128. Hon'ble R.B. Misra, J. also agreed with Hon'ble A.P. Sen and E.S. Venkataramiah, JJ that the notices challenged in writ petition are invalid, having no legal consequences and must be quashed for reasons detailed in both the judgments. His Lordship, however, said that other questions involved in the case are based upon contractual obligations between the parties and can be satisfactorily and effectively dealt with in a properly instituted suit and not by way of writ petition on the basis of affidavits which are so discrepant and contradictory in this case. Hon'ble R.B. Misra, J. in para 207 of judgment, said:

"207. The right to the land and to construct buildings thereon for running a business is not derived from Article 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(g) of the Constitution but springs from terms of contract between the parties regulated by other laws governing the subject, viz., the Delhi Development Act, 1957, the Master Plan, the Zonal Development Plan framed under the Delhi Municipal Corporation Act and the Delhi Municipal Bye-laws, 1959 irrespective of the purpose for which the buildings are constructed. Whether there has been a breach of the contract of lease or whether there has been a breach of the other statutes regulating the construction of buildings are the questions which can be properly decided by taking detailed evidence involving examination and cross-examination of witnesses." (Emphasis added)

129. The above judgment also has no application to the facts of present case. On the contrary, majority view expressed in above judgment is that right to land and to construct building is not derived from Articles 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(g) of Constitution but springs from promise of contract between the parties. Whether there has been breach of contract of lease or there has been breach of any provision regulating lease rights and construction of building etc. are such questions which can be properly decided by taking detailed evidence involving examination and cross examination of witnesses and therefore, such rights can be enforced in common law proceedings by filing suit.

130. In Yar Mohammad and another vs. Lakshmi Das and others AIR 1959 Allahabad 1, a Full Bench of this Court considered following question :

"Whether the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is barred by virtue of Section 242 of the U. P. Tenancy Act in respect of suit filed under Section 9 of the Specific Relief Act for obtaining possession over agricultural land from which the plaintiff alleged his illegal dispossession within six months of the date of the-suit".

131. Therein plaintiffs instituted suit on 30.11.1948 for possession under Section 9 of Specific Relief Act, 1877 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1877") alleging that they were in actual possession of land in dispute (land was admittedly an agricultural land) but wrongfully dispossessed by defendants in November 1948. Defendants contested the suit and disputed correctness of above allegations of plaintiffs and pleaded that they were in possession of land as tenants of plaintiffs for more than 12 years, hence, plaintiffs cannot eject them. They also pleaded that suit was filed under Section 9 of Act, 1877 only to evade jurisdiction of Revenue Court. Trial Court i.e. learned Munsif rejected plea of lack of jurisdiction raised by defendants, accepted the case set up by plaintiffs and decreed the suit. Defendants then filed revision no.461 of 1952, which resulted in Reference to a Larger Bench. The issue was with respect to applicability of Section 242 of U. P. Tenancy Act, 1939. Court said that Section 242 confers exclusive jurisdiction on Revenue Court and takes away jurisdiction of Civil Court only in two kinds of actions.

(i) suits or application of the nature specified in the Fourth Schedule of the Act; and

(ii) suits or applications based on a cause of action in respect of which any relief can be obtained by means of a suit or application specified in that schedule.

132. It was held that in order to attract Section 242, one has to demonstrate that action would fall under either of the above-mentioned two categories and if does not, jurisdiction of Civil Court is not ousted and Revenue Court will have no jurisdiction to entertain the action.

133. Then construing the cases, which may resort to Section 9 of Act, 1877, Court said that Section 9 gives a special privilege to persons in possession who take action promptly. In case they are dispossessed, Section 9 entitles them to succeed simply by proving:

(1) that they were in possession,

(2) that they have been dispossessed by the defendant,

(3) that dispossession is not in accordance with law, and

(4) that dispossession took place within six months of the suit.

134. No question of title, either of plaintiffs or of defendants, can be raised or gone into in an action brought under Section 9 of Act, 1877. Plaintiffs will be entitled to succeed without proving any title on which he can fall back upon and defendant cannot succeed even though he may be in a position to establish the best of all titles. Restoration of possession under Section 9 is however subject to a regular suit and person who has real title or even better title cannot be prejudiced in any way by a decree of a suit under Section 9. A person having real or better title always has a right to establish his title in a regular suit and get the possession back. The objective and idea behind Section 9, as the Court observed is that law does not permit any person to take law in his own hands and to dispossess a person, in actual possession, without having recourse to a Court or Institution, in an illegal manner. In other words, objective of Section 9 is to discourage people from taking law in their own hands, how-ever good title they may have. In the interest of public order, self-help is not permitted so far as possession over Immovable property is concerned, Section 9 is intended to discourage and prevent proceedings which might lead to serious breach of peace. It does not allow a person who has acted high-handedly by wrongfully dispossessing a person in possession from deriving any benefit from his own unjustified act. Section 9, infact, provides for a summary and quick remedy for a person who is in possession but illegally ousted therefrom without his consent. Court observed that 'Possession' is prima facie evidence of title and if a person who is in possession is dispossessed, he has a right to claim back possession from the person who dispossesses him. In an ordinary common law proceedings, a person who has a title, is entitled to possession and cannot be deprived of his right of possession by a person, who has no title or inferior to the former. Court said that for Section 9, claim of title is not allowed to be set up and possession wrongfully taken, has to be restored. Full Bench therefore, answered question formulated above in negative.

135. In our view, above judgment has no application to the facts of this case for the reason that title of land is not in dispute, inasmuch as, it is admitted case of petitioner that land in dispute is 'Nazul', hence it is owned and vested in Government. It is also not in dispute that petitioner got possession of land in dispute being original Lessees. Petitioner has not been evicted illegally, hence Section 9 of Act, 1877 has no application. In the present case right of re-entry is being exercised by respondent-State in terms of lease-deed, pursuant whereto possession was given to Lessees, and now it (petitioner) is bound to restore possession in terms of lease whereunder lessee was obliged to surrender/hand over possession to State Government.

136. We may also note hereat that in the case in hand, lease was governed by provisions of GG Act, 1895 and Section 2, as amended in State of U.P., has excluded provisions of U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 for governing rights etc. of parties. Only provisions contained in lease-deed shall apply and have to be given effect to as if U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 was not passed. Therefore also, reliance placed upon the aforesaid judgment, in the case in hand, is of no consequence.

137. Lallu Yeshwant Singh (dead) by his legal representative vs. Rao Jagdish Singh and others, AIR 1968 SC 620 is a judgment which came up before two Judges Bench of Supreme Court from a dispute raised under Qanoon Mal Riyasat Gwalior Samvat, 1983 (hereinafter referred to as "Qanoon Mal") that is from Madhya Pradesh. Under Section 326 of Qanoon Mal, a suit was filed by Yeshwant Singh and others i.e. plaintiffs against Rao Jagdish Singh and others (defendants) in the Court of Tehsildar for possession of some agricultural land. Plaintiffs set up a case that they were in possession of land and forcibly dispossessed by defendants, therefore, should be restored their possession. Tehsildar decreed the suit and order was affirmed in appeal by Collector as well as Commissioner. Revision was also dismissed by Board of Revenue and decree passed by Tehsildar was maintained. Section 326 of Qanoon Mal broadly provided summary remedy as is provided in Section 9 of Act, 1877. In para 7 of judgment, Court has referred to both the provisions and said that both are broadly similar. High Court took a different view holding that it was not necessary for a Lessor to resort to Court for obtaining possession and if there is default by plaintiff, it could have been dispossessed by defendants. Supreme Court said that no person can take law in its own hand and in such matter, where provisions providing summary procedure for restoration of illegal dispossession of land have been made, the same can be resorted to by the person who has been illegally dispossessed. Supreme Court affirmed Full Bench judgment of this Court in Yar Mohammad (supra). Here also we do not find applicability of this judgment to the case in hand for the reasons we have already said in respect of judgment in Yar Mohammad (supra).

138. Decision in State of U.P. Vs. Zahoor Ahmad and another (supra), we find, instead of helping petitioner, supports the view which we have taken hereinabove. State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad and another (supra) was a matter which came up before two Judges Bench of Supreme Court arising from action by State in respect of certain land which fell within Reserved Forest in State of Uttar Pradesh. Zahoor Ahmad was granted lease of a plot of land at Chandan Chowki, Sonaripur Range in North Kheri Forest Division for an annual rent of Rs.100/-. The aforesaid land was part of Reserved Forest of which State of U.P. is the proprietor. Lease was granted for industrial purposes for one year commencing from 18.03.1947. It was renewed on 10.06.1948 with effect from 18.03.1948 for one year and again in 1949 for further one year. Ultimately lease expired on 18.03.1950. State of U.P., after termination of lease, allowed Zahoor Ahmad to continue in possession of land on the conditions settled between the parties that Licensee i.e. Zahoor Ahmad would pay Rs.1,000/- as annual rent for occupation till 15.07.1950. Even after determination of lease on 15.7.1950, Zahoor Ahmad i.e. Licensee continued in possession and State of U.P. allowed him to remain in possession for three years beyond 15.07.1950 though for this period Zahoor Ahmad did not agree to give any undertaking of making payment of annual rent of Rs.1,000/-. A letter dated 04.12.1951 was issued to Zahoor Ahmad asking him to pay Rs.3,000/- for the year 1950-51. Letter further provided that if Zahoor Ahmad do not agree to pay Rs.3,000/- for the year 1950-51, amount of rent would be reduced to Rs.1800/- but he would not be allowed lease in future in any circumstance. The fact remains that Zahoor Ahmad was allowed to continue in occupation of land without any agreement as to the amount of rent payable for 1950-51. On 29.10.1952, Conservator of Forests sent a letter that Zahoor Ahmad can be allowed to run mill beyond 15.07.1950 for three years if he pays Rs.3,000/- per annum, and for one year only, if he is ready to pay Rs.1,800/- but thereafter lease would not be renewed. Notice also said that he was only Licensee and should remove his plant and vacate the premises within one month and pay Rs.6,000/- as damages for use and occupation. Zahoor Ahmad did not pay the amount, hence a suit for recovery of damages was filed by State of U.P. High Court came to the conclusion that Licensee (Zahoor Ahmad) was allowed to continue with the consent of State of U.P. though there was no written agreement about rate of rent and lease was granted for industrial purposes. Under Section 106 of TP Act, 1882, such lease is for year to year basis. The lease could have been terminated by six months notice and no such notice was given, therefore, tenancy was not validly terminated. With respect of amount of rent, Court took the view that under Section 116, renewal would mean the same terms and conditions as made applicable in previous lease. High Court therefore decreed the suit for payment of rent of Rs.3,000/-. Possession was allowed by State with its consent. Thus, High Court took the view that 'holding over' was applicable under Section 116. State Government bye-passing provision of TP Act, 1882 sought to rely on GG Act, 1895. Whether the kind of above lease, granted by State could have been brought within the purview of GG Act, 1895, Supreme Court examined this issue by referring to two judgments. In one, lease of forest land of Sunderbans was held to be a 'Grant' while, in another, Grant of Khas Mahal was not held to be as 'Grant'. In Jnanendra Nath Nanda vs. Jadu Nath Banerji AIR 1938 Cal 211 two leases of two lots were granted by Sunderban Commissioner on behalf of Secretary of State. The land comprised in the lots were 'waste lands' of the Government. 'Waste lands' of Sunderbans were not property of any subject. Sunderbans was vast impenetrable forest. It was the property of East India Company and later on vested in Crown by virtue of an Imperial Statute. Court found that history of legislation showed that grants of Sunderbans lands were treated to be 'Crown Grants' within the meaning of 'Crown Grants Act'. In another matter i.e. Secretary of State for India in Council vs. Lal Mohan Chaudhuri, AIR 1935 Cal 746 in respect of Khas Mahal, lease was granted by Government. It was held that lease of Khas Mahal does not come within the category of 'Grant' as contemplated in GG Act, 1935. Having said so, in para 13 of judgment, Court said that lease granted to Zahoor Ahmad was for the purpose of erecting a temporary rice mill and for no other purpose. The mere fact that State is the lessor will not by itself make above lease a 'Government Grant' within the meaning of GG Act, 1895. We may reproduce para 13 of the judgment in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad (supra) as under :

"The lease in the present case was for the purpose of erecting a temporary rice mill and for no other purpose. The mere fact that the State is the lessor will not by itself make it a Government grant within the meaning of the Government Grants Act. There is no evidence in the present case in the character of the land or in the making of the lease or in the content of the lease to support the plea on behalf of the State that it was a grant within the meaning of the Government Grants Act." (Emphasis added)

139. When a question arose whether High Court has rightly applied Section 116 of TP Act, 1882, Supreme Court, in this context, referred to a judgment of this Court in Lala Kishun Chand vs. Sheo Dutta, AIR 1958 All. 879 wherein after expiry of lease of Nazul land, Licensee was permitted by Board of Revenue to continue in occupation as tenant and rent was also realized from him and held that in these facts, Section 116 TP Act, 1882 was rightly applied.

140. Thus, the above judgment insofar as interpretation of GG Act, 1895 and giving terms of lease overriding effect, does not help petitioner and in other aspect it is decided on its own facts.

141. We, therefore, answer questions (vii), (viii) and (ix) against petitioner.

142. The last and tenth question is "whether re-entry/resumption of land by Lessor i.e. State Government is valid?"

143. So far as validity of resumption of land for 'public purpose' is concerned, it could not be disputed that land has been sought to be required by State for 'public purpose'. Allahabad City has been selected for development as a Smart City and respondents have pleaded that demand of huge land has been made by various Government departments since various Offices, Workshops, Parks, Parking places etc. have to be constructed. The land in dispute has been found suitable for "Nurseries for Horticulture Department, Homeopathic/Ayurvedic/Unani Hospital, Office of Information Department and Office of Central Ground Water Board" which are public purpose. In fact, on this aspect, no substantial argument has been made and in our view, resumption of land by State is for 'public purpose'.

144. Now, we may also observe that litigation initiated by petitioner on the one hand has given enough time to it to continue to hold and enjoy land in dispute and simultaneously denied opportunity to respondent authorities to take possession of land in question for the purpose of carrying out developmental activities where time is a matter of essence. The impugned notice was issued on 18.08.2018 and for more than twelve months have already been availed by petitioner to enjoy benefit of possession of land in dispute. It has enjoyed the same without spending even a single penny towards rent, damages, compensation for such enjoyment. Land in question is required for developmental activities in furtherance of developing Prayagraj City as "Smart City". Developmental activities require an early action, but, by indulging in litigation, petitioner has already delayed it sufficiently, therefore, even if what petitioner claims that it should have been given notice or sufficient time to vacate, the same has already been achieved as petitioner had already enough time. It is, thus, a fit case where we do not find that any other technicality should be allowed to intervene and, earliest is the better that possession of land is transferred to respondents so that developmental activities may proceed without any further delay. Considering the facts and circumstances and also the fact that petitioner has already enjoyed continued possession over land in dispute for the last almost more than a year after issue of impugned notice, we direct petitioner to vacate disputed land within one month from the date of delivery of judgment.

145. In view of above discussion, we do not find any merit in the petition. Subject to above direction with respect to period of vacating land in dispute, writ petition is dismissed.

146. No costs.

A. Civil Law - Government Grants Act, 1895 - Section 3 - 'Nazul' - a land owned and vested in State - land which has vested in State by virtue of its 'Sovereignty' and incidence of 'Sovereignty' i.e. annexation, lapse and bona vacantia - 'Grant' - transfer of property by a deed in writing and includes within its ambit, an instrument of lease/lease deed. (Para-81)

Entry of petitioners over land in dispute was wholly unauthorized -, their status is of 'rank trespassers' - they have no right over land in dispute - respondent's authority has given opportunity to petitioners by means of notice in question - Even otherwise, if petitioners would have been a valid leaseholder, their rights under lease would have been contractual. (Para 168 & 205)

Held: - In the matter of contract principles of natural justice are not applicable. (Para 168 & 205)

B. Civil Law - Government Grants Act, 1895 - Section 3(repealed by Act of 2017) - Nazul land - Resumption of land by Government.

Resumption of land in question is in accordance with law and petitioners have no right whatsoever to claim continued possession over land in dispute. Even scheme of freehold as governed by various Government Orders shows, wherever land is required by State Government for 'public purpose' for own use, it shall not allow freehold. (Para 201)

Held:- Petitioners had no right, legal, contractual or otherwise in respect of possession of land in dispute; they were not holding possession of land validly; once State exercises right of re-entry, question of conversion of freehold also would not arise, hence notice in question warrants no interference.- by means of impugned notice, petitioners have been given enough time to vacate the land and thereafter only State shall take steps for possession, if vacant possession is not given by petitioners-Petitioners already enjoyed interim order passed by this Court and continued in possession over land in dispute for last almost more than a year - petitioners directed to vacate disputed land within one month . (Para - 202, 208 & 211)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-7)

Facts in brief as set out in writ petition are that Nazul Plot No.127, Civil Station, Allahabad (hereinafter referred to as "Disputed Nazul Land") is a very big plot having area of 2 acres 3947 Sq. Yard i.e. total 11393.53 Sq. Meters. It was initially leased out to one 'E.J.Lazarus' by Secretary of State for India in Council through Collector, District Allahabad vide lease deed dated 02.04.1862. The period of lease was 50 years. After expiry of initial period of 50 years on 01.4.1912, another lease deed was executed on 18.06.1912 for a further period of 50 years and period of lease commenced from 02.4.1912. This lease deed was executed by Secretary of State for India in Council through Collector Allahabad in favour of 'Evelyn Constance Trisham'. The lease was executed for allowing lessee to raise a dwelling house, garden or pleasure grounds. Period of lease expired on 01.4.1962.

5. Disputed Nazul Land was let out by erstwhile lessee i.e. E.C.Trisham to Vishun Nath son of Shambhu Nath and his name was also recorded in Nazul Register. Vishun Nath died in 1958 leaving behind his widow Smt. Jamuna Devi and three sons namely Harihar Nath Dhar, Triloki Nath Dhar, and Sri Dhar. Since lease expired on 01.4.1962, Sri Dhar son of Vishun Nath submitted application dated 04.5.1962 requesting for grant of fresh lease of Disputed Nazul Land. Superintendent Municipal Estates and Nazul Properties, Nagar Mahapalika, Allahabad vide letter dated 26.5.1962 informed him that no subdivision of Disputed Nazul Land would be allowed and all co-lessees have to apply jointly for fresh lease for entire site measuring 2 acres 3947 Sq. Yards. Fresh lease could not be executed, as is evident from letter dated 13.8.1969 sent by Nazul Superintendent, Nagar Mahapalika, Allahabad requiring Smt. Jamuna Devi and Shri Dhar to file affidavit on behalf of all the legal heirs. Heirs of Vishun Nath, however, inducted in 1980, petitioners as tenant over 1204.23 Sq. Yards, allocated in Northern part of P.D.Tandon Road at the rent of Rs.250/- per month. Petitioners raised various constructions etc. over the said land and continuously paid rent to Harihar Nath Dhar, who issued rent receipts being Karta of family. Petitioners constructed wood shop by the main P.D.Tandon Road in which they started a Furniture Showroom in the name of "Shree Digamber Traders". In the other portion, family members of petitioners were residing. Petitioners are also paying house tax and water tax of property in their possession.

6. Special Nazul Officer, Allahabad issued a letter dated 05.01.1981 addressed to Harihar Nath Dhar requiring him to produce following documents :

''1. मैट्रिक प्रणाली पर बना हुआ साइट का नक्शा जिसमें पूरा निर्मित क्षेत्रफल पूरे नाप के साथ दिखाया गया हो। यदि भूमि का एक से अधिक उपयोग हो रहा है तो विभिन्न भू उपयोगों का नक्शे पर स्पष्ट रूप से प्रदर्शित किया जाय और यदि साइट का विभाजन हुआ है तो इसे भी नक्शे पर दिखाया जाय।

2. विभाजन की स्थिति में विभाजन स्वीकृत कराने सम्बन्धी जिलाधीश / शासन का आदेश भी प्रस्तुत करें।

3. अपने स्वत्व के समर्थन में आवश्यक दस्तावेज प्रस्तुत करें।

4. यदि समाप्त लीज के कई पट्टेदार थे और आपके अतिरिक्त अन्य लोग नया पट्टा लेने के इच्छुक नहीं हैं तो आपके पक्ष में पट्टा दिए जाने हेतु उनका लिखित संस्तुति / सहमति हेतु प्रस्तुत करें।''

"1- The site-map be made on the basis of the metric system, in which whole constructed area be shown with all dimensions. If the land is used for more than one purpose, then all different usages be specifically shown in the map, and if the site has been partitioned, then it be also shown on the map.

2- In case of partition, order of District Magistrate/ Government relating to approval of partition be also produced.

3- In support of the title, necessary documents be produced.

4- If there were many other lease-holders, and except you, no one is prepared to take new lease, then written recommendation/consent for allotting lease in your favour be produced."

7. Vishun Nath died in 1958. His wife Smt. Jamuna died in 1974. An agreement was executed on 08.11.1988 between Harihar Nath as Karta of family and petitioners Hari Babu Jain, Ajit Kumar Jain and Praveen Kumar Jain for transfer of portion of land and structure i.e. area 1204.23 Sq.meters subject to permission of Government, on payment of sale consideration of Rs.84,297.50 by petitioners to Harihar Nath. Relevant stipulations of agreement contained in paras 3, 6, 7 and 10 are as under :

3. That the 2nd party will be responsible to obtain the permission of the Government for the transfer of the portion of the land shown red in the attached plan at his own cost and expenses.

6. That the 1st party will transfer the land under the possession of the 2nd party after the permission was granted by the government after the grant of the fresh lease.

7. That in case the fresh lease was not granted in favour of the 1st party by including the land proposed to be transferred the 2nd party will have the rights to get the fresh lease granted to them direct from the government on payment of premium and fixed annual ground rent demanded by the government and in that case the 1st party will have no objection.

10. That the 1st party including his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns will have no objection in case the 2nd party got the fresh lease executed in their favour direct from the government."

8. The entire consideration was paid by petitioners to Harihar Nath. They are transferees/assignees and co-lessees of part of Disputed Nazul Land measuring 1204.23 Sq. meters. In the light of State Government's policy of making freehold of lease rights enshrined in Government Order (hereinafter referred to as "G.O.") dated 01.12.1998, petitioner-1 Hari Babu Jain, being Karta of family and on behalf of all other petitioners, filed application dated 28.01.1999 before Collector

Allahabad for freehold and also deposited 25 percent of circle rate i.e. Rs.1,08,260/- vide Treasury Challan dated 28.01.1999. Since no decision was taken, petitioners served notice dated 09.6.2003 on Collector, Allahabad, requesting him to decide petitioners' application for freehold. Another reminder notice was sent on 21.8.2013 by petitioners to Collector Allahabad. Petitioners also filed Original Suit No.392 of 2015, impleading Omeshwar Nath, Brijeshwar Nath, Kamleshwar Nath and Gyaneshwar Nath, all sons of late Harihar Nath, and State of Uttar Pradesh through District Magistrate, Allahabad as defendants 1 to 5 and sought following reliefs:

''11. यह कि माननीय न्यायालय द्वारा जरिये घोषणात्मक डिक्री भवन सं0 3ए/ 3 पी0डी0 टण्डन रोड सिविल लाइन इलाहाबाद को वादीगण के हक में घोषणा कर दी जावे। उक्त भवन के मालिक काबिज दाखिल वादीगण हैं प्रतिवादीगण से कोई वास्ता नहीं है।

"11. That a decree of declaration for building no. 3A/3, PD Tandon Road, Civil Lines, Allahabad may kindly be passed by the Hon'ble Court in favour of the plaintiffs to the effect that he plaintiffs are owners having possession over the said building and the defendants have no concern with it.

b) That share of plaintiff against defendants be declared.

9. The aforesaid suit is still pending. In the meantime, now respondent-2 has passed impugned order dated 14.08.2018.

10. The order has been assailed on various grounds, i.e. notice contains names of some persons who are already dead; petitioners had applied for freehold but their application has not been decided; in an abrupt manner, impugned order has been passed without giving any opportunity; it is illegal and arbitrary particularly when in number of cases freehold has been allowed; respondents could have acquired land following procedure laid down in Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as Act, 2013") but the said procedure has not been followed and therefore, resumption is wholly illegal; lot of land is available for developing as 'Sports Complex' besides the fact that a 'Sport Complex' is already available in the city hence alleged requirement for development of 'Sports Complex' is not genuine and against public policy; petitioners cannot be ousted forcibly without resorting to procedure prescribed in Uttar Pradesh Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P. Act, 1972"); and, petitioners having been allowed to stay in land in dispute despite expiry of lease in 1962, bring in doctrine of estoppel against respondents and now they cannot take a somersault by asking petitioners to vacate land in dispute over which several developments by raising constructions have been made by petitioners.

11. Respondent -2 contesting the writ petition has filed counter affidavit sworn by Sri Gore Lal Shukla, Additional District Magistrate (Nazul), Allahabad. He has pleaded that Disputed Nazul Land was leased out to E.C.Tresham vide lease deed dated 18.6.1912 executed for a period of 50 years with effect from 02.04.1912. In terms of Government Grants Act 1895 (hereinafter referred to as "GG Act, 1895") rights of parties are to be governed by the said lease deed and not by any other contrary statutory law. With respect to surrender after expiry of period of lease, relevant stipulations in lease deed reads as under :-

"....And also shall and will at the end, expiration or other sooner determination of the said term peaceably and quietly leave surrender and yield up to the said Secretary of State, his Successors or Assigns the said piece or parcel of land or ground together with all such of the said erection or building and all fixtures and fittings which at any time and during the said term shall be affixed or set up within or upon the said demised premises as the said Secretary of State, his Successors and Assigns shall desire to take over at a valuation according to the option hereinafter reserved to them, subject however to the conditions hereinaftercontained." (Emphasis added)

12. With respect to resumption by State Government, lease deed contains a clause, which reads as under:-

"Provided always and it is hereby declared and agreed that no compensation or payment shall be claimable by the said lessee his Executors, Administrators or Assigns for any buildings, erections, or fixtures, erected affixed, or placed by him, them or any of them in or upon the said premises or any part thereof, in case these premises shall be determined by re-entry for forfeiture in which case the buildings, erections and fixtures shall vest absolutely in the said Secretary of State, his Successors and Assigns as his own property without any compensation or payment in respect there (Emphasis added)

13. Land is required for public purpose of developing a 'Sports Complex' in the city of Allahabad, which has been chosen to be developed as "Smart City". A proposal sent to State Government on 19.6.2018 for resumption/re-entry has been approved by State Government vide letter 9.8.2018 and in terms thereof order dated 14.8.2018 has been passed by District Magistrate, Allahabad. No lease deed was ever executed in favour of Vishun Nath son of Shambhu Nath and there is no renewal of lease after 1.4.1962. The alleged induction of petitioners in 1980 is wholly unauthorized as it was never approved or sanctioned by State Government. Mere application for 'freehold' does not confer any vested right in petitioners as held by the Full Bench of this Court in Anand Kumar Sharma Vs. State of U.P. 2014 (2) ADJ 743. In any case, petitioners have no right over land in dispute on the basis of agreement dated 8.11.1988 since, Executors at that time did not possess any transferable right at all. Power of resumption is consistent with terms of lease read with provisions of GG Act 1895. It is also said that GG Act, 1895 has been repealed by Repealing and Amending (Second) Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 2017") but rights etc. in respect of effect and consequences etc. of act already done or suffered have been saved. Section 2 provides that enactment specified in First Schedule are hereby repealed. Reference of GG Act, 1895 is in First Schedule. Section 4 of Act, 2017 reads as under :

"4. Savings.- The repeal by this Act of any enactment shall not affect any other enactment in which the repealed enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to;

and this Act shall not affect the validity, invalidity, effect or consequences or anything already done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred, or any remedy or proceeding in respect thereof, or any release or discharge of or from any debt, penalty, obligation, liability, claim or demand, or any indemnity already granted, or the proof of any past act or thing;

nor shall this Act affect any principle or rule of law, or established jurisdiction, form or course of pleading, practice or procedure, or existing usage, custom, privilege, restriction, exemption, office or appointment, notwithstanding that the same respectively may have been in any manner affirmed or recognized or derived by, in or from any enactment hereby repealed;

nor shall the repeal by this Act of any enactment revive or restore any jurisdiction, office, custom, liability, right, tittle, privilege, restriction, exemption, usage, practice, procedure or other matter or thing not now existing or any force." (Emphasis added)

14. In view of GG Act, 1895 read with Section 4 of Act, 2017, respondents 1 and 2 have exercised power of resumption. The respondents, in their counter affidavit have placed reliance upon Hajee S.V.M. Mohd. Jamaludeen Bros. & Co. vs. Govt. of T.N., (1997) 3 SCC 466; State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad (1973) 2 SCC 547; Chintamani Ghosh and another vs. State of U.P. and others, 2001 (2) UPLBEC 1003; State of Andhra Pradesh vs. Kaithala Abhishekam, AIR 1964 AP 450; Union of India and others vs. Harish Chand Anand, AIR 1996 SC 203; Smt. Shakira Khatoon Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and others, 2002 (1) AWC 226; Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and others (2012) 7 SCC 278; Anand Kumar Sharma vs. State of U.P. and others, 2014 (2) ADJ 742 and judgment of this Court in Writ Petition No. 62588 of 2010 (M/s Madhu Colonizers Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of U.P. and others) decided on 2.4.2013.

15. A rejoinder affidavit has been filed by petitioners denying all averments made in the counter affidavit which are contrary to pleadings of petitioners in writ petition. Basically averments in rejoinder affidavit are repetition of pleadings of writ petition, hence, we are not dealing with the same but may refer the same at a later stage whenever it is required.

16. Learned counsel for petitioners argued that petitioners are in possession of land in dispute since 1980. No step was taken by State of U.P. or Collector, Allahabad to dispossess petitioners from land in dispute, hence petitioners' possession over land in dispute cannot be said to be wholly illegal. They cannot be treated as mere trespasser. In accordance with policy of freehold, petitioners have also applied for conversion of lease rights into freehold but no decision has been taken thereon and abruptly impugned order has been passed, that too, without any show cause notice to the petitioners or giving opportunity, hence it is wholly illegal and in violation of principles of natural justice. It is also said that resumption, in effect, amounts to acquisition of land and therefore, taking land of petitioners without following procedure prescribed under Act, 2013 is patently illegal. He further submitted that respondents have discriminated petitioners by keeping petitioners' application for conversion of lease rights into freehold pending while in various other matters such conversion has been allowed. Lastly, it is said that resumption on the ground of 'public purpose' i.e. for development of 'Sports Complex' is nothing but illusory and pretext to oust petitioners from land in dispute over which petitioners' residence and commercial establishments are existing, providing shelter and source of earning livelihood, hence petitioners' ouster in such manner violate their fundamental right under Articles 14 and 21 of Constitution of India.

17. Sri Ajit Kumar Singh, learned Additional Advocate General said that petitioners are wholly unauthorised occupants over land in dispute; have no right at all whatsoever; writ petition at the instance of petitioners in respect of land in dispute is not maintainable and deserves to be dismissed for this reason alone. He further reiterated all the conditions and arguments, which have been pleaded in counter affidavit and relied on authorities, which are cited in counter affidavit, which we have noticed above.

18. From rival submissions, issues which, in our view, require to be adjudicated in these writ petitions are :

i. What is "Nazul"?

ii. What is/are Statute(s) governing Crown (later amended as "Government") Grant of land owned by Crown (Government) i.e. Nazul? Its status and effect.

iii. Whether lease right governed by instrument of lease read with GG Act, 1895 is transferrable and if so, whether it is subject to any condition and any transfer made not consistent with such conditions, whether would be valid and confer an actionable right upon Transferree?

iv. What was the status of Lessee after expiry of lease-deed and any subsequent Transferee inducted by such Lessee on the land in respect whereof Grant was executed, whether such person brought in possession before expiry of lease or subsequently, would have any legally enforceable right over such premises?

v. Whether petitioners had right to get land in dispute freehold on mere submission of application form and such right will override right of State for resumption/re-entry on disputed Nazul land?

vi. Whether right of resumption exercised by State in the present case is valid and in accordance with law and is it open to State Government to seek resumption by giving notice to occupant of the land in accordance with terms of lease deed or State is bound to follow procedure of filing suit for eviction or procedure laid down in U.P. Act, 1972?

vii. Whether impugned notice and order of approval of State Government for resumption/re-entry over land in dispute is invalid on account of lack of opportunity to petitioners. In other words, whether principles of natural justice are applicable when State Government chose to exercise right of resumption/re-entry in respect of land owned by it?

19. We have framed above questions in the light of the fact that it is admitted by all the parties that land in dispute is 'Nazul' and owned by State Government.

20. Questions (i) and (ii), in our view, can be taken together hence we proceed to discuss both these questions (i) and (ii) together.

21. Every land owned by State Government is not termed as 'Nazul' and therefore it has become necessary to understand, what is 'Nazul'.

22. State Government may own land by having acquired and vested in various ways, which includes vesting of land in the capacity of a Sovereign body and having right of bona vacantia. Property may also be acquired and owned by State by way of acquisition under the Statute relating to acquisition of land or by purchase through negotiation or gift by an individual or in similar other manner. All such land, which is owned and vested in State Government results in making the State, owner of such land, but in legal parlance, the term "Nazul" is not applicable to all such land.

23. It is only such land which is owned and vested in the State on account of its capacity of Sovereign, and application of right of bona vacantia, which is covered by the term 'Nazul', as the term is known for the last more than one and half century. In Legal Glossary 1992, fifth edition, published by Legal Department of Government of India, at page 589, meaning of the term 'Nazul' has been given as 'Rajbhoomi, i.e., Government land'.

24. Nazul is an Arabic word. It refers to a land annexed to Crown. During British Regime, immoveable property of individuals, Zamindars, Nawabs and Rajas when confiscated for one or the other reason, it was termed as 'Nazul property'. The reason being that neither it was acquired nor purchased after making payment. In old record, when such land was referred in Urdu, this kind of land was shown as 'Jaidad Munzabta'.

25. For dealing with such property, under the authority of Lt. Governor of North Western Provinces, two orders were issued in October, 1846 and October, 1848. Therein, after the words "Nazul property", its english meaning was given as 'Escheats to the Government'. Sadar Board of Revenue on May 20, 1845 issued a circular order in reference to "Nazul land" and in para 2 thereof it mentioned, "The Government is the proprietor of those land and no valid title to them can be derived but from the Government". Nazul land was also termed as "Confiscated Estate". Under Circular dated July 13, 1859, issued by Government of North Western Provinces, every Commissioner was obliged to keep a final confiscation statement of each District and lay it before Government for orders.

26. Right of King to take property by 'escheat' or as 'bona vacantia' was recognized by common law of England. Escheat of property was Lord's right of re-entry on real property held by a tenant, dying intestate, without lawful heirs. It was an incident of Feudal Tenure and based on the want of a tenant to perform Feudal services. On the tenant dying intestate without leaving any lawful heir, his estate came to an end and Lord, by his own right and not by way of succession or inheritance from the tenant, re-entered real property as owner. In most cases, land escheated to Crown as the 'Lord

Paramount', in view of gradual elimination of Intermediate or Mesne lords since 1290 AD. Crown takes as 'bona vacantia' goods in which no one else can claim property. In Dyke v. Walford 5 Moore PC 434= 496-13 ER 557 (580) it was said 'it is the right of the Crown to bona vacantia to property which has no other Owner'. Right of the Crown to take as "bona vacantia" extends to personal property of every kind. The escheat of real property of an intestate dying without heirs was abolished in 1925 and Crown thereafter could not take such property as bona vacantia. The principle of acquisition of property by escheat, i.e., right of Government to take on property by 'escheat' or 'bona vacantia' for want of a rightful owner was enforced in Indian territory during the period of East India Company by virtue of Statute 16 and 17 Victoria, C. 95, section 27.

27. We may recollect, having gone through history, that prior to 1857, several Estates were taken over by British Company i.e. East India Company by way of annexation. Doctrine of lapse applied in Jhansi was another kind of above mentioned two principles.

28. The above provision had continued by virtue of Section 54 of Government of India Act, 1858, section 20(3)(iii) of Government of India Act, 1915 and section 174 of Government of India Act, 1935. After enactment of Constitution of independent India, Article 296 now continues above provision and says:

*'Subject as hereinafter provided, any property in the territory of India which, if this Constitution had not come into operation, would have accrued to His Majesty or, as the case may be, to the Ruler of an Indian State by escheat or lapse, or as bona vacantia for want of a rightful owner, shall if it is property situate in a State, vest in such State, and shall, in any other case, vest in the Union.' (Emphasis added)

29. Article 296, therefore, has retained power of State to get ownership of such land, in respect whereof principle of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' would have been applicable prior to enforcement of Constitution of India. The above power continued to apply after enactment of Constitution with the only modification that if such land is situate within the territory of State Government, it will vest in State and in other cases, it will vest in Union of India. Vesting of land and giving ownership to State Government or Union of India under Article 296 is clearly in respect of a land, which will come to it by way of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' and not by way of acquisition of land under some statute or purchase etc.

30. In Pierce Leslie and Co. Ltd. Vs. Miss Violet Ouchterlony Wapsnare, AIR 1969 SC 843, Court has considered the above principles in the context of 'Sovereign India' as stands under Constitution after independence, and, has observed :

"....in this country the Government takes by escheat immoveable as well as moveable property for want of an heir or successor. In this country escheat is not based on artificial rules of common law and is not an incident of feudal tenure. It is an incident of sovereignty and rests on the principle of ultimate ownership by the State of all property within its jurisdiction".

31. Court placed reliance on Collector of Masulipatam v. C. Vencata Narainapah 8 MIA 500, 525; Ranee Sonet Kowar v. Mirza Himmut Bahadoor (2) LR 3 IA 92, 101, Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. State of Bombay [1958] SCR 1122, 1146, Superintendent and, Legal Remembrancer v. Corporation of Calcutta [1967] 2 SCR 170.

32. Judicial Committee in Cook v. Sprigg (1899) AC 572 while discussing, 'what is an act of State', observed :

"The taking possession by Her Majesty, whether by cession or by any other means by which sovereignty can be acquired, was an act of State."

33. This decision has been followed in Raja Rajinder Chand v. Mst. Sukhi, AIR 1957 SC 286.

34. In Nayak Vajesingji Joravarsingji v. Secretary of State for India in Council AIR 1924 PC 216, Lord Dunedin said :

"When a territory is acquired by a sovereign State for the first time, that is an act of State. It matters not how the acquisition has been brought about. It may be by conquest, it may be by cession following on treaty, it may be by occupation of territory hitherto unoccupied by a recognised ruler. In all cases the result is the same. Any inhabitant of the territory can make good in the municipal courts established by the new sovereign only such rights as that sovereign has, through his officers, recognised. Such rights as he had under the rule of predecessors avail him nothing." (Emphasis added)

35. In Dalmia Dadri Cement Co. Ltd. v. CIT [1958] 34 ITR 514 (SC) : AIR 1958 SC 816, Court said (page 523 of 34 ITR) :

"The expression 'act of State' is, it is scarcely necessary to say, not limited to hostile action between rulers resulting in the occupation of territories. It includes all acquisitions of territory by a sovereign State for the first time, whether it be by conquest or cession."

(Emphasis added)

36. In Promod Chandra Deb v. State of Orissa AIR 1962 SC 1288, Court said, 'Act of State' is the taking over of sovereign powers by a State in respect of territory which was not till then a part of its territory, either by conquest, treaty or cession, or otherwise'.

37. To the same effect was the view taken by a Constitution Bench in Amarsarjit Singh v. State of Punjab AIR 1962 SC 1305, where in para 12, Court said:

"It is settled law that conquest is not the only mode by which one State can acquire sovereignty over the territories belonging to another State, and that the same result can be achieved in any other mode which has the effect of establishing its sovereignty."

38. In Thakur Amar Singhji v. State of Rajasthan AIR 1955 SC 504, in para 40, Court said :

"The status of a person must be either that of a sovereign or a subject. There is no tedium quid. The law does not recognise an intermediate status of a person being partly a sovereign and partly a subject and when once it is admitted that the Bhomicharas had acknowledged the sovereignty of Jodhpur their status can only be that of a subject. A subject might occupy an exalted position and enjoy special privileges, but he is none the less a subject..." (Emphasis added)

39. In State of Rajasthan vs. Sajjanlal Panjawat AIR 1975 SC 706 it was held that Rulers of the erstwhile Indian States exercised sovereign powers, legislative, executive and judicial. Their firmans were laws which could not have been challenged prior to the Constitution. Court relied on earlier decisions in Director of Endowments, Govt. of Hyderabad vs. Akram Ali, AIR 1956 SC 60, and Sarwarlal vs. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1960 SC 862.

40. In Promod Chandra Deb vs. State of Orissa AIR 1962 SC 1288 "act of the State" was explained in the following words :

"an "act of State" may be the taking over of sovereign powers either by conquest or by treaty or by cession or otherwise. It may have happened on a particular date by a public declaration or proclamation, or it may have been the result of a historical process spread over many years, and sovereign powers including the right to legislate in that territory and to administer it may be acquired without the territory itself merging in the new State."

41. This decision has been followed later in Biswambhar Singh vs. State of Orissa 1964 (1) SCJ 364 wherein Court said:

16. Thus, a territory acquired by a sovereign State is an Act of State but the land comprising territory does not become the land owned by State. The land owned by State may come to it in various ways, like confiscation, purchase, escheat or bona vacantia, gift, etc. In such a case the ownership vests in State, like any other individual and State is free to deal with the same in a manner like any other owner may do so.

17. Thus 'Nazul' is a land vested in State for any reason whatsoever that is cession or escheat or bona vacantia, for want of rightful owner or for any other reasons and once land belong to State, it will be difficult to assume that State would acquire its own land. It is per se impermissible to acquire such land by forcible acquisition under Act, 1894, since there is no question of any transfer of ownership from one person to another but here State already own it, hence there is no question of any acquisition.

42. Thus the land in question which is admittedly 'Nazul', belonged to the category as discussed above i.e. it came to be vested and owned by State in its capacity of Sovereign and right of bona vacantia. When acquisition is made under the provisions of a Statute, purpose of acquisition is already known and State pay its price but when land is owned by State, which is Nazul, objective of use of such land is not predetermined but it can be utilized by State for larger public welfare and its benefit, as necessitated from time to time. In other words 'Nazul' land forms the asset owned by State in trust for the people in general who are entitled for its use in the most fair and beneficial manner for their benefit. State cannot be allowed to distribute such largesse by pick and choose or to some selected groups etc.

43. Historical documents, record as also authorities discussed above show that earlier Government i.e. East India Company upto 1858 and thereafter British Government used to allot "Nazul land" to various persons, who had shown their alliance to such Government in various ways, sometimes by deceiving their Indian counter parts who had raised voice against British Rule, or remained faithful to British regime and helped them for their continuation in ruling this country and similar other reasons. Sometimes land was given on lease without any condition and sometimes restricted for certain period etc., but in every cases, lease was given to those persons who were faithful and shown complete alliance to British Rule. The reason was that in respect of Nazul, no predetermined objective was available as was the case in respect of land acquired by State by way of acquisition under Statute of Acquisition after paying compensation or purchase. Such allocation of land by English Rulers used to be called "Grant".

44. In other words, we can say that initially land owned by State used to be allotted in the form of 'Grant' by British Government. No specific statutory provisions were available to govern it. TP Act, 1882 was enacted to govern transfer of immovable property. Sections 10 to 12 of TP Act, 1882 made provisions invalidating with certain exceptions, all conditions for forfeiture of transferred property on alienation by transferee and all limitations over consequence upon such alienation or any insolvency of or attempted alienation by him.

45. Apprehending that above provisions of TP Act, 1882, may be construed as a fetter upon discretion of Crown in creation of inalienable Jagirs in 'Grants', acting upon advice that it would not be competent for Crown to create an inalienable and impartible estate in the land comprised in the Crown Grant, unless such land has heretofore descended by custom as an impartible Raj, it was sought to make a separate statute to give supremacy to the provisions contained in Crown's Grant, notwithstanding any other law including TP Act, 1882. With this object, i.e., 'GG Act 1895' was enacted.

46. Preamble of GG Act, 1895 gives purpose of its enactment stating that doubts have arisen to the extent and operation of TP Act, 1882 and to the power of Crown (later substituted by word "Government") to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers of land made by it or under its authority, hence to remove such doubts, GG Act, 1895 was enacted.

47. Section 2 of GG Act, 1895, as it was initially enacted, read as under :

"Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government grants.- Nothing in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, contained shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein heretoforce made or hereafter to be made by or on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen Empress, Her heirs or successors, or by or on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council to, or in favour of, any person whomsoever; but every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed." (Emphasis added)

48. The above provision was amended in 1937 and 1950. The amended provision read as under :

"2. Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government grants.- Nothing in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, contained shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein heretoforce made or hereafter to be made by or on behalf of the Government to, or in favour of, any person whomsoever; but every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed."

49. Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 read as under :

3. Government grants to take effect according to their tenor.- All provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations over contained in any such grant or transfer as aforesaid shall be valid and the effect according to their tenor, any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary notwithstanding."

50. In State of Uttar Pradesh, vide Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960 (U.P. Act No.XIII of 1960), Sections 2 and 3 of GG Act, 1895, were substituted by Section 2, as under :

"2. (1) Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government Grants.- Nothing contained in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein, heretoforce made or hereafter to be made, by or on behalf of the Government to or in favour of any person whomsoever; and every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed."

(2) U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 not to affect certain leases made by or on behalf of the Government.- Nothing contained in the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1938, or the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926, shall affect, or be deemed to have ever affected any rights, created, conferred or granted, whether before or after the date of the passing of the Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960, by leases of land by, or on behalf of, the Government in favour of any person; and every such creation, conferment or grant shall be construed and take effect, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939, or the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926.

(3) Certain leases made by or on behalf of the Government to take effect according to their tenor.- All provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such creation, conferment or grant referred to in Section 2, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor, any decree or direction of a court of law or any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature, to the contrary notwithstanding :

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent, or be deemed ever to have prevented, the effect of any enactment relating to the acquisition of property, land reforms or the imposition of ceiling on agricultural land." (Emphasis added)

51. A perusal of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 shows two things :

i. A declaration is made that any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein, made by or on behalf of Government, in favour of any person, on and after enactment of GG Act, 1895, would not be governed by provisions of TP Act, 1882 i.e. nothing contained in TP Act, 1882 shall apply to such Grant, transfer or interest.

ii. A clarification that a Grant or Transfer, referred to in Section 2, when is to be construed and given effect, it shall be done in such manner and by treating as if TP Act, 1882 has not been passed.

52. Thus, GG Act, 1895, in fact, was a declaratory statute. First declaration is in respect of Grant or transfer of land or creation of any interest, as the case may be, to exclude TP Act, 1882 for all purposes. Second part of Section 2 clarified that while construing and giving effect to a Grant or Transfer, referred to in Section 2, it will be presumed that TP Act, 1882 has not been passed at all.

53. In Section 2(1) of GG Act, 1895, as amended in Uttar Pradesh, we do not find any distinction vis a vis what has been said in Section 2 of GG Act, 1895. There is an addition in GG Act, 1895 in its application to Uttar Pradesh, by inserting sub-section (2) in Section 2, a provision in respect of U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 also, making a similar declaration, as made in sub section (1) in respect of TP Act, 1882.

54. Sub-section (3) of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 protect certain leases, already made, declaring same to be valid in the light of insertion of sub-section(1) of Section 2 in the State of Uttar Pradesh and that is why, notwithstanding any decree or direction of Court of law, leases already made, were validated, which otherwise might have been affected by U.P. Tenancy Act, 1938 or Agra Tenancy Act, 1926.

55. Proviso to sub-section (3) of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 further declare that Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 will have no effect when land is sought to be acquired under the provisions of Statute relating to acquisition or for giving effect to a Statute relating to land reforms or imposition of ceiling on agricultural land.

56. Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 is not available in State of U.P. after U.P. Amendment Act, 1960 since Sections 2 and 3 of Principal Act virtually got amalgamated in the form of Section 2, by Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960. However, intent, effect and declaration by legislature is almost pari materia with the only addition that in State of U.P., U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 are also excluded in the same manner as was done in respect of TP Act, 1882.

57. Sections 2 and 3 of GG Act, 1895 were considered in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad, 1973(2) SCC 547 and in para 16, Court said :

"Section 3 of the Government Grants Act declares the unfettered discretion of the Government to impose such conditions and limitations as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of the land be. The meaning of Sections 2 and 3 of the Government Grants is that the scope of that Act is not limited to affecting the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act only. The Government has unfettered discretion to impose any conditions, limitations, or restrictions in its grants, and the right, privileges and obligations of the grantee would be regulated according to the terms of the grant, notwithstanding any provisions of any statutory or common law."

58. Again in Hajee S.V.M. Mohamed Jamaludeen Bros. & Co. vs. Government of Tamil Nadu (1997) 3 SCC 466, Court said that combined effect of two sections of GG Act, 1895 is that terms of any Grant or terms of any transfer of land made by a Government would stand insulated from tentacles of any statutory law. Section 3 places terms of such Grant beyond reach of any restrictive provision contained in any enacted law or even equitable principles of justice, equity and good conscience adumbrated by common law, if such principles are inconsistent with such terms. Court said :

"The two provisions are so framed as to confer unfettered discretion on the government to enforce any condition or limitation or restriction in all types of grants made by the government to any person. In other words, the rights, privileges and obligations of any grantee of the government would be completely regulated by the terms of the grant, even if such terms are inconsistent with the provisions of any other law."

59. In Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and Another (2012) 7 SCC 278 observations made in para 16 in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad (supra) have been reproduced and followed.

60. In State of U.P. and others vs. United Bank of India and others (2016) 2 SCC 757, in para 30 of the judgment, Court said :

"Indisputably, the lease of nazul land is governed by the Government Grants Act, 1895. Sections 2 and 3 of the Government Grants Act, 1895 very specifically provide that the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act do not apply to government lands ....." (Emphasis added)

61. Thus, a 'Grant' of a Nazul will be governed by terms and conditions contained in the instrument/deed of Grant, wholly unaffected by any Statute providing otherwise. It cannot be doubted that the lease granted in the case in hand is/was a 'Grant' governed by GG Act, 1895. Broadly, 'Grant' includes 'lease'.

62. The term "Grant" has not been defined in GG Act, 1895. What a 'Grant' would mean is of importance for the reason that GG Act, 1895 has used the term "Grant". Therefore, it has to be seen "whether a lease executed by State in respect of land owned by it and covered by the term "Nazul", through a lease deed or instrument of lease or indenture of lease, whatever the term used, will constitute a "Grant" of State or it is something else.

63. In Black's Law Dictionary, Eighth Edition, at page 719, the word "Grant" has been defined as under :

"Grant, n. 1. An agreement that creates a right of any description other than the one held by the grantor. Examples include leases, easements, charges, patents, franchises, powers,and licenses. 2. The formal transfer of real property. 3. The document by which a transfer is effectd; esp., DEED. 4. The property or property right so transferred."

64. Interestingly, in Black's Law Dictionary, 'Grant' has been said to be of various kinds and it has enumerated seven types of 'Grant' as under:

"Community grant. A grant of real property made by a government (or sometimes by an individual) for communal use, to be held in common with no right to sell. A community grant may set out specific, communal uses for the property, such as for grazing animals or a playground. Cf. Private grant.

imperfect grant. 1. A grant that requires the grantee to do something before the title passes to another. Cf. Perfect grant. 2. A grant that does not convey all rights and complete title against both private persons and government, so that the granting person or political authority may later disavow the grant. See Paschal v. Perex, 7 Tex. 368 (1851).*

inclusive grant. A deed or grant that describes the boundaries of the land conveyed and excepts certain parcels within those boundaries from the conveyance, usu. Because those parcels of land are owned or claimed by others.- Also termed inclusive deed.*

office grant. A grant made by a legal officer because the owner is either unwilling or unable to execute a deed to pass title, as in the case of a tax deed. See tax deed under DEED.*

Perfect grant. A grant for which the grantor has done everything required to pass a complete title, and the grantee has done everything required to receive and enjoy the property in fee. Cf. Imperfect grant* private grant. A grant of real property made to an individual for his or her private use, including the right to sell it. Private grants made by a government are often found in the chains of title for land outside the original 13 states, esp. in former Spanish and Maxican possession."*

65. In Corpus Juris Secundum, A Complete Restatement of the Entire American Law, as developed by All Reported Cases, Volume XXXVIII, word "Grant" has been defined at page 1066-1070, as under :

"Grant - In General - A word which has a peculiar and appropriate meaning in the law, and is to be construed and understood according to such meaning; but its signification, in particular cases is to be determined from its connection and the manner of its use.

As a Noun

In General. The act of granting; a bestowing or conferring; a boon, a concession, a gift; also the thing granted or bestowed. As applied to grants by public authority, the word "grant" implies the conferring by the sovereign power of some valuable privilege, franchise, or other right of like character on a corporation, person, or class of persons; an act evidenced by letters patent under the great seal, granting something from the king to a subject. In a somewhat different sense, an admission of something as true.

As a Contract. A grant is said to be a contract executed, that is, one in which the object of the contract is performed. Ordinarily, the essential elements of a contract are necessary to constitute a grant, such as competent parties and a subject matter, a legal consideration, a mutuality of agreement and of obligation. As in the case of other contracts in writing, it ordinarily comprehends something more than the mere execution of the instrument; it includes a delivery of it. It is not indispensable, however, that technical words be used.

Transfer of Property. As a technical term, originally used to signify a conveyance of an incorporeal hereditament whereof livery could be had, but now of far more extended application, see Deeds (1 c notes 54 - 63). While the term is commonly used to denote private conveyances, it has been characterized as a nomen generalissimum, applicable to all sorts of conveyances, and in this sense has been defined as a transfer of property, real or personal, by deed or writing. The following notes contain examples of what, under particular circumstances and according to the subject matter and the context, the term may be applied to, or be held to include or what the term may be held not to include.

Transferring property. An operative word of transfer, technically applicable to real estate, although not necessarily so. It is made use of in deeds of conveyance of lands to import a transfer; and in this application has been defined as meaning to convey; to make conveyance of; to transfer property by an instrument in writing.

As used in a will, to devise or to bequeath."

66. In Words and Phrases, Permanent Edition, Volume 18A Gone-Gyrotiller, word "Grant" has been defined at page 379, as under :

To grant means to give over, to make conveyance of, to give the possession or title to, to convey-usually in answer to petitioner; to confer or bestow, with or without compensation, particularly in answer to prayer or request; to admit as true when disputed or not satisfactorily proved; to yield belief to; to allow; to yield; to concede. Grant is usually regarded as synonymous with give, confer, bestow, convey, transfer, admit, allow, concede. As a noun, the term signifies: (1) The act of granting; a bestowing or conferring; concession; admission of something as true. (2) The thing granted or bestowed; a gift; a boon. (3) a transfer of property by deed or writing, especially an appropriation or conveyance made by the government, as a grant of land."

67. In Jowitts Dictionary of English Law, Second Edition by John Burke (Volume 1), word "Grant" has been defined at page 870, as under:

"Grant :a common law conveyance.

The sovereign's grants are matters of record, and are either letters patent or writs close.

"Grant" is the term commonly applied to rights created or transferred by the Crown, e.g., grants of pensions, patents, charters, franchises. It is also used in reference to public money devoted to special purposes. See Exchequer Grants."

68. In Biswas Encyclopedic Law Dictionary (Legal & Commercial) Third Edition 2008, word "Grant" has been defined at page 737, as under :

"GRANT. The act of granting; something granted, especially a gift for a particular purpose; a transfer of property by deed or writing; the instrument by which such a transfer is made; also the property so transferred.

69. In P Ramanatha Aiyar's "The Law Lexicon", Fourth Edition 2017, word "Grant" has been defined at page 762-763, as under :

An operative word of conveyance, particularly appropriate to deeds of grant, properly so called, but used in other conveyances also, such as deeds of bargain and sale, and leases.

"This word is taken largely where any thing is granted or passed from one to another, and in this sense it doth comprehend feofments, bargains and sales, gifts, leases, charges, and the like; for he that doth give, or sell, doth grant also and thus it is sometimes in writing or by deed, and sometimes it is by word without writing. But the word being taken more strictly and properly, it is the grant, conveyance, or gift, by writing of such an Incorporeal thing as lieth in grant, and not in livery, and cannot be given or granted by word only without deed, or it is the grant by such persons as cannot pass anything from them but by deed, as the King, bodies corporate, &c. And this albeit it may be made by other most proper to this purpose"

The word "grant" in sec. 5 connotes transfer of property and mining leases are property. Biswanath Prasad v. Union of India, AIR 1965 SC 821, 825. [Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Developments) Act (67 of 1957), S. 5(1)]

The expression "grant" is wide enough to take within its sweep a grant by the government to the Girasdar and is not limited to a grant by the Girasdar to the tenant. Digvijaysingh Ji v. Manji Savda, AIR 1969 SC 370, 372. [Saurashtra Land Reforms Act (25 of 1951), S. 18]

"GRANT, BESTOW, CONFER. Honours, distinctions, favours, privileges are conferred. Goods, gifts, endowments are bestowed. Requests, prayers, privileges, favours, gifts, allowances, opportunities are granted. A peculiar sense attaches to the word Grant as a legal term, as a piece of land granted to a noble or religious house. So Blackstone speaks of "the transfer of property by sale, grant, or conveyance." (Smith. Syn. Dis.)"

70. Under Indian Easements Act, 1882, (hereinafter referred to as "IE Act, 1882"), definition of "licence" in Section 52 says that it is the Grant of a right made by Grantor. Sections 53 and 54 of IE Act, 1882 also refer to grant of licence. Thus, without a "Grant" in general sense, a licence cannot be created. This is how definition of "licence" under IE Act, 1882 vis a vis the term "Grant" was considered in Hajee S.V.M. Mohamed Jamaludeen Bros. & Co. (supra). Court also said that though the term "Grant" is not defined in GG Act, 1895, but it is quite evident that this word has been used in GG Act, 1895 in its ethnological sense and therefore, it should get its widest import.

71. In Mohsin Ali vs. State of M.P. AIR 1975 SC 1518, Court said :

"in the widest sense 'grant' may comprehend everything that is granted or passed from one to another by deed. But commonly the term is applied to rights created or transferred by the Crown e.g. grants of pensions, patents, charters, franchise."

72. Court in Hajee S.V.M. Mohamed Jamaludeen Bros. & Co. (supra), in para 16, said that word "Grant" used in GG Act, 1895 could envelop within it, everything granted by the government to any person. A licence obtained by a person by virtue of agreement would also fall within the ambit of "Grant" envisaged in GG Act, 1895.

73. In Pradeep Oil Corporation vs. Municipal Corporation of Delhi and others (2011) 5 SCC 270, Court said that GG Act, 1895 is a special Statute and will prevail over general Statute i.e. TP Act, 1882. It says:

"In the present case grant has been made by the President of India in terms of Section 2 of the Government Grants Act, 1895 and the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 may have little bearing in the instant case. The former, i.e. the Government Grants Act, 1895 being a special statute would prevail over the general statute, i.e. the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. Accordingly, the rights and obligations of the parties would be governed by the terms of the provisions of Government Grants Act, 1895 whereunder the Government is entitled to impose limitations and restrictions upon the grants and other transfer made by it or under its authority." (Emphasis added)

74. Therefore, where 'Nazul' is let out to a person by Government under agreement of lease i.e. Grant, it is governed by GG Act, 1895 and rights of parties therefore have to be seen in the light of stipulations contained in the document of 'Grant'. 'Grant' includes a property transferred on lease though in some cases, 'Grant' may result in wider interest i.e. transfer of title etc. Whatever may be nature of document of transfer i.e. instrument of 'Grant', the fact remains that terms and conditions of 'Grant' shall be governed by such document and it shall prevail over any other law including TP Act 1882. One cannot take resort to TP Act, 1882 to wriggle out of any condition or limitation etc. imposed in terms of document of 'Grant'.

75. In State of Uttar Pradesh, management of 'Nazul', in absence of statutory provisions, is governed by various administrative orders compiled in a Manual called "Nazul Manual". Here Government has made provisions of management of 'Nazul' through its own authorities namely District Magistrate or Commissioner, or, in some cases, through local bodies.

76. Nature of orders compiled in "Nazul Manual" in the context of 'Nazul' has been considered in State of U.P. vs. United Bank of India (supra) where Court has said that land and building in question is "Nazul" being property of Government, maintained by State authorities in accordance with 'Nazul Rules' but not administered as a 'State property'. Court has also observed that lease of "Nazul" land is governed in accordance with GG Act, 1895. Sections 2 and 3 thereto very specifically provide that provisions of TP Act, 1882 do not apply to Government land. Section 3 says that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such 'Grant' or 'Transfer', as aforesaid, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor, any rule of law, statute or enactment of Legislature to the contrary, notwithstanding. Thus the stipulations in "lease deed" shall prevail and govern entire relation of State Government and lessee notwithstanding any statute providing otherwise.

77. Superiority of stipulations of Grant to deal with relation between Grantor and Grantee has been reinforced in Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others (Supra). Therein dispute related to Plot No. 59, Civil Station, Allahabad, area 1 acre and 4272 sq. yard, i.e., 9112 sq. yard or 7618 sq. meter. Initially a lease deed was executed on 11.01.1868 by Secretary of State for India in Council in favour of one, Thomas Crowby, for a period of 50 years and it was signed by Commissioner, Allahabad Division on behalf of Secretary of State for India in Council. After expiry of lease, a fresh lease was executed for another period of 50 years on 12.04.1923 w.e.f. 01.01.1918. Lease holder with permission of Collector, Allahabad transferred lease rights to Purshottam Das in 1945. The legal heirs of Sri Purshottam Das, on 31.10.1958, transferred leasehold rights in favour of Smt. Shakira Khatoon Kazmi, Smt. Sabira Khatoon Kazmi and Smt. Maimoona Khatoon Kazmi. After the death of Smt. Maimoona Khatoon Kazmi, her legal heirs, namely, Azim Ahmad Kazmi, Omar Ahmad Kazmi, Shamim Ahmad Kazmi, Alim Ahmad Kazmi and Maaz Ahmad Kazmi also claimed lease rights by succession. Lease granted on 12.04.1923 w.e.f. 01.01.1918 expired on 31.12.1967. It was renewed on 19.03.1996 for a period of 30 years w.e.f. 01.01.1968 which period expired on 31.12.1997. Again on 17.07.1998 it was renewed for a further period of 30 years w.e.f. 01.01.1998. While lease was continuing, vide G.O. dated 15.12.2000, right of resumption was exercised by State Government. It directed resumption of possession of plot in question and lease deed was cancelled. District Magistrate, Allahabad served a notice dated 11.01.2001 to lease holders intimating them that State Government's order dated 15.12.2000 has cancelled lease and resumed possession of land in question as the same was required for public purpose. Notice also directed lease holders to remove structures standing on plot, failing which possession would be taken in accordance with Clause 3(c) of lease deed. Lease holders filed objections against notice to District Magistrate and also stated that they have sent representation/ objection to Chief Minister praying for revocation of G.O. dated 15.12.2000. District Magistrate passed order on 24.08.2001 rejecting objection of lease holders and sent a cheque of Rs. 10 lacs representing compensation for the building standing over plot. State authorities claimed that they took possession of open land on 01.09.2001. Lease holders filed writ petition which was dismissed vide judgment dated 07.12.2001, Shakira Khatoon Kazmi vs. State of U.P., AIR 2002 All 101. Lease holders challenged judgment dated 07.12.2001 in Supreme Court to the extent they failed. State Government filed appeal against part of order of this Court, wherein an observation was made that State Government is not entitled to take forcible possession though it may take possession of demised premises in accordance with procedure established by law. After considering Clause 3(c) of lease deed which provides for resumption of land for public purpose, after giving a month's clear notice to lessee to remove any building standing at the time on demised premises and within two months of receipt of notice to take possession thereof, on expiry of that period. Court said that Clause 3(c) of lease deed confers power upon State Government that plot in question, if required by State Government for its own purpose or for any public purpose, it shall have right to give one month's notice in writing to lessees to remove any building standing on the plot and to take possession thereof on expiry of two months from the date of service of notice. Court said that land, if required for any public purpose, State Government has absolute power to resume leased property and under the terms of Grant it is absolute, therefore, order of resumption is perfectly valid and cannot be said to be illegal. It also refers to an earlier instance where Nazul Plot No. 13, Civil Station, Allahabad situate in Civil Lines area was resumed by State Government for the purpose of construction of a 'Bus Stand' by exercising similar power, without initiating any proceeding under Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as "LA Act, 1894"). Resumption in that case was also challenged in Writ Petition No. 44517 of 1998, Sayed Shah Khursheed Ahmad Kashmi vs. State of U.P. and said writ petition was dismissed on 16.12.1999 by a Division Bench of this Court, whereagainst Special Leave Petition No. 4329 of 2000 was dismissed by Supreme Court on 07.09.2001. First question, therefore, was answered in negative and in favour of Government.

78. With respect to procedure for taking possession, Supreme Court, while considering Question-2, said that in absence of any specific law, State Government may take possession by filing a suit. When a land is acquired under LA Act, 1894, Government can take possession in accordance with provisions of said Act and in case of urgency, Collector can take possession after publication of notice under Section 9 and no separate procedure is required to be followed. Court said that similarly where a lease has been granted under the terms of GG Act, 1895, then what procedure has to be followed is provided by Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 which says that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such creation, conferment or Grant referred to in Section 2, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor; any decree or direction of a Court of Law or any rule of law, statute or enactments of the Legislature, to the contrary, notwithstanding it relied on its earlier judgment in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad, 1973(2) SCC 547 holding that Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 declares unfettered discretion of Government to impose such conditions and limitation as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of land be. Then Court construing

Clause 3(C) of lease deed said that it provides procedure for taking possession of demised premises when State Government re-enter or resume possession of demised land. Court in para 30 and 32 of judgment, said:

"30. In the case of The State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad and Another, 1973(2) SCC 547, this Court held that the Section 3 of the Act declares the unfettered discretion of the Government to impose such conditions and limitation as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of land be. From Clause 3(C) of the deed, it is clear that the State of U.P. while granting lease made it clear that if the demised premises are at any time required by the lessor for his or for any public purpose, he shall have the right to give one month's clear notice to the lessee to remove any building standing at the time of the demised property and within two months' of the receipt of the notice to take possession thereof on the expiry of that period subject to the condition that the lessor is willing to purchase the property on the demised premises, the lessee shall be paid for such amount as may be determined by the Secretary to the Government of U.P. in the Nagar Awas Department."

"32. Under Clause 3(C) of the lease deed, the respondent-State was permitted resumption of the land which required for its own use or for public purpose and after giving one month's clear notice in writing is entitled to remove any building standing at the time on the demised premises and within two months of the receipt of the notice to take possession thereof subject to the condition that if the lessor is willing to purchase the building of the demised premises required to pay the lessee the amount for such building as may be determined by the Secretary to Government of U.P. in the Nagar Awas Department...." (Emphasis added)

79. Having said so, Court said :

"we are of the view that there is no other procedure or law required to be followed, as a special procedure for resumption of land has been laid down under the lease deed".

80. Supreme Court then set aside direction of this Court that State will not take possession forcibly except in accordance with procedure established by any other law by holding that since special procedure for resumption is prescribed under lease deed, no direction otherwise could have been issued to State Government.

81. The above discussion makes it clear that 'Nazul' is a land owned and vested in State. It is such land which has vested in State by virtue of its 'Sovereignty' and incidence of 'Sovereignty' i.e. annexation, lapse and bona vacantia. Further, 'Grant' means transfer of property by a deed in writing and includes within its ambit, an instrument of lease/lease deed. Such 'Grant' is governed by provision of GG Act, 1895, which were applicable to 'Grants' executed on and after enforcement of GG Act, 1895 and rights and entitlement of private parties in respect of land, which was transferred to such person under such 'Grant' would be governed by terms and conditions contained in such 'Grant' and not by provisions of TP Act, 1882 or any other Statute. Moreover, in State of U.P., wherever applicable, U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 will also be inapplicable to such 'Grant'. For the purpose of resumption/ re-entry of land, State Government can follow procedure prescribed in the terms of lease as it is a special procedure for such purpose and it is not necessary to look into any other procedure prescribed in law.

82. We, therefore, answer questions (i) and (ii) accordingly.

83. The answer to questions (i) and (ii), in effect, gives answer to question (iii) and (iv) also, inasmuch as, Grantee cannot transfer property, which was transferred to it by way of 'Grant' except the manner in which it is permitted by such 'Grant'. Any transfer otherwise will be illegal and would not confer any right upon Transferree.

84. Here, we remind ourselves with the principle that a person can transfer only such rights and interest which he or she possesses and not beyond that. If a person did not possess any right of transfer or such right is subject to any restriction like prior permission of owner etc., it means that such person has no right of transfer and/or his right is restricted in a particular manner and such restriction is to be observed in words and spirit to validate such transfer, else the transfer shall be illegal and will not result in bestowing any legal right upon Transferee. In other words, any otherwise transfer by such person of land subjected to Grant, will not confer any valid right or interest upon the person to whom property under 'Grant' is transferred in violation of stipulations contained in Grant.

85. In Delhi Development Authority Vs. Anant Raj Agencies Pvt. Ltd. (2016) 11 SCC 406 Court said :

"It is well settled position of law that the person having no right, title or interest in the property cannot transfer the same by way of sale deed."

86. In State of U.P. and others vs. United Bank of India and others (supra) considering a similar situation, Court held that any transfer without sanction of lessor will be invalid. In paras 39 and 40 of the judgment Court said as under :

39. This "within written lease" is the original lease deed as mentioned in the Form 2 of the Nazul Manual. Form 2 of lease of Nazul land for building purposes it is one of the condition between the lessor and the lessee that " the lessee will not in any way transfer or sublet the demised premises or buildings erected thereon without the previous sanction in writing of the lessor".

*40. In the present case there was nothing on the record to show that the lessee i.e. (ABP) has obtained any written sanction from the lessor i.e. Government before mortgaging his leasehold interest in the Nazul Land. Meaning thereby the mortgage done by the lessee in favour of the Bank itself is bad in law, which was done in clear violation of the terms of the lease deed i.e. mortgage of the Nazul land without previous sanction in writing of the State."

87. Further, any such invalid transfer can also be construed as breach of terms of Grant and would empower and enable principal Grantor i.e. State, owner of property, to take such steps including resumption/re-entry to the property under Grant, to itself, besides claiming damages, compensation, as the case may be, and law permits.

88. Applying above principles to the facts of present writ petition, we find that last lease-deed was executed on 18.6.1912 with effect from 02.4.1912 for a period of 50 years, in favour of Evelyn Constance Trisham. Hence, original Lessee was Sri Trisham. He let out leased land to Sri Vishun Nath. When it was let out, is not stated in writ petition but in para 7 of writ petition, it is said that it was more than 60 years back. Whether said transfer was made after complying terms and conditions of lease-deed and procedure stated therein or not, also cannot be ascertained since nothing has been said in this regard by either of the parties. However, it has been placed on record that name of Vishun Nath was mutated in Nazul record in register No.165/169 at serial No.025 at page no. 7 (file no. 341) of Register Book No.1, maintained by Collector, Allahabad, in respect of Nazul land. Thus, we can assume that Sri Trisham may have transferred lease right to Vishun Nath after complying provisions contained in lease-deed i.e. with the permission of Collector.

89. Conditions imposing restriction upon transfer of disputed Nazul land is contained in following clauses of lease-deed :

(i) "PROVIDED FURTHER and it is hereby agreed that the said Lessee, her Executors, Administrators and Assigns, shall not assign or underlet or otherwise part with the possession of the said premises or any part thereof without the permission of the said Secretary of State his Successors or Assigns (which permission may be signified by the said Collector or by such other person as the Government of the North-Western Provinces or the said Secretary of State may appoint in that behalf) for that express purpose had and obtained."

(ii) "PROVIDED ALWAYS that if the said Lessee her Executors, Administrators or Assigns shall Assign or transfer these presents, or the lease or term hereby granted or created, or the unexpired portion of the said term, or shall underlet the said premises or any part thereof with such permission as aforesaid unto any other person or persons of whom the said Collector shall approve, and if such person or persons shall engage and bind themselves to observe all the conditions, agreements and provisions of these presents in respect of such portion of the said term or of the said premises as shall have been so assigned or underlet to him as aforesaid and shall procure such assignments or sublease to be registered in such manner as shall be appointed by the said Secretary of State for purpose of registering lease and other instruments of or relating to lands situate within the local limits of Allahabad (and for the registry of which assignments or sublesses a fee of not more than Rs. 16 shall be paid by the person of persons tendering such assignment or sublease for registry) then and otherwise the liability of the said lessee her Heirs, Executors, Administrators, for the purpose or subsequent observance and performance of the covenants on the leases part herein contained, so far as relates to the portion of the said term or of the said premises so assigned or underlet as aforesaid, but not further or otherwise, shall cause and determine, but without prejudice however to the right of section of the Secretary of State his Successors or Assigns in respect or on account of any previous breach of any covenant or covenants herein contained.

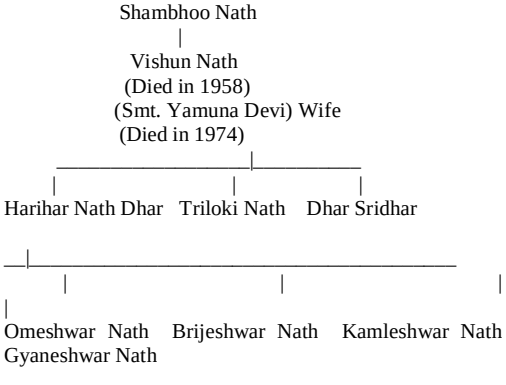
90. Without permission, therefore, no right and interest in respect of disputed Nazul land, whether entire or part thereof, could have been transferred. For the present case, however, we may assume that Sri Vishun Nath was transferred such lease rights in compliance of requirement of lease-deed for remaining period. That is how, his name was entered into Nazul Register. The fact remains that lease expired on 01.04.1962. It is also evident that Sri Vishun Nath died in 1958, therefore, whatever lease rights for balance period, he had, same would have been succeeded by his legal heirs for remaining period only. Family tree of Vishun Nath, as evident from record is as under :



91. Legal heirs of Vishun Nath could not have succeeded any right, larger and more than what Vishun Nath himself had on transfer from original Lessee i.e. E.C.Trisham. The said lease rights were only for a period upto 1st April, 1962.

92. It is admitted position that lease has never been extended thereafter. Induction of petitioners by legal heirs of Vishun Nath i.e. Harihar Nath Dhar, even if he acted as a Karta of family after death of Vishun Nath, was wholly unauthorised and illegal, inasmuch as, neither he had any such power of transfer after 1st April, 1962 nor any transfer of right and/or interest in land in question, whether in respect of entire land or part thereof, could have been made without permission of Collector, which admittedly was not taken in the case in hand.

93. A perusal of lease deed also shows that no construction could have been raised on land in dispute unless permitted by Lessor i.e. owner of land i.e. State Government or Collector. There is neither any pleading nor any material on record to show that alleged transfer of disputed land to petitioners in 1980 was with the permission of Collector or State Government and/or construction raised by petitioners over land in dispute was after permission and/or sanction of Collector, Allahabad or State Government. Thus transfer of disputed land and construction raised by petitioners over such land all are/were wholly illegal and unauthorised. It would not confer even an iota of actionable interest or right in petitioners to take recourse to legal action for protection of their illegal and unauthorised possession as well as structure raised on land in dispute.

94. We also find that this aspect is covered by a recent judgment of Supreme Court in State of U.P. and others vs. United Bank of India and others (2016) 2 SCC 757 wherein Court in similar circumstances, where transfer without sanction of Lessor was made, held illegal and void. We have already referred paras 39 and 40 of this judgment above.

95. In view thereof, we have no hesitation in holding that petitioners never entered into possession of disputed land validly and transfer to them by Harihar Nath Dhar was wholly illegal, unauthorised and without having any legal consequence. It did not create any right or interest in petitioners over land in dispute. In fact, Harihar Nath Dhar himself was not having right or interest over land in dispute after lease expired on 01.04.1962. Neither land was owned by Harihar Nath Dhar nor he had legal right after 01.04.1962 therefore, he could not have transferred anything to petitioners in 1980 or 1988 when he himself did not possess any right or interest over land in dispute at that point of time.

96. Questions (iii) and (iv) therefore are answered accordingly against petitioners.

97. Now, we shall deal with questions (v) and (vi) together.

98. These questions again have to be considered in the light of stipulations contained in 'Grant'. If the 'Grant' itself did not contemplate any continuance of 'Grantee' over land subjected to 'Grant' and requires Grantee to hand over or surrender possession on expiry of period of 'Grant', Grantee is obliged to do so and mere fact that he/she had continued in possession over land subjected to 'Grant', will not confer any legal status upon him/her or legality to such possession after expiry of period of Grant.

99. If a person has lawfully entered a premises as a valid Lessee but continued in possession over such land after expiry of period of lease or after determination of lease by Lessor in terms of stipulations in lease, status of Lessee becomes that of 'Tenant at sufference'. Supreme Court said that even a quit notice under Section 106 of TP Act, 1882 is not required to be given to such occupant.

100. Relying on earlier decision in R.V. Bhupal Prasad vs. State of A.P. (1995) 5 SCC 698 in a recent decision in Sevoke Properties Ltd. vs. West Bengal State Electricity Distribution Company Ltd. AIR 2019 SC 2664, Court held that once it is admitted by Lessee that term of lease has expired, lease stood determined by efflux of time and in such case, a quit notice under Section 106 is not required to be given. Court has said as under :

"Once the lease stood determined by efflux of time, there was no necessity for a notice of termination Under Section 106."

(Emphais added)

101. In the above authority, Court held that after expiry of period of lease, status of Lessee becomes that of 'Tenant at sufferance'. 'Tenant at sufference' is one who comes into possession of land by lawful title, but who holds it by wrong after termination of term or expiry of lease by efflux of time. The tenant at sufferance is one who wrongfully continues in possession after extinction of a lawful title. There is little difference between him and a trespasser. Quoting from Mulla's Transfer of Property Act (7th Edn.) at page 633, Court observed that tenancy at sufferance is merely a fiction to avoid continuance in possession operating as a trespass. It has been described as the least and lowest interest which can subsist in reality. It, therefore, cannot be created by contract and arises only by implication of law when a person who has been in possession under a lawful title continues in possession after that title has been determined, without consent of person entitled. A "tenancy at sufferance" does not create relationship of landlord and tenant. Court further quoted from page 769 of Mulla's transfer of Property Act (7th Edition), that act of holding over after expiration of term does not necessarily create a tenancy of any kind. If lessee remains in possession after determination of term, the common law Rule is that he is a tenant at sufferance.

102. Lot of argument at this stage has been made that despite expiry of lease right on 30.9.1986, since Lessee(s) did not hand over possession of 'disputed Nazul land' and State Government and its authorities did not take any action for taking possession of land in dispute, therefore, petitioners' possession had implied sanction of Lessor. However, no law in support of above proposition has been placed before us. When lease deed itself contemplate sanction, it is actual and not fictional. Petitioners, however, relied on the decision in Purushottam Dass Tandon and others vs. State of U.P. & Ors. AIR 1987 All. 56, to claim right of renewal of lease. The decision deals with various G.Os. issued for renewal of lease.

103. With regard to renewal of lease, Government circulated its policy through various G.Os. The first G.O. was issued in March, 1958 whereby Chief Minister directed that case for renewal of leases may be taken individually and possession may be taken only if lessee surrender or lease stood terminated in absence of any request from lessee for grant of fresh lease. Thereafter, on 23.04.1959, a G.O. was issued to grant fresh lease in cases where lease has already expired but has not been renewed so far, or which is likely to expire within the next 5 or 6 years, on the terms and conditions given in the said G.O. The proposed premium in the said G.O. was objected by Lease Holders, whose leases were already expired or likely to expire. Several representations were sent to Government. Some house-owners met the then Prime Minister Late Pt. Jawahar Lal Nehru, who had visited Allahabad in November or December, 1959. It resulted in issue of G.O. dated 07.07.1960 whereby rate of premium on first three acres was reduced to Rs.2,000/- in each slab. It also permitted payment of premium in five instalments and reduced ground rent to Rs.100/- per acre. In the earlier G.O., there was an insistence on construction of Community latrines till sewer lines were laid but this insistence was given up in G.O. dated 07.07.1960. Lessees were granted further three months' time to get leases renewed. Still lease-holders did not comply and made representations to Government. On 21.03.1963, again a G.O. was issued declaring rates of premium for commercial sites. On 3.12.1965 a G.O. was issued indicating terms and conditions for renewal of leases for commercial and residential purposes and it was said that rates of premium and annual rent shall be as fixed by G.O. dated 07.07.1960. Payment in five equal yearly instalments was continued but in special cases, Commissioner, Allahabad Division, Allahabad, was authorized to make recommendations to Government for enhancing number of instalments. This G.O. further insisted for renewal of existing leases on payment of at least one instalment, within one month of receipt of intimation by Lessee from Collector, or within three months of the date of expiry of lease, whichever is earlier. Deposit was to be deemed to be proper step on the part of Lessee to get a fresh lease executed by the Lessor. The G.O. of 1965 itself made a distinction between those whose leases had expired and others by describing them as sitting and existing lessees.

104. There was a second phase which covered period from 1966 to 1981. On 16.02.1966, U.P. Awas Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P.Act, 1965") was enacted for providing housing sites and construction of building. G.O. dated 03.12.1965, thus was modified by G.O. dated 04.11.1968, and it was directed that leases of joint lessees should be renewed as far as possible for one acre only. Sub-division was permitted only where sub-divided plot was not less than 800 sq. yards. Concession in payment of lease money and ground rent was allowed on same terms and conditions as it was in G.O. dated 03.12.1965 but time was extended for payment of first instalment for those who had not received any intimation from Collector by a further period of one month from the date of intimation by Collector. Clause (c) of G.O. dated 04.11.1968 categorically said that where steps have been taken for renewal of leases, as stated in earlier G.Os., fresh leases shall be sanctioned according to terms offered by Competent Authority.

105. In March, 1970, a G.O. was issued banning grant of renewal of leases all over the State, since Government was contemplating to bring out legislation on Urban Ceiling. This ban was lifted on 12.01.1972 but leases henceforth were to be sanctioned by State Government only. Commissioner and Collector could make recommendations only. Aforesaid G.O., however, provided that in all those cases where Government had sanctioned grant of leases but it could not be executed or registered because of ban imposed in 1970, steps may be taken immediately for its execution. Clause (ii) of G.O. provided that all those cases in which Collector or Commissioner had approved renewal but it could not be executed because of 1970 order, should be sent to Government immediately for acceptance. On 09.05.1972 Urban Building Ceiling Bill was introduced and on 11.07.1972 Uttar Pradesh Ceiling of Property (Temporary Restriction on Transfer), Ordinance, 1972 was promulgated in pursuance of Article 398 of Constitution of India. The Ordinance continued till it was replaced by Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P. Act, 1976"). The said Act was enacted to prevent concentration of Urban Property and discourage construction of luxurious houses. On 19.12.1972, provisions pertaining to Nazul were amended providing for maximum area permissible for renewal of leases of 2000 sq. yards plus land on which building was constructed. Remaining area was to be surrendered to Housing Board and Lessees were prohibited from sub-dividing or transferring any land. On 10.12.1976, Government issued an order superseding all previous orders in respect of renewal of leases of Civil Lines, Allahabad in view of Act, 1976 and laid down fresh terms and conditions for renewal of leases.

106. Here leases were to be renewed in the light of Sections 2 and 4 of U.P. Act, 1976 and while doing so, all residents in one house were to be treated as one unit. This again resulted in representations of Lease-Holders to Government requesting for reduction in rate of premium and ground rent. A G.O. was issued on 17.09.1979 superseding all previous orders and it provided for submission of details about extent and type of construction, utilisation of vacant land etc. Again representations, which culminated in G.O. dated 19.04.1981, which superseded all previous Orders and provided for renewal of leases on fresh and new terms. It is said that Leaseholders and their heirs shall be treated as one Unit. They were supposed to file details about land, constructed area, its user, time when it was taken on lease etc. before 30.06.1981. List of residents including out-houses dwellers was to be prepared by District Magistrate. Heirs of deceased lease-holders were to be treated as one unit. Area for which renewal could be made was reduced to building with 500 sq. metre of land appurtenant and 500 sq. metre open land or 1500 sq. metre whichever was more. Area of building for commercial purpose was fixed at 2000 sq. metres. Premium was fixed at 50 paisa per sq. metre. Thus, from 1976 onwards for the purpose of renewal, area was reduced from acre to square metre and unit for premium and ground rent became square feet instead of acre. All heirs of Lessees became one unit for renewal. Land covered by outhouses were to be excluded. Lessees could not even opt for it.

107. However, here is nothing on record to show that petitioners complied the above G.Os. and sought renewal or fresh lease hence petitioners cannot claim any benefit under the above mentioned G.Os.

108. Lease Holders, whose lease had already expired or those who were sitting Lease Holders and leases were going to expire in a short period, came to this Court in various writ petitions. This entire bunch was decided in Purushottam Dass Tandon and others vs. State of U.P., Lucknow and others (supra). There were two categories of writ petitioners, before this Court, in Purushottam Dass Tandon and others (supra) as under :

(i) Those, to whom notices were given by Collector and who had complied with terms and conditions as laid down in various orders issued from time to time prior to 1965; and

(ii) Those, to whom no notice was sent and till matter filed before the Court, no steps were taken and no order was passed in their favour.

109. Court held :

(I) A Lessor may, after expiry of period for which lease is granted, renew the same or resume i.e. re-enter. But if out of the two i.e. re-entry or resumption, the two divergent courses, he chooses to grant fresh lease or at least creates that impression by his conduct spread over long time, it results in abandonment.

(II) If the land is needed or building has to be demolished in public interest for general welfare, probably no exception can be taken as the interest of individual has to be sacrificed for the society. But asking Lessee to vacate land or remove Malba for no rhyme or reason but because State is the owner, cannot be accepted to be in consonance with present day philosophy and thinking about role of State.

(III) After Act, 1976, no person can successfully or validly claim to hold land, more than the Ceiling limit.

(IV) Some part of G.O. of 1981 was not consistent with Act, 1976. The rules contained in Nazul Manual are set of Administrative Orders or collections of guidelines issued by Government for the authorities to deal with Government property.

(V) When a G.O. was issued and its conditions are complied with, mere for bureaucratic delay, performance under the said G.O. cannot be denied. Therefore, Lessee, who had deposited first instalment, as directed in G.O. of 1965, were entitled for renewal of their lease.

(VI) After enactment of ceiling law, a Lessee cannot hold land more than the provided limit.

(VII) If leases were renewed in respect of those, who had acquired social or political status, whose names are given in para 15 of judgment, which includes, Dr. K. N. Katju, ex-Central Law Minister, Chief Minister and Governor, Dr. S. K. Verma, ex-Chief Justice and Governor, Sri B.L. Gupta, ex-Judge High Court, J. D. Shukla, I.C.S., O. N. Misra, I.A.S., then there was no justification not to give same benefit to others. Similar benefit must be given since most of them were also distinguished persons namely S.N. Kacker, ex-Central Law Minister, Solicitor General of India and Advocate General of the State, Sri S. S. Dhavan, ex-Judge, High Court and Governor and High Commissioner, Sri Lal Ratnakar Singh I.A.S. Ex-Member of Board of Revenue, M.L.Chaturvedi, ex-Judge, High Court and member of Union Public Service Commission, W. Broome, I.C.S. etc.

110. Aforesaid judgment was confirmed by Supreme Court by dismissing appeals preferred by State of U.P. and others in State of U.P. and others vs. Purshottam Das Tandon and others 1989 Supp.(2) SCC 412. Court clarified that renewal of leases shall be subject to the provisions of U.P.Act, 1976 and High Court judgment shall apply to all the leases to whom G.O. dated 23.04.1959, 02.07.1960 and 03.12.1965 were applicable and all those claiming under them. The order of Supreme Court reads as under :

"We have heard the learned counsel for both the parties at length. We do not find any infirmity in the judgment and order passed by the High Court against which these special leave petitions are preferred. We, however, make it clear that the leases that are going to be granted pursuant to the writ issued by the High Court will be subject to the provisions of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976. On the leases being granted, the Competent Authority under the Act shall be at liberty to apply the provisions of the Act and in particular section 15 thereof to all the leases and take away all the surplus lands in their hands after determining the surplus lands in accordance with law. The directions issued by the High Court can be availed of by all the lessees to whom the G.O. dated 23rd April, 1959, 2nd July, 1960 and 3rd December, 1965 were applicable and all those claiming under them.

All the Special Leave Petitions are dismissed accordingly with these observations. If any further directions are needed, the persons interested may approach the High Court."

111. Though, in the present case reliance has been placed on the aforesaid judgment, but, we do not find that aforesaid judgment is applicable to petitioners or that petitioners have applied for renewal of lease in terms of above G.Os., applicable at the relevant point of time. Hence, their status is of 'occupant' without any authority, inasmuch as, lease having already expired, transfer of land to petitioners was without any authority, hence possession of petitioners or anybody else under them is without any authority of law.

112. It is contended that even if lease expired on 01.04.1962, possession of petitioners since 1980 has continued on disputed Nazul land and State has not taken any step for their eviction or dispossession, it amounts to 'tacit approval' or 'sanction' by Government or Lessor recognizing petitioners' aforesaid possession to be valid and for this purpose, reference is made to Section 116 of TP Act, 1882. It is also said that even if aforesaid right under Section 116 TP Act, 1882 could not have been made applicable in 1980, since at that time, GG Act, 1895 was operating, yet the time at which impugned notice has been issued, GG Act, 1895 had already been repealed and thereafter petitioners' right is entitled to be considered in terms of TP Act, 1882 and they are entitled to take recourse to Section 116 of Act, 1882.

113. Section 116 of TP Act, 1882 reads as under :

"116. Effect of holding over.- If a lessee or under-lessee of property remains in possession thereof after the determination of the lease granted to the lessee, and the lessor or his legal representative accepts rent from the lessee or under lessee, or otherwise assents to his continuing in possession, the lease is, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, renewed from year to year, or from month to month, according to the purpose for which the property is leased, as specified in section 106."

114. Twin conditions to attract principle of holding over vide Section 116 of TP Act, 1882, which need be satisfied, are:

(i) After determination of lease, lessor or his representative has accepted rent from lessee or under lessee or accorded assent to his continuing in possession; and

(ii) Lessee or under-lessee has remained in possession.

115. In the present case, it is not the case of any of the petitioners that after expiry of lease on 01.04.1962, they were permitted to remain in possession of disputed Nazul land and rent has been accepted by respondents or they have paid rent. Even if what is said by petitioners is taken to be correct, we do not find that Section 116 is applicable in the case in hand at all.

116. Thus, in our view, Section 116 TP Act, 1882 is wholly inapplicable in the case in hand. In order to attract Section 116 of TP Act, 1882, it is necessary to obtain assent of landlord for continuation of lease after expiry of lease period. Mere acceptance of rent by Lessor, in absence of any agreement to the contrary, for subsequent months where Lessee continued to occupy lease premises cannot be treated to be a conduct signifying 'assent' on its part. This is what has been held in Shanti Prasad Devi and others vs. Shankar Mahto and others (2005) 5 SCC 543 and followed in Delhi Development Authority vs. Anant Raj Agencies Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

117. In the present case, even this fact is missing that petitioners while continuing in possession, paid lease rent and premium etc. to Lessor. Section 116 of TP Act, 1882, therefore, has no application either immediately after expiry of lease or much thereafter.

118. At this stage, learned counsel for petitioners sought to argue that petitioners are entitled to be given opportunity in terms of provisions of Section 106 read with 116 of TP Act, 1882 since petitioners are in continued possession after expiry of period of lease and are entitled to be treated as holding over and cannot be evicted without following procedure prescribed under TP Act, 1882, particularly in view of the fact that GG Act, 1895 has already been repealed by Repeal Act, 2017. Now, TP Act, 1882 will apply. He placed reliance on Supreme Court judgment in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad (supra). He also said that even if possession is unauthorized, petitioner cannot be evicted arbitrarily but State is bound to follow procedure consistent with law and principles of natural justice and for this purpose, reliance is placed on Supreme Court's judgments in Bishan Das and others Vs. State of Punjab and others AIR 1961 SC 1570, Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. and others Vs. Union of India (1986) 1 SCC 133, Yar Mohammad and another vs. Lakshmi Das and others AIR 1959 Allahabad 1 and Lallu Yeshwant Singh (dead) by his legal representative vs. Rao Jagdish Singh and others, AIR 1968 SC 620.

119. It is not in dispute that GG Act, 1895 has been repealed by Repeal Act, 2017. However, Section 4 thereof provides for saving of certain aspect and read as under :

"4. Savings.- The repeal by this Act of any enactment shall not affect any other enactment in which the repealed enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to;

and this Act shall not affect the validity, invalidity, effect or consequences or anything already done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred, or any remedy or proceeding in respect thereof, or any release or discharge of or from any debt, penalty, obligation, liability, claim or demand, or any indemnity already granted, or the proof of any past act or thing;

nor shall this Act affect any principle or rule of law, or established jurisdiction, form or course of pleading, practice or procedure, or existing usage, custom, privilege, restriction, exemption, office or appointment, notwithstanding that the same respectively may have been in any manner affirmed or recognized or derived by, in or from any enactment hereby repealed;

nor shall the repeal by this Act of any enactment revive or restore any jurisdiction, office, custom, liability, right, tittle, privilege, restriction, exemption, usage, practice, procedure or other matter or thing not now existing or any force.

120. Section 4 of Repeal Act, 2017 clearly protects effect or consequences or anything already done or suffered, which includes effect of expiry of lease and obligation of Lessee to surrender possession of leased land to State. Further, Lessee had already agreed that

State can re-enter land at any point of time. They are bound by said clause of lease-deed. This is an obligation as also liability of petitioners and right of State incurred, acquired and accrued in view of terms of lease-deed. Mere fact that it has been exercised after repeal of GG Act, 1895 would make no difference since all earlier situations/aspects have been protected by Section 4 of Repeal Act, 2017. Therefore, it cannot be said that after repeal of GG Act, 1895 by Repeal Act, 2017, petitioners' status would stood changed vis-a-vis disputed Nazul land in respect whereof State is entitled to re-entry and resume land in terms of conditions of lease.

121. The judgment cited by learned counsel for petitioners, in our view, are not at all applicable to the facts of this case as demonstrated hereinafter.

122. In Bishan Das and others Vs. State of Punjab and others AIR 1961 SC 1570, a Constitution Bench had an occasion to consider fundamental right of property vis-a-vis infringement therewith by executive orders. Therein, one Lala Ramji Das , carrying on a joint family business in the name and style of Faquir Chand Bhagwan Das, desired to construct a Dharmasala on a Nazul property of the then State of Patiala. In 1909, he sought permission of Government to construct a Dharmasala on the said land, since it situate near Barnala Railway Station, and therefore would have been convenient to Travellers who come to that place. It appears that initially for the same purpose, Patiala Government had granted permission to Choudhuris of Barnala bazar, but they could not do so for want of funds. Therefore when Ramji Das sought permission in the name of firm Faquir Chand Bhagwan Das in May, 1909, same was granted and communicated by Assistant Surgeon in-charge of Barnala Hospital, who was presumably in-charge of public health arrangements at Barnala. The sanction was subject to certain conditions, namely, no tax shall be taken for the land; shopkeepers will arrange 'Piao' for the passengers; plans of the building shall be presented before sanctioning authority; cleanliness and sanitary rules shall be followed by the persons maintaining Dharmasala and no permission to construct any shop will be granted and if any condition is violated, State shall dispossess them from the land in dispute.

123. Dharmasala was constructed in 1909 and inscription on the stone to the following effect was made:

"Dharmasala Lala Faquir Chand Bhagwan Das, mahajan, 1909."

124. Though a condition was imposed for not permitting construction of any shop, but as a matter of fact, a number of shops were later constructed, with the permission of authorities concerned, for meeting expenses of maintenance of Temple and Dharmasala. A complaint was made in 1911 against Ramji Das that he was utilizing Dharmasala for his private purpose but it remained unheeded. On the complaint made, some inquiry was also conducted by Tehsildar wherein Ramji Das got his statement recorded in January, 1925. On 07.04.1928, Revenue Minister, Patiala State, passed an order stating that though land on which Dharmasala had been built, was originally Government land (nazul property), it would not be proper to declare it as such and Dharmasala should continue to exist for the benefit of the public. Ramji Das or any other person will not be competent to transfer land and if such transfer is made, it would be unlawful and invalid and in such event, Government will escheat. Some further inquiry were also made and it appears that Ramji Das was given permission to make a raised platform and other extensions etc. On 10.09.1954, one Gopal Das, Secretary, Congress Committee, Barnala, filed a petition to the Revenue Minister, Patiala, making various allegations against Ramji Das. Thereupon an inquiry was conducted by Tahsildar, who found that Dharmasala was constructed by Ramji Das on Government lands, that Dharmasala was for public benefit; and, that Ramji Das had been its Manager throughout. He, however, said that Ramji Das was bound to render accounts which he failed considering that property belong to him and, therefore, he should be removed and past accounts be called for. When the matter went for opinion of Legal Remembrancer of State Government, it was pointed out that Dharmasala and Temple, though built on Government land, but not Government property. It also said that though Ramji Das was repudiating the existence of a public trust, he was working as Trustee of a trust created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature and could be removed by State only under Section 92 Civil Procedure Code. Ramji Das died on 10.12.1957. Petitioner Bishan Das and others came to manage Dharmasala, Temple and the shops etc. On 23.12.1957, Gopal Das and some others describing themselves as members of public, made an application that since Ramji Das was dead, new arrangements should be made for proper management of Dharmasala which is used for the benefit of the public. Again a search of old papers was made and this time Sub-Divisional Officer, Barnala, recommended that in the interest of Government, Municipal Committee, Barnala, should take immediate charge of the management of Dharmasala. This recommendation was affirmed by the Deputy Commissioner, Sangrur, and pursuant to the said order, Kanungo presumably dispossessed Bishan Das and others from part of Dharmasala on 07.01.1958 and charge thereof was given to Municipal Committee, Barnala. These orders were challenged by petitioners alleging that the same were without any authority of law and violative of fundamental rights enshrined under Articles 14, 19 and 31 of the Constitution.

125. The defence taken was that property is trust property of a public and charitable character, hence Bishan Das and others were not entitled to claim any property rights in respect thereof.

126. Supreme Court observed in Para-10 that even if it is assumed that the property is trust property, no authority of law authorizing State or its Executive Officers to take action against Bishan Das and others in respect of Dharmasala was shown. Government counsel sought to argue that Bishan Das and others were trespassers and land on which Dharmasala situate belong to Government, hence Government was entitled to use minimum of force to eject trespassers. But this defence was also rejected by Supreme Court holding that it is a clear case of violation of fundamental right of Bishan Das and others. Supreme Court said that nature of sanction granted in 1909 in respect of land whether it was a lease or licence, with a Grant or an irrevocable licence are questions of fact, need not be gone into by it but admitted position is that land belonged to the Government who granted permission to Ramji Das on behalf of joint family firm to build a Dharmasala, Temple and Shops and manage the same during his life time. After his death his family members continued with management. Thus, they were not trespassers at all in respect of Dharmasala, Temple and Shops; nor could it be held that Dharmasala, Temple and Shops belong to the State. The question whether trust created was public or private is irrelevant. Court said that a Trustee, even of a public trust, can be removed only by procedure known to law. He cannot be removed by an executive fiat. The maxim, what is annexed to the soil goes with the soil, has not been accepted as an absolute rule of law in India and in this regard, Supreme Court referred to decision in Thakoor Chunder Parmanick Vs. Ramdhone Bhuttacharjee (1866) 6 W.R. 228; Lala Beni Ram Vs. Kundan Lall (1899) L.R. 26 I.A. 58 and Narayan Das Khettry Vs. Jatindranath (1927) L.R. 54 I.A. 218. Court said that a person who bona fide puts up constructions on land belonging to others with their permission would not be a trespasser, nor would the buildings so constructed vest in the owner of the land by application of maxim quicquid plantatur solo, solo credit. It said:

"It is, therefore, impossible to hold that in respect of the dharmasala, temples and shops, the State has acquired any rights whatsoever merely by reason of their being on the land belonging to the State. If the State thought that the constructions should be removed or that the condition as to resumption of the land should be invoked, it was open to the State to take appropriate legal action for the purpose."

127. Court said that even if State proceeded on the assumption that there was a public trust, it could have taken appropriate legal action for removal of Trustees by way of Suit under Section 92 C.P.C. and not otherwise. Constitution Bench then said:

" .. that does not give the State or its executive officers the right to take the law into their own hands and remove the trustee by an executive order.

128. Court concluded its findings in Para-14 of the judgment as under:

"The facts and the position in law thus clearly are (1) that the buildings constructed on this piece of Government land did not belong to Government, (2) that the petitioners were in possession and occupation of the buildings and (3) that by virtue of enactments binding on the Government, the petitioners could be dispossessed, if at all, only in pursuance of a decree of a Civil Court obtained in proceedings properly initiated."

129. Court passed serious stricture against State authorities holding that the executive action taken by State and its Officers is destructive of the basic principle of the rule of law. Hence action of Government in taking law into their hands and dispossessing petitioners by display of force, exhibits a callous disregard of normal requirements of rule of law, apart from what might legitimately and reasonably be expected from a Government functioning in a society governed by a Constitution which guarantees to its citizens against arbitrary invasion by the executive on peaceful possession of property. Supreme Court reiterated what was said in its earlier judgment in Wazir Chand Vs. The State of Himachal Pradesh AIR 1954 SC 415 that State or its executive officers cannot interfere with the rights of others unless they can point out some specific rule of law which authorizes their acts. Supreme Court seriously deprecated State and said:

"We have here a highly discriminatory and autocratic act which deprives a person of the possession of property without reference to any law or legal authority. Even if the property was trust property it is difficult to see how the Municipal Committee, Barnala, can step in as trustee on an executive determination only."

130. Aforesaid decision has no application in the case in hand, inasmuch as, here State has exercised its power following terms and conditions laid down under lease-deed, which were made to prevail over any Statute providing otherwise, including TP Act, 1882 vide Section 2 of GG Act, 1895. Further, respondents, in exercise of right of resumption/re-entry, have not straightway went to dispossess petitioners but notice in question has been given to them giving time to vacate the premises whereafter respondents proposed to take further action for taking possession. Therefore, it cannot be said that no notice has been given to petitioners in the present case.

131. Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. and others Vs. Union of India (1986) 1 SCC 133 is a matter which was decided in a Writ Petition filed under Article 32 of Constitution by the aforesaid Newspaper Company having its Establishment in Express Buildings at 9-10, Bahadurshah Zafar Marg, New Delhi, which was a land on perpetual lease from Union of India, under a registered Indenture of Lease, dated 17.03.1958. Five petitioners, who filed above Writ Petition before Supreme Court included Indian Express Newspaper (Bombay) Private Limited of which Express Newspapers Private Limited was a subsidiary and petitioners-3, 4 and 5, namely, Sri Ram Nath Goenka was Chairman of the Board of Directors, Nihal Singh was the Editor-in-chief of the Indian Express and Romesh Thapar was the Editor of the Seminar published from the Express Buildings. Union of India; Lt. Governor of Delhi, Sri Jagmohan; Municipal Corporation of Delhi; Zonal Engineer (Buildings) and Land and Development Officer were impleaded as respondents-1 to 5. The validity of notice of re-entry upon forfeiture of lease issued by Engineer Officer, Land and Development Office, New Delhi on 10.03.1980 was challenged. The notice required petitioners to show cause why Union of India should not re-enter upon and take possession of the demised premises i.e. plots nos. 9 and 10, Bahadurshah Zafar Marg, together with Buildings built thereon under Clause 5 of Indenture of Lease, dated 17.03.1958, for committing breach of Clauses 2(14) and 2(5) of lease-deed. Another notice was issued earlier on 01.03.1980 by Zonal Engineer (Buildings), Municipal Corporation, City Zone, Delhi requiring Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd., New Delhi to show cause why aforesaid buildings being unauthorized be not demolished under Sections 343 and 344 of the Delhi Municipal Corporation Act, 1957 (hereinafter referred to as "DMC Act, 1957"). A challenge was made, besides others, on the ground of personal vendetta against Express Group of Newspapers and also being violative of Articles 14, 19(1)(a) and 19(1)(g) of the Constitution. The questions posed by Supreme Court, to be of far reaching consequence for maintenance of federal structure of Government, were:

(1) Whether the Lt. Governor of Delhi could usurp the functions of the Union of India, Ministry of Works and Housing and direct an investigation into the affairs of the Union of India i.e. question the legality and propriety of the action of the then Minister for Works and Housing in the previous Government at the center in granting permission to Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. to construct new Express Building with an increased FAR of 360 with a double basement for installation of a printing press for publication of a Hindi Newspaper on the western portion of the demised premises i.e. Plots No. 9 and 10, Bahadurshah Zafar Marg, New Delhi with the Express Buildings built thereon?

(2) Whether the grant of sanction by the then Minister for Works and Housing and the consequential sanction of building plans by him of the new Express Building was contrary to the Master Plan and the Zonal Development Plans framed under the Delhi Development Act, 1957 and the municipal bye-laws, 1959 made under the DMC Act, 1957 and therefore the lessor i.e. the Union of India had the power to issue a notice of re-entry upon forfeiture of lease under Clause 5 of the indenture of lease dated March 17, 1958 and take possession of the demised premises together with the Express Buildings built thereon and the Municipal Corporation had the authority to direct demolition of the said buildings as unauthorized construction under Sections 343 and 344 of the DMC Act, 1957?

(3) Whether the threatened action which the petitioners characterise as arbitrary, illegal and irrational was violative of Article 19(1)(a) read with Article 14 of the Constitution?

132. Thereafter Court analyzed the facts of case in detail and respective arguments and from Para-45 to 47 we find that Government of India and Lt. Governor of Delhi were head on to each other and even Council's role was not appreciated by Court. In the light of arguments advanced by parties, in para-59 of judgment, Court formulated eight questions. The issue of maintainability of writ petition under Article 32 was also raised and it was considered by Supreme Court in the judgment from para-66 onwards and it was held that building in question was necessary for running press. Any statutory or executive action to pull it down or forfeit the lease, would directly impinge on the right of freedom of speech and expression under Article 19(1)(a) and therefore, writ petition was maintainable. Court said:

"... impugned notices of re-entry upon forfeiture of lease and of the threatened demolition of the Express Buildings are intended and meant to silence the voice of the Indian Express. It must logically follow that the impugned notices constitute a direct and immediate threat to the freedom of the press and are thus violative of Article 19(1)(a) read with Article 14 of the Constitution."

133. Since, land in dispute was Government land, provisions of Government Grants Act, 1895 (hereinafter referred to as "GG Act, 1985") were also relied on by Government and, therefore, Supreme Court examined provisions thereof also. It held that GG Act, 1895 is an explanatory or declaratory act. It said:

"Doubts having arisen as to the extent and operation of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and as to the power of the Government to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers of land made by it or under its authority, the Act was passed to remove such doubts as is clear from the long title and the preamble. The Act contains two sections and provides by Section 2 for the exclusion of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and, by Section 3 for the exclusion of, any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary."

134. In Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. and others Vs. Union of India (supra) Court further said:

"It is plain upon the terms that Section 2 excludes the operation of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 to Government grants. While Section 3 declares that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained over any such grant or transfer as aforesaid shall be valid and shall take effect according to their tenor, notwithstanding any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary. A series of judicial decisions have determined the overriding effect of Section 3 making it amply clear that a grant of property by the Government partakes of the nature of law since it overrides even legal provisions which are contrary to the tenor of the document." (Emphasis added)

135. Having said so, Supreme Court found that the stand taken on behalf of Union of India that there was non compliance of mandatory requirement of Clause-6, therefore notice of re-entry was valid, is not correct.

136. Court then noted some contradictions in Constitution Bench judgment in Bishan Das and others Vs. State of Punjab and others (supra) and State of Orissa Vs. Ram Chandra Dev AIR 1964 SC 685.

137. In State of Orissa Vs. Ram Chandra Dev (supra), Constitution Bench observed:

"Ordinarily, where property has been granted by the State on condition which make the grant resumable, after resumption it is the grantee who moves the Court for appropriate relief, and that proceeds on the basis that the grantor State which has reserved to itself the right to resume may, after exercising its right, seek to recover possession of the property without filing a suit. "

138. It was observed that existence of a right is the foundation for a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. In Para-84 Court said that in cases involving purely contractual issues, the settled law is, where statutory provisions of public law are involved, writs will be issued and referred to its earlier judgment in Mohammed Hanif Vs. State of Assam (1969) 2 SCC 782. Thereafter it also considered the provisions of Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1971 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1971") and observed that Express building was constructed with the sanction of lessor, i.e., Union of India on plots demised on 'perpetual lease' by registered lease-deed dated 17.03.1958 hence cannot be regarded as 'public premises' belong to the Central Government under Section 2(e). That being so, Act, 1971 has no application.

139. Court then considered other provisions of power of Lt. Governor, and Central Government and factual aspects involved in the matter, and, in our view, the same are not relevant for the purpose of this Case. Court also examined applicability of doctrine of estoppel but that has also not been raised in these matters, hence it is not necessary to examine them.

140. One aspect we may notice hereat that detailed judgment has been written by Hon'ble A.P. Sen, J. Justice E.S. Venkataramiah has agreed with the judgment of Hon'ble A.P. Sen, J in relation to the aspect that Lt. Governor of Delhi, Sri Jagmohan, has taken undue interest in getting notices issued to Express Newspapers and this action is not consistent with normal standards of administration and issued under pressure of Lt. Governor of Delhi, notices were violative of Article 14, suffers with arbitrariness and non application of mind. His Lordship said that it was not necessary to express any opinion on the contention based on Article 19(1)(a) of Constitution. Hon'ble Venkataramiah further said that question relating to civil rights of the parties flowing from the lease deed cannot be disposed of in a petition under Article 32 of the Constitution since questions whether there has been breach of the covenants under the lease, whether lease can be forfeited, whether relief against forfeiture can be granted etc. are foreign to the scope of Article 32 of the Constitution which should be tried in a regular civil proceeding. His Lordship further said in Para-202 of judgment as under:

"One should remember that the property belongs to the Union of India and the rights in it cannot be bartered away in accordance with the sweet will of an Officer or a Minister or a Lt. Governor but they should be dealt with in accordance with law. At the same time a person who has acquired rights in such property cannot also be deprived of them except in accordance with law."

141. Having said so, while agreeing with ultimate order of quashing of notices, Hon'ble Venkataramiah, J. said:

"I express no opinion on the rights of the parties under the lease and all other questions argued in this case. They are left open to be decided in an appropriate proceeding."

(Emphasis added)

142. Hon'ble R.B. Misra, J. also agreed with Hon'ble A.P. Sen and E.S. Venkataramiah, JJ that the notice challenged in writ petition is invalid, having no legal consequences and must be quashed for reasons detailed in both the judgments. His Lordship, however, said that other questions involved in the case are based upon contractual obligations between the parties and can be satisfactorily and effectively dealt with in a properly instituted suit and not by way of writ petition on the basis of affidavits which are so discrepant and contradictory in this case. Hon'ble R.B. Misra, J. in para 207 of judgment said:

*"207. The right to the land and to construct buildings thereon for running a business is not derived from Article 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(g) of the Constitution but springs from terms of contract between the parties regulated by other laws governing the subject, viz., the Delhi Development Act, 1957, the Master Plan, the Zonal Development Plan framed under the Delhi Municipal Corporation Act and the Delhi Municipal Bye-laws, 1959 irrespective of the purpose for which the buildings are constructed. Whether there has been a breach of the contract of lease or whether there has been a breach of the other statutes regulating the construction of buildings are the questions which can be properly decided by taking detailed evidence involving examination and cross-examination of witnesses." (Emphasis added)

143. The above judgment also has no application to the facts of present case. On the contrary, majority view expressed in above judgment is that right to land and to construct building is not derived from Articles 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(g) of Constitution but springs from promise of contract between the parties. Whether there has been breach of contract of lease or there has been breach of any provision regulating lease rights and construction of building etc., are such questions which can be properly decided by taking detailed evidence involving examination and cross examination of witnesses and therefore, such rights can be enforced in common law proceedings by filing suit.

144. In Yar Mohammad and another vs. Lakshmi Das and others AIR 1959 Allahabad 1, a Full Bench of this Court considered following question :

"Whether the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is barred by virtue of Section 242 of the U. P. Tenancy Act in respect of suit filed under Section 9 of the Specific Relief Act for obtaining possession over agricultural land from which the plaintiff alleged his illegal dispossession within six months of the date of the-suit".

145. Therein plaintiffs instituted suit on 30.11.1948 for possession under Section 9 of Specific Relief Act, 1877 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1877") alleging that they were in actual possession of land in dispute (land was admittedly an agricultural land) but wrongfully dispossessed by defendants in November 1948. Defendants contested the suit and disputed correctness of above allegations of plaintiffs and pleaded that they were in possession of land as tenants of plaintiffs for more than 12 years, hence, plaintiffs cannot eject them. They also pleaded that suit was filed under Section 9 of Act, 1877 only to evade jurisdiction of Revenue Court. Trial Court i.e. learned Munsif rejected plea of lack of jurisdiction raised by defendants, accepted the case set up by plaintiffs and decreed the suit. Defendants then filed revision no.461 of 1952, which resulted in Reference, to a Larger Bench. The issue was with respect to applicability of Section 242 of U. P. Tenancy Act, 1939. Court said that Section 242 confers exclusive jurisdiction on Revenue Court and takes away jurisdiction of Civil Court only in respect of two kinds of actions.

(i) suits or application of the nature specified in the Fourth Schedule of the Act; and

(ii) suits or applications based on a cause of action in respect of which any relief can be obtained by means of a suit or application specified in that schedule.

146. It was held that in order to attract Section 242, one has to demonstrate that action would fall under either of the above-mentioned two categories and if does not, jurisdiction of Civil Court is not ousted and Revenue Court will have no jurisdiction to entertain the action.

147. Then construing the cases, which may resort to Section 9 of Act, 1877, Court said that Section 9 gives a special privilege to persons in possession who take action promptly. In case they are dispossessed, Section 9 entitles them to succeed simply by proving:

(1) that they were in possession,

(2) that they have been dispossessed by the defendant,

(3) that dispossession is not in accordance with law, and

(4) that dispossession took place within six months of the suit.

148. No question of title either of plaintiffs or of defendants can be raised or gone into in an action brought under Section 9 of Act, 1877. Plaintiffs will be entitled to succeed without proving any title on which he can fall back upon and defendant cannot succeed even though he may be in a position to establish the best of all titles. Restoration of possession under Section 9 is however subject to a regular suit and person who has real title or even better title cannot be prejudiced in any way by a decree of a suit under Section 9. A person having real or better title always has a right to establish his title in a regular suit and get the possession back. The objective and idea behind Section 9, as the Court observed is that law does not permit any person to take law in his own hands and to dispossess a person in actual possession without having recourse to a Court or Institution, in an illegal manner. In other words, objective of Section 9 is to discourage people from taking law in their own hands, how-ever good title they may have. In the interest of public order that self-help is not permitted so far as possession over Immovable property is concerned, Section 9 is intended to discourage and prevent proceedings which might lead to serious breaches of peace. It does not allow a person who has acted high-handedly by wrongfully dispossessing a person in possession from deriving any benefit from his own unjustified act. Section 9, infact, provides for a summary and quick remedy for a person who is in possession but illegally ousted therefrom without his consent. Court observed that 'Possession' is prima facie evidence of title and if a person who is in possession is dispossessed, he has a right to claim back possession from the person who dispossesses him. In an ordinary common law proceedings, a person who has a title, is entitled to possession and cannot be deprived of his right of possession by a person, who has no title or inferior to the former. Court said that for Section 9, claim of title is not allowed to be set up and possession wrongfully taken, has to be restored. Full Bench therefore, answered question formulated above in negative.

149. In our view, above judgment has no application to the facts of this case for the reason that title of land is not in dispute, inasmuch as, it is admitted case of all the petitioners that land in dispute is 'Nazul', hence it is owned and vested in Government. It is also not in dispute that petitioners got possession of land in dispute being legal heirs of original Lessees. Petitioners have not been evicted, so far, hence Section 9 of Act, 1877 has no application. In the present case right of re-entry is being exercised by respondent-State in terms of lease-deed, pursuant whereto possession was given to Lessees and petitioners have derived their interest from such Lessees, and now are bound to restore possession in terms of lease whereunder even original lessee were obliged to surrender/hand over possession to State Government.

150. We may also note hereat that in the case in hand, lease was governed by provisions of GG Act, 1895 and Section 2, as amended in State of U.P., has excluded provisions of U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 for governing rights etc. of parties. Only provisions contained in lease-deed shall apply and have to be given effect to as if U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 was not passed. Therefore also, reliance placed on the aforesaid judgment in the case in hand is of no consequence.

151. Lallu Yeshwant Singh (dead) by his legal representative vs. Rao Jagdish Singh and others, AIR 1968 SC 620 is a judgment which came before two Judges Bench of Supreme Court from a dispute raised under Qanoon Mal Riyasat Gwalior Samvat, 1983 (hereinafter referred to as "Qanoon Mal") that is from Madhya Pradesh. Under Section 326 of Qanoon Mal, a suit was filed by Yeshwant Singh and others i.e. plaintiffs against Rao Jagdish Singh and others (defendants) in the Court of Tehsildar for possession of some agricultural land. Plaintiffs set up a case that they were in possession of land and forcibly dispossessed by defendants, therefore, should be restored their possession. Tehsildar decreed the suit and order was affirmed in appeal by Collector as well as Commissioner. Revision was also dismissed by Board of Revenue and decree passed by Tehsildar was maintained. Section 326 of Qanoon Mal broadly provided summary remedy as is provided in Section 9 of Act, 1877. In para 7 of the judgment, Supreme Court has referred to both the provisions and said that both are broadly similar. High Court took a different view holding that it was not necessary for a Lessor to resort to Court for obtaining possession and if there is default by plaintiff, it could have been dispossessed by defendants. Supreme Court said that no person can take law in its own hand and in such matter, where provisions providing summary procedure for restoration of illegal dispossession of land have been made, the same can be resorted to by the person who has been illegally dispossessed. Supreme Court affirmed Full Bench judgment of this Court in Yar Mohammad (supra). Here also we do not find applicability of this judgment to the case in hand for the reasons we have already said in respect of judgment in Yar Mohammad (supra).

152. The State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad and another (supra) was a matter which came up before two Judges Bench of Supreme Court arising from action by State in respect of certain land falling within reserved forest in State of Uttar Pradesh. Zahoor Ahmad was granted lease of a plot of land at Chandan Chowki, Sonaripur Range in North Kheri Forest Division for an annual rent of Rs.100/-. The aforesaid land was part of reserved forest of which State of U.P. is the proprietor. Lease was granted for one year commencing from 18.03.1947 for industrial purpose. It was renewed on 10.06.1948 with effect from 18.03.1948 for further one year and again in 1949 for one year. Ultimately lease expired on 18.03.1950. State of U.P., after termination of lease, allowed Zahoor Ahmad to continue in possession of land on condition settled between the parties that Licensee i.e. Zahoor Ahmad would pay Rs.1,000/- as annual rent for occupation till 15.07.1950. Even after determination of lease on 15.7.1950, Zahoor Ahmad i.e. Licensee continued in possession and State of U.P. allowed him to remain in possession for three years beyond 15.07.1950 though for this period Zahoor Ahmad did not agree to give any undertaking of making payment of annual rent of Rs.1,000/-. A letter dated 04.12.1951 was issued to Zahoor Ahmad asking him to pay Rs.3,000/- for the year 1950-51. Letter further provided that if Zahoor Ahmad did not agree to pay Rs.3,000/- for the year 1950-51, amount of rent would be reduced to Rs.1800/- but he would not be allowed lease in future in any circumstance. The fact remains that Zahoor Ahmad was allowed to continue in occupation of land without any agreement as to the amount of rent payable for 1950-51. On 29.10.1952, Conservator of Forests sent a letter that Zahoor Ahmad can be allowed to run the mill beyond 15.07.1950 for three years if he pays Rs.3,000/- per annum and for one year only, if he is ready to pay Rs.1,800/- but thereafter lease would not be renewed. Notice also said that he was only Licensee and should remove his plant and vacate the premises within one month and pay Rs.6,000/- as damages for use and occupation. Zahoor Ahmad did not pay the amount, hence, a suit for recovery of damages was filed by State of U.P. High Court came to the conclusion that Licensee (Zahoor Ahmad) was allowed to continue with the consent of State of U.P. though there was no written agreement about rate of rent and lease was granted for industrial purposes. Under Section 106 of TP Act, 1882, such lease is for year to year basis. The lease could have been terminated by six months notice and since no such notice was given, therefore, tenancy was not validly terminated. With respect to amount of rent, Court took the view that under Section 116, renewal would mean the same terms and conditions as made applicable in previous lease. High Court therefore decreed the suit for payment of rent of Rs.3,000/-. Possession was allowed by State with its consent. Thus, High Court took the view that 'holding over' was applicable under Section 116. State Government bye-passing provision of TP Act, 1882 sought to rely on GG Act, 1895. Whether the kind of above lease, granted by State could have been brought within the purview of GG Act, 1895, Supreme Court examined this issue by referring to two judgments. In one, lease of forest land of Sunderbans was held to be a 'Grant' while, in another, Grant of Khas Mahal was not held to be as 'Grant'. In Jnanendra Nath Nanda vs. Jadu Nath Banerji AIR 1938 Cal 211 two leases of two lots were granted by Sunderban Commissioner on behalf of Secretary of State. The land comprised in the lots were 'waste lands' of the Government. 'Waste lands' of Sunderbans were not property of any subject. Sunderbans was vast impenetrable forest. It was the property of East India Company and later on vested in Crown by virtue of an Imperial Statute. Court found that history of legislation showed that grants of Sunderbans lands were treated to be 'Crown Grants' within meaning of 'Crown Grants Act'. In another matter i.e. Secretary of State for India in Council vs. Lal Mohan Chaudhuri, AIR 1935 Cal 746 in respect of Khas Mahal, lease was granted by Government. It was held that lease of Khas Mahal does not come within the category of 'Grant' as contemplated in GG Act, 1935. Having said so, in para 13 of judgment, Court said that lease granted to Zahoor Ahmad was for the purpose of erecting a temporary rice mill and for no other purpose. The mere fact that State is the lessor will not by itself make above lease a 'Government Grant' within the meaning of GG Act, 1895. We may reproduce para 13 of the judgment in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad (supra) as under :

"The lease in the present case was for the purpose of erecting a temporary rice mill and for no other purpose. The mere fact that the State is the lessor will not by itself make it a Government grant within the meaning of the Government Grants Act. There is no evidence in the present case in the character of the land or in the making of the lease or in the content of the lease to support the plea on behalf of the State that it was a grant within the meaning of the Government Grants Act." (Emphasis added)

153. When a question arose whether High Court has rightly applied Section 116 of TP Act, 1882, Supreme Court, in this context, referred to a judgment of this Court in Lala Kishun Chand vs. Sheo Dutta, AIR 1958 All. 879 wherein after expiry of lease of Nazul land, Licensee was permitted by Board of Revenue to continue in occupation as tenant and rent was also realized from him and held that in these facts, Section 116 of TP Act, 1882 was rightly applied. Then in paras 15 and 16, Court said as under:

"15. In the present case the High Court correctly found on the facts that the respondent after the determination of the lease held over. Even if the Government Grants Act applied Section 116 of the Transfer of Property Act was not rendered inapplicable. The effect of Section 2 of the Government Grants Act is that in the construction of an instrument governed by the Government Grants Act the court shall construe such grant irrespective of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. It does not mean that all the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act are inapplicable. To illustrate, in the case of a grant under the Government Grants Act Section 14 of the Transfer of Property Act will not apply because Section 14 which provides what is known as the rule against perpetuity will not apply by reason of the provisions in the Government Grants Act. The grant shall be construed to take effect as if the Transfer of Property Act does not apply.

