2. The dispute relates to determination of the seniority of Assistant Engineers working in the Department. The seniority of such Assistant Engineers which had been determined on 14 December 2001 did not count the ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to their regularisation on 14 December 1989. It was subjected to challenge in many writ petitions earlier filed from 2001. The Assistant Engineers pleaded that the ad hoc services should be added to their length of service for determining their seniority. Ultimately the Supreme Court decided matters relating to Narendra Kumar Tripathi on 7 April 2015 and directed for re-determination of the seniority by adding the service rendered on ad hoc basis for the purpose of seniority. The seniority was then re-determined on 22 March 2016.

3. The seniority list earlier prepared by the Department on 14 December 2001 placed the petitioners at serial Nos. 106, 109, 107, 122 and 108 respectively. However, even before the finalization of the list on 14 December 2001, Narendra Kumar Tripathi had filed Writ Petition No. 9940 of 2001[4] for quashing the order dated 26 December 2000 by which the State Government had rejected the representation filed by him to claim seniority from the date when he was initially appointed on 18 January 1983 in the Department on work-charge basis. It was stated that he had subsequently been appointed as an Assistant Engineer in the Department on ad hoc basis by order dated 12 June 1985 and his services were regularized by order dated 14 December 1989 but his seniority was being counted from 14 December 1989. He claimed the benefit of the previous service rendered by him on work-charge basis from 18 January 1983. The representation was rejected by the State Government by order dated 26 December 2000. The Division Bench of the High Court allowed this writ petition filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi on 13 February 2003 and directed the Department to fix his seniority from the date of his initial appointment on work-charge basis on 18 January 1983.

4. Narendra Kumar Tripathi also filed Writ Petition No. 11542 of 2004[5] for a direction upon the respondents to promote him on the post of Executive Engineer from the date juniors to him had been granted promotion by giving him seniority from 8 January 1983. Arjun Ravi Das had also filed Writ Petition No. 2605 of 2002[6] for quashing the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 claiming that the period of ad hoc service rendered by him from 1985 prior to his regularization on 14 December 1989 should be counted for the purpose of seniority. This petition field by Arjun Ravi Das was decided with a bunch of writ petitions on 27 February 2004. All the writ petitions were dismissed holding that seniority had to be counted from the date the substantive appointment was given on regularization.

5. It needs to be noted that in view of the conflicting judgments delivered in the first Writ Petition filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi and that filed by Arjun Ravi Das, subsequent Writ Petitions filed by Farhat Hussain Azad[7] and many other Writ Petitions including the second Writ Petition filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi for a direction upon the Department to add the services rendered by the Assistant Engineers on ad hoc basis for determining the seniority, were referred to a Full Bench. The issue that was required to be resolved by the Full Bench was as to whether the services rendered by an employee on ad hoc basis prior to regularization can be counted for the purposes of determining the seniority. The Full Bench in Farhat Hussain Azad observed in paragraph No. 54 that the view taken by the Division Bench in Arjun Ravi Das that such ad hoc service could not be counted was correct. The observations are as follows :-

"In view of the above, the said judgment in N.K. Tripathi (supra) is liable to be declared as a judgment per incurium, as it was decided in complete inadvertence without even making any reference to the facts or the statutory Rules applicable in the case. On the other hand, the judgment in Arjun Ravi Das (supra) is a well reasoned judgment based on the interpretation of the statutory provisions applicable therein. In such a fact situation it cannot be held that there is a conflict in the two judgments of this Court. The law laid down in Arjun Ravi Das (supra) is in consonance with the judgments rendered by the Hon'ble Apex Court from time to time."

6. Thereafter, the Full Bench proceeded to examine the petitions on merits. It noticed that all the writ petitioners except Narendra Kumar Tripathi had initially been appointed as Assistant Junior Engineers on ad hoc basis and they were subsequently regularized. A seniority list of Assistant Engineers was then published on 4 February 1995 but it was subject to the decision of this Court in a petition filed by N. K. Agarwal. A final seniority list was, thereafter, prepared on 14 December 2001. The case of N.K. Tripathi was found to be slightly different by the Full Bench since he was initially appointed as an Assistant Engineer on work-charge basis on a fixed salary in the Department on 10 June 1983 and was, thereafter, appointed as an Assistant Engineer on ad hoc basis by the order dated 12 June 1985. His services were, however, subsequently regularized like that of other ad hoc Assistant Engineers by means of the order dated 14 December 1989. It was sought to be contended by the learned counsel for the petitioners before the Full Bench that the petitioners had been promoted on ad hoc basis as Assistant Engineers in accordance with the procedure prescribed under the various Government Orders and it could not be said that their appointments on ad hoc basis were dehors the Rules. It was, however, sought to be contended by the learned counsel appearing for the State that the ad hoc promotions had not been made in accordance with law and, therefore, the services rendered on ad hoc basis before regularization could not be counted for the purpose of seniority. The Full Bench did not accept the contention of the petitioners and observations are :-

"We have carefully considered the aforesaid submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties. A perusal of the Government Orders dated 7.12.1979 and 3.3.1981 indicate that only the quota for promotion of Junior Engineers to the post of Assistant Engineer had been provided whereas the Government Order dated 1.12.1983 provided for the qualification/ experience require for promotion. The petitioners had not been promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer on ad hoc basis in accordance with the 1954 Regulations or the 1970 Promotion Rules and indeed the learned counsel for the petitioners have also not been able to point out anything which may suggest that the ad hoc promotions had been made in accordance with the aforesaid Rules or Regulations. There is nothing on the record to indicate that the ad hoc appointment had been made in consultation with the Commission on the basis of the recommendation of a Selection Committee as contemplated under the 1970 Promotion Rules. All that has been submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioners is that though the departmental Selection Committee had made recommendations for ad hoc promotion of the petitioners, they cannot be blamed for want of approval by the Commission. Thus, neither was the constitution of the Selection Committee in accordance with the aforesaid Rules and nor was the Commission consulted. Such being the position, the promotion of the petitioners, as ad hoc Assistant Engineer was clearly de hors the Rules and in view of the proposition of law laid down in the aforesaid mentioned cases, such period of officiation cannot be considered for the purposes of seniority. The submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioners, therefore, cannot be accepted."

7. It needs to be noted that before the Full Bench it was also sought to be contended by the learned counsel for the petitioners that the seniority list of 85 Assistant Engineers prepared on 4 February 1995 could have been altered on 14 December 2001 only in respect of the parties in the writ petition filed by N.K. Agarwal but the State, under the garb of the aforesaid judgment, altered the entire seniority list. This contention was repelled by the Full Bench in paragraph 65 of the judgment, which is reproduced below:-

"In our opinion once the criteria for fixation of the seniority was alterated, the seniority list was required to be prepared afresh and the alterations cannot be restricted to the case of the parties alone. This is what has been done by the State after publishing a tentative seniority list and inviting objections from the concerned persons on 1.9.2001. Thus there is no merit in this contention also."

8. Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department filed Special Leave Petition No. 18683 of 2004, which was ultimately numbered as Civil Appeal No. 3348 of 2015 against the judgment rendered on 13 February 2003 in the first writ petition filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi that had been allowed by the Division Bench. Special Leave Petition No. 8330 of 2005, which was ultimately numbered as Civil Appeal No. 3349 of 2005, was also filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi against the judgment rendered by the Full Bench on 10 December 2004. These two Civil Appeals were decided together by the Supreme Court by a common judgment dated 7 April 2015.

9. The Supreme Court noted that the question involved in both the matters was as to whether the writ petitioner was entitled to count the service rendered as an Assistant Engineer from 12 June 1985, the date of his initial appointment on ad hoc basis for the purpose of seniority or service could be counted only from 14 December 1989, the date on which approval to his appointment was given by the State Government under the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Regularization on Ad hoc Appointments (on posts within the purview of the Public Service Commission) Rules, 1979 as amended on 7 August 1989. The Supreme Court held that when the Rules provide that ad hoc appointments have to be regularized and the seniority has to be counted from the date of appointment, the writ petitioner could not have been deprived of the past service rendered by him from 12 June 1985 till the date of his regularization. The Supreme Court observed that the Rules had the effect of treating the appointment as a regular appointment from the date of initial appointment. The observations of the Supreme Court are as follows:-

"The scheme of the working of the Rules in the Department shows that right from 1979, the Department has been making direct recruitment after due selection and by applying the 1979 Rules which rules have been extended from time to time to subsequent recruitments, services were regularized. Validity of the scheme of these recruitments is not under challenge. In such circumstances, when the rules provide that such ad hoc appointments have to be regularized and seniority counted from the date of appointment, the writ petitioner could not be deprived of the past service rendered by him from 12th June, 1985 till the date of regularization. It is not a case of appointments made without due selection or without vacancy or without qualification or in violation of rules. The larger Bench failed to observe that the appointment of the writ petitioner was not dehors the rules nor by way of stop gap arrangement. The rules had the effect of treating the appointment as a regular appointment from initial date of appointment. In these circumstances, the principle laid down in K.C. Joshi was not applicable. It is not a case where service rendered is either fortuitous or against rules or by way of stop gap arrangement. Applying the principle laid down in Direct Recruit Class II Engineering Officers' Association, the writ petitioner is entitled to count service from 12th June, 1985. Moreover, the department has allowed the benefit of past service to other similarly placed incumbents as observed in the judgment giving rise to the appeal of the department.

Accordingly, we are unable to approve the view taken by the larger Bench to the extent it proceeds on the assumption that past service of the writ petitioner was by way of stop gap arrangement or contrary to the rules.

We, therefore, direct the State to redetermine the seniority after hearing the affected parties within six months. It is made clear that benefit of redetermination of seniority at this stage will not disturb holding of posts by any incumbent and except for benefit in pension other benefits to which the writ petitioner may be found entitled will be given only on notional basis."

10. Subsequently, Special Leave Petition[8] filed by S.K. Singh and another against the judgment of the Full Bench in Farhat Hussain Azad together with Writ Petition No. 489 of 2005 and Special Leave Petition No. 11832 of 2006 were taken up by the Supreme Court and they were disposed on 26 October 2015 in terms of the judgment in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department. The observations are as follows:-

"Learned counsel for the petitioners submit that the questions that fall for determination in these petition stand answered in terms of our Order dated 7th April, 2015 passed in Secretary Minor Irrigation Deptt. & R.E.S. v. Narendra Kumar Tripathi - 2015 (4) SCALE 569.

They submit that these petitions could also be disposed off in terms of the said judgment. We see no reason to decline that prayer.

These special leave petitions and writ petition are accordingly disposed off on terms similar to the one set out in the judgment, mentioned above."

11. It also needs to be noted that after the decision was rendered by the Supreme Court on 7 April 2015 in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department & R.E.S., Madan Mohan Srivastava filed a Writ Petition bearing Service Bench No. 637 of 2015[9] before the Lucknow Bench for a direction to regularize his service from the date of his initial ad hoc appointment by giving him the benefit of the aforesaid judgment of the Supreme Court. The High Court after noticing that the petitioner had represented to the Principal Secretary, Personnel Department of the State Government for this grievance, disposed the writ petition with a direction to the Principal Secretary, Personnel Department of the State Government to consider his case also while considering other matters. The persons who had filed impleadment applications in this petition were also given liberty to raise their objections.

12. Riyaz Ali had also earlier filed Claim Petition No. 2150 of 1995 before the State Public Service Tribunal. The Tribunal allowed the petition by order dated 6 February 1997 and directed the Department to prepare a fresh seniority list by giving the petitioner seniority from the date of initial ad hoc appointment like other Assistant Engineers and, thereafter, to place the petitioner at the proper place. The State of Uttar Pradesh filed a Writ Petition[10] to assail the order passed by the Tribunal. This petition was dismissed on 15 July 2015 in view of the law laid down by the Supreme Court in the case of Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department. The Court also directed the State to ensure compliance of the order passed by the Tribunal.

13. It transpires that Dinesh Kumar and three others had also filed Claim Petition No. 2018 of 2015 before the State Public Service Tribunal contending that they were given ad hoc appointments on the post of Assistant Engineer on 25 April 1985 and subsequently regularized on 14 December 1989 and so they should also be given the benefit of the decision of the Supreme Court in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department and the services rendered by them from 12 June 1985 should be counted for the purpose of seniority. The Tribunal disposed of the petition with a direction to the respondents to decide the representation filed by them for this relief.

14. Pursuant to the aforesaid directions issued by the Supreme Court, the High Court and the Tribunal, the Special Secretary in the State Government sent a communication dated 1 December 2015 to the Director and Chief Engineer pointing out that in view of the directions contained in the judgment rendered by the Supreme Court in Secretary Minor Irrigation Department on 7 April 2015, the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 has been cancelled and a decision has been taken to prepare a fresh seniority list after adding the services rendered by Assistant Engineers on ad-hoc basis.

15. The Department, thereafter, issued the Office Order dated 31 December 2015. This Office Order refers to the aforesaid directions issued by the Supreme Court, the High Court and the Tribunal and states that in order to give effect to the aforesaid directions, the length of service rendered by the Assistant Engineers on ad hoc basis was required to be counted, as a thumb rule, from the date they were initially appointed on ad hoc basis. The seniority lists dated 14 December 2001 and 15 June 2012 were, accordingly, cancelled and a tentative seniority list was published to which objections were invited in 15 days.

16. Brijesh Kumar Dubey[11] filed a writ petition before the Lucknow Bench to challenge the Office Order dated 31 December 2015 issued by the Principal Secretary in the State Government for re-determination of the seniority of Assistant Engineers from the date of their ad hoc appointments. Learned counsel appearing for the interveners in the said petition contended that the tentative seniority list had been published to give effect to the directions of the Supreme Court and the High Court. This petition was disposed of on 15 March 2015 holding that there was no error in the impugned order issued by the State Government but since the objections submitted by the aggrieved persons were under consideration, a direction was issued that the objections should be considered in accordance with the law laid down by the Supreme Court as well as the Rules.

17. The objections dated 12 January 2016 submitted by Rashi Mani Mishra, who is petitioner No.1, have been enclosed with the writ petition. It has been stated in the objection that since he was not a party in the Civil Appeal filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi before the Supreme Court, the order of the Supreme Court for re-determination of the seniority would not be applicable to his case. After referring to various decisions and the Rules it was sought to be contended that the tentative seniority list dated 31 December 2015 should be cancelled and the earlier seniority list dated 14 December 2001 should be restored.

18. The objections filed by the Assistant Engineers to the tentative seniority list dated 31 December 2015 were considered and decided by the State Government by a detailed order dated 22 March 2016 and a final seniority list was declared. The petitioners who were at serial Nos.106, 109, 107, 122 and 108 in the earlier seniority list dated 14 December 2001 were placed at serial Nos.260, 208, 261, 274 and 262 in the seniority list dated 22 March 2016.

19. Sri T.P. Singh, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioners assisted by Sri Anil Kumar Srivastava made the following submissions :-

(i) the judgment rendered by the Supreme Court in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department is a judgment rendered in personam and is confined to the relief claimed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi before the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court granted relief to Narendra Kumar Tripathi after finding that his initial appointment on ad hoc basis on 12 June 1985 was in accordance with the Rules. He, therefore, submitted that the seniority of all the Assistant Engineers was not required to be re-determined and in support of his submission placed reliance upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in State of Uttar Pradesh and others v. Arvind Kumar Srivastava[12];

(ii) the seniority determined by the Department on 14 December 2001 could not have been reopened after a period of 15 years. In support of this contention learned Senior Counsel placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Rajendra Pratap Singh Yadav & Ors. v. State of U.P. and others[13]; and

(iii) in any case, the Department was obliged to examine whether the ad hoc appointments of the Assistant Engineers who were claiming the benefit of ad hoc services were in accordance with the law laid down by the Full Bench in Farhat Hussain Azad and were not by way of stop gap arrangement or fortuitous.

20. Sri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the private respondents, however, submitted:-

(i) the State Government was obliged to prepare a fresh seniority list keeping in mind the principle that ad hoc services rendered by the Assistant Engineers prior to their regularization was required to be counted for determining the seniority in view of the law laid down by the Supreme Court in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department ;

(ii) the view taken by the Full Bench of the High Court in Farhat Hussain Azad that ad hoc services rendered prior to regularisation cannot be counted for the purpose of determining the seniority was specifically overruled by the Supreme Court and it was held that ad hoc services rendered prior to regularisation should be counted for the purpose of seniority and so this principle was required to be applied to all the Assistant Engineers ;

(iii) the State Government was, therefore, obliged to implement the directions given by the Supreme Court in Secretary Minor Irrigation Department. Directions were also subsequently issued by the Supreme Court in other matters and directions were also issued by the High Court and the Tribunal for implementing the aforesaid directions of the Supreme Court for re-determination of the seniority ;

(iv) to support the contention that the direction in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department was required to be implemented for all the Assistant Engineers, reliance was placed on the judgment of the Supreme Court in M/s Shenoy and Company and Others v. Commercial Tax Officer and Others[14]; and

(v) no objection was taken by the petitioners in their objections to the tentative seniority list that there was any distinguishing feature from that of Narendra Kumar Tripathi or there was any factual mistake in adding the ad hoc services of the Assistant Engineers for the purpose of seniority.

21. Ms. Meenakshi Singh, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State contended that:-

(i) no exception can be taken to the decision of the State to cancel the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 and to issue a fresh seniority list after inviting objections from all the Assistant Engineers in the light of the law laid down by the Supreme Court in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department ;

(ii) even otherwise, the seniority list was prepared afresh not only in the light of the decision of the Supreme Court Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department but also to ensure compliance of the directions issued by the Supreme Court in the Special Leave Petitions and the Writ Petition that were subsequently decided by the Supreme Court on 26 October 2015, as also the orders passed in various writ petitions by the High Court and the Tribunal ;

(iii) by Office Order dated 31 December 2015 a tentative list was published inviting objections from all concerned and the final seniority list was published on 22 March 2016 after taking into consideration all the objections and there is no illegality nor any factual error has been pointed out in the petition ;and

(iv) Narendra Kumar Tripathi was selected on ad hoc basis along with many other Assistant Engineers by order dated 12 June 1985 after an advertisement was published in December 1984 and was placed at serial No. 32 in the list. In fact 108 Assistant Engineers had been granted ad hoc appointments in 1985. A seniority list dated 14 December 2001 was prepared in which the ad hoc services of such Assistant Engineers was not added for the purpose of seniority. This seniority list never attained finality as it was challenged in many Writ Petitions before the Division Bench and the Full Bench of the High Court and against the decision of the Full Bench in Farhat Hussain Azad the matter was finally decided by the Supreme Court in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department on 7 April 2015. A direction was given to re-determine the seniority after adding the ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to regularisation. It is, therefore, not correct on the part of the petitioners to allege that the final seniority list published on 14 December 2001 has been reopened after 15 years.

22. Sri Manu Khare, learned counsel appearing for the private respondents adopted the arguments of Sri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Counsel and also placed reliance upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Amrit Lal Berry v. Collector of Central Excise, New Delhi and Others[15].

23. We have considered the submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties.

24. The dispute in this petition is about the seniority of Assistant Engineers working in the Department. As noted above, 108 Assistant Engineers were given ad hoc appointments in 1985 after an advertisement had been issued. Their services were subsequently regularized on 14 December 1989 under the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Regularization of Ad hoc Appointments (on posts within the purview of Public Service Commission) (Second Amendment) Rules, 1989. A final seniority list was thereafter prepared on 14 December 2001. The services rendered by such Assistant Engineers on ad hoc basis were not counted for seniority purpose and their seniority was determined from the date of their regularization on 14 December 1989. This seniority list was challenged in various writ petitions. In fact Narendra Kumar Tripathi, in the first petition filed by him even before the declaration of the final seniority list, had challenged the order rejecting his representation that he had filed for adding the ad hoc services rendered by him prior to 14 December 1989. The order of the State Government was set aside in this writ petition filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi and a direction was issued to fix his seniority from the date of his initial appointment in the work-charge establishment of the Department on 18 January 1983. It may be stated that initially Narendra Kumar Tripathi was working in the Department on work-charge basis from 18 January 1983 before he was given ad hoc appointment on 12 June 1985. The seniority list dated 14 December 2001 was also challenged in various Writ Petitions. A Division Bench of this Court on 27 February 2004 in Ravi Arjun Das filed by ad hoc Assistant Engineers for counting the service rendered on ad hoc basis prior to regularisation in 1989 for the purposes of seniority was dismissed on 27 February. Thereafter, certain other Writ Petitions, including the second Writ Petition by Narendra Kumar Tripathi were filed and finding a conflict between the two Division Benches in Narendra Kumar Tripathi and Arjun Ravi Das, these Writ Petitions were referred to a Full Bench. The issue before the Full Bench was as to whether the services rendered on ad hoc basis prior to regularisation should be counted for determining the seniority. The Full Bench observed that ad hoc services rendered after appointment made dehors the Rules and without following any procedure prescribed by law cannot be counted for the purposes of seniority. The Full Bench, thereafter decided the petitions on merit in view of the statement made by the learned counsel for the parties. The Full Bench found that all the petitioners had been initially appointed on ad hoc basis as Assistant Engineers in the year 1985 except Narendra Kumar Tripathi who had been initially engaged in the work-charge establishment in 1983 and was thereafter appointed on 12 June 1985 as an Assistant Engineer on ad hoc basis. The Full Bench noted that the services of all such ad hoc Assistant Engineers appointed in 1985 were subsequently regularized by the order dated 14 December 1989 and a final seniority list was prepared on 14 December 2001. This seniority list did not count the services rendered by the Assistant Engineers on ad hoc basis. The Full Bench dismissed all the petitions holding that the ad hoc services rendered prior to regularization could not be counted for the purposes of seniority. The seniority list was, therefore, not disturbed by the Full Bench.

25. Narendra Kumar Tripathi filed a Special Leave Petition before the Supreme Court against the judgment rendered by the Full Bench on 10 December 2004. Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department also filed a Special Leave Petition against the judgment rendered on 13 February 2003 in the first petition filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi. These Special Leave Petitions were subsequently numbered as Civil Appeal No.3348 of 2015 and Civil Appeal No.3349 of 2015 respectively. The Supreme Court noticed that in both the matters the question was whether Narendra Kumar Tripathi was entitled to count the ad hoc service on the post of Assistant Engineer from 12 June 1985, which was the date of his initial appointment on ad hoc basis for the purposes of seniority or his service was to be counted only from 14 December 1989, which was the date on which he was regularized in service. It needs to be stated that Narendra Kumar Tripathi had made a statement before the Supreme Court that his seniority should be counted from 12 June 1985 and not from 18 January 1983 when he was appointed on work-charge basis. The Supreme Court held that when the Rules provide for regularisation of such ad hoc appointments, then Narendra Kumar Tripathi could not be deprived of the past services rendered by him from 12 June 1985 till the date of regularisation for the reason that the Rules had the effect of treating the appointment as a regular appointment from the initial date of appointment. The Supreme Court also observed that the Department had allowed the benefit of the past services rendered on ad-hoc basis to other similarly placed incumbents as was noted by the High Court in the first writ petition filed by Narendra Kumar Tripathi. The Supreme Court, therefore, directed the State to re-determine the seniority after hearing the affected parties within six months. Thereafter, as noticed above, Special Leave Petition filed by S.K. Singh and others against the judgment of the Full Bench rendered on 10 December 2004 with one more Special Leave Petition and a Writ Petition were disposed of by the Supreme Court on 26 October 2015 in terms of the directions set out in the judgment rendered in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department on 7 April 2015. Certain other writ petitions were also disposed of by the High Court and the Tribunal in the same terms.

26. On a consideration of various directions issued by the Supreme Court, the High Court and the Tribunal, the State Government issued an Office Order dated 31 December 2015 notifying the tentative seniority list and requiring all concerned to file objections, if any, within fifteen-days. Objections were filed and were considered and thereafter a final seniority list was published on 22 March 2016. The writ petitioners, who were at Serial Nos.106, 109, 107, 122, 108 in the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 have now been placed at Serial Nos.260, 208, 261, 274, 262 in the seniority list dated 22 March 2016. They have, accordingly, filed this petition for setting aside this seniority list dated 22 March 2016 and for reviving the earlier seniority list dated 14 December 2001.

27. Thus, right from 2001 the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 has been in constant litigation and in 2015 directions were given by the Supreme Court to re-determine the seniority. The State Government has now determined the seniority on 22 March 2016. It is, therefore, not possible to accept the contention of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners that the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 has now been reopened after 15 years in 2016 without any basis. The decision of the Supreme Court in Rajendra Pratap Singh Yadav, therefore, does not help the petitioners.

28. The main contention of Sri T.P. Singh, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioners was that the directions that were issued by the Supreme Court related to Narendra Kumar Tripathi and, therefore, his seniority was only required to be re-determined. There was, in such circumstances, no occasion for the State Government to re-determine the seniority of all the Assistant Engineers who had been working on ad hoc basis.

29. The contention of learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State and the learned Senior Counsel appearing for the private respondents is that the Supreme Court did not accept the stand of the State Government that the ad hoc services rendered prior to regularisation should not be counted for the purpose of seniority and a specific direction was issued that ad hoc services rendered from 1985 upto the date of regularisation should also be counted for the purpose of seniority. It was, therefore, contended that it was incumbent upon the State Government to have re-determined the seniority by giving the benefit to all the Assistant Engineers who had rendered such ad hoc services and not to Narendra Kumar Tripathi alone, more particularly when such a direction was subsequently issued by the Supreme Court in two Special Leave Petitions and one Writ Petition filed by other Assistant Engineers as also the directions issued by the High Court as well as the Tribunal subsequently to prepare a fresh seniority list in the light of the directions issued by the Supreme Court on 7 April 2015 in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department.

30. It is not in dispute that the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 did not count the ad hoc services rendered by the Assistant Engineers prior to their regularisation. The Full Bench upheld the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 holding that the State was justified in not giving this benefit. In the opinion of the Full Bench, all the Assistant Engineers had been appointed on ad hoc basis dehors the Rules as neither the constitution of the Selection Committee was in accordance with the Rules nor was the Public Service Commission consulted. This view of the Full Bench in Farat Hussain Azad was not accepted by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court held that the High Court failed to notice that the appointment was not dehors the Rules nor by way of stop gap arrangement or fortuitous. The Supreme Court held that in such circumstances the writ petitioner could not be deprived of the past ad hoc service rendered by him from 12 June 1985 till the date of regularisation. The Supreme Court also specifically observed that it was unable to approve the view taken by the Full Bench to the extent it proceeded on the assumption that past service of the writ petitioner was by way of stop gap arrangement or contrary to the Rules and directed the State to re-determine the seniority after hearing the affected parties within six months. The Supreme Court also observed that the benefit of re-determination of seniority at this stage will not disturb holding of posts by any incumbent and except for the benefit in pension, other benefits to which the writ petitioner may be found entitled will be given only on notional basis.

31. Once the principle on the basis of which the seniority list was prepared on 14 December 2001 did not find favour of the Supreme Court, the entire seniority had to be re-determined in the light of the observations made and the directions issued by the Supreme Court, more so when such directions were subsequently also issued by the Supreme Court in Special Leave Petition (C) No.2075 of 2006, Writ Petition No.489 of 2005 and Special Leave Petition (C) No.11832 of 2006 and also by the High Court in matters referred to above as well as by the Tribunal.

32. It is not a case where there was a factual error committed by the Department while placing Narendra Kumar Tripathi in the seniority list. The principle that ad hoc services rendered prior to the regularisation should not be counted formed the basis on which the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 was prepared but this did not find favour of the Supreme Court and it was specifically held that ad hoc services rendered prior to the regularisation should be counted for the purpose of seniority. Narendra Kumar Tripathi was amongst the 108 Assistant Engineers who had been appointed on ad hoc basis in 1985. In fact, the appointment order dated 12 June 1985 related to a number of Assistant Engineers and Narendra Kumar Tripathi was placed at Serial No.32. Three other similar orders were issued in 1985 as a result of which 108 ad hoc appointments were made.

33. It needs to be remembered that as the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 did not count the period of ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to their regularisation, large number of Writ Petitions had been filed to challenge the seniority list dated 14 December 2001 and they were heard together and decided by a common judgment by the Full Bench in Farhat Hussain Azad. Common contentions were raised on behalf of the petitioners as would be apparent from the judgment and it cannot be said that any particular petitioner raised an issue peculiar and individual to his petition. The High Court did not accept the contention of the petitioners and dismissed all the writ petitions holding that ad hoc services rendered by such Assistant Engineers prior to regularization could not be added. However, the Supreme Court did not accept this view of the High Court and directed in the matters relating to Narendra Kumar Tripathi that ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to regularisation should be counted for the purpose of seniority. It needs to be reiterated that a principle for determining the seniority of Assistant Engineers had been determined by the Supreme Court and this principle was, therefore, required to be followed for all the similarly situated Assistant Engineers.

34. Thus, when relief was granted to Narendra Kumar Tripathi then identically situated Assistant Engineers were required to be treated alike by extending that benefit to them and this is what was done. On the other hand, if this was not done, it would have resulted in discrimination and this would be violative of Article 14 of the Constitution. It was, therefore, incumbent upon the State Government to have given the benefit of such ad hoc services to all the other ad hoc Assistant Engineers. It is for this purpose that the State Government issued the Office Order dated 31 December 2015 indicating this position and inviting objections from all concerned to the tentative seniority list.

35. In this connection, it will be useful to refer to the decision of the Supreme Court in M/s Shenoy & Company (supra), on which reliance has been placed by learned Senior Counsel for the respondents. A batch of 1590 writ petitions were filed in the Karnataka High Court by a large number of traders including Hansa Corporation to challenge the constitutional validity of The Karnataka Tax on Entry of Goods into Local Areas for Consumption, Use or Sale Therein Act, 1979. The Division Bench of the Karnataka High Court, by a common judgment dated 24 August 1979, struck down the Act, allowed the writ petitions and issued a mandamus to the State Government forbearing it from taking any proceedings under the Act. The State Government, however, filed only one appeal against the writ petition filed by Hansa Corporation and the Supreme Court by the judgment dated 25 September 1980 allowed the appeal, set aside the judgment of the Karnataka High Court and upheld the validity of the Act. The Authorities, thereafter, issued notices to all the dealers including those who had filed writ petitions in the High Court calling upon them to register themselves under the Act and to file returns and pay the amount of tax due under the original 1979 Act. Writ petitions were then filed by such dealers in the Karnataka High Court contending that notices issued to them were bad in law inasmuch as the State had not filed any appeal against the judgment rendered in the writ petitions filed by them and that the judgment of the Supreme Court could rescue the State from taking proceedings only against Hansa Corporation and not against them. The writ petitions were dismissed by the Karnataka High Court. The Supreme Court examined whether the judgment in the writ petition filed by Hansa

Corporation validated the action of the State and after referring to the earlier decisions of the Supreme Court in State of Punjab Vs. Joginder Singh[16] and Makhanlal Waza Vs. Jammu & Kashmir State[17], the Supreme Court held that the decision of the Supreme Court would not only bind Hansa Corporation but all the writ petitioners before the High Court. The observations are:

"22. Though a large number of writ petitions were filed challenging the Act, all those writ petitions were grouped together, heard together and were disposed of by the High Court by a common Judgment. No petitioner advanced any contention peculiar or individual to his petition, not common to others. To be precise, the dispute in the cause or controversy between the State and each petitioner had no personal or individual element in it or anything personal or peculiar to each petitioner. The challenge to the constitutional validity of 1979 Act proceeded on identical grounds common to all petitioners. This challenge was accepted by the High Court by a common judgment and it was this common judgment that was the subject matter of appeal before this Court in Hansa Corporation case. When the Supreme Court repelled the challenge and held the Act constitutionally valid, it in terms disposed of not the appeal in Hansa Corporation case alone, but petitions in which the High Court issued mandamus on the non-existent ground that the 1979 Act was constitutionally invalid. It is, therefore, idle to contend that the law laid down by this Court in that judgment would bind only the Hansa Corporation and not the other petitioners against whom the State of Karnataka had not filed any appeal. To do so is to ignore the binding nature of a judgment of this Court under Article 141 of the Constitution. Article 141 reads as follows:

"The law declared by the Supreme Court shall be binding on all courts within the territory of India"

24. A writ or an order in the nature of mandamus has always been understood to mean a command issuing from the Court, competent to do the same, to a public servant amongst others, to perform a duty attaching to the office, failure to perform which leads to the initiation of action. In this case, the petitioners-appellants assert that the mandamus in their case was issued by the High Court commanding the authority to desist or forbear from enforcing the provisions of an Act which was not validly enacted. In other words, a writ of mandamus was predicated upon the view that the High Court took that the 1979 Act was constitutionally invalid. Consequently the court directed the authorities under the said Act to forbear from enforcing the provisions of the Act qua the petitioners. The Act was subsequently declared constitutionally valid by this Court. The Act, therefore, was under an eclipse, for a short duration; but with the declaration of the law by this Court, the temporary shadow cast on it by the mandamus disappeared and the Act revived with its full vigour, the constitutional invalidity held by the High Court having been removed by the judgment of this Court. If the law so declared invalid is held constitutionally valid, effective and binding by the Supreme Court, the mandamus for bearing the authorities from enforcing its provisions would become ineffective and the authorities cannot be compelled to perform a negative duty. The declaration of the law is binding on everyone and it is therefore, futile to contend that the mandamus would survive in favour of those parties against whom appeals were not filed."

(emphasis supplied)

36. In the present case also, a batch of writ petitions were decided by a common judgment by the Full Bench in Farat Hussain Azad. The dispute was not personal or individual to any particular petitioner but was a common dispute as to whether the ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to regularisation should be counted for the purpose of seniority. Though all the writ petitioners may not have approached the Supreme Court, certainly Narendra Kumar Tripathi did approach the Supreme Court. In such circumstances, when the Supreme Court directed as a principle that ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to the regularisation should be counted for the purpose of seniority and the seniority should be re-determined, it cannot be contended by the petitioners that the State Government was not justified in re-determining the seniority of such ad hoc Assistant Engineers. We must, however, hasten to add that directions had also been issued by the Supreme Court, the High Court and the Tribunal in other matters to which we have adverted earlier. The State was, therefore, justified in issuing the Office Order dated 31 December 2001 inviting objections from all concerned against the tentative seniority list based on the thumb rule indicated in the judgment of the Supreme Court.

37. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners, however, placed reliance upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Arvind Kumar Srivastava & Ors to contend that the seniority of Narendra Kumar Tripathi alone was required to be re-determined. In paragraph 22, the Supreme Court summed up the legal principles as follows:

"22. The legal principles which emerge from the reading of the aforesaid judgments, cited both by the appellants as well as the respondents, can be summed up as under.

22.1. The normal rule is that when a particular set of employees is given relief by the Court, all other identically situated persons need to be treated alike by extending that benefit. Not doing so would amount to discrimination and would be violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. This principle needs to be applied in service matters more emphatically as the service jurisprudence evolved by this Court from time to time postulates that all similarly situated persons should be treated similarly. Therefore, the normal rule would be that merely because other similarly situated persons did not approach the Court earlier, they are not to be treated differently.

22.2 However, this principle is subject to well recognized exceptions in the form of laches and delays as well as acquiescence. Those persons who did not challenge the wrongful action in their cases and acquiesced into the same and woke up after long delay only because of the reason that their counterparts who had approached the Court earlier in time succeeded in their efforts, then such employees cannot claim that the benefit of the judgment rendered in the case of similarly situated persons be extended to them. They would be treated as fence-sitters and laches and delays, and/or the acquiescence, would be a valid ground to dismiss their claim.

22.3 However, this exception may not apply in those cases where the judgment pronounced by the Court was judgment in rem with intention to give benefit to all similarly situated persons, whether they approached the Court or not. With such a pronouncement the obligation is cast upon the authorities to itself extend the benefit thereof to all similarly situated person. Such a situation can occur when the subject matter of the decision touches upon the policy matters, like scheme of regularisation and the like [see K.C. Sharma & Ors. v. Union of India, (1997) 6 SCC 721]. On the other hand, if the judgment of the Court was in personam holding that benefit of the said judgment shall accrue to the parties before the Court and such an intention is stated expressly in the judgment or it can be impliedly found out from the tenor and language of the judgment, those who want to get the benefit of the said judgment extended to them shall have to satisfy that their petition does not suffer from either laches and delays or acquiescence."

38. It has been held by the Supreme Court in the aforesaid decision that normally relief should be given to all other identical situated persons if a particular set of employees are given relief by the Court as not doing so would amount to discrimination and would be violative of Article 14 of the Constitution. The Supreme Court emphasised that this principle needs to be applied more emphatically in services matters as service jurisprudence postulates that all similarly situated persons should be treated similarly. An exception was, however, carved out in cases of laches and delay as well as acquiescence but even this exception, it has been held, would not apply where the judgment pronounced by the Court is a judgment in rem with the intention to give benefit to all similarly situated persons. Such a situation would arise when the subject matter of the decision touches upon policy matters, like a scheme for regularisation of service. However, if the judgment of the Court is in personam, benefit of such judgment shall accrue to the parties before the Court and this would be when it is either expressly stated or can be impliedly found out from the tenor and language of the judgment.

39. In the present case, the subject matter of the decision before the Supreme Court was a policy matter as to whether the benefit of ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to their regularisation should be extended or not for the purpose of seniority. The State Government issued the Office Order dated 31 December 2015 immediately after the decisions were rendered by the Supreme Court and the High Court as also the Tribunal. The judgment of the Supreme Court did direct for re-determination of the seniority list in six months and it cannot by any stretch of imagination be said that the judgment was a judgment in personam.

40. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners also contended that even if the directions issued by the Supreme Court on 7 April 2015 in Secretary, Minor Irrigation Department were required to be implemented for all the ad hoc Assistant Engineers, then too the facts of each ad hoc

Assistant Engineer were required to be examined. In this connection, it needs to be noted that objections were filed to the tentative seniority list. No distinguishing factor was pointed out in the objections nor it has been pointed out in the writ petition. The Office Order dated 31 December 2015 specifically stated that the seniority would be determined after adding the ad hoc services rendered by Assistant Engineers prior to regularisation as a thumb rule and so if such an objection had to be raised, it was incumbent to raise this particular objection but learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners has not been able to point out from the objections or the order dated 22 March 2016 that such an objection was raised. It was only submitted by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners during the course of hearing that the State Government was required to examine each individual case to find out whether the facts relating to the other Assistant Engineers were the same as that of Narendra Kumar Tripathi. The only distinguishing feature pointed out by the Full Bench regarding Narendra Kumar Tripathi was that prior to his ad hoc appointment on 12 June 1985, he was working in the work-charge establishment from 18 January 1983. Narendra Kumar Tripathi gave up the plea for counting his seniority from 18 Jaunary 1983 before the Supreme Court and stated that only his ad hoc service from 12 June 1985 should be counted. Thus also there is nothing which may distinguish the factual aspects of the other Assistant Engineers from that of Narendra Kumar Tripathi who had been granted relief by the Supreme Court. We are, therefore, not inclined to accept this submission when it was neither raised before the Department at the time of filing the objections or in this writ petition. In any case, as noted above, 108 ad hoc Assistant Engineers had been appointed in four batches in 1985 and even in the appointment order dated 12 June 1985, the petitioner was placed at Serial No.32. All the Assistant Engineers were similarly situated as would be seen from the case set up by them before the Full Bench in Farhat Hussain Azad.

41. Thus, as none of the submissions advanced by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners have any force, the writ petition deserves to be dismissed. It is, accordingly, dismissed. The interim order stands vacated.

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Arun K. Singh Deshwal, Arun K. Singh -I

Counsel for the Respondents:

This petition has been filed by the petitioner with a prayer to direct the respondents to produce the petitioner before this Court and also for quashing the order dated 27.1.2016 passed by respondent no.2, District Magistrate, Bijnor as well as order dated 16.3.2016 passed by respondent no.1.

It has been stated by the detaining authority that on 22.12.2015, the District President of Uttar Pradesh Prathmik Shikshak Sangh, Bijnor namely Nagesh Kumar, S/o Lal Bahadur Singh who was the Headmaster of the Primary School, Haldaur and was also working on the post of A.B.R.C., Haldaur, had called a meeting in Indr Park, Bijnor. The petitioner in a public place at Indra Park where the said meeting of the teachers association was going on, reached there and in broad-day-light shot a fire at the temporal region of Nagesh Kumar who received serious injuries. Due to the said act of the petitioner, the teachers present at the Indra Park and people of the nearby area became panic and tension prevailed and there was a sense of insecurity and fear in the people due to which there was disturbance of public order for which an FIR was lodged by one Manoj Kumar against the petitioner.

After registration of the said case, the Investigating Officer started the investigation and made spot inspection and further recovered empty cartridge and other articles from the place of occurrence. The statement of the informant and eye-witness Manoj Kumar was recorded who has supported the prosecution case. The other eye-witnesses also in their statements have supported the prosecution case and from the medical report of the said injured, injuries of fire-arm were found. As per the statement of the Doctor who had examined the injured opined that due to the injuries received by the injured Nagesh Kumar he was not able to speak. The Investigating Officer of the case tried to arrest the petitioner but the petitioner could not be arrested and it was stated that he surrendered on 1.1.2016 before the Magistrate concerned. He was thereafter sent to jail and the petitioner was taken in the custody of the Investigating Officer on 12.1.2016 and on remand at his pointing out, a country-made pistol of 32 bore was recovered from the village Bakar from a Sugar Cane field and from the said pistol, a live cartridge was also recovered. The recovery memo of the pistol was prepared, on the basis of which the Investigating Officer has registered a case u/s 25/27 of the Arms Act which was registered as Case Crime No.30 of 2016 and the same was endorsed in the G.D of Police Station Kotwali City, district Bijnor at 12.30 hours on 12.1.2016.

The representation of the petitioner dated 9.2.2016 which was received by the Central Government on 11.2.2016 was decided after a gross delay on 26.5.2016 i.e. after more than three and half months. The explanation which has been given in the counter affidavit of respondent no.6 in para nos.4, 5 and 6 is wholly unsatisfactory. Thus the detention order passed by the detaining authority and confirmed by the State Government are liable to be set-aside on this ground alone.

Accordingly, the detention order dated 27.1.2016 passed by respondent no.2 as well as order dated 16.3.2016 passed by respondent no.1 are hereby set-aside.

Held: Para-

Case Law discussed:
Nandu @ Nand Kishore Vs. Union of India reported in 2012 (79) ACC 869

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ramesh Sinha, J.)

1. This petition has been filed by the petitioner with a prayer to direct the respondents to produce the petitioner before this Court and set him at liberty forthwith and also for quashing the order dated 27.1.2016 passed by respondent no.2, District Magistrate, Bijnor as well as order dated 16.3.2016 passed by respondent no.1.

2. The brief facts of the case are that an FIR was lodged by one Manoj against the petitioner on 22.12.2015 u/s 307 IPC which was registered as Case Crime No.1288 of 2015 at Police Station Kotwali City, District Bijnor at 20.10 hours for an incident which is said to have taken place on the same day at 14 hours. In the incident one person namely Nagesh Kumar received injuries, who was medically examined on 22.12.2015 and was discharged from the hospital on 2.1.2016.

3. It appears that on the basis of the said solitary case, the detention order was passed by the District Magistrate, Bijnor, respondent no.2 against the petitioner u/s 3(2) of National Security Act (hereinafter referred to as the NSA). The District Magistrate while passing the detention order has mentioned in the grounds of the detention that the petitioner is a man of criminal antecedents and because of his criminal personality, he disturbs the social harmony.

4. It has been stated by the detaining authority that on 22.12.2015, the District President of Uttar Pradesh Prathmik Shikshak Sangh, Bijnor namely Nagesh Kumar, S/o Lal Bahadur Singh who was the Headmaster of the Primary School, Haldaur and was also working on the post of A.B.R.C., Haldaur, had called a meeting in Indra Park, Bijnor. The petitioner in a public place at Indra Park where the said meeting of the teachers association was going on, reached there and in broad-day-light shot a fire at the temporal region of Nagesh Kumar who received serious injuries. Due to the said act of the petitioner, the teachers present at the Indra Park and people of the nearby area became panic and tension prevailed and there was a sense of insecurity and fear in the people due to which there was disturbance of public order for which an FIR was lodged by one Manoj Kumar against the petitioner.

5. After registration of the said case, the Investigating Officer started the investigation and made spot inspection and further recovered empty cartridge and other articles from the place of occurrence. The statement of the informant and eye-witness Manoj Kumar was recorded who has supported the prosecution case. The other eye-witnesses also in their statements have supported the prosecution case and from the medical report of the said injured, injuries of fire-arm were found. As per the statement of the Doctor who had examined the injured opined that due to the injuries received by the injured Nagesh Kumar he was not able to speak. The Investigating Officer of the case tried to arrest the petitioner but the petitioner could not be arrested and it was stated that he surrendered on 1.1.2016 before the Magistrate concerned. He was thereafter sent to jail and the petitioner was taken in the custody of the Investigating Officer on 12.1.2016 and on remand at his pointing out, a country-made pistol of 32 bore was recovered from the village Bakar from a Sugar Cane field and from the said pistol, a live cartridge was also recovered. The recovery memo of the pistol was prepared, on the basis of which the Investigating Officer has registered a case u/s 25/27 of the Arms Act which was registered as Case Crime No.30 of 2016 and the same was endorsed in the G.D of Police Station Kotwali City, district Bijnor at 12.30 hours on 12.1.2016.

6. When the detaining authority came to know that while being in judicial custody since 1.1.2016, the petitioner was trying to obtain bail for which he has filed bail application through his lawyer before the District & Sessions judge, Bijnor which was pending and there is every likelihood that he would be allowed bail and as soon as he is released on bail, he would again indulge in such anti-social activities which may disturb the public order and on the said satisfaction the detaining authority in order to prevent the petitioner from committing such anti-social activities, passed the detention order on 27.1.2016 against the petitioner informing him about his right to make representation against the same before the detaining authority (District Magistrate), State Government, U.P. Advisory Board, Lucknow and Central Government, New Delhi respectively. The said detention order was passed by the detaining authority on the basis of report submitted by the Superintendent of Police to him under the N.S.A. Act to prevent him from committing such anti-social activities which was prejudicial to the disturbance of public order. The detention order was served to the petitioner along with grounds of detention in District Jail, Bijnor on 27.1.2016 itself. The petitioner submitted his representation dated 9.2.2016 to the various authorities as mentioned in the detention order through Superintendent of District Jail, respondent no.4 who sent the same to the District Magistrate on the same day.

7. The petitioner was heard by the U.P. Advisory Board, Lucknow on 4.3.2016 when he appeared in person in support of his representation filed against the detention order dated 27.1.2016 which took decision to confirm the detention order. The detention order passed by the District Magistrate was confirmed by the State Government on 16.3.2016 for detaining the petitioner for the period of 12 months from the date of passing of the detention order u/s 12(1) of N.S.A. The representation of the petitioner dated 9.2.2016 was rejected by the State Government on 19.2.2016.

8. The pleadings between the parties have been exchanged.

9. Heard Sri Arun Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Deepak Mishra, learned counsel for the respondent no.6 and Sri Vikas Sahai, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

10 The sole ground which has been canvased and argued by learned counsel for the petitioner is that the representation dated 9.2.2016 of the petitioner against the detention order to the Central Government which was addressed to the Secretary Ministry of Home Affairs, New Delhi was forwarded by the District Magistrate, Bijnor to the Central Government on 11.2.2016. It was urged that the representation of the detenue-petitioner was rejected by the Central Government on 26.5.2016 and there has been gross delay in deciding the representation of the petitioner by the Central Government/respondent no.6 thus the detention order is liable to be set-aside on this ground alone. He pointed out that the explanation given by the Central Government/respondent no.6 in para no.4, 5 and 6 of the counter affidavit for the said delay does not appear to be a plausible one as the representation of the petitioner has been lying with the Central Government and was not attended promptly. It was stated that the further comments were called by the Central Government from the State Government on 22.2.2016 through Secretary Home, U.P. Lucknow and the District Magistrate, Bijnor and further reminder letters were sent on 11.3.2016, 4.4.2016, 26.4.2016 and 5.5.2016 respectively. The Government of U.P. Forwarded its report vide letter no.108/2/04/2016-Cx-7 dated 10.5.2016 and the same was received in the Ministry on 17.5.2016. Thereafter the representation and comments of the Secretary Home of the Government of U.P. were processed for considering the Union Home Secretary on 17.5.2016. The Home Secretary Ministry of Home Affairs, New Delhi after duly considering the order of detention and grounds of detention rejected the same on 26.5.2016. Thus there has been a inordinate delay of about three and half months, hence the detention order is liable to be quashed. In support of his contention he has placed reliance on the judgement of this Court in the case of Nandu @ Nand Kishore Vs. Union of India reported in 2012 (79) ACC 869. He further submitted that in the said case also the detention order was quashed on the ground of delay in deciding the representation by the Central Government which was lying unattended and the explanation given by the Central Government was not found to be convincing.

11. Learned AGA has stated that there is no delay on the part of the District Magistrate, State Government in deciding the representation of the petitioner and they promptly attended and rejected the same.

12. Sri Arun Misra holding brief of Sri Deepak Misra, learned counsel for the respondent no.6, Union of India tried to justify the delay in deciding the representation of the petitioner dated 9.2.2016 by the Central Government which rejected on 26.5.2016 but could not dispute the fact that the explanation given for the delay is not a convincing one.

13. Considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and examined the material brought on record. The representation of the petitioner dated 9.2.2016 which was received by the Central Government on 11.2.2016 was decided after a gross delay on 26.5.2016 i.e. after more than three and half months. The explanation which has been given in the counter affidavit of respondent no.6 in para nos.4, 5 and 6 is wholly unsatisfactory. Thus the detention order passed by the detaining authority and confirmed by the State Government are liable to be set-aside on this ground alone.

14. Accordingly, the detention order dated 27.1.2016 passed by respondent no.2 as well as order dated 16.3.2016 passed by respondent no.1 are hereby set-aside.

15. The present Habeas Corpus Writ Petition is allowed. No order as to cost.

16. The respondents are directed to set at liberty petitioner Mayank Kumar Rana forthwith, if he is not wanted in any other case.

This writ petition under Article 226 of Constitution of India has come up assailing judgment and order dated 16.09.2005 passed by Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad Bench, Allahabad (hereinafter referred to as ''Tribunal') in Original Application no. 452 of 1999 whereby petitioner's challenge to order of removal dated 19.06.1997 and appellate order dated 18.12.1997 has failed.

Petitioner was initially employed as Muster Roll Casual Labour in 1976 and then regularized in 1988. On 04.02.1995 while posted under Assistant Engineer (North), Mathura Junction petitioner was placed under suspension. At that time he was working as Gangman. Thereafter in exercise of power under Rule 14(ii) of Railway Servants (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1968 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules 1968") disciplinary authority passed order of removal holding that regular enquiry against petitioner is not "reasonably practicable" since none is ready to tender evidence for fear of attack on his life as petitioner was involved in criminal activities of threatening and man-handling, officers of Railway.

Petitioner challenged aforesaid order in appeal but the same was dismissed vide order dated 18.12.1997 passed by Senior Divisional Engineer (North) Jhansi whereagainst petitioner filed Original Application which has been dismissed.

Earlier petitioner was served with a chargesheet dated 01.03.1995 alleging charge of misbehaving with senior officer K.R. Chopra, CPWI, Mathura Junction at his residence. Petitioner was initially posted at Mathura wherefrom he was transferred to Kosikalan vide order dated 15.10.1996 passed by Divisional Engineer. Petitioner was not happy with such transfer and on 27.05.1997 forcibly entered chamber of Chief Pathway Inspector, Mathura Junction, misbehaved with him and threatened, for his transfer from Kosikalan to Mathura. On 15.10.1996 petitioner threatened Pathway Mistry and R.K. Saxena, PWI with an Axe in his hand. Subsequently, petitioner tendered written apology on 17.10.1996 assuring good behavior. On 24.04.1997 petitioner threatened Y.S. Tyagi, Pathway Inspector with a stick in his hand and did not allow him to move for more than an hour. He threatened A.K. Asthana on 25.05.1997 stating that his family would be liquidated if he (petitioner) is not transferred from Kosikalan to Mathura. Petitioner's criminal activities terrorising various officers who submitted report but refused to depose as witness having apprehension of loss or damage to their person and family on the part of petitioner. These facts and material have been found exist on record by Tribunal. Before us also, nothing has been placed to show that these facts were nonest or concocted.

In the entirety of facts and circumstances and having gone through the judgment of Tribunal impugned in this writ petition, we are satisfied that there is no manifest illegality or error apparent on the face of record, justifying interference by this Court in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of Constitution of India.

Writ petition lacks merit. It is accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Dharam Pal Singh, learned Senior Counsel, assisted by Sri S. Niranjan, learned counsel for petitioner and Sri Vijay Kumar Singh, counsel for respondents.

2. This writ petition under Article 226 of Constitution of India has come up assailing judgment and order dated 16.09.2005 passed by Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad Bench, Allahabad (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal') in Original Application no. 452 of 1999 whereby petitioner's challenge to order of removal dated 19.06.1997 and appellate order dated 18.12.1997 has failed.

3. Petitioner was initially employed as Muster Roll Casual Labour in 1976 and then regularized in 1988. On 04.02.1995 while posted under Assistant Engineer (North), Mathura Junction petitioner was placed under suspension. At that time he was working as Gangman. Thereafter in exercise of power under Rule 14(ii) of Railway Servants (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1968 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules 1968") disciplinary authority passed order of removal holding that regular enquiry against petitioner is not "reasonably practicable" since none is ready to tender evidence for fear of attack on his life as petitioner was involved in criminal activities of threatening and man-handling, officers of Railway.

4. Petitioner challenged aforesaid order in appeal but the same was dismissed vide order dated 18.12.1997 passed by Senior Divisional Engineer (North) Jhansi whereagainst petitioner filed Original Application which has been dismissed.

5. Sri Dharam Pal Singh, learned Senior Counsel, urged that petitioner was made victim of conspiracy and collusion of senior officers of Railway. One Kuldeep Raj Chopra, Chief Rail Pathway Inspector, Mathura Junction who desired to carry some sleepers, Railway property to his residence at Agra and instructed petitioner to do so, which he declined and annoyed thereto aforesaid Chief Rail Pathway Inspector managed suspension of petitioner through disciplinary authority i.e. Assistant Engineer (North) Mathura Junction. Further that on 09.03.1995, petitioner went to residence of Kuldeep Raj Chopra where he was abused and threatened by Sri Chopra alleging that he has suffered for not carrying out his orders. At the time when petitioner was abused and man handled, some persons were present at the residence of Sri Chopra. Petitioner received injuries whereupon he lodged a report at Police Station, Mathura, being Case Crime no. 68 of 1995 under Sections 323 and 504 I.P.C. A complaint was also forwarded to Divisional Railway Manager, Jhansi but nothing happened and instead Sri Chopra prevailed over higher authorities in getting petitioner removed from service without any disciplinary enquiry. It is contended that without disciplinary enquiry, imposition of major penalty upon petitioner is patently illegal. Reliance is placed on a decision in Reena Rani Vs State of Haryana and others, (2012) 10 SCC 215.

6. It is not in dispute that disciplinary authority can impose punishment of removal or dismissal upon an employee without carrying out regular departmental enquiry by invoking powers under Article 311 (2), second proviso clause (b), which permits imposition of major penalty if enquiry is not reasonably practicable. Rule 14(ii) of Rules 1968 incorporates the said principle of Article 311(2), second proviso, and is parimateria.

7. Considering the aforesaid proviso under Article 311, a Constitution Bench in Union of India Vs Tulsiram Patel (1985) 3 SCC 398 held that condition precedent for invoking Clause (b) of Article 311(2) second proviso is the satisfaction of disciplinary authority that it is not reasonably applicable to hold enquiry contemplated of Clause 2 of Article 311. Words "reasonably practicable" does not mean "impracticable". Practicable means "capable of being put into practice, carried out in action, effected, accomplished, or done, feasible". Whether it was practicable to hold enquiry or not must be judged in the context of whether it was reasonably practicable to do so. It is not a total or absolute impracticability which is required by clause (b). It should be looked into point of view by an ordinary concerned as he would have thought or opined and take a reasonable view of prevailing situations. The reasonable practicability of holding an enquiry is a matter of assessment to be made by the disciplinary authority who is competent to do so at present and available on the spot knowing each and every aspect of the facts and circumstances necessary for being knowing whether an enquiry is reasonably practicable or not. A disciplinary authority however is not expected to dispense with a disciplinary enquiry lightly or arbitrarily or out of ulterior motives or merely in order to avoid the holding of an enquiry since the case of Department is weak or must fail if enquiry is conducted. The statutory provisions also require the disciplinary authority to record its reasons for arriving at the satisfaction that the enquiry is not reasonably practicable. This is what the law has been throughout and has been refract in Reena Rani Vs State of Haryana and others (supra).

8. In Ved Mitter Gill Vs Union Territory Administration, Chandigarh and others, 2015 (8) SCC 86, Court has approved view taken by High Court that mere mention of fact that disciplinary authority is convinced that it is not reasonably practicable to hold an enquiry is not sufficient and is against mandate of law. Court also relied on the interpretation of Rule 14(ii) of Rules 1968 in Southern Railway Officers Association v. Union of India, (2009) 9 SCC 24 holding that disciplinary authority should not take a decision in hot haste and must take due care and caution to comply with the mandatory requirement of stringent extra ordinary provisions of Rule 14 (ii), else it would amount to abuse of power conferred upon disciplinary authority. Where reasons are given, Court will not examine sufficiency of reasons as an appellate authority but would confine its review by judging those reasons placing itself in the armchair of a disciplinary authority. The disciplinary authority is the man on the spot. He act on the basis of report/material placed before him. He also knows other facts and circumstances as also the atmosphere in his area of function and also well conversant with the attitude of person concerned. It was also observed, relying on Tulsiram (supra), that situation which makes holding of an inquiry not reasonably practicable, may exist before disciplinary inquiry could be initiated against a government servant, or such a situation can also come into existence subsequently during course of an inquiry and at that stage also power under Rule 14(ii) can be exercised. The mere fact that some part of an enquiry has been held will not make any difference.

9. In Risal Singh Vs State of Haryana and others, (2015)1 SCC (LS) 351 following earlier decisions in Tulsiram Patel (supra), Jaswant Singh Vs State of Punjab, (1991) 1 SCC 362 and Reena Rani Vs State of Haryana (supra), Court said that enquiry cannot be dispensed with on mere ipse dixit or irrelevant or nonest grounds. Whenever such an order, passed by disciplinary authority dispensing enquiry, is challenged in a Court of law, it is incumbent upon authorities to show that satisfaction is based on certain objective facts and is not outcome of whims or caprice of the concerned officer.

10. When we judge the facts and circumstances of present case in light of dictum and exposition of law as noticed above, we find substantive material and justification on the part of respondent authorities by proceeding to pass impugned order of removal after dispensing with enquiry holding that it was not reasonably practicable.

11. Earlier petitioner was served with a chargesheet dated 01.03.1995 alleging charge of misbehaving with senior officer K.R. Chopra, CPWI, Mathura Junction at his residence. Petitioner was initially posted at Mathura wherefrom he was transferred to Kosikalan vide order dated 15.10.1996 passed by Divisional Engineer. Petitioner was not happy with such transfer and on 27.05.1997 forcibly entered chamber of Chief Pathway Inspector, Mathura Junction, misbehaved with him and threatened, for his transfer from Kosikalan to Mathura. On 15.10.1996 petitioner threatened Pathway Mistry and R.K. Saxena, PWI with an Axe in his hand. Subsequently, petitioner tendered written apology on 17.10.1996 assuring good behavior. On 24.04.1997 petitioner threatened Y.S. Tyagi, Pathway Inspector with a stick in his hand and did not allow him to move for more than an hour. He threatened A.K. Asthana on 25.05.1997 stating that his family would be liquidated if he (petitioner) is not transferred from Kosikalan to Mathura. Petitioner's criminal activities terrorising various officers who submitted report but refused to depose as witness having apprehension of loss or damage to their person and family on the part of petitioner. These facts and material have been found exist on record by Tribunal. before us also, nothing has been placed to show that these facts were nonest or concocted.

12. In the impugned order of removal, disciplinary authority had mentioned all the facts in this regard in detail and counsel for petitioner could not dispute that impugned order cannot be said to lack reasons.

13. In the entirety of facts and circumstances and having gone through the judgment of Tribunal impugned in this writ petition, we are satisfied that there is no manifest illegality or error apparent on the face of record, justifying interference by this Court in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of Constitution of India.

14. Writ petition lacks merit. It is accordingly dismissed.

In complaint case no. 575/9 of 2013 (Shravan Kumar Vs. Rambhul & others), ACJM, Court No.-1, Muzaffar Nagar had passed order dated 11.7.2013 by which six persons were summoned for prosecution of offence under Section 147, 148, 323, 452, 392, 307, 504, 506, 427 IPC. Against said order, Criminal Revision no. 85 of 2014 (Nitoo Vs. State of U.P. & another) was preferred, which was heard and allowed by judgement dated 30.01.2015 of Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.-1, Muzaffar Nagar. In this judgement, the revisional court had held that the impugned order was passed without applying judicial mind. After hearing to the parties, revisional court had also held that order of summoning for Section 392 and 307 IPC appears not in accordance with law and on this ground revisional court had allowed the revision and remanded the matter for passing fresh order by trial court in accordance with law.

After consideration of the order dated 11.7.2013 of trial court, it is found that after noting the facts of the case in the name of the witnesses, said court had passed order of cognizance and summoning, which is apparently without application of judicial mind, in which neither facts were discussed nor it was considered as to which accused had committed what overt act. Such order should have been speaking and after application of judicial mind. In these circumstances, the revisional court was not at error when it had passed the direction of quashing the order of trial court and of remanding the matter for fresh orders. But this direction of lower revisional court is erroneous when it had give mandate to pass fresh order in light of observations made in its judgment. In view of above, this application is disposed of with direction to the trial court to pass fresh speaking order

Held: Para- Criminal revision, as a rule, is admitted for considering correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, or the regularity of proceedings of lower court, and not for directly considering the evidences and appreciating them like trial court or appellate court. 2. The judgment of revisional court dated 30.01.2015 passed in Criminal Revision no. 85 of 2015 has been challenged in present application by complainant of the original complaint case.

3. This contention of learned counsel for the applicant is acceptable that trial court is not supposed to give finding of fact and any observation on facts by it should not be considered by trial court at the time of passing of fresh order on merits.

4. Writ A No.- 29355 Of 2016

Beerendra Kumar Verma ...Petitioner
Versus
Food Corporation Of India & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Indra Raj Singh, A. Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Santosh Kumar Mishra

The petitioner is a candidate for the appointment to the post of Assistant Grade-III (General). The Food Corporation of India, the first respondent issued an advertisement on 23rd January, 2015 calling applications from the candidates to a large number of posts mentioned in the advertisement. Total 4318 posts were advertised in the said advertisement. Pursuant to the advertisement, the petitioner made an application for appointment on the post of Assistant Grade III.

It is stated that essential qualification mentioned in the advertisement was Bachelor Degree in any discipline along with working experience in computer. The petitioner claims that he fulfills the eligibility criteria, he did his Bachelor of Science (Honours) in the year 2008 from Bundelkhand University. He claims that he has done a Computer Foundation Course from the same University and has a certificate of Course on Computer Concepts (CCC) issued by the National Institute of Electronics and Information Technology (NIELIT). The petitioner claims that he is under the Scheduled Caste category.

The Delhi High Court in Pushpa (supra) has held that if a person is of reserved category he is so by birth and not by acquisition of this category because of any other event happening at a later stage. A certificate issued by the competent authority of a reserved candidate to this effect is only an affirmation of fact which is already in existence. The purpose of such certificate is to enable the authorities to believe in the assertion of the candidate that he belongs to 'SC' category and act thereon by giving the benefit to such candidate for his belonging to 'SC' category. The Court has further held that once the certificate is issued then it is clear that the candidate belongs to the said category and it cannot be said that he has acquired the status of SC only on the date of issuance of the certificate. Thus the plea taken in the counter affidavit that the caste certificate is of the latter point, cannot be accepted as the caste certificate has been brought on the record along with the writ petition and in short counter affidavit it is not the stand of the respondent that on an enquiry, the said certificate has been found to be fabricated or forged.

As a sequel to the above, in my view the impugned order dated 05.06.2016 needs to be quashed for the reasons mentioned hereinabove, it is accordingly quashed. The matter is remitted to the authority concerned/ respondent no. 1 to furnish opportunity to the petitioner and pass a speaking order expeditiously, preferably within four weeks from the date of communication of this order.

The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Singh Baghel, J.)

1. The petitioner is a candidate for the appointment to the post of Assistant Grade-III (General). The Food Corporation of India, the first respondent issued an advertisement on 23rd January, 2015 calling applications from the candidates to a large number of posts mentioned in the advertisement. Total 4318 posts were advertised in the said advertisement. Pursuant to the advertisement, the petitioner made an application for appointment on the post of Assistant Grade III.

2. It is stated that essential qualification mentioned in the advertisement was Bachelor Degree in any discipline along with working experience in computer. The petitioner claims that he fulfills the eligibility criteria, he did his Bachelor of Science (Honours) in the year 2008 from Bundelkhand University. He claims that he has done a Computer Foundation Course from the same University and has a certificate of Course on Computer Concepts (CCC) issued by the National Institute of Electronics and Information Technology (NIELIT). The petitioner claims that he is under the Scheduled Caste category.

3. The petitioner qualified the written examination and he ranked 56 in the order of merit. It is stated in paragraph-8 of the writ petition that a call letter was issued to the petitioner on 31st December, 2015 and he appeared with his original documents on the scheduled date, time and place i.e. 20th January, 2016 at 01.00 p.m. in the office of the first respondent and placed all such documents, which he has brought on record as annexure-2 to the writ petition, before the authority. After perusing the same, the authority was fully satisfied, however, by an order dated 05th June, 2016 the petitioner came to know that the first respondent has declared the final result and the petitioner's candidature has been cancelled by a cryptic order.

4. At the time of moving of this writ petition, on 27th June, 2016 the Court has directed to put up this case as fresh on 05th July, 2016. On 05th July, 2016 the first respondent filed a short counter affidavit without adverting to the material facts averred in the writ petition. The stand taken in the short counter affidavit is that the petitioner, at the time of verification, could not submit the caste certificate hence his candidature has been cancelled.

5. A rejoinder affidavit to the short counter affidavit has been filed, wherein the said fact has been denied and the petitioner has brought on record the caste certificate issued by the competent authority i.e. the Tehsildar, Sadar, Kanpur Nagar dated 29th October, 2013 as annexure-2 to the rejoinder affidavit. The same document has been appended by the petitioner along with the writ petition also.

6. It is contended on behalf of the petitioner that the impugned order has been passed in utter disregard to the principles of natural justice as no opportunity was afforded to the petitioner before cancelling his candidature and it does not contain any reason. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance on the judgements of the Supreme Court in the case of Ram Kumar Gijroya v. Delhi Subordinate Services Selection Board & Anr., Civil Appeal No. 1691 of 2016 and Mohinder Singh Gill and another v. The Chief Election Commissioner, New Delhi and others, (1978) 1 SCC 405.

7. Learned counsel for the respondents Sri S.K. Mishra submits that there is no requirement to assign any reason while cancelling the candidature of a candidate. The reasons have been mentioned in the short counter affidavit. He further submits that the Corporation has been authorized by the Parliament to frame statutory rules hence the statutory rules have been framed by the Food Corporation of India. It was further submitted that the condition mentioned in the advertisement is as sacrosanct as the law and it has statutory flavour. No other submission has been made.

8. The learned counsel for the respondent has drawn the attention of the Court to an order passed by this Court to implead the selected candidates. The learned counsel for the petitioner submits that since the grievance of the petitioner, at this stage, is that the authority may be directed to pass a speaking order after giving opportunity to the petitioner, as such, there is no need to issue notice to the candidates for whose impleadment, the application was filed by the petitioner.

9. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and considered the rival submissions.

10. The petitioner has demonstrated that he possesses the essential qualification mentioned in the advertisement. The advertisement for the post of Assistant Grade-III requires the following qualification.

"Bachelor degree in any discipline along with the work experience in Computer."

11. In regard to his qualification, the petitioner has brought on record a xerox copy of the Degree of B.Sc. (Honours) issued in 2008 by the Buldelkhand University and the CCC certificate which has been issued by the NIELIT.

12. Indisputably, the petitioner appeared in the written test and he has qualified it. The averment made by the petitioner in the writ petition that his rank is 56 out of 334 posts is unrebutted in the short counter affidavit. It was submitted that even if the petitioner's certificate is ignored, the petitioner has secured more marks than a candidate of General Category, therefore, he could have been treated as a General Category candidate. The final merit list has not been brought on the record by the first respondent, thus the averment made in the writ petition that the petitioner ranked 56 in the merit list stands uncontroverted.

13. The submission of learned counsel for the petitioner that the caste certificate was produced by him, which he has brought on record earlier, also merit acceptance. The said submission was made in paragraph-8 of the writ petition which has also not been denied in the short counter affidavit. The next submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the order impugned does not contain any reason also merit acceptance. The impugned order is so cryptic and skeletal that entire order can be extracted below:

"You are not found eligible for the post applied by you as you have not fulfilled the eligibility criteria/ conditions laid down in the Advertisement No. 3/2015-FCI Category-III."

14. A simple reading of the impugned order clearly indicates that no reason has been assigned while rejecting the candidature of the petitioner. It is not mentioned in the order that which criteria/ condition is lacking.

15. Insofar as the minimum qualification mentioned in the advertisement is concerned, the petitioner appears to possess the essential qualification as he is graduate in Science and has also CCC certificate from a recognized institution.

16. In regard to the submissions of learned counsel for the respondents that the reason has been mentioned in the short counter affidavit that the petitioner failed to produce the document, cannot be accepted on two grounds:

(i) the reason must be recorded in the impugned order as it cannot be supplemented by an affidavit. The Supreme Court in Mohinder Singh Gill (supra) has held that the reasons cannot be supplemented subsequently by filing affidavits. The relevant part of the judgement is extracted below:

"8. ...when a statutory functionary makes an order based on certain grounds, its validity must be judged by the reasons so mentioned and cannot be supplemented by fresh reasons in the shape of affidavit or otherwise. Otherwise, an order bad in the beginning may, by the time it comes to Court on account of a challenge, get validated by additional grounds later brought out...."

17. The Supreme Court in a long line of decisions has settled that the necessity of recording reason of an executive action is a part of natural justice and in the present date set-up judicial review of administrative action is expanding day by day. The administrative, quasi judicial authorities have to justify its action in various fields of the public law. The reason should also be communicated to the affected party.

18. In the case of Sant Lal Gupta and others v. Modern Cooperative Group Housing Society Limited and others, (2010) 13 SCC 336, the Court has held as under:

"27. It is a settled legal proposition that not only administrative but also judicial orders must be supported by reasons recorded in it. ...

The reason is the heartbeat of every conclusion. It introduces clarity in an order and without the same, the order becomes lifeless. Reasons substitute subjectivity with objectivity. The absence of reasons renders an order indefensible/unsustainable particularly when the order is subject to further challenge before a higher forum. Recording of reasons is the principle of natural justice and every judicial order must be supported by reasons recorded in writing. It ensures transparency and fairness in decision making. The person who is adversely affected must know why his application has been rejected."

19. The Supreme Court in the case of Kranti Associates Private Limited and another v. Masood Ahmed Khan and others, (2010) 9 SCC 496 has culled out the following principles for the necessity of recording reasons by the administrative quasi judicial authorities:

"47. Summarizing the above discussion, this Court holds:

a. In India the judicial trend has always been to record reasons, even in administrative decisions, if such decisions affect anyone prejudicially.

b. A quasi-judicial authority must record reasons in support of its conclusions.

c. Insistence on recording of reasons is meant to serve the wider principle of justice that justice must not only be done it must also appear to be done as well.

d. Recording of reasons also operates as a valid restraint on any possible arbitrary exercise of judicial and quasi-judicial or even administrative power.

e. Reasons reassure that discretion has been exercised by the decision maker on relevant grounds and by disregarding extraneous considerations.

f. Reasons have virtually become as indispensable a component of a decision making process as observing principles of natural justice by judicial, quasi-judicial and even by administrative bodies.

g. Reasons facilitate the process of judicial review by superior courts.

h. The ongoing judicial trend in all countries committed to rule of law and constitutional governance is in favour of reasoned decisions based on relevant facts. This is virtually the life blood of judicial decision making justifying the principle that reason is the soul of justice.

i. Judicial or even quasi-judicial opinions these days can be as different as the judges and authorities who deliver them. All these decisions serve one common purpose which is to demonstrate by reason that the relevant factors have been objectively considered. This is important for sustaining the litigants' faith in the justice delivery system.

j. Insistence on reason is a requirement for both judicial accountability and transparency.

k. If a judge or a quasi-judicial authority is not candid enough about his/her decision making process then it is impossible to know whether the person deciding is faithful to the doctrine of precedent or to principles of incrementalism.

l. Reasons in support of decisions must be cogent, clear and succinct. A pretence of reasons or "rubber-stamp reasons" is not to be equated with a valid decision making process.

m. It cannot be doubted that transparency is the sine qua non of restraint on abuse of judicial powers. Transparency in decision making not only makes the judges and decision makers less prone to errors but also makes them subject to broader scrutiny. (See David Shapiro in Defence of Judicial Candor1.

n. Since the requirement to record reasons emanates from the broad doctrine of fairness in decision making, the said requirement is now virtually a component of human rights and was considered part of Strasbourg Jurisprudence. See Ruiz Torija v. Spain2 EHRR, at 562 para 29 and Anya v. University of Oxford3, wherein the Court referred to Article 6 of European Convention of Human Rights which requires, "adequate and intelligent reasons must be given for judicial decisions".

o. In all common law jurisdictions judgments play a vital role in setting up precedents for the future. Therefore, for development of law, requirement of giving reasons for the decision is of the essence and is virtually a part of "due process"."

20. Applying the aforesaid principles of law laid down by the Supreme Court at the case in hand, I find the impugned order is completely bereft of the reasons, hence the impugned order is unsustainable. The respondents have tried to supplement the reasons by way of a short counter affidavit.

(ii) In addition to above, the petitioner has made a categorical averment in paragraph no. 8 of the writ petition that he had produced the caste certificate at the scheduled date i.e. 20.01.2016. This fact has not been denied in the short counter affidavit. In fact the present writ petition was entertained by this Court in the month of June, 2016 and more than three months have elapsed but no counter affidavit giving reply to all the paragraphs has been filed by the respondents. Thus the statement made in paragraph no. 8 of the writ petition stands unrebutted.

21. Pertinently, the petitioner has brought on record his caste certificate which was issued on 29.10.2013, much before 20.01.2016. He has relied on a judgement of the Supreme Court in the case of Ram Kumar Gijroya v. Delhi Subordinate Services Selection Board & Anr., Civil Appeal No. 1691 of 2016. In the said judgement, the Supreme Court referred a judgement of Delhi High Court in the case of Pushpa v. Government of NCT of Delhi and others, Writ Petition (C) No. 9112 of 2008 wherein the Delhi High Court followed the judgement in the case of Tej Pal Singh & Ors. v. Govt. of NCT of Delhi, ILR 2001 Delhi 298.

22. The Delhi High Court in Pushpa (supra) has held that if a person is of reserved category he is so by birth and not by acquisition of this category because of any other event happening at a later stage. A certificate issued by the competent authority of a reserved candidate to this effect is only an affirmation of fact which is already in existence. The purpose of such certificate is to enable the authorities to believe in the assertion of the candidate that he belongs to 'SC' category and act thereon by giving the benefit to such candidate for his belonging to 'SC' category. The Court has further held that once the certificate is issued then it is clear that the candidate belongs to the said category and it cannot be said that he has acquired the status of SC only on the date of issuance of the certificate. Thus the plea taken in the counter affidavit that the caste certificate is of the latter point, cannot be accepted as the caste certificate has been brought on the record along with the writ petition and in short counter affidavit it is not the stand of the respondent that on an enquiry, the said certificate has been found to be fabricated or forged.

23. As a sequel to the above, in my view the impugned order dated 05.06.2016 needs to be quashed for the reasons mentioned hereinabove, it is accordingly quashed. The matter is remitted to the authority concerned/ respondent no. 1 to furnish opportunity to the petitioner and pass a speaking order expeditiously, preferably within four weeks from the date of communication of this order.

24. The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed.

25. No order as to costs.

The Akhil Bhartiya Manav Kalyan Evam Samajotthan Karya Sansthan, Allahabad instituted these proceedings in public interest seeking the following reliefs:

I. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the State Government of Uttar Pradesh to transfer the officers/employees, who have completed services of more than 3 years in NOIDA, Greater NOIDA and Yamuna Expressway Authority, out of District forthwith.

II. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to constitute a C.B.I. Enquiry in the matter, so that proper and fair investigation may be done with regard to assets of the private opposite parties as well as assets of their relatives and the work discharged by them in the authority.

III. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to lodge the First Information Report against the erring persons.

IV. Issue any other order or direction which the Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the circumstances of the case."

Having gone through the writ petition, the averments made therein and the material brought on record, we find that while various allegations of a general character have been made in respect of wrongdoings committed in the allotment of land, misappropriation of funds, acquisition of property and wealth by employees, no specific allegation or charge stands leveled or established against the twelfth respondent. The writ petition carries no material which may prove the commission of any act of malfeasance or corruption against the twelfth respondent personally. We have carefully gleaned through the various averments taken in the writ petition as well as the supplementary affidavit filed on behalf of the writ petitioners but have failed to find any material which may justify the return or recordal of an adverse finding or comment against the twelfth respondent personally. No corrupt motive or act attributable to the said respondent stands established conclusively from the record. The challenge in the writ petition which was primarily centered around the continuance of the twelfth respondent in any view of the matter has paled into insignificance consequent to the own steps taken by the Government which has decided to transfer him from the said post. Insofar as the remaining private respondents are concerned, the learned counsel for the petitioner has not raised any serious challenge and had confined their challenge to the continuance of the twelfth respondent alone. In view of the above, and noticing the fact that the Government has itself transferred the twelfth respondent during the pendency of the writ petition, we find that no further directions for the transfer of the twelfth respondent are warranted.

We have noted that no specific allegation stood proved and established conclusively against the twelfth respondent personally. It is perhaps in this light that the State Government had (and perhaps justifiably) vehemently argued initially that no circumstances warranted the transfer or removal of the twelfth respondent from NOIDA. The learned Advocate General not just stoutly defended the twelfth respondent but also urged for our consideration that the officer in question was of exemplary character and it was because of his administrative skills and prowess that the State Government had continued him on the post. While we do not have any reason to doubt the submission of the learned Advocate General or for that matter the ability of the twelfth respondent, we feel that certain other relevant and larger issues merited consideration by the Government in such matters.

The second aspect which must merit mention is this. The mere fact that the 1955 Regulations do not envisage a maximum tenure does not necessarily mean that a person may be permitted to continue on a particular post for years together. It would in fact be in the fitness of things and perhaps to overcome the leveling of allegations such as the present against the twelfth respondent that the Government consider the shifting of officers periodically. We note that the Government Order dated 24 December 2001 itself envisages the Civil Service Board fixing both the minimum as well as the maximum tenure of posting of IAS officers. While a minimum tenure has been fixed, we were told that the Civil Services Board has till date not fixed the maximum tenure period. It would therefore, be appropriate for the Board as well as the Government to revisit this issue so that in future such challenges and allegations of nepotism are avoided.

Since the twelfth respondent has already been transferred from NOIDA, no further operative directions need be issued. The PIL's shall stand disposed of subject to the observations made hereinabove.

1. The Akhil Bhartiya Manav Kalyan Evam Samajotthan Karya Sansthan, Allahabad instituted these proceedings in public interest seeking the following reliefs:

I. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the State Government of Uttar Pradesh to transfer the officers/employees, who have completed services of more than 3 years in NOIDA, Greater NOIDA and Yamuna Expressway Authority, out of District forthwith.

II. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to constitute a C.B.I. Enquiry in the matter, so that proper and fair investigation may be done with regard to assets of the private opposite parties as well as assets of their relatives and the work discharged by them in the authority.

III. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to lodge the First Information Report against the erring persons.

IV. Issue any other order or direction which the Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the circumstances of the case."

2. This petition came up for hearing before a Division Bench of the Court on 30 June 2016. On the said date the attention of the Court appears to have been drawn to the pendency of an earlier public interest litigation being Writ-C No. 49534 of 2015 [Jitendra Kumar Goel Vs. State of U.P. and 15 others] in which similar issues were raised. Taking note of the same, the Division Bench directed the present Public Interest Litigation to be posted for orders along with Writ-C No. 49534 of 2015 on 1 July 2016. These two petitions were thereafter heard together and the Division Bench as an interim measure proceeded to pass the following directions:-

"(a) Mr. Rama Raman shall not exercise any powers of the Chief Executive Officer of NOIDA Industrial Development Authority, Greater NOIDA Industrial Development Authority, Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority hence forth. However, he shall continue to draw his salary and other allowances as earlier.

(b) Notice be issued to the respondent nos. 10 to 18 by speed post fixing 20th July, 2016 as the date. Steps be taken within a week. All the respondents may file counter affidavit by the next date.

List on the date fixed. "

3. The above order of restraint issued against the twelfth respondent came to be passed upon the Division Bench noticing that he had continued to be posted at the same place for the last six years during which time serious scams in respect of allotment of land and wrongful utilisation of properties had occurred. It also recorded that during this period various employees of NOIDA such as Yadav Singh, Ramendra Singh and V.K. Goel had been imprisoned on allegations of having accumulated wealth and properties running into hundreds of crores. The Division Bench further noted that at the relevant time, the twelfth respondent was simultaneously holding charge of the following posts:- (a) Chief Executive Officer [CEO] Greater NOIDA Industrial Development

Authority1, (b) Chairman, New Okhla Industrial Development Authority2 (c) CEO NOIDA (d) Chairman Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority3.

4. Noticing the above facts, the Division Bench proceeded to observe as follows:-

"We are of the prima facie opinion that one person cannot work as a whole-time officer for three different Industrial Development Authorities, as it belies the very concept of the incumbent being whole-time officer subject to the condition that for some short duration, till regular appointment is made, an officer already appointed as Chief Executive Officer for one Industrial Development Authority may hold the charge of other Industrial Development Authority. But the said arrangement has to be for a very limited duration. Giving of additional charge for years in respect of three Industrial Development Authorities to one person frustrates the very intent of the word "whole-time officer" as contemplated by Section 4 of the U.P. Act No. 6 of 1976.

Another query, which has gone unanswered, despite specific order passed by the High Court as early as on 2nd September, 2015 in Writ-C No. 49534 of 2015 (Jitendra Kumar Goel vs. State of U.P. & 15 Others), namely, if the statutory provisions do not contemplate appointment by deputation, how can an IAS officer be appointed on the post of Chief Executive Officer of Industrial Development Authority, the post whereof has been statutorily created. "

x x x x x x x x x x

In the perception of a common man, continuance of such person as the top administrative officer of the Authority can never be in the interest of the Authority. Every day's continuance of such officer would be detrimental to the interest of the Statutory Authority itself.

In our opinion, in the aforesaid legal and factual background, the continuance of an I.A.S. officer against the post for such long period and his continuance to hold charge of three different Industrial Development Authorities at the same time cannot be said to be proper, fair and just. It adversely reflects upon the administration of the Development Authorities, which are facing huge scams as already noticed above."

5. Pursuant to the liberty granted by the Court on 1 July 2016, the State respondent, NOIDA as well as the twelfth respondent filed their affidavits. The twelfth respondent in addition to a counter affidavit also filed an application seeking vacation of the order of restraint issued by the Court. The State along with its counter affidavit brought on record of these proceedings an order dated 18 July 2016 in terms of which the twelfth respondent was restrained from functioning as CEO NOIDA, GNIDA and YEA. On 3 August 2016, the counsel for the petitioner was granted time to respond to the counter affidavits filed in these proceedings and the matter was adjourned to 10 August 2016. The matter was thereafter called on 11 August 2016 and was thereafter adjourned to 16 August 2016 on the request of the learned Chief Standing Counsel.

6. On 16 August 2016, the leaned Chief Standing Counsel drew the attention of the Court to a communication of the same date which purported to convey the decision of the Civil Services Board taken in its meeting held on 18 July 2016. The communication recorded that Sri Praveer Kumar IAS had been posted as the Chairman NOIDA, GNIDA and YEA. The communication further stated that the Civil Services Board had on the same date also taken a decision to the effect that the twelfth respondent would continue to be posted as the CEO NOIDA. This position and posting of the twelfth respondent continued till on 2 September 2016 a further communication of the State Government was placed on record whereby the Court was apprised of a decision of the State Government dated 25 August 2016 in terms of which the twelfth respondent was transferred from the post of CEO NOIDA, divested of charge and placed on waiting.

7. The petition itself laid various allegations against the twelfth to seventeenth respondents, who are stated to have been posted in some capacity or the other in NOIDA. For convenience, we note as under.

8. The petition alleged that large scale wrongdoings, illegal allotments and misappropriate of moneys had occurred at NOIDA during the period when the twelfth respondent held charge as the Chairman and CEO. It alleged that despite the aforesaid wrongdoings having come to light, the State for reasons unknown continued to post the twelfth respondent as CEO of NOIDA. It alleged that illegal allotments had been made with a view to pander to the whims and fancies of politicians and that NOIDA itself had become a hotbed of corruption. It further referred to the fact that a large scam had recently been unearthed in NOIDA as a consequence of which one Sri Yadav Singh was apprehended and in respect of whom a CBI inquiry had come to be instituted pursuant to the directions of this Court. It was alleged that despite such wrongdoings having come to light, the State had continued to post the twelfth respondent as CEO of NOIDA. The petition further alleged large scale corruption in the acceptance of tenders and allotment of land in the Sports City Project of NOIDA. It was based on the above allegations that the instant PIL was presented before this Court.

9. As noted above, Writ-C No. 49534 of 2015 had also been instituted in this Court with similar allegations. In the said writ petition also various directions were issued by the Court from time to time calling upon the State respondents including the Chief Secretary to explain the reasons behind the continued retention of the twelfth respondent as the CEO of the three authorities aforementioned. In the said writ petition, it was alleged that the twelfth respondent had continued to hold charge as CEO of the three authorities for more than ten years. Pursuant to the directions of the Court issued in the said writ petition, the Chief Secretary filed an affidavit in which he asserted that the post of CEO in the authorities was a cadre post. The Chief Secretary further averred on affidavit that the twelfth respondent had been substantively appointed as CEO GNIDA since 4 July 2010 and had on different occasions accorded additional charge of Chairman and CEO of NOIDA, GNIDA and YEA. In paragraph 12 it was averred that the twelfth respondent was substantively posted on a cadre post as CEO GNIDA and was only holding additional charge of Chairman of the three authorities namely NOIDA, GNIDA and YEA. The Chief Secretary further averred in paragraph 14 that there is no maximum time limit fixed for any IAS officer being posted on any post. In these proceedings, the State respondents in their affidavits have brought on record the details of the posting of the twelfth respondent from 4 July 2010 and the same is evident from the chart which appears below:-

PERIOD	POSTING
04.07.2010 -14.12.2010	CEO GNIDA
14.12.2010-20.07.2011	CEO GNIDA and NOIDA
20.07.2011-01.11.2011	CEO GNIDA
01.11.2011-20.11.2011	Chairman and CEO GNIDA
20.11.2011-15.12.2011	Chairman and CEO GNIDA + CEO NOIDA
15.12.2011-20.12.2011	Chairman and CEO GNIDA
20.12.2011-26.12.2011	Chairman and CEO GNIDA + CEO YEA
26.12.2011-26.03.2012	Chairman and CEO GNIDA
26.03.2012-02.05.2013	CEO GNIDA + CEO NOIDA
03.05.2013- 19.09.2015	CEO GNIDA and NOIDA + Chairman NOIDA, GNIDA and YEA
18.07.2016-25.08.2016	CEO NOIDA + Chairman NOIDA, GNIDA and YEA
18.07.2016-25.08.2016	CEO NOIDA

10. The primary defense which has been set up by the State and which was reiterated in the oral submissions advanced by the learned Advocate General and the learned Chief Standing Counsel was to the following effect. It was contended that the post of CEO NOIDA and Greater NOIDA had been identified as a cadre post under the Indian Administrative Service (Fixation of Cadre Strength) Regulations, 1955[4]. In view thereof it was submitted that an IAS officer such as the twelfth respondent was justifiably posted and that the Division Bench on 1 July 2016 had clearly proceeded on an incorrect premise that the post was being occupied by him on the basis of deputation. It was submitted that the notification dated 6 December 2010 in terms of which the post of Chief Executive Officer of NOIDA and GNIDA was included as a cadre post under the 1955 Regulations did not militate against the provisions of Section 3 of the U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976 (for short "1976 Act"). The State further referred to the fact that the appointment and posting of the twelfth respondent was pursuant to the decisions taken by the Civil Services Board and had therefore, been effected in accordance with law. Referring to the details set forth in the order of 18 July 2016, it was sought to be contended that the allegation that the twelfth respondent had remained on the said post for the last more than ten years was factually incorrect and had been made only to lend color to the controversy. It was asserted that the twelfth respondent was appointed substantively on the post of CEO NOIDA only on or about 20 September 2015. It was additionally alleged that during the period 3 April 2003 to 30 June 2010, the twelfth respondent was posted with the Government of India and therefore, the very bedrock of the submissions of the petitioner and the premise of the order of the Division Bench dated 1 July 2016 was incorrect. The twelfth respondent, in their submission, held the post of CEO NOIDA on a substantive basis only from September 2015. It was asserted that during 2010-2015 various other officers had been posted on substantive basis as CEO NOIDA. The twelfth respondent in his affidavit averred that it was only for a short duration that he was granted additional charge of CEO NOIDA during this period. Referring to the allegations levelled against certain officers and employees of NOIDA including Yadav Singh and Ramendra Singh, it was contended that all the aforementioned officers had been directly appointed in NOIDA prior to the posting of the deponent and that he had therefore, nothing to do with their appointments. The twelfth respondent further averred categorically that during his tenure as CEO, NOIDA no scam had taken place. Insofar as the allegations of wanton and illegal acquisition of land is concerned, the twelfth respondent asserts that the acquisitions were undertaken pursuant to statutory powers conferred upon NOIDA and that there was no statutory prohibition against the allotment of land to builders. He further averred that there was no illegality in the allotment of land under the Sports City Project of the NOIDA.

11. We note here that although the allegations were primarily leveled by the petitioner against the respondents 12-17, notices were issued to all the respondents 10-18. However it is only the twelfth respondent who has appeared in these proceedings and has opposed the petition along with the authorities themselves namely, NOIDA, GNIDA and YEA. We further note that the learned counsel for the petitioner has mainly centered his objections and submissions in support of the writ petition against the twelfth respondent.

12. Having noticed the factual basis for the preferment of the petition and the disclosures made by the respondents, we now proceed to note the primary legal submissions which have been advanced in these proceedings. Learned counsel for the petitioner while reiterating the averments made in the writ petition has contended that large scale scams occurred in the authorities and more particularly NOIDA clearly being indicative of the fact that all was not well. He asserted that the State Government even in the matter of posting of officers must act in a manner which inspires confidence in the public at large and that its action must not reflect of favouritism in favour of a select few. It was contended that the continuance of the twelfth respondent was clearly detrimental to the public interest, without justification in law and that the State Government was continuing to accord him protection despite various scams and allegations having been leveled against the twelfth respondent and NOIDA. It was, therefore, submitted that larger public interest clearly warranted removal of the twelfth respondent from the post of CEO NOIDA.

13. The learned counsels for the respondents have apart from addressing submissions on the merits of the allegations leveled in the petition, in unison, taken serious objection to the entertainment of the PIL itself and have submitted that the instant petition was neither bonafide nor did it espouse any issue of public interest. In this respect, we note that not only the learned Advocate General but also Sri Ravi Kant learned senior counsel and Sri Ravindra Singh learned counsel who appeared for the twelfth respondent have taken serious objection to this Court having entertained the instant PIL itself. It was submitted that the instant proceedings are a clear abuse of the process of Court and it is apparent that quite far from espousing any issue of public interest, the same has come to be instituted at the behest and instance of unknown and interested quarters.

Learned counsel drew the attention of the Court to the fact that the petitioner was stated to be a society registered and resident at Allahabad and that in the entire petition, there was no material which may have even remotely indicated its activities or area of operations. It was alleged that there was a complete non disclosure in the writ petition of particulars required under Chapter XXII Rule 3A of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 19525. Learned counsel submitted that the writ petition carried not one averment of any public or social service which the petitioner society may be stated to have performed. Additionally, it was contended that the writ petition itself did not bring on record either the Memorandum or Articles of the society so as to indicate its aims and objectives. In fact learned counsel submitted that the petition had been instituted and entertained even in the absence of a resolution of the society deciding to institute the present proceedings and authorizing the petitioner in that regard. The attention of the Court was further drawn to the fact that none of the office bearers of the society had come forward to even affirm the affidavit in support of the petition and that the writ petition itself had been preferred on the strength of an affidavit of a 24 year old resident of District Kaushambi, who was stated to be engaged in farming. Viewed in this light, learned counsels submitted that the petition clearly lacked bonafides and should have been dismissed at the threshold itself. It was contended that it is petitions like the present which have sullied the field of public interest litigation and have consequently invited adverse comment from the Supreme Court as well as this Court.

14. Sri Ravi Kant, learned Senior Counsel appearing for NOIDA has in addition to the above contended that the issue of posting of a particular officer by the State Government is one which falls within its exclusive prerogative. He submits that this Court would clearly be transgressing the limits of its jurisdiction under Article 226 to the Constitution in interfering with such actions of the Government. It is his submission that issues of the nature which stand raised in this petition would clearly invite the Court to step into an arena which is within the exclusive domain and discretion of the State Government. He lastly submitted that the petitioner had woefully failed to establish even one charge of wrongdoing against the twelfth respondent personally and despite the same an order of restraint was passed by the Division Bench ex parte. It was his submission that the averments taken in the petition even prima facie did not warrant the issuance of such a restraint by the Division Bench and that too without notice to the twelfth respondent. It is these rival submissions which now fall for consideration.

15. We shall for the sake of convenience first take up the submission of exclusion of judicial review as urged by Sri Ravi Kant. As noted above, Sri Ravi Kant contended that this Court must draw a line in respect of matters which fell within the exclusive domain and discretion of the Government and consequently hold that the subject matter of the petition was beyond the pale of judicial review. According to him, the posting of officers was a subject which fell within the exclusive prerogative of the State Government and that therefore the Court would be clearly overstepping its jurisdiction in interfering with the same. While we note that a similar submission was not advanced by the learned Advocate General who appeared for the State, but since the issue has been raised we proceed to deal with the same.

16. Now in a democracy there is no such thing as an absolute discretion. In fact as has been repeatedly held, absolute or unfettered discretion is anathema to the rule of law. Judicial review is now recognized as a basic and inalienable feature of our Constitution. In a society which is governed by the rule of law, no person or institution can claim immunity from a review by a constitutional court in respect of its actions, of course on well established principles and standards. The jurisprudence which has developed over the years on this subject has over a period of time repelled submissions made on similar lines. No longer is the judicial review power of the court thwarted by arguments of a political thicket or a policy measure. The primary touchstone upon which all actions of the State must be tested is the Constitution. The jurisdiction of the Court, therefore, to enquire and test the action of the State is not and cannot be ousted. Of course the intensity of the review process is an issue altogether different. However the proposition advanced for our consideration is worded in absolutist terms and therefore cannot be accepted. We may in this connection note what stands recorded in the classic work of HWR Wade on Administrative Law and is relevant in this context:-

"The common theme of all the authorities so far mentioned is that the notion of absolute or unfettered discretion is rejected. Statutory power conferred for public purposes is conferred as it were upon trust, not absolutely - that is to say, it can validly be used only in the right and proper way which Parliament when conferring it is presumed to have intended. Although the Crown's lawyers have argued in numerous cases that unrestricted permissive language confers unfettered discretion, the truth is that, in a system based on the rule of law, unfettered government discretion is a contradiction in terms. The real question is whether the discretion is wide or narrow, and where the legal line is to be drawn. For this purpose everything depends upon the true intent and meaning of the empowering Act.

The powers of public authorities are therefore essentially different from those of private persons. A man making his will may, subject to any rights of his dependants, dispose of his property just as he may wish. He may act out of malice or a spirit of revenge, but in law this does not affect his exercise of his power. In the same way a private person has an absolute power to allow whom he likes to use his land, to release a debtor, or where the law permits, to evict a tenant, regardless of his motive. This is unfettered discretion. But a public authority may do none of these things unless it acts reasonably and in good faith and upon lawful and relevant grounds of public interest..... The whole conception of unfettered discretion is inappropriate to a public authority, which possesses powers solely in order that it may use them for the public good. There is nothing paradoxical in the imposition of such legal limits. It would indeed be paradoxical if they were not imposed." Administrative Law (HWR Wade & CF Forsyth - 9th Ed. - Pages 354-355)

17. Dealing with the discretion of the Government to retain or appoint lawyers to represent it in a court of law, the Supreme Court in State of Punjab Vs. Brijeshwar Chahal[6] observed as under:-

"19. It is by now, fairly well settled that not only the Government but all public bodies are trustees of the power vested in them and custodians of public interest. Discharge of that trust in the best possible manner is the primary duty of those in charge of the affairs of the State or public body. This necessarily implies that the nature of functions and duties including the power to engage, employ or recruit servants, agents, advisors and representatives must be exercised in a fair, reasonable, non- discriminatory and objective manner. It is also fairly well settled that duty to act fairly and reasonably is a facet of "Rule of Law' in a constitutional democracy like ours. A long line of decisions of this Court over the past five decades or so have ruled that arbitrariness has no place in a polity governed by rule of law and that Article 14 of the Constitution of India strikes at arbitrariness in every State action. We may gainfully refer to some of these decisions, not so much to add to their content as to remind ourselves that we have come a long way in the matter of settling the contours of the doctrine of Rule of Law of which equality is one significant feature.

20. In S G Jaisinghani v. Union of India AIR 1967 SC 1427, this Court held that absence of arbitrary power is the first essential of "Rule of Law" upon which rests our Constitutional system. This Court ruled that in a system governed by rule of law, any discretion conferred upon the executive authorities must be confined within clearly defined limits. This Court quoted with approval, the following observations of Douglas J. in United States vs. Wunderlick 1951 342 US 98:96 Law Ed 113:

"Law has reached its finest moments when it has freed man from the unlimited discretion of some ruler... Where discretion is absolute, man has always suffered."

"39. The development of law in this country has taken strides when it comes to interpreting Articles 14 and 16 and their sweep. Recognition of power exercisable by the functionaries of the State as a trust which will stand discharged only if the power is exercised in public interest is an important milestone just as recognition of the Court's power of judicial review to be wide enough to strike at and annul any State action that is arbitrary, unguided, whimsical, unfair or discriminatory. Seen as important dimensions of the rule of law by which we swear the law as it stands today has banished from our system unguided and uncanalised or arbitrary discretion even in matters that were till recently considered to be within the legitimate sphere of a public functionary as a repository of Executive Power. Those exercising power for public good are now accountable for their action, which must survive scrutiny or be annulled on the first principle that the exercise was not for public good in that the same was either malafide, unfair, unreasonable or discriminatory. Extension of the principle even to contractual matters or matters like engagement of law officers is symbolic of the lowering of the threshold of tolerance for what is unfair, unreasonable or arbitrary. The expanding horizons of the jurisprudence on the subject both in terms of interpretation of Article 14 of the Constitution as also the court's willingness to entertain pleas for judicial review is a heartening development on the judicial landscape that will disentitle exercise of power by those vested with it as also empower those affected by such power to have it reversed if such reversal is otherwise merited.....

41. To sum up, the following propositions are legally unexceptionable:

41.1 The Government and so also all public bodies are trustees of the power vested in them.

41.2 Discharge of the trust reposed in them in the best possible manner is their primary duty.

41.4 The duty to act in a fair, reasonable, non-discriminatory and objective manner is a facet of the Rule of Law in a constitutional democracy like ours."

18. Bearing the above principles in mind it is clear that the submission advanced by Sri Ravi Kant, learned senior counsel, is not worthy of acceptance. This Court cannot accept the submission that under no circumstances can the Court enquire into the action of the State Government in posting a particular officer for continually long periods even though administrative exigencies or public interest may warrant otherwise. There may be myriad situations warranting the shifting of an officer. These may include contingencies such as pendency of enquiries, allegations of maladministration or even the extreme case where the transfer of the officer itself may be mandated in case of ongoing enquiries or probes. The continuance of an officer in the face of such contingencies may itself be detrimental to the interests of the administration. The other important aspect which may have to be borne in mind is the issue of public interest and the requirement of State action, albeit in the administrative realm, to be perceived as fair, just and unbiased. The continuance of an officer under cloud or whose handling of affairs may have resulted in the erosion of public confidence may itself warrant the transfer of an official. While the above is not meant to be an exhaustive criteria, we have dilated on this aspect in order to underline that in such situations, if the Government fail to act in larger public interest, the Court may in an appropriate case be constrained to invoke its jurisdiction in order to restore the faith of the people and to underscore the principles of good governance. We therefore reject the contention of complete immunity from scrutiny of action of the State in the posting or transfer of its officers.

19. In the early 1980's our Supreme Court evolved what would turn out to be a powerful tool in the hands of the constitutional courts of the country. The PIL was evolved to enable the legitimate constitutional claims of the voiceless, socially backward and the economically deprived to be addressed by Courts. The PIL was structured upon the need to address the deprivations faced by those who on account of backwardness, economic or otherwise, were unable to approach a court of law or whose voices were lost in the din of a billion people. Over a period of time, this tool was expanded to cover areas and issues of lack of governance, bureaucratic apathy and corruption. While the scope and expanse of the PIL jurisdiction grew, the Courts also found instances of the forum being abused by busybodies, interlopers who used the forum camouflaging their oblique motives and vested interests. It was noticing this aspect which had grown in proportion over a period of time that the Supreme Court was constrained to sound a note of caution. In State of Uttaranchal Vs. Balwant Singh Chaufal[7] the Court noted the earlier precedents on the subject and observed as follows:-

"155. In Dattaraj Nathuji Thaware, this court expressed its anguish on misuse of the forum of the court under the garb of public interest litigation and observed(SCC p 595, para 12) that the public interest litigation is a weapon which has to be used with great care and circumspection and the judiciary has to be extremely careful to see that behind the beautiful veil of public interest, an ugly private malice, vested interest and/or publicity seeking is not lurking. It is to be used as an effective weapon in the armoury of law for delivering social justice to the citizens. The court must not allow its process to be abused for oblique considerations...."

158. In Holicow Pictures Pvt. Ltd. v. Prem Chandra Mishra & Others AIR 2008 SC 913, this Court observed as under:

10. It is depressing to note that on account of such trumpery proceedings initiated before the Courts, innumerable days are wasted, the time which otherwise could have been spent for disposal of cases of the genuine litigants. Though we spare no efforts in fostering and developing the laudable concept of PIL and extending our long arm of sympathy to the poor, the ignorant, the oppressed and the needy, whose fundamental rights are infringed and violated and whose grievances go unnoticed, un-represented and unheard; yet we cannot avoid but express our opinion that while genuine litigants with legitimate grievances relating to civil matters involving properties worth hundreds of millions of rupees and criminal cases in which persons sentenced to death facing gallows under untold agony and persons sentenced to life imprisonment and kept in incarceration for long years, persons suffering from undue delay in service matters -government or private, persons awaiting the disposal of cases wherein huge amounts of public revenue or unauthorized collection of tax amounts are locked up, detenu expecting their release from the detention orders etc. etc. are all standing in a long serpentine queue for years with the fond hope of getting into the Courts and having their grievances redressed, the busybodies, meddlesome interlopers, wayfarers or officious interveners having absolutely no public interest except for personal gain or private profit either of themselves or as a proxy of others or for any other extraneous motivation or for glare of publicity break the queue muffing their faces by wearing the mask of public interest litigation and get into the Courts by filing vexatious and frivolous petitions and thus criminally waste the valuable time of the Courts and as a result of which the queue standing outside the doors of the Courts never moves, which piquant situation creates frustration in the minds of the genuine litigants and resultantly they loose faith in the administration of our judicial system."

181. In order to preserve the purity and sanctity of the PIL, it has become imperative to issue the following directions:-

(1) The courts must encourage genuine and bona fide PIL and effectively discourage and curb the PIL filed for extraneous considerations.

(2) Instead of every individual judge devising his own procedure for dealing with the public interest litigation, it would be appropriate for each High Court to properly formulate rules for encouraging the genuine PIL and discouraging the PIL filed with oblique motives. Consequently, we request that the High Courts who have not yet framed the rules, should frame the rules within three months. The Registrar General of each High Court is directed to ensure that a copy of the Rules prepared by the High Court is sent to the Secretary General of this court immediately thereafter.

(3) The courts should prima facie verify the credentials of the petitioner before entertaining a P.I.L.

(4) The court should be prima facie satisfied regarding the correctness of the contents of the petition before entertaining a PIL.

(5) The court should be fully satisfied that substantial public interest is involved before entertaining the petition.

(6) The court should ensure that the petition which involves larger public interest, gravity and urgency must be given priority over other petitions.

(7) The courts before entertaining the PIL should ensure that the PIL is aimed at redressal of genuine public harm or public injury. The court should also ensure that there is no personal gain, private motive or oblique motive behind filing the public interest litigation.

(8) The court should also ensure that the petitions filed by busybodies for extraneous and ulterior motives must be discouraged by imposing exemplary costs or by adopting similar novel methods to curb frivolous petitions and the petitions filed for extraneous considerations."

20. It was with a view to address the above noted mischief that this Court introduced Rule 3A in Chapter XXII of the 1952 Rules requiring all PIL's to carry a declaration and disclosure with respect to the persons approaching the Court.

21. When one tests the present petition on the guidelines formulated by the Supreme Court and referred to above, it is apparent that the instant PIL clearly fails to meet the benchmark of a bona fide petition instituted in public interest. As we read the averments made in the writ petition, it is ex facie apparent that it carries no details of any public causes that this society based at Allahabad may have pursued in the past. There is no disclosure whatsoever of any public issue that it may have advocated or addressed in the past. The writ petition does not disclose any details of charitable or social activities that the society may have undertaken or pursued. Far from having raised or pursued any cause or interest of the people of Gautumbudh Nagar, there are no details of any activity undertaken by the petitioner society in Allahabad either. As rightly pointed out by learned counsels for the respondents, the writ petition was not instituted on the basis of any resolution or decision of the society. At least no such resolution was brought on record. It also did not carry any authorization in favor of the Secretary or the deponent to the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition. In fact we find that even the Memorandum of Association of the society which may have disclosed its aims and objects was not brought on record. The deponent of the affidavit, as learned counsels have pointed out, is a twenty four year old farmer living in District Kaushambi. Most of the averments in the writ petition however have been sworn on the basis of personal knowledge of the deponent. We have been unable to comprehend how a young resident of Kaushambi engaged in farming derived or could have personal knowledge in respect of officers and employees or for that matter the affairs concerning NOIDA. All these aspects clearly cast a serious cloud on the bona fides and motives of the petitioner. We are conscious of the fact that the Division Bench on 1 July 2016 entertained this petition overruling the objections taken by the respondents on this score and exercised powers suo moto. We therefore, now proceed to deal with the contentions raised on merits.

22. We have already extracted the reliefs sought in the writ petition at the beginning of our judgment. Relief "i' as framed seeks a direction commanding the State Government to transfer officers/employees who have completed more than three years in NOIDA, GINIDA and YEA out of the district forthwith. The relief so sought is liable to be tested against the provisions of the 1976 Act. Now it is not disputed that NOIDA is an authority which stands constituted in terms of Section 3 of the 1976 Act. By virtue of Section 4, the Chief Executive Officer is liable to be appointed by the State Government and is to be a whole time officer of the authority. Section 4 reads as fallows:

"4. Chief Executive Officer.- (1) The Chief Executive Officer of the Authority shall be appointed by the State Executive Government and shall be a whole-time officer of the Authority.

(2) The Chief Executive Officer shall be entitled to receive from the funds of the Authority such salaries and allowances and be governed by such conditions of service as may be determined by general or special order of the State Government in this behalf.

(3) The Chief Executive Officer shall exercise such power and perform such duties as may be specified in the regulations or delegated to him by the Authority."

23. By virtue of the provisions of Section 5, the authority constituted under the 1976 Act is entitled to appoint officers and employees and determine their grades and designations. Section 5 reads as follows:

"5. Staff of the Authority.- (1) Subject to such control and restrictions as may be determined by general special orders of the State Government, the Authority may appoint such number of officers and employees as may be necessary for the performance of its functions and may determine their grades and designations.

(2) Subject as aforesaid the officers and other employees of the Authority shall be entitled to receive from the funds of the Authority such salaries and allowances and shall be governed by such other conditions of service as may be agreed upon with the Authority."

24. Salaries and allowances payable to such officers and employees is to be drawn from the funds of the authority concerned. In terms of Section 3(2), the authority is declared to be a body corporate.

25. From the provisions referred to above, it is apparent that the officers and employees are engaged by and appointed in an authority constituted under Section 3. The authority is constituted to exercise its powers and carry out its functions in a notified industrial development area. The officers and employees of the authority, as is evident from the provisions of Section 5, are not employees of the State Government so to speak but employees of the authority. No provision of the 1976 Act or any regulation or rule framed thereunder renders their services transferable either between the authorities constituted under Section 3 inter se or to any other department or wing of the State Government. At least no such provision was brought to our attention by the learned counsel for the petitioner. It was in the above backdrop that we called upon the learned counsel to explain relief "i' as claimed in the petition. Learned counsel for the petitioner candidly admitted that the relief as framed in light of the provisions of the 1976 Act was not liable to be granted. He however, submitted and prayed that since the instant writ petition was in the nature of a public interest litigation, the reliefs sought therein may not be viewed in a strict or pedantic sense. In essence learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the relief be moulded to read as a prayer seeking issuance of a direction for the transfer or removal of the twelfth respondent. We accordingly and in this light proceed further in the matter.

26. Having gone through the writ petition, the averments made therein and the material brought on record, we find that while various allegations of a general character have been made in respect of wrongdoings committed in the allotment of land, misappropriation of funds, acquisition of property and wealth by employees, no specific allegation or charge stands leveled or established against the twelfth respondent. The writ petition carries no material which may prove the commission of any act of malfeasance or corruption against the twelfth respondent personally. We have carefully gleaned through the various averments taken in the writ petition as well as the supplementary affidavit filed on behalf of the writ petitioners but have failed to find any material which may justify the return or recordal of an adverse finding or comment against the twelfth respondent personally. No corrupt motive or act attributable to the said respondent stands established conclusively from the record. The challenge in the writ petition which was primarily centered around the continuance of the twelfth respondent in any view of the matter has paled into insignificance consequent to the own steps taken by the Government which has decided to transfer him from the said post. Insofar as the remaining private respondents are concerned, the learned counsel for the petitioner has not raised any serious challenge and had confined their challenge to the continuance of the twelfth respondent alone. In view of the above, and noticing the fact that the Government has itself transferred the twelfth respondent during the pendency of the writ petition, we find that no further directions for the transfer of the twelfth respondent are warranted.

27. We have noted that no specific allegation stood proved and established conclusively against the twelfth respondent personally. It is perhaps in this light that the State Government had (and perhaps justifiably) vehemently argued initially that no circumstances warranted the transfer or removal of the twelfth respondent from NOIDA. The learned Advocate General not just stoutly defended the twelfth respondent but also urged for our consideration that the officer in question was of exemplary character and it was because of his administrative skills and prowess that the State Government had continued him on the post. While we do not have any reason to doubt the submission of the learned Advocate General or for that matter the ability of the twelfth respondent, we feel that certain other relevant and larger issues merited consideration by the Government in such matters.

28. While it is no doubt true that the posting of government officials is primarily an administrative function of the Government, as noted above, there is no such thing as an unfettered or absolute discretion in such matters. We have already repelled the submission advanced by Sri Ravi Kant of a judicial "hands off" in respect of these issues. As noted above, the Government is the repository of public trust and all its actions must therefore necessarily be imbued with the element of public interest. All its actions must answer the test of fairness and rationality. In fact good governance mandates that its actions must, as the Division Bench observed in its order of 1 July 2016, inspire confidence in the people and subserve above all public interest.

29. It is in light of the above principles that we note with some consternation that certain serious allegations were leveled in the writ petition including against the thirteenth and fourteenth respondents. While the State failed to effectively respond to the said allegations in its counter affidavit and left it to NOIDA to reply, NOIDA in its initial reply did not effectively traverse these allegations. All that it averred initially was that certain complaints of fraud and cheating were received against the thirteenth respondent, a class IV employee, as a consequence of which criminal action was initiated. Similarly in respect of the fourteenth respondent it averred that the said employee had retired in 2008. In its subsequent affidavit it disclosed that a FIR was lodged against the thirteenth respondent on 10 January 2015 and which has subsequently culminated in the submission of a charge sheet under sections 420, 467, 468 and 471 IPC. The holding of a property in a posh sector of NOIDA by the said respondent was not traversed in either of the said affidavits. Similarly in respect of the fourteenth respondent, neither of the affidavits traversed his alleged interests in MMR Builders. More striking are the facts surrounding the case of Yadav Singh. A Division Bench of the Court while directing the CBI to take over investigation into the said scam, noted in its judgment that the income tax raids conducted during November 2014 revealed his connections with as many as twenty five private companies and Yadav Singh and his syndicate having acquired 320 plots valued valued at Rs. 750 crores. The raids further found large scale allotments having been effected by Yadav Singh in favor of his wife and family members. All this is stated to have been achieved while Yadav Singh was posted in different departments during the period 2002 to 2014. Further information was sought from the CEO NOIDA on 6 January 2015 by the Income Tax Department with respect to award of contracts to 75 companies connected to Yadav Singh. Since the investigation is ongoing we have refrained from commenting further on this aspect. However if there be even a figment of truth in the various allegations noticed above, it is apparent that all was not well at NOIDA. We have borne in mind the fact that the twelfth respondent was at the helm of affairs right from March 2012 as CEO NOIDA as well as Chairman NOIDA, GNIDA and YEA. Some of these incidents pertain to a period when he was posted at NOIDA. The fact whether he was holding charge of the post of CEO in a substantive or other capacity would really be of no significance. This much however is clear that there were serious allegations of wrongdoing and corruption at NOIDA. It was perhaps in this light that the Government should have considered a revamp of the administration of the authority if nothing else. If the allegations against Yadav Singh and others be true, it is apparent that they unfolded and occurred under the watch of the twelfth respondent. In such a situation it was perhaps appropriate that the Government rethink and revisit the issue of deployment and postings in the Authority. The faith and trust of the common man in the system and in the person/officer at the helm of affairs is equally important, which the Government should bear in mind, while continuing the same officer at one place for years together, and giving scope to generate doubt about the system. No person is indispensable. The Government should have not come before the Court with the stand that the services of the twelfth respondent are indispensable and that there is no other IAS officer who can work for the authorities. The very concept of transfer, would thereby stand defeated.

30. The second aspect which must merit mention is this. The mere fact that the 1955 Regulations do not envisage a maximum tenure does not necessarily mean that a person may be permitted to continue on a particular post for years together. It would in fact be in the fitness of things and perhaps to overcome the leveling of allegations such as the present against the twelfth respondent that the Government consider the shifting of officers periodically. We note that the Government Order dated 24 December 2001 itself envisages the Civil Service Board fixing both the minimum as well as the maximum tenure of posting of IAS officers. While a minimum tenure has been fixed, we were told that the Civil Services Board has till date not fixed the maximum tenure period. It would therefore, be appropriate for the Board as well as the Government to revisit this issue so that in future such challenges and allegations of nepotism are avoided.

31. Since the twelfth respondent has already been transferred from NOIDA, no further operative directions need be issued. The PIL's shall stand disposed of subject to the observations made hereinabove.

This application has been filed seeking the release of the applicant on bail in Case Crime No. 70 of 2016 u/s 147, 148, 149 and 302/34 IPC, Police Station- Aliganj District-Bareilly.

Submission of learned counsel for the applicant is that the allegation against the applicant is that he along with some other co-accused were armed with country made fire-arms.

The nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence, this Court is of the view that the applicant may be enlarged on bail.

It may be observed that in the event of any breach of the aforesaid conditions, the court below shall be at liberty to proceed for the cancellation of applicant's bail.

Case Law discussed:

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. This application has been filed seeking the release of the applicant on bail in Case Crime No. 70 of 2016 u/ss 147, 148, 149 and 302/34 IPC, Police Station- Aliganj District-Bareilly.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

3. Perused the record.

4. Submission of learned counsel for the applicant is that the allegation against the applicant is that he along with some other co-accused were armed with country made fire-arms.

Further submission is that the weapon recovered at the instance of the applicant is also a country made pistol. Out of all the accused persons, one co-accused Mudit Pratap Singh is said to have been armed with rifle. Further submission is that firing is said to have been resorted to by all the accused persons, who carried firearms but there is only one fire-arm injury incurred by deceased which has gone through and through causing one entry wound and one exit wound on his body. Emphasis was laid by the learned counsel for the applicant on the fact that there is evidence collected to the effect that firing distance between the place of firing and the place where the deceased was hit is about 50-60 meters. Further submission is that even the spot examination also indicates the long distance between the deceased and the assailants. Further submission is that as the applicant was said to have been armed with country made pistol, it is so obvious that the firing made by the country made weapon cannot have a killing range at such a distance. The fire arm wound as has been caused to the deceased going through and through his body must, in all probability, have been caused by the rifle and not by a country made pistol. It has also been pointed out that the deceased was not the intended target of anybody and it appears from the evidence that he involuntarily got hit almost accidentally in the volley of fire. Further submission is that in view of the fact that a country made pistol is said to have been used by the applicant, his case stands distinguishable from that of co-accused Mudit Pratap Singh, who is said to have been armed with a rifle and is also said to have used the same. Further submission is that keeping that aspect in view it is so obvious that the applicant in all probability cannot be said to be the author of the fatal injuries received by the deceased. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the applicant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required. It has also been submitted that the applicant is languishing in jail since 7.6.2016 having no criminal history and in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

5. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the prayer for bail.

6. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence, this Court is of the view that the applicant may be enlarged on bail.

7. Let the applicant- Balveer, involved in Case Crime No. 70 of 2016, u/ss 147, 148, 149 and 302/34 IPC, P.S.- Aliganj, District- Bareilly be released on bail on his executing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned on the following conditions :-

(1) The applicant will not make any attempt to tamper with the prosecution evidence in any manner whatsoever.

(2) The applicant will personally appear on each and every date in the court and his personal presence shall not be exempted unless the court itself deems it fit to do so in the interest of justice.

8. It may be observed that in the event of any breach of the aforesaid conditions, the court below shall be at liberty to proceed for the cancellation of applicant's bail.

9. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

The present Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.43724 of 2012 has been moved for quashing the charge sheet no.288A of 2012 dated 28.09.2012 and Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.12023 of 2013 has been moved for quashing the charge sheet no.288 of 2012 dated 30.08.2012 and prayer has been made in both Applications for quashing of further proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012 (State Vs. Ali Ahmad and others), arising out of case crime no.664 of 2012, under Sections 420, 467, 478, 471 IPC, P.S. Swar, District Rampur, pending in the court of Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur.

Learned counsel for applicants contends that the applicant Habib Ahmad was secretary of Gram Shiksha Samiti being Headmaster of Primary School of the Village Rustam Nagar, P.S. Swar, District Rampur while the applicants Ali Ahmad and Jagat Singh were members of the Committee being guardians of two students, and Smt. Nanhi Begum was Chairman of the Committee by virtue of being Village Pradhan; that the applicants have been falsely implicated on the false FIR lodged by opposite party no.2 on 03.04.2012 at case crime no.664 of 2012 through application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C dated 23.02.2011 and the Investigating Officer, without collecting any evidence has submitted charge sheets under the influence of the opposite party no.2; that as per averments made in the FIR, the applicant Habib Ahmad allegedly called the opposite party no.2 at his home on 16.03.2001 and demanded a sum of Rs.50,000/- from him, for making his selection on the post of Shiksha Mitra in Primary School of Village Rustampur, but he refused to make payment and asked for transparent selection. The above selection was set aside by this Court as the post of Shiksha Mitra was reserved for female candidate; that again in the year 2004 the same Principal (applicant Habib Ahmad) allegedly received the application form of opposite party no.2 for Shiksha Mitra on 17.12.2004 and on 19.12.2004, told him of misplacing of his application and when on 20.12.2004, he approached the applicant Habib Ahmad with another application form, he did not accept and got selected Noor Hasan in connivance with other accused persons and is alleged to have committed cheating with the opposite party no.2; that the real fact is that neither any demand was made from the opposite party no.2 nor he ever submitted any application for his selection on the post of Shiksha Mitra in the year 2004; that the claim of opposite party no.2 for selection by filing three Writ Petitions Nos.13356 of 2006, 69955 of 2009 and 12132 of 2015, has been rejected by this Court vide final orders dated 09.03.2011, 22.12.2009 and 27.02.2015 respectively; that in Writ-A No.12132 of 2015 filed by the opposite party no.2 seeking appointment to the post of Shiksha Mitra in the Primary School in Village Rustam Nagar near Raipur, Tehsil Swar, District Rampur for the year 2004 has been dismissed by this Court on 27.02.2015 by observing the concealments of facts and narration of wrong and false facts made by opposite party no.2, and imposing a cost of Rs.25,000/- on him, copy at Annexure SA2 to the supplementary affidavit, filed in Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.12023 of 2013; that in furtherance of order dated 22.12.2009 passed by this Court in Writ Petition No.69955 of 2009, the opposite party made a representation to District Magistrate, Rampur, who rejected the same by a reasoned order dated 06.04.2010 (respectively at Annexure 5 and Annexure 3 in two Applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. Nos.43724 of 2012 and 12023 of 2013), holding that no application for the post of Shiksha Mitra, was ever submitted by the opposite party no.2; that the correctness of order dated 06.04.2010 passed by District Magistrate, Rampur, has been upheld by this Court vide subsequent final orders passed in Writ Petitions as mentioned above; that after loosing battle from Writ Court in Writ Petition Nos.13356 of 2006 and 69955 of 2009 as well as in the representation before District Magistrate, Rampur on 06.04.2010, the opposite party no.2 has, with malafide intention to harm and harass the applicants, concocted a false story regarding alleged demand of Rs.50,000/- for selection in the year 2001 and further the alleged submission of application form (of which no date has been given) and of getting it misplaced by applicants in collusion with each other and lodged the FIR with absolutely false and concocted and new facts; that in view of observations made by the Writ Court, the averments made in the FIR lodged after inordinate delay of over six years from the incident, are proved to be absolutely false and baseless and so the charge sheets as well as proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012, under Sections 420, 467, 478, 471 IPC, P.S. Swar, District Rampur, arisen out of case crime no.664 of 2013, pending in the court of Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur are liable to be quashed.

It is not disputed that against the order passed on the application u/s 319 Cr.P.C., for summoning co-accused Ajay Singh and Asaruddin and co-accused persons, revision is pending before the Sessions Judge, under which the proceedings of trial court are bound to have been stayed. The moving of application for recall of order dated 27.02.2015 in Writ A No.12132 of 2015, for recall of an order passed on merits after hearing the parties, has no relevancy in this case.

In view of the discussions made above, I find that since the very moving of the application for appointment of Shiksha Mitra in the year 2004 by the opposite party no.2, has been disbelieved by the Writ Court and as per order passed in Writ-A No.12132 of 2015, the opposite party no.2 had not even moved any such application, it is a fit case, in which the charge sheets as well as entire proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012, arising out of case crime no.664 of 2012, under Sections 420, 467, 478, 471 IPC, P.S. Swar, District Rampur, pending in the court of Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur are required to be quashed in exercise of inherent powers of this Court, to prevent the abuse of process of court as well as to secure the ends of justice. Accordingly, the charge sheets as well as entire proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012 arising out case crime no.664 of 2012 are hereby quashed.

Case Law discussed:

R.P. Kapoor Vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 866, State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal 1992 SCC (Cr.) 426,

Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. Vs. Mohd. Sharaful Haque and another (2005) 1 SCC 122,

Devendra and others Vs. State of U.P. and another 2009 (67) ACC 886

(Delivered by Hon'ble Harsh Kumar, J.)

1. Both the aforesaid Applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. arise out of same incident and same case crime number, hence are being taken up together.

2. Shri V.D. Ojha, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 filed counter affidavit on behalf of the opposite party no.2 in Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.43724 of 2012, which is taken on record, but no counter affidavit has been filed in Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.12023 of 2013.

3. Heard learned counsel for applicants and learned AGA for the State, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 and perused the record.

4. The present Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.43724 of 2012 has been moved for quashing the charge sheet no.288A of 2012 dated 28.09.2012 and Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.12023 of 2013 has been moved for quashing the charge sheet no.288 of 2012 dated 30.08.2012 and prayer has been made in both Applications for quashing of further proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012 (State Vs. Ali Ahmad and others), arising out of case crime no.664 of 2012, under Sections 420, 467, 478, 471 IPC, P.S. Swar, District Rampur, pending in the court of Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur.

5. Learned counsel for applicants contends that the applicant Habib Ahmad was secretary of Gram Shiksha Samiti being Headmaster of Primary School of the Village Rustam Nagar, P.S. Swar, District Rampur while the applicants Ali Ahmad and Jagat Singh were members of the Committee being guardians of two students, and Smt. Nanhi Begum was Chairman of the Committee by virtue of being Village Pradhan; that the applicants have been falsely implicated on the false FIR lodged by opposite party no.2 on 03.04.2012 at case crime no.664 of 2012 through application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C dated 23.02.2011 and the Investigating Officer, without collecting any evidence has submitted charge sheets under the influence of the opposite party no.2; that as per averments made in the FIR, the applicant Habib Ahmad allegedly called the opposite party no.2 at his home on 16.03.2001 and demanded a sum of Rs.50,000/- from him, for making his selection on the post of Shiksha Mitra in Primary School of Village Rustampur, but he refused to make payment and asked for transparent selection. The above selection was set aside by this Court as the post of Shiksha Mitra was reserved for female candidate; that again in the year 2004 the same Principal (applicant Habib Ahmad) allegedly received the application form of opposite party no.2 for Shiksha Mitra on 17.12.2004 and on 19.12.2004, told him of misplacing of his application and when on 20.12.2004, he approached the applicant Habib Ahmad with another application form, he did not accept and got selected Noor Hasan in connivance with other accused persons and is alleged to have committed cheating with the opposite party no.2; that the real fact is that neither any demand was made from the opposite party no.2 nor he ever submitted any application for his selection on the post of Shiksha Mitra in the year 2004; that the claim of opposite party no.2 for selection by filing three Writ Petitions Nos.13356 of 2006, 69955 of 2009 and 12132 of 2015, has been rejected by this Court vide final orders dated 09.03.2011, 22.12.2009 and 27.02.2015 respectively; that in Writ-A No.12132 of 2015 filed by the opposite party no.2 seeking appointment to the post of Shiksha Mitra in the Primary School in Village Rustam Nagar near Raipur, Tehsil Swar, District Rampur for the year 2004 has been dismissed by this Court on 27.02.2015 by observing the concealments of facts and narration of wrong and false facts made by opposite party no.2, and imposing a cost of Rs.25,000/- on him, copy at Annexure SA2 to the supplementary affidavit, filed in Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.12023 of 2013; that in furtherance of order dated 22.12.2009 passed by this Court in Writ Petition No.69955 of 2009, the opposite party made a representation to District Magistrate, Rampur, who rejected the same by a reasoned order dated 06.04.2010 (respectively at Annexure 5 and Annexure 3 in two Applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. Nos.43724 of 2012 and 12023 of 2013), holding that no application for the post of Shiksha Mitra, was ever submitted by the opposite party no.2; that the correctness of order dated 06.04.2010 passed by District Magistrate, Rampur, has been upheld by this Court vide subsequent final orders passed in Writ Petitions as mentioned above; that after loosing battle from Writ Court in Writ Petition Nos.13356 of 2006 and 69955 of 2009 as well as in the representation before District Magistrate, Rampur on 06.04.2010, the opposite party no.2 has, with malafide intention to harm and harass the applicants, concocted a false story regarding alleged demand of Rs.50,000/- for selection in the year 2001 and further the alleged submission of application form (of which no date has been given) and of getting it misplaced by applicants in collusion with each other and lodged the FIR with absolutely false and concocted and new facts; that in view of observations made by the Writ Court, the averments made in the FIR lodged after inordinate delay of over six years from the incident, are proved to be absolutely false and baseless and so the charge sheets as well as proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012, under Sections 420, 467, 478, 471 IPC, P.S. Swar, District Rampur, arisen out of case crime no.664 of 2013, pending in the court of Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur are liable to be quashed.

6. It was further submitted by learned counsel for the applicants that though the charges have been framed by the trial court in the impugned case and part statement of PW-1 has been recorded, but thereafter upon application moved by opposite party no.2 u/s 319 Cr.P.C., to summon the then Assistant Basic Shiksha Adhikari Sri Ajay Kumar Singh and ultimately selected candidate Asaruddin son of Rahim Bux, they have been summoned by the trial court, against which order a revision is pending before the Sessions Court and further proceedings of trial have been stayed by revisional court till disposal of revision; that the contention of the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2, of having moved any application for recall of the order dated 27.02.2015 passed in Writ-A No.12132 of 2015, is wrong and misconceived because (i) the applicants have not been served with any notice of any such recall application during the period of last more than one and half year from the date of final order dated 27.02.2015 passed in the Writ; (ii) the above order has been passed on merits after hearing the parties and not in absence of counsel for the opposite party no.2; and (iii) the recall application, if any, has been moved with malafide intention and ulterior motive and is legally not maintainable.

7. Per contra learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 vehemently opposed the prayer for quashing the charge sheets as well as proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012, under Sections 420, 467, 478, 471 IPC, P.S. Swar, District Rampur, pending in the court of Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur and contended that from the materials available on record, it is proved that the applicants and other co-accused, in collusion with each other, have committed the offence of cheating in making selection of Noor Hasan/ Asaruddin in the year 2004 on the post of Shiksha

Mitra in the Primary School of the Village by deliberately making loss of application form of the opposite party no.2 for selection on the post of Shiksha Mitra for non-fulfillment of their demand of Rs.50,000/- as illegal gratification; that it has been clearly mentioned in para 5 of the application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. for lodging FIR that copy of acknowledgment was annexed with the application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C.; that the Applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing the charge sheets as well as entire proceedings of the aforesaid case are malafide and misconceived and there is no sufficient ground for quashing the charge sheets as well as entire proceedings of the aforesaid case.

8. Learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 further submitted that in view of averments made in FIR, the cognizable offence is proved to have been committed by applicants and the trial court has framed charges after hearing them; that the trial is in progress and after framing of charges against the charge sheeted accused persons, the part statement of PW-1 has also been recorded, whereafter on the application u/s 319 Cr.P.C., of the opposite party no.2, two accused namely Asruddin and Ajay Kumar (who were named in the FIR, but not charge sheeted), have been summoned for trial together; that against the order of summoning, the summoned additional accused persons have filed a criminal revision before the Sessions Judge, Rampur, which is pending for disposal; that against the order dated 27.02.2015, the opposite party no.2 has moved recall application and so the findings made in the order passed in Writ A No.12132 of 2015 may not have any adverse effect on the prosecution of accused persons; that the Applications are liable to be dismissed.

9. Upon hearing learned counsel for the parties and perusal of records, I find that according to the prosecution case, the applicant Habib Ahmad allegedly demanded a sum of Rs.50,000/- from the opposite party no.2 on 16.03.2001 for getting him selected on the post of Shiksha Mitra in the year 2001, regarding which no FIR was lodged for the offence allegedly committed by making such demand. In the year 2004 at the time of next selection process for the post, no such demand is alleged to have been made or repeated. As per averments made in the FIR, the applicant Habib Ahmad, mischievously got the application form of the opposite party no.2 misplaced/lost in collusion with co-accused persons and further refused to accept another application form for getting Noor Hasan selected and thus committed the offence.

10. It is pertinent to mention that Writ-A No.12132 of 2015 filed by the opposite party no.2, claiming his appointment on the post of Shiksha Mitra in the year 2004 after quashing the appointment of co-accused Noor Hasan/ Asaruddin, has been dismissed by the Writ Court vide final order dated 27.02.2015 with following observations made in paras 3, 12, 13, 21 & 22:-

"(3) Contention is that the Head-master of the institution had refused to accept the application of the petitioner on the ground that the selection of Noor Hasan shall be renewed and no fresh application would be entertained. Finally, the selection of Noor Hasan was cancelled and the second placed candidate namely Asruddin was appointed.

(12) A perusal of the order dated 6.4.2010 clearly indicates that the claim of the petitioner was considered on merits. In the representation filed on 3.2.2010, the petitioner's claim was that he has submitted the application form for the post of Shiksha Mitra but it was not accepted by the Principal/Secretary of Gram Shiksha Samiti, Rustam Nagar near Raipur, District Raipur. The petitioner was 'Anaupcharik Anudeshak' and could have secured higher marks than the selected candidates if he would has been allowed to participate.

(13) It was found that the petitioner has not submitted any application form for the post of Shiksha Mitra. Two posts of Shiksha Mitra one from a (female) candidate and another from Sri Asruddin was filled.

(21) Further on merits of the claim of the petitioner, this Court finds that the petitioner has not been able to substantiate that he has applied for the post of Shiksha Mitra in the year 2004. It is apparent from the minutes of meeting of Gram Shiksha Samiti appended as Annexure '7' to the writ petition that only two application forms were received and placed in the meeting held on 23.12.2004. The claim of the petitioner for appointment, therefore, is found devoid of merits.

(22) From the above discussion, it is apparent that the petitioner has utterly misused the process of this Court with full knowledge and deliberation. From his conduct, the petitioner appears to be a habitual litigant having no respect for a Court of Law and Justice. Looking to the conduct of the petitioner, with a view to uphold the solemn procedure of law, and as a deterrent this writ petition is dismissed with cost which I shall quantify to Rs. 25,000/-."

11. It is settled principle of law that at the stage of section 204 Cr.P.C., only a prima facie case is to be seen by the Magistrate as laid down by Supreme Court in cases of R.P. Kapoor Vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 866, State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal 1992 SCC (Cr.) 426 and Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. Vs. Mohd. Sharaful Haque and another (2005) 1 SCC 122.

12. Generally speaking, at the time of looking into the correctness of summoning order, the defences may not be looked into and the same is to be assessed only on the averments made in complaint and statements as well as the material provided by the complaint, and the defences may be taken into consideration only in exceptional cases. The legal position remains same in case of summoning of accused on submission of charge sheet.

13. It has been held in (2012) 11 SCC 465 in the case of Nupur Talwar vs. CBI and another that "defences may be taken into consideration only if defences raised by accused are factually unassailable and unconvertible and demolish the foundation of prosecution case".

14. In Devendra and others Vs. State of U.P. and another 2009 (67) ACC 886, Hon'ble the Apex Court has considered the civil wrong and criminal wrong and has held as under:-

"We may, however, notice that the said decision has been considered recently by this Court in Mahesh Choudhary v. State of Rajasthan & another, 2009 (4) SCC 66 wherein it was noticed:

"Recently in R. Kalyani v. Janak C. Mehta and Ors. JT 2008 (12) SC 279 this Court laid down the law in the following terms:

9. Propositions of law which emerge from the said decisions are:

(1) The High Court ordinarily would not exercise its inherent jurisdiction to quash a criminal proceeding and, in particular, a First Information Report unless the allegations contained therein, even if given face value and taken to be correct in their entirety, disclosed, no cognizable offence.

(2) For the said purpose, the Court, save and except in very exceptional circumstances, would not look to any document relied upon by the defence.

(3) Such a power should be exercised very sparingly. If the allegations made in the FIR disclose commission of an offence, the court shall not go beyond the same and pass an order in favour of the accused to hold absence of any mens rea or actus reus.

(4) If the allegation discloses a civil dispute, the same by itself may not be a ground to hold that the criminal proceedings should not be allowed to continue.

(10) It is furthermore well known that no hard and fast rule can be laid down. Each case has to be considered on its own merits. The Court, while exercising its inherent jurisdiction, although would not interfere with a genuine complaint keeping in view the purport and object for which the provisions of Sections 482 and 483 of the Code of Criminal Procedure had been introduced by the Parliament but would not hesitate to exercise its jurisdiction in appropriate cases. One of the paramount duties of the Superior Courts is to see that a person who is apparently innocent is not subjected to persecution and humiliation on the basis of a false and wholly untenable complaint."

15. The contents of para 3 of above judgment dated 27.02.2015 passed in Writ A No.12132 of 2015, shows that in above Writ Petition as well as in his earlier writ petitions, the opposite party no.2 had taken a stand that his application form for the post of Shiksha Mitra was not accepted by the applicant Habib Ahmad, without making any whisper of alleged demand of Rs.50,000/- as illegal gratification or of misplacement/ loss of earlier application moved in 2004. The contents of paras 12 and 13 of the above judgment makes it clear that the District Magistrate, Rampur in his order dated 06.04.2010 held that the opposite party no.2 (petitioner in the Writ Petition) had not submitted any application form for the post of Shiksha Mitra, which was affirmed by this Court in two Writ Petition Nos.13356 of 2006 and 12132 of 2015. It is also clear that after rejection of representation by the District Magistrate, Rampur vide order dated 06.04.2010, the opposite party no.2 changed his stand (taken in Writ Petitions) and moved an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. on 23.02.2011 (after a period of over five years) and by way of improvement took new plea of alleged demand of Rs.50,000/- and alleged loss of his first application from for the year 2004, by applicant Habib Ahmad.

16. In view of the discussions made above and facts & circumstances of the case, since it has been held by Writ Court that the opposite party no.2 did not submit any application form for the post of Shiksha Mitra in the year 2004, and his claim for the said post has been dismissed, the opposite party no.2 may not have any prima facie case for prosecution of applicants on the ground of alleged loss of his application form (which was never submitted) by the applicant Habib Ahmad in collusion with members of Committee Ali Ahmad and Jagat Singh or any other accused persons. In the circumstances, there can be no possibility of conviction of applicants Habib Ahmad, the Secretary or applicants Ali Ahmad and Jagat Singh, the members of the Committee and the proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012, arising out of two charge sheets no.288 and 288A of 2013 submitted in case crime no.664 of 2012 are only futile exercise, which will waste the valuable time of the Court, which may be utilized for disposal of several important cases as well as cases of poor litigants. I am of the considered view that the proceedings of criminal case are abuse of process of court, and in order to prevent the abuse of process of court as well as to secure the ends of justice, the exercise of inherent powers by this Court is required for quashing the frivolous proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012 based on FIR lodged by the opposite party no.2 in case crime no.664 of 2012.

17. It is not disputed that against the order passed on the application u/s 319 Cr.P.C., for summoning co-accused Ajay Singh and Asaruddin and co-accused persons, revision is pending before the Sessions Judge, under which the proceedings of trial court are bound to have been stayed. The moving of application for recall of order dated 27.02.2015 in Writ A No.12132 of 2015, for recall of an order passed on merits after hearing the parties, has no relevancy in this case.

18. In view of the discussions made above, I find that since the very moving of the application for appointment of Shiksha Mitra in the year 2004 by the opposite party no.2, has been disbelieved by the Writ Court and as per order passed in Writ-A No.12132 of 2015, the opposite party no.2 had not even moved any such application, it is a fit case, in which the charge sheets as well as entire proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012, arising out of case crime no.664 of 2012, under Sections 420, 467, 478, 471 IPC, P.S. Swar, District Rampur, pending in the court of Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur are required to be quashed in exercise of inherent powers of this Court, to prevent the abuse of process of court as well as to secure the ends of justice. Accordingly, the charge sheets as well as entire proceedings of criminal case no.3665 of 2012 arising out case crime no.664 of 2012 are hereby quashed.

19. The applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. are allowed accordingly.

DATED: ALLAHABAD 17.09.2016

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SURYA PRAKASH KESARWANI, J.

Writ A No.- 44424 Of 2016

Smt. Sunita Singh Kushwaha ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Jitendra Pandey, Birendra Pandey

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Qamrul Hasan Siddiqui

This writ petition has been filed for the following relief:

(i) Issue a writ in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent no.2 to consider the employment of petitioner as per Dying-in-Harness Rules.

FACTS

Briefly stated facts of the present case are that the mother of the petitioner Smt. Vimla Devi was working on the post of Peon in Jal Nigam, Varanasi. She died on 31.10.2014. Petitioner is a married daughter of the deceased Vimla Devi. She has filed this writ petition with the allegation that she is a divorced lady and, therefore, in view of the Division Bench Judgement of this Court in Writ - C No.60881 of 2015, Smt. Vimla Srivastava Vs.State of U.P. and another, she is entitled for appointment on compassionate ground. It is alleged that after the death of her mother her husband filed a divorce petition No.813 of 2014 on 20.11.2014 in Family Court, Azamgarh. However, despite being asked repeatedly, learned counsel for the petitioner could not inform about further development in the aforesaid divorce petition and its present status. In the writ petition also there is no averment in this regard except that a divorce petition No.813 of 2014 was filed by her husband .

The petitioner has neither impleaded her husband as respondent against whom allegation of filing a divorce petition has been levelled nor she has disclosed the source of livelihood, earning and financial status of her husband. After the death of the deceased employee and yet her death is not recorded in it. This register also does not record the name of two children of the petitioner.

No documents indicating dependency of the petitioner and her children on the deceased employee has been filed alongwith writ petition. The petitioner has also not filed her address proof and address proof of her son and daughter. In paragraph 9 of the writ petition, the petitioner has alleged that she moved a representation on 7.1.2015 before the Executive Engineer for her compassionate appointment. Copy of the representation dated 7.1.2015 has been filed as Annexure No.5 to the writ petition. Perusal of this representation dated 7.1.2015 shows that it was allegedly filed alongwith proof of divorce of the petitioner and death certificate of the deceased employee which was issued on a subsequent date on 9.5.2015 as per Annexure No.2. Thus the averments made in the writ petition are apparently false.

The sequence of the events as discussed above shows that the petitioner has cooked up the entire story so as to obtain illegally the Government employment on compassionate ground without actually being dependent of the deceased Government employee. The writ petition is based on false and misleading averments and suppression of important facts.

In view of the aforesaid, I do not find any good reason to grant the relief as prayed by the petitioner.

Consequently, writ petition fails and is hereby dismissed.

Held: Para-

Case Law discussed:
Writ – C No.60881 of 2015, Smt. Vimla Srivastava Vs.State of U.P. and another,

(Delivered by Hon'ble Surya Prakash Kesarwani, J.)

1. Heard Sri Jitendra Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned standing counsel for respondent no.1 and Sri Saiful Islam Siddiqui holding brief of Sri Q.H. Siddiqui, learned counsel for respondent nos. 2 to 4.

2. This writ petition has been filed for the following relief:

(i) Issue a writ in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent no.2 to consider the employment of petitioner as per Dying-in-Harness Rules.

FACTS

3. Briefly stated facts of the present case are that the mother of the petitioner Smt. Vimla Devi was working on the post of Peon in Jal Nigam, Varanasi. She died on 31.10.2014. Petitioner is a married daughter of the deceased Vimla Devi. She has filed this writ petition with the allegation that she is a divorced lady and, therefore, in view of the Division Bench Judgement of this Court in Writ - C No.60881 of 2015, Smt. Vimla Srivastava Vs.State of U.P. and another, she is entitled for appointment on compassionate ground. It is alleged that after the death of her mother her husband filed a divorce petition No.813 of 2014 on 20.11.2014 in Family Court, Azamgarh. However, despite being asked repeatedly, learned counsel for the petitioner could not inform about further development in the aforesaid divorce petition and its present status. In the writ petition also there is no averment in this regard except that a divorce petition No.813 of 2014 was filed by her husband.

Submissions

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner being a divorcee is entitled for appointment on compassionate ground in view of the Division Bench judgment in the case of Smt. Vimla Srivastava (supra). Learned standing counsel submits that a married woman does not fall within the category of dependent under the Dying-in-Harness Rules, 1974. He submits that the Division Bench judgment in the case of Smt. Vimla Srivastava (supra) has been stayed by Hon'ble Supreme Court. He submits that there is no evidence of divorce decree and as such it can not be said that the petitioner is a divorced lady.

Discussion and Findings:

5. I have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties. Rule 2 (c) of the Uttar Pradesh Recruitment of Dependents of Government Servants, Dying-in-Harness Rules, 1974 (hereinafter referred to as "Dying-in-Harness Rules") defines the word "family" as under:

"2(c) "family" shall include the following relations of the deceased Government servant:

(i) Wife or husband;

(ii) Sons/adopted sons;

(iii) Unmarried daughters, unmarried adopted daughters, widowed daughters and widowed daughters-in-law;

(iv) Unmarried brothers, unmarried sisters and widowed mother dependent on the deceased Government servant, if the deceased Government servant was unmarried;

(v) aforementioned relations of such missing Government servant who has been declared as "dead" by the competent Court;

Provided that if a person belonging to any of the above mentioned relations of the deceased Government servant is not available or is found to be physically and mentally unfit and thus ineligible for employment in Government service, then only in such situation the word "family" shall also include the grandsons and the unmarried granddaughters of the deceased Government servant dependent on him."

6. In the case of Smt. Vimla Srivastava (supra) decided on 4.12.2015 the word "unmarried" before the word "daughters" occurring in sub clause (iii) of Clause C of Rule 2 was struck down by the Division Bench in the case of Smt. Vimla Srivastava (supra) and a direction was issued to the concerned respondents to reconsider the claim of Smt. Vimla Srivastava for compassionate appointment on the basis of relevant facts and circumstance and she shall not be excluded from consideration only on the ground of marital status.

7. Solely relying upon the judgment in the case of Smt. Vimla Srivastava (supra) another Division Bench in Special Appeal Defective No.863 of 2015 (Neha Srivastava Vs. State of U.P. another) took the same view and allowed the special appeal by judgment dated 23.12.2015. Against the judgment in the case of Neha Srivastava (supra) the State of U.P. preferred a Special Leave to Appeal (C) CC No. 13846 of 2016 in which Hon'ble Supreme Court passed an interim order on 29.7.2016 as under:

"Delay condoned.

Issue notice.

In the mean time, the operation of the impugned final judgment and order shall remain stayed."

8. The basic rationale and the foundation for granting compassionate appointment is the financial need of the family of a deceased government servant who has died in harness and it is with a view to alleviate financial distress that compassionate appointment is granted as per provisions of Rule 5 of the Dying-in-Harness Rules. It is settled law that compassionate appointment is an exception to the basic rule that there must be equality of opportunity in matters of public employment. Equality of opportunity postulates a level playing field where all eligible persons are entitled to compete in an effort to secure public employment. The basis of the exception that is carved out by the Dying-in-Harness Rules is that the death of a wage earner while in the service of the State may result in severe financial hardship on the family faced with an untimely death. Compassionate appointment is intended to provide immediate financial support to such a family by stipulating that upon the death of its wage earner while in harness as a government servant, another member of the family would be granted appointment. It is, thus not a reservation of a post in public employment but it is in the nature of an enabling provision under which a member of the family of a deceased government servant who died while in harness, can seek appointment based on financial dependency and need. Keeping in mind the aforesaid settled principles of compassionate appointment, I proceed to examine as to whether the petitioner has made out a prima facie case for compassionate appointment on the facts disclosed in the writ petition.

9. The petitioner has neither impleaded her husband as respondent against whom allegation of filing a divorce petition has been levelled nor she has disclosed the source of livelihood, earning and financial status of her husband. According to her own case her mother died on 31.10.2014 and allegedly thereafter a divorce petition was filed by her husband on 28.11.2014. A photostate copy of the said divorce petition has been filed as Annexure No.7 without disclosing that how petitioner has obtained it. Nothing has been brought on record about the status of the aforesaid alleged divorce petition. In paragraph 6 of the writ petition the petitioner has alleged that she alongwith her son aged 14 years and daughter aged 7 years were living with the deceased employee, Smt. Vimla Devi and were fully dependent on her. This para has been sworn on personal knowledge in the affidavit dated 7.9.2016. In the alleged divorce petition the age of aforesaid two children is mentioned as 15 Years and 13 years as on 28.11.2014. The alleged copy of family register filed as

Annexure No.3 to the writ petition was obtained on 29.12.2014 i.e. after the death of the deceased employee and yet her death is not recorded in it. This register also does not record the name of two children of the petitioner.

10. No documents indicating dependency of the petitioner and her children on the deceased employee has been filed alongwith writ petition. The petitioner has also not filed her address proof and address proof of her son and daughter. In paragraph 9 of the writ petition, the petitioner has alleged that she moved a representation on 7.1.2015 before the Executive Engineer for her compassionate appointment. Copy of the representation dated 7.1.2015 has been filed as Annexure No.5 to the writ petition. Perusal of this representation dated 7.1.2015 shows that it was allegedly filed alongwith proof of divorce of the petitioner and death certificate of the deceased employee which was issued on a subsequent date on 9.5.2015 as per Annexure No.2. Thus the averments made in the writ petition are apparently false.

11. The sequence of the events as discussed above shows that the petitioner has cooked up the entire story so as to obtain illegally the Government employment on compassionate ground without actually being dependent of the deceased Government employee. The writ petition is based on false and misleading averments and suppression of important facts.

12. In view of the aforesaid, I do not find any good reason to grant the relief as prayed by the petitioner.

13. Consequently, writ petition fails and is hereby dismissed.

Writ C No.- 54464 Of 2014

Nanak Chand ...Petitioner
Versus
Union of India thru' Secy. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Bidhan Chandra Rai

Counsel for the Respondents:
A.S.G.I., Anil Kumar Singh, J.S. Pandey, Pranjal Mehrotra, S.C.

Nanak Chand is before this Court assailing the order dated 22.9.2014 passed by the Competent Authority (Special Land Acquisition Officer), National Highways Tribunal, Mathura-respondent no.3 and for direction to the respondent no.3 to refer the dispute regarding apportionment of the amount of compensation to the District Judge, Mathura in terms of Section 3H (4) of the National Highways Act, 1956.

Record in question reflects that in the year 1979 Shri Tej Singh (father of the petitioner) purchased a part of Gata No.41 situate in revenue village Chhata, District Mathura from Shri Mool Chand. Shri Tej Singh constructed a hotel in the name and style of 'Marwari Bhojnalaya' on the land in question situated alongside of National Highway-2 in Kasba Chhata, District Mathura and was running the hotel in question. Shri Tej Singh has died and after his death, the petitioner is running the hotel in question. The National Highways Authority of India (in short, NHAI) had taken a policy decision to undertake and develop Six-Lane of Delhi – Agra Section of NH-2 from Km. 20.500 to Km. 200 through DBFOT basis under NHDP Phase-V. The NHAI is the Nodal Agency for execution of the said project. Consequently, the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways, Government of India, in exercise of powers conferred by sub clause (a) of Section 3 of the National Highways Act, 1956 (in short, the 1956 Act), published a notification dated 10.8.2009 in official Gazette authorising the Special Land Acquisition Officer, Mathura as the Competent Authority to perform the functions of such authority under the said 1956 Act in respect of the stretch land from KM 93.800 to KM 176.760 of the National Highway No.2 for building (widening/six laning, etc.), maintenance, management and operation of the said National Highway in the State of Uttar Pradesh. The said gazette notification was also published in newspapers namely 'Dainik Jagaran' and 'Hindustan Times' on 26.12.2009 and 25.12.2009 respectively.

Learned counsel for the petitioner precisely submits that while filing the objection the petitioner had submitted the relevant record but the Competent Authority in most arbitrary manner had rejected the objection of the petitioner holding that the petitioner has failed to produce any evidence regarding ownership of the hotel in question. The Competent Authority has not even looked into the provisions of Section 3-H (4) of 1956 Act as well as the bundle of evidences filed by the petitioner and as such, the impugned order is contrary to the mandatory provisions of Section 3-H (4) of the 1956 Act. It is sought to be contended that as per provisions contained under Section 3-H (4) of 1956 Act, it was incumbent upon the Competent Authority to make a reference of the dispute to the Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction i.e. District Judge, Mathura. He further makes submission that even Sections 3-H (3) & (4) of 1956 Act are somewhat similar to Sections 11 and 18 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (in short, the 1894 Act). Under Section 3-H (3) of the 1956 Act, where several persons claim to be interested in the amount deposited under sub-section (1) of Section 3H of 1956 Act, the Competent Authority shall determine the persons, who in its opinion, are entitled to receive the amount payable to each of them but in case there are several persons who claim stake in the property in question, the said claim cannot be resolved under sub-section (1) of Section 3H of 1956 Act and the same is to be dealt with as per provisions contained under Section 3H (4) of the 1956 Act. In support of his submission, he has placed reliance on a Division Bench judgement of Punjab and Haryana High Court in Nirmal Singh vs. Union of India and ors, CWP No.19838 of 2009 (O&M) decided on 11.11.2011 and the judgement of High Court of Jharkhand at Ranchi in Sangeeta Agrawal vs. The Union of India and ors in W.P. (C) No.1540 of 2013 decided on 17.6.2013.

In view of aforesaid facts and circumstances, we are of the considered opinion that while passing the impugned order the Competent Authority has considered the objection filed by the petitioner in detail and has proceeded to make a mention that the petitioner at no point of time had produced any revenue record to indicate any claim over the property in question and the entire claim has been set up on the basis of electricity bill, telephone connection and as such, the order impugned is based upon on concrete finding that at no point of time the petitioner could produce any valid title to claim right over the property in question. Even this Court has also asked a pointed query to learned counsel for the petitioner but he has failed to substantiate his claim or to produce any revenue record to indicate that the petitioner has got the valid claim or title over the property in question.

We do not find any illegality or infirmity in the impugned order.The writ petition sans merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble V. K. Shukla, J.

1. Nanak Chand is before this Court assailing the order dated 22.9.2014 passed by the Competent Authority (Special Land Acquisition Officer), National Highways Tribunal, Mathura-respondent no.3 and for direction to the respondent no.3 to refer the dispute regarding apportionment of the amount of compensation to the District Judge, Mathura in terms of Section 3H (4) of the National Highways Act, 1956.

2. Record in question reflects that in the year 1979 Shri Tej Singh (father of the petitioner) purchased a part of Gata No.41 situate in revenue village Chhata, District Mathura from Shri Mool Chand. Shri Tej Singh constructed a hotel in the name and style of 'Marwari Bhojnalaya' on the land in question situated alongside of National Highway-2 in Kasba Chhata, District Mathura and was running the hotel in question. Shri Tej Singh has died and after his death, the petitioner is running the hotel in question. The National Highways Authority of India (in short, NHAI) had taken a policy decision to undertake and develop Six-Lane of Delhi - Agra Section of NH-2 from Km. 20.500 to Km. 200 through DBFOT basis under NHDP Phase-V. The NHAI is the Nodal Agency for execution of the said project. Consequently, the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways, Government of India, in exercise of powers conferred by sub clause (a) of Section 3 of the National Highways Act, 1956 (in short, the 1956 Act), published a notification dated 10.8.2009 in official Gazette authorising the Special Land Acquisition Officer, Mathura as the Competent Authority to perform the functions of such authority under the said 1956 Act in respect of the stretch land from KM 93.800 to KM 176.760 of the National Highway No.2 for building (widening/six laning, etc.), maintenance, management and operation of the said National Highway in the State of Uttar Pradesh. The said gazette notification was also published in newspapers namely 'Dainik Jagaran' and 'Hindustan Times' on 26.12.2009 and 25.12.2009 respectively.

3. As per Gazette notification, objections were invited under Section 3C of 1956 Act. The land owners of the village in question filed their objections before the Competent Authority and their objections were heard and disposed of by the Competent Authority. Thereafter the Gazette notification under Section 3-G (3) of the 1956 Act was also issued on 25.6.2010. A notice under Section 3-G (3) of 1956 Act was published by the Competent Authority in daily newspapers 'Dainik Jagaran' and 'Hindustan Times' on 5.7.2010, inviting claims from the land owners with respect to determination of the compensation. A short public notice was also published in Hindustan Times (Hindi & English) on 14.12.2012 inviting claims regarding land acquisition from the land owners by the Competent Authority/Special Land Acquisition Officer, Mathura. Thereafter, the Competent Authority invited the claims from the land owners, heard the objections/claims at Tehsil office and in presence of revenue inspector of the concerned village, the said objections/claims were decided by the Competent Authority according to on-spot position, land use, available records etc. Finally, the Competent Authority announced the award under Section 3-G of 1956 Act on 29.7.2013 and determined the compensation for agricultural land @ Rs.1250/- per sqm. and non-agricultural/residential land @ Rs.5000/- per sqm. and 10% additional compensation apart from additional compensation for improvements/constructions over the land.

4. This much is also reflected from the record in question that the petitioner filed an objection inter-alia on the ground that out of total area of 5.876 hec. land from Gata No.41(M), 6480 sqm. land was acquired. The father of the petitioner had constructed the hotel in the year 1979 and after his death, the petitioner is running the said hotel and as such, he was liable to receive the compensation of the land and building comprised in Gata no.41.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner precisely submits that while filing the objection the petitioner had submitted the relevant record but the Competent Authority in most arbitrary manner had rejected the objection of the petitioner holding that the petitioner has failed to produce any evidence regarding ownership of the hotel in question. The Competent Authority has not even looked into the provisions of Section 3-H (4) of 1956 Act as well as the bundle of evidences filed by the petitioner and as such, the impugned order is contrary to the mandatory provisions of Section 3-H (4) of the 1956 Act. It is sought to be contended that as per provisions contained under Section 3-H (4) of 1956 Act, it was incumbent upon the Competent Authority to make a reference of the dispute to the Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction i.e. District Judge, Mathura. He further makes submission that even Sections 3-H (3) & (4) of 1956 Act are somewhat similar to Sections 11 and 18 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (in short, the 1894 Act). Under Section 3-H (3) of the 1956 Act, where several persons claim to be interested in the amount deposited under sub-section (1) of Section 3H of 1956 Act, the Competent Authority shall determine the persons, who in its opinion, are entitled to receive the amount payable to each of them but in case there are several persons who claim stake in the property in question, the said claim cannot be resolved under sub-section (1) of Section 3H of 1956 Act and the same is to be dealt with as per provisions contained under Section 3H (4) of the 1956 Act. In support of his submission, he has placed reliance on a Division Bench judgement of Punjab and Haryana High Court in Nirmal Singh vs. Union of India and ors, CWP No.19838 of 2009 (O&M) decided on 11.11.2011 and the judgement of High Court of Jharkhand at Ranchi in Sangeeta Agrawal vs. the Union of India and ors in W.P. (C) No. 1540 of 2013 decided on 17.6.2013.

6. On the other hand, Shri Pranjal Mehrotra, learned counsel for respondent no.2 has vehemently opposed the writ petition and submits that there is no infirmity or illegality in the impugned order and each and every objection of the petitioner has been considered. The petitioner at the relevant point of time could not produce legal ownership record before the Competent Authority and as such, no interference is required to be made in the matter.

7. Shri Anil Kumar Singh, Advocate has filed a counter affidavit on behalf of respondent no.4 stating that previously Sri Tej Singh (father of the petitioner) was running the hotel situated on the land of Public Works Department (Road Patari) but the hotel was not registered in his name. Sri Tej Singh has died leaving 3 sons including the petitioner. The petitioner is not occupier of the hotel in question and there is no record of the aforesaid claim of the petitioner. The Competent Authority has passed the order dated 22.9.2014 after considering the objection of the petitioner as well as the respondent no.4 and the relevant documents produced by both the parties. He further makes submission that even before this Court the petitioner could not show any valid and legal right or claim over the property in question and as such, his claim is unsustainable under sub-section (4) of Section 3H of 1956 Act and the writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

8. In order to resolve the controversy, it would be necessary to read Sections 3A, 3C, 3D and 3H(1) to (4) of the 1956 Act, which are reproduced as under:-

"3A. Power to acquire land, etc.-

(1) Where the Central Government is satisfied that for a public purpose any land is required for the building, maintenance, management or operation of a national highway or part thereof, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare its intention to acquire such land.

(2) Every notification under sub-section (1) shall give a brief description of the land.

(3) The competent authority shall cause the substance of the notification to be published in two local newspapers, one of which will be in a vernacular language."

"3C. Hearing of objections.-

(1) Any person interested in the land may, within twenty-one days from the date of publication of the notification under sub-section (1) of section 3A, object to the use of the land for the purpose or purposes mentioned in that sub-section.

(2) Every objection under sub-section (1) shall be made to the competent authority in writing and shall set out the grounds thereof and the competent authority shall give the objector an opportunity of being heard, either in person or by a legal practitioner, and may, after hearing all such objections and after making such further enquiry, it any, as the competent authority thinks necessary, by order, either allow or disallow the objections.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this sub- section, "legal practitioner" has the same meaning as in clause (i) of sub-section (1) of Section 2 of the Advocates Act, 1961 (25 of 1.961).

(3) Any order made by the competent authority under sub-section (2) shall be final.

3D. Declaration of acquisition.-

(1) Where no objection under sub-section (1) of Section 3C has been made to the competent authority within the period specified therein or where the competent authority has disallowed the objection under subsection (2) of that section, the competent authority shall, as soon as may be, submit a report accordingly to the Central Government and on receipt of such report, the Central Government shall declare, by notification in the Official Gazette, that the land should be acquired for the purpose or purposes mentioned in sub-section (1) of Section 3A.

(2) On the publication of the declaration under sub-section (1), the land shall vest absolutely in the Central Government free from all encumbrances.

(3) Where in respect of any land, a notification has been published under sub-section (1) of Section 3A for its acquisition but no declaration under sub-section (1) has been published within a period of one year from the date of publication of that notification, the said notification shall cease to have any effect:

Provided that in computing the said period of one year, the period or periods during which any action or proceedings to be taken in pursuance of the notification issued under sub-section (1.) of Section 3A is stayed by an order of a court shall be excluded.

(4) A declaration made by the Central Government under sub-section (1) shall not be called in question in any court or by any other authority.

3H. Deposit and payment of amount.-

(1) The amount determined under Section 3G shall be deposited by the Central Government in such manner as may be laid down by rules made in this behalf by that Government, with the competent authority before taking possession of the land.

(2) As soon as may be after the amount has been deposited under sub-section (1), the competent authority shall on behalf of the Central Government pay the amount to the person or persons entitled thereto.

(3) Where several persons claim to be interested in the amount deposited under sub- section (1), the competent authority shall determine the persons who in its opinion are entitled to receive the amount payable to each of them.

(4) If any dispute arises as to the apportionment of the amount or any part thereof or to any person to whom the same or any part thereof is payable, the competent authority shall refer the dispute to the decision of the principal civil court of original jurisdiction within the limits of whose jurisdiction the land is situated.

(5) Where the amount determined under Section 3-G by the arbitrator is in excess of the amount determined by the competent authority, the arbitrator may award interest at nine per cent per annum on such excess amount from the date of taking possession under Section 3-D till the date of the actual deposit thereof.

(6) Where the amount determined by the arbitrator is in excess of the amount determined by the competent authority, the excess amount together with interest, if any, awarded under sub-section (5) shall be deposited by the Central Government in such manner as may be laid down by rules made in this behalf by that Government, with the competent authority and the provisions of sub-sections (2) to (4) shall apply to such deposit."

9. It is true that the 1956 Act is a special statute which has clothed the Central Government with the power to acquire any land for a public purpose, which is required for building, maintenance, management or operation of a National Highway or part thereof. But many provisions of the 1956 Act are akin to the provisions of the 1894 Act. A perusal of Sections 3A, 3C and 3D of the 1956 Act would show that they are similar to Sections 4, 5A and 6 of the 1894 Act respectively in their contents and intendment. Even Section 3H (3) and (4) of the 1956 Act are somewhat similar to Sections 18 and 30 respectively of the 1894 Act. Likewise, further provisions like Sections 3H and 3G of the 1956 Act are equivalent to Sections 16 and 11 of the 1894 Act. Then it follows that the Competent Authority under the 1956 Act designated by respondent Nos. 1 and 2 would not be clothed with the power to adjudicate the claim of apportionment made by the parties in respect of the land for which notifications for acquisition have been issued under the 1956 Act. Under sub-section (3) of Section 3H of the 1956 Act, the Competent Authority may determine the persons who would be entitled to receive the amount payable to each of them where several persons make claim in respect of the amount deposited under sub-section (1) of Section 3H of the 1956 Act. This Section does not talk about any dispute between several claims, which in fact, has been specifically dealt with in sub-section (4) of Section 3H of the Act. Sub-section (4) of Section 3H of the 1956 Act opens with the words 'If any dispute arises as to the apportionment of the amount or any part thereof or to any person to whom the same or any part thereof is payable', then the Competent Authority nominated by the State Government like respondent No.3 is under obligation to refer the dispute to the decision of the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction within the limits of whose jurisdiction the land is situated.

10. As indicated above, sub-sections (3) and (4) of Section-3H of the 1956 Act are somewhat similar to Sections 18 and 30 respectively of the 1894 Act. For ready reference Sections 18 and 30 of 1894 Act are reproduced herein under:-

"18. Reference to Court.-

(1) Any person interested who has not accepted the award may, by written application to the Collector, require that the matter be referred by the Collector for the determination of the Court, whether his objection be to the measurement of the land, the amount of the compensation, the persons to whom it is payable, or the apportionment of the compensation among the persons interested.

(2) The application shall state the grounds on which objection to the award is taken: Provided that every such application shall be made,-

(a) if the person making it was present or represented before the Collector at the time when he made his award, within six weeks from the date of the Collector's award;

(b) in other cases, within six weeks of the receipt of the notice from the Collector under section 12, sub-section (2), or within six months from the date of the Collector's award, whichever period shall first expire.

30. Dispute as to apportionment- When the amount of compensation has been settled under Section 11, if any dispute arises as to the apportionment of the same or any part thereof, or as to the persons to whom the same or any part thereof, is payable, the Collector may refer such dispute to the decision of the Court."

11. From perusal of the aforesaid provisions, it appears that in a similar provision contained in 1894 Act the word "may" is used, whereas in Section 3H (4) of 1956 Act, the word "shall" is used.

12. The persons, who have notice of acquisition proceedings, would have to apply for a Reference under Section 18 of the 1894 Act. Under Section 18 reference could be in respect of the measurement of the land and/or the amount of compensation and/or in respect of persons to whom it is payable and/or for apportionment of compensation amongst persons interested. Section 30 of 1984 Act merely deals with apportionment of compensation when the amount of compensation has been settled. Thus, it is clear that Section 18 is to be invoked when a person claiming a pre-existing right has notice of the acquisition proceedings, whereas Section 30 comes into play only if a person had no notice of the acquisition proceedings or the rights came into existence after the acquisition proceedings. The 1894 Act clearly proceeds to mention that a person who had notice of the acquisition proceedings and who, by virtue of Section 50, is debarred from filing a Reference under Section 18 of 1894 Act cannot be allowed to apply for a Reference under Section 30. The view expressed by us is the same view that has been so expressed by the Apex Court, in the case of Mehr Rusi Dalal vs. Union of India 2004 (7) SCC 362 after following the judgement in the case of Sharda Devi vs. State of Bihar 2003 (3) SCC 128.

13. What we find from the record in question is that in the present matter the gazette notification under Section 3 of 1956 Act was issued on 4.12.2009/8.2.2011 and the same was also published in two daily newspapers namely "Hindustan Times" (English) and "Dainik Jagaran" (Hindi) on 25.12.2009 and 26.12.2009 respectively. Again the same was published in Hindustan (English) and "Amar Ujala" (Hindi) on 25.2.2011. In the said acquisition the objections were also decided under Section 3-C of the 1956 Act and as per provisions contained under Section 3-C the declaration of acquisition was made through notifications dated 25.6.2010 and 2.6.2011. It is relevant to indicate that at the time of publication under Section 3D (declaration of acquisition) the name of respondent no.4 was also mentioned and the petitioner, neither at the time of initial publication nor declaration under Section 3D of 1956 Act, has raised any grievance. Inspite of notice at no point of time the petitioner filed any objection and at the belated stage he has prayed that as per Section 3H (4) of 1956 Act, his case is liable to be transferred to the Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction by the Competent Authority. The property in question was purchased by respondent no.4 through registered sale deed on 27.3.2004 and on account of deficiency of stamp, the Additional District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue), Mathura vide order dated 28.11.2006 has held that the disputed land belonged to the contesting respondent no.4 and as such, he passed an order asking an amount of Rs.4,20,500/- as interest @ 1.5% per month till the payment against the deficiency of stamp duty on the registered sale deed through which the respondent no.4 had purchased the property in question. Admittedly, the petitioner for the first time as per his own showing had proceeded to file an objection on 11.1.2013 for apportionment of compensation. We have also considered the judgements cited by the petitioner in Nirmal Singh's case (supra) and Sangeeta Agrawal's case (supra) and find that the aforesaid judgements would not be of any help to the petitioner under the facts and circumstances of the present case.

14. In view of aforesaid facts and circumstances, we are of the considered opinion that while passing the impugned order the Competent Authority has considered the objection filed by the petitioner in detail and has proceeded to make a mention that the petitioner at no point of time had produced any revenue record to indicate any claim over the property in question and the entire claim has been set up on the basis of electricity bill, telephone connection and as such, the order impugned is based upon on concrete finding that at no point of time the petitioner could produce any valid title to claim right over the property in question. Even this Court has also asked a pointed query to learned counsel for the petitioner but he has failed to substantiate his claim or to produce any revenue record to indicate that the petitioner has got the valid claim or title over the property in question.

15. We do not find any illegality or infirmity in the impugned order. The writ petition sans merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

(For Khasra Plot No.128, 174, area 0-14-16, 7-15-1 total measuring 8 bigha, 9 biswa, 17 biswansi, situated at Village Khurram Nagar, Pergana Tehsil & District - Lucknow)
Lower Court Misc. Case No.6/1997

Counsel for Appellant:
Shri Madan Gopal Mishra

Counsels for Respondents:
Shri Arun Kr. Jaiswal, Shri A.K. Jaiswal, Shri Amit Jaiswal

Held –
Paras 1 & 2: Five connected first appeals under Section 54 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 were filed challenging the common award/decree dated 25.07.2005 passed by the U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Tribunal, Lucknow in Misc. Case Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of 1997. Due to their common origin, the High Court decided all appeals together.
Para 3: The U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad acquired the respondents' land for a land development scheme titled "Kursi Road, Lucknow Bhumi Vikas Evam Grih Esthan Yojna" under Sections 28 and 32 of the U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965.
Para 4: The initial Section 28 notification (equivalent to Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act) was published on 25.08.1973. Following writ proceedings and a Special Leave Petition (S.D. Kapoor v. State of U.P. | Gauri Shankar Gaur v. State of U.P.), the Supreme Court on 12.08.1993 directed that compensation be paid based on the market rate prevalent when the Section 6 declaration (Section 32 of the Adhiniyam) was issued.
Para 5: The Land Acquisition Officer initially awarded compensation @ ₹1.22 per sq. ft. on 06.11.1996 (possession was taken on 05.12.1986). The claimants sought a reference to the Tribunal, arguing that the rate was arbitrary given the prime location within Lucknow Nagar Mahapalika (near Mahanagar, Aliganj, etc., with full civic amenities) and citing judicial precedents awarding ₹2.75–₹3.50 per sq. ft. The Tribunal framed primary issues regarding market value on 20.09.1980 (Section 6 date), eligibility for Act 68/1984 benefits, Urban Land Ceiling bar, and specific claims for trees/constructions.

Para 6: Based on oral and documentary evidence, the Tribunal evaluated the market value at ₹3.50 per sq. ft. Applying the Supreme Court decision in BYDA, Bagalkot v. Mohd Hanif Sahib Bawa Sahib, the Tribunal added a 10% annual appreciation (₹2.44 per sq. ft.), granting total compensation of ₹5.95 per sq. ft. Aggrieved, the Parishad filed these appeals.

Paras 7–10: The High Court heard arguments on the appeals and considered the claimants' applications under Order 41 Rule 33 read with Section 151 C.P.C. seeking additional 12% per annum compensation under Section 23(1-A) of the Land Acquisition Act for the period between the Section 4 notification and the award/possession date.

Para 11: The High Court rejected the claimants' Order 41 Rule 33 application, holding that the Tribunal had already accounted for Section 23(2) benefits and granted 10% annual enhancement under the Mohd Hanif Sahib precedent, making further interest enhancement unnecessary.

Paras 12 & 13: Counsel for the appellants (Parishad) argued that the Tribunal ignored sale exemplars showing 1980 market rates at ~₹1.00 per sq. ft. and a 1973 purchase by the respondents at ₹0.12 per sq. ft. Citing Satish v. State of U.P. (referencing the Constitution Bench decision in Cement Corpn. of India v. Purya regarding Section 51-A), the appellants contended that certified sale deeds were improperly disregarded and that the 10% annual enhancement was improperly calculated from the 1973 purchase price.

Para 14: The High Court rejected the appellants' contentions, holding that the Tribunal properly evaluated prior awards and High Court decisions for adjoining land in Village Khurram Nagar (granting ₹3.50 per sq. ft.), which served as the best exemplars. Furthermore, per the Supreme Court's mandate in Gauri Shankar Gaur, the market value had to be determined as of the Section 6 notification date (20.09.1980), rendering the 1973 purchase rate of ₹0.12 per sq. ft. irrelevant.

Para 15: The Court noted the precedent cited by the respondents—Om Prakash v. Union of India—which approved progressive annual market value escalations (10% to 12% per annum) where no abnormal market fluctuations were shown.

Para 16: The Court noted the precedent cited by the respondents—Bhim Singh v. State of Haryana—which established that where compensation has already been fixed by courts for adjacent/similar lands in earlier proceedings, relying on those judicial awards is preferable to averaging miscellaneous sale instances.

Para 17: The High Court highlighted that a Division Bench of the same Court in B.N. Tandon v. State of U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad (First Appeal No. 10 of 1995) had similarly awarded compensation @ ₹3.50 per sq. ft. for the same village (Khurram Nagar).

Para 18: The High Court reaffirmed that market value must be fixed as of the Section 6 notification date (20.09.1980), and the 10% per annum enhancement granted by the Tribunal aligned fully with Supreme Court precedents.

Paras 19 & 20: Finding no material irregularity or illegality in the Tribunal's award, the High Court affirmed the assessment and dismissed all five appeals.

Para 21: The claimants' application (C.M. Application No. 27062 of 2015) under Order 41 Rule 33 C.P.C. was formally rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anant Kumar, J.)

(1) These first appeals under Section 54 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 have been filed against award / decree dated 25.07.2005 made by the Presiding Officer, U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Tribunal, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as 'the Tribunal') in Misc. Case Nos.6, 5, 3, 4 and 7 all of 1997.

(2) Since all these appeals are connected with each other and have been filed against a common award dated 25.07.2005, as such, all these appeals are being decided altogether.

(3) Brief facts relevant for disposal of these appeals are that U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad, Lucknow had prepared a land development scheme known as "Kursi Road, Lucknow Bhumi Vikas Evam Grih Esthan Yojna" and for the said purpose the land of the respondents herein was acquired under Section 28/32 of the U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965'). Since the land which was notified to be acquired is not under dispute, we do not want to submit a detail of the same in our judgment and in fact the said land is detailed in the award of the Presiding Officer, U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parisad Tribunal, Lucknow, which is impugned here.

(4) When the notification under Section 28 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965 was published on 25.08.1973, which is equivalent to Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, the respondents-claimants had challenged the said notification before the High Court by way of writ petition which was dismissed by this Court. The respondents-claimants, thereafter, preferred a special leave petition before the Hon'ble Apex Court as S.L.P.(C) No.6400/1992 (S.D. Kapoor v. State of U.P.) connected with the leading case Civil Appeal No.965/1991 (Gauri Shankar Gaur and others v. State of U.P. And others) and the said civil appeal was decided by the Hon'ble Apex Court on 12.08.1993 with the direction that "petitioners shall be paid compensation on the market rate prevalent in the year the declarations analogous to section 6 of the land acquisition Act, 1894 were issued."

(5) At the very initial stage, objections were filed against the said land acquisition before the Land Acquisition Officer. After hearing the objections, the Land Acquisition Officer had passed an award regarding the said land @ Rs. 1.22 per sq. ft. It is pertinent to mention here that the possession over the land of the respondents was taken by the Competent Authority on 05.12.1986, whereas award regarding the compensation was made on 06.11.1996 and the Land Acquisition Officer passed an award @ 1.22 per sq. ft. Aggrieved by the said award, the references were made before the Tribunal. It was stated by the respondents before the Tribunal that the Land Acquisition Officer had passed the award arbitrarily and had not taken into account the situation of the land, whereas the said land is within the limit of Nagar Mahapalika, Lucknow and is equipped with all the facilities and is situated by the side of the road and the nearby localities are Mahanagar, Rahim Nagar, Shakhupura Colony, Vishnu Puri Colony and Aliganj Housing Scheme in the close vicinity. The said land is also developed land and is situated near Mahanagar Picnic Spot Road. All the communication facilities like road, transportation, electricity, school, bank, post-office, etc are also available nearby. It was also stated that regarding the same scheme in different judicial pronouncement an award of Rs.2.75- Rs.3.50 per sq. ft. has been passed which has not been taken into account. These assertions of the claimants / respondents were denied by the opposite parties. On the pleadings of the parties, following issues were framed by the Tribunal:-

1. Whether the award made by the Land Acquisition Officer is insufficient and if so, what was the value of the land on 20.09.1980, i.e. the date on which the notification under Section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 was published?

2. Whether claimants are entitled for the benefit of Act No.68/1984?

3. Whether the claim of the claimants is barred by the provisions of Urban Land Ceiling Act, 1976?

4. Whether the reference is barred by time?

5. Whether the claimants are entitled for any other relief?

For Misc. Case No. 6/1997 following two issues were also framed:

6. Whether the claimants are entitled for a sum of Rs. 3 lac as compensation for trees?

7. Whether the claimants are entitled for a sum of Rs. 88005/- as a compensation for the construction situated on the said land?

In Misc. Case No.7/1997 following issue as Issue No.6 was framed:

6. Whether the claimants are entitled for a sum of Rs.1,75,000/- as compensation for standing trees and construction?

In Misc. Case No. 3/97 Issue No.6 was framed as:

6. Whether the claimants are entitled to receive a sum of Rs.48,000/- as compensation for construction?

(6) On behalf of parties, documentary as well as oral evidences were adduced and while deciding issues after considering the material on record, the learned Tribunal came to the conclusion that the respondents / claimants are entitled to the compensation of Rs.3.50 per sq. ft. The learned Tribunal while considering a case law reported in AIR 2002 Supreme Court 1558; (Special Land Acquisition Officer, BYDA, Bagalkot v. Mohd Hanif Sahib Bawa Sahib) has concluded that apart from the said compensation claimants are entitled for an enhancement @ 10 per cent per annum, which comes to Rs.2.44 per sq. ft., so a sum for which the claimants were found entitled was Rs.5.95 per sq. ft., the rate on which any bonafide purchaser would have purchased the land. Accordingly, the references were allowed and the award passed by the Land Acquisition Officer was also enhanced. Aggrieved with the said award, the present appeals have been filed by the appellants.

(7) We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have perused the material on record.

(8) Learned counsel for the respondents have moved applications under Order 41 Rule 33, readwith Section 151 C.P.C. with the prayer that this appellate Court, which granted additional compensation in view of Section 23 (1-A) of the Land Acquisition Act, which provides that in addition to the market value of the land, as above provided, the Court shall in every case award an amount calculated @ 12 per cent per annum on such market value for the period commencing on and from the date of the publication of the notification under Section 4, sub-section (1), in respect of such land to the date of the award of the Collector or the date of taking possession of the land, whichever is earlier.

(9) On this ground, learned counsel for the respondents has stated that in fact the notification under Section 28 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1956, which is equivalent to Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act was published on 25.08.73, whereas declaration under Section 32 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1956 was published on 20.09.1980, which is equivalent to Section 6 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1956 and the possession of the land was taken on 5.12.86 and the relevant award in Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act was declared on 6.11.1996 @ 1.22 per sq. ft. In this light, a prayer has been made for grating benefit of Section 23 (1-A) of the Land Acquisition Act, as stated above.

(10) It was ordered that the application under Order 41 Rule 33 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall be considered at the time of final disposal of the appeal. Accordingly, we have heard learned counsel for the applicants on this application also.

(11) Perusal of the award of the Tribunal reflects that the learned Tribunal while passing the award has taken into account the effect of Section 23 (2) of the Land Acquisition Act and has granted the relief. This apart, when in compliance of the Hon'ble Apex Court's order passed in Special Land Acquisition Officer, BYDA, Bagalkot v. Mohd Hanif Sahib Bawa Sahib (Supra), they have already been granted 10 per cent enhancement, so to our view, there is no need to grant any further enhanced interest thereon as particularly in the facts and situation the learned Tribunal has already considered this aspect in its award. So, to our view, the application under Order 41 Rule 33 readwith Section 151 C.P.S. is not maintainable and is accordingly, rejected.

(12) The learned counsel for the appellants has stated that the award / decree passed by the learned Tribunal is erroneous as the learned Tribunal has not considered the sale exemplars filed by the appellants reflecting the market value of the land in question in the year 1980, which was approximately @ Rs. 1.00 per sq. ft. It is also argued that the learned Tribunal has erred in not considering the transactions of land, which is subject matter of Misc. Case No.8/97, which was purchased by the respondents @ 0.12 per sq. ft. on 07.08.1973, just before 18 days from the date of notification dated 25.08.1973 published under Section 28 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965. It is also argued that the principal of adding 10 per cent per annum appreciation for determination of market value from the date of publication of notification under Section 28 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965 up to the date of publication of notification under Section 32 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965 is erroneous. The Tribunal has erred in not determining the market value of the land in question by adding appreciation of market value @ 10 per cent per annum to the value of land Rs. 0.12 per sq. ft. It is also stated that the learned Tribunal has relied upon the judgment of this Court passed in First Appeal No. 37 of 1985, which is also impugned in the appeal filed under Section 54 of the Land Acquisition Act by the appellants before the Hon'ble Apex Court in Special Leave Petition (Civil) No.26624 of 2004. In support of his argument, learned counsel for the appellants has cited a case law reported in (2009) 14 SCC page 758 Satish and others v. State of Uttar Pradesh and others, wherein the Honble Apex Court has held in paragraphs 20 and 23, which is as under:

20. At the outset, it must be noticed that the learned Reference Judge as also the High Court refused to take into consideration a large number of deeds of sale relying on or on the basis of a decision of this Court in P. Venkaiah. Section 51-A of the Land Acquisition Act construction of which fell for consideration before this Court therein reads as under:

"51-A. Acceptance of certified copy as evidence - In any proceeding under this Act, a certified copy of a document registered under the Registration Act, 1908 (16 of 1908), including a copy given under Section 57 of that Act, may be accepted as evidence of the transaction recorded in such document."

23. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Cement Conpn. Of India v. Purya opined that by reason of the insertion of Section 51-A, Parliament merely enabled a party to get over the problem, namely, calling for the original form the vendor or the vendee and proving the same and, thus, the decision of this Court in Collector v. Kurra Sambasiva Rao was held to be not laying down the correct proposition of law, holding : (Purya case, SCC p. 279, paras 18-20)

"18. From the above, it is seen that till the judgment of the three-judge Bench in Narasaiah case, the consensus of judicial opinion was that Section 51-A was enacted for the limited purpose of enabling a party to produce a certified copy of a registered sale transaction in evidence only and for proving the contents of the said document the parties had to lead oral evidence as contemplated in the Evidence Act.

