misconduct and finally in making reference of the case to its disciplinary committee. The initiation of the proceeding before the disciplinary committee is by the Bar Council of a State. A most significant feature is that no litigant an no member of the public can straightaway commence disciplinary proceedings against an advocate. It is the Bar Council of a State which initiates the disciplinary proceedings."

Again in paragraph 31 of the report, it has been held as under.

"31. ..... The Bar Council acts as the protector of the purity and dignity of the profession. Third, the function of the Bar Council in entertaining complaints against advocates is when the Bar Council has reasonable belief that there is a prima facie case of misconduct that a disciplinary committee is entrusted with such inquiry. ....."

27. In the above noted case before the Apex Court, the issue was with respect to maintainability of an appeal by the Bar Council as an aggrieved person under the Act. Another Bench of Apex Court while deciding the merits of the said case reported in (1976) 2 SCC 291, *Bar Council of Maharashtra Vs. M.V. Dabholkar, the question as to what would amount to satisfaction of the requirement of reason to believe, answered the issue as under.

"..... The requirement of 'reason to believe' cannot be converted into a formalised procedural roadblock, it being essentially a barrier against frivolous enquiries. It is implicit in the resolution of the Bar Council, when it says that it has considered the complaint and decided to refer the matter to the disciplinary committee, that it had reason to believe, as prescribed by the statute."

28. In view of the aforesaid exposition of law by the Apex Court, the least required is that there should be a resolution that Bar Council had considered the complaint and finding that there was a prima facie case, the matter is being referred to a disciplinary committee.

29. Once again matter came up before the Apex Court in the case of Nandlal Khodidas Barot Vs. Bar Council of Gujarat & Ors.*, 1980 (Supp.) SCC 318. In the said case, the Bar Council of Gujarat passed a resolution referring several complaints against different advocates to the disciplinary committee of the Bar Council. The resolution which was under consideration before the Apex Court, reads as under.

"Resolved that the following complaints be and are hereby referred to the Disciplinary Committee of the Bar Council."

30. Apex Court in the said case taking into account the resolution mentioned that resolution does not even say that State Bar Council had considered the complaint and found that there was prima facie case. It was held that the reference by the State Bar Council was incompetent and that being so the proceedings before the Disciplinary Committee of Bar Council of Gujarat and transfer to Bar Council of India were invalid.

31. Apex Court in the case of Noratanmal Chouraria Vs. M.R. Murli and another*, 2004 (5) SCC 689, has construed the word 'misconduct' and has also proceeded to construe the word 'misconduct' in the context of Section 35 of the Advocates Act. The relevant paragraphs 7 to 13 are as follows;

"7. Misconduct has not been defined in the Advocates Act, 1961. Misconduct, inter alia, envisages breach of discipline, although it would not be possible to lay down exhaustively as to what would constitute conduct and indiscipline, which, however, is wide enough to include wrongful omission or commission whether done or omitted to be done intentionally or unintentionally. It means, "improper behaviour intentional wrong doing or deliberate violation of a rule of standard or behaviour":

8. Misconduct is said to be a transgression of some established and definite rule of action, where no discretion is left except what necessity may demand; it is a violation of definite law.

9. In Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. Ltd. vs. Its Workmen reported in (1969) 2 LLJ 755, Shah, J. stated that misconduct spreads over a wide and hazy spectrum of industrial activity; the most seriously subversive conducts rendering an employee wholly unfit for employment to mere technical default covered thereby.

10. This Court in State of Punjab and Others vs. Ram Singh Ex. Constable, reported in 1992 (4) SCC 54, noticed:-

"5. Misconduct has been defined in Black's Law Dictionary, sixth Edition at Page 999 thus:-

"A Transgression of some established and definite rule of action, a forbidden act, a dereliction from duty, unlawful behaviour, wilful in character, improper or wrong behaviour, it synonyms are misdemeanor, misdeed, misbehaviour, delinquency, impropriety, mismanagement, offense, but not negligence or carelessness".

Misconduct in offence has been defined as :-

"Any unlawful behaviour by a public officer in relation to the duties of his office, wilful in character. Term embraces acts which the office holder had no right to perform, acts performed improperly and failure to act in the face of an affirmative duty to act".

P.Ramanath Aiyar's Law Lexicon, Reprint Edition 1987 at Page 821 defines 'misconduct thus:-

"The term misconduct implies a wrongful intention, and not a mere error of judgment, Misconduct is not necessarily the same thing as conduct involving moral turpitude. The word misconduct is a relative term, and has to be construed with reference to the subject-matter and the context wherein the term occurs, having regard to the scope of the Act or statute which is being construed. Misconduct literally means wrong conduct or improper conduct. In usual parlance, misconduct means a transgression of some established and definite rule of action, where no discretion is left, except what necessity may demand and carelessness, negligence and unskillfulness are transgressions of some established, but indefinite, rule of action, where some discretion is necessarily left to the actor. Misconduct is a violation of definite law; carelessness or abuse of discretion under an indefinite law. Misconduct is a forbidden act; carelessness, a forbidden quality of an act and is necessarily indefinite. Misconduct in office may be defined as unlawful behaviour or neglect by a public official, by which the right of party have been affected."

Thus it could be seen that the word 'misconduct' though not capable of precise of definition, on reflection receives its conotation from the context, the delinquency in its performance and its effect on the discipline and the nature of the duty. It may involve moral turpitude, it must be improper or wrong behaviour; unlawful behaviour, wilful in character; forbidden act a transgression of established and definite rule of action or code of conduct but not mere error of judgment, carelessness or negligence in performance of the duty; the act complained of bears forbidden quality or character. Its ambit has to be construed with reference to the subject-manner and the context wherein the term occurs, regard being had to the scope of the statute and the public purpose it seeks to serve. The police service is a disciplined service and it requires to maintain strict discipline. Laxity in this behalf erodes discipline in the service causing serious effect in the maintenance of law and order."

[See also Probodh Kumar Bhowmick Vs. University of Calcutta (1994 (2) Calcutta Law Journal 456 and B.C. Chaturvedi Vs. Union of India [1995 (6) SCC 749].

11. Section 35 of the Advocates Act, however, refers to imposition of punishment for professional or other misconduct. A member of legal profession which is a noble one is expected to maintain a standard in dignified and determined manner. The standard required to be maintained by the member of the legal profession must be commensurate with the nobility thereof. A Lawyer is obligated to observe those norms which make him worthy of the confidence of the community in him as an officer of the court. This Court in Bar Council, Maharashtra V. M.V.Dabholkar [AIR 1976 SCC 242] observed:-

"The high moral tone and the considerable public service the bar is associated with and its key role in the developmental and dispute-processing activities and, above all, in the building up of a just society and constitutional order has earned for it a monopoly to practise law and an autonomy to regulate its own internal discipline."

12. Although the power of the Bar Council is not limited, the thrust of charge must be such which would necessitate initiation of disciplinary proceedings. A professional or other misconduct committed by a member of the profession should ordinarily be judged qua profession. To determine the quantum of punishment which may be imposed on an advocate, the test of proportionality shall be applied which would also depend upon the nature of the acts complained of. No universal rule thus can be laid down as regard initiation of a proceeding for misconduct of a member of the profession.

13. In 'M' an Advocate (supra), however, this court emphasized the requirement of maintaining a high standard stating:-

"As has been laid down by this Court in the matter of 'G', a Senior Advocate of the Supreme Court (A) (supra) the Court, in dealing with cases of professional misconduct is "not concerned with ordinary legal rights, but with the special and rigid rules of professional conduct expected of and applied to a specially privileged class of persons who, because of their privileged status, are subject to certain disabilities which do not attach to their men and which do not attach even to them in a non-professional character ...he (a legal practitioner) is bound to conduct himself in a manner befitting the high and honourable professional to whose privileges he has so long been admitted; and if he departs from the high standards which that professional has set for itself and demands of him in professional matters, he is liable to disciplinary action."

32. In the said case before the Apex Court in the case of Noratanmal Chouraria (supra) Disciplinary Committee has considered the conduct of applicant therein in order to judge as to whether the acts on the part of the respondents amount to misconduct in following terms;

"14. The disciplinary committee of the Bar Council of India is a statutory body. At the first instance the duty to arrive at a finding of facts in respect of complaint made against a member of the legal profession is upon it. This court although enjoys extensive and wide jurisdiction under Section 38 of the Act, the opinion of the Bar Council shall carry great weight. The appellant herein had lodged complaint with the State Bar Council on 5.3.1995 in relation to the 3 incidents allegedly occurred on 8.10.1993, 26.10.1993 and 1.3.1995.