16. Section 3 of the Government Grants Act declares the unfettered discretion of the Government to impose such conditions and limitations as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of the land be. The meaning of Sections 2 and 3 of the Government Grants is that the scope of that Act is not limited to affecting the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act only. The Government has unfettered discretion to impose any conditions, limitations, or restrictions in its grants, and the right, privileges and obligations of the grantee would be regulated according to the terms of the grant, notwithstanding any provisions of any statutory or common law. "

154. In Bhawanji Lakhanishi vs. Himatlal Jamnadas AIR 1972 SC 819, Court said that basis of Section 116 is a bilateral contract between erstwhile landlord and erstwhile tenant. It has been held that assent of lessor cannot be inferred merely from his delay in taking steps to evict lessee. We may also refer to Calcutta High Court decision in Ratan Lal vs. Farshi Bibi (1907) ILR 34 Cal 396; Madras High in Govindaswami vs. Ramaswami (1916) 30 Mad LJ 492; Patna High Court in Christian vs. Hari Prasad AIR 1955 Pat 158 and Pritilata Devi vs. Banke Bihari Lal AIR 1962 Pat 446; and Rajsthan High Court in Gordhan vs. Ali Bux AIR 1981 Raj 206, holding that to attract Section 116, therefore, it has to be shown that there was a bilateral act creating a new tenancy. There is no implication of holding over. In our view, there is neither any material nor pleading to attract Section 116 and therefore, judgment in Zahoor Ahmad (supra) on this aspect does not help petitioners. On the contrary, what has been said in para 16 of the judgment, quoted above, the conditions of 'Grant' would prevail over every law including TP Act, 1882.

155. Moreover, in respect of Section 116 TP Act, 1882, we have already discussed the matter earlier to demonstrate that it is not attracted in the present case.

156. There is one more aspect which may be considered at this stage. In State of U.P., a special Statute was enacted in 1972 i.e. U.P. Act, 1972. It also deals with a situation where a person has continued in possession over Government owned land after expiry of period for which he was authorized to remain in possession of such land and thereunder he is declared as 'Unauthorized Occupant'. We find that similar provision was also made by Parliament in Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1971 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1971").

157. In U.P. Act, 1972, Section 2(g) and 2(e) define "unauthorised occupation" and "public premises", and the same read as under :-

"2(g) "unauthorised occupation", in relation to any public premises, means the occupation by any person of the public premises without authority for such occupation, and includes the continuance in occupation by any person of the public premises after the authority (whether by way of grant or any other mode of transfer) under which or the capacity in which he was allowed to hold or occupy the premises has expired or has been determined for any reason whatsoever and also includes continuance in occupation in the circumstances specified in sub-section (1) of Section 7 and a person shall not, merely by reason of the fact that he had paid any amount as rent, be deemed to be in authorised occupation."

"2(e) "public premises" means any premises belonging to or taken on lease or requisitioned by or on behalf of the State Government, and includes any premises belonging to or taken on lease by or on behalf of-.

(i) any company as defined in Section 3 of the Companies Act, 1956, in which not less than fifty-one per cent of the paid-up share capitals held by the State Government: or

(ii) any local authority; or

(iii) any Corporation (not being a company as defied in Section 3 of the Companies Act, 1956 or a local authority) owned or controlled by the State Government: or

(iv) any society registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860, the governing body whereof consists, under the rules or regulations of the society, wholly of public officers or nominees of the State Government or both:

and also includes-

(i) Nazul land or any other premises entrusted to the management of local authority (including any building built with Government funds on land belonging to the State Government after the entrustment of the land to that local authority, not being land vested in or entrusted to the management of a Gaon Sabha or any other local authority, under any law relating to land tenures):

(ii) any premises acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 with the consent of the State Government for a company (as defined in that Act) and held by that company under an agreement executed under Section 41 of that Act providing for re-entry by the State Government in certain conditions:" (Emphasis added)

158. Definition of "unauthorized occupation" clearly includes occupation of a public premises by a person after expiry of authority to occupy such land which includes a person whose period of lease has expired and still he or she is continuing in possession. "Public Premises" includes any premises belonging to or taken on lease including "nazul land".

159. Considering provisions of U.P. Act, 1972, in Ashoka Marketing Ltd. And another vs. Punjab National Bank and others, (1990) 4 SCC 406, a Constitution Bench held that U.P.Act, 1972 being a special Act will override a general statute and a person who may have entered tenancy legally may become "unauthorized occupant" subsequently, after expiry of lease period.

160. A similar issue in the context of 'Nazul', managed by Delhi Development Authority and Government under provisions of Act, 1971 was considered in Delhi Development Authority Vs. Anant Raj Agencies Pvt. Ltd. (supra). In that case land belonged to Delhi Improvement Trust. It had executed a lease deed dated 6.1.1951 in favour of Balraj Virmani (hereinafter referred to a "original lessee"). After enactment of Delhi Development Act, 1957, Development Authority was constituted thereunder, namely, Delhi Development Authority (hereinafter referred to as "DDA"). Lease was initially for a period of 20 years i.e. from 11.8.1948 to 10.8.1968, liable for extension/renewal for further period of 20 years at the option of lessee. Original lessee on 23.2.1967 approached DDA for renewal of lease. DDA served notice on 16.2.1968 alleging breach of terms and conditions of lease deed. DDA vide notice dated 1.9.1972 terminated lease which was challenged by original lessee in Original Suit No. 47 of 1975 before Sub Judge, Delhi seeking restraint order against DDA. Suit was decreed by Sub Judge holding that notice dated 1.9.1972 terminating lease was illegal. DDA preferred appeal which was dismissed by Additional District Judge vide judgment dated 29.9.1982. DDA preferred Second Appeal in Delhi High Court, being RSA No. 06 of 1983. During pendency of second appeal, an application under Order 22 Rule 10 of Code of Civil Procedure (hereinafter referred to as "CPC") was filed alleging that original lessee has sold disputed property through sale deed to M/s. Anant Raj Agencies Pvt. Ltd.(hereinafter referred to as "subsequent purchaser"). This sale deed was claimed to have been executed between original lessee and subsequent purchaser pursuant to some compromise decree dated 22.6.1988 passed by High Court in a matter between original lessee and subsequent purchaser. The application of subsequent purchaser for substituting as respondent in second appeal filed by DDA was allowed by High Court. Further subsequent purchaser also applied to DDA for conversion of lease land to freehold and deposited a sum of Rs.96,41,892/- towards conversion charges. DDA rejected the said application of subsequent purchaser. Aggrieved thereof, subsequent purchaser preferred writ petition no. 10015 of 2005 in Delhi High which was disposed of vide order dated 19.7.2007, directing DDA to decide subsequent purchase's request for conversion of premises from lease hold to freehold. Thereafter, High Court also dismissed DDA's second appeal holding that act of demand and acceptance of rent tantamounts to renewal of lease of disputed property. It is this judgment passed in second appeal which came to be considered before Supreme Court in the aforesaid matter. One of the contentions raised on behalf of DDA was that original lessee created interest in the disputed property in favour of subsequent purchaser during the period when original lessee itself was not a lease holder since lease stood terminated by efflux of time. It was contended that original lessee had no title or interest in property which could have been transferred to subsequent purchaser and said transfer is void and not binding on DDA. Next ground was that deposit of rent by original lessee and acceptance by office of DDA is something administrative in nature and would not be construed as estoppel or waiver on the part of DDA with regard to property unless a specific intention to this effect is communicated to original lessee. Supreme Court formulated following two questions:-

"1. Whether original lessee has acquired any right in respect of property in question after termination of lease by efflux of time on 10.8.1968 and also by termination notice dated 1.9.1972, in the absence of renewal of lease by DDA in writing as provided under Clause iii(b) of lease deed, by virtue of payment of rent in the office of the DDA?

2.Whether Respondent(subsequent purchaser) acquires any right in respect of property in question by getting substituted in place of original lessee by virtue of a compromise decree, between original lessee and Respondent based on a sale deed dated 14.10.1998 executed by original lessee, by invoking Order 22 Rule 10 of CPC during pendency of appeal before High Court?"

161. While answering question no.1, Court held that there was no renewal of lease by DDA in favour of original lessee. Court also held that a lease if has expired, it would not be necessary for lessor to terminate the same since original lease stands terminated by efflux of time after expiry of period of lease. Court said that Principle of "holding over" under Section 116 of Act, 1882 would not be applicable since there was no assent of landlord and mere acceptance of rent by lessor, in absence of an agreement to the contrary, would not render possession of lessee valid. In this regard, Court relied on its earlier decision in Shanti Prasad Devi and Another vs. Shanker Mahto and others (supra) and Sarup Singh Gupta vs. S. Jagdish Singh and others (2006) 4 SCC 205. There could not be an implied renewal to attract "holding over" on mere acceptance of rent offered by lessee.

162. In Delhi Development Authority vs. Anant Raj Agencies Pvt. Ltd. (supra) Court also held that land vested in DDA is a public premises and that being so, it is governed by Act, 1971, which shall prevail over Act, 1882, a general law governing landlord and tenant's relationship. Referring to definition of "Public Premises", Court said, "It can be concluded that Act, 1882 is not applicable in respect of Public premises". Court held :-

"Therefore, in the instant case, as per Clause iii(b) of the lease deed and Sections 21 and 22 of the DD Act read with Rule 43 of the Nazul Land Rules and in the light of Shanti Prasad Devi, Sarup Singh Gupta and Ashoka Marketing Ltd. Cases (supra), there cannot be an automatic renewal of lease in favour of the original lessee once it stands terminated by efflux of time and also by issuing notice terminating the lease. Merely accepting the amount towards the rent by the office of the DDA after expiry of the lease period shall not be construed as renewal of lease of the premises in question in favour of the original lessee, for another period of 20 years as contended by the Respondent."

163. In Delhi Development Authority vs. Anant Raj Agencies Pvt. Ltd. (supra) Court also considered that land vested in DDA was a 'Nazul land' and that being so, power has been conferred upon DDA to grant lease which includes renewal of lease but in absence of said renewal of lease of property as required in law, original lessee cannot claim an automatic renewal in his favour. Court held as under:-

"Thus, it is abundantly clear from the aforesaid legal statutory provisions of the DD Act and terms and conditions of the lease deed and the case law referred supra that there is no automatic renewal of lease of the property in question in favour of the original lessee" (Emphasis added)

164. Having said so, Court held that in absence of renewal of lease, status of original lessee in relation to disputed property was that of an "unauthorized occupant" in terms of Section 2(g) of U.P. Act, 1972.

165. It also said that any act on the part of DDA in respect of other communication would make no difference, since a "Public Premises" is to be dealt with by relevant statutory provisions including Act, 1971, Nazul Land Rules and DDA Act, 1957. Thus question-1 was answered by Court as under:-

"30. Without examining the case in the proper perspective that the property in question being a Public Premises in terms of Section 2(e) of the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1971 and that after expiry of lease period the original lessee has become unauthorized occupant in terms of Section 2(g) of the said Act in the light of relevant statutory provisions and Rules referred to supra and law laid down by the Constitution Bench of this Court in the Case of Ashoka Marketing Ltd. and Another (supra), the concurrent findings of the courts below on the contentious issue is not only erroneous but also suffers from error in law and therefore, liable to be set aside.

31.The grant of perpetual injunction by the Trial Court in favour of original lessee, restraining the DDA from taking any action under the said termination notice dated 01.09.1972, on the ground that the termination notice dated 01.09.1972 being illegal, arbitrary and without jurisdiction and the affirmation of the same by both the first appellate court, i.e. by the learned ADJ and further by the High Court by its impugned judgment and order are not only erroneous but also suffers from error in law. Thus, Point No.1 is answered in favour of the Appellant."

166. Thereafter, question-2 was considered by Court. It was held that compromise decree between original lessee and subsequent purchaser was void ab initio in law for the reason that original lessee in absence of renewal of lease in his favour himself has no right, title or interest at the time of execution of sale deed in respect of disputed property. Court said:

"It is well settled position of law that the person having no right, title or interest in the property cannot transfer the same by way of sale deed."

167. Thus, original lessee could not transfer a valid right to subsequent purchaser since itself had no right whatsoever in respect of land in dispute. Further, fact that subsequent purchaser deposited conversion charges in the office of DDA, also would make no difference. Original lessee in absence of renewal of lease, himself having become an "unauthorized occupant" of property, a transaction between original lessee and subsequent purchaser would have no legal consequence. Thus anything done between DDA and original lessee will also have no consequence. Court therefore, answered second question as under:-

"The instant case having peculiar facts and circumstances, namely, after 10.08.1968 the lease stands terminated by efflux of time, which is further evidently clear from the termination notice dated 01.09.1972 and thereafter, the original lessee becomes an unauthorised occupant in terms of Section 2(g) of the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1971 and consequently, not entitled to deal with the property in question in any manner. The very concept of conversion of leasehold rights to freehold rights is not applicable to the fact situation." (Emphasis added)

168. In the aforesaid backdrop, when we consider facts of present case, we find that entry of petitioners over land in dispute was wholly unauthorised. Therefore, their status is of 'rank trespassers'. It is true that petitioners have raised certain constructions over land in dispute but even that is without any authority and in violation of stiputations of lease deed. Morever, raising of such constructions will not validate what is illegal from very inception. Lessees under terms of lease were under an obligation to surrender leased land to State after expiry of lease but such obligation was not discharged by lessees. The mere fact that State immediately after expiry of lease or within reasonable time did not take any action for restoration of possession of leased land does not mean that State's right of resumption and re-entry or that of taking possession of land in dispute which is owned by State, in any manner would stand hampered. It is also not the case of petitioners that their right with respect to title over land in dispute would stand matured by 'Prescription' i.e. by way of 'Adverse Possession'. Neither it is pleaded, nor any material in support thereof has been placed on record, nor in the facts of this case, doctrine of 'adverse possession' is attracted.

169. State, at no point of time, validated any action of petitioners in respect of land in dispute. It is interesting to see that petitioners have pleaded that they continuously paid rent of disputed Nazul land to Sri Harihar Nath Dhar, but State, the real owner of land, stood deprived of any payment even by way of lease rent or premium or otherwise, either by earlier Lessee or petitioners. There is nothing on record to show that any amount towards premium or lease rent has been paid to State after expiry of lease on 01.04.1962. In effect, land has been enjoyed by occupants including earlier lessees and then petitioners, free of any payment to owner, not for a short period but almost half a century and more. The land owned by State constitutes a 'public asset' in which people in general have a right to ensure that custodian of public asset i.e. State Government shall utilize such asset for maximum welfare and benefit of public at large but that has not been done and private individuals stood benefited in a most illegal manner.

170. So far as resumption is concerned, admittedly, State has sought to resume land for 'public purpose' i.e. for developing 'Sports Complex' on the land in dispute. It is not disputed by learned counsel for petitioners that Allahabad City has been chosen to be developed as "Smart City" for which land for developmental activities is required in large quantity. State Government required huge land for making construction of various establishments besides developing Green Area and places of other activities. Therefore, purpose for which land is sought to be acquired is undoubtedly a 'public purpose'. Mere fact that in case of some other persons, land has been made freehold or some other Nazul land has not been sought to be resumed, by itself, will not make resumption in question, arbitrary or discriminatory for the reason that every land situated in different location has its own identity, utility and suitability. One land in a particular location cannot claim parity with another land. Reasons may be hundred i.e. size of land, its topography and similar other aspects. It is not the case of petitioners that land in question cannot be developed as 'Sports Complex'. The mere fact that one 'Sports Complex is already existing in the city of Allahabad, does not mean that for developing Allahabad as 'Smart City', more than one Sports Complex should not or cannot be developed and constructed. This assumption on the part of petitioners is thoroughly unwarranted and misconceived.

171. Further, right of re-entry is not restricted under terms of lease, as we have already quoted. Right of re-entry also does not prejudice right of State to take appropriate steps for claiming damages for breach of covenants of lease-deed and for recovery of rent/damages or other dues in respect of actual use of land by unathorized occupants. State has not chosen to take structure raised on land in dispute and opportunity has been given to petitioners to remove such structure from land in dispute and give vacant possession to respondent-State within fifteen days. It thus cannot be said that resumption of land in dispute by State is illegal or invalid or not in accordance with law.

172. Counsel for petitioners at this stage sought to argue that petitioners if treated as 'unauthorized occupant' in view of definition of term 'unauthorized occupant' provided in Section 2(g) of U.P.Act, 1972, in that case, they can be evicted from premises in question only in accordance with procedure prescribed therein and not otherwise.

173. Here also we find no substance in the submission. Provisions of lease-deed, as we have already said, provide a procedure for re-entry. Besides relevant clauses of lease-deed which we have already quoted, there is another provision in lease-deed providing for re-entry by Government at any time and the said clause of lease deed reads as under :

*"PROVIDED also that if the Government shall at any time require to re-enter on this site it can do so, on paying the value of all buildings that may be on this site, plus 10 per cent, as recompence for resumption of lease and that the lessee shall have no further claim of any sort against the Government."

174. Supreme Court has already said that terms of lease shall govern Nazul land in view of provisions of GG Act, 1895 and being a special procedure prescribed in lease deed, it shall prevail over any other law and no other procedure is required to be followed.

175. Therefore, State Government, when avail its right under terms of lease, cannot be compelled to chose another procedure. Moreover, under U.P.Act, 1972, State may proceed if it intends to recover the amount of damage, compensation etc. for unauthorized possession over public premises, which has to be ascertained by Prescribed Authority, which is not the case in hand. Therefore, it cannot be said that State Government is bound to follow procedure of U.P. Act, 1972 and cannot resort to the procedure prescribed for re-entry provided in lease-deed itself. This argument is contrary to what has been said by Supreme Court in Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others (supra), hence rejected.

176. In this context and to justify possession of petitioners over land in dispute, it is also contended that in 1992, policy of conversion of Nazul land into freehold was adopted by Government and petitioners having applied for freehold, were entitled to continue for possession till their application is decided, hence State Government could not have re-entered or resumed land in dispute, instead, petitioners are entitled for conversion of lease into freehold. Reliance is placed on G.O. dated 23.05.1992 and subsequent ones.

177. The first such G.O. is dated 23.05.1992. The aforesaid G.O. was applicable to permanent leases given for 'residential purposes' and 'current leases', given for residential purposes. Para 1 of aforesaid G.O. reads as under :

''मुझे यह कहने का निर्देश हुआ है कि सम्यक विचारोपरान्त शासन द्वारा नजूल भूमि के प्रबन्ध एवं निस्तारण आदि की वर्तमान व्यवस्था में परिवर्तन करते हुए शाश्वत एवं चालू पट्टों के अन्तर्गत उपलब्ध नजूल भूमि का स्वैच्छिक आधार पर फ्री–होल्ड घोषित करने एवं शेष रिक्त नजूल भूमि का निस्तारण इस शासनादेश में निर्धारित प्रक्रिया के अनुसार करने का निर्णय लिया गया है। तद्नुसार नजूल भूमि के प्रबन्ध एवं निस्तारण आदि के सम्बन्ध में निम्नलिखित व्यवस्था तात्कालिक रूप से लागू होगी।''

"I am directed to say that after due consideration the government has while changing the extant policy of management and disposal of the Nazul land, decided to declare Nazul land available under the perpetual and current leases to be freehold on voluntary basis and to dispose remaining vacant Nazul land as per procedure prescribed in this Government Order. Accordingly, in respect of the management and disposal, etc. of the Nazul land, the following policy shall come into force with immediate effect."

(English Translation by Court)

178. Those, who are governed by aforesaid G.O., were directed to submit their option for freehold within one year from the date of issue of G.O. and only they would be entitled for benefit under the said G.O. It also restrained any transfer of property if under lease deed, no transfer was permissible without permission. It also directed that where unauthorized possession is found, action for eviction shall be taken in accordance with law. Paras 7 and 8 of said G.O. read as under :

''(7) जिन पट्टों मे यह शर्त है कि पट्टाधिकारी बिना पट्टादाता की अनुमति के पट्टागत भूमि का हस्तान्तरण कर सकता है, वहॉ पट्टे की शर्त के विपरीत कोई हस्तक्षेप नही किया जाएगा, किन्तु जहॉ बिना पट्टादाता की अनुमति के पट्टेदार द्वारा भूमि हस्तान्तरण करने का निषेध है वहॉ इस शासनादेश के लागू होने की तिथि से किसी भी प्रकार के हस्तान्तरण पर एक वर्ष तक के लिए रोक लगा दी जाएगी। यह योजना शासनादेश जारी होने की तिथि से लागू होगी।

(8) इस बात का व्यापक प्रचार किया जाएगा कि उपरोक्त नीति अनधिकृत कब्जो के मामलों में लागू नहीं होगी और अनधिकृत कब्जों के मामलों में विधिक प्रक्रिया के अनुसार बेदखली आदि की कार्यवाही की जाएगी।''

"(7) In leases where leaseholder can transfer lease land without permission of the lessor, in such a case no interference shall be made contrary to the terms and conditions of the lease. But where transfer of land without permission of the lessor is prohibited, any transfer of land shall be stopped for a year from the date of enforcement of this Government Order. This policy shall come into force from the date of issue of the Government Order.

(8) It shall be widely circulated that the aforesaid policy shall not be applicable to the cases related to unauthorized possessions and eviction proceedings, etc. in relation to the unauthorized possessions shall be held in accordance with the legal procedure."

(English Transaction by Court)

179. The second G.O. was issued on 02.12.1992 dividing Lease-Holders in two categories. One, who had not violated conditions of lease, and, another, who had violated conditions of lease. Those, who had not violated conditions were required to pay for conversion to freehold an amount equal to 50 percent of Circle Rate for residential purpose while those who had violated conditions of lease, were to pay 100 percent. Same was in respect of Group Housing and Commercial use with the difference of amount to be paid for freehold. Para 4 thereof also provided that such current leases where 90 years period had expired, if Lease-holder had not violated any condition of lease and wants freehold, that can be allowed as per aforesaid G.O.. However, if he wants fresh lease, that can also be allowed for 30 years on payment of 20 percent of Circle rate as premium and 1/60th part of premium towards annual rent. Clause 4 of aforesaid G.O. reads as under :

''4. ऐसे चालू पट्टे जिनके 90 वर्ष की सम्पूर्ण अवधि समाप्त हो गई है यदि कोई पूर्व पट्टाधारक जिन्होंने पट्टे की शर्तों का उल्लंघन नहीं किया है, भूमि फ्री–होल्ड कराना चाहता है तो ऐसी दशा में निर्धारित दरों के अनुसार फ्री–होल्ड कर दिया जाएगा। यदि वह फ्री–होल्ड नही कराना चाहते है बल्कि नया पट्टा लेना चाहते है तो ऐसी दशा में 30 वर्ष के लिए एक नया पट्टा वर्तमान शर्तों के आधार पर दिया जा सकता है जिसके लिए प्रीमियम की धनराशि प्रचलित सर्किल रेट की निर्धारित दर की 20 प्रतिशत होगी और वार्षिक किराया, प्रीमियम का 1/60वां भाग प्रतिवर्ष के हिसाब से भी लिया जाएगा।''

"4 . In case of those current leases whose entire lease period of 90 years has expired, if any previous leaseholder who has not violated lease conditions, wants to get the land converted into freehold, in such a circumstance it shall be converted into freehold against the payment of the prescribed rates. If he does not want to convert it into freehold and wants to get a new lease, in such a circumstance a new lease may be awarded for 30 years under the extant terms and conditions, for which premium amount @ 20 percent of the existing circle rates and annual rent @ 1/60 of the premium shall be paid."

180. The third G.O. dated 03.10.1994 again made amendment in earlier two G.Os. Relevant aspect is that vide para 2, provision made for execution of 30 years lease, where 90 years period had expired, was deleted. Para 2 of G.O. dated 03.10.1994 reads as under :

*''2. शासनादेश संख्या 3632/9–आ–4–92–293–एन/90, 2–12–1992 में ऐसे चालू पट्टे जिनके 90 वर्ष की सम्पूर्ण अवधि समाप्त हो चुकी है तथा पूर्व पट्टाधारक द्वारा पट्टे की शर्तों का उल्लंघन नहीं किया गया है, के सम्बन्ध में 30 वर्षीय पट्टा स्वीकृत किये जाने की व्यवस्था की गई थी। इस व्यवस्था को तात्कालिक प्रभाव से समाप्त किया जाता है। अब ऐसे मामले में नया पट्टा स्वीकृत नहीं किया जाएगा बल्कि ऐसे मामले में जिनमें पट्टे की सम्पूर्ण अवधि समाप्त हो चुकी है उसको उपरोक्त निर्धारित दरों पर पूर्व पट्टेदार के पक्ष में फ्री–होल्ड में परिवर्तित करने की कार्यवाही की जाएगी।''

*"2. A provision had been made in Government Order No. 3632/9-Aa-4-92-293-N/90, dated 02.12.1992 for grant of lease for 30 years for the current leases; where 90 years' tenure has expired and the terms and conditions of the lease have not been violated by the former lease holder. This provision is annulled with immediate effect. Now in such cases, no new lease shall be granted; rather, in cases where entire period of lease has expired, proceedings shall be taken for converting such leases into freehold in favour of the former lease holders at the aforesaid prescribed rates."

181. Para 8 of aforesaid G.O. further provides that policy for freehold will be effective only upto 31.03.1995.

182. Considering that some very poor persons were also in occupation of 'Nazul land' and their eviction may result in serious problem of accommodation to such persons, another G.O. dated 01.01.1996 was issued making amendments in earlier three G.Os. stating that those persons whose monthly income is Rs.1,250/- or less, unauthorized possession of such persons on vacant Nazul land upto 01.01.1992 or prior thereto for residential purposes, shall be allowed freehold on payment of 25 percent premium and Rs.60/- annual rent for the said area upto 45 Sq. Meter and for more than 45 Sq.Meter but upto 100 Sq.Meter, 40 percent and Rs.120 annual rent. It clearly says that no regularization of unauthorized possession shall be made beyond 100 Sq.Meter and amount of premium shall be allowed to be paid in 10 years' interest free 6 monthly installments. Such unauthorized possession shall be regularized by approving 30 years' lease. Clauses 1, 2, 3 and 4 of aforesaid G.O. reads as under :

''(1) किसी भी दशा में 100 वर्ग मीटर से अधिक क्षेत्रफल पर किये गये अवैध कब्जों का विनियमितीकरण नहीं किया जायेगा तथा दिनांक 30.11.1991 की सर्किल रेट पर आंकलित सम्पूर्ण मूल्य पर निर्धारित यथास्थिति 25: या 40: नजराने की धनराशि 10 वर्षीय ब्याज रहित छमाही किस्तों में लिया जायेगा, परन्तु यदि कोई व्यक्ति सम्पूर्ण धनराशि या बकाया किस्तों की धनराशि एकमुश्त जमा करना चाहता है तो वह देय धनराशि जमा कर सकता है।

(2) उपरोक्त प्रकार के मामले में विनियमितीकरण की कार्यवाही 30 वर्षीय पट्टा स्वीकृत करके की जायेगी। स्वीकृत पट्टे में 30–30 वर्षीय दो नवीनीकरण के प्राविधान सहित सम्पूर्ण पट्टे की कुल अवधि दो नवीनीकरण के प्राविधान सहित सम्पूर्ण पट्टे की कुल अवधि अधिकतम 90 वर्ष की होगी। जिसमें यह शर्त होगी कि सम्बन्धित व्यक्ति भूमि का पट्टाधिकार 30 वर्ष तक किसी व्यक्ति को हस्तानान्तरित नहीं कर सकता है पट्टा शासन द्वारा निर्धारित प्रारूप पर जारी किया जायेगा।

(4) विनियमितीकरण हेतु परिवार को एक इकाई के रूप में माना जायेगा तथा पट्टा परिवार के मुखिया के पक्ष में स्वीकृत किया जायेगा।''

"(1) Under no circumstances, illegal possessions over an area measuring over 100 square metres shall be regularised and an amount of earnest money, 25% or 40% as the case may be, on the entire amount calculated as per the circle rate as on 30.11.1991 shall be taken in half yearly interest free instalments over the period of 10 years. However, if any person wishes to deposit entire money or the amount of remaining instalments in lump sum, he/she may deposit the payable amount.

(2) In the aforesaid type of cases, regularisation proceedings shall be done by granting a lease for a period of 30 years. The total period of the entire lease shall at most be 90 years with provision of two renewals, for 30 years each, in the lease so granted, subject to a restriction that the person concerned cannot transfer the lease rights to anybody until 30 years. 183. Then vide G.O. dated 17.02.1996 again some amendments were made in respect of amount payable for freehold but earlier policy of categories of persons, who can claim freehold, was not changed. Vide G.O. dated 29.03.1996, period for giving benefit of freehold was extended from 01.4.1996 to 30.09.1996. G.O. dated 02.04.1996 only made some corrigendum in earlier G.O. dated 17.02.1996.

184. On 29.08.1996, G.O. was issued in furtherance of G.O. dated 17.02.1996 stating that under G.O. dated 17.02.1996, freehold rights to Nominees of Lease-Holders were allowed and in reference thereto, rates on which such Nominees shall be allowed freehold, were mentioned.

185. We find that G.O. dated 17.02.1996 nowhere permits conversion of Nazul land into freehold in favour of Nominees of Lessee. Thus, G.O. dated 29.08.1996, insofar as it refer to G.O. dated 17.02.1996, has erred in law and it is a clear misreading. If G.O. dated 17.02.1996 itself had not permitted freehold rights to Nominee(s) of Lessee, question of rights determined by G.O. dated 29.08.1996 is of no legal consequence and would remain inoperative.

186. Then vide G.O. dated 25.10.1996, implementation of freehold policy was extended upto 31.12.1996. Then G.O. dated 31.12.1996 was issued to clarify G.O. dated 17.02.1996 in respect of applicability of rate, where land use at the time of grant of lease has changed in Master plan.

187. G.O. dated 26.09.1997 made amendments in all earlier G.Os. in respect of rates for Nazul land being used for hospital and other charitable purposes. It also clarifies as to which contravention of lease deed will be treated as violation to attract higher rate. It also provided in para 6(2) that Government has got right of re-entry due to violation of any conditions of lease and lease has already expired, and such Lease-Holder may be informed of Nazul policy and be given an opportunity to apply for freehold whereafter action for dispossession will be taken. The policy of conversion of freehold was extended upto 25.12.1997.

188. Then comes G.O. dated 01.12.1998. Thereunder only two categories were made i.e. residential and non-residential. Restriction was also imposed on certain Nazul land in respect whereto conversion of freehold shall not be allowed.

189. Vide G.O. dated 10.12.2002, it was clarified that freehold conversion shall not be allowed to nominee of Lessee or his legal heirs. G.O. dated 31.12.2002 relates to rates and clarification hence are not relevant for the purpose of present case.

190. Vide G.O. dated 04.08.2006, provision for regularization of Nazul land which was in unauthorized possession, was deleted. It is also said that in all the matters, where freehold document has not been registered, application shall be cancelled. Vide G.O. dated 15.02.2008 clarification was given in respect of G.O. dated 04.08.2006 and it was reiterated that in all those matters where freehold document has not been registered, application shall be rejected.

191. Vide G.O. dated 21.10.2008, Clause 3 of G.O. dated 10.10.2002, whereby provision for conversion of freehold to Nominee of Lessee or his legal heirs was ceased, was restored. It was also clarified that decision to convert freehold of Nazul land will apply only when such land is not found necessary for Government use.

192. G.O. dated 26.05.2009 made an amendment in para 2(6) of G.O. dated 21.10.2008 and substituted following paras therein :

*"ऐसे नजूल भूमियां जो भू–धारक या पट्टाधारक या उनके विधिक उत्तराधिकारी / नामित की भूमि के साथ स्थित है तथा उनके लिए उपयोगी सिद्ध हो सकती हैं तथा किसी अन्य के उपयोग की सम्भावना नहीं प्रतीत होती है। ऐसी भूमि का विनियमितीकरण भू–धारक या पट्टाधारक या उनके विधिक उत्तराधिकारी / नामित के पक्ष में वर्तमान सर्किल रेट शत प्रतिशत प्राप्त कर फ्री–होल्ड कर दिया जायेगा। ऐसे मामलों में शासन की अनुमति आवश्यक होगी।"

*"Those nazul lands which are lying adjacent to the land of land holder or lease holder or his legal successor/his nominee, and which can be of utility to them and do not appear to have the potential of being used by any other person, shall be regularised and converted into freehold in favour of the land holder or lease holder or his legal successor/nominee after receiving cent percent current circle rate. In such matters, the permission of the government shall be necessary."

(English Translation by Court)

193. Further time for conversion into freehold was extended upto 31.12.2009.

194. G.Os. dated 29.01.2010, 17.02.2011 and 01.8.2011 contain amendments of minor nature hence not discussed further.

195. Then comes G.O. dated 28.09.2011. It talks of policy of conversion of Nazul land into freehold, which was not listed at any point of time but has been occupied unauthorizedly and occupants have raised their construction using land prior to 01.12.1998. However, land of public places, park, side-lanes of road and other Government uses was excluded and maximum area for such freehold was confined to 300 Sq.Meter. The incumbent had to apply within three months whereafter they have to be evicted. With respect to 'Nominees of Lessees', para 5 of said G.O. reads as under :

*''नामित व्यक्ति के पक्ष में नजूल भूमि को फ्रीहोल्ड किये जाने की व्यवस्था को समाप्त किया जाना– नजूल भूमि के पट्टेदार द्वारा नामित व्यक्ति के पक्ष में नजूल भूमि को फ्रीहोल्ड किये जाने की व्यवस्था सर्वप्रथम शासनादेश संख्या : 1300/9–आ–4–96–629एन/95, टी.सी. दिनांक 29–8–1996 के प्रस्तर–1 (3) (4) में की गयी थी और शासनादेश संख्या 2873/9–आ–4–2002–152–एन /2002, टी.सी. दिनांक 10–12–2002 के प्रस्तर 3 द्वारा उक्त व्यवस्था समाप्त कर दी गयी तथा शासनादेश संख्या : 1956/आठ–4–08–266एन/08, दिनांक 21–10–2008 के प्रस्तर– 2 (4) द्वारा उक्त व्यवस्था पुनः बहाल कर दी गयी है। इस व्यवस्था के सम्बन्ध में मा0 उच्च न्यायालय में विचाराधीन रिट याचिका (जनहित याचिका) संख्या : 35248/2010–जयसिंह बनाम उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य व अन्य में पारित अन्तरिम आदेश दिनांक 16–07–2010 में दिये गये निर्देशों के दृष्टिगत उपर्युक्त शासनादेश

"Cessation of the provision of converting the nazul land into freehold in favour of the nominee:- The provision of converting nazul land into freehold in favour of nominee by the lease holder of the land had first been provided in the para- 1 (3)(4) of the Government Order No. 1300/9-Aa-4-96-629N/95, TC dated 29-08-1996; and by para 3 of the Government Order No. 2873/9-Aa-4-2002-152-N/2002, TC dated 10.12.2002, the aforesaid provision was annulled; *and through para 2(4) of Government Order No. 1956/VIII-4-08-266N/08, dated 21.10.2008, the aforesaid provision has been restored again. (English Translation by Court)

196. Aforesaid G.Os. thus clearly show that eligibility of leases of Nazul land, as initially laid down in G.O. of 1992 remained some changed but in respect of land found suitable or needed by Government, no freehold was permissible. With respect to violation of terms and conditions of lease etc., some relaxation was given.

197. Lastly there are two more G.Os. i.e. 04.03.2014 and 15.01.2015 wherein policy of freehold has been virtually given a relook and substantial amendments have been made in earlier policy.

198. It is no doubt true that Government has promulgated policy of conversion of lease land into freehold even in those cases where lease has expired, but then question is "whether mere submission of application for freehold will confer a vested right upon petitioners to get Nazul land converted into freehold, which will override even power of re-entry of Lessor.

199. A Full Bench of this Court in Anand Kumar Sharma vs. State of U.P. and others 2014(2) ADJ 742 has considered this aspect and held in para 42 of judgment that merely by making an application for grant of freehold right, a petitioner did not acquire a vested right. Para 42 of the judgment reads as under :

"We after considering the relevant Government Orders on the subject and pronouncements of the Apex Court as noted above, are of the view that merely by making an application for grant of freehold right, petitioner did not acquire a vested right."

200. A Division Bench of this Court in Writ Petition No.62588 of 2010, M/s

Madhu Colonizers Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of U.P. & Ors., decided on 02.04.2013 has held that if Government exercises right of re-entry, question of lessees to claim freehold would not arise and where such a right cannot be claimed by Lessee, right of nominee also cannot survive over such lessee. Court has said :

"It is also found that as nominee of the lessee, the petitioner-Company cannot have any larger rights than the lessee and once the order of the District Magistrate for resumption the land in exercise of power under Clause 3(c) of the lease deed is held to be valid, the petitioner-Company, as a nominee, cannot have any surviving right to claim conversion of the lease hold rights into . Infact, on valid resumption order being passed, the lease hold rights cease to exist and there can be no occasion for conversion of lease hold rights into freehold rights in such circumstances."

201. The discussion made above leaves no manner of doubt that resumption of land in question is in accordance with law and petitioners have no right whatsoever to claim continued possession over land in dispute. Even scheme of freehold as governed by various Government Orders shows, wherever land is required by State Government for 'public purpose' for own use, it shall not allow freehold.

202. We, therefore, answer questions (v) and (vi) against petitioners and hold that petitioners had no right, legal, contractual or otherwise in respect of possession of land in dispute; they were not holding possession of land validly; once State exercises right of re-entry, question of conversion of freehold also would not arise, hence notice in question warrants no interference.

203. Before proceeding further, we find it difficult to desist from observing that freehold policy, commenced in 1992, took care of a limited category of occupants of Nazul land i.e. Lessees, who had perpetual lease or where lease was continuing and there was no violation of conditions of lease. Meaning thereby, Leaseholders, who had faithfully abided the terms and conditions of lease, were chosen as a class by themselves and provision was made to convert lease rights into freehold in such cases. One may not dispute about such policy in the light of the fact that these leases were several decades old and people holding such leases had developed some kind of possessory interest in property and recognizing such interest of Lessees, howsoever weak it was, if State Government chose to confer upon them benefit of conversion of lease right into freehold, one may not validly object to that and probably such policy may satisfy constitutional test of fairness, non-discrimination, non-arbitrariness etc. But with the passage of time, in the garb of improvement in the policy, amendments were made by numerous Government Orders issued from time to time, which we have referred hereinabove and that opened an unrestricted area of beneficiaries, i.e. wholly strangers namely mere Nominees of Lessee, who had no prior interest in property in question, flagrant defaulters and violators of terms of lease etc. Such provisions, in our view, are difficult to be sustained as to satisfy constitutional validity of policy of freehold under aforesaid Government Orders. In our view, such G.Os. are ex facie arbitrary and violative of Article 14 of Constitution of India. One cannot lose sight and ignore historical backdrop of allotment of Nazul land. Persons who were sympathetic to Britishers and for services rendered by individuals in the interest of Colonial Forces, helping them in their administration; or some otherwise highly resourceful people, were given such Leases/Grants. After independence, if State wanted to distribute its largesse/assets, we can understand, if a scheme would have been evolved to distribute Nazul land, by terminating lease, to weaker and poor people or landless people or if objective was to augment revenue, then State largesse/assets, instead of distributing in a clandestine manner by confining such benefit to certain individuals, appropriate mode of auction of land to general public should have been adopted. We do not know what prevailed with State Government in making policy, which was initially not so apparently erratic, to become a boon to defaulters and also give opportunity to certain individuals in trading of land after getting land freehold on much lessor amount than what actually market value of land is. In the present case itself, petitioners have said that they paid money to Harihar Nath Dhar and therefore, Harihar Nath Dhar actually benefited himself of the property owned by State without any return to State and this had continued for decades together. Thus, Prima facie, we are satisfied that policy of freehold, as it stand today, helps scrupulous, resourceful land dealers, Land Mafias and similar other persons. It is neither in public interest nor satisfies test of fairness and reasonableness of public policy nor consistent with constitutional provisions, in particular, Article 14 of Constitution of India. However, we are not expressing any final opinion on this aspect but this Court desires that it is high time and sooner is the better, that State Government must re-examine entire policy and if purpose is only to augment revenue, Government should opt for public auction so that it may get best price or policy should be confined for the benefit of have-nots i.e. poor landless and weaker sections of the Society.

204. Now, we come to question (vii).

205. Petitioners are rank-trespassers, as we have already said. Therefore, they have no right over land in dispute. Still respondent's authority has given opportunity to petitioners by means of notice in question. Even otherwise, if petitioners would have been a valid leaseholder, their rights under lease would have been contractual and in the matter of contract, it has been repeatedly held that principles of natural justice are not applicable.

206. In State of Gujarat and Ors. vs. Meghji Pethraj Shah Charitable Trust and Ors., 1994(3) SCC 552, Court held:

"We are unable to see any substance in the argument that the termination of arrangement without observing the principle of natural justice (audi alteram partem) is void. The termination is not a quasi-judicial act by any stretch of imagination; hence it was not necessary to observe the principles of natural justice. It is not also an executive or administrative act to attract the duty to act fairly. It was- as has been repeatedly urged by Sri Ramaswamy - a matter governed by a contract/agreement between the parties. If the matter is governed by a contract, the writ petition is not maintainable since it is a public law remedy and is not available in private law field, e.g., where the matter is governed by a non-statutory contract."

207. Following aforesaid decision in Pimpri Chinchwad Municipal Corporation and Ors. vs. Gayatri Construction Company and Anr., 2008(8) SCC 172 Court has held that in the matter of non-statutory contract, High Court should not have entertained writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution.

208. No provision could be shown by counsel for petitioners which requires an opportunity of hearing to petitioners before resumption of land. In any case, by means of impugned notice, petitioners have been given enough time to vacate the land and thereafter only State shall take steps for possession, if vacant possession is not given by petitioners.

209. In the circumstances, question (vii) is answered against petitioners.

210. In view of above discussion, we do not find any merit in the petition. It is accordingly dismissed.

211. However, considering the facts and circumstances and also the fact that petitioners already enjoyed interim order passed by this Court and continued in possession over land in dispute for last almost more than a year, we direct petitioners to vacate disputed land within one month from the date of delivery of judgment.

212. No costs.

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Subedar Mishra

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C., Sri Ajit Kumar Singh (Addl. Advocate General), Sri Nimai Das & Sudhanshu Srivastava (Addl. C.S.C.)

A. Civil Law - Nazul property – Nature and meaning – Nazul is an Arabic word. It refers to a land annexed to Crown. During British Regime, immoveable property of individuals, Zamindars, Nawabs and Rajas when confiscated for one or the other reason, it was termed as 'Nazul property' – It was neither acquired nor purchased after making payment – In Legal Glossary 1992 meaning of the term 'Nazul' has been given as 'Rajbhoomi' – It is only such land which is owned and vested in the State on account of its capacity of Sovereign, and application of right of bona vacantia. (Para 16 and 17)

B. Constitution of India – Article 296 – Principle of escheat/ bona vacantia/ Doctrine of lapse – Empowering the king to take property – Recognized under common law of England – These principle would have been applicable prior to enforcement of Constitution of India – Article 296 has retained power of

State to get ownership of such land, in respect whereof principle of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' applied – This power continued to apply after enactment of Constitution with the only modification that if such land is situate within the territory of State Government, it will vest in State and in other cases, it will vest in Union of India. (Para 19 and 22)

Held – Thus the land in question which is admittedly 'Nazul', belonged to the category as discussed above i.e. it came to be vested and owned by State in its capacity of Sovereign and right of bona vacancia. When acquisition is made under the provisions of a Statute, purpose of acquisition is already known and State pay its price but when land is owned by State, which is Nazul, objective of use of such land is not predetermined but it can be utilized by State for larger public welfare and its benefit, as necessitated from time to time. In other words 'Nazul' land forms the asset owned by State in trust for the people in general who are entitled for its use in the most fair and beneficial manner for their benefit. State cannot be allowed to distribute such largesse by pick and choose or to some selected groups etc.

C. Civil Law - Government Grant Act, 1895 – Preamble – Purpose – Doubts have arisen to the extent and operation of T.P. Act, 1882 and to the power of Crown (later substituted by word "Government") to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers of land made by it or under its authority, hence to remove such doubts, GG Act, 1895 was enacted. (Para 39)

D. Civil Law - Government Grant Act, 1895 – Section 2 and 3 – Transfer of Property Act, 1882 – Grant of Nazul – Governing factor – Where 'Nazul' land is let out to a person by Government under agreement of lease i.e. Grant, it is governed by GG Act, 1895 and rights of parties therefore have to be seen in the light of stipulations contained in the document of 'Grant' – 'Grant' includes a property transferred on lease though in some cases, 'Grant' may result in wider interest i.e. transfer of title etc. – Whatever may be nature of document of transfer i.e. instrument of 'Grant', the fact remains that terms and conditions of 'Grant' shall be governed by such document and it shall prevail over any other law including TP Act 1882 – One cannot take resort to TP Act, 1882 to wriggle out of any condition or limitation etc. imposed in terms of document of 'Grant'. (Para 68)

E. Civil Law - Government Grant Act, 1895 – Section 3 – Nazul Land – Procedure to take possession – Where a lease has been granted under the terms of GG Act, 1895, then what procedure has to be followed is provided by Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 which says that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such creation, conferment or Grant referred to in Section 2, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor – Any decree or direction of a Court of Law or any rule of law, statute or enactments of the Legislature, to the contrary notwithstanding. (Para 72)

Held – Thus, for the purpose of resumption/ re-entry of land, State Government can follow procedure prescribed in the terms of lease as it is a special procedure for such purpose and it is not necessary to look into any other procedure prescribed in law.

F. (Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Allahabad Anglo Indian Association through its Secretary Mr. Larry Adrian Michael French has filed this petition under Article 226 of Constitution of India challenging order dated 31.08.2018 passed by Collector, Allahabad (respondent 2) informing petitioner that State Government has exercised right of resumption/re-entry over disputed Nazul land, therefore, it should be vacated by petitioner within two months failing which possession shall be taken forcibly at the cost of petitioner.

2. Dispute relates to Plot no.131, Civil Station Allahabad, area 11 acres 1730 square yards, situate at 9th Thornhill Road.

3. Secretary of State for India in Council executed a lease deed dated 07.05.1921 in favour of Anglo Indian Association granting lease of aforesaid Nazul Plot No.131 for a period of 50 years commencing from 12.06.1917. It was said in the lease deed that earlier lease was executed on 12.06.1867 in favour of one Robert Andrew Farhe for a period of 50 years and after expiry of said period a new lease was to be executed, hence, said lease was executed. Several bungalows were constructed over leased land for residence of Anglo Indian persons. Last extension of lease was vide renewal dated 07.03.1984 which commenced from 1967 and expired in 1997. Petitioner then made an application for renewal of lease but the same remained pending and ultimately vide order dated 12.03.2012 respondent-2 cancelled lease granted to petitioner and matter was referred to State Government. A meeting was held in the Office of Secretary, Housing and Urban Planning on 26.11.2015 in which Representatives of Petitioner-Association as also Additional District Magistrate (Nazul) Allahabad and Special Officer on Duty, Allahabad Development Authority (hereinafter referred to as "ADA") participated. Following decision was taken in the said meeting :

"(1) दि आल इण्डिया एग्लो इण्डियन एसोसिएशन, शाखा इलाहाबाद का पट्टा निरस्त किए जाने से सम्बन्धित जिलाधिकारी, इलाहाबाद के आदेश दिनांक 12.03.2012, जो तकनीकी दृष्टि से सही नहीं पाया गया है को शासन के आदेश के माध्यम से निरस्त करने की कार्यवाही की जाय।

(2) दि आल इण्डिया एग्लो इण्डियन एसोसिएशन, शाखा इलाहाबाद (पट्टेदार) द्वारा पट्टे के नवीनकरण हेतु जिलाधिकारी, इलाहाबाद को नियमानुसार आवेदन पत्र प्रस्तुत करेंगे।

(3) जिलाधिकारी, इलाहाबाद इस प्रकरण का परीक्षण कर तथ्यात्मक रिपोर्ट अपनी संस्तुति सहित राज्य सरकार को उपलब्ध करायेंगे। राज्य सरकार

द्वारा इस संबंध में मेरिट के आधार पर सुसंगत नियमों के अन्तर्गत सक्षम स्तर से निर्णय लेकर अग्रिम कार्यवाही की जायेगी।

"(1) Proceeding to be conducted through order of the Government for cancellation of order dated 12.03.2012 of District Magistrate, Allahabad pertaining to cancellation of lease granted to All Indian Anglo Indian Association, Branch Allahabad, which order has been found not to be technically correct.

(2) An application shall be presented as per Rules to the District Magistrate, Allahabad by All India Anglo Indian Association, Allahabad Branch (Lease Holder) for renewal of lease.

(3) District Magistrate, Allahabad after examining this matter shall make available the factual report along with his recommendation to State Government. Further action shall be taken by State Government after ensuring decision at the level of Competent Authority, on merits under the relevant Rules." (English translation by Court)

4. Thereafter respondent 2 has passed order dated 31.08.2018 pointing out that lease expired on 11.06.1997 and now land in dispute is required for "public purpose" in view of the fact that Allahabad has been selected to be developed as "Smart City" and disputed land which has total area of 11 acres and 203 square yards i.e. 44683.69 square meter is required for development of a 'Park', therefore, State Government has resumed/re-entered upon the land in dispute. Aforesaid order has been challenged on the ground that large number of families are residing in disputed land and they cannot be evicted in such arbitrary manner; Collector has passed order without giving any opportunity to show cause and in violation of principles of natural justice; petitioner has right of free hold in view of policy of State Government which cannot be defeated by exercising right of re-entry/resumption and petitioner cannot be evicted without following the procedure prescribed in law.

5. Respondents 2 and 3 have filed counter affidavit wherein it is admitted that Nazul Plot-131 Civil Station, Allahbad was demised to Petitioner-Association vide Indentures of lease dated 07.05.1921. The term of lease was lastly renewed for the period upto 11.06.1997 vide lease deed dated 07.03.1984 which commenced from 12.06.1967. Lease was governed by the provisions of Government Grants Act, 1895 (hereinafter referred to as "G. G. Act, 1895") and exercising its right as per terms and condition of lease read with G. G. Act, 1895, State Government has resumed/re-entered disputed land of which lease has already expired. The right of re-entry in the light of similar circumstances, has been upheld by this Court in Chintamani Ghosh and another vs. State of U. P. and others, 2001 (2) UPLBEC 1003. Respondents have also relied upon Hajee S.V.M., Mohd. Jamaludeen Bros and Co. vs. Govt. of T. N., 1997 (3) SCC 456, State of U. P. Vs. (Emphasis added)

(English Translation by Court)

8. The terms and conditions thus clearly show that whenever land in dispute is required by Lessor for 'public purpose', it can require Lessee to remove constructions existing on disputed land by giving a month's notice and after expiry of one month, can take possession of disputed land within two months. If Lessor intends to purchase constructions existing on disputed land, it shall make payment of such amount, as determined by Secretary of U.P. Government, Department of Housing and Urban Development.

9. It is in terms of aforesaid stipulation of lease-deed that notice in question has been given for resumption/re-entry over land in dispute.

10. Counsel for petitioner has challenged impugned notice broadly on the ground that :

i. Issue of renewal of lease was already in progress and a meeting in this regard had already been held on 26.11.2015 wherein it was decided that petitioner shall submit application for renewal of lease in accordance with relevant provisions and thereafter District Magistrate shall examine the matter and submit report but without proceeding in the light of aforesaid decision, in an arbitrary and abrupt manner, impugned order has been passed.

ii. Petitioners' possession over property in dispute after expiry of lease was never obstructed and no action was taken for eviction or ejectment of petitioners from land in dispute. Meaning thereby respondents by conduct admitted lease rights of petitioners and valid possession over land in dispute. That being so, land in dispute could not have been resumed by exercising power with reference to GG Act, 1895 which was already repealed before impugned order was passed.

iii. In any case, if petitioner's continuation in possession after expiry of lease in 1986 was unauthorized in view of provisions of Uttar Pradesh Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P. Act, 1972"), petitioners cannot be evicted or ejected from disputed land without following procedure prescribed in the said Act.

iv. Right of resumption exercised by respondents under lease-deed, which has expired long back, is illegal since in 2018 no deed was operating and resumption by State vide impugned order cannot be read in continuation with lease deed which has already expired in 1997.

v. State Government has granted approval for resumption of land in dispute on proposal made by Collector without giving any opportunity to petitioners, therefore, impugned order including approval order granted by State Government is in violation of principles of natural justice.

11. Per contra, learned Additional Advocate General appearing for State of U.P. and Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of A.D.A. advanced argument virtually in the light of pleadings and objections raised in the counter affidavit, which we have already given in detail hereinabove and further elaborate while discussing issues raised in these writ petitions.

12. From rival submissions, issues which, in our view, require to be adjudicated in these writ petitions are :

i. What is "Nazul"?

ii. What is/are Statute(s) governing Crown (late, "Government") Grant of land owned by Crown (Government) i.e. Nazul? Its status and effect.

iii. Whether right of resumption exercised by State is in accordance with law?

iv. Whether petitioners can be evicted by State Government by giving a notice and following the condition prescribing procedure in the lease deed or State has to follow procedure laid down under U.P. Act, 1972?

v. Whether impugned notice and order of approval of State Government for resumption/re-entry over land in dispute is invalid on account of lack of opportunity granted to petitioners. In other words, "whether principles of natural justice are applicable when State Government chose to exercise right of resumption/re-entry in respect of land owned by it"?

13. We have framed above questions in the light of the fact that it is admitted by all the parties that land in dispute is 'Nazul' and owned by State Government.

14. Questions (i) and (ii), in our view, can be taken together.

15. Every land owned by State Government is not termed as 'Nazul' and therefore it has become necessary to understand, what is 'Nazul'. State Government may own land by having acquired and vested in various ways, which includes vesting of land in the capacity of a Sovereign body and having right of bona vacantia. Property may also be acquired and owned by State by way of acquisition under the Statute relating to acquisition of land or by purchase through negotiation or gift by an individual or in similar other manners. All such land, which is owned and vested in State Government results in making the State, owner of such land, but in legal parlance, the term "Nazul" is not applicable to all such land.

16. It is only such land which is owned and vested in the State on account of its capacity of Sovereign, and application of right of bona vacantia, which is covered by the term 'Nazul', as the term is known for the last more than one and half century. In Legal Glossary 1992, fifth edition, published by Legal Department of Government of India, at page 589, meaning of the term 'Nazul' has been given as 'Rajbhoomi, i.e., Government land'.

17. Nazul is an Arabic word. It refers to a land annexed to Crown. During British Regime, immoveable property of individuals, Zamindars, Nawabs and Rajas when confiscated for one or the other reason, it was termed as 'Nazul property'. The reason being that neither it was acquired nor purchased after making payment. In the old record, when such land was referred in Urdu, this kind of land was shown as 'Jaidad Munzabta'.

18. For dealing with such property, under the authority of Lt. Governor of North Western Provinces, two orders were issued in October, 1846 and October, 1848. Therein, after the words "Nazul property", its english meaning was given as 'Escheats to the Government'. Sadar Board of Revenue on May 20, 1845 issued a circular order in reference to "Nazul land" and in para 2 thereof it mentioned, "The Government is the proprietor of those land and no valid title to them can be derived but from the Government". Nazul land was also termed as "Confiscated Estate". Under Circular dated July 13, 1859, issued by Government of North Western Provinces, every Commissioner was obliged to keep a final confiscation statement of each District and lay it before Government for orders.

19. Right of King to take property by 'escheat' or as 'bona vacantia' was recognized by common law of England. Escheat of property was Lord's right of re-entry on real property held by a tenant, dying intestate, without lawful heirs. It was an incident of Feudal Tenure and based on the want of a tenant to perform Feudal services. On the tenant dying intestate without leaving any lawful heir, his estate came to an end and Lord, by his own right and not by way of succession or inheritance from the tenant, re-entered real property as owner. In most cases, land escheated to Crown as the 'Lord Paramount', in view of gradual elimination of Intermediate or Mesne lords since 1290 AD. Crown takes as 'bona vacantia' goods in which no one else can claim property. In Dyke v. Walford 5 Moore PC 434= 496-13 ER 557 (580) it was said 'it is the right of the Crown to bona vacantia to property which has no other owner'. Right of the Crown to take as "bona vacantia" extends to personal property of every kind. The escheat of real property of an intestate dying without heirs was abolished in 1925 and Crown thereafter could not take such property as bona vacantia. The principle of acquisition of property by escheat, i.e., right of Government to take on property by 'escheat' or 'bona vacantia' for want of a rightful owner was enforced in Indian territory during the period of East India Company by virtue of Statute 16 and 17 Victoria, C. 95, section 27.

20. We may recollect, having gone through history, that prior to 1857, several Estates were taken over by British Company i.e. East India Company by way of annexation. Doctrine of lapse applied in Jhansi was another kind of above mentioned two principles.

21. The above provisions had continued by virtue of section 54 of Government of India Act, 1858, section 20(3)(iii) of Government of India Act, 1915 and section 174 of Government of India Act, 1935. After enactment of Constitution of independent India, Article 296 now continue above provision and says:

'Subject as hereinafter provided, any property in the territory of India which, if this Constitution had not come into operation, would have accrued to His Majesty or, as the case may be, to the Ruler of an Indian State by escheat or lapse, or as bona vacantia for want of a rightful owner, shall if it is property situate in a State, vest in such State, and shall, in any other case, vest in the Union.' (Emphasis added)

22. Article 296, therefore, has retained power of State to get ownership of such land, in respect whereof principle of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' would have been applicable prior to enforcement of Constitution of India. The above power continued to apply after enactment of Constitution with the only modification that if such land is situate within the territory of State Government, it will vest in State and in other cases, it will vest in Union of India. Vesting of land and giving ownership to State Government or Union of India under Article 296 is clearly in respect of a land, which will come to it by way of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' and not by way of acquisition of land under some Statute or purchase etc.

23. In Pierce Leslie and Co. Ltd. Vs. Miss Violet Ouchterlony Wapsnare, AIR 1969 SC 843, Court has considered above principles in the context of 'Sovereign India' as stands under Constitution after independence, and, has observed :

"....in this country the Government takes by escheat immoveable as well as moveable property for want of an heir or successor. In this country escheat is not based on artificial rules of common law and is not an incident of feudal tenure. It is an incident of sovereignty and rests on the principle of ultimate ownership by the State of all property within its jurisdiction". (Emphasis added)

24. Court also placed reliance on Collector of Masulipatam v. C. Vencata Narainapah 8 MIA 500, 525; Ranee Sonet Kowar v. Mirza Himmut Bahadoor (2) LR 3 IA 92, 101, Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. State of Bombay [1958] SCR 1122, 1146, Superintendent and, Legal Remembrancer v. Corporation of Calcutta [1967] 2 SCR 170, 204.

25. Judicial Committee in Cook v. Sprigg (1899) AC 572 while discussing, 'what is an act of State', observed :

"The taking possession by Her Majesty, whether by cession or by any other means by which sovereignty can be acquired, was an act of State."

26. This decision has been followed in Raja Rajinder Chand v. Mst. Sukhi, AIR 1957 SC 286.

27. In Nayak Vajesingji Joravarsingji v. Secretary of State for India in Council AIR 1924 PC 216, Lord Dunedin said :

"When a territory is acquired by a sovereign State for the first time, that is an act of State. It matters not how the acquisition has been brought about. It may be by conquest, it may be by cession following on treaty, it may be by occupation of territory hitherto unoccupied by a recognised ruler. In all cases the result is the same. Any inhabitant of the territory can make good in the municipal courts established by the new sovereign only such rights as that sovereign has, through his officers, recognised. Such rights as he had under the rule of predecessors avail him nothing."

28. In Dalmia Dadri Cement Co. Ltd. v. CIT [1958] 34 ITR 514 (SC) :

AIR 1958 SC 816, Court said (page 523 of 34 ITR) :

*"The expression 'act of State' is, it is scarcely necessary to say, not limited to hostile action between rulers resulting in the occupation of territories. It includes all acquisitions of territory by a sovereign State for the first time, whether it be by conquest or cession." (Emphasis added)

29. In Promod Chandra Deb v. State of Orissa AIR 1962 SC 1288, Court said, 'Act of State' is the taking over of sovereign powers by a State in respect of territory which was not till then a part of its territory, either by conquest, treaty or cession, or otherwise.

30. To the same effect was the view taken by a Constitution Bench in Amarsarjit Singh v. State of Punjab AIR 1962 SC 1305, where in para 12, Court said:

*"It is settled law that conquest is not the only mode by which one State can acquire sovereignty over the territories belonging to another State, and that the same result can be achiev*ed in any other mode which has the effect of establishing its sovereignty."

31. In Thakur Amar Singhji v. State of Rajasthan AIR 1955 SC 504, in para 40, Court said :

*"The status of a person must be either that of a sovereign or a subject. There is no tedium quid. The law does not recognise an intermediate status of a person being partly a sovereign and partly a subject and when once it is admitted that the Bhomicharas had acknowledged the sovereignty of Jodhpur their status can only be that of a subject. A subject might occupy an exalted position and enjoy special privileges, but he is none the less a subject..."

32. In State of Rajasthan vs. Sajjanlal Panjawat AIR 1975 SC 706 it was held that Rulers of the erstwhile Indian States exercised sovereign powers, legislative, executive and judicial. Their firmans were laws which could not have been challenged prior to Constitution. Court relied on earlier decisions in Director of Endowments, Govt. of Hyderabad vs. Akram Ali, AIR 1956 SC 60, and Sarwarlal vs. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1960 SC 862.

33. In Promod Chandra Deb vs. State of Orissa AIR 1962 SC 1288 "act of the State" was explained in the following words :

'an "act of State" may be the taking over of sovereign powers either by conquest or by treaty or by cession or otherwise. It may have happened on a particular date by a public declaration or proclamation, or it may have been the result of a historical process spread over many years, and sovereign powers including the right to legislate in that territory and to administer it may be acquired without the territory itself merging in the new State.'

34. This decision has been followed later in Biswambhar Singh vs. State of Orissa 1964 (1) SCJ 364, wherein Court said:

*16. Thus, a territory acquired by a sovereign State is an Act of State but the land comprising territory does not become the land owned by State. The land owned by State may come to it in various ways, like confiscation, purchase, escheat or bona vacantia, gift, etc. In such a case the ownership vests in State, like any other individual and State is free to deal with the same in a manner like any other owner may do so.

*17. Thus 'Nazul' is a land* vested in State for any reason whatsoever that is cession or escheat or bona vacantia, for want of rightful owner or for any other reasons and once land belong to State, it will be difficult to assume that State would acquire its own land. It is per se impermissible to acquire such land by forcible acquisition under Act, 1894, since there is no question of any transfer of ownership from one person to another but here State already own it, hence there is no question of any acquisition.

35. Thus the land in question which is admittedly 'Nazul', belonged to the category as discussed above i.e. it came to be vested and owned by State in its capacity of Sovereign and right of bona vacancia. When acquisition is made under the provisions of a Statute, purpose of acquisition is already known and State pay its price but when land is owned by State, which is Nazul, objective of use of such land is not predetermined but it can be utilized by State for larger public welfare and its benefit, as necessitated from time to time. In other words 'Nazul' land forms the asset owned by State in trust for the people in general who are entitled for its use in the most fair and beneficial manner for their benefit. State cannot be allowed to distribute such largesse by pick and choose or to some selected groups etc.

37. In other words, we can say that initially land owned by State used to be allotted in the form of 'Grant' by British Government. No specific statutory provisions were available to govern it. TP Act, 1882 was enacted to govern transfer of immovable property. Sections 10 to 12 of TP Act, 1882 made provisions invalidating, with certain exceptions, all conditions for forfeiture of transferred property on alienation by transferee and all limitations over consequent upon any such alienation or any insolvency of or attempted alienation by him.

38. Apprehending that above provisions of TP Act, 1882, may be construed as a fetter upon discretion of Crown in creation of inalienable Jagirs in 'Grants', acting upon advice that it would not be competent for Crown to create an inalienable and impartible Estate in the land comprised in Crown Grant, unless such land has heretofore descended by custom as an impartible Raj, it sought to make a separate Statute to give supremacy to the provisions contained in Crown's Grant, notwithstanding any other law including TP Act, 1882. With this objective, 'GG Act 1895' was enacted.

39. Preamble of GG Act, 1895 gives purpose of its enactment stating that doubts have arisen to the extent and operation of TP Act, 1882 and to the power of Crown (later substituted by word "Government") to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers of land made by it or under its authority, hence to remove such doubts, GG Act, 1895 was enacted.

40. Section 2 of GG Act, 1895, as it was initially enacted, read as under:

"2. Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government grants.- Nothing in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, contained shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein heretoforce made or hereafter to be made by or on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen Empress, Her heirs or successors, or by or on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council to, or in favour of, any person whomsoever; but every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed." (Emphasis added)

41. The above provision was amended in 1937 and 1950. The amended provision read as under :

"2. Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government grants.- Nothing in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, contained shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein heretoforce made or hereafter to be made by or on behalf of the Government to, or in favour of, any person whomsoever; but every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed."

42. Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 read as under :

"Government grants to take effect according to their tenor.- All provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations over contained in any such grant or transfer as aforesaid shall be valid and the effect according to their tenor, any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary notwithstanding."

43. In the State of Uttar Pradesh, vide Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960 (U.P. Act No.XIII of 1960), Sections 2 and 3 of GG Act, 1895, were substituted by Section 2, as under :

"2. (1) Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government Grants.- Nothing contained in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein, heretoforce made or hereafter to be made, by or on behalf of the Government to or in favour of any person whomsoever; and every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed."

(2) U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 not to affect certain leases made by or on behalf of the Government.- Nothing contained in the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1938, or the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926, shall affect, or be deemed to have ever affected any rights, created, conferred or granted, whether before or after the date of the passing of the Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960, by leases of land by, or on behalf of, the Government in favour of any person; and every such creation, conferment or grant shall be construed and take effect, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939, or the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926.

(3) Certain leases made by or on behalf of the Government to take effect according to their tenor.- All provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such creation, conferment or grant referred to in Section 2, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor, any decree or direction of a court of law or any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature, to the contrary notwithstanding :

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent, or be deemed ever to have prevented, the effect of any enactment relating to the acquisition of property, land reforms or the imposition of ceiling on agricultural land."

44. A perusal of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 shows two things :

i. A declaration is made that any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein, made by or on behalf of Government, in favour of any person, on and after enactment of GG Act, 1895, would not be governed by provisions of TP Act, 1882 i.e. nothing contained in TP Act, 1882 shall apply to such Grant, transfer or interest.

ii. A clarification that a Grant or Transfer, referred to in Section 2, when is to be construed and given effect, it shall be done in such manner and by treating as if TP Act, 1882 has not been passed.

45. Thus, GG Act, 1895, in fact, was a declaratory Statute. First declaration is in respect of Grant or transfer of land or creation of any interest, as the case may be, to exclude TP Act, 1882 for all purposes. Second part of Section 2 clarified that while construing and giving effect to a Grant or Transfer, referred to in Section 2, it will be presumed that TP Act, 1882 has not been passed at all.

54. In Section 2(1) of GG Act, 1895, as amended in Uttar Pradesh, we do not find any distinction vis a vis what has been said in Section 2 of GG Act, 1895. There is an addition in GG Act, 1895 in its application to Uttar Pradesh, by inserting sub-section (2) in Section 2, a provision in respect of U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 also, making a similar declaration, as made in sub section (1) in respect of TP Act, 1882.

47. Sub-section (3) of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 protected certain leases, already made, declaring the same to be valid in the light of insertion of sub-section(1) of Section 2 in the State of Uttar Pradesh and that is why, notwithstanding any decree or direction of Court of law, leases already made, were validated, which otherwise might have been affected by the provisions of U.P. Tenancy Act, 1938 or Agra Tenancy Act, 1926.

48. Proviso to sub-section (3) of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 further declares that all provisions of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 will have no effect when land is sought to be acquired under the provisions of Statute relating to acquisition or for giving effect to a Statute relating to land reforms or imposition of ceiling on agricultural land.

49. Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 is not available in State of U.P. after U.P. Amendment Act, 1960 since Sections 2 and 3 of Principal Act virtually got amalgamated in the form of Section 2, by Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960. However, intent, effect and declaration by legislature is almost pari materia with the only addition that in State of U.P., U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 are also excluded in the same manner as was done in respect of TP Act, 1882.

50. Sections 2 and 3 of GG Act, 1895 were considered in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad, 1973(2) SCC 547 and in para 16, Court said :

*"Section 3 of the Government Grants Act declares the unfettered discretion of the Government to impose such conditions and limitations as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of the land be. The meaning of Sections 2 and 3 of the Government Grants is that the scope of that Act is not limited to affecting the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act only. The Government has unfettered discretion to impose any conditions, limitations, or restrictions in its grants, and the right, privileges and obligations of the grantee would be regulated according to the terms of the grant, notwithstanding any provisions of any statutory or common law."

51. Again in Hajee S.V.M. Mohamed Jamaludeen Bros. & Co. vs. Government of Tamil Nadu (1997) 3 SCC 466, Court said that combined effect of two sections of GG Act, 1895 is that terms of any Grant or terms of any transfer of land made by Government would stand insulated from tentacles of any statutory law. Section 3 places terms of such Grant beyond reach of any restrictive provision contained in any enacted law or even equitable principles of justice, equity and good conscience adumbrated by common law, if such principles are inconsistent with such terms. Court said :

*"The two provisions are so framed as to confer unfettered discretion on the government to enforce any condition or limitation or restriction in all types of grants made by the government to any person. In other words, the rights, privileges and obligations of any grantee of the government would be completely regulated by the terms of the grant, even if such terms are inconsistent with the provisions of any other law."

(Emphasis added)

52. In Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and Another (2012) 7 SCC 278 observations made in para 16 in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad (supra) have been reproduced and followed.

53. In State of U.P. and others vs. United Bank of India and others (2016)

2 SCC 757, in para 30 of the judgment, Court said :

"Indisputably, the lease of nazul land is governed by the Government Grants Act, 1895. Sections 2 and 3 of the Government Grants Act, 1895 very specifically provide that the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act do not apply to government lands..."

54. Thus, a 'Grant' of a Nazul will be governed by terms and conditions contained in the instrument/deed of Grant, wholly unaffected by any Statute providing otherwise. It cannot be doubted that the lease granted in the case in hand is/was a 'Grant' governed by GG Act, 1895. Broadly, 'Grant' includes 'lease'.

55. The term "Grant" has not been defined in GG Act, 1895. What a 'Grant' would mean is of importance for the reason that GG Act, 1895 has used the term "Grant". Therefore, it has to be seen "whether a lease executed by State in respect of land owned by it and covered by the term "Nazul", through a lease deed or instrument of lease or indenture of lease, whatever the term used, will constitute a "Grant" of State or it is something else.

56. In Black's Law Dictionary, Eighth Edition, at page 719, the word "Grant" has been defined as under :

"Grant, n. 1. An agreement that creates a right of any description other than the one held by the grantor. Examples include leases, easements, charges, patents, franchises, powers,and licenses. 2. The formal transfer of real property. 3. The document by which a transfer is effectd; esp., DEED. 4. The property or property right so transferred."

57. Interestingly, in Black's Law Dictionary, 'Grant' has been said to be of various kinds and it has enumerated seven types of 'Grant' as under:

"Community grant. A grant of real property made by a government (or sometimes by an individual) for communal use, to be held in common with no right to sell. A community grant may set out specific, communal uses for the p roperty, such as for grazing animals or a playground. Cf. Private grant.

Escheat grant. A government's grant of escheated land to a new owner. - Also termed escheat patent.

imperfect grant. 1. A grant that requires the grantee to do something before the title passes to another. Cf. Perfect grant. 2. A grant that does not convey all rights and complete title against both private persons and government, so that the granting person or political authority may later disavow the grant. See Paschal v. Perex, 7 Tex. 368 (1851).

inclusive grant. A deed or grant that describes the boundaries of the land conveyed and excepts certain parcels within those boundaries from the conveyance, usu. Because those parcels of land are owned or claimed by others.- Also termed inclusive deed.

office grant. A grant made by a legal officer because the owner is either unwilling or unable to execute a deed to pass title, as in the case of a tax deed. See tax deed under DEED.

Perfect grant. A grant for which the grantor has done everything required to pass a complete title, and the grantee has done everything required to receive and enjoy the property in fee. Cf. Imperfect grant private grant. A grant of real property made to an individual for his or her private use, including the right to sell it. Private grants made by a government are often found in the chains of title for land outside the original 13 states, esp. in former Spanish and Maxican possession."

58. In Corpus Juris Secundum, A Complete Restatement of the Entire American Law, as developed by All Reported Cases, Volume XXXVIII, word "Grant" has been defined at page 1066-1070, as under :

"Grant - In General - A word which has a peculiar and appropriate meaning in the law, and is to be construed and understood according to such meaning; but its signification, in particular cases is to be determined from its connection and the manner of its use.

As a Noun

In General. The act of granting; a bestowing or conferring; a boon, a concession, a gift; also the thing granted or bestowed. As applied to grants by public authority, the word "grant" implies the conferring by the sovereign power of some valuable privilege, franchise, or other right of like character on a corporation, person, or class of persons; an act evidenced by letters patent under the great seal, granting something from the king to a subject. In a somewhat different sense, an admission of something as true.

As a Contract. A grant is said to be a contract executed, that is, one in which the object of the contract is performed. Ordinarily, the essential elements of a contract are necessary to constitute a grant, such as competent parties and a subject matter, a legal consideration, a mutuality of agreement and of obligation. As in the case of other contracts in writing, it ordinarily comprehends something more than the mere execution of the instrument; it includes a delivery of it. It is not indispensable, however, that technical words be used.

Transfer of Property. As a technical term, originally used to signify a conveyance of an incorporeal hereditament whereof livery could be had, but now of far more extended application, see Deeds (1 c notes 54 - 63). While the term is commonly used to denote private conveyances, it has been characterized as a nomen generalissimum, applicable to all sorts of conveyances, and in this sense has been defined as a transfer of property, real or personal, by deed or writing. The following notes contain examples of what, under particular circumstances and according to the subject matter and the context, the term may be applied to, or be held to include or what the term may be held not to include.

Transferring property. An operative word of transfer, technically applicable to real estate, although not necessarily so. It is made use of in deeds of conveyance of lands to import a transfer; and in this application has been defined as meaning to convey; to make conveyance of; to transfer property by an instrument in writing.

As used in a will, to devise or to bequeath."

59. In Words and Phrases, Permanent Edition, Volume 18A Gone-Gyrotiller, word "Grant" has been defined at page 379, as under :

To grant means to give over, to make conveyance of, to give the possession or title to, to convey-usually in answer to petitioner; to confer or bestow, with or without compensation, particularly in answer to prayer or request; to admit as true when disputed or not satisfactorily proved; to yield belief to; to allow; to yield; to concede. Grant is usually regarded as synonymous with give, confer, bestow, convey, transfer, admit, allow, concede. As a noun, the term signifies: (1) The act of granting; a bestowing or conferring; concession; admission of something as true. (2) The thing granted or bestowed; a gift; a boon. (3) a transfer of property by deed or writing, especially an appropriation or conveyance made by the government, as a grant of land."

60. In Jowitts Dictionary of English Law, Second Edition by John Burke (Volume 1), word "Grant" has been defined at page 870, as under:

"Grant :a common law conveyance.

The sovereign's grants are matters of record, and are either letters patent or writs close.

"Grant" is the term commonly applied to rights created or transferred by the Crown, e.g., grants of pensions, patents, charters, franchises. It is also used in reference to public money devoted to special purposes. See Exchequer Grants."

61. In Biswas Encyclopedic Law Dictionary (Legal & Commercial) Third Edition 2008, word "Grant" has been defined at page 737, as under:

"GRANT. The act of granting; something granted, especially a gift for a particular purpose; a transfer of property by deed or writing; the instrument by which such a transfer is made; also the property so transferred.

62. In P Ramanatha Aiyar's "The Law Lexicon", Fourth Edition 2017, word "Grant" has been defined at page 762-763, as under :

An operative word of conveyance, particularly appropriate to deeds of grant, properly so called, but used in other conveyances also, such as deeds of bargain and sale, and leases.

"This word is taken largely where any thing is granted or passed from one to another, and in this sense it doth comprehend feofments, bargains and sales, gifts, leases, charges, and the like; for he that doth give, or sell, doth grant also and thus it is sometimes in writing or by deed, and sometimes it is by word without writing. But the word being taken more strictly and properly, it is the grant, conveyance, or gift, by writing of such an Incorporeal thing as lieth in grant, and not in livery, and cannot be given or granted by word only without deed, or it is the grant by such persons as cannot pass anything from them but by deed, as the King, bodies corporate, &c. And this albeit it may be made by other most proper to this purpose"

leases are property. Biswanath Prasad v. Union of India, AIR 1965 SC 821, 825. [Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Developments) Act (67 of 1957), S. 5(1)]

The expression "grant" is wide enough to take within its sweep a grant by the government to the Girasdar and is not limited to a grant by the Girasdar to the tenant. Digvijaysingh Ji v. Manji Savda, AIR 1969 SC 370, 372. [Saurashtra Land Reforms Act (25 of 1951), S. 18]

"GRANT, BESTOW, CONFER. Honours, distinctions, favours, privileges are conferred. Goods, gifts, endowments are bestowed. Requests, prayers, privileges, favours, gifts, allowances, opportunities are granted. A peculiar sense attaches to the word Grant as a legal term, as a piece of land granted to a noble or religious house. So Blackstone speaks of "the transfer of property by sale, grant, or conveyance." (Smith. Syn. Dis.)"

63. Under Indian Easements Act, 1882, (hereinafter referred to as "IE Act, 1882"), definition of "licence" in Section 52 says that it is the Grant of a right made by the Grantor. Sections 53 and 54 of IE Act, 1882 also refer to grant of licence. Thus, without a "Grant" in general sense, licence cannot be created. This is how definition of "licence" under IE Act, 1882 vis a vis the term "Grant" was considered in Hajee S.V.M. Mohamed Jamaludeen Bros. & Co. (supra).

64. Court also said that though the term "Grant" is not defined in GG Act, 1895, but it is quite evident that this word has been used in GG Act, 1895 in its ethnological sense and therefore, it should get its widest import.

65. In Mohsin Ali vs. State of M.P. AIR 1975 SC 1518, Court said :

*"in the widest sense '*grant' may comprehend everything that is granted or passed from one to another by deed. But commonly the term is applied to rights created or transferred by the Crown e.g. grants of pensions, patents, charters, franchise."
(Emphasis added)

66. Court in Hajee S.V.M. Mohamed Jamaludeen Bros. & Co. (supra), in para 16, said that word "Grant" used in GG Act, 1895 could envelop within it, everything granted by the government to any person. A licence obtained by a person by virtue of agreement would also fall within the ambit of "Grant" envisaged in GG Act, 1895.

67. In Pradeep Oil Corporation vs. Municipal Corporation of Delhi and others (2011) 5 SCC 270, Court said that GG Act, 1895 is a special Statute and will prevail over general Statute i.e. TP Act, 1882. It says:

"In the present case grant has been made by the President of India in terms of Section 2 of the Government Grants Act, 1895 and the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 may have little bearing in the instant case. The former, i.e. the Government Grants Act, 1895 being a special statute would prevail over the general statute, i.e. the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. Accordingly, the rights and obligations of the parties would be governed by the terms of the provisions of Government Grants Act, 1895 whereunder the Government is entitled to impose limitations and restrictions upon the grants and other transfer made by it or under its authority."

68. Therefore, where 'Nazul' land is let out to a person by Government under agreement of lease i.e. Grant, it is governed by GG Act, 1895 and rights of parties therefore have to be seen in the light of stipulations contained in the document of 'Grant'. 'Grant' includes a property transferred on lease though in some cases, 'Grant' may result in wider interest i.e. transfer of title etc. Whatever may be nature of document of transfer i.e. instrument of 'Grant', the fact remains that terms and conditions of 'Grant' shall be governed by such document and it shall prevail over any other law including TP Act 1882. One cannot take resort to TP Act, 1882 to wriggle out of any condition or limitation etc. imposed in terms of document of 'Grant'.

69. In State of Uttar Pradesh, management of 'Nazul', in absence of statutory provisions, is governed by various administrative orders compiled in a Manual called "Nazul Manual". Government has made provisions for management of 'Nazul' through its own authorities namely District Magistrate or Commissioner, and, in some cases, through local bodies.

70. Nature of orders compiled in "Nazul Manual" in the context of 'Nazul' have been considered in State of U.P. vs. United Bank of India (supra) where Court has said that land and building in question is "Nazul" being property of Government maintained by State authorities in accordance with 'Nazul Rules' but not administered as a 'State property'. Court has also observed that lease of "Nazul" land is governed in accordance with GG Act, 1895. Sections 2 and 3 thereto very specifically provide that provisions of TP Act, 1882 do not apply to Government land. Section 3 says that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such 'Grant' or 'Transfer', as aforesaid, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor, any rule of law statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary notwithstanding. Thus the stipulations in "lease deed" shall prevail and govern the entire relations of State Government and lessee.

71. Superiority of the stipulations of Grant to deal with the relation between Grantor and Grantee has been reinforced in Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others (Supra). Therein dispute related to Plot No. 59, Civil Station, Allahabad, area 1 acre and 4272 sq. yard, i.e., 9112 sq. yard or 7618 sq. meter. Initially a lease deed was executed on 11.01.1868 by Secretary of State for India in Council in favour of one, Thomas Crowby, for a period of 50 years and it was signed by Commissioner, Allahabad Division on behalf of Secretary of State for India in Council. After expiry of lease, a fresh lease was executed for another period of 50 years on 12.04.1923 w.e.f. 01.01.1918. Lease holder with permission of Collector, Allahabad transferred lease rights to Purshottam Das in 1945. The legal heirs of Sri Purshottam Das, on 31.10.1958, transferred leasehold rights in favour of Smt. Shakira Khatoon Kazmi, Smt. Sabira Khatoon Kazmi and Smt. Maimoona Khatoon Kazmi. After the death of Smt. Maimoona Khatoon Kazmi, her legal heirs, namely, Azim Ahmad Kazmi, Omar Ahmad Kazmi, Shamim Ahmad Kazmi, Alim Ahmad Kazmi and Maaz Ahmad Kazmi also claimed lease rights by succession. Lease granted on 12.04.1923 w.e.f. 01.01.1918 expired on 31.12.1967. It was renewed on 19.03.1996 for a period of 30 years w.e.f. 01.01.1968 which period expired on 31.12.1997. Again on 17.07.1998 it was renewed for a further period of 30 years w.e.f. 01.01.1998. While lease was continuing, vide Government Order dated 15.12.2000, right of resumption was exercised by State Government. It directed resumption of possession of plot in question and lease deed was cancelled. District Magistrate, Allahabad served a notice dated 11.01.2001 to lease holders intimating them that State Government's order dated 15.12.2000 has cancelled lease and resumed possession of land in question as the same was required for public purpose. Notice also directed lease holders to remove structures standing on plot, failing which possession would be taken in accordance with Clause 3(c) of lease deed. Lease holders filed objections against notice to District Magistrate and also stated that they have sent representation/ objection to Chief Minister praying for revocation of Government Order dated 15.12.2000. District Magistrate passed order on 24.08.2001 rejecting objection of lease holders and sent a cheque of Rs. 10 lacs representing compensation for the building standing over plot. State authorities claimed that they took possession of open land on 01.09.2001. Lease holders filed writ petition which was dismissed vide judgment dated 07.12.2001, Shakira Khatoon Kazmi vs. State of U.P., AIR 2002 All 101. Lease holders challenged judgment dated 07.12.2001 in Supreme Court to the extent they failed. State Government filed appeal against that part of order of this Court wherein an observation was made that State Government is not entitled to take forcible possession though it may take possession of demised premises in accordance with procedure established by law. After considering Clause 3(c) of lease deed which provides for resumption of land for public purpose after giving a month's notice to lessee to remove any building standing at the time on demised premises and within two months of receipt of notice to take possession thereof on expiry of that period, and Sections 2 and 3 of GG Act, 1895, Court said that Clause 3(c) of lease deed confers power upon State Government that plot in question, if required by State Government for its own purpose or for any public purpose, it shall have the right to give one month's notice in writing to lessees to remove any building standing on the plot and to take possession thereof on expiry of two months from the date of service of notice. Court said that land, if required for any public purpose, State Government has absolute power to resume leased property and under the terms of Grant it is absolute, therefore, order of resumption is perfectly valid and cannot be said to be illegal. It also refers to an earlier instance where Nazul Plot No. 13, Civil Station, Allahabad situate in Civil Lines area was resumed by State Government for the purpose of construction of a 'Bus Stand' by exercising similar power, without initiating any proceeding under Land Acquisition Act, 1894. Resumption in that case was also challenged in Writ Petition No. 44517 of 1998, Sayed Shah Khursheed Ahmad Kashmi vs. State of U.P. and said writ petition was dismissed on 16.12.1999 by a Division Bench of this Court, whereagainst Special Leave Petition No. 4329 of 2000 was dismissed by Supreme Court on 07.09.2001. First question, therefore, in Azim Ahmad Kaxmi and others (supra), was answered in negative and in favour of Government.

72. With respect to procedure for taking possession, Supreme Court, while considering Question-2, said that in absence of any specific law, State Government may take possession by filing a suit. When a land is acquired under Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as "L.A. Act, 1894"), Government can take possession in accordance with provisions of said Act and in case of urgency, Collector can take possession after publication of notice under Section 9 and no separate procedure is required to be followed. Court said that similarly where a lease has been granted under the terms of GG Act, 1895, then what procedure has to be followed is provided by Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 which says that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such creation, conferment or Grant referred to in Section 2, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor; any decree or direction of a Court of Law or any rule of law, statute or enactments of the Legislature, to the contrary notwithstanding. It relied on earlier judgment in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad, 1973(2) SCC 547 holding that Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 declares unfettered discretion of Government to impose such conditions and limitation as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of land be. Then Court construing Clause 3(C) of lease deed said that it provides procedure for taking possession of demised premises when State Government re-enter or resume possession of demised land. Court in para 30 and 32 of judgment said:

"30. In the case of The State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad and Another, 1973(2) SCC 547, this Court held that the Section 3 of the Act declares the unfettered discretion of the Government to impose such conditions and limitation as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of land be. From Clause 3(C) of the deed, it is clear that the State of U.P. while granting lease made it clear that if the demised premises are at any time required by the lessor for his or for any public purpose, he shall have the right to give one month's clear notice to the lessee to remove any building standing at the time of the demised property and within two months' of the receipt of the notice to take possession thereof on the expiry of that period subject to the condition that the lessor is willing to purchase the property on the demised premises, the lessee shall be paid for such amount as may be determined by the Secretary to the Government of U.P. in the Nagar Awas Department."

"32. Under Clause 3(C) of the lease deed, the respondent-State was permitted resumption of the land which required for its own use or for public purpose and after giving one month's clear notice in writing is entitled to remove any building standing at the time on the demised premises and within two months of the receipt of the notice to take possession thereof subject to the condition that if the lessor is willing to purchase the building of the demised premises required to pay the lessee the amount for such building as may be determined by the Secretary to Government of U.P. in the Nagar Awas Department...."

73. Having said so, Court said, "we are of the view that there is no other procedure or law required to be followed, as a special procedure for resumption of land has been laid down under the lease deed".

74. Supreme Court then set aside direction of this Court that State will not take possession forcibly except in accordance with procedure established by any other law, by holding, that since special procedure for resumption is prescribed under lease deed, no direction otherwise could have been issued to State Government.

75. The above discussion makes it clear that 'Nazul' is a land owned and vested in State. It is such land which has vested in State by virtue of its 'Sovereignty' and incidence of 'Sovereignty' i.e. annexation, lapse and bona vacantia. Further, 'Grant' means transfer of property by a deed in writing and includes within its ambit, an instrument of lease/lease deed. Such 'Grant' is governed by provision of GG Act, 1895, which were applicable to 'Grants' executed on and after enforcement of GG Act, 1895 and rights and entitlement of private parties in respect of land, which was transferred to such person under such 'Grant' would be governed by terms and conditions contained in such 'Grant' and not by provisions of TP Act, 1882 or any other Statute. Moreover, in State of U.P., wherever applicable, U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 will also be inapplicable to such 'Grant'.

76. Thus, for the purpose of resumption/ re-entry of land, State Government can follow procedure prescribed in the terms of lease as it is a special procedure for such purpose and it is not necessary to look into any other procedure prescribed in law.

77. We, therefore, answer questions (i) and (ii) and hold that Nazul is land owned by Government having vested by escheat, bona vacantia or lapse. Further the terms and conditions of 'Grant' a Nazul would govern relation of lessor and lessee and any other statute providing otherwise has no application.

78. Now we deal with questions (iii), (iv) and (v) together.

79. Learned Senior Counsel has founded his submissions on the basis of Section 106 read with 116 TP Act, 1882 that petitioners having continued in possession after expiry of period of lease, are entitled to be treated as 'holding over' and could not have been evicted without following procedure prescribed under TP Act, 1882. When impugned order was passed, GG Act, 1895 stood already repealed as a result whereof TP Act, 1882 would apply and for this purpose he placed reliance on The State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad and another (supra). He also said that even if possession is unauthorized, petitioner cannot be evicted arbitrarily but State is bound to follow procedure consistent with law and principles of natural justice and for this purpose, reliance is placed on Supreme Court's judgments in Bishan Das and others Vs. State of Punjab and others AIR 1961 SC 1570, Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. and others Vs. Union of India (1986) 1 SCC 133, Yar Mohammad and another vs. Lakshmi Das and others AIR 1959 Allahabad 1 and Lallu Yeshwant Singh (dead) by his legal representative vs. Rao Jagdish Singh and others, AIR 1968 SC 620.

80. First we propose to consider argument advanced in the light of Repealing and Amending (Second) Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as "Repeal Act, 2017) and thereafter shall proceed to consider other aspects.

81. It is not in dispute that GG Act, 1895 has been repealed by Repeal Act, 2017. However, Section 4 thereof provides for saving of certain aspect and read as under :

and this Act shall not affect the validity, invalidity, effect or consequences or anything already done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred, or any remedy or proceeding in respect thereof, or any release or discharge of or from any debt, penalty, obligation, liability, claim or demand, or any indemnity already granted, or the proof of any past act or thing;

nor shall this Act affect any principle or rule of law, or established jurisdiction, form or course of pleading, practice or procedure, or existing usage, custom, privilege, restriction, exemption, office or appointment, notwithstanding that the same respectively may have been in any manner affirmed or recognized or derived by, in or from any enactment hereby repealed;

nor shall the repeal by this Act of any enactment revive or restore any jurisdiction, office, custom, liability, right, tittle, privilege, restriction, exemption, usage, practice, procedure or other matter or thing not now existing or any force.

82. Section 4 of Repeal Act, 2017 clearly protects effect or consequences or anything already done or suffered, which includes effect of expiry of lease and obligation of Lessee to surrender possession of leased land to State. Further, Lessee had already agreed that State can re-enter land at any point of time. They are bound by said clause of lease-deed. This is an obligation as also liability of petitioners and right of State incurred, acquired and accrued in view of terms of lease-deed. Mere fact that it has been exercised after repeal of GG Act, 1895 would make no difference since all earlier situations/ aspects have been protected by Section 4 of Repeal Act, 2017. Therefore, it cannot be said that after repeal of GG Act, 1895 by Repeal Act, 2017, petitioners' status would stood changed vis-a-vis disputed Nazul land in respect whereof State is entitled to re-entry and resume land in terms of conditions of lease.

83. Therefore, Repeal Act, 2017 does not have any effect upon the relationship of petitioner and respondents in respect of disputed land and all rights, obligations etc. shall continue to be governed under the said lease-deed.

84. So far as the application of principle of natural justice is concerned, lease is a matter of contract where principles of natural justice are not applicable. In State of Gujarat and Ors. vs. Meghji Pethraj Shah Charitable Trust and Ors., 1994(3) SCC 552, it has been held:

"We are unable to see any substance in the argument that the termination of arrangement without observing the principle of natural justice (audi alteram partem) is void. The termination is not a quasi-judicial act by any stretch of imagination; hence it was not necessary to observe the principles of natural justice. It is not also an executive or administrative act to attract the duty to act fairly. It was - as has been repeatedly urged by Sri Ramaswamy - a matter governed by a contract/agreement between the parties. If the matter is governed by a contract, the writ petition is not maintainable since it is a public law remedy and is not available in private law field, e.g., where the matter is governed by a non-statutory contract."

85. Following aforesaid decision in Pimpri Chinchwad Municipal Corporation and Ors. vs. Gayatri Construction Company and Anr., 2008(8) SCC 172 Court has held that in the matter of non-statutory contract, High Court should not have entertained writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution.

86. The contention further is that despite expiry of lease, petitioner had continued in possession over land in dispute, therefore, tacit approval/validity of possession and status of petitioner as Lessee can be assumed. He also said that once State has accepted in its meeting that petitioner must apply renewal of lease, it was under an obligation to stick to the said stand and could not take any otherwise view in the matter. In this regard, reliance is placed on this Court's judgment in Purushottam Dass Tandon and others vs. State of U.P., Lucknow and others AIR 1987 All. 56.

87. We propose to examine the aforesaid judgment in the backdrop of various Government Orders, which were up for consideration therein and facts of that case. We are informed that with regard to renewal of lease, Government circulated its policy through various G.Os. The first being G.O. issued in March, 1958 whereby Chief Minister directed that case for renewal of leases may be taken individually and possession may be taken only if lessee surrenders or lease stood terminated in absence of any request from lessee for grant of fresh lease. Thereafter, on 23.04.1959, a G.O. was issued to grant fresh lease in cases where lease has already expired but has not been renewed so far, or which is likely to expire within the next 5 or 6 years, on the terms and conditions given in the said G.O. The proposed premium in the said G.O. was objected by Lease Holders, whose leases had already expired or likely to expire. Several representations were sent to the Government. Some house-owners met the then Prime Minister Late Pt. Jawahar Lal Nehru, who had visited Allahabad in November or December, 1959. It resulted in issue of another G.O. dated 07.07.1960 whereby rate of premium on first three acres was reduced to Rs.2,000/- in each slab. It also permitted payment of premium in five instalments and reduced ground rent to Rs.100/- per acre. In the earlier G.O., there was an insistence on construction of Community latrines till sewer lines were laid but this insistence was given up in G.O. dated 07.07.1960. Lessees were granted further three months' time to get leases renewed. Still lease-holders did not comply and made representations to Government. On 21.03.1963, again a G.O. was issued declaring rates of premium for commercial sites. On 3.12.1965 a G.O. was issued indicating terms and conditions for renewal of leases for commercial and residential purposes and it was said that rates of premium and annual rent shall be as fixed by G.O.

dated 07.07.1960. Payment in five equal yearly instalments was continued but in special cases, Commissioner, Allahabad Division, Allahabad, was authorized to make recommendations to Government for enhancing number of instalments. This G.O. further insisted for renewal of existing leases on payment of at least one instalment, within one month of receipt of intimation by Lessee from Collector, or within three months of the date of expiry of lease, whichever is earlier. Deposit was to be deemed to be proper step on the part of Lessee to get a fresh lease executed by the Lessor. The G.O. of 1965 itself made a distinction between those whose leases had expired and others by describing them as sitting and existing lessees.

88. There was a second phase which covered period from 1966 to 1981. On 16.02.1966, U.P. Awas Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P.Act, 1965") was enacted for providing house sites and construction of building. G.O. dated 03.12.1965, thus was modified by G.O. dated 04.11.1968, and it was directed that leases of joint lessees should be renewed as far as possible for one acre only. Sub-division was permitted only where sub-divided plot was not less than 800 sq. yards. Concession in payment of lease money and ground rent was allowed on same terms and conditions as it was in G.O. dated 03.12.1965 but time was extended for payment of first instalment for those who had not received any intimation from Collector, by a further period of one month from the date of intimation by Collector. Clause (c) of G.O. dated 04.11.1968 categorically said that where steps have been taken for renewal of leases, as stated in earlier G.Os., fresh leases shall be sanctioned according to terms offered by Competent Authority.

89. In March, 1970, a G.O. was issued banning grant of renewal of leases all over the State, since Government was contemplating to bring out legislation on Urban Ceiling. This ban was lifted on 12.01.1972 but leases henceforth were to be sanctioned by State Government only. Commissioner and Collector could make recommendations only. Aforesaid G.O., however, provided that in all those cases where Government had sanctioned grant of leases but it could not be executed or registered because of ban imposed in 1970, steps may be taken immediately for its execution. Clause (ii) of G.O. provided that all those cases in which Collector or Commissioner had approved renewal but it could not be executed because of 1970 order, should be sent to Government immediately for acceptance. On 09.05.1972 Urban Building Ceiling Bill was introduced and on 11.07.1972 Uttar Pradesh Ceiling of Property (Temporary Restriction on Transfer), Ordinance, 1972 was promulgated in pursuance of Article 398 of Constitution of India. The Ordinance continued till it was replaced by Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P. Act, 1976"). The said Act was enacted to prevent concentration of Urban Property and discourage construction of luxurious houses. On 19.12.1972, provisions pertaining to Nazul were amended providing for maximum area permissible for renewal of leases of 2000 sq. yards plus land on which building was constructed. Remaining area was to be surrendered to Housing Board and Lessees were prohibited from sub-dividing or transferring any land. On 10.12.1976, Government issued an order superseding all previous orders in respect of renewal of leases of Civil Lines, Allahabad in view of Act, 1976 and laid down fresh terms and conditions for renewal of leases.

90. Lease Holders, whose lease had already expired or those who were sitting Lease Holders and leases were going to expire in a short period, came to this Court in various writ petitions. This entire bunch was decided in Purushottam Dass Tandon and others vs. State of U.P., Lucknow and others AIR 1987 All 56. In this bunch of writ petitions, facts, we have noted above with respect to various Government Orders, have been given in detail.

91. There were two categories of writ petitioners, before this Court, in Purushottam Dass Tandon and others (supra) as under :

(i) Those, to whom notices were given by Collector and who had complied with terms and conditions as laid down in various G.Os. issued from time to time prior to 1965; and

(ii) Those, to whom no notice was sent and till matter filed before the Court, no steps were taken and no order was passed in their favour.

92. Court held :

(I) A Lessor may, after expiry of period for which lease is granted, renew the same or resume i.e. re-enter. But if out of the two i.e. re-entry or resumption, the two divergent courses, he chooses to grant fresh lease or at least creates that impression by his conduct spread over long time, it results in abandonment.

(II) If the land is needed or building has to be demolished in public interest for general welfare, probably no exception can be taken as the interest of individual has to be sacrificed for the society. But asking Lessee to vacate land or remove Malba for no rhyme or reason but because State is the owner, cannot be accepted to be in consonance with present day philosophy and thinking about role of State.

(III) After Act, 1976, no person can successfully or validly claim to hold land, more than the Ceiling limit.

(IV) Some part of G.O. of 1981 was not consistent with Act, 1976. The rules contained in Nazul Manual are set of Administrative Orders or collections of guidelines issued by Government for the authorities to deal with Government property.

(V) When a G.O. is issued and its conditions are complied with, mere for bureaucratic delay, performance under the said G.O. cannot be denied. Therefore, Lessees, who had deposited first instalment, as directed in G.O. of 1965, were entitled to renewal of their lease.

(VI) After enactment of ceiling law, a Lessee cannot hold land more than the provided limit.

(VII) If leases were renewed in respect of those, who had acquired social or political status, whose names are given in para 15 of judgment, which includes, Dr. K. N. Katju, ex-Central Law Minister, Chief Minister and Governor, Dr. S. K. Verma, ex-Chief Justice and Governor, Sri B.L. Gupta, ex-Judge High Court, J. D. Shukla, I.C.S., O. N. Misra, I.A.S., when there was no justification not to give same benefit to others, similar benefit must have been given since most of them were also distinguished persons namely S.N. Kacker, ex-Central Law Minister, Solicitor General of India and Advocate General of the State, Sri S. S. Dhavan, ex-Judge, High Court and Governor and High Commissioner, Sri Lal Ratnakar Singh I.A.S. Ex-Member of Board of Revenue, M.L.Chaturvedi, ex-Judge, High Court and member of Union Public Service Commission, W. Broome, I.C.S. etc.

93. Aforesaid judgment was confirmed by Supreme Court by dismissing appeals preferred by State of U.P. and others i.e. State of U.P. and others vs. Purshottam Das Tandon and others 1989 Supp.(2) SCC 412. Supreme Court clarified that renewal of leases shall be subject to the provisions of U.P.Act, 1976 and High Court's judgment shall apply to all the leases to whom G.O. dated 23.04.1959, 02.07.1960 and 03.12.1965 were applicable and all those claiming under them. The order of Supreme Court reads as under :

"We have heard the learned counsel for both the parties at length. We do not find any infirmity in the judgment and order passed by the High Court against which these special leave petitions are preferred. We, however, make it clear that the leases that are going to be granted pursuant to the writ issued by the High Court will be subject to the provisions of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976. On the leases being granted, the Competent Authority under the Act shall be at liberty to apply the provisions of the Act and in particular section 15 thereof to all the leases and take away all the surplus lands in their hands after determining the surplus lands in accordance with law. The directions issued by the High Court can be availed of by all the lessees to whom the G.O. dated 23rd April, 1959, 2nd July, 1960 and 3rd December, 1965 were applicable and all those claiming under them.

All the Special Leave Petitions are dismissed accordingly with these observations. If any further directions are needed, the persons interested may approach the High Court."

94. Though, in the present case also reliance has been placed on the aforesaid judgment, but, we do not find that aforesaid judgment is applicable to petitioners or that petitioners have applied for renewal of lease in terms of relevant G.O., applicable at the relevant point of time. Hence, their status is of 'occupant' without any authority, inasmuch as, lease having already expired, possession over disputed Nazul land of petitioners or anybody else under them is without any authority of law.

95. We may also notice at this stage that as per own showing of petitioner, it is said that in the meeting held on 26.11.2015, Government directed Collector to consider issue of renewal of lease but there is no pleading and material on record that pursuant to aforesaid decision, petitioner submitted any application for renewal of lease in accordance with provision available and applicable in this regard. On the contrary, matter has been examined by State in the light of fact that Allahabad has been selected for development as "Smart City" and now huge land is required for development of various kinds of constructions and other establishments and various departments have made demand of huge land. Land in question has been found suitable for development of 'Park' and cannot be doubted that it is a 'Public Purpose', hence State Government has exercised its right in terms of lease deed for re-entry over land in dispute. The procedure for resumption/re-entry and eviction of petitioners is provided specifically in terms of lease deed and relevant clause we have already quoted hereinabove. The said procedure will override upon any other law.

96. After expiry of lease, status of lessee, who has continued in possession, is that of 'Tenant at sufferance', therefore, even a quit notice is not necessary to be given and Section 106 TP Act, 1882 is not at all attracted. Relying on earlier decision in R.V. Bhupal Prasad vs. State of A.P. (1995) 5 SCC 698 in a recent decision in Sevoke Properties Ltd. vs. West Bengal State Electricity Distribution Company Ltd. AIR 2019 SC 2664, Court held that once it is admitted by lessee that term of lease has expired, lease stood determined by efflux of time and in such case, a quit notice under Section 106 is not required to be given. Court has said as under :

"Once the lease stood determined by efflux of time, there was no necessity for a notice of termination Under Section 106." (Emphasis added)

97. In the above authority, Court held that after expiry of period of lease, status of Lessee becomes that of 'Tenant at sufferance'. 'Tenant at sufference' is one who comes into possession of land by lawful title, but who holds it by wrong after termination of term or expiry of lease by efflux of time. The tenant at sufferance is one who wrongfully continues in possession after extinction of a lawful title. There is little difference between him and a trespasser. Quoting from Mulla's Transfer of Property Act (7th Edn.) at page 633, Court observed that tenancy at sufferance is merely a fiction to avoid continuance in possession operating as a trespass. It has been described as the least and lowest interest which can subsist in reality. It, therefore, cannot be created by contract and arises only by implication of law when a person who has been in possession under a lawful title continues in possession after that title has been determined, without consent of person entitled. A "tenancy at sufferance" does not create relationship of landlord and tenant. Court further quoted from page 769 of Mulla's transfer of Property Act (7th Edition), that act of holding over after expiration of term does not necessarily create a tenancy of any kind. If lessee remains in possession after determination of term, the common law Rule is that he is a tenant at sufferance.

98. Further, so far as applicability of UP Act, 1972 is concerned, when a procedure for re-entry/resumption is provided under lease-deed itself, State is justified in following the said procedure and if any other procedure is also provided, it is not necessary to resort thereto since State has right of election and follow procedure, which is a part of agreement, which has been given overriding effect over any other law by GG Act, 1895.

99. In fact, we find that issues in this regard raised in writ petition are squarely covered by judgment in Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and Another (2012) 7 SCC 278. The matter is also covered by a Division Bench judgment of this Court in Writ Petition No.62588 of 2010, M/s Madhu Colonizers Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of U.P. & Ors., decided on 02.04.2013.

100. The questions (iii), (iv) and (v) therefore, are answered against petitioner.

101. We, therefore, find no merit in the writ petition and it is accordingly dismissed.

102. However, considering the facts and circumstances and also the fact that petitioner already enjoyed interim order passed by this Court and continued in possession over land in dispute for the last almost more than a year, we direct petitioner to vacate disputed land within one month from the date of delivery of judgment.

103. No costs.

A. Nazul property – Nature and meaning – Nazul is an Arabic word. It refers to a land annexed to Crown. During British Regime, immoveable property of individuals, Zamindars, Nawabs and Rajas when confiscated for one or the other reason, it was termed as 'Nazul property' – It was neither acquired nor purchased after making payment – In Legal Glossary 1992 meaning of the term 'Nazul' has been given as 'Rajbhoomi' – It is only such land which is owned and vested in the State on account of its capacity of Sovereign, and application of right of bona vacantia. (Para 23, 24 and 25)

B. Constitution of India – Article 296 – Principle of escheat/ bona vacantia/ Doctrine of lapse – Empowering the king to take property – Recognized under common law of England – These principle would have been applicable prior to enforcement of Constitution of India – Article 296 has retained power of State to get ownership of such land, in respect whereof principle of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' applied – This power continued to apply after enactment of Constitution with the only modification that if such land is situate within the territory of State Government, it will vest in State and in other cases, it will vest in Union of India. (Para 27 and 30)

Held – Thus the land in question which is admittedly 'Nazul', belonged to the category as discussed above i.e. it came to be vested and owned by State in its capacity of Sovereign and right of bona vacantia. When acquisition is made under the provisions of a Statute, purpose of acquisition is already known and State pay its price but when land is owned by State, which is Nazul, objective of use of such land is not predetermined but it can be utilized by State for larger public welfare and its benefit, as necessitated from time to time. In other words 'Nazul' land forms the assets owned by State in trust for the people in general who are entitled for its user in the most fair and beneficial manner for their benefit. State cannot be allowed to distribute such largesse by pick and choose manner or to some selected groups or in a whimsical manner etc.

C. Civil Law - Government Grant Act, 1895 – Preamble – Purpose of enactment – Doubts have arisen to the extent and operation of TP Act, 1882 and to the power of Crown (later substituted by word

"Government") to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers of land made by it or under its authority, hence to remove such doubts, GG Act, 1895 was enacted. (Para 47)

D. Civil Law - Government Grant Act, 1895 – Section 2 and 3 – Transfer of Property Act, 1882 – Grant of Nazul – Governing factor – Where 'Nazul' land is let out to a person by Government under agreement of lease i.e. Grant, it is governed by GG Act, 1895 and rights of parties therefore have to be seen in the light of stipulations contained in the document of 'Grant' – 'Grant' includes a property transferred on lease though in some cases, 'Grant' may result in wider interest i.e. transfer of title etc. – Whatever may be nature of document of transfer i.e. instrument of 'Grant', the fact remains that terms and conditions of 'Grant' shall be governed by such document and it shall prevail over any other law including TP Act 1882 – One cannot take resort to TP Act, 1882 to wriggle out of any condition or limitation etc. imposed in terms of document of 'Grant'. (Para 63)

E. Civil Law - Government Grant Act, 1895 – Section 3 – Nazul Land – Procedure to take possession – Where a lease has been granted under the terms of GG Act, 1895, then what procedure has to be followed is provided by Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 which says that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such creation, conferment or Grant referred to in Section 2, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor – Any decree or direction of a Court of Law or any rule of law, statute or enactments of the Legislature, to the contrary notwithstanding. (Para 68)

Held - Above discussion, therefore, leaves no manner of doubt that Grant/Lease of Nazul land shall be exclusively governed by stipulations/conditions/terms contained in Grant/Indenture of Lease and no Statute can be resorted to govern rights of parties over Nazul land, which will be governed by aforesaid Grant/Indenture of Lease.

F. Lease of Nazul land – Determination – Effect of transfer of lease – Any transfer by Lessee in any manner without prior permission of Lessor i.e. Government or its Authorized Agent will result in determination of lease without any further notice – Meaning thereby, transfer of lease was clearly prohibited under terms of lease unless permission of Government has already been obtained. (Para 74)

G. Nazul land – Entitlement to freehold – Effect of pendency of application – Merely by making an application for grant of freehold right, applicant did not acquire a vested right. (Para 123)

Held – We repeatedly inquired from learned counsel for petitioner as to which G.O. applies to the present case so as to entitle petitioner to claim conversion of lease rights of land in dispute into freehold, particularly when petitioner is virtually a rank-trespassor and is not covered by any of aforesaid G.Os., none could be shown to us.

H. Civil Law - Transfer of Property Act, 1882 – Application to the Government Grant – In the matter of Government Grant, it is governed by provisions of GG Act, 1895 and no other Statute including TP Act, 1882 will have any application – Procedure prescribed under lease deed for re-entry / resumption of land is a special procedure and that can be followed for reentry and no other Statute and no other procedure is to be observed. (Para 128)

Held – So far as application of Section 116 of TP Act, 1882 is concerned we find nothing to show that Section 116 of TP Act, 1882 has any application in the case in hand. It is attracted only when an assent of landlord has been obtained for continuation of lease after expiry of lease period, which is not the case in hand.

I. Possession – de facto possession and de jure possession – Protection of possession – De facto possession is when a person being in actual physical possession and de jure possession is possession in law. Constructive possession would be a possession through a representative, agent, tenant or a trustee. A person in de facto possession could be in adverse possession – Possession is a good title of right against anyone who cannot show a better title. However, when a person in possession may not be lawful, recovery of possession by owner must have sanction of law and it cannot proceed to dispossess the other in a forcible manner not recognized in law. (Para 133 and 135)

Held - In some authorities, possession of a person, who has entered therein initially, validly, but subsequently become unlawful, has been given a different meaning i.e. juridical possession. A tenant holding over without consent of landlord would be a juridical possession though his possession is not lawful. It is said that possession of tenant, post efflux of lease period, would not be treated as lawful possession still he would not be treated as a rank trespasser. Thus, here concept of possession as juridical possession has been introduced.

J. Constitution of India – Article 19(1)(a) and 19(1)(g) – Right to land – Right to land and to construct building is not derived from Articles 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(g) of Constitution, but springs from promise of contract between the parties. (Para 159)

Held – Whether there has been breach of contract of lease or there has been breach of any provision regulating lease rights and construction of building etc. are such questions which can be properly decided by taking detailed evidence involving examination and cross examination of witnesses and therefore, such rights can be enforced in common law proceedings by filing suit. In the present case, the right of re-entry is being enforced as per terms of Grant which prevailed over any other Law.

K. Civil Law - Transfer of property Act, 1882 – Section 106 – Tenant at sufferance – After expiry of lease, status of lessee, who has continued in possession, is that of 'Tenant at sufferance' – The tenant at sufferance is one who wrongfully continues in possession after extinction of a lawful title – It does not create relationship of landlord and tenant – Therefore, even a quit notice is not necessary to be given and Section 106 TP Act, 1882 is not at all attracted. (Para 184 and 185)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed under Article 226 of Constitution by Parsi Panchayat, Surat, through its General Attorney and Executor, Sri V.S. Pandey being aggrieved by order dated 18.08.2018 passed by District Magistrate, Allahabad (i.e. respondent-2) whereby he (respondent-2) has informed petitioner and two others that State Government has approved resumption/re-entry over land in dispute and therefore, it should be vacated by petitioners within fifteen days, whereafter possession shall be taken forcibly by respondents at the cost of petitioners.

2. Impugned order states that land in dispute is required by State for development of 'Parking place' in view of fact that Allahabad has been declared as 'Smart City' and has to be development accordingly and therefore, right of re-entry/resumption has been exercised by State.

3. Dispute relates to Nazul land, Plot H-1, Civil Station, area 1 Acre 2576 Square Yards whereupon a house is also constructed numbered as House No.24, Elgin Road, Allahabad.

4. A lease was executed by the Secretary of State for India in Council in favour of 'Roberston Karr' on 01.04.1862 in respect of Nazul Plot-H-1, Civil Station, area 3 acres, for a period of 50 years. After expiry of initial period of lease, it was renewed in favour of 'Marry Augustus Woolston' on 01.04.1912 for a period of 50 years which expired on 31.03.1962. Woolston transferred by sale, above plot in two parts, inasmuch as, vide sale deed dated 11.12.1945, House No.24 constructed on Nazul Plot H-1, Civil Station, area one acre and 2576 square yard, was transferred in favour of Sri K. S. Gandhi and his wife Smt. Tahmenna. Sri K. S. Gandhi applied for renewal of lease but no order was passed thereon. He died on 31.01.1978. Thereafter his legal heirs filed Writ Petition No.17616 of 1993 which came to be decided vide judgment dated 29.05.1998. As the case was covered by judgment of this Court in Purshottam Dass Tandon and others vs, State of U.P. And others, AIR 1987 All 56, a direction was issued by this Court to renew lease of disputed land. However, application for renewal was rejected by District Magistrate, Allahabad by order dated 11.07.1998. Petitioner filed Writ Petition No.34324 of 1998 challenging order dated 11.07.1998 but the same was dismissed on 29.11.2010 on the statement made by counsel for petitioner-Parsi Panchayat that writ petition has become infructuous.

5. State Government, in the meantime, brought in policy of allowing free hold of Nazul Land. Pursuant to Government Order (hereinafter referred to as "G.O.") dated 01.12.1998, petitioner deposited Rs.6,19,980/- as requisite amount for claiming property in dispute to be converted into free hold.

6. Petitioner's application for free hold was rejected by Additional District Magistrate (Nazul), Allahabad by order dated 01.09.2003 observing that Nazul plot in dispute was given on lease on 24.07.1912 to Marry Augustus Woolston for a period of 50 years and, therefore, sale deed dated 11.12.1945 could have resulted in transferring only lease rights and not title or ownership of property in dispute which belong to State Government. Further lease expired on 31.03.1962 and erstwhile lessee thereafter had no right to make "Will" of Nazul land in dispute, vide Will Deed dated 09.10.1972, and that too by imposing conditions upon State Government. No rights, therefore, could have flown from 'Will' dated 09.10.1972 in respect of Nazul plot in question to anyone. Hence petitioner's claim for renewal of lease on the basis of above "Will" was already rejected and for the same reason petitioner's claim for making disputed land free hold, was also found not sustainable. This order dated 01.09.2003 was challenged by petitioner in Writ Petition No.4716 of 2004. It was disposed of vide judgment dated 29.11.2010 directing Collector, Allahabad to re-consider petitioner's application and pass fresh order ignoring earlier order of rejection. Judgment dated 29.11.2010 reads as under :

"The grievance of the petitioners are that the petitioner have applied for grant of free hold right of the land in dispute, though the State has given no objection to declare it free hold. It has further been submitted that similarly situated persons have been granted free hold right.

Considering the facts and circumstances of the case we direct the Collector, Allahabad to re-consider and decide the application of the petitioner ignoring the earlier order of rejection, within a period of three months in the light of observations made above.

With the aforesaid observations the writ petition is disposed of finally."

7. Petitioner then made representation dated 16.12.2010. District Magistrate, Allahabad vide letter dated 28.07.2011 made certain queries, i.e. :

(1) Whether Nazul land in dispute is being used as desired in Will Deed dated 09.10.1972 as Nariman Home or is being used by anyone else and in what manner it is being used, should be informed?

(2) Whether D. F. Gandhi who has submitted various applications on behalf of Parsi Panchayat claiming himself to be General Attorney has got the said power of attorney registered, and if yes, its copy should be made available?

(3) Whether Sri D. F. Gandhi son of F. S. Gandhi resident of Gulista 18/30 Elgin Road, Lal Bahadur Shastri Marg, Allahabad is alive and if not, his death certificate be produced?

8. Petitioner submitted reply dated 18.08.2011 through his counsel wherein it was stated that building in question had several tenants and income from rent is used by Parsi Panchayat for running 'Nariman Home'; in the "Will" dated 09.10.1972 it is not mentioned anywhere that building on the disputed Nazul land shall be run as 'Nariman Home'; Power of attorney of D. F. Gandhi was not registered and D. F. Gandhi has died, whose death certificate was not available with petitioner but must be available with legal heirs of D. F. Gandhi.

9. Since no further action was taken by respondent 2 with respect to claim of petitioner for freehold of disputed Nazul land, Writ Petition No.1305 of 2012 was filed wherein an interim order was passed directing parties to maintain status quo on 10.01.2012. During pendency of above writ petition, respondent 2 passed order dated 18.08.2018 which has been challenged on the ground that respondents have allowed free hold in respect of several other properties and petitioners have been discriminated; resumption of land is violative of petitioner's constitutional right under Article 300 A of Constitution; without acquiring land under the provisions of "The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013" (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 2013), it could not have been taken by respondent 2; resumption cannot be made forcibly; procedure of Uttar Pradesh Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P. Act, 1972") has not been followed; petitioner's right of free hold cannot be defeated by exercising right of resumption and re-entry by respondents in a colourable manner; petitioner was allowed to deposit requisite amount for freehold, now respondents cannot turn otherwise; petitioner is entitled to freehold of land in dispute in the light of various Government Orders issued from time to time and the order impugned amounts to eviction of petitioner from house, standing on land in dispute and demolition thereof where they are residing for the last 30 years, it is arbitrary and illegal; similar orders were passed earlier in case of M/s Madhu Colonisers Pvt. Ltd Vs State of U. P. and others; and, Chintamani Ghose Trust and another Vs. State of U.P. and others, which were challenged in Writ Petitions No.31153 of 2009 and 35269 of 2009, and Division Bench of this Court vide judgment dated 27.05.2010 allowed writ petitions and set aside orders of District Magistrate and he was directed to pass fresh order with respect to claim of petitioners in those cases for conversion of lease right into free hold in accordance with law.

10. The writ petition has been contested by respondents and counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of respondent 2, sworn by Sri Gore Lal Shukla, Additional District Magistrate (Nazul), Prayagraj. It is said that Nazul Plot H-1, Civil Station initially demised by an Indenture of Lease dated 01.04.1862 to one Mr. Robert Carr. Disputed Nazul land, area 3 acres, was leased out for a period of 50 years for purpose of constructing a dwelling house. Thereafter lease was renewed by lease deed dated 24.07.1912 for a period of 50 years commencing from 01.04.1912. Lease was splitted into two parts comprising of Bungalow No.24, Elgin Road and Bungalow No.3, Strachey Road. In respect of site H-1, Bungalow No.24, Elgin Road, as desired by erstwhile lessee, in terms of earlier lease, another lease was executed on 18.06.1937 by Secretary of State for India in Council in favour of Mr. K.P. Modwell; period of lease remained the same and lease deed dated 18.06.1937 was only to recognize split of lease land; lease came to an end on 31.03.1962; aforesaid lease was governed by provisions of Government Grants Act, 1895 (hereinafter referred to as "GG Act, 1895"); Lease deed contained provision of re-entry and also obligation of surrender by lessee after expiry of period of lease; land in question was required for development as Parking Place and, therefore, a proposal was made to the Government for its resumption which was approved vide order dated 16.08.2018 and pursuant thereto, impugned order dated 18.08.2018 has been passed. It is further said that over land in dispute, illegally, a banquet hall namely 'Gangotri Garden' is being run; Government has right of resumption, and mere filing of application for free hold does not confer any right and in any case, the same has already been rejected. It is also pointed out that in respect of Nazul Plot 33 Civil Station, Allahabad land was resumed which was challenged by "M/S Madhu Colonisers Private Limited" in Writ Petition No.62588 of 2010 and reliance was placed on this Court's judgment dated 27.05.2010 in Writ Petitions 35269 of 2009 and 31153 of 2009 but Division Bench of this Court held that policy decision taken by Government for conversion of lease rights into free hold, will not have any adverse effect on the power of government to resumption of land under Clause 3 (c) of lease deed; this Court upheld the order of resumption by order dated 02.04.2013 and operative part of judgment reads as under :

"On a consideration of all the relevant materials, this Court finds that the State Government through the District Magistrate has committed no illegality in issuing the impugned notice and passing the impugned order. It is not possible to hold that the decision that the Multi Layer Parking facility is required to be constructed for public purpose suffers from any error or that the requirement is not for public purpose. It is also found that as nominee of the lessee, the petitioner-Company cannot have any larger rights that the lessee and once the order of the District Magistrate for resumption the land in exercise of power under Clause 3 (c) of the lease deed is held to be valid, the petitioner-Company, as a nominee, cannot have any surviving right to claim conversion of the lease hold rights into free hold. Infact, on valid resumption order being passed, the lease hold rights cease to exist and there can be no occasion for conversion of lease hold rights into freehold rights in such circumstances.

As a result, we find no merit in this petition. It is, accordingly, dismissed, Interim order of stay shall stand vacated. There shall be no order as to costs."

11. Respondents have also placed reliance on Chintamani Ghosh and another vs. State of U. P. and others, 2001 (2) UPLBEC 1003, Anand Kumar Sharam vs. State of U. P. and others, 2014 (2) ADJ 742, State of Andhra Pradesh vs. Kaithala Abhishekam, AIR 1964 AP 450, Union of India and others vs. Harish Chand Anand, AIR 1996 SC 203, Smt. Shakira Khatoon Kazmi and others vs. State of U. P. and others, 202 (1) AWC 226 and Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U. P. and others, 2012 (7) SCC 278.

12. In the rejoinder affidavit, petitioners have not stated anything new but reiterated what they have already said in the writ petition, therefore, we are not repeating the same.

13. We have heard Sri Satya Vrat Sahai, Advocate, holding brief of Sri Sunil Dutt Kautilya, learned counsel for petitioner, and Sri Ajit Kumar Singh, Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Nimai Das, Additional Chief Standing Counsel and Sri Sudhanshu Srivastava, Additional Chief Standing Counsel for State Authorities.