19. A careful perusal of the judgment in Kurra Sambasiva Rao Case and other cases which fall in line with the said view discloses that they proceeded on the basis that prior to the insertion of Section 5-A in the LA Act, the evidence Act did not permit the production of a certified cop of the registered sale transaction in evidence. Therefore, by the insertion of Section 51-A the legislature merely enabled a party to get over that problem. Thereafter, according to the said judgments, the party concerned had to prove the contents of the document by adducing oral evidence separately to prove the contents of the document.

20. The above view of the Court in Kurra Sambasiva Rao case, in our opinion, is not the correct position in law. Even prior to the insertion of Section 51-A of the Act the provisions of the Evidence Act and the Registration Act did permit the production of a certified copy in evidence. This has been clearly noticed in narsaiah case wherein the Court relying on Sections 64 and 65(f) of the Evidence Act read with Section 57(5) of the Registration Act held that production of a certified copy of a registered sale document in evidence was permissible in law even prior to insertion of Section 51-A in the LA Act. We are in agreement with the said view expressed by this Court in Narasaiah case.

The Constitution Bench, thus, laid down the law that for paying for a certified copy of a registered deed of sale, the vendor and vendee thereof need not be examined.

(13) Basing this case law, learned counsel for the appellants has stressed that the learned Tribunal had not relied upon the exemplars produced on behalf of appellants and also has failed to appreciate that the respondents had purchased the land on the very meager amount and on calculation it comes to Rs.0.12 per sq. ft. and the Tribunal has granted compensation arbitrarily on a very high rate which is not admissible in law.

(14) So far as the grounds raised by the learned counsel for the appellants in these appeals to the effect that the learned Tribunal has not taken the exemplars produced on their behalf in their right prospective and has wrongly assessed the value of the land under appeals @ 3.50 per sq. ft. is concerned, it is evident from the impugned judgment that the learned Tribunal has referred the various exemplars, which are from paper no. Ga-41 to Ga-61 and has taken into account these documents. This apart, the learned Tribunal has also taken into account various cases decided by the Tribunal itself and by this Court regarding a similar notification of the village Khurram Nagar. The learned Tribunal has considered the paper nos.Ga-64, Ga-65, and Ga-66, which are the cases decided by the Tribunal and by this Court regarding the same area of land and has come to the conclusion that the Tribunal as well as this Court has already granted compensation to the land which is in the vicinity of the land covered under the appeals at a sum of Rs.3.50 per sq. ft.. To our view, very purpose of considering the exemplars is to enable the authority who is assessing the value of the land to come to a correct conclusion, so far as the land under reference is concerned, the exemplars are usually produced before the authority concerned just to show the example regarding the value of the land which is prevailing at the relevant time in the locality where the land is situating. To our view, when the tribunal has considered its own judgment as well as judgment of this Court regarding the land of village - Khurram Nagar, which was already decided, this was the best piece of exemplars before the Tribunal and to our view in considering those judgments, the learned Tribunal has not committed any error. The perusal of the order of the learned Tribunal also reflects that the learned Tribunal has also considered the paper nos. Ga-31, Ga-32, Ga-33, Ga-34 and Ga-35, which are the orders passed by the learned Tribunal as well as the order passed by this Court regarding the land situating at village Khurram Nagar, wherein the value of the land has been assessed @ 3.50 per sq. ft, so to our view, there is no force in the argument of learned counsel for the appellants that the value of the land assessed by the Tribunal had a higher side and also there is no force in the argument that the Tribunal has not considered the exemplars produced on their behalf. So far as, the arguments of learned counsel for the appellants to the effect that in fact Shri Rajeev Kapoor has purchased the land in dispute few days before the notification @ 12 paisa per sq. ft has also not much relevance because of the fact that as per the judgment passed in the matter of Gauri Shankar Gaur (Supra), the Hon'ble Apex Court has directed to assess the value of the land on the date of notification under Section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, so the value of the land on the date of the purchase of the land which is in the year 1973 has got no relevance and in fact the value of the land is to be assessed on the date of notification under Section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, which is dated 20.09.1980 and taking into account the various factors as stated above, to our view, the learned Tribunal has not committed any error in assessing the value of the land @ 3.50 per sq. ft. This apart, learned counsel for the appellants has not pressed any other point before this Court like rate of interest or the rate of solatium etc. So to our view, the assessment of value of the land @ 3.50 per sq. ft as well as the rate of interest as granted by the Tribunal while deciding Issue No.2 has got no error and is liable to be affirmed. 10 per cent per year enhancement granted by the learned Tribunal following the case law reported in the case of Special Land Acquisition Officer, BYDA, Bagalkot v. Mohd Hanif Sahib Bawa Sahib (Supra) is also said to be payment of calculation factor were detailed by the appellants for petty long period.

(15) A case law cited on behalf of respondents is AIR 2004 SC 4135 (Om Prakash (D) by L.Rs. And others v. Union of India and another), relevant portion of the judgment is as under:

"In the circumstances, the High Court was justified in working out the fair market value of the lands in question on the basis of Rs.16,750/- per bigha as on 30-10-1963. The High Court noticed that in several judgments of this Court escalation at different and varying rates i.e. 6% per annum for every year from 1966 to 1978 and @ 12% per annum from 1975 had been considered to be reasonable increase to arrive at the fair market value, assuming that the pace of escalation during this period was normal for the entire period from 1959 had been considered to be reasonable increase to arrive at the fair market value assuming that the pace of escalation during this period was normal for the entire period from 1959 onwards. Since no material was placed on record to show that there was any obnormality during the period, the High Court applied the same principle to the facts and circumstances before it, and accepted increase of 10 % every year progressively from 1963 to 1973 and thereafter @ 12% every year progressively up to the date of acquisition."

(16) Another case law cited on behalf of learned counsel for the respondents is AIR 2003 SC 4382 (Bhim Singh and others v. State of Hariyana). In para 6 of the judgment, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:

"6. On behalf of the Appellants it was submitted that the High Court erred in not taking into account the sale instances which had been brought on record. It was pointed out that the High Court had held, in respect of most of the sale instances, that they could not be relied upon as the vendor and/or vendee had not been examined. Reliance was placed upon the Judgment of this Court in the case of Land Acquisition Officer & Mandal Revenue Officer v. V. Narasaiah . In this case reliance was placed upon Section 51A of the Land Acquisition Act and it was held as follows:

"If the only propose served by Section 51A is to enable the court to admit the copy of the document in evidence there was no need for a legislative exercise because even otherwise the certified copy of the document could have been admitted in evidence.

The State has the burden to prove the market value of the lands acquired by it for which the State may have to depend upon the prices of lands similarly situated which were transacted or sold in the recent past, particularly those lands situated in the neighbouring areas. The practice had shown that for the state officials it was a burden to trace out the persons connected with such transactions mentioned in the sale deeds and then to examine them in court for the purpose of proving such transactions. It was in the wake of the aforesaid practical difficulties that the new Section 51A was introduced in the LA Act. When the section says that certified copy of a registered document "may be accepted as evidence of the transaction recorded in such document" it enables the court to treat what is recorded in the document, in respect of the transactions referred to therein, as evidence.

The words "may be accepted as evidence" in the section indicate that there is no compulsion on the court to accept such transaction as evidence, but it is open to the court to treat them as evidence. Merely accepting them as evidence does not mean that the court is bound to treat them as reliable evidence. What is sought to be achieved in that the transactions recorded in the documents may be treated as evidence, just like any other evidence, and it is for the court to weigh all the pros and cons to decide whether such transaction can be relied on for understanding the real price of the land concerned."

It was submitted that even though the Reference Court and the High Court had not taken the sale instances into account in view of the then prevailing law, this Court can and should took into the sale instances to arrive at the compensation payable. A number of sale documents were shown in this Court. It was submitted that if an average of all these sale instances is taken the price would come to over Rs. 500 per square yards. We are unable to accept this submission. In many of the sale instances the price is inclusive of price of the structures standing on the land. Even otherwise when compensation has already been fixed by the High Court in earlier proceedings and when in one such proceeding this Court has already approved the rate fixed then in our view the best method would be to look at the earlier Judgments and Awards. Therefore the High Court cannot be faulted for having fixed compensation on the basis of earlier Judgments.

(17) In a similar matter of village Khurram Nagar, the Division Bench of this Court while deciding First Appeal No.10 of 1995 (B.N. Tandon v. State of U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad and others) has also granted compensation @ Rs. 3.50 per sq. ft.

(18) Whereas, learned counsel for the respondents has stated that in fact now it is well settled proposition of law that respondents-claimants are entitled to get the market value of the acquired land prevalence on the date of notification under Section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, which is akin to the notification under Section 28 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965, so it is wrong to say that the calculation should have been made @ Rs.0.12 per sq. ft., the rate on which the claimants had purchased the land in the year 1973. It is evident that the notification under Section 28 of the Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965 was published on 20.9.1980 and the award was passed on 06.11.1996. It is also argued on behalf of the respondents that the learned Tribunal has considered various case laws and the orders passed by this Court, wherein for the same award @ 3.50 per sq. ft. was passed. This apart, the learned Tribunal has rightly granted 10 per cent enhancement while applying the law enumerated by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Special Land Acquisition Officer, BYDA, Bagalkot v. Mohd Hanif Sahib Bawa Sahib (Supra), so the order passed by the Tribunal is justified and it does not require any interference of this Court.

(19) In view of the aforesaid facts, to our view, the learned Tribunal has rightly assessed the value of the land, interest factors and the learned counsel for the appellants has failed to persuade us to take any different view than what has been taken by the learned Tribunal and there is no material on record to take any different view in the matter and to our view there is no such material irregularity or illegality in the order of the Tribunal, which may be interfered with in this appellate jurisdiction, so these appeals have got no force and are liable to be dismissed.

(20) Accordingly, these appeals are dismissed.

(21) The application under Order 41 Rule 33 readwith Section 151 C.P.C. (C.M. Application No. 27062 of 2015 in First Appeal No.10 of 2006), moved by the respondents is also rejected.

REVISIONAL JURISDICTION

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE PRABHAT CHANDRA TRIPATHI, J.

Criminal Revision No.- 236 Of 2013

Sunita ...Revisionist
Versus
State Of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite parties

Counsel for the Revisionist:
Shri Sanjay Mishra

Counsels for the Opposite Parties:
G.A., Shri Ashish Nigam, Shri M. Asif

Held –

Para 1 — Appearance of Counsel: The Court heard Sri Sanjay Mishra, learned counsel for the revisionist (Sunita), Sri M. Aasif, learned counsel for Opposite Party No. 2 (husband Lalit Prasad), and the learned A.G.A. representing Opposite Party No. 1 (State of U.P.).

Para 2 — Case Background & Lower Court Orders: The revisionist, Sunita, filed this criminal revision against the judgment dated 01.11.2012 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge (Court No. 11, Aligarh) in Criminal Revision No. 162 of 2008. The Sessions Court had partly allowed the husband's revision by confirming maintenance of ₹1,500/month for the minor daughter (Rinkashu) until majority, but set aside/dismissed the maintenance awarded to the wife (Sunita).

Para 3 — Submissions by Revisionist's Counsel: Counsel for the wife argued that pleadings and evidence clearly established she was living separately for valid reasons. The trial court (Judicial Magistrate) had initially awarded ₹1,500/month each to the wife and daughter on 07.02.2008. He contended that the Sessions Court committed a manifest error of law in setting aside the wife's maintenance.

Para 4 — Submissions by Respondents: Counsel for the husband and the learned A.G.A. opposed the revision, supporting the findings of the court below.

Para 5 — Decision on Issue No. 2 by Trial Court: The Judicial Magistrate had originally discussed four issues, specifically deciding Issue No. 2 ("whether the applicant is living separately with her husband due to proper reasons") in favor of the wife after a detailed appreciation of the evidence.

Para 6 — Contrary Finding by Revisional Court: Upon revision, the Additional Sessions Judge took a reverse view on Issue No. 2, deciding it against the wife and disentitling her from maintenance.

Para 7 & 8 — Revisional Jurisdiction & Need for Re-adjudication: While revisional courts generally have a narrow scope for re-appreciating evidence, the existence of directly conflicting findings between the Magistrate and the Sessions Judge on Issue No. 2—a pivotal issue under Section 125 Cr.P.C.—necessitates that it be adjudicated afresh in the interest of justice.
Para 9 & 10 — Operative Order & Remand: The criminal revision is allowed, and the matter is remanded back to the Sessions Judge, Aligarh, to re-decide Issue No. 2 afresh based on the existing evidence within one month from receiving a certified copy of the order.

Islamuddin v. State, 1975 Cri LJ 841, 842 (Del HC)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prabhat Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sanjay Mishra, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri M. Aasif, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 and learned A.G.A. for the opposite party no. 1.

2. The revisionist Sunita has filed this revision against the judgment and order dated 01.11.2012 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 11, Aligarh in Criminal Revision No. 162 of 2008-Lalit Prasad Vs. State of U.P. and Sunita, whereby the learned Additional Sessions Judge has partly allowed the criminal revision and confirmed the judgment and order dated 07.02.2008 passed by the learned Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 1, Aligatrh in Case No. 250/11/07-Sunita Vs. Lalit Prasad, with regard to the maintenance allowance of the daughter Rinkashu and directed that minor daughter Rinkashu will be entitled for the maintenance allowance of Rs. 1500/- per month from the date of judgment and order dated 07.02.2008 till she becomes major. This maintenance allowance shall be given on the 10th day of every Gregorian Calendar month. However, the learned Additional Sessions Judge by the impugned judgment and order dated 01.11.2012 has dismissed the maintenance allowance application of Smt. Sunita (wife). Aggrieved by the said judgment and order, the revisionist Smt. Sunita has preferred this criminal revision.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that from the pleadings and evidence of the parties, it is abundantly established that the revisionist is living separately from her husband opposite party no. 2. It is further submitted that an application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was filed by the revisionist before the learned Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 1, Aligarh which was allowed vide order dated 07.02.2008 with the direction to opposite party no. 2 to pay Rs. 1500/- per month to her and Rs. 1500/- to her minor daughter Rinkashu. The said order was challenged by the husband opposite party no. 2 in Criminal Revision No. 162 of 2008, which has been partly allowed by the impugned judgment and order dated 01.11.2012. It is further submitted that the learned Additional Sessions Judge has committed manifest error of law in passing the impugned order, which is not sustainable in the eyes of law and is liable to be quashed.

4. Learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 and learned A.G.A. opposed the submission advanced by learned counsel for the revisionist and submitted that the impugned judgment and order has rightly been passed by the learned Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 1, Aligarh.

5. The learned Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 1, Aligarh in it's judgment and order dated 07.02.2008 has discussed in detail all the four issues which were framed in the case. The main issue which has been assailed in the present criminal revision is regarding Issue No. 2 which was framed as "whether the applicant is living separately with her husband due to proper reasons". This issue has been decided on merits after discussing the evidence available before the learned Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 1, Aligarh.

6. The Issue No. 2 again came up for scrutiny before the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 11, Aligarh while deciding the criminal revision No. 162 of 2008 and the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 11, Aligarh has taken a reverse view and decided the Issue No. 2 against the present revisionist Smt. Sunita.

7. In revisional jurisdiction, re-appreciation of evidence has a scope of very narrow compass.

8. The revisional jurisdiction does not postulate re-appreciation of evidence, but that should be appreciated in the light of the limitation on the right to go in appeal, Islamuddin v. State, 1975 Cri LJ 841, 842 (Del HC).

9. However, there is conflicting finding by the learned Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 1, Aligarh and the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 11, Aligarh regarding appreciation of evidence while discussing and adjudicating upon the Issue No. 2. The Issue No. 2 plays a pivotal role in deciding this case. The ends of justice requires that the Issue No. 2 must be adjudicated afresh.

10. Resultantly, this criminal revision deserves to be allowed.

11. The criminal revision is allowed.

12. The matter is remanded back. The learned Sessions Judge, Aligarh is directed to decide the Issue No. 2 afresh after appreciation of evidence already available on record, in accordance with law within a period of one month from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

Criminal Appeal No.- 246 Of 1998

Ram Pal & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellants:
Shri M.L. Syal, Shri P.K. Singh, Shri Param Shankar (Amicus Curiae)

Counsel for Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Held –
Para (1) — Representation: Heard arguments from Sri Param Shankar (Amicus Curiae for the accused-appellants) and Sri Sharad Dixit (Learned AGA for the State).
Para (2) — Appeal Background: Criminal appeal challenging the judgment dated 27.03.1998 of the Special Judge, Hardoi, convicting appellants (Rampal, Munshi, Sri Krishana, and Surendra) under Sections 302/34 IPC (life imprisonment) and 308/34 IPC (3 years R.I.).
Para (3) — Prosecution Narrative: Complainant Prakash reported that after disabled land-owner Sukhai's wife (Ramkali) gave their field to Prabhu for ploughing instead of the accused nephews, the annoyed accused attacked Ramkali. Prabhu intervened to rescue her and was fatally beaten, dying on the way to the hospital.
Para (4) — FIR & Post-Mortem Initiation: Case Crime No. 267/1995 registered under Sections 302/307 IPC. S.I. Harish Chandra initiated the investigation, and Dr. A.K. Srivastava conducted the post-mortem on 20.10.1995.
Para (5) — Charge-Sheet & Trial: Charge-sheet filed under Sections 302/34 and 307/34 IPC. The accused pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.
Para (6) — Prosecution Evidence (PW-1 to PW-4): Key testimonies recorded from Prakash (PW-1), Sitaram (PW-2), injured Ramkali (PW-3), and Dr. Srivastava (PW-4), who detailed four ante-mortem injuries (incised, stab, and lacerated wounds) on the deceased.
Para (7) — Internal Injuries & Cause of Death: Autopsy revealed a fracture of the left parietal bone and lacerated brain membranes; cause of death was shock and hemorrhage from ante-mortem injuries.
Para (8) — Police & Medical Testimony (PW-5 to PW-9): Testimonies of IOs and police personnel detailing FIR registration, inquest, site plan, and post-mortem transfer. Dr. Chandra Kishore Gupta (PW-9) detailed Ramkali's scalp and body injuries.
Para (9) — Medical Opinion on Injured: Following X-ray evaluation, PW-9 opined that Ramkali's injuries were simple in nature.
Para (10) — Statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C.: Accused denied charges, claimed false implication, and filed two documents in defense.

Para (11) — Trial Court Finding: Trial court found the accused guilty beyond reasonable doubt and sentenced them under Sections 302/34 and 308/34 IPC.
Para (12) — High Court Appeal: Appellants appealed against the trial court's conviction and order.
Para (13)–(14) — Defense Arguments: Defense argued failure to establish place of occurrence (no blood found), self-inflicted injuries on PW-3, lack of motive, general non-specific roles assigned, and unreliability of related/interested witnesses (PW-1 and PW-3).
Para (15) — Prosecution Counter-Arguments: State argued the FIR was prompt, motive was established (dispute over land cultivation), eyewitnesses were credible, and lack of blood recovery was merely a defect in investigation.
Para (16) — Medical Corroboration (Deceased): Court observed that post-mortem injuries (stab, incised, lacerated) on Prabhu matched the alleged weapons (ballam and lathi) and were sufficient to cause death.
Para (17) — Medical Corroboration (Injured): Ramkali's lacerated scalp injury aligned with the prosecution's claim of a lathi strike.
Para (18) — Promptness of FIR: FIR was lodged at 7:15 PM, shortly after the 6:00 PM incident, with the police station being only 1.5 furlongs away, giving full credibility to the timeline.
Para (19)–(21) — Precedents on FIR Delay: Citing Supreme Court precedents, the court noted that prompt reporting eliminates chances of a fabricated story or prior deliberation.
Para (22)–(24) — Reliability of Related Witnesses: Reviewing Supreme Court jurisprudence, the court affirmed that testimonies of related or interested witnesses cannot be discarded if consistent and corroborated by medical evidence.
Para (25) — Establishment of Motive: Prosecution successfully proved motive—accused were enraged because Ramkali transferred cultivation rights from them to Prabhu.
Para (26)–(27) — Legal Principle on Motive: Citing Supreme Court rulings, the court emphasized that where reliable direct eye-witness testimony exists, absence or proof of motive is secondary.
Para (28)–(30) — Eyewitness Consistency: Eye-witness accounts of PW-1 and injured witness PW-3 consistently established the sequence of events, weapon usage, and presence at the scene.
Para (31)–(33) — Challenge to Place of Occurrence Rejected: Citing Supreme Court precedent, the court held that an IO's failure to collect blood-stained earth does not disprove the place of occurrence when reliable ocular testimony exists.
Para (34) — Court's Finding: High Court found no infirmity in the prosecution's case and concluded that guilt was proven beyond reasonable doubt.
Para (35) — Final Order: Appeal dismissed; conviction and sentence affirmed. Bail of appellants Rampal, Sri Krishna, and Surendra cancelled with orders to surrender immediately.
Para (36) — Administrative Directions: Office directed to communicate the order to the trial court immediately and return the lower court record for execution.

Hon'ble Anil Kumar Srivastava-II, J.)

(1) Heard Sri Param Shankar, Amicus Curiae on behalf of the accused-appellants and Sri Sharad Dixit, learned AGA for the State.

(2) Instant criminal appeal has been preferred by the accused-appellants Rampal, Munshi, Sri Krishana and Surendra challenging the judgment and order dated 27.3.1998 passed by Special Judge (E.C. Act)/ Additional District and Sessions Judge, Hardoi in Session Trial No.14 of 1996, arising out of Case Crime No. 267 of 1995, under Section 302/307 IPC, Police Station Pihani, District Hardoi convicting and awarding them imprisonment for life under Section 302/34 IPC, they have been further convicted and sentenced to three years' R.I. under Section 308/34 IPC.

(3) According to the prosecution version, complainant Sri Prakash lodged an FIR at Police Station-Pihani, District-Hardoi on 19.10.1995 at about 19.15 hours alleging that Sukhai and Chhatai were the real brothers. Sukhai was physically disabled so he was not able to look after his field. As such, the work to look after the field had been entrusted to accused who were son of brother of Sukhai. On 18.10.1995 Ramkali wife of Sukhai, had got the field ploughed through Prabhu, as a result of which the accused got annoyed. On 19.10.1995 at about 6.00 PM, accused Munshi armed with Ballam, Rampal, Sri Krishna and Surendra armed with lathi came to the house of Ramkali and started beating her in front of the house. On raising alarm by Ramkali, brother of the complainant Prabhu along with Rajendra, Chhannoo son of Radhey Shyam and Sitaram son of Bhagwati Dhobi and others residents of the same village/muhalla reached at the spot Prabhu in order to rescue Smt. Ramkali firstly reached the spot. When Prabhu tried to rescue Smt. Ramkali then he was beaten by the accused. Prabhu, received the injuries. He was being taken to Pihani Hospital but succumbed to his injuries on the way. Ramkali also received the injuries in the incident.

(4) FIR was lodged at case crime no.267 of 1995 under Section 302/307 IPC. Investigation was handed over to S.I. Harish Chandra. S.I. Harish Chandra proceeded to hospital; prepared the inquest, recorded the statements of witnesses and prepared a site plan. The dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem and postmortem was done on 20.10.1995 at 3.00PM by Dr. A.K. Srivastava P.W.4. at District Hospital, Hardoi.

(5) After conclusion of the investigation charge-sheet was submitted against the accused-appellants. Accused-appellants were charged under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 and Section 307 IPC read with Section 34 IPC. They denied the charges and claimed trial.

(6) Prosecution has produced P.W.1 Prakash complainant and eye witness, P.W. 2 Sitaram eye witness, P.W.3 Smt. Ramkali injured and eye witness, P.W. 4 Dr. A. K. Srivastava who has conducted the postmortem examination of the dead body of the deceased and found the following ante mortem injuries on the body of the deceased:-

(1) A incised wound 2.5cm x 1cm x bone deep on left side parietal region skull. Direction oblique. Clotted blood present.

(3) A stab wound 1cm x .5cm x abdominal cavity deep on right side abdomen, 11cm above from right iliac crest.

(7) On internal examination, he found fracture on left parietal bone under injury no.1 membranes of skull of brain was also found lacerated. According to Dr. A. K. Srivastava cause of death was shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante mortem injuries. Duration was about one day.

(8) P.W. 5 S.I. Ram Samujh Misra is the investigating officer in whose presence, the case was registered at the police station. He conducted the inquest proceedings recorded the statement of complainant, prepared the site plane and sent the dead body for postmortem. P.W.6 Constable Shiv Mangal Yadav has taken the dead body in sealed condition to the hospital to the postmortem. P.W. 7 S.I. H.C.Jagdish Prasad Dwivedi has prepared the chick FIR and entered the same in the G.D. of the Police Station. P.W. 8 S.O Harish Chandra Singh has taken over the investigation from S.I. Ram Samuj Misra concluded the investigation and submitted the charge against the accused. P.W. 9 Dr. Chandra Kishore Gupta has conducted the medico legal examination of injured Ramkali on 19.10.1995 at 9.40PM and found following injuries on her body:-

(1) Lacerated wound scalp right side 6cm above right ear, size 3.5cm x 0.5cm subcut deep. Fresh clot present.

(2) Complaint of pain right shoulder. No visible injury.

(3) Complaint of pain right, ankle. No visible injury. Condition Poor, Pulse 96p.m. B.P.100/70.

(9) X-ray of injury no.1 was also advised but after the receipt of the X-ray plate and X-ray report he had opined that the injuries of the injured were simple in nature.

(10) In statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. of the accused were recorded and they have stated that they have been falsely implicated in this case. Two papers were filed in their defence.

(11) After appreciating the evidence on record, learned trial court has recorded a finding of guilt against the appellants and came to the conclusion that the prosecution has successfully proved the charges against the accused-appellants. Accordingly convicted and sentenced them under Section 302 IPC read with 34 IPC and Section 308 read with 34 IPC.

(12) Feeling aggrieved by the impugned judgment and order appellants have preferred the present appeal.

(13) Learned Amicus Curiae for the appellants has submitted that the prosecution has failed to prove the charges against the accused beyond reasonable doubt.

(14) It is submitted by him that prosecution has failed to establish the place of occurrence. Incident might have been taken place at some other place. Accused have falsely been implicated by the prosecution. In order to substantiate his argument. It is submitted that no blood was found at the place of occurrence by the investigating officer. P.W. 3 Ramkali has sustained self inflicted injuries. It is further argued that there was no motive for commission of the offence. Motive as alleged has not been proved. Accused are the son of the brother of the husband of Ramkali. They have no grudge against the deceased. They were ploughing field of Ramkali. There was no reason as to why Prabhu ploughed the field. It is further argued that no specific role has been assigned to any accused rather a general role has been assigned to all the accused except Munshi. P.W.1 Prakash is real brother of deceased whose evidence could not be relied upon. Evidence of P.W.3 Ramkali could not also be relied upon as her presence at the scene of occurrence is doubtful.

(15) Per contra, learned AGA submits that the first information report was lodged promptly. There was no reason to falsely implicate the accused rather there was a definite motive to commit the crime by the accused as earlier they were ploughing the field of Ramkali and enjoying fruit but when Ramkali did not get anything out of her field from the accused then she got it ploughed through the deceased Prabhu. Accused got annoyed resulting in the commission of crime. It is further submitted that the evidence of injured P.W. 3 Ramkali as well as P.W.1 Prakash is fully reliable evidence. P.W. 1 Prakash cannot be disbelieved only on the ground of being a relative and interested witness rather he is a natural witness who was present at the scene of occurrence. It is further submitted by learned AGA that presence of P.W.3 Ramkali at the place of occurrence is also established as she got injuries in the incident and was medically examined at 09.40 PM on the same day. Even, if the blood stained earth was not recovered by the investigating officer or he did not find any blood at the place of occurrence it does not mean that the place of occurrence was different as it could be a case of defective investigation only.

(16) Occurrence took place on 19.10.1995 at 6.00PM while the first information report was lodged on the same day at 07.15PM. According to the prosecution version, injuries were inflicted by ballam as well as lathi. Before proceeding further we would like to deal with the medico legal aspect of the matter. Specific case of causing injuries by ballam and lathi has been taken by the prosecution. According to the postmortem report, which was duly proved by P.W.4 Dr. A.K. Srivastava, two stabbed wound, one incised wound and one lacerated wound were found on the body of the deceased Prabhu. According to Dr. Srivastava injuries no.1, 2 and 3 could have been caused by ballam while injury no.4 could be caused by hard and blunt object like lathi. Injuries no.1, 2 and 3 are sufficient in the ordinary course to cause death.

(17) P.W. 9 Dr. Gupta has medico legally examined the injuries of Ramkali and found lacerated wound on her head. According to Dr. Gupta, this injury was caused by hard and blunt object like lathi. X-ray was also advised but no fracture was found. Dr. Gupta opined that the injuries was simple in nature. Hence, it is fully established that the injuries which were found on the body of the deceased as well as injured Ramkali could have been caused by the weapons like ballam and lathi as alleged by the prosecution.

(18) P.W. 1 Prakash is brother of deceased Prabhu who along with deceased and Rajandra was sitting at the door of his house while accused came and assaulted Ramkali. When she cried then Prabhu, Rajendra, Chhannoo proceeded towards her to protect her from the assault. Since Prabhu was first to reach then accused Munshi hit him by ballam while Rampal and Sri Krishana caused injuries by lathi. According to P.W.1 Prakash, after the incident he took the deceased in injured condition to Pihani Hospital who succumbed to his injuries on the way. Dead body was left by him in the hospital. He got the report written by one Ramchand Gupta and tendered the same at the police station. P.W. 3 Ramkali is the injured who has also supported the version of P.W.1 Prakash and stated that after the incident Prakash along with Prabhu took her to P.H.C. Pihani. Prabhu succumbed to the injury on the way, thereafter, written report was written scribe of the report was a hotel owner report was submitted at the police station from where she was sent for medico legal examination. This statement further find support from the statement of P.W.7 H.P. Jagdish Prasad Dwivedi who prepared the chick FIR and made an entry of the same in the G.D. Distance of the police station from the place of occurrence is about 1 and Â½ furlong. It was a prompt FIR just after the incident first information report was lodged at the police station.

(19) It has been held by the Apex Court in the case of in Kishan Singh through LRs v. Gurpal Singh and others reported in (2010) 8 SCC 775 the Supreme Court held that "Prompt and early reporting of the occurrence by the informant with vivid details gives assurance regarding truth of its version. In case there is some delay in recording the FIR the complainant must give an explanation for the same. Undoubtedly, delay in lodging FIR does not make the complainant's case improbable when such delay is properly explained."

(20) It has been held by the Hon'ble the Apex court in the case of Nanhe Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in 1973 (3) SCC 317 has held that a prompt F.I.R. eliminates the chances of cooking up of a false story.

(21) In this case, FIR was lodged promptly without any undue delay. There was no occasion for the complainant for any consultation or deliberation prior to the lodging of FIR.

(22) Learned counsel for the accused-appellants submitted that P.W.1 Prakash is a real brother of the deceased while P.W.3 Ramkali is also an interested witness. Hence their evidence could not be held reliable.

(23) In a recent judgment in the case of Nagappan Vs. State (by Inspector of Police, Tamil Nadu) reported in (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 660 Hon'ble the Apex Court in paragraph no. 10 has observed as under :-

"10. As regards the first contention about the admissibility of the evidence of PW 1 and PW 3 being closely related to each other and the deceased, first of all, there is no bar in considering the evidence of relatives. It is true that in the case on hand, other witnesses turned hostile and have not supported the case of the prosecution. The prosecution heavily relied on the evidence of PW 1, PW 3 and PW 10. The trial court and the High Court, in view of their relationship, closely analysed their statements and ultimately found that their evidence is clear, cogent and without considerable contradiction as claimed by their counsel. This Court, in a series of decisions, has held that where the evidence of "interested witnesses" is consistent and duly corroborated by medical evidence, it is not possible to discard the same merely on the ground that they were interested witnesses. In other words, relationship is not a factor to affect the credibility of a witness. " (emphasis added)

(24) We have to scrutinize the evidence on record to find out as to whether evidence of P.W.1 Prakash and P.W.3 Ramkali is wholly reliable, trustworthy or not?

(25) Specific motive has been alleged by prosecution. Admittedly Chetai and Sukhai were son of one Bahadur. P.W.3 Ramkali is the wife of Sukhai. It is also admitted that Sukhai was physically disabled person who was suffering from disease of leprosy. According to the prosecution agricultural land of Sukhai and Chetai was divided on family partition basis. 4 and 5 years prior to the incident Sukhai stopped cultivating the field due to his illness. Hence, field was given on 'batai' to the sons of Chetai. Accused are sons of Chetai. Subsequently, Ramkali did not get the fruits of her land then prior to 2-4 days before the date incident, she gave her share to Prabhu on 'batai' and one day prior to the incident Prabhu and Ramkali have also ploughed the filed by tractor, so accused were very much annoyed. This fact further finds support from the statement of P.W.3 Ramkali who has stated that she gave her land to Prabhu for ploughing due to which accused persons got annoyed. It was a motive due to which accused have committed crime.

(26) In the case of Darbara Singh Vs. State of Punjab (2012) 10 SCC 476; Hon'ble the Apex Court has observed in paragraph no.15 and 16 as under:-

"15. So far as the issue of motive is concerned, it is a settled legal proposition that motive has great significance, but where direct evidence is available, which is worth relying upon, motive loses its significance. In the instant case, firstly, there is nothing on record to reveal the identity of the person who was convicted for rape, there is nothing on record to determine the identity of this girl or her relationship to the co-accused Kashmir Singh. More so, the conviction took place 20 years prior to the incident. No independent witness has been examined to prove the factum that the Appellant was not on talking terms with Kashmir Singh. In a case where there is direct evidence of witnesses which can be relied upon, the absence of motive cannot be a ground to reject the case. Under no circumstances, can motive take the place of the direct evidence available as proof, and in a case like this, proof of motive is not relevant at all.

16. Motive in criminal cases based solely on the positive, clear, cogent and reliable ocular testimony of witness is not at all relevant. In such a fact-situation, the mere absence of a strong motive to commit the crime, cannot be of any assistance to the accused. ……."

(27) Although the motive is alleged by the prosecution which is also established even otherwise also it is a case of direct evidence where even motive is not proved an incident is proved by the direct evidence then accused could be held guilty.

(28) P.W.3 Ramkali is an injured witness who has specifically stated that at the time of occurrence, she was present outside her house when accused Munshi armed with ballam and Sri Krishana, Surendra and Rampal armed with lathi came and started abusing her. Surendra inflicted a lathi blow on her head. When she cry then Prabhu along with Prakash, Rajendra, Sitaram, Chhannoo came and then Rampal gave a lathi blow on the head of Prabhu, Munshi inflicted injuries by Ballam, Sri Krishana also inflicted injuries by lathi. P.W. 3 Ramkali was standing outside of her house at the time of occurrence while deceased and Prakash etc. were sitting at the door of the house. As soon as Surendra inflicted lathi blow, all of them came Single blow was given to P.W. 3 Ramkali by Surendra which finds support from the statement of P.W.9 Dr. Gupta and the medical examination report wherein only one lacerated wound was found on the head of Ramkali. Although, the said injury was found simple in nature. P.W.3 Ramkali has further stated that stabbed wound were caused to deceased Prabhu by Munshi by ballam. P.W.1 Prakash is also an eye witness who was present at the spot. P.W.1 Prakash has stated that Surendra did not give lathi blow to Prabhu. Munshi inflicted the injuries by Ballam.

(29) In the cross examination it has specifically been stated that all the accused have caused injuries to Prabhu by their respective weapons.

(30) P.W. 1 Prakash has given categorical statement that as soon as Prabhu reached near the house of Ramkali all the accused started attacking by their respected weapons. Prabhu felled down on the ground. This statement further found support from the statement of P.W.3 Ramkali her statement finds support from the medico legal examination. She was an injured witness whose presence at the place of occurrence is fully established. In fact, she is the lady who was attacked by Surendra by lathi then the whole prosecution story comes out. Genesis of the incident begins from the point when Ramkali was attacked on head by Surendra when she cried then Prabhu went to the spot who was attacked by the accused.

(31) At this stage, we may also analyze the argument as advanced by learned counsel for the appellant that the place of occurrence as alleged by the prosecution is not established. According to P.W.1 Prakash place of occurrence is outside the house of Ramkali. P.W.3 Ramkali has also stated that she was standing outside of her house. Prakash and other were sitting on the house of door. When accused came and started abusing her. On her residence Surendra gave a lathi blow on her head. It is also admitted that blood oozed out from the injuries and also fallen on the earth. P.W.5 Ram Samujh Misra investigating officer has stated that he has prepared the site plane on the pointing out of complainant. In the site plane, place of occurrence is shown by letter ''B' which is in front of house of Sukhai while complainant along with deceased and Rajendra was sitting at point ''A' which was in front of the house of the deceased. Distance of the house of deceased from point ''A' is about three steps. Investigating officer P.W.5 S.I. Ram Samujh Misra stated that he did not find any blood at the place of occurrence.

(32) Ram Avtar Rai and Ors. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh (1985)2 Supreme Court Cases 61; it has been held in para 10 of the judgment:

"10. We agree with the High Court that the occurrence had taken place about 15 paces away from the house of the deceased and PW.1. It is true that blood-stained earth has not been recovered from the scene of occurrence by the investigating officer though as stated earlier the deceased had sustained as many as 5 lacerated injuries besides a number of contusions and abrasions. From the failure of the investigating officer to recover blood-stained earth from the scene of occurrence it is not possible to infer that the occurrence had not taken place in front of the house of the deceased and PW 1."

(33) Even if the investigating officer has not recovered or found the blood at the place of occurrence, it cannot be doubted that the place of occurrence has been changed by the prosecution. Consistent statement is given by P.W.1 Prakash and P.W.3 Ramkali regarding place of occurrence. P.W.3 Ramkali was also an injured witness whose statement cannot be discarded on any count. She is in the center point of the occurrence wherein deceased Prabhu was asked by her to plough her field on ''batai he agreed to it. Thereafter, since accused were earlier plouging the field on ''batai' they got annoyed consequently, they commit the crime. We, in no manner, believe that either P.W.1 Prakash and P.W 3 Ramkali were not present at the place of occurrence. Their statement are totally reliable.

(34) First information report was lodged promptly without any undue delay wherein accused-appellants were named in the report. Ocular statement of P.W.1 Prakash and P.W. 3 Ramkali finds support from the medico legal report as well as postmortem report. We do not find any contradiction or infirmity in the prosecution case. Accordingly, we are of the view that prosecution has successfully proved the charges against the accused-appellants and the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

(35) The appeal is dismissed. Judgment and order dated 27.3.1998 passed by learned trial court is confirmed. Accused Munshi is in jail. Appellants Rampal, Sri Krishna and Surendra are on bail. Their bail is cancelled and sureties are discharged. They should surrender before the trial court immediately to serve out the sentence as imposed by the learned trial court and confirmed by this court.

(36) Office is directed to communicate this order forthwith to the court concerned and to send back the lower court record to ensure compliance.

Held –

i. 1. Representation & Context

2. The High Court heard arguments from counsel representing the appellant (seller) and respondents (purchasers). Respondent No. 2/1 remained unrepresented.

i. 2. Nature of Appeal & Case History

3. This Second Appeal under Section 100 C.P.C. challenges the First Appellate Court's judgment (dated January 22, 1986) which had reversed the Trial Court's decree (dated August 29, 1984). The Trial Court had dismissed the plaintiff's suit for specific performance, whereas the First Appellate Court allowed it.

i. 3. Factual Matrix

4. On January 24, 1979, an agreement for sale was entered into where the appellant agreed to sell part of Plot Nos. 1280 and 1281 in Village Manauli, District Sultanpur, to Respondent Nos. 1 and 2 for an advance consideration of ₹2,000. The sale deed was to be executed within two years after revenue record corrections.

i. 4. Plaint Claims

5. The plaintiff (Respondent No. 1) asserted readiness and willingness to perform his part of the contract. He issued legal notices on August 25, 1981, and October 23, 1981. Plot No. 1281 was excluded from the suit as revenue corrections remained pending for it.

i. 5. Defendant's Written Statement

6. The appellant/defendant denied executing the agreement, alleging fraud and undue influence. Being an illiterate Halwaha (ploughman) employed by the plaintiff, he claimed his thumb impression was obtained fraudulently. He also pleaded that the suit abated due to ongoing consolidation operations under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings (U.P.C.H.) Act without prior permission under Section 5(1)(c)(ii).

i. 6. Issues Framed by Trial Court

7. The Trial Court framed seven issues covering: entitlement to specific performance (Issue 1), refund of earnest money (Issue 2), limitation (Issue 3), abatement under Section 5(2) U.P.C.H. Act (Issue 4), valuation/court fees (Issue 5), general relief (Issue 6), and execution of the agreement (Issue 7).

i. 7. Findings of the Trial Court

8. The Trial Court decided limitation, abatement, valuation, and execution of the agreement in favor of the plaintiff. However, on Issues 1 & 2, it held that because the sale involved a part of a holding during consolidation without permission under Section 5(1)(c)(ii), the contract was inexecutable. It ordered a refund of ₹2,000 with 6% interest instead of specific performance.

i. 8–9. First Appellate Court's Findings

9. The First Appellate Court re-evaluated the evidence (P.W.-1, P.W.-2, and hand-writing expert P.W.-3) and confirmed that the agreement was genuinely executed without fraud, rejecting the defendant's cross-objections.

i. 10–12. Reversal by First Appellate Court

10. The First Appellate Court noted that Plot No. 1280 was recorded as a 'chak out' land in Form C.H.-2. It held that obtaining permission was feasible and reversed the Trial Court's refusal to grant specific performance, decreeing the suit in full without granting detailed reasons for setting aside the statutory bar.

i. 13–15. Appellant's Arguments in Second Appeal

11. The appellant argued that:
12. Permission under Section 5(1)(c)(ii) U.P.C.H. Act was mandatory at the time and its absence rendered the agreement inexecutable.
13. The First Appellate Court gave no valid reasoning for reversing the Trial Court's findings.
14. The transaction was also hit by the bar on fragmentation under Section 168-A of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act.

i. 16–18. Respondent's Arguments in Second Appeal

15. The respondent argued that:
16. Being 'chak out' land, no consolidation permission was necessary.
17. Section 5(1)(c)(ii) was omitted by U.P. Act No. 30 of 1991 during the pendency of the appeal, and the Court must apply the law as it stands today.

i. 19–20. Interim Order & Substantial Questions of Law

18. The High Court noted the interim stay granted against executing the sale deed and evaluated five substantial questions of law covering: Section 16(c) readiness and willingness, free will/undue influence over an illiterate worker, performance impossibility, and land unidentifiability.

i. 21–23. High Court's Analysis on Concurrent Findings of Execution

19. The High Court affirmed the lower courts' concurrent findings of fact that the agreement to sell was genuinely executed and that allegations of fraud were not proven beyond reasonable doubt.

i. 24–26. Analysis on the Statutory Bar under Section 5(1)(c)(ii) U.P.C.H. Act

20. The Court examined Section 5(1)(c)(ii), noting that during consolidation, a tenure-holder could not transfer a part of a holding without prior written permission from the Settlement Officer (Consolidation).

i. 27–31. Temporal Applicability of Law (Retrospective vs. Prospective)

21. Addressing the respondent's claim regarding the 1991 statutory amendment, the High Court held that substantive rights and legal enforceability must be evaluated based on the law as it existed on the date the suit was instituted, relying on precedent (Dayawati, Carona Ltd., and Raj Kumar).

i. 32–33. Distinguishing Respondent's Case Laws

22. The High Court reviewed the precedents cited by the respondent (Ambika Prasad, United Bank of India, Sudhir G. Angur, etc.) and concluded they did not rescue the respondent on the question of substantive enforceability at the time of filing.

i. 34–36. Reversal Procedure & Duty of First Appellate Court

23. The High Court held that the First Appellate Court committed a serious procedural error by reversing the Trial Court's well-reasoned findings without specifically setting them aside or providing cogent counter-reasons (Sri Jasmel Singh, M/s. Jeevan Ram Ram Lakhan).

i. 37–40. Effect of 'Chak Out' Status & Partial Transfers

24. The Court clarified that 'chak out' land inside a notification area remains subject to Section 5(1)(c)(ii) restrictions. Furthermore, full-bench rulings (Smt. Rajeshwari, Smt. Asharfunisa Begum) confirm that while selling an entire holding was permissible, selling a part of a holding strictly required prior permission.

i. 41–44. Adjudication on Undue Influence & Final Judgment

25. The Court noted that the First Appellate Court failed to consider the imbalance of power between an illiterate Halwaha and his employer.
26. Held: The First Appellate Court's judgment was unsustainable. The High Court allowed the Second Appeal, set aside the First Appellate Court's decree, and restored the Trial Court's decree directing a refund of ₹2,000 with 6% simple interest.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ritu Raj Awasthi, J.)

1. Heard Mr. R.U. Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant as well as Mr. I.D. Shukla, learned counsel for the respondent 1/1 and Mr. Abhinandan Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the respondent no. 2/2. No one has put in appearance on behalf of respondent no. 2/1.

2. This second appeal has been filed under Section 100 C.P.C. by the appellant/defendant against the judgment and decree dated 22.1.1986 passed by the Special/Additional District Judge, Sultanpur, allowing the Civil Appeal No.148/84 filed by the respondent no.1 against the judgment and decree dated 29.8.1984 passed by the Munsif (North), Sultanpur by means of which the Suit No.427 of 1981 filed by the respondent no.1 for specific performance of contract was dismissed.

3. As per the facts in brief, allegedly an agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979 was entered between the appellant (first party) and the respondent nos. 1 and 2 (second party) for executing a sale deed in respect of part of land bearing Plot Nos.1280 and 1281 situated in Village Manauli, Pargana Musafir Khana, District Sultanpur and a sum of Rs. 2000/- was paid by the plaintiff/respondent no.1 (purchaser) to the appellant (seller) and the sale deed was to be executed within two years after necessary correction is got made in the revenue records. The respondent no.2/Smt. Shivkala was also impleaded as one of the defendant along with the appellant in the suit filed by the respondent no.1.

4. As per the case of respondents in the plaint the appellant wanted to execute a sale deed of half his share in Plot No. 1280, however he failed to execute the sale deed despite necessary notices given to him on 25.8.1981 and 23.10.1981, with the result a suit for specific performance was filed by the respondent/plaintiff. It was also pleaded that the respondent/plaintiff was always willing to perform his part of contract. It was alleged in the plaint that correction in the revenue papers regarding Plot No.1281 has not been made hence the plot No. 1281 was not included in the suit.

5. The suit was contested by the appellant/defendant by filing written statement. He had denied to have executed the agreement for sale. It was pleaded that the plaintiff had obtained his thumb impression by practicing fraud and he had no knowledge of the same. He used to work as Halwaha with the plaintiff and taking advantage of appellant/defendant's illiteracy and by misusing his influence the respondent no.1 by playing fraud had allegedly got the said agreement for sale registered, hence the same is not binding on him. It was also pleaded that the suit is liable to abate due to the fact that the notification under Section 4 of U.P.C.H. Act has taken place in the village where the land in dispute exists and no permission under Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act, which was operative at that time, was obtained.

6. On the pleadings of the parties, the trial court had framed seven issues in the suit, translation of which is reproduced below:-

"1. Whether the plaintiff is entitled to get the sale deed executed of disputed Araji (property) to defendant no. 2 on the basis of the agreement mentioned at the end of the plaint.

2. Whether the plaintiff is entitled to get Rs.2000/- from defendant no. 2, as alleged in the plaint.

3. Whether the suit is time barred?

4. Whether the plaint is liable to be abated under Section 5(2) of Uttar Pradesh Consolidation Act.

5. Whether the suit has been under valued and less court fee has been paid?

6. Whether the plaintiff is entitled to get any relief.

7. Whether the plaintiff and defendant no.2 had entered into an agreement for sale of the land in dispute on 24.1.1979, as alleged in the plaint."

7. The learned trial court in its findings has decided the issue no. 3, which relates to the plea of suit being barred by time in negative. The issue no.4 relating to abatement of the suit under Section 5(2), U.P.C.H. Act, has also been decided in negative. Issue no.5, relating to valuation and payment of court fee, was also decided in the negative. Issue no.7 relates to execution of agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979 which has been decided in the affirmative. Issue no.1 relates to the fact whether the plaintiff was entitled to get the sale deed executed in his favour and Issue no.2 relates to the fact as to whether the plaintiff is entitled to receive back Rs.2000/- from the appellant/defendant and Issue no.6 relates to the relief.

8. The learned trial court found on issue nos. 1 and 2 that since the part of holdings is sought to be sold in the absence of any permission under Section 5(1)©(ii), U.P.C.H. Act, which was necessary, the execution for sale deed is not enforceable and held that respondent/plaintiff is entitled to get back Rs.2000/- within one month, failing which simple interest at the rate of 6% shall be payable.

9. The first appellate court while considering the appeal filed by the respondent no.1, had framed certain points for consideration, such as; whether the appellant/defendant has executed the agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979 and whether the plaintiff is entitled to get the sale deed executed from the present appellant. In the cross-objection, the appellant/respondents had taken the plea that finding on Issue no.7 which relates to the execution of agreement for sale is not correct.

10. The learned first appellate court in its findings has come to the conclusion that the plaintiff has examined himself as P.W.-1 and Mr. Arjun Prasad as P.W.-2, who is a marginal witness of the agreement for sale and Mr. M. Makkar, Hand writing and fingerprint expert as P.W. - 3. Since there was no inconsistency in the statements of P.W. 1 and P.W.2 and they have stated that agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979 was executed by the appellant/Nankau with full understanding, the plea of appellant/respondent about the fraud in execution of the document is not sustainable. It was also held that the appellant has not been able to establish beyond reasonable doubt the commission of fraud by the respondent no. 1. It has also recorded that another marginal witness, Sukhram who is said to be the Samdhi of appellant/Nankau was not examined by the appellant in the case. The first appellate court came to the conclusion that the trial court has rightly held that Nankau had executed the agreement for sale on 24.1.1979 in favour of plaintiffs, namely; Sami Ullah and Smt. Sheokala, respondent nos. 1 and 2, respectively. The cross objection filed by the appellant/respondent was accordingly rejected.

11. There is no doubt that the allegations of fraud are like any other criminal offence whether made in civil or criminal proceedings. Which must be established beyond reasonable doubt. The suspicion alone cannot take the place of proof. The appellant has failed to prove commission of fraud in the execution of agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979 and the trial court as well as the first appellate court have rightly come to the conclusion that the alleged agreement dated 24.1.1979 was executed between the present appellant and respondent nos. 1 and 2. In the alleged agreement for sale, it is mentioned that the appellant/Nankau would execute the sale deed within two years and in this regard will take all necessary steps. The learned trial court has come to the conclusion that the land in question is situated in the village where consolidation operations were going on and a notification under Section 4 of U.P.C.H. Act was in force.

12. The learned trial court after coming to the conclusion that the permission under Section 5 (1) © (ii) of U.P.C.H. Act for execution of the sale deed was necessary, held that since no such permission was obtained, therefore, the sale deed was inexecutable. The learned trial court, therefore, partly allowed the suit and allowed the plaintiff a sum of Rs. 2000/- which was paid by him to the appellant at the time of entering into the agreement for sale and directed the appellant to pay the same within one month, failing which the interest at the rate of 6% (simple interest) shall be chargeable.

13. The first appellate court considering the evidence on record has recorded in its findings that Paper No.15-C in appeal is the document relating to Form C.H.-2. This document shows that plot no. 1280 is ‘chak out’ land. It is not in dispute that the appellant/Nankau is owner of the plot in suit. He had agreed to take all steps for executing the sale deed in pursuance of the agreement for sale. There was no difficulty for him to obtain permission from the Settlement Officer of Consolidation, which in the present case, could have been easily obtained because the land at Plot No. 1280 was a 'chak out' land.

14. The first appellate court, however, did not agree with the contention of the respondent no.1 (appellant before the appellate court) that no permission from the Settlement Officer of Consolidation was needed. The first appellate court reversed the findings of the trial court on this issue and did not agree with the findings of the trial court that the respondent cannot get the sale deed executed in pursuance of the agreement for sale.

15. It has been contended by learned counsel for the appellant that finding of the first appellate court is not sustainable in the eye of law. The permission under Section 5 (1) (c)(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act was fully applicable in the present case and in the absence of such permission, the sale deed for the land in question could not be executed.

16. It is also contended that the first appellate court while reversing the findings in this regard has not recorded its reasons and in the absence of the same the said finding is not sustainable in the eye of law. It is also submitted that notification under Section 4 of U.P.C.H. Act was issued with respect to the village where the land in question was situated and the land in question was under consolidation proceedings at the time of agreement for sale. Section 5(1)(c) (ii) of U.P. C.H. Act clearly stipulates permission from the Settlement Officer of Consolidation in case a tenure holder transfers any part of his holdings by way of sale. It is submitted that Section 5(1)(c)(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act, at the relevant time, was in vogue and has been subsequently deleted by the amendment vide U.P. Act No.30 of 1991 (w.e.f. 19.02.1991).

17. Learned counsel for the appellant has also submitted that the suit was barred by Section 168-A of U.P.Z.A.& L.R Act, which prohibits transfer by sale, gift or exchange any fragment situated in consolidated area.

18. Learned counsel for the respondent no.1, on the other hand, vehemently argued that since the land in question was recorded as 'chak out' in the consolidation proceedings, no permission under Section 5(1) (c)(ii) of U.P. C.H. Act was required. It is also submitted that in any case the provision under Section 5(1) (c) (ii) of U.P.C.H. Act has been omitted during pendency of the second appeal and the Court shall take into consideration the necessary development in law during continuation of the proceedings initiated since filing of the suit by the respondent/plaintiff, as such, it shall be presumed that no such permission was required.

19. It is also submitted that once no permission from the Settlement Officer of Consolidation was required for execution of the sale deed of the land in question, the learned first appellate court has rightly allowed the suit for specific performance of contract filed by the respondent/plaintiff and has rightly directed the present appellant to execute the sale deed in favour of the respondent no.1, failing which the sale deed shall be executed by the Court. It is further submitted that the change in law shall be applied and since at present no permission from Settlement Officer of Consolidation is required with respect to the sale of land in question, as such there is no legal impediment in the execution of the sale deed for the land in question in favour of the respondent/plaintiff.

20. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the respondent 1/1 has relied on the following judgments.

1. Ambika Prasad Vs. D.D.C. & others; 1987 R.D. 403.

2. United Bank of India, Calcutta Vs. Abhijit Tea Co. Pvt. Ltd. & others; (2000) 7 Supreme Court Cases 357.

3.Sudhir G. Angur & others Vs. M. Sanjeev & others;(2006) 1 Supreme Court Cases 141.

4.Km. Prema Devi and others Vs. Raja Ram; 2014 (32) LCD 2179.

5.Raj Kumar & others Vs. Ashok Kumar Chaurasia & others; 2016 (34) LCD 62.

21. I have considered the submissions made by the parties' counsel and gone through the records.

22. While admitting the second appeal the Court, as an interim measure, has provided that till further orders the appellant shall not be required to execute the sale deed.

23. At the time of hearing the appeal following substantial questions of law have been framed for consideration:

"(a). Whether the suit for specific performance of contract filed by respondent No.1 could be decided without complying with the provisions of section 16 (c) and without proving that the plaintiff is still ready and willing to perform his part of the contract?

(b) Whether the suit for specific performance of contract could be decreed by the first appellate court without giving any finding as to plaintiff's the readiness and willing to perform his part of the contract on the part of the plaintiff?

(c) Whether the learned first appellate court could decree the suit for specific performance of contract without giving any finding that the agreement to sell was executed by the free will of the appellant when the respondent No.1 was in a position to dominate the will of appellant and the fact taken undue advantage of his position?

(d) Whether the learned first appellate court not committed illegality in decreeing the suit for specific performance of contract without giving any finding about the possibility of performance when on the fact it was not capable of being performed.

(e)Whether the suit for specific performance of contract could be decreed for a portion of plot which is not ascertainable nor identifiable?"

24. As per the findings recorded by the trial court and affirmed by the first appellate Court, a suit for specific performance was filed by the respondent no.1/plaintiff within the period of limitation. Both the Courts below have also come to the conclusion that the alleged agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979 was entered into between the appellant being the seller and respondent nos.1 and 2 as purchasers. The Courts below appreciating the evidence on record have categorically recorded in their findings that the plea of fraud could not be established by the appellant and there is sufficient evidence to come to the conclusion that the said sale agreement for sale was executed between the parties and got registered before the Sub Registrar.

25. I do not find any infirmity or illegality in the findings recorded by both the Courts below in this regard.

26. It is not in dispute that the land in question was under consolidation proceedings as notification under Section 4 of U.P.C.H. Act was issued for the village concerned and the land in question was under the consolidation proceedings at the time of execution of agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979 and till decision by the impugned judgment and decree, no notification under Section 52, U.P.C.H. Act for de-notification of the village or under Section 6(1), U.P.C.H. Act was issued.

27. As per the agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979, a portion of Plot No. 1280 was agreed to be sold, hence it was a sale of a portion of a consolidated plot. At the time of execution of the agreement for sale as well as at the time of filing of the suit, Section 5 (1) (c) (ii) of U.P.C.H. Act, was fully operational. Section 5(1) (c)(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act for convenience is reproduced below:

5. Effect of Declarations- Upon the publication of the notification under Section 4 in the Official Gazette, the consequences, as hereinafter set forth, shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, from the date specified thereunder till the publication of notification under Section 52 or sub-section (1) of Section 6, as the case may be, ensue in the area to which the declaration relates, namely:

(c) notwithstanding anything contained in the U.P.Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, no tenure-holder, except with the permission in writing of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation, previously obtained shall-

(i)……..
(ii) transfer by way of sale, gift or exchange any part of his holding in the consolidation area:

Provided that a tenure-holder may continue to use his holding, or any part thereof, for any purpose for which it was in use prior to the date specified in the notification issued under Section 4."

28. A bare reading of the aforesaid Section clearly indicates that no tenure-holder except with the permission in writing of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation, previously obtained, shall transfer by way of sale, gift or exchange any part of his holding in the consolidation area. The term 'consolidation area' has been defined in Section 3 (11-A) of U.P.C.H. Act and it means the 'area' in respect of which a notification under Section 4 of U.P.C.H. Act has been issued. The provision of Section 5, U.P.C.H. Act, as mentioned above, requires the permission in writing of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation when a tenure-holder transfers any part of his holding by way of sale and sub-section (2) of Section 5 © of the Act permits the sale of any part of his holding by a tenure-holder;meaning thereby that for execution of a sale deed of the land in question permission of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation was necessary and without previously obtaining the said permission the sale deed was inexecutable.

29. So far as the contention of learned counsel for the respondents that since Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act, has been deleted during pendency of the instant appeal and as such the Court has to apply the change in law and since no permission from Settlement Officer of Consolidation at present is required as such the finding recorded by the first appellate Court does not require any interference and the present appeal is liable to be dismissed is concerned, I am of the considered view that the legal position, as existing at the time of filing of the suit is required to be taken into consideration to find out as to whether any permission under Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act, was required for the purpose of execution of sale deed of the land in question or not.

30. In this regard, my view is supported by the following catena of decisions.

31. In the case of Dayawati and another Vs. Inderjit and others, the Apex Court has held that ordinarily a Court of appeal cannot take into account a new law, brought into existence after the judgment appealed from has been rendered because the rights of the litigants in an appeal are determined under the law in force at the date of the suit. The relevant paragraph 10, on reproduction reads as under:

"10.Now as a general proposition, it may be admitted that ordinarily a court of appeal cannot take into account a new law, brought into existence after the judgment appealed from has been rendered, because the rights of the litigants in an appeal are determined under the law in force at the date of the suit. Even before the days of Coke, whose maxim-a new law ought to be prospective,not retrospective in its operation-is oft-quoted, courts have looked with disfavour upon laws which take away vested rights or affect pending cases. Matters of procedure are, however, different and the law affecting procedure is always retrospective'. But it does not mean that there is an absolute rule of inviolability of substantive rights. If the new law speaks in language, which, expressly or by clear intendment, takes in even pending matters, the court of trial as well as the court of appeal must have regard to an intention so expressed, and the court of appeal may give effect to such a law even after the judgment of the court of first instance. The distinction between laws affecting procedure and those affecting vested rights does not matter when the court is invited by law to take away from a successful plaintiff, what he has obtained under judgment. See Quilter v. Mapleson (1882) 9 QBD 672 and Stovin v. Fairbrass,(1919) SS LJKB 1004, which are instances of new laws being applied. In the former the vested rights of the landlord to recover possession and in the latter the vested right of the statutory tenant to remain in possession were taken away after judgment.See also Maxwell Interpretation of Statutes (11th Edn.) pp. 211 and 213, and K.C. Mukerjee v.Mst. Ramaraton Kuer 65 Ind App 47 (AIR 1936 PC 49) where no saving in respect of pending suits was implied when s. 26(N) and (0) of the Bihar Tenancy Act (as amended by Bihar Tenancy Amendment Act, 1934) were clearly applicable' to all cases without exception."

In the case of Carona Ltd. Vs. Parvathy Swaminathan & Sons[2], in paragraph 42, the Court has come to the conclusion that the basic rule is that the rights of the parties should be determined on the basis of the date of institution of the suit. Para 42 of the judgment on reproduction reads as under:

*"42. In our judgment, the law is fairly settled. The basic rule is that the rights of the parties should be determined on the basis of the date of institution of the suit. Thus, if the plaintiff has no cause of action on the date of the filing of the suit, ordinarily, he will not be allowed to take advantage of the cause of the action arising subsequent to the filing of the suit. Conversely, no relief will normally be denied to the plaintiff by reason of any subsequent event it at the date of the institution of the suit, he has a substantive right to claim such relief."

32. In the case of Raj Kumar Vs. Director of Education and others[3], the Apex Court has held that the rights and liabilities of the parties to the suit must be considered in accordance with the law as on the date of institution of the suit. Paragraph 53 of the judgment on reproduction reads as under:

"53. Furthermore, the decision in the case of Kathuria Public School (supra) does not come to the aid of the respondents for one more reason. Undisputedly, the notice of retrenchment was served on the appellant on 07.01.2003 and he was retrenched from service on 25.07.2003. The decision in the case of Kathuria Public School (supra), striking down Section 8(2) of the DSE Act was rendered almost exactly two years later, i.e. on 22.07.2005. Surely, the respondents could not have foreseen that the requirement of prior approval of the order of termination passed against the appellant from Director would be struck down later and hence decided to not comply with it. Section 8(2) of the DSE Act was very much a valid provision of the statute as on the date of the retrenchment of the appellant, and there is absolutely no reason why it should not have been complied with. The rights and liabilities of the parties to the suit must be considered in accordance with the law as on the date of the institution of the suit. This is a fairly well settled principle of law. In the case of Dayawati v. Inderjit[12], a three judge bench of this Court held as under: (AIR p.1426, para 10)."

"10. Now as a general proposition, it may be admitted that ordinarily a court of appeal cannot take into account a new law, brought into existence after the judgment appealed from has been rendered, because the rights of the litigants in an appeal are determined under the law in force at the date of the suit."

33. On the other hand, the judgments cited by the learned counsel for the respondents in this regard do not support the case of the respondents.

34. In this regard, in the case of Ambika Prasad Vs. D.D.C. & others[4], this Court while considering the question as to whether the sale deed executed by the Court itself is void as no permission to make transfer in favour of the petitioner was obtained by him from the Settlement Officer of Consolidation under Section 5(1) (c) (ii) of U.P.C.H. Act, the Court came to the conclusion that the restrictions imposed by Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act, relates to transfers made by the tenure-holder voluntarily and it cannot be construed to relate to transfer made by the Court in pursuance of a decree passed in a suit for specific performance of a contract on the refusal of the judgment-debtor/tenure holder to execute the sale deed in pursuance of the decree passed against him. The said provision cannot be construed to cast a duty upon the Court to apply for and seek permission of the Settlement Officer of Consolidation under Section 5(1) © (ii) of U.P.C.H. Act to execute the sale deed. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment on reproduction read as under:

"The first question which crops up for consideration in this writ petition is whether the sale deed dated October 14, 1977 executed by Additional Munsif, Bahraich, is void as no permission to make transfer in favour of the petitioner was obtained by him from the Settlement Officer, Consolidation under Section 5(1)©(ii) of the Act or not. It was urged by the learned counsel Dr. L.P.Misra that no distinction can be drawn between the transfers made by private parties and the transfers made by Court in execution of decree for specific performance of contract passed in favour of the vendee on behalf of the defendant -judgment debtors. It was urged that upon publication of notification under sub-section (2) of Section 4 the consequence provided in the Act shall follow where the tenure holder without the permission of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation previously obtained makes transfer by way of sale, gift or exchange, of his holding or any part thereof in the consolidation area. It was urged that if a transfer is made in contravention of the provisions of Section 5(1) © (ii) of the Act, the same shall not be valid or recognized notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being enforced to the contrary as provided in sub-section (2) of Section 45-A of the Act. There should be no distinction made between transfer made by a tenure holder on his own accord and a sale deed executed by court in execution of a decree for specific performance of contract or in execution of a money decree. Learned counsel, thus, contended that since in the present case the Additional Munsif had admittedly not obtained prior permission for executing the sale deed in favour of the petitioner in respect of the land in dispute as was required under Section 5(1)© (ii) and, as such, the sale deed is not valid and the petitioner cannot be said to have acquired Bhumidhari rights on its basis. At the first flash the argument appears to be attractive, but on careful scrutiny I find no merit in it.

The restrictions imposed by Section 5(1)© (ii), in my opinion, relate to transfers made by the tenure holder voluntarily and it cannot be construed to relate to transfer made by court in pursuance of a decree passed in a suit for specific performance of contract on the refusal of the judgment-debtor/tenure holder to execute sale deed in pursuance of the decree passed against him. The said provision cannot be construed to cast a duty upon the court to apply for and seek permission of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation under Section 5(1) © (ii) of the Act to execute sale deed and there appears to be no such restriction in the matter relating to compulsory sales in execution of the decree of the Court passed in favour of decree holder.

Similar question cropped up for consideration in Smt. Bhagwati V. Deputy Director of Consolidation and others (1) wherin K.P. J. held:

"If the tenure holder refuses to execute sale deed in pursuance of an agreement to sell and the Civil Court is called upon to execute necessary sale deed in favour of the decree holder, it would be too much to expect that the Civil Court should seek permission of the Settlement Officer of Consolidation for executing the necessary sale deed in favour of the decree holder. If the contentions raised on behalf of the petitioner are accepted, there are chances that the decree passed by the Civil Court would become ineffective if the Settlement Officer of Consolidation refused to grant permission. The provisions of Section 5(2) of the Act do not apply to suits for specific performance of a contract to sell as is evident from several decisions of this Court. If the bar contained in Section 5© (ii) is imposed upon the Civil Court, the net result would be that an unwilling tenure holder can get an opportunity to thwart the civil court decree in an undesirable manner."

I respectfully agree with the view expressed above and in my opinion the bar contained in Section 5© (ii) of the Act is only applicable to voluntary transfer made by tenure holder and it cannot be stretched to sale deeds executed by Civil Court against the will of the tenure holder in execution of a decree for specific performance of contract in favour of decree holder. If the Civil Court executes a sale deed against the will of the tenure holder judgment debtor, it would not at all be necessary for the Civil Court to seek permission of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation under Section 5(1) © (ii) of the Act. Similar view was expressed by S.D. Agarwal, J. in Ram Saran V. The Ist Addl. District Judge, Rampur and others wherein the vendee had purchased land in execution of a decree for sale of the land belonging to a Scheduled Caste. It was urged by the judgment-debtor that since the land could not be purchased by the auction purchaser in view of the provisions contained in the mandatory provisions of Section 157-A of the U.P.Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, and, as such, the auction purchaser would not get any right in the land purchased in the auction sale in execution of Civil Court decree. This contention was repelled and it was held:-

"Section 157-A of the Act in terms only prohibits a Bhumidhar who is of Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe from transferring by way of sale, gift or mortgage or lease any land to a person not belonging to the Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe except with the previous approval of the Collector. It applied to voluntary sales. This prohibition has been made so far as the Bhumidhar is one who either belongs to the Scheduled Caste or Scheduled tribe. The prohibition is against such a Bhumidhar. It is only when a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe Bhumidhar wants to sell or transfer any land then only the previous approval of the Collector is required and not in other cases. In the instant case, the petitioner who is admittedly the Bhumidhar and belongs to a Scheduled Caste is not transferring the land to any person and as such this provision does not apply to the present case at all. In the instant case the Court would be executing a sale deed in execution of a decree passed against the Scheduled Tribe Bhumidhar. In my opinion, therefore, the prohibition contained in Section 157-A of the Act does not prohibit in any manner the attachment and sale of the property belonging to the Scheduled Caste."

35. In the case of United Bank of India, Calcutta Vs. Abhijit Tea Co. Pvt. Ltd. And others[5], the observations made in paragraphs 20, 24 and 25, have been relied. The Court in that case has come to the conclusion that it is the duty of a Court whether it is trying original proceedings or hearing an appeal to take notice of the change in law affecting pending actions and to give effect to the same.

"20. Now, it is well settled that it is the duty of a Court, whether it is trying original proceedings or hearing an appeal, to take notice of the change in law affecting pending actions and to give effect to the same. (See G.P.Singh, Interpretation of Statutes, 7th Ed.p.406). If, while a suit is pending, a law like the 1993 Act that the Civil Court shall not decide the suit, is passed, the Civil Court is bound to take judicial notice of the statute and hold that the suit – even after its remand – cannot be disposed of by it."

"24. The above result is also reached by the application of the principle of purposive construction.

25. In regard to purposive interpretation, Justice Frankfurter observed as follows:

"Legislation has an aim, it seeks to obviate some mischief, to supply an inadequacy, to effect a change of policy, to formulate a plan of government. That aim, that policy is not drawn, like nitrogen, out of the air; it is evidenced in the language of the statute, as read in the light of other external manifestations of purpose ("Some Reflections on the Reading of Statutes) 47 Columbia LR 527 at 538) (1947)"

36. There is no dispute to the aforesaid legal proposition. The Court has to take into consideration the change in law which has occurred during pendency of the original proceedings or hearing an appeal, however where the change in law has taken place which goes to the very root of the matter and determines the rights of the parties, the Court has to take into consideration the legal position as existing at the time of filing of suit.

37. In the case of Sudhir G.Angur and others Vs. M. Sanjeev and others*; (Supra), reliance has been placed in paragraph 11 wherein the Apex Court has observed that all procedural laws are retrospective unless the legislature expressly states to the contrary. Paragraph 11 of the judgment is reproduced below:

"11. In our view, Mr. G.L. Sanghi is also right in submitting that it is the law on the date of trial of the suit which is to be applied. In support of this submission, Mr. Sanghi relied upon the judgment in Shiv Bhagwan Moti Ram Saraoji V. Onkarmal Ishar Dass; AIR 1952 Bom 365, wherein it has been held that no party has a vested right to a particular proceeding or to a particular forum. It has been held that it is well settled that all procedural laws are retrospective unless the legislature expressly states to the contrary. It has been held that the procedural laws in force must be applied at the date when the suit or proceeding comes on for trial or disposal. It has been held that a court is bound to take notice of the change in the law and is bound to administer the law as it was when the suit came up for hearing. It has been held that if a court has jurisdiction to try the suit, when it comes on for disposal, it then cannot refuse to assume jurisdiction by reason of the fact that it had no jurisdiction to entertain it at the date when it was instituted. We are in complete agreement with these observations. As stated above, the Mysore Act now stands repealed. It could not be denied that now the Court has jurisdiction to entertain this suit."

38. There is no dispute to the aforesaid legal proposition, however, in the present case, at the time of institution of the suit as well as at the time of hearing, Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act was fully operational and the trial court was right in taking into consideration the said provision while deciding the suit.

39. So far as the judgments of this Court in the case of Km. Prema Devi and others Vs. Raja Ram (Supra) and Raj Kumar & others Vs. Ashok Kumar Chaurasia & others (Supra) are concerned, the court was considering the affect of removal of bar created under Section 23 of Hindu Succession Act and had come to the conclusion that after the amendment in Hindu Succession Act, a female heir can also seek partition, although the bar of Section 23 was very much there when the suit was filed, however during pendency of the appeal Section 23, Hindu Succession Act was omitted, as such the benefit of amending Act should be available to the appellants.

40. In view of the above, the judgments relied by the counsel for the respondents are of no help to him.

41. As such, as discussed above, I am of the considered view that permission under Section 5 (1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act was required to be obtained for execution of the sale deed of the land in dispute and in absence of such permission the sale deed was inexecutable. The learned trial court has rightly come to the conclusion that since the sale deed of the land in question was inexecutable, as such the respondent is entitled to get back the amount of Rs. 2000/- which he had paid at the time of entering into the agreement for sale and has rightly directed the appellant to pay the amount of Rs.2000/-, failing which simple interest at the rate of 6% shall be payable by him to the respondent/plaintiff.

42. It is to be noted that the learned first appellate court while reversing the findings recorded by the trial court in this regard has although come to the conclusion that the contention of respondent/plaintiff that no permission from the Settlement Officer of Consolidation needed, is not acceptable, however has not given any reason to reverse the findings of the trial court in this regard.

43. It is needless to observe that in case the appellate court comes to the conclusion that the findings recorded by the trial court are perverse or are not acceptable in the eye of law and need to be reversed, it is required to first set aside the findings recorded by the trial court and thereafter reverse the same by giving reasons.

44. This Court in the case of Sri Jasmel Singh Vs. Sri Rajendra Prasad Saxena and others[6], has held that the decree passed by the trial court could not be reversed in the appeal on the basis of single evidence without setting aside the findings recorded by the trial court on material on record and substantiated by weighty reasons. The relevant paragraphs 8, 9 and 12, on reproduction read as under:

"8. The Supreme Court in Smt. Sawarni V. Smt. Inder Kaur and others; AIR 1996 SC 2823 held that where the conclusion of the trial court was based on material on record and substantiated by weighty reasons and where the appellate court did not set aside the findings of the trial court the lower appellate court could not reverse the decree of the trial court merely on the basis of mutation entry in favour of the defendant. It follows from the judgment that on the basis of single evidence the lower appellate court could not have reversed the findings of the trial court.

9. In J.B. Sharma V. State of Madhya Pradesh and another, AIR 1988 SC 703, it was held that where the appellate court while recording the finding acted on an assumption not supported by any evidence and further failed to consider the entire document on the basis of which the finding was recorded, the High Court was justified in setting aside the finding of the lower appellate court. On the basis of this case it can be said that since there was assumption by the lower appellate court the reversal of finding in this second appeal is justified.

12. Again in S.V.R. Mudaliar V. Mrs. Rajabu F. Buhari, AIR 1995 SC 1607, it was laid down that appellate court has to bear in mind reasons ascribed by the trial court for its finding and the same should be considered before setting aside the judgment."

45. Again in the case of M/s. Jeevan Ram Ram Lakhan Vs. State of U.P[7], the Court emphasized the requirement of reasons needed to be recorded by the appellate court while reversing the findings recorded by the trial court. Paragraph 29 of the judgment on reproduction reads as under:

"29. The finding recorded by the trial court is based on reasons derived from th evidence on record and its correct interpretation. The appellate court committed error in reversing the finding without considering all the reasons given by the learned Civil Judge. His finding of fact is the result of superficial and wrong approach. The appellate court was bound to examine the entire relevant evidence on record and then to draw interference on its basis. He committed error in procedure by reversing the finding without considering the entire evidence and all the reasons given by the trial court. The trial court's conclusions were based on material on record and substantiated with reasons."

46. In the present case, the first appellate court has reversed the finding without setting aside the finding recorded by the trial court and has reversed the finding on issue no. 1 without assigning any reason which is not sustainable in the eye of law hence liable to be set aside and is hereby set aside.

47. So far as the contention of learned counsel for the respondents that during the consolidation proceedings in the village where the land in question is situated, the land in question was taken as 'chak out' and no permission was required is concerned, I am of the view that the notification under Section 4 of U.P.C.H. Act is issued with respect to the initiation of the consolidation proceedings in consolidated area which is defined under Section 3 of U.P.C.H. Act and it means the area in respect of which a notification has been issued. In case during consolidation proceedings any part of any land or any plot is declared as 'chak out' which is situated in that area, it does not mean that it is not part of the consolidation proceedings and no permission under Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act is required. Even for the area which has been declared as 'chak out' the permission for sale of any part of such area was required under Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act, as was applicable at the time of filing of the suit by the plaintiff. Hence, the contention raised in this regard has no force.

48. In the case of Chandrabhan Vs. Jagdesh Prasad Chauhan[8], Hon Prafulla C. Pant,J. as his Lordship then was had occasion to consider the import of Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H. Act and while considering the same his Lordship came to the conclusion that the bar to transfer a land during consolidation operations was contained in sub-clause (ii) of Clause © of sub-section (1) of Section 5 of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953. The said provision was repealed and omitted vide U.P. Land Laws (Amendment) Act, 1991 (U.P. Act 30 of 1991) and after its omission, the permission of consolidation authorities was not required before transfer of land. The relevant paras 9 and 10, are reproduced hereunder:

"9. Lastly, it is argued on behalf of the appellant that no permission of consolidation authorities was obtained prior to the execution of the sale deed, as such the learned Courts below have erred in law by dismissing the suit and appeal. Learned Counsel failed to show me the provisions of law in U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act , 1953 by which the permission of the consolidation authorities was necessary after the year 1991 before transfer of the land.

10. In fact, the bar to transfer a land during consolidation operations was contained in sub-clause (ii) of Clause © of sub-section (1) of Section 5 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953. However, said provision was repealed and omitted vide U.P. Land Laws (Amendment) Act, 1991 (U.P. Act 30 of 1991). Therefore, there is no substance in the argument advanced on behalf of the appellant that the permission of the consolidation authorities was required before transfer of land, as the impugned documents are of the year 1995 and 1996."

49. A Full Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Rajeshwari Vs. D.D.C. Lucknow Camp Mirzapur & others[9], was required to consider the question as to whether the sale deed in that case infringe the provisions of Section 5©(ii) of the Consolidation of Holdings Act? The Full Bench has answered the question in the following manner, which on reproduction reads as under:

"The sale deeds were executed after the statement of proposals had been confirmed and chaks had been allotted. The vendor sold the entire chak to the vendee. The facts of these cases are similar to the facts of Smt. Asharfunisa Begum V. Deputy Director of Consolidation; 1970 RD 532, Smt. Asharfunisa Begum's case is a recent Full Bench decision. The Full Bench had held that Section 5©(ii) requires the permission of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation in the case of sale of a part of a holding and not in the case of sale of the entire holding. We are in full agreement with the opinion of the Full Bench. Accordingly we answer the question referred to us in the negative."

50. In the case of Smt. Asharfunisa Begum Vs. Dy. Director of Consolidation Camp at Hardoi and others[10], the Full Bench has held as under: (relevant paragraph 9 is reproduced).

"9. Accordingly if the whole holding is transferred that will not disturb the progress of the consolidation proceedings. The scheme of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act is to treat a person as a Bhumidhar tenure-holder or Sirdar tenure-holder and not to have separate holdings under the same tenure. This is apparent in the instant case from the documents filed in which all plots of land held by the deceased Bushir Mohammad as Bhumidhar are grouped together and corresponding chak or chaks were allotted together in lieu of that land and similarly all plots of land held as Sirdar was grouped together for allotting a chak or chaks in lieu thereof as constituting one holding. We are accordingly of the view that it will be only part of a holding under one tenure, if transferred by a tenure holder during consolidation operations, that would create complications and the object of speedy consolidation would be thwarted, but if the whole holding is transferred that position will not arise. The Legislature must be presumed not to have intended to place more restrictions than were necessary or to have intended to make an invalid provision hit by Article 13 read with Article 19 (f) of the Constitution. We are accordingly of the opinion that with the meaning of 'holding' as clarified above, sub-clause (ii) of Clause © of sub-section (1) of Section 5 restricts only the transfer of any part only of the holding of a tenure holder and not the whole holding and to our view the Division Bench case referred to above was correctly decided on the basis of a similar interpretation placed on sub-clause (ii) of Clause © of sub-section (I) of Section 5 of the Act."

51. In the present case, it is the admitted case of the parties that as per the agreement for sale dated 24.1.1979, a portion of Plot No. 1280 was required to be sold to the respondent/plaintiff and for that appellant was to execute a sale deed within two years from the date of agreement for sale after completing legal necessities, as such the requirement of permission from Settlement Officer, Consolidation under Section 5(1)©(ii) of U.P.C.H.Act, which was fully attracted. However, in the absence of the same, the sale deed as per the terms of the agreement for sale was not executable.

52. So far as the contention of learned counsel for the appellant that the execution for sale deed was barred under Section 168-A of U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act is concerned, it is to be observed that the import of Section 168-A of U.P.Z.A.&L.R. relates to transfer of fragment of a land in a consolidated area, it bars fragmentation of land, however in the present case since the village where the land in question situated was under consolidation operations and at the time of passing of the impugned judgment and decree the de-notification under Section 52, U.P.C.H. Act was not done hence Section 168-A, U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act would not be attracted.

53. The question as to whether the respondent/plaintiff had complied the provisions of Section 16-C, Specific Performance Act and whether the respondent/plaintiff has proved his readiness and willing to perform his part of contract is concerned, since the appellant/defendant had not contested the said issue before the trial court and the first appellate court and has not made any categorical denial in this regard, as such the courts below were right in presuming the readiness and willingness of the respondent/plaintiff on the basis of statements of the witnesses and the evidence on record.

54. So far as the question as to whether the first appellate court decreed the suit for specific performance of contract without giving any findings that the agreement for sale was executed by the freewill of the appellant when the respondent no.1 was in a position to dominate the will of the appellant and he had taken undue advantage of his position is concerned, it is to be noted that as per the given facts, the appellant/respondent was working as Halwaha with respondent no.1/plaintiff and the appellant/respondent was illiterate and taking advantage of the dominating position respondent/plaintiff could have got the alleged agreement for sale executed in his favour, however the learned trial court has not taken due diligence in appreciating the evidence in this regard while writing its finding on this issue. There was possibility that the respondent/plaintiff could have taken undue advantage of his position being in dominating position. The learned first appellate court has committed an illegality in decreeing the suit for specific performance of contract without giving any finding in this regard.

55. In view of above, I am of the considered opinion that the impugned judgment and order dated 22.1.1986 passed by the Special/Additional Judge in Civil Appeal No.148 of 1984, is not sustainable in the eye of law.

56. The second appeal is allowed.

57. The judgment and decree dated 22.1.1986 passed by the Special/Additional District Judge, Sultanpur, is hereby set aside and the judgment and decree dated 29.8.1984 passed by the Munsif (North) Sultanpur in Suit No.427 of 1981, is upheld. The plaintiff/respondent shall be entitled to get an amount of Rs. 2000/- along with the interest, as directed by the trial Court.

THE HON'BLE SURYA PRAKASH KESARWANI, J.

&
Connected With Other Cases

State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
Somdeo Sharma & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for Appellants:
Shri Chandra Shekhar Singh

Held –

Paragraphs 1–8 (Applications for Condonation of Delay):
The High Court examined eight defective First Appeals filed by the State (Nos. 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 299, and 300 of 2016).
The appeals involved massive delays ranging from roughly 4 years to over 7 years beyond the prescribed limitation period.
In each case, the State's supporting affidavits blamed a former official (Jiledar Mr. Banni Singh) and explained actions taken only after show-cause notices were issued in late September or October 2015.
The court observed that the affidavits completely failed to explain the massive delay for the multi-year periods leading up to September/October 2015.

Paragraphs 9–10 (Legal Framework on Limitation):
Citing Supreme Court precedent, the court emphasized that limitation laws are rooted in public policy to protect successful litigants who have acquired rights under a judgment.
Citing further Apex Court precedent, the court reiterated that limitation laws bind the government equally, and routine departmental administrative delay/red tape does not constitute a "sufficient cause" for condoning delay.

Paragraph 11 (Rejection of Delay Applications):
The court held that the appellants miserably failed to provide cogent or acceptable reasons for the substantial delays and rejected all condonation of delay applications.

Paragraphs 12–19 (Order on Costs & Waste of Public Exchequer):
The court detailed the underlying Land Acquisition Reference orders from District Bulandshahar, noting that land was acquired for canal/waterway projects under the Madhya Ganga Canal Scheme.
It noted that the State exchequer was burdened with significant, wasteful court fee expenses alone across the 8 appeals (totaling over ₹1.5 lakh in court fees).

Paragraphs 20–21 (Frivolous and Negligent Litigation):
The court noted that the lower court judgments relied on previous related reference judgments where earlier First Appeals filed by the State had already been dismissed and compensation paid.
Appellants failed to dispute these facts or produce the relied-upon judgments when asked.
The court concluded that State officers acted negligently, irresponsibly, and filed ex-facie frivolous appeals knowing full well they had no case and that the delay was unexplainable.

Paragraphs 22–23 (Personal Liability of Erring Officers):
Relying on Supreme Court precedent, the court emphasized that imposing costs directly on the State/PSU fails to deter officers because money comes from government coffers.
To deter irrational and vexatious litigation, costs must be personally recovered from the specific officers who authorized the filing of such frivolous appeals.

Paragraphs 24–26 (Final Directions and Costs):
All 8 defective appeals were dismissed with an exemplary cost of ₹50,000 per appeal, totaling ₹4,00,000.
The U.P. State Government was directed to identify the responsible officers within 6 weeks, recover the ₹4,00,000 cost from them within a further 6 weeks, and deposit the amount with the Legal Services Authority, High Court, Allahabad.
Directed a compliance report to be submitted to the Registrar General and instructed a copy of the order to be served on the Chief Secretary, Government of U.P.

ORDER ON DELAY CONDONATION APPLICATIONS

1. FIRST APPEAL DEFECTIVE No. - 292 of 2016

Delay Condonation Application No.278616 of 2016

(i) This appeal has been filed beyond limitation by 4 years and 48 days alongwith delay condonation application and affidavit.

(ii). In paragraph 2 of the affidavit accompanying the delay condonation application it is stated as under:

"That, in the reference No.384 of 1990 the Addl. District Judge, Court No.2 Bulandshahar has finally allowed the reference vide order dated 28.03.2009. It is not clear from the available records of the department that as to why the then Jiledar Court Case, Madhya Ganga Canal Construction Division-10, Bulandshahar Mr. Banni Singh, has not take appropriate steps for filing the appeals. During the Execution proceedings having No.09 of 2012 when it transpired that no appeal has been preferred by the Jiledar as such an explanation was sought from him on 29.10.2015. For kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court a copy of show cause dated 29.10.2015 issued to the then Jiledar is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.1 to this affidavit."

(iii). Subsequent paragraphs of this affidavit attempts to explain delay after 30.10.2015. The affidavit does not at all explain the delay till 30.10.2015. Thus the delay has not been explained and consequently delay can not be condoned. Therefore, the delay condonation application deserves to be rejected.

2. FIRST APPEAL DEFECTIVE No. - 293 of 2016

Delay Condonation Application No.278631 of 2016

(i). This appeal has been filed beyond limitation by 7 years and 85 days alongwith delay condonation application and affidavit.

(ii). In paragraph 2 of the affidavit accompanying the delay condonation application it is stated as under:

"That, in the reference No.386 of 1991 the Addl. District Judge, Court No.2 Bulandshahar has finally allowed the reference vide order dated 2.03.2009. It is not clear from the available records of the department that as to why the then Jiledar Court Case, Madhya Ganga Canal Construction Division-10, Bulandshahar Mr. Banni Singh, has not take appropriate steps for filing the appeals. During the Execution proceedings having No.07 of 2009 when it transpired that no appeal has been preferred by the Jiledar as such an explanation was sought from him on 19.9.2015. For kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court a copy of show cause dated 19.9.2015 issued to the then Jiledar is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.1 to this affidavit."

(iii). Subsequent paragraphs of this affidavit attempts to explain delay after 19.09.2015. The affidavit does not at all explain the delay till 19.09.2015. Thus the delay has not been explained and consequently delay can not be condoned. Therefore, the delay condonation application deserves to be rejected.

3. FIRST APPEAL DEFECTIVE No. - 294 of 2016

Delay Condonation Application No.278650 of 2016

(i). This appeal has been filed beyond limitation by 7 years and 123 days alongwith delay condonation application and affidavit.

(ii). In paragraph 2 of the affidavit accompanying the delay condonation application it is stated as under:

"That, in the reference No.74 of 1989 the Addl. District Judge, Court No.2 Bulandshahar has finally allowed the reference vide order dated 23.01.2009. It is not clear from the available records of the department that as to why the then Jiledar Court Case, Madhya Ganga Canal Construction Division-10, Bulandshahar Mr. Banni Singh, has not take appropriate steps for filing the appeals. During the Execution proceedings having No.01/2009 when it transpired that no appeal has been preferred by the Jiledar as such an explanation was sought from him on 19.9.2015. For kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court a copy of show cause dated 19.9.2015 issued to the then Jiledar is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.1 to this affidavit."

(iii). Subsequent paragraphs of this affidavit attempts to explain delay after 19.09.2015. The affidavit does not at all explain the delay till 19.09.2015. Thus the delay has not been explained and consequently delay can not be condoned. Therefore, the delay condonation application deserves to be rejected.

4. FIRST APPEAL DEFECTIVE No. - 295 of 2016

Delay Condonation Application No.278665 of 2016

(i). This appeal has been filed beyond limitation by 7 years and 35 days alongwith delay condonation application and affidavit.

(ii). In paragraph 2 of the affidavit accompanying the delay condonation application it is stated as under:

"That, in the reference No.369 of 1990 the S.C.S.T./Addl. District Judge, Court No.2 Bulandshahar has finally allowed the reference vide order dated 21.04.2009. It is not clear from the available records of the department that as to why the then Jiledar Court Case, Madhya Ganga Canal Construction Division-10, Bulandshahar Mr. Banni Singh, has not take appropriate steps for filing the appeals. During the Execution proceedings having No.26 of 2009 when it transpired that no appeal has been preferred by the Jiledar as such an explanation was sought from him on 29.10.2015. For kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court a copy of show cause dated 29.10.2015 issued to the then Jiledar is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.1 to this affidavit."

(iii). Subsequent paragraphs of this affidavit attempts to explain delay after 30.10.2015. The affidavit does not at all explain the delay till 30.10.2015. Thus the delay has not been explained and consequently delay can not be condoned. Therefore, the delay condonation application deserves to be rejected.

5. FIRST APPEAL DEFECTIVE No. - 296 of 2016

9. In Maniben Devraj Shah versus Municipal Corporation of Brihan Mumbai JT 2012 (4) SC 55, the Apex Court has held that the law of limitation is based on public policy. It ensures that litigants approach the Court without unreasonable delay. At the same time Courts are empowered to condone delay if sufficient cause is shown. Though a liberal and justice oriented approach is to be adopted, it also to be kept in mind that successful litigant has acquired rights on the basis of the judgment under challenge and has spent time pursuing the litigation.

10. In Office of the Chief Post Master General & Ors.v.Living Media India Ltd. & Anr. JT 2012(2) SC 483, the Apex Court has held as follows:

"The law of limitation undoubtedly binds everybody including the Government.

It is the right time to inform all the government bodies, their agencies and instrumentalities that unless they have reasonable and acceptable explanation for the delay and there was bonafide effort, there is no need to accept the usual explanation that the file was kept pending for several months/years due to considerable degree of procedural red-tape in the prices. The Government departments are under a special obligation to ensure that they perform their duties with diligence and commitment. Condonation of delay is an exception and should not be used as an anticipated benefit for government departments. Considering the fact that there was no proper explanation offered by the Department for the delay except mentioning of various dates, according to us, the Department has miserably failed to give any acceptable and cogent reasons sufficient to condone such a huge delay."

11. From the facts as aforenoted, it is absolutely clear that the appellants have miserably failed to give any acceptable and cogent reasons sufficient to condone the aforenoted long delay in filing these appeals. Under the circumstances delay in filing these appeals are not condonable. Consequently all the delay condonation applications are rejected.

By the impugned judgment the market value of the acquired land has been determined @ of Rs.200/- per sq. yard based on the judgment in other Land Acquisition References.

(ii). The State exchequer has been burdened with huge wasteful expenditure in filing this appeal. Merely the Court fees component in filing this appeal is Rs.4533/-.

19. FIRST APPEAL DEFECTIVE No. - 300 of 2016

(i). The impugned judgment dated 2.3.2009 has been passed by the Court of Additional District Judge (Court No.2), Bulandshahar in Land Acquisition Reference No.386 of 1991 which relates to determination of market value of the land of the claimant acquired by Notification under Section 4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act,1894, published on 14.9.1988 relating to Village Raniwal, Pargana Pahasu, Tehsil Khurja and District Bulandshahar. The land was acquired for construction of Hazaratpur Minor under the Madhya Ganga Canal Scheme. By the impugned judgment the market value of the acquired land has been determined @ of Rs.200/- per sq. yard based on the judgment in other Land Acquisition References.

(ii). The State exchequer has been burdened with huge wasteful expenditure in filing this appeal. Merely the Court fees component in filing this appeal is Rs.20358/-.

20. It has also been observed in the impugned judgments that against the judgments given in other L.A.Rs. relating to certain lands of Villages in question or the adjoining villages, the First Appeals filed by the present appellants were dismissed by the High Court and the claimants/tenure holders have also been paid compensation accordingly. Neither these findings of fact recorded in detail in the impugned judgments have been disputed by the appellants nor the relied upon judgments have been disputed. The appellants are well aware of the judgments passed in different Land Acquisition References and the first appeals which have been relied in the impugned judgments but they have not produced those judgments before this Court despite being asked. Appellants have neither pleaded nor disclosed during the arguments, despite being asked repeatedly, as to whether they have challenged the relied upon judgments. From the facts as briefly noted above it appears that these appeals have been filed by the Officers negligently and without any sense of responsibility towards the State.

21. Thus, in view of the aforesaid, the appellants knew well at all the relevant point of time that neither the delay is condonable in the absence of any proper explanation for delay nor they have any case in view of the facts noted in the preceeding paragraph and yet these first appeals have been preferred for the reasons best known to the concerned Officers of the State Government, resulting in wastage of public money in filing these first appeals which are ex facie frivolous.

22. In the case of Punjab State Power Corporation Ltd. Vs. Atma Singh Grewal, (2014) 13 SCC 666 (para 14), Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under:

"14. No doubt, when a case is decided in favour of a party, the Court can award cost as well in his favour. It is stressed by this Court that such cost should be in real and compensatory terms and not merely symbolic. There can be exemplary costs as well when the appeal is completely devoid of any merit. [See Rameshwari Devi v. Nirmala Devi (2011) 8 SCC 249]. However, the moot question is as to whether imposition of costs alone will prove deterrent? We do not think so. We are of the firm opinion that imposition of cost on the State/PSU's alone is not going to make much difference as the officers taking such irresponsible decisions to file appeals are not personally affected because of the reason that cost, if imposed, comes from the government's coffers. Time has, therefore, come to take next step viz. recovery of cost from such officers who take such frivolous decisions of filing appeals, even after knowing well that these are totally vexatious and uncalled for appeals*. We clarify that such an order of recovery of cost from the officer concerned be passed only in those cases where appeal is found to be ex-facie frivolous and the decision to file the appeal is also found to be palpably irrational and uncalled for."*

(Emphasis supplied by me)

23. The law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court for imposition of cost and recovery thereof from the officers who took decision to file frivolous appeals, clearly attracts in the present set of facts.

24. In view of the aforesaid, all the delay condonation applications are rejected and consequently all the appeals also stand dismissed with cost of Rs.50,000/- in respect of each appeals. Thus total cost imposed comes to Rs.4,00,000/- which shall be recovered by the State Government from the Officers who took decision to file these frivolous appeals and that too without offering any proper explanation for long delay of several years, knowing well that the appeals are frivolous and uncalled for on the pleadings and the affidavits filed in support of delay condonation applications.

25. The state Government shall identify and fix the liability of the Officers for recovery of cost from them within six weeks from today and shall recover the cost from them within a further period of six weeks. The cost recovered shall be deposited within a week thereafter with the Legal Cell Authority, High Court, Allahabad. Thereafter, within a week a compliance report shall be sent by the State Government to the Registrar General of this Court who shall keep the report on record of these appeals and place it before this Court.

26. Let a copy of this order be sent by the Registrar General of this Court to the Chief Secretary, Government of U.P. for appropriate action and compliance.

THE HON'BLE MRS. RANJANA PANDYA, J.

&
Criminal Appeal No.- 516 Of 1996

Rakesh & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellants:

Counsel for Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Held –
Background & Trial Court Order
Appellate Arguments & Core Issues
Paras 8–11 (Arguments Heard): The High Court considered arguments from Defense Counsel Sri Alok Kapoor (arguing "no evidence" and a perverse trial verdict) and the A.G.A. (arguing the trial court findings were sound).
Para 12 (Key Issues Framed):
Is the delay in lodging the FIR fatal to the prosecution?
Did prosecution witnesses fail to support the case?
Were the essential ingredients of Sections 304B, 498A IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act fulfilled?

i. Court Analysis & Findings

1. Delay in FIR (Fatal to Prosecution)
The occurrence took place on April 18, 1994, but the FIR was lodged on April 22, 1994 (a 4-day delay).
Although delay alone isn't always fatal (Amar Singh, Tara Singh principles), the informant's testimony directly contradicted his FIR narrative. In court, PW-1 admitted that the accused never threatened him, bound his mouth, or illegally detained him.
Due to these contradictions and embellishments, the 3-day delay remained unexplained and proved fatal to the prosecution's credibility.

2. Hostile & Contradictory Witnesses
PW-1 (father) and PW-2 were declared hostile.
Referring to precedents (Prithi v. State of Haryana, Koli Lakhmanbhai Chanabhai v. State of Gujarat), the court noted that testimony of a hostile witness remains admissible if corroborated.

However, PW-3 (mother) and PW-4 (uncle) completely contradicted themselves during cross-examination, admitting there were no dowry demands or torture.
PW-1 and PW-4 admitted the deceased died of Cholera and the last rites were performed in the presence of family members. Without an inquest or post-mortem report, there was no evidence of unnatural death.
3. Failure to Satisfy Statutory Ingredients (Dowry Death)
Citing Prem Kanwar v. State of Rajasthan, the court reiterated the essential prerequisites for Section 304B IPC & Section 113B Evidence Act:
Death caused by burns, bodily injury, or unnatural circumstances.
Death occurred within 7 years of marriage.
Deceased was subjected to cruelty/harassment for dowry soon before her death (proximity test).
Court Finding: The prosecution failed to prove an unnatural death, failed to establish dowry demands, and failed to demonstrate cruelty "soon before death."

ii. Final Verdict

Paras 14–18 (Acquittal): Finding major contradictions and a shaky prosecution case, the High Court allowed the appeal, set aside the trial court conviction dated November 30, 1996, and acquitted all appellants (Rakesh, Heera Lal, Rajaipal, Smt. Siya Dulari, and Smt. Mina Devi). Bail bonds were cancelled and sureties discharged.

1. Challenge in these appeals is to the judgment and order dated 30.11.1996 passed by Special Judge, Unnao, in Sessions Trial No. 875 of 1994 (State vs. Rakesh and others), arising out of Case Crime No. 108 of 1994, under Sections 498A, 304B, 342, 201 I.P.C. and Section ¾ of the D.P. Act, Police Station Asiwah, District Unnao, whereby the accused persons were found guilty and sentenced to 3 years rigorous imprisonment and Rs. 2000/- as find under Section ¾ D.P. Act, 1 year rigorous imprisonment under Section 498A and 10 years rigorous imprisonment under Section 304 B I.P.C with default stipulation.

2. The prosecution story as unfolded as per statement of the prosecution witnesses and the first information report is that the informant Prabhu Dayal has lodged the first information report on 22.04.1994 stating that his daughter Guddy was married 11 months ago to Rakesh, the accused. Guddy has come to her paternal house five times after her marriage. He has given sufficient dowry in the marriage but the accused persons were not satisfied with the dowry and they used to assault the deceased and used to torture her and demanded a T.V. and a cycle as additional Dowry. The deceased narrated the whole incident to her parents, her sister, uncle (Foofa) Ram Asray and Shiv Balak. The informant talked to the accused persons in the matter and promise to give a T.V. and cycle after obtaining loan from somewhere. On 18.04.1994 one Radhey Lal informed him that the deceased was suffering from Cholera. When the informant went to the matrimonial house of the deceased, he saw one eyeball of the deceased was missing. She was bleeding. He suspected that the deceased was killed by the accused due to non fulfillment of dowry. The informant was going to the Police Station Rasoolabad to give information in the matter. Suddenly, Heera Lal, Siya Dulari, Rakesh his brother and sister-in-law took him into a room. Heera Lal pointed a country made pistol at him and threatened him not to go to lodge the report. He was compelled to sign on some blank papers. The dead body of the deceased was taken by the accused persons on some unknown place. On 19.04.1994, at 04:00 A.M., the hands and mouth of the informant were tied and he was left outside the village. Since then the informant was feared and tainted about the death of his daughter. He was perturbed. On 22.04.1994, he went with his brother-in-law to the police station and lodged the report.

3. On the basis of this first information report, PW-6 Constable 117 C.P. Abdual Gaffar scribed the chik report which proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-4. Further the witness scribed the copy of the G.D. which was proved by him as Exhibit Ka-5.

4. Investigation was entrusted in the matter to Pw-5 C.O. Lallan Ray. He copied the chik and G.D. in the case diary. Further, he recorded the statement of Vasudeo on 22.04.1994. He recorded the statement of informant Prabhu Dayal on the same day. He recorded the statements of Mishri Lal and Rajeshwari. Further he inspected the spot, prepared the site plan which was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-2. On 10.05.1994, he tried to trace the accused but they could not be traced. Since the accused Heeral Lal and Rakesh had surrendered on 16.05.1994 before the C.J.M., Unnao. Thereafter, the accused Siya Dulari and Mina Devi were apprehended and their statements were recorded. Further on 01.08.1994, the statements of the accused Heera Lal and Rakesh were recorded in jail. On 06.08.1994, the statement of the accused Brijpal was recorded in the court of C.J.M. On 29.04.1994, the statement of Mishri Lal was recorded. Since the dead body of the deceased was flown in the river by the accused, hence the body could not be recovered. The investigation was ended into a charge sheet which was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-3.

5. The prosecution proceeded to examine 6 witnesses in support of its case. PW-1 is Prabhu Dayal, the informant who proved the first information report as Exhibit Ka-1. PW-2 is Ram Asray. PW-3 is Rajeshwari, the mother of the deceased. PW-4 is Mishri Lal, uncle of the deceased. The statement of PW-5, C.O. Lallan Ray and PW-6 constable Abdul Gaffar has earlier been discussed.

6. After close of the prosecution evidence, the statement of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. who denied the occurrence. However, the marriage 11 months prior to the incident was admitted but all the accused have stated that the deceased died the natural death due to Cholera.

7. The accused persons examined Rama Shankar Pal, DW-1 who is said to have treated the deceased prior to her death.

8. After perusal of all the evidence available on record and hearing the counsel for the parties, the learned trial court has passed the impugned judgment as specified in para one of the judgment.

9. I have heard Sri Alok Kapoor, counsel for the appellants, learned A.G.A. and perused the material available on record.

10. Counsel for the appellants while castigating the judgment in appeal has submitted that this is a case of no evidence. There is neither any circumstantial nor any documentary evidence to support the prosecution case. The judgment of the trial court is perverse, illegal and not based on the evidence on record, hence the appeal is liable to be allowed.

11. Per contra learned A.G.A. has submitted that the findings of the learned lower court are based on the evidence on record which needs no interference.

12. The following points were raised before the court during the course of arguments :-

* The first information report is delayed which is fatal for the prosecution case.

* The prosecution witnesses have not supported the prosecution version.

* The ingredients of Section 304B, 498A I.P.C. and Section ¾ D.P. Act have not been fulfilled.

Counsel for the appellants has vehemently submitted that as per the first information report Exhibit Ka-1 and the chik report Exhibit Ka-4, the occurrence is said to have taken place on 18.04.1994, whereas the report was lodged on 22.04.1994 at 07:15 A.M. the police station being 10 Kms. Away from the place of occurrence. There is inordinate delay in lodging the first information report which remained unexplained and the prosecution led its oral evidence.

Per contra, learned A.G.A. has submitted that a perusal of the first information report makes it clear that the informant has specifically stated that after the occurrence when he went to the matrimonial house of the deceased, he was forcibly taken in a room by the accused persons. Heera Lal pointed a country made pistol at him. He was illegally detained in the room and was forced to sign blank papers. He was set free on 19.04.1994 at 04:00 A.M. but could only lodged the report on 22.04.1994 since he was feared and was grief stricken.

No doubt the first information report is not a substantive piece of evidence. It is only a corroborative piece of evidence. In the backdrop the statement of the informant has to be seen. There is not a whisper in the statement of PW-1 Prabhu Dayal that he was illegally detained by the accused persons in their house or he was compelled to sign blank papers or he was grief stricken due to which he could not lodge the first information report earlier. To the contrary he has stated that "मुलजिमान ने मुझे अपने घर पर कोई धमकी नहीं दी थी। ना तो मुलजिमान ने मेरा मुंह बंधा था और ना गांव के कनारे छोड़ा था। मैं देवेंद्र कुमार से रिपोर्ट नहीं लखी थी दस्तखत उन्होंने कराया था।"

In 2003 Cr.L.J. 1282, Amar Singh Vs. Balwinder Singh and others*, the Hon'ble Apex Court has laid down in regard to the delay in lodging of F.I.R. that many circumstances have to be seen. There is no hard and fast rule that any delay in lodging the F.I.R. would automatically render the prosecution case doubtful. It necessarily depends upon facts and circumstances of each case whether there has been any such delay in lodging the F.I.R. which may cast doubt about the veracity of the prosecution case and for this, a host of circumstances like the condition of the informant, the nature of injuries sustained, the number of victims, the efforts made to provide medical aid to them, the distance of hospital and the police station, etc. have to be taken into consideration. There is no mathematical formula by which an inference may be drawn either way merely on account of delay in lodging the F.I.R.*

The Hon'ble Apex Court in Tara Singh and others Vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1991 Supreme Court 63*, has held that "the delay in giving the F.I.R. by itself cannot be a ground to doubt the prosecution case. Knowing the Indian conditions as they are, one cannot expect these villagers to rush to the police station immediately after the occurrence. Human nature as it is, the kith and kin, who have witnessed the occurrence cannot be expected to go mechanically with all promptitude in giving report to the police. At times being grief-stricken because of the calamity, it may not immediately occur to them that they should give a report. After all, it is but natural, in these circumstances for them, to take sometime to go to the police station for giving the report. Of course, in cases arising out of acute factions there is a tendency to implicate persons belonging to the opposite faction falsely. In order to avert the danger of convicting such innocent persons, the courts should be cautious to scrutinize the evidence of such interested witnesses with greater care and caution and separate the grain from the chaff after subjecting the evidence to a closer scrutiny and in doing so the contents of the F.I.R. also will have to be scrutinized carefully. However, unless there are indications of fabrication, the court cannot reject the prosecution version as given in the F.I.R. and later substantiated by the evidence, merely on the ground of delay. These are all matters of appreciation and much depends on the facts and circumstances of each case.*

Thus, the evidence on record and even the statement of the informant does not support the prosecution version. Thus, the inordinate delay of more than three days in lodging the first information report is fatal for the prosecution case. There being chance of embellishment and false implication.

The father of the victim namely Prabhu Dayal PW-1 has been declared to be hostile by the prosecution. PW-2 is Ram Asray who was also declared hostile. Since he did not support the prosecution version. PW-3 is Rajeshwary, the mother of the victim has stated in chief that the husband, brother-in-law (Jeth), sister-in-law (Jethani), mother-in-law and father-in-law of the deceased tortured and assaulted the deceased due to non fulfilled demand of dowry. She has further stated that they demanded a T.V. and a cycle as additional dowry which could not be fulfilled. Whenever the deceased came to her house, she narrated these facts to her mother. This witness was given in the hands of the defence for cross-examination in which she has stated that nobody has demanded dowry from the deceased. Even her son-in-law did not demand T.V. or cycle. Her daughter also never told her that she was tortured or dowry was demanded from her and things went well during the marriage ceremony and even thereafter. PW-4 is Mishri Lal who is the uncle of the deceased who has stated that the deceased came five times to her paternal house. Whenever, the deceased used to go to the house of this witness, she narrated him that her husband beats her and all the accused threatened her and demanded a cycle and T.V. as additional dowry.

In cross-examination, contradicting the previous statement, this witness has stated that after marriage, he went to the house of the deceased but there was no demand of dowry. Even the deceased did not make any such complain to him. In its wisdom, the prosecution moved an application and got PW-1, the informant and PW-2 Ram Asray declared hostile.

As far as the evidence of hostile witnesses is concerned the law on this point has been laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in Prithi vs. State of Haryana, reported in 2010 (8) SCC 536, in which it has been laid down as under:-

"Section 154 of the Evidence Act, 1872 enables the court in its discretion to permit the person who calls a witness to put any questions to him which might be put in cross- examination by the adverse party. Some High Courts had earlier taken the view that when a witness is cross-examined by the party calling him, his evidence cannot be believed in part and disbelieved in part, but must be excluded altogether. However this view has not found acceptance in later decisions. As a matter of fact, the decisions of this Court are to the contrary."

In Koli Lakhmanbhai Chanabhai vs. State of Gujarat reported in (1999) 8 SCC 624, in which it has been laid down that it is settled law that evidence of hostile witness also can be relied upon to the extent to which it supports the prosecution version. Evidence of such witness cannot be treated as washed off the record. It remains admissible in the trial and there is no legal bar to base his conviction upon his testimony if corroborated by other reliable evidence.

Keeping in view the aforesaid law, even then, the evidence adduced by the prosecution is not trust-worthy not only the hostile witnesses even the mother of the victim namely PW-3 Rajeshwari and PW-4 Mishri Lal have changed their statements in every breath.

As per the first information report Exhibit Ka-1, the informant was informed that his daughter died due to Cholera. Since, cremation was done, hence no post-mortem report, inquest report or statement of the doctor is on record. As far as this part of the evidence is concerned PW-1 Parbhu Dayal has stated that he was told that the deceased died due to Cholera. Her body was flown in the Ganges.

In cross-examination, he has admitted clearly in so many words that his daughter died due to Cholera and all the family members were present at the time of performation of the last rites.

PW-2 Ram Asray has said nothing except that the dead body was flown away in the river. PW-3 Rajeshwari stating the cause of death in her examination-in-chief has stated that one of her eye bolls was missing. Her eye was bleeding. Besides this averment in her statement, there is nothing to even suggest that the deceased died an unnatural death. Even PW-4 Mishri Lal has stated that he was informed that the deceased died due to Cholera.

DW-1 Dr. Rama Shankar Pal was produced as a defence witness who is said to have treated the deceased but in the absence of relevant record, I do not find it proper to place any reliance on the statement of DW-1.

Thus, the evidence on record has not supported the prosecution version and the case does not stand proved.

The ingredients of Section 304B, 498A I.P.C. and Section ¾ D.P. Act have not been fulfilled :-

It has been submitted on behalf of the appellants that the ingredients of Section 498A, 304B I.P.C. and Section Â¾ D.P. Act have not been fulfilled, hence the conviction by learned trial court is bad in the eyes of law.

Before I proceed to evaluate the evidence on record led by the prosecution in support of charges framed against the accused, it is necessary to examine the law relating to 'dowry death'. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has highlighted all the aspects of law relating to 'dowry demand' and 'dowry death' in recent case of Prem Kanwar vs. State of Rajasthan, 2009(1) JT 197, para 6 to 12 of the reports areas under:-

"6. In order to attract Section 304B I.P.C., the following ingredients are to be satisfied:

(i). The death of a woman must have been caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise that under normal circumstances;

(ii). Such death must have been occurred within 7 years of the marriage;

(iii). Soon before her death, the woman must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband; and

(iv). Such cruelty or harassment must be in connection with the demand of dowry.

Section 304B and Section 498A I.P.C. Reads as follows:-

"304B. Dowry death.—(1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harÂ-assment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

Explanation.—For the purpose of this sub-section, "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonÂ-ment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life."

"498A. Husband or relative of husband of a woman subjecting her to cruelty.—Whoever, being the husband or the relative of the husband of a woman, subjects such woman to cruelty shall be punÂ-ished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine.

Explanation.—For the purpose of this section, "cruelty" means—

(a) any willful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman; or

(b) harassment of the woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand."

7. The term "dowry" has been defined in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (in short 'Dowry Act') as under:-

"Section 2. Definition of 'dowry'- In this Act, 'dowry' means any property or valuable security given or agreed to be given either directly or indirectly."

(a) by one party to a marriage to the other party of the marriage; or

(b) by the parents of either party to a marriage or by any other person, to either party to the marriage or to any other person, at or before or any time after the marriage in connection with the marriage of the said parties, but does not include dowry or mehr in the case of person whom the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) applies.

Explanation I- For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that any presents made at the time of a marriage to either party to the marriage in the form of cash, ornaments, clothes or other articles, shall not be deemed to be dowry within the meaning of this Section unless they are made as consideration of the marriage of the said parties.

Explanation II- The expression 'valuable security' has the same meaning in Section 30 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1861)."

8. Explanation to Section 304B refers to dowry" as having the same meaning as in Section 2 of the Act', the question "what is the periphery of the dowry as defined therein? The argument is, there has to be an agreement at the time of the marriage in view of the words "agreed to be given" occurring herein, and in the absence of any such evidence it would not constitute to be dowry. It is noticeable, as this definition by amendment includes not only the period before and at the marriage but also the period subsequent to the marriage. This position was highlighted in Pawan Kumar and others vs. State of Haryana, 1998 (3) SCC 309.

9. The offence alleged against the accused is under Section 304B I.P.C. Which makes "demand of dowry" itself punishable. Demand neither conceives no would conceive of any agreement. If for convicting any offender, agreement for dowry is to be proved; hardly any offenders would come under the clutches of law. When Section 304B refers to "demand of dowry", it refers to the demand of property or valuable security as referred to in the definition of "dowry" under the Act. The argument that there is no demand of dowry, in the present case, has no force. In cases of dowry deaths and suicides, circumstantial evidence plays an important role and inferences can be drawn on the basis of such evidence that could be either direct on indirect. It is significant that Section 4 of the Act, was also amended by means of Act 63 of 1984, under which it is an offence to demand dowry directly or indirectly from the parents or other relatives or guardian of a bride. The work "agreement" referred to in Section 2 has to be inferred on the facts and circumstances of each case. The interpretation that the accused seek, that conviction can only be if there is agreement for dowry, is misconceived. This would be contrary to the mandate and object of the Act. "Dowry" definition is to be interpreted with the other provision of the Act including Section 3, which refers to giving or taking dowry and Section 4 which deals with a penalty for demanding dowry; under the Act and the I.P.C. His makes it clear that even demand of dowry on other ingredients being satisfied is punishable. It is not always necessary that there be any agreement for dowry.

10. Section 113B of the Evidence Act is also relevant for the case at hand. Both Sections 304B I.P.C. And Section 113B of the Evidence Act were inserted as noted earlier by the dowry Prohibition (Amendment) Act 43 of 1986 with a view to combat the increasing menace of dowry deaths. Section 113B reads as follows:-

"113B: Presumption as to dowry death- When the question is whether a person has committed the dowry death of a woman and it is shown that soon before her death such woman has been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with any demand for dowry, the Court shall presume that such persons has caused the dowry death.

Explanation- For the purposes of this Section' dowry death ' shall has the same meaning as in Section 304B of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1976).

11. The necessity for insertion of the two provisions has been amply analyzed by the Law Commission of India in its 21st Report dated 10th August, 1988 on 'Dowry Deaths and Law Reform'. Keeping in view the impediment in the pre-existing law in securing evidence to prove dowry related death, legislature through it wise to insert a provision relating to presumption of dowry death on proof of certain essentials. It is in this background presumptive Section 113B in the Evidence Act has been inserted. As per the definition of 'Dowry death; in Section 304B I.P.C. And the wording in the presumptive Section 113 B of the Evidence Act, one of the essential ingredients, amongst other, in both the provisions in that the concerned woman must have been "soon before her death" subjected to cruelty or harassment for or in connection with the demand of dowry".Presumption under Section 113B is a presumption of law. On proof of the essentials mentioned there in, it becomes obligatory on the Court to raise a presumption that the accused caused the dowry death. The presumption shall be raised only on proof of the following essentials:

(1) The question before the Court must be whether the accused committed the dowry death of a woman. (This means that the presumption can be raised only if the accused is being tried for the offence under Section 304B I.P.C.

(2) The woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives.

(3) Such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with any demand for dowry.

(4) Such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death.

12. A conjoint of Section 113B of the Evidence Act and Section 304B I.P.C. shows that there must be material to show that soon before the death, the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment. Prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within the purview of the 'death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances'. The expression 'soon before' is very relevant where Section 113B if the Evidence Act and Section 304B I.P.C are pressed into service. Prosecution is obliged to show that soon before the occurrence there was cruelty or harassment and only in that case presumption operates. Evidence in that regard has to be let by prosecution. 'Soon before' is a relative term and it would depend upon circumstances of each case and no strait-jacket formula can be laid down as to what would be constitute a period of soon before the occurrence. It would be hazardous to indicate any fixed period, and that brings in the importance of a proximity test both for the proof of an offence of dowry death as well as for raising a presumption under Section 113B of the Evidence Act. The expression 'soon before her death' used in the substantive Section 304B of the Evidence Act. The expression 'soon before her death' used in the substantive Section 304B I.P.C. and Section 113B of the Evidence Act is present with the idea of proximity test. No definite period has been indicated and the expression 'soon before' is not defined. A reference to expression 'soon before' used in Section 114B Illustration (a) of the Evidence Act is relevant. It is lays down that Court may presume that a man who is in the possession of goods 'soon after' the theft, is either the thief or has received the goods knowing them to be stolen, unless he can account for his possession. The determination of a period which can come within the term 'soon before' is let to be determined by the Courts, depending upon facts and circumstances of each case. Suffice, however, to indicate that the expression 'soon before' would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the concerned cruelty or harassment and the death in question. There must be existence of a proximate and live-link between the effects of cruelty based on dowry demand and the concerned death. If alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not be disturb mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, it would be of no consequence."

13. In the aforesaid backdrop, perusal of the evidence available on record makes it crystal clear that neither there is evidence of unnatural death of the deceased nor there is any evidence of demand of additional dowry, nor there is any evidence of cruelty for demand of dowry "soon before her death".

14. Thus, on what has been said and discussed above, I find that the evidence of the witnesses have major contradictions and the prosecution story is shaky, unreliable, not worthy of credence. Thus, the prosecution has miserably failed to prove the case against the appellants and the appeal is liable to be allowed.

15. Accordingly the appeal is allowed.

16. The impugned judgment of conviction and sentence dated order dated 30.11.1996 passed by Special Judge, Unnao, in Sessions Trial No. 875 of 1994 (state vs. Rakesh and others), arising out of Case Crime No. 108 of 1994, under Sections 498A, 304B, 342, 201 I.P.C. and Section ¾ of the D.P. Act, Police Station Asiwah, District Unnao is hereby set aside.

17. The appellants of both the appeals namely Rakesh, Heera Lal, Rajaipal, Smt. Siya Dulari and Smt. Mina Devi are on bail. Their bail bonds are cancelled and the sureties are discharged. However, the appellants are directed to comply with the provision of Section 437-A Cr.P.C.

18. Let the copy of this judgment be sent to the trial court concerned for compliance.

THE HON'BLE MRS. RANJANA PANDYA, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 631 Of 1997

Ganga Singh & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellants:
Shri B.P. Srivastava, Shri Vikas Shukla

Counsel for Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Held –
Paragraph 1: The appeal challenges the judgment dated 15.10.1997 by the 3rd Additional Sessions Judge, Hardoi (ST No. 273 of 1994, arising from Crime No. 22 of 1993, PS Tandiyawan). Accused Ganga Singh, Jai Singh, and Arvind Singh were convicted under Section 394 IPC and sentenced to life imprisonment (noted as 7 years' rigorous imprisonment), with an additional 7 years under Section 397 IPC. Co-accused Darshan Singh was acquitted.
Paragraph 2: On the night of 24/25.01.1993 at around 12:30 AM, miscreants committed robbery at Chinta's house in Mardan Nagar. They caused injuries to Chinta, Baijnath, and Ram Prasad using deadly weapons. Chinta lodged the FIR at PS Tandiyawan on 25.01.1993 at 1:30 PM.
Paragraph 3: The FIR detailed that armed miscreants scaled the wall and looted the house. Witnesses recognized co-villagers Ganga Singh, Jai Singh, and Arvind Singh using torches and lathis. Ganga Singh fired at the witnesses while fleeing with looted items, injuring Chinta, Baij Nath, and Ram Prasad. Case Crime No. 22 of 1993 was registered, and the investigation commenced.
Paragraph 4: Medical examination of Chinta revealed superficial pellet abrasions on both legs, caused by a firearm; injuries were simple.
Paragraph 5: Medical examination of Baijnath showed 19 gunshot entry wounds on his left thigh and leg, caused by a firearm; injuries were simple.
Paragraph 6: Medical examination of Ram Prasad showed a lacerated wound near the right eye, caused by a hard, blunt object; injury was simple.
Paragraph 7: Following investigation, the Investigating Officer (IO) submitted the charge sheet against the accused.
Paragraph 8: Prosecution examined PW-1 Chinta (injured informant), PW-2 Ram Prasad (injured eye-witness), PW-3 Special Magistrate S.K. Nagar (proved Test Identification Parade report as Ext. Ka-2), and PW-4 Ram Yagya Singh (proved chik report Ext. Ka-3 and GD Ext. Ka-4).
Paragraph 9: PW-5 Ajeet Pratap Singh conducted later investigation (proved TIP report Ext. Ka-8). PW-6 Sub-Inspector Prem Pal Shukla (initial IO) detailed site inspection, recovery of empty cartridges, and arrests. PW-7 Girish Chand Yadav concluded the investigation and submitted the charge sheet (Ext. Ka-11). Accused denied charges under Section 313 Cr.P.C., alleging false implication, and examined DW-1 Sushil Kumar to prove enmity.

Paragraph 10: The Trial Court convicted and sentenced the appellants as stated in Para 1.

Paragraph 11: The High Court heard arguments from the defense counsel, the learned AGA for the State, and perused the trial court records.

Paragraph 12: Defense counsel argued that the trial court erred in convicting the appellants based on inadmissible and unreliable evidence, requesting the appeal be allowed.

Paragraph 13: The AGA contended that the conviction was well-founded on evidence, lacked illegality, and the appeal should be dismissed.

Paragraph 14–15: Defense reiterated that the conviction relied on unreliable evidence, while the State argued the judgment was supported by clinching evidence.

Paragraph 16: Accused Arvind Singh died during the pendency of the appeal; hence, the appeal abated against him and survived only for Ganga Singh and Jai Singh.

Paragraph 17: Defense raised three main points:

Delayed FIR renders the prosecution story doubtful.

Failure of the Trial Court to assess evidence correctly.

Witnesses were interested and inimical.

Delay in FIR: Defense argued a 13-hour delay for a 14 km distance indicates deliberation, citing Thulia Kali v. State of Tamil Nadu. The AGA countered that traveling 14 km with three injured cold-weather victims justified the time taken, citing Jitendra Kumar v. State of Haryana and Yakub Ismail Bhai Patel v. State of Gujarat. The High Court agreed with the State that the delay was satisfactorily explained given January weather and circumstances.

Assessment of Evidence: Defense argued there was no recovery of looted property, no detailed list of stolen items, and unmasked co-villagers committing robbery was unnatural (citing Sujit Biswas v. State of Assam and Shrishti Narain Jha v. Bindeshwar Jha). The High Court noted major contradictions: the IO denied being shown any torch light (contradicting PW-1), and no stolen property list was ever provided, making the identification and sequence of events highly doubtful.

Interested Witnesses: Defense claimed PW-1 and PW-2 were related and inimical. The Court reviewed legal precedents (Dalip Singh, Masalti, Guli Chand, Israr, Galivenkataiah, Sucha Singh, Ravi, S. Rayappa) establishing that relationship alone does not invalidate testimony, but requires cautious scrutiny.

Paragraph 18: The High Court held that while the injuries confirmed PW-1's and PW-2's presence, major inconsistencies, non-recovery of property, doubtful light sources, and contradictions with the IO made the prosecution case improbable.

Paragraph 19: The Court concluded that the conviction was not supported by sound and reliable evidence, giving the benefit of doubt to the appellants.

Paragraph 20: The appeal was allowed. The conviction of Ganga Singh and Jai Singh was set aside; bail bonds were canceled, and compliance with Section 437-A Cr.P.C. was ordered.

Paragraph 21: Ordered a copy of the judgment to be sent to the Trial Court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Ranjana Pandya, J.)

1. Challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 15.10.1997 passed by Third Additional Sessions Judge, Hardoi in ST No. 273 of 1994 (State Vs. Arvind Singh and others) arising out of Crime No. 22 of 1993 under Sections 394, 397 IPC, Police Station Tandiyawan, Hardoi whereby the accused persons were found guilty and sentenced. Accused Ganga Singh, Jai Singh and Arvind Singh were sentenced for life imprisonment of seven years' rigorous imprisonment under Section 394 IPC. Accused Ganga Singh, Jai Singh and Arvind Singh were further sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for seven years. By the impugned order accused Darshan Singh was not found guilty and was acquitted.

2. Filtering out unnecessary details the prosecution story in brief is that during the intervening night of 24/25 of January, 1993 at about 12:30 AM in the house of complainant Chinta situated in village Mardan Nagar, Police Station Tandiyawan, District Hardoi, the miscreants committed robbery. While doing dacoity they have voluntarily caused hurt to Chinta, Baijnath and Ram Prasad. At the time of committing dacoity/robbery the accused persons were armed with deadly weapons. Report of the occurrence was lodged by Chinta at Police Station Tandiyawan on 25.01.1993 at about 13:30 P.M.

3. In the report the informant mentioned that in the mid night the accused persons entered in his house by scaling the wall and began to loot and assault all the inhabitants. The nephew of informant namely Ram Prasad ran out of the house raising alarm at which the grand son of the informant Baij Nath, his son-in-law Rakesh armed with Lathis and torches rushed and recognized Ganga Singh, Jai Singh and Arvind Singh on spot. One of their companion could not be identified. Accused ran away with the looted property. When they were chased Ganga Singh opened fire at the approaching witnesses. The informant, his cousin Baij Nath and his nephew were injured. Utensils, clothes, ornaments and cash were taken away by the accused. On the basis of this report a case under Sections 394, 397 IPC at Case Crime No. 22 of 1993 was registered at the Police Station Tandiyawan, District Hardoi against the accused persons. Entries were made in the GD vide report No.14 at 13:30 P.M. on 25.01.1993. Investigating Officer visited the spot of occurrence and recorded the statements of witnesses. The injured were medically examined.

4. Injured Chinta received the following injuries:-

1. Superficial abrasions 0.2 cm x 0.2 cm thirteen in number scattered in the front of left leg, 25 cm from the knee joint. No pellets are palpable.

2. Superficial abrasion 0.2 cm x 0.2 cm on the right leg, lateral side, 12 cm below the knee joint two in number, Scattered area is 6.5 cm above from the first two abrasions.

Injury was simple in nature and caused by fire-arm.

5. On the body of injured Baijnath there were following injuries:-

1. Gunshot wound entry of 0.2 cm x 0.2 cm scattered in the front part of lower part of left thigh and indulges upper part of leg, 21 cm below from the knee joint and 12 cm above the knee joint, 19 in number, some pellets are palpable and advised for X-ray for confirmation.

Injuries were simple in nature caused by fire-arm.

6. Injured Ram Prasad sustained the following injuries :-

1. Lacerated wound 0.5 cm x 0.2 cm x skin deep on the outer part of right eye obliquely from upward to downward, margins irregular, colour red.

His injuries were simple in nature caused by hard blunt object.

7. Investigation was entrusted to the Investigating Officer who submitted the charge sheet against the accused persons.

8. The prosecution examined PW-1 Chinta who is also an injured witness. He proved the report as Ext. Ka-1. PW-2 is Ram Prasad. He is also an eye-witness being an injured witness. PW-3 is Special Magistrate S.K. Nagar, who conducted the Test Identification Parade. He proved the Test Identification report as Ext. Ka-2. PW-4 is Ram Yagya Singh who prepared the chik report which was proved as Ext. Ka-3 and copy of the GD as Ext. Ka-4.

9. PW-5 is Ajeet Pratap Singh who conducted the later part of the investigation. On 30.09.1993 the result of Test Identification Parade was received. The test identification report was proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-8. PW-6 is Sub Inspector, Prem Pal Shukla, who conducted the investigation. The case was registered in his presence on 25.01.1993. He copied the chik report and GD in the Case Diary. Thereafter, he recorded the statements of Baij Nath, Ram Prasad, Ganga Dei, Imali and Rakesh Kumar and inspected the place of occurrence. He further prepared the site plan which was proved by him as Ext. Ka-9. He collected the empty cartridges from the place of occurrence, prepared the recovery memo which was proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-10 On 27.01.1993 accused Jai Singh and Arvind Singh were arrested and their statements were recorded.

On 31.01.1993 after apprehending accused Ganga Singh, his statement was recorded. Name of accused Darshan Singh came into investigation during the statement of accused Ganga Singh. After this, this witness was transferred and investigation was entrusted to Sub-Inspector Girish Chand Yadav, PW-7 who concluded the investigation and submitted a charge sheet which was proved by him as Ext. Ka-11. After the aforesaid witnesses were examined by the prosecution, the Trial Court proceeded to record the statements of accused persons under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The accused stated that they had been falsely implicated. The accused further proceeded to examine DW-1 Sushil Kumar as defence witness, tried to prove the enmity of informant with the accused.

10. After hearing the arguments of the learned counsel for the parties and going through the record as well as evidence, the learned Trial Court proceeded to convict the accused appellants as narrated in para -1 of the judgment.

11. I have heard the learned counsel for accused appellants, learned AGA appearing for State and perused the lower Court record carefully.

12. The learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the learned Trial Court has erred in convicting and sentencing the appellants by impugned judgment and order, hence the same is liable to be set aside and the appeal deserves to be allowed.

13. On the contrary, the learned AGA has submitted that the impugned judgment and order convicting and sentencing the accused appellants is based on evidence available on record and does not suffer from any illegality or irregularity. He further submitted that the appeal has no merit and is liable to be dismissed.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that conviction of the appellants is bad in the eyes of law as the conviction is based on inadmissible and unreliable evidence.

15. Per contra, learned AGA appearing for the State has submitted that the learned Trial Court has based its judgment on clinching evidence and the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

16. During the pendency of appeal, accused Arvind Singh died, hence appeal as regards Arvind Singh stands abated and it survives only on behalf of accused Ganga Singh and Jai Singh.

17. The following points were raised by the learned counsel for appellants during the course of arguments:-

- First information report is delayed. Hence the whole prosecution story is doubtful.
- The Trial Court failed to assess the evidence in its correct perspective.
- All the witnesses are interested witness, hence too much weightless cannot be attached to their evidence.

• First information report is delayed. Hence the whole prosecution story is doubtful

Perusal of the chik report Ext. Ka-3 shows that the occurrence took place in the intervening night of 24/25 January, 1993 at about mid night. Report of the occurrence was lodged on 25.01.1993 at 01:30 PM. The distance of police station from the place of occurrence being 14 kilometers. Learned counsel for appellant had submitted that the surviving appellants are related to each other. They are residents of the same village. If occurrence would have been correct, the FIR would have been prompt. In its support the learned counsel for appellant has placed reliance on AIR 1973 SC 501, Thulia Kali Vs. State of Tamilnadu in which the Apex Court has laid down as under:-

"FIR in a criminal case is extremely vital and valuable piece of evidence for the purpose of corroborating the oral evidence adduced at the trial stage. The importance of first information report can hardly be over-estimated from the stand point of the accused. The object of insisting upon prompt lodging of the report to the police in respect of commission of an offence is to obtain early information regarding the circumstances in which the crime was committed, the names of the actual culprits and the part played by them as well as the names of eye witnesses present at the scene of occurrence. Delay in lodging the first information report quite often results in embellishment which is a creature of afterthought. On account of delay, the report not only gets bereft of the advantage of spontaneity but also danger creeps in of the introduction of coloured version, exaggerated account or concocted story as a result of deliberation and consultation. It is, therefore, essential that the delay in the lodging of the first information report should be satisfactorily explained."

Per contra, the learned AGA has submitted that lodging of the first information report depends upon many factors. In this case, there are three injured persons. The incident took place in the mid night. The police station was 14 kilometers from the place of occurrence. Hence, lodging of the incident after 12 hours cannot be said to be fatal for prosecution. In the first information report Ext. Ka-1 the informant has specified that he and his grandson sustained fire-arm injury and his nephew received Lathi injuries. Thereafter, the report was lodged.

The informant was produced as PW-1 who has categorically stated that after the incident in the morning, arrangements for conveyance were made, after which he went to the police station. Thus, this witness has tried to explain the reason for the time taken by him in reaching the police station with the injured persons. Here, reference may be made to the pronouncement of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Jitendra Kumar Vs. State of Haryana reported in (2012) 6 SCC 204 wherein Hon'ble Apex court has observed as under:

"The Court has also to consider the fact that the main purpose of the F.I.R. is to satisfy the police officer as to commission of a cognizable offence for him to conduct further investigation in accordance with law. The primary object is to set the criminal law into motion and it may not be possible to give every minute detail with unmistakable precision in the F.I.R. The F.I.R. itself is not the proof of a crime, but a piece of evidence which could be used for corroborating the case of the prosecution."

Learned AGA has submitted that it is well settled principle of law of criminal jurisprudence that mere delay in lodging the first information report may not prove fatal in all cases. Delay in lodging the first information report cannot be a ground by itself for throwing away the entire prosecution case. The Court has to seek an explanation for delay and check the truthfulness of version put forward. If the Court is satisfied, then, the case of the prosecution cannot collapse on this ground alone.

In the case of Yakub Ismail Bhai Patel Vs. State of Gujrat (2004) 12 SCC 229 and in a large number of other cases, it has been held that the Court has to act upon the testimony of witnesses. It is not the number, the quantity, but the quality that is material. The time-honoured principle is that evidence has to be weighed and not counted. On this principle stands the edifice of Section 134 of the Evidence Act. The test is whether the evidence has a ring of truth, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, or otherwise.

In the case in hand, the occurrence took place in the intervening night of 24/25th of January, 1993. Obviously the Court take note of the facts that nights in January are extremely cold and foggy. Besides, in the morning after covering a distance of 14 kilometers reaching police station with three injured persons at 1:30 PM cannot be termed to be delay in lodging the first information report. Thus, the argument advanced on behalf of the appellants that the report is delayed has no locus standi.

The Trial Court failed to assess the evidence in its correct perspective.

The learned counsel for accused appellants has further submitted that the learned Trial Court did not assess the evidence adduced by the prosecution correctly. The Trial Court failed to consider the fact that there was no recovery of looted articles. The evidence is silent as to the weapons being carried by the accused. Further, he has stated that prosecution case as set forth is highly improbable and indigestible because there is no reason why the accused appellants belonging to the same village and being known to the informant would enter the house of informant and would rob the articles without muffling their faces. In this regard, he has placed reliance on 2013 (82) ACC 467 Sujit Biswas Vs. State of Assam.

The prosecution witnesses have depicted that accused and the complainant were known to each other previously but the accused appellants had not muffled their faces. It has further come in evidence that the accused were recognized in the light of torches. He has further stated that when the Investigating Officer visited the spot, he was shown the torches, but admittedly the memo regarding the inspection of torches is not on record. Reliance has been placed on AIR 2010 SC 465 : Shrishti Narain Jha Vs. Bindeshwar Jha and others, wherein it has been held that after his long standing enmity between accused and informant there is the possibility of false implication which could not be ruled out. Though the Investigating Officer during investigation did not find any lantern or sign of any lantern. And it has been further held that it looks very unnatural that the accused would come to commit dacoity in the neighbourhood taking with them young boys.

Reverting back to the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution it has been submitted that PW-1 Chinta has stated in his cross-examination that when he reached the Police Station he met the Munshi (Clerk) there. I am reproducing the words stated by him before the Court – "मुंशी जी ने मुझसे कहा था यदि कसी पर शक सुवह हो तो बताओ।"

Further, this witness has stated that Baij Nath was holding a three cell torch and the cells were not changed for the four months although it was being used daily. In this regard, PW-6 Prem Pal has specifically stated that the informant and his family members did not show this witness any torch. Even Baij Nath did not show him any torch.

Learned AGA appearing for the State has submitted that for the sake of argument even if source of light is done minus from the prosecution case it has to be noted that since the accused and informant belong to the same village and the accused were very close to the informant and injured witnesses, it was not difficult for the accused to recognize and identify the accused persons by their voice, way of walking, standing etc. I think this argument is not very tenable in this particular case because if no light was present at the time of occurrence, then, a question would be raised as to how the accused could aim to fire at the informant and his family members without light. To aim a fire-arm also light would been needed as this is not a case of blank firing. PW-2 Ram Prasad was also given in the hands of defence for cross-examination, who stated that miscreants ran away with looted property. When the accused fled away, then, he raised hue and cry at which his uncle and other witnesses came. He has specified that miscreants had not covered their faces. He has tried to improve the prosecution story by saying that the miscreants had torches with which they were locating the articles. He could not state as to what valuables were taken by the miscreants at the time of occurrence.

In the first information report there is an averment that utensils, clothes, jewelery and cash were taken away by the accused but there were no details of the goods carried away by the accused. I do not loose the sight of the fact that this would not be mandatory at the time of lodging of the First Information Report but later on, a list of articles carried away by the miscreants could have been provided to the Investigating Officer which was not done by the informant. In the examination in chief of PW-1 namely Chinta there is not a whisper as to what articles were carried away by the accused. In cross-examination he has stated that his jewelery, cash, utensils and clothes were taken away by the accused which costed 10-15 thousands of rupees but there were many injured people, hence he could not submit the list with the first information report. But why this could not be done later, has not at all been explained by the prosecution and besides general allegations there are no specifications about the goods alleged to have been taken away by the accused persons. The informant namely Chinta who claims to be present at the time of occurrence has stated that at the time of occurrence, he was lying in his house. He reached the place of occurrence on the shrieks of his son. As soon as he reached the door of his house, the dacoits were coming out of his house. Suddenly, his cousin lit a torch at which the miscreants fired at the informant. He has further stated that the dacoits had fired at him from inside the house without opening the door. As I have said earlier the availability of torch is doubtful in as much as this witness PW-1 has stated that he showed the torch to the Investigating Officer, whereas the Investigating Officer has denied this fact. Thus, the prosecution story as stated by both the injured witnesses PW-1 Chinta and PW-2 does not corroborate the statements of each other and is improbable due to which benefit of doubt should definitely be given to the accused appellants.

All the witnesses are interested witness, hence much weight cannot be attached to their evidence.

Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that PW-1 Chinta and PW-2, Ram Prasad are interested witnesses, who are inimical to the accused, hence conviction cannot be based on the testimony of these two witnesses.

As per the first information report Ram Prasad injured, PW-2, is nephew of Chinta, the informant (injured), PW-1.

Learned counsel for State has vehemently controverted this argument stating that related witnesses would be the last persons to screen the real offender and to implicate the innocent falsely. He has further stated that the accused persons are not foreigners for them.

In the case of Dalip Singh and others Vs. State of Punjab (AIR 1953 SC 364), it has been laid down as under by the Hon'ble Apex Court:-

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause' for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

Observations of the Hon'ble Apex Court in Masalti and others Vs. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202, are worth mentioning:-

"But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how such evidence should be appreciated. Judicial approach has to be cautions in dealing with such evidence; but the plea that such evidence should be rejected because it is partisan cannot be accepted as correct."

The above decision has been followed in Guli Chand and others Vs. State of Rajasthan 1974 (3) SCC 698, in which Vadivelu Thevar vs. State of Madras AIR 1975 SC 614 was also relied upon. The following observations were made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Israr Vs. State of U.P. (2205 (51) ACC 113) in para-12 of the judgment are also important:-

"…….Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyze evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible."

The above position has been highlighted again the case of Galivenkataiah vs. State of A.P. 2008 (60) ACC 370, in which reference has been made to some other cases also. In this context, I may refer to the case of Sucha Singh and another vs. State of Punjab (2003) 7 SCC 643 wherein Their Lordships of the Hon'ble Apex Court observed as under:-

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause' for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

They further observed:-

"…….Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyze evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible."

In the case of Ravi vs. State of U.P. 2004 (11) SCC 266, the following observations have been made by the Apex Court :

"It is well settled in a catena of cases that the evidence of eye witnesses cannot be rejected merely because they are related. The relatives will not exonerate real culprits and falsely implicate others."

The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Andhra Pradesh vs. S. Rayappa and others, 2006 (1) AAR 259 (SC) dealing the evidence of related/interested witnesses has observed as under:

"…….By now it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as an interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons."

In para – 8 Their Lordships have further observed:

"……The relative witness is not necessarily an interested witness. On the other hand, being a close relation to the deceased they will try to prosecute the real culprit by stating the truth. There is no reason as to why a close relative will implicate and depose falsely against somebody and screen the real culprit to escape unpunished. The only requirement is that the testimony of the relative witnesses should be examined cautiously…."

18. I would not be hesitant in relying upon the testimony of Chinta, PW-1 and PW-2 Ram Prasad because at least their injuries indicate to some extent their presence on the scene of occurrence but inconsistencies and contradictions in the statements of both the witnesses and the statement of Investigating Officer coupled with documentary evidence on record makes the whole prosecution story doubtful and improbable.

19. Thus, on the basis what has been stated above, I conclude that conviction order of the Trial Court is not based on sound and reliable evidence. The appellants are entitled to the benefit of doubt.

20. The appeal is allowed as far as the appellants are concerned. The appellants are on bail. Their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. However, the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C. shall be complied with.

21. Let a copy of this judgment be sent to the Trial Court concerned.

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE ANIL KUMAR, J.
THE HON'BLE MRS. RANJANA PANDYA, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 914 Of 1982

Sadhu ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsels for the Appellant:
Shri Arun Sinha

Counsel for the Respondent:
G.A., Shri Anurag Singh

Held –

Para 1: The appeal challenged the judgment dated 12.11.1982 of the 5th Additional Sessions Judge, Lucknow, convicting Sadhu @ Ram Chandra under Section 302 IPC and sentencing him to life imprisonment.

Paras 2–3: The prosecution alleged that the deceased, Smt. Kundala @ Shanti, was the widow of the appellant's brother. The appellant and his brother allegedly wanted her property transferred to them and had also borrowed ₹3,000 from her. When she demanded repayment and refused to transfer the property, the appellant allegedly threatened her. On 26.05.1981, while she was eating outside her house with her daughters Sohana (PW-1) and Mohana (PW-2), the appellant and three armed companions arrived. The appellant and one companion fired at her, causing her death on the spot. The FIR was lodged the next morning, followed by investigation, inquest, recoveries, and submission of the charge-sheet.

Paras 4–7: The post-mortem revealed multiple firearm injuries, including entry and exit wounds. Two wads were recovered from the left lung. The doctor opined that the injuries were sufficient to cause death and could have been caused by gunfire, possibly by two shots. The medical evidence broadly supported the prosecution version.

Paras 8–10: The appellant was committed to the Sessions Court and charged under Section 302 IPC. He pleaded not guilty. The prosecution examined seven witnesses.

Paras 11–15: PW-1 Sohana and PW-2 Mohana were the principal eyewitnesses and also testified regarding motive. The remaining witnesses proved the inquest, recoveries, FIR, investigation, transportation of the body, and post-mortem report.

Paras 16–17: The appellant denied the prosecution case and pleaded false implication due to a property dispute. He also raised a plea of alibi, claiming that he was staying at his father-in-law's house in Unnao. He examined two defence witnesses.

Paras 18–20: The Trial Court convicted the appellant under Section 302 IPC. Aggrieved, he preferred the present appeal. The High Court heard both sides and examined the record.

Para 21 – Issues for Determination: The High Court considered three principal issues:
Whether the appellant had any motive to commit the murder;
Whether the prosecution witnesses were unreliable because they were interested/related witnesses; and
What consequence followed from the appellant having been declared a juvenile on the date of the offence.

Issue I – Motive
The Court held that the prosecution had established a specific motive from the beginning. The appellant allegedly wanted the deceased's property and had also failed to repay ₹3,000 borrowed from her. Both eyewitnesses supported this version. The Court observed that although motive assumes lesser importance where reliable direct eyewitness evidence exists, proof of motive nevertheless strengthens the prosecution case.

Issue II – Reliability of Related and Child Witnesses
The Court held that minor discrepancies or normal variations do not justify rejection of otherwise credible testimony. PW-1 and PW-2 were natural witnesses because they were the deceased's minor daughters and were present with her at their home at the time of the occurrence.
The Court further held that a relative is not automatically an "interested witness." The evidence of a close relative must be scrutinised carefully, but it cannot be discarded merely because of the relationship with the deceased.
Regarding the child witnesses, the Court noted that the Trial Court had tested their competence before recording their evidence. Their statements remained consistent despite extensive cross-examination and were supported by the medical evidence. Accordingly, the Court found their testimony trustworthy and held that the prosecution had proved the appellant's guilt beyond reasonable doubt.

Issue III – Juvenility of the Appellant
The appellant had been declared a juvenile on the date of the offence. The Court held that although his conviction could be maintained, his sentence had to be governed by the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000.
The Court referred to Sections 15, 16, 20 and 64 of the 2000 Act and observed that a juvenile could not be sentenced to imprisonment for life. The benefit of juvenility could also be extended in pending proceedings, including appeals, even where the accused had subsequently attained adulthood.

The Court noted the practical difficulty that the appellant was then about 53 years old and could neither appropriately be sent to a special home as a child nor imprisoned pursuant to a sentence prohibited by the Juvenile Justice Act. The Court also observed that the State Government should frame appropriate rules or make suitable arrangements for persons who were juveniles at the time of the offence but had attained majority by the time their cases were finally decided.

Paras 22–26: The Court reiterated the legal difficulty regarding the placement of persons who were juveniles at the time of the offence but had become adults by the time of final adjudication. It noted the absence of any identified special or shelter home for such persons and referred to an earlier direction suggesting that the State Government formulate specific rules.

Para 27: The Court held that the conviction of Sadhu was well-founded and required no interference.

Para 28: The conviction was maintained, but the sentence of life imprisonment was quashed because the appellant was a juvenile in conflict with law on the date of the offence and was entitled to the benefit of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2000.

Para 29: The appeal was partly allowed.

Para 30: The conviction of Sadhu under Section 302 IPC was upheld, but the sentence imposed by the Trial Court was set aside.

Para 31: The case record was directed to be placed before the concerned Juvenile Justice Board for passing an appropriate order regarding sentence/disposition in accordance with law.

Final Outcome
Conviction under Section 302 IPC: Upheld.
Life imprisonment: Set aside.
Appeal: Partly allowed.
Matter: Sent to the concerned Juvenile Justice Board for appropriate orders.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Ranjana Pandya, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 12.11.1982, passed by 5th Additional Sessions Judge, Lucknow, in S.T. No. 343 of 1981, under Section 302 I.P.C., P.S. Malihabad, District Lucknow, whereby the accused Sadhu @ Ram Chandra was found guilty and convicted under Section 302 and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

2. Prosecution case in brief is that One Changa, accused Sadhu and Pyare Lal Gosai husband of the deceased Smt. Kundala @ Shanti were the brothers that Pyare Lal had died about two and half years or three years before the incident which took place on 26.05.1981 that Pyare Lal has left behind him his wife the deceased and four daughters out of whom Km. Sohana is PW-1 and Smt. Mohana the complainant is PW-2, that after the death of Pyarey Lal, said Changa and accused Sadhu in order to grab the properties of Pyare Lal used to press the deceased to transfer it in their favour, that the deceased was not agreeable to proposal of the accused Sadhu and his brother Changa and in this respect an altercation used to take place between them that besides it Changa and accused Sadhu in order to purchase a pumping set has taken cash loan of Rs. 3000/- from the deceased Kundala, that the deceased had settle the marriage of the complainant Mohana PW-2 with the younger brother of the husband of the eldest daughter Smt. Kamla (not examined) in village Mohamaci, P.S. Shandila and thus prior to the incident the deceased Kundala demanded back the said loan amount from Changa and accused Sadhu, that both of them denied to pay the said amount and threatened to kill Smt. Kundala, that Changa and accused Sadhu had told to people of village also that they would kill Smt. Kundala if she would remain in the village and thereafter both of them has disappeared from the village.

3. It is further alleged that in the evening of the day of incident when the sun had not set Smt. Kundala along with her two daughters Km. Sohana PW-1 and Smt. Mohana PW-2 was sitting on the gate of her house and was taking food. The accused Sadhu accompanied with three other persons armed with guns came there and said to Km. Sohana PW-1 and Smt. Mohana PW-2 to get away, that the moment Smt. Mohana and Km. Sohana slightly moved away, the accused Sadhu fired his gun at Smt Kundala who after receiving the gun shot rolled down on the ground and then one of the companion of accused Sadhu also fired at Smt. Kundala. That Smt. Kundala died on the spot due to gun shot injuries received by her, that both the sisters Smt. Mohana and Km. Sohana began to raise alarm and on their hue and cry many people of village collected on the spot. That when the witnesses reached on the spot accused Sadhu and his companion ran away from the side of the door of the house of Gaya (not examined). That in the light of setting sun Smt. Mohana and Km. Sohana saw the accused and recognised Sadhu by name and other culprits were seen and recognized by their faces, that thereafter Smt. Mohana requested to three or four persons to lodge the report of the incident at police station, but as it had become dark and due to fear also none of them became ready to go to the police station at that time, that then in the morning of 22.05.1981 after leaving dead body under the custody of constables who has arrived on the spot Smt. Mohana accompanied with Chunni the village Chowkidar went to P.S. Malihabad, Lucknow which was at a distance of 10 miles from the spot and lodged oral report there at 08:15 A.M. Sri Kamta Prasad PW-4, was posted as Head Moharrir at P.S. Malihabad, who on the dictation of Smt. Mohana scribed the report and prepared the chik first information report Exhibit Ka-1, according to law and then he registered the case in the General Diary on report no. 14 at 08:15 A.M. dated 27.05.1981. Its copy is Exhibit Ka-11. Sri Srawan Singh S.I. PW-5 was then posted as Station Incharge of P.S. Malihabad. He received the investigation of the case on the same day i.e. 20.05.1981 and immediately went to the spot. S.I. B.K. Rai PW-3, S.I. S.P. Tripathi and S.I. K.S. Misra (both not examined) has accompanied the I.O. to the spot. On the spot S.I. B.K. Rai PW-3, on the instruction of the I.O. held inquest on the dead body and nominated the panches and obtained their opinion regarding the injuries present on the dead body of Smt. Kundala and then he prepared Panchayatnama Exhibit Ka-2 of the dead body according to rule. He further wrote letter Exhibit Ka-3 and Exhibit Ka-4 addressed to Chief Medical Officer, Lucknow for the post-mortem examination of the dead body and taking into possession of the dhoti material Exhibit -4 from the dead body. He then prepared diagram of the dead body, chalan of dead body, sample seal marked as Exhibit Ka-5, Ka-6 and Ka-7 respectively. He took in his possession the 8 glass bangles Exhibit Ka-5/1 to 5/8 and ornaments, two earnings Exhibit 6/1 and 6/2 and 1 nose nail Exhibit -7 from the dead body vide memo Exhibit Ka-8. He then took in his possession the blood stained earth and plain earth Exhibit 8 and Exhibit -9 and sealed them in two different dibbas and the spot and marked it as Exhibit Ka-9 before the witnesses. He also took in his possession one tikli of card board and one tikli of plastic of the wads and one was marked as Exhibit -10, Exhibit -11 and Exhibit -12 respectively, found on the spot and prepared its memo Exhibit Ka-10 and sealed them on the spot before the witnesses. Thereafter the sealed dead body of Smt Kundala was handed over to constable Umesh Chandra Tewari C.P. No. 2394 PW-6 at 12:10 P.M. on 27.05.1981 on the spot for getting the post-mortem examination of the dead body done, on the spot. The I.O. recorded the statements of the complainant Smt. Mohana, Km. Sohana and of the witnesses of Panchayatnama. The I.O. then inspected the place of occurrence and prepared its sit plan Exhibit Ka-12. Thereafter the I.O. came to know that accused Sadhu had surrendered in the court of Sri Raj Singh, Judicial Magistrate, Lucknow on 30.05.1981 and was sent to district jail, Lucknow. He then on 13.06.1981 went to jail and recorded his statement and on 15.07.1981 after concluding the investigation of the case, he submitted charge sheet Exhibit Ka-13 against accused Sadhu. PW-7 Dr. Ram Niwas was then posted as Medical Officer, Infection Disease Hospital, Lucknow. He conducted the autopsy of the dead body of Smt Kundala on 29.05.1981 at 05:30 P.M., and prepared post-mortem report Exhibit Ka-1, its carbon copy is also on record. The dead body of Smt. Kundala was brought in sealed condition by Umesh Chandra Tewari C.P. No. 2394 PW-6 in the mortuary and he has identified the dead body at the time of post-mortem examination:

Physical conditions: Deceased aged about 40 years. Well built body. Both eyes lids half opened. Eye ball opaque and protruded rigor mortise passed off. Abdomen distorted. Post-mortem blisters present. Post-mortem staining on back and buttocks skin peeling of at few places. Greenish discolouration of the abdomen veins at few places are prominent. Hairs could not be pulled out easily from the scalp. Tough prodruding.

4. The following ante-mortem injuries were found on the person of the deceased:

ii. Fire arm entrance would two in number 2 cm. apart on left upper back outer side situated 2 cm. back to the injury no. 1 Each would in 1 cm. X ¾ cm. X Muscle deep. No shots found from the would. Direction from left to right side.

iii. Fire arm entrance would 1 cm. X ¾ cm. X. muscles deep on left upper and outer chest situated 6 cm. below the injury no. 1. No shot recovered from the wound. Direction from left to right side.

iv. Fire arm exit would two in number each 1 cm. X ¾ cm. on right upper chest front and outer side situated 5 cm. below the right axilla, 2 cm. apart from each other.

5. On opening these woulds, communicate with the injury no. 1. The entrance would have 1 cerated and inverted margin abraded colers. Ringh present. The exit woulds have lacerated and inverted margins shots could not be traced out despite of internsive search. Two was taken out from the left lungs sent to Senior Superintendent of Police, Lucknow.

6. The doctor took out two wads Exhibit-2 and Exhibit 3 from the left lungs of the deceased and sealed them in the envelope and sent it to Sr. Superintendent of Police, Lucknow. He also took out the dhoti Exhibit -4 from the dead body of the deceased Smt. Kundala and sealed it and handed over to Constable Umesh Chandra Tewari, PW-6.

7. In the opinion of the doctor the injuries aforesaid were sufficient for the death of the deceased Smt. Kundala and they would have also possibly been caused by gun. He has further opined that the death of Smt. Kundala could have been caused on 26.09.1981 at the time of the setting sun and possibility of its being caused by two fires also could not be ruled out. In cross-examination, the doctor has stated that semi digested food was found in the stomach of the deceased. In reply to the defence question he has stated that he has not mentioned the presence of blackening and tattooing in the injuries no. 2 and 3 and has only mentioned about it in the injury no. 1. According to him since the injuries 2 and 3 were at a distance of 2 cm. from injury no. 1, hence it can safely be presumed about the presence of blackening and tattooing in injuries nos. 2 and 3 also. He has denied the suggestion given by the learned counsel for the accused that he did not mention the presence of blackening and tattooing in the injuries 2 and 3 because they were not present there at all. The doctor has further stated in his cross-examination that injury no. 1 could have been caused within four feet distance. He has further stated that there could ba a variation of 12 hours either way in the time of death as narrated by him. According to him the food takes 6 hours for its complete digestion, and if a person dies at the time when he was taking food then undigested food would be found. He has further stated that injury no. 5 contustion on the area of 12 cm. X 12 cm. On the left outer chest 22 cm. Above from the hip joining, could be caused by blunt object. He has further stated when asked by the court that the said injury could be caused even by fall on the hard substance. He has denied the defence question that injury no. 5 could have disappeared within three days. He has further stated that colour of contusion would keeps on changing for one week and then change begins after 6 hours from the time when it is caused. He has denied specific defence suggestion that the injuries aforesaid could have been caused by more than two fire arm shots.

8. Accused Sadhu was committed to court of session to stand his trial under Section 302 I.P.C. By Sri S. Chandra, Judicial Magistrate, Lucknow vide his order dated 19.08.1981.

9. The charge under Section 302 I.P.C. For committing the murder of Smt. Kundala @ Shanti by intentionally causing gun shot injuries to her on 26.05.1981 before sun set in village was framed against the accused Sadhu. The charge was read over and explained to the accused who pleased not guilty and claimed to be tried.

10. The prosecution in order to prove its case examined Km. Sohana PW-1, Smt. Mohana PW-2, Sri Virendra Kumar PW-3, Sri Kamla Prasad, H.C. PW-4, Sri Shrawan Singh PW-5, Sri Umesh Chandra Tewari Constable PW-6 and Dr. Ram Niwas PW-7.

11. Out of these prosecution witnesses, PW-1 Km. Sohana and PW-2 Smt. Mohana are the material witnesses whose testimony is the product of their direct sensory perception. Both of them have stated about the incident. They have stated about the motive also, of the crime committed by the accused Sadhu. PW-3 Sri Virendra Kumar is Sub-Inspector and was posted at P.S. Malihabad, Lucknow when the incident had taken place. He had accompanied with the I.O. Of the case on the place of incident and there on the instruction of the I.O. He held inquest on the dead body and had prepared inquest report, wrote two letters to the Chief Medical Officer, Lucknow for conducting the post-mortem examination of dead body and also to take in his possession the dhoti worn by the deceased. He has further prepared diagram of the dead body, chalan of dead body, sample seal and memo of ornaments and glass bangles taken in his possession from the dead body of deceased, memo of blood stained earth and plain earth taken from the spot duly sealed by him. Memo pellets and card board and plastic was recovered on the spot. He has proved the said documents and they have been marked Exhibit Ka-2 to Ka-10 respectively.

12. Kamta Prasad, Head Constable wrote the chik FIR Exhibit Ka-1 and registered the case at the police station on its basis in the general diary on report no. 14 at 08:15 A.M. Dated 27.08.1981. He has proved its copy as Exhibit Ka-11.

13. PW-5 Sri Swaran Singh, S.I. is the I.O. of the case. He has stated about the investigation and has proved the site plan Exhibit Ka-12 and charge sheet as Exhibit Ka-13.

14. PW-6 Umesh Chandra Tewari is the Constable and he was posted Malihabad, Lucknow at the time of incident. He carried the dead body of Smt. Kundala to Mortuary of Medical College, Lucknow for its port-mortem examination and he had identified it before the doctor at the time of post-mortem examination.

15. PW-7 Dr. Ram Niwas has conducted the post-mortem examination of the dead body of Smt. Kundala. He has furnished the medical evidence and has proved the post-mortem examination report Exhibit Ka-14.

16. The accused Sadhu has denied the prosecution case regarding the incident and his participation. He has, however, admitted that he is the uncle of complainant Smt. Mohana. He has pleaded that the husbands of Smt. Mohana and Sohana wanted to take his properties and thus under their influence he has been falsely implicated in the case by the complainant. He has further taken the plea of his alibi. He has stated that on the date of incident he was staying in the outset of his father in law Sri Badloo at Unnao. According to him after the death of the husband of Smt. Kundala all the properties attending in his name were got transferred in the name of deceased Smt. Kundala at the instance of the accused Sadhu and his brother Changa. He has denied to have taken any cash loan of Rs. 3000/- for the purchasing of any pumping set etc. from the deceased Smt. Kundala. He has stated that Rs. 9000/- of the deceased Smt. Kundala was remained in deposit in the Post Office of Rahimabad Lucknow in her name at the time of incident and there was no necessity of any money to the deceased Smt. Kundala. The said money deposited in the Post Office was withdrawn by Avdhesh and Suresh husband of Smt. Mohana and Smt. Sohana from the Post Office after her death.

17. After close of the prosecution case, the statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in which he denied the occurrence. He has further stated that he has been falsely implicated in this case and in his defence he has produced DW-1 Badlu and DW-2 Kailash Chandra.

18. The learned trial court after hearing the argument of both the parties and perusing the record convicted the appellant as specified in para 1 of the judgment.

19. Feeling aggrieved, the accused has preferred this present appeal.

20. We have heard Sri Arun Sinha, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Sharad Dixit, learned A.G.A. and perused the material available on record.

21. During the course of argument the following issued were raised for determination:-

(1) There is no motive for the present appellant to commit the offence.

(2) The witnesses produced by the prosecution are interested witnesses, hence, they cannot be relied upon.

(3) The appellant Sadhu has been declared juvenile on the date of the incident, hence he has to be dealt with according to the provisions of Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection) Act, 2000.

(1) There is no motive for the present appellant to commit the offence:-

It has been contended on behalf of the appellant that there was no motive for the present appellant to commit the offence and in such a case, where the prosecution has not come up with the motive, the prosecution case stands shattered.

Perusal of the first information report goes to show that even in the first information report which was orally lodged by Mohana who was minor at the time of lodging of the first information report. She has categorically stated that after the death of her father, the accused appellant wanted the deceased to transfer all her immovable property to the accused. Besides, it has also been mentioned that the accused had borrowed Rs. 3000/- from the deceased and the deceased was demanding back her money, due to these two reasons, the accused committed the crime. Although in cases of direct evidence, motive looses its value but in the present case, the prosecution has come up with the specific motive for the accused to commit the crime. PW-2 is the complainant and even the eye witness. She was aged about 12-13 years at the time when her statement been recorded. She categorically stated that her mother did not want to give her husband's property to the accused appellant, besides, the deceased also asked the accused to return back Rs. 3000/- due to which the accused had threatened the deceased and the eye witness namely Sohana who was only 8 years at the time of her statement was recorded has stated that the accused has borrowed Rs. 3000/- from her mother which was demanded back by the deceased besides she has also stated that the accused wanted the deceased to transfer his immovable property in his name for which the deceased was not agreeable. Due to these two reasons, the accused appellant murdered her mother.

Motive is a double edged weapon which on one side proposes the accused to commit the crime and on the other hand it helps in falsely robing the accused in the case. Each persons reacts differently under given circumstances.

Murder can be committed even on very triable issues. A set pattern cannot be laid down as to how and in what manner a person would react and go to what extent to achieve the motive in the commission of the crime under particular circumstances because it is not possible to measure the extent of his feelings, sentiments and reactions as may be, who under frustration or on mere possibility may take the decision to commit the crime. After all, motive is a psychological phenomena to translate the mental deposition of the accused. In the present case, the motive for the accused to kill the deceased has been mentioned in the first information report.

Per contra Sri Sharad Dixit, learned A.G.A. has submitted that although, there is direct evidence in the case but still since the inception of the first information report, the prosecution has come up with the clear case of motive which has been proved, even by both the witnessed. However, proof of motive recedes into the background in cases where the prosecution relies upon eye witness account of the occurrence. This is because if the Court upon a proper appraisal of the deposition of eye witnesses case to the conclusion that the version given by them is credible. Conversely, even if the prosecution succeeds in establishing strong motive for the commission of the offence, the evidence of eye witnesses if found unreliable or unworthy of credit, the existence of motive does not by itself provide the safe basis for convicting the accused. That does not given that proof of motive even in a case which rests on an eye witness account does not lend strength to the prosecution case to fortify the court in its ultimate conclusion and thus proof of motive in such a situation certainly helps prosecution and supports eye witnesses. In the present case, the prosecution while mentioning the motive for the offence in the first information report has also adduced evidence to the effect. The evidence of PW-1 Sohana and PW-2 Mohana is unblemished, consistent and worthy of credit. Both these child witnesses were given in the hands of the defence for cross-examination and extensive fishing cross-examination was done to discreet their testimony but there is nothing in the cross-examination of these witnesses which would render them to be unreliable witnesses. Thus, there is ample evidence on record to show that the present appellant Sadhu has sufficient motive to commit the offence.

(ii) The witnesses produced by the prosecution are interested witnesses, hence they cannot be relied upon

In State of U.P. vs. Naresh, (2011) 4 SCC 324, the Hon'ble Apex Court after considering the large number of its earlier judgments held as under:-

"In all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observation, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Where the omissions amount to a contradiction, creating a serious doubt about the truthfulness of the witness and other witnesses also make material improvement while deposing in the court, such evidence cannot be safe to rely upon. However, minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. The court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witness and record a finding as to whether his deposition inspires confidence.

Exaggerations per se do not render the evidence brittle. But it can be one of the factors to test credibility of the prosecution version, when the entire evidence is put in a crucible for being tested on the touchstone of credibility.

Therefore, mere marginal variations in the statements of a witness cannot be dubbed as improvements as the same may be elaborations of the statement made by the witness earlier. The omissions which amount to contradictions in material particulars i.e. go to the root of the case/materially affect the trial or core of the prosecution's case, render the testimony of the witness liable to be discredited."

No doubt, PW-1 Sohana and PW-2 Mohana are real sisters and are real daughters of the deceased but who can be the better witness than the minor daughters, who are expected to be present with their mother at their house, where the sun was about to set.

In (2006) 4 Supreme Court Cases, 512 (State of A.P. vs. S. Rayappa and others), the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

"Testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as an interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons. On the contrary, invariably the public is reluctant to appear and depose before the court especially in criminal case because of varied reasons. Criminal cases are kept dragging for years to come and the witnesses are a harassed lot. They are being threatened, intimidated and at the top of all they are subjected to lengthy cross-examination. In such a situation, the only natural witness available to the prosecution would be the relative witness. The relative witness is not necessarily an interested witness. On the other hand, being a close relation to the deceased they will try to prosecute the real culprit by stating the truth. There is no reason as to why a close relative will implicate and depose falsely against somebody and screen the real culprit to escape unpunished. The only requirement is that the testimony of the relative witnesses should be examined cautiously."

Perusal of the record shows that the testimony of PW-1 Sohana and PW-2 Mohana have been put to a very close cross-examination. Attempt was also made to discreet their testimony as to how the deceased fell down after the incident. But this attempt went in vain.

We fail to appreciate how a rustic, uneducated villager can be cross-examined in this manner to discredit his testimony. It would be too much to expect a photogenic explanation of the occurrence because conception of every person is different and courts are liable to commit mistake by loosing sight of their rural background.

It is well settled that the criminal court should not expect a set reaction from the eye witness on seeing an incident like murder and minor contradictions are likely to occur in the statement of truthful witness. The testimony of eye witness should only be rejected if it is so improbable and so inconceivable from any human being pitted in such a situation.

It has to be kept in mind that both the eye witnesses PW-1 Sohana and PW-2 Mohana are child witnesses.

In Panchi vs. State of U.P., (1998) 7 SCC 177, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as follows:-

"The evidence of a child witness cannot be rejected. Outrightly evidence must evaluated carefully and with greater circumspection because a child is susceptible to swayed by what other told him and thus a child witness is an easy prey to tutoring."

In the same context in 1997 (5) SCC 341, Dattu Ramrao Sakhare vs. State of Maharashtra, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

"A child witness, if found competend to depose to the facts can reliable one. Such evidence could be the basis of conviction in other words, even in the absence of oath, the evidence of child witness can be considered under Section 118 of the Evidence Act, provided that such witness is able to understand the answers thereof. The evidence of a child witness and credibility thereof, would depend upon the circumstances of each case. The only precaution which the court should bear in mind while assessing the evidence of a child witness is that the witness must be a reliable one and his / her demeanour must be like any other competent witness and there is no likelihood of being tutored."

We have critically examined the evidence of PW-1 Sohana and PW-2 Mohana but there is nothing on record to turn the evidence of these witnesses as unworthy of credit. Besides, perusal of the record shows that before the statement of the witness was recorded, the trial court in its wisdom put certain questions to both the child witnesses and gave specific findings about both the witnesses that they were capable of understanding the sanctity of oath and were capable of giving their statement before the court. Besides another fact, it is very relevant in this case is that the father of the witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 had already died. The mother of the same witnesses was murdered by the accuses appellant. The informant and her sister had no axe to grind against the accused. There was nothing on behalf of the accused to suggest that any third person had tutored the eye witnesses, hence the statements of the eye witnesses PW-1 Sohana and PW-2 Mohana being consistent, trustworthy and in consonance with the medical evidence.

We conclude that the prosecution has successfully proved the prosecution case beyond all reasonable doubts.

(iii) The appellant Sadhu has been declared juvenile on the date of the incident, hence he has to be dealt with according to the provisions of Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection) Act, 2000 :-

Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the appellant has been declared juvenile by the Juvenile Justice Board, Lucknow. It has further been submitted that since as per report of Juvenile Justice Board, Lucknow, the accused appellant Sadhu was juvenile on the date of the occurrence, hence no useful purpose would be served in sending the accused appellant in jail now. It has further been submitted that presently even as per the statement of the accused recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the accused appellant Sadhu has stated his age to be 19 years in the year 1982. Although, the age as stated by the accused is not conclusive and the Juvenile Justice Board has already declared him to be minor on the date of occurrence, is presently about 53 years of age.

He can neither be sent to the children home as presently he is not a minor nor he can be sent to the jail, since at the time of commission of the offence, he was minor. Hence, keeping in view, all the circumstances of the case, the accused appellant Ram Saran be set at liberty. Learned A.G.A. has also not disputed this fact.

How the accused has to be dealt with, is now a matter of consideration before this court.

The order that may be passed regarding juvenile has been specified in Section 15 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 which reads as under:-

"15. Order that may be passed regarding juvenile*- (1) Where a Board is satisfied on inquiry that a juvenile has committed an offence, then, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any other law for the time being in force, the Board may, if it so thinks fit,-*

(a) allow the juvenile to go home after advice or admonition following appropriate inquiry against and counselling to the parent or the guardian and the juvenile;

(b) direct the juvenile to participate in group counselling and similar activities;

(c) order the juvenile to perform community service;

(d) order the parent of the juvenile or the juvenile himself to pay a fine, if he is over fourteen years of age and earns money;

(e)direct the juvenile to be released on probation of good conduct and placed under the care of any parent, guardian or other fit person, on such parent, guardian or other fit person executing a bond, with or without surety, as the Board may require, for the good behaviour and well-being of the juvenile for any period not exceeding three years;

(f) direct the juvenile to be released on probation of good conduct and placed under the care of any fit institution for the good behaviour and well-being of the juvenile for any period not exceeding three years;

1[(g) make an order directing the juvenile to be sent to a special home for a period of three years:

Provided that the Board may, if it is satisfied that having regard to the nature of the offence and the circumstances of the case, it is expedient so to do, for reasons to be recorded, reduce the period of stay to such period as it thinks fit.]

(2) The Board shall obtain the social investigation report on juvenile either through a probation officer or a recognised voluntary organisation or otherwise, and shall take into consideration the findings of such report before passing an order.

(3) Where an order under clause (d), clause € or clause (f) of sub-section (1) is made, the Board may, if it is of opinion that in the interests of the juvenile and of the public, it is expedient so to do, in addition make an order that the juvenile in conflict with law shall remain under the supervision of a probation officer named in the order during such period, not exceeding three years as may be specified therein, and may in such supervision order impose such conditions as it deems necessary for the due supervision of the juvenile in conflict with law: Provided that if at any time afterwards it appears to the Board on receiving a report from the probation officer or otherwise, that the juvenile in conflict with law has not been of good behaviour during the period of supervision or that the fit institution under whose care the juvenile was placed is no longer able or willing to ensure the good behaviour and well-being of the juvenile it may, after making such inquiry as it deems fit, order the juvenile in conflict with law to be sent to a special home.

(4) The Board shall while making a supervision order under sub-section (3), explain to the juvenile and the parent, guardian or other fit person or fit institution, as the case may be, under whose care the juvenile has been placed, the terms and conditions of the order and shall forthwith furnish one copy of the supervision order to the juvenile, the parent, guardian or other fit person or fit institution, as the case may be, the sureties, if any, and the Probation officer."

Section 16 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 reads as under:-

"(1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any other law for the time being in force, no juvenile in conflict with law shall be sentenced to death 1[or imprisonment for any term which may extend to imprisonment for life], or committed to prison in default of payment of fine or in default of furnishing security."

Section 15 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 restricts the period of detention of a juvenile for not exceeding three years.

Counsel for the appellants has placed reliance upon (2009) 14 Supreme Court Cases 187, (Isatish alias Dhanna vs. State of Madhya Pradesh and others) in which it has been laid down that the benefit of the act should be extended to the accused appellant who was a minor on the date of occurrence. It has further been held that at this distant point of time to refer the appellant to the Juvenile Justice Board would not be proper and in the aforesaid case the appellant was ordered to be released.

Thus, there is no doubt that the appellant cannot be compelled to undergo detention otherwise then provided under Section 15 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000.

Hon'ble Apex Court in Criminal Appeal No. 210 of 2005 (Pratap Singh vs. State of Jharkhand and Anr.), a judgment delivered on 02.02.2005 by the Bench of five Hon'ble Judges in which it has been held as under:-

"26. Special provision in respect of pending cases.- Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any court in any area on the date on which this Act comes into force in that area, shall be continued in that court as if this Act had not been passed and if the court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, forward the juvenile to the Juvenile Court which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile in accordance with the provisions of this Act as if it had been satisfied on inquiry under this Act that the juvenile has committed the offence."

Section 20 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 reads as under:-

"20. Special provision in respect of pending cases.—Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any court in any area on the date on which this Act comes into force in that area, shall be continued in that court as if this Act had not been passed and if the court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, forward the juvenile to the Board which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile in accordance with the provisions of this Act as if it had been satisfied on inquiry under this Act that a juvenile has committed the offence. 1[Provided that the Board may, for any adequate and special reason to be mentioned in the order, review the case and pass appropriate order in the interest of such juvenile."

Section 64 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 provides that where a juvenile is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment at the commencement of this Act, shall, in lieu of undergoing such sentence, be sent to a special home or be kept in fit institution. Thus, provision show that even in cases where a mere inquiry is commenced or even where a juvenile has been sentenced a provision of 2000 Act would apply. Therefore, Section 20 of the Act 2000 is to be appreciated in the context of the aforesaid provisions.

Section 20 of the Act as quoted above deals with the special provision in respect of pending cases and begins with non-obstante clause. The sentence "Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, all proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any Court in any area on date of which this Act came into force" has great significance. The proceedings in respect of a juvenile pending in any court referred to in Section 20 of the Act is relatable to proceedings initiated before the 2000 Act came into force and which are pending when the 2000 Act came into force. The term "any court" would include even ordinary criminal courts. If the person was a "juvenile" under the 1986 Act the proceedings would not be pending in criminal courts. They would be pending in criminal courts only if the boy had crossed 16 years or girl had crossed 18 years. This shows that Section 20 refers to cases where a person had ceased to be a juvenile under the 1986 Act but had not yet crossed the age of 18 years then the pending case shall continue in that Court as if the 2000 Act has not been passed and if the Court finds that the juvenile has committed an offence, it shall record such finding and instead of passing any sentence in respect of the juvenile, shall forward the juvenile to the Board which shall pass orders in respect of that juvenile.

Thus, we conclude that although conviction of the appellant has been confirmed but as regards sentence is concerned, he should be dealt with under the provisions of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000

In (2013) 7 Supreme Court Cases 705, (Salil Bali vs. Union of India and another), the Hon'ble Apex Court has specified its concern about punishment as regards juvenile is concerned. It has been mentioned in the aforesaid judgment as under:-

"One misunderstanding of the law relating to the sentencing of the juveniles, needs to be corrected. The general understanding of a sentence that can be awarded to a juvenile under Section 15(1)(g) of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, prior to its amendment in 2006, is that after attaining the age of eighteen years, a juvenile who is found guilty of the heinous offence is allowed to go free. Section 15(1)(g), as it stood before the amendment came into effect from 22.08.2006, reads as follows:

"15. (1)(g) make as order directing the juvenile to be sent to a special home for a period of three years:

- In the case of juvenile, over seventeen years but less than eighteen years of age for a period of not less than two years;

- In case of any other juvenile for the period until he ceases to be a juvenile:

Provided that the Board may, if it is satisfied that having regard to the nature of the offence and the circumstances of the case it is expedient so to do, for reason to be recorded, reduce the period of stay to such period as it thinks fit."

It was generally perceived that a juvenile was free to go, even if he had committed a heinous crime, when he ceased to be a juvenile. The said understanding needs to be clarified on account of the amendment which came into force with effect from 22.08.2006, as a result whereof Section 15(1)(g) now reads as follows:

"15. (1)(g) make an order directing the juvenile to be sent to a special home for a period of three years:

Provided that the Board may, if it is satisfied that having regard to the nature of the offence and the circumstances of the case, it is expedient so to do, for reasons to be recorded, reduce the period of stay to such period as it thinks fit."

The aforesaid amendment now makes it clear that even if a juvenile attains the age of eighteen years within a period of one year he would still have to undergo a sentence of three years, which could spill beyond the period of one year when he attained majority."

We have been informed by the learned A.G.A. That there is no special home for detaining a juvenile in conflict with law after he becomes major. We did not loose sight of the fact that the essence of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 is restorative and not retributive, providing for rehabilitation and reintegration of children in conflict with law into mainstream society, instead of becoming hardened criminal in future. Thus by reason of legal friction, a person, although not a juvenile has to be treated to be one by the Board for the purpose of sentencing, which takes care of a situation that the person although not a juvenile but still would be treated as such under Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 for the said limited purpose.

From a plain reading the explanation of Section 20 is that unless pending cases, which would include not only trial but even subsequent proceeding by way of revision or appeal etc, the determination of juvenility of a juvenile has to be in terms of Clause (l) of Section 2 of the Act.

"11. It is plain from the language of the Explanation to Section 20 that in all pending cases, which would include not only trials but even subsequent proceedings by way of revision or appeal, etc., the determination of juvenility of a juvenile has to be in terms of Clause (l) of Section 2, even if the juvenile ceases to be a juvenile on or before 1st April, 2001, when the Act of 2000 came into force, and the provisions of the Act would apply as if the said provision had been in force for all purposes and for all material times when the alleged offence was committed. Clause (l) of Section 2 of the Act of 2000 provides that "juvenile in conflict with law" means a "juvenile" who is alleged to have committed an offence and has not completed eighteenth year of age as on the date of commission of such offence. Section 20 also enables the Court to consider and determine the juvenility of a person even after conviction by the regular Court and also empowers the Court, while maintaining the conviction, to set aside the sentence imposed and forward the case to the Juvenile Justice Board concerned for passing sentence in accordance with the provisions of the Act of 2000."

A question crops up as to how the juvenile in conflict with law who was a juvenile at the time of occurrence but who has subsequently attained the majority and is about 53 years of age shall be dealt with. As informed by learned A.G.A., there is no special home for such people who are convicted but have ceased to be a juvenile.

Perusal of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 under Section 15(1)(g) the board may if it thinks fit, make an order directing the juvenile be sent to a special home for a period of three years although according to the provisions, the period of stay can also be reduced. Besides other orders which can be passed under Section 15 by the Board. But according to Section 16, the period of detention so ordered shall not exceed in any case three years. However, provision of Section 20 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 empowers the Board for any adequate and special reason to be mentioned in the order, review the case and pass appropriate order in the interest of such juvenile.

22. The law as it stands today is that the juvenile Justice Board cannot send a juvenile as he was at the time of occurrence who has subsequently attained majority to the special home nor the Board is empowered to send a person who was juvenile at the time of occurrence to jail. The question arises as to where such a person has to be sent.

23. The act has empowered the State Government to make rules under this act for the management of children.

24. Section 37 enables the State Government to recognize, reputed and capable voluntary organization as shelter home.

25. Thus, the State Government to consider to make specific rules as to where such juveniles who have attained majority should be kept in case their conviction is upheld.

26. We inquired from learned A.G.A., whether there were any such shelter homes, where the accused could be kept, but learned A.G.A. could not pointout any such shelter home. In Criminal Appeal No. 529 of 1982 (Shiv Govind @ Surat & Others vs. State), the another Bench of this Court had observed in para 22 that the State Government shouls consider to make specific rules as to where such juveniles who have subsequently attend majority should be kept, in cases their conviction upheld but it appears that nothing was done in the matter.

27. Thus, we conclude that conviction qua the appellant Sadhu is well founded and needs no interference.

28. The conviction of the accused Sadhu is sustained, however, the punishment of life sentence imposed on him is quashed since on the date when the offence was committed, the accused appellant Sadhu was a juvenile in conflict with law, thus, he is entitled to the benefit of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000.

29. In the aforesaid terms, the appeal is partly allowed.

30. The conviction of Sadhu is upheld but sentence awarded by the court below is accordingly set aside.

31. Let the case record be placed before the concerned Juvenile Justice Board for awarding appropriate sentence.

Held –

Paragraph 1: The High Court notes that both criminal appeals stem from a common judgment and are being heard and decided together.
Paragraph 2: Mentions the appearance of learned counsel representing the appellants (Sri Subodh Chandra Shukla for Sonu @ Shashank Tiwari and Sri R.N. Gupta for Rahul Mishra @ Chulbul Mishra) and the state (Sri Sharad Dixit, Additional Government Advocate).
Paragraph 3: Details the appeal against the trial court's judgment (dated Oct 4, 2005) which convicted Rahul Mishra under Sections 302/34 IPC (life imprisonment) and 394/34 IPC (10 years RI), and Sonu @ Shashank Tiwari under Section 302 IPC (life imprisonment), 394/34 IPC (10 years RI), and 411 IPC (2 years RI), with sentences running concurrently.
Paragraph 4: Summarizes the prosecution case: On Feb 14, 2000, two motorcycle-borne assailants intercepted Suresh Chandra Mishra and complainant Ashok Kumar Tiwari. They looted a suitcase containing ₹4,00,000, shot Suresh Chandra Mishra (who later succumbed to his injuries), and an FIR (Case Crime No. 86/2000) was lodged at P.S. Kotwali Nagar.
Paragraph 5: Outlines the initial investigation steps, including the inquest, postmortem examination revealing death by firearm injury, and the victim's dying statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C.
Paragraph 6: Details the arrest of Rahul Mishra on Feb 16, 2000, leading to the recovery of the motorcycle used in the crime and the looted suitcase (containing bricks) from a well based on his confession.
Paragraph 7: Details the arrest of Sonu Tiwari on Feb 18, 2000, leading to the recovery of a country-made pistol, ₹1,40,000 cash with a "Mishra Automobile" slip, and an additional ₹40,000 at his pointing out.