15. The Disciplinary Committee had considered the conduct of the appellant herein in order to judge as to whether the acts on the part of the respondents amount to misconduct.

16. There was absolutely no reason as to why the appellant did not make any complaint to the State Bar Council immediately of the incidents which took place on 8.10.1993 and 26.10.1993. If his contention to the effect that in relation to the incident dated 26.10.1993 he had lodged a first information report there was absolutely no reason as to why he did not pursue the same seriously. It is, as has been noticed by the Bar Council of India, accepted that the police filed final forms but despite the same the appellant did not file any protest petition or initiate any other proceeding before criminal court. In relation to the incident dated 1.3.1995 which allegedly took place inside the court room it was expected of the appellant or his advocate, who is said to be a retired district judge, to bring the same to the notice of the court. Even in relation to the incidents allegedly occurred on 8.10.1993 and 26.10.1993 no complaint was made before the presiding officer of the court. No proceeding was initiated in relation to the purported incident on 1.3.1995.

17. Can in the aforementioned fact situation, the findings of the Bar Council, be said to be so irrational meriting interference by this court is the question? We are of the opinion that it is not. We may further place on record that on a querry made by us to Mr. Upadhyay as to whether any other incident had taken place after 1.3.1995, the learned counsel categorically stated that no such incident had thereafter taken place. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the matter need not be pursued further. "

33. Apex Court, thereafter, has considered the case law in the case of 'M' an Advocate, Hikamat Ali Khan Vs. Ishwar Prasad Arya as well as N.G. Dastane Vs. Shrikant S. Shivde and, thereafter, has concluded that no case has been made out for interfering with the impugned order.

34. On the parameters of the provisions, quoted above, and the judgements of the Apex Court, this much is clear that as far as petitioner is concerned he is a member of legal profession which is a noble one and is expected to maintain a standard in dignified and determined manner. The standard required to be maintained by the member of the legal profession has to be commensurate with the nobility thereof. A Lawyer is obligated to observe those norms which make him worthy of the confidence of the community in him as an officer of the court and further the thrust of charge must be such which would necessitate initiation of disciplinary proceedings. A professional or other misconduct committed by a member of the profession should ordinarily be judged qua profession.

35. The parameters of the Court's power of judicial review has also been subject matter of consideration.

36. The famous "Wednesbury Case" Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd. Us. Wednesbury Corp., (1947) 2 All ER 680 (CA) is considered to be landmark in so far as the basic principles relating to judicial review of administrative or statutory direction are concerned. We quote a passage from the judgement of Lord Greene which is as follows:-

"It is true that discretion must be exercised reasonably. Now what does that mean? Lawyers familiar with the phraseology used in relation to exercise of statutory discretions often use the word "unreasonable" in a rather comprehensive sense. It has frequently been used and is frequently used as a general description of the things that must not be done. For instance, a person entrusted with a discretion must, so to speak, direct himself properly in law. He must call his own attention to the matters, which he is bound to consider. He must exclude from his consideration matters, which are irrelevant to what he has to consider. If he does not obey those rules, he may truly be said, and often is said, to be acting "unreasonably." Similarly, there may be something so absurd that no sensible person could even dream that it lay within the powers of the authority..... In another, it is taking into consideration extraneous matters. It is so unreasonable that it might almost be described as being done in bad faith; and, in fact, all these things run into one another."

37. The principles of judicial review of administrative action were further summarized in 1985 by Lord Diplock in Council of Civil Service Unions Vs. Minister for the Civil Services*, 1984 (3) All ER. 935, (commonly known as CCSU case) as illegality, procedural impropriety and irrationality. He said more grounds could in future become available, including the doctrine of proportionality which was a principle followed by certain other members of the European Economic Community. Lord Diplock observed in this case:-

".....Judicial review has I think developed to a stage today when, without reiterating any analysis of the steps by which the development has come about, one can conveniently classify under three heads the grounds on which administrative action is subject to control by judicial review. The first ground I would call 'illegality', the second 'irrationality' and the third 'procedural impropriety'. That is not to say that further development on a case by case basis may not in course of time add further grounds. I have in mind particularly the possible adoption in the future of the principle of 'proportionality' which is recognised in the administrative law of several of our fellow members of the European Economic Community."

38. Lord Diplock explained "irrationality" as follows:-

"By 'irrationality' I mean what can by now be succinctly referred to as 'Wednesbury unreasonableness'. It applies to a decision which is so outrageous in its defiance of logic or of accepted moral standards that no sensible person who had applied his mind to the question to be decided could have arrived at it."

39. In Union of India & Anr. Vs. G. Ganayutham*, (1997) 7 SCC 463, the Apex Court after referring to the aforesaid two cases namely Wednesbury case and CCSU case held as follows:-

"We are of the view that even in our country-in cases not involving fundamental freedoms-the role of our courts/tribunals in administrative law is purely secondary and while applying Wednesbury and CCSU principles to test the validity of executive action or of administrative action taken in exercise of statutory powers, the Courts and tribunals in our country can only go into the matter, as a secondary reviewing Court to find out if the executive or the administrator in their primary roles have arrived at a reasonable decision on the material before them in the light of Wednesbury and CCSU tests. The choice of the options available is for the authority;the court/tribunal cannot substitute its view as to what is reasonable."

40. Justice is an act of rendering what is right and equitable towards one who has suffered a wrong. Therefore, while tempering the justice with mercy, the Court has to be very conscious that it has to do justice in exact conformity to some obligatory law for the reason that human actions are found to be just or unjust as they are in conformity with or in opposition to the law. In Delhi Administration Vs. Gurdip Singh Uban & Ors., (2000) 7 SCC 296, the Apex Court observed as under:-

"The words 'justice' and 'injustice', in our view, are sometimes loosely used and have different meanings to different persons, particularly to those arrayed on opposite sides.....Justice Cardozo said, "The web is tangled and obscure, shot through with a multitude of shades and colours, the skeins irregular and broken. Many hues that seem to be simple, are found, when analysed, to be a complex and uncertain blend. Justice itself, which we are wont to appeal to as a test as well as an ideal, may mean different things to different minds and at different times. Attempts to objectify its standards or even to describe them, have never wholly succeeded." (Selected Writings of Cardozo, PP 223-24; Fallon Publications, 1947)"

41. Therefore, justice has to be done to both the parties and the case cannot be considered only taking into consideration the interest of one party.

42. On the parameters, that has been settled by the Apex Court, it may be true that whatever defence is being sought to be raised by the petitioner before this Court, the same can be very well raised before the Disciplinary Committee who can always consider the same, in the facts of the case, as to whether the proceedings, that are being undertaken against the petitioner are correct or not and in consonance with the provisions as are contained under the Advocates Act but here what we find from the record in question is that on complaint being made U.P. State Bar Council has proceeded to take cognizance of the same and has proceeded to refer the matter to the Disciplinary Committee. In normal course of business the Disciplinary Committee has the authority to take the decision followed by right to appeal but here once the entire material is on record should we permit the proceedings to continue or should we proceed to quash the proceedings in question, in the peculiar facts of the case, that has so emerged. What we find that accepted position is that the decree that has been so passed ex-parte in the execution proceedings, that has been so undertaken, request has been made for demolition of construction and site be restored and blockade of road be removed. In the said proceedings objections have been put in by the petitioner and, thereafter, the Executing Court has found favour with the version of petitioner and objection of petitioner against execution of decree has been accepted by the Executing Court. Appeal has already been filed by Smt. Kanchan Khare against the ex-parte decree passed. Petitioner's application for setting aside ex-parte decree under Order IX Rule 13 of CPC is pending and engaging the attention of Civil Court. Coupled with this in reference to the gate being illegally constructed, complaint has been made and Allahabad Development Authority has proceeded to pass order and same has been subjected to challenge before this Court and therein interim order has been passed.

43. Once such is the factual situation before us that entire matter pertaining to the property in question, as to whether petitioner has got any right or not to use the said passage and to place the gate therein is engaging the attention of Civil Court and as to whether the gate has rightly been constructed or not is engaging the attention of this Court and U.P. State Bar Council as in the complaint it has been mentioned that at the point of time when gate in question has been constructed 15 to 20 advocates had assembled in favour of petitioner, who also appear to be practising advocates and, accordingly, petitioner has committed misconduct of grabbing the passage by erecting gate at one end of passage and erecting wall on the other end.