14. Learned counsel for petitioner broadly advanced his submissions as under :

i. It is true that lease expired on 31.03.1962 but before that disputed premises was already transferred to Sri K.S. Gandhi and his wife Smt. Tahmenna, therefore it has been succeeded by Sri D.F.Gandhi and in terms of Will of K.S.Gandhi, petitioner got possession and has applied for conversion of freehold. Petitioner has right of conversion of land in dispute as freehold, therefore, without taking any decision on said aspect, respondents cannot re-enter/resume land in dispute by means of impugned order.

ii. Petitioners' possession over property in dispute after expiry of lease was never obstructed and no action was taken for eviction or ejectment of petitioners from land in dispute. Meaning thereby respondents by conduct admitted lease rights of petitioners and valid possession over land in dispute. That being so, land in dispute could not have been resumed by exercising power with reference to GG Act, 1895 which was already repealed before impugned order was passed.

iii. State Government framed policy of conversion of lease into freehold and pursuant thereto petitioners submitted application for freehold of lease land but the said application was not decided for long. Petitioners are entitled to have lease rights converted into freehold as per relevant Government Orders.

iv. In any case, if petitioner's continuated possession after expiry of lease on 31.03.1962 was unauthorized in view of provisions of Uttar Pradesh Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P. Act, 1972"), he cannot be evicted or ejected from disputed land without following procedure prescribed in the said Act.

v. Right of resumption exercised by respondents under lease-deed, which has expired long back is illegal since in 2018 no deed was operating and resumption by State vide impugned order cannot be read in continuation with lease deed which had already expired 31.03.1962.

vi. Impugned order has been passed without any show cause notice or opportunity to petitioner, therefore, it is illegal.

15. Per contra, learned Additional Advocate General appearing for State of U.P. and Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of A.D.A. advanced argument virtually in the light of pleadings and objections raised in the counter affidavit, which we have already given in detail hereinabove and will further elaborate while discussing issues raised in this writ petition.

16. Before going into merits of rival submissions, some glaring important facts, we find necessary to recapitulate at this stage. Except lease deed dated 18.06.1937, copy of other lease-deeds have not been placed on record. Lease deed dated 18.6.1937 was executed to recognize splitting of land in two parts, but, for remaining lease term, it is not disputed that terms and conditions of said lease was same as contained in lease deed dated 01.4.1862. Subsequent renewal was in continuation of same terms and conditions. Some of the relevant terms and conditions of lease deed, therefore, which govern relationship of Lessor and Lessee in this case, are reproduced as under :

AND ALSO will not without the previous consent in writing of the said Collector erect or set up or suffer to be erected or set up on any part of the said premises hereby demised any messuage or building other than and except the messuage and buildings already erected and delineated upon the map hereto annexed.

AND THAT if in breach of the said preceding covenant any messuage or building is erected or set up or suffered to be erected or set up without such permission as aforesaid it shall be lawful for the Collector or for any person or persons duly deputed by him to cause such messuage or building to be pulled down after the expiration of fourteen days of his giving or causing to be given notice to the said lessee his Executors, Administrators and Assigns to remove the same which notice may be given either verbally or in writing upon the said premises. AND will not without the previous consent in writing of the said Collector make any alteration in the plan or elevation of the said buildings and out buildings or carry or permit to be carried on the said premises any trade or business whatsoever or use the same or permit the same to be used for any purpose other than that of a dwelling house

AND ALSO will not without the previous consent in writing of the said Collector grow any crops/ or keep any horses, cattle or other animals for hire or profit or allow the same to be done in or upon the said demised premises but shall use the same for the purposes of a garden or pleasure grounds attached to the said dwelling house

AND ALSO upon the breach of any of the aforesaid covenant the said lessee his Executors, Administrators or Assigns shall and will on demand pay or cause to be paid to the Secretary of State the sum of Rs. 500 by way of liquidated damages and not penalty and that on a second breach of the same it shall be lawful for the said Secretary of State his Successors or Assigns into and upon the same demised premises or any part thereof in the name of the whole to re-enter and the same to have again repossess and enjoy as in their former estate anything herein contain to the contrary notwithstanding

AND ALSO that the said lessee his Executors, Administrators and Assigns will not without the permission in writing of the said Collector or of some person authorized by him in that behalf construct thatch or cover or cause or permit to be constructed thatched or covered with grass reeds or other inflammable materials any building which shall or may be erected or constructed upon the said piece or parcel of land or ground, unless such thatch or roof or inflammable material shall be protected by a covering of tiles. And that if in breach of the said lastly preceding convent any building which shall or may be erected or constructed upon the said piece or parcel of land or ground be thatched or covered

17. Some dates, which are relevant for adjudication of this case may be stated in chronological manner, and, in brief, as under :

18. In the backdrop of aforesaid facts, we proceed to consider merits of writ petition and relief claimed by petitioner.

19. It is not in dispute that land in question is 'Nazul' but interestingly lease holder had sold out land by sale deed to third party and also subjected it to 'Will' ignoring Lessor and its authority, altogether. The entire transfer was made illegally i.e. sale without permission of lessor, and 'Will', not only without permission but after 10 years of expiry of lease. In these circumstances, some questions relating to 'Nazul Land' and also the terms and conditions of Lease, having importance, have arisen.

20. The first question would be, "what is Nazul?"

22. State Government may own land by having acquired and vested in various ways, which includes vesting of land in the capacity of a Sovereign body and having right of bona vacantia. Property may also be acquired and owned by State by way of acquisition under the Statute relating to acquisition of land or by purchase through negotiation or gift by an individual or in similar other manners. All such land, which is owned and vested in State Government results in making the State, owner of such land, but in legal parlance, the term "Nazul" is not applicable to all such land.

23. It is only such land which is owned and vested in the State on account of its capacity of Sovereign, and application of right of bona vacantia, which is covered by the term 'Nazul', as the term is known for the last more than one and half century.

24. In Legal Glossary 1992, fifth edition, published by Legal Department of Government of India, at page 589, meaning of the term 'Nazul' has been given as 'Rajbhoomi, i.e., Government land'.

25. Nazul is an Arabic word. It refers to a land annexed to Crown. During British Regime, immoveable property of individuals, Zamindars, Nawabs and Rajas when confiscated for one or the other reason, it was termed as 'Nazul property'. The reason being that neither it was acquired nor purchased after making payment. In old record, when such land was referred in Urdu, this kind of land was shown as 'Jaidad Munzabta'.

26. For dealing with such property, under the authority of Lt. Governor of North Western Provinces, two orders were issued in October, 1846 and October, 1848. Therein, after the words "Nazul property", its english meaning was given as 'Escheats to the Government'. Sadar Board of Revenue on May 20, 1845 issued a circular order in reference to "Nazul land" and in para 2 thereof it mentioned, "The Government is the proprietor of those land and no valid title to them can be derived but from the Government". Nazul land was also termed as "Confiscated Estate". Under Circular dated July 13, 1859, issued by Government of North Western Provinces, every Commissioner was obliged to keep a final confiscation statement of each District and lay it before Government for orders.

27. Right of King to take property by 'escheat' or as 'bona vacantia' was recognized by common law of England. Escheat of property was Lord's right of re-entry on real property held by a tenant, dying intestate, without lawful heirs. It was an incident of Feudal Tenure and based on the want of a tenant to perform Feudal services. On the tenant dying intestate without leaving any lawful heir, his estate came to an end and Lord, by his own right and not by way of succession or inheritance from the tenant, re-entered real property as Owner. In most cases, land escheated to Crown as the 'Lord Paramount', in view of gradual elimination of Intermediate or Mesne lords since 1290 AD. Crown takes as 'bona vacantia' goods in which no one else can claim property. In Dyke v. Walford 5 Moore PC 434= 496-13 ER 557 (580) it was said 'it is the right of the Crown to bona vacantia to property which has no other owner'. Right of the Crown to take as "bona vacantia" extends to personal property of every kind. The escheat of real property of an intestate dying without heirs was abolished in 1925 and Crown thereafter could not take such property as bona vacantia. The principle of acquisition of property by escheat, i.e., right of Government to take on property by 'escheat' or 'bona vacantia' for want of a rightful owner was enforced in Indian territory during the period of East India Company by virtue of Statute 16 and 17 Victoria, C. 95, section 27.

28. We may recollect, having gone through history, that prior to 1857, several Estates were taken over by British Company i.e. East India Company by way of annexation. Doctrine of lapse applied in Jhansi was another kind of above mentioned two principles.

29. The above provisions had continued by virtue of Section 54 of Government of India Act, 1858, section 20(3)(iii) of Government of India Act, 1915 and section 174 of Government of India Act, 1935. After enactment of Constitution of independent India, Article 296 now continues above provision and says :

'Subject as hereinafter provided, any property in the territory of India which, if this Constitution had not come into operation, would have accrued to His Majesty or, as the case may be, to the Ruler of an Indian State by escheat or lapse, or as bona vacantia for want of a rightful owner, shall if it is property situate in a State, vest in such State, and shall, in any other case, vest in the Union.' (Emphasis added)

30. Article 296, therefore, has retained power of State to get ownership of such land, in respect whereof principle of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' would have been applicable prior to enforcement of Constitution of India. The above power continued to apply after enactment of Constitution with the only modification that if such land is situate within the territory of State Government, it will vest in State and in other cases, it will vest in Union of India. Vesting of land and giving ownership to State Government or Union of India under Article 296 is clearly in respect of a land, which will come to it by way of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' and not by way of acquisition of land under some Statute or purchase etc.

31. In Pierce Leslie and Co. Ltd. Vs. Miss Violet Ouchterlony Wapsnare, AIR 1969 SC 843 Court has considered the above principles in the context of 'Sovereign India' as stands under Constitution after independence, and, has observed :

"....in this country the Government takes by escheat immoveable as well as moveable property for want of an heir or successor. In this country escheat is not based on artificial rules of common law and is not an incident of feudal tenure. It is an incident of sovereignty and rests on the principle of ultimate ownership by the State of all property within its jurisdiction".

32. Court also placed reliance on Collector of Masulipatam v. C. Vencata Narainapah 8 MIA 500, 525; Ranee Sonet Kowar v. Mirza Himmut Bahadoor (2) LR 3 IA 92, 101, Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. State of Bombay [1958] SCR 1122, 1146, Superintendent and, Legal Remembrancer v. Corporation of Calcutta [1967] 2 SCR 170.

33. Judicial Committee in Cook v. Sprigg (1899) AC 572 while discussing, 'what is an act of State', observed :

"The taking possession by Her Majesty, whether by cession or by any other means by which sovereignty can be acquired, was an act of State."

34. This decision has been followed in Raja Rajinder Chand v. Mst. Sukhi, AIR 1957 SC 286.

35. In Nayak Vajesingji Joravarsingji v. Secretary of State for India in Council AIR 1924 PC 216, Lord Dunedin said :

*"When a territory is acquired by a sovereign State for the first time, that is an act of State. It matters not how the acquisition has been brought about. It may be by conquest, it may be by cession following on treaty, it may be by occupation of territory hitherto unoccupied by a recognised ruler. In all cases the result is the same. Any inhabitant of the territory can make good in the municipal courts established by the new sovereign only such rights as that sovereign has, through his officers, recognised. Such rights as he had under the rule of predecessors avail him nothing."

36. In Dalmia Dadri Cement Co. Ltd. v. CIT [1958] 34 ITR 514 (SC) : AIR 1958 SC 816, Court said (page 523 of 34 ITR) :

*"The expression 'act of State' is, it is scarcely necessary to say, not limited to hostile action between rulers resulting in the occupation of territories. It includes all acquisitions of territory by a sovereign State for the first time, whether it be by conquest or cession."

(Emphasis added)

37. In Promod Chandra Deb v. State of Orissa AIR 1962 SC 1288, Court said, 'Act of State' is the taking over of sovereign powers by a State in respect of territory which was not till then a part of its territory, either by conquest, treaty or cession, or otherwise.

38. To the same effect was the view taken by a Constitution Bench in Amarsarjit Singh v. State of Punjab AIR 1962 SC 1305, where in para 12, Court said :

*"It is settled law that conquest is not the only mode by which one State can acquire sovereignty over the territories belonging to another State, and that the same result can be achieved in any other mode which has the effect of establishing its sovereignty."

39. In Thakur Amar Singhji v. State of Rajasthan AIR 1955 SC 504, in para 40, Court said :

*"The status of a person must be either that of a sovereign or a subject. There is no tedium quid. The law does not recognise an intermediate status of a person being partly a sovereign and partly a subject and when once it is admitted that the Bhomicharas had acknowledged the sovereignty of Jodhpur their status can only be that of a subject. A subject might occupy an exalted position and enjoy special privileges, but he is none the less a subject..."

40. In State of Rajasthan vs. Sajjanlal Panjawat AIR 1975 SC 706 it was held that Rulers of the erstwhile Indian States exercised sovereign powers, legislative, executive and judicial. Their firmans were laws which could not have been challenged prior to the Constitution. Court relied on earlier decisions in Director of Endowments, Govt. of Hyderabad vs. Akram Ali, AIR 1956 SC 60, and Sarwarlal vs. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1960 SC 862.

41. In Promod Chandra Deb vs. State of Orissa AIR 1962 SC 1288 "act of the State" was explained in the following words :

*"an "act of State" may be the taking over of sovereign powers either by conquest or by treaty or by cession or otherwise. It may have happened on a particular date by a public declaration or proclamation, or it may have been the result of a historical process spread over many years, and sovereign powers including the right to legislate in that territory and to administer it may be acquired without the territory itself merging in the new State."

42. This decision has been followed later in Biswambhar Singh vs. State of Orissa 1964 (1) SCJ 364, wherein Court said:

*"16. Thus, a t*erritory acquired by a sovereign State is an Act of State but the land comprising territory does not become the land owned by State. *The l*and owned by State may come to it in various ways, like confiscation, purchase, escheat or bona vacantia, gift, etc. In such a case the ownership vests in State, like any other individual and State is free to deal with the same in a manner like any other owner may do so.

17. Thus 'Nazul' is a land vested in State for any reason whatsoever that is cession or escheat or bona vacantia, for want of rightful owner or for any other reasons and once land belong to State, it will be difficult to assume that State would acquire its own land. It is per se impermissible to acquire such land by forcible acquisition under Act, 1894, since there is no question of any transfer of ownership from one person to another but here State already own it, hence there is no question of any acquisition." (Emphasis added)

43. Thus the land in question which is admittedly 'Nazul', belonged to the category as discussed above i.e. it came to be vested and owned by State in its capacity of Sovereign and right of bona vacantia. When acquisition is made under the provisions of a Statute, purpose of acquisition is already known and State pay its price but when land is owned by State, which is Nazul, objective of use of such land is not predetermined but it can be utilized by State for larger public welfare and its benefit, as necessitated from time to time. In other words 'Nazul' land forms the assets owned by State in trust for the people in general who are entitled for its user in the most fair and beneficial manner for their benefit. State cannot be allowed to distribute such largesse by pick and choose manner or to some selected groups or in a whimsical manner etc.

44. The second question up for consideration is "lease in question whether governed by provision of Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (hereinafter referred to as "TP Act, 1882") or GG Act, 1895 and what is inter-relationship of the two?"

etc., but in every case, lease was given to those persons who were faithful and had shown complete alliance to British Rule. The reason was that in respect of Nazul, no predetermined objective was available as was the case in respect of land acquired by State by way of acquisition under Statute of Acquisition after paying compensation or purchase. Further allocation of Nazul land by English Rulers used to be called "Grant".

46. In other words, we can say that initially land owned by State was used to be allotted in the form of 'Grant' by British Government. No specific statutory provisions were available to govern it. TP Act, 1882 was enacted to govern transfer of immovable property. Sections 10 - 12 of TP Act, 1882 made provisions invalidating, with certain exceptions, all conditions for forfeiture of transferred property on alienation by transferee and all limitations over consequent upon such alienation or any insolvency of or attempted alienation by him. Apprehending that above provisions of TP Act, 1882, may be construed as a fetter upon discretion of Crown in creation of inalienable Jagirs in 'Grants', acting upon advice that it would not be competent for Crown to create an inalienable and impartible Estate in the land comprised in the Crown Grant, unless such land has heretofore descended by custom as an impartible Raj, it was sought to make a separate Statute to give supremacy to the provisions contained in Crown's Grant, notwithstanding any other law including TP Act, 1882. With this objective, 'GG Act 1895' was enacted.

47. Preamble of GG Act, 1895 gives purpose of its enactment stating that doubts have arisen to the extent and operation of TP Act, 1882 and to the power of Crown (later substituted by word "Government") to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers of land made by it or under its authority, hence to remove such doubts, GG Act, 1895 was enacted.

48. Section 2 of GG Act, 1895, as it was initially enacted, read as under :

"Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government grants.- Nothing in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, contained shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein heretoforce made or hereafter to be made by or on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen Empress, Her heirs or successors, or by or on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council to, or in favour of, any person whomsoever; but every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed." (Emphasis added)

49. The above provision was amended in 1937 and 1950 and the amended provision read as under :

"2. Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government grants.- Nothing in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, contained shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein heretoforce made or hereafter to be made by or on behalf of the Government to, or in favour of, any person whomsoever; but every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed."

50. Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 read as under :

"Government grants to take effect according to their tenor.- All provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations over contained in any such grant or transfer as aforesaid shall be valid and the effect according to their tenor, any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary notwithstanding."

51. In State of Uttar Pradesh, vide Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960 (U.P. Act No.XIII of 1960), Sections 2 and 3 of GG Act, 1895, were substituted by Section 2, as under :

"2. (1) Transfer of Property Act, 1882, not to apply to Government Grants.- Nothing contained in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein, heretoforce made or hereafter to be made, by or on behalf of the Government to or in favour of any person whomsoever; and every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed."

(2) U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 not to affect certain leases made by or on behalf of the Government.- Nothing contained in the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1938, or the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926, shall affect, or be deemed to have ever affected any rights, created, conferred or granted, whether before or after the date of the passing of the Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960, by leases of land by, or on behalf of, the Government in favour of any person; and every such creation, conferment or grant shall be construed and take effect, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939, or the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926.

(3) Certain leases made by or on behalf of the Government to take effect according to their tenor.- All provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such creation, conferment or grant referred to in Section 2, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor, any decree or direction of a court of law or any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature, to the contrary notwithstanding :

*Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent, or be deemed ever to have prevented, t*he effect of any enactment relating to the acquisition of property, land reforms or the imposition of ceiling on agricultural land."

52. A perusal of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 shows two things :

i. A declaration is made that any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein, made by or on behalf of Government, in favour of any person, on and after enactment of GG Act, 1895, would not be governed by provisions of TP Act, 1882 i.e. nothing contained in TP Act, 1882 shall apply to such Grant, transfer or interest.

ii. A clarification that a Grant or Transfer, referred to in Section 2, when is to be construed and given effect, it shall be done in such manner and by treating as if TP Act, 1882 has not been passed.

53. Thus, GG Act, 1895 in fact was a declaratory Statute. The first declaration is in respect of Grant or transfer of land or creation of any interest, as the case may be, to exclude TP Act, 1882 for all purposes. The second part of Section 2 clarified that while construing and giving effect to a Grant or Transfer, referred to in Section 2, it will be presumed that TP Act, 1882 has not been passed at all.

54. In Section 2(1) of GG Act, 1895, as amended in Uttar Pradesh, we do not find any distinction vis a vis what has been said in Section 2 of GG Act, 1895. There is an addition in GG Act, 1895 in its application to Uttar Pradesh, by inserting sub-section (2) in Section 2, a provision in respect of U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 also, making a similar declaration, as made in sub section (1) in respect of TP Act, 1882.

55. Sub-section (3) of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 protect certain leases, already made, declaring the same to be valid in the light of insertion of sub-section(1) of Section 2 in the State of Uttar Pradesh and that is why, notwithstanding any decree or direction of Court of law, leases already made, were validated, which otherwise might have been affected by U.P. Tenancy Act, 1938 or Agra Tenancy Act, 1926.

56. Proviso to sub-section (3) of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 further declares that all provisions of Section 2 of GG Act, 1895 will have no effect when land is sought to be acquired under the provisions of Statute relating to acquisition or for giving effect to a Statute relating to land reforms or imposition of ceiling on agricultural land.

57. Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 is not available in State of U.P. after U.P. Amendment Act, 1960 since Sections 2 and 3 of Principal Act virtually got amalgamated in the form of Section 2, by Government Grants (U.P. Amendment) Act, 1960. However, intent, effect and declaration by legislature is almost pari materia with the only addition that in State of U.P., U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 are also excluded in the same manner as was done in respect of TP Act, 1882.

58. Sections 2 and 3 of GG Act, 1895 were considered in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad, 1973(2) SCC 547 and in para 16, Court said :

*"Section 3 of the Government Grants Act declares the unfettered discretion of the Government to impose such conditions and limitations as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of the land be. The meaning of Sections 2 and 3 of the Government Grants is that the scope of that Act is not limited to affecting the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act only. The Government has unfettered discretion to impose any conditions, limitations, or restrictions in its grants, and the right, privileges and obligations of the grantee would be regulated according to the terms of the grant, notwithstanding any provisions of any statutory or common law."

59. Again in Hajee S.V.M. Mohamed Jamaludeen Bros. & Co. vs. Government of Tamil Nadu (1997) 3 SCC 466, Court said that combined effect of two sections of GG Act, 1895 is that terms of any Grant or terms of any transfer of land made by a Government would stand insulated from tentacles of any statutory law. Section 3 places terms of such Grant beyond reach of restrictive provision contained in any enacted law or even equitable principles of justice, equity and good conscience adumbrated by common law, if such principles are inconsistent with such terms. Court said :

"The two provisions are so framed as to confer unfettered discretion on the government to enforce any condition or limitation or restriction in all types of grants made by the government to any person. In other words, the rights, privileges and obligations of any grantee of the government would be completely regulated by the terms of the grant, even if such terms are inconsistent with the provisions of any other law."

60. In Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and Another (2012) 7 SCC 278 observations made in para 16 in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad (supra) have been reproduced and followed.

61. In State of U.P. and others vs. United Bank of India and others (2016) 2 SCC 757, in para 30 of the judgment, Court said :

"Indisputably, the lease of nazul land is governed by the Government Grants Act, 1895. Sections 2 and 3 of the Government Grants Act, 1895 very specifically provide that the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act do not apply to government lands ....."
(Emphasis added)

62. Thus, a 'Grant' of a Nazul will be governed by terms and conditions contained in the instrument/deed of Grant, wholly unaffected by any Statute providing otherwise.

63. It neither can be doubted nor actually so urged by petitioner that the lease granted in the case in hand is/was a 'Grant' governed by GG Act, 1895. Broadly, 'Grant' includes 'lease'. In other words, where 'Nazul' is let out to a person by Government under agreement of lease i.e. Grant, it is governed by GG Act, 1895 and rights of parties therefore have to be seen in the light of stipulations contained in the document of 'Grant'. 'Grant' includes a property transferred on lease though in some cases, 'Grant' may result in wider interest i.e. transfer of title etc. Whatever may be nature of document of transfer, i.e. instrument of 'Grant', the fact remains that terms and conditions of 'Grant' shall be governed by such document and it shall prevail over any other law including TP Act 1882. One cannot take resort to TP Act, 1882 to wriggle out of any condition or limitation etc. imposed in terms of document of 'Grant'.

64. In the State of Uttar Pradesh, management of 'Nazul', in absence of statutory provisions, is governed by various administrative orders compiled in a Manual called "Nazul Manual". Here Government has made provisions of management of 'Nazul' through its own authorities namely District Magistrate or Commissioner, or, in some cases, through local bodies.

65. Nature of orders compiled in "Nazul Manual" in the context of 'Nazul' have been considered recently in State of U.P. vs. United Bank of India (supra) where Court has said that land and building in question is "Nazul" being property of Government, maintained by State authorities in accordance with 'Nazul Rules' but not administered as a 'State property'. Court has also observed that lease of "Nazul" land is governed in accordance with GG Act, 1895. Sections 2 and 3 thereto very specifically provide that provisions of TP Act, 1882 do not apply to Government land. Section 3 says that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such 'Grant' or 'Transfer', as aforesaid, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor, any rule of law statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary, notwithstanding. Thus stipulations in "lease deed" shall prevail and govern the entire relation of State Government and lessee.

66. In Pradeep Oil Corporation vs. Municipal Corporation of Delhi and others (2011) 5 SCC 270, Court said that GG Act, 1895 is a special Statute and will prevail over general Statute i.e. TP Act, 1882. It says:

*"In the present case grant has been made by the President of India in terms of Section 2 of the Government Grants Act, 1895 and the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 may have little bearing in the instant case. The former, i.e. the Government Grants Act, 1895 being a special statute would prevail over the general statute, i.e. the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. Accordingly, the rights and obligations of the parties would be governed by the terms of the provisions of Government Grants Act, 1895 whereunder the Government is entitled to impose limitations and restrictions upon the grants and other transfer made by it or under its authority." (Emphasis added)

67. Superiority of the stipulations of Grant to deal the relations between Grantor and Grantee has been reinforced in Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others (Supra). Therein dispute related to Plot No. 59, Civil Station, Allahabad, area 1 acre and 4272 sq. yard, i.e., 9112 sq. yard or 7618 sq. meter. Initially a lease deed was executed on 11.01.1868 by Secretary of State for India in Council, in favour of one, Thomas Crowby, for a period of 50 years and it was signed by Commissioner, Allahabad Division on behalf of Secretary of State for India in Council. After expiry of lease, a fresh lease was executed for another period of 50 years on 12.04.1923 w.e.f. 01.01.1918. Lease holder with permission of Collector, Allahabad transferred lease rights to Purshottam Das in 1945. The legal heirs of Sri Purshottam Das, on 31.10.1958, transferred leasehold rights in favour of Smt. Shakira Khatoon Kazmi, Smt. Sabira Khatoon Kazmi and Smt. Maimoona Khatoon Kazmi. After the death of Smt. Maimoona Khatoon Kazmi, her legal heirs, namely, Azim Ahmad Kazmi, Omar Ahmad Kazmi, Shamim Ahmad Kazmi, Alim Ahmad Kazmi and Maaz Ahmad Kazmi also claimed lease rights by succession. Lease granted on 12.04.1923 w.e.f. 01.01.1918 expired on 31.12.1967. It was renewed on 19.03.1996 for a period of 30 years w.e.f. 01.01.1968 which period expired on 31.12.1997. Again on 17.07.1998 it was renewed for a further period of 30 years w.e.f. 01.01.1998. While lease was continuing, vide Government Order dated 15.12.2000, right of resumption was exercised by State Government. It directed resumption of possession of plot in question and lease deed was cancelled. District Magistrate, Allahabad served a notice dated 11.01.2001 to lease holders intimating them that State Government's order dated 15.12.2000 has cancelled lease and resumed possession of land in question, as the same was required for public purpose. Notice also directed lease holders to remove structures standing on plot, failing which possession would be taken in accordance with Clause 3(c) of lease deed. Lease holders filed objections against notice to District Magistrate and also stated that they have sent representation/ objection to Chief Minister praying for revocation of Government Order dated 15.12.2000. District Magistrate passed order on 24.08.2001 rejecting objection of lease holders and sent a cheque of Rs. 10 lacs representing compensation for the building standing over plot. State authorities claimed that they took possession of open land on 01.09.2001. Lease holders filed writ petition which was dismissed vide judgment dated 07.12.2001, Shakira Khatoon Kazmi vs. State of U.P., AIR 2002 All 101. Lease holders challenged judgment dated 07.12.2001 in Supreme Court to the extent they failed. State Government filed appeal against part of order of this Court wherein an observation was made that State Government is not entitled to take forcible possession though it may take possession of demised premises in accordance with procedure established by law. After considering Clause 3(c) of lease deed which provides for resumption of land for public purpose after giving a month's clear notice to lessee to remove any building standing at the time on demised premises and within two months of receipt of notice, to take possession thereof on expiry of that period and Sections 2 and 3 of GG Act, 1895, Court said that Clause 3(c) of lease deed confers power upon State Government that plot in question, if required by Government for its own purpose or for any public purpose, it shall have the right to give one month's notice in writing to lessees to remove any building standing on the plot and to take possession thereof on expiry of two months from the date of service of notice. Court said that land, if required for any public purpose, State Government has absolute power to resume leased property. Under the terms of Grant, it is absolute, therefore, order of resumption is perfectly valid and cannot be said to be illegal. It also refers to an earlier instance where Nazul Plot No. 13, Civil Station, Allahabad situate in Civil Lines area was resumed by State Government for the purpose of construction of a 'Bus Stand' by exercising similar power, without initiating any proceeding under Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as "L.A. Act, 1894"). Resumption in that case was challenged in Writ Petition No. 44517 of 1998, Sayed Shah Khursheed Ahmad Kashmi vs. State of U.P. and said writ petition was dismissed on 16.12.1999 by a Division Bench of this Court, whereagainst Special Leave Petition No. 4329 of 2000 was dismissed by Supreme Court on 07.09.2001. First question, therefore, was answered in negative and in favour of Government.

68. With respect to procedure for taking possession, Supreme Court, while considering Question-2, said that in absence of any specific law, State Government may take possession by filing a suit. When a land is acquired under L.A. Act, 1894, Government can take possession in accordance with provisions of said Act and in case of urgency, Collector can take possession after publication of notice under Section 9 and no separate procedure is required to be followed. Court said that similarly where a lease has been granted under the terms of GG Act, 1895, then what procedure has to be followed is provided by Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 which says that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained in any such creation, conferment or Grant referred to in Section 2, shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor; any decree or direction of a Court of Law or any rule of law, statute or enactments of the Legislature, to the contrary, notwithstanding. Court relied on its earlier judgment in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad, 1973(2) SCC 547 holding that Section 3 of GG Act, 1895 declares unfettered discretion of Government to impose such conditions and limitation as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of land be. Then Court construing Clause 3(C) of lease deed said that it provides procedure for taking possession of demised premises when State Government re-enter or resume possession of demised land. Court in para 30 and 32 of judgment said:

"30. In the case of The State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad and Another, 1973(2) SCC 547, this Court held that the Section 3 of the Act declares the unfettered discretion of the Government to impose such conditions and limitation as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of land be. From Clause 3(C) of the deed, it is clear that the State of U.P. while granting lease made it clear that if the demised premises are at any time required by the lessor for his or for any public purpose, he shall have the right to give one month's clear notice to the lessee to remove any building standing at the time of the demised property and within two months' of the receipt of the notice to take possession thereof on the expiry of that period subject to the condition that the lessor is willing to purchase the property on the demised premises, the lessee shall be paid for such amount as may be determined by the Secretary to the Government of U.P. in the Nagar Awas Department."

"32. Under Clause 3(C) of the lease deed, the respondent-State was permitted resumption of the land which required for its own use or for public purpose and after giving one month's clear notice in writing is entitled to remove any building standing at the time on the demised premises and within two months of the receipt of the notice to take possession thereof subject to the condition that if the lessor is willing to purchase the building of the demised premises required to pay the lessee the amount for such building as may be determined by the Secretary to Government of U.P. in the Nagar Awas Department...."

69. Having said so, Court said, "we are of the view that there is no other procedure or law required to be followed, as a special procedure for resumption of land has been laid down under the lease deed". Supreme Court then set aside direction of this Court that State will not take possession forcibly except in accordance with procedure established by any other law, holding that since special procedure for resumption is prescribed under lease deed, no direction otherwise could have been issued to State Government.

70. The above discussion makes it clear that 'Nazul' is a land owned and vested in State. It is such land which has vested in State by virtue of its 'Sovereignty' and incidence of 'Sovereignty' i.e. annexation, lapse and bona vacantia. Further, 'Grant' means transfer of property by a deed in writing and includes within its ambit, an instrument of lease/lease deed. Such 'Grant' is governed by provision of GG Act, 1895, which were applicable to 'Grants' executed on and after enforcement of GG Act, 1895. Rights and entitlement of private parties in respect of land, which was transferred under such 'Grant' would be governed by terms and conditions contained in such 'Grant' and not by provisions of TP Act, 1882 or any other Statute. The terms and conditions of 'Grant' shall override any statute providing otherwise. Moreover, in State of U.P., wherever applicable, U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 and Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 will also be inapplicable to such 'Grant'.

71. Above discussion, therefore, leaves no manner of doubt that Grant/Lease of Nazul land shall be exclusively governed by stipulations/conditions/terms contained in Grant/Indenture of Lease and no Statute can be resorted to govern rights of parties over Nazul land, which will be governed by aforesaid Grant/Indenture of Lease.

72. The third question is, "Whether Lessee can transfer Nazul land itself to anyone or transfer, if any made, will result only transfer of lease rights or land itself, and, if transfer is not made in accordance with conditions of Indenture of Lease/Grant, what will be its effect and whether it will confer any valid right or interest in respect of Nazul land, subjected to transfer, upon such Transferree?"

73. We have reproduced contents of lease deed constituting terms and conditions to govern land in dispute. In almost every aspect, some restrictions on exercise of lease rights over Nazul land were imposed by Grantor/Lessor i.e. State and some of such instances are :

(i) Without permission, no erection etc. of building etc., except what was already existing and raised in accordance with map made part of lease deed dated 18.06.1937.

(ii) Without permission, no growing of any crop or keeping of horses, cattle or other animals for hire or profit was allowed.

(iii) Without permission, no construction of any thatched or covered with grass reeds or other inflammable material etc., was permissible.

(iv) At the end of tenure of lease or termination at will or determination, Lessee would peacefully and quietly leave, surrender and yield to the Lessor, the land together with all such erection etc., as were existing, if so desired by Lessor for taking over such erection etc. for valuation, but if it is not desired of taking such erection etc., then the same shall be removed by Lessee within such time, as directed by Lessor.

(v) No compensation was claimable by Lessee or his assign etc. for any building etc. in case lease is determined by re-entry for forfeiture and building etc. shall absolutely rest in Lessor as his own property.

(vi) Lessee or his agents shall not assign or underlet or otherwise part with the possession of the premises or any part thereof without permission of Secretary of State or his authorized person.

(vii) Any transfer without prior permission will cause lease-deed cease and determine but without prejudice however to the right of action of Lessor in respect or on account of any previous breach of any covenant or covenants.

(viii) If Government, at any time require to re-enter on site, it can do so, on paying value of all buildings that may be on the site, plus 10 per cent for recompense for resumption of lease and Lessee shall have no further claim of any sort against the Lessor. If building is not required by Lessor, it has to be removed by Lessor

74. Above conditions show that any transfer by Lessee in any manner without prior permission of Lessor i.e. Government or its Authorized Agent will result in determination of lease without any further notice. Meaning thereby, transfer of lease was clearly prohibited under terms of lease unless permission of Government has already been obtained.

75. Herein, it is not stated anywhere that on 11.12.1945, when sale deed was executed by Marry Augustum Woolston in favour of Sri K.S.Gandhi and his wife Smt. Tahmenna, any such permission was obtained from Government or his Authorized Authority namely Collector, Allahabad.

76. What is effect of such transfer has been considered in State of U.P. and others vs. United Bank of India and others (2016) 2 SCC 757. Court has held that any transfer without sanction of Lessor will be invalid and would not confer any valid right upon Transferee. In paras 39 and 40 of judgment, Court said :

40. In the present case there was nothing on the record to show that the lessee i.e. (ABP) has obtained any written sanction from the lessor i.e. Government before mortgaging his leasehold interest in the Nazul Land. Meaning thereby the mortgage done by the lessee in favour of the Bank itself is bad in law, which was done in clear violation of the terms of the lease deed i.e. mortgage of the Nazul land without previous sanction in writing of the State." (Emphasis added)

77. Further, Lessee i.e. Marry Augustum Woolston did not have any title or ownership over land in dispute. She had only lease rights over disputed land, therefore, she could have transferred only lease rights to Sri K.S.Gandhi and his wife Smt. Tahmenna and nothing more than that. Here, we remind ourselves with the principle that a person can transfer only such rights and interest which he or she possesses and not beyond that. If a Sub-Grantor did not possess any right of transfer or such right is subject to any restriction like prior permission of owner etc., it means that Grantee himself has no right of transfer and/or his right is restricted in a particular manner and such restriction is to be observed in words and spirit to validate such transfer, else transfer being illegal, will not result in bestowing any legal right upon Transferee. In other words, any otherwise transfer by Sub-Grantor of land subjected to Grant, will not confer any valid right or interest upon the person to whom Grantor had transferred property under 'Grant' in violation of stipulations contained in Grant.

78. In Delhi Development Authority Vs. Anant Raj Agencies Pvt. Ltd. (2016) 11 SCC 406 Court said :

"It is well settled position of law that the person having no right, title or interest in the property cannot transfer the same by way of sale deed."

79. Further, such invalid transfer can also be construed as breach of terms of Grant and would empower and enable Principal Grantor i.e. State, owner of property, to take such steps including resumption/re-entry upon the property under Grant, to itself, besides claiming damages, compensation, as the case may be, as law permits.

80. Therefore, firstly transfer of land in dispute to Sri K.S.Gandhi and Smt. Tahmenna vide sale deed dated 11.12.1945 had no legal consequence of transferring any title or other right or interest to said Transferree since aforesaid sale deed was clearly in breach of terms and conditions of lease deed. Secondly, it could have resulted in transfer of only lease rights, and that too, for remaining period of lease and not beyond that. Thus, whatever right, even if, could have been transferred by Marry Augustum Woolston to K.S.Gandhi and Smt. Tahmenna, that ceased on 31.03.1962 when term of lease expired. Thereafter transferrees had no valid right or interest over property in dispute.

81. When Sri Gandhi and his wife themselves had no valid right, question of transferring any right or interest through Will dated 09.10.1972 to petitioner also does not arise. It was not open to Sri K.S.Gandhi to execute 'Will' in respect of disputed land, which was owned by State Government as Sri K.S.Gandhi had no right or interest over property in dispute in 1972 to bequeath to anyone. Will dated 09.10.1972, insofar as disputed land is concerned, is nothing but a sheer waste paper and a nullity in the eyes of law resulting in transfer of no legal right or interest to petitioner Parsi Panchayat, Surat in respect of land in dispute.

82. Though, it is said that Sri K.S.Gandhi applied for renewal of lease before his death on 31.01.1978, but, no copy of such application has been placed on record. There is nothing on record to show that any such application was submitted by Sri K.S.Gandhi. On the contrary, impugned order shows that an application for renewal of lease was submitted by Sri D.F.Gandhi on 29.6.1981 claiming himself to be Executor of 'Will' and representative of petitioner, Parsi Panchyat, Surat. Sri D.F.Gandhi has no right or interest in respect of land in dispute in any manner. He was a stranger, a rank trespasser. His application therefore, was rightly rejected by Collector, Allahabad vide order dated 13.7.1998.

83. It is also on record that aforesaid order was challenged in Writ Petition No.34324 of 1998 which ultimately stood dismissed as infructuous on a statement made by counsel for petitioner. The fact remains that order dated 13.7.1998 remained intact and has not been set aside, nullified or made inoperative by any competent authority or Court till date. It therefore maintain all its legal consequences rendering petitioner a stranger having no right or interest, whatsoever in disputed land.

84. It is then contended that renewal was wrongly denied though in the light of law laid down in Purshottam Dass Tandon and others vs, State of U.P. And others (supra) renewal of lease ought to have been granted.

85. We have already said that neither petitioner nor Sri D.F.Gandhi had any right whatsoever, legal or otherwise, to seek renewal of lease in respect of land in dispute. We have also examined judgment in detail rendered by this Court in Purshottam Dass Tandon and others vs, State of U.P. And others (supra) which has become final after dismissal of appeal by Supreme Court and find that the same has no application in respect of land in dispute as also qua petitioner and Sri D.F.Gandhi.

86. In Purshottam Dass Tandon and others vs, State of U.P. And others, (supra) question of renewal of lease came up for consideration in the light of Government Orders dated 23.4.1959, 02.07.1960 and 03.12.1965. Therein historical backdrop of various Government Orders dealing with policy of renewal of lease has been given in detail. The first G.O. was issued in March, 1958 whereby Chief Minister directed that case for renewal of leases may be taken individually and possession may be taken only if lessee surrender or lease stood terminated in absence of any request from lessee for grant of fresh lease. Thereafter, on 23.04.1959, a G.O. was issued to grant fresh lease in cases where lease has already expired but has not been renewed so far, or which is likely to expire within the next 5 or 6 years, on the terms and conditions given in the said G.O. The proposed premium in the said G.O. was objected by Lease Holders, whose leases were already expired or likely to expire. Several representations were sent to Government. Some house-owners met the then Prime Minister Late Pt. Jawahar Lal Nehru, who had visited Allahabad in November or December, 1959. It resulted in issue of G.O. dated 07.07.1960 whereby rate of premium on first three acres was reduced to Rs.2,000/- in each slab. It also permitted payment of premium in five instalments and reduced ground rent to Rs.100/- per acre. In the earlier G.O., there was an insistence on construction of Community latrines till sewer lines were laid but this insistence was given up in G.O. dated 07.07.1960. Lessees were granted further three months' time to get leases renewed. Still lease-holders did not comply and made representations to Government. On 21.03.1963, again a G.O. was issued declaring rates of premium for commercial sites. On 3.12.1965 a G.O. was issued indicating terms and conditions for renewal of leases for commercial and residential purposes and it was said that rates of premium and annual rent shall be as fixed by G.O. dated 07.07.1960. Payment in five equal yearly instalments was continued but in special cases, Commissioner, Allahabad Division, Allahabad, was authorized to make recommendations to Government for enhancing number of instalments. This G.O. further insisted for renewal of existing leases on payment of at least one instalment, within one month of receipt of intimation by Lessee from Collector, or within three months of the date of expiry of lease, whichever is earlier. Deposit was to be deemed to be proper step on the part of Lessee to get a fresh lease executed by the Lessor. The G.O. of 1965 itself made a distinction between those whose leases had expired and others by describing them as sitting and existing lessees.

87. There was a second phase which covered period from 1966 to 1981. On 16.02.1966, U.P. Awas Vikas Parishad Adhiniyam, 1965 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P.Act, 1965") was enacted for providing housing sites and construction of building. G.O. dated 03.12.1965, thus was modified by G.O. dated 04.11.1968, and it was directed that leases of joint lessees should be renewed as far as possible for one acre only. Sub-division was permitted only where sub-divided plot was not less than 800 sq. yards. Concession in payment of lease money and ground rent was allowed on same terms and conditions as it was in G.O. dated 03.12.1965 but time was extended for payment of first instalment for those who had not received any intimation from Collector by a further period of one month from the date of intimation by Collector. Clause (c) of G.O. dated 04.11.1968 categorically said, where steps have been taken for renewal of leases, as stated in earlier G.Os., fresh leases shall be sanctioned according to terms offered by Competent Authority.

88. In March, 1970, a G.O. was issued banning grant of renewal of leases all over the State, since Government was contemplating to bring out legislation on Urban Ceiling. This ban was lifted on 12.01.1972 but leases henceforth were to be sanctioned by State Government only. Commissioner and Collector could make recommendations only. Aforesaid G.O., however, provided that in all those cases where Government had sanctioned grant of leases but it could not be executed or registered because of ban imposed in 1970, steps may be taken immediately for execution. Clause (ii) of G.O. provided that all those cases in which Collector or Commissioner had approved renewal but it could not be executed because of 1970 order, should be sent to Government immediately for acceptance. On 09.05.1972 Urban Building Ceiling Bill was introduced and on 11.07.1972 Uttar Pradesh Ceiling of Property (Temporary Restriction on Transfer), Ordinance, 1972 was promulgated in pursuance of Article 398 of Constitution of India. The Ordinance continued till it was replaced by Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1976"). The said Act was enacted to prevent concentration of Urban Property and discourage construction of luxurious houses. On 19.12.1972, provisions pertaining to Nazul were amended providing for maximum area permissible for renewal of leases of 2000 sq. yards plus land on which building was constructed. Remaining area was to be surrendered to Housing Board and Lessees were prohibited from sub-dividing or transferring any land. On 10.12.1976, Government issued an order superseding all previous orders in respect of renewal of leases of Civil Lines, Allahabad in view of Act, 1976 and laid down fresh terms and conditions for renewal of leases.

89. Here leases were to be renewed in the light of Sections 2 and 4 of U.P. Act, 1976 and while doing so, all residents in one house were to be treated as one unit. This again resulted in representations of Lease-Holders to Government requesting for reduction in rate of premium and ground rent. A G.O. was issued on 17.09.1979 superseding all previous orders and it provided for submission of details about extent and type of construction, utilisation of vacant land etc. Again representations were made, which culminated in G.O. dated 19.04.1981, which superseded all previous Orders and provided for renewal of leases on fresh and new terms. It said that Leaseholders and their heirs shall be treated as one Unit. They were supposed to file details about land, constructed area, its user, time when it was taken on lease etc. before 30.06.1981. List of residents including out-houses dwellers was to be prepared by District Magistrate. Heirs of deceased lease-holders were to be treated as one unit. Area for which renewal could be made was reduced to building with 500 sq. metre of land appurtenant and 500 sq. metre open land or 1500 sq. metre whichever was more. Area of building for commercial purpose was fixed at 2000 sq. metres. Premium was fixed at 50 paisa per sq. metre. Thus, from 1976 onwards for the purpose of renewal, area was reduced from acre to square metre and unit for premium and ground rent became square feet instead of acre. All heirs of Lessees became one unit for renewal. Land covered by outhouses were to be excluded. Lessees could not even opt for it.

90. When we consider the claim of petitioner in reference to above G.Os., nothing is on record to show that petitioner ever applied and sought renewal or fresh lease either before actual expiry of lease term or immediately thereafter, in terms of G.Os. hence petitioner cannot claim any benefit under the above mentioned G.Os. In fact, neither K.S. Gandhi nor D.F. Gandhi nor petitioner was eligible or entitled to seek renewal of lease since they were neither valid lessee nor legal heirs of valid lessee. They were unauthorized trespassers having no valid claim over disputed Land and above G.Os. were inapplicable to them.

91. Lease Holders, whose lease had already expired or those who were sitting Lease Holders and leases were going to expire in a short period, came to this Court in various writ petitions. This entire bunch was decided in Purushottam Dass Tandon and others vs. State of U.P., Lucknow and others (supra).

92. There were two categories of writ petitioners as under :

(i) Those, to whom notices were given by Collector and who had complied with terms and conditions as laid down in various orders issued from time to time prior to 1965; and

(ii) Those, to whom no notice was sent and till matter filed before the Court, no steps were taken and no order was passed in their favour.

93. Court held :

(I) A Lessor may, after expiry of period for which lease is granted, renew the same or resume i.e. re-enter. But if out of the two i.e. re-entry or resumption, the two divergent courses, he chooses to grant fresh lease or at least creates that impression by his conduct spread over long time, it results in abandonment.

(II) If the land is needed or building has to be demolished in public interest for general welfare, probably no exception can be taken as the interest of individual has to be sacrificed for the society. But asking Lessee to vacate land or remove Malba for no rhyme or reason but because State is the owner, cannot be accepted to be in consonance with present day philosophy and thinking about role of State.

(III) After Act, 1976, no person can successfully or validly claim to hold land, more than the Ceiling limit.

(IV) Some part of G.O. of 1981 was not consistent with Act, 1976. The rules contained in Nazul Manual are set of Administrative Orders or collections of guidelines issued by Government for the authorities to deal with Government property.

(V) When a G.O. was issued and its conditions are complied with, mere for bureaucratic delay, performance under the said G.O. cannot be denied. Therefore, Lessee, who had deposited first instalment, as directed in G.O. of 1965, were entitled for renewal of their lease.

(VI) After enactment of ceiling law, a Lessee cannot hold land more than the provided limit.

(VII) If leases were renewed in respect of those, who had acquired social or political status, whose names are given in para 15 of judgment, which includes, Dr. K. N. Katju, ex-Central Law Minister, Chief Minister and Governor, Dr. S. K. Verma, ex-Chief Justice and Governor, Sri B.L. Gupta, ex-Judge High Court, J. D. Shukla, I.C.S., O. N. Misra, I.A.S., when there was no justification not to give same benefit to others. Similar benefits must be given since most of them were also distinguished persons namely S.N. Kacker, ex-Central Law Minister, Solicitor General of India and Advocate General of the State, Sri S. S. Dhavan, ex-Judge, High Court and Governor and High Commissioner, Sri Lal Ratnakar Singh I.A.S. Ex-Member of Board of Revenue, M.L.Chaturvedi, ex-Judge, High Court and member of Union Public Service Commission, W. Broome, I.C.S. etc.

94. Aforesaid judgment was confirmed by Supreme Court by dismissing appeals preferred by State of U.P. and others i.e. State of U.P. and others vs. Purshottam Das Tandon and others 1989 Supp.(2) SCC 412. Supreme Court clarified that renewal of leases shall be subject to the provisions of U.P.Act, 1976 and High Court judgment shall apply to all the leases to whom G.O. dated 23.04.1959, 02.07.1960 and 03.12.1965 were applicable and all those claiming under them. The order of Supreme Court reads as under :

"We have heard the learned counsel for both the parties at length. We do not find any infirmity in the judgment and order passed by the High Court against which these special leave petitions are preferred. We, however, make it clear that the leases that are going to be granted pursuant to the writ issued by the High Court will be subject to the provisions of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976. On the leases being granted, the Competent Authority under the Act shall be at liberty to apply the provisions of the Act and in particular section 15 thereof to all the leases and take away all the surplus lands in their hands after determining the surplus lands in accordance with law. The directions issued by the High Court can be availed of by all the lessees to whom the G.O. dated 23rd April, 1959, 2nd July, 1960 and 3rd December, 1965 were applicable and all those claiming under them.

All the Special Leave Petitions are dismissed accordingly with these observations. If any further directions are needed, the persons interested may approach the High Court."

95. Aforesaid judgment has no application to the case of petitioner at all since neither petitioner comes within the category of eligible person to apply for renewal of lease under Government Orders which were considered in Purushottam Dass Tandon and others

vs. State of U.P., Lucknow and others (supra) nor even otherwise petitioner has shown any provision, whether statutory or executive, including G.Os., which may confer entitlement upon petitioner to seek renewal of lease at all.

96. We therefore, find that transfer made by original Lessee Marry Augustum Woolston was wholly illegal, contrary to terms of lease deed and therefore, it did not confer any right or interest in property in dispute upon transferree Sri K.S.Gandhi and his wife Smt. Tahmenna and further transfer through Will by Sri K.S.Gandhi is also equally bad, illegal and, in fact, a nullity in the eyes of law so far as land in dispute is concerned. This denies any valid status to D.F. Gandhi and petitioner. We, therefore, answer Question-3 against petitioner.

97. The forth question is "whether petitioner or anyone else is/was entitled to ask for conversion to freehold of land in dispute in terms of policy of State Government for conversion of lease land into freehold and obstruct right of re-entry exercised by Lessor.?"

98. Though in the light of our answer to third question, we can straight-away hold that petitioner has no such right whatsoever but to further satisfy ourselves, we proceed to examine relevant G.Os. dealing with issue of conversion of lease land into freehold to find out whether there is any justification or legality in the claim of petitioner.

99. The first G.O. issued by State Government in order to execute its policy of conversion of lease land into freehold was issued on 23.5.1992. The aforesaid G.O. was applicable to permanent leases given for 'residential purposes' and 'current leases', given for residential purposes. Para 1 of aforesaid G.O. reads as under :

''मुझे यह कहने का निर्देश हुआ है कि सम्यक विचारोपरान्त शासन द्वारा नजूल भूमि के प्रबन्ध एवं निस्तारण आदि की वर्तमान व्यवस्था में परिवर्तन करते हुए शाश्वत एवं चालू पट्टों के अन्तर्गत उपलब्ध नजूल भूमि का स्वैच्छिक आधार पर फ्री–होल्ड घोषित करने एवं शेष रिक्त नजूल भूमि का निस्तारण इस शासनादेश में निर्धारित प्रक्रिया के अनुसार करने का निर्णय लिया गया है। तद्नुसार नजूल भूमि के प्रबन्ध एवं निस्तारण आदि के सम्बन्ध में निम्नलिखित व्यवस्था तात्कालिक रूप से लागू होगी।''

"I am directed to say that after due consideration the government has while changing the extant policy of management and disposal of the Nazul land, decided to declare Nazul land available under the perpetual and current leases to be freehold on voluntary basis and to dispose remaining vacant Nazul land as per procedure prescribed in this Government Order. Accordingly, in respect of the management and disposal, etc. of the Nazul land, the following policy shall come into force with immediate effect."

100. Those, who are governed by aforesaid G.O., were directed to submit their option for freehold within one year from the date of issue of G.O. and only they would be entitled for benefit under the said G.O. It also restrained any transfer of property if under lease deed, no transfer was permissible without permission. It also directed that where unauthorized possession is found, action for eviction shall be taken in accordance with law. Paras 7 and 8 of said G.O. read as under :

''(7) जिन पट्टों मे यह शर्त है कि पट्टाधिकारी बिना पट्टादाता की अनुमति के पट्टागत भूमि का हस्तान्तरण कर सकता है, वहॉ पट्टे की शर्त

(8) इस बात का व्यापक प्रचार किया जाएगा कि उपरोक्त नीति अनधिकृत कब्जो के मामलों में लागू नहीं होगी और अनधिकृत कब्जों के मामलों में विधिक प्रक्रिया के अनुसार बेदखली आदि की कार्यवाही की जाएगी।"

"(7) In leases where leaseholder can transfer lease land without permission of the lessor, in such a case no interference shall be made contrary to the terms and conditions of the lease. But where transfer of land without permission of the lessor is prohibited, any transfer of land shall be stopped for a year from the date of enforcement of this Government Order. This policy shall come into force from the date of issue of the Government Order.

(8) It shall be widely circulated that the aforesaid policy shall not be applicable to the cases related to unauthorized possessions and eviction proceedings, etc. in relation to the unauthorized possessions shall be held in accordance with the legal procedure."

101. The second G.O. was issued on 02.12.1992 dividing Lease-Holders in two categories. One, who had not violated conditions of lease, and, another, who had violated conditions of lease. Those, who had not violated conditions, were required to pay for conversion to freehold an amount equal to 50 percent of Circle Rate for residential purpose while those who had violated conditions of lease, were to pay 100 percent. Same was in respect of Group Housing and Commercial use with the difference of amount to be paid for freehold. Para 4 thereof also provided that such current leases where 90 years period had expired, if Lease-holder had not violated any conditions of lease and wants freehold, that can be allowed as per aforesaid G.O.. However, if he wants fresh lease, that can also be allowed for 30 years on payment of 20 percent of Circle rate as premium and 1/60th part of premium towards annual rent. Clause 4 of aforesaid G.O. reads as under :

"4. ऐसे चालू पट्टे जिनके 90 वर्ष की सम्पूर्ण अवधि समाप्त हो गई है यदि कोई पूर्व पट्टाधारक जिन्होंने पट्टे की शर्तों का उल्लंघन नहीं किया है, भूमि फ्री–होल्ड कराना चाहता है तो ऐसी दशा में निर्धारित दरों के अनुसार फ्री–होल्ड कर दिया जाएगा। यदि वह फ्री–होल्ड नही कराना चाहते है बल्कि नया पट्टा लेना चाहते है तो ऐसी दशा में 30 वर्ष के लिए एक नया पट्टा वर्तमान शर्तों के आधार पर दिया जा सकता है जिसके लिए प्रीमियम की धनराशि प्रचलित सर्किल रेट की निर्धारित दर की 20 प्रतिशत होगी और वार्षिक किराया, प्रीमियम का 1/60वां भाग प्रतिवर्ष के हिसाब से भी लिया जाएगा।"

"4 . In case of those current leases whose entire lease period of 90 years has expired, if any previous leaseholder who has not violated lease conditions, wants to get the land converted into freehold, in such a circumstance it shall be converted into freehold against the payment of the prescribed rates. If he does not want to convert it into freehold and wants to get a new lease, in such a circumstance a new lease may be awarded for 30 years under the extant terms and conditions, for which premium amount @ 20 percent of the existing circle rates and annual rent @ 1/60 of the premium shall be paid."

102. The third is G.O. dated 03.10.1994, making amendment in earlier two G.Os. Relevant aspect is that vide para 2, provision made for execution of 30 years lease, where 90 years period had expired, was deleted. Para 2 of G.O. dated 03.10.1994 reads as under :

''2. शासनादेश संख्या 3632/9–आ–4–92–293–एन/90, 2–12–1992 में ऐसे चालू पट्टे जिनके 90 वर्ष की सम्पूर्ण अवधि समाप्त हो चुकी है तथा पूर्व पट्टाधारक द्वारा पट्टे की शर्तों का उल्लंघन नहीं किया गया है, के सम्बन्ध में 30 वर्षीय पट्टा स्वीकृत किये जाने की व्यवस्था की गई थी। इस व्यवस्था को तात्कालिक प्रभाव से समाप्त किया जाता है। अब ऐसे मामले में नया पट्टा स्वीकृत नहीं किया जाएगा बल्कि ऐसे मामले में जिनमें पट्टे की सम्पूर्ण अवधि समाप्त हो चुकी है उसको उपरोक्त निर्धारित दरों पर पूर्व पट्टेदार के पक्ष में फ्री–होल्ड में परिवर्तित करने की कार्यवाही की जाएगी।''

"2. A provision had been made in Government Order No. 3632/9-Aa-4-92-293-N/90, dated 02.12.1992 for grant of lease for 30 years for the current leases; where 90 years' tenure has expired and the terms and conditions of the lease have not been violated by the former lease holder. This provision is annulled with immediate effect. Now in such cases, no new lease shall be granted; rather, in cases where entire period of lease has expired, proceedings shall be taken for converting such leases into freehold in favour of the former lease holders at the aforesaid prescribed rates."

103. Para 8 of aforesaid G.O. further provides that policy for freehold will be effective only upto 31.03.1995.

104. Considering that some very poor persons were also in occupation of 'Nazul land' and their eviction may result in serious problem of accommodation to such persons, another G.O. dated 01.01.1996 was issued making amendments in earlier three G.Os. stating that those persons whose monthly income is Rs.1,250/- or less, and in unauthorized possession of vacant Nazul land upto 01.01.1992 or prior thereto for residential purposes, they shall be allowed freehold on payment of 25 percent premium and Rs.60/- annual rent for the area upto 45 Sq. Meter and for more than 45 Sq.Meter but upto 100 Sq.Meter, 40 percent and Rs.120 annual rent. It clearly says that no regularization of unauthorized possession shall be made beyond 100 Sq.Meter and amount of premium shall be allowed to be paid in 10 years' interest free 6 monthly installments. Such unauthorized possession shall be regularized by approving 30 years' lease. Clauses 1, 2, 3 and 4 of aforesaid G.O. read as under :

''(1) किसी भी दशा में 100 वर्ग मीटर से अधिक क्षेत्रफल पर किये गये अवैध कब्जों का विनियमितीकरण नहीं किया जायेगा तथा दिनांक 30.11.1991 की सर्किल रेट पर आंकलित सम्पूर्ण मूल्य पर निर्धारित यथास्थिति 25: या 40: नजराने की धनराशि 10 वर्षीय ब्याज रहित छमाही किस्तों में लिया जायेगा, परन्तु यदि कोई व्यक्ति सम्पूर्ण धनराशि या बकाया किस्तों की धनराशि एकमुश्त जमा करना चाहता है तो वह देय धनराशि जमा कर सकता है।

(2) उपरोक्त प्रकार के मामले में विनियमितीकरण की कार्यवाही 30 वर्षीय पट्टा स्वीकृत करके की जायेगी। स्वीकृत पट्टे में 30–30 वर्षीय दो नवीनीकरण के प्राविधान सहित सम्पूर्ण पट्टे की कुल अवधि दो नवीनीकरण के प्राविधान सहित सम्पूर्ण पट्टे की कुल अवधि अधिकतम 90 वर्ष की होगी। जिसमें यह शर्त होगी कि सम्बन्धित व्यक्ति भूमि का पट्टाधिकार 30 वर्ष तक किसी व्यक्ति को हस्तानान्तरित नहीं कर सकता है पट्टा शासन द्वारा निर्धारित प्रारूप पर जारी किया जायेगा।

(3) अनाधिकृत कब्जों के विनियमितीकरण की समस्त कार्यवाही जिलाधिकारी, की अध्यक्षता में गठित समिति की संस्तुति पर जिलाधिकारी द्वारा की जायेगी। लखनऊ एवं देहरादून में समस्त कार्यवाही उपाध्यक्ष, विकास प्राधिकरण की अध्यक्षता में गठित समिति की संस्तुति पर उपाध्यक्ष द्वारा की जायेगी।

"(1) Under no circumstances, illegal possessions over an area measuring over 100 square metres shall be regularised and an amount of earnest money, 25% or 40% as the case may be, on the entire amount calculated as per the circle rate as on 30.11.1991 shall be taken in half yearly interest free instalments over the period of 10 years. However, if any person wishes to deposit entire money or the amount of remaining instalments in lump sum, he/she may deposit the payable amount.

(2) In the aforesaid type of cases, regularisation proceedings shall be done by granting a lease for a period of 30 years. The total period of the entire lease shall at most be 90 years with provision of two renewals, for 30 years each, in the lease so granted, subject to a restriction that the person concerned cannot transfer the lease rights to anybody until 30 years. The lease shall be issued on a format prescribed by the government.

(3) All the proceedings of regularisation of unauthorised possessions shall be done by the District Magistrate on recommendation of a committee constituted under his/her chairmanship. All the proceedings in Lucknow and Dehradun shall be done by the Vice Chairman, Development Authority, on recommendation of a committee constituted under his/her chairmanship.

(4) For the purpose of regularisation, a family shall be deemed to be a unit and lease shall be granted in the name of the head of the family."

105. Then vide G.O. dated 17.02.1996 again some amendments were made in respect of amount payable for freehold but earlier policy of categories of persons, who can claim freehold, was not changed. Vide G.O. dated 29.03.1996, period for giving benefit of freehold was extended from 01.4.1996 to 30.09.1996. G.O. dated 02.04.1996 only made some corrigendum in earlier G.O. dated 17.02.1996.

106. On 29.08.1996, G.O. was issued in furtherance of G.O. dated 17.02.1996 stating that under G.O. dated 17.02.1996, freehold rights to Nominees of Lease-Holders were allowed and in reference thereto, rates on which such Nominees shall be allowed freehold, were mentioned.

107. We find that G.O. dated 17.02.1996 nowhere permits conversion of Nazul land into freehold in favour of Nominees of Lessee. Thus we have no manner of doubt that G.O. dated 29.08.1996, insofar as it refers to G.O. dated 17.02.1996, above Nominees had erred in law and it is a clear misreading. If G.O. dated 17.02.1996 itself had not permitted freehold rights to Nominee(s) of Lessee, question of such rights to be determined by G.O. dated 29.08.1996 is non est of no legal consequence and inoperative.

108. Then vide G.O. dated 25.10.1996, implementation of freehold policy was extended upto 31.12.1996. G.O. dated 31.12.1996 was issued to clarify G.O. dated 17.02.1996 in respect of applicability of rate, where land use at the time of grant of lease was changed in Master plan.

109. G.O. dated 26.09.1997 made amendments in all earlier G.Os. in respect of rates for Nazul land being used for hospital and other charitable purposes. It also clarifies as to which contravention of lease deed will be treated as violation to attract higher rate. It also provides in para 6(2) that Government has got right of re-entry due to violation of any conditions of lease and lease had already expired, and such Lease-Holder may be informed of Nazul policy and be given an opportunity to apply for freehold whereafter action for dispossession will be taken. The policy of conversion of freehold was extended upto 25.12.1997.

110. Then comes G.O. dated 01.12.1998. Thereunder only two categories were made i.e. residential and non-residential. Restriction was also imposed on certain Nazul land in respect whereto conversion of freehold was not to be allowed. Vide G.O. dated 10.12.2002, it was clarified that freehold conversion shall not be allowed to Nominee of Lessee or his legal heirs. G.O. dated 31.12.2002 relates to rates and clarification, hence, not relevant for the purpose of present case.

111. The application of petitioner for free hold was rejected vide order dated 01.09.2003 when above G.Os. including G.O. dated 10.12.2002 was holding the field. Petitioner is neither lessee nor legal heir of lessees. Petitioner is an unauthorised transferee of the land in dispute. It could not have been considered even nominee of lessee. Hence petitioner was not entitled for free hold and its application was rightly rejected.

112. Vide G.O. dated 04.08.2006, provision for regularization of Nazul land which was in unauthorized possession, was deleted. It is also said that in all the matters, where freehold document has not been registered, application shall be cancelled. Vide G.O. dated 15.02.2008 clarification was given in respect of G.O. dated 04.08.2006 and it was reiterated that in all those matters where freehold document has not been registered, application shall be rejected.

113. Vide G.O. dated 21.10.2008, Clause 3 of G.O. dated 10.10.2002, whereby provision for conversion of freehold to Nominee of Lessee or his legal heirs, ceased, was restored. It was also clarified that decision to convert freehold of Nazul land will apply only when such land is not found necessary for Government use.

114. G.O. dated 26.05.2009 made an amendment in para 2(6) of G.O. dated 21.10.2008 and substituted following paras therein :

*"ऐसे नजूल भूमियां जो भू–धारक या पट्टाधारक या उनके विधिक उत्तराधिकारी / नामित की भूमि के साथ स्थित है तथा उनके लिए उपयोगी सिद्ध हो सकती हैं तथा किसी अन्य के उपयोग की सम्भावना नहीं प्रतीत होती है। ऐसी भूमि का विनियमितीकरण भू–धारक या पट्टाधारक या उनके विधिक उत्तराधिकारी / नामित के पक्ष में वर्तमान सर्किल रेट शत प्रतिशत प्राप्त कर फ्री–होल्ड कर दिया जायेगा। ऐसे मामलों में शासन की अनुमति आवश्यक होगी।"

*"Those nazul lands which are lying adjacent to the land of land holder or lease holder or his legal successor/his nominee, and which can be of utility to them and do not appear to have the potential of being used by any other person, shall be regularised and converted into freehold in favour of the land holder or lease holder or his legal successor/nominee after receiving cent percent current circle rate. In such matters, the permission of the government shall be necessary."

(English Translation by Court)

115. Further time for conversion into freehold was extended upto 31.12.2009.

116. G.Os. dated 29.01.2010, 17.02.2011 and 01.8.2011 were issued with amendments of minor nature hence not discussed further.

117. Then comes G.O. dated 28.09.2011. It talks of policy of conversion of Nazul land into freehold, which was not listed at any point of time but has been occupied unauthorizedly and occupants have raised their construction, using land prior to 01.12.1998. However, land of public places, park, side-lanes of road and other Government use was excluded and maximum area for such freehold was confined to 300 Sq.Meter. The incumbents had to apply within three months whereafter they have to be evicted. With respect to 'Nominees of Lessees', para 5 of said G.O. reads as under :

"5. नामित व्यक्ति के पक्ष में नजूल भूमि को फ्रीहोल्ड किये जाने की व्यवस्था को समाप्त किया जाना– नजूल भूमि के पट्टेदार द्वारा नामित व्यक्ति के पक्ष में नजूल भूमि को फ्रीहोल्ड किये जाने की व्यवस्था सर्वप्रथम शासनादेश संख्या : 1300/9–आ–4–96–629एन/95, टी.सी. दिनांक 29–8–1996 के प्रस्तर–1 (3) (4) में की गयी थी और शासनादेश संख्या 2873/9–आ–4–2002–152–एन/2002, टी.सी. दिनांक 10–12–2002 के प्रस्तर 3 द्वारा उक्त व्यवस्था समाप्त कर दी गयी तथा शासनादेश संख्या : 1956/आठ–4–08–266एन/08, दिनांक 21–10–2008 के प्रस्तर– 2 (4) द्वारा उक्त व्यवस्था पुनः बहाल कर दी गयी है। इस व्यवस्था के सम्बन्ध में मा0 उच्च न्यायालय में विचाराधीन रिट याचिका (जनहित याचिका) संख्या : 35248/2010–जयसिंह बनाम उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य व अन्य में पारित अन्तरिम आदेश दिनांक 16–07–2010 में दिये गये निर्देशों के दृष्टिगत उपर्युक्त शासनादेश दिनांक 21–10–2008 का प्रस्तर 2 (4) जिसके द्वारा नामिनी के पक्ष में नजूल भूमि को फ्रीहोल्ड किये जाने की व्यवस्था बहाल की गयी है, को समाप्त करते हुए अब ऐसे व्यक्ति जिनके पक्ष में क्रय की जा रही सम्पत्ति (नजूल भूमि) को पट्टेदार द्वारा रजिस्टर्ड एग्रीमेंट टू सेल किया गया हो और पूर्ण स्टाम्प शुल्क अदा किया गया हो, उसी व्यक्ति के पक्ष में ही नजूल भूमि को फ्रीहोल्ड किया जायेगा।"

"5. Cessation of the provision of converting the nazul land into freehold in favour of the nominee:- The provision of converting nazul land into freehold in favour of nominee by the lease holder of the land had first been provided in the para- 1 (3)(4) of the Government Order No. 1300/9-Aa-4-96-629N/95, TC dated 29-08-1996; and by para 3 of the Government Order No. 2873/9-Aa-4-2002-152-N/2002, TC dated 10.12.2002, the aforesaid provision was annulled; *and through para 2(4) of the Government Order No.1956/VIII-4-08-266N/08, dated 21.10.2008, the afore-said provision has been restored again. (English Translation by Court)

118. Aforesaid G.Os. thus clearly show that eligibility of Lessees of Nazul land, as initially laid down in G.O. of 1992 underwent some changes but in respect of land, fount suitable or needed by Government, no freehold was permissible. With respect to violation of terms and conditions of lease etc., some relaxation was given.

119. Lastly there are two more G.Os. i.e. 04.03.2014 and 15.01.2015 wherein policy of freehold has been virtually given a relook and substantial amendments have been made in earlier policy.

120. We repeatedly inquired from learned counsel for petitioner as to which G.O. applies to the present case so as to entitle petitioner to claim conversion of lease rights of land in dispute into freehold, particularly when petitioner is virtually a rank-trespassor and is not covered by any of aforesaid G.Os., none could be shown to us.

121. Moreover, as we have already said, petitioner's application was rejected on 1.9.2003 as per G.Os. applicable till then and subsequent G.Os. have no application in this case.

122. It is then contended that in view of judgment dated 29.11.2010 passed in W.P. 4716 of 2004, Collector is bound to reconsider petitioner's application and hence it should be treated that his application for free hold is still pending.

123. Even this submission that application for freehold, if submitted and pending, whether would confer a vested right upon applicant, has already been settled by a Full Bench of this Court in Anand Kumar Sharma vs. State of U.P. and others 2014(2) ADJ 742 wherein this Court has held that merely by making an application for grant of freehold right, applicant did not acquire a vested right. Para 42 of judgment reads as under :

"We after considering the relevant Government Orders on the subject and pronouncements of the Apex Court as noted above, are of the view that merely by making an application for grant of freehold right, petitioner did not acquire a vested right."

124. Therefore, above question is also answered against petitioner holding that petitioner had no right to resist claim of owner of land for re-entery/resumption of land asking petitioner to vacate the same.

125. The fifth question is, "whether mere possession of petitioner over land in dispute confers any right upon him to resist entry of owner of land and can it insist upon owner to follow any particular procedure before compelling petitioner to vacate land in dispute."

126. In this respect, it is contended that even if petitioner is a rank trespassor, the fact is that petitioner is in possession of land in dispute and, therefore, by application of force, petitioner cannot be evicted. Petitioner, at the best, is an unauthorized occupant in terms of U.P. Act, 1972 and therefore, atleast procedure prescribed in the said Act has to be followed. Further continued possession of petitioner over land in dispute entitles petitioner a notice under Section 106 read with Section 116 TP Act, 1882, since principle of 'holding over' will apply and in any case, State can evict petitioner by filing a suit for eviction, which is a remedy available in common law. In this regard, reliance is placed on certain authorities namely Bishan Das and others Vs. State of Punjab and others AIR 1961 SC 1570, Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. and others Vs. Union of India (1986) 1 SCC 133, Yar Mohammad and another vs. Lakshmi Das and others AIR 1959 Allahabad 1 and Lallu Yeshwant Singh (dead) by his legal representative vs. Rao Jagdish Singh and others, AIR 1968 SC 620.

127. It is also contended that terms of lease read with GG Act, 1895 cannot be resorted to by respondents since GG Act, 1895 has already been repealed by Repealing and Amending (Second) Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as "Repeal Act, 2017) and therefore, provisions of GG Act, 1895 are not available to respondents to dispossess petitioner and cannot be resorted to.

128. With regard to applicability of TP Act, 1882 we have already discussed the matter in the light of GG Act, 1895. Law laid down in Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and Another (2012) 7 SCC 278 is very clear and holds the field. At the pain of repetition, we may observe that Supreme Court has clearly held that in the matter of Government Grant, it is governed by provisions of GG Act, 1895 and no other Statute including TP Act, 1882 will have any application. Court has also said that procedure prescribed under lease deed for re-entry / resumption of land is a special procedure and that can be followed for re-entry and no other Statute and no other procedure is to be observed.

129. So far as application of Section 116 of TP Act, 1882 is concerned we find nothing to show that Section 116 of TP Act, 1882 has any application in the case in hand. It is attracted only when an assent of landlord has been obtained for continuation of lease after expiry of lease period, which is not the case in hand. These aspects have been dealt with in Shanti Prasad Devi and others vs. Shankar Mahto and others (2005) 5 SCC 543, which has been following in Delhi Development Authority Vs. Anant Raj Agencies Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

130. Now, we come to the question of applicability of UP Act, 1972.

131. As we have already said that in view of declaration made under Section 2 of GG Act, 1895, as amended in Uttar Pradesh, no Statute will govern conditions of Government Grant and instead it will specifically be governed only by terms of Government Grant. Therefore, it is not necessary for State to follow procedure of U.P. Act, 1972 though it is also available and under the provisions thereof admittedly petitioner is 'unauthorized occupant'.

132. Above contention can be examined from another angle. Petitioner's possession at the best can be juridical possession though it is admittedly unlawful and illegal. Property is a legal concept that grants and protects a person's exclusive right to own, possess, use and dispose of a thing. The term property does not suggest a physical item but describe a legal relationship of a person to a thing. Real property consists of lands, tenements and hereditaments. Land refers to ground, the air above, the area below the Earth's surface and everything that is erected on it. Tenements include land and certain intangible rights recognized by municipal laws related to lands. A hereditaments embraces every tangible or intangible interest in real property that can be inherited. An interest describes any right, claim or privilege that an individual has towards real property. Law recognizes various types of interests in real property which may justify possession over property of person concerned. A non-possessory interest in land is right of one person to use or restricted use of land that belongs to other person such as easementary rights. Non-possessory interest do not constitute ownership of land itself. Holders of a non-possessory interest in real property does not have title and owner of land continues to enjoy full right of ownership, subject to any encumbrances. An encumbrance is a burden, claim or charge on real property that can affect the quality of title and value and/or use of property. Encumbrances can represent non-possessory interests in real property.

133. Possession is also of two kinds namely, (a) de facto possession, and (b) de jure possession. De facto possession is when a person being in actual physical possession and de jure possession is possession in law. Constructive possession would be a possession through a representative, agent, tenant or a trustee. A person in de facto possession could be in adverse possession. In a civilized society some protection of possession is essential. The methods of protection recognized are :

(i) Possessor can be given certain legal rights, such as a right to continue in possession free from interference by others; and

(ii) Protective possession by prescribing criminal penalties for wrongful interference and wrongful dispossession.

134. When certain legal right are given to a person, one of the mode is that possessory right in rem are supported by various rights in personam against those who violate possessor's right; he can be given a right to recover compensation for interference and for dispossession, and a right to have his possession restored to him. But, whenever such a person invoked such remedies, one of the question would be, whether a person invoking them actually has any possession to be protected. In other words, it has to be examined whether a person is in possession of an object? However, legal concept of possession is not restricted to commonsense concept of possession, namely physical control. Possession in fact is not a simple notion. Whether a person is in possession of an article depends on various factors namely nature of article itself and attitudes and activities of other persons.

135. Possession may be 'lawful' or 'unlawful' or even 'legal' or 'illegal'. Acquisition of legal possession would obviously be lawful and would, of necessity, involve occurrence of some event recognized by law whereby subject matter falls under the control of the possessor. Problem, however, arises where duration for which possession recognized is limited by Grantor or law. Continuance of possession beyond prescribed period is not treated as a 'lawful possession'. If a landlord does not consent to lease being continued, possession of tenant would not be lawful unless there is some Statute providing otherwise. Nature of possession being not lawful, would entitle landlord to regain possession. Thus, a lawful possession is state of being a possessor in the eyes of law. Possession must be warranted or authorized by law; having qualifications prescribed by law and neither contrary to nor forbidden by the law. However, law recognizes possession as a substantive right or an interest. Continued possession of a person is recognized by law as a sufficient interest capable of being protected by possessor, right being founded on mere fact of possession. Possession is a good title of right against anyone who cannot show a better title. However, when a person in possession may not be lawful, recovery of possession by owner must have sanction of law and it cannot proceed to dispossess the other in a forcible manner not recognized in law. In some authorities, possession of a person, who has entered therein initially, validly, but subsequently become unlawful, has been given a different meaning i.e. juridical possession. A tenant holding over without consent of landlord would be a juridical possession though his possession is not lawful. It is said that possession of tenant, post efflux of lease period, would not be treated as lawful possession still he would not be treated as a rank trespasser. Thus, here concept of possession as juridical possession has been introduced.

136. A person having juridical possession though illegal and unlawful, by a sheer executive fiat cannot be thrown out of possession of the land. But where terms of lease, which is the genesis of claim of such person, provides manner in which Lessor can re-enter land and such procedure has been recognized by Statute and also upheld by Supreme Court in Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and Another (supra), when Lessor follows such procedure, it cannot be said that eviction is being resorted to illegally or without following lawful method.

137. It is in this backdrop we find that authorities relied by petitioner are inapplicable to the facts of this case and will not help petitioner at all.

138. The first authority cited is Bishan Das and others Vs. State of Punjab and others (supra) in which a Constitution Bench had an occasion to consider fundamental right of property vis-a-vis infringement therewith by executive orders. Therein, one Lala Ramji Das , carrying on a joint family business in the name and style of "Faquir Chand Bhagwan Das", desired to construct a Dharmasala on a Nazul property of the then State of Patiala. In 1909, he sought permission of Government to construct a Dharmasala on the said land, since it situate near Barnala Railway Station, and therefore would have been convenient to Travellers who come to that place. It appears that initially for the same purpose, Patiala Government had granted permission to Choudhuris of Barnala bazar, but they could not do so for want of funds. Therefore when Ramji Das sought permission in the name of firm Faquir Chand Bhagwan Das in May, 1909, same was granted and communicated by Assistant Surgeon In-charge of Barnala Hospital, who was presumably In-charge of Public Health Arrangements at Barnala. The sanction was subject to certain conditions, namely, no tax shall be taken for the land; shopkeepers will arrange 'Piao' for passengers; plans of building shall be presented before sanctioning authority; cleanliness and sanitary rules shall be followed by the persons maintaining Dharmasala and no permission to construct any shop will be granted and if any condition is violated, State shall dispossess them from the land in dispute.

139. Dharmasala was constructed in 1909 and inscription on the stone to the following effect was made:

"Dharmasala Lala Faquir Chand Bhagwan Das, mahajan, 1909."

140. Though a condition was imposed for not permitting construction of any shop, but as a matter of fact, a number of shops were later constructed, with the permission of authorities concerned, for meeting expenses of maintenance of Temple and Dharmasala. A complaint was made in 1911 against Ramji Das that he was utilizing Dharmasala for his private purpose but it remained unheeded. On the complaint made, some inquiry was also conducted by Tehsildar wherein Ramji Das got his statement recorded in January, 1925. On 07.04.1928, Revenue Minister, Patiala State, passed an order stating that though land on which Dharmasala had been built, was originally Government land (nazul property), it would not be proper to declare it as such and Dharmasala should continue to exist for the benefit of the public. Ramji Das or any other person will not be competent to transfer land and if such transfer is made, it would be unlawful and invalid and in such event, Government will escheat. Further inquiry was also made and it appears that Ramji Das was given permission to make a raised platform and other extensions etc. On 10.09.1954, one Gopal Das, Secretary, Congress Committee, Barnala, filed a petition to Revenue Minister, Patiala, making various allegations against Ramji Das. Thereupon an inquiry was conducted by Tahsildar, who found that Dharmasala was constructed by Ramji Das on Government land, that Dharmasala was for public benefit; and, that Ramji Das had been its Manager throughout. He, however, said that Ramji Das was bound to render accounts which he failed considering that property belong to him and, therefore, he should be removed and past accounts be called for. When the matter went for opinion of Legal Remembrancer of State Government, it was pointed out that Dharmasala and Temple, though built on Government land, but not Government property. It also said that though Ramji Das was repudiating the existence of a Public Trust, he was working as Trustee of a Trust created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature and could be removed by State only under Section 92 Civil Procedure Code. Ramji Das died on 10.12.1957. Petitioner Bishan Das and others came to manage Dharmasala, Temple and the shops etc. On 23.12.1957, Gopal Das and some others, describing themselves as members of public, made an application that since Ramji Das was dead, new arrangements should be made for proper management of Dharmasala which is used for the benefit of the public. Again a search of old papers was made and this time Sub-Divisional Officer, Barnala, recommended that in the interest of Government, Municipal Committee, Barnala, should take immediate charge of management of Dharmasala. This recommendation was affirmed by Deputy Commissioner, Sangrur, and pursuant to the said order, Kanungo presumably dispossessed Bishan Das and others from part of Dharmasala on 07.01.1958, and, charge thereof was given to Municipal Committee, Barnala. These orders were challenged alleging that the same were without any authority of law and violative of fundamental rights enshrined under Articles 14, 19 and 31 of the Constitution.

141. The defence taken was that property is trust property of a public and charitable character, hence Bishan Das and others were not entitled to claim any property rights in respect thereof.

142. Supreme Court observed in Para-10 that even if it is assumed that the property is trust property, no authority of law authorised State or its Executive Officers to take action against Bishan Das and others in respect of Dharmasala. Government counsel sought to argue that Bishan Das and others were trespassers and land on which Dharmasala situate belong to Government, hence Government was entitled to use minimum of force to eject trespassers, but this defence was rejected by holding that it is a clear case of violation of fundamental right of Bishan Das and others. Supreme Court said that nature of sanction granted in 1909 in respect of land whether it was a lease or licence, with a Grant or an irrevocable licence are questions of fact, need not be gone into by it, but admitted position is that land belonged to Government who granted permission to Ramji Das on behalf of joint family firm to build a Dharmasala, Temple and Shops and manage the same during his life time. After his death his family members continued with management. Thus, they were not trespassers at all in respect of Dharmasala, Temple and Shops; nor could it be held that Dharmasala, Temple and Shops belong to State. The question whether trust created was public or private is irrelevant. Court said that a Trustee, even of a Public Trust, can be removed only by procedure known to law. He cannot be removed by an executive fiat. The maxim, what is annexed to the soil goes with the soil, has not been accepted as an absolute rule of law in India and in this regard, Supreme Court referred to the decisions in Thakoor Chunder Parmanick Vs. Ramdhone Bhuttacharjee (1866) 6 W.R. 228; Lala Beni Ram Vs. Kundan Lall (1899) L.R. 26 I.A. 58 and Narayan Das Khettry Vs. Jatindranath (1927) L.R. 54 I.A. 218. Court said that a person who bona fide puts up constructions on land belonging to others with their permission would not be a trespasser, nor would the buildings so constructed vest in the owner of the land by application of maxim quicquid plantatur solo, solo credit. It said:

"It is, therefore, impossible to hold that in respect of the dharmasala, temples and shops, the State has acquired any rights whatsoever merely by reason of their being on the land belonging to the State. If the State thought that the constructions should be removed or that the condition as to resumption of the land should be invoked, it was open to the State to take appropriate legal action for the purpose."

143. Court said that even if State proceeded on the assumption that there was a Public Trust, it could have taken appropriate legal action for removal of Trustees by way of Suit under Section 92 C.P.C. and not otherwise. Constitution Bench then said:

" .. that does not give the State or its executive officers the right to take the law into their own hands and remove the trustee by an executive order.

144. Court concluded its findings in Para-14 of the judgment as under:

"The facts and the position in law thus clearly are (1) that the buildings constructed on this piece of Government land did not belong to Government, (2) that the petitioners were in possession and occupation of the buildings and (3) that by virtue of enactments binding on the Government, the petitioners could be dispossessed, if at all, only in pursuance of a decree of a Civil Court obtained in proceedings properly initiated."

145. Court passed serious stricture against State authorities holding that the executive action taken by State and its Officers is destructive of the basic principle of rule of law. Hence action of Government in taking law into their hands and dispossessing petitioners by sheer display of force, exhibits a callous disregard of normal requirements of rule of law, apart from what might legitimately and reasonably be expected from a Government functioning in a society governed by a Constitution which guarantees to its citizens against arbitrary invasion by the executive of peaceful possession of property. Supreme Court reiterated what was said in its earlier judgment in Wazir Chand Vs. The State of Himachal Pradesh AIR 1954 SC 415 that State or its executive officers cannot interfere with the rights of others unless they can point out some specific rule of law which authorizes their acts. Supreme Court seriously deprecated State and said:

"We have here a highly discriminatory and autocratic act which deprives a person of the possession of property without reference to any law or legal authority. Even if the property was trust property it is difficult to see how the Municipal Committee, Barnala, can step in as trustee on an executive determination only."

146. Aforesaid decision has no application in the case in hand, inasmuch as, here State has exercised its power following terms and conditions laid down under lease-deed, which were made to prevail over any Statute providing otherwise, including TP Act, 1882 vide Section 2 of GG Act, 1895. Further, respondents, in exercise of right of resumption/re-entry, have not straightway went to dispossess petitioners but notice in question has been given to them giving time to vacate the premises whereafter respondents proposed to take further action for taking possession. Therefore, it cannot be said that no notice has been given to petitioners in the present case.

147. Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. and others Vs. Union of India (1986) 1 SCC 133 is a matter which was decided in a Writ Petition filed under Article 32 of Constitution by aforesaid Newspaper Company having its Establishment in Express Buildings at 9-10, Bahadurshah Zafar Marg, New Delhi, which was a land on perpetual lease from Union of India, under a registered Indenture of Lease, dated 17.03.1958. Five petitioners, who filed above Writ Petition before Supreme Court included Indian Express Newspaper (Bombay) Private Limited of which Express Newspapers Private Limited was a subsidiary and petitioners-3, 4 and 5, namely, Sri Ram Nath Goenka was Chairman of the Board of Directors, Nihal Singh was the Editor-in-chief of the Indian Express and Romesh Thapar was the Editor of the Paper published from Express Buildings. Union of India; Lt. Governor of Delhi, Sri Jagmohan; Municipal Corporation of Delhi; Zonal Engineer (Buildings) and Land and Development Officer were impleaded as respondents-1 to 5. The validity of notice of re-entry upon forfeiture of lease issued by Engineer Officer, Land and Development Office, New Delhi on 10.03.1980 was challenged. The notice required petitioners to show cause why Union of India should not re-enter upon and take possession of demised premises i.e. plots nos. 9 and 10, Bahadurshah Zafar Marg, together with Buildings built thereon under Clause 5 of Indenture of Lease, dated 17.03.1958, for committing breach of Clauses 2(14) and 2(5) of lease-deed. Another notice was issued earlier on 01.03.1980 by Zonal Engineer (Buildings), Municipal Corporation, City Zone, Delhi requiring Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd., New Delhi to show cause why aforesaid buildings being unauthorized, be not demolished under Sections 343 and 344 of Delhi Municipal Corporation Act, 1957 (hereinafter referred to as "DMC Act, 1957"). A challenge was made, besides others, on the ground of personal vendetta against Express Group of Newspapers and also being violative of Articles 14, 19(1)(a) and 19(1)(g) of the Constitution. The questions posed by Supreme Court, to be of far reaching consequence for maintenance of federal structure of Government, were:

(1) Whether the Lt. Governor of Delhi could usurp the functions of the Union of India, Ministry of Works and Housing and direct an investigation into the affairs of the Union of India i.e. question the legality and propriety of the action of the then Minister for Works and Housing in the previous Government at the center in granting permission to Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. to construct new Express Building with an increased FAR of 360 with a double basement for installation of a printing press for publication of a Hindi Newspaper on the western portion of the demised premises i.e. Plots No. 9 and 10, Bahadurshah Zafar Marg, New Delhi with the Express Buildings built thereon?

(2) Whether the grant of sanction by the then Minister for Works and Housing and the consequential sanction of building plans by him of the new Express Building was contrary to the Master Plan and the Zonal Development Plans framed under the Delhi Development Act, 1957 and the municipal bye-laws, 1959 made under the DMC Act, 1957 and therefore the lessor i.e. the Union of India had the power to issue a notice of re-entry upon forfeiture of lease under Clause 5 of the indenture of lease dated March 17, 1958 and take possession of the demised premises together with the Express Buildings built thereon and the Municipal Corporation had the authority to direct demolition of the said buildings as unauthorized construction under Sections 343 and 344 of the DMC Act, 1957?

*(3) Whether the threatened action which the petitioners characterise as arbitrary, illegal and irrat*ional was violative of Article 19(1)(a) read with Article 14 of the Constitution?

148. Thereafter Court analyzed the facts of case in detail and respective arguments and from Para-45 to 47 we find that Government of India and Lt. Governor of Delhi were Head on to each other and even Counsel's role was not appreciated by Court. In the light of arguments advanced by parties, in para-59 of judgment, Court formulated eight questions. The issue of maintainability of writ petition under Article 32 was also raised and it was considered by Supreme Court in the judgment from para-66 onwards. It held that building in question was necessary for running press, any statutory or executive action to pull it down or forfeit the lease, would directly impinge on the right of freedom of speech and expression under Article 19(1)(a) and therefore, writ petition was maintainable. Court said:

"... impugned notices of re-entry upon forfeiture of lease and of the threatened demolition of the Express Buildings are intended and meant to silence the voice of the Indian Express. It must logically follow that the impugned notices constitute a direct and immediate threat to the freedom of the press and are thus violative of Article 19(1)(a) read with Article 14 of the Constitution."

149. Since, land in dispute was Government land, provisions of Government Grants Act, 1895 (hereinafter referred to as "GG Act, 1985") were also relied on by Government and, therefore, Supreme Court examined provisions thereof also. It held that GG Act, 1895 is an explanatory or declaratory act. It said:

"Doubts having arisen as to the extent and operation of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and as to the power of the Government to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers of land made by it or under its authority, the Act was passed to remove such doubts as is clear from the long title and the preamble. The Act contains two sections and provides by Section 2 for the exclusion of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and, by Section 3 for the exclusion of, any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary."

150. Court in Express Newspapers Pvt. Ltd. and others Vs. Union of India (supra) further said:

"It is plain upon the terms that Section 2 excludes the operation of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 to Government grants. While Section 3 declares that all provisions, restrictions, conditions and limitations contained over any such grant or transfer as aforesaid shall be valid and shall take effect according to their tenor, notwithstanding any rule of law, statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary. A series of judicial decisions have determined the overriding effect of Section 3 making it amply clear that a grant of property by the Government partakes of the nature of law since it overrides even legal provisions which are contrary to the tenor of the document."

151. Having said so, Supreme Court found that the stand taken on behalf of Union of India that there was non compliance of mandatory requirement of Clause-6, therefore notice of re-entry was valid, is not correct.

152. Court then noted some contradictions in Constitution Bench judgment in Bishan Das and others Vs. State of Punjab and others (supra) and State of Orissa Vs. Ram Chandra Dev AIR 1964 SC 685.

153. In State of Orissa Vs. Ram Chandra Dev (supra), Constitution Bench observed:

"Ordinarily, where property has been granted by the State on condition which make the grant resumable, after resumption it is the grantee who moves the Court for appropriate relief, and that proceeds on the basis that the grantor State which has reserved to itself the right to resume may, after exercising its right, seek to recover possession of the property without filing a suit. "

154. It was observed that existence of a right is the foundation for a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. In Para-84 Court said that in cases involving purely contractual issues, the settled law is, where statutory provisions of public law are involved, writs will be issued and referred to its earlier judgment in Mohammed Hanif Vs. State of Assam (1969) 2 SCC 782. Thereafter it also considered the provisions of Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1971 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1971") and observed that Express building was constructed with the sanction of lessor, i.e., Union of India on plots demised on 'perpetual lease' by registered lease-deed dated 17.03.1958 hence cannot be regarded as 'public premises' belonging to the Central Government under Section 2(e). That being so, Act, 1971 has no application.

155. Court then considered other provisions relating to power of Lt. Governor, and Central Government and factual aspects involved in the matter, which, in our view, are not relevant for the purpose of this Case. Court also examined applicability of doctrine of estoppel but that has also not been raised in these matters, hence it is not necessary to examine it.

156. One aspect we may notice hereat that detailed judgment has been written by Hon'ble A.P. Sen, J. Justice E.S. Venkataramiah has agreed with the judgment of Hon'ble A.P. Sen, J in relation to the aspect that Lt. Governor of Delhi, Sri Jagmohan, has taken undue interest in getting notices issued to Express Newspapers and this action is not consistent with normal standards of administration. Notices were issued under pressure of Lt. Governor of Delhi, notices were violative of Article 14, suffers with arbitrariness and non application of mind. His Lordship said that it was not necessary to express any opinion on the contention based on Article 19(1)(a) of Constitution. Hon'ble Venkataramiah further said that question relating to civil rights of the parties flowing from lease deed cannot be disposed of in a petition under Article 32 of Constitution since questions whether there has been breach of the covenants under the lease, whether lease can be forfeited, whether relief against forfeiture can be granted etc. are foreign to the scope of Article 32 of Constitution which should be tried in a regular civil proceeding. His Lordship further said in Para-202 of judgment as under:

"One should remember that the property belongs to the Union of India and the rights in it cannot be bartered away in accordance with the sweet will of an Officer or a Minister or a Lt. Governor but they should be dealt with in accordance with law. At the same time a person who has acquired rights in such property cannot also be deprived of them except in accordance with law."

157. Having said so, while agreeing with ultimate order of quashing of notices, Hon'ble Venkataramiah, J. said:

"I express no opinion on the rights of the parties under the lease and all other questions argued in this case. They are left open to be decided in an appropriate proceeding." (Emphasis added)

158. Hon'ble R.B. Misra, J. also agreed with Hon'ble A.P. Sen and E.S. Venkataramiah, JJ that the notices challenged in writ petition are invalid, having no legal consequences and must be quashed for reasons detailed in both the judgments. His Lordship, however, said that other questions involved in the case are based upon contractual obligations between the parties and can be satisfactorily and effectively dealt with in a properly instituted suit and not by way of writ petition on the basis of affidavits which are so discrepant and contradictory in that case. Hon'ble R.B. Misra, J. in para 207 of judgment said:

"207. The right to the land and to construct buildings thereon for running a business is not derived from Article 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(g) of the Constitution but springs from terms of contract between the parties regulated by other laws governing the subject, viz., the Delhi Development Act, 1957, the Master Plan, the Zonal Development Plan framed under the Delhi Municipal Corporation Act and the Delhi Municipal Bye-laws, 1959 irrespective of the purpose for which the buildings are constructed. Whether there has been a breach of the contract of lease or whether there has been a breach of the other statutes regulating the construction of buildings are the questions which can be properly decided by taking detailed evidence involving examination and cross-examination of witnesses." (Emphasis added)

159. Thus, the above judgment also has no application to the facts of present case. On the contrary, majority view expressed in above judgment is that right to land and to construct building is not derived from Articles 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(g) of Constitution but springs from promise of contract between the parties. Whether there has been breach of contract of lease or there has been breach of any provision regulating lease rights and construction of building etc. are such questions which can be properly decided by taking detailed evidence involving examination and cross examination of witnesses and therefore, such rights can be enforced in common law proceedings by filing suit. In the present case, the right of re-entry is being enforced as per terms of Grant which prevailed over any other Law.

160. In Yar Mohammad and another vs. Lakshmi Das and others AIR 1959 Allahabad 1, a Full Bench of this Court considered following question :

"Whether the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is barred by virtue of Section 242 of the U. P. Tenancy Act in respect of suit filed under Section 9 of the Specific Relief Act for obtaining possession over agricultural land from which the plaintiff alleged his illegal dispossession within six months of the date of the-suit".

161. Therein plaintiffs instituted suit on 30.11.1948 for possession under Section 9 of Specific Relief Act, 1877 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1877") alleging that they were in actual possession of land in dispute (land was admittedly an agricultural land) but wrongfully dispossessed by defendants in November 1948. Defendants contested the suit and disputed correctness of above allegations of plaintiffs and pleaded that they were in possession of land as tenants of plaintiffs for more than 12 years, hence, plaintiffs cannot eject them. They also pleaded that suit was filed under Section 9 of Act, 1877 only to evade jurisdiction of Revenue Court. Trial Court i.e. learned Munsif rejected plea of lack of jurisdiction raised by defendants, accepted the case set up by plaintiffs and decreed the suit. Defendants then filed revision no.461 of 1952, which resulted in Reference, to a Larger Bench. The issue was with respect to applicability of Section 242 of U. P. Tenancy Act, 1939. Court said that Section 242 confers exclusive jurisdiction upon Revenue Court and takes away jurisdiction of Civil Court only in respect of two kinds of actions.

(i) suits or application of the nature specified in the Fourth Schedule of the Act; and

(ii) suits or applications based on a cause of action in respect of which any relief can be obtained by means of a suit or application specified in that schedule.

162. It was held that in order to attract Section 242, one has to demonstrate that action would fall under either of the above-mentioned two categories and if does not, jurisdiction of Civil Court is not ousted and Revenue Court will have no jurisdiction to entertain the action.

163. Then construing the cases, which may resort to Section 9 of Act, 1877, Court said that Section 9 gives a special privilege to persons in possession who take action promptly. In case they are dispossessed, Section 9 entitles them to succeed simply by proving:

(1) that they were in possession,

(2) that they have been dispossessed by the defendant,

(3) that dispossession is not in accordance with law, and

(4) that dispossession took place within six months of the suit.

164. No question of title either of plaintiffs or of defendants can be raised or gone into in an action brought under Section 9 of Act, 1877. Plaintiffs will be entitled to succeed without proving any title on which he can fall back upon and defendant cannot succeed even though he may be in a position to establish the best of all titles. Restoration of possession under Section 9 is however subject to a regular suit and person who has real title or even better title cannot be prejudiced in any way by a decree of a suit under Section 9. A person having real or better title always has a right to establish his title in a regular suit and get possession back. The objective and idea behind Section 9, as the Court observed, is, that law does not permit any person to take law in his own hands and to dispossess a person in actual possession, without having recourse to a Court or Institution, in an illegal manner. In other words, objective of Section 9 is to discourage people from taking law in their own hands, how-ever good title they may have. In the interest of public order, self-help is not permitted so far as possession over Immovable property is concerned. Section 9 is intended to discourage and prevent proceedings which might lead to serious breaches of peace. It does not allow a person who has acted high-handedly by wrongfully dispossessing a person in possession from deriving any benefit from his own unjustified act. Section 9, infact, provides for a summary and quick remedy for a person who is in possession but illegally ousted therefrom without his consent. Court observed that 'Possession' is prima facie evidence of title and if a person who is in possession is dispossessed, he has a right to claim back possession from the person who dispossesses him. In an ordinary common law proceedings, a person who has a title, is entitled to possession and cannot be deprived of his right of possession by a person, who has no title or inferior to the former. Court said that for Section 9, claim of title is not allowed to be set up and possession wrongfully taken, has to be restored. Full Bench therefore, answered question formulated above in negative.

165. In our view, above judgment has no application to the facts of this case for the reason that title of land is not in dispute, inasmuch as, it is admitted case of petitioner that land in dispute is 'Nazul', hence it is owned and vested in Government. It is also not in dispute that petitioner got possession of land in dispute vide a 'Will' executed by a person who had no valid claim over disputed land.

166. In the present case right of re-entry is being exercised by respondent-State in terms of lease-deed, whereunder even original lessee was obliged to surrender/hand over possession to State Government.

167. We may also note hereat that in the case in hand, lease was governed by provisions of GG Act, 1895 and Section 2, as amended in State of U.P., has excluded provisions of U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 for governing rights etc. of parties. Only provisions contained in lease-deed shall apply and have to be given effect to as if U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 was not passed. Therefore also, reliance placed on the aforesaid judgment is of no consequence.

168. Lallu Yeshwant Singh (dead) by his legal representative vs. Rao Jagdish Singh and others, AIR 1968 SC 620 is a judgment which came before two Judges Bench of Supreme Court from a dispute raised under Qanoon Mal Riyasat Gwalior Samvat, 1983 (hereinafter referred to as "Qanoon Mal") that is from Madhya Pradesh. Under Section 326 of Qanoon Mal, a suit was filed by Yeshwant Singh and others i.e. plaintiffs against Rao Jagdish Singh and others (defendants) in the Court of Tehsildar for possession of some agricultural land. Plaintiffs set up a case that they were in possession of land and forcibly dispossessed by defendants, therefore, should be restored their possession. Tehsildar decreed the suit and order was affirmed in appeal by Collector as well as Commissioner. Revision was also dismissed by Board of Revenue and decree passed by Tehsildar was maintained. Section 326 of Qanoon Mal broadly provided summary remedy as is provided in Section 9 of Act, 1877. In para 7 of the judgment, Supreme Court has referred to both the provisions and said that both are broadly similar. High Court took a different view holding that it was not necessary for a Lessor to resort to Court for obtaining possession and if there is default by plaintiff, it could have been dispossessed by defendants. Supreme Court said that no person can take law in its own hand and in such matter, where provisions providing summary procedure for restoration of illegal dispossession of land have been made, the same can be resorted to by the person who has been illegally dispossessed. Supreme Court affirmed Full Bench judgment of this Court in Yar Mohammad (supra). Here also we do not find applicability of this judgment to the case in hand for the reasons we have already said in respect of judgment in Yar Mohammad (supra).

169. The decision in State of U.P. Vs. Zahoor Ahmad and another (supra), we find, instead of helping petitioner, supports the view which we have taken hereinabove. The State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad and another (supra) was a matter which came up before two Judges Bench of Supreme Court arising from action by State in respect of certain land which fell within reserved forest in State of Uttar Pradesh. Zahoor Ahmad was granted lease of a plot of land at Chandan Chowki, Sonaripur Range in North Kheri Forest Division for an annual rent of Rs.100/-. The aforesaid land was part of Reserved Forest of which State of U.P. is the proprietor. Lease was granted for one year commencing from 18.03.1947 for industrial purpose. It was renewed on 10.06.1948 with effect from 18.03.1948 for further one year and again in 1949 for one year. Ultimately lease expired on 18.03.1950. State of U.P., after termination of lease, allowed Zahoor Ahmad to continue in possession of land on condition settled between the parties that Licensee i.e. Zahoor Ahmad would pay Rs.1,000/- as annual rent for occupation till 15.07.1950. Even after determination of lease on 15.7.1950, Zahoor Ahmad i.e. Licensee continued in possession and State of U.P. allowed him to remain in possession for three years beyond 15.07.1950 though for this period Zahoor Ahmad did not agree to give any undertaking of making payment of annual rent of Rs.1,000/-. A letter dated 04.12.1951 was issued to Zahoor Ahmad asking him to pay Rs.3,000/- for the year 1950-51. Letter further provided that if Zahoor Ahmad do not agree to pay Rs.3,000/- for the year 1950-51, amount of rent would be reduced to Rs.1800/- but he would not be allowed lease in future in any circumstance. The fact remains that Zahoor Ahmad was allowed to continue in occupation of land without any agreement as to the amount of rent payable for 1950-51. On 29.10.1952, Conservator of Forests sent a letter that Zahoor Ahmad can be allowed to run the mill beyond 15.07.1950 for three years if he pays Rs.3,000/- per annum and for one year only if he is ready to pay Rs.1,800/- but thereafter lease would not be renewed. Notice also said that he was only Licensee and should remove his plant and vacate the premises within one month and pay Rs.6,000/- as damages for use and occupation. Zahoor Ahmad did not pay the amount hence a suit for recovery of damages was filed by State of U.P. High Court came to the conclusion that Licensee (Zahoor Ahmad) was allowed to continue with the consent of State of U.P. though there was no written agreement about rate of rent and lease was granted for industrial purposes. Under Section 106 of TP Act, 1882, such lease is for year to year basis. The lease could have been terminated by six months notice and since no such notice was given, therefore, tenancy was not validly terminated. With respect to amount of rent, Court took the view that under Section 116, renewal would mean the same terms and conditions as made applicable in previous lease. High Court therefore decreed the suit for payment of rent of Rs.3,000/-. Possession was allowed by State with its consent. Thus, High Court took the view that 'holding over' was applicable under Section 116. State Government bye-passing provision of TP Act, 1882 sought to rely on GG Act, 1895. Whether the kind of above lease, granted by State could have been brought within the purview of GG Act, 1895, Supreme Court examined this issue by referring to two judgments. In one, lease of forest land of Sunderbans was held to be a 'Grant' while, in another, Grant of Khas Mahal was not held to be as 'Grant'. In Jnanendra Nath Nanda vs. Jadu Nath Banerji AIR 1938 Cal 211 two leases of two lots were granted by Sunderban Commissioner on behalf of Secretary of State. The land comprised in the lots were 'waste lands' of the Government. 'Waste lands' of Sunderbans were not property of any subject. Sunderbans was vast impenetrable forest. It was the property of East India Company and later on vested in Crown by virtue of an Imperial Statute. Court found that history of legislation showed that grants of Sunderbans lands were treated to be 'Crown Grants' within meaning of 'Crown Grants Act'. In another matter i.e. Secretary of State for India in Council vs. Lal Mohan Chaudhuri, AIR 1935 Cal 746 in respect of Khas Mahal, lease was granted by Government. It was held that lease of Khas Mahal does not come within the category of 'Grant' as contemplated in GG Act, 1935. Having said so, in para 13 of judgment, Court said that lease granted to Zahoor Ahmad was for the purpose of erecting a temporary rice mill and for no other purpose. The mere fact that State is the lessor will not by itself make above lease a 'Government Grant' within the meaning of GG Act, 1895. We may reproduce para 13 of the judgment in State of U.P. vs. Zahoor Ahmad (supra) as under :

"The lease in the present case was for the purpose of erecting a temporary rice mill and for no other purpose. The mere fact that the State is the lessor will not by itself make it a Government grant within the meaning of the Government Grants Act. There is no evidence in the present case in the character of the land or in the making of the lease or in the content of the lease to support the plea on behalf of the State that it was a grant within the meaning of the Government Grants Act."

170. When a question arose whether High Court has rightly applied Section 116 of TP Act, 1882, Supreme Court, in this context, referred to a judgment of this Court in Lala Kishun Chand vs. Sheo Dutta, AIR 1958 All. 879 wherein after expiry of lease of Nazul land, Licensee was permitted by Board of Revenue to continue in occupation as tenant and rent was also realized from him and held that in these facts, Section 116 of TP Act, 1882 was rightly applied.

171. In the present case, it is not the case of petitioner that after expiry of lease on 31.3.1962, it has been permitted to remain in possession of disputed Nazul land and rent has been accepted by respondents or petitioner has paid rent. Even if what is said by petitioner is taken to be correct, we do not find that Section 116 is applicable in the case in hand at all. Section 116 of TP Act, 1882 reads as under :

"116. Effect of holding over.- If a lessee or under-lessee of property remains in possession thereof after the determination of the lease granted to the lessee, and the lessor or his legal representative accepts rent from the lessee or under lessee, or otherwise assents to his continuing in possession, the lease is, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, renewed from year to year, or from month to month, according to the purpose for which the property is leased, as specified in section 106."

172. Twin conditions to attract principle of 'holding over' vide Section 116 of TP Act, 1882, which need be satisfied are:

(i) After determination of lease, lessor or his representative has accepted rent from lessee or under lessee or assented to his continuing in possession; and

(ii) Lessee or under-lessee has remained in possession.

173. Both the above conditions are absent in this case. Here Section 116 of T.P. Act, 1882 has no application at all.

174. In Bhawanji Lakhanishi vs. Himatlal Jamnadas AIR 1972 SC 819, Court said that basis of Section 116 is a bilateral contract between erstwhile landlord and erstwhile tenant. It has been held that assent of lessor cannot be inferred merely from his delay in taking steps to evict lessee. We may also refer to Calcutta High Court decision in Ratan Lal vs. Farshi Bibi (1907) ILR 34 Cal 396; Madras High in Govindaswami vs. Ramaswami (1916) 30 Mad LJ 492; Patna High Court in Christian vs. Hari Prasad AIR 1955 Pat 158 and Pritilata Devi vs. Banke Bihari Lal AIR 1962 Pat 446; and Rajsthan High Court in Gordhan vs. Ali Bux AIR 1981 Raj 206, holding that to attract Section 116, therefore, it has to be shown that there was a bilateral act creating a new tenancy. There is no implication of holding over. In our view, there is neither any material nor pleading to attract Section 116 and therefore, judgment in Zahoor Ahmad (supra) on this aspect does not help petitioners. On the contrary, what has been said in para 16 of the judgment, quoted above, the conditions of 'Grant' would prevail over every law including TP Act, 1882.

175. An argument was also advanced that resumption/re-entry amounts to acquisition of land without paying any compensation and in violation of Act, 2013.

176. This argument we have to reject for the simple reason that the State own the land in question, hence there is no occasion for its acquisition. At the time when re-entry/resumption is being made by State, petitioners neither had any title or ownership over land in dispute nor any existing lease rights, therefore, nothing has been acquisitioned by State. It is settled law that land, which is owned by State, cannot be acquired by it.

177. In Secretary of State Vs. Narain Khanna AIR 1942 Privy Council 35, it was held:

"where Government acquires any property consisting of land and buildings, and where land was the subject matter of Government grant, subject to power of resumption by Government at any time on giving one month's notice, then compensation was payable only in respect of such buildings as may have been authorized to be erected and not in respect of land." (Emphasis added)

178. A Division Bench of Judicial Commissioner in Md. Wajeeh Mirza vs. Secretary of State for India in Council, AIR 1921 Oudh 31, said as under:

"when Government itself claims to be owner of the land, there can be no question of its acquisition and the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act cannot be applicable. This opinion expressed by Judicial Commissioner has been approved in Sharda Devi vs. State of Bihar and another (supra). Court reiterate in Sharda Devi vs. State of Bihar and another (supra) that land or an interest in land pre-owned by State cannot be subject-matter of acquisition by State. If the land in question is Government land, there is no question of initiating proceedings of acquisition at all. Government would not acquire the land, which already vests in it."

179. In Sharda Devi Vs. State of Bihar and another, 2003 (3) SCC 128, Court has said as under:

"the State does not acquire its own land for it is futile to exercise the power of eminent domain for acquiring rights in the land, which had already vests in the State. It would be absurdity to comprehend the provisions of Land Acquisition Act being applicable to such land wherein ownership or the entirety of rights already vests in State. In other words, land owned by State on which there are no private rights or encumbrances is beyond the preview of provisions of Land Acquisition Act."

180. In Collector of Bombay Vs. Nusserwanji Rattanji Mistri (1996) 10 SCC 150, it was held:

"under the provision of Land Acquisition Act, Government acquires the sum total of all private interests subsisting in them. If Government has itself an interest in land, it has only to acquire other interest outstanding thereof so that it might be in a position to pass it on absolutely for public user."

181. In State of U.P. and another Vs. Lalji Tandon (dead) through Legal Representatives (2004) 1 SCC 1 referring to the decision in Sharda Devi vs. State of Bihar (supra), court said as under:

"the notification and declaration under Sections 4 and 6 of the Land Acquisition Act for acquisition of the land i.e. the site below the bungalow are meaningless. It would have been different if the State would have proposed the acquisition of lease hold rights and/or the superstructure standing thereon, as the case may. But that has not been done."

182. In view thereof, this submission is also rejected.

183. One more aspect was pressed that even if lease expired, petitioners being in possession of land in dispute, their tenancy will be governed by provisions of Section 106 of TP Act, 1882 and without quit notice, petitioner cannot be evicted.

184. This submission is also misconceived. Once period of lease has expired or determined and this is admitted fact, status of Lessee becomes that of "Tenant at Sufference", therefore, even a quit notice is not necessary to be given and Section 106 TP Act, 1882 is not at all attracted. Relying on earlier decision in R.V. Bhupal Prasad vs. State of A.P. (1995) 5 SCC 698 in a recent decision in Sevoke Properties Ltd. vs. West Bengal

State Electricity Distribution Company Ltd. AIR 2019 SC 2664, Court held that once it is admitted by lessee that term of lease has expired, lease stood determined by efflux of time and in such case, a quit notice under Section 106 is not required to be given. Court has said as under :

"Once the lease stood determined by efflux of time, there was no necessity for a notice of termination Under Section 106."

185. In the above authority, Court held that after expiry of period of lease, status of Lessee becomes that of 'Tenant at sufferance'. 'Tenant at sufference' is one who comes into possession of land by lawful title, but who holds it by wrong after termination of term or expiry of lease by efflux of time. The tenant at sufferance is one who wrongfully continues in possession after extinction of a lawful title. There is little difference between him and a trespasser. Quoting from Mulla's Transfer of Property Act (7th Edn.) at page 633, Court observed that tenancy at sufferance is merely a fiction to avoid continuance in possession operating as a trespass. It has been described as the least and lowest interest which can subsist in reality. It, therefore, cannot be created by contract and arises only by implication of law when a person who has been in possession under a lawful title continues in possession after that title has been determined, without consent of person entitled. A "tenancy at sufferance" does not create relationship of landlord and tenant. Court further quoted from page 769 of Mulla's transfer of Property Act (7th Edition), that act of holding over after expiration of term does not necessarily create a tenancy of any kind. If lessee remains in possession after determination of term, the common law Rule is that he is a tenant at sufferance. The fifth question is answered accordingly.

186. The sixth and last question up for consideration is "whether re-entry/resumption of land by Lessor i.e. State Government is valid?"

187. So far as validity of resumption of land for 'public purpose', it could not be disputed that land has been sought to be required by State in 'public interest'. Allahabad City has been selected for development as a 'Smart City' and respondents have pleaded that demand of lot of land has been made by various Government departments since various Offices, Workshops, Parks, Parking places etc. have to be constructed. The land in dispute has been found suitable by A.D.A. for 'Parking Place' and development of 'Parking Place' is a public purpose. In fact, on this aspect, no substantial argument has been made and in our view, resumption of land by State is for 'public purpose'. Hence resumption/re-entry by respondents is valid and legal.

188. Having answered above issues, we may also observe that litigation initiated by petitioners on the one hand has given enough time to continue to hold and enjoy land in dispute and simultaneously denied opportunity to respondent authorities to take possession of land in question for the purpose of carrying out developmental activities where time is a matter of essence. Impugned notice was issued on 18.08.2018 and for more than fifteen months petitioners have already availed benefit of possession of land in dispute and enjoyed the same without spending even a single penny towards rent, damages, compensation etc. for such enjoyment. Land in question is required for developmental activities in furtherance of developing Prayagraj City as "Smart City". Developmental activities required an early action, but, by indulging in litigation, petitioners have already delayed it sufficiently, therefore, even if what petitioners' claim that they should have been given notice or sufficient time to vacate, the same has already been achieved as petitioners had already enough time with them. It is, thus, a fit case where we do not find that any other technicality should be allowed to intervene and, earliest is the better that possession of land is transferred to respondents so that developmental activities may proceed without any further delay.

189. However, considering the facts and circumstances and also the fact that petitioner has already enjoyed interim order passed by this Court and continued in possession over land in dispute for the last almost more than a year, we direct the petitioner to vacate disputed land within one month from the date of delivery of judgment.

190. In view of above discussion, we do not find any merit in the petition. Subject to observations about vacation of land in dispute, the writ petition is dismissed.

191. No costs.

A. Civil Law - Land Acquisition Act, 1894 – Section 6(1) – Proviso (1) – Explanation 1 – Limitation – It is mandatory to make a declaration under Section 6 of the Act within one year from such notification – In computing the aforesaid period of one year the period during which any action or proceedings remained stayed by the order of the court shall stand excluded in view of Explanation 1 to proviso of Section 6(1). (Para 13 & 19)

Held - In view of above legal position and the mandatory requirement of issuing a declaration within a year from the date of publication of notification under Section 4 of the Act excluding period of stay, the impugned declaration made under Section 6 of the Act on 11.05.2012 is patently beyond time and is not only illegal but a nullity.

B. Civil Law - Land Acquisition Act, 1894 – Proviso (ii) of Section 6 – Computation of limitation – Effect of Court's order to the period of limitation – Argument that in a situation, where there is direction from the court to act upon pursuant to the notification issued under Section 4 of the Act and to complete the exercise of making the declaration within the time permitted, the limitation provided stands circumscribed or automatically extended – Held – The decision of Supreme Court was rendered on the basis of the concession or the consent of the parties and was not a decision on merits. The court in passing the said order had not adjudicated the point of limitation – Pooran Mal's case is distinguishable as it does not lay down a binding precedent. (Para 42, 43, 52 & 58)

C. Interpretation of statute – Legal maxim – Expressio unius est exclusio alterius – It means that if a statute provides for a thing to be done in a particular manner, then it has to be done in that manner alone and that no other manner is open and permissible in law. (Para 30)

Held - In view of the above well acknowledged legal principle since proviso(ii) to Section 6 of the Act mandates for issuing of the declaration within a year from the date of notification under Section 4 of the Act, the declaration has to be made within the said period and not otherwise.

D. Civil Law - Land Acquisition Act, 1894 – Section 5A – Competency of Special Land Acquisition Officer to decide the objection – Under the provision, objection is to be decided by the 'Collector' – S.L.A.O. is not the Collector or the person in-charge of the revenue- administration. He is not even an Additional Collector. He is simply an Assistant Collector of the First Class. He cannot discharge the functions of the Collector either under the Code or under any other Act – SLAO has no authority or jurisdiction to discharge the functions of the Collector as envisaged under Section 5A of the Act. (Para 76 & 77)

E. Civil Law - U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 – Section 4(8) and 12 – Definition of Collector – Section 4(8) of the Code defines 'Collector' to be an Officer appointed by the State Government under Section 12 and to include an Additional Collector and Assistant Collector of the First Class empowered by the State Government by notification to discharge all or any of the functions of a Collector under the Code – Assistant Collector however is not entitled to discharge any other functions of the Collector other than those under the Code such as those conferred upon the Collector under the other Acts. (Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Mithal, J.
Hon'ble Saral Srivastava, J.)

1. The petitioner has invoked the writ jurisdiction of this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India questioning the validity of the declaration dated 11.5.2012 issued under Section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act") in respect of the land of various villages in district Agra notified for acquisition under Section 4 of the Act on 3.10.2005 lastly published on 28.11.2005 for the benefit of the Agra Development Authority.

2. The petitioner apart from seeking quashing of the aforesaid declaration has also made a prayer for the quashing of the entire acquisition proceedings pursuant to the notifications dated 3.10.2005 and 11.05.2012 issued under Sections 4 and 6 of the Act respectively.

3. The primary ground for attacking the declaration made under Section 6 of the Act is that it is beyond time of one year from the date of publication of the notification under Section 4 of the Act as provided under proviso (ii) to Section 6(1) of the Act; and that the objections filed by the petitioner under Section 5-A of the Act were not decided by the Collector who is the competent authority but by the Special Land Acquisition Officer who was not notified for the purposes of dealing with the said objections and that no personal hearing was given to the petitioner while dealing with the said objections and thereafter making recommendation to the State Government.

4. First, the facts in brief for the better and complete appreciation of controversy vis-a-vis the legal position involved and the reasoning for its resolution.

5. On the proposal of the Collector, Agra dated 21.12.2004 proceedings were initiated for the acquisition of the land for the Taj Nagar Housing Scheme Phase-III promoted by the Agra Development Authority. A notification under Section 4(1) read with Section 17(4) of the Act was issued on 3.10.2005 dispensing with the enquiry under Section 5A of the Act. Apart from the Gazette and news-papers it was last published on 28.11.2005 in the locality.

6. The said notification was challenged by many tenure holders by filing separate writ petitions. The main one was by Kashma Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd. i.e. Writ Petition No.72063 of 2005. The High Court vide interim order dated 23.11.2005 directed the authorities to maintain status quo till 28.11.2005. Thereafter on 12.12.2005 the parties were directed to maintain status quo until further orders and they were directed to exchange the pleadings. The said writ petition and several other writ petitions connected with the same were decided vide judgment and order dated 25.8.2006. The writ petitions were allowed and the application of the provision of Section 17(1) and (4) of the Act was held to be invalid and the liberty was given to the respondents to proceed with the acquisition afresh in accordance with law from the stage of issuance and publication of the notification under Section 4 of the Act by affording opportunity to the petitioners or to the tenure holders to file objections under Section 5A of the Act and thereafter, if necessary, to issue a declaration under Section 6 of the Act.

7. The State of U.P. as well as the Agra Development Authority aggrieved by the aforesaid judgment and order dated 25.8.2006 preferred three special leave petitions i.e. Special Leave Petition (Civil) No.19602 of 2006 (State of U.P. Vs. Kshama Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd. and others); Special Leave Petition (Civil)

No.20149 of 2006 (Agra Development Authority Vs. Kshama Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd.) and Special Leave Petition (Civil) No.20489 of 2006 (Agra Development Authority Vs. Sahab Singh). All the three special leave petitions were taken up together on 8.12.2006 and apart from issuing notice to the contesting parties, a direction was issued to maintain status quo. These special leave petitions were finally decided by the Supreme Court vide its judgment and order dated 13.5.2011 and the State/authorities were directed to publish notice inviting objections under Section 5A of the Act to be filed within two months and to be dispose them of in accordance with law within three months thereafter.

8. Consequent to the above decision of the Supreme Court, notice inviting objections was published on 11.6.2011 in the news-papers pursuant to which a total 213 objections were filed in relation to the land of eight villages notified for acquisition. The objections were rejected by eight separate orders all dated 3.11.2011 passed by the Special Land Acquisition Officer. Thereafter on report being submitted to the State Government, the impugned declaration dated 11.5.12 was issued under Section 6 of the Act.

9. It is in this background that the petitioner alleges that the declaration issued under Section 6 of the Act is bad in law as it is not within time of one year as stipulated vide proviso (ii) to Section 6(1) of the Act and that the Special Land Acquisition Officer was not competent to consider and decide the objections of the petitioner filed under Section 5A of the Act.

10. We had heard Sri Rahul Agarwal, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, Additional Advocate General representing the State Authorities and also the Agra Development Authority. They had consented for the final disposal of the writ petition on the basis of the pleadings on record.

11. Before adverting to the legal aspects it would be important to recapitulate the relevant dates in a tabular form which would be convenient for dealing with the first issue regarding the limitation of issuing declaration under Section 6 of the Act:

S.No.	Particulars	Date
1.	Date of Notification under Section 4	03.10.2005
2.	Last date of the publication of the aforesaid notification.	28.11.2005
3.	Interim order in the writ petition of Kshama Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd.	23.11.2005
4.	Date of expiry of the above interim order	28.11.2005
5.	Date of further stay order in the above writ petition	12.12.2005
6.	Writ petition of Kshama Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd. allowed.	25.08.2006
7.	Date of interim order passed by the Supreme Court in the three special leave petitions.	08.12.2006
8.	Special leave petitions finally decided	13.05.2011
9.	Declaration under Section 6 of the Act	11.05.2012

12. In order to examine the issue of limitation of declaration under Section 6 of the Act, it would be profitable to quote the relevant provisions of Sections 4 and 6 of the Act:

"4. Publication of preliminary notification and power of officers thereupon. - (1) Whenever it appears to the appropriate Government or Collector that land in any locality is needed or is likely to be needed for any public purpose or for a company, a notification to that effect shall be published in the Official Gazette and in two daily newspapers circulating in that locality of which at least one shall be in the regional language, and the Collector shall cause public notice of the substance of such notification to be given at convenient places in the said locality (the last of the dates of such publication and the giving of such public notice, being hereinafter referred to as the date of the publication of the notification).

(2) ....."