Paragraph 8: Covers procedural completion: preparation of site plans, witness statements, identification parade (where witnesses identified the accused), and filing of the charge sheet under Sections 302, 394, and 411 IPC.
Paragraph 9: Summarizes the 10 prosecution witnesses presented, highlighting key testimonies from eye-witnesses (P.W. 2, P.W. 5) and the medical doctor (P.W. 7) who confirmed the entry/exit firearm wounds causing death.
Paragraph 10: Details the Section 313 Cr.P.C. statements of the accused, who claimed false implication due to local enmity.
Paragraph 11: Outlines the defense evidence given by D.W. 1 (Asha Ojha), who claimed Sonu was taken from her home without any recovery made on his pointing out.
Paragraph 12: Notes that after evaluating the evidence, the trial court convicted and sentenced both accused.
Paragraph 13: Notes the filing of separate appeals against the trial court's conviction.
Paragraph 14: Notes that the appellants' counsel did not press the appeals on merit but prayed for remission of sentence considering they had been incarcerated since February 2000.
Paragraph 15: Reaffirms the duty of the First Appellate Court to re-appreciate the trial evidence.
Paragraph 16: Re-evaluates P.W. 7's medical evidence confirming death by firearm injury during the robbery.
Paragraph 17: Notes that a co-accused (Edu @ Ateek) was absconding and not tried alongside the appellants.
Paragraph 18: Clarifies the specific roles: Sonu Tiwari was the shooter, while Rahul Mishra drove/followed in a jeep to protect the shooter, sharing common intention under Section 34 IPC.
Paragraph 19: Highlights P.W. 2's eye-witness testimony identifying Sonu Tiwari as the pillion rider who shot the deceased.
Paragraph 20: Highlights P.W. 2's identification of Rahul Mishra driving the supporting jeep.
Paragraph 21: Details P.W. 3's testimony regarding the recovery of the suitcase from the well and cash from Sonu Tiwari.
Paragraph 22: Mentions testimony from recovery witnesses (P.W. 4), the scribe/eyewitness (P.W. 5), and the Investigating Officer (P.W. 6).
Paragraph 23: Notes testimony from Executive Magistrate (P.W. 9) confirming valid identification parade proceedings, along with formal witnesses.
Paragraph 24: Concludes that the prosecution successfully proved the charges beyond reasonable doubt with no material discrepancies, affirming the conviction.
Paragraph 25: Transitions to evaluating the second argument regarding sentence modification/remission.
Paragraph 26: Recalls the life imprisonment sentence imposed under Section 302 IPC.
Paragraph 27: Cites the Supreme Court precedent in Sangeet and Another Vs. State of Haryana (2013) regarding statutory guidelines, executive powers, and Section 433-A restrictions for remissions under Section 432 Cr.P.C.
Paragraph 28: Concludes that directions should be issued to forward the appellants' remission proposals to the competent authority.
Paragraph 29: Dismisses the appeals on merit while directing the Jail Superintendent to immediately send remission proposals to the appropriate authority for expeditious consideration according to law.
Paragraph 30: Directs the court office to certify the order to the trial court and transmit lower court records immediately.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anil Kumar Srivastava-II, J.)

1. Since both the criminal appeals arise out of the common judgment, therefore, the same are being heard and decided together by a common judgment.

2. Heard Sri Subodh Chandra Shukla for the appellant/ Sonu @ Shashank Tiwari in Criminal Appeal no.1523 of 2005 and Sri R.N.Gupta, learned counsel for appellant/ Rahul Mishra @ Chulbul Mishra in Criminal Appeal No.1388 of 2005 and Sri Sharad Dixit, learned Additional Government Advocate.

3. Present Criminal Appeals have been preferred against the judgment and order dated 4.10.2005 passed by learned Additional Session Judge/ Fast Track Court-II , Pratapgarh in S.T. No. 292 of 2000 (Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari Vs. State of U.P.) and (Rahul Mishra alias Chulbul Misra Vs. State of U.P.) arising out of Case Crime no.86 of 2000 under Section 302,394 and 411 IPC , police-station Kotwali Nagar, District Pratapgarh whereby accused Rahul Mishra @ Chulbul Misra was convicted under Section 302 read with section 34 IPC and sentenced for life imprisonment and a fine of Rs.5000/- with default stipulation of further one year imprisonment, section 394 read with Section 34 IP.C. for ten years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5000/- with default stipulation of further six months imprisonment whereas Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari was convicted under Section 302 IPC for life imprisonment and a fine of Rs.20000/- with default stipulation of further two years imprisonment and under section 394 read with section 34 IPC for ten years and a fine of Rs. 10000/- with default stipulation of further one year imprisonment and Section 411 IP.C. for two years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1000/- with default stipulation of further three months imprisonment. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

4. According to prosecution case , on 14.2.2000 at about 10.00 a.m., owner of Mishra Automobile, Sri Suresh Chandra Mishra was going on the scooter with Ashok Kumar Tiwari , a pillion rider, to deposit cash in State Bank of India. When they reached just before bridge of Sai river, two persons came with motorcycle and dashed the scooter and warned Suresh Chandra Mishra to give them cash. Complainant Ashok Kumar Tewari ran away and the accused snatched the suitcase containing cash of Rs. 400000/- from Suresh Chandra Misra and another accused person, who was pillion rider of the motorcycle, fired at Suresh Chandra Mishra , who sustained serious injury and he was admitted to Raj Nurshing Home, Allahabad where he succumbed to his injuries. Ashok Kumar Tiwari has lodged an FIR to the said incident at Police station Kotwali Nagar, District Pratapgarh which was registered as Case Crime No. 86 of 2000 under sections 302/394,311 IPC. The investigation was handed over to Station House Officer of P.S. Kotwali District Pratapgarh.

5. The Investigating officer prepared the inquest report. Postmortem of the dead body was conducted by the Doctor on 14.2.2000 at 5.00 p.m. According to doctor, death was caused due to antimortem fire arm injury. Statement of Suresh Chandra Tiwari was recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. by Investigating Officer on 14.2.2000, thereafter he succumbed to his injuries.

6. During investigation, on 16.2.2000 at about 11.30 a.m., investigating officer alongwith police personnel apprehended one Rahul Mishra alias Chulbul Misra. On his pointing out motorcycle bearing no. UP 45/ 5414 used in commission of crime was recovered. He confessed that it is the same motorcycle which was used in the commission of crime and also on his pointing out a black Ataichi (Suitcase) was recovered from the well . He also confessed that it is the same Ataichi which was looted on 14.2.2000 from Suresh Chandra Mishra after firing upon him. Some bricks were also found in the Ataichi.

7. On 18.2.2000 at about 12.20 a.m. Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari was apprehended by the police and on his pointing out one contrymade pistol used in commission of crime and a cash of Rs. 1,40,000/- was recovered in a box wherein a slip was attached on the bundle of rupees mentioning therein 'Misra Automobile Pratapgarh'. Rs. 40000/- was also recovered by the police at the pointing out of Sonu @ Shashank Tiwari .

8. Site plan of the incident was also prepared by Investigating Officer. Statements of witnesses were recorded . Accused/ appellants were also put for identification parade and they were rightly identified by the witnesses. After concluding the investigation, accused were chargesheeted under Sections 302, 394, 411 IPC.

9. In order to prove the case , prosecution has produced as many as ten witnesses, namely, P.W.1 , Shiv Prasad Pandey , P.W.2 Umesh Chandra Pandey, eye witness , P.W.-3 M.R. Premi , S.I., P.W.4 Sub Inspector Hemant Bhushan Singh , witness of recovery , P.W. 5 Ashok Kumar Tiwari, complainant and eye witness, P.W.-6 Pahup Singh, Investigating Officer P.W.-7 Dr. R.P. Singh who conducted the postmortem of the body of deceased Suresh Chandra Mishra on 14.02.2000 and found fire arm wound of entry measuring 1/1"x1/2" of cavity deep on right side of head just behind right ear, margins inverted ,blacking and tattooing and scorching are present. There was fire arm exit wound measuring 1'x1' cavity deep on the forehead left side 1 Â½" above . Lacerated would ¾" x Â½" bone deep on outer surface of close to base of right index finger. According to Doctor, duration of death was about six hours. Death is due to coma as result of fire arm injury to brain. P.W.8 Constable Lakhan Pal, informal witness P.W.9 Ram Dev Gupta, conducted the identification parade. P.W.10 Head Constable Sarvejeet Verma, Head Moharir, who has prepared chik report and mentioned the same in the G.D.

10. Accused/ appellant Sonu @ Shashank Twari has stated in his statement under section 313 CrPC that he was arrested from the house of Mausi Asha Ojha in the night of 16.2.2000. He stated that he was falsely implicated due to enmity of P.W.2 Umesh Chandra Pandey with his Mausia Radhey Shyam whereas Rahul alias Chulbul Misra has denied the charges levelled against him and stated that he has been falsely implicated due to enmity of S.H.O. Police Station Kotwali Nagar, Pratapgarh.

11. In defence, Smt. Asha Ojha has been produced as D.W.1, who has stated that Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari is son of her sister Smt. Sarla Tiwari . On 26.2.2000 marriage of her daughter Km. Anita was fixed and Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari came to her house on 10.2.2000 and was staying there but on 16.2.2000 at about 11.00 p.m. police has taken away Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari from her house. No recovery was made from his possession or on pointing out of Sonu alias Shashank Tewari.

12. After appreciating the evidence on record and going through the material on record , learned trial court found accused persons/appellants guilty and sentenced them in the aforesaid sections.

13. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned judgment , appellants have preferred two separate appeals.

14. At the very outset, learned counsel for the appellants argued that accused were arrested by the police authorities and are in jail since February ,2000 and they have not been granted bail during trial by learned trial court as well as by this Court . Learned counsel for the appellants have not pressed the present appeals on merit rather they have pressed the appeal on the point of sentence only with the prayer of remission of sentence.

15. Being the first appellate court, we are conscious of the duties of the first appellate court to reassess and re appreciate the evidence led by the prosecution before the learned trial court.

16. According to P.W. 7 Dr. R.P. Singh, deceased died due to fire arm injury sustained by him which supports the prosecution version that pillion rider fired at Suresh Chandra Mishra deceased and snatched the bag containing Rs. 4,00,000/-.

17. At this stage, it is relevant to mention that one of the co accused namely Edu alias Ateek son of Vakil Ahmad was absconding and was not put to trial . The trial court has only convicted and sentenced accused appellants Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari and Rahul Misra alias Chulbul Misra in the aforementioned sections.

18. Role assigned to accused Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari is of firing while role of co-accused Rahul Mishra was little different. He was at the jeep when the occurrence took place . After the occurrence he followed motorcycle in order to protect the accused who are driving motorcycle, hence his role was of common intention alongwith main accused Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari.

19. P.W.2 Umesh Chandra has given eye witness account of the incident. He has stated that at the time of incident he was going to his house on bicycle. He saw that the person, who was driving the motorcycle, snatched the bag from Suresh Chandra and pillion rider of motorcycle fired upon Suresh Chandra who fell down. This witness has correctly identified the Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari in identification parade as well as in court.

20. P.W.2 Umesh Chandra Pandey has also identified co accused Rahul Mishra alias Chulbul Misra. He has stated that one Commander Jeep was at the place of occurrence and followed the motorcycle and after the incident only the driver was driving the jeep, who was co-accused Rahul Mishra alias Chulbul Misra, who was known to him from earlier as he used to visit Misra Petrol Pump for taking fuel in the jeep .

21. PW-3 M.R. Premi was a member of the ruling party which has recovered an attachi from a well on the pointing out of the accused Rahul Misra alias Chulbul wherein accused had admitted that this is the same attachin which was robbed on 14.02.2000 after committing the murder of Suresh Chandra Misra. It was further stated by him that attachi was containing an amount of Rs.4,00000/-. Lock was broken open after getting the amount out of the attachi. Bricks were kept in it and it was drowned in the well. PW-3 M.R. Premi has further stated that he was a member of the ruling party which have arrested Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari on 18.02.2000 at 12:30 PM and amount of Rs.1,40,000/- which was robbed were also recovered from the possession of the accused. Recovery memo was prepared on 23.02.2000. Police party has recovered Rs.40,000/- on the pointing out of accused Sonu alias Shashank Tiwari. Recovery memo was prepared.

22. PW-4 S.I. Hemant Bhushan is also a witness of recovery, PW-5 Ashok Tripathi is scribe of the first information report and also eyewitness who has identified accused Rahul and Sonu in the jail. He has further identified Rahul before the trial court. PW-6 Inspector Pahunch Singh is the Investigating Officer of the case who filed the charge sheet against the accused. He is also witness of recovery.

23. PW-9 Ram Dev Gupta is Executive Magistrate who has conducted the identification parade of Rahul and Sonu alias Shashank in the jail wherein it is stated that the witnesses have correctly identified them. PW-9, PW-10 HCP Sarabjit Verma is a formal witness.

24. We have gone through the statement of the above prosecution witnesses wherein we found that the prosecution has successfully proved the charges levelled against the accused appellants. They have been correctly identified by the witnesses in the jail as well as in the trial court. No discrepancy or material contradiction was found by the learned trial court in the evidence of the witnesses. Recovery was also proved by the witnesses. Prosecution has successfully proved the charges against the accused appellants. Learned counsel for the accused appellants have also not pressed the bail on merit.

25. Now we shall take up the second limb of the argument which is on the point of the sentence.

26. Learned trial court has sentenced the accused for imprisonment for life under section 302 IPC coupled with other sentences.

27. Now the second limb of argument comes to our consideration. Before proceeding further in the matter, we would like to mention the pronouncement of Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Sangeet and Another Vs. State of Haryana reported in (2013) 2 SCC 452 and has observed in paragraph no. 61 to 64 and 77.6 to 77.7 as under:-

"61. It appears to us that an exercise of power by the appropriate Government under sub-section (1) of Section 432 of the Cr.P.C. cannot be suo motu for the simple reason that this sub-section is only an enabling provision. The appropriate Government is enabled to "override" a judicially pronounced sentence, subject to the fulfillment of certain conditions. Those conditions are found either in the Jail Manual or in statutory rules. Sub-section (1) of Section 432 of the Cr.P.C. cannot be read to enable the appropriate Government to "further override" the judicial pronouncement over and above what is permitted by the Jail Manual or the statutory rules. The process of granting "additional" remission under this Section is set into motion in a case only through an application for remission by the convict or on his behalf. On such an application being made, the appropriate Government is required to approach the presiding judge of the Court before or by which the conviction was made or confirmed to opine (with reasons) whether the application should be granted or refused. Thereafter, the appropriate Government may take a decision on the remission application and pass orders granting remission subject to some conditions, or refusing remission. Apart from anything else, this statutory procedure seems quite reasonable in as much as there is an application of mind to the issue of grant of remission. It also eliminates "discretionary" or en masse release of convicts on "festive" occasions since each release requires a case-by-case basis scrutiny.

62. It must be remembered in this context that it was held in State of Haryana V. Mohinder Singh reported in (2000) 3 SCC 394 that the power of remission cannot be exercised arbitrarily. The decision to grant remission has to be well informed, reasonable and fair to all concerned. The statutory procedure laid down in Section 432 of the Cr.P.C. does provide this check on the possible misuse of power by the appropriate Government.

Substantive check on arbitrary remissions:

63. For exercising the power of remission to a life convict, the Cr.P.C. places not only a procedural check as mentioned above, but also a substantive check. This check is through Section 433-A of the Cr.P.C. which provides that when the remission of a sentence is granted in a capital offence, the convict must serve at least fourteen years of imprisonment. Of course, the requirement of a minimum of fourteen years incarceration may perhaps be relaxed in exercising power under Article 72 and Article 161 of the Constitution and Section 433 of the Cr.P.C. but, as mentioned above, we are presently not concerned with these provisions and say nothing in this regard, one way or the other.

64. Section 433-A of the Cr.P.C. reads as follows:-

433-A. Restriction on powers of remission or commutation in certain cases.— Notwithstanding anything contained in Section 432, where a sentence of imprisonment for life is imposed on conviction of a person for an offence for which death is one of the punishments provided by law, or where a sentence of death imposed on a person has been commuted under Section 433 into one of imprisonment for life, such person shall not be released from prison unless he had served at least fourteen years of imprisonment.

77.6 Remission can be granted under Section 432 of the Cr.P.C. in the case of a definite term of sentence. The power under this Section is available only for granting "additional" remission, that is, for a period over and above the remission granted or awarded to a convict under the Jail Manual or other statutory rules. If the term of sentence is indefinite (as in life imprisonment), the power under Section 432 of the Cr.P.C. can certainly be exercised but not on the basis that life imprisonment is an arbitrary or notional figure of twenty years of imprisonment.

77.7 Before actually exercising the power of remission under Section 432 of the Cr.P.C. the appropriate Government must obtain the opinion (with reasons) of the presiding judge of the convicting or confirming Court. Remissions can, therefore, be given only on a case-by-case basis and not in a wholesale manner. "

28. Keeping in view the aforementioned pronouncement, we consider it appropriate that necessary direction may be issued for forwarding the proposal of remission of sentence of the appellants to the competent authority for its consideration.

29. Accordingly, these appeal are hereby dismissed. We hope and trust that Jail Superintendent shall immediately send the proposal for remission of sentence of appellants to the appropriate authority, which shall be considered expeditiously by the competent authority in accordance with law.

30. Office is directed to certify this order to the learned trial court to ensure compliance. Office is further directed to transmit the lower court record forthwith.

Criminal Revision No.- 1534 Of 2012

Gaya Prasad ...Revisionist
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Opposite party

Counsels for the Revisionist:
Shri Ram Autar Verma, Shri Dinesh Chnadra Tripathi

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
G.A.

Held –

Paragraph 1 (Appearance & Identification): The court recorded the presence of Sri Ram Autar Verma (counsel for revisionist Gaya Prasad) and Ms. Anita Srivastava (learned A.G.A. for the State of U.P.).
Paragraph 2 (Revision Details & Case Background): The revisionist challenged the Appellate Court's order (dated 09.02.2012 by Additional District Judge, Room No. 2, Kanpur Nagar in Criminal Appeal No. 96/2011), which had affirmed the Trial Court's conviction order (dated 15.07.2011 by Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar in Criminal Case No. 5229/2006, arising out of Case Crime No. 37/1999, under Sections 420, 467, 468, and 471 I.P.C., P.S. Kotwali, Kanpur Nagar).
Paragraph 3 (Hearing): The High Court formally heard arguments from both counsels and perused the trial and appellate records.
Paragraph 4 (Arguments of Revisionist's Counsel): The revisionist's counsel argued that insufficient documentary evidence existed to convict Gaya Prasad, who only provided photostat copies of alleged orders to his lawyer. He added that the revisionist is an illiterate person unable to grasp legal intricacies, warranting a lenient view by lower courts.
Paragraph 5 (Prosecution Case Details - Fraudulent Land Claim): In a pending revenue proceeding (Case No. 77/88 under Section 229-B of UPZA & LR Act), the accused fraudulently submitted a forged High Court order/judgment (dated 07.10.1996 in Writ Petition No. 3081/1986) to delete the actual owner's name and register his own name. In reality, the revisionist's earlier Writ Petition (No. 3341/1996) had already been dismissed on 12.07.1996, and a review petition was pending when the fake order was procured.
Paragraph 6 (Inquiry & F.I.R.): Pursuant to the High Court's order dated 03.12.1997, an inquiry was conducted by ASP/Zonal Officer Akhileshwar Ram Mishra (P.W.-2). Subsequently, Case Crime No. 37/1999 was registered at P.S. Kotwali under Sections 420, 467, 468, and 471 I.P.C.
Paragraph 7 (Charge-sheet & Severance of Trial): A charge-sheet was submitted against three individuals: Gaya Prasad, Smt. Bittan Devi, and Krishna Kumar Verma. Because Krishna Kumar Verma absconded, his case was separated on 25.01.2007. The Trial Court proceeded only against Gaya Prasad and Smt. Bittan Devi, who both pleaded not guilty.

Paragraph 8 (Prosecution Witnesses & Documentary Evidence): The prosecution examined six witnesses: P.W.-1 Mahendra Kumar Sharma, P.W.-2 Akhileshwar Ram Mishra (informant), P.W.-3 Pradeep Kumar (SDM), P.W.-4 Ashok Kumar, P.W.-5 Babu Ram Pal (Advocate), and P.W.-6 SI Jay Pal Singh (I.O.). Several documentary exhibits were also produced.

Paragraph 9 (Statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C.): Gaya Prasad claimed illiteracy and alleged false implication by his lawyer (P.W.-5 Babu Ram Pal). Smt. Bittan Devi stated she was not a party to the proceedings and hadn't signed anything. No defense evidence was adduced.

Paragraph 10 (Litigation History - Revenue Courts): Gaya Prasad had initially instituted Case No. 25/85 through his mother (Bittan Devi) claiming bhumidhari rights over Plot No. 854/2 (10 Biswa, Naubasta). Decreed initially in his favor on 22.05.1989, the decision was overturned on appeal on 19.12.1989 upon a challenge by Janhit Cooperative Housing Society Ltd. (Exhibits Ka-3 & Ka-4).

Paragraph 11 (Board of Revenue Dismissal): Gaya Prasad's Second Appeal (No. 30/89-90) before the Board of Revenue was dismissed on 30.12.1995, confirming the appellate order against him.

Paragraph 12 (High Court Dismissal & Review): Gaya Prasad then filed Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 3341/1996 in the Allahabad High Court, which was dismissed on 12.07.1996. His review petition filed on 17.12.1996 remained pending.

Paragraph 13 (Submission of Photostat Orders): A photostat copy of another order in Writ Petition No. 36524/1994 (seeking protection from dispossession) was also placed on record by Gaya Prasad.

Paragraph 14 (Fraudulent Application for Mutation): Despite the dismissal of his writ petition, Gaya Prasad applied on 10.06.1997 for mutation before the Additional City Magistrate (IV), Kanpur Nagar, referencing forged High Court and Supreme Court orders (SLP No. 4100/1997).

Paragraph 15 (Ex-Parte Order Obtained): Relying on photostat copies of forged High Court and Supreme Court judgments, the Magistrate issued an order (Exhibit Ka-8) registering Gaya Prasad's name in revenue records without notifying the actual land owner.

Paragraph 16 (Discovery of Forgery): On 29.09.1997, Janhit Cooperative Housing Society Ltd. inquired about the alleged High Court judgment dated 07.10.1996 in Writ Petition No. 3081/1996. It was revealed that Justice S.P. Srivastava had never passed any such order and the submitted document was completely fake.

Paragraph 17 (Actual Status of Writ Petition No. 3081/1996): Enquiry confirmed that Writ Petition No. 3081/1996 was actually filed by Dr. Kailash Nath Shukla relating to Group-A services and was still pending at the admission stage on 24.11.1997.

Paragraph 18 (High Court Registrar's Order for Investigation): Upon discovering the forgery of its judgment, the Registrar of the High Court directed the Government of U.P. on 03.12.1997 to conduct a C.B.C.I.D. investigation.

Paragraph 19 (Witness Testimony on Forgery): P.W.-1, P.W.-2, P.W.-3, P.W.-4, and P.W.-5 (Advocate Babu Ram Pal) unequivocally testified that the alleged High Court judgment dated 07.10.1996 and Supreme Court judgment dated 06.05.1997 were forged and fabricated.

Paragraph 20 (Thorough Trial Analysis): The High Court noted that the trial court meticulously evaluated both oral and documentary evidence before reaching its conclusion.

Paragraph 21 (Establishment of Mens Rea and Beneficiary Status): P.W.-5 (Babu Ram Pal, Advocate) testified that Gaya Prasad personally handed him the forged photocopy orders to submit in court. Furthermore, after obtaining mutation through deceit, Gaya Prasad executed a registered agreement to sell a 236 sq. yd. portion of the disputed land. He also filed objections to delay proceedings when the fraud was exposed, proving his criminal intent (mens rea).

Paragraph 22 (Sole Beneficiary Principle): The court re-emphasized that Gaya Prasad was the sole beneficiary of the entire fraudulent process.

Paragraph 23 (Trial Court Findings & Partial Acquittal): The Trial Court, citing Supreme Court precedents, convicted Gaya Prasad under Sections 420, 467, 468, and 471 I.P.C. while giving the benefit of doubt to his mother, co-accused Smt. Bittan Devi, and acquitting her.

Paragraph 24 (Appellate Court Challenge): Gaya Prasad appealed his conviction to the Sessions Court (Criminal Appeal No. 96/2011), primarily repeating the defense of illiteracy.

Paragraph 25 (Appellate Court Findings): The Additional Sessions Judge observed that Gaya Prasad exhausted every legal channel to grab the property and that no third party would forge court orders solely to benefit him.
Paragraph 26 (Registered Agreement to Sell Sealed Conviction): Executing a registered agreement to sell a portion of the fraudulently obtained plot in favor of Smt. Sushila Devi Verma conclusively established his guilt and sealed his fate in revision.
Paragraph 27 (High Court Finding on Legality): After examining the trial court and appellate court judgments, the High Court held that neither order suffered from any illegality, perversity, or impropriety.
Paragraph 28 (Dismissal Decision): The High Court held the criminal revision to be completely devoid of merit and dismissed it.
Paragraph 29 (Dismissal Order): Formally declared: "Dismissed."
Paragraph 30 (Compliance Direction): Directed a copy of the judgment to be sent to the learned Sessions Judge (Civil and Sessions Court), Kanpur Nagar for necessary compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prabhat Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Case called out. Sri Ram Autar Verma, learned counsel for the revisionist and Ms. Anita Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State of U.P. are present.

2. The instant criminal revision has been preferred against the judgement and order dated 09.02.2012 passed by the Additional District Judge, Room No.2, Kanpur Nagar in Criminal Appeal No.96 of 2011 (Gaya Prasad Vs. State of U.P.) relating to Criminal Case No.5229 of 2006 (State Vs. Gaya Prasad and another) in Case Crime No.37/99, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C., P.S. Kotwali, District Kanpur Nagar, whereby the judgement and order dated 15.07.2011 passed by the Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar in Criminal Case No.5229 of 2006 (State Vs. Gaya Prasad and another) in Case Crime No.37/99, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C., P.S. Kotwali, District Kanpur Nagar has been affirmed.

3. Heard the arguments of learned counsel for the revisionist and learned A.G.A. for the State of U.P. and perused the record.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist has argued that there were no sufficient documentary evidence to convict the revisionist Gaya Prasad. Only photostat copy of the alleged orders were submitted by the revisionist to his counsel. Revisionist is an illiterate person who could not understand intricacies of legal proceedings, thus, a lenient view would have been taken by the learned Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar as well as the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Room No.2, Kanpur Nagar while deciding this criminal case.

5. The prosecution case in brief is as follows:

6. One case no.77/88, under Section 229 B of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 (Gaya Prasad Vs. K.D.A. and Janhit Cooperative Housing Society Limited) was pending before the court of the learned City Magistrate (IV), Kanpur Nagar in which accused persons by committing forgery have filed fabricated order/judgement with regard to the Civil Misc.

Writ Petition No.3081 of 1986, dated 07.10.1996 of the Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad and thereby deleting the name of real land owner procured the name of accused Gaya Prasad to be registered there whereas accused person Gaya Prasad has preferred a Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.3341 of 1996 before the Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad which was dismissed on date 12.07.1996. A review petition was presented through Sri R.C. Sharma, Advocate and Sri Ram Autar Verma, Advocate against the order/judgement dated 12.07.1996 which was pending before the Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad at the time of preparing/procuring of that relevant fabricated and forged judgement.

7. An enquiry was conducted by the learned Additional Superintendent of Police/Zonal Officer, Sri Akhileshwar Ram Mishra (Prosecution Witness-2) in compliance with the order dated 03.12.1997 of Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad. Thereafter, a case was registered in Crime No.37 of 1999, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. against the accused persons in Police Station Kotwali and the investigation was initiated by the Police of Police Station Kotwali, District Kanpur Nagar.

8. A charge-sheet was submitted against the accused persons, namely, Gaya Prasad, Smt. Bittan Devi and Krishna Kumar Verma. Since co-accused Krishna Kumar Verma was absconding, his case was separated by the court concerned by it's order dated 25.01.2007. Hence, it was ordered by the trial court of the learned Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar in it's impugned judgement and order dated 15.07.2011 that this judgement pertains only to the accused persons, namely, Gaya Prasad and Smt. Bittan Devi. Charges were framed against the accused persons Gaya Prasad and Smt. Bittan Devi under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. to which they pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

9. While adducing oral evidence, the prosecution produced P.W.1, Mahendra Kumar Sharma, P.W.2, Akhileshwar Ram Mishra (informant), P.W.3, Pradeep Kumar, S.D.M., Pratapgarh, P.W.4, Ashok Kumar, P.W.5, Babu Ram Pal and P.W.6, Sub-Inspector, Jay Pal Singh, Investigating Officer of the case. In it's support several documentary evidence were also produced by the prosecution, details of which have been mentioned in the impugned judgement and order dated 15.07.2011 of the learned Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar.

10. Statements of the accused persons Gaya Prasad and Smt. Bittan Devi were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in which accused person Gaya Prasad stated that he is an illiterate person, he has been falsely implicated by his counsel, Sri Babu Ram Pal, Advocate whereas accused person Smt. Bittan Devi has stated that neither she is a party to the proceedings nor she has put any signatures. She has engaged Sri Babu Ram Pal, Advocate as her counsel. No evidence was adduced in defence.

11. Accused revisionist Gaya Prasad has instituted a case through his mother and natural guardian Smt. Bittan Devi (co-accused) as Case No.25/85, under Section 229 B of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 before the court of the learned S.D.O., Kanpur Nagar on date 16.03.1985 claiming the relief that he may be declared bhumidhar with transferable right of the plot no.854/2, ad-measuring 10 Biswa, situated at village Naubasta, Pargana and District Kanpur Nagar and it may also be ordered that his name may be registered as such in the revenue records. This case was contested on behalf of the Janhit Cooperative Housing Society Limited through it's Secretary Sri Mahendra Kumar Sharma, Advocate. The court of the learned Additional City Magistrate (IV), Kanpur Nagar by it's order dated 22.05.1989 has decided the case no.25/85 in favour of accused person Gaya Prasad.

12. Aggrieved by this order Janhit Cooperative Housing Society Limited through it's Secretary, Sri Mahendra Kumar Sharma, Advocate preferred an appeal before the Additional Commissioner (Administration), Kanpur Division, Kanpur, which was allowed on date 19.12.1989 and the order dated 22.05.1989 was cancelled. Both the above mentioned orders are available on record as Exhibits Ka-3 and Ka-4.

13. Accused person Gaya Prasad preferred Second Appeal No.30/89-90 before the Board of Revenue, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad which was dismissed on 30.12.1995 and the Board of Revenue, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad confirmed the earlier order dated 19.12.1989.

14. Against this order of the Board of Revenue, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad, the accused Gaya Prasad preferred a Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.3341 of 1996 before the Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad which was dismissed by the Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad by it's order dated 12.07.1996.

15. Against this order of Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad accused person Gaya Prasad presented a review petition on date 17.12.1996 before the Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad which was pending as per enquiry dated 24.10.1997 (Exhibit Ka-6).

16. Photostat copy of the order dated 13.11.1996 in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.36524 of 1994 was also available on the file which was presented by the accused person Gaya Prasad claiming the relief that he may not be dispossessed by the anti- social elements from the plot no.854/2, ad-measuring 10 Biswa.

17. Accused person Gaya Prasad during the pendency of this Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.3081 of 1996 (Gaya Prasad Vs. Board of Revenue and others) and the judgement of Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad dated 07.10.1996 and Special Leave Petition No.4100 of 1997 presented by the Janhit Cooperative Housing Society Limited before the Hon'ble Supreme Court dated 06.05.1997 for cancelling the aforementioned judgement for which obtaining the copy dated 03.06.1997 was available on the file and which was mentioned in the judgement; accused Gaya Prasad presented an application dated 10.06.1997 before the learned Additional City Magistrate (IV), Kanpur Nagar with regard to the plot no.854/2, ad-measuring 10 Biswa for issuing the order of mutation. In Para-4 of application dated 10.06.1997 of accused Gaya Prasad there was mention of order of Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad.

18. Presenting the photostat copies of the judgements of Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad and Hon'ble Supreme Court the learned Additional City Magistrate (IV), Kanpur Nagar without issuing notice to the defendants passed an order regarding registering of the name of accused person Gaya Prasad in revenue records over the disputed plot. This order is Exhibit Ka-8.

19. Affected party i.e. Janhit Cooperative Housing Society Limited made an enquiry by presenting an application dated 29.09.1997 regarding judgement dated 07.10.1996 which was alleged to have been passed in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.3081 of 1996. On this application dated 29.09.1997 of P.W.1, Mahendra Kumar Sharma, it was found that in Writ Petition No.3081 of 1996, Hon'ble Mr. Justice S.P. Srivastava of Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad has not passed any order dated 07.10.1996 and the alleged judgement and order dated 07.10.1996 relating to Writ Petition No.3081 of 1996 which was presented by the accused Gaya Prasad before the learned Additional City Magistrate (IV), Kanpur Nagar is a forged document.

20. It is relevant to mention here that during the enquriy, it was found that actually Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.3081 of 1996 was presented by Dr. Kailash Nath Shukla before the Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad which was pending on date 24.11.1997 at the stage of admission and it related to Group-A Services. A copy of the enquiry details dated 24.11.1997 was available on the file.

21. After finding the alleged impugned judgement dated 07.11.1996 relating to Writ Petition No.3081 of 1996 as a forged and fabricated the then Registrar of Hon'ble High Court, Allahabad by his letter dated 03.12.1997 directed the Government of Uttar Pradesh that an enquiry be conducted by C.B.C.I.D.

22. P.W.1, Mahendra Kumar Sharma, P.W.2, Akhileshwar Ram Mishra (informant), P.W.3, Pradeep Kumar, S.D.M., Pratapgarh, P.W.4, Ashok Kumar, P.W.5, Babu Ram Pal, Advocate have deposed that the judgement and order dated 07.10.1996 alleged to have been passed in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.3081 of 1996 and the alleged judgement passed in Special Leave Petition No.4100 of 1997 dated 06.05.1997 were forged and fabricated documents.

23. The learned Special Chief Judicial Magistrate while conducting the trial has vividly and elaborately discussed the oral as well as documentary evidence available on record.

24. P.W.5, Sri Babu Ram Pal, Advocate was the counsel of accused Gaya Prasad. He has deposed before the trial court that accused Gaya Prasad has handed over him the photocopies of the alleged forged judgement to be presented before the learned Additional City Magistrate (IV), Kanpur Nagar. This fact is also of paramount importance that after the name of accused person Gaya Prasad was registered in the revenue records. Accused Gaya Prasad has executed a registered agreement to sell regarding a portion ad-measuring 236 square yards of disputed plot no.854/2, ad-measuring 10 Biswa. A copy of this registered agreement to sell is available on record. This is also a strong evidence that when Sri Mahendra Kumar Sharma, Advocate, Secretary of Janhit Cooperative Housing Society Limited presented an application dated 04.10.1997 before the court of the learned Additional City Magistrate (IV), Kanpur Nagar mentioning therein that on the basis of forged and fabricated judgement of registering of name of accused person in revenue records (Exhibit Ka-9) and praying therein to postpone the proceedings of the registration. Accused person presented an objection dated 02.12.1997. This proves the culpability and mens rea of the accused person Gaya Prasad.

25. Undoubtedly, accused Gaya Prasad was the sole beneficiary of all these proceedings.

26. Trial court of the learned Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar has cited several rulings of Hon'ble Supreme Court in support of the view taken by it and after considering the rival contention has arrived at the conclusion of conviction of the accused revisionist Gaya Prasad and acquittal of co-accused Smt. Bittan Devi, who was the mother and natural guardian of main accused Gaya Prasad. Resultantly, co-accused Smt. Bittan Devi was acquitted of the charges under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. levelled against her after providing her benefit of doubt whereas main accused Gaya Prasad was convicted under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. and was awarded sentences along with fine.

27. Aggrieved by the judgement dated 15.07.2011 of the learned Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar a criminal appeal was preferred by accused Gaya Prasad before the court of the learned Sessions Judge, Kanpur Nagar ultimately which was decided by the court of the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Kanpur Nagar by it's judgement and order dated 09.02.2012 in criminal appeal no.96 of 2011 (Gaya Prasad Vs. State) relating to criminal case no.5229 of 2006, crime no.37 of 1999, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C., Police Station Kotwali, District Kanpur Nagar. In this criminal appeal also, the main contention of the counsel before the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Kanpur Nagar, was that accused appellant was an illiterate person, who was even unable to read, write or even to put his signature.

28. Learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Kanpur Nagar while adjudicating upon the matter before him has categorically observed that the accused person Gaya Prasad has left no stone unturned to procure the order of mutation in his favour in revenue records relating to the disputed plot no.854/2, ad-measuring 10 Biswa situated at village Naubasta, District Kanpur Nagar and he knocked each and every door possible and available in the legal proceedings and since the accused person Gaya Prasad was the sole beneficiary of the disputed property, then it is out of imagination that any other person will make any endeavour to benefit him by procuring the forged and fabricated documents.

29. The execution of the registered agreement to sell; by the accused person Gaya Prasad, of a portion of the disputed property i.e. plot no.854/2, ad-measuring 10 Biswa, situated at village Naubasta, after getting his name registered as bhumidhar with transferable right by adopting deceitful means; in favour of Smt. Sushila Devi Verma-seals the fate of this criminal revision.

30. I have perused the impugned orders dated 09.02.2012 and 15.07.2011 of the learned Additional District Judge, Room No.2, Kanpur Nagar and the learned Special Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar respectively. The aforementioned impugned judgements and orders do not suffer from any illegality, perversity or impropriety.

31. Resultantly, this criminal revision is devoid of merit and liable to be dismissed.

32. Dismissed.

33. Let a copy of this Judgement and Order be sent to the learned Sessions Judge (Civil and Sessions Court), Kanpur Nagar for necessary compliance.

Held –
Para 1 (Introduction & Abatement): This criminal appeal challenges the judgment dated 14.10.1982 by the Additional Sessions Judge, Rampur (Sessions Trial No. 254 of 1981). The four appellants (Inam Ullah, Shafiq @ Gama, Rais, and Mehandi @ Bhatia) were convicted under Section 302/34 IPC (life imprisonment) and Section 324/34 IPC (four months RI), running concurrently. The appeal against Appellant No. 1 (Inam Ullah) abated following his death on 24.10.2008.
Para 2 (Motive & Background): The motive traces back to an unpaid tonga fare owed by Rais Pahelwan to Aziz. Two days prior to the incident, an argument over payment was defused by a neighbor, Nazeer Ahmed.
Para 3 (The Incident & FIR): First informant Iqrar (PW-1) stated that on 02.05.1981, his brother Abrar slapped Shareef @ Dilphar (Rais's brother) during a spat. Shortly after, Rais (armed with a chhuri), Shafiq (armed with a country-made pistol), Inam Ullah (armed with a knife), and Mehandi came to threaten them. The altercation escalated at Dak Bunglow Tiraha where Aziz was fatally stabbed. Abrar, Iqrar, and Manjoo were also attacked when attempting to intervene. Iqrar rushed the injured to Police Station Suar, where FIR Crime No. 61 was registered.
Para 4 (Investigation & Second Death): SI H.S. Pawar (PW-10) initiated the investigation, recorded statements, prepared the site plan, collected evidence (blood-stained earth, footwear), and sent Aziz's body for autopsy. On 03.05.1981, Manjoo Khan succumbed to his injuries at District Hospital Rampur. SI Parveen Singh (PW-11) later completed the investigation and submitted the charge sheet.
Para 5 (Prosecution Witnesses): The prosecution examined 14 witnesses: 5 eye-witnesses (PW-1 to PW-5, including injured witnesses PW-1 and PW-2), 4 medical experts (PW-6, PW-9, PW-12, PW-14), 4 police personnel (PW-7, PW-8, PW-10, PW-11, PW-13, PW-14).
Para 6 (Defense & Court Witness): In their Section 313 Cr.P.C. statements, the accused pleaded innocence. Accused Rais claimed bias due to an earlier case; Inam Ullah claimed separation from his sons; Mehandi claimed a identity issue regarding his name. Court Witness CW-1 (an advocate) testified regarding a rejected bail application. No defense witnesses were presented.

Para 7 (Trial Court Decision): The Trial Court found the prosecution proved its case beyond a reasonable doubt, convicting and sentencing the appellants accordingly.
Para 8 (Counsel Appearances): Heard Amicus Curiae Mr. Raghuraj Kishore (for Appellants 2 & 3), Mohd. Irfan Khan (for Appellant 4), and Mr. M.S. Yadav (A.G.A. for the State).
Para 9 (Summary of Casualties): Summarizes the casualties: Aziz died on the spot, Manjoo died during treatment, and PW-1 (Iqrar) and PW-2 (Abrar) sustained non-fatal injuries.
Paras 10–12 (Medical Evidence – Iqrar & Manjoo): Dr. P.S. Thakur (PW-6) proved the injury reports for Iqrar (simple incised wound on thigh) and Manjoo Khan (lacerated head wounds, traumatic swellings, incised hip wound).
Paras 13–14 (Medical Evidence – Abrar): Dr. A.U. Khan (PW-12) proved Abrar's injury report (10 injuries, including head laceration, abrasions, and multiple incised wounds caused by sharp weapons).
Paras 15–17 (Autopsy of Deceased Aziz): Dr. H.B. Bhutt (PW-9) proved Aziz's autopsy report (9 ante-mortem incised wounds). Death was caused by shock and hemorrhage due to lung damage from a chest wound.
Paras 18–20 (Autopsy of Deceased Manjoo): Dr. H.B. Bhutt (PW-9) proved Manjoo's autopsy report (head injuries, skull fracture, brain congestion). Death was due to head trauma caused by a blunt object/butt of a pistol.
Paras 21–23 (Eye-Witness Testimony): Eye-witnesses PW-1 through PW-5 consistently narrated the sequence of events, corroborating the account given in the FIR.
Para 24 (Appellants' Arguments – Contradictions): Appellants argued that the testimonies contained inconsistencies, were "photographic" in nature, and came from interested/inimical witnesses.
Para 25 (Appellants' Arguments – FIR Ante-timed): Appellants argued the FIR was ante-timed because the injury referral slips (Chitti Majroobi) lacked the case crime number and specific IPC sections.
Para 26 (State's Submissions): State argued that discrepancies were minor, presence of injured witnesses was indisputable, and the eyewitness accounts were reliable and corroborated.
Para 27 (Court's Finding on FIR): The Court rejected the "ante-timed FIR" argument, noting the quick timeline between the incident (4:15 PM), FIR registration (4:45 PM), and medical examination (5:25 PM). Omission of the crime number on medical referral letters is not fatal to the case.
Para 28 (Court's Finding on Interested Witnesses): The Court held that evidence from related or interested witnesses cannot be discarded automatically. It cited Jayabalan v. Union Territory to emphasize that courts must look for consistency rather than taking a pedantic or overly suspicious approach.
Paras 29–30 (Court's Finding on Discrepancies): Minor discrepancies do not shatter the core prosecution story. The Court cited Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai v. State of Gujarat regarding how truthful witnesses may make minor errors due to nervousness or courtroom stress.
Para 31 (Corroboration of Evidence): The Court found the eyewitness accounts clear, consistent, and fully corroborated by the FIR, medical evidence, and investigating officers.
Para 32 (Promptness & Absence of False Implication): Due to the incident occurring in daylight and the FIR being lodged promptly, there was no window for fabrication or falsely implicating the accused while letting the real culprits go.
Paras 33–35 (Conclusion & Order): The High Court dismissed the appeal, affirmed the trial court's conviction/sentence, and ordered the lower court to execute the judgment.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mukhtar Ahmad, J.)

1. This criminal appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 14.10.1982 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Rampur in Sessions Trial No. 254 of 1981, convicting the appellants namely 1-Inam Ullah 2- Shafiq @ Gama 3-Rais and 4- Mehandi @ Bhatia, under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the I.P.C. sentencing each of them to the imprisonment for life. Further convicted under Section 324 read with Section 34 of the I.P.C. sentencing each of them to undergo four months rigorous imprisonment. All these sentences of each appellants are also ordered to run concurrently. Appellant No.1 Inamullah died during pendency of this appeal as such appeal against him has been abated vide order dated 24-10-2008.

2. A synoptical resume of prosecution case is that on wednesday Aziz s/o Majid Pehelwan took the luggage of Rais Pahelwan to patti bazar in his tonga but Rais Pehelwan had not given the fair charges. Two days before the incident Aziz near the State Bank premises in Suar, demanded the fair charges from Rais Pehelwan but Rais Pahelwan abused him by saying that how he dared to demand the money ? and there was some oral altercation between them but one Nazeer Ahmed belonging to the same locality had intervened and resolved the matter.

3. First Information Report of the incident was got lodged by Iqrar PW1 stating that on 2.5.1981 at about 4.15 PM some abuses were exchanged between his brother Abrar and Shareef @ Dilphar brother of Rais Pahelwan in which Abrar had slapped Shareef @ Dilphar. Thereafter Shareef @ Dilphar had gone to his house and Abrar came to the Taal of one Doola Mian and sat on a cot near Aziz. After some time brothers of Sharif @ Dilphar namely Rais Pahelwan armed with chhuri, Shafiq @ Gama having Tamancha (country made pistol) his father Inam Ullah having knife along with one Mehandi @ Bhatia came there and started to abuse his brother.He also reached there. Rais Pahalwan threatened Aziz by saying that they shall also give payment to him. Thereafter altercation took place and all of them went towards Dak Bunglow Tiraha exchanging the abuses. Aziz was started to be assaulted with knife and chhuris. He, his brother Abrar and Manjoo tried to save Aziz but meanwhile fire was opened on Abrar. Rais, Inamullah and Mehndi @Bhatia also assaulted them with knife and chhuris. On hue and cry Ali Jan, Amin PW3 Doola Mian PW4 and Mohammad Yusuf PW5 of the same locality came there and saved them. Aziz succumbed to the injuries on the spot. First informant Iqrar, his brother Abrar and Manjoo sustained serious injuries. Iqrar took Abrar Hussain and Manjoo Khan in a rickshaw to the police station Suar, Rampur where a criminal case bearing case crime no 61 under sections 302, 307/34 I.P.C. was registered against accused persons. Chick F.I.R. was transcribed by Head Muharrir Parshu Ram Sharma (PW-13), who also made entries in G.D. Injured Abrar and Manzoo were sent for medical treatment to Primary Health Care Centre Saur.

4. The investigation was initially taken over by Sub-Inspector H.S. Pawar (PW-10), he went to the Hospital Suar, Rampur and recorded the statements of injured Abrar and Manjoo Khan. He then visited to the place of occurrence and conducted inquest of dead body of Aziz and prepared inquest report (Ex-Ka11) and other relevant papers and sent the dead body to the District Hospital Suar Rampur through Constable Harpal Singh and constable Suresh Chandra (PW-14) for post mortem. He also prepared the site plan (Ex-Ka-12) of the spot and made recovery of plastic shoes (Ex.3) belonging to the deceased Aziz,one empty bag, one pair of black chhapal left by accused persons and prepared Memo to that effect He also took in his possession the blood stained and simple earth from the spot, duly sealed them in separate containers (Ex.6 and 7) and prepared a Memo (Ex-Ka 13) to that effect. He thereafter recorded the statements of the witnesses. On 3.5.1981 Manjoo Khan also died due to the injuries sustained in District Hospital Rampur during his treatment. The investigating Officer after knowing this fact went to the hospital and conducted inquest of the deceased and sent dead body for post mortem examination through constable Ram Bahadur (PW-8) and Jagdish Saran along with other relevant papers prepared by him. He also recorded the statement of the accused persons in the lock up. Subsequently the investigation was conducted by Parveen Singh (PW-11). He after concluding the investigation submitted the charge sheet against accused persons under Section 302/307 and 324 I.P.C. The Magistrate concerned committed the case for trial to the Court of Sessions where charges of the offenses as stated above were framed against the accused persons. They pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

5. The prosecution with a view to prove his case has examined as many as 14 witnesses namely Iqrar (PW-1) the first informant and brother of injured Abrar Hussain. He is the eye witness to the incident. Abrar Hussain (PW-2) who is injured and eye-witness of the incident. Ameen (PW-3), Doola Miyan (PW-4) and Mohammad Yusuf (PW-5) are also examined as eye witnesses of the incident. Doctor P.S. Thakur (PW-6), had examined Iqrar and Manjoo khan. He proved their injury reports. S.I. K.P. Singh (PW-7) had conducted the inquest of Manjoo Khan. Constable Ram Bahadur (PW-8) had taken the dead body of Manzoo Khan in a sealed position along with other papers for postmortem. Doctor H.B. Bhutt (PW-9) has been examined to prove the post mortem report of the deceased Aziz. Sub Inspector H.S. Pawar (PW-10) is the First Investigating Officer of the case. S.I. Parvin Singh (PW-11), who is the second Investigating Officer. Doctor A.U. Khan (PW-12), had examined injured Abrar Khan. Parsho Ram (PW-13) Head Moharrir had recorded the Chick FIR and made entries in the concerning General Diary. Constable Suresh Chandra (PW-14) has been examined to prove the fact that he had taken the dead body of Aziz in sealed position for post mortem.

6. After concluding the prosecution evidence statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. of accused persons were recorded in which they pleads their innosense and false implication. Accused Rais Pahelwan stated that he is the prosecution witness in a case No. 305 of 1981 (State Vs. Sabir Baba and Ors) under Sections 323 and 324 I.P.C. Accused Inamullah also stated additionally that he was living separately from his sons Rais, Shafiq and Shareef for the last 12 years with his second wife and his sons were residing with his first wife. He also contended that he had no concern with his sons. Accused Mehandi Bhatia stated additionally that he is permanent resident of Kashi Pur of Suar. His name was not Mehandi Bhatia but his name is Mehadsi Hussain. Mr. Madan Mohan Chobey Advocate (C.W.1) was summoned by the Court and he was examined to prove the fact that second bail on behalf of the accused Mehndi was moved by him in Court of Sessions, Rampur which was rejected. No evidence was adduced by accused persons in their defence.

7. After evaluating the evidence made available on record learned Trial court observed that prosecution had succeeded in proving his case against accused persons beyond reasonable doubts and held them guilty and awarded the punishment as stated above. Feeling aggrieved with that judgement and order the instant appeal has been preferred.

8. We have heard Mr. Raghuraj Kishore, learned Amicus Curie on behalf of the appellant no.2 and 3 and Mohd. Irfan Khan learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant no.4 and Mr. M.S. Yadav learned A.G.A. on behalf of the State.

9. In this matter Aziz died on spot while first informant Iqrar (PW-1), Abrar Hussain (PW-2) and Manjoo sustained injuries. Manjoo, during the treatment also died due to the injuries sustained.

10. Injured Iqrar (PW-1) was medically examined by Dr. P.S. Thakur (PW-6) on 2.5.1981 at 5.25 PM in Primary Health Centre Suar, Rampur and found the following injury on his person:

1. Incised wound on the back of right thigh 15cm x 1/2 cm x 2 cm deep 37 cm above crease of the knee. Fresh blood was coming out.

11. In the opinion of the Doctor the injury was simple and could be caused by some sharp edged weapon like chhuri or knife and was fresh in its duration. The injury could be caused on 2.5.1981 at about 4-15 PM. He also examined Manjoo Khan on the same day at 5.40 PM and found the following injuries on his person.

1. A lacerated wound on the head 1cm x 1/4 cm x 1/4 cm x dept 13 cm above bridge of nose and 15 cm above the left ear.

2. A traumatic swelling 5-1/2 cm x 4 cm on the left side of fore head 5 cm x above the left eye brow.

3. A traumatic swealing 5 cm x 5 cm on left side of head 6 cm above left ear and 8 cm above the left ear brow.

4. A lacerated wound on the back of head 1.5 cm x 1/4 cm x 1/4 cm deep 12 cm above right ear and 15 cm above left ear.

5. An insided wound on the right hip 2.5 cm x 1 cm x 1 cm deep 13 cm below anterior superior iliac spine and 12 cm away from the mid line.

12. In the opinion of the Doctor the injury no.5 could be caused by some sharp edged weapon like Chhuri and knife and injury no.1 to 4 which were kept under observation could be caused with some blunt weapon. All these injuries were fresh and could be caused at about 4.15 PM on 2.5.1981. The Doctor has stated in his cross examination that Manjoo Khan was referred to the District Hospital, Rampur. Nothing could be elicited from the cross examination of the Doctor which would go to shake his credit.

13. Doctor A.U. Khan (PW-12) has proved the injury report (Ex. Ka 23) of the injured Abrar Hussain. The doctor medically examined Abrar Hussain on 2.5.1981 at 6.30 PM in the District Hospital, Rampur and found the following injuries on his person;

1. Lacerated wound 6 cm x 1cm x bone deep over the middle of the back of the skull. Injury was kept under observation and x-ray was advised.

2. Incised wound 5 cmx 2.5 cm x musle deep over the outer part of the right fore-arm on its upper part.

3. Incised wound 3 cm x 1.5 cm depth not proved over the inner part of the right fore arm at its upper part.

4. Liner abrasion 4 cm x 0.25 cm over the front of the upper part of the neck.

5. Liner abrasion 2.5 cm x 0.24 cm x over the front of the left side neck lower part.

6. Incised wound 3.5 cm x 1.5 cm x dept not proved over the outer part of the right side chest 8 cm away from the right nipple.

7. Incised wound 2.5 cm x 1.5 cm dept not proved over the inner part of the right upper arm upper part.

8. Incised wound 2.5 cm x 2 cm x dept not proved over the front of abdanment lower part 10 cm below the umblicus. Injury kept under observation.

9. Incised wound 3 cm x 1.5 cm x muscle deep over the right side hip 12 cm below from anterior.

10. Abrasion 1 cm x 1 cm over the outer part of the right foot in its front.

14. In the opinion of the Doctor, injuries number 1,3, 6, 7 and 8 were kept under observation and X-ray was advised. All other injuries were simple. All the injuries except injury no.1 and 10 could be caused by some sharp edged weapon. Injury no.1 could be caused by some blunt weapon and injury no.10 by friction. The doctor meant by sharp edged weapon as Chhuri and knife. All the injuries were fresh and could be caused at 4.15 PM on 2.5.1981. In his cross examination the Doctor stated that the injury no. 4 and 5 could also be caused by some pointed and sharp edged weapon. Injury no.10 could also be caused by friction of lathi. The statement of doctor was not challenged in his cross examination.

15. Doctor H.B. Bhutt (PW-9) has proved the post mortem examination report (Ex-Ka 9) of deceased Aziz. He conducted autopsy on the dead body of deceased Aziz on 3.5.1981 at 9 AM in the District Hospital, Rampur. In his opinion the age of the deceased was about 45 years and about half day had passed since the death of Aziz. He found the following ante-mortem injuries on the person of Aziz.

1. Incised wound 3 cm x 1 cm bone -deep on right side of head 7 cm above from the right ear.

2. Incised wound 3 cm x 0.5 cm bone deep on back of left side head 9 cm behind the right ear.

3. Incised wound 5 cm x 1 cm x bone deep on the back of middle of head, 17 cm above the right ear.

4. Incised wound 3 cm x 0.5 cm x chest cavity deep on the left side of chest, 11 cm below the left axilla.

5. Incised wound 2.5 cm x 1 cm abdominal cavity deep on right side of abdomen, 9 cm below the umblicus.

6. Incised wound 3 cm x 0.5 cm x musle deep on outer aspect of right thigh, 2 cm above the right knee.

7. Incised wound 6 cm x 0.5 cm muscle deep on inner aspect of front of left thigh 17 cm x below the greater trouchenter.

8. Incised wound 5 cm x 2 cm skin deep on the back of left fore arm, 11 cm below the left elbow.

9. Incised wound 4 cm x 1 cm musle deep on the back of left thigh upper part 17 cm below the left greater trochenter.

16. On internal examination, the doctor found that left pleura was cut under injury no.4. There was a cut on the left lung under injury no.4. There was a cut on left lung under injury no.4. There was about half pint blood fluid present on left side of chest cavity.

17. There was about 4 once semi digested material in the abdomen. The other organs were found normal. In the opinion of the doctgor the death of the deceased was due to shock and hemorrhage as a result of the injury to the lungs. Injuries fond on the person of the deceased, in the opinion of the doctor were sufficient to cause the death in the ordinary course of nature. The Anti mortem injuries could be caused with knife and Chhuris.

18. Doctor H.B. Bhutt (PW-9) has also proved post mortem examination report (Ex-Ka 10) of the deceased Manjoo. The Doctor performed the autopsy on his dead body at 12 O'clock noon on 3.5.1981 in the District Hospital, Rampur. In his opinion, the age of deceased was about 33 years and the death of the deceased occurred at 3.25 AM on 3.5.1981 in the District Hospital, Rampur. The Doctor found the following anti mortem injuries on his person.

1. Multiple abraded contusions present in an area of 10 cm x 7 cm on the front end middle of head 8 cm above the root of the nose.

2. Abrasion 0.25 cm x 0.25 cm on the bridge of nose 0.5 cm below the root of nose.

3. Abrasion 1 cm x 0.25 cm on the left side of the nose 0.5 cm away from the root of the nose.

4. Multiple abrasion in an area of 11 cm x 4 cm in front of the knee left and upper part of left leg.

5. Multiple abrasion in an area of 6 cm x 5 cm on front of right knee.

6. One stitched wound 2 cm long on the right hip 4 cm below the greater trochenter.

19. On internal examination, the Doctor found the fracture of frontal bone under injury no.1 Membranes were congested. The brain was congested. Blood clott were found on the surface of the brain. The other organs of the body were normal.

20. In the opinion of the doctor the cause of the death of the deceased was come as a result of head injury. In his opinion injuries no.1 to 5 could be caused with some blunt object like butt of Tamancha. The injuries were sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature. In his cross examination the Doctor said that the injury no.4 of Aziz was fatal and the other injuries were simple. Injury no.1 of deceased Manjoo was fatal and other injuries were simple. The doctor said that the injuries found on the person of Manjoo Khan could be more probably caused with lathi and the butts of Tamancha. In the opinion of the doctor it was not necessary that Manjoo would have become unconscious immediately after sustaining the injury no.1. The statement of the Doctor has not been challenged in any other point.

21. The manner of occurrence was deposed to at the trial by Iqrar (PW-1), Abrar (PW-2), Amin (PW-4), Doola Mian (PW-4) and Mohammad Yusuf (PW-5).

22. Iqrar (PW-1) is the informant of this case, who had also received injuries in the alleged occurrence. He stated that on Wednesday about 2 days before the incident Aziz Pahelwan had taken the luggage in tonga of Rais Pahelwan to Patti Bazar. On Thursday Aziz demanded the fair charges on which Rais Pahelwan had threatened Aziz by saying that how he dare to demand the money? And some oral altercation took place between them but the matter was intervened by Nazeer Ahmad. He also stated that on Saturday at about 4-4.30 PM some altercation took place between his brother Abrar and Shareef @ Dilphar and abuses were exchanged and his brother slapped to Shareef @ Dilphar, the matter was intervened by some persons, thereafter Shareef @ Dilphar went to his house. He further stated that his brother Abrar sat on a cot in Taal of Dula Mian (PW-4). That thereafter appellants Inamulla, Rais, Shafiq @ Gama and Mehndi Bhatia came there. Rais and Mehndi were having chhuri in their hands while Shafiq was having country made pistol and Inamulla was having knife. Dula Mian and Amin was also present in the Taal. Shafiq abuses Abrar and Rais said to Aziz as he shall also be given payment thereafter altercation took place between them and all of them went therefrom towaeds the Tiraha of Dak Bunglow. In continuation of such altercation Inamullah, Rais and Mehndi started to assault Aziz by knife and chhuris. First informant Iqrar, his brother Abrar and Manjoo Khan tried to save Aziz but Shafiq opened fire on Abrar but it could not hit him. Thereafter Manjoo caught hold Shafiq then Shafiq caused injuries on his head by Butt of Tamancha. It is also stated by him that he and his brother Abrar further tried to save Aziz but all the three accused persons also assaulted them and Aziz scummed to the injuries sustained. Manjoo Khan was also badly injured. He and Abrar had also received injuries; that Ali Jaan, Amin, Doola Mian and other resident of locality and nearby came on the spot thereafter accused persons went away towards Rock. He also stated that he took Abrar and Manjoo in a Rickshaw thereafter bring them concerning police station where First Information Report was got lodged. Manjoo and Abrar were sent for medical examination and Manjoo expired subsequently during treatment.

23. Abrar Hussain (PW-2), who was injured in this incident, Amin (PW-3), Dulla (PW-4) and Mohammad Yusuf (PW-5), who also witnessed the incident have re-iterated the version in the First Information Report.

24. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of appellants submits that there are inconsistency in the evidence of PW1- Iqrar, PW-2 Abrar Hussain, PW-3 Amin, PW-4 Dulla and PW-5 Mohd. Yusuf and their statements are photographic in nature which should not be accepted. The description of the incident given by witnesses is also suspected as some of the statements made by them were not disclosed to the investigation officer as would also appear from the evidence of Investigating Officer.It is also submitted that all the eye witnesses are interested and inimical and there are discrepancies in their oral testimony as such their evidence is not trustworthy and reliable.

25. The further submission is that the First Information Report is ante timed as in Chitti Majroobi, whereby informant Iqram, Manoo were sent for medical examination does not bear the description of case such as case crime number and Sections. The statements of injured are that they went to the police station, where report was lodged then they were sent for medical examination. The fact that the crime number has not been mentioned in the letters addressed to the doctor for medical examination clearly shows that the FIR is ante timed and it was lodged after inquest and post mortem .

26. Learned A.G.A. per contra submits that the discrepancies as pointed out by learned counsel for the appellant are minor discrepancies. It is a day light murder case. Injured as well as the witnesses present on the spot at the time of occurrence have given actual true version of the incident. It is also submitted that presence of injured witness PW-1 Iqrar and PW-2 Abrar Hussain can not be disputed as they received the injuries in the same incident. Further PW-3 Amin and PW-

5 Yusuf are the witnesses shown in the First Information Report, where as Dulla PW-4 is the Taal owner where incident started and all the witnesses of fact have supported prosecution version by way of reliable and clinching evidence.

27. The contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that First Information Report is anti timed cannot be accepted for the reason that the time of incident mention in it is around 4-15 PM and chick FIR was prepared at 4-45 PM. After lodging the First Information Report, the injured were sent for medical and injured Iqrar and Manjoo Khan were examined at Primary Health Centre, Suar at 5.25 and 5.40 pm respectively. The statements of injured witnesses is that they first went to the police station, where First Information Report was lodged by PW-1 Iqrar then they were sent by the police for medical examination. Time of chick FIR mentioned in the inquest was 9.45 pm. Time of commencement of the inquest of Aziz was mentioned as 6 pm and completion was 7 pm. As such there is no missing link in the sequence of events and the time mentioned in the FIR does not suggest that it is anti timed. There are consistent statements of injured witnesses, Investigating Officer and doctors proving the sequence of events and merely because crime number was not mentioned in the letters sent to doctor along with injured witnesses for medical examination as such it cannot be inferred that FIR is ante timed.

28. The arguments raised on behalf of the appellants regarding relation of witnesses or they are interested/inimical witnesses, in fact, can be discussed together inasmuch as they are based upon somewhat common submissions. There is no doubt that PW1 and PW2, both are real brothers, PW3 is neighbour of deceased Aziz. PW4 Dulla is tall owner where deceased Aziz and Abrar were sitting at the time when accused persons came. In the same way deceased Aziz was maternal uncle of Pw5. The contention raised before us is that all of the witnesses are interested witnesses and have not stated true facts before the Court and thus, their statements should be entirely disbelieved. We are unable to find any merit in this contention. It has come on record that initial altercation just before the incident had taken place between PW2and brother of accused Rais and Shafiq and thereafter all the accused persons came with preparation. There was apparently some anger and rift between the Aziz, Abrar and Accused rais and other accused persons. The deceased was attacked by the accused in the presence of the witness of fact adduced by prosecution and PW1,PW2 and Manjoo tried to save Aziz but they were also belaboured and Manju died subsequently due to injuries sustained in the same incident. It was but natural for the prosecution to produce PW1 and PW2 as the main eye witnesses as they had actually not only seen the occurrence but received injuries in the same incident and they have been believed by the trial Court.In the same way presence of other eye witness is also established. Even before us, no serious attempt has been made and in fact, nothing appears from the record to show that aforesaid witnesses of fact were not present on the site. There is no hard and fast rule that family members or relative witnesses can never be true witnesses to the occurrence and that they will always depose falsity before the Court. It will always depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case. In the case of Jayabalan vs Union teritorry [(2010)1 SCC 199] Hon'ble Apex Court had occasion to consider whether the evidence of interested witnesses can be relied upon. The Court took the view that a pedantic approach cannot be applied while dealing with the evidence of an interested witness. Such evidence cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from a person closely related to the victim. The Court held as under:

" 23. We are of the considered view that in cases where the court is called upon to deal with the evidence of the interested witnesses, the approach of the court, while appreciating the evidence of such witnesses must not be pedantic. The court must be cautious in appreciating and accepting the evidence given by the interested witnesses but the court must not be suspicious of such evidence. The primary endeavour of the court must be to look for consistency. The evidence of a witness cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from the mouth of a person who is closely related to the victim".

29. In so far as the submission of learned counsel for appellants regarding the discrepancies of prosecution witness is concerned, the witness are in fact on the main points as to how the accused person came on the spot having weapons of assault and inflicted injuries intact.No such a grave contradiction could have been shown in the evidence of witnesses which effect the entire prosecution version adversely. In our view minor contradiction in the testimony of the witnesses are bound to occur. Minor discrepancies not touching the core of the case cannot be the ground for rejection of evidence in entirety.

30. A reference may be made to the judgement of Apex Court delivered in Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai v. State of Gujarat, M.P. Thakkar, J. observed:

"13. A witness though wholly truthful, is liable to be overawed by the court atmosphere and the piercing cross examination made by counsel and out of nervousness mix up facts, get confused regarding sequence of events, or fill up details from imagination on the spur of the moment. The sub-conscious mind of the witness sometimes so operates on account of the fear of looking foolish or being disbelieved though the witness is giving a truthful and honest account of the occurrence witnessed by him -perhaps it is a sort of a psychological defence mechanism activated on the spur of the moment.

Discrepancies which do not go to the root of the matter and shake the basic version of the witnesses therefore cannot be annexed with undue importance. More so when the all important "probabilities-factor" echoes in favour of the version narrated by the witnesses."

31. From a perusal of the record, we find that the evidence of PWs 1 to 5 is clear and categorical in reference to the manner of incident and the role played by accused persons. They have clearly and consistently supported the prosecution version and have unequivocally stated that the deceased Aziz was caused multiple injuries resulting his death on spot and PW1,PW2 along with Manjoo, who tried to save Aziz were also asaulted causing serious injuries due to which Manjoo also died subsequently.The aforesaid version narrated by the prosecution witnesses, viz. PWs 1 to 5 also finds corroboration from the facts stated in first Information Report. Their statements about weapons of assault, as well as the injuries caused by the appellants are duly supported by the medical evidence, as well as by the statements of the investigating officers. Thus, we find that the contention raised on behalf of the appellants is liable to be rejected.

32. It further comes out that the incident occurred at about 4-15 pm. Injured Iqram (PW-1) along with injured Abrar Hussain (PW-2) and Manjoo Khan, who died subsequently during treatment reached to the police station, lodged the FIR and were taken by police for medical examination to Primary Health Centre, Suar where they were examined by Dr. P.S. Thakar (PW-6). Incident happened in day light, therefore it is improbable that the appellants have been falsely implicated as promptness in lodging of the First Information Report shows that there was no time for manipulation. Further it does not appeal to reason as to why injured witnesses would falsely implicate the appellants and spare the real culprits to go scot free.

33. In view of the discussions made above, we reach an inescapable conclusion that the appellants are guilty of the commission of the offence for which they have been charged, we do not find any force in the present appeal. The appeal lacks merit and is hereby dismissed accordingly.

34. The impugned judgement and order dated 14.10.1982 passed in Sessions Trial No. 254 of 1981 District-Rampur convicting and sentencing the accused-appellants is affirmed. Appellants have to serve out the sentence awarded by the trial Court and affirmed by this Court.

35. The certified copy be sent to the learned Court below within a week. The record of the case be also transmitted the Court below along with certified copy of the judgment.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CRIMINAL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE MRS. RANJANA PANDYA, J.

Application U/S 482/378/407 No.- 3023 Of 2016

Santosh Kumar Yadav & Ors. ...Applicants
Versus
State Of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite parties

Counsel for the Applicants:
Shri Kaunwar Mukul Rakesh, Shri Kaunwar Shushant Prakash

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:
G.A., Shri Salil Kumar Srivastava

Held –
The applicants filed an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. seeking quashing of the revisional order dated 21.04.2016, the summoning order dated 03.11.2015, and the criminal complaint under Sections 352, 498-A, 457 IPC and Section 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act.

The applicants argued that the criminal proceedings were an abuse of process and had been initiated by opposite party no. 2 merely to harass them and reopen an already concluded matter.

The Court recorded the matrimonial dispute between applicant no. 1 and opposite party no. 2, including disputes concerning their child, habeas corpus proceedings, subsequent criminal proceedings, an alleged fabricated death certificate, earlier proceedings under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., and the later complaint culminating in the summoning order.

The applicants contended that the number of accused persons had been increased, the allegations were false and improved, and no offence under Section 457 IPC was made out.

The applicants challenged both the summoning order and the revisional order on the ground of illegality and non-application of mind.
Opposite party no. 2 argued that the applicants had already exhausted their revisional remedy and could not use Section 482 Cr.P.C. as a further revision.

Relying on Rajiv Modi v. Sanjay Jain, the applicants argued that Section 482 powers may be exercised to prevent abuse of process and secure the ends of justice, particularly in exceptional cases of malicious prosecution.

The complainant argued that, at the summoning stage, the Magistrate only has to determine whether sufficient grounds exist to proceed and cannot decide intricate factual questions.

Referring to State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan and other precedents, the Court observed that Section 482 jurisdiction must be exercised sparingly and that the High Court should ordinarily examine only whether the allegations disclose an offence.

The Court reiterated that the High Court cannot appreciate evidence or examine the probability, reliability, or genuineness of allegations while exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C.
The applicants maintained that the High Court could nevertheless examine the legality of the impugned orders where material illegality had caused a miscarriage of justice.

Relying on Shri Ganesh Narayan Hegde v. Shri S. Bangarappa, it was argued that Section 482 jurisdiction survives even after revision, though the High Court should not function as a second revisional court.

The Court accepted the general principle that interference is justified where continuation of proceedings would amount to abuse of the process of court, but such satisfaction must first be reached by the High Court.

The applicants alternatively submitted, relying on Pepsi Foods Ltd. V. Special Judicial Magistrate, that the petition could be treated as one under Article 226, as nomenclature is not decisive.

The Court reiterated that, at the stage of summoning, the Magistrate only has to determine whether sufficient grounds exist to proceed against the accused.

The Court referred to State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, particularly the principle permitting quashing where criminal proceedings are manifestly mala fide or maliciously instituted to wreak vengeance.

On examining the Magistrate's order, the Court found that a categorical finding regarding sufficient grounds to proceed had been recorded; the likelihood of conviction or acquittal was irrelevant at the summoning stage.

The complainant submitted that after dismissal of a revision under Section 397 Cr.P.C., Section 482 jurisdiction could be invoked only where necessary to prevent abuse of process or secure the ends of justice.

Relying on G. Sagar Suri v. State of U.P. and CBI v. Ravi Shankar Srivastava, the Court reiterated that Section 482 jurisdiction must be exercised with great care and only in exceptional circumstances.

The Court referred to V.C. Shukla v. State through CBI and observed that Section 397(3) Cr.P.C. does not extinguish the inherent powers of the High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

Referring to Rajinder Prasad v. Bashir and Krishnan v. Krishnaveni, the Court observed that Section 482 cannot ordinarily be used to circumvent the bar against a second revision, except in cases involving failure of justice, abuse of process, or miscarriage of justice.

The Court held that, on the material available, it could not be said that no offence was made out. The applicants' contentions involved disputed questions of fact and defence matters that could not be adjudicated under Section 482 Cr.P.C. The applicants were left free to seek discharge before the trial court under the appropriate provisions of the Cr.P.C.

The Court concluded that the application lacked merit and was liable to be dismissed.

Accordingly, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. was dismissed.

2. Counsel for the applicants has submitted that the present proceedings are nothing but abuse of the process of law. Opposite party no. 2 has left no stone unturned to harass the applicants. He has further submitted that in the garb of the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., the opposite party has reopened the matter which could not have been reopened.

3. Brief facts are that the opposite party no. 2 was married to the applicant no. 1 namely Santosh Kumar Yadav on 06.03.2011. As per the averments of the applicants, the opposite party no. 2 deserted the applicant no. 1 on 11.09.2011 when she was pregnant. She gave birth to a male child on 14.01.2012.The child was concealed by the opposite party no. 2 whereupon the applicants moved a Habeas Corpus Petition no. 231 of 2012 in which an inquiry was ordered. In the Inquiry, it was made to understand that the son of applicant no. 1 had died. The aforesaid Habeas Corpus Petition was decided granting liberty to applicant no. 1 to lodge a first information report against opposite party no. 2 regarding murder of the child. At this, a case was registered against the opposite party no. 2 and her family members on the behest of applicant no. 1. The matter was investigated and it was revealed that the son of applicant no. 1 was alive who was given in the custody of applicant no. 1. During the course of inquiry, the opposite party no.2 and her parents have submitted a fabricated death certificate of the son of applicant no. 1 issued by Dileep Gupta in an order to pressurise the applicant no. 1 and to conceal her activities. The opposite party no. 2 moved a false and fabricated application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. before the concerned Magistrate, Lucknow which was rejected, vide order dated 15.04.2014. Against the aforesaid rejection order, the opposite party no. 2 preferred an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C., in which opposite party no. 2 was directed to file a complaint before the Magistrate. The opposite party no. 2 preferred a complaint which was registered and procedures under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. were followed. On 01.11.2011, a compromise was entered into between the applicant no. 1 and opposite party no. 2, whereby the opposite party no. 2 obtained cash from the applicant no. 1 along with articles including motorcycle given at the time of marriage. After entering into the compromise as stated earlier, the first information report was lodged by the applicant no. 1 under the directions of the High Court which is pending after submission of charge sheet before the learned Magistrate and the instant complaint has been filed just to harass the applicants. A complaint and the statements of the witnesses speak about the falsity of the whole matter. The applicants Santosh Yadav, Muneshwar Yadav, Kusum Yadav and Pramod Yadav on the basis of complaint were summoned under Sections 352, 498A, 457 I.P.C. And 4 D.P. Act, while the applicants Raj Narayan Yadav, Priyanka Yadav and Virendra Yadav were summoned under Sections 498A I.P.C. And 4 D.P. Act.

4. It is note worthy that the number of accused persons have been increased from 4 to 8 by the opposite party no. 2. The summoning order is bad in the eyes of law which is illegal. No offence under Section 457 I.P.C. is made out. A similar application was moved by the opposite party no. 2. Allegations under Section 498A I.P.C. are false on the face of it. The present complaint is an improved reversion of the earlier application moved under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. which was rejected by the learned Magistrate on 15.04.2014.

5. Against the aforesaid summoning order, the applicants preferred a Criminal Revision which was decided on 21.04.2016 against the applicants. The order of the revisional court again is illegal and has been passed ignoring the principles of law laid down. The impugned orders suffers from non application of mind, hence the order dated 21.04.2016 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 17, Lucknow in Criminal Revision No. 28 of 2016 an order dated 03.11.2015 passed by ACJM-V, Court No. 29, Lucknow are liable to be quashed.

6. Sri Salil Kumar Srivastava, counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has vehemently argued that the applicants have exhausted all remedies available to them and now this Court while exercising its power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. cannot quash the orders passed by both the courts below.

7. The learned counsel for the applicant has also relied upon 2009 (66) ACC 643, Rajiv Modi Vs. Sanjay Jain and others, in which the Hon'ble Apex Court has laid down that whole or part of cause of action must have arisen within the territorial jurisdiction of the court. Same must be decided on the basis of averments made in the complaint without embarking upon any inquiry. In the same Rajiv Modi's case (supra), the Hon'ble Apex Court has also laid down in para 33 as under:-

33. The cardinal principle's which requires to be kept in view while invoking powers under Section 482 of Cr.P.C. has been stated in the case of State of H.P. v. Pirthi Chand wherein this Court has observed that:

"When the court exercises its inherent power under Section 482, the prime consideration should only be whether the exercise of the power would advance the cause of justice or it would be an abuse of the process of the court." (Para 13)

"It is thus settled law that the exercise of inherent power of the High Court is an exceptional one. Great care should be taken by the High Court before embarking to scrutinise the FIR/charge-sheet/complaint. In deciding whether the case is rarest of rare cases to scuttle the prosecution in its inception, it first has to get into the grip of the matter whether the allegations constitute the offence. It must be remembered that FIR is only an initiation to move the machinery and to investigate into cognizable offence. After the investigation is conducted (sic concluded) and the charge-sheet is laid, the prosecution produces the statements of the witnesses recorded under Section 161 of the Code in support of the charge-sheet. At that stage it is not the function of the court to weigh the pros and cons of the prosecution case or to consider necessity of strict compliance of the provisions which are considered mandatory and its effect of non-compliance. It would be done after the trial is concluded. The court has to prima facie consider from the averments in the charge-sheet and the statements of witnesses on the record in support thereof whether court could take cognizance of the offence on that evidence and proceed further with the trial. If it reaches a conclusion that no cognizable offence is made out, no further act could be done except to quash the charge-sheet. But only in exceptional cases, i.e., in rarest of rare cases of mala fide initiation of the proceedings to wreak private vengeance, the court may embark upon the consideration thereof and exercise the power." (Para 12)

8. Counsel for the complainant has argued that the court should be very cautious while exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No intricate questions can be decided in jurisdiction exercised under Section 482 Cr.P.C. In this regard, the counsel for the complainant has argued that the only thing the Magistrate has to look into while passing the summoning order is whether there are sufficient grounds to proceed against the accused or not. The Magistrate found that there were sufficient grounds to proceed against the accused. Thus, section under which the accused was summoned cannot be segregated from the offence.

9. As far as the inherent powers of the court are concerned, the inherent powers of the High Court have been laid down by the Apex Court in AIR 1989 Supreme Court 1, State of Bihar Vs. Murad Ali Khan and others, in which it has been held as under:-

"6. The second-ground takes into consideration the merits of the matter. It cannot be said that the complaint does not spell-out the ingredients of the offence alleged. A complaint only means any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate. With a view to his taking action, that some person, whether known or unknown, has 'committed an offence.

It is trite jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. which saves the inherent power of the High court, to make such orders as may be necessary to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, has to be exercised sparingly and with circumspection. In exercising that jurisdiction the High Court would not embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations in the complaint are likely to be established by evidence or not. That is the function of the Trial Magistrate when the evidence comes before him. Though it is neither possible nor advisable to lay down any inflexible rules to regulate that jurisdiction, one thing, however, appears clear and it is that when the High Court is called upon to exercise this jurisdiction to quash a proceeding at the stage of the Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence the High Court is guided by the allegations, whether those allegations, set out in the complaint or the charge-sheet do not in law constitute or spell-out any offence and that resort to criminal proceedings would, in the circumstances, amount to an abuse of the process of the court or not."

In Municipal Corporation of Delhi v. R.K. Rohtagi, [1983] 1 SCR 884 at p. 890 ☹AIR 1983 SC 67 at p.70) it is reiterated:

"It is, therefore, manifestly clear that proceedings against an accused in the initial stages can be quashed only if on the face of the complaint or the papers accompanying the same, no offence is constituted. In other words, the test is that taking the allegations and the complaint as they are, without adding or subtracting anything, if no offence is made out then the High Court will be justified in quashing the proceedings in exercise of its powers under Section 482 of the present Code."

In Municipal Corporation of Delhi v. P.D. Jhunjunwala, [1983] 1 SCR p. 895 : (AIR 1983 SC 158 at p. 159) it was further made clear:

" . . . As to what would be the evidence against the respondents is not a matter to be considered at this stage and would have to be proved at the trial. We have already held that for purpose of quashing the proceedings only the allegations set forth in the complaint have to be seen and nothing further."

10. It has been held that so far quashing of the complaints and inquiry on the basis of F.I.R. registered by the complainant are concerned, interference by the High Court with the same and quashing the proceedings by an elaborate discussion on merits of the matter and coming to the conclusion of Section 195 being a bar, is rather premature for the High Court to come to the aforesaid conclusion. The scope of Section 482 has also been given in AIR 2004 Supreme Court 517, State of M.P. Vs. Awadh Kishore Gupta and others, in which it has been held that the High Court cannot appreciate the evidence to conclude whether the material produced are sufficient or not for convicting the accused. The inquiry as to the probability, reliability, genuineness of allegations in the F.I.R. is totally beyond the scope of Section 482 as has been laid down in 2000 CRLJ 2256, Udaipal Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and another*.

11. Counsel for the applicants has submitted that it is well within the power of the court to examine the whole matter to prevent the abuse of the process of court. It has further been submitted that since both the courts below have committed material illegality in passing the impugned orders which has resulted in miscarriage of justice. This Court while exercising the jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. can examine the legality of the orders.

12. Counsel for the applicants has placed reliance upon 1995 SCC (4) 41, Shri Ganesh Narayan Hegde vs. Shri S. Bangarappa and others in which it has been held as under:-

"12. While it is true that availing of the remedy of the revision to the Sessions Judge under Section 399 does not bar a person from invoking the power of the High Court under Section 482, it is equally true that the High Court should not act as a second Revisional Court under the garb of exercising inherent powers. While exercising its inherent powers in such a matter it must be conscious of the fact that the learned Sessions Judge has declined to exercise his revisory power in the matter. The High Court should interfere only where it is satisfied that if the complaint is allowed to be proceeded with, it would amount to abuse of process of Court or that the interests of justice otherwise call for quashing of the charges. A few decisions of this Court may usefully be referred at this stage. In Mrs.Dhanalakshmi v. R.Prasanna Kumar & Ors. (AIR 1990 S.C.494) this Court stated in a case of similar nature:

"Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure empowers the High Court to exercise its inherent powers to prevent abuse of the process of Court. In proceedings instituted on complaint exercise of the inherent power to quash the proceedings is called for only in cases where the complaint does not disclose any offence or is frivolous, vexatious or oppressive. If the allegations set out in the complaint do not constitute the offence of which cognizance is taken by the Magistrate it is open to the High Court to quash the same in exercise of the inherent powers under Section 482. It is not, however, necessary that there should be a meticulous analysis of the case, before the trial to find out whether the case would end in conviction or not. The complaint has to be read as a whole. If it appears on a consideration of the allegations, in the light of the statement on oath of the complainant that ingredients of the offence/ offences are disclosed, and there is no material to show that the complaint is mala fide frivolous or vexatious, in that event there would be no justification for interference by the High Court."

13. There is no quarrel in the proposition of law that the High Court should interfere where it is satisfied that if the proceedings are allowed to be proceeded with, would amount to the abuse of process of Court but the satisfaction of the court is must before orders are passed for quashing of the proceedings.

14. Counsel for the applicants has also submitted that in case the Court finds that the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is not tenable then it can be treated under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and the nomenclature under which a petition is filed is not relevant as per the law laid down in (1998) 5 Supreme Court Cases 749, Pepsi Foods Ltd. And another vs. Special Judicial Magistrate and others.

15. I have said earlier at the time of summoning the accused, the only thing the Magistrate has to see is whether there are sufficient grounds to proceed against the accused or not.

16. In 1992 Supp (1) Supreme Court Cases 335, State of Haryana and others vs. Bhajan Lal and others, in which it has been held as under:-

"Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

17. I have perused the impugned order of the Magistrate. The Magistrate has given a categorical finding that there are sufficient ground to proceed in the matter. At the time of summoning, the Magistrate do not have to examine whether the matter would come under any conviction or acquittal.

18. Sri Salil Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has submitted that when an application under Section 397 Cr.P.C. is filed by any party in the court of session and it is decided against him, the powers of Section 482 can only be invoked if the order of the Sessions Judge has resulted in the abuse of the process of the court and / or calls for interference to secure the ends of justice.

19. In the same context, counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has placed reliance upon G. Sagar Suri vs. State of U.P., (2000) 2 SCC 636 in which it has been laid down as under:-

"8. Jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code has to be exercised with great care. In exercise of its jurisdiction the High Court is not to examine the matter superficially. It is to be seen if a matter, which is essentially of a civil nature, has been given a cloak of criminal offence. Criminal proceedings are not a short cut of other remedies available in law. Before issuing process a criminal court has to exercise a great deal of caution. For the accused it is a serious matter. This Court has laid certain principles on the basis of which the High Court is to exercise its jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code. Jurisdiction under this section has to be exercised to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice."

This Court therein noticed a large number of decisions to opine that whenever the High Court comes to the conclusion that allowing the proceeding to continue would be an abuse of the process of court and that the ends of justice require that the proceedings should be quashed, it would not hesitate to do so.

13. In Central Bureau of Investigation v. Ravi Shankar Srivastava, [(2006) 7 SCC 188] this Court while opining that the High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code does not function either as a court of appeal or revision, held :-

"7. Exercise of power under Section 482 of the Code in a case of this nature is the exception and not the rule. The section does not confer any new powers on the High Court. It only saves the inherent power which the Court possessed before the enactment of the Code. It envisages three circumstances under which the inherent jurisdiction may be exercised, namely, (i) to give effect to an order under the Code, (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of court, and (iii) to otherwise secure the ends of justice. It is neither possible nor desirable to lay down any inflexible rule which would govern the exercise of inherent jurisdiction. No legislative enactment dealing with procedure can provide for all cases that may possibly arise."

20. I am conscious of the legal position laid down in 1980 Supp SCC 92, V. C. Shukla vs. State through CBI in which it has been held that sub-section (3) of Section 397, however, does not limit at all the inherent powers of the High Court contained in Section 482. It merely curbs the revisional power given to the High Court or the Sessions Court under Section 397(1) of the Code.

21. In (2001) 8 Supreme Court Case 522, Rajinder Prasad vs. Bashir and others, while discussing the same aspect of the matter, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under:-

"We are of the opinion that when the earlier revision petition filed under Section 397 of the Code had been dismissed as not pressed, the accused-respondents could not be allowed to invoke the inherent powers of the High Court under Section 482 of the Code for the grant of the same relief. We do not agree with the arguments of the learned counsel for the respondents that as the earlier application had been dismissed as not pressed, the accused had acquired a right to challenge the order adding the offence under Section 395 of the Code and arraying four persons as accused-persons by way of subsequent petition under Section 482 of the Code. The object of criminal trial is to render public justice and to assure punishment to the criminals keeping in view that the trial is concluded expeditiously. Delaying tactics or protracting the commencement or conclusion of the criminal trial are required to be curbed effectively, lest the interest of public justice may suffer. For exercising power under Section 482 of the Code the learned Judge of the High Court relied upon a judgment of this Court in Krishnan & Anr. V. Krishnaveni & Ors. [1997 (4) SCC 241]. A perusal of the aforesaid judgment, however, shows that the reliance by the learned Judge was misplaced. This Court in Krishnan's case (supra) had held that though the power of the High Court under Section 482 of the Code is very wide, yet the same must be exercised sparingly and cautiously particularly in a case where the petitioner is shown to have already invoked the revisional jurisdiction under Section 397 of the Code. Only in cases where the High Court finds that there has been failure of justice or misuse of judicial mechanism or procedure, sentence or order was not correct, the High Court may, in its discretion, prevent the abuse of the process or miscarriage of justice by exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code. It was further held:

10. "Ordinarily, when revision has been barred by Section 397(3) of the Code, a person – accused/complainant – cannot be allowed to take recourse to the revision to the High Court under Section 397(1) or under inherent powers of the High Court under Section 482 of the Code since it may amount to circumvention of provisions of Section 397(3) or Section 397(2) of the Code."

22. From the perusal of the material on record and looking into the facts of the case, at this stage, it cannot be said that no offence is made out against the applicant. All the submissions made at the bar relate to the disputed questions of fact, which cannot be adjudicated upon by this Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. At this stage, only prima facie case is to be seen in the light of the law laid down by Supreme Court in cases of R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 866, State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 426, State of Bihar Vs. P.P.Sharma, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 192 and lastly Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. Vs. Mohd. Saraful Haq and another (Para-10) 2005 SCC (Cr.) 283. The disputed defence of the accused cannot be considered at this stage. Moreover, the applicants have got a right of discharge under Section 239 or 227/228 Cr.P.C. as the case may be through a proper application for the said purpose and he is free to take all the submissions in the said discharge application before the Trial Court.

23. Thus, on the basis of the aforesaid discussions, the application has no force and is liable to be dismissed.

24. The application is, accordingly, dismissed.

Writ C No.- 3849 Of 2009

Connected with Other Cases

Shiv Ram ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioner:
Shri S.C. Varma, Shri Satyendra Kumar Singh, Shri Virendra Singh

Counsel for Respondents:
C.S.C., Shri V.K. Singh

Held –

Para 1: The Court records the appearance of counsel for the petitioners and the State of Uttar Pradesh.

Para 2: Owing to conflicting Single-Judge decisions in Sewak Shanker and Shanker Saran regarding maintainability of writ petitions against orders under Section 122-B of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, a Division Bench in Rajendra Singh v. State of U.P. held that the statutory remedy of a suit was an alternative and efficacious remedy and, therefore, writ jurisdiction should not be invoked.

Para 3: A Single Judge doubted the correctness of Rajendra Singh and referred three questions to the Larger Bench concerning: (i) maintainability of writ petitions despite the remedy of suit; (ii) reconsideration of Rajendra Singh in light of earlier precedents; and (iii) whether a civil suit is always the appropriate remedy considering Section 331 of the Act.

Para 4: The Court traces the legislative history of Sections 122-A and 122-B. Section 122-B creates a complete summary procedure for eviction of unauthorised occupants from land vested in the State, Gaon Sabha or local authority, recovery of damages, revision before the Collector, and institution of a suit to establish claimed rights.

Para 5: The 1982 amendment introduced revision under Section 122-B(4-A), a suit under Section 122-B(4-D), finality of orders subject to such remedies, and restrictions concerning suits after revision. The proviso to Section 229-D prevents interim injunctions in suits challenging Section 122-B orders, reflecting legislative intent for speedy removal of unauthorised occupants from public land.

Para 6: Proceedings under Section 122-B are summary in nature and are often decided on limited material such as a Lekhpal's report. The State or Gaon Sabha must prove illegal occupation when disputed. Questions of land identity may require a survey. Since interim protection may not be available in a suit under the proviso to Section 229-D, a suit may not always constitute an efficacious alternative remedy; therefore, the existence of such remedy cannot automatically bar a writ petition.

Para 7: The Court reproduces Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution, which confer writ and supervisory jurisdiction upon the High Courts.

Para 8: The jurisdiction under Articles 226 and 227 is wide and forms part of the basic structure of the Constitution. High Courts may review State action for illegality, irrationality and procedural impropriety. Such constitutional jurisdiction cannot be destroyed by legislation or constitutional amendment.

Para 9: A statutory provision declaring an order "final" does not exclude the High Court's constitutional jurisdiction under Articles 226 and 227 to examine illegality, irrationality or procedural impropriety.

Para 10: Although constitutional writ jurisdiction cannot be curtailed by ordinary legislation, it must be exercised consistently with legislative intent and the statutory framework. The power under Article 226 exists to uphold the rule of law, not to bypass it.

Para 11: The rule of alternative remedy is a self-imposed restriction and not an absolute rule of law. Ordinarily, where an effective and efficacious statutory remedy exists, the High Court may decline to entertain a writ petition. Highly disputed questions of fact may also justify refusal, though the High Court retains discretion to examine factual disputes in appropriate cases.

Para 12: The bar of alternative remedy does not apply where the authority lacked jurisdiction or unlawfully assumed jurisdiction.

Para 13: Whirlpool Corporation reaffirmed that Article 226 jurisdiction is plenary. Alternative remedy does not ordinarily bar a writ petition where: (i) fundamental rights are sought to be enforced; (ii) principles of natural justice have been violated; (iii) the proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction; or (iv) the vires of legislation is challenged.

Para 14: While exercising writ jurisdiction, the High Court should consider factors including disputed questions of fact, disclosure of material facts, availability of an effective alternative remedy, delay and laches, limitation, public policy and statutory bars.

Para 15: The Supreme Court reiterated that alternative remedy is a rule of policy, convenience and judicial discretion rather than an absolute legal prohibition. Writ jurisdiction may be exercised where the statutory authority violates the governing enactment, fundamental judicial procedure, acts under repealed provisions, or passes an order in total violation of natural justice.

Para 16: The Court summarises the governing principles: writ jurisdiction is discretionary. The High Court may intervene in cases involving statutory illegality, violation of fundamental judicial procedure or natural justice, while also considering disputed facts, availability and efficacy of alternative remedies, delay, public policy and other relevant circumstances.

Para 17 – Final Answers of the Larger Bench:

Question (i): Answered in the negative. Articles 226 and 227 form part of the basic structure and cannot be taken away or restricted by legislation, constitutional amendment or judicial dicta.

Question (ii): Answered in the negative. Statutory finality of orders does not prevent the High Court from examining illegality, irrationality and procedural impropriety under Articles 226 and 227.

Question (iii): Answered in the negative. A suit is not invariably an efficacious remedy because interim injunction may be unavailable under the proviso to Section 229-D, and a civil suit may not always be maintainable because of Section 331. A writ petition may therefore be entertained in exceptional cases involving statutory illegality, jurisdictional error, violation of fundamental judicial procedure or total violation of natural justice.

Result: The Larger Bench effectively disapproved the absolute proposition in Rajendra Singh that a writ petition against every order under Section 122-B is barred merely because a remedy of suit exists. The writ petitions were directed to be placed before the Single Judge for disposal in accordance with the Larger Bench judgment.

1. Heard Sri S. C. Varma along with Sri Anil Kumar Aditya for the petitioners and Sri C. B. Yadav, Additional Advocate General, along with Sri Shashank Shekhar Singh, Additional Chief Standing Counsel, for State of U.P.

2. Due to conflict in opinion between two Hon'ble Single Judges in the cases of Sewak Shanker Vs. Additional Collector, Agra and others, 1985 ALJ 746 and Shanker Saran and others Vs. State of U. P. and others, 1987 AWC 755, on the issue of maintainability of writ petition, challenging orders passed in proceeding under Section 122-B of U.P. Act No.1 of 1951(hereinafter referred to as "the Act"), the matter was placed before the Division Bench in Rajendra Singh Vs. State of U.P., 2008 (4) ADJ 37 (DB), under the orders of Hon'ble the Chief Justice for resolving the same. The Division Bench framed the following question for consideration:

"Whether as per Section 122-B, sub-section (4-C), (4-D) and (4-E) of the U. P. Z. A. & L. R. Act, 1950, civil suit is the appropriate remedy to resolve the dispute ?"

Or

"Whether writ petition could lie against any order under sub-section irrespective of availability of alternative and efficacious remedy of civil suit ?"

The Division Bench held that in view of alternative and efficacious remedy of suit, under the statute itself, writ jurisdiction of this Court cannot be invoked.

3. Correctness of dictum laid down by the Division Bench in Rajendra Singh (supra), was doubted by a Single Judge, who has referred the following questions to be answered by a larger Bench, for which this Bench has been constituted by Hon'ble the Chief Justice:-

(i). Whether the Division Bench in the case of Rajendra Singh (supra) is correct in holding that writ petition challenging the orders passed in proceedings under Section 122-B of the U. P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act would not be maintainable in view of alternative remedy of suit provided by the Statute itself, against the orders passed by the Assistant Collector or the Collector in the said proceedings?

(ii). Whether the view expressed by the Division Bench in the case of Rajendra Singh (supra) that since a remedy by way of suit has been provided in sub section (4-D) of Section 122-B, the writ petition challenging the order passed in proceedings under Section 122-B would be barred by principles of existence of alternative remedy requires reconsideration in view of Division Benches of co-ordinate jurisdiction in the case of K.H. Panjani Vs. State of U.P., AIR 1959 All. 26 (DB), Smt. Shanti Devi Vs. State of U.P., 1978 AWC 189 and Satyapal Singh Chauhan Vs. Chairman-cum-chief Executive Officer, 1984 UPLBEC 587 (DB) as well as Full Bench decisions in the case of Buddhu Vs. Municipal Board, AIR 1952 All 753 (FB) and Bijli Cotton Mills Pvt.

Ltd., Hathras Vs. Estate Officer/Secretary, National Textile Corporation, U.P. & Ors. 1977 AWC 191 (SB)?

(iii). Whether the Division Bench judgment in the case of Rajendra Singh (supra) holding that ''civil suit' is the appropriate remedy to resolve every dispute under Section 122-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, lays down the correct law, even though the legislature has used the words "suit in a court of competent jurisdiction in sub section ''4-D', and Section 331 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act specifically bars the jurisdiction of civil court, in respect of any suit, application or proceedings based on a cause of action in respect of which relief could be granted by Revenue courts?

4. By U.P. Act No. XXXVII of 1958, the Act was amended, adding Section 122-A, giving power of superintendence, management, preservation and control of all land vested in Gaon Sabha to Land Management Committee of the village. By U.P. Act No. XXVIII of 1961, Section 122-B was added, providing a summary procedure for ejectment of an unauthorised occupants of the land vested in State of U.P./Gaon Sabha/Local Authority and realization of damages for use and occupation and misappropriation of such property. Rules 115-C etc. were also framed, giving procedures for initiation and deciding the proceeding under Section 122-B of the Act. Various amendments were also made in it time to time, making a complete summary procedure for ejectment of unauthorised occupants from the land of State/Gaon Sabha/Local Authority and imposition of fine for use/occupation and misappropriation of such land. Section 122-B of the Act, as amended, is quoted below:-

122-B. Powers of the Land Management Committee and the Collector.- (1) Where any property vested under the provisions of this Act in a Gaon Sabha or a local authority is damaged or misappropriated or where any Goan Sabha or local authority is entitled to take or retain possession of any land under the provisions of this Act and such land is occupied otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the Land Management Committee or local authority, as the case may be, shall inform the Assistant Collector concerned in the manner prescribed.

(2) Where from the information received under sub-section (1) or otherwise, the Assistant Collector is satisfied that any property referred to in sub-section (1) has been damaged or misappropriated or any person is in occupation of any land, referred to in that sub-section, in contravention of the provisions of this Act, he shall issue notice to the person concerned to show cause why compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation as mentioned in such notice be not recovered from him or, as the case may be, why he should not be evicted from such land.

(3) If the person to whom a notice has been issued under sub-section (2) fails to show cause within the time specified in the notice or within such extended time not exceeding [thirty days] from the date of service of such notice on such person, as the Assistant Collector may allow in this behalf, or if the cause shown is found to be insufficient, the Assistant Collector may direct that such person may be evicted from the land and may for that purpose, use, or cause to be used such force as may be necessary and may direct that the amount of compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation be recovered from such person as arrears of land revenue.

(4) If the Assistant Collector is of opinion that the person showing cause is not guilty of causing the damage or misappropriation or wrongful occupation referred to in the notice under sub-section (2) he shall discharge the notice.

(4-A) Any person aggrieved by the order of the Assistant Collector under sub-section (3) or sub-section (4) may, within thirty days from the date of such order, prefer a revision before the Collector on the grounds mentioned in clauses (a) to € of Section 333.

(4-B) The procedure to be followed in any action taken under this Section shall be such as may be prescribed.

(4-C) Notwithstanding anything contained in Section 333 or Section 333-A, but subject to the provisions of this section–

(i) Every order of the Assistant Collector under this section shall, subject to the provisions of sub-sections (4-A) and (4-D), be final,

(ii) Every order of the Collector under this section shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (4-D), be final.

(4-D) Any person aggrieved by the order of the Assistant Collector or Collector in respect of any property under this section may file a suit in a court of competent jurisdiction to establish the right claimed by him in such property.

(4-E) No such suit as is referred to in sub-section (4-D) shall lie against an order of the Assistant Collector if a revision is preferred to the Collector under sub-section (4-A).

Explanation- For the purposes of this section, the expression 'Collector' means the officer appointed as 'Collector' under the provisions of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901 and includes as Additional Collector.

(4-F) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sub-sections, where any agricultural labourer belonging to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe is in occupation of any land vested in a Gaon Sabha under Section 117 (not being land mentioned in Section 132) having occupied it from before May 13, 2007 and the land so occupied together with land, if any, held by him from before the said date as bhumidhar, sirdar or asami, does not exceed 1.26 hectare (3.125 acres), then no action under this section shall be taken by the Land Management Committee or the Collector against such labourer, and he shall be admitted as bhumidhar with non-transferable rights of that land under Section 195 and it shall not be necessary for him to institute a suit for declaration of his rights as bhumidhar with non-transferable rights in that land.

(5) Rules 115 -C to 115 -H of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Rules, 1952, shall be and be always deemed to have been made under the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, as amended by the Uttar Pradesh Land Laws (Second Amendment) Act, 1961, as if this section has been in force on all material dates and shall accordingly continue in force until altered or repealed or amended in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

5. Some amendments were made in the Act, by U.P. Act No. 20 of 1982, w.e.f. 20.08.1982, which are necessary for consideration in this case. Sub-sections (1) to (4-E) were substituted in Section 122-B. Section 122-B (4-A) provides for revision , before the Collector from the order of Assistant Collector. Section 122-B (4-D) provides for a suit, against the orders of Assistant Collector or the Collector to establish his right over disputed land. Section 122-B (4-C) makes the orders of Assistant Collector and the Collector as final subject to suit. Section 122-B (4-E) bars suit from the revisional order. Simultaneously a proviso was added under Section 229-D of the Act, taking jurisdiction of the Revenue Court, of granting interim injunction, in the suit, in which the order passed under Section 122-B is challenged. Legislative intention by adding proviso to Section 229-D is that an unauthorised occupant over public land be ejected as early as possible.

6. Section 122-B of the Act provides a summary procedure, for ejectment of unauthorised occupants from the land vested in State/Gaon Sabha/Local Authority and realization of fine. State/Gaon Sabha/Local Authority is not under obligation to file a suit under Section 229 read with Section 209 of the Act, for ejectment of unauthorised occupants, as under the law, relief can be obtained under Section 122-B of the Act. However, the proceeding, being summary in nature, Assistant Collector used to decide the cases under this provision in a cursory manner. It always happens that Assistant Collector used to pass order of ejectment and impose fine relying upon Lekhpal's report or his statement, without considering the objection of the opposite party. Under the law, burden of proof is upon a person, who asserts a fact for a particular relief, to prove that fact in order to get the relief. If the opposite party denied his occupation on State land then State/Gaon Sabha/ Local Authority is liable to prove illegal occupation of the opposite party as well as period of occupation on State land. Sometime dispute relating to identity of the land is raised. In spite of law laid down by Supreme Court in Shreepat Vs. Rajendra Prasad, 2000 (7) JT 379 (SC), that survey report is necessary in order to ascertain identity of the land, survey is not conducted and order of ejectment etc. is passed. If a party does not claim any right over disputed land but raising dispute relating to identity of the disputed land his suit under Section 122-B(4-D) may not be maintainable as in effect it may be a suit for negative declaration. If in a given case, without there being sufficient evidence to prove illegal occupation on State land, the order of ejectment and imposition of heavy penalty is passed, then according to Section 122-B (4-A), aggrieved person can file a revision before the Collector or under Section 122-B (4-D) can file a suit. But in view of proviso to Section 229-D, no interim injunction can be granted in the suit although it may involve demolition of construction or realization of heavy penalty. In such circumstances, availability of alternative remedy by way of suit itself may not be a ground for the High Court to refuse to exercise its jurisdiction as suit cannot be considered to be efficacious alternative remedy, which can be taken as a bar for entertaining writ petition, challenging orders passed under Section 122-B of the Act.

7. Article 226 and Article 227 of the Constitution, which confer extraordinary jurisdiction to the High Court to issue high prerogative writs and exercise supervisory jurisdiction over the authorities subordinate to it, are quoted below:-

"226. Power of High Courts to issue certain writs.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in Article 32, every High Court shall have power, throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction, to issue to any person or authority, including in appropriate cases, any Government, within those territories directions, orders or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari, or any of them, for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III and for any other purpose.

(2) The power conferred by clause (1) to issue directions, orders or writs to any Government, authority or person may also be exercised by any High Court exercising jurisdiction in relation to the territories within which the cause of action, wholly or in part, arises for the exercise of such power, notwithstanding that the seat of such Government or authority or the residence of such person is not within those territories.

(3) Where any party against whom an interim order, whether by way of injunction or stay or in any other manner, is made on, or in any proceedings relating to, a petition under clause (1), without—

(a) furnishing to such party copies of such petition and all documents in support of the plea for such interim order; and

(b) giving such party an opportunity of being heard,

Makes an application to the High Court for the vacation of such order and furnishes a copy of such application to the party in whose favour such order has been made or the counsel of such party, the High Court shall dispose of the application within a period of two weeks from the date on which it is received or from the date on which the copy of such application is so furnished, whichever is later, or where the High Court is closed on the last day of that period, before the expiry of the next day afterwards on which the High Court is open; and if the application is not so disposed of, the interim order shall, on the expiry of that period, or, as the case may be, the expiry of the said next day, stand vacated.

(4) The power conferred on a High Court by this article shall not be in derogation of the power conferred on the Supreme Court by clause (2) of Article 32."

"227. Power of superintendence over all courts by the High Court.—

(1) Every High Court shall have superintendence over all courts and tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, the High Court may—

(a) call for returns from such courts;

(b) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such courts; and

(c) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such courts.

(3) The High Court may also settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff and all clerks and officers of such courts and to attorneys, advocates and pleaders practising therein:

Provided that any rules made, forms prescribed or tables settled under clause (2) or clause (3) shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor.

(4) Nothing in this article shall be deemed to confer on a High Court powers of superintendence over any court or tribunal constituted by or under any law relating to the Armed Forces."

8. Jurisdiction under Article 226 and 227 are wide and expansive. The Constitution does not place any fetter on exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction. High Court, under Article 226 is required to protect fundamental rights of the citizens and to enforce rule of law to prevent miscarriage of justice. In exercise of power of judicial review, High Court can examine illegality, irrationality and procedural impropriety of an order passed by State or Statutory Authority. A seven Judges Constitution Bench of Supreme Court in L. Chandra Kumar v. Union of India, AIR 1997 SC 1125, held that the jurisdiction conferred upon the High Courts and the Supreme Court under Articles 226 and 32 of the Constitution respectively, is part of the basic structure of the Constitution. Same view has been taken in Union of India v. Shri Kant Sharma, (2015) 6 SCC 773. A thirteen-Judge Constitution Bench, in Kesavananda Bharti Vs. State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 1461, held that though, by virtue of Article 368, Parliament is empowered to amend the Constitution, that power cannot be exercised so as to damage the basic features of the Constitution or to destroy its basic structure.

9. Finality attached to the orders passed by Statutory Authority under the Act, also does not affect the jurisdiction of High Court under Article 226 and 227 of the Constitution to examine its illegality, irrationality and procedural impropriety as held by Constitution Bench of Supreme Court in Lila Vati Bai Vs. State of Bombay, AIR 1957 SC 521 and in other cases of Union of India Vs. A.V. Narasimhalu, (1969) 2 SCC 658 and State of H.P. Vs. Dhanwant Singh, AIR 2004 SC 1636. As such jurisdiction of High Court under Article 226 and 227 of the Constitution can neither be taken away nor be limited either by Constitutional amendments or by other legislations of Central Government or State Governments.

10. However power under Article 226 and 227 of the Constitution has to be exercised within the limits as propounded time to time by Apex Court. A nine-Judge Bench of Supreme Court in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. V. Union of India, (1997) 5 SCC 536, while considering the Excise Act and Customs Act held that "the jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 and this Court under Article 32 though cannot be circumscribed by the provisions of the said enactments, they will certainly have due regard to the legislative intent evidenced by the provisions of the said Acts and would exercise their jurisdiction consistent with the provisions of the Act. While the jurisdiction of the High Courts under Article 226 and of this Court under Article 32 cannot be circumscribed by the provisions of the said enactments, they will certainly have due regard to the legislative intent evidenced by the provisions of the said Acts and would exercise their jurisdiction consistent with the provisions of the Act. The writ petition will be considered and disposed of in the light of and in accordance with the provisions of Section 11-B. This is for the reason that the power under Article 226 has to be exercised to effectuate the rule of law and not for abrogating it."

11. Rule of alternative remedy is a self imposed restriction and not a rule of law as held by Supreme Court in BALCO Captive Power Plant vs. National Thermal Power Corpn., (2007)11 SCC 234 and Committee of Management vs. Vice Chancellor, AIR 2009 SC 1159. When an aggrieved person has an efficacious, effective alternative remedy under the law, High Court can relegate such person to seek his remedy under the Statute, instead of entertaining writ petition. A constitution Bench of Supreme Court in State of M.P. Vs. Bhailal Bhai, AIR 1964 SC 1006, held that Article 226 is not intended to supersede completely the modes of obtaining relief in a civil suit. When writ petition raises a highly disputed question of fact, High Court can refuse to entertain a writ petition. Supreme Court in Gunwant Kaur v. Municipal Committee, Bhatinda, (1969) 3 SCC 769, held that if, however, on consideration of the nature of the controversy, the High Court decides, as in the present case, that it should go into a disputed question of fact and the discretion exercised by the High Court appears to be sound and in conformity with judicial principles, this Court would not interfere in appeal with the order made by the High Court in this respect. Similar view has been taken in Babubhai Muljibhai Patel v. Nandlal Khodidas Barot, AIR 1974 SC 2105.

12. Supreme Court in Calcutta Discount Co. Ltd. Vs. ITO, AIR 1961 SC 372, A.V.Venkateswaran vs. Ram Chand Sobhraj Wadhwani, AIR 1961 SC 1506, Full Bench of this Court in Buddhu vs. Municipal Board, AIR 1952 SC 753 and Special Bench in Bijli Cotton Mills (Pvt) Ltd. Vs. Estate Officer, 1977 AWC 191 held that when the authority passing the order had no jurisdiction or purported to usurp jurisdiction bar of alternative remedy will not apply.

13. Supreme Court in Whirlpool Corpn. V. Registrar of Trade Marks, (1998) 8 SCC 1, held that the power to issue prerogative writs under Article 226 of the Constitution is plenary in nature and is not limited by any other provision of the Constitution. This power can be exercised by the High Court not only for issuing writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights contained in Part III of the Constitution but also for "any other purpose". Under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court, having regard to the facts of the case, has a discretion to entertain or not to entertain a writ petition. But the High Court has imposed upon itself certain restrictions one of which is that if an effective and efficacious remedy is available, the High Court would not normally exercise its jurisdiction. But the alternative remedy has been consistently held by this Court not to operate as a bar in at least three contingencies, namely, where the writ petition has been filed for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights or where there has been a violation of the principle of natural justice or where the order or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged. There is a plethora of case-law on this point but to cut down this circle of forensic whirlpool, we would rely on some old decisions of the evolutionary era of the constitutional law as they still hold the field.

14. In City and Industrial Development Corpn. V. Dosu Aardeshir Bhiwandiwala, (2009) 1 SCC 168, held that while exercising its jurisdiction under Article 226, High Court is duty-bound to consider whether:

(a) adjudication of the writ petition involves any complex and disputed questions of facts and whether they can be satisfactorily resolved;

(b) the petition reveals all material facts;

(c) the petitioner has any alternative or effective remedy for the resolution of the dispute;

(d) the person invoking the jurisdiction is guilty of unexplained delay and laches;

(e) ex facie barred by any laws of limitation;

(f) grant of relief is against public policy or barred by any valid law; and host of other factors.

15. Supreme Court in CIT v. Chhabil Dass Agarwal, (2014) 1 SCC 603, held that this Court has recognised some exceptions to the rule of alternative remedy i.e. where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question, or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure, or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed, or when an order has been passed in total violation of the principles of natural justice. In Union of India v. Shri Kant Sharma, (2015) 6 SCC 773, it has been held that it is settled law that non-entertainment of petitions under writ jurisdiction by the High Court when an efficacious alternative remedy is available is a rule of self-imposed limitation. It is essentially a rule of policy, convenience and discretion rather than a rule of law. Undoubtedly, it is within the discretion of the High Court to grant relief under Article 226 despite the existence of an alternative remedy. However, the High Court must not interfere if there is an adequate efficacious alternative remedy available to the petitioner and he has approached the High Court without availing the same unless he has made out an exceptional case warranting such interference or there exist sufficient grounds to invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226. Thus, while it can be said that this Court has recognised some exceptions to the rule of alternative remedy i.e. where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question, or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure, or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed, or when an order has been passed in total violation of the principles of natural justice.

16. From the aforementioned cases, it is clear that writ jurisdiction is discretionary jurisdiction of the High Court.

(i)where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question, or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure, or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed, or when an order has been passed in total violation of the principles of natural justice, High Court may entertain writ petition;

(ii) while exercising discretion High Court may consider that adjudication of the writ petition involves any complex and disputed questions of facts and whether they can be satisfactorily resolved;

(iii) The petitioner has any alternative or effective remedy for the resolution of the dispute;

(iv) The person invoking the jurisdiction is guilty of unexplained delay and laches;

(vi) grant of relief is against public policy or barred by any valid law; and host of other factors.

17. In view of the aforesaid discussions, we answer the questions referred to us as follows:-

(i) Answer to question (i) is in negative. The jurisdiction of High Court under Article 226 and 227 of the Constitution are basic structure of the Constitution, it can neither be taken away nor be limited either by Constitutional amendments or by other legislations of Central Government or State Governments or by judicial dicta.

(ii) Answer to question (ii) is in negative. Finality attached to the orders passed by Statutory authority under the Act, also does not affect the jurisdiction of High Court under Article 226 and 227 of the Constitution to examine its illegality, irrationality and procedural impropriety.

(iii) Answer to question (iii) is in negative. In view of Proviso to Section 229-D of the Act, the suit before Revenue Court may not be efficacious alternative remedy in a given case. The suit in Civil Court may not be maintainable in every case in view of Section 331 of the Act. In the cases, where the Statutory Authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question, or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure, or has resorted to invoke the provisions, which are repealed, or when an order has been passed in total violation of the principles of natural justice, writ petition can be entertained.

The reference to the larger Bench stands answered accordingly. The writ petitions shall now be placed before Hon'ble Single Judge for disposal in the light of this judgment.

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Shri B.C. Rai

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Shri Anil Tiwari, Shri Shiv Nath Singh

Held –

Formal Amendment Allowed The court allows the petitioner's amendment application to incorporate a formal claim flowing from facts already on record, directing that necessary corrections be made immediately.
Representation of Parties & Relief Sought Advocate Sri B.C. Rai represented the petitioner, Standing Counsel appeared for Respondent Nos. 1 to 4, and Advocate Sri Shiv Nath Singh appeared for Respondent No. 5. The writ petition seeks to quash the State Government's order dated January 10, 2012 (under Section 48 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894), direct the respondents not to dispossess the petitioner from Plot No. 399, and exempt the plot from acquisition.
Amendment Claiming Lapsing of Acquisition By way of the allowed amendment, the petitioner additionally prayed that the acquisition proceedings be declared as lapsed, alleging no award was made within two years of the declaration under Section 6 of the 1894 Act.
Factual Background & Initial Acquisition Notifications Plot No. 399 (Village Dohriya, Tehsil & District Bareilly) was subjected to a Section 4 notification read with Section 17 on June 3, 2004, followed by a Section 6 notification on July 4, 2005 under the 1894 Act.
First Writ Petition & Interim Relief The petitioner, having purchased the plot via two sale deeds dated June 6, 2002, and November 14, 2003, filed Writ Petition No. 77878 of 2005 challenging the acquisition. The High Court granted an interim stay on dispossession on December 22, 2005.
Disposal of First Writ Petition On March 2, 2009, the Division Bench disposed of the initial writ petition, directing the State Government to consider the petitioner's application for exemption under Section 48. By necessary implication, the challenge to the Section 4 and Section 6 notifications stood rejected.
Impugned Rejection Order by the State Government The State Government rejected the petitioner's exemption request on the grounds that the petitioner purchased the land after the Development Authority submitted a preliminary acquisition proposal on October 27, 2001, and no constructions had been raised on the plot prior to the acquisition.

Second Writ Petition & Interim Order Status Challenging the rejection, the petitioner filed the present writ petition, where an interim order of status quo was passed on March 1, 2012. Due to this stay, possession could not be taken nor could an award be made for Plot No. 399.

Status of Other Plots & Precedent Case For other plots in the same acquisition, an award was made on April 26, 2010, with compensation determined under Section 24 of the 2013 Act. The court noted a companion case (Prashanti Niketan Educational Society v. State of U.P.), decided on September 5, 2016, where 10% developed land was awarded pursuant to the Savitri Devi and Gajraj precedents.

Petitioner's Arguments on Land Purchase & Constructions The petitioner argued that purchasing land after a proposal (prior to Section 4 notification) does not invalidate a purchaser's rights. Further, the petitioner asserted that Plot No. 399 was being utilized for school events, parking, and a platform, contradicting the State's claim of no construction.

Court's Findings on Land Purchase Subsequent to Proposal The court observed that the State Government did not void the petitioner's title; rather, it exercised its administrative discretion under Section 48 not to exempt the land. Considering the purchase occurred after the acquisition proposal was submitted was not an irrelevant factor in exercising that discretion.

Distinguishing Case Laws & Reviewing Admission on Constructions The court held the cited authorities distinguishable. Examining the petitioner's own admissions, the court noted CBSE permission was only granted in April 2005 and no structural constructions were built prior to the Section 4 notification; Plot No. 399 was primarily used as a playground and parking lot.

Adequacy of Remaining Land The site plan revealed that unacquired land (Khasra No. 400) held by the petitioner was sufficient for school parking and playground needs. Consequently, acquiring Plot No. 399 would not adversely affect the running of the school.

Court's Ruling on Exemption Finding no illegality in the State Government's discretion under Section 48, the court refused to interfere with the order denying exemption from acquisition.

Rejection of Claim on Lapsing of Proceedings Addressing the Section 11-A lapse argument, the court held that after excluding periods covered by interim stay orders (granted on Dec 22, 2005, and March 1, 2012), the mandatory two-year period for making an award had not expired.

Final Relief & Directions In the interest of justice, the court granted relief in line with Gajraj Singh and Savitri Devi:

Compensation to be determined and paid within one month under Section 24 of the Act, 2013.

10% developed land to be provided within two months of submitting a certified copy of the order to the Chairman, Bareilly Development Authority.

The writ petition was disposed of accordingly.

4. This writ petition has been filed for quashing of the order dated 10.01.2012 passed by the State Government on the application of the petitioner under Section 48 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 as well as for a mandamus directing the respondents to not to dispossess the petitioner from plot no. 399 and not to interfere with the use and occupation of the same by the petitioner as well as to exempt the same from the acquisition proceedings.

5. By means of the amendment application it has been added that since no award has been made even after more than two years of the declaration under Section 6 of the Act, the proceedings may be declared to have lapsed.

6. Facts in short leading to the present writ petition are as follows:

7. Plot No. 399, village Dohriya, tehsil and district Bareilly was subject matter of notification under Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1894') dated 03rd June, 2004 read with Section 17 of the same Act. This notification was followed by notification under Section 6 of the Act, 1894 dated 04th July, 2005.

8. Petitioner before this Court, who claims to have purchased the plot vide two separate sale deeds dated 06th June, 2002 and 14th November, 2003, filed Writ Petition No. 77878 of 2005 for quashing of the acquisition notifications. In the said writ petition an interim order was granted by the High Court on 22.12.2005. As a result whereof the dispossession of the petitioner from the disputed plot was stayed.

9. The writ petition was disposed of vide judgment and order dated 02.03.2009. The Division Bench held that the petitioner, if so advised, may make an application for exemption of the land from acquisition proceedings before the State Government. The State Government was asked to take an appropriate decision after affording opportunity to the petitioner thereon. The net result of the order of the High Court was that so far as the notification under Section 4 and 6 are concerned, the challenge to the same was not accepted and the prayer in that regard stood rejected by necessary implication.

10. The State Government under the order impugned in the present writ petition has noticed that the petitioner had purchased the land after a preliminary proposal for acquisition of land in respect of plot no. 399 had been submitted by the Development Authority to be precise on 27.10.2001. It has further been recorded that up to the date of acquisition no constructions had been raised by the petitioner over the plot in question. Therefore, the State Government decided not to exempt the land from acquisition proceedings.

11. This order of the State Government has been subjected to challenge by means of the present writ petition, wherein an interim order was granted by the High Court on 01.03.2012 directing the parties to maintain the status quo. As a result of interim order neither possession of the plot could be obtained by the development authority nor an award in respect of the Plot No. 399 could be made.

12. However, to keep the record straight we may point out that in respect of the other plots, which were subject matter of acquisition, award was made by the Special Land Acquisition Officer on 26.04.2010. The compensation under the said award has been determined with reference to the provisions of Section 24 of the Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 2013').

13. We may also record that another writ petition, being Writ Petition No. 70494 of 2013 (Prashanti Niketan Educational Society vs. State of U.P. & others), filed for challenging the same notification and with the prayer for declaration that the acquisition proceedings have lapsed under Section 11-A of the Act, 1894, has been decided by us on 05.09.2016 following the judgment of the Apex Court in the Case of Savitri Devi vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and Ors., reported in (2015) 7 SCC 21. It has been held that the petitioner therein would be entitled to benefit of the Full Bench judgment of the High Court in the case of Gajraj and others vs. State of U.P. and others reported in ADJ 11 (11) page 1 and they shall be provided 10% of the developed land. No direction for payment of additional compensation has been made by us keeping in mind that the compensation has been determined under the Act, 2013, which would be much more than the relief of 67% additional compensation to be determined with reference to the date of notification under Section 4 of Act 1894.

14. So for as the present petitioner is concerned, it has been contended before us that the State Government has rejected the representation on wholly misconceived ground, namely, that (a) on the date of proposal submitted by the development authority the petitioner was not the recorded tenure holder of the plot in question and (b) that no constructions had been raised till the date of acquisition of the plot in question.

15. On behalf of the petitioner it is submitted that no rights of a purchaser are adversely affected under the Act, 1894 if he purchases the land subsequent to the submission of the proposal by a development authority for the purposes of acquisition. Rights of only such purchases are adversely affected where the purchase is made subsequent to the issuance of notification under

16. So far as the issue of constructions having not been raised by the petitioner over the plot in question are concerned, it has been stated before us that a platform had been constructed on the disputed plot, which is being used for cultural functions etc. of the school and that the vacant land is being used for the parking of the buses and vans etc. of the school. It is, therefore, submitted that the State Government is not correct in saying that no constructions had been raised over the plot in question.

17. We may first deal with the issue as to whether any rights in the property purchased subsequent to the proposal submitted by the development authority stand diluted or not in light of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of U.P. Jal Nigam vs. Kalra Properties (P).

18. We may at the very outset record that the State Government has not rejected the exemption application of the petitioner on the ground that he does not get a valid title over the plot in question because of purchase of the plot subsequent to the proposal. The State Government in fact has not found it fit and proper to exercise its discretion for exemption of the plot in question from acquisition proceedings in exercise of power under Section 48 of the Act, 1894 on the said fact.

19. As already noticed above, the challenge to the notifications under Section 4 and 6 of the Act, 1894 by the petitioner in respect of plot in dispute stands repelled with the dismissal of the Writ Petition No. 77878 of 2005 filed by the present petitioner. Therefore, it is only the legality of the exercise of discretion by the State Government under Section 48, which needs to be examined by this Court. If State Government has taken note of the fact that the land had been purchased subsequent to the proposal submitted by the development authority, then it cannot be said that any factor completely irrelevant has been taken into consideration.

20. The petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgments of the Apex Court in the cases of 1992 Supp (2) SCC 136 (Para 2), 2001 (7) SCC 545 (Para 10 & 11), 2015 (126) RD 28 (Para 14, 16 & 23), 2015 (10) SCC 241 (Para 29), 2010 (7) ADJ 172 (Para 213-218) and 2008 (2) AWC 1832 (Para 15, 18), which in our opinion are clearly distinguishable in the facts of the case.

21. So far as the issue of constructions over the plot in question up to the date of issuance of section 4 notifications are concerned, we may refer to the own admission of the petitioner as contained in paragraph 11 and 12 of the application filed before the State Government by the petitioner himself. In paragraph 12 it has been stated that the permission for introduction of additional subjects was granted by the CBSE in favour of the petitioner only on 13.04.2005. There is no averment qua any constructions having been raised over Plot No. 399 prior to the date of notification under Section 4. On the contrary in paragraph 22 it has been stated that in Plot Nos. 399 and 452 are being used as playground and for parking of school buses and school vans.

22. From the document, which has been enclosed at page 181 of the paper book, said to be site plan of the school building, we can safely record that the area of Khasra No. 400 is more than enough for the use as playground and parking of the vehicles etc., which admittedly had not been acquired by the development authority and is still available with the petitioner.

23. In the totality of the circumstances, we have no hesitation in coming to the conclusion that because of acquisition of Plot No. 399 neither the running of the school would be adversely affected nor the facility of parking, playground etc. would be adversely affect.

24. Therefore, we do not find any good ground to interfere with the decision of the State Government in refusing to exempt the land from acquisition.

25. This take the Court to the issue as to whether the proceedings of acquisition would lapse under the Act, 1894 on the ground that the award had not been made even after expiry of two years of the date of notification under Section 6.

26. As already noticed above, because of the interim order granted in the first writ petition dated 22.12.2005 and the interim order granted in the present writ petition on 01.03.2012 as well as having regard to the final direction of this Court dated 02.03.2009, in our opinion, the period of two years after excluding the period when there had been an stay order, has not expired. Even otherwise the said issue has been considered by us in the case of Prashanti Niketan Educational Society vs. State of U.P. & others in respect of the same notification.

27. In our opinion it would be in the interest of justice to permit the petitioner to have the benefit of the Full Bench judgment in the case of Gajraj Singh (supra) as has been provided for by the Apex Court in the case of Savitri Devi (supra) to the extent indicated below.

28. The petitioner shall be entitled to the compensation, to be determined and paid within one month in accordance with Section 24 of the Act, 2013, as also 10% of the developed land be provided to the petitioner within two months from the date of filing of a certified copy of this order before the Chairman, Bareilly Development Authority, Bareilly.

29. With the above observations and directions, the writ petition is disposed of.

Writ C/ Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.- 17778 Of 2016

Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioner:
Shri Neeraj Kumar Pandey

Counsel for Respondent:
C.S.C., Shri Sandeep Arora

Held –

1. Factual Background and Parties Involved
The petitioner's late father took two loans from Respondent No. 3 (Bank) and mortgaged properties including khasra no. 762 in Rudrapur as security. Following defaults in repayment, the Bank initiated proceedings under Section 13 of the SARFAESI Act, 2002. After issuing notices under Sections 13(2) and 13(4), the Bank filed an application under Section 14 before the Chief Judicial Magistrate (CJM) seeking assistance to take possession of the secured property. The CJM allowed the application via an order dated March 18, 2016, directing police assistance and ordering the Sub-Divisional Magistrate to prepare an inventory.

2. Petitioner's Contentions
Learned Counsel for the petitioner argued that Section 14 of the SARFAESI Act explicitly mentions only the "Chief Metropolitan Magistrate" (CMM) or the "District Magistrate" (DM) to entertain such applications. Therefore, the order passed by the CJM was patently without jurisdiction. It was contended that the Act is a self-contained code with plain wording, meaning the court cannot supply a casus omissus (an omitted scenario) or delegate powers to a CJM by expanding the statutory nomenclature.

3. Respondent-Bank's Counter-Arguments
Learned Counsel for the Bank submitted that excluding the CJM would defeat the legislative intent of the Act, which aims at the expeditious recovery of Non-Performing Assets (NPAs). It was highlighted that metropolitan areas with CMMs are rare in Uttar Pradesh, whereas CJMs are present across non-metropolitan districts. Excluding CJMs would result in administrative bottlenecks and severe delays in debt recovery.

4. Core Question for Adjudication
The central legal issue before the High Court was whether a Chief Judicial Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in a non-metropolitan area has the power under Section 14 of the SARFAESI Act, 2002 to assist a secured creditor in taking possession of a secured asset.

5. Division of Opinions Among Various High Courts
The Court acknowledged conflicting views across various High Courts:
Restricted View: The Full Bench of the Madras High Court (K. Arockiyaraj) and Division Benches of the Bombay High Court (Arjun Urban Co-op Bank and Ravindrakumar Prakash Bhargodev) held that in the absence of an explicit mention of "CJM" in Section 14, only CMMs or DMs have jurisdiction.
Inclusive View: The Division Bench of the Kerala High Court (Mohd. Ashraf) and Full Bench of the Andhra Pradesh High Court (T.R. Jewellery) took the opposite view, empowering CJMs in non-metropolitan regions.

6. Statutory History and Objects of the SARFAESI Act
The Court traced the origins of debt recovery legislation in India, examining reports from the Tiwari Committee and Narsimham Committee (1st & 2nd reports), which led to the Recovery of Debts Act, 1993 and subsequently the SARFAESI Act, 2002. The primary objective of the Act was identified as quick recovery of NPAs and enabling liquidity in the economy without prolonged court interference.

7. Supreme Court Jurisprudence on the Act's Object
Referring to the Supreme Court's landmark ruling in Mardia Chemicals Ltd. v. Union of India, the Court underscored that while certain provisions of the SARFAESI Act may seem stern toward borrowers, they serve the broader public interest of rapid capital flow and economic growth.

8. Framework of Section 14
Section 14 functions as a procedural mechanism empowering the specified magistrate to render administrative and coercive assistance (such as using necessary force and taking possession of assets) to the secured creditor. Under Section 14(3), actions taken by the magistrate in pursuance of this section cannot be questioned in any court.

9. Harmonious Interpretation with the Code of Criminal Procedure (Cr.P.C.)
Analyzing Sections 2(k), 3, 8, and 12 of the Cr.P.C., the Court noted that the powers, status, and duties of a CJM in a non-metropolitan area are identical and synonymous to those of a CMM in a metropolitan area. The titles alter solely based on the territorial classification of the area where the magistrate is posted.

10. Rules of Statutory Construction & Purposive Interpretation
Drawing on precedent from the Apex Court (L.V.A. Dixitulu, Kehar Singh, Tata Iron & Steel, Padmasundara Rao, Bangalore Water Supply, National Insurance Co., and Girdhari Lal & Sons) as well as English legal principles (Lord Denning in Seaford Court Estates), the Court emphasized that literal interpretation must give way to purposive construction when a literal reading produces absurdity or defeats the object of the enactment.

11. Overruling the Restrictive View on Section 35 vs. Section 37
Addressing the Madras High Court's ruling in K. Arockiyaraj, which held that Section 35 (overriding effect) excludes the application of the Cr.P.C., the Allahabad High Court highlighted Section 37 of the SARFAESI Act. Section 37 explicitly provides that the Act applies in addition to, and not in derogation of other laws, which includes the Cr.P.C. Hence, relying on Cr.P.C. provisions to interpret CMM as inclusive of CJM is fully valid.

12. Final Holding and Dismissal
The Court held that the term "Chief Metropolitan Magistrate" in Section 14 of the SARFAESI Act includes a "Chief Judicial Magistrate" operating in non-metropolitan areas. Thus, the impugned order of the CJM directing assistance to the Bank was held to be within jurisdiction and lawful. The writ petition was dismissed without costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Krishna Murari, J.)

1. Heard Shri Neeraj Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for respondent nos. 1, 2 and 5 and Shri Sandeep Arora for respondent no. 3-Bank.

2. Admittedly, late father of the petitioner took two loans from respondent no. 3-Bank and mortgaged the property bearing khasra no. 762, area 1128 sq. ft. situated in Rudrapur and another residential plot nos. 820 and 821, area 2128 sq. ft. as security to the said loans. The dispute in the present writ petition is in respect of the khasra no. 762. Late father of the petitioner defaulted in making repayment, as a result, proceedings under Section 13 of the Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act, 2002') was initiated. Notice under Section 13 (2) of the Act, 2002 was issued and subsequently after notice under Section 13 (4) of the Act, 2002, the respondent-Bank made an application under Section 14 of the Act, 2002 before the Chief Judicial Magistrate seeking assistance in taking possession of the secured asset. Chief Judicial Magistrate vide order dated 18.03.2016, impugned in this petition, allowed the application and directed the concerned police station to assist the Bank in taking over possession of the mortgaged property and Sub Divisional Magistrate was directed to make an inventory of the articles in the mortgaged property.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that since Section 14 of the Act, 2002 only authorises either the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate to entertain and pass orders on the application made under the said Section, as such, the impugned order passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate is patently without jurisdiction and is not liable to be sustained. It is further submitted that since Act, 2002 is a self contained code and the language of Section 14 is clear and unambiguous, no jurisdiction can be said to vest with the Chief Judicial Magistrate to exercise the power under Section 14 of the Act. He further submits that the power is to be exercised by the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate under the provisions of the Act, the same cannot be delegated to a Chief Judicial Magistrate by giving a wider meaning to the nomenclature to the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate and if the Legislature has omitted the use of word 'Chief Judicial Magistrate', the Court cannot supply the omission and it can only interpret the law.

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent-Bank submits that the very purpose of the enactment, viz., the expeditious recovery of bad loans classified as Non Performing Asset, would fail, if the Chief Judicial Magistrate is excluded from exercising the power conferred by Section 14 of the Act, 2002. He points out that only a few areas in the State of U.P. has been declared to be metropolitan areas where the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate functions and in most of the areas, there are Chief Judicial Magistrate and, in case, if he is excluded from exercising the power conferred by Section 14 of the Act, it would result in endless delay in recovery of debts of the Banks and financial institutions frustrating the very purpose of the Legislature enacting the Act, 2002 for speedy recovery of the loans.

5. The core issue, which arises for reconsideration is whether the Chief Judicial Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in non metropolitan area in exercise of powers conferred by Section 14 of the Act, 2002 can assist a secured creditor in taking possession of the secured asset and pass an order in favour of the secured creditor for the purpose of taking possession or control of any secured asset.

6. This issue has been subject matter of consideration before various High Courts, who have expressed divergent views, however, no authoritative pronouncement by the Hon'ble Apex Court or by this Court, has been placed before us.

7. A Full Bench of Madras High Court in K. Arockiyaraj Vs. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Srivilliputhur & Anr., 2013 (4) L.W. 485 and two Division Benches judgment of Bombay High Court in the case of Arjun Urban Co-operative Bank Limited, Solapur Vs. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Solapur & Anr. (2009 (5) MLJ 380) and Ravindrakumar Prakash Bhargodev Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2008 (110) BOMLR 2880), have taken view that in absence of any reference to Chief Judicial Magistrate, in Section 14, it is only the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate in the metropolitan area and the District Magistrate in non-metropolitan area, who can entertain an application under Section 14. Whereas a Division Bench of Kerala High Court in the case of the Mohd. Ashraf and Smt. C. Arifa Vs. Union of India, 2008 Law Suit (Ker) 477 and a Full Bench of Andhra Pradesh High Court in the case of T.R. Jewellery & Ors. Vs. State Bank of India & Ors., Laws (APH)-2015-11-17, has taken a totally contrary view.

8. Before answering the question posed before us for adjudication, we find it expedient to notice the statement of object and reasons of Act, 2002 in order to explore the purpose and intention of the Legislature for enacting the said Act. Finding that several hundred crores of public money was blocked in unproductive ventures, the Government of India constituted a committee under Shri P. Tiwari to examine the legal and other difficulties faced by the Banks and financial institutions in the recovery of their dues and suggest remedial measures. The Tiwari Committee noticing that the existing procedure for recovery was very cumbersome, suggested setting up special Tribunals for recovery of the dues of Banks and financial institutions by following a procedure, which was summary in nature. The issue was further considered by the committee on the financial system headed by M. Narsimham. In its first report, the Narsimham committee suggested setting up special Tribunals with special powers for adjudication of cases involving the dues of Banks and financial institutions. On a consideration of the report of the two committees, namely, Tiwari committee and Narsimham committee, the parliament enacted the Recovery of Debts due to Banks and Financial Institutions Act, 1993. By the new enactment, a specialised forum by the name of Debts Recovery Tribunal and Debts Recovery Appellate Tribunals were constituted for expeditious disposal of cases relating to recovery of debts due to Banks and financial institutions. The principles applicable in a civil proceeding before civil court in such matters was barred and all pending matters above a certain valuation were transferred to such newly created Tribunals. For a certain period, the new system worked well and the Tribunals ensured that cases involving recovery of dues of Banks and financial institutions are decided expeditiously. However, with the passage of time, the proceedings before the Tribunal also became sluggish like those before regular civil courts and on account of the various procedural technicalities, there was great impediment in the expeditious adjudication of cases by the Debt Recovery Tribunal. A survey conducted by the Ministry of Finance, Government of India in 2001 revealed that a huge sum of more than Rs.1,20,000 crores of the Banks and financial institutions was blocked in bad loans, which was adversely affecting the economy of the country. The Government again referred the matter to Narsimham committee to suggest ways and means for expediting the recovery of debts of Banks and financial institutions. Narsimham committee submitted its 2nd report. Andhyarujina committee was also constituted by the Central Government for the purpose of examining banking sector reforms and to consider the need for changes in the legal system in respect of these dues. Both the committees, inter alia, suggested enactment of a new Legislation for securitization and empowering the banks and financial institutions to take possession as security and to sell them without the intervention of the Court. Accepting the recommendations made by the two committees, the Parliament proceeded to enact Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002, which was promulgated on 21st August, 2002, which was later on converted into Act, which came into force w.e.f. 17th December, 2002.

9. Act, 2002 provides a detail procedure for constitution of Securitisation company or Reconstruction company for regulation of securitisation and reconstruction of financial assets of Banks and financial institutions. The provisions of the Act also provide a procedure for enforcement of the security interest. Under Section 13 of the Act, any security interest created in favour of any secured creditor, is liable to be enforced without the intervention of the Court or Tribunal by the said creditor in accordance with the provisions contained in the Act. This power has been vested notwithstanding anything contained in Section 69 or Section 69 A of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

10. While upholding the constitutional validity of Act, 2002, the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Mardia Chemicals Ltd. Vs. Union of India, 2004 (4) SCC 311, has observed that though the effect of some of the provisions of the enactment could be a bit harsh for some of the borrowers, but the impugned provisions of the Act cannot be said to be unconsitutonal on that ground because the object of the Act is to achieve speedy recovery of dues declared as NPAs and better availability of capital liquidity and resources to help in growth of the economy of the country and welfare of the people in general which would sub serve the public interest.

11. From the above observations made by the Hon'ble Apex Court and also the statement of object and reasons, it becomes abundantly clear that the purpose of the Act is to achieve speedier recovery of the bad debts of the Bank and financial institutions declared as NPAs without the intervention of the Tribunal or the Courts and quick resolution of disputes arising out of the action taken for recovery of such dues, which would go a long way in making better availability of capital liquidity and resources to help growth of the economy of the country and welfare of the public at large in order to further sub serve the purpose and object of the Act. The Legislature after enacting Section 13 providing a procedure for enforcement of security interest by the secured creditor enacted Section 14 conferring power upon the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate to assist secured creditor in taking the possession of the secured asset. The said Section reads as under.

"14. Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or District Magistrate to assist secured creditor in taking possession of secured asset.-

(1) Where the possession of any secured asset is required to be taken by the secured creditor or if any of the secured asset is required to be sold or transferred by the secured creditor under the provisions of this Act, the secured creditor may, for the purpose of taking possession or control of any such secured asset, request, in writing, the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate within whose jurisdiction any such secured asset or other documents relating thereto may be situated or found, to take possession thereof, and the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or, as the case may be, the District Magistrate shall, on such request being made to him-

(a) take possession of such asset and documents relating thereto; and

(b) forward such assets and documents to the secured creditor.

Provided that any application by the secured creditor shall be accompanied by an affidavit duly affirmed by the authorised officer of the secured creditor, declaring that –

(i) the aggregate amount of financial assistance granted and the total claim of the Bank as on the date of filing the application;

(ii) the borrower has created security interest over various properties and that the Bank or Financial Institution is holding a valid and subsisting security interest over such properties and the claim of the Bank or Financial Institution is within the limitation period;

(iii) the borrower has created security interest over various properties giving the details of properties referred to in sub-clause (ii) above;

(iv) the borrower has committed default in repayment of the financial assistance granted aggregating the specified amount;

(v) consequent upon such default in repayment of the financial assistance the account of the borrower has been classified as a non-performing asset;

(vi) affirming that the period of sixty days notice as required by the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 13, demanding payment of the defaulted financial assistance has been served on the borrower;

(vii) the objection or representation in reply to the notice received from the borrower has not been considered by the secured creditor and reasons for non-acceptance of such objection or representation had been communicated to the borrower;

(viii) the borrower has not made any repayment of the financial assistance in spite of the above notice and the Authorised Officer is, therefore, entitled to take possession of the secured assets under the provisions of sub-section (4) of section 13 read with section 14 of the principal Act;

(ix) that the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder had been complied with;

Provided further that on receipt of the affidavit from the Authorised Officer, the District Magistrate or the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, as the case may be, shall after satisfying the contents of the affidavit pass suitable orders for the purpose of taking possession of the secured assets;

Provided also that the requirement of filing affidavit stated in the first proviso shall not apply to proceeding pending before any District Magistrate or the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, as the case may be, on the date of commencement of this Act.

[(1A) The District Magistrate or the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate may authorise any officer subordinate to him,-

(i) to take possession of such assets and documents relating thereto; and

(ii) to forward such assets and documents to the secured creditor.]

(2) For the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of sub-section (1), the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate of the District Magistrate may take or cause to be taken such steps and use, or cause to be used, such force, as may, in his opinion, be necessary.

(3) No act of the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate [any officer authorised by the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or District Magistrate] done in pursuance of this section shall be called in question in any court or before any authority."

12. A plain reading of the above Section shows that it is procedural whereunder the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate or the District Magistrate as the case may be on an application made by the secured creditor shall render assistance to it to take possession of the secured asset or document relating to such assets and forward such assets and documents to the secured creditor. Under sub-section (2) of Section 14, the authority is empowered to take such steps and use such course as may be necessary for taking possession of the secured assets and documents relating thereto. Sub-section (3) of Section 14 further provides that any act done by the authority in exercise of powers conferred by the provision shall not be called any question in any court or before any authority.

13. The crux of the argument advanced on behalf of the petitioner is that in view of the phraseology of Section 14 of the SARFAESI Act, it is only the Chief Judicial Magistrate who can exercise the powers conferred by said Section. Whereas the counter argument advanced on behalf of the respondent-bank is that the words 'Metropolitan Magistrate' used in Section 14 would include the Chief Judicial Magistrate if the area in question is not a Metropolitan area as the function assigned to both the Magistrate are similar.

14. Metropolitan area is defined under Section 2(k) of the Code of Criminal Procedure (for short 'Cr.P.C.') as under :

"2(k). "Metropolitan area" means the area declared, or deemed to be declared, under Section 8, to be a metropolitan area."

15. At this stage, it may also be relevant to extract the relevant part of Section 3 of the Cr.P.C., which speaks of construction of references.

"3(1) In this Code - (a) any reference, without any qualifying words, to a Magistrate shall be construed, unless the context otherwise requires, -

(i) in relation to an area outside a metropolitan area, as a reference to a Judicial Magistrate;

(ii) in relation to a metropolitan area, as a reference to a Metropolitan Magistrate."

16. Section 3(1)(d) reads as under:

"any reference to the Chief Judicial Magistrate shall, in relation to a metropolitan area, be construed as a reference to the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in that area."

Section 3(2) - In this Code, unless the context otherwise requires, any reference to the Court of a Judicial Magistrate shall, in relation to a Metropolitan area, be construed as a reference to the Court of the Metropolitan Magistrate for that area."

17. Under Section 8 of Cr.P.C., the State Government is empowered to declare by a notification with effect from such date as may be specified therein any area within the State comprising a city or town whose population exceeds one million shall be a metropolitan area.

18. Under Section 12 of Cr.P.C., the High Court of the State is empowered to appoint in every district, which is not a metropolitan area, a Judicial Magistrate of First Class to be the Chief Judicial Magistrate. Similarly, with respect to every metropolitan area, the High Court is empowered to appoint a Metropolitan Magistrate to be the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate for such metropolitan area.

19. From a reading of the aforesaid provisions, it is clear that the function and powers of Chief Judicial Magistrate in non-metropolitan area and that of Chief Metropolitan Magistrate in metropolitan area are one and the same.

20. A Chief Judicial Magistrate working, if transferred to a metropolitan area, will discharge the function as Chief Metropolitan Magistrate and similarly, if a Chief Metropolitan Magistrate working in a metropolitan area is transferred in a non-metropolitan area, he will discharge the function and duties as Chief Judicial Magistrate. The function and powers are the same and these words are interchangeably used as per their placement in a metropolitan or non-metropolitan area. One is synonymous for the other dependent upon the area under his transfer.

21. A reading of the above provisions makes it clear that powers of Chief Judicial Magistrate in non-metropolitan area and powers of Chief Metropolitan Magistrate working in metropolitan area, are one and the same, their functions are same and one is synonymous to other. The only difference is that former one exercises jurisdiction over non-metropolitan areas while the later exercises jurisdiction in metropolitan area only. The nomenclature gets changed depending upon whether the area has been declared as a metropolitan area.

22. The main thrust of the argument of learned counsel for the petitioner is that since the Legislature did not use the words Chief Metropolitan Magistrate in Section 14 of the Act, the same cannot be read in the said Section. In effect, the argument is that what has not been provided for in the Statute cannot be supplied by the Court as the same will amount to legislation and not construction.

23. In view of above, the question for consideration would be whether there is any casus omissus if nomenclature, Chief Metropolitan Magistrate used in Section 14 is interpreted to include Chief Metropolitan Magistrate.

24. In the case of Chief Justice of A.P. & Ors. Vs. L.V.A. Dixitulu & Ors., (1979) 2 SCC 34, Hon'ble Apex Court held as under.

"The primary principle of interpretation is that a constitutional or statutory provision should be construed 'according to the intent of they that made it' (Coke). Normally, such intent is gathered from the language of the provision. If the language or the phraseology employed by the legislation is precise and plain and thus by itself proclaims the legislative intent in unequivocal terms, the same must be given effect to, regardless of the consequences that may follow. But if the words used in the provision are imprecise, protean or evocative or can reasonably bear meanings more than one, the rule of strict grammatical construction ceases to be a sure guide to reach at the real legislative intent. In such a case, in order to ascertain the true meaning of the terms and phrases employed, it is legitimate for the Court to go beyond the arid literal confines of the provision and to call in aid other well-recognised rules of construction, such as its legislative history, the basic scheme and framework of the statute as a whole, each portion throwing light on the rest, the purpose of the legislation, the object sought to be achieved, and the consequences that may flow from the adoption of one in preference to the other possible interpretation."

25. Again in the case of Kehar Singh & Ors. Vs. State (Delhi Admn.), AIR 1988 SC 1883, the Hon'ble Apex Court observed as under.

"But, if the words are ambiguous, uncertain or any doubt arises as to the terms employed, we deem it as our paramount duty to put upon the language of the legislature rational meaning. We then examine every word, every section and every provision. We examine the Act as a whole. We examine the necessity which gave rise to the Act. We look at the mischiefs which the legislature intended to redress. We look at the whole situation and not just one-to-one relation. We will not consider any provision out of the framework of the statute. We will not view the provisions as abstract principles separated from the motive force behind. We will consider the provisions in the circumstances to which they owe their origin. We will consider the provisions to ensure coherence and consistency within the law as a whole and to avoid undesirable consequences."

26. In the case of District Mining Officer Vs. Tata Iron & Steel Co., (2001) 7 SCC 358, the Hon'ble Apex Court observed as under.

"The legislation is primarily directed to the problems before the legislature based on information derived from past and present experience. It may also be designed by use of general words to cover similar problems arising in future. But, from the very nature of things, it is impossible to anticipate fully the varied situations arising in future in which the application of the legislation in hand may be called for and words chosen to communicate such indefinite referents are bound to be in many cases, lacking in clarity and precision and thus giving rise to controversial questions of construction. The process of construction combines both literal and purposive approaches. In other words, the legislative intention i.e. the true or legal meaning of an enactment is derived by considering the meaning of the words used in the enactment in the light of any discernible purpose or object which comprehends the mischief and its remedy to which the enactment is directed."

27. A Constitution Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Padmasundara Rao (Dead) & Ors. Vs. State of Tamilnadu & Ors., AIR 2002 SC 1334, while laying down the principles for interpretation of statutes has held as under.

"Two principles of construction - one relating to casus omissus and the other in regard to reading the statute as a whole - appear to be well settled. Under the first principle a casus omissus cannot be supplied by the Court except in the case of clear necessity and when reason for it is found in the four corners of the statute itself but at the same time a casus omissus should not be readily inferred and for that purpose all the parts of a statute or section must be construed together and every clause of a section should be construed with reference to the context and other clauses thereof so that the construction to be put on an particular provision makes a consistent enactment of the whole statute. This would be more so if literal construction of a particular clause leads to manifestly absurd or anomalous results which could not have been intended by the Legislature. "An intention to produce an unreasonable result." said Danckwerts, L.J., in Artemiou Vs. Procopiou (1966 1 QB 878), "is not to be imputed to a statute if there is some other construction available." Where to apply words literally would "defeat the obvious intention of the legislation and produce a wholly unreasonable result" we must "do some violence to the words" and so achieve that obvious intention and produce a rational construction."

28. In this connection it may be relevant to refer to the following observations of Lord Denning in the case of Seaford Court Estates Ltd. Vs. Asher (1949) 2 All ER 155, P. 164.

"When a defect appears a judge cannot simply fold his hands and blame the draftsman. He must set to work on the constructive task of finding the intention of Parliament and then he must supplement the written words so as to give force and life to the intention of the Legislature. A judge should ask himself the question how, if the makers of the Act had themselves come across this ruck in the texture of it, they would have straightened it out? He must then do as they would have done. A judge must not alter the material of which the Act is woven, but he can and should iron out the creases."

29. The above observation of Lord Denning was quoted with approval by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Banglore Water Supply and Sewerage Board Vs. A. Rajappa, AIR 1978 SC 548, State of Karnataka Vs. Hansa Corporation, AIR 1981 SC 463, Directorate of Enforcement Vs. Deepak Mahajan, AIR 1994 SC 1775, NEPC Micon Ltd. Vs. Magna Leasing Ltd., AIR 1999 SC 1952 and also in Reema Agarwal Vs. Anupam (2004) 3 SCC 199.

30. In the case of Argano Chemical Industries Vs. Union of India, AIR 1979 SC 1803, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed that "A bare mechanical interpretation of the words and application of Legislative intent devoid of concept of purpose will reduce most of the remedial and beneficent legislation to futility.

31. In National Insurance Company Ltd., Vs. Laxmi Narain Dhut, AIR 2007 SC 1563, the Hon'ble Apex Court while considering the manner of interpretation of Statues, has held as under.

"34. A statute is an edict of the Legislature and in construing a statute, it is necessary to seek the intention of its maker. A statute has to be construed according to the intent of those who make it and the duty of the court is to act upon the true intention of the Legislature. If a statutory provision is open to more than one interpretation the Court has to choose that interpretation which represents the true intention of the Legislature. This task very often raises difficulties because of various reasons, in as much as the words used may not be scientific symbols having any precise or definite meaning an the language may be an imperfect medium to convey one's though or that the assembly of Legislatures consisting of persons of various shades of opinion purport to convey a meaning which may be obscure. It is impossible even for the most imaginative Legislature to foresee all situations exhaustively and circumstances that may emerge after enacting a statute where its application may be called for. Nonetheless, the function of the Courts is only to expound and not legislate. Legislation in the modern State is actuated with some policy to curb some public evil or to effectuate some public benefit. The legislation is primarily directed to the problems before the Legislature based on information derived from past and present experience. It may also be designed by use of general words to cover similar problems arising in future. But, from the very nature of things, it is impossible to anticipate fully the varied situations arising in future in which the application of the legislation in hand may be called for, and, words chosen to communicate such indefinite referents are bound to be in many cases lacking in clarity and precision and thus giving rise to controversial questions of construction. The process of constructions combines both literal and purposive approaches. In other words the legislative intention, i.e., the true or legal meaning of an enactment is derived by considering the meaning of the words used in the enactment in the light of any discernible purpose or object which comprehends the mischief and its remedy to which the enactment is directed. (See District Mining Officer and Ors. Vs. Tata Iron and Steel Co. and Anr. (JT 2001 (6) SC 183)."

32. It is well settled that to decide the true intention of the Legislature, depending upon the objects for which enactment has been made, the Courts can resort to historical, contextual and purposive interpretation leaving aside the textual interpretation. Purposive interpretation has been described by Fransis Bennion in his book 'Statutory Interpretation' as under.

"A purposive construction of an enactment is one which gives effect to the legislative purpose by-

(a) following the literal meaning of the enactment where that meaning is in accordance with the legislative purpose, or

(b) applying a strained meaning where the literal meaning is not in accordance with legislative purpose.

33. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of M/s. Girdhari Lal & Sons Vs. Balbir Nath Mathur & Ors., AIR 1986 SC 1499, while explaining the principles of interpretation of statutes, has held as follows.

"The foremost task of a court, as we conceive it, in the Interpretation of Statutes, is to find out the intention of the legislature. Of course, where words are clear and unambiguous no question of construction may arise. Such words ordinarily speak for themselves. Since the words must have spoken as clearly to legislators as to judges, lt may be safely presumed that the legislature intended what the words plainly say. This is the real basis of the so called golden rule of construction that where the words of statutes are plain and unambiguous effect must be given to them. A court should give effect to plain words, not because there is any charm or magic in the plainness of such words but because plain words may be expected to convey plainly the intention of the Legislature to other as well as judges. Intention of the legislature and not the words is paramount. Even where the words of statutes appear to be prima facie clear and unambiguous it may some times be possible that the plain meaning of the words does not convey and may even defeat the intention of the legislature; in such cases there is no reason why the true intention of the legislature, if it can be determined, clearly by other means, should not be given effect. Words are meant to serve and not to govern and we are not to add the tyranny of words to the other tyrannies of the world.

Parliamentary intention may be gathered from several sources. First, of course, it must be gathered from the statute itself, next from the preamble to the statute, next from the Statement of Objects and Reasons, thereafter from Parliamentary debates, reports of Committees and Commissions which preceded the legislation and finally from all legitimate and admissible sources from where there may be light. Regard must be had to legislative history too.

Once Parliamentary intention is ascertained and the object and purpose of the legislation is known, it then becomes the duty of the court to give the statute a purposeful or a functional interpretation. this is what is meant when, for example, it is said that measures aimed at social amelioration should receive liberal or beneficent construction. Again, the words of a statute may not be designed to meet the several uncontemplated forensic situations that may arise. The draftsman may have designed his words to meet what Lord Simon of Glaisdale calls the 'primary situation'. It will then become necessary for the court to impute an intention to Parliament in regard to 'secondary situations'. Such 'secondary intention' may be imputed in relation to a secondary situation so as to best serve the same purpose as the primary statutory intention does in relation to a primary situation.

So we see that the primary and foremost task of a court in interpreting a statute is to ascertain the intention of the legislature, actual or imputed. Having ascertained the intention, the court must then strive to so interpret the statute as to promote or advance the object and purpose of the enactment. For this purpose, where necessary the court may even depart from the rule that plain words should be interpreted according to their plain meaning. There need be no meek and mute submission to the plainness of the language. To avoid patent injustice, anamoly or absurdity or to avoid invalidation of a law, the court would be well justified in departing from the so-called golden rule of construction so as to give effect to the object and purpose of the enactment by supplementing, the written word if necessary."

34. Applying the above well settled principles of interpretation of Statute, the answer to the issue is nomenclature 'Chief Metropolitan Magistrate' used by legislature is Section 14 of the Act includes Chief Judicial Magistrate functioning in non-metropolitan area and shall have jurisdiction to entertain an application made under Section 14 of the SARFAESI Act, 2002. In our considered opinion, there is no casus omissus. The interpretation given by us does not amount to reading anything in the provision, which the legislature never intended to, nor the interpretation given by us, in any way, defeats the intention of the Legislature. It is a purposive interpretation to advance the true intention of the legislature for enacting the Act, viz. speedy recovery of bad debts of the banks and financial institutions declared as NPAs. On the contrary, adopting the principles of literal construction in interpretation of the word 'Chief Metropolitan Magistrate' would not only defeat the object and purpose of legislation but would lead to manifestly anomalous result which could not have been intended by the legislature. As per Lord Reid in the case of Luke Vs. IRC, 1966 AC 557, where to apply words would literally defeat the obvious intention of the legislation and produce a wholly unreasonable result, we must do some violence to the words and so achieve that obvious intention and produce a rational construction.

35. The view taken by us finds support from the Full Bench decision of Andhra Pradesh High Court in the case of T.R. Jewellery & Ors. Vs. State Bank of India & Ors. (supra) and a Division Bench of High Court of Kerala in the case of Muhammed Ashraf, C Arifa Vs. Union of India, we are unable to agree with contrary view taken by Bombay High Court in the case of Indusind Bank Ltd. Vs. State of Maharastra and High Court of Madras in K. Arockiyaraj Vs. The Chief Judicial Magistrate, Srivilliputhur & Anr., 2013 (4) L.W. 485. The Full Bench of Madras High Court in the case of K. Arockiyaraj (supra) was of the view that phraseology used in Section 14 of the Act, 2002 should be given its true meaning without taking any assistance from Code of Criminal Procedure in view of Section 35 of Act, 2002, which provides that provisions of the Act will override all other laws which includes Code of Criminal Procedure. It was also held that when SARFAESI Act is a complete code, there is no need to take resort to Section 3 of Cr.P.C.

36. With respect to the learned Judges, we have been unable to persuade ourselves to agree to the view taken. The Full Bench failed to take notice of Section 37 of the Act, 2002 which provides that application of other laws is not barred. The said section reads as under.

"37. Application of other laws not barred.- The provisions of this Act or the rules made thereunder shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, the Companies Act, 1956 (1 of 1956), the Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1956 (42 of 1956), the Securities and Exchange Board of India Act 1992 (15 of 1992), the Recovery of Debts Due to Banks and Financial Institutions Act, 1993 (51 of 1993) or any other law for the time being in force."

37. There can be no manner of doubt that words "any other law for time being in force" used in Section 37 would also include Code of Criminal Procedure within its ambit and the application of provisions of Cr.P.C. cannot be excluded from consideration while dealing with the provisions of Act, 2002. Hence, the view taken by Full Bench of Madras High Court that in view of Section 35 of Act, 2002, the provisions of said Act would override the provisions of Cr.P.C. and the words 'Chief Metropolitan Magistrate' used in Section 14 should be given literal interpretation without taking any aid or assistance of Cr.P.C. does not, to us, appear to be correct.

38. Fort the aforesaid facts and discussions, we are of the considered view that nomenclature 'Chief Metropolitan Magistrate' used in Section 14 of Act, 2002 is inclusive of 'Chief Judicial Magistrate' functioning in a non-metropolitan area and shall have jurisdiction to entertain an application made by a secured creditor under Section 14 of Act, 2002.

39. In view of above, there is no illegality or error of jurisdiction in the impugned order by Chief Judicial Magistrate, warranting any interference.

40. Writ petition, accordingly, fails and stands dismissed. However, in the facts and circumstances we do not make any order as to costs.

Asset Reconstruction Company (India) Ltd & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for Petitioners:
Shri Prashant Kumar

Counsels for Respondents:
Shri Avdhesh Shukla, Shri Akhilesh Kalra, Shri Sachin Garg

Held –

1. Context and Legal Background

Impugned Order: The petitioners challenged an order dated August 8, 2016, passed by the Debts Recovery Tribunal (DRT), Lucknow, in Securitization Application No. 157 of 2015.

DRT Decision: The DRT had allowed a preliminary objection raised by respondent no. 6 (the auction-purchaser) and dismissed the petitioners' application under Section 17 of the SARFAESI Act, 2002 as not maintainable.

2. Preliminary Objection on Maintainability

Respondent's Argument: Respondent no. 6 raised a preliminary objection before the High Court, contending that the writ petition was not maintainable because an efficacious alternative statutory remedy was available via an appeal under Section 18 of the SARFAESI Act before the Debt Recovery Appellate Tribunal (DRAT).

Petitioner's Argument: The petitioners admitted the availability of an appeal under Section 18, but argued that the DRT committed a manifest error by failing to consider their rejoinder and misapplying the principle of res judicata regarding connected proceedings currently pending before the High Court at Allahabad.

3. Court's Analysis & Ruling

Statutory Bar & Self-Restraint: The High Court examined Section 18 of the SARFAESI Act, emphasizing that while Article 226 jurisdiction is a basic Constitutional feature, High Courts must exercise self-restraint and decline to entertain writ petitions when a specific, effective statutory forum for appeal exists.

Special Focus on SARFAESI/DRT: Citing established Supreme Court jurisprudence (notably Satyavati Tondon and Kanhaiya Lal Sachdev), the High Court reinforced that bypassing statutory remedies in banking and recovery matters under the SARFAESI Act should generally not be permitted.

Dismissal: The High Court dismissed the writ petition solely on the ground of the availability of an alternative statutory remedy, leaving all substantive pleas open for the Appellate Tribunal or review.

4. Relief Regarding Limitation

Extension Granted: Acknowledging the petitioner's submission that the statutory limitation period under Section 18 was expiring, the High Court directed that if the petitioners file their appeal within 7 days of obtaining a certified copy of the order, the Appellate Authority shall decide the appeal on its merits without dismissing it on the ground of limitation.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Devendra Kumar Arora, J.)

1. On 2.9.2016, while entertaining the writ petiton, this court directed for issuance of notice to opposite party nos. 1 to 5 and 8 and directed for listing of the matter today.

2. Today, learned counsel for the petitioner has filed today the affidavit of service, which is taken on record.

3. Sri Imran Khan, Advocate has filed power on behalf of opposite party no. 1 whereas Sri Nitesh Kumar Tripathi has filed fresh Vakalatnama on behalf of opposite party no. 2.

4. Heard Sri Prashant Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri Imran Khan, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 1, Sri Nitesh Kumar Tripathi & Sri Avdhesh Shukla for the UCO Bank, Sri N.K. Seth, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Sachin Garg and Sri Alok Saran holding brief of Sri Akhilesh Kalra.

5. In the instant writ petition, petitioners have assailed the order dated 08.08.2016 passed by Debts Recovery Tribunal, Lucknow in the Securitization Application No. 157 of 2015 whereby the Tribunal has allowed the preliminary objection raised by the respondent no.6 (auction-purchaser) regarding maintainability of Securitization Application and rejected the same as not maintainable.

6. From the impugned judgment, it comes out that on the application under Section 17 of the Act moved by the petitioner before the Debts Recovery Tribunal, respondent no.6 [auction-purchaser] moved an application dated 29.5.2015 about the maintainability of Securitization Application. The Tribunal has observed that the learned Counsel for the petitioners/applicants have not filed any rejoinder in reply to prelimiary objection. However, they orally objected to the preliminary objection and it was urged during oral arguments that the Securitization Application under Section 17 of the SARFASI Act, 2002 is maintainable. However, Sri N.K. Seth, learned counsel for the Auction-Purchaser (opposite party no.6) has submitted that no rejoinder to the preliminary objection was ever served, and, therefore, he is unable to say anything about filing of the rejoinder to the preliminary objection as alleged by the petitioners before the learned Tribunal.

7. At the out set, Sri N.K.Seth has raised a preliminary objection with regard to the maintainability of the present writ petition on the ground that petitioners have remedy of filing appeal before the Appellate Tribunal under Section 18 of the Act and submitted that the writ petition is liable to be dismissed on the ground of availability of alternative remedy.

8. To strengthen the aforesaid arguments, learned counsel has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court reported in Umang Gyanchandani Vs. Debts Recovery Tribunal Lucknow and others, [2015 (33) LCD 1986], Union Bank of India Vs. Satyavati Tandon, (2010) 8 SCC 110, Kanhaiya Lal Sachdev Vs. State of Maharastra (2011) 2 SCC 782 and General Manager Sidheshwara Cooperative Bank Vs. Iqbal and others (2013) 10 SCC 83.

9. In reply to the aforesaid preliminary objection, Sri Prashant Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioners while fairly admitting that there is a provision of filing appeal against the order dated 08.08.2016 passed under Section 17 of the Act before the Appellate Tribunal in view of the provisions of Section 18 of the Act but vehemently contended that learned Tribunal has committed manifest error by not appreciating the rejoinder submitted by the petitioners to the preliminary objections of Auction Purchaser (opposite party no. 6) and has wrongly relied upon the findings of Debts Recovery Tribunal given in Transfer Application no. 128 of 2002 and observed that the issue cannot be adjudicated in the Securitization Application as the same is barred by the principle of res-judicata overlooking the fact that the order of Debts Recovery Tribunal passed on the transfer application no. 128 of 2002, is presently pending before this Court at Allahabad and, therefore, the present writ petition is maintainable.

10. It has been urged that with regard to making counter claim in respect of alleged gold bars securitieis, the judgment passed by the Tribunal dated 2.6.2008 in Transferred Application No. 128 of 2002 and the order passed by the DRAT, Allahabad in Appeal No. R-991 of 2008 and Appeal No. R-992 of 2008 on 8.12.2011 have been challenged before this Court at Allahabad in Writ Petition No. 60932 of 2011 on 08.12.2011, which is still pending. Therefore, there is no question of drawing any inference on the judgments passed by the DRT, Lucknow and DRAT,Allahabad.

11. I have examined the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record.

12. The order under challenge has been passed by the Debts Recovery Tribunal on the application moved under-Section 17 of the Act whereby petitioners challenge the steps/procedure adopted by the Securitizing Company under the provisions of Section 13(4) of the Act as well as notice alongwith counter-claim for compensation against the loss and damages claimed under Section 19 of the Act.

13. To examine the issue regarding maintainability of the instant writ petition, it would be apt to reproduce Section 18 of the SARFAESI Act, 2002 which provides filing of appeal to the Appellate Tribunal. Said section reads as under:-

"18. Appeal to Appellate Tribunal: (1) Any person aggrieved, by any order made by the Debts Recovery Tribunal under section 17, may prefer an appeal alongwith such fee, as may be prescribed to the Appellate Tribunal within thirty days from the date of receipt of the order of Debts Recovery Tribunal:

[Provided that different fees may be prescribed for filing an appeal by the borrower or by the person other than the borrower:]

[Provided further that no appeal shall be entertained unless the borrower has deposited with the Appellate Tribunal fifty per cent. of the amount of Debts due from him, as claimed by the secured creditors or determined by the Debts Recovery Tribunal, whichever is less:

Provided also that the Appellate Tribunal may, for the reasons to be recorded in writing, reduce the amount to not less than twenty-five per cent. of Debts referred to in the second proviso.]

(2) Save as otherwise provided in this Act, the Appellate Tribunal shall, as far as may be, dispose of the appeal in accordance with the provisions of the Recovery of Debts Due to Banks and Financial Institutions Act, 1993 (51 of 1993) and rules made thereunder.

14. Now, I would like to deal the objections raised by the respondents Counsel regarding non-exhaustion of alternative remedy by the petitioners. In this context, it may be observed that the existence of alternative remedy is not an absolute bar, is a legal proposition, which has been propounded by the Apex Court and this Court in series of cases. It would be useful to refer some of the decisions rendered by the Apex Court on this issue.

15. In Thansingh Nathmal v. Superintendent of Taxes; [AIR 1964 SC 1419], the Apex Court adverted to the rule of self-imposed restraint that writ petition will not be entertained if an effective remedy is available to the aggrieved person and observed:

"The High Court does not therefore act as a court of appeal against the decision of a court or tribunal, to correct errors of fact, and does not by assuming jurisdiction under Article 226 trench upon an alternative remedy provided by statute for obtaining relief. Where it is open to the aggrieved Petitioner to move another tribunal, or even itself in another jurisdiction for obtaining redress in the manner provided by a statute, the High Court normally will not permit by entertaining a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution the machinery created under the statute to be bypassed, and will leave the party applying to it to seek resort to the machinery so set up."

16. In Titaghur Paper Mills Company Ltd. v. Suite of Orissa (1983) 2 SCC 433 the Apex Court while examining the question of availability of alternative remedy observed as under:

"It is now well recognised that where a right or liability is created by a statute which gives a special remedy for enforcing it, the remedy provided by that statute only must be availed of.

17. In Mafatlal Industries Ltd. v. Union of India; (1997) 5 SCC 536, it has been observed by the Apex Court that:

"So far as the jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 or for that matter, the jurisdiction of this Court under Article 32 is concerned, it is obvious that the provisions of the Act cannot bar and curtail these remedies. It is, however, equally obvious that while exercising the power under Article 226/Article 32, the Court would certainly take note of the legislative intent manifested in the provisions of the Act and would exercise their jurisdiction consistent with the provisions of the enactment.

18. In the case of L. Chandra Kumar Vs. Union of India and others, reported in AIR 1997 SC 1125, a seven Judges Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:-

"Though judicial review in the basic feature of the Constitution, the vesting of power of judicial review in an alternative institutional mechanism, after taking it away from the High Courts, would not do violence to the basic structure so long as it was ensured that the alternative mechanism was an effective and real substitute for the High Court."

19. In the case of Karnataka Chemical Industries and others vs. Union of India and others (2000) 10 SCC 12, it was held that:

"When there is no challenge to the validity of any statutory provision, we see no reason as to why a writ petition should have been filed by passing the alternative remedy which is provided under the statute. On the short ground, we dismiss this appeal, vacate the interim orders, direct the payment of the balance amount of duty alongwith interest @ 15% per annum with yearly rests. It will be open to the appellant to avail of such statutory remedy as may be available to it. If an appeal is filed within four weeks from today, the Department will take a lenient view in condoning the delay."

20. In the case of Central Coalfields Ltd. vs. State of Jharkhand and others (2005) 7 SCC, 492, it has been held that :

"If there is statutory alternative remedy available to a person under an statute itself, in that case the writ petition should not be entertained under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and the petitioner is directed to avail the alternative statutory remedy."

21. Recently, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Civil Appeal No. 10706 of 2011 (Nivedita Sharma Versus Cellular Operators Assn. Of India and others) decided on 07.12.2011, considered the question of alternative remedy/exhaustion of remedies and has held that Articles 226/227 are not available if an efficacious alternative remedy is available to aggrieved person. The relevant paragraphs of the aforesaid judgment reads as under:-

"We have considered the respective arguments/ submissions. There cannot be any dispute that the power of the High Courts to issue directions, orders or writs including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, certiorari, mandamus, quo warranto and prohibition under Article 226 of the Constitution is a basic feature of the Constitution and cannot be curtailed by parliamentary legislation L. Chandra Kumar v. Union of India; (1997) 3 SCC 261. However, it is one thing to say that in exercise of the power vested in it under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court can entertain a writ petition against any order passed by or action taken by the State and/or its agency / instrumentality or any public authority or order passed by a quasi-judicial body/authority, and it is an altogether different thing to say that each and every petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution must be entertained by the High Court as a matter of course ignoring the fact that the aggrieved person has an effective alternative remedy. Rather, it is settled law that when a statutory forum is created by law for redressal of grievances, a writ petition should not be entertained ignoring the statutory dispensation.

22. Thus, by a series of decisions it has been settled that the remedy of writ is an absolutely discretionary remedy and the High Court has always the discretion to refuse to grant any writ, if it is satisfied that the aggrieved party can have an adequate or suitable relief elsewhere. The Court, in extraordinary circumstances, may exercise the power, if it comes to the conclusion that there has been a breach of principles of natural justice or procedure required for decision has not been adopted.

23. In United Bank of India Vs. Satyawati Tondon and others; (2010)8 SCC 110 the Apex Court while dealing with the issue whether the alternative statutory remedy available under the Act can be bypassed and jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution could be invoked, observed in paragraph 55 as under:-

" 55. It is a matter of serious concern that despite repeated pronouncement of this Court, the High Courts continue to ignore the availability of statutory remedies under the DRT Act and the SARFAESI Act and exercise jurisdiction under Article 226 for passing orders which have serious adverse impact on the right of banks and other financial institutions to recover their dues.

We hope and trust that in future the High Courts will exercise their discretion in such matters with great caution, care and circumspection.

24. The law as propounded hereinabove has been reiterated again in the case of Kanhaiyalal Lalchand Sachdev and others Vs. State of Maharashtra and others, (2011) 2 SCC 782 wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court on the question of alternative remedy/exhaustion of remedies held that Articles 226/227 are not available, if an efficacious alternative remedy is available to aggrieved person. Relevant paragraphs 23 and 24 of said judgment read as under:

"23. In our opinion, therefore, the High Court rightly dismissed the petition on the ground that an efficacious remedy was available to the appellants under Section 17 of the Act. It is well settled that ordinarily relief under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India is not available if any efficacious alternative remedy is available to any aggrieved person. (See Sadhana Lodh Vs. National Insurance Co. Ltd., Surya Dev Rai Vs. Ram Chander Rai and SBI Vs. Allied Chemical Laboratories).

24. In City and Industrial Development Corpn. Vs. Dosu Aardeshir Bhiwandiwala, (2009) 1 SCC 168, this Court had observed that: (SCC p. 175, para 30)

"30. The Court while exercising its jurisdiction under Article 226 is duty bound to consider whether:

(a) adjudication of the writ petition involves any complex and disputed questions of facts and whether they can be satisfactorily resolved;

(b) the petition reveals all material facts;

(c) the petitioner has any alternative or effective remedy for the resolution of the dispute;

(d) the person invoking the jurisdiction is guilty of unexplained delay and laches;

(e) ex facie barred by any laws of limitation;

(f) grant of relief is against public policy or barred by any valid law; and host of other factors."

25. It may be noted that when an alternative and equally efficacious remedy is open to a litigant, he should be required to pursue that remedy and not to invoke the extra ordinary jurisdiction of the High Court to issue a prerogative writ as the writ jurisdiction is meant for doing justice between the parties where it cannot be done in any other forum.

26. In the instant case, petitioners have rushed directly to this Court and have by-passed the statutory alternative remedy, which is not permissible in view of the aforesaid settled position.

27. In view of the above, the writ petition is dismissed on the ground of availability of alternative statutory remedy. It is made open to the petitioners to raise the pleas before the appellate court which have been raised before this Court or make an application for recall/review, if so advised.

28. At this stage, Sri Prashant Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the limitation of filing the appeal against the impugned order under Section 18 of the Act is expiring today, therefore, he may be permitted to present the same before the appellate Forum within a week.

29.Appreciating the request of learned counsel for the petitioners, it is provided that if any appeal is filed within seven days from the date of issue of certified copy of this order, the said appeal will be considered and decided by the Appellate Authority on merits and shall not be rejected/dismissed on the ground of limitation.

Para 1: This is a review application seeking to review the order dated January 29, 2013, passed by Justices Rajiv Sharma and Satyendra Singh Chauhan. The review came before this Court because both judges were unavailable.
Para 2: The Court heard the arguments presented by the counsels for both parties and thoroughly perused the case record.
Para 3: The grounds raised in the review application and the arguments made demonstrate that the applicant is attempting to re-argue the case, which is impermissible under the guise of a review.
Para 4: A review application cannot be treated as a second opportunity to argue a case fresh on its merits.
Para 5: In Thungabhadra Industries Ltd., the Supreme Court ruled that a review is not an appeal in disguise to correct an erroneous decision, but is restricted strictly to patent errors.
Para 6: In Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma, the Supreme Court held that while High Courts possess inherent review powers under Article 226 to prevent miscarriage of justice, these powers are limited to discovering new material, correcting errors apparent on the face of the record, or analogous grounds—not re-evaluating merits.
Para 7: In Meera Bhanja, the Supreme Court reaffirmed that review proceedings must strictly stay within the scope of Order 47 Rule 1 of the Civil Procedure Code (CPC) rather than acting as an appeal.
Para 8: In Parsion Devi, the Supreme Court clarified that an error requiring a detailed process of reasoning to detect cannot be deemed an "error apparent on the face of the record."
Para 9: In Rajendra Kumar, the Apex Court emphasized that a review petition requires a clear, self-evident error that would cause a failure of justice if left uncorrected; otherwise, finality attached to the original judgment cannot be disturbed.

Para 10: The Court reiterated that review is an exception to the rule of finality of judgments. Citing Lily Thomas and Inderchand Jain, the Court stressed that review power is meant to correct mistakes, not substitute a new judgment.
Para 11: In Kamlesh Verma, the Supreme Court summarized when a review is maintainable (new evidence, error apparent on face of record, or analogous sufficient reason) and when it is not maintainable (re-arguing, seeking alternative views, or re-appreciating evidence).
Para 12: Because the applicant failed to satisfy any of the established statutory grounds for review, the Court dismissed the review petition.

Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. This is an application seeking review of order dated 29.01.2013 passed by Hon'ble Rajiv Sharma and Hon'ble Satyendra Singh Chauhan, J.J. Since Hon'ble Judges are not available, hence this Review Application has come up before this Court.

2. Heard learned counsels for parties and perused the record.

3. The grounds taken in the Review Application as also arguments advanced show that review-applicant wants to re-argue the matter which is not permissible in the garb of review.

4. An application for review cannot be treated to be an opportunity to argue the case on merits afresh. In the garb of a review application reargument on merits of the case cannot be allowed.

5. In Thungabhadra Industries Ltd. Vs. The Government of Andhra Pradesh AIR 1964 SC 1372 the Court said:

"A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected, but lies only for patent error."

6. In Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma Vs. Aribam Pishak Sharma 1979 (4) SCC 389 the Court said:

"... there is nothing in Article 226 of the Constitution to preclude a High Court from exercising the power of review which inheres in every Court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it. But, there are definitive limits to the exercise of the power of review. The power of review may be exercised on the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence was not within the knowledge of the person seeking the review or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made; it may be exercised where some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record is found; it may also be exercised on any analogous ground. But, it may not be exercised on the ground that the decision was erroneous on merits. That would be the province of a Court of Appeal. A power of review is not to be confused with appellate powers which may enable an Appellate Court to correct all manner of errors committed by the Subordinate Court."

7. Again, in Meera Bhanja v. Nirmala Kumari Choudhury AIR 1995 SC 455 while quoting with approval the above passage from Abhiram Taleshwar Sharma Vs. Abhiram Pishak Shartn (supra), the Court once again held that review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC.

8. In Parsion Devi and others Vs. Sumitri Devi and others 1997 (8) SCC 715 it was held that an error, which is not self evident and has to be detected by process of reasoning, can hardly be said to be error apparent on the face of the record justifying the court to exercise powers of review in exercise of review jurisdiction.

9. In Rajendra Kumar Vs. Rambai, AIR 2003 SC 2095, the Apex Court has observed about limited scope of judicial intervention at the time of review of the judgment and said:

"The limitations on exercise of the power of review are well settled. The first and foremost requirement of entertaining a review petition is that the order, review of which is sought, suffers from any error apparent on the face of the order and permitting the order to stand will lead to failure of justice. In the absence of any such error, finality attached to the judgement/order cannot be disturbed."

10. Thus, Review is not an appeal in disguise. Rehearing of the matter is impermissible in the garb of review. It is an exception to the general rule that once a judgment is signed or pronounced, it should not be altered. In Lily Thomas Vs. Union of India AIR 2000 SC 1650, the Court said that power of review can be exercised for correction of a mistake and not to substitute a new. Such powers can be exercised within limits of the statute dealing with the exercise of power. The aforesaid view is reiterated in Inderchand Jain Vs. Motilal (2009) 4 SCC 665.

11. In Kamlesh Verma Vs. Mayawati and others 2013 (8) SCC 320, the Court said:

"19. Review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 of CPC. In review jurisdiction, mere disagreement with the view of the judgment cannot be the ground for invoking the same. As long as the point is already dealt with and answered, the parties are not entitled to challenge the impugned judgment in the guise that an alternative view is possible under the review jurisdiction.

Summary of the Principles:

20. Thus, in view of the above, the following grounds of review are maintainable as stipulated by the statute:*

20.1. When the review will be maintainable:-*

(i) Discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within knowledge of the petitioner or could not be produced by him;

(ii) Mistake or error apparent on the face of the record;

(iii) Any other sufficient reason.

*The words "any other sufficient reason" has been interpreted in Chhajju Ram vs. Neki, AIR 1922 PC 112 and approved by this Court in Moran Mar Basselios Catholicos vs. Most Rev. Mar Poulose Athanasius & Ors., AIR 1954 SC 526, to mean "a reason sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those specified in the rule". The same principles have been reiterated in Union of India vs. Sandur Manganese & Iron Ores Ltd. & Ors., 2013 (8) SCC 337.

22.2. When the review will not be maintainable:-

(i) A repetition of old and overruled argument is not enough to reopen concluded adjudications.

(ii) Minor mistakes of inconsequential import.

(iii) Review proceedings cannot be equated with the original hearing of the case.

(iv) Review is not maintainable unless the material error, manifest on the face of the order, undermines its soundness or results in miscarriage of justice.

(v) A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected but lies only for patent error.

(vi) The mere possibility of two views on the subject cannot be a ground for review.

(vii) The error apparent on the face of the record should not be an error which has to be fished out and searched.

(viii) The appreciation of evidence on record is fully within the domain of the appellate court, it cannot be permitted to be advanced in the review petition.

(ix) Review is not maintainable when the same relief sought at the time of arguing the main matter had been negatived." (emphasis supplied)*

12. In the case in hand, since no ground for review, as above, is made out, the review petition is dismissed.

Salhuddin & Ors. ...Applicants
Versus
State Of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite parties

Counsel for the Applicants:
Shri Ravindra Prakash Srivastava

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:
G.A.

Held –
Matter Before the Court: The High Court heard arguments under Section 482 Cr.P.C. seeking to quash the charge sheet dated 28.11.2014 and the entire proceedings of Case No. 1702 of 2015 (State vs. Salahuddin and others), arising out of N.C.R. No. 143 of 2014 under Sections 323, 504, and 506 IPC (P.S. Dudhara, District Sant Kabir Nagar), pending in the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Sant Kabir Nagar.

Factual Matrix & Applicant's Submissions: Following the lodging of N.C.R. No. 143 of 2014 on 11.07.2014, the Investigating Officer submitted a charge sheet under Sections 323, 504, and 506 IPC, upon which the Judicial Magistrate took cognizance. The applicants challenged the cognizance order on the ground that all alleged offences are non-cognizable and bailable; thus, under Section 2(d) Cr.P.C., the police report ought to have been treated as a private complaint rather than a State case, and no cognizance could be taken on a police report without prior sanction for investigation under Section 155(2) Cr.P.C.

State's Objection & Analysis of Legal Precedents: The learned AGA opposed the application, relying on the Full Bench judgment in Mata Sewak Upadhyaya, which upheld the U.P. Government Notification (No. 777/VIII-94(2)-87 dated July 31, 1989) making Section 506 IPC cognizable and non-bailable. The Court noted that although a Division Bench in Virendra Singh later declared this notification illegal, a subsequent decision in Parveen Kumar clarified that Virendra Singh cannot be given effect because it failed to consider or distinguish the binding Full Bench ruling in Mata Sewak Upadhyaya, which has not been set aside by any larger Bench or the Supreme Court.

Court's Ruling on Cognizance: The Court held that Section 506 IPC remains cognizable, non-bailable, and non-compoundable in the State of Uttar Pradesh pursuant to the valid 1989 notification. Consequently, Section 2(d) Cr.P.C. does not apply to this case, and the Judicial Magistrate's cognizance order is valid. The prayer to quash the charge sheet and proceedings was accordingly refused.

Directions Regarding Bail & Final Disposal: The Court directed that if the applicants appear and apply for bail within 30 days from the order date, the court below shall endeavour to decide their bail application in light of the principles laid down in Amrawati (affirmed by the Supreme Court in Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh). The Court further directed that no coercive action be taken against the applicants during this 30-day period, finally disposing of the application.

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned AGA for the State.

2. This is an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing the charge sheet dated 28.11.2014 as well as entire criminal proceedings of case no. 1702 of 2015, State Vs. Salahuddin and others, arising out of N.C.R. No. 143 of 2014, under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C., P.S. Dudhara, District Sant Kabir Nagar, pending in the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Sant Kabir Nagar.

3. The facts relevant for disposal of this application are that on 11.7.2014, the opposite party no. 2 lodged a report against the applicants, which was registered as N.C.R. No. 143 of 2014, under Section 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. After investigation, the I.O. submitted charge sheet against the applicants under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C and the Judicial Magistrate, Sant Kabir Nagar, took cognizance on the said charge sheet.