44. Accepted position is that petitioner has not committed any professional misconduct and the allegation, that is coming forward, is that he has not at all acted in consonance with the higher standard and has grabbed the passage in question. The question is once there is a dispute in reference of property in question and there are allegation and counter allegation coming forward, then all these issues should be decided by the competent Civil Court and once the said Court proceeds to decide the issues and therein it is found on the basis of evidence that an incumbent has misused its privilege as an Advocate, then, thereafter, in case, any action is required to be undertaken, same can be undertaken, in accordance with law, but till the said issues are not answered by competent court and there is no misconduct on professional front and petitioner has been agitating for his rights, then initiation of proceedings by U.P. State Bar Council cannot be subscribed by us, in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case at this stage. We would have appreciated the stand of U.P. State Bar Council, if after acquiring knowledge of the fact of the background of the litigation that it was primarily dispute for right of passage and property, that U.P. State Bar Council would defer the matter till verdict comes from the competent court, but here most surprisingly U.P. State Bar Council has not taken such a stand and has been insisting upon to proceed with the matter as incidentally issue of other misconduct was also involved. In view of this, in our considered opinion ongoing proceedings would be abuse of the process for the simple reason that U.P. State Bar Council certainly will not take upon itself to decide the property dispute i.e. the main dispute and the incidental matter that has been referred to U.P. State Bar Council is purely dependent on the main issue as to whether petitioner has exclusive right to the passage and erect the gate, accordingly, the proceedings in question are quashed, at this stage. However, we make it clear that quashing of these proceedings will not at all come in the way of parties to pursue their rights before the appropriate forum and after final adjudication is done by Courts, then in case any misconduct is reflected, the same can be perused as per law.

45. Writ petition is allowed, accordingly.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CRIMINAL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE BALA KRISHNA NARAYANA, J.
THE HON'BLE ARVIND KUMAR MISHRA-I, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 5543 Of 2004

Suheil ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
R.P. Singh, S.N. Jaishal, Sushma Yadav

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

This criminal appeal has been preferred by appellant Suheil against the judgment and order of conviction dated 25.08.2004 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, FTC No.1, Ghazipur, in Sessions Trial No.84 of 2003, State Vs. Suheil, arising out of Case Crime No.487 of 2002 under Sections 302, 506 IPC and Sessions Trial No.85 of 2003 arising out of Case Crime No.616 of 2002 under Section 25 Arms Act, Police Station Bhanwarkol, District Ghazipur whereby the appellant has been sentenced to life imprisonment coupled with fine Rs.5000/- under Section 302 IPC, in default of payment of fine, one year additional rigorous imprisonment, two years rigorous imprisonment coupled with fine Rs.500/- under Section 506(2) IPC, in default of payment of fine, three months' additional rigorous imprisonment and three years rigorous imprisonment coupled with fine Rs.500/- under Section 25 Arms Act, in default, three months' additional rigorous imprisonment. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

The accused-appellant Suheil was opposing this marriage arrangement and one month prior to the occurrence, he had threatened that in case they (informant's side) came to solemnize marriage they should also bring shroud with them. Since father-in-law of the first informant was interested in solemnization of marriage, therefore, he in order to participate in the marriage ceremony arrived on the spot on 23.10.2002. In the intervening night of 23/24.10.2002 after taking dinner, the first informant's father-in-law Majid along with first informant's sons namely Ali Akbar and Ali Sarver, both aged about 9 and 6 years, respectively were sleeping on the Takhat (wooden cot) in the hut, whereas, the other relatives were sleeping on Takhat (wooden cots) beside them. It was around mid-night when some noise was heard by the first informant on which she woke up and saw the accused-appellant Suheil son of Noorjahan in the illuminated light of lantern and moonlit night, passing by side of her father-in-law's bed/Takhat, having Tamancha (country-made pistol) in his hand. The first informant intercepted him whereupon he threatened her. Thereafter, the first informant and other persons arrived on the spot i.e. near the first informant's father-in-law Majid then they saw Majid dead on Takhat (wooden cot). The report was lodged for taking appropriate action.

In our opinion even if we accept the aforesaid contention of the learned counsel for the appellant the prosecution case is not liable to be discarded on the aforesaid ground in view of the fact that the prosecution has not come up with a case that the deceased was sleeping in a particular posture when he was shot. Even otherwise the discrepancy between the ocular testimony and the medical evidence pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellant is not of such a degree or irreconcilable so as to render the entire prosecution case unreliable and incredible. The prosecution has come up with a categorical case that the appellant had shot the deceased Majeed while he was sleeping on a wooden table with his grand sons. According to the post mortem report of the deceased one gun shot wound of entry on the left side of the deceased's chest along with a corresponding gun shot wound of exit on right side of chest were found on his dead body. The post mortem report of the deceased in fact corroborates the crux of the prosecution theory that the appellant had shot the deceased with his firearm and in view of the above, the eye witness account of the incident given by PW-2 is not liable to be discarded only on the ground that the prosecution has not been able to prove by any evidence that the deceased was sleeping in the same posture as testified by PW-8 in his evidence when he was shot.

In view of the foregoing discussion, we do not find any reason to interfere with the recorded conviction of the appellant under Sections 302, 506(2) IPC and Section 25 of the Arms Act and sentence awarded to him by the trial court vide impugned judgment and order dated 25.08.2016. This appeal lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

Case Law discussed:

(Delivered by Hon'ble Bala Krishna Narayana, J.
Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Mishra-I, J.)

1. This criminal appeal has been preferred by appellant Suheil against the judgment and order of conviction dated 25.08.2004 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, FTC No.1, Ghazipur, in Sessions Trial No.84 of 2003, State Vs. Suheil, arising out of Case Crime No.487 of 2002 under Sections 302, 506 IPC and Sessions Trial No.85 of 2003 arising out of Case Crime No.616 of 2002 under Section 25 Arms Act, Police Station Bhanwarkol, District Ghazipur whereby the appellant has been sentenced to life imprisonment coupled with fine Rs.5000/- under Section 302 IPC, in default of payment of fine, one year additional rigorous imprisonment, two years rigorous imprisonment coupled with fine Rs.500/- under Section 506(2) IPC, in default of payment of fine, three months' additional rigorous imprisonment and three years rigorous imprisonment coupled with fine Rs.500/- under Section 25 Arms Act, in default, three months' additional rigorous imprisonment. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

2. Heard Sri Satyadheer Singh Jadaun, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Saghir Ahmad assisted by Sri J.K. Upadhyay and Kumari Meena, learned AGAs for the State and perused the record.

3. The facts of this case as unfolded in the first information report appear to be; that the first informant, Smt. Maimun Nisha wife of Harun Hussain, resident of village Dehari, Police Station Rajpur, District Baxar, State of Bihar, lodged a written report with Police Station Bhanwarkol, District Ghazipur on 24.10.2002 at 06:15 a.m. regarding the occurrence which took place in the night intervening 23/24.10.2002 to the effect that her father-in-law Majid son of Aziz arranged marriage of his relative namely Zubair resident of Machchati, Police Station Bhanwarkol, District Ghazipur with the daughter of Gafoor, resident of Chakiya, Police Station Genhara, District Ghazipur.

4. The accused-appellant Suheil was opposing this marriage arrangement and one month prior to the occurrence, he had threatened that in case they (informant's side) came to solemnize marriage they should also bring shroud with them. Since father-in-law of the first informant was interested in solemnization of marriage, therefore, he in order to participate in the marriage ceremony arrived on the spot on 23.10.2002. In the intervening night of 23/24.10.2002 after taking dinner, the first informant's father-in-law Majid along with first informant's sons namely Ali Akbar and Ali Sarver, both aged about 9 and 6 years, respectively were sleeping on the Takhat (wooden cot) in the hut, whereas, the other relatives were sleeping on Takhat (wooden cots) beside them. It was around mid-night when some noise was heard by the first informant on which she woke up and saw the accused-appellant Suheil son of Noorjahan in the illuminated light of lantern and moonlit night, passing by side of her father-in-law's bed/Takhat, having Tamancha (country-made pistol) in his hand. The first informant intercepted him whereupon he threatened her. Thereafter, the first informant and other persons arrived on the spot i.e. near the first informant's father-in-law Majid then they saw Majid dead on Takhat (wooden cot). The report was lodged for taking appropriate action. This written report is Ext. Ka-1 on the record.

5. Contents of written report were taken down in Check FIR at Case Crime No.487 of 2002 under Sections 302, 506 IPC, Police Station Bhanwarkol, District Ghazipur on 24.10.2002 at 06:15 a.m. Check FIR is Ext. Ka-5.