"6. Declaration that land is required for a public purpose. - (1) Subject to the provision of Part VII of this Act, when the appropriate Government is satisfied, after considering the report, if any, made under section 5A, sub-section (2), that any particular land is needed for a public purpose, or for a Company, a declaration shall be made to that effect under the signature of a Secretary to such Government or of some officer duly authorized to certify its orders and different declarations may be made from time to time in respect of different parcels of any land covered by the same notification under section 4, sub-section (1) irrespective of whether one report or different reports has or have been made (wherever required) under section 5A, sub-section (2):

Provided that no declaration in respect of any particular land covered by a notification under section 4, sub-section (1)-

(i) published after the commencement of the Land Acquisition (Amendment and Validation) Ordinance, 1967 (1 of 1967), but before the commencement of the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act, 1984, shall be made after the expiry of three years from the date of the publication of the notification; or

(ii) published after the commencement of the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act, 1984, shall be made after the expiry of one year from the date of the publication of the notification:

Provided further in computing the period of three years referred to in the preceding proviso, the time during which the State Government was prevented by or in consequence of any order of any Court from making such declaration shall be excluded.

Provided further that no such declaration shall be made unless the compensation to be awarded for such property is to be paid by a Company, or wholly or partly out of public revenues or some fund controlled or managed by a local authority.

Explanation 1. - In computing any of the periods referred to in the first proviso, the period during which any action or proceeding to be taken in pursuance of the notification issued under section 4, sub-section (1), is stayed by an order of a Court shall be excluded.*

Explanation 2. - Where the compensation to be awarded for such property is to be paid out of the funds of a corporation owned or controlled by the State, such compensation shall be deemed to be compensation paid out of public revenues.*

(2) Every declaration shall be published in the Official Gazette, and in two daily newspapers circulating in the locality in which the land is situated of which at least one shall be in the regional language, and the Collector shall cause public notice of the substance of such declaration to be given at convenient places in the said locality (the last of the dates of such publication and the giving of such public notice, being hereinafter referred to as the date of the publication of the declaration), and such declaration shall state the district or other territorial division in which the land is situate, the purpose for which It is needed, its approximate area, and, where a plan shall have been made of the land, the place where such plan may be inspected.

(3) The said declaration shall be conclusive evidence that the land is needed for a public purpose or for a company, as the case may be; and, after making such declaration, the appropriate Government may acquire the land in manner hereinafter appearing."

13. The provisions as quoted above clearly reflects that the last date of publication of the notification under Section 4 of the Act is referred to as the date of the notification and that it is mandatory to make a declaration under Section 6 of the Act within one year from such notification. In computing the aforesaid period of one year the period during which any action or proceedings remained stayed by the order of the court shall stand excluded.

14. In the instant case the date of the notification under Section 4 of the Act is 03.10.2005 but as it was last published on 28.11.2005 the said date i.e. 28.11.2005 shall be the date of the publication of the notification. Thus a declaration under Section 6 of the Act in ordinary course was supposed to be made on or before 28.11.2006. However as there were interim orders affecting the proceedings in pursuance to the notification under Section 4 of the Act, the periods of the said stay orders are liable to be excluded and the limitation for making the declaration would stand extended by such excluded periods.

15. A perusal of the chart of dates would indicate that the limitation for issuing declaration under Section 6 of the Act commenced on 28.11.2005, the date on which the notification under Section 4 of the Act was last published. The interim order in the writ petition of Kshama Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd. remained in operation from 23.11.2005 till 28.11.2005 and then from 12.12.2005 till 25.8.2006. Thus, there was no interim order between 29.11.2005 and 11.12.2005.

16. The Supreme Court passed interim order on 8.12.2006 which remained in operation till 13.5.2011. Thus, there was no interim order from the date of the judgment of the High Court ie. 25.08.2006 till the grant interim order by the Supreme Court on 8.12.2006. Again there was no interim stay order from the date of dismissal of SLPs by the Supreme Court ie. from 13.05.2011 till the date of declaration ie. 11.05.2012.

17. In other words, there was no stay order operating during the following periods:-

(i) 28.11.2005 to 11.12.2005
(ii) 26.08.2006 to 07.12.2006
(iii) 14.05.2011 to 10.05.2012

The stay was operative only during the following periods:-

(i) 12.12.05 to 25.08.2006
(ii) 08.12.06 to 13.05.2011

18. It may be worth noting that there is no other date except 11.05.2012 on record of the publication of the declaration under Section 6 of the Act. Therefore, 11.05.2012 is taken as the last date of its publication and thus the date of the said declaration.

19. In view of the explanation 1 to proviso to Section 6(1) of the Act in computing the period of one year for issuing declaration under Section 6 of the Act from the date of last publication of notification under Section 4 of the Act, the period during which the interim order had remained in operation is liable to be excluded.

20. Accordingly, the periods of stay from 12.12.2005 to 25.8.2006; and 8.12.2006 to 13.5.2011 are liable to be excluded in computing the period of one year which commenced on 28.11.05. To put it differently, the period of limitation of one year which commenced on 28.11.2005 was interrupted by the above periods during which the stay remained in operation but as there was no interim orders between 28.11.2005 to 12.12.2005 and 25.8.2006 to 8.12.2006 the period of limitation continued to run in these two periods.

21. It is in view of the above factual background, we have to examine whether the declaration made under Section 6 of the Act on 11.5.2012 is within time of one year from the date of last publication of notification under Section 4 of the Act i.e. 28.11.2005 excluding the period in which interim orders remained operative and whether in view of the direction of the Supreme Court contained in its judgment and order dated 13.5.2011 permitting the State authorities to publish notice inviting objections and to decide the objections in accordance with law within the time fixed by it would override the statutory limitation or extend the same, making the declaration to be a valid one.

22. The date of the notification under Section 4 of the Act is 28.11.2005 and that of the declaration under Section 6 of the Act is 11.05.2012. Now, let us examine if the said declaration is within time of one year from the date of the notification under Section 4 of the Act excluding the period during which stay orders have remained operative.

23. The period of one year referred to in the proviso (ii) to Section 6(i) of the Act means a year of 365 days according to the British Calendar. Section 3(6) of the General Clauses Act, 1897 also defines "a year" to mean a year according to the British Calendar.

24. The Ninth Edition of the Black's Law Dictionary defines a year to be a period of 12 calendar months beginning from January 1 and ending on 31st December. In other words, a consecutive period of 365 days beginning from any point is reckoned as a year as per the British Calendar.

25. In view of above, the primary issue is whether the declaration under Section 6 of the Act in the instant case has been made within a period of 365 consecutive days commencing from 28.11.2005 excluding the period of the stay orders.

26. The limitation of the above one year or 365 days commenced on 28.11.2005. It started running as under:-

1. November-2005 (29 - 30 Nov.) 2 days

2. December-2005 (1 - 11 Dec.)
11 days

Note:- Interrupted from 12.12.05 to 25.08.06 due to the stay order of High Court.

1. August-2006 (26 - 31 Aug.)
6 days
2. September-2006
30 days
3. October-2006
31 days
4. November-2006
30 days
5. December-2006
7 days

Note:- Interrupted from 08.12.06 to 13.05.2011 due to the stay order of Supreme Court.

1. May-2011 (14 - 31 May)
18 days
2. June-2011
30 days
3. July-2011
31 days
4. August-2011
31 days
5. September-2011
30 days
6. October-2011
31 days
9. November-2011
30 days
10. December-2011
31 days
11. January-2011
16 days

Total of 1 to 11
365 days

Note:-A total of 365 days from 28.11.05 excluding period of stay. Therefore, Limitation of one year expires on this day.

15 days
13. February-2012
28 days
14. March-2012
31 days
15. April-2012
30 days
16. May-2012
10 days (up date of decl-aration i.e.11.05.2012

Total of 12 to 16
114 days

Note:- A total of (365+114) 479 days from 28.11.05 excluding periods of stay. Therefore, the declaration is beyond time of one year by 114 days from 28.11.05 till the date of declaration on 11.05.12

27. It is pertinent to mention that the Supreme Court in the case of R. Indira Saratchandra Vs. State of Tamil Nadu (2011) 10 SCC 344 has held that once a stay order passed by the court is vacated, it comes to an end and the clog put on the running of the limitation gets removed.

28. The above computation of the limitation would show that on the date of the declaration made under Section 6 of the Act a period of 479 days have lapsed from the date of notification under Section 4 of the Act excluding the periods during which the stay orders of the High Court and the Supreme Court have remained in operation. The period of one year 28.11.2005 expired on 16.01.2012.

Thus, making the declaration dated 11.05.2012 beyond limitation of one year by 114 days.

29. Thus the declaration made under Section 6 of the Act is on the face of it beyond one year and is barred by statutory limitation.

30. Legal maxim---Expressio unius est exclusio alterius- means that if a statute provides for a thing to be done in a particular manner, then it has to be done in that manner alone and that no other manner is open and permissible in law.

31. The above maxim has been consistently followed by the Supreme Court right from 1961 in the case of Deep Chand Vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 1961 S.C. 1527 till date.

32. In view of the above well acknowledged legal principle since proviso(ii) to Section 6 of the Act mandates for issuing of the declaration within a year from the date of notification under Section 4 of the Act, the declaration has to be made within the said period and not otherwise.

33. In Padmasundara Rao (Dead) Vs. State of Tamil Nadu & others (2002) 3 SCC 533, the Five Judges of the Supreme Court in reference to the period of limitation regarding declaration under Section 6 of the Act observed that language of Section 6(1) is plain and unambiguous. There is no scope for reading something into it. If the legislature has specifically provided for the period of limitation and to exclude periods covered by the stay orders, it clearly means that no other period is intended to be excluded and that there is no scope for providing any other period of limitation other than which is prescribed under the Act.

34. In Ashok Kumar & others Vs. State of Haryana and another (2007) 3 SCC 470 the Apex Court held that the limitation provided in proviso (ii) appended to Section 6(1) of the Act is mandatory in nature. Any declaration made after the expiry of one year from the date of the notification issued under Section 4 of the Act would be void and will have no effect.

35. A Division Bench of this court in Mahavir Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. and another (2007) 2 AWC 1162 (DB) of which one of us (P. Mithal J.) was the member in context to the validity of a declaration made under Section 6 of the Act on the ground of its limitation held that the court had no competence to extend the period of limitation and that direction of the court to deal with the mater in accordance with law does not extend the statutory limitation. Therefore, a declaration or a fresh declaration under Section 6 of the Act could not have been made after the expiry of one year excluding period of stay, from the date of issuance of the publication of the notification under Section 4 of the Act.

36. In Vijay Narayan Thatte & others Vs. State of Maharastra & others (2009) SCC 92 again in reference to a declaration under Section 6 of the Act it was held since the statute is very clear, the period of limitation provided in proviso (ii) to Section 6 of the Act has to be followed and even the concession of the counsel cannot obliterate the same as it is mandatory in nature and must operate with its full rigour.

37. In Oxford English School Vs. Government of Tamil Nadu & others

(1995) (5) SCC 206 it has been laid down that the High Court could not have given any direction permitting issuance of the declaration under Section 6 of the Act from the date of its judgement if otherwise the limitation is over.

38. In the State of Punjab and another Vs. Rajesh Syal (2002) 8 SCC 158 the Supreme Court observed that it has ample jurisdiction to pass orders under Article 142 (1) of the Constitution of India that may be necessary for doing complete justice in any case but even in exercise of that power it is more than doubtful, if it can pass order contrary to law. Thus, it was held that court can not extend the period of limitation.

39. Thus, even the Supreme Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 142 of the Constitution of India would not ordinarily grant a relief that would be in violation of statutory provision or to do an act which may be contrary to the express provisions of Law.

40. In Anil Kumar Gupta Vs. State of Bihar & others (2012) 12 SCC 443 the court opined that a declaration issued under Section 6 of the Act after the expiry of one year from the date of notification under Section 4 of the Act, is a nullity.

41. In view of above legal position and the mandatory requirement of issuing a declaration within a year from the date of publication of notification under Section 4 of the Act excluding period of stay, the impugned declaration made under Section 6 of the Act on 11.05.2012 is patently beyond time and is not only illegal but a nullity.

42. This takes us to the second limb of the arguments of Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, Additional Advocate General that the limitation provided proviso (ii) to Section 6 of the Act has no applicability where there is direction from the court to act upon pursuant to the notification issued under Section 4 of the Act and to complete the exercise of making the declaration within the time permitted. In such a situation the limitation provided stands circumscribed or automatically extended.

43. First of all the above argument is based upon complete misreading of the directions of the Supreme Court dated 13.05.2011 issued while deciding the three special leave petitions in the matter of Kshama Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd.

44. The relevant part of the aforesaid order of the Supreme Court reads as under:-

"Accordingly, we dispose of the two Special Leave Petitions by directing the Land Acquisition Authorities to publish Notice inviting objections under Section 5 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 in 'Amar Ujala' and 'Dainik Jagran', both local daily newspapers, and the said Notice shall indicate that objections could be filed within two months from the date of publication and upon receipt of such objections, if any, the concerned authorities shall dispose of the same in accordance with law within three months thereafter.

The interim orders passed in SLP (C) No.19602 of 2006 are vacated.

Consequently, SLP (C) No.20489 of 2006, filed by the Agra Development Authority against the same judgment of the Division Bench of the High Court, as impugned in the other Special Leave Petitions is also disposed of in the above terms."

45. A plain reading of the above directions would reveal that the Apex Court had not granted any liberty to the respondents to publish a declaration under Section 6 of the Act even if the time for making it had expired.

46. In fact the court had not dealt with the period of limitation for making the declaration under Section 6 of the Act. It only permitted the respondents to invite objections under Section 5A of the Act by publication of notice in the newspapers and had prescribed time limit for filing objections and for its disposal that too in accordance with law.

47. In accordance with law means within the time provided under the Act itself and not otherwise.

48. In view of above, it cannot be said that the Supreme Court has consciously waived the period of limitation provided for making declaration under Section 6 of the Act or has extended the same or has otherwise permitted the respondents to make it even if the limitation has expired.

49. This apart the period of limitation provided under the statute cannot be extended and it is not open for the court to confer jurisdiction upon any authority which it had ceased to exercise. In this regard a reference may be had to Oxford English School (Supra) and Mahavir Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. (Supra).

50. Even though no contrary decision has been cited to dislodge the principle that the statutory period of doing a thing can be extended or ignored may be due to the directions of the court, we have ourselves laboured hard and have come across few decisions not in context with the acquisition of the land but in reference to tax proceedings wherein a different view appears to have been expressed. Therefore, we consider it appropriate to deal with those decisions also before expressing our final opinion upon the validity of the impugned declaration.

51. The convssing that where proceedings were taken pursuant to the directions of the court to pass a fresh order, the statutory limitation provided would not be a bar can be supported by a decision in Mishra Sugandhi Karyalaya Vs. State of U.P. and others 2011 (40) VST 364 (All). In the said case the order of assessment pursuant to notice under Section 21(2) of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 (hereinafter referred to as the Trade Tax Act) was the subject matter of challenge on the ground that the submissions made by the petitioners were not considered at all. Learned Standing Counsel conceded and requested that the matter be remanded with the direction to pass a fresh order. Accordingly, the order impugned therein was set aside and the matter was remanded to pass a fresh order and it was observed that in view of the decision in M/s S.K. Traders Vs. Additional Commissioner of Trade Tax, Ghaziabad and another 2007 NTN (34) 345 the limitation would not be a hindrance.

52. Thus, the aforesaid decision was rendered on the basis of the concession or the consent of the parties and was not a decision on merits. The court in passing the said order had not adjudicating point of limitation but simply applying the ratio of S.K. Traders (Supra) observed that the limitation would not come in way of passing a fresh assessment order.

53. In the case of S.K. Traders (Supra) the court held that where proceedings have been set aside by the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India the period of limitation shall not apply in initiating proceedings thereafter.

54. A reading of the above decision would reveal that it was rendered primarily based upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Director of Inspection of Income Tax (Investigation) New Delhi and another Vs. Pooran Mal and sons AIR (1975) (4) SC 67 which had laid down that once an order had been passed within the period of limitation, the subsequent order made in pursuance to the order or remand or direction of the High Court would not be barred by limitation and can be made at any time.

55. In Pooran Mal's case (Supra) the controversy was with regard to the period of time under Section 132(5) of the Income Tax Act, 1961. The earlier order was quashed by the High Court with liberty to the department to look into the matter afresh. The said order was passed with the consent of the parties. On the fresh order being passed, a question of limitation arose. The Supreme Court upheld the order as it was passed in pursuance of the agreement of the parties and held that the period limitation mentioned in Section 132(5) of the Income Tax Act stood waived as the parties have agreed for an order and are not entitle to take the plea of limitation on the principle of estoppal.

56. The very fact that the order permitting passing of a fresh order was based upon the consent of the parties and was with their agreement, the decision of Pooran Mal's case does not be lay down a binding precedent. Moreover, particularly as the principle of waiver and estoppal was applied therein which are not attracted in the case at hand, the above decision is of no relevance in the present context.

57. It is settled law that the court should not place reliance a decision without discussing the factual situation and comparing the same with the fact situation of the case at hand as there is always a peril in treating the words of a speech or judgement as though they are words in a legislative enactment. A decision is only an authority for what is actually decided. The essence of the decision is its ratio and not every observation or what logically follows from those.

58. The aforesaid decision was considered in extenso by the Five Judges Bench of the Supreme Court in Padmasundara Rao's case and the same was not applied as it was based on the principle of waiver and estoppal.

59. It would be very fruitful to reproduce the observation of the Supreme Court in the case of Padmasundara Rao distinguishing the above decision of Pooran Mal's case.

Padmasundara Rao case:-

"Learned counsel for the respondents referred to some observations in Pooran Mal case which form the foundation for decisions relied upon by him. It has to be noted that Pooran Mal Case was decided on entirely different factual and legal backgrounds. The Court noticed that the assessee who wanted the Court to strike down the action of the Revenue Authorities on the ground of limitation had himself conceded to the passing of an order by the Authorities. This court, therefore, held that the assessee can not take undue advantage of his own action. Additionally, it was noticed that the time limit was to be reckoned with reference to the period prescribed in respect of Section 132(5) of the IT Act. It was noticed that once the order has been made under Section 132 (5) within ninety days, the aggrieved person has got the right to approach the notified authority under Section 132 (11) within thirty days and that authority can direct the Income Tax Officer to pass a fresh order. This is the distinctive feature vis-a-vis Section 6 of the Act. The Court applied the principle of waiver and inter alia held that the period of limitation prescribed therein was one intended for the benefit of the person whose property has been seized and it was open to that person to waive that benefit. It was further observed that if the specified period is held to be mandatory, it would cause more injury to the citizens than to the Revenue. A distinction was made with status providing periods of limitation for assessment. It was noticed that Section 132 does not deal with taxation of income. Considered in that background, ratio of the decision in Pooran Mal case has no application to the case at hand."

60. In view of the above, the decision of Pooran Mal's case and those of S.K. Traders (Supra) and others do not affect the reasoning drawn by us on the point of limitation.

61. Now we deal with the second argument advanced on behalf of the petitioners that as the objections filed under Section 5A of the Act were not decided by the Collector but by the SALO who was not competent, the rejection of the objections and the consequent report to the government is a nugatory.

62. The objections of the tenure holders objecting to the acquisition of the land are required to be heard in accordance with Section 5A of the Act. It provides that every objection to the acquisition of the land as a consequence of the notification issued under Section 4 of the Act shall be made to the Collector in writing and the Collector shall give such objectors an opportunity of hearing and thereafter if necessary after making further enquiry submit a report or reports to the appropriate government with his recommendations whereupon the government shall take a final decision and proceed to make a declaration under Section 6 of the Act if necessary.

63. Section 5A(2) of the Act which is relevant in this regard reads as under:-

"Every objection under sub-section(1) shall be made to the Collector in writing, and the Collector shall give the objector an opportunity of being heard in person or by any person authorised by him in this behalf or by pleader and shall, after hearing all such objections and after making such further inquiry, if any, as he thinks necessary, either make a report in respect of the land which has been notified under section 4, sub-section (1), or make different reports in respect of different parcels of such land, to the appropriate Government, containing his recommendations on the objections, together with the record of the proceedings held by him, for the decision of that Government. The decision of the appropriate Government on the objections shall be final."

64. On the plain reading of the aforesaid provision the Collector is the competent authority before whom objections have to be filed and who is vested with the power to hear the objections in making report for the purposes of acquisition of the land to the State Government.

65. The word 'Collector' has not been defined under the Act but in Section 3(11) of the General Clauses Act, 1897 it has been defined to mean in places other than the Presidency-towns as chief officer- in-charge of the revenue-administration of the district.

66. In the State of U.P. previously United Provinces later U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901 used to govern the law relating to land revenue and the jurisdiction of the officers thereto.

67. Section 14 of the said Act provides that the State Government shall appoint in each district an officer who shall be a Collector of the district exercise all the powers and to discharge all the duties conferred and imposed on a Collector by the said Act or any other law for the time being in force.

68. According to Section 14-A of the Act an Additional Collector exercise such powers and discharge such duties of the Collector as may be prescribed and directed by the Collector concerned and in exercising such powers, he acts as the Collector of the district. At the same time, Section 15 of the said Act provides for the appointment of Assistant Collectors of the first or the second class who shall also be the Revenue Officers in the district but subordinate to the Collector. In other words Assistant Collector is not a Collector but a Revenue Officer subordinate to the Collector.

69. Now the administration of the revenue in the districts is governed by the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. Section 12 of the Code provides that the State Government shall appoint a Collector in each district, who shall be in-charge of the revenue-administration thereof and shall exercise all powers and discharge all duties conferred and imposed upon him by or under the Code or any other law for the time being enforced meaning thereby that the Collector appointed therein addition to revenue-administration may also be conferred with powers and duties not only under the code but also under other laws in force such as the Land Acquisition Act.

70. The above provision also contemplates of the appointment of one or more AdditionalCollector in the district to exercise and discharge all powers and duties of the Collector.

71. Section 4(8) of the Code defines 'Collector' to be an Officer appointed by the State Government under Section 12 of the Act and to include an Additional Collector and Assistant Collector of the First Class empowered by the State Government by notification to discharge all or any of the functions of a Collector under the Code.

72. For the sake of convenience Section 12 of the Code and the definition of the Collector contained in 4(8) of the Code are reproduced herein below:-

'Collector' means an officer appointed as such by the State Government under sub-section (1) of Section 12, and shall include--

(a) an Additional Collector appointed by the State Government under sub-section (2) of the said section: and

(b) an Assistant Collector of the first call empowered by the State Government by notification to discharge all or any of the functions of a Collector under this Code;

73. On the conjoint reading of the above two provisions it is implicit that the Collector is the Officer appointed by the State Government as the person in-charge of the revenue-administration of the district Additional Collector and other functions and duties provided under the Code and includes an Assistant Collector of the First Class who is so empowered by the State Government by notification to discharge all or any of the functions of the Collector under the Code.

74. In other words, in addition to the Collector and the Additional Collector an Assistant Collector of the First Class can discharge the functions of the Collector under the Code if he is so empowered by the State Government by a notification, such Assistant Collector however is not entitle to discharge any other functions of the Collector other than those under the Code such as those conferred upon the Collector under the other Acts including the Act.

75. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, an Assistant Collector of the First Class is not entitle to function as Collector unless he is so notified by the Collector. Secondly, even if he is so notified he can only discharge functions of the Collector under the Code and not those that are conferred upon the Collector under the other Acts.

76. The Special Land Acquisition Officer who dealt with the objections of the petitioner/tenure holders and rejected the same is not the Collector or the person in-charge of the Revenue-administration. He is not even an Additional Collector. He is simply an Assistant Collector of the First Class but he cannot discharge the functions of the Collector either under the Code or under any other Act as there is nothing on record to establish that he has been so empowered by the State Government by means of a notification.

77. Even if there is a notification of the State Government empowering the Assistant Collector First Class or the SLAO to discharge functions of the Collector, he would be entitle only to carry out only those functions of the Collector which are given under the Code. It means the SLAO has no authority or jurisdiction to discharge the functions of the Collector as envisaged under Section 5A of the Act as he is not the Collector or officer-in-charge of the revenue administration of the district or the Additional Collector.

78. In view of the aforesaid legal position, the rejection of the objections of the petitioner/tenure holders by the SLAO vide order dated 03.11.2011 is wholly illegal and without jurisdiction.

79. The Collector could not have made any report or recommendation on the basis of the said orders of the SLAO to permit the State Government to make a valid declaration under Section 6 of the Act.

80. In the light of the above discussion, we conclude that the declaration dated 11.05.2012 made under Section 6 of the Act is beyond time as prescribed by proviso (ii) to Section 6(1) of the Act and is a nullity and as the objections filed by the tenure holders under Section 5A of the Act were not dealt with by the Competent Authority their rejection is without jurisdiction and on that basis no report or recommendation could have been made for issuing the declaration under Section 6 of the Act.

81. Accordingly, on both the counts the petition succeeds and the declaration dated 11.05.2012 issued under Section 6 of the Act is quashed, in so far as the petitioners or their heirs and legal representatives are concerned.

82. The writ petition is allowed with no order as to costs.

A. Tax Law – Central Excise Act, 1944: Sections 3-A, 35-G; Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and Collection of Duty), Rules, 2008: Rules 7, 8, 9, 10 – The assessee is entitled to abatement of duty, in the event of closure of factory for continuous period of 15 days or more, without first depositing the duty in terms of Rule 10. Provided, the assessee complies with the statutory requirement. (Para 22, 23, 25)

When the rules do not provide for the manner in which duty is required to be abated, nor do they provide that abatement shall be by an order of the Commissioner or any authority, but nonetheless provide for abatement of duty and extent of entitlement to such abatement, the action of assessee in suo moto taking the benefit of abatement is not contrary to the statutory scheme, if he has correctly calculated the proportion of duty and set off the same against the duty payable for the next month. Notifications/Circulars:
1. Circular No. 1063/2/2018-CX dated 16.02.2018, issued by Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) Central Board of Excise and Customs, New Delhi

Present appeal is against order dated 07.06.2016, passed by Customs, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal, Allahabad bench.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rohit Ranjan Agarwal,J.)

1. These two appeals filed under Section 35-G of the Central Excise Act, 1944 arise against the order of the Customs, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal, Allahabad (hereinafter called as "CESTAT"), dated 7.6.2016. As the issue in both the appeals are same, hence they are heard and decided together.

2. Appeal No.16 of 2017 was admitted on 23.5.2019 on the following questions of law:

"(i) Whether the Hon'ble CESTAT has erred in not taking the cognizance of the provision of Rule 7 and Rule 9 of Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and Collection of Duty), Rules, 2008 which provides that:

Rule 7. Duty payable to be calculated. -

The duty payable for a particular month shall be calculated by application of the appropriate rate of duty specified in the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue), No.42/ 2008-CE, dated the 1st July, 2008 to the number of operating packing machines in the factory during the month.

Rule 9. Manner of payment of duty and interest.-

The monthly duty payable on notified goods shall be paid by the 5th day of same month and an intimation in Form - 2 shall be filed with the Jurisdictional Superintendent of Central Excise before the 10th day of the same month:

Provided that monthly duty payable for the month of July, 2008 shall be paid on or before 15th day of July, 2008:

Provided further that if the manufacturer fails to pay the amount of duty by due date, he shall be liable to pay the outstanding amount along with the interest at the rate specified by the Central Government vide notification under section 11AB of the Act on the outstanding amount, for the period starting with the first day after due date till the date of actual payment of the outstanding amount:

Provided also that in case of increase in the number of operating packing machines in the factory during the month on account of addition or installation of packing machines, the differential duty amount, if any, shall be paid by the 5th day of the following month:

Provided also that in case a manufacturer permanently discontinues manufacturing of goods of existing retail sale price or commences manufacturing of goods of a new retail sale price during the month, the monthly duty payable shall be recalculated pro-rata on the basis of the total number of days in that month and the number of days remaining in that month counting from the date of such discontinuation or commencement and the duty liability for the month shall not be discharged unless the differential duty is paid by the 5th day of the following month and in case the amount of duty so recalculated is less than the duty paid for the month, the balance shall be refunded to the manufacturer by the 20th day of the following month:

Provided also that if there is revision in the rate of duty, the monthly duty payable shall be recalculated pro-rata on the basis of the total number of days in that month and the number of days remaining in that month counting from the date of such revision and the duty liability for the month shall not be discharged unless the differential duty is paid by the 5th day of the following month and in case the amount of duty so recalculated is less than the duty paid for the month, the balance shall be refunded to the manufacturer by the 20th day of the following month:

Provided also that in case it is found that a manufacturer has manufactured goods of those retail sale prices, which have not been declared by him in accordance with provisions of these rules or has manufactured goods in contravention of his declaration regarding the plan or details of the part or section of the factory premises intended to be used by him for manufacture of notified goods of different retail sale prices and the number of machines intended to be used by him in each of such part or section, the rate of duty applicable to goods of highest retail sale price so manufactured by him shall be payable in respect of all the packing machines operated by him for the period during which such manufacturing took place:

Provided also that in case a manufacturer does not pay the duty payable by the due date, and continues to operate any packing machine, then till the time such non-payment continues, he shall be liable to pay the monthly duty based on the number of operating packing machines declared in the month for which duty was last paid by him or the total number of packing machines found available in his premises at any time thereafter, whichever is higher:

Provided also that in case a new manufacturer commences production of notified goods in a particular month, his monthly duty payable for that month shall be calculated pro-rata on the basis of the total number of days in the month and the number of days remaining in that month starting from the date of commencement of the production of such notified goods and shall be paid within five days of such commencement.

(ii) Whether the Hon'ble CESTAT has erred in not taking cognizance that neither the party is a new manufacturer nor they have changed their Retail Sale Price (RSP) of 05 machines, which were used for the manufacture of Gutkha of MRP of Rs.2.00 during the month of November, 2012.

During the month of November, 2012, the parety operated the following machines for 12 days (i.e. 19.11.2012 to 30.11.2012)

- 06 Pouch Packing Machines of Gutkha of MRP Rs.1.00; and

- 05 Pouch Packing Machines of Gutkha of MRP Rs. 2.00.

As per Notification No. 42/ 2008-CE, dated the 1st July 2008 read with Rule 7 of the Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and Collection of Duty) Rules, 2008, during the month of November-2012, the rate of duty per machine per month for Pouch of MRP. 1.00 was Rs. 19 lakhs and for Pouch of MRP Rs. 2.00 was Rs. 36 lacs.

It is stipulated under proviso 4 of Rule 9 of the Pan Masala Rules, 2008 that if a manufacturer commences manufacturing of goods of a new retail sale price during the month, the monthly duty payable shall be recalculated pro-rata on the basis of the total number of days in that month and the number of days remaining in that month counting from the date of such commencement and the duty liability for the month shall not be discharged unless the differential duty is paid by the 5th day of the following month. Therefore, in view of the above proviso 4 of Rule 9 of the Pan Masala Rules, 2008, applicable for computation of their duty liability for the month of November, 2012 as under:-

- the party was required to pay the Central Excise duty on pro-rata basis for total 12 days (from 19.11.2012 to 30.11.2012) on 06 pouch packing machines of MRP Rs. 1.00 that remained operative during the said period, which comes to Rs.45,60,000/- @ 19.00 lakhs per machine per month and this duty was to be paid by the 5th day of the following month [i.e. 5th December, 2012], as the pouches of MRP Rs. 1.00 was new retail price for the said party.

- the party was required to pay full duty on 05 machines used for the manufacture of Gutkha of MRP Rs. 2.00, which works out to Rs. 1,80,00,000/- @ Rs.36.00 lakhs per machine per month and this duty was to be paid by 5th of the same month, as the pouches of MRP Rs. 2.00 was not a new retail price for the party.

- thus, the total duty liability of the party for the month of November, 2012 works out to Rs. 2,25,60,000/- [Rs. 45,60,000/- of Gutkha MRP Rs. 1.00 on 06 machines + Rs. 1,80,00,000/- of Gutkha MRP Rs. 2.00 on 05 machines] as per the provisions of Pan Masala Rules, 2008 but the party paid Rs. 1,17,60,000/- only for the month of November, 2012 which resulted into short payment of Rs. 1,08,00,000/- for the month of November-2012.

(iii) When the Apex Court in the case of M/s Madhumilan Syntax Ltd vs Union of India- 2007(210) ELT 484 (SC), the Apex Court held that once a statute requires to pay tax and stipulates period within which such payment is to be made, the payment must be made within that period.

(iv) When the Apex Court in the case of State of Jharkhand & Others vs. Ambey Cement & Anr. [2004(178) ELT 055(SC)], has held that it is a cardinal rule of the interpretation that where a statute provides that a particular thing should be done, it should be done in the manner prescribed and not in any other way.

(v) When the judgment of the Hon'ble High Court, Delhi relied on by the CESTAT in the instant case in the case of CCE vs. Shakti Fragrances Pvt. Ltd. [2015(324) E.L.T. 390] does not appear to be identical to the instant case.

(vi) Whether, in view of the provisions of Rule 7 & 9 of Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and Collection of Duty), Rule, 2008 and aforementioned rulings by Apex Court, the confirmation of demand & recovery of the short paid duty amounting to Rs.1,08,00,000/- for the month of November, 2012 alongwith interest and penalties should have been upheld by the Hon'ble CESTAT?

3. On 19.9.2019, learned counsel for the appellant was permitted to add the following substantial question of law, which reads as under:

"1). Whether in view of the provisions of Rule 9 and Rule 10 of the Pan Masala Packing Machine (Capacity Determination and Collection of Duty) Rules 2008, the manufacture is required to pay the duty for the whole month and thereafter seek rebate for non working days or the manufacture can suo moto take the benefit of abatement by not depositing the duty for non working days ?"

5. Brief facts of the case are, that respondent-assessee is a registered dealer and is paying duty on manufacture of Pan Masala containing tobacco (Gutkha) under the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. Respondent-assessee on 13.9.2012 intimated the Department intending to start commercial production w.e.f. 12.9.2012 and requested for unsealing of 11 machines to manufacture Gutkha. 7 machines for manufacture of Gutkha of MRP Rs.2.00 and on 4 machines for manufacture of Gutkha of MRP Rs.1.50.

6. In the month of September, 2012, assessee intimated the Department that it will stop production/clearance w.e.f. 6.10.2012 and the Department pursuant thereto sealed the machines in the midnight of 5.10.2012.

7. On 5.10.2012, assessee paid central excise duty of Rs.3,68,000/- for the month of October, 2012 as there were 11 machines installed in the factory

8. Since production was closed for 26 days in the month of October, assessee applied for abatement of Rs.3,08,64,516/- which was granted by the Assistant Commissioner on 29.11.2012, who allowed the said amount to be adjusted while discharging duty for subsequent month.

9. The assessee on 12.11.2012 informed the Assistant Commissioner intending to start production of Gutkha of MRP Rs.1.00 on 6 machines and Gutkha of MRP Rs.2.00 on 5 pouches packing machine from 19.11.2012. On 16.11.2013, the Assistant Commissioner directed Superintendent, Central Excise to unseal and install the 11 machines in the midnight of 18.11.2012. The assessee started manufacture of pouches of Gutkha of MRP Rs.1.00 and MRP Rs.2.00 from 19.11.2012. The assessee calculated that he was liable to pay excise duty of Rs.1,17,60,000/- on pro-rata basis for 12 days, i.e., from 19.11.2012 to 31.11.2012 (duty of Rs.45,60,000/- and Rs.72,00,000/-) on Gutkha MRP Rs.1.00 and MRP Rs.2.00 respectively.

10. After adjusting Rs.1,17,60,000/- from abatement of Rs.3,08,64,516/-, sanctioned earlier on 29.11.2012, an amount of Rs.1,91,04,516/- remained from the abated amount. The assessee informed the Department of the payment by way of adjustment on 6.12.2012 by submitting Form-2.

11. The Department was of the opinion that assessee started manufacturing Gutkha on new retail price, i.e., MRP of Rs.1.00 during November, 2012, hence, duty on the same was payable on pro-rata basis, but, since Gutkha of MRP Rs.2.00 was not a new retail price, hence duty on the same was payable for the entire month and not for a period of 12 days provided under Rule 10 of the Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and Collection of Duty), Rules, 2008 (hereinafter called as "PMPM Rules, 2008"). The Superintendent, Central Excise through letters dated 4.3.2013 and 12.3.2013 required the assessee to deposit the central excise duty of Rs.1,08,00,000/-. The said letters were replied by assessee, but a show cause notice was issued on 25.9.2013 proposing for recovery of excise duty of Rs.1,08,00,000/- along with interest and penalty. The said show cause notice was adjudicated by Commissioner vide order dated 29.9.2014 confirming the proposed duty along with interest and equal amount of penalty under Rule 17 of PMPM Rules, 2008 read with Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act. Further, penalty of Rs.5000/- was imposed under Rule 27 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 for contravening Rule 12 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 read with Rules 7 and 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008.

12. Aggrieved by the said order, assessee filed an appeal No.E/50211/2015(DB), and against the order dated 30.9.2014 passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise and Service Tax, Kanpur, Appeal No.E/50222/2015/EX(DB) before CESTAT. On 7.6.2016, CESTAT while deciding the Appeal No.E/50211/ 2015(DB) set aside the order passed by Commissioner Central Excise and Service Tax holding it to be bad and against the provisions of Section 3-A of the Act read with Rules, 7, 8, 9 and 10 of the PMPM Rules, 2008. Similarly, on 10.8.2016 the other appeal of the assessee was also allowed and the order of the Commissioner Central Excise and Service Tax was set aside.

13. Sri Parv Agarwal, learned counsel appearing for the Department, submitted that assessee on 12.11.2012 had submitted a letter declaring that w.e.f. 19.11.2012 the assessee is going to start production of notified goods, i.e., Gutkha of MRP Rs.1.00 with the aid of 6 pouches packing machine and Gutkha of MRP Rs.2.00 with the aid of 5 pouches of packing machine. It is submitted that assessee is neither a new manufacturer nor has changed the retail price of 5 machines, which were used for manufacture of Gutkha of MRP Rs.2.00 during the month of November, 2012. Thus, as per proviso 4 of Rule 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 applicable for computation of excise duty is liable for the relevant month. He further submitted that the assessee was required to pay excise duty on pro-rata basis for 12 days on 6 pouches packing machines of MRP Rs.1.00 that remained operative during the said period, which comes to Rs.45,60,000/- @ Rs.19,00,000/- per machine, per month and the same was to be paid by 5th day of the following month (i.e. 5th December, 2012), as the pouches of MRP Rs.1.00 was new retail price of the assessee. Further, the assessee was required to pay full excise duty on 5 machines, which were used for manufacture of Gutkha of MRP Rs.2.00, which works out to Rs.1,80,00,000/- @ Rs.36,00,000/- per machine, per month and this was to be paid by 5th day of the same month as the MRP Rs.2.00 was not a new retail price for the party. According to him total excise duty liability for the month of November, 2012 was Rs.2,25,60,000/- but the assessee had paid only Rs.1,17,60,000/- and there was a short fall of Rs.1,08,00,000/-.

14. Learned counsel for the Department further submitted that Rule 10 of PMPM Rules,2008 provides for abatement in the case of non-production of notified goods and abatement is subject to condition stipulated therein and the assessee cannot on his own calculate the excise duty and set off the same against the duty payable under Rule 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008.

15. Sri Agarwal submitted, that settled principle of law is that once the statute requires to pay tax within stipulated period then such payment is to be made within that period, otherwise it would render the provision redundant and nugatory.

16. Replying the averments made by counsel for the Department, Sri Nishant Mishra, learned counsel appearing for the respondent-assessee submitted that sub-section 3 of Section 3-A of the Central Excise Act provides that if a factory producing notified goods did not produce the same during any continuous period of 15 days or more, duty calculated on proportionate basis shall be abated in respect of such period, subject to conditions as may be prescribed.

17. Rule 10 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 provides condition for abatement, i.e. if a manufacturer files intimation with the Deputy/Assistant Commissioner with a copy to Superintendent at least three working days prior to commencement of such period. According to him, in the present case, conditions prescribed under Rule 10 were complied and assessee had intimated the Assistant Commissioner on 25.9.2012 regarding stoppage of production from 6.10.2012 and again by letter dated 12.11.2012 regarding starting of production from 19.11.2012.

18. Sri Mishra submitted that intimation as required under Rule 10 was given by the assessee. Thus, he was entitled to abatement in terms of Rule 10 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 in respect of Gutkha of MRP Rs.2.00. He further submitted that provision to Rule 9 cannot be interpreted in a manner so as to levy duty in circumstances, specifically barred by the parent statute, i.e., proviso to Section 3A of the Act.

"12. In the above backdrop, the merits of the impugned order may be examined. The Tribunal, in the impugned order, has recorded that in none of the orders impugned before it, it is in dispute that there was a closure of the factory for more than fifteen days and the required procedure of due intimation of closure, sealing and due intimation or reopening was followed. Thus, there was no dispute that the requirements of rule 10 of the PMPM Rules had been fulfilled. There was also no dispute that the amount adjusted was not more than the amount of duty mandated to be abated in terms of rule 10 of the PMPM Rules. The Tribunal has taken note of the fact that rule 10 of the PMPM Rules does not make any stipulation about abatement having to be claimed by filing an application, though it also does not imply to the contrary. Referring to rule 9 of the PMPM Rules, it was observed that when the intention of the Government is that the amount is to be refunded and an express provision is provided therefor, whereas rule 10 does not make any such provision. It may be noted that insofar as rule 96ZO of the Central Excise Rules is concerned, sub-rule (2) thereof expressly provides for claim of abatement being made under sub-section (3) of section 3A of the Act, which would be allowed by an order passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise of such amount as may be specified in such order. Similarly, sub-rule (7) of rule 96ZQ provides for abatement being allowed by an order passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise of such amount as may be specified in such order, subject to the conditions enumerated thereunder.

Similarly, sub-rule (2) of rule 96ZP provides for abatement being allowed by an order passed by a Commissioner of Central Excise of such amount as may be specified in such order subject to the fulfillment of the conditions laid down thereunder. Thus, in relation to independent processors of textile fabrics, manufacturers of non-alloy steel hot re-rolled products and manufacturers of non-alloy steel ingots, who were also assessed on the basis of annual production capacity under section 3A of the Act, there was an express provision for making an order of abatement whereas the PMPM Rules are totally silent in that regard. There is no provision for making an order of abatement under rule 10 of the PMPM Rules.

13. As noticed earlier, rule 10 of the PMPM Rules provides for abatement of duty calculated on proportionate basis in case where the factory does not produce notified goods during any continuous period of fifteen days or more. However, such abatement is subject to the conditions stipulated thereunder as referred to hereinabove. Once such conditions are satisfied, the assessee becomes entitled to abatement of duty to the extent of the days the factory did not produce the notified goods.

14. On a plain reading of rule 10 of the PMPM Rules, it is apparent that while the same provides that duty calculated on a proportionate basis shall be abated, it does not provide for any procedure for doing so. Thus, whereas rules 96ZQ, 96ZO and 96ZP of the Central Excise Rules, 1944, which also are schemes under the compounded levy scheme, there were express provisions for making an order of abatement by the Commissioner, rule 10 of the PMPM Rules is wholly silent in that regard. Under the circumstances, having regard to the fact that rules 96ZQ, 96ZP and 96ZO provided for making an order of abatement, however, there is no corresponding provision in the PMPM Rules, it can be inferred that the rule making authority has consciously omitted making such provision. Therefore, in the absence of any specific provision for making an order of abatement, it cannot be said that the action of the assessee in calculating the duty on a proportionate basis and setting off the same against the duty payable in the succeeding month is, in any manner, violative of the rules or the statutory scheme.

15. Besides, in the light of the findings recorded by the Tribunal to the effect that it is not disputed that the adjustments made were not more than the amounts of duties mandated to be abated as per rule 10 of the PMPM Rules, the action of the respondent assessee in computing the proportionate amount of duty towards the abatement and setting it off against the duty payable in the next month does not adversely affect the revenue in any manner. The abatement, in the opinion of this court, is not akin to refund and means reduction or diminution of the duty. Therefore, when the duty stands reduced to the extent provided in the rule, there is no liability to pay the same, inasmuch as, to that extent the duty stands abated. Therefore, if the assessee has correctly calculated the proportion of duty and set off the same against the duty payable for the next month, it cannot be said that the said action is contrary to the statutory scheme. When the rules do not provide for the manner in which duty is required to be abated, nor do they provide that abatement shall be by an order of the Commissioner or any authority, but nonetheless provide for abatement of duty and the extent of entitlement to such abatement, no fault can be found in the approach of the assessee in suo motu taking the benefit of such abatement."

20. Sri Mishra also placed reliance upon circular issued by the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) Central Board and Excise & Customs, New Delhi dated 16.2.2016 wherein the Department has accepted the judgment of the High Court of Gujarat in case of M/s Thakkar Tobacco (supra). Relevant portion of the circular No.1063/2/2018-CX dated 16.2.2018 is extracted hereunder:

"7.1 Department has accepted the aforementioned order of the Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat where the Hon'ble Court dismissed the departmental appeal on the question of law, whether manufacturer has the option of suo-moto abatement of duty in the event of closure of factory for a continuous period of 15 days or more without first depositing the duty in terms of rule 10 of Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and Collection of Duty) Rules, 2008, on the following grounds,

a) As per provisions of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and the PMPM Rules abatement is to be granted and the statute does not prescribe any order of abatement to be passed by the any authority such as DC/AC.

b) In the erstwhile Central Excise Rules, 1944, there was an express provision which provides for claim of abatement would be allowed by an order passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise. When the intention of the government is that amount is to be refunded in as specific manner, then an express provision is provided. However the impugned rule does not make any such provision.

c) The Board Instruction from F.No.267/16/2009-CX-8 dated 12.03.2009 is not applicable in the present case as Rule of PMPM rules does not speak of any order of abatement."

21. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the materials on record.

22. The sole issue under consideration is as to giving benefit of abatement for non-production, whether the assessee could on their own calculate excise duty and set off the same against the duty payable in the next month. The argument of the Department relying upon Rule 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 claiming that the monthly duty on notified goods is to be paid by 5th day of the month and the assessee cannot simpliciter claim set off without first depositing the same had been repelled by the Gujarat High Court in the case of Thakker Tobacco (supra) holding that Rule 10 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 envisages a situation and provides for abatement of excise duty calculated on proportionate basis, in case where factory does not produces notified goods during continuous period of 15 days or more.

23. Moreover, the statue, that is proviso to Sub-section (2) of Section 3A itself provides for abatement where a factory producing notified goods did not produce the same during any continuous period of 15 days or more, the duty calculated on the proportionate basis shall be abated in respect of such period, if the manufacturer of such goods fulfills such condition as may be prescribed. In the present case as the assessee having complied the statutory requirement, is entitled to the benefit claimed by him.

24. The judgment in case of Thakker Tobacco (supra) having been accepted by the C.B.D.T. in its circular dated 16.2.2018, the controversy does not remain any longer as the matter is not res integra any more.

25. In view of the above, we are of the considered opinion that once the Department has accepted the judgment in case of Thakker Tobacco (supra) and has issued circular holding that assessee is entitled to abatement of duty, in the event of closure of factory for continuous period of 15 days or more, without first depositing the duty in terms of Rule 10 of PMPM Rules, 2008, the appeal of the revenue has no force and is hereby dismissed.

26. The question of law are, therefore, answered in favour of the assessee and against the revenue.

Counsel for the Respondent:
Sri Shubham Agrawal, Sri Ajay Agarwal

A. Tax Law – Central Excise Act, 1944: 11A, 11AB, 11AC, 35-G; Central Excise Rules, 2002: Rules 16(1), 16(2), 26; CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004: 14, 15(2) – Scrapping of goods does not fall within the ambit and scope of Rule 16(1).

B. Interpretation of phrase "or for any other reason" in Rule 16(1), CER, 2002 – The phrase has to be necessarily read on the construction canon of ejusdem generis. The three preceding phrases ('re-made', 'refined' and 're-conditioned') depicting three similar processes qualify and restrict the scope of the phrase "or for any other reason". (Para 24 to 27)

"Re-made", "refined" and "re-conditioned" are processes akin to manufacture; while scrapping involves destruction of the original identity of the goods. Scrapping is neither a species not in the likeness of "re-made", "refined" or "re-conditioned". Consequently, when goods are scrapped, it cannot be stated that the said goods were brought to the factory for being "re-made", "refined", "re-conditioned", "or for any other reason" provided in Rule 16(1). (Para 31)

CENVAT Credit denied and penalty has been upheld.

Central Excise Appeal allowed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. Gyanwati Devi Vs. State of U.P. and 5 others, Special Appeal No. 33og 2019 (Para 26)

Present appeal is against order dated 03.04.2018, passed by Customs, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal, Allahabad.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot,J.)

1. Both the Central Excise Appeals instituted under section 35-G of the Central Excise Act, 1944 arise from the same judgment and order passed by the learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal, Allahabad, dated 3rd April, 2018, which sets aside the Order-in-Original dated 21st October, 2010 passed by the Commissioner of Customs, Central Excise & Service Tax, Ghaziabad.

2. The appeals raise two separate substantial questions of law but the facts are the same. The substantial questions of law arising in both the appeals respectively can be decided conveniently by one judgment.

3. The learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT), Allahabad, in its order dated 03.04.2018 held that the assessee - respondent is entitled to CENVAT credit and has lawfully taken and utilized CENVAT credit under Rule 16 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002. The Commissioner of Customs, Central Excise & Service Tax, Ghaziabad, had in the Order-in-Original dated 21st October, 2010, found that the assessee had wrongly availed of the CENVAT credit under Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 and accordingly ordered recovery of evaded liability and imposed penalty.

4. The connected Central Excise Appeal No.88 of 2019 (Commissioner, Central Goods and Service Tax Commissionerate, Ghaziabad Versus R.K. Gupta) has also been filed against the said judgment and order of the learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT), Allahabad, dated 3rd April, 2018, in regard to reversal of the penalty imposed upon Sri R.K.Gupta under Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 by the Order-in-Original dated 21.10.2010.

5. The respondent - assessee is engaged in the manufacture of various brands of cigarettes on job work basis for M/s Godfrey Philips India Limited. During the period under assessment, certain cigarettes manufactured and removed by the appellant on payment of Central Excise duty were returned by Godfrey Philips India Limited for various reasons. The respondent - assessee claimed that the goods were brought back to the factory for refining.

6. The respondent - assessee took CENVAT credit by treating the said returned goods as inputs for the period November, 2006 to May, 2007 and for the period August, 2008 to April, 2009.

7. The respondent - assessee claimed entitlement to credit under Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 and availed of the CENVAT credit under Rule 16(2) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, when the goods were removed from the factory after "refining". Principally, the controversy in the instant appeal centres around Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002.

8. When the offending transactions were noticed by the Revenue, show cause notices were issued to the respondent - assessee. The show cause notices recorded that "refining" of cigarettes is not covered under Rule 16 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002. The sum and substance of the case of the Revenue against the respondent - assessee was that the respondent - assessee engineered the return of the so-called non marketable/non saleable cigarettes, with the intent to unlawfully avail the benefits of CENVAT credit under Rule 16 (1) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, by misleading the Revenue.

9. The show cause notice specifically asserted that the respondent - assessee had wilfully, knowingly and with a mala fide intention, wrongly availed CENVAT credit which is recoverable from it under Rule 14 of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, read with proviso to section 11A of the Central Excise Act, 1944, along with interest under section 11AB of the said Act. The respondent - assessee was also liable for penal action under Rule 15(2) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, read with section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

10. Sri R.K.Gupta is the appellant in the connected appeal who was "the sole In-charge and responsible person for day-to-day working in respect of all excise matters in the factory" was also noticed for having concealed facts to mislead the department and was liable to penal action under Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, read with section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

11. The respondent - assessee showed cause and tendered its defence before the noticing authority and contested the proceedings.

12. The assessing officer adjudicated the controversy by order dated 21.10.2010 wherein it found in favour of the Revenue and held that the assessee had wrongly claimed CENVAT credit under Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 and Sri R.K.Gupta, Deputy General Manager (IT & Accounts) was liable to pay penalty under Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002.

13. The assessing officer found that the assessee - respondent had wrongly availed CENVAT credit, amounting to Rs.6,83,28,039/- (Rupees six crores eighty three lakhs twenty eight thousand thirty nine only) under Rule 16 of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004.

14. A penalty to the tune of Rs.6,83,28,039/- (Rupees six crores eighty three lakhs twenty eight thousand thirty nine only) was also imposed upon the respondent – assessee.

15. A penalty of Rs.5,00,000/- (Rupees five lakhs only) was imposed on Sri R.K.Gupta in the connected appeal under Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002. Sri R.K.Gupta suffered the penalty for his involvement in wrong availment of the above mentioned amount of CENVAT credit in contravention of the provisions of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, & Central Excise Act, 1944 and the Rules framed thereunder. This penalty is the subject matter of Central Excise Appeal No.88 of 2019 (Commissioner, Central Goods and Service Tax Commissionerate, Ghaziabad Versus R.K. Gupta).

16. The adjudicating authority in its Order-in-Original dated 21.10.2010 fixed the aforesaid liabilities under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 and Central Excise Act, 1944 and Central Excise Rules, 2002 on the foot of such reasons as set forth hereinunder:

"6.4 From the contents of show cause notice I find that there are following basic issues raised-

(i) The cigarettes received back from sale offices or C & F agents are not returned by the said sale offices or C & F

Agents against damage or defects but are returned as per guidance from ITC only for want of reasons not disclosed to the Department. It has been brought out in the notice that memos are issued to the sale offices for return of goods as per directions of ITC themselves against which the cigarettes are returned without any remarks as to why the same have been returned. The challans accompanying returned cigarettes contain note "please receive following brands of cigarettes against your order". On receipt of cigarettes, ITC had informed the Department the reasons like "Brand not marketable", cigarettes giving bad smell". However, it was found that the cigarettes of same brand which was claimed to be not marketable were again dispatched to the same sale office from where they received the returned cigarettes. In every case, ITC informed the Department that the cigarettes were received for refreshing. The cigarettes received back were found in original packing and even outer cartons were intact. It has been alleged in the SCN that the claim of the party that the same found defective were received back for refreshing is not true as even without removing the outer carton, how one can come to know that the cigarettes are not in a condition to be marketed.

(ii) The process of refreshing has been elaborated in the SCNs. It has been found that on receipt of returned cigarettes, the same are scrapped and the outer cartons, cigarette packets, cigarette wrapper, filter almost every cenvatable material on which Cenvat credit had been availed by ITC are thrown away without payment of duty. It is only the tobacco of the returned cigarettes which is recovered (to the extent of around 80%) and the same is reused for the manufacture of fresh cigarettes. It has thus been alleged that all the inputs except tobacco are separated first and disposed off and then only the tobacco portion is used in manufacturing of fresh cigarettes.

6.5 From the above I find that cigarettes received back for refreshing are not put to use as inputs for the manufacture of finished goods. These are actually put to the process of separation of all inputs other than tobacco by method of scrapping and to my opinion, the said process cannot be treated as a manufacturing process. The returned cigarettes as such can also not be treated as inputs as the same cannot be put to use as inputs in the manufacture of cigarettes. I also feel that the use of retrieved tobacco by mixing with fresh tobacco is done by the party with the sole aim to avail credit on returned goods as the value of such tobacco is very low as compared to the credit available to them on returned cigarettes.

6.6 As discussed above, the value of tobacco is comparatively much smaller as compared to the value of all other goods which are scrapped and thrown away without payment of duty. Going into the process of refreshing, I find that the entire material received back is put to scrapping process and two things are obtained namely, (1) scrapped cartons/packet/cigarette paper/ filter and (2) tobacco. The scrapped material is a non excisable material and is disposed off without payment of duty and the tobacco so recovered is put to use for the manufacture of cigarettes. Thus it is evident that the returned cigarettes are actually used in the manufacture of scrapped goods (non dutiable) and only tobacco can be said to be used in the manufacture of dutiable goods. Thus it is evident that the purpose of receipt of cigarettes is to remove them from the market stream and to destroy them and not to use them as inputs in the manufacture of fresh goods. As such I feel that the returned cigarettes do not come within the purview of rule 16 of CER, 2002 under the provisions of which ITC have availed credit on them."

17. The respondent - assessee carried the Order-in-Original passed by the adjudicating authority in appeal before the learned Customs, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal. The learned Customs, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal, by its judgment dated 15.10.2018, held in favour of the assessee and quashed the order passed by the adjudicating authority. The learned Appellate Tribunal found the assessee to be entitled for CENVAT credit under Rule 16(1) on the following understanding of the said Rule:-

"A bare perusal of Rule 16(1) supports the contention of the learned counsel for the Appellants inasmuch as it enacts a fiction of law to the effect that the goods on which duty has already been paid at the time of removal thereof are brought into any factory for various reasons mentioned in the Rule, including but not limited to any other reason, they are entitled to take CENVAT Credit of duty paid on such goods, as if such goods are received as inputs under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2002 and is entitled to utilize this credit according to the said Rule. These returned cigarettes were brought back into the factory under conditions specified under Rule 16 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 alongwith the Forwarding Challan-cum-Invoice counter signed by the Officer of the Department. From the record, we find that the adjudicating authority while coming to the conclusion in para 6.2 has observed that:

"6.2. The issue in the present proceedings before me is whether cigarettes received back from sale offices or from clearing and forwarding agents are eligible for credit of duty paid on them originally at the time of their clearance from the factory under the provisions of rule 16 of CER, 2002. I would like to analyze the provisions of this rule under which the impugned credit has been availed by the party. In terms of this rule, goods should be brought back for being re-made, refined re-conditioned or for any other reason and the assessee is entitled to take credit of duty paid if such goods are received as inputs under the Cenvat credit rules, 2002. I find that ITC, in their reply have given force on the words "for any other reason". I find that the availment of Cenvat credit is primarily governed by CCR, 2002/2004 and thus the availment of Cenvat credit provided by any other rule like CER, 2002 cannot be beyond the provisions of Central Credit Rules. Here I also find that in the said rule 16 of CER, 2002, there is clear mention that goods must be received to be used as inputs in term of CCR, 2002. Thus the very first condition for eligibility of credit on returned goods is that the goods must be usable and used as inputs in the manufacture of finished goods. I find that the very basis of the present dispute is that Department has alleged that the goods have not been brought back for being used as inputs but only to take credit in the guise of rule 16 of CER, 2002. On the other hand, ITC have stressed that conditions of Rule 16 of CER, 2002 have been satisfied by them for availment of credit on returned cigarettes."

From the above, we find that the reasoning given by the adjudicating authority with respect to Rule 16 is by assuming that it deals with inputs "as such" and not inputs "as if".

6. We further find that Rule 16 is wide enough to cover the case of the Appellants in view of the wordings used in it which inter alia includes "any other reason" for receiving the duty paid goods. The duty paid character of the goods, being not disputed in the present case, Rule 16 is squarely applicable and accordingly the Appellants have rightly taken the CENVAT Credit and utilized the same."

18. The following are the substantial questions of law which fall for determination in these appeals:

1. "Whether the learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT) was misdirected in law in its interpretation of Rule 16 (1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, by unlawfully including scrapping within the scope of Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 ? Further, whether the learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT) erred in law by finding that the respondent - assessee had lawfully availed CENVAT credit in the offending transactions ?"

2. "Whether the learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT) was justified in law to revoke the penalty imposed upon the appellant under Rule 26 of the Rules by the Order-in-Original dated 21st October, 2010 ?"

19. Rule 16(1) is germane to the controversy and thus needs careful consideration. For ease of reference, Rule 16 (1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, is being extracted in its entirety:

"Rule 16. Credit of duty on goods brought to the factory. - (1) Where any goods on which duty had been paid at the time of removal thereof are brought to any factory for being re-made, refined, re-conditioned or for any other reason, the assessee shall state the particulars of such receipt in his records and shall be entitled to take CENVAT credit of the duty paid as if such goods are received as inputs under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2002 and utilise this credit according to the said rules."

20. Rule 16 states the procedure and eligibility to avail credit of duty on goods brought to the factory. Various ingredients of Rule 16(1) will now be discussed.

21. Rule 16(1) is applicable to goods on which duty had been paid at the time of removal of such goods and the same are brought back to the factory. The goods are brought back to the factory for being "re-made, refined, re-conditioned or for any other reason". The assessee is also required to state the particulars of such receipt of goods in his records.

22. Once the above conditions are fulfilled, the assessee becomes entitled under Rule 16(1) to take CENVAT credit of the duty paid on the returned goods as if such goods are received as inputs under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2002. The credit shall be utilised by the assessee according to the latter Rules.

23. The purpose of manufacture of goods in this case is sale. Bringing the goods back to the factory after they have been removed for sale does not ordinarily make good business sense. However, at times for some valid reasons, the goods cannot be sold or they are not fit for retention in the market. In such circumstances, the goods may be recalled and brought to the factory. In terms of Rule 16(1), these goods are brought to the factory for being "re-made, refined, re-conditioned or for any other reason". After being subjected to said processes, the goods are again removed having become saleable commodities and worthy of acceptance in the market.

24. The phrase "or for any other reason", in Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, has to be necessarily read on the construction canon of ejusdem generis. Any other rule of interpretation would make the Rule unworkable and defeat the clear intention of the legislature.

25. The learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT), proceeded to give a wide interpretation to the phrase "or for any other reason" and thus included the offending transaction within its scope. The legislative intent was not to read the phrase in isolation and give it such a wide berth. Otherwise, there would be no necessity to precede the phrase "or for any other reason" by the three processes of "re-made", "refined" and "re-conditioned". The three preceding phrases depicting three similar processes qualify and restrict the scope of the phrase "or for any other reason".

26. While explaining the concept of ejusdem generis this Court in Special Appeal No.33 of 2019 in Gyanwati Devi v State of U.P. and 5 others held:

"The reason is, when a general word or phrase follows a list of specifies, the general word or phrase will be interpreted to include only items of the same class as those already listed."

27. The phrase "for any other reason" has to be interpreted in light of the preceding expressions of "re-made, refined, re-conditioned". The processes coming under the category of "for any other reason", have to be in the likeness of the processes which immediately precede the aforesaid phrase. All the processes should have such similarities so as to be constituted into the same class.

28. The legislature has employed the words "re-made", "refined", "re-conditioned" and the phrase, "or for any other reason" and eschewed the phrase "for being scrapped". Understanding this distinction is the key to interpreting the scope of "re-made", "refined", "re-conditioned" and the phrase, "or for any other reason".

29. The essential characteristics of the brought back goods survive even after they are "re-made", "refined" or "re-conditioned". The original identity of the goods is retained even after the goods undergo the said processes.

30. When goods are scrapped, all the constituent components of the goods may be reclaimed. After scrapping, the original identity of the manufactured goods completely perishes. Scrapping of goods is done for various purposes, including cannibalisation and extraction of vital or valuable parts of the original goods.

31. "Re-made", "refined" and "re-conditioned" are processes akin to manufacture; while scrapping involves destruction of the original identity of the goods. Scrapping is neither a species nor in the likeness of "re-made", "refined" or "re-conditioned". Consequently, when goods are scrapped, it cannot be stated that the said goods were brought to the factory for being "re-made", "refined", "re-conditioned", "or for any other reason" provided in Rule 16(1). Scrapping of goods does not fall within the ambit and scope of Rule 16(1).

32. Ordinary business prudence requires that valid commercial reasons must exist for bringing the goods back to the factory. The validity of these reasons is the test of the bona fides of the assessee. These can be ascertained from authentic records, relating to receipts of goods and particulars contained therein. Scrutiny of such records and the contents of the receipts will help determine the bona fides of the assessee to bring back the goods.

33. Offending transactions and the findings of the Assessing Officer as well as learned Appellate Tribunal have to be examined in the light of the true scope and correct interpretation of Rule 16(1), as stated in the preceding paragraphs of this judgment.

34. We find that the learned Appellate Tribunal, while interpreting the phrase, "any other reason", in Rule 16(1) and held that the same was "wide enough to cover the case of the appellants". Consequentially, the learned appellate Tribunal included scrapping within the fold of Rule 16(1).

35. It is evident that the learned Appellate Tribunal has incorrectly interpreted the scope of Rule 16(1) by bringing scrapping within the embrace of Rule 16(1) and has proceeded to legitimise the benefit of CENVAT availed by the respondent - assessee. These fault-lines vitiate the judgment of the learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT), Allahabad. The judgment of the learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT), Allahabad, is therefore unsustainable in law.

36. The findings of facts returned by the Assessing Officer thus attain finality since they were not successfully impeached by the learned Appellate Tribunal. These findings extracted in extenso in the earlier part of the judgment are set forth, in brief, hereinafter to take the discussion forward and to its logical conclusion.

37. The cartons containing cigarettes were not even opened and found in packed condition. The alleged defects in goods, as claimed by the assessee, thus could not be ascertained without opening the cartons. The goods were actually sent back to the same purchasers in the self-same condition in which they were received.

38. The receipts were not found to be reliable. There are no records of the reasons given by the purchasers for rejecting the consignments of goods. On this foot, the reasons for bringing back the goods to the factory, as adduced by the assessee, were disbelieved.

39. The scrapping of the goods stood established by reliable evidence and cogent findings in the record. The assessee, in fact, scrapped the goods and tried to pass it as "refining" the goods.

40. Clearly, the goods were not brought back to the factory by the assessee to be "re-made", "refined", "re-conditioned", "or for any other reason" as contemplated in Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002. The transactions were devices to illegally avail CENVAT credit. The intent to illegal avail CENVAT credit and escape duty was fully established.

41. In wake of the preceding narrative, we find that the ingredients to avail credit of duty of goods brought back to the factory, as contemplated under Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, were not satisfied. The assessee was not entitled to avail the benefit of CENVAT credit of the duty paid on the aforesaid goods and illegally availed such credit. The intent of the assessee to defraud the revenue and escape tax is thus proved.

42. The controversy in the connected Central Excise Appeal No.88 of 2019 (Commissioner, Central Goods and Service Tax Commissionerate, Ghaziabad Versus R.K. Gupta) in respect of imposition of penalty upon Sri R.K.Gupta turns on the construction of and observance of the ingredients of Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002. For facility of reference, Rule 26 is extracted hereunder:-

"RULE 26. Penalty for certain offences.--(1) Any person who acquires possession of, or is in any wayconcerned in transporting, removing, depositing, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner deals with, any excisable goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under the Act or these rules, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the duty on such goods or [two thousand rupees], whichever is greater:

(2) Any person, who issues-

(i) an excise duty invoice without delivery of the goods specified therein or abets in making such invoice; or

(ii) any other document or abets in making such document, on the basis of which the user of said invoice or document is likely to take or has taken any ineligible benefit under the Act or the rules made thereunder like claiming of CENVAT credit under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 or refund, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the amount of such benefit or five thousand rupees, whichever is greater."

43. Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, has to be read in conjunction with the findings of facts narrated in the preceding part of the judgment. The ingredients of Rule 26 for imposing the penalty upon Sri R.K.Gupta, Deputy General Manager (IT & Accounts), are fully satisfied. The provisions of the Rule 26 have been duly adhered to. The order imposing penalty against Sri R.K.Gupta under Rule 26, is a lawful and just order, in the facts and circumstances of this case.

44. Accordingly, the substantial questions of law are answered against the assessee and in favour of the Revenue in the following terms:-

I. The learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT) was clearly misdirected in law in its interpretation of Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 by unlawfully including "scrapping" within the scope of Rule 16(1) of the Central Excise Rules, 2002. The learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT) also erred in law by finding that the respondent - assessee had lawfully availed CENVAT credit in the offending transaction.

II. The learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT) was completely unjustified in law by setting aside the penalty imposed upon R.K. Gupta, in connected Central Excise Appeal No.88 of 2019 (Commissioner, Central Goods and Service Tax Commissionerate, Ghaziabad Versus R.K. Gupta), even in the face of the fact that the ingredients of Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, were fully satisfied. R.K.Gupta, in law, was liable to pay the penalty imposed in the Order-in-Original passed by the Commissioner of Customs, Central Excise & Service Tax, Ghaziabad.

46. As a consequence, the judgment of the learned Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (CESTAT), Allahabad, dated 3rd April, 2018, is liable to be set aside and is set aside. The judgment of the Commissioner of Customs, Central Excise & Service Tax, Ghaziabad, dated 21st October, 2010, is upheld to the extent and manner indicated in the body of this judgment.

47. Both the appeals are accordingly allowed.

A. Tax Law – Uttar Pradesh Trade Tax Act, 1948: Sections 4-A – Interpretation of Statutes - The rule of strict construction may be applied only for the purposes of determining the eligibility to exemption and no further.

Provision granting incentive for promoting economic growth and development in taxing statues should be liberally construed and restriction placed on it by way of exception should be construed in a reasonable and purposive manner so as to advance the objective of the provision. (Para 26). Assessee's application could not be rejected merely because two separate applications had been filed. (Para 19, 20 & 27)

The burden to establish single diversification, is on the assessee and it was for the revenue authorities to rebut such evidence as the assessee may produce. (Para 27).

B. Distinguished from Kajaria Ceramics - The Supreme Court did not lay any rule of evidence required to be brought on record for a single diversification or expansion. No specific rule or evidence has been prescribed either under the Act or the Rule framed thereunder. It would remain a matter to be considered and decided on the facts of each case. The assessee was not obliged to lead any particular evidence to establish its claim or else to face rejection. (Para 32 to 35)

In the present case, assessee has led evidence in support of its case, and substantiated the same by adducing corroborative evidence, unlike Kajaria Ceramics, where not a single piece of evidence was given. (Para 29, 30)

Matter remitted. (E-4)

Present revision is against order dated 22.10.2012, passed by Commercial Tax Tribunal, Lucknow Bench.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh, J.)

1. Present revision has been filed by the assessee against the order of the Full Bench of the Commercial Tax Tribunal, Lucknow dated 22.10.2012 passed in Appeal No. 16 of 2008 [under Section 4-A of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 (hereinafter referred to as the Act)]. By that order, the Tribunal has dismissed the appeal filed by the assessee and confirmed the order passed by the Divisional Level Committee (In short "DLC') depriving the assessee of an eligibility certificate viz-a-viz investment of Rs. 8,13,30,080/- made in diversification of it's new unit to manufacture monitors.

2. The assessee, an Indian company is a subsidiary of L.G. Electronics, Korea (hereinafter referred to as the 'parent company'). As early as on 29.01.1997, the parent company was granted approval by the Government of India (Ministry of Industry), to set up the assessee company - a 100% owned subsidiary company in India to manufacture and market various electrical and electronic appliances including washing machines, refrigerators, air conditioners, colour televisions, audio and video equipments. Then, on 04.11.1997, the Government of India amended its approval letter dated 29.01.1997 and granted further approval to the parent company to manufacture and market (by the assessee company) various electrical and electronic appliances mentioned in the letter dated 29.01.1997 and also Microwaves ovens and PC monitors. In light of such approval letters, it has been contended, the assessee company was incorporated and it has engaged in the activity of manufacture and marketing of various electrical appliances and electronic goods.

3. In the context of the dispute that had arisen, it is seen that the State Government had, vide notification nos. 780 and 781, both dated 31.03.1995, provided for schemes to grant exemption to 'new units' established inside the State and to units engaged in expansion, diversification and modernisation, during the period 01.04.1995 and 31.03.2000. It is a common case between the parties that the aforesaid notifications came to be amended on 16.11.1995, by notification nos. 2760 and 2761, whereby instead of providing for exemption by way of monetary limit, with respect to other than electronic goods, exemption was provided only with reference to time from the date of start of production. Again, by notification nos. 640 and 641, both dated 21.02.1997, the scheme for exemption was supplemented. Thereby, the State Government notified further exemptions to 'new units' undertaking expansion, diversification, backward integration and modernisation between 01.12.1994 and 31.03.2000, subject to they are having invested Rs. 50 crores or more.

4. It is not in dispute that initially, the assessee did establish a 'new unit' to manufacture colour televisions, washing machines and air conditioners. Upon application made in that regard, DLC granted exemption to the assessee on a total fixed capital investment of Rs. 51,37,35,446/- with effect from the date of first sale - 27.03.1998, for a period of 15 years, upto 200% of that fixed capital investment.

5. Thereafter, the assessee first diversified to manufacture PCB (Printed Circuit Board) and Microwave Ovens. Though the two commodities PCB and Microwave Oven would have been separately manufactured and investment made in that regard may have been segregated in two parts, however, upon a single application made by the assessee, it was granted exemption on that investment, vide eligibility certificate issued by the DLC dated 27.09.2000. To that extent, there is absolutely no dispute.

6. Thereafter, the assessee claims to have carried out a second diversification, which for unexplained reasons came to be described (by the assessee) as a joint-venture to manufacture refrigerators and PC monitors. This, the revenue authorities have treated as two separate diversifications whereas according to the assessee, it was also a single diversification to manufacture refrigerators and monitors. That decision had also been implemented simultaneously. However, it is the further case of the assessee, that PC monitors are electronic goods whereas the refrigerators were electrical goods. Therefore, there existed certain doubts, as to which of the above noted three notifications would apply to each of those items. To that extent, the assessee has tried to explain its conduct of filing two separate applications - one to seek exemption on manufacture of refrigerators (electrical goods), and other to seek exemption to manufacture PC monitors (electronic goods), upon a legal opinion obtained by it. In any case, the assessee first filed an application on 10.01.2002 with respect to manufacture of refrigerators, and another on 28.12.2002 for manufacture of monitors.

7. It is also a fact that the aforesaid two applications came to be considered separately by the DLC. The application to claim exemption for manufacture of refrigerators was allowed by the DLC, vide its order dated 12.05.2003, and in that regard, the assessee was granted exemption on the entire investment of Rs. 42 crores made by it. However, the second application filed with respect to PC monitors was rejected by the DLC by its order dated 07.07.2005 treating the same to be diversification separate and distinct from diversification to manufacture refrigerators. Accordingly, the investment of Rs. 8.13 crores, made by the assessee, was found to be below the qualifying limit of 25% of the original fixed capital investment (Rs. 51,37,35,446/-). This order was sought to be reviewed. However, the review application was rejected by the DLC on 24.05.2006. Upon appeal, the Tribunal allowed the assessee's appeal and remitted the matter to the DLC with a finding to the effect that it was clear that the purchases regarding machineries to manufacture both products (that is refrigerators and monitors) was carried out during the same period. Also, the Tribunal found that the DLC had not taken into consideration this material fact while rejecting the application for grant of exemption with respect to investment made to manufacture PC monitors. Accordingly, the Tribunal directed the DLC to record a clear finding considering the relevant material that was also referred to in that order, by describing it as Annexure No.1 to the paper book at paper nos. 73-86 and other documents as well.

8. Upon remand, the DLC again rejected the application filed by the assessee by its order dated 25.04.2008. This order became the subject matter of second challenge before the Tribunal that came to be decided on 16.05.2012. The Tribunal again allowed the assessee's appeal and set aside the order passed by the DLC and specifically held that there was no bar in two applications being filed by the assessee claiming exemption for single diversification, expansion etc. Thus, the Tribunal observed as under:

"Therefore, a second or supplementary application may be moved and to our mind, there appears no bar in moving separate applications within the time prescribed for grant of Eligibility Certificate."

9. It was further observed by the Tribunal:

"The issue as to whether diversification undertook by appellant dealer regarding manufacture of refrigerator and monitor is a joint venture, is very material for determination of application moved by appellant dealer regarding grant of Eligibility Certificate for monitor. Therefore, without deciding this issue, the rejection of appellant's application on the ground that two separate applications are not maintainable, appears incorrect."

10. The matter was again remitted to the DLC to pass a fresh order in view of the observations made by the Tribunal.

11. The aforesaid order became subject matter of challenge at the instance of the assessee (only), in Sales/Trade Tax Revision No. 815 of 2012 that came to be decided by order dated 22.08.2012. This Court set aside the order of the Tribunal insofar as it had remitted the matter to the DLC and required the Tribunal itself to decide that issue. Relevant to our purpose, the revision was disposed of with the following direction:

"Thus this Court directs the tribunal to decide the issues relating to diversification by way of adding new item of manufacture such as T.V. and monitor on merits and in accordance with law within a period of three months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order being placed by the petitioner within 15 days from today. Needless to say that a proper opportunity shall be given to the assessee. The impugned order of the tribunal dated 16.5.2012 is set aside.

The revision is disposed of as above. No costs."

12. In compliance of the aforesaid order, the Tribunal has again adjudicated the issue which has given rise to the present revision.

13. Heard Sri Tarun Gulati, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Nishant Mishra, learned counsel for the assessee and Sri B.K. Pandey, learned Standing Counsel for the revenue.

14. Present revision was itself admitted on the following questions of law:

"A. Whether under clause (d) of Explanation (5) of the Section 4A of UPTT Act additional fixed capital investment of Rs.42 crores in refrigerator and Rs.8,13,30,080/- in monitor should be treated as joint diversification in terms of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of DSM Group of Industries and according the Applicant should be granted exemption under Section 4A?

B. Whether for the purposes of clause (d) of Explanation (5) of Section 4-A of the Act, additional fixed capital investment of the 'industrial undertaking' as a whole has to be taken into account or item-wise additional fixed capital investment has to be seen?

C. Whether the Applicant can be denied the benefit of exemption under Section 4-A, when admittedly the Applicant's industrial undertaking has made additional fixed capital investment of more than 25% of the original fixed capital investment?

D. Whether the Tribunal has wrongly relied upon Clause (d) of the above explanation (4) of Section 4A of UPTT Act to hold that the Applicant has himself separately shown the investment in refrigerator and monitor, therefore it cannot be considered jointly for the purpose of Section 4A?"

15. Relying on the plain language of Section 4-A(1) read with proviso as also sub-section 2(c) and 5(b) of the Act as also notification nos. 780 and 781, both dated 31.03.1995, notification no. 2760 dated 16.11.1995 as also notification nos. 640 and 641, both dated 21.02.1997, it has been submitted - plainly, the object for grant of exemption under Section 4-A of the Act was to encourage new investment by the industry to bolster industrial growth in the state. The intent of legislature had been to encourage investment in 'new unit' or any existing unit for expansion, diversification and modernisation and or backward integration or in one of them. With respect to claim of diversification, the only further requirement appears to be that the goods manufactured as a result of diversification must be different from those manufactured before diversification.

16. Insofar as the exemption notifications are concerned, it has been submitted that there is no dispute that the assessee had made investments to carry out diversification to manufacture such goods as were different from the goods earlier manufactured by it. The only doubt that the revenue authorities have raised and persisted with is that the investment made to establish the PC monitor unit, by way of diversification, did not qualify for exemption as investment of Rs. 8.13 crores was not below the statutory limit of 25% initial fixed capital.

17. Heavy reliance has been placed first on the decision of the Supreme Court in Commissioner, Trade Tax, U.P. Vs. DSM Group of Industries, (2005) 1 SCC 657, to submit that the foundation for a valid claim for exemption does not depend on whether there were two applications or whether there were two or more units in which an establishment may have made investment. Referring to the facts in the case of DSM Group (supra), it has been submitted, in that case, there were three separate units established in three separate districts of the State. It had been claimed that investments made by the company which owned all the three units exceeded the prescribed limit of 50 crores. Therefore, that fact alone was held to be determinative to hold the assessee eligible to exemption. The exact investment made in individual units was found to affect the determination of the limit of exemption available on goods manufactured by each unit. That law is stated to have been followed by the Supreme Court till as late as in G.P. Ceramics Private Limited Vs. Commissioner, Trade Tax, Uttar Pradesh, (2009) 2 SCC 90.

18. Also, the principle of purposive construction has been invoked by relying on the decision of the Supreme Court in Commissioner of Sales Tax Vs. Industrial Coal Enterprises, (1999) 2 SCC 607 and Bajaj Tempo Ltd., Bombay Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, Bombay City-III, Bombay, (1992) 3 SCC 78 to submit that the rule of strict construction may be applied only for the purposes of determining the eligibility to exemption and no further.

19. In so far as there exists credible and sufficient evidence to establish that the assessee had engaged in a common diversification exercise to manufacture both refrigerators and PC monitors, at a single point in time, at the same unit, the investment made in that exercise had to be taken as composite whole and not truncated by looking at the investment made to manufacture refrigerators as distinct and independent of that made to manufacture PC monitors. The fact that the assessee was forced to or; chose to file two separate applications would remain a factor extraneous to the dispute, inasmuch as, such application became necessary on account of separate notifications providing for separate methods of computation of exemption on manufacture of electronic goods and electrical goods. Since the State treated refrigerators and PC monitors differently, the assessee had no choice in the matter but to file separate applications to disclose the facts relevant to each of those two items, more specifically by filing separate applications. In any case that fact has not been found to be adverse to the assessee.

20. In that regard, it has also been submitted, even at the stage of first diversification, while granting the eligibility certificate, the DLC itself clearly specified the items PCB and microwaves separately in the eligibility certificate dated 27.09.2000 for the purpose of computation of exemption on each of those commodities. Therefore, it has been submitted that, the State authorities themselves construed scheme of exemption and implemented scheme of exemption so as to treat the total investment as a composite investment to fix eligibility to exemption and to bifurcate the same only for the purpose of computing the limit or extent of that exemption.

21. As to the facts of the case, relying on various documents that are stated to have been filed by the assessee before the Tribunal, it has been submitted, besides the original approval letters issued by the Government of India wherein refrigerators and PC monitors were clearly mentioned as goods to be manufactured by the assessee, the annual report of the assessee for the period ending 31.03.2000, contained a clear recital and announcement of the management of the assessee company to start manufacture of refrigerators and PC monitors, which manufacturing units were projected to commence production in July, 2001 and May, 2001 respectively. Then, as a fact, it has been claimed that the assessee simultaneously carried out the diversification work to set up a manufacturing unit for manufacture of refrigerators and monitors, by way of a single diversification exercise.

22. Relying on a list of details of plants, machinery, equipment, apparatus and component to manufacture refrigerators and monitors, it has been submitted that the diversification into manufacture of refrigerators and PC monitors was carried out simultaneously during the year 2000-01. Emphasis has been laid on the fact that the assembly lines that were the main component of the plant and machinery used to manufacture those goods were purchased by two separate invoices raised on the assessee on same date, being February 26, 2001. All these documents are claimed to be existing on the record of the Tribunal. Then referring to the written arguments that were placed before the Tribunal, it has been further emphasised that this issue was specifically raised by disclosing (based on evidence on record), the date of Commercial Invoice to purchase separate assembly lines for the two products as common i.e. 26.02.2001 and the date of first investment in plant and machinery for refrigerators as 01.02.2001 whereas that for PC monitors as 15.11.2000. Further, the date of starting production of PC monitors was 11.5.2001 whereas that of refrigerators was 11.07.2001. It also, established existence of a single diversification.

23. Also, it has been submitted, no evidence was led by the revenue to rebut the claim made by the assessee on the strength of the evidence noticed above. The revenue authorities relied on presumptions solely occasioned by the fact that the assessee had filed two separate applications for grant of exemption on manufacture of refrigerators and PC monitors, which ground was found to be irrelevant by the Tribunal itself.

24. Coming to the impugned order of the Tribunal, learned Senior Counsel would submit that the Tribunal has completely failed to appreciate the applicability of the ratio of the decision in the case of DSM Group (supra). Referring to that decision, it has been emphasised that the decision of the Supreme Court in Commissioner of Trade Tax, U.P. and Anr. Vs. Kajaria Ceramics Ltd., (2005) 11 SCC 1 was a case which would fall in the exception to the rule laid down by the Supreme Court in DSM Group (supra).

25. Opposing the present revision, learned Standing Counsel would submit that sufficient opportunity had been granted to the assessee by the Tribunal to bring on record the evidence to establish that the diversification exercise was a single business venture. In fact, the assessee failed to bring such evidence on record the minutes of the meeting of it's own Board of Directors indicating that the diversification exercise was carried out as a single exercise. Referring to the same, the Tribunal has rightly rejected the claim made by the assessee. Insofar as the present assessee has also not brought on record any estimate, plan, drawing, etc to establish that the exercise of diversification was one and not two, the Tribunal has not erred in dismissing the appeal filed by the assessee and in distinguishing the ratio in the case of DSM Group (supra). As to rule to be applied, learned Standing Counsel would submit that the Tribunal has not erred in placing the burden on the assessee to establish that it was the a single diversification. In absence of the burden to prove being discharged, the Tribunal has rightly rejected the appeal.

26. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, in the first place, as a rule, it cannot be disputed that at the threshold i.e. to determine whether the assessee was eligible to exemption a strict rule of interpretation had to be enforced. However, undisputedly, the assessee did engage in diversification upon establishing manufacturing facility to manufacture refrigerators and PC monitors. No goods similar to those were being manufactured by it, earlier. Thereafter, a purposive construction has to be made. In paragraph nos. 11 and 12 of the Supreme Court decision in Industrial Coal (supra) held as:

11. In CIT v. Straw Board Mfg. Co. Ltd.[1989 Supp (2) SCC 523 : 1990 SCC (Tax) 158] this Court held that in taxing statutes, provision for concessional rate of tax should be liberally construed. So also inBajaj Tempo Ltd.v.CIT[(1992) 3 SCC 78] it was held that provision granting incentive for promoting economic growth and development in taxing statutes should be liberally construed and restriction placed on it by way of exception should be construed in a reasonable and purposive manner so as to advance the objective of the provision.

12. We find that the object of granting exemption from payment of sales tax has always been for encouraging capital investment and establishment of industrial units for the purpose of increasing production of goods and promoting the development of industry in the State. If the test laid down inBajaj Tempo Ltd. case[(1992) 3 SCC 78] is applied, there is no doubt whatever that the exemption granted to the respondent from 9-8-1985 when it fulfilled all the prescribed conditions will not cease to operate just because the capital investment exceeded the limit of Rs 3 lakhs on account of the respondent becoming the owner of land and building to which the unit was shifted. If the construction sought to be placed by the appellant is accepted, the very purpose and object of the grant of exemption will be defeated. After all, the respondent had only shifted the unit to its own premises which made it much more convenient and easier for the respondent to carry on the production of the goods undisturbed by the vagaries of the lessor and without any necessity to spend a part of its income on rent. It is not the case of the appellant that there were any mala fides on the part of the respondent in obtaining exemption in the first instance as a unit with a capital investment below Rs 3 lakhs and increasing the capital investment subsequently to an amount exceeding Rs 3

lakhs with a view to defeat the provisions of any of the relevant statutes. The bona fides of the respondent have never been questioned by the appellant."

27. It also cannot be disputed that the burden to establish that the assesse had made a single diversification to manufacture refrigerators and PC monitors rested on the assessee. It was a special fact in the knowledge of the assessee. Therefore, the burden would remain on the assessee to prove the same and for the revenue authorities to rebut such evidence as the assesse may produce. To that extent, the Tribunal has not erred in its approach. In fact, the Tribunal has also itself found (in its order dated 16.5.2012) that mere filing of two separate applications for diversification to manufacture refrigerators and monitors would be inconsequential. That finding was never assailed by the revenue. In fact, the Tribunal had gone to the extent of holding that the assessee's application could not be rejected merely because two separate applications had been filed. Thus, it is to be seen whether thereafter, the Tribunal has correctly dealt with the matter.

28. It is here that the Tribunal's approach is lacking. The Tribunal appears to have completely over-looked the most material part of the evidence relied upon by the assessee. In that, it had relied on the original approval letters issued by the Government of India dated 29.1.1997 and 4.11.1997 wherein it clearly disclosed its intent to set up a unit to manufacture, amongst others, refrigerators and PC monitors. Then the assessee is a public limited company. In its annual report for the period ending 31 March, it appears, it had been specifically stated as under:

"Despite increased competition, your Company is confident of garnering a higher growth in its products during the year 2001. The Company is planning to introduce many new models, thus making the company with the widest range of models in all its product category. During the year 2000, the Company has started work to add a Refrigerator Plant to its existing production facilities which would be operational by July 2001. The Company is planning to start assembling of Monitors in India in May 2001."

29. Not only such position appears to have been made clear in such public document, but also the assessee substantiated the same by adducing corroborative evidence in the shape of same date invoices dated 26.2.2001 to purchase vital machineries, being separate assembly lines to manufacture PC monitors and refrigerators. Further corroborative evidence appears to have been filed in the shape of details of plant and machinery, equipments, parts and components, etc. purchased to set up the manufacturing facilities for refrigerators and monitors. Those dates overlapped or ran parallel. Moreover, the date of first investment; starting production and; first sale for the two goods PC monitors and refrigerators were very close to each other as appear to be prima facie supportive of the claim made by the assessee - 15.11.2000 and 01.02.2001 being the dates of first purchase of plant and machinery for PC monitors and refrigerators respectively. Similarly, 11.05.2001 and 11.7.2001 were the closely arising dates of start of production of PC monitors and refrigerators, respectively. Even the date of first sale of PC monitors was 30.05.2001 whereas that of refrigerators was 18.07.2001.

30. Therefore, the contention of the assessee that there was evidence existing on record to establish that the entire diversification exercise to manufacture refrigerators and PC monitors was a single step diversification, is prima facie found to be based on evidence on record before the Tribunal. It is not a case where the assessee may not have led any evidence in support of its case. The observations and conclusions of the Tribunal, to the contrary, are found to be perverse.

31. In the case of Kajaria Ceramics (supra), that assessee had consistently claimed to have filed three separate applications to the DLC stating therein that it had started production on specified dates and that it had undertaken three successive expansions during the period 1990 to 1994. Subsequently, that is on 21.11.1994 i.e. after the last expansion claimed by Kajaria Ceramics (supra), it withdrew all earlier applications and filed a revised application thereby claiming, for the first time, that it had carried out a single expansion during the period 12.08.1988 to 28.03.1994. Such claim came to be rejected by the DLC, which order was rejected by the Tribunal, however, this Court had allowed the claim made by Kajaria Ceramics (supra). Upon appeal filed by the State before the Supreme Court framed issue no.2 as below:

"II. Whether the respondent's claim of one integrated expansion from 12,000 TPA to 60,000 TPA during the period 12-8-1988 to 28-3-1994 is sustainable in fact or in law?"

32. Dealing with that issue, the Supreme Court had held that it was never the onus of the revenue to prove that there were three separate expansions. Admittedly Kajaria Ceramics had later changed its stand and claimed existence of a single scheme of expansion carried out in three phases as against its earlier stand of having engaged in three separate expansions. Considering that crucial fact, the Supreme Court reasoned that the onus to establish a single expansion in three phases remained undischarged at the hands of that assessee/Kajaria Ceramics.

33. It was in that factual context, the Supreme Court further observed that the scheme of expansion would necessarily warrant estimates, plants, drawings etc. It then observed, there was not a single piece of evidence, to establish that the expansion was a single step exercise carried out by that assessee. On the contrary, it was found that with respect to each three expansions, separate industrial licences had been applied for and obtained by that assessee. Moreover, separate negotiations had also been entered into at each stage. Therefore, in the face of such evidence, it was concluded that there were three separate expansions carried out by that assessee.

34. Such evidence has not been shown to exist in the present case. In fact, at present, the entire evidence appears to indicate at least on prima facie basis that the decision to diversify and its implementation was a single effort made by the assesse, which for unexplained reasons, came to be described as joint-venture. However, that word description is of no legal consequence. Therefore, the Tribunal has failed to consider material evidence filed by the assesse and record any finding on that. It also appears, at least at this stage, that the revenue authorities had not rebutted such evidence by filing any other evidence.

35. In the facts of this case, the finding recorded by the Tribunal that the case of the assessee is similar to that of the Kajaria Ceramics (supra) and invoking that rule is wholly misplaced. In any case, in the case of Kajaria Ceramics (supra), the Supreme Court did not lay down a rule of evidence that for a single diversification or expansion, it was always necessary for the assessee to bring on record estimates, plants, drawing, etc. It was in the facts of that case that such observations appear to have been made. No specific rule or evidence has been prescribed either under the Act or the Rule framed thereunder. It would remain a matter to be considered and decided on the facts of each prescribed case. Thus, the assessee was not obliged to lead any particular evidence to establish its claim or else to face rejection. However, it was always open to the revenue to rebut that evidence or lead its own evidence to defeat the claim of the assessee. At present, it is not clear if that evidence had been led. In any case the findings of the Tribunal are found to be lacking.

36. Again, reference made by the order of the Tribunal to the minutes of the Board of Directors, though relevant, but as noted above, the same was not the only evidence to be considered by it. On the face of it, the minutes of the meeting, as extracted in the order of the Tribunal, referred to the date of start of production of two items, namely refrigerators and PC monitors. However, the same are not such as may lead to the conclusion that, two mutually exclusive or separate diversification had been taken by the assessee to manufacture those items.

37. There is also no apparent self-contradiction in the claim made by the assessee. It had consistently stated that it had filed two applications under legal advice owing to different treatment of the two items, namely refrigerators and monitors under the relevant exemption notifications. It had also referred to the own interpretation/treatment offered by the State authorities in granting exemption, specific to the investment made to manufacture each commodity. Thus, the assessee had relied on the certificate issued with respect to the diversification to manufacture PCB and Microwave Ovens vide eligibility certificate dated 27.9.2000. That issue has also remained from being thrashed out by the Tribunal.

38. Accordingly, I find that the Tribunal has misdirected itself in approach and, therefore, its order cannot be sustained. As to what would be the conclusion to be drawn on facts, is not being commented upon in this order. That would remain for the Tribunal to consider and decide on the strength of evidence placed before it. Insofar as the correct approach to be followed, that has been settled above.

39. In view of the above, the questions of law (as framed above) remain unanswered.

40. Accordingly, the order of the Tribunal is set aside and the matter is remitted to it to pass a fresh, strictly in accordance with law, keeping in mind the observations made above.

41. The aforesaid exercise may be completed as expeditiously as possible, preferably within a period of six months from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

42. With the aforesaid observations, the present revision stands disposed of.

A. Tax Law – Uttar Pradesh Value Added Tax, 2008: Entry 26 of Schedule -II Part A; Sections 2(f), 4(1)(a) - Resort has to be had to the residuary heading only when by a liberal construction the specific heading cannot cover the goods in question. (Para 12)

If 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' manufactured by the assessee were not machinery, then in absence of any other or alternative claim, the Tribunal could treat the goods to be unclassified under Schedule V to the Act. But if they were machinery, they could not have been treated as unclassified by relying on Section 2(f) of the Act, which has no bearing to classification of any goods for taxation purpose. (Para 13)

The words 'machinery' and phrase 'capital goods' are different and may overlap or remain mutually exclusive depending upon the facts of each case, in the context of the particular fiscal statute wherein they may have been used. (Para 15)

Any machinery that may be put to use in manufacture of goods may be treated as capital goods in the context of any particular legislation, especially fiscal statutes. Certain other goods may continue to be machinery, though not capital goods. Treatment of any goods as capital or non-capital goods, would remain extraneous so far as the taxability of those goods is concerned. (Para 16)

Matter remitted. (E-4)

Precedent followed:
1. State of Maharashtra Vs. Bradma of India Ltd., (2005) 2 SCC 669 (Para 12)

Present revision is against order dated 07.03.2018, passed by Commercial Tax Tribunal, Ghaziabad, U.P. for the A.Y. 2008-09.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh,J.)

1. Present revision has been filed by the assessee against the order of the Commercial Tax Tribunal Ghaziabad dated 7.3.2018, passed in second appeal no. 518 of 2013, for the A.Y. 2008-09 (U.P.). By that order, the Tribunal has dismissed the appeal filed by the assessee against the order of the first appeal authority dated 12.7.2013. The first appeal authority had held 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' used in the compressors in refrigerators are not machinery. However, with respect to rejection of books of accounts and best judgement assessment, the matter had been remitted to the assessing authority. The proceedings, thus remanded, have given rise to two separate revisions being Sales/Trade Tax Revision Nos. 298 of 2018 for A.Y. 2008-09 (U.P.)

and 299 of 2018 for A.Y. 2008-09 (Central). Those revisions would be dealt with separately.

2. Heard Sri Rahul Agrawal, learned counsel for the applicant-assessee and Sri B.K. Pandey, learned Standing Counsel for the opposite party-revenue.

3. The present revision has been pressed on the following question of law:

"A. Whether goods in question 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' are covered within the ambit of Entry No. 26 of Schedule-II Part-A of the U.P. VAT Act, 2008?"

4. During the assessment year in question, the assessee was engaged in manufacture of 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' used in manufacture of compressors for refrigerators. It sold the same to a manufacturer of refrigerators. Treating the items 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' to be component parts of machinery, the assessee charged those goods @ 4% under Entry 26 of Schedule-II Part-A of the Uttar Pradesh Value Added Tax Act, 2008 (hereinafter referred to as the Act). However, the assessing authority took a different view and treated the same as unclassified goods and subjected the same to tax @ 12.5%. Upon first appeal, the first appeal authority upheld this view of the assessing authority, however, it remitted the matter on quantification issues. Upon further appeal, the Tribunal has confirmed the order of the assessing authority.

5. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, it appears, the revenue authorities have taken a view that 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' cannot be taxed as machinery or component parts of the machinery on the reasoning that such 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' are used in compressors used in the refrigerators and air-conditioners, which in turn are consumer goods or home appliances, and not machinery. To reach that conclusion, the Tribunal has reasoned that machineries are only such items as are used for production and manufacture of other goods. The Tribunal has relied on the definition of capital goods under Section 2(f) of the Act and observed,it includes machinery used for production and manufacture of goods. On such reasoning, the Tribunal has dismissed the appeal filed by the assessee.

6. The aforesaid reasoning appears to be wholly erroneous, inasmuch as, the Tribunal has completely misdirected itself in approach and thus, reached wholly unacceptable conclusions.

7. Entry no. 26 of Schedule-II Part-A reads as under:

"26. Machinery, equipment, apparatus, tools, moulds, dies and component spare parts, accessories thereof."

8. Section 2(f) of the Act reads as under:

(f) "capital goods" means any plant, machine, machinery, equipment, apparatus, tool, appliance or electrical installation used for manufacture or processing of any goods for sale by the dealer and includes:-

(i) components, spare parts and accessories of such plant, machine, machinery, equipment, apparatus, tool, appliance or electrical installation;

(ii) moulds and dies;

(iii) storage tank;

(iv) pollution control equipment;

(v) refractory and refractory materials;

(vi) tubes and pipes and fittings thereof,

(vii) lab equipments, instruments and accessories,

(viii) machinery, loader, equipment for lifting or moving goods within factory premises, or

(ix) generator and boiler used in manufacture of goods for sale by him but for the purpose of section 13, does not include:-

(i) air-conditioning units or air conditioners, refrigerators, air coolers, fans, and air circulators if not connected with manufacturing process;

(ii) an automobile including commercial vehicles, and two or three wheelers, and parts, components and accessories for repair and maintenance thereof;

(iii) goods purchased and accounted for in business but utilised for the purpose of providing facility to the employees.

(iv) vehicle used for transporting goods or passengers or both;

(v) capital goods used in the execution of a works contract; and

[(vi) .....]Omitted"

9. Section 4(1)(a) of the Act reads as under:

"4. Levy of tax on turnover of sale.-

(1) The tax, payable on sale of goods under this Act, shall be levied and paid on the taxable turnover of sale of-

(a) goods named or described in column 2 of the Schedule II, at every point of sale and at the rate of four percent."

10. Thus, in the first place, Section 4(1)(a) read with Schedule-II of the Act provides for rate of tax on goods that have been described in column-2 Schedule-II. Thus, everything else apart, the rate of tax on goods falling under Schedule-II would remain 4%. There exist other Schedules to the Act and parts thereof providing different categorization of goods both on the basis of rates and also use. However, no classification or categorization of any goods by virtue of those being 'capital goods'.

11. On the other hand, Section 2(f) of the Act is not a provision affecting the rate of tax. There is no taxing entry of 'capital goods' existing or relied upon by the revenue. Inasmuch as, such an entry had not been provided for by the legislature, the line of reasoning adopted by the Tribunal, is wholly extraneous and therefore irrelevant.

12. What was required to be seen first was - whether 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' of compressors used in refrigerators and air-conditioners manufactured and sold by the assessee were items as would fall within any of the description of the taxing entry 26 of Schedule II, Part A of the Act. While examining that claim the Tribunal could not have looked into the residuary entry that in effect is Schedule V of the Act. In State of Maharashtra v. Bradma of India Ltd., (2005) 2 SCC 669, the Supreme Court held:

"7. We are of the opinion that the High Court was wrong. Both the Tribunal and the High Court commonly enunciated the principle that a specific entry would override a general entry. In addition we would add, and as has been held in CCE v. Wood Craft Products Ltd., (1995) 3 SCC 454, at p. 462, resort has to be had to the residuary heading only when by a liberal construction the specific heading cannot cover the goods in question. The language of Entry 97(b) clearly shows, by use of the phrase "other than those specified elsewhere" that it is not only a residuary entry but also that electronic systems, instruments, etc. may be classified under other entries. Entry 90 on the other hand does not contain any words of limitation. The items mentioned therein would cover every species thereof irrespective of the mode of their operation. Cash registering machines are specifically mentioned. In the absence of any limitation or qualification as to the different kinds of cash registering machines, there is no reason to read in any such qualification and limit the entry to particular kinds of cash registering machines. It is significant that by contrast, data processing machines have expressly excluded computers. Were it not so excluded, computers would have also fallen within Entry 90. In fact computers are separately dealt with in Entry 97(a). But the exclusion of computers from data processing machines would indicate that the items mentioned in Entry 90 are generic covering all species of such items. Given the language of the two entries we fail to understand how the High Court could have come to the conclusion that Entry 97(b) was the specific entry and that Entry 90 was the general entry. Such an interpretation goes against the express language of the two entries."

13. Thus, if the answer to the above were in the negative and it were to be found that the 'crankshaft' and 'camshaft' manufactured by the assessee were not machinery, then, in absence of any other or alternative claim, the Tribunal could treat the goods to be unclassified under Schedule V to the Act. If however, that answer were in the affirmative, they could not be treated as unclassified by relying on Section 2(f) of the Act, which has no bearing to classification of any goods for taxation purpose. For the purposes of interpreting a taxing entry and to determine the classification of goods, section 2(f) of the Act and its effect would remain wholly irrelevant. It may be clarified, as there is complete absence of any taxing entry of 'capital goods' under any of the Schedules, hence there exists no occasion to examine that issue any further or to determine whether there exists a special entry (of capital goods) and a general entry (of machinery) under entry no. 26, Schedule II, Part A.

14. No such exercise has been carried out by the Tribunal. In fact the Tribunal has got misdirected in forming its opinion on the reasoning, treating the goods to be non-capital goods and therefore not machinery. In that regard the Tribunal has not examined the true scope and ambit of entry 26 Schedule II, Part A, in correct light and it has further erred in relying on section 2(f) of the Act, which is not relevant to interpret the taxing entry, in absence of use of the words 'capital goods', under any of the Schedules to the Act.

15. Even as a general principle, the word 'machinery' and the phrase 'capital goods' are different and may overlap or remain mutually exclusive depending upon the facts of the each case, in the context of the particular fiscal statute wherein they may have been used. While the phrase 'capital goods' may take within its ambit goods and items other than machinery also, insofar as machinery is concerned, it may remain both capital goods as also non-capital goods including consumer goods as well.

16. Any machinery that may be put to use in manufacture of goods may be treated as capital goods in the context of any particular legislation, especially fiscal statutes. However, that treatment given to some machineries for specified purposes would not have any impact on the identity of certain other goods that may continue to be machinery, though not capital goods. Thus, even as to principle, treatment of any goods as non-capital goods, would remain extraneous so far as the taxability of those goods is concerned. That issue would have to be decided purely on the basis of treatment given by the legislature under the taxing provision and entry. In the context of the Act, the legislature has not classified 'capital goods' as a class of goods to be taxed as such. Only "List of Industrial Inputs" have been so identified and classified under Part C, Schedule II of the Act.

17. Commonly, even in homes and non-commercial or non-industrial establishment machines come to be used on a daily basis. A common example of such machine is a ceiling fan. In absence of a special taxing entry to categorize it otherwise, merely because a ceiling fan may be used both in an industrial establishment and also at a residential establishment would not change its identity and therefore its taxability as a machine. It cannot be treated both as an classified and unclassified goods solely on the basis of its installation, whether at an industrial establishment or a home.

18. In view of the above, order passed by the Tribunal is wholly unsustainable. The same is set aside and the matter is remitted to the Tribunal to pass a fresh order in accordance with law, keeping in mind the observations made above.

19. Accordingly, the question of law is left unanswered. The proceedings in remand may be completed as expeditiously as possible, preferably within a period of six months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

20. With the aforesaid observations, the revision stands disposed of.

A. Tax Law – Uttar Pradesh Trade Tax Act, 1948: Section 2(e-1); Notification dated 23.11.1998 – TIF-2-2375/XI-9 (251)/97-UP Act 15/48-order 98 - Only one set of tax can be levied by the State in the event the commodity remains the same. For imposition of tax, after processing, some new commercial commodity must come into existence which may be identified differently from its original.

The wood log, purchased by the revisionist as timber, remains the same even after obtaining veneer (chiran) as it does not loose its original identity of timber and it does not undergo any physical/commercial or any kind of change. The process of cutting and converting timber from wood log does not come under the definition of "Manufacturing" as provided u/s 2(e-1) of the Act. (Para 33, 34, 37)

B. Notification dated 15.01.2000 – KA. NI-2-101/XI-9 (231)/94-UP Act 15/48-order 2000 – It is not justified to impose increased tax on timber during the period 01.02.2000 to 31.03.2000 as notification came into existence w.e.f. 01.01.2000, by which the rate of tax was enhanced from 15% to 16%, which is not relevant for assessment year in dispute. Precedent distinguished:

1. Commissioner of Commercial Tax Vs. Om Trading, TTR No. 1237 of 2000, decided on 22.08.2008 (Para 13, 28)

Present revision is against order dated 20.05.2010, passed by Commercial Tax Tribunal, Faizabad Bench, Faizabad. (Assessment Year 1999 – 2000)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Piyush Agrawal,J.)

1. The present revision has been filed against the order dated 20.5.2010 passed by Commercial Tax Tribunal, Faizabad Bench, Faizabad in Second Appeal No. 126 of 2008 (Assessment Year 1999-2000).

2. During pendency of the present revision, the revisionist filed an amendment application, which was allowed by this Court by order dated 25.4.2019. The revisionist by way of amendment has raised the following questions of law for consideration of this Court:-

"1. Whether tribunal was justified in law to impose tax both on timber in log and timber in chiran?

2. Whether tribunal was justified in law to impose tax on timber @ 16 % during period 01.02.2000 to 31.03.2000?"

3. The counsel for the revisionist submits that he only wants to press the aforesaid question of law.

4. It has been averred that the revisionist being registered dealer is engaged in the business of timber and manufacture and sale of veneer (chiran). The business premises of the revisionist was surveyed on 22.12.1999 on the basis of which the best judgement assessment was made. On the purchase of timber log tax was levied as purchase tax and after manufacture of veneer (chiran) from it, tax was levied on its sale amounting double taxation, which is not permissible under the law. The said imposition of tax has been confirmed up to the stage of Tribunal by the impugned order.

5. Heard Sri N.C. Mishra, learned counsel for the revisionist and learned Standing Counsel and perused the records.

6. The counsel for the revisionist submits that as per the provisions and notification either the items in which the revisionist is dealing can be taxed at the point of import or manufacturing. In other words only one set of tax can be charged. Tax can be levied either at the time of its import in the State or in the hand of its manufacturer.

7. The counsel for the revisionist further submitted that in the present case revisionist accepts the levy of tax on the purchase of timber log even on the best judgement assessment i.e. enhancement of its turnover. But after manufacture of veneer (chiran) from it no tax can be charged on its sales subsequently.

8. It was further argued that rate of tax can be levied only as per the rate mentioned in the notification and not otherwise.

9. In support of his contention the counsel for the revisionist has relied upon Notification No. T.I.F.-2-2375/XI-9(251)/97-U.P. Act-15-48-order-98 dated 23.11.1998 which is quoted below:

In exercise of powers under clause 9d) of sub-section (1) of section 3-A of the Uttar Pradesh Trade Tax Act, 1948 (UP Act No. 15 of 1948) , read with section 21 of the Uttar Pradesh General Clauses Act, 1904 (U.P. Act No. 1 of 1904) and in supersession of all previous notifications issued in this behalf, the Governor is pleased to declare that with effect from December 1, 1998, turnover in respect of the goods mentioned in column 2 of the Schedule below shall be liable to tax at the point of sale specified in column 3 of the said Schedule at the rate specified against each in column 4 thereof.

Woods and timber of all kinds and of all trees of whatever species including ballies and bamboos whether growing or cut or sawn but excluding their products and fire wood.	Sale by Forest department, the UP Forest Corporation or by private owner of forest or by importer or manufacturer; Provided that where the sale is by the forest department to the UP Forest Corporation the tax shall be levied on the point of sale by the said Corporation and not at the point of sale by the Forest Department.	15%

10. The aforesaid notification was modified by Notification KA. NI. -2-101/XI-9(231)/94-UPAct-15-48- order-2000 dated Lucknow:15 January, 2000, which is quoted below :-

In exercise of the powers under clause (e) of sub section (1) of section 3 - A of the Uttar Pradesh Trade Tax Act, 1948 (UP Act No. XV of 1948) read with Section 21 of the Uttar Pradesh General Clauses Act, 1904 (UP Act No. 1 of 1904), and in supersession of all previous notifications issued in this behalf, the Governor is pleased to declare that, with effect from January 17, 2000, the turnover in respect of the goods mentioned in column 2 of the List below shall be liable to tax at the point of sale specified in column 3 of said List at the rate specified against each in column 4 thereof.

29(i) Woods and timber of all kinds and of all trees of whatever species including ballies and bamboos, whether growing or cut or sawn imported from out side india.	Importer	20%
(ii) Woods and timber of all kinds or by private owner of forest or by and of all trees of importer or manufacturer. whatever species Provided that where the sale is by the forest whether growing department to the UP Forest Corporation the or cut or sawn not tax shall be levied on the point of sale by the included above but said corporation and not at the point of sale by excluding their Forest Department. products and firewoods.	Sales by Forest Department the UP Forest Corporation	16%

By the aforesaid notifications rate of tax has been enhanced from 15 % to 20 % and there was no change in levy of tax on timber.

11. The counsel for the revisionist submitted that neither tax can be levied twice i.e. one as purchase tax and the other on its sale nor the rate of tax can be enhanced to 16% instead of 15 %. More precisely 1 % enhanced tax cannot be levied on the sale of veneer (chiran).

12. The counsel for the revisionist has relied upon the certain judgements of Supreme Court, this Court as well as other High Courts i.e. Deputy Commissioner of Sales Tax Vs. Pio Food Packers, Commissioner of Sales Tax, UP Lucknow Vs. M/s Packing Aids, Agra, Commissioner Sales Tax Vs. Murlidhar and sons, State of Tamil Nadu Vs. C. Kanchanamala, G. Ramaswamy and others Vs. State of Andra Pradesh and others, Commissioner Sales Tax Vs. Lal Kuwa Stone Crusher Pvt. Ltd. and Kalptaru Agro Forest Enterprises Pvt. Ltd. Vs Commissioner Commercial Tax.

13. Rebutting the submissions of the learned counsel for the revisionist, the learned Standing Counsel submits that timber log was purchased by the revisionist from an unregistered dealer so that the tax was levied, therefore, commercial commodity i.e. veneer (chiran) has been produced. Therefore the tax has rightly been imposed. He relied upon the judgement of this Court in Trade Tax Revision No. 1237 of 2000, Commissioner of Commercial Tax Vs. Om Trading decided on 22.8.2008. He submits that the issue involved in the present revisionist is squarely covered by the aforesaid judgement.

14. It is not disputed by either of the parties that the revisionist has purchased timber log on which the tax was levied.

The only dispute for consideration of this Court is that whether the sale of veneer (chiran) can again be taxed from 1.4.1999 to 31.4.2000 @ 15 % and from 1.2.2000 to 31.3.2000 @ 16 %.

15. It is admitted between the parties that after purchase of timber log, the same was cut in different sizes and planks were obtained, which were used by the revisionist as veneer (chiran). Tax has been levied on the basis of best judgement assessment which has not been disputed by either of the parties.

16. According to the counsel for the revisionist once the tax has been charged on the purchase of timber log even on the best judgement assessment, there is no justification to levy tax on the sale of veneer (chiran) again. He further argued that timber remain timber even after cut to small sizes/planks/chiran.

17. Apex Court is the case of Deputy Commissioner of Sales Tax Vs. Pio Food Packers 1981 UPTC 667, has held as follows:-

5.Section 5-A(1)(a) of the Kerala General Sales Tax Act envisages the consumption of a commodity in the manufacture of another commodity. The goods purchased should be consumed, the consumption should be in the process of manufacture, and the result must be the manufacture of other goods. There are several criteria for determining whether a commodity is consumed in the manufacture of another. The generally prevalent test is whether the article produced is regarded in the trade, by those who deal in it, as distinct in identity from the commodity involved in its manufacture. Commonly, manufacture is the end result of one or more processes through which the original commodity is made to pass. The nature and extent of processing may vary from one case to another, and indeed there may be several stages of processing and perhaps a different kind of processing at each stage. With each process suffered, the original commodity experiences a change. But it is only when the change, or a series of changes, take the commodity to the point where commercially it can no longer be regarded as the original commodity but instead is recognised as a new and distinct article that a manufacture can be said to take place. Where there is no essential difference in identity between the original commodity and the processed article it is not possible to say that one commodity has been consumed in the manufacture of another. Although it has undergone a degree of processing, it must be regarded as still retaining its original identity.

6. A large number of cases has been placed before us by the parties, and in each of them the same principle has been applied: Does the processing of the original commodity bring into existence a commercially different and distinct article ? Some of the cases where it was held by this Court that a different commercial article had come into existence include Anwarkhan Mehboob Co. v. The State of Bombay and Others (where raw tobacco was manufactured into bidi patti), A Hajee Abdul Shukoor and Co. v. The State of Madras (raw hides and skins constituted a different commodity from dressed hides and skins with different physical properties), The State of Madras v. Swasthik Tobacco Factory (raw tobacco manufactured into chewing tobacco) and Ganesh Trading Co. Karnal v. State of Haryana and Another, (paddy dehusked into rice). On the other side, cases where this Court has held that although the original commodity has undergone a degree of processing it has not lost its original identity include Tungabhadra Industries Ltd., Kurnool v. Commercial Tax Officer, Kurnool (where hydrogenated groundnut oil was regarded as groundnut oil) and Commissioner of Sales Tax, U.P., Lucknow v. Harbilas Rai and sons (where bristles plucked from pigs, boiled, washed with soap and other chemicals and sorted out in bundles according to their size and colour were regarded as remaining the same commercial commodity, pigs bristles).

12.The comment applies fully in the case before us. Although a degree of processing is involved in preparing pineapple slices from the original fruit, the commodity continues to possess its original identity, notwithstanding the removal of inedible portions, the slicing and thereafter canning it on adding sugar to preserve it. It is contended for the Revenue that pineapple slices have a higher price in the market than the original fruit and that implies that the slices constitute a different commercial commodity. The higher price, it seems to us, is occasioned only because of the labour put into making the fruit more readily consumable and because of the can employed to contain it. It is not as if the higher price is claimed because it is a different commercial commodity. It is said that pineapple slices appeal to a different sector of the trade and that when a customer asks for a can of pineapple slices he has in mind something very different from fresh pineapple fruit. Here again, the distinction in the mind of the consumer arises not from any difference in the essential identity of the two, but is derived from the mere form in which the fruit is desired.

14. In the result, we hold that when pineapple fruit is processed into pineapple slices for the purpose of being sold in sealed cans there is no consumption of the original pineapple fruit for the purpose of manufacture.

18. Apex Court has very clearly said that even after pineapple have been slices and canned does not changes its identity.

19. This Court in Commissioner of Sales Tax, UP Lucknow Vs. M/s Packing Aids, Agra reported in 1980 UPTC, 901 has held here in below:

"7. Now coming to the other question the Assessing Officer observed that the claim made by the assessee that batton and shooks fell in the category of timber was incorrect because it was only making planks or joining planks by nails and that was treated by the assessee as shooks and the same could not be treated as timber. The Revising Authority has, however, observed that batton and bhooks appear to be nothing but wooden planks or pieces used for making wooden cases or Pattis and hence the case of the assessee was correct that what it was dealing with was timber. In my opinion no clear finding has been recorded either by the Assessing Authority or by the Revising Authority in regard to the nature of the products which the assessee is making. If the assessee is only making planks, that would come in the category of timber because the planks would be sawn timber or wood and would be covered by Entry 97 aforesaid. But if the assessee is further joining the planks by nails, that would have to be treated as timber product. The import of the expression "product" came up for consideration before a Division Bench of this Court in Commissioner of Sales Tax v. B.M. Wood Works No.1, (1973) 32 STC 66. The question referred to this Court was : "Whether boxes made of Chir are timber products as contemplated by Notification No. ST-3393 dated 1st July, 1962, as amended by Notification No. 6869 dated 19th January, 1963". The view taken was that the word product in the notification was intended to be used in its full and comprehensive meaning viz. A thing produced by any action, operation or work, and not in the narrow and restricted meaning of something produced by nature or a natural process. Now sawn timber has been placed specifically in the category of timber under Entry 97 aforesaid, but the joining of planks by nails would certainly be a thing produced by an action or operation of work and would have to be treated as timber product and not as timber. Both the Department and the assessee have not been, in their minds, clear about the nature of the assessee's business and it needs consideration afresh. The occasion for carrying out the direction given by the Revising Authority would arise only if it is found that batton and shooks in which the assessee dealt are covered by Entry 97 aforesaid. If, however, it is found that they are timber products, there would be no occasion for any such further enquiry."

20. The court has held that if the dealer is making planks then it will come in the category of timber. But if the joining of planks by nails would have to be treated as timber product.

21. This Court in the case of Commissioner Sales Tax Vs. Murlidhar and sons, 2006 (29) NTN 154 has held herein below:

"2. Heard the counsel for the parties. The dispute relates to the Assessment Year 1988-89. The dealer opp. Party deals in timber, timber product and burada etc. In the assessment year in question the Assessing Authority held that planks made by the assessee is a timber product. The said finding has been set aside by the First Appellate Authority which has been confirmed by the Tribunal. This Court in the case of C.S.T Vs. M/s Packing AIDS, Agra 1980 UPTC 901 has held that the wooden planks and pieces used for making wooden goods fall within the category of timber. Respectfully following the aforesaid decision, I do not find any legal error in the order of the Tribunal. The revision is dismissed."

22. Similar view has been taken by Madras High Court in the case of State of Tamil Nadu Vs. C. Kanchanamala (1994) 93 STC 87 in which it has held as follows:-

3. The finding of the Tribunal is as follows :

"..... It is found that the appellant had effected purchase of timber, sliced the same into splints and sold the splints to various dealers among the match manufacturers. Hence, we are of the view that provisions of section 7-A cannot be applied to the purchase turnover of timber and accordingly we set aside the assessment of the purchaser turnover ……"

...

8. From a perusal of the ratios laid down in all these cases, there is no difficulty in upholding the view taken by the Tribunal as the splints obtained by slicing the timber definitely retain the identity of timber and, therefore, it cannot be said that the timber has been consumed in the manufacture of splints.

9. Now, coming to the decision on which reliance was placed by the learned Additional Government Pleader, it is seen that no facts, it is entirely a different one. In that case, the assessee purchased timber in logs, cut the same into slices and planks and thereafter manufactured packing cases. In those circumstances, this Court held that a packing case in any sense of the term, cannot be called timber. ...

23. Madras High Court has clearly opined that slicing of timber definitely retain the identity of timber.

24. Similar view has been taken by Andra Pradesh High Court in the case of G. Ramaswamy and others Vs. State of Andra Pradesh and others 1973 32 STC 309 AP in which it has held as follows

3. Under Section 5(2)(a) read with item "63. Timber" in the First Schedule to the Act a dealer in timber is liable to pay sales tax thereon at 3 pies in a rupee at the point of first sale. The petitioners are sought to be taxed on "planks, rafters, cut sizes, etc.," which they sell to the customers under Section 5 of the Act treating them as general goods. The contention of the petitioners is that they deal in timber and since the sales which they effect are not the first sales, they are not therefore liable to pay any tax under item 63 of the First Schedule to the Act. They submit that since the transactions fall under item 63 as they deal in timber, they cannot be taxed under Section 5 of the Act.

14. Thus the word "timber" may in the context mean the timber tree; when it is felled, the wood; when it is cut into logs for convenience of transport, the ballis cut to sizes or even the planks, rafters, cut sizes, etc., for the use of construction of buildings or such other like purpose.

37. It will thus be plain that right from the inception, the Commercial Taxes Department has been treating planks, rafters and cut sizes as timber and never taxed them till the attention of the Government was drawn by the Accountant-General, Andhra Pradesh. Realising that the commodity was not so taxed in view of the construction which the Government had placed on the word "timber" for a considerably long time, the Government directed to tax these goods prospectively under Section 5 treating them as general goods. One thing which is conspicuous is that even in the subsequent stand the Government has taken, they do not say that the planks, rafters, etc., do not come within the meaning of timber used in item 63. What they say is that "planks, rafters and cut sizes, etc., obtained from nascent timber have to be treated as falling under general goods".

38. What must follow is that planks, rafters, cut sizes, etc., obtained from logs of wood according to the popular or commercial usage or the interpretation placed by the administration is "timber" within the meaning of item 63 of Schedule I to the Act.

45. Applying these principles thus decided to the facts of the present cases, we have no hesitation in reaching the conclusion that merely because planks, rafters and cut sizes, etc., are sawn or cut from logs of wood, they do not alter their character. They still continue to be raw materials which by themselves and in the same form cannot be directly put to use for construction purposes. The log of wood purchased by the timber merchant is merely cut or sawn to sizes for convenience sake and to make them acceptable to the customers. They do not in that process lose their character as timber. They retain the same character. What the merchants purchased in the form of log of wood was timber. What they sold to their customers in the shape of planks, rafters and cut sizes after processing them was also timber. The customers purchased timber. There is no other name suggested to such planks, rafters, etc., except timber.

47. It was a common ground that since timber is taxed at first point of sale, when the Forest Department sells the standing timber trees, is the first sale and the sale by the timber merchants in the form of planks, rafters and cut sizes, etc., cannot be taxed a second time, as item 63 permits levy of tax at the point of first sale. The timber having suffered tax once cannot be taxed again.

25. Supreme Court in the case of Commissioner Sales Tax Vs. Lal Kuwa Stone Crusher Pvt. Ltd. 2000 UPTC 463 (SC) has held that converting the stone from boulder to small pieces i.e. stone chip, gitti etc. will not amount to change the nature of the commodity and boulder will remain boulder and no tax can be imposed as such.

26. This Court in Kalptaru Agro Forest Enterprises Pvt. Ltd. Vs Commissioner Commercial Tax, UP Lucknow, 2016 NTN (Vol.61) 143 has held that every type of operation of the goods or finishing of goods would not amount to manufacture unless it results in emergence of a new commercial commodity.

27. In view of the aforesaid judgments the view emerges that no new commercial commodity come into existence which could be said to be a different commodity. Wooden log (timber) will remain wooden log (timber) in its original character even after cutting the same into sizes.

28. The Standing Counsel has relied upon the judgment of Om Trading (supra) wherein it has been held that the goods were admittedly purchased from an unregistered dealer without payment of any tax and after purchase, it was cut into sizes and new commodity was admittedly be manufactured as pulp wood. The tax was imposed under Section 3 AAAA of UP Trade Tax Act on the purchase of goods and thereafter when new commodity as pulp wood was sold, again tax was imposed.

29. The case-law cited by the learned Standing Counsel is not applicable to the facts of this case as no new commercial commodity come into existence, which has been sold by the revisionist.

30. The Standing Counsel has placed emphasis on the definition of Section 2(e1) of UP Trade Tax Act and has tried to convince the Court that in view of the definition, the manufacturing and cutting of wood into sizes amounts to new commercial commodity comes into existence.

31. The provision of section 2(e-1) of the Act is quoted below:-

"2(e-1): "Manufacture' means producing, making, mining, collecting, extracting, altering, ornamenting, finishing, or otherwise processing, treating or adapting any goods; but does not include such manufactures or manufacturing processes as may be prescribed;"

32. Section 2 (e-1) of the UP Trade Tax Act shows that the process of cutting is not being included within the definition of manufacturing. Thus the process of cutting the wood from different sizes and converting the wood log into plank, no new commercial commodity comes into existence. Timber remain timber and after cutting the timber it does not loose its original identity of timber and it does not undergo any physical/commercial or any kind of change. The identity of timber remains same. Thus the process of cutting and converting timber for log does not come under the definition of manufacturing as provided under Section 2 (e-1) of the UP Trade Tax Act.