4. The aforesaid order of taking cognizance has been challenged by the applicants before this Court in the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. on the ground that all the offences being non-cognizable and bailable, the case was to be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of section 2(d) of Cr.P.C., which provides that a report made by the police officer in a case which discloses, after investigation, the commission of a non-cognizable offence shall be deemed to be a complaint; and the police officer by whom such report is made shall be deemed to be the complainant. Learned counsel has contended that in view of the above, the charge-sheet submitted by the police in the present case under Sections 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. should not have been treated as a State case and the same ought to have been treated as a complaint and no cognizance could be taken on the police report as there was no sanction for the investigation as is required under section 155(2) of Cr.P.C.

5. Learned AGA has opposed the application placing reliance on the Full Bench judgment of this court rendered in the case of Mata Sewak Upadhyaya Vs. State of U.P. and others, reported in 1995 AWC 2031 wherein the validity of notification making section 506 I.P.C as a cognizable offence, was upheld.

6. Considered the submissions of the parties.

7. The offence under section 506 I.P.C. was made cognizable and non-bailable vide U.P. Government Notification No. 777/VIII-94(2)-87 dated July 31, 1989 but later on in the case of Virendra Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2002(45) ACC 609 a Division Bench of this court declared the above notification to be illegal and making the offence under section 506 I.P.C. cognizable and non-bailable.

8. Section 10 of Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1932, gives power to the State Government to declare certain offences cognizable and non-cognizabe by issuing notification in the official Gazette. The U.P. Government vide Notification No. 777/VIII-94(2)-87 dated July 31, 1989 has made the offence under section 506 I.P.C. as cognizable and non-bailable. The legality and validity of this notification came up for consideration before the Full Bench of this Court in the case of Mata Sewak Upadhyay and another versus State of U.P. and others (supra) wherein the Full Bench of this Court held the aforesaid notification as valid.

9. The above matter again came for consideration of this Court, in the case of Parveen Kumar and others Vs. State of U.P. and another, ADJ 2011 (5) 418, wherein it was observed that since the Full Bench decision of this Court in Mata Sevak Upadhyaya and another Vs. State of U.P. and others (supra) has not been over-ruled or set-aside by any larger Bench of this Court or by the Apex Court, so the decision of Division Bench in Virendra Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others (supra) case cannot be given effect to.

10. A perusal of judgment of Virendra Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others (supra) makes it clear that the Full Bench decision of this Court in the case of Mata Sevak Upadhyaya and another Vs. State of U.P. and others (supra) was not brought before the Division Bench and it was neither considered nor discussed nor distinguished by the Division Bench.

11. In view of the discussions made above, I am of the considered view that offence under Section 506 I.P.C. may not be treated as non-cognizable as per submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicant and since the offence under Section 506 I.P.C. has been made, cognizable, non-bailable and non-compoundable vide above mentioned notification in the State of U.P., the provisions of Section 2 (d) of Cr.P.C. do not apply to the present case. The impugned order of cognizance passed by Judicial Magistrate is not liable to be quashed and the prayer for quashing the same is refused.

12. However, it is directed that if the applicants appear before the court below and apply for bail within 30 days from today, the court below shall make endeavour to decide their bail application keeping in view the observations made by this Court in the Full Bench decision of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. 2004 (57) ALR 290 and affirmed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC).

13. For the aforesaid period of 30 days no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants.

14. With the aforesaid observation this application is finally disposed of.

Paragraph 1: The applicant seeks release on bail; counter and rejoinder affidavits are taken on record, and arguments from both sides were heard alongside a review of the case records.
Paragraph 2: The FIR (lodged by the deceased's brother on the day of the incident, March 12, 2013) stated that the deceased was shot dead while riding a motorcycle with a witness named Deepak; two individuals were named as accused, while three unknown, face-covered shooters were also mentioned.
Paragraph 3: The applicant's counsel argued that the informant first implicated the applicant on March 31, 2013, based on separate suspicious sources rather than any statement from Deepak, and that Deepak himself only named the applicant months later on July 15, 2013.
Paragraph 4: Counsel highlighted that if Deepak already knew the applicant, there was no explanation for omitting his name from the FIR or delaying his involvement for months, making the allegation look like a suspicious afterthought.
Paragraph 5: The applicant's role was argued to be distinguishable from the named co-accused, citing his lack of criminal history, detention since July 10, 2015 (over a year in jail), low likelihood of an early trial conclusion, and a commitment to cooperate with proceedings.
Paragraph 6: The learned A.G.A. opposed the bail application.
Paragraph 7: Considering the nature of the evidence, period of detention, delayed implicating statements, low risk of evidence tampering, and unlikely early trial completion, the Court found it fit to grant bail.
Paragraph 8: The Court ordered the release of the applicant (Lallan Yadav @ Pahalwan) in Case Crime No. 151 of 2013 (under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 34, and 120B IPC, P.S. Kasia, District Kushinagar) upon executing a personal bond and two sureties, subject to conditions against tampering with evidence and ensuring personal court attendance.
Paragraph 9: The lower court was granted liberty to initiate bail cancellation proceedings if any conditions are breached.
Paragraph 10: The Court clarified that observations made in this order are strictly limited to deciding the bail application and shall not impact the trial's ultimate merits.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. Applicant by way of this application seeks his release on bail.

2. Counter affidavit and rejoinder affidavit filed today are taken on record.

3. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

4. Perused the record.

5. Submission of the counsel for the applicant is that the first information report was lodged by the brother of the deceased in which the version was given out by him that the deceased had gone along with one Deepak on the motorcycle to the place of occurrence where he was done to death in a shoot out that took place there. Two accused persons namely Balindra Yadav and Munna Singh were named in the F.I.R. by name while it was alleged that three unknown assailants came over there with covered faces who started shooting at the deceased resulting in his death. Further submission is that this incident is said to have taken place on 12.3.2013 and the F.I.R. was lodged on the same very day. Thereafter, on 31.3.2013 the first informant was again examined by the police in which he disclosed the complicity of the applicant in the crime. Submission is that even in this version, it was not stated by the complainant that the aforesaid witness Deepak ever told him that the applicant is one of those shooters. Actually, the source of information on the basis of which suspicion on the applicant was placed was entirely different. It has further been pointed out that after a long gap of period that is to say on 15.7.2013, the aforesaid Deepak was examined by the police and at that belated stage, Deepak named the applicant as one of the shooters and claimed to have known the applicant from before. Submission is that if the applicant was known to the aforesaid witness Deepak then there is absolutely no explanation as to how and under what circumstances the applicant's name was not nominated in the F.I.R. and as to how and why his complicity did not surface for such a long drawn out period of time. Argument is that it is so obvious from the aforesaid circumstances that the introduction of the applicant in the case is nothing but a result of afterthought. Contention is that the belated introduction of the applicant's complicity in the crime without any adequate or acceptable explanation for the same detracts very substantially much of the credibility from the allegations and the evidence against applicant becomes highly suspicious in nature. Submission is that in the aforesaid circumstances, the applicant's case becomes clearly distinguishable from the co-accused, who were nominated in the F.I.R. Much emphasis was laid by the counsel on the period of detention and it has been pointed out that the applicant has spent more than a year in jail and he is languishing behind the bars since 10.7.2015 having no criminal history and that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the applicant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required.

6. Learned A.G.A. opposed the prayer for bail.

7. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence, this Court is of the view that the applicant may be enlarged on bail.

8. Let the applicant- Lallan Yadav @ Pahalwan, involved in Case Crime No. 151 of 2013, u/s 147, 148, 149, 302, 34/120B I.P.C., P.S.- Kasia, District- Kushinagar, be released on bail on his executing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned on the following conditions:-

(1) The applicant will not make any attempt to tamper with the prosecution evidence in any manner whatsoever.

(2) The applicant will personally appear on each and every date in the court and his personal presence shall not be exempted unless the court itself deems it fit to do so in the interest of justice.

9. It may be observed that in the event of any breach of the aforesaid conditions, the court below shall be at liberty to proceed for the cancellation of applicant's bail.

10. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

Writ B No.- 34437 Of 2009

Ram Dawar Yadav & Ors. ...Petitioners
Versus
Chakbandi Ayukt & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
Shri S.C. Tripathi

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Shri A.N. Bhargava

Held –

Para 1: Heard learned counsel Sri S.C. Tripathi for the petitioners, Standing Counsel for the State of U.P., and Sri A.N. Bhargava for respondent-2.
Para 2: The writ petition challenges the Consolidation Commissioner's order dated May 12, 2009, which canceled the Provisional Consolidation Scheme for village Udhpur Gelhuwa (Jaunpur district) and ordered a fresh scheme under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (the Act). Petitioners also seek a mandamus preventing interference with their chak possession.
Para 3: Petitioners state consolidation started in 1981, sector roads/rectangulation were set in 1999, the scheme was prepared by 2001, published under Section 20 in 2002, and chak demarcation/possession occurred between 2005 and 2007. Complainants' grievances were subsequently addressed by a committee by July 2008.
Para 4: Dissatisfied villagers and the Consolidation Committee unanimously resolved in 2008 to request cancellation of the scheme. Upon representation, a joint committee reported major irregularities on May 5, 2009, prompting the Consolidation Commissioner to pass the impugned cancellation order on May 12, 2009.
Para 5: The Consolidation Commissioner cited eleven key grounds for cancellation, including: lack of local inquiry; exclusion of 401 out of 1,802 tenure holders; illegal valuation of public/banjar lands; improper chak allotments over existing houses; backdated Section 20 publication; zigzag sector roads; improper allotment over roads/drains; creation of uran chaks (disjointed allotments); and paper-only demarcation.
Para 6: The petitioners argued that the Commissioner lacked jurisdiction due to statutory delegation to local officers, violated natural justice under Section 48 by not hearing holders or conducting a proper inquiry, ignored 28 years of spent time/resources, and disregarded judicial orders and existing private/public investments. They relied on several Supreme Court and High Court precedents.

Para 7: The High Court examined the arguments and set out the statutory definitions and relevant provisions of the Act (Sections 3(4), 3(4-A), 21(4), 23(1), 44, 44-A, 48) and Rule 111 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Rules, 1954.
Para 8: The Court noted state notifications appointing the Consolidation Commissioner as Ex-officio Director of Consolidation and authorizing various district-level consolidation authorities to exercise Section 48 powers, while Rule 111 merely sets procedural guidelines for revision applications.
Para 9: The Court held that conferring Section 48 powers on subordinate/district officers via notifications does not divest the Director of Consolidation (or Consolidation Commissioner) of primary jurisdiction. Both higher and delegated authorities hold concurrent statutory power, and state notifications cannot override statutory authority.
Para 10: Citing Privy Council and Supreme Court precedents (Blackpool, Barium Chemicals, Ishwar Singh), the Court emphasized that delegating power does not mean the delegating authority loses its own underlying jurisdiction to act.
Para 11: The Court clarified that Section 48 provides supervisory control. While the order referenced Section 48(3), the Commissioner effectively exercised powers akin to Section 23(1) read with Section 44-A to cancel a flawed scheme. Mere citation of an incorrect provision does not invalidate an order if the authority inherently possesses jurisdiction.
Para 12: Examining the joint committee report, the Court confirmed severe defects in the initial process under Section 19-A, including backdated publications, improper handling of Gaon Sabha lands, non-demarcation of public spaces, and widespread dissatisfaction among villagers.
Para 13: The Court found no documentary proof of prior permission under Section 5(1)(c) for improvements claimed by the petitioners (constructions, borings). Additionally, public investments like pitch roads can be accommodated during the fresh scheme preparation.
Para 14: The Court concluded the writ petition lacked merit and dismissed it.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Surat Ram (Maurya), J.)

1. Heard Sri S.C. Tripathi, for the petitioners and Standing Counsel for State of U.P. and Sri A.N. Bhargava, for respondent-2.

2. The writ petition has been filed against the order of Consolidation Commissioner, U.P. dated 12.05.2009, canceling Provisional Consolidation Scheme of village Udhpur Gelhuwa, tahsil Badlapur, district Jaunpur and directing Settlement Officer Consolidation to frame Provisional Consolidation Scheme afresh in the village under U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (hereinafter referred to as the Act) and for mandamus directing consolidation authorities not to interfere in possession of the petitioners over their chaks as allotted to them during consolidation proceeding.

3. According to the petitioners, village Udhpur Gelhuwa was placed under consolidation operation in 1981. Consolidation staff made sector roads in village on 17.07.1999, which was confirmed on 26.07.1999. Thereafter rectangulation was done and Statement of Principles were prepared. Assistant Consolidation Officer prepared Provisional Consolidation Scheme during 14.12.1999 to 02.07.2001, distributed CH Form-23 to the chak holders up to 20.02.2002 and published the village under Section 20 of the Act on 20.02.2002. Demarcation of chaks and delivery of possession was done during 2005 to 2007. Some of the chak holders made complaint relating to demarcation of their chaks and delivery of possession. On which Chief Revenue Officer constituted a committee, which has completed demarcation of the chaks and delivery of possession to the complainants up to 07.07.2008.

4. The villagers and Consolidation Committee were not satisfied with the consolidation proceeding in the village. A meeting of chak holders of the village was called by Chairman, Consolidation Committee, in which a resolution, for cancellation of Provisional Consolidation Scheme and framing fresh Provisional Consolidation Scheme, was unanimously passed. In pursuance thereof, a representation was made to Deputy Director of Consolidation Jaunpur and Consolidation Commissioner U.P. on 08.09.2008, in this respect. On which Deputy Director of Consolidation called for a report from a committee consisting of Settlement Officer Consolidation, Consolidation Officer and Assistant Consolidation Officer, who submitted its report on 05.05.2009, which was forwarded by Deputy Director of Consolidation to Consolidation Commissioner, U.P., on which, he passed impugned order on 12.05.2009, canceling Provisional Consolidation Scheme and directing Settlement Officer Consolidation to frame Provisional Consolidation Scheme afresh. Hence this writ petition has been filed.

5. Consolidation Commissioner U.P. found that (i) Inquiry Committee has not conducted any inquiry in village nor recorded statement of the villagers due to which complainants version has not been noticed. (ii) There were total 1802 chak holders in the village but 401 chak holders were kept out of consolidation scheme. (iii) Valuation of 14 plots, recorded as banjar, grove, abadi and bhita in revenue records, were determined and included in consolidation. (iv) Although 10 chak holders were having their houses over part of their holdings but they were not allotted chaks on it and other chak holders were allotted chaks on their holdings. (v) Assistant Consolidation Officer has not conducted actual survey in the village, due to which Provisional Consolidation Scheme could not be framed in correct manner. (vi) Publication under Section 20 was made prior to distribution of CH Form-23 to the chak holders, due to which none of the chak objections could be filed within time. (vii) Sector road were also made in zigzag. (viii) Several chak holders were allotted chaks on the land of sector road, chak road and chak nali. (ix) 310 small chaks holders having up to 30 decimal original holdings were allotted uran chaks. (x) Demarcation and delivery of possession over confirmed chaks were not completed rather paper works was made and (xi) 105 chak holders were given possession at the different places, which was not allotted to them.

6. The counsel for the petitioners submitted that impugned order has been passed in exercise of powers under Section 48 (3) of the Act. There is a statutory delegation of power of Director of Consolidation under Rule 111 of the Rules, 1954 to Joint/Deputy/Assistant Director of Consolidation of consolidation district, for the purposes of Section 48 of the Act. Without withdrawing powers already delegated, Consolidation Commissioner U.P. had no jurisdiction to pass impugned order. Section 48 (1) and (3) mandatorily require to give opportunity of hearing and examine record of subordinate authorities before passing any order. In the present case, joint committee submitted its report without spot inspection and without giving opportunity of hearing to the chak holders of the village, thus there was no valid reference under Section 48 (3) of the Act. Consolidation Commissioner U.P. also passed the impugned order without giving opportunity of hearing to the chak holders and without examining the record prepared during consolidation, as such correct facts could not be considered. Consolidation was started in 1981. During long span of time of about 28 years, lot of money and energy of chak holders as well as Government was wasted. Chak disputes were contested up to stage of revision. Some revisions and writ petitions are also pending before revisional court and this Court, in which interim orders have been granted. Impugned order set at naught all the judicial orders. 34 chak holders have raised constructions and 48 chak holders have sink boring and installed pumping set over their new chaks, Government has constructed a pitch road in the village, investing about Rs. 400 lakhs. These facts were escaped from consideration while passing impugned order. There is no provision of representation under the Act, no order would have been passed by respondent-1 on the complaint of respondent-2. In case confirmed Provisional Consolidation Scheme is canceled after delivery of possession, it will cause irreparable loss to the Chak holders of the village as they had been deprived from their original holdings which had also lost its identity after demarcation of new chaks. Impugned order is illegal and liable to be set aside. He relied upon judgment of Supreme Court in Gadde Venkateswara Rao Vs. Govt. Of A.P., AIR 1966 SC 825, judgment of this Court in Syed Niyaz Ahmad Vs. State of U.P., AIR 1968 All 430 and M/S Sir Shadi Lal Distillery and Chemical Works Vs. State of U.P., AIR 1977 All 349 (DB) in which it has been held that if personal legal right is affected of a person, he can file writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. Judgment of this Court in Rajendra Prasad Vs. State of U.P., 1978 ALJ 724 (DB), in which it has held that adjudication of right of a tenure holder in consolidation proceeding is conclusive and entry made during consolidation cannot be questioned. Jaga Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, 1984 RD 176, in which it has been held that although Deputy Director of Consolidation can also exercise his powers under Section 21 (4) of the Act but there must be substantial reason for interference in Provisional Consolidation Scheme. Jhingai Vs Deputy Director of Consolidation, 1991 RD 136, in which it has been held that when Statute provides a mode for exercising power, then power has to be exercised according to that mode only. Brij Lal Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, 1996 RD 115, in which it has been held that proceeding under Section 48 (3) of the Act are judicial proceeding and can be initiated only on valid reference of subordinate authorities. Ram Deo Vs. Consolidation Commissioner U.P., 2003 (95) RD 457, in which it has been held that Director of Consolidation has no power to sit in review over decision of Deputy Director of consolidation,

7. I have considered the arguments of the counsel for the parties and examined the record. Relevant provisions of the Act are quoted below:

Section-3 (4) – 'Director of Consolidation' means the person appointed as such by the State Government to exercise the powers and perform the duties of the Director of Consolidation under this Act or the rules made thereunder and shall include an Additional Director of Consolidation and a Joint Director of Consolidation.

Section-3 (4-A) Â- 'Deputy Director of Consolidation' means a person appointed as such by the State Government to exercise such powers and perform such duties of the Director of Consolidation as may be delegated to him by the State Government and shall include a District Deputy Director of Consolidation and Assistant Director of Consolidation.

Section-21 (4)- If during the course of the disposal of an objection or the hearing of an appeal, the Consolidation Officer or the Settlement Officer Consolidation, as the case may be, is of the opinion that material injustice is likely to be caused to a number of tenure-holders in giving effect to the provisional Consolidation Scheme, as prepared by the Assistant Consolidation Officer, or as subsequently modified by the Consolidation Officer, as the case may be, and that a fair and proper allotment of land to the tenure-holders of the units is not possible without revising the provisional Consolidation Scheme, or getting a fresh one prepared, it shall be lawful, for reasons to the recorded in writing for –

(i) The Consolidation Officer to revise the provisional Consolidation Scheme, after giving opportunity of being heard to the tenure-holders concerned, or to remand the same to the Assistant Consolidation Officer, with such directions as the Consolidation Officer may consider necessary; and

(ii) The Settlement Officer Consolidation, to revise the provisional Consolidation Scheme, after giving opportunity of being heard to the tenure holders concerned or to remand the same to the Assistant Consolidation Officer, or the Consolidation Officer, as the Settlement Officer Consolidation, may think fit with such directions as he may consider necessary.

Section-23 (1) – The Settlement Officer Consolidation shall confirm the provisional Consolidation Scheme-

(a) if no objections are filed within the time specified in Sectiion 20; or

(b) where such objections are filed, after such modifications or alterations as may be necessary in view off the orders passed under sub-sections (1) to (4) of Section 21.

Section-44- Delegation- The State Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, and subject to such restrictions and conditions as may be specified in the notification:

(i) Delegate to any officer or authority any of the powers conferred upon it by this Act; and

(ii) Confer powers of the Director of Consolidation, Deputy Director of Consolidation, the Settlement Officer, Consolidation and the Consolidation Officer under this Act or the Rules made thereunder, on any officer or authority.

Section-44-A- Powers of subordinate authority to be exercised by a superior authority – Where powers are to be exercised or duties to be performed by any authority under this Act or the rules made thereunder, such powers or duties may also be exercised or performed by any authority superior to it.

Section-48 Revision and reference – (1) The Director of Consolidation may call for and examine the record of any case decided or proceedings taken by any subordinate authority for the purpose of satisfying himself as to the regularity of the proceedings; or as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any order (other than an interlocutory order) passed by such authority in the case or proceedings, may, after allowing the parties concerned an opportunity of being heard, make such order in the case or proceedings as he thinks fit.

(2) Powers under sub-section (1) may be exercised by the Director of Consolidation also on a reference under sub-section (3).

(3) Any authority subordinate to the Director of Consolidation may, after allowing the parties concerned an opportunity of being heard, refer the record of any case or proceedings to the Director of Consolidation for action under sub-section (1).

Rule-111 of UP C. H. Rules 1954- Sections 48 and 54- An application under Section 48 of the Act shall be presented by the applicant or his duly authorised agent to the Joint/Deputy/Assistant Director of Consolidation, nominated by the Director of Consolidation, Uttar Pradesh for the District or Settlement Officer, Consolidation unit concerned or failing posting of any such Joint/Deputy/Assistant Director of Consolidation in the district, to the District Deputy Director Consolidation within 30 days of the order against which the application is directed. It shall be accompanied by copy of the judgment or order in respect of which the application is preferred. Copies of judgment or order, if any, of other sub-ordinate authorities in respect of dispute shall also be filed along with the application.

8. State of U.P. by notification Revenue (A) Department Notification No. 8524-(5)/IA-825-1954 dated November 22, 1956 authorized all Deputy Director of Consolidation of consolidation district to exercise powers under Sections 26, 43 and 48 of the Act. By notification Revenue (A) Department Notification No. 8524-(i)/IA-825-1954 dated November 22, 1956 authorized Deputy Director of Consolidation of consolidation district to exercise powers under Section 48 (3) of the Act. By notification Revenue (A) Department Notification No. 5630-CH/IA-351-1958 dated December 23, 1958 appointed "Consolidation Commissioner" as "Ex-officio Director of Consolidation". By notification Revenue (E) Department Notification No. 113-74 Revenue-8 (868) dated 22.11.1974 authorized all Additional District Magistrate of consolidation district to exercise powers under Section 48 of the Act. So far as Rule 111 of the Rules 1954 is concerned, it provides a procedure for presentation of revision.

9. Jurisdiction under Section 48 of the Act is conferred upon Director of Consolidation U.P. which includes Additional Director of Consolidation U.P. and Joint Director of Consolidation U.P. By virtue of notification dated December 23, 1958 "Consolidation Commissioner" is "Ex-officio Director of Consolidation" therefore he can exercise all powers of Director of Consolidation under the Act. Under various notifications as mentioned above as well as in view of Section 3 (4-A) of the Act, District Deputy Director of Consolidation, Deputy Director of Consolidation, Assistant Director of Consolidation and Additional District Magistrate of consolidation district were also conferred powers of Director of Consolidation U.P. under Section 48 of the Act. There is nothing either under the Act or the Rules and various notification, which excludes the powers of Director of Consolidation U.P. As such all the aforesaid authorities can concurrently exercise powers under Section 48 of the Act. Aforesaid notifications do not amount to delegation of powers within the meaning of Section 44 (i) of the Act. It only confer powers to various authorities as provides under Section 44 (ii) of the Act. Statute prevails over Rules and Notifications which are subsidiary legislation.

10. Privy Council in Blockpool Corporation Vs. Locker (1948) 1 All E R 538, held that principal and delegate both can act simultaneously. Supreme Court in Barium Chemicals Ltd. V. Company Law Board, AIR 1967 SC 295, held that as a general rule, whatever a person has power to do himself, he may do by means of an agent. This broad rule is limited by the operation of the principle that a delegated authority cannot be re-delegated, delegatus non potest delegare. The naming of a delegate to do an act involving a discretion indicates that the delegate was selected because of his peculiar skill and the confidence reposed in him, and there is a presumption that he is required to do the act himself and cannot re-delegate his authority. In Ishwar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (2005) 2 SCC 334, held that expression ''delegation of authority of power' is a term which like the word ''delegate' does not imply a parting with powers by the person who grants the delegation, but points rather to the conferring of an authority to do things which otherwise that person would have to do himself."

11. Powers under Section 48 of the Act is supervisory in nature through which Director of Consolidation has administrative and judicial control over all the sub-ordinate authorities. For the purposes of judicial powers, Deputy Director of Consolidation etc. Of consolidation district are co-ordinate authority but for administrative purpose they are subordinate authorities. Consolidation Commissioner has noted that impugned order was passed exercising powers under Section 48 (3) of the Act, as the report of joint committee was forwarded by Deputy Director of Consolidation to Consolidation Commissioner. In fact, he canceled Provisional Consolidation Scheme framed under Section 19-A of the Act. Provisional Consolidation Scheme can be canceled by Consolidation Officer and Settlement Officer Consolidation under Section 21 (4), while deciding chak objections and appeals. It has to be confirmed by Settlement Officer Consolidation under Section 23 (1) of the Act, which necessarily includes power to cancel it. Section 23 (1) does not contemplate for opportunity of hearing to the chak holders. Powers under Section 23 (1) of the Act can be exercised by Consolidation Commissioner also in view of Section 44-A of the Act as held by this Court in Jaga Vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, 1984 RD 176. Consolidation Commissioner, after considering the complaint of respondent-2 and report of joint committee found that gross illegality had been committed in framing Provisional Consolidation Scheme. Due to mentioning wrong provision, the order can not held as illegal, as Consolidation Commissioner has otherwise jurisdiction to pass the order.

12. Provisional Consolidation Scheme is prepared under Section 19-A of the Act. Section 19-A and Rule 46 provides that Assistant Consolidation Officer shall prepared Provisional Consolidation Scheme in consultation with members of Consolidation Committee after making inquiries from as many as tenure holders as he is able to collect. From report of joint committee, it is proved that Assistant Consolidation Officer made sector roads in village on 17.07.1999, which was confirmed on 26.07.1999. Thereafter Statement of Principles must have been prepared. Assistant Consolidation Officer allegedly prepared Provisional Consolidation Scheme during 14.12.1999 to 02.07.2001. It has been held that publication under Section 20 was ante-dated. Large area of gaon sabha land was included in consolidation proceeding without assigning any reason. Land reserved for public purposes was not demarcated nor possession was given over it to Land Management Committee. The villagers and Consolidation Committee were not satisfied with Provisional Consolidation Scheme. A meeting of chak holders of the village was called by Chairman, Consolidation Committee, in which a resolution, for cancellation of Provisional Consolidation Scheme and framing fresh Provisional Consolidation Scheme, was unanimously passed in September, 2008. Illegalities have been mentioned in paragraph-5 (supra).

13. Although, the petitioners have stated that 34 chak holders had raised constructions and 48 chak holders had sink boring and installed pumping set over their new chaks, but no proof of the allegation has been filed. In any case, there is no evidence to show that prior permission of Settlement Officer Consolidation was obtained for making improvements as required under Section 5 (1) (c) of the Act. So far as construction a pitch road in the village, by investing about Rs. 400 lakhs, is concerned Provisional Consolidation Scheme is framed after making Sector Roads and rectangulation. In any case, while preparing fresh Provisional Consolidation Scheme, it may be taken in to account.

14. In view of the aforesaid discussions, writ petitions has no merit and is dismissed.

Ram Bahadur ...Petitioner

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Shri Harish Chandra Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Shri Krishna Agarwal

Held –

Paragraph 1: Counsel Sri Harish Chandra Singh (for the petitioner) and Sri Krishna Agarawal (for the Electricity Department) were heard by the Court.
Paragraph 2: The petitioner applied for an electric connection for a tubewell, which was formally granted by the department on April 14, 2015.
Paragraph 3: Following an inspection on June 3, 2015, the department found the petitioner bypassing the meter to run an "Aata Chakki" (flour mill). A provisional assessment of ₹5,73,682 was issued, objections were rejected, and a final assessment order (dated October 27, 2015) and recovery citation (dated August 20, 2016) were issued for the same amount, prompting this writ petition.
Paragraph 4: The calculation for the final assessment order relied on the formula in Annexure-6.3 under the Electricity Supply Code, 2005.
Paragraph 5: The Court highlights Section 126(5) of the Electricity Act, 2003, which dictates that assessment for unauthorized use must cover the actual period of misuse, or a maximum capped at 12 months prior to inspection if the exact period cannot be ascertained.
Paragraph 6: This reinforces that applying a full 12-month period is a fallback default, reserved only for when the exact duration of unauthorized use cannot be identified.
Paragraph 7: Clause 6.8(c)(iii) of the Code echoes Section 126, outlining the procedure for provisional assessment per Annexure 6.3 and noting that "unauthorized use" may be concluded based on factual evidence without requiring dishonest intent.
Paragraph 8: The detailed mathematical formula (\text{Units Assessed} = L \times F \times D \times H) from Annexure-6.3 is set out, defining how connected load, hours, duration, and load factors are calculated and billed at 1.5\times the standard tariff rate.

Paragraph 9: The Court re-emphasizes that both Section 126(5) of the Act and Clause 6.8(c)(iii) of the Code strictly require calculating the actual duration first before defaulting to 12 months.
Paragraph 10: The Court isolates the core legal issue: factor 'D' (duration/period of misuse) in the formula, noting that the Assessing Officer must actively record satisfaction when determining the actual period.
Paragraph 11: The Court finds that the Assessing Officer failed to apply his mind or record satisfaction, mechanically defaulting to a full 365-day period for the assessment.
Paragraph 12: The Court holds the 365-day calculation patently erroneous. Since the connection was only granted on April 14, 2015, and the inspection took place on June 3, 2015 (less than two months later), the period of unauthorized use could not logically precede the date the connection was first given.
Paragraph 13: The Electricity Department cited past Supreme Court and Allahabad High Court decisions (J.M.D. Alloys, Lalit Kumar Kapoor, and Sri Bhagwan Gupta) to justify using the 12-month period.
Paragraph 14: The Court distinguishes those precedents because, in those cases, the actual period of misuse could not be established. Here, the start date was clearly bound by the date the connection was granted.
Paragraph 15: The recovery citation and final assessment order are quashed, the writ petition is allowed, and the Executive Engineer is directed to issue a revised assessment calculated from the connection date forward.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Tarun Agarwala, J.)

1. We have heard Sri Harish Chandra Singh,the learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Krishna Agarawal, the learned counsel for the Electricity Department.

2. The petitioner applied for an electric connection for the purpose of running a tubewell. After completion of necessary formalities an electric connection was granted by the Electricity Department on 14.04.2015.

3. It transpires that the Electricity Department carried out an inspection and found that the petitioner was using the electricity unauthorizedly by-passing the meter and using it for running an "Aata Chakki". An inspection report dated 03.06.2015 was filed, based on which a provisional assessment order was issued on 12.06.2015 for a sum of Rs.5,73,682/-. The petitioner filed its objection on 20.07.2016, which was considered and rejected and a final assessment order for a sum of Rs. 5,73,682/-was passed on 27.10.2015. A recovery citation dated 20.08.2016 was issued. The petitioner, being aggrieved by the recovery citation and the final assessment order has filed the present writ petition.

4. A perusal of the final assessment order dated 27.10.2015 indicates that the calculation has been made on the basis of a formula contained in Annexure-6.3 prescribed under the Electricity Supply Code, 2005 (hereinafter referred to as the Code).

5. In order to understand the controversy it would be relevant to mention a few provisions of the Act and the Code. Assessment is required to be made under Section 126 of the Electricity Act, 2003 (hereinafter referred to as the Act). Section 126(5) of the Act states as under:

"(5) If the assessing officer reaches to the conclusion that unauthorised use of electricity has taken place, the assessment shall be made for the entire period during which such unauthorised use of electricity has taken place and if, however, the period during which such unauthorised use of electricity has taken place cannot be ascertained, such period shall be limited to a period of twelve months immediately preceding the date of inspection."

6. The aforesaid provision indicates that if the Assessing Officer finds that unauthorized use of electricity had taken place, in that case, assessment shall be made for the entire period during which the unauthorized use of electricity had taken place and if the period of such unauthorized use of electricity could not be ascertained, in such case the period would be limited to a period of twelve months immediately preceding from the date of inspection.

7. The procedure for making the assessment has been given under Clause 6.8 of the Code. Clause 6.8 (c)(iii) of the Code provides as under:

"(iii) If the assessing officer reaches to the conclusion that unauthorized use of electricity has taken place, the assessment shall be made for the entire period during which such unauthorized use of electricity has taken place and if, however, the period during which such unauthorized use of electricity has taken place cannot be ascertained, such period shall be limited to a period of twelve months immediately preceding the date of inspection for all categories of services, and he shall provisionally assess the consumption as per the procedure specified in Annexure 6.3.

Note.--The assessing officer can draw 'conclusions' that unauthorized use of electricity has taken place, based on findings that reveal existence of conditions of "unauthorized use of electricity" given in "Explanation" of clause 6.8, and evidence found suggests that unauthorized use of electricity was not made with 'dishonest' intentions, but due to ignorance of procedure or rules or compulsions that only warrant a suitable assessment commensurate with the Act."*

8. The formula given under Annexure-6.3 of the Code, is extracted hereunder:

*"[Annexure 6. 3 (Ref. Clause 6.8(c)(iii) & 8.1(b)(iv)

A). Assessment in case of unauthorized use of electricity
*1. Units Assessed = L * F * D * H.*
Where L = is the connected load in kW and in KVA where KVAh rate is applicable.
H = is the actual no. of hours the supply is made available on the feeder if available for the period, or average number of hours per day the supply is made available for different categories as below:

a) Single shift industry (Day / night only), Agriculture: 10 hrs

b) Non-continuous industry (Day / night only): non-domestic general including restaurants, Hotels, guest-houses, petrol pumps, and nursing homes and private hospitals: 20 hrs

c) Continuous process industry: 24 hrs

d) Domestic: 8 hrs

e) Temporary connections: 12 hrs

D = Period during which such unauthorized use of electricity has taken place, and if, however, the period during which such unauthorized use of electricity has taken place cannot be ascertained, such period shall be limited to a period of 12 months (365 days) immediately preceding the date of inspection.

Note: For determining the 'actual period' of unauthorized use, the assessing officer shall satisfy himself by (I) the report of meter reader/Junior engineer of the facts reporting first instance of the unauthorized use detected (ii) Further scanning by the assessing officer, by checking previous consumptions, and 'tamper' evidence from meter reading records, MRI reports etc. (iii) Any other record or evidence acquired from the connected premise/installation or site.*

F = connected load factor for different types of supply as given below:

a) For L & F and domestic power consumers F = 0.30

b) For non-domestic L & F and power consumers F = 0.50

c) For Small and Medium power consumers F= 0.50

d) For large and heavy power consumer F = 0.75

e) Agriculture F=0.30

f) Categories not covered above F= 0.50

2. The consumption so assessed shall be charged at one and half times the rate per unit of the tariff applicable to the consumer category after adjusting the amount paid by the consumer/person for the energy consumption assessed for the assessment period if any. The amount billed at this rate (one and half times rate) shall not be taken into consideration for the purpose of computing consumer's liability to pay monthly/ annually minimum charges, wherever applicable.

3. In cases where fix monthly tariff exist, monthly assessment shall be made at one and half times the monthly rate.

4. For the case where the usage of electricity is for premises or areas other than those for which the supply of electricity was authorized, the procedure mentioned at Sl.No.1 to 3, shall be followed."

9. Section 126(5) of the Act clearly indicates that where unauthorized use of electricity is found to have taken place, the assessment would be made for the entire period in which such unauthorized use of electricity had taken place and if the period cannot be ascertained then such period would be limited to a period of 12 months immediately preceding the date of inspection. Clause 6.8 (c) (iii) of the Code also speaks of the same thing. The assessment has been made on the basis of formula indicated in Annexure-6.3 of the Code.

10. We are confining the present controversy to the criteria 'D' indicated in the formula which relates to the determination of the period during which such unauthorized use of electricity had taken place. The "Note" indicated in Annexure 6.3 of the Supply Code,2005 indicates that for determining the "actual period" of unauthorized use of electricity, the Assessing Officer has to satisfy himself, which would become the actual period of unauthorized use.

11. In the instant case, we find that there has been no determination of the actual period of unauthorized use of the electricity by the Assessing Officer. No satisfaction has been recorded by the Assessing Officer. On the other hand, without application of mind and mechanically, a period of twelve months, i.e., 365 days has been determined as the actual period of unauthorized use based on which the assessment order has been passed.

12. This determination of 365 days is patently erroneous. This 365 days can only be used for making the assessment, when the Assessing Officer is satisfied that the actual period of unauthorized use cannot be ascertained. In the instant case, the electricity connection was granted on 14.04.2015. The unauthorized use of electricity was found during the course of inspection after two months on 03.06.2015. The period of unauthorized use can be determined from the date when the connection was granted, i.e., from 14.04.2015 onwards. Unauthorized use of energy cannot be extended prior to the date of connection nor there can be a deemed presumption of unauthorized use of electricity for twelve months or 365 days, which precedes the date of actual date of connection being granted. We are of the opinion that when the electricity connection was granted on 14.042015 unauthorized use of energy at best can be determined from that date onwards.

13. Learned counsel for the respondents has placed reliance upon a decision of Supreme Court in J.M.D. Alloys Ltd. Vs. Bihar State Electricity Board and Ors., (2003) 5 SCC 226 and decisions of this Court in Lalit Kumar Kapoor Vs. Kanpur Electricity Supply Company, Kanpur and Another, 2011(11) ADJ 484 and in Sri Bhagwan Gupta Vs. Kanpur Electricity Supply Company Ltd. and Ors, 2005(2) AWC 1269.

14. The said decisions are distinguishable inasmuch as the period of unauthorised use of electricity could not be established and consequently, the maximum period was taken into consideration for computation of the assessment as per the formula. In the instant case, the period is determined namely, from the date of grant of the electricity connection.

15. In the light of the aforesaid, the recovery certificate dated 20.08.2016 and the assessment order dated 27.10.2015 cannot be sustained and are quashed. The writ petition is allowed. The Executive Engineer is directed to pass a fresh assessment order in the light of the observations made above.

THE HON'BLE SUNEET KUMAR, J.

Writ C No.- 39634 Of 2016

Km. Amrita Yadav ...Petitioner
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Shri Amar Nath Singh, Shri Surendra Kumar Chaubey

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Shri Syed Nadeem Ahmad

Held –

Hearing: The Court heard learned counsel for the petitioners and the State respondents.
BTC/D.El.Ed. Selection: Pursuant to the Government Order dated 14.06.2016, the State initiated selection for the BTC 2015 Teacher Education Course in Government and private institutions approved by NCTE and affiliated by the State Government.
Eligibility and Age: Candidates were required to possess a graduation degree with at least 50% marks by the last date of registration, i.e. 11.07.2016. The prescribed age was 18 to 35 years as on 01.07.2015, subject to applicable relaxations.
Selection Procedure: Selection was based on merit and quality-point marks calculated from educational qualifications.
Petitioners' Challenge: The petitioners challenged 01.07.2015 as the cut-off date for determining age, contending that it was arbitrary because the selection process was initiated in 2016.
Petitioners' Main Arguments: They argued that the cut-off date lacked nexus with the BTC course; qualified graduates were excluded; Rule 6 of the U.P. Basic Education Teachers (Service) Rules, 1981 required a different age reckoning; and acceptance of forms and fees created an estoppel against denial of counselling.
State's Defence: The State submitted that the selection related to the delayed BTC 2015 session, hence 01.07.2015 was the appropriate cut-off date. BTC 2016 would follow shortly, enabling presently ineligible candidates to apply.
Effect of Changing Cut-off Date: The State further argued that shifting the date to 2016 would prejudice candidates who were within the upper age limit on 01.07.2015 and would require reopening the entire selection process.
Question for Determination: The sole issue was whether fixing 01.07.2015 as the age cut-off date for BTC 2015 was arbitrary, fanciful, whimsical or capricious.
Undisputed Facts: The BTC 2015 selection process commenced under the Government Order dated 14.06.2016, with advertisements issued on 23.06.2016 and the last registration date fixed as 11.07.2016.
Application Schedule: The prescribed schedule provided for registration by 11.07.2016, fee deposit by 14.07.2016, completion of forms by 18.07.2016, and corrections by 22.07.2016.

Rule 6 Argument: The petitioners relied upon Rule 6 of the 1981 Rules, which prescribes the age requirement for recruitment to the post of teacher in a Basic School.
Training and Recruitment Distinguished: Following Divyanshi Tiwari v. State of U.P. and others, the Court held that admission to BTC training and recruitment as a teacher are entirely different processes.
1981 Rules Held Inapplicable: The Court held that the 1981 Rules govern recruitment to teaching posts and have no application to the selection of candidates for a training course. Therefore, the challenge based on Rule 6 was rejected.
Challenge on Arbitrariness: The petitioners alternatively contended that, since the advertisement was issued in 2016, the age cut-off should also have been fixed as 01.07.2016.
State's Explanation Accepted for Consideration: The State explained that the BTC academic sessions were delayed and that the process initiated in 2016 actually related to the BTC 2015 session.
Supreme Court Directions on Academic Session: Referring to Baba Shiv Nath Singh, Shikshan Evam Prashikshan Sansthan v. NCTE and others, the Court noted that the academic calendar for BTC 2015 had already been judicially regulated, including commencement of the session on 22.09.2016.
Limited Judicial Interference with Cut-off Dates: Relying on National Council for Teacher Education v. Sri Shyam Shiksha Prashikshan Sansthan, the Court held that a cut-off date should not ordinarily be interfered with unless it is shown to be capricious or whimsical.
Principle on Choice of Date: Referring to Union of India v. Parameswaran Match Works, the Court reiterated that the choice of a particular date cannot be declared arbitrary merely because another date could also have been chosen.
Reasonable Latitude to Authorities: A cut-off date must ordinarily be accepted unless it is shown to be wholly unreasonable or far removed from a rational basis.
Application of Supreme Court Precedent: Relying on State of Bihar v. Ramjee Prasad, the Court held that merely because some candidates would become eligible if the date were shifted does not make the existing cut-off date arbitrary.
Cut-off Date Upheld: The Court found that fixing 01.07.2015 was neither whimsical nor capricious, particularly because shifting it to 2016 could exclude candidates who were within the upper age limit for BTC 2015.
Individual Hardship Not Sufficient: The exclusion of some candidates who became otherwise qualified in 2016 did not, by itself, render the cut-off date unconstitutional or arbitrary.
Zero-Year/Merger Plea: The request to declare an academic year a "zero year" and merge delayed sessions was treated as a matter of policy. The Court declined to issue a positive direction but left it open to the State Government to consider the matter.
Previous Government Orders Distinguished: Earlier Government Orders fixing the age cut-off in the same year as the notification were held inapplicable because those academic sessions were regular and not delayed.
Final Decision: The Court found no reason to differ from Divyanshi Tiwari and consequently dismissed the writ petition.
Interim Orders Vacated: All interim orders permitting provisional counselling for BTC 2015 in similar writ petitions were vacated and were held not to bind the Regulatory Authority or DIET Principals.
No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. The State Government pursuant to Government Order dated 14 June 2016 initiated the process of conducting Teacher Education Course/D.El.Ed. The candidates were to be selected for Government and Private Training Institutions which were duly approved by the National Council for Teachers Education and affiliated by the State Government. Pursuant to the notification, advertisement were published inviting applications from candidates having graduation degree with minimum 50% marks, on the last date of registration i.e. 11 July 2016. Paragraph 3(ii) of the notification prescribes the age limit. A candidate must have attained the age of 18 years and should not be over 35 years as on 1 July 2015. Relaxation in the upper age limit was provided to some category of candidates viz. Scheduled Caste, Scheduled Tribe, Other Backward Class, Handicapped etc.

3. Paragraph 4 provides for procedure for selection which is based on merit and quality point marks determined on educational qualification.

4. The petitioners are assailing the cut of date i.e. 1 July 2015 prescribed for determination of age. All the petitioners before the Court are less than 18 years as on the cut of date and would submit: (i) cut of date being arbitrary and having no nexus with the BTC course, as applications are being invited in 2016 but the cut of date has been fixed in July 2015; (ii) persons having obtained graduation degree as on the last date of registration i.e. 11 July 2016 have been deprived by arbitrarily fixing the cut of date in the preceding year; (iii) as per Rule 1981 the candidate must have attained the age of 18 years and must not have attained the age of more than 35 years on the first day of July following the year in which the vacancy is notified; (iv) candidates who have obtained graduation degree have legitimate expectation of employment upon completing BTC training; (iv) registration form and fee have been accepted, therefore, the respondents are estopped from not sending the petitioners for counselling.

5. Learned Standing Counsel appearing for the respondents would contend: (i) BTC being two year training programme, the session being delayed, therefore, the cut of date has been fixed as per the session 2015; (ii) selection are being made for BTC 2015, therefore, cut of date has been fixed on 1 July 2015, the date and year in which advertisement has been issued would, therefore, have no bearing; (iii) State would shortly be inviting applications for BTC 2016, therefore, all candidates who are ineligible as on 1 July 2015 would become eligible for BTC 2016; (iv) upon disturbing the cut of date, would deprive a large number of candidates who have attained the age of 35 years from participating in the selection process; (v) candidates likely to be affected in shifting the cut of date, would disturb the entire selection process, therefore, a fresh advertisement would have to be issued inviting application from such candidates; (vi) the session for 2015-16 is already delayed, therefore, the Government in order to regularize the session would shortly be issuing notification for BTC 2016; (vii) reliance has been placed on a decision rendered in Divyanshi Tiwari vs. State of U.P. And others[3].

6. Rival submissions fall for consideration.

7. I have perused the pleadings, records of the case and considered the rival submissions advanced at the Bar.

8. The sole question for determination is, as to whether, the cut of date i.e. 1 July 2015 fixed by notification dated 14 June 2016 for BTC 2015, for determination of age is arbitrary, fanciful and whimsical.

9. The facts inter se parties are not in dispute.

10. The State Government initiated the processes for selection of candidates for BTC 2015 pursuant to Government Order dated 14 June 2016. Advertisements were published and notified on 23 June 2016 inviting applications from eligible candidates. The last date for registration of the candidates, having educational qualification was fixed for 11 July 2016, thereafter, counselling would commence.

11. The Examination Regulatory Authority, Uttar Pradesh Allahabad[4] posted on their official website the schedule for registration and filling of form which is as follows: (i) Last date for registration: 11 July 2016 up to 6:00 pm only; (ii) Last date for fee deposit: 14 July 2016; (iii) Last date for complete the form: 18 July 2016; (iv) Last date for correction: 22 July 2016 upto 6:00 pm.

12. As per the scheme of the Government Order, a candidate must possess minimum educational qualification on the last date of registration, apart from fulfilling the age criterion as on 1 July 2015.

13. The learned counsel for the petitioner would contend that in respect of teachers of primary schools maintained by the Board, the U.P. Basic Education Teachers (Service Rules) 19815 would apply. Rule 6 of Rule 1981 provides that a candidate for recruitment for a post of teacher in a Basic school must have attained the age of 18 years and must not have attained the age of more than 35 years on the first day of July following the year in which the vacancy is notified.

14. Heavy reliance has been placed on the Rule to impress that training is an essential qualification for appointment of a teacher, therefore, determination of age for training course should be in terms of Rule 6 of Rule 1981, it is therefore, urged that the cut of date fixed under the notification for BTC 2015 is against the statutory provision.

15. In my opinion, this matter has been dealt in detail in Divyanshi Tiwari (supra), wherein it has been held:

Recruitment to a post of teacher and admission to undergo BTC Training course are two different things and it appears that the petitioner is confused that she is being appointed for BTC. As a matter of fact, for obtaining BTC certificates by the candidates, the State Government has issued Government Order dated 14.06.2016 and in pursuance thereof, the advertisement was issued. The successful candidates are required to undergo training for BTC training and after being declared successful in the training, they are issued BTC certificate, which is one of the requisite qualification for being appointed as a Teacher in Basic Schools. Therefore, the stand of the petitioner that the age is to be determined as on the 1st July, 2016 and not on 1st July, 2015 is not legally acceptable.

16. I have no reason to take a different view, Rule 1981 would not apply to selection of candidates for a training course. Recruitment for the post of a teacher and selection of candidates for training course are entirely different and are governed under different provisions. Rule 1981 is not directly or indirectly, even remotely connected with the method of selection of candidates for undergoing training, which is dependent upon the terms and conditions and the criterion determined by the State Government and the Regulatory Authority from time to time. It is upon acquiring the training certificate, a candidate would, thereafter become eligible for applying for the post of a teacher upon successfully qualifying Teachers Eligibility Test (TET). The plea, that the cut of date for determining the age is in violation of Rule 6, therefore, is rejected.

17. The other contention, as to whether, the State Authorities have committed an error in fixing the cut of date on 1 July 2015 for determination of age being arbitrary, whimsical or capricious.

18. It is sought to be urged on behalf of the petitioners that the advertisement was notified in June 2016 but the cut of date for determination of age has been fixed in the preceding year i.e. 2015, whereas, if not fixed as per Rule 1981, then in that event, it should have been fixed on 1 July 2016. It is not in dispute that all the petitioners before the Court have obtained graduation degree and are having the requisite qualification on the last date of registration i.e. 11 July 2016, but for the cut of date fixed in the preceding year i.e. 2015 a large number of meritorious candidates have been eliminated, therefore, it is contended that the cut of date is arbitrary. Further, it is contended that selection for BTC training course is not a recruitment process, it is merely, a selection to undergo training which is not linked with employment or selection of teachers, therefore, fixing the cut of date in 2015 has no reasonable nexus with the purpose sought to be achieved. All the candidates otherwise qualified would loose one year and would have to wait for the subsequent advertisement.

19. In rebuttal learned Standing Counsel would contend that the session for BTC training, in the State, is delayed, the process for BTC 2015 which should have been initiated and concluded in 2015 has spilled over to the subsequent year, therefore, it is sought to be urged that the State Government in its wisdom while fixing the cut of date for determination of age, has fixed it on 1 July 2015 as the training programme is for 2015 and not for 2016. It is further contended that for BTC 2016 a notification would shortly follow, petitioners can apply and that would not prejudice them. The cut of date is justified for the reason that all candidates who have already attained the age of 35 years as on 1 July 2015 would be deprived, in case, the cut of date is shifted to 2016. All such affected candidates are not before the Court, even otherwise, it is not possible at this stage to modify the cut of date, for the reason that the session is already delayed and in the event of the cut of date being shifted, a fresh advertisement would have to be notified so as to permit all such candidates who are not before the Court to enable them to apply.

20. In Baba Shiv Nath Singh, Shikshan Evam Prashikshan Sansthan vs. National Council for Teacher Education and others the petitioner institution therein was granted recognition by the NCTE for 2015-16 for conducting the Teacher Education Course/BTC course. The plea of the institution before the Court was that the session for 2015-16 is yet to be commenced and such commencement will be inordinately delayed as the academic session for the previous year i.e. 2014-15 is yet to start, therefore, it was prayed for ante-date the recognition of the institutions either to the academic session 2013-14 or academic session 2014-15, as may be. The Court inter alia directed that academic session for 2015-16 (BTC 2015) would commence on 22 September 2016 and in respect of the said academic session "affiliation and admissions etc. in respect of the academic year would stand concluded well in time to enable the commencement of the session from the date mentioned i.e. 22 September 2016". It was further provided that the academic session 2015-16 similarly will be brought to its earliest conclusion so that the next academic session "can begin as per the original academic calendar i.e. July 2017 and thereafter, each academic session will strictly upheld to the academic calendar of the State".

21. The decision pertains to BTC 2015, therefore, the cut of date fixed for commencement and conclusion of the course by the Supreme Court is binding upon the State and the Institutions. The notification of the State has adhered to the cut off date which cannot be altered by this Court.

22. As to whether the cut off date for determination of age as notified is arbitrary, Supreme Court in National Council for Teachers Education vs. Sri Shaym Shiksha Prashikshan Sansthan[7] declared that the cut of dates would not be declared illegal unless "it is shown to be capricious or whimsical in the circumstances". The Court held that a reasonable degree of latitude was required to be provided to be law-makers and thus when a cut-off date was fixed, it was ordinarily not to be interfered with by the judiciary.

23. In Union of India vs. Parameswaran Match Works[8] wherein the Court relied upon following judgments, viz., Louisville Gas Co.[9] vs. Alabama Power Co. and M. Match Works vs. Assistant Collector, Central Excise[10], the Court observed as follows:

> The choice of a date as a basis for classification cannot be always be dubbed as arbitrary even if no particular reason is forthcoming for the choice unless it is shown to be capricious or whimsical in the circumstances. When it is seen that a line or a point there must be and there is no mathematical or logical way of fixing it precisely, the decision of the legislature or its delegate must be accepted unless we can say that it is very wide off the reasonable mark.

24. In State of Bihar vs. Ramjee Prasad[11], the Court reversed the judgment of the Patna High Court which had struck down the cut off date fixed for receipt of the application. After adverting to the judgments in Union of India vs. Parameshwaran Match Works (supra) and Uttar Pradesh Mahavidyalaya Tadarth Shikshak Niyamitikaran Abhiyan Samiti, Varanasi vs. State of U.P., the Court observed:

> In the present case as pointed out earlier the past practice was to fix the last date for receipt of applications a month or one and a half months after the date of actual publication of the advertisement. …….. As pointed out by this Court the choice of date cannot be dubbed as arbitrary even if no particular reason is forthcoming for the same unless it is shown to be capricious or whimsical or wide off the reasonable mark. The choice or the date for advertising the posts had to depend on several factors, e.g. the number of vacancies in different disciplines, the need to fill up the posts, the availability of candidates, etc. It is not the case of anyone that experienced candidates were not available in sufficient numbers on the cut-off date. Merely, because the respondents and some others would qualify for appointment if the last date for receipt of applications is shifted from January 31, 1988 to June 30, 1988 is no reason for dubbing the earlier date as arbitrary or irrational.

25. Having due regard to the statement of law, it cannot be said that fixation of date for determination of age on 1 July 2015, Government has acted whimsically or capriciously. It cannot be brushed aside that all candidates who are at the brink of upper age limit i.e. 35 years would be deprived from participating in the selection process in the event the cut of date is shifted to the year of notification i.e. 2016. Merely, because some eligible candidates who have obtained graduation degree in 2016 are not eligible due to the cut of date fixed for the determination of age would not mean that the action on the part State Government is whimsical or arbitrary. Further, the State Government has to strictly comply with the directions issued in Baba Shiv Nath (supra).

26. Finally, the argument that academic year 2015-16 or 2016-17 be declared "zero" year and merge academic session for both the years into one i.e. 2017-2018, so as to regularize the session. A similar plea was raised before the Supreme Court in Baba Shiv Nath (surpa) which was rejected in the absence of all the institutions and the representations of the students who may be affected, therefore, this Court would not dwell upon the issue for the same reason, but it would be appropriate for the State Government in consultation with the Regulatory Authority and the Institutions, to take a decision in that regard upon deliberation. The plea falls within the ambit of policy decision, therefore, no positive direction can be issued, however, it is always open for the State Government to dwell upon the issue and take an appropriate decision.

27. Reliance has been placed on several Government Orders pertaining to previous selections issued for BTC training course to demonstrate that the cut of date for age determination was fixed in the year of notification. The Government Orders relied upon by the petitioners is of no help for the reason that the session was regular and not delayed as in the facts of the present case.

28. For the reasons and law stated herein above, the Court is not inclined to take the different view from Divyanshi Tiwari, consequently, the writ petition fails, accordingly, stands dismissed.

29. It is provided that interim orders directing provisional counselling for BTC 2015 granted in all similar writ petitions shall stand vacated even in respect of those petitions which are not before the Court and shall not bind the Regulatory Authority or the Principals of District Institute of Education and Training.

30. No cost.

1. The Court heard learned counsel for the applicant and the learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

2. The applicant, husband of the deceased, sought bail on the ground that he had no role in her death caused by consumption of Aluminium Phosphide poison.

3. The defence contended that at the time of the incident, the applicant was employed and physically present in Goa, far from the place of occurrence. Annexures 11 and 12 and material collected during investigation were relied upon to support his alibi.

4. It was submitted that the deceased was living separately in another house. The applicant's brother discovered her dead and informed the police, following which the inquest proceedings were conducted.

5. The post-mortem report allegedly showed no marks of violence on the deceased's body. The defence argued that she had consumed poison either accidentally or deliberately and had not been subjected to physical violence before her death.

6. The deceased's real brother participated as a witness in the inquest proceedings on 28.07.2014, but lodged the F.I.R. only on 03.08.2014. The defence relied upon this delay to question the genuineness of the allegations of dowry demand and cruelty.

7. It was argued that the delayed F.I.R. was the result of subsequent deliberation and consultation and that the applicant had been falsely implicated.

8. The marriage had taken place about two months before the incident. According to the defence, the applicant thereafter returned to his place of employment, while the deceased expected to accompany him, and she may have committed suicide due to emotional distress.

9. The applicant had remained in custody since 12.03.2015, for more than one year, and the defence argued that, due to heavy pendency of cases, an early conclusion of the trial was unlikely.

10. The applicant undertook to cooperate with the proceedings and remain available before the Trial Court whenever required. The learned A.G.A. opposed the bail application.

11. Considering the overall facts and circumstances, nature of evidence, period of detention, likelihood of delay in conclusion of the trial, and absence of convincing material suggesting possible tampering with evidence, the Court found the applicant entitled to bail.

12. The Court directed the release of Kamlesh Kumar Sonkar on bail in Case Crime No. 112 of 2014, under Sections 498A, 304B, 302, 504 and 506 IPC and Sections 3/4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, P.S. Zafarganj, District Fatehpur, subject to execution of a personal bond and two sureties.

13. Bail was subject to the conditions that the applicant would not tamper with prosecution evidence and would personally appear before the Court on every date, unless exempted by the Court in the interest of justice.

14. In case of breach of the bail conditions, the Trial Court was given liberty to proceed with cancellation of bail.

15. The Court clarified that the observations made in the bail order were confined solely to the disposal of the bail application and would have no bearing on the merits of the trial.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

2. Perused the record.

3. Submission of the counsel for the applicant is that the applicant is the husband of the deceased but he has not at all contributed in the incident which took place as a result of consuming poison 'Aluminium Phosphide'. Further submission is that at the time of occurrence the applicant was far away at the place of his employment in Goa. Counsel has drawn the attention of the Court in this regard to annexure no. 11 and 12. Some material was also collected by the investigating officer affirming the applicant's presence in Goa during the occurrence hundreds of miles away from the place of occurrence. It was further pointed out that the deceased lived separately in a different house and information about the death of the deceased was given by the brother of the applicant to the police after discovering her dead lying in the house and it was on this information furnished by the brother of the applicant that the police reached at the place of occurrence and inquest proceeding was done and subsequently it was found that she had died after consuming poison. It has further been pointed out that the post mortem report would indicate no mark of violence on her body. Submission is that it is so obvious that the deceased died either accidentally or deliberately consuming the poison and she was not subjected to any kind of violence by anybody before her death. Much emphasis was laid by the counsel on the fact that in the inquest proceeding the real brother of the deceased was one of the witnesses of panchnama which took place on 28.7.2014 on the very next day of the occurrence, yet surprisingly enough the first information report was lodged by the same brother of the deceased on 3.8.2014 after several days of the occurrence. Submission is that had there been any truth in the allegation made against the applicant with regard to demand of dowry and ill-treating the deceased, then there is no explanation as to how and under what circumstances the F.I.R. would still not be lodged till so many days after the occurrence even though the first informant is the brother of the deceased and he himself was a party of the inquest report and was having ample opportunity to report the matter to the police, people who were present on the spot. Submission is that actually there was nothing to complain against the applicant for several days and it was only after a lot of confabulations and concert that the present F.I.R. has been lodged with false allegations. It was also submitted that the marriage took place just two months back and soon thereafter, the applicant went to join his place of employment and the wife felt badly indignited with this act of the applicant, who was having expectation that she would be taken along by the applicant to the place of employment. Submission is that the deceased was a sensitive lady and out of frenzied outburst of emotions, she appears to have committed suicide. Much emphasis was laid by the counsel on the period of detention and it has been pointed out that the applicant has spent more than a year in jail and he is languishing behind the bars since 12.3.2015 and that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the applicant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required.

4. Learned A.G.A. opposed the prayer for bail.

5. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence, this Court is of the view that the applicant may be enlarged on bail.

6. Let the applicant- Kamlesh Kumar Sonkar, involved in Case Crime No. 112 of 2014, u/s 498A, 304B, 302, 504, 506 I.P.C. and 3/4 D.P. Act, P.S.- Zafarganj, District- Fatehpur, be released on bail on his executing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned on the following conditions :-

(1) The applicant will not make any attempt to tamper with the prosecution evidence in any manner whatsoever.

(2) The applicant will personally appear on each and every date in the court and his personal presence shall not be exempted unless the court itself deems it fit to do so in the interest of justice.

7. It may be observed that in the event of any breach of the aforesaid conditions, the court below shall be at liberty to proceed for the cancellation of applicant's bail.

8. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SURYA PRAKASH KESARWANI, J.

Writ A No.- 42450 Of 2016

Abha Srivastav & Ors. ...Petitioners
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
Shri Rohit Upadhyay

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Shri Anurag Pathak

Held –
1. Representation & Appearances
Petitioners: Sri Rohit Upadhyay (Counsel).
Respondents 1, 2 & 3: Sri P.P. Choudhary (Standing Counsel).
Respondents 4 & 5 (U.P. Bhumi Sudhar Nigam): Sri Harshit Pathak holding brief for Anurag Pathak.
2. Reliefs Sought by Petitioners
Certiorari: To quash the order dated 12.04.2016 passed by the Managing Director, U.P. Bhumi Sudhar Nigam.
Mandamus: To direct the respondents to regularise the petitioners' contractual services on their respective posts.
3. Petitioners' Submissions
Claimed entitlement to regularisation under Government Orders dated 13.08.2015 and 24.02.2016.
Argued that the impugned order dated 12.04.2016 was passed in violation of these Government Orders.
Contended that shortage of funds is not a valid ground to reject regularisation; if Respondent No. 4 lacked funds, it should have requested grants from the State Government.
4. Respondents' Submissions
Pointed out that the relevant Government Orders impose three mandatory conditions for regularisation:
The organisation/Nigam must bear the extra financial burden from its own resources without demanding grants from the State.
For grant-aided bodies/autonomous institutions, regularisation must not require an increase in State financial grants.
Exclusion of certain non-eligible classes of employees.
Submitted that Respondent No. 4 receives no State grant-in-aid and is financially unable to bear the extra salary burden from its own resources.
5. Court's Analysis of Facts
Petitioners were engaged purely on a contractual basis in 1999 for fixed periods without facing a regular, competitive selection process under Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution.

Respondent No. 4 (a Government company under the Companies Act, 1956) operates on specific, time-bound projects funded by external agencies such as the World Bank and European Economic Community.
Following a direction in an earlier petition (Sanjay Kumar Mishra v. State of U.P.), the Managing Director examined the claim and passed the impugned rejection order dated 12.04.2016.

6. Court's Findings on the Impugned Order

From 2007 to 2009 (between the 2nd and 3rd Sodic Land Reclamation Projects), almost all contractual staff were disengaged as project funding ceased.
Respondent No. 4 relies strictly on project-specific funding and receives no grant-in-aid from the State Government.
Because Respondent No. 4 cannot bear the additional financial burden from its own independent resources, the rejection order fully aligns with the conditions set out in the Government Orders dated 13.08.2015 and 24.02.2016.

7. Constitutional Principles & Precedents

Reaffirmed the landmark Constitution Bench ruling in  State of Karnataka v. Umadevi (3): Public employment must adhere strictly to statutory rules and equal opportunity principles (Articles 14, 16, and 309). Back-door entries, contractual engagements, or casual appointments do not create a legal right to regularisation or permanent absorption.
The theory of legitimate expectation cannot be invoked by contractual employees appointed without a proper selection process.
A writ of mandamus requires a clear statutory duty on the employer and a enforceable legal right of the employee—neither exists for regularisation of non-regular appointees.

8. Final Judgment

Because the petitioners were engaged without a proper selection process and Respondent No. 4 lacks the requisite independent funds required by the governing Government Orders, the Court refused to interfere.
Decision: The writ petition was dismissed with no order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Surya Prakash Kesarwani, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rohit Upadhyay, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri P.P. Choudhary, learned standing counsel for respondent nos.1, 2 and 3 and Sri Harshit Pathak holding brief of Anurag Pathak, learned counsel for the respondent nos. 4 and 5.

2. Petitioners have filed this writ petition for the following relief:

I. Issue a writ, order of direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 12.4.2016 passed by the M.D. (Managing Director U.P. Bhumi Sudhar Nigam).

II. Issue a writ, order of direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondents to regularise the services of the petitioners on the posts held by them.

SUBMISSIONS OF PARTIES

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that in terms of Government Order dated 13.8.2015 and Government Order dated 24.2.2016 for regularisation of work charge/contractual employee, the petitioners are entitled for regularisation on the post they are working but the impugned order dated 12.4.2016 has been passed in contravention of the aforesaid Government Orders. He submits that in case the respondent no.4 was finding difficulty due to shortage of funds to meet the expences of salary on account of regularisation of the petitioners then in that situation the respondent no.4 should have asked for funds from the State Government.

4. He submits that on the ground of non availability of funds to meet the extra burden on account of regularisation, the claim of petitioners under the aforesaid two Government Orders for regularisation can not be rejected and consequently the impugned order is wholly arbitrary and illegal and therefore deserves to be quashed.

5. Learned standing counsel and Sri Harshit Pathak jointly submit that the aforesaid two Government Orders clearly provides for regularisation of daily wagers or work charge and contractual employee continuously working prior to the cut of date, subject to the three conditions provided in the aforesaid two Government Orders. Condition No.1 clearly stipulates that a Nigam may regularise the services of the duly appointed contractual employee only in the situation that it shall meet the extra financial burden from its own resources and there shall be no need to demand any financial grant from the State Government. Condition No.2 provides that in case of local bodies, Jal Sansthan, Jila Panchyat and such autonomous institutions which are being run by hundred percent or partial State Financial grant, then regularisation may be done only in the circumstances that to meet the extra financial burden, the financial grant has not to be increased. Condition no.3 provides class of persons on which these Government Orders shall not be applicable.

6. They further submit that in the impugned order a finding has been recorded that the respondent no. 4 is not being given hundred percent or partial State grant. It has also been recorded in the impugned order that respondent no.4 is not able to bear the extra financial burden from its own resources. They, therefore, submit that the impugned order has been passed lawfully and it does not suffer from any infirmity.

7. I have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties.

FACTS

8. Briefly stated the facts of the present case are that according to the petitioners they were engaged on contractual basis in the year 1999 for a definite period. The contract was renewed from time to time. They have neither faced the regular selection process for appointment nor the provisions of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India were applied. Respondent no.4

undertakes projects which are funded by agencies like European Economic Community and World Bank. This fact has also been admitted by the petitioners in paragraph 8 of the writ petition.

9. According to the own case of the petitioners the respondent No.4 Nigam has been constituted for carrying out projects relating to development of land. The projects undertaken by it are funded by the World Bank or other such types of agencies. The respondent no.4 is a Government company constituted under the Companies Act 1956. Depending upon the requirement of man power, it engages persons to complete its project which are either assigned to it or which are undertaken by it.

10. It appears that some contractual employees were insisting for their regularisation and therefore they filed a Writ A No.3208 of 2016, Sanjay Kumar Mishra and two others Vs. State Of U.P. and 4 others which was disposed of by order dated 27.1.2016 as under:

It is submitted that petitioners have been working on contractual basis for last more than 20 years, and their claim for regularization is not being examined. Reliance has been placed upon a Government Order dated 13th August, 2015, and it has been contended that in view of the policy decision taken by the State to regularize employees working since prior to 31st March, 1996, petitioners' claim is also liable to be examined. Various representations in this regard have been made by petitioners, which are pending, and it is stated that no decision has been taken.

Learned Standing Counsel, who has accepted notices on behalf of respondent nos.1, 2 and 3, and Sri Anurag Pathak, learned counsel appearing for the respondent nos.4 and 5, submit that the claim of petitioners, noticed above, shall be examined, in accordance with law.

Considering the above, the writ petition stands disposed of with a direction upon respondent no.5 to examine the claim of petitioners, noticed above, strictly in accordance with law, by means of a reasoned speaking order, within a period of three months from the date of presentation of a certified copy of this order.

However, it is made clear that this Court has not examined the entitlement of petitioners, on merits, and all questions are left open to be examined, at the first instance, by the authority concerned, in accordance with law.

11. Pursuant to the directions of this Court in the writ petition as aforenoted, the representation of the petitioners of the aforesaid Writ - A no.3208 of 2016 was decided by the respondent no.5 by order dated 12.4.2016.

12. Aggrieved with this order the petitioners have filed the present writ petition.

Discussion and Findings

13. I have perused the impugned order in which the three conditions of the aforesaid Government Orders have been examined as under:-

शासनादेश संख्या 44/2015/ वे0आ0–2–795/ दस–54 (एम)/2008 टीसी दिनांक 13.08.2015 में उल्लिखित शर्तें।	समिति का मतव्य/संस्तुति

2. स्थानीय निकाय, जल संस्थान, जिला पंचायत एवं ऐसी स्वशासी संस्थायें, जो शत प्रतिशत अथवा आंशिक रूप से राजकीय अनुदान से संचालित हैं, उनमें उपरोक्त विनियमितीकरण की कार्यवाही इस प्रतिबंध के अधीन की जायेगी कि इससे आने वाले अतिरिक्त व्यय भार को संबंधित संस्था वहन करेगी और इस हेतु राज्य सरकार द्वारा वर्तमान में अधिष्ठान व्यय मद को वहन करने हेतु जितने अंश की वित्तीय सहायता दी जा रही है, उसमें कोई वृद्धि नहीं की जायेगी।	उ0प्र0 भूमि सुधार निगम द्वारा वर्तमान में विश्व बैंक पोषित उ0प्र0 सोडिक लैण्ड रिक्लेमेशन तृतीय परियोजना का कार्यान्वयन किया जा रहा है तथा इस परियोजनान्तर्गत प्राप्त धनराशि से कार्यो का संचालन करते हुये परियोजना में कार्यरत कार्मिकों के वेतन एवं भत्तों का भुगतान किया जा रहा है। निगम को किसी भी मद में शत प्रतिशत अथवा आंशिक रूप से कोई राजकीय अनुदान नहीं दिया जा रहा है। ऐसी स्थिति में प्रथम शर्त में दिये गये विवरण के अनुसार विनियमितीकरण की कार्यवाही से आने वाले अतिरिक्त व्यय भार को निगम स्वयं के स्रोतों से वहन करने में सक्षम नहीं है। उपरोक्त आख्या के अनुसार निगम शासनादेश दिनांक 13.08.2015 में दी गयी द्वितीय शर्त को पूर्ण नहीं करता है।
3. उपरोक्त विनियमितीकरण में सीजनल संग्रह अमीन/सीजनल अनुसेवक, उद्यान विभाग/कृषि विभाग/कृषि शिक्षा विभाग के अंतर्गत सीजनल कार्य हेतु लगाये गये कार्मिकों मनरेगा/आंगन बाडी/आशा बहू/होमगार्ड स्वयं सेवक/प्रांतीय रक्षक दल स्वयं सेवक/शिक्षा मित्र अथवा भारत सरकार/राज्य द्वारा संचालित योजनाओं के अधीन मानदेय या अन्य आधार पर रखे गये कर्मचारियों आदि को सम्मिलित नहीं माना जायेगा।	उ0प्र0 भूमि सुधार निगम द्वारा संचालित उ0प्र0 सोडिक लैण्ड रिक्लेमेशन तृतीय परियोजना के अंतर्गत निगम के नियमित कार्मिको के अतिरिक्त प्रतिनियुक्ति/संविदा/सेवा प्रदाय संस्था/क्षेत्रीय दर के आधार पर कार्मिक कार्यरत है। अतः इस संबंध में आख्या वांछित नहीं है।

14. Thus in the impugned order findings of fact have been recorded that since the year 1993 the respondent no.4 is carrying out projects assigned to it by the State Government/Central Government/World Bank and the burden of salary of employees is born from the amount available under the project. In the year 2007, the U.P. Sodic Land Reclamation 2nd Project was completed and consequently leaving small number of employees, all the employees on deputation or on contract basis engaged by the respondent no.4, were disengaged. Consequently, during the year 2007 to 2009 except little number of employees, no employees were working in the respondent no.4, Nigam. The U.P. Sodic Land Reclamation - 3rd Project was again started in September 2009 and the date fixed for its completion is 29.12.2017. The respondent no.4 Nigam is not receiving any grant-in-aid from the State Government. The respondent no.4, Nigam is not able to bear additional burden from its own resources on regularisation being insisted.

15. The aforenoted findings of fact recorded in the impugned order, have not been disputed by the petitioners in the writ petition. Rather the averments made in the writ petition particularly in paragraphs 7,8, and 9 supports the findings.

16. Thus the fact that the respondent no.4, Nigam do not receive any grant-in-aid from the Government and it executes projects funded by the World Bank or the Government and only from that fund the expences are met. The finding in the impugned order that respondent no.4 is not able to bear additional financial burden on account of regularisation being insisted by contractual employees, is wholly undisputed. The aforenoted two Government orders are conditional and one of the important condition is that regularisation shall be done only if the Nigam is able to bear additional financial burden from its own resources without any additional assistance from the State Government. Under the circumstances the impugned order is in conformity and well within four corners of the aforesaid two Government orders. It does not suffer from any infirmity.

17. In the case of Secretary, State of Karnataka and others Vs. Uma Devi (3) and others, (2006) 4 SCC 1 the Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the question of regularisation of daily wager/contracted employees and held as under:-

" 2. Public employment in a sovereign socialist secular democratic republic, has to be as set down by the Constitution and the laws made thereunder. Our constitutional scheme envisages employment by the Government and its instrumentalities on the basis of a procedure established in that behalf. Equality of opportunity is the hallmark, and the Constitution has provided also for affirmative action to ensure that unequals are not treated equals. Thus, any public employment has to be in terms of the constitutional scheme.

3. A sovereign government, considering the economic situation in the country and the work to be got done, is not precluded from making temporary appointments or engaging workers on daily wages. Going by a law newly enacted, The National Rural Employment Guarantee Act, 2005, the object is to give employment to at least one member of a family for hundred days in an year, on paying wages as fixed under that Act. But, a regular process of recruitment or appointment has to be resorted to, when regular vacancies in posts, at a particular point of time, are to be filled up and the filling up of those vacancies cannot be done in a haphazard manner or based on patronage or other considerations. Regular appointment must be the rule.

4. But, sometimes this process is not adhered to and the Constitutional scheme of public employment is by-passed. The Union, the States, their departments and instrumentalities have resorted to irregular appointments, especially in the lower rungs of the service, without reference to the duty to ensure a proper appointment procedure through the Public Service Commission or otherwise as per the rules adopted and to permit these irregular appointees or those appointed on contract or on daily wages, to continue year after year, thus, keeping out those who are qualified to apply for the post concerned and depriving them of an opportunity to compete for the post. It has also led to persons who get employed, without the following of a regular procedure or even through the back door or on daily wages, approaching Courts, seeking directions to make them permanent in their posts and to prevent regular recruitment to the concerned posts. Courts have not always kept the legal aspects in mind and have occasionally even stayed the regular process of employment being set in motion and in some cases, even directed that these illegal, irregular or improper entrants be absorbed into service. A class of employment which can only be called 'litigious employment', has risen like a phoenix seriously impairing the constitutional scheme. Such orders are passed apparently in exercise of the wide powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Whether the wide powers under Article 226 of the Constitution is intended to be used for a purpose certain to defeat the concept of social justice and equal opportunity for all, subject to affirmative action in the matter of public employment as recognized by our Constitution, has to be seriously pondered over. It is time, that Courts desist from issuing orders preventing regular selection or recruitment at the instance of such persons and from issuing directions for continuance of those who have not secured regular appointments as per procedure established. The passing of orders for continuance, tends to defeat the very Constitutional scheme of public employment. It has to be emphasized that this is not the role envisaged for High Courts in the scheme of things and their wide powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India are not intended to be used for the purpose of perpetuating illegalities, irregularities or improprieties or for scuttling the whole scheme of public employment. Its role as the sentinel and as the guardian of equal rights protection should not be forgotten.

5. This Court has also on occasions issued directions which could not be said to be consistent with the Constitutional scheme of public employment. Such directions are issued presumably on the basis of equitable considerations or individualization of justice. The question arises, equity to whom? Equity for the handful of people who have approached the Court with a claim, or equity for the teeming millions of this country seeking employment and seeking a fair opportunity for competing for employment? When one side of the coin is considered, the other side of the coin, has also to be considered and the way open to any court of law or justice, is to adhere to the law as laid down by the Constitution and not to make directions, which at times, even if do not run counter to the Constitutional scheme, certainly tend to water down the Constitutional requirements. It is this conflict that is reflected in these cases referred to the Constitution Bench.

6. The power of a State as an employer is more limited than that of a private employer inasmuch as it is subjected to constitutional limitations and cannot be exercised arbitrarily (See Basu's Shorter Constitution of India). Article 309 of the Constitution gives the Government the power to frame rules for the purpose of laying down the conditions of service and recruitment of persons to be appointed to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or any of the States. That Article contemplates the drawing up of a procedure and rules to regulate the recruitment and regulate the service conditions of appointees appointed to public posts. It is well acknowledged that because of this, the entire process of recruitment for services is controlled by detailed procedure which specify the necessary qualifications, the mode of appointment etc. If rules have been made under Article 309 of the Constitution, then the Government can make appointments only in accordance with the rules. The State is meant to be a model employer. The Employment Exchanges (Compulsory Notification of Vacancies) Act, 1959 was enacted to ensure equal opportunity for employment seekers. Though this Act may not oblige an employer to employ only those persons who have been sponsored by employment exchanges, it places an obligation on the employer to notify the vacancies that may arise in the various departments and for filling up of those vacancies, based on a procedure. Normally, statutory rules are framed under the authority of law governing employment. It is recognized that no government order, notification or circular can be substituted for the statutory rules framed under the authority of law. This is because, following any other course could be disastrous inasmuch as it will deprive the security of tenure and the right of equality conferred on civil servants under the Constitutional scheme. It may even amount to negating the accepted service jurisprudence. Therefore, when statutory rules are framed under Article 309 of the Constitution which are exhaustive, the only fair means to adopt is to make appointments based on the rules so framed.

43. Thus, it is clear that adherence to the rule of equality in public employment is a basic feature of our Constitution and since the rule of law is the core of our Constitution, a Court would certainly be disabled from passing an order upholding a violation of Article 14 or in ordering the overlooking of the need to comply with the requirements of Article 14 read with Article 16 of the Constitution. Therefore, consistent with the scheme for public employment, this Court while laying down the law, has necessarily to hold that unless the appointment is in terms of the relevant rules and after a proper competition among qualified persons, the same would not confer any right on the appointee. If it is a contractual appointment, the appointment comes to an end at the end of the contract, if it were an engagement or appointment on daily wages or casual basis, the same would come to an end when it is discontinued*. Similarly, a temporary employee could not claim to be made permanent on the expiry of his term of appointment. It has also to be clarified that merely because a temporary employee or a casual wage worker is continued for a time beyond the term of his appointment, he would not be entitled to be absorbed in regular service or made permanent, merely on the strength of such continuance, if the original appointment was not made by following a due process of selection as envisaged by the relevant rules. It is not open to the court to prevent regular recruitment at the instance of temporary employees whose period of employment has come to an end or of ad hoc employees who by the very nature of their appointment, do not acquire any right.* High Courts acting under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, should not ordinarily issue directions for absorption, regularization, or permanent continuance unless the recruitment itself was made regularly and in terms of the constitutional scheme*. Merely because, an employee had continued under cover of an order of Court, which we have described as 'litigious employment' in the earlier part of the judgment, he would not be entitled to any right to be absorbed or made permanent in the service. In fact, in such cases, the High Court may not be justified in issuing interim directions, since, after all, if ultimately the employee approaching it is found entitled to relief, it may be possible for it to mould the relief in such a manner that ultimately no prejudice will be caused to him, whereas an interim direction to continue his employment would hold up the regular procedure for selection or impose on the State the burden of paying an employee who is really not required.* The courts must be careful in ensuring that they do not interfere unduly with the economic arrangement of its affairs by the State or its instrumentalities or lend themselves the instruments to facilitate the bypassing of the constitutional and statutory mandates.

45. While directing that appointments, temporary or casual, be regularized or made permanent, courts are swayed by the fact that the concerned person has worked for some time and in some cases for a considerable length of time. It is not as if the person who accepts an engagement either temporary or casual in nature, is not aware of the nature of his employment. He accepts the employment with eyes open*. It may be true that he is not in a position to bargain -* not at arm's length - since he might have been searching for some employment so as to eke out his livelihood and accepts whatever he gets. But on that ground alone, it would not be appropriate to jettison the constitutional scheme of appointment and to take the view that a person who has temporarily or casually got employed should be directed to be continued permanently. By doing so, it will be creating another mode of public appointment which is not permissible. If the court were to void a contractual employment of this nature on the ground that the parties were not having equal bargaining power, that too would not enable the court to grant any relief to that employee. A total embargo on such casual or temporary employment is not possible, given the exigencies of administration and if imposed, would only mean that some people who at least get employment temporarily, contractually or casually, would not be getting even that employment when securing of such employment brings at least some succour to them. After all, innumerable citizens of our vast country are in search of employment and one is not compelled to accept a casual or temporary employment if one is not inclined to go in for such an employment. It is in that context that one has to proceed on the basis that the employment was accepted fully knowing the nature of it and the consequences flowing from it. In other words, even while accepting the employment, the person concerned knows the nature of his employment. It is not an appointment to a post in the real sense of the term. The claim acquired by him in the post in which he is temporarily employed or the interest in that post cannot be considered to be of such a magnitude as to enable the giving up of the procedure established, for making regular appointments to available posts in the services of the State. The argument that since one has been working for some time in the post, it will not be just to discontinue him, even though he was aware of the nature of the employment when he first took it up, is not one that would enable the jettisoning of the procedure established by law for public employment and would have to fail when tested on the touchstone of constitutionality and equality of opportunity enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

47. When a person enters a temporary employment or gets engagement as a contractual or casual worker and the engagement is not based on a proper selection as recognized by the relevant rules or procedure, he is aware of the consequences of the appointment being temporary, casual or contractual in nature. Such a person cannot invoke the theory of legitimate expectation for being confirmed in the post when an appointment to the post could be made only by following a proper procedure for selection and in concerned cases, in consultation with the Public Service Commission. Therefore, the theory of legitimate expectation cannot be successfully advanced by temporary, contractual or casual employees. It cannot also be held that the State has held out any promise while engaging these persons either to continue them where they are or to make them permanent. The State cannot constitutionally make such a promise. It is also obvious that the theory cannot be invoked to seek a positive relief of being made permanent in the post.

51. The argument that the right to life protected by Article 21 of the Constitution of India would include the right to employment cannot also be accepted at this juncture. The law is dynamic and our Constitution is a living document. May be at some future point of time, the right to employment can also be brought in under the concept of right to life or even included as a fundamental right. The new statute is perhaps a beginning. As things now stand, the acceptance of such a plea at the instance of the employees before us would lead to the consequence of depriving a large number of other aspirants of an opportunity to compete for the post or employment. Their right to employment, if it is a part of right to life, would stand denuded by the preferring of those who have got in casually or those who have come through the back door. The obligation cast on the State under Article 39(a) of the Constitution of India is to ensure that all citizens equally have the right to adequate means of livelihood. It will be more consistent with that policy if the courts recognize that an appointment to a post in government service or in the service of its instrumentalities, can only be by way of a proper selection in the manner recognized by the relevant legislation in the context of the relevant provisions of the Constitution. In the name of individualizing justice, it is also not possible to shut our eyes to the constitutional scheme and the right of the numerous as against the few who are before the court. The Directive Principles of State Policy have also to be reconciled with the rights available to the citizen under Part III of the Constitution and the obligation of the State to one and all and not to a particular group of citizens. We, therefore, overrule the argument based on Article 21 of the Constitution.

52. Normally, what is sought for by such temporary employees when they approach the court, is the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the employer, the State or its instrumentalities, to absorb them in permanent service or to allow them to continue. In this context, the question arises whether a mandamus could be issued in favour of such persons. At this juncture, it will be proper to refer to the decision of the Constitution Bench of this Court in Dr. Rai Shivendra Bahadur Vs. The Governing Body of the Nalanda College [(1962) Supp. 2 SCR 144]. That case arose out of a refusal to promote the writ petitioner therein as the Principal of a college. This Court held that in order that a mandamus may issue to compel the authorities to do something, it must be shown that the statute imposes a legal duty on the authority and the aggrieved party had a legal right under the statute or rule to enforce it. This classical position continues and a mandamus could not be issued in favour of the employees directing the government to make them permanent since the employees cannot show that they have an enforceable legal right to be permanently absorbed or that the State has a legal duty to make them permanent*.*

54. It is also clarified that those decisions which run counter to the principle settled in this decision, or in which directions running counter to what we have held herein, will stand denuded of their status as precedents.

(emphasis supplied by me)

18. The law laid down by the constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Umadevi (supra) has been consistently followed.

19. Admittedly, the petitioners were not appointed in terms of the relevant rules or in adherence to Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. This Courts cannot encourage appointments which are made outside the constitutional scheme. The respondents are bound to comply with the constitutional requirements as enumerated in Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. To allow the prayer of the petitioners would mean to permit them to be recruited through back door which this Court cannot do.

20. The appointments in bodies which are state within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India should be made after issuing proper advertisement for inviting applications from eligible candidates in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions or the Government orders. Selection should be held as provided under the relevant statutes and after compliance of the provisions of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. The selection should be fair and impartial through a written examination or interview or some other rational criteria in judging inter-se merit of candidates who apply pursuant to the advertisement. In some cases applications may be invited from the employment exchange where eligible candidates get their name registered. The selection should be such in which eligible candidates get a fair chance to compete.

21. Equal opportunity is the basic feature of the constitution of India. Public employment is repository of the state power. The framers of the constitution clearly intended and shown strong desire and constitutional philosophy to implement principle of equality in the true sense in the matter of public employment in view of unambiguous constitutional scheme as reflected from Article 14 and 16 and 309 of the Constitution of India. Under the circumstances, it would be wholly improper for this Court to give any direction for regularization of services of the petitioners, who were engaged on daily wage basis or as contractual employees and not appointed following due procedure of law.

22. The question of regularization of contractual employee and dailywager was also considered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Urisa Vs. Chandra Sekhar Mishra, (2002) 10 SCC 583, wherein Hon'ble Supreme Court held that relief of appointment as regular employee cannot be granted to a contractual employee. In the case of Surender Prasad Tiwari Vs. U.P. Rajya Krishi Utpadan Mandi Parisad and others (2006) 7 SCC 684, Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the scheme of the Constitution and held that dismissal of writ petitions by the High Court of the contractual employees seeking directions for regularization was wholly proper.

23. Petitioners got engagement as a contractual worker without any proper selection. Therefore they can not even invoke the theory of legitimate expectation for regularization as they knew the consequences of contractual appointment. Since the appointment of the petitioners was not consistent with the scheme for public employment, the same would not confer any right on the petitioners. Therefore, this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can not issue direction for regularization.

24. In view of the aforesaid, I do not find any merit in this writ petition and as such the writ petition is dismissed. However, there shall be no order as to costs.

Criminal law – FIR – final report – protest petition – complaint case – Section 2(d) CrPC – definition of complaint – no person named as accused – no request for taking action – irregularities committed by investigating officer – rejecting the final report – direction of proper investigation – ingredients required under Section 2(d) CrPC – erroneous and improper exercise of jurisdiction – without application of judicial mind – impugned order set aside – matter remanded – appropriate order in accordance with law.

On FIR lodged by applicant case crime no. 304/2011 under Section 380 and 457 IPC was registered in P.S. Mainather, Moradabad. After investigation in said case, the police has submitted final report. Thereafter protest petition dated 19.7.2016 was filed by applicant/complainant with prayer that final report no. 31/2012 dated 27.4.2012 aforesaid be quashed and direction be issued for proper investigation.(Para 2)

After hearing on this application, the Court of ACJM-IIIrd, Moradabad had passed order dated 2.5.2016, by which said protest petition was directed to be registered as complaint case. Against said order of trial court, criminal revision was preferred, which was dismissed by the order dated 26.7.2016 of Sessions Judge, Moradabad at the stage of admission. In this order, revisional court had held that there is no legal error in order passed by trial court.(Para 3)

Against the order of trial court, converting the protest petition as complaint case, present application under Section 482 CrPC has been preferred.(Para 4)

Held: (Para:-8-10)
1.In these circumstances, this contention is correct that protest petition of the petitioner dated 29.3.2013 was not complaint within the definition of section 2(d) of CrPC. Therefore, said petition could not be accepted as complaint case.

2.This contention of learned counsel for the applicant is correct and acceptable that when applicant's protest petition does not fulfill requirement of complaint and applicant has no knowledge of any person against whom prosecution should be initiated, then registering the said protest petition and ignoring the prayer made in it, is nothing but erroneous and improper exercise of its jurisdiction by trial court. It is found that the impugned order is passed without appreciating the facts and without application of judicial mind. Unfortunately at the time of admission of criminal revision, these facts were neither considered nor contents of protest petition were appreciated by lower revisional court, which had summarily dismissed the complaint. These orders of trial court as well as revisional court are erroneous and are liable to be quashed.

3.In view of above, this application is allowed. The impugned order dated 2.5.2016 passed in case no. 184 of 2013 (Lakshman Singh Vs. unknown) relating to crime no. 384 of 2011, under Section 457, 384 IPC, P.S. Mainather, District Moradabad is set aside. The matter is remanded back to the trial court with direction to consider the fact of the protest petition and the legal position discussed in the body of this judgment and thereafter pass appropriate order on disposal of protest petition in accordance with law.

Case Law discussed:

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pramod Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned AGA and perused the records.

2. On FIR lodged by applicant case crime no. 304/2011 under Section 380 and 457 IPC was registered in P.S. Mainather, Moradabad. After investigation in said case, the police has submitted final report. Thereafter protest petition dated 19.7.2016 was filed by applicant/complainant with prayer that final report no. 31/2012 dated 27.4.2012 aforesaid be quashed and direction be issued for proper investigation.

3. After hearing on this application, the Court of ACJM-IIIrd, Moradabad had passed order dated 2.5.2016, by which said protest petition was directed to be registered as complaint case. Against said order of trial court, criminal revision was preferred, which was dismissed by the order dated 26.7.2016 of Sessions Judge, Moradabad at the stage of admission. In this order, revisional court had held that there is no legal error in order passed by trial court.

4. Against the order of trial court, converting the protest petition as complaint case, present application under Section 482 CrPC has been preferred.

5. A complaint case can be registered only when a complaint is available before the Court. A protest petition can be registered as complaint case only when such petition contains contents of a complaint as mentioned in Section 2(d) CrPC.

6. The definition of 'complaint' is given in Section 2(d) of CrPC which is as under:

"Complaint" means any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate, with a view to his taking action under this Code, that some person, whether known or unknown, has committed an offence, but does not include a police a report.

Explanation:- A report made by a police officer in a case which discloses, after investigation, the commission of a non-cognizable offence shall be deemed to be a complaint; and the police officer by whom such report is made shall be deemed to be the complainant."

7. In protest petition dated 19.7.2014 moved by applicant/complainant, no person was named as accused/ culprit and no request was made for taking action against any particular person for commission of any offence. In this protest petition, only irregularities committed by investigating officer were pointed out and prayer was made for rejecting the final report and for direction of proper investigation. This protest petition does not contain ingredients required under Section 2(d) CrPC for a complaint. Without considering these facts, learned Magistrate had passed order dated 2.5.2016, by which final report was rejected, but case was registered as complaint case.

8. In these circumstances, this contention is correct that protest petition of the petitioner dated 29.3.2013 was not complaint within the definition of section 2(d) of CrPC. Therefore, said petition could not be accepted as complaint case.

9. This contention of learned counsel for the applicant is correct and acceptable that when applicant's protest petition does not fulfill requirement of complaint and applicant has no knowledge of any person against whom prosecution should be initiated, then registering the said protest petition and ignoring the prayer made in it, is nothing but erroneous and improper exercise of its jurisdiction by trial court. It is found that the impugned order is passed without appreciating the facts and without application of judicial mind. Unfortunately at the time of admission of criminal revision, these facts were neither considered nor contents of protest petition were appreciated by lower revisional court, which had summarily dismissed the complaint. These orders of trial court as well as revisional court are erroneous and are liable to be quashed.

10. In view of above, this application is allowed. The impugned order dated 2.5.2016 passed in case no. 184 of 2013 (Lakshman Singh Vs. unknown) relating to crime no. 384 of 2011, under Section 457, 384 IPC, P.S. Mainather, District Moradabad is set aside. The matter is remanded back to the trial court with direction to consider the fact of the protest petition and the legal position discussed in the body of this judgment and thereafter pass appropriate order on disposal of protest petition in accordance with law.

Criminal law – order of cognizance and summoning – application under section 245(2) Cr.P.C. – discharge – revision – dismissed in limine – revisional jurisdiction – memorandum of revision – miscellaneous case – registered after passing of order – clerical job – no illegality, irregularity or impropriety – inherent jurisdiction – application dismissed – surrender before trial court – bail – disposed of expeditiously.

The order of cognizance and summoning dated 24.11.2012 had become final which was passed on factual aspect and on the basis of evidence available before trial court. Thereafter accused applicant had moved application under section 245(2) Cr.P.C. for his discharge and with prayer to quash order of summoning dated 24.11.2012.(Para 2)

After affording opportunity of hearing to parties in concerned Complaint Case No.
1203 of 2012 (Mahesh Chandra Vs. Jauhari & others), the Judicial Magistrate, Hathras had rejected said application under section 245(2) Cr.P.C. by its order dated 25.7.2016 with observation that order of summoning has been confirmed even by revisional court and have become final, and legally said order of summoning cannot be interfered by Magistrate. (Para 3)

Against said order of trial court, memo of revision was preferred before the Court of Sessions Judge, Hathras. Said revision was dismissed in limne at the time of admission, confirming the order of Magistrate; and thereafter it was directed to office to complete formality of registering said petition as miscellaneous case. Against order dated 5.9.2016 of Sessions Judge, Hathras, present application under section 482 Cr.P.C. has been preferred.(Para 4)

Held: (Para:-6-8)
1.Before passing of any order on memorandum/ petition for revision or any case or appeal etc., it is not known as to what order would be passed by Court. Said order may be passed for admitting any petition as regular revision, regular appeal or anything like that. Such order may be passed on defective or non-admitted petition for treating it miscelleneous case. Only after the consideration by court and its order in that regard, it is known as to what should be the nature of such petition, for its nomenclature and for tracing it in future. Petitions are registered only after passing of the order of the court, and mentioning its number on any prticular register kept for the particular type of cases, which is only a clerical job to be performed by the office in accordance with directions of the Court.

2.In this matter when memorandum of revision was presented by applicant before the office of Sessions Court, but that petition was not admitted as any particular type of case. Office cannot, suo moto, register a petition/ memorandum as any particular type of case, unless it is specifically ordered by court. After considering it the court found that revisional court jurisdiction could not be exercised for admitting said memorandum as regular revision, therefore it had dismissed the said memorandum/ petition of criminal revision, but for convenience of court and for public, as well as in accordance with rules, it was obligatory on part of court and concerned office to register it at place from where it can be located in future for purposes of issuance of certified copies or inspection etc. Accordingly Sessions Court had directed the office to register the memorandum of revision mentioning its petition as miscellaneous case, so that certified copy may be issued. This was a proper order. There appears no illegality, irregularity or impropriety in the impugned order that may require exercise of inherent jurisdiction of this court. Therefore, this application is dismissed.

3.However, considering the alternative argument of counsel for the applicant, it is observed that when application is moved for bail then same may be disposed of expeditiously. The applicants are directed to surrender before trial court immediately.

Against order dated 5.9.2016 of Sessions Judge, Hathras, present application under section 482 Cr.P.C. has been preferred.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant contended that order of revisional court exercising revisional jurisdiction is erroneous, because at the time of exercising such jurisdiction under section 397 Cr.P.C., the petition cannot be registered as miscellaneous case. This contention of applicant side is unacceptable.

6. Before passing of any order on memorandum/ petition for revision or any case or appeal etc., it is not known as to what order would be passed by Court. Criminal law – complaint case – cruelty due to demand of dowry – general and vague allegations – reside separately – falsely implicated – no specific allegations – casual reference of names – matrimonial dispute – tendency to involve the entire family members – no active involvement – no justification for carrying out proceedings – proceedings quashed – application under section 482 Cr.P.C allowed.

Complaint Case No. 6549 of 2011 (Kanwaljeet Kaur Vs. Amit Sood & others) was filed by complainant/ opposite party no.-2 against her husband Amit Sood and his family members for alleged cruelty due to demand of dowry and using physical force against her. In said case CJM, Saharanpur has passed order of cognizance and summoning dated 14.5.2016. Apart from abovenamed Amit Suit his family members namely Rajendra Sood @ Rajinder paul, Mother Neeta Sood @ Neeta Rani and brother Kapil Sood were also summoned for prosecution of offence under section 498-A, 323 IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act. The proceedings of said complaint case has been challenged through present application under section 482 Cr.P.C by Rajendra Sood, Neeta Sood and Kapil Sood.(Para 1)

Counsel for the applicant contended that there has been general and vague allegations against applicants in complaint case, who reside separately from Amit Sood and complainant/O.P. no.-2, but they were falsely implicated in this matter without any reason. Therefore, proceedings against them should be quashed.(Para 2)

Counsel for the O.P. no.-2 contended that applicants are family members of the husband of complainant and it is their legal and moral duty to protect the applicants during altercation and dispute with her husband, but this duty was not discharged by them, therefore they should also be prosecuted

Held: (Para:-5-8)
1.It is apparent that there are no allegations against applicants except casual reference of their names which have been included in the complaint. Mere casual reference of the names of the family members in a matrimonial dispute without allegation of active involvement in the matter would not justify taking cognizance against them overlooking the fact borne out of experience that there is a tendency to involve the entire family members of the household in the domestic quarrel taking place in a matrimonial dispute especially if it happens soon after the wedding.

2.In light of aforesaid facts and circumstances, and considering uncontroverted affidavit of applicants relating to facts of the matter, it is found that there is no specific allegations against applicant regarding cruelty due to demand of dowry or alleged causing of injury or using foul words or any other overt act. The present applicants reside in separate house, away and unconcerned from house where complainant and her husband resided together at the time of incident. In these circumstances, there is no justification for carrying out proceedings against applicants for alleged cruelty due to demand of dowry, only on the ground that they are family members or near relatives of husband of complainant/O.P. no.-2.

3.In these circumstances, exercising inherent jurisdiction of this court, this application is allowed. The proceedings of complaint Case No. 6549 of 2011, Kanwaljet Kaur Vs. Amit Sood and others, under section 498-A, 323 IPC and section 3/4 of D.P. Act, police station Sadar Bazar, District Saharanpur, against applicants Rajendra Sood, Neeta Sood and Kapil Sood are hereby quashed. Let a copy of this order be communicated to the trial court.

Case Law discussed:

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pramod Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Complaint Case No. 6549 of 2011 (Kanwaljeet Kaur Vs. Act. The proceedings of said complaint case has been challenged through present application under section 482 Cr.P.C by Rajendra Sood, Neeta Sood and Kapil Sood.

2. Counsel for the applicant contended that there has been general and vague allegations against applicants in complaint case, who reside separately from Amit Sood and complainant/O.P. no.-2, but they were falsely implicated in this matter without any reason. Therefore, proceedings against them should be quashed.

3. Counsel for the O.P. no.-2 contended that applicants are family members of the husband of complainant and it is their legal and moral duty to protect the applicants during altercation and dispute with her husband, but this duty was not discharged by them, therefore they should also be prosecuted.

4. From perusal of the complaint, it is found that much before the institution of complaint case under challenge, O.P. no.-2 Kanwaljeet Kaur (complainant) had started residing with her husband Amit Sood in separate house. The alleged incident of 29.9.2011, for which complaint was filed, had also happened in the house of complainant/ O.P. no.-2 and not in the house of her husband or other in laws (applicants). The alleged specific act of causing injuries and attempt of strangulation and using foul words were allegedly committed by complainant's husband Amit Sood in the house of complainant. The averments in this regard by affidavit on behalf of applicants are not denied and uncontroverted, hence are acceptable.

5. It is apparent that there are no allegations against applicants except casual reference of their names which have been included in the complaint. Mere casual reference of the names of the family members in a matrimonial dispute without allegation of active involvement in the matter would not justify taking cognizance against them overlooking the fact borne out of experience that there is a tendency to involve the entire family members of the household in the domestic quarrel taking place in a matrimonial dispute especially if it happens soon after the wedding.

6. In light of aforesaid facts and circumstances, and considering uncontroverted affidavit of applicants relating to facts of the matter, it is found that there is no specific allegations against applicant regarding cruelty due to demand of dowry or alleged causing of injury or using foul words or any other overt act. The present applicants reside in separate house, away and unconcerned from house where complainant and her husband resided together at the time of incident. In these circumstances, there is no justification for carrying out proceedings against applicants for alleged cruelty due to demand of dowry, only on the ground that they are family members or near relatives of husband of complainant/O.P. no.-2.

7. In these circumstances, exercising inherent jurisdiction of this court, this application is allowed. The proceedings of complaint Case No. 6549 of 2011, Kanwaljet Kaur Vs. Amit Sood and others, under section 498-A, 323 IPC and section 3/4 of D.P. Act, police station Sadar Bazar, District Saharanpur, against applicants Rajendra Sood, Neeta Sood and Kapil Sood are hereby quashed.

8. Let a copy of this order be communicated to the trial court.

Civil Revision No.- 152 Of 2016

National Insurance Co. Ltd., Thru. Regional Office, Lucknow ...Revisionist
Versus
Motor Accident Claim Tribunal/A.D.J.,Ct.No.4,Lucknow ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Revisionist:
Surendra Pal Singh

Counsel for the Opposite Party:

Motor Accident Claims Tribunal—Order XVI Rule 6 C.P.C.—"summons to produce document"—"production of document"—"driving licence"—"renewed licence"—"original licence"—"verification"—Section 160 Motor Vehicles Act—"duty to furnish particulars"—Rule 150 Central Motor Vehicles Rules—"Form 54"—"registering authority"—"refusal"—"application"—"summoning of document"—"beneficial legislation"—"summary procedure"—"interest of justice"—"valid defence"—Article 227—"interference"—"impugned order set aside"—"revision allowed".

The present revision has been filed against an order passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal on a misc. application. This Court has already held in the case of Virendra Yadav versus Ramesh and another rendered in Civil Revision No. 120 of 2016 that the jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India can be invoked against the orders passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal on misc. applications before deciding the claim petition finally.(Para 2)

Held: (Para-17-23)

(1).In this view of the matter, once the provision under Order XVI Rule 6 is applicable to the proceedings before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, an application for summoning such a document which has raised a doubt in relation to a claim ought to have been dealt with by the Tribunal in a just and fair manner so as to uphold the majesty and purpose of law. Having extracted the relevant provisions of statute herein above, it is clear beyond doubt that the Tribunal is empowered to summon the relevant documents but in certain situations like the one at hand, it may cause difficulty in terms of expenditure and otherwise. In the instant case, the revisionist (insurer) has himself in the application so filed before the Tribunal made a prayer for summoning of the document at his expense, therefore, even the expenditure was not a difficulty before the Tribunal to overcome.

(2).In light of legal position discussed above, once the Tribunal was bound by the procedure as prescribed under Order XVI Rule 6 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, there was no reason as to why such an application may not be entertained particularly when it has a bearing on the merit of the case.

(3).It must be understood by the adjudicating authorities that the interest of justice is of course supreme and suffering of a claimant cannot be compromised on technicalities but truthfulness of a valid defence is an equal duty of the Tribunal to explore so as to justify its judgements based on law. Once a genuine defence has been set up and a doubt has cropped up, the duty underlying Order XVI Rule 6 cannot be sidelined. The renewed licence, in view of the legal provisions discussed above, not being sacrosanct, calls for exercise of jurisdiction by the Tribunal at the Court of revisionist petitioner.
(4).In my humble opinion, the impugned order is a fit case where interference under Article 227 of the Constitution of India deserves to be exercised and is accordingly exercised.
(5).For the reasons recorded above, the impugned order dated 15.07.2016 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal is hereby set aside and the Tribunal is directed to consider the prayer of the revisionist petitioner to summon the relevant document or its verification expeditiously at their cost. Necessary cost may be directed to be deposited before the Tribunal within a period of ten days from the date of filing of a certified copy of this judgement. [The Senior Registrar / Registrar Listing is directed to forward a copy of this judgement to the concerned Tribunal and all the District Judges for circulation to the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal through website or otherwise]
(6).Steps to summon the relevant document-verification from the registering authority at Kolkatta are expedited and measures through official website or otherwise be taken forthwith and the whole exercise of verification be completed not later than a period of three months from the date of filing of this order before the tribunal. The proceedings in the claim petition may go on, however, the final decision may be rendered only after obtaining the necessary verification of the driving licence from the authority concerned.
(7).The revision is accordingly allowed.

Case Law discussed:

(Delivered by Hon'ble Attau Rahman Masoodi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashish Jaiswal, learned Counsel holding brief of Sri Surendra Pal Singh, learned Counsel for the revisionist. Learned Standing Counsel Shri Adnan Ahmad and Ajay Shukla took due interest and Shri R.C. Sharma, learned Counsel also assisted the Court.

2. The present revision has been filed against an order passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal on a misc. application. This Court has already held in the case of Virendra Yadav versus Ramesh and another rendered in Civil Revision No. 120 of 2016 that the jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India can be invoked against the orders passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal on misc. applications before deciding the claim petition finally.

3. The application on which the impugned order has been passed can be said to be an application filed under Order XVI Rule 6 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. Order XVI Rule 6 C.P.C. by virtue of Rule 221 of the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 is applicable in respect of the proceedings before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal. For ready reference Order XVI Rule 6 C.P.C. is extracted below:-

"6. Summons to produce document. - Any person may be summoned to produce a document, without being summoned to give evidence, and any person summoned merely to produce a document shall be deemed to have complied with the summons if he causes such document to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same."

4. Order XVI Rule 6 C.P.C. Clearly empowers and provides for summoning of documents which may be necessary for the adjudication of claims filed before the claim Tribunal.

5. The Full Bench judgement of this Court in the case reported in 2015 (33) LCD Page 2295 (United India Insurance Company Ltd. Versus Smt. Shashi Prabha Sharma & Others) has already held that the right of defence available to insurer under Section 149 (2) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 is fully available once the insurer is called upon by the Tribunal under Section 170 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 to contest the claim. In the instant case, the insurance company has raised a doubt about the original driving licence of the driver which was possessed by him while driving the offending vehicle no. U.P. 53 - 9790. The claim-petitioner has placed reliance upon the renewed licence issued at Mirzapur, U.P. which makes a reference to the original driving licence no. 223/CAL/ 75 issued on 27.01.1975 by the licensing authority at Calcutta.

6. Denial of a document placed reliance upon by the claimant in the nature of driving licence is within the scope of defence envisaged under Section 149 (2) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 but seeking production of such a documents as per the procedure applicable to the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal is a question that has cropped up in the present proceedings.

7. Renewal of driving licence is regulated under Section 15 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 which provides that any licensing authority on an application being made shall renew a driving licence issued under the provisions of this Act. The provisions of Section 15 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 clearly apply for the renewal of a driving licence countrywide meaning thereby that a driving licence issued in one State can be renewed in another State by the competent authority. Once a driving licence is issued in one State and renewed in other State, the rules applicable in this behalf would be Central Rules framed by the Central Government. The Central Government has already framed the rules known as The Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989.

8. Rule 18 of the Central Rules, in its present form do not require any verification by the licensing authority for the purpose of renewal of the licence, therefore, renewed driving licence does not qualify the removal of doubt in respect of original licence within the scope of statute and its application.

9. Form 54 provided under the Central Rules when read in the light of Rule 150 does provide a clue for obtaining a copy of the documents in the nature of driving licence but the duty cast under the said rule is to the advantage of claimants. Rule 150 for ready reference of the Central Rules is extracted below:-

"150. Furnishing of copies of reports to Claims Tribunal.

(1) The police report referred to in sub-section (6) of section 158 shall be in Form 54.

(2) A registering authority or a police officer who is required to furnish the required information to the person eligible to claim compensation under section 160, shall furnish the information in Form 54, within seven days from the date of receipt of the request and on payment of a fee or rupees ten."

10. Section 160 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, however, envisages a duty on the part of registering authority or the officer-in-charge of a police station, if so required by a person entitled to claim compensation or insurer on an application for information at the disposal of the said authority on payment of the prescribed fee to provide the requisite information. Section 160 of the Motor Vehicles Act, is reproduced below:-

"160. Duty to furnish particulars of vehicle involved in accident.- A registering authority or the officer-in-charge of a police station shall, if so required by a person who alleges that he is entitled to claim compensation in respect of an accident arising out of the use of a motor vehicle, or if so required by an insurer against whom a claim has been made in respect of any motor vehicle, furnish to that person or to that insurer, as the case may be, on payment of the prescribed fee any information at the disposal of the said authority or the said police officer relating to the identification marks and other particulars of the vehicle and the name and address of the person who was using the vehicle at the time of the accident or was injured by it and the property, if any, damaged in such form and within such time as the Central Government may prescribe."

11. Section 160 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 read with Rule 150 of the Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989 when read together clearly postulate that it is the duty of the registering authority to supply a copy of the documents in connection with a vehicle involved in accident on an application being filed either by the person entitled to compensation or by the insurer etc.

12. The duty cast under the statute and rules framed thereunder on the registering authority is to provide such an information but there is no provision under the Act or the Central Rules under which production of a documents before the tribunal is provided for through the quasi judicial process except Rule 221 of U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 1998.

13. The revisionist (insurer) admittedly having invoked the benefit under Section 160 read with Rule 150 of the Central Rules made an application before the registering authority at Kolkatta for the verification of a copy of original licence issued vide no. 223/Cal/75 as was mentioned in the renewal licence. Since the verification of original document was necessary to defend a case, hence the application was filed.

14. The application so filed by the insurer was turned down by the licensing authority as is evident from the letter dated 07.09.2016 which reads as under :-

"Date 07.09.2016

Sub : Verification of Driving Licence bearing No. 223/Cal/75

Dear Sir,

As instructed I have visited the office P.V.D. Kolkata several times for verification of aforesaid Driving Licence and to obtain the particulars of said Driving Licence. But I was told that they would not give any Driving Licence particulars about the Driving Licence which was expired and where computerised Number and/or Smart Card Number (i.e. Number prefix like WB - 01 year.....) has not been given.

Yesterday I finally went to P.V.D. And met with the Law Officer & State Public Information Officer he told me that they have closed to issue old Driving Licence particulars about any Driving Licence which was expired. They are issuing only computerised or Smart Card Number Driving Licence particulars.

The Law officer & S.P.I.O. had refused to give such information stating me verbally that there is no provision in the Motor Vehicle Act to supply the same.

I could not get any material reply from them as they opined that nothing could be disclosed untill or unless requires them by issuing SUMMONS TO WINTESS.

Thanking you.

Yours Truly,
S/d

15. It is in the back drop of the aforesaid letter that an application was filed before the Tribunal i.e. C-20 which has been rejected by the order impugned passed on 15.07.2016. Once an application filed under Section 160 is not responded, it would be a sufficient ground available to the aggrieved party to make an application under Order XVI Rule 6 for production of relevant documents through quasi judicial proceedings as the licensing authority under the statutory duty was bound to furnish such an information.

16. Motor Vehicles Act is a beneficial legislation and the proceedings for compensation are tried summarily. The object of summary procedure is to curtail delay and promote expediency. Though the revisionist or an aggrieved party has a remedy against the licensing authority or in-charge of police station refusing to provide a document applied for under Section 160 read with Rule 150 of the Central Rules but allowing the proceedings to multiply would certainly defeat the purpose of claims lodged under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

17. In this view of the matter, once the provision under Order XVI Rule 6 is applicable to the proceedings before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, an application for summoning such a document which has raised a doubt in relation to a claim ought to have been dealt with by the Tribunal in a just and fair manner so as to uphold the majesty and purpose of law. Having extracted the relevant provisions of statute herein above, it is clear beyond doubt that the Tribunal is empowered to summon the relevant documents but in certain situations like the one at hand, it may cause difficulty in terms of expenditure and otherwise. In the instant case, the revisionist (insurer) has himself in the application so filed before the Tribunal made a prayer for summoning of the document at his expense, therefore, even the expenditure was not a difficulty before the Tribunal to overcome.

18. In light of legal position discussed above, once the Tribunal was bound by the procedure as prescribed under Order XVI Rule 6 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, there was no reason as to why such an application may not be entertained particularly when it has a bearing on the merit of the case.

19. It must be understood by the adjudicating authorities that the interest of justice is of course supreme and suffering of a claimant cannot be compromised on technicalities but truthfulness of a valid defence is an equal duty of the Tribunal to explore so as to justify its judgements based on law. Once a genuine defence has been set up and a doubt has cropped up, the duty underlying Order XVI Rule 6 cannot be sidelined. The renewed licence, in view of the legal provisions discussed above, not being sacrosanct, calls for exercise of jurisdiction by the Tribunal at the Court of revisionist petitioner.

20. In my humble opinion, the impugned order is a fit case where interference under Article 227 of the Constitution of India deserves to be exercised and is accordingly exercised.

21. For the reasons recorded above, the impugned order dated 15.07.2016 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal is hereby set aside and the Tribunal is directed to consider the prayer of the revisionist petitioner to summon the relevant document or its verification expeditiously at their cost. Necessary cost may be directed to be deposited before the Tribunal within a period of ten days from the date of filing of a certified copy of this judgement. [The Senior Registrar / Registrar Listing is directed to forward a copy of this judgement to the concerned Tribunal and all the District Judges for circulation to the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal through website or otherwise]

22. Steps to summon the relevant document-verification from the registering authority at Kolkatta are expedited and measures through official website or otherwise be taken forthwith and the whole exercise of verification be completed not later than a period of three months from the date of filing of this order before the tribunal. The proceedings in the claim petition may go on, however, the final decision may be rendered only after obtaining the necessary verification of the driving licence from the authority concerned.

23. The revision is accordingly allowed.

Criminal Law –bail – no eyewitness account – incriminating recovery – co-accused – hot pursuit – assault – forced abduction – common intention – evidence – statement of witnesses – burden to explain – Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act – presumption under Section 114 of the Indian Evidence Act – nature of offence – gravity – evidence in support – bail rejected.

This application has been filed seeking the release of the applicant on bail in Case Crime No. 78 of 2015 u/s 302 IPC, Police Station-Tajganj District- Agra. (Para 1)

Submission of learned counsel for the applicant is that there is no eyewitness account of the murder and, therefore, the applicant should be released on bail. Further submission is that incriminating recovery has also been effected from the possession of other co-accused and not from the applicant which makes his case distinguishable and is on better footing.(Para 4)

Learned AGA for the State and Sri Pankaj Dwivedi, learned counsel for the opposite party have opposed the prayer for bail and have pointed out that there is sufficient evidence to indicate that the applicant along with other co-accused was in hot pursuit of one Dal Chand and the telltale story has been given by the witnesses as to how the applicant reached in the search of Dal Chand, who hid himself behind the boundary wall, while the deceased opened the gate on which the accused-applicant along with other accused started making assault upon deceased Mahesh and started beating and accusing him for having managed the escape of Dal Chand. There is evidence to the effect that thereafter the applicant and other co-accused forced the deceased to sit on the motorcycle, which was driven by accused Santosh, while the deceased was sandwiched between co-accused Santosh and another co-accused Ranjeet, who was sitting on the pillion, while the applicant and other co-accused Awadhesh rode on another motorcycle and then all the accused taking along with them the deceased, fled away. Further submission is that this is a case of forced abduction and thereafter the deceased was murdered and his dead body was thrown away. Further submission is that even the statement of Dal Chand who initially himself was beaten up by the accused persons and who had got his duty changed because of some dispute and had come to a different place in order to save his life, is also very relevant, who has given details about the whole sequence of events. Further submission is that conspicuous nature of the facts are sufficient to indicate that the applicant was a part and parcel of the whole group and the murder was executed in furtherance of the common intention of all and the deceased was in a dare devil manner abducted by force and taken away in front of the witnesses and then after killing him the dead body was thrown away. As to how the incident of actual murder has happened, the same has to be explained by the accused persons who themselves were having the especial knowledge about the subsequent post-abduction events. The accused, therefore, are under burden to explain the same under Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act regarding which they have utterly failed. Even presumption under Section 114 of the Indian Evidence Act has to be drawn in such circumstances. There is no other reasonable inference to be drawn in such circumstances than the fact that accused persons had together executed the murder of the deceased in furtherance of their common intention. Further submission is that though the evidence collected by the investigation has also found the specific role played by the different accused but the totality of the circumstances are such that it will not be possible to segregate the intention of different accused, which was so obviously the same and common. The autopsy of deceased revealed multiple entry and exit wounds on his body.(Para 5)

Held: (Paras:-6-7)

1.Looking to the nature of offence, its gravity and the evidence in support of it and the overall circumstances of this case, this Court is of the view that the applicant has not made out a case for bail. Therefore, the prayer for bail of the applicant is rejected.

2.It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

This application has been filed seeking the release of the applicant on bail in Case Crime No.185 of 2014, u/s 302, 120B, 328 I.P.C., Police Station Bahariya, District- Allahabad. (Para 3)

Submission of counsel for the applicant is that there is no eye witness of the occurrence and there is also no direct evidence to the effect that the applicant administered poison to the deceased. There is also no evidence to show that the applicant made any attempt to procure some kind of poison from anywhere or that at any stage she was found to be in possession of some poison which was consumed by the deceased resulting in his death. Further submission is that actually the marriage had taken place a few months before the incident and that the applicant was carrying on some affair with the co-accused Dilip Kumar Maurya which fact was discovered after marriage and which resulted in disillusionment and discord between them. Next submission is that there is also evidence collected by the investigating officer to the effect that the deceased was not happy with the wife because of her conduct and the matrimonial obligations were not being performed as ought to have been done by the applicant. Submission is that all these factors are such which are equally incompatible with the possibility that the deceased himself committed suicide and therefore, applicant should be released on bail.(Para 6)

Learned A.G.A. has opposed the prayer for bail and has submitted that the deceased died in the same room where the applicant was present during the night of occurrence. If the deceased consumed some poison because of some quarrel or disgruntlement, the same could not have remained undiscovered or unnoticed by the applicant and in that eventuality, she must have reported the matter to other family members. In fact, the evidence is to the effect that in the morning when the deceased did not wake up, the family members asked the applicant, who is the wife of deceased, to open up the door on which she gave prevaricating answers and pretended that the key of the channel has got lost and misplaced. It was on this that another key was managed and the channel was somehow opened and then it was discovered that the deceased was lying dead on the bed. Submission is that the post incident conduct of the applicant is highly incriminating and unless she herself was complicit in the crime, the fact of not reporting the incident or the death of the deceased to any family members remains entirely unexplained. If the deceased had died after having consumed some poison then his death could not have remained mystery for the wife and then there was no reason for her not to take immediate steps to bring medical succour and manage treatment and take steps to save his life. Contention of A.G.A. is that actually milk was given to the deceased by the applicant and it was through it that some poison was administered and the viscera report has confirmed the presence of Alluminium Phosphide poison in the body of deceased. Further contention is that the statement of co-accused Dilip Kumar Maurya has also been recorded with whom the applicant was carrying on a liaison and the evidence has also been collected by the investigating officer to the effect that they were continuously talking to each other. Submission is that actually the applicant was badly infatuated with the aforesaid co-accused Dilip Kumar Maurya so much so that she simply wanted to get rid off the deceased and it was only in execution of a common plan which the applicant had nurtured along with the aforesaid co-accused that she in cold blood took extreme steps to eliminate the deceased from the scene in order to perpetuate her illegal illicit relationship. Contention is that post incident conduct of the applicant along with the evidence of her illicit relationship with the aforesaid co-accused Dilip Kumar Maurya and the very fact of not reporting the death of the deceased to any member of family even though he had died in the night, are all circumstances which irresistibly lead to the only inference that she was complicit in the commission of crime. (Para 7)

Held: (Paras:-8-9)

1.Looking to the nature of offence, its gravity and the evidence in support of it and the overall circumstances of this case, this Court is of the view that the applicant has not made out a case for bail. Therefore, the prayer for bail of the applicant is rejected.

2.It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

1. Rejoinder affidavit filed today is taken on record.

2. Case is taken up in the revised call. The applicant's counsel is present but the informant's counsel is not present. In the wake of heavy pendency of cases where dockets are already bursting on their seams, in such circumstances this Court does not see any justification to adjourn the case on the basis of non-appearance of counsel for the first informant and thinks it fit to proceed with the matter taking assistance of learned A.G.A., more so when the informant's counsel has chosen not to appear even in the revised call.

3. This application has been filed seeking the release of the applicant on bail in Case Crime No.185 of 2014, u/s 302, 120B, 328 I.P.C., Police Station- Bahariya, District- Allahabad.

4. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A.

7. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the prayer for bail and has submitted that the deceased died in the same room where the applicant was present during the night of occurrence. If the deceased consumed some poison because of some quarrel or disgruntlement, the same could not have remained undiscovered or unnoticed by the applicant and in that eventuality, she must have reported the matter to other family members. In fact, the evidence is to the effect that in the morning when the deceased did not wake up, the family members asked the applicant, who is the wife of deceased, to open up the door on which she gave prevaricating answers and pretended that the key of the channel has got lost and misplaced. It was on this that another key was managed and the channel was somehow opened and then it was discovered that the deceased was lying dead on the bed. Submission is that the post incident conduct of the applicant is highly incriminating and unless she herself was complicit in the crime, the fact of not reporting the incident or the death of the deceased to any family members remains entirely unexplained. If the deceased had died after having consumed some poison then his death could not have remained mystery for the wife and then there was no reason for her not to take immediate steps to bring medical succour and manage treatment and take steps to save his life. Contention of A.G.A. is that actually milk was given to the deceased by the applicant and it was through it that some poison was administered and the viscera report has confirmed the presence of Alluminium Phosphide poison in the body of deceased. Further contention is that the statement of co-accused Dilip Kumar Maurya has also been recorded with whom the applicant was carrying on a liaison and the evidence has also been collected by the investigating officer to the effect that they were continuously talking to each other. Submission is that actually the applicant was badly infatuated with the aforesaid co-accused Dilip Kumar Maurya so much so that she simply wanted to get rid off the deceased and it was only in execution of a common plan which the applicant had nurtured along with the aforesaid co-accused that she in cold blood took extreme steps to eliminate the deceased from the scene in order to perpetuate her illegal illicit relationship. Contention is that post incident conduct of the applicant along with the evidence of her illicit relationship with the aforesaid co-accused Dilip Kumar Maurya and the very fact of not reporting the death of the deceased to any member of family even though he had died in the night, are all circumstances which irresistibly lead to the only inference that she was complicit in the commission of crime.

8. Looking to the nature of offence, its gravity and the evidence in support of it and the overall circumstances of this case, this Court is of the view that the applicant has not made out a case for bail. Therefore, the prayer for bail of the applicant is rejected.

9. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

THE HON'BLE DR. VIJAY LAXMI, J.

Criminal Appeal No.- 207 Of 1997

Pappoo alias Ram Kumar ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
S.S.Yadav, Raj Kumar Pandey

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Criminal Appeal—Penal Code—Section 376—"rape"—"sexual intercourse"—"without consent"—"against the will"—"consent"—"fear"—"knife"—"prosecutrix"—"testimony"—"reliable"—"corroboration"—"not sine qua non"—"delay in lodging FIR"—"explained"—"age of prosecutrix"—"16 to 17 years"—"18 years"—"medical evidence"—"radiological examination"—"margin of two years"—"consenting party"—"not accepted"—"absence of injuries"—"not decisive"—"conviction"—"sentence"—"reduction"—"adequate and special reasons" .

This appeal has been preferred by Pappoo alias Ram Kumar against the judgment and order dated 15.04.1997 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.13, Lucknow in ST No.221 of 1995, State versus Pappoo alias Ram Kumar and another, in Case Crime No.35 of 1992, under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC, Police Station - Gosaiganj, District Lucknow, whereby he found the the appellant guilty under Section 376 IPC and sentenced him to 7 years RI along with fine of Rs.3,000/- and directed the appellant to undergo additional imprisonment for six months in default of payment of fine. The appellant has been acquitted for the charges under Sections 363 and 366 IPC. The co-accused Guddu @ Sangam has been acquitted for the charges under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC.(Para 1)

As per the prosecution, the FIR was lodged by the complainant Sant Ram, the father of the victim alleging that the daughter of the complainant Saroj Kumari aged about 14 years was enticed and taken away by the appellant, Pappoo alias Ram Kumar of his village and Guddu @ Sangam Lal son of Ramsumiran on 29.01.1992 at about 10.00 PM. The complainant failed to trace his daughter despite all efforts, thus he lodged a written report on 01.02.1992 in police station concerned and Case Crime No.35 of 1992, under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC was registered in Police Station - Gosaiganj, Lucknow. It was also stated in the FIR that the daughter of the complainant has taken silver ornaments of about ¼ Kg with her. The investigation was conducted by the investigating officer. The statements of witnesses were recorded. The spot inspection was made and the site plan was prepared. The victim was recovered after 12 days and was given in the custody of the complainant. The victim was got medically examined and after completing the investigation the charge sheet was ultimately submitted in the Court under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC.(Para 1)

The charge was framed against the accused under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC. The accused denied the charges and claimed to be tried. The prosecution in order to prove its case examined Sant Ram PW-1, Saroj Kumari PW-2. the victim, Sub-Inspector Amar Singh Gautam PW-3, the Investigating Officer, Dr. J.P. Gupta PW-4 and Dr. Manorama Bahuguna PW-5. The complainant Sant Ram PW-1 stated on oath that her daughter has gone out of house on the date of the incident i.e. 29.01.1992 at about 10.00 PM to give fodder (chara) to the cattle. When she did not come back, he made efforts to search her everywhere and with her relations but failed and thereafter the report was lodged on police station concerned. After 10 to 12 days of the incident when he was standing on the check post of village Gosainganj along with Sub-Inspector and two constables he saw his daughter coming from the northern side. The first information report was proved by the witnesses which is Ex. K-1 on record.(Para 3)

The victim Saroj Kumari PW-2 stated on oath that she was given allurement by Pappoo @ Ram Kumar of good food and good clothes and to marry thus she eloped with him on the date of the incident at about 10.00 PM. She was aged about 13 years of age at the time of the incident. Pappoo took her to Lucknow with the help of one Guddu on a cycle. They took her to Khurram Nagar where they resided in a rented room at the rate of Rs.150/- per month. The two rooms were taken on rent. Pappoo and victim stayed in one room and Guddu in another room. She stated that the accused Pappoo repeatedly committed rape on her forcibly on the point of knife without her consent during this period.(Para 4)

1.In the instant case, the victim before me is 18 years of the age. She has clearly stated that she was subjected to sexual intercourse by the accused on the point of the knife. She was not a consenting party. She was put in fear by the accused. She further stated that the appellant accused locked the rented room from outside when he used to go out for his work. She was left with no opportunity to escape. The circumstantial evidence corroborates her in all material particulars.

2.I have found the testimony of prosecutrix PW2 trustworthy and unembellished. The prosecutrix has been subjected to lengthy crossexamination. The trial court has found the prosecutrix reliable. I too find no reason to disbelieve her testimony. A father would not ordinarily subscribe to a false story of sexual assault involving his own daughter and thereby putting at stake the reputation of the family and jeopardizing the married life of the daughter. I find the testimony of victim reliable and lending support to the narration of the incident by the victim.

3.It would be apt here to remind one of the observations of the supreme court in a case of Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai v. State of Gujarat(1983) 3 SCC 217, where the supreme court said, a girl or a woman in the tradition bound non permissive society of India would be extremely reluctant even to admit that any incident which is likely to reflect on her chastity had ever occurred. She would be conscious of the danger of being ostracized by the society or being looked down by the society, including by her own family members, relatives, friends and neighbours. She would face the risk of loosing the love and respect of her own husband and near relatives, and of her matrimonial home and happiness being shattered. If she is unmarried, she would apprehend that it would be difficult to secure an alliance with a suitable match from a reasonable or an acceptable family. In view of these similar factors the victims and their relatives are not too keen to bring the culprit to book. And when in the face of these factors the crime is brought to light there is a built-in assurance that the charge is genuine rather than fabricated. In this case, no reason has been proved, not even suggested during crossexamination of the witness why the victim or any member of her family would falsely implicate the accused roping him in false charge of rape.

4.It is well settled that a prosecutrix complaining of having been a victim of the offence of rape is not an accomplice after the crime. There is no rule of law that her testimony cannot be acted without corroboration in material particulars. Her testimony has to be appreciated on the principle of probabilities just as the testimony of any other witness; a high degree of probability having been shown to exist in view of the subject matter being a criminal charge. Assurance, short of corroboration as understood in the context of an accomplice would do.

5.I find no force in the contention of Learned counsel of the appellant that the prosecutrix was a willing party to the sexual assault made by the accused. Upon an evaluation of evidence available on record I am satisfied to hold that the victim is a witness of truth. Her testimony inspires confidence. Other evidence available on record lends assurance to her testimony. The Trial Court had rightly held that sexual assault amounting to rape was committed on her by the accused-respondent. The Trial Court was justified in holding her to be not a consenting party to the sexual assault on her.

6.This takes me to the last argument about the quantum of sentence. The Court below has awarded 7 years of imprisonment and a fine of Rs.3,000/-. A reference to Section 376 of IPC shows that although the minimum sentence is prescribed, the Court is empowered to award lesser punishment for adequate and special reasons to be recorded in the judgment. The proviso to Section 376(1), Indian Penal Code, as it stood prior to its amendment in the year 2013 expressly states that the Court may impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than seven years in an offence under Section 376(1), Indian Penal Code, "for adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment".

7.After giving my anxious consideration to the aforesaid facts and circumstances and arguments advanced on behalf of the accused by learned counsel Shri Raj Kumar Pandey and the arguments advanced by Shri V.K. Singh, learned A.G.A, I am convinced that this is a matter in which it would be appropriate to reduce the term of sentence from minimum seven to three years. The incident in this case took place in the year 1992. More than twenty four years have passed since then. This appeal itself is pending for last more than nineteen years. The evidence that has come on record clearly shows that the prosecutrix had willingly accompanied the appellant, left her home and spent more than 11 days in his Company. The prosecutrix was eighteen years old when she eloped with the appellant taking silver ornaments from her home.

8.The appellant was a young man of about 20 years when this incident took place, who was unmatured and first offender. He according to the version of the victim herself took the victim back to her village after 12 days when she intended to go back to her parents.

9.The reasons mentioned above, specially the fact which persuades me to take a lenient view in the matter of sentence and awarding less than the minimum prescribed sentence of seven years is that prosecutrix aged 18 years had willingly left her parents' house to be with the appellant taking silver ornaments, which is more than evident from the facts of the case. I am inclined to accept that this and other reasons stated in detail above are sufficient and can be said to be adequate and special reasons for awarding lesser sentence for the offence punishable under Section 376 of IPC.

10.I am, therefore, inclined to allow the appeal partly by reducing the sentence for offense punishable under Section 376 of IPC from RI of seven years to RI of three years. The sentence of fine is however, confirmed. One copy of this order be sent to learned trial court. Order accordingly

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred by Pappoo alias Ram Kumar against the judgment and order dated 15.04.1997 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.13, Lucknow in ST No.221 of 1995, State versus Pappoo alias Ram Kumar and another, in Case Crime No.35 of 1992, under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC, Police Station - Gosaiganj, District Lucknow, whereby he found the the appellant guilty under Section 376 IPC and sentenced him to 7 years RI along with fine of Rs.3,000/- and directed the appellant to undergo additional imprisonment for six months in default of payment of fine. The appellant has been acquitted for the charges under Sections 363 and 366 IPC. The co-accused Guddu @ Sangam has been acquitted for the charges under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC.

2. As per the prosecution, the FIR was lodged by the complainant Sant Ram, the father of the victim alleging that the daughter of the complainant Saroj Kumari aged about 14 years was enticed and taken away by the appellant, Pappoo alias Ram Kumar of his village and Guddu @ Sangam Lal son of Ramsumiran on 29.01.1992 at about 10.00 PM. The complainant failed to trace his daughter despite all efforts, thus he lodged a written report on 01.02.1992 in police station concerned and Case Crime No.35 of 1992, under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC was registered in Police Station - Gosaiganj, Lucknow. It was also stated in the FIR that the daughter of the complainant has taken silver ornaments of about ¼ Kg with her. The investigation was conducted by the investigating officer. The statements of witnesses were recorded. The spot inspection was made and the site plan was prepared. The victim was recovered after 12 days and was given in the custody of the complainant. The victim was got medically examined and after completing the investigation the charge sheet was ultimately submitted in the Court under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC.

3. The charge was framed against the accused under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC. The accused denied the charges and claimed to be tried. The prosecution in order to prove its case examined Sant Ram PW-1, Saroj Kumari PW-2. the victim, Sub-Inspector Amar Singh Gautam PW-3, the Investigating Officer, Dr. J.P. Gupta PW-4 and Dr. Manorama Bahuguna PW-5. The complainant Sant Ram PW-1 stated on oath that her daughter has gone out of house on the date of the incident i.e. 29.01.1992 at about 10.00 PM to give fodder (chara) to the cattle. When she did not come back, he made efforts to search her everywhere and with her relations but failed and thereafter the report was lodged on police station concerned. After 10 to 12 days of the incident when he was standing on the check post of village Gosainganj along with Sub-Inspector and two constables he saw his daughter coming from the northern side. The first information report was proved by the witnesses which is Ex. K-1 on record.

4. The victim Saroj Kumari PW-2 stated on oath that she was given allurement by Pappoo @ Ram Kumar of good food and good clothes and to marry thus she eloped with him on the date of the incident at about 10.00 PM. She was aged about 13 years of age at the time of the incident. Pappoo took her to Lucknow with the help of one Guddu on a cycle. They took her to Khurram Nagar where they resided in a rented room at the rate of Rs.150/- per month. The two rooms were taken on rent. Pappoo and victim stayed in one room and Guddu in another room. She stated that the accused Pappoo repeatedly committed rape on her forcibly on the point of knife without her consent during this period.

5. The investigating officer, Amar Singh Gautam PW-3 stated on oath that he made spot inspection, prepared site plan and recovery memo which are Ex. K-2 to K-3 respectively. This witness also proved charge sheet, chik report and GD which are Ex. K-5 to K-7 respectively.

6. Dr. J.P. Gupta, Radiologist, Mahila Hospital was also examined, who prepared X-ray report of the victim and proved it which is Ex. K-8 on record.

7. Dr. Manorama Bahuguna, PW-5 stated on oath that she was posted in Lucknow Woman Hospital as Medical Officer on 10.2.2012. On that date the victim was brought to the Hospital by constable, Shakila Shaukat for medical examination. The length of the girl was 56 inches and she was having 14 X 14 teeth. There was no injury on private parts or anywhere on the person of the prosecutrix. The age of the victim was found to be between 16 to 17 years of age.

8. The accused was examined under Section 313 CrPC who stated that he was falsely implicated in this case. No evidence was produced by the accused in his defence.

9. The Learned Trial Court has held on the basis of the evidence of the prosexutrix, as corroborated by the other evidences that there was not only a sexual intercourse between the accused and the prosecuterix, but the same was without the consent and against the will of the prosecutrix. The prosecutrix was held to be 18 years of age on the date of the incident. Though there was delay in lodging the FIR but it was satisfactorily explained. Accordingly, the accused-respondent was found guilty of the offence punishable under Section 376 IPC and sentenced as above. As against this, an appeal came to be filed before this Court.

10. I have heard Shri Raj Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant, Shri V.K. Singh, learned A.G.A for the State and gone through the record.

11. Learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the Appellant vehemently argued that the case was not proved by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt. Though the factum of accused-appellant having committed sexual intercourse with the victim was proved but the absence of injuries on the person of the victim was a material fact not excluding the possibility of the victim having been a consenting party. The delay in lodging the FIR was not satisfactorily explained. The delay coupled with the medical report rendered the prosecution case doubtful.

12. Learned Counsel for the Appellant further pointed out that the whole prosecution story was extremely unnatural and weak. The Learned Counsel pointed out that the prosecutrix was undoubtedly a grown up girl and though as per the prosecution case, she was raped for about 12 days, but she kept quiet. The Learned Counsel argued that the delay in lodging the FIR was fatal and further suggested that there was an element of "consent" on the part of the prosecutrix, and as such, there was no question of any rape. The Learned Counsel further suggested that even otherwise, the absence of any injury on the person of the prosecuterix suggests that the prosecutrix engaged herself in the intercourse as per her will, and Trial Court has failed to consider this important aspect. Lastly, The Learned Counsel suggested that there was in fact, no sexual intercourse, muchless, against the consent of the prosecutrix and the accused was falsely implicated in this case.

13. The learned counsel for the respondent-State has vehemently opposed the contentions raised by learned counsel of the accused-appellant and submitted that none of them was sustainable and none could be a reason for doubting the prosecution case in the given facts and circumstances and hence the conviction was liable to be confirmed.

14. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, I am of the opinion that the trial Court was fully justified in passing order of the conviction of the appellant. It is true that the golden thread which runs throughout the cob-web of criminal jurisprudence as administered in India is that nine guilty may escape but one innocent should not suffer. But at the same time no guilty should escape unpunished once the guilt has been proved to hilt. An unmerited acquittal does no good to the society. If the prosecution has succeeded in making out a convincing case for recording a finding as to the accused being guilty, the Court should not lean in favour of acquittal by giving weight to irrelevant or insignificant circumstances or by resorting to technicalities or by assuming doubts and giving benefit thereof where none exists. A doubt, as understood in criminal jurisprudence, has to be a reasonable doubt and not an excuse for finding in favour of acquittal. An unmerited acquittal encourages wolves in the society being on prawl for easy preys, more so when the victims of crime are helpless females. It is the spurt in the number of unmerited acquittals recorded by criminal courts which gives rise to the demand for death sentence to the rapists. The courts have to display a greater sense of responsibility and to be more sensitive while dealing with charges of sexual assault on women. It would be appropriate to remind ourselves of what Supreme Court has said through Dr. A.S. Anand, J., as His Lordship then was, in State of Punjab Vs. Gurmeet Singh & Ors., 1996 (2) SCC 384.

..A rapist not only violates the victims privacy and personal integrity, but inevitably causes serious psychological as well as physical harm in the process. Rape is not merely a physical assault it is often destructive of the whole personality of the victim. A murderer destroys the physical body of his victim, a rapist degrades the very soul of the helpless female. The courts, therefore, shoulder a great responsibility while trying an accused on charges of rape. They must deal with such cases with utmost sensitivity. The courts should examine the broader probabilities of a case and not get swayed by minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix, which are not of a fatal nature, to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case.

15. The questions arising for consideration before me are: Whether the prosecution story, as alleged, inspires confidence of the court on the evidence adduced? Whether the prosecutrix, is a witness worthy of reliance? Whether the testimony of a prosecutrix who has been a victim of rape stands in need of corroboration and, if so, whether such corroboration is available in the facts of the present case? What was the age of the prosecutrix? Whether she was a consenting party to the crime? Whether there was unexplained delay in lodging the F.I.R.?

16. I may however state that a mere delay in lodging the FIR cannot be a ground by itself for throwing the entire prosecution case overboard. The Court has to seek an explanation for delay and test the truthfulness and plausibility of the reason assigned. If the delay is explained to the satisfaction of the Court it cannot be counted against the prosecution. So are the observations made by Supreme Court in Karenel Singh Vs. State of M.P. (1995) 5 SCC 518 repelling the defence contention based on delay in lodging the FIR. In the present case, in our opinion the delay in lodging the F.I.R. has been satisfactorily explained. The case of the complainant is that when her daughter did not come back after giving fodder (chara) to the cattle on the date of the incident, the complainant made every effort to search his daughter everywhere and also with his relations. When he failed, the report was lodged on 01.02.1992. Thus, the delay is fully explained and no inference can be drawn against the prosecution on the ground of delay in lodging the FIR.

17. Before holding a person guilty under Section 376 IPC, it is important to determine the age of the prosecutrix at the relevant time. In this case, the prosecution came with a case in FIR that the victim was 14 years of age. The victim stated her age to be 13 years but according to the defence case, the victim was major at the relevant time. According to medical evidence her age was found 16 to 17 years. The prosecution having failed to produce any documentary evidence regarding age of the victim, then the reliance has been placed on medical evidence to determine the age of the victim. Regarding the medical assessment based on the radiological observation judicial notice can also be taken giving margin of two years as has been held in the case of Jaya Mala v. Home Secretary, Government of J. and K. MANU/SC/0031/1982 : AIR 1982 SC 1297. In that case, it has been observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court that it is notorious and one can take judicial notice that the margin of error in age ascertained by radiological examination is two years on either side.

18. It is also settled law that if two views are possible then the one favourable to the accused has to be adopted. In the case of Harendra Narayan Singh v. State of Bihar, MANU/SC/0416/1991 : AIR 1991 SC 1842, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed that the basic rule of criminal jurisprudence is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in a case of circumstantial evidence, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the Court should adopt the latter view favourable to the accused. In the instant case, Dr. Manorama Bahuguna has mentioned the age of the victim as about 16 to 17 years. In the circumstances, the age of the victim can be taken to be 18 years at the relevant time and on this point the finding as recorded by the learned Trial Court is correct.

19. The contention of learned AGA that the girl was minor at the relevant time is therefore not tenable and cannot be accepted. Moreover, the co-accused Guddu @ Sangam has been acquitted of all charges and the appellant has been aquitted of charges u/s 363 and 366 IPC by the learned Trial Court observing that the age of the victim was 18 years during the relevant period. No counter appeal has been filed by the State against the acquittal of the Guddu @ Sanga, thus, the findings of learned Trial Court have become final in this regard.

20. It is argued by learned counsel for the accused that the prosecutrix was major at the relevant period, who had willingly gone with the accused Pappoo alias Ram Kumar to Kurram Nagar, Lucknow. She lived with Pappoo for 12 days in a rented room and if they had any intercourse it was with her consent. Therefore, the prosecution has failed to establish any offence against the accused person. The girl being major, who took her own decision. Learned Trial Court has wrongly appreciated the evidence on record and has erred in concluding that the girl was not the consenting party and the accused committed the offence under Section 376 IPC. The facts and circumstances of the case amply show that she was consenting party. Learned Trial Court has wrongly convicted the accused under Section 376 IPC and he is entitled to be acquitted.

21. However, for the offence of rape as defined in Section 375 of the Indian Penal Code, the sexual intercourse should have been against the will of the woman or without her consent. If she be of 16 years of age or above, her consent cannot be presumed; an inference as to consent can be drawn if only based on evidence or probabilities of the case. The victim of rape stating on oath that she was forcibly subjected to sexual intercourse or that the act was done without her consent, has to be believed and accepted like any other testimony unless there is material available to draw an inference as to her consent or else the testimony of prosecutrix is such as would be inherently improbable. It may be recalled in that in view of section 114-A, Evidence Act inserted by Criminal Laws (Amendment), Act,1983, there has been effected radical change in law relating to rape so far as the evidence relating to rape is concerned. The law is now in view of Section 114-A, Evidence Act that if the fact of sexual intercourse is proved and the victim says that she did not consent to that act, the onus shifts to the accused to show that the accused was a consenting party.

22. In State of U P v. Chhotey Lal, 2011(2) SCC 550, the Supreme Court observed that 'Consenting' means consent of the will and submission under the influence of fear or terror cannot amount to real consent. To quote the relevant extract:

> This Court in a long line of cases has given wider meaning to the word `consent' in the context of sexual offences as explained in various judicial dictionaries. In Jowitt's Dictionary of English Law (Second Edition), Volume 1 (1977) at page 422 the word `consent' has been explained as an act of reason accompanied with deliberation, the mind weighing, as in a balance, the good or evil on either side. It is further stated that consent supposes three things--a physical power, a mental power, and a free and serious use of them and if consent be obtained by intimidation, force, meditated imposition, circumvention, surprise, or undue influence, it is to be treated as a delusion, and not as a deliberate and free act of the mind.
> 15. Stroud's Judicial Dictionary (Fourth Edition), Volume 1 (1971) at page 555 explains the expression `consent', inter alia, as under

…….. ……..

" "Consent," within Penal Law, ' 2010, defining rape, requires exercise of intelligence based on knowledge of its significance and moral quality and there must be a choice between resistance and assent. People v. Pelvino, 214 N.Y.S. 577" …….. ……..

" "Consenting" as used in the law of rape means consent of the will and submission under the influence of fear or terror cannot amount to real consent. Hallmark v. State, 22 Okl. Cr. 422" . . . .

23. In the instant case, the victim before me is 18 years of the age. She has clearly stated that she was subjected to sexual intercourse by the accused on the point of the knife. She was not a consenting party. She was put in fear by the accused. She further stated that the appellant accused locked the rented room from outside when he used to go out for his work. She was left with no opportunity to escape. The circumstantial evidence corroborates her in all material particulars.

24. I have found the testimony of prosecutrix PW2 trustworthy and unembellished. The prosecutrix has been subjected to lengthy cross-examination. The trial court has found the prosecutrix reliable. I too find no reason to disbelieve her testimony. A father would not ordinarily subscribe to a false story of sexual assault involving his own daughter and thereby putting at stake the reputation of the family and jeopardizing the married life of the daughter. I find the testimony of victim reliable and lending support to the narration of the incident by the victim.

25. It would be apt here to remind one of the observations of the supreme court in a case of Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai v. State of Gujarat(1983) 3 SCC 217, where the supreme court said, a girl or a woman in the tradition bound non permissive society of India would be extremely reluctant even to admit that any incident which is likely to reflect on her chastity had ever occurred. She would be conscious of the danger of being ostracized by the society or being looked down by the society, including by her own family members, relatives, friends and neighbours. She would face the risk of loosing the love and respect of her own husband and near relatives, and of her matrimonial home and happiness being shattered. If she is unmarried, she would apprehend that it would be difficult to secure an alliance with a suitable match from a reasonable or an acceptable family. In view of these similar factors the victims and their relatives are not too keen to bring the culprit to book. And when in the face of these factors the crime is brought to light there is a built-in assurance that the charge is genuine rather than fabricated. In this case, no reason has been proved, not even suggested during cross-examination of the witness why the victim or any member of her family would falsely implicate the accused roping him in false charge of rape.

26. It is well settled that a prosecutrix complaining of having been a victim of the offence of rape is not an accomplice after the crime. There is no rule of law that her testimony cannot be acted without corroboration in material particulars. Her testimony has to be appreciated on the principle of probabilities just as the testimony of any other witness; a high degree of probability having been shown to exist in view of the subject matter being a criminal charge. Assurance, short of corroboration as understood in the context of an accomplice would do. Reference may be had to a long chain of decisions, some of which are Rameshwar 1952 SCR 377, Sidheshwar Ganguly AIR 1958 SC 143, Madhoram & Anr. (1973) 1 SCC 533, State of Maharashtra Vs. Chandraprakash Kewalchand Jain (1990) 1 SCC 550, Madam Gopal Kaddad (1992) 3 SCC 204 Shri Narayan AIR 1992 (3) SCC 615, Karnel Singh 1995 (5) SCC 518, Bodhisattwa Gautam 1996 (1) SCC 490 & Gurmit Singh (supra). I may quote from the last of the above said decisions where the rule for appreciating the evidence of the prosecutrix in such cases has been succinctly summed up in the following words :-

If evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence, it must be relied upon without seeking corroboration of her statement in material particulars. If for some reason the court finds it difficult to place implicit reliance on her testimony, it may look for evidence which may lend assurance to her testimony, short of corroboration required in the case of an accomplice. The testimony of the prosecutrix must be appreciated in the background of the entire case and the trial court must be alive to its responsibility and be sensitive while dealing with cases involving sexual molestations.

27. The observations made in the case of Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai (Supra) deserve special mention which must be kept in mind invariably while dealing with a rape case. The Supreme Court observed as follows :

"9. In the Indian setting, refusal to act on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault in the absence of corroboration as a rule, is adding insult to injury. Why should the evidence of the girl or the woman who complains of rape or sexual molestation be viewed with the aid of spectacles fitted with lenses tinged with doubt, disbelief or suspicion? To do so is to justify the charge of male chauvinism in a male dominated society. We must analyze the argument in support of the need for corroboration and subject it to relentless and remorseless cross examination. And we must do so with a logical, and not an opinionated, eye in the light of probabilities with our feet firmly planted on the soil of India and with our eyes focussed on the Indian horizon. We must not be swept off the feet by the approach made in the western world which has its own social milieu, its own social mores, its own permissive values, and its own code of life.

28. It is further argued by learned counsel for the appellant that the medical report does not support the prosecution case where no injury was found on the private parts or anywhere else on the person of the victim. The victim herself admitted during her cross-examination that she had gone with Pappoo @ Ram Kumar voluntarily. It is argued that statement of the victim that she did not get any opportunity to raise outcry and to escape from the rented room was not reliable. She stayed with him in the rented room for 10 to 11 days which was situated by the side of road and there was also window opening towards road. Thus it is argued that the victim was having full opportunity to raise the outcry and to seek help of the passerby to escape from his custody. She never made an effort to escape or to protest. She was a consenting party and no rape was committed on her. However, the contention is not sustainable since it is settled principle that in the same set of circumstances, the reaction of different individuals may be different. In Rafiq v. State of U.P. AIR 1989 SC 96, the supreme court made the following observations in this regard:

Indeed, from place to place, from age to age. from varying life-styles and behavioural complexes, inferences from a given set of facts, oral and circumstantial, may have to be drawn not with dead uniformity but realistic diversity lest rigidity in the shape of rule of law in this area be introduced through a new type of precedential tyranny. The same observation holds good regarding the presence or absence of injuries on the person of the aggressor or the aggressed.

29. It is also argued by learned counsel for the accused that no statement of the victim was recorded under Section 164 CrPC. The evidence of prosecutrix suffered from infirmities. The conviction was based on such evidence which was not sustainable. The contradictions in the statement of the father of the victim and the victim herself created doubt about the correctness of prosecution version. There was sole testimony of victim. The father of the victim stated during cross-examination that he was not aware about the venue of residence of Pappoo @ Ram Kumar while victim stated during cross-examination that the Pappoo was her neighbour whose house was situated about 4 to 5 houses away from her house. However, the alleged contradictions are minor and negligible. The evidence of a victim of a sex offence is entitled to great weight. But corroboration is not the sine qua non for a conviction of rape. The totality of the circumstances appearing on the record of the case discloses that the prosecutrix does not have a strong motive to falsely involve the appellant and this court has no hesitation in accepting her evidence.

30. I find no force in the contention of Learned counsel of the appellant that the prosecutrix was a willing party to the sexual assault made by the accused. Upon an evaluation of evidence available on record I am satisfied to hold that the victim is a witness of truth. Her testimony inspires confidence. Other evidence available on record lends assurance to her testimony. The Trial Court had rightly held that sexual assault amounting to rape was committed on her by the accused-respondent. The Trial Court was justified in holding her to be not a consenting party to the sexual assault on her.

31. This takes me to the last argument about the quantum of sentence. The Court below has awarded 7 years of imprisonment and a fine of Rs.3,000/-. A reference to Section 376 of IPC shows that although the minimum sentence is prescribed, the Court is empowered to award lesser punishment for adequate and special reasons to be recorded in the judgment. The proviso to Section 376(1), Indian Penal Code, as it stood prior to its amendment in the year 2013 expressly states that the Court may impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term of less than seven years in an offence under Section 376(1), Indian Penal Code, "for adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment". It will be appropriate here to quote the relevant extract of the ruling of Supreme Court in State of Rajasthan v.Vinod Kumar, Cri.Appeal No. 1887 of 2008, Judgement dt.18.05.2012 in this regard:

20. Thus, the law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that punishment should always be proportionate/ commensurate to the gravity of offence. Religion, race, caste, economic or social status of the accused or victim are not the relevant factors for determining the quantum of punishment. The court has to decide the punishment after considering all aggravating and mitigating factors and the circumstances in which the crime has been committed. Conduct and state of mind of the accused and age of the sexually assaulted victim and the gravity of the criminal act are the factors of paramount importance. The court must exercise its discretion in imposing the punishment objectively considering the facts and circumstances of the case. The power under the proviso is not to be used indiscriminately in a routine, casual and cavalier manner for the reason that an exception clause requires strict interpretation. The legislature introduced the imposition of minimum sentence by amendment in the IPC w.e.f. 25.12.1983, therefore, the courts are bound to bear in mind the effect thereof.

The court while exercising the discretion in the exception clause has to record "exceptional reasons" for resorting to the proviso. Recording of such reasons is sine qua non for granting the extraordinary relief. What is adequate and special would depend upon several factors and no straight jacket formula can be laid down.

32. After giving my anxious consideration to the aforesaid facts and circumstances and arguments advanced on behalf of the accused by learned counsel Shri Raj Kumar Pandey and the arguments advanced by Shri V.K. Singh, learned A.G.A, I am convinced that this is a matter in which it would be appropriate to reduce the term of sentence from minimum seven to three years. The incident in this case took place in the year 1992. More than twenty four years have passed since then. This appeal itself is pending for last more than nineteen years. The evidence that has come on record clearly shows that the prosecutrix had willingly accompanied the appellant, left her home and spent more than 11 days in his Company. The prosecutrix was eighteen years old when she eloped with the appellant taking silver ornaments from her home.

33. The appellant was a young man of about 20 years when this incident took place, who was unmatured and first offender. He according to the version of the victim herself took the victim back to her village after 12 days when she intended to go back to her parents. To quote the relevant extract of statement of prosecutrix:-

34. The reasons mentioned above, specially the fact which persuades me to take a lenient view in the matter of sentence and awarding less than the minimum prescribed sentence of seven years is that prosecutrix aged 18 years had willingly left her parents' house to be with the appellant taking silver ornaments, which is more than evident from the facts of the case. I am inclined to accept that this and other reasons stated in detail above are sufficient and can be said to be adequate and special reasons for awarding lesser sentence for the offence punishable under Section 376 of IPC.

35. I am, therefore, inclined to allow the appeal partly by reducing the sentence for offense punishable under Section 376 of IPC from RI of seven years to RI of three years. The sentence of fine is however, confirmed. One copy of this order be sent to learned trial court.

Order accordingly.

Criminal Appeal–First information report – prompt – chances of false implication – very remote – occurrence – report lodged – no delay – prompt – motive – proved on record – series of litigations – inimical – related and interested witnesses – father and son – injured witness – presence not doubtful – minor contradictions – natural – do not strike at the root – all the accused assaulted – lathi – injuries – could not state which accused caused the fatal blow – cross cases – injuries on the person of the accused – not explained – non-explanation – manifest defect – genesis of the occurrence – suppressed – injuries simple and superficial – right of private defence – exercising of right – both the parties hurling lathies – not a pre planned crime – spur of the moment – conviction upheld – sentence reduced – rigorous imprisonment reduced – fine – appeal partly allowed. .

Challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 20.08.1996, passed by Vth Additional Sessions Judge, Faizabad, in Sessions Trial No. 291 of 1991 (State vs. Bansh Raj and others), under Sections 147, 304/149 and 323 I.P.C., Police Station Pura Kalandar, District Faizabad, whereby the appellants Ram Saware, Heera Lal, Jhurai, Nathu, Raja Ram and Raj Karan were acquitted for the charges under Sections 147, 304/149 and 323 I.P.C., whereas appellants Bansh Raj, Brij Lal, Jag Mohan, Hirdai Ram and Ram Nihor were acquitted for the charge under Section 323 I.P.C. but further each of the appellants were convicted and sentenced to 1 year rigorous imprisonment under Section 147 I.P.C. and 7 years rigorous imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 2000/- under Section 304(2)/149 I.P.C. with default stipulation.(Para 1)

Filtering out unnecessary details, the prosecution case in brief is that on 20.05.1987, a first information report was lodged by the informant Hari Prasad, the brother of the deceased stating that he has a grove towards west of the village being grove no. 667 669, the lease of which was given to Ram Saware. There was various litigations between the family of the informant and Ram Saware due to the above mentioned property, both the parties were inimical towards each other. Proceedings under Section 107/16 were also pending between the parties. On 20.05.1987 at 10:00 A.M., the son of the informant namely Ram Shankar went with the buffaloes to the field to enable the buffaloes to graze in the grove. Bansh Raj Son of Ram Saware went to the spot and abused the son of the informant and hit him with a stick. At this the son of the informant raised hue and cry. Bansh Raj also raised hue and cry at which Ram Saware, Jag Mohan, Heera Lal, Jhurai, Nathu, Hirdai, Ram Nihore, Brij Lal, Ram Karan, Balbhadra, Ram Nath armed with lathi, danda reached the grove. On seeing the accused persons, the son of the informant ran towards his house. Shiv Prasad Patel, Shatrughan, Devi Prasad of the family of the informant coupled with Shiv Bahadur also reached the spot. All the accused persons assaulted the family members of the informant who all sustained injuries. The informant did not intervene due to fear. Shiv Prasad sustained injuries on his head and became unconscious. Some people on the side of the accused also sustained injuries which were caused by the family members and companions of the informant in self-defence, hence, the first information report was lodged.(Para 2)

1.The facts of this case are akin to the facts of the instant case. In Kashmiri Lal & Others v. State of Punjab, (1996) 10 SCC 471, this court held that "a person who is unlawfully attacked has every right to counteract and attack upon his assailant and cause such injury as may be necessary to ward off the apprehended danger or threat."

2.Thus, on the basis of evidence on record and taking into the view of statements of Mata Deen PW-2, it has specifically stated that both the parties were hurling lathies on each other. I think It was not a pre planned crime but the incident took place at the spur of the moment.

3.Counsel for the appellant has lastly submitted that the occurrence took place in the year 1987. About 29 years have passed. Since the incident took place. Presently the surviving appellants Bansh Raj is more than 55 years of age, the appellant Hirdai Ram is more than 71 years of age and appellant Brij Lal is more than 61 years of age. At this juncture of age, keeping in view the totality of the circumstances, the appellants should not be sent to jail and the sentences should be reduced.

4.However, the conviction of the appellants is liable to be upheld but the sentence is liable to be reduced from 7 years rigorous imprisonment, under Section 304 part II read with Section 149 I.P.C. to a fine of Rs. 25,000/- each. The further sentence of one year rigorous imprisonment under Section 147 I.P.C. is reduced to a fine of Rs. 1,000/- each.

5.Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed.

6.The accused appellants Bansh Raj, Hirdai Ram and Brij Lal are sentenced to fine of Rs. 25,000/- under Section 304 part II read with Section 149 I.P.C. and Rs. 1,000/- under Section 147 I.P.C. which they should deposit within two months from the date of delivery of judgment. In default, they shall undergo rigorous imprisonment for 7 years under Section 304 part II read with Section 149 I.P.C. and 1 year rigorous imprisonment under Section 147 I.P.C. 50% of the fine, deposited, shall be paid to the legal representative of the deceased Shiv Prasad. The time for deposition of fine shall not be extended on any ground whatsoever.Let the copy of this judgment be sent to the trial court concerned for compliance

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Ranjana Pandya, J.)

1. Challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 20.08.1996, passed by Vth Additional Sessions Judge, Faizabad, in Sessions Trial No. 291 of 1991 (State vs. Bansh Raj and others), under Sections 147, 304/149 and 323 I.P.C., Police Station Pura Kalandar, District Faizabad, whereby the appellants Ram Saware, Heera Lal, Jhurai, Nathu, Raja Ram and Raj Karan were acquitted for the charges under Sections 147, 304/149 and 323 I.P.C., whereas appellants Bansh Raj, Brij Lal, Jag Mohan, Hirdai Ram and Ram Nihor were acquitted for the charge under Section 323 I.P.C. but further each of the appellants were convicted and sentenced to 1 year rigorous imprisonment under Section 147 I.P.C. and 7 years rigorous imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 2000/- under Section 304(2)/149 I.P.C. with default stipulation.

2. Filtering out unnecessary details, the prosecution case in brief is that on 20.05.1987, a first information report was lodged by the informant Hari Prasad, the brother of the deceased stating that he has a grove towards west of the village being grove no. 667 669, the lease of which was given to Ram Saware. There was various litigations between the family of the informant and Ram Saware due to the above mentioned property, both the parties were inimical towards each other. Proceedings under Section 107/16 were also pending between the parties. On 20.05.1987 at 10:00 A.M., the son of the informant namely Ram Shankar went with the buffaloes to the field to enable the buffaloes to graze in the grove. Bansh Raj Son of Ram Saware went to the spot and abused the son of the informant and hit him with a stick. At this the son of the informant raised hue and cry. Bansh Raj also raised hue and cry at which Ram Saware, Jag Mohan, Heera Lal, Jhurai, Nathu, Hirdai, Ram Nihore, Brij Lal, Ram Karan, Balbhadra, Ram Nath armed with lathi, danda reached the grove. On seeing the accused persons, the son of the informant ran towards his house. Shiv Prasad Patel, Shatrughan, Devi Prasad of the family of the informant coupled with Shiv Bahadur also reached the spot. All the accused persons assaulted the family members of the informant who all sustained injuries. The informant did not intervene due to fear. Shiv Prasad sustained injuries on his head and became unconscious. Some people on the side of the accused also sustained injuries which were caused by the family members and companions of the informant in self-defence, hence, the first information report was lodged.

3. On the basis of the written report, chik report was scribed by Constable Babu Ram who copied the details in the G.D. The Chik report and the G.D. were proved by PW-5 S.I. Hemraj as Exhibits Ka-7 and Ka-8. Investigation was conducted by PW-5 S.I. Hemraj. On that date i.e. 20.05.1987, the investigation of Case Crime No. 124A of 1987 under Sections 147, 323, 308 I.P.C. was entrusted to him. He recorded the statement of Hari Prasad and inspected the spot, prepared the site plan which was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-3. He collected blood stained and ordinary earth from the spot and prepared its memo which was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-4. He also took into possession the blood stained clothes of Shiv Bahadur and Devi Prasad and prepared its memo which was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-5. On 20.05.1987, he recorded the statements of Devi Prasad, Shatrughan and Shiv Bahadur. On 21.05.1987, he recorded the statements of Ram Shankar and injury report was received. After investigation, he submitted charge sheet against the accused persons which was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-6. PW-6 is Dr. R. P. Pandey who examined Shiv Prasad Pandey and found the following injuries on his body:-

1. Lacerated wound with blood clot 3 cm. X 1 cm. X 1 cm. X bone deep. 7 cm. above the left ear, X-ray was advised.

2. Lacerated wound with blood clot ½ cm. X 0.3 cm. X 0.3 cm. on the outer aspect of left thumb.

3. Lacerated wound with blood clot 4 cm. X 1 cm. X bone deep on the head. 7 cm. above the right ear, X-ray was advised.

4. He also examined Ram Sundar Pandey on the same day and found the following injuries on his body:-

1. Swelling caused by injury. 4 cm. X 2 cm. on inner aspect of right ankle.

The injury report were proved As Exhibits Ka-9 and Ka-10 respectively.

5. PW-7 is Dr. K.U. Ahmad, who medically examined Devi Prasad on whose body the following injuries were found:-

1. Lacerated wound 4 cm. X 1 cm. X bone deep, in the right of the front side of the head, kept under observation and advised for X-ray.

6. Further he examined the injuries of Shatrughan Pandey on whose body the following injuries were found:-

1. Reddish contusion, 7 cm. X 1.5 cm., in the front of middle of the right forearm.

2. Reddish contusion, 6 cm. X 0.5 cm., on the outer margin of the 1/3rd upper part of the right forearm.

7. He also examined Shiv Bahadur on whose body the following injuries were found:-

1. Reddish contusion 10 cm. X 1 cm. on the middle of the back.

2. Superficial abrasion 4 cm. X 3 cm. on right scapular region.

3. Superficial abrasion 3 cm. X 3 cm., at 2 cm. from injury no. 2 on inner side.

4. Contusion with swelling 4 cm. X 3 cm. on the back of the right head, at the lower part of small finger. Kept under observation and X-ray was advised.

All the injury report were proved by this witness as Exhibits Ka-11, Ka-12 and Ka-13 respectively.

8. PW-4 Dr. Vijay Kumar Kannaujia has conducted autopsy on the body of the deceased Shiv Prasad on 22.05.1987. He noted the following ante-mortem injuries on the person of the deceased.

1. Lacerated wound 3 cm. X 1 cm. X bone deep on left scalp, 7 cm. above the left ear.

2. Lacerated wound 0.5 cm. X 0.3 cm. X 0.3 cm. on the left thumb on the outer aspect, bone was fractured.

3. Lacerated wound 4 cm. X 1 cm. X bone deep,on right side of scalp, 7 cm. above the right ear, bone of lower part was fractured.

4. Abrasion 6 cm. X 4 cm. on the right side of peluise, 7 cm. below the peluic bone.

9. On internal examination the parietal bone of the skull was found fractured. The membrances of the brain were ruptured. The right chamber of heart was full of blood and left chamber was empty. The deceased died due to shook as a result of ante-mortem injuries.

10. Besides these, witnesses, the prosecution also examined PW-1 Hari Prasad Pandey, the informant who is also an eye witness of the occurrence. He proved the first information report as Exhibit Ka-1. PW-2 is Ram Shankar who is also said to be an injured witness and he is also a witness of the incident and the son of the informant. PW-3 is Mata Deen who is said to be a witness of the incident.

11. Further the prosecution filed 24 documents which were marked by the trial court as Exhibits Ka-15 to Ka-38.

12. After the prosecution evidence was closed, the statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in which they have denied the occurrence. The accused have sated that Ram Shankar abused Bansh Raj and started beating him. When Bansh Raj raised alarm, his family members came who were also beaten by the son of the informant. In defence the family members of Bansh Raj snatched the lathi from the family members of the informant and defended themselves due to which the injured sustained injuries. However, no evidence in defence was adduced.

13. After perusal of all the evidences available on record and hearing the counsel for the parties, the learned trial court has passed the impugned judgment as specified in para one of the judgment.

14. Feeling aggrieved, the accused persons have come up in this present appeal.

15. I have heard Sri R. Murtaza, learned counsel for the appellants, Sri Pawan Kr. Yadav, learned A.G.A. and perused the material available on record.

16. During the pendency of this appeal appellants Jag Mohan and Ram Nihor have died, hence, the appeal in context of appellants Jag Mohan and Ram Nihor stands abated.

17. Counsel for the appellants while castigating the judgment has stated that the trial court has imposed a harsh and excessive sentence on the accused persons. The injuries were caused in exercising right to private defence, hence the appeal is liable to be allowed.

18. Per contra learned A.G.A. has submitted that the findings of the fact recorded by the trial court is based on evidence available on record. He has further contended that there was nothing to falsely implicate the accused and the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

19. As far as the first information report is concerned in cases of prompt first information report, the chances of false implication of the accused are very remote.

20. In 2001 (1) JIC 9143 Allahabad, [Jai Lal (dead) and others vs. State of U.P.], it has been held that if the first information report is prompt, eye-witnesses are named in the first information report and vivid account of incident is given, then it is sufficient for the prosecution.

21. Perusal of the chik report makes it clear that as per the prosecution case, the occurrence took place on 20.05.1987 at 10:00 A.M. whereas the report was lodged on the same day at 12:40 P.M. The police station being 6 kms. Away from the place of occurrence, thus keeping in view the number of injured persons, nature of injuries, there is no delay in lodging the first information report which is prompt.

22. As far as the motive for committing the offence is concerned, it is proved on record that there was a series of litigations between both the parties. Even in the first information report, motive has been assigned. Motive has also been proved by the witnesses, hence the prosecution has been able to establish the motive. Even in the statements of the accused recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., differences between both the parties have been admitted by the accused.

23. Counsel for the appellants has further submitted that the witnesses examined by the prosecution namely PW-1 Hari Prasad and PW-2 Ram Shankar are father and son. They are related and interested witnesses, hence, they cannot be relied upon.

24. As far as related and interested witnesses is concerned, in the case of Dalip Singh and others vs. State of Punjab, (AIR 1953 SC 364), it has been laid down as under by the Hon'ble Apex Court:-

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily a close relation would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalization. Each case must be judged on its own facts."

25. Observations of the Hon'ble Apex Court Masalti and others vs. State of U.P., A.I.R. 1965 SC 202, are worth mentioning:-

"But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how such evidence should be appreciated. Judicial approach has to be cautions in dealing with such evidence, but the plea that such evidence should be rejected because it is partisan cannot be accepted as correct."

26. The above decision has been followed in Guli Chand and others vs. State of Rajasthan, 1974 (3) SCC 698, in which Vadivelu Thevar vs. State of Madras, AIR 1975 SC 614 was also relied upon. The following observations were made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Israr vs. State of U.P., [2005(51) ACC 113] in para-12 of the judgement are also important:-

".... Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyze evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible."

27. The above position has been highlighted again in the case of Galivenkataiah vs. State of A.P., 2008 (60) ACC 370, in which reference has been made to some other cases also.

28. No doubt, PW-1 and PW-2 are father and son but PW-2 being an injured witness, his presence at the place of occurrence is not doubtful and PW-1 Hari Prasad, his presence is also not doubted because his reaching the place of occurrence on hearing the shrieks of his son is not unnatural.

29. PW-1 has categorically stated that all the accused persons assaulted Devi Prasad, Ram Shankar, Shatrughan, Shiv Bahadur and Shiv Prasad. Although, there are minor contradictions in the statements of PW-1 Hari Prasad and PW-2 Ram Shankar but these minor contradictions are natural and do not strike at the root of the case. He was subjected to a lengthy cross-examination in which besides proving motive, he has stated that all the accused were beating his brother by lathi.

The deceased sustained three or four visible lathi injury but he could not state as to which accused caused the fatal blow on the skull. He was fair enough in admitting that from the side of the informant Shiv Bahadur, Shatrughan, Ram Shankar were armed with lathi.

30. PW-2 is Ram Shankar, although in the injury report his name has been mentioned to be Ram Sundar, but as far as the incident is concerned, he has categorically stated that all the accused caused injuries to the deceased and other injured persons but he could not see particularly as to which accused cause the blow on the skull. PW-3 Mata Deen has also stated that the deceased and the injured persons were beaten by the accused persons. Thus, it is proved that the accused persons did cause injuries to the deceased and the injured persons.

31. It has been submitted on behalf of the appellants that there were cross cases and the injuries on the person of the accused have not been satisfactorily explained by the prosecution.

32. In this regard, counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon 2013 (80) ACC page 622, (Mohd. Khalil Chisti vs. State of Rajasthan), in which relying upon the case of Lakshmi Singh and others vs. State of Bihar, (1976) 4 SCC 394, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under :-

"...It is well settled that fouler the crime, higher the proof, and hence in a murder case where one of the accused is proved to have sustained injuries in the course of the same occurrence, the non-explanation of such injuries by the prosecution is a manifest defect in the prosecution case and shows that the origin and genesis of the occurrence had been deliberately suppressed which leads to the irresistible conclusion that the prosecution has not come out with a true version of the occurrence....."

33. It is clear that where the prosecution fails to explain the injuries on the accused, two results follow: (1) that the evidence of the prosecution witness is untrue and (2) that the injuries probabilize the plea taken by the appellants. In a murder case, non-explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of the occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance from which the court can draw the following inferences:

"(1) that the prosecution has suppressed the genesis and the origin of the occurrence and has thus not presented the true version;

(2) that the witnesses who have denied the presence of the injuries on the person of the accused are lying on a most material point and therefore their evidence is unreliable;

(3) that in case there is a defence version which explains the injuries on the person of the accused it is rendered probable so as to throw doubt on the prosecution case."

34. It is further clear that the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries on the person of the accused assumes much greater importance where the evidence consists of interested or inimical witnesses or where the defence gives a version which competes in probability with that of the prosecution one. However, there may be cases where the non- explanation of the injuries by the prosecution may not affect the prosecution case. This principle would apply to cases where the injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, that it outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries.

35. In the above ruling, itself it has been held that if the injuries of the accused are superficial and minor, it out-raises the effect of omission, on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries.

36. In the present case, learned A.G.A. has submitted that the injuries caused to the accused were caused by the informant and his family members in exercising of right of private defence. In the first information report itself it has been mentioned that the informant also caused injuries to the accused. Even crime no. mentioned in the chik report is 124A of 1987, under Sections 147, 323, 308 I.P.C. which was altered vide report no. 20 of 18:20 hrs. On 20.05.1987 into Section 304 I.P.C. This itself is indicative of the fact that earlier a case was lodged by the accused persons which was registered at crime no. 124 of 1987. Although the defence has failed to bring on record anything pertaining to case crime no. 124 of 1987. But since the prosecution has itself come up with a case that during the incident the accused also sustained injuries. The injuries on the body of the accused were simple and superficial.

37. In Puran Singh & Others v. The State of Punjab, (1975) 4 SCC 518 this court observed that in the following circumstances right of private defence can be exercised :-

i. There is no sufficient time for recourse to the public authorities.

ii. There must be a reasonable apprehension of death or grievous hurt to the person or danger to the property concerned.

iii. More harm than necessary should not have been caused.

38. In Bhagwan Swaroop v. State of Madhya Pradesh, (1992) 2 SCC 406 this court had held as under:-

"It is established on the record that Ramswaroop was being given lathi blows by the complainant party and it was at that time that gun-shot was fired by Bhagwan Swaroop to save his father from further blows. A lathi is capable of causing a simple as well as a fatal injury. Whether in fact the injuries actually caused were simple or grievous is of no consequence. It is the scenario of a father being given lathi blows which has to be kept in mind and we are of the view that in such a situation a son could reasonably apprehend danger to the life of his father and his firing a gun-shot at that point of time in defence of his father is justified."

39. The facts of this case are akin to the facts of the instant case. In Kashmiri Lal & Others v. State of Punjab, (1996) 10 SCC 471, this court held that "a person who is unlawfully attacked has every right to counteract and attack upon his assailant and cause such injury as may be necessary to ward off the apprehended danger or threat."

40. Thus, on the basis of evidence on record and taking into the view of statements of Mata Deen PW-2, it has specifically stated that both the parties were hurling lathies on each other. I think It was not a pre planned crime but the incident took place at the spur of the moment.

41. Counsel for the appellant has lastly submitted that the occurrence took place in the year 1987. About 29 years have passed. Since the incident took place. Presently the surviving appellants Bansh Raj is more than 55 years of age, the appellant Hirdai Ram is more than 71 years of age and appellant Brij Lal is more than 61 years of age. At this juncture of age, keeping in view the totality of the circumstances, the appellants should not be sent to jail and the sentences should be reduced.

42. However, the conviction of the appellants is liable to be upheld but the sentence is liable to be reduced from 7 years rigorous imprisonment, under Section 304 part II read with Section 149 I.P.C. to a fine of Rs. 25,000/- each. The further sentence of one year rigorous imprisonment under Section 147 I.P.C. is reduced to a fine of Rs. 1,000/- each.

43. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed.

44. The accused appellants Bansh Raj, Hirdai Ram and Brij Lal are sentenced to fine of Rs. 25,000/- under Section 304 part II read with Section 149 I.P.C. and Rs. 1,000/- under Section 147 I.P.C. which they should deposit within two months from the date of delivery of judgment. In default, they shall undergo rigorous imprisonment for 7 years under Section 304 part II read with Section 149 I.P.C. and 1 year rigorous imprisonment under Section 147 I.P.C. 50% of the fine, deposited, shall be paid to the legal representative of the deceased Shiv Prasad. The time for deposition of fine shall not be extended on any ground whatsoever.

45. Let the copy of this judgment be sent to the trial court concerned for compliance.

Criminal Appeal No.- 526 Of 1996

Satyendra Age 35 Yrs & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
K.N.Misra, Dharmendra Kumar Singh, Manjusha Kapil, Rajeev Verma

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Criminal Appeal–First information report – previous enmity – accused armed with lathi – country-made rifle – gun – fired with intention to kill – beating with lathis – injured eye-witness – medical examination – lacerated wound – firearm pellet injury – falsely implicated – conviction not pressed – confession of the offence – lenient view – sentence harsh and excessive – awarding proper sentence – undue sympathy – public confidence – appropriate punishment – society's cry for justice – nature and gravity of the crime – sentencing system – proportional to the gravity of the offence – custodial sentence reduced – period already undergone – fine – appeal partly allowed – conviction confirmed – sentence reduced.

Challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 30.11.1996 passed by First Additional Sessions Judge, Hardoi in ST No. 242 of 1993 (State Vs. Sunder Lal and others) arising out of Crime No. 189 of 1992 under Sections 307/34, 324/34, 325/34 IPC, Police Station Kasimpur, District Hardoi whereby accused were found guilty and sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment under Section 323/34 IPC and fine of Rs.500/- each with default stipulation. Accused persons, however, were acquitted under Section 307/34 IPC.(Para 1)

Prosecution case in brief is that a written report was lodged by the informant Jaswant on 03.10.1992 stating that his mother had got a sale deed executed in her favour due to this a case was pending under Section 145 Cr.P.C., which was finally decided in favour of the mother of informant. It has been further alleged that the informant had sown crops in the fields. When the crops were ripe, the informant, his brother Laljeet and his nephew Siyaram were harvesting the crops. Due to previous enmity accused persons namely Sunder Lal armed with lathi, Satyendra armed with country-made rifle, Jitendra armed with gun and Guddu armed with Lathi came on spot at 8:30 AM. Satyendra asked his companions to kill the informant, at which Satyendra fired at the informant with intention to kill him. The informant fell down on the spot at which the accused persons came to the injured and started beating them with Lathis. Shailendra and many villagers came to the spot who saved the informant, after which the first information report was lodged.(Para 2)

1.Learned counsel for the appellants has also submitted that appellant No. 1, Satyendra, was detained in jail from 19.10.1992 to 10.12.1992. Appellant No. 2, Jitendra, was detained in jail from 19.10.1992 to 11.12.1992 and appellant No. 3, Guddu, was detained in jail from 29.10.1992 to 10.12.1992. The period of detention of accused appellants has not been disputed by the learned AGA. Thus, in the facts and circumstances of the case, I think the end of justice would be met if the custodial sentence of each accused under Section 323 read with Section 34 IPC is reduced to 15 days simple imprisonment and the custodial sentence of each accused under Section 325/34 IPC is reduced to the period already undergone i.e. 40 days simple imprisonment each coupled with a fine of Rs.5000/- each. In case of default in payment of fine each accused shall undergo simple imprisonment for one month.

2.In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Conviction of the appellants under Section 323/34, 325/34 IPC is confirmed. But the sentence of six months' rigorous imprisonment under Section 323/34 each and three years' rigorous imprisonment and Rs.500/- fine each under Section 325/34 IPC is reduced to one month's simple imprisonment under Section 323/34 IPC and 40 days' simple imprisonment and Rs.5,000/- each under Section 325 read with Section 34 IPC. In event, the fine stipulated above if not paid, each accused shall further undergo imprisonment for one month.

3.The appellants have already undergone the custodial sentence. They shall deposit the fine aforesaid within two months from the date of release. Time for deposit of fine shall not be extended on any ground whatsoever. Let a copy of this judgment be sent to the Court concerned for immediate compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Ranjana Pandya, J.)

1. Challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 30.11.1996 passed by First Additional Sessions Judge, Hardoi in ST No. 242 of 1993 (State Vs. Sunder Lal and others) arising out of Crime No. 189 of 1992 under Sections 307/34, 324/34, 325/34 IPC, Police Station Kasimpur, District Hardoi whereby accused were found guilty and sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment under Section 323/34 IPC and fine of Rs.500/- each with default stipulation. Accused persons, however, were acquitted under Section 307/34 IPC.

2. Prosecution case in brief is that a written report was lodged by the informant Jaswant on 03.10.1992 stating that his mother had got a sale deed executed in her favour due to this a case was pending under Section 145 Cr.P.C., which was finally decided in favour of the mother of informant. It has been further alleged that the informant had sown crops in the fields. When the crops were ripe, the informant, his brother Laljeet and his nephew Siyaram were harvesting the crops. Due to previous enmity accused persons namely Sunder Lal armed with lathi, Satyendra armed with country-made rifle, Jitendra armed with gun and Guddu armed with Lathi came on spot at 8:30 AM. Satyendra asked his companions to kill the informant, at which Satyendra fired at the informant with intention to kill him. The informant fell down on the spot at which the accused persons came to the injured and started beating them with Lathis. Shailendra and many villagers came to the spot who saved the informant, after which the first information report was lodged.

3. On the basis of the aforesaid report chik report was prepared and proved by PW-5, Head Constable Ram Nath Yadav as Ext. Ka-8. This witness further scribed the details of the case in the G.D., copy of which was proved by him as Ext. Ka-9. PW-4 Dr. Bindeshwari Prasad examined injured Siya Ram and found the following injuries on his body:-

(a) Swelling and pain 3 cms x 3.5 cms on base of middle finger on dorsum of left hand.

4. He proved the injury report as Ext. Ka-7. This witness also examined the injuries on the person of Jaswant and proved the injury report as Ext. Ka- 3. The following injuries were found on his person:-

(a) Lacerated wound 3.5 cms. x 0.5 cms x skin deep on top of head 9 cms above and away to left ear's Anna.

(b) Abrasion 2.5 cms. x 1 cms on right of head, 3 cms. above and away to right ear's Anna.

(c) Lacerated wound 2 cms. x 1 cm x muscle deep on post aspect of left upper arm, 4 cms above to the left elbow joint.

(d) Swelling and pain on dorsum of right hand of right arm.

(e) A single firearm pellet injury size 0.3 cms x 0.3 cms on post aspect of left forearm 10 cms below to the left elbow joint. No debug done. No blackening and tattooing.

(f) Complaining of pain all over to both shoulders and back.

5. Lal Jeet was also examined medically by this witness and the injury report was proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-5. On the person of Lal Jeet the following injuries were found:-

(a) Contusion 8 cms x 4 cms on left shoulder, injury is contusion and abrasion minimal.

(c) Lacerated wound 1.5 cm x 0.5 cm x muscle deep, post aspect left forearm, 12.5 cms below to left elbow joint.

(d) Swelling 13 cms x 7 cms on whole dorsum of left hand.

(e) Lacerated wound 2 cms. X 0.5 cms x skin deep on post aspect of right fore-arm, 9 cms below to the right elbow joint.

6. Supplementary reports of injured Jaswant and Laljeet were prepared by this witness which were proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-4 and Ka-6. The prosecution proceeded to examine injured Jaswant, PW-1 who is also an eye-witness. PW-2, Laljeet who is also an injured eye-witness. PW-3 is Shailendra who is also an eye witness.