6. Entries so made led to registration of case against the accused-appellant under Sections 302, 506 IPC at Police Station Bhanwarkol, District Ghazipur, in the relevant general diary which is Ext. Ka-6 on record.

7. Thereafter investigation of the case ensued. Investigation was taken over by the Investigating Officer Dhananjay Mishra PW-8. He in order to complete investigation proceeded to the spot where he collected blood stained and simple soil, blood stained wood of Takhat (wooden cot), besides taking the other things like Kathari (small thin mattress), pillow and empty cartridge from the spot and prepared memo of the same, which is Ext. Ka-8. The Investigating Officer also prepared recovery memo of lantern and handed over the same to Noorjehan son of Buddha in custody which is Ext. Ka-9 on record.

8. Record further reflects that during course of investigation, on 10.12.2002 Tamancha (country-made pistol) allegedly used in commission of offence by the accused-appellant was recovered at his pointing out. Recovery memo of the same was prepared by the Investigating Officer which is Ext. Ka-18.

9. Thereafter, inquest report of the deceased Majid was prepared by the Investigating Officer. Inquest report reveals that process commenced at 8:00 a.m. and ended at 10:00 a.m. on 24.10.2002. Inquest report is Ext. Ka-10. In the opinion of-inquest witnesses-it was thought proper to send the dead body for post mortem examination so that cause of death could be ascertained properly. Therefore, relevant papers with regard thereto were prepared. In this context, relevant papers are Exts. Ka-11, 12, 13, 14 and 16, respectively and the dead body of the deceased Majid was sent for post mortem examination.

10. The post mortem examination on the cadaver of deceased Majid was conducted by Dr. V.J.P. Sinha, PW-6 in the mortuary at Ghazipur on 24.10.2002 at 5:00 p.m. wherein following ante mortem injuries were noted:

1. Gunshot wound of entry left side of chest (lacerated wound) oval shape 1.5 cm x 1 cm x 10 cm cavity deep, collar latuel to nipple left abrasion present around injury, underlying bone fractured. Margins inverted.

2. Gunshot wound of exit on right side of chest (lacerated wound), 4.5 cm x 3 cm. Margins everted, 6 cm latuel to right nipple, underlying bone fractured.

Cause of death was opined to be shock and haemorrhage as a result of anti mortem gunshot injuries. Duration was stated to be half a day. This post mortem examination report is Ext. Ka-4.

11. Record further reflects that during course of investigation, Investigating Officer, Dhananjay Mishra PW-8 prepared site plan which is Ext. Ka-22. After completing investigation, Investigating Officer Dhananjay Mishra PW-8 filed charge sheet against the accused-appellant at Case Crime No.487 of 2002 under Sections 302, 506 IPC. Charge sheet is Ext. Ka-17.

12. Record further reveals that Dhananjay Mishra, PW-8, Investigating Officer of this case also lodged first information report regarding recovery of 'Tamancha' (country-made pistol) made at the pointing out of the accused-appellant on 10.12.2002 and a case was registered at Case Crime No.616 of 2002 under Section 25 Arms Act, Police Station Bhanwarkol, District Ghazipur. This FIR is Ext. Ka-2. The case under aforesaid Section of Arms Act was investigated into by the Investigating Officer-Virendra Singh- PW-9 who recorded statement of various prosecution witnesses and also proved relevant papers as well as site plan regarding recovery of Tamancha (country-made pistol) which is Ext. Ka-19 on record. He submitted charge sheet (under Section 3/25 Arms Act) against the accused-appellant which is Ext. Ka-21.

13. Thereafter the case of the appellant was committed to the court of Sessions from where it was made over for trial to the learned Additional Sessions Judge, FTC No.1, Ghazipur, who heard the appellant on point of charge and after recording his satisfaction regarding prima facie case for framing charge under Section 302, 506 IPC and 25 Arms Act, framed charge under the aforesaid sections of IPC and Arms Act respectively. Charges were read over and explained to the appellant who abjured charges and opted for trial.

14. Consequently, the prosecution was asked to adduce its testimony, whereupon the prosecution produced in all nine witnesses. Brief reference of whom is as hereunder:

Maimun Nisha PW-1 is the first informant while Ali Akbar PW-2, claims himself to have witnessed the incident and they were present on the spot at the time of occurrence. Similarly, Sakelu PW-3 has also claimed himself to be an eyewitness of occurrence. Apart from above witnesses of fact, formal witnesses namely; Mahendra Yadav PW-4 who had sent dead body of Majid for post mortem examination to the mortuary proved the aforesaid fact, Ajay Kumar Singh PW-5 who had made relevant entries in the concerned Check FIR in Case Crime No.616 of 2002 under Section 25 Arms Act and general diary and has proved the same as Exhibit Ka-3. Dr. V.J.P. Sinha PW-6 who had conducted post mortem examination on dead body of the deceased Majid on 24.10.2002 proved the post mortem examination report Ext. Ka-4, Constable R.S. Yadav PW-7 proved Check FIR and relevant G.D. entry concerning Case Crime No.487 of 2002. Dhananjay Mishra PW-8, the Investigating Officer disclosed various steps taken by him in completing investigation and proved the charge sheet filed by him against the accused-appellant, and Virendra Singh PW-9 the Investigating Officer pertaining to the case registered under Section 25 Arms Act at Case Crime No.616 of 2002 in the evidence detailed various steps which he took in completing the investigation and filing charge sheet against the accused-appellant for offence under Case Crime No.616 of 2002 as Ext. Ka-21.

15. Thereafter, evidence for the prosecution was closed and statement of the appellant was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein he has termed his implication in this case false and has stated that he has been roped in, in this case on account of enmity. The defence did not lead any evidence, whatsoever.

16. Learned trial court after hearing both the sides on merit and considering the material on record passed the aforesaid judgment and order of conviction.

Consequently, this appeal.

17. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the presence of PW-1 and PW-3 at the place of incident is not proved and hence the conviction of the appellant on the basis of the sole testimony of the child witness PW-2 Ali Akbar cannot be sustained. He further submitted that a perusal of the facts stated by PW-2 in his evidence itself it transpires that he is tutored, that apart there are irreconcilable contradictions on material points in his testimony, he cannot be termed as reliable witness and his testimony was liable to be thrown out rather than being made basis for the appellant's conviction. He also submitted that the incident having taken place in the midnight and the prosecution having failed to prove by any cogent evidence existence of any source of light at the place of incident which would have enabled PW-2 to witness the incident and identify the accused, no reliance can be placed on the testimony of PW-2. Motive suggested by the prosecution for the appellant to commit the murder of the deceased Majeed has also not been established.

18. It is also submitted that in view of irreconcilable inconsistencies in the medical evidence vis-a-vis the ocular testimony, it cannot be said that the incident had taken place in the manner as spelt out in the FIR and in the testimony of PW-2.

19. He next submitted that such being the state of evidence of the prosecution, the conviction of the appellant recorded by the trial court and the sentence awarded to him cannot be sustained.

20. Per contra Sri Saghir Ahmad, learned AGA submitted that even if, it is assumed for the sake of the argument that PW-1 and PW-3 had not witnessed the incident, the presence of the PW-2 at the place of the incident at the time of the occurrence cannot be doubted even for a moment. The prosecution case stands fully proved from the unimpeachable testimony of the child witness PW-2, who was found by the learned trial court to be competent to depose after examining him at some length. The contradictions/inconsistencies in his testimonies, if any, are natural and not material or of such nature so as to effect the core of the prosecution story rendering it unreliable. He next submitted that since the conviction of the appellant recorded by the trial court is based upon cogent evidence and the sentence awarded to him is supported by relevant considerations, the impugned judgement and order require no interference by this Court.

21. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have very carefully scanned the entire lower court record.

22. The sole question which arise for our consideration in this appeal is whether the prosecution have been able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt against the appellant or not.

23. Before we proceed further in this case, it would be appropriate to take note of contents of the first information report, perusal whereof, reflects that the incident allegedly took place in the intervening night of 23/24.10.2002 and the appellant after midnight arrived on the spot where the deceased Majid, father-in-law of the first informant was sleeping on Takhat (wooden cot) along with Ali Akbar and Ali Sarvar, who are sons of the first informant. We gather from first information report that as soon as offence was committed, the accused-appellant was sighted by the first informant, her son Ali Akbar and few other relatives who have been examined in this case and whose testimony is to be scrutinized on this point specifically as to whether they have in fact seen the occurrence as claimed by them or not?