33. In view of the aforesaid observation of the Hon'ble Apex Court as well as of this Court and other High Courts, the position of law, which emerges, is that after processing, some new commercial commodity must come into existence which may be identified differently from its original.

34. In the case in hand, timber logs were purchased and the same were sliced converting into veneer (chiran) and the same were sold by cutting the wood log converting into veneer (chiran), no new commercial commodity come into existence. Timber does not looses its original identity of timber and it remains the same.

35. In view of the aforesaid observation of the various Courts, the Tribunal was not justified in confirming imposition of tax at the time of purchase of timber (as purchase tax), which has not been challenged by the revisionist and has accepted even in the best judgement assessment, by which its turnover was enhanced, the veneer (chiran), which has been obtained after cutting wood log into small sizes and have been sold, cannot be taxed again.

36. The notification, as mentioned above, clearly shows that the subsequent notification came into existence with effect from 01.01.2000, by which the rate of tax was enhanced from 15% to 16%, which is not relevant for the assessment year in dispute.

37. Moreover, when only one set of tax can be levied by the State in the event the commodity remains the same. In the case in hand, the wood log, which was purchased by the revisionist as timber, remains the same even after obtaining veneer (chiran) as it does not looses its original identity of timber and it does not undergo any physical/commercial or any kind of change. Thus, the process of cutting and converting timber from wood log does not come under the definition of "Manufacturing" as provided under section 2(e-1) of the Act.

38. In the results, the impugned order is modified to that extent. The question of law is answered accordingly in favour of the assessee and against the department.

39. The revision is allowed.

The sale of coal was made without requisite Form-C as prescribed under the Act. Coal is a declared commodity u/s 14 (ia) and the rate of tax as per notification is 4%. Therefore, revisionist can be taxed at twice the rate applicable i.e. 8% and not beyond that. (Para 11, 12, 13)

Trade Tax Revision allowed. (E-4)

Present revision is against order dated 20.05.2010, passed by Commercial Tax Tribunal, Faizabad Bench, Faizabad.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Piyush Agrawal, J.)

1. The present revision has been filed by the assessee against the order dated 20.5.2010 passed by Commercial Tax Tribunal, Faizabad Bench, Faizabad in Second Appeal No. 120 of 2008 (Assessment Year 1999-2000) under Central Sales Tax Act (hereinafter referred to as the Act).

2. It has been averred that the revisionist is engaged in the business of manufacturing and sale of veneer (chiran) as well as trading of coal. The business premises of the revisionist was surveyed on 27.12.1999, in which some loose papers were found and it has also been found that the revisionist had made sale of coal without Form-C on the basis of which the tax was imposed @ 10 % on the sale of coal and best judgment assessment was made. Feeling aggrieved by the said order, the revisionist preferred a first appeal, which was partly allowed and taxable turnover was reduced and thereafter the second appeal was filed before the Tribunal. The Tribunal by the impugned has confirmed the tax on the sale of coal without Form-C @ 10 %. Hence the present revision has been filed.

3. During pendency of the present revision, the revisionist filed an amendment application, which was allowed by this Court by order dated 25.4.2019. The revisionist by way of amendment has raised the following questions of law for consideration of this Court:-

"1. Whether tribunal was justified in law to impose tax @ 10 % on sale of coal against the provisions of section 8 (2) of CST Act."

4. Heard Sri N.C. Mishra, learned counsel for the revisionist and learned Standing Counsel.

5. The counsel for the revisionist submits that he only want to press the aforesaid question of law. He argued that coal is special importance goods and declared commodity under Section 14 (ia) of the Act and as per Section 8 (2) (a) of the Act, no tax can be imposed twice the rate of tax levy on coal in Uttar Pradesh.

6. The Standing Counsel rebutting the submission of the learned counsel for the revisionist, has submits that the order passed by the tribunal is justified.

7. This Court has perused the Record. The relevant part of Section 8(2) (a) and Section 14(ia) of the Act is quoted below for ready reference:-

8. (1) .....

(2) The tax payable by any dealer on his turnover in so far as the turnover or any part thereof relates to the sale of goods in the course of inter-State trade or commerce not falling within sub-section (1)--

(a) in the case of declared goods, shall be calculated 3 [at twice the rate] applicable to the sale or purchase of such goods inside the appropriate State;

(b) in the case of goods other than declared goods, shall be calculated at the rate of 5 [ten per cent.] or at the rate applicable to the sale or purchase of such goods inside the appropriate State, 6 [whichever is higher; and

(c) in the case of goods, the sale or, as the case may be, the purchase of which is, under the sales tax law of the appropriate State, exempt from tax generally shall be nil, and for the purpose of making any such calculation under clause (a) or clause (b), any such dealer shall be deemed to be a dealer liable to pay tax under the sales tax law of the appropriate State, notwithstanding that he, in fact, may not be so liable under that law.

14. Certain goods to be of special importance in inter-State trade or commerce.--

It is hereby declared that the following goods are of special importance in inter-State trade or commerce:--

(ia) coal, including coke in all its forms, but excluding charcoal:

8. Bare perusal of Sections clearly shows that the declared goods sold without Form -C can be subjected to tax twice as the rate of tax applicable in the appropriate State. Section 14 (ia) of the Act also declared coal as a special importance goods i.e. coal is a declared goods.

9. By Notification- TIF-2-2372/XI-9 (251)/97-UP Act 15/48-order 98, dated 23.11.1998 the State of Uttar Pradesh has prescribed the rate of tax on the sale of coal @ 4 %. The aforesaid notification has been amended from time to time but the rate of tax on the sale of coal has remained unchanged.

10. The said fact in regard to rate of tax has not been disputed by the learned Standing Counsel.

11. The records reveals that the dispute in relation to sale of coal has admittedly been made without requisite Form -C as prescribed under the Act and it is not disputed that the coal is a declared commodity under Section 14 (ia) of the Act and rate of tax as per the above notification is only @ 4 % which is leviable in the State of Uttar Pradesh.

12. In view of above provision of the Act as well as rate of tax applicable at the relevant time, the tax on the sale of coal within the said limit was @ 4 %. In view of Section 8 (2) (a) of the Act, sale of coal made by the revisionist without Form-C can be taxed at twice as the rate applicable in State i.e. @ 4 +4 =8 % and not above that.

13. In such circumstances, the Tribunal was not justified in imposing the tax on the sale of coal without Form-C @ 10 % treating the same under Section 8 (2-b) as undeclared goods.

14. In the results, the impugned order is modified to that extent. The question of law is answered accordingly in favour of the assessee and against the department.

15. The revision is allowed.

A. Tax Law – Income Tax Act, 1961: Section 131, 132, 132(4A), 142(1), 158-BC, 250, 263 – Presumption provided u/s 132 (4A) is not in absolute terms but is subject to corroborative evidence.

The presumption u/s 132 (4A) is not provided in absolute terms and the word used is "may" and not "shall", as such the revenue has to corroborate the entries made in the seized documents before presuming that transactions so entered were made by the assessee. (Para 11, 12)

Appeal partly allowed. Matter remitted back to Tribunal. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. CIT, Kanpur Vs. Shadiram Ganga Prasad, 2010 UPTC 840 (Para 11)

Present appeal is against order dated 12.03.2010, passed by Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, New Delhi.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rohit Ranjan Agarwal, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 260-A of the Income Tax Act has been filed by the assessee challenging the order of the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal Delhi Bench "A" New Delhi (hereinafter called as ITAT) dated 12.03.2010, partly allowing the appeal of the department.

2. This appeal was admitted on 22.11.2010 on the following questions of law:

"1. Whether the presumption under Section 132(4A) of the Income Tax Act can be raised in the assessment proceeding?

2. Whether apart from from section 132(4A) of the Income Tax Act, the burden to explain the documents seized from the possession of the assessee during search is upon him and if it so, then has he discharge the burden."

3. Brief facts of case are that residential premises of the assessee was searched under Section 132 of Income Tax Act (hereinafter called as the 'Act') on 28.02.2000. Locker No. 64 Dena Bank, Abu Lane Branch, Meerut, which is in the joint name of assessee and his wife Smt. Aneeta Gupta, was also searched. During search, jewellery worth Rs.7.44 lakhs was found from the assessee, while jewellery worth Rs.13.55/- lakhs was found in the locker of assessee, out of which, jewellary worth Rs.8.87/- lakhs was seized.

4. Notice under Section 158-BC was issued to the assessee on 03.12.2001 for filing return of income. In compliance thereof, assessee filed return of income declaring NIL undisclosed income. Assessment for block period was completed on 27.03.2002 on undisclosed income. CIT, Kanpur on 23.05.2003 passed order under Section 263 of the Act. In compliance to the order under Section 263, notices under Section 142 (1) of the Act was issued on 25.08.2003 and questionnaire on 04.08.2003. In compliance of the said notice, assessee appeared through his legal representatives and filed his detailed reply. The Assessing Officer passed order under Section 158-BC read with Section 263 of the Act, assessing the undisclosed income at Rs.65,33,302/- as against the declared undisclosed income of NIL.

5. Aggrieved by the said order, assessee filed appeal before CIT (Appeals) Meerut under Section 250 of the Act on 20.01.2009. CIT (Appeals) Meerut partly allowed the appeal of the assessee.

6. Against said order, the revenue filed appeal before ITAT on two grounds, firstly, that CIT (A) had erred in law and fact in deleting the addition of Rs.51,432/- made by A.O. on account of undisclosed jewellery. The second ground was for deletion made by CIT (A) of Rs.5,58,870/- on account of papers found during search from premises of the assessee, and the CIT had overlooked the provisions of Section 132 (4A) of the Act. The ITAT while partly allowing the appeal of revenue rejected the first ground of appeal taken by revenue and upheld the order passed by CIT (A), while deciding ground no. 2 it reversed the order of the CIT (A) and restored that of A.O.

7. Sri Parv Agarwal, learned counsel appearing for the assessee submitted that Tribunal while deciding the appeal failed to consider that revenue did not establish any connection between the entries recorded in loose papers found during search with the books of accounts. Further, the assessee on 29.11.2004 had made written submission that he does not have any knowledge about persons mentioned in the papers, as well as categorically denied the transaction. It was also submitted that the assessee denied both the papers before DDI investigation in his statement recorded under Section 131, which is part of the record at page 42 of paper book.

8. It was also contended that Tribunal while reversing the finding of CIT (A) has only considered the three judgments relied upon by First Appellate Authority, and it being the last fact finding authority did not record any finding as to how the papers found during search corroborated with the findings recorded by the A.O., and on the basis of presumption available to the revenue under Section 132 (4A) reversed the orders of CIT (A).

9. Per contra Sri Krishna Agarawal, learned counsel appearing for the department submitted that the assessee failed to rebut the presumption under Section 132 (4A) regarding correctness of the documents found and seized during search. He further contended that the documents relied upon by A.O. was found during search, as such the Tribunal had rightly reversed the finding of CIT (A) and restored the order of A.O., as far as addition of Rs.5,58,870/- is concerned which was made on account of papers found from the premises of assessee during search.

10. We have heard counsel for the parties and perused the material on record. It is not in dispute that two loose papers were found during search from the premises of assessee, however, during block assessment proceedings, the assessee had denied the documents and statement was recorded by Deputy Director of Investigation, he had submitted that he had no concern with the said documents, so seized. Further, the A.O. while passing the assessment order had only on basis of the loose papers found during search made addition to the undisclosed income of assessee while the entries of said papers remained uncorroborated.

11. This Court, in the case of CIT, Kanpur Vs. Shadiram Ganga Prasad, 2010 UPTC 840 has held that the loose parchas found during search at the most could lead to a presumption, but the department cannot draw inference unless the entries made in the documents, so found are corroborated by evidence.

12. As, Section 132(4A) of the Act provides that any books of account, documents, money, bullion, jewellary or other valuable articles or things found in possession or in control of any person in course of search may be presumed to be belonging to such person, and further, contents of such books of account and documents are true. But this presumption is not provided in absolute terms and the word used is "may" and not "shall", as such the revenue has to corroborate the entries made in the seized documents before presuming that transactions so entered were made by the assessee. Presumption so provided is not in absolute terms but is subject to corroborative evidence.

13. In the present case, Tribunal only on basis of presumption under Section 132 (4A) of the Act, reversed the finding of CIT (A), without recording any finding as to how the loose sheets which were recovered during search, were linked with the assessee. In the absence of corroborative evidence, the Tribunal was not justified in reversing the finding by the CIT (Appeals).

14. In view of the above, we are of the considered view that order passed by Tribunal reversing the finding of CIT (A) in regard to deletion of addition made of Rs.5,58,870/- and restoring the order of A.O. on mere presumption is unsustainable. The order dated 12th March, 2010 is set aside to that extent, and the matter is remitted back to Tribunal to decide afresh, as far as addition of Rs.5,58,870/- is concerned, within a period of three months from today.

15. The appeal stands partly allowed.

Commercial Tax Revision allowed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. A.V. Fernandez Vs. State of Kerala, AIR 1957 SC 657 (Para 12)

Present revisions are against order dated 11.04.2008, passed by Commercial Tax Tribunal, Meerut.

1. The present revisions have been filed by the assessee against common order of the Tribunal dated 11.4.2008 passed in Second Appeals No.254/04, 255/04 and 256/04 for A.Y. 2001-02, 2002-03 and 2003-04 respectively, by which the revenue's appeals have been allowed and the order passed by the first appeal authority, deleting the penalties under Section 8-D(6) of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 (hereinafter referred to as the Act), has been reversed.

2. Undisputedly, facts of the case are that the assessee is a university established under the Uttar Pradesh Evam Prodyogik Vishwavidalaya Adhiniyam 2000 (U.P. Act No.19 of 2000). During the assessment years in question, the assessee awarded contracts, for construction of college and residence for staff etc., to three contractors. It made payments to them without making any deduction of tax at source. This became subject matter of penalty proceedings under Section 8-D (6) of the Act. According to the assessing officer, the assessee was obliged to make deduction of tax at source under Section 8-D (6) of the Act. Since entire payments were made without necessary deductions, the assessee was visited with penalty orders for the three assessment years.

3. The amount of penalties apart, the main issue raised by the assessee was that it was not liable to make deduction of tax at source and therefore, it did not infringe the law. That submission found favour with the first appeal authority which deleted the penalty. However, the tribunal has reversed the findings and restored the penalties.

4. Heard Sri Amarendra Pratap Singh, learned counsel for the revisionist-assessee and Sri B.K. Pandey, learned counsel for the respondent-revenue.

5. The present revision has been pressed on the following ground:-

(i) Whether penalty under Section 8-D (6) could have been imposed on the assessee though it was not obliged to make deduction of tax at source under notification No. 2401 dated 27.4.1987?"

6. Notification No.2401 dated 27.4.1987 reads as below:

"In exercise of the powers under sub-section (1) of Section 8-D of the U.P. Sales Tax Act, 1948 (U.P. Act No. XV of 1948). The Governor is pleased to notify in the public interest that the provisions of the aforesaid section shall not apply to a building contract other than that between a contractor and

(a) the Central Government or any State Government or

(b) any local authority; or

(c) any corporation or undertaking established or constituted by or under a Central Act or State Act; or

(d) any company; or

(e) any co-operative society or other society club, firm or other association of persons, whether incorporated or not."

7. Clearly, the applicability of Section 8-D (1) and therefore, requirement to make deduction of tax at source, had been created specifically with respect to payments made under contracts awarded by specified persons, namely, the Central Government, State Government, local authorities, a corporation or undertaking established under a Central or State Act or a company or a co-operative society, or club or firm or other association of person, whether incorporated or not.

8. In the first place, a university established under a separate enactment was not specifically mentioned or included as a person made liable to comply with Section 8-D (1) of the Act. Second, separate categories of persons having been specified under each clause (a) to (e) of the aforesaid notifications and thus, made liable to make deduction of tax at source, all other persons not so specified, would stand necessarily excluded from the requirement to make deduction of tax at source.

9. Though the assessee is a university, established under a State enactment, clearly, it is not specified under the notification in question and therefore, it is not obliged to make deduction of tax at source. The fact that there may be some differences in the status of the assessee university as compared to the Aligarh Muslim University, would not be decisive, inasmuch as, the applicability of notification No. 2401 dated 27.4.1987 did not hinge on the constitutional or other status of the university (such as the Aligarh Muslim University).

10. Keeping in mind the different category of persons specified under the aforesaid notification, the assessee clearly does not fall under the description of persons of clauses (a), (b), (d) or (e). While clause (c) does appear to include corporations and undertakings established or undertakings constituted by or under a Central or State Act, however, it cannot be read to include within its ambit a university that primarily is a center for higher education. Though not defined under the Act, it is a specie apart from normal or usual corporate entities. It derives its identity and character, different and distinct from statutory corporations by it's activities, privileges and academic content. Halsbury's Laws of England (4th Edition) describes 'Universities' as:

"Para 256. General. A university is the whole body of teachers and scholars engaged, at a particular place, in giving and receiving instruction in the higher branches of learning; such persons associated together as a society or corporate body, with definite organization and acknowledged powers and privileges (especially that of conferring degrees), and forming an institution for the promotion of education in the higher or more important branches of learning; also, the colleges, buildings and other property belonging to such a body. Although the institutions to which it refers are readily identifiable, precise and accurate definition is difficult. The essential feature of a university seems to be that it was incorporated as such by the sovereign power.

Other attributes of a university appear to be the admission of students from all parts of the world, a plurality of masters, the teaching of one at least of the higher faculties, namely, theology, law or philosophy (which in some definitions are regarded as identical) and medicine, provision for residence and the right to confer degrees, but possession of these attributes will not make an institution a university in the absence of any express intention of the sovereign power to make it one. A university involves the relation of tutor and pupil; it is charged with the supervision and upbringing of the pupil under tuition. Incorporation was anciently effected by papal grant or charter and later by royal charter or Act of Parliament.

The practice adopted in the case of the most recent foundations is to incorporate the university by royal charter, to which there is annexed a schedule containing the original statutes of the university, and thereafter to obtain the passing of a local Act of Parliament vesting in the university the property and liabilities of any institution which it replaces and making other necessary provisions.

A copy of any application for a charter for the foundation of any college or university which is referred by the Queen in Council for the report of a committee of the Privy Council must be laid before Parliament, together with a copy of the draft charter, for not less than 30 days before the committee reports upon it.

The functions of the Secretary of State for Education and Science, in relation to universities in Wales, have not been transferred to the Secretary of State for Wales."

11. Thus, in the modern sense of the term, departed from it's origin, it is difficult to treat universities such as the assessee as a corporation or undertaking, especially in the context of the aforesaid taxing notification, that apparently seeks to identify different categories of persons, made liable to deduct tax at source. Used in that sense, the words corporation and undertaking clearly refer to status of the person as a corporation or an undertaking only, while university is primarily seen and understood as an educational institution and not a corporation or undertaking.

12. Being a provision creating liability under a taxing status, it has to be strictly read and no other rule of interpretation is required to be invoked. In that regard in A.V. Fernandez Vs. State of Kerala A.I.R. 1957 S.C. 657, it was held-

"29. It is no doubt true that in construing fiscal statutes and in determining the liability of a subject to tax one must have regard to the strict letter of the law and not merely to the spirit of the statute or the substance of the law. If the Revenue satisfies the Court that the case falls strictly within the provisions of the law, the subject can be taxed. If, on the other hand, the case is not covered within the four corners of the provisions of the taxing statute, no tax can be imposed by inference or by analogy or by trying to probe into the intentions of the legislature and by considering what was the substance of the matter."

13. Inasmuch as, the assessee being a university does not naturally or freely fall within the description of any of the persons specified under Clause (a) (e) of the Notification No. 2401 dated 27.4.1987. No attempt is to be made to force it to fit into description of any person made liable under the notification. Hence, the assessee was never required to make deduction of tax at source on payment made to its contractors. Therefore, no penalty was leviable on that count.

14. In view of the above, question of law is answered in the affirmative i.e. in favour of revisionist-assessee and against the respondent-revenue. The revision is allowed.

1. The subject matter of challenge in the instant writ proceeding is an order dated 2nd August, 2019, of the Excise Commissioner, Prayagraj, Uttar Pradesh [as communicated by the Deputy Excise Commissioner (Licensing)].

2. By the impugned order, the Excise Commissioner, Prayagraj, Uttar Pradesh, has allowed transfer of a foreign liquor shop belonging to the private respondent no. 8 from one site to another. The site where the shop is sought to be transferred is a site where the petitioner has an existing licence to sell foreign liquor. The writ petitioner, feeling aggrieved, has thus filed the writ petition.

3. For convenience, the impugned order dated 2nd August, 2019, issued by respondent no. 3 is set out hereinbelow:-

5. In order to examine as to whether the impugned order dated 2nd August, 2019, requires intervention by the writ Court one needs to consider the relevant provision of the Uttar Pradesh Number and Location of Excise Shops Rules, 1968. The relevant provision, in the facts of the instant case, is sub rule (2) of Rule 5 of Uttar Pradesh Number And Location of Excise Shops Rules, 1968, which reads as follows:-

"(2). No change in the site of any shop or sub-shop shall, except for very cogent reasons to be recorded in writing, shall be permitted during the currency of a settlement. The location of all shops and sub-shops shall be clearly defined at settlement in order to prevent any shifting of sites."

6. The above quoted sub rule makes it clear that there cannot be any change in the site of any shop or sub-shop except for "very cogent reasons" and that too, such reasons are required "to be recorded in writing". Therefore, we need to consider, at first, as to whether reasons have been recorded in writing and, secondly, whether those reasons are very cogent reasons or not.

7. The impugned order dated 2nd August, 2019, reveals the following reason for the purpose of allowing the site of the foreign liquor shop belonging to the private respondent no.8 to be changed:-

"संदर्भित पत्रान्तर्गत प्रेषित प्रस्ताव एवं किये गये अनुरोध पर विचारोपरान्त आबकारी आयुक्त, उत्तर प्रदेश द्वारा आदेश दिनांक 02.08.2019 के अन्तर्गत जनपद की 01 विदेशी मदिरा दुकान को अधोलिखित तालिका के कालम –3 से कालम–06 के स्थल पर स्थानान्तरित किये जाने की अनुमति निम्न प्रतिबंधो के अधीन प्रदान कर दी है:.

"On consideration of the proposal forwarded vide the letter in question and the request made therein, the Excise Commissioner, Uttar Pradesh, vide order dated 02.08.2019 has permitted for shifting of 01 English Wine Shop of the district from the place mentioned in column-3 to the place mentioned in column 6 of the table given below subject to the following restriction:-"

8. It is palpably evident from a plain reading of the above sentence that the Excise Commissioner, Prayagraj, Uttar Pradesh, has merely referred to the proposal of the District Magistrate, Bijnor, dated 29th July, 2019, as a basis for consideration of change of site of the foreign liquor shop. On the face of it, this sentence clearly reflects non-application of mind on the part of the Excise Commissioner, Prayagraj, Uttar Pradesh, as well as the respondent no. 3 (under whose signature the impugned order dated 2nd August 2019 has been communicated). It cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be construed as a "very cogent reason" which is a condition required to be followed for the purpose of permitting change in the site of any shop or sub-shop.

9. At this stage, we must also take notice of the proposal dated 29th July, 2019, which was issued by the District Magistrate, Bijnor. This proposal of the District Magistrate, Bijnor, also reveals non-application of mind inasmuch as the District Magistrate, Bijnor, has merely parroted the observations made by the District Excise Officer, Binjor. The District Magistrate, Bijnor, never applied his independent mind while making such a proposal which may have an adverse effect upon the existing business of the writ petitioner. That apart in any event, even the proposal of the District Magistrate, Bijnor, dated 29th July, 2019, is bereft of "very cogent reasons" being the sine qua non for the purpose of allowing change in the site of any shop or sub-shop selling foreign liquor in the State of Uttar Pradesh.

10. For reasons stated above, we have no hesitation to set aside not only the order dated 2nd August, 2019, but also the proposal of the District Magistrate, Bijnor, dated 29th July, 2019, which forms the basis of issuance of the impugned order dated 2nd August, 2019.

11. The District Magistrate, Bijnor, shall examine the matter afresh and communicate his decision to the Excise Commissioner within a period of three weeks from date. The Excise Commissioner, Prayagraj, Uttar Pradesh, thereafter, shall take a decision in the matter strictly in accordance with the provision as contained under sub rule (2) of Rule 5 of Uttar Pradesh Number And Location of Excise Shops Rules, 1968, after giving adequate opportunity of hearing to all concerned including the writ petitioner and the private respondent no. 8.

12. The entire exercise, in terms of this order, shall be completed by the Excise Commissioner, Prayagarj, Uttar Pradesh, being the respondent no. 2, as expeditiously as possible, preferably within a period of three weeks, but not later than four weeks from the date of receipt of the decision from the office of the respondent no. 4, being the District Magistrate, Bijnor.

13. The writ petition is allowed accordingly.

A. Tax Law – Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017: Section 140(3), Rules 117, 118, 119, 120-A

Every registered person who has submitted a declaration electronically in Form G.S.T. T.R.A.N – 1 within the period specified in Rule 117 or Rule 118 or Rule 119 or Rule 120 is allowed to revise such declaration once and submit the revised declaration in Form G.S.T T.R.A.N – 1 electronically on the common portal, but cannot go beyond the time-frame provided under Rule 117 of the Act of 2017. The period of extension has been statutorily circumscribed at 90 days and that too is possible only on recommendation of the Council. (Para 7, 8)

The Court refused to interfere but held it open for the Council to take a decision in the matter.

Writ Petition disposed of. (E-4)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Biswanath Somadder, J.)

1. The writ petitioner - company has approached this Court essentially seeking its intervention to allow the writ petitioner to file a revised declaration in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1 or manually accept the same to enable the writ petitioner - company to avail the credit pertaining to SAD (Special Additional Duty) amounting to Rs. 22,51,380.21/-; which, according to the writ petitioner was not claimed by it, inadvertently.

2. The question as to whether we can issue a writ in the nature of mandamus as prayed for can be answered if we look into the applicable provisions of law in the facts of the instant case. However, before we do so, certain facts relevant to the issue before us are required to be taken note of.

3. The writ petitioner intends to avail the credit pertaining to SAD (Special Additional Duty) amounting to Rs. 22,51,380.21/- in respect of goods held in stock as on 30th June, 2017. It is the admitted position that the writ petitioner has already submitted FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1 on 10th October, 2017, to carry forward the credits available to it as on 30th June, 2017. By a letter dated 28th March, 2019, addressed to the Hon'ble Chairman, Goods and Services Tax Council, Government of India, the writ petitioner requested the Council to consider its case and to allow the writ petitioner to re-submit FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1 within the extended period in order to enable the writ petitioner - company to carry forward the credit of SAD amount of Rs. 22,51,380.21/- in relation to stock of goods lying as on 30th June, 2017, under the transitional provisions of section 140(3) of the Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017. Relevant portion of the letter dated 28th March, 2019, is reproduced hereinbelow;-

"In view of the above, we request the council to consider our case and allow us the extended period to re-submit Form GST TRAN-1 in order to enable us to carry forward the credit of SAD amounting to Rs.22,51,380.21/- in relation to stock of goods lying as on 30.06.2017 under the transitional provisions of Section 140(3) of CGST Act. We would again like to submit that as we were entitled to carry forward the credit of the said amount of SAD under the transitional provisions, such substantive benefit should not be denied to us due to a procedural lapse."

4. However, in spite of the above letter being on record, the writ petitioner has now come forward before this Court claiming that it is the Commissioner, Commercial Tax, U.P. who has the power to extend the time period for the purpose of submitting a revised declaration in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1.

5. The first of the relevant rules which we need to take notice of in the facts of the instant case is Rule 120-A of the Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017, which reads as follows;-

"[120-A. [Revision of declaration in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N.-1] - Every registered person who has submitted a declaration electronically in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N.-1 within the period specified in Rule 117, Rule, 118, Rule 119 or Rule 120 may revise such declaration once and submit the revised declaration in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N.-1 electronically on the Common Portal within the period specified in the said rules or such further period as may be extended by the Commissioner in this behalf.]"

6. The other rule which we need to take notice of is Rule 117 of the Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017, which reads as follows;

"117. Tax or duty credit carried forward under any existing law or on goods held in stock on the appointed day.-(1) Every registered person entitled to take credit of input tax* under Section 140 shall, within ninety days of the appointed day, submit a declaration electronically in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N.-1*, duly signed, on the Common Portal specifying therein, separately, the amount of input tax credit [x x x] to which he is entitled under the provisions of the said section:*

Provided that the Commissioner may, on the recommendations of the Council, extend the period of ninety days by a further period not exceeding ninety days:

Provided that in the case of a claim under sub-section (1) of Section 140, the application shall specify separately-

(i) the value of claims under Section 3, sub-section (3) of Section 5, Sections 6 and 6A and sub-section (8) of Section 8 of the Central Sales Tax Act, 1956 made by the applicant; and

(ii) the serial number and value of declarations in Forms C or F and certificates in Forms E or H or Form I specified in Rule 12 of the Central Sales Tax (Registration and Turnover) Rules, 1957 submitted by the applicant in support of the claims referred to in sub-clause (I);

[(1A) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rule (1), the Commissioner may, on the recommendations of the Council, extend the date for submitting the declaration electronically in FORM GST TRAN-1 by a further period not beyond 31st March, 2019, in respect of registered persons who could not submit the said declaration by the due date on account of technical difficulties on the common portal and in respect of whom the Council has made a recommendation for such extension.]

(2) Every declaration under sub-rule (1) shall,-

(a) in the case of a claim under sub-section (2) of Section 140, specify separately the following particulars in respect of every item of capital goods as on the appointed day-

(i) the amount of tax or duty availed or utilised by way of input tax credit under each of the existing laws till the appointed day; and

(ii) the amount of tax or duty yet to be availed or utilised by way of input tax credit under each of the existing laws till the appointed day;

(b) in the case of a claim under sub-section (3) or Clause (b) of sub-section (4) or sub-section (6) or sub-section (8) of Section 140, specify separately the details of stock held on the appointed day;

(c) in the case of a claim under sub-section (5) of Section 140, furnish the following details, namely:

(i) the name of the supplier, serial number and date of issue of the invoice by the supplier or any document on the basis of which credit of input tax was admissible under the existing law;

(ii) the description and value of the goods or services;

(iii) the quantity in case of goods and the unit or unit quantity code thereof;

(iv) the amount of eligible taxes and duties or, as the case may be, the value added tax [or entry tax] charged by the supplier in respect of the goods or services; and

(v) the date on which the receipt of goods or services is entered in the books of account of the recipient.

(3) The amount of credit specified in the application in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N.-1 shall be credited to the electronic credit ledger of the applicant maintained in FORM G.S.T. P.M.T.-2 on the Common Portal.

(4)(a)(i) A registered person, holding stock of goods which have suffered tax at the first point of their sale in the State and the subsequent sales of which are not subject to tax in the State availing credit in accordance with the proviso to sub-section (3) of Section 140 shall be allowed to avail input tax credit on goods held in stock on the appointed day in respect of which he is not in possession of any document evidencing payment of value added tax.

(ii) The credit referred to in sub-clause (i) shall be allowed at the rate of sixty per cent. on such goods which attract State tax at the rate of nine per cent, or more and forty per cent, for other goods of the State tax applicable on supply of such goods after the appointed date and shall be credited after the State tax payable on such supply has been paid:

Provided that where integrated tax is paid on such goods, the amount of credit shall be allowed at the rate of thirty per cent and twenty per cent, respectively of the said tax;

(iii) The scheme shall be available for six tax periods from the appointed date.

(b) The credit of State tax shall be availed subject to satisfying the following conditions, namely:

(i) such goods were not wholly exempt from tax under the (Name of the State) Value Added Tax Act; ….

(ii) the document for procurement of such goods is available with the registered person;

[(iii) the registered person availing of this scheme and having furnished the details of stock held by him in accordance with the provisions of clause (b) of sub-rule (2), submits a statement in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N.-2 by 31st March, 2018, or within such period as extended by the Commissioner, on the recommendations of the Council, for each of the six tax periods during which the scheme is in operation indicating therein, the details of supplies of such goods effected during the tax period:]

[Provided that the registered persons filing the declaration in FORM GST TRAN-1 in accordance with sub-rule (1A), may submit the statement in FORM GST TRAN-2 by 30th April, 2019.]

(iv) the amount of credit allowed shall be credited to the electronic credit ledger of the applicant maintained in FORM G.S.T. P.M.T.-2 on the Common Portal; and

(v) the stock of goods on which the credit is availed is so stored that it can be easily identified by the registered person."

7. A conjoint reading of the above two rules clearly reveals that every registered person who has submitted a declaration electronically in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1 within the period specified in Rule 117 or Rule 118 or Rule 119 or Rule 120 is allowed to revise such declaration once and submit the revised declaration in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1 electronically on the common portal, "within the period specified in the said rules or such further period as may be extended by the Commissioner in this behalf." This further period - as may be extended by the Commissioner -which is provided under Rule 120-A, therefore, cannot go beyond the time-frame provided under Rule 117 of the Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017. The period of extension has been statutorily circumscribed at 90 days and that too is possible only on the recommendation of the Council.

8. If we are to assume that the Commissioner while exercising his powers under Rule 120-A of the Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017 can extend the time period for the purpose of filing of a revised declaration by a registered person in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1 for an unlimited or an indefinite period, it would simply mean that any registered person can avail the benefit of filing a revised declaration in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1 for an unlimited or indefinite period of time after submitting a declaration electronically in FORM G.S.T. T.R.A.N-1 under Rule 117 of the Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017. That surely could not have been the purpose and intention of the legislature. Rather, the legislature in its wisdom has noticed Rule 117, Rule 118, Rule 119 and Rule 120, while framing Rule 120-A of the Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017. The first proviso attached to Rule 117 of the Uttar Pradesh Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017, reads as follows;-

"Provided that the Commissioner may, on the recommendations of the Council, extend the period of ninety days by a further period not exceeding ninety days."

9. In such circumstances as stated above, a writ in the nature of mandamus, as prayed for, cannot be granted by this Court. However, it is open to the Council to take a decision in the matter in the light of the writ petitioner's letter dated 28th March, 2019.

10. The writ petition is accordingly, disposed of.

A. Constitution of India: Article 226; United Provinces Excise Act, 1910: Section 11(1) – Alternative remedy

S.11(1) provides statutory appeal in respect of the impugned order in which petitioner's licence to operate a country liquor shop has been cancelled. In absence of any demonstration of palpable arbitrariness, mala fides or procedural impropriety, Court cannot exercise discretionary jurisdiction u/Art. 226. (Para 5, 6, 7)

Writ Petition disposed of. (E-4)

Present writ petition is against order dated 25.10.2019, issued by District magistrate/LicensingAuthority, Prayagraj.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Biswanath Somadder,J. & Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot,J.)

1. This writ petition has been taken out by one Phool Chandra, seeking this Court's interference in respect of an order dated 25th October, 2019, issued by the District Magistrate / Licensing Authority, Prayagraj, whereby the petitioner's licence to operate a country liquor shop stood cancelled. A further prayer has been made by the writ petitioner to restore his license so that he is allowed to run his country liquor shop, which is situated in village - Sithauli, Police Station - Utraon, District - Prayagraj, till 31st March, 2020.

2. A report in the form of an affidavit was called for in terms of our order dated 25th November, 2019, from the concerned respondent authority to enable the said authority to respond to the specific allegations as sought to be made in the writ petition. Such report in the form of an affidavit has been filed by the District Excise Officer, Prayagraj, which is on record.

3. A plain reading of the report reveals the following facts which appear at paragraphs 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 therein :-

"4. That on 12.08.2019, a surprise inspection of the country liquor shop Sitholi was done. During the inspection 33 duplicate quarters of Windies Lime brand were recovered from the shop in the presence of the Salesman of the Shop Hariom Pal S/o Ram Sumer Pal but his relative Kamlesh Pal is supplying this duplicate liquor. The Salesman of the shop was taken in the custody and an F.I.R. was lodged in Police Station Utraon, Prayagraj. Sample of the recovered spurious liquor were drawn and sent to Assistant Excise Commissioner, Radico Khetan Distillery, Rampur for laboratory testing.

5. That by an order of District Magistrate / Licencing Authority dated 14.08.2019 the license of the Country Liquor Shop Sitholi was suspended and Show Cause Notice was served to petitioner. In the interest of the revenue the shop was resettled on temporary daily basis by tender offer method.

6. That the laboratory testing report proves that the liquor recovered from Country Liquor Shop Sitholi was duplicate liquor as Liquor, Bottle, Cap seal, Label, QR Code all were found duplicate. A copy of lab report is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 1 to this affidavit.

7. That by selling Spurious Liquor, the petitioner was not causing loss to Government Revenue but was also putting health hazards to consumers of his shop. This may kindly noted that in many districts of Uttar Pradesh more that 150 people have died by consuming spurious liquor in recent months.

8. That the representation 20.08.2019 filed by the petitioner was found unsatisfactory and after receipt of Laboratory Report, in the interest of public health and life safety as also for the protection of the government revenue, the Licencing Authority cancelled licence of the petitioner's shop by Order dated 25.10.2019."

4. Apart from the above statements made by the District Excise Officer, Prayagraj, we find from a reading of the impugned order dated 25th October, 2019, that the writ petitioner was, in fact, given an opportunity of hearing by the District Magistrate / Licensing Authority, Prayagraj, and he participated in the adjudicatory process by responding to the said notice. The following sentence in the impugned order dated 25th October, 2019, is a clear pointer in this direction:-

"उक्त नोटिस के

English translation:-

"In response to the said notice, reply was made available by the licensee.

5. Section 11(1) of the United Provinces Excise Act, 1910, provides for statutory appeal in respect of the impugned order dated 25th October, 2019.

6. In the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the writ petitioner - in the absence of any demonstration of palpable arbitrariness or mala fides or perversities (all of which could have vitiated the due process of law being followed) and particularly in the absence of any procedural impropriety, ought to have approached the statutory appellate authority instead of rushing to the writ Court.

7. We are, therefore, not inclined to exercise our discretionary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and leave it open to the writ petitioner to proceed in accordance with law.

8. However, we wish to observe that in the event, statutory appeal is filed within a period of fortnight from date, the appellate authority is requested to dispose of the appeal as expeditiously as possible.

9. The writ petition stands disposed of accordingly.

A. Civil Law - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 - Waqf Act, 1995 - Section 83(9) & Limitation Act, 1963 - Article 137 - The petition is an application falling within the scope of Article 137 of the 1963 Limitation Act - The alteration of the division as well as the change in the collocation of words in Article 137 of the Limitation Act, 1963 compared with Article 181 of the 1908 Limitation Act shows that applications contemplated under Article 137 are not applications confined to the Code of Civil Procedure- Article 137 of the Limitation Act is applicable on proceedings held under any Special Act for which no period of limitation is provided.

In the present case, the revision is filed under Section 83(9) of the Waqf Act for which no period of limitation is provided in the said Act. Article 137 of the Limitation Act would be applicable to such revisions filed under Section 83(9) of the Waqf Act, 1995 and, therefore, limitation for filing such revision is three years and not three months.

Civil Revision allowed. (E-6)

(Order on application for Condonation of Delay in filing Revision-C.M. Application No.81056 of 2019)

1. Present revision is filed under Section 83(9) of the Waqf Act, 1995.

2. Office has submitted a report dated 16.07.2019 noting that revision is filed beyond a period of 90 days and, hence, the same is barred by the provisions of Limitation Act, 1963.

3. Counsel for revisionist submits that the revision is filed within a period of three years and, therefore, same is maintainable under Article 137 of the Limitation Act, 1963. Counsel for revisionist submits that the Waqf Act is a special Act and, therefore, it is not the period of 90 days but the period of three years available as per Article 137 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act, 1963.

4. Counsel for opposite party states that the report submitted by the registry is correct and the Article 137 is not applicable.

5. The law with regard to applicability of Article 137 of the Limitation Act to a Special Act has been considered in number of cases by the Supreme Court. Some of them are:-

(i) Ganesan represented by its Power Agent G. Rukmani Ganeshn Vs. Commissioner, Tamil Nadu Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Board and Others reported in (2019) 7 SCC 108. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment read as follow:-

"33. In The Kerala State Electricity Board, Trivandrum Vs. T.P. Kunhaliumma, (1976) 4 SCC 634, this Court had occasion to consider applicability of Article 137 of Limitation Act, application filed under Section 16 of the Telegraphs Act, 1885. This Court in the above case differing with the view taken by the two Judge Bench in Athani?s case held that application under Article 137 of Limitation Act is not confined to application contemplated by or under the C.P.C. However, the application contemplated under Telegraphs Act has to be an application to a Court. In paragraphs 18 and 22 following has been laid held:

1963 Limitation Act. The words ?any other application? under Article 137 cannot be said on the principle of ejusdem generis to be applications under the Civil Procedure Code other than those mentioned in Part I of the third division. Any other application under Article 137 would be petition or any application under any Act. But it has to be an application to a court for the reason that Section 4 and 5 of the 1963 Limitation Act speak of expiry of prescribed period when court is closed and extension of prescribed period if applicant or the appellant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal or making the application during such period.

22. The conclusion we reach is that Article 137 of the 1963 Limitation Act will apply to any petition or application filed under any Act to a civil court. With respect we differ from the view taken by the two judge bench of this Court in Athani Municipal Council case and hold that Article 137 of the 1963 Limitation Actis not confined to applications contemplated by or under the Code of Civil Procedure. The petition in the present case was to the District Judge as a court. The petition was one contemplated by the Telegraph Act for judicial decision. The petition is an application falling within the scope of Article 137 of the 1963 Limitation Act.?

34. In the above case since the application under the Telegraphs Act was filed before the Court, this Court held that Article 137 of the Limitation Act was applicable. It is to be noticed that in the above mentioned cases this Court held that applications contemplated under Limitation Act are applications to a Court but in the above cases the Court did not refer to Section 29(2) of the Limitation Act."

(ii) The Kerala State Electricity Board, Trivandrum Vs. T.P. Kunhaliumma reported in AIR 1977 Supreme Court 282. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment reads as:-

"10. In Nityananda M. Joshi and Ors. v. Life Insurance Corporation of India and Ors. the appellants filed applications against the respondent under Section 33C(2) of the Industrial Disputes Act for computing in terms of money, the benefit of holidays and for recovering the amount. The Labour Court dismissed the applications in so far as the claim was for a period beyond three years on the ground that the applications were barred under Article 137 of the Limitation Act. In Nityananda Joshi's case (supra) this Court held as follows : Article 137 contemplates applications to ordinary courts. Section 4 of the Limitation Act provides for the contingency when the prescribed period for any application expires on a holiday and the only contingency contemplated is "when the court is closed". Further under Section 5 of the Limitation Act only a court is enabled to admit an application after the prescribed period has expired if the court is satisfied that the applicant had sufficient cause for not preferring the application. The Labour Court is not a court within the meaning of the Limitation Act.

18. The alteration of the division as well as the change in the collocation of words in Article 137 of the Limitation Act 1963 compared with Article 181 of the 1908 Limitation Act shows that applications contemplated under Article 137 are not applications confined to the CPC. In the 1908 Limitation Act there was no division between applications in specified cases and other application as in the 1963 Limitation Act. The words "any other application" under Article 137 cannot be said on the principle of ejusdem generis to the applications under the Civil Procedure Code other than those mentioned in Part I of the third division. Any other application under Article 137 would be petition or any application under any Act. But it has to be an application to a court for the reason that Section 4 and 5 of the 1963 Limitation Act speak of expiry of prescribed period when Court is closed and extension of prescribed period if applicant or the appellant satisfies the court and he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal or making the application during such period."

(iii) Addl. Spl. Land Acquisition Officer, Bangalore Vs. Thakoredas, Major and others reported in (1997) 11 Supreme Court Cases 412. Paragraph-3 of the said judgment reads as:-

"3. Admittedly, the cause of action for seeking a reference had arisen on the date of service of the award under Section 12(2) of the Act. Within 90 days from the date of the service of the notice, the respondents made the application requesting the Deputy Commissioner to refer the cases to the Civil Court under Section 18. Under the amended Sub-section 3(a) of the Act, the Deputy Commissioner shall, within 90 days from September 1, 1970 make reference under Section 18 to the Civil Court which he failed to do. Consequently by operation of Sub-section 3(b) with the expiry of the aforestated 90 days, the cause of action had accrued to the respondents to make an application to the Civil Court with a prayer to direct the Deputy Commissioner to make a reference. There is no period of limitation prescribed in Sub-section 3(b) to make that application but it should be done within limitation prescribed by the Schedule to the Limitation Act. Since no Article expressly prescribed the limitation to make such application, the residuary Article under Article 137 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act gets attracted. Thus, it could be seen that in the absence of any special period of limitation prescribed by Clause (b) of Sub-section (3) of Section 18 of the Act, the application should have been made within three years from the date of expiry of 90 days prescribed in Section 18(3)(b) i.e. the date on which cause of action had accrued to the respondent-claimant. Since the applications had been admittedly made beyond three years, it was clearly barred by limitation. Since, the High Court relied upon the case in Municipal Corporation of Athani , which has stood overruled, the Order of the High Court is unsustainable. The appeals are accordingly allowed, and the application made to the Court by the respondent stands rejected."

(iv) Raichurmatham Prabhakar and Another Vs. Rawatmal Dugar reported in (2004) 4 SCC 766. Paragraph 26 of the said judgment reads as:-

"26. Where the tenant fails to deliver possession on or before the specified date to the landlord, the landlord may execute the order of the Controller by filing an execution petition which will be governed by Rule 23 and hence shall have to be filed within a period of six months from the date of the order. The application is by landlord who is a decree-holder having an executable order in his favour in his hands. A tenant exercising his right of re-entry is neither a decree-holder nor seeking execution of any order in his favour; he is seeking enforcement of a solemn undertaking given by the landlord but for which the Controller would not have made an order under sub-section (1) of Section 12 of the Act. The tenant's application is not an application for execution and hence does not attract applicability of Rule 23. It would be governed by Article 137 of the Limitation Act, 1963; it being an application for which no period of limitation is provided elsewhere and the period of three years shall begin to run when the right to apply accrues. The right to apply will accrue on the date specified by the Controller under sub-section (2) in this behalf. The period of limitation prescribed by Rule 23 may become otiose if applied to tenant as the period for completion of building by landlord may itself be more than six months and the period of limitation for tenant if governed by Rule 23 would have already expired by that time. An application filed before Rent Controller can attract applicability of Limitation Act, 1963 (See Mukri Gopalan Vs. Cheppilat Puthanpurayil Aboobacker (1995) 5 SCC 5. There are three single-Judge Bench decisions of Andhra Pradesh High Court, namely, K.S. Hanumantharayappa Vs. A.N. Vittal Rao 1987 (1) ALT 474, K.Manik Rao and Ors. Vs. Smt. M. Bikshapamma & Anr. 1987 (2) ALT (Notes on Cases) 15 and Navin Chandra Vs. Smt. Prema Bai Pitti 1992(3) ALT 181, taking the view that the limitation for application by tenant seeking restoration of possession to him is governed by Rule 23. These decisions do not lay down the correct law and are overruled."

6. Further even this Court in case of U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf and Others Vs. Khursheed Haider and Others reported in 1971 ALJ 1126 has held:-

"7. It was then contented by the learned counsel for the Board that Article 137 in the Schedule of the new Act being a substitute for Article 181 of the Schedule of the Old Act will bear the same meaning and Board's application under Section 63(5) of the Act not being an application under the Civil Procedure Code would not be governed by Article 137 of the New Limitation Act. It was suggested that there is no period of limitation prescribed by any law for an application under Section 63(5) of the Act. I am conscious of law as laid down by the Supreme Court relating to Article 181 of the Schedule of the Limitation Act of 1918 that it was not applicable to applications under any other Act and it was limited in its scope and only covered applications under the Civil Procedure Code. The reason being that the schedule to the old Limitation Act dealt throughout with applications under the Civil Procedure Code and as a residuary Article it would partake of the same colour as if the words "under the Code" were written it it.

8. I do not think in considering the scope of Article 137 of the Limitation Act of 1963 I am bound by the interpretation or the meaning put on Article 181 in the schedule of the old Act. It would be found that in the third division of the schedule of the new Limitation Act applications under the Constitution of India, namely, for the fitness of appeal to the Supreme Court and for special leave to appeal directly to the Supreme Court also find a mention at serial Nos. 132 and 133. Such applications are not covered by the Limitation Act which provides for an application for revision under the Criminal Procedure Code 1898. In the definition clause of the Limitation Act 1963 the word 'application' under Section 2(b) includes a petition. The intention is manifest that motions apart from the Civil Procedure Code were contemplated which required initiation by petitions. Under the Civil Procedure Code motions by petitions are not contemplated. In the statement of Objects and Reasons when introducing the Bill it was stated that : "A new definition of 'application' is being inserted so as to include a petition, original or otherwise. The object is to provide a period of limitation for original applications and petitions under special laws as there is no such provision now. Consequential changes have been made in the definition of 'appellant'." It appears to me that there is no good reason why should the residuary Article 137 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act, 1963 be not held to cover in its ambit applications and objections under the special laws or any other law and its language ought not to be interpreted narrowly so as to keep it confined to applications under the Civil Procedure Code, there being no warrant for it in the phraseology of that Article or in the scheme of the schedule to the New Limitation Act. Even if it be held that the remedy for the first time was available to the Board when Act of 1960 came into force the application under Section 63(5) of the Act should have been filed much earlier and there was so justification for the Board not to act for 6 years almost. I am in agreement with the finding of the court below that the application of the Board under Section 63(5) of the Act was time barred."

7. The above clearly shows that Courts have already laid down the law that Articel 137 of the Limitation Act is applicable on proceedings held under any Special Act for which no period of limitation is provided. In the present case also, the revision is filed under Section 83(9) of the Waqf Act for which no period of limitation is provided in the said Act. Article 137 of the Limitation Act would be applicable to such revisions filed under Section 83(9) of the Waqf Act, 1995 and, therefore, limitation for filing such revision is three years and not three months.

8. In view thereof, the objections of the registry are set aside and the revision is treated to be filed within time.

9. List this case in week commencing 03.01.2020.

criminal history of accused- The prosecution must prima facie place some evidence before Court regarding his involvement in a case and thus the bail cannot be refused to accused merely on the basis of criminal history or his past antecedents-the informant except laying strong emphasis on the criminal history of the applicant-accused, could not establish a prima facie case except confessional statement of co-accused which, too, has no legal sanctity in the eye of law. (Para 8)

The confession of a co-accused person cannot be treated as substantive evidence and can be pressed into service only when the Court is inclined to accept other evidence and in support its conclusion deducible from the said evidence. (Delivered by Hon'ble Rajul Bhargava,J.)

1. Heard Sri Kamal Krishna, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Pradeep Kumar Rai, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Vindeshwari Prasad Gupta, learned counsel for the first informant and Shri Pankaj Saxena, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. The present bail application has been filed by the applicant- Ahtesham Ahmad Zaidi in Case Crime No.132 of 2018, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 120-B I.P.C. and 7 Criminal Law Amendment Act, Police Station Phoolpur, District-Allahabad with the prayer to enlarge him on bail.

3. According to the prosecution, the incident took placed on 8.05.2018 at 9.30 p.m. whose F.I.R. was lodged on the next day at 10.55 a.m. by the brother of the deceased against two named and two unknown persons. During investigation, names of unknown accused were also disclosed by the witnesses.

4. Learned Senior Advocate appearing for the applicant has submitted that none of the eye-witnesses cited in the F.I.R. and other witnesses have stated a word against the applicant to have taken part in the incident. However, statement of Sajan alias Babar alias Irshad was recorded, who in his confessional statement stated that amount of Rs.25 lacs was paid by Sattar through the applicant to co-accused Sonu and Sanu to commit the murder of the deceased, Pawan Kesari. It is stated that except aforesaid confessional statement of co-accused, Sajan alias Babbar alias Irshad before the police, the investigating officer could not collect an iota of evidence that any money was passed on by the applicant to the named assailants and his bail application has been refused by the court only on the basis of his involvement in 14 criminal cases. Learned Senior Counsel has argued that in the absence of any reliable and cogent evidence to connect the applicant with the present crime of hatching conspiracy with the main assailants, his bail may not be rejected solely on the basis of criminal history of the applicant.

5. Learned counsel has relied upon the Constitution Bench judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in Haricharan Kurmi Versus State of Bihar, AIR 1964 Supreme Court 1184 (V 51 C 149) which is quoted below:

"Thus, the confession of a co-accused person cannot be treated as substantive evidence and can be pressed into service only when the Court is inclined to accept other evidence and in support its conclusion deducible from the said evidence. In criminal trials, there is no scope for applying the principle of moral conviction or grave suspicion. In criminal cases where the other evidence adduced against an accused person is wholly unsatisfactory and the prosecution seeks to rely on the confession of a co-accused person, the presumption of innocence which is the basis of criminal jurisdiction assists the accused-person and compels the Court to render the verdict that the charge is not proved against him, and so, he is entitled to the benefit of doubt."

6. The aforesaid judgement has been relied upon by Apex Court in the recent judgement rendered in Surinder Kumar Khanna Versus Intellligence Officer, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, (2018) 8 Supreme Court Cases, 271. Thus in the light of aforesaid judgement, it is stated that confessional statement of co-accused before police cannot be relied upon in the absence of any other supporting evidence to reject bail to the applicant. Therefore, the applicant, who is in jail since 29.03.2019, may be released on bail.

7. Per contra, learned counsel for the informant as well as learned A.G.A. appearing for the State have vehemently opposed the bail and submitted that the applicant is a hardened criminal and he is involved in the cases of extortion from businessmen and grabbing land of poor persons after forming a gang. However, in the counter affidavit by the first informant except repetition of criminal history of applicant, the informant could not point out any evidence of passing on of Rs.25 lacs to the main assailants for eliminating the deceased. In para-18 of the counter affidavit, he has reaffirmed the defence argument that in the confessional statement of co-accused, Sajan alias Babar alias Irshad stated that it is the applicant who was made culprit in the case and murder was committed after obtaining Rs.25 lacs from the accused, applicant. However, he has not disclosed any witness or any person whose presence the money was passed on by the applicant to the assailants. Learned counsel for the informant has placed reliance on the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Neeru Yadav Versus State of U.P. and another passed in the Criminal Appeal No.1272 of 2015 (@ SLP (Crl) No.1596 of 2016) decided on 29.09.2015.

8. Before dealing with the ratio of said case, I may record that it was a murder case in which the applicant along with other accused were actively involved in the commission of crime. However, the bail was granted to the accused-respondent no.2 on the ground of parity that other co-accused were enlarged on bail. The Apex Court, however, cancelled the bail of the accused-respondent no.2 on the ground that criminal history of seven cases was not taken into account by the High Court. In Neeru Yadav's case, the Apex Court has held that while dealing with the application for grant of bail, it is the duty of the Court to take into consideration certain factors i.e. the nature of accusation and the severity of punishment in cases of conviction and the nature of supporting evidence and the criminal antecedent of the accused. Similarly in the case of State o Orissa Versus Mahimananda Mishra, 2018 LawSuit (SC) 902, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held: it is by now well settled that at the time of considering an application for bail, the Court must take into account certain factors such as the existence of a prima facie case against the accused including the criminal history. The existence of a prima facie case showing the involvement of accused is absolutely necessary for the Court to decide the bail application. Hon'ble Apex Court though has held in various judgements that the criminal antecedent of the accused carries a huge importance as to whether bail should be allowed to hardened criminal or not but, in my considered opinion, merely on the basis of the criminal history of accused, bail cannot be denied to him. The prosecution must prima facie place some evidence before Court regarding his involvement in a case and thus the bail cannot be refused to accused merely on the basis of criminal history or his past antecedents. Learned counsel for the informant except laying strong emphasis on the criminal history of the applicant-accused, could not establish a prima facie case except confessional statement of co-accused which, too, has no legal sanctity in the eye of law. in the light of judgement of Full Bench apex court (supra).

9. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case as also the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties, without expressing any opinion on merits of the case, I am of the view that the applicant is entitled to be released on bail.

10. Let applicant-Ahtesham Ahmad Zaidi be released on bail in the aforesaid case crime number on his furnishing a personal bond of Rs.5,00,000/- and two reliable sureties of the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned subject to following conditions that:-

1.The applicant shall not tamper with the prosecution evidence;

2.The applicant shall not pressurize the prosecution witnesses;

3.The applicant shall appear on the date fixed by the trial court.

11. In case of default of any of the conditions enumerated above, the courts below shall be at liberty to cancel bail of the applicant.

A. Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Sections 376(2)(f)(i)(n), 506 & Protection of Children From Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act- Section 5/6 –application-rejection-victim was student, she was sexually assaulted by her tutor-on attaining majority victim lodged FIR- accused pleads for sympathetic treatment as he is suffering from Metastatic Cancer of Prostate-the court found no reasonable justification as to why victim falsely implicate the accused after lapse of six years-hence, the application for bail is rejected with the direction that trial would gear up. (Para 5,18, 21 & 22)

The relationship between the applicant and the informant/victim at the relevant point of time was a pious one as a tutor and taught. After an elapse of six years she has narrated her nightmare and thereafter she was constantly being harassed and maltreated by the applicant on telephone or by following her, while going to school or market. The conduct is an unbecoming for a tutor. (Para 12)

Crl. Misc. Bail application dismissed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rahul Chaturvedi,J.)

1. Heard Ms. Swati Agrawal Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Chetan Chaterjee, learned counsel for the complainant, Sri S.K.Pal, learned G.A. and perused the record.

2. Pleadings between the parties have been exchanged and the matter has ripen for final argument.

3. Pursuant to the earlier order of this Court, today, the Court is in receipt of the sealed cover letter from Senior Jail Superintendent, Central Jail, Naini, Prayagraj dated 07.11.2019 annexing the report given by given by Dr. Paul Thaliath, Additional Director Medical & Chief Consultant, Regional Cancer Centre, Kamla Nehru Memorial Hospital, Allahabad, regarding alleged "Malignancy" of the accused-applicant and perused the entire record.

4. The long and short of the FIR, as canvassed by the learned counsel for the applicant, is that on 14.04.2019 the victim herself lodged the instant FIR against sole named accused person Sunil Dua, narrating her tale of woes suffered in her childhood. The chick FIR unveils the dates of incident from 01.01.2012 to 01.01.2013, however, this FIR was got registered on 14.04.2019 i.e., after elapse of six years, when the victim attained the age of majority. The FIR was got registered under Sections 376(2)(f)(i)(n), 506 IPC and Section 5/6 Protection of Children From Sexual Offences (POCSO Act, P.S. Civil Lines, District Allahabad.

5. The contents of the FIR is that the named accused person was her private tutor and was sacked from his job in February 2013 and since then he was constantly chasing the victim girl, extending her threats on telephone blackmailing the victim/informant to mentally and emotionally exploiting her by the ultimate peril of committing suicide. In sum and substance of the FIR that during her childhood when she was student of Class VII, she was sexually assaulted by the accused applicant Sunil Dua, who was a private tutor and on account of this constant physical/mental/psycholigical assault, the victim suffered deep depression and mental trauma for which she is undergoing the treatment from psychiatrist since then. Of late when she attained the age of majority she lodged the instant FIR narrating the sad saga of her nightmare suffered by her during childhood. On the very next date of lodging of the aforesaid FIR, her 161 Cr.P.C. statement was recorded referring to the period when she was student of class VII and the ways and means by which she was sexually maltreated by the aforesaid accused applicant. Rest of the averments are almost the same, identical and reiteration of FIR.

6. The 164 Cr.P.C. statement, which was recorded on 18.04.2019, is a long statement given by the prosecutrix herself, which is unfortunate saga of a young girl, who was forced to face all sorts of rough sexual treatment to the extent that her private organs were touched by lascivious hands of a lecherous debouch, who is herein the accused. In 164 Cr.P.C. statement she has given every minutest details of the vulgar treatments time and again, received by her, when she was a minor student of Class VII.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant tried to raise castle of her argument by submitting that the victim declined to get herself medically examined by the doctor so as to substantiate the allegation of sexual assault upon her. It is further contended by the learned counsel for the applicant that in the absence of any corroborative evidence it is highly risky to blindly rely upon the 164 Cr.P.C. statement of the alleged victim girl. It is further submitted that the allegation of deep mental depression that she is reeling under deep depression is absolutely canard as she has secured a Grade-A in her ICSC Examination of Class-X in the year 2017 and thus a girl, who was suffering with mental trauma, cannot secure this grade in her High School examination. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that there are inconsistencies in the date/duration of sexual harassment which are not compatible to each other and cast serious doubt about the prosecution story. More over there is no allegation of rape under Section 164 Cr.P.C. statement. It is further contended by the counsel that since the applicant was a hard task master and laborious teacher in the profession, therefore, after the period of six years she has come up with false story falsely implicating the applicant. Furthermore, it is contended that since the applicant hails from a affluent family and just to grab his property, a false and imaginary story was tailored by the girl to robe him in this filthy and dirty case. Lastly, it is submitted that the applicant is suffering from Metastatic Cancer of Prostate, which is at advance stage and therefore he should be given sympathetic treatment by this Court.

8. Per contra, Sri Chetan Chaterjee, learned counsel for the complainant vehementally refuted each and every submission made by the learned counsel for the applicant. Learned counsel for the complainant submitted that the FIR is not an encyclopedia whereby every minute detail could be given in it. The girl, who was student of Class VII, facing turmoil for a complete six years on being sexually abused by none other than her own tutor, turned petrified so much as that she could not open her mouth before her parents during the entire period. In fact, the applicant initially terrorized the victim girl to such an extent that she could not dare to open her mouth before her parents and misadventuring the dark moments, he used to quench the animal instinct with the victim girl. The matter of fact is that the applicant is suffering from psychological disorder, which is termed as PAEDOPHILA (a person who is sexually infatuated towards adoloscent), which is defined as psychiatric disorder wherein an adult or older adolescent is sexually attracted/infatuated towards prepubescent children. The statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. of the victim girl, reveals that the victim girl in no uncertain terms has vomitted out the gray experience faced by her during the rough and tough time of her childhood. The applicant used to insist her pupil (the victim) to remain in seclusion in the garb of imparting education, he while petting, used to cut luscivious remarks on her private organs. All these misdeeds and misadventures of the applicant imprinted adverse impact on psychae of the victim.

9. So far as the financial and family background of the victim is concerned, the same is quite descent. Her mother is an Associate Professor in Sam Higginbottom University of Agriculture, Technology and Science (SHUATS), Naini Allahabad whereas her father is a Teacher in Basent School at Varanasi. Besides this, the parent also run a prestigious restaurant at Civil Lines, Allahabad and they are financially sound well off.

10. Learned counsel for the complainant has earnestly challenged the medical prescription annexed with the affidavit, establishing the precarious health condition of the applicant and vehemently opposed the bail application moved by the applicant.

11. This Court has heard learned counsel for the parties at great length, perused the annexures with the respective affidavits and perused the document in support of the averments made in their respective affidavits.

12. Admittedly, the relationship between the applicant and the informant/victim at the relevant point of time was a pious one as a tutor and taught. After an elapse of six years she has narrated her nightmare and thereafter she was constantly being harassed and maltreated by the applicant on telephone or by following her, while going to school or market. The conduct is an unbecoming for a tutor.

13. Ms. Swati Agrawal Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant submitted that since the applicant was a hard task master and this is the sole motive for his false implication in the instant case.

14. The aforesaid is an absurd argument as in the society we all have passed through the same phases of life and still cherish the childhood period, therefore, deed and misdeeds of our childhood sometimes go nostalgic and sometimes haunts. Here in the instant case, the misdeeds of the applicant seems to be her haunting memory.

15. So far as grabbing of property is concerned, this argument too, do not carry much weight. Both of the families belongs to descent financial background and this submission of false implication on account of extracting money also carries no weight. In paragraphs 14, 15 and 16 of the affidavit, it has been averred that the victim used to ask money (Rs. 1000/-2000/-) from the applicant every day as her pocket money and thereafter she demanded Rs. 10,000/- from the applicant, on being refused to the unreasonable demand by the applicant, she threatened him to falsely implicate in a criminal case. The entire scene painted by the accused seems to be fanciful as it has been suggested that a minor girl, studying in class VII, would demand money from her tutor instead her parent.

16. After hearing the submissions at great length, this Court reaches at loss to gather any reasonable justification as to why the victim would falsely implicate the accused-applicant in the instant case, that too, after an elapse of six years.

17. No doubt there are certain discrepancies with regards to date and time of the incident but particularly the allegation of ravishment to young girl by a person who is having a fiduciary relationship, which brings the accused in a vulturous shady and dark charactered man.

18. So far as the applicant's personal physical condition is concerned, it has been argued by learned counsel for the applicant that he is suffering from Metastatic Cancer of Prostate and the report of Dr. B. Paul also corroborate the same. It is submitted in the said report that he is under treatment from AIMS and at present his physical condition is stable at present. As his PSA report which was conducted on 02.10.2019 shows that they are in the normal range.

19. The Court has got every sympathy for the applicant but but facts remains, that he is an accused of molestation, misbehavior and breach of trust of fiduciary relationship qua with her taught.

20. In our shastra, a teacher is bound to have good moral character without having any ambition of materialistic pleasure and is restrained to make false speeches to his pupil. One of the shlokas, mentioned in the shastra in this regard, is enumerated as below:-

सर्वभोजिनः सपरिग्रहाः।
अब्रह्मचा रिणो
मिथ्योपदेशा गुरवो न तु ॥

भावार्थ :

अभिलाषा रखनेवाले , सब भोग करनेवाले , संग्रह करनेवाले , ब्रह्मचर्य का पालन न करनेवाले , और मिथ्या उपदेश करनेवाले , गुरु नहीं है ।

21. Therefore, under the prevailing circumstances, I find no good reason to exercise my discretion in favour of the applicant, the bail application of the applicant is hereby rejected.

22. However, keeping in view the health condition of the applicant, it is directed that the learned trial judge would gear up the trial and would make all necessary endeavour to conclude the same by 15.05.2020 positively provided the prosecution and defence would render sufficient cooperation and not to seek any unwarranted adjournments in the matter in early conclusion of the trial.

23. It is further directed that Senior Jail Superintendent, Naini would have a close vigil over the health condition of the applicant and would send the applicant to the AIIMS, New Delhi for his periodical medical check up as and when required at the expenses born by the Government during the period of trial only.

The applicant is an ex-army man and has already been a Pradhan and wields enormous criminal clout having a criminal history also, and by using his muscle power he continued to molest and outrage the modesty of the victim for a long period of time and the first informant and her mother could not dare to come out and could not muster up courage to raise their voice under the fear of being eliminated.in matters like this, brute display of muscle power is capable to subjugate the helpless girls and the belated reporting of the offence and its late disclosure by itself remains self-explained and on that ground the gravity of the accusation does not get mitigated. (Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee,J.)

1. Shri Vipin Kumar, Advocate has filed his Vakalatnama in the Court today on behalf of complainant which is taken on record.

This anticipatory bail u/s 438 Cr.P.C. has been moved seeking the bail of applicant namely Ram Kishun Fauji, involved in Case Crime No.93 of 2019, under sections 376, 452, 504, 506 I.P.C., Police Station- Chandpur, District-Fatehpur.

2. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned counsel for the complainant and learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

3. Submission of the counsel is that actually the first informant had some illicit relationship with a different person and as the applicant had raised objection regarding the same he has been falsely implicated in this case to continue their illicit relationship. The delay in lodging the F.I.R. has also been pointed out by the counsel.

4. Heard learned A.G.A. as well as counsel appearing for complainant who has opposed this application and have submitted that this is a serious matter in which the allegations are to the effect that the applicant who is having a revolver & rifle license had under the coercion and show of force committed rape upon her and kept the victim at the pain of death. The father of victim has already died and her mother is a widow helpless lady. The applicant is an ex-army man and has already been a Pradhan and weilds enormous criminal clout having a criminal history also, and by using his muscle power he continued to molest and outrage the modesty of the victim for a long period of time and the first informant and her mother could not dare to come out and could not master up and mobilize courage to raise their voice under the fear of being eliminated. The details of the molestation have been given in the F.I.R. and the sadism of the accused has been described as to how he gained sexual contentment by being cruel with the victim while doing the activity of coitus. It transpires that when at some stage of this continued history of torture the accused also attempted to drag the victim and take her to a tube-well that appears to have proved the last straw on the camel's back and the F.I.R. was then lodged. It has also been pointed out by learned A.G.A. that not less than 5 criminal cases have been registered against the applicant in the past including the present one. It has further been contended that in matters like this, brute display of muscle power is capable to subjugate the helpless girls and the belated reporting of the offence and its late disclosure by itself remains self-explained and on that ground the gravity of the accusation does not get mitigated.

5. Without expressing any opinion on the ultimate merits of the case and after considering the submissions advanced at the bar, keeping in perspective, the nature and gravity of the accusation and material in support of the same and also keeping in view the criminal antecedents of the accused-applicant, I find no good ground for grant of bail to the applicant.

6. Accordingly, the anticipatory bail application is rejected.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 438 - application- allowed without expressing any opinion upon ultimate merits of the case- while granting bail the court observes the nature and gravity of the accusation, antecedents of the applicant, his undertaking to make himself available to the authorities whenever required, and the overall facts and circumstances of the case. (Para 5,6 & 7)

The matter deserves a deeper probe to ascertain the truth and find out whether it was just a case of consensual sex which continued for some time between them or that it was a case of a calculated sexual exploitation perpetrated by the accused against the victim playing a deceitful emotional fraud upon her in order to obtain her misguided consent. (Para 3)

Crl. Misc. (Anticipatory Bail) application allowed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karuna Nand Bajpayee,J.)

1. Heard Shri G.S. Chaturvedi, learned Senior counsel assisted by Shri Ram M. Kaushik, learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. appearing for the State who has opposed the prayer for anticipatory bail.

2. Record has been perused.

3. It appears that the victim developed a friendly acquaintance with the accused-applicant and then on her own volition started meeting him. Though the allegations have been made that in the process of their meetings at some point of time the applicant tried to take undue advantage but it is deducible from a reading in between the lines that the proposals of marriage were also made and physical relationship also got established. It appears that the victim was also given some contraceptive pills (i-pill tablet). It further appears that the victim became pregnant because of the physical relationship. Though the allegations are that all the physical relationship and consumption of i-pill were not voluntary acts of victim but looking to the fact that the victim is a self employed mature lady doing the job of being an Anchor having sufficient exposure in the society, it will be too much to believe that all what has been done was either against her will or without her consent. Though the act and conduct of the applicant as has been alleged may not be vindicated on the moral side and to some extent even legally but prima facie there appears serious doubt in the correctness of the prosecutrix version and it appears to be more a case of failed relationship after some misunderstanding crept in or at the most a case of failed promise which was made but could not be kept. At any rate at this stage this Court is of the view that the matter deserves further investigation into the case in order to ascertain the correct facts and the intentions of accused. The matter deserves a deeper probe to ascertain the truth and find out whether it was just a case of consensual sex which continued for some time between the unorthodox couple who were irreverent to the social morality or that it was a case of a calculated sexual exploitation perpetrated by the accused against the victim playing a deceitful emotional fraud upon her in order to obtain her misguided consent.

4. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that the applicant has no serious criminal history and he has not undergone any imprisonment after conviction by any court in respect of any cognizable offence previously. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and he undertakes to make himself available to the police authorities or the court whenever required, and shall not flee from justice. The applicant is also ready to accept all the conditions which the Court may deem fit to impose upon him. Learned counsel has also tried to submit that the accusation against the applicant has been made with the object of besmirching his reputation and belittle him in the public estimate. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the applicant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at some length. It has been submitted that the applicant has reason to believe that he may be arrested on the basis of accusation that has been made against him for having committed the alleged offence even though the material collected by the investigation so far is not credible or adequate enough to substantiate the indictment made against the applicant and the matter deserves deeper and fair investigation into the case, therefore, in the event of such arrest he may be released on bail.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant has also tried to canvass before the Court that there has been a consensus of judicial opinion on the point that the provisions under Section 438 Cr.P.C. intend to extend a protective arm in support of implicated accused saving him from unnecessary incarceration and minimize the period of detention as much as it is practically possible to do in matters where the Court prima facie feels satisfied that the indicted accused deserves the relief contemplated by law as has been enacted by the legislature in this regard. Contention is that, therefore, the provision ought to be exercised liberally and be given full play, lest the same may fail to meet out its objective and the accused should not be called upon to establish a "special case" in order to get the benefit of this provision which is well in keeping with the spirit of Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

6. After considering the record of the case as is available before the Court in the light of rival submissions made at the Bar and keeping in perspective the nature and gravity of the accusation, antecedents of the applicant, his undertaking to make himself available to the authorities whenever required, and the overall facts and circumstances of the case, this Court feels satisfied that it would be expedient to grant an interim order of anticipatory bail in favour of the applicant at this stage.

7. Without expressing any opinion upon ultimate merits of the case, this Court directs that in the event of arrest, the accused-applicant Abhhey Chopra involved in Case Crime No.1077 of 2019, under Sections-376 and 120-B I.P.C., Police Station-Sector 49 NOIDA, District-Gautam Budh Nagar shall be released on bail on furnishing a personal bond of Rs. 50,000/- with two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the Arresting Officer.

8. In order to ensure that the interim bail is not subjected to any misuse and in order to ensure that the statutory powers of investigation and its scope may not get impaired, it is being observed and directed that the accused-applicant shall not in any manner indulge in any activities or attempts which may adversely influence or impair the fair investigation of the case and he will make himself available to the police authorities or the Court, as the case may be, whenever required for the purpose of investigation or inquiry. The accused shall also not leave India without the permission of the Court during the subsistence of this order.

9. The papers regarding bail submitted to the police officer on behalf of the accused/applicant shall form part of the case diary and would be submitted to the court concerned along with same at the time of submission of report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C.

10. The application for grant of anticipatory bail shall be finally heard under Section 438(5) Cr.P.C. for passing the order thereupon on 22.01.2020.

11. Learned A.G.A has accepted notice on behalf of the State who may obtain instructions or, if desired, may file counter affidavit within two weeks positively. Rejoinder affidavit, if any, may be filed within a week thereafter.

12. A.G.A. may obtain copy of this order if required, and make necessary communication with S.P./S.S.P. concerned in this regard.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 438 - application-rejection-no allegation or affirmation that the applicant apprehends arrest-no ground for grant of anticipatory bail. (Para 58 & 59)

Before power under sub-section (1) of Section 438 of the Code is exercised, the court must be satisfied that the applicant invoking the provision has reason to believe that he is likely to be arrested for a non-bailable offence and that belief must be founded on reasonable grounds. Mere "fear' is not belief, for which reason, it is not enough for the applicant to show that he has some sort of vague apprehension that someone is going to make an accusation against him, in pursuance of which he may be arrested. The grounds on which the belief of the applicant is based that he may be arrested for a non-bailable offence, must be capable of being examined by the court objectively. Specific events and facts must be disclosed by the applicant in order to enable the court to judge the reasonableness of his belief, the existence of which is the sine qua non of the exercise of power conferred by the section. (Delivered by Hon'ble Yashwant Varma,J.)

1. Almost four decades post the deletion of Section 438 Cr.P.C. insofar as it applied to the State of Uttar Pradesh, the Legislature reintroduced that provision on 6 June 2019. The legislative essay was a reaffirmation of the constitutional guarantee of personal liberty accorded to all citizens and to provide a salutory safeguard against the ignominy of arrest and deprivation of liberty. This nascent and resurrected jurisdiction has, however, in a short span of time raised questions which merit an authoritative pronouncement. It is in that backdrop that the Court takes up the instant petition.

2. This petition along with other applications for grant of anticipatory bail were taken up on 4 December 2019. Upon preliminary submissions being advanced, the Court on that date framed the following questions which appeared to principally arise:-

"The present application under Section 438 Cr.P.C. for anticipatory bail has been moved after rejection of a similar application by the Sessions Judge. The issue which would consequently arise would be whether the application would be maintainable since as per the provision, an order once passed shall not be construed as an interlocutory order for the purposes of the Code.

Learned counsels have also referred to the views expressed by two learned Judges in Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 44895 of 2019 [Neeraj Yadav And Another Vs. State of U.P. And 2 Others] and Bail Application No. 6478 of 2019 [Harendra Singh @ Harendra Bahadur Vs. The State of U.P.]. According to learned counsels since the statute confers concurrent jurisdiction, it would be incorrect for the Court to take the view that the applicant must first exhaust the remedy before the Sessions Court before applying to the High Court. The perceived inconsistency is addressed on the basis of the views expressed on the two applications aforementioned. The third issue which would arise for consideration would be that if the Court were to accept the view expressed in Harendra Singh what would be the special circumstances in which the High Court could be moved first without the applicant being asked to invoke the jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge.

As requested by learned counsels appearing in similar matters as well as Sri Sisodia in this application, include in the list of fresh cases of 06 December 2019."

3. In order to facilitate learned counsels to address further submissions, the application and other matters on that date were placed for disposal today. All members of the Bar were requested to address submissions bearing in mind the importance of the questions which stood raised and the impact which they would have on matters likely to come before the Court in future. The Court for the purposes of convenience, shall firstly proceed to note and dispose of the questions which arise and thereafter deal with the merits of the instant application separately.

4. The issues themselves arise in the backdrop of the reintroduction of Section 438 Cr.P.C. by virtue of U.P. Act No. 4 of 2019 w.e.f. 6 June 2019. It would be apposite to recollect that Section 438 Cr.P.C. stood as part of the Code applicable to the State till it was deleted with retrospective effect from 28 November 1975 by U.P. Act No. 16 of 1976. The provision as it originally existed on the statute book was as follows:

"438. Direction for grant of bail to person apprehending arrest.-(1) When any person has reason to believe that he may be arrested on an accusation of having committed a non- bailable offence, he may apply to the High Court or the Court of Session for a direction under this section; and that Court may, if it thinks fit, direct that in the event of such arrest, he shall be released on bail.

(2)When the High Court or the Court of Session makes a direction under sub- section (1), it may include such conditions in such directions in the light of the facts of the particular case, as it may think fit, including--

(i) a condition that the person shall make himself available for interrogation by a police officer as and when required;

(ii) a condition that the person shall not, directly or indirectly, make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer;

(iii) a condition that the person shall not leave India without the previous permission of the Court;

(iv) such other condition as may be imposed under sub-section (3) of section 437, as if the bail were granted under that section.

(3) If such person is thereafter arrested without warrant by an officer in charge of a police station on such accusation, and is prepared either at the time of arrest or at any time while in the custody of such officer to give bail, be shall be released on bail; and if a Magistrate taking cognizance of such offence decides that a warrant should issue in the first instance against that person, he shall issue a bailable warrant in conformity with the direction of the Court under sub- section (1)."

5. The said provision as re-enacted in 2019 reads thus:-

"438. Direction for grant bail to person apprehending arrest.--(1) Where any person has reason to believe that he may be arrested on accusation of having committed a non-bailable offence, he may apply to the High Court or the Court of Session for a direction under this section that in the event of such arrest he shall be released on bail; and that Court may, after taking into consideration, inter alia, the following factors, namely--

(i) the nature and gravity of the accusation;

(ii) the antecedents of the applicant including the fact as to whether he has previously undergone imprisonment on conviction by a Court in respect of any cognizable offence;

(iii) the possibility of the applicant to flee from justice; and

(iv) where the accusation has been made with the object of injuring or humiliating the applicant by having him so arrested; either reject the application forthwith or issue an interim order for the grant of anticipatory bail:

Provided that where the High Court or, as the case may be, the Court of Session, has not passed any interim order under this sub-section or has rejected the application for grant of anticipatory bail, it shall be open to an officer in-charge of a police station to arrest, without warrant, the applicant on the basis of the accusation apprehended in such application.

(2) Where the High Court or, as the case may be, the Court of Session, considers it expedient to issue an interim order to grant anticipatory bail under sub-section (1), the Court shall indicate therein the date, on which the application for grant of anticipatory bail shall be finally heard for passing an order thereon, as the Court may deem fit, arid if the Court passes any order granting anticipatory bail, such order shall include inter alia the following conditions, namely--

(i) that the applicant shall make himself available for interrogation by a police officer as and when required;

(ii) that the applicant shall not, directly or indirectly, make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer,

(iii) that the applicant shall not leave India without the previous permission of the Court; and

(iv) such other conditions as may be imposed under sub-section (3) of Section 437, as if the bail were granted under that section.

Explanation.--The final order made on an application for direction under sub-section (1); shall not be construed as an interlocutory order for the purpose of this Code.

(3) Where the Court grants an interim order under sub-section (1), it shall forthwith cause a notice being not less than seven days notice, together with a copy of such order to be served on the Public Prosecutor and the Superintendent of Police, with a view to give the Public Prosecutor a reasonable opportunity of being heard when the application shall be finally heard by the Court.

(4) On the date indicated in the interim order under sub-section (2), the Court shall hear the Public Prosecutor and the applicant and after due consideration of their contentions, it may either confirm, modify or cancel the interim order.

(5) The High Court or the Court of Session, as the case may be, shall finally dispose of an application for grant of anticipatory bail under sub-section (1), within thirty days of the date of such application;

(6) Provisions of this section shall not be applicable,--

(a) to the offences arising out of,--

(i) the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967;

(ii) the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985;

(iii) the Official Secret Act, 1923;

(iv) the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986.

(b) in the offences, in which death sentence can be awarded.

(7) If an application under this section has been made by any person to the High Court, no application by the same person shall be entertained by the Court of Session."

[Vide U.P. Act No. 4 of 2019, S. 2 (Received the assent of the President on 1-6-2019 and published in the U.P. Gazette, Extra., Part 1, Section (Ka), dated 6-6-2019).]"

6. It would also be pertinent to extract the SOR of the amending Act by virtue of which the provisions was reintroduced. The SOR reads thus:-

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1973, regarding the provision of anticipatory bail, was omitted by the Code of Criminal Procedure (Uttar Pradesh Amendment) Act, 1976 (U.P. Act no. 16 of 1976). There is continuous demand for its revival. Writ petitions have also been filed before the Hon'ble Courts for its revival in Uttar Pradesh. The State Law Commission has, in its third report in 2009, also recommended for reviving the provisions of the said section. With a view to considering the revival of the provisions of the said section, a committee has been constituted under tie chairmanship of the Principal Secretary to the Government of Uttar Pradesh in Home Department, consisting of the Special Secretary of Judicial Department, Special Secretary of the Legislative. Department, Director General of Prosecution and Additional Director General of Police (Crime), as the members thereof. The said committee has recommended that the provisions of the said section should be revived with certain modifications. After considering the recommendation of the said Committee, it has been decided to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 in its application to Uttar Pradesh to revive the provisions of section 438 thereof with certain modifications. The Code of Criminal Procedure (Uttar Pradesh Amendment) Bill, 2018 is introduced accordingly.

7. The issues framed principally arose in the context of the newly framed Section 438 in purported implementation of the report of the State Law Commission tabled in 2009. For the purposes of rendering clarity, it would be appropriate to set forth the questions which principally fall for determination:-

A. The nature of the concurrent jurisdiction conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C.

B. Whether parties should be commanded to necessarily approach the Sessions Court first before invoking the jurisdiction of this Court under Section 438 Cr.PC

C. In what circumstances can the High Court be approached directly under Section 438 Cr.P.C.

D. Exceptional or Special circumstances.

E. The perceived conflict between the decisions rendered in Harendra Singh @ Harendra Bahadur

Vs. The State of U.P.1 and Neeraj Yadav And Another Vs. State of U.P.2

F. Impact of the Explanation to Section 438(2) Cr.P.C.

G. The period for which anticipatory bail should operate.

8. Leading submissions on behalf of the applicants, Sri Imran Ullah firstly referred the Court to the 203rd Report of the Law Commission of India submitted in December 2007. According to Sri Imran Ullah it is the recommendations contained in this report that appear to have guided the Legislature in framing Section 438 as it stands introduced in its application to the State of U.P. Taking the Court through the note on concurrent jurisdiction Sri Imran Ullah drew the attention of the Court to paragraph 6.4.1 of the report which reads thus:-

"6.4.1 One of the objections raised against the amended section has been that if the applicant seeking anticipatory bail is required to be compulsorily present in the Court in terms of new sub-section (1B), he is most likely to be arrested from the Court precincts in the event of rejection of his bail. Such an arrest of the applicant will deprive him of his right otherwise available to him to move the alternative forum provided in Section 438 of the Code. Concurrent jurisdiction of the Court of Session and the High Court under Section 438 has generated much litigation. The Code has not prescribed any specific order in which the two alternative forums are to be approached. It is left to the option of the applicant to move either the Court of Session or the High Court for anticipatory bail one after another or in reverse order. There is conflict of opinion amongst various High Courts as to whether the Court of Session should originally be approached in the first instance or the High Court can be straightaway approached for grant of anticipatory bail without first taking recourse to the Court of Session. It may be noted that both Court of Session and the High Court exercised original jurisdiction underSection 438. However, when the High Court is moved after the anticipatory bail application has been dismissed by the Court of Session, the petition for anticipatory bail in the High Court is required to be accompanied with a copy the Session Court's order from which reason for dismissal of anticipatory bail application can be gathered. In such a case, the High Court essentially exercises revisionary powers over the order of the Court of first instance. i.e. Session Court though purporting to be exercising original jurisdiction under Section 438. On the other hand, it has been held in some cases that where the applicant moved High Court for anticipatory bail which was rejected then the Court of Session should not grant anticipatory bail to the applicant on the same facts and material as otherwise it would be an act of judicial impropriety. There are also cases where similar view has been taken in reverse order in respect of rejection of application for anticipatory bail by Court of Session. Accordingly, it has been held in some cases that if an application for anticipatory bail is rejected by the Court of Session, then similar application on the same fact would not lie in the High Court unless there is some new material or facts. There are cases also where contrary view has been taken whereby no such fetter is admitted on the powers of the High Court."

9. After noticing the judgments rendered by different High Courts of the country it proceeded to observe as follows:-

"6.4.19 There are a lot many more cases on the above aspects. Suffice it to say that the section has generated much litigation that could have been avoided. There are certain other provisions inthe Code which have vested concurrent jurisdiction in the High Court and the Court of Session. For example, both the High Court and the Court of Session have concurrent jurisdiction of revision underSection 397. However, underSection 397if a person approaches either of these Court, he cannot again agitate that matter by way of revision in the other Court. Whereas there seems to be justifiable reason for conferring concurrent jurisdiction on the High Court and the Court of Session, yet the person seeking anticipatory bail should have been given an option on the lines ofSection 397(3). Accordingly, if he approaches either of these two Courts, he should not be allowed again to seek the same relief by way of a substantive application underSection 438in the other Court. It may be noted as observed by Karnataka High Court in K.C. Iyya and etc. Vs State of Karnataka, 1985 Cri. L.J. 214 that in the matter of bail, either anticipatory as regular, the voice of the Court of Session is not final but is subject to revisional or appellate jurisdiction of the High Court and the Supreme Court. Also in these matters of bail, either anticipatory or regular, the Court of Session is given as wide a power of discretion as vests in the High Court. In this connection, the followingobservations of Chandrachud, C.J. in Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia etc. Vs The State of Punjab, AIR 1980 SC 1632 may be noted.

"There is no risk involved in entrusting wide discretion to the Court of Session and the High Court in granting anticipatory bail because firstly, these are higher Courts manned by experienced persons; secondly, their orders are not final but are open to appellate or revision scrutiny."

6.4.20 It may be noted in this regard that Inspectors General of Police Conference, 1981, inter alia suggested thatSection 438be amended so as to take away the powers to grant anticipatory bail from the Session Court and vest it only in the High Courts. A Group of officers, constituted pursuant to the decision taken at the meeting of Secretaries held on 2nd July, 1982, too concurred with it when it observed that "as sometimes, the Courts take a very liberal view in granting anticipatory bail to criminals, it was considered that such powers should be taken from the Court of Session and vest only in the High Court even though it will make difficult for the poor persons to avail of the provisions of anticipatory bail. A Parliamentary Bill being No. 56 of 1988 was introduced in the Lok Sabha on 13th may, 1988, clause 49 of which related to amendment ofSection 438, providing, inter alia, omission of the words or the Court of Session" from sub-section (1) and (2) of that section. However, these proposed amendments were ultimately not carried out and both the High Court andthe Court of Session continued to have concurrent jurisdiction underSection 438in the matter of anticipatory bail and in our opinion, rightly so. There are certainly distinct advantages of vesting concurrent jurisdiction in the two judicial forums and giving an option to an applicant to choose one of two, depending upon his convenience or otherwise. These advantages have been referred to in some of the decided cases. (See Shivasubramanyam Vs State of Karnataka and another, 2002 Cri.L.J. 1998; Y.

Chendrasekhara Rao Vs Y.V. Kamala Kumari, 1993 Cri.L.J. 3508 (A.P.); Rameshchandra Kashiram Vora Vs State of Gujarat, 1988 Cri.L.J.210 (Guj.). However, it is not readily discernible as to why same relief or facility has been made available to same persons at the hand of two different judicial forums one after another in exercise of their respective original jurisdiction when efficacious remedy is otherwise available against the order of the Court which may have been chosen by an applicant for relief in the first instance. One fails to understand as to why a provision on the lines ofSection 397(3)has not been made inSection 438whereby once the applicant has availed his option to choose one of the two alternative forums, his recourse to the other forum is foreclosed, if he fails to get the desired relief from the forum he has earlier chosen. Thus, if a person moves the Court of Session for anticipatory bail and fails to get it, then why he should again be allowed to file another substantive application to anticipatory bail to High Court instead of revision, or, as the case may be, appeal against the order ofrejection of the application by the Session Court. Again, if the person has moved the High court in the first instance, does it not look apparently anomalous for the same person to move the lower Court, namely, the Court of Session for the same relief on the same facts that has been denied to him by the High Court? Theoretically, it is permissible. But, as a matter of propriety and policy, should that person not be made to move the higher judicial forum instead of a lower one in such cases. It is inherent in the scheme of things that when two alternative forums are provided in law for seeking directions for anticipatory bail, one lower and another higher, then the lower should be first resorted to as a matter of principle except in exceptional cases in which event the applicant should be deprived of his option to move the lower forum afresh on the same facts and material. Any different approach may lead to anomalous results where the relief sought at the hands of the High Court having been denied, can again be sought from the lower court without there being any change in the circumstances in which the relief has been denied by the High Court. Theoretically, it may be feasible but in practice it will not be. Such a scenario might not have been in the contemplation of the framers of the law. If that be so, then we fail to understand as to what distinct advantage is intended to be conferred on persons seeking anticipatory bail by allowing them to move the two alternative forums one after another in their original jurisdiction for the same relief on the same facts. One reason for this could be that an order rejecting anapplication bail is interlocutory [See Zubair Ahmad Bhat Vs State of Jammu and Kashmir, 1990 Cri.L.J. 103 (J&K), Joginder Singh Vs State of Himachal Pradesh, ILR (1975) HP 181. A different view was, however, expressed in Mohan Lal and other Vs Prem Chand and others, AIR 1980 HP 36 (FB)] wherein it was held that Sessions Judge's order refusing anticipatory bail was not an interlocutory order. The power of revision conferred by sub-section (1) ofSection 397is not exercisable in relation to any interlocutory order in any appeal, inquiry, trial or other proceeding. (SeeSection 397(2)of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973). The conflicting views of High Courts in various cases in this regard have led to varied judicial practices whereby recourse is sometime taken to the powers of revision of the High Courts against orders of Courts of Session declining anticipatory bails and in other cases inherent powers of the High Courts are invoked in such matters. The High Courts exercise their inherent powers to redress the grievance of the aggrieved person or to prevent the use of the process of the Court and to secure the ends of justice or to prevent miscarriage of justice or illegal exercise of jurisdiction underSection 482of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 or underArticle 227in exceptional cases. [See Shyam M. Sachdev Vs State and another, 1991 Cri.L.J. 300 (Delhi)]; Ram Prakash Vs State of H.P. 1979 Cri.L.J. 750 (HP); Bhola and others Vs State 1979 Cri.L.J. 718 (Allahabad); Kamal Krishna De Vs State 1977 Cri.L.J. 1492 (Calcutta)]. The Supreme Court in a number of cases has laiddown the scope and ambit of the powers of the courts underSection 482Cr.P.C. Every High Court has inherent power to act ex debito justitiae to do real and substantial justice, for the administration of which alone if exists, or to prevent abuse of the process of the court. Inherent power underSection 482Cr.P.C. can be exercised: (i) to give effect to an order underthe Code; (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of court; and (iii) to otherwise secure the ends of justice. Inherent powers underSection 482Cr.P.C. though wide have to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with great caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in this section itself. Authority of the court exists for the advancement of justice. If any abuse of the process leading to injustice is brought to the notice of the court, then the Court would be justified in preventing injustice by invoking inherent powers in absence of specific provisions in the Statute...The powers possessed by the High Court underSection 482of the Code are very wide and the very plenitude of the power requires great caution in its exercise. (See Inder Mohan Goswami and another Vs State of Uttaranchal and others, 207(12) SCALE 15 at 25).Section 482is not controlled bySection 397(2)or 397(3). The inherent powers of the High Court are not subjected to the bar contained inSection 397as the powers of the High Court under these two Sections are distinct, different and mutually exclusive and ought not to be equated. Nothing inthe Codenor even the bar underSection 397affect the amplitude of the High Court'sinherent power if glaring injustice stares the Court in the face [See Govind Das Biyani and others Vs Badrinarayan Rathi (1995) 4 Crimes 755 (M.P.); Smt. Chander Mohini Khuller Vs State of West Bengal and another, 1995(4) Crimes 289 (Cal.); Rajeev Bhatia Vs Abdulla Mohmed Gani and another, 1992 Cri.L.J. 2092 (Bom.); Binod Sitha Vs Suna Devi 1986(1) Crimes 208 (Ori); Raj Kapoor and others Vs State (Delhi Administration)and others, AIR 1980 SC 258); Malam Singh Vs State of Rajasthan, 1977 Cri.L.J. 730 (Raj.)]. Thus, where an application for anticipatory bail has been rejected by the Court of Session and no revision lies against it for the order of rejection being an interlocutory order, then the remedy of the applicant will be to invoke the inherent powers of the High Court underSection 482or the constitutional powers underArticle 227of the Constitution of India, in a case a provision is inserted inSection 438on the lines ofSection 397(3). It may be seen that there is lack of uniformity in judicial practices in these matters that needs to be remedied. One way of doing this is to extend the benefit of revision by suitably amending the law. It may be noted that the amended provision envisages passing of ad interim order on an application for anticipatory bail application in the first instance, followed by a final order after hearing the Public Prosecutor. Besides, such an application need not necessarily be filed in any pending case as registration of a FIR is not considered necessary. To add to it, the applicant may not be ultimately put up for trial if the investigation of the case does not reveal any materialagainst the applicant. In such a scenario, the final order on the application may not be in the nature of interlocutory as the case may stand disposed of finally. Besides, the use of legal fiction is not unknown to Law and it is quite often applied to meet a given exigency or to secure certain ends. It is thus legally feasible to expressly provide in the Law that final orders on an anticipatory bail application may not be construed as interlocutory for the purposesof the Code. And, we recommend accordingly."

10. In conclusion the Law Commission summarised the position in paragraph 6.4.21 as under:-

"6.4.21 Accordingly, the position that will so emerge will proceed on the following lines, viz.,

(i) Both the High Court and the Court of Session will have concurrent jurisdiction to deal with application for directions underSection 438and it will be open to a person to move either of these two Courts at his option;

(ii) Once that option is exercised and that person decides to move one of these Courts, then the person will not have any further option to move the other Court;

(iii) Where the person chooses to move the Court of Session in the first instance, a revision will lie in the High Court against the order of Court of Session on the application for issue of directions under Section 438;

(iv) Where the person chooses to straightaway move the High Court in the first instance, subject to Court's satisfaction of the special or exceptional circumstances justifying such move, the person will stand deprived of the aforesaid remedy of revision. In such a case the person if aggrieved of the High Court's order on his application for direction underSection 438may have to invoke the extraordinary constitutional powers of the Supreme Court by seeking special leave to appeal in the Supreme Court.

6.4.22 We are, therefore, of considered view thatSection 438should be amended so as to contain a provision on the lines ofSection 397(3). All other remedies that are presently provided inthe Codeor otherwise against the final order on an application for anticipatory bail, will, however, continue to be available. This will also take away much of the sting of lawyers' objections against the amendments, particularly those contained in sub-section (1B), that the applicants have been so denied the right to move the other forum against the rejection of his application as he could be arrested being present in the Court, though we have recommended omission of that sub-section, albeit, on different grounds."

11. It ultimately made the following recommendations:-

"7.1 We recommend that:

(I) The proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 438 shall be omitted.

(ii) Sub-section (1B) shall be omitted.

(iii) A new sub-section on the lines of Section 397(3) should be inserted.

(iv) An Explanation should be inserted clarifying that a final order on an application seeking direction under the section shall not be construed as an interlocutory order for the purposes of the Code."

12. Sri Imran Ullah then drew the attention of the Court to the Report submitted by the U.P. State Law Commission on 28 July 2009. The State Law Commission while dealing with the imperative need of reintroduction of the provisions for anticipatory bail amongst other factors also noticed the large number of cases traveling to the High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. as well as 226 of the Constitution in light of the hightened perception of arrest and undue harassment.

13. Dealing with the question of concurrent jurisdiction, the State Law Commission framed its opinion in the following terms:-

"8.20 As far as jurisdiction is concerned, as stated earlier, the Commission is of the opinion that:

(i) Both the High Court and the Court of Session will have concurrent jurisdiction to deal with application for directions under Section 438 and it will be open to a person to move either of these two Courts at his option:

(ii) Once that option is exercised and that person decides to move one of these Courts, then the person will not have any further option to move the other Court;

(iii) Where the person chooses to move the Court of Session in the first instance, he may move to the High Court against the order of Court of Session on the application for issue of directions under Section 438;

(iv) Where the person chooses to straightaway move the High Court in the first instance, in such a case the person if aggrieved of the High Court's order on his application for direction under Section 438 may have to invoke the extraordinary constitutional powers of the Supreme Court by seeking special leave to appeal in the Supreme Court."

14. It ultimately and in its recommendations proposed the text of Section 438 to be in the following terms :-

"438. Direction for grant of bail to person apprehending arrest-

(1) Where any person has reason to believe that he may be arrested on accusation of having committed a non-bailable offence, he may apply either to the Court of Session or the High Court for a direction under this section that in the event of such arrest he shall be released on bail; and that Court may, after taking into consideration, inter alia, the following factors, namely,-

(i) The nature and gravity of the accusation;

(ii) the antecedents of the applicant including the fact as to whether he has previously undergone imprisonment on conviction by a Court in respect of any cognizable offence;

(iii) the possibility of the applicant to flee from justice, repeat the offence and tamper the witnesses; and

(iv) where the accusation has been made with the object of injuring or humiliating the applicant by having him so arrested; either reject the application forthwith or issue an order for the grant of anticipatory bail:

Provided that where an application is moved, the Court shall forthwith cause a notice being not less than forty eight hours notice, together with a copy of such application to be served on the Public Prosecutor with a view to give the Public Prosecutor a reasonable opportunity of being heard when the application shall be heard by the Court.

(2) When the Court of Session or the High Court makes a direction under sub-section (1), it may include such directions in the light of the facts of the particular case, as it may think fit, including:-

(i) a condition that the person shall make himself available for interrogation by a Police Officer as and when required;

(ii) a condition that the person shall not, directly or indirectly, make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any Police Officer;

(iii) a condition that the person shall not leave India without the previous permission of the Court;

(iv) a condition that the person shall not leave India without the previous permission of the Court;

(v) such other condition as may be imposed under sub-section (3) of Section 437, as if the bail were granted under that section.

(3) If such person is thereafter arrested without warrant by an officer-in-charge of a police station on such accusation, and is prepared either at the time of arrest or at any time while in the custody of such officer to give bail, he shall be released on bail; and if a Magistrate taking cognizance of such offence decides that a warrant should be issued in the first instance against that persons, he shall issue a bailable warrant in conformity with the direction of the court under sub-section (1).)"

9.2 If an application under this section has been made by any person either to the Court of Session or the High Court, no further application by the same person shall be entertained by either of them.

We recommend accordingly."

15. According to Sri Imran Ullah, the language employed by Section 438 as introduced clearly establishes the conferment of concurrent jurisdiction on the High Court as well as the Court of Sessions. In view thereof it was his submission that no fetter or restraint can consequently be placed on the exercise of choice by an individual. Sri Imran Ullah would submit that the provision grants complete freedom to the individual to choose to approach either the High Court or the Sessions Court subject to percieved expediencies. In view thereof, it was submitted that no rule or dictum can possibly be formulated requiring individuals to first exhaust the remedy as provided before the Court of Sessions and only thereafter to approach the High Court. Taking the Court both through the recommendations of the Law Commission of India as well as the State Law Commission it was submitted that though both had recommended the introduction of a provision to the effect that once upon exercise of choice by a person to move one of the concurrent jurisdictions, he should not have the option to move the other, it was submitted that the aforesaid recommendation was ultimately not accepted by the Legislature. This submission was addressed in light of the provisions made in sub-section (7) which provides that in case the High Court is moved by an application for grant of anticipatory bail, then that individual cannot thereafter invoke the jurisdiction of the Court of Sessions. Sri Imran Ullah highlighted the fact that while a restriction is so placed in case the High Court is moved first, no corresponding prohibition has been engrafted to deal with a situation where the Court of Sessions may have been moved initially and the applicant failing to obtain redress. Both in light of the language employed in sub-section (7) as well as the recommendations framed by the Law Commissions which were not accepted, it was vehemently contended that it would be wholly incorrect for the Court to take the view that once an application for anticipatory bail comes to be rejected by the Court of Sessions, that applicant would stand precluded from invoking the jurisdiction of this Court as independently conferred by Section 438.

16. Dealing then with the impact of the Explanation appended to sub-section (2), Sri Khan contended that the Explanation appears to be in tune with the recommendations framed by the Law Commission of India which had opined that a remedy of revision may be provisioned for in case an applicant fail to obtain relief before the Court of Sessions. According to the learned counsel, it is to overcome the hurdle on orders passed on bail applications being construed as interlocutory in character alone which appears to have guided the framing of the Explanation. It was further submitted that while an avenue to assail an order of the Court of Sessions may have been created by virtue of the Explanation, that could not be construed as barring the jurisdiction of the Court otherwise vested by Section 438. Sri Khan then referred the Court to the decision rendered by a Full Bench of the Himanchal High Court which had dealt with an identical controversy albeit in the context of anticipatory bail and a revision under Section 397 of the Code. The Full Bench of the Himanchal High Court in Mohan Lal and others etc. v. Prem Chand and others etc3 held thus:-

" 10. S. 438 of the new Code makes a specific provision, unlike the old Code, for anticipatory bail. The relevant part of this Section reads thus:-

"438 (1). When any person has reason to believe that he may be arrested on an accusation of having committed a non-bailable offence, he may apply to the High Court or the Court of Session for a direction under this Section; and that Court may, if it thinks fit, direct that in the event of such arrest, he shall be released on bail.....…."

It is obvious that the High Court as well as the Court of Session have been given concurrent jurisdiction to grant anticipatory bail.

11. A bare reading of the Section shows that no restriction, unlike Ss. 397 (3) and 399 (3), has been placed on a person wishing to move the High Court for anticipatory bail. A person is not required to move the Sessions Judge first.

It is true that under the old Code wherever a concurrent jurisdiction was conferred on more than one court, the inferior Court was expected, as a matter of practice, to be approached first.

However, in the case of anticipatory bail to force a person to move the Sessions Judge first may result in uncalled for curtailment of his right. For various reasons a person may like to move the High Court straightway and may not like to approach the Sessions Judge. Since the Section relates to the liberty of a person, we would not like to impose any kind of restriction on his right to move the High Court in the first instance.

12. A Division Bench of this Court in Joginder Singh v. State of Himachal Pradesh (ILR (1975) Him Pra 181) held that though a person is at liberty to apply for anticipatory bail to the High Court straightway he could not approach the High Court if his application had been rejected by the Sessions Judge. The reason for coming to this conclusion was that the order refusing anticipatory bail being interlocutory in character could not be revised because of the bar placed by Sub-Sec. (2) of S. 397 of the new Code. This judgment is by D. B. Lall and Chet Ram Thakur, JJ. But in Vijay Nand v. State of Himachal Pradesh (ILR (1975) Him Pra 556) D. B. Lall, J., held that an order of the High Court granting anticipatory bail will be an order in the exercise of jurisdiction conferred by S. 439, and so the bar of Sub-Sec. (2) of S. 399 did not apply. It was observed that the ratio of Joginder Singh (supra) would not apply since the matter was being decided under S. 439.

13. We have given our earnest consideration the reason given in Joginder Singh's case. We are afraid we cannot agree with that view. When a person makes an application for anticipatory bail in the High Court after a similar application of his has been rejected by the Sessions Judge, he does not invoke the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court but applies under S. 438. Assuming that revisional jurisdiction is invoked, we are not prepared to hold that Sessions Judge's order refusing anticipatory bail is an interlocutory order. "

17. It ultimately recorded its conclusion as follows:-

"15. Our answers to the questions referred to the Full Bench are that persons can apply for revision or anticipatory bail to the High Court direct without first invoking the jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge."

18. Learned counsel then referred the Court to a judgment rendered by a learned Judge of this very Court in Jagdish Kumar Vs. District Judge, Budaun and Others4 where the question which arose for consideration was the ambit of the concurrent jurisdiction conferred upon the High Court and the District Court by Section 24 of the Civil Procedure Code. Sri Imran Ullah referred the Court specifically to the following paragraphs of that decision:

"21. The jurisdiction conferred under Section 24 of the Code is concurrent does not conceive of any scope of doubt. But whether the concurrent jurisdiction means that both the jurisdiction can be availed together or one after the other. The concurrence means both the courts having jurisdiction, the parties are free to approach one or the other. Whenever concurrent jurisdiction has been conferred on the High Court and the District Court, it is provided that if one of the forum is approached, the party would be precluded from approaching the other forum. Inasmuch as in the West Bengal amendment of Section 115 of the Code by which Section 115A has been, inserted. Under the said provisions both High Court and District Court have been empowered to entertain an application under Section 115 of the Code. Under sub-sections (3) and (4) thereof it has been provided that if either of the court is approached, no further revision shall be entertained between the same parties either by the High Court or the District Court as the case may be. Similar provision has also been incorporated in Section 397 of the Cr.P.C. where in sub-section (3) similar exclusion of jurisdiction by the High Court or Sessions Court having concurrent jurisdiction has been provided. In the absence of specific prohibition or exclusion of jurisdiction, Section 24 of the Code cannot be interpreted to mean that the jurisdiction of the one court is to the exclusion of the other. But a situation may arise where the High Court having been unsuccessfully approached, a party may approach to the District Court thereafter. If such a situation is permitted, it would work out a judicial anarchy. After having unsuccessful before the District Court, a party may approach the High Court. Such position is in conformity with the system of judicial hierarchy. If the party approaches the High Court then it cannot come back to the District Court. Such an interpretation would not be in conformity with the judicial system of hierarchy.

24.Thus the outcome of the above discussion indicates that when an application for transfer before the District Court fails, the party applying may approach the concurrent jurisdiction of the High Court under the same provision but the party opposing though may apply for retransfer before the District Judge but cannot challenge the said order under Section 115 of the Code though, however, on the principle on which Article 227 of the Constitution can be exercised he may invoke the power of superintendence conferred upon the High Court by the Constitution under Article 227 of the Constitution thereof. But if the party approaches the concurrent jurisdiction of the High Court straightaway then the applicant and Opposite Party both may approach the Supreme Court under Section 25 of the Code, if aggrieved by the order of the High Court. But once the High Court passes an order under Section 24 on an application of an unsuccessful applicant before the District Judge, the order of the District Judge stands overruled by implication on passing of the order by the High Court. As such in the facts and circumstances of the present case, the application under Section 24 of the Code before this Court is maintainable."

19. Sri Dayashankar Mishra, learned Senior Counsel placed his submissions in the backdrop of the decision of the Constitution Bench in Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia Vs. The State of Punjab5 as also on a judgment rendered by a Division Bench of the High Court of Uttarakhand in Mubarik & another v. State of Uttarakhand & others6. According to Sri Mishra, the provisions made in Section 438 are an extension of the guarantee of personal liberty as accorded to all citizens by Article 21 of the Constitution. Sri Mishra contended that any restraint on the right of an individual to approach the High Court for grant of anticipatory bail or being relegated to the Court of Sessions as a matter of rule before being permitted to approach this Court would be in clear violation of the constitutional guarantee enshrined in Article 21. Sri Mishra submitted that where issues of personal liberty stand raised, the statutory discretion as conferred can neither be placed in shackles nor can the exercise of choice by the individual be fettered by any restraint. Turning then to the decision rendered by the High Court of Uttarakhand in Mubarik, it was submitted that the said authority applies to the questions raised on all fours since that High Court had clearly recognised the unfettered right of the accused to choose the forum and that the said right could not be restricted by construing the provisions of Section 438 narrowly. Sri Mishra also referred the Court to the provisions made in Section 397(3) to submit that wherever the Legislature had though fit to bar the jurisdiction of a particular Court once a remedy had been availed either before the lower court or the superior court, a specific provision had been made and put in place in the statute itself. It becomes relevant to note that Section 397(3) provides that where any person has moved the High Court or the Court of Sessions by way of a revision, he stands debarred from moving any further application before "the other of them". Sri Mishra submitted that the provisions engrafted in Section 397(3) stand in clear distinction to the provisions made ins Section 438(7) where the fetter stands placed only in case the High Court has been moved initially. According to Sri Mishra, the bar to the jurisdiction of a Court cannot be presumed or assumed unless a specific provisions in that respect comes to be introduced by the Legislature. Insofar as Section 438 is concerned, Sri Mishra submitted that in the absence of any provision akin to Section 397(3) having been made therein, it could not be said that the jurisdiction of the Court stands barred once an application for anticipatory bail has come to be rejected by the Sessions Court.

20. Sri Vimlendu Tripathi, learned counsel addressed submissions on similar lines and contended that the rights of an individual where issues of personal liberty are raised cannot be curtailed by way of statutory interpretation. It was also submitted that any view taken to the contrary would clearly fall foul of the dictum laid down by the Full Bench of this Court in Onkar Nath Agrawal And Others Vs. State7. It was submitted further that since the Full Bench had clearly ruled that a bail application under Section 438 may be moved in the High Court without the applicant being forced to take recourse to the Court of Sessions, the decision rendered in Harendra Singh @ Harendra Bahadur Vs. The State of U.P.8 was per incuriam.

21. Sri Saghir Ahmad learned Senior Counsel adopting and elaborating upon the submissions noted above, drew the attention of the Court to a decision rendered by a Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in Diptendu Nayek Vs. State of West Bengal9. According to learned Senior Counsel the aforesaid authority had in unequivocal term answered the questions as framed by the Court by holding that where a party unsuccessfully moved the Court of Sessions initially he would not stand debarred from invoking the powers of this Court as independently conferred by Section 438. Learned Senior Counsel referred to the following principles as enunciated in that decision.

"22. Broadly speaking, Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure consists of two parts. The first part sets out the conditions under which a person can make an application for anticipatory bail. The second part confers jurisdiction on the High Court or the Court of Session. Thus the second part can be viewed as strictly jurisdictional; the High Court and the Court of Session have concurrent jurisdiction. Once a Court is invested with jurisdiction, that jurisdiction subsists all along unless taken away expressly or by implication. There are no express words in the Section itself, indicating that the jurisdiction is taken away under any circumstances. It does not appear that by implication even the jurisdiction of either of the Courts is taken away or put an end to. Mr. Chowdhury, the learned Additional P.P., has contended that the use of the conjunction "or" in between the High Court and the Court of Session clearly indicates that a party has only one choice of approaching one Court or the other. That was also the view of the Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Amiya Kumar, reported in 1979 Cr. LJ 288. The learned Judges in that case referred to Rowe and Webb for a grammatical construction. Four uses have been referred to by the learned authors with reference to "or" but for our present purpose, it is sufficient to note that the learned authors themselves have pointed out that "or" is sometimes used in a strongly alternative sense and sometimes in no alternative sense. Similarly, Nesfield's grammar, also quoted by the learned Judges of the Division Bench, refers to different uses of the conjunction "or" sometimes it is uses in alternative or exclusive sense, and sometimes in inclusive or non-alternative sense where "or" is merely equivalent to "and". Thus contrary positions may be reached if we confine ourselves to strictly grammatical constructions. The learned Judges of the Division Bench in the case of Amiya Kumar have accepted the alternative or exclusive sense with regard to Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, but with regard to Section 439, Code of Criminal Procedure, they are of the view that "or" has been used in the non-alternative sense equivalent to "and". The reasoning for accepting one meaning in one case and another meaning in another case for the same word "or" appears to be obscure. It seems that there should not be any exclusive concentration on grammar, as thereby we might lose contact with the current of thoughts communicated by the language. It has been shown before that the word "or" is capable of elasticity even according to grammatical constructions. Such being the position, the real attention should be focused on the intendment of the provision, making a broad reading of the Section itself and placing it in juxtaposition with the other comparable provisions. It seems that the legislators did not intend to exclude the one or the other of the two Courts-the High Court or the Court of Session. Had it been so intended, the legislators would have taken care to express that clearly, as they have done in sub-Section (3) of Section 397 and sub-Section (3) of Section 399 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Mr. Chowdhury has argued that the word "or" occurring in Section 438 is disjunctive in nature. It seems that has, also weighed with A. C. Sen Gupta, J. But the mere fact that it is disjunctive does not mean much in this case. It may be disjunctive, but necessarily not exclusive. This disjunction is merely temporal; it disjoins but does not exclude the other. At any given point of time, one can approach only one Court and not both the Courts simultaneously. That does not mean that the choice of a person to approach the other Court is foreclosed for ever. There are no, such words that the choice exercised once would become final, so that afterwards he cannot move another Court having competent jurisdiction. The learned Judges of the Division Bench in the case of Amiya Kumar have also observed that the restriction as to the choice of the Court would also be further evidenced from the use of the words "that court may" in the Section indicating singular number. It is not felt how the use of the singular number can connote anything, because, as has been pointed out before, at any point of time, a party can approach a single Court and not two or more Courts simultaneously. In the Full Bench case of the Himachal Pradesh, report in AIR 1980 Himachal Pradesh 36, it has been held that a person can move an application for anticipatory bail in the High Court even though a similar application of his has been rejected by the Sessions Judge, for, while doing so he does not invoke the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court but applies under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. With respect, we agree to the proposition. In the case reported in 1986 Cr. LJ 1742, a learned single-Judge of the Kerala High Court has laid down the same proposition. It has been observed that Section 438 was not intended to give a restricted forum in the sense that when one forum is chosen the jurisdiction of the other is excluded. It has been further observed that the freedom of applying to the High Court or to the Court of Session need not necessarily mean that when the Court of Session is moved the option has become final and the approach to the High Court is thereafter barred. We respectfully say that this is the correct law.

23. In the case of Onkar Nath Agarwal and Ors. (1976 Cr. LJ 1142) the Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court seems to have accepted the same view by implication. It has been settled that a bail application under Section 438 may be moved in the High Court without the applicant taking recourse to the Court of Session. The question referred to the Full Bench was whether the application for anticipatory bail under Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was maintainable in the High Court without such an application having been moved and rejected by the Court of Session. The answer to the question, as indicated earlier, is in the affirmative. So it is implied that an application can be moved in the Court of Sessions Judge, and then after being rejected, in the High Court. We are incline to accept the ratio of the decisions of the Himachal Pradesh, Kerala and the Allahabad High Courts. For the reasons mentioned before, we are not inclined to accept the decision of the Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court, reported in 1979 Cr. LJ 288.

24. Thus the conclusion is reached that a party, after unsuccessfully moving the Court of Session for anticipatory bail can again approach the High Court for the same purpose, as that is not expressly or by implications barred. The view of Khastgir, J. in the Division Bench out of which this reference arises is the correct view. The matter should now go back to the Division Bench for disposal of the petition on merits. Haridas Das, J. I agree. Application disposed of."

22. Sri Sushil Shukla learned counsel submitted that the reading of any restriction bearing upon the concurrent jurisdiction as conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. upon the High Courts and the Courts of Sessions would run contrary to the principles enunciated by the Constitution Bench in Sibbia. It was submitted that where the statute itself did not place any fetter on the exercise of power by the Courts, it would be wholly impermissible to read a restriction by way of statutory interpretation. According to Sri Shukla it was the evolution of standards and restrictions not otherwise finding place in Section 438 Cr.P.C. by the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court which were ultimately set aside by the Constitution Bench in Sibbia. Insofar as the Explanation appended to sub section (2) was concerned, Sri Shukla also contended that while that provisions may have created a remedy of a revision, the same cannot be read as ousting or debarring the jurisdiction of this Court even though an earlier application may have been rejected by the Courts of Sessions.

23. Sri Yadav learned counsel placed reliance upon the principles elucidated by the Constitution Bench in the matter of Ranchhoddas Atmaram And Another v. Union of India And Others10 to submit that the opening part of Section 438 Cr.P.C. is framed and couched in positive terms. In view thereof it was his submission that the use of the word 'or' between the High Court and the Court of Sessions clearly evidences the intent of the legislature for it to mean 'either'. Reliance was principally placed on the following propositions as laid down in that decision:-

"13. It is clear that if the words form an affirmative sentence, then the condition of one of the clauses only need be fulfilled. In such a case , "or" really means "either" "or". In the Shorter Oxford Dictionary one of the meanings of the word "or" is given as "a particle co-ordinating two (or more) words, phrases or clauses between which there is an alternative." It is also there stated, "The alternative expressed by" "or" is emphasised by prefixing the first member or adding after the last, the associated adv. EITHER," So, even without "either," "or" alone creates an alternative. If, therefore, the sentence before us is an affirmative one, then we get two alternatives, any one of which may be chosen without the other being considered at all. In such a case it must be held that a penalty exceeding Rs. 1,000 can be imposed.

14. If,. However, the sentence is a negative one, then the position becomes different. The word "or" between the two clauses would then spread the negative influence over the clause following it. This rule of grammar is not in dispute. In such a case the conditions of both the clauses must be fulfilled and the result would be that the penalty that can be imposed can never exceed Rs. 1,000. "

24. Sri Yadav however submitted that the insertion of the Explanation to sub section (2) is clearly indicative of the intent of the Legislature to bar a second application before this Court once a prayer for anticipatory bail had come to be rejected by the Court of Sessions. According to Sri Yadav once the Court of Sessions has proceeded to reject a prayer for anticipatory bail, the only remedy available to an individual would be to assail the same by way of revision.

25. Sri I.P. Srivastava and Sri Vikas Sahai learned A.G.As. have contended that the provisions of Section 438 Cr.P.C. as introduced do not appear to debar the jurisdiction of this Court notwithstanding an application for grant of anticipatory bail having been rejected by the Court of Sessions. It was however contended that Harendra Singh lays down the correct position in law when it requires parties to establish the existence of exceptional and special circumstances. According to learned A.G.As. if such a restraint were not to be not read in Section 438 Cr.P.C., it would lead to a situation where this Court would be flooded with applications for anticipatory bail and thus the legislative intent of conferring Courts of Sessions with concurrent jurisdiction itself be rendered nugatory. Learned A.G.As. relied upon the decisions of different High Courts as noticed in Harendra Singh to submit that the principle so formulated clearly placed the rights of parties in the balance and must consequently be affirmed as being the correct position in law.

26. Having noticed the rival submissions, the Court proceeds to rule upon the questions as formulated.

QUESTION A - The nature of the concurrent jurisdiction conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C.

QUESTION B - Whether parties should be commanded to necessarily approach the Sessions Court first before invoking the jurisdiction of this Court under Section 438 Cr.PC.

27. Since Questions A and B are interlinked, they can be conveniently considered and disposed of together.

28. On a plain reading of Section 438 Cr.P.C., it is evident that both the High Court and the Court of Sessions are conferred with a concurrent jurisdiction to entertain an application for anticipatory bail. It essentially enables the party to exercise a choice of moving either the High Court or the Sessions Court for the consideration of an application seeking anticipatory bail depending upon the exigencies of the situation. The statute, as is manifest, places no restriction on the exercise of this choice. It is in this sense akin to Section 439 Cr.P.C. which too confers concurrent jurisdiction on the Court of Sessions and the High Court. The distinction between the two only being that while Section 438 Cr.P.C. deals with pre-arrest bail, Section 439 Cr.P.C. is liable to be invoked once a person has been arrested and taken into custody.

29. Section 438 Cr.P.C. as introduced by the Legislature thus puts in place two possible avenues for redress leaving it open to the individual to exercise a choice to move either the High Court or the Court of Sessions for consideration of a prayer for grant of anticipatory bail. The Court consequently finds itself unable to either recognize or read that provision as mandating the Court of Sessions being necessarily moved in the first instance before the jurisdiction of this Court is invoked. The Court also finds itself unable to discern any legislative intendment that may support the contention that the jurisdiction of this Court may be invoked only once an applicant has exhausted the remedy as available before the Court of Sessions. More importantly, it must be borne in mind that a bar to the jurisdiction of a superior Court should neither be and cannot be readily inferred. For the purposes of identifying such a bar to actually exist, it must be apparent and clearly evidenced either from a reading of the statute itself or from a specific provision made in this respect.

30. Insofar as Section 439 Cr.P.C. goes, undisputedly a practice appears to have evolved over the decades of parties approaching the Sessions Court by way of an application for bail initially and only after its disposal to move the High Court. This, however, appears to have come to hold the field merely as a rule of convenience since parties do not dispute that the High Court could be independently moved under Section 439 irrespective of whether the avenue as available before the Court of Sessions has been exhausted or not. Practice, however, cannot be elevated to the position of an inviolable rule or one that brooks of no exception. In any case a practice cannot be conferred a judicial imprimatur when such construction would run contrary to the plain language and intendment of the statutory provision. Practice also cannot be accorded a status that either subsumes the clear intent of the statute or restrict its operation. On a fundamental level, therefore, it would be incorrect to hold that Section 438 Cr.P.C. either mandates or envisages the Court of Sessions being moved first before a party becomes entitled to approach this Court by way of an application seeking anticipatory bail.

31. Dealing with the issue of practice of parties being compelled to approach the Court of Sessions first under Section 439 Cr.P.C., the Full Bench of this Court in Onkar Nath Agrawal observed thus: -

9. We may now consider the authorities cited by the learned Government Advocate in support of his contention. These authorities relate to applications for revision under the provisions of Sections 435 and 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. In the authority reported in Shailabala Devi v. Emperor (1) one of the questions was whether an application in revision should be entertained by the High Court when the mater has not first been taken to the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge. Sir, Shah Sulaiman, C. J., held that the High Court has full jurisdiction to entertain such an application even though the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge has not been approached in the first instance. At the same time he observed:

"It is quite clear that a practice has grown up in this Court to refuse to entertain applications direct, until the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge has been approached. This practice is based largely on convenience, and seems to me to be sound. The District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is on the spot and easily accessible and the record can be locally called for promptly without any loss of time and without the necessity of sending it through the post. The proceedings are also likely to be less expensive. The High Court is a superior Court and its time would not be unnecessarily spent in examining the record and in some cases even considering the evidence, when a subordinate court has already considered the matter and made its report. Further, the High Court would have the opinion of another Court before it which would be of help. In practice no great harm is likely to be suffered by the accused, if he is required to go to the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge in the first instance. When a practice of this kind becomes well known to the members of the Bar in the Mofussil and in the High Court the accused would be advised to approach the subordinate court forthwith and not attempt to file a revision in the High Court direct. In many cases, if the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge reports in favour of the accused, be need not be represented in the High Court, particularly when the illegality of the conviction or the severity of the sentence is patent. On the other hand, if such a salutary rule of practice were not to prevail, there would be a temptation, and even an encouragement, to accused persons to come up straight to the High Court over the head of the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge concerned, because the latter can only report to the High Court and cannot themselves pass an order in favour of the accused. Many accused persons may therefore think it more expeditious and much cheaper to come up straight to the High Court. The High Court would then be flooded with such applications.