7. Investigation was entrusted to Narendra Singh Yadav, SI, PW-6 on 3.10.1992. He copied the chik report and GD coupled with injury report of the injured persons in the Case Diary. He recorded the statement of injured Jaswant at Police Station and proceeded to the place of incident. He prepared the site-plan as pointed by the informant which was proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-10. After that he recorded the statement of Sunil Kumar and Jai Singh. On 04.10.1992 he recorded the statement of Anil Kumar and Shailendra. He took the clothes of informant in possession and prepared the recovery memo which was proved by him as Ext. Ka-2.

8. On 13.10.1992 Investigating Officer took into possession the copy of sale deed executed in favour of the mother of informant and received supplementary reports of the injured which were noted in the Case Diary, on the basis of which addition of Section 325 IPC was made. Investigation by this witness ended into a charge sheet which was proved by him as Ext. Ka-11.

9. After close of the prosecution evidence, statements of accused appellants were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., who denied the occurrence and stated that they had been falsely implicated due to rivalry of election of village Pradhan and two documents were produced by the defence.

10. The learned Trial Court after having heard the arguments of the learned counsel for the parties has proceeded to convict the accused appellants as narrated in para - 1 of the judgment.

11. Being aggrieved with the impugned judgment and order passed by the learned Trial Court, the appellants have come up in appeal before this Court.

12. I have heard the learned counsel for accused appellants, learned AGA appearing for the State and perused the record.

13. The learned counsel for the accused appellants has submitted that the impugned judgment and order under appeal has been passed by the learned Trial Court and without appreciating the evidence on record in its correct perspective.

14. Per contra, the learned AGA has submitted that the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence is sustainable in the eyes of law and the appeal lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

15. During the course of hearing the learned counsel for appellants has stated that she does not want to press the appeal as regards the conviction of the appellants under Sections 323/34, 325/34 IPC is concerned, but she wants to make submissions before the Court only on the quantum of sentence. She has vehemently submitted that sentence of six months' rigorous imprisonment under Sections 323/34 and three years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.500/- each under Section 325/34 IPC is very harsh and excessive. It has further been submitted that the occurrence took place about 24 years back. The age of accused persons is advancing, hence a lenient view may be taken in the matter.

16. Not pressing the criminal appeal after the conviction of the accused by the court below is like the confession of the offence by the accused. The Courts generally take lenient view in the matter of awarding sentence to an accused in criminal trial, where he voluntarily confesses his guilt, unless the facts of the case warrants severe sentence.

17. In the case of Sevaka Perumal etc. Vs. State of Tamil Nadu, AIR 1991 SC 1463, the Hon'ble Apex Court in the matter of awarding proper sentence to the accused in a criminal trial has cautioned the Courts as under:

"Undue sympathy to impose inadequate sentence would do more harm to the justice system to undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law and society could not long endure under such serious threats. It is, therefore, the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of the offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed etc."

18. In the case of Dhananjoy Chatterjee Vs. State of W. B., [1994] 2 SCC 220, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed that shockingly large number of criminals go unpunished thereby increasingly, encouraging the criminals and in the ultimate making justice suffer by weakening the system's creditability. The imposition of appropriate punishment is the manner in which the Court responds to the society's cry for justice against the criminal. Justice demands that Courts should impose punishment befitting the crime so that the Courts reflect public abhorrence of the crime. The Court must not only keep in view the rights of the criminal but also the rights of the victim of the crime and the society at large while considering the imposition of appropriate punishment.

19. Similar view has also been expressed in Ravji v. State of Rajasthan, [1996] 2 SCC 175. It has been held in the said case that it is the nature and gravity of the crime but not the criminal, which are germane for consideration of appropriate punishment in a criminal trial. The Court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which the criminal and victim belong. The punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality with which the crime has been perpetrated, the enormity of the crime warranting public abhorrence and it should "respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal". If for extremely heinous crime of murder perpetrated in a very brutal manner without any provocation, most deterrent punishment is not given, the case of deterrent punishment will lose its relevance.

20. This position was reiterated by a three-Judge Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in Ahmed Hussein Vali Mohammed Saiyed and Anr. vs. State of Gujarat, (2009) 7 SCC 254, wherein it was observed as follows:-

"99.....The object of awarding appropriate sentence should be to protect the society and to deter the criminal from achieving the avowed object to law by imposing appropriate sentence. It is expected that the courts would operate the sentencing system so as to impose such sentence, which reflects the conscience of the society and the sentencing process has to be stern where it should be. Any liberal attitude by imposing meager sentences or taking too sympathetic view merely on account of lapse of time in respect of such offences will be result-wise counter productive in the long run and against the interest of society which needs to be cared for and strengthened by string of deterrence inbuilt in the sentencing system.

100. Justice demands that courts should impose punishment befitting the crime so that the courts reflect public abhorrence of the crime.

The court must not only keep in view the rights of the victim of the crime but the society at large also while considering the imposition of appropriate punishment. The court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which both the criminal and the victim belong."

21. In Jameel vs. State of Uttar Pradesh (2010) 12 SCC 532, this Court reiterated the principle by stating that the punishment must be appropriate and proportional to the gravity of the offence committed. Speaking about the concept of sentencing, this Court observed thus: -

"15. In operating the sentencing system, law should adopt the corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. By deft modulation, sentencing process be stern where it should be, and tempered with mercy where it warrants to be. The facts and given circumstances in each case, the nature of the crime, the manner in which it was planned and committed, the motive for commission of the crime, the conduct of the accused, the nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into the area of consideration.

16. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of the offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. The sentencing courts are expected to consider all relevant facts and circumstances bearing on the question of sentence and proceed to impose a sentence commensurate with the gravity of the offence."

22. Learned counsel for the appellants has also submitted that appellant No. 1, Satyendra, was detained in jail from 19.10.1992 to 10.12.1992. Appellant No. 2, Jitendra, was detained in jail from 19.10.1992 to 11.12.1992 and appellant No. 3, Guddu, was detained in jail from 29.10.1992 to 10.12.1992. The period of detention of accused appellants has not been disputed by the learned AGA. Thus, in the facts and circumstances of the case, I think the end of justice would be met if the custodial sentence of each accused under Section 323 read with Section 34 IPC is reduced to 15 days simple imprisonment and the custodial sentence of each accused under Section 325/34 IPC is reduced to the period already undergone i.e. 40 days simple imprisonment each coupled with a fine of Rs.5000/- each. In case of default in payment of fine each accused shall undergo simple imprisonment for one month.

23. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Conviction of the appellants under Section 323/34, 325/34 IPC is confirmed. But the sentence of six months' rigorous imprisonment under Section 323/34 each and three years' rigorous imprisonment and Rs.500/- fine each under Section 325/34 IPC is reduced to one month's simple imprisonment under Section 323/34 IPC and 40 days' simple imprisonment and Rs.5,000/- each under Section 325 read with Section 34 IPC. In event, the fine stipulated above if not paid, each accused shall further undergo imprisonment for one month.

24. The appellants have already undergone the custodial sentence. They shall deposit the fine aforesaid within two months from the date of release. Time for deposit of fine shall not be extended on any ground whatsoever.

25. Let a copy of this judgment be sent to the Court concerned for immediate compliance.

Criminal Appeal No.- 537 Of 1994

Amrit Lal & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Rajeev Saxena, Amit Srivastava, Neeraj Sahu, S.H. Ibrahim

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Criminal Appeal–First information report – delay in lodging – delay not explained – casts a shadow of doubt – dowry death – demand of Rs.10,000/-, watch and ring – cruelty or harassment – soon before her death – not proved – contradictions – prosecution witnesses – not in consonance – unnatural death – matrimonial home – seven years of marriage – burden of proof – Section 106 Evidence Act – initial burden – prosecution failed – conviction cannot be sustained – appeal allowed – acquittal.

Challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 02.12.1994 passed by the Special Judge, Unnao in ST No. 386 of 1991 (State Vs. Amrit Lal and others) under Sections 498-A, 304 B
IPC, Police Station Morawana, District Unnao by which accused Bachchu Lal and Saroj were acquitted for the charges levelled against them. Whereas accused Amrit Lal, Smt. Rajrani and Chilbil were found guilty and convicted for two years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.1,000/- each under Section 498-A IPC and 10 years' rigorous imprisonment each under Section 304-B IPC with default stipulation.(Para 1)

Brief facts of the case are that informant Shiv Kumari lodged a written report on 14.02.1990 stating that her daughter Rakhi was married to Chilbil, son of accused Amrit Lal. She has given sufficient dowry in the marriage. On 11.01.1990 when the deceased came to her maternal house, she told to her parents that she was compelled to bring Rs.10,000/-, failing which she would be murdered. She also told her mother that the demand for one watch and a ring was also made. On 11.02.1990, the girl was taken away by her father-in-law. On 13.02.1990 at 4:00 PM all the in-laws of the deceased closed the door of room, sprinkled kerosene oil on her and done her to death. Husband of the deceased went to Kanpur, met Phool Chand Gupta and requested him to save him. Hence, the report was lodged. On the basis of this written report PW-6, Brij Kishore Bajpai scribed chik report which was proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-2. Further this witness proved the copy of GD as Ext. Ka-3. PW-5, Constable Ram Dularey carried corpse of the deceased for post-mortem. The Investigating Officer was not produced in evidence. However, four witnesses of fact were produced by the prosecution.(Para 2)

1.I am aware that it is the duty of the accused to bring the facts which are exclusively in their knowledge before the Court as to how the deceased died unnatural death in her matrimonial house. Whereas the offence like murder or dowry death is committed in secrecy inside the house, undoubtedly the initial burden to establish the case would be upon the prosecution but the nature and amount of evidence to be led by it to establish the charge cannot be of the same decree as is required in other cases of circumstantial evidence. The burden would be comparative of a lighter character. In view of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give a cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution. Perhaps keeping the above factors in mind, the Legislature very intelligently has provided for presumption of "dowry death" and not "dowry murder" or as is commonly spoken in Hindi as "Dahej Hatya".

2.But in the present case since the prosecution has miserably failed to prove the initial primary burden, hence the absence of cogent explanation about the commission of crime could not have led the Trial Court to draw an inference about her dowry death. As such, in absence of proof of ingredients No. (iii) and (iv), the appellants could not have been convicted under Section 498-A and Section 304-B IPC. Although the evidence of DW-1 Ajay Kumar is of no consequence, but the charges levelled against the accused have not been proved, hence the conviction on all counts cannot be sustained and the appeal is liable to be allowed.

3.In view of the facts and circumstances of the case discussed above, the appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order is set aside. The appellants are acquitted of the charges levelled upon them.

4.The appellants are on bail. Their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharges. However, the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C. shall be complied with. Let a copy of this judgment be sent to the concerned Court.

Case Law discussed:

1.Prem Kanwar v. State of Rajasthan, 2009 (1) JT 197 — para 16
2.Pawan Kumar and others v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309 — para 8

1. Challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 02.12.1994 passed by the Special Judge, Unnao in ST No. 386 of 1991 (State Vs. Amrit Lal and others) under Sections 498-A, 304 B IPC, Police Station Morawana, District Unnao by which accused Bachchu Lal and Saroj were acquitted for the charges levelled against them. Whereas accused Amrit Lal, Smt. Rajrani and Chilbil were found guilty and convicted for two years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.1,000/- each under Section 498-A IPC and 10 years' rigorous imprisonment each under Section 304-B IPC with default stipulation.

2. Brief facts of the case are that informant Shiv Kumari lodged a written report on 14.02.1990 stating that her daughter Rakhi was married to Chilbil, son of accused Amrit Lal. She has given sufficient dowry in the marriage. On 11.01.1990 when the deceased came to her maternal house, she told to her parents that she was compelled to bring Rs.10,000/-, failing which she would be murdered. She also told her mother that the demand for one watch and a ring was also made. On 11.02.1990, the girl was taken away by her father-in-law. On 13.02.1990 at 4:00 PM all the in-laws of the deceased closed the door of room, sprinkled kerosene oil on her and done her to death. Husband of the deceased went to Kanpur, met Phool Chand Gupta and requested him to save him. Hence, the report was lodged. On the basis of this written report PW-6, Brij Kishore Bajpai scribed chik report which was proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-2. Further this witness proved the copy of GD as Ext. Ka-3. PW-5, Constable Ram Dularey carried corpse of the deceased for post-mortem. The Investigating Officer was not produced in evidence. However, four witnesses of fact were produced by the prosecution.

3. PW-1 is Shiv Kumari who proved the written report, which was marked as Ext. Ka-1.

4. PW-2 is Munnu Singh, who is neighbour of the informant. PW-3 is Phool Chand, cousin of the deceased and PW-4 is Rajjan Babu Gupta, brother of the deceased and son of the informant. Since the defence admitted the genuineness of the papers, hence the report of SI was marked as Ext. Ka-5, Ka-6, Ka-7. The inquest report was exhibited as Ka-8. The copy of GD entry relating to the death of deceased made on 13.02.1990 was marked as Ext. Ka-9. The letter by RI was marked as Ext. Ka-10. Photo of corpse was marked as Ext. Ka-11 and the post-mortem report was marked as Ext. Ka-12. After the prosecution evidence was closed, the statement of accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The surviving appellant Chilbil denied the occurrence and stated that at the time of occurrence he had gone to Kanpur to purchase clothes. Accused DW-1 was examined. He stated that the deceased committed suicide. He further stated that surviving appellant Chilbil was not present at the scene of the occurrence.

5. After hearing the arguments advanced by the parties and going through the material available on record, the learned Trial Court convicted and sentenced the accused appellants as narrated in para - 1 of the judgment.

6. Feeling aggrieved with the impugned judgment and order of the learned Trial Court, the convicted accused appellants, namely, Chilbil, Rajrani and Amrit Lal preferred appeal before this Court. Smt. Rajrani and Amrit Lal died during the pendency of the appeal, hence the appeal in their context has abated.

7. I have heard the learned counsel for accused appellants, learned AGA appearing for the State and perused the Trial Court record.

8. The learned counsel for the accused appellants has submitted that the judgment and order under appeal is bad in the eye of law and is, therefore, liable to be set aside.

9. Learned counsel for the accused appellants has further submitted that prosecution has miserably failed to prove the ingredients of Section 498-A IPC and Section 304-B IPC and the learned Trial Court has committed grave illegality in convicting the accused appellants.

10. Per contra, the learned AGA appearing for the State supported the impugned judgment and order under appeal and has submitted that the appeal has no merit and is liable to be set aside.

He has also submitted that the conviction is based on evidence available on record and the appeal merits rejection.

11. Then, the learned counsel for accused appellants has submitted that there is inordinate delay in lodging the FIR, hence the prosecution case becomes doubtful.

12. Perusal of the chik report shows that the occurrence in question has taken place on 13.02.1990 at about 4:00 PM, whereas the report was lodged on the next day at 16:40 hours, the place of occurrence being five kilometers away from the police station.

13. In this regard, the learned AGA appearing for the State has submitted that the mother of the deceased came to her house and when she came to know about the incident, then, she lodged the report, hence the alleged delay in lodging the report has been satisfactorily explained. Thus, the delay in lodging the first information report is not fatal for the prosecution.

14. In the aforesaid backdrop the statements of the prosecution witnesses has to be referred.

15. PW-1 is Shiv Kumari, the informant, who has stated that Phool Chand told her that some mishappening had occurred with her daughter. In cross-examination she has admitted that last rites of the deceased were performed by the accused persons at Ganga Ghat in the presence of her husband and son. Munnu Singh, PW-2, has specifically stated in this regard that at 07:00 PM he had got the news of the incident. The inquest of deceased was prepared in the presence of this witness. Further, he has stated that when he went to the matrimonial house of the deceased, the parents and family members of the deceased also accompanied him. The informant was present with the dead body of the deceased. Phool Chand is cousin of the deceased who has stated that he went to the police station along with the dead body. Even the real brother of the deceased, PW-4 namely Rajjan Babu stated that he was informed by his brother-in-law on 14.02.1990 about the incident. Thus, it is clear that the mother of the deceased had come to know about the incident. Even if she was busy in the last rites of the deceased, which were performed, what prevented her from lodging the report, is not clear from the record. Thus, there is a delay in lodging the FIR, which casts a shadow of doubt on the prosecution case.

16. Before I proceed to evaluate the evidence on record led by the prosecution in support of the charges framed against the accused, it is necessary to examine the law relating to 'dowry death'. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has highlighted all the aspects of law relating to 'dowry demand' and 'dowry death' in recent case of Prem Kanwar Vs. State of Rajasthan- 2009(1) JT 197. Paras 6 to 12 of the reports are as under:-

"6. In order to attract Section 304-B IPC, the following ingredients are to be satisfied:

i) The death of a woman must have been caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise that under normal circumstances

ii) Such death must have been occurred within 7 years of the marriage;

iii) Soon before her death, the woman must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband; and

iv) Such cruelty or harassment must be in connection with the demand of dowry.

Section 304-B and Section 498-A reads as follows:-

"304-B Dowry death- (1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than normal circumstances within Seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death" and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

Explanation- For the purpose of this sub-section, 'dowry' shall have same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).*

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life."

498-A: Husband or relative of husband of a woman subjecting her to cruelty- Whoever, being the husband or the relative of the husband of a woman, subjects such woman to cruelty shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine.

Explanation- For the purpose of this section cruelty means-*

(a) any willful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman; or

(b) harassment of the woman: where harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand.

7. The term "dowry" has been defined in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (in short "dowry Act") as under:-

"Section 2. Definition of 'dowry'- In this Act, "dowry' means any property or valuable security given or agreed to be given either directly or indirectly."

(a) by one party to a marriage to the other party of the marriage; or

(b) by the parents of either party to a marriage or to any other person, to either party to the marriage or to any other person, at or before or any time after the marriage in connection with the marriage of the said parties, but does not include dowry or mehr in the case of person whom the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) applies.

Explanation I- For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that any presents made at the time of a marriage to either party to the marriage in the form of cash, ornaments, clothes or other articles, shall not be deemed to be dowry within the meaning of this section unless they are made as consideration for the marriage of the said parties.*

Explanation II- The expression "valuable security" has the same meaning in Section 30 of the Indian Penal Code(45 of 1861).*

8. Explanation of Section 304-B refers to "dowry" as having the same meaning as in section 2 of the Act', the question "what is the periphery of the dowry as defined therein? The argument is, there has to be an agreement at the time of the marriage in view of the words "agreed to be given" occurring herein, and in the absence of any such evidence it would not constitute to be dowry. It is noticeable, as this definition by amendment includes not only the period before and at the marriage but also the period subsequent to the marriage. This position was highlighted in Pawan Kumar and others vs State of Haryana (1998 (3) SCC 309).

9. The offence alleged against the accused is under Section 304-B IPC which makes "demand of dowry" itself punishable. Demand neither conceives no would conceive of any agreement. If for convicting any offender, agreement for dowry is to be proved; hardly any offenders would come under the clutches of law. When section 304-B refers to "demand of dowry", it refers to the demand of property or valuable security as referred to in the definition of "dowry" under the Act. The argument that there is no demand of dowry, in the present case, has no force. In cases of dowry death and suicides, circumstantial evidence plays an important role and inferences can be drawn on the basis of such evidence that could be either direct on indirect. Is is significant that section 4 of the Act, was also amended by means of Act 63 of 1984, under which it is an offence to demand dowry directly or indirectly from the parents or other relatives or guardian of a bride. The work "agreement" referred to in Section 2 has to be inferred on the facts and circumstances of each case. The interpretation that the accused seek, that conviction can only be if there is agreement for dowry, is misconceived. This would be contrary to the mandate and object of the Act. "Dowry" definition is to be interpreted with the other provisions of the Act including section 3, which refers to giving or taking dowry an Section 4 which deals with a penalty for demanding dowry; under the Act and the IPC. His makes it clear that even demand of dowry on other ingredients being satisfied is punishable. It is not always necessary that there be any agreement for dowry.

10. Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is also relevant for the case at hand. Both Sections 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act were inserted as noted earlier by the dowry Prohibition (Amendment) Act 43 of 1986 with a view to combat the increasing menace of dowry death. Section 113-B as follows:-

"113-B: Presumption as to dowry death- When the question is whether as person has committed the dowry death of a woman and it is shown that soon before her death such woman has been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, the Court shall presume that such persons has caused the dowry death.

Explanation- For the purposes of this section' dowry death" shall have the same meaning as in Section 304-B of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 196)."*

11. The necessity for insertion of the two provisions has been amply analyzed by the Law Commission of India in its 21st Report dated 10th August, 1988 on "Dowry Deaths and Law Reform" Keeping in view the impediment in the per-existing law in securing evidence to prove dowry related death, legislature through it wise to insert a provision relating to presumption of dowry death on proof of certain essentials. It is in this background presumptive Section 113-B in the Evidence Act has been inserted. As per the definition of 'Dowry death; in section 304-B IPC and the wording in the presumptive section 113-B of the Evidence Act, one of the essential ingredients, amongst other, in both the provisions in that the concerned woman must have been "soon before her death" subjected to cruelty or harassment for or in connection with demand of dowry" Presumption under section 113-B is a presumption of law. On proof of the essentials mentioned there in, it becomes obligatory on the Court to raises a presumption that the accused caused the dowry death. The presumption shall be raised only on proof of the following essentials:

(1) The question before the Court must be whether the accused committed the dowry death of a woman (This means that the presumption can be raised only if the accused is being tried for the offence under Section 304-B IPC).

(2) The woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives.

(3) Such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with any demand for dowry.

(4) Such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death.

12. A conjoint of Section 113-B of the Evidence Act and Section 304-B IPC shows that there must be materials to show that soon before the death the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment. Prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within the purview of the 'death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances." The expression 'soon before' is very relevant where Section 113-B if the Evidence Act and Section 304-B IPC are pressed into service. Prosecution is obliged to show that soon before the occurrence there was cruelty or harassment and only in that case presumption operates. Evidence in that regard has to be led by prosecution. 'Soon before' is a relative term and would depend upon the circumstances of each case and no strait-jacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of soon before the occurrence. It would be hazardous to indicate any fixed period, and that brings in the importance of a proximity test both for the proof of an offence of dowry death as well as for raising a presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act. The expression 'soon before her death' used in the substantive Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is present with the idea of proximity test. No definite period has been indicated and the expression 'soon before' is not defined. A reference to expression 'soon before' used in section 114-B Illustration (a) of the Evidence Act is relevant. It is lays down that Court may presume that a man who is in the possession of goods 'soon after' the theft, is either the thief or has received the goods knowing them to be stolen, unless he can account for his possession. The determination of the period which can come within the term 'soon before' is left to be determined by the Courts, depending upon facts and circumstances of each case. Suffice, however, to indicate that the expression 'soon before would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the concerned cruelty or harassment and the death in question. There must be existence of a proximate and live-link between the effects of cruelty based on dowry demand and the concerned death. If alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not be disturb mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, it would be of no consequence."

17. Now, I proceed to consider the four ingredients which are essential to establish a case for the offence punishable under section 304-B IPC.

18. As regards the ingredient No. (i) is concerned, a perusal of the inquest report Ext. Ka-8 and post-mortem report Ext. Ka-12 would show that the whole body of the deceased was burnt and smell of kerosene oil was present on the body of deceased. A perusal of the post-mortem report reveals that the doctor did not find any ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased at the time of autopsy. The prosecution witnesses have also proved that the deceased died unnatural death. Thus, the ingredient No. (i) stands proved. As far as ingredient No. (ii) is concerned, there is no quarrel on the fact that unnatural death of the deceased took place in her matrimonial home within seven years of her marriage. Thus, the ingredient No. (ii) also stands established.

19. As far as ingredients No. 3 and 4 are concerned, a perusal of the lower Court record reveals that initially after investigation, the Investigating Officer submitted a final report against all the accused persons. On 04.06.1990 the Court while rejecting the final reports summoned the accused persons to face trial. PW-1, the mother of the victim, has stated that accused demanded a sum of Rs.10,000/- from her son Rajjan Babu. I would like to revert back to the first information report in which it has been stated that demand of Rs.10,000/-, one watch and a ring was made. The first information report is silent as to who demanded the dowry although in the first information report it has been mentioned that all the five accused burnt the deceased to death. PW-1, Shiv Kumari, has stated that her daughter told her that Rs.10,000/- and a ring should be given, otherwise she would not be sent to her matrimonial home. This witness had to undergo the test of cross-examination in which she has admitted that she gave a statement to the Investigating Officer as follows :

"शादी में दहेज के लेन-देन का कोई झगड़ा नहीं हुआ था। मैंने जो दे दिया था उन लोगों ने वह ले लिया था। कुछ मांग नहीं किया था।" Further she has admitted that she stated to the investigating officer that "मेरी लड़की ने हमलोगों से अपनी सास ससुर जेठ जेठानी या अपने पति के विरूद्ध कोई शिकायत किसी किस्म का नहीं किया था। उसने दहेज मांगने या उत्पीडित करने की कोई शिकायत नहीं किया था।"

20. She stated that this was a correct statement given by her to the Investigating Officer. A twist came in her statement when she said that dowry was demanded two days prior to the death of the deceased when her father-in-law Amrit Lal came to take her back to her matrimonial home. The real brother of the deceased is Rajjan Babu who has stated that on 12.01.1990 he went to the matrimonial house of his sister where Amrit Lal, Raj Rani, Bachchu, his wife and children demanded Rs.10,000/-, a ring and a watch. This is not in consonance with the statement of PW-1 because as per the statement of PW-1, Shiv Kumari, dowry was demanded for the first time when co-accused Amrit Lal took her back to the matrimonial home. Munnu singh is the neighbour of the deceased. Initially, in the first information report his name was written as the scribe which was scored out and scribe was mentioned to be Pancham. Thus, Munnu Singh, PW-2, contradicting Shiv Kumari, PW-1 and Rajjan Babu, PW-4, has stated that when for the first time the deceased came to her parental house, then, she stated that her in-laws demanded a ring and ten thousand of rupees and she also stated that they would murder her if she does not give them ring and cash. Phool Chand, PW-3, has stated nothing about the alleged demand of dowry.

21. The prosecution witnesses have stated that after the incident, the sole surviving appellant Chilbil went to Kailash Chand and asked Kailash Chand to save him. This is not palatable and digestible in as much as the occurrence is said to have taken place on 13.02.1990 at about 4:00 PM where as there is a GD entry on record bearing Ext. No. Ka-9 dated 13.02.1990 entered at 20:10 hours stating that Kailash Chand Gupta gave an information at the police station about suicidal death of the deceased. It cannot be anticipated that Kailash Chand Gupta who is not shown to be interested in anybody, would go to the police station to get the GD entry done in anticipation of lodging the first information report. This is not a case which was tried for the offence punishable under Section 302 IPC. The prosecution has failed to prove that soon before her death, the deceased was subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband and such cruelty or harassment was in connection with demand of dowry. Thus, neither demand for dowry has been proved beyond reasonable doubt nor the dowry death has been proved beyond the reasonable doubt by the prosecution.

22. I am aware that it is the duty of the accused to bring the facts which are exclusively in their knowledge before the Court as to how the deceased died unnatural death in her matrimonial house. Whereas the offence like murder or dowry death is committed in secrecy inside the house, undoubtedly the initial burden to establish the case would be upon the prosecution but the nature and amount of evidence to be led by it to establish the charge cannot be of the same decree as is required in other cases of circumstantial evidence. The burden would be comparative of a lighter character. In view of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give a cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution. Perhaps keeping the above factors in mind, the Legislature very intelligently has provided for presumption of "dowry death" and not "dowry murder" or as is commonly spoken in Hindi as "Dahej Hatya".

23. But in the present case since the prosecution has miserably failed to prove the initial primary burden, hence the absence of cogent explanation about the commission of crime could not have led the Trial Court to draw an inference about her dowry death. As such, in absence of proof of ingredients No. (iii) and (iv), the appellants could not have been convicted under Section 498-A and Section 304-B IPC. Although the evidence of DW-1 Ajay Kumar is of no consequence, but the charges levelled against the accused have not been proved, hence the conviction on all counts cannot be sustained and the appeal is liable to be allowed.

24. In view of the facts and circumstances of the case discussed above, the appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order is set aside. The appellants are acquitted of the charges levelled upon them.

25. The appellants are on bail. Their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharges. However, the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C. shall be complied with.

26. Let a copy of this judgment be sent to the concerned Court.

Criminal Appeal No.- 780 Of 2005

Ram Niwas & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Saurabh Gour, Dileep Kumar, K C Yadav, R.P.Singh, Rajeev Gupta, Sanjay Kumar Pandey, Suresh Gaur, Uma Nath Pandey

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Criminal Law –Criminal Appeal –conviction and sentence – rigorous imprisonment for life – acid – poured on the body – mid night – delay in lodging the FIR – no satisfactory explanation – concocted and fabricated – civil litigation – enmity – motive – interested witnesses – natural witnesses – no source of light – child witness – statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. – names of the accused not disclosed – material improvement – evidence not reliable and trustworthy – false implication – benefit of doubt – judgment and order set aside – appeal allowed – released forthwith.

This appeal is directed against the judgment and order dated 14.2.2005 passed by Session Judge, Basti in ST No. 29/2001 (State Vs. Ram Niwas and 2 others) whereby the appellants have been convicted and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life together with fine of Rs. 2000/- under Section 302/34 IPC, three years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 1000/- each under Section 326/34 IPC and one year rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.500/- each under Section 452/34 IPC. In case of default in the payment of fine, appellants were required to go additional simple imprisonment of six months, learned Session Judge directed that all the sentences shall run concurrently.(Para 2)

3. The facts and circumstances giving rise to this appeal are as under :

(a) In the night of 10/11.10.2000 while Sukaie Prasad (deceased) and his daughter Km. Nisha aged about six years were sleeping in the vberandah of their house in Village Parari Kunwar, District Basti and the complainant Somaie Prsad PW1 was on the roof of the same house after taking his meal, at about about 12 O' clock he saw Ram Niwas and Chhedi Lal of Village Parari Kunwar entering into the verandah of his house where his brother Sukaie Prasad was sleeping and thereafter accused Ram Dutt and Chhedi Lal pulled off the Tahmat by which his brother had covered himself while sleeping and Ram Niwas who was carrying with him a container of acid, poured the same on the body of his brother Sukaie Prasad and his daughter Km. Nisha whereupon they raised an alarm on which PW1 Somaie Prasad, his elder brother Ram Jas and neighbours Sukhram and Moti rushed to the spot along with several other villagers on which the accused started running away from the spot. They were chased by the witnesses but the accused could not be apprehended by them.

Both the injured were taken by the PW1 Somaie Prasad to Faizabad for treatment. The doctor after giving medical aid to Sukaie Prasad referred him for treatment to Lucknow and while PW1 was making arrangement for taking Sukaie Prasad to Lucknow he died in Faizabad outside the hospital premises. The complainant PW1 then took the dead body of the Sukaie Prasad to the police station and handed over the same to the police along with the written report of the occurrence Ex. Ka9.

(b).On the basis of Ex. Ka9 case was registered at crime no.304/2000, under Sections 304, 326 and 452 IPC vide report no. 30 at 16:10 hours on 11.10.2004, chek FIR Ex. Ka10 was prepared and the case was entered into the GD. The carbon copy of the relevant GD entry has been brought on record as Ex. Ka11. Enmity emanating from civil litigation between the parties which was pending for the last four years was stated to be the motive behind the commission of murder of Sokaie Prasad by the appellants.

(c).The Investigating Officer of the case Sri Harish Chandra, PW8, SO Sonhar, District Basti took the cadaver of the deceased in his custody and after holding the inquest he prepared inquest report Ex. Ka12 and sent the dead body of Sukaie Prasad for post mortem along with relevant papers, namely letters addressed to CMO and RI, photo nash and sample of seal etc. The Investigating Officer PW8 prepared the site plan of the place of occurrence which is Ex. Ka23 and collected the prescriptions relating to the treatment of deceased Sukaie Prasad from Faizabad Hospital where he was admitted for treatment immediately after the occurrence which have been brought on record as Ex. Ka13, Ka Ex. Ka18, Ex. K20 and Ex. Ka21 and his injury report Ex. Ka15. The Investigating Officer collected the prescription of Km. Nisha from District Hospital, Faizabad which is Ex. Ka19. The Investigating Officer also took into his possession the burnt and semi burnt clothes of the deceased and the injured person and prepared recovery memo Ex. Ka25. After completing the investigation, he submitted charge sheet against all the accused under Sections 302/34 IPC, 326/34 and 452/34 IPC before the CJM, Basti.

(d).Since the offence under Section 302 IPC mentioned in the charge sheet against the appellants was triable exclusively by the Court of Session, he committed the case for the trial of the accused to Session Court where it was registered as ST No. 29/2001 (State Vs. Ram Niwas and 2 others).

(e).Learned Session Judge, Basti framed charge against the appellants under Section 302/34, 326/34 and 452/34 IPC. The accused denied the charges framed against them and claimed trial.

(f).The prosecution in order to prove its case againstthe accused examined as many as eight witnesses, of whom complainant Somaie Prasad PW1 injured witness Km. Nisha PW2 are witnesses of fact while the remaining witnesses PW3 Keshav Prasad, PW4 K.M. Gupta, PW5 Dr. S.P. Rai PW6 Dr. Ramesh Chandra, PW7 Dr. R. Dwivedi and PW8 Harish Chandra formal witnesses. The documentary evidence adduced by the prosecution has been referred to in the impugned judgment and the same need not be reproduced again. (g) All the three accused in their statements recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. denied the prosecution case and alleged false implication due to civil dispute between the parties. The defence examined Sukhram and Moti as DW1 and DW2.(Para 3)

Held :(Para 12-13)

1.In the present case the incident had taken place at mid night inside the verandah of the house of the deceased where he was sleeping with his daughter and his brother Somaie Prasad was on the roof of his house. Hence the only natural witness who could be present to see the assault were the persons present in the house. At that time no outsider can be expected to have come because attack was sudden. Moreover a close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be regarded as an interested witness unless he had some animus with the accused. In the present case considering the previous enmity between the complainant and the appellants between whom civil litigation was pending is admitted to PW1. Thus it cannot be said that PW1

had neither any animus with the accused nor he had direct interest in seeing the appellants who were litigating with him and his family members before the Civil Court are convicted. Moreover his presence at the time of the incident does not appear to be natural. Even if he was present at the time of the incident in the house of the deceased the occurrence which had taken place in the verandah of the house could not have been witnessed by him from it's roof. The aforesaid fact stands corroborated from the site plan of the place of occurrence Ex. Ka11. For ascertaining the material fact whether PW1 Somaie Prasad was present in the house at the time of the incident, we consider it proper to analyse the evidence of PW2 Km. Nisha. PW2 has admitted in her evidence that there was no source of light available at the time of the incident. PW2 however in her examination in Chief stated that she had recognized the accused as appellants in the moon light. PW2 on page 31 of the paper book in her crossexamination she deposed that PW1 Somale Chacha has got a fertilizer shop at Bharatiya crossing and he also performs worship on Krishna Janamashthami by installing statue of Lord Krishna on the said crossing. On the date of the incident worship of Lord Krishna was organized at Bhararіya crossing and her elder sister etc., had gone to participate in the worship and rest of the family members had stayed back. She then hastened to add that Shiv Shankar and Ram Jas(bade dada) were also in the house along with PW1 and her father w hile rest of her family members had gone to see the fair. She further deposed on the same page that Shiv Shankar and Ram Jas had taken her and her father after the occurrence for treatment to Faizabad. Somaie chacha PW1 had also reached at Faizabad Hospital.

2.The facts stated by PW2 in her cross-examination clearly indicate that although Somaie Pal was not present in the deceased's house at the time of the incident and was performing some pooja at the Bhararіya crossing where he had his own fertilizer shop and upon coming to know about the incident he had rushed to the District Hospital Faizabad, where PW2 and her father had been taken by Shiv Shankar and Ram Jas for treatment. Thus the Claim of PW1 regarding his presence at the place of the incident at the time of occurrence and his having taken PW2 and her injured father Sokaie Prasad to the hospital stands falsified from the evidence of PW2 and hence no reliance can be placed on his evidence. Now we are left the evidence of PW2 Km. Nisha alone who had received acid burn injuries in the incident and whose presence at the place of incident cannot be doubted. Although she is a child witness but she was found by the trial Court competent to depose and hence her evidence can be relied on as basis of conviction provided her evidence is found to be reliable and there is no likelihood of her being tutored. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the appellants that the statement of PW2 cannot be relied upon for the purpose of convicting the appellants because PW2 had failed to nominate the appellants as accused before the Investigating Officer in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., and her act of nominating the appellants as the persons who had committed the offence for the first time in her evidence recorded before the trial Court was clearly a material improvement made by her in her evidence tendered before the trial Court and also on the ground that it was not possible for her to have recognized the accused as there was no source of light available at place of occurrence at the time of the incident. It is true that PW2 did not disclose the names of the persons who had committed the offence to the Investigating Officer when her statement was recorded by him under Section 161 Cr.P.C., however when she was confronted with her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., in her cross-examination she deposed that she had disclosed the names of all the three accused to Daroga Ji and no one had informed her that Daroga Ji had not mentioned the names of the accused in her statement. The suggestion given by the defence cousel to her that she was naming the appellants as accused on being instructed to do was denied by her and she stated that all the three accused were known to her since before the incident and she had nominated them as accused not on account of any tutoring or prompting. The Investigating Officer of this case PW8 Harish Chandra however categorically stated in his cross-examination on page 50 of the paper book that PW2 Km. Nisha had not disclosed to him the names of the accused in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. We do not find any reason to disbelieve the statement of PW8 Harish Chandra on the aforesaid point. More so when he had mentioned the names of the appellants as accused in the statement of PW1 recorded by him under Section 161 Cr.P.C. There is no suggestion on behalf of the prosecution that the Investigating Officer was either biased or had not investigated the matter fairly. Thus we do not find any reason to accept the statement made by PW2 in her cross examination that although she had disclosed the names of the appellants as accused to the Investigating Officer he did not mention the same in her statement.

While examining the issue whether evidence of a witness is liable to be rejected merely on account of the fact that accused was not named in the statement made before the police under Section 161 Cr.P.C., the Apex Court in the case of Ashok Debbarma@Achak Debbarma(supra) has observed as hereunder:

"the mere fact that the appellant was not named in the statement made before the police under Section 161 Cr.P.C., and due to this omission, the evidence of PW10 and PW13 tendered in the Court is unreliable, cannot be sustained. Statements made to the police during investigation were not substantive piece of evidence and the statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., can be used only for the purpose of contradiction and not for corroboration. In our view, if the evidence tendered by the witness in the witness box is creditworthy and reliable, that evidence cannot be rejected merely because a particular statement made by the witness before the Court does not find a place in the statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.PC. The police officer recorded statements of witnesses in an incident where 15 persons lost their lives, 23 houses were set ablaze and large number of persons were injured. PW10 lost his real brother and PW13 lost his daughter as well as his wife and in such a time of grief, they would not be in a normal state of mind to recollect who were all the miscreants and their names. The witnesses may be knowing the persons by face, not their names. Therefore, the mere fact that they had not named the accused persons in Section 161 statement, at that time,that would not be a reason for discarding the oral evidence if their evidence is found to be reliable and creditworthy.

The legal proposition enunciated by the Apex Court in the case of Ashok Debbarma@Achak Debbarma(supra) that "mere fact that accused is not named in the statement made before the police under Section 161 Cr.P.C., will not render the evidence of such witness unreliable provided his evidence is found to be reliable and creditworthy", cannot be disputed but whether under the facts and circumstances of the present case can the evidence of PW2 be termed as unblemished. It is proved from the evidence of PW1 that there was enemity between the complainant and his family members and the appellants arising out a land dispute with regard to which the parties were litigating before the Civil and Revenue Courts and the possibility of the PW1 falsely implicating the appellants in the present case with the object of gaining an upper hand in the civil litigation and as such his having a direct interest in seeing that the appellants are convicted cannot be ruled out. The inordinate delay in lodging the FIR which the prosecution has failed to explain satisfactorily is another circumstance which gives rise to an inference that the prosecution case as spelt out in the FIR was concocted after due deliberations with the object of falsely implicating the appellants. The claim of PW1, as we have already noted, of his being the eye witness of the occurrence stood falsified from the evidence of PW2 itself and hence no reliance can be placed on the FIR version which is the brain child of PW1 and as far as PW2 is concerned there is no dispute about the fact that she had failed to take the names of the appellants as the person who had assaulted her and her father in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. This fact was corroborated by PW8 Harish Chandra, Investigating Offcer of this case and his cross-examination and in the absense of source of any light at the place of the incident at the time of the occurrence and the facts deposed by her in her evidence recorded before trial Court to the effect that before the occurrences she was sleeping , it was not possible for her to have either seen the appellants entering into varandah and pouring acid on her and her father as she would have woken up only after few drops of acid had fallen on her. In the background of the aforesaid facts the possibility of the statement made by PW2 that the offence of pouring acid on her and her father was committed by the appellants, for the first time in her evidence tendered before the trial Court being tutored cannot be ruled out. The FIR was lodged by PW1 nominating the appellants with whom he had animosity as accused whose testimony does not inspire any confidence. PW2 did not disclose the names of the appellants as accused to the Investigating Officer apparently because she had not been able to recognize the assailants due to darkness. The possibility of PW2 being tutored by PW1, who was in a position to dominate and influence her, being her real uncle, to name the appellants as accused when she came to give her evidence before the trial Court cannot be ruuled out. In view of the above, we do not find the evidence of PW2 reliable and trustworthy.

Thus in view of the foregoing discussion, we are unable to uphold the judgment and order dated 14.2.2005 passed by Session Judge, Basti convicting and sentencing the appellants, under Sections 302/34, 326/34 and 452/34 IPC. This appeal accordingly succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgment and order is hereby set aside. The appellants are in jail. They shall be released forthwith from the jail unless they are wanted in any other case.

However, keeping in view the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C., appellants are directed to forthwith furnish a personal bond in the sum of Rs. One lakh and two reliable sureties in the like amount before the trial Court, (which shall be effective for a period of six months) to the effect that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against the Instant Judgment or for grant of leave, the appellants on receipt of notice thereof shall appear berfore the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

2.Ashok Debbarma @ Achak Debbarma v. State of Tripura, (2014) 4 SCC 747 — para 13

(Delivered by Hon'ble Bala Krishna Narayana, J.)

1. Heard Sri V.K. Sharma Advocate assisted by Sri K.C. Yadav, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Saghir Ahmad and J.K. Upadhyay, learned AGAs in opposition.

2. This appeal is directed against the judgment and order dated 14.2.2005 passed by Session Judge, Basti in ST No. 29/2001 (State Vs. Ram Niwas and 2 others) whereby the appellants have been convicted and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life together with fine of Rs. 2000/- under Section 302/34 IPC, three years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 1000/- each under Section 326/34 IPC and one year rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.500/- each under Section 452/34 IPC. In case of default in the payment of fine, appellants were required to go additional simple imprisonment of six months, learned Session Judge directed that all the sentences shall run concurrently.

3. The facts and circumstances giving rise to this appeal are as under :

(a) In the night of 10/11.10.2000 while Sukaie Prasad (deceased) and his daughter Km. Nisha aged about six years were sleeping in the vberandah of their house in Village Parari Kunwar, District Basti and the complainant Somaie Prsad PW1 was on the roof of the same house after taking his meal, at about about 12 O' clock he saw Ram Niwas and Chhedi Lal of Village Parari Kunwar entering into the verandah of his house where his brother Sukaie Prasad was sleeping and thereafter accused Ram Dutt and Chhedi Lal pulled off the Tahmat by which his brother had covered himself while sleeping and Ram Niwas who was carrying with him a container of acid, poured the same on the body of his brother Sukaie Prasad and his daughter Km. Nisha whereupon they raised an alarm on which PW1 Somaie Prasad, his elder brother Ram Jas and neighbours Sukhram and Moti rushed to the spot along with several other villagers on which the accused started running away from the spot. They were chased by the witnesses but the accused could not be apprehended by them. Both the injured were taken by the PW1 Somaie Prasad to Faizabad for treatment. The doctor after giving medical aid to Sukaie Prasad referred him for treatment to Lucknow and while PW1 was making arrangement for taking Sukaie Prasad to Lucknow he died in Faizabad outside the hospital premises. The complainant PW1 then took the dead body of the Sukaie Prasad to the police station and handed over the same to the police along with the written report of the occurrence Ex. Ka9.

(b) On the basis of Ex. Ka9 case was registered at crime no. 304/2000, under Sections 304, 326 and 452 IPC vide report no. 30 at 16:10 hours on 11.10.2004, chek FIR Ex. Ka10 was prepared and the case was entered into the GD. The carbon copy of the relevant GD entry has been brought on record as Ex. Ka11. Enmity emanating from civil litigation between the parties which was pending for the last four years was stated to be the motive behind the commission of murder of Sokaie Prasad by the appellants.

(c) The Investigating Officer of the case Sri Harish Chandra, PW8, SO Sonhar, District Basti took the cadaver of the deceased in his custody and after holding the inquest he prepared inquest report Ex. Ka12 and sent the dead body of Sukaie Prasad for post mortem along with relevant papers, namely letters addressed to CMO and RI, photo nash and sample of seal etc. The Investigating Officer PW8 prepared the site plan of the place of occurrence which is Ex. Ka23 and collected the prescriptions relating to the treatment of deceased Sukaie Prasad from Faizabad Hospital where he was admitted for treatment immediately after the occurrence which have been brought on record as Ex. Ka13, Ka Ex. Ka18, Ex. K20 and Ex. Ka21 and his injury report Ex. Ka15. The Investigating Officer collected the prescription of Km. Nisha from District Hospital, Faizabad which is Ex. Ka19. The Investigating Officer also took into his possession the burnt and semi burnt clothes of the deceased and the injured person and prepared recovery memo Ex. Ka25. After completing the investigation, he submitted charge sheet against all the accused under Sections 302/34 IPC, 326/34 and 452/34 IPC before the CJM, Basti.

(d) Since the offence under Section 302 IPC mentioned in the charge sheet against the appellants was triable exclusively by the Court of Session, he committed the case for the trial of the accused to Session Court where it was registered as ST No. 29/2001 (State Vs. Ram Niwas and 2 others).

(e) Learned Session Judge, Basti framed charge against the appellants under Section 302/34, 326/34 and 452/34 IPC. The accused denied the charges framed against them and claimed trial.

(f) The prosecution in order to prove its case against the accused examined as many as eight witnesses, of whom complainant Somaie Prasad PW1 injured witness Km. Nisha PW2 are witnesses of fact while the remaining witnesses PW3 Keshav Prasad, PW4 K.M. Gupta, PW5 Dr. S.P. Rai PW6 Dr. Ramesh Chandra, PW7 Dr. R. Dwivedi and PW8 Harish Chandra formal witnesses. The documentary evidence adduced by the prosecution has been referred to in the impugned judgment and the same need not be reproduced again.

(g) All the three accused in their statements recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. denied the prosecution case and alleged false implication due to civil dispute between the parties. The defence examined Sukhram and Moti as DW1 and DW2.

4. The learned Session Judge, Basti after considering the submissions advanced before him by the learned counsel for the parties and scrutinizing the evidence on record, both oral as well as documentary, convicted the appellants and awarded aforesaid sentences to them.

5. Sri VK Sharma, learned counsel for the appellants submitted that the incident having been taken place at mid night and admittedly there being no source of any light at the place of occurrence and lodging of the FIR after an inordinate and unexplained delay of sixteen hours and ten minutes leads to only one inference that the prosecution case as spelt out in the FIR was concocted and fabricated by the prosecution after due deliberations and consultation with the object of falsely implicating the appellants in this case due to previous enmity between the parties which emanated from a civil dispute between them. He also submitted that of the two eye witnesses examined by the prosecution for proving the complicity of the appellants in the commission of the crime in question, the presence of PW1 complainant Somaie Prasad at the place of incident is highly doubtful from the perusal of evidence of the PW2 itself. Even if it assumed for the sake of arguments that PW1 was present in the house of the deceased, it was impossible for him either to have witnessed the accused entering into the verandah where deceased was sleeping with his daughter or their pouring acid on them, from the place on the roof of the house where he according to his own evidence was present at the time of the incident. Learned counsel for the appellants has referred to the site plan of the incident as Ex. Ka23 in support of his aforesaid argument.

6. He next submitted that as far as the evidence of PW2 Km. Nisha on the point of her having seen and recognized the accused who had entered into the verandah where she was sleeping with her father and had after removing the tahmat of the deceased with which he had covered himself while was sleeping poured acid on them, as the appellants is concerned, the same amounts to a material improvement made by her in her statement recorded before the trial Court as she had not disclosed the names of the appleants as accused in her statement recorded under section 161 Cr.P.C. to the investigating Officer and this fact has been admitted by the investigating Officer also in his cross-examination on page 51 of the paper book and hence the evidence of PW2 is also liable to be excluded from consideration for the purpose of convicting the appellants. He next submitted that there was absolutely no occasion for appellants nos. 1 and 2 Ram Niwas and Chhedi Lal who are the real brothers and residents of village Deorahiya which is at a distance of about 10 kms from the place of the incident to be present at the place of incident at the time of the occurrence and they have being implicated by the complainant in the present case on the basis of absolutely false and concocted allegations with the object of gaining an upper hand in the civil litigation which is pending between the appellant nos. 1 and 2 and the complainant's family pertaining to land. He also submitted that although according to the FIR version itself, upon hearing the noise raised by the victims large number of villagers including the neighbours of the deceased, Sukhram and Moti had arrived at the place of incident and seen the accused running away from the place of incident but the prosecution failed to produce even a single independent witnesses and produced PW1 and PW2 alone to prove the prosecution case, who are the real brother and daughter of the deceased hence highly interested and partisan and no reliance can be placed on their evidence for the purpose of upholding the appellants' conviction. He lastly submitted that such being the state of evidence, the recorded conviction of the appellants and the sentences awarded to them by the trial Court cannot be sustained and are liable to be set aside.

7. Per Contra Sri Sageer Ahmad, learned AGA submitted that the delay of about sixteen hours and ten minutes in lodging the FIR has been satisfactorily explained by PW1 in the FIR as well as in his testimony recorded before the trial Court. Both the prosecution witnesses have fully corroborated the prosecution Case on all material aspects. The failure of the investigating Officer to mention the names of the appellants as accused in the statement of PW2 recorded by him under Section 161 Cr.P.C., would not render her testimony unreliable or untrustworthy in view of the fact that she in her cross-examination on page 32 of the paper book has categorically deposed that she had disclosed the names of all the three accused to the Investigating Officer but no one had informed her that their names were not mentioned by him in her statement. Sri Sageer Ahmad next submitted if even for the sake of arguments it is presumed that PW1 could not have seen the incident, considering the place on the roof of the house where he claimed himself to be present at the time of the Occurrence but his evidence on the point his having seen the accused retreating from the place of the incident cannot be doubted. Sri Sageer Ahmad went a step further and submitted that even if the contention of learned counsel for the appellants that PW1 was not present at all at the time of occurrence is accepted, even then there is unimpeachable and sterling evidence of PW1, who had received injury in the occurrence and whose presence at the place of occurrence cannot be doubted at all, incriminating the appellants and providing their complicity in the commission of the crime in question. The finding of guilt recorded by learned Session Judge in the impugned judgment against the appellants is based on cogent and reliable evidence and the sentences awarded to them are supported by relevant considerations. The impugned judgment and order do not suffer from any illegality or infirmity warranting any interference by the Court.

8. We have very carefully heard learned counsel for the parties and scanned the entire lower Court record.

9.FIR: As per the prosecution story the incident had taken place in the mid night of 10/11/10.2000. The written report of the incident Ex. Ka9 was sribed by one Ram Dheeraj on the dictation of Somale Prasad and given at police station Parashuram Pur, District Basti on 11.10.2000 at about 16:10 hours. It has been deposed by PW1 in his examination in Chief recorded before the trial Court that since the condition of his brother and daughter Km. Nisha had become very serious he had taken both of them for treatment to Faizabad Hospital and had got them admitted there. The doctor had adviced him to take his brother for treatment to Lucknow but before he could be transported to Lucknow he died in Faizabad Hospital. Thereafter he had taken the dead body of his brother to the police station Parashuram Pur and had got the report of the incident scribed by his brother Ram Dheeraj on the paper purchased by him from a shop in Parasnath Bazar. The written report was given by him at police station Parashuram Pur on the basis of which case was registered against the accused. On Page 25 of the paper book PW1 in his cross-examination he has deposed that the doctors had referred his brother for treatment to Lucknow between 8am-9am but before he could arrange necessary transport for taking his brother to Lucknow he died at about 12 noon.

He denied the suggestion given to him by the defence that the doctors had adviced him to take his brother to Lucknow between 4am-5am and at that time his brother was fully consious and was loudly proclaiming that the complainant and his brother Shiv Shanker had poured acid on him.

Although there is no material on record indicating the distance between village Parashuram Pur and District Hospital Faizabad but on the persual of the testimony of PW1 it transpires that the explanation for delay in lodging the FIR furnished by him is absolutely vague and according to his own showing the doctor had advised him between 8am-9am to take his brother to Lucknow. There is no satisfactory explanation for the delay of about 8 hours on the part of the complainant in lodging the FIR of the incident after the doctor who had treated his brother at District Hospital Faizabad had referred him for further treatment to Lucknow between 8am-9am on 11.10.2000. The vague explanation furnished by PW1 in his evidence for the delay in lodging the FIR that while he was making arrangements for transporting his brother to Lucknow he died at about 12 noon, does not appear to be convincing and moreover there is no whisper of any explanation for his not lodging the FIR thereafter till 4:10 PM. There is further no explanation for the failure of the other two brothers of the deceased, Shiv Shanker and Ram Jas who according to the prosecution case were also present at the place of incident and had accompanied both the injured to the hospital, for having not intimated the police about the incident promptly. Under the facts and circumstances of the present case, we find that the prosecution has not been able to come up with any satisfactorily explanation for the inordinate delay in lodging the FIR. Delay in lodging the FIR has deprived the FIR of the advantage of spontaneity and the possibility of the prosecution utilizing the intervening period for concocting and embellishing the prosecution case cannot be ruled out. It is true that in the normal course of human conduct where in an incident two members of a family have received serious acid burn injuries the first priority of the family members would be to secure best medical treatment for them so that their lives are saved rather than immediately rushing to the police station for lodging the FIR. Even if some latitude is given to the prosecution considering the fact that two persons of the complainant's family had received burn injuries in the incident, naturally his first priority was to provide medical treatment to them promptly, even in that case delay of almost 8 hours from the time at which the doctors at Faizabad had referred the brother of the deceased for treatment to Lucknow on the part of the complainant and his other brothers in lodging the FIR is not justified.

As far as the issue of motive in this case is concerned, there is documentary evidence on record showing that civil litigation was pending between complainant's family and the appellants arising from a land dispute before the Civil Court for the last four years preceding the date of the incident. PW1 claimed that on account of the aforesaid civil litigation the appellants were inimical towards him and his family members and with the object of gaining an upper hand in the civil litigation the appellants had committed the murder of his brother. For proving the existence of civil litigation between the parties the prosecution has brought on record certified copy of the plaint of the suit no. 1025/1992 filed by Ram Dutt, appellant no. 3 against the brother of the complainant for cancellation of the sale deed, written statement filed by the complainant and his brother in the aforesaid suit Ex. Ka5 and the judgment passed in suit no. 1025/1992 by which the aforesaid suit was dismissed, the sale deed executed by Sumarin in favour of the complainant and his brother, copy of the sale deed executed by Sumarin in favour of the accused, certified copy of the mutation application, certified copy of the objection in mutation application, order of dismissal of the mutation application and written report submitted in the mutation case. All the aforesaid documents were proved by PW1 as Ex. Ka3, Ex. Ka4, Ex. Ka5, Ex. Ka6. Ex.Ka7, Ex. Ka8, and Ex. Ka9. Thus as far as the motive in this case is concerned it can safely be presumed that both the sides were inmical towards each other due to the civil litigation between them and had motive to harm each other either by eliminating the opponents or falsly implicating them in a criminal case, as enimity is a double edged sword. However motive looses significance in a case of direct evidence and if the prosecution is able to prove it's case by eye witnesses account of which is trustworthy, unimpeachable, reliable and inspires confidence, the failure of the prosecution to prove motive will not render the prosecution case liable to be disbelieved.

As far as the issue relating to the time at and the manner in which the assault was made are concerned, the same have not been challanged by learned counsel for the appellants. The only issue raised by him is that although the offence was committed by someone else the appellants have been falsly implicated in this case.

The next issue which arises for our consideration is with regard to the credibility of the prosecution witnesses. Learned counsel for the appellants has castigated the reliability of the two eye witnesses produced by the prosecution at the trial on the ground that both are highly interested and partisan witnesses being the real brother and the daughter of the deceased, PW2 further being a child witness vulnerable to tutoring and hence no reliance can be placed on their testimony for the purpose of convicting the appellants. Learned counsel for the appellants has also argued that the incident having taken place in the darkness of night and there being no source of any light at or near the place of the incident it was not possible either for the PW1 or PW2 to have recognized the assailants. The fact that PW2 had not been able to identify the perpetrators of the crime is evident from the fact she had failed to disclose the names of the appellants as the persons who had poured acid on her and her father in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., and had nominated the appellants as accused for the first time in her statement recorded during the trial. As regards PW1, learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that from the persual of the evidence of PW2 itself, it transpires that PW1 was not present at place of the incident and even if he was present in the house of the deceased, considering the fact that he was on the roof of the house in the verandah whereof the occurrence had taken place, it was not possible for him to have witnessed the same.

Sri Sageer Ahmad, learned AGA submitted that mere fact that the appellants were not named in the statement made by PW2 before the police officer under Section 161 Cr.P.C., the evidence of PW2 tendered in the Court cannot be termed as unreliable. In support of his aforessaid submission he has placed reliance upon the paragraph 22 of the Apex Court Judgmenet reported in (2014) 4 Supreme Court Cases 747 (Ashok Debbarma @ Achak Debbarma.

10. Before proceeding to test the veracity of the facts stated by the two eye-witness and their credibility on the touch stone of the submissions made by the learned counsel for the appellants, we consider it proper to examine the law on the issue of interested witnesses:

In Mst. Dalbir Kaur v. State of Punjab 1976 Cr LJ 418(SC) following observations were made:

(i) Interested witness:- Relatives who are natural witnesses are not interested witnesses and their testimony can be relied upon.

(i)The term 'interested' postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing that the accused is somehow or the other is convicted either because he had some animus with the accused or the some other reason. In the reported case the incident took place at mid night inside the house, the only natural witnesses who could be present to see the assault were the persons present in the house at that time. No outsider can be expected to have come at that time because the attack was sudden. Moreover a close relative who is very natural witness cannot be regarded as an interested witness.

Thus what follows from the reading of the aforesaid authorities is that the evidence of a relative cannot be discarded merely on account of his being interested or related with the deceased.

11. As regards interested witness the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Mst. Dalbir Kaur v. State of Punjab 1976 Cr. LJ 418 (SC) has held that relatives who are the natural witnesses are not interested witnesses and their testimony can be relied upon by the Apex Court and the same judgment observed that the term interested "postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing that the accused person is somehow or the other is convicted either because he had some animus with the accused or for some other reason".

12. In the present case the incident had taken place at mid night inside the verandah of the house of the deceased where he was sleeping with his daughter and his brother Somaie Prasad was on the roof of his house. Hence the only natural witness who could be present to see the assault were the persons present in the house. At that time no outsider can be expected to have come because attack was sudden. Moreover a close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be regarded as an interested witness unless he had some animus with the accused. In the present case considering the previous enmity between the complainant and the appellants between whom civil litigation was pending is admitted to PW1. Thus it cannot be said that PW1 had neither any animus with the accused nor he had direct interest in seeing the appellants who were litigating with him and his family members before the Civil Court are convicted. Moreover his presence at the time of the incident does not appear to be natural. Even if he was present at the time of the incident in the house of the deceased the occurrence which had taken place in the verandah of the house could not have been witnessed by him from it's roof. The aforesaid fact stands corroborated from the site plan of the place of occurrence Ex. Ka11. For ascertaining the material fact whether PW1 Somaie Prasad was present in the house at the time of the incident, we consider it proper to analyse the evidence of PW2 Km. Nisha. PW2 has admitted in her evidence that there was no source of light available at the time of the incident. PW2 however in her examination in Chief stated that she had recognized the accused as appellants in the moon light. PW2 on page 31 of the paper book in her cross-examination she deposed that PW1 Somale Chacha has got a fertilizer shop at Bharatiya crossing and he also performs worship on Krishna Janamashthami by installing statue of Lord Krishna on the said crossing. On the date of the incident worship of Lord Krishna was organized at Bharariya crossing and her elder sister etc., had gone to participate in the worship and rest of the family members had stayed back. She then hastened to add that Shiv Shankar and Ram Jas(bade dada) were also in the house along with PW1 and her father while rest of her family members had gone to see the fair. She further deposed on the same page that Shiv Shankar and Ram Jas had taken her and her father after the occurrence for treatment to Faizabad. Somaie chacha PW1 had also reached at Faizabad Hospital.

13. The facts stated by PW2 in her cross-examination clearly indicate that although Somaie Pal was not present in the deceased's house at the time of the incident and was performing some pooja at the Bharariya crossing where he had his own fertilizer shop and upon coming to know about the incident he had rushed to the District Hospital Faizabad, where PW2 and her father had been taken by Shiv Shankar and Ram Jas for treatment. Thus the Claim of PW1 regarding his presence at the place of the incident at the time of occurrence and his having taken PW2 and her injured father Sokaie Prasad to the hospital stands falsified from the evidence of PW2 and hence no reliance can be placed on his evidence. Now we are left the evidence of PW2 Km. Nisha alone who had received acid burn injuries in the incident and whose presence at the place of incident cannot be doubted. Although she is a child witness but she was found by the trial Court competent to depose and hence her evidence can be relied on as basis of conviction provided her evidence is found to be reliable and there is no likelihood of her being tutored. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the appellants that the statement of PW2 cannot be relied upon for the purpose of convicting the appellants because PW2 had failed to nominate the appellants as accused before the Investigating Officer in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., and her act of nominating the appellants as the persons who had committed the offence for the first time in her evidence recorded before the trial Court was clearly a material improvement made by her in her evidence tendered before the trial Court and also on the ground that it was not possible for her to have recognized the accused as there was no source of light available at place of occurrence at the time of the incident. It is true that PW2 did not disclose the names of the persons who had committed the offence to the Investigating Officer when her statement was recorded by him under Section 161 Cr.P.C., however when she was confronted with her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., in her cross-examination she deposed that she had disclosed the names of all the three accused to Daroga Ji and no one had informed her that Daroga Ji had not mentioned the names of the accused in her statement. The suggestion given by the defence cousel to her that she was naming the appellants as accused on being instructed to do was denied by her and she stated that all the three accused were known to her since before the incident and she had nominated them as accused not on account of any tutoring or prompting. The Investigating Officer of this case PW8 Harish Chandra however categorically stated in his cross-examination on page 50 of the paper book that PW2 Km. Nisha had not disclosed to him the names of the accused in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. We do not find any reason to disbelieve the statement of PW8 Harish Chandra on the aforesaid point. More so when he had mentioned the names of the appellants as accused in the statement of PW1 recorded by him under Section 161 Cr.P.C. There is no suggestion on behalf of the prosecution that the Investigating Officer was either biased or had not investigated the matter fairly. Thus we do not find any reason to accept the statement made by PW2 in her cross examination that although she had disclosed the names of the appellants as accused to the Investigating Officer he did not mention the same in her statement.

While examining the issue whether evidence of a witness is liable to be rejected merely on account of the fact that accused was not named in the statement made before the police under Section 161 Cr.P.C., the Apex Court in the case of Ashok Debbarma@Achak Debbarma(supra) has observed as hereunder:

"the mere fact that the appellant was not named in the statement made before the police under Section 161 Cr.P.C., and due to this omission, the evidence of PW10 and PW13 tendered in the Court is unreliable, cannot be sustained. Statements made to the police during investigation were not substantive piece of evidence and the statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., can be used only for the purpose of contradiction and not for corroboration. In our view, if the evidence tendered by the witness in the witness box is creditworthy and reliable, that evidence cannot be rejected merely because a particular statement made by the witness before the Court does not find a place in the statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.PC. The police officer recorded statements of witnesses in an incident where 15 persons lost their lives, 23 houses were set ablaze and large number of persons were injured. PW10 lost his real brother and PW13 lost his daughter as well as his wife and in such a time of grief, they would not be in a normal state of mind to recollect who were all the miscreants and their names. The witnesses may be knowing the persons by face, not their names. Therefore, the mere fact that they had not named the accused persons in Section 161 statement, at that time,that would not be a reason for discarding the oral evidence if their evidence is found to be reliable and creditworthy.

The legal proposition enunciated by the Apex Court in the case of Ashok Debbarma@Achak Debbarma(supra) that "mere fact that accused is not named in the statement made before the police under Section 161 Cr.P.C., will not render the evidence of such witness unreliable provided his evidence is found to be reliable and creditworthy", cannot be disputed but whether under the facts and circumstances of the present case can the evidence of PW2 be termed as unblemished. It is proved from the evidence of PW1 that there was enemity between the complainant and his family members and the appellants arising out a land dispute with regard to which the parties were litigating before the Civil and Revenue Courts and the possibility of the PW1 falsely implicating the appellants in the present case with the object of gaining an upper hand in the civil litigation and as such his having a direct interest in seeing that the appellants are convicted cannot be ruled out. The inordinate delay in lodging the FIR which the prosecution has failed to explain satisfactorily is another circumstance which gives rise to an inference that the prosecution case as spelt out in the FIR was concocted after due deliberations with the object of falsely implicating the appellants. The claim of PW1, as we have already noted, of his being the eye witness of the occurrence stood falsified from the evidence of PW2 itself and hence no reliance can be placed on the FIR version which is the brain child of PW1 and as far as PW2 is concerned there is no dispute about the fact that she had failed to take the names of the appellants as the person who had assaulted her and her father in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. This fact was corroborated by PW8 Harish Chandra, Investigating Offcer of this case and his cross-examination and in the absense of source of any light at the place of the incident at the time of the occurrence amd the facts deposed by her in her evidence recorded before trial Court to the effect that before the occurrences she was sleeping , it was not possible for her to have either seen the appellants entering into varandah and pouring acid on her and her father as she would have woken up only after few drops of acid had fallen on her. In the background of the aforesaid facts the possibility of the statement made by PW2 that the offence of pouring acid on her and her father was committed by the appellants, for the first time in her evidence tendered before the trial Court being tutored cannot be ruled out. The FIR was lodged by PW1 nominating the appellants with whom he had animosity as accused whose testimony does not inspire any confidence. PW2 did not disclose the names of the appellants as accused to the Investigating Officer apparently because she had not been able to recognize the assailants due to darkness. The possibility of PW2 being tutored by PW1, who was in a position to dominate and influence her, being her real uncle, to name the appellants as accused when she came to give her evidence before the trial Court cannot be ruuled out. In view of the above, we do not find the evidence of PW2 reliable and trustworthy.

Thus in view of the foregoing discussion, we are unable to uphold the judgment and order dated 14.2.2005 passed by Session Judge, Basti convicting and sentencing the appellants, under Sections 302/34, 326/34 and 452/34 IPC. This appeal accordingly succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgment and order is hereby set aside. The appellants are in jail. They shall be released forthwith from the jail unless they are wanted in any other case.

However, keeping in view the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C., appellants are directed to forthwith furnish a personal bond in the sum of Rs. One lakh and two reliable sureties in the like amount before the trial Court, (which shall be effective for a period of six months) to the effect that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against the Instant Judgment or for grant of leave, the appellants on receipt of notice thereof shall appear berfore the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

Criminal Appeal–First information report – prompt – not ante-time – injured eye witness – firearm injuries – medico legal examination – postmortem – no overlapping – two type of weapons – ocular evidence and medical evidence – minor contradictions – not material – enmity – double edged weapon – related and interested witnesses – injured witness – presence established – non-examination of independent witness – not fatal – defect in investigation – no benefit to accused – right of private defence – not proved – unlawful assembly – common object – Section 149 I.P.C. – vicarious liability – participation proved – conviction confirmed – appeal dismissed.

Since the above two appeals have arisen from the same judgment, hence, both of them have been heard together and are being decided by this common judgment and order. (Para 1)

The aforementioned two appeals have been preferred against the judgment and order dated 3.11.2014 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Sitapur in Sessions Trial No.653/99 arising out of Case Crime No.136 of 1999 under Sections 147,148,149,307,302,504,506 I.P.C., P.S.Tambour, District Sitapur.(Para 2)

Initially, ten accused persons were facing trial out of which accused Abid Ali, son of Sharafat Ali; accused Hafiz Ali, son of Liaqat Ali and accused Shaukat Ali, son of Badal died during pendency of trial and their cases abated. Further during pendency of appeal, appellant no.4 Mustakeem, son of Bakreedi also died and his appeal stood abated vide order dated 8.9.2016 passed by this Court.(Para 3)

Learned trial court has convicted and sentenced the accused-appellants (1) Sharafat Ali, son of Liaqat Ali; (2) Shamsad Ali; son of Liyaqat Ali; (3) Israr, son of Sujat Ali; (4) Abdul Maliq, son of Mohd. Umar; (5) Mustakeem, son of Bakreedi; (6) Asfaq Ali; son of Buniyad Ali; and (7)
Amin, son of Mohd.Bux as under :-

(a)under Section 302 I.P.C. read with 149 I.P.C. imprisonment for life and fine of Rs.8000/- each, in default two years' imprisonment;
(b)under Section 307 I.P.C. read with 149 I.P.C. rigorous imprisonment for ten years and fine of Rs.5000/- each, in default one years' imprisonment.
(c)under Section 148 I.P.C. rigorous imprisonment for two years and fine of Rs.2000/- each, in default four months' imprisonment.(Para 4)

Held: (Paras -66-69)
1.In the present case in the first information report PW-1 Naseem has named all the accused armed with firearms in the first information report. In the evidence also PW-1 Naseem and PW-2 Nisar, who were also injured in the incident, named all the accused and assigned them the role of firing. As has been held in the earlier part of the judgment defence version of self defence has failed, prosecution has successfully established the specific role of all the accused who have formed an unlawful assembly at the place of occurrence. It is proved by the evidence of PW-1 Naseem and PW-2 Nisar that accused have formed unlawful assembly near the place of occurrence. They all were present there. When the deceased Dunna came he was assaulted by the firearms by the accused in furtherance of the common object of the unlawful assembly.
2.Hence, we are of the considered view that the learned trial court has rightly held the accused guilty for the offence of committing murder of Dunna and causing injuries to Naseem and Nisar. Prosecution has successfully proved the charges against the accused appellants.

3.We are of the considered view that appeals are devoid of merit and are liable to be dismissed and are accordingly dismissed. Impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence is confirmed. Accused appellants are in jail. They shall serve out the sentence as imposed by the learned trial court.Office is directed to certify this order to the learned trial court to ensure compliance. Office is further directed to transmit the lower court record forthwith.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anil Kumar Srivastava-II, J.)

(1) Since the above two appeals have arisen from the same judgment, hence, both of them have been heard together and are being decided by this common judgment and order.

(2) The aforementioned two appeals have been preferred against the judgment and order dated 3.11.2014 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Sitapur in Sessions Trial No.653/99 arising out of Case Crime No.136 of 1999 under Sections 147,148,149,307,302,504,506 I.P.C., P.S.Tambour, District Sitapur.

(3) Initially, ten accused persons were facing trial out of which accused Abid Ali, son of Sharafat Ali; accused Hafiz Ali, son of Liaqat Ali and accused Shaukat Ali, son of Badal died during pendency of trial and their cases abated. Further during pendency of appeal, appellant no.4 Mustakeem, son of Bakreedi also died and his appeal stood abated vide order dated 8.9.2016 passed by this Court.

(4) Learned trial court has convicted and sentenced the accused-appellants (1) Sharafat Ali, son of Liaqat Ali; (2) Shamsad Ali; son of Liyaqat Ali; (3) Israr, son of Sujat Ali; (4) Abdul Maliq, son of Mohd. Umar; (5) Mustakeem, son of Bakreedi; (6) Asfaq Ali; son of Buniyad Ali; and (7) Amin, son of Mohd.Bux as under :-

a. under Section 302 I.P.C. read with 149 I.P.C. imprisonment for life and fine of Rs.8000/- each, in default two years' imprisonment;

b. under Section 307 I.P.C. read with 149 I.P.C. rigorous imprisonment for ten years and fine of Rs.5000/- each, in default one years' imprisonment.

c. under Section 148 I.P.C. rigorous imprisonment for two years and fine of Rs.2000/- each, in default four months' imprisonment.

(5) All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

(6) According to the prosecution version, on 14.7.1999, Dunna, who was uncle of complainant Mohd. Naseem, was coming to his Village from Tambour. At about 7:30 a.m. when he reached near the house of Mohd. Husain, son of Anwar, then accused Sharafat Ali, armed with licensed gun; Hafiz Ali; Shaukat Ali; Israr; Shamsad Ali; Abdul Maliq; Mustakeem Abid Ali, Asfaq Ali; Amin and three-four unknown persons who were armed with unlawful arms, 'Lathi' and 'Danda' started firing upon Dunna. On hearing fire arm sound, complainant Mohd. Naseem and his brother Nisar Ahmad reached at the spot. Then, accused also fired upon them. Dunna died on the spot due to fire arm injuries while complainant Naseem and his brother Nisar received fire arm injuries. There was an atmosphere of fear due to firing.

(7) First information report of the incident was lodged by complainant Naseem on 14.7.1999 at 8:30 a.m. at P.S. Tambour which was registered at case crime no.199/1999 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307, 302 I.P.C. and 7 Criminal Law Amendment Act. Investigation was handed over to Station House Officer V.K.Misra. Later on, a letter for medico-legal examination ('Chitthi Mazroobi) was handed over to Mohd. Naseem and Nisar who were medically examined at C.H.C. Tambour. Inquest proceedings were conducted on 14.7.1999 at 10:30 a.m. Dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem. Site plan was prepared. Blood stained and plain earth was collected from the spot. Statements of witnesses were recorded. Postmortem of the body of deceased Dunna was conducted on 15.7.1999 at 2:30 p.m. The recovered articles were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory. Subsequently, after investigation, charge sheet was submitted against the accused. Accused were charged for offences punishable under Sections 148, 302/149, 307/149 I.P.C., who denied the charges and claimed to be tried.

(8) In order to prove its case, prosecution has produced P.W.1 Mohd.Naseem (injured eye witness); P.W.2 Nisar Umar (injured eye witness); P.W.3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey, who has conducted the medico-legal examination of the injured on 14.7.1999. According to Dr.Dubey, he has examined injured Nisar on 14.7.1999 at 8:00 a.m. and found the following injuries :

1. Firearm injuries on Rt. shoulder size 1/8 x 1/8 cm Margins inverted and Blackened.

2. Firearm wound of entry on Supra sternal Notch size1/8 cm x 1/8 cm Margins inverted and Blackened.

3. Oval wound of entry on right mid clavicular Sub costal margin size 1/8 cm x 1/9 cm margin inverted and Blackened.

4. Three wound of entry on right side below chest size 1/8cm x 1/8cm x cavity deep margins inverted and blackened 15cm below axilla.

5. Gun shot wound left over elbow size 1/8cm x1/8cm x depth not proved margins inverted blackening present.

6. Gun shot wound on right thigh interior aspect mid part margins inverted blackened size 1/8cm x 1/8cm.

7. Five wounds of entry on mid of left thigh in 15cm area size 1/8cm x 1/8cm x depth not proved. Margins inverted blackened.

8. Round wound of entry 1/8cm x 1/8cm at right leg x bone deep margin inverted.

Nature of injury kept under observation. Caused by firearm and fresh in duration.

(9) Injured complainant Naseem was examined by Dr.Dubey on 14.7.1999 at 8:45 a.m. and found the following injuries.

1. Oval wound of entry with margin inverted direction left to right side oblique entry size 1/8 cm x 1/9 cm x depth not probed (cavity deep) on Back left side at mid of Medial side of left scapula at distance of 2 cm Margin Blackened.

2. Two oblique wound of entry on lower end of right scapula lateral side size 1/8 cm x 1/9 cm x Margin blackened margin inverted.

3. Round wound on right arm of size of 1/8cm x 1/8 cm x muscle deep and blackened.

4. Two wounds of size 1/8cm x 1/8cm x muscle deep present on over back of right shoulder margin blackened.

5. Rounded wound over back of head over occiput of size 1/8cm x 1/8cm inverted and blackened margin such three wound present in area of 5cm around.

These all wounds are caused by firearm fresh in duration kept under observation.

(10) P.W. 4 is the Investigating Officer. P.W. 5 Dr.V.R.Saxena, who had conducted postmortem examination on body of the deceased on 15.7.1999 at 2.30 PM and found the following injuries:

1. Multiple fire arm wounds on right Rt. upper extremity in an area of 42 cm x 10 cm; 4.5 cm below Rt. shoulder joint (each size 0.3 cm x 0.3 c.m.);

2. Single fire arm wound on right side nose 2.5 above right ala of Nose (size 0.3 cm x 0.3 cm);

3.Multiple fire arm wounds right side chest in an area of 13.5 cm x 9.0 cm; 3.5 cm below right axilla;

4. Single fire arm wound on right side back 8 cm below right Iliac crest border. (size 0.3 cm x 0.3 cm)

(11) According to the doctor, duration of the death was one-and-a half day. Cause of death was shown as shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem fire arm wounds.

(12) In their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C., accused have denied the allegations levelled against them and stated that the deceased was a hardened criminal. Due to enmity, somebody has caused injuries, resulting in death of Dunna. In defence, D.W.1 Mujeeb Ahmad was produced.

(13) After appreciating the evidence on record, the learned trial court has recorded finding of conviction against accused persons.

(14) We have heard Sri Nagendra Mohan, learned senior counsel for the appellants and Sri Umesh Verma, learned Additional Government Advocate for State at length.

(15) Learned counsel for the appellants submits that injured witnesses were not present at the scene of occurrence. They have not seen the incident and they are not eye witness. It is further submitted that the first information report is ante-time. It was lodged after medico-legal examination of P.W.2 Nisar. In order to elaborate his argument, learned counsel submits that medico-legal examination of Nisar was done at 8:00 a.m. while the first information report was lodged at 8:30 a.m. Further, in the inquest report, in the column where time of lodging of the F.I.R. is to be mentioned, it is mentioned that F.I.R. was lodged at 7:30 a.m. which shows that the first information report was not in existence at the time when the medico-legal examination of injured as well as inquest proceedings were conducted. It is further submitted that first information report was lodged after due consultation and deliberation with police authorities. It is further submitted that the injured persons have not received the injuries in the alleged incident, as claimed by the prosecution. It is stated that all the ten persons have fired upon the deceased and the injured persons Naseem and Nisar but the number and size of injuries does not corroborate this statement. It is also submitted that the place of occurrence could not be established by the prosecution. No independent witness was produced although it could have been produced by the prosecution. It is contended that the incident occurred on the road while the dead body of the deceased was found on a cot in front of his house. There is no explanation as to how the dead body reached in front of the house of complainant. It is further argued that the deceased and injured were hardened criminal. They could have got injuries during dark hours and accused have been falsely implicated.

(16) Per contra, learned A.G.A. submits that the first information report was lodged promptly. There is a mistake in mentioning time on the injury report of Nisar as doctor himself has admitted that accused Isfaq had also reached at the C.H.C., and he was treated prior to the injured persons. It is further submitted that time of lodging of F.I.R., as mentioned in the inquest report, is not challenged by the defence. No cross-examination was made on this point. Hence, this fact shall be treated as admitted. It was a clerical error. Two injured witnesses have been produced, who have received injuries in the same incident. It is further argued that defence itself has admitted the incident by giving a suggestion to P.W.1 that Ashfaq also received injuries in the same incident and an N.C.R. was lodged by accused Israr at the police station. It shows that presence of deceased as well as two injured witnesses have been admitted by the defence. It is further argued that there are minor contradictions which could not discredit the case of prosecution. It is further argued that the place of occurrence is fully established by the prosecution. If defence wanted to bring its case within the ambit of 'general exceptions', then, it was the burden of defence to produce evidence on the point. Even in the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., no case of self-defence has been taken, rather only a suggestion was given to P.W.1. In the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., accused have stated that they have been falsely implicated due to enmity. The defence is taking a false defence which itself shows its complicity in commission of crime.

(17) At the very outset, we would like to first deal with the medico legal aspect of the case, because, this is a case wherein according to the prosecution 10 persons have fired upon the deceased and two injured persons who have received total 17 injuries. One assailant was carrying the licensed gun while, according to P.W.1 Naseem, all other assailants were carrying single barrel country-made gun. Hence, at the very beginning, it is to be decided as to whether, the injuries sustained by the injured as well as the deceased were caused by different firearms which were being carried by the accused ?

(18) Interestingly, injured-Naseem and Nisar have received injuries of a dimension of 1/8cm.x 1/9cm. while deceased Dunna has suffered injuries of a dimension of 0.3cm x 0.3cm. It shows that the deceased as well as both the injured have sustained injuries by two types of weapons out of which one weapon has caused the injuries measuring 1/8cm x 1/8cm. while the other weapon has caused the injuries of 0.3cm x 0.3cm. Further according to P.W.3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey, who has conducted the medico legal examination of the injured fires were shot from a distance of six feet. There was no overlapping of any injuries. P.W.5 Dr. Saxena, who has conducted the postmortem of the body of the deceased-Dunna has stated that there was no overlapping of injury on the body of the deceased. Fires were shot from the distance as there was no blackening and tatooning? Dispersal was also wide due to distance in firing. It means that when injuries of the deceased as well as injured were not overlapping which shows that all the injuries were caused by two type of weapons. If the injuries could have been caused by different type of weapons then definitely, size and shape of the injuries would have been different. It is also not possible that when injuries were caused by a particular weapon then the fire shot by another weapon would cause injuries of the same dimension as was caused by earlier used weapon. Because, according to expert opinion of the doctor, there was no overlapping on the injuries of the injured as well deceased. Hence, it is established that two type of weapons were used in commission of the crime as has been started by P.W.1 Naseem.

(19) It is contended by learned counsel for the accused that the first information report is antetime. First information report was lodged by P.W.1 Naseem on 14.07.1999 at 8.30AM which was registered at Case Crime No.136 of 1999, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307, 302 IPC and Section 7 Criminal Law Amendment Act. Entry of the same was made at G.D. No.12. Chick FIR and G.D. were proved by P.W.4 S. I. Inspector Vijay Kant Mishra, who was investigating officer of the case. It is stated by P.W.4 S. I. Inspector Vijay Kant Mishra that Chick FIR was prepared by H.C. Mata Pher and entry in G.D. was also made by him. H.C. Mata Pher had remained posted with him, he has identified the writing and signatures of H.C. Mata Pher. It is further stated that H.C. Mata Pher had died about 4-5 years ago. Hence, as a secondary evidence P.W.4 S. I. Inspector Vijay Kant Mishra, proved the chick FIR and G.D. In the G.D. it is mentioned that the injuries of injured Naseem and Nisar were examined at police station and Chitthi Mazroobi was prepared and injured were sent to C.H.C. Tambour for medico legal examination. Witness was not cross-examined on this point as to whether chitthi Mazroobi were prepared and injured were sent to C.H.C. Tambour before lodging of the first information report which was lodged at police station at 8.30AM? Hence, it is an uncontroverted fact which shows that injured Naseem and Nisar were sent to C.H.C. Tambour along with chitthi Mazroobi. After lodging of FIR at 8.30AM.

(20) Non cross-examination of P.W.4 S.I. Inspector Vijay Kant Mishra, on the point of time of lodging of FIR as well as delivery of the chitthi Mazroobi for medico legal examination of injured shows that it is an uncontroverted statement. It was held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Gangabhavani v. Rayapati Venkat Reddy & Ors. 2013 CRI. L. J.4618 (Supreme Court) wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court has placed reliance upon Laxmibai (Dead) through L.Rs. & Another v. Bhagwantbuva (Dead) through L.Rs. & Ors. AIR 2013 SC 1204:

"31. Furthermore, there cannot be any dispute with respect to the settled legal proposition, that if a party wishes to raise any doubt as regards the correctness of the statement of a witness, the said witness must be given an opportunity to explain his statement by drawing his attention to that part of it, which has been objected to by the other party, as being untrue. Without this, it is not possible to impeach his credibility. Such a law has been advanced in view of the statutory provisions enshrined in Section 138 of the Evidence Act, 1872, which enable the opposite party to cross-examine a witness as regards information tendered in evidence by him during his initial examination in chief, and the scope of this provision stands enlarged by Section 146 of the Evidence Act, which permits a witness to be questioned, inter-alia, in order to test his veracity. Thereafter, the unchallenged part of his evidence is to be relied upon, for the reason that it is impossible for the witness to explain or elaborate upon any doubts as regards the same, in the absence of questions put to him with respect to the circumstances which indicate that the version of events provided by him, is not fit to be believed, and the witness himself, is unworthy of credit. Thus, if a party intends to impeach a witness, he must provide adequate opportunity to the witness in the witness box, to give a full and proper explanation. The same is essential to ensure fair play and fairness in dealing with witnesses." (Emphasis supplied) (See also: Rohtash Kumar v. State of Haryana, JT 2013 (8) SC 181; and Gian Chand & Ors. v. State of Haryana, JT 2013 (10) SC 515).

18. Thus, it becomes crystal clear that the defence cannot rely on nor can the court base its finding on a particular fact or issue on which the witness has not made any statement in his examination-in- chief and the defence has not cross examined him on the said aspect of the matter."

(21) Learned counsel for the accused has vehemently argued that in the medico legal examination report of injured Nisar time of examination is mentioned as 8.00 AM on 14.07.1999 while, time of examination of Naseem is mentioned as 8.45AM. In between accused Ashfaq was also medically examined by P.W.3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey on 14.07.1999 at about 8.15AM. It is argued that when the injured Nisar was medically examined at 8.00AM then, it shall be presumed that by that time first information report was not lodged.

(22) During the cross examination, P.W.3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey has stated that the injuries of injured Asfaq was done prior to the medico legal examination of Naseem and Nisar as they were brought, subsequent, to the arrival of Asfaq. This statement and the cross examination itself explains the mistake which has been committed by Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey in mentioning the time of medico legal examination of Nisar at 8.00AM. No doubt Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey is a medical expert, whose opinion is of utmost importance in a criminal trial. But, at the same time, if the medico legal evidence is not in consonance with the ocular evidence then definitely, ocular evidence would prevail over the medico legal evidnce as has been held in the case of Sadhu Saran Singh v. State of U.P. and others 2016 CRI. L.J. 1908 (Supreme Court) wherein Hon'ble Apex Court has placed reliance upon Darbara Singh v. State of Punjab (2012) 10 SCC 476 wherein it was held that:-

"..... So far as the question of inconsistency between the medical evidence and the ocular evidence is concerned, the law is well settled that, unless the oral evidence available is totally irreconcilable with the medical evidence, the oral evidence would have primacy. In the event of contradictions between medical and ocular evidence, the ocular testimony of a witness will have greater evidentiary value vis-à-vis medical evidence and when medical evidence makes the oral testimony improbable, the same becomes a relevant factor in the process of evaluation of such evidence. It is only when the contradiction between the two is so extreme that the medical evidence completely rules out all possibilities of the ocular evidence being true at all, that the ocular evidence is liabe to be disbelieved."

(23) Hence, when P.W. 3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey has himself been cross-examined by the defence on the aspect of time of medico legal examination of injured Nisar that Dr. Dubey himself has given satisfactory explanation. Although, the prosecution has not discharged a duty satisfactorily to get the consistency explained through P.W.3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey. But the same was got explained by the defence in cross-examination. Hence, we are of the view that when the discrepancy has been properly explained then, defence could not get any benefit out of it. It is settled legal position that the statement of witnesse shall be read as a whole, it cannot be read in piece meal.

(24) Learned counsel for the accused has drawn our attention towards the inquest report wherein it is mentioned that the date and time of lodging FIR is mentioned as 14.07.1999 at 7.30AM while the time of starting the inquest report is mentioned as 14.07.1999 at 10.30AM which concluded on 14.07.1999 at 12.00 Noon. It is submitted that time of lodging of FIR was shown at 7.30AM which means that the time of lodging of FIR information report at 8.30AM is wrong. We are not impressed with the argument of learned senior counsel. No doubt, time of lodging the FIR in the inquest report is shown as 14.07.1999 at 7.30AM. But, at the same time, it is to be kept in mind that the time of incident is shown as 14.07.1999 at 7.30AM in the first information report. Thereafter, first information report was lodged at 8.30AM which fact find support from From No.13 which was sent along with the dead body, wherein time of death is shown as 14.07.1999 at 7.30AM and the time of lodging of the FIR is shown at 8.30AM. It was also prepared by the investigating officer P.W.4 S.I. Vijay Kant Mishra.

(25) In Radha Mohan Singh @ Lal Saheb V. State of U.P.(2006) 2 Supreme Court Cases 450, a three Judges Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court has dealt with the provisions of Section 174 Cr.P.C. in detail in the said case, it was argued that the time and date of lodging FIR has been mentioned as "10 p.m on 15.3.1979 ." Though, the prosecution has come out with a case that the FIR had been lodged at "10 p.m. on 14.3.1979". It was submitted by the learned counsel for accused that the FIR had in fact not been lodged by the time the inquest was held and the same has been ante-timed. Hon'ble Apex Court as held as under:

"In our opinion the date of lodging the report has been wrongly written in the inquest report as "15.3.79 samai 10 baje raat (15.3.79 at 10 p.m.)". At the top of the inquest report the crime number and the sections (Crime No.193/79 under Section 147/148/140/323/302 IPC) have been mentioned. The time of commencement of the inquest is written as "7 a.m. on 15.3.79" and the time of conclusion of the inquest is written as "8.30 a.m. on 15.3.79". If the inquest had been concluded by 8.30 a.m. on 15.3.79, there was no occasion for writing the time of lodging of the FIR as "10 p.m. on 15.3.79" as the person preparing the inquest report could not have written anything about an event which was yet to take place. We have not the slightest doubt that the investigating officer holding the inquest mentioned the date of lodging of the FIR as "15.3.79" instead of "14.3.79" inadvertently or by mistake. That apart, it is important to note that during the course of cross-examination PW.7 Ram Shabad Singh, SI, who held the inquest on the body of the deceased in the hospital, his attention was not drawn to the aforesaid fact that the date and time of lodging of the FIR was mentioned as "10 p.m. on 15.3.79". If the said discrepancy had been pointed out to him, he could have given an explanation for the same. No argument on the basis of an alleged discrepancy, overwriting, omission or contradiction in the inquest report can be entertained unless the attention of the author thereof is drawn to the said fact and he is given an opportunity to explain when he is examined as a witness in Court. Therefore, in the present case it is impermissible to draw any inference against the prosecution on the ground that the date of lodging the FIR was wrongly mentioned in the FIR."

(26) In the present case also there is discrepancy about time of lodging the FIR as mentioned in the inquest report which is mentioned as 14.7.1999 at 7.30AM. While the first information report was lodged on 14.7.1999 at 8.30AM. It appears that since the time of occurrence was shown as 14.7.1999 at 7.30AM. Hence, instead of writing 14.7.1999 at 8.30AM investigating officer has wrongly mentioned time of lodging FIR as 14.7.1999 at 7.30AM. Further as has been held by the Apex Court in the case of Radha Mohan Singh @ Lal Saheb (supra) investigating officer has nowhere been cross-examined, on this point by the defence, so as to enable him to give opportunity to explain the fault. Hence, we are of the view that the time of lodging FIR as shown in the inquest report as 14.7.1999 at 7.30AM is wrongly mentioned.

(27) Defence has produced Mujeeb Ahmad as D.W.1 who is scribe of the written report. It is stated by him in examination-in-chief that at about 8-9 AM he wrote the written report on the dictation of Naseem who was injured. A suggestion was also given to him that he has prepared the written report on the dictation of police which he denied. It means that the defence himself has admitted the fact that the written report was written by D.W.1 Mujeeb who was the witness of defence and stated in examination-in-chief that he has written the written report on the dictation of Naseem who was in injured condition. This witness has not been declared as hostile by the defence meaning thereby that now defence cannot rescile with the statement of D.W.1 Mujeeb Ahmad. He has further stated the time of writing the first information report at about 8-9 AM.

(28) Hence, we are of the considered view that the first information report was lodged on 14.7.1999 at 8.30AM by injured Naseem. First information report is not ante-time.

(29) Now, we have to consider as to whether the evidence of P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar is wholly reliable, trustworthy and credible evidence or not ?

(30) According to the prosecution version when Dunna was coming back from Tambour to his Village when the accused assaulted him by rifle, lathi and danda. There are 10 accused named in the first information report.

(31) At the very out-set, it is relevant to mention here that no injuries of lathi and danda were found on the body of injured Naseem and Nisar or the dead body of deceased (Dunna). All three have received firearm injuries. According to P.W.3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey, injured Naseem has received five injuries of firearm out of which injuries no.2 and 4 were two wounds of entry likewise, injured Nisar received total eight wounds of firearm injuries out of which injury no.4 was having three wounds of firearm with inverted margins. Injury no.7 were five wounds of firearm with inverted margins. In the same manner deceased (Dunna) had received the four injuries out of which injury nos.1 and 3 were multiple firearms wounds. Although, the size of wound was similar, it shows that the different weapons were used. Number of injuries caused as well as injured persons individually they might have received less number of injuries but collectively we found that total number of injuries of deceased as well as two injured is quite large which corroborates the prosecution version that 10 persons have fired upon the deceased and injured who received gun shot injuries.

(32) Now it is to be seen as to whether P.W.1 Naseem, P.W.2 Nisar were present at the place of occurrence and received injuries by firearms used by the accused ?

(33) P.W.1 Mohd. Naseem has stated that all the accused belongs to one family and are related to each other. Motive was also stated by the witness wherein it was stated that Bakreedi father of accused Mustakeem was murdered in 1976 wherein Mehandi Husan father of P.W.1 Naseem and his uncle Dunna (deceased) were named accused. They were convicted by the court. At the time of occurrence they were on bail. So far as motive is concerned even in the statement given under Section 313 Cr.P.C. it is admitted that Bakreedi was killed by Dunna who was convicted in the trial of murder of Bakreedi. It shows that admittedly there was enmity between the parties.

(34) Enmity itself is a double egged weapon which can be used either way. It was held in Sunil Kundu versus State of Jharkahnd (2013) 4 SCC 422, that enmity is a double edged weapon but possibility of false involvement because of deep rooted enmity also cannot be ruled out.

(35) That enmity is doubled edged weapons which can be used for false implication at the same time for attacking that persons. Hence, so far as enmity is concerned when it is an admitted fact then there is no question of drawing any inference that there was no motive for commission of the crime by the accused.

(36) In the first information report, it is mentioned that :---------

"सुबह जैसे ही ग्राम डवदेही के मो. हुसेन पुत्र अनवर के घर के पूरब सड़क पर पहुचे तेसे ही पहले से एक राय होकर बन्दुके व लाढी डण्डा लिया गाड़ा पर बढ़े शराफत अली पुत्र लियाक़त अली अपनी लाशेनसी बन्दुक व बाकी हाफिज अली व प्रधान पुत्र लियाकत अली सोकत अली पुत्र बादल, इसरार, समसाद अली पुत्र गाज सुजात अली, अब्दुल मालिक पुत्र मो. उमर, मुसतबीज पुत्र बकरीदी, आबिद अली पुत्र शराफत अली उर्फ़ शरफू, असफाक अली पुत्र बुनयाद अली, अमीन पुत्र मो. बकस व तीन चार अन्य लोग नाजायज असलह| व लाठी डण्डा से मेरे चाचा दुन्ना पर फायर करने लगे बन्दुक की आवाज व मेरे चाचा के चिल्लाने पर मै व मेरा भाई निसार अहमद दौड़ कर मौके पर आ गये| हम लोगो पर भी असलाह से फायर करना शुरू कर दिये| फायर की चोट से मेरे चाचा दुन्ना की मौके पर मृत्यु हो गयी मुझे व मेरे भाई निसार को फायर की चोट आयी है| ताबड़ तोड़ फायरिंग होने से आने जाने वाले तथा बच्चे तथा पडोसी भय के कारण भाग गये तथा अपने घरो का दरवाजा बन्द कर लिए लास मौके पर घर वालो की देखरेख मे पड़ी है||"

(37) Which shows that 3-4 unknown persons are also mentioned in the first information report but in the statement of P.W1 Naseem he has stated that the accused Sarafat was armed with double barrel licensed gun and all others were armed with single barrel country made gun and they fired from their weapons nowhere used of lathi and danda is stated. Further no injuries of lathi was found either on the body of the deceased or injured persons.

(38) According to P.W.1 Naseem, he reached at the spot on hearing the shrieks. He was sitting on shop which is shop of Rais at a distance about 50 steps from the place of occurrence. While his brother Nisar came from eastern side of road from the field. Nisar met him at the place of occurrence. Nisar arrived there prior to him. While P.W. 2 Nisar has stated that when he reached at the spot Naseem had already reached there.

(39) So far as minor contradictions are concerned, it is settled legal position that minor contradictions are bound to occur in the evidence of witnesses when their evidence were recorded after a long gap from the date of incident.

(40) In Sadhu Saran Singh v. State of U.P. & Ors.2016 CRI. L.J. 1908; Hon'ble Apex Court has held that if there is a long gape of cross-examination which is done on several dates then natural minor discrepancies are bound to occur. Further, it is to be seen as to whether the discrepancies are going to the root of the matter or are trivial in nature. In the case at hand, so far as it is concerned as to whether P.W.1 Naseem arrived first at the spot or P.W. 2 Nisar arrived first at the spot. It is a minor contradiction. Both these witnesses have received gun shot injuries. At this stage, we may very carefully examine the suggestion has given to P.W.1 Naseem as well as P.W.2 Nisar by P.W. 3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey and P.W.4 I.S. Vijay Kant Mishra, investigating officer.

(41) P.W. 3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey was put to cross-examination by the defence and got the injuries of accused Asfaq proved from this witness wherein he has stated that on 14.7.1999 at 8.15 AM. he had medically examined the accused Ashfaq Ali son of Buniyad Ali and found following two injuries on his body:-

(1) lacerated wound ½ cm x 1/10c.m into bone deep fresh bleeding present surrounded by traumatic swelling all over dorsom of left hand pain tenderness and crepitus present in palm and lower part of forearm.

(2)Traumatic swelling pain and tender right forearm and hand.
(3) Pain and tender both leg. Contusion present on right leg upper part.
(4) Contusion of size 6cm x1/2cm present over left size over interior aspect of left thigh.

Nature of injury under observation. Caused of blunt objection duration fresh.

(42) According to Dr. Dubey these injuries were fresh in nature which was kept under observation and caused by blunt object. It is further stated by Dr. Dubey that these injuries could have been caused on 14.7.1999 at about 7, 7.30AM patient was referred to district hospital. It means that Dr. Dubey has given a specific report about the fact that accused Ashfaq has received a minor injury on 14.7.1999 at about 7.30AM. It is further suggested that Asfaq has lodged a report at the police station regarding incident prior to the FIR lodged by P.W.1 Naseem. Further, so far as injuries are concerned defence has given a suggestion that deceased alongwith injured Naseem, Nisar were trying to pluck mango from tree and they were asked not to do it by the owner of grove. They ran away Quarrel took place. Firing also took place. They have beaten Ashfaq who got badly injured thereafter Israr Ahmad took him to the police station and lodged first information report. It is further suggested that no other accused was involved in the incident of marpit.

(43) P.W.4 S.I. Inspector Vijay Kant Mishra investigating officer has stated that no report of Ashfaq was brought to his knowledge as to whether NCR No.57 under Sections 323, 504 was lodged by Ashfaq or not. Defence has admitted the incident and the defence was taken about lodging a cross FIR. But, no such FIR is brought on record. Nothing has been brought on record to show that any such FIR was lodged or if lodged then whether permission of the Magistrate under Section 155(2) Cr.P.C. was obtained or not in the NCR. At this stage, learned counsel for the defence has place reliance upon State of Rajasthan vs. Manoj Kumar (2014) 5 Supreme Court Cases 744 wherein it is held that even if plea of private defence is not taken by the accused. It is open to the Court to consider such a plea if such a plea arises from the material available on record and burden to establish such a plea is on the accused and that burden can be discharged by showing preponderance of probabilities in favour of that plea on the basis of material on record. Learned counsel for the accused submits that the court can consider the plea of self-defence by accused on the basis of facts and circumstances of the case. Further, it is submitted that at the most it could be a case of exceeding the right of private defence by the accused, Ashfaq and Israr as the prosecution has failed to establish the presence of other accused on the place of occurrence.

(44) In 2010(4)SCC (Criminal) 378 Bhanwar Singh Vs. State of M.P. it was held that for a plea of right of private defence to succeed in totality to succeed, It must be proved that there is existed a right to private defence in favour of accused and that this right is extended to causing death. In the case at hand, firstly, we have to consider as to whether, although specific plea is not taken by the accused about right, from the evidence on record any case is make out for exercising the right to private defence by the accused? At this stage, we are not going to touch the issue as to how many accused were involved in the matter. But, so far as, exercise of right of private defence is concerned, a suggestion was given to P.W.1 Naseem that the deceased and the injured were trying to pluck the mango from the mango grove and when owner of mango grove objected and apprehended and trying to apprehend them that they ran away, thereafter, fight took place where firing was also done and injuries were caused to Ashfaq. If we compare injures of Ashfaq with deceased as well as the injured persons, we found that only one simple injury was found on the body of Ashfaq while multiple fire arm wounds were found on the body of deceased and injured Naseem and Nisar. Hence, it cannot be inferred that any right to private defence occurred in favour of accused which has been exceeded by them.

(45) There is no iota of evidence to show that the deceased or the injured have made any attempt to pluck the mango from mango grove. At this stage, the place of occurrence also becomes very important. Place of occurrence as shown in the first information report is on the road near the house of Mohd. Husain. In the site plan place of occurrence is shown by letter 'A' which is on the road towards eastern side of the house of Mohd. Husain. Accused were firing from point 'B-C' which are towards western and eastern side of the road. In cross-examination, it is stated by P.W. 4 S.I. Vijay Kumar Mishra Investigating officer that the house of deceased and complainant is about 100 yards towards northern side from the place of occurrence. It is further stated by him that when he reached at the spot he found the dead body lying on a cot in front of the door of the complainant. Although, the investigating officer has not shown that place in the site plan which he should have shown but it can be termed as fault on the part of investigating officer. But, at the same time any lapse or defect in the investigation could not extend the benefit of the accused. Unless and until it is shown that material prejudice is to caused to the accused. P.W.4 S.I. Vinay Kumar Mishra himself has admitted that when he reached at the spot he found the dead body lying on a cot. Investigating officer has recovered the plain and blood-stained earth from the place of occurrence. P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar have also stated that the incident took place on the road. At the same time, when defence himself is admitting that the fight took place on the pretext of theft of mango and they are challenging the place of occurrence. Hence no mango grove is shown in the site plan near the place of occurrence. Copy of NCR was not filed by the defence. It should have been proved that in the cross version accused have been shown the place of occurrence some where else from the place as have been shown by the prosecution. Hence, we do not find any force in the argument that the injuries on the body of the injured P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar and deceased were caused by the accused in self defence. While, the injured or deceased were trying to commit theft of mango and fight took place.

(46) It is submitted that P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar are real brother. They are interested and related witnesses. Further, they are harden criminals and their evidence could not be believed. It is further argued that no independent witness is produced.

(47) P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar are brother and related witnesses. Deceased-Dunna is their uncle. This is an admitted situation but whether, the evidence of related and interested witnesses is trustworthy or not ?. It is to be tested on the touchstone of their evidence. In the case of Upendra Pradhan v. State of Orissa, (2015) 11 SCC 124 : (2015) 4 SCC (Cri) 309 it was held that:

"18. The second ground pleaded before us by the counsel for the appellant-accused, that the testimonies of PW 1 and PW 7 should not have been considered, as they were interested witnesses, holds no teeth. We are of the opinion that the testimonies of interested witnesses are of great importance and weightage. No man would be willing to spare the real culprit and frame an innocent person. This view has been supplemented by the decision of this Court in Mohd. Ishaque v. State of W.B Bindeshwari Prasad Singh v. State of Bihar, (2013) 14 SCC 581 : (2014) 4 SCC (Cri) 299."

(48) P.W.1 Naseem is an injured witness, who has admitted in his evidence that daughter of Kamruddin was married to him. Kamruddin was uncle of Abdul Maliq. P.W.1 Naseem has divorced his wife. Now, she is living in the house of accused Abdul Maliq. He has also given reason for divorce. It is stated that his wife and Naseem could not live together. As there was no understanding between them. A suggestion given to the witness due to this enmity, he has falsely implicated all the relatives. We do not find any force in the suggestion. Presence of P.W.1 Naseem at the spot is established from the evidence on record. According to the P.W.1 Naseem at the time of occurrence, he was sitting on Khokha about 50 steps away. He reached are the spot on hearing the sound of firing and shrieks of his uncle Dunna. According to P.W.1 Naseem when he reached at the spot his brother Nisar had already reached at the spot. While, there is contradiction in the statement of P.W.2 Nisar who has stated that when he reached at the spot, Naseem was already present there. This contradiction in their statement is not such which creates doubt about their presence at the spot. It may so happen that when any incident occurs and few persons reached at the spot. It might be possible that they may reach there, simultaneously or just after reaching one and another but this itself could not be a ground to disbelieve their presence at the spot. Every person reacts differently in a given situation, it is not possible that every one should react in a particular manner in particular situation. It might be possible that P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar may have reached at the spot, simultaneously, or behind each other but their presence at the spot could not be doubted in view of injuries sustained by them. Further defence has given a suggestion to the effect that incident has taken place therein. One accused Ashfaq also got injuries and his report was lodged by accused Israr.

(49) P.W.1 Naseem has stated that written report was scribed by Mujeeb Ahmad who was produced as D.W.1 Mujeeb Ahmad by the defence. P.W.1 has stated that in the written report it is mentioned that some unknown persons were accompanying the named accused who were carrying lathi and danda with them. At one place in cross-examination of P.W.1 Naseem has stated that it was written on the dictation of the police but D.W.1 Mujeeb Ahmad scribe of the written report was examined by defence who has stated that the report was written on the dictation of Naseem. Further specific suggestion was given to the witness that he has written the report on the dictation of police. D.W.1 Mujeeb Ahmad denied this suggestion. It means that defence witness has proved the prosecution version. At the same time, statement of D.W.1 Mujeeb Ahmad further corroborates the prosecution version.

(50) P.W.1 Naseem has stated that all the accused were collected at one place who were armed with guns. Although, in the site plan, it is shown that the accused were present at point 'B-C' and fired from point 'B-C'. P.W.1 Naseem has stated that he reached at the spot from the northern side then other persons were also present there. He requested them to accompany him. But, nobody accompanied him. At time of firing, he and his brother was standing two steps away from the accused. This fact find support from the medico legal examination wherein doctor found blackening and tatooning on the injuries of the injured. Hence, presence of eye witnesses P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar is fully established.

(51) So far as, non-examination of the independent witnesses are concerned. It is not always necessary that the independent witnesses should be produced by the prosecution. It is always necessary that independent witnesses are willing to deposed agianst the accused. In Sadhu Saran Singh v. State of U.P. and Ors. 2016 CRI. L.J. 1908 has held as under :-

"(VI) As far as the non-examination of any other independent witness is concerned, there is no doubt that the prosecution has not been able to produce any independent witness. But, the prosecution case cannot be doubted on this ground alone. In these days, civilized people are generally insensitive to come forward to give any statement in respect of any criminal offence. Unless it is inevitable, people normally keep away from the Court as they feel it distressing and stressful. Though, this kind of human behaviour is indeed unfortunate, but it is a normal phenonmena. We cannot ignore this handicap of the investigating agency in discharging their duty. We cannot derail the entire case on the mere ground of absence of independent witness as long as the evidence of the eyewitness, though interested, is trustworthy."

(52) It is also settled legal position that quality not quantity of evidence which matters in a criminal trial. It is always not necessary that large number of witnesses should be produced to prove the charges against accused rather if injured witnesses are produced whose evidence is trustworthy and reliable then conviction can be based on his evidence. Hence, we are of the considered view that even if independent witnesses are not produced then prosecution evidence cannot be discarded.

(53) There are some lapses on the part of the investigating officer. P.W.1 Naseem has stated that he has not got spot inspection done by the investigating officer. In the evidence of P.W.4 investigating officer has stated that he cannot say as to whether the complainant accompanied him to the occurrence of place or not. P.W.4 investigating officer has prepared the site plan. On whose pointing out, he prepared the site plan is not stated by him. But the suggestion which was given to P.W.1 Naseem by the defence shows that the incident has taken place on the road. It is stated by " यह सही है कि जब इस सड़क के पशचमी अन्य बागात में एक बाग़ अशफ़ाक़ के पिता बुनियाद अली के है, घटना वाले दिन आम के फसल का दिन था ऐसा नहीं है कि हमलोग बाहरी बाग़ बचाने वाले लोगो का दबंगई के कारण धमका कर आम तोड़ा करते थे| ऐसा नहीं है कि घटना वाले दिन सुबह हम उपरोक्त चारो लोगो का जबरदस्ती व चोरी से आम तोड़ने के लिया बागवानों ने पीछा किया उनसे झगड़ा हुआ फायर हुई और हमलोगों ने अशफ़ाक़ को बुरी तरह मारपीट कर घायल कर दिया|

(54) P.W. 2 Nisar another suggestion was given to P.W.1 that " यह भी कहना गलत है कि गांव के दक्षिण पर इसी सड़क पर भागते समय आम बचाने वाले के फायर हमलोगों को चोट आया और हमलोग वही असहाय कर मारे जिसे आज चोट आये है जिससे उसके हाथ पैर टूट गए। "

(55) This suggestion itself shows that the defence is admitting the incident as well as place of occurrence. Although, the investigating officer has also committed certain mistake. It settled legal position that a defect in the investigation could not extend any benefit to the accused.

(56) P.W. 2 Nisar is also the real brother of the P.W.1 Naseem who has also supported the prosecution version. He is also an injured witness who has received injuries of firearm from a distance of 7-8 feet. This witness reached at the spot from his field from the eastern side as has been discussed earlier. There is a little discrepancies about arrival of the two witnesses at the sport. But that itself is not shown material which may affect the credibility of their evidence. P.W.2 Nisar has stated that he along with his brother got injuries by firing of accused. He reached at the spot on hearing shrieks of his uncle Dunna. Initially, he ran towards the spot on hearing the sound of firing. When he reached near the place of occurrence, he found that all the accused were standing surrounding his uncle. When he alongwith his brother Nisar reached accused also fired upon them with close range which caused injuries to them. Statement of this witness finds support from the medico legal evidence of P.W. 3 Dr. Dubey. P.W. 2 Nisar has also explained the injuries of accused Ashfaq wherein it is stated that Ashfaq received the injuries in this incident but the nature of injuries caused to Ashfaq is such which is trivial type of injuries which could not be extend the benefit of right of private defence in favour of the accused. We are of the considered view that the evidence of P.W.2 Nisar is also fully reliable.

(57) Learned counsel for the defence submits that the dead body was found at the main door of the house of deceased on cot. While according to the prosecution version incident took place on the road how the dead body reached there is not explained by the prosecution. It has come in the evidence of P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.4 investigating officer that the distance of the house of deceased and P.W.1 Naseem from the place of occurrence is about 100 yards. Neither eye witness nor the investigating officer was cross-examined on the point as to how the dead body reached there. Even if the death body was found on the cot, it does not make any differences on the point of place of occurrence. As has been held earlier place of occurrence was constructed road wherein defence himself is taking a plea that the injuries were caused in exercise of the right of private defence.

(58) It is submitted that according to the prosecution of 10 accused fired upon the deceased as well as injured persons. Whose fire hit the deceased and whose fire hit the injured could not be established. Hence, the benefit of doubt should be given to accused. In the first information report all the accused are named. Further P.W.1 Naseem has specifically stated the name of all the accused. It is specifically stated that accused Sarafat Ali was armed with licensed double barrel gun and other armed with country-made single barrel gun. Presence of all the accused is fully established from the evidence of P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar. It has also come in the evidence that all the accused were firing when the presence of all the accused alongwith overt act committed by them is stated by the witnesses then the presence of all the accused cannot be doubted.

(59) According to P.W. 5 Dr. V. R. Saxena injuries on the body of the deceased-Dunna must have been caused by firing from a distance. He did not find any blackening or tatooning on the injuries. Further dispersal was also in large area. According to the prosecution, accused Sharafat was armed with double barrel licensed gun. While, other accused were armed with single barrel country-made gun. P.W.1 Naseem has stated that the firing was done upon the deceased-Dunna from a distance of about 15 to 20 steps. It means that the injuries corelates with the ocular testimony of P.W.1 Naseem, P.W.2 Nisar. So far as injuries of P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar are concerned, there were blackening and tatooning on the wounds. P.W.2 Nisar has stated that fires upon P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar were made from a distance of about 3-4 'Kassi'. One kassi means three steps and one step is measured about two feet. Meaning thereby that fires were shot at a close range of about six feets. This statement further finds support from the medico legal examination report of P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar which was duly proved by P.W.3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey, who has stated that the injuries of Naseem and Nisar were caused by firing from a distance of about six feet. Hence, so far as, fire arms injuries of deceased-Dunna and fire arms injuries received by P.W.1 Naseem and P.W.2 Nisar are concerned, they are fully proved by the ocular evidence as well as fully supported and corroborated by the medical evidence.

(60) Now, it is to be seen as to whether involvement of all the accused in the incident is proved by the prosecution or not ? All the accused are named in the first information report which was lodged by P.W.1 Naseem who himself is an injured in the incident. Scribe of the report is produced by the defence as D.W.1 Mujeeb Ahmad, who has proved that the written report was dictated to him by injured Naseem. First information report was lodged promptly as we have already held that it was not ante-time as has been argued on behalf of accused-appellants. Further, first information report contains all the facts relating to the incident. We have already held that the first information report is reliable document. Further, P.W.1 Naseem and P.W 2 Nisar are injured witnesses who have deposed before the court that all the accused have caused injuries to Dunna as well as Naseem and Nisar. Dunna succumbed due to the injuries. Nature of injuries coupled with the medico-legal evidence also corroborates the prosecution version. It is the defence case that accused Ashfaq has also received injuries in the same incident and Israr lodged the FIR at the police station which has already been discussed in the earlier part of body of the judgment. Incident in question is fully proved by the evidence of prosecution, thereafter by the defence taken by the accused.

(61) So far as role of accused in commission of crime is concerned, according to the prosecution version, all the accused have assaulted upon the deceased Dunna and injured Naseem and Nisar by the firearms. Ocular evidence of PW-1 Naseem and PW-2 Nisar coupled with the evidence of PW-3 Dr. Anjani Kumar Dubey and PW-5 Dr. V.R. Saxena establishes that the deceased Dunna and injured Naseem and Nisar have received firearm injuries on 14.7.1999 at 7:30 AM. Defence itself has taken a plea of cross version that accused Ashfaq have received injuries in the incident and accused Israr has taken the accused Ashfaq to the police station to lodge the first information report which part has already been discussed in the earlier part of the judgment. Now, it is to be seen as to whether the involvement of all the accused in commission of the crime is proved or not ? Whether all the accused can be punished with the aid of Section 149 IPC ? Whether an unlawful assembly was made by them? Whether in furtherance of the common object of the unlawful assembly all the accused can be held guilty with the aid of section 149 ?

(62) In recent judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court State of Maharashtra versus Ram Lal Devappa Rathod and others (2016) 2 SCC Criminal 638 Hon'ble the Apex Court has held as under :-

"22.We may at this stage consider the law of vicarious liability as stipulated in Section 149 IPC. The key expressions in Section 149 IPC are:

(a) if an offence is committed by any member of an unlawful assembly;
(b) in prosecution of common object of that assemble;
(c) which the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object;
(d) every person who is a member of the same assembly is guilty of the offence.

This section makes both the categories of persons, those who committed the offence as also those who were members of the same assembly liable for the offences under Section 149 IPC, if other requirements of the section are satisfied. That is to say, if an offence is committed by any person of an unlawful assembly, which the members of that assembly knew to be likely to be committed, every member of that assembly is guilty of the offence. The law is clear that membership of unlawful assembly is sufficient to hold such members vicariously liable.

23. It would be useful to refer to certain decisions of this Court. In State of U.P. v. Kishanapal (2008) 16 SCC 73: it was observed :

"47..... It is well settled that once a membership of an unlawful assembly is established it is not incumbent on the prosecution to establish whether any specific overt act has been assigned to any accused. In other words, mere membership of the unlawful assembly is sufficient and every member of an unlawful assembly is vicariously liable for the acts done by others either in the prosecution of the common object of the unalwful assembly or such which the members of the unlawful assembly knew were likely to be committed."

Further in Amerika Rai v. State of Bihar (2011) 4 SCC 677 it was observed as under :

"13. The law of vicarious liability under Section 149 IPC is crystal clear that even the presence in the unlawful assembly, but with an active mind, to achieve the common object makes such a person vicariously liable for the acts of the unlawful assembly."

24. The liability of those members of the unlawful assembly who actually committed the offence would depend upon the nature and acceptability of the evidence on record. The difficulty may however arise, while considering the liability and extent of culpability of those who may not have actually committed the offence but were members of that assembly. What binds them and makes them vicariously liable is the common object in prosecution of which the offence was committed by other members of the unlawful assembly. Existence of common object can be ascertained from the attending facts and circumstances. For example, if more than five persons storm into the house of the victim where only few of them are armed while the others are not and the armed persons open an assault, even unarmed persons are vicariously liable for the acts committed by those armed persons. In such a situation it may not be difficult to ascertain the existence of common object as all the persons had stormed into the house of the victim and it could be assessed with certainty that all were guided by the common object, making every one of them liable. Thus when the persons forming the assembly are shown to be having same interest in pursuance of which some of them come armed, while others may not be so armed, such unarmed persons if they share the same common object, are liable for the acts committed by the armed persons. But in a situation where assault is opened by a mob of fairly large number of people, it may at times be difficult to ascertain whether those who had not committed any overt act were guided by the common object. There can be room for entertaining a doubt whether those persons who are not attributed of having done any specific over act, were innocent bystanders or were actually members of the unlawful assembly. It is for this reason that in Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202 this Court was cautious and cognizant that no particular part in respect of an overt act was assigned to any of the assailants except Laxmi Prasad. It is in this backdrop and in order to consider "whether the assembly consisted of some persons who were merely passive witnesses and had joined the assembly as a matter of idle curiosity without intending to entertain the common object of the assembly", this Court at SCR pp. 148-49 in Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202 observed that his participation as a member of the unlawful assembly ought to be spoken by more than one witness in order to lend corroboration. The test so adopted in Masalti was only to determine liability of those accused against whom there was no clear allegation of having committed any overt act but what was alleged against them was about their presence as members of the unlawful assembly. The test so adopted was not to apply to cases where specific allegations and overt acts constituting the offence are alleged or ascribed to certain named assailants. If such test is to be adopted even where there are specific allegations and overt acts attributed to certain named assailants. it would directly run counter to the well-known maxim that "evidence has to be weighed and not counted" as statutorily recognised in Section 134 of the Evidence Act.

(63) It was further held that "We do not find anything in Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202 which in any way qualifies the well settled principle that the conviction can be founded upon the testimony of even a single witness if it establishes in clear and precise terms, overt acts constituting the offence as committed by certain named assailants and if such testimony is otherwise reliable. It was further held that the test adopted in Masalti (supra) is required to be applied while dealing with the cases of those accused who are sought to be made vicariously responsible for the acts committed by others only by virtue of their alleged presence as members of unlawful assembly when any specific allegations of overt acts committed by them or where giving the nature of the assailant by the mob, the court comes to the conclusion that it would have been impossible for particular witness to have witnessed the relevant facets constituting the offecne.

(64) In another recent case of Susanta Das v. State of Orissa, (2016) 4 SCC 371 Hon'ble the Apex Court has dealt with the provisions of Section 149 IPC and held that it has to be necessarily shown that there was an assembly of five or more persons forming an unlawful assembly. When once such an participation of five or more persons is shown who indulge in an offence as a member of such an assembly, for the purpose of invoking section 149 IPC, it is not necessary that there must be specific overt act played by each of the member of such an unlawful assembly in the commission of an offence. What is required to be shown is the participation as a member in pursuance of a common object of the assembly or being a member of that assembly such person knew as to what is likely to be committed in prosecution of any such common object. Hon'ble the Apex Court has further placed reliance upon Ajit Savant Majagvai versus State of Karnataka (1997) 7 SCC 110. Hon'ble the Apex Court further approved and relied upon Rajendran versus State of Tamil Nadu (2004) 10 SCC 689 and Bishna versus State of West Bengal (2005) 12 SCC 657.

(65) In the Susanta Das case (supra) the facts of the case were that on 3.4.1996 at about 4:00 PM PW-8 and 11 alongwith deceased Padma Lochan Jena was attacked by accused who were five in number, each of them armed with deadly weapon. Learned trial court convicted the accused Ashok Das for offence punisable under section 302 IPC but acquitted the other accused on the ground that no clinching evidence was found to support the individual role played by each of the accused. On appeal High Court reversed the finding of acquittal and sentenced the four accused who were acquitted by the trial court. On appeal Hon'ble the Apex Court had dismissed the appeal holding that all the accused were liable for conviction with the aid of Section 149 as participation of all the accused in the offence was established.

(66) In the present case in the first information report PW-1 Naseem has named all the accused armed with firearms in the first information report. In the evidence also PW-1 Naseem and PW-2 Nisar, who were also injured in the incident, named all the accused and assigned them the role of firing. As has been held in the earlier part of the judgment defence version of self defence has failed, prosecution has successfully established the specific role of all the accused who have formed an unlawful assembly at the place of occurrence. It is proved by the evidence of PW-1 Naseem and PW-2 Nisar that accused have formed unlawful assembly near the place of occurrence. They all were present there. When the deceased Dunna came he was assaulted by the firearms by the accused in furtherance of the common object of the unlawful assembly.

(67) Hence, we are of the considered view that the learned trial court has rightly held the accused guilty for the offence of committing murder of Dunna and causing injuries to Naseem and Nisar. Prosecution has successfully proved the charges against the accused appellants.

(68) We are of the considered view that appeals are devoid of merit and are liable to be dismissed and are accordingly dismissed. Impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence is confirmed. Accused appellants are in jail. They shall serve out the sentence as imposed by the learned trial court.

(69) Office is directed to certify this order to the learned trial court to ensure compliance. Office is further directed to transmit the lower court record forthwith.

Criminal law – Criminal Revision — discharge application – rejected – SC/ST Act – caste related abusive language – public view – FIR – prima facie case – framing of charge – strong suspicion – police papers – Section 173 Cr.P.C. – probative value – cannot be gone into – material brought on record – accepted as true – interference at initial stage – revision dismissed.

This criminal revision has been preferred against the order dated 12.8.2016, passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Kanpur Nagar, in SST No. 83 of 2014, State Vs. Zafar and others, arising out of Case Crime No. 283 of 2008, u/s 323, 504, 506, 452, 325 I.P.C. and 3(1)(X) SC/ST Act, whereby the discharge application of the revisionists has been rejected.(Para-1)

Learned counsel for the revisionists has submitted that the court below has illegally rejected the discharge application of the revisionists without considering the submissions raised by them regarding non-applicability of SC/ST Act as no finding with regard to the applicability of section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act has been recorded by the court below. It is further submitted that the trial court while rejecting the discharge application has ignored the statements of the witnesses recorded by the I.O. in which not a single caste related word has been mentioned. Learned counsel has submitted that there is no iota of evidence on record that what specific words were used by the revisionists or what abuses were hurled by them to humiliate the O.P. No. 2/ a member of Scheduled caste, in public view, therefore, no offence u/s 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act, is made out against the revisionists. The learned counsel has submitted that the offence u/s 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act, being triable by the Special Judge/ Additional Sessions Judge, the right of the revisionists for filing an appeal before the Sessions Judge is curtailed in case the trial goes against the revisionist. Hence, it has been prayed that the revision be allowed, the impugned order be quashed and the case be remanded back to the court below to pass a fresh order on the discharge application moved by the revisionists.(Para-3)

Held:(Paras:- 7-14)
1.Thus a perusal of the FIR itself shows that prima facie, there is sufficient material that the the accused persons used caste related abusive language against the complainant in view of the public, to humiliate him.

As per settled law, at the stage of framing of charge, only prima-facie case is to be seen and even a strong suspicion in the mind of the court is sufficient to frame charge.

2.The Sessions Judge has the power to discharge the accused in the following circumstances;
A-where the evidence produced is not sufficient,
B- where there is no legal ground for proceeding against the accused,
C-where the prosecution is clearly barred by limitation, or
D-where he is precluded from proceeding because of a prior judgment of High Court.

3.In Sanghi Brothers (Indore) Pvt. Ltd. v. Sanjay Choudhary and others; 2009 (1) SCC (Cri) 87, it has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that even if there is a strong suspicion about the commission of offence and the involvement of the accused, it is sufficient for the Court to frame a charge.

4.In State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi, 2005 SCC (Cri) 415, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that at the time of framing charge, what the Trial Court is required to see and consider, are only the Police Papers referred to under Section 173, Cr.P.C. and documents sent with it. The accused cannot be permitted to produce documents to put forth his defence case for purpose of seeking discharge.

5.In Soma Chakravarty v. State (through CBI);2007 (2) SCC (Cri) 514, it has been observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court that at the time of framing of charges the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into, and the material brought on record by the prosecution has to be accepted as true at that stage. If on the basis of material on record the Court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed the offence, it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused has committed the offence. Whether, in fact, the accused committed the offence, can only be decided in the trial.

6.In Omwati v. State; AIR 2001 SC 1507, the Hon'ble Apex Court has expressed the clear view that the High Court should not interfere at initial stage of framing the charges merely on hypothesis, imagination and farfetched reasons, which in law amount to interdicting the trial against the accused persons.

7.In wake of the aforesaid legal position and considering the facts and circumstances of the present case and the prima facie evidence available on record, the revision appears to have no force and it is liable to be dismissed at the admission stage itself.The revision is accordingly dismissed.

2. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists and learned A.G.A.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionists has submitted that the court below has illegally rejected the discharge application of the revisionists without considering the submissions raised by them regarding non-applicability of SC/ST Act as no finding with regard to the applicability of section 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act has been recorded by the court below. It is further submitted that the trial court while rejecting the discharge application has ignored the statements of the witnesses recorded by the I.O. in which not a single caste related word has been mentioned. The learned counsel has submitted that the offence u/s 3(1)(x) SC/ST Act, being triable by the Special Judge/ Additional Sessions Judge, the right of the revisionists for filing an appeal before the Sessions Judge is curtailed in case the trial goes against the revisionist. Hence, it has been prayed that the revision be allowed, the impugned order be quashed and the case be remanded back to the court below to pass a fresh order on the discharge application moved by the revisionists.

4. Learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the application.

5. Considered the submissions.

6. A perusal of the FIR lodged by O.P. No. 2 against the revisionists and other accused persons, copy whereof has been annexed as Annexure no. 2 to the affidavit filed in support of the revision, shows that it is clearly mentioned in it that the revisionists and other accused persons reached at the house of the complainant and started throwing filthy abuse against the applicant related to mother and sister and uttered the words " lkys pekj uhp dgha ds] lkfcj dk edku [kkyh dj nks] ugha rks rqedks tku ls ekj Mkysaxsa". Thereafter they started beating the complainant with kicks, fists and hockey sticks. One of the accused Nadim also fired from the country made pistol, which he was carrying. It is stated in the FIR that on the alarm being raised, when the public gathered at the spot, the accused persons again used caste related abusive language against the complainant and threatened him to kill.

7. Thus a perusal of the FIR itself shows that prima facie, there is sufficient material that the the accused persons used caste related abusive language against the complainant in view of the public, to humiliate him. As per settled law, at the stage of framing of charge, only prima-facie case is to be seen and even a strong suspicion in the mind of the court is sufficient to frame charge.

8. The Sessions Judge has the power to discharge the accused in the following circumstances;

A-where the evidence produced is not sufficient,

B- where there is no legal ground for proceeding against the accused,

C-where the prosecution is clearly barred by limitation, or

D-where he is precluded from proceeding because of a prior judgment of High Court.

9. In Sanghi Brothers (Indore) Pvt. Ltd. v. Sanjay Choudhary and others; 2009 (1) SCC (Cri) 87, it has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that even if there is a strong suspicion about the commission of offence and the involvement of the accused, it is sufficient for the Court to frame a charge.

10. In State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi, 2005 SCC (Cri) 415, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that at the time of framing charge, what the Trial Court is required to see and consider, are only the Police Papers referred to under Section 173, Cr.P.C. and documents sent with it. The accused cannot be permitted to produce documents to put forth his defence case for purpose of seeking discharge.

11. In Soma Chakravarty v. State (through CBI); 2007 (2) SCC (Cri) 514, it has been observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court that at the time of framing of charges the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into, and the material brought on record by the prosecution has to be accepted as true at that stage. If on the basis of material on record the Court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed the offence, it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused has committed the offence. Whether, in fact, the accused committed the offence, can only be decided in the trial.

12. In Omwati v. 13. In wake of the aforesaid legal position and considering the facts and circumstances of the present case and the prima facie evidence available on record, the revision appears to have no force and it is liable to be dismissed at the admission stage itself.

The revision is accordingly dismissed.

Criminal Revision No.- 3514 Of 2012

Pradeep Kumar Saxsena ...Revisionist
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for the Revisionist:
M.S. Pandey

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:
Govt. Advocate, Sanjeev Kumar Mishra.

Criminal law – Criminal Revision — Section 125 Cr.P.C. – maintenance allowance – marriage denied – legally wedded wife – previous proceedings – concealment of fact – matrimonial relationship – basic issue not framed – pivotal issue – impugned order – set aside – readjudicate and decide afresh – remanded – in accordance with law..

The instant criminal revision has been preferred against the impugned judgment and order dated 25.9.2012 passed by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, District Bareilly in Criminal Misc. Case No.294 of 2008 (Smt. Suchitra and another vs. Pradeep Kumar Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station - Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly, by which learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly has directed the opposite party, Pradeep Kumar Saxena, to pay the sum of Rs. 3,000/- per month to the applicant/ opposite party no.2 Smt. Suchitra and a sum of Rs. 2,000/per month to the applicant/opposite party no.3, Km. Tanvi.

The facts which have been mentioned in the impugned judgment and order dated 25.9.2012 in narrow compass are stated as follows:-
."Opposite party no.2, Smt. Suchitra was allegedly married to the revisionist Pradeep Kumar Saxena on 21.2.2007. The opposite party no.2, Smt. Suchitra was allegedly tortured by her husband and in-laws due to demand of dowry. Meanwhile, she became pregnant on 15.7.2007. She was ousted from her in-laws' place and she gave birth to one female baby in her parent's house on 24.1.2008. The revisionist Pradeep Kumar Saxena earns Rs.12,000/- per month by working in the Laxmi Printing Press, Mathura and Rs.5,000/- per month in part time jobs and Rs.4,000/- per month as rent of his own house. Thus, she has prayed that she may be awarded Rs.5,000/- per month for herself and Rs.4,000/- per month for her infant baby girl as a maintenance allowance.(Para-3)

Held:(Paras:- 8-12)

1.During the course of the arguments, learned counsel for the revisionist has pointed out towards the plaint of Case No. 294 of 2008 (Smt. Suchitra and another vs. Pradeep Kumar Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly presented before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly and has argued that in paragraph 12 of the plaint it has been mentioned that she has never filed any suit before any court neither such type of case was pending nor has been dismissed regarding this and she was filing this case for the first time in the court. Whereas, the learned counsel for the revisionist has stated that opposite party no.2 Smt. Suchitra has presented a case No. 1259 of 1991 before the learned Family Court, Bareilly (Smt. Suchitra Saxena vs. Sushil Babu Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly, a copy of which is annexed as Annexure no.3 to this revision.

8.Learned counsel for the revisionist has also pointed out towards the annexure no.4 being the ex-parte judgment of the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Room No.2, Mathura in matrimonial case no. 160 of 2008 (Smt. Anita Saxena vs. Smt. Suchitra Saxena and another) dated 18.5.2011 by which the learned court has declared the plaintiff-Smt Anita Saxena as a legally wedded wife of defendant no.2-Pradeep Kumar Saxena.

9.Learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly has not framed the basic issue of matrimonial relationship between the opposite party no.2-Smt. Suchitra Saxena and the revisionist-Pradeep Kumar Saxena. This was the pivotal issue to decide this case.

10.The matter requires to be re-adjudicated afresh. The case is remanded back to the court of learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly to readjudicate and decide afresh in accordance with law on the basis of evidence already available on the record.

11.In the light of the above discussions, this criminal revision is liable to be allowed with the following directions to the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly :-
(i). The revision is allowed and impugned order dated 25.9.2012 passed by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, District Bareilly, is hereby set aside.
(ii). The learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly, is directed to readjudicate and decide the matter afresh in Criminal Misc. Case No.294 of 2008 (Smt. Suchitra and one another vs. Pradeep Kumar Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly in accordance with law on the basis of evidence already available on the record; within one month from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prabhat Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Sri M.S. Pandey, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri Sanjeev Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 and learned A.G.A. for the State are present.

2. The instant criminal revision has been preferred against the impugned judgment and order dated 25.9.2012 passed by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, District Bareilly in Criminal Misc. Case No.294 of 2008 (Smt. Suchitra and another vs. Pradeep Kumar Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly, by which learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly has directed the opposite party, Pradeep Kumar Saxena, to pay the sum of Rs. 3,000/- per month to the applicant/ opposite party no.2 Smt. Suchitra and a sum of Rs. 2,000/- per month to the applicant/opposite party no.3, Km. Tanvi.

3. The facts which have been mentioned in the impugned judgment and order dated 25.9.2012 in narrow compass are stated as follows:-

"Opposite party no.2, Smt. Suchitra was allegedly married to the revisionist Pradeep Kumar Saxena on 21.2.2007. The opposite party no.2, Smt. Suchitra was allegedly tortured by her husband and in-laws due to demand of dowry. Meanwhile, she became pregnant on 15.7.2007. She was ousted from her in-laws' place and she gave birth to one female baby in her parent's house on 24.1.2008. The revisionist Pradeep Kumar Saxena earns Rs.12,000/- per month by working in the Laxmi Printing Press, Mathura and Rs.5,000/- per month in part time jobs and Rs.4,000/- per month as rent of his own house. Thus, she has prayed that she may be awarded Rs.5,000/- per month for herself and Rs.4,000/- per month for her infant baby girl as a maintenance allowance.

The revisionist Pradeep Kumar Saxena denied the assertions made by the opposite party no.2 in her application for the maintenance allowance and has stated that opposite party no.2 was never married to him and she did not reside with him as his legally wedded wife. Opposite party no.2 was married to one Sushil Kumar Saxena s/o Late Om Prakash Saxena r/o Mohalla Chaukhanda, Raizada Inter College near Samsabad, District- Farrukhabad and she was residing with him as his legally wedded wife. Due to some misunderstanding between her and her husband Sushil Kumar Saxena, on 03.09.1991 she initiated a proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. registered as Case No.1259 of 1991 in the court which was dismissed on 12.7.1993. Due to absence of the opposite party no.2, she concealed the fact from the court that the revisionist was married to Smt. Anita Sexena d/o Rajendra Saxena, r/o Mohalla Madarsa, District Bulandshahar prior to the alleged marriage with the opposite party no.2. Due to this nuptial knot, she has been blessed with one son and one daughter and has been leading his marital life happily. Wife of the revisionist Smt. Anita Saxena has initiated a civil suit of declaration for declaring the aforesaid marriage with the opposite party no.2 as null and void in the court of the learned Civil Judge, (S.D.), Mathura which is pending as ex-parte in the court and the opposite party no.2 is not appearing in the court intentionally."

4. The learned Principal Judge, Family Court has framed following issues:-

(i). Whether the applicant is unable to maintain herself and her minor daughter?

(ii). Whether the applicant is living separately with the opposite party due to proper reason and she is liable to be awarded maintenance allowance?

(iii). Whether opposite party can afford to pay maintenance allowance?

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

6. During the course of the arguments, learned counsel for the revisionist has pointed out towards the plaint of Case No. 294 of 2008 (Smt. Suchitra and another vs. Pradeep Kumar Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly presented before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly and has argued that in paragraph 12 of the plaint it has been mentioned that she has never filed any suit before any court neither such type of case was pending nor has been dismissed regarding this and she was filing this case for the first time in the court.

7. Whereas, the learned counsel for the revisionist has stated that opposite party no.2 Smt. Suchitra has presented a case No. 1259 of 1991 before the learned Family Court, Bareilly (Smt. Suchitra Saxena vs. Sushil Babu Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly, a copy of which is annexed as Annexure no.3 to this revision.

8. Learned counsel for the revisionist has also pointed out towards the annexure no.4 being the ex-parte judgment of the learned Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Room No.2, Mathura in matrimonial case no. 160 of 2008 (Smt. Anita Saxena vs. Smt. Suchitra Saxena and another) dated 18.5.2011 by which the learned court has declared the plaintiff-Smt Anita Saxena as a legally wedded wife of defendant no.2-Pradeep Kumar Saxena.

9. Learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly has not framed the basic issue of matrimonial relationship between the opposite party no.2-Smt. Suchitra Saxena and the revisionist-Pradeep Kumar Saxena. This was the pivotal issue to decide this case.

10. The matter requires to be re-adjudicated afresh. The case is remanded back to the court of learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly to re-adjudicate and decide afresh in accordance with law on the basis of evidence already available on the record.

11. In the light of the above discussions, this criminal revision is liable to be allowed with the following directions to the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly :-

(i). The revision is allowed and impugned order dated 25.9.2012 passed by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, District Bareilly, is hereby set aside.

(ii). The learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bareilly, is directed to re-adjudicate and decide the matter afresh in Criminal Misc. Case No.294 of 2008 (Smt. Suchitra and one another vs. Pradeep Kumar Saxena) under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station- Subhash Nagar, District- Bareilly in accordance with law on the basis of evidence already available on the record; within one month from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

Civil Law-Motor Accident Claims Tribunal – insurance policy – not filed – admitted in written statement – authorised passenger – liability of insurer – inconsistent stand – burden shifted – failure to produce document – procedural irregularity – summary proceedings – fair procedure – failure to record clear finding – extent of liability – injustice – award set aside – matter remitted – fresh decision.

FAFO No. 1029 of 2014 filed for enhancement of compensation arises out of the award rendered on 8.9.2014 in Claim Petition No. 114 of 1993 and FAFO No. 174 of 2015 arising out of the same award filed by the insurance company were heard together.(Para 1)

Sri Anil Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellants in FAFO No. 174 of 2015 and Sri Mohd. Saeed, learned counsel for the claimants were heard at length. The owner of the vehicle i.e. opposite party no. 4 though being served, has remained unrepresented and the respondent no. 5 who died during pendency of the claim petition itself, stands deleted from the array of parties.(Para 2)

It is also informed that opposite party no. 2 during pendency of claim petition had died, therefore, the appeal would not be maintainable against him as well. In these circumstances, the surviving respondents are respondent no. 1, 3 and 4 out of whom 1 and 3 are the claimants whereas respondent no. 4 is the owner of the offending vehicle.(Para 3)

In enhancement appeal no. 1029 of 2014 Sri Mohd. The written notice served upon Sri Mohd. Arif Jaffri, is taken on record.(Para 4)

Held: (Para-14-17)

1.This Court does not appreciate such a practice on the part of the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal where the proceedings though of summary nature are bound to be decided fairly and with due application of mind. Insofar as the procedure is concerned, by virtue of Rule 221 of U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 Order XVI Rule 2 to 21 CPC are applicable wherein Order XVI Rule 6 in particular empowers the Tribunal to summon a document from the authority possessed with the same that may be decisive for adjudication of a claim. The application filed by the claimants for summoning of the insurance policy at worst was liable to be allowed at the cost of claimants but the order passed by the Tribunal leaving it open to the claimant and the owner to file such a document has allowed an uncertainty to creep in, resultantly, due to lack of necessary evidence on record, even this Court cannot record a finding one way or the other conclusively. Not only that the appellant has failed to file a copy of the insurance policy till date but the position is not better when the conduct of claimant or the owner is viewed.

2.The parties contesting the claim including the insurance company as well as the Tribunal having failed to lay hands on such a vital document, as a matter of fact, have contributed to the resultant injustice which could be avoided by showing due diligence by the Tribunal at an appropriate stage. The procedure to be adopted by the Tribunal is bound to be meticulously just and fair for the reason that it serves the purpose of justice. The Tribunals must bear in mind that the summary claims have not only to be decided expeditiously but judgements rendered by the Tribunals have to stand the test of real and expeditious justice. The case at hand is a glaring example where the procedure prescribed under law has not been seriously observed. Not only that the appeal filed by the insurance company but the appeal for enhancement being bereft of merit call for an interference to the extent that the matter in its entirety is remitted to the Tribunal for returning a clear finding on the question of extent of insurance of passengers as per insurance policy relating to the vehicle in question. Thus, the award in question is set aside and the matter in its entirety is remitted to the Tribunal for fresh decision.

3.Let record of the case be sent back to the Tribunal for rendering a decision by recording a clear finding on issues no. 3 and 5. For this purpose it is open to the Tribunal to call for the requisite insurance policy from the insurance company and in the event of failure on their part to file the same a clear finding fixing the liability thereof be recorded and the issues be decided accordingly. Quantum of compensation be also adverted to afresh by considering the relevant material. This exercise shall be undertaken by the Tribunal within a period of six months from the date a certified copy of this judgement is filed. The parties shall appear before the Tribunal on 7.11.2016.

4.In the result the FAFO No. 174 of 2015 is allowed and the enhancement appeal, namely, FAFO No. 1029 of 2014 being dependent upon the award becomes infructuous at this stage and is consigned to record accordingly.

Case Law discussed:

(Delivered by Hon'ble Attau Rahman Masoodi, J.)

1. FAFO No. 1029 of 2014 filed for enhancement of compensation arises out of the award rendered on 8.9.2014 in Claim Petition No. 114 of 1993 and FAFO No. 174 of 2015 arising out of the same award filed by the insurance company were heard together.

2. Sri Anil Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellants in FAFO No. 174 of 2015 and Sri Mohd. Saeed, learned counsel for the claimants were heard at length. The owner of the vehicle i.e.

opposite party no. 4 though being served, has remained unrepresented and the respondent no. 5 who died during pendency of the claim petition itself, stands deleted from the array of parties.

3. It is also informed that opposite party no. 2 during pendency of claim petition had died, therefore, the appeal would not be maintainable against him as well. In these circumstances, the surviving respondents are respondent no. 1, 3 and 4 out of whom 1 and 3 are the claimants whereas respondent no. 4 is the owner of the offending vehicle.

4. In enhancement appeal no. 1029 of 2014 Sri Mohd. Saeed represented the appellant whereas Sri Waqar Hashim argued on behalf of the insurance company, however respondent no. 2 i.e. the owner though being represented through Mohd. Arif Jaffri, learned counsel, despite a written notice, has chosen not to appear and the proceedings being fixed for hearing have thus proceeded treating the notice to be sufficient. The written notice served upon Sri Mohd. Arif Jaffri, is taken on record.

5. From the perusal of record it is seen that by order dated 29.8.2013 passed by the learned Tribunal, it was left open to the owner of the vehicle and the claimants both to place a copy of the insurance policy on record and this order has remained unchallenged throughout.

6. On the premise of the aforesaid order, Sri Anil Srivastava, learned counsel for the Oriental Insurance Company has argued that once the responsibility of filing the insurance policy was shifted upon the claimants and the owner, there was no occasion for the insurance company to have placed on record the relevant document although in the written statement filed before the Tribunal on behalf of the insurance company paragraphs 17 and 22 make a specific admission as regards the insurance of vehicle, which are reproduced as under:

"17. That in reply to para 17 of the petition it is admitted to the extent that the alleged vehicle was insured with the answering opposite party with liability limited to the extent as enumerated in the policy terms and conditions and as laid down in the Motor Vehicle Act.

22. That the contents of para 22 of the petition are specifically denied. It is stated that the petitioner has not only claimed and set excessive and exorbitant claim but the said claim is also unreasonable. It is stated that the claimant is not entitled to any claim/compensation from the answering opposite party, specially when the liability of the answering opposite party is limited to the extent as per the terms and conditions of the policy. It is also stated that the liability of the answering opposite party is limited in case of property damage of third party."

7. Not only that the written statement had admitted the existence of the insurance policy of the vehicle in question but the evidence of one Jagdish Prasad, a clerical staff of the insurance company was also led before the Tribunal who in his examination-in-chief stated that the document of driving licence is filed as paper no. C-29 whereas the document of insurance policy is filed as Ga-30. As regards the driving licence, it was stated by the witness that the said document was obtained through a surveyor who is not a permanent employee of the company but apparently driving licence being valid, the same cannot be doubted. Insofar as paper Ga-30 (insurance policy) is concerned, the owner of the vehicle while conducting cross-examination did not ask any question although the policy filed did not relate to the owner's vehicle. The statement made in the cross-examination merely shows that document Ga-30 is the insurance policy placed on record. Thus, learned Tribunal while deciding the claim on issues no. 3 and 5, has proceeded on the basis of evidence led by the claimants and the insurance company alone. In the light of pleadings and the evidence led before the Tribunal, the point of determination that crops up for consideration before this Court is; whether the deceased being the owner of the goods was an authorised passenger and if yes, whether such a person was covered within the scope of insurance policy or not.

8. It may be noticed that prior to the amendment of 1994 in the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, there was no statutory obligation on the part of the owner of transport vehicle to insure liability of the insurance company for extra passenger i.e. the owner of the goods or his representative. However if the contract of insurance provided that extra cover, then the liability of the insurer was construed as per terms of the policy.

9. It is an admitted position that the deceased being owner of the goods was not an unauthorised passenger but what is disputed is that the authorised passenger was not insured as per the contract of insurance policy issued by the insurance company. Once the deceased was admittedly an authorised passenger and the existence of insurance policy was also admitted in the written statement filed by the insurance company, the question that immediately crops up is as to the extent of liability of the insurer. The liability was denied by the insurer by filing an additional written statement on 25.7.2013 wherein paras 1 and 6 state as under:

"1. That by way of order dated 29.05.1999, the answering opposite party/Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Was absolved of its liability and the liability of award was fixed upon opposite party no. 1, as the deceased was travelling in the alleged vehicle as a gratious passenger. Further by way of order dated 17.02.2012, order dated 29.05.1999 was set aside on depositing Rs. 1,00,000/- before the Hon'ble Tribunal, by the owners, such the need of this additional written statement of opposite party no. 3 before this Hon'ble Tribunal arose, as opposite party no. 1, filed its written statement before this Hon'ble Tribunal on dated 15.09.2012.

6. That as per order dated 29.05.1999, the Hon'ble Tribunal had clearly observed and held that the deceased was travelling in the alleged vehicle, at the time of alleged occurrence, as a gratious passenger and which is clearly the violation of the policy of insurance and thereby by way of said order had absolved the liability of opposite party no. 3, as against the payment of award, but had fixed the liability on opposite party no. 1, on account of violation of the conditions of the policy of insurance."

10. The statement made in paras 1 and 6 of the additional written statement when read alongwith para 17 and 22 of the written statement already reproduced above, lead to an inconsistency. On the one hand the insurance company admitted the existence of insurance policy but on the other hand, it is stated that the deceased was a gratuitous passenger.

11. Looking to the anomalous stand advanced bdy the insurance company, the owner of the vehicle filed an application on 29.8.2013 for summoning the copy of insurance policy, which was disposed of by an order passed on the same date, which reads as under:

याचिका प्रस्तुत हुई। पुकार करायी गयी। पुकार पर याचिनी के अधिवक्ता उपस्थित हैं। याचिनी पी०डब्लू01 के रूप में पुर्व में परीक्षित हो चुकी है। वर्ष 1993 के मोटर दुर्घटना प्रतिकर याचिका के इस मामले में पहले निर्णय दिनांक 29.05.1999 को पारित हुआ था इस निर्णय को निरस्त करने के लिए विपक्षी संख्या 1 फारुख अहमद की तरफ से आदेश 9 नियम 13 सपठित धारा 151 सी०पी०सी० के अन्तर्गत प्रार्थना पत्र प्रस्तुत किया गया था जो स्वीकार हुआ था। अब याचिका वास्ते याची साक्ष्य नियत है। याचिनी गवाही के लिए उपस्थित है परन्तु 12-45 पी० एम० तक विपक्षी संख्या 1 की तरफ से कोई उपस्थित नहीं आया। विपक्षी संख्या 3. बीमा कम्पनी के अधिवक्ता आज न्यायालय में उपस्थित आ चुके हैं। याचिका पुनः 2-30 पी० एम० पर पेश हो।"

13. Once the burden was shifted upon the claimants and the owner as per the order dated 29.8.2013, the insurance company did not choose to file the policy in relation to the vehicle in question so as to defend its liability.

14. Surprisingly while dealing with the issue which was open to be decided on the basis of a documentary evidence, the Tribunal misdirected its procedure and allowed more doubt to creep in and in this manner the Tribunal has failed to record a clear finding of fact on the aspect of extent of the liability of insurer.

15. This Court does not appreciate such a practice on the part of the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal where the proceedings though of summary nature are bound to be decided fairly and with due application of mind. Insofar as the procedure is concerned, by virtue of Rule 221 of U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 Order XVI Rule 2 to 21 CPC are applicable wherein Order XVI Rule 6 in particular empowers the Tribunal to summon a document from the authority possessed with the same that may be decisive for adjudication of a claim. Not only that the appellant has failed to file a copy of the insurance policy till date but the position is not better when the conduct of claimant or the owner is viewed.

16. The parties contesting the claim including the insurance company as well as the Tribunal having failed to lay hands on such a vital document, as a matter of fact, have contributed to the resultant injustice which could be avoided by showing due diligence by the Tribunal at an appropriate stage. the appeal filed by the insurance company but the appeal for enhancement being bereft of merit call for an interference to the extent that the matter in its entirety is remitted to the Tribunal for returning a clear finding on the question of extent of insurance of passengers as per insurance policy relating to the vehicle in question. Thus, the award in question is set aside and the matter in its entirety is remitted to the Tribunal for fresh decision.

Civil law – defendant's appeal – mining lease – lease deed – quarrying – sand – silica sand – royalty – U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1951 – vesting of estates – rights, title and interest – mines and minerals – sub-soil – intermediary – statutory lease – MMRD Act, 1957 – ownership – proprietor – zamindar – lease valid and legal – promissory estoppel – royalty demand – void illegal and without jurisdiction – injunction.

This is a defendant's appeal under Section 96 of Code of Civil Procedure, arisen from the judgment and decree dated 02.07.1979 passed by Sri Ghanshyam Pandey, Civil Judge/Judge Small Causes Court at Allahabad in Original Suit No. 107 of 1969, whereby he had decreed the suit with cost in the following manner :

"Defendants are restrained from interfering in any manner whatsoever with the enjoyment and possession of the plaintiff over the land and mines held by her in pursuance of lease dated and as granted by the lease deeds dated 16.4.47 and 27.4.59 and also of all the minerals extracted from mines from the areas covered by said leases. Defendants are further restrained from inviting or accepting applications and considering or granting any mining lease for any mineral covered under the mining lease held by plaintiff for the area or any part or portion thereof which is mentioned in aforesaid plaintiff's lease deeds dated 16.4.47 and 27.4.59 so long as the subsisting lease in favour of plaintiff is in force and is not otherwise terminated or cancelled by any court of law of competent jurisdiction or in accordance with law. Defendants also cannot demand or realise the sum of rupees nine lacs forty thousand two hundred thirty five and paise five (940235.5 p.) as royalty for the period from 1.1.52 to 26.6.68, from plaintiff as claimed by them other than royalty stipulated in plaintiff's lease deed dated 16.4.47 and 27.4.59 till these leases are subsisting and are not cancelled or amended in accordance with law. It is also declared that the impugned order dated 31.5.68 and all subsequent orders etc. flowing there from in any manner directing that a clearance certificate from D.M./Collector is necessary before booking and transfer of silica sand situated within the district of Allahabad is void illegal and without jurisdiction. Plaintiff's suit for damages and also pendentelite and future damages is dismissed with cost. It is also made clear that defendants and all their servants, agent and subordinates will not hold out threat of criminal prosecution against plaintiff for alleged illegal mining of silica sand till her lease deeds are subsisting and are not terminated, modified or cancelled by any law or competent Court and plaintiff does not act centrary to any relevant law and also against the terms of lease." (emphasis added)

(Para2)

Original Suit No. 107 of 1969 was filed by Smt. Rani Rajendri Kumari Ba, w/o- Maharao Raja Kamlakar Singh, R/o- Sankargarh, Tehsil Karchhana, District Allahabad, impleading State of U.P. through Secretary, Industries and Union of India, New Delhi (hereinafter referred to as the plaintiff-respondent) as defendants. Plaintiff initially impleaded only State of U.P. as sole defendant but subsequently made amendment by impleading Union of India as defendant no.2 vide Court's order dated 24.9.1969. The plaintiff – respondent claimed following reliefs :

" (a) by prohibiting the defendants and all their servants, agents and subordinates by a permanent prohibiting injunction directing the defendants by themselves and through their officers and agents not to hold out threats of criminal prosecution against the plaintiff alleging that the plaintiff will be prosecuted and proceeded criminally for the alleged illegal mining silica sand from the area under lease of the plaintiff. (Valued at Rs. 2,000/-).

(b) by restraining the Government of U.P. and the Union of India by issue of a permanent prohibitory injunction prohibiting them from interfering in any manner whatsoever with the enjoyment and possession of the plaintiff over the land and mines held by the plaintiff in pursuance of the lease deed and as granted by the lease deed dated 16th April, 1947 and 27 April 1959 and also of all the minerals extracted from the mines from the areas covered by the said lease. (valued at Rs. 10,000/-)

(c) to issue a permanent prohibitory injunction restraining the Government of U.P. from inviting or granting any mining lease for any mineral covered under the mining lease held by the plaintiff for the area or any part or portion thereof which is mentioned in the aforesaid lease deed dated 16th April, 1947 and 27th April, 1959 so long as the subsisting lease in favour of the plaintiff is in force and is not otherwise terminated or cancelled by any court of law of competent jurisdiction. (valued at Rs. 2,000/-)

(d) to issue a permanent prohibitory injunction restraining the Government of U.P. and the Union of India from demanding or releasing the sum of Rs. 9,40,225/25 claimed by the defendants as royalty for the period from 1.1.1952 to 26.6.68 for the alleged mining of the so called silica sand or any royalty other than the royalty stipulated in the lease deed dated 16th April 1947 and 27th April 1959 from the plaintiff for extracting minerals including sand (silica sand) from the area held under lease deed is subsisting and is not otherwise cancelled amended or altered by the any competent court having jurisdiction in the matter. (valued at Rs. 10,000/-)"(Para 3)

HELD:(Paras 159-167)

1.Moreover, in the present case, deemed statutory lease under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 came to an end on execution of another lease on 27.04.1959, hence statutory lease after enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957 got subjected to that Act, particularly in respect of royalty under Section 9, and thereafter vanished when new agreement was executed by plaintiff with State of U.P. It is a different matter that this new agreement, being in the teeth of MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereafter was unenforceable, inexecutable and inoperative since inception.

2.Term of lease dated 27.04.1959 noticed above, would show that lease is in perpetuity and not for a fixed tenure. The amount of royalty mentioned therein does not concur to the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. It permits lessee to excavate and quarry Stone, Ballast, Kankar, Morrum and Sand. A lessee can work out mining operation throughout the year. He is also entitled to sublet the premises to any person but without consent of lessor it shall not assign. Further right is given to lessee for renewal with limited enhancement of royalty at the end of every 50 years. The MMRD Act, 1957 admittedly came into force on 1.6.1958 i.e. before execution of lease deed dated 27.4.1959. After enforcement of said Act to the extent it is applicable, denudation of power of State is total and not partial, as held in P. Kannadasan V. State of Tamilnadu (1996) 5 SCC 70 =AIR 1996 SC 2560. 161. All the items for which mining lease was granted vide lease deed dated 27.4.1959 did satisfy the definition of "minerals" under Section 3(a) and (e) of MMRD Act, 1957. "Minerals" means an organic substance found either on or in the earth which may be garnered and exploited for profits as observed in V.P. Pithupitchal and Anr. Vs. Special Secretary to the Government of Tamilnadu, AIR 2003 SC 2455. Neither under provisions of MMRD Act, 1957, mining lease in perpetuity could have been granted nor for more than the area, prescribed as maximum area under Section 6 could have been provided, nor there could have been any occasion to agree for payment of royalty, which is not consistent with Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957.

3.Thus, in the light of discussion made above, it cannot be doubted that on and after enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957, neither plaintiff-respondent had any right to continue mining on the disputed land nor removal of minerals without payment of royalty. In fact, entire mining operation and removal of minerals on the part of plaintiff-respondent and other sub-lessees was patently illegal, without any authority of law and in flagrant violation of provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. The lease deed dated 27.04.1959 was completely illegal, nullity and void-ab-initio. Question No. (vii) is answered accordingly.

4.The above findings make it clear that demand of royalty by Collector for the period from 01.01.1952 till 31.05.1958, when MMRD Act, 1957 came into force, being an amount outside statutory lease was not justified and valid. To that extent, impugned demand dated 31.05.1968, by Collector, demanding royalty for the period prior to 01.06.1958, was not valid. However, on and after 01.06.1958 entire mining operation carried out by plaintiff-respondent or sublessees including removal of minerals from land in dispute is/was wholly illegal. We also hold that State Government vide letter dated 14.02.1966 rightly informed plaintiff-respondent that he had been quarrying silica sand etc. from disputed villages illegally and in violation of provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. The demand of royalty by Collector for the period 01.06.1958 and onwards is absolutely legal and plaintiff-respondent was/is liable to pay the same.

5.In the result, we set aside impugned judgment and decree dated 02.07.1979 passed by Civil Judge/Judge Small Causes Court at Allahabad in Original Suit No. 107 of 1969 except to the extent that plaintiff-respondent was not liable to pay royalty from 01.07.1952 to 31.05.1958 to Collector as demanded by him under the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder vide order dated 31.5.1968, but in respect of all other aspects and all other reliefs sought by plaintiff-respondent including liability on and after 01.06.1958, plaintiff-respondent was/is not entitled for any relief, whatsoever. The suit of plaintiff-respondent, therefore, is also liable to be dismissed in this regard.

6.However, since plaintiff-respondent has continued with mining operations initially under interim injunction granted by Court below and thereafter in the light of final judgment, it is our duty to put defendant-appellant in a position so that it may not stand permanently suffered for the act of the Court by issuing such direction as may restore State to its position in which it would have been. We find it appropriate to decide the appeal in following manner:
(i).Demand of Collector vide letter dated 31.05.1968 forpayment of royalty from 01.07.1952 to 31.05.1958 is hereby declared illegal.
(ii).In respect to all other reliefs sought by plaintiff, impugnedjudgment and decree dated 02.07.1979 is hereby set aside and the suit hereby is dismissed to that extent.
(iii).The defendant-appellant shall henceforth proceed torecover entire amount of royalty payable by plaintiff-respondent on and after 01.06.1958 till the date of this decision along with interest, if provided in the statute, as per the rates prescribed therein, and if not provided in Statute at the rate of 9 per cent per annum forthwith and without any further delay.
(iv).Plaintiff-respondent shall not carry out mining operations henceforth and defendant-appellant shall forthwith take steps to restrict defendant-appellant and its sub-lessees from undergoing any mining operation in the aforesaid 46 villages in respect to the minerals stated in this judgment and shall proceed to grant lease in accordance with provisions of MMRD Act, 1947 and Rules framed thereunder and only thereafter shall allow mining operations.

7.Appeal is partly allowed in the manner aforesaid. Defendant-Appellant shall be entitled to cost throughout to the extent it has succeeded in this appeal.

2. This is a defendant's appeal under Section 96 of Code of Civil Procedure, arisen from the judgment and decree dated 02.07.1979 passed by Sri Ghanshyam Pandey, Civil Judge/Judge Small Causes Court at Allahabad in Original Suit No. 107 of 1969, whereby he had decreed the suit with cost in the following manner :

"Defendants are restrained from interfering in any manner whatsoever with the enjoyment and possession of the plaintiff over the land and mines held by her in pursuance of lease dated and as granted by the lease deeds dated 16.4.47 and 27.4.59 and also of all the minerals extracted from mines from the areas covered by said leases. Defendants are further restrained from inviting or accepting applications and considering or granting any mining lease for any mineral covered under the mining lease held by plaintiff for the area or any part or portion thereof which is mentioned in aforesaid plaintiff's lease deeds dated 16.4.47 and 27.4.59 so long as the subsisting lease in favour of plaintiff is in force and is not otherwise terminated or cancelled by any court of law of competent jurisdiction or in accordance with law. Defendants also cannot demand or realise the sum of rupees nine lacs forty thousand two hundred thirty five and paise five (940235.5 p.) as royalty for the period from 1.1.52 to 26.6.68, from plaintiff as claimed by them other than royalty stipulated in plaintiff's lease deed dated 16.4.47 and 27.4.59 till these leases are subsisting and are not cancelled or amended in accordance with law. It is also declared that the impugned order dated 31.5.68 and all subsequent orders etc. flowing there from in any manner directing that a clearance certificate from D.M./Collector is necessary before booking and transfer of silica sand situated within the district of Allahabad is void illegal and without jurisdiction. Plaintiff's suit for damages and also pendentelite and future damages is dismissed with cost. It is also made clear that defendants and all their servants, agent and subordinates will not hold out threat of criminal prosecution against plaintiff for alleged illegal mining of silica sand till her lease deeds are subsisting and are not terminated, modified or cancelled by any law or competent Court and plaintiff does not act centrary to any relevant law and also against the terms of lease."

5. The plaint case set up is that Maharao Raja Kamlakar Singh (hereinafter referred to as Kamlakar Singh) was proprietor of Bara Estate. 46 Villages mentioned in Schedule-A of the plaint and others comprised Bara Estate and Kamlakar Singh was the owner and proprietor of villages. In his capacity of owner and proprietor of these villages, he had absolute right to excavate and quarry Stones, Ballast, Kankar, Moram etc., found in those villages.

6. On 16th April, 1947, Kamlakar Singh transferred quarries of stones, Ballast, Kankar, Moram etc. by a registered lease deed executed in favour of plaintiff-respondent, his wife. The stipulations of lease deed, relevant for the purpose of the suit, and reproduced in para-5 of plaint, are reproduced as under:

"(a) That the lessee shall have liberty and power to enter upon the land mentioned in the Schedule 'A' hereto and to search for and dig and obtain by excavation and quarrying both open to the day light and by underground working, the demise stone, ballast, kankar, moram and sand and to carry away and dispose of the same for her own benefit.

(b) That the lessee shall have liberty and power to enter upon and to use and occupy to such an extent as may be deemed necessary by the lessee, the lessor's other land adjoining other pits (hereinafter called the said land) for depositing and heaping thereon the produce of the said quarries and all earth, soil and other substance dug up and brought to the surface in or about the working of the same and for otherwise carrying on the work of the said quarries.

(c) The lessee shall have the liberty and power to take lead and carry away from the said land the stone, ballast, kankar, morrum and sand to be obtained as aforesaid and disposed of the same at her will and pleasure.

(d) During the term of this demise, the lessee shall pay a royalty at the rate of Rs. 4000/- (four thousand only) annually payable in two equal instalments, the first instalment to be due on the 1st of June and the second instalment on the 1st of December every year whether the lessee quarries or carries on any operations or not.

(e) that lessee may export stone, ballast, kankar, morrum and sand from the quarries, hereby demised all the year round.

(f) The lessee shall be entitled to sublet the premises hereby demised or any part hereof or any right or privileges under the lease to any person without the consent in writing of the lessor. But it will not be open to the lessee to assign her interest in the said lease in any manner whatsoever without the written consent of the lessor.

(g) At the end of every fifty years from the date of the execution hereof it will be open to the lessor to increase the amount of annual royalty payable by the lessee in accordance with the terms hereof by 10% in which case the royalty so fixed at the time of revision thereof by the lessor shall be payable by the lessee and all the terms with regard to the payment thereof shall apply to the amount so fixed."

7. The Estate held by Kamlakar Singh known as Bara Raj is an ancient Estate. Succession to the said Estate was governed by primogeniture. It was an impartible Estate. The family of Kamlakar Singh was directly connected with the ruling family of erstwhile Rewa Estate. Emperor Shah Alam in Hijri 1188 had granted a Sanad of full ownership of whole property of "Bara Raj" to the then Raja Rao Vikramaditya Singh. By virtue of said Sanad and by virtue of Wajibul Arz applicable to Bara Raj, the ancestors of Kamlakar Singh had been enjoying, all through, full, absolute and unrestricted rights over the area comprised in "Bara Raj", and worked, excavated, carried out and appropriated all minerals found within the area of Bara Raj, without any restriction and without paying any royalty to any superior authority. From time to time, proprietors of Bara Raj had been granting mining leases to different parties for extracting ballast, sand, bolders, moram and other minerals found within the area comprising Bara Raj. Mining of minerals by lessees, all through being done without any interruption and without paying royalty to the Government or any superior authority. The plaintiff-respondent after having lease of 46 villages, mentioned in Schedule-A to the plaint, sublet portions of demised land and right to excavate quarry stones, ballast, Kankar, Moram etc. to various other parties.

8. With effect from 1st July, 1952, with the enactment and enforcement of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1951 (U.P. Act No. 1 of 1951) (hereinafter referred to as "U.P. Act, 1951"), rights of Kamlakar Singh in the land in dispute extinguished by virtue of Section 4 of the said Act. However under Section 108 of 1951, the plaintiff became lessee of Government of U.P. on 1.7.1952, on the same terms and conditions of the then subsisting lease.

9. The plaintiff-respondent continued to excavate and quarry sand (silica sand) under the lease deed of 1947 till it was acknowledged by State of U.P. in accordance with Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951. On 27.04.1959, Governor of U.P. and plaintiff-respondent entered into a lease of mines, situated in the aforesaid villages, on the same terms and conditions as leased out by Kamlakar Singh in 1947. Under lease deed dated 27.04.1959, plaintiff was given liberty and power to enter upon the land mentioned in the schedule, attached to the deed of lease, and to search for, dig and obtain by excavation and quarrying, both open to day light and under ground working Stone, Ballast, Kankar, Moram and Sand etc. and to carry away and dispose of the same for her own benefit. The plaintiff was also conferred right to sublet the premises demised under the aforesaid lease or any part thereof or any right or privilege to any person, without written consent of the lessor. The plaintiff thus was enjoying all the aforesaid rights throughout.

10. After State Government executed lease deed on 27.04.1959, in 1959 in the area leased out to plaintiff, sand which was available and used to be extracted, quarried, mined etc. is commonly called as "silica sand", used for manufacture of glass, silicate and in foundry etc. It is this sand which plaintiff had been quarrying, excavating etc. throughout and none else.

11. Under lease deed dated 27.04.1959, plaintiff was to pay royalty at the rate of Rs. 4000/- per annum in two equal installments on 1st of June and 1st of December in the year, irrespective of whether plaintiff"s quarries are carried in mining operation or not during the year. This royalty had been paid and is being paid by plaintiff throughout. The plaintiff was excavating and digging Stones, Ballast, Kankar, Moram and sand etc. under the lease deed dated 16.4.1947 and continued to do so under the lease deed dated 27.4.1959 executed by State of U.P.

12. At no point of time, State of U.P. took objection regarding digging or excavation of sand i.e. "silica sand". On 17th February, 1966, the plaintiff received a letter from Secretary of Government of U.P., dated 14.02.1966, stating that plaintiff had been quarrying large quantity of silica sand from villages mentioned in lease deed in contravention of terms thereof and also in flagrant violation of the provisions of Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957 (hereinafter referred to as "MMRD Act, 1957") and Rules framed thereunder. Plaintiff was called upon to stop quarrying of "silica sand" forthwith and cancel all sub-leases granted by her, authorizing quarrying of silica sand to others. Plaintiff was also directed to render full account of silica sand quarried by her and her sub-lessees within 15 days of the receipt of letter and deposit royalty for silica sand, quarried by her or her sub lessees, at the rate of Rs. 0.75 per tone within a month of receipt of the letter. It was also written in the notice that in case of default, lease deed dated 27.04.1959 may be cancelled and action for recovery of royalty money as well as prosecution for unauthorised mining may be initiated.

13. The case of plaintiff is that she had every right to quarry sand found at the leased out premises. State Government had no right to prohibit plaintiff from doing so and direction to stop quarrying or demand of royalty money was illegal. Lease was granted by virtue of Section 108 of U.P. Act No. 1 of 1951 and Mineral Concession Rules had no application to the same. District Magistrate/Collector, Allahabad also issued an order dated 31.5.1968 to Divisional Superintendent, Railway Administration operating within the district of Allahabad that illegal quarried silica sand is being transported by Railways at the instance of persons, who have no licence for such quarrying and this is causing huge loss to Revenue and they were directed to stop such transportation immediately.

14. On account of the aforesaid illegal activity of State of U.P. and its authorities, plaintiff sent a notice under Section 80 CPC calling upon them to desist from :-

(a) Holding out threats and attempting to interfere in any manner whatsoever with the exercise of rights secured to the plaintiff by aforesaid lease for mining morrum, ballast, stone, sand (wrongfully described as silica sand), kankar etc.

(b) Holding out threat of inviting applications and considering and granting mining leases of areas already under lease of the plaintiff, for mining of aforesaid or any of the aforesaid minerals.

(c) Holding out threat for prosecuting plaintiff in criminal court for extraction of 'silica sand' from the area held under lease by plaintiff.

(d) Interfering with the working of mines and extraction of aforesaid minerals by plaintiff and her sub lessees in the area under lease of plaintiff.

(e) Putting any restriction by any order, direction or request either by themselves or through any other official of the State Government preventing booking and transport of sand or silica sand by rail from any railway station situated within the district of Allahabad to any other place within the Union of India.

(f) Threatening to put physical obstructions to the movement and sale of sand extracted from the mines held under lease by the plaintiff.

(g) Compelling the plaintiff and her sub lessees to take a clearance certificate from District Magistrate and / or Collector or from any other authority or authorities for the purposes of booking of sand (silica sand).

(h) Holding threats to realise royalty at the rate of Rs. 0.75 per tonne of the sand (silica sand) extracted by plaintiff or her sub lessees from the mines situated within the area under lease of plaintiff.

(i) Putting restrictions on the freedom of trade as stated above, held and enjoyed by plaintiff.

(j) Doing any act directly or indirectly interfering with or curtailing the rights, privileges and properties held owned and enjoyed by the plaintiff as the lease holder.

15. State Government demanded a sum of Rs. 940225.25 from plaintiff towards royalty for the period from 1.1.1952 to 26.6.1968 which demand was wholly illegal. It is in these circumstances, suit was filed seeking relief as already noticed above.

16. State of U.P. contested suit by filing a detailed written statement dated 8th October, 1969. It pleaded that neither there was any Estate named as "Bara Estate" known to the defendants nor Kamlakar Singh was proprietor thereof. He, in fact was an "Intermediary" in the district of Allahabad. He was "Zamindar" and "Intermediary" in some villages of the district. In this area, settlement of land was made in 1874 AD. Lumberdar Sri Vanaspati Singh of the family of Kamlakar Singh executed an agreement dated 10th March, 1874 and agreed to pay rent with effect from 1282 Fasli onwards until the next settlement in respect of each village or part of village in which he was an intermediary. His claim that he was owner and proprietor of the villages and had absolute right of excavation, quarrying etc. was incorrect. "Zamindar" or "intermediary" had no rights over mineral, hence, Kamlakar Singh also had no right to grant mining lease for quarrying to anyone. In fact, no valid lease for quarrying stones, ballasts, kankar, moram, sand, etc. was granted to plaintiff as required by law. The lease deed dated 16.04.1947 did not result in any legal consequences since lessor himself had no legal right to grant a mining lease to plaintiff. There is no record about alleged succession to the Estate, or that the succession was governed by primogeniture and that the aforesaid Bara Raj was an impartible estate. The allegation that the then Emperor Shah Alam in Hijri 1188 had granted a sanad of full ownership of the property of Bara Raj is incorrect and not admitted by defendant-1. After enforcement of U.P. Act, 1951, all the rights of Kamlakar Singh vested in State of U.P., since he was only an "Intermediary". There is no mineral known as "silica sand". The term "glass sand" finds mention in MMRD Act, 1957. Colloquially "glass sand" is known as "silica sand" as well. It is a major mineral, the lease whereof is governed by the statute enacted by Central Government. The State Government has no power to grant lease against provisions of Central Act and Rules framed thereunder.

17. State Government never granted a lease in favour of plaintiff for quarrying "glass sand" or "silica sand" as it is commonly known. The lease deed dated 27.4.1959 executed by State Government was for quarrying minor minerals and not glass sand, which is a 'major mineral' under central statute i.e. MMRD Act, 1957. Kamlakar Singh was also not a "Zamindar" or "Intermediary" of entire area in 46 villages, mentioned in the lease deed since there were other intermediaries also. There was a stipulation in deed dated 27.4.1959 that plaintiff shall pay royalty at the rate of Rs. 4000/- per annum, to State Government for quarrying minor minerals only.

18. Most of the paragraphs of plaint were basically denied whereunder plaintiff had endeavored to set up a case of valid lease rights for quarry of "silica sand" / "glass sand." In additional pleas, defendant-1 pleaded that cause of action arose on or after 24th May, 1969 and the suit was filed in Court on 28th May, 1969, hence no notice under Section 80 C.P.C. on cause of action in question was served upon defendants. No notice under Section 80 C.P.C. was ever received by defendants. Plaintiff had quarried a huge quantity of silica sand worth lacs of rupees and suit is undervalued. Union of India was a necessary party but not impleaded, hence suit is bad for non joinder of necessary party. The plaintiff had never quarried stones, ballasts, kankar, moram or sand etc., hence has no right to file suit in question. Kamlakar Singh was a Zamindar and Intermediary in the District of Allahabad, not permanently settled in district and as such had no right or power to make collections of rent etc. from the tenants and pay a fixed revenue to Government according to revenue records. Kamlakar Singh was never owner or proprietor of any village or land as stated in the plaint. Paramount proprietary right and ownership of land within Zamindari of Kamlakar Singh vested in State of U.P. Defendant was never divested of any of the rights and powers vested in it. Lease deed dated 16.4.1947 was illegal and inoperative, for various grounds mentioned in para 65 of written statement which we shall discuss at the appropriate stage. Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 has no application to the land in question. There was no valid lease subsisting in favour of plaintiff, hence she had no right to claim a statutory lease under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951. No mining operation could have been allowed in violation of MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder.

19. Trial Court formulated 20 issues as under :

1. "Whether the plaintiff was holding a mining lease dated 16th April, 1947 and was carrying on mining operations prior to 1.7.1952 ?

2. If so, is the above mining lease dated 16.4.47 invalid and illegal alleged by defendant no.1 in para 65 of its written statement.?

3. Whether the lease deed dated 27.4.59 executed in favour of the plaintiff is valid and legal as alleged by the plaintiff? If so, its effect?

4. Whether no notice under Section 80 C.P.C. was served on the defendant in respect of the cause of action dated 24th May, 1969?

5. Whether a valid notice under Section 80 C.P.C. was served on the defendant?

6. Whether the suit is barred by estoppel and acquiscence?

7. Whether the suit is under valued?

8. If so, the court fee paid insufficient?

9. Whether the plaintiff has a right to quarry sand which is now being described by the Government as silica sand under the lease deed executed on 27.4.59 and she had also full right to grant sub-leases for quarrying such sand?

10. Whether the District Magistrate is authorised to impose conditions regarding the transport of silica sand Rail and can insist upon the plaintiff to take a clearance certificate for such transport from him?

11. Whether the lease deed dated 27.4.59 executed in favour of the plaintiff is liable to be modified in view of the provisions contained in the Mines and Minerals Concession Rules?

12. Is defendant no.1 entitled to realise royalty at the rates provided under the Mines and Mineral (Development and Regulation) Act for the sand (now called silica sand) mined by the plaintiff? If so, from what date?

13. Whether the lease deed dated 27.4.59 could not have been executed for a term exceeding 20 years and as such the aforesaid lease deed is determinable and therefore the plaintiff is not entitled to the relief of injunction?

14. Is the plaintiff entitled to any damage on account of the alleged threats for criminal prosecution/ If so, what is the amount?

15. Is the lease deed dated 27.4.59 for minor minerals only? Is to its effect?

16. Whether Maharao Raja Kamlakar Singh was the Zamindar of all the 46 villages mentioned in Schedule 'A' annexed with the plaint.

17. Whether the Government is not entitled to consider and execute a mining lease under the mines and mineral development and regulation Act for excavating sand stone moram etc., in favour of other persons for the areas and villages covered under the lease dated 27.4.59 held by the plaintiff as long as it had not been terminated?

18. That relief if any is the plaintiff entitled?

19. Is defendant no.1 not entitled to claim Rupees 9 lacs (Rs. 9,00,0225 and paise 05 as royalty for the period 1.1.52 to 26.6.68.

20. Whether this Court has no jurisdiction to try suit?"

20. Issues 7 and 8 relating to valuation and sufficiency of court fees were separately considered and decided vide order dated 26.7.1972. Since dispute relating to recovery of Rs. 9 lacs and odd towards royalty came to be inserted in the plaint by an amendment, requisite court fees was also paid by plaintiff. Both these issues 7 and 8 thus were answered in negative i.e in favour of plaintiff.

21. Issues 1, 2, 3, 9, 11, 13, 15, 16 and 17 were all taken together and while answering the same, Trial Court held :

(a) Kamlakar Singh was Zamindar of all 46 villages described in the plaint.

(b) From surface ownership, a presumption would arise that mines quarried and minerals in situ are part and parcel of the land. The owner of surface land is entitled prima facie to everything beneath or within it, down to the centre of earth and this principle applies even where title of surface has been acquired by prescription, unless by some conveyance etc., it is shown that the mines etc. are being enjoyed by persons other than owner of the surface. Defendant failed to make out any circumstance otherwise to dislodge rights of Kamlakar Singh.

(c) In Wajibul Arz (paper no. 176-C) filed by plaintiff in respect of village Shankergarh, there was entry that Zamindar had the right in respect of minerals. In view of above entry and definition of 'Intermediary' under Section 3(2), 'Estate' under Section 3(8) and 'Proprietor' under Section 3(21) of U.P. Act, 1951 and also the fact that under Section 27, compensation was determined by taking into consideration royalty received by Kamlakar Singh, he was the owner of underground minerals of his estate covering 46 villages.

(d) Another Wajibul Arz (paper no. C-362/7) in respect of village Shivrajpur filed by defendant, having no such entry in favour of Kamlakar Singh, was not believed by Trial Court on the ground that for the purpose of compensation, royalty in respect of 46 villages has been considered.

(e) Kamlakar Singh, the owner or proprietor of minerals lying in his estate, was legally entitled to execute sub-lease.

(f) The lease deed dated 16.04.1947 executed by Kamlakar Singh was neither a sham transaction nor benami. The defendants also could not prove that transaction was for no consideration or inadequate consideration. Defendants also could not prove that the lease was executed on a plain unstamped paper.

(g) The plaintiff became a statutory lessee within the meaning of Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951. MMRD Act, 1957 applies to those leases which have been granted by Government and not to statutory leases, hence had no application to lease granted to plaintiff in 1947 and in respect whereto plaintiff' became statutory lessee under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951.

(h) Lease of plaintiff was not affected by Section 8(1) (b) of MMRD Act, 1957 for the reason that it was a statutory lease and remained unaffected by the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. Defendant's contention that lease deed dated 27.4.1959 was liable to be modified in view of Section 16 of MMRD Act, 1957, is also without any force. Plaintiff's lease cannot be read so as to confine it to "minor minerals" or to exclude "silica sand" from its ambit.

(i) Mining Concession (Central) Rules, 1939 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules, 1939") were made by Governor General in respect of British Baluchistan and by Governor General in Council in respect of other Chief Commissioner's Provinces for regulating grants of prospective licences and mining leases in Chief Commissioner's Provinces. The aforesaid Rules were not applicable in State of U.P. or United Provinces of Agra and Awadh since it was not a Chief Commissioner's Province.

(j) United Provinces Mining Concessions and Mineral Development Rules, 1940 do not indicate the statute under which same were framed. It also do not clarify that the same was a delegated legislation. Moreover, these Rules relate to mines and minerals which were properties of Crown but here, mines and minerals were properties of Kamlakar Singh and not of Crown, hence the aforesaid Rules of 1940 had no bearing with the suit land.

(k) State Government is bound by principle of estoppel, having executed lease in favour of plaintiff in 1959 with effect from 1.7.1952 and cannot turn around otherwise.

(l) State Government will have to honour terms of lease executed by it with plaintiff on 27.04.1959, being bound by the principle of Promissory Estoppel.

(m) Plaintiff' was holding a mining lease dated 16.4.1947 and carrying on mining operations prior to 1.7.1952, and it was neither invalid nor illegal.

(n) Lease deed dated 27.4.1959 executed by State Government in favour of plaintiff is valid and legal.

(o) Plaintiff has right to quarry "silica sand" under lease deed dated 27.4.1959. Lease deed dated 27.4.1959 is for major minerals and Government is not entitled to consider and execute a mining lease under MMRD Act, 1957 for area in villages covered under lease deed dated 27.4.1959 and held by plaintiff, to any third person so long as it had not been terminated in accordance with law.

22. Issues 4 and 5 having not been pressed, were decided against defendants. Issue 6 was also answered against defendants on the ground that the defendants could not show how suit was barred by principle of acquiescence and estoppel. Issue 10 was answered against defendants holding that District Magistrate cannot impose conditions regarding transport of silica sand by rail etc.

23. While answering issues 12 and 19, Court below held that royalty is payable during continuance of lease. Any amount not payable under lease would not be called 'royalty'. Demand of royalty under MMRD Act, 1957 is not permissible. Issue 19 was answered against State of U.P. Issue 20 was also answered against defendants. However, issue 14 was answered against plaintiff.

24. Ultimately Issue 18 was answered in favour of plaintiff holding that she is entitled to all reliefs excluding damages pendente lite and future.

25. Learned Additional Advocate General, giving backdrop of entire dispute, stated that Kamlakar Singh granted a lease in favour of his wife Rani in 1947 for operating mining lease on various mines within his Zamindari. It is remarkable that resolution for abolition of Zamindari was passed by the then Government in the year 1937, when it assumed reign of the State after General Elections in the year 1937. Thereafter the then Government again came in power in 1946 and it had become an open secret that Zamindari is going to be abolished very soon in or about 1948. The final resolution for abolition of Zamindari in State was adopted and accordingly Bill was prepared. Under these circumstances, Raja wanted to save as much property for himself and his family and he granted a fake and sham lease in favour of his wife for an inadequate consideration for indefinite period. The royalty stipulated in the lease was Rs. 4000/- per annum. Somehow or other Raja prevailed upon State Government and obtain another lease in favour of Rani in 1959 and had been making gains thereunder. In fact, Rani never worked equerry. The lease was granted inter-alia for "sand' which included "ordinary sand". Kamlakar Singh transferred mining rights to his wife, by lease dated 16.04.1947 on the eve of independence and on the eve of enactment of U.P. Act, 1951 and Rules, the impending 1957 Mines Act, in a collusive attempt to give her a lease in perpetuity of mines to defeat attempt by State to acquire land and mines therein. Interestingly, he even received compensation from Compensation Officer for the land and mines which were held by him and which he had adroitly transferred to his wife at eleventh hour.