24. We have before us post mortem examination report of the deceased Majid which also confirms death of the deceased Majid in the intervening night of 23/24.10.2002 when the occurrence allegedly took place. We have already taken note of ante mortem injuries found on the deceased Majid on conduction of post mortem examination by Dr. V.J.P. Sinha PW-6.

25. Before we enter into factual merit of this case, we find it appropriate to evaluate testimony regarding actual occurrence and it being witnessed by the so-called eye witnesses. The prosecution in order to prove its case against the appellant Suheil has examined PW-1 Maimun Nisha (complainant), PW-2- Ali Akbar and PW-3 Sakelu as eye witness of the occurrence. and from the facts stated by PW-2 Ali Akbar stated in his testimony on page 29 of the paper book, the presence of PW-1 and PW-3 at the place of the incident at the time of occurrence is completely ruled out and the evidence of PW-1 and PW-3 on the point of assault by the appellant on the deceased does not inspire any confidence and is liable to be discarded.

26. In this regard it will be useful to reproduce the relevant extract of the testimony of PW-3 on page- 29 of the paper book " माँ व बुआ के पहुचने के पहले ही सुहैल भाग गए थे I माँ व बुआ ट्रेक्टर पर जब लाश लादी जा रही थी तब पहुची I किसी औरत ने मेरी माँ को बताया था कि सुहैल ने मजीद को मार दिया I जब मेरे दादा को मार दिया तब मई रोने लगा I ५ बजे तक मैं रो रहा था तब तक आदमी नहीं आये थे I सुहैल को मैं पहले सा जानता था I."

27. Upon careful scrutiny of testimony of witnesses of fact, we are convinced that testimony of PW-1 and PW-3 on the face of it appears to be improving on the point that they also have seen the occurrence although it is proved from the testimony of PW-2 that they were not present at the time and place of occurrence.

28. In this context, learned counsel for the appellant has vociferously claimed that testimony of PW-2 is partisan. In fact, he has not seen occurrence as claimed by him. The testimony so forthcoming is contradictory to medical evidence on record. Although Ali Akbar PW-2 was sleeping beside the deceased Majid but he has not seen the occurrence. He appears to be improving all the time due to tutoring. He was not competent witness still the trial court asked him particular questions in his examination-in-chief. The cross examination of PW-2 virtually exposes vulnerability of this witness while he was neither competent nor was he reliable witness.

29. The evidence of PW-1 and PW-3 having been ruled out from consideration in view of their presence on the crime scene at the time of occurrence having been rendered doubtful, we are now left with the evidence of child witness PW-2 Ali Akbar on the point of assault by the appellant on the deceased.

30. In so far as testimony of Ali Akbar PW-2 who is child witness aged about 9 years is concerned, his testimony is quite relevant, for the reason that he was sleeping beside the deceased Majid on the same Takhat (wooden cot) at the time of the incident and he claims to have seen the occurrence when he woke up by on hearing the sound of gun shot fired by the accused-appellant. Now we have to analyze testimony of eye witness PW-2 vis-a-vis attendant circumstances whether testimony as forthcoming from PW-2 is reliable or not?

31. It has been contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that the evidence of PW-2 Ali Akbar is wholly inadmissible on the ground that he being a minor is not competent to depose. The issue whether an accused can be convicted on the basis of uncorroborated evidence of a child witness is no longer res-integra and stands supported by Apex Court in its judgement delivered in the case of Dattu Ram Rao Sakhare and others Vs. State of Maharashtra (1997) 5 SCC page 341. The Apex Court in paragraph 5 of its aforesaid judgement has observed as hereunder:-

"5 - The entire prosecution case rested upon the evidence of Sarubai (P.W.2) a child witness aged about 10 years. It is, therefore, necessary to find out as to whether her evidence is corroborated from other evidence on record. A child be the basis of conviction. In other words even in the absence of oath the evidence of a child witness can be considered under Section 118 of the evidence Act provided that such witness is able to understand the question and able to give rational answers thereof. The evidence of a child witness and credibility thereof would depend upon the circumstances of each case. case. The only precaution which the court should bear in mind while assessing the evidence of a child witness is that the witness must reliable one and his/her demeanour must be like any other competent witness and there is no likelihood of being tutored. There is no practice that in every case the evidence of such a witness be corroborated before a conviction can be allowed to stand but, however as a rule of prudence the court always finds it desirable to have the corroboration to such evidence from other dependable evidence on record. In the light of this well settled principle we may proceed to consider the evidence of Sarubai (P.W.2)."

32. What follows from the reading of the aforesaid judgment is that, the evidence of a child witness can be considered under Section 118 of the evidence Act provided that child witness is able to understand the question and to give rational answers thereof and further there is no practise that in every case, the evidence of child witness be corroborated before a conviction can be recorded as it's basis but as a rule of prudence it is desireable for the court to have the corroboration of such evidence from other dependable evidence on record.

33. We now proceed to test the evidence of PW-1 on the touch stone of this well settled principle.

34. Upon perusal of the statement of PW-2, we find that the trial judge has recorded his reasons and found that PW-2 Ali Akbar was a competent witness and his evidence was unblemished. We do not find any reason to take a view different from one taken by the trial court with regard to the competency of PW-2 to depose in view of the fact that the trial court was the best court to ascertain whether the child witness produced before it was a competent to depose after putting several questions to him and observing his demeanor.

35. Learned counsel for the appellant has next submitted that no reliance can be placed on his evidence for the purpose of convicting the appellant in view of the glaring contradictions and inconsistencies in his evidence on several material particulars of the matter.

36. In order to examine the aforesaid aspect of the matter we will have to analyse the entire testimony of PW-2 in order to asses it's wholesome veracity particularly on the fact whether the incident was witnessed by PW-2 Ali Akbar or not. It is true that on page 28 of the paper book PW-2 Ali Akbar has stated in his evidence recorded before the trial court that on the date of the incident he was sleeping with his grand father Majeed and his younger brother and he had recognized the person who had shot his grand father with a gun which was about 1/2 of arm in length as the accused appellant Suheil and on the same page he deposed that he and his younger brother Ali Sarvar woke up on hearing the sound of a gun shot and on waking up he saw that Suheil had shot his grand father by putting his gun against the body of his grand father from a point blank range and then he had threatened him and his brother with dire consequences in case they dared to raise any hue and cry. Thereafter the appellant Suheil had run away from the place of incident. PW-2 has clearly testified that the incident had taken place on about 12.00 p.m. and he had recognized the accused in the light of the lantern. Attention has also been invited by learned counsel for the appellant to page 29 of the paper book in which PW-2 in his cross examination had admitted that he had on that date deposed only those facts which were narrated to him by his counsel and submitted that PW-2 is a tutored witness and hence his testimony has no evidentiary value and is liable to be discarded.

37. It is true that there are minor contradictions in his evidence on the point whether he was awake at the time of the assault or had waken up after the shot had been fired but the evidence of PW-2 on the point of the presence of the appellant at the time of the incident and at the place of occurrence armed with a gun and his runnng away from the place of occurrence leaving Majeed dead and threatening PW-2 and his younger brother with dire consequences upon noticing that they had woken up and seen him remains unimpeachable and wholly intact. The contradictions in his evidence to which our attention has been invited by te learned counsel for the appellant in our opinion are extremely minor contradictions which do not go to the core of the prosecution case so as to render it unreliable and he cannot be termed as tutored witness merely by picking only a sentence from his testimony by him in his cross examination on page 29 of the paper book that whatever his lawyer had told him he had deposed, in view of the fact that the defense counsel despite subjecting PW-2 to a gruelling cross examination could not succeed in eliciting anything from him which may even remotely create a doubt with regard to the veracity of the facts deposed by him in his evience and upon an over all appraisal his evidence as appears to be umimpeachable and trustworthy.

38. After a thorough analysis and scrutiny of the entire testimony of PW-2, we have no doubt that the incident was witnessed by PW-2 Ali Akbar and the conviction of the appellant can be based on the sole testimony of the child witness PW-2 without insisting on any corroboration.