On these grounds it seems that a practice of a long standing has grown up under which the High Court does not ordinarily, entertain an application in revision unless the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge has been moved first."

10. There are, however, several authorities in support of the view that the practice recognised in the case of Shailabala Devi v. Emperor AIR (1) is not an absolute one and there may be exceptions to it. Accordingly in the case of S. P. Dubay v. Narsingh Bahadur (supra) it was held that though the normal practice for the High Court is to refuse to entertain application where the applicant did not approach the Sessions Judge first, but there is no hard and fast rule and in suitable cases the High Court has been known to depart from this practice and to accept revisions that have not been previously considered by a Sessions Judge..... Similarly in Municipal Board v. Bhim Singh (supra) D.S. Mathur, J. as he then was observed:

"But where the High Court entertains a revision directly without the party having approached the Sessions Judge there would be no illegality but a mere departure from the above practice....."

11. The recent view, therefore, appears to be that the Courts should have unfettered discretion and may entertain revision notwithstanding the prevailing practice if they feel justified on the basis of facts and circumstances of each case. We may also add that there is no authority in support of the contention that the 'practice of convenience' recognised in Shailabala's case in respect of revisions is applicable to bail or anticipatory bail and that the discretion of the court Should be fettered by such a practice. We are, therefore, of the view that the Courts should have an unfettered discretion in the matter of bail under Section 438, Cr. P. C. to be exercised according to the exigencies of each case." (emphasis supplied)

32. While dealing with this contention the Court cannot loose sight of the fact that it is called upon to interpret a provision that has a direct relation to the issue of personal liberty of an individual. It would, therefore, be manifestly incorrect for the Court to invent or construct restrictions on the discretion so conferred reading constraints in the statute which otherwise do not exist. The exercise of discretion as conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. was eloquently explained by the Constitution Bench in Sibbia as under: - conditions. That will be plainly contrary to the very terms of Section 438. Though sub-section (1) of that section says that the court "may, if it thinks fit" issue the necessary direction for bail, sub-section (2) confers on the court thepower to include such conditions in the direction as it may think fit in the light of the facts of the particular case, including the conditions mentioned in clauses (i) to (iv) of that sub-section. The controversy therefore is not whether the court has the power to impose conditions while granting anticipatory bail. It clearly and expressly has that power. The true question is whether by a process of construction, the amplitude of judicial discretion which is given to the High Court and the Court of Session, to impose such conditions as they may think fit while granting anticipatory bail, should be cut down by reading into the statute conditions which are not to be found therein, like those evolved by the High Court or canvassed by the learned Additional Solicitor General. Our answer, clearly and emphatically, is in the negative. The High Court and the Court of Session to whom the application for anticipatory bail is made ought to be left free in the exercise of their judicial discretion to grant bail if they consider it fit so to do on the particular facts and circumstances of the case and on such conditions as the case may warrant. Similarly, they must be left free to refuse bail if the circumstances of the case so warrant, on considerations similar to those mentioned in Section 437or which are generally considered to be relevant under Section 439 of the Code.

"13. This is not to say that anticipatory bail, if granted, must be granted without the imposition of any

26. We find a great deal of substance in Mr. Tarkunde's submission that since denial of bail amounts to deprivation of personal liberty, the court should lean against the imposition of unnecessary restrictions on the scope of Section 438, especially when no such restrictions have been imposed by the legislature in the terms of that section. Section 438 is a procedural provision which is concerned with the personal liberty of the individual, who is entitled to the benefit of the presumption of innocence since he is not, on the date of his application for anticipatory bail, convicted of the offence in respect of which he seeks bail. An over-generous infusion of constraints and conditions which are not to be found in Section 438 can make its provisions constitutionally vulnerable since the right to personal freedom cannot be made to depend on compliance with unreasonable restrictions. The beneficent provision contained in Section 438must be saved, not jettisoned. No doubt can linger after the decision in Maneka Gandhi vs. Union of India (1978) 1 SCC 248, that in order to meet the challenge of Article 21 of the Constitution, the procedure established by law for depriving a person of his liberty must be fair, just and reasonable. Section 438, in the form in which it is conceived by the legislature, is open to no exception on the ground that it prescribes a procedure which is unjust or unfair. We ought, at all costs, to avoid throwing it open to a Constitutional challenge by reading words in it which are not be found therein."

33. The discretion so wisely conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. consequently should not be shackled or cabbined by judicial artifices or the interpretative construction of barriers not otherwise placed by the statute. This position is also evident from the conclusions recorded by the Full Bench of this Court in Onkar Nath Agrawal. The Court deems it apposite to extract the following parts of the decision rendered therein:-

"6. The words 'that Court may, if it thinks fit. direct etc.' make it also clear that the Sessions Judge or the High Court thus a discretionary power to give a direction for release of the applicant on bail. It does not lay down any condition on the existence of which bail can be granted. When a tribunal is invested by an Act or by rules with discretion without any indication in the Act or rules of the grounds upon which the discretion is to be exercised, the Courts have declined to lay down any rules with a view to indicate the particular grooves in which the discretion should run on the ground that if the Act or rules do not fetter the discretion of the Judge why should the courts do so. (See Gardner v. Jay (1885) 29 Ch D 50 and Hume v. Poresh Chunder AIR 1914 Cal 597 : 15 Cri LJ 49 (SB)).

12. We therefore answer the question under reference in the affirmative and hold that a bail application under Section 438, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 may be moved in the High Court without the applicant taking recourse to the court of Sessions. "

34. It must therefore, be held that Section 438 Cr.P.C. on its plain terms does not mandate or require a party to first approach the Sessions Court before applying to the High Court for grant of anticipatory bail. The provision as it stands does not require an individual first being relegated to the Court of Sessions before being granted the right of audience before this Court.

QUESTIONS C - In what circumstances can the High Court be approached directly under Section 438 Cr.P.C.

35. That then takes the Court to consider the question of when should the High Court entertain an application for anticipatory bail directly. Hon'ble Chandra Dhari Singh, J. after noticing the views taken by different High Courts in Harendra Singh has proceeded to hold that in extraordinary circumstances and where special reasons exist, the party can also approach the High Court directly. The only note of caution which was entered by the learned Judge was that the Court cannot entertain an application for grant of anticipatory bail as a matter of routine and without examining whether any special reasons or circumstances exist justifying the application being considered by the High Court directly. Noticing the decisions rendered by the Karnataka High Court as well as the Gauhati High Court, the learned Judge identified and assigned valid and cogent reasons for parties being relegated to move the Sessions Court first. It would be appropriate to reproduce the following principles as elucidated by the learned Judge in Harendra Singh:-

"16. In a decision reported in 1983(2) KLJ 8 in the case of K.C. Iyya Vs. State of Karnataka, the High Court of Karnataka has observed as follows:

"7. Since both the Courts, the Court of Sessions and this Court have concurrent powers in the matter, it appears desirable, for more than one reason, that the Sessions Court should be approached first in the matter."

17. In the case of Shivasubramanyam Vs. State of Karnataka and another; 2002 CRL.LJ

1998, the Karnataka High Court has re-iterated the abovesaid principles and ultimately held that the application filed under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. directly to the High Court is maintainable only under exceptional and under special circumstances, but not as a routine and the party cannot come before the Court as a matter of right.

18. By looking into the abovesaid discussions, I am of the opinion that the party has to approach the Sessions Court first and then he has to approach the High Court which is the normal course. But the courts have also observed that in extraordinary circumstances with special reasons, the party can also approach the High Court. The High Court cannot entertain Section 438 of Cr.P.C. as a matter of routine without examining whether there are any special reasons or special circumstances to entertain the said application.

19. In the case of Sri Kwmta Gwra Brahma Vs. State of Assam (Bail No.3024 of 2014), The Gauhati High Court has also expressed similar view and held that the party has to approach the Court of Sessions first under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. and he can later approach the High Court.

20. The intention of bringing out Section 438 of Cr.P.C. is enabling each and every person in the country if under extraordinary circumstances under exigencies either to approach the Court of Sessions or the High Court which can be concurrently exercised by both the courts. Though such remedy, cannot be riddled down by imposing any extraordinary condition but still the Court can refuse to entertain the bail petition and direct the party to approach the Court of Sessions first because Section 438 of Cr.P.C. shall not be exercised as a matter of right by the party, though it can be invoked either before the Sessions Court or before the High Court. It is purely the discretionary power of the Court to exercise power depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case. Therefore, the High Court can direct the party to go first before the Court of Sessions and then come to the High Court though there is no embargo under the statute itself, but the Court can do so on the basis of various factors.

21. It is worth to note here that whenever the concurrent jurisdiction is vested under the statute simultaneously in two courts of one is superior to the other, then it is appropriate that the party should apply to the subordinate Court first, because the higher Court would have the advantage of considering the opinion of the Sessions Court. Moreover, the party will get two opportunities to get the remedy either before the Sessions Court or before the High Court but if once he approaches the High Court, he would run the risk that, the other remedy is not available to him if he failed to get the order in the High Court, he cannot go before the Sessions Court for the same remedy. However, vice versa is possible.

22. It is also to be notable that the Sessions Court will always be nearest and accessible Court to the parties. Moreover, considering the work load of the courts in the country, the superior courts particularly, the High Courts are flooded with heavy pendency of cases. In order to facilitate the other parties who come before the Court with other cases before the High Court (which has got exclusive Jurisdiction) and also in order to provide alternative remedy to the parties, it is just and necessary that the party shall first approach the Sessions Court under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. so that the High Court can bestow its precious time to deal with other pending cases which requires serious attention and expeditious disposal, where the parties who have come to the High Court after exhausting remedy before the Magistrate Court or the Sessions Court for grant of bail and for other reliefs.

24. It is also worth to note here that the Sessions Court and the High Court are concurrently empowered to grant bail under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. The object is that if the party who is residing in the remote area can directly approach the Sessions Court which is easily accessible. In order to obviated the very object and purpose, the party has to explain why he did not go to that Court. Otherwise, it amounts to making that provision redundant, so far as the Sessions Courts are concerned. Even once again re-looking into structure of Section 438 of Cr.P.C., it is purely the discretionary power given to the Court to entertain the Petition. It is the discretion given to the Courts to exercise that power. When discretion vests with Court, the party has to explain why he has come to the High Court directly, for the discretionary relief under the said provision."

36. On an ultimate analysis of the law rendered on the subject, the learned Judge recorded the the following conclusions:-

"26. Hence, I answer the point raised as follows:

"The bail application filed under Section 438 of Cr.P.C. is not maintainable before the High Court without exhausting remedy before the Court of Sessions, which has got concurrent jurisdiction. However, for extraneous or special reasons, the High Court can also exercise such power for grant of the remedy under the said provision."

37. The reasons which are assigned by Hon'ble Chandra Dhari Singh, J. in Harendra Singh are not only convincing and compelling, but also clearly appear to be expedient and prudent. The Legislature in its wisdom conferred concurrent jurisdiction on the Court of Sessions perhaps bearing those very reasons in mind. The constraints of access to justice, of distances, the expense of litigation are all relevant factors which appear to have guided the Legislature in clothing the Court of Sessions with contemporaneous jurisdiction. However and notwithstanding the compelling and judicious imperatives in favor of the formulation of these factors in justification of relegation to the Court of Sessions, it must be remembered that the said caveat can only be recognised as an exercise of self restraint by the Court itself and nothing more. In fact as is evident upon a holistic reading of Harendra Singh, it is apparent that it was not the intent of the learned Judge to lay down the rule of restraint and abstention as an absolute proposition. This is also the position which clearly emerges when one bears in mind the following observations entered by the Full Bench in Onkar Nath Agrawal:-

"8. It may, however, be mentioned that inasmuch as Section 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 gives a discretionary power to grant bail, this discretion is to be exercised according to the facts and circumstances of each case. There may be cases in which it may be considered by the High Court to be proper to entertain an application without the applicant having moved the Court of Sessions initially. Similarly there may be cases in which the Court may feel justified in asking the applicant to move the Sessions Court or to refer the matter to that Court. In any case all depends upon the discretion of the Judge hearing the case. "

38. On a conjoint reading of the aforesaid two decisions, it is manifest that all that was intended was to put in place a rule of abstinence and require the individual to establish the existence of special and compelling circumstances constraning him to move the the High Court in the first instance. On an overall analysis of those decisions, it may, therefore, be conclusively held that while there exists no fetter or restriction upon the High Court entertaining an application under Section 438 Cr.P.C. directly it would ultimately depend upon the discretion of the Judge available to be exercised in the facts and circumstances of each case and upon finding special circumstances which warrant this Court to invoke its jurisdiction in the first instance rather than relegating the party to the Court of Sessions.

QUESTION D - Exceptional or Special Circumstances

39. Harendra Singh leaves a window open with the learned Judge observing that requiring the party to invoke the jurisdiction conferred on a Court of Sessions must be recognized as the normal course and the High Court entitled to be moved only in extraordinary circumstances and special reasons. The learned Judge further went on to observe in the ultimate conclusion drawn that for "extraneous" (sic) or special reasons the High Court could also exercise the powers conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. notwitstanding the Court of Sessions having not been moved. What appears upon a holistic reading of that decision is the intent of the learned Judge to convey the duty of the applicant approaching the High Court to establish the existence of exceptional and special circumstances. The only clarification which, therefore, would merit being entered is with regard to the requirement of proving the existence of extraordinary or exceptional circumstances. The words "exceptional" or "extraordinary" are understood to mean atypical, rare, out of the ordinary, unusual or uncommon. If the jurisdiction of the Court as conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. be circumscribed or be recognised to be moved only in exceptional situations it would again amount to fettering and constricting the discretion otherwise conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. Such a construction would perhaps run the risk of being again viewed as being in conflict of the statutory mandate and the discretion conferred. In the considered view of the Court what the learned Judge did seek to convey and hold in Harendra Singh was the requirement of establishing the existence of special, weighty, compelling reasons and circumstances justifying the invocation of the jurisdiction of this Court even though a wholesome avenue of redress was available before the Court of Sessions.

40. Regard must be had to the fact that the Constitution Bench in Sibbia had an occasion to deal with the correctness of the restrictions as formulated by the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court on the exercise of power under Section 438 Cr.P.C. Dealing with that aspect the Constitution Bench clearly held that the exercise of discretion as statutorily conferred cannot be confined in a straitjacket. This simply since it would be impossible to either prophesize or foresee the myriad situations in which the jurisdiction of the Court may be invoked. It was for the aforesaid reasons that the Constitution Bench held that this aspect must be left to the judgment and wisdom of the Court to evaluate and consider whether special circumstances exist or are evidenced by the facts of a particular case. The Court deems it apposite to extract the following paragraphs from the decision rendered by the Constitution Bench:-

"13. This is not to say that anticipatory bail, if granted, must be granted without the imposition of any conditions. That will be plainly contrary to the very terms of Section 438. Though sub-section (1) of that section says that the Court "may, if it thinks fit" issue the necessary direction for bail, sub-section (2) confers on the Court thepower to include such conditions in the direction as it may think fit in the light of the facts of the particular case, including the conditions mentioned in clauses (i) to (iv) of that sub-section. The controversy therefore is not whether the Court has the power to impose conditions while granting anticipatory bail. It clearly and expressly has that power. The true question is whether by a process of construction, the amplitude of judicial discretion which is given to the High Court and the Court of Session, to impose such conditions as they may think fit while granting anticipatory bail, should be cut down by reading into the statute condition which are not to be found therein, like those evolved by the High Court or canvassed by the learned Additional Solicitor General. Our answer, clearly and emphatically, is in the negative. The High Court and the Court of Session to whom the application for anticipatory bail is made ought to be left free in the exercise of their judicial discretion to grant bail if they consider it fit so to do on the particular facts and circumstances of the case and on such conditions as the case may warrant. Similarly, they must be left free to refuse bail if the circumstances of the case so warrant, on considerations similar to those mentioned in Section 437 or which are generally considered to be relevant under Section 439 of the Code.

14. Generalisations on matters which rest on discretion and the attempt to discover formulae of universal application when facts are bound to differ from case to case frustrate the very purpose of conferring discretion. No two cases are alike on facts and therefore, courts have to be allowed a little free play in the joints if the conferment of discretionary power is to be meaningful. There is no risk involved in entrusting a wide discretion to the Court of Session and the High Court in granting anticipatory bail because, firstly, these are higher courts manned by experienced persons, secondly, their orders are not final but are open to appellate or revisional scrutiny and above all because, discretion has always to be exercised by courts judicially and not according to whim, caprice or fancy. On the other hand, there is a risk in foreclosing categories of cases in which anticipatory bail may be allowed because life throws up unforeseen possibilities and offers new challenges. Judicial discretion has to be free enough to be able to take these possibilities in its stride and to meet these challenges. While dealing with the necessity for preserving judicial discretion unhampered by rules of general application, Earl Loreburn, L. C. said in Hyman v. Rose :

"I desire in the first instance to point out that the discretion given by the section is very wide..... Now itseems to me that when the Act is so express to provide a wide discretion,... it is not advisable to lay down any rigid rules for guiding that discretion. I do not doubt that the rules enunciated by the Master of the Rolls in the present case are useful maxims in general, and that in general they reflect the point of view from which judges would regard an application for relief. But I think it ought to be distinctly understood that there may be cases in which any or all of them may be disregarded. If it were otherwise, the free discretion given by the statute would be fettered by limitations which have nowhere been enacted. It is one thing to decide what is the true meaning of the language contained in an Act of Parliament. It is quite a different thing to place conditions upon a free discretion entrusted by statute to the court where the conditions are not based upon statutory enactment at all. It is not safe, I think, to say that the court must and will always insist upon certain things when the Act does not require them, and the facts of some unforeseen case may make the court wish it had kept a free hand."

15. Judges have to decide cases as they come before them, mindful of the need to keep passions and prejudices out of their decisions. And it will be strange if, by employing judicial artifices and techniques, we cut down the discretion so wisely conferred upon the courts, by devising a formula which will confine the power to grant anticipatory bail within a strait-jacket. While laying down cast-iron rules in a matter like granting anticipatory bail, as the High Court has done, it is apt to be overlooked that even judges can have but an imperfect awareness of the needs of new situations. Life is never static and every situation has to be assessed in the context of emerging concerns as and when it arises. Therefore, even if we were to frame a 'Code for the grant of anticipatory bail', which really is the business of the legislature, it can at best furnish broad guide-lines and cannot compel blind adherence. In which case to grant bail and in which to refuse it is, in the very nature of things, a matter of discretion. But apart from the fact that the question is inherently of a kind which calls for the use of discretion from case to case, the legislature has, in terms express, relegated the decision of that question to the discretion of the court, by providing that it may grant bail "if it thinks fit". The concern of the courts generally is to preserve their discretion without meaning to abuse it. It will be strange if we exhibit concern to stultify the discretion conferred upon the courts by law.

26. We find a great deal of substance in Mr. Tarkunde's submission that since denial of bail amounts to deprivation of personal liberty, the Court should lean against the imposition of unnecessary restrictions on the scope of Section 438, especially when no such restrictions have been imposed by the legislature in the terms of that section. Section 438 is a procedural provision which is concerned with the personal liberty of the individual, who is entitled to the benefit of the presumption of innocence since he is not, on the date of his application for anticipatory bail, convicted of the offence in respect of which he seeks bail. An overgenerous infusion of constraints and conditions which are not to be found in Section 438 can make its provisions constitutionally vulnerable since the right to personal freedom cannot be made to depend on compliance with unreasonable restrictions. The beneficient provision contained in Section 438must be saved, not jettisoned. No doubt can linger after the decision in Maneka Gandhi that in order to meet the challenge ofArticle 21of the Constitution, the procedure established by law for depriving a person of his liberty must be fair, just and reasonable.Section 438, in the form in which it is conceived by the legislature, is open to no exception on the ground that it prescribes a procedure which is unjust or unfair. We ought, at all costs, to avoid throwing it open to a Constitutional challenge by reading words in it which are not be found therein"

41. On an overall consideration of the above the Court is of the considered view that Harendra Singh when interpreted and understood in the manner indicated above, rightly balances the issues that arise. While it was urged that the aforesaid decision would be per incuriam the views expressed by our Full Bench in Onkar Nath Agarwal and the decision of the Constitution Bench in Sibbia, this Court finds no merit in that submission since as noted above, even Onkar Nath Agarwal had envisaged situations where the High Court may relegate parties to the Court of Sessions and refuse to invoke its jurisdiction. Insofar as Sibbia is concerned, it becomes relevant to bear in mind that the Constitution Bench was not dealing with the issue that arises for our consideration directly. The observations with regard to the exercise of discretion as appearing therein were entered in the context of the principles formulated by the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court relating to the exercise of power under Section 438 itself. The issue of a self imposed restraint exercised by the High Court in light of the contemporaneous jurisdiction conferred on the Court of Session was not a question directly in issue. The argument of per incuriam is thus liable to be and is consequently rejected.

42. The legal position which consequently emerges is that notwithstanding the concurrent jurisdiction being conferred on the High Court and the Court of Session for grant of anticipatory bail under Section 438 Cr.P.C., strong, cogent, compelling reasons and special circumstances must necessarily be found to exist in justification of the High Court being approached first and without the avenue as available before the Court of Sessions being exhausted. Whether those factors are established or found to exist in the facts of a particular case must necessarily be left for the Court to consider in each case.

43. What would constitute "special circumstances" in light of the nature of the power conferred, must also be left to be gathered by the Judge on a due evaluation of the facts and circumstances of a particular case. It would perhaps be imprudent to exhaustively chronicle what would be special circumstances. As noticed above, it would be impossible to either identify or compendiously propound what would constitute special circumstances. Sibbia spoke of the "imperfect awareness of the needs of new situations". It is this constraint which necessitates the Court leaving it to the wisdom of the Judge and the discretion vested in him by statute. Without committing the folly of attempting to exhaustively enunciate what would constitute special circumstances or being understood to have done so, the High Court would be justified in entertaining a petition directly in the following, amongst other, circumstances:-

(A) Where bail, regular or anticipatory, of a coaccused has already been rejected by the Court of Sessions;

(B) Where an accused not residing within the jurisdiction of the concerned Sessions Court faces a threat of arrest;

(C) Where circumstances warrant immediate protection and where relegation to the Sessions Court would not subserve justice;

(D) Where time or situational constraints warrant immediate intervention.

These and other relevant factors would clearly constitute special circumstances entitling a party to directly approach the High Court for grant of anticipatory bail.

QUESTION E - The perceived conflict between the decisions rendered in Harendra Singh @ Harendra Bahadur Vs. The State of U.P.11 and Neeraj Yadav And Another Vs. State of U.P

44. Turning then to the issue of the perceived conflict between the views expressed in Harendra Singh and Neeraj Yadav, it becomes pertinent to note the following aspects. While Harendra Singh fails to notice the decision of the Full Bench in Onkar Nath Agrawal, the conclusions ultiamtely recorded by the learned Judge are in tune with what was ultimately laid down as the law by the Full Bench. It must also be borne in mind that Neeraj Yadav is firstly not a judgment but an interlocutory order. Although the same came to be passed after the final judgment was rendered in Harendra Singh, the learned Judge has not noticed the principles expounded in Harendra Singh. Notwithstanding these aspects surrounding the decisions aforementioned, this Court is of the firm view that there is essentially no conflict in the two decisions. While the the Full Bench in Onkar Nath Agrawal did hold that an application for anticipatory bail may be moved in the High Court without the applicant taking recourse to the Court of Sessions, it had also pertinently observed that there may be cases where the High Court may feel justified in asking the applicant to move the Sessions Court or even refer the matter to that Court on its own. The Full Bench clearly left it upon the discretion of the Judge hearing the case. The ultimate conclusion which came to be recorded cannot possibly be read oblivious of the observations as appearing in paragraph-8 of the report extracted above. As this Court reads the two decisions referred to by parties, it is manifest that there is no irreconcilable conflict in the views expressed. The decision in Harendra Singh as well as the interlocutory order made in Neeraj Yadav must be read in light of the authoritative pronouncement rendered by the Full Bench in Onkar Nath Agarwal and this Court finds no justification in the submission that the two take divergent or incompatible views.

QUESTION - F Impact of the Explanation to Section 438(2) Cr.P.C.

45. The Court then takes up for consideration the Explanation appended to sub-section (2) of Section 438 Cr.P.C.

As is evident from a bare reading of the Explanation, an order passed under sub-section (1) is not liable to be construed as an interlocutory order for the purposes of the Code. There are only two types of orders which can possibly be passed under sub-section (1) of Section 438. Significantly, no provision similar to the Explanation as inserted insofar as the provision applies and operates in the State of U.P., finds place either in the principal Act or in any of the other State Amendments made to Section 438 Cr.P.C. In terms of the provisions made in sub section (1), the particular Court which is moved by way of an application for grant of an anticipatory bail may either reject the application outrightly or issue an interim order of protection. It is only these two specie of orders which are dealt with by the Explanation. The final order to be passed on the application for grant of anticipatory bail is the one which is envisaged and provisioned for in sub-section (4) of that Section. Although the Explanation uses the expression "final order" that is clearly circumscribed by its connection to orders made under sub-section (1). All that consequently flows from the Explanation is that an order rejecting the application or any interim order made on the application pending final disposal ought and are to be viewed as final in character and in any case and for the purposes of the Code not to be construed as interlocutory orders. As this Court reads the Explanation, it appears that the legislative intent was for the creation of a remedy to a party aggrieved by an order either rejecting the anticipatory bail application or an interim order of protection made thereon. The principal remedy under the Code against orders made in proceedings taken therein stands enshrined in Section 397 which creates the remedy of a revision. A revision is liable to be preferred only against a final order as distinct from an interlocutory order made in the course of proceedings. Ordinarily and as is well settled an order granting or refusing bail has always been understood as being interlocutory in nature. This since and as has been repeatedly held an order on an application of bail is ordinarily interim and temporary in character. It is always open to a party to revive a prayer for the grant of bail notwithstanding the rejection of an earlier application. No finality stands attached to an order granting or refusing bail since it can always be renewed from time to time. The legislative intent underlying the insertion of this Explanation appears to be only to obviate and overcome this particular situation alone. Consequently, all that can possibly be deduced from the Explanation is that a party would have the right to assail and challenge an order rejecting an application for grant of anticipatory bail or an interim measure of protection passed on such an application in accordance with law and the provisions made in the Code. On such challenges being initiated, the orders passed under sub-section (1) of Section 438 would not be liable to be construed as interlocutory orders. The Explanation also appears to be a clear manifestation and adoption of the recommendations made by the Law Commission in its reports noticed hereinbefore, namely, of the need to create an avenue to challenge orders passed on applications for anticipatory bail.

46. The question which however remains to be answered is whether the Explanation so appended would foreclose the right of parties to move the High Court even after an application for anticipatory bail has come to be rejected by the Court of Sessions. The answer to this question must necessarily be in the negative for reasons which follow. At the very outset, it must be noted that Section 438 on its plain terms does not engraft or put in place such a bar. An order passed by the Sessions Court rejecting an application for grant of anticipatory bail is not conferred any finality. Of more significant import is the provision made in sub-section (7) which provides that if an application under Section 438 has been made by any person to the High Court, no application by the same person shall be entertained by the Court of Sessions. Accordingly once the High Court has been moved under Section 438 Cr.P.C. by way of an application, the same applicant cannot then and thereafter move the Court of Sessions. However and significantly no converse restriction stands placed so as to denude the High Court of the jurisdiction to entertain an application for grant of anticipatory bail even at the instance of a person who may have initially approached the Court of Sessions. The Court notes the provisions made in Section 397(3) of Cr.P.C. which do place such a restriction. However the absence of a similar provision speaks eloquently of a lack of legislative intent for such a prohibition being envisaged.

47. The insertion of the Explanation does not lead this Court to hold that it denudes this Court of the jurisdiction to entertain and decide an application for anticipatory bail notwithstanding a similar application having been denied by the Court of Sessions. The mere creation of a remedy cannot be read as debarring the jurisdiction of a superior Court. There must necessarily be an express legislative command and intendment in support of such a contention. The Court also bears in mind that while the Law Commission Reports did recommed the insertion of a provision denying the right of a second application for grant of anticipatory bail, that recommendation was not accepted. The Legislature while having the benefit of both those reports, chose not to introduce such a restriction. This only leads the Court to hold that there was a conscious decision to not introduce such a restraint and consequently the right of the High Court to entertain a prayer for anticipatory bail notwithstanding the rejection of such a prayer by the Court of Sessions stands preserved and affirmed.

48. On an overall analysis of the aforesaid legal position, it is therefore evident that while the Explanation may have created an avenue for an aggrieved person to challenge an order passed under Section 438(1), it cannot be construed or viewed as barring the jurisdiction of the High Court from entertaining an application for grant of anticipatory bail notwithstanding that prayer having been refused by the Court of Sessions.

QUESTION G- The period for which anticipatory bail should operate.

49. That then leaves the Court to deal with the last question which was framed relating to the period for which an anticipatory bail should operate. Undisputedly, the question of whether protection accorded under Section 438 should be limited to a fixed period or not has been referred for the consideration of a Larger Bench of the Supreme Court in terms of the order passed in Sushila Aggarwal & Ors. Vs. State (NCT Of Delhi) & Anr12. The questions formulated for the consideration of the Larger Bench read thus:

"(1) Whether the protection granted to a person under Section 438 CrPC should be limited to a fixed period so as to enable the person to surrender before the Trial Court and seek regular bail.

(2) Whether the life of an anticipatory bail should end at the time and stage when the accused is summoned by the court."

50. It becomes relevant to note that this issue was firstly dealt by the Constitution Bench in Sibbia, where the following observations came to be entered:

"42. There was some discussion before us on certain minor modalities regarding the passing of bail orders under Section 438(1). Can an order of bail be passed under that section without notice to the Public Prosecutor? It can be. But notice should issue to the Public Prosecutor or the Government Advocate forthwith and the question of bail should be re-examined in the light of the respective contentions of the parties. The ad-interim order too must conform to the requirements of the section and suitable conditions should be imposed on the applicant even at that stage. Should the operation of an order passed underSection 438(1)be limited in point of time? Not necessarily. The court may, if there are reasons for doing so, limit the operation of the order to a short period until after the filing of an FIR in respect of the matter covered by the order. The applicant may in such cases be directed to obtain an order of bail underSection 437 or 439 of the Codewithin a reasonably short period after the filing of the FIR as aforesaid. But this need not be followed as an invariable rule. The normal role should be not to limit the operation of the order in relation to a period of time."

51. Subsequently, in Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre Vs. State of Maharashtra and Others13, the learned Judges of the Supreme Court summarize the legal position in the following terms:

"94. The proper course of action ought to be that after evaluating the averments and accusation available on the record if the court is inclined to grant anticipatory bail then an interim bail be granted and notice be issued to the Public Prosecutor. After hearing the Public Prosecutor the court may either reject the bail application or confirm the initial order of granting bail. The court would certainly be entitled to impose conditions for the grant of bail. The Public Prosecutor or the complainant would be at liberty to move the same court for cancellation or modifying the conditions of bail any time if liberty granted by the court is misused. The bail granted by the court should ordinarily be continued till the trial of the case.

95. The order granting anticipatory bail for a limited duration and thereafter directing the accused to surrender and apply for a regular bail is contrary to the legislative intention and the judgment of the Constitution Bench in Sibbia case."

52. However, in HDFC Bank Limited Vs. J.J. Mannan14 after noticing the Constitution Bench decision in Sibbia, it was held:

"14. Referring to the decision of the Constitution Bench in Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia v. State of Punjab, wherein the application of Section 438 CrPC had been considered in detail, Mr Dutta submitted that the said provision had been interpreted to be a beneficent provision relating to personal liberty guaranteed under Section 21 of the Constitution. Mr Dutta submitted that the Constitution Bench had observed that since denial of bail amounts to deprivation of personal liberty, the court should lean against the imposition of unnecessary restrictions on the scope of Section 438 CrPC.

18. Furthermore, it has also been consistently indicated that no blanket order could be passed under Section 438 CrPC to prevent the accused from being arrested at all in connection with the case. To avoid such an eventuality it was observed in Adri Dharan Das case that anticipatory bail is given for a limited duration to enable the accused to surrender and to obtain regular bail. The same view was reiterated in Salauddin case wherein it was, inter alia, observed that anticipatory bail should be of limited duration only and primarily on the expiry of that duration or extended duration, the court granting anticipatory bail should leave it to the regular court to deal with the matter on an appreciation of evidence placed before it after the investigation has made progress or the charge-sheet is submitted.

19. The object of Section 438 CrPC has been repeatedly explained by this Court and the High Courts to mean that a person should not be harassed or humiliated in order to satisfy the grudge or personal vendetta of the complainant. But at the same time the provisions of Section 438 CrPC cannot also be invoked to exempt the accused from surrendering to the court after the investigation is complete and if charge-sheet is filed against him. Such an interpretation would amount to violence to the provisions of Section 438 CrPC, since even though a charge-sheet may be filed against an accused and charge is framed against him, he may still not appear before the court at all even during the trial.

20. Section 438 CrPC contemplates arrest at the stage of investigation and provides a mechanism for an accused to be released on bail should he be arrested during the period of investigation. Once the investigation makes out a case against him and he is included as an accused in the charge-sheet, the accused has to surrender to the custody of the court and pray for regular bail. On the strength of an order granting anticipatory bail, an accused against whom charge has been framed, cannot avoid appearing before the trial court.

21. If what has been submitted on behalf of the appellant that Respondent 1 has never appeared before the trial court is to be accepted, it will lead to the absurd situation that charge was framed against the accused in his absence, which would defeat the very purpose of sub-section (2) of Section 240 CrPC."

53. Again and more recently, three learned Judges in Satpal Singh Vs. The State of Punjab15 held:

"14. In any case, the protection under Section 438, Cr.P.C. is available to the accused only till the court summons the accused based on the charge sheet (report under Section 173(2), Cr.P.C.). On such appearance, the accused has to seek regular bail under Section 439 Cr.P.C. and that application has to be considered by the court on its own merits. Merely because an accused was under the protection of anticipatory bail granted under Section 438 Cr.P.C. that does not mean that he is automatically entitled to regular bail under Section 439 Cr.P.C. The satisfaction of the court for granting protection under Section 438 Cr.P.C. is different from the one under Section 439 Cr.P.C. while considering regular bail."

54. Mhetre was a decision rendered by two learned Judges of the Supreme Court. The decision in HDFC Bank Limited was rendered by a Bench of coordinate strength. However, Satpal Singh which is the latest decision before us has been rendered by a Larger Bench comprising of the three learned Judges of the Court. Even the Bench of three learned Judges who presided over the matter of Sushila Aggarwal & Ors have made the following observations:

"9. Also having heard learned counsel appearing on both sides, we are of the prima facie view that the Constitution Bench in Sibbia (supra) has not laid down the law that once an anticipatory bail, it is an anticipatory bail forever.

10. In Sibbia (supra), this Court has briefly dealt with the question of duration of anticipatory bail. It seems to us that the discussion primarily pertained to grant of anticipatory bail at the pre-FIR stage (see paragraph 43 quoted below). It appears that there are indications in Sibbia (supra) that anticipatory bail may be for a limited period. To quote paragraphs 19, 40, 42 and 43:-

"19. ... While granting relief under Section 438(1), appropriate conditions can be imposed under Section 438(2) so as to ensure an uninterrupted investigation. One of such conditions can even be that in the event of the police making out a case of a likely discovery under Section 27 of the Evidence Act, the person released on bail shall be liable to be taken in police custody for facilitating the discovery. Besides, if and when the occasion arises, it may be possible for the prosecution to claim the benefit of Section 27 of the Evidence Act in regard to a discovery of facts made in pursuance of information supplied by a person released on bail by invoking the principle stated by this Court in State of U.P. v. Deoman Upadhyaya to the effect that when a person not in custody approaches a police officer investigating an offence and offers to give information leading to the discovery of a fact, having a bearing on the charge which may be made against him, he may appropriately be deemed so have surrendered himself to the police. The broad foundation of this rule is stated to be that Section 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not contemplate any formality before a person can be said to be taken in custody: submission to the custody by word or action by a person is sufficient. For similar reasons, we are unable to agree that anticipatory bail should be refused if a legitimate case for the remand of the offender to the police custody under Section 167(2) of the Code is made out by the investigating agency.

40. We have said that there is one proposition formulated by the High Court with which we are inclined to agree. That is proposition (2). We agree that a "blanket order' of anticipatory bail should not generally be passed. This flows from the very language of the section which, as discussed above, requires the applicant to show that he has "reason to believe" that he may be arrested. A belief can be said to be founded on reasonable grounds only if there is something tangible to go by on the basis of which it can be said that the applicant's apprehension that he may be arrested is genuine. That is why, normally, a direction should not issue underSection 438(1)to the effect that the applicant shall be released on bail "whenever arrested for whichever offence whatsoever". That is what is meant by a "blanket order' of anticipatory bail, an order which serves as a blanket to cover or protect any and every kind of allegedly unlawful activity, in fact any eventuality, likely or unlikely regarding which, no concrete information can possibly be had. The rationale of a direction underSection 438(1)is the belief of the applicant founded on reasonable grounds that he may be arrested for a non-bailable offence. It is unrealistic to expect the applicant to draw up his application with the meticulousness of a pleading in a civil case and such is not requirement of the section. But specific events and facts must be disclosed by the applicant in order to enable the court to judge of the reasonableness of his belief, the existence of which is the sine qua non of the exercise of power conferred by the section.

42. There was some discussion before us on certain minor modalities regarding the passing of bail orders under Section 438(1). Can an order of bail be passed under that section without notice to the Public Prosecutor? It can be. But notice should issue to the Public Prosecutor or the Government Advocate forthwith and the question of bail should be re-examined in the light of the respective contentions of the parties. The ad-interim order too must conform to the requirements of the section and suitable conditions should be imposed on the applicant even at that stage. Should the operation of an order passed underSection 438(1)be limited in point of time? Not necessarily. The court may, if there are reasons for doing so, limit the operation of the order to a short period until after the filing of an FIR in respect of the matter covered by the order. The applicant may in such cases be directed to obtain an order of bail underSection 437 or 439 of the Codewithin a reasonably short period after the filing of the FIR as aforesaid. But this need not be followed as an invariable rule. The normal role should be not to limit the operation of the order in relation to a period of time.

43. During the last couple of years this Court, while dealing with appeals against orders passed by various High Courts, has granted anticipatory bail to many a person by imposing conditions set out in Section 438(2)(i), (ii) and (iii). The court has, in addition, directed in most of those cases that (a) the applicant should surrender himself to the police for a brief period if a discovery is to be made under Section 27 of the Evidence Act or that he should be deemed to have surrendered himself if such a discovery is to be made. In certain exceptional cases, the court has, in view of the material placed before it, directed that the order of anticipatory bail will remain in operation only for a week or so until after the filing of the FIR in respect of matters covered by the order. These orders, on the whole, have worked satisfactorily, causing the least inconvenience to the individuals concerned and least interference with the investigational rights of the police. The court has attempted through those orders to strike a balance between the individual's right to personal freedom and the investigational rights of the police. The appellants who were refused anticipatory bail by various courts have long since been released by this Court under Section 438(1) of the Code."

11. In the light of the conflicting views of the different Benches of varying strength, we are of the opinion that the legal position needs to be authoritatively settled in clear and unambiguous terms."

55. Judicial propriety and discipline mandates this Court following the view expressed by a larger Bench in a subsequent decision. It would therefore be appropriate and correct to follow the view expressed by the Larger Bench of the Supreme Court in the decisions rendered after Mhetre as laying down the principle liable to be followed till such time as the question is authoritatively settled by the Larger Bench of the Supreme Court. Consequently, it must be held that an order granting anticipatory bail would be entitled to continue only till the Court summons the accused based on the report that may be submitted under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. whereafter it would be open for the applicant on appearance to seek regular bail in accordance with the provisions made in Section 439 Cr.P.C.

CONCLUSIONS

56. In light of what has been held above, the Court records its conclusions on the questions formulated as under:-

A. Section 438 Cr.P.C. on its plain terms does not mandate or require a party to first approach the Sessions Court before applying to the High Court for grant of anticipatory bail. The provision as it stands does not require an individual first being relegated to the Court of Sessions before being granted the right of audience before this Court.

B. Notwithstanding concurrent jurisdiction being conferred on the High Court and the Court of Session for grant of anticipatory bail under Section 438 Cr.P.C., strong, cogent, compelling and special circumstances must necessarily be found to exist in justification of the High Court being approached first without the avenue as available before the Court of Sessions being exhausted. Whether those factors are established or found to exist in the facts of a particular case must necessarily be left for the Court to consider in each individual matter.

C. The words "exceptional" or "extraordinary" are understood to mean atypical, rare, out of the ordinary, unusual or uncommon. If the jurisdiction of the Court as conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. be circumscribed or be recognised to be moved only in exceptional situations it would again amount to fettering and constricting the discretion otherwise conferred by Section 438 Cr.P.C. Such a construction would be in clear conflict of the statutory mandate. The ratio of Harendra Singh must be recognised to be the requirement of establishing the existence of special, weighty and compelling reasons and circumstances justifying the invocation of the jurisdiction of this Court even though a wholesome avenue of redress was available before the Court of Sessions

D. What would constitute "special circumstances" in light of the nature of the power conferred, must be left to be gathered by the Judge on a due evaluation of the facts and circumstances of a particular case. It would be imprudent to exhaustively chronicle what would be special circumstances. It is impossible to either identify or compendiously postulate what would constitute special circumstances. Sibbia spoke of the "imperfect awareness of the needs of new situations". It is this constraint which necessitates the Court leaving it to the wisdom of the Judge and the discretion vested in him by statute.

E. While the Explanation may have created an avenue for an aggrieved person to challenge an order passed under Section 438(1), it cannot be construed or viewed as barring the jurisdiction of the High Court from entertaining an application for grant of anticipatory bail notwithstanding that prayer having been refused by the Court of Sessions.

F. Till such time as the question with respect to the period for which an order under Section 438 Cr.P.C. should operate is answered by the Larger Bench, the Court granting anticipatory bail would have to specify that it would continue only till the Court summons the accused based on the report that may be submitted under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. whereafter it would be open for the applicant on appearance to seek regular bail in accordance with the provisions made in Section 439 Cr.P.C.

57. Before parting and proceeding to deal with individual matters, it would be pertinent to enter the following note of caution. Section 438 Cr.P.C. came to be reintroduced in the State in June 2019. It provides a salutary and meaningful remedy to individuals in tune with the constitutional guarantee of personal liberty and provides a remedy to persons against the ignominy of unwarranted harassment and arrest. However in order to avail the remedy, it must be substantively and conclusively established that there is a genuine and imminent threat of arrest. An application for grant of anticipatory bail cannot rest on vague and unsubstantiated allegations nor can the application be instituted without the disclosure of material particulars in support of the percieved threat. An application under Section 438 Cr.P.C. would also not be entitled to be entertained at the behest of one who has failed to join or cooperate with the investigation or one against whom a proclamation of being absconding has come to be made. It would be worthwhile to recollect the following pertinent observations as made by the Supreme Court in Rashmi Rekha Thatoi Vs. State of Orissa16 while expounding on the parameters of the jurisdiction conferred by that provision:-

"25. In Savitri Agarwal v. State of Maharashtra [(2009) 8 SCC 325 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 683] the Bench culled out the principles laid down in Gurbaksh Singh [(1980) 2 SCC 565 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 465 : AIR 1980 SC 1632] . Some principles which are necessary to be reproduced are as follows: (Savitri Agarwal case [(2009) 8 SCC 325 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 683] , SCC pp. 333-34, para 24)

"24. ... (ii) Before power under sub-section (1) of Section 438 of the Code is exercised, the court must be satisfied that the applicant invoking the provision has reason to believe that he is likely to be arrested for a non-bailable offence and that belief must be founded on reasonable grounds. Mere "fear' is not belief, for which reason, it is not enough for the applicant to show that he has some sort of vague apprehension that someone is going to make an accusation against him, in pursuance of which he may be arrested. The grounds on which the belief of the applicant is based that he may be arrested for a non-bailable offence, must be capable of being examined by the court objectively. Specific events and facts must be disclosed by the applicant in order to enable the court to judge the reasonableness of his belief, the existence of which is the sine qua non of the exercise of power conferred by the section.

(vii) The provisions of Section 438 cannot be invoked after the arrest of the accused. After arrest, the accused must seek his remedy under Section 437 or Section 439 of the Code, if he wants to be released on bail in respect of the offence or offences for which he is arrested.

(viii) An interim bail order can be passed under Section 438 of the Code without notice to the Public Prosecutor but notice should be issued to the Public Prosecutor or to the Government Advocate forthwith and the question of bail should be re-examined in the light of respective contentions of the parties. The ad interim order too must conform to the requirements of the section and suitable conditions should be imposed on the applicant even at that stage."

58. Reverting to the facts of the present application, the Court notes that the FIR was registered on 11 July 2019. The Court of Sessions was moved sometime in October 2019 and the said application came to be dismissed by the Sessions Judge on 16 October 2019. In the entire petition, there is no allegation or affirmation that the applicant apprehends arrest. No factual foundation has been laid in the application except to the extent of an assertion that the applicant has been falsely implicated in the case. In the absence of even a rudimentary foundation having been laid with respect to the perceived apprehension of arrest, the Court comes to the conclusion that no ground has been made out for the grant of anticipatory bail to the applicant in the facts and circumstances of the present case.

59. Accordingly the prayer so made is refused.

A. Constitution of India - Article 173(b) - Representation of the People's Act 1951 – Disqualification of member - State Legislative election – a candidate is not qualified unless he has attained the age specified in the clause on the date fixed for scrutiny of nominations - it is beyond any cavil that in the event a person is elected who does not fulfill the constitutional requirements, the election would be void despite the fact that the Returning Officer has accepted his nomination paper.

The respondent was not qualified to contest the election for member of legislative assembly in view of Article 173(b) of the constitution of India, inasmuch as the respondent was less than 25 years of age when he filed his nomination papers. (Para 4)

B. Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, Section 103 - Burden of Proof - the burden of proof to show that a candidate who was disqualified as on the date of the nomination would be on the election petitioner - the initial burden of proof that nomination paper of an elected candidate has wrongly been accepted is on the election petitioner. (Para 21, 56 & 57)

C. Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, Section 106 – Burden of proving fact especially within knowledge.

The age of a person in an election petition has to be determined not only on the basis of the materials placed on record but also upon taking into consideration the circumstances attending thereto - The initial burden to prove the allegations made in the election petition although was upon the election petitioner but for proving the facts which were within the special knowledge of the respondent, the burden was upon him in terms of Section 106 of the Evidence Act - It is also trite that when both parties have adduced evidence, the question of the onus of proof becomes academic Furthermore, an admission on the part of a party to the lis shall be binding on him and in any event a presumption must be made that the same is taken to be established. (Para 21)

Held: - The respondent was less than Twenty-Five Years of age on the date of filing nomination in State Legislative Election.(Para 55)

Submissions on behalf of Election-petitioner

12. Sri Navin Sinha, learned counsel for the petitioner submits as under:

(i) Article 173 (b) of the Constitution of India provides that person shall not be qualified to be chosen to fill a seat in the legislature of a State unless he is, in the case of a seat in the legislative assembly, not less than 25 years of age and, in the case of a seat in the legislative council not less than 30 years of age. Therefore, the respondent being less than 25 years of age as on the date of filing of nomination papers, on the date of scrutiny and on the date of declaration of result was not qualified to contest the election of the State legislative assembly. Therefore, his election is null and void.

(ii) The facts in support of the ground to challenge the election of the respondent are mentioned in paragraph 25 and sub paragraph of the election petition which are reiterated.

(iii) Ex. P-4 (Paper No. A25/1) is the Class X mark sheet/certificate of the respondent issued by the Central Board of Secondary Education in the year 2007 in which respondent's date of birth is recorded as 01.01.1993. As per Ex. P-1, P-2 and P-3, also the date of birth of the respondent is 01.01.1993. In paragraph 13 of the Election petition, the election petitioner has clearly stated that the date of birth 30.09.1990 as mentioned in the Adhar Card is not the correct date of birth of the respondent - Mohd. Abdullah Azam Khan and infact the certificate of Secondary School Examination (Class 10th) of the respondent issued by Central Board of Secondary Education New Delhi correctly reflects his date of birth. This paragraph has been replied by the respondent in paragraph 13 of the written statement in which he has not denied the Ex. P4 which has also been filed as Annexure 4 to the Election-petition and instead he merely stated that his date of birth is incorrectly mentioned or recorded as 01.01.1993 in the certificate for Secondary School Examination (Class 10th) issued by CBSE, New Delhi, for which he has already taken steps for correction. Thus, it has been well proved that the date of birth of the respondent has always been recorded as 01.01.1993 from the very beginning. He has also disclosed his date of birth as 01.01.1993 while obtaining passport in the year 2006 and in the year 2012. As per birth certificate issued by Registrar of Birth and Death, Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur, the date of birth of the respondent is 01.01.1993. The witness have also proved his date of birth as 01.01.1993. Even her mother has filed a nomination form for group insurance scheme in the year 2001 in which she has mentioned age of the respondent to be 8 years which also shows the birth year of the respondent to be the year 1993. Thus, from the evidences it has been well established that the respondent was born in the year 1993 and not on 30.09.1990.

(iv) In paragraphs 54 and 55 of the written statement the respondent has stated that in the year 2015 while he was pursuing his studies of M.Tech and was forwarding towards his carrier/job, he scrutinised his educational records and then came to know that his date of birth is incorrectly recorded as 01.01.1993 in place of 30.09.1990 and then he took immediate steps for correction of the same by filing an application on 23.03.2015 under the provisions of the Examination bye laws of the CBSE, New Delhi. The CBSE has not accepted the application of the respondent. Thus, his date of birth as per Clause 10th mark sheet/certificate continues to be 01.01.1993 which is also supported by various documentary and oral evidences on record.

(v) The alleged Adhar Card and voter ID Card are not proof of age or birth. That apart all these papers being relied by the respondent were obtained after March 2015. The evidence of D.W. 3 - Dr. Uma Singh to prove the duplicate birth certificate dated 21.04.2015 and that a male child born to the mother of the respondent are wholly untrustworthy and has no basis. That apart D.W. 3 herself stated that she can not say that the child was born to Tazeen Fatima on 30.09.1990 is the respondent. She admitted that the register produced by her is not authenticated and does not bear signatures of any Officer or staff of the hospital. She also admitted that she has not made entries regarding birth of a child by Tazeen Fatima on 30.09.1990. As per witnesses of the respondent the entries in the birth register of Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, is made on the basis of intimation received from the hospital but no evidence has been led either that the hospital sent the intimation to the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow or the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, received such an intimation. In any case if actually any intimation was given by the Hospital to the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, regarding birth of the respondent then the birth would have been registered on 30.09.1990 or within one or two days of the receipt of the alleged intimation from the Hospital but the birth certificate of the respondent has been issued by the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, on mere asking by few lines affidavit of the mother of the respondent asking the Nagar Nigam, Luckow, to issue birth certificate. The Birth certificate so issued is a complete nullity particularly in view of the provisions of Section 13 of the Registration of Birth and Death Act. The birth certificate issued by the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow dated 21.01.2015 is manipulated and bogus.

(vi) The copy of EOT register and MLR register as well as oral evidence led by the respondent are untrustworthy and does not prove that the respondent's date of birth is 30.09.1990. Infact these evidences are the result of manipulation and fabrication of record.

(vii) Father of the respondent Mohd. Azam Khan, was the Cabinet Minister in the U.P. Government in the year 2015 holding portfolio "Urban Planning and Development and Local Bodies" and the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow and Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur both were under his ministry. The birth certificate issued by Nagar Nigam, Lucknow and cancellation order of the old birth certificate of Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur are false, fabricated and procured manipulated piece of papers. These papers have been procured in breach of the Provisions of the Act. The alleged birth register shown by D.W. 2 is based on manipulation. After the birth certificate was procured by the respondent from the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, then the entire papers relating to his birth certificate issued by Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur were shown to have been burnt in an alleged fire on 08.05.2015 in the office of the Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur.

(viii) The Nagar Nigam, Lucknow has shown the date of registration of birth of the respondent on 21.01.2015 but shown the receipt of information of birth of the respondent in the month of April 2015 which shows that the birth certificate issued by the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow is false and is the result of manipulation and influence.

(ix) No conclusion can be drawn regarding the age of the respondent on the basis of Medical Board report dated 27.01.2017 (paper No.A-40 filed by the respondent alongwith list of papers). D.W. 8 - Dr Satibir Singh in his cross examination could not explain the conclusion of average age of 26 years. Therefore, no conclusion can be drawn about the age of the respondent on the basis of opinion of the medical board and that too against the documentary evidences.

(x) Entire family of the respondent is well educated. He himself is M.Tech. Her mother was a Professor of Political Science in a Degree College. His father is also highly educated and is a very active politician and has been Cabinet Minister in the State Government. From the very beginning his date of birth has always been recorded in various Government record as 01.01.1993. The respondent himself has applied for various certificates, PAN and Pass Port mentioning his date of birth as 01.01.1993. Therefore, the stand taken by the respondent in the present election-petition that while scrutinising his educational certificate in the year 2015 he came to know that his date of birth is incorrectly mentioned in Class 10th marksheet/certificate as 01.01.1993 is false. It is merely to contest the election that the respondent got falsely changed his date of birth.

(xi) The question of burden of proof has become academic inasmuch as both the parties have led their evidences on the point of age of the respondent.

(xii) Section 35 of the Evidence Act only provides for presumption of relevant fact of entries made by a public servant to discharge his official duty. Entries of such record can be proved by producing in evidence the person responsible for maintaining the register and for making entries therein. No such person responsible for maintaining the register and for making entries in EOT register, MLR register and birth register of the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, were produced by the respondent in evidence. Even D.W. 4 is the head of the Department of Obst. & Gyno. of King George Hospital/Queen Mary's Hospital and she has stated in a letter addressed to the Information Officer that no record is kept by the Hospital beyond 10 years and, therefore, it is not possible to give copy of entries of the year 1990. However, surprisingly unauthinticated unsigned EOT and MLR registers were produced by D.W.-3 and D.W.-4 in evidence. D.W.-2 Dr. Archana Dwivedi, Assistant Municipal Commissioner is not the person who has maintained or made entries in the birth register of the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow. The alleged birth register also does not bear signature of any Officer or employee. It is not an authenticated register. It has not been maintained in terms of the provisions of the Registration of Birth and Death Act and the Rules framed thereunder. Therefore, the birth certificate issued by the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow on the basis of such a register is of no consequence, unproved and totally irrelevant. Even the procedure as stated by D.W.-3 and D.W. 4 was not adopted while issuing duplicate birth certificate of Queen Mary's Hospital.

13. Lastly, he submitted that as per documentary evidences on record the date of birth of respondent is 01.01.1993 and he was below 25 years of age at the time of filing of his nomination papers, scrutiny of the nomination papers and declaration of the result. Therefore, his election is null and void as he was not qualified to contest the election. Consequently, his election deserves to be set aside.

14. Sri Sinha has relied upon judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sushil Kumar Vs. Rakesh Kumar 2003 8 SCC 673, (paras 23 to 41, 44, 51, 79 and 80), Mukarrab and others Vs. State of U.P. (2017) 2 SCC 210 (paras 26 to 29) on the point of Ossification test and the judgment of this Court in Misc. Bench No.13419 of 2018 (Smt. Parwati Kumari and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, judgment dated 09.01.2019 (paras 8 and 13) and in Zeba Haseeb @ Ankita Vs. State of U.P. And others 2015 (2) ADJ 215 (paras 16 and 17).

Submissions on behalf of the respondent

15. Sri N.K. Pandey, learned counsel for the respondent submits as under:-

(i) Onus is on the election petitioner to adduce evidence in support of Issue Nos.(a) & (b) in view of the provisions of Order XVIII Rule 2(1) of the CPC.

(ii) The election-petitioner has failed to file a certified copy of the Class 10th marksheet/certificate of the respondent issued by CBSE. Therefore, such a certificate can not be relied. It is an internet copy downloaded from the website of the CBSE Board and not a copy issued by the CBSE Board.

(iii) The news paper cutting etc. as alleged in the election petition, have neither been filed in evidence nor could be proved by the election-petitioner.

(iv) The respondent has clearly stated in paragraph 16 of the written statement that his date of birth was incorrectly recorded as 01.01.1993 in the certificate of Class 10th examination.

(v) In paragraph 51 of the written statement it was explained that four issues were born to the mother of the respondent out of which only two survived, namely, the respondent and his elder brother Mohd. Adil. Complete details in this regard has been given in paragraphs 48 and 49 of the written statement.

(vii) Document No.1 filed alongwith the election petition contains some document which were not even part of nomination papers.

(viii) The date of birth mentioned in the pass port of the respondent issued on 10.01.2018 correctly records his date of birth as 30.09.1990 and the date of birth was lawfully got corrected.

(viii) The P.W.- 4 is which the authorised Officer/Deputy Registrar of Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur, who has stated that entire records relating to birth of the respondent were burnt in fire on 28.05.2015.

(ix) Respondent has well proved by documentary as well as oral evidence that he was born on 30.09.1990 and not on 01.01.1993.

(x) The birth of the respondent on 30.09.1990 is further proved from the facts that mother of the respondent's took maternity leave from 07.08.1990 to 04.11.1990(Ex R11).

16. In support of his submissions Sri Pandey has relied upon the judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Brij Mohan Singh Vs. Priya Brat Narain Sinha, AIR 1965 SC 282 (para 20 and 21) regarding mentioning of wrong date of birth in School Certificate, Birad Mal Singhvi Vs. Anand Purohit, 1988 Suppl. (1) SCC 604, regarding burden of proof to be on the election-petitioner, Thiru John Vs. The Returning Officer, AIR 1977 SC 1724 (paras 13,17,21,32,33) holding that since birth certificate was lost it could not be produced and, therefore, it must be held to be a neutral circumstances, Ravinder Singh Gorkhi Vs. State of U.P. (2006) 5 SCC 585 on the point of Section 35 of the Evidence Act and the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sushil Kumar Vs. Rakesh Kumar 2003, 8 SCC 673 (paragraphs 28 to 36).

Discussion, Analyses of Evidences and Findings

17. I have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsels for the parties and perused the records of the case and evidences led by the parties. Since issues No. (a) & (b) are interlinked, therefore, both these issues are being decided together.

Issue No. (a) & (b)

18. The whole controversy involved in the present election-petition is as to whether the respondent-winning candidate was below 25 years of age and thus not qualified to contest election from legislative assembly 34-Suar, District - Rampur, assembly constituency, under Article 173(b) of the Constitution of India, as on the date of filing nomination paper i.e. 25.01.2017, on the date of scrutiny of nomination paper i.e. 28.01.2017 or on the date of declaration of result i.e. 11.03.2017.

19. The respondent-winning candidate has set up the case in defence that his date of birth in Secondary School examination Class X result 2007 mark sheet was incorrectly mentioned as 01.01.1993 instead of 30.09.1990 and he came to know about it for the first time in the year 2015 while he was pursuing his studies of M.Tech. and was forwarding towards his carrier/job. Therefore, he took steps for correction of his date of birth as 30.09.1990 in place of wrongly mentioned date of birth 01.01.1993. However, date of birth has not yet been corrected in Class X CBSE Marksheet certificate 2007. On the other hand the election-petitioner has taken the stand that the respondent was born in the year 1993 and thus being below 25 years of age, he was not qualified to contest election of legislative assembly in view of provisions of Article 173(b) of the Constitution of India and, therefore, his election as member legislative assembly from 34-Suar, District - Rampur, assembly constituency, is liable to be set aside and be declared null and void. The election petitioner as well as the winning candidate/respondent have led various oral and documentary evidences as aforementioned.

(vii) Ex. P3 - paper No.80/1, copy of respondent's birth certificate dated 28.06.2012, issued by Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur, issued on the basis of original record of birth. This birth certificate was subsequently cancelled by the Registrar on 30.01.2015 on the application of the respondent.

Burden of Proof

21. The law with regard to burden of proof in election-petitions with regard to the age of a person and Section 103 of the Indian Evidence Act, has been authoritatively pronounced by Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraphs 28 to 32 of the judgment in the case of Sushil Kumar (supra) which is reproduced below:-

"28. It is no doubt true that the burden of proof to show that a candidate who was disqualified as on the date of the nomination would be on the election petitioner.

29. It is also true that the initial burden of proof that nomination paper of an elected candidate has wrongly been accepted is on the election petitioner.

30. In terms of Section 103 of the Indian Evidence Act, however, the burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the Court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any law that the proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person.

31. Furthermore, in relation to certain matters, the fact being within the special knowledge of the respondent, the burden to prove the same would be on him in terms of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act. However, the question as to whether the burden to prove a particular matter is on the plaintiff or the defendant would depend upon the nature of the dispute. [See Orissa Mining Corporation and another vs. Ananda Chandra Prusty, AIR 1997 SC 2274].

32. The age of a person in an election petition has to be determined not only on the basis of the materials placed on record but also upon taking into consideration the circumstances attending thereto. The initial burden to prove the allegations made in the election petition although was upon the election petitioner but for proving the facts which were within the special knowledge of the respondent, the burden was upon him in terms of Section 106 of the Evidence Act. It is also trite that when both parties have adduced evidence, the question of the onus of proof becomes academic [See Union of India and Others vs. Sugauli Sugar Works (P) Ltd., (1976) 3 SCC 32,(Para 14) and Cox and Kings (Agents) Ltd. vs. Their Workmen and Others, AIR 1977 SC 1666, (Para 36)]. Furthermore, an admission on the part of a party to the lis shall be binding on him and in any event a presumption must be made that the same is taken to be established."

(Emphasis supplied by me)

22. Applying the aforesaid settled principles of law, I find that the election-petitioner has discharged the initial burden of proof with regard to the age of the petitioner as has already been discussed in earlier paragraphs of this judgment. That apart in the present set of facts both the parties have adduced evidence on the question of age, therefore, the question of onus of proof becomes academic as held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Union of India and others Vs. Sugauli Sugar Works (P) Ltd. (1976) 3 SCC (para 36) which have been relied by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 32 of the judgment in the case of Sushil Kumar (supra).

Educational Certificate, Passports & Visa

23. The petitioner has set up case that the respondent was below 25 years of age when he filed nomination to contest the aforesaid assembly election. To prove this fact the election-petitioner has filed in evidence Ex.P-1, P-3 and P-4 as mentioned in Para 20 above in which respondent's date of birth is mentioned as 01.01.1993. The respondent has not disputed this fact but stated in paragraph 54 and 55 of the written statement that while scrutinising his Educational records in the year 2015 he came to know that his date of birth is incorrectly recorded as 01.01.1993 in place of 30.09.1990. The respondent and his parents are highly educated and socially and politically active. His father was Cabinet Minister in the U.P. State Government, His mother has been Professor and is sitting Member of Rajya Sabha. He himself is M.Tech. He has travelled to foreign countries several times on the basis of his passport obtained in the year 2006 and 2012 and visa in the year 2014 in which his date of birth was recorded as 01.01.1993 as disclosed by him. He obtained the pass port by moving an application under his own signature in the year 2006 and thereafter in the year 2012 (Ex. P-1 - Paper No.A-49/1-4) in which he himself mentioned his date of birth as 01.01.1993. He obtained visa and travelled to foreign countries prior to and subsequent to the year 2015 and always mentioned his date of birth as 01.01.1993. His parents got registered his birth with the Registrar of Birth Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur, mentioning his date of birth as 01.01.1993. When the Officer-in-charge/Sub-Registrar, Birth and Death, Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur, appeared in witness box as P.W.4, he did not produce the original records on the basis of which the birth certificate of the respondent bearing Registration No. RNPB-03857, dated 28.06.2012 Rampur was issued and instead merely produced the computer generated copy of birth certificate of the respondent. He stated that the entire record of the aforesaid birth certificate has burnt in fire on 08.05.2015 after the Registrar Birth and Death, Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur, cancelled it on 30.01.2015. Thus, the stand taken by the respondent in paragraph 54 and 55 of the written statement is not true. The respondent Has always been aware of the fact that in educational certificates and pass port etc. his date of birth is mentioned as 01.01.1993.

24. In his cross examination the respondent i.e. D.W.-10 has stated that he came to know in the year 2015 that his date of birth is mentioned as 01.01.1993 in Class 10th mark sheet. This is wholly unbelievable and apparently untrue in view of the fact that the respondent has obtained passport in the year 2006 and thereafter in the year 2012 and also obtained visa in the year 2014 and in all these papers his date of birth is mentioned as 01.01.1993. He travelled several times to foreign countries on the basis of the aforesaid passport and visa in which his date of birth is clearly mentioned as 01.01.1993. Facts in detail in this regard have already been discussed in earlier paragraphs of this judgment. In his evidence the respondent has not denied the passport obtained by him in the year 2006 and in the year 2012 or the visa obtained in the year 2014.

Birth Certificate issued by Nagar Nigam, Lucknow

25. Now, I proceed to examine whether birth certificate bearing Registration No.NNLKO - B-2015-292611 and date of registration 21.01.2015, issued by Registrar Birth and Death, Lucknow, on 21.01.2015 showing date of birth of the respondent as 30.09.1990, is a valid piece of paper/reliable evidence?

26. D.W.-2 - Dr. Archana Dwivedi, Additional Municipal Commissioner, Municipal Corporation, Lucknow, produced the complete original file relating to issuance of birth certificate of the respondent dated 21.01.2015 which contains merely the application of the respondent's mother and her affidavit both dated 17.01.2015 and a computerised sheet bearing particulars of registration of birth of the respondent. Copy of the aforesaid application and affidavit both dated 17.01.2015 submitted by the mother of the respondent before the Nagar Nigam Lucknow and filed in evidence as Ex.R-12 are pasted below (scanned copy):-

27. The D.W. -2 Dr. Archana Diwedi, Additional Municipal Commissioner, Municipal Corporation, Lucknow produced a birth register which is neither authenticated nor certified by any competent Officer nor paginated. In her cross examination she stated that the birth register is maintained by a clerk which is not in prescribed form as provided in the Registration of Birth and Death Act, 1969. She stated that list of Queen Mary's Hospital on the basis of which entry of the respondent's birth has been made in the birth register is not available. She stated that birth of the respondent was registered on 21.01.2015. Copy of the relevant two pages of the aforesaid birth register filed and attested by the D.W.-2 has been marked as Ex.12 (paper No.A-96/4-5) which are pasted below (scanned copy):-

28. The entry made in the aforesaid birth register of Nagar Nigam, Lucknow (Ex. R-12 - paper No. A 96/4-5) is a clear case of manipulation and interpolation. The entry of the respondent's birth has been inserted in the very little space at the bottom of the page showing it to have been made on 30.09.1990 mentioning the name of the respondent Mohd. Abdullah Azam Khan as HINDU male baby of Mrs. Tazeen Fatima, wife of Mohd. Azam Khan. Just one entry above the aforesaid entry of the respondent, is the entry in the name of one Sangeeta wife of Pankaj Gupta which as per endorsement of some officer, was made on 25.06.1993. Above the aforesaid entry dated 25.06.1993 is another entry in the name of one Vandana wife of R.N. Srivastava, made on 24.07.1992. The entries subsequent to the entry of the respondent's birth, appearing on the next page are the entries dated 02.10.1990, 03.10.1990,

26.09.1990 and 27.09.1990. The entries of the respondent's birth made in the aforesaid alleged birth register does not bear signature or order of any authority of the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, or a Sub-Divisional Magistrate. Thus, entry in the aforesaid birth register in the name of the respondent was not made on 30.09.1990

29. In paragraph No.5 of her affidavit (Ex. R-12) the D.W. -5 Mrs. Tazeen Fatima (mother of the respondent) herself stated that the birth of the respondent may be got verified from Hospital record of Queen Mary's Hospital. This clearly indicates that as on 17.01.2015 there was no entry in the name of the respondent in the alleged birth register of Nagar Nigam Lucknow (Ex. R-12 - paper No. A-96/4-5), otherwise she would have merely asked to issue birth certificate on the basis of the alleged entry in the birth register.

30. These facts leave no manner of doubt that the entry of respondent's birth in the alleged Birth Register of Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, showing his birth on 30.09.1990, was inserted much after 25.06.1993 and in all probabilities in the year 2015.

31. Facts aforestated leave no manner of doubt that the entry of the respondent's birth in the aforesaid birth register (Ex. R-12 - Paper No. A-96/4-5), was made by interpolation at the instance or under pressure of the interested parties. It was manipulation and fabrication. It shall not be out of place to mention that when the birth certificate dated 21.01.2015 of the respondent was got issued from Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, at that time the respondent's father was the Cabinet Minister of the Department of Urban Development and Local Bodies. Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, was under his ministry. Thus, the evidence of D.W.-5 - Mrs. Tazeen Fatima (mother of the respondent) and D.W. 10 (respondent) are false and wholly untrustworthy in so far as it relates to the entries of birth of the respondent on 30.09.1990.

32. That apart the respondent's mother Mrs. Tazeen Fatima (D.W.-5) moved the aforesaid application dated 17.01.2015, supported by an affidavit of the same date (Ex. R-12) to obtain birth certificate of the respondent from Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, in which she very conveniently concealed the fact of the then existing birth certificate of the respondent issued by the Registrar Birth and Death, Nagar Palika Parishad, Rampur (Ex. P-3 paper No.A-80/1), which she got cancelled subsequently on 30.01.2015.

33. The aforesaid application dated 17.01.2015 for issuance of birth certificate of the respondent was submitted by the mother of the respondent before the Nagar Swastha Adhikari, Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, after about 25 years of the alleged date of birth of the respondent which was endorsed by the some Officer of the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, on 19.01.2015 and a day thereafter birth certificate was issued to the respondent by the Registrar (Birth & Death) Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, without observance of mandatory provisions of Section 13 of the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969 (hereinafter referred to as the Act, 1969) and Rule 9 of the U.P. Registration of the Birth and Death Rules 2002 (hereinafter referred to as the U.P. Rules 2002). Copy of the computer generated sheet of birth registration filed by the D.W.-2 and marked as Ex. R-12 (Paper No.A-96/3) is pasted below (scanned copy):-

Delayed Registration of Birth

34. The relevant provisions for delayed registration of birth or death are the provisions of Section 13 of the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969 and Rule 9 of the U.P. Registration of Birth and Death Rules, 2002 which are reproduced below:

"Section 13. Delayed registration of births and deaths- (1) Any birth or death of which information is given to the Registrar after the expiry of the period specified therefore, but within thirty days of its occurrence, shall be registered on payment of such late fee as may be prescribed.

(2)Any birth or death of which delayed information is given to the Registrar after thirty days but within one year of its occurrence shall be registered only with the written permission of the prescribed authority and on payment of the prescribed fee and the production of an affidavit made before a notary public or any other officer authorized in this behalf by the State Government.*

(3)Any birth or death which has not been registered within one year of its occurrence shall be registered only on an order made by a magistrate of the first class or a Presidency Magistrate after verifying the correctness of the birth or death and on payment of the prescribed fee.

(4)The provisions of this section shall be without prejudice to any action that may be taken against a person for* failure on his part to register any birth or death within the time specified therefore and any such birth or death may be registered during the pendency of any such action."

"Rule 9. Authority for delayed registration under Sec. 13 and fee payable therefor- (1) Any birth or death of which information is given to the Registrar after the expiry of the period specified in Rule 5, but within thirty days of its occurrence, shall be registered on payment of a late fee of rupees two.

(2) Any birth or death of which information is given to the registrar after thirty days but within one year of its occurrence, shall be registered only with the written permission of the Additional District Registrar (Deputy Chief Medical Officer for Urban Areas and District Panchyat Raj Officer for Rural areas) and on payment of a late fee of rupees five.*

(3) Any birth or death which has not been registered within one year of its occurrence, shall be registered only on an order of Sub-Divisional Magistrate and on payment of late fee of rupees ten."

35. Sub Section (3) of Section 13 of the Act, 1969 specifically provides that any birth or death which has not been registered within one year of its occurrence, shall be registered only on an order made by a Magistrate of Ist Class or a Presidency Magistrate after verifying the correctness of the birth or death and on payment of the prescribed fee. Sub Rule 3 of Rule 9 specifically provides that any birth or death which has not been registered within one year of its occurrence shall be registered only on an order of Sub Divisional Magistrate and on payment of late fee of Rs. 10.

36. In Judgment dated 21.11.2014 in Zeba Haseeb @ Ankita and another Vs. State of U.P. And others 2015(2) ADJ 215 (Para 17, 24 & 26), this court considered question of validity of registration of birth after one year and issuance of birth certificate without following provisions of Section 13 of the Act 1969 and Rule 9 of the U.P. Rules 2002 and held/directed as under:-

"17..... Thus the birth certificate of petitioner No.2 of 8th September, 2014 was issued by the Birth/Death Registrar Kanpur Nagar Nigam, without following the due procedure of law. No verification of the correctness of the birth was made by the authorized officer i.e. S.D.M. Even the prescribed fee was deposited about a month after the birth certificate was issued. The application for issuing birth certificate was allegedly moved by the petitioner No.2 before an unauthorized officer on 4th September, 2014 and the certificate was issued in haste by an unauthorized officer. Thus the birth certificate dated 8.9.2014 of the petitioner No.2 is a complete nullity*. The authorities have acted unlawfully and in complete defiance of the provisions of the Act and the Rules. Even after filing of the affidavits no action has been taken by the Birth/Death, Registrar, Kanpur Nagar Nigam to delete immediately the entry of alleged birth recoded on the basis of the alleged birth certificate of the petitioner No.2 dated 8th September, 2014. The manner in which the authorities acted to issue birth certificate of petitioner No.2 shows that the delayed birth certificates are issued by the authorities on mere asking.* This not only violates the provisions of Section 13 (3) of the Act and Rule 9 of the Rules but also may facilitate misuse of birth certificates.

24. In view of the above discussions, the writ petition is dismissed. Looking into the facts and circumstances of the case, the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for Nagar Nigam Kanpur and the averments made by District Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar in her affidavits, following directions are issued:

(I) delayed registration of birth or death be made only on an order of the prescribed authority and strictly in accordance with the provisions of Section 13 of the Act and Rule 9 of the Rules.

(ii) The prescribed authority for the purposes of sub Section 3 of Section 13 of the Act read with Rule 9 (3) of the Rules is the Sub Divisional Magistrate of the area concerned and only he can pass an order for delayed registration of birth or death which has not been registered within one year of its occurrence. He can pass order for registration of birth or death only after verifying the correctness of the birth or death and on payment of the prescribed fee.

*(iii)Chief Secretary of the State Government shall issue strict instructions to all the District Magistrates, Sub-Divisional Magistrates and Local Bodies in the State for compliance of the above directions.

26. Let a copy of this judgment be sent by the Registrar General of this Court to the Chief Secretary of the Government of U.P. for strict compliance of the directions given in para 24 above. "

(Emphasis supplied by me)

37. Thus, the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, was having no jurisdiction to register birth of the respondent after 25 years of the alleged birth and to issue birth certificate of the respondent dated 21.01.2015 (Ex. R-12) without an order of a Sub-Divisional Magistrate under Section 13(3) of the Act, 1969 readwith Rule 9(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2002 and on payment of prescribed late fees but the aforesaid birth was registered and the birth certificate was issued without any order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate. Therefore, the aforesaid birth certificate of the respondent dated 21.01.2015 (Ex.P-2-Paper No.A-63/1) issued by the Registrar (Birth & Death), Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, registering 30.09.1990 as birth of the respondent is null and void. Apart from this, the entries of birth of respondent in the aforesaid birth register is the result of manipulation. Therefore, it is nullity and liable to be ignored.

Proving of Birth on 30.09.1990 by Entries in Hospital Papers & Oral Evidences

38. Ex. R-4 (paper No. A100/1-2) E.O.T. Register of Queen Mary's Hospital, Lucknow, showing entry of admission of TANZEEM FATIMA and birth of a male baby, is not trustworthy inasmuch as the entry at Annual No.5097 at Page 174 bears cuttings and overwriting and does not match with the entries of MLR Register (labour room register), (Ex. R-5-paper No.101/2). The fact of cuttings and overwriting and non matching of entries of the aforesaid two registers of Queen Mary's Hospital have also been admitted by the D.W.3 - Dr. Uma Singh, Sr. Gynecologist Queen Mary's Hospital (Department of Obst. & Gyno.), in her oral evidence dated 31.07.2019. She also admitted in her evidence that the aforesaid two register are neither authenticated nor have been counter signed by any Officer or Doctor of the Hospital nor she has signed entries regarding birth of a baby on 30.09.1990. She further stated that she can not say that the baby born as mentioned in the aforesaid two register on 30.09.1990 is the respondent. She admitted that it is the responsibility of the Chief Medical Superintendent to give information of births to Nagar Nigam and she was never given this responsibility and there is no post of Chief Medical Superintendent in the Hospital and the aforesaid register has been maintained by a clerk. The concerned clerk has not been produced in evidence by the respondent to prove alleged entries of the aforesaid two register. The D.W. 3 also stated in her oral evidence the procedure for issuance of duplicate birth certificate but could not produce the application of the respondent's mother for issuance of duplicate birth certificate. D.W.4 - Dr. Vineeta Das - HOD Obst. & Gyno., Queen Mary's Hospital, Lucknow, has stated that she has not made entries at Annual No.5097 page No. 174 of E.O.T. Register and she was never related to that delivery. She also stated in her cross examination that duplicate birth certificate is issued on the application received by the Chief Medical Superintendent. She neither named the medical consultant nominated to prepare the duplicate birth certificate nor could produce any document relating thereto.

39. The respondent could not prove that he was born on 30.09.1990. The evidence of his mother (D.W.-5) regarding his birth on 30.09.1990 in Queen Mary's Hospital, Lucknow, can not be relied in the absence of any corroborative evidence. Dr. Uma Singh (D.W.-3) whose evidence has been heavily relied by the respondent, has stated in her cross-examination that she can not say that the baby born on 30.09.1990 in Queen Mary's Hospital is the respondent. That apart, the mother of the respondent (D.W.-5) has her self submitted her G.I.S. Nomination form dated 26.04.2001 (Ex. R-11-Paper No.A95/25) under her own signature which is part of her service book, and which has been proved by the respondent's own witness D.W.-1 Sri Shailendra Kumar Tiwari, Assistant Director, Higher Education Directorate, U.P. Prayagraj. In her aforesaid nomination from dated 26.04.2001 D.W.-5 (mother of the respondent) has mentioned age of the respondent to be 8 years. Therefore, as per Ex.R-11 Paper No.A95/25, the respondent was born in the year 1993.

40. Ex. R-4 is the photostat copy of a page No.174 Emergency O.T. (E.O.T.) Register and Ex.R-5 is the photostat copy of the page No.225 Labor Register (MLR). Original of the aforesaid two registers were produced by the D.W.-3 Dr. Uma Singh.

41. Six questions put to the D.W. -3 by the petitioner's counsel with regard to the E.O.T. and MLR Registers (Ex. R-4 and Ex. R-5) and the answer given by her are reproduced below:-

42. Perusal of the Page 174 of E.O.T. Register (Ex. R-4) shows cutting and overwriting in the entry made in the name of "TANZEEM FATIMA". Column 13 (labour record) and column 16 (sex, weight and condition of child at birth) also do not contain material particulars as have been noted in the matter of other patients appearing on the same page i.e. page No.174. Page 225 of the MLR Register (Ex R-5) is the entry in the name of one "TAZEEM FATIMA" also contains cutting in annual number, does not contain date of admission and Registration Number. It records the period of pregnancy of 38 weeks as against the pregnancy of 32 weeks noted in the Ex. R-4.The D.W.-4 has stated that neither she has made the entries nor she was ever related to the said delivery. She stated that entries are made in both the registers by resident doctor on duty after delivery. Therefore, if it was so, there was no occasion to make entries in question in EOT register and MLR register in different names with different particulars and non matching of particulars etc. The D.W. -3 although supported the entries of the aforesaid two registers but admitted in her cross examination, the overwritings and non matching of the entries etc. She also stated that the register only says that a male baby was born but it can not be said that the baby born on 30.09.1990 is the respondent. She also admitted in her cross examination that both the aforesaid registers are neither authenticated nor verified by any Officer or the Head of the Department nor the entries made therein bear signature of any Officer or Doctor of the Hospital. She also admitted that she has neither made the entries in the aforesaid two registers nor that has been signed by her. The aforesaid entry in E.O.T. Register (Labour room) is in the name of one "TANZEEM FATIMA" while in the MLR Register it is in the name of "Mrs. TAZEEM FATIMA" which is written in a different hand writing with a different pen as compared to other particulars. The discharge Ticket is shown in the name of "TAZEEN FATIMA". Thus, entries of Ex. R-4 and R-5 could neither be proved by the respondent to be genuine nor it could be established that the baby shown in the aforesaid two registers to have born on 30.09.1990 is the respondent. The evidence of the D.W.-5 (respondent's mother) also does not inspire confidence inasmuch as she herself has submitted her GIS nomination form dated 26.04.2001 under her own signature which shows that the respondent was born in the year 1993. Ex.R-11 (paper No. A95/14-15 which is part of the service book of the respondent's mother reflects that she was on medical leave for 60 days from 17.08.1993 to 15.10.1993. For major period between 12.07.1993 to 23.12.1993 she took either medical leave or earned leave.

43. The discharge ticket (Ex. R-7-paper No. A38/1) is the phtostat copy of some paper which is said to have been verified by Professor Vineeta Das (D.W.-4), Head of the Department Obst. & Gyno., King George Hospital, Lucknow. Ex. R-8 (paper No. A-41/1) is the letter of the Public Information Officer/Chief Medical Superintendent of the King George Medical University, Lucknow, dated 21.09.17 whereby the information asked by the respondent's mother has been replied by the D.W.-4 by letter dated 12.09.2017 (Ex. R-8-Paper No. A-41/2). Perusal of this letter of the D.W. -4 shows that she stated that the hospital maintains records of only 10 years and, therefore, it is not possible to give copy of admission register. She also stated that the discharge ticket (Ex. R-7) as produced by the respondent's mother is being enclosed. Therefore, the Ex. No. R-7 i.e. photostat copy of discharge ticket Gandhi Memoria and Associated Hospital for indoor patient in the name of "TAZEEN FATIMA" is the paper which was produced by the respondent's mother before the D.W.-4 and in the absence of availability of admission register of the year 1990 it was not possible for the D.W.-4 to verify it.

44. The respondent also sought information from the King George Medical University, Lucknow, regarding his birth which was replied by the Public Information Officer vide letter dated 19.09.2017 (Ex. R-9- paper No. A42/1) enclosing therewith the information submitted by D.W.-4 in her letter dated 12.09.2017 (Ex. R9 - paper No.A42/3). Although there is no mention of name of the baby in the alleged E.O.T. Register (Ex. R-4) and MLR Register (Ex. R-5) yet the D.W.-4 stated in her aforesaid letter dated 12.09.2017 as under:-

46. The D.W.-3 who is said to be attending Doctor has herself stated in her Cross-examination that she can not say that the baby born as shown in the Ex. R-4 and Ex. R-5 is the respondent. Therefore, without there being any record before the D.W. -4 it was not possible for her to certify on 12.09.2017 (Ex. R-8) that the respondent was born in Queen Mary's Hospital, Lucknow, U.P., on 30.09.1990 and that true copy of page of the register containing particulars of birth of the respondent is enclosed. The copy enclosed with Ex. R-8 is the photostate copy of page 174 of the E.O.T. Register (Ex. R4) as admitted by the D.W.-4 in her cross examination in which there is no whisper of the birth of a baby mentioning name of the respondent. It is well know that a man may lie but the circumstances do not.

47. For all the reasons aforestated, I find that Ex. R-4, R-5, R-6, R-7, R-8 and R-9 and the evidences of D.W.-3 and D.W.10 do not established that the respondent was born on 30.09.1990 in Queen Mary's Hospital, Luknow.

Medical Examination Report

48. The respondent filed a copy of medical report dated 27.01.2017 issued by the Chief Medical Officer, Rampur, to contend that the Medical Board has determined the respondent's average age of 26 years on 27.01.2017. To prove this paper, he produced D.W.-8 - Dr. Satya Veer Singh Ken. In his cross examination the D.W.-8 stated that he is merely a Radiologist and has given merely X-Ray report. He also could not produce original report or records. Thus, the aforesaid medical report could not be proved. That apart, in Mukarrab and others Vs. State of U.P. (2017) 2 SCC 210 (paras 20 to 29), Hon'ble Supreme Court referred to its earlier judgments and held that "the age determination based on ossification test though may be useful is not conclusive. An X-ray ossification test can by no means be so infallible and accurate a test as to indicate the correct number of years and based of a person's life." Hon'ble Supreme Court further held that the age determination using ossification test does not yield accurate and precise conclusions. The general rule about age determination is that it can vary plus or minus two years. The date of birth is to be determined on the basis of material on record and on appreciation of evidence adduced by the parties. The medical evidence may be useful as guiding factor but it is not conclusive and has to be considered along with other cogent reasons. Thus, even if the aforesaid medical Board dated 27.01.2017 could be looked into then applying the plus minus two years factor, the age of the respondent in 2017 would come to 24 indicating birth year of the respondent to be the year 1993.

Evidence of D.W.-7 AND D.W.-9

49. The respondent's mother (D.W.-5) has been Reader of Political Science in Government P.G. College at Rampur between 09.07.1994 till the year 2004 and even thereafter (Ex. R-11) while father was M.L.A. yet the respondent in para 53 of the written statement and the mother (D.W.-5) in para 12 of her examination-in-chief have stated that D.W.-9 Sri Shahzeb Khan, has got admitted the respondent in nursery class in the year 1995 in St. Paul School, Rampur and inadvertently furnished/written date of birth of the respondent in the admission form whereas the D.W.-9 has stated in para 5 of his examination-in-chief that teacher has written date of birth of the respondent in the admission form. When the D.W.-7 (Arun Josheph Dayal. Director Saint Paul School) was cross-examined and a question was asked whether he has brought original record of admission, he replied: No, since he was not informed about it. He has not produced even school register. Thus, the evidence of the D.W.-7 and D.W.-9 do not prove the case of the respondent that the respondent was born on 30.09.1990.

Own declaration of respondent's mother while submitting GIS Nomination Form

50. As already discussed above, the respondent has filed in evidence Ex.R-11 (paper No.A95/1-34) which is copy of service book of the respondent's mother. The said Ex. R-11 has been proved by D.W.-1 Dr. Shailendra K. Tiwari, Assistant Director of Higher Education, U.P. Prayagraj. Paper No. A95/25 (part of Ex. No.R-11) is the GIS Nomination form submitted by the respondent's mother under his own signature on 26.04.2001 whereby she nominated the respondent and two others. She has specifically declared and mentioned the age of the respondent to be eight years in the aforesaid GIS nomination form on 26.4.2001. Thus as per her own declaration of the respondent's mother (D.W.-5) the year of the birth of the respondent comes to the year 1993. The arguments in this regard was also specifically raised by the Election-petitioner as noted in paragraph 12(iii) above and yet the respondent has not made any submission in this regard. Thus, the Ex. R-11 (paper No. A-95/25) is an undisputed piece of own evidence of the respondent which established that the respondent was born in the year 1993.

51. In view of the facts and evidences noted in the aforesaid paragraphs, it stands established that declaration of age of the respondent in Ex. R-11 (paper No.A95/25) is an admitted piece of evidence on the part of the respondent. Therefore, an admission on the part of the respondent to the lis shall be binding on him and in any event the presumption has to be made that the same is taken to be established. This principle also find support from the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sushil Kumar Vs. Rakesh Kumar 2003 (8) SCC 673, (paras 32).

Adhar Card, Voter I.D. Card and Driving Licence

52. Ex. P-2 (paper No. A66/1, A67/1 and A68/1) are copies of Adhar Card, driving licence and Voter I.D. Card respectively. The Adhar Card of the respondent's is dated 07.03.2015. The voter I.D. Card is dated 18.07.2015. The driving licence was corrected subsequently. All these papers are not evidence of date of birth of the respondent. Besides this the basis of date of birth mentioned in these papers is the respondents birth certificate dated 21.01.2015, issued by Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, which has been held to be nullity. Therefore, the date of birth of the respondent mentioned in paper Nos. A66/1, A67/1 and A68/1 is not the proof date of birth of the respondent. Adhar Card is means of identity and not proof of date of birth as has also been held by a Division Bench of this Court in judgment dated 09.01.2019 in Misc. Bench No.13419 of 2018 (Smt. Parvati Kumari and Ors. Vs. State of U.P. Thru. Principal Secretary Home & Ors.) in which several judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court including the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court dated 24.08.2017 in S.G. Vombatkere & Anr. Vs. Union of India, has been relied. In Sushil Kumar (supra) (para 51) Hon'ble Supreme Court held that date of birth of a voter contained in the voter list and the Election Identity Card issued by the Election Commission of India is not conclusive since they are recorded as per the statements made by the person concerned. Therefore, these papers do not conclusively establish that the respondent was above 25 years of age as on the date of filing of nomination paper or the declaration of result of legislative assembly election in question.

Effect of False Statements

53. The consequence of false statement is that adverse inference should be drawn. The discussion made in various paragraphs of this judgment particularly in relation to the procurement of birth certificate from Nagar Nigam, Lucknow, leaves no manner of doubt that the respondent has knowingly made false averment in the written statement. Hon'ble Supreme Court vide paragraphs 64 and 65 of the judgment in the case of Sushil Kumar (supra) has held as under:-

"64. Even otherwise, making a false statement before the court whether on affidavit or not is not to be treated lightly. The court acts on the basis of the statement made by a party to the lis. Whether such defence has been accepted or not is not of much importance but whether a false statement to the knowledge of the party has been made or not is. In any view of the matter, the court must draw an adverse inference in this behalf against the respondent.

65. Furthermore, a person should not be permitted to take advantage of his own wrong. He should either stand by his statement made before a court of law or should explain the same sufficiently. In absence of any satisfactory explanation, the court will presume that the statement before a court is correct and binding on the party on whose behalf the same has been made."

(Emphasis supplied by me)

54. In A. Shanmugam vs. Ariya Kshatriya Rajakula Vamsathu Madalaya Nandhavana Paripalanai Sangam and others, [(2012) 6 SCC 430] (Para-43.1 to 43.5)), Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:-

"43.1. It is the bounden duty of the Court to uphold the truth and do justice.

43.2. Every litigant is expected to state truth before the law court whether it is pleadings, affidavits or evidence. Dishonest and unscrupulous litigants have no place in law courts.

43.3. The ultimate object of the judicial proceedings is to discern the truth and do justice. It is imperative that pleadings and all other presentations before the court should be truthful.

43.4. Once the court discovers falsehood, concealment, distortion, obstruction or confusion in pleadings and documents, the court should in addition to full restitution impose appropriate costs. The court must ensure that there is no incentive for wrong doer in the temple of justice. Truth is the foundation of justice and it has to be the common endeavour of all to uphold the truth and no one should be permitted to pollute the stream of justice.

43.5. It is the bounden obligation of the Court to neutralize any unjust and/or undeserved benefit or advantage obtained by abusing the judicial process.

(Emphasis supplied by me)

55. The upshot of all the discussions made above is that the materials on record taken in their entirety together with the circumstantial evidence establishes that the respondent was less than Twenty Five Years of age on the date of filing nomination in State Legislative Election 2017 from 34 Suar Constituency of District Rampur.

56. In Amrit Lal Ambalal Patel Vs. Himathbhai Gomanbhai Patel, 1968 AIR 1455 1969 SCR (1) 277, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the effect of Article 173 is that a candidate is not qualified unless he has attained the age specified in the clause on the date fixed for scrutiny of nominations.

57. In Durga Shanker Mehta Vs. Thakur Raghuraj Singh, AIR 1954 SC 520 Hon'ble Supreme Court held that it is beyond any cavil that in the event a person is elected who does not fulfill the constitutional requirements, the election would be void despite the fact that the Returning Officer has accepted his nomination paper.

58. In Sushil Kumar Vs. Rakesh Kumar (2003) 8 SCC 673 (para 79)

Hon'ble Supreme Court held that Article 173(b) of the Constitution of India provides for a disqualification. A person can not be permitted to occupy an office for which he is disqualified. The endeavour of the Court therefore should be to see that a disqualified person should not hold the office but should not at the same time unseat a qualified person therefor.

Conclusion on Issue No.(a) and (b)

59. For all the reasons aforestated, I answer issues No.(a) and (b) in Negative, i.e. against the respondent that as on the date of filing of nomination paper on 25.1.2017 and on the date of scrutiny of nomination paper on 28.01.2017 and on the date of declaration of result of Legislative Assembly Election of 34-Suar Assembly Constituency of District Rampur on 11.03.2017 the respondent was less than Twenty Five Years of age and thus was not qualified to be chosen to fill the seat in legislature of the State in terms of Article 173 (b) of the Constitution of India.

Conclusion on Issue No.(c)

60. In view of my answer to issues No.(a) and (b) in NEGATIVE i.e. against the respondent, the Election Petition is allowed. The election of the respondent from 34-Suar Assembly Constituency is declared void and consequently it is set aside.

Order

61. In view of the aforesaid, the Election-Petition is Allowed. The election of the respondent from 34-Suar Assembly Constituency of District Rampur is declared void and consequently it is set aside. Let the substance of this decision be intimated by the Registrar General of this Court to the Election Commission and the Speaker of the Uttar Pradesh Legislative Assembly . A certified copy of this decision be sent to the Election Commission of India forthwith.

There shall be no order as to costs.

Representation of the People Act, 1951 - Section 80, 80-A ,81 and 100 - Section 123(2), read with Section 134 of the Act - Lok Sabha election – election petition is not an action at common law, nor in equity, but statutory in nature - the person filing election petition if not a "duly nominated candidate", will have "no locus standi to file an election petition .

An election petition, which does not disclose 'a cause of action', has to be dismissed at the threshold - 'Cause of action' invests the person with right to sue - When a person has no interest at all, or no sufficient interest to support a particular legal claim or action, he will have no locus standi to sue - Locus to maintain action in court of law, is threshold test, an integral part of cause of action, entitling a person to the relief claimed - Bereft of locus, no action, however sacrosanct, could survive - Thus, a plaint filed by a person having no locus to maintain the claim is but to be rejected. (Para 22)

Held: - The petitioner is neither an elector nor a candidate at the election which he seeks to challenge and would therefore have no locus to file election petition. (Para 60 & 71)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta,J.)

1. By means of the present petition, filed under Section 80, 80-A and 100 of the Representation of the People Act, 1951 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act'), the petitioner has called in question the election of the respondent to the 17th Lok Sabha from 77th Parliamentary Constituency (Varanasi), held in April - May 2019. The petitioner has sought a declaration to the effect that the election of the respondent be declared void and the order passed by the Returning Officer dated 1.5.2019, rejecting his nomination, be set aside. He has also made a prayer for taking action against the Returning Officer for misuse of official powers by invoking Section 123(2), read with Section 134 of the Act.

2. The petition was entertained by this court and notice was issued to the respondent, calling for his reply. In response thereto, the respondent entered appearance. An application was filed by him under Order 6 Rule 16 C.P.C. and Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C., read with Section 86(1) of the Act, praying for striking off paragraphs-4 to 28 of the petition and also for dismissing the same by exercising power under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C., as it discloses no cause of action and also for the reason that the petitioner has no locus standi to file the same. The petitioner filed a reply to the said application by way of a counter affidavit. Thereafter, Sri Shailendra, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner, assisted by Sri Dharmendra Singh, and Sri Satya Pal Jain, learned Senior Advocate for the respondent, assisted by Sri Dheeraj Jain, Sri K.R. Singh and Dr. Santosh Jain, were heard at length on the said application.

3. The case set up by the petitioner is that he filed his nomination for the election as an independent candidate on 24.4.2019. Subsequently, he filed another nomination as official candidate of Samajwadi Party on 29.4.2019, the last date for filing of nomination. He was issued a checklist by Returning Officer on the same date at 1:43 p.m., without raising any objection in regard to the nomination papers. On 30.4.2019, the date fixed for scrutiny, he received a notice from the Returning Officer at 3:03 p.m., followed by another notice on the same date, at 6:15 p.m., alleging that the petitioner had not filed certificate from the Election Commission to the effect that he had not been dismissed from the service of Government of India, on ground of corruption or disloyalty to the State, albeit, a period of five years had not expired from the date of his dismissal on the date of filing of the nominations, in terms of Section 9, read with Section 33(3) of the Act. The petitioner claims to have responded to the said notice by filing his dismissal order dated 19.4.2017, before the Returning Officer, pointing out that although he was dismissed from service of Government of India, but the dismissal was not on the ground of corruption or disloyalty to the State. It is also asserted that after receipt of second notice, he approached the Election Commission of India on the same day, by making an application be registered post and also be sending the same by E-mail, requesting it to issue the certificate contemplated under Section 9(2) of the Act. It is also asserted that on the next date, i.e. 1.5.2019, his Power of Attorney submitted application by hand in the office of the Election Commission of India at 9:00 a.m., but the certificate was not made available to him. His nomination paper was rejected on 1.5.2019 at 11:00 a.m. It is also alleged that till the filing of the election petition, he had not been informed about the fate of his application. He clams to have filed a writ petition, bearing number 646 of 2019, before the Supreme Court, under Article 32 of the Constitution of India, challenging the order of Returning Officer dated 1.5.2019, but which was rejected by the Supreme Court by order dated 9.5.2019, declining to entertain the same. It is asserted that News Channel ABP telecasted a programme on 16.5.2019 mentioning that the nomination of the petitioner was rejected on extraneous considerations and under pressure. The Returning Officer, as well as the Central Observer Praveen Kumar had not acted fairly, but in a partisan manner, in rejecting the nomination of the petitioner. The petitioner initially also impleaded the District Election Officer and the Election Observer, as party-respondents to the election petition, alleging that they did not discharge their functions objectively and action be taken against them for misusing their official powers by invoking Section 134 of the Act. However, on the very first date of hearing of the election petition, he got their names deleted from the array of parties. The petitioner has prayed for declaring the election of respondent to be void on the ground that his nomination was improperly rejected; that nomination of the respondent was wrongly accepted; and on account of misuse of official powers by the Returning Officer and the Central Observer.

4. It is clear from the facts stated in the election petition that the petitioner was in service of Government of India (Border Security Force) and was dismissed on 19.4.2017. On 24.4.2019, as well as on 29.4.2019, the two dates on which two different sets of nominations were filed, the period of five years had not elapsed, since the dismissal of the petitioner from service. It is also an admitted fact that along with his nomination papers, the petitioner did not file any certificate from the Election Commission of India to the effect that he had not been dismissed on ground of corruption or disloyalty to the State.

5. The application filed by the respondent under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C is primarily on the ground that the petitioner whose nomination was rejected, could not claim himself to be a candidate at the election, nor he was elector from the parliamentary constituency from where he filed his nomination and therefore, in view of Section 81 of the Act, he is not competent to file the election petition. It has also been alleged that the election petition is devoid of material facts, nor discloses any cause of action. The averments made are wholly vague and does not raise any triable issue for consideration by this court. It is also the case of the respondent that the pleadings are frivolous, vexatious, unnecessary, irrelevant and are of such nature which would prejudice and delay the fair trial of the election petition. Consequently, paragraphs-4 to 28 of the election petition are liable to be struck off. The allegations regarding wrongful acceptance of the nomination papers of the respondent is devoid of material particulars. Moreover, the allegation of alleged corrupt practice against officials of Election Commission of India, without stating any basis for the same and without giving any supporting facts or particulars, do not call for any detailed trial. The pleadings made in this regard without furnishing material facts and particulars, being frivolous and vexatious, are liable to be struck off, in exercise of power under Order 6 Rule 16 C.P.C.

6. The petitioner filed a counter affidavit to the said application and asserted that since he was not dismissed on the ground of corruption or disloyalty to the State, therefore, he would not fall within the ambit of Section 9 and 33 of the Act. There is presumption that every nomination paper is valid, unless the contrary is prima facie obvious, or has been made out. In case of doubt as to validity of a nomination paper, the benefit of such doubt must go to the candidate concerned and the nomination should be held to be valid. The Returning Officer has misused his power in rejecting the nominations of the petitioner. It has been denied that the averments made in the election petition are vague or that the election petition does not disclose any cause of action; or that, he has no locus to file the election petition.

7. Counsel for the petitioner has raised objection against the maintainability of the application filed by the respondent on the ground that it contains two prayers i.e., one for striking off the pleadings of the election petition in exercise of power under Order 6 Rule 16 CPC and the other for rejection of the petition under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. He has placed reliance on Rule 28 of the General Rule Civil, which provides that separate application should be made in regard to distinct matter in contending that the application should be rejected for the said reason.

8. The objection does not have any force. Both the prayers are interlinked with each other and relate to the same subject matter. The contention of the respondents is that the pleadings in the election petition are wholly vague, frivolous and vexatious, therefore, such pleadings should be struck off. The application goes on to mention that once the pleadings, as contained in paragraphs 4 to 28 of the election petition are struck off, apart from the fact that the petitioner has no locus to file the instant election petition, it will also be bereft of any cause of action. Even otherwise, the power under Order 6 Rule 16 CPC as well as Order VII Rule 11 CPC could be exercised by the Court even suo moto without any application from the rival side.

9. It is next submitted that the petitioner has controverted the averments made in the application by filing counter affidavit but the respondent has failed to file any affidavit in rebuttal, therefore the averments made in the counter affidavit should be taken to be true. Accordingly, the application deserves to be rejected. The argument is wholly misconceived in as much as both the prayers contained in the application filed by the respondent have to be decided on basis of assertions made in the election petition and not on basis of the stand taken by the petitioner in the counter affidavit.

10. It is next urged that the affidavit filed in support of the application having been sworn before Notary Public, New Delhi, does not comply with the requirement of Rule 11 of Ch. XV-A of the Allahabad High Court Rules. Ch. XV-A of the Allahabad High Court Rules regulates the filing of election petition and its trial before this Court. Rule 11 stipulates that an application shall ordinarily be accompanied by an affidavit. It also provides that subject to the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 83 of the Act, the provisions of Ch. IV as to affidavits shall apply to proceedings under this Chapter. The provision does not postulates filing of affidavit alongwith every application. Since the power to reject election petition under Order VII Rule 11 could be exercised even suo moto, therefore, the application even unsupported by an affidavit would suffice. Moreover, the provisions of Ch. IV which relates to affidavits and Oath Commissioner, particularly, Rule 5 thereof, on which emphasis was laid by learned counsel for the petitioner, does not make it imperative that the affidavit filed in support of the application could only be sworn before Oath Commissioner appointed by this Court. It only speaks of duty of the Oath Commissioner that he shall not allow an affidavit to be sworn before him, unless it complies with the provisions of the said Chapter. Thus, the objection has no force.

11. Coming to the merits, the first issue which requires to be answered is whether an election petition filed under Section 81 of the Act could be dismissed,exercising power under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C.

12. Article 329(b) of the Constitution of India provides that "no election to either House of Parliament or to the House or either House of the Legislature of a State shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as may be provided for by or under any law made by the appropriate Legislature".

13. In Jyoti Basu & Others vs. Debi Ghoshal & Others, AIR 1982 SC 983, the Supreme Court has held that right to elect, right to be elected and right to dispute an election, are not fundamental rights, but pure and simple statutory rights. "Outside of statute, there is no right to elect, no right to be elected and no right to dispute an election. Statutory creations they are, and therefore, subject to statutory limitation. An election petition is not an action at Common Law, nor in equity. It is a statutory proceeding to which neither the common law nor the principles of equity apply butonly those rules which the statute makes and applies. It is a special jurisdiction, and a special jurisdiction has always to be exercised in accordance with the statute creating it. Concepts familiar to Common Law and Equity must remain strangers to Election Law unless statutorily embodied. A Court has no right to resort to them on considerations of alleged policy because policy in such matters as those, relating to the trial of election disputes, is what the statute lays down. In the trial of election disputes, Court is put in a straight jacket."

14. The above first principle of election law was reiterated by the Supreme Court in Sunil Kumar Kori vs. Gopal Das Kabra, (2016) 10 SCC 467, observing that an election petition is not an action at common law, nor in equity, but statutory in nature.

15. On 12th May 1950, the Parliament enacted the Representation of the People Act, 1950, providing for allocation of seats in and the delimitation of constituencies for the purpose of election to, the House of the People and the Legislatures of States, the qualiifications of voters at such elections, the preparation of electoral rolls, the manner of filling seats in the Council of States to be filled by representatives of Union Territories, and matters connected therewith. In quick succession, on 17.7.1951, the Parliament enacted the Representation of the People Act, 1951, providing for the conduct of elections of the Houses of Parliament and to the House or Houses of the Legislature of each State, the qualifications and disqualifications for membership of those Houses, the corrupt practices and other offences at or in connection with such elections and the decision of doubts and disputes arising out of or in connection with such elections.

16. Section 80 of the Act stipulates that no election shall be called in question, except by an election petition, presented in accordance with the provisions of this part. Section 81 of the Act relates to presentation of election petition; Section 82 specifies the person who have to be joined in an election petition; Section 83 prescribes for the contents of an election petition and it reads thus: -

83. Contents of petition.--(1) An election petition-

(a) shall contain a concise statement of the material facts on which the petitioner relies;

(b) shall set forth full particulars of any corrupt practice that the petitioner alleges, including as full a statement as possible of the names of the parties alleged to have committed such corrupt practice and the date and place of the commission of each such practice; and

(c) shall be signed by the petitioner and verified in the manner laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) for the verification of pleadings:

Provided that where the petitioner alleges any corrupt practice, the petition shall also be accompanied by an affidavit in the prescribed form in support of the allegation of such corrupt practice and the particulars thereof.

(2) Any schedule or annexure to the petition shall also be signed by the petitioner and verified in the same manner as the petition.

17. Section 86 relates to the trial of election petition by High Court and Section 87 embodies the procedure to be followed by High Court in trying an election petition and reads thus: -

87. Procedure before the High Court.--(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any rules made thereunder, every election petition shall be tried by the High Court, as nearly as may be, in accordance with the procedure applicable under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) to the trial of suits:

Provided that the High Court shall have the discretion to refuse, for reasons to be recorded in writing, to examine any witness or witnesses if it is of the opinion that the evidence of such witness or witnesses is not material for the decision of the petition or that the party tendering such witness or witnesses is doing so on frivolous grounds or with a view to delay the proceedings.

(2) The provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (1 of 1972), shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be deemed to apply in all respects to the trial of an election petition.

18. Section 87 of the Act thus makes applicable, as nearly as may be, the procedure provided under the Code of Civil Procedure to election petition. Consequently, Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. applies to an election petition, filed under the Act. Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. reads thus: -

11. Rejection of plaint -- The plaint shall be rejected in the following cases:--

(a) where it does not disclose a cause of action;

(b) where the relief claimed is undervalued, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to correct the valuation within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so;

(c) where the relief claimed is properly valued, but the plaint is returned upon paper insufficiently stamped, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to supply the requisite stamp-paper within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so;

(d) where the suit appears from the statement in the plaint to be barred by any law :

Provided that the time fixed by the Court for the correction of the valuation or supplying of the requisite stamp-paper shall not be extended unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded, is satisfied that the plaintiff was prevented by any cause of an exceptional nature from correcting the valuation or supplying the requisite stamp-paper, as the case may be, within the time fixed by the Court and that refusal to extend such time would cause grave injustice to the plaintiff.

19. In Azhar Hussain vs. Rajiv Gandhi, AIR 1986 SC 1253, the Supreme Court, after considering a catena of previous decisions on the point, held that an election petition could be dismissed summarily in exercise of power under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C., if it does not furnish a cause of action. It would be advantageous to quote: -

"11. In view of this pronouncement there is no escape from the conclusion that an election petition can be summarily dismissed if it does not furnish cause of action in exercise of the powers underthe Codeof Civil Procedure. So also it emerges from the aforesaid decision that appropriate orders in exercise of powers underthe Codeof Civil Procedure can be passed if the mandatory requirements enjoined by Section 83of the Act to incorporate the material facts in the election petition are not complied with. This ....."

"12. Learned counsel for the petitioner has next argued that in any event the powers to reject an election petition summarily under the provisionsof the Codeof Civil Procedure should not be exercised at the threshold. In substance, the argument is that the court must proceed with the trial, record the evidence, and only after the trial of the election petition is concluded that the powers underthe Codeof Civil Procedure for dealing appropriately with the defective petition which does not disclose cause of action should be exercised. With respect to the learned counsel, it is an argument which it is difficult to comprehend. The whole purpose of confernment of such powers is to ensure that a litigation which is meaningless and bound to prove abortive should not be permitted to occupy the time of the court and exercise the mind of the respondent. The sword of Damocle need not be kept hanging over his head unnecessarily without point or purpose."

20. The Supreme Court, in Madiraju Venkata Ramana Raju vs Peddireddigari Ramachandra Reddy, (2018) 14 SCC 1, explained the difference in scope between Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. and Order 14 Rule 2 C.P.C. and thereafter held that an application under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC deserves consideration at the threshold -

"24. Ordinarily, an application for rejection of election petition in limine, purportedly under Order VII Rule 11 for non-disclosure of cause of action, ought to proceed at the threshold. For, it has to be considered only on the basis of institutional defects in the election petition in reference to the grounds specified in clauses (a) to (f) of Rule 11. Indeed, non-disclosure of cause of action is covered by clause (a) therein.

Concededly, Order VII of the CPC generally deals with the institution of a plaint. It delineates the requirements regarding the particulars to be contained in the plaint, relief to be specifically stated, for relief to be founded on separate grounds, procedure on admitting plaint, and includes return of plaint. The rejection of plaint follows the procedure on admitting plaint or even before admitting the same, if the court on presentation of the plaint is of the view that the same does not fulfill the statutory andinstitutional requirements referred to in clauses (a) to (f) of Rule 11. The power bestowed in the court in terms of Rule 11 may also be exercised by the court on a formal application moved by the defendant after being served with the summons to appear before the Court. Be that as it may, the application under Order VII Rule 11 deserves consideration at the threshold."

"45. In Kuldeep Singh Pathania (supra), the decision of the High Court which is similar to one under consideration (namely the impugned judgment) had accepted the explanation offered by the respondents and meticulously dealt with it to conclude that the petition did not disclose any cause of action since it lacked material facts. The High Court passed that order purportedly in exercise ofpower under Order XIV Rule 2. This Court pointed out the distinction between an order under Order VII Rule 11 to reject the election petition in limine for non disclosure of cause of action and an order under Order XIV Rule 2 for disposal of the petition on a preliminary issue. In that case, the order passed by the High Court was relatable only to Order VII Rule 11. This Court adverted to the decisions in Mayar (H.K.) Ltd. and Ors. Vs. Owners and Parties Vessel M.V. Fortune Express and Ors. 40 and Virendra Nath Gautam Vs. Satpal Singh and Ors.,41 and explicated that under Order VII Rule 11(a), only the pleadings of the plaintiff-petitioner can be looked at as a threshold issue. Whereas, entire pleadings of both sides can be looked into for considering the preliminary issue under Order XIV Rule 2. Neither the written statement nor the averments or case pleaded by the opposite party can be taken into account for answering the threshold issue for rejection of election petition in terms of Order VII Rule 11 (a) of the Act.

46. Whether the material facts as asserted by the appellant can stand the test of trial and whether the appellant would be able to(2006) 3 SCC 100(2007) 3 SCC 617bring home the grounds for declaring the election of respondent No.1 to be void, is not a matter to be debated at this stage. Suffice it to observe that the averments in the concerned paragraphs of the election petition, by no standard can be said to be frivolous and vexatious as such. The High Court committed manifest error in entering into the tenability of the facts and grounds urged in support thereof by the appellant on merit, as is evident from the cogitation in paragraphs 16 to 22 of the impugned judgment."

21. Again in Ashraf Kokkur vs, K.V Abdul Khader, (2015) 1 SCC 29, heavily relied upon by learned counsel for the election petitioner, the Supreme Court defined the limits of enquiry under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. as under: -

"22. After all, the inquiry under Order VII Rule 11(a) CPC is only as to whether the facts as pleaded disclose a cause of action and not complete cause of action. The limited inquiry is only to see whether the petition should be thrown out at the threshold. In an election petition, the requirement under Section 83 of the RP Act is to provide a precise and concise statement of material facts. The expression "material facts' plainly means facts pertaining to the subject matter and which are relied on by the election petitioner. If the party does not prove those facts, he fails at the trial (see Philipps v. Philipps and others, (1878) LR 4 QBD 127 (CA); Mohan Rawale v. Damodar Tatyaba, (1994) 2 SCC 392."

22. Thus, it is clear that an election petition, which does not disclose 'a cause of action', has to be dismissed at the threshold. 'Cause of action' invests the person with right to sue. When a person has no interest at all, or no sufficient interest to support a particular legal claim or action, he will have no locus standi to sue. Locus to maintain action in court of law, is threshold test, an integral part of cause of action, entitling a person to the relief claimed. Bereft of locus, no action, however sacrosanct, could survive. Thus, a plaint filed by a person having no locus to maintain the claim is but to be rejected. In the words of Justice V.R. Krishnaiyer (T. Arivandandam vs. T.V. Satyapal (1977) 4 SCC 467) "if on a meaningful-not formal - reading of the plaint it is manifestly vexatious, and meritless, in the sense of not disclosing a clear right to sue, it should be nipped in the bud at the first hearing". Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. is a tool in the hand of courts to keep irrespoinsible law suits out of its bounds.

23. A claim which is destined to fail should be throttled at its very inception. This is exactly the purpose of investing courts with the power to reject plaint itself. No doubt, while exercising the power under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C., only assertions made in the plaint/petition have to be seen. If the facts stated can stand the test of trial, then whether or not plaintiff will be able to prove his case, is not a matter to be debated at this stage. On the other hand, if the case stated in the plaint, even if taken to be correct, do not disclose any cause of action, or locus in favour of the plaintiff, it is duty of the court to nip into bud such a litigation. Keeping the above broad principles in mind, I now proceed to examine the issue as to whether the petitioner has locus to maintain the instant election petition, or not.

24. The main thrust of the argument of learned counsel for the respondent is that the petitioner is neither an elector, nor a candidate at the election which he seeks to question, therefore, in view of Section 81 of the Act, he cannot maintain the election petition. To wit, once the petitioner is not entitled to maintain the election petition, he also would have no cause of action. Consequently, the petition is liable to be rejected under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C., read with Section 81 of the Act. Relevant part of Section 81 reads thus: -

81. Presentation of petitions.--(1) An election petition calling in question any election may be presented on one or more of the grounds specified in sub-section (1) of section 100 and section 101 to the High Court by any candidate at such election or any elector within forty-five days from, but not earlier than the date of election of the returned candidate, or if there are more than one returned candidate at the election and the dates of their election are different, the later of those two dates.*

25. Thus, an election petition, calling in question an election, could be filed only by (i) an elector and/or (ii) by any candidate at such election. The Explanation defines the 'elector' as a person who was entitled to vote at the election to which the election petition relates, whether he has voted at such election or not.

26. The petitioner is enrolled as an elector from Bhiwani, Mahendragarh Parliamentary Constituency, Haryana (as per Form 26, Para 2, page 50 of the petition). He does not claim to be elector from Parliamentary Constituency, Varanasi, the election of which is sought to be challenged. He is thus not covered by the definition of 'elector'. He however, claims to be a 'candidate' at such election and on its strength asserts his locus to maintain the instant petition.

27. The word 'candidate' is defined by Section 79(b) thus :-

"(b) "candidate" means a person who has been or claims to have been duly nominated as a candidate at any election;

28. For being a candidate at an election one has to file nomination in the prescribed manner. The procedure for nomination of candidate is provided under Part V. Ch.1. Section 30 empowers the Election Commission to issue notification in the Official Gazette specifying last dates for making nominations, for scrutiny, for withdrawal of candidature, the date of polling and the date before which election shall be completed. Section 32 stipulates that :-

"32. Nomination of candidates for election - Any person may be nominated as a candidate for election to fill a seat if he is qualified to be chosen to fill that seat under the provisions of the Constitution and this Act or under the provisions of the Government of Union Territories Act, 1963 (20 of 1963), as the case may be."

29. Section 33 (so much as is relevant) reads thus :-

"33. Presentation of nomination paper and requirements for a valid nomination - (1) On or before the date appointed under clause (a) of Section 30 each candidate shall, either in person or by his proposer, between the hours eleven o'clock in the forenoon and three o'clock in the after noon deliver to the returning officer at the place specified in this behalf in the notice issued under Section 31 a nomination paper completed in the prescribed form and signed by the candidate and by an elector of the constituency as proposer:

Provided that a candidate not set up by a recognised political party, shall not be deemed to be duly nominated for election from a constituency unless the nomination paper is subscribed by ten proposers being electors of the constituency:

Provided further that no nomination paper shall be delivered to the Returning Officer on a day which is a public holiday.

Provided also that in the case of a local authorities' constituency, graduates' constituency or teachers' constituency, the reference to 'an elector of the constituency as proposer' shall be construed as a reference to ten per cent of the electors of the constituency or ten such electors, whichever is less, as proposers."

(2) In a constituency where any seat is reserved, a candidate shall not be qualified to be chosen to fill that seat unless his nomination paper contains a declaration by him specifying the particular caste or tribe of which he is a member and the area in relation to which that caste or tribe is a Scheduled Caste or, as the case may be, a Scheduled Tribe of the State.

(3) Where the candidate is a person who, having held any office referred to in Section 9, has been dismissed and a period of five years has not elapsed since the dismissal, such person shall not be deemed to be duly nominated as a candidate unless his nomination paper is accompanied by a certificate issued in the prescribed manner by the Election Commission to the effect that he has not been dismissed for corruption or disloyalty to the State.

(4) On the presentation of a nomination paper, the returning officer shall satisfy himself that the names and electoral roll numbers of the candidate and his proposer as entered in the nomination paper are the same as those entered in the electoral rolls :

Provided that no misnomer or inaccurate description or clerical, technical or printing error in regard to the name of the candidate or his proposer or any other person, or in regard to any place, mentioned in the electoral roll or the nomination paper and no clerical, technical or printing error in regard to the electoral roll numbers of any such person in the electoral roll or the nomination paper, shall affect the full operation of the electoral roll or the nomination paper with respect to such person or place in any case where the description in regard to the name of the person or place is such as to be commonly understood; and the returning officer shall permit any such misnomer or inaccurate description or clerical, technical or printing error to be corrected and where necessary, direct that any such misnomer, inaccurate description, clerical, technical or printing error in the electoral roll or in the nomination paper shall be overlooked.

(5) Where the candidate is an elector of a different constituency, a copy of the electoral roll of that constituency or of the relevant part thereof or a certified copy of the relevant entries in such roll shall, unless it has been filed along with the nomination paper, be produced before the returning officer at the time of scrutiny.

(6) Nothing in this section shall prevent any candidate from being nominated by more than one nomination paper:

Provided that not more than four nomination papers shall be presented by or on behalf of any candidate or accepted by the returning officer for election in the same constituency.

(7).....…"

30. Section 33-A makes it obligatory for a candidate to furnish information regarding his criminal antecedents etc. and reads thus :-

"33-A. Right to information.--(1) A candidate shall, apart from any information which he is required to furnish, under this Act or the rules made thereunder, in his nomination paper delivered under sub-section (1) or section 33, also furnish the information as to whether -*

(i) he is accused of any offence punishable with imprisonment for two years or more in a pending case in which a charge has been framed by the court of competent jurisdiction;

(ii) he has been convicted of an offence other than any offence referred to in sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), or covered in sub-section (3), of section 8 and sentenced to imprisonment for one year or more.

(2) The candidate of his proposer, as the case may be, shall, at the time of delivering to the returning officer the nomination paper under sub-section (1) of section 33, also deliver to him an affidavit sworn by the candidate in a prescribed form very fine the information specified in sub-section (1)."

31. Section 34 relates to deposit of certain amount in Government Treasury and provides as follows :-

"34. Deposits.--(1) A candidate shall not be deemed to be duly nominated for election from a constituency unless he deposits or causes to be deposited,--

(a) in the case of an election from a Parliamentary constituency, 4 a sum of twenty-five thousand rupees or where the candidate is a member of a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe, a sum of twelve thousand five hundred rupees; and

(b) in the case of an election from an Assembly or Council constituency, a sum of ten thousand rupees or where the candidate is a member of a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe, a sum of five thousand rupees :

Provided that where a candidate has been nominated by more than one nomination paper for election in the same constituency, not more than one deposit shall be required of him under this sub-section.

(2) Any sum required to be deposited under sub-section (1) shall not be deemed to have been deposited under that sub-section unless at the time of delivery of the nomination paper under sub-section (1) or, as the case may be, sub-section (1A) of section 33 the candidate has either deposited or caused to be deposited that sum with the returning officer in cash or enclosed with the nomination paper a receipt showing that the said sum has been deposited by him or on his behalf in the Reserve Bank of India or in a Government Treasury."

32. Section 35 deals with the notice of nomination and the time and place for their scrutiny. Section 36 deals with scrutiny of nominations. It embodies the entire procedure to be followed during nomination, power of the Returning Officer to decide objections against the nominations, the manner of holding enquiry, and grounds on which nomination could be rejected. Section 36 reads thus :-

36. Scrutiny of nominations.--(1) On the date fixed for the scrutiny of nominations under section 30, the candidates, their election agents, one proposer of each candidate, and one other person duly authorised in writing by each candidate, but no other person, may attend at such time and place as the returning officer may appoint; and the returning officer shall give them all reasonable facilities for examining the nomination papers of all candidates which have been delivered within the time and in the manner laid down in section 33.*

(2) The returning officer shall then examine the nomination papers and shall decide all objections which may be made to any nomination and may, either on such objection or on his own motion, after such summary inquiry, if any, as he thinks necessary, reject any nomination on any of the following grounds:--

(a) that on the date fixed for the scrutiny of nominations the candidate either is not qualified or is disqualified for being chosen to fill the seat under any of the following provisions that may be applicable, namely:--

Articles 84, 102, 173 and 191,

Part II of this Act, and sections 4 and 14 of the Government of Union Territories Act, 1963 (20 of 1963); or

(b) that there has been a failure to comply with any of the provisions of section 33 or section 34 ; or

(c) that the signature of the candidate or the proposer on the nomination paper is not genuine.

(3) Nothing contained in 11 clause (b) or clause (c) of sub-section (2) shall be deemed to authorise the rejection of the nomination of any candidate on the ground of any irregularity in respect of a nomination paper, if the candidate has been duly nominated by means of another nomination paper in respect of which no irregularity has been committed.

(4) The returning officer shall not reject any nomination paper on the ground of any defect which is not of a substantial character.

(5) The returning officer shall hold the scrutiny on the date appointed in this behalf under clause (b) of section 30 and shall not allow any adjournment of the proceedings except when such proceedings are interrupted or obstructed by riot or open violence or by causes beyond his control:

Provided that in case an objection is raised by the returning officer or is made by any other person the candidate concerned may be allowed time to rebut it not later than the next day but one following the date fixed for scrutiny, and the returning officer shall record his decision on the date to which the proceedings have been adjourned.

(6) The returning officer shall endorse on each nomination paper his decision accepting or rejecting the same and, if the nomination paper is rejected, shall record in writing a brief statement of his reasons for such rejection.

(7) For the purposes of this section, a certified copy of an entry in the electoral roll for the time being in force of a constituency shall be conclusive evidence of the fact that the person referred to in that entry is an elector for that constituency, unless it is proved that he is subject to a disqualification mentioned in section 16 of the Representation of the People Act, 1950 (43 of 1950).