26. Sri Pandey continued to urge that under Government of India Act, 1935 (hereinafter referred to as "GI Act, 1935"), legislative field of Regulation of Mines and Development of Minerals was divided between Central Legislature and Provincial Legislature. Entry-36, List-1, Seventh Schedule of GI Act, 1935 reads as under:

"36. Regulation of mines and oilfields and mineral development to which such regulation and development under Federal control is declared by Federal law to be expedient in the public interest."

27. List-1 provides subjects within legislative power of Central Legislation. Similarly under GI Act, 1935, Entry-23, List-II, Seventh Schedule, which contains subjects of Provincial Legislation, reads as under:

"23. Regulation of mines and oilfields and mineral development subject to the provisions of List I with respect to regulation and development under Federal control."

28. The word "Federal" in the above entries was substituted by the word "Dominion" by India (Provincial Constitution) Order 1947. In 1939, Government of India made Rules, 1939, for regulating grants of prospecting licences and mining leases in Chief Commissioner's Provinces and British Baluchistan. Need for Central regulation of mines and oilfields and minerals development began to be increasingly felt and became highlighted during second World war with the result that certain key minerals had to be controlled under Defence of India Act, 1939 (hereinafter referred to as "DI Act, 1939"). It was recognized that a planned and uniform policy of mineral development was essential to economic and industrial progress. Subsequently, pursuant to power conferred by Entry 36 of Federal Legislative List, Legislature of Dominion of India enacted on September 8, 1948, "Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1948" (hereinafter referred to as "MMRD Act, 1948") which was brought into force on 25.10.1949. The object of MMRD Act, 1948 was to regulate mines and oilfields and mineral development on the lines contemplated in the Industrial Policy Resolution of April, 1948.

29. In 1957, Parliament decided that Regulation and Development of Mines and Minerals should feature by themselves in a separate Act. Accordingly, Parliament enacted on December 28, 1957, MMRD Act, 1957. Section 32 of MMRD Act, 1957 amended MMRD Act, 1948 in the manner set out in Schedule-III to MMRD Act, 1957 so as to remove from MMRD Act, 1948 all references to mines and minerals and to confine it to oilfields and mineral oil resources. Title of MMRD Act, 1948 was amended suitably. The MMRD Act, 1957 was brought into force on 01.06.1958 by Notification No. GSR 432, dated 29.05.1958 (published in the Gazette of India, extraordinary, 1958, Part II) and was enacted by Parliament, specially for the purpose of Regulation of mining operation and development of minerals and as such for all purposes (mining purposes), provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 will exclude other law relating to mining operations and development of minerals.

30. In the context of U.P. Act, 1951, learned Additional Advocate General stated that this is an Act to provide abolition of Zamindari system which involves Intermediaries and for acquisition of their rights, titles and interest and to reform law relating to land tenure consequent upon such abolition and acquisition and to make provision for other matters connected thereto. It came into force on 01.07.1952. Thus, mining operations and its development, being subject of List-I, Seventh Schedule of Constitution, and in exercise of power thereof, MMRD Act, 1957 was enacted covering field of mining operations, and mineral, it shall prevail over all general Acts including U.P. Act, 1951. Special law shall prevail over general statute. He sought to fortify aforesaid proposition by relying on decisions in J. K. Cotton Spinning and Weaving Mills Co. Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. AIR 1961 SC 1170 and State of Orissa and others Vs. Commissioner of Land Records and Settlement, Cuttack and others (1998) 7 SCC 162.

31. Learned Additional Advocate General urged that Kamlakar Singh was not owner and proprietor of disputed land, hence execution of lease deed by him on 16.04.1947 and grant of mining rights to lessee was illegal and conferred no valid authority upon lessee to continue quarrying of "silica sand" etc. in the villages in dispute. He further contended that in any case with enactment of U.P.Act, 1951, entire disputed area vested in State Government. It is also admitted by plaintiff. In the circumstances, whatever rights Kamlakar Singh had as owner and proprietor of villages in dispute, if any, same ceased after enactment of U.P.Act, 1951 and thereafter, status of Kamlakar Singh became as that of a tenant and mining rights, if any, so far as permitted under U.P. Act, 1951 could have continued only to that extent. In respect of mining operations of minerals governed by MMRD Act, 1957, when it came into force, the rights, if any, of Kamlakar Singh as also plaintiff's lessee ceased and after enactment of MMRD Act, 1957, neither plaintiff' nor Kamlakar Singh nor anybody else could have continued with mining operations of minerals governed by MMRD Act, 1957, unless licence / permission is granted in accordance with the procedure thereunder. Court below in holding that MMRD Act, 1957 has no application to the villages in question, has completely erred in law, therefore, the impugned judgment and decree is ex-facie illegal and liable to be set aside.

32. He further submitted, assuming that on 16.4.1947, Kamlakar Singh had proprietary and ownership right over area within disputed villages and may have corresponding rights of mining and quarrying but the ownership and proprietary rights ceased and stood vested in State of U.P. with effect from 1st July, 1952 on enforcement of U.P. Act, 1951. Thereafter, corresponding rights regarding minerals etc. which were available to Kamlakar Singh, if any, being proprietor and owner of disputed villages, also vested in State of U.P. and he (Kamlakar Singh) ceased to have such rights. That being so, plaintiff lessee also ceased to have such rights unless permitted by State of U.P. or by U.P. Act, 1951. If plaintiff is held to be entitled to continue with lease rights under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951, the same ceased on enactment and enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957 in respect of minerals governed by such enactment and thereafter minerals and mining rights would be governed by MMRD Act, 1957. Since in the present case, admittedly no mining rights had been conferred upon plaintiff lessee under MMRD Act, 1957, after following procedure prescribed therein, by competent authority, she has/had no right to continue with mining operations in respect of minerals governed by MMRD Act, 1957 and Court below in holding otherwise, has acted wholly illegally, hence the impugned judgment is liable to be set aside.

33. Sri Pandey contended that in any case MMRD Act, 1957 has two different aspects, one, regulating mining lease and the procedure of grant of lease; and, another, charge of Royalty on extraction and transportation of minerals. Right to charge Royalty on extraction, excavation and transportation of minerals is absolute and covers all kind of leases whether governed by MMRD Act, 1957 or otherwise having a overriding provision on instruments of leases as also on otherwise law. Therefore, plaintiff-respondent in any case is liable to pay Royalty on minerals excavated or extracted from disputed land and in that view of matter, Collector rightly raised demand of Royalty for the period plaintiff had carried out mining operations and extracted minerals without payment of Royalty prescribed under Section 9 read with Second Schedule of MMRD Act, 1957 to the State. Trial Court has completely erred in law in not appreciating scope of Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957 and, therefore, judgment in question is liable to be set aside. He placed reliance on Khas Karanpura Collieries Ltd. and Ors. Vs. State of Bihar and others AIR 1971 Pat. 328 and Sheo Varan Singh vs. State of U.P. AIR 1980 All. 92.

34. Lastly, he contended that lease deed by which Kamlakar Singh transferred his right in favour of his wife i.e. agreement executed on 16.04.1947, and agreement between Rani Rajendri and State of U.P. dated 27.04.1959 are void in view of Sections 23 and 24 of Indian Contract Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1972") and 19 of MMRD Act, 1957 as terms and conditions of agreement were not consistent with the law in force . Illustrating his submission, he urged that in view of following facts, terms and conditions referred to in agreements are inconsistent with the law in force on the date agreement was executed:

(I) The agreement is violative of Section 8(1) of MMRD Act, 1957 which limits maximum period for operation of major mining (Silica sand). Furthermore, for extension of period, permission of Central Government was needed and apparently in the present case no such permission was obtained. The agreement refers to lease in perpetuity and as such, the agreement is void in terms of MMRD Act, 1957.

(II) The maximum area of which lease could be given are 10 sq.km. as per Section 6(1)(b) of MMRD Act, 1957. This area could only be extended with the permission of Central Government. Admittedly, in agreement area is much more than the area referred to in MMRD Act, 1957 Act and, as such, agreement is void.

35. In support of above submissions, Sri Pandey, learned Additional Advocate General placed reliance on Tata Iron and Steel Co. Ltd. Vs. Union of India and another 1996 (9) SCC 709, Kaviraj Basudevanand Vs. Harihar Gir AIR 1974 SC 1991 and Life Insurance Corporation of India Vs. Devendrappa Bujjappa Kadabi and others AIR 1987 Kant. 129.

36. He summed up his argument and urged that in view of Section 19 of MMRD Act, 1957, lease deed dated 27.04.1959 is void being in contravention of provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. Any agreement in conflict to existing law is void and would give no right to plaintiff-respondent to operate mining lease.

37. Per contra, Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Advocate, appearing for plaintiff-respondent, submitted that here is not a case of any contradiction between a lease which became 'statutory lease' under U.P. Act, 1951 and provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 inasmuch Section 4 of MMRD Act, 1957 confines application of said Act to the matters where leases are granted under MMRD Act, 1957 while plaintiff's lease became 'statutory lease' by virtue of Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 and so long as such lease is not modified and cancelled in accordance with U.P. Act, 1951 and Rules and Regulations framed thereunder, neither plaintiff's lease can be interfered by defendants- appellants nor they have any right to raise a demand which is not consistent with the terms and conditions of 'statutory lease' which now is deemed to be granted to plaintiff-respondent by State of U.P. In support of his submissions, he has placed reliance on Bihar Mines Ltd. Vs. Union of India AIR 1967 SC 887, Hindustan Steel Limited, M/s. Rourkela Vs. Kalyani Banerjee AIR 1973 SC 408, Sone Valley Portland Cement Co. Ltd. Vs. General Mining Syndicate Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1976 SC 2520, State of Bihar Vs. Khas Karanpura Collieries Ltd. AIR 1976 SC 1978, Chhatu Ram Horil Ram Private Ltd. Vs. State of Bihar AIR 1969 SC 177, India Thermal Power Ltd. Vs. State of M.P. and others 2000 (3) SCC 379 and Mary Vs. State of Kerala and others 2014 (14) SCC 272.

38. Before coming to the effect of statutes dealing with mining and minerals and their consequences on the lease and extraction of minerals on the lease land in dispute, we propose to examine two basic questions:

(i) Whether Kamlakar Singh was proprietor and owner of disputed villages when he executed lease deed dated 16.4.1947 and entitled to execute a lease deed in respect of minerals found in those villages ?

(ii) Whether Kamlakar Singh continued to have ownership rights over minerals found in disputed villages after vesting of land in State of U.P. with effect from 1.7.1952 under U.P.Act, 1951 ?

39. The first question up for consideration for deciding this appeal is the status of Kamlakar Singh before enactment of U.P. Act, 1951, in respect of disputed land. Plaintiff claimed status of Kamlakar Singh as owner and proprietor of disputed property in 1947. Judgment of Court below shows that there was no documentary evidence adduced by plaintiff to show that Kamlakar Singh or his predecessors were owner and proprietor of disputed land. In this regard, Kamlakar Singh himself appeared in witness box and deposed. His statement on oath is paper No. 337-A. He claimed to be 'Zamindar' of Bara Estate. Smt. Rajendri Kumari Ba is his second wife. In cross-examination, he said that he was resident of Tehsil Karchhna, which had two Parganas, Bara and Arail. His Zamindari extended to both parganas, i.e. Bara and Arail. He, however, admitted that in Pargana 'Bara', besides him, there were some other petty/small Zamindars. Pargana Bara consisted of 250 villages and he had share in 10-12 villages. In 50-60 villages of pargana Bara; Gitti, Moram, Balu, Patthar etc., used to be quarried. He, however, could not tell names of those villages. He further said that area for which lease was granted, mostly was in his Zamindari, while in some, he was a share holder but could not give details thereof. His statement, in this regard is as under:

38- जो मौजे lease में दिये गये थे उनमें से अधिकांश का मैं मुसल्लम जमीदार था और कुछ में share holder था। परन्तु प्रत्येक ऐसे गाँव का विवरण में नहीं दे सकता।"

" 38. Of most of the villages mentioned in lease, I was full fledged Zamindar and in some, I was a share holder. But I cannot give details of each of such villages."

(English translation by the Court)

40. He further said that he is not aware of permanent settlement at Allahabad. His statement reads as under:

39- - - - - मैं नहीं जानता कि Allahabad में permanent settlement हुआ था कि नहीं।"

" 39..... I do not known whether there had been any permanent settlement in Allahabad or not."

(English translation by the Court)

41. Besides, plaintiff also deposed in support of her case. In her own deposition also, she did not say regarding status of Kamlakar Singh except that he was "Zamindar' in the area and disputed land was leased out to her by Kamlakar Singh.

42. Trial Court while answering Issue 16, whether Kamlakar Singh was Zamindar of disputed villages, has referred to the pleadings contained in paragraphs 1 and 2 of plaint and its reply contained in paragraph 2 of written statements and therefrom has held that Kamlakar Singh was "Zamindar' of all 46 villages. Paragraphs 1 and 2 of plaint read as under:

*"1. That Maharao Raja Kamlakar Singh (herein after referred to as the Raja Saheb of Shankergarh) Tehsil Karchana in the District of Allahabad was the proprietor of the Bara Estate.

2. That a number of villages including 46 villages mentioned in the Schedule "A" of the plaint were situated in the Bara Estate and Raja Saheb of Shankergarh was the owner and proprietor of these villages."

43. The defendant State of U.P. had replied aforesaid paragraphs no. 1 and 2 of plaint in paragraphs no. 1 and 2 of written statement, as under:

"1. That the facts stated in Paragraph 1 of the plaint are not admitted. In fact, there was no BARA ESTATE known to the defendant or its officers and Maharaja Kamlakar Singh (hereinafter called the Raja) was not the proprietor thereof. Of Course the Raja was an intermediary in the district of Allahabad.

2. That the facts stated in paragraph 2 of the plaint are denied. In fact, the Raja was not the owner or proprietor of any of the villages in the district of Allahabad. Of course as, stated above, the Raja was zamindar and intermediary in some of the villages of the district. In this area the Settlement of land was last made in 1874 A.D. The Lambardar Sri Banspati Singh of the family of the Raja, executed an agreement dated March 10, 1874 and agreed to pay rent w.e.f. from 1282 Fasli onwards until the next settlement in respect of each village or part of the village in which he was an intermediary."

(emphasis added)

44. This Court does not find any ambiguity in reply of State denying assertions made in paragraphs no. 1 and 2 of plaint. Plaintiff claimed that Kamlakar Singh was proprietor of above Estate, which has been denied specifically in paragraph 1 of written statement. Similar assertion in paragraph 2 of plaint has been denied specifically in paragraph 2 of written statement. Defendant appellant has clarified that Kamlakar Singh was not "owner" or "proprietor" of disputed land but a "Zamindar" and "Intermediary" in some villages of district. It referred to settlement of 1874 A.D. and said that Lambardar Sri Banaspati Singh of the family of Kamlakar Singh, executed an agreement dated 10.03.1874, agreeing to pay rent w.e.f. 1242 Fasli onwards until the next settlement in respect of each village or part of village in which he was an "Intermediary."

45. Copy of the agreement, which is a document in Urdu was filed by defendant-appellant along with list of documents dated 25.8.1972. A certified copy obtained from Revenue Department was filed and marked as Paper No. 170-C/2. Hindi transliteration is also on record as Paper No. 170-C/3 and reads as under :

"नम्बरदारान मौजा शंकरगढ परगना बारा जिला इलाहाबाद के है मन मुकरान इनकार करते हैं कि बशर्त मनजूरी गवर्नमेन्ट इक्तदाय 1282 फ लगायत 1311 फसली यानी तीस साल तक जमा सरकार बकदर और बाद अजॉ ता न होने इकारारनामा जदीद बन्दोबस्त के साल आखीर के शरह से अदा करते रहेंगे।

"Numberdars are residents of village Shankargarh, Pargana Bara, District Allahabad. We the parties agree that subject to the sanction by the Government from 1282 Fasli till 1311 Fasli i.e. for 30 years, we shall be depositing the requisite fee with the Government in accordance with the agreement and thereafter at the rate paid in the last year of this agreement till the new settlement/agreement is not entered into." (English translation by the Court)

46. The defendants- appellants also filed copy of Wajibul Arz, Mouza Shivrajpur, Pargana & Tahseel Bara, District Allahabad, which is also a document in Urdu and certified copy thereof obtained from record room of Revenue Section of Collector's office has been filed as Paper No. 170-C/4 to 170-C/6. Its Hindi transliteration has been filed as Paper No. 170-C/7. The aforesaid document clearly mentions status of predecessor of plaintiff as that of 'Zamindar'. Section 1 of aforesaid document clearly mentions as under:

दफा-1	जिक नवइयत महाल	बसूरत जमीन्दारी है
Section 1	Description of the nature of possession	Is in the form of Zaminidari

47. Trial Court has observed by referring to Avadh Kishore Das Vs. Ram Gopal & Ors., AIR 1979 SC 861 that "Wazibul Arz" is a village administration paper prepared with due care and after due enquiry by public servant in discharge of his official duty. It is a part of settlement record and statutory presumption of correctness is attached to it. Therefore, unless shown otherwise, a "Wazibul Arz" is a creditworthy document. In view thereof it has relied on the "Wazibul Arz" (paper no. 176) filed by plaintiff-respondent for Village- Sankargarh, which contains a statement that 'Zamindar' had a right in respect of minerals, to hold that Kamlakar Singh was owner over minerals in village Sankargarh. It says that Kamlakar Singh being Zamindar of 46 villages was also an 'Intermediary' within Section 3 (21) of U.P. Act, 1951. It, then relied on Sections 27, 34, 49 and 50 of U.P. Act, 1951 to hold that Compensation Officer in determining gross assets of Kamlakar Singh took into consideration royalties, he received in respect of quarry, which shows that Kamlakar Singh was owner and proprietor of minerals. To our mind, all these considerations by Trial Court were not necessary for the reason that status of Kamlakar Singh as "Zamindar" and "Intermediary" was admitted by defendant-appellant clearly in para-2 of the written statement.

48. The aforesaid documents also make it clear that Kamlakar Singh claimed status of his predecessor and himself as 'Zamindar' in respect of disputed villages.

49. On behalf of State an attempt was made to claim that being "Zamindar", predecessor and Kamlakar Singh were not owner and proprietor of disputed villages but it was in the nature of "Intermediary." Record makes it very clear that predecessors of Kamlakar Singh were given status of "Zamindar" which continued and by succession, devolved upon Kamlakar Singh.

50. Here it takes us to examine meaning of the term "Zamindar" at the relevant time. "Wajibul Arz" (Paper no. 170C)/4-6 was executed on 15th June/10th July, 1875 A.D. We have got some part of this document translated in english and it shows that the same was executed by Sri Syeed Jahir Hussain Khan, the then Deputy Collector. It had various stipulations in four chapters which read as under :

"CHAPTER-1, Nature of Possession Written on 10th July, 1875, A.D., the present Wajibul-Arz between the landlords and farmers, in presence of the Deputy Collector, Sahab Bahadur Syed Zahid Husain Khan."

Order filed in the "Settlement File" dated : 15th June, 1875."

51. The aforesaid document is in respect of Mauja Shivrajpur, Pargana Bara, Tehsil Karchhana, District Allahabad. The document makes it very clear that it declared status of 'Zamindar' as "sole owner" and expenses of villages are responsibility of 'Zamindar'. He shall manage cultivable land through servants etc. Any other tenant or farmer needs permission of Zamindar to do anything in the land governed by aforesaid document. Erstwhile concept of 'Zamindar' was also that he was a man of the land or landlord. They were a sort of micro king who ruled their own small territory by collecting taxes and running a court to resolve dispute maintaining security- personnel and building palaces. In most cases, they had to share a big chunk of their taxes with the Lord above them like in the present case, the British Government, but otherwise they were owners of land under Zamindari.

52. We find that the kind of Zamindari system inherrited by British India was created by Mughals who replaced earlier tax collection system and appointed their own Collectors. They were responsible for local law and order. In British Rule, Zamindari system was introduced by Lord Cornwallis in 1793 through Permanent Settlement Act. It was introduced in Provinces of Bihar, West Bengal, Orissa and Varanasi. In every reference, including history books, we find that "Zamindars" were recognized as owners of land. They were given right to collect rent from peasants. There were two other parallel systems introduced in British system, one is 'Rayyatwari' system, sometime in 1820 by Thomos Munro, but it prevailed mostly in South India and some areas of erstwhile Bombay, part of Assam and Kurk Provinces of British India. A third system similar to 'Zamindari' was 'Mahalwari system' introduced sometime in 1833 during the period of William Bentick in Central Provinces and North-West Frontier i.e. Provinces in Agra, Punjab and Gangetic Valley. However, for our purpose, that is not relevant.

53. Artificial distinction, sought to be drawn by defendant-appellant, that Kamlakar Singh or his predecessors were 'Zamindar' and 'Intermediary' but not owner or proprietor of concerned villages has no basis or justification and none could be pointed out before us by learned Additional Advocate General. From settlement of 1875, relied on by defendant-appellant on their own, we have no doubt that status of 'Zamindar' conferred upon predecessors of Kamlakar Singh therein was nothing but a conferment of ownership rights or proprietors right. Therefore, status of 'ownership' was conferred upon predecessors of Kamlakar Singh and it stood devolved upon him also. In 1947 when he executed deed dated 16.4.1947, he was a 'Zamindar' (owner and proprietor) of villages in dispute.

54. Whether aforesaid ownership would include minerals found in the villages concerned, on this aspect, learned Additional Advocate General could place nothing before us to show that rights of 'Zamindar' were confined only to cultivation or collection of rent taxes etc. and he had no right over minerals found in concerned villages. Ownership right as conferred by "Wazibul Arz" dated 10.7.1875 did not restrict rights of 'Zamindar' in respect of land only and not minerals. Learned counsel appearing for appellant could not place any contractual or statutory provision or otherwise to persuade us to hold that Kamlakar Singh or his predecessor despite being 'Zamindar' of disputed area, did not possess ownership or proprietorship rights on minerals found in disputed area. We, therefore, concur with the findings of Court below that Kamlakar Singh, when executed lease deed dated 16.4.1947, possessed absolute right to deal with the disposal of minerals, found in disputed area, after quarry, excavation etc. and its findings on issue-16 are hereby confirmed.

55. Question (i), we have formulated above, therefore, is answered accordingly in favour of plaintiff-respondent.

56. Now we come to question (ii). It is an admitted case of plaintiff- respondent that on enforcement of U.P.Act, 1951, area of the land of disputed villages vested in State of U.P. The Notification required under Section 4(1) was published in U.P. Gazette, Extraordinary dated 01.07.1952. This is also admitted by plaintiff-respondent. In para-11 of plaint, plaintiff-respondent himself has stated as under :

"11. That in 1951 the U.P.Legislature enacted the U.P.Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act (U.P.Act No. 1 of 1951) and with effect from 1st July, 1952 the rights of Raja Saheb of Shankargarh in the land demised under the lease were extinguished under Section 4 of the Act."

57. Section 4(1) of U.P.Act, 1951 reads as under :

"4. Vesting of estates in the State*- (1) As soon as may be after the commencement of this Act, the State Government may, by notification, declare that, as from a date to be specified,* all estates situate in Uttar Pradesh shall vest in the State and as from the beginning of the date so specified (hereinafter called the date of vesting), all such estates shall stand transferred to and vest, except as hereinafter provided, in the State free from all encumbrances."

58. Section 4 talks of vesting of all 'Estates' situated in the State of U.P. The term 'Estate' has been defined in Section 3(8) of U.P.Act, 1951. Initially, Section 3(8) read differently and was substituted by U.P. Act No. XIV of 1958 with effect from 01.07.1952. A proviso was also added in Section 3(8) of U.P. Act, 1951 with effect from 01.07.1952. It reads as under:

"(8). "Estate" means and shall be deemed to have always meant the area included under one entry in any of the registers described in Clause (a), (b), (c) or (d) and, in so far as it relates to a permanent tenure holder, in any register described in Clause (e) of Section 32 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901, as it stood immediately prior to coming into force of this Act, or, subject to the restriction mentioned with respect to the register described in Clause (e), in any of the registers maintained under Section 33 of the said Act or in a similar register described in or prepared or maintained under any other Act, Rule, Regulation or Order relating to the preparation or maintenance of record-of-rights in force at any time and includes share in, or of an "estate":

Provided that in Mirzapur District each of the areas bounded as given in Schedule VII shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing definition, be deemed to be an estate.

Explanation- The Act, Rule, Regulation or Order referred to in this clause shall include, Act, Rule, Regulation, or Order made or promulgated by the erstwhile Indian States whose territories were merged or absorbed in the State of Uttar Pradesh prior to the date of vesting notified under section 4 of this Act."

59. Consequences of vesting of 'Estate' are provided in Section 6. The relevant part i.e. Section 6 (a) (b) and (c) is reproduced as under:

"6. Consequences of the vesting of an estate in the State- When the notification under Section 4 has been published in the Gazette, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any contract or document or in any other law for the time being in force and save as otherwise provided in this Act, the consequences as hereinafter set forth shall, from the beginning of the date of vesting, ensure in the area to which the notification relates, namely :

*(a) all rights, title and interest of all the intermediaries-

(i) in every estate in such area including land (cultivable or barren), grove-land, forests whether within or outside village boundaries trees (other than trees in village abadi, holding or grove), fisheries, tanks, ponds, water-channels, ferries, pathways, abadi sites, hats, bazars and melas (otherthan hats, bazars and melas held upon land to which Clauses (a) to (c) of sub-section (1) of Section 18 apply and,

(ii) in all sub-soil in such estates including rights, if any, in mines and minerals, whether being worked or not;

shall cease and be vested in the State of Uttar Pradesh free from all encumbrances*;*

(b) all grants and confirmations of title of or to land in any estate so acquired, or of or to any right or privilege in respect of such land or its land revenue shall, whether liable to resumption or not, determine;

(c) (i) all rents, cesses, local rates and sayar in respect of any estate or holding therein for any period after the date of vesting and which, but for the acquisition would be payable to an intermediary, shall vest in and be payable to the State Government and not to the intermediary and any payment made in contravention of this clause shall not be valid discharge of the person liable to pay the same;

(ii) where under an agreement or contract made before the date of vesting any rent, cess, local rate or sayar for any period after the said date has been paid of or compounded or released by an intermediary the same shall, notwithstanding the agreement or the contract, be recoverable by the State Government from the intermediary and may without prejudice to any other mode of recovery, be realized by deducting the amount from the compensation money payable to such intermediary under Chapter III;

....." (Emphasis added)

60. The above provisions make it clear that all rights, title and interest of all Intermediaries in every estate, including land and sub-soil in such estate, including the right, if any, in mines and minerals shall cease and be vested in State of U.P., free from all encumbrances, unless provided otherwise in U.P. Act, 1951.

61. The term 'Intermediary' has been defined in Section 3(12) and reads as under:

*"Intermediary" with reference to any estate means a proprietor, under- proprietor, sub-proprietor, thekedar, permanent lessee in Avadh and permanent tenure-holder of such estate or part thereof."*

62. Kamlakar Singh, therefore, was covered by term 'Intermediary' and his estate vested in State of U.P. including all rights etc. in respect of mines and minerals in sub-soil in such estate.

63. A three Judge Bench of Apex Court had an occasion to consider effect of Section 4 and 6 of U.P.Act, 1951 in Bhagwan Das Vs. State of U.P., 1976 (3) SCC 784. After referring to Section 4 and Section 6(a) (i & ii), Court said:

"these provisions of the 1951 Act leave no doubt that whatever rights, inclusive of the rights to mines and minerals, which the erstwhile Zamindars possessed, stood extinguished and became vested in the State Government." (emphasis added)

64. The above view was followed in King Pal Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others, 1996 (11) SCC 571, wherein para 16, Court quoted an exerpt from its earlier judgment in Bhagwan Das Vs. State of U.P. (supra) as under:

"16. In this connection, we need only to refer to the judgment of this Court rendered under the very same provisions with which we are concerned. In Bagwan Das vs. State of U.P. & Others (AIR 1976 SC 1393). this court observed as follows :-

"The right of the former Zamindars to mines and minerals was extinguished by the Act of 1951 and became vested in the State Government. So long as the proprietory right to the land was vested in the Zamindar, he was entitled to mines and minerals. With the abolition of Zamidari by the 1951 Act that right has passed on not to the appellant but to the State Government. The appellants' writ petition filed to restrain the State Government from auctioning the right to undertake mining operations must, therefore, fail."
(Emphasis added)

65. In view of provisions discussed above as well as judicial authorities, considering effect of Sections 4 and 6 of U.P. Act, 1951, we have no manner of doubt that not only land of disputed villages, but all rights relating to mines and minerals, whether on the surface or under the surface etc. vested in State of U.P. and it became sole owner thereof. All the rights etc. of erstwhile owner, i.e. Intermediary, i.e., Kamlakar Singh, ceased and extinguished as on 01.07.1952 and thereafter.

66. Question (ii), therefore is answered accordingly in favour of defendant-appellant and against plaintiff-respondent. We find that on this aspect, Trial Court has not dealt with matter properly and has misled itself with assessment of compensation under Section 27. Consequences of Sections 4 and 6 of U.P. Act, 1951 are not otherwise affected by assessment of compensation and that was a totally different aspect. Trial Court in taking an otherwise view has clearly erred in law and it is also contrary to express provisions of U.P. Act, 1951 hence contrary findings are reversed.

67. Learned counsel for plaintiff-respondent contended that rights of lessee and sub-lessee have been allowed to continue under Chapter VI read with Section 7 of U.P. Act, 1951 and to that extent, even if erstwhile lessor, i.e., Kamlakar Singh, ceased to have any right of ownership etc. over disputed land, lessee's and sub-lessee's rights to continue with their mining operations in terms of existing lease dated 16.04.1947 were protected and that would not stand affected. Though this aspect we intend to discuss while considering other substantial issues, which have arisen in Suit, but at this stage, we may consider the above argument only to the extent whether Section-7 and Chapter-VI of U.P. Act, 9151 in any manner affects ownership rights of State, vested on 01.07.1952 by virtue of Sections 4 and 6 of U.P. Act, 1951, so as to whittle down to any extent.

68. With respect to continuance of mining operations, attention of Court has been drawn to Section 7 and Chapter VI comprising Sections 106 to 112 of U.P.Act, 1951. Sections 7, 106, 107 and 108 of U.P.Act, 1951 relevant for our purpose read as under :

*7. "Saving in respect of certain rights- Nothing contained in this chapter shall in any way affect the right of any person-

(a) to continue to work any mines comprised in any estate herein above acquired which shall be governed by the law for the time being in force;

(aa) being a bhumidhar, sirdar, adhivasi or asami of any land, to continue to enjoy any easement or any similar right for the more beneficial enjoyment of the land, as he was enjoying on the date immediately preceding the date of vesting;

(b) to recover any arrears of rent, cesses, sayar or other dues which accrued before the date of vesting and the same shall, notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, be recoverable as hereto before by the person entitled thereto.

Provided that no decree for an arrear of rent or order for ejectment in default of an arrear of rent shall be executed by ejectment of the judgment debtor from his holding:

Provided further that rent, cesses, local rates, sayar or other dues as aforesaid which are payable by an intermediary, whose interest in the state in respect of which the arrear is due has been acquired under the provisions of this Act, may in addition to any other remedy open to the person entitled, be realized from or paid out of the compensation money payable to such intermediary."

"106. Working of mines to be governed by this chapter- Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, the right to operate or work mines and to extract minerals therefrom shall, from the date of vesting, be governed by the provisions of this chapter.

107. Mines worked by the intermediary-(1) With effect from the date of vesting, all mines comprised in the estate or estates acquired under this Act, as were in operation on the date immediately preceding the said date and were being worked directly by the intermediary shall, if so desired by him, be deemed to have been leased by the State Government to the intermediary and such intermediary shall be entitled to retain possession of those mines as a lessee thereof.

(2) The terms and conditions of the said lease by the State Government shall be such as may be agreed upon between the State Government and the itnermediary, or, in default of agreement, as may be settled by a Mines Tribunal appointed under Section 110.

Provided that all such terms and conditions shall be in accordance with the provisions of any Central Act for the time being in force regulating the grant of new mining leases.

108. Subsisting leases of mines and minerals*- (1) Where immediately* before the date of vesting of the estate or estates, there is a subsisting lease of mines or minerals comprised in the estate or estates or any part thereof the whole or the part of the estate or estates comprised in such lease shall, with effect from the date of vesting, be deemed to have been leased by the State Government to the holder of the said subsisting lease for the remainder of the term of that lease and such holder shall be entitled to retain possession of the held property.

(2) The terms and conditions of the said lease by the State Government shall, mutatis mutandis, be the same as the terms and conditions of the subsisting lease referred to in sub-section (1), but with the additional condition that, if, in the opinion of the State Government, the holder of the lease had not, before the date of the commencement of this Act, done any prospecting or development work, the State Government shall be entitled at any time before the expiry of one year from the said date to terminate the lease by giving three months' notice in writing:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to prevent any modifications being made in the terms and conditions of the said lease in accordance with the provisions of any Central Act for the time being in force regulating the modification of existing mining leases.

(3) The holder of any such lease of mines and minerals as is referred to in sub-section (1) shall not be entitled to claim any damages from the outgoing intermediary on the ground that the terms of the lease executed by such intermediary in respect of the said mines and minerals have become incapable of fulfillment by the operation of this Act." (Emphasis added)

69. The lease deed executed by Kamlakar Singh on 16.4.1947 in his capacity as proprietor/owner/Zamindar of the land in dispute, including mines and minerals found on the land or in sub-soil was valid at that time. We find no infirmity since statute existed on that date to make it invalid. Thereafter, when entire disputed land vested in State of U.P. with effect from 1st July, 1952 under Sections 4 and 6 of U.P.Act, 1951, Kamlakar Singh ceased to have any rights, whatsoever, in respect of the said land as well as mines and minerals etc. His right even to excavate minerals etc. or transfer of such rights on rent to others extinguished. The entire estate including mines and minerals etc., from the date of vesting, vested in State of U.P. leaving status of Kamlakar Singh only that of an ex Zamindar entitled to compensation under Section 27 of U.P. Act, 1951.

70. It is not disputed before us that as a result of vesting of Estate of Kamlakar Singh in State of U.P., resultant compensation determined under U.P. Act, 1951 has been paid to Kamlakar Singh and he ceased to have any interest, right or otherwise privilege or benefit in the disputed land, including minerals found therein, on and after 01.07.1952. Section 107 protected existing lease rights of Intermediary if he was continuing any mining lease but that was not a case with respect to Kamlakar Singh since he was not carrying on any mining activity on the disputed land, and, instead, entire land in dispute was let out to plaintiff-respondent. Hence, Kamlakar Singh did not continue any right of mining under Section 107. The existing rights of lessee or sub-lessee, if any, insofar as protected under Section 108 read with Section 7 of U.P. Act, 1951, is a different thing, which may be discussed in detail while considering other issues, but at this stage, we may elaborate the aforesaid provisions only to the extent said provisions have been relied by learned counsel for plaintiff-respondent having effect on Question (ii) regarding ownership on mines and minerals.

71. Section 7 of U.P.Act, 1951 protected a right to continue to work any mines comprised in any 'Estate' vested in State of U.P. If there was any arrears of rent, cesses, sayar or other dues, the same could have been recovered from such person. The ownership, therefore, in respect of minerals etc. ceased to be vested in Kamlakar Singh and acquired by State of U.P. Thereafter, manner in which mining operations etc. may continue, as we have already said, would be governed by the provisions contained in Chapter-VI of U.P. Act, 1951. Section 106 very clearly says that notwithstanding anything contained in the Act, i.e. U.P. Act, 1951, right to operate or work mines and to extract minerals therefrom, on and after the date of vesting, would be governed by provisions of Chapter -VI. Section 107 has no application in this case. Since plaintiff has nowhere pleaded facts, either in the plaint or otherwise, before Court below, that area of 46 villages leased out to it by Kamlakar Singh, any part thereof had continued under mining operation with Kamlakar Singh, who was "Intermediary" on the date of vesting. On the contrary, the case set up by plaintiff is that entire mining operations etc. in 46 villages were leased out to plaintiff by Kamlakar Singh. The plaintiff, therefore, was in the capacity of lessee while lessor-Intermediary i.e. Kamlakar Singh lost ownership rights over mines and minerals, being part 'Estate', to State of U.P. by virtue of Sections 4 and 6 of U.P. Act, 1951. Therefore, Kamlakar Singh did not get any "deemed lease" from State of U.P. under Section 107(1).

72. Case of plaintiff in fact is founded on Section 108 which deals with interest of subsisting lessees in respect of mines and minerals, who were operating on the date of vesting. Here also, Section 108(1) makes it very clear that from the date of vesting, susbsisting lease may continue but instead of initial lessor, the 'Estate' thereof would be that of State of U.P. Section 108(1) also says that from the date of vesting, subsisting lease shall be deemed to have been leased out by State Government to the holder for remaining term of that lease and such holder shall be entitled to hold possession of leasehold property. Regarding terms and conditions, Section 108(2) provides that it would be the same as were in subsisting lease but State Government, in certain conditions, would have a right to terminate the same. The Proviso thereof however, makes it clear that nothing in Section 108(2) would prevent any modification in terms and conditions of subsisting lease to make it consistent with the provisions of any Central Act, in force for the time being, in respect of existing mining leases.

73. The resultant effect of above discussion is that subsisting lease(s) continued to be operated by plaintiff-respondent by virtue of Section 108(1) and (2) respectively but plaintiff could not have raised any objection if any modification is made to bring terms and conditions of subsisting lease in accordance with any Central Act, for the time being in force, in respect of existing mining leases. The status of plaintiff became as lessee of State of U.P.

74. Plaintiff-respondent, therefore, is not much, off the point, in contending that despite vesting of Estate in State of U.P., subsisting lease of plaintiff-respondent, continued subject to change of the terms and conditions by State of U.P. and plaintiff got a deemed lease with State of U.P.

75. Till enactment of MMRD Act, 1957, it is nobody's case that State of U.P. proceeded to make any change in terms and conditions of lease deed dated 16.4.1947. Therefore, plaintiff-respondent validly continued with mining operations even after vesting of 'Estate' in State of U.P., as per terms and conditions of lease dated 16.04.1947.

76. The right to continue mining operations is one thing but it cannot be said that plaintiff-respondent possessed ownership rights over minerals found in disputed villages despite vesting of same in State of U.P., who became owner. Subject to payment of rent, royalty etc., as the case may be, subsisting lessees only continued with the right to operate mines under subsisting lease. In other words, by virtue of Section 108, plaintiff'-respondent continued lease rights of mining etc. under lease deed dated 16.4.1947 with the modification that in place of Kamlakar Singh, owner of land became State of U.P. and all dues towards rent etc. became payable to State of U.P.

77. The view, we have taken above, is further fortified from Section 6 of U.P. Act, 1951, which makes it clear that contracts or leases etc., already executed by "Intermediary," notwithstanding thereof, rent etc. shall be payable/recoverable by State Government from "Intermediary" as well as "lessees", as the case may be, and nothing would be payable to "Intermediary". The land etc. would stand transferred without any encumbrance, meaning thereby, State of U.P. would enter into the shoes of erstwhile owner and will enjoy the same status after vesting. That being so, lease/contract, as the case may be, executed by "Intermediary" before date of vesting, if are allowed to continue by any provision of U.P. Act, 1951 with respect to right to operate or work mines etc., that would mean that agreement/contract would be read as if after vesting, it continued as was executed by State Government. Any other view, would be contrary to specific effect of Section 4 and 6 of U.P. Act, 1951.

78. Further Section 108(1) says, where there is a subsisting lease of mines or minerals in respect of 'Estate' which vested in State of U.P. and was executed before date of vesting, with effect from the date of vesting, it shall be deemed to have have been leased by State Government to the holder of said subsisting lease and such holder shall be entitled to retain possession of the lease held property. Thus the view we have taken above is duly founded on clear provisions of statute, i.e. U.P. Act, 1951.

79. The terms and conditions of subsisting lease would continue to be same but State Government is conferred with right to alter the same or to terminate, before expiry of one year from the said date, by giving three months' notice in writing. The provision is very clear. It provides that subsisting lease, would continue under Section 107 and 108, as the case may be, by operation of law and State Government would be deemed to have granted such lease.

80. Question (ii), therefore, is answered holding that after vesting of 'Estate' constituting disputed villages in State of U.P., with effect from 1st July, 1952, under U.P. Act, 1951, including sub-soil, mines and minerals, Kamlakar Singh ceased to have any ownership right over mining and minerals found in the said land. The protection of existing lease rights of plaintiff did not dilute ownership rights of State of U.P. which it acquired free of all encumbrances.

81. Now, we formulate questions relating to substantial aspects which gave cause of action to plaintiff-respondent to file Suit, i.e., action of defendant-appellant and its authorities in demanding Royalty in accordance with the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 and also to take action for execution of fresh lease to third parties with regard to mining and extractions etc. of minerals in the disputed villages. In addition to two questions answered above, further questions/points for determination, arise in this appeal, as we have culled out from respective arguments, are:

(iii) Whether mining lease dated 16.04.1947 continued to be contractual lease or by virtue of Section 7 read with Sections 107 and 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 became 'statutory lease'?

(iv) Whether lease rights of plaintiff were controlled by any Central or Provincial legislation in 1947 or thereafter when it was a contractual lease controlling terms and conditions of lease as well as excavation, transportation etc. of minerals?

(v) Whether lease rights of plaintiff were controlled by any Central or Provincial legislation when it became a 'statutory lease', controlling terms and conditions of lease as well as excavation, transportation etc. of mineral?

(vi) Whether terms and conditions of statutory lease under U.P. Act, 1951, are governed, regulated and controlled by MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder so as to affect terms and conditions of lease and also dead rent and royalty on the minerals?

(vii) Whether lease deed dated 27.04.1959 is/was legal and executable in view of MMRD Act, 1957.

82. Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Advocate, appearing for plaintiff-respondent, at the outset, contended that after enforcement of U.P. Act, 1951 with effect from 01.07.1952, Estate vested in State Government but the existing lease continued with lessee and only difference is that in place of private lessor, i.e. Zamindar, State Government was substituted by operation of law and that is how existing lease changed its nature from contractual to statutory and became a "statutory lease". He also contended that aforesaid statutory lease was not governed by provisions of any Central or State legislation dealing with mines and minerals including MMRD Act, 1957 and, therefore, demand of royalty under provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 by Collector is wholly illegal and plaintiff-respondents or any other sub-lessee is liable to pay only such dead rent or royalty, as is admitted under lease-deed dated 16.04.1947 and 27.04.1959.

83. The question whether lease-deed dated 16.04.1047 entered into between erstwhile Zamindar/ Intermediary and plaintiff-respondent became statutory lease when it was allowed to continue by virtue of Section 7 read with Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 can not detain us long since we find substance in submission of Sri Shashi Nandan that it became a "statutory lease" as on 01.07.1952.

84. This question has been considered in Bihar Mines Ltd. Vs. Union of India (supra). It is a Constitution Bench judgment deciding the matter by majority, consisting of Hon'ble Raghubar Dayal, Hon'ble K. Subba Rao and Hon'ble S.M. Sikri, J.J. Therein Court considered question, whether a lease granted before enactment of Bihar Land Reforms Act, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as "Bihar Act, 1950"), continued by virtue of Section 10 would be a new "statutory lease" or an existing mining lease executed before 25.10.1949. It would be necessary to examine basic facts giving rise to the dispute in Bihar Mines Ltd. Vs. Union of India (supra). One Raja Ran Bahadur Singh of Palganj had a big Estate under his Zamindari. On 11.08.1928 he executed a lease with respect to certain area of his estate in favour of Babu Tribanj Murari Chakravarti of Asansol (hereinafter referred to as "Head Lessee") for a period of 49 years. Purpose of execution of lease as mentioned therein, was to carry out mining operations in the said area for "soap stone", "kaoline" etc. "Head Lessee" executed a sub-lease in favour of Deoji Jairam Solanki on 18.05.1933. Sri Solanki, sub-lessee, granted a further sub-lease in respect to same area to M/s Hirji Premji Parmar and Brothers on 18.05.1934. Then on 18.10.1954 M/s Hirji Premji Parmar and Brothers assigned their right, title and interest in the said area in favour of M/s Bihar Mines Ltd., Calcutta for a period of 19 years and 7 months expiring on 17.05.1974. On 25.09.1952, Bihar Act, 1950 came into force. On 13.07.1953, Government of Bihar issued a Notification under Section 3(1) of Bihar Act, 1950 declaring that estate of Palganj passed to and became vested in State. On 26.01.1955, Government of Bihar issued another notification under Section 3A of Bihar Act, 1950 declaring that intermediary interests of all intermediaries in whole estate had passed to and become vested in the State. An argument was advanced that in view of Section 10, by aforesaid vesting in State and protection of existing leases to continue with the change of lessor by substituting "Zamindar" with "State Government", there came into existence a "new statutory lease" on the date of such vesting.

85. Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950 reads as under:

"Subsisting leases of mines and minerals -

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, where immediately before the date of vesting of the estate or tenure there is a subsisting lease of mines or minerals comprised in the estate or tenure or any part thereof, the whole or that part of the estate or tenure comprised in such lease shall, with effect from the date of vesting, be deemed to have been leased by the State Government to the holder of the said subsisting lease for the remainder of the term of that lease, and such holder shall be entitled to retain possession of the leasehold property.

(2) The terms and conditions of the said lease by the State Government shall mutatis mutandis be the same as the terms and conditions of the subsisting lease referred to in sub-section (1), but with the additional condition that, if in the opinion of the State Government the holder of the lease had not, before the date of the commencement of this Act, done any prospecting or development work, the State Government shall be entitled at any time before the expiry of one year from the said date to determine the lease by giving three months' notice in writing :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to prevent any modifications being made in the terms and conditions of the said lease in accordance with the provision of any Central Act for the time being in force regulating the modification of existing mining leases.

(3) The holder of any such lease of mines and minerals as is referred to in sub-section (1) shall not be entitled to claim any damages from the outgoing proprietor or tenure-holder on the ground that the terms of the lease executed by such proprietor or tenure-holder in respect of the said mines and minerals have become incapable of fulfilment by the operation of this Act." (emphasis added)

86. Construing Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950, Court held that effect of Estate being deemed to be leased by State Government is that lessee of Intermediary becomes lessee of State Government for all purposes from the date of vesting of Estate in the State. He cannot be deemed to be a lessee of Intermediary whose title under the original lease stood lost. It also held that "statutory lease" now held by "Head Lessee' from State Government is a new lease granted after 25.10.1949 i.e. on the date of vesting. The aforesaid judgment, however, lays down, firstly, that after vesting of Estate in State Government, individual lessor stood substituted by State Government and existing/subsisting lease became a new lease. Since it changed its nature from "contractual lease" to "statutory lease"; is deemed to have been granted on the date of vesting by State Government. This judgment was rendered interpreting Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950.

87. Having gone through Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950 and Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951, we do not find any substantial difference with regard to consequences of vesting of Estate in State of U.P. and substitution of Zamindar /Intermediary, the original lessor, by State Government. Thus, taking a view in favour of plaintiff-respondent and accepting argument of Sri Shashi Nandan, particularly when nothing otherwise could be placed by learned Additional Advocate General before us, we find no hesitation in holding that in the present case also, a new "statutory lease" came into existence on 01.07.1952 after vesting of land of disputed villages with State Government and substitution of status of lessor from erstwhile owner to State Government.

88. Now the effect would be that plaintiff-respondent or any other sub-lessee(s) continued to have a right of carrying on mining operations on the let out land under the erstwhile lease, but it would be treated to be a new lease which came into existence on 01.07.1952 with status of a "statutory lease", instead of "contractual lease". Further, right to make alteration in terms and conditions in statutory lease is also retained with State Government so as to make terms and conditions of lease consistent with provisions of Central Act, for the time being in force relating to mines and minerals.

89. We answer Question (iii) accordingly holding that lease deed dated 16.04.1947 which was a "contractual lease" ceased to be in operation as such on and after 01.07.1952 and thereafter there came into existence a new "statutory lease", though terms and conditions of said lease would continue to be same as were under contractual lease dated 16.04.1947, unless and until alterations are made. However, this lease had to conform with the provisions of any Central Act for the time being in force, regulating mining operations.

90. Now we propose to deal with Questions (iv), (v) and (vi) together. We are informed that earliest Legislation, which relates to mines and minerals is "Indian Mines Act, 1923" (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1923"). Neither the said Act has been placed before us by either of the parties nor we have otherwise advantage of its perusal, but it is also not shown by either of parties to us that the said Act in any manner impose any constraint upon erstwhile owner of land including mines, for leasing it out for extraction of minerals etc. Therefore, we have to proceed as if the said Act has no application to lease-deed dated 16.04.1947 granting rights to excavate or take away minerals from disputed land.

91. Next comes GI Act, 1935. Entry 36 List-I of Seventh Schedule (which was called "Federal Legislative List") provided for legislation with regard to "mines and minerals". We are informed that with reference to Entry 36, List-I of Seventh Schedule, Government of India framed Rules, 1939, but copy of such Rules has also not been made available to us to find out whether there was anything inconsistent with provisions of said Rules in the lease-deed dated 16.04.1947. In absence of such Rules placed before us to show that the same regulated or controlled grant of mining lease for extraction, transportation, removal etc. of minerals, we find no reason to hold that lease-deed dated 16.04.1947, as it was then executed by Kamlakar Singh, was invalid or inconsistent with any statutory provision. Hence it has to be held a valid lease as it then was executed between the parties.

92. But, the matter does not rest here for the reason that after a short while of execution of lease-deed dated 16.04.1947, exercising legislative power, Federal Legislation enacted MMRD Act, 1948 (Act No. LIII of 1948), which received assent of Governor General on 08.09.1948 and came into force on 25.10.1949 by virtue of Notification issued by Central Government under Section 1(3) of MMRD Act, 1948. Section 4 prohibited grant of any mining lease after commencement of MMRD Act, 1948 otherwise than in accordance with Rules made thereunder and also declares that any mining lease granted contrary to Sub-section (1) shall be void and of no effect. Section 5 conferred power upon Central Government for making Rules in respect of mining leases. Section 6 conferred power to make Rules in respect of mineral development, which may provide for regulation or prohibition of mining, quarrying or digging for or excavating or collecting of minerals from any mine or in any area and also collection of royalties, fees etc. and various other aspects detailed in Sub-section (2) of Section 6. Section 7 provided that in respect of existing leases, Central Government may make Rules for modifying or altering terms and conditions of any mining lease granted prior to commencement of MMRD Act, 1948 so as to bring such lease in conformity with Rules made under Sections 5 and 6.

93. The aforesaid Act had its application to the area of disputed villages. Since lease-deed was already executed and it was an existing lease, being that of 16.04.1947, if any Rules would have been made by Central Government under Section 7, it was open to modify or alter terms and conditions of lease-deed dated 16.04.1947 to bring the same in accordance with such Rules, else lease-deed dated 16.04.1947 could have been operated without obstruction.

94. We are informed that under MMRD Act, 1948, Central Government published Mineral Concession Rules, 1949 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules, 1949") for regulating grant of prospecting licences and mining leases for minerals other than petroleum and natural gases. These Rules came into force on 25.10.1949.

95. Lease-deed dated 16.04.1947, thus, so long as it continued to be a "contractual lease" is not shown to have been affected otherwise by defendant-appellant even when MMRD Act, 1948 and Rules, 1949 were framed. The said lease deed continued to hold field on its own and right of lessor and lessee did not get adversely affected or regulated by said Statutes on their enactment.

96. As soon as lease became "statutory", it ceased to be an existing lease granted on 16.04.1947. Court in Bihar Mines Ltd. Vs. Union of India (supra) said in para 18 of judgment, "We are therefore of opinion that the statutory lease now held by head lessee from the State Government is a new lease granted after October 25, 1949."

97. Thus, we may now examine whether this "new statutory lease" had to comply with the provisions of MMRD Act, 1948 and Rules, 1949. Terms "mines", "minerals" and "mining lease" were defined in Section 3 (b) (c) and (d) of MMRD Act, 1948 and read as under:

"3. Definitions.- In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,-

(a) ....

(b) "mine" means any excavation for the purpose of searching for or obtaining minerals and includes an oil-well;

(c) "minerals" include natural gas and petroleum;

(d) "mining lease" means a lease granted for the purpose of searching for, winning, working, getting, making merchantable, carrying away or disposing of minerals or for purposes connected therewith, and includes an exploring or a prospecting license;"

98. Section 4 prohibits grant of any mining lease after commencement of MMRD Act, 1948 otherwise than in accordance with Rules. It reads as under:

"4. No mining lease to be valid unless it is in accordance with this Act.- (1) No mining lease shall be granted after the commencement of this Act otherwise than in accordance with the rules made under this Act.

(2) Any mining lease granted contrary to the provision of sub-section (1) shall be void and of no effect."

99. Section 7 deals with the modification of existing leases granted prior to commencement of MMRD Act, 1948. It is contended that the word "granted" means a lease granted by owner and not where a lease has come into existence by operation of law, i.e., a "statutory lease". Therefore, statutory lease came into existence on 01.07.1952, would remain unaffected by MMRD Act, 1948, since it is not a lease granted.

100. We find force in the submission of learned counsel for plaintiff-respondent. Even after coming into existence a "new statutory lease" on 01.07.1952, it remained unaffected by provisions of MMRD Act, 1948 and Rules, 1949 framed thereunder, since it was not a lease granted by owner but operated by virtue of operation of law.

101. We are also informed that under Section 7 of MMRD Act, 1948, Central Government published in Gazette of India, Extraordinary dated 05.09.1956 "The Mining Leases (Modification of Terms) Rules, 1956" (hereinafter referred to as "Rules, 1956"). Section 7 was applicable to existing leases granted prior to commencement of MMRD Act, 1948. In the present case, a new statutory lease has come into existence on 01.07.1952, hence the said Rules would have no impact on the continuance of mining operations by plaintiff-respondent, i.e., Head Lessee and sub-lessees. Thus, even new statutory lease remained unaffected by MMRD Act, 1948 and Rules framed thereunder. The plaintiff's right to operate mining lease under statutory lease thus continued validly.

102. Under Constitution of India, Entry 54, List-I, Seventh Schedule empowers Union to make laws regulating mines and mineral development to the extent such regulation and development under the control of Union is declared by Parliament by law to be expedient in the public interest. This Entry reads as under:

"54. Regulation of mines and mineral development to the extent to which such regulation and development under the control of the Union is declared by Parliament by law to be expedient in the public interest."

103. With respect to Provincial Legislation, the relevant Entries 23 and 50 of List-II, Seventh Schedule, read as under:

"23. Regulation of mines and mineral development subject to the provisions of List I with respect to regulation and development under the control of the Union."

"50. Taxes on mineral rights subject to any limitations imposed by Parliament by law relating to mineral development."

104. Parliament, consequently, enacted MMRD Act, 1957 making a declaration under Section 2 that it is expedient in public interest that Union should take under its control regulation of mines and development of mineral to the extent hereinafter provided. Section 4 thereof regulates mining leases. Section 9 read with Second Schedule provides for rate of Royalty payable by a lessee in respect of each mineral and Section 9-A provides for dead rent which is in the nature of minimum Royalty.

105. Court below after referring to Section 4 has held that MMRD Act, 1957 is not applicable to statutory lease of plaintiff-respondent which has continued under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 for the reason that it is not a lease granted under MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder and the said Statute is not applicable to statutory leases. In our view, Court below has misread and misconstrued Section 4 of MMRD Act, 1957. It reads as under:

*"4. Prospecting or mining operations to be under licence or lease:- (1) No person shall undertake any prospecting or mining operations in any area, except under and in accordance with the terms and conditions of a prospecting licence or, as the case may be, a mining lease, granted under this Act and the rules made thereunder:*

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall affect any prospecting or mining operations undertaken in any area in accordance with the terms and conditions of a prospecting licence or mining lease granted before the commencement of this Act which is in force at such commencement.

(2) No prospecting licence of mining lease shall be granted otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder."

(emphasis added)

106. Section 4(1) is in two parts. First part prohibits any prospecting or mining operations in any area whatsoever. Second part permits such activities subject to terms and conditions on which a prospecting licence or a mining lease is granted under MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder. The prohibition is complete. It applies to all kinds of mining operations. The term "mining operation" has also been defined in Section 3 (d) of MMRD Act, 1957 and reads as under:

"(d) "mining operations" means any operations undertaken for the purpose of winning any mineral;"

107. The term "mining operation" which is prohibited by Section 4(1) is very wide and has no reservation, restriction or reason so as to be given a narrow meaning or interpretation. Any work which is carried out for winning any mineral is included within the words "mining operation". An attempt was made to read the word "winning" in a restricted manner, but negating the same in Bihar Mines Limited Vs. Union of India (supra), Court said that there is no reason to give a narrow meaning to expression "winning". In popular sense, winning a mineral means getting or extracting it from mine.

108. In D.K. Trivedi and Sons Vs. State of Gujarat AIR 1986 SC 1323, Court held that quarrying mineral is a mining operation as it consists of an operation undergone for the purpose of winning particular classes of minerals.

109. In Industrial Fuels Marketing Company Vs. Union of India AIR 1983 Cal. 253 also Court followed comprehensive meaning of the expression "winning" and said that "winning" does not necessarily means extracting a mineral by excavating earth or soil, but it means also collection of mineral from surface of earth. In other words, if a mineral is extracted or obtained irrespective of the fact, whether the activity is carried out on the surface or in the bowels of earth, it is within the meaning the word "winning".

110. It is not the case of plaintiff-respondent that sand, ballast, stones etc., which were being quarried from disputed land is not winning of minerals, and, therefore, it was a "mining operation" as defined under Section 3(d). Section 4(1) prohibits any "mining operation" in any area. The only exception is, where mining lease is granted under MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder or it is one covered under Proviso to Section 4(1) of MMRD Act, 1957. Meaning thereby, it was mandatory and obligatory for any person whatsoever to obtain a mining lease under MMRD Act, 1957 and the Rules framed thereunder to carry out mining operations, else it is void, illegal and contrary to MMRD Act, 1957.

111. We may also point out that term "mining lease" is defined under Section 3(c) and it talks of a lease granted for the purpose of undertaking mining operations. Unlike MMRD Act, 1948, intention of Legislature under MMRD Act, 1957 is much wide and comprehensive. Under MMRD Act, 1948, term "mining operation" was neither defined nor stressed but only "mining lease" was defined therein under Section 3(d) and controlling provision, i.e., Sections 4 and 7 were in respect of mining leases whether granted before MMRD Act, 1948 or thereafter. In MMRD Act, 1957, Legislature after having experienced in the past nine years, realised difficulty in controlling matters relating to mines with reference to mining leases, and, therefore, made it wider by expanding the horizon using the term "mining operation". Therefore, under Section 4 of MMRD Act, 1957 what has been restricted/prohibited is a mining operation, which is very wide and covers everything. It is wholly irrelevant whether such mining operation was under a "contractual mining lease" or "statutory mining lease". Parliamentary legislation enacted under List-I completely prohibits a mining operation in any area and that applies to all. Court below in observing that Section 4(1) is applicable only to "contractual lease" and not "statutory lease", has read something therein which is not there and aforesaid finding of Court below is clearly incorrect and has to be reversed. Court below also has erred in holding that MMRD Act, 1957 would apply to such leases only as are granted thereunder.

112. Then Section 4 permits mining operations etc. in two circumstances; (1) permit, licence or lease, as the case may be, is granted under Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder; and, (2) if there was already a prospecting or mining operation, undergoing in an area in terms and conditions of a prospecting licence or mining lease granted before the commencement of MMRD Act, 1957 which is in force at such commencement, that would continue and prohibition under Section 4(1) shall have no application on such prospecting licence or mining lease.

113. Here again this proviso of Section 4(1) which permits a mining operation already undergoing in an area, is applicable to a mining lease granted before commencement of Act. We have already held while upholding contention of plaintiff-respondent that term "granted" means a lease granted by owner under an agreement, but this word "granted" will not cover a statutory lease. Plaintiff's lease which became a "new statutory lease" by virtue of Section 7 read with Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 cannot be said to be a mining lease granted so as to be covered by Section 4(1) proviso. The reasons is also obvious. Any contractual lease, if granted before commencement of MMRD Act, 1957, must and could have been granted complying provisions of MMRD Act, 1948 and Rules framed thereunder. Hence, Legislature allowed such lease to continue.

114. Counsel for plaintiff-respondent sought to explain the word "granted" in reference to Section 4 of MMRD Act, 1948 that the word "granted" would not mean a "statutory lease" and in that way claimed protection from application of MMRD Act, 1948 and Rules, 1949. If that be so, same interpretation and meaning will have to be assigned to word "granted" under Section 4(1) Proviso of MMRD Act, 1957 in the absence of any otherwise intention shown in the said provision. Hence, this proviso will not protect plaintiff-respondent so as to continue with mining operation under "statutory lease", came into existence on 01.07.1952. We thus, have no hesitation in holding that on and after 01.06.1958 plaintiff-respondent lost any authority to continue mining operations on the land within villages in dispute relying on statutory lease of 01.07.1952 since all such mining operations stood prohibited by Section 4(1) of MMRD Act, 1957 and thereafter only those operations could have operated as are allowed/granted under such Act.

115. However, for the benefit of plaintiff-respondent, even if we read proviso to Section 4(1) so as to protect existing statutory lease of plaintiff-respondent operating since before commencement of MMRD Act, 1957, still finding, of Trial Court that MMRD Act, 1957 is not applicable in this case cannot be saved and has to be declared illegal for the reason that proviso to Section 4(1) permits mining operations in an area in accordance with terms and conditions of a mining lease granted before commencement of MMRD Act, 1957 but that brings in applicability of MMRD Act, 1957 on the statutory lease, plaintiff respondent was having at the time of commencement of MMRD Act, 1957. That takes us to some other provisions of Act, which have overriding effect over instrument of lease or any law in force at the time of commencement of MMRD Act, 1957. We may refer to Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957 which talks of royalties in respect to mining lease and is applicable to mining leases whether granted before commencement of said Act or thereafter. It reads as under:

*"9. Royalties in respect of mining leases : (1) The holder of a mining lease granted before the commencement of this Act shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the instrument of lease or in any law in force at such commencement, pay royalty in respect of any mineral removed or consumed by him or by his agent, manager, employee, contractor or sub-lessee from the leased area after such commencement, at the rate for the time being specified in the Second Schedule in respect of that mineral.

(2) The holder of a mining lease granted on or after the commencement of this Act shall pay royalty in respect of any mineral removed or consumed by him or by his agent, manager, employee, contractor or sub-lessee from the leased area at the rate for the time being specified in the Second Schedule in respect of that mineral.

(2A) The holder of a mining lease, whether granted before or after the commencement of the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Amendment Act, 1972, shall not be liable to pay any royalty in respect of any coal consumed by a workman engaged in a colliery provided that such consumption by the workman does not exceed one-third of a tonne per month.

(3) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, amend the Second Schedule so as to enhance or reduce the rate at which royalty shall be payable in respect of any mineral with effect from such date as may be specified in the notification:

Provided that the Central Government shall not enhance the rate of royalty in respect of any mineral more than once during any period of three years."

(Emphasis added)

116. Section 9(1) declares to have overriding effect over any instrument of lease or any law in force at the commencement of MMRD Act, 1957 and notwithstanding thereto holder of mining lease has to pay royalty in respect of mineral removed or consumed by him or his agent etc., at the rate specified in Second Schedule in respect of that mineral. Section 9 thus shall prevail even upon a statutory leases since not only instrument of lease but even any law in force will not come in the way is the clear intention of Legislature. Plaintiff-respondent, therefore, cannot absolve itself of the liability of payment of royalty as per rates specified in Second Schedule of MMRD Act, 1957.

117. We may also notice at this stage that Parliament had no reservation to bring in existing statutory leases also in conformity with MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules made thereunder. In initial enactment of MMRD Act, 1957, Section 16(1), as enacted, read as under:

"16. (1) All mining leases granted before the 25th day of October, 1949 shall, as soon as may be after the commencement of this Act, be brought into conformity with the provisions of this Act and the rules made under sections 13 and 18:

Provided that if the Central Government is of opinion that in the interest of mineral development it is expedient so to do, it may, for reasons to be recorded, permit any person to hold one or more such mining leases covering in any one State a total area in excess of that specified in clause (b) of section 6 or for a period exceeding that specified in sub-section (1) of section 8."

118. It was amended by substitution by Act 56 of 1972 in view of declaration by Court that contractual leases granted before statutes came to be enacted relating to abolition of Zamindari rights and vesting of land in State thereunder rendering contractual leases, by operation of law statutory leases to which Section 16(1) as it was initially enacted was inapplicable and thus, to bring in within its ambit even statutory leases, Section 16 was widely amended. For our purpose we may reproduce Section 16(1) as it was substituted by Act No. 56 of 1972, as under:

"16. Power to modify mining lease granted before 25th October, 1949: (1) (a) All mining leases granted before the commencement of the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Amendment Act, 1972 (56 of 1972) if in force at such commencement, shall be brought into conformity with the provisions of this Act, and the rules made thereunder, within six months from such commencement, or such further time as the Central Government may, by general or special order, specify in this behalf.

(b) Where the rights under any mining lease, granted by the proprietor of an estate or tenure before the commencement of the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Amendment Act, 1972, have vested, on or after the 25th day of October, 1949 in the State Government in pursuance of the provisions of any Act of any Provincial or State Legislature which provides for the acquisition of estates or tenures or provides for agrarian reform, such mining lease shall be brought into conformity with the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder within six months from the commencement of the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Amendment Act, 1972 (56 of 1972) or within such further time as the Central Government may, by general or special order specify in this behalf." (emphasis added)

119. This amendment made in 1972 makes it clear that all mining operations which were carried out under contractual leases or statutory leases, irrespective of nature of lease, would be mining operation and within the ambit of Section 4(1) and such operation stood prohibited unless a lease under MMRD Act, 1957 is granted or is protected by Proviso to Section 4(1).

120. If for the sake of benefit of plaintiff-respondent and reading the word 'granted' so as to cover statutory lease also, we extend protection of proviso to Section 4(1) of MMRD Act, 1957 to plaintiff-respondent, still she is not protected from her liability of payment of royalty under, and, in terms of Section 9 and subsequently in respect of the 'dead rent' also under Section 9-A which was also inserted by Act 56 of 1972. Section 9 applies to statutory leases also is the view expressed in State of Bihar Vs. Khas Karanpura Collieries Ltd. (supra), which we may discuss in detail at a later stage and on this aspect Sri Shashi Nandan could not place any thing when we drew his attention and made query. Section 9 is very clear and unambiguous so as to make obligatory upon plaintiff-respondent to pay royalty as per rates under Schedule-2 of MMRD Act, 1957.

121. Learned Counsel for plaintiff-respondent sought to argue that right of mining operations protected under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 could not have been overridden by the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. The submission is thoroughly misconceived. Once a declaration was made by Central Government under Section 2 of MMRD Act, 1957 to take under its control regulations of mines and development of minerals to the extent provided under MMRD Act, 1957, Provincial Legislation having contrary provision, would cease to operate. Such Provincial Statutes would not then confer any right in respect of mines and minerals, contrary to the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. To that extent plaintiff-respondent cannot claim protection under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 since provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 shall prevail and would render State statute inoperative. Various authorities relied by counsel for plaintiff-respondent, as referred to above, have no application so as to deal with the situation which had arisen with the enactment of MMRD Act, 1957 and, therefore, he cannot get any advantage under those authorities.

122. We may point out that all these authorities basically deal with the distinction of "contractual lease" and "statutory lease" and virtually a follow up of decision in Bihar Mines Ltd. Vs. Union of India (supra). This may be demonstrated as hereunder.

123. In Chhatu Ram Horil Ram Private Ltd. Vs. State of Bihar (supra), appellant-Company, Chhatu Ram Horil Ram Private Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as "Company") obtained a lease on 30.09.1940 from owners of 3,300 acres of mica land in Village Sapahi in the District of Gaya for a period of 15 years. With enactment of Bihar Act, 1950 and Notification issued under Section 3 thereof, right of owner of land vested in State of Bihar with effect from 27.06.1953. Thus, Company retained lease rights for the remaining period of contractual lease under a "deemed statutory lease" by State Government. After expiry of remaining period, Company sought to exercise option for renewal vide letter dated 22.02.1955 in terms of Clause 29 of lease deed. State of Bihar on 06.01.1956 granted a lease to Company in respect of 410 acres of land for 20 years and remaining area was granted to one Sant Saran Bhadani, a Director of the Company. This action of State Government was challenged by one Sudha Devi in Patna High Court on the ground that fresh lease have been granted in violation of Rules 67 and 68 of Rules, 1949. High Court set aside Bihar Government's order dated 05.07.1956. Company then filed a suit for specific performance for covenant of renewal under lease deed dated 30.09.1940. Trial Court dismissed suit holding that Clause-29 provides a right of pre-emption and not renewal. High Court confirmed decree passed by Trial Court though on different grounds. High Court held that right granted by Clause 29 gave rise to an "encumbrance" which extinguished when interest of owners vested in the State of Bihar free of all encumbrances. Company then came in appeal. Supreme Court held that in view of Notification under Section 3 of Bihar Act, 1950 and vesting of land with State Government, Company acquired rights of "statutory lease" for the remaining period of lease with the same terms and conditions. However, right of renewal etc. which amounts to an "encumbrance" under the contractual lease could be claimed to have continued since State of Bihar got land vested free from any encumbrance or obligation granted by contract. Supreme Court upheld the view taken by High Court that Clause of renewal or pre-emption under Clause 29 as claimed by Company would have effect of limiting freedom of State of Bihar as an absolute owner which was against the provision of Section 4 of Bihar Act, 1950 which provides that vesting shall be free from all encumbrance. An attempt was made by Company by referring to Rule 40 of Rules, 1949 to argue that a lessee could have been entitled to at least one renewal thereunder. Court held that Rule 40 was applicable to a mining lease "granted" and interpreting the word "granted" Court held that the Rule applies to grants made by Government and has no application to "statutory lease" arising by virtue of Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950.

124. The aforesaid judgment nowhere helps the plaintiff-respondent except to the contention that she got contractual lease converted into a "new statutory lease" on 01.07.1952 with the enforcement of U.P. Act, 1951 and there also land vested in State free from all encumbrances. Meaning of the word "grant" taken by Supreme Court in the above case fortify our view also as we have discussed above. Further the claim of renewal etc. under contractual lease would also disappear since land vested in State of U.P. free from all encumbrances.

125. Then comes Hindustan Steel Limited, M/s. Rourkela Vs. Kalyani Banerjee AIR 1973 SC 408. Therein by a registered document dated 11.07.1919 one Kumar Amardeyal Singh, proprietor of Ladi Estate, granted a lease in favour of one Pran Kristo Chatterjee. It was in respect of various minerals including iron ore and related to a large tract of land in District Palamau, covering an area of 2227 acres in village Adar and 1303 acres in village Gore of District Palamau. In 1937, heirs of original lessee, i.e., Pran Kristo Chatterjee, assigned and transferred their interest under lease dated 11.07.1919 to one Vyomkesh Mukherjee. Sri Mukherjee died in 1949. On 21.09.1951, heirs of late Vyomkesh Mukherjee granted sub-lease to one Madan Gopal Rungta. Deputy Commissioner of Palamau in December' 1952 obstructed sub-lessee Madan Gopal Roongta in working of mining operations. On 16.04.1953 sub-lessee Madan Gopal Roongta entered into an agreement to pay royalty to Government of Bihar for working mining rights covered by sub-lease. On Notification issued in January, 1955 whole of Ladi Estate vested in State of Bihar under Bihar Act, 1950. In 1959 Controller of Mining Leases started proceeding of modification of terms of lease dated 11.07.1919. Controller passed an order on 28.09.1959 exercising power under Rule 6 of Rules, 1956 and modified lease dated 11.07.1919 so as to make it terminable with effect from 20.09.1961. On 11.12.1961 Government of Bihar invited applications for grant of mining leases in respect of Village Gore. On 10.09.1962 Madan Gopal Rungta and his son Tribeni Prasad Rungta applied for mining lease for the said area. Certain other parties also applied. On 13.11.1962 a notice was issued to Tribeni Prasad Rungta under Section 7 of Bihar and Orissa Public Demand Recovery Act demanding Rs. 66,317.93 by way of dead rent and royalty alleged to have accrued during period when Madan Gopal Rungta was working mines under sub-lease. On 01.04.1963 M/s. Hindustan Steels Limited (hereinafter referred to as "HSL") applied for grant of mining lease for an area of 67.26 acress in Village Gore. Tribeni Prasad Rungta filed a Writ Petition in Patna High Court which was allowed vide judgment dated 23.11.1964. On 22.07.1965 State of Bihar, acting with approval of Central Government, granted a mining lease to HSL in respect of 67.26 acres. Another lease was granted to M/s Bharat Marble Company on 17.10.1966. One S.K. Jain, acting on behalf of heirs of Vyomkesh Mukherjee, filed a Writ Petition challenging leases granted to HSL and M/s Bharat Marble Company. Vide judgment dated 17.09.1971, Writ Petition was allowed and both these leases were cancelled and that is how HSL came to Supreme Court. The Court considered following four issues:

"(1) Could Kumar Amardeyal Singh, the proprietor of Ladi Estate, grant a mining lease ?

(2) What was the effect of the Bihar Land Reforms Act, 1950 upon the right and title, if any, of the petitioners ?

(3) Assuming that the petitioners became lessees under the State of Bihar by reason of the Bihar Land Reforms Act, could the Controller of Mining Leases terminate their lease ?

(4) What is the effect of the possession that has been enjoyed by the appellant since the grant of the mining lease on 22 July 1965."

126. Following the view taken in Bihar Mines Limited (supra), Court held that on the date of vesting of Ladi Estate, there came into existence notionally a statutory lease granted by State Government to heirs of Vyomkesh Mukherjee who were holding lease rights on the date of vesting for the remainder terms of lease. It held that effect of vesting and continuance of lease rights of existing leases under Bihar Act, 1950 was that instead of being lessee under Kumar Amardeyal Singh and his successors, existing lessee petitioners became lessee directly under State Government on the same terms and conditions on which the original lease was granted by original lessor i.e. Kumar Amardeyal Singh. The decision in Bihar Mines Limited Vs. Union of India (supra) was followed and reaffirmed. Court also held that Controller of Mining Lease had no authority under Rules, 1956 for the reason that there was no subsisting contractual lease. By virtue of Section 10, a "new statutory lease" came into existence on the date when Estate vested in Government.

127. In the present case also, we have also held that Rules, 1956 having been framed under Section 7 of MMRD Act, 1948 were applicable to existing lease granted prior to commencement of MMRD Act, 1948 and, therefore, will have no application to "new statutory lease", came into existence after enforcement of U.P. Act, 1951, for example, in the present case, on 01.07.1952. The aforesaid judgment also does not show anything otherwise to the view we have taken and discussed above.

128. In Sone Valley Portland Cement Co. Ltd. Vs. General Mining Syndicate Pvt. Ltd. (supra), a lease was granted to Karunaranjan Dutt and Jugal Chandra Dutt (hereinafter referred to as "Original Lessees") by Raja Bishambharnath Sahi on 31.07.1927 of the land known as Sonepura Estate, Pergana Rohtas, District Shahbad and some other villages for a period of 40 years commencing from 01.08.1927 with an option to continue for further period of 25 years. On 12.10.1928 Original Lessee executed a sub-lease in favour of Sone Valley Portland Cement Co. Ltd. (hereinafter after referred to as "Cement Company"). Sub-lessees were also given option to pay royalty directly to Original Lessor. On 15.02.1929, Original Lessees, i.e., Dutt brothers, transferred by a deed of assignment all their rights, title and interest under and by virtue of indenture of lease dated 31.07.1927 to General Mining Syndicate Private Limited (hereinafter referred to as "GMSPL"). Sub-lessee Cement Company had due notice of the said assignment and accepted

GMSPL as Lessor in place of Original Lessee, i.e. Dutt borthers who were lessor so far as Cement Company is concerned when sub-lease was executed to it. Under MMRD Act, 1948, Central Government made Rules for regulating grant of mining leases or for prohibiting grant of such leases in respect of any mineral or in any area. Rules, 1949 were also framed thereunder, but had no application to leases or sub-leases prior to 25.10.1949. On 25.09.1950, Bihar Act, 1950 came into force. Under Section 3 and 3A of Bihar Act, 1950 a Notification was issued and Estate of Sonepura belong to Raja Bishambharnath Sah came to be vested in State of Bihar on 14.11.1951 pursuant to Notification dated 06.11.1995. Thereafter MMRD Act, 1957 came to be enacted wherein Section 9 was amended by Act No. 56 of 1972. Purporting to act under Rules, 1956, Controller of Mining Leases, by order dated 08.08.1959 enhanced royalty payable under lease dated 31.07.1927. Cement Company, however, as per Sub-lease dated 12.10.1928 paid royalty directly to Original Lessor up to the date, land vested in State of Bihar. Thereafter, Cement Company started paying royalty directly to State of Bihar in terms of sub-lease dated 12.10.1928 but stopped doing so from 01.07.1958. GMSPL, who was assigned all rights by Original Lessee, i.e., Dutt Brothers, brought a suit on 10.07.1961 being Suit No. 1104 of 1961 in the High Court of Calcutta claiming declaration for payment of royalty from 01.07.1928 to 07.08.1959, the date immediately preceding the date on which Controller enhanced royalty payable to State of Bihar and 08.08.1959 to 31.03.1961. It also claimed interest on the aforesaid amount.

129. Cement Company contested the suit pleading that position of Dutt was like a tenure holder under erstwhile owner Raja Bishambharnath Sahi and after vesting of land with State of Bihar, the position of Cement Company became that of a lessee in possession. It mistakenly continued to pay royalty to GMSPL due to ignorance of Notification of vesting with State of Bihar. In the alternative, it pleaded that GMSPL continued to be lessee and Cement Company as sub-lessee, hence, GMSPL being holder of mining lease within the meaning of Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957, was liable to pay royalty at the rate determined by Controller and since Cement Company has paid royalty to State being agent of GMSPL, it should be reimbursed by the said lessee. It is, thus, clear that in the aforesaid matter, there was a dispute between two parties, one was the assignee of Original Lessee of all lease rights and another, a sub-lessee, with regard to payment of royalty. There was no issue whether lease after vesting of land including mines, minerals etc. in State of Bihar would be governed by provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 or not.

130. Be that as it may, the aforesaid facts show that MMRD Act, 1948 and Rules, 1949, since both came into existence on 25.10.1949, hence did not apply to leases or sub-leases granted prior to 25.10.1949.

131. With enactment of Bihar Act, 1950 and issue of Notification dated 06.11.1951 under Section 3, Estate of Sonepura vested in State of Bihar. By Notification dated 01.01.1956 issued under Section 3A all Intermediary interest were also vested in State of Bihar. Rules, 1956 came to be enacted on 04.09.1956 for modifying and altering terms and conditions of existing leases. Cement Company after vesting of land in State of Bihar, started paying royalty directly to State Government. A suit was brought claiming payment of royalty under sub-lease dated 12.10.1928 contending that notwithstanding the Notification under Section 3, interest of lessee under lease continued to subsist, did not vest in State of Bihar and lessee was entitled to receive royalty. The dispute basically was with regard to right to receive royalty by a sub-lessee.

132. Calcutta High Court held that sub-lessee was not an Intermediary or tenure holder in respect of Estate and its interest did not vest in State of Bihar as a result of Notification dated 06.11.1951 or 01.01.1956. Therefore, sub-lessee was entitled for a decree with respect to amount of royalty. In Appeal Supreme Court upheld this view and said:

"... the estate comprised in the head lease in the instant case which was assigned to the respondent notionally stood leased by the State from the date of vesting to the holder of the subsisting lease for the remainder of the term of the lease and the respondent became entitled to retain possession of the leasehold property."

133. However, there was also a dispute with respect to a subsequent period of 08.08.1959 to 31.03.1961 during which period there had come into existence MMRD Act, 1957. In this regard, Court observed that this aspect is not free from difficulties since has to be examined with reference to Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957 read with Rules, 1956 and also Section 9 of Bihar Act, 1950. However, Court did not answer this question observing that the order of Controller dated 08.08.1959 appears to have been passed with agreement of parties, therefore, it is not necessary to resolve this aspect.

134. We find that this judgment does not help plaintiff-respondent in any manner except that it has followed the decision in Bihar Mines Limited Vs. Union of India (supra) to the extent that on vesting of land in State under the provisions of Bihar Act, 1950, State became owner and holder of a subsisting lease could have continued for remainder term of lease.

135. The next decision dealing with this aspect is State of Bihar Vs. Khas Karanpura Collieries Ltd. (supra) which has also been relied heavily by plaintiff-respondent. Therein also Rajas of Ramgarh and Jharia, proprietors of Big Estates, prior to 25.10.1949 granted mining leases, in Districts of Hazaribagh, Dhanbad and Singhbhum to various persons for winning and extracting coal for a period of 999 years, in lieu of payment of premiums and fixed annual rental. In the leases, either there was no stipulation for payment of royalty or the amount of royalty was very low. Except few cases, all other lessees granted sub-leases. After enactment of Bihar Act, 1950, entire land including mines and minerals of Rajas vested in State of Bihar free from all encumbrance. Under Section 9 of Bihar Act, 1950, it was provided that mines which were in operation at the commencement of Bihar Act, 1950 and being worked directly by Intermediary, shall be deemed to have been leased by State Government to Intermediary and he would be entitled to retain possession of those mines as a lessee thereof. Mines in dispute in State of Bihar Vs. Khas Karanpura (supra) were not worked out by Intermediary classes, therefore, Section 9 was not attracted. Section 4 read with Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950 permitted continuance of subsisting leases of mines and minerals with change of Intermediary and substitution by State Government as lessor for remainder term of lease. Thus, Original contractual lease came to an end and "fresh statutory lease" in favour of lessee came into being under Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950. Court clearly observed in para 10 that from 03.11.1951, when Estate of Jharia Rajya vested in State of Bihar, subsisting leases came to be treated "new statutory leases" granted by State Government in terms of Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950. The mining leases were for coal. Court observed that though royalty under Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957 was payable but Section 30-A inserted by Amendment Act of 1958 excluded Section 9(1) and 16(1) in respect of leases granted for coal before 25.10.1949. It also empowers Central Government by issuing a Notification in Official Gazette directing to apply Section 9(1) and 16(1) including any Rules made under Section 13 and 18 to such exempted leases. Section 30-A was inserted with retrospective effect. It exercise of power under Section 30-A, Central Government issued a Notification on 29.12.1961 to apply Section 9(1) to mining leases in respect of coal granted before 25.10.1949 subject to modification that lessee would pay royalty at the rate specified in agreement with the lessor or 2½ per cent of F.O.R. price of coal, whichever is higher, in place of rate of royalty specified for coal under Second Schedule. State Government then demanded royalty on 2½ per cent and initiated recovery proceedings. Thereafter Section 10-A was inserted in Bihar Act, 1950 by virtue of an amendment on 26.10.1964 whereunder even lessee's interests in mines and minerals which were subject to sub-leases also came to vest in State of Bihar. Another Notification was issued by Central Government under Section 30-A of MMRD Act, 1957 on 01.01.1966 superseding Notification dated 29.12.1961 and applying Section 9(1) of MMRD Act, 1957 to leases granted prior to commencement of said Act of 1957. Court noticed that judgment in Bihar Mines Limited Vs. Union of India (supra) was pronounced on 03.10.1966 holding that from the date of vesting Original Lessor's right came to an end and new "statutory leases" came into existence with the substitution of State Government as lessor for remainder term. In the light of aforesaid judgment, Patna High Court in Narendra Nath Mandal Vs. State of Bihar decided on 22.12.1967 held that due to vesting, new statutory leases came into existence but by virtue of Section 9 read with Second Schedule royalty was payable as per rates mentioned therein and Section 30-A and Notifications issued thereunder were not applicable to such leases which came into being on vesting of Estate in State of Bihar on the date of vesting. District Mining Officer, consequently raised demand from Khas Karanpura Collieries Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as "lessee"), who challenged the said demand by filing writ petition in Patna High Court. Their case was that Rule 41 of Rules,1949 requiring royalty at the rate specified in Schedule I of Rules, 1949 would apply to a lease granted under Rules, 1949 after commencement of MMRD Act, 1948 and had no application to sub-leases of lessees obliging them to pay royalty as per rates under Rules, 1949 for the period between date of vesting to 31.05.1958, i.e., just preceding date of enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957. They further pleaded that from 01.06.1958 to 28.12.1961 royalty was payable at contractual rates since Section 9(1) of MMRD Act, 1957 was not applicable to statutory leases and even otherwise Section 30-A excludes application of Section 9(1) to mining leases of coal. They said that in any case, they paid royalty at the rate of 2½ per cent from 29.12.1961 to 31.12.1965 as per Central Government's Notification and State having accepted the same was not entitled to raise a further demand. State of Bihar contended that a combined reading of Section 9 and 29 of MMRD Act, 1957 read with Second Schedule to Rules, 1949 lessees or sub-lessees were liable to pay royalty as per rates of Rules, 1949 from the date of vesting of respective Estate of Proprietors in the State of Bihar. It also pleaded that Section 9 was applicable to all leases, whether contractual or statutory, which came into existence before MMRD Act, 1957. Section 30-A was applicable only in respect of mining leases of coal and not to statutory mining leases of lessees.

A Special Bench of five Judges of Patna High Court heard the bunch of Writ Petitions and allowed vide judgment dated 03.09.1970 holding that earlier judgment in Narendra Nath Mandal Vs. State of Bihar (supra) was wrongly decided. It held that Rule 41 of Rules 1949 was applicable only to contractual grants and not to statutory leases arising by virtue of Section 10 of Bihar Act, 1950. It also held that there was no reason to relate back Section 9 by virtue of Section 29 to any date anterior to the date of enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957. Section 30-A was applicable not only to mining leases but other leases also which expression covered statutory leases. It is this judgment which came in appeal before Supreme Court. Two issues were raised in this matter:

(1) Whether the claim for royalty in regard to the period prior to June 1, 1958 can be sustained?

(2) whether the claim for royalty in regard to the period from June 1, 1958 to December 31, 1965 is justified?

136. Court upheld High Court's view that Rule 41 of Rules 1949 was applicable only to contractual leases and not to statutory leases and fortified this view by referring to its earlier judgment in Chhatu Ram Horil Ram Private Ltd. Vs. State of Bihar (supra). It held that claim for royalty for period prior to 01.06.1958 was unfounded and unsustainable. Now coming to subsequent period, i.e., 01.06.1958 and onwards, Court held that no exception can be taken to the view taken by High Court that in view of Section 30-A which excludes application of Section 9 temporarily, royalty could have been demanded under Section 9 for the period of 01.06.1958 to 31.12.1965 for the reason that aforesaid provisions were applicable to statutory leases also. Court said that Section 9 consists of three parts and then it read Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957 as under:

"Sub-section (1) casts a liability on the holder of a mining lease granted before June 1, 1958 - the date of the commencement of the Act- to pay royalty in respect of any mineral removed by him from the leased area after that date at the rate for the time being specified in the Second Schedule, notwithstanding anything contained in the instrument of lease or in any law in force on the aforesaid date of the commencement of the Act. Sub-section (2) makes also the holder of a mining lease granted on or after June 1, 1958 liable to pay royalty in respect of any mineral removed by him from the leased area at the rate for the time being specified in the Second Schedule. Sub-section (3) empowers the Central Government to amend the Second Schedule and enhance or reduce the rate of royalty in respect of any mineral by issue of a notification subject to the restriction contained in the proviso to this sub-section."

137. Court held that Section 9 embraces all leases which came into existence before 01.06.1958 and in case statutory lease is excluded from Section 30-A, it would render it nugatory for the reason that after enactment of Biahr Act, 1950 all mining leases became statutory by virtue of Section 10. The relevant observations are as under:

"Section 30-A would be rendered nugatory because on the coming into being of the statutory leases as a result of section 10(1) of the Bihar Land Reforms Act, there would hardly be left any mining lease to which Section 30-A of the 1957 Act would be applicable. Thus there can be no room for doubt that the Legislature intended that Section 30-A of the 1957 Act should cover the aforesaid statutory leases as well."

138. Thus, the aforesaid judgment makes it clear that Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957 was applicable to all leases which came into existence before 01.06.1958 which includes statutory leases also. In cases wherever Section 30-A was applicable, payment of royalty under Section 9 stood excluded for the time being till embargo under Section 30-A is not lifted by Central Government by issuing a Notification in exercise of powers under the said provisions, i.e., Section 30-A. In the present case, however, Section 30-A has no application whatsoever since we are not concerned with leases relating to coal and, therefore, plaintiff-respondent having a statutory lease since before commencement of MMRD Act, 1957 was liable to pay royalty in accordance with provisions of Section 9.

139. We may make it clear that it has not been disputed by either of the parties that term "mining lease" since includes sub-leases also, therefore, whatever is liability of plaintiff-respondent as a lessee is extended to even sub-lessees also.

140. This judgment in State of Bihar Vs. Khas Karanpura Collieries Ltd. (supra), we find, in fact, goes against plaintiff-respondent to the extent that even if lease of plaintiff-respondent is taken to be "statutory" under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951, it was an existing lease granted before 01.06.1958 and on enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957 for any removal, extracting or quarrying of minerals, lease holder was bound to pay royalty as per Schedule-2 of MMRD Act, 1957.

141. Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Counsel, in support of plaintiff-respondent relied on India Thermal Power Limited Vs. State of M.P. and others 2000 (3) SCC 379 and contended that in order to constitute a statutory contract, mere fact, that contract entered into was in exercise of an enabling power under a Statute, is not sufficient, but terms and conditions must also be governed by Statute. In para 11 of judgment, we find that Court has said as under:

"Merely because a contract is entered into in exercise of an enacting power conferred by a statute that by itself cannot render the contract a statutory contract. If entering into a contract containing prescribed terms and conditions is a must under the statute then that contract becomes a statutory contract. If a contract incorporates certain terms and conditions in it which are statutory then the said contract to that extent is statutory*. A contract may contain certain other terms and conditions which may not be of a statutory character and which have been incorporated therein as a result of mutual agreement between the parties. Therefore, the PPAs can be regarded as statutory only to the extent that they contain provisions regarding determination of tariff and other statutory requirements of Section 43-A(2)." (emphasis added)*

142. The aforesaid judgment for our purpose is not much relevant for the reason that with regard to mining leases, and, that too, with reference to provisions of Section 7 and 108 of U.P. Act, 1951, we have already upheld contention of plaintiff-respondent that with the vesting of land free of all encumbrances, in State of U.P., and continuance of lease rights of existing lease holders by virtue of Section 108, it became a statutory lease. Since this aspect is already covered by judgment in Bihar Mines Limited Vs. Union of India (supra) dealing with the pari materia provision, we have already held that on and after 01.07.1952, existing contractual lease of plaintiff-respondent became a "new statutory lease". But having said so, further submission that such a statutory lease cannot stand altered or modified or subjected to any subsequent enactment is neither an argument which can be sustained nor in law such an argument is tenable. Legislature has ultimate power of legislation and like a statue can be altered, modified, repealed etc. by Legislature, similarly, even a statutory lease could/can be modified, amended, altered and subjected to conditions imposed under a subsequent enactment. MMRD Act, 1957 has been legislated by Parliament with reference to its Legislative power under List-1 Schedule-VII and such legislation prevails over any Provincial legislation or statutory instrument under Provincial legislation. MMRD Act, 1957, in respect of the subject of Mines and Minerals, cannot be read so as to sub-serve a Provincial Legislation.

143. A Central law dealing with mines and minerals cannot be said to be overridden by law made by Provincial Legislation enacted with reference to its legislative power under List-II, i.e., Land and Agrarian Reforms. In any case, subject of "Land and Agrarian Reform" are general terms and the subject of "mines and minerals" being specific, even otherwise, legislation on a specific aspect shall prevail over a general statute. The law relating to Land and Agrarian Reforms incidentally covers topic of "mines and mineral" but when Parliament enacted law in exercise of its legislative power for development and regulation of mines and minerals, we have no hesitation in holding that it is the Parliament's Statute which shall prevail in the matter relating to mines and minerals.

144. Last authority, cited in support of plaintiff-respondent is Mary Vs. State of Kerala (supra). With great respect to learned Senior Counsel, we find nothing therein to help plaintiff-respondent in the present case. The matter relates to excise auction and liability of payment of consideration by parties for parting of privilege by State for trade in Liquor. Mary bid successfully in an auction conducted on 24.03.1994 for sale of privilege to vend arrack in ten shops for the period 01.04.1994 to 31.03.1995. Excise auction was governed by Kerala Abkari Shops (Disposal in Auction) Rules, 1974 (hereinafter referred to as "Excise Rules, 1974"). Mary was declared auction purchaser and she deposited 30 per cent of bid amount on the same date. She also executed a temporary agreement which was subject to confirmation by Board of Revenue. The shops were to run at a place known as Kalady Range-III. Kalady is the birth place of Adi Shankaracharya and adjoining thereto, existed a Christian Pilgrim Centre, associated with St. Thomas. Local people objected to excise shops as a result whereof, auction purchaser could not run business successfully. On 03.04.1994 she informed Excise Authorities as well as Board of Revenue that due to mass movement, it was not possible to open and run shops. She requested not to confirm auction since it was impossible to execute business for the reason beyond her control. She also reserved right to claim refund of amount already deposited. Excise Inspector, however, vide notice dated 08.04.1994 informed Mary that sale has been confirmed in her favour. She was asked to accept confirmation and enter into agreement. Auction purchaser informed Excise Inspector about facts which rendered her unable to run Excise shop and requested to cancel entire proceeding pursuant to auction held on 24.03.1994. Excise Authorities did not accept her request and Assistant Excise Commissioner by notice dated 24.04.1995 called upon auction purchaser to pay Rs. 33,41,400/- being the balance amount, along with interest at the rate of 18 per cent. A recovery notice was issued for the said amount. It was challenged by Mary in a Writ Petition before Kerala High Court and another Writ Petition was filed praying for refund of amount already deposited. A Single Judge allowed both the Writ Petitions, quashed demand notice and directed for refund of amount already deposited. State preferred two Intra-Court appeals. Division Bench dismissed appeal and confirmed judgment quashing demand notice, but judgment of Single Judge with regard to refund was set aside relying on Rule 5(15) of Excise Rules, 1974 observing that these are statutory provisions and contractual terms are governed by statutory provisions between the parties. Hence, in that view of matter, rights and liabilities between the parties have to be worked strictly in accordance with Rules and the offer of auction purchaser having been accepted could not have been withdrawn. In Appeal Supreme Court examined the matter in the light of Rule 5 of Excise Rules, 1974 and found that there was a non compliance of Rule 5(15) and in terms thereof money deposited by auction purchaser was liable to be forfeited. However, application of said Rules was examined considering whether doctrine of frustration or impossibility could be invoked therein or the auction purchaser would be bound by terms of statutory contract. Court observed that the facts attract Section 56 of Contract Act since there is an event which made performance of contract impossible. But then the question was "whether it would be applicable in a case of statutory contract or not." Court ultimately held that doctrine of frustration is an incident of ordinary contract and would not be applicable to statutory contract. Consequences of non performance of contract are provided in the statutory contract itself. Court held that consequences of non performance when provided by statutory contract, Section 56 is not applicable and parties cannot take shelter beyond it. Court also held that a statutory contract is not to be struck down on the ground of unfairness in the cases relating to grant of privilege for dealing in liquor. It observed that in such case, there is no issue of consideration of bargaining power of parties. Relying on the decision in Excise Commissioner Vs. Issac Peter 1994 (4) SCC 104, Court observed that there is no room for invoking doctrine of fairness and reasonableness against one party to the contract (State), for the purpose of altering or adding to the terms and conditions of the contract, merely because it happens to be the State. Mutual rights and liabilities of parties in such cases are governed by the terms of contracts and laws relating to contracts. These contracts are entered into, pursuant to public auction, floating of tenders or by negotiation. There is no compulsion on anyone to enter into such contracts. It is voluntary on both sides. There is no question of inviting State power being involved in such contracts. In such contract, duty to act fairly so as to modify contract or its terms and conditions cannot be asked for. Court held:

"... the duty to act fairly is sought to be imported into the contract to modify and alter its terms and to create an obligation upon the State which is not there in the contract. We must confess, we are not aware of any such doctrine of fairness or reasonableness. Nor could the learned Counsel bring to our notice any decision laying down such a proposition. Doctrine of fairness or the duty to act fairly and reasonably is a doctrine developed in the administrative law field to ensure the rule of law and to prevent failure of justice where the action is administrative in nature. Just as principles of natural justice ensure fair decision where the function is quasi-judicial, the doctrine of fairness is evolved to ensure fair action where the function is administrative. But it can certainly not be invoked to amend, alter or vary the express terms of the contract between the parties. This is so, even if the contract is governed by statutory provisions*, i.e., where it is a statutory contract - or rather more so. It is one thing to say that a contract - every contract - must be construed reasonably having regard to its language." (emphasis added)*

145. In Mary Vs. State of Kerala (supra), Court observed that a contract of employment cannot be equated with a contract to vend arrack. A contract of employment and a mercantile transaction stand on a different footing. Where bargaining power of contracting parties are equal or almost equal or where both the parties are businessmen and contract is a commercial transaction, doctrine of fairness or duty to act fairly or reasonably has no application.

146. The aforesaid decision, therefore, has no application in the case in hand inasmuch there is nothing to show that demanding royalty and to ask plaintiff-respondent not to proceed with the mining lease except in accordance with the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder, is in any manner, unfair and unreasonable.

147. At this stage, we may observe hereat, as pointed out by learned Additional Advocate General, that disputed area of 46 Villages is extremely rich in commercially high value minerals like stones, ballast and more important "silica sand". Silica sand is widely used as a potential raw material in Glass industries, Foundries, Pottery Industries etc., across the Country. Thousands of tons of silica sand every month is quarried and transported from these villages to such Industries and market value of "silica sand" transported every month runs in millions of rupees. In the last more than 50 years, plaintiff-respondent initially took advantage of lack of clarity with respect to rights of State in regard to operation of mines, extraction and quarry of minerals therefrom, and when in 1966 letter was issued to plaintiff-respondent for stopping mining operations and demand of royalty was made in 1968, it filed a suit, wherein an interim injunction order was passed and pursuant thereto royalty worth hundreds of millions has been avoided by plaintiff-respondent. Subsequently under the judgment of Court below and during pendency of appeal, the same thing has continued and here is a case where staggering high amount of public revenue towards royalty has been evaded by plaintiff-respondent besides the facts that mining leases which need be distributed to various other persons, are being operated by creating a monopoly and that is how, plaintiff-respondent and her agents are also controlling price of mineral and ultimately earning huge and colossal profit. Here is not a case where there is anything unfair, unreasonable or impermissible in law, which is sought to be acted upon by State but plaintiff-respondent, with an intention of preventing State from implementation and observance of MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules famed thereunder, has raised this entire dispute which has continued for last half a century in Courts and ultimate sufferer is not only State but public exchequer as well.

148. Be that as it may, the aforesaid submissions do not influence us either way in considering and answering issues involved in this appeal and we have discussed entire matter strictly in the light of statutory provisions as also judicial precedents, we answer Questions (iv) (v) and (vi) holding that lease deed dated 16.04.1947, when granted, was not controlled by any Central or Provincial legislation. On 01.07.1952, contractual lease granted earlier became a "new statutory lease" and continued to be governed by provisions of U.P. Act, 1951 till the enactment of MMRD Act, 1957. On enforcement thereof, statutory lease got subjected to the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 and could not have continued on its own but has to be governed by provisions of MMRD Act, 1957.

149. Before closing discussion on Issues No. (v) and (vi), we may also notice hereat that question, whether Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957 would cover statutory lease or not has also been answered by a Division Bench of this Court in Sheo Varan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra) wherein it has said as under:

"17. It may be noted here that the use of the words "or in any law in force at such commencement" in the non obstante clause of Section 9(1) is clearly suggestive of the fact that this sub-section (1) of Section 9 covers the cases of statutory leases as well."

150. Now we come to Question No. (vii), i.e. validity of subsequent lease dated 27.04.1959. It is pleaded that aforesaid lease was granted by State Government, affirming lease rights of plaintiff-respondent with reference to Section 108 and, therefore, shall hold and prevail over any provision otherwise, under MMRD Act, 1957 or Rules framed thereunder.

151. The lease deed dated 27.4.1959 does not refer, at all, to MMRD Act, 1957 for any purposes whatsoever. It only refers to State Government's order dated 15.12.1956 so as to recognise terms of lease dated 25.4.1947 for the purpose of Section 108(1) of U.P.Act, 1951 and maintain royalty of Rs. 4000/- per annum with effect from 19.1.1957. Other conditions contained in the deed dated 27.4.1959 are as under:

"This lease made on 27th day of April, 1959 between the Governor of U.P. (hereinafter called the lessor) on the one part and Shrimati Rani Rajendra Kumari Ba Saheba, wife of Maharao Raja Kamlakar Singh, caste Kshtriya Baghel, resident of Shankargarh, Pargana Bara, Tahsil karchana in the district of Allahabad (hereinafter called the lessee which includes her heirs, legatees or executors) on the other part.

Whereas the ex-land lord Pushpraj Kripapatra Maharao Raja Kamlakar Singh Ji, Bara Estate had leased out to the lessee by a registered deed dated 25.4.1947, the quarries of stone, ballasts, Kankar, morrum and sand described in Schedule 'A' annexed hereto, and whereas the Government of Uttar Pradesh under G.O. No. 2766 EP/XVIII B-M-53/53 dated December 15, 1956, have ordered for the recognition the said lease in terms of Sec. 108(1) of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act to the lessee.

And whereas the lessee has paid to the lessor the royalty of Rs. 4000/- per annum accruing due to the lessor till the Ist day of June, 1957.

Now this Deed witnesses and the parties hereto agree as follows:-

i) the lessee shall hold the premises hereby demised to her from the 18th day of July 1952 in accordance with section 108(i) of the Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 in perpetuity*.*

ii) that the lessee shall have liberty and power to enter upon the land mentioned in schedule 'A' hereto and to search for and dig and obtain by excavation and quarrying both open today light and by underground working, the demised stone, ballast, kankar, morun and sand and to carry away and dispose of the same for her own benefit.

iii) the lessee shall have the liberty and power to take lead and carry away from the said land the stone, ballast, kankar, morrum and sand to be obtained as aforesaid and dispose of the same at her will and pleasure.

iv) the lessee shall have power and liberty to erect buildings necessary for the purpose of carrying out the business of the quarries.

v) the lessee shall, at all times, upon finding in the demised premises any mineral or products other than stone, ballast, Kankar, Morrum and sand immediately report such find to the District Magistrate, Allahabad with full particulars of the nature and position of each find.

vi) during the term of this demise, the lessee shall pay a royalty at the rate of Rs. 4000/- (rupees four thousand only), annually payable in two equal instalments, on Ist. June and on Ist. December every year irrespective of the fact whether the lessee quarries or carries on any operations or not during the year.

vii) the lessee may export stone, ballast, kankar, morrum and sand from the quarries hereby demised all the year round.

viii) the lessee shall be entitled to sublet the premises hereby demised or any part thereof or any right or privileges under this lease to any person without the consent in writing of the lessor but she shall not assign her rights under this deed without such consent first had and obtained.

ix) the lessee shall not remove any stone, ballast, kankar, morrum and sand etc. from the limits of the demised premises during such time as any money payable by her as royalty under clause (vi) shall be in arrears or any fine or liability incurred by her under the provisions of the lease may be unpaid or unsatisfied and the lessor may stop further export in such cases.

x) At the end of every fifty years from the date of the execution hereof it will be open to the lessor to increase the amount of annual royalty payable by the lessee in accordance with the terms of the lease by 10% in which case the royalty so fixed at the time of revision thereof by the lessor shall be payable by the lessee and all the terms with regard to payment-therefor shall apply to the amount so fixed.

(Emphasis added)

152. It is not disputed before us that the minerals mentioned in the said lease are all "major minerals". The primary mineral which is being quarried, extracted and transported is "silica sand" in respect thereto, even Court below has held that it is a "major mineral", as is evident from following finding recorded by Court below in the impugned judgment:

"That being so plaintiff's lease deeds dated 16.4.1947 and 27.4.1959 are for Silica sand which is a major mineral."

(Emphasis added)

153. The term "minerals, mineral oils and minor minerals" are defined in Section 3(a),(b) and (e) of MMRD Act, 1957 and read as under :

"Definitions- In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires-

(a) "minerals" includes all minerals except mineral oils;

(b) "mineral oils" includes natural gas and petroleum;

(e) "minor minerals" means building stones, gravel, ordinary clay, ordinary sand other than sand used for prescribed purposes, and any other mineral which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare to be a minor mineral."

154. Admittedly, we have no concern with "mineral oil" in the case in hand. All "minerals" other than "minor minerals" can be termed as "major minerals". Section 2 of MMRD Act, 1957 says that Union of India should take under its control regulation of mines and development of minerals to the extent hereinafter provided. The Court in Sandur Manganese & Iron Ores Ltd. V. State of Karnataka & Ors., JT 2010 (10)SC 157 has held that by virtue of Section 2, State Legislature is denuded of its legislative power to make any law in respect of regulations of mines and mineral development to the extent provided in the Act i.e. MMRD Act, 1957.

155. It appears that when lease deed dated 27.04.1959 was executed, concerned authorities did not consider provisions of MMRD Act, 1957, probably for the reason that before enforcement of said Act, a Government Order was issued on 15.12.1956, directing field officials to execute lease in recognition of lease rights under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 and in pursuance thereto instrument of lease was executed on 27.04.1959, ignoring the fact that during this period Parliamentary enactment, i.e., MMRD Act, 1957 has already come into picture and now entire scenario has completely changed. After enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957, it was not open to State Government to execute a lease in respect to a major mineral and mining operations controlled and governed by provisions of MMRD Act, 1957, without following the provisions thereof. This exercise was wholly ultra vires and beyond the authority of State of U.P.

156. The only reason assigned by Court below to exclude operation of MMRD Act, 1957 is that by virtue of Section 108 of U.P.Act, 1951, subsisting lease of plaintiff became a statutory lease and, therefore, MMRD Act, 1957 is not applicable. However, the view we have already taken above holding that this reason assigned by Court below is not correct, results in collapse of the entire edifice to hold MMRD Act, 1957 inapplicable. The very basis of holding that MMRD Act, 1957 will apply only in such cases where leases are granted by government to another person being bad and erroneous falls to ground.

157. After vesting of 'Estate' in State of U.P. and in view of specific provisions, as discussed above, contained in U.P.Act, 1951, continuance of lease dated 16.4.1947 was, as if, granted by State of U.P. After enactment of MMRD Act, 1957, matters which came within the ambit of aforesaid Act, could have continued to operate only in accordance with provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 and not otherwise.

158. Section 9, as already discussed above, governs all kind of leases whether contractual or statutory as the case may be. It also apply to mining leases whether granted before commencement of MMRD Act, 1957 or after its enforcement. If a person is carrying on any mining operation and is holder of a mining lease, whether contractual or statutory, he is/was liable to pay royalty as per rates specified in Second Schedule of MMRD Act, 1957 in respect to such minerals. The liability is absolute and could not have been obstructed by plaintiff-respondent in any manner. Even transportation of mineral was not permissible without permission of authorities concerned and in terms of Rules, framed under MMRD Act, 1957. With regard to other terms and conditions of leases regarding area, tenure etc., we find various restrictions contained in Section 5, 6, 7 and 8 of MMRD Act, 1957 and the same were also applicable to plaintiff-respondent's mining operations. It could not have continued with such operations for indefinite period giving a complete go-bye to the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. In any case, by virtue of Section 16 it was incumbent upon State to modify terms and conditions of lease, even if it was statutory, so as to bring it in consonance with the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957.

159. Moreover, in the present case, deemed statutory lease under Section 108 of U.P. Act, 1951 came to an end on execution of another lease on 27.04.1959, hence statutory lease after enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957 got subjected to that Act, particularly in respect of royalty under Section 9, and thereafter vanished when new agreement was executed by plaintiff with State of U.P. It is a different matter that this new agreement, being in the teeth of MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereafter was unenforceable, inexecutable and inoperative since inception.

160. Term of lease dated 27.04.1959 noticed above, would show that lease is in perpetuity and not for a fixed tenure. The amount of royalty mentioned therein does not concur to the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. It permits lessee to excavate and quarry Stone, Ballast, Kankar, Morrum and Sand. A lessee can work out mining operation throughout the year. He is also entitled to sublet the premises to any person but without consent of lessor it shall not assign. Further right is given to lessee for renewal with limited enhancement of royalty at the end of every 50 years. The MMRD Act, 1957 admittedly came into force on 1.6.1958 i.e. before execution of lease deed dated 27.4.1959. After enforcement of said Act to the extent it is applicable, denudation of power of State is total and not partial, as held in P. Kannadasan V. State of Tamilnadu (1996) 5 SCC 70 =AIR 1996 SC 2560.

161. All the items for which mining lease was granted vide lease deed dated 27.4.1959 did satisfy the definition of "minerals" under Section 3(a) and (e) of MMRD Act, 1957. "Minerals" means an organic substance found either on or in the earth which may be garnered and exploited for profits as observed in V.P. Pithupitchal and Anr. Vs. Special Secretary to the Government of Tamilnadu, AIR 2003 SC 2455. Neither under provisions of MMRD Act, 1957, mining lease in perpetuity could have been granted nor for more than the area, prescribed as maximum area under Section 6 could have been provided, nor there could have been any occasion to agree for payment of royalty, which is not consistent with Section 9 of MMRD Act, 1957.

162. Thus, in the light of discussion made above, it cannot be doubted that on and after enforcement of MMRD Act, 1957, neither plaintiff-respondent had any right to continue mining on the disputed land nor removal of minerals without payment of royalty. In fact, entire mining operation and removal of minerals on the part of plaintiff-respondent and other sub-lessees was patently illegal, without any authority of law and in flagrant violation of provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. The lease deed dated 27.04.1959 was completely illegal, nullity and void-ab-initio. Question No. (vii) is answered accordingly.

163. The above findings make it clear that demand of royalty by Collector for the period from 01.01.1952 till 31.05.1958, when MMRD Act, 1957 came into force, being an amount outside statutory lease was not justified and valid. To that extent, impugned demand dated 31.05.1968, by Collector, demanding royalty for the period prior to 01.06.1958, was not valid. However, on and after 01.06.1958 entire mining operation carried out by plaintiff-respondent or sub-lessees including removal of minerals from land in dispute is/was wholly illegal. We also hold that State Government vide letter dated 14.02.1966 rightly informed plaintiff-respondent that he had been quarrying silica sand etc. from disputed villages illegally and in violation of provisions of MMRD Act, 1957. The demand of royalty by Collector for the period 01.06.1958 and onwards is absolutely legal and plaintiff-respondent was/is liable to pay the same.

164. In the result, we set aside impugned judgment and decree dated 02.07.1979 passed by Civil Judge/Judge Small Causes Court at Allahabad in Original Suit No. 107 of 1969 except to the extent that plaintiff-respondent was not liable to pay royalty from 01.07.1952 to 31.05.1958 to Collector as demanded by him under the provisions of MMRD Act, 1957 and Rules framed thereunder vide order dated 31.5.1968, but in respect of all other aspects and all other reliefs sought by plaintiff-respondent including liability on and after 01.06.1958, plaintiff-respondent was/is not entitled for any relief, whatsoever. The suit of plaintiff-respondent, therefore, is also liable to be dismissed in this regard.

165. However, since plaintiff-respondent has continued with mining operations initially under interim injunction granted by Court below and thereafter in the light of final judgment, it is our duty to put defendant-appellant in a position so that it may not stand permanently suffered for the act of the Court by issuing such direction as may restore State to its position in which it would have been. We find it appropriate to decide the appeal in following manner:

(i) Demand of Collector vide letter dated 31.05.1968 for payment of royalty from 01.07.1952 to 31.05.1958 is hereby declared illegal.

(ii) In respect to all other reliefs sought by plaintiff, impugned judgment and decree dated 02.07.1979 is hereby set aside and the suit hereby is dismissed to that extent.

(iii) The defendant-appellant shall henceforth proceed to recover entire amount of royalty payable by plaintiff-respondent on and after 01.06.1958 till the date of this decision along with interest, if provided in the statute, as per the rates prescribed therein, and if not provided in Statute at the rate of 9 per cent per annum forthwith and without any further delay.

(iv) Plaintiff-respondent shall not carry out mining operations henceforth and defendant-appellant shall forthwith take steps to restrict defendant-appellant and its sub-lessees from undergoing any mining operation in the aforesaid 46 villages in respect to the minerals stated in this judgment and shall proceed to grant lease in accordance with provisions of MMRD Act, 1947 and Rules framed thereunder and only thereafter shall allow mining operations.

166. Appeal is partly allowed in the manner aforesaid.

167. Defendant-Appellant shall be entitled to cost throughout to the extent it has succeeded in this appeal.

Civil law – Income Tax Act, 1961 – Section 10(22) – educational institution – meditation – educational activity – exemption – solely for educational purposes – not for purposes of profit – memorandum of association – objects of trust – systematic instruction – training – institution not required to be recognized by University – benefit of exemption allowed – reference answered in favour of assessee

Pursuant to this Court's order dated 29th August, 2006 passed in ITA No. 148 of 1999, Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Delhi Bench 'B' New Delhi (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal'), under Section 256(2) of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1961') has referred following two questions of law for our opinion :-

"1. Whether training people in 'Meditation' is an educational activity within the meaning of Section 10(22) of I.T. Act, 1961 ?

2. Whether in view of the multifarious objects of the Trust,some of which are non educational including the ones mentioned in item no. 8 of the Memorandum of Association (reproduced in the last para of ITAT's order), the Assessee would be entitled to the exemption u/s 10(22) ?"(Para 3)

HELD:(Paras 17-22)

1.In case in hand, Tribunal has decided the dispute by delving into facts holding that institution should be recognized by University of Central or State Govt. is not a prerequisite under Section 10(22) of Act, 1961. This insistence by Assessing Authority was not justified. The term 'Institution' has not been defined in the Act, 1961.

2.Assessee foundation did not come into existence or it does not carry out any activity of imparting education for the purpose of profit, is clear from the object clause of Assessee's Memorandum of Association and in more specific terms, under item 8 of pages 6 & 7 of the said Memorandum of Association, which is in the following terms :

"(B) To undertake and promote any activities that enables the progress of the societies programme to be self sufficient through Agriculture Horticulture, Dairy Farming or conducting house hold, cottage, small and large scale industries etc. with the sole motive of bringing fulfillment to the goals of the society and without any profit motive".

3.The decision of Madras High Court in Additional Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Aditanar Educational Institution, (1979) 118 ITR 235 which has been affirmed by Apex Court in Aditanar Educational Institution Vs. Additional Commissioner of Income Tax (supra) will enure for the Respondent -Assessee. The said decision holds that for getting the benefit under Section 10(22) following pre-requisites are followed or not are to be ascertained which are as follow :
"(i) The assessee foundation should be an educational institution;
It should be existing solely for educational purposes : and
It should not be existing for purposes of profit. "20. Considering the facts and our discussion on facts the said decision as followed by Tribunal will apply in all force to this case as the institution fulfills the criterion enumerated for getting benefit.

4.We answer the reference against the Revenue and in favour of Assessee . Income Tax Reference is disposed accordingly.

Case Law discussed:

1.Sole Trustee, Loka Shikshana Trust v. Commissioner of Income Tax, (1975) 101 ITR 234 (SC) — para 14

2.Saurashtra Education Foundation v. Commissioner of Income Tax, (2005) 273 ITR 139 (Guj) — para 16

3.Aditanar Educational Institution v. Additional Commissioner of Income Tax, (1997) 224 ITR 310 (SC) — paras 5, 19

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.
Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Pursuant to this Court's order dated 29th August, 2006 passed in ITA No. 148 of 1999, Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Delhi Bench 'B' New Delhi (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal'), under Section 256(2) of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1961') has referred following two questions of law for our opinion :-

"1. Whether training people in 'Meditation' is an educational activity within the meaning of Section 10(22) of I.T. Act, 1961 ?

2. Whether in view of the multifarious objects of the Trust, some of which are non educational including the ones mentioned in item no. 8 of the Memorandum of Association (reproduced in the last para of ITAT's order), the Assessee would be entitled to the exemption u/s 10(22) ?"

2. Sri Ashish Bansal, learned counsel appearing on behalf of Revenue did not dispute that Assessee-S.R.M. Foundation of India is an educational institution and to that extent there is no dispute. He also could not dispute that under Section 10(22) of Act, 1961, as it then was, an income of Educational Institution, working solely for educational purpose and not for the purpose of profit, shall not be included in total income.

3. Thus Assessee being an Educational Institution, comes within purview of Section 10(22) which has been established solely for educational purposes and not for the purposes of yielding profit.

4. Learned counsel for Revenue however submitted that an institution by itself cannot be said to be an educational institution unless activities of Assessee foundation satisfies requirement of law laid down in Sole Trustee, Loka Shikshana Trust Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, Mysore, 1975 (101) ITR 234 (SC) which has also been followed by Gujrat High Court in Saurashtra Education Foundation Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, (2005) 273 ITR 139 (Guj).

5. On the contrary, Counsel for Assessee submitted, when systematic activities are carried out by teaching students, it is certainly an educational activity and in absence of any material to show that it was for the purpose of profit, Assessee is entitled to get benefit of Section 10(22). He relied on the findings of fact of Commissioner of Income Tax (Appeals) [(hereinafter referred to as "CIT(A))]"and Tribunal and has relied on the decision in Aditanar Educational Institution Vs. Additional Commissioner of Income Tax, 1997 (224) ITR 310 (S.C). It is submitted that Tribunal has based its decision on the decision of Madras High Court in Aditanar Educational Institution Vs. Additional Commissioner of Income Tax (supra) which has now been affirmed by Apex Court in the aforesaid decision and, therefore, this reference also requires to be answered likewise.

6. Brief facts necessary to understand the dispute raised in this Reference are as under.

7. Assessee- Spiritual Regeneration Movement Foundation of India (hereinafter referred to as 'SRM Foundation') is a society registered under Societies Registration Act, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1860') . It was founded in 1963, by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi. Memorandum of association of SRM Foundation (Society) contains following objects:

"i) To spread the system of Transcendental Deep Mediation as pronounced by His Holiness Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, *iii) To conduct research in the field of physical and mental health and social behaviour.

*iv) To improve the physical and mental health and social behaviour of the people.

v) To advance the study of, and propagate , Indian Culture all over the world.

vi) Holding of lectures for the purpose of instructing the people all over the world.

vii) To conduct research into the physical and psychological effects of Transcendental Deep Meditation.

viii) To establish Academics of Meditation*.*

ix) To alleviate fears and tensions of the people and to promote peace of mind."

(emphasis added)

8. For Assessment Years 1974-75, 1975-76, 1976-77, 1978-79 and 1979-80, it claims exemption on its income under Section 10(22) claiming itself to be an educational institution. It also said that SRM Foundation is registered under Section 12A of Act, 1961 with Commissioner of Income tax, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as "CIT"). A certificate under Section 80G was also issued in its favour.

9. Exemption claimed by Assessee under Section 10(22) however was negatived by Inspecting Assistant Commissioner (Assessment) [hereinafter referred to as "IAC(A)]" taking a view that Assessee was neither a 'University' nor 'Other Educational Institution' recognized by any University or any State or Central Government. It also held that activities of SRM Foundation did not satisfy requirements enunciated in Sole Trust Lok Shikshan Trust Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, Mysore (supra). IAC(A) noticed that Assessee had charged fee for education and received donation, hence was not entitled for exemption under Act, 1961.

10. Assessee preferred appeal before CIT(A) who allowed the same vide order dated 2.11.1982 and reversed the view taken by Assessing Authority in respect to Assessee's claim for exemption under Section 10(22).

11. Revenue preferred appeal before Tribunal. Appeal preferred by Revenue was dismissed by Tribunal vide order dated 14.4.1987.

12. Revenue preferred a writ petition for a direction to Tribunal to make Reference to this Court. At the instance of Revenue, this Reference has been made requiring our opinion on above mentioned two questions of law.

13. On the facts of this case provisions of Section 10(22) as it then was applicable, read as under :

"10. In computing the total income of a previous year of any person, any income falling within any of the following clauses shall not be included --

(22) any income of a University or other educational institution existing solely for educational purposes and not for purposes of profit."

(emphasis added)

14. In Sole Trust Lok Shikshan Trust Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, Mysore (supra) meaning of the word 'education' used in the definition of 'Charitable purpose' under Section 2(15) of Act, 1961 came to be considered. Object of Trust in that case, as contained in para 2 of trust deed, (quoted in the judgment) read as under :

"2. The object of the Trust shall be to educate the people of India in general and of Karnatak in particular by

(a) establishing, conducting and helping directly or indirectly institutions calculated to educate the people by spread of knowledge on all matters of general interest and welfare:

(b) founding and running reading rooms and libraries and keeping and conducting printing houses and publishing or aiding the publication of books, booklets, leaf lets, pamphlets, magazines etc., in Kannada and other languages, all these activities being started, conducted and carried on with the object of educating the people:

(c) supplying the Kannada speaking people with an organ or organs of educated public opinion and conducting journals in Kannada and other language for the dissemination of useful news and information and for the ventilation of public opinion on matters of general public utility; and

(d) helping directly or indirectly societies and institutions which have all or any of the aforesaid objects in view."

(emphasis added)

15. Court, as a matter of fact found that though a number of objects, including setting up of educational institutions, were mentioned in trust deed` as objects of trust, including supplying Kannada speaking people with an organ of educated public opinion, but sole trustee in communication sent to Income Tax Officer clearly admits that at the point of time, during period of assessment, Trustee was carrying out only last mentioned objects of Trust namely, supplying Kannada speaking people with an organ or organs of educated public opinion. In other word 'concentration' so far as activities of Trust was only on the object, pursuant to clause 6 of Trust deed, according to which original Trustee shall have power and authority to spend and utilise money and property of Trust for any purposes of Trust in such manner as may appear proper to him. It is this context, Court considered the meaning of word "education" used in Section 2(15) of Act, 1961 and said that sense in which the word, "education" has been used in aforesaid provision, is systematic instruction, schooling or training given to young in preparation for work of life. It also connotes the whole course of scholastic instruction which a person has received. Word "education" was not used in Section 2(15) in that wide and extended sense, according to which every acquisition of further knowledge constitutes education. Court further held as under :

"According to this wide and extended sense, travelling is education, because as a result of travelling you acquire fresh knowledge. Likewise, if you read newspapers and magazines, see pictures, visit art galleries, museums and zoos, you thereby add to your knowledge. Again, when your grow up and have dealings with other people, some of whom are not straight, you learn by experience and thus add to your knowledge of the ways of the world. If you are not careful, your wallet is liable to be stolen or you are liable to be cheated by some unscrupulous is liable to be stolen or you are liable to be cheated by some unscrupulous person. The thief who removes your wallet and the swindler who cheats you teach you a lesson and in the process make you wiser though poorer. If you visit a night club, you get acquainted wit and add to your knowledge about some to the not much revealed realities and mysteries of life. All this in a way is education in the great school of life. But, that is not the sense in which the word "education" is used in clause (15) of section 2*. What education connotes in that clause is the process of training and developing the knowledge, skill mind, and character of students by normal schooling."*

16. The decision of Gujrat High Court in Saurashtra Education Foundation Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax(supra) will not apply to the facts of this case as in the said decision it was held that "although the activities of the assessee was imparting education but the same was being given by other institutions running schools or colleges. The assessee itself did not run any composite or integrated course of organized and systematic training. The assessee was not affiliated to, or registered by any authority. The assessee did not have any control over the recipients of training being given by the assessee. The example of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India given on behalf of the assessee was not apposite and the assessee was not at all comparable to the said Institute. Likewise, open universities possess all the three indicia of an educational institution "imparting formal training, accountability to an authority and control over students". The assessee could not compare itself with any open university either. Thus, the Tribunal was right in holding that the assessee was not an educational institution established solely for educational purposes and was, therefore, not entitled to exemption as contemplated under section 10(22). The opinion of the Court for the assessment year 1981-82 was rendered in the context of the activities which were then being carried on by the Assessee". This decision will not help the Revenue as the facts are quite different in the present case.

17. In case in hand, Tribunal has decided the dispute by delving into facts holding that institution should be recognized by University of Central or State Govt. is not a prerequisite under Section 10(22) of Act, 1961. This insistence by Assessing Authority was not justified. The term 'Institution' has not been defined in the Act, 1961.

18. Assessee foundation did not come into existence or it does not carry out any activity of imparting education for the purpose of profit, is clear from the object clause of Assessee's Memorandum of Association and in more specific terms, under item 8 of pages 6 & 7 of the said Memorandum of Association, which is in the following terms :

"(B) To undertake and promote any activities that enables the progress of the societies programme to be self sufficient through Agriculture Horticulture, Dairy Farming or conducting house hold, cottage, small and large scale industries etc. with the sole motive of bringing fulfillment to the goals of the society and without any profit motive".

19. The decision of Madras High Court in Additional Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Aditanar Educational Institution, (1979) 118 ITR 235 which has been affirmed by Apex Court in Aditanar Educational Institution Vs. Additional Commissioner of Income Tax (supra) will enure for the Respondent -Assessee. The said decision holds that for getting the benefit under Section 10(22) following pre-requisites are followed or not are to be ascertained which are as follow :

"(i) The assessee foundation should be an educational institution;

(ii) It should be existing solely for educational purposes : and

(iii) It should not be existing for purposes of profit. "

20. Considering the facts and our discussion on facts the said decision as followed by Tribunal will apply in all force to this case as the institution fulfills the criterion enumerated for getting benefit.

21. We answer the reference against the Revenue and in favour of Assessee .

22. Income Tax Reference is disposed accordingly.

Constitutional law —Other Backward Classes – Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes – 50% reservation – 27% reservation – Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006 – Article 15 (5) – provisos – Amendment Act, 2012 – Central University – First Academic Ordinances – implied repeal – subordinate legislation – overriding effect – extent of reservation – exclusion of OBC.-dismissed.

Competing claims of reservation, the Other Backward Classes who are the petitioners and the Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes whose cause is represented by the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University and defended by the intervenors of the same category, has brought forth at the forefront another issue of social dimension, namely the right to get admitted against a fixed reserve quota in an educational institution imparting higher education. (Para 1)

Writ Petition No.9643 (MB) of 2016 is by an association arrayed as petitioner No.1 professing to espouse the cause of students aspiring to seek admission in the respondent-university by way of reservation under the Other Backward Classes (OBC) category. The petitioner Nos.2 to 15 claim themselves to be of the Other Backward Classes and urge that 27% quota reserving seats for admission in the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University be implemented and to that extent, provisions of Clause 9 of Chapter VII of the First Academic Ordinances of the University be declared as ultra vires the provisions of Section 3 of the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006 (Act No:5 of 2007), hereinafter referred to as the 2006 Act. It is also urged that the percentage of reservation as fixed in Section 3 of the 2006 Act be directed to be implemented for which an interpretation is sought from this Court to read the provisos added to Section 3 in the 2006 Act by the amendment inserted under the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Amendment Act, 2012, hereinafter referred to as the 2012 amending Act so as to give effect to 27% reservation in favour of OBC's. It is urged that denying reservation as already provided for under the main Section 3 of the 2006 Act which has neither been repealed nor rescinded, the same amounts to curtailing the rights of the petitioners that was constitutionally enabled under Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India. It is therefore urged that the said provisos added by the 2012 amending Act be read in a manner so as to give effect to the reservation of 27% to the Other Backward Category candidates that has been entirely denied by the respondent-University under the garb of the said provisos as well as the provisions of reservation made under the First Ordinances referred to here-in-above for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. (Para 2)

Another Writ Petition No.15259 (MB) of 2016 has been filed raising the same issue but this writ petition is by an individual. (Para 3)

A preliminary objection had been raised on behalf of the Union of India as well as by the University that the writ petition filed by a Society would not be maintainable for which we had granted time to the learned counsel for the petitioners to file a response deserves disposal at outset. Affidavits have been filed to that effect. A reply to the said preliminary objection has been filed on record and the Memorandum of Association and the Byelaws have also been appended alongwith the same which indicate that Clause – 13 of the Memorandum of Association read with Clause – 2 thereof clearly defines the objects and reasons for the upliftment and advancement of the children and women of the Other Backward Classes. Thus, it cannot be said that the petitioner No.1-Society of Writ Petition No.9643 (MB) of 2016 is a stranger so as to raise this issue as involved in the present case, as it clearly is an issue relating to the opportunity for children of the Other Backward Classes to receive higher education in an university. The action taken by the University in not providing the benefits of reservations to the OBC's has been challenged which is directly in the interest of all students aspiring to seek admission by way of reservation. This cause therefore, in our opinion, is clearly connected with the educational achievements of children of the Backward Classes in an university which appears to have been established for under the objects as spelt out in the Memorandum of Association. Secondly, as the petitioners 2 to 15 are candidates of the Other Backward Classes they have the locus and also the grievance to maintain this petition. The other petition is in an individual capacity but in public interest for the cause of backward classes. The preliminary objection therefore raised has no substance and is overruled and the writ petitions so filed are held to be maintainable. (Para 4)

The issue primarily raised is, that if by invoking Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India, the Parliament enacted a special law, namely, the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006, then the same has to be given effect to, and any device either by way of a proviso or otherwise to deny the benefits granted under the 2006 Act would be an amendment in violation of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India and the consequential action would also be arbitrary being violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. It is contended by the petitioners that when the Parliament itself has consciously extended the benefit of 27% reservation to the Other Backward Classes under the 2006 Act, then fixing a percentage of 50% so as to exhaust reservation only in favour of Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes would be discrimination between the oppressed backward classes and other weaker sections that is contrary to the theme and philosophy of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India which essentially aims at providing an opportunity of education to all socially and educationally backward classes apart from the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. By introducing the provisos in Section 3 of the 2006 Act, the advancement of the other backward classes to their exclusion as envisaged under Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India is being clearly impeded. The respondentUniversity under the garb of the amending Act 2012 cannot insist on denying the benefits of extending 27% reservation to the Other Backward Category classes as provided for in Section 3 of the 2006 Act(Para 5)

1.In the instant case, if the 2006 Act was brought into force to cater to reservation to other classes apart from Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes that is constitutionally protected under Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India and therefore, the argument of the respondents cannot be countenanced. The 2006 Act, therefore, rightly proceeded to engraft the quota of percentage as contained in Section 3 of the 2006 Act. On this score as well, the argument of the respondents that the 1994 Act is a Special Act with special provisions cannot be held to have any overriding affect over the 2006 Act.

2.A natural corollary to this conclusion drawn by us is also supported by the fact that had this been not the impediment, there was no necessity of amending Section 3 through the provisos that have been introduced and are subject matter of challenge before us. At this stage, we may now quote the provisos that came to be added by way of an amendment under Section that is the bone of contention between the parties. The said provisions as amended under the 2012 Act are extracted hereunder:-

"Provided that the State seats, if any, in a Central Educational Institution situated in the tribal areas referred to in the Sixth Schedule to the Constitution shall be governed, by such reservation policy for the Scheduled Castes, the Scheduled Tribes and the Other Backward Classes, as may be specified, by notification in the Official Gazette, by the Government of the State where such institution is situated:

Provided further that if there are no State seats in a Central Educational Institution and the seats reserved for the Scheduled Castes exceed the percentage specified under clause (i) or the seats reserved for the Scheduled Tribes exceed the percentage specified under clause (ii) or the seats reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes taken together exceed the sum of percentages specified under clauses (i) and (ii), but such seats are-

(a)less than fifty per cent of the annual permitted strength on the date immediately preceding the date of commencement of this Act, the total percentage of the seats required to be reserved for the Other Backward Classes under clause (iii) shall be restricted to the extent such sum of percentages specified under clauses (I) and (ii) falls short of fifty per cent of the annual permitted strength;

(b)more than fifty per cent of the annual permitted strength on the date immediately preceding the date of commencement of this Act, in that case no seat shall be reserved for the Other Backward Classes under clause (iii) but the extent of the reservation of seats for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes shall not be reduced in respect of Central Educational Institutions in the specified north-eastern region".

3.The aforesaid provisos particularly the second proviso with clause (b) clearly nail down any scope for admission by way of a reservation to the Other Backward Classes. The exclusion in the second proviso was therefore clearly designed to cater to the peculiar situation of the status of the University keeping in mind the object of catering to Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes. Clause (a) to the second proviso does create a space for Other Backward Classes, but virtually restricts it by providing full play to the extent of 50% reservation in favour of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. Thus, the Other Backward Classes can seek benefit of Section 3 only if there is a shortfall in the number of candidates seeking admission of the category of Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes against 50% reservation.

4.The percentage of reservation to other categories as provided for in the main Section is therefore clearly disturbed as it gives full reservation to the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes to the extent of 50%. It is for this reason that this 50% reservation as existed in the First Academic Ordinances in Clause 9 was challenged and is pending consideration in Writ Petition No.3569 (MS) of 2009. The full play of 50% reservation to Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes therefore does not harmonise with Section 3, which provides for reservation to Other Backward Classes as well. The question is, does it end in discrimination and arbitrariness. It is here that we have to mention that the petitioners have given up the challenge of the vires of the Sections as noted at the very outset. The issue of discrimination or arbitrariness has to be looked into from the point of view of the enabling power under Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India and the purpose underlying the same. There is a distinction which has to be kept in mind, namely, reservation in employment that has a different connotation as against reservation for opportunity of admission in educational institutions. The former is designed to secure the social and economic backwardness in matters of employment whereas the latter is the real upliftment of an individual of the oppressed classes so as to make him capable to compete in all spheres of life which may also include future employment. Thus, to provide reservation in admission to the oppressed classes even, beyond a permissible percentage in the background of social circumstances cannot be said to be excessive or to prohibit this benefit to others. The same has to be balanced, more so when it comes to providing reservation in admission to educational institutions to competing oppressed classes, like in the present case, the Backwards versus the Scheduled Castes. The decisions which have been cited at the Bar on behalf of the petitioners do indicate that the Courts can intervene when excessiveness is detected in protective discrimination laws. In the instant case, the ratio of 50% is the outer limit of reservation and therefore, the reservation is not in excess of permissible limits. However, this is a peculiar situation, where in an inter se contest between the reserved classes, the other backward category is being denied the benefit of reservation as provided for in the main Section by virtually elbowing it through the aid of the provisos under challenge.

5.As noted above, since the vires challenge has been given up, the interpretation as sought for by Sri Amit Bose, learned Counsel for the petitioners would not be possible without entertaining arguments on the issue of striking down the impugned provisos. The other side of the coin is that the background of this 50% reservation for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes is clearly for the cause of the advancement and promotion of education. This purpose and cause has to be read in favour of the Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes, but at the same time what we find is that such a cause or a purpose should be based on an extensive exercise to be undertaken by the authority extending the benefit of reservation through objective surveys and not merely on the social philosophy of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India. An exercise has to be undertaken in order to find out as to whether such reservation can be objectively sustained and at the same time, the reservation to the other categories of the oppressed classes can be justifiably denied. The Parliamentary debates or the discussions that have been placed before the Court are clearly aimed at maintaining 50% reservation on the strength of the purpose, objects and reasons for which the University was established.

6.The Parliament may have taken a myopic view by narrowing down the discussion for a single institution, and the statement of the Hon'ble Minister during the debates that the respondent University was established only for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes may not be matching with the object and reasons of the University which declares it to be open for admission to all creeds and classes, but the wisdom of the Parliament is not open to adjudication before this Court. It has also to be kept in mind that the 2006 Act widens the scope of admission through reservation throughout the country in all central educational institutions. Thus viewed from the top of the hill, and not standing in the valley, the reserved category aspirants are assured of more seats throughout the country. While assessing the need for reservation, the balance therefore from the point of view of centrally aided institutions, Section 3 without the impugned proviso can be successfully implemented. If that is feasible, it is still open for the Parliament to discuss and reassess the same on an objective study upon a survey of ground realities. With reservation in admissions with the aid of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution, and with a wider opportunity of exposure under Section 3 of the 2006 Act, any possible argument of discrimination and different standards of reservation inter se between the different reserved categories can be avoided by adopting a balanced approach.

7.We therefore find it necessary that if the Parliament has made a law, then should not an exercise be taken for an objective assessment of the requirement of the Other Backward Classes. To extend favour entirely to the Scheduled Castes/ Scheduled Tribes and completely overlooking the claim of the Other Backward Classes therefore does require an objective assessment. The presumption of legislative wisdom cannot be doubted, but unless the vires of the Act on such grounds is assailed with facts and figures to substantiate the same, this Court by way of an interpretation cannot read down the provisos to reflect a different meaning. To extend such a benefit would amount to enforcing Section 3 as against the provisos that have been subsequently added by way of an amendment. To our mind, the same would be permissible only if provisos can be struck down as ultra vires and not otherwise. The Parliament has full authority and is also otherwise obligated to review any percentage of reservation on such objective study, but we cannot issue any direction as prayed for unless the provisions are questioned accordingly as observed here-in-above.

8.The Other Backward Classes may be near equals and the provisos may result in an unequal treatment but the rationality of such an argument can only be tested provided there is material to substantiate the same and is otherwise challenged as observed here-in-above.

9.Accordingly, for all the reasons aforesaid, we are unable to come to the aid of the petitioners without prejudice to the rights of any person to the issues raised in Writ Petition No.3569 (MS) of 2009, that is stated to be still pending consideration and further without prejudice to the rights of the Other Backward Classes to raise an appropriate challenge in the light of what has been observed here-in-above.

10.Both the writ petitions are therefore accordingly dismissed subject to the above observations.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.

Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. Competing claims of reservation, the Other Backward Classes who are the petitioners and the Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes whose cause is represented by the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University and defended by the intervenors of the same category, has brought forth at the forefront another issue of social dimension, namely the right to get admitted against a fixed reserve quota in an educational institution imparting higher education.

2. Writ Petition No.9643 (MB) of 2016 is by an association arrayed as petitioner No.1 professing to espouse the cause of students aspiring to seek admission in the respondent-university by way of reservation under the Other Backward Classes (OBC) category. The petitioner Nos.2 to 15 claim themselves to be of the Other Backward Classes and urge that 27% quota reserving seats for admission in the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University be implemented and to that extent, provisions of Clause 9 of Chapter VII of the First Academic Ordinances of the University be declared as ultra vires the provisions of Section 3 of the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006 (Act No:5 of 2007), hereinafter referred to as the 2006 Act. It is also urged that the percentage of reservation as fixed in Section 3 of the 2006 Act be directed to be implemented for which an interpretation is sought from this Court to read the provisos added to Section 3 in the 2006 Act by the amendment inserted under the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Amendment Act, 2012, hereinafter referred to as the 2012 amending Act so as to give effect to 27% reservation in favour of OBC's. It is urged that denying reservation as already provided for under the main Section 3 of the 2006 Act which has neither been repealed nor rescinded, the same amounts to curtailing the rights of the petitioners that was constitutionally enabled under Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India. It is therefore urged that the said provisos added by the 2012 amending Act be read in a manner so as to give effect to the reservation of 27% to the Other Backward Category candidates that has been entirely denied by the respondent-University under the garb of the said provisos as well as the provisions of reservation made under the First Ordinances referred to here-in-above for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes.

3. Another Writ Petition No.15259 (MB) of 2016 has been filed raising the same issue but this writ petition is by an individual.

4. A preliminary objection had been raised on behalf of the Union of India as well as by the University that the writ petition filed by a Society would not be maintainable for which we had granted time to the learned counsel for the petitioners to file a response deserves disposal at outset. Affidavits have been filed to that effect. A reply to the said preliminary objection has been filed on record and the Memorandum of Association and the Bye-laws have also been appended alongwith the same which indicate that Clause - 13 of the Memorandum of Association read with Clause - 2 thereof clearly defines the objects and reasons for the upliftment and advancement of the children and women of the Other Backward Classes. Thus, it cannot be said that the petitioner No.1-Society of Writ Petition No.9643 (MB) of 2016 is a stranger so as to raise this issue as involved in the present case, as it clearly is an issue relating to the opportunity for children of the Other Backward

Classes to receive higher education in an university. The action taken by the University in not providing the benefits of reservations to the OBC's has been challenged which is directly in the interest of all students aspiring to seek admission by way of reservation. This cause therefore, in our opinion, is clearly connected with the educational achievements of children of the Backward Classes in an university which appears to have been established for under the objects as spelt out in the Memorandum of Association. Secondly, as the petitioners 2 to 15 are candidates of the Other Backward Classes they have the locus and also the grievance to maintain this petition. The other petition is in an individual capacity but in public interest for the cause of backward classes. The preliminary objection therefore raised has no substance and is overruled and the writ petitions so filed are held to be maintainable.

5. The issue primarily raised is, that if by invoking Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India, the Parliament enacted a special law, namely, the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006, then the same has to be given effect to, and any device either by way of a proviso or otherwise to deny the benefits granted under the 2006 Act would be an amendment in violation of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India and the consequential action would also be arbitrary being violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. It is contended by the petitioners that when the Parliament itself has consciously extended the benefit of 27% reservation to the Other Backward Classes under the 2006 Act, then fixing a percentage of 50% so as to exhaust reservation only in favour of Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes would be discrimination between the oppressed backward classes and other weaker sections that is contrary to the theme and philosophy of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India which essentially aims at providing an opportunity of education to all socially and educationally backward classes apart from the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. By introducing the provisos in Section 3 of the 2006 Act, the advancement of the other backward classes to their exclusion as envisaged under Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India is being clearly impeded. The respondent-University under the garb of the amending Act 2012 cannot insist on denying the benefits of extending 27% reservation to the Other Backward Category classes as provided for in Section 3 of the 2006 Act.

6. To begin with Sri Amit Bose, learned Counsel for the petitioners had advanced the aforesaid submissions and had also amended the petition with a prayer to declare the provisos introduced into Section 3 of the 2006 Act by the 2012 amending Act as being ultra vires and quashing the same, but during the course of arguments, he gave up the aforesaid relief that stands recorded in our order dated 11.7.2016 which is extracted hereunder:-

"Heard Sri Amit Bose learned counsel for the petitioners. The writ petition had been amended questioning the second proviso to Section 3 of the Central Education Institution Reservation in Appointment Act, 2006 as inserted by the Amendment Act of 2012 and had sought its declaration as ultra vires to the provisions of the 2006 Act as well as Article 15(5) of the Constitution of India.

Sri Bose submits that the petitioners do not press the aforesaid relief nor are they questioning the vires of the second proviso to section 3 of the Amendment Act of 2012. He submits that the issue which is being raised is based entirely on the existing provisions and treating the 2012 Act to be intra vires.

The Union of India has filed a counter affidavit in a connected Writ Petition No. 14259(MB) of 2016 to which a reply has been filed today.

Put up tomorrow."

7. He accordingly advanced his submissions to urge that even if the second proviso has come into existence still the provisions of Section 3, as it originally stood, can be given effect to by interpreting the same to continue to extend the benefit of reservation to the Other Backward Category classes for admission in the respondent-University.

8. Before the dispute arose, the respondent-University had come to be established through a Central Act, namely, Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University Act, 1994 being Act No.53 of 1994, hereinafter referred to as the 1994 Act. Section 4 of the Act indicates the objects & the purpose for which the University was established. The same is extracted hereunder:-

"The objects of the University shall be to promote advanced knowledge by providing instructional and research facilities in such branches of learning as it may deem fit; to make provisions for integrated courses in Science and key frontier areas of Technology and other allied disciplines in the educational programmes of the University; to offer appropriate courses relevant for the development of socially and economically depressed sections of the people, including agricultural technology and rural crafts; to promote the study of the principles for which Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar worked during his life time, namely, national integration, social justice and democratic way of life, and also study of the Constitutions of the world to take appropriate measures for promoting innovations in teaching learning processes in inter-disciplinary studies and research and pay special attention to the promotion of educational and economic interests and welfare of the people in general and members belonging to the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes in particular by providing adequate percentage of seats for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes and the University shall, in organising its activities, have due regard to the objects specified in the First Schedule."

9. The University was conferred with powers under Section 5 of the Act with a specific power to fix quota for students belonging to the Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes for admission to the courses run by the University. Section 5 (xxi) is extracted hereunder:-

"(xxi) to fix quota for students belonging to the Schedule Castes and the Schedule Tribes for admission purposes;"

10. The University was however open for all persons irrespective of any prohibitions subject to the powers of the University to make special provisions for the promotion of educational interests of women, physically handicapped or of persons belonging to the weaker sections of the society and in particular of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes. Section 7 of the Act is extracted hereunder:-

"7. The University shall be open to all persons of either sex and of whatever caste, creed, race, class, place of domicile and it shall not be lawful for the University to adopt or impose on any person, any test whatsoever of religious belief or profession in order to entitle him to be appointed as a teacher of the University or to hold any other office therein or be admitted as a student in the University or to graduate thereat or to enjoy or exercise any privilege thereof.

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent the University from making special provisions for the employment or promotion of educational interests of women, physically handicapped or of persons belonging to the weaker sections of the society and, in the particular, of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes."

11. Section 27 of the Act makes a provision for the powers to frame Ordinances. Sub-Section (2) of Section 27 entails that the First Ordinances shall be made by the Vice-Chancellor with the previous approval of the Central Government and such Ordinances can be amended, repealed or added by the Board of Management in the manner prescribed by the Statutes. Section 27 (1) (a) provides for making of Ordinances for admission of students and their enrolment as such. Section 27 (1) (a) and Sub-Section (2) of Section 27 are extracted hereunder:-

"27. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and the Statutes, the Ordinances may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely:-

(a) the admission of students to the University and their enrolment as such;"

"(2) The first Ordinances shall be made by the Vice-Chancellor with the previous approval of the Central Government and the Ordinances so made may be amended, repealed or added to at any time by the Board of Management in the manner prescribed by the Statutes."

12. The First Ordinances of the University are provided for in the Second Schedule of the Act. The framing of Ordinances after the establishment of the University are provided for in Statute - 40 to the Second Schedule.

13. It is to be noted that the First Academic Ordinances of the respondent-University that had been framed in October, 1996 and had been despatched to the Human Resources Development Ministry, Government of India, New Delhi on 16.10.1996 was approved by the Ministry on 28.1.1997. However, the same was published for the first time in the Gazette on 23.12.2004. A copy of the said Gazette is Annexure - 1 to the writ petition. In Chapter - VII of the said Ordinance, a provision was made in Clause 9 as follows:-

"9. For the purpose of admission to all courses of study in the University, 50% of the seats shall be reserved for SC/ST students*."*

14. Thus, the University in exercise of it's powers of framing Ordinances for admission and providing reservation allocated 50% reservation of the seats in all courses of the University in favour of SC/ST students.

15. This was obviously done in the light of the objects of the 1994 Act which was reiterated by incorporating the same in the First Schedule of the Statutes which is as follows:-

"THE FIRST SCHEDULE
(See section 4)
THE OBJECTS OF THE UNIVERSITY

The University shall endeavour to promote advanced Knowledge by providing instructional and research facilities in Science and key and frontier areas of Technology and other allied disciplines and to offer appropriate courses relevant for the development of socially and economically depressed section of the people, including agricultural technology and rural crafts; to promote the study of the principles for which Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar worked during his lifetime, namely, national integration, social justice and democratic way of life, and also study of the constitutions of the world. It would take appropriate measures for promoting innovation in teaching-learning processes in inter-disciplinary studies and research and pay special attention to the promotion of educational and economic interests and welfare of the people in general and of members belonging to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in particular by providing adequate percentage of seats for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. The University shall, in organising its activities, have due regard to the objects specified in the First Schedule."

16. The aforesaid provisions were made in the Act, Statutes and Ordinances of the respondent-University in the light of Article 29 (2) of the Constitution of India read with Article 15 (4) of the Constitution of India. Article 29 (2) of the Constitution of India is extracted hereunder:-

"(2) No citizen shall be denied admission into any educational institution maintained by the State or receiving out of State funds on grounds only of religion, race, caste, language or any of them."

17. Article 15 (4) of the Constitution of India is extracted hereunder:-

"(4) Nothing in this article or in clause (2) of Article 29 shall prevent the State from making any special provision for the advancement of any socially and educationally backward classes of citizens or for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes*."*

18. Then came the enabling provision through the Constitution (Ninety-third Amendment) Act, 2005 enforced w.e.f. 21.1.2006 and Sub-Article (5) was added in Article 15 which is extracted hereunder:-

"(5) Nothing in this article or in sub-clause (g) of clause (1) of article 19 shall prevent the State from making any special provision, by law, for the advancement of any socially and educationally backward classes of citizens or for the Scheduled Castes or the Scheduled Tribes in so far as such special provisions relate to their admission to educational institutions including private educational institutions, whether aided or unaided by the State, other than the minority educational institutions referred to in clause (1) of article 30."

19. Thus, came into being a special constitutional enabling provision under Part III of the Constitution for the advancement of any socially and educationally backward classes of citizens or for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes for framing any special law relating to admission to educational institutions other than minority institutions referred to under Article 30 (1). With this enabling constitutional authority conferred on the State, the Parliament enacted Act No.5 of 2007 being the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006.

20. The Bill which was introduced that narrated the statement of objects and reasons of the said Act which is extracted hereunder:-

"THE CENTRAL EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS (RESERVATION IN ADMISSION) ACT, 2006

Part IV of the Constitution containing the Directive Principles of State Policy, in Article 46, lays down that the State shall promote with special care the educational and economic interests of the weaker sections of the people, and, in particular, of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, and shall protect them from social injustice. Access to education is of utmost importance in insuring advancement of persons belonging to the Scheduled Castes, the Scheduled Tribes, and the socially and educationally backward classes of citizens, who are also referred to as the Other Backward Classes (OBCs).

2. The Constitution (93rd Amendment) Act, 2005, inserted clause (5) in Article 15 of the Constitution, with a view to promote the educational advancement of the socially and educationally backward classes of citizens, the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes through special provisions relating to admission of students belonging to these categories in all educational institutions, including private educational institutions, whether aided or unaided by the State. In terms of this provision, Parliament as well as the State Legislatures are empowered to make appropriate laws for the educational advancement of the weaker sections of the people.

3. With a view to give effect to the Constitutional provisions, it is expedient and necessary to make statutory provisions in the proposed Bill for reservation in matters of admissions for the students belonging to the Scheduled Castes (SCs), the Scheduled Tribes (STs) and the socially and educationally backward classes of citizens (OBCs) in the Central Educational Institutions, including institutions deemed to be Universities established, maintained or aided by the Central Government. The provisions of the proposed Bill, inter alia, will not apply to the minority educational institutions referred to in clause (1) to Article 30.

4. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objective.

21. ACT 5 of 2007

The Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Bill was passed by the Lok Sabha on 14th December, 2006 and by the Rajya Sabha on 18th December, 2006 and received the assent of the President on 3rd January, 2007. It came on the Statute Book as THE CENTRAL EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS (RESERVATION IN ADMISSION) ACT, 2006 (5 OF 2007)."

22. A copy of the Act has been filed as Annexure - 5 to the writ petition. Section 2 (d) of the said Act made the provisions of the Act applicable to all Central Educational Institutions defined therein. The same is extracted hereunder:-

"(d) "Central Educational Institution" means --

(i) a university established or incorporated by or under a Central Act;

(ii) an institution of national importance set up by an Act of Parliament:

(iii) an institution, declared as a deemed university under section 3 of the University Grants Commission Act, 1956, and maintained by or receiving aid from the Central Government;

(iv) an institution maintained by or receiving aid from the Central Government, whether directly or indirectly, and affiliated to an institution referred to in clause (i) or clause (ii), or a constituent unit of an institution referred to in clause (iii);

(v) an educational institution set up by the Central Government under the Societies Registration Act, 1860;"

23. Section 2 (g) defines Other Backward Classes which is extracted hereunder:-

"(g) "Other Backward Classes" means the class or classes of citizens who are socially and educationally backward, and are so determined by the Central Government."

24. Section 3, as it then stood in 2006 and which still continues to be on the Statute, is extracted hereunder:-

"3. The reservation of seats in admission and its extent in a Central Educational institution shall be provided in the following manner, namely:-

(i) out of the annual permitted strength in each branch of study or facility, fifteen percent seats shall be reserved for the Scheduled Castes;

(ii) out of the annual permitted strength in each branch of study or facility, seven and one-half percent seats shall be reserved for the Scheduled Tribes;

(iii) out of the annual permitted strength in each branch of study or faculty twenty-seven percent seats shall be reserved for the Other Backward Classes*."*

25. Section 4 of the Act provides that Section 3 shall not apply to certain classes of institutions which is extracted hereunder:-

"4. The provisions of Section 3 of this Act shall not apply to --

(a) a Central Educational Institution established in the tribal area referred to in the Sixth Schedule to the Constitution;

(b) the institutions of excellence, research institutions, institutions of national and strategic importance specified in the Schedule to this Act;

Provided that the Central Government may, as and when considered necessary, by notification in the Official Gazette, amend the Schedule;

(c) a Minority Educational Institution as defined in this Act;

(d) a course or programme of at high levels of specifications, including as the post-doctoral level, within any branch of study or faculty, which the Central Government may, in consultation with the appropriate authority, specify."

26. Section 5 of the Act empowers every Central Educational Institution with prior approval of the appropriate authority to increase the number of seats in a branch of study or faculty over and above it's annual permitted strength so that the number of seats, excluding those which are reserved not less than the number of such seats available for the academic sessions immediately preceding the commencement of the Act. The Central Government in consultation with the appropriate authority is empowered to grant such permission including extending reservation for Other Backward Classes as well.

27. The Central Educational Institutions, by virtue of Section 6 of the 2006 Act, are under an obligation to take all necessary steps to give effect to the provisions of Sections 3, 4 and 5 of the Act for the purpose of reservation. The Schedule appended to the said Act also names the institutions of excellence that are excluded from the applicability of reservation under Section 4. The respondent-University is not excluded from the operation of the Act and also falls within the definition of a Central Educational Institution as defined therein.

28. The University issued an advertisement for admission that was challenged in Writ Petition No. 3569 (MS) of 2009 contending that since there is no mention of giving reservation benefit to the Other Backward Category of candidates to the extent of 27%, the provisions of Section 3 of the 2006 Act should be enforced upon which the Court passed an interim order on 8.7.2009 directing the University to proceed with the admissions but to reserve six seats for the six individual petitioners therein that were directed not to be filled up except with the leave of the Court.

29. Then came the challenge raised to the Constitution 93rd Amendment Act, 2005 and the 2006 Act (Act No.5 of 2007) before the Supreme Court in Ashoka Kumar Thakur v. Union of India and others [2008 (6) SCC Page 1]. The order of the Court in the aforesaid Constitution Bench decision is summarized in paragraphs 688 to 672 which is extracted hereunder:-

"668. The Constitution (Ninety-third Amendment) Act, 2005 is valid and does not violate the "basic structure" of the Constitution so far as it relates to the State-maintained institutions and aided educational institutions*. Question whether the Constitution (Ninety-third Amendment) Act, 2005 would be constitutionally valid or not so far as "private unaided" educational institutions are concerned, is not considered and left open to be decided in an appropriate case. Bhandari, J. in his opinion, has, however, considered the issue and has held that the Constitution (Ninety-third Amendment) Act, 2005 is not constitutionally valid so far as private unaided educational institutions are concerned.*

669. Act 5 of 2007 is constitutionally valid subject to the definition of "Other Backward Classes" in Section 2 (g) of Act 5 of 2007 being clarified as follows*: If the determination of "Other Backward Classes" by the Central Government is with reference to a caste, it shall exclude the " creamy layer" among such caste.*

670. Quantum of reservation of 27% of seats to Other Backward Classes in the educational institutions provided in the Act is not illegal*.*

671. Act 5 of 2007 is not invalid for the reason that there is no time-limit prescribed for its operation but majority of the Judges are of the view that the review should be made as to the need for continuance of reservation at the end of 5 years*.*

672. The writ petitions are disposed of in the light of majority judgment. However, in Contempt Petition No.112 of 2007 in WP (C) No.265 of 2006, no orders are required."

30. The constitutional validity of the 93rd Amendment and 2006 Act (Act No.5 of 2007) having been upheld in the aforesaid decision of the Supreme Court by a constitution bench therefore paved the way for reservation to be provided to the socially and educationally Backward Classes to seek admission by way of reservation.

31. The respondent-University does not appear to have made any provision for the Other Backward Category candidates and it continued with 50% reservation in favour of Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe students. The petitioners have categorically asserted that the respondent-University never implemented the reservation as per Section 3 of the 2006 Act to which no denial has been made by the University. The implementation of the 2006 Act was however being reviewed particularly in the North-Eastern States where the reservation was required more for the Scheduled Tribes as Other Backward Category candidates were not available against State seats.

32. The respondent-University also appears to be resisting such reservation in favour of Other Backward Category candidates on account of it's existing reservation of 50% for SC's and ST's. A Bill was mooted in Parliament in the year 2010 captioned as Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Amendment Bill, 2010 proposing to introduce certain changes in the definition clause particularly with regard to the North-Eastern Region but mainly the insertion of two provisos in Section 3 of the Principal Act. The aforesaid Bill was introduced by the then Minister of Human Resource Development Sri Kapil Sibal that has been placed before the Court by Sri S. K. Kalia, learned Senior Counsel who has appeared on behalf of the intervenors, namely, the Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe students whose reservation of 50% is protected for admission in the respondent-University. The compilation provided by Sri Kalia includes the deliberations of the Standing Committee of the Parliament after the introduction of the said Bill that has been described as the 234th report. The preface of the said Report introduced by the Chairman of the Standing Committee is extracted hereunder:-

"PREFACE

I, the Chairman of the Department-related Parliamentary Standing Committee on Human Resource Development, having been authorized by the Committee, present this Two Hundred and Thirty Fourth Report of the Committee on the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Amendment Bill, 2010*.

2. The Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Amendment Bill, 2010 was introduced in the Rajya Sabha on 6 August, 2010. In pursuance of Rule 270 relating to Department-related Parliamentary Standing Committee, the Chairman, Rajya Sabha referred the Bill to the Committee on 10 August, 2010 for examination and report.

3. The Committee considered the Bill in two sittings held on 10 December, 2010 and 14th February, 2011.

4. On 10 December, 2010, the Committee heard the Secretary, Department of Higher Education on various provisions of the Bill.

5. The Committee, while drafting the Report, relied on the following:-

(i) Background Note on the Bill and Note on the clauses of the Bill received from the Department of Higher Education.

(ii) Presentation made and clarifications given by the Secretary, Department of Higher Education; and

(iii) Feedback received from the Department on the questionnaire and the issues raised by the Members during the course of the oral evidence of the Secretary.

6. The Committee considered the Draft Report on the Bill and adopted the same in its meeting held on 14th February, 2011.

7. For facility of reference, observations and recommendations of the Committee have been printed in bold letters at the end of the Report.

NEW DELHI; Oscar Fernandes

 Rajya Sabha Parliamentary Bulletin Part II No. 47556 dated the 10th August, 2010"

33. What is more important to be noted is the statement of the objects and reasons that were appended to the said amendment Bill. The same is extracted in clause 1.3 of the said report which is reproduced hereunder:-

"1.3 Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Bill states as follows:

"Some of the Central Educational Institutions, particularly those situated in the North-Eastern States including Sikkim (but excluding the non-tribal areas of Assam) inhabited significantly, and in some cases predominantly by tribal population and Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University, Lucknow, which have been reserving fifty percent seats for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, in keeping with the objects specified in the Act establishing that University, have been showing their inability to reduce the extent of reservation of seats for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes prevailing therein, in order to give way for reservation of twenty-seven per cent of seats for the Other Backward Classes as stipulated under the Act. Further, the existing provisions of the Act exempt the Central Educational Institutions situated in the tribal areas referred to in the Sixth Schedule to the Constitution from reservation for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, if any. But this was not intended while enacting the aforesaid Act, except in case of Minority Educational Institutions which are exempt in terms of clause (5) of Article 15 of the Constitution. Moreover, some of the Central Educational Institutions have been finding it difficult to adhere to the time-limit of three years for creation of the requisite physical and academic infrastructure owing to various reasons beyond their control.

In order to remove the aforesaid practical difficulties being faced by the various Central Educational Institutions in giving effect to the provisions of the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006, it has become necessary to amend certain provisions of the Act. It is also proposed to clarify that implementation of the Act has, in fact taken effect from the calendar year 2008 and not from the year 2007 as specified in section 6 of the Act."*

The Committee in it's report then went on put on record the practical difficulties summarized by the Department of Higher Education in clause 1.4 wherein a particular reference was made to the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University as follows:-

"1.4 The Department of Higher Education in their Background Note on the Bill summarized the practical difficulties experienced by some of the CEIs in giving effect to the provisions of the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006 as under:-

(i) Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University (BBAU), Lucknow established as an institution intended to pay special attention to the promotion of educational and economic interests and welfare of the members belonging to the SCs and STs, has been providing 50 per cent reservations for the SCs/STs. Provision for reservation of 27 percent seats for the OBCs over and above the existing 50 per cent limit for SCs and STs the total reserved seats would exceed the 50 per cent limit stipulated by the Supreme Court in the Indra Sawhney case."

34. The same was elaborated in clauses 1.5 and 1.6 that are extracted hereunder:-

"1.5 The Secretary, Department of Higher Education, during her presentation before the Committee, dwelt upon the practical difficulties being experienced by different Central Educational Institutions during the last three years in giving effect to the provisions of the Act, especially with regard to 50 per cent ceiling and existing demographic patterns in the North-East States. It was stated that Babasaheb Himrao Ambedkar University, Lucknow already has 50 per cent reservation for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and institutions in the North-East States viz. Arunachal Pradesh, Meghalaya, Mizoram and Nagaland predominantly inhabited by the tribal population, were already providing higher percentage of reservation for Scheduled Tribes, the provision for 27 per cent OBC reservation would be breaching the ceiling of 50 per cent reservation as laid down under the Supreme Court directive providing for 27 per cent OBC reservation by lowering the existing reservation in the University would prove to be detrimental to its character as visualized in its Statute. Another significant anomaly noticed was in respect of Sixth Schedule States where 50 per cent ceiling of reservation had already been reached and OBC reservation would lead to complications. North-East States having a predominantly Scheduled Tribe population needed separate dispensation for the OBC reservation. The Committee was also given to understand that time-limit of three years for the implementation of the Act had proved to be insufficient inspite of Oversight Committees working in coordination with UGC and AICTE. Attention of the Committee was also drawn to special problem areas experienced in respect of Central Educational Institutions in Delhi due to permission required from different agencies for building up the required infrastructure.

1.6 On a specific query with regard to general experience in the implementation of the Act so far, it was informed that before the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006 came into force, reservation in admission in Central Educational Institutions was confined to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes only through executive orders and provision of the respective Statements or Rules governing the institution. Following the amendment to Article 15 of the Constitution (93rd amendment Act), provision was made for the first time, through the CEI Act, 2006, for reservation in favour of OBC's as well as the SCs and STs. After the Act came into operation, reservation for SC/ST/OBC students in admission in Central Educational Institutions has been accomplished to a great extent and the candidates from the aforesaid categories were able to get admitted in these institutions in much larger number, nor only due to the percentage of seats reserved but also due to increase in the absolute number of seats."

35. The said Committee in relation to the introduction of the provisos in the Bill which have now taken shape of the 2012 Act noted the following in clauses 3.4 and 3.4 that are extracted hereunder:-

"3.4 The Committee takes note of the following clarifications given by the Department for bringing the proposed amendment in Section 3:-

(i) State Seats, if any, in a Central Educational Institution (CEI) situated in the tribal areas referred to in the Sixth Schedule to the Constitution shall be governed by the reservation policy of the concerned State Government in the matter of admission of SCs, STs and OBCs to that CEI.

(ii) In a CEI with no State seats, if the seats reserved for the SCs exceed 15 per cent or the seats reserved for the STs exceed 7.5 per cent or the seats reserved for the SCs and the STs taken together in a CEI exceed 22.5 per cent but fall short of 50 per cent of the annual permitted strength, the percentage of seats reserved for the OBCs shall be restricted to such shortfall.

(iii) In a CEI with no State Seats, if the seats reserved for SCs or the STs or both taken together in a CEI exceed 50 per cent of the annual permitted strength, that CEI shall be exempt from making any reservation for the OBCs. Further, if such a CEI is situated in the north-eastern States, including Sikkim but excluding the non-tribal areas of Assam, the percentage of seats reserved for the SCs or the STs shall not be reduced from the level obtaining on the date immediately preceding the date of the commencement of the Act; while in case of a CEI situated in other areas the percentage of seats reserved for the SCs and STs in that CEI shall stand reduced to 50 per cent.

3.5 While the Committee is convinced with the proposed amendment in Section 3, it would like to point out that there are conceptual difficulties in determining the OBC reservation in the States. While the SC/ST reservation may be definite, it is the OBC reservation which may differ from State to State. The Committee is also aware of the fact that reconciliation has to be made between 50 per cent cap on reservation and 27 per cent OBC quota. The Committee is of the view that OBC percentage is to be decided by taking SC and ST reservation as a compulsory component. Since the extent of reservation is 50 per cent whatever remaining after fulfilling the SC/ST reservation may go to OBCs. "

36. During consultations in relation to Section 3, the following observations were made by the Committee that are extracted hereunder:-

"Clause 3: Section 3: Reservation of seats in Central Educational Institutions

With the Committee is convinced with the proposed amendment in Section 3, it would like to point out that there are conceptual difficulties in determining the OBC reservation in the States. While the SC/ST reservation may be definite, it is the OBC reservation which may differ from State to State. The Committee is also aware of the fact that reconciliation has to be made between 50 per cent cap on reservation and 27 per cent OBC quota. The Committee is of the view that OBC percentage is to be decided by taking SC and ST reservation as a compulsory component. Since the extent of reservation is 50 per cent whatever remaining after fulfilling the SC/ST reservation may go to OBCs.

(Para 3.5)

Regarding adhering to the limit of 50 per cent reservation, the Committee would like to point out the case of Tamil Nadu, where 69 per cent reservation to backward classes has been allowed by the apex court. The apex court has permitted the State to increase the 50 per cent limit in case the qualification of data about OBC in the State as determined by the State Backward Class Commission justified such increase. In the light of the above Committee feels that the Department may take a view in the context of those States where data is available.

(Para 3.6)"

37. When the Bill was tabled in the Lok Sabha, the debates therein, copies whereof have also been provided to us, indicate that the then Minister of Human Resource Development, Government of India, Sri Kapil Sibal stated as follows:-

"Then, with reference to Dr. Baba Saheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University in Uttar Pradesh, it was established, as you know, much prior to the coming into force of this Act and there the reservation for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes itself is 50 per cent. So, then it was not possible for us to give any reservation to the OBCs there. So, because of historical reasons, those anomalies had to be corrected. So, the essence of his amendment is to correct those anomalies to preserve the reservation in States where reservations have been given much beyond the stipulated percentage in terms of the Constitution for institutions that have been set up prior to the coming into force of this Act, where reservations are granted to a particular category that reservation must be preserved. This, of course, applies to very few institutions. In rest of the institutions, all the policies required under the Act has been implemented."

38. During the said debate, the Minister again reiterated the following words:-

"If we have had a University, which is giving 50 percent reservation of seats to the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar University, let that be protected. Let not those, who are vested with certain rights through statute or otherwise be deprived of those rights. That is the heart of this legislation. So, it is consistent with the original intent of the original Act of 2006."

39. When the Bill reached the Rajya Sabha, the Hon'ble Minister made a special reference to the respondent-University as follows:-

"Then with reference to the Ambedkar University, which is a particular university only for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in Uttar Pradesh, the statute provided a reservation of 50 per cent only for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. So, there was no occasion for OBC reservation there. So, we had to propose an amendment that is reservation of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in Ambedkar University must maintained.

... ...

Therefore, we needed to bring an amendment to ensure that whatever reservations were applicable to those State institutions, which later became Central Institutions, whatever reservations were available immediately before they became Central Institutions, would still be intact and those would not be disturbed. That is mother amendment which is for the consideration of the hon. Members of this House.

... ...

Then with reference to the Ambedkar University, which is a particular university only for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in Uttar Pradesh, the statute provided a reservation of 50 per cent only for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. So, there was no occasion for OBC reservation there. So, we had to propose an amendment that is reservation of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in Ambedkar University must be maintained."

40. Thus, before the Rajya Sabha, the stand appears to have been taken as if the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University was only for the Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe candidates as is evident from the statement made by the Minister concerned. It is thus clear that the 2012 amending Act was brought about to give protection to the universities in the North-Eastern States and in particular to the Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University, Lucknow which was probably the only university the fact whereof was being discussed separately before both the Houses of Parliament and was also a subject matter of assessment by the Standing Committee of the Parliament.

41. We have heard Sri Amit Bose at length on behalf of the petitioners in both the writ petitions and Sri Raghvendra Kumar Singh, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Rajesh Tiwari for the respondent-University. Sri Ashok Mehta, learned Additional Solicitor General of India assisted by Sri Alok Mathur advanced his arguments on behalf of the Central Government and Sri S. K. Kalia, learned Senior Counsel introduced his arguments on behalf of the intervenors, namely, the Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe candidates.

42. Sri Amit Bose contends that reservation of 50% in favour of Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes is contrary to Article 15 (4) of the Constitution of India and the action of the University in proceeding to issue advertisements therefore violates Article 14 of the Constitution of India as well. He then submits that the right to 27% reservation in favour of Other Backward Castes has been conferred by Section - 3 of the 2006 Act which is in conformity with Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India hence Clause 9 of Chapter VII of the First Academic Ordinances of the University violates Section - 3 of the 2006 Act. He submits that Section 3 substantively contains 27% reservation in favour of Other Backward Classes in matters of any Central Educational Institutions which provision has neither been repealed nor eliminated by the Parliament. Thus, to deny the said benefit is a violation of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India.

43. He then submits that the 2012 amendment Act which inserts the provisos will not apply to the respondent-University as it was clearly tailored to cater to the requirement of North-Eastern States where there is excessive reservation in favour of Scheduled Tribes and there are no Other Backward Classes in such States. The object and intent of the 2012 Act does not amount to denial of benefits of reservation to the Other Backward Classes who will enjoy reservation in admission throughout the country as such there was no valid reason to deny this benefit in a discriminatory manner for admission in the respondent-University.

44. He also submits that the objects and reasons of the 1994 Act which has established the University does not indicate that it was an University exclusively for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes. The same only asserts that while providing a certain percentage or quota to reservation in favour of socially and educationally backward classes, the benefits in favour of Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe shall be taken care of in particular. This therefore has now to be read in the light of Section 3 (3) of the 2006 Act as well as the definition of the Central Educational Institutions as extracted here-in-above which does not exclude the applicability of the Act to the respondent-University. He submits that the respondent-University even though may have been established in 1994, that is prior to the 2006 Act, yet by virtue of the definition of Central Educational Institutions as contained in Section 2 (d) of the 2006 Act, the University is bound to implement the reservation in favour of Other Backward Classes as well who are also defined in the 2006 Act under Section 2 (g) extracted here-in-above. Thus, merely because the University was established in 1994 through a special Act, the same does not become a University of any extraordinary status so as to exclude itself from providing reservation to Other Backward Classes as imposed under the 2006 Act. If this interpretation of exclusion as urged by the respondents is accepted, then this would result in discrimination and would violate Articles 14 and 15 (5) of the Constitution of India.

45. He submits that negation of rights already conferred under the Statute and also constitutionally protected cannot be taken away under the garb of the provisos to Section 3 of the 2006 Act, inasmuch as this would amount to taking away by the right hand given by the left. He therefore submits that this Court should interpret the provisos to be not applicable in the respondent-University which otherwise also talk about less than 50% and more than 50%, but not of 50%.

46. He contends that the enactment is a denial of rights of reservation for admission in Educational Institutions which is not only violative of part III but also the Directive Principles of State Policy. The Other Backward Classes are also oppressed classes who still require the opportunity of higher education for their upliftment and advancement and therefore to give a particular status to a university which is entirely funded by the Central Government and the University Grants Commission would amount to denial of opportunity to those who are otherwise entitled to, and are being extended the benefit of reservation in all other Universities throughout the country under the 2006 Act. He therefore submits that the two provisos of Section 3 which have been inserted should be read in a manner so as not to deprive reservation benefits to the aspirants of Other Backward Classes for admission in the respondent-University.

47. Sri Bose has relied on several judgments to contend that the principles of statutory interpretation as spelt out in the following decisions should be taken into consideration for the said purpose:-

48. Sri Ashok Mehta, learned Additional Solicitor General of India assisted by Sri Alok Mathur has urged that there is a presumption of constitutionality of any enactment and the Court should endeavour to uphold it and would not look into the reasonableness of the Statute. He submits that the respondent-University has a special status as it was established to cater to the needs of Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes in particular. The 2006 Act with the introduction of Section - 3 did bring about a change in the quota of reservation by introducing a separate quota for backwards and it is for realigning the same that the Parliament undertook the exercise of amending the Act in 2012. He contends that the petitioners did not have any fundamental right of reservation and Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India is an enabling provision giving liberty to the Legislature to make special provisions for reservation. The 2012 Act therefore being inconformity with the same cannot be criticized as being in violation of any of the provisions of the Part - III of the Constitution of India. He further submits that the petitioners have already given up the stand of questioning the vires of the 2012 Act and therefore, as per the literal interpretation of the amending Act the same has to be understood as it stands. The Parliament had the legislative competence and in matters of admission to Educational Institutions, the Parliament has the power to modulate the extent of reservation or to restrict the scope of the application of the rights conferred by it. The amendment in 2012 therefore clearly conforms to the aforesaid principles and which is also evident from the debates of the Parliament as well as the statement of objects and reasons for introducing the amendment. Thus, the same cannot be described as arbitrary and the wisdom of the legislative choice cannot be questioned. He further submits that as a matter of fact, there is no complete prohibition or denial of reservation to the Other Backward Classes which is evident on a literal interpretation of the provisos appended to Section 3.

49. The literal meaning of the provisos clearly indicate that where in any Central Educational Institution the seats reserved for Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe exceeds the reservation provided in Sub-Section (i) and (ii) of Section 3 of their sum taken together exceed the sum of percentages under (i) and (ii), then as per proviso (a) only those seats would be reserved for Other Backward Classes which falls short of 50% of the reservation provided to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and proviso (b) states that where the reservation provided to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes exceeds 50% prior to commencement of the 2006 Act, then no seats would be reserved for Other Backward Classes. His contention is that there is no ambiguity so as to give a different interpretation.

50. He has relied on several decisions to substantiate his submissions further contending that the provisos which have been introduced being an exception to the main Section can independently exist as the functioning of the provisos are to limit the main part of the Section and to provide something, which but for the provisos would not have been within the operative part. The judgments relied on by Sri Ashok Mehta are as under:-

51. Sri Raghvendra Kumar Singh, learned Senior Counsel for the respondent-University has invited the attention of the Court to the entire material relating to parliamentary debates, the deliberations of the Standing Committee of the Parliament and the objects and reasons to contend that firstly, the University was established under a special Act, namely, the 1994 Act. The said Act clearly provided for special reservation for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes and accordingly, the First Academic Ordinances provide for 50% reservation to such classes. He therefore submits that this stood protected and could not be abrogated by the general provisions of the 2006 Act. His contention is that the 1994 special Act continues to hold the field and any exercise of framing of Ordinances under the said Act that provides for 50% reservation could not have been taken away for which the amendment in the 2012 Act came to be introduced. He submits that the respondent-University being a special university meant to uplift the cause of Scheduled Castes/ Scheduled Tribes in particular is fully justified in providing 50% reservation which stands protected under Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India. He submits that even if the validity of the 2006 Act has been upheld the same does not abrogate the provisions of the 1994 Act that can still exist independently and which now stands even otherwise protected with the 2012 amending Act. He contends that the petitioners having not challenged the competence of the Parliament or prayed for declaring the said provisos as ultra vires to Part - III of the Constitution of India, the wisdom of the legislature in introducing the statutory limitations cannot be said to be violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. He submits that the provisos simply preserve and contain what was provided under the 1994 parent Act of the University and hence all the arguments advanced on behalf of the petitioners deserve to be rejected. He has also questioned the locus standi of the petitioners on the ground that reservation is not a fundamental right and no such rights can be enforced by the petitioners. He then submits that the University Ordinances were also laid before the Parliament and there is a presumption of the validity of the 50% reservation provided for in the Ordinances. On the issue of interpretation, he submits that the provisos, if literally as they stand, carve out an exception which does not in any way violate either the main clause of Section 3 being an exception to the same and once having been included, the wisdom of the Parliament or the reasonableness thereof cannot be questioned by the petitioners. He submits that the purpose of a proviso is to make a provision which but for the proviso would not be in the main Section and the same can also simultaneously stand with the main Section. There is a presumption against implied repeal as such the 2006 Act does not override the 1994 Act, which is a special Act. He has relied on the following judgments to substantiate his submissions:-

(i) State of Uttaranchal Vs Balwant Singh Chaufal [2010 AIR SCW 1029]

(ii) Jasbhai Motibhai Desai Vs Rohan Kumar, Haji Basher Ahmed [1976 (1) SCC 671]

(vii) Lohia Machines Ltd. Vs Union of India [1985 (2) SCC 197 Page 225]

52. Sri S. K. Kalia, learned Senior Counsel for the intervenors contends that the amending Act of 2012 does not in any way affect the status of the respondent-University or the reservation to the extent of 50% provided by it under the 1994 Act which is a special Act. He submits that this special Act would exist and any action taken thereunder cannot be questioned on the ground of any provision being made later on through another act of Parliament. There is neither any repeal nor a presumption of implied repeal. The First Ordinances of the University have the status of law and have come to form part of the Statute itself. The 1994 Act being a special law would override the general provisions of the 2006 Act as amended in 2012. The statement of objects and reasons as well as the legislative debates leave no room for doubt that the 2012 amending Act clearly intends to preserve the status of the University and also the extent of reservation in favour of Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes as was existing prior to the 2006 Act. He submits that the 2006 Act cannot be read so as to impliedly repeal the reservation which the University was empowered to make under the 1994 Act and it's Ordinances to the extent of 50%. There is a strong presumption against implied repeal. He therefore submits that once there is no challenge raised to the vires of the provisos and the prayer for striking it down having been given up, then nothing remains to be considered either on the test of reasonableness or questioning the wisdom of the legislature. He therefore contends that the challenge raised is therefore to be dismissed. He has relied on the following judgments to substantiate his submissions:-

53. We have considered all the submissions raised by the learned counsel for the respective parties and we may at the very outset clarify that the issue raised in these petitions is clearly confined to the dispute of 50% reservation provided by the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University in favour of Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes to the exclusion of Other Backward Classes. This is evident from the fact that the case of the respondent-University was exclusively discussed and dealt with in the proceedings prior to the Act being passed by the Parliament both in the respective Committees as well as in both the Houses of Parliament. The cause of the respondent-University had been individually represented pointing out that this was the only Central University established in the State of U.P. for the purpose of catering particularly to Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes and therefore, the reservation as introduced by the 2006 Act under Section 3 thereof should not diminish the percentage of Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe reservation which according to the University would run counter to the objects and reasons of the 1994 Act under which the University was established.

54. Consequently, we are proceeding to interpret the provisions on the facts of the present case and confine our judgment to that extent only.

55. The argument of the respondent that the 1994 Act is an independent Act is correct, inasmuch as the said Act was passed to establish a University that was open to all castes and creed but at the same time, the objects and reasons for establishment of the said University clearly indicate that it was for the special attention for promoting educational advancement of the members belonging to the Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes aspiring to receive higher education. To that effect, the objects also categorically provide that this should be achieved by providing adequate percentage of seats to such category. Accordingly, the Act itself empowered the University under Section 2 (xxi) to fix the quota of percentage of such reservation. To achieve this object, the University in it's First Academic Ordinances introduced Clause 9 making a provision for 50% reservation for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes. The said percentage of reservation continued in the respondent-University and can be termed to be protected in view of the empowerment as conferred under the 1994 Act itself.

56. The matter took a turn when the Constitution (93rd Amendment) Act, 2005 was enforced w.e.f. 21.1.2006 whereby Sub-Article (5) was added in Article 15 enabling the State to make special provisions for the advancement of any Socially and Educationally Backward Classes of citizens or for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes particularly with regard to the admission in Educational Institutions other than minority institutions.

57. The Parliament under the aforesaid enabling constitutional authority passed another Act, namely, the Central Educational Institutions (Reservation in Admission) Act, 2006. It is to be noted that this Act was specifically for reservation in admissions in Central Educational Institutions. Section 2 (d) of the Act includes within it's fold Central Educational Institutions including any University established or incorporated by or under a Central Act. It is here that we proceed to record that the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University has been established under a Central Act of 1994 and therefore it squarely stands covered by the provisions of the 2006 Act. The argument of the respondents is, that the 1994 Act being a Special Act and an independent Act of Parliament, continues to hold the field, and the enforcement of the 2006 Act not having repealed the said Act, there would be a clear presumption against any implied repeal.

58. We are unable to agree with this proposition, inasmuch as the subject matter of legislation admittedly is within the competence of Parliament and therefore, the 2006 Act will be presumed to have been passed to give effect to the reservations as entailed therein. Not only this, there is an obligation cast on all Central Educational Institutions under Sections 3, 4 and 5 of the 2006 Act to give effect to the reservation as provided under Section 3 thereof. The field of reservation and it's percentage therefore having been categorically re-defined for all Central Educational Institutions alike, would therefore impliedly repeal any existing provision on the date of the enforcement of the 2006 Act. It is correct that there is a presumption against implied repeal but the said presumption clearly stands rebutted in the present case, inasmuch as the Parliament did not draw any distinction between the Universities established or incorporated under a Central Act. It includes all Universities established under a Central Act and therefore, the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University being a Central University under the 1994 Act was clearly covered under the aforesaid definition.

59. The second reason to not accept the arguments of the respondents on this score is that the 2006 Act is a Special Act for reservation that came into effect under a constitutionally enabling provision of Article 15 (5) which was not in existence when the 1994 Act had been passed. The Parliament thus was empowered by the Constitution to bring about the change by way of providing proportionate reservation in relation specifically to admission in Educational Institutions. This becomes more specific with the words Socially Educationally Backward Classes of citizens being categorically used in Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India. Thus, the State was enabled to make special provisions relating to reservation in admission in Educational Institutions for Other Backward Classes as well. This was therefore a constitutional goal envisaged in Part III of the Constitution of India that was sought to be enforced through the 2006 Act. This introduction of reservation for Other Backward Classes being made constitutionally permissible was consciously engrafted in Section 3 of the 2006 Act. This legislation will therefore have an overriding effect over the First Academic Ordinances of the respondent-University where 50% reservation was confined for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes. It is to be remembered that the 1994 Act itself does not fix any percentage and only empowered the University to fix the quota. The University by way of subordinate legislation in the shape of First Academic Ordinances had introduced 50% reservation. Thus, the quantitative fixation of quota was not under the primary Act of 1994, but under a subordinate legislation through the First Academic Ordinances that was notified in the Gazette in the year 2004, even though it had been dispatched earlier in 1996. The first ordinances may have been tabled before the Parliament and were having the status of law, but once a Special Central Act specifically for reservation in admission to all Central Educational Institutions as defined came to be enforced, the 50% quota under the Ordinances of the University stood superseded by the quota prescribed in Section 3 of the 2006 Act. The 2006 Act would be presumed to have been consciously passed enabled by Article 15 (5) that was not there when the 1994 Act came into existence.