39. Learned counsel for the appellant has also challenged the veracity of the prosecution case as spelt out in the FIR on the ground of inconsistencies between the ocular testimonry and medical evidence on record. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant by refering to the evidence of PW-6 Dr. B.J.P.Singh who had conducted the post mortem of the dead body of the deceased that the firearm injury found on the dead body of the deceased could have been caused only, if he was sleeping in a particular position. PW-8 Dr. B.J.P. Singh who had conducted the post mortem of the deceased in which his evidence on page 45 of the paper book had stated that " Yadi mritak dahini karvat leta to aur use goli mari jaye to uproktanusar goli ki chot aa sakti hai I Yadi chit leta to to uproktanusar chot aane ki sambhavana kam hai. ". In our opinion even if we accept the aforesaid contention of the learned counsel for the appellant the prosecution case is not liable to be discarded on the aforesaid ground in view of the fact that the prosecution has not come up with a case that the deceased was sleeping ina particular posture when he was shot. Even otherwise the discrepancy between the ocular testimony and the medical evidence pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellant is not of such a degree or irreconcilable so as to render the entire prosecution case unreliable and incredible. The prosecution has come up with a categorical case that the appellant had shot the deceased Majeed while he was sleeping on a wooden table with his grand sons. According to the post mortem report of the deceased one gun shot wound of entry on the left side of the deceased's chest along with a corresponding gun shot wound of exit on right side of chest were found on his dead body. The post mortem report of the deceased in fact corroborates the crux of the prosecution theory that the appellant had shot the deceased with his firearm and in view of the above, the eye witness account of the incident given by PW-2 is not liable to be discarded only on the ground that the prosecution has not been able to prove by any evidence that the deceased was sleeping in the same posture as testified by PW-8 in his evidence when he was shot.

40. Learned counsel for the appellant has further has failed to demonstrate that the appellant's conviction under Section 25 of the Arms Act is vitiated in any manner.

40. In view of the foregoing discussion, we do not find any reason to interfere with the recorded conviction of the appellant under Sections 302, 506(2) IPC and Section 25 of the Arms Act and sentence awarded to him by the trial court vide impugned judgment and order dated 25.08.2016.

41. This appeal lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

42. There shall however be no order as to costs.

The appellant is acquitted of all the charges framed against him. Appellant is in jail, he shall be released forthwith unless and until he is wanted in any other case.

There shall, however, be no order as to cost.

2. Here are the reasons:-

3. By way of instant criminal appeal, challenge has been made by the appellant- Mahendra @ Guddan to the judgment and order of conviction dated 9.11.2006, passed by Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area, Etawah), in Special Sessions Number 104 of 2005 arising out of case crime no.25/2005 and 26/2005, under Sections 307, 364A IPC and 25/27 Arms Act, Police Station Bakewar, District Etawah.

4. Record reveals that first information report was lodged by Sri Ramnath Singh Yadav, Station House Officer, Police Station- Bakewar, District Etawah at police station Bakewar on 25.02.2005 at 11.30 P.M. regarding the alleged offence committed by accused-appellant, under aforesaid Sections of Indian Penal Code, Dacoity Affected Area Act, and Arms Act, respectively, with allegations that while he was on surveillance duty accompanied by S.I. Sri Suresh Kumar Yadav, Constable Shyam Singh in his area on 25.2.2005 and they reached at police out-post Lakhna, who were busy in patrolling duty and as soon as they reached near Jhal Canal Bridge area, across the Bumba Ki Puliay, and were going towards Ranipura Road leading to deserted place, they saw in the head light of jeep, three persons crossing Kharanja side of the road, along with one little child, in the loneliness of night. The police party became apprehensive and tried to stop them, whereupon, with the intention to kill, they fired on the police party, however, members of the police party somehow saved themselves believing that these people have kidnapped some child and are taking him to some deserted place, after combing and surrounding, the miscreants swooped upon them. Two, out of the three miscreants fled away from the scene, whereas one miscreant along with the child was caught ahead of culvert at 9.00 p.m. The child was crying. On being asked, he spelled his name as Rishabh @ Nishant and he spelled his father's name as Komal Kushwaha of village-Berikhera. The child was trembling with fear. When the miscreant was asked about his name, he spelled his name as Mahendra Singh @ Guddan, son of Sidh Gopal Jatav R/o Berikhera, police station Bakewar, Etawah. On search of his person, 0.12 bore country-made pistol with one empty cartridge from his possession were recovered and, beside this, the police party also recovered three live cartridges from the right pocket of his pant and took possession of the same. When they inquired about names of the other two accused, who had secured their escape, then name of one miscreant was spelled as Bhoorey Singh s/o Balram Dhanuk while another miscreant remained unidentified. The police party also inquired about the victim child, whereupon, it transpired that name of this child is Rishabh @ Nishant, son of Komal Kushwaha, (a resident of his- accused Mahendra- neighbouring village). He also stated that Bhoorey Singh son of Balram Dhanuk of his village had asked him 8-10 days ago that child of Komal Kushwaha, who studies in Lakhana school, should be kidnapped and he will get Rs.2000/- as remuneration out of ransom money thereof. It was also promised that whatever ransom is obtained as a result of this act, a share of the same, shall be given to him. The accused also stated that kidnapping was done around 4.00 P.M. when the child was returning after attending the school. Accused further told that he took the child to the Lakhna Bridge where he met with Bhoorey Singh s/o Balram Dhanuk and one more person was accompanying him, whom, he does not know. They along with child were proceeding towards some lonely and deserted place. Bhoorey Singh s/o Balram Dhanuk was saying that the child is to be handed over to notorious Karori Pathak. He also told that Bhoorey Singh s/o Balram Dhanuk and his accomplice fled away towards forest. Victim child told the police that Mahendra @ Guddan, who resides in his neighborhood, took him on pretension of giving strawberry along with co-villager Bhoorey Singh s/o Balram Dhanuk and one more person. The recovered gun along with cartridges was taken into possession and kept sealed. The entire process/episode of recovery was reduced in writing and after obtaining endorsement of all concerned, a memo of the same, was prepared, which is Exhibit Ka-1.

5. The matter was reported at the police station by Sri Ram Nath Singh Yadav, Station House officer, Police Station- Bakewar, District Etawah at 11.30 p.m. on 25.02.2005. Relevant entry was made in the Check FIR at crime numbers 25/2005, under Sections 307, 364A IPC and 10/12 Dacoity Affected Area Act and at Crime No.26/2005 and under Sections 25/27 Arms Act. Check FIR is Exhibit Ka-2.

6. This was followed by entries made in the concerned General Diary Constable Ramnayan Yadav P.W.6 and a case was registered by making entry at Serial No.40 on 25.02.2005 at 11.30 P.M. under aforesaid Sections of Indian Penal Code, D.A.A. & Arms Act, which General Diary entry is Exhibit Ka-3.

7. S.I. Sri Ranvir Singh Khokha P.W.5 was entrusted with the investigation of this case. He noted down relevant information in the case diary, recorded statement of various persons and also handed over custody of the victim Rishab @ Nishant to his father Komal Singh on 26.2.2005 and prepared a memo of the same as Exhibit ka-1. Thereafter investigation was taken over by S.I. Brijesh Kumar Yadav on 11.3.2005. He prepared site plan of the occurrence, Exhibit Ka-4. He also obtained sanction from District Magistrate, Etawah, for filing charge-sheet (for case under Arms Act). After completing investigation, charge-sheet was filed at aforesaid Crime Nos.25/05 and 26/05, under Sections 307, 364 (A) IPC and 10/12 Dacoity Affected Areas Act and under Section 25/27 Arms Act, which charge-sheets are Exhibit Ka-6 and Ka-7 respectively.

8. Thereafter, this case was committed to the court of Sessions from where this case was made over for trial and disposal to the aforesaid court of Special Judge, Dacoity Affected Areas Act, Etawh, where the prosecution and accused both were heard on point of charge and the trial court was satisfied with, prima facie case against the accused, therefore, charges under Sections 364A IPC and 307 read with 34 IPC and under Section 25/27 Arms Act were framed. The prosecution was required to produce all its testimony, whereupon prosecution adduced seven witnesses in all. A brief reference of the same is ut infra :

9. Rishabh P.W.1 is the victim and at the time of his testimony his age was of seven years. He has described about the incident.

10. Komal Singh P.W.2 is the father of the victim.

11. S.I. Suresh Kumar Yadav P.W.3 is the person, who accompanied the informant police party on the day of occurrence when the victim Rishabh was recovered from possession of accused Mahendra and has described about fact of alleged recovery of the child and arrest of accused Mahendra.

12. S.I. Ramnath Yadav P.W.4 is the informant and also eye-witness of fact of recovery of the victim on the basis of recovery memo and has proved the same as Exhibit ka-1.

13. S.I. Ranvir Singh Khokha P.W.5 is the Investigating officer. He has proved his part of investigation.

14. Constable Ramnayan Yadav P.W.6 has made relevant entries in the concerned Check FIR and the GD.

15. S.I. Brijesh Kumar Yadav P.W.7. He is the second Investigating Officer. He has proved his part of investigation and particularly filing of charge-sheets in this case against the accused persons.