(8) Immediately after all the nomination papers have been scrutinised and decisions accepting or ejecting the same have been recorded, the returning officer shall prepare a list of validly nominated candidates, that is to say, candidates whose nominations have been found valid, and affix it to his notice board."

33. It is an admitted fact that the petitioner was in service of Union of India (B.S.F.) and was dismissed from service on 19.4.2017. The nomination of the petitioner, upon scrutiny was rejected by the Returning Officer by order dated 1.5.2017 on the ground that it was not accompanied by the certificate of the Election Commission that his dismissal from service was not on the ground of disloyalty to State or corruption as required by Section 33 (3) of the Act.

Relevant part from the order of the Returning Officer reads thus :

"In view of all relevant provisions of Representation of Peoples Act, 1951, Hand book of the Returning Officer and judgement in Sundar Lal vs. Sampat Lal, AIR 1963 Raj. 226 it is clear that if a person is dismissed from the government service and five years have not elapsed then such person shall not be deemed to be duly nominated as a candidate unless his nomination paper is accompanied by a certificate issued in the prescribed manner by the Election Commission to the effect that he has not been dismissed for corruption or disloyalty to the State.

In this case, Shri Tej Bahadur has stated that he has been dismissed from the government service on 19th April, 2017. 5 years has not elapsed, but his nomination paper is neither accompanied by certificate issued in the prescribed manner by the Election Commission to the effect that he has not been dismissed for corruption or disloyalty to the State nor he has been able to produce any such certificate by 11 AM of 1st May, 2019 as prescribed in notice. Therefore, nomination paper of Shri Tej Bahadur is liable to be rejected and accordingly Nomination Paper No.-09/HP/2019/RO submitted by him is hereby rejected."

Thus, the issue for consideration is whether the petitioner whose nomination was rejected could claim to be a candidate at the election in question.

34. One of the contention of learned counsel for the petitioner was that once the nomination form was accepted on 30.4.2019, followed by issuance of check list, without pointing out any defect, the nomination could not have been rejected during scrutiny, as there is presumption that the nomination was validly made. In support of his submission, he placed reliance upon Uttamrao Shivdas Jankar v. Ranjitsinh Vijaysinh Mohite Patil, (2009) 13 SCC 131 and Ramesh Rout v. Rabindra Nath Rout, 2012(1) SCC 762. Alternatively, it is contended that the ground for rejection of the nomination is untenable, in as much as the petitioner was never dismissed from service for corruption or disloyalty, consequently neither Section 9 nor Section 33(3) would get attracted.

35. Section 36(2) enjoins the Returning Officer to reject nomination paper suo moto or on objection, interalia on the grounds that there has been a failure to comply with any of the provisions of section 33 of the Act. The power to reject the nomination of any candidate or nomination paper is circumscribed by sub-section (4). The returning officer shall not reject any nomination paper on the ground of any defect which is not of a substantial character. The nomination of the petitioner, as noted above, has been rejected on the ground of non compliance of sub-section (3) of Section 33, which reads thus :-

"(3) Where the candidate is a person who, having held any office referred to in section 9 has been dismissed and a period of five years has not elapsed since the dismissal, such person shall not be deemed to be duly nominated as a candidate unless his nomination paper is accompanied by a certificate issued in the prescribed manner by the Election Commission to the effect that he has not been dismissed for corruption or disloyalty to the State.

36. Section 9 of the Act speaks of a person who had held office under the Government of India or under the Government of any State and it reads thus :-

"9. Disqualification for dismissal for corruption or disloyalty. -- (1) A person who having held an office under the Government of India or under the Government of any State has been dismissed for corruption or for disloyalty to the State shall be disqualified for a period of five years from the date of such dismissal.

(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1), a certificate issued by the Election Commission to the effect that a person having held office under the Government of India or under the Government of a State, has or has not been dismissed for corruption or for disloyalty to the State shall be conclusive proof of the fact:

Provided that no certificate to the effect that a person has been dismissed for corruption or for disloyalty to the State shall be issued unless an opportunity of being heard has been given to the said person."

37. A conjoint reading of the above two provisions would show that the certificate of the Election Commission is essential where (i) the person filing the nomination had held any office referred to in Section 9, i.e., Under Government of India or under Government of any State. (ii) who has been dismissed from service and (iii) a period of five years has not elapsed since his dismissal.

38. Indisputably, and as is admitted in para 4, 16 and 25 of the petition, the petitioner was dismissed while serving under the Government of India and period of five years had also not elapsed since then; thus all the three ingredients get attracted to the case of the petitioner. However, the petitioner claims that his dismissal was not on ground of disloyalty or corruption. He is not covered by Section 9 which prescribe a disqualification from contesting the election, as he was not dismissed on ground of corruption or disloyalty while in government service. Consequently, Section 33(3) would also not get attracted nor was he required in law to file any certificate from the Election Commission. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgement of Andhra Pradesh High Court in M. Narasappa v. M. Krishna Reddy, MANU/AP/0258/ 1984. In the said case, the election of the returned candidate was challenged on the ground that his nomination was wrongly accepted by the Returning Officer despite the fact that his nomination was not accompanied by the certificate of Election Commission that he was not dismissed from service on ground of corruption or disloyalty. The returned candidate was dismissed within preceding five years of filing of the nomination. The court itself went into the charges levelled against the returned candidate and held that the dismissal was not on ground of corruption. He was not disqualified under Section 9 from contesting the election. Consequently, Section 33(3) will not apply. Here I would like to refer to one more decision taking a diametrically opposite view by the Rajasthan High Court in Sundar Lal v. Sampat Lal, AIR 1963 Raj. 226 relied upon by learned counsel for the respondent. In that case, the Court took the view that once certificate of Election Commission is not filed, the Returning Officer was not competent to examine whether dismissal was on ground of corruption or disloyalty to the State and was justified in rejecting the nomination.

39. The crucial ingredient of Section 33(3) as noted above, is holding of office referred to in Section 9 and the fact that period of five years had not elapsed since dismissal of such person. As soon as a person is covered by the ingredients of Section 33, he is required to file certificate from the Election Commission.

40. Although Section 33(3) makes a reference to Section 9 but it does not control the operation of said provision. In as much as, Section 9 is an independent provision stipulating the consequences flowing out of dismissal of a person from service referred to in the said Section. Such a person stands disqualified to contest election for a period of five years from the date of dismissal. Sub-section (2) of Section 9 makes the Election Commission final arbiter in such matters. The certificate of the Election Commission is conclusive proof of the fact that the person was not dismissed from service on ground of corruption or disloyalty to the State. Whether a person is dismissed from service on ground of disloyalty or corruption has to be decided by the Election Commission and not by the Returning Officer. He cannot even examine its correctness, if challenged before him. The reference to Section 9 is for adopting the description of office covered under the said provision and nothing more. If it is accepted that certificate from Election Commission is required to be filed only if a person falls under Section 9, it would render Section 33(3) otiose. A person admitting that he is covered under Section 9 is already disqualified. It is only when the person claims that he was not dismissed on ground of disloyalty or corruption that occasion arises for filing the certificate of the Election Commission.

41. A Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court in S.M. Banerji v. Sri Krishna Agarwal, AIR 1960 SCC 368, after considering Section 9(3) and Section 33(3) summarised the legal position thus :-

"The foregoing provisions, so far relevant to the present enquiry, may be summarised thus: If a candidate has been dismissed from Government service and a period of five years has not elapsed since dismissal-, he will have to file along with the nomination paper a certificate issued in the prescribed manner by the Election Commission to the effect that he has not been dismissed for corruption or disloyalty to the State. If it has not been done, the Returning Officer, either suo motu or on objections raised by the opposite party, has to reject the nomination. If the nomination paper does not disclose any such defect and if the Returning Officer has no knowledge of that fact, he has no option but to accept the nomination. The Returning Officer may improperly accept a nomination paper though it discloses the said defect and though an objection is raised to its reception on that ground. Section 100(1)(d)(i) of the Act deals with improper acceptance of any nomination and s. 100(1)(d)(iv) permits an attack on the ground, among others, of non-compliance with the provisions of the Act".

42. A person covered by Section 33(3) cannot ask the Returning Officer to ascertain that he was not dismissed from service on ground of disloyalty or corruption and accept his nomination, as the Returning Officer is not competent to go into the said issue. He is to be governed by the certificate issued by the Election Commission. The object behind the provision is to minimize points of disputes before the Returning Officer. The law obligates a person covered by Section 33 (3) to file certificate of Election Commission in support of his claim. If he fails to do so, the consequences provided under Section 36(2) will ensue. The Returning Officer would be left with no option but to reject the nomination of such a person. The rejection would not be for the reason that the person is disqualified under Section 9 from contesting the election but for the reason that he has failed to comply with the mandatory procedural requirements of a valid nomination. He has failed to file the certificate of the Election Commission required of him by Section 33 (3) of the Act. Even a Court of law, if approached by such a person, will not embark on any enquiry as to whether he is covered under Section 9 or not. The enquiry will remain confined to ascertainment of the fact as to whether the person is covered by Section 33 or not and if the answer is in affirmative, then action of the Returning Officer has to be upheld. For the foregoing reasons, I am unable to subscribe to the view taken by the Andhra Pradesh High Court in M. Narasappa.

43. The power of the Returning Officer regarding acceptance/ rejection of nomination and when acceptance of nomination would be valid, has been dealt with by the Supreme Court in Durga Shankar Mehta v. Raghuraj Singh, AIR 1954 SC 520 holding thus :-

" If the want of qualification of a candidate does not appear on the face of the nomination paper or of the electoral roll, but is a matter which could be established only by evidence, an enquiry at the stage of scrutiny of the nomination papers is required under the Act only if there is any objection to the nomination. The Returning-Officer is then bound to make such enquiry as he thinks proper on the result of which he can either accept or reject the nomination. But when the candidate appears to be properly qualified on the face of the electoral roll and the nomination paper and no objection is raised to the nomination, the Returning Officer has no other alternative but to accept the nomination. This would be apparent from section 36, subsection (7) of the Act . . .".

44. Sub-section (4) of Section 33 provides that on presentation of a nomination paper, the Returning Officer is enjoined with the duty to satisfy himself1-58 that the names and electoral roll numbers of the candidate and his proposer as entered in the nomination paper are the same as those entered in the electoral rolls. The proviso embodies the principle of overlooking irregularities which are not of substantial nature. Thus a misnomer or inaccurate description or clerical, technical or printing error in regard to the name of the candidate or his proposer shall be overlooked.

45. If follows that if on face of the nomination paper, no defect of substantial nature is evident, the Returning Officer is bound to receive the nomination form. For instance, in the present case, the petitioner, in the second nomination filed on 29.4.2019 mentioned 'No' while reply to the query contained in Clause (6) of Part III-A of form 2-A (Nomination Paper) as to whether the candidate was dismissed for corruption or disloyalty while holding office under the Government of India or Government of any State? However, when upon scrutiny on 30.4.2019, it transpired that in the other nomination filed by him on 24 April 2019, he mentioned 'Yes' against the same query and disclosed the date of his dismissal as 19.4.2017, he was issued two notices dated 30.4.2019 mentioning about different recitals in the two nominations submitted by him. The notice also specifically records that from the material placed on record by the petitioner himself, it is evident that he was dismissed from service of Government of India within preceding five years. He was therefore, required to submit certificate of the Election Commission to prove that he was not dismissed from service on ground of disloyalty or corruption as required under Section 33(3) of the Act. He was given time up to 11 AM on 1.5.2019, i.e., the following day to furnish such certificate from the Election Commission to enable the Returning Officer to take decision on his nomination papers.

46. Section 36(2) specifically invests the Returning Officer with power to examine the nomination papers and hold enquiry upon objection or on his own motion. In fact, once any defect is discovered by the Returning Officer while examining the nomination papers at the stage of scrutiny, he is under bounden duty to hold a summary enquiry and decide the objection. The only limitation is that in case the objection is from the Returning Officer or any other person, the candidate concerned has to be given time to rebut the objection, before decision is taken. The statutory scheme does not postulate any estoppel against raising of objection to the validity of nomination during scrutiny on the ground that at the time of receipt of nomination paper, no objection was raised. In fact, the very object of fixing a date, time and place for scrutiny, and investing the Returning Officer with power to decide all objections, would stand nullified if the argument of learned counsel for the petitioner is accepted that if nomination papers had been received during the first stage, without any objection, no objection can be raised during scrutiny.

47. I now proceed to consider the judgement of Supreme Court in Uttamrao Shivdas (Supra) on which heavy reliance has been placed by learned counsel for the petitioner in contending that there is presumption in law regarding validity of nomination. In the said case, the Returning Officer had overruled the objection against the nomination regarding genuineness of signature of the Proposers. This was done at the stage of scrutiny, after examining the proposers. The High Court, in election petition, only examined the correctness of the decision making process on part of the Returning Officer and not the decision itself. In that context, the Supreme Court held that the High Court while deciding election petition acts as a Court of original jurisdiction and not appellate authority and is therefore competent to examine the correctness of the decision of the Returning Officer. The Supreme Court while so holding, considered para 5 and 6 of Handbook for Returning Officer issued by the Election Commission. The paragraph on which much emphasis has been laid by counsel for the petitioner reads thus :-

"24. Paragraph 5 provides for objections and summary enquiry, stating:

5. Even if no objection has been raised to a nomination paper, you have to satisfy yourself that the nomination paper is valid in law. If any objection is raised to any nomination paper, you will have to hold a summary inquiry to decide the same and to treat the nomination paper to be either valid or invalid. Record your decision in each case giving brief reasons particularly where an objection has been raised or where you reject the nomination paper. The objector may be supplied with a certified copy of your decision accepting the nomination paper of a candidate after overruling the objections raised by him, if he applies for it. Your decision may be challenged later in an election petition and so your brief statement of reasons should be recorded at this time.

There exists a presumption of validity, as adumbrated in paragraph 6 thereof. It reads, thus:

6. There is a presumption that every nomination paper is valid unless the contrary is prima facie obvious or has been made out. In case of a reasonable doubt as to the validity of a nomination paper, the benefit of such doubt must go to the candidate concerned and the nomination paper should be held to be valid. Remember that when ever a candidate's nomination paper has been improperly rejected and he is prevented thereby from contesting the election, there is alegal presumption that the result of the election has been materially affected by such improper rejection and the election will, therefore, be set aside. There is no such legal presumption necessarily in the converse case where a candidate's nomination has been improperly accepted. It is always safer, therefore, to be comparatively more liberal overlooking minor technical or clerical errors rather than strict in your scrutiny of the nomination papers."

48. These instructions, instead of bringing home the submission urged by learned counsel for the petitioner, on the contrary, lays down exactly the opposite. A duty is cast upon Returning Officer to satisfy himself that nomination is valid in law, even if no objection is raised. It is only in cases where there is reasonable doubt about the validity /invalidity of a nomination paper that the benefit should go to the candidate for reasons mentioned in instruction No.6. These instructions, nor anything laid by the Supreme Court in the said judgement, in any manner, advance the argument of learned counsel for the petitioner.

49. Now coming to the second judgement in Ramesh Rout (Supra), I would first like to briefly allude to the facts of that case. The election of Ramesh Rout as member of Legislative Assembly was under challenge by the respondent Ramendra Pratap Singh on the ground that his nomination was wrongly rejected by the Returning Officer. He filed his nomination as candidate of a recognised party (BJD). He was issued a check list under signature of Returning Officer in which no deficiency nor defect was pointed out. However, on the day of scrutiny, the Returning Officer rejected the nomination on the ground that Form A & Form B duly signed in ink by the authorised officer of the political party had not been filed, but only the photocopies.

50. The Supreme Court while examining the rival contentions held that the requirement laid down in para 13 of the Election Symbols (Reservation and Allotment) Order, 1968 regarding Form A and B being signed in ink by the officer bearer of the recognised political party is mandatory in nature. Non compliance thereof would tantamount to non compliance of Section 33 and would entail dismissal of the nomination paper :-

"We are unable to accept the submission of Mr. K.K. Venugopal that para 13 of the 1968 Order cannot be read into Rule 4. Non-compliance of requirements of para 13 of the 1968 Order, in our view, is a defect of substantial character and the nomination paper of a candidate proposed by a single elector set up by a recognised political party having such defect is liable to be rejected under Section 36(2)(b) as it tantamounts to non-compliance of the provisions of Section 33, namely, the nomination paper having not been completed in the prescribed form."

51. The Supreme Court thereafter proceeded to consider the issue on merits and held that where the check list issued by the Returning Officer certifies that Form A & B were duly filed, it lead to presumption that the documents prescribed in Para 13 had been duly filed. The Supreme Court clarified that the presumption of all requirement having been complied with, is rebuttable one. It was held in the facts of that case that the rival candidate failed to rebut the presumption that original Form A & B were not filed. The relevant observations are as follows :-

"61. As a matter of fact, to obviate unnecessary dispute about presentation of nomination paper by a candidate, the Commission in the handbook has provided for guidelines pertaining to check list. Accordingly, a check list is required to be prepared duly certified by the Returning Officer that all documents have been received. Such check list is signed by the Returning Officer as well as by the candidate. Where a check list certifies that Forms A and B (in the case of candidates set up by a recognised political parties), have been filed, such certificate leads to presumption that the procedural requirement of filing the documents as prescribed in para 13 of the 1968 Order has been complied with. The presumption is of course rebuttable but there must be sufficient evidence by the other side to displace such presumption.

62. In the present case, the check list (Ex.11), Form 3-A (Ext. 42/F) and the list of the nominated candidates checklist (Ext. 44) give rise to presumption in favour of the proposed candidate that he had filed Form-A and Form-B duly signed in ink by the authorised person of BJD with the first set of his nomination paper. The question is whether this presumption has been rebutted by the returned candidate? We do not think so. The oral evidence of the returned candidate (RW-1) and his witness (RW-2) is not of much help insofar as this aspect is concerned. The Returning Officer has not stated firmly and with certainty in his evidence that the proposed candidate had not filed Form-A and Form-B signed in ink by the authorised person of the BJD. Rather he stated that had it come to his notice that the original Form-A and Form-B duly signed in ink were not filed along with the nomination paper by the proposed candidate, he would have made an endorsement to that effect in the checklist."

52. The check list issued by the Returning Officer without pointing out any deficiency thus raises a rebuttable and not conclusive presumption in favour of the candidate filing the nomination papers. The Returning Officer or the other rival candidates are not precluded from raising objections to the validity of the nomination once the check list had been issued. No doubt, in view of presumption regarding validity of the nomination papers, it would be the burden of the person raising objection to prove the defect by leading cogent evidence. Where there is doubt, the decision should lean in favour of the person filing the nomination in view of para 6 of the Handbook for Returning Officer. The contention that once the check list was duly issued without pointing out any objection, the Returning Officer was precluded at the state of scrutiny from raising any objection even if it goes to the root of the controversy, cannot be accepted. The Returning Officer would be within him power to point out defect during course of scrutiny and reject the nomination if it fails to comply with the mandatory procedure laid down for filing of nomination or if candidate is found to be disqualified.

53. The alternative submission, which forms the anchor sheet of the case of the petitioner was that even if he has not been actually nominated as a candidate, but he would definitely fall in the category of a candidate who claims to have been duly nominated under the second part of the definition of 'candidate'. Therefore, he would still have locus to maintain the election petition. It is contended that a wrong rejection of the nomination itself is an issue which falls for determination in the Election Petition, so it could not be thrown out on the ground that he was not duly nominated.

54. No doubt, the definition of 'candidate' in Section 79(b) also includes a person who 'claims to have been duly nominated'. The said phrase has been subject matter of interpretation by the Supreme Court in number of judgments. A Constitution Bench of Supreme Court in Charan Lal Sahu v. Dr. APJ Abdul Kalam and others, (2003) 1 SCC 609 had the occasion to consider the phrase in reference to election on the post of President of India. Section 13(a) of the Presidents and Vice-Presidents Election Act, 1952 defines a 'candidate' to mean a person who has been or claims to have been duly nominated as a candidate at an election. Thus, it is similarly worded. Section 14-A of the said Act entitles a candidate or twenty or more electors to question the election by filing election petition before the Supreme Court. In that case also, the locus of the petitioner to challenge the election of president was challenged on the ground that he had not been a candidate nor could be regarded as nominated or duly nominated, as his nomination was rejected by the Returning Officer for not complying with Section 5-B of the said Act, which reads thus: -

"5-B. (1) ... deliver to the Returning Officer at the placed specified in this behalf in the public notice issued under Section 5a nomination paper completed in the prescribed form and subscribed by the candidate as assenting to the nomination, and

(a) in the case of Presidential election, also by at least fifty electors as proposers and at least fifty electors as seconders;

(b) in the case of Vice-Presidential election, also by at least twenty electors as proposers and at least twenty electors as seconders:

Provided that no nomination paper shall be presented to the Returning Officer on a day which is a public holiday."

55. The Supreme Court quoted with approval three previous decisions on the point, holding that if a person fails to comply with the procedure laid down in Section 5-B, he would not fall within the definition of candidate as he can neither be a candidate, nor can claim to be nominated at such election. It has been held "that in the matters of claim to candidacy, a person who claims to have been duly nominated is at par with a person who, in fact, was duly nominated. But, the claim to have been duly nominated cannot be made by a person whose nomination paper does not comply with the mandatory requirement of Section 5-B of the Act".

56. It is worthwhile to quote in extenso from the law report where earlier judgments of the Supreme Court were considered: -

"16. Nomination paper of the petitioner was rejected on the ground that it was not proposed and seconded by the requisite numbers of proposers and seconders. This point was examined exhaustively by this Court in the case of very petitioner now before us against the former President Neelam Sanjeeva Reddy reported in Charan Lal Sahu Vs. Neelam Sanjeeva Reddy, 1978 (2) SCC 500 and it was held that:

"12. The result of a careful consideration by us of the provisions mentioned above is that we think that, the procedure or manner for questioning the Presidential election having been laid down, the petitioner must come within the four corners of that procedure in order to have a locus standi to challenge the Presidential election and to be able to maintain this petition. If he neither is nor can claim to be a candidate, on assertions made by him in his petition itself, he would be lacking the right to question the election of Shri Neelam Sanjeeva Reddy as Presidential of India. The effect of the provision of Sections 14(1), 14 (2) and 14 (3) and 14A (1) of the Act, read with Order XXXIX, Rules 2 and 5 of the Rules of this Court, is that the petition before us is barred because the petitioner has not got the required locus standi to maintain it."

17. Again in Charan Lal Sahu Vs. Giani Zail Singh, 1984 (1) SCC 390, the point raised by the petitioner on the second limb of Section 13(a) of the Act defining the candidate to mean; "claims to have been duly nominated as a candidate" was rejected. Rejecting the said contention this Court observed:

"11. The petitioners, however, contend that even if it is held that they were not duly nominated as candidates, their petitions cannot be dismissed on that ground since they "claim to have been duly nominated". It is true that, in the matter of claim to candidacy, a person who claims to have been duly nominated is on par with a person who, in fact, was duly nominated. But, the claim to have been duly nominated cannot be made by a person whose nomination paper does not comply with the mandatory requirements ofSection 5-B(1)(a) of the Act. That is to say, a person whose nomination paper, admittedly, was not subscribed by the requisite number of electors as proposers and seconders cannot claim that he was duly nominated. Such a claim can only be made by a person who can show that his nomination paper conformed to the provisions ofSection 5-Band yet it was rejected, that is, wrongly rejected by the Returning Officer. To illustrate, if the Returning Officer rejects a nomination paper on the ground that one of the ten subscribers who had proposed the nomination is not an elector, the petitioner can claim to have been duly nominated if he proves that the said proposer was in fact an 'elector'.

12. Thus, the occasion for a person to make a claim that he was duly nominated can arise only if his nomination paper complies with the statutory requirements which govern the filing of nomination papers and not otherwise. The claim that he was 'duly' nominated necessarily implies and involves the claim that his nomination paper conformed to the requirements of the statute. Therefore, a contestant whose nomination paper is not subscribed by at least ten electors as proposers and ten electors as seconders, as required bySection 5-B(1)(a) of the Act, cannot claim to have been duly nominated, any more than a contestant who had not subscribed his assent to his own nomination can. The claim of a contestant that he was duly nominated must arise out of his compliance with the provisions of the Act. It cannot arise out of the violation of the Act. Otherwise, a person who had not filed any nomination paper at all but who had only informed the Returning Officer orally that he desired to contest the election could also contend that he "claims to have been duly nominated as a candidate".

18. The question regarding locus standi was examined for the third time in the election petition filed by the petitioner in Charan Lal Sahu Vs. K.R. Narayanan & Ors., 1998 (1) SCC 56*, it was again reiterated that:*

"24. In view of the decisions referred to above, it must be held that neither of the petitioners was a "candidate" as the said expression is defined inSection 2(d) of the Act since neither of them had been duly nominated nor could he claim to have been nominated as a candidate inasmuch as the nomination papers filed by both of them did not comply with the mandatory requirements ofSection 5B (1)(a) of the Act and the nomination paper of Petitioner 2 was filed without complying with the requirements ofSection 5B (2) of the Act. On that view it must be held that neither of the petitioners has the locus standi to maintain the petition."

The Supreme Court concluded by holding thus: -

"19. In view of the authoritative pronouncements of this Court the petitioner cannot be regarded as a person who had been nominated or can claim to have been duly nominated as candidate at the election in question. His nomination papers were thus rightly rejected by the returning officer and the petition on his behalf is, therefore, not maintainable."

(emphasis supplied)

57. In Mithilesh Kumar Sinha v. Returning Officer for Presidential Election and others, 1993 Supp (4) SCC 386, the Supreme Court, while interpreting the same rule in relation to presidential election observed that a person cannot claim to have been duly nominated as a candidate at the election unless he had complied with the mandatory requirements of Section 5-B and Section 5-C. The challenge to the presidential election by Mithilesh Kumar Sinha was not entertained on the ground that he had failed to comply with the mandatory requirements of a valid nomination, consequently, cannot claim to be a candidate at such election. The relevant observations are as follows :-

"30. To be entitled to present an election petition calling in question an election, the petitioner should have been a 'candidate' at such election within the meaning of Section 13(a) for which he should have been "duly nominated as a candidate" and this he cannot claim unless the mandatory requirements of Section 5-B(1)(a) and Section 5-C were complied by him. Where on undisputed facts there was non-compliance of any of these mandatory requirements for a valid nomination, the petitioner was not a 'candidate' within the meaning of Section 13(a) and, therefore, not competent according to Section 14-A to present the petition.

31. It is also settled by the decisions of this Court that in order to have the requisite locus standi as a 'candidate' within the meaning of Section 13(a) for being entitled to present such an election petition in accordance with Section 14-A of the Act the petitioner must be duly nominated as a candidate in accordance with Section 5-B(1)(a) and Section 5-C. Unless it is so the petitioner cannot even claim to have been duly nominated as a candidate at the election as required by Section 13(a). The above conclusion in respect of the nomination paper of the petitioner, Mithilesh Kumar Sinha, from the facts set out by him in the petition, stated by him at the hearing and evident from the documents filed by him makes it clear that the petitioner, Mithilesh Kumar Sinha, has no locus standi to challenge the election of the returned candidate, Dr. Shanker Dayal Sharma as he is not competent to present the election petition in accordance with Section 14-A of the Act read with Order 39 Rule 7 of Supreme Court Rules."

58. Again, in Devendra Patel vs. Ram Pal Singh & Others, 2013 (10) SCC 80, the Supreme Court reiterated the law laid down in Mithlesh Kumar as under: -

"7. In our opinion, in view of the admitted position that Jaswant Singh's nomination was rejected as he was disqualified, he cannot be considered to be duly nominated as a candidate at the election. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that his contention is founded on the expression "claims to have been duly nominated as a candidate at any election" in Section 79(b)of the 1951 Act. The expression "claims to have been duly nominated as a candidate" would not take within its fold a person whose nomination has been rejected as being disqualified. Such person cannot claim to be duly nominated as a candidate when he is not qualified to contest election. In view of this position, Jaswant Singh is not covered by the expression 'candidate' in either of the two categories within the meaning ofSection 79(b)."

59. This Court, in Hari Kishan Lal vs. Atal Bihari Bajpai, AIR 2003 Alld 128 ruled that the person filing election petition if not a "duly nominated candidate", will have "no locus standi to file an election petition". In the said case, the nomination of the election petitioner was rejected for not filing proforma affidavit as per directions of the Election Commission dated 28.8.1997 and despite time being granted to him by the Returning Officer. The court held that requirement of filing affidavit was mandatory and non-filing of the same will result in disqualification of the petitioner. Such a person, being not a duly nominated candidate, cannot maintain election petition. The relevant observations are -

"43. The disqualifications are prescribed underArticle 102of the Constitution of India read withSection 8of the Representation of the People Act, the manner of determination of the disqualification is not provided either byArticle 102of the Constitution of India or bySection 8of the Act and in the absence of any positive requirement for filing of an affidavit, the Returning Officer while exercising powers underSection 36will have to act on the basis of merely a declaration made in the nomination paper. The necessity for issuing the directions by the Election Commission is in order to give effect to the provisions ofArticle 102(e)of the Constitution of India andSection 8of the Act as a person so disqualified cannot be permitted to contest an election. The petitioner whom sufficient time was given for filing the affidavit has chosen not to file the affidavit as required by the Election Com-mission and it was a willful defiance on his part and it cannot be said that he was a duly nominated candidate and has locus standi to file an election petition. The Returning Officer has only observed the direction issued by the Election Commission for which he was legally under an obligation. The contention of Sri R.N. Trivedi, Additional Solicitor General of India that the petitioner is not a duly nominated candidate and has no right to maintain the petition has force.

As the petitioner was not a duly nominated candidate under the provisions of theRepresentation of the People Actand the Constitution of India, he has no locus standi to file the instant Election Petition. It is accordingly rejected at the preliminary stage."

60. It is no more res integra that a person can claim to be duly nominated only if his nomination paper complies with the statutory requirements, which govern the filing of the election petition. As noted above, the Supreme Court in Jyoti Basu (supra) had held long back that no one has fundamental right to file an election petition. It is also not a right conferred under common law. An election petition can be filed only by the person permitted by statute and strictly in consonance with the requirements thereof, else it would call for outright rejection.

61. Learned counsel for the petitioner tried to distinguish these judgments by contending that therein the nomination was rejected because of procedural irregularity in filing of the same. However, in case of the petitioner, the issue as to whether petitioner was dismissed from service on ground of disloyalty or corruption and whether the Returning Officer was justified in rejecting the nomination do not fall in the realm of procedure, but invades his right to file election petition, therefore has to be decided by this court after full fledged trial. The petition cannot be thrown out at the threshold.

62. It is noteworthy that the requirement of filing certificate of the Election Commission is contained in Section 33, which deals with the procedure relating to presentation of nomination papers and requirements of a valid nomination. Like Section 5-B of the Act, Section 33 also contains a provision for filing of election petition by the candidate or by a specified number of electors. Sub-Section (2), (3), (5) stipulates various other requirements to be complied with while filing the nomination papers. Section 33-A and 34 are also part of the procedure relating to filing of nomination. Section 36(2)(b) enjoins upon the Returning Officer to reject the nomination if it does not comply with Section 33 or 34 of the Act.

63. Section 33, apposite to note, makes use of deeming clause at more than one place -

(i) a candidate shall not be deemed to be qualified to be chosen to fill that seat unless his nomination paper contains a declaration by him specifying the particular caste or tribe of which he is a member and the area in relation to which that caste or tribe is a Scheduled Caste or, as the case may be, a Scheduled Tribe of the State.

(ii) Where the candidate is a person who, having held any office referred to in 2 [section 9] has been dismissed and a period of five years has not elapsed since the dismissal, such person shall not be deemed to be duly nominated as a candidate unless his nomination paper is accompanied by a certificate issued in the prescribed manner by the Election Commission to the effect that he has not been dismissed for corruption or disloyalty to the State.

64. The word 'deemed' embodies a rule of evidence. The object of these provisions is to reduce dispute relating to qualification of the person filing nomination. It presumes existence of certain facts which may possibly be true, but not necessarily always. The manner in which the presumption could be falsified is specified in the statute itself. Thus, in case of a reserved seat, even if a candidate belongs to one of the reserved class, but fails to make declaration, specifying his caste or tribe, he is presumed not qualified to be chosen to fill that post. Likewise, when a candidate was dismissed from Government service within five years of filing of the nomination, he is under obligation to file certificate from the Election Commission that his dismissal was not on ground of disloyalty or corruption, failing which, he will be presumed to be not duly nominated. Concededly, in the instant case, the petitioner was dismissed from service of Government of India on 19.4.2017. He filed his nominations on 24.4.2017 and 29.4.2019. The period of five years had not elapsed by that time. Resultantly, the nomination were not in consonance with the statutory requirements. The petitioner cannot therefore claim to have been duly nominated.

65. Learned counsel for the petitioner has heavily placed reliance upon Nandiesha Reddy vs Mrs. Kavitha Mahesh, 2011 (7) SCC 721, while submitting that in the said case, the Supreme Court held an election petition to be maintainable, even if filed by a person whose nomination form was returned. It was urged that the petitioner's case is on a much better footing. In that case, the Returning Officer refused to accept the nomination form on the ground that it was not subscribed by required number of electors. The Returning Office did not wait for date of scrutiny to arrive, gave no time to meet the objections, nor held the enquiry envisaged by Section 33(2), (5) and (6) of the Act. In the said backdrop, the Supreme Court held as follows: -

"23. From a plain reading of the aforesaid provision it is evident that an election petition calling in question any election can be presented by any candidate at such election. Candidate, in our opinion, would not be only such person whose nomination form has been accepted for scrutiny or whose name appears in the list of validly nominated candidate, that is to say, candidates whose nominations have been found valid. Here, in the present case, the Election Petitioner's plea is that the Returning Officer declined to accept the nomination paper.

24. We are of the opinion that when a nomination paper is presented it is the bounden duty of the Returning Officer to receive the nomination, peruse it, point out the defects, if any, and allow the candidate to rectify the defects and when the defects are not removed then alone the question of rejection of nomination would arise. Any other view, in our opinion, will lead to grave consequences and the Returning Officers may start refusing to accept the nomination at the threshold which may ensure victory to a particular candidate at the election. This is fraught with danger, difficult to fathom."

66. However, the law laid down in the said case would not apply to the facts of the instant case, where the Returning Officer has rejected the nomination during scrutiny after putting the petitioner to notice.

67. This narrows down the controversy to the last submission as to whether the procedure adopted by the Returning Officer in rejecting the nomination was faulty and invalid. It is submitted that the petitioner should have been given at least 24 hours time, or till the end of next working day, to meet the objections.

68. Indisputably, on the date of scrutiny, i.e. 30.4.2019, when it transpired that the petitioner was in service of Government of India and was dismissed within preceeding five years, but certificate from Election Commission that he was not dismissed on ground of corruption or disloyalty, was not filed along with the nomination, he was issued two notices on the same date, granting time upto 11 a.m. the following day to meet the shortcoming. Since the objection was raised by the Returning Officer himself and also by a third person, therefore as provided under proviso to Section 36(5), it was necessary to grant time to the petitioner to rebut it by not later than the next day. In strict consonance with the legislative mandate, time was granted to the petitioner to meet the objection by 11 a.m. on the next date, i.e. 1.5.2019. The contention that he should have been granted at least 24 hours time or till the end of next working day, does not have force. The provision only stipulates that time to rebut shall be allowed, which shall not be later than the next day, following the date fixed for scrutiny. It would not mean that for fulfilling the requirement of the said provision, time till end of next working day has to be granted. The Returning Officer has also to take decision on the same date to which proceedings have been adjourned. For taking decision, he will also need time, as when nomination is rejected, he has to record brief reasons for such rejection. The provision has to be interpreted to advance the election scheme. Every step has to be taken with full promptitude to ensure completion of the election process in time. The principles of natural justice are applicable to the extent specifically provided. The petitioner cannot claim right to be dealth with more liberally if it is not permissible under the scheme of the statute.

69. In Rakesh Kumar vs. Sunil Kumar, (1999) 2 SCC 489, on which heavy reliance was placed by counsel for the petitioner, the Returning Officer refused to adjourn scrutiny to the next day, inspite of candidate making request for time to meet the objections raised against him. The Returning Officer harboured under wrong impression that he was not empowered to adjourn the scrutiny to the next day. In that context, the Supreme Court held as follows: -

"20. Through the proviso, the legislature has provided that in case an objection is raised during the scrutiny, to the validity of a nomination paper of a candidate, the Returning Officer, may, give an opportunity to the concerned candidate to rebut the objection by giving him time not later than the next day. This is in accord with the principles of natural justice also. Since, no other candidate had raised any objection to the claim of the respondent of being the official candidate of BJP, and the objection had been raised by the Returning Officer suo motu, the mandate of the proviso toSection 36(5)of the Act warranted the holding of a summary enquiry, to determine the validity of the nomination paper by the returning officer, while exercising his quasi-judicial function. In the present case, the respondent had sought an opportunity to meet the objection, but even if he had not sought such an opportunity, the returning officer ought to have granted him time to meet the objection in the interest of justice and fair play.

21. The Returning Officer would have been justified in rejecting the nomination paper of the respondent, had the respondent either not sought an opportunity to rebut the objection raised by the Returning Officer or was unable to rebut the objection within the time allowed by the returning officer. Since, the respondent, had by his written application (supra), filed at the time of scrutiny of the nomination papers itself claimed to be the official candidate set up by BJP, which claim was not disputed by any one else during the scrutiny, and had sought time of 24 hours to provide relevant material in support of his submission, it was obligatory on the part of the Returning Officer to allow time to him to rebut the objection, suo motu, raised by the Returning Officer. He could have given him any time to do so within 24 hours but to deny him such an opportunity, in the facts and circumstances of the case, was neither fair nor proper or justified. It was expected of the Returning Officer to adjourn the scrutiny of the nomination paper to enable the respondent to meet the objection. The use of the expression not later than the next day but one following the date fixed for scrutiny under proviso to sub-section (5) of Section 36of the Act un-mistakably shows that the Returning Officer has been vested with the discretion to fix time to enable a candidate to rebut an objection to the validity of his nomination paper and such a discretion has to be fairly and judicially exercised. The refusal to grant an opportunity to the returned candidate and rejecting his nomination paper was clearly an arbitrary exercise of the discretion vested in the Returning Officer."

70. The Supreme Court nowhere held that time till the end of next working day or 24 hours time should be granted to meet the objection. It only held that the Returning Offficer could have given any time to do so "within 24 hours". I thus find no force in the submission that the procedure adopted by the Returning Officer was in manner faulty or contrary to the statutory scheme.

71. As a result of above discussion, it is clear that the petitioner is neither an elector nor a candidate at the election which he seeks to challenge and would therefore have no locus to file election petition. It is accordingly dismissed, but without any order as to costs.

2. M. Veerappa Vs Evelyn Sequeira and others (1988) 1 SCC 556

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ved Prakash Vaish,J.)

1. Heard Sri Manish Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Prashant Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondent.

2. This is an appeal under Section 23 of the Railways Claims Tribunal Act, 1987 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 1987") against the order dated 19th January, 2016 passed by the Railways Claims Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as "the Tribunal"), Lucknow Bench, Lucknow in Claim Application No.OA/II/U/889/09, whereby the application for substitution of legal representatives was dismissed.

3. The relevant facts necessary for determination of the present appeal are that Smt. Saroj Yadav preferred an application under Section 16 of the Act, 1987 through her husband Sri Suneel Kumar (who is the appellant) for grant of compensation. The case of the claimant was that she along with her daughter Km. Shreya, three years old, was trying to get down from the train, they fell down from the train at Jaipuriya railway crossing near Kanpur Railway Station, both of them sustained injuries; due to said injuries, her daughter-Km. Shreya expired; the applicant, Smt. Saroj Yadav sustained injuries, she had undergone treatment in the hospital at Kanpur. Smt. Saroj Yadav filed an application for grant of compensation on the ground of injuries received by her in the alleged untoward incident bearing Original Application No. OA/II/U/889/09.

4. During pendency of the said application, the applicant (Smt. Saroj Yadav) died on 30.12.2012; the appellant, Suneel Kumar moved an application for substitution of her legal representative.

5. The respondent resisted the application by filing objections on the grounds, inter alia, that since Smt. Saroj Yadav preferred the application for compensation on the ground of her personal injury, the right to sue was personal and came to an end with the death of the claimant. It was also stated that the death certificate of Smt. Saroj Yadav shows the date of death as 30.12.2012, but no documentary evidence was filed by the applicant to establish that the death of the deceased occurred due to injuries sustained by her in the alleged incident dated 26.07.2009.

6. The Tribunal framed the following two questions for disposal of the application for substitution of legal representative:

(i) Whether Smt. Saroj Yadav died due to injuries sustained by her in the alleged untoward incident or her death was a natural death?

(ii) In case the death of the claimant was natural, then whether right to sue survives after her death and consequently, the applicant for substitution deserves to be allowed?

7. After considering the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties, vide order dated 19.01.2016, the Tribunal came to the conclusion that the original applicant died on account of natural death. Hence, in view of the maxim 'actio personalis moritur cum persona' right to sue for compensation on account of personal injury came to an end with the death of the original applicant, Smt. Saroj Yadav and since right to sue come to an end, the claim stands abated. Thus, the request for substitution of the applicant in place of the deceased applicant was rejected and the claim was abated.

8. Aggrieved by the said order dated 19.01.2016, the appellant has preferred the present appeal.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant urged that the maxim 'actio personalis moritur cum persona' depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. According to him, only such claims or reliefs as can be availed by the deceased claimants personally, would abate and not those, which can be quantified in terms of damages.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant also submitted that the present case relates to a contract between the deceased and the applicant, Smt. Saroj Yadav and Railways as she was a bona fide passenger of the train who got injured in an untoward incident when she accidentally fell down from the train along with her daughter at Jaipuriya railway crossing near Kanpur Railway Station, and therefore, right to sue survives and the proceedings does not abate. According to learned counsel for the appellant, the Tribunal did not appreciate the law laid down in 'Shri Rameshwar Manjhi (Deceased) Through His Son Shri Lakhiram Manjhi vs. Management of Sangramgarh Colliery and others', (1994) 1 SCC 292.

11. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the Tribunal has rightly dismissed the application for substitution and abated the claim application after applying the judgment in Rameshwar Manjhi's case (supra).

12. I have given my thoughtful considerations to the submissions made by learned counsel for both the parties. I have also carefully gone through the material available on record.

13. Before adverting the facts of the present case, it is necessary to consider the relevant provisions of the Railways Act, 1989.

14. Chapter XIII of the Railways Act, 1989 deals with the liability of Railway Administration for death and injury to passengers due to accident. Section 125 of the Railways Act, 1989 provides for filing an application for compensation. The same reads as under:-

"125. Application for compensation.--(1) An application for compensation under section 124 [or section 124A] may be made to the Claims Tribunal--*

(a) by the person who has sustained the injury or suffered any loss, or

(b) by any agent duly authorised by such person in this behalf, or

(c) where such person is a minor, by his guardian, or

(d) where death has resulted from the accident, [or the untoward incident] by any dependant of the deceased or where such a dependant is a minor, by his guardian.

(2) Every application by a dependant for compensation under this section shall be for the benefit of every other dependant."

15. Section 124 of the Railways Act, 1989 provides the accident of liability and compensation on account of untoward incident. The same reads as under:-

"124. Extent of liability.--When in the course of working a railway, an accident occurs, being either a collision between trains of which one is a train carrying passengers or the derailment of or other accident to a train or any part of a train carrying passengers, then whether or not there has been any wrongful act, neglect or default on the part of the railway administration such as would* entitle a passenger who has been injured or has suffered a loss to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof, the railway administration shall, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law, be liable to pay compensation to such extent as may be prescribed and to that extent only for loss occasioned by the death of a passenger dying as a result of such accident, and for personal injury and loss, destruction, damage or deterioration of goods owned by the passenger and accompanying him in his compartment or on the train, sustained as a result of such accident.

124A. Compensation on account of untoward incident.--When in the course of working a railway an untoward incident occurs, then whether or not there has been any wrongful act, neglect or default on the part of the railway administration such as would entitle a passenger who has been injured or the dependant of a passenger who has been killed to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof, the railway administration shall, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law, be liable to pay compensation to such extent as may be prescribed and to that extent only for loss occasioned by the death of, or injury to, a passenger as a result of such untoward incident:

Provided that no compensation shall be payable under this section by the railway administration if the passenger dies or suffers injury due to--

(a) suicide or attempted suicide by him;

(b) self-inflicted injury;

(c) his own criminal act;

(d) any act committed by him in a state of intoxication or insanity;

(e) any natural cause or disease or medical or surgical treatment unless such treatment becomes necessary due to injury caused by the said untoward incident."

16. Section 123 of the Railways Act, 1989 defines the expression 'independent' as under:-

"123. Definitions.--In this Chapter, unless the context otherwise requires,--

(a) "accident" means an accident of the nature described in section 124;

(b) "dependant" means any of the following relatives of a deceased passenger, namely:--

(i) the wife, husband, son and daughter, and in case the deceased passenger is unmarried or is a minor, his parent;

(ii) the parent, minor brother or unmarried sister, widowed sister, widowed daughter-in-law and a minor child of a pre-deceased son, if dependant wholly or partly on the deceased passenger;

(iii) a minor child of a pre-deceased daughter, if wholly dependant on the deceased passenger;

(iv) the paternal grandparent wholly dependant on the deceased passenger.

(c) "untoward incident" means--

(1) (i) the commission of a terrorist act within the meaning of sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) Act, 1987 (28 of 1987); or

(ii) the making of a violent attack or the commission of robbery or dacoity; or

(iii) the indulging in rioting, shoot-out or arson, by any person in or on any train carrying passengers, or in a waiting hall, cloak room or reservation or booking office or on any platform or in any other place within the precincts of a railway station; or

(2) the accidental falling of any passenger from a train carrying passengers."

17. The expression 'dependant' is to be understood as defined under Section 123(b) of the Railways Act 1989 "unless the context otherwise requires" as can be seen from Section 123 which starts with the words "In this chapter unless the context otherwise requires". An application under Section 125 (1)(a) can be made by the person who has sustained the injury or suffered any loss. Section 124 deals with injury suffered or loss of property. There is no reason to assume that the legal heirs/representatives of a deceased passengers will not be entitled to claim compensation. If Section 125 (1)(a) is considered in any narrow sense, that would mean that even if a deceased has suffered loss of property, his legal heirs cannot stake a claim under Section 125(1)(a). That would certainly be an unjust and absurd construction. Negligence of the Railways is implicit in Section 124 though proof is dispensed. If two trains collide or one gets derailed or other similar accident take place, negligence is transparently there on the part of the railways and the dispensation of the obligation to proof negligence does not alter the nature of liability. In such a case to say that only the owner of the goods and not his legal heirs/legal representatives will be entitled to claim compensation, would be patently unjust. Hence, the expression "person who has suffered a loss appearing" in clause (a) of Section 125 (1) will certainly have to include the legal heirs/legal representatives of such deceased person who have suffered loss.

18. At this juncture, it is relevant to consider the provisions of Section 306 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 and Order XXII Rules 1 and 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure (hereinafter referred to as "C.P.C."). Section 306 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 provides for continuation of the proceedings by or against an individual even after the death, subject to certain conditions. Order XXII Rules 1 and 3 of C.P.C. provides for the consequences of the death of a party to proceedings and the steps to be taken, in that context. Section 306 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 reads as under:-

"306. Demands and rights of action of or against deceased survive to and against executor or administrator.--All demands whatsoever and all rights to prosecute or defend any action or special proceeding existing in favour of or against a person at the time of his decease, survive to and against his executors or administrators; except causes of action for defamation, assault, as defined in the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (45 of 1860) or other personal injuries not causing the death of the party; and except also cases where, after the death of the party, the relief sought could not be enjoyed or granting it would be nugatory."

19. Order XXII Rules 1 and 3 of C.P.C. read as under:-

"1. No abatement by party's death if right to sue survives.--The death of a plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate if the right to sue survives.

3. Procedure in case of death of one of several plaintiff or of sole plaintiff.--(1) Where one of two or more plaintiffs dies and the right to sue does not survive to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, or a sole plaintiff or sole surviving plaintiff dies and the right to the sue survives, the Court, on an application made in that behalf, shall cause the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff to be made a party and shall proceed with the suit.

(2) Where within the time limited by law no application is made under sub-rule (1), the suit shall abate so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned, and, on the application of the defendant, the Court may award to him the costs which he may have incurred in defending the suit, to be recovered from the estate of the deceased plaintiff."

20. It is settled law that Section 306 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 is substantive in nature and Order XXII of C.P.C. is procedural. The object of application for substitution of legal heirs/legal representative is to continue the proceedings.

21. It is pertinent to mention here that in Chapter XIII of the Railways Act, 1989, there is no specific provision as to what will happen when the dependant of a victim of an accident expires during pendency of the claim application. There is no provision of abatement or extinction of the claim of a dependant on his/her death. The rights of a dependent cannot vanish into thin air or disappear merely because death of the dependent takes place, during pendency of the claim application. There is no provision in Chapter XIII of the Railways Act, 1989 that a dependent where the context so requires cannot include the legal heirs of a deceased dependent. The general provisions of law relating to inheritance and succession are not touched by the provisions of Chapter XIII of the Railways Act, 1989.

22. Under the general law, a legal heir claiming under a dependent is entitled to continue the claim as a legal representative. Similarly, a claim which the dependent can be continued by the legal heir/legal representative of a deceased i.e., one claiming under the deceased dependent.

23. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of 'M. Veerappa vs. Evelyn Sequeira and others', (1988) 1 SCC 556 after considering the provisions of Order XXII Rules 1 and 3 of the C.P.C. and Section 306 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 and various judgments held as follows:-

"If the entire suit claim was founded on torts, the suit would undoubtedly abate. If the action was founded partly on torts and partly on contract, then, such part of the claim as related to torts would stand abated and the other part would survive. If the suit claim was founded entirely on contract, then, the suit had to proceed to trial in its entirety and be adjudicated upon."

24. In Rameshwar Manjhi's case (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court considered various judgments and approved the views expressed in 'Gwalior Rayons Mayoor vs. Labour Court', (1978) 2 LLJ 118 (Ker) and 'Management of Bank of Baroda, Ahmedabad vs. The Workmen of Bank of Baroda', (1979) 2 LLJ 57 (Guj). In the said case, the issue was, as to whether the claim of an employee, which was pending before the authorities, under the relevant statutes would abate on his death. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held:-

"13. It is thus obvious that the applicability of the maxim 'actio personalis moritur cum persona' depends upon the 'relief claimed' and the facts of each case. By and large the industrial disputes under Section 2-A of the Act relate to the termination of services of the concerned workman. In the event of the death of the workman during pendency of the proceedings, the relief of reinstatement, obviously, cannot be granted. But the final determination of the issues involved in the reference may be relevant for regulating the conditions of service of the other workmen in the industry. Primary object of the Act is to bring industrial peace. The Tribunals and Labour Courts under the Act are the instruments for achieving the same objective. It is, therefore, in conformity with the scheme of the Act that the proceedings in such cases should continue at the instance of the legal heirs/representatives of the deceased workman. Even otherwise there may be a claim for back wages or for monetary relief in any other form. The death of the workman during pendency of the proceedings cannot deprive the heirs or the legal representatives of their right to continue the proceedings and claim the benefits as successors to the deceased workman."

25. It is pertinent to mention here that the Railway Claims Tribunal (Procedure) Rules, 1989 gives a clear indication justifying that the right to claim compensation by a dependent does not get abated or extinguished on the death of the dependent. The Railway Claims Tribunal (Procedure) Rules, 1989 clearly indicates that there can be substitution of a deceased party to the proceedings by his legal representatives. The same reads as under:-

"26. Substitution of legal representatives.--(1) In the case of death of a party during the pendency of the proceedings before Tribunal, the legal representatives of the deceased party may apply within ninety days of the date of such death for being brought on record.*

(2) Where no application is received from the legal representaves within the period specified in sub-rule(1), the proceedings shall abate:

Provided that for good and sufficient reasons shown, the Tribunal may allow substitution of the legal representatives of the deceased."

26. From perusal of Rule 26, it is clear that it applies to all claims made by the applicants under Section 125 including dependents who stake the claim under Section 125(1)(d) of the Railways Act, 1989. That being so, Rule 26 is, therefore, a clinching indication that the law did not expect the claim of dependent/claimant to come to an end when the death of such dependent/claimant. If the legal heirs under Rule 26 can get impleaded and substituted to continue the claim, there can be no justification for the theory that the claim ends or dies with the dependent/claimant.

27. In the instant case, the claim application was filed by Smt. Saroj Yadav

(now deceased), during pendency of the said application she died, the appellant moved an application for substitution as her legal representative/legal heir. The Tribunal while considering the application for substitution took into consideration whether Smt. Saroj Yadav (original claimant) died due to injuries sustained by her in the alleged untoward incident or her death was a natural death. In my view, the same was not warranted at that stage. In my considered view, the appellant-Suneel Kumar is entitled to be substituted as legal heir of the deceased claimant.

28. In the result, the appeal is allowed and the impugned order dated 19th January, 2016 passed by the Railways Claims Tribunal, Lucknow Bench, Lucknow is set aside and the application for substitution of legal heir of the deceased applicant, Smt. Saroj Yadav is allowed. The Railway Claims Tribunal is directed to decide the claim application expeditiously, in accordance with law.

29. Lower court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent back to the Tribunal forthwith.

5. P. Purushottam Reddy And Anr Vs Pratap Steels Ltd (2002) 2 SCC 686

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ved Prakash Vaish,J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashish Kumar, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Subhash Chandra Pandey, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The appellant impugns judgment and decree dated 28th August, 2014 passed by learned Additional District Judge, Sitapur, in Civil Appeal No.15 of 2013 (Jagdev Prasad and Anr. v. Kanthuram) by filing appeal under Order 43 Rule 1 (u) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

3. The brief facts of the case are that the appellant/ plaintiff filed a suit for permanent injunction restraining the respondents/ defendants from interfering in peaceful possession of the appellant and from interfering in the construction work in the suit premises. The case of the appellant/ plaintiff is that his house is situated in mohalla Bahadurpur, pargana Bari, tehsil Sidhauli, district Sitapur, the plaintiff used to tie animals in the Haata; the house of the plaintiff was demolished during rains and he wanted to construct Pakka house; in the village panchayat Sidhauli, house of the plaintiff is recorded as house no.90. Defendant no.2 tried to demolish the same; the plaintiff moved an application dated 25th August, 2008 to Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Sidhauli but the defendants are interfering in his peaceful possession. Hence, the plaintiff filed the suit for permanent injunction.

4. The suit was contested by the defendants/ respondents by filing written statements. The defendants denied the allegations made during the plaint; it is stated that the defendants inherited the said disputed land from their forefathers. The disputed land is the way to exit of defendants and the plaintiff is trying to take forcible possession, defendants have informed about the dispute to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate on 24.10.2008 and 27.10.2008, defendants have got a plan sanctioned to construct the house.

5. On 08th March, 2011, following issues were framed by the Trial Court:

1- क्या वादी विवादित अहाता वर्णित धारा–2 वादपत्र का मालिक काबिज है?

2- क्या वादी वांछित अनुतोष पाने का अधिकारी है?

6. In support of his case, the appellant/ plaintiff examined Smt. Shanti Devi (P.W.1), Kallu (P.W. 2) and Rajju (P.W. 3). The defendants examined Sri Jagdev Prasad (D.W.1), Kamlesh (D.W.2) and Babu Ram (D.W.3).

7. Vide order and decree dated 13th February, 2013, the suit was decreed by the learned Additional Civil Judge, Senior Division, Sitapur.

8. Against the said order of decree dated 13th February, 2013, the respondents/ defendants filed Civil Appeal No.15 of 2013. Vide impugned judgment and decree dated 28th August, 2014, the appeal was allowed and the matter was remanded back to the Trial Court for passing a fresh order.

9. Being aggrieved by the said judgment and decree, the appellant/ plaintiff has filed the present appeal.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant urges that it was not disputed that the disputed property and plot no.90 are the same property, the appellate court failed to appreciate the tax receipts filed by the appellant. He also submits that the documents filed by the appellant/ plaintiff were also on record and sufficient opportunity was given by the trial court to the respondents to rebut the same but the respondents/ defendants did not rebut the said documents.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant also submits that the impugned judgment and decree is against the provisions of Order XLI Rule 23 and 23-A of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. The appellate court could have decided the matter on the basis of pleadings, documents on record and the evidence adduced by both the parties.

12. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents/ defendants contends that the appellant had filed some documents at the time of final arguments and no opportunity was given to the respondents to rebut the said documents; in these circumstances, the First Appellate Court rightly remanded the matter for passing a fresh order after affording opportunity to rebut the said documents.

13. I have carefully considered the submissions made by learned counsel for both the parties and I have also gone through the materials available on record.

14. Before adverting the facts of the present case, it is necessary to consider the provisions of Rule 23 and 24 of Order XLI of C.P.C. Rule 23 and 24 of Order XLI of C.P.C. read as under:-

"23. Remand of case by Appellate Court.- Where the Court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, and may further direct what issue or issues shall be tried in the case so remanded, and shall send a copy of its judgment and order to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, which directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register of civil suits, and proceed to determine the suit; and the evidence (if any) recorded during the original trial shall, subject to all just exceptions, be evidence during the trial after remand.

23-A. Remand in other cases.- Where the Court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the case otherwise than on a preliminary point, and the decree is reversed in appeal and a retrial is considered necessary, the Appellate Court shall have the same powers as it has under Rule 23.*

24. Where evidence on record sufficient, Appellate Court may determine case finally.- Where the evidence upon the record is sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce judgment, the Appellate Court may, after resettling the issues, if necessary, finally determine the suit, notwithstanding that the judgment of the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has proceeded wholly upon some ground other than that on which the Appellate Court proceeds."*

15. On perusal of provisions of Rule 23 Order XLI of C.P.C. it is clear that where the Court has disposed of the suit on a preliminary point and the decree is reversed in appeal, the appellate court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, and may further direct what issue or issues shall be tried in the case so remanded. Rule 23A of Order XLI of C.P.C. provides that where the Courts from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the case otherwise than on a preliminary point, and the decree is reversed in appeal and a retrial is considered necessary, the appellate court shall have the same powers as it has under Rule 23. Rule 24 of Order XLI of C.P.C. provides that where the evidence on record is sufficient, appellate court may determine case finally, instead of remanding the same to the lower court.

16. It is settled principle of law that the powers under Section 96 of C.P.C. are wide. The first appeal has to be decided on facts as well as on law. In the first appeal parties have the right to be heard both on questions of law as also on facts and the first appellate court is required to address itself to all issues and decide the case by giving reasons. Unfortunately, the appellate court, in the present case has not recorded any finding either on facts or on law. Sitting as the first appellate court it was the duty of the appellate court to deal with all the issues and the evidence led by the parties before recording the finding regarding ownership and possession.

17. The scope and ambit of the first appellate court under Section 96 of C.P.C. have been considered in 'Santosh Hazari vs. Purushottam Tiwari (Deceased) by LRs.', (2001) 3 SCC 179, in the said case the Hon'ble Supreme Court held (at pages 188-189) as under:-

"The appellate court has jurisdiction to reverse or affirm the findings of the trial court. First appeal is a valuable right of the parties and unless restricted by law, the whole case is therein open for rehearing both on questions of fact and law. The judgment of the appellate court must, therefore, reflect its conscious application of mind and record findings supported by reasons, on all the issues arising along with the contentions put forth, and pressed by the parties for decision of the appellate court. ... while reversing a finding of fact the appellate court must come into close quarters with the reasoning assigned by the trial court and then assign its own reasons for arriving at a different finding. This would satisfy the court hearing a further appeal that the first appellate court had discharged the duty expected of it."

18. In 'Madhukar & Others v. Sangram & Others', (2001) 4 SCC 756, the Hon'ble Supreme Court reiterated that sitting as a court of first appeal, it is the duty of the High Court to deal with all the issues and the evidence led by the parties before recording its findings.

19. Further, in the case of 'B.V. Nagesh and another v. H.V. Sreenivasa Murthy', (2010) 13 SCC 530, the Hon'ble Supreme Court after taking note of all the earlier judgments laid down following principle with regard to Order XLI of C.P.C. which is as follows:

"3. How the regular first appeal is to be disposed of by the appellate court/High Court has been considered by this Court in various decisions. Order 41 of C.P.C. deals with appeals from original decrees. Among the various rules, Rule 31 mandates that the judgment of the appellate court shall state: (a) the points for determination; (b) the decision thereon; (c) the reasons for the decision; and (d) where the decree appealed from is reversed or varied, the relief to which the appellant is entitled.

4. The appellate Court has jurisdiction to reverse or affirm the findings of the trial court. The first appeal is a valuable right of the parties and unless restricted by law, the whole case is therein open for rehearing both on questions of fact and law. The judgment of the appellate court must,... therefore, reflect its conscious application of mind and record findings supported by reasons, on all the issues arising along with the contentions putforth, and pressed by the parties for decision of the appellate court. Sitting as a court of first appeal, it was the duty of the High Court to deal with all the issues and the evidence led by the parties before recording its findings. The first appeal is a valuable right and the parties have a right to be heard both on questions of law and on facts and the judgment in the first appeal must address itself to all the issues of law and fact and decide it by giving reasons in support of the findings. (Vide Santosh Hazari v. Purushottam Tiwari, (2001) 3 SCC 179 at p.188, para 15 and Madhukar v. Sangram, (2001) 4 SCC 756 at p.758, para 5.)

5. In view of the above salutary principles, on going through the impugned judgment, we feel that the High Court has failed to discharge the obligation placed on it as a first appellate court. In our view, the judgment under appeal is cryptic and none of the relevant aspects have even been noticed. The appeal has been decided in an unsatisfactory manner. Our careful perusal of the judgment in the regular first appeal shows that it falls short of considerations which are expected from the court of first appeal. Accordingly, without going into the merits of the claim of both parties, we set aside the impugned judgment and decree of the High Court and remand the regular first appeal to the High Court for its fresh disposal in accordance with law."

20. In 'State Bank of India & Anr. v. Emmsons International Ltd.& Anr.' (2011) 12 SCC 174, the Hon'ble Supreme Court reiterated the aforesaid principles.

"11. In the case at hand, the trial court did not dispose of the suit upon a preliminary point. The suit was decided by recording findings on all the issues. By its appellate judgment under appeal herein, the High Court has recorded its finding on some of the issues, not preliminary, and then framed three additional issues leaving them to be tried and decided by the trial court. It is not a case where a retrial is considered necessary. Neither Rule 23 nor Rule 23-A of Order 41 applies. None of the conditions contemplated by Rule 27 exists so as to justify production of additional evidence by either party under that Rule. The validity of remand has to be tested by reference to Rule 25. So far as the objection as to maintainability of the suit for failure of the plaint to satisfy the requirement of Forms 47 and 48 of Appendix A CPC is concerned, the High Court has itself found that there was no specific plea taken in the written statement. The question of framing an issue did not, therefore, arise. However, the plea was raised on behalf of the defendants purely as a question of law which, in their submission, strikes at the very root of the right of the plaintiff to maintain the suit in the form in which it was filed and so the plea was permitted to be urged. So far as the plea as to readiness and willingness by reference to Clause (c) of Section 16 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 is concerned, the pleadings are there as they were and the question of improving upon the pleadings does not arise inasmuch as neither any of the parties made a prayer for amendment in the pleadings nor has the High Court allowed such a liberty. It is true that a specific issue was not framed by the trial court. Nevertheless, the parties and the trial court were very much alive to the issue whether Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act was complied with or not and the contentions advanced by the parties in this regard were also adjudicated upon. The High Court was to examine whether such finding of the trial court was sustainable or not-in law and on facts. Even otherwise the question could have been gone into by the High Court and a finding could have been recorded on the available material inasmuch as the High Court being the court of first appeal, all the questions of fact and law arising in the case were open before it for consideration and decision."

22. Undisputedly, Section 107 of the C.P.C. empowers the appellate court to remand a case but it also empowers the appellate court to take additional evidence or to require such evidence to be taken. Rule 24 of Order XLI of the C.P.C. provides that where evidence on record is sufficient, the appellate court may determine the case finally. It is settled principle of law that the first appellate court has power to remand the case if the trial court has disposed of a suit on a preliminary issue without recording evidence and giving its decision on the rest of the issues.

23. In the present case, the appellant filed a suit for permanent injunction restraining the respondents/ defendants from interfering in his peaceful possession, the respondents filed written statement, issues were framed and both the parties adduced their respective evidence. It is not a case where the trial court has disposed of the suit on the preliminary issues without recording evidence and giving its decision on the rest of the issues. The Appellate Court could have decided the appeal on the basis of the material on record.

24. In the result, the appeal is allowed, the impugned judgment and decree dated 28th August, 2014 passed by learned Additional District Judge, Sitapur in Civil Appeal No.15 of 2013 are set aside and the matter is remanded back to the appellate court to decide the appeal on merits and pass a fresh order after hearing both the parties, in accordance with law. The first appellate court is directed to decide the appeal expeditiously and preferably within a period three months.

25. Both the parties are directed to appear before the learned District Judge, Sitapur on 20th January, 2020 who will hear the appeal himself or assign to some other competent court for deciding the same according to law.

26. Lower court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent to the Appellate Court immediately.

A. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Sections 166 & 168 - Multiplier - Deceased more than 50 years - Operative multiplier is 11 for the age group of 51 to 55 years (Para 10)

B. Practice and Procedure - Appellant cannot be permitted to say that the principles laid down in Sarla Verma case and Pranay Sethi case should be applied to the extent it is beneficial to the appellant and not where it is beneficial to the respondents-claimants.

First Appeal from Order disposed Off. (E-5)

List of cases cited: -

1. Sarla Verma Vs Delhi Transport Corporation (2009) 6 SCC 121

2. National Insurance Company Vs Pranay Sethi & others AIR 2017 SC 5157

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava,J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

2. This appeal has been filed against the impugned judgment and award dated 01.12.2015, passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Special Judge (D.A.A.), Agra, in MACP No. 441/2014 (Smt. Dropadi Devi and other vs. Yad Ram and others) by which the learned Tribunal has awarded the compensation of Rs. 27,85,495/- with 7% simple interest per annum from the date of filing of the appeal.

3. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment this appeal has been filed on the ground that rash and negligent driving of the driver of the offending Maruti Van was not established and the said Maruti Van was not involved in the accident. The salary of the deceased was not fixed and it was based on the quantity of work, therefore, the learned Tribunal has committed error in taking the salary of the deceased to be on monthly basis. The amount of average of salary should have been taken into consideration. The deceased was nearer to retirement and the multiplier of 7 should have been applied instead of applying the multiplier of 9. The compensation amount is in the higher side, hence, the award is liable to be set aside.

4. Issues were framed by the learned Tribunal and on the basis of evidence on record, the learned Tribunal has concluded that the driver of the offending Maruti Van was rashly and negligently driving the Van and he dashed the motorcycle of the deceased, who died out of injuries sustained by the said accident. It was also found that the claimant PW-1 Smt. Dropadi Devi has supported the allegations of the petition but she was not an eye witness of the accident. PW-3 Ram Babu has been examined as an eye witness and he has proved that the driver of the Maruti Van hit the motorcycle. He was driving the Maruti Van very rashly and negligently and after causing accident, the driver escaped towards Agra. The witness has also stated that in the accident the total fault was of the driver of the Maruti Van. He has also identified the place where the accident took place. He has further stated that the deceased was driving the motor cycle at a very slow speed. It has also been stated by him that he had told the number of Maruti Van to the police by which the said accident was caused as he saw the the whole incident.

5. The learned Tribunal has also found that there was nothing on record on the basis of which the statement of the witnesses could be disbelieved. The police papers such as first information report, postmortem report, charge sheet and site map prepared by the police have also been filed in the evidence by which the version of the petition was fully corroborated. The learned Tribunal has very adequately dealt with the argument that the first information report was lodged after six days from the date of accident. I do not find any perversity or illegality in the finding of the learned Tribunal.

6. The learned Tribunal has also found that the driver of the Maruti Van was having legal and effective driving license at the time of accident and the Maruti Van was insured with the National Insurance Company. Therefore, the learned Tribunal has rightly held that the responsibility to pay compensation was on the Insurance Company.

7. So far as the quantum of compensation is concerned, PW-2 J.L. Parindra has filed the salary certificate of the deceased, which was also proved by him. On the basis of that salary certificate, the amount of compensation has been determined by the learned Tribunal and I find no illegality in it. The salary certificate shows that after deduction, the take home salary of the deceased was Rs. 28,235/- per month. Learned Tribunal has also found that at the time of accident, the age of the deceased was more than 50 years and, therefore, added 20% against the future income of the deceased.

8. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant is that in view of the judgment of the Supreme Court in National Insurance Company vs. Pranay Sethi, AIR 2017 SC 5157, in the age of 50 to 60 years, only 15% future income is required to be added. 15% of monthly income of Rs. 28.235/- comes to Rs. 4,235/-, whereas, the learned Tribunal has added Rs. 5,647/- against future income. Therefore, the argument of the learned counsel for the appellant is that Rs. 28,235/- + Rs. 4,235/- makes the monthly income Rs. 32,470/-, as such multiplied by 12, the annual income will come to Rs. 3,89,640/-and not Rs. 406584/- as assessed by the learned Tribunal.

9. In view of the above argument, It is therefore, should be seen that by application of Pranay Sethi (supra), and by giving benefit of the judgment to both sides, the awarded amount is in higher side or is just and reasonable. It appears that learned Tribunal has applied the multiplier in the lower side by which the appellant should not be aggrieved as in view of judgment in Sarla Verma v Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121, the available multiplier at the age of 51 to 55 years should be 11. The Supreme Court has laid down as below :-

"We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in column (4) of the Table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M-16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is, M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

10. The above law has further been affirmed on the point of multiplier in Pranay Sethi (supra). It is clear from the above observation that between the age of 51 to 55, the available multiplier is 11, as the learned Tribunal has determined the age of the deceased to be more than 50 years, hence, the multiplier of 9 has been used. It is again in the lower side as the correct multiplier, in view of Sarla Verma (supra), should have been 11 and there is no force in the argument of the appellant that a multiplier of 7 should have been applied. Thus Rs. 406584 x 9 = Rs. 3659256/-.

11. In view of the above, what is interesting to note that in the annual income as submitted by the learned counsel to the appellant, if a multiplier of 11 will be applied, it will make the amount Rs. 389640/- x 11 = 4286040. The learned Tribunal has assessed the annual income by adding 20% future income to be Rs. 406684/- and if multiplied by 9, it comes to Rs. 3659256/- which is still less than the amount calculated on the basis of adding 15% future income multiplied by 11 which is Rs. 4286040/-. The appellant cannot be permitted to say that the principles laid down in Sarla Verma (supra) and Pranay Sethi (supra) should be applied to the extent it is beneficial to the appellant and not where it is beneficial to the respondents-claimants. Thus, it clearly establishes that by applying the above referred law, the compensation amount must have increased by more than two lacs rupees. I find that there is no legal base for the grievance raised in this appeal and considered from all point of view, the awarded amount is not required to be disturbed.

12. In Sarla Verma (supra), it has been held by the Supreme Court that a proceeding before the Tribunal is in the nature of inquiry in which a very few thing is required to be established. The Court has observed as under :-

"Basically only three facts need to be established by the claimants for assessing compensation in the case of death: (a) age of the deceased; (b) income of the deceased; and the (c) the number of dependents. The issues to be determined by the Tribunal to arrive at the loss of dependency are (i) additions/deductions to be made for arriving at the income; (ii) the deduction to be made towards the personal living expenses of the deceased; and (iii) the multiplier to be applied with reference of the age of the deceased."

13. The learned Tribunal has deducted 1/4 amount against the personal expenses keeping in view that the surviving members in the family of the deceased were 5, therefore, the amount RS. 3659256/- and 1/4th of it is Rs. 914814/- and after deducting same it comes to Rs. 2744442/-. The learned Tribunal has adequately added the amount against the conventional head which is Rs. 41,000/-, hence, the total amount comes to Rs. 2785442/-.

13. In view of above, the total amount of compensation to which the claimants are entitled shall be Rs. 2785442/-. The learned Tribunal has calculated it to be Rs. 2785496/- which is 54 rupees more and that appears to be arithmetical mistake and the same is corrected accordingly to mean Rs. 2785442/-

14. In view of above discussion, the compensation amount is corrected accordingly and the appeal is finally disposed of. Stay if any shall stand vacated.

15. The office is directed to remit the amount of Rs. 25000/- deposited at the time of filing appeal to be adjusted against the awarded amount.

16. Office is directed to communicated the certified copy of this order to the court concerned for information and necessary compliance.

A. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Sections 166, 168 & 173 - Pleadings & proof - Degree of proof - in accident claim cases the accident is to be proved on the basis of preponderance of probabilities & it need not be proved beyond reasonable doubt like in a criminal trial - approach of the Tribunal should be to make a holistic analysis of the entire pleadings and evidence, by applying the principles of preponderance of probabilities. (Para 13)

B. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Sections 166, 168 & 173 - Pleadings & proof - Non-examination of pillion rider - Effect - Not fatal when sufficient evidence already on record

Held - Non-examination of the pillion rider not fatal because approach in examining the evidence in accident claim cases is not to find out fault with non-examination of some "best" eyewitness in the case but to analyse the evidence already on record to ascertain whether that is sufficient to answer the matters in issue on the touchstone of preponderance of probability (Para 19)

C. Motor Vehicle Accident - Site Plan - Reliance - Site Plan could not have been relied to discard the accident without its being proved by the concerned police officer who prepared the Site Plan or other corroborative evidence (Para 20)

The accident was seen by the father of the appellant and Raghuveer S/o Putti Lal R/o village-Nevarna and others and the number of the vehicle was noted down. The appellant was admitted in the District Hospital, Unnao in the injured condition. The appellant remained there for treatment w.e.f. 15.04.2009 to 11.05.2009 and the treatment was going on. The FIR of the accident was lodged by the father of the appellant at Police Station- Achalganj, District- Unnao against the driver. In case the driver of the vehicle would have driven the vehicle cautiously the accident would not have happened. With the aforesaid allegations the claim petition was filed claiming the compensation.

4. The claim petition was contested by the respondent no.1 i.e. the owner of the vehicle denying most of the allegations and also the involvement of his vehicle in the accident. It has been stated in paragraph-24 that at the alleged date and time of accident the accident had not occurred by vehicle No.UP-35-F-7800 because at the time of accident the vehicle was being driven by a competent driver namely Mukesh S/o Santosh Pasi R/o Village- Jamuka, Police Station-Achalganj, District- Unnao with a very slow speed on the left side of the road. Therefore, the question of accident does not arise. The FIR has been lodged with a delay after consultation with the intention to claim the compensation after noting down the number of his vehicle. It has further been stated in the written statement that the vehicle was insured with the respondent no.2 i.e. Reliance General Insurance Company Limited and in case any liability for payment of compensation is made out the same is to be paid by insurance company. The respondent no.2 i.e Reliance General Insurance Company Limited had also filed its written statement. It has also been stated in written statement that the driver of the vehicle No.UP-35-F-7800 was not negligent. It was further stated in paragraph-11 that the accident was caused by the negligence of the Sunil Kumar as such the answering opposite party is not liable to pay any compensation.

5. On the basis of the pleadings of the parties six issues were framed. On behalf of the appellant-claimant- Sunil Kumar as PW-1 and Shyam Lal Yadav as PW-2 were got examined. On behalf of the respondents no oral evidence was adduced. On behalf of the appellant the original FIR and the copy of the release order of the vehicle in question issued from the Court, the copy of the Registration Certificate, Beema Policy of the vehicle in question, Medical Report of Sunil Kumar, the Site Plan of the spot of the accident, copy of the X-Ray Report of the appellant, report of the doctor for X-Ray, the Medicines taken by the appellant, Cash Memo and Receipts of the medicines taken by the appellant / claimant were filed. On behalf of the respondent-insurance company copy of the Beema Policy was filed. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and material available on record, the learned tribunal has dismissed the claim petition.

6. Submission of learned counsel for the appellant was that the accident had occurred on 15.04.2009 and he was admitted on the same date in the district hospital, Unnao and remained admitted up to 11.05.2009. After examination of the appellant the doctor had recommended for X-Ray of the right leg. In the X-Ray report fracture was found. The appellant and his father who was an eye-witness had adduced their evidence. The father of the appellant had stated that he was going with the appellant at the time of accident and he had seen the number of the vehicle after accident. The FIR was lodged by the father of the appellant and the cause of the delay has been explained by him. But the learned tribunal has not relied on the evidence as adduced by the appellant on the ground of certain minor discrepancies in the statements and the FIR in an illegal manner while the evidence could not have been discarded on the basis of minor discrepancies and the delay in lodging the FIR and the Site Plan. In fact the accident has not been denied by the respondents. It is apparent from the written statement filed by the respondents.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent no.1 submitted that the vehicle of the respondent no.1 was not involved in the accident. There were discrepancies in the evidence of the appellant and his father even about the place of the accident. The appellant had stated in his evidence that he was going on his left side and the Nevarna comes after going directly from his village for which there is no need of coming on the road. As per the evidence of the appellant he had got injuries in his right leg, back and shoulders but the said injuries are not mentioned in the medical examination report. The appellant had stated in his evidence that the accident had occurred at some distance prior to the Government Ayurvedik Hospital while the spot of accident has been shown at a far distance of triangle on the north side in the Site Plan. The eye-witness mentioned in the FIR was not produced by the appellant.

The learned tribunal after considering the pleadings and evidence on record has rightly come to the conclusion that the appellant has failed to proof the involvement of the vehicle of the respondent no.1 in the accident. There is no error or illegality in the findings recorded by the learned tribunal.

8. On the basis of above, learned counsel for the respondent no.1 submitted that the appeal has been filed on misconceived grounds which is liable to be dismissed.

9. I have considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

10. The claim petition was filed by the appellant claiming compensation on account of the alleged accident on 15.04.2009 from Scorpio Jeep No.UP-35-F-7800 alleging therein that the appellant / claimant was going on 15.04.2009 alongwith his father Shyam Lal for taking medicines to village Nevarna on foot on his left side of road. At about 09:30 A.M., as soon as he reached at the some distance before the Government Ayurvedic Hospital, Nevarna, the Scorpio Jeep No.UP-35-F-7800 came from the backside without giving horn, rashly and negligently and it's driver hit the appellant in which he suffered serious injuries in his right leg which was broken. The accident was seen by his father and Raghuveer S/o Putti Lal R/o Village-Nevarna and others present on the spot and the number of the vehicle was noted down and the appellant was admitted in the District Hospital, Unnao. The respondent no.1 while filing his written statement has not denied the accident on the date, time and place alleged in the claim petition. The only plea for non-involvement of his vehicle in the accident is that the vehicle was being driven by the competent driver namely Mukesh with a very slow speed and on his left side, therefore it is apparent that the accident and the presence of the vehicle of the respondent no.1 on the date, time and place of the alleged accident has not been denied by the respondent no.1. The respondent no.2 has also not denied the accident rather it has stated on the one hand that the driver of the vehicle No.UP-35-F-7800 was not negligent and on the other hand that the accident was caused due to negligence of Sunil Kumar i.e the driver of vehicle in question as such the answering opposite party is not liable to pay any compensation.

11. The appellant was admitted on 15.04.2009 in the Government Hospital, Unnao on the date on which the accident occurred and he was medically examined and the X-Ray of right leg was advised and in the X-Ray fracture was found. The named FIR was lodged on 22.04.209 against the driver of the vehicle and it has also been disclosed in the FIR that on account of the treatment of the appellant being going on he could not lodge the FIR earlier. After investigation the charge-sheet has also been filed against the Mukesh S/o Santosh Pasi R/o Jamuka, Police Station- Achalganj, District-Unnao, a copy of which has been filed before the claims tribunal vide paper no.24 Ga/3.

12. The learned tribunal without considering the aforesaid facts dismissed the claim petition after evaluating the evidence held that since the vehicle in question had not been stopped at the place of accident, therefore evidence of the appellant and his father that they had seen the number of the vehicle is not believable and there is contradiction in the place of accident in the statement of the witnesses and it has not been stated that how the informant came to know about the registration number and how he came to know about the name and address of the driver and the injuries do not tally with the medical examination report etc. The finding is not based on correct appreciation of record and evidence because the presence of the vehicle in question at the place of alleged accident and it being driven by Mukesh, the driver named in the FIR against whom the charge-sheet has been filed has not been denied by the respondents rather it has been stated in written statement that the driver of the vehicle in question was driving the vehicle with very slow speed and on his left side and as per the statement of the appellant and his father they were also going on the left side of the road. But it has not been considered by the learned tribunal.

13. The learned tribunal has examined the evidence and recorded findings as if the allegations were to be proved beyond reasonable doubt while it is settled proposition of law that in accident claim cases the accident is to be proved on the basis of preponderance of probabilities and it need not be proved beyond reasonable doubt like criminal trial. The approach of tribunal should be holistic analysis of the entire pleadings and evidence by applying the principles of preponderance of probability.

14. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bimla Devi & Others Vs. Himanchal Raod Transport Corporation & Others; (2009) 13 SCC 530 has held that the claimants were merely to establish their case on the touchstone of preponderance of probability and standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt could not have been applied. The relevant paragraph-15 is extracted below:-

"15. In a situation of this nature, the Tribunal has rightly taken a holistic view of the matter. It was necessary to be borne in mind that strict proof of an accident caused by a particular bus in a particular manner may not be possible to be done by the claimants. The claimants were merely to establish their case on the touchstone of preponderance of probability. The standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt could not have beenapplied. For the said purpose, the High Court should have taken into consideration the respective stories set forth by both the parties."

15. In the present case after lodging of the FIR the investigation was conducted and a charge-sheet has also been filed against the named driver of the vehicle in question which has not been considered by the learned tribunal while deciding the claim petition.

16. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dulcina Fernandes & Others Vs. Joaquim Xavier Cruz & Another; (2013) 10 SCC 646 has examined the situation where the evidence of eyewitness was discarded by the tribunal and that the respondent in that case was acquitted in the criminal case concerning the accident. However, the Hon'ble Apex Court opined that it can not be overlooked that upon investigation of the case, registered against respondent, prima facie, materials showing negligence were found to put him on trial.

17. The Hon'ble Apex Court considered the aforesaid judgment in the case of Sunita & Others Vs. Rajasthan

State Road Transport Corporation & Others; Manu/SC/0204/2019 and held as under in paragraph-25:-

"25. In Dulcina Fernandes, this Court examined similar situation where the evidence of claimant's eyewitness was discarded by the Tribunal and that the respondent in that case was acquitted in the criminal case concerning the accident. This Court, however, opined that it cannot be overlooked that upon investigation of the case registered against the respondent, prima facie, materials showing negligence were found to put him on trial. The Court restated the settled principle that the evidence of the claimants ought to be examined by the Tribunal on the touchstone of preponderance of probability and certainly the standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt could not have been applied as noted in Bimla Devi. In paras 8 & 9 of the reported decision, the dictum in United India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Shila Datta10, has been adverted to as under: (Dulcina Fernandes case, SCC p. 650)

*"8. In United India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Shila Datta while considering the nature of a claim petition under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 a threeJudge Bench of this Court has culled out certain propositions of which Propositions (ii), (v) and (vi) would be relevant to the facts of the present case and, therefore, may be extracted hereinbelow: (SCC p. 518, para 10) '10. (ii) The rules of the pleadings do not strictly apply as the claimant is required to make an application in a form prescribed under the Act. In fact, there is no pleading where the proceedings are suo motu initiated by the Tribunal. * * **

(v) Though the Tribunal adjudicates on a claim and determines the compensation, it does not do so as in an adversarial litigation. ...

(vi) The Tribunal is required to follow such summary procedure as it thinks fit. It may choose one or more persons possessing special knowledge of and matters relevant to inquiry, to assist it in holding the enquiry.'

9. The following further observation available in para 10 of the Report would require specific note: (Shila Datta case, SCC p. 519) '10. ... We have referred to the aforesaid provisions to show that an award by the Tribunal cannot be seen as an adversarial adjudication between the litigating parties to a dispute, but a statutory determination of compensation on the occurrence of an accident, after due enquiry, in accordance with the statute.'"

In para 10 of Dulcina Fernandes, the Court opined that nonexamination of witness per se cannot be treated as fatal to the claim set up before the Tribunal. In other words, the approach of the Tribunal should be holistic analysis of the entire pleadings and evidence by applying the principles of preponderance of probability."

It is thus well settled that in motor accident claim cases, once the foundational fact, namely, the actual occurrence of the accident, has been established, then the Tribunal's role would be to calculate the quantum of just compensation if the accident had taken place by reason of negligence of the driver of a motor vehicle and, while doing so, the Tribunal would not be strictly bound by the pleadings of the parties. Notably, while deciding cases arising out of motor vehicle accidents, the standard of proof to be borne in mind must be of preponderance of probability and not the strict standard of proof beyond all reasonable doubt which is followed in criminal cases."

18. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the aforesaid judgment of Sunia and Others (Supra) has also considered the effect of the lodging of the FIR and charge-sheet which were not challenged, in paragraph-23, which is extracted below:-

"23. The Tribunal had justly accepted the appellants' contention that the respondents did not challenge the propriety of the said FIR No. 247/2011 (Exh. 1) and chargesheet (Exh. 2) before any authority. The only defence raised by the respondents to this plea was that the said FIR No. 247/2011 was based on wrong facts and was filed in connivance between the appellants/complainants and the police, against which the respondents complained to the incharge of the police station and the District Superintendent of Police but to no avail. Apart from this bald assertion, no evidence was produced by the respondents before the Tribunal to prove this point. The filing of the FIR was followed by the filing of the chargesheet against respondent No.2 for offences under u/Sections 279, 337 and 304A of the IPC and Sections 134/187 of the Act, which, again, reinforces the allegations in the said FIR insofar as the occurrence of the accident was concerned and the role of respondent No.2 in causing such accident. Be that as it 27 may, the High Court has not even made a mention, let alone record a finding, of any impropriety against FIR 247/2011 (Exh. 1) or chargesheet (Exh. 2) or the conclusion reached by the Tribunal in that regard. Yet, the FIR and the Chargesheet has been found to be deficient by the High Court."

19. The Hon'ble Apex Court also held in aforesaid judgment of Sunita and Others (Supra) that the non-examination of the pillion rider would not be fatal to the case of the appellants because the approach in examining the evidence in accident claim cases is not to find out fault with non-examination of some "best" eyewitness in the case but to analyse the evidence already on record to ascertain whether that is sufficient to answer the matters in issue on the touchstone of preponderance of probability. Thus, non-examination of any age witness can not be fatal. of any The relevant paragraph-31 is extracted below:-

"31. Similarly, the issue of nonexamination of the pillion rider, Rajulal Khateek, would not be fatal to the case of the appellants. The approach in examining the evidence in accident claim cases is not to find fault with non examination of some "best" eye witness in the case but to analyse the evidence already on record to ascertain whether that is sufficient to answer the matters in issue on the touchstone of preponderance of probability. This court, in Dulcina Fernandes (supra), faced a similar situation where the evidence of claimant's eyewitness was discarded by the Tribunal and the respondent was acquitted in the criminal case concerning the accident."

20. So far as the findings recorded by the learned tribunal in regard to the Site Plan is concerned that could not have been relied to discard the accident without its being proved by the concerned police officer who prepared the Site Plan or other corroborative evidence. The paragraph-33 of Sunita and Others (Supra) of the Hon'ble Apex Court is relevant in this regard, which is extracted below:-

"33. The site plan (Exh. 3) has been produced in evidence before the Tribunal by witness A.D. 1 (appellant No.1 herein) and the record seems to indicate that the accident occurred in the middle of the road. However, the exact location of the accident, as marked out in the site plan, has not been explained muchless proved through a competent witness by the respondents to substantiate their defence. Besides, the concerned police official who prepared the site plan has also not been examined. While the existence of the site plan may not be in doubt, it is difficult to accept the theory propounded on the basis of the site plan to record a finding against the appellants regarding negligence attributable to deceased Sitaram, moreso in absence of ocular evidence to prove and explain the contents of the site plan."

21. In view of above, this Court is of the view that the learned tribunal though has discussed the evidence in detail to record the finding that the appellant has failed to prove the involvement of the vehicle in question in the alleged accident but has not considered the aforesaid facts, therefore the judgment passed by the learned tribunal is not sustainable and is liable to be set-aside with direction to the concerned tribunal to decide the claim petition afresh after considering the evidence and material available on record in accordance with law.

22. The appeal is, accordingly, partly allowed. The judgment and order dated 31.05.2010 passed in Motor Accident Claim Petition No.180 of 2009 (Sunil Kumar Vs. Mohd. Shadab and Another) by Motor Accident Claim Tribunal / Additional District Judge, Court No.6, Unnao is set-aside. The matter is remitted back to the concerned claims tribunal for deciding afresh in accordance with law and the observations made here-in-above expeditiously and preferably within a period of three months from the date of receipt of the certified copy of this order and the record.

23. No orders as to cost.

24. The lower court record shall be remitted back to the concerned tribunal within a period of fifteen days from today.

2. National Insurance Company Vs Pranay Sethi & others AIR 2017 SC 5157

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava,J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

2. This appeal has been filed by the Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. against the judgment and award dated 31.08.2009 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/District Judge, Jaunpur, in MACP No. 191 of 2006 (Raj Narayan and another vs. Assistant Regional Manager, UPSRTC Ltd., Mau, Depo and others) by which the learned Tribunal has awarded the compensation of Rs. 3,12,200/- with 6% simple interest per annum.

3. Aggrieved by the aforesaid impugned judgment and awarded, the present appeal has been filed on the ground that the judgment is against the evidence on record, based on erroneous finding on rash and negligent driving, the driver of the offending bus was not having legal and effective driving license at the time of accident and the deceased himself was negligent and the learned tribunal has considered the wrong multiplier and a deduction of 2/3 was not made.

4. During the course of argument, learned counsel appearing on behalf of Insurance Company has submitted that admittedly the deceased was of 18 years old and was bachelor and, therefore, a deduction of 50% should have been made.

5. It is admitted fact that the deceased was 18 years old at the time of accident and as per Rules, 50% of the total income was bound to be deducted against his personal expenses. The other argument is about driving license of the driver of the offending vehicle. The learned Tribunal found that UPSRTC submitted the driving license which was valid on the date of accident.

6. On the contrary, from the side of Insurance Company, the report of surveyor was filed but the same was not proved and, therefore, the learned Tribunal decided that the driver of the offending bus was having valid and effective driving license at the time of accident. As such, I do not find any perversity or illegality in the finding.

7. It appears from the perusal of the impugned judgment that the notional income per day was determined as Rs. 100/- and it was also taken into consideration by the learned Tribunal that the deceased could get such income for 24 days in a month and, therefore, the monthly income of the deceased was determined to be Rs. 2400/- per month, which means the annual income must be Rs. 2,8,800/-. Therefore, the income on the basis of which the amount of compensation has been assessed is not at all in higher side.

8. Learned Tribunal has deducted 1/3 against the personal expenses. Since, the deceased was bachelor, in view of judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121, the deduction should have been made of 50%, therefore, applying the principle of deduction, the annual income for the purpose of determination of compensation will be Rs. 14,400/-.

9. The deceased was aged about 18 years and the learned tribunal has applied the multiplier of 16, whereas, in view of Sarla Verma (supra), the multiplier of 18 should have been available in his age. The Supreme Court has laid down as below :-

"We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in column (4) of the Table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M-16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is, M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

10. The above view has further been affirmed on the point of multiplier by the Supreme Court in the case of National Insurance Company vs. Pranay Sethi & others, AIR 2017 SC 5157. Applying the multiplier of 18, the amount of compensation reaches to Rs. 2,59,200/-.

11. In Sarla Verma (supra), it has been held by the Supreme Court that a proceeding before the Tribunal is in the nature of inquiry in which a very few thing is required to be established. The Court has observed as under :-

"Basically only three facts need to be established by the claimants for assessing compensation in the case of death: (a) age of the deceased; (b) income of the deceased; and the (c) the number of dependents. The issues to be determined by the Tribunal to arrive at the loss of dependency are (i) additions/deductions to be made for arriving at the income; (ii) the deduction to be made towards the personal living expenses of the deceased; and (iii) the multiplier to be applied with reference of the age of the deceased."

12. In view of judgment in the case of Pranay Sethi (supra), the funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-. Rs. 3000/- has been awarded in the head of loss of love and affection. Adding all the amounts, the total compensation comes to Rs. 2,77,200/-.

13. In view of above, the impugned awarded compensation by the learned Tribunal appears to be in higher side and the same is liable to be reduced to Rs. 2,77,200/- with 6% simple interest per annum from the date of filing of the petition as awarded by the learned Tribunal.

14. With the above modification, the appeal is finally disposed of. Interim order if any shall stand vacated.

15. The amount of Rs. 25000/- deposited at the time of filing of affidavit shall be remitted back to the learned Tribunal to be adjusted against the awarded amount.

16. Office is directed to communicate the certified copy of the order to the learned court below for necessary compliance.

A. Civil Law - Motor Accident claim - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Section 168 - Composite negligence Vs Contributory negligence – Distinction

'Composite negligence' - where a person is injured without any negligence on his part but as a combined effect of the negligence of two other persons, it is a case of composite negligence. In such a case, each wrongdoer is jointly and severally liable to the injured for payment of the entire damages and the injured person has the choice of proceeding against all or any of them – injured need not establish extent of responsibility of each wrongdoer separately, nor it is necessary for Court to determine extent of liability of each wrongdoer separately.

'Contributory negligence' - where a person suffers injury, partly due to the negligence on the part of another person or persons and partly as a result of his own negligence, then the negligence on the part of the injured which contributed to the accident is referred to as his contributory negligence. In such case the damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries stands reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence (Para 11)

B. Civil Law - Motor Accident claim - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Composite negligence of drivers of two vehicles - Accident between a tanker and a Scorpio four wheeler- Evidence driver of the tanker vehicle driving rashly & negligently - No evidence that driver of Scorpio driving rashly and negligently - Not making the owner or driver of the Scorpio a party cannot cause prejudice to the appellant (Para 12)

C. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Sections 166 & 168 – Selection of Multiplier - Deceased aged about 42 years - Operative multiplier is 14 for the age group of 41 to 45 years (Para 17)

D. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Sections 166, 168 - Future prospects - Determination - Deceased had permanent job, working as Store Officer - Deceased aged about 42 years - Addition of 30% of actual salary to the income of the deceased (Para 18 & 19)

E. Civil Law - Motor Accident claim - U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 1998 - Rule 220-A(2)- Determination of compensation - Deduction for personal and living expense - 1/4th where dependent family members are 4 to 6 - Minor dependent to be counted as half - Half dependent should be considered to be one in view of the beneficial purpose of the law

Held - Number of dependent shown in the petition 5 - UP Amended Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011 provides that two minors will make one unit in determining the number of dependents - considering that three of them were minor, this number will come to three and half - logically the remainder half dependent should be considered to be one in view of the beneficial purpose of the law which has been enacted as solace in favor of the claimant and the deduction against personal expenses in case of more than 3 dependents, but not 4 dependents, as is the case here where the dependents are three and half, the deduction of 1/4th in place of 1/3rd is justified. (Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Srivastava,J.)

1. Heard Sri A.C. Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Rama Nand Pandey, learned counsel for the respondents. Perused the record attached with this appeal from both sides.

2. This appeal has been filed by the appellant - The Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. against the judgment and award dated 14.08.2013 passed by learned Additional District Judge, Court No. 2/MACT, J.P. Nagar in MACP No. 67 of 2007 by which the compensation of Rs.30,75,048.00/- has been awarded with the interest @6% from the date of filing of claim petition to the claimants-respondents.

3. Before the learned Tribunal, a claim petition was filed by the petitioners stating that on 20.7.2007 at about 1.00 PM in the village Allipur, near National Highway, P.S. Gajraula, District J.P. Nagar, an accident took place in which, husband of claimant no. 1 and father of claimant nos. 2 to 5 sustained injuries and died. At the time of accident, the driver of Tanker no. HR 37-B/4183 was being driven by the driver very rashly and negligently which dashed the Scorpio No. UDS 0003/4528 coming from the side of Delhi and the Scorpio overturned and fell over the deceased Om Prakash Mishra by which he sustained serious injuries and while he was being taken for treatment, he died on the way. At the time of accident, the deceased was going on foot to the Jubliant Company Ltd. where he was working and when he reached near the factory, the accident took place. At the time of accident, the deceased was aged about 42 years and was enough healthy and he was working as Store Officer in the said Company and was getting salary of Rs.19,370/- monthly. On that basis, the claim petition has been filed for compensation.

4. The appellant-Insurance Company filed written statement before the Tribunal stating that claimant should establish the accident. At the time of accident none of the drivers of both the vehicles were having valid and effective driving license. The accident took place because of fault of driver of Scorpio and owner of Scorpio and Insurance Company have not been made party. The said offending Tanker was not being driven according to terms of insurance policy and the Insurance Company is not liable to pay any compensation.

5. The opposite party no. 2-M/S. Maple Logistic Pvt. Limited Company filed written statement denying the allegation of claim petition and stating that accident was not caused by the alleged offending vehicle and the claim petition has been filed on wrong facts. At the time of accident, the driver of Tanker was having valid and effective driving license and the vehicle was ensured with the Insurance Company and if it is established that the accident took place because of rashness and negligence of driver of Tanker, the responsibility to pay compensation is on Insurance Company.

6. The defendant no. 3 has not filed any written statement and against him, the proceeding has taken place ex-parte. The defendant no. 4 Reliance General Insurance Company Ltd. has filed written statement and has stated that claimant has to establish the accident. The driver of Scorpio has not been made party nor he was having valid and effective driving license at the time of accident. The insurance with the Reliance General Insurance Co. Ltd. shall be verified and there is no responsibility to pay compensation on the Insurance Company.

7. The following issues were framed by the learned Tribunal, the English version of the same are as under:

(1)Whether on 20.7.2007 at about 1.00 PM Om Prakash Mishra was going to the Juviliant Company where he was working walking on the road and at that time the Tanker no. S.R.-37B/4183 and Scorpio No. U.P. 5003/4528 dashed to each other and the Scorpio fell upon the deceased Om Prakash Mishra which caused serious injuries to him and while he was in the way for treatment, he died?

(II) Whether the accident took place due to rash and negligent driving of driver of Tanker no. HR 37-B/4182?

(III) Whether the accident was caused due to negligence of both the vehicles?

(IV) Whether Tanker no. HR 37-B/4183 was ensured with the Insurance Company and violated the terms of Insurance Company?

(V) Whether Scorpio no. U.P. 5003/4528 was ensured with the opposite party no. 4?

(VI) Whether the owners of Scorpio violated the terms of Insurance Company?

(VII) Whether both the vehicles were driven by the drivers having valid and effective license at the time of accident?

(VIII) Whether the claimants are entitled to get compensation, if yes, for what amount and against whom?

8. The parties to the claim petition gave evidence in terms of documents such as, copy of FIR, driving license of driver of offending vehicle, copy of insurance policy, registration certificate, copy of permit, salary certificate of deceased, postmortem report, copy of site map, copy of charge sheet, copy of High School Certificate of deceased. P.W. 1- Smt. Parul Devi, P.W. 2-Kapil Joshi and P.W. 3-Ram Chandra Pandey have been examined from the side of claimants. The opposite parties have not given any evidence, oral or documentary.

9. After hearing learned counsel for both sides, the learned Tribunal passed the impugned award aggrieved by which, this appeal has been filed. The appellant has submitted that no accident took place by Tanker and the Scarpio overturned and crushed the deceased. The accident took place in the middle of the road and there was contributory negligence of the other vehicle. The driver of the Tanker was not summoned even though an application was given. Income was erroneously determined and deduction of 1/4th in place of 1/3rd was wrongly made against personal expense.

10. A cross objection/ application/cross-appeal has been filed by the respondents-claimants that the Insurance Company has wrongly deducted a TDS of Rs. 268970/- and they are entitled for return of that money with interest.

11. The first submission of the learned counsel to the appellant is that it was a case of composite negligence of two vehicles and the learned Tribunal should have determined the percentage of negligence of both and accordingly a direction for apportionment of compensation to that extent should have been made. In T.O. Antony V. Karvarnan, AIR 2008 SC (Supp) 1646 and APSRTC v K. Hemalatha, AIR 2008 SC 2851, the Supreme Court has explained the law of composite negligence and its impact on liability of compensation. Where a person is injured without any negligence on his part but as a combined effect of the negligence of two other persons, it is not a case of contributory negligence but is a case of composite negligence. Composite negligence refers to the negligence on the part of two or more persons. Where a person is injured as a result of negligence on the part of two or more wrongdoers, it is said that the person was injured on account of the composite negligence of those wrongdoers. In such a case, each wrongdoer is jointly and severally liable to the injured for payment of the entire damages and the injured person has the choice of proceeding against all or any of them. In such a case, the injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrongdoer separately, nor it is necessary for the Court to determine the extent of liability of each wrongdoer separately. On the other hand where a person suffers injury, partly due to the negligence on the part of another person or persons, and partly as a result of his own negligence, then the negligence on the part of the injured which contributed to the accident is referred to as his contributory negligence. Where the injured is guilty of some negligence, his claim for damages is not defeated merely by reason of the negligence on his part but the damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries stands reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence.

12. In this case the learned tribunal found on the basis of evidence on record that it was the driver of the Tanker who was driving the Tanker rashly and negligently and dashed the Scarpio which was coming from the opposite direction. There is no evidence on record to take the view that the driver of Scarpio was rash and negligent. No evidence was given to that effect from the side of the appellant before the learned Tribunal. The site-map prepared by IO during investigation also shows that the Scarpio was coming from the correct side and the Tanker dashed it going towards the wrong side. Hence, the submission in this regard appears to be imaginary and hypothetical and has no force. In view of this finding, not making the owner or driver of the Scarpio a party cannot cause prejudice to the appellant.

13. Another argument is with regards to income of the deceased. The learned Tribunal has assessed the monthly income on the basis of the salary certificate filed and proved by the Officer of Company where he was working as Commercial Officer according to which monthly income was Rs.17496/- and annually Rs. 209952/-. Therefore, the income of the deceased was proved. Thereafter, 1/4th has been deducted against personal expenses. The submission of the learned counsel to the appellant is that a deduction of 1/3rd should have been made as the number of dependent shown in the petition was 5, but, considering that three of them were minor, this number will come to three and half. It has been argued that the UP Amended Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011 provides that two minors will make one unit in determining the number of dependents. Even if it is so, the number of dependents is more than three and as such a deduction of 1/4th is absolutely correct, as a deduction of 1/3rd is provided where the number of dependents is 2 to 3 and in case of 4 to 6 dependents, the deduction is provided as 1/4th.

14. In fact, the UP Rules simply adopts the principle laid down in Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation Ltd., AIR 2009 SC 3104 where it has been laid down by the Supreme Court:

"Though in some cases the deduction to be made towards personal and living expenses is calculated on the basis of units indicated in Trilok Chandra, the general practice is to apply standardized deductions. Having considered several subsequent decisions of this Court, we are of the view that where the deceased was married, the deduction towards personal and living expenses of the deceased, should be one-third (1/3rd) where the number of dependent family members is 2 to 3, one-fourth (1/4th) where the number of dependant family members is 4 to 6, and one-fifth (1/5th) where the number of dependant family members exceed six."

15. In view of above, the deduction appears to be appropriate as logically the remainder half dependent should be considered to be one in view of the beneficial purpose of the law which has been enacted as solace in favor of the claimant and the deduction against personal expenses in case of more than 3 dependents, but not 4 dependents, as is the case here where the dependents are three and half, the deduction of 1/4th in place of 1/3rd is justified.

16. The next submission is with regards to application of multiplier. The learned Tribunal has determined the age of the deceased to be 42 years on the basis of his high school certificate and has applied a multiplier of 15 in view of II Schedule. In Sarla Verma (supra), the Supreme Court has laid down as below:

"We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in column (4) of the Table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M-16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is, M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

17. The above multiplier system has been further affirmed by the Supreme Court in National Insurance Company Vs. Pranay Sethi & others, AIR 2017 SC 5157 and the available multiplier is of 14 in the age of 42 years. It is pertinent to mention that multiplier system has been provided under law law to maintain uniformity in determining quantum of compensation in order to avoid variation. Therefore, multiplier of 15 has been wrongly applied by the learned Tribunal and it should be 14 as held by the Supreme Court.

18. As such, applying the multiplier of 14 in place of 15, the amount comes to 157464 x 14 = Rs. 2204496/-. The learned Tribunal has added a future income at the rate of 30%. The submission of the learned counsel is that in view of the judgment in Pranay Sethi (supra), the future income in the age of 42 years should be 25% of the total income, as the deceased was not a permanent employee and his income was not certain. In this regard, the law has been settled by the Supreme Court in Pranay Sethi (supra) in which all the earlier decisions on this point have been discussed and considered and it has been laid down by the Court as below:

"While determining the income, an addition of 50% of actual salary to the income of the deceased towards future prospects, where the deceased had a permanent job and was below the age of 40 years, should be made. The addition should be 30%, if the age of the deceased was between 40 to 50 years. In case the deceased was between the age of 50 to 60 years, the addition should be 15%. Actual salary should be read as actual salary less tax.

(iv) In case the deceased was self-employed or on a fixed salary, an addition of 40% of the established income should be the warrant where the deceased was below the age of 40 years. An addition of 25% where the deceased was between the age of 40 to 50 years and 10% where the deceased was between the age of 50 to 60 years should be regarded as the necessary method of computation. The established income means the income minus the tax component."

19. Clearly, the deceased was not self employed nor he was working on fixed salary and therefore, the addition of salary at the rate of 30% against future prospects is legally justified and there is no illegality when the learned Tribunal has enhanced 30% salary against future prospect and it annually comes to Rs. 47239/-.

20. In conventional head, the learned Tribunal has awarded Rs. 2000/- as funeral expences and Rs. 2500/- for loss of estate. No amount has been awarded for the loss of consortium. It has been laid down in Pranay Sethi (supra) as follows:

"Reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- and Rs. 15,000/- respectively."

21. In view of above discussion, the amount of compensation is required to be calculated as follows:

A. Annual Salary at the Rate of Rs. 17496 Monthly - Rs. 209952

B. Deduction of 1/4th Against Personal Expenses - Rs. 52488

Total - Rs. 157464

C. Applying Multiplier of 14 (157464x 14) - Rs. 2204496

D. Future Prospect at the Rate of 30% - Rs. 661348

Total - Rs. 2865844

E. Addition under Conventional Head

1. Loss of Consortium - Rs. 40000

2. Funeral Expences - Rs. 15000

3. Loss of estate - Rs. 15000

Total of Amount under Conventional Head - Rs. 70000

Total Amount of Compensation - Rs. 2935844

22. As calculated above the total amount of compensation should have been Rs. 2935844/-, whereas, the learned Tribunal has awarded an amount of Rs. 3075048/-. Therefore, the awarded amount needs to be modified accordingly.

23. The submission of the learned counsel for the respondents-claimants has been that the Insurance Company has wrongly deducted TDS. In view of the judgment in Pranay Sethi (supra), income tax is required to be deducted. Therefore, if the income tax has been deducted, there appears to be no illegality. If the amount deducted as TDS is wrong or in excess, the same can be returned according to the legal process and by filing return and claiming the excess amount. Accordingly, the objection/application/cross-appeal of the respondents-claimants is disposed of.

24. The amount of compensation is modified to become Rs. 2935844/- in place of Rs. 3075048 which has been awarded by the learned Tribunal by the impugned award. The remaining part of the impugned award shall remain undisturbed. The difference of Rs.139204/- (Rs. 3075048 - 2935844) shall be deducted in half proportion from the share of claimant wife and half of the amount shall be deducted in equal proportion from the share of other four claimants.

25. With the above modification, this appeal is finally disposed of. Stay order if any shall stand vacated.

26. The amount of Rs. 25000/- deposited at the time of filing of this appeal be remitted back to the learned Tribunal which shall be adjusted against the awarded amount.

27. The office is directed to send a copy of this judgment to the concerned Tribunal for information and necessary compliance. If the lower court record has been received, the same is directed to be returned to the concerned Tribunal.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Virendra Kumar Srivastava,J.)

1. First Appeal From Order 2257 of 2010 (National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Smt. Reeta Devi and others) against the award and order dated 24.4.2010, passed in M.A.C.P. No. 117/2001 (Smt. Reeta Devi and others vs. Anthoni John and others) and First Appeal From Order 2256 of 2010 (National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Smt. Lalmati Devi and others) against the award and order dated 24.4.2010, passed in M.A.C.P. No. 119/2001 (Smt. Lalmati Devi and others vs. Anthoni John and others), have been filed under Section 173 of Motor Vehicle Act (in short "Act'), whereby both the claim petitions, filed by the respondents-claimants (hereinafter referred to as 'claimants'), have been allowed for compensation of Rs. 5,27,900/- each along with 7.5% per annum simple interest.

2. Since both the impugned awards and orders have been arisen out from the accident caused at the same time and place by the Bus bearing registration no. UP 78 N 8663 on 23.2.2001, owned by the same respondent-owner i.e. Anthoni John, both the appeals are being decided together.

3. The brief facts, arising out of both the appeals, are that on 23.2.2001, Prasanjeet Yadav S/o Sabru Yadav, Mahendra Yadav S/o Chanchal Yadav and their friend Kishan Chauhan @ Heera Nishad S/o Aklu Nishad were coming by their motorcycle Hero Honda from Meereganj to Kinnarpati and when they reached nearby Kinnarpatti village they stopped their motorcycle and as they were talking with each other, bus no. UP 78 N 8663, owned by respondent-Anthoni John, driven by its driver rash and negligently, dashed and crushed them at about 6:30 p.m., whereby, they died on spot and their motorcycle was also damaged.

4. Claim petition no. 117/2001 (Smt. Reeta Devi vs. Anthoni John and others) filed for death of Prasanjeet Yadav by claimants, Smt. Reeta Devi and others and claim petition no. 119/2001 (Smt. Lalmati Devi and others vs. Anthoni John and others) filed for death of Heera Nishad @ Kishan Chauhan by claimants Smt. Lalmati Devi and others were allowed as above and appellant-Insurance Company was directed to pay the amount of compensation to the claimants of both petitions.

5. Aggrieved by the said awards and orders, both the appeals have been preferred by the Insurance Company.

6. Heard Sri Amit Manohar, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Anurag Tripathi, learned counsel for the claimants appearing in both the appeals. No one is present on behalf of the owner of the vehicle despite sufficient services of notice.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the alleged Bus bearing registration no. UP 78 N 8663 was never insured by the appellant-Insurance Company at the time of occurrence. Learned counsel further submitted that the respondent-owner of the vehicle has neither filed any policy of Insurance nor any cover note before the Tribunal to prove that the alleged vehicle was insured by Insurance Company at the time of accident. Learned counsel further submitted that after the accident, the owner of the vehicle sent a back dated cheque to Lucknow office of the Insurance Company without any offer or proposal, whereas he was resident of District Kushi Nagar where office of the Insurance Company is already situated. No policy has ever been issued by the Insurance Company covering any risk of the alleged vehicle for the alleged accident. Learned counsel further submitted that neither at the time of issuing cheque nor at the time of accident, any sufficient amount was available in the bank account of owner of the alleged vehicle to honour the said cheque, which shows that no money or premium was paid by the owner to insurance company at or prior to alleged accident and despite that Tribunal made liable to the Insurance Company for the payment of compensation. Impugned awards and orders in both the claim petitions, as challenged under both the appeals, are illegal, improper and unjustified which are liable to be set aside. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vikram Greentech India Ltd. And others vs. New India Assurance Company Ltd. (2009) 5 SCC 599, Life Insurance Corporation of India vs. Raja Vasireddy Komallavalli Kamba (1984) 2 SCC 719 and Deokar Export Pvt. Ltd. vs. New India Assurance Company Ltd., (2008) 14 SCC 598.

8. Per-contra, learned counsel appearing in both the appeals for claimants submitted that the impugned orders and awards passed by the Tribunal in both the claim petition are legal and valid, and requires no interference. Learned counsel further submitted that even if it is found that no insurance policy was issued, Insurance Company is liable to pay the compensation awarded to claimants and recover the same from owner of the vehicle. Learned counsel placed reliance on Shamanna and Others vs. The Divisional Manager The oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. And Ors. 2018 ACJ 2163 (SC), National Insurance Company ltd. vs. Abhay Singh Pratap Singh Waghela 2008 Law Suits (SC) 1329 and National Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Swaran Singh and others 2005 (1) JLJ 85.

9. I have considered the rival submissions made by the learned counsels for the parties and perused the record.

10. In view of the submission made by learned counsels for the parties, the only point of issue involved in both the appeals is whether or not Insurance Company is liable to pay the compensation to the claimants in such cases where no policy insurance or cover note was issued for covering any risk arising out of any accident caused by the alleged vehicle, only on the basis of a cheque, issued without mentioning any details of the particular vehicle by the owner of the vehicle, and encashed by the Insurance Company after the accident.

11. Both the claim petitions were filed by the claimants for compensation under Section 140 and 160 of the Act. Various provisions of the Act put an obligation on the driver as well as on owner of the vehicle to get the vehicle insured from the authorized insurer and not to ply it without valid and effective insurance certificate. Section 145, Section 146, Section 147, Section 149 (1), Section 156 of the Act, Section 64 of VB of Insurance Act, 1938 and Section 2(a), 2(b), 2(e), 2(h) and Section 10 of Indian Contract Act are relevant at this juncture which deals with meaning, necessity, risk coverage, continuance and ingredient of insurance policy. Section 145, 146, 147, 149(1) and 156 of the Act are as follows:-

2(h) An agreement enforceable by law is a contract.

Section 10. All agreements are contracts if they are made by the free consent of parties competent to contract, for a lawful consideration and with a lawful object, and are not hereby expressly declared to be void.

Nothing herein contained shall affect any law in force in India and not hereby expressly repealed by which any contract is required to be made in writing or in the presence of witnesses, or any law relating to the registration of documents.

12. Thus the aforesaid provision clearly provides that a policy for insurance includes a certificate of insurance which is issued by an authorized insurance company as required by Section 147 of the Act and also includes a cover note complying with such requirement as may be prescribed; no person is authorized to use any vehicle except as a passenger or allow any person to use it at any public place without a policy of insurance as required under the provision of Chapter XII of the Act. Section 147 specifically further provides that the policy of Insurance issued by an authorized insurer must specify the person or class of person and extent of liability incurred by the insurer in respect of death or bodly injury of any person including the owner of the goods or its authorized representative or damage to any property of third party caused by or arising out of use of the vehicle in public place. Section 149 of the Act specifically provides that the liability of insurer to cover the risk of third party only arises after the certificate of insurance issued under Sub Section 3 of Section 147 of the Act in favour of the insured i.e. owner of the vehicle. Thus, it is clear from the above mentioned provision that there must be a valid and effective insurance certificate / policy issued by an authorized insurer mentioning the particulars of vehicle, details of owner of the vehicle as well as person insured, to the extent of liability and period of its effectiveness and it is the duty of the owner of the vehicle to produce / disclose the particulars of the insurance policy before the Tribunal. In addition to above, it is also clear from the aforesaid provision of Insurance Act that no policy can be issued unless the premium has been paid and the coverage of risk starts only after payment of premium.

13. In view of provisions of Indian Contract Act (supra), it is further clear that without lawful agreement, there will be no contract and mandatory requirement of agreement of contract is that there must be meeting of mind on proposal and offer made by the parties and its acceptance before agreement.

14. In National Insurance Company ltd. vs. Abhay Singh Pratap Singh Waghela 2008 Law Suits (SC) 1329, relied by the learned counsel for the claimant, Hon'ble Supreme Court while interpreting the Section 64 of VB of Insurance Act, 1938 held that if the cover note was issued, the cheque issued by the owner for premium was tendered on 23.1.1995 and dishonoured but the amount of premium was accepted in cash on 30.1.1995 thereafter, the Insurance Company cannot deny its liability to pay the compensation to the third party for an accident caused on 23.1.1995.

15. In Shamanna and Others vs. The Divisional Manager The oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. And Ors. 2018 ACJ 2163 (SC), National Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Swaran Singh and Others 2005 (1) JLJ 85, relied by the learned counsel for the claimant, it has been held by Hon'ble Supreme Court that in case of breach of policy, the insurer is bound to pay the compensation to claimant in view of Section 149 of the Act and recover the same from the owner of the vehicle.

16. In view of the peculiar facts and circumstances of this case, while it has been found that no policy has been issued by the appellant Insurance Company for insuring any risk of the alleged vehicle, the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Abhay Singh Pratap Singh Waghela (supra), Shamanna (supra), and in Swarn Singh (supra), relied by the learned counsel of claimants, is not applicable to this case.

17. In Vikram Greentech India Ltd. And others vs. New India Assurance Company Ltd. (2009) 5 SCC 599, Hon'ble Supreme Court in para no. 16 to 19 has held as under:-

16. An insurance contract, is a species of commercial transactions and must be construed like any other contract to its own terms and by itself. In a contract of insurance, there is requirement of uberimma fides i.e. good faith on the part of the insured. Except that, in other respects, there is no difference between a contract of insurance and any other contract.

17. The four essentials of a contract of insurance are, (i) the definition of the risk, (ii) the duration of the risk, (iii) the premium and (iv) the amount of insurance. Since upon issuance of insurance policy, the insurer undertakes to indemnify the loss suffered by the insured on account of risks covered by the insurance policy, its terms have to be strictly construed to determine the extent of liability of the insurer.

18. The endeavour of the court must always be to interpret the words in which the contract is expressed by the parties. The court while construing the terms of policy is not expected to venture into extra liberalism that may result in re-writing the contract or substituting the terms which were not intended by the parties. The insured cannot claim anything more than what is covered by the insurance policy. [General Assurance Society Ltd. Vs. Chandumull Jain and another, Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Sony Cheriyan and United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Harchand Rai Chandan Lal] .

19. Document like proposal form is a commercial document and being an integral part of policy, reference to proposal form may not only be appropriate but rather essential. However, the surveyors' report cannot be taken aid of nor can it furnish the basis for construction of a policy. Such outside aid for construction of insurance policy is impermissible.

18. Life Insurance Corporation of India vs. Raja Vasireddy Komallavalli Kamba (1984) 2 SCC 719, Hon'ble Supreme Court in para no. 14 and 15 has held as under:-

When an insurance policy becomes effective is well- settled by the authorities but before we note the said authorities, it may be stated that it is clear that the expression "underwrite" signifies accept liability under'.

The dictionary meaning also indicates that. (See in this connection The Concise oxford Dictionary Sixth Edition p. 1267.) It is true that normally the expression "underwrite" is used in Marine insurance but the expression used in Chapter III of the Financial powers of the Standing order in this case specifically used the expression "underwriting and revivals" of policies in case of Life Insurance Corporation and stated that it was the Divisional Manager who was competent to underwrite policy for Rs 50,000 and above.

The mere receipt and retention of premium until after the death of the applicant or the mere preparation of the policy document is not acceptance. Acceptance must be signified by some act or acts agreed on by the parties or from which the law raises a presumption of acceptance.

See in this connection the statement of law in Corpus Juris Secundum, Vol. XLV page 986 wherein it has been stated as:-

"The mere receipt and retention of premiums until after the death of applicant does not give rise to a contract, although the circumstances may be such that approval could be inferred from retention of the premium. The mere execution of the policy is not an acceptance; an acceptance, to be complete, must be communicated to the offeror, either directly, or by some definite act, such as placing the contract in the mail. The test is not intention alone. When the application so requires, the acceptance must be evidenced by the signature of one of the company's executive officers."

Though in certain human relationships silence to a proposal might convey acceptance but in the case of insurance proposal silence does not denote consent and no binding contract arises until the person to whom an offer is made says or does something to signify his acceptance. Mere delay in giving an answer cannot be construed as an acceptance, as, prima facie, acceptance must be communicated to the offeror. The general rule is that the contract of insurance will be concluded only when the party to whom an offer has been made accepts it unconditionally and communicates his acceptance to the person making the offer. Whether the final acceptance is that of the assured or insurers, however, depends simply on the way in which negotiations for an insurance have progressed.

19. Deokar Export Pvt. Ltd. vs. New India Assurance Company Ltd., (2008) 14 SCC 598, Hon'ble Supreme Court while interpreting the provision of Section 64 of VB Act, 1938 has held in paras 13 and 14 as under:-

13. A policy of insurance is a contract based on an offer (proposal) and an acceptance. The appellant made a proposal. The respondent accepted the proposal with a modification. Therefore, it was a counter proposal. The appellant had three choices. The first was to refuse to accept the counter-proposal, in which event there would have been no contract. The second was to accept either expressly or impliedly, the counter-proposal of the respondent (that is respondent's acceptance with modification) which would result in a concluded contract in terms of the counter proposal. The third was to make a counter proposal to the counter-proposal of the respondent in which event there would have been no concluded contract unless the respondent agreed to such counter-counter- proposal. But the appellant definitely did not have the fourth choice of propounding a concluded contract with a modification neither proposed nor agreed to by either party. If the appellant did not agree to the policy covering the period 26.8.1988 to 25.8.1989 instead of the period 12.3.1988 to 12.9.1989, the result would never create an insurance contract effective from 30.6.1989 or any other date.

14. The contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that an equitable view must be taken is untenable. In a contract of insurance, rights and obligations are strictly governed by the policy of insurance. No exception or relaxation can be made on the ground of equity.

(Emphasis Supplied)

20. Thus, in view of the law pronounced by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as above, and aforesaid relevant provision of Indian Contract Act, it is further clear that the contract of insurance is a contract of indemnity. For a valid contract, there must be an agreement enforceable by law and unless there is offer, proposal and acceptance which are essentials of agreement, there cannot be any agreement. In addition to it, there must be a valid and effective insurance policy or a certificate issued in favour of insured i.e. owner of the vehicle containing the details and particulars required in the said policy, and in absence thereof, the Insurance Company is not liable to pay any compensation or indemnify any person.

21. Coming to the facts of this case, record shows that the respondent-owner of the vehicle appeared before the Tribunal and filed a written statement, wherein he admitted that he is owner of the alleged vehicle UP 78 N 8663; he stated that he had issued cheque no. 738677 dated 15.2.2001 of Rs. 8,500/- and sent it through postal dak in favour of National Insurance Company Ltd. Shah Najaf Road, Lucknow along with registration certificate of the vehicle for insurance and the said cheque was encashed by the Insurance Company. He has further stated that despite several requests, insurance policy / certificate was not issued by the Insurance Company. In his additional written statement, he stated that the aforesaid cheque of Rs. 8,500/- was encashed from his current account no. 0150061087.

22. Insurance Company, in its written statement, specifically denied the issuance or existence of any insurance policy covering the risk of any accident of alleged vehicle, owned by the respondent-owner. OPW-2, Arun Kumar Katiyar, Officer of State Bank of India, Padrauna, District Khushi Nagar, filing the account statement of current account No. 01050061087 of Janta Electricals, has stated that from this account, cheque no. 00738677 dated 22.3.2001 bearing aforesaid account, issued in favour of National Insurance Company Ltd. Lucknow, was encashed on 28.3.2001.

23. The accident was happened on 23.2.2001. It is admitted fact that no insurance policy was issued either prior to the said accident or after the accident by the appellant-Insurance Company covering any risk of the alleged accident. It is not the case of the respondent-owner that on the date of accident, any premium was paid by him or any cover note was issued. He did not produce any proposal, offer or cover note whereby it can be presumed that the alleged cheque was issued by him for the insurance of the alleged Bus No. UP 78 N 8663. Merely by issuing cheque without mentioning the particulars of vehicle or its encashment by the Insurance Company, after one month of the accident it cannot be presumed that the said cheque was issued for the insurance policy of the alleged vehicle.