60. The third reason is that the validity of the Constitution (93rd Amendment) Act, 2005 came to be challenged in the case of Ashoka Kumar Thakur (supra). The Apex Court upheld the validity of the Act including reservation in favour of Other Backward Classes as contained in Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India in the State Maintained Institutions and aided Educational Institutions. The challenge raised to the 2006 Act (Act No.5 of 2007) was also upheld and thus, reservation in favour of Other Backward Classes was constitutionally recognized by a judicial pronouncement. The same would be binding on the respondent-Babasaheb Bhimrao Ambedkar University as a matter of declaration of law under Article 141 of the Constitution of India and therefore, the 2006 Act would prevail over and above the percentage of reservation as contained in the First Academic Ordinances of the University.

61. Fourthly, it will not be incorrect to reiterate that the 2006 Act under Sections 3, 4 and 5 has been clearly designed to enforce the quota of reservation as defined under Section 3. This being an act of Parliament with specific powers of enforcement of reservation in admission would therefore even otherwise prevail over the First Academic Ordinances of the respondent-University, insofar as it fixes the quota of reservation. These being specific provisions would therefore govern and control the quota of reservation and hence, the respondents are not correct in submitting that the 1994 Act being special, the quota of 50% fixed for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes under the Ordinances will still continue to prevail in matters of reservation in admissions.

62. It is here, we may record that Sri Amit Bose, learned Counsel for the petitioners is correct in his submissions of the prevalence of the 2006 Act over the 1994 Act. It will also have to be noticed that Sri Ashok Mehta, learned Additional Solicitor General of India, instead of advancing the argument that the 1994 Act is a Special Act, contributed to the submissions by modifying it to the effect that the status of the University is a special status, and in view of the special status of the University to cater to particularly the Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes, justifies the amendments brought about through the 2012 amendment Act.

63. The argument of Sri Ashok Mehta for the Union of India that the University enjoys a special status cannot be doubted as per the objects and reasons disclosed at the time of the establishment of the University but merely because it had a special status, the University could not have acted contrary to an act of Parliament specially enacted for reservation in admission in relation to the quota prescribed for other backward classes and the validity whereof is no longer questionable in terms of the judgment in the case of Ashoka Kumar Thakur (supra). The introduction of percentage of reservation of 27% to Other Backward Classes having been introduced under the enabling powers of Article 15 (5) cannot be negated through Ordinances framed by the University that was allowed to prevail even after the 2006 Act came into force. This would amount to placing a subordinate legislation on a higher pedestal than the 2006 Act which would not be permissible in the hierarchy of legislations. Needless to repeat that the percentage was not prescribed in the 1994 Act at all. The 1994 Act does not also say that admissions would be denied to other classes of people. To the contrary, it is a University open to all castes and creed. The 2006 Act would therefore be presumed to have been enacted with all this in the background and not in ignorance thereof. The quota as fixed by the First Academic Ordinances of the University therefore stood eclipsed to the extent as defined under Section 3 of the 2006 Act prior to the 2012 amendment.

64. There is yet another argument which has been advanced by the respondents contending that the Other Backward Classes have no fundamental right to claim reservation. It is either way, not the fundamental right of any class, to claim reservation in admission as a fundamental right. Reservation for admission is enabled by either a constitutional or a statutory provision. Once this argument is accepted, then if the State has the power to reserve, it also has the right to withdraw such reservation or modify it as per the need of the Society at large.

65. In the instant case, if the 2006 Act was brought into force to cater to reservation to other classes apart from Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes that is constitutionally protected under Article 15

(5) of the Constitution of India and therefore, the argument of the respondents cannot be countenanced. The 2006 Act, therefore, rightly proceeded to engraft the quota of percentage as contained in Section 3 of the 2006 Act. On this score as well, the argument of the respondents that the 1994 Act is a Special Act with special provisions cannot be held to have any overriding affect over the 2006 Act.

66. A natural corollary to this conclusion drawn by us is also supported by the fact that had this been not the impediment, there was no necessity of amending Section 3 through the provisos that have been introduced and are subject matter of challenge before us. At this stage, we may now quote the provisos that came to be added by way of an amendment under Section that is the bone of contention between the parties. The said provisions as amended under the 2012 Act are extracted hereunder:-

"Provided that the State seats, if any, in a Central Educational Institution situated in the tribal areas referred to in the Sixth Schedule to the Constitution shall be governed, by such reservation policy for the Scheduled Castes, the Scheduled Tribes and the Other Backward Classes, as may be specified, by notification in the Official Gazette, by the Government of the State where such institution is situated:

Provided further that if there are no State seats in a Central Educational Institution and the seats reserved for the Scheduled Castes exceed the percentage specified under clause (i) or the seats reserved for the Scheduled Tribes exceed the percentage specified under clause (ii) or the seats reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes taken together exceed the sum of percentages specified under clauses (i) and (ii), but such seats are-

(a) less than fifty per cent of the annual permitted strength on the date immediately preceding the date of commencement of this Act, the total percentage of the seats required to be reserved for the Other Backward Classes under clause (iii) shall be restricted to the extent such sum of percentages specified under clauses (l) and (ii) falls short of fifty per cent of the annual permitted strength;

(b) more than fifty per cent of the annual permitted strength on the date immediately preceding the date of commencement of this Act, in that case no seat shall be reserved for the Other Backward Classes under clause (iii) but the extent of the reservation of seats for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes shall not be reduced in respect of Central Educational Institutions in the specified north-eastern region".

67. The aforesaid provisos particularly the second proviso with clause (b) clearly nail down any scope for admission by way of a reservation to the Other Backward Classes. The exclusion in the second proviso was therefore clearly designed to cater to the peculiar situation of the status of the University keeping in mind the object of catering to Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes. Clause (a) to the second proviso does create a space for Other Backward Classes, but virtually restricts it by providing full play to the extent of 50% reservation in favour of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. Thus, the Other Backward Classes can seek benefit of Section 3 only if there is a shortfall in the number of candidates seeking admission of the category of Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes against 50% reservation.

68. The percentage of reservation to other categories as provided for in the main Section is therefore clearly disturbed as it gives full reservation to the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes to the extent of 50%. It is for this reason that this 50% reservation as existed in the First Academic Ordinances in Clause 9 was challenged and is pending consideration in Writ Petition No.3569 (MS) of 2009. The full play of 50% reservation to Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes therefore does not harmonise with Section 3, which provides for reservation to Other Backward Classes as well. The question is, does it end in discrimination and arbitrariness. It is here that we have to mention that the petitioners have given up the challenge of the vires of the Sections as noted at the very outset. The issue of discrimination or arbitrariness has to be looked into from the point of view of the enabling power under Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India and the purpose underlying the same. There is a distinction which has to be kept in mind, namely, reservation in employment that has a different connotation as against reservation for opportunity of admission in educational institutions. The former is designed to secure the social and economic backwardness in matters of employment whereas the latter is the real upliftment of an individual of the oppressed classes so as to make him capable to compete in all spheres of life which may also include future employment. Thus, to provide reservation in admission to the oppressed classes even, beyond a permissible percentage in the background of social circumstances cannot be said to be excessive or to prohibit this benefit to others. The same has to be balanced, more so when it comes to providing reservation in admission to educational institutions to competing oppressed classes, like in the present case, the Backwards versus the Scheduled Castes. The decisions which have been cited at the Bar on behalf of the petitioners do indicate that the Courts can intervene when excessiveness is detected in protective discrimination laws. In the instant case, the ratio of 50% is the outer limit of reservation and therefore, the reservation is not in excess of permissible limits. However, this is a peculiar situation, where in an inter se contest between the reserved classes, the other backward category is being denied the benefit of reservation as provided for in the main Section by virtually elbowing it through the aid of the provisos under challenge.

69. As noted above, since the vires challenge has been given up, the interpretation as sought for by Sri Amit Bose, learned Counsel for the petitioners would not be possible without entertaining arguments on the issue of striking down the impugned provisos. The other side of the coin is that the background of this 50% reservation for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes is clearly for the cause of the advancement and promotion of education. This purpose and cause has to be read in favour of the Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes, but at the same time what we find is that such a cause or a purpose should be based on an extensive exercise to be undertaken by the authority extending the benefit of reservation through objective surveys and not merely on the social philosophy of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution of India. An exercise has to be undertaken in order to find out as to whether such reservation can be objectively sustained and at the same time, the reservation to the other categories of the oppressed classes can be justifiably denied. The Parliamentary debates or the discussions that have been placed before the Court are clearly aimed at maintaining 50% reservation on the strength of the purpose, objects and reasons for which the University was established.

70. The Parliament may have taken a myopic view by narrowing down the discussion for a single institution, and the statement of the Hon'ble Minister during the debates that the respondent University was established only for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes may not be matching with the object and reasons of the University which declares it to be open for admission to all creeds and classes, but the wisdom of the Parliament is not open to adjudication before this Court. It has also to be kept in mind that the 2006 Act widens the scope of admission through reservation throughout the country in all central educational institutions. Thus viewed from the top of the hill, and not standing in the valley, the reserved category aspirants are assured of more seats throughout the country. While assessing the need for reservation, the balance therefore from the point of view of centrally aided institutions, Section 3 without the impugned proviso can be successfully implemented. If that is feasible, it is still open for the Parliament to discuss and reassess the same on an objective study upon a survey of ground realities. With reservation in admissions with the aid of Article 15 (5) of the Constitution, and with a wider opportunity of exposure under Section 3 of the 2006 Act, any possible argument of discrimination and different standards of reservation inter se between the different reserved categories can be avoided by adopting a balanced approach.

71. We therefore find it necessary that if the Parliament has made a law, then should not an exercise be taken for an objective assessment of the requirement of the Other Backward Classes. To extend favour entirely to the Scheduled Castes/ Scheduled Tribes and completely overlooking the claim of the Other Backward Classes therefore does require an objective assessment. The presumption of legislative wisdom cannot be doubted, but unless the vires of the Act on such grounds is assailed with facts and figures to substantiate the same, this Court by way of an interpretation cannot read down the provisos to reflect a different meaning. To extend such a benefit would amount to enforcing Section 3 as against the provisos that have been subsequently added by way of an amendment. To our mind, the same would be permissible only if provisos can be struck down as ultra vires and not otherwise. The Parliament has full authority and is also otherwise obligated to review any percentage of reservation on such objective study, but we cannot issue any direction as prayed for unless the provisions are questioned accordingly as observed here-in-above.

72. The Other Backward Classes may be near equals and the provisos may result in an unequal treatment but the rationality of such an argument can only be tested provided there is material to substantiate the same and is otherwise challenged as observed here-in-above.

73. Accordingly, for all the reasons aforesaid, we are unable to come to the aid of the petitioners without prejudice to the rights of any person to the issues raised in Writ Petition No.3569 (MS) of 2009, that is stated to be still pending consideration and further without prejudice to the rights of the Other Backward Classes to raise an appropriate challenge in the light of what has been observed here-in-above.

74. Both the writ petitions are therefore accordingly dismissed subject to the above observations.

Civil Law – termination of Concession Agreement – dispute resolution – conciliation – arbitration – writ petition – Article 226 – delay in execution of the project – environmental clearance – withdrawal of funds – abandonment of the work – disputed questions – assessment of facts – writ jurisdiction – dismissed with liberty to invoke arbitration clause.

The petitioner-company has come up questioning the termination of Concession Agreement dated 1.8.2011 vide communication dated 25.7.2016 by the Uttar Pradesh State Highways Authority/respondent No.2 herein thereby terminating the contract for the project of the construction and repair of a 4lane road, namely, State Highway No.57 in the DelhiUttarakhand Border section. The agreement dated 1.8.2011 has been filed on record as Annexure – 3.(Para 1)

The petition has been opposed by Sri Vivek Raj Singh for the respondent No.2/Authority, the learned Standing Counsel for the respondent No.1/State of U.P. and Sri D.K. Pathak, learned Counsel for the respondent No.3/Punjab National Bank, which is the leading Banker of the Consortium of Banks that has been funding the petitioner-company in the aforesaid project. (Para 2)

The grievance of the petitioner is that the termination of the contract has been done arbitrarily on the strength of an ex parte report of an Independent Engineer who was to submit the appraisal of the work to be executed on the basis of whereof action was to be taken by the respondents under the terms of the agreement.(Para 3)

Held: (16-19)
1.We have considered all these submissions and what we find is that the impugned decision to terminate the contract proceeds on the fact of the withdrawl of the petitioner-company, the fact relating to the delay caused in the commencement of the work, the actual physical completion of work to the tune of 13.33% and the allegations of excessive withdrawl of the funds from the lending agency by the petitioner-company without proportionately spending it against the estimated cost of project. Thus, there is a clear dispute between the parties, namely, the petitioner-company and the U.P. State Highways Authority that resulted in the delay in the project and it's non-performance. The liability, the responsibility and the accountability of the parties on this score therefore is dependent on all the aforesaid factors that can be assessed on the strength of the various contentions that have been raised in this regard.

2.Consequently, we are of the opinion that where such complicated questions are required to be assessed and cannot be assumed on the basis of the allegations on their face value, it would be appropriate that the remedy of arbitration is invoked. We also find that conciliation had been attempted, but in the absence of any agreement having been arrived at, the U.P. State Highways Authority proceeded to terminate the agreement which apart from the issue of excessive withdrawal is also based on the allegation of the petitioner-company having abandoned the work in 2014 itself. The issue of delay in the commencement of the project due to non-clearance by the Environmental Ministry is not the sole factor to govern the assessment of the act of the parties, inasmuch as the U.P. State Highways Authority has taken a stand that ample extension of period was given, but in spite of that, the petitioner-company failed to live up to it's commitments. Thus, in these circumstances, this would be a fit case for arbitration.

3.In the background aforesaid, we uphold the preliminary objections raised by Sri Vivek Raj Singh and decline to exercise our jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for the above mentioned reasons. Whether the decision making process was whimsical and the consequential action of termination of the agreement was arbitrary would depend on the establishment of the allegations with material to substantiate the same. This would require an intense exercise of fact finding and cannot be assumed on the basis of mere allegations and counter-allegations in the exercise of writ jurisdiction.

4.In view of the above, we are not inclined to interfere in the matter and the writ petition is accordingly dismissed with liberty to the parties to invoke the arbitration clause under the agreement.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Sahi, J.
&
Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. The petitioner-company has come up questioning the termination of Concession Agreement dated 1.8.2011 vide communication dated 25.7.2016 by the Uttar Pradesh State Highways Authority/respondent No.2 herein thereby terminating the contract for the project of the construction and repair of a 4-lane road, namely, State Highway No.57 in the Delhi-Uttarakhand Border section. The agreement dated 1.8.2011 has been filed on record as Annexure - 3.

2. The petition has been opposed by Sri Vivek Raj Singh for the respondent No.2/Authority, the learned Standing Counsel for the respondent No.1/State of U.P. and Sri D.K. Pathak, learned Counsel for the respondent No.3/Punjab National Bank, which is the leading Banker of the Consortium of Banks that has been funding the petitioner-company in the aforesaid project.

3. The grievance of the petitioner is that the termination of the contract has been done arbitrarily on the strength of an ex parte report of an Independent Engineer who was to submit the appraisal of the work to be executed on the basis of whereof action was to be taken by the respondents under the terms of the agreement.

4. Dr. L.P. Mishra submits that the said report was prepared without the participation of the petitioner-company and without giving any opportunity to give a reply to the allegations that now form the basis of the passing of the impugned order. He further submits that the calculation, as reflected in the impugned communication dated 25.7.2016, particularly in Clause 9 thereof about the act of the petitioner-company being involved in overdrawing with a criminal intent of defalcation, was never intimated to the petitioner to explain the same and even otherwise the entire calculation is erroneous. Hence, the conclusion drawn being patently incorrect the action is arbitrary.

5. Dr. Misra then urged that there was ample material on record to demonstrate that the entire delay had been caused on account of the unavailability of the environmental clearance that was the obligation of the State Highways Authority and which admittedly took more than a year to communicate. The aforesaid delay in the execution of the project and otherwise all the hindrances were totally attributable to the respondent No.2 that have been completely ignored while passing the impugned order and therefore, the decision making process is clearly vitiated being arbitrary and whimsical. He has further submitted that these facts about the breach on the part of the respondent No.2 were not even brought to the notice of the High Court nor was the petitioner a party in Public Interest Litigation (PIL) No.15147 of 2015 where directions were issued for completion of the project vide judgment dated 21.4.2015. It is submitted that the information given about the meeting chaired by the Chief Secretary and the resolutions passed therein, as quoted in the said judgment, were totally incorrect informations giving an impression as if the petitioner-company had voluntarily without any justification abandoned the project. It is therefore urged that taking shelter by the respondent No.2 of the aforesaid judgment is totally unjustified and in such circumstances, in view of the judgments that have been cited at the Bar, the impugned order/communication dated 25.7.2016 is unsustainable and deserves to be quashed.

6. Controverting the aforesaid submissions, Sri Vivek Raj Singh has raised a preliminary objection with regard to the entertaining of the writ petition on the ground that any dispute arising out of the agreement dated 19.5.2011 has to be resolved as per Article 44 of the terms of agreement initially by conciliation and on failure of mediation, through arbitration. He further submits that so far as the delay part at the initial stage of environmental clearance is concerned, the same was suitably compensated by providing more time to the petitioner-company through a revised memorandum of time-schedule and therefore, no prejudice was caused on account of any such delay in obtaining environmental clearance. He further submitted that as a matter of fact, the petitioner-company voluntarily abandoned the project as a result whereof the entire project was put in jeopardy that gave rise to the filing of a PIL and then consequential action by the State Highways Authority. It is urged that the Independent Engineer had been assessing the work and on that basis, the petitioner had been intimated of completing the project within time, but having failed to do so and having found that the petitioner had overdrawn a huge amount from the consortium of banks, which was in excess of what had been actually spent, there was no option but to terminate the agreement. He further submits that there is a provision for substitution of the contractor by negotiations through the consortium of the funding agency, but that too entails a condition that the amount of funds already withdrawn and loan taken by the contractor will be taken over as a liability by the substituted company for which no one is coming forward to undertake the said burden. The offer of the consortium is not supported by any offer of the petitioner in relation to the introduction of new partners and the same being not viable the only option left was to terminate the agreement. He therefore submits that the only resolution dispute mechanism left now available to the petitioner is by way of arbitration and none of the grounds raised in the writ petition is available so as to establish even a prima facie case for finding a fault in the decision making process. Consequently, the writ petition is not maintainable and deserves to be dismissed.

7. We may at the very outset quote the provisions for the resolution of disputes between the parties, namely, Article 44 of the Agreement that is extracted hereunder:-

"ARTICLE 44
44 DISPUTE RESOLUTION

44.1 Dispute resolution

44.1.1 Any dispute, difference, or controversy of whatever nature howsoever arising under or out of or in relation to this Agreement (including its interpretation) between the Parties, and so notified in writing by either Party to the other Party (the "Dispute") shall, in the first instance, be attempted to be resolved amicably in accordance with the conciliation procedure set forth in Clause 44.2.

44.1.2 The Parties agree to use their best efforts for resolving all Disputes arising under or in respect of this Agreement promptly, equitably and in good faith, and further agree to provide each other with reasonable access during normal business hours to all non-privileged records, information and data pertaining to any Dispute.

44.2 Conciliation

In the event of any Dispute between the Parties, either Party may call upon the Independent Engineer to mediate and assist the parties in arriving at an amicable settlement thereof. Failing mediation by the Independent Engineer or without the intervention of the Independent Engineer, either Party may require such Dispute to be referred to the Secretary, PWD and the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Concessionaire for amicable settlement, and upon such reference, the said persons shall meet no later than 7 (seven) days from the date of reference to discuss and attempt to amicably resolve the Dispute. If such meeting does not take place within the 7 (seven) day period or the Dispute is not amicably settled within 15 (fifteen) days of the meeting or the Dispute is not resolved as evidenced by the signing of written terms of settlement within 30 (thirty) days of the notice in writing referred to in Clause 44.1.1 or such longer period as may be mutually agreed by the Parties, either Party may refer the Dispute to arbitration in accordance with the provisions of Clause 44.3.

44.3 Arbitration

44.3.1 Any Dispute which is not resolved amicably by conciliation, as provided in Clause 44.2, shall be finally decided by reference to arbitration by a Board of Arbitrators appointed in accordance with Clause 44.3.2. Such arbitration shall be held in accordance with the Rules of Arbitration of the International Centre for Alternative Dispute Resolution, New Delhi (the "Rules"), or such other rules as may be mutually agreed by the Parties, and shall be subject to the provisions of the Arbitration Act. The venue of such arbitration shall be Lucknow, and the language of arbitration proceedings shall be English.

44.3.2 There shall be a Board of three arbitrators, of whom each Party shall select one, and the third arbitrator shall be appointed by the two arbitrators so selected, and in the event of disagreement between the two arbitrators, the appointment shall be made in accordance with the Rules.

44.3.3 The arbitrators shall make a reasoned award (the "Award"). Any Award made in any arbitration held pursuant to this Article 44 shall be final and binding on the Parties as from the date it is made, and the Concessionaire and the Authority agree and undertake to carry out such Award without delay.

44.3.4 The Concessionaire and the Authority agree that an Award may be enforced against the Concessionaire and/or the Authority, as the case may be, and their respective assets wherever situated.

44.3.5 This Agreement and the rights and obligations of the Parties shall remain in full force and effect, pending the Award in any arbitration proceedings hereunder.

44.4 Adjudication by Regulatory Authority or Commission

In the event of constitution of a statutory Regulatory Authority or Commission with powers to adjudicate upon disputes between the Concessionaire and the Authority, all Disputes arising after such constitution shall, instead of reference to arbitration under Clause 44.3, be adjudicated upon by such Regulatory Authority or Commission in accordance with the Applicable Law and all references to Dispute Resolution Procedure shall be construed accordingly. For the avoidance of doubt, the Parties hereto agree that the adjudication hereunder shall not be final and binding until an appeal against such adjudication has been decided by an appellate tribunal or High Court, as the case may be, or no such appeal has been preferred within the time specified in the Applicable Law."

8. Dr. Misra has cited the following decisions to contend that if there is an element of arbitrariness in the decision making process, then the remedy of arbitration need not be resorted to and this Court in the exercise of powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can invoke and correct the error with a direction to take an appropriate decision:-

(1) Union of India v. Tantia Constructions [(2011) 5 SCC 697 Paras 31, 33 and 34]

(2) Manoj Agarwal v. Union of India [(2016) 115 ALR 610 Paras 15-17]

(3) Navin Filling Station v. Indian Oil Corporation [MANU/UP/0791 Paras 17, 25 and 27]

(4) ABL International Ltd. v. Export Credit Guarantee Corporation of India [(2004) 3 SCC 553 paras 19 and 27]

(5) M/s Surya International Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India [2014 (103) ALR 349, MANU/UP/0401/2014 Paras 52-59]

(6) Soma Isolux NH One Tollway Ltd. v. Harish Kumar Puri [(2011) 5 SCC 697]

(7) Uttar Pradesh State Bridge Construction Corporation Limited v. Bangalore Development Authority [MANU/KA/0284/2005 paras 26, 31, 51 and 55]

(8) State of Kerala v. K. A. Yoosaf [MANU/KE/0185/2015 Paras 13 and 15]

(9) McNally Bharat Engineering Company v. Bihar State Electricity Board [MANU/BH/1196/2015 paras 7, 10 and 12]

(10) State of A.P. v. Goverdhanlal Pitti [(2003) 4 SCC 739 paras 12 and 14]

(11) Ratnagiri Gas Ltd. v. RDS Projects Ltd. [(2013) 1 SCC 534 Paras 30 and 32]

9. Sri Vivek Raj Singh has cited the following decision to counter the aforesaid submissions:-

10. Sasan Power Limited v. North American Coal Corporation India Private Limited [2016 SCC Online SC 855]

11. On an assessment of the facts, it appears that the delay in execution of the project had commenced way back in 2012 itself when the State Highways Authority had itself been communicating with the Ministry of Environment, Government of India seeking clearance for felling of trees and removal of such obstructions for completion of the project. This is evident from the letter of the Government of India dated 28.5.2014 addressed to the Principal Secretary (Forests),

Government of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow, a copy whereof is Annexure - 28 to the writ petition. Dr. Misra has also invited the attention of the Court to Annexure - 37 to the writ petition, which is the letter dated 27.7.2015 to the lead bank of the consortium where also the letter dispatched to the Ministry of Finance, Department of Economic Affairs (PPP Cell), Government of India dated 19.6.2015 by the State Highways Authority was appended. The said letter also informs that almost all the trees have been cut and a large front is available for construction of the road work. It also mentions the delay that had occurred in the forest clearance which took almost two years and had also resulted in the increased cost of the project.

12. The petitioner-company had withdrawn the sums that were released to it but on account of the escalation of the cost of the project, the petitioner did not commence the work at the site and also complained of financial constraints.

13. It is in between these communications that the Public Interest Litigation Petition No.15147 (MB) of 2015 was filed in the High Court at Allahabad and a direction was issued on 21.4.2015 to conclude the project clearly noting therein the absence of the petitioner as a party and leaving that issue open to be dealt with separately.

14. The letters also however indicate that very little physical progress had been made to the extent of 13.33% only. It is the case of the petitioner that the lead bank dispatched a letter on 6.6.2015 to the U.P. State Highways Authority indicating that the petitioner-company had made a proposal that was discussed in the meeting of all the stakeholders on 19.5.2015 where it was agreed to favourably examine the request of the petitioner for diluting the existing sponsor stake by 74% in favour of prospective investors and also extension of the completion of the project upto 31.3.2017. The letter of the Punjab National Bank was sent to the State Highways Authority but according to the learned counsel for the Bank, no further information was received from the State Highways Authority in this regard.

15. It appears that the respondent-State Highways Authority according to the terms of the agreement called upon a report from the Independent Engineer who under the terms of the agreement was to supervise and report about the work progress and who dispatched his report on 25.1.2016. A copy of the said report is on record.

16. Sri Vivek Raj Singh has however countered the submissions about no action having been taken on the offers made and about the default on the part of the petitioner. He has placed before the Court a letter of the State Highways Authority dated 27.5.2016 addressed to all the Banks of the consortium intimating them about the intention to terminate the agreement of the petitioner as the time period for completion of the work as extended was coming to a close on 16.7.2016. He also submits that the petitioner had already withdrawn itself way back in 2014 with no intention to execute the work after having excessively withdrawn the funds from the funding agencies. For this, he has urged that as against 13.33% of work actually performed, the amount of withdrawals against the cost project was many-fold without any work having been performed and therefore this clearly amounted to a defrauding practice adopted by the petitioner-company of having withdrawn the funds without utilizing it for the project. This disproportionate withdrawal as against a very minimal performance of the work, therefore, led to the termination about which the petitioner had full knowledge.

17. We have considered all these submissions and what we find is that the impugned decision to terminate the contract proceeds on the fact of the withdrawl of the petitioner-company, the fact relating to the delay caused in the commencement of the work, the actual physical completion of work to the tune of 13.33% and the allegations of excessive withdrawl of the funds from the lending agency by the petitioner-company without proportionately spending it against the estimated cost of project. Thus, there is a clear dispute between the parties, namely, the petitioner-company and the U.P. State Highways Authority that resulted in the delay in the project and it's non-performance. The liability, the responsibility and the accountability of the parties on this score therefore is dependent on all the aforesaid factors that can be assessed on the strength of the various contentions that have been raised in this regard.

18. Consequently, we are of the opinion that where such complicated questions are required to be assessed and cannot be assumed on the basis of the allegations on their face value, it would be appropriate that the remedy of arbitration is invoked. We also find that conciliation had been attempted, but in the absence of any agreement having been arrived at, the U.P. State Highways Authority proceeded to terminate the agreement which apart from the issue of excessive withdrawal is also based on the allegation of the petitioner-company having abandoned the work in 2014 itself. The issue of delay in the commencement of the project due to non-clearance by the Environmental Ministry is not the sole factor to govern the assessment of the act of the parties, inasmuch as the U.P. State Highways Authority has taken a stand that ample extension of period was given, but in spite of that, the petitioner-company failed to live up to it's commitments. Thus, in these circumstances, this would be a fit case for arbitration.

19. In the background aforesaid, we uphold the preliminary objections raised by Sri Vivek Raj Singh and decline to exercise our jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for the above mentioned reasons. Whether the decision making process was whimsical and the consequential action of termination of the agreement was arbitrary would depend on the establishment of the allegations with material to substantiate the same. This would require an intense exercise of fact finding and cannot be assumed on the basis of mere allegations and counter-allegations in the exercise of writ jurisdiction.

20. In view of the above, we are not inclined to interfere in the matter and the writ petition is accordingly dismissed with liberty to the parties to invoke the arbitration clause under the agreement.

Criminal law—Code of Criminal Procedure—Section 482 of Cr.P.C.Section 2(d)—Explanation—"report made by police officer"—"non-cognizable offence"—"deemed to be a complaint"—Section 173—"police report"—"chargesheet"—not found in Code—Section 204—"summoning order"—"case instituted on police report"—"case instituted on complaint"—"no different standard"—Section 200—"examination of complainant"—proviso (a)—"no necessity"—Section 482—"inherent powers"—"quashing"—order taking cognizance—Section 427 Indian Penal Code—"non-bailable warrants"—"non-appearance"—"petition rejected"

The petitioners are the accused in criminal case no.506 of 2016 pending before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur. The allegation against the petitioners is that they have committed an offence punishable under Section 427 of the Indian Penal Code. The petitioners are aggrieved by the order dated 4.2.2014 passed by the Magistrate whereby cognizance of the alleged offence was taken and the petitioners were summoned to appear before the Magistrate. They have, therefore, approached this court by filing the present petition praying that by invoking the inherent powers of this court, the order taking cognizance of the alleged offence be quashed and set aside.(Para 2)

The argument that is advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioners in support of his contention that the order taking cognizance and summoning the petitioners is bad in law is that 'the police have filed a charge-sheet against the petitioners in respect of an offence punishable under Section 427 of the Indian Penal Code, which is noncognizable' and, therefore, the summoning order based on that 'charge-sheet' is bad in law. He submits that by virtue of the definition of a 'complaint' as given under Section 2(d) of the Code of Criminal Procedure [the 'Code'], such a report filed by the police shall be deemed to be a complaint and the police officer by whom such report is made, shall be deemed to be the complainant(Para 3)

When this aspect of the matter was discussed, an attempt was made to suggest that 'since the case was instituted on a complaint, examination of the complainant under the provisions of Section 200 of the Code was necessary before issuing process'. This contention cannot be accepted. What the police officer has laid before the court is a report made by him after investigation and merely because it is declared in the explanation to Section 2(d) of the Code, that it shall be 'deemed' to be a complaint, it does not mean that the police officer is required to be examined on oath under the provisions of Section 200 of the Code before summoning the accused persons. The instant case would be clearly covered by clause (a) of the proviso to Section 200 of the Code and as such, there would be no necessity of examining the complainant before issuing process.(Para 5)

Held: Para-(7-11)

(1) I do not find that this judgment is applicable to the present case. A reading of the said judgment indicates that in that case, the cognizance was taken by the Magistrate 'as a State case'. There is nothing in the present case, to show that the Magistrate has taken cognizance of the alleged offence as a 'State case', or that he has ignored the explanation to Section 2(d) of the Code. At the cost of repetition, it may be observed that the summoning oder would be passed under Section 204 of the Code only, irrespective of whether the case is one instituted 'on police report' or 'otherwise than on police report'. Ironically, the procedure for trial of cases instituted 'on police report' would be favourable to the accused, - if at all the Magistrate adopts it in this case - as the accused would be entitled to get copies of the statements recorded during investigation as a matter of right, which they would not be entitled to get in a case instituted 'on complaint'. In the later case, they would get only a copy of the complaint-i.e. the report in this case- and will have to make a prayer to the Magistrate, for obtaining copies of the statements recorded during investigation.

(2) Interestingly, the order summoning the accused was passed on 4.2.2014. On 26.2.2014 the petitioner appeared before the Magistrate, applied for bail and were duly granted bail. The case was then adjourned from time to time and was fixed on 6.4.2016 for framing of charge. Thereafter, the case was transferred to another court and when it was taken up on 6.6.2016, as the petitioners were not present before the court, non-bailable warrants of arrest were issued against the petitioners. It appears that thereafter, the petitioners did not remain present before the court and again non-bailable warrants of arrest have been issued. Now, interestingly, the petitioners had not taken any objections to the order issuing process, but had duly obeyed the same by remaining present before the court.The petitioners had shown their readiness to proceed with the trial without raising any contentions about the correctness of the order issuing process. It is only when the nonbailable warrants of arrest were issued, it dawned upon the petitioners that they had been wrongly summoned. The petitioners then imagined that they had been summoned on a 'police report' or 'chargesheet' and not on a 'complaint'. Apart from the fact that there is no basis for this imagination, it is rather interesting that till the non-bailable warrants were issued, they had not bothered about it.

(3) There is no substance in the petition.

(4) When the petition was being rejected, the learned counsel for the petitioners made some submissions with respect to an order issuing non-bailable warrants of arrest against the petitioners. Admittedly, the warrants have been issued because of the nonappearance of the petitioners before the court on a given date. If the contention of the petitioners is that there was justification for their non-appearance before the Magistrate on that date, that justification can be put forth before the Magistrate and a prayer for cancellation of non-bailable warrants of arrest, can be made.

(5) The petition is rejected.

Case Law discussed:

1. Ghanshyam Dubey @ Litile & others v. State of U.P. & Anr. — (para 6–7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abhay Mahadeo Thipsay, J.)

1. Heard Shri Rajendra Pratap Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners and the learned Additional Government Advocate.

2. The petitioners are the accused in criminal case no.506 of 2016 pending before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur. The allegation against the petitioners is that they have committed an offence punishable under Section 427 of the Indian Penal Code. The petitioners are aggrieved by the order dated 4.2.2014 passed by the Magistrate whereby cognizance of the alleged offence was taken and the petitioners were summoned to appear before the Magistrate. They have, therefore, approached this court by filing the present petition praying that by invoking the inherent powers of this court, the order taking cognizance of the alleged offence be quashed and set aside.

3. The argument that is advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioners in support of his contention that the order taking cognizance and summoning the petitioners is bad in law is that 'the police have filed a charge-sheet against the petitioners in respect of an offence punishable under Section 427 of the Indian Penal Code, which is non-cognizable' and, therefore, the summoning order based on that 'charge-sheet' is bad in law. He submits that by virtue of the definition of a 'complaint' as given under Section 2(d) of the Code of Criminal Procedure [the 'Code'], such a report filed by the police shall be deemed to be a complaint and the police officer by whom such report is made, shall be deemed to be the complainant.

4. This argument is without any basis apart from being clearly misleading. In the first place, term 'charge-sheet' is not found in the Code of Criminal Procedure at all. It is basically used to denote the police report under Section 173 of the Code disclosing commission of certain offences by some person or persons. The explanation to Section 2(d) of the Code provides that 'a report made by the police officer in a case which discloses, after investigation, the commission of a non-cognizable offence shall be deemed to be a complaint'. Now, no body has said that the report submitted by the police in this case shall not be deemed to be a complaint and, therefore, the argument has to be treated as misleading. The learned counsel for the petitioner simply assumes that the report in the present case is not being treated as a 'complaint' by the Magistrate and is being treated as 'charge-sheet'; and then argues how it cannot be treated as a 'charge-sheet' and how it has to be treated as a complaint. There is nothing in the summoning order which indicates that the Magistrate is treating the case as if instituted on a police report, by ignoring the provisions of the explanation to Section 2(d) of the Code. Moreover, this aspect cannot be brought into play for challenging the order of summoning the petitioners. The case in hand is to be tried as a summon case and, there is no different standard or different grounds, or different degree of satisfaction prescribed for summoning the accused persons, in cases instituted on police report and cases instituted on complaints, or 'deemed complaints'. The summoning order would be passed under the provisions of Section 204 of the Code in all the cases.

5. When this aspect of the matter was discussed, an attempt was made to suggest that 'since the case was instituted on a complaint, examination of the complainant under the provisions of Section 200 of the Code was necessary before issuing process'. This contention cannot be accepted. What the police officer has laid before the court is a report made by him after investigation and merely because it is declared in the explanation to Section 2(d) of the Code, that it shall be 'deemed' to be a complaint, it does not mean that the police officer is required to be examined on oath under the provisions of Section 200 of the Code before summoning the accused persons. The instant case would be clearly covered by clause (a) of the proviso to Section 200 of the Code and as such, there would be no necessity of examining the complainant before issuing process.

6. The learned counsel for the petitioners has relied on a decision delivered by a learned Single Judge of this court in the case of Ghanshyam Dubey @ Litile & others v. State of U.P. & Anr.

7. I do not find that this judgment is applicable to the present case. A reading of the said judgment indicates that in that case, the cognizance was taken by the Magistrate 'as a State case'. There is nothing in the present case, to show that the Magistrate has taken cognizance of the alleged offence as a 'State case', or that he has ignored the explanation to Section 2(d) of the Code. At the cost of repetition, it may be observed that the summoning oder would be passed under Section 204 of the Code only, irrespective of whether the case is one instituted 'on police report' or 'otherwise than on police report'. Ironically, the procedure for trial of cases instituted 'on police report' would be favourable to the accused,- if at all the Magistrate adopts it in this case-as the accused would be entitled to get copies of the statements recorded during investigation as a matter of right, which they would not be entitled to get in a case instituted 'on complaint'. In the later case, they would get only a copy of the complaint-i.e. the report in this case- and will have to make a prayer to the Magistrate, for obtaining copies of the statements recorded during investigation.

8. Interestingly, the order summoning the accused was passed on 4.2.2014. On 26.2.2014 the petitioner appeared before the Magistrate, applied for bail and were duly granted bail. The case was then adjourned from time to time and was fixed on 6.4.2016 for framing of charge. Thereafter, the case was transferred to another court and when it was taken up on 6.6.2016, as the petitioners were not present before the court, non-bailable warrants of arrest were issued against the petitioners. It appears that thereafter, the petitioners did not remain present before the court and again non-bailable warrants of arrest have been issued. Now, interestingly, the petitioners had not taken any objections to the order issuing process, but had duly obeyed the same by remaining present before the court.The petitioners had shown their readiness to proceed with the trial without raising any contentions about the correctness of the order issuing process. It is only when the non-bailable warrants of arrest were issued, it dawned upon the petitioners that they had been wrongly summoned. The petitioners then imagined that they had been summoned on a 'police report' or 'charge-sheet' and not on a 'complaint'. Apart from the fact that there is no basis for this imagination, it is rather interesting that till the non-bailable warrants were issued, they had not bothered about it.

9. There is no substance in the petition.

10. When the petition was being rejected, the learned counsel for the petitioners made some submissions with respect to an order issuing non-bailable warrants of arrest against the petitioners. Admittedly, the warrants have been issued because of the non-appearance of the petitioners before the court on a given date. If the contention of the petitioners is that there was justification for their non-appearance before the Magistrate on that date, that justification can be put forth before the Magistrate and a prayer for cancellation of non-bailable warrants of arrest, can be made.

11. The petition is rejected.

THE HON'BLE SUDHIR AGARWAL, J.

Writ B No.- 2859 Of 2016

Sriram & Ors. ...Petitioners

Versus

Deputy Director of Consolidation & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
A.K. Rai, S.N. Singh, Vishnu Kumar Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.P. Srivastava, S.C., V.K. Singh

Civil law — Hindu Law—"joint family"—"joint family property"—"self-acquired property"—"presumption"—"burden"—"joint family nucleus"—"nucleus"—"member of joint family"—"property purchased in the name of one member"—"onus shifts"—"coparcenary property"—"sufficient nucleus"—"acquired without the aid of joint family property/fund"—"Khata No. 9"—"mutation"—"name of only Shiv Nandan recorded"—"no evidence"—"partly allowed"—"impugned order set aside"—"orders restored and confirmed".

Sri Singh has confined his relief only in respect to Khata No. 9 and submitted that it was admittedly purchased only in the name of Shiv Nandan though he was member of joint family but there was no evidence to show that the aforesaid property was purchased as joint family property and this is fortified from the fact that in mutation, despite there were two brothers alive at that time, i.e., Shiv Nandan and Gopal, but in the revenue record, name of only Shiv Nandan was recorded. No evidence was adduced by respondents with respect to factum that Khata No. 9 was purchased by Shiv Nandan from the funds of joint family.(Para-2)

Learned counsel for respondents, however, submitted that since Shiv Nandan was admittedly member of a joint family, therefore, presumption lies that Khata No. 9 was purchased by Shiv Nandan from funds of joint family.(Para-3)

Held:(Paras 15-17)
1. In D.S. Lakshmaiah and Anr. Vs. L. Balasubramanyam and Anr. (2003) 10 SCC 310, in para 18 of the judgment the Court, after a retrospect of various earlier decisions, said:
"18. The legal principle, therefore, is that there is no presumption of a property being joint family property only on account of existence of a joint Hindu family. The one who asserts has to prove that the property is a joint family property. If, however, the person so asserting proves that there was nucleus with which the joint family property could be acquired, there would be presumption of the property being joint and the onus would shift on the person who claims it to be self-acquired property to prove that he purchased the property with his own funds and not out of joint family nucleus that was available." (emphasis added)

2.Following the above authorities, this Court has already taken the same view Second Appeal No. 336 of 2013 (Harey Krishna Agrawal And Others Vs. Jairaj Krishna (Dead) And Others) and others decided on 30.05.2013, Second Appeal No. 935 of 1995 (Kunj Bihari & Others

3.In view of above, the writ petition is partly allowed. Impugned order dated 30.11.1970 passed by Deputy Director of Consolidation so far as it relates to Khata No. 9 allotting shares to the respondents therein is hereby set aside and orders passed by Assistant Settlement Officer (Consolidation) and Consolidation Officer, so far as they relate to Khata No. 9, are hereby restored and confirmed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vishnu Kumar Singh, Advocate for petitioner and Sri M.N. Singh, Advocate, for respondent 14 (since deceased and substituted by legal heirs).

2. Sri Singh has confined his relief only in respect to Khata No. 9 and submitted that it was admittedly purchased only in the name of Shiv Nandan though he was member of joint family but there was no evidence to show that the aforesaid property was purchased as joint family property and this is fortified from the fact that in mutation, despite there were two brothers alive at that time, i.e., Shiv Nandan and Gopal, but in the revenue record, name of only Shiv Nandan was recorded. No evidence was adduced by respondents with respect to factum that Khata No. 9 was purchased by Shiv Nandan from the funds of joint family.

3. Learned counsel for respondents, however, submitted that since Shiv Nandan was admittedly member of a joint family, therefore, presumption lies that Khata No. 9 was purchased by Shiv Nandan from funds of joint family.

4. However, I find no force in the submission inasmuch there is no such presumption in law.

5. In Appalaswami Vs. Suryanarayanamurti and Ors., AIR 1947 PC 189, it was held that Hindu law is very clear. Proof of existence of a joint family does not lead to the presumption that property held by any member of family is joint. The burden rests upon one who asserts that an item of property is joint, to establish that fact. But where it is established that the family possessed some joint property which, from its nature and relative value, may have formed the nucleus, from which property in question may have been acquired, the burden shifts to the party alleging self-acquisition, to establish affirmatively that the property was acquired without the aid of joint family property/fund.

6. Again in Srinivas Krishnarao Kango Vs. Narayan Devji Kango AIR 1954 SC 379, it was held that proof of existence of a joint family does not lead to the presumption that property held by any member of family is joint. The burden rests upon anyone asserting that any item of property is joint to establish the fact. But where it is established that the family possessed some joint property which form its nature and relative value, may have formed the nucleus, from which property in question may have been acquired, the burden shifts to the party alleging self-acquisition to establish affirmatively that the property was acquired without the aid of joint family property.

7. The legal proposition which emerges therefrom is that initial burden is on the person who claims that it is joint family property but after initial burden is discharged, the burden shifts to the party claiming that the property was self acquired and without the aid of joint family property/fund.

8. In Rukhmabai Vs. Lala Laxminarayan AIR 1960 SC 335, the Court said:

"There is a presumption in Hindu Law that a family is joint. There can be a division in status among the members of a joint Hindu family by refinement of shares which is technically called "division in status", or an actual division among them by allotment of specific property to each one of them which is described as "division by metes and bounds". A member need. not receive any share in the joint estate but may renounce his interest therein, his renunciation merely extinguishes his interest in the estate but does not affect the status of the remaining members vis- a-vis the family property, A division in status can be effected by an unambiguous declaration to become divided from the others and that intention can be expressed by any process. Though prima facie a document clearly expressing the intention to divide brings about a division in status, it is open to a party to prove that the said document was a sham or a nominal one not intended to be acted upon but was conceived and executed for an ulterior purpose. But there is no presumption that any property, whether movable or immovable, held by a member of, a joint Hindu family, is joint family property. The burden lies upon the person who asserts that a particular property is joint family property. to establish that fact. But if he proves that there was sufficient joint family nucleus from and out of which the said property could have been acquired, the burden shifts to the member of the family setting up the claim that it is his personal property…" (emphasis added)

9. In Achuthan Nair v. Chinnammu Amma and Ors. AIR 1966 SC 411, their Lordships said:

"Under Hindu law, when a property stands in the name of a member of a joint family, it is incumbent upon those asserting that it is a joint family property to establish it. When it is proved or admitted that a family possessed sufficient nucleus with the aid of which the member might have made the acquisition, the law raises a presumption that it is a joint family property and the onus is shifted to the individual member to establish that the property was acquired by him without the aid of the said nucleus. This is a well settled proposition of law."

10. In Mudi Gowda Gowdappa Sankh Vs. Ram Chandra Ravagowda Sankh (1969) 1 SCC 386, the Court noticed the observation of Sir John Beaumont in Appalaswami (supra) and reiterated that burden of proving that any particular property is joint family property, in the first instance, is, upon the person who claims it as coparcenary property. But, if possession of a nucleus of the joint family property is either admitted or proved, any acquisition made by a member of joint family is presumed to be joint family property. This is however, subject to the limitation that the joint family property must be such as with its aid the property in question could have been acquired. It is only after possession of an adequate nucleus is shown, that the onus shifts on to the person who claims the property as self acquisition to affirmatively make out that the property was acquired without any aid from the family estate.

11. In Baikuntha Nath Paramanik Vs. Sashi Bhusan Pramanik and Ors. (1973) 2 SCC 334, this Court again held, when a joint family is found to be in possession of nucleus sufficient to make the impugned acquisitions, then a presumption arises that the acquisitions standing in the names of the person who were in the management of the family properties, are family acquisitions.

12. In Bhagwant P. Sulakhe Vs. Digambar Gopal Sulakhe AIR 1986 SC 79, the Court observed that character of any joint family property does not change with the severance of status of joint family and a joint family property continues to retain its joint family character so long as the joint family property is in existence and is not partitioned amongst the co-sharers. By a unilateral act it is not open to any member of joint family to convert any joint family property into his personal property.

13. In Surendra Kumar Vs. Phoolchand (1996) 2 SCC 491, the Court said:

"It is no doubt true that there is no presumption that a family because it is joint possessed joint property and therefore the person alleging the property to be joint has to establish that the family was possessed of some property with the income of which the property could have been acquired. But such a presumption is a presumption of fact which can be rebutted."

14. In Appasaheb Peerappa Chandgade Vs. Devendra Peerappa Chandgade (2007) 1 SCC 521, the Court said:

"... there is no presumption of a joint Hindu family but on the evidence if it is established that the property was joint Hindu family property and the other properties were acquired out of that nucleus, if the initial burden is discharged by the person who claims joint Hindu family, then the burden shifts to the party alleging self-acquisition to establish affirmatively that the property was acquired without the aid of the joint family property by cogent and necessary evidence."

15. In D.S. Lakshmaiah and Anr. Vs. L. Balasubramanyam and Anr. (2003) 10 SCC 310, in para 18 of the judgment the Court, after a retrospect of various earlier decisions, said:

"18. The legal principle, therefore, is that there is no presumption of a property being joint family property only on account of existence of a joint Hindu family. The one who asserts has to prove that the property is a joint family property*. If, however, the person so asserting proves that there was nucleus with which the joint family property could be acquired, there would be presumption of the property being joint and the onus would shift on the person who claims it to be self-acquired property to prove that he purchased the property with his own funds and not out of joint family nucleus that was available." (emphasis added)*

16. Following the above authorities, this Court has already taken the same view Second Appeal No. 336 of 2013 (Harey Krishna Agrawal And Others Vs. Jairaj Krishna (Dead) And Others) and others decided on 30.05.2013, Second Appeal No. 935 of 1995 (Kunj Bihari & Others Vs. Ganga Sahai Pandey & others) decided on 03.07.2013 and First Appeal No. 629 of 2005 (Amar Nath Kapoor And Others. Vs. Krishna Gopal Kapoor And Others) decided on 25.05.2016 and learned counsel for respondents could not persuade this Court to take a different view.

17. In view of above, the writ petition is partly allowed. Impugned order dated 30.11.1970 passed by Deputy Director of Consolidation so far as it relates to Khata No. 9 allotting shares to the respondents therein is hereby set aside and orders passed by Assistant Settlement Officer (Consolidation) and Consolidation Officer, so far as they relate to Khata No. 9, are hereby restored and confirmed.

Land Acquisition—Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965—Section 49—modify—annul—scheme—vested in the State—possession of acquired land—fraud—misrepresentation—recall/revoke/cancel—no power of review—administrative power—once land is vested—could not have been divested—reverted to erstwhile owners—notification dated 28.1.2009—notification dated 7.2.2009—urgency—public purpose—all three writ petitions lack merits and are dismissed

Since all these writ petitions relate to same scheme notified by Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad (hereinafter referred to as "UPAEVP") and relate to land acquired under same acquisition notifications dated 2.8.1997 and 4.12.1997, hence have been heard together and are being decided by this common judgment.(Para 2)

Held:(Paras 38-43)
1.Counsel for petitioners have referred to a number of authorities on the question that quasi-judicial or judicial power in absence of any provision for review would not be permissible. Aforesaid authorities relied on behalf of learned counsel for petitioners are Patel Narshi Thakershi and others vs. Shri Pradyumansinghji Arjunsinghji 1971(3) SCC 844;State of Bihar vs. D.N. Ganguly & others AIR 1958 SC 1018;Raghunath Thaku r vs. State of Bihar and others (1989) 1 SCC 229;State of Kerala and others vs. K.G. Madhavan Pillai and others (1988) 4 SCC 669;H.C. Suman and another vs. Rehabilitation Ministry Employees' Cooperative House Building Society Ltd., New Delhi and others (1991) 4 SCC 485; Indian National Congress(I) vs. Institute of Social Welfare 2002 AIR(SC)
2158; Mansoor Khan and others vs. State of U.P. and others (1973) 2 SCC 227 and Harbhajan Singh vs. Karam Singh and others AIR 1966 SC 641.

2.We have examined said authorities and have no quarrel with exposition of law laid down, rather it is binding on us. We find that such proposition has no application in case in hand. Firstly, as we have already said, earlier notification dated 28.1.2009 was result of fraud and misrepresentation, hence did not prevent State Government from cancelling the same and secondly power of modification or annulling a scheme under Section 49 is not a quasijudicial power but an administrative power.

3.We may also notice here that as judgment of this Court dated 11.5.2004 did prevail after dismissal by Supreme Court and it has been admitted by Dheeraj Singh in writ-C No.7897 of 2009, still these facts have not been brought before State Government as a result thereof notification dated 28.1.2009 got issued and the same now has rightly been revoked/cancelled.

4.We, therefore, find no legal or factual infirmity in notification dated 7.2.2009. Land in khasra no. 254 area 2.730 Hectare once vested in the State, could not have been divested or reverted to erstwhile owners and hence relief otherwise sought by petitioners cannot be granted.All three writ petitions lack merits and are dismissed. However, there shall be no order as to costs learned counsel for petitioner in Writ-C No. 8360 of 2009, learned Standing Counsel for State of U.P. and Sri Madan Mohan, learned counsel for Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad.

2. Since all these writ petitions relate to same scheme notified by Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad (hereinafter referred to as "UPAEVP") and relate to land acquired under same acquisition notifications dated 2.8.1997 and 4.12.1997, hence have been heard together and are being decided by this common judgment.

3. First of all, we proceed to deal with writ petition no. 7897 of 2009. Petitioner Dheeraj Singh has filed this writ petition under Article 226 of Constitution of India, assailing Notification dated 7.2.2009 issued by State Government cancelling its earlier Notification dated 28.1.2009 in respect of Khasra no. 254 area 2.730 Hectare situated at Village Nawikala, District Saharanpur. Aforesaid land was denotified by Notification dated 28.1.2009 but by means of impugned notification dated 7.2.2009 earlier notification dated 28.1.2009 has been cancelled/revoked.

4. Facts giving rise to present dispute are as under:-

5. UPAEVP proposed and approved a Housing and Improvement Scheme namely, "Delhi-Road Land Development and Residential Scheme No.8 Saharanpur." A notification dated 17.7.1997 under Section 28 of Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965(hereinafter referred to as "UP Act, 1965) was published in U.P. Gazette dated 2.8.1997, inviting objections from concerned land owners whose land was proposed to be acquired. Individual notices were also issued to all concerned land owners. Pursuant thereto, various persons filed objections. They were heard on 11th and 12th of December, 1997 before Planning Committee who submitted a report. Since acquisition of land was urgent, UPAEVP got another notification dated 11.11.1999 published in the Gazette dated 4.12.1999 under Section 32(1) of UP Act, 1965 stating that U.P. Government has sanctioned scheme in exercise of power under Section 31(2) of UP Act, 1965. State Government also issued notice dated 4.1.2000 referring to notification issued under Section 32(1) and in exercise of power under Section 17(1) authorised Collector, Saharanpur to take possession of acquired land within 15 days from the date of notice under Section 9 of Land Acquisition Act, 1894(hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1894").

6. State Government also issued order dated 25.1.2000 authorising Collector under Section 7 of Act, 1894 to take order for acquisition of land. Individual notices under Section 9 of Act, 1894 to all recorded tenure holders were issued on 9.11.2001 and thereafter vide possession memo dated 24.4.2002 possession of acquired land was taken which included disputed land also i.e. khasra no. 254 area 2.730 Hectare.

7. We may point out that khasra no. 254 was mentioned as 254/1 though area was mentioned as 2.730 Hectare which is the area of disputed land. Hence no substantial difference has been shown for mention of khasra no. 254/1 instead of khasra no. 254.

8. Earlier Petitioner Dheeraj Singh alongwith 54 others filed Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 17094 of 2002 wherein an interim order dated 25.4,2002 was passed that petitioners shall not be dispossessed from the land, if they are still in possession.

9. UPAEVP contested aforesaid writ petition and filed a detailed counter affidavit in which all aforesaid facts were stated and we have also taken aforesaid facts from the record of writ petition no. 17094 of 2002.

10. Matter was heard by this Court and vide judgment dated 11.5.2004 above writ petition was dismissed. Relevant finding recorded by Court, necessary for our consideration is reproduced as under:-

"On the facts of the case we find no merit in this petition. The facts of the case have already been stated above. The land was acquired after due notification under Section 28 and 32 of the U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam and notices were issued to the landholders including the petitioners inviting objections and the objections were duly considered by the Niyojan Samiti which was delegated power under Section 12 read with Rules of 1968. The State Government vide notification dated 11.11.1999 sanctioned the scheme and thereafter the notification under Section 32 was issued on 4.12.1999. Notice for possession under Section 9 was given on 9.11.2001 and the possession of the land was taken on 24.4.2002 vide possession memo Annexure C.A. 8. The Parishad has deposited the estimated compensation vide Annexure C.A.9.

As regards the contention that in view of Section 11-A of the Land Acquisition Act the acquisition proceedings have lapsed it is now well settled that Section 11 A does not apply to proceedings under the U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam vide Patharoo vs. U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad, 2002(5) AWC 3665 which has been followed by a Division Bench of this Court in writ petition no. 13786 of 2002, Ram Jeevan vs. Secretary, U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad decided on 15.3.2004. In the said decisions it has been held that the Adhiniyam is a self contained code in itself and therefore the amended provisions of the Land Acquisition Act are not applicable. Moreover, even otherwise Section 11-A does not apply because possession has been taken by the respondents as per possession memo dated 24.4.2002 (Annexure C.A.8) vide Kaloo Ram vs. State of U.P., writ petition no. 27317 of 2001 decided on 5.3.2004. In Kaloo Ram's case(supra) it was also held (following several Supreme Court decisions) that urgency is a matter for the subjective satisfaction of the government.

As regards the submission that the Parishad is not competent to acquire the land within the notified are of Saharanpur Development Authority without the prior permission of the State Government, in our opinion there is no merit in this submission. In fact the State Government granted sanction on 11.11.1999. This point is covered against the petitioner by the decision of the Supreme Court in U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad vs. Friends Cooperative Society Ltd, AIR 1996 SC 114 and U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad vs. Ram Kishan, AIR 2002 SC 1056. It has been held therein that the approval of the scheme by the State Government at any stage is sufficient and that prior approval is not necessary and once approval is granted all previous acts and actions get validated.

It has been repeatedly held by the Supreme Court and this Court that acquisition for housing purpose is an urgent matter and is for a public purpose vide Sarva Hitkari Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd. vs. State of U.P., writ petition no. 23552 of 1999 decided on 5.3.2004, State of U.P. v. Pista Devi, AIR 1986 S.C. 2025, etc.

Thus there is no force in this writ petition and it is dismissed."

11. The aforesaid acquisition notifications of UPAEVP were also challenged in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 14230 of 2002 filed by four land owners namely, Shiv Kumar son of Atar Singh, Ashok Kumar son of Sri Girwar Singh, Ashok Kumar son of Krishan Lal Kapil and Rajeev Kumar son of Raj Pal Singh. This writ petition was also dismissed in terms of judgment dated 11.5.2004 passed in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 17094 of 2002.

12. We may notice here that in Writ-C No. 26519 of 2009 there are three petitioners Bhanwar Singh, Mahendra Singh and Pahal Singh and they were also party in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 17094 of 2002 impleaded as petitioners 19,20 and 21. Similarly, in third petition namely, Writ-C No. 8360 of 2009 with which we are concerned here, filed by Shesh Raj Singh, he was also impleaded as petitioner No. 4 in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 17094 of 2002.

13. Thus, all these petitioners in three writ petitions, with which we are concerned, are those who earlier challenged acquisition notifications before this Court but failed. They are all co-sharers in khasra no. 254 area 2.730 Hectare.

14. After having lost their challenge to acquisition proceedings, these petitioners, it appears, made representations to State Government for exempting land of khasra no. 254 area 2.730 Hectare. Representation made by Dheeraj Singh addressed to the Chief Minister is dated 12.9.2004 while representation made by Shesh Raj Singh is undated, copy whereof is annexed as annexure 8 to Writ-C No. 8360 of 2009.

15. Government sought report from Collector, Saharanpur. One Dr. Abha Gupta, Additional Collector(Land Acquisition) Avas, Meerut sent a letter dated 18.1.2005 stating that possession of acquired land was transferred to UPAEVP on 24.4.2002. However, she has further said that Amin has submitted a subsequent report dated 24.12.2004 stating that UPAEVP has not taken possession on the spot of khasra no. 254. Said official stated in her letter dated 18.1.2005 that khasra no. 254 being 'Abadi' ought not to have been included in acquisition notifications. State Government relying on aforesaid letter dated 18.1.2005, issued a notification, in purported exercise of power under Section 49 of UP Act, 1965, and exempted khasra no. 254 (area 2.730 Hectare) from aforesaid scheme.

16. Thereafter UPAEVP woke up and Additional Housing Commissioner(Land) sent a letter dated 16.1.2009 to State Government pointing out that khasra 254 was already taken possession and land had vested in State . Therefore, there was no occasion to exempt it from acquisition under Section 49(1) and even otherwise, if aforesaid land is excluded, it will cause serious hindrance and obstruction in development of acquired land and would also create some other problems. Pursuant to aforesaid facts placed by UPAEVP before State Government, notification dated 7.2.2009 has been issued.

17. Learned counsel for petitioner submitted that petitioner's land was already exempted from acquisition vide notification dated 28.1.2009, hence said exemption could not have been withdrawn by subsequent notification dated 7.2.2009; and that too without any opportunity to petitioners. It is also said that it amounts to review of earlier order which is not permissible since there is no power of review.

18. We find that in representation dated 12.9.2004 (Annexure-7 to the counter affidavit), petitioner Dheraj Singh had not said anything regarding writ petition no. 17094 of 2002. Representation of Shesh Raj Singh is also similarly worded and did not disclose anything about challenge to acquisition proceedings and dismissal of writ petition No. 17094 of 2002 by this Court affirming said acquisition.

19. Even letter dated 18.1.2005 sent by Dr. Abha Gupta, Additional Collector(Land Acquisition), Avas, Meerut is completely silent over judicial proceedings wherein acquisition notifications were challenged and upheld by this Court. She has also failed to notice herself and informed State Government that possession of entire land including khasra 254 measuring 2.730 Hectare was taken in possession on 24.4.2002 and transferred to UPAEVP and this was a stand taken by her which was accepted and thereafter writ petition was decided. She blindly and mechanically followed alleged Amin's report dated 24.12.2004.

20. We find nothing on record to show as to on what basis Amin submitted said report and whether he made spot visit under notice to officials of UPAEVP. From perusal of record what we find is that by playing fraud and misrepresentation in respect to actual state of affairs vis-a-vis disputed acquired land, a coordinated effort in collusion was made by petitioner and some officials as a result whereof State Government was kept in dark and for such misrepresentation, the State was persuaded to pass order under Section 49 of UP Act,1965 to exempt khasra no.254 from acquisition.

21. Submission that there is no power of review and therefore once a land is exempted, State Government could not have revoked such order, has no force for the reason that it is well established that fraud vitiates anything and any order which has been obtained on account of fraud or misrepresentation cannot deprive authorities concerned to recall, revoke or cancel such order even if there is no power of review.

22. In S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu (dead) by LRs. V. Jagannath (dead) by LRs. & Ors. (1994) 1 SCC 1, the Apex Court had an occasion to consider the doctrine of fraud and the effect thereof on the order obtained by a party. In that case, one A by a registered deed, relinquished all his rights in the suit property in favour of C who sold the property to B. Without disclosing that fact, A filed a suit for possession against B and obtained preliminary decree. During the pendency of an application for final decree, B came to know about the fact of release deed by A in favour of C. He, therefore, contended that the decree was obtained by playing fraud on the court and was a nullity. Trial court upheld the contention and dismissed application for final decree. High Court, however, set aside the order of the trial court, observing that "there was no legal duty cast upon the plaintiff to come to court with a true case and prove it by true evidence". B approached the Apex Court. Allowing the appeal, setting aside the judgment of the High Court and describing the observations of the High Court as 'wholly perverse', the Apex Court observed as under:

"The courts of law are meant for imparting justice between the parties. One who comes to the court, must come with clean-hands. We are constrained to say that more often than not, process of the court is being abused. Property-grabbers, tax- evaders, bank-loan-dodgers and other unscrupulous persons from all walks of life find the court - process a convenient lever to retain the illegal-gains indefinitely. We have no hesitation to say that a person, who's case is based on falsehood, has no right to approach the court. He can be summarily thrown out at any stage of the litigation".

23. In United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Rajendra Singh & others (2000) 3 SCC 581 the Apex Court observed as under:

"3. Fraud and justice never dwell together. (Frans et jus nunquam cohabitant) is a pristine maxim which has never lost its temper over al these centuries. Lord Denning observed in a language without equivocation that "no Judgment of a Court, no order of Minister can be allowed to stand if it has been obtained by fraud, for, fraud unravels everything" (Lazarus Estate Ltd. Vs. Beasley 1956 (1)QB.702."

24. This is what has been referred to and followed by this Court in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. No. 14824 of 1990 (Shamsuddin and others Vs. Addl. District Judge, Azamgarh) decided on 31.10.2011.

25. Since here is a case where proceedings with respect to acquisition and possession of land having already completed and land already vested in State, are such facts, which were neither mentioned in alleged representation by petitioners nor by Additional Collector(Land Acquisition), Avas, Meerut in her letter dated 18.1.2005. We find that notification dated 28.1.2009 was passed on account of misrepresentation of facts and also fraud played upon State Government and there was no dearth of power with State Government to recall/revoke/cancel such an order. Notification dated 7.2.2009, therefore, cannot be said to be invalid for that reason.

26. There are two more aspects. As already held, acquisition proceedings were completed and acquired land had vested in the State. Once land is vested, it is impermissible for the State to divest and return the land to land owners from whom it was acquired. This question has been considered in one of the earlier judgments in LT. Governor of Himachal Pradesh and Another vs. Sri Avinash Sharma 1970(2) SCC 149 where in para 8 Court has said as under:-

"8. ..... It is clearly implicit in the observations that after possession has been taken pursuant to a notification under Section 17(1) the land is vested in the Government, and the notification cannot be cancelled under Section 21 of the General Clauses Act, nor can the notification be withdrawn in exercise of the powers under Section 48 of the Land Acquisition Act. Any other view would enable the State Government to circumvent the specific provision by relying upon a general power. When possession of the land is taken under Section 17(1), the land vests in the Government. There is no provision by which land statutorily vested in the Government reverts to the original owner by mere cancellation of the notification."

27. Very recently this aspect has been considered in Laxmi Devi vs. State of Bihar and others (2015) 10 SCC 241 and it has been observed in paragraph 20 of judgment "This Court has continuously held that once land has vested in the State, the question of re-vesting its possession in the erstwhile landowners is no longer available as an option to the State." Even Section 48 of Act, 1894 could not have been resorted for reverting land to petitioners.

28. Next aspect is that such exemption under Section 49 of Act, 1965 is also impermissible. Section 49 of Act 1965 reads as under:-

"Power of State Government to call for the records of the Board and to modify or annual any scheme:

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, the State Government may at any time call for and examine the records of the Board relating to any housing or improvement scheme which is proposed to be or has been framed by the Board or which is being executed by it, and modify, annual or remit for reconsideration to the Board any such scheme or direct that the scheme be executed with such modification as may be specified, or issue such other directions as it may deem fit:

Provided that if any modification involves acquisition, otherwise than by agreement, of any land or building not proposed to be acquired in the original scheme, or if owing to any modifications any land not previously liable under the original scheme to payment of betterment fee becomes liable to such payment, the modification shall not be made without giving an opportunity to the persons so affected of making objections against the proposed modification.

(2) The State Government may stay the execution of any such scheme pending the passing of orders under sub-section (1).

(3) Any modification of a scheme under sub-section (1) shall be notified in the Gazette and shall have effect from the date of such notification, so, however, that any modification shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under the original scheme."

29. Scheme of Act 1965 shows that U.P.A.E.V.P, amongst its various functions, one function is to frame and execute Housing and Improvement Scheme and other projects. Functions of U.P.A.E.V.P

are detailed in Section 15 of Act 1965. Mode of framing scheme is provided in Section 16 which says that Board may frame scheme, of its motion or at the instance of a local authority but when it is so directed by State Government, shall frame the scheme, meaning thereby that of its motion or at the instance of local authority, U.P.A.E.V.P has a discretion to frame a housing or improvement scheme but when directed by State Government it is an under an obligation to frame the same.

30. When a local authority requires Board to frame and execute housing or improvement scheme, sub Section (2) of Section 16 empowers U.P.A.E.V.P to refuse to frame and execute such scheme if it is satisfied that it is unnecessary or not feasible or that funds at its disposal do not permit such scheme. Constituents of housing or improvement scheme are detailed in Section 18.

31. Once a scheme is framed, for the purpose of its execution, if acquisition of land is necessary, at that stage procedure prescribed under Sections 28 to 32 would come into picture.

32. The effect of notifications under Section 28 read with Section 32 can further be examined in the light of Section 55 read with Schedule. Section 55 reads as under:-

"Power to acquire land- (1) Any land or any interest therein required by the Board for any of the purposes of this Act, may be acquired under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1984 (Act No. 1 of 1984), as amended in its application to Uttar Pradesh, which for this purpose shall be subject to the modifications specified in the Schedule to this Act.

(2) If any land in respect of which betterment fee has been levied under this Act is subsequently required for any of the purposes of this Act, such levy shall not be deemed to prevent the acquisition of land under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (Act No. 1 of 1894)."

33. Clause 2 of Schedule explains effect of notice under Section 28 and 32. Besides other sections, it makes clear with notifications under Section 28 and 32 shall have the same effect as that would have been on issuance of notifications under Section 4(1) and 6 of Act 1894. Clause 2 of Schedule is reproduced as under:-

*"2. Effect of notices under this Act:-

(1) The first publication, in the officeial Gazette, of a notice of any housing or improvement scheme under Section 28 or under clause (a) of sub section (3) of Section 31 of the Act shall be substituted for and have, in relation to any land proposed to be acquired under the scheme, the same effect as publication in the official Gazette, and in the locality, of a notification under sub-section (1) of Section 4 of the said Act, except where a notificaion under Section 4 or a declaration under Section 6 of the said Act has prviously been made and is still in force, and the provisions of Secion 5-A of the Said Act shall be inapplicable in the case of such land.

(2) The issue of a notice under clause (c) of sub-section (3) of Section 23 of this Act in the case of land acquired under a Bhavi Sarak Yojana and the publication of a notification under subsection (1) or, or as the case may be, under sub-section (4) of Section 32 of this Act in the case of land acquired under any other housing or improvement scheme under this Act shall be substituted for and have the same effect as a declaration by the State Government under section 6 of the Said Act, unless a declaration under the last mentioned Section has previously been made and is still in force.

(3) In a case to which sub-paragraph (1) or sub-paragraph (2) applied, a notification under sub-section (2) of Section 33 or under sub-section (3) of Section 49 of this Act involving alteration of the extent of the land proposed to be acquired shall have the effect of correspondingly modifying the notification under sub-section (1) of Section 4 and the declaration under Section 6 of the said, Act so, however that any such modification shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under the original notification or declaration. (emphasis added)

34. Sub-clause (3) of Clause 2 also explains and makes it clear that, an alteration if made by issuing notification under Section 49 (3) which has effect of alteration of the extent of land proposed to be acquired, it will have the effect of correspondingly modifying notifications under sub-section (1) of Section 4 and declaration under Section 6 of Act 1894, but such modification shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under the original notification or declaration.

35. Reading together the aforesaid provisions it is clear that whatever has already been done in respect to acquisition, that cannot be undone. Further when possession of land is taken by State and transferred to U.P.A.E.V.P, Schedule, clause 4, inserting Section 17A in Act 1894 provides for vesting of land in UPAEVP as is evident from the following.

"17-A. Transfer to land to Board*. - In every case referred to in Section 16 or Section 17, the collector shall upon payment of the cost of acquisition make over charge of the land to the Housing Commissioner, or an officer authorized in this behalf under the Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965, and the land shall, thereupon vest in the Board subject to the liability fo the Board to pay any further costs which may be incurred on account of its acquisition."*

36. Considering the entire scheme of statute it is clear that a scheme framed and under execution can be modified, annulled and remitted for reconsideration to U.P.A.E.V.P by State but that will not have the effect of re-writing events which have already occurred and if certain interests and rights have transferred from one person to another, the same would not stand nullified. The effect of notification under Section 49 (1) would be, moreover, prospective only and not retrospective. The land once taken and vested in State and the Board, will not stand divested and notification under Section 49 cannot have such effect.

37. Interpreting provisions of UP Act, 1965 as also Section 49 similar controversy has also been examined by this Court in Writ-C No. 5895 of 2010 Vibhuti Singh Yadav & Another vs. State of U.P. & others decided on 4.5.2016 and there also this Court has taken similar view by observing in paragraphs 24 and 25 as under:-

"24. Learned counsel appearing for respondents could not show any provision or binding authority to this Court to support their stand that once scheme is annulled by issuing notification under Section 49 of Act 1965, all exercise done earlier including vesting of land in State etc. would stand nullified and the land would stand reverted to erstwhile owners.

25. We have no hesitation on observing that once land is vested in State it shall not be divested and reverted to erstwhile owners. Hence right of owners of acquired land to claim compensation under the award already given would subsist and is enforceable in law."

38. Counsel for petitioners have referred to a number of authorities on the question that quasi-judicial or judicial power in absence of any provision for review would not be permissible. Aforesaid authorities relied on behalf of learned counsel for petitioners are Patel Narshi Thakershi and others vs. Shri Pradyumansinghji Arjunsinghji 1971(3) SCC 844;State of Bihar vs. D.N. Ganguly & others AIR 1958 SC 1018;Raghunath Thakur vs. State of Bihar and others (1989) 1 SCC 229;State of Kerala and others vs. K.G. Madhavan Pillai and others (1988) 4 SCC 669;H.C. Suman and another vs. Rehabilitation Ministry Employees' Cooperative House Building Society Ltd., New Delhi and others (1991) 4 SCC 485; Indian National Congress(I) vs. Institute of Social Welfare 2002 AIR(SC) 2158; Mansoor Khan and others vs. State of U.P. and others (1973) 2 SCC 227 and Harbhajan Singh vs. Karam Singh and others AIR 1966 SC 641.

39. We have examined said authorities and have no quarrel with exposition of law laid down, rather it is binding on us. We find that such proposition has no application in case in hand. Firstly, as we have already said, earlier notification dated 28.1.2009 was result of fraud and misrepresentation, hence did not prevent State Government from cancelling the same and secondly power of modification or annulling a scheme under Section 49 is not a quasi-judicial power but an administrative power.

40. We may also notice here that as judgment of this Court dated 11.5.2004 did prevail after dismissal by Supreme Court and it has been admitted by Dheeraj Singh in writ-C No.7897 of 2009, still these facts have not been brought before State Government as a result thereof notification dated 28.1.2009 got issued and the same now has rightly been revoked/cancelled.

41. We, therefore, find no legal or factual infirmity in notification dated 7.2.2009. Land in khasra no. 254 area 2.730 Hectare once vested in the State, could not have been divested or reverted to erstwhile owners and hence relief otherwise sought by petitioners cannot be granted.

42. All three writ petitions lack merits and are dismissed.

43. However, there shall be no order as to costs.

Constitution of India—Article 226—Uttar Pradesh Awas Evam Vikas Parishad—E.W.S. scheme—hire purchase agreement—installments—penal interest—18% per annum—default in payment—demand notices—non-statutory contract—rights and obligations—governed only by the terms of the contract—writ petitions are not maintainable—Government Orders dated 19.11.1994 and 25.3.1995—superseded—liable to pay penal interest—demand notices do not suffer from any error of law—all the writ petitions fail and are dismissed.

In this group of petitions, the petitioners have challenged the demand notices for non-payment of the installment along with interest. For facility, the facts of Writ Petition Nos.45579 of 2010 and 14756 of 2016 are being taken into consideration.(Para 1)

The petitioners contend that they belong to the economically weaker section (E.W.S.) of the society. For settlement of the E.W.S. of the society, the Uttar Pradesh Awas Evam Vikas Parishad launched a scheme known as Bhumi Vikas Evam Grihastha Yojna No.7 in early eighties for allotment of small residential houses to the E.W.S. of the society. The allotments were made over a period of time from 1982 to 1998 and, in this fashion, approximately 2700 persons were given residential accommodation.(Para 2)

Under the scheme, the petitioners applied for allotment of E.W.S. residential houses. The respondents processed the papers and accepted the application of the petitioners and an allotment order was issued. A hire purchase agreement was entered into and possession of the house was given between the period 1982 to 1998. In the allotment letter as well as in the agreement, it was stipulated that the petitioners would be required to pay the installment over a period of 20 years in 240 installments. It was specifically stipulated that in case of late payment, penal interest would be charged @ 18% per annum.(Para 3)

The petitioners defaulted in payment of the installments, as a result demand notices were issued against which the petitioners have filed the present writ petition praying for the quashing of the demand.(Para 4)

The contention of the petitioners is basically that charging of penal interest is illegal, inasmuch as, by circulars dated 19.11.1994 and 25.3.1995 the respondents had waived the imposition of penal interest on late payment of the installments. It was thus contended that no penal interest could be charged.(Para 5)

In Writ Petition No.14756 of 2016, it was further contended that under the Regulations known as Uttar Pradesh Awas Evam Vikas Parishad Bhookhandon Tatha Bhawnon Ke Panjikaran Evam Pradeshan Sambandhi Viniyam, 1979, the allotment of residential accommodation for E.W.S. could only be given to those persons who had an annual income of Rs.8400/- or less and that installment @ Rs.240/- per month was only payable whereas in the allotment order the installment is much more than Rs.240/- per month and if the installment is calculated on a yearly basis, it would be more than Rs.8400/- per annum. It was thus contended that the terms and conditions contained in the allotment order and in the agreement was void and not binding upon the petitioners. It was contended that the protests in this regard was given to the authorities to revise the rate of installments, which was not done and, accordingly, the installments were not paid. The petitioners have also contended that imposition of penal interest was against the circulars issued by the respondents.(Para 6)

Held:(Paras 17-22)

1.The contention of the petitioners, that penal interest was waived by the respondents by circular dated 19.11.1994 and 25.3.1995, is patently misconceived. We find that the said circulars were modified by circular dated 22.7.1996, which provided that additional interest @ 3.5% per annum would be charged in addition to the simple interest. By another circular dated 22.9.1999, the Joint Housing Commissioner further clarified that the circular dated 22.7.1996 superseded the Government Orders dated 19.11.1994 and 25.11.1995 and that the earlier circulars of 1994 and 1995 became non-est.

2.In the light of the aforesaid, we are of the opinion that the contention of the petitioners that no penal interest was payable, is patently erroneous. The petitioners are liable to pay penal interest as per the terms and conditions of the allotment letter and agreement, which is deemed to have been modified by circular dated 27.7.1996.

3.The contention of the petitioners, that the installment and the rate of installment fixed in the allotment letter is in violation of the Regulations of 1979, is patently misconceived and cannot be considered at this belated stage. Admittedly, the petitioners accepted the allotment order and thereafter entered into an agreement and was given possession. Majority of the petitioners have not paid a single paisa since getting possession of the house. The petitioners have violated the terms and conditions of the allotment orders and the agreement with impunity and cannot turn around after 20 years, contending that the conditions so fixed in the allotment letter is violative of the Regulations of 1979.

4.We are of the opinion that once an agreement has been executed, the rights and obligations are governed only by the terms of the contract and not by the Regulations. The authorities cannot be compelled to remedy the breach of contract, if any, in terms of the Regulations. The decisions cited by the learned counsel for the petitioner in Anupam Sari Centre vs. Collector, Padrauna, Laws (All)-1998-1169, Iqbal Naseer Usmani vs. Central Bank of India, 2006 Law Suit (SC)45, Mange Ram and another vs. State of U.P. and others, 2010 Law Suit (All) 660, Mirza Javed Murtaza vs. U.P. Gowda, 1994-SCC-5-213 are not at all applicable to the facts and circumstances of the case and are clearly distinguishable.

5.In the light of the aforesaid, we do not find any error in the impugned demand notices. The demand notices do not suffer from any error of law.All the writ petitions fail and are dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Tarun Agarwala, J.)

1. In this group of petitions, the petitioners have challenged the demand notices for non-payment of the installment along with interest. For facility, the facts of Writ Petition Nos.45579 of 2010 and 14756 of 2016 are being taken into consideration.

2. The petitioners contend that they belong to the economically weaker section (E.W.S.) of the society. For settlement of the E.W.S. of the society, the Uttar Pradesh Awas Evam Vikas Parishad launched a scheme known as Bhumi Vikas Evam Grihastha Yojna No.7 in early eighties for allotment of small residential houses to the E.W.S. of the society. The allotments were made over a period of time from 1982 to 1998 and, in this fashion, approximately 2700 persons were given residential accommodation.

3. Under the scheme, the petitioners applied for allotment of E.W.S. residential houses. The respondents processed the papers and accepted the application of the petitioners and an allotment order was issued. A hire purchase agreement was entered into and possession of the house was given between the period 1982 to 1998. In the allotment letter as well as in the agreement, it was stipulated that the petitioners would be required to pay the installment over a period of 20 years in 240 installments. It was specifically stipulated that in case of late payment, penal interest would be charged @ 18% per annum.

4. The petitioners defaulted in payment of the installments, as a result demand notices were issued against which the petitioners have filed the present writ petition praying for the quashing of the demand.

5. The contention of the petitioners is basically that charging of penal interest is illegal, inasmuch as, by circulars dated 19.11.1994 and 25.3.1995 the respondents had waived the imposition of penal interest on late payment of the installments. It was thus contended that no penal interest could be charged.

6. In Writ Petition No.14756 of 2016, it was further contended that under the Regulations known as Uttar Pradesh Awas Evam Vikas Parishad Bhookhandon Tatha Bhawnon Ke Panjikaran Evam Pradeshan Sambandhi Viniyam, 1979, the allotment of residential accommodation for E.W.S. could only be given to those persons who had an annual income of Rs.8400/- or less and that installment @ Rs.240/- per month was only payable whereas in the allotment order the installment is much more than Rs.240/- per month and if the installment is calculated on a yearly basis, it would be more than Rs.8400/- per annum. It was thus contended that the terms and conditions contained in the allotment order and in the agreement was void and not binding upon the petitioners. It was contended that the protests in this regard was given to the authorities to revise the rate of installments, which was not done and, accordingly, the installments were not paid. The petitioners have also contended that imposition of penal interest was against the circulars issued by the respondents.

7. We have heard Sri O.P.Singh, the learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri R.K.Gupta and Sri Hari Om for the petitioners as well as Sri Madan Mohan Chaurasiya, Sri Srikant, Sri Navneet Chandra Tripathi, Sri Anand Prakash Srivastava, Sri Sunil Kumar Misra and Sri Rana, the learned counsel appearing for the U.P.Awas Evam Vikas Parishad.

8. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, we find that under the allotment letter and the agreement that was entered with U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad for purchasing the houses under the self financing scheme or hire purchase scheme, the petitioners were required to pay the amount as per the installment fixed. It was clearly stipulated that if the installment was not paid within the stipulated period penal interest would be charged @ 18% per annum. It was also indicated that if payments are not made then eviction proceeding could also be initiated.

9. The counter affidavit filed in various petitions reveals an interesting fact. Only a few of the petitioners have paid some installments and the majority of the petitioners have not paid a single installment from the time possession of the residential house was given. Possession has been given between the period 1982 to 1998 and till date installment has not been paid barring a few who have paid the amount as per the interim order of the Court.

10. The demand letters issued by the respondents requiring the petitioners to deposit the price of the house along with interest is as per the terms and conditions of the allotment order of the agreement entered between them. We find that the relationship between the petitioners and the Parishad is governed by a non-statutory contract.

11. There is a line of decisions to the effect that where a contract is entered between the State and the person aggrieved is a non-statutory contract in which case the rights are governed only by the terms of the contract for which no writ could be issued under Article 226 of the Constitution of India nor can the Writ Court compel the authority to remedy the breach of contract, if any, as held by this Court in Radha Krishna Agarwal vs. State of Bihar, AIR 1977 SC 1496, Premji Bhai Parmar vs. Delhi Development Authority, AIR 1980 SC 738 and DFO vs. Vishwanath Tea Company Ltd., AIR 1981 SC 1368.

12. In Bareilly Development Authority vs. Ajai Pal Singh, 1989 SC 1076, the Supreme Court held that even if the Bareilly Development Authority had the trappings of a State or came under the category of "other authority" for the purpose of Article 12 of the Constitution while determining the price of the house/flat constructed by it and the rate of monthly installments to be paid, the authority or its agent after entering into the field of ordinary contract acts purely in its executive capacity, which determines the rights and obligations of the parties inter-se. Such relationship between the parties was governed by a non-statutory contract.

13. In the light of the aforesaid, we are of the opinion that the writ petitions are not maintainable.

14. In Tarun Kumar Chabra vs. U.P. Avas Evam Vikash Parishad, Lucknow, 1990(2)UPLBEC 1330, a similar controversy arose with the Avas Evam Vikas Parishad with regard to the demand of 18% additional interest for the period of delay in making payment of installment. A Division Bench of this Court held that writ petition was not maintainable since the contract entered between the parties were non-statutory. The said decision is fully applicable in the instant case.

15. In Punjab Urban Planning and Development Authority and others vs. Raghunath Gupta, 2012 (8) SCC 1997, the Supreme Court held that once the offer was accepted and a condition was imposed, the authorities are bound by the terms and conditions and are liable to pay interest, including penal interest.

16. In Writ Petition No.8916 of 2011, Prem Lata vs. State of U.P. and another, decided on 28.2.2011, relating to the same controversy involved in the present writ petition with regard to allotment of the house under the E.W.S. scheme, the Court declined to interfere in the demand notice holding:-

"The next issue is whether this Court can interfere in the award of penal interest. Penal interest is part of the letter of allotment and terms and conditions by which allotment was done. It is the realm of the original allottee on the one hand and the respondents on the other. In such matters, Court cannot intervene and impose some other conditions to create another contract. The contract, terms and condition under which it was entered, has to be recognized by this Court, unless there is a power in the respondents to waive any amount. If there be any such power, then it is open to the person to apply. At any rate that cannot be subject matter of intervention by this Court."

17. The contention of the petitioners, that penal interest was waived by the respondents by circular dated 19.11.1994 and 25.3.1995, is patently misconceived. We find that the said circulars were modified by circular dated 22.7.1996, which provided that additional interest @ 3.5% per annum would be charged in addition to the simple interest. By another circular dated 22.9.1999, the Joint Housing Commissioner further clarified that the circular dated 22.7.1996 superseded the

Government Orders dated 19.11.1994 and 25.11.1995 and that the earlier circulars of 1994 and 1995 became non-est.

18. In the light of the aforesaid, we are of the opinion that the contention of the petitioners that no penal interest was payable, is patently erroneous. The petitioners are liable to pay penal interest as per the terms and conditions of the allotment letter and agreement, which is deemed to have been modified by circular dated 27.7.1996.

19. The contention of the petitioners, that the installment and the rate of installment fixed in the allotment letter is in violation of the Regulations of 1979, is patently misconceived and cannot be considered at this belated stage. Admittedly, the petitioners accepted the allotment order and thereafter entered into an agreement and was given possession. Majority of the petitioners have not paid a single paisa since getting possession of the house. The petitioners have violated the terms and conditions of the allotment orders and the agreement with impunity and cannot turn around after 20 years, contending that the conditions so fixed in the allotment letter is violative of the Regulations of 1979.

20. We are of the opinion that once an agreement has been executed, the rights and obligations are governed only by the terms of the contract and not by the Regulations. The authorities cannot be compelled to remedy the breach of contract, if any, in terms of the Regulations. The decisions cited by the learned counsel for the petitioner in Anupam Sari Centre vs. Collector, Padrauna, Laws (All)-1998-11-69, Iqbal Naseer Usmani vs. Central Bank of India, 2006 Law Suit (SC)45, Mange Ram and another vs. State of U.P. and others, 2010 Law Suit (All) 660, Mirza Javed Murtaza vs. U.P. Financial Corporation Kanpur, 1983 AIR (All)-0-234, Mahrajwa vs. State of U.P., UPLBEC-2013-1-56, Writ Petition No.1933 of 2003 Hraidesh Kumar vs. State of U.P. and others, decided on 14.1.2013 and Corporation Bank vs. D.S. Gowda, 1994- SCC-5-213 are not at all applicable to the facts and circumstances of the case and are clearly distinguishable.

21. In the light of the aforesaid, we do not find any error in the impugned demand notices. The demand notices do not suffer from any error of law.

22. All the writ petitions fail and are dismissed.

Civil Law U.P.— Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act—Section 229-B—declaratory suit—title suit—U.P. Land Revenue Act—Section 40-A—mutation—right in a holding—competent court—Section 331—Section 143—agricultural land—house exists over plots—municipal tax—jurisdiction of Revenue Court—declaration of rights—bhumidhar—asami—mutation proceedings—maintainability of suit—interlocutory order—revision not maintainable—writ petition devoid of merits and dismissed.

By means of this petition, the petitioner has sought a writ of certiorari for quashing the order dated 9.11.2015, passed by the Sub Divisional Magistraterespondent No. 4. in a suit under Section 229B, filed by respondent No. 5 whereby the parties have been restrained from creating any third party interest in the suit property. (Para 2)

3.A revision, filed against this order, has been dismissed vide order dated 5.7.2016 passed by the Additional Commissioner-respondent No. 3, holding the revision to be not maintainable, being directed against an interlocutory order. It is these two orders, which are impugned in the writ petition.(Para 3)

The factual background of this case briefly stated is as follows:
The dispute between the parties pertains to Plot No. 473 area 0.0021hectare and Plot No. 473M area 0.030 hectare, situated in Village-Kalyanpur Kalan, Tehsil Sadar, District Kanpur Nagar, which was recorded in the name of the petitioner's grand father-in-law, Ram Prasad Singh. The petitioner sought mutation over the land in question relying upon an unregistered Will in her favour alleged to have been executed by the recorded tenure-holder-Ram Prasad Singh. This mutation application was allowed on 20.1.1995 by the Nayab Tehsildar.(Para 4)

5.Against the order of mutation passed in favour of the petitioner, the respondent NO. 5 filed a restoration application, which was allowed on 11.3.2008. Subsequently by order dated 13.11.2009, the respondent No. 5 was ordered to be mutated over the land in place of Ram Prasad Singh.(Para 5)

6.The petitioner filed a restoration application, alongwith a delay condonation application, seeking recall of the order dated 13.11.2009. The petitioner is stated to have filed a revision also against the orders dated 13.11.2009 and 11.3.2008, which was allowed on 18.3.2015. The orders impugned in the revision dated 17.3.2008 and 13.11.2009 was set aside and the order of mutation passed in favour of the petitioner on 20.1.1995 was maintained.(Para 6)

7.Consequential revision, filed by the respondent No. 5, was dismissed by the Board of Revenue on 16.4.2015. Respondent No. 5, preferred a Writ Petition No. 39908 of 2015 before this Court. This Court vide order dated 21.7.2015, disposed of the writ petition on the ground that the petitioner in the said writ petition had an alternative remedy of a suit in view of Section 40A of the Land Revenue Act.(Para 7)

8.The respondent No. 5, thereafter has filed a suit under Section 229-B wherein an ex parte interim order dated 9.11.2015 was granted directing the parties not to create any third party interest in the land in question during the pendency of the suit.(Para 8)

9.The petitioner filed a revision before the Additional Commissioner challenging the interim order aforesaid. This revision has been dismissed vide order dated 5.7.2016. Hence, this writ petition challenging the interim order dated 9.11.2015 and the order dated 5.7.2016 whereby the revision of the petitioner has been disposed of.(Para 9)

Held:(Paras 13-24)

1.Upon a consideration of the submissions made, the first point, which arises for consideration is whether a suit under Section 229B of the UP ZA and LR Act, is a title suit. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that this suit is not a title suit contemplated under Section 40-A of the UP Land Revenue Act. The said Section 40-A is extracted below:

"Section 40-A. Saving as to title suits.- No order passed under Section 33, Section 35, Section 39, Section 40, Section 41 or Section 54 shall bar any suit in a competent Court for relief on the basis of a right in a holding."

2.A bare perusal of this provision reveals that an order of mutation, passed under Section 35 of the UP Land Revenue Act, does not par a suit in a competent court for relief on the basis of a right in a holding.

3.The words 'competent court' are crucial in view of the submissions made and have to be considered in the light of the provisions contained in Section 229-B of the UP ZA and LR Act, which has been invoked by the respondent. The said Section reads as follows"

"Section 229-B. Declaratory suit by person claiming to be an asami of a holding or part thereof.-

Any person claiming to be an asami of a holding orany part thereof, whether exclusively or jointly with any other person, may sue the landholder for a declaration of his rights as asami in such holding or part, as the case may be.

In any suit under sub-section (1) any other personclaiming to hold as asami under the land-holder shall be impleaded as defendant.

The provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) shallmutatis mutandis apply to a suit by a person claiming to be [bhumidhar] with the amendment that for the word "landholder" the word "the State Government and the [Gaon Sabha] are substituted therein."

4.The quoted provision is for a declaration of the rights of the plaintiff, be it right as an asami or as a bhumidhar in a holding. Since this provision is for declaration of the rights of an individual, it is a title suit and there is no force in the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner that a title suit is necessarily a civil suit. Besides, in view of Section 331 of the UP ZA and LR Act, no court other than a court mentioned in the Column 4 of Schedule-II is entitled to take cognizance of a suit, application or proceeding for a relief, which can be obtained by means of such suit for application. The proviso to this Section is extremely relevant and the same is extracted below:

"Section 331. Cognizance of suits, etc. under this Act.-(1) Except as provided by or under this Act no court than a court mentioned in Column 4 of Schedule II shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 (V of 1908), take cognizance of any suit, application, or proceedings mentioned in Column 3 thereof or of a suit, application or proceedings based on a cause of action in respect of which any relief could be obtained by means of any such suit or application.
Provided that where a declaration has been made under Section 143 in respect or any holding or part thereof, the provisions of Schedule II insofar as they relate to suits, applications or proceedings under Chapter VIII shall not apply to such holding or part thereof."

5.At this stage, it would be relevant to note that on a pointed query by the Court, learned counsel for the petitioner has not been able to demonstrate that any declaration, under Section 143 of the Act, has been granted as regards the land in question. It is, therefore, clear that in the absence of a declaration under Section 143, the Revenue Court exercising jurisdiction under Section 229B of the Act, alone is competent to adjudicate upon the title of the parties to the land in question.

6.Besides, a Full Bench of this Court in Irfan Ali vs. Rafiq, 1991 RD 374 has held that in a case, a mutation case is decided against a person, he has two remedies; (i) he can file a revision or (ii) he can file a suit under Section 229B. In the instant case, the respondent No. 5 has filed a suit under Section 229B, which is clearly maintainable. The submissions of learned counsel for the petitioner, to the contrary, are without substance and are hereby repelled.

7.The second contention that a house exists over the plots in question assessed to municipal tax, which tax is being paid, therefore, the Civil Court alone would have jurisdiction, is also without substance.

8.There is no material on record to show that the entire area of the two plots in question is covered by a house. It is quite possible that only a portion of the land is covered by a house. It has been held by this Court in Deena Nath Verma Vs. Gokaran and others, 2002 (5) AWC 4109, that even if certain constructions exist on agricultural land, it will not cease to be 'land' unless a declaration has been made under Section 143 of the Act. As noticed herein above, no declaration under Section 143 has been granted as regards the plots in question and, therefore, the land continues to be agricultural land and amenable to the jurisdiction to the Revenue Court under Section 229B of the UP ZA and LR Act. Hence, even the second contention of learned counsel for the petitioner cannot be accepted.

9.There is yet another aspect of the matter. It is not in dispute that the petitioner has herself been mutated over the plots in question in proceedings under Section 34 of the UP Land Revenue Act. It is, therefore, admittedly agricultural land over which the provisions of UP Land Revenue Act were applicable. In case, the argument of learned counsel for the petitioner is accepted even the UP Land Revenue Act would not be applicable in the land and, therefore, the mutation orders, passed in her favour, would also be without jurisdiction.

10.It is further relevant to record that learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the following three judgements in support of her contentions:
Gandabhai Dalpatbhai Patel vs. State of Gujarat, 2004 LawSuit (Guj) 522;
State of Gujarat vs. Patel Raghav Natha,1969 AIR SC 187;Ramji Gupta and another vs. Gopi KrishanAgrawal (D) and others 2013 (3) AWC 2782.

11.The first two case cited, pertain to Bombay Land Revenue Code, 1887, which is not applicable in the instant case and, therefore, these two judgements are wholly irrelevant. The third judgement cited, namely, Ramji Gupta and another (supra) pertains to the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887 and Section 23 thereof, which provide that a Court of Small Causes cannot determine a question of title and in case, an issue of title arises, the Court may at any stage of the proceedings return the plaint to be presented to a court having jurisdiction to determine title. Even the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887, is not attracted to the instant case. Even this judgment, therefore, is irrelevant as regards the controversy involved in the instant case.In view of the above discussion, the writ petition is devoid of merits and is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anjani Kumar Mishra, J.)

1. Heard Smt. Manju Rani Chauhan, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. By means of this petition, the petitioner has sought a writ of certiorari for quashing the order dated 9.11.2015, passed by the Sub Divisional Magistrate-respondent No. 4. in a suit under Section 229B, filed by respondent No. 5 whereby the parties have been restrained from creating any third party interest in the suit property.

3. A revision, filed against this order, has been dismissed vide order dated 5.7.2016 passed by the Additional Commissioner-respondent No. 3, holding the revision to be not maintainable, being directed against an interlocutory order. It is these two orders, which are impugned in the writ petition.

4. The factual background of this case briefly stated is as follows:

5. The dispute between the parties pertains to Plot No. 473 area 0.0021hectare and Plot No. 473M area 0.030 hectare, situated in Village-Kalyanpur Kalan, Tehsil Sadar, District Kanpur Nagar, which was recorded in the name of the petitioner's grand father-in-law, Ram Prasad Singh. The petitioner sought mutation over the land in question relying upon an unregistered Will in her favour alleged to have been executed by the recorded tenure-holder-Ram Prasad Singh. This mutation application was allowed on 20.1.1995 by the Nayab Tehsildar.

6. Against the order of mutation passed in favour of the petitioner, the respondent NO. 5 filed a restoration application, which was allowed on 11.3.2008. Subsequently by order dated 13.11.2009, the respondent No. 5 was ordered to be mutated over the land in place of Ram Prasad Singh.

7. The petitioner filed a restoration application, alongwith a delay condonation application, seeking recall of the order dated 13.11.2009. The petitioner is stated to have filed a revision also against the orders dated 13.11.2009 and 11.3.2008, which was allowed on 18.3.2015. The orders impugned in the revision dated 17.3.2008 and 13.11.2009 was set aside and the order of mutation passed in favour of the petitioner on 20.1.1995 was maintained.

8. Consequential revision, filed by the respondent No. 5, was dismissed by the Board of Revenue on 16.4.2015. Respondent No. 5, preferred a Writ Petition No. 39908 of 2015 before this Court. This Court vide order dated 21.7.2015, disposed of the writ petition on the ground that the petitioner in the said writ petition had an alternative remedy of a suit in view of Section 40A of the Land Revenue Act.

9. The respondent No. 5, thereafter has filed a suit under Section 229-B wherein an ex parte interim order dated 9.11.2015 was granted directing the parties not to create any third party interest in the land in question during the pendency of the suit.

10. The petitioner filed a revision before the Additional Commissioner challenging the interim order aforesaid. This revision has been dismissed vide order dated 5.7.2016. Hence, this writ petition challenging the interim order dated 9.11.2015 and the order dated 5.7.2016 whereby the revision of the petitioner has been disposed of.

11. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the suit under Section 229B filed by the respondent No. 5 is not maintainable in view of Section 40A of the UP Land Revenue Act. It is submitted that the word 'suit', used in the said Section 40A, necessarily refers to a civil suit. The Revenue Court exercising jurisdiction under Section 229B of the UP Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act grants a declaration and the same is not a title suit. The respondent No. 5 could, therefore, have filed and maintained only a civil suit and the courts below have committed illegality and have acted beyond jurisdiction in entertaining the suit and granting an interim order therein.

12. It is further contended that a residential house exists, over the plots in question. The petitioner is paying house-tax and, therefore, the plots are not land within the meaning of the word in the UP ZA and LR Act. Therefore, also the suit filed by the respondent No. 5 is not maintainable.

13. I have considered the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner and have perused the record.

14. Upon a consideration of the submissions made, the first point, which arises for consideration is whether a suit under Section 229B of the UP ZA and LR Act, is a title suit. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that this suit is not a title suit contemplated under Section 40-A of the UP Land Revenue Act. The said Section 40-A is extracted below:

"Section 40-A. Saving as to title suits.- No order passed under Section 33, Section 35, Section 39, Section 40, Section 41 or Section 54 shall bar any suit in a competent Court for relief on the basis of a right in a holding."

15. A bare perusal of this provision reveals that an order of mutation, passed under Section 35 of the UP Land Revenue Act, does not par a suit in a competent court for relief on the basis of a right in a holding.

16. The words 'competent court' are crucial in view of the submissions made and have to be considered in the light of the provisions contained in Section 229-B of the UP ZA and LR Act, which has been invoked by the respondent. The said Section reads as follows"

"Section 229-B. Declaratory suit by person claiming to be an asami of a holding or part thereof.-

(1) Any person claiming to be an asami of a holding or any part thereof, whether exclusively or jointly with any other person, may sue the landholder for a declaration of his rights as asami in such holding or part, as the case may be.

(2) In any suit under sub-section (1) any other person claiming to hold as asami under the land-holder shall be impleaded as defendant.

(3) The provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) shall mutatis mutandis apply to a suit by a person claiming to be [bhumidhar] with the amendment that for the word "landholder" the word "the State Government and the [Gaon Sabha] are substituted therein."

17. The quoted provision is for a declaration of the rights of the plaintiff, be it right as an asami or as a bhumidhar in a holding. Since this provision is for declaration of the rights of an individual, it is a title suit and there is no force in the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner that a title suit is necessarily a civil suit. Besides, in view of Section 331 of the UP ZA and LR Act, no court other than a court mentioned in the Column 4 of Schedule-II is entitled to take cognizance of a suit, application or proceeding for a relief, which can be obtained by means of such suit for application. The proviso to this Section is extremely relevant and the same is extracted below:

"Section 331. Cognizance of suits, etc. under this Act.-(1) Except as provided by or under this Act no court than a court mentioned in Column 4 of Schedule II shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 (V of 1908), take cognizance of any suit, application, or proceedings mentioned in Column 3 thereof or of a suit, application or proceedings based on a cause of action in respect of which any relief could be obtained by means of any such suit or application.

Provided that where a declaration has been made under Section 143 in respect or any holding or part thereof, the provisions of Schedule II insofar as they relate to suits, applications or proceedings under Chapter VIII shall not apply to such holding or part thereof."

18. At this stage, it would be relevant to note that on a pointed query by the Court, learned counsel for the petitioner has not been able to demonstrate that any declaration, under Section 143 of the Act, has been granted as regards the land in question. It is, therefore, clear that in the absence of a declaration under Section 143, the Revenue Court exercising jurisdiction under Section 229B of the Act, alone is competent to adjudicate upon the title of the parties to the land in question.

19. Besides, a Full Bench of this Court in Irfan Ali vs. Rafiq, 1991 RD 374 has held that in a case, a mutation case is decided against a person, he has two remedies; (i) he can file a revision or (ii) he can file a suit under Section 229B. In the instant case, the respondent No. 5 has filed a suit under Section 229B, which is clearly maintainable. The submissions of learned counsel for the petitioner, to the contrary, are without substance and are hereby repelled.

20. The second contention that a house exists over the plots in question assessed to municipal tax, which tax is being paid, therefore, the Civil Court alone would have jurisdiction, is also without substance.

21. There is no material on record to show that the entire area of the two plots in question is covered by a house. It is quite possible that only a portion of the land is covered by a house. It has been held by this Court in Deena Nath Verma Vs. Gokaran and others, 2002 (5) AWC 4109, that even if certain constructions exist on agricultural land, it will not cease to be 'land' unless a declaration has been made under Section 143 of the Act. As noticed herein above, no declaration under Section 143 has been granted as regards the plots in question and, therefore, the land continues to be agricultural land and amenable to the jurisdiction to the Revenue Court under Section 229B of the UP ZA and LR Act. Hence, even the second contention of learned counsel for the petitioner cannot be accepted.

22. There is yet another aspect of the matter. It is not in dispute that the petitioner has herself been mutated over the plots in question in proceedings under Section 34 of the UP Land Revenue Act. It is, therefore, admittedly agricultural land over which the provisions of UP Land Revenue Act were applicable. In case, the argument of learned counsel for the petitioner is accepted even the UP Land Revenue Act would not be applicable in the land and, therefore, the mutation orders, passed in her favour, would also be without jurisdiction.

23. It is further relevant to record that learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the following three judgements in support of her contentions:

(i) Gandabhai Dalpatbhai Patel vs. State of Gujarat, 2004 LawSuit (Guj) 522;
(ii) State of Gujarat vs. Patel Raghav Natha, 1969 AIR SC 187;
(iii) Ramji Gupta and another vs. Gopi Krishan Agrawal (D) and others 2013 (3) AWC 2782.

24. The first two case cited, pertain to Bombay Land Revenue Code, 1887, which is not applicable in the instant case and, therefore, these two judgements are wholly irrelevant. The third judgement cited, namely, Ramji Gupta and another (supra) pertains to the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887 and Section 23 thereof, which provide that a Court of Small Causes cannot determine a question of title and in case, an issue of title arises, the Court may at any stage of the proceedings return the plaint to be presented to a court having jurisdiction to determine title. Even the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887, is not attracted to the instant case. Even this judgment, therefore, is irrelevant as regards the controversy involved in the instant case.

25. In view of the above discussion, the writ petition is devoid of merits and is, accordingly, dismissed.

Writ C No.- 44164 of 2016

Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Syed Wajid Ali, Santosh Kumar Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Amresh Singh

Civil Law — Fair Price Shop Agent—gaon sabha—open meeting—resolution—Government Order dated 3.7.1990—Para 4.4—Para 4.12—special case—complaint—inquiry—Sub-Divisional Officer—Block Development Officer—supervisor—Village Pradhan—ex parte inquiry—Naib Tehsildar—opportunity of hearing—cancellation of resolution—principles of natural justice—impugned order vitiated—writ petition succeeds and is allowed—impugned order quashed.

Through this writ petition, prayer has been made to issue a writ of certiorari quashing the order dated 3.9.2016 passed by the SubDivisional Officer, Baheri, District Bareilly by which the SubDivisional has cancelled the earlier resolution of the gaon sabha dated 13.5.2016 and directed the Block Development Officer to get a fresh resolution passed in the open meeting for appointment of fair price shop agent.(Para 2)

3.While assailing the impugned order, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned order is patently illegal and without application of mind. In the submissions of learned counsel for the petitioner, earlier resolution dated 13.5.2016 was passed in favour of the petitioner in the open meeting of the gaon sabha in presence of the supervisor appointed by the Block Development Officer pursuant to the order of the Subdivisional Officer and it is in his presence, the open meeting of the gaon sabha was held and a C.D. was prepared. Thereafter the Block Development officer has forwarded the paper for appropriate order before the SubDivisional Officer/Committee headed by him, therefore there was no occasion to reinquire the matter on the basis of the frivolous complaint of a third person without having version of the Block Development Officer who has forwarded the resolution, the village pradhan, and the supervisor appointed by the Block Development officer in whose presence resolution was passed and C.D. was prepared.(Para 3)

Held:(Paras 10-13)
1.I have gone through the impugned order. I do not find that after receipt of the complaint of the respondent no. 5, the SubDivisional Officer/Committee headed by him has applied its mind with regard to genuineness of the complaint and after testing the merit of the complaint has directed for holding the inquiry.

2.For the sake of arguments even if it is assumed that this was done as the case is being decided in absence of the counter affidavit in that case too, once the Block Development officer has been entrusted by the SubDivisional Officer to get a resolution passed and the Block Development Officer has appointed a supervisor for getting the resolution passed and the resolution was passed in the presence of supervisor as well as of the Pradhan of the concerned village and the same has been forwarded/recommended by the Block Development Officer for approval, meaning thereby, the Block Development Officer too has applied his mind and tested the genuineness of the resolution as the Block Development Officer is not meant to act like a post office and transmit the resolution whichever is sent by the Gaon Sabha for appointment of fair price shop agent and once the Block Development Officer has also applied his mind and sent the proposal for approval, in that eventuality, the SubDivisional Officer/the Committee headed by him if decided to hold an inquiry then the version of the Village Pradhan, Supervisor and the Block Development Officer ought to have been called for and considered by the authority concerned before cancelling the resolution.

3.Here in this case, from the perusal of the impugned order, it transpires that nothing has been done and only exparte inquiry was conducted by the Naib Tehsildar on which basis the impugned order has been passed. This Court, dealing with such matter in Virendra Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2013 (7) ADJ 262 has held that if after receipt of the resolution, the SubDivisional Officer decided to disapprove the resolution, in that eventuality, opportunity has to be offered to the person in whose favour resolution has been passed and the village pradhan too. The view taken by me find support from the Division bench judgement of this Court in the case of Gainda Devi Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2012 (11) ADJ 717. This is the specific case of the petitioner where the petitioner was never associated either in the course of the inquiry by the Naib Tehsildar or before passing the impugned order, therefore the order impugned is vitiated and in my considered opinion it cannot be sustained in the eyes of law.

4.In the result, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned order dated 3.9.2016 passed by the SubDivisional Officer, Baheri, District Bareilly is hereby quashed. The SubDivisional officer/Committee constituted under Para 5 of the government order dated 17.8.2002 is directed to pass a fresh order, considering the complaint of the respondent no. 5 and keeping in mind the observation made by this Court, herein, above, expeditiously but not later than six weeks from the date of receipt of certified copy of the order of this Court.

Case Law discussed:
1.Virendra v. State of U.P. and others, 2013 (7) ADJ 262 — para 12
2.Gainda Devi v. State of U.P. and others, 2012 (11) ADJ 717 — para 12

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ran Vijai Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Syed Wajid Ali along with Sri Santosh Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned standing counsel for the State-respondents and Sri Amresh Singh, learned counsel for the gaon sabha.

2. Through this writ petition, prayer has been made to issue a writ of certiorari quashing the order dated 3.9.2016 passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer, Baheri, District Bareilly by which the Sub-Divisional has cancelled the earlier resolution of the gaon sabha dated 13.5.2016 and directed the Block Development Officer to get a fresh resolution passed in the open meeting for appointment of fair price shop agent.

3. While assailing the impugned order, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned order is patently illegal and without application of mind. In the submissions of learned counsel for the petitioner, earlier resolution dated 13.5.2016 was passed in favour of the petitioner in the open meeting of the gaon sabha in presence of the supervisor appointed by the Block Development Officer pursuant to the order of the Sub-divisional Officer and it is in his presence, the open meeting of the gaon sabha was held and a C.D. was prepared. Thereafter the Block Development officer has forwarded the paper for appropriate order before the Sub-Divisional Officer/Committee headed by him, therefore there was no occasion to re-inquire the matter on the basis of the frivolous complaint of a third person without having version of the Block Development Officer who has forwarded the resolution, the village pradhan, and the supervisor appointed by the Block Development officer in whose presence resolution was passed and C.D. was prepared,

4. Sri Amresh Singh, who appears for the gaon sabha, has also submitted that once the resolution was passed in the open meeting of the gaon sabha, there was no occasion for holding an inquiry in view of para 4.12 of the government order dated 3.7.1990 without application of mind as to whether there was any substance in the complaint made by the respondent no. 5. More so, when the resolution was passed in the presence of the supervisor who happens to be the government servant and thereafter concurrence of the Block development Officer about the aforesaid resolution by forwarding the same to the Sub-divisional Officer without there being any adverse comment.

5. Learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State respondents contended that there is no illegality in the impugned order. In his submissions, after receipt of the complaint, inquiry was conducted by the Naib Tehsildar Baheri, who has submitted his report on 15.7.2016 and considering the report, the Sub-Divisional Officer came to the conclusion that C.D. was not prepared in accordance with law.

6. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the impugned order. For deciding the controversy involved in this case, some conditions provided in the government order dated 3.7.1990, are required to be looked into, governing the field of passing of resolution by the gaon sabha for appointment of fair price shop agent and its approval, which are reproduced herein under "-

4.4 गाँव सभा की राय से वह उचित दर की दुकानें खोली जायेगी। गाँव सभा की राय उनकी खुली बैठक में पारित प्रस्ताव के माध्यम से प्राप्त की जायें।

4.12 गाँव सभा का प्रस्ताव प्राप्त होने पर सामान्यतया किसी अन्य जाँच की आवश्यकता नहीं होगी। परन्तु यदि किसी विशिष्ट मामले में जिलाधिकारी कोई जाँच करवाना चाहे तो इस पर कोई रोक नही है लेकिन यह सुनिश्चित कर लिया जाए कि जाँच के कारण नियुक्ति में बिलम्ब न हो।

5. गांव सभाओं में उचित दर की दुकानों के चयन का कार्य निर्धारित समय के अंदर पूरा हो जाये व गांव सभा की खुली बैठकें वास्तव में हो जाये, इसको सुनिश्चित करने के लिए यह सुझाव है कि जिलाधिकारी व्यवहारिक रोस्टर बना लें जिसमें ग्राम पंचायत अधिकारी के साथ एक उससे उच्च स्तर का पर्यवेक्षक अधिकारी जरूर उपस्थित रहें।

7. From the perusal of Para 4.4. of the government order dated 3.7.1990, it transpires that the fair price shop has to be opened after getting the opinion of the members of the village in its open meeting. From the perusal of the Para No. 4.12. it transpires that normally after receipt of the proposal of the goan sabha there will be no need for any inquiry but in the special case, if the District Magistrate desires the inquiry, there is no prohibition but before doing so, it must be ensured that on account of inquiry, there should not be any delay in the appointment of the fair price shop agent. If both the paras 4.4. and 4.12 are read together then it will mean that decision for appointment of fair price shop agent has to be taken in the open meeting of the gaon sabha and once the decision/proposal of the gaon sabha is sent before the Sub-Divisional Officer, normally there would be no requirement to hold an inquiry but in the special case, inquiry is permissible that too on the instance of the District Magistrate.

8. The use of word 'vishisth mamle', 'special case' has some weight,meaning thereby in normal case, inquiry is not required but if the District Magistrate requires an inquiry then mind has to be applied by the District Magistrate that it is a special case where prima facie it appears that irregularity has been committed in the process of the passing of the resolution. Looking into the language used in Para 4.12, mentioned herein above, in my opinion without recording any reason for holding the inquiry in routine manner no order for inquiry can be passed after resolution of the gaon sabha is passed and forwarded/recommended by the Block Development Officer for issuing the appointment letter and execution of the agreement.

9. On being confronted as to whether at present too, it is the District Magistrate who is the only officer who can pass the order for holding the inquiry in the event of complaint received by him with respect to any resolution passed, learned Standing Counsel, taking shelter of para 5 of the government order dated 17.8.2002, submits that now all these powers have been conferred upon the Committee constituted under para 5 of the aforesaid government order, in the chairmanship of the Sub-Divisional Officer. For convenience, para 5 of the government order dated 17.8.2002 is quoted herein under :-

5- ग्रमीण क्षेत्र में राशन की दुकानों के आवंटन हेतु निम्नानुसार गठित तहसील स्तरीय समिति द्वारा किया जायेगा

से कोई इस वर्ग का हो तो अलग से नामांकन करने की आवश्यकता नहीं होगी)

4. क्षेत्रीय खाद्य अधिकारी - सदस्य/ संयोजक

10. I have gone through the impugned order. I do not find that after receipt of the complaint of the respondent no. 5, the Sub-Divisional Officer/Committee headed by him has applied its mind with regard to genuineness of the complaint and after testing the merit of the complaint has directed for holding the inquiry.

11. For the sake of arguments even if it is assumed that this was done as the case is being decided in absence of the counter affidavit in that case too, once the Block Development officer has been entrusted by the Sub-Divisional Officer to get a resolution passed and the Block Development Officer has appointed a supervisor for getting the resolution passed and the resolution was passed in the presence of supervisor as well as of the Pradhan of the concerned village and the same has been forwarded/recommended by the Block Development Officer for approval, meaning thereby, the Block Development Officer too has applied his mind and tested the genuineness of the resolution as the Block Development Officer is not meant to act like a post office and transmit the resolution whichever is sent by the Gaon Sabha for appointment of fair price shop agent and once the Block Development Officer has also applied his mind and sent the proposal for approval, in that eventuality, the Sub-Divisional Officer/the Committee headed by him if decided to hold an inquiry then the version of the Village Pradhan, Supervisor and the Block Development Officer ought to have been called for and considered by the authority concerned before cancelling the resolution.

12. Held:

Para 1: This common judgment disposes of multiple writ petitions involving similar questions of law and facts. Neutral Citation No. - 2016:AHC:132546-DB.
Para 2: Petitioners seek a writ of Certiorari to quash NOIDA's cancellation orders (dated 16.03.1999 & 23.03.1999) regarding new plots allotted via conversion, and a direction to NOIDA to accept balance dues and hand over possession.
Para 3: Petitioner No. 1 (Shyam Narain Misra) withdrew his petition on 17.08.2016; petitions for Petitioners No. 3 and 10 were dismissed as not pressed on the same date.
Para 4: Respondents No. 3 to 22 were wrongly impleaded in the amended petition after their impleadment applications were rejected; their names are struck off from the cause title.
Para 5: Respondents No. 3–7 and 11–22 were denied intervention for lack of formal applications. The scope of C.M.W.P. No. 11973 of 1999 is confined to Petitioners No. 2, 4–9, and 11.
Para 6: Petitioners in C.M.W.P. Nos. 69517 & 69518 of 2011 were wrongly joined as Respondents No. 9 & 10 in the main petition, but their separate writ petitions seeking identical relief are considered jointly.
Para 7: Details NOIDA's plot conversion policy introduced via Office Order dated 03.07.1992, setting out 11 specific conditions governing location changes, fee structures, and area adjustments.
Para 8: The conversion scheme was amended on 29.09.1993 to allow conversion into unallotted or newly carved-out plots across different sectors, expanding beyond cancelled/surrendered plots.

Para 9: Petitioners applied for and received conversion orders, depositing substantial amounts. When NOIDA refused to countersign challans for the balance amounts, petitioners filed the original writ petition seeking acceptance of dues and possession.
Para 10: Pending the writ petition, NOIDA issued orders dated 16.03.1999 and 23.03.1999 cancelling the conversion allotments, prompting petitioners to amend their pleadings to challenge these cancellation orders.
Para 11: Highlights the earlier High Court Division Bench order dated 09.11.2007, which had disposed of the matter by directing NOIDA to calculate dues with interest and issue payment challans.
Para 12: Tracks NOIDA's appeal (Civil Appeal No. 583 of 2011), where the Supreme Court set aside the High Court's order and remitted the matter back for fresh adjudication on the legality of the cancellation orders.
Para 13: Notes the post-remand filings, including supplementary affidavits and the tagging of C.M.W.P. Nos. 69517 & 69518 of 2011 with the primary writ petition.
Para 14: Counsel for petitioners outlines NOIDA's four primary grounds for cancellation: allotment in an undeveloped sector, default in original plot payments, non-submission of conversion applications, and area expansion exceeding 50%.
Para 15: Petitioners argue that prohibition of conversion to undeveloped sectors was not in the 1992/1993 policy (introduced only in 1996) and that Sector 44 was already recognized as developed in 1994–95.
Para 16: Addresses Ground (ii), arguing that original dues were paid and pointing out that NOIDA restored 14 non-cancelling cases despite delayed payments, rendering the action discriminatory under Article 14.
Para 17: Rebuts Ground (iii), showing that official conversion orders and NOIDA's own SLP grounds confirm that Petitioners No. 4 and 6 had explicitly requested conversions.
Para 18: Refutes Ground (iv), stating the 1992 scheme explicitly permitted area variations subject to premium payments, and notes NOIDA restored other plots cancelled on this same ground, demonstrating discrimination.
Para 19: Argues that petitioners acquired vested rights after paying substantial amounts, making the unilateral cancellations without a hearing a violation of natural justice and void ab initio.
Para 20: NOIDA's counsel argues that under SC observations in W.P.(C) No. 150/1997, the U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976 does not permit category conversion of plots.
Para 21: NOIDA defends the cancellation orders on merits, relying on SC observations in W.P.(C) No. 150/1997 and internal scrutiny showing policy violations.
Para 22: Rebuts NOIDA's statutory argument, noting petitioners were not parties to W.P.(C) No. 150/1997, and highlights that SC rejected NOIDA's identical argument in Review Petition No. 1 of 2015 (arising from C.A. No. 3159 of 2006).
Para 23: Examines paragraph 16 of the SC order dated 27.11.2013 in W.P.(C) No. 150/1997 regarding the statutory non-postulation of plot conversion.
Para 24: Notes that while the word "conversion" is absent from the 1976 Act, the Court proceeds to examine whether conversion legally constitutes a mode of property transfer.
Para 25: Analyzes legal definitions from Black's Law Dictionary and Section 118 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, establishing that "conversion" and "exchange" are legally synonymous.
Para 26: Concludes that NOIDA's plot conversion scheme is functionally an "exchange" of plots, which is a recognized legal mode of transferring immovable property.
Para 27: Interprets Section 7 of the U.P. Act of 1976, holding that the phrase "otherwise transfer" gives NOIDA statutory authority to transfer land via exchange/conversion.
Para 28: Observes that the Supreme Court implicitly affirmed this power by dismissing NOIDA's Review Petition No. 1 of 2015 on both delay and merits on 14.01.2015.
Para 29: Re-iterates the four primary grounds of cancellation to evaluate each sequentially on merits.
Para 30: Analyzes Ground (i), holding that the 1992/1993 scheme allowed cross-sector conversions and contained no restriction against transfers from developed to undeveloped sectors.
Para 31: Notes NOIDA's admission in SLP pleadings that the restriction was added only in 1996 and cannot apply retrospectively to 1994–95 allotments, alongside exoneration of its officer regarding Sector 44's developed status.

Para 32: Holds that since Sector 44 was a developed sector at the relevant time, cancellation of allotments for Petitioners No. 2, 4–9 and 2011 petitioners on Ground (i) is legally unsustainable.
Para 33: Evaluates Ground (ii) (payment default on original plots) and notes petitioners' willingness to pay any lawful dues.
Para 34: Holds Ground (ii) discriminatory under Article 14 because NOIDA condoned non-payment delays and retained allotments for 14 other similarly placed allottees.
Para 35: Evaluates Ground (iii) and finds written records (allotment recitals and NOIDA's SLP pleadings) directly contradict the claim that Petitioners No. 4 and 6 did not apply for conversion.
Para 36: Concludes that cancellation of new plot allotments for Petitioners No. 4 and 6 on the ground of non-application is wholly unjustified.
Para 37: Evaluates Ground (iv) (excess area over 50%) and finds no upper limit cap in the conversion policy governing size differences.
Para 38: Holds Ground (iv) arbitrary and discriminatory, noting Clause 7 required only additional premium payments, and NOIDA had already restored plots to other allottees cancelled under this ground.
Para 39: Rules that cancelling allotments without giving petitioners an opportunity to be heard violated natural justice and rendered the cancellation orders non-est in law, especially since NOIDA took possession of original plots and created third-party rights.
Para 40: Summarizes that impugned cancellation orders are arbitrary, illegal, discriminatory, violative of natural justice, and offensive to Article 14 of the Constitution.
Para 41: Recalls similar matters where the Supreme Court directed NOIDA to issue payment challans and deliver possession after conversion.
Para 42: Extends the ratio and benefits of the Supreme Court's decisions in Pushpa Devi and Vanchit Leasing to the present petitioners.
Para 43: Quashes the cancellation orders; directs NOIDA to calculate outstanding amounts and issue payment challans within 1 month, and hand over physical possession within 6 weeks of payment.
Para 44: Orders that parties shall bear their own costs.

NOIDA vs. [MRTPC Applicant], Review Petition (Civil) No. 1 of 2015 in Civil Appeal No. 3159 of 2006 (Order dated January 14, 2015).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prashant Kumar, J.)

1. The above writ petitions involve similar question of law and facts, therefore, they are heard together and being disposed of by this common judgement.

2. In the above writ petitions, the petitioners prayed for issuance of a writ in the nature of Certiorari for quashing the orders dated 16.03.1999 & 23.03.1999, contained in Annexures-18 series of amended writ application, (relating to petitioners Nos.2,4,5,6,7,8,9) Annexure No.I of Amendment Application No.133611, (relating to petitioner no. 11) and Annexure 4 of each writ applications bearing Writ Petition No.69517 and 69518 of 2011, (relating to petitioners of both the writ applications), whereby and where-under the respondent NOIDA had cancelled the allotment of new plots made in favour of the petitioners by way of conversion. The petitioners further prayed for issuance of a direction commanding the respondents to accept the due amount, if any, and hand over the possession of newly allotted plots to the petitioners.

3. It is worth mentioning that the petitioner no. 1 namely Shyam Narain Misra has been allowed to withdraw the writ petition filed on his behalf vide order dated 17.08.2016, whereas by the same order the writ petitions filed by the petitioners no. 3 & 10 have been dismissed as not pressed, because none had turned up to press the same on their behalf.

4. It is further worth mentioning that the respondents no. 3 to 22 were not impleaded as respondents in the original writ petition bearing Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 11973 of 1999, but they have been wrongly impleaded as respondents in the amended writ petition. From perusal of the order-sheet it appears that vide orders dated 22.05.2012 & 11.01.2016, the impleadment applications filed by them had been disposed of with observation that no case is made out to permit the applicants to be impleaded as respondents in the writ petitions. Under the aforesaid fact and circumstance, names of respondents no. 3 to 22 are hereby struck off from cause title of the amended writ petition.

5. It is not out of place to mention here that vide order dated 17.08.2016, respondents no. 3 to 7 and 11 to 22 were not allowed to intervene in the matter, because they have not filed any application for intervention. Thus, in this writ petition, bearing Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 11973 of 1999, we are confined to consider the cases of petitioners no. 2, 4 to 9 & 11.

6. It is relevant to mention that though petitioners of Civil Misc. Writ Petitions No. 69517 & 69518 of 1999 were wrongly impleaded as respondents no. 9 & 10 in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 11973 of 1999, but, since they filed separate writ petitions for the same relief, therefore, their cases also considered by us.

7. The factual matrix of the case is that the petitioners were originally allotted residential plots by the NOIDA in different sectors. Details of their plots and areas mentioned in the writ petitions. It is an admitted position that the NOIDA has a Scheme for conversion of plots. The above scheme was amended by the NOIDA vide office order no. 4070/ NOIDA/ DCED/ 92 dated 03.07.1992, which runs as follows:-

In supersession of all previous orders, conversion of residential plots/houses/flats/appartments shall be governed by the conditions as given below:

"Application for conversion (i.e. change of location) shall be entertained only from such allottees who have been allotted residential plots/houses/flats/apartments, originally by the Authority.

(1) Application for conversion of plots against house/flat/apartment or vice versa shall not be entertained.

(2) In case residential plots, only cancelled & surrendered properties shall be offered for conversion. However, this shall not be applicable for conversion of apartment/flat/house.

(3) The details of availability of properties shall be available in the office of Dy. Chief Executive Officer.

(4) In case of allotments made through cooperative housing societies, conversion may be allowed within the sector only. However, this restriction shall not be applicable in cases of allotment other than through cooperative societies.

(5) Up-to-date dues of the allotted properties for which conversion required should be cleared.

(6) All expenses pertaining to conversion such as conversion charges, location benefit charges, stamp duty, registration charges etc. shall be borne by the allottee.

(7) In case the area of converted plot is more than the area of allotted plot, then the allottee shall be required to pay the premium for additional area at prevailing rate and conversion charges in lump sum within 30 days of conversion being allowed. Additional charges, if applicable shall also be charged in addition to the above.

(8) In case of built up apartment/flat/house, difference in the prevailing cost of original allotted property and the prevailing cost of property under conversion shall be charged towards conversion charges in lump sum within 30 days of conversion being allowed.

(9) In case area under conversion is less than the area of plot originally allotted, then the amount of premium including interest having been paid by the allottee for the difference area, shall be refunded adjusted. Likewise in case prevailing cost of the apartment/flat/house under conversion is less than the original cost of apartment/flat/house originally allotted, then the difference of the amount paid including interest shall be refunded/adjusted.

(10) The facility of conversion shall be available in both pre-possession and post-possession cases.

(11) Conversion charges shall be payable within 30 days from the conversion being allowed as per details given below. ....."

8. It is also admitted by the parties that aforesaid scheme of conversion again amended by the NOIDA on 29.09.1993. Originally, the conversion was allowed only with respect to cancelled or surrendered plots, but after the amendment, unallotted plots or newly carved out plots in different sectors have also been included in the plot availability list for conversion.

9. It is stated by the petitioners that they applied for conversion of their original plots with that of other residential plots situated in other sectors. It is stated that the NOIDA, after considering their requests, had approved the conversion and allotted new plots with a direction to pay the amount mentioned in respective conversion orders. The petitioners annexed the aforesaid conversion orders in the writ petitions. It is stated that the petitioners had deposited the money through challans as demanded by the NOIDA. It is further stated that some amount still remained to be paid by some of the petitioners. It is stated that the petitioners approached the NOIDA for counter signing the challans, but NOIDA refused to do so, because of that the petitioners could not deposit balance amount. It is stated that the petitioners were repeatedly making requests to the NOIDA for accepting the deposits and handing over the possession of the newly allotted plots, but the respondents are not passing any order. Aggrieved with the same, the petitioners of Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 11973 of 1999 had filed writ petition for a direction to the respondents to accept the amount by making endorsement on the challans and hand over the possession of newly allotted plots.

10. It is stated that during the pendency of the writ petition, the NOIDA had cancelled the allotments of new plots made in favour of the petitioners vide orders dated 16.03.1999 and 23.03.1999. Accordingly the petitioners filed amendment application and challenged the cancellation orders.

11. It then appears that a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 09.11.2007 disposed of the writ petition bearing Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 11973 of 1999. The operative portion of the order runs as follows:-

"The petitioners are agreeable to pay along with interest on the deposited amount, therefore, we are of the view that the writ petition can be disposed of with a direction upon the authorities to consider the case and to calculate the amount to be deposited by the petitioners and issue challan in connection thereto ignoring the delay on the basis of the observation of the Supreme Court as in the aforesaid judgment within a period of one month from the date of communication of the order. At the time of due consideration, the authorities are entitled to see whether cancellation is made only on the ground of delay or not. In case the other point or points is/are also there, they are entitled to act in accordance with law without confining themselves only on the question of delayed payment. The writ petitioners will be entitled to get certify copy of the order only after depositing deficit court fees within a period of seven days from this day leaving aside the court fees already deposited treating to be deposited for only one petitioner. However, this order will not be operative in case petitioners nos. 3, 10 and 11 who have not pressed this writ petition, therefore, no order is required in those cases.

Writ petition is, thus, disposed of. No order is passed as to costs."

12. The NOIDA challenged aforesaid order of this Court by filing a Special Leave Petition bearing no. 10678 of 2008 (Civil Appeal No. 583 of 2011). While hearing the aforesaid appeal the Hon'ble Supreme Court noticed that though the order of conversion had already been cancelled by the NOIDA and the petitioners had filed amendment application challenging the cancellation order, but no finding was given by the High Court on the legality of the cancellation orders. Accordingly, the Hon'ble Supreme Court remitted the case to this Court for fresh disposal of the writ petition after considering the pleadings and documents filed by the parties. The operative portion of the judgement of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in aforesaid civil appeal is as follows:

"It, however, appears that attention of the High Court was not invited to the amended prayer and this appears to be the reason why the High Court did not pronounce upon the legality of the orders passed for cancellation of the sanction issued by the then Chief Executive Officer for conversion of the plots and disposed of the writ petition by issuing directions to which reference has been made herein above.

In our view, without deciding the question whether orders passed by the Competent Authority for cancellation of the conversion sanctioned in favour of the respondents were contrary to any constitutional or legal provision or the rules of natural justice, the High Court was not justified in issuing a mandamus to the appellants to accept the amount of conversion and thereby facilitate allotment of plots to the respondents in Sector 44. But at the same time, we feel that the respondents should not suffer merely because the High Court did not decide the legality of the orders passed by the Competent Authority and it will be in the interest of justice to remit the matter to the High Court for fresh disposal of the writ petition.

In the result, the appeal is allowed, the impugned order is set aside and the matter is remitted to the High Court for fresh disposal of the writ petition after consideration of the pleadings and documents which have already been filed and which may be filed hereafter.

The parties shall file additional affidavits and documents within 3 months from today. Insofar as the appellants are concerned, they shall file the required affidavit alongwith all the documents which were produced before this Court and other documents which may have bearing on the decision of issues raised in the writ petition.

It will be open to either party to make a request to the High Court for early disposal of the writ petition."

13. In view of the aforesaid remand made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, the writ petition placed before us for hearing. It is worth mentioning that after the aforesaid order of Hon'ble

Supreme Court, both the parties had filed supplementary affidavits, supplementary counter affidavits, amendment application annexing various documents in support of their cases. It is also worth mentioning that the petitioners of Civil Misc. Writ Petitions No. 69517 & 69518 of 2011, who were interveners before Hon'ble Supreme Court, have filed separate writ petitions for redressal of their grievances and the said writ petitions are also tagged with previous writ petition i.e. Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 11973 of 1999.

14. Sri Navin Sinha, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Manu Khare, advocate appearing for petitioners no. 2,4,5,6,7,8 & 9 submitted that the impugned orders of cancellation are broadly based on 4 grounds i.e. (i) Conversion of residential plots allowed in an undeveloped sector. (ii) Conversion of residential plots allowed in favour of such allottee who defaulted in making payment against the originally allotted plots. (iii) No applications were filed by some of the petitioners for conversion and (iv) Conversion was allowed much in excess of the originally allotted area i.e. more than 50% in comparison to original plot area.

15. It is submitted that so far as the grounds no. 1 & 4 are concerned, the same were not mentioned in the original Scheme/Conversion Policy. It is also submitted that from perusal of the office order dated 03.07.1992 as amended by the order dated 27.09.1993, it appears that the same does not prohibit conversion (change of location) from developed sector to undeveloped sector. It is submitted that the NOIDA admitted in an affidavit filed in SLP (Civil) No. 10678 of 2008 before the Hon'ble Supreme Court that at the time of conversion in question (i.e. in the year 1994-95), the aforesaid condition for cancellation of conversion is not part of the Scheme. It is submitted by Sri Sinha, learned senior counsel appearing for the petitioners, that in that affidavit it is stated that in the year 1996 the change of plots policy was reconsidered and then the same was included. He, thus, submits that a policy which has been adopted later on, cannot become basis for cancellation of plots, which were allotted on the basis of earlier policy. It is further submitted that in the said affidavit, the NOIDA further admitted that in the year 1994-95 sector 44 was a developed sector. Accordingly, it is submitted that cancellation of conversion order on ground no. 1, is not permissible.

16. Sri Sinha, learned senior counsel submitted that cancellation of conversion on ground no. 2 is also not sustainable, because the petitioners had paid all the dues demanded by the NOIDA towards the price of their old plots. It is submitted that the NOIDA admitted in its supplementary counter affidavit that in cases of 14 allottees their plots had not been cancelled even though payments were not made by them within the stipulated time. Sri Sinha brought to our notice the list of such cases annexed by the NOIDA in its supplementary counter affidavit. Accordingly, he submits that the order of cancellation of conversion on the ground of default for non-payment of price of original plot is discriminatory, therefore, violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. However, he submits that aforesaid defect is curable and petitioners are ready to pay any due if legally payable.

17. It is then submitted that so far as the third ground that the petitioner Nos. 4 and 6 had not made applications for conversion is concerned, the same is misconceived and against the material available on the record. It is submitted that from bare perusal of conversion order it will be clear that all the petitioners had made requests for conversion of plots. This fact also admitted by the NOIDA in the grounds of SLP (Civil) No. 10678 of 2008, wherein it is specifically stated that the respondents (petitioners of this case) themselves had applied for conversion of their plots. Thus, it is submitted that this ground is also not available to the respondent-authority for cancelling the conversion order.

18. So far as the ground no. (iv) is concerned, it is submitted that the same is also not mentioned in the Conversion Policy dated 03.07.1992 as amended on 29.09.1993. It is submitted that from perusal of office order dated 03.07.1992 it is clear that one of the conditions for conversion is that in case the area of converted plot is more than the area of the allotted plot then the allottee shall be required to pay premium of additional area at the prevailing rate and the conversion charges in lump sum within 30 days of conversion being allowed. It is submitted that there is nothing in the entire conversion policy which prohibits conversion if the area of converted plot is much in excess of the originally allotted area i.e. more than 50% in comparison to the original plot area. Sri Sinha further brought to our notice list 3 & 4 annexed with the supplementary affidavit filed by the NOIDA and submits that in fact the NOIDA had restored the plots of other allottees whose conversion cancelled on this very ground. Accordingly, he submits that the action of the NOIDA in not restoring the newly allotted plots in favour of these petitioners is discriminatory and thus, violative of equality clause of the Constitution of India.

19. Sri Navin Sinha, learned senior counsel further submits that it is an admitted position that new plots were allotted to the petitioners by way of conversion as per the scheme of NOIDA and in terms of the demand made by the NOIDA all the petitioners deposited substantial amount with the NOIDA. Thus, a legal right accrued to them in connection with the newly allotted plots, hence, it is not open for the NOIDA to cancel the allotment of new plots without giving any opportunity of hearing to the petitioners. Therefore, the impugned orders are violative of principles of natural justice, hence, void-ab-initio.

Sri Udai Nandan, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner No. 11 has adopted all the submissions made by Sri Navin Sinha, learned Sr. Advocate.

20. On the other hand, Sri Ramendra Pratap Singh, learned counsel appearing for the NOIDA, submitted that the Hon'ble Supreme Court had observed in its order dated 27.11.2013 passed in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 150 of 1997 that 1976 Act and the rules framed thereunder do not postulate conversion of plots allotted in one category to other. Sri Singh accordingly submits that in view of aforesaid observation of the Hon'ble Supreme Court all the conversions including the conversions of plots in favour of these petitioners are illegal. Thus, it is not open for this Court, which is a Court of equity, to quash the cancellation order and allow the illegality to perpetuate.

21. On merits, Sri Singh submits that the orders of cancellation have been passed in view of the order passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 150 of 1997 and also because the NOIDA on scrutiny had found that conversions were allowed in favour of the petitioners against the conversion policy. Accordingly, it is submitted that the writ petitions filed by the petitioners have no merit, therefore, same are liable to be dismissed.

22. In reply, Sri Navin Sinha, learned senior counsel appearing for the petitioners, submitted that the observation of the Hon'ble Supreme Court is not binding on these petitioners because they are not the parties in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 150 of 1997. He further submits that in fact the conversion is a mode of transfer of immovable property. He further submits that Section 7 of the U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976 (for short 'the Act') gives power to all the authorities (including the NOIDA) constituted under 'the Act' to transfer land by way of sell, lease or otherwise on such terms and conditions as it may think fit to impose. Accordingly, it is submitted that the aforesaid observation of the Hon'ble Supreme Court is not applicable in the facts of this case. It is further submitted that one similarly situated person (whose plot allotted on the basis of conversion was cancelled) had filed an application and challenged the order of cancellation of conversion order before the MRTP Commission, New Delhi. The said application was allowed by the Commission vide order dated 1st of September, 2005. Against the said order, the respondent (NOIDA) had filed an appeal before the Hon'ble Supreme Court vide Civil Appeal No. 3159 of 2006. The said appeal was dismissed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court vide order dated 8th of January, 2014. Against the aforesaid order, the NOIDA filed Civil Review Petition, which was numbered as Civil Review No. 1 of 2015. In the said Civil Review, the NOIDA had taken one of the grounds that Hon'ble Supreme Court in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 150 of 1997 had observed that 1976 Act and the rules framed thereunder do not postulate conversion of plots allotted in one category to other. After considering all the grounds taken in the aforesaid Civil Review, the Hon'ble Supreme Court vide order dated 14th of January, 2015 had dismissed the Civil Review on merits.

23. Having heard the submissions, we have gone through the relevant provisions of law as well as various documents produced by the parties through different affidavits. The respondent NOIDA in one of its counter affidavits had annexed the order dated 27.11.2013 passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 150 of 1997 wherein at paragraph no. 16 the Hon'ble Supreme Court had observed:

"1976 Act and the rules framed thereunder do not postulate conversion of plots allotted in one category to other."

24. It is true that the word 'conversion' does not find place in the Act. But the learned senior counsel appearing for the petitioners has vehemently argued that the conversion is a mode of transfer and under Section 7 of 'the Act', the NOIDA had power to transfer the land by any mode of transfer. The aforesaid point raised by learned counsel for the appellant has not been decided by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, therefore, in the interest of justice, we are proceeding to examine this question i.e. whether the conversion of one plot with another is a mode of transfer of property or not.

25. The meaning of word 'conversion' as per the Black's Law Dictionary (8th Edition) is :

The act of changing from one form to another, the process of being exchanged.

The meaning of word 'exchange' as per the aforesaid dictionary is:
The act of transferring interests, each in consideration for other.

Thus, from the conjoint reading of aforesaid meanings of the words 'conversion' and 'exchange', it appears that both are synonym of each other. Thus, if one property is exchanged with that of another, the same will amount to transfer. It is not out of place to mention that Section 118 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 also recognizes "exchange" as one of the mode of transfer of immovable property.

26. In the instant case, as per the Conversion Scheme of NOIDA, an old allottee of residential plot could change the old plot with that of another plot, situated in the same sector or in another sector of NOIDA. Thus, though the nomenclature of the process was given in the Scheme as conversion, but in fact the same is exchange of plots. Therefore, in our considered view the conversion of plots, as per the Scheme of the NOIDA, is 'exchange', which is a recognized mode of transfer of property.

27. Section 7 of the Act of 1976 reads as under:

"The authority may sell, lease or otherwise transfer whether by auction, allotment or otherwise any land or building belonging to the Authority in the industrial development area on such terms and conditions as it may, subject to any rules that may be made under this Act, think fit to impose."

A plain reading of aforesaid provision shows that the NOIDA has power to transfer any land or building belonging to it through sell, lease or otherwise. In our view, the phrase "otherwise transfer" used in the aforesaid provision manifests that the Legislature had given power to the Authorities (including NOIDA) to transfer land and building through any mode of transfer. In that circumstance, as the word conversion is synonym of the word exchange (which is one of the recognized mode of transfer), we hold that the NOIDA has power to transfer land through conversion and/or exchange. Thus, the aforesaid submissions made by Sri Singh that the conversion of old plots of the petitioners with new plots is not permissible under the 1976 Act, cannot be accepted.

28. It is not out of place to mention that subsequently even the Hon'ble Supreme Court had not accepted the aforesaid plea of NOIDA. It is worth mentioning that one of the allottees of the plot by way of conversion had challenged the cancellation of conversion order before the MRTP Commission, New Delhi. The MRTP Commission had set aside the cancellation order vide order dated 1st of September, 2005. The said order of the MRTP Commission was challenged by the NOIDA before Hon'ble Supreme Court by filing an appeal bearing Civil Appeal No. 3159 of 2006. The aforesaid Civil Appeal was dismissed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court vide order dated 8th of January, 2014. Thereafter, the NOIDA filed a petition for review of aforesaid order vide Review Petition No. 1 of 2015. In the said Review Petition, the NOIDA had taken one of the grounds that Hon'ble Supreme Court in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 150 of 1997 has observed that 1976 Act and the rules framed thereunder do not postulate conversion of plots allotted in one category to other. The aforesaid review application filed by the NOIDA has been dismissed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court vide order dated 14.01.2015. The said order of Hon'ble Supreme Court runs as follows:

"Upon perusal of the papers of the review petitions and the record of the Civil Appeals, we have noticed that there is an inordinate delay in filing all the review petitions, which we are not inclined to condone.

Even on merits also, we are convinced that the order of which review has been sought does not suffer from nay error apparent warranting its reconsiderations.

The Review Petitions are, accordingly, dismissed on the ground of delay as well as on merits."

Thus, from perusal of aforesaid order of Hon'ble Supreme Court, we find that the Hon'ble Supreme Court had also considered the merit of the grounds taken in the review petition and rejected all the grounds including the aforesaid ground. In that view of the matter, we are of the view that the grounds taken by Sri Ramendra Pratap Singh is worth rejecting.

29. From perusal of impugned orders, we find that cancellation of conversion orders were mainly based on four grounds, i.e. (i) the conversion of residential plots allowed in an undeveloped sector (ii) conversion of residential plots allowed in favour of such allottees who defaulted in making payment against the original allotted plots (iii) no application for conversion given by some of the petitioners and (iv) conversion was allowed much in excess of the originally allotted area i.e. more than 50% in comparison to originally allotted area.

Refer ground no. i:

30. From perusal of the scheme of conversion as contained in Office Order dated 3.7.1992, as amended by order dated 27.9.1993, we find that there is no stipulation, which prohibits conversion of plot from developed area to undeveloped area. The condition no.4 of the said Scheme stipulates that if the plot is allotted by the cooperative housing society then the conversion will be allowed within the sector only. However, it is specifically mentioned in the said condition that aforesaid restriction shall not be applicable in the cases of allotment other than through cooperative societies. Thus, it is clear that the scheme permits that the plot can be exchanged from one sector to another sector, if the same is not allotted by co-operative society. This fact is also clear from the rates of conversion charges mentioned in clause (10) of the condition for conversion. It shows that if the conversion of residential plot is allowed within the same sector then the allottee is required to pay conversion charge @ Rs. 200/- per sq. meter, whereas if the conversion is allowed in other sector then the allottee is required to pay conversion charge @ Rs. 400/- per sq. meter. Thus, it is clear that as per the Scheme one allottee may request for exchange or conversion of plot from one sector to another sector. As noticed above, there is no restriction in office order dated 03.07.1992 as amended by order dated 27.09.1993, that no conversion will be allowed from developed area to undeveloped area.

31. The NOIDA had filed a rejoinder to the counter affidavit filed by these petitioners in SLP(C) No. 10678 of 2008. In the said rejoinder at paragraph no. 24, the NOIDA had admitted that on the specified date on which the orders were issued to the applicants regarding change of plots, the policy of change of plots does not include the condition that the change of plot should not be made in an undeveloped sector. But in 1996, the change of plots policy was reconsidered and then the same was included. In the same paragraph, the NOIDA further admitted that one of its officers namely Mr. G.C.Tiwari had been exonerated from the charge in a departmental proceeding because the change of plots in Sector 44 is correct as the sector is developed. Thus, in the aforesaid rejoinder, the NOIDA admits that in the year 1994-95, when the petitioners were allowed to change their plots, there was no condition in the scheme which prohibits change of plots from developed sector to undeveloped sector. According to NOIDA, the aforesaid condition has been incorporated in the policy in the year 1996. Under the said circumstance, in our considered view, the said condition/prohibition cannot be made effective from retrospective date. Moreover, in the same rejoinder the NOIDA admitted that sector 44 was a developed sector at the relevant time. Thus, the action of the NOIDA in cancelling the conversion on this ground, is not sustainable.

32. In this connection it is worth mentioning that the petitioners nos. 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and the petitioners of Civil Misc. Writ Petitions No. 69517 & 69518 of 2011, were allotted new plots in sector 44. As noticed above, since sector 44 is a developed sector, therefore, in our considered view it is not open for the NOIDA to cancel the allotments of new plots of the petitioners on this very ground.

It is not out of place to mention that so far petitioner no. 11 is concerned, his newly allotted plot has not been cancelled on this ground.

Refer ground no. ii:

33. Except the petitioners of Civil Misc. Writ Petitions No. 69517 & 69518 of 2011, this ground is one of the common grounds for cancellation of allotment made in favour of other petitioners. It is worth mentioning that the petitioners in their writ applications had stated that they are the confirmed allottees of their original plots. They have also stated that they have paid all instalments fixed by the NOIDA till the issuance of conversion order. The details of same annexed with the brief note supplied to this Court by the petitioners, copy of which has already been served on the learned counsel for the NOIDA. It is submitted that the petitioners are not the defaulters therefore, it is not open for the NOIDA to cancel the allotments made in favour of these petitioners by conversion. However, it is submitted that the petitioners are ready to pay any amount which is legally due & payable.

34. It appears that the NOIDA in its supplementary affidavit had annexed a list i.e. List no. (1), which shows that the allotment of plots of 14 persons have not been cancelled even though payments were not made by the allottees within the stipulated time. Thus, we find that the action of NOIDA in cancelling the newly allotted plots on this ground, is discriminatory, hence, violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

Refer ground no. iii:

35. On this ground we find that the allotment of new plots of petitioners no. 4 Prabhakar Singh and 6 Rajeev Kohli, have been cancelled. The allotment order of the aforesaid 2 petitioners, by which the new plots allotted after conversion, have been annexed in the writ petition as annexures 4 & 6. The opening line of aforesaid order reads as under:

"With reference to your request for conversion of plot ...."

This shows that aforesaid 2 petitioners also made request for conversion of their plots. In this connection it is worth mentioning that the respondent NOIDA in its SLP at ground no. 7 has admitted that the respondents (these petitioners) themselves applied for conversion of their plots.

36. In view of the aforesaid discussions, we find that the cancellation of new plots of petitioner no. 4 and 6 on the ground that the petitioners had not made application for conversion, is wholly unjustified.

Refer ground no. IV:

37. This is one of the common grounds for cancellation of newly allotted plots of the petitioners (except petitioners of Civil Misc. Writ Petition Nos.69517 and 69518 of 2011). From perusal of the conversion policy we do not find any condition which prohibits conversion if the area of the converted plot is much in excess i.e. more than 50% in comparison to original plot area.

38. Condition no. 7 of the scheme stipulates that in case the area of converted plot is more than the area of allotted plot, then the allottee shall be required to pay the premium for additional area at prevailing rate and conversion charges in lump sum within 30 days of conversion. Thus, from the aforesaid condition, it is manifestly clear that the NOIDA had a scheme to exchange/convert smaller plots with that of bigger plots with condition that the allottee shall pay the premium for additional area at the prevailing rate. In that view of the matter, the cancellation of newly allotted plots of the petitioners on this ground is not permissible. Thus, the above action of the NOIDA appears to be arbitrary and based on the whims of its officers.

It reveals from lists no. 3 & 4 annexed with the supplementary affidavit filed by the NOIDA that the NOIDA had restored plots of other allottees whose conversions were cancelled on this very ground. Accordingly, we find that the action of NOIDA in not restoring the newly allotted plots in favour of these petitioners, is discriminatory and thus, violative of equality clause of the Constitution of India.

39. At last but not the least, it appears that after allotment of new plots by way of conversion, the petitioners had deposited huge amount with the NOIDA, towards the price of newly allotted plots. It further appears that the NOIDA had already taken possession of the old plots from these petitioners. It also appears from the record that in some cases, the NOIDA already transferred the interest of old plots in favour of third party. In that view of the matter, we find that a valuable right accrued in favour of the petitioners in connection with the newly allotted plots. Under the said circumstance, it is not open for the NOIDA to take away the aforesaid valuable right from the petitioners without affording them any opportunity of hearing. In the instant case, the petitioners categorically stated that the respondents had cancelled the allotment of new plots, without affording any opportunity, whatsoever, to the petitioners in contravention of the principles of natural justice. These statements made in the writ applications have not been denied by the NOIDA in its counter affidavit. Thus, we conclude that the NOIDA had cancelled the allotment of new plots of the petitioners without giving them any opportunity of hearing. Hence, in our view, the impugned order of cancellation is violative of principles of natural justice, therefore, non-est in the eye of law.

40. In view of the discussions made above, we conclude that the impugned orders, as contained in Annexure 18 series of the amended writ petition (relating to the petitioners no. 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 & 9), Annexure (I) of Civil Misc. Amendment Application No. 133611 (relating to petitioner no. 11) and Annexure no. 4 of each writ applications bearing Civil Misc. Writ Petitions No. 69517 & 69518 of 2011 are arbitrary, illegal, discriminatory, violative of principles of natural justice, thus, violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India, therefore, cannot be sustained.

41. As noticed above, admittedly the petitioners have been allotted new plots on conversion and they have been asked to pay conversion charges as mentioned in the conversion order. It has also been stated by the petitioners that they have paid certain amount towards conversion charges and they are also ready to pay rest of the amount provided the NOIDA issues challan for the same because the banks are not accepting the money unless the challans are issued by the NOIDA. It is pertinent to mention that initially Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 11973 of 1999 was filed only for issuance of a writ of mandamus commanding the NOIDA to issue challans as well as for acceptance of rest of the conversion charges and thereafter for delivery of possession of newly allotted plots. It is also stated that for similar relief one Pushpa Devi had filed a writ application in this Court which was allowed and against that the NOIDA had filed a SLP vide Special Leave Petition (Civil) No. 17606 of 2003 (Chairman NOIDA & others vs. Pushpa Devi), which was disposed of by the Hon'ble Supreme Court with a direction to NOIDA for accepting the amount and delivering possession of the new plot allotted to her after conversion. A similar order was also passed in SLP No.4857 of 2004 (Chief Executive Officer NOIDA Vs. Vanchit Leasing and Finance Co. & another).

42. Since we have already concluded herein above that the cancellation of conversion orders i.e. the orders impugned herein are illegal, arbitrary and violative of principles of natural justice, therefore, now the cases of the petitioners are similar to those of Pushpa Devi and Vanchit Leasing and Finance Co. (supra), as such, the aforesaid directions of Hon'ble Supreme Court can be made applicable in the case of these petitioners. Hence, we hold that the petitioners are also entitled to get the same relief.

43. In the result, the above writ petitions succeed and are accordingly allowed. The impugned orders as mentioned above are hereby quashed. We further direct the NOIDA to calculate the amount if the petitioners are further required to deposit any amount and issue challans in connection thereto within a period of one month from the date of communication of this Order, ignoring the delay, as observed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the order dated 22nd of March, 2004 in Special Leave Petition (Civil) No. 17606 of 2003, Chairman NOIDA & others vs. Pushpa Devi) and 4857 of 2004 (Chief Executive Officer NOIDA Vs. Vanchit Leasing and Finance Co. & another). The petitioners are directed to make payment as per the demand and challan issued by the NOIDA. We further direct that the NOIDA shall give possession of the newly allotted plots to the petitioners within 6 weeks from the date of deposit of the amount by the petitioners.

44. In the facts and circumstances of the case, we order that the parties shall bear their own costs.

Reference Against Misc. Acts No.- 1 Of 2008

In the Matter of Council of Institute of Charted Accountants ...Applicant
Versus
Shri Anil Kumar Sanghi F C A ...Opposite Party

Counsel for Applicant:
Vinod Swarup

Counsel for Opposite Party:
ASGI, Gyan Prakash, RB Singhal

Subject Matter
Chartered Accountants Act, 1949 - Sections 21, 22 - Professional and other misconduct - Reference under Section 21(5) for confirmation of CICA's recommendation to remove a Chartered Accountant's name from the Register of Members - Charges of non-disclosure of material facts in financial statements, gross professional negligence in facilitating tax evasion, and unauthorized engagement in non-professional business without Institute's permission - Held, findings of Disciplinary Committee on Charges 1, 2 and 8 confirmed as based on cogent material and recorded without procedural infirmity; recommendation of removal from membership for five years confirmed.

Facts
A complaint dated 19.03.1998 under Section 21(1) of the Act was forwarded by Smt. Seema Raj, Assistant Commissioner Income Tax, Central Circle IV, New Delhi, against the respondent, Chartered Accountant of one Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav (son of a former Union Minister), in the context of allegations of kick-backs of Rs. 133 crores in the Urea Scam and consequent CBI/CEIB inquiries. Income Tax searches conducted between June 1996 and January 1997 revealed huge cash deposits aggregating approximately Rs. 27.86 crores in three bank accounts of the respondent's concerns, M/s Anil Sanghi & Associates and M/s Ganpati Investment Consultants, which amounts were thereafter transferred, directly or through intermediate accounts, into eight companies in which Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav and his family members held controlling positions as directors/authorized signatories. Statements recorded on oath indicated that the cash had in fact been furnished by Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav to the respondent for being given the appearance of genuineness and returned to him through cheques/demand drafts to the companies, which initially filed no returns and, after search and notices under Section 158BC of the Income Tax Act, 1961, declared the amounts received as loans from the respondent's two concerns, with a further sum of Rs. 10,44,78,000/- falsely shown as share capital/share application money from the public in one such company. The respondent did not respond to the complaint forwarded to him on 25.10.1999. CICA, in its 233rd meeting (7th-8th and 24th-25th April, 2003), referred the matter to a Disciplinary Committee under Section 21(1), which framed eight charges covering non-disclosure of material facts, use of professional knowledge to facilitate tax evasion, giving false statements on oath, collusion in misleading government agencies as to the true nature of the deposits, violation of SEBI guidelines in introducing undisclosed income as share capital, banking irregularities including forgery, and unauthorized proprietorship of a non-professional concern. After hearings between December 2003 and April 2004 - during which the respondent appeared, pleaded not guilty, deposed and was cross-examined on 28th-29th April 2004 but thereafter failed to appear on 30.04.2004 without information - the Disciplinary Committee held Charges 1, 2 and 8 proved as professional/other misconduct under Clause (11) Part I of the First Schedule and Clause (7) Part I of the Second Schedule read with Sections 21 and 22 of the Act, and held Charges 3 to 7 not proved. CICA thereafter afforded a further opportunity of hearing under Section 21(4), which the respondent neither responded to nor availed of, and in March 2008 resolved to remove his name from membership for five years, making the present Reference under Section 21(5) for confirmation of that recommendation. Before the High Court too, though represented by counsel, the respondent chose not to appear or make submissions.

Issues

1. Whether the findings of the Disciplinary Committee holding Charges 1, 2 and 8 proved against the respondent were based on cogent material, recorded after due compliance with the procedure and principles of natural justice under Section 21 of the Act, and were not perverse or such as no person of ordinary prudence could arrive at.
2. Whether the recommendation of CICA to remove the respondent's name from the Register of Members for a period of five years warranted confirmation under Section 21(5) of the Act.

Held

The respondent's own deposition before the Disciplinary Committee admitted that the amounts deposited in his two concerns were shown as his own money without satisfactorily explaining the source of such huge cash deposits, and admitted to having engaged in non-professional business as proprietor of M/s Ganpati Investment Consultants without seeking the Institute's permission. The Committee's findings that the respondent had filed block-period returns knowingly declaring money belonging to Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav as his own (Charge 1), had used his professional knowledge as a Chartered Accountant to facilitate large-scale tax evasion by Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav and was grossly negligent in his professional duties (Charge 2), and had engaged in unauthorized non-professional work as proprietor of a firm without institutional permission (Charge 8), were founded on the material on record, including the respondent's own admissions, and could not be said to be erroneous or perverse. The procedure prescribed under Section 21, consistent with principles of natural justice, was found to have been duly observed, with adequate opportunity of hearing afforded to the respondent at every stage, including a further opportunity under Section 21(4) which he chose not to avail. The charges found proved were regarded as serious professional misconduct warranting confirmation of the Disciplinary Committee's findings and CICA's recommendation.

Result

Reference answered accordingly. Recommendation of CICA confirmed. Name of Respondent-Anil Kumar Sanghi (FCA) directed to be removed from the Members of the Council of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India for a period of five years, during which he shall stand disqualified from practising as a Chartered Accountant. Copy of judgment directed to be sent to CICA for compliance and necessary action.

Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. This is a Reference under Section 21(5) of Chartered Accountants Act, 1949 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1949) as it was before its substitution and amendment by Act No. 9 of 2006 which came into force on 17.11.2006, in the matter of Sri Anil Kumar Sangi, Chartered Accountant at NOIDA.

2. Brief facts necessary for exercising powers under Section 21(6) of Act, 1949 may be stated as under.

3. Smt. Seema Raj, Assistant Commissioner Income Tax, Central Circle IV, New Delhi (hereinafter referred to as the "ACIT, New Delhi") forwarded a complaint dated 19.03.1998 under Section 21(1) of Act, 1949 against Respondent-Anil Kumar Sanghi, alleging that he was Chartered Accountant of one Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav son of Sri Ram Lakhan Singh Yadav, Former Union Minister. In the wake of allegations on Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav regarding receipt of kick-backs of Rs. 133 crores Urea Scam, certain inquiries were conducted by Central Bureau of Investigation (hereinafter referred to as the "CBI") and Central Economic Intelligence Bureau (hereinafter referred to as the "CEIB"). On the basis of information received from CEIB, Income Tax Authorities conducted searches at residential premises of Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav and Respondent-Anil Kumar Sanghi, registered offices of companies of Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav and on the bank accounts of such companies and on persons/ related persons. These searches were conducted between June, 1996 to January, 1997 and therein following facts were revealed:

"(a) Huge cash deposits running into crores of rupees had been made by the Respondent in three bank accounts of his concerns viz.M/s Anil Sanghi and Associates and M/s Ganpati Invtt. Consultants.

Details of these bank accounts and the cash deposits in them are as follows:

Bank Accounts	Name of Account holder	Total deposit from financial year 1993-94 to 1.11.1996 (the date of search) (in Rs)
1.No.612 in Jammu & Kashmir Bank,NOIDA	M/s Anil Sanghi & Associates	25,47,95,300.00
2.No.613 in Jammu & Kashmir Bank,NOIDA	M/s Ganpati Investment Consultants	71,66,400.00
3.No.2387 in Andhra Bank,Asaf Ali Road,New Delhi.	M/s Ganpati Investment Consultants	1,66,91,616.00
	Grand Total	27,86,53,316.00

(b) The money so deposited in these three accounts had then been transferred either directly or after being routed through one or more bank accounts into the following Companies in which Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav and his family members were in the controlling position as Directors/ Authorized Signatories for the bank accounts of the Companies:

Name of the Companies	Amount transferred to the company from one of the three accounts(Rs.)	Whether Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav/his family members were directors /Authorized Signatories
1. M/s Vaidahi Lease & Finance Pvt.Ltd	1,20,00,000.00	Shri Harshvardhan,S/o Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav was the director as well as authorized signatory.
2.M/s Shilpi Securities Pvt.Ltd.	1,20,00,000.00	Shri Harshvardhan,S/o Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav was the director.
3.M/s Independent Courier Pvt.Ltd	1,31,00,000.00	Smt. Manju Yadav, W/o Shri. Prakash Chandra Yadav was the authorized signatory.
4.M/s Harmony Psychiatry Center Pvt.Ltd.	1,31,00,000.00	Smt. Manju Yadav ,W/o Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav was the director and authorised signatory.
5.M/s Patliputra International Trading Ltd.	2,79,38,500.00	Shri.Prakash Chandra Yadav and his wife were the promoters /subscribers and Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav was the authorized signatory.
6.M/s Kandla Petrochemicals Corpn.Ltd	2,24,16,000.00	Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav, his son & his wife were directors and Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav was the authorized signatory.
7.M/s Uikam Invtt. & Finance Pvt.Ltd	4,55,12,000.00	Shri Harshvardhan ,S/o Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav was the authorized signatory.
8. M/s Patliputra Credit & Securities Ltd.	11,24,96,439.00	Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav, his wife and father were the directors.
Total amount transferred	25,85,63,939.00

4. Statement of respondent on oath was recorded on different dates by ADIT (Investigation), New Delhi/ ACIT, New Delhi about source of cash deposits in three accounts mentioned above. From these statements and facts which were available to Income Tax Department, it became evident that cash approximating to Rs. 27.86 crores was given by Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav to respondent for returning it to former after giving it appearance of genuineness. In the process of achievement of this end respondent deposited above amounts in bank accounts of his own concern and then issued cheques and demand drafts to companies in which Sri Prakash Chandra Yadav was Secretary. No returns were filed by these companies until the time of search. But, after search and on receipt of notices under Section 158 BC of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1961"), companies filed their returns for block period wherein amounts received by them from three accounts were shown as loan from M/s Anil Sanghi and Associates and M/s Ganpati Investment Consultants. An amount of Rs. 10,44,78,000/- shown in accounts of M/s Patliputra Credit and Securities Ltd. was shown as share capital/ share application money received from public though it was nothing but money received from one or more of said three accounts.

5. Copy of complaint dated 19.03.1998 was forwarded to respondent alongwith letter dated 25.10.1999 for his response on said complaint. Respondent, however, failed to give any reply. Thereafter aforesaid complaint was considered by Council of Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (hereinafter referred to as the "CICA") in its 233rd meeting held on 7th, 8th and continued on 24th and 25th April, 2003. It decided to refer matter to Disciplinary Committee for inquiry as contemplated under Section 21(1) of Act, 1949. Disciplinary Committee made its inquiry on following eight charges:

"(1) Since the Respondent has filed his return for the block period declaring the cash deposited in the three accounts to be his income and the block period returns of eight companies (in which Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav and /or his family members were in controlling position) showing the money introduced into them as loan from his two concerns M/s. Anil Sanghi & Associates and M/s. Ganpati Investment Consultants, knowing fully well that it is not his but Shri Prakash Chandra's money. Thus, he has failed to disclose a material fact known to him (which is not disclosed) in a financial statement but disclosure of which is necessary to make the financial statement not misleading".

(2) The Respondent has used his knowledge as a Chartered Accountant to help Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav in evasion of tax running into crores of rupees. Thus the Respondent has been grossly negligent in the conduct of his professional duties.

(3) The Respondent has given false statements under oath before Government agencies in order to bail out Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav.

(4) The Respondent has obtained the resignations of Shri Prakash Chandra /his family members from all the companies and taken over as their Director to make it appear that it was he who in the first place purchased /promoted these Companies. Returns for all these Companies have been filed after search & signed by him as director. Thus the Respondent was working in collusion with Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav and trying to mislead Government agencies about the true nature of cash deposit in his accounts .

(5) The Respondent gave the idea to introduce part of the undisclosed income of Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav into M/s. Patliputra Credit & Securities Ltd., in the form of share capital subscribed by the public and for this purpose, he, even went to the extent of violating the guidelines issued by the SEBI.

(6) The Respondent has committed irregularities in banks by misusing people's photographs /names and even forging their signatures.

(7) The Respondent flouted guidance /guidelines issued by Securities & Exchange Board of India (SEBI) from time to time.

(8) The Respondent was the Proprietor of M/s. Ganpati Investment Consultants."

6. Disciplinary Committee initially scheduled its inquiry fixing 24.12.2003 which was re-scheduled as 26.12.2003 but it was adjourned on the request of respondent to 30.01.2004. Again on 30.01.2004 and 03.03.2004 matter was adjourned. On 28.04.2004 respondent was present in proceedings and after administering oath, charges were read out to him and he pleaded not guilty. Then on 29.04.2004 when matter was taken up respondent was present for hearing. His statement was recorded and he was also cross-examined by Disciplinary Committee Members. On next day, i.e., 30.04.2004 respondent failed to appear and also gave no information, notice or request to Disciplinary Committee. In view thereof Committee concluded oral hearing and submitted report holding Charges 1, 2 and 8 of "professional misconduct" falling within Clause (11) Part I of First Schedule and Clause (7) Part I of Second Schedule and other misconduct under Sections 22 read with 21 of Act, 1949, proved.

7. With regard to Charges 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 Disciplinary Committee held respondent not guilty of "professional misconduct".

8. Thereafter CICA decided to give an opportunity of hearing to respondent under Section 21(4) of Act, 1949 before passing any order against him. Respondent, however, neither submitted any reply before CICA nor appeared on date fixed, in the meeting of CICA in March, 2008. Hence CICA decided to remove name of respondent from registered Member for a period of five years and has made present Reference under Section 21(5) of Act, 1949.

9. Before us also though respondent is represented through Sri P.K. Tripathi, Advocate but he has chosen not to appear and advance his submissions. Hence we had no option but to proceed to decide matter after hearing Sri Vinod Swarup, Advocate appearing for CICA and perusal of record.

10. With respect to Charges 1, 2 and 8 found proved against respondent, we find that Disciplinary Committee has recorded its findings as under:

"5.1 The Respondent in his deposition before the Committee submitted that the money deposited in the two concerns, M/s. Anil Sanghi & Associates and M/s. Ganpati Investment Consultants belongs to him. The Income Tax Department had assessed the income in his hands and the same income had been assessed in the hands of Mr. Prakash Chandra also. The issue is pending before the ITAT and the matter will be finally decided by the Tribunal.

5.2 In view of the above, according to the Respondent, the Committee could not take a view unless the decision is delivered by the ITAT. On being reminded, that the Committee is examining his professional conducted vis-a-vis the complaint filed by the Income Tax Department, the Respondent submitted that the total amount deposited in the Bank account was his undisclosed income. As regards the source of the money deposited in these accounts, the Respondent submitted that it was his personal money and he had given advances and loans to the listed companies which are his companies.

5.3 The respondent further submitted that M/s. Anil Kumar Sanghi & Associates is a professional firm and M/s. Ganpati Investment Consultants is not a professional firm and he was Proprietor of both the firms. The Respondent admitted that he had not sought any permission from the Institution for engaging himself in any work other than the profession and pleaded guilty on this account. As regards the Directorship of the Companies, the Respondent submitted that at that time he was the Director of those Companies. Shri Prakash Chandra Yadav and family members were appointed Directors in the year 1996 and they were Directors upto 1997. He further submitted that Mr. Prakash Chandra Yadav and his family members were also signatories to these bank accounts. As regards the allegation that the Respondent had used his knowledge as a Chartered Accountant and helped Mr. Prakash Chandra Yadav to evade tax, he submitted that the money belongs to him only and Mr. Prakash Chandra Yadav and his family members were simply the signatories.

5.4 The Committee perused the various documents filed by the Complainant and the Respondent and the deposition of the Respondent. The Committee noted that the first charge leveled against the Respondent was that he had filed his return for the block period declaring the cash deposited in the three accounts to be his income and the block period return of eight companies in which Mr. Prakash Chandra Yadav and/or his family members were in controlling position showing the money introduced to them as loan from these companies knowing fully well that it was not his but Mr. Prakash Chandra's money. The Respondent in this regard submitted that it was his money which he deposited in his bank account and as such there is nothing wrong.

5.5 According to the Committee, in view of the above statements made by the Respondent at various points of time before the IT Department and the failure on his part to explain the source of income before the Committee that from where he had deposited such huge cash in the bank account, the contention of the Respondent that money deposited in bank a/c was his own money could be accepted. The Committee was of the opinion that the Respondent was guilty of the charge whereby he had filed return for the block declaring the cash deposited in the bank account showing the money introduced into them as his own money.

5.6 As regards the second charge that the Respondent had used his knowledge as a CA to help Shri Prakash Chandra in the evasion of tax running into crores of rupees and thus the Respondent had been grossly negligent in the conduct of his professional duties, the above facts as coming out from the statements clearly substantiate the allegation that the Respondent had helped Shri Prakash Chandra in the evasion of tax. There is a clear cut admission by the Respondent in his statement that he had committed a mistake to deposit such huge cash and the purpose of giving this cash was to give it white colour and channelise such cash for further utilization*. Therefore, in the opinion of the Committee the Respondent was* guilty of this charge also*.*

5.13 The last charge levelled against the Respondent was that he was the Proprietor of M/s Ganpati Investment Consultants which is carrying out work other than professional work. The Respondent during the course of hearing before the Committee admitted that M/s Ganpati Investment Consultants is a Proprietorship Firm and it is not carrying on any professional work. He also admitted that he had not sought any permission from the Institute to engage in any work other than the profession*. Therefore, the Respondent had pleaded guilty before the Committee of this charge. Accordingly in the opinion of the Committee, the* Respondent was guilty of this charge*." (emphasis added)*

11. Aforesaid charges are quite serious and found proved on the basis of material before Disciplinary Committee.

12. We also find that procedure prescribed under Section 21 which is consistent with requirement of principle of natural justice has been observed; adequate opportunity was afforded to respondent and there is neither any procedural flaw nor it can be said that findings in respect to Charges 1, 2 and 8, which have been found proved, erroneous or such as no person or ordinary prudence will come to such conclusion as has been arrived at by Disciplinary Committee.

13. In view of above, we confirm recommendation of CICA and direct that name of Respondent-Anil Kumar Sanghi (FCA) shall be removed from Members of Council of Institute of Chartered Accountants for a period of five years. Respondent shall stand disqualified to practice as Chartered Accountant for the aforesaid period.

14. The Reference is answered accordingly.

15. Let a copy of this judgment be sent to Council of Institute of Chartered Accountants forthwith for compliance and necessary action.

In The Matter Of Council Of Institute Of Chartered Accountant of India ...Applicant
Versus
Sri Om Prakash Tulsyan, FCA Chartered Accountant ...Opposite Party

Counsel for Applicant:
Vinod Swaroop

Counsels for Opposite Party:
Amit Mahajan, Additional Solicitor General of India, Gaurav Mahajan, R.B. Singhal

FACTS

This Reference under Section 21(5) of the Chartered Accountants Act, 1949 was received from the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (ICAI) on the recommendation of its Council, made in its 268th meeting held from 30.4.2007 to 2.5.2007, accepting the report of the Disciplinary Committee and holding the respondent, Om Prakash Tulsyan, FCA, of Varanasi, guilty of 'other misconduct' under Section 22 read with Section 21 of the Act, 1949, with a recommended punishment of removal of his name from the Register of Members for one year.

The respondent, then Statutory Auditor and Tax Consultant of M/s Rungta Irrigation Limited (RIL), had in March 1995 persuaded the complainants, NRIs based in the USA, to invest over Rs. 4.52 crore in shares of RIL through their Overseas Corporate Body, M/s Durga Finance Limited. RIL did not deliver the shares to the complainants. The respondent took delivery of 7,54,900 shares from RIL on the strength of an authority letter purportedly signed by one of the complainants, Smt. Parwati Agarwal, which was subsequently found to be forged as per an FSL report. The respondent could produce no evidence that the shares, or the dividend amounts and TDS certificates also collected by him, were ever returned to the complainants; the shares were instead found transferred to and sold among various individuals, some of whom were shown to be associated with RIL.

Despite repeated opportunities and adjournments granted over several dates, the respondent did not meaningfully participate before the Disciplinary Committee, which ultimately proceeded and concluded the enquiry ex parte. In its report dated 2.2.2005, the Disciplinary Committee, after detailed analysis of the documentary record, held the respondent guilty of 'other misconduct', noting his failure to explain the disposal of shares and sale proceeds, his admitted receipt of shares and dividend cheques, and the forged authority letter used to obtain delivery. The Council of ICAI, after affording the respondent a further opportunity of written representation and oral hearing (which he availed on 30.4.2007), accepted the Disciplinary Committee's report and made the present Reference to this Court for final orders on punishment.

ISSUES FOR CONSIDERATION

(i) Whether the findings of the Disciplinary Committee, as accepted by the Council of ICAI, holding the respondent guilty of 'other misconduct' in connection with the fraudulent handling of the complainants' shares and sale proceeds, were sustainable on the material on record.

(ii) Whether the respondent had discharged the burden of explaining his admitted receipt of the shares, dividend cheques, and TDS certificates, and their subsequent disposal, particularly in light of the forged authority letter used to obtain delivery.

(iii) Whether the punishment of removal from the Register of Members for one year, as recommended by the Council of ICAI, was commensurate with the gravity of the misconduct.

HELD

The Court held that the findings of the Disciplinary Committee, as accepted by the Council of ICAI, were well supported by the record. The respondent, a Statutory Auditor of RIL, had admittedly taken delivery of the complainants' shares and dividend cheques but failed to bring any evidence that these were returned to the complainants or disposed of on their instructions; the authority letter on the strength of which delivery was taken stood established as forged, a fact not rebutted either by the respondent or by RIL. Counsel for the respondent, despite being repeatedly called upon, was unable to point to any perversity or misreading of evidence in the findings of the Disciplinary Committee or the Council. The Court also noted independent corroboration in the form of correspondence between RIL and the respondent suggesting collusion, and a police verification report confirming the genuineness of that correspondence.

On the question of punishment, the Court held that a Chartered Accountant occupies a position of fiduciary trust, and the respondent, a senior Fellow Member, had defrauded the complainants of a very large sum and benefited illegally. The Court expressed strong disapproval of the Council's recommendation of removal for only one year, describing it as an eye-wash reflecting undue leniency inconsistent with ICAI's statutory responsibility to the public, and observed that persons guilty of such serious misconduct ought not to be given the opportunity to re-enter the profession after a short period. While observing that the case merited permanent removal, the Court moderated the punishment in view of the long pendency of the matter and the respondent's advanced age (over 70 years), and enhanced the punishment to removal of the respondent's name from the Register of Membership for five years.

RESULT

Reference answered in the affirmative, confirming the finding of guilt against the respondent for 'other misconduct' under Section 22 read with Section 21 of the Chartered Accountants Act, 1949. The punishment recommended by the Council of ICAI is modified: the respondent's name shall be removed from the Register of Membership of ICAI for a period of five years, to commence from the date notified by ICAI. A copy of the judgment was directed to be sent forthwith to ICAI for consequential action.

Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vinod Swarup, counsel for petitioners, Sri Gaurav Mahajan, counsel for respondent and perused the records.

2. This is a reference received under section 21 (5) of Chartered Accountants Act, 1949 (hereinafter referred to as Act 1949") from the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (hereinafter referred to as "ICAI") on the recommendations made by council of ICAI in its 268th meeting held from 30.4.2007 to 2.5.2007 at New Delhi, resolving to accept report of Disciplinary Committee and hold Sri Om Prakash Tulsyan, Fellow Chartered Accountant (hereinafter referred to as "the Respondent") (FCA (M. No.11165), of M/s O.P. Tulsyan and Company-C-21/88-N, Kamla Kutir, Lahaurabir, Varanasi, guilty of professional misconduct falling within the meaning of "other misconduct" under Section 22 read with section 21 of Act, 1949 and recommending punishment of removal of his name from the Register of Members of ICAI for a period of one year.

3. Facts in brief are, that, respondent was working as an Auditor and Tax Consultant for M/s Rungta Irrigation Limited (hereinafter referrred to as "RIL"). In March, 1995, Respondent approached Sri Mangi Lal Agarwal and Smt. Parwati Agarwal (hereinafter referred to as "complainants) who were NRIs in USA, with a proposal to invest in Initial Public Offerings (in short IPOs) of RIL. Complainants invested a sum of Rs. 4,52,94,000/- in the shares of RIL through their Overseas Corporate Body (OCB), i.e M/s Durga Finance Limited (hereinafter referred as "DFL"). RIL did not deliver shares to the complainants. Respondent forged papers and indulged in other un -professional activities, possibly in collusion with RIL and some other persons.

4. As per the stand taken by RIL, Respondent had taken delivery of shares on behalf of Complainants, by submitting an authority letter, allegedly signed by Smt. Parwati Agarwal. Complainants said that letters were totally bogus and false. No such signed letters were handed over to Respondent. Complainants believed that Respondent had sold shares of RIL in respect whereto investment was made by Complainants to some persons/entities who in turns had submitted shares to RIL for transfer. Complainants had never sold or mortgaged shares to any one.

5. Letter dated 24.3.1998 making aforesaid complaint was received by ICAI from Complainants. Notice was issued to Respondent who submitted reply/written statement, verified on 27.8.1999. Complainants submitted their rejoinder, duly verified, on 14.10.1999. Thereafter, Respondent again submitted comments, duly verified on 29.11.1999.

6. These documents were examined by Council of ICAI in accordance with Regulation 12(11) of Chartered Accountants Regulations 1988 (hereinafter referred to as "Regulation, 1988"). In a meeting held in May, 2002 at New Delhi, Council formed its opinion that prima facie Respondent was guilty of professional and/or other misconduct, hence decided to cause an enquiry to be made in the matter by Disciplinary Committee.

7. Consequently Disciplinary Committee held its enquiry and commenced the same by fixing 17.10.2002 as the first date of inquiry. First three dates, namely, 17.10.2002, 12.3.2003 and 21.4.2003, proceedings before Disciplinary Committee were adjourned on the request made by Respondent. Thereafter on 5.8.2003, Complainants were present still Respondent was absent. Disciplinary Committee, however, commenced its proceedings and partly heard the matter and then adjourned to 4.11.2003 and 5.11.2003. On 4.11.2003, Respondent submitted an application that he has filed writ petition in High Court and requested for stay of proceedings by Disciplinary Committee. Respondent himself was not present. An application along with medical certificate was submitted by an Advocate appearing on behalf of Respondent. It also stated that Respondent was ill, hence could not appear.

8. Disciplinary Committee sent a fax message to Respondent asking him to send a copy of writ petition and stay order, if any, and matter was adjourned to 5.11.2003. Again it was adjourned for 26.12.2003 for enquiry on the specific issue, whether proceedings should be stayed or not. On this date also, Complainants were present. Respondent was represented through Counsel. Both advanced their submissions. Matter was then adjourned to 30.1.2004, when both Complainants were present but on behalf of Respondent a letter was received by Disciplinary Committee stating that Respondent has approached High Court hence Disciplinary Committee must stay proceedings. In the interest of justice, Disciplinary Committee adjourned the matter with the last opportunity to Respondent to remain present on the next date else it shall proceed ex-parte and fixed the matter for 3.3.2004. On the next date fixed, only Complainants were present and Respondent did not appear. A fax message was received by ICAI from the office of Respondent requesting adjournment. Disciplinary Committee noted that request for adjournment was frequently accepted in the past giving sufficient opportunity to Respondent but he has not availed the same, hence there was no occasion to defer the matter further. Consquently, proceedings continued and concluded ex-parte against Respondent. Disciplinary Committee thereafter submitted its report on 2.2.2005 recording its finding in paras 21 to 28 of report which read as under:-

21. The Committee has considered the rival contentions, the statement of the witness and the various documents submitted before the Committee. This is a case where the allegation is that the Respondent has defrauded the Complainants. It is important to analyse the following facts which emerge out of the documents submitted by the parties and the submissions made at the time of hearings which took place before the Committee.

(i) The Respondent was a Statutory Auditor of RIL.

(ii) The Respondent has admitted that he had met the Complainants in the month of February/ March, 1995 and the investment was made by the Complainants.

(iii) The Respondent has also admitted that he helped Mrs. Parwati Agrawal in the procedural part for the purpose of making share application in RIL. This fact has also been confirmed by RIL in their letter dated 16th June, 1999 whereby it has been informed to Delhi Police that the Respondent has completed the entire formalities for investment in shares by DFL and he was business associate of the complainants.

(iv) The Respondent has taken the delivery of the Share Certificates from RIL.

(v) The Respondent confirmed that he has taken the shares from Mrs. Parwati Agrawal.

(vi) Shares were disposed of on the basis of the delivery taken by the Respondent from Mrs. Parwati Agrawal and he was the person through him the further delivery to the prospective buyers have taken place.

(vii) That the authority letter on the basis of which delivery was taken by the Respondent was forged. The Respondent as well as the Company M/s. Rungta Irrigation Ltd. has not rebutted this fact though it is being contended that this forged letter was delivered by employee of the Complainants. The Institute's office also received a letter from office of the Assistant Commissioner of Police: CBT: EOW: Crime Branch, New Delhi mentioning that the authority letter dated 23.11.1993 purportedly signed by Mrs. Parwati Agrawal was opined to be forged according to the FSL Report dated 31.5.1999.

(viii) The Respondent does not have any evidence or document that he has delivered the shares certificates to Mrs. Parwati Agrawal after taking delivery from RIL.

(ix) That the Respondent does not have any evidence that he had any authority to sell these shares, which admittedly got sold and transferred in the record of the Company, besides in the name of the various shareholders, in the name of Apex Finance Ltd. from which as per his own reply he has arranged loan for Mrs. Parwati Agarwal and as such he was associated with Apex Finance Ltd. This fact gets further support from the fact that a sum of Rs. 4,10,000/- is outstanding as an advance in the Balance sheet of M/s. Apex Finance Ltd. as on 31.3.1996 in the name of the Respondent.

(x) Apex Finance Ltd. was an associated company of RIL, as is evident from the fact that M/s. Rungta Irrigation Ltd. has given a substantial amount towards share application.

(xi) The Respondent was a Director in Palm Global Finance Ltd. (previous name of Apex Finance Ltd.) along with Mr. S.K. Rungta as is evident from Form No. 32 filed with Registrar of Companies and in the annual return of the Company.

(xii) The Complainants had made investments in share of RIL, through DFL and as per letter dated 13th March, 1995 written by Mr. Sanjay Rungta, Managing Director of RIL, there was a confirmation to pay 4 per cent brokerage on the investment to be made in the shares of RIL and a further guaranteed return of 2.5 per cent per month and buy back of the shares after six months. The signature on this letter has been confirmed by the Company Secretary of RIL, Mr. Bhagwan Kumar who appeared as a witness before the Committee.

(xiii) That there is no explanation from the Respondent who was involved in this process of investments as well as from Company, that how this brokerage and assured return was paid to the complainants.

(xiv) The Respondents in his written statement has stated that the Complainants has asked the Respondent to arrange funds for purchase of a big farm house and accordingly the funds were arranged from M/s. Apex Finance Ltd. The Respondent also enclosed a statement of account on the basis of it was contended that the outstanding amount of Rs. 70 lacs has been adjusted against the sale proceeds of the shares. The Complainants has rebutted this and has stated that only a sum of Rs. 35 lacs was received and that too accounted for as income and not on account of loan as alleged by the Respondent.