16. After the evidence of the prosecution was closed, the statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., wherein, the accused pleaded innocence and alleged false implication on account of enmity.

17. No testimony whatsoever was adduced on behalf of the defence.

18. The learned trial court after hearing submissions of the parties and considering the case on its merit, returned the finding of conviction, whereby, accused Mahendra was convicted under Sections 307/34 IPC and under Section 364A IPC and also under Sections 25/27 Arms Act and was sentenced ut supra.

19. It has been vehemently claimed on behalf of the appellant that the entire testimony on record is self explanatory and self speaking about the police high handed-ness played in-collusion with the first informant that because of village parti-bandi and election of Pradhan, a conspiracy was hatched to teach a lesson to the accused but this conspiracy stands exposed in the face of specific circumstances and particularly when we evaluate testimony of the victim qua unnatural behaviour of the police personnel, which aspect reflects deliberation, embellishment, improvement of testimony and tutoring of witnesses as well. The prosecution deliberately wanted to rope in several persons of opponent party, who had staked claim against P.W.2 Komal Singh in the election of Pradhan. The entire story is afterthought and concocted, full of drama. The testimony on record is inherently contradictory and the same does not inspire any confidence. Prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt.

20. Learned AGA, while refuting the aforesaid contentions, has retorted that the case of the prosecution is proved beyond reasonable doubt. The testimony of child witness is innocuous and inspires confidence. The police party has proved the factum of recovery of the child from possession of the accused around 9 P.M. on 25.2.2005 in forest/deserted place. The very motive for kidnapping, was demand for ransom and the accused was acting for another person- co-accused Bhooray, while the crime was unraveled by the police by making speedy recovery of the child. Whatever contradictions appear in the testimony of the prosecution witnesses of fact are not substantial contradictions, rather, such contradictions are on the face petty in nature having only little effect, which contradictions are bound to occur in testimony of the witnesses and uniformity of description of the incident, which uniformity cannot be expected from each and every witness of the case. Learned trial court has taken just view of the matter and has passed just decision and sentenced appropriately.

21. We have also considered the aforesaid submissions and perused the record.

22. The core consideration that crops up for adjudication of this appeal relates to fact whether the prosecution has been able to establish its case against the appellant beyond reasonable doubt?

23. Upon perusal of the first information report, Exhibit Ka-2, we come across allegations against appellant that fact of recovery of the child and arrest of accused Mahendra took place on 25.2.2005 when the police party headed by informant- Station Officer of Police Station- Bakewar- Sri Ramnath Singh Yadav, caught the appellant at lonely and deserted area within vicinity of village Ranipura.

24. As per allegations made in the FIR, the police party was in search of wanted criminals and on patrolling duty in the area and all of sudden, when the police party reached within periphery of village- Ranipura, after crossing Bumba Ki Puliya, then, they saw in the head light of Jeep three persons crossing the Kharanja road along with one little child at such secluded and deserted place, the police party apprehended some foul play and intercepted the miscreants, whereupon the miscreants fired on the police party but the police personnel somehow managed to save themselves and surrounded them and in the torch light, they saw the miscreants and caught one miscreant around 9 P.M., 50 yards ahead of the culvert along with a little child. On inquiry being made, it transpired that the kidnapped boy belongs to village- Berikhera and name of his father was Komal Singh when inquiry was made from the apprehended culprit, he spelled his name as Mahendra Singh @ Guddan Sidh Gopal Jatav R/o Berikhera, police station Bakewar, district Etawah.

25. The police party also recovered 0.12 bore country-made pistol from his possession with one empty cartridge from its barrel besides recovering three live cartridges from the right pocket of pant and took possession of the same. On inquiry being made, it further transpired that accused Mahendra kidnapped the child at the instance of Bhoorey Singh Dhanuk of the same village and the accused was promised to get Rs.2000/- for this particular act. He was further promised that he shall also be given his share in the ransom. FIR also contains description to the fact that the child was kidnapped around 4.00 P.M. after closure of the school hours when he was returning home. The child was taken at the Lakhna Bridge where Bhoorey met with the accused along with one more person. Bhoorey was telling that this child is to be handed over to Karori Pathak and while they were proceeding further, the police party, apprehended him. First informant made a memo of arrest and seizure of the child and on the basis of the same, FIR was lodged at 25.2.2005 at 11.30 P.M. at Case Crime No.25/2005 Police Station- Bakewar under aforesaid sections of IPC and Dacoity Affected Areas Act and at Case Crime No.26 of 2005 under Sections 25/27 Arms Act.

26. Thereafter, the investigation ensued and it was completed only following intervention of two Investigating Officers- the first one being Ranvir Singh Khokha P.W.5. who has proved his part of investigation till 1.3.2005. After him, S.I. Brijesh Kumar Yadav P.W.7, took over investigation and after completing the investigation filed charge-sheets Exhibit Ka-6 and Ka-7, respectively at aforesaid crime numbers.

27. Now, the prosecution was required to prove its case on merit and the prosecution produced Rishabh @ Nishant P.W.1- the victim- who is the star witness for the prosecution.

28. We have very carefully scanned testimony of this witness (P.W.-1- Rishabh), whereupon, we find that this witness has developed his intelligence to such a level that he was able to understand import of general questions put to him and to answer intelligently such questions. His testimony as a whole, is full of improvement and embellishments and sufficient to shatter the entire prosecution case, on specific points, that this witness was ever kidnapped for ransom by the accused. In the examination-in-chief of this witness, he has specifically stated that he was going back to home from his school, he met with Guddan near temple, Guddan lured him for giving (him) strawberry. This happened around 3.00 P.M. in the afternoon. This witness sat on the bicycle of Guddan then he met with Bhoora, Bhoora also accompanied them. Police saved him and took him to the police out-post. In the night his father came to the police out-post and brought him back home from there. Bhoora and Guddan were identified by this witness in the court also. But this testimony when appraised qua testimony emerging in cross-examination, the same becomes outcome of marvelous tutoring and embellishments. This witness has stated that his father used to drop him at the school then his father also used to take him back from the school and in his cross-examination, he says that police met him two hours after he left the school and daroga ji took him inside the jeep and daroga ji kept this witness with him for around four hours. Then, he stated that daroga ji took him to Berikhera at that time and night had not set in. This witness has conceded to the fact that it was daroga ji, who dropped him at his house and here a question in form of inquisitiveness surfaces; as to whether, the police came to his (P.W.1) home in the very night or not; then, the child witness (P.W.1) nodded in the negative. On page-13 of his cross-examination of the paper book, his testimony reflects that the entire evidence has been tutored either by his counsel or by his father and they had told him to spell name of two accused persons. He has also stated that police had caught Bhoora after one hour when it was day time. He has acceded to the suggestion that at the time when Bhoora was brought at the police station he saw him. He has also nodded in affirmative to the specific query that police told him that accused Bhoora resides in village-Berikhera. This testimony specifically establishes that the police is colluding with the father of the victim and in fact the child remained in possession of the police and the child was brought home, well, in the evening and was dropped at his home and, thereafter, because of village partibandi and enmity on account of election of Pradhan in the village with other party false accusation was made. It is obvious that the police managed and facilitated this occurrence at great ease and convenience. When father of the victim used to drop his child at the school and used to take him back from there, how, and why, the child was returning home on foot, has not been clarified. In this way, the very apprehension of the accused being present at the alleged place near Bumba Ki Puliya culvert, becomes extremely doubtful. The testimony of victim P.W.1 appearing in examination-in-chief, is in sheer contrast to what has emerged in his cross-examination. Claim of false implication due to enmity on account of village partibandi gets strengthened.

29. Relevant to take note of testimony of first informant Ramnath Yadav P.W.4. He has testified that he was busy in search of wanted criminals and was doing patrolling duty within circle of his police station on 25.2.2005 and when he crossed Jhal Canal and Bumba ki puliya and was on way to Ranipura jungle then only, he saw three persons pulling a child with them and, thereafter, the police party after a little resistance by the miscreants overpowered the appellant and recovered the child from his possession. But testimony on record and particularly of the Investigating Officer on page-21 of the paper book indicates that no entry whatsoever regarding departure of S.O. Ramnath Singh from the police station for search of criminals or patrolling duty was ever made in the concerned GD, nor did Ramnath Singh name the wanted criminals for whose search he went out from the police station on 25.2.2005. In this view of the matter, it is obvious that the the story of apprehending the accused at a place 50 yards ahead of Bamba Ki Puliya culvert, is not worth believing. The testimony on this aspect is tainted and improved one- full of material contradictions.

30. One important aspect of this case deserves mention that after the child did not return home around 4 P.M. and in the face of fact that child's father used to pick up the child from the school after close of school hours, no concrete effort was made on behalf of the informant side to lodge any report at the concerned police station about disappearance of the child. But it was the police party and particularly the first informant, Station House Office of police station Bakewar, Etawah, who allegedly apprehended the accused and the child. The apprehended accused and the alleged recovery of the child from possession of the appellant around 9 P.M. on 25.2.2005 and then after elapse of about 2 and ½ hours, lodged the first information report at the police station Bakewar around 11.30 P.M. On this specific circumstance the prosecution, has failed to come out with cogent explanation. Why the father of the victim child kept silent from 4.00 P.M. upto 11.30 P.M. is beyond reason of an ordinary prudent man. The testimony of Ranvir Singh Khokha P.W.5, Brijesh Kumar Yadav P.W.7 and father of the victim Komal Singh P.W.2, respectively, contradicts each other in material particulars. On wholesome consideration of the occurrence and appraisal of evidence and facts vis-a-vis circumstances, lead us to conclusion that it is a case which was managed and handled by the police for embarrassing the accused in order to help his opponent- the other side- who had inimical intendments and for setting score with the accused.

31. The learned trial court while appreciating facts, evaluating testimony and apparent circumstances of the case misread the wholesomeness of the case and recorded findings of conviction on such shaky evidence, which is full of infirmity and hollowness. Consequently, the finding of conviction lacks the legal force and we are unable to uphold the same as such. These are the reasons upon which, we set aside the impugned judgment and order of conviction dated impugned judgment and order dated 9.11.2006 passed by the Special Judge, Dacoity Affected Area, Etawah in Special Sessions Trial No. 104 of 2005, arising out of Case Crime No. 25 of 2005; State Vs. Mahendra alias Guddan convicting the appellant under sections-307/34, 364 A IPC and Sections-25/27 Arms Act.

32. However, we direct that the appellant will ensure compliance of provisions of Section 437A Cr.P.C. by furnishing security bonds before the concerned trial court at the earliest.

33. Let a copy of this order/judgment be certified to the court below for necessary information and follow up action.

Case Law discussed:

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. This application has been filed seeking the release of the applicant on bail in Case Crime No.38 of 2015, u/s 376, 511 I.P.C., Police Station-Sihani Gate, District-Ghaziabad.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

3. Perused the record.

4. Submission of counsel for the applicant is that the applicant was not nominated in the F.I.R. and there is no proper identification parade organized in this case. Further submission is that as the applicant was earlier ousted from the service regarding which some agitation was initiated by the fellow comrades of the union and that had also indignated the office bearers of the hospital, eventually resulting into false implication of the applicant in the present case. Therefore, the applicant should be released on bail.

5. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the prayer for bail and has submitted that this is a case in which one qualified lady doctor, who was employed in the hospital, was indecently assaulted upon by the accused-applicant and an audacious attempt to commit rape upon her was made. Further submission is that the applicant was a sweeper in the same hospital and the statement given by the victim doctor before the Magistrate u/s 164 of Cr.P.C. would indicate that while she was taking rest in the duty room, in the dead of the night the applicant sneaked into the room and gagged her. She resisted, protested and tried to save herself and wriggle out from the clutches of the applicant. In this process of struggling, the shirt of the accused-applicant got torn which was left out in the room itself. Thereafter, seeing his attempt having failed, the applicant fled away from there. Learned A.G.A. has brought the attention of the Court to the material collected by the Investigating Officer further in this regard which is to the effect that when the shirt of the applicant was shown to different members of staff, then Shri Vishnu Durai, who was the Manager of the canteen, told that he had seen the applicant wearing the same shirt in that night. There is also evidence, confirming the presence of the applicant at the place of occurrence, to the effect that when the applicant had run away from the place of occurrence he left the footprints on the floor and there was a trail of imparted footprints from Room No.605 up to the place of occurrence. It is relevant to mention that Room No.605 is the room in which the accused-applicant used to stay in the night. Thereafter when the accused-applicant was arrested the victim Dr. Juhi Chaouksy also had the occasion to see him and there was no mistake in identifying the accused-applicant by her. Submission is that as the victim had already seen the accused and identified him, the identification parade had lost its meaning as it remains useful and purposeful only when the identifying witness did not get any occasion to see the accused after the occurrence. Contention is that as the victim had already seen the accused-applicant then there was hardly any justification for the Investigating Officer to organize the identification parade. Further contention is that the lady doctors' work in the night hours is not only a professional service but they also perform an important social service by doing so and their safety and security is of prime importance. Such kind of audacious temerity displayed by the accused-applicant, who himself was an employee in the same hospital, is highly deplorable and cannot be either soft-pedalled or lightly viewed.

6. Looking to the nature of offence, its gravity and the evidence in support of it and the overall circumstances of this case, this Court is of the view that the applicant has not made out a case for bail. Therefore, the prayer for bail of the applicant is rejected.

7. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

Five Executive Engineers posted in different Divisions of the Rural Engineering Department of the State1 have filed this petition to assail the seniority list dated 22 March 2016. They have also sought a direction that the Department should not hold the Departmental Promotion Committee meeting on 29 April 2016 for considering promotions on the basis of the aforesaid seniority list dated 22 March 2016. An amendment application has been filed to assail the communication dated 1 December 2015 sent by the Special Secretary in the State Government to the Director and Chief Engineer for preparing a fresh seniority list of Assistant Engineers in the Department pursuant to the directions issued by the Supreme Court on 7 April 2015 in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department & R.E.S. v. Narendra Kumar Tripathi,2 and on 26 October 2015 in Special Leave Petition No. 2075 of 20063, Special Leave Petition No. 11832 of 2006 and Writ Petition No. 489 of 2005 as also in certain other writ petitions by the High Court. This amendment application also seeks the quashing of the order dated 25 April 2016 by which additional charge of Superintending Engineer has been given to certain Executive Engineers. An impleadment application has also been filed by Madan Mohan Srivastava. The impleadment application was allowed by order dated 18 May 2016.

The dispute relates to determination of the seniority of Assistant Engineers working in the Department. The seniority of such Assistant Engineers which had been determined on 14 December 2001 did not count the ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to their regularisation on 14 December 1989. It was subjected to challenge in many writ petitions earlier filed from 2001. The Assistant Engineers pleaded that the ad hoc services should be added to their length of service for determining their seniority. Ultimately the Supreme Court decided matters relating to Narendra Kumar Tripathi on 7 April 2015 and directed for re-determination of the seniority by adding the service rendered on ad hoc basis for the purpose of seniority. The seniority was then re-determined on 22 March 2016.

The petitioners also contended that even if the directions issued by the Supreme Court on 7 April 2015 in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department were required to be implemented for all the ad hoc Assistant Engineers, then too the facts of each ad hoc Assistant Engineer were required to be examined. In this connection, it needs to be noted that objections were filed to the tentative seniority list. No distinguishing factor was pointed out in the objections nor it has been pointed out in the writ petition. The Office Order dated 31 December 2015 specifically stated that the seniority would be determined after adding the ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to regularisation as a thumb rule and so if such an objection had to be raised, it was incumbent to raise this particular objection but learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners has not been able to point out from the objections or the order dated 22 March 2016 that such an objection was raised. It was only submitted by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners during the course of hearing that the State Government was required to examine each individual case to find out whether the facts relating to the other Assistant Engineers were the same as that of Narendra Kumar Tripathi. The only distinguishing feature pointed out by the Full Bench regarding Narendra Kumar Tripathi was that prior to his ad hoc appointment on 12 June 1985, he was working in the work-charge establishment from 18 January 1983. Narendra Kumar Tripathi gave up the plea for counting his seniority from 18 Jaunary 1983 before the Supreme Court and stated that only his ad hoc service from 12 June 1985 should be counted. Thus also there is nothing which may distinguish the factual aspects of the other Assistant Engineers from that of Narendra Kumar Tripathi who had been granted relief by the Supreme Court. We are, therefore, not inclined to accept this submission when it was neither raised before the Department at the time of filing the objections or in this writ petition. In any case, as noted above, 108 ad hoc Assistant Engineers had been appointed in four batches in 1985 and even in the appointment order dated 12 June 1985, the petitioner was placed at Serial No. 32. All the Assistant Engineers were similarly situated as would be seen from the case set up by them before the Full Bench in Farhat Hussain Azad.

Thus, as none of the submissions advanced by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners have any force, the writ petition deserves to be dismissed.