(xv) The above sum of Rs. 35 lacs can be co related with the payment which the Managing Director has confirmed in his letter dated 13th March, 1995 to the Complainants for investment in the shares of Rungta Irrigation Ltd.

(xvi) The Respondent in his written statement has referred to another Company M/s Vatsal Investments Ltd. of which it has been alleged, Mrs. Parwati Agarwal was also debtor, but surprisingly no amount, no details, no copy of account has been submitted. Further the sale proceeds of 5,00,000 shares @ Rs. 20 per share has been adjusted in this copy of account despite the admitted fact that there was no permission from RBI to sell these shares.

(xvii) The Respondent has not produced any document or evidence to support his statement that loan was given by Apex Finance Ltd. The Respondent except filing a copy of statement of Mrs. Parwati Agarwal with M/s Apex Finance Ltd. on plain paper, that too without any confirmation has not submitted any other evidence. There is no material to support the explanation of the Respondent that it was a loan only. Nor there is any authorization from the Complainants to sell the shares registered in the name of M/s Durga Finance Ltd. an Overseas Corporate Body of the Complainants and to adjust the sale proceeds against the alleged loan in the name of Mrs. Parwati Agarwal.

(xviii) There is no explanation from the Respondent how the other shares reached in the hands of 75 odd individual buyers and what was the mode of sale of these shares.

22. In view of above facts and analysis, the Committee noted that as per the Complainants this delivery was unauthorized as no authority letter was issued by Mrs. Parwati Agarwal. The fact that the authority letter was not signed by Mrs. Parwati Agarwal is also on record and has not been rebutted either by the Respondent or by RIL. The Respondent's and the Company's contention is that this letter was delivered by one Mr. Sunil Kumar but the fact remains that this letter was a forged letter and not signed by Mrs. Parwati Agarwal. In the circumstances, the delivery taken by the Respondent was unauthorized. Further as per SEBI guidelines, the share certificates have to be sent by registered post and normally should not have been delivered in the manner in which it is being contended by the Respondent as well as RIL.

23. The contention of the Respondent that he has delivered the share certificates to Mrs. Parwati Agrawal after having received the same from RIL and the same was again delivered back by Mrs. Parvati Agarwal for further sale by the Respondent can not be accepted. The Respondent has not been able to bring any material or evidence in support of his contention. The Respondent has received the share certificates as per his own contention from RIL after giving a receipt to the Company. If that be so, it is difficult to accept that the Respondent delivered back the certificates to Mrs. Parwati Agarwal without obtaining any receipt for the same.

24. The Respondent, as per his own contention, has submitted that the share certificates were delivered back by Mrs. Parwati Agarwal alongwith the transfer deed for selling the same. If that be so, how those shares have been sold and how the money has been accounted for in respect of the shares sold to 75 individual persons, the Respondent has failed to give any explanation and justification. Moreover, the Respondent in his letter dated 5th March, 1999 addressed to the Additional DCP, New Delhi has stated that he was willing to arrange for re-transfer of 5,75,000 shares transferred in the name of M/s provided they returned back the amount of money taken away from these Companies along with interest as per business practice.

25. The allegation of the Complainants is that these shares have been transferred to various persons who happen to be close associate/employees/relatives of RIL and its Directors. In this connection, the Complainants pointed out to the Committee that the witness Mr. Bhagwan Kumar, Company Secretary, RIL, who appeared before the Committee initially denied that any of these persons to whom the shares have been transferred are the employees of RIL but when he had been put a specific question in respect of one transferee, namely, Shri Baby Kaypee, the witness confirmed that he is working in the office of RIL.

26. The Committee further noted that the Respondent having admitted that the share certificates with the transfer deeds were handed over by Mrs. Parwati Agarwal to him, has not been able to produce any evidence about how the consideration received from these shareholders have been paid back to Mrs. Parwati Agarwal. These shares were allotted in the name of DFL, an overseas Corporate Body registered in Mauritius. The Respondent was well aware of this fact and still in his reply has taken a stand that part of the consideration has been paid in cash though without bringing any evidence on record.

27. The Committee also noted that the Respondent alongwith the written statement enclosed a letter dated 16th June, 1999, written by RIL to the Joint Commissioner, of Police (Crime), Delhi as part of his defence whereby it has been claimed by the Company that the dividend cheques were handed over personally to the Respondent. The Respondent has nowhere been able to explain why he took personal delivery of the dividend cheques. It is interesting to note that in this letter RIL has stated that the Respondent was having business association with the Complainants and he was enjoying authority of the complainants.

28. The Committee noted that the entire explanation of the Respondent has been that he is being falsely implicated. The facts as brought on record and as analysed above do not support the explanation given by the Respondent. The Respondent being the Statutory Auditor of RIL, has taken delivery of the shares registered in the name of DFL. He has failed to bring any evidence on record that these shares were delivered back to DFL. The Respondent has admitted that he has received back the shares from the shareholders. These shares have been disposed of by the Respondent and the Respondent has failed to bring any material or evidence on record that these shares were disposed of as per the instructions of the concerned shareholders and the sale proceeds of the same have been accounted for as per the directions or instructions of the Complainants. The Committee further noted that the Respondent has taken delivery of the shares on an authority letter which was forged and the fact which has not been rebutted by the Respondent as well as the Company. Moreover, the Committee also noted from the letter received from office of the Assistant Commissioner of Police: CBD:EOW:Crime Branch, New Delhi that the authority letter dated 23rd November, 1995 purportedly signed by Mrs. Parwati Agarwal was opined to be forged according to the FSL Report dated 31st May, 1999."

9. In view of the aforesaid findings, Disciplinary Committee drawn its conclusion holding Respondent guilty of charges levelled by Complainants falling within meaning of "other misconduct" under Section 22 read with Section 21 of Act, 1949. It also noted the conduct of non-cooperation on the part of Respondent.

10. After receiving report dated 2.2.2005 from Disciplinary Committee, the same was forwarded to both the parties i.e Complainants and Respondent, vide ICAI's letter dated 18.1.2007. Both parties were directed to submit their written statement, if any, to ICAI and also to intimate whether they propose to appear before Council, either in person or through a Member of ICAI, duly authorisized by them, to make oral submissions. Vide ICAI letters dated 1.3.2007 and 29.3.2007, parties were informed that Disciplinary Committee's report would be considered by Council of ICAI in the meeting held between 12.3.2007 to 14.3.2007 and 10.3.2007 to 11.3.2007. Complainants submitted their written statement on 7.5.2007 on the report of Disciplinary Committee but Respondent sought adjournment. ICAI accepted request for adjournement and communicated it vide letters dated 9.3.2007 and 5.4.2007, respectively. The matter was again proposed to be considered in the meeting held from 30.4.2007 to 2.5.2007. One of complainants, Mr. Mangi Lal Agarwal, appeared before Council for making oral submissions. Respondent also submitted written representation on 30.4.2007 and appeared alongwith his counsel before Council of ICAI and made oral submissions.

11. Having considered the same, Council decided to accept report of Disciplinary Committee and held Respondent guilty of "professional misconduct" and accordingly has made this Reference under section 21(5) of Act, 1949 to this Court.

12. The facts regarding receipt of shares issued by RIL to Complainants, having been delivered to Respondent are evident from record. For taking such delivery, Respondent submitted an authority letter dated 23.11.1995 alleged to have been signed by Mrs. Parwati Agarwal and said letter was presented to RIL through a person representing himself as Sri Sunil Kumar. Shares were collected by Respondent on 16.12.1995 against a receipt issued to RIL. RIL also paid divident amounting Rs. 6,27,020/- (crores). The dividend cheques and TDS certificates were also handed over to Respondent. These cheques were negotiated by DFL on 21.6.1996 and 12.12.1996 towards net divident of Rs. 5,36,100/- and Rs. 5,01,606/-, respectively. Thereafter, RIL received shares for transfer and thereafter Complainants made grievance of non-delivery of shares to them. The admission of delivery of shares has been admitted by Respondent at various places and one of such letter dated 9.3.1999, sent by Respondent to Additional Deputy Commissioner of Police, Crime Branch, New Delhi, in para 9, reads as under:-

"Consequently, when I came to Delhi from Varanasi for some official work of my other clients, I collected 7,54,900 shares on 18th December, 1995 from Rungta and informed her about it."

13. In para 10 of the said letter, Respondent said that aforesaid shares were handed over to Mrs. Parwati Agarwal personally by him at her residence at Lajpat Nagar, Delhi but no evidence to this effect has been placed on record.

14. We required repeatedly from learned counsel for Respondent to show any perversity , misreading or incorrect findings recorded by Disciplinary Authority or the view taken by Council of ICAI in accepting report of Disciplinary Committee, and making recommendation to this Court under section 21(5) of Act, 1949 but he could not show anything.

15. Our attention was drawn by Sri Vinod Swaroop, learned counsel appearing for ICAI to the letter dated 31.7.2003 written by Respondent which is on page 585 of Paper Book, stating that since a criminal case against Respondent has been registered by Economic Wing, Delhi Police and charge-sheet has also been submitted under Sections 409, 420, 468, 471 and 120-B I.P.C., therefore, inquiry proceeding should be defered. Sri Swaroop submitted that no serious attempt was made by Respondent to clear charge levelled against him. He also drew our attention to the two letters, dated 30.3.1995 addressed by Managing Director, RIL to M/s Durga Finance Limited, and 9.2.1996 addressed by Managing Director, RIL to Respondent showing collusion between RIL and Respondent, and playing fraud with Complainants. He also placed before us report sent by Inspector, Crime Branch, Delhi Police endorcement, dated 22.6.2000, verifying that both the letters contained genuine signature of Mr. Sanjay Rungta, Managing Director, RIL as verified by G.E.G.D. Hyderabad, on a query made by one of the complainant Mr. Mangi Lal Agarwal. He, therefore, submited that it was a clear case of "unprofessional conduct" amounting to misconduct on the part of Respondent which has been found proved on the material on record and in absence of anything otherwise shown by learned counsel appearing for Respondent, we find no reason to take a different view in the matter.

16. We, therefore, express, our agreement with the findings recorded by Disciplinary Committee and accepted by Council of ICAI that Respondent is guilty of "other misconduct" falling under Section 22 read with section 21 of Act, 1949.

17. Now we come to the question of punishment. A Chartered Accountant has a pious duty, having fiduciary relation with his client. He indulged in financial transactions in respect whereto people have great faith in him. In the present case, Respondent had not only cheated Complainants but has also played an active role in defrauding with the huge money of more than four crores of Complainants and benefited himself in a wholly illegal manner. It is a very serious thing. In our view, such persons should not be allowed to remain on the Roll of ICAI by serving punishment for a limited period. They may again have opportunity to cheat the people after serving the sentence. Here is a Chartered Accountant, that too, a senior Chartered Accountant who was a Fellow Member and hence it deserved to be treated more sincerely and very strictly.

18. In fact, ICAI in such matters should have shown a policy of "zero tolerance". Any person who has such a blot should not be allowed to remain a Member of ICAI for all times to come.

19. We, unfortunately, find it beyond comprehension as to why a just an eye-wash attitude has been addopted by ICAI by recommending removal of name of Respondent from register of Membership of ICAI only for a period of one year so that he may again join and indulge in similar activities. ICAI is a statutory body, owe responsibility to the people at large. It is answerable and accountable to the people in general for any act of misconduct, which also amounts to a criminal offence, committed by its members. If a message is given by ICAI that it takes such illegal acts of its Members leniently, with due sympathy towards them, instead of taking care of victims, it will be cast stigma on the credibility of statutory body like ICAI. It will convey a wrong message to the entire people in general of this country. It will also erode confidence and impiety of the statutory obligations and duties imposed upon ICAI by Parliamentary enactment.

20. Looking to the entire facts and circumstances of the case, though initially we were of the view that here is a fit case where respondent's name should be recommended to be removed from register of Membership, permanently, but since this matter has already remained pending for quite long time and Respondent is more than 70 years of age, having virtually served his professional career to a large extent, we hold that he should be awarded punishment of removal of his name from Register of Membership of ICAI for a period of five years which shall commence from the date it is so notified by ICAI.

21. We order accordingly.

22. The Reference is answered in affirmance subject to modification of punishment and stands disposed of accordingly.

23. Let a copy of this judgment be sent forthwith to ICAI for consequential action without any further delay.

FACTS

This Reference under Section 21(5) of the Chartered Accountants Act, 1949 was made by the Council of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (ICAI) concerning D.K. Agrawal, FCA, a practising Chartered Accountant at Agra. The proceedings arose from a complaint dated 7.2.1986 by the then Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax (Assessment), Agra, alleging, inter alia, that the respondent had offered and paid bribes to Income Tax officers and staff to expedite his clients' assessments, fabricated documents, books of accounts and trust deeds (including recovery of rubber seals of various officers from his residence), charged fees as a percentage of capital raised for trusts, engaged in activities beyond the profession of Chartered Accountancy, misused his professional qualification before actually acquiring it, and committed forgery of challans defrauding the revenue.

Despite repeated opportunities, the respondent failed to file a written statement, and the matter was referred to the Disciplinary Committee (DC) for enquiry. The respondent submitted voluminous documentary material but did not meaningfully participate in the concluding hearing, absenting himself without valid reason after submitting a letter seeking adjournment. The DC examined six witnesses and, in its report dated 12.9.1989, held the respondent guilty of charges 1 and 2 (bribery of tax officials and fabrication of documents/trust deeds/rubber seals) and of professional misconduct under Clause (10) of Part I of the First Schedule (charging fees as a percentage of capital) in respect of charge 3, while exonerating him of charges 4 to 7 for want of evidence.

The Council of ICAI, after considering the DC's report and the respondent's representations, accepted the findings on 6.9.1995, holding the respondent guilty of 'other misconduct' under Section 21 read with Section 22 for charges 1 and 2, and of 'professional misconduct' under Clause (10) of Part I of the First Schedule read with Sections 21 and 22 for charge 3. For the professional misconduct under charge 3, the Council itself ordered removal of the respondent's name from the Register of Members for one year under Section 21(4). For the 'other misconduct' under charges 1 and 2, the Council recommended removal of the respondent's name for five years and made the present Reference to this Court under Section 21(5) for final orders.

ISSUES FOR CONSIDERATION

(i) Whether the findings of the Disciplinary Committee, as accepted by the Council of ICAI, holding the respondent guilty of 'other misconduct' under charges 1 and 2 (offering bribes to Income Tax officials and fabrication of documents/trust deeds) were sustainable on the material on record.

(ii) Whether the respondent's non-participation before the Disciplinary Committee and failure to offer any specific explanation to the documentary and admissive material relied upon (including his own statement recorded by the tax authorities and entries in seized diaries in his own handwriting) undermined his defence.

(iii) Whether the punishment of removal from the Register of Members for five years, as recommended by the Council of ICAI, was adequate having regard to the gravity and repetitive nature of the misconduct, including a related, separately considered matter against the same respondent.

HELD

The Court held that the findings of the Disciplinary Committee, as accepted by the Council of ICAI, holding the respondent guilty of charges 1 and 2 were well founded, being based on the respondent's own admission recorded by the tax authorities and on entries in diaries seized from his premises in his own handwriting, which the respondent had never denied. The respondent's counsel was unable to explain the search and seizure conducted under Section 132(1) of the Income Tax Act, 1961, or to rebut the documentary material, and could offer no more than a general denial and a plea for leniency. The Court found the respondent's conduct to be that of an initiator of corruption, offering bribes to public officials, and observed at length that such conduct by a professional entrusted with aiding public administration strikes at the root of public trust and cannot be viewed leniently.

The Court further held that the punishment of removal from membership for only five years, as recommended by the Council, was inadequate and virtually an eyewash, particularly since a related Reference concerning the same respondent was being considered by the Court on the same day, indicating a pattern of deliberate and repeated misconduct rather than an isolated lapse. The Court emphasised that punishment must be commensurate with the gravity of the misconduct and that a policy of leniency towards a professional who initiates corruption would itself perpetuate the very evil sought to be curbed.

RESULT

Reference answered in the affirmative. The findings of ICAI holding the respondent guilty of charges 1 and 2 ("other misconduct" under Section 21 read with Section 22 of the Chartered Accountants Act, 1949) are confirmed. However, in modification of the Council's recommendation of removal for five years, the Court directed that the respondent's name be removed from the Register of Membership of ICAI permanently. A copy of the order was directed to be sent to ICAI for consequential action.

1. This Reference under Section 21 (5) of the Chartered Accountants Act, 1949 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1949") has been made by Council of Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (hereinafter referred to as "ICAI") in the matter of D.K.Agrawal, FCA of M/s Dinesh K. Agrawal & Co., Chartered Accountants, 46-A, Madhav Kunj, Pratap Nagar, Agra.

2. Facts in brief are that Shri A.K. Sawhney, the then Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax, (Assessment), Agra (hereinafter referred to as "IACIT") made a complaint dated 07.02.1986 against Sri D.K. Agrawal making following allegations:

"1. Misconduct and misdemeanour - indulging in practice of offering and paying bribes to the officers and staff of the Government as a means of expediting his work by resorting to such unfair means.

2. Fabrication of documents, books of accounts, trust deeds etc. (including recovery of rubber seals of various officers from his residence).

3. Charging fixed percentage of commission on bogus and fictitious capital lent to others.

4. Engaging in activities other than occupation of Chartered Accountant.

5. Misuse of Degree and qualifications during the period when he did not possess such degree of qualifications.

6. Fabrication of books of accounts, documents and balance sheets.

7. Committing acts of cheating, forgery and defrauding the revenue by forging challans."

3. Copy of complaint was forwarded to respondent vide ICAI's letter dated 30.05.1986 asking him to file his written statement. Vide letter dated 20.06.1986, respondent said that some papers of complaint were not clear and requested ICAI to send clear copies. Desired documents were forwarded to respondent vide ICAI's letter dated 04.09.1986 and he was requested to submit his written statement. Vide letter dated 20.09.1986 respondent asked that complainant be directed to sent statement on oath about appearance of respondent before Income Tax Authorities and signing balance sheet etc. He was informed by ICAI' vide letter dated 13.10.1986 that under Act, 1949 and Rules framed thereunder, an affidavit is not required to support any complaint and he was advised to submit written statement on the basis of record made available. He was also informed that in case ICAI refers the matter to Disciplinary Committee (hereinafter referred to as "DC"), complainant would be required to appear before DC and make his submission on oath in the presence of respondent and he can cross-examine complainant also before DC. Respondent again sent a letter dated 28.01.1987, informing that he has earlier sent two letters, requiring certain information but has not received any response, though these letters had been received by ICAI.

4. Ultimately, final opportunity for filing written statement was given vide ICAI's letter dated 13.10.1986. Respondent again requested ICAI to direct Income Tax Officer, CC-I to supply copies of seized material and also permit inspection of record to enable him to prepare his written statement. ICAI vide letter dated 30.03.1987 informed respondent that Institute is not in a position to direct complainant to provide any particular document and it is open to the respondent to approach complainant's Department directly. Time to file written statement was extended by 15.04.1987. Later on, Income Tax Department vide letters dated 20.03.1987, 31.03.1987 and 01.04.1987 communicated its willingness to permit inspection of its documents to respondent and he was informed accordingly vide ICAI's letters dated 21.04.1987, 15.05.1987 and 24.06.1987.

5. Respondent, however, did not respond. He also failed to submit his written statement. ICAI in these circumstances and in the absence of any written statement, which respondent failed to submit despite repeated opportunity, considered the matter in its 128th meeting held from 14th to 17th September, 1987 and formed an opinion that prima facie respondent was guilty of professional and/or "other misconduct".

6. Consequently, ICAI referred the case to DC for enquiry. DC fixed 07.03.1988 as the first date for enquiry. Respondent submitted voluminous record as evidence running in about 3000 pages to DC. Copies of these records were forwarded to complainant for his reference and making submissions at the time of hearing. Vide letter dated 25.02.1988 complainant requested for adjournment on the ground that voluminous records sent by respondent needed some more time for scrutiny and complainant was also busy in revenue matters since limitation in a large number of cases was going to expire in the month of March. DC consequently, adjourned hearing and fixed 29.12.1988 at Agra. On the date fixed, complainant's representatives Shri Mohan Singh, Deputy Commissioner of Income Tax, (Central), Lucknow and Shri K.K.Saxena, Assistant Commissioner of Income Tax (Central Circle-I), Agra, respondent and six witnesses were present. Matter was heard by DC but hearing could not conclude and it was next fixed on 21st and 22nd February, 1989 at Agra. On 21.02.1989 respondent came to venue of meeting and handed over a closed envelope to DC, which was addressed to Secretary, ICAI and left venue stating that he would appear in the meeting before DC only after a decision is taken on the letter contained in envelope. Envelope contained a confirmation copy of a telegram dated 19.02.1989 stated to have been sent by respondent to ICAI, requesting for adjournment of hearing and taking a decision on his letters dated 1st and 11th February, 1989. DC found that in the letter dated 01.02.1989 respondent has said that Shri A.K.Sawhney, IACIT, who made complaint, should be directed to remain present before DC. He also pointed out that Shri Sawhney is now posted as Deputy Director of Income Tax (Investigation), Kanpur. DC also noted that on earlier date of hearing held on 29.12.1988, Shri K.K. Saxena, successor of Shri Sawhney had appeared before Committee and respondent did not raise any objection in the proceedings. It also noted by that ICAI had already sent notice to Shri Sawhney at Kanpur for appearing before committee and, thereafter, Sri Sawhney, Deputy Director of Income Tax (Investigation), Kanpur and Shri K.K.Saxena, Assistant Commissioner of Income Tax (Central) both appeared before DC. In reply to respondent's letter dated 01.02.1989, he was informed by ICAI through telegram that hearing would be held as scheduled and he may make his submissions before DC at the time of hearing. Letter dated 11.02.1989 of respondent was repetition of his earlier letter dated 01.02.1989.

7. In the circumstances, non-participation of respondent in DC's meeting dated 21.02.1989, was found wholly without any valid reason. Hence DC proceeded with hearing in continuation of his earlier part-heard proceedings held on 29.12.1988, in the absence of respondent, and concluded the same.

8. DC in all examined six witnesses, namely :

1. Sri Lal Singh, Stamp Vendor, Agra.
2. Shri Vinod Kumar Gupta, Stamp Vendor, Agra.
3. Shri S.P.Sharma, Dy. Manager (Govt.), State Bank of India, Agra.
4. Shri A.L. Taneja, Officer (Govt.), State Bank of India, Agra.
5. Shri N.K. Bhargava, Cash Officer, State Bank of India, Agra.
6. Shri Rakesh Agarwal, Partner, M/s Rakesh Dinesh & Co., Chartered Accountants, Agra.

9. DC submitted its report dated 12.09.1989 dealing with charges and recorded its findings as under :

"29.1. The first charge relates to the mis-conduct and mis-demeanour. The Committee has carefully perused the details contained in Annexure-B to the complaint. The Complainant had mainly relied on the statement of the Respondent recorded by the IAC (Assessment), Agra on 9th, 10th and 11th July, 1985, wherein the Respondent had admitted that he had offered bribes to officers for getting assessment of his clients completed. The Committee has also perused the diary marked as B/2 wherein the entries relating to Vishnu Bhagwan Agarwal, Pathwari, Agra have been indicated. The Committee has also seen a number of such entiries in the diary marked as B/8 and B/12. At number of places, the Respondent in his own hand-writing has indicated in respect of various charges in their individual account. The amount paid to I.T.O. on account of Trust is one such entry for instance, at page 39 in the diary B-11 in the name of Dilip Kumar Kali Charan, Agra, wherein Rs.4,000/- have been shown as "Paid cash to I.T.O. A/c Trust on 10.12.1982." This is a diary which has been seized by the department from the premises of the Respondent and the entries in the diary are in the hand-writing of the Respondent. The entries in this diary, in various parties accounts, clearly disclosed the amount paid to the I.T.O. On various accounts, on different dates, and against which, the Respondent has received the reimbursement from the concerned clients, from time to time. In the wake of Respondent's admission before the Income tax Department and the entries made by him in the diaries and registers seized from him, which the Respondent had not denied, at any time, the Committee is inclined to hold the Respondent guilty of a conduct and indulging in practice of paying bribes to officers and staff of the Income-tax Department.

29.2 As regards the charge of fabrication of documents, Books of Accounts, Trust Deed and charging fee concession/fees on the basis of percentage of the capital created, the Committee noted that in the seizure from the Respondent's premises a large number of rubber stamps were recovered including in the names of the Government officials*. The seals include the rubber stamp in the name of Sardar Lal Singh, Stamp Vendor as well as a large number of other assesses, Chartered Accountants, etc. The entries made by the Respondent in his own handwriting in the diaries B/2 and X/7* clearly establish that the Respondent was himself involved in forming trust and charging fees @ 8% which have been clearly marked in the various pages of the ledger in the Annexure-X/7*. Similarly, entries in his own hand-writing in the diary 3/E clearly establish the involvement of the Respondent in forming a large number of trusts by charging commission as percentage of the capital created.* The Respondent had not denied or repudiated his statements and the seizure-memo which had been duly signed by him. He is thus guilty of this charge.

29.3 As discussed above, the Complainant has shown an original Trust Deed, wherein Shri Agarwal has noted the instructions on 7.6.1982, but the existence of the Trust has been shown w.e.f. 15.1.1977. Similarly, it has been found on the Trust deed of Manju Agarwal that the Respondent has signed on 19.4.1972 as Chartered Accountant whereas the Respondent was enrolled as an Associate Member only in the year 1975*. From the ledger and diaries seized by the Department from the premises of the Respondent and which are in the handwriting of the Respondent, it is evident that the Respondent has charged commission/fees at 8% or at other percentage. It is evidently against the clause (10) of Part I of the First Schedule which prohibits a member to charge or offer to charges, accept or offer to accept in respect of any professional employment fees which are based on percentage.*

29.4 As regards the Charge number 4 regarding the engagement in activities other than occupation of C.A., the Complainant has mainly relied on the statement of Shri Nagendra Mohan Mittal S/o Shri Om Dayal Agarwal, the brother-in-law of the Respondent where-in he has admitted of having invested money received from Shri Agarwal. However, the Committee finds no other evidence of the Respondent having engaged himself in other activities and in the absence of any evidence, this charge fails and is not proved.

29.5 As regards the Charge number 5 i.e., Mis-use of degree and qualifications during the period when the Respondent did not possess such degree or qualifications, the Committee has dealt with this charge alongwith charge Nos.2 and 3. The date 19.4.1972, given by Shri D.K.Agarwal below his signature on the Deed is taken to be correct on the original Trust Deed seen by the Committee. It is evident that the Respondent was not a member as on that date but he has acted as a Chartered Accountant on 19.4.1972. However, the Committee finds that a person, not being a member to represent himself as a Chartered Accountant is governed by Section 24 of the Chartered accountant and could be dealt with accordingly. However, such a case would not fall, within any of the clauses under the First Schedule/Second Schedule read with Section 21 of the Chartered Accountants Act, 1949*.*

29.6 As regards the charge number 6, i.e. the fabrication of books of accounts, documents and Balance Sheets, the complainant has relied on the draft Balance Sheet at page 52 in the Complaint, (original of which was shown at the time of hearing to the Committee). During the course of proceedings, the Complainant has drawn the attention of the Committee to a large number of blank papers seized by the department duly signed by the various parties running into thousands. The Committee also noted that a large number of books relating to various assessees and the papers relating to them were seized by the department from the premise of the Respondent. The number of Rubber stamps were found at the premises of the Respondent. However, as far as the specific instances which have been referred about the balance-sheet of Smt. Shanti Devi, in the absence of a clear evidence that the said Balance sheet was filed in the same manner, the Committee is inclined to give benefits of doubt to the Respondent*. The corrections made in the Balance sheet are at the stage of preparation itself and even assuming that this has been sent and corrections have been made afterwards, it would not tantamount to a fabrication unless it is established that the said balance sheet in the said manner has been filed anywhere. Evidently,* this balance sheet has been seized during the course of raid and mere corrections in the balance sheet without making the correction in the total, would not establish a charge of fabrication against the Respondent*.*

29.7 As regards charge no.7, the Complainant has pointed out that the Respondent was instrumental in forging three challans of Rs.500 each in respect of the parties indicated in the complaint, namely, Shital Prasad Jain Pvt. Family Trust, Padam Chand Jain Pvt. Family Trust and Surendra Kumar Jain Pvt. Family Trust. These challans of Rs.500/- each were purported to have been deposited in the state bank of India, Agra towards fees payable to the settlement commissions. The State Bank of India has confirmed that no such payments were made with Bank, and these challans have been forged*. The Copies of the challans filed by the Complainant at pages 54 and 56 in his complaint (Annexure X-13) indicate the payment of Rs.500/- each and the Complainant has relied that the handwriting in the challans is of the Respondent. These challans have been received by the Income tax Department from the Settlement Commission alongwith the application and were not seized by the Department from the Respondent in the raid. The handwriting in the challans may appear to be in the hand of Respondent. However, the Complainant has not got the handwriting expert's opinion on this matter, nor has he recorded the Respondent's statement and therefore, in the absence of positive and clear cut evidence, the Committee is unable to hold the Respondent guilty of his involvement for the forgery in these challans. Similarly, the department has not been able to prove beyond reasonable doubt, that the Respondent was instrumental in forging the notices of demand, purported to have been issued in the name of Prem Chand S/O Kapoor Chand and in the absence of adequate evidence, the Committee holds that the* charge contained in clause (7) of the complaint is not proved."

(emphasis added)

10. The aforesaid findings show that DC held respondent guilty of charges 1 and 2, constituting "other misconduct" under Section 21 read with Section 22 of Act, 1949 and

"professional misconduct", under Section 21 read with Section 22 and Clause (10) of Part I of First Schedule to Act, 1949 for charge 3.

11. Above report was submitted to ICAI and then forwarded to complainant as well as respondent vide ICAI's letter dated 08.08.1991 with the information that report would be considered by ICAI in one of its forthcoming meeting. Parties were permitted to file their representation, if any. For consideration of report of DC, ICAI fixed the matter to be considered in its meeting scheduled on 5th to 7th August, 1993 but on the request of respondent, it was adjourned. Next date i.e. 24th to 26th November, 1993 was also adjourned to 14th to 16th July, 1994 on the request of respondent. Then the matter was scheduled for 1st to 3rd September, 1994 but due to paucity of time, could not be taken up and Council fixed 5th to 7th December, 1994 but on this date again, it was adjourned on the request of complainant. Next dates fixed were 16th to 18th January, 1995 and 20th to 22nd July, 1995, when it was adjourned on the request of complainant.

12. Respondent then submitted representations dated 27th July, 1993 and 4th July, 1994 but neither he nor his authorized representative appeared before Council. Complainant, however, failed to submit any representation whatsoever.

13. Ultimately, Council took up matter in its meeting on 06.09.1995 and after considering report and representation of respondent accepted report. Council found respondent guilty of "other misconduct" within the meaning of Section 21 read with Section 22 of Act, 1949 in respect of charges 1 and 2. It also found him guilty of "professional misconduct" under Clause (10) of Part I, First Schedule read with Sections 21 and 22 of Act, 1949 in respect of charge 3. For other charges 4 to 7, respondent was exonerated.

14. Thereafter, in respect of misconduct Clause (10) Part I, First Schedule, a show cause notice was issued to respondent for passing order under Section 21(4) of Act, 1949. Matter was separately processed and after giving opportunity to respondent, ICAI in its meeting held from 8th to 10th December, 1997 decided to remove name of respondent from Register of Members for a period of one year. In respect to "other misconduct", Council decided to recommend removal of name of respondent from Register of Members for a period of five years and made Reference to this Court under Section 21(5) of Act, 1949 that is how, matter has now come up before us.

15. Respondent at the time of hearing, filed supplementary affidavit bringing on record assessment orders for Assessment Years 1983-84, 1984-85 and 1985-86 to show that after remand by Tribunal, Assessing Officer accepted income disclosed by Assessee, i.e. respondent.

16. We confine ourselves in this matter to consider this Reference so far as respondent has been found guilty of "other misconduct" under charges 1 and 2. Finding of DC in respect of charge 1 is founded, besides others, on the admission of respondent recorded by IACIT (Assessment), Agra on 9th 10th and 11th July, 1985 that respondent had offered bribe to officers for getting assessments of his clients completed. This was verified from entries made in diary marked as B/1 and B/12 in the handwriting of respondent. This diary was seized by Income Tax Department from the premises and possession of respondent. Search and seizure operation was conducted at residential and business premises of respondent in September, 1984 pursuant to warrant of authorization, issued against respondent under Section 132(1) of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1961"). Documents seized during said proceedings, were sought to be explained/interrogated with respondent by Income Tax Authorities and a questionaire recorded by the Authorities was relied in support of aforesaid charges. In the written representation, submitted by respondent, we also find nothing about aforesaid search and seizure operation and the material seized in the said proceedings. General allegation is made that complainant has submitted false and bogus complaint and documents. Basic objection was that the photostat copies were not admissible in evidence and that witnesses were not produced before DC and papers prepared by complainant are fabricated In support of charges 1 and 2, brief reply given by respondent in his written statement reads as under :

"As regards the charges No.1 to 3 no original Documents, person man, Accounts and other evidence, witness have been either produced before the Committee or examined by the Committee, the fabricated papers prepared by the complaints have been in photo state copies shown to committee. No person and witness have been produced for proving the first charge, second charge and third charge at all, in respect of the Report prepared after thought and after gap of time back dated. So, it is only supplied to me on 14/10/1991 only."

17. Learned counsel for respondent contended that entire complaint has been manufactured against him but when questioned, he could not reply as to why respondent could not participate in the enquiry before DC. He also could not place anything before us to show that his premises was not searched pursuant to warrant of authorization under Section 132(1) of Act, 1961 and material documents, etc. seized therein were examined by Income Tax Authorities or that he was also questioned and that the Questionnaire supplied by complainant was not a statement given by him. In fact, we find virtually no explanation whatsoever, except simple denial on the part of respondent, which lacks specific explanation with regard to allegations founded on the basis of record.

18. Learned counsel for respondent in fact attempted to defend his client but in the absence of any material, after a shortwhile, could not make any further submission and stated that whatever is available on record, Court may examine and take a lenient view in the matter.

19. In the circumstances, findings recorded by DC and accepted by ICAI in regard to charges 1 and 2 holding respondent guilty, are hereby confirmed.

20. Counsel has recommended punishment of removal from Membership Register for a period of five years. There is another matter, which has been heard by this Court today, which is also related to this very respondent, wherein ICAI has separately proposed removal of name of respondent from Register of Membership for a period of two years. Two References received in respect of same person shows that misconduct found proved against him is not an act committed indeliberately at some point of time, may be under some misconception, but the things are otherwise. The modus operandi of respondent shows planned and well considered regular practice.

21. In fact charges found proved by DC and accepted by ICAI, which have been subject matter of consideration before this Court, in our view are very serious. Respondent has been found indulged in practice of offering bribe to Officers and staff of Income Tax Department. Respondent is initiator of corruption and equal participants are some Officers of Income Tax Department. In the present proceedings, subject matter of consideration of corruption is only the respondent, who is offerer and giver of bribe to public servants and not the public servant(s), acceptor of illegal gratification.

22. This is a conduct wholly unbecoming of a person engaged in profession of Chartered Accountant and is also an offence under criminal law. Not only this, charges show substantial cause of a serious disease, Nation is presently suffering and is the root cause of lots of problems of citizens in general and entire Nation in particular. It is the people like respondent, who initiate corruption, taking advantage of greed of human being and that is how, cause huge loss to the nation's development.

23. The term "corruption" has various shades. In general, the well accepted meaning of corruption is the act of corrupting or of impairing integrity, virtue, or moral principle; the state of being corrupted or debased; lost of purity or integrity; depravity; wickedness; impurity; bribery. It further says, "the act of changing or of being changed, for the worse; departure from what is pure, simple, or correct; use of a position of trust for dishonest gain."

24. Though in a civilized society, corruption has always been viewed with particular distaste to be condemned and criticised by everybody but still one loves to engage himself in it if finds opportunity, ordinarily, since it is difficult to resist temptation. It is often, a kind, parallel to the word 'bribery', meaning whereof in the context of the politicians or bureaucrats, induced to become corrupt.

25. The Greek Philosopher Plato, in 4th Century BC said, "in the Republic that only politicians who gain no personal advantage from the policies they pursued would be fit to govern. This is recognised also in the aphorism that those who want to hold power are most likely those least fit to do so." While giving speech before the House of Lords William Pitt in the later half of 18th Century said, "Unlimited power is apt to corrupt the minds of those who possess it." Lord Acton in his letter addressed to Bishop Creighton is now one of the famous quotation, "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

26. Corruption is a term known to all of us. Precise meaning is illegal, immoral or unauthorized act done in due course of employment but literally it means "inducement (as of a public official) by improper means (as bribery) to violate duty (as by committing a felony)." It is a specially pernicious form of discrimination. Apparently its purpose is to seek favourable, privileged treatment from those who are in authority. No one would indulge in corruption at all if those who are in authority, discharge their service by treating all equally.

27. We can look into it from another angle. Corruption also violates human rights. It discriminates against the poor by denying them access to public services and preventing from exercising their political rights on account of their incapability of indulging in corruption, of course on account of poverty and other similar related factors. Corruption is, therefore, divisive and makes a significant contribution to social inequality and conflict. It undermines respect for authority and increases cynicism. It discourages participation of individuals in civilised society and elevates self interest as a guide to conduct. In social terms we can say that corruption develops a range bound field of behaviour, attitude and beliefs.

28. Corruption is antithesis of good governance and democratic politics. It is said, that when corruption is pervasive, it permeates every aspect of people's lives. It can affect the air they breathe, the water they drink and the food they eat. If we go further, we can give some terminology also to different shades of corruption like, financial corruption, cultural corruption, moral corruption, idealogical corruption etc. The fact remains that from whatever angle we look into it, the ultimate result borne out is that, and the real impact of corruption is, the poor suffers most, the poverty grows darker, and rich become richer.

29. It is not that the Apex Court is oblivious of the situation at ground level. It had also occasion to comment thereon time and again. In Secretary, Jaipur Development Authority Vs. Daulat Mal Jain, 1997 (1) SCC 34:

". . . . When satisfaction sought in the performance of duties is for mutual personal gain, the misuse is usually termed as 'corruption'."

30. In High Court of Judicature at Bombay Vs. Shirishkumar Rangrao Patil, 1997(6) SCC 339, the Court held:

"Corruption, appears to have spread everywhere. No facet of public function has been left unaffected by the putrefied stink of 'corruption'. 'Corruption' thy name is depraved and degraded conduct..... In the widest connotation, 'corruption' includes improper or selfish exercise of power and influence attached to a public office."

31. Again the Court in B. R. Kapur Vs. State of T.N., 2001(7) SCC 231 said:

". . . . scope of 'corruption' in the governing structure has heightened opportunism and unscrupulousness among political parties, causing them to marry and divorce one another at will, seek opportunistic alliances and coalitions often without the popular mandate."

32. In State of A.P. Vs. V. Vasudeva Rao, 2004 (9) SCC 319 the Court took judicial notice of this epidemic and said:

". . . The word 'corruption' has wide connotation and embraces almost all the spheres of our day-to-day life the world over. In a limited sense it connotes allowing decisions and actions of a person to be influenced not by rights or wrongs of a cause, but by the prospects of monetary gains or other selfish considerations."

33. Crime and corruption, thrive and prosper in society due to lack of public resistance. An ordinary citizen instead of complaining and fighting mostly succumbs to the pressure of undesirable functioning in offices instead of standing against it. It is on account of, sometimes, lack of resources or unmatched status which give the feeling of helplessness. Nothing is more damaging than the feeling of helplessness. Even in ordinary matters a common man who has neither the political backing nor the financial strength to match inaction in public oriented departments, gets frustrated but the people like respondent succeed by polluting the system. It erodes credibility in the system.

34. Corruption is a double edged knife, one who initiates corruption, causes same injury and the one who accepts the same. An official indulged in corruption should not be tolerated to remain in system even for a while and there should be a zero tolerance. Similarly those who initiate corruption, offer it or invite the greed of human being, should be dealt with strictly, since they are the persons who abet corruption. If such persons are not available, question of bringing in corruption may not arise. Any action which is coloured with corruption is illegal since inception. The authorities whose responsibility is to check it must deal with, both, strictly. Public administration no doubt involves a vast amount of administrative discretion but if it shields action of persons indulging in corruption, it is the duty of Court to take effective steps and rise to the occasion, otherwise, confidence of common man would shake. Barring the two sides who are participants in corruption, real loser is 'common man'. He is the person who is a silent victim and ultimately suffers on account of his economical disadvantages. That is how, corruption is against basic human rights, since it creates discrimination between haves and have nots. Whenever matter of corruption comes to Court, it is our responsibility to take such matters in a manner so that confidence of common man remains intact. He gets a message that he is not helpless and those indulged in corruption cannot succeed by their superiority in status or prosperity etc. They will have to pay for their misdeeds. Courts must show to a common man that there is a someone to take care and restrain arbitrary and illegal activities, not only on the part part of public functionaries indulged in corruption but also those who attempt to sow the seed of corruption.

35. In our system, Constitution being supreme, yet real power vests in the people of India since Constitution has been enacted "for the people, by the people and of the people". In a democratic system governed by rule of law, the Government does not mean a lax Government. The public servants hold their offices in trust and are expected to perform with due diligence particularly so that their action or inaction may not cause any undue hardship and harassment to a common man. For purity of public functions Legislature in respect of service and professions has regulated their functioning so that such professionals/service providers aid and assist public functionaries in discharge of their duties towards public free of any irregularity, illegality, dishonesty and anything which causes ultimate loss to the public in general and public exchequer in particular. After all, public exchequer is nothing but a fund held by the State in trust for and on behalf of the people of India so as to be condoned for its benefit and welfare. Whenever if the professionals and service providers who are supposed to show a good, honest and law abiding conduct, themselves indulge in corruption by initiating corruption to impure the public functionaries, taking advantage of normal human greed, entire edifice of the system made for larger public benefit is bound to collapse. Therefore, whenever such professional or service provider is found indulged in corruption, i.e. initiation of corruption by offering bribe, illegal gratification, etc. to public functionaries, like Revenue Authorities, Regulatory Bodies should take the matter not only seriously but when the charge is proved, punishment must be stringent so that it only excludes such person(s) from finding any opportunity in future to again re-indulge in such kind of activities but may also be a nation for those not to think of those activities. In the present case, the respondent having been found guilty of offering bribe to Income Tax Officers, still has been proposed a punishment of removal of his name from register of Membership only for five years, which is nothing but an opportunity offered to him to re-enter the profession and enjoy another opportunity of indulging in similar activities. This conduct, in our view requires stringent and severe punishment. Punishment should always be commensurate to misconduct or error or guilty committed by person concerned. An attempt of sympathy or compassion with such erring person will be nothing but a misplaced sympathy with the guilty persons, ignoring the fact that those who have suffered on account of such illegality, stand to continue to suffer for all times to come.

36. When we consider the charges 1 and 2 having been proved against respondent and seriousness thereof, we are pained to see that ICAI has taken a lenient view of the matter and its proposal is a mere eyewash. We fail to understand why in such a case, ICAI should now follow a policy of zero tolerance and remove root cause of corruption by slapping/forbidding such persons from holding licence to practise as Chartered Accountant for all times to come.

37. We have no hesitation in observing that findings of ICAI holding respondent guilty of charges 1 and 2 and making this Reference before us under Section 21(5) of Act, 1949, is absolutely correct but their recommendation for removal of name of respondent only for five years from Register of Membership, is not only inadequate but an inbuilt peril therein would be that initiator/ participant of corruption, after a shortwhile, will continue to have an opportunity to indulge in such activities again. The disease does not require a mere medication for the time being but an amputation is only solution which may also be a message to others and will be an example to any person, who might be thinking in terms like that of respondent.

38. We therefore, answer Reference in affirmance, confirming guilt of respondent in respect of charges 1 and 2, which are subject matter of Reference under Section 21(5) of Act, 1949. We further direct that respondent's name shall be removed from the Register of Membership of ICAI permanently.

39. Copy of this order be remitted to ICAI for consequential action.

40. Reference is answered accordingly.

Central Excise Reference No.- 9 Of 2010

Commissioner Of Central Excise, Kanpur ...Applicant

Versus

M/S Kanpur Plastic Pack Ltd. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for Applicant:
C.S.C., B.K. Singh Raghuvanshi

Counsel for Opposite Party:
Anubhav Chandra.

Subject Matter
Central Excise Act, 1944 - Section 11B(2), Proviso (c) - Section 12B - Doctrine of unjust enrichment - Refund of duty paid on intermediate/captively consumed goods - Whether Tribunal correctly applied the exemption from the bar of unjust enrichment under proviso (c) to Section 11B(2) to a refund of duty on captively consumed goods not corresponding to Modvat credit on inputs, and not arising under Rules/Notification issued under the Act - Held, reliance on proviso (c) was not justified as it was not attracted on facts, but refund could not in any event be denied on the ground of unjust enrichment as that issue stood concluded in Assessee's favour by an unchallenged, final order of the appellate authority.

Facts
The respondent-Assessee, a manufacturer of HDPE/Polypropylene tapes, fabrics and sacks, initially classified its furnished products under Chapters 54, 59 and 63, under protest. Following a Tribunal decision in other matters, the Assessee sought reclassification under Chapter 39 vide classification list effective 11.7.1989. The Assistant Collector, by order dated 19.1.1990, declined the revised classification. This was upheld in appeal by the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals), Allahabad, on 19.11.1990, but the Tribunal, by order dated 21.9.1992, allowed the Assessee's further appeal, set aside the CCE(A) order, and granted consequential relief. Relying on this, the Assessee sought refund of Rs. 1,85,84,873/- paid on tapes during 1.3.1986 to 11.2.1990, on the footing that the tapes (Chapter 39) were captively consumed in manufacturing fabric (also Chapter 39) and hence exempt. After a writ petition compelled a decision, the Assistant Collector rejected the refund on 13.10.1995 on grounds of limitation and unjust enrichment. In appeal, the CCE(A), by order dated 31.1.1996, held the plea of unjust enrichment not sustainable - since duty was paid on intermediate products and the question of passing on its incidence to customers did not arise - and remanded the matter on that footing; this order was not challenged by Revenue and attained finality. On remand, the Assistant Commissioner, by order dated 30.6.1998, dropped the limitation objection but again invoked unjust enrichment, holding the burden lay on the Assessee to show non-passing of duty incidence. The CCE(A), by order dated 16.11.1998, set aside this order and directed refund of Rs. 1,16,28,268/- (after adjustment of duty on fabrics against Modvat credit and duty paid on tapes). Revenue's appeal against this order was rejected by the Tribunal on 25.10.2000, holding that refund did not amount to unjust enrichment and was admissible under proviso (c) to Section 11B in respect of credit of duty paid on inputs. Revenue's reference application (No. 23/2001) under Section 35H(1) led to this Court directing, by order dated 24.11.2009, that the Tribunal refer the two questions of law set out above for adjudication.

Issues

1. Whether the Tribunal correctly applied proviso (c) to Section 11B(2) of the Central Excise Act, 1944 - which exempts refunds from the bar of unjust enrichment - to a refund of duty paid on captively consumed goods, where the refund did not correspond to Modvat credit of duty paid on excisable goods used as inputs.
2. Whether the Tribunal correctly applied the said proviso (c) to such a refund where it had not arisen in accordance with the Rules made, or any Notification issued, under the Central Excise Act, 1944.

Held

Proviso (c) to Section 11B(2) is concerned with payment of refund to the Assessee rather than credit to the Consumer Welfare Fund, in respect of amounts relatable to clauses (a), (b) and (c) of the proviso. The Tribunal's reliance on proviso (c) to exclude the bar of unjust enrichment was, on facts, not correct, since the refund in question did not correspond to Modvat credit on inputs as contemplated by that provision. However, this did not entitle Revenue to succeed, because the plea of unjust enrichment itself stood concluded against Revenue by the order of the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) dated 31.1.1996, which held the plea unsustainable as duty was paid on intermediate products and no question of passing on its incidence to customers arose. That order was never challenged by Revenue and attained finality. Consequently, the Assistant Commissioner had no jurisdiction to reopen and reapply the overruled plea of unjust enrichment on remand, and his order to that effect was unauthorized, without jurisdiction, and illegal. The concurrent findings of the CCE(A) and the Tribunal granting refund in favour of the Assessee were therefore rightly recorded, notwithstanding the incorrect invocation of proviso (c) by the Tribunal, and the ultimate order of the Tribunal warranted no interference.

Result

Reference answered in favour of the Assessee and against the Revenue on both questions: reliance on proviso (c) to Section 11B(2) was not justified as inapplicable on facts, but refund could not be denied on the ground of unjust enrichment, that issue having attained finality in Assessee's favour. Tribunal's order upheld. Reference disposed of accordingly.

&
Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Shri Praveen Kumar, learned counsel for applicant Revenue and Shri Aasutosh Agrawal, learned counsel for respondent, Assessee.

2. The following questions have been referred for adjudication under section 35H(4) of Central Excise Act, 1944 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1944").

"1. Whether Tribunal has correctly applied provisions contained in proviso (c) to sub section (2) of Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944, which afford protection to refunds from the bar of unjust enrichment, to a case of refund of duty paid on goods which have been captively consumed, when the said refund does not correspond to credit of duty paid on excisable goods used as inputs?

2. Whether the Tribunal has correctly applied provisions contained in proviso (c) to sub section (2) of Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944, which afford protection to refunds from the bar of unjust enrichment, to a case of refund of duty paid on goods which have been captively consumed, when the said refund has not arisen in accordance with the Rules made or any Notification issued under the Central Excise Act, 1994?"

3. The bare minimum facts, necessary to deal with these questions, as evident from record, are stated as under:

4. M/s Kanpur Plastipack Ltd, Panki Industria Area, Kanpur (hereinafter referred to as the respondent) are manufacturer of HDPE/Polypropylene Tapes, fabrics and sacks - both laminated and unlaminated. Their starting raw-material is HDPE/LDPE/PP Granules which are extruded in the extrusion machine to make films. The films so made are slated to form tapes of the required width. The tapes are, thereafter, woven into fabrics and the fabrics thereafter, are stitched to make sacks and bags. The basic raw-material for the manufacture of HDPE/Sacks and bags is plastic granules and falls under Chapter 39 of Central Excise Tariff.

5. Assessee filed a classification list on 31.8.1996, classifying furnished product under Chapter 54, 59 and 63, though under protest. Later, on a judgment of Tribunal in some other matters, Assessee sought revision of classification of furnished product to Chapter 39. It filed a classification list No.2/89 effective from 11.7.1989 classifying furnished products under various headings of Chapter 39. Revised classification list was not approved by Assistant Collector who ordered on 19.1.1990 to continue classification of furnished goods under various headings of Chapters 54, 59 and 63.

6. Aggrieved by order dated 19.1.1990, Assessee preferred appeal before Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals), Allahabad (hereinafter referred to as "CCE(A)") who rejected the same vide order dated 19.11.1990. Assessee then preferred further appeal before Customs, Central Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") who by order dated 21.9.1992 allowed appeal and set aside CCE(A)'s order dated 19.11.1990 and granted consequential relief to Assessee.

7. Based on the order of Tribunal, dated 21.9.1992, Assessee submitted an application dated 15.3.1993 before Assistant Commissioner claiming refund of Central Excise Duty of Rs.1,85,84,873/- paid by him on Tapes during 1.3.1986 to 11.2.1990 on the ground that Tribunal has held these tapes classifiable under Chapter 39 and since these tapes were consumed by Assessee for manufacture of fabric, again a Chapter 39 product, the same was exempt from duty. The application remained unattended whereupon Assessee came to this Court and filed a writ petition which was disposed of directing concerned authority to take a final decision within two months. Pursuant thereto, Assistant Collector vide order dated 13.10.1995, rejected claim of refund on the ground of being barred by "time" as also "unjust enrichment". Assessee preferred appeal to CCE(A) which was decided vide order dated 31.1.1996 and the matter was remanded to Assistant Commissioner with the following observations:

(a) the ground of rejection of refund claim i.e undue enrichment is not sustainable, as the duty was paid on intermediate products and the question of passing on of incidence of duty to the customers does not arise; and

(b) in the instance case, duty has been under protest and hence limitation of six months does not apply as per the provisions of Section 11-B of Excise Act.

8. Assistant Commissioner again passed order dated 30.6.1998 after remand, wherein he dropped objection regarding limitation but with respect to "unjust enrichment", it held that Section 12B of Act 1944 talks of "excise duty" which includes "duty paid on intermediate product" also hence burden to prove that incidence of duty whereof refund is asked, was not passed on to the customer, is upon Assessee.

9. Aggrieved by this order dated 30.6.1998 passed by Assistant Commissioner, Assessee preferred appeal before CCE(A) who allowed the same vide order dated 16.11.1998, set aside order 30.6.1998 and directed for refund of Rs.1,16,28,268/-. CCE(A) determined amount of refund after adjusting duty, to Rs.3,71,57,046/- on fabrics which became payable by virtue of settlement of classification dispute and allowing Modvat credit of duty on inputs, to Rs.3,02,00,441/- and adjustment of duty of Rs.1,85,84,873/- paid from PLA at the tape stage. According to CCE(A), admissible refund was calculated as [Rs.3,02,00,441+Rs.1,85,84,873 - Rs.3,71,57,046 = 1,16,28,268/-].

10. Revenue felt aggrieved by this order dated 16.11.1998, hence preferred appeal before Tribunal but failed since appeal was rejected by Tribunal vide order dated 25.10.2000. Tribunal while rejecting appeal, observed as under:

(a) They do not agree with the contention of the department that the grant of refund in this case results in unjust enrichment to the Respondents.

(b) The refund of credit of duty is admissible to the Respondent in terms of proviso (c) to Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, according to which the bar of unjust enrichment does not apply to the refund of credit of duty paid on excisable goods used as inputs, in accordance with the Rules made, or any notification issued under the Excise Act.

(c) The finding of the lower appellate authority that requirement of cost data on HDPE tape is irrelevant, since duty on tape was paid at specific rate and that verification of modvatable document showed the total credit available, the amount of duty paid, amount of duty to be debited against sale of fabrics and the total amount refundable and that, therefore, the Respondents were entitled to refund of Rs.1,16,28,268/- and the Commissioner(Appeals)'s order dt.16.11.1998 does not suffer from any legal infirmity.

11. Revenue thereafter filed a reference application no.23/2001 before this Court under section 35H(1) of Act, 1944 and vide order dated 24.11.2009, this Court directed Tribunal to send statement of case referring above mentioned questions of law, arising from Tribunal's order dated 25.10.2000.

12. In the present case record shows that order of CCE(A) dated 31.1.1996 itself decided the issue and held that there was no question of rejection of refund on the ground of " undue enrichment" since it was not sustainable, as duty was paid on intermediate products and question of passing on incidence of duty to customers does not arise. This order of CCE(A) attained finality since Revenue did not challenge this order in appeal. Once CCE(A) held that there was no question of "unjust enrichment", Assistant Commissioner had no jurisdiction to reiterate and follow his overruled view of "unjust enrichment" which was already negatived by CCE(A). The approach of Assistant Commissioner in reiterating the issue of "unjust enrichment" despite having been answered by CCE(A) otherwise, vide order dated 31.1.1996 which order had attained finality, was wholly unauthorized, beyond jurisdiction and illegal. Therefore, Assistant Commissioner was wholly unjustified in denying refund on the ground of "unjust enrichment" since that was beyond his powers.

14. So far as Section 11B(2) proviso (c) is concerned, we find that it stressed on the question of refund to be paid to Assessee instead of credit to the fund if amount is relatable to (a), (b) and (c). For the purpose of unjust enrichment, reliance placed by Tribunal to Section 11B(2) proviso (c), in our view is not correct but Assessee in the case in hand could not have been denied refund on the ground of "unjust enrichment" since that was already decided in favour of Assessee by CCE(A) vide order dated 31.1.1996 and that order having attained finality, it was not open to Assistant Commissioner to deny refund on the ground of unjust enrichment.

15. We therefore, answer both the aforesaid questions by holding that in order to attract plea of "unjust enrichment" under section 11B(1), Reference made by Tribunal to Section 11B(2) proviso (c) is not justified as the said provision is not attracted. However, refund was wrongly denied to Assessee and to that extent concurrent findings in favour of Assessee has rightly been recorded by CCE(A) and Tribunal. Hence, the ultimate order of Tribunal is justified and warrants no interference. Both the questions are thus answered in favour of Assessee and against Revenue.

16. Reference is answered accordingly and stands disposed of.

Special Appeal Defective No.- 15 Of 2016

Manish Kumar 101(Revp)2015 Inre 2770(S/S)2002 ...Appellant
Versus
The Deputy G.M. Oriental Bank Of Commerce Lko. & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for Appellant:
Arvind Kumar Vishwakarma

Counsel for Respondents:
Vinay Shankar

Subject Matter

Compassionate appointment - 'Dying-in-Harness Scheme' of Oriental Bank of Commerce (Circulars dated 25.11.1993 and 16.09.1996) - Rejection of claim of a dependant, minor at the time of parent's death, on the ground of delay beyond the four-year discretionary window and beyond one year from death for making the request - Whether such time-limits, framed as a rule of thumb to alleviate distress of a bereaved family, can be applied mechanically to defeat an otherwise deserving and diligent claim - Whether the 1993 or the subsequent 1996 Scheme governs a claim where the cause of action arose during the subsistence of the 1993 Scheme - Held, delay was justified on facts; claim ought to have been considered on merits under the 1993 Scheme; appeal allowed.

Facts

The appellant's mother, a Class-IV employee of the Oriental Bank of Commerce, Branch Hazratganj, Lucknow, died in harness on 08.12.1995, survived by the appellant (then aged about 12 years) and his minor sister; the appellant's father had died earlier, on 13.10.1990. The siblings were brought up by their maternal grandfather. On attaining majority, the appellant applied for compassionate appointment on 30.08.2001. The bank rejected the claim by order dated 05.10.2001 on the ground that the application was made about six years after the death of the employee, beyond the four-year outer limit permissible under the bank's schemes dated 25.11.1993 and 16.09.1996, which required an initial request within one year of death (extendable, in the bank's discretion, up to four years for a minor dependant or one awaiting qualification, provided the initial request was made within one year). The appellant's writ petition (Writ Petition No. 2770 (S/S) of 2002) challenging this rejection was dismissed by a learned Single Judge by order dated 24.04.2014/25.04.2014, and his subsequent review (Review Petition Defective No. 101 of 2015) was also dismissed by order dated 27.10.2015. The present special appeal was filed against both orders.

Issues

1. Whether an application for compassionate appointment can be entertained even where it is not made within the scheme's stipulated four-year outer period, or where the initial request within one year of death has not been made, in circumstances where the applicant was a minor throughout the relevant period and became the family's sole prospective breadwinner only on attaining majority.
2. Whether the appellant's claim, arising from a death in 1995 during the subsistence of the bank's 1993 Scheme, was liable to be governed by the subsequent, more restrictive 1996 Scheme.

Held

Relying on a consistent line of authority from the Madras High Court (T. Meer Ismail Ali Vs. The Tamil Nadu Electricity Board, 2004 (3) CTC 120, and the subsequent line of cases including Selvi R. Anbarasi Vs. Chief Engineer (Personnel), TNEB, 2006 (2) MLJ 200, and J. Jeba Mary Vs. The Chairman, Tamil Nadu Electricity Board, 2011 (3) LLN 405, several of which were affirmed up to the Supreme Court) and the Supreme Court's decision in Balbir Kaur Vs. Steel Authority of India Ltd., (2000) 6 SCC 493, it was held that failure to apply within the stipulated period, or failure to attain majority within four years of the parent's death, are not, by themselves, valid grounds to deny compassionate appointment where the family continues to suffer indigence and no other member is employed; the four-year period is a rule of thumb, not to be applied mechanically in all cases. On facts, the appellant, having lost both parents by age 12, could not have applied during minority, and moved promptly - within the same year of attaining majority and completing his qualification - in August 2001; he could not be faulted for want of diligence, and the bank's rejection on a hyper-technical ground, without any finding that the family had other means of support, was contrary to the compassionate object of the scheme, which exists to alleviate distress and ensure that the bereaved family's need for bare subsistence is not defeated on technicality. On the question of which scheme governed, since the cause of action for compassionate appointment arose on the death of the employee in 1995, while the 1993 Scheme was in force, the claim fell to be considered under that scheme; the subsequent 1996 Scheme, being an administrative/executive instrument, could not be applied retrospectively so as to take away an accrued right, following Bank of India & Ors. Vs. Jaspal Kaur, (2007) 9 SCC 571. The application dated 30.08.2001 was accordingly held to be well within time.

Result

Appeal allowed. Judgment and order dated 25.04.2014 in Writ Petition No. 2770 (S/S) of 2002 and judgment and order dated 27.10.2015 in Review Petition Defective No. 101 of 2015 set aside. Respondent-bank directed to consider the appellant's application for compassionate appointment on merits, in accordance with the rules relating to compassionate appointment, and grant necessary relief within four weeks.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Vijay Laxmi, J.)

1. This special appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 25.04.2014 passed in Writ Petition No.2770 (S/S) of 2002 and judgment and order dated 27.10.2015 passed in Review Petition Defective No.101 of 2015 whereby the claim of the appellant for compassionate appointment in place of his mother was dismissed.

2. The appellant has claimed compassionate appointment in place of his mother, who was working as Class-IV employee in the Oriental Bank of Commerce, Branch Hazratganj, Nawal Kisore Road, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as 'Bank') who died in-harness on 08.12.1995 leaving behind her two minor children, namely, Manish Kumar, appellant aged about 12 years and Km. Jyoti, her younger sister at the time of her death. The father of the appellant had already expired on 13.10.1990 much earlier to the death of late Smt. Jayanti, mother of the appellant. The appellant along with his sister had been brought up under the guardianship of their maternal grandfather. The appellant, after attaining the age of majority, moved an application on 30.08.2001 seeking for compassionate appointment.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant argued that action of the bank in turning down the claim of the appellant was totally against Article 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India. Though the compassionate appointment was not a right but for minimum requirement of human life, the appointment of the appellant was very much required in the facts and circumstances of the case. The fundamental rights guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India guaranteeing the right to life and live with dignity neither can be diluted nor circumvented by the scheme or statutory provision. The appellant was hardly 12 years of age and his mother who was sole bread earner of the family died and admittedly when he became major after 5 years, just after attaining the age of 18 years, he applied for appointment on the compassionate ground. Learned counsel for the appellant contends that the order was passed by the respondent-bank without considering the relevant facts about the size of the appellant's family/employment status of his family members and sources of their income, liabilities and expenses and the decision of the bank rejecting the case of the appellant for compassionate appointment is arbitrary. It was submitted that the case of the appellant ought to have been considered in the light of the Scheme `Dying in Harness Scheme' which was then in vogue and the action of the bank is just contrary to the justice, equity and good conscience and is liable to be set aside .

4. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondent-bank has vehemently opposed the claim of the appellant alleging that the claim of the appellant had been turned down on the basis of bank Circular No. Per/50/92/93/295, dated 25.11.1993 followed by the the subsequent Circular No. Per/53/75/96/104, dated 16.09.1996, which provided norms and guidelines for providing compassionate appointment to the dependents of deceased employee. According to these norms the dependent is required to apply for compassionate appointment with the bank within the period of one year from the date of death of employee, and in case the dependent is minor, his/her case can be considered at the discretion of the bank within the period of four years from the death of employee which is lacking in this case. Beyond that period, the request for compassionate appointment cannot be considered in any case. Learned counsel for the respondent-Bank argued that the bank circulars dated 25.11.1993 and 16.09.1996 are binding in nature and no discretion is given to the bank authorities to deviate, modify or to create any distinction in the said schemes.

5. Learned counsel for the respondent-bank further contended that consideration for appointment on compassionate ground is contrary to Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India and is only in the nature of concession and, therefore, it does not create a vested right in favour of the claimant/respondent. It was submitted that `Dying in Harness Scheme' is a non-statutory scheme and is in the form of a concession which does not create a vested right in favour of the claimant/appellant. The compassionate appointment is justified when it is granted to provide immediate succor to the deceased-employee and cannot be granted in view of passage of time. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the respondent placed reliance on the ruling of State Bank of India and another versus Raj Kumar reported in 2010 (11) 661 and Union of India versus R. Padmanabhan reported in (2003) 7 SCC 270 and argued that the appointment on compassionate ground cannot be made a source of recruitment. It is an exception to the general rule that the recruitment to public services should be on the basis of merit, by an open invitation providing equal opportunity to all eligible persons to participate in the selection process. It was to enable the family of the deceased to get over for the sudden financial crisis.

6 . We have heard rival submissions of learned counsel for both the parties and perused the record. It would be appropriate here to mention the relevant provisions of the scheme of the bank dated 25.11.1993 which are reproduced below:

"Para IV: Appointment under this scheme shall be made with the prior sanction of the General Manger. Requests for appointment under this scheme should be received by the bank within one year from the date of death of the employee concerned. This condition may be waived by the General Manger on the merits of each case.

▪ However, with the approval of the Board of Directors:

(a)In case the member of the family to be offered appointment is a minor, the offer of appointment may be kept open till the minor attains the age of majority provided a request to that effect is made to the bank within the stipulated time limit."

▪ (b) In case a member of the family sponsored for appointment desires to wait till he/she attains certain educational qualifications, his/her case may be considered provided the date so stipulated is within four years from the date of death of the employee."

7. The relevant provisions of the scheme of the bank dated 16.09.199 are reproduced as under:

3. Request for appointment under the scheme should be made at the earliest and in any case not later than one year from the date of death of the employee.

4. In case, the dependent is a minor or does not possess minimum qualification his/her case can be considered at the discretion of the bank within four years of the death of the employee to enable him/her or to qualify in terms of age and/or qualification provided that the dependent has made a request to the bank within one year of death of the employee.

5. Compassionate appointment shall be considered bythe bank only subject to the availability of vacancy.

8. Thus the schemes categorically provide that there werethree per-requisite conditions under the scheme for compassionate appointment:- (i) an application by a dependent family member of the deceased employee within one year of death of the employee; (ii) fulfillment of the eligibility criteria prescribed under the scheme, for compassionate appointment; and (iii) availability of posts, for making such appointment. According to the respondent bank the said three conditions were not fulfilled by the appellant hence his claim was rightly rejected.

9. Admittedly, the mother of the appellant was employed in the Oriental Bank of Commerce, Branch Hazratganj as class-IV employee who died on 08.12.1995 leaving behind her two minor children, namely, Manish Kumar, appellant aged about 12 years and Km. Jyoti aged about 10 years. The father of the appellant had expired earlier on 13.10.1990. It is contended by learned counsel for the appellant that it is because of death of both father and mother the appellant could move application for the first time on 30.8.2001 after attaining age of majority by which time he had passed the Junior High School examination. The bank has scrutinized the claim of the appellant and wrongly rejected the same vide order dated 05.10.2001 observing that the appellant had moved the application for compassionate appointment on 30.08.2001 i.e after lapse of about 6 years from the date of death of the employee i.e. 08.12.1995 thus the case of the appellant did not fall within the four corners of the schemes of the bank.

10. The learned single Judge who heard the writ petitiondismissed the same by an order dated 24.04.2014 holding that the concept of compassionate appointment has been recognized as an exception to the General Rule carved out in the interest of justice, in certain exigencies, by way of a policy of an employer, which partakes the character of the service rules. In this regard, the learned single Judge placed reliance on several decisions of the Hon'ble Supreme court and dismissed the Writ Petition. Aggrieved by such order, the appellant has filed the instant Appeal. It is seen that two reasons have been assigned for rejecting the appellant's request. Thus the two points that emerge for consideration, are as follows:

(a) Whether the application for appointment on compassionate grounds can be entertained even if not made within the stipulated period of four years?

(b)Whether the application for appointment on compassionate grounds was not in time?

11. The issue as to whether an application made after 4 years can be considered or not, has come up for consideration in number of cases before High Court and the Honourable Supreme Court where the findings have been given by the Courts that in case the appellant has not filed application seeking compassionate appointment within four years from the date of death of his father and that he has not completed 18 years of age within four years, these are not valid grounds to deny appointment on compassionate ground. Similar issue was considered by Madras High Court in the decision reported in T.Meer Ismail Ali v. The Tamil Nadu Electricity Board, 2004 (3) CTC 120 [F.M.Ibrahim Kalifullah,J (as he then was)]. In the said case the deceased Board employee died on 13.04.1993 and the application submitted by one of his daughter on 05.08.1997 was rejected on the ground that she had not completed 18 years of age and after completing 18 years of age when an application was made on 04.07.2000 which was rejected on the ground that the application was not made within three years from the date when the Board Proceedings dated 13.10.1995 was issued. The Court considering the technical plea raised by the respondent Board set aside the said order and remitted the matter to pass fresh orders without reference to the objections already raised by the Board. The said order of the learned single Judge was challenged by the TNEB in W.A.No.4008 of 2004 before the First Bench of Madras Court (consisting of the Hon'ble Mr.Justice Markandey Katju,C.J. (as he then was) and N.V.Balasubramanian,J.) which dismissed the writ appeal on 01.12.2004. The respondents therein filed SLP No.6387 of 2005 against the said order which was also dismissed on 01.04.2005 by the Honourable Supreme Court and consequently the said writ appellant was given compassionate appointment.

12. Another Writ Petition in W.P.No.41459 of 2005 was considered by Madras High Court on the same set of facts. The said writ petition was allowed following the earlier order of the Division Bench of Madras High Court made in W.A.No.4008 of 2004 dated 01.12.2004 and the said decision is reported in Selvi R. Anbarasi v. Chief Engineer (Personnel), TNEB, Chennai, 2006 (2) MLJ 200. The said order was challenged by the TNEB before the First Bench in W.A.No.988 of 2006. However, the said appellant was given appointment on compassionate ground by implementing the order and therefore the writ appeal was dismissed as infructuous on 15.09.2006 by recording the statement made by the Standing Counsel for the TNEB.

13. In W.P.No.21512 of 2003 one Indiraniammal challenged the rejection of compassionate appointment before Madras High Court on similar ground. The learned single Judge dismissed the writ petition by order dated 04.08.2003 against which W.A. No.3050 of 2003 was filed and the said writ appeal was allowed by the Division Bench (consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice P. Sathasivam (as he then was) & S.K.Krishnan,J) by order dated 08.03.2005 following the earlier judgments as well as the Supreme Court Judgment reported in Balbir Kaur v. Steel Authority of India Ltd., (2000) 6 SCC 493. Against the said decision Civil Appeal No.2039 of 2006 was filed by the respondent Board which was dismissed by the Honourable Supreme Court on 30.03.2010.

14. Dismissal of another W.P.No.775 of 2004 by order dated 29.01.2005 of Madras High Court on the ground of delay was considered by the Division Bench (F.M.Ibrahim Kalifullah,J. (as he then was) & P.Murugesan,J) in W.A(MD).No.29 of 2006 and by order dated 27.06.2006 the Division Bench allowed the writ appeal and directed to give compassionate appointment to the younger son of the deceased Board employee, who died on 15.11.1996. The said order of the Division Bench was also challenged by the Board in SLP(C)No.15534 of 2007 which was also dismissed by the Apex Court on 08.04.2009.

15. In W.P.No.18575 of 2006 filed by P.Venkatesan, Madras High Court again considered similar issue and allowed the writ petition on 20.06.2006 by following earlier orders. The said order was also challenged by the respondent in W.A.No.42 of 2007 and the Division Bench (D.Murugesan,J & K.Venkataraman,J) dismissed the writ appeal on 02.07.2009. The Board filed SLP(C)No.8305 of 2010 which was also dismissed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court on 06.07.2010. The said candidate viz., P.Venkatesan was given compassionate appointment by order dated 18.08.2010.

16. Similar issue came up for adjudication before High Court of Madras in J. Jeba Mary vs. The Chairman, Tamil Nadu Electricity Board reported in 2011 (3) LLN 405 (Mad.) which was considered by Mr. Justice N. Paul Vasanthakumar. The writ was allowed and the direction was given to give compassionate appointment to the dependent of the deceased employee. The judgment was confirmed by the the Apex Court.

17. From the above referred decisions passed in series of cases on the same ground, it is evident that on the similar grounds raised by the respondents that the appellant has not filed application seeking compassionate appointment within stipulated period from the date of death of his father and that he has not completed 18 years of age within stipulated period are not valid grounds to deny appointment on compassionate ground as according to appellant no one in his family was employed and the family of the appellant was in indigent circumstance even on that date. Therefore, when the family of the employee who died in harness is still suffering where no other member is employed, this Court as well as the Apex Court have always come to rescue of the applicant seeking appointment on compassionate grounds. Such applications can also be entertained in deserving cases and the said rule of 4 years can only be treated as a rule of thumb and cannot be strictly implemented in all cases.

18. In the instant case, it is not in dispute that the appellant was about 12 years of age when he lost his mother, he had lost his father earlier thus after completing 18 years of age he earned more an application for compassionate appointment only in the year 2001.The appellant is prosecuting the matter before the respondents right from August, 2001. Thus It cannot be held that the appellant was not diligent in seeking for compassionate appointment at the earliest point of time. In fact, immediately after attaining 18 years of age and also after qualifying himself, when the appellant came forward with the present application in 2001, in all fairness, the respondent should have considered the appellant's claim on merits who claimed that his sister was minor and, therefore, he was the only breadwinner of the family. In such circumstances, it was a deserving case where the respondent should have shown some compassion while considering the appellant application for compassionate appointment. Unfortunately, the respondent did not seem to have shown any compassion at all and mercilessly rejected the appellant's application on a hyper technical ground. It is not the case of the bank that the appellant family is having any other income to negate their claim for appointment on compassionate ground.

19. Now coming to the next question about request for appointment within one year of the death of the employee, it is not disputed that the application for appointment on compassionate grounds was made by the appellant on 30.08.2001. As per the then prevailing scheme of 1993, though the request for appointment was to be made within one year of the the death of the employee, but it was due to peculiar circumstances of this case that the appellant could submit his application for the first time on 30.08.2001 i.e. after about more than 5 years after the death of the employee, since the appellant had lost both his father in 1990 and his mother in 08.12.1995. Thus under such circumstances no adverse order could be passed against the appellant on this ground. Moreover, when a person cannot be employed in government service before completion of 18 years of age, he could not also make an application during his period of minority, 20. It appears that the appellant has immediately submitted an application on 30.08.2001 on attaining majority. The respondent bank has taken a hyper technical stand that the application must have been submitted only within one year of the the death of the employee and the application submitted after more than 5 years is invalid. This court is rejecting the contention of the respondent bank. The intention of the said bank scheme is to alleviate the distress of the bereaved family. The purpose of the scheme is to see that the cry of the family for bare subsistence would not go unheeded on certain technicality. Ours is a welfare state. The judgment, therefore, are meant to highlight the constitutional philosophy of socialistic one and to make an attempt to give the philosophy a reality of flesh and blood.

21. Now regarding the applicability of the bank scheme of 1993 or 1996, the appellant's mother died in 1995 while she was serving as a class IV employee in the respondent-bank and the appellant applied for compassionate appointment. The respondent-bank rejected the appellant's claim. However, the cause of action to be considered for compassionate appointment arose when the bank scheme of 1993 was in force. As per the judgment of Supreme Court in Bank of India & Ors. vs. Jaspal Kaur, (2007) 9 SCC 571 , the claim cannot be decided as per 1996 Scheme. The scheme of 1996 being an administrative or executive order cannot have retrospective effect so as to take away the right accrued to the appellant as per scheme of 1993.

22. We are, therefore, of the view that the appellant's case deserves consideration inasmuch as he had diligently made a claim after attaining the age of 18, in the year 2001 and in such circumstances, rejection of his application on the ground that it was not made within four years was not justified.

23. In view of the above, this Court is of the view that the application made on 30.08.2001 is well within time and the orders impugned are, therefore, set aside and the respondent bank is directed to consider the appellant's application on merits and provide necessary relief to the appellant in accordance with the rules relating to compassionate appointment within four weeks from today.

24. With the above direction, the appeal is allowed.

Criminal Appeal No.- 153 Of 1984

Nan Bachcha ...Appellant
Versus
State Of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for Appellant:
G.P. Dixit

Counsel for Respondent:
A.G.A.

FACTS

The instant criminal appeal was preferred against the judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 12.1.1984 passed by the 4th Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur in Sessions Trial No. 263 of 1982 (State v. Jamrehi and Nan Bachcha), arising out of Case Crime No. 175 of 1981, under Section 302 I.P.C., P.S. Khaga, District Fatehpur, whereby the sole appellant Nan Bachcha was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment under Section 302 I.P.C., while co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh was acquitted giving him the benefit of doubt. A third accused, Chhedu Singh alias Ramsiroman Singh, had died before the case was committed to the Court of Session.

As per the prosecution case, in the intervening night of 8/9 June, 1981, the deceased Vijay Pal Singh was sleeping on a cot in the verandah of a flour mill (Ata chakki) while the informant (PW-1, his brother) and PW-2 were grinding flour inside. On the exhortation of Jamrehi Nath Singh to kill the deceased, the informant and PW-2 came out and allegedly witnessed co-accused Chhedu Singh and the appellant, both armed with country-made pistols, firing at the deceased, who succumbed to the injuries. The First Information Report was lodged shortly thereafter.

The postmortem examination revealed firearm entry and exit wounds on the abdomen and head, with the cause of death opined to be shock and haemorrhage due to ante-mortem injuries. The prosecution examined three witnesses of fact — PW-1, PW-2 and PW-4 — as eyewitnesses, apart from the medical officer (PW-3) and the police witnesses (PW-5 and PW-6). The trial court convicted the appellant under Section 302 I.P.C. while extending the benefit of doubt to co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh, to whom the role of exhortation had been assigned.

ISSUES FOR CONSIDERATION

(i) Whether the presence and testimony of the eyewitnesses, particularly regarding the alleged exhortation and identification of the assailants during the night, were natural, credible and free from doubt.
(ii) Whether the prosecution proved the availability of electric light/supply at the place of occurrence to establish visibility for identification of the accused.
(iii) Whether PW-4, being a relative of the informant's family and a chance witness, could be relied upon in the absence of corroboration regarding the cinema he claimed to have watched.
(iv) Whether, once the co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh (to whom the role of exhortation was assigned) was acquitted by extending the benefit of doubt, the appellant — his son, similarly implicated on the same set of evidence — was also entitled to the benefit of doubt.

HELD
The Court found the prosecution story doubtful on several counts: the alleged exhortation was said to have been heard by witnesses despite the noise of the flour-grinding machine; no reliable evidence was produced to establish the availability of electric supply at the spot on the relevant night, the report of the Junior Engineer, Electricity Department, Khaga having remained unproved; the conduct of the assailants in allegedly announcing their presence and awaiting the witnesses before firing, instead of fleeing after the assault, was found unnatural; PW-4 was found to be a chance witness related to the informant's family, and the prosecution failed to verify his claim of having watched a film at the cinema hall on the relevant night; and the Investigating Officer was found to have been negligent in several material respects, including failure to verify the electricity supply and the cinema exhibition, and failure to record the statement of the treating doctor at Khaga Hospital.
The Court held that since the co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh, father of the appellant, to whom the role of exhortation was assigned, had already been extended the benefit of doubt on the very same evidence, the appellant — implicated on an identical footing along with his father and deceased brother-in-crime — was also entitled to the benefit of doubt, and the prosecution could not be said to have proved its case against him beyond reasonable doubt.

RESULT
Appeal allowed. The impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 12.1.1984 passed by the 4th Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur, in Sessions Trial No. 263 of 1982, is set aside. The appellant's bail bonds and sureties stand discharged, subject to his furnishing sureties in compliance with Section 437-A Cr.P.C. before the trial court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arvind Kumar Tripathi, J.)

1. Shri G.S.Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Samit Gopal, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Chandrajit Yadav, learned A.G.A. on behalf of the State appeared.

2. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and judgement was reserved on 22.8.2016.

3. The instant criminal appeal has been preferred challenging the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 12.1.1984 passed by 4th Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur passed in Sessions Trial No.263 of 1982 (State vs. Jamrehi and Nan Bachcha) arising out of Case Crime No.175/1981, under section 302 I.P.C. PS.Khaga, Sub District Khaga, District Fatehpur convicting and sentencing the sole appellant Nan bachcha under section 302 I.P.C. to undergo life imprisonment. Jamrehi Nath was acquitted giving the benefit of doubt.

4. The First Information Report was lodged by one Amar Pal Singh s/o Ramdhani Singh, village & Police Station Khaga, District Fatehpur against three persons namely Jamrehi Nath Singh s/o Agan Singh, Chhedu Singh alias Ramsiroman Singh and Nan Bachcha s/o Jamrehi Nath Singh, village Hardo, PS. Khaga. The charge sheet was submitted against all the three accused. Before the case was committed to the court of Sessions, accused Chhedu Singh alias Ramsiroman died, hence the trial court proceeded against the appellant and co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh, father of the appellant, hence the present appeal is only on behalf of sole appellant Nan Bachcha, against the conviction and sentence of life imprisonment.

5. The brief facts of this case is that the First Information Report was lodged by PW-1 Amar Pal Singh (brother of the deceased) with the allegation that in the night of 9th August, 1981 his brother Vijay Pal Singh (deceased), son of Ramdhani Singh, village Hardo, District Fatehpur Fatehpur was present alongwith the informant (Amarpal Singh) and one Ram Naresh, s/o Nandu Singh, village Hardo at the Ata chakki(flour mill). His brother Vijay Pal Singh was sleeping in the verandah and the informant with Ram Naresh Singh were grinding flour at about 1.30 A.M.(in the night). Jamrehi Nath Singh, Agan Singh, Chhedu Singh alias Ramsiroman and Nan Bachcha, both sons of Jamrehi Nath Singh of village Hardo, PS.Khaga, District Fatehpur came near cot of his brother Vijay Pal Singh, Chhedu Singh alias Ram Siroman Singh was having country made pistol in his right hand, Nan Bachcha was also having country made pistol in his right hand and cartridges in left hand. The accused Jamrehi Nath Singh abusing Vijay Pal Singh exhorted his two sons including appellant that this is the person to kill him. After hearing the same the informant and Ram Naresh who were grinding flour came out and saw that Ram Siroman Singh shot fire with his country made pistol on his brother Vijay Pal Singh causing injuries on his abdomen and Nan Bachcha also shot fire on Vijay Pal Singh. The informant and Vijay Pal raised alarm calling the villagers to rush as they killed his brother. In the meantime Narendra Singh, s/o Mahabir Singh and Surya Bhan alias Radhai s/o Surajpal Singh,Village Hardo reached there and in the meantime the said accused ran away. There was electric light and they saw and identified the accused persons. After sometime the number of villagers reached there. Since his brother was breathing and not speaking, hence he took his brother to Government Hospital, Khaga. After examination Medical Officer, Khaga declared him dead. Thereafter he took the dead body to the Police Station and after scribing the report, the First Information Report was lodged and registered at the police station Khaga. The report was proved as Ext.Ka-3. The chick report was proved as Ext.Ka.2 registered on the same day at about 3.45 A.M. The distance from the place of occurrence was about 1 km. S.I.Jadunath Dwivedi who was posted as S.H.O. Khaga District Fatehpur was present at the police station and in his presence the First Information Report was lodged. Thereafter he recorded the statement of the informant Amar Pal Singh at the police station, Panchayatnama of the dead body of Vijay Pal Singh was prepared. Necessary papers were proved as Ext.Ka.6 to Ext. Ka.11. The dead body of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh was sealed and sent for postmortem examination. Thereafter the investigating officer went to the place of occurrence at about 9.00 A.M. recorded the statement of Ram Naresh Singh, Narendra Singh etc. inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site plan Ext.Ka.12. He took the plan and furnished the rope of cot (badh), sample of plain blood, mud from the place of the occurrence which were kept and sealed separately. On the spot he also found three ticklies which he sealed and covered as Ext.Ka.15. Postmortem examination was conducted on 9.8.1981 at 5.00 P.M. by Medical Officer, Dr.G.S.Gaur who was examined as PW-3. As per medical report, three firearm injuries were noted, two entry and one exit wound.

1. One firearm wound of entry, 1.5 x 1.5 x Abdomen cavity deep on left side of Abdomen 1" lateral to umbilicus at 3 O'clock position. Margin inverted, blacking and tattooing present. Direction from front to backward and downward.

2. One firearm wound of entry 1" x 1" x brain deep on left side of head 2.5" above left ear. Blackening and tattooing present. Margin inverted. Direction from back to front and slightly towards right side.

3.Firearm wounds of exit each 1/4" x 1/4" x brain deep on left side of forehead. Margins everted. It is inter-related to injury no.2. 26 (twenty six) small size bullets and two big size pellets and one wadding piece recovered from the body.

6. On an internal examination, skull was found lacerated, fracture under the injury no.2 & 3. Membrance lacerated. Brain lacerated, two shots (big size- pea size). Peritoneum lacerated. Stomach contained half ounce food digested present. Small intestine found lacerated empty. Six small size pellets recovered. Big intestine was found full. Bladder lacerated. 20 small size pellets recovered. According to opinion of doctor cause of death was shock and haemorrhage as a result of anti-mortem injuries. Dr.G.S.Chaturvedi was examined as PW-3.

7. After receipt of the postmortem examination report and completing the necessary formalities, the charge sheet was submitted. The charges were framed on 20.8.1983 under section 302 I.P.C. against accused Nan Bachcha and a separate charge under section 302 read with section 34 I.P.C. was also framed against the accused Jamrehi Nath Singh. which was read over and explained to the accused appellant in Hindi. He pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

8. The prosecution to prove its case examined as many as six witnesses and three witnesses of fact claimed to be eyewitnesses. PW-1 Amar Pal Singh, brother of the deceased, PW-2 Ram Naresh, witness of the informant, PW-3 Dr.G.S.Gaur, Medical Officer, District Hospital, Fatehpur who conducted the postmortem examination on the body of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh, PW-4 Narendra Singh who is claiming that he was returning after watching film Abdulla from Khaga and after hearing alarm he reached at the place of the incident. PW-5 Surendra Prasad Shukla, Head Constable who proved the chick report and First Information Report and G.D. entry, PW-5 Jadunath Dwivedi, the then SHO Khaga who conducted the investigation and submitted the charge sheet.

9. After the evidence was closed, the statement of the accused was recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. The accused appellant denied the charges and submitted that he was falsely implicated. Witnesses grudged against him but neither any evidence was adduced in defence nor any reason of any enmity was mentioned. Subsequently when question was put regarding report submitted by J.E. Electrical Department, Khaga regarding supply of electricity in the intervening night of 8/9 June, 1981, he submitted that the report was forged one. At the time of incident there was no supply of electricity and said Junior Engineer whose report was submitted was not at Khaga.

10. On the basis of prosecution evidence, the trial court held the appellants guilty for committing the offence under section 302 I.P.C. He was convicted and sentenced to undergo life imprisonment under section 302 I.P.C. However, the benefit of doubt was given to the co-accused. Against the impugned judgement the present Criminal Appeal was preferred which was admitted and prayer for bail was allowed on 16.1.1984.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant challenged the impugned judgement and order of conviction and sentence on the ground that none of the witnesses were present so that it was a blind murder. The assailants chosen the time of mid night or after mid night so no person could saw them committing murder of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh. The role of firing was assigned to two persons namely the appellant Nan Bachcha and the co-accused Chheddu Singh alias Ram Siroman Singh and the role of exhortation was assigned to their father Jamrehi Nath Singh. Father and two sons were implicated in the present case. Jamrehi Nath Singh was aged about more than 80 years. According to prosecution case, the informant and his servant PW-2 were grinding flour and due to noise of grinding machine, it is unnatural that they heard exhortation. If the accused appellant and co-accused chosen the dark night for committing the offence and the deceased was found sleeping in the veranada, then they would shot fire and ran away from the spot instead of raising voice to invite the witnesses to watch the incident and identify them that it was a dark night and supply of electricity was also not proved. The investigating officer did not take any pain to verify whether there was electricity in the night of 8/9.6.1981 in village Hardo or not. He also did not verify whether on the date of incident film Abdulla was shown in the picture hall at Khaga or not because PW-4 is a chance witness. According to him he was returning after seeing film into picture hall at Khaga and reached near the place of the incident at the same time. When the incident took place and the informant raised alarm it was also unnatural that during night he went to see film and was returning at 1.30 A.M. in the night. He also contended that only due to village rivalry the appellant, his brother and father were falsely implicated in the present case, hence benefit of doubt was given to the co-accused his father Jamrehi Nath Singh and he was acquitted to whom the role of exhortation was assigned. According to the prosecution case after hearing the exhortation the accused and Jamrehi Nath Singh came out. PW-4 Narendra Singh is not only a chance witness but he is relative of the family of the deceased.

12. He submitted that in view of the fact the prosecution story is doubtful and the appellant is also entitled for the benefit of doubt, hence the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence is liable to be set aside.

13. Learned A.G.A. opposed the aforesaid prayer. There are three witnesses of the incident and according to their statement, the appellant Nan Bachcha and co-accused Chheddu Singh alias Ramsiroman shot fire. Only role of exhortation was assigned to their father Jamrehi Nath Singh, hence the benefit of doubt was given to him considering his old age. There was no reason of false implication of the appellant. The presence of the witnesses are not doubtful. There are no contradiction and discrepancy in their statement which are corroborated by the medical report though there are negligence on the part of the investigating officer, merely on that ground the prosecution story will not be disbelieved which has been proved by the witnesses adducing the oral evidence merely because the benefit of doubt was given to one of the co-accused to whom the role of exhortation was assigned, on the ground of old age, hence the appellant is not entitled to any benefit of doubt on that ground.

14. Considered the submissions of counsel for the parties and perused the record.

15. In the present case co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh and his sons namely Chheddu Singh who died before the case was committed to the court of Session and Nan Bachcha the appellant are accused. The role of exhortation was assigned to co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh, father of the appellant and he was acquitted of the charges under section 302 I.P.C. read with section 34 I.P.C. Three witnesses of fact have been examined by the prosecution, PW-1 Amar Pal Singh, brother of the deceased, PW-2 Ram Naresh, servant of Amar Pal Singh and PW-4 who was relative of the informant. The first information report was lodged by PW-1 Amar Pal Singh. According to his statement, in the night of 9.6.1981 at about 1.30 A.M. his brother Vijay Pal Singh was sleeping on cot in verandah. There was electric light. He was having a flour mill which was being run by electric motor. He alongwith servant was grinding flour. The accused person reached where the deceased was sleeping. Co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh, father of the appellant exhorted his son to kill Vijay Pal Singh who was sleeping there. He said "Yah Sala Pada Hai, Ise Mar Dalo" and after hearing exhortation he alongwith Ram Naresh came out, in verandah and saw that the co-accused Chheddu Singh and appellant Nan Bachcha who were having country made pistol, both shot fire on his brother Vijay Pal Singh causing firearm injuries. Thereafter they ran away towards west. Co-accused Jamrehi Nath only threatened. He did not pay attention whether he was having country made pistol in hand or not. After causing firearm injuries they raised alarm on which Narendra Singh and one Suraj Bhan reached there. When they reached in veranada before that assailants ran away towards west. He saw that his brother was breathing, hence he was taken to the hospital by bullock-cart to Khaga and after examining, doctor declared him dead, thereafter he went to the police station and lodged the first information report regarding motive. He further submitted that two days before the incident Nan Bachcha was sitting with Radio at the door of one Ramjas who was neighbour of the informant. When daughter of the Ramjas came there he started misbehaving with her. Vijay Pal Singh also reached there who saw their conduct. He asked to Nan Bachcha to stop that on which Nan Bachcha threatened him to see him and to kill him. Next day he informed regarding the same. In cross examination he informed that Suraj Pal, his real brother of Ramsiroman. Chatrapal alias Chhedu, son of Suraj Pal is married to Smt.Ramsri. Ramsri is real sister of PW-4 Narendra Singh. In cross examination on suggestion from the side of defence he stated that he was not aware regarding any case for land in between the co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh and his father and grand father but he further stated there was no other person in the village of the same name like name of his father. He also denied that he was falsely implicated. He also stated that at the time of incident flour mill was being run with electric motor and they were grinding flour while his brother was sleeping and he had not covered his face. There was a bed sheet of markin on cot which was blood stained. Tahmat was also blood stained. The cloths were shown to the sub inspector. However, according to the investigating officer PW-6 no cloth was found on the cot of the deceased. Further in cross examination PW-1 stated that immediately on exhortation by co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh both shots were fired causing firearm injuries and accused run away. Houses were situated both sides of passage(Gali). Women were used to sleep inside the house.

16. According to PW-2 Ram Naresh, the servant of the informant, he was grinding flour at the flour mill of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh, PW1 Amar Pal was also alongwith him. When at about 1.30 A.M. in the night. Vijay Pal was sleeping in verandah, there was electric light. Jamrehi Nath Singh came there in verandah and said "Mar Do Sale Ko Yahni So Rai Hai". After hearing the said exhortation he and Amar Pal came out in verandah and saw that the co-accused Ramsiroman and the appellant Nan Bachcha shot fire with their country made pistol causing firearm injuries to the deceased Vijay Pal Singh. They raised alarm and thereafter the accused ran towards west. After hearing alarm, other witnesses reached there.

17. Considered the submissions of counsel for the parties.

18. PW-1 Amar Pal Singh, brother of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh is the informant. According to him, he was present at the flour mill alongwith Ram Naresh who was examined as PW-2 and they were working there for grinding flour (Ata). According to witnesses the work of the grinding flour was being done during night on the availability of the electricity as the same was supplied to the District during night in the village. The deceased's brother was sleeping in veranada, outside the room where Ata Chakki was being run. According to witnesses there was light of bulb. After hearing the exhortation and abusive language used by Jamrehi, the informant and his servant Ram Naresh came out of room and saw that Ram Siroman, Chheddu and Nan Bachcha were having country made pistol and both shot fire at his brother Vijay Pal Singh who was sleeping on the cot at about 1.30 A.M. in the intervening night of 8/9.8.1981. After firing they ran away towards west. The presence of PW-1 and PW-2 might not be doubtful inside the room in which they were grinding flour but no evidence was adduced to show that there was electric supply during night. The report of J.E. Electricity Department, Khaga was filed but the same was not proved. Against that report defence version was that there was no such Junior Engineer posted there at that time and the report was forged one. The investigating officer- PW-6 Yadunath Dwivedi, neither visited the electricity department nor he tried to collect the evidence whether there was electric supply in the village on the date of incident or not. He also did not peruse the register maintained at the flour mill. At the grinding mill he did not try to know regarding quantity of flour (Ata) kept there for grinding. Regarding electric supply no evidence was adduced to prove by the prosecution to show that there was electric supply on the date of incident or that flour mill was running for grinding flour during night. According to counsel for the appellant, even if the person would be present inside the room, where flour machine was operational and if there was exhortation or instigation outside the room it would not be practically possible to hear the same. It also appears to be unnatural that if the assailants chosen mid night for committing murder then it would not be expected to raise voice to invite the attention of witnesses present either inside the room or near by places. If the intention was to kill Vijay Pal Singh, who was sleeping in verandah outside the room,then they will shot and ran away from the place even they have not covered their faces to conceal their identify.

19. According to PW-1 Jamrehi Nath Singh exhorted and uttered (Yah Sala Pada Hai, Ise Mar Dalo, Yah Sun Kar Varamade Me Aya, PW-2 stated that Jamrehi Nath Singh Varamade Me Aa Kar Kaha, Mar Do Sale Ko Yaha So Raha Hai, Itna Sunkar Ham Evam Amar Pal Varamade Me Aa Gai. So after uttering above noted words, the accused were invited attention of the witnesses. They were waiting the witnesses to come in the verandah to see the incident and they fired with country made pistol. PW-1 and PW-2 raised alarm, Narendra Singh and Suraj Bhan reached there. According to Narendra Singh he was returning after watching Abdulla film but he did not tell the story of that film and name of actress and actor except the name of Abdula. Cross examination on behalf of defence was that on the date of incident Abdula film was not shown rather film Ram and Shyam was shown and there was only one picture hall in Khaga. No evidence was placed to prove that film Abdulla was shown. He was a chance witness and relative of the informant and deceased. His sister was married with Chhatrapal cousin of Amar Pal Singh. According to witnesses since Vijay Pal Singh was breathing, hence he was taken to the hospital but it was unnatural that neither Ram Naresh-servant of the informant and deceased nor any other relative of the informant accompanied him either to the hospital or to the police station. According to prosecution the incident took place at 1.30 A.M. in the night and the First Information Report was lodged at 3.45 A.M. The distance of the police station was one kilometer towards south. The Investigating officer did not verify whether picture Abdula was shown on the relevant date. Witness Narendra Singh is not only chance but relative also. The investigating officer did not record the statement of doctor of Khaga Hospital. The question was also put to PW-2 that his father Nandu was convicted under section 325 I.P.C. in which accused Jamrehi Nath Singh was doing pairvi in State case under section 325 I.P.C. The trial court given the benefit of doubt to the accused Jamrehi Nath Singh and he was acquitted. The murder of Ram Siroman was committed before the case was committed to the court of Sessions, hence the appeal is only on behalf of the sole appellant Nan Bachcha who was convicted under section 302 I.P.C.

20. In view of the aforesaid discussions, facts and circumstances of the case, the prosecution story becomes doubtful. The prosecution was expected to prove the case beyond reasonable doubt to held the appellant guilty. On the same evidence benefit of doubt was given to one of the co-accused Jamrehi Nath Singh to whom the role of exhortation was assigned. Jamrehi Nath Singh, is father of the appellant and two sons were implicated, hence in view of the abovenoted discussion, the appellant is also entitled for benefit of doubt.

21. Accordingly this appeal is allowed. The impugned order of conviction and sentence dated 12.1.1984 passed by 4th Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur passed in Sessions Trial No.263 of 1982 (State vs. Jamrehi and Nan Bachcha) arising out of Case Crime No.175/1981, under section 302 I.P.C. PS.Khaga is hereby set aside. Since the appellant is on bail, hence his bail bonds and sureties are hereby discharged provided he furnish sureties in compliance of the provision under section 437A Cr.P.C. before the trial court. The court concerned shall ensure the compliance of the order. Office to communicate this judgement and order to the court concerned at earliest.

FACTS

The present revision under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 was preferred against the judgment and order dated 19.5.2016 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Gautam Budh Nagar, decreeing SCC Suit No. 14 of 2013 (Dr. B.K. Singh v. Ramdev Yadav), concerning the first and second floor portions of building No. A-528A, Sector-19, NOIDA. The plaintiff-respondent, claiming to be the owner and landlord, alleged that the defendant-revisionist was tenant of the first floor at Rs. 25,000/- per month and of the second floor at Rs. 21,000/- per month under a tenancy commencing 2.6.2012 by registered rent agreement, which expired on 30.4.2013; and after determination of the tenancy by notice dated 14.5.2013 under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, instituted the suit on 31.5.2013 for eviction and damages.

The defendant-revisionist admitted tenancy of the first floor but denied tenancy of the second floor, contending that one Raja Ram was tenant of that portion, and further contended that the notice under Section 106 was invalid and not served. The trial court, on the pleadings, framed eleven issues, the principal ones concerning whether the defendant-revisionist was tenant of the second floor, whether the tenancy was validly determined, the validity of the notice, and whether the tenancy had been extended. The trial court decreed the suit holding the defendant-revisionist to be tenant of both floors at a combined rent of Rs. 46,000/- per month, that the tenancy for both floors was for a fixed period which expired by efflux of time, that it had not been extended, and that no notice under Section 106 was therefore necessary; a decree of eviction with graded damages was accordingly passed, adjustable against the security deposited.

A preliminary objection was raised by the plaintiff-respondent's counsel that the defendant-revisionist, having failed to fully comply with the conditions of the interim order dated 28.7.2016 (which required deposit of entire arrears in respect of both portions), was not entitled to be heard. It was explained on behalf of the defendant-revisionist that he had bona fide withheld deposit of arrears qua the second floor alone, as his tenancy of that portion was seriously disputed, while depositing arrears for the first floor and current monthly damages for both.

ISSUES FOR CONSIDERATION

(i) Whether the defendant-revisionist, having not fully complied with the conditions of the interim order, was entitled to be heard on merits.
(ii) Whether the finding that the defendant-revisionist is tenant of the second floor portion, in addition to the first floor, suffers from any error of law or jurisdiction.
(iii) Whether the tenancy in respect of both portions was a fixed-term tenancy requiring no notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 for its determination.
(iv) Whether, if the tenancy had not come to an end by efflux of time, it stood validly determined by the notice dated 14.5.2013, and whether the suit founded thereon was maintainable.

HELD

On the preliminary objection, the Court held that non-compliance with an interim order does not result in an absolute bar to being heard in all circumstances; whether a party in default should be denied hearing depends on the facts of the case, relying on Prestige Lights Ltd. v. State Bank of India, (2007) 8 SCC 449. As the default was limited to the seriously disputed second-floor arrears, was not a case of contumacious or prolonged violation, and admitted dues had been bona fide deposited, the defendant-revisionist was not denied hearing.
On the first point, the Court held that the finding of the trial court that the defendant-revisionist was tenant of both the first and second floor was based on cogent material — including cheque payments covering the combined rent of Rs. 46,000/-, his admission of paying electricity dues for both floors through a common meter, and his admission that access to the second floor was only through his first-floor drawing room — and did not suffer from any perversity or jurisdictional error warranting interference in revision.
On the second point, the Court held that the written rent agreement dated 2.6.2012, on a plain reading and as reflected in the plaint itself, related only to the first floor portion and fixed a term of 11 months, following the principle in Satendra Singh v. Vimal Kumar Bhalotia, 2015 (2) AWC 1341 (SC), that an 11-month tenancy under a rent agreement is a fixed-term tenancy requiring no notice under Section 106. However, there was no evidence that the second floor tenancy was covered by the same agreement or was for a fixed term; the trial court had therefore erred in treating the second floor tenancy also as a fixed-term tenancy not requiring notice for its determination — it was a tenancy at will, determinable only by notice under Section 106.
On the third point, the Court held that a notice determining a tenancy at will is a condition precedent to a suit for eviction, and while the technical rule under Section 106 must be construed liberally, a construction that deprives the tenant of the statutorily minimum notice period is impermissible. As the second-floor tenancy was month-to-month, a 30-day notice period applied; taking the notice dated 14.5.2013 to have been served on the same date, the notice period expired only on 14.6.2013, whereas the suit was filed on 31.5.2013 — before expiry of the statutory notice period. Distinguishing Shree Ram Urban Infrastructure Ltd. v. Court Receiver, AIR 2014 SC 2286, and the Court's own decision in Union Bank of India v. Priyugi Narain Tripathi (SCC Revision No. 585 of 2014, decided 28.11.2014) — both of which dealt with suits filed after expiry of the statutory notice period despite a shorter notice being given — the Court held that a suit filed before expiry of the statutory notice period is premature and not saved by those authorities. The suit for eviction from the second floor was accordingly held to be prematurely instituted and bad in law.

RESULT

Revision allowed in part. The judgment and order dated 19.5.2016 and the consequential decree of the court below are upheld to the extent of decreeing eviction from the first floor portion, and set aside in respect of eviction from the second floor portion. The plaintiff-respondent is held entitled to damages/rent for the first floor portion alone, at 10% annual enhancement — Rs. 27,500/- per month for 1.5.2013 to 30.4.2014, Rs. 30,250/- per month for 1.5.2014 to 30.4.2015, and Rs. 33,275/- per month thereafter till possession — adjustable against the security deposit of Rs. 50,000/- for the first floor and any amount already paid. The judgment and order of the court below stand modified accordingly.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Mithal, J.)

1. The judgment and order dated 19.5.2016 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Gautam Budh Nagar decreeing SCC Suit No. 14 of 2013 (Dr. B.K. Singh Vs. Ramdev Yadav) is the subject matter of revision under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Causes Court Act, 1887 (hereinafter referred to as the Act).

2. The dispute is about the first and the second floor portions of the building A-528A, Sector-19 NOIDA, District Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. The plaintiff respondent Dr. B.K. Singh claims himself to be the owner and landlord of the said property and alleges that the defendant revisionist Ramdev Yadav is a tenant of the first and second floor at the rent of Rs. 25,000/- and Rs. 21,000/- respectively.

4. The plaintiff respondent after determining the lease of the defendant revisionist vide notice dated 14.5.2013 instituted the aforesaid suit for arrears of rent and eviction on 31.5.2013 alleging that the tenancy of the defendant revisionist commenced w.e.f. 2.6.2012 under a registered rent agreement. The said tenancy came to an end on 30.4.2013 but the defendant revisionist failed to vacate it despite letters informing him that the lease has expired and that he does not want to extend the same. A notice dated 14.5.2013 under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (in short referred to as the T.P. Act) was also sent to the defendant revisionist but in vain. In the suit he claimed eviction of the defendant revisionist and damages @ Rs. 60,000/- per month.

5. The defendant revisionist contested the suit admitting himself to be the tenant of the first floor portion but denying the tenancy of the second floor. It was contended that he never took the second floor portion on rent of Rs. 21,000/- as alleged rather one Raja Ram is a tenant occupying the same. The notice issued under Section 106 of the T.P. Act is not legal and valid. It has not been served upon him.

6. On the basis of the above pleadings of the parties, the court of first instance formulated as many as 11 issues. The main issues were issue nos. 1,4,6,9 and 11. The said issues were whether the defendant revisionist is not the tenant of the second floor; whether his tenancy has been validly determined; whether the notice issued under Section 106 of the T.P. Act is valid; whether the tenancy of the defendant revisionist was extended from 1.5.2013 to 30.4.2014; and to what relief, if any, the plaintiff respondent is entitle to.

7. The suit was decreed holding that the defendant revisionist is tenant of the first and second floor portions of the building at a rent of Rs. 25,000/- and Rs. 21,000/- respectively, total

Rs. 46,000/- per month. The tenancy of the defendant revisionist was for a fixed period and it expired by efflux of time. It was also held that the tenancy was never extended as alleged and the defendant revisionist was liable to eviction from the property on the expiry of the lease period. Therefore, no notice under Section 106 of the T.P. Act was necessary. Thus, the question of determination of tenancy and the validity of notice was left undecided. Accordingly, a decree of eviction was passed with damages @ Rs. 56,000/- for the period 1.5.2013 to 30.4.2014 @ Rs. 55,660/- from 1.5.2014 to 30.4.2015 and @ Rs. 60,160/- thereafter till the vacation of the property. The amount deposited by the defendant revisionist as security and during pendency of the suit was directed to be adjusted towards the damages.

8. The aforesaid judgment and order has been impugned herein in this revision.

9. Sri Ravi Kiran Jain, Senior Counsel contends that the defendant revisionist has not complied with the interim order passed by this Court on 28.7.2016 and as such is not even entitle to be heard.

Preliminary Objection:-

10. First, taking the preliminary objection that the defendant revisionist is not entitled to any audience as he has not complied with the conditions of the interim order, it may be relevant to quote the relevant portion of the interim order dated 28.7.2016:-

" Till the next date of listing, the dispossession of the revisionist from the two tenanted portions in dispute shall remain stayed provided he deposits the entire arrears of rent in respect of both the portions within a period of two weeks from today and continues to deposit damages/monthly rent for the use and occupation w.e.f. 1st August 2016 @ Rs. 61,160/- per month by the 7th of each succeeding month."

11. The aforesaid order required that the defendant revisionist shall deposit the entire arrears of rent in respect of both the first and second floor portions within two weeks and would continue to deposit damages/monthly rent for its use and occupation w.e.f. August 2016 @ Rs. 61,160/- per month which was the amount of damages awarded by the court below w.e.f. 1.5.2015.

12. The defendant revisionist pursuant to the above interim order had deposited the entire arrears of rent with regard to first floor portion but not in respect of the second floor portion though the damages/rent for both portions for the month of August 2016 is @ Rs. 61,160/- has been deposited.

13. Sri Anurag Khanna in this regard submits that as there was serious dispute as to whether the defendant revisionist is a tenant of the second floor portion he was advised not to deposit any arrears in respect thereof. He has bonafidely not deposited the arrears of rent of the second floor portion. The default, if any, in complying with the interim order would only result in bringing to an end the stay of his eviction and nothing more.

14. In Prestige Lights Limited Vs. State Bank of India (2007) 8 SCC 449 in paragraph 24 of the said reports it has been observed that "an order passed by the competent court, interim or final has to be abided without any reservation. If such order is disobeyed or not complied with, the Court may refuse the party violating such order to hear him on merits."

15. The Court further observes therein that it does not however mean that in each and every case in which the party has violated the interim order he has no right to be heard at all and the court will not refuse to hear him in all circumstances.

16. The aforesaid authority does not lay down any absolute rule that a party violating the interim order has no right to be heard in all circumstances. Whether a party should be heard or not depends upon the facts and circumstances of the case at the discretion of the court.

17. The present case is not one of those cases where there is violation of the interim order with impunity and the party had taken advantage of it for a long time. Thus, when the interim order was passed only on 28.7.2016 and the parties have agreed for final hearing of the matter, no delaying tactics were adopted and the admitted part of the amount in respect of the first floor was deposited bonafidely leaving the other part as it was seriously in dispute, I do not consider it to be a fit case to deny hearing to the defendant revisionist for the default committed by him in complying with the conditions of the interim order.

18. Sri Anurag Khanna, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Nipun Singh learned counsel for the defendant revisionist submitted that the finding on issue no. 1 that the defendant revisionist is a tenant of the first and second floor portion both is perverse and illegal. He is only the tenant of the first floor. The tenancy is not for a fixed period but on month to month basis. The agreement of tenancy is only in respect of first floor portion and in the absence of any agreement regarding second floor, the tenancy of the said portion is not fixed time tenancy. Since the tenancy was not for a fixed term, the suit for eviction can not be maintained without determining the tenancy in accordance with the provisions of Section 106 of the T.P. Act which provides for 30 days notice. In the present case notice was given on 14.5.2013 and the suit was filed on 31.5.2013 before the expiry of the notice period and as such was not maintainable.

19. Sri Ravi Kiran Jain, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Amitabh Agrawal, learned counsel for the plaintiff respondent to counter the submissions advanced on behalf of the defendant revisionist submits that the tenancy of the first floor was under a written agreement but that of the second floor was oral in nature but both were fixed time tenancies which expired with the efflux of time in accordance with Section 111 of the T.P. Act and required no notice for their determination as contemplated by Section 106 of the T.P. Act.

20. Besides the preliminary question as to whether the defendant revisionist should be given any audience despite non compliance with the conditions of the interim order of this Court, the main points which arises for consideration before me are:-

i) Whether the finding that the defendant revisionist is a tenant of second floor portion suffers from any error of law or jurisdiction;

ii) Whether the tenancy in respect of both the portions is a fixed time tenancy and requires no notice under Section 106 of the T.P. Act for its determination; and

iii) Whether in case the tenancy has not come to an end by the efflux of time, it stood validly determined by the notice dated 14.5.2013 and the suit on its basis was maintainable.

First Point:

21. The first point with regard to tenancy in respect of both the floors would not detain me much.

22. The court of first instance in deciding issue no. 1 in that regard on the basis of the entire evidence on record which included the payment of rent and security deposit made by the defendant respondent and his own statement as DW-1 came to the conclusion that he is a tenant of both the floors. The payment of rent vide cheques dated 13.10.2012 and 1.12.2012 both for the sums of Rs. 46,000/- established that the defendant revisionist accepts himself to be the tenant of both the floors at the rent of Rs. 25,000/- and Rs. 21,000/- total Rs. 46,000/- per month. The defendant revisionist failed to submit any plausible explanation for payment of the aforesaid amount, if he was a tenant of the first floor only @ Rs. 25,000/- per month.

23. In addition to the above, the court below has recorded that DW-1 in his cross examination has accepted that the electricity bills of both the floors are raised on the basis of common electric meter and that he makes payment thereof which also proves that he is a tenant of both the portions.

24. The submission of Sri Anurag Khanna that there is a sub meter for the second floor portion and he realizes electricity dues of the said portion from its tenant and make the payment collectively is not wroth acceptance in the absence of any evidence of the alleged tenant of the second floor that he is an independent tenant using electricity from the electric connection of the defendant revisionist.

25. The cross examination of DW-1 which is part of the supplementary affidavit filed by him reveals that he has admitted that the way of the second floor is through his drawing room on the first floor. No one would permit any stranger to use his drawing room as a passage or staircase for going to his portion on the first floor. This also proves that the tenancy in respect of first and the second floor vests in a common person and there is no division of tenancy.

26. The finding that the defendant revisionist is a tenant of the first floor and the second floor both is based on material on record. There is no perversity in the said finding which may warrant any interference in exercise of revisional jurisdiction.

27. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, the opinion formed by the trial court that the defendant revisionist is a tenant of the first and the second floor both is not perverse and does not suffer from any jurisdictional error.

Point No.2:-

28. The court below has held that the tenancy of the defendant revisionist in respect of both the portions on the first floor and second floor was a fixed time tenancy which came to an end by efflux of time.

29. The issuance of notice dated 14.5.2013 is admitted to the plaintiff respondent, though it is contended that it was not necessary. Notwithstanding the necessity of notice, it mentions that the defendant revisionist had taken the first floor and the second floor on lease on monthly rent of Rs. 25,000/- and Rs. 21,000/- total Rs. 46,000/- per month. The lease is on month to month basis commencing from first day of English calender month and ending on the last day of the month. The lease had expired on 30th April 2013 as per the lease agreement as informed earlier.

30. The aforesaid notice no where states that the lease was for a fixed period and it come to an end on the expiry of the lease period.

31. The plaintiff respondent in paragraphs 3 and 4 of the plaint stated that rent agreement was written between the parties on 2.6.2012 which was duly registered under which the first floor portion of the building was let out to the defendant revisionist at a rent of Rs. 25,00/- per month.

32. Paragraph 3 of the plaint is reproduced herein below:-

यह कि प्रतिवादी व वादी के मध्य एक किराया अनुबंध दिनांक 2.6.2012 में लिखा गया था. जिसमें आवासीय सम्पत्ति ए-528ए सेक्टर 19. नोएडा का प्रथम तल 25,000/-रूपये प्रतिमाह की दर से दिया जाना लिखा गया था, उपरोक्त अनुबंध वही संख्या 1 जिल्द संख्या 3381, पृष्ठ संख्या 65-75 पर कमांक 3114. पर उपनिबंधक तृतीय, नोएडा के कार्यालय पर दर्ज है।

33. It clearly mentions that under the registered rent agreement only the first floor portion was let out.

34. Paragraph 4 of the plaint states that on 2.6.2012 the second floor portion was also let out @ Rs. 21,00/- per month and in this way the defendant revisionist became the tenant @ Rs. 46,000/- per month.

35. Paragraph 4 of the plaint reads as under:-

यह कि दिनांक 2.6.2012 में भी द्वितीय तल विवादित सम्पत्ति का मु० 21,000/-रूपये प्रतिमाह की दर से किरायेदारी पर प्रतिवादी को दिया गया था। इस प्रकार प्रतिवादी विवादित सम्पत्ति पर 46,000/-रूपयें प्रतिमाह की दर से किरायेदार था।

36. The aforesaid averments made in paragraph 4 reveals that the plaintiff respondent has not pleaded any rent agreement in respect the second floor portion and that the tenancy of the second floor portion was separate from that of the first floor portion.

37. The plaint further vide paragraph 13 states that a notice dated 14.5.2013 under Section 106 of the T.P. Act was given to the defendant revisionist to handover possession of the disputed property on the expiry of the notice period.

38. The averments of paragraph 13 of the plaint amply demonstrates that the plaintiff respondent had consciously issued notice under Section 106 of the T.P. Act so as to determine the tenancy of the defendant revisionist accepting him to be a tenant on month to month basis and not a fixed time tenant.

39. The tenancy agreement in its recital very clearly spells out that the lessor had agreed to let out the first floor of the said property to the lease on monthly rent of Rs. 25,000/-. It further records that the lessor and lessee confirmed having taken over the premises from 1st June 2012 to 30th April 2013 and that it will be in force for a period of 11 months.

40. A plain reading of the rent agreement establishes that it was in connection with the first floor portion only and that the said tenancy was for a fixed period of 11 months only though the rent was payable on month to month basis.

41. There is no evidence on record to establish that the second floor portion was let out under any written agreement or that the terms of its tenancy were the same as were for the first floor portion. There is no material even to show that the tenancy of the second floor portion was also for 11 months only.

42. In view of the above, the tenancy of the first floor portion alone was covered by the aforesaid rent agreement and was for a fixed period of 11 months. The tenancy of the of the second floor portion was not within its fold.

43. In Satendra Singh Vs. Vimal Kumar Bhalotia 2015 (2) AWC 1341 (SC) the tenancy was for 11 months under the rent agreement. It was held to be for a fixed period which required no notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 for its determination.

44. The court of first instance while deciding issue nos. 4 and 6 regarding the period of the notice and the determination of tenancy simply recorded that as the rent agreement was for a period of 11 months from 1.6.2012 to 30.6.2013 the tenancy was for a fixed term for which no notice was necessary and therefore even if it is assumed that the notice under Section 106 of the T.P. Act was invalid and not served upon the defendant revisionist, it has no bearing on the matter.

45. The court below had very easily brushed aside the relevant aspect of the rent agreement to the effect that it was only in respect of the first floor portion and not in connection with the second floor tenancy. Thus, it committed a manifest error in holding the tenancy of both portions to be for fixed period.

46. In the absence of any evidence to establish that the tenancy in respect of second floor portion was also covered by the aforesaid rent agreement and was for a fixed period, the court below also erred in holding that no notice determining tenancy was required for both the tenaments.

47. In view of the above, in the light of the above rent agreement only the tenancy of the first floor portion can be recognized as a fixed term tenancy which came to an end on the expiry of the lease period requiring no notice for its determination whereas the tenancy of the second floor portion was at will determinable on notice under Section 106 of the T.P. Act.

Point No. 3:-

48. A notice determining tenancy is a condition precedent for instituting a suit for eviction of the tenant at will. The notice to quit contemplated by Section 106 of the TP Act is a technical rule but it should not be construed in a pedantic and impracticable way so as to find fault with it. The courts have always preferred to construe notice to quit in a liberal way but any construction of it which deprives the tenant of the minimum period of notice stipulated under Section 106 of the TP Act is not permissible in law.

49. In the instant case as far as the tenancy of the second floor portion is concerned, it may be said to have been determined vide notice dated 14.5.2013. The said notice to quit calls upon the defendant revisionist to deliver possession of both the portions including the second floor portion on the expiry of the notice period. However, the notice by itself does not specify any period. Under Section 106 of the TP Act a tenancy which is on month to month basis is determinable vide notice of 30 days. The tenancy of the second floor portion is accepted to be on month to month basis and as such in the absence of any notice period it will be deemed to be 30 days. There is no material to show the date of service of notice. Therefore, taking the notice to have been served on the date of the notice itself the notice period would expire on 14.6.2013.

50. In the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case, the defendant revisionist had the time to vacate the second floor portion under his tenancy by the aforesaid date ie. 14.6.2013 but the suit was filed on 31.5.2013 even before the statutory period of the notice had expired.

51. In this factual background the defendant revisionist was deprived of the minimum notice period. The cause of action for the suit for eviction in respect of second floor portion was not even complete on the date it was filed. It would have matured only on the expiry of the statutory period of the notice.

52. In this view of the matter, the aforesaid notice to quit in so far as the second floor portion is concerned, could not have been made the basis or the cause of action for the suit for eviction of the defendant revisionist.

53. In Shree Ram Urban Infrastructure Limited Vs. Court Receiver AIR 2014 SC 2286 the Apex court held that if the notice under section 106 of the TP Act falls short of the statutory period but the suit is filed after the expiry of the statutory period of notice it would not be bad in law.

54. I myself in SCC Revision No. 585 of 2014 (Union Bank of India Vs. Priyugi Narain Tripathi and 5 others) decided on 28.11.2014 considering the provisions of Section 106 (3) of the T.P. Act held that even if the notice period falls short of the statutory period provided, it will not be defective and the suit on its basis would not be bad when it is filed after the expiry of the statutory period of the notice.

55. The aforesaid two authorities are of no assistance in the present case as here the suit has been filed not after the expiry of the notice or statutory period of notice but before the expiry of the statutory period of notice. In other words, notwithstanding the insufficient period of notice mentioned in the notice when the suit is filed after the expiry of the statutory period neither the notice would be treated as defective nor the suit to be bad in law but the position the other way round is not the same where the suit is filed before expiry of the notice period or the statutory period of the notice.

56. In view of the above, the suit for eviction of the defendant revisionist from the second floor portion was instituted prematurely without allowing the notice period to expire rendering it to be bad in law.

57. Thus, in the over all facts and circumstances of the case, the judgment and order dated 19.5.2016 and the consequential decree passed by the court below is partly upheld, in so for as, it decrees the suit for eviction of the defendant revisionist from the first floor portion and is set aside in respect of the eviction from the second floor portion. The plaintiff respondent is entitle to damages/rent for the first floor portion from the date of the expiry of the lease period at the 10% enhanced rent on annual basis ie., for the period 1.5.2013 to 30.4.2014 @ Rs. 25,000/- +2,500/- = 27,500/- per month; for the period 1.5.2014 to 30.4.2015 @ Rs. 27,500/- +2,750 /- = 30,250 per month; and after 1.5.2015 till the date of possession @ Rs. 30,250/- + 3,025/- = 33,275/- per month. The aforesaid amount is adjustable against the security of Rs. 50,000/- deposited in respect of first floor portion or any amount paid in the suit or these proceedings.

58. The revision is allowed in part as above and the judgment and order of the court below stands modified to the extent indicated above.

59. The revision is accordingly allowed in part.

Penal Code, 1860 — Section 376 — Rape — Conviction — Appeal against conviction and sentence of 7 years rigorous imprisonment — Prosecutrix, aged about 10 years, subjected to rape while working in the fields — First Information Report lodged promptly within hours by the victim herself, in her own words, prior to medical examination — Medical evidence (torn hymen, perineal tear, lacerated labia minora, torn and extensively lacerated vaginal mucosa, fresh bleeding) wholly corroborating the oral testimony of the prosecutrix — Held, sole testimony of the prosecutrix, if found trustworthy, reliable and unimpeachable, is sufficient to sustain conviction without corroboration; prosecutrix to be placed on a higher pedestal than an injured witness. Appeal dismissed; conviction and sentence confirmed.

Evidence Act, 1872 — Testimony of related/interested witnesses — Prosecution witnesses (mother, uncle of the victim) being relatives, contended to be interested witnesses whose evidence ought to be discarded — Held, relationship of a witness with the victim does not by itself render the witness 'interested'; the term 'interested' postulates a direct interest in securing conviction of the accused arising from animosity or otherwise — A close relative is ordinarily the last person to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person — Evidence of related witnesses cannot be rejected mechanically on the sole ground of relationship, but must be examined with caution — Foundation must be laid for a plea of false implication — On facts, no such foundation existed and evidence of related witnesses found consistent, reliable and inspiring confidence.

Evidence of Child Witness — Credibility and precautions — Prosecutrix aged about 10 years (6 to 8 years as per radiological age determination) — Held, evidence of a child witness cannot be rejected outright, but must be evaluated with greater circumspection to rule out tutoring and to ascertain that the testimony is a voluntary and truthful expression of the witness — On facts, statement of the child witness found natural, innocent, unshaken in cross-examination, and free from any indication of tutoring; her testimony corroborated by medical evidence — Conviction based on the reliable testimony of the child witness upheld.

Evidence Act, 1872 — Section 6 — Res gestae — Statement of the mother of the victim, made immediately upon finding her daughter injured and bleeding shortly after the incident, held to be relevant under Section 6 of the Evidence Act as part of the same transaction — Conduct of the mother in searching for the victim upon her failure to return home held to be natural and credible.

Criminal Trial — Test Identification Parade — Non-holding of — Effect — Contention that absence of test identification parade renders identification of the accused unreliable, since the accused was not previously known to the victim — Held, substantive evidence is the identification of the accused in court; a prior test identification parade is only a corroborative piece of evidence and its holding is a rule of prudence, not a rule of law — In the absence of a test identification parade, identification of the accused in court can still be relied upon where the witness (including a child witness) is otherwise found trustworthy and reliable — Victim's identification of the accused in court, coupled with her consistent narration and medical corroboration, held sufficient to sustain conviction.

Held:
(i) The First Information Report, lodged promptly by the victim herself before her medical examination, ruled out possibility of embellishment or false implication.
(ii) Testimony of related witnesses (mother and uncle of the victim) cannot be discarded merely on the ground of relationship, no foundation having been laid for the plea of false implication.
(iii) Sole testimony of the child prosecutrix, found truthful, consistent and free from tutoring, and corroborated by medical evidence, is sufficient to sustain conviction under Section 376 IPC without further corroboration.
(iv) Absence of test identification parade does not vitiate conviction where in-court identification by a trustworthy witness is otherwise reliable.
(v) Subsequent incident of the victim being taken away from the hospital by other persons, being a separate occurrence registered as a distinct crime, held to have no bearing on the present case.
(vi) Sentence of 7 years' rigorous imprisonment, being just and appropriate given the brutality of the offence against a minor, not liable to be reduced. Appeal dismissed; conviction and sentence confirmed; appellant's bail bonds cancelled and sureties discharged; appellant to surrender to serve out remaining sentence.

RESULT
Appeal dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Ranjana Pandya, J.)

1. Challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 11.08.1995 passed by IIIrd Additional Sessions Judge, Sultanpur, in S.T. No. 250 of 1990 (State vs. Subrati), under Section 376 I.P.C., P.S. Musafirkhana, District Sultanpur, whereby the accused appellant was convicted and sentenced to 7 years rigorous imprisonment under Section 376 I.P.C.

2. Filtering out unnecessary details, the prosecution case is that a report was lodged by the victim stating that she was aged about 10 years. On 16.03.1990, she had gone to the fields for some work. In the adjoining fields, the accused was collecting grass. The accused came to the victim and requested her to accompany him so that he would give her plums. The victim refused. At which the accused picked up the victim, pressed her mouth and took her towards the western side. He dropped her on the ground, took off all her undergarments and raped her. The victim raise hue and cry at which, the accused fled away. The victim was bleeding. After some times, the mother of the victim came on the spot and brought back the victim to her house, at which the first information report was lodged. On the basis of first information report, the investigation commenced.

3. The prosecution examined as many as 7 witnesses. PW-1 is the victim, who proved the first information report as Exhibit Ka-1. PW-2 is Smt. Rampata, the mother of the victim. PW-3 is Kalicharan who went to the police station with the victim and lodged the report. PW-4 is Brijlal who proved the memo by virtue of which blood stained and plain earth was collected by the I.O. which is Exhibit Ka-2. Further the blood stained undergarments of the victim was taken into possession in the presence of this witness. The recovery memo was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-3. PW-5 is Dr. Talat Jahan who examined the victim and found the following injuries on the body of the victim:-

"Forchette torn in the mid line. Perennial tear present extending upto 2 mm. away from the inner margin. Libra minora lacerated. Vaginal Mucosa torn and hanging out of the vagina. Vaginal mucosa torn extensively on all sides. Hymen torn. Fresh bleeding from the vagina present.

Two slides vaginal smear sent for detection of spermatozoa and gonacocei."

4. The victim was sent by the doctor for determination of age. This witness has proved the medical report as Exhibit Ka-4 and the pathological report as Exhibit Ka-5. Head Constable Ram Murti Singh is PW-6 who scribed the chik report which was orally dictated by the victim informant. Further details of the case were written in the G.D. which proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-7. The investigation was conducted by PW-7 S.I. Ram Chet Singh in whose presence the case was registered. He copied the copy of chik and G.D. in the case diary and recorded the statement of the victim who was present at the police station. After that the victim was got medically examined but before that, the accused Vijay Pratap and others kidnapped the victim and her aunt (Bua) for which a separate case was registered under Crime No. 91 of 1990, in which case, the victim was recovered but the accused fled away. Then the victim was again sent to district hospital for medial examination. The I.O. inspected the spot on 17.03.1990. He recorded the statements of the mother of the victim and Ram Charan and inspected the spot. He proved the site plan as Exhibit Ka-8. The Investigating Officer found blood on the place of incident. He collected the blood stained and ordinary earth from the place of occurrence and kept it in two boxes, sealed them and prepared the memo which was signed by this witness. He made attempts to apprehend the accused but the accused could not be apprehended, hence he obtained the process for attachment of the property of the accused but came to know that the accused was detained in the district jail where the statement of the accused was recorded. In the mean time, this witness obtained the medical report and the pathological report of the victim. After investigation, he submitted charge sheet which was proved by him as Exhibit Ka-9. On 22.03.1990, after the statement of the victim was recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C., the victim was handed over to her family members. Supurdginama was proved by this witness as Exhibit Ka-10.

5. After the prosecution evidence was closed, the statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. In which he denied the occurrence. Further he has stated that he was enemical to Kalloo and Ram Kripal of the same village. He had been falsely implicated due to this enmity. The accused produced Constable Ram Kripal Sharma as DW-1 who proved the copy of the G.D. as Exhibit Kha-1.

6. After perusal of all the evidences available on record and hearing the counsel for the parties, the learned trial court has passed the impugned judgment as specified in para one of the judgment.

7. I have heard Sri Ram Ujagir Pandey as well as Ms. Sarojini Bala Yadav, counsel for the appellant, learned A.G.A. and perused the material available on record.

8. Counsel for the appellant has submitted that the trial court has not considered the evidence adduced by the defence. Besides the trial court has lost sight of the fact that all the witnesses adduced by the prosecution are interested witnesses, hence, they cannot be relied upon. Further, he has submitted that the accused was not known to the victim, hence, the appeal is liable to be allowed.

9. Per contra, learned A.G.A. Has submitted that there was no reason for the victim to falsely implicate the accused. The judgment is well reasoned and needs no interference.

10. As far as the first information report is concerned, on the basis of the first information report, the police machinery is brought into motion. Perusal of the chik report Exhibit Ka-1 reveals that the incident took place on 16.03.1990 in the afternoon. The report was lodged on the same day at 02:15 P.M. The distance of the police station from the place of occurrence being 8 Kms., thus, the first information report is prompt and chances of embellishment and and false implication are bleak.

11. I have carefully perused the chik report. A bare perusal of the chik report reveals that the chik report was dictated by the victim herself whose age as per first information report was about 10 years. A bare reading of the first information report reveals that this first information report was dictated orally to the Head Moharrir of the police station by the victim in her local regional language. The victim has narrated the complete incident in her own language categorically. Challenging this first information report, counsel for the appellant has submitted that the first information report has been lodged after consultation but this argument has no legs to stand, inasmuch as, the informant being the victim has specifically stated that she lodged the report prior to her medical examination.

12. Counsel for the appellant has also submitted that PW-1 is the victim and the informant. PW-2 is Smt. Rampata, the mother of the victim. PW-3 is Kalicharan, the uncle of the victim and belong to the same family. All are interested witnesses, hence their evidence cannot be relied upon. As far as the evidence of interested witnesses is concerned, there is no quarrel that PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 are related to each other. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that the evidence of related witnesses cannot be thrown out merely on the ground of their relationship. As far as, the reliability of the witnesses is concerned in Dalip Singh and others vs. State of Punjab (AIR 1953 SC 364), it has been laid down as under by the Hon'ble Apex Court as under:-

"A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily a close relation would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship for from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalization. Each case must be judge on its own facts."

13. Observations of the Hon'ble Apex Court in Masalti and others vs. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202, are worth mentioning:-

"But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how such evidence should be appreciated. Judicial approach has to be cautious in dealing with such evidence; but the plea that such evidence should be rejected because it is partisan cannot be accepted as correct."

14. The above decision has been followed in Guli Chand and others vs. State of Rajasthan, 1974 (3) SCC 698, in which VadiveluThevar vs. State of Madras, AIR 1975 SC 614 was also relied upon. The following observations made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Israr vs. State of U.P. (2205 (51) ACC 113) in para-12 of the judgment are also important:-

".....Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyze evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible."

15. The above position has been highlighted again in the case of Galivenkataiah vs. State of A.P., 2008 (60) ACC 370, in which reference has been made to some other cases also.

16. In the case of Ravi vs. State of U.P., 2004 (11) SCC 266, the following observations have been made by the Hon'ble Apex Court:-

"It is well settled in a catena of cases that the evidence of eye witnesses cannot be rejected merely because they are related. The relatives will not exonerate real culprits and falsely implicate others."

17. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Andhra Pradesh vs. S. Rayappa and others, 2006 (1) AAR 259 (SC) dealing the evidence of related / interested witnesses has observed as under:-

".....By now it is a well-established principle of law that testimony of a witness otherwise inspiring confidence cannot be discarded on the ground that he being a relation of the deceased is an interested witness. A close relative who is a very natural witness cannot be termed as an interested witness. The term interested postulates that the person concerned must have some direct interest in seeing the accused person being convicted somehow or the other either because of animosity or some other reasons."

18. In para 8 Hon'ble Apex Court has further observed as under:-

"The relative witness is not necessarily an interested witness. On the other hand, being a close relation to the deceased, they will try to prosecute the real culprit by stating the truth. There is no reason as to why a close relative will implicate and depose falsely against somebody and screen the real culprit to escape unpunished. The only requirement is that the testimony of the relative witnesses should be examined cautiously...."

19. In the case of Satvir vs. State of U.P., (2009) 4 SCC 289, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed in para 24 as under:-

"The eye witnesses have been cross examined at length by the learned counsel, but nothing tangible has been extracted from their evidence to create any shadow of doubt that they are not truthful witnesses. They have given reliable, consistent and creditable version of the crime and their evidence inspires confidence. It is well settled that if the witness is related to the deceased, his evidence has to be accepted if found to be reliable and believable because he would inter alia be interested in ensuring that real culprits are punished."

20. In 2006 (1) Supreme Court Cases (Cri) 160, (Jaishree Yadav vs. State of U.P.), the Hon'ble Apex Court has laid down that the evidence of interested witnesses cannot be thrown out on the ground of their relationship.

21. As far as the evidence of PW-2 Smt. Rampata is concerned, she is the mother of the victim. She has stated that when the victim did not return home for quite sometime, she went to the fields to search her daughter. While, she was searching for her daughter, she found her daughter who was crying in pain and she was bleeding, both her thighs and legs were blood stained and she was lying naked. Her undergarments were lying aside. She dressed her daughter and brought her back home. She further stated that after she brought her home, she took off the panty of the girl and covered her with a saree. This finds support from the statement of the victim PW-1, who has specifically stated that when her mother brought her back home from the fields, she was covered by her mother with a saree and she was taken to the police station by her aunt (Bua) and uncle Kalicharan. This also finds support from the copy of G.D. Exhibit Ka-7 in which the presence of aunt (Bua) and uncle Kalicharan is noted.

22. The conduct of the mother of the victim to go to search for her daughter when her daughter did not return home is very natural and digestible. The statement of the mother of the victim immediately after the incident would be relevant under Section 6 of the Evidence Act.

23. In Javed Alam vs. State of Chhatisgarh, (2009) 6 SCC 450, it has been laid down that Section is an exception to rule of evidence that hearsay evidence is not admissible. Test for applying rule of res gestae is that statement (or fact) should be spontaneous and should form part of the same transaction ruling out any possibility of concoction.

24. Even PW-4 Brijlal has admitted that the victim belongs to his family. He has stated that he saw the accused running away with grass. He was surprised as to why the accused was running away. Lateron he came to know that he had raped the victim. The evidence of PW-4 is not very significant, hence, it does not need any discussion.

25. As far as PW-3 Kalicharan is concerned, he has stated that when he came to know about the occurrence, he went to the house of the victim. He was told about the incident, where he waited for the father of the victim but when he did not return, he accompanied his sister Pulau and the victim went by tractor of Shiv Prasad to the police station where the victim dictated the report to the Head Moharrir of the police station. This again finds support from copy of G.D. Exhibit Ka-7 in which the presence of Kalicharan finds place. This witness was suggested that he lodged the report on the instigation of Sher Bahadur and Pancham against the accused but he denied the suggestion. Even otherwise, this suggestion has no legs to stand, inasmuch as, the report was dictated by the victim herself.

26. Coming to the evidence of the victim PW-1, her statement bears a certificate by the trial judge that questions of general nature, were put to this child witness and the trial judge concluded that the witness was capable of understanding.

27. Counsel for the appellant has submitted that it was not safe to convict the accused on the solitary statement of the child witness who could have easily been tutored.

28. As far as the statement of the victim is concerned, in (2015) 7 Supreme Court Cases 272, (Mohd. Ali @ Guddu vs. State of Uttar Pradesh),in which the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that there can be no iota of doubt that on the basis of the sole testimony of the prosecutrix, if it is unimpeachable and beyond reproach, a conviction can be based.

29. It is trite law that law permits that the testimony of the prosecutrix can be accepted without any corroboration in material particulars, for she has to be placed on a higher pedestal than an injured witness. Thus, if the sole testimony of the prosecutrix is worthy of credence and reliable then no corroboration is required. I am conscious of the fact that in cases of rape, the statement of the prosecutrix must be given primary consideration, but, at the same time, the broad principle that the prosecution has to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt applies equally to a case of rape.

30. As far as the evidence of a child witness is concerned, it is settled, on record that the victim is below the age of 10 years, inasmuch as, in the first information report she has mentioned her age to be about 10 years. As per the radiological report, her age as determined by the doctor was between 6 to 8 years.

31. In AIR 2010 Supreme Court page 3071 (State of U.P. vs. Krishna Master and others), the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed that the evidence of child witness cannot be rejected out right but it should be evaluated carefully with greater circumspection. The Court has to ascertain whether it is free from influence. It has further been held that if on a careful scrutiny, the testimony of a child witness is found truthful, there can be no hindrance in the way of accepting the same and recording the conviction of the accused on the basis of testimony of a child witness.

32. Further in Dattu Ramrao Sakhare vs. State of Maharashtra, 1997 (5) SCC 341, Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

"A child witness if found competent to depose to the facts and reliable one such evidence could be the basis of conviction. In other words even in the absence of oath the evidence of a child witness can be considered under Section 118 of the Evidence Act provided that such witness is able to understand the answers thereof. The evidence of a child witness and credibility thereof would depend upon the circumstances of each case. The only precaution which the Court should bear in mind while assessing the evidence of a child witness is that the witness must be a reliable one and his/her demeanour must be like any other competent witness and there is no likelihood of being tutored."

33. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Panchhi vs. State of U.P., (1998) 7 SCC 177,has observed about 'child witness', which reads as under:

"The evidence of a child witness cannot be rejected outrightly but the evidence must be evaluated carefully and with grater circumspection because a child is susceptible to be swayed by what others tell him and thus a child witness is an easy prey to tutoring. The Court has to assess as to whether the statement of the victim before the Court is the voluntary expression of the victim and that she was not under the influence of others."

34. In cross-examination this witness has categorically narrated the whole incident. She has stated that due to pain, she became unconscious. She was also suggested in cross-examination that she was stating against the accused because she was tutored by the Sub-Inspector which was negativated by this witness. The testimony of the victim and the informant remained unshaken and is supported by the evidence of PW-5 Dr. Talat Jahan who has stated that the injuries were indicative of rape.

35. In this regard the Hon'ble Apex Court in (2014) 4 SCC page 747, Ashok Debbarama @ Achak Debbarma vs. State of Tripura, has held that the identification for the first time in Court is good enough and can be relied upon if the witness is otherwise trustworthy and reliable. It is only as a matter of prudence that the courts require and insist upon test identification parade and they it would entirely depend upon facts and circumstances if testimony of the witness is otherwise found to be trustworthy and reliable.

36. I have carefully examined the statement of the victim whose statement is very innocent and she does not appear to be tutored. She underwent the test of cross-examination by an Advocate and there is nothing in her evidence by virtue of which she could be termed to be a tutored witness.

37. PW-1, the victim has specifically stated that she was chopping Bersem in the field, suddenly the accused came to her and asked her to accompany him to eat plums. He also introduced himself to the victim by telling his name and address.

38. Thus, the medical evidence has wholly corroborated the oral evidence of the victim.

39. Counsel for the appellant has submitted that this story narrated by the victim is not reliable, inasmuch as if the accused wanted to rape the victim there was no reason why he would reveal his identity, especially when the victim specifically stated in her cross-examination that from the time when the accused carried her from the field till he committed rape, neither he asked the victim her name nor told his own name to the victim. This argument of the learned counsel for the appellant does not find favour with the Court, because this could be the way in which the accused tried to seduce this small girl. It appears that the victim belonged to a very poor family because she has stated that she does small jobs in the house. The victim has stated in her statement that the accused committed rape on her. She started bleeding at which the accused fled away. The statement of PW-1 is natural and inspires confidence.

40. Counsel for the appellant has also submitted that since the accused was not known to the victim and no test identification parade was conducted in the case, hence there is nothing on record to prove that it was the accused who committed rape on the child but as suggested to the victim it was Sher Singh who committed rape on the girl. The victim has identified the accused in Court. She has denied of Sher Singh having raped her.

41. The Hon'ble Apex Court has constantly held what is substantive evidence is the identification of an accused in court by a witness and that the prior identification in a test identification parade is used only to corroborate the identification in court. Holding of test identification parade is not rule oflaw but rule of prudence. Normally, identification of the accused in a test identification parade lends assurance so that the prosecution identification in court during trial can be safely relied upon. However, even in the absence of such test identification parade, the identification in court can in given circumstances be relied upon since the victim (child witness) is otherwise trustworthy and reliable.

42. Counsel for the appellant while placing reliance upon Kailash Laxman Khamkar vs. State of Maharashtra, 2010 Crl.L.J. 3255, in which the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

"In order to come to a conclusion that the conduct of the accused was indicative of a determination to gratify his passion at all resistance, then such material must exist. Importantly, surrounding circumstances may time throw beacon light on that aspect."

43. The present case in hand is not a case of attempt but the accused has successfully committed the act of rape, hence, the prosecution has successfully proved that the accused has committed rape on the victim.

44. Counsel for the appellant has also submitted that when the victim went to the hospital for medical examination, she was lifted and kidnapped by Ram Kripal Singh, Pancham Singh, Nannhey Nat and Vijay Prakash Yadav which were admitted by the victim and even the I.O., hence, the whole occurrence becomes doubtful. I think, the incident if any of taking away, the girl and her relatives from the hospital forcibly is a separate incident. It has no bearing on this rape case.

45. Rape is a monstrous, brutal and sexual offence and in this particular case even a small girl below the age of 10 years has not be spared.

46. Counsel for the appellants has submitted that though not proved on record that the application was moved before the concerned Magistrate to hold test identification parade, but the I.O. did not hold the test identification parade due to which the prosecution case falls down like a heap of cards. Although the I.O. has denied and stated that he did not receive any directions for holding test identification parade.

47. The I.O. PW-2 Ramchet Singh in cross-examination has specifically stated that no direction were issued to him to hold test identification parade. In this regard, the statement of DW-1 was also considered by me keeping in view the copy of G.D. Exhibit Kha-1. But perusal of Exhibit Kha-1 and the statement of DW-1 Constable Ram Kripal Sharma do not show that any orders for holding test identification parade were passed by any officer. Thus, the prosecution has proved its case beyond all reasonable doubts.

48. As far as the statement of the accused recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is concerned, he has stated that he was falsely implicated due to his enmity with Lallu and Ram Kripal but this statement has not supported by any short of evidence. I do not think a minor girl would spare the real culprit and implicate an innocent person on the instigation of an outsider.

49. In the case in hand, the crime is rampant for unfathomable reason. The pain and suffering of a victim is a brutal assault on her physical frame, when she is raped. It is a nightmare for her.

50. Counsel for the appellant has also submitted that a very harsh sentence has been imposed by the trial court in sentencing the accused for seven years rigorous imprisonment under Section 376 I.P.C. As per the record, the present age of the appellant would be below 50 years. I think a society which is civilized and replete with cultural values of thousand years old, should respect child and human rights. Child abuse and the rape of a girl child can never be tolerated and the culprits deserved to be dealt with iron hands of law. In this case, a tender angelic girl has been brutally ravished and there is no ground to reduce sentence which is a just sentence in the present case.

51. Thus I conclude, on the basis of what has been said and discussed above, the appeal deserves to be dismissed.

52. Accordingly the appeal is dismissed.

53. The conviction and sentence of the appellant as awarded by learned trial court by the impugned judgment and order is confirmed.

54. The appellant is on bail, his bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. He shall be sent to jail to serve out the remaining sentence.

55. Let certified copy of this judgment be sent to the trial court concerned for compliance.

First Appeal From Order No.- 572 Of 2016

Ashish Kumar Pandey ...Appellant
Versus
Bajrang Bali Pandey & Ors. ...Respondents

Subject Matter

(A) Indian Succession Act, 1925 — Section 213 — Right as executor or legatee — Beneficiary under a Will seeking probate of his own accord — Maintainability — Application for probate filed by a beneficiary under a Will rejected by the court below on the premise that a beneficiary is not required to obtain probate. A beneficiary under a Will may, in certain circumstances covered by Section 213(2) read with Section 57(a) and (b) of the Act (i.e., where the Will does not fall within the specified classes, or the property covered is outside the territorial limits mentioned in Section 213(2)), not be required to obtain probate before enforcing rights under the Will. However, this exemption is permissive and not prohibitory. Nothing in the Indian Succession Act, 1925 bars a beneficiary from voluntarily applying for and obtaining probate of a Will executed in his favour, particularly where such probate is required to be produced before banks, insurance companies, or other authorities/departments (e.g., for release of locker contents, deposits, or post-retiral dues) who insist upon a probate or succession certificate to satisfy themselves of the genuineness of the Will. The court below therefore erred in law in holding that the probate application was not maintainable at the instance of a beneficiary.

(B) Indian Succession Act, 1925 — Section 213 — Scope and jurisdiction of the Probate Court — Whether Probate Court can adjudicate title, correctness or extent of bequest, or require impleadment of persons claiming a share in the bequeathed property.The jurisdiction of a court of probate is a limited one, confined to ascertaining whether the document propounded as the last Will and testament of the deceased was duly and validly executed and attested in accordance with law, and whether the testator, at the time of execution, possessed a sound and disposing mind. The question whether a particular bequest is good or bad, or whether the testator in fact had title to, or an exclusive share in, the property bequeathed, does not fall within the purview of the probate court. Rejection of the probate application on the ground that other persons/the deity's trust, who might also have an interest in the offerings bequeathed, ought to have been impleaded and their rights adjudicated by a competent civil court before probate could be granted, is beyond the limited scope of an enquiry under Section 213 and is not sustainable. [Ishwardeo Narain Singh v. Smt. Kamta Devi, AIR 1954 SC 280; Chiranjilal Shrilal Goenka v. Jasjit Singh & Ors., (1993) 2 SCC 507 — relied on].

(C) Indian Succession Act, 1925 — Section 213 — Rejection of probate application for non-disclosure of details of bank/locker or insurance company in which movable assets of the deceased were held — Legality. Failure of a probate applicant to disclose the name of the bank in which a locker stood, or the name of the insurance company with which a policy was taken, is not a matter falling for consideration in probate proceedings, which are confined to due execution and genuineness of the Will and the testamentary capacity of the testator. Rejection of the probate application on this ground is beyond the scope of Section 213 of the Act and is not legally sustainable.

(D) Precedent — Division Bench judgments in Smt. Satnam Kaur v. Satyendra Pal Singh & Ors., 2015 (109) ALR 573 and Smt. Bimla Gaindher v. Smt. Uma Gaindher & Anr., 2004 (55) ALR 591 — Whether authority for the proposition that a beneficiary under a Will cannot obtain probate.The court below misread and misapplied the ratio of Smt. Satnam Kaur (supra), which, following Smt. Bimla Gaindher (supra), holds only that a beneficiary under a Will is not compulsorily required to obtain probate where the Will falls outside the classes specified in clauses (a) and (b) of Section 57, or where the property is situate outside the territorial limits mentioned in sub-section (2) of Section 213 of the Act. Neither decision lays down, nor can be read as laying down, that a beneficiary is debarred or precluded from applying for and obtaining a probate of the Will in his favour if he chooses, or requires, to do so for other lawful purposes, such as production before banking, insurance or other authorities.

(E) Indian Succession Act, 1925 — Section 299 — Appeal — Rejection of probate application set aside — Matter remitted for adjudication on merits — Costs.The impugned order rejecting the probate application being founded on an erroneous appreciation of law and a misreading of binding precedent, is unsustainable and is set aside. Appeal allowed; matter remitted to the District Judge concerned to register the probate application and adjudicate the same on merits in accordance with law. No order as to costs.

HELD

The appellant, a beneficiary under the Will dated 24.04.2015 executed by one Anil Kumar Upadhyay @ Munna (maternal uncle of the appellant and respondent nos. 1 to 3), filed Probate Case No. 14 of 2015 before the Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Mirzapur, seeking probate of the said Will in respect of movable and immovable properties bequeathed to the appellant and respondent nos. 1 to 3 and 6 to 8. Respondent nos. 1 to 5 filed no objection, while respondent nos. 6 to 8, though supporting the appellant's case, separately claimed probate qua the share bequeathed in their own favour.

The court below rejected the probate application, principally on the ground that since only 13/1/4 anas share out of the offerings made by devotees to Maa Vindhyavasini was bequeathed to the appellant and respondent nos. 6 to 8 (in equal shares), it indicated that other persons/the trust also held a share therein, and that all such interested parties and the trust ought to have been impleaded and the matter agitated before a competent court by way of suit; and further, on the ground that the appellant had not disclosed the particulars of the bank where the locker was situate, nor the name of the insurance company.

On appeal under Section 299 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, the Division Bench held that the jurisdiction of a probate court is confined to determining the due execution, attestation and genuineness of the Will and the testamentary capacity of the testator, and does not extend to adjudicating questions of title or the correctness/extent of a bequest; nor can want of disclosure of bank/insurance particulars be a ground for refusing probate. The Bench further held that the court below had misread the Division Bench decision in Smt. Satnam Kaur v. Satyendra Pal Singh & Ors. (following Smt. Bimla Gaindher v. Smt. Uma Gaindher & Anr.) as laying down that a beneficiary cannot obtain probate; in fact those decisions only hold that a beneficiary is not compulsorily required to obtain probate in cases falling outside Section 213(2) read with Section 57, and do not bar a beneficiary from voluntarily seeking probate for use before banks, insurance companies or other authorities.

Accordingly, the appeal was allowed, the impugned order dated 28.10.2015 was set aside, and the matter was remitted to the District Judge concerned with a direction to register the probate application and decide the same afresh on merits in accordance with law. No order as to costs.

Result:

Appeal Allowed; Impugned Order Set Aside; Matter Remitted.

1. This appeal under Section 299 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act') is directed against the judgment and order dated 28.10.2015 passed by Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Mirzapur rejecting the application made by the appellant for grant of probate.

2. We have heard Shri Rajeev Misra, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Siddharth for the respondents.

3. Facts, in brief, giving rise to the dispute are as under.

4. One Anil Kumar Upadhyay @ Munna, who was maternal uncle of the appellant and respondent nos. 1 to 3, executed a Will in favour of the appellant and respondent nos. 1 to 3 and 6 to 8 in respect of his all the moveable and immoveable properties. After his death on 09.05.2015, the appellant herein filed a Probate Case No. 14 of 2015 before the Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Mirzapur for grant of probate in respect of Will dated 24.04.2015.

5. Respondent nos. 1 to 5 filed their no objection before the Additional District Judge for grant of probate in favour of the appellant. Respondent nos. 6 to 8, however, filed a written statement supporting the case of the appellant. However, they also claim probate of the Will in respect of the property bequeathed in their favour under the said Will.

6. Court below rejected the application for probate vide impugned judgment and order dated 28.10.2015 on the ground that the fact that only 13/1/4 anas share out of the offerings made by the devotees to Maa Vindhyavasini was bequeathed in favour of the appellant and respondent nos. 6 to 8, each having equal share, goes to show that there were others, who were also having share in it and, thus, it was incumbent that all those interested persons and the trust be made a party and suit be filed on the basis of the Will before the competent court and because of the same, the probate could not be issued. The other reason for rejecting the application for probate was that the details of the Bank where the locker is situated as also the details of the insurance company has not been disclosed, as such also, the probate application was liable to be dismissed.

7. The question, which arises for our consideration, is whether a beneficiary under a Will can maintain a petition for obtaining probate under Section 213 of the Act?

8. Learned counsel for the appellant contends that the impugned judgment suffers from manifest error of law, inasmuch as the probate court has only limited jurisdiction to decide whether the Will is genuine or not and it cannot adjudicate the right of the testator. It is also submitted that further reasons recorded by the court below that no probate can be granted as the applicant has failed to disclose the details of the Banks where the locker was situated or the name of the insurance companies, is also patently illegal and beyond the scope of Section 213 of the Act.

9. In reply, Shri Siddharth appearing for the respondents states that he does not have any objection to the grant of probate of the Will. He has, in effect, supported the case set up by the appellant.

10. Section 213 of the Act provides right to the executer to obtain probate of the Will. The said Section reads as under.

'213. Right as executor or legatee when established:

(1) No right as executor or legatee can be established in any Court of Justice, unless a Court of competent jurisdiction in India has granted probate of the Will under which the right is claimed, or has granted letters of administration with the Will or with a copy of an authenticated copy of the Will annexed."

11. Sub-section (2) of Section 213 provides that this Section shall not apply in the case of Wills made by Muhammadans or Indian Christians and shall only apply in the case of Wills made by any Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh or Jaina, where such Wills are of the classes specified in clauses (a) and (b) of Section 57.

12. Section 276 provides the procedure to obtain probate. Section 273 of the Act declares conclusiveness of the probate. The said Section reads as under.

'273. Conclusiveness of probate or letters of administration.- Probate or letters of administration shall have effect over all the property and estate, movable or immovable, of the deceased, throughout the State in which the same is or are granted, and shall be conclusive as to the representative title against all debtors of the deceased, and all persons holding property which belongs to him, and shall afford full indemnity to all debtors, paying their debts and all persons delivering up such property to the person to whom such probate or letters of administration have been granted:

Provided that probates and letters of administration granted-

(a) by a High Court, or

(b) by a District Judge, where the deceased at the time of his death had a fixed place of abode situate within the jurisdiction of such Judge, and such Judge certifies that the value of the property and estate affected beyond the limits of the State does not exceed ten thousand rupees, shall, unless otherwise directed by the grant, have like effect throughout the other States.

The proviso to this section shall apply in India after the separation of Burma and Aden from India to probates and letters of administration granted in Burma and Aden before the date of the separation, or after that date in proceedings which were pending at that date.

The proviso shall also apply in India after the separation of Pakistan from India to probates and letters of administration granted before the date of the separation, or after that date in proceedings pending at that date, in any of the territories which on that date constituted Pakistan."

13. Under Section 294, the Court is under an obligation to preserve the original Wills. Section 299 gives right of appeal against an order of decree of probate. In Ishwardeo Narain Singh Vs. Smt. Kamta Devi, AIR 1954 SC 280, the Hon'ble Apex Court held as under.

"This court held that the court of probate is only concerned with the question as to whether the document put forward as the last will and testament of a deceased person was duly executed and attested in accordance with law and whether at the time of such execution the testator had sound disposing mind. The question whether a particular bequest is good or bad is not within the purview of the Probate Court. Therefore the only issue in a probate proceeding relates to the genuineness and due execution of the Will and the court itself is under duty to determine it and preserve the preserve the original Will in its custody. The Succession Act is a self contained code in so far as the question of making an application for probate, grant or refusal of probate or an appeal carried against the decision of the probate court. This is clearly manifested in the fasecule of the provision of Act. The probate proceedings shall be conducted by the probate court in the manner prescribed in the Act and in no other ways. The grant of probate with a copy of the Will annexed establishes con- clusively as to the appointment of the executor and the valid execution of the will. Thus it does no more than establish the factum of the will and the legal character of the executor. Probate court does not decide any question, of title or of the existance of the property itself."

14. The same view has been reaffirmed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Chiranjilal Shrilal Goenka Vs. Jasjit Singh & Ors., (1993) 2 SCC 507.

15. The court below has placed reliance on a Division Bench judgment of this Court in the case of Smt. Satnam Kaur Vs. Satyendra Pal Singh & Ors., 2015 (109) ALR 573 for holding that a beneficiary of Will is not required to obtain a probate of Will.

16. Not only the reliance placed by the court below on such judgment is misfounded, but as a matter of fact, the court below has misread the said judgment. No such proposition, as has been quoted in the impugned order by the court below has been laid down by the Division Bench judgment in the case of the Smt. Satnam Kaur (supra). In the said case, the probate court rejected the application for grant of probate on the ground that probate of Will is not required because the property is not situate within the territorial jurisdiction mentioned in Section 213 of the Act. The judgment passed by the probate court was based upon another Division Bench judgment of this Court in the case of Smt. Bimla Gaindher Vs. Smt. Uma Gaindher & Anr., 2004 (55) ALR 591, wherein the grant of probate of Will was dismissed on the ground that probate was not required because the property is not situated within the territorial jurisdiction mentioned in sub-section (2) of Section 213 of the Indian Succession Act.

17. In the case of Smt. Bimla Gaindher (supra), it was held that if the Will, in case, does not fall within the classes specified in clauses (a) and (b) of Section 57 of the Act and territorial jurisdiction of the property covered under the Will does not fall within the area specified in sub-section (2) of Section 213 of the Act, the beneficiary under the Will is not required to obtain a probate of Will. It was argued on behalf of the appellant that under the provisions of Section 57 read with Section 213 of the Act, a beneficiary of Will may not be required to obtain a probate order acting upon a Will in his favour, but in case, he wants to obtain a probate of Will executed in his favour, then none of the provisions contained in the Indian Succession Act prohibits him to do so.

18. The Division Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Satnam Kaur (supra) while considering the earlier judgment in the case of Smt. Bimla Gaindher (supra), has held as under.

"We have observed herein above that a beneficiary under a will may not be required to obtain a probate of Will under the provision of Section 213 of the Act but in case he wants to get a probate of Will to be used before the other authorities, there is no bar for him to apply for grant of probate. We may clarify our view by giving an example. If a person has bank deposits and other movable property kept in locker of the bank or anywhere else, executes a Will providing that after his death the movable property will devolve upon a particular person and after the death when such person approaches the bank claiming possession of such movable property and demands money on the basis of such Will, the bank authorities always demand either a succession certificate or a probate of a Will in order to ascertain the genuineness and authenticity of the Will. Similarly if a person executes a Will about the post retiral benefits then in that case also, the concerned department demands either succession certificate or in case of a Will, a probate to pay him post retiral dues. In all such cases although the beneficiary of the will may not be required to obtain a probate for will in view of the Section 213 of the Act, but for the payment of such amount and possession of movable property, he has to approach the competent authority for grant of succession certificate or probate of a will, as the case may be."

19. The court below has failed to consider the aforesaid observations of the Division Bench and dismissed the application merely on the ground that according to law laid down by the Division Bench of this Court, probate of Will is not required. The court below failed to consider that a person may not be required to obtain a probate of Will under Section 213 of the Act, but he may require a probate of Will for other purposes.

20. Thus, the court below has not considered the law in right perspective and, as such, the impugned order suffers from illegality and infirmity, which makes it unsustainable and is liable to be set aside.

21. In the result, the appeal succeeds and stands allowed.

22. The impugned judgment and order dated 28.10.2015 passed by Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Mirzapur in Probate Case No. 14 of 2015 is set aside. The matter stands remitted back to the District Judge, who shall register the probate application and proceed to adjudicate the same on merits in accordance with law.

23. However, in the facts and circumstances, we do not make any order as to costs.

FACTS

In this batch of writ petitions, the petitioner, Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority (YEIDA), a statutory body constituted under the U.P. Industrial Development Act, 1976, challenged notices under Section 148 of the Income Tax Act, 1961 for reassessment of Assessment Years 2009-10 to 2013-14, and the consequential orders rejecting its objections to the reassessment proceedings, on the ground that the conditions precedent for reassessment did not exist and the authorities had acted without application of mind. YEIDA had not filed returns of income after its constitution and did so only in response to notices under Section 142(1) issued on 7.8.2014, filing largely blank return forms with 'Nil' or 'Not applicable' entries and separate computation sheets. Notices under Section 148 were subsequently issued for all five Assessment Years, and 'reasons to believe' were communicated to YEIDA broadly on the grounds that: (i) sundry creditors had decreased year-on-year requiring verification; (ii) TDS had not been deducted on interest, advertisement, and consultancy payments under Sections 194A, 194C and 194J respectively; and (iii) depreciation on electrical equipment had been claimed at 15% instead of 10%. In respect of A.Y. 2009-10, the order rejecting objections additionally and erroneously referred to a search and seizure operation, though no such search had in fact occurred.

The respondents, in their counter affidavit, contended that YEIDA was not a 'local authority' exempt under Section 10(20) (the earlier exemption under Section 10(20A) having been omitted by the Finance Act, 2002), that assessment proceedings for earlier years had already been completed denying such exemption, and that the reassessment notices had been validly issued after recording reasons and obtaining approval under Section 151.

ISSUES FOR CONSIDERATION

(i) Whether the 'reasons to believe' recorded by the Assessing Officer for reopening assessment under Section 147/148 of the Income Tax Act, 1961 disclosed application of mind and satisfied the jurisdictional conditions precedent for reassessment, as distinct from a mere change of opinion.

(ii) Whether the reason relating to decrease in sundry creditors, when the actual year-wise figures showed both increases and decreases, reflected non-application of mind.
(iii) Whether the reasons relating to non-deduction of TDS on interest, advertisement, and consultancy payments — matters already disclosed in the Balance Sheet and Income and Expenditure Account filed with the returns — could justify reassessment, or amounted to a mere change of opinion/further verification of already disclosed material.
(iv) Whether the reason relating to the rate of depreciation claimed on electrical equipment constituted a valid ground for reassessment or merely a different view on the same disclosed facts.
(v) Whether the order dated 10.8.2016, which erroneously referred to a non-existent search and seizure operation, reflected non-application of mind vitiating the rejection of objections for A.Y. 2009-10.

HELD

The Court, after examining the statutory scheme under Sections 147 and 148 of the Income Tax Act, 1961, and the settled law explained in Calcutta Discount Co. Ltd. v. ITO, (1961) 41 ITR 191 (SC); Ganga Saran & Sons (P) Ltd. v. ITO, (1981) 130 ITR 1 (SC); CIT v. Kelvinator of India Ltd., (2010) 2 SCC 723; Phool Chand Bajrang Lal v. ITO, (1993) 4 SCC 77; ACIT v. Rajesh Jhaveri Stock Brokers (P) Ltd., (2008) 14 SCC 208; and State of U.P. v. Aryaverth Chawal Udyog, (2016) 91 VST 1 (SC), reiterated that reassessment jurisdiction requires a 'reason to believe' founded on tangible, relevant material with a rational nexus to the belief of escapement of income, and cannot be exercised merely on a change of opinion on facts already disclosed and available at the time of original return/assessment.
Applying these principles, the Court held that the reason relating to decrease in sundry creditors was factually incorrect and demonstrated clear non-application of mind, since the figures for the years in question showed both increases and decreases, yet the Assessing Officer had consistently and inaccurately recorded only a decrease requiring verification. The Court further held that the grounds relating to non-deduction of TDS on interest, advertisement, and consultancy expenses, and the rate of depreciation claimed, were all matters already disclosed in the Balance Sheet and Income and Expenditure Account filed along with the returns; no fresh material or subsequent information had come to light, and the reasons reflected, at best, an unexplained change in the process of forming an opinion on facts that were fully available and could have been examined during regular proceedings. The Court also noted that with respect to TDS, the issue stood independently addressed through orders already passed under Section 201 by the ACIT (TDS), further undermining the claim of escapement. The order dated 10.8.2016 relating to A.Y. 2009-10, which referred to a non-existent search and seizure operation, was found to be a glaring instance of non-application of mind, a position learned Additional Solicitor General for the respondents did not dispute when confronted.
The Court clarified that it was not examining the correctness of any assessment or YEIDA's taxability under the Act, both being matters for the regular statutory process, but confined itself strictly to the jurisdictional question of whether the conditions precedent for reassessment under Section 147/148 were satisfied, holding that they were not.

RESULT

Writ petitions allowed to the extent that the notices issued under Section 148 and the orders rejecting the petitioner's objections to reassessment under Section 147/148 for all the Assessment Years in question are quashed, with costs of Rs. 25,000/- in each set of cases. The Court clarified that the respondents are not precluded from proceeding afresh for reassessment on valid and just grounds permissible in law, and that the judgment does not affect any regular assessment already made, save that any reassessment order passed pursuant to the quashed notices shall also stand quashed.

1. Heard Sri Balbir Singh learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Abhinav Mehrotra and Ms. Rubal Maini, Advocates for petitioner and Sri Ashok Mehta, Sri Gaurav Mahajan, and Sri Manu Ghildiyal, Advocates for respondent.

2. In all these writ petitions, petitioner M/s Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority (hereinafter referred to as "YEIDA") has challenged reassessment proceedings and notice issued under Section 148 of Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as "Act 1961') on the ground that said proceedings are patently illegal and without jurisdiction, since conditions precedent to justify re-assessment proceedings do not exist and authorities are proceeding without application of mind.

3. Details of relevant Assessment Year (hereinafter referred to as "A.Y.) in respective writ petitions and date of notice etc. are stated as herein:-

Serial no.	Writ petition no	A.Y.	Date of notice under Section 148	Date of order passed on objection filed by Assessee against reassessment notice
1	682 of 2006	2009-10	29.03.2016	10.08.2016
2	184 of 2016	2010-11	30.11.2015	08.01.2016
3	182 of 2016	2011-12	30.11.2015	08.01.2016
4	237 of 2016	2012-13	30.11.2015	08.01.2016
5	183 of 2016	2013-14	30.11.2015	08.01.2016

4. Basic facts are common. As agreed by learned counsel for parties, we have taken up Writ (Tax) no. 682 of 2016 and Writ (Tax) no. 182 of 2016 as leading cases for the purpose of referring pleadings therefrom. Parties also agreed that though counter affidavit has been filed only in three cases i.e. Writ Tax no. 182 of 2016, Writ Tax no. 183 of 2016 and Writ Tax no. 184 of 2016, but pleadings therein may be read in remaining two writ petitions.

5. By notification dated 24.04.2001, issued under Section (3) of Uttar Pradesh Industrial Development Act, 1976 (hereinafter referred to as "UPIDA, 1976'), a statutory body namely 'Taj Expressway Industrial Development Authority" was constituted. Subsequently, title of body was changed by notification dated 11.07.2008, as "Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority" (i.e. "YEIDA"), issued under Section 3 read with Section 2(d) of UPIDA, 1976.

6. UPIDA, 1976 is a statute enacted to provide for constitution of an Authority for development of certain areas in State of U.P. into industrial and urban townships and for matters connected therewith.

7. Petitioner YEIDA, did not file Income Tax Returns after its constitution. For A.Ys. 2009-10 to 2013-14, Deputy Commissioner of Income Tax, Circle 3, NOIDA (hereinafter referred to as "DCIT") issued notice dated 07.08.2014, in similar terms, requiring YEIDA to prepare true and correct Returns of its income for above A.Ys., for which it was assessable under Act 1961. It informed YEIDA that Returns should be in appropriate form, as prescribed in Rule 12 of Income Tax Rules, 1962 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules 1962"). Notices dated 07.08.2014, issued separately in respect to all the aforesaid A.Ys. though worded similarly and mention that same is being issued under Section 142(1) of Act 1961. Pursuant thereto YEIDA filed Returns in prescribed form. In all the Returns, most columns were either left blank mentioning "Not applicable' or "Nil' or some documents were attached and mentioned "Attached with separate sheets'. In the documents filed as computation of income, along with Returns, YEIDA declared its income and taxable liability in respect to relevant years, as under:-

Serial no.	A.Y.	Gross total income Rs.	Tax liability	Refund of TDS, if any Rs.
1	2009-10	-15736298	Nil	Nil
2	2010-11	Nil	Nil	2,99,643
3	2011-12	Nil	Nil	98,286
4	2012-13	Nil	Nil	59,29,391
5	2013-14	Nil	Nil	50,34,984

8. In respect to A.Ys. 2010-11, 2011-12, 2012-13, 2013-14, DCIT sent letters dated 30.11.2015, under Section 148 of Act 1961 requiring YEIDA to submit returns again for the aforesaid A.Ys. A similar letter in respect to A.Y. 2009-10 was issued by DCIT under Section 148 on 29.03.2016. In respect to all A.Ys. except A.Y. 2009-10, YEIDA submitted a common letter dated 14.12.2015 requesting DCIT to treat Returns of Income, previously filed by it, towards compliance of notice under Section 148 of Act 1961. Similar letter in respect to A.Y. 2009-10 was submitted by YEIDA on 28.04.2016. DCIT then sent letters/notices dated 16.12.2015 under Section 143(2)/142(1), similarly worded in respect to all A.Ys. except A.Y. 2009-10 enclosing questionnaire.

9. Since reasons for issuing notice under Section 148 of Act 1961 were not communicated to YEIDA, DCIT, subsequently, on an application submitted by YEIDA, communicated "reasons for believe" that Income has Escaped Assessment. The reasons appended as "Annexure-A' show date mentioned by DCIT was 20.11.2015 but communicated to YEIDA along with letters dated 16.12.2015 referring to YEIDA's application dated 14.12.2015.

10. The aforesaid letters dated 20.11.2015, containing reasons for the purpose of Section 147/148 of Act 1961, are almost similarly worded in respect to all A.Y.'s except A.Y. 2009-10. Five paragraphs in all four letters except for A.Y. 2012-13 where it had six paragraphs. In order to show similarity of reasons given in all letters, Para 5 in respect to A.Y.'s 2010-11, 2011-12, 2013-14 and Para 5 and 6 in respect to A.Y. 2012-13 are reproduced as under:-

A.Y. 2010-11

5. 11. In respect to A.Y. 2009-10, YEIDA received the document dated 15.03.2016 along with letter dated 16.05.2016 issued by DCIT containing reasons for initiating proceedings under Section 148 of Act 1961 and para 5 thereof reads as under:-

12. YEIDA filed objection to the said notice dated 04.01.2016 in respect to all A.Y.'s except A.Y. 2009-10. The objection filed by YEIDA with respect to A.Y. 2009-10 is dated 21.06.2015. DCIT communicated orders dated 08.01.2016 in respect to A.Y.'s 2010-11, 2011-12, 2012-13, 2013-14 and rejected objections. In respect to A.Y. 2009-10 similar order has been passed on 10.08.2016 by Assistant Commissioner, Income Tax, Circle-3, NOIDA (hereinafter referred to as "ACIT").

13. In the order dated 08.01.2016, DCIT has considered two objections in detail namely, Assessee failed to deduct TDS under Section 194-A, 194C and 194J of Act 1961 and further that, Assessee if had understated income and claimed excessive loss, deduction, allowance or relief in the return, it shall be deemed to be a case of Escaped Assessment under Section 147 Explanation 2 (b). With regard to other objections, it has simply rejected the same stating as under:-

"where a return of income has been furnished by the assessee but no assessment has been made and it is noticed by the Assessing Officer that the assessee has understated the income or has claimed excessive loss, deduction, allowance or relief in the return."

14. Order passed on 10.08.2016 is slightly in different terms and there ACIT who has passed the order, has taken a new ground and it said as under:-

"In this case, a search was conducted as some other assessee where certain documents of the assessee, were found and seized. The assessee has well acknowledged the papers (Page No. 4 & 5) of Annexure A-2 and offered the same for tax but now after attending many days of assessment proceedings filed objection on the basis that other pages are just estimation or not related to the assessee or explained in the Books of the Account of the assessee*. As referred by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of ACIT Vs Rajesh Jhaveri Stock Broker Pvt.*

Ltd. If he has reason to believe that income for any assessment year has escaped assessment. The word "reason" in the phrase "reason to believe" would mean cause or justification. It the Assessing Officer has cause or justification to know or suppose that income had escaped assessment, it can be said to have reason to believe that an income had escaped assessment. The expression cannot be read to mean that the Assessing Officer should have finally ascertained the fact by legal evidence or conclusion."

In view of above, I hold that the AO was well within his rights to invoke the proviso to section 147 of the I.T. Act.

Likewise other objections relating to other reasons are rebutted as they lack assertion and logically futile. In light of above, the AO has sufficient reasons to believe that the income of the assessee has escaped assessment and therefore the jurisdiction assumed u/s 147 is legally and factually sound. With this the objections raised by the assessee are disposed off and it is directed to comply with the proceedings as per the due process of law."

15. The respondents have filed counter affidavit sworn by Sri Rajesh Kumar, DCIT, Circle-3, NOIDA. It is averred that Section 10 (20A) of Act 1961 has been omitted by Finance Act, 2002. Hence no exemption from Income Tax is now available to the category which was earlier covered by Section 10(20A). Now only, a "local authority' under Section 10 (20) is exempted but YEIDA is not a local authority. The assessment proceedings for A.Y.'s 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 were completed on 11.03.2013, 03.03.2014, 27.03.2015, respectively. The exemption claimed by YEIDA under Section 10 (20) was denied. The appeal preferred by YEIDA against assessment order in regard to A.Y. 2005-06 has been dismissed on 21.03.2014. In regard to A.Y. 2012-13 assessment was also completed on 18.02.2016 which has been challenged in one of the connected writ petitions, up for consideration, being Writ (Tax) No. 237 of 2016.

16. Coming to other facts, respondents have said that YEIDA came into existence on 24.04.2001. Earlier it was existing with a different title namely "Taj Expressway Industrial Development Authority" which was changed as "YEIDA' by notification dated 11.07.2008. The basic object of constitution of YEIDA is securing Infrastructure Development of industrial area of Yamuna Expressway Corridor. The functions of YEIDA included acquisition of land in the industrial development area, by agreement or through proceedings under Land Acquisition Act, 1894, prepare a plan for industrial development area, to demarcate and develop sites for institutional, industrial, commercial and residential purposes and according to plan, to provide infrastructure for institutional, industrial, commercial and residential purposes, to provide amenities, to allocate and transfer either by way of sale or lease or otherwise plots of land for industrial, commercial or residential purposes, to regulate the erection of buildings and setting up of industries and to lay down the purpose for which a particular site or plot of land shall be used namely for industrial or commercial or residential purpose, as the case may be. YEIDA is not a "local authority', within the term Section 10(20) of Act 1961. This Court in Writ Petition no. 1338 of 2005, decided on 28.02.2011, negativing status of Local Authority claimed by New Okhla Industrial Development Authority (hereinafter referred to as "NOIDA'). Its review application has also been rejected by this Court. It is said that, though the judgment dated 28.02.2011 was in respect to NOIDA but status, nature of activities, nature of income etc. of NOIDA, YEIDA and Greater New Okhla Industrial Development Authority i.e. NOIDA are similar, hence whatever has been hold in the case of NOIDA shall hold good for YEIDA also.

17. Petitioner ought to have filed Return of Income within due date, as per Section 139(1) of Act 1961, but it failed. It is only in response to notice issued under Section 142(1) of Act 1961 on 07.08.2014, that Returns in respect to aforesaid Assessment Years were submitted by YEIDA. The Return Forms, however are virtually blank. Except name of petitioner, address, PAN and Assessment Year, almost everything has been left blank. Assessment proceedings under Section 147 of Act 1961, by issuing notice under Section 148 were initiated validly, after obtaining prior approval of competent authority as prescribed under Section 151 of Act 1961. Notices were issued after recording reasons. The objections filed petitioners have been rejected by a detailed order.

18. Sri Balbir Singh, learned counsel for petitioners, vehemently contended that there was no Escaped Assessment and there is total non application of mind on the part of competent authority in initiating reassessment proceedings. He urged that re-assessment is not permissible for change of opinion. Whatever material was available at the time of filing Return, there is no change and even otherwise impugned orders would apparently show total non application of mind on the part of concerned authority.

19. Sri Ashok Mehta, learned Additional Solicitor General, on the contrary, sought to support impugned orders rejecting objection of petitioner, and notices issued for re-assessment on the ground that Assessee was liable to deduct Tax/TDS under various provisions of Act 1961, as mentioned in the notices issued under Section 148 of Act 1961. The objections raised by YEIDA have also been considered in detail. Hence, under Article 226 of Constitution of India no interference is called for.

20. In all these writ petitions we are not concerned, as to whether YEIDA is amenable to income tax under Act 1961, or not or that an Assessment Order is correct, since that is an issue pending for consideration before concerned Revenue authorities. Our endeavor is confined to consider, whether objections raised by petitioner against re-assessment proceedings under Section 147/148 have been decided by application of mind or whether authorities concerned have recorded, in fact, "reasons to believe" for initiating re-assessment proceedings or not and the requirement of statute is justified, for the reasons that is a jurisdictional issue and not mere procedural one. So far as validity of assessment is concerned, petitioner admittedly has remedy elsewhere under the statute and neither we have been called upon to consider correctness of assessment nor we are otherwise inclined to look into that aspect. We are confined only to consider the question argued, that is, re-assessment proceedings under Section 147/148 of Act 1961 whether satisfy the conditions precedent for such initiation.

21. Now before examining the impugned orders passed by competent authority, as also "reasons to believe" for issuing notices under Section 148 of Act 1961, it would be appropriate to have a bird eye view of relevant authorities on the subject and statutory exposition of law on this aspect.

22. Section 147 gives power to Assessing Officer to assess or re-assess where it has "reason to believe" that any income chargeable to Tax has escaped assessment for any Assessment Year. This power of re-assessment however, is subject to provisions of Section 148 to 153. Section 147 and 148 reads as under:-

"Income escaping assessment.

147. If the Assessing Officer has reason to believe that any income chargeable to tax has escaped assessment for any assessment year, he may, subject to the provisions of sections 148 to 153, assess or reassess such income and also any other income chargeable to tax which has escaped assessment and which comes to his notice subsequently in the course of the proceedings under this section*, or recompute the loss or the depreciation allowance or any other allowance, as the case may be, for the assessment year concerned (hereafter in this section and in sections 148 to 153 referred to as the relevant assessment year) :*

Provided that where an assessment under sub-section (3) of section 143 or this section has been made for the relevant assessment year, no action shall be taken under this section after the expiry of four years from the end of the relevant assessment year, unless any income chargeable to tax has escaped assessment for such assessment year by reason of the failure on the part of the assessee to make a return under section 139 or in response to a notice issued under sub-section (1) of Section 142 or section 148 or to disclose fully and truly all material facts necessary for his assessment, for that assessment year:

Provided further that nothing contained in the first proviso shall apply in a case where any income in relation to any asset (including financial interest in any entity) located outside India, chargeable to tax, has escaped assessment for any assessment year:

Provided also that the Assessing Officer may assess or reassess such income, other than the income involving matters which are the subject matters of any appeal, reference or revision, which is chargeable to tax and has escaped assessment.

Explanation 1.--Production before the Assessing Officer of account books or other evidence from which material evidence could with due diligence have been discovered by the Assessing Officer will not necessarily amount to disclosure within the meaning of the foregoing proviso.

Explanation 2.--For the purposes of this section, the following shall also be deemed to be cases where income chargeable to tax has escaped assessment, namely :--

(a) where no return of income has been furnished by the assessee although his total income or the total income of any other person in respect of which he is assessable under this

Act during the previous year exceeded the maximum amount which is not chargeable to income-tax ;

(b) where a return of income has been furnished by the assessee but no assessment has been made and it is noticed by the Assessing Officer that the assessee has understated the income or has claimed excessive loss, deduction, allowance or relief in the return

(ba) where the assessee has failed to furnish a report in respect of any international transaction which he was so required under section 92E;

(c) where an assessment has been made, but--

(i) income chargeable to tax has been under assessed ; or

(ii) such income has been assessed at too low a rate ; or

(iii) such income has been made the subject of excessive relief under this Act ;or

(iv) excessive loss or depreciation allowance or any other allowance under this Act has been computed;

(d) where a person is found to have any asset (including financial interest in any entity) located outside India.

Explanation 3.--For the purpose of assessment or reassessment under this section , the Assessing Officer may assess or reassess the income in respect of any issue, which has escaped assessment, and such issue comes to his notice subsequently in the course of the proceedings under this section*, notwithstanding that the reasons for such issue have not been included in the reasons recorded under sub-section (2) of section 148.]*

Explanation 4.--For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that the provisions of this section, as amended by the Finance Act, 2012, shall also be applicable for any assessment year beginning on or before the 1st day of April, 2012.

Issue of notice where income has escaped assessment.

148*. [(1)]* Before making the assessment, reassessment or recomputation under section 147, the Assessing Officer shall serve on the assessee a notice requiring him to furnish within such period, [ * ] as may be specified in the notice, a return of his income or the income of any other person in respect of which he is assessable under this Act during the previous year corresponding to the relevant assessment year, in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner and setting forth such other particulars as may be prescribed; and the provisions of this Act shall, so far as may be, apply accordingly as if such return were a return required to be furnished under section 139:

Provided that in a case--*

(a) where a return has been furnished during the period commencing on the 1st day of October, 1991 and ending on the 30th day of September, 2005 in response to a notice served under this section, and

(b) subsequently a notice has been served under sub-section (2) of section 143 after the expiry of twelve months specified in the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 143, as it stood immediately before the amendment of said sub-section by the Finance Act, 2002 (20 of 2002) but before the expiry of the time limit for making the assessment, re-assessment or recomputation as specified in sub-section (2) of section 153, every such notice referred to in this clause shall be deemed to be a valid notice:

Provided further that in a case--*

(a) where a return has been furnished during the period commencing on the 1st day of October, 1991 and ending on the 30th day of September, 2005, in response to a notice served under this section, and

(b) subsequently a notice has been served under clause (ii) of sub-section (2) of section 143 after the expiry of twelve months specified in the proviso to clause (ii) of sub-section (2) of section 143, but before the expiry of the time limit for making the assessment, reassessment or recomputation as specified in sub-section (2) of section 153, every such notice referred to in this clause shall be deemed to be a valid notice.]

Explanation.--For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that nothing contained in the first proviso or the second proviso shall apply to any return which has been furnished on or after the 1st day of October, 2005 in response to a notice served under this section.

(2) The Assessing Officer shall, before issuing any notice under this section, record his reasons for doing so."

23. In the context of old Income Tax Act i.e. Income Tax Act, 1922, Section 34 wherein dealt with situation of income escaping assessment, this issue as to when re-assessment proceedings can be initiated, came up before a Constitution Bench in Calcutta Discount Co. Ltd. Vs Income-Tax Officer, Companies District I, Calcutta, and another, (1961) 41 ITR 191 (SC). The issue was decided by majority of 3/2. Court held, while it is duty of Assessee to disclose full and true, all primary relevant facts, the inference, to be drawn therefrom is the duty of Revenue. Assessee cannot be expected to assisst Revenue for deciding as to what inference on facts should reasonably be drawn or what inference ultimately be drawn. Thus, it would be a material bearing on the question of under-assessment and it would give a jurisdiction to Assessing Officer to issue notice under Section 34 for re-assessment. Whether grounds, are not adequate would not be examined by Court for the reason that non disclosure of material facts gives sufficient reason to confer jurisdiction. Similarly if Assessee intends to challenge a notice of re-assessment, he has to establish that Assessing Officer had no material at all before him to believe that there had been any non disclosure. The jurisdiction of re-assessment would be available to Assessing Officer only when he has "reason to believe" that income, profits or gains chargeable to income tax have been under assessed. It therefore, held that existence of material to form opinion of escaped assessment is a jurisdictional issue.

24. In the context of Act 1961, Section 147 came up for constitution in Ganga Saran & Sons P. Ltd Vs Income Tax Officer & others, (1981) 130 ITR 1 (SC) and Court said;