24. It is also pertinent to note at this juncture that respondent-owner has not assigned any reason or justification as to why he sent cheque to office situated at Lucknow without any requisition or offer of Insurance Company. He is neither resident of Lucknow nor alleged Bus was registered at Lucknow. Learned counsel for the respondent-owner has also not shown any provision of law which provides that merely issuing a cheque will amount to insurance policy.

25. Mere issuing a cheque and sending it by registered post, without any further details which are necessary for insurance policy, cannot be deemed as insurance policy as required by relevant provision of M.V. Act from another point of view because suppose if a person (owner) has more than one vehicle and he sends a cheque by post without mentioning details of any particular vehicle, how it can be presumed that such cheque was issued for premium of that particular vehicle for particular period and if one or more vehicle caused accident and how tribunal can arrive on conclusion regarding identity of vehicle and period of continuation of coverage of risk.

26. Thus in view of the above discussion, in absence of valid and effective insurance policy, Insurance Company is not liable to pay any compensation and only the respondent-Anthoni John, owner of the alleged vehicle No. UP 78 N 8663, is liable to pay the compensation along with the interest to the claimant-respondents of both the M.A.C.P. No. 117/2001 and 119/2001.

27. Accordingly, both the appeals F.A.F.O. No. 2256 of 2010 (National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Smt. Lalmati Devi and others) and F.A.F.O. No. 2257 of 2010 (National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Smt. Reeta Devi and others) are allowed. The judgments and awards dated 24.4.2010 passed by the Tribunal in M.A.C.P. No. 117/2001 (Smt. Reeta Devi and others vs. Anthoni John and others) and M.A.C.P. No. 119/2001 (Smt. Lalmati Devi and others vs. Anthoni John and others) are modified to the extent as discussed above. Insurance company is exonerated from its liability to pay the compensation. Registry is directed to refund the statutory amount paid by the appellant-Insurance Company, if not remitted to the Tribunal. The respondent-owner of the alleged vehicle is directed to pay the compensation awarded in both the aforesaid petitions along with up to date interest within a period of one month to claimants of both the appeals.

28. Office is directed to send back the lower court record of both the appeals along with the copy of this judgment to the Tribunal for its compliance.

First Appeal from Order dismissed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Varma, J. under Chapter VII, Rule 1(3) of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952)

1. By the judgment impugned dated 7th August, 2019, learned Additional District Judge, 23, Kanpur Nagar has dismissed an application preferred by the appellant-plaintiff (hereinafter referred as appellant) under Order 39, Rules 1 and 2 of Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

2. The material facts of the case are that the appellant is a company incorporated under Companies Act and is engaged in the business and manufacturing and sale of cattle feed. The product of the company is having its brand name and trade mark as "Kapila Pashu Ahar".

3. The defendant-respondent (hereinafter referred to as the respondent) is also a company incorporated under the Companies Act and is also engaged in the business of manufacture and sale of cattle feed. The Directors of both the companies are from one family. Sarv Sri Saurabh Shivhare and Samir Shivhare Sons of Late Sri Ramesh Shivhare are Directors of the appellant Company and Sri Surendra Nath Shivhare, real brother of Late Sri Ramesh Shivhare is a Director of respondent Company.

4. The respondent Company was formed prior to the appellant and Sarv Sri Ramesh Shivhare and Surendra Nath Shivhare were its owners and promoters. This company had its brand name and trade mark as "Kapila Pashu Ahar" (Trade Mark No.597524). Unfortunately, Sri Ramesh Shivhare died on 2nd July, 2004. After his death a business sale agreement was executed between the respondent and appellant company, in result business of the respondent as a whole was said to be sold to the appellant.

5. An application was preferred by the appellant on 28th March, 2016 in terms of Section 45 of the Trade Marks Act, 1999 before the Deputy Registrar of the Trade Marks. By an order dated 15th December, 2017, the Deputy Registrar ordered that M/s Kapila Krishi Udyog Limited (appellant) shall remain on a register of trade marks as subsequent proprietor of the Trade Mark No.597524.

6. Being aggrieved by the order dated 15th December, 2017, the respondent-petitioner preferred C.M. No.40954 of 2017 before the High Court of Delhi. A Writ Petition (C) No.10037 of 2017 arising out of the same dispute too was under consideration before the Delhi High Court at that time. The High Court vide its order dated 19th December, 2017 disposed of both the petitions by reserving right of the petitioner to challenge the order dated 15th December, 2017 by availing remedy under Section 57 of the Act of 1999. Validity of the order dated 19th December, 2017 passed by learned single Bench of Delhi High Court was further questioned by the respondent by way of letter patent appeal. The appeal aforesaid came to be disposed of under the order dated 16th April, 2018 that reads as follows:-

"In the present appeal, the grievance is with respect to the adverse observations contained in the order of the Deputy Registrar of Trademarks [hereafter "the DR"] dated 15.12.2017. In that order, the appellant was asked to seek its remedies under Section 57 of the Trademarks Act, 1999. It is brought to the notice of the Court that the observations in previous order dated 20.10.2017 on the issue of registration which is the subject matter of the application before the Intellectual Property Appellate Board (IPAB) under Section 91 of the Trademarks Act, would come in the way.

In the circumstances, it is hereby directed that neither the observations in the order dated 20.10.2017 nor the observations of the DR in the order dated 15.12.2017 shall be treated as conclusive in any manner nor be deemed to be a reflection on the merits of the appellant's application for rectification. The appeal is accordingly disposed of."

7. After disposal of the letters patent appeal, the appellant preferred a suit before the Court of learned District Judge, Kanpur Nagar to have a decree of permanent injunction in following terms:-

"(A) That the Decree of Permanent Injunction may kindly be passed in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendant suitably restraining the defendants or their trustees, servants, subordinates, representatives, agents and all other person claiming under or/and through them from infringing the use of Plaintiff's said trademarks and labels, any other trademark containing the words kapila pashu aahaar and the plaintiff's Registered Trade Mark aforesaid i.e., "Kapila Pashu Aahar", bearing the Registered Trade Mark No.597524, in any mode or manner.

8. An application as per Order 39, Rules 1 and 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure was also filed by the appellant to have a temporary injunction against the defendant to restrain it from using or interfering or infringing the Trade Mark No.597524. The application aforesaid came to be dismissed by the order impugned dated 7th August, 2019.

9. Learned trial court while dismissing the application examined provisions of the Trade Marks Act, the facts stated by the parties to the proceedings on affidavits and the facts pertaining to the other litigation existing between the parties. The trial court while meeting with the argument advanced on behalf of plaintiff-appellant that in light of the order passed by the single Bench as well as Division Bench of the Delhi High Court, the Trade Mark No.597524 is under absolute ownership of the appellant, noticed that the issue is still alive and is pending consideration before the Intellectual Property Appellate Tribunal. The trial court, on basis of the documents filed by the defendant, also noticed that a suit is also pending before Commercial Court, Kanpur to declare an agreement dated 17th May, 2014 regarding "Kapila Pashu Ahar" void and to prohibit the defendant-respondent to use that as a brand name, which was said to be transferred to the plaintiff-appellant.

10. The trial court in light of the provisions of Section 38 and Section 41 of the Specific Relief Act held that plaintiff-appellant can have equally effective relief by pursing the issue under Section 57 of the Trade Marks Act before the Intellectual Property Appellate Tribunal.

11. While pressing the present appeal, it is submitted that the trial court failed to appreciate that the trade mark "Kapila Pashu Ahar" was registered in the name of appellant vide order dated 15th December, 2017 and as such the respondent had no right to use the same for its business. Much emphasis is given to the fact that validity of the order dated 15th December, 2017 was affirmed by the Delhi High Court and as such the trial court erred while holding that the appellant may avail relief under Section 41 of the Specific Relief Act.

12. It is further stated that the trial court erred while rejecting the application for injunction on the count of pendency of Suit No.1 of 2016 before the Commercial Court, Kanpur. According to learned counsel for the appellant, the suit aforesaid is founded on a different cause of action and the same has nothing to do with regard to the permanent injunction sought by the appellant in suit proceedings no.4 of 2019.

13. While opposing the appeal and defending the order passed by the trial court learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent states that whatever relief claimed by the appellant in Original Suit No.4 of 2019 has also been sought in Original Suit No.01 of 2016. An allegation is also made to the effect that the appellant under valued the suit just to avoid the jurisdiction of Commercial Court, Kanpur Nagar where the Original Suit No.1 of 2016 is pending.

14. It is asserted that an intentional effort is made by the appellant to misrepresent the orders passed by the Delhi High Court in single Bench as well as Division Bench just with a view to avail a temporary injunction by misleading the court.

15. Heard learned counsels, considered the argument advanced and also perused the documents annexed with the memo of appeal.

16. Before coming on merits of the case, it would be appropriate to mention that an appellate court while hearing a miscellaneous appeal questioning correctness of an order passed under Order 39, Rules 1 and 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, granting or rejecting a temporary injunction, should be slow in upsetting a decision of a trial court. Merely a possibility of the appellate court to arrive at a different conclusion on basis of the same facts and evidence will not justify interference with an order granting or rejecting temporary injunction. However, the trial court while disposing of an application under Order 39, Rules 1 and 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure must apply its judicial mind to the material which is placed on record. Every piece of evidence produced by the either party must be considered in deciding the existence of a prima facie case to justify issuance of a temporary injunction. No such injunction should be issued unless the court is thoroughly satisfied about existence of prima facie case in addition to the factors pertaining to the balance of convenience and irreparable injury that may be caused to either party.

17. Applying the above principle to the instant case, I may state at the outset that the trial court while rejecting the application has considered the affidavits filed by the plaintiff-appellant in support of the application for temporary injunction and also the affidavits filed on behalf of the respondent. The trial court on going through the plaint of Original Suit No.1 of 2016 concluded that the relief claimed therein is similar to the relief of permanent injunction sought in Original Suit No.4 of 2019. The trial court also examined effect of the proceedings pending before Intellectual Property Appellate Tribunal and held that in light of the relevant provisions of the Specific Relief Act, the appellant may have the same relief in the proceedings aforesaid. So far as the orders passed by Delhi High Court are concerned, I am also satisfied that in light of the orders passed in letters patent appeal, it cannot be said that the issue with regard to trade mark has acquired finality between the parties. The Division Bench of Delhi High Court in quite specific terms held that the respondent herein may avail remedy under Section 57 of the Trade Marks Act, 1999 and the observations made by the Deputy Registrar of Trade Marks under order dated 15th December, 2017 as well as under the order dated 20th October, 2017 shall not be treated as conclusive in any manner and shall also not be deemed to the reflection of the merits of the appellant's application for rectification.

18. In view of whatever stated above, I do not find any just reason to arrive at the conclusion that the trial court failed to appreciate its judicial mind while examining the material available on record or that failed to exercise jurisdiction vested with it while rejecting the application under Order 39, Rules 1 and 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. The order is neither perverse nor the trial court failed to exercise or exceeded jurisdiction vested with it. No case hence, is made out for interference in appellate jurisdiction.

19. The appeal hence, is dismissed.

Case No. 68 of 2009 filed by Sri Satish Chandra Misra and directed that custody of minor children namely Ms. Gauri Misra and Master Prakhar Misra, be given to their maternal grand father (नाना) Sri Satish Chandra Misra and dismissed the Civil Misc. Case No. 72 of 2010 filed by appellants.

6. The judgment and order dated 11.04.2018 passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Sultanpur is in issue.

7. Sri Prabhat Kumar, learned Counsel for the appellants challenging the judgment and order dated 11.04.2018 submitted that in the present case, father being the natural guardian of the minor children namely Ms. Gauri Misra and Master Prakhar Misra, custody shall be given to him, however, ignoring the said fact, the court below has dismissed the case of appellants. He further submitted that since 2007 both the children are living with their maternal grand father (नाना) Sri Satish Chandra Misra and both the children have been influenced by maternal grand father (नाना) Sri Satish Chandra Misra and this fact has not been considered by the court below and in an arbitrary and illegal manner the court below has passed the order dated 11.04.2018 which is liable to be set aside. In support of his submission he has placed reliance on the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Tejaswini Gaud and Others Versus Shekhar Jagdish Prasad Tewari and Others in Criminal Appeal No. 838 of 2019. The relevant paragraph nos. 34 to 36 are quoted below:-

"34.This Court inSurinder Kaur Sandhu case[Surinder Kaur Sandhuv.Harbax Singh Sandhu, (1984) 3 SCC 698 : 1984 SCC (Cri) 464] was concerned with the custody of a child who was British citizen by birth whose parents had been settled in England after their marriage. The child was removed by the husband from the house and was brought to India. The wife obtained a judicial order from the UK court whereby the husband was directed to hand over the custody of the child to her. The said order was later confirmed by the court of England and thereafter the wife came to India and filed a writ petition in the High Court of Punjab and Haryana praying for custody and production of the child which came to be dismissed against which the wife appealed to this Court. This Court keeping in view the "welfare of the child", "comity of courts" and "jurisdiction of the State which has most intimate contact with the issues arising in the case" held thus: (Surinder Kaur Sandhu case[Surinder Kaur Sandhuv.Harbax Singh Sandhu, (1984) 3 SCC 698 : 1984 SCC (Cri) 464] , SCC pp. 702-03, para 10)

"10. We may add that the spouses had set up their matrimonial home in England where the wife was working as a clerk and the husband as a bus driver. The boy is a British citizen, having been born in England, and he holds a British passport. It cannot be controverted that, in these circumstances, the English Court had jurisdiction to decide the question of his custody. The modern theory of Conflict of Laws recognises and, in any event, prefers the jurisdiction of the State which has the most intimate contact with the issues arising in the case. Jurisdiction is not attracted by the operation or creation of fortuitous circumstances such as the circumstance as to where the child, whose custody is in issue, is brought or for the time being lodged. To allow the assumption of jurisdiction by another State in such circumstances will only result in encouraging forum-shopping. Ordinarily, jurisdiction must follow upon functional lines. That is to say, for example, that in matters relating to matrimony and custody, the law of that place must govern which has the closest concern with the well-being of the spouses and the welfare of the offspring of marriage. The spouses in this case had made England their home where this boy was born to them. The father cannot deprive the English Court of its jurisdiction to decide upon his custody by removing him to India, not in the normal movement of the matrimonial home but, by an act which was gravely detrimental to the peace of that home. The fact that the matrimonial home of the spouses was in England, establishes sufficient contacts or ties with that State in order to make it reasonable and just for the courts of that State to assume jurisdiction to enforce obligations which were incurred therein by the spouses. (SeeInternational Shoe Co.v.State of Washington[International Shoe Co.v.State of Washington, 1945 SCC OnLine US SC 158 : 90 L Ed 95 : 326 US 310 (1945)] , which was not a matrimonial case but which is regarded as the fountainhead of the subsequent developments of jurisdictional issues like the one involved in the instant case.) It is our duty and function to protect the wife against the burden of litigating in an inconvenient forum which she and her husband had left voluntarily in order to make their living in England, where they gave birth to this unfortunate boy."

35.InElizabeth Dinshaw case[Elizabeth Dinshawv.Arvand M. Dinshaw, (1987) 1 SCC 42 : 1987 SCC (Cri) 13] , this Court held that it is the duty of courts in all countries to see that a parent doing wrong by removing children out of the country does not gain any advantage by his or her wrongdoing and was guided by the factors such as the longer time spent by the child in the US in which the child was born and became US citizen and also the fact that the child has not taken roots in India and was still not accustomed and acclimatised to the conditions and environment obtaining in the place of his origin in the United States of America. This Court took note of the fact that the child's presence in India is the result of an illegal act of abduction and the father who is guilty of the said act cannot claim any advantage by stating that he has already put the child in some school in Pune.

36.InV. Ravi Chandran (2) case[V. Ravi Chandran (2)v.Union of India, (2010) 1 SCC 174 : (2010) 1 SCC (Civ) 44] , this Court was concerned with the custody of the child removed by a parent from one country to another in contravention of the orders of the court where the parties had set up their matrimonial home. This Court took note of the English decisions, namely,L. (Minors) (Wardship: Jurisdiction), In re[L. (Minors) (Wardship: Jurisdiction), In re, (1974) 1 WLR 250 : (1974) 1 All ER 913 (CA)] andMcKeev.McKee[McKeev.McKee, 1951 AC 352] and also noticed the decision of this Court inElizabeth Dinshaw case[Elizabeth Dinshawv.Arvand M. Dinshaw, (1987) 1

SCC 42 : 1987 SCC (Cri) 13] andDhanwanti Joshiv.Madhav Unde[Dhanwanti Joshiv.Madhav Unde, (1998) 1 SCC 112] keeping into consideration the fact that the child was left with his mother in India for nearly twelve years, this Court held that it would not exercise its jurisdiction summarily to return the child to the US on the ground that his removal from US in 1984 was contrary to the orders of the US courts. The relevant portion is as under: [V. Ravi Chandran (2) case[V. Ravi Chandran (2)v.Union of India, (2010) 1 SCC 174 : (2010) 1 SCC (Civ) 44] , SCC pp. 195-96, paras 29-30]

"29. While dealing with a case of custody of a child removed by a parent from one country to another in contravention of the orders of the court where the parties had set up their matrimonial home, the court in the country to which the child has been removed must first consider the question whether the court could conduct an elaborate enquiry on the question of custody or by dealing with the matter summarily order a parent to return custody of the child to the country from which the child was removed and all aspects relating to the child's welfare be investigated in a court in his own country. Should the court take a view that an elaborate enquiry is necessary, obviously the court is bound to consider the welfare and happiness of the child as the paramount consideration and go into all relevant aspects of welfare of the child including stability and security, loving and understanding care and guidance and full development of the child's character, personality and talents. While doing so, the order of a foreign court as to his custody may be given due weight; the weight and persuasive effect of a foreign judgment must depend on the circumstances of each case.

30. However, in a case where the court decides to exercise its jurisdiction summarily to return the child to his own country, keeping in view the jurisdiction of the court in the native country which has the closest concern and the most intimate contact with the issues arising in the case, the court may leave the aspects relating to the welfare of the child to be investigated by the court in his own native country as that could be in the best interests of the child. The indication given inMcKeev.McKee[McKeev.McKee, 1951 AC 352] that there may be cases in which it is proper for a court in one jurisdiction to make an order directing that a child be returned to a foreign jurisdiction without investigating the merits of the dispute relating to the care of the child on the ground that such an order is in the best interests of the child has been explained inL. (Minors) (Wardship: Jurisdiction), In re[L. (Minors) (Wardship: Jurisdiction), In re, (1974) 1 WLR 250 : (1974) 1 All ER 913 (CA)] and the said view has been approved by this Court inDhanwanti Joshi[Dhanwanti Joshiv.Madhav Unde, (1998) 1 SCC 112] . Similar view taken by the Court of Appeal inH. (Infants), In re[H. (Infants), In re, (1966) 1 WLR 381 (CA)] has been approved by this Court inElizabeth Dinshaw[Elizabeth Dinshawv.Arvand M. Dinshaw, (1987) 1 SCC 42 : 1987 SCC (Cri) 13] ."

8. Learned Counsel for the appellant has also placed reliance on the judgment reported in (2011) 6 SCC 479 (Ruchi Majoo Versus Sanjeev Majoo). The relevant paragraph nos. 72 to 77 are quoted below:-

"72.For a boy so young in years, these and other expressions suggesting a deep-rooted dislike for the father could arise only because of a constant hammering of negative feeling in him against his father. This approach and attitude on the part of the appellant or her parents can hardly be appreciated. What the appellant ought to appreciate is that feeding the minor with such dislike and despire (sic) for his father does not serve his interest or his growth as a normal child.

73.It is important that the minor has his father's care and guidance, at this formative and impressionable stage of his life. Nor can the role of the father in his upbringing and grooming to face the realities of life be undermined. It is in that view important for the child's healthy growth that we grant to the father visitation rights; that will enable the two to stay in touch and share moments of joy, learning and happiness with each other. Since the respondent is living in another continent such contact cannot be for obvious reasons as frequent as it may have been if they were in the same city. But the forbidding distance that separates the two would get reduced thanks to the modern technology in telecommunications.

74.The appellant has been according to the respondent persistently preventing even telephonic contact between the father and the son. May be the son has been so poisoned against him that he does not evince any interest in the father. Be that as it may telephonic contact shall not be prevented by the appellant for any reason whatsoever and shall be encouraged at all reasonable time. Videoconferencing may also be possible between the two which too shall not only be permitted but encouraged by the appellant.

75.Besides, the father shall be free to visit the minor in India at any time of the year and meet him for two hours on a daily basis, unhindered by any impediment from the mother or her parents or anyone else for that matter. The place where the meeting can take place shall be indicated by the trial court after verifying the convenience of both the parties in this regard. The trial court shall pass necessary orders in this regard without delay and without permitting any dilatory tactics in the matter.

76.For the vacations in summer, spring and winter the respondent shall be allowed to take the minor with him for night stay for a period of one week initially and for longer periods in later years, subject to the respondent getting the itinerary in this regard approved from the Guardians and Wards Court. The respondent shall also be free to take the minor out of Delhi subject to the same condition. The respondent shall for that purpose be given the temporary custody of the minor in presence of the trial court, on any working day on the application of the respondent. Return of the minor to the appellant shall also be accordingly before the trial court on a date to be fixed by the court for that purpose.

77.The above directions are subject to the condition that the respondent does not remove the child from the jurisdiction of this Court pending final disposal of the application for grant of custody by the Guardians and Wards Court, Delhi. We make it clear that within the broad parameters of the directions regarding visitation rights of the respondent, the parties shall be free to seek further directions from the court seized of the guardianship proceedings; to take care of any difficulties that may arise in the actual implementation of this order."

9. On the basis of above referred judgments, Sri Prabhat Kumar, learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that father Sri Ram Shanker Misra, is entitled to take custody of his minor children and the judgment and order dated 11.04.2018, under appeal, is liable to be set-aside.

10. In rebuttal, Sri Ramakar Shukla, learned Counsel for the respondent, supporting the judgment and order dated 11.04.2018 passed Principal Judge, Family Court, Sultanpur, submitted that judgment and order, under appeal, is legal has been and passed in accordance with law. He further submitted that mother of the minor children committed suicide in the year 2007 i.e. on 02.04.2007 and died on 09.04.2007. Demand of dowry by the appellants was the cause of committing suicide. Since 2007 both the children are living with Sri Satish Chandra Misra (नाना). On 10.04.2007 Sri Satish Chandra Misra, lodged an F.I.R. under Sections 304B/498A and 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act against the appellants. Maternal grand father of the children Sri Satish Chandra Misra (नाना) is giving proper care and eduction to the children. Learned Counsel for the respondent further submitted that against the acquittal order of appellants, an appeal bearing Criminal Appeal No. 1351 of 2011, has been filed, which is pending before this Court. Learned Counsel for the respondent also submitted that the father of the children Ram Shanker Misra has remarried and thereafter litigation between him and his second wife is pending under consideration before the competent court. In such circumstances if the custody of the minor children has been given to their father, the future of children would suffer/hamper and therefore, the appeals under consideration are liable to be dismissed.

11. In rebuttal, Sri Prabhat Kumar, learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that remarriage of the appellant cannot be a ground for denying the custody of minor children. In support of his submission he has placed reliance on the judgment reported in (2006) 13 SCC 555 (Lekha Versus P.Anil Kumar). The relevant paragraph nos. 19 to 23 are quoted below:-

"19.The law permits a person to have the custody of his minor child. The father ought to be the guardian of the person and property of the minor under ordinary circumstances. The fact that the mother has married again after the divorce of her first husband is no ground for depriving the mother of her parental right of custody. In cases like the present one, the mother may have shortcomings but that does not imply that she is not deserving of the solace and custody of her child. If the court forms the impression that the mother is a normal and independent young woman and shows no indication of imbalance of mind in her, then in the end the custody of the minor child should not be refused to her or else we would be really assenting to the proposition that a second marriage involving a mother per se will operate adversely to a claim of a mother for the custody of her minor child. We are fortified in this view by the authority of the Madras High Court inS. Soora Reddiv.S. Chenna Reddi[AIR 1950 Mad 306 : (1950) 1 MLJ 33] where Govinda Menon and Basheer Ahmed Syed, JJ. have clearly laid down that the father ought to be a guardian of the person and property of the minor under ordinary circumstances and the fact that a Hindu father has married a second wife is no ground whatever for depriving him of his parental right of custody.

20.A man in his social capacity may be reckless or eccentric in certain respects and others may even develop a considerable distaste for his company with some justification but all that is a far cry from unfitness to have the natural solace of the company of one's own children or for the duty of bringing them up in proper manner. Needless to say the respondent husband, in this case, seems to be anxious to have the minor child with him as early as possible in order to look after him properly and to provide for his future education. The feelings being what they are between the respondent and the appellant we think it is also natural on the part of the husband to feel that if the minor child continues to live with his former wife, it may be brought up to hate the father or to have a very adverse impression about him. This certainly is not desirable. Needless to say, this Court is not called upon to find that the respondent husband has been entirely blameless in his conduct and few occasions referred to in this case and by the boy at the time of interview, it is not the duty of this Court even to ascertain whether the respondent is a responsible and good citizen and a preferred individual. Many people have shortcomings but that does not imply that they are not deserving of the solace and custody of their children.

21.However, in the present case, we have to decide in the interest of the child as to who would be in a better position to look after the child's welfare and interest. The general view that the courts have taken is that the interest and welfare of the child is paramount. While it is no doubt true that under the Hindu law, the father is the natural guardian of a minor after the age of six years, the court while considering the grant of custody of the minor to him has to take into account other factors as well, such as the capacity of the father to look after the child's needs and to arrange for his upbringing. It also has to be seen whether in view of his other commitments, the father is in any position to give personal attention to the child's overall development.

22.As indicated hereinbefore, we have spoken to the child who, in our view, is intelligent and appears to be capable of expressing his preference. In fact, he has in no uncertain terms indicated his desire to stay with his mother. His mother's second marriage, instead of proving to be a disadvantage, has proved to be beneficial for the child who seems to be happy and contented in his present situation and we do not think it would be right to unsettle the same.

23.The High Court committed a grave error in not ascertaining the wishes of the minor, which has consistently been held by the courts to be of relevance in deciding grant of custody of minor children. We are, therefore, inclined to restore the order passed by the Family Court and to give custody of the minor boy to his mother, but as indicated hereinbefore, we do not want the child to grow up without knowing the love and affection of his natural father who too has a right to help in the child's upbringing. We are of the view that although the custody of the minor child is being given to the mother, the child should also get sufficient exposure to his natural father and accordingly, we permit the respondent to have custody of the child from the appellant during Onam and other important festivals and during the school vacation. We make it clear that the appellant mother shall hand over the child to the respondent father during every mid-summer vacation for about a month without adversely affecting the child's education. The appellant should not also prevent the respondent father from coming to see the child during weekends and the appellant should make necessary arrangements for the respondent to meet his child on such occasions. The appellant should not also prevent the child from receiving any gift that may be given by the respondent father to the child."

12. We have considered the submissions of learned Counsel for the parties and perused the records. We find that in the case of Tejaswini Gaud (Supra), the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

"24.In Sarita Sharma[Sarita Sharmav.Sushil Sharma, (2000) 3 SCC 14 : 2000 SCC (Cri) 568] , the tussle over the custody of two minor children was between their separated mother and father. The Family Court of USA while passing the decree of divorce gave custody rights to the father. When the mother flew to India with the children, the father approached the High Court by filing a habeas corpus petition. The High Court directed the mother to hand over the custody to the father. The Supreme Court in appeal observed that the High Court should instead of allowing the habeas corpus petition should have directed the parties to initiate appropriate proceedings wherein a thorough enquiry into the interest of children could be made.

25.In the recent decision inLahari Sakhamuri[Lahari Sakhamuriv.Sobhan Kodali, (2019) 7 SCC 311 : (2019) 5 Scale 97] , this Court referred to all the judgments regarding the custody of the minor children when the parents are non-residents (NRI). We have referred to the above judgments relating to custody of the child removed from foreign country and brought to India for the sake of completion and to point out that there is a significant difference insofar the children removed from foreign countries and brought into India.*

Welfare of the minor child is the paramount consideration

26.The court while deciding the child custody cases is not bound by the mere legal right of the parent or guardian. Though the provisions of the special statutes govern the rights of the parents or guardians, but the welfare of the minor is the supreme consideration in cases concerning custody of the minor child. The paramount consideration for the court ought to be child interest and welfare of the child.*

27.After referring to number of judgments and observing that while dealing with child custody cases, the paramount consideration should be the welfare of the child and due weight should be given to child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favourable surroundings, inNil Ratan Kundu[Nil Ratan Kunduv.Abhijit Kundu, (2008) 9 SCC 413] , it was held as under: (SCC pp. 427-28, paras 49-52)*

"49. InGoverdhan Lalv.Gajendra Kumar[Goverdhan Lalv.Gajendra Kumar, 2001 SCC OnLine Raj 177 : AIR 2002 Raj 148] , the High Court observed that it is true that the father is a natural guardian of a minor child and therefore has a preferential right to claim the custody of his son, but in matters concerning the custody of a minor child, the paramount consideration is the welfare of the minor and not the legal right of a particular party. Section 6 of the 1956 Act cannot supersede the dominant consideration as to what is conducive to the welfare of the minor child. It was also observed that keeping in mind the welfare of the child as the sole consideration, it would be proper to find out the wishes of the child as to with whom he or she wants to live.

50. Again, inM.K. Hari Govindanv.A.R. Rajaram[M.K. Hari Govindanv.A.R. Rajaram, 2003 SCC OnLine Mad 48 : AIR 2003 Mad 315] , the Court held that custody cases cannot be decided on documents, oral evidence or precedents without reference to "human touch". The human touch is the primary one for the welfare of the minor since the other materials may be created either by the parties themselves or on the advice of counsel to suit their convenience.

51. InKamla Deviv.State of H.P.[Kamla Deviv.State of H.P., 1986 SCC OnLine HP 10 : AIR 1987 HP 34] the Court observed: (SCC OnLine HP para 13)

"13. ... the Court while deciding child custody cases in its inherent and general jurisdiction is not bound by the mere legal right of the parent or guardian. Though the provisions of the special statutes which govern the rights of the parents or guardians may be taken into consideration, there is nothing which can stand in the way of the Court exercising its parens patriae jurisdiction arising in such cases giving due weight to the circumstances such as a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, intellectual, moral and physical development, his health, education and general maintenance and the favourable surroundings. These cases have to be decided ultimately on the Court's view of the best interests of the child whose welfare requires that he be in custody of one parent or the other.'

52. In our judgment, the law relating to custody of a child is fairly well settled and it is this: in deciding a difficult and complex question as to the custody of a minor, a court of law should keep in mind the relevant statutes and the rights flowing therefrom. But such cases cannot be decidedsolelyby interpreting legal provisions. It is a human problem and is required to be solved with human touch. A court while dealing with custody cases, is neither bound by statutes nor by strict rules of evidence or procedure nor by precedents. In selecting proper guardian of a minor, the paramount consideration should be the welfare and well being of the child. In selecting a guardian, the court is exercisingparens patriaejurisdiction and is expected,naybound, to give due weight to a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favourable surroundings. But over and above physical comforts, moral and ethical values cannot be ignored. They are equally, or we may say, even more important, essential and indispensable considerations. If the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference or judgment, the court must consider such preference as well, though the final decision should rest with the court as to what is conducive to the welfare of the minor."

28.Reliance was placed uponGaurav Nagpal[Gaurav Nagpalv.Sumedha Nagpal, (2009) 1 SCC 42 : (2009) 1 SCC (Civ) 1] , where the Supreme Court held as under: (SCC pp. 52 & 57, paras 32 & 50-51)

"32. InMcGrath (Infants), In re[McGrath (Infants), In re, (1893) 1 Ch 143 (CA)] , Lindley, L.J. observed: (Ch p. 148)

"...The dominant matter for the consideration of the court is the welfare of the child. But the welfare of the child is not to be measured by money only nor merely physical comfort. The word "welfare" must be taken in its widest sense. The moral or religious welfare of the child must be considered as well as its physical well being. Nor can the tie of affection be disregarded.'

50. When the court is confronted with conflicting demands made by the parents, each time it has to justify the demands. The court has not only to look at the issue on legalistic basis, in such matters human angles are relevant for deciding those issues. The court then does not give emphasis on what the parties say, it has to exercise a jurisdiction which is aimed at the welfare of the minor. As observed recently inMausami Moitra Ganguli case[Mausami Moitra Ganguliv.Jayant Ganguli, (2008) 7 SCC 673] , the court has to give due weightage to the child's ordinary contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favourable surroundings but over and above physical comforts, the moral and ethical values have also to be noted. They are equal if not more important than the others.

51. The word "welfare" used in Section 13 of the Act has to be construed literally and must be taken in its widest sense. The moral and ethical welfare of the child must also weigh with the court as well as its physical well being. Though the provisions of the special statutes which govern the rights of the parents or guardians may be taken into consideration, there is nothing which can stand in the way of the court exercising itsparens patriaejurisdiction arising in such cases.

29.Contending that however legitimate the claims of the parties are, they are subject to the interest and welfare of the child, inRosy Jacob[Rosy Jacobv.Jacob A. Chakramakkal, (1973) 1 SCC 840] , this Court has observed that: (SCC pp. 847 & 855, paras 7 & 15)

"7. ... the principle on which the Court should decide the fitness of the guardian mainly depends on two factors: (i) the father's fitness or otherwise to be the guardian, and (ii) the interests of the minors.

15. ... The children are not mere chattels: nor are they mere play-things for their parents. Absolute right of parents over the destinies and the lives of their children has, in the modern changed social conditions, yielded to the considerations of their welfare as human beings so that they may grow up in a normal balanced manner to be useful members of the society and the guardian court in case of a dispute between the mother and the father, is expected to strike a just and proper balance between the requirements of welfare of the minor children and the rights of their respective parents over them. The approach of the learned Single Judge, in our view, was correct and we agree with him. The Letters Patent Bench on appeal seems to us to have erred [Jacob A. Chakramakkalv.Rosy J. Chakramakkal, 1972 SCC OnLine Mad 90 : (1972) 85 LW 844] in reversing him on grounds which we are unable to appreciate."

30.The learned counsel for the appellants has placed reliance uponG. Eva Mary Elezabath[G. Eva Mary Elezabathv.Jayaraj, 2005 SCC OnLine Mad 472 : AIR 2005 Mad 452] where the custody of the minor child aged one month who had been abandoned by father in church premises immediately on death of his wife was in question. The custody of the child was accordingly handed over to the petitioner thereon who took care of the child for two and half years by the Pastor of the Church. The father snatched the child after two and a half years from the custody of the petitioner. The father of the child who has abandoned the child though a natural guardian therefore was declined the custody."

13. In order to decide the present controversy, we feel it appropriate that the willingness of the children, who are minor, should also be considered and on a query being made by this Court the minor Ms. Gauri Misra, aged about 15 years, stated before us that at present she is studying in Class XI in Gopal Public Senior Secondary School in Science stream and she want to become a Doctor and she has secured 86% marks in High School Examination. We further asked to her that whether she want to live with her father or with her maternal grand father Sri Satish Chandra Misra. In response, she said that she want to live with her maternal grand father Sri Satish Chandra Misra, who has given proper care and education and she does not want to live with her father Ram Shanker Misra. We also put a query to the second minor child Master Prakhar Misra, aged about 13 years, that whether he wants to live with his father or maternal grand father Sri Satish Chandra Misra and in response Master Prakhar Misra, told that he is studying in Class VII in Raghukul Academy English Medium, Lambhua, Sultanpur and he is fond of playing cricket and he wants to live with his maternal grand father Sri Satish Chandra Misra, who has given proper care and education. Both the children also categorically stated before us that the "Nana" is taking all sort of care.

14. The admitted facts of the case are that marriage between appellant Ram Shanker Misra and Moni Misra was solemnized in the year 2002 and out of the wedlock of appellant and Moni Misra , two children were born namely Ms. Gauri Misra and Master Prakhar Misra. Matrimonial relation between the appellant no.2/Ram Shanker Misra and Moni Misra has become strained and on 02.04.2007 Moni Misra tried to commit suicide and died at K.G.M.C. Lucknow on 09.04.2007. Since the date of death of Moni Misra, Km.. Gauri Misra and Master Prakhar Misra are under the custody of their maternal grandfather (नाना) Sri Satish Chandra Misra. On 10.04.2007 Sri Satish Chandra Misra, lodged an F.I.R. under Sections 304B/498A and 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act. Thereafter, the court below has acquitted the appellant no.2/Ram Shanker Misra and thereafter, Sri Satish Chandra Misra filed a Criminal Appeal against the said acquittal order, which is pending consideration before this Court. It is also not disputed that father of minor children has got remarried and after marriage a litigation between appellant no.2/Ram Shanker Misra and his second wife, is also pending consideration before the court below. The children, who are present before this Court and are mature enough to give their opinion, categorically stated that they do not want to live with their father and "Nana" is taking all sort of care.

15. It is not in dispute that the children, who are presently living with their maternal grand father (नाना) since the year 2007 are getting good education and are in proper care.

16. In view of the facts of the case, the point for consideration is that "whether the Court below is justified in rejecting the claim of custody of minors of appellants vide judgment under appeal dated 11.04.2018."

17. It would be appropriate if we examine some of the statutes dealing with the situation.

18. The Guardians Act consolidates and amends the law relating to guardians and wards. Section 4 of the said Act defines "minor" as "a person who has not attained the age of majority". "Guardian" means "a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property, or of both his person and property". "Ward" is defined as "a minor for whose person or property, or both, there is a guardian". Chapter II (Sections 5 to 19 of the Guardians Act) relates to appointment and declaration of guardians. Section 7 thereof deals with "power of the court to make order as to guardianship".

19. Section 8 of the Guardians Act enumerates persons entitled to apply for an order as to guardianship. Section 9 empowers the court having jurisdiction to entertain an application for guardianship. Sections 10 to 16 deal with procedure and powers of court. Section 17 is another material provision and may be reproduced:

"17.Matters to be considered by the court in appointing guardian.--(1) In appointing or declaring the guardian of a minor, the court shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be guided by what, consistently with the law to which the minor is subject, appears in the circumstances to be for the welfare of the minor.

(2) In considering what will be for the welfare of the minor, the court shall have regard to the age, sex and religion of the minor, the character and capacity of the proposed guardian and his nearness of kin to the minor, the wishes, if any, of a deceased parent, and any existing or previous relations of the proposed guardian with the minor or his property.

(3)If the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference, the court may consider that preference.

(5) The court shall not appoint or declare any person to be a guardian against his will."

20. Section 19 prohibits the court from appointing guardians in certain cases. Chapter III (Sections 20 to 42) prescribes duties, rights and liabilities of guardians.

21. The Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956 is another equally important statute relating to minority and guardianship among Hindus. Section 4 defines "minor" as "a person who has not completed the age of eighteen years". "Guardian" means "a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property or of both his person and property", and inter alia includes a natural guardian. Section 2 of the Act declares that the provisions of the Act shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of the 1890 Act.

22. Section 6 enacts as to who can be said to be a natural guardian. It reads thus:

"6.Natural guardians of a Hindu minor.--The natural guardians of a Hindu minor, in respect of the minor's person as well as in respect of the minor's property (excluding his or her undivided interest in joint family property), are--

(a) in the case of a boy or an unmarried girl -- the father, and after him, the mother:

Provided that the custody of a minor who has not completed the age of five years shall ordinarily be with the mother;

(b) in the case of an illegitimate boy or an illegitimate unmarried girl -- the mother, and after her, the father;

(c) in the case of a married girl -- the husband:

Provided that no person shall be entitled to act as the natural guardian of a minor under the provisions of this section--

(a) if he has ceased to be a Hindu, or

(b) if he has completely and finally renounced the world by becoming a hermit (vanaprastha) or an ascetic (yati or sanyasi).

Explanation.--In this section, the expressions "father' and "mother' do not include a stepfather and a stepmother."

23. Section 8 enumerates powers of natural guardian. Section 13 is an extremely important provision and deals with welfare of a minor. The same may be quoted in extenso:

"13.Welfare of minor to be paramount consideration.--(1)In the appointment or declaration of any person as guardian of a Hindu minor by a court, the welfare of the minor shall be the paramount consideration.

(2) No person shall be entitled to the guardianship by virtue of the provisions of this Act or of any law relating to guardianship in marriage among Hindus, if the court is of opinion that his or her guardianship will not be for the welfare of the minor."

24. The principles in relation to the custody of a minor child are well settled. In determining the question as to who should be given custody of a minor child, the paramount consideration is the "welfare of the child" and not rights of the parents under a statute for the time being in force.

25. In deciding a difficult and complex question as to the custody of a minor child, a Court of law should keep in mind the relevant statutes and the rights flowing therefrom. But such cases cannot be decided solely by interpreting legal provisions. It is a human problem and is required to be solved with human touch. A Court while dealing with custody cases, is neither bound by statutes nor by strict rules of evidence or procedure nor by precedents. In selecting proper guardian of a minor, the paramount consideration should be the welfare and well being of the child. In selecting a guardian, the Court is exercising parens patriae jurisdiction and is expected to give due weight to a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favourable surroundings and the Court should also take the wishes of the minor child into consideration.

26. While considering the provisions of the G & W Act, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case ofJitender Arorav.Sukriti Ararareported in(2017)

3 SCC 726held at paragraphs 15 and 17 as under:

15. We also had interaction with Vaishali in the chambers earlier. On the date of hearing also, Vaishali was present in the Court and in front of her parents, she unequivocally expressed that she was happy with her father and wanted to continue in his company and did not want to go with her mother, much less to UK. From the interaction, it is clearly discernible that she is a mature girl who is in a position to weigh the pros and cons of two alternatives and to decide as to which course of action is more suited to her. She has developed her personality and formed her opinion after considering all the attendant circumstances. Her intellectualcharacteristicsare adequately developed. She is able to solve problems, think about her future and understands the long-term effects of the decision which she has taken. We also find that she has been brought up in a conducive atmosphere. It, thus, becomes apparent that in the instant case, we are dealing with the custody of a child who is 15 years of age and has achieved sufficient level of maturity.Further, in spite of giving ample chances to the respondent by giving temporary custody of Vaishali to her, the respondent has not been able to win over the confidence of Vaishali. We, therefore, feel that her welfare lies in the continued company of her father which appears to be in her best interest.

17. On the facts of the present case, we are convinced that custody of the child needs to be with the father. She is already 15 years of age and within3years, she would be major and all this custody battle between her parents would come to an end. She would have complete freedom to decide the course of action she would like to adopt in her life. We, thus, allow this appeal and set aside the judgment of the High Court. No costs.

27. The Hon'ble Supreme Court while dealing with the custody of minor child aged about nine years in the case ofNil Ratan Kunduv.Abhijit Kundureported in(2008) 9 SCC 413held at paragraphs 52 and 72 as under:

52.In our judgment, the law relating to custody of a child is fairly well settled and it is this: in deciding a difficult and complex question as to the custody of a minor, a court of law should keep in mind the relevant statutes and the rights flowing therefrom. But such cases cannot be decided solely by interpreting legal provisions. It is a human problem and is required to be solved with human touch. A court while dealing with custody cases, is neither bound by statutes nor by strict rules of evidence or procedure nor by precedents. In selecting proper guardian of a minor, the paramount consideration should be the welfare and well-being of the child. In selecting a guardian, the court is exercising parens patriae jurisdiction and is expected, nay bound, to give due weight to a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and fa vourable surroundings. But over and above physical comforts, moral and ethical values cannot be ignored. They are equally, or we may say, even more important, essential and indispensable considerations. If the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference or judgment, the court must consider such preference as well, though the final decision should rest with the court as to what is conducive to the welfare of the minor.

72.We have called Antariksh in our chamber. To us, he appeared to be quite intelligent. When we asked him whether he wanted to go to his father and to stay with him, he unequivocally refused to go with him or to stay with him. He also stated that he was very happy with his maternal grandparents and would like to continue to stay with them. We are, therefore, of the considered view that it would not be proper on the facts and in the circumstances to give custody of Antariksh to his father, the respondent herein."

28. While considering the provisions of Sections 7 and 17 of the G & W Act, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of*Mausami Moitra Ganguliv.Jayant Gangulir*eported in(2008) 7 SCC 673held at paragraphs 12 and 26 as under:

12.Before hearing the case, we interviewed Satyajeet in chambers and found that he was quite intelligent and was able to understand the facts and circumstances in which he was placed. He could comprehend matters and visualise his own well-being. He seemed to have no complaint against his father. He explicitly stated before us that he was not inclined to go with his mother and would like to stay with his father and continue his studies at Allahabad where he has quite a few friends.

26.Under these circumstances and bearing in mind the paramount consideration of the welfare of the child, we are convinced that the child's interest and welfare will be best served if he continues to be in the custody of the father. In our opinion, for the present it is not desirable to disturb the custody of Master Satyajeet and, therefore, the order of the High Court giving his exclusive custody to the father with visitation rights to the mother deserves to be maintained. We feel that the visitation rights given to the appellant by the High Court, as noted above, also do not require any modification. We, therefore, affirm the order and the aforeextracted directions given by the High Court. It will, however, be open to the parties to move this Court for modification of this order or for seeking any direction regarding the custody and well-being of the child, if there is any change in the circumstances.

29. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Nutan Gautam Vs. Prakash Guatam (2009) 4 SCC page 734 in regard to consideration for appointment of guardian held that the paramount consideration is welfare, interest and desire of the minor children.

30. In the present case, as stated hereinabove, the minors, Km. Gauri Misra, who is 15 years old and Sri Prakhar Misra, who is 13 years old, have categorically stated before us that they want to live with their Maternal Grand father i.e. Sri Satish Chandra Misra-respondent, who is taking care of the minor children and providing proper education, and they specifically stated that they do not want to live with their father i.e. Sri Ram Shanker Misra-appellant no.2.

31. As per settled position of law, father is the natural guardian of the minor children and therefore he has a preferential right of custody of the minor, but in the matter of the custody of minor children Court has to consider the welfare of the child and not the legal right of particular party and the Court should consider the case of custody of minor with humanitarian touch and while deciding the said issue in respect of custody of minor children, the Court is also required to consider the wishes of minor children.

32. The appellant no.2/father is the natural guardian of the minor children, but as per the facts and circumstances of the present case and as stated herein above and the finding which has been given by the Trial Court while passing the impugned judgment, we are of the considered opinion that the welfare of the child for the custody of guardianship, is to be given preference and from the record it also transpires that the appellants have not pleaded nor disputed that the minor children Km. Gauri Misra and Master Prakhar Misra are not getting proper education and other facilities. It is also proved from the record as well as the statement given by the minor children before us that they are getting proper education and other facilities, which itself reflects from the fact stated before us by Km. Gauri Misra that she has passed her High School Examination with 86% marks and Sri Prakhar Misra also getting good education at Sultanpur.

33. Taking into consideration the settled legal proposition and facts of the case as well as the statement given by the children before this Court, who are mature enough to express their opinion/preference on their wish to stay with "Nana" or "Father", we are of the opinion that the judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellants Sri Prabhat Kumar i.e Tejaswini Gaud (supra), Ruchi Majoo (supra) and Lekha (supra) would not apply in facts of the case.

34. For the foregoing reasons, we do not find any infirmity or illegality in the impugned judgment and order dated 11.04.2018 passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Sultanpur by which custody/guardianship of the minor children Km. Gauri Misra and Mr. Prakhar Misra has been given to the Maternal Grand father-respondent, Sri Satish Chandra Misra.

35. However, in view of the law laid down by the apex court, the father being a natural guardian should be given the visitation rights, which has not given by the court below, we partly allow the appeal providing visitation rights to the father of the minor children-Sri Rama Shanker Misra, and accordingly he has right of visiting his children namely Km. Gauri Misra and Sri Prakhar Misra, on second and fourth Sunday of each month in day hours at a place which is agreed between the parties at Sultanpur and in that regard, the respondent-Sri Satish Chandra Mishra would not prevent the father of the minors in any manner whatsoever it may be.

36. No order as to costs.

Civil Law - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 - Section 10-Judicial Separation-Limitation-legislature/framers of the Act, 1955 have not provided any period or limitation to present the petition under Section 10 of the Act, 1955 for a decree of judicial separation - a petition for getting the decree of judicial separation can be filed even prior to completion of one year of marriage (Para 9 & 22)

First Appeal allowed. (E-5)

List of cases cited: -

1. Indumati v. Krishnamurthy reported in 1998 SCC Online Mad 477: (1999) 1 CTC 210

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Lavania,J.)

1. Case called out in the revised list. None appeared on behalf of the respondent.

2. Heard learned counsel for the appellant.

3. The instant appeal has been filed challenging the judgment and order dated 16.05.2018, passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Lucknow, in Misc. Case No. 19/2018 (Amit Singh v. Smt. Sandhya Singh).

4. Facts, in brief, of the present case are to the effect that the marriage between the appellant and respondent was solemnized on 15.12.2017 at Shiv Mandir, Shivpuri, Ghaziabad as per Hindu Rites and Rituals. Thereafter, the matrimonial relations between the parties become estranged, as such, the respondent left here matrimonial house and started living at her parental house w.e.f. 10.05.2018. In these circumstances, appellant filed a Suit under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (in short 'Act, 1955') registered as Misc. Case No. 18/2018 (Amit Singh v. Smt. Sandhya Singh), which was withdrawn as not pressed. Thereafter, the appellant filed a Suit for judicial separation under Section 10 of the Act, 1955 registered as Misc. Case No. 19/2018 (Amit Singh v. Smt. Sandhya Singh), which was dismissed on 16.05.2018 by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Lucknow with the following observation:-

"पुनः धारा–10 में यह स्पष्ट प्रावधान उपबंधित किया गया है कि धारा–13 में उल्लिखित किन्हीं भी आधार पर धारा–10 का वाद प्रस्तुत किया जा सकता है। हिन्दू विवाह अधिनियम के इन प्रावधानों के समग्र अवलोकन से यह स्पष्ट है कि विवाह होने के एक वर्ष पश्चात् ही न्यायिक पृथक्कीकरण का कोई वाद न्यायालय में प्रस्तुत किया जा सकता है। वादी का प्रतिवादिनी के साथ विवाह दिनांक 15.12.2017 को सम्पन्न हुआ था। अतः वादी का विवाह हुए अभी एक वर्ष व्यतीत नहीं हुआ है। ऐसी स्थिति में प्रस्तुत वाद पंजीकृत होने योग्य नहीं है। तद्नुसार आदेशित किया जाता है। पत्रावली दाखिल दफ्तर हो।"

5. Assailing the order dated 16.05.2018, under appeal, the counsel for the appellant submitted that under Section 10 of the Act, 1955, the legislature has not provided any limitation for presenting a petition for grant of decree of judicial separation whereas for presenting the petition for getting the decree of divorce, the petition can be filed as per the limitation provided under Section 14(1) of the Act, 1955 and the Court below while dismissing the petition for decree of judicial separation filed by the appellant erred in law in considering the limitation provided for presenting the petition for getting the decree of divorce.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that the controversy involved in the instant case is covered by the judgment passed by the High Court of Madras in the case of Indumati v. Krishnamurthy reported in 1998 SCC OnLine Mad 477 : (1999) 1 CTC 210, wherein the High Court of Madras after taking into consideration the provisions of the Act, 1955, observed that "from the above legal position, it is clear that even without leave, a petition for divorce could be entertained and no separate Order on an application under Sec. 14 (1) granting leave is required. The proviso to Section 14(1) of the Act itself is an answer to the contentions raised by learned counsel for petitioner."

7. The relevant paras of the judgment passed in the case of Indumati (supra) on reproduction read as under:-

"12. In a Divisions Bench decision of the Calcutta High Court reported in Rabindra Nath Mukherjee v. Iti Mukherjee @ Chatterjee, 1991 (II) D.M.C. 227: 95 (1991) C.W.N. 1085, this legal position was elaborately considered. Paragraph 6 onwards is relevant for our purpose. Paragraphs 6 to 16 read thus:-

"The expression "entertain", however, as pointed out by the Supreme Court in (2) Laxmiratan Engineering Works, AIR 1968 SC 488 and in (3) Hindustan Commercial Bank, AIR 1970 SC 1384, may not necessarily mean receiving or accepting the plaint or the petition, or the initiation of the proceeding, but may mean "adjudicate upon" or "proceed to consider on merits". Therefore, if the relevant expression in Section 14(1) was "it shall not be competent for any Court to entertain any petition .... unless one year has elapsed since the date of the marriage", I would have held that all that is necessary is the expiry of one year, not necessarily before the presentation of the petition, but before the date on which the Court adjudicates thereon or proceeds to consider on merits. But the express user of "the word "presentation" in the expression "unless on the date of the presentation of the petition one year has elapsed since the date of the marriage" nakedly stands in the way of such a construction and I regret my inability to delete the words "on the date of presentation of the petition" by any amount of judicial activism.

7. But the reasons that are weighing with me for holding these provisions to be directory and thus to require substantial compliance only, and not to be mandatory warranting strict adherence on pain of rejection or dismissal, are as hereunder.

8. The period of three years, as originally enacted by the Legislature, has now been reduced to one year only by the Amendment Act of 1976. That, in my view, clearly indicates that the Legislature itself has been convinced that the period provided for "fair trial" to marriage was unduly long and required circumscription.

9. If the Legislature considered this "fair trial rule" to be of that great importance and of that paramount necessity for the stability of marriage to make it mandatory, it would have inserted similar provisions in the other matrimonial legislations also by way of later amendments. It may be noted that the Legislature has amended rather extensively the Parsi Marriage & Divorce Act, 1936 but without inserting any such analogous provision. If the Legislature really intended the provisions to be that mandatory, it would have a fortiorari inserted such provisions in the other matrimonial legislations, with Article 14 of the Constitution mandating equal protection of laws and Article 15 interdicting any discrimination on the ground of religion. If Hindu Marriages and Special Marriages warranted protection of "fair trial rule", the Christian or the Parsi marriages cannot be discriminated by denial of such protection.

10. The Proviso to Section 14(1) would also indicate that the provisions requiring intervention of one year between the date of marriage and the date of presentation for petition for divorce are not that mandatory. The proviso provides for leave to the parties by the Court to present petition before the expiry of such period on the ground that the case is of exceptional hardship to the petitioner or of exceptional depravity on the part of the respondent. But the proviso proceeds to provide that at the trial "if appears to the court at the hearing of the petition that the petitioner obtained leave "to present the petition by any misrepresentation or concealment of the nature of the case, the Court may, if it pronounces a decree, do so subject to the condition that the decree shall not have effect until the expiry of one year from the date of marriage...". Now a leave obtained by supperesio veri or suggestio falsi should be treated as vitiated to the extent of being non est and the Proviso, therefore, provides that "the Court may dismiss the petition" but without prejudice to any petition which may be brought after the expiry of one year as aforesaid. But since the Court may also decree the petition only with the rider that the decree shall not be operative before one year from the date of the marriage, the petition, though filed before the prohibited period of one year, and that too on misrepresentation or concealment, stands fully legalised and regularised and the prohibition that the decree shall not be effective until one year from the date of marriage may itself become of no practical effect or utility as in contested divorce cases, a decree is seldom available before that period, notwithstanding the directive in Sec. 21-B(2)of the Act.

11. A premature petition presented with leave wrongfully obtained is no better, if not worse, than one presented without leave, and if such a tainted petition can nevertheless be decreed, then I am yet to know why premature petition, without any such taint, cannot be similarly decreed. Once the Legislature has been found to have permitted decreeing of a premature petition founded on leave obtained dishonestly, the provision in Section 14(1) prohibiting presentation of petition before the prescribed period cannot be held to be that mandatory to warrant rigid compliance and must be held to be directory which require substantial compliance only. For, to hold otherwise would amount to rule that law favours the dishonest maneuverer and discriminate against the honesterrant.

12. There is yet another way of looking into the matter. While I do not suggest that the Legislature, or even the Judiciary, goes or can always afford to go in a common-sense course, we must, whenever possible, interpret laws in a common- sense way and by importing a little hit of common sense whenever necessary. Now, Section 14 (1) does not at all provide for any waiting period for a matrimonial proceeding for judicial separation which can be decreed only on grounds which justify divorce, nor for dissolution of marriage by a decree of nullity under Sec. 11. Now, while pregnancy of the wife per alium at the time of marriage is a ground for nullifying the marriage under Section 11, pregnancy per alium after the date of marriage is a ground for divorce under Section 13 and, therefore, for judicial separation also under Section 10. Judicial Separation is very often a stepping to a divorce and, more often than not, a decree for judicial separation serves, as the foundation for a decree of divorce under Section 13 (1)(i). From the matrimonial point of view, a post-marital per alium pregnancy is obviously more deprecable than a per-marital one and if the aggrieved husband intending to proceed for divorce on the ground of post-marital per alium pregnancy of the wife is still mandatorily required to give a "fair trial" to the marriage for one year, I do not understand why a husband shall be relieved therefrom when he proceeds to sue the wife for Judicial separation on the same ground or to sue the wife for a declaration of nullity on the ground of per alium pregnancy of the wife at the date of marriage.

13. "Then again, under the provisions of Section 23-A, if one spouse sues the other for, say, restitution of conjugal rights or for Judicial separation, the other spouse may not only oppose the relief sought, but may himself or herself claim for any relief, including divorce, on the ground of the suing spouse's adultery, cruelty or desertion. One can, therefore, easily visualise a case where one spouse has sued the other for restitution or judicial separation within, say, a month from the date of marriage and the other spouse on entering appearance within, say, one month thereafter, makes a claim for divorce in the written statement. As at present advised, I have doubts as to whether the provisions of Section 14(1) would stand in the way of such a counter-claim".

14. At any rate, a petition for Judicial separation is not within the ambit of Section 14 and, as already noted, under Section 13A, the Court, in a divorce proceeding on the ground of cruelty, as is the case before us, may grant Judicial separation. A petition, even though labelled as one for divorce, should not therefore be rejected "on the ground of having been presented before one year from the date of marriage, but the Court should proceed to trial in order to ascertain whether the materials on record would justify a decree for Judicial separation. As the Supreme Court observed in (4) Pratap Singh v. Shri Krishna Gupta, AIR 1956 SC 140, the tendency of the Courts towards technicalities or formalities are to be deprecated for it is the substance that must count and must prevail and take precedence over form. A party's bona fide right to judicial separation cannot be scuttled in limine solely on the ground that the party, on legal advice or otherwise, brought himself within the prohibition of Section 14(1) by labelling his or her petition as one for divorce.

15. The Division Bench decision of this Court in Smritkana v. Dilip Kumar AIR 1982 Cal. 247, cannot, on a careful reading, be construed to have laid down any contrary proposition, but, on a meaningful reading, would go to support the ratio of my view. There also the Division Bench, after holding the petition for divorce to be not maintainable on the ground of having been filed within about 6½ months from the date of marriage, nevertheless proceeded to consider as to whether a decree of judicial separation could be awarded. It is true that, as already noted, under Section 13A, a decree for judicial separation can be awarded "on a petition for dissolution of marriage by a decree for divorce". If the Division Bench held Section 14 (1) to be that mandatory, then it would have had to hold that the petition, as one for divorce, being beyond the competence of the Court, to entertain, there was no legal and proper "petition for dissolution of marriage by a decree of divorce", on which alone a decree for judicial separation should be awarded under section 13-A.

16. To go back to the decision of the Supreme Court in Pratap Singh v. Shri Krishna Gupta, AIR 1956 SC 140, some rules are so important and fundamental that they go to the root of the matter and must be treated as mandatory and any non-compliance therewith would vitiate everything. Some are not that fundamental and even though mandatory in form substantial compliance therewith would be "good enough. In the absence of the "fair trial' rule in the Indian matrimonial legislation for the Christians, the Parsis, the Muslim women and also in the absence of any such provision even in the Hindu Marriage Act or the Special Marriage Act for matrimonial proceedings for judicial separation and for declaration of nullity, and for the other reasons stated herein before, I have not been able to persuade my self to hold that Sec. 14(1) is that mandatory to warrant rejection or dismissal of the petition presented without rigid and strict compliance thereof, I would rather hold them to be directory to require substantial but not literal, compliance. This aspect was not considered by the Division Bench in Smritkana v. Dilip Kumar, A.I.R. 1982 Cal. 247 but there is nothing contrary either to the view I propose to take." (Italics supplied)

13. The aforesaid decision was followed by another learned Judge of the Calcutta High Court in the decision reported in. Chandrima Guha v. Sumit Guha, 1994 (II) D.M.C 6.

14. From the above legal position, it is clear that even without leave, a petition for divorce could be entertained and no separate Order on an application under Sec. 14 (1) granting leave is required. The proviso to Section 14(1) of the Act itself is an answer to the contentions raised by learned counsel for petitioner.

15. In this case, when this defect was noted, petitioner was cautious enough to file an application itself, and the same is pending before the Family Court. Therefore, there is substantial compliance of Section 14(1) of the Hindu Marriage Act.

16. While deciding the question whether the respondent will be entitled to any relief on the petition for divorce, the question of exceptional hardship and exceptional depravity also will have to be considered, and taking into consideration the same, the Court may also give such direction as it may think necessary. If by the time the Court takes up the case merits, one year time has also expired, I think the Court can take note of the subsequent events also. In a case whether a decree could be granted subject to the condition that it will not take effect until one year after the date of marriage, it is also clear therefrom that a decree on merits also could be passed if the court takes up the matter for consideration on merits after a period of one year from the date of marriage. The question of dismissing the petition for divorce also will not arise.

17. Now I come to the decision of this Court reported in Meganatha Nayagar v. Shrimathi Susheela, AIR 1957 Mad. 423. There, the question that came for consideration was, whether this Court should interfere in an order granting leave under Section 14 of the Hindu Marriage Act. The question now before us was not the matter in issue in that case. Learned Judge (Ramaswami, J.) was considering the scope of evidence that has to be let in while considering an application under Section 14. It was held in that case that the Court has to decide whether the allegations made in the affidavit filed on the application are such that if proved, they would amount to exceptional hardship or depravity. In fact such finding has to be entered on the basis of the affidavit. Learned Judge was also cautious enough to say that at that time the petitioner is not expected to try a petition in advance. Learned Judge further said that he has not merely decide on the basis of the affidavit filed support of the petition whether exceptional hardship or exceptional depravity has been proved. Learned Judge has also enumerated certain guidelines basing on English decisions as to what is exceptional hardship or exceptional depravity."

8. We have heard learned counsel for the appellant and gone through the record.

9. For deciding the issue involved in the present case, which is to the effect that "whether a petition for getting the decree of judicial separation can not be filed prior to completion of one year of marriage?", we feel it appropriate to quote relevant sections of the Act, 1955. The same are as under:-

"4. Overriding effect of Act.--Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act,--

(a) any text, rule or interpretation of Hindu law or any custom or usage as part of that law in force immediately before the commencement of this Act shall cease to have effect with respect to any matter for which provision is made in this Act;

(b) any other law in force immediately before the commencement of this Act shall cease to have effect in so far as it is inconsistent with any of the provisions contained in this Act.

9. Restitution of conjugal rights.--When either the husband or the wife has, without reasonable excuse, withdrawn from the society of the other aggrieved party may apply, by petition to the district court, for restitution of conjugal rights and the court, on being satisfied of the truth of the statements made in such petition and that there is no legal ground why the application should not be granted, may decree restitution of conjugal rights accordingly.*

10. (2) On the motion of both the parties made not earlier than six months after the date of the presentation of the petition referred to in sub-section (1) and not later than eighteen months after the said date, if the petition is not withdrawn in the meantime, the court shall, on being satisfied, after hearing the parties and after making such inquiry as it thinks fit, that a marriage has been solemnized and that the averments in the petition are true, pass a decree of divorce declaring the marriage to be dissolved with effect from the date of the decree.]

14. No petition for divorce to be presented within one year of marriage.--*

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, it shall not be competent for any court to entertain any petition for dissolution of a marriage by a decree of divorce, [unless at the date of the presentation of the petition one year has elapsed] since the date of the marriage:

Provided that the Court may, upon application made to it in accordance with such rules as may be made by the High Court in that behalf, allow a petition to be presented [before one year has elapsed] since the date of the marriage on the ground that the case is one of exceptional hardship to the petitioner or of exceptional depravity on the part of the respondent, but if it appears to the Court at the hearing of the petition that the petitioner obtained leave to present the petition by any misrepresentation or concealment of the nature of the case, the court may, if it pronounces a decree, do so subject to the condition that the decree shall not have effect until after the [expiry of one year] from the date of the marriage or may dismiss the petition without prejudice to any petition which may be brought after the [expiration of the said one year] upon the same or substantially the same facts as those alleged in support of the petition so dismissed.

(2) In disposing of any application under this section for leave to present a petition for divorce the [expiration of one year] from the date of the marriage, the Court shall have regard to the interests of any children of the marriage and to the question whether there is a reasonable probability of a reconciliation between the parties before the expiration of the [said one year]."

10. Before dealing with the point involved in the present appeal, it would be appropriate to consider the difference between "Judicial Separation" and "Divorce".

11. In Indian Society, marriage is considered as a sacrament. It is an irrevocable relationship between husband and wife established through rituals and customs.

12. A blissful marital life is a sheer result of unconditional love, faith, belief, passion and determination between couples who ensure to stay together in every phase of life. But things turn out ugly when both the spouses experience lack of interest, mistrust, misunderstandings, differences, etc... amongst one another. Unfortunately, this results in the couple filing for Divorce. But the eyes of law believe in giving an opportunity to couples in the form of Judicial Separation.

13. Before 1955, there was no relief available to either party in case of a failed marriage. They had to continue with the marriage and couldn't break the marriage. After Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 things changed in favour of both parties to the marriage. Now, in case of a failed marriage, the parties do not need to suffer in the marriage and can easily break their matrimonial alliance through Judicial Separation or by a decree of Divorce.

14. Judicial Separation is a provision under the Indian marriage laws, wherein both the husband and the wife get an opportunity to introspect about giving a chance to their marriage, before going on with the divorce proceedings. Under a decree of Judicial Separation, both the parties live separately for a period of time getting adequate space, independence and time to think about continuing their marriage or not. During this phase, both the parties still carry the same legal status of being husband and wife and yet at the same time live separately also.

15. Judicial Separation does not terminate marriage whereas in divorce the parties are no more husband and wife and hence the marriage ends.

16. Judicial Separation is a step prior to a divorce. The purpose of judicial separation is to provide an opportunity to the parties to reconcile their difference.

17. In case of divorce, parties cease to be husband and wife. Divorce puts an end to the marriage and all mutual rights, and obligations stand terminated. The parties are free to marry again.

18. Either party to the marriage, whether solemnized before or after commencement of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 can under Section 10 of the Act file a petition for judicial separation. After a decree is passed in favour of the parties, they are not bound to cohabit with each other. Some matrimonial rights and obligation, however, continue to subsist. They cannot remarry during the period of separation. They are at liberty to live separately from each other. Rights and obligations remain suspended during the period of separation. The grounds for judicial separation are same as for divorce.

19. Needless to say that the Act, 1955 is a "Special Act" relating to marriage among Hindus. Section 4 of the Act, 1955 provides overrding effect to any other law in force immediately before the commencement of this Act shall cease to have effect in so far as it is inconsistent with any of the provisions contained in this Act.

20. It appears from the above quoted provisions of the Act, 1955, that for dissolution of marriage among Hindus, a decree of divorce is necessary on the grounds envisaged under Section 13 of the Act, 1955. For presenting the petition for getting the decree of divorce, limitation is provided under Section 14 of the Act, 1955. As per Section 14 of the Act, 1955, the petition for divorce under Section 13 of the Act, 1955 can be presented only after completion of one year of marriage, however with the leave of the Court, the same can be filed before expiry of one year from the date of marriage. No limitation in the Act, 1955 (Special Act which relates to marriage among Hindus) has been provided for presenting the petition under Section 9, 10, 11 and 12 of the Act, 1955.

21. Needless to say that golden rule of interpretation of an Act/Statute is that the words of a statute must prima facie be given their ordinary meaning. It is yet another rule of construction that when the words of the statute are clear, plain and unambiguous, then the courts are bound to give effect to that meaning, irrespective of the consequences.

22. It is evident from the above quoted provisions of the Act, 1955 that the language and words used therein are clear, plain and unambiguous. We feel that taking into consideration the difference between "Judicial Separation", which is a step prior to divorce and it is for the purpose to provide an opportunity to the parties to think about continuing their marriage, and "Divorce" under Section 13 and 13(B) of the Act, 1955, which terminates the bonding of marriage, the legislature/framers of the Act, 1955 i.e. Parliament has not provided any period or limitation for presenting the petition under Section 10 of the Act, 1955 for a decree of judicial separation.

23. Taking into consideration the aforesaid facts and the reasons as well as the relevant provisions of the Act, 1955 and the observations made by the High Court of Madras in the case of Indumati (supra), we are of the considered opinion that the order dated 16.05.2018, passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Lucknow is unsustainable in the eye of law.

24. For the foregoing reasons, the order dated 16.05.2018, passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Lucknow is hereby set-aside. The matter is remanded back to the Principal Judge, Family Court, Lucknow to decide the case of the appellant on merits in accordance with law.

25. The appeal is allowed with the aforesaid observation.

First Appeal No. 151 of 2012

Shailendra Kumar Singh ...Appellant
Versus
Smt. Reeta Singh & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Manish Tripathi, Brij Mohan Sahai, Raj Priya Srivastava, Rajiv Raman Srivastava, Ravi Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sahab Tiwari, Vyomkesh Chandra Shukla

A. Civil Law - Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 - Section 13 - Divorce - Irretrievable breakdown of marriage - it is the duty of the Court while deciding an issue of divorce whether the marriage between the parties has broken down irretrievably or it is dead emotionally & practically and there is no chance of its being retrieved, before compelling the parties to live with each other - long separation tantamount to a mental/physical cruelty. Divorce petition by husband - Ground, husband and wife living separately since 1998/99 and serious allegations levelled against respondent wife of having illicit relationship - Though husband failed to establish his allegation of adultery - however as parties living separately for the last two decades, for all practical purposes, the marriage between the parties is dead. Marriage broken down irretrievably - Decree of divorce granted. (Para 54)

B. Pleadings and proof - Plaintiff can succeed on the strength of his own case and not on the correctness of the defence - contradiction in the statement given by respondent during her cross-examination. Yet, plaintiff cannot get any benefit because plaintiff through his evidence failed to prove the facts stated in his plaint. (Para 34)

First Appeal allowed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anil Kumar,J.)

1. Heard Sri Brij Mohan Sahai and Sri Raj Priya Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant. None is present on behalf of the respondents.

2. By means of the instant appeal under Section 19 of the Family Courts Act, 1984 (in short "Act, 1984"), the appellant has challenged the judgment and order dated 05.09.2012, passed by the Family Court, Faizabad in Suit No. 105 of 2000 (Shailendra Kumar Singh v. Smt. Reeta Singh), whereby the divorce petition under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (in short "Act, 1955") moved by the appellant was dismissed.

3. Facts, in brief, of the present case as submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant are to the effect that the marriage between appellant-Shailendra Kumar Singh and respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh was solemnized as per the Hindu Rites and Rituals on 18.04.1987. In the year 1993, out of their wedlock, a daughter namely Ankita was born.

4. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that in the meantime the appellant got appointment at District- Bahraich, so he had to leave his home situated at Dharupur, Ambedkar Nager leaving there his wife and minor daughter.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that when appellant returned to his home, he came to know that his wife has made illicit relationships with Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu and one Sri Ram Shakal Singh. So, in view of the said facts, some hot talks took place between the appellant-Shailendra Kumar Singh and respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh, as a result of which, in the month of September, 1998, the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh left her matrimonial house and started living at her parental house in District- Azamgarh.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that thereafter, the appellant tried his best to pacify the issue, however all the efforts went in vain, as such, having no other alternative option left, the appellant filed a petition on 06.03.2000 in the Court of Principal Judge/ Family Court, Faizabad for divorce under Section 13 (1)(i) of the Act, 1955, which was registered as Regular Suit No. 105 of 2000 (Shailendra Kumar Singh v. Smt. Reeta Singh).

7. Section 13 (1)(i) of the Act, 1955 reads as under:-

"13. Divorce.-(1) Any marriage solemnized, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, may, on a petition presented by either the husband of the wife, be dissolved by a decree of divorce on the ground that the other party-

[(i) has, after the solemnization of marriage, had voluntary sexual intercourse with any person other than his or her spouse; or]"

8. On 04.01.2001, respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh filed her written statement and thereafter, she also filed the additional written statement dated 16.11.2002/10.01.2003 on 10.01.2003. The rebuttal was filed by the appellant on 10.11.2019.

9. Leaned counsel for the appellant further submitted that thereafter, an application for amendment of the plaint was filed by the appellant and the same was allowed and accordingly, the plaint was amended and Sri Ram Shakl Singh was impleaded as respondent No. 2 in the petition filed by the appellant under Section 13 of the Act, 1955 as well as certain amendments were incorporated in the facts of the case. The written statement was also amended by moving the application for amendment dated 03.09.2008.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that in order to prove his case, in addition to the documentary evidence, which were letters written by the appellant as well as respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh, on behalf of the appellant, P.W.-1-Shailendra Singh was examined and on behalf of defendant, D.W.-1/Smt. Reeta Singh and DW-2/ Sri Satya Prakash Singh were examined and the evidence of Sri Ram Shakal Singh, who was impleaded as respondent No. 2 was filed in the petition by way of an affidavit.

11. Vide order dated 05.09.2012, the Principal Judge, Family Court, Faizabad dismissed the Regular Suit No. 105 of 2000 (Shailendra Kumar Singh v. Smt. Reeta Singh).

12. Aggrieved by the order dated 05.09.2012, the present appeal has been filed by the appellant-Sri Shailendra Kumar Singh under Section 19 of the Act, 1984.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant has pressed the present appeal on the following grounds:-

(a) that the Court below has wrongly dismissed the petition on the ground that the appellant-Sri Shailendra Kumar Singh failed to prove that the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh was living in adultery.

(b) that the appellant-Sri Shailendra Kumar Singh and the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh have got no matrimonial relation since September, 1998 and they are living separately, as such there is no possibility to live together as husband and wife, so on the said ground, the divorce petition should be allowed.

14. Sri. Raj Priya Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant while pressing the first point submitted that in the present case, it is categorically stated by the appellant way of pleadings that the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh had an illicit relationship with Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu. In this regard, he placed reliance on paragraph No. 8 of the plaint.

15. In addition to the above facts, learned counsel for the appellant also submitted that the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh had also got an illicit relationship with her Brother-in-Law (Jija)/husband of her sister. In this regard, he placed reliance on paragraph No. 6 of the petition and on the basis of the averments made in paragraph No. 9 of the petition, it is also submitted by Sri. Raj Priya Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant that the respondent-Smt. Reeta singh and Sri Ram Shakal Singh were seen by her Bhabhi in compromising position/situation.

16. It is also submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that from the letters which were written by the appellant and the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh, it is clearly established that respondent-Smt. Reeta singh had illicit relationships with Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu and with Ram Shakal Singh.

17. In this regard, learned counsel for the appellant placed reliance on the statement given by DW-1/respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh and submitted that in view of the said statement given by respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh in her cross examination, the order which has been passed by the trial Court on the basis of evidence led by the parties, thereby dismissing the petition of the appellant, is contrary to law and, as respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh gave contradictory statement as D.W. 1, as such her evidence cannot be considered as reliable.

18. The relevant portion of the statement given by DW-1/respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh in her cross-examination is quoted below:-

"यह कहना गलत है कि वह गर्भपात नाजायज था। यह कहना गलत है कि मुझे नाजायज गर्भ था जिसे छिपाने के लिए गर्भपात कराया। मैनें शादी के बाद अपने पति को अनेकों पत्र लिखा है। गवाह ने पत्रावली में दाखिल कागज सं0–65/ग पत्र को देखकर कहा यह मेरे द्वारा मेरे पति को लिखा गया है। यह कहना गलत है कि मेरे व राम शकल के सम्बन्ध से गर्भ हो गया था और राम शकल सिंह ने गर्भपात कराया था। गर्भपात मेरे बहन ने कराया यह बात वही बता सकती है। मैं गर्भपात अस्पताल का नाम नहीं बता सकती। राजे सुलतानपुर में मेरा गर्भपात नहीं हुआ था।"

19. Learned counsel for the appellant while pressing the second point submitted that from the material available on record, it is clearly established that the appellant and respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh are living separately since September 1998, as pleaded by the appellant in his petition and the same is also supported by the statement given by the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh in her statement that they are living separately since 1999. Learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that there is irretrievable breakdown of marriage between the parties, it is on the ground of serious allegation of adultery and separate living admittedly since the year 1999, as such the trial Court should have granted the decree of divorce on the said ground. In support of his argument, learned counsel for the appellant placed reliance on the judgments of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli reported in AIR 2006 SC 1675 : (2006) 4 SCC 558 : JT 2006 (3) SC 491 : (2006) 3 SCALE 252 and Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh reported in (2007) 4 SCC 511 : JT 2007 (5) 569 : (2007) 5 SCALE 1 : (2007) 4 SCR 428.

20. Accordingly, it is submitted by the learned Counsel for the appellant that the judgment and decree passed by the trial Court may be set aside and divorce petition may be allowed.

21. We have heard learned counsels for the appellant and perused the record.

22. As per the admitted facts of the present case, the marriage between the appellant and respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh was solemnized on 18.4.1987, as per the Hindu Rights and Rituals. In the year 1993, out of the wedlock of appellant and respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh, one baby girl namely Ankita was born. Thereafter, the matrimonial relations between the appellant and respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh became estranged, as such respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh/wife of the appellant, as admitted by her, started living separately since 1999. Thereafter, the appellant filed a divorce petition under Section 13(1)(i) of the Act, 1955 on the ground of illicit relationship of respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh with other persons, which was registered as petition No. 105 of 2000 (Shailendra Singh v. Smt. Reeta Singh) before the Principal Judge/Family Court, Faizabad and was dismissed on 5.09.2012.

23. During the pendency of the present appeal, learned counsel for the parties submitted that there is a likelihood that the dispute may be amicably settled between the parties. So in view of the said facts, this Court took steps for settlement of dispute between the parties amicably settled, however, the dispute could not be settled amicably settled between the parties at the behest of respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh.

24. So far as the first argument which has been raised by learned Counsel for the appellant, on the ground of adultery, is concerned, we feel it appropriate to have the meaning of word "Adultery", provided under Section 497 of CPC, which reads as under:-

"497. Adultery.--Whoever has sexual intercourse with a person who is and whom he knows or has reason to believe to be the wife of another man, without the consent or connivance of that man, such sexual intercourse not amounting to the offence of rape, is guilty of the offence of adultery, and shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to five years, or with fine, or with both. In such case the wife shall not be punishable as an abettor."

Clause (i) : Adultery as per Mulla, Hindu Law,21st Edition 2010 P. 906 under chapter IV, Nullity of Marriage And Divorce.

25. By way of amendment in the Act of 1976, Section 13(1)(i) has been introduced in the Act, 1955 and as per the same, a petition of divorce can lie at the instance of the husband or the wife , if the other party has after the solemnization of the marriage committed even a single act of adultery. It must also be noticed that to bring a case under this section it is not necessary now to show that the respondent is living in adultery. The benefit of this liberalized provision can be availed of even in an appeal pending at the commencement of the amending act. It must also been noticed that the expression "adultery' has not been used in the cause and instead the word are "had voluntary sexual intercourse with any other person other than his or her spouse'. Adultery in matrimonial law is one of the principal grounds for relief, and has been defined as consensual sexual intercourse between a married person and another person of the opposite sex during the subsistence of the marriage. An attempt to commit adultery must be distinguished fro adultery, and will not of itself be sufficient ground for relief.

26. Direct proof of adultery is not imperative. It would be unreasonable to expect direct evidence and such evidence if bought before the court, must be suspected and is at to be disbelieved. The accepted rule, therefore, is that circumstantial evidence is all that can normally be expected in proof of the charge. The circumstances must be such as to lead to fair inference, as a necessary conclusion; and unless thiswas so, no protection whatever could be given to marital rights. It is impossible to indicate those circumstances universally, because they might be infinitely diversified by the situation and character of the parties, by the state of the general manners, and by many other incidental circumstances, apparently slight and delicate in themselves, but which may have important bearing upon the particular case. The only general rule upon the subject is, that the circumstances must be such as would lead the guarded judgment of a reasonable and just man to the conclusion. The facts usually are not of a complicated nature, nut determinable upon common grounds of reason, it is in consequence of this rule that it is not necessary to prove a fact of adultery in time and place. Nor is it absolutely incumbent on the petitioner to prove the identity of the person with whom the alleged act of adultery took place. A spouse is not entitled to a decree on allegations arising out of suspicion created by surrounding circumstances, for such allegations would have to be proved. Mere suspicion is not enough to avail of a remedy under the section. The High Court of Madhya Pradesh distinguishing the judgment of the Supreme Court in V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat, and Chetandass v. Kamladevi, and the decision of Chanralekha Trivedi has held that when alleged serious allegation about the character of the spouse were not proved and he has also not cooperated in the reconciliation proceedings, no decree of divorce could be passed.

27. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat, reported in (1994) 1 SCC 337 345, after taking into consideration other judgments on the point in issue in para Nos. 13 to 18 held as under:-

"13. Cruelty contemplated by the sub-clause is both physical and mental. We are concerned herein with the latter. It is not possible to define "mental cruelty' exhaustively. As observed by Lord Reid in Gollins v. Gollins [1964 AC 644 : (1963) 2 All ER 966] :

"No one has ever attempted to give a comprehensive definition of cruelty and I do not intend to try to do so. Much must depend on the knowledge and intention of the respondent, on the nature of his (or her) conduct, and on the character and physical or mental weaknesses of the spouses, and probably no general statement is equally applicable in all cases except the requirement that the party seeking relief must show actual or probable injury to life, limb or health.

It is easy to see that the origin of this requirement is the decision in the well-known case of Russell v. Russell [(1895-99) All ER Rep 1 : (1897) AC 395] ."

To the same effect are the observations of Lord Pearce (at p. 695; All ER p. 992):

"It is impossible to give a comprehensive definition of cruelty, but when reprehensible conduct or departure from the normal standards of conjugal kindness causes injury to health or an apprehension of it, it is, I think, cruelty if a reasonable person, after taking due account of the temperament and all the other particular circumstances would consider that the conduct complained of is such that this spouse should not be called on to endure it.

I agree with Lord Merriman whose practice in cases of mental cruelty was always to make up his mind first whether there was injury or apprehended injury to health. In the light of that vital fact the court has then to decide whether the sum total of the reprehensible conduct was cruel. That depends on whether the cumulative conduct was sufficiently weighty to say that from a reasonable person's point of view, after a consideration of any excuse which this respondent might have in the circumstances, the conduct is such that this petitioner ought not to be called on to endure it.

The particular circumstances of the home, the temperaments and emotions of both the parties and their status and their way of life, their past relationship and almost every circumstance that attends the act or conduct complained of may all be relevant."

The reference to "injury to life, limb or health" in the above passages must be understood in the context of the requirements of the divorce law then obtaining in the United Kingdom.

14. The change of law brought about by the Hindu Marriage Laws (Amendment) Act, 1976 deserves notice. Prior to the said Amendment Act, cruelty was not a ground for claiming divorce under the Hindu Marriage Act. It was a ground only for claiming judicial separation under Section 10. By the said Amendment Act, cruelty was made a ground for divorce as well -- evidently in recognition of the changing mores of the society. While doing so, it is significant, the words "as to cause a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the petitioner that it will be harmful or injurious for the petitioner to live with the other party," qualifying the expression "cruelty" in Section 10(1)(b), were omitted by Parliament. It is, therefore, not necessary for the party claiming divorce to prove that the cruel treatment is of such a nature as to cause an apprehension -- a reasonable apprehension -- in his/her mind that it will be harmful or injurious for him/her to live with the other party. Now what does this change mean? Surely, the deletion of the said words could not have been without a purpose. The cruelty of the nature described in Section 10(1)(b) has been explained in this Court's decision in N.G. Dastane v. S. Dastane [(1975) 2 SCC 326 : AIR 1975 SC 1534] . Chandrachud, J. speaking for the Bench, held that where an allegation of cruelty is made, the enquiry has to be –

"... whether the conduct charged as cruelty is of such a character as to cause in the mind of the petitioner a reasonable apprehension that it will be harmful or injurious for him to live with the respondent".

The learned Judge held further: (SCC pp. 337-38, paras 30-31)

"It is not necessary, as under the English law, that the cruelty must be of such a character as to cause "danger' to life, limb or health or as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such a danger. Clearly, danger to life, limb or health or a reasonable apprehension of it is a higher requirement than a reasonable apprehension that it is harmful or injurious for one spouse to live with the other. ... But under Section 10(1)(b), harm or injury to health, reputation, the working-career or the like, would be an important consideration in determining whether the conduct of the respondent amounts to cruelty. Plainly, what we must determine is not whether the petitioner has proved the charge of cruelty having regard to the principles of English law, but whether the petitioner proves that the respondent has treated him with such cruelty as to cause a reasonable apprehension in his mind that it will be harmful or injurious for him to live with the respondent."

This requirement is no longer present in Section 13(1)(i-a).

15. If so, the question arises what kind of cruel treatment does clause (i-a) contemplate? In particular, what is the kind of mental cruelty that is required to be established? While answering these questions, it must be kept in mind that the cruelty mentioned in clause (i-a) is a ground now for divorce as well as for judicial separation under Section 10. Another circumstance to be kept in mind is that even where the marriage has irretrievably broken down, the Act, even after the 1976 (Amendment) Act, does not permit dissolution of marriage on that ground. This circumstance may have to be kept in mind while ascertaining the type of cruelty contemplated by Section 13(1)(i-a).

16. Mental cruelty in Section 13(1)(i-a) can broadly be defined as that conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with the other. In other words, mental cruelty must be of such a nature that the parties cannot reasonably be expected to live together. The situation must be such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with the other party. It is not necessary to prove that the mental cruelty is such as to cause injury to the health of the petitioner. While arriving at such conclusion, regard must be had to the social status, educational level of the parties, the society they move in, the possibility or otherwise of the parties ever living together in case they are already living apart and all other relevant facts and circumstances which it is neither possible nor desirable to set out exhaustively. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case. It is a matter to be determined in each case having regard to the facts and circumstances of that case. If it is a case of accusations and allegations, regard must also be had to the context in which they were made.

17. At this stage, we may refer to a few decisions of this Court rendered under Section 13(1)(i-a). In Shobha Rani v. Madhukar Reddi [(1988) 1 SCC 105 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 60] , Justice K. Jagannatha Shetty, speaking for the Division Bench, held: (SCC pp. 108-09, paras 4 and 5)

"Section 13(1)(i-a) uses the words "treated the petitioner with cruelty'. The word "cruelty' has not been defined. Indeed it could not have been defined. It has been used in relation to human conduct or human behaviour. It is the conduct in relation to or in respect of matrimonial duties and obligations. It is a course of conduct of one which is adversely affecting the other. The cruelty may be mental or physical, intentional or unintentional. If it is physical the court will have no problem to determine it. It is a question of fact and degree. If it is mental the problem presents difficulty. First, the enquiry must begin as to the nature of the cruel treatment. Second, the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse. Whether it caused reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to live with the other. Ultimately, it is a matter of inference to be drawn by taking into account the nature of the conduct and its effect on the complaining spouse. There may, however, be cases where the conduct complained of itself is bad enough and per se unlawful or illegal. Then the impact or the injurious effect on the other spouse need not be enquired into or considered. In such cases, the cruelty will be established if the conduct itself is proved or admitted.

It will be necessary to bear in mind that there has been marked change in the life around us. In matrimonial duties and responsibilities in particular, we find a sea change. They are of varying degrees from house to house or person to person. Therefore, when a spouse makes complaint about the treatment of cruelty by the partner in life or relations, the court should not search for standard in life. A set of facts stigmatised as cruelty in one case may not be so in another case. The cruelty alleged may largely depend upon the type of life the parties are accustomed to or their economic and social conditions. It may also depend upon their culture and human values to which they attach importance. We, the judges and lawyers, therefore, should not import our own notions of life. We may not go in parallel with them. There may be a generation gap between us and the parties. It would be better if we keep aside our customs and manners. It would be also better if we less depend upon precedents. Because as Lord Denning said in Sheldon v. Sheldon [(1966) 2 All ER 257, 259 : (1966) 2 WLR 993] "the categories of cruelty are not closed'. Each case may be different. We deal with the conduct of human beings who are not generally similar. Among the human beings there is no limit to the kind of conduct which may constitute cruelty. New type of cruelty may crop up in any case depending upon the human behaviour, capacity or incapability to tolerate the conduct complained of. Such is the wonderful (sic) realm of cruelty."

It was a case where the wife was a postgraduate in biological sciences while the husband was a doctor. The wife moved the court for divorce on the ground of cruelty. According to her, she had an amount of Rupees two lakhs in fixed deposit in a bank apart from a house property, that her mother-in-law used to make constant demands of money, and that the respondent-husband supported his mother therein. She did not report the same to her parents because she was afraid that if she informed her parents, something may be done to her. The respondent-husband himself admitted in a letter written to the wife that the demand for dowry by his parents was nothing wrong. On the above facts, it was held that the ground of cruelty was established and divorce was granted. The following further observations of Shetty, J. appear to us relevant: (SCC pp. 114-15, para 18)

"Section 13(1)(i-a) of the Hindu Marriage Act provides that the party has after solemnization of the marriage treated the petitioner with cruelty. What do these words mean? What should be the nature of cruelty? Should it be only intentional, wilful or deliberate? Is it necessary to prove the intention in matrimonial offence? We think not. We have earlier said that cruelty may be of any kind and any variety. It may be different in different cases. It is in relation to the conduct of parties to a marriage. That conduct which is complained of as cruelty by one spouse may not be so for the other spouse. There may be instances of cruelty by the unintentional but inexcusable conduct of any party. The cruel treatment may also result by the cultural conflict of the spouse. In such cases, even if the act of cruelty is established, the intention to commit suicide cannot be established. The aggrieved party may not get relief. We do not think that that was the intention with which the Parliament enacted Section 13(1)(i-a) of the Hindu Marriage Act. The context and the set up in which the word "cruelty' has been used in the section, seems to us, that intention is not a necessary element in cruelty. That word has to be understood in the ordinary sense of the term in matrimonial affairs. If the intention to harm, harass or hurt could be inferred by the nature of the conduct or brutal act complained of, cruelty could be easily established. But the absence of intention should not make any difference in the case, if by ordinary sense in human affairs, the act complained of could otherwise be regarded as cruelty. The relief to the party cannot be denied on the ground that there has been no deliberate or wilful ill-treatment."

18. In Chanderkala Trivedi v. Dr S.P. Trivedi [(1993) 4 SCC 232 : 1993 SCC (Cri) 1154 : (1993) 3 Scale 541] the husband sued for divorce on the ground of cruelty by wife. The wife filed a written statement wherein she attributed adultery to the husband. In reply thereto the husband put forward another allegation against the wife that she was having undesirable association with young boys. Considering the mutual allegations, R.M. Sahai, J. speaking for Division Bench, observed: (SCC p. 233, para 2)

"Whether the allegation of the husband that she was in the habit of associating with young boys and the findings recorded by the three courts are correct or not but what is certain is that once such allegations are made by the husband and wife as have been made in this case then it is obvious that the marriage of the two cannot in any circumstance be continued any further. The marriage appears to be practically dead as from cruelty alleged by the husband it has turned out to be at least intimacy of the husband with a lady doctor and unbecoming conduct of a Hindu wife. (also see: Chintala Syamala v. Chintala Venkata Satyanarayana Rao, (2008) 10 SCC 711 : (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 90 and Vijaykumar Ramchandra Bhate v. Neela Vijaykumar Bhate, (2003) 6 SCC 334 )."

28. Now, reverting to the facts of the present case, as per the pleadings of the appellant in this appeal, he has stated that his wife has got illicit relationship with (a) Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu and (b) Ram Shakal Singh/respondent No. 2/Jija of respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh.

29. So far as the assertion made by the appellant in respect to the illicit relationship of respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh with Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu and Ram Shakal Singh/respondent No. 2/Jija of respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh is concerned, as pleaded in the appeal, the foundation laid down in this regard is to the effect that Bhabi of respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh seen her with Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu, as pleaded in paragraph 6. The said fact has to be proved by the appellant, but the appellant has not proved or established the said fact.

30. At this stage, it is relevant to mention here that during the pendency of the litigation Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu died and the appellant did not produce his Bhabhi, who allegedly had seen respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh with Pappu @ Sunil Kumar, as pleaded in the appeal.

31. So far as the matter in respect to illicit relationship with Ram Shakal Singh is concerned, as pleaded in the appeal, the same is based on the letters of respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh. However, a perusal of the said letters which is on record, it is not clearly established that the contents of the said letter in any way establish that there was illicit relationship of respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh either with Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu or with Ram Shakal Singh rather the appellant was not able to prove the said fact by way of any evidence.

32. Further in the matter in question, Ram Shakal Singh, against whom the appellant allegedly averred to have illicit relationship with respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh, has produced his evidence by way of filing an affidavit on behalf of the defendants, but he was not cross examined by the appellant in order to establish the fact of illicit relationship of his wife with Ram Shakal Singh.

33. In view of the aforesaid reasons, we are of the view that the appellant-Shailendra Singh failed to establish his case in regard to allegation of adultery, on which ground he sought the divorce decree.

34. So far as the argument as made by learned counsel for the appellant that the contradictory statement was given by the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh, when examined as witness-D.W-1, as stated hereinabove, we would like to say that no doubt there is a contradiction in the statement given by respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh during her cross-examination, but on the said score the appellant cannot get any benefit because the appellant through his evidence failed to prove the facts stated in his plaint. In the instant case, from the material available on record the ground of adultery, which has been taken by the appellant against Sri Sunil Kumar Shahi @ Pappu and respondent No. 2-Ram Shakal Singh has not been proved by him on the basis of evidence which has been led by him either oral or documentary. Needless to say that it is a principle that "plaintiff can succeed on the strength of his own case and not on the correctness of the defence."

35. Now, the second point which is to be considered in the present case is whether the divorce decree can be granted on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage keeping in view the facts that the appellant and the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh are living separately since 1998/99 and serious allegations have been levelled against respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh.

36. From the material available on record, the position which emerges out is to the effect that, as per the case of the appellant, the respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh left her matrimonial house and started living with her parents since September, 1999.

37. However, in the statement, respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh/D.W.-1 stated as under:-

"मैं सन् 1999 में ससुराल से अखिरी बार मायके गई। तब से मैं मायके में हूं। मायके जाने व सन् 2000 के बीच मैंने कोई प्रार्थना पत्र दहेज के मुकदमे के पहले नहीं दिया। मेरी बहन आशा राजे सुलतानपुर में अध्यापिका है। मैं कहीं नहीं पढ़ाती हूं। यह कहना गलत है कि मेरा राम शकल सिंह से नाजायज सम्बन्ध था जिसकी वजह से नाजायज गर्भ था उसे मैने गिरा दिया। यह भी कहना गलत है कि मैंने अपनी चरित्र हीनता के क्षमा के सम्बन्ध में पति को कई बार पत्र लिखा बल्कि सास से झगड़ा होने की वजह से पति को पत्र लिखा था। "

38. In view of the aforesaid facts, the position which emerges out is to the effect that the appellant and respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh are living separately for the last 20 years and further between them, various criminal proceedings were taken place. So, now the question which is to be considered is to the effect that "can a suit of appellant be decreed for divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage due to long separation, as the same tantamounts to a mental/physical cruelty?"

39. The word 'cruelty' has not been defined in the Hindu Marriage Act. It has been used in Section 13 (1) (i-a) of the act in the context of human conduct or behaviour in relation to or in respect of matrimonial duties or obligations. It is a course of conduct of one which is adversely affecting the other. The cruelty may be mental or physical, intentional or unintentional. If it is physical it is a question of fact and degree. If it is mental, the eqnuiry must begin as to the nature of the cruel treatment and then as to the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse. The absence of intention should not make any difference in the case, if by ordinary sense in human affairs, the act complained of could otherwise be regarded as cruelty.

40. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Saroj Rani Vs. Sudarshan Kumar Chadha, (1984) 4 SCC 90, 98, where it was held that court's satisfaction about permanent breakdown of the marriage may serve as an additional justification for granting divorce. Where on facts the marriage has broken down and the parties can no longer live together the court should have no compunction in granting the divorce.

41. In the case of V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat, (1994) 1 SCC 337, the Apex Court held that mental cruelty means that conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with the other, must be of such a nature that the parties could not reasonably be expected to live together. Regard must be had to the social status, education level of the parties and the society they move.

42. In Romesh Chander Vs. Savitri, (1995) 2 SCC 7, Hon'ble Supreme Court again held that when marriage is dead, emotionally and practically, and there is no chance of its being retrieved, continuance of it would be cruelty within the meaning of Section 13 (1) (i-a) of the Act.

43. In the case of Naveen Kohli Vs. Neelu Kohli, (2006) 4 SCC 558, the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as hereunder :-

"32. Both the parties have levelled allegations against each other for not maintaining the sanctity of marriage and involvement with another person. According to the respondent, the appellant is separately living with another woman "Shiva Nagi". According to the appellant, the respondent was seen indulging in an indecent manner and was found in a compromising position with one Biswas Rout. According to the findings of the trial court both the parties failed to prove the allegations against each other. The High Court has of course reached the conclusion that the appellant was living with one "Shiva Nagi" for a considerable number of years. The fact of the matter is that both the parties have been living separately for more than 10 years. A number of cases including criminal complaints have been filed by the respondent against the appellant and every effort has been made to harass and torture him and even to put the appellant behind the bars by the respondent. The appellant has also filed cases against the respondent.

38. D. Tolstoy in his celebrated book The Law and Practice of Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, (6th Edn., p. 61) defined cruelty in these words:

"Cruelty which is a ground for dissolution of marriage may be defined as wilful and unjustifiable conduct of such a character as to cause danger to life, limb or health, bodily or mental, or as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such a danger."

"72. Once the parties have separated and the separation has continued for a sufficient length of time and one of them has presented a petition for divorce, it can well be presumed that the marriage has broken down. The court, no doubt, should seriously make an endeavour to reconcile the parties; yet, if it is found that the breakdown is irreparable, then divorce should not be withheld. The consequences of preservation in law of the unworkable marriage which has long ceased to be effective and bound to be a source of greater misery for the parties.

73. A law of divorce based mainly on fault is inadequate to deal with a broken marriage. Under the fault theory, guilt has to be proved; divorce courts are presented with concrete instances of human behaviour as they bring the institution of marriage into disrepute.

74. We have been principally impressed by the consideration that once the marriage has broken down beyond repair, it would be unrealistic for the law not to take notice of that fact, and it would be harmful to society and injurious to the interests of the parties. Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be surmised that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction, though supported by a legal tie. By refusing to sever that tie the law in such cases does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties.

75. Public interest demands not only that the married status should, as far as possible, as long as possible, and whenever possible, be maintained, but where a marriage has been wrecked beyond the hope of salvage, public interest lies in the recognition of that fact.

76. Since there is no acceptable way in which a spouse can be compelled to resume life with the consort, nothing is gained by trying to keep the parties tied forever to a marriage that in fact has ceased to exist.

77. Some jurists have also expressed their apprehension for introduction or irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for grant of the decree of divorce. In their opinion, such an amendment in the Act would put human ingenuity at a premium and throw wide open the doors to litigation, and will create more problems that are sought to be solved.

78. The other majority view, which is shared by most jurists, according to the Law Commission Report, is that human life has a short span and situations causing misery cannot be allowed to continue indefinitely. A halt has to be called at some stage. Law cannot turn a blind eye to such situations, nor can it decline to give adequate response to the necessities arising therefrom.

79. When we carefully evaluate the judgment of the High Court and scrutinise its findings in the background of the facts and circumstances of this case, then it becomes obvious that the approach adopted by the High Court in deciding this matter is far from satisfactory.

80. The High Court ought to have considered the repercussions, consequences, impact and ramifications of all the criminal and other proceedings initiated by the parties against each other in the proper perspective. For illustration, the High Court has mentioned that so far as the publication of the news items is concerned, the status of the husband in a registered company was only that of an employee and if any news item is published, in such a situation, it could not, by any stretch of imagination be taken to have lowered the prestige of the husband. In next para 69 of the judgment that in one of the news items what has been indicated was that in the company, Nikhil Rubber (P) Ltd., the appellant was only a director along with Mrs Neelu Kohli who held 94.5% shares of Rs.100 each in the Company. The news item further indicated that Naveen Kohli was acting against the spirit of the article of association of Nikhil Rubber (P) Ltd., had caused immense loss of business and goodwill. He had stealthily removed produce of the Company, besides diverted orders of foreign buyers to his proprietorship firm M/s Naveen Elastomers. He had opened the bank account with forged signatures of Mrs Neelu Kohli and fabricated the resolution of the board of directors of the Company. Statutory authority under the Companies Act had refused to register documents filed by Mr Naveen Kohli and had issued show-cause notice. All business associates were cautioned to avoid dealing with him alone. Neither the Company nor Mrs Neelu Kohli shall be liable for the acts of Mr Naveen Kohli. Despite the aforementioned finding that the news item was intended to caution business associates to avoid dealing with the appellant then to come to this finding in the next para that it will by no stretch of imagination result in mental cruelty is wholly untenable."

44. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Samar Ghosh vs. Jaya Ghose, (2007) 4 SCC 511, held as under :-

"101. No uniform standard can ever be laid down for guidance, yet we deem it appropriate to enumerate some instances of human behaviour which may be relevant in dealing with the cases of "mental cruelty". The instances indicated in the succeeding paragraphs are only illustrative and not exhaustive:

(i) On consideration of complete matrimonial life of the parties, acute mental pain, agony and suffering as would not make possible for the parties to live with each other could come within the broad parameters of mental cruelty.

(ii) On comprehensive appraisal of the entire matrimonial life of the parties, it becomes abundantly clear that situation is such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with other party.

(iii) Mere coldness or lack of affection cannot amount to cruelty, frequent rudeness of language, petulance of manner, indifference and neglect may reach such a degree that it makes the married life for the other spouse absolutely intolerable.

(iv) Mental cruelty is a state of mind. The feeling of deep anguish, disappointment, frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of other for a long time may lead to mental cruelty.

(v) A sustained course of abusive and humiliating treatment calculated to torture, discommode or render miserable life of the spouse.

(vi) Sustained unjustifiable conduct and behaviour of one spouse actually affecting physical and mental health of the other spouse. The treatment complained of and the resultant danger or apprehension must be very grave, substantial and weighty.

(vii) Sustained reprehensible conduct, studied neglect, indifference or total departure from the normal standard of conjugal kindness causing injury to mental health or deriving sadistic pleasure can also amount to mental cruelty.

(viii) The conduct must be much more than jealousy, selfishness, possessiveness, which causes unhappiness and dissatisfaction and emotional upset may not be a ground for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(ix) Mere trivial irritations, quarrels, normal wear and tear of the married life which happens in day-to-day life would not be adequate for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(x) The married life should be reviewed as a whole and a few isolated instances over a period of years will not amount to cruelty. The ill conduct must be persistent for a fairly lengthy period, where the relationship has deteriorated to an extent that because of the acts and behaviour of a spouse, the wronged party finds it extremely difficult to live with the other party any longer, may amount to mental cruelty.

(xi) If a husband submits himself for an operation of sterilisation without medical reasons and without the consent or knowledge of his wife and similarly, if the wife undergoes vasectomy or abortion without medical reason or without the consent or knowledge of her husband, such an act of the spouse may lead to mental cruelty.

(xii) Unilateral decision of refusal to have intercourse for considerable period without there being any physical incapacity or valid reason may amount to mental cruelty.

(xiii) Unilateral decision of either husband or wife after marriage not to have child from the marriage may amount to cruelty.

(xiv) Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be concluded that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction though supported by a legal tie. By refusing to sever that tie, the law in such cases, does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties. In such like situations, it may lead to mental cruelty.

102. When we take into consideration aforementioned factors along with an important circumstance that the parties are admittedly living separately for more than sixteen-and-a-half years (since 27-8-1990) the irresistible conclusion would be that matrimonial bond has been ruptured beyond repair because of the mental cruelty caused by the respondent."

45. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Rishikesh Sharma vs. Saroj Sharma, (2007) 2 SCC 263, held as under :-

"4. We heard Mr A.K. Chitale, learned Senior Counsel and Mr S.S. Dahiya, learned counsel for the respondent and perused the judgment passed by both the trial court and also of the High Court. It is not in dispute that the respondent is living separately from the year 1981. Though the finding has been rendered by the High Court that the wife last resided with her husband up to 25-3-1989, the said finding according to the learned counsel for the appellant is not correct. In view of the several litigations between the parties it is not possible for her to prosecute criminal case against the husband and at the same time continue to reside with her husband. In the instant case the marriage is irretrievably broken down with no possibility of the parties living together again. Both the parties have crossed 49 years and living separately and working independently since 1981. There being a history of litigation with the respondent wife repeatedly filing criminal cases against the appellant which could not be substantiated as found by the courts. This apart, only child born in the wedlock in 1975 has already been given in marriage. Under such circumstances the High Court was not justified in refusing to exercise its jurisdiction in favour of the appellant. This apart, the wife also has made certain allegations against her husband, that the husband has already remarried and is living with another lady as stated by her in the written statement. The High Court also has not considered the allegations made by the respondent which have been repeatedly made and repeatedly found baseless by the courts.

5. In our opinion it will not be possible for the parties to live together and therefore there is no purpose in compelling both the parties to live together. Therefore, the best course in our opinion is to dissolve the marriage by passing a decree of divorce so that the parties who are litigating since 1981 and have lost valuable part of life can live peacefully for remaining part of their life.

6. During the last hearing both the husband and wife were present in the Court. The husband was ready and willing to pay a lump sum amount by way of permanent alimony to the wife. The wife was not willing to accept the lump sum amount but however expressed her willingness to live with her husband. We are of the opinion that her desire to live with her husband at this stage and at this distance of time is not genuine. Therefore, we are not accepting this suggestion made by the wife and reject the same."

46. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Geeta Jagdish Mangtani vs. Jagdish Mangtani, (2008) 5 SCC 177, held as under :-

"4. The husband has made allegation that after the birth of the son he had gone to the house of the wife at Adipur, Gujarat where he was not allowed to meet her nor was he allowed to see his son. Likewise, the wife has made allegations that her mother-in-law had made dowry-related demands from her. These are mere allegations and counter-allegations on which reliance cannot be placed. Nothing of this kind was stated in the notices or replies thereto. The most important fact which emerges is that from 2-6-1993, the parties have been staying separately and there is total lack of any effort on their part to stay together. Since the wife left the matrimonial home on 2-6-1993 and has, admittedly, not returned to the said home, the absence of any desire on her part to honour the matrimonial obligation is clear. In this connection the observation of the High Court is worth reproducing:

"... Both the husband and wife have renounced the relationship as husband and wife since June 1993 and from the record of the case also presently the questions which I have asked in the chamber, I am satisfied that both the husband and wife had no intention to live together as husband and wife and decided to break off from the relationship of marriage or withdraw that companionship of husband and wife. Desertion means rejection by the party of all the obligations of marriage and permanent forsaking or abandonment of one spouse by the other without any reasonable cause and without the consent of the other.

14.7. I have considered the entire aspect and there is no useful purpose to have kept the parties as husband and wife particularly from 1993 when both the husband and wife have not stayed together. Though I have made efforts to see that the wife can go to her matrimonial home at Mumbai or the husband can stay at Gandhidham but unfortunately this Court's effort to reunite them as husband and wife failed. This Court has therefore no alternative but to pass the order for divorce to see that both people can be free to have their own houses in this behalf because to keep both the husband and wife together when one stays at Mumbai and another at Gandhidham, without the intention to stay together, would serve no purpose. Therefore, the marriage is completely broken down and no useful purpose would be served by dismissing the second appeal."

47. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Satish Sitole vs. Smt. Ganga, (2008) 7 SCC 734, held as under :-

"11. The prayer made on behalf of the appellant and endorsed by the respondent is neither novel nor new. At the very beginning of this judgment we had referred to the decision of this Court in Romesh Chander [(1995) 2 SCC 7], where it was held that when a marriage is dead emotionally and practically and there is no chance of its being retrieved, the continuance of such a marriage would amount to cruelty. Accordingly, in exercise of powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India the marriage between the appellant and the respondent was directed to stand dissolved, subject to the condition that the appellant would transfer his house in the name of his wife.

13. Having dispassionately considered the materials before us and the fact that out of 16 years of marriage the appellant and the respondent had been living separately for 14 years, we* are also convinced that any further attempt at reconciliation will be futile and it would be in the interest of both the parties to sever the matrimonial ties since the marriage has broken down irretrievably."

48. This Court in the case of Mohit Tandon vs. Preeti Tandon, 2010 (2) All CJ 1108, held as under :-

"The essence of marriage is a sharing of common life, a sharing of all the happiness that life has to offer and all the misery that has to be faced in life. The ground of act of cruelty are to be distinguished from ordinary wear and tear of family. Every matrimonial conduct, which may cause annoyance to the other, may not amount to cruelty. Mere trivial irritations, quarrels between spouses, which happen in day-to-day married life, may also not amount to cruelty. Cruelty in matrimonial life may be of unfounded variety, which can be subtle or brutal. It may be words, gestures or by mere silence, violent or non-violent. The ideal couple or a mere ideal one will probably have no occasion to go to Matrimonial Court.

It may be added that cruelty may be inferred from the facts and matrimonial relations of the parties and interaction in their daily life disclosed by the evidence and inference on the said point can only be drawn after all the facts have been taken into consideration. Where there is proof of deliberate course of conduct on the part of one, intended to hurt and humiliate the other spouse, and such a conduct is persisted, cruelty can easily be inferred. Neither actual nor presumed intention to hurt the other spouse, is a necessary element in cruelty.

Taking into consideration the facts in its entirety and the failure of settlement between them either before the lower court and also by us, we are of the view that the marriage has seized to exist in substance and in reality, living apart is a symbol indicating the negation of such sharing. It is indicative of the disruption of the essence of marriage. From the circumstances, we are fully convinced that the marriage between the parties is irretrievably broken down because of incompatibility of temperament. In fact, there has been total disappearance of emotional substratum in the marriage. The matrimonial bond between the parties has been wrecked beyond the hope of salvage and cannot be repaired. The Apex Court in number of cases, namely, Harpit Singh Anand Versus State of West Bengal [2004 (10) SCC 505], Kanchan Devi Vs. Promod Kkumar Mittal [(1996) 8 SCC 90] and Ashok Hurra Vs. Rupa Bipin Zaveri [(1997) 4 SCC 226], in order to do complete justice, granted decree of divorce and directed for closer of all sort of proceedings between the parties.

In the instant case, the record is clear that the parties are living separately and are are not discharging their matrimonial obligations continuously for the last over 15 years and there is no possibility of any reconciliation. Thus, the conclusion is inevitable that the marriage has broken down completely and irretrievably and as such there is no point in compelling them to live together and to make their life more miserable.

In Sandhya Rani v. Kalyan Ram Narayan 1994(suppl) 2 SCC 588 the Apex Court while reiterating the stand that there is no justification for continuing with the marriage which has broken down irretrievably took the view that since the parties are living separately for last more than three years there is no doubt in taking the stand that the marriage between the parties has broken down irretrievably and, therefore, the Court has no option but to grant decree of divorce.

In the case of Mrs. Chandrakala Memon and another vs. Capt. Vipin Memon and another JT 1993(1) SC 229 the Apex Court held that when the parties were living separately for many years and there appear to be no scope of settlement between them with no chance of their coming together, the decree of divorce was justified. Similar view was expressed by the Supreme Court in the case of Smt. Kanchan Devi v. Pramod Kumar Mittal and another; AIR 1996 SC 192. In the said case, the parties were living separately for more than 12 years and it appeared to the Court that there was no possibility of any reconciliation and as such directed for the dissolution of marriage by a decree of divorce.

It is indeed the obligation of the court and all concerned that the marriage status should, as far as possible, as long as possible and whenever possible, be maintained. But when the marriage is totally dead, in that event, nothing is gained by trying to keep the parties tied forever to a marriage which infact has ceased to exist.

In view of the aforesaid decisions, to end the miseries of the parties and to allow them to henceforth live a happy and peaceful life by brining to an end the litigation appear to be a more sound, reasonable and practical decision. The parties are living separately for about 15 years and there is no possibility of their uniting. Thus, for all practical purposes the marriage is completely dead. IN view of the above and the allegations/counter allegations levelled against each other, the element of cruelty on the part of both of them is also inherent. The Apex Court in the case of Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli ; AIR 2006 SC 1675 suggested that the break down of marriage completely be added as one of the grounds for obtaining divorce. In Satish Sithole vs. Ganga; AIR 2008 SC 3093 the Supreme Court ruled and laid down that the living of parties to a marriage separately for a long time, making acrimonious allegations against each other amounts to cruelty and continuance of such marriage is a further act of cruelty. Therefore, following the principle of 'live and let live' and the precedent laid down by the Apex Court, it is desirable and expedient in the interest of justice to set-aside the impugned orders passed by the Family Court and to allow the appeals."

49. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Sukhendu Das vs. Rita Mukherjee, 2017 (9) SCC 432, held as under :-

"7. The respondent, who did not appear before the trial court after filing of written statement, did not respond to the request made by the High Court for personal appearance. In spite of service of notice, the respondent did not show any interest to appear in this Court also. This conduct of the respondent by itself would indicate that she is not interested in living with the appellant. Refusal to participate in proceeding for divorce and forcing the appellant to stay in a dead marriage would itself constitute mental cruelty (Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh [Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh, (2007) 4 SCC 511, p. 547, para 101(xiv)]). The High Court observed that no attempt was made by either of the parties to be posted at the same place. Without entering into the disputed facts of the case, we are of the opinion that there is no likelihood of the appellant and the respondent living together and for all practical purposes there is an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage."

8. This Court, in a series of judgments, has exercised its inherent powers under Article 142 of the Constitution for dissolution of a marriage where the Court finds that the marriage is totally unworkable, emotionally dead, beyond salvage and has broken down irretrievably, even if the facts of the case do not provide a ground in law on which the divorce could be granted (Manish Goel v. Rohini Goel [Manish Goel v. Rohini Goel, (2010) 4 SCC 393, p. 398, para 11 : (2010) 2 SCC (Civ) 162]). Admittedly, the appellant and the respondent have been living separately for more than 17 years and it will not be possible for the parties to live together and there is no purpose in compelling the parties to live together in matrimony (Rishikesh Sharma v. Saroj Sharma [Rishikesh Sharma v. Saroj Sharma, (2007) 2 SCC 263, pp. 264-65, paras 4 and 5]). The daughter of the appellant and the respondent is aged about 24 years and her custody is not in issue before us. In the peculiar facts of this case and in order to do complete justice between the parties, we allow the appeal in exercise of our power under Article 142 of the Constitution."

50. A Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal No.31 of 2007 "Smt. Dr. Sarita vs. Dr. Vikas Kanaujia" decided on 22.08.2019 held as under :-

"Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Parveen Mehta Vs. Inderjit Mehta, 2002 (5) SCC 706 held as under :

"18. Quoting with approval the following passage from the judgment in V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat [(1994) 1 SCC 337] this Court observed therein:

"16. Mental cruelty in Section 13(1)(i-a) can broadly be defined as that conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with the other. In other words, mental cruelty must be of such a nature that the parties cannot reasonably be expected to live together. The situation must be such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with the other party. It is not necessary to prove that the mental cruelty is such as to cause injury to the health of the petitioner. While arriving at such conclusion, regard must be had to the social status, educational level of the parties, the society they move in, the possibility or otherwise of the parties ever living together in case they are already living apart and all other relevant facts and circumstances which it is neither possible nor desirable to set out exhaustively. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case. It is a matter to be determined in each case having regard to the facts and circumstances of that case. If it is a case of accusations and allegations, regard must also be had to the context in which they were made."

19. Clause (i-a) of sub-section (1) of Section 13 of the Act is comprehensive enough to include cases of physical as also mental cruelty. It was formerly thought that actual physical harm or reasonable apprehension of it was the prime ingredient of this matrimonial offence. That doctrine is now repudiated and the modern view has been that mental cruelty can cause even more grievous injury and create in the mind of the injured spouse reasonable apprehension that it will be harmful or unsafe to live with the other party. The principle that cruelty may be inferred from the whole facts and matrimonial relations of the parties and interaction in their daily life disclosed by the evidence is of greater cogency in cases falling under the head of mental cruelty. Thus mental cruelty has to be established from the facts (Mulla's Hindu Law, 17th Edn., Vol. II, p. 91).

20. In the case in hand the foundation of the case of "cruelty" as a matrimonial offence is based on the allegations made by the husband that right from day one after marriage the wife was not prepared to cooperate with him in having sexual intercourse on account of which the marriage could not be consummated. When the husband offered to have the wife treated medically, she refused. As the condition of her health deteriorated she became irritating and unreasonable in her behaviour towards the husband. She misbehaved with his friends and relations. She even abused him, scolded him and caught hold of his shirt collar in the presence of elderly persons like Shri S.K. Jain. This Court in the case ofDr N.G. Dastanev.S. Dastane[(1975) 2 SCC 326 : AIR 1975 SC 1534] observed:

"Sex plays an important role in marital life and cannot be separated from other factors which lend to matrimony a sense of fruition and fulfilment."

21. Cruelty for the purpose of Section 13(1)(i-a) is to be taken as a behaviour by one spouse towards the other, which causes reasonable apprehension in the mind of the latter that it is not safe for him or her to continue the matrimonial relationship with the other. Mental cruelty is a state of mind and feeling with one of the spouses due to the behaviour or behavioural pattern by the other. Unlike the case of physical cruelty, mental cruelty is difficult to establish by direct evidence. It is necessarily a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of the case. A feeling of anguish, disappointment and frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of the other can only be appreciated on assessing the attending facts and circumstances in which the two partners of matrimonial life have been living. The inference has to be drawn from the attending facts and circumstances taken cumulatively. In case of mental cruelty it will not be a correct approach to take an instance of misbehaviour in isolation and then pose the question whether such behaviour is sufficient by itself to cause mental cruelty. The approach should be to take the cumulative effect of the facts and circumstances emerging from the evidence on record and then draw a fair inference whether the petitioner in the divorce petition has been subjected to mental cruelty due to conduct of the other."

''क्रूरता कभी कभी ऐसे कृत्यो स` भी उत्पन्न होती है जिनका कोई प्रत्यक्ष और मूर्ति रूप नही होता है और न ही साक्ष्य से स्थापित किया जा सकता है। ल`किन इनकी अनुभूति अवश्य की जा सकती है ं इस श्रेणी का तथ्य इस अभिकथन मे शामिल है कि विपक्षी ने शादी के तत्काल बाद सुहागरात और उसके बाद प्रार्थी के साथ दाम्पत्य जीवन के आनन्द की अनुभूति और अनुभव से प्रार्थी को वंचित रखा और विपक्षी ने कोई सहभागिता नही की।''

"Cruelty sometimes arises from the acts which are not in tangible and physical state nor can they be established with evidence. But they can certainly be realised. This statement includes such a category of fact that the opposite party deprived the applicant of marital bliss, and did not ensure participation, on the wedding night immediately after the marriage and also on later occasion."

36. In the opinion of Court, recital contained in paragraph 3 at page 73 is not a finding but a recital regarding explanation offered by Court to the pleading raised by plaintiff-respondent. Even otherwise also when paragraphs 4, 5 and 10 of plaint relied upon by learned Senior Counsel are examined, the same appear to be contradictory to paragraphs 3 and 6 of plaint itself. In other words there is no categorical pleading regarding denial of physical pleasure to plaintiff-appellant after marriage on account of non establishment of conjugal relationship between parties. Even in cross-examination of D.W.1, i.e. Dr. Sarita, we find that no specific question was put to her regarding aforesaid. Reliance placed upon written statement of defendant-appellant is also of no help as averments/allegations made in paragraphs 4, 5 and 10 of plaint were not admitted by defendant-appellant. Furthermore, suit filed by plaintiff-respondent has not been decreed on the ground of denial of physical pleasure. 33 Therefore, once Court below has not taken this as a basis for passing decree of divorce, the impugned judgement and decree cannot be supported on this ground as judgement contains reasons in support of decree.

37. Mr. Ravi Kiran Jain, learned Senior Counsel has alternatively submitted that marriage of parties has broken down irretrievably as parties are living separately since 2.7.2004, therefore, decree of divorce granted by Court below should not be reversed.

38. The argument raised by learned Senior Counsel appears to be attractive at the first flush. However, upon deeper scrutiny, the same is devoid of substance.

39. The issue relating to irretrievable break down of marriage has been considered by a Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal No. 525 of 2006 (Smt. Kavita Sharma Vs. Neeraj Sharma) decided on 7.2.2018, wherein it has been observed in paragraph 28:-

"28. The above findings recorded by Court below could not be shown perverse or contrary to record. Having considered the fact that parties are living separately from decades, we are also of the view that marriage between two is irretrievable and has broken down completely. Irretrievable breakdown of marriage is not a ground for divorce under Act, 1955. But, where marriage is beyond repair on account of bitterness created by the acts of the husband or the wife or of both, Courts have always taken irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a very weighty circumstance amongst others necessitating severance of marital tie. A marriage which is dead for all purposes cannot be revived by the Court's verdict, if the parties are not willing. This is because marriage involves human sentiments and emotions and if they are dried-up there is hardly any chance of their springing back to life on account of artificial reunion created by the Court's decree. On the ground of irretrievable marriage, Courts have allowed decree of divorce and reference may be made to Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli (2006) 4 SCC 558 and Rishikesh Sharma Vs. Saroj Sharma, 2006(12) SCALE 282. It is also noteworthy that in Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli (supra) Court made recommendation to Union of India that Act, 1955 be amended to incorporate irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for grant of divorce."

40. Similarly this Court in First Appeal No. 792 of 2008 (Ashwani Kumar Kohli Vs. Smt. Anita) decided on 34 17.11.2016 has also considered this question and observed in paragraphs 7, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 13 as under:-

"7. Therefore, point for adjudication in this appeal is "whether a decree of reversal can be passed by granting divorce to the appellant on the ground which was not subject matter of adjudication before the Court below and is being raised for the first time in appeal".

8. Under the provisions of Act, 1955 there is no ground like any "irretrievable breakdown of marriage", justifying divorce. It is a doctrine laid down by judicial precedents, in particular, Supreme Court in exercise of powers under Article 142 of the Constitution has granted decree of divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage.

10. This aspect has been considered by this Court in Ram Babu Babeley Vs. Smt. Sandhya AIR 2006 (All) 12 = 2006 AWC 183 and it has laid down certain inferences from various authorities of Supreme Court, which read as under:-

"(i) The irretrievable break down of marriage is not a ground for divorce by itself. But while scrutinizing the evidence on record to determine whether the grounds on which divorce is sought are made out, this circumstance can be taken into consideration as laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Savitri Pandey v. prem Chand Pandey, (2002) 2 SCC 73 and V. Bhagat versus D. Bhagat, AIR 1994 SC 710.

(ii) No divorce can be granted on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage if the party seeking divorce on this ground is himself or herself at fault for the above break down as laid down in the case of Chetan Dass Versus Kamla Devi, AIR 2001 SC 1709, Savitri Pandey v. prem Chand Pandey, (2002) 2 SCC 73 and Shyam Sunder Kohli v. Sushma Kohli, (2004) 7 SCC 747.

(iii) The decree of divorce on the ground that the marriage had been irretrievably broken down can be granted in those cases where both the parties have levelled such allegations against each other that the marriage appears to be practically dead and the parties can not live together as laid down in Chandra Kala Trivedi versus Dr. SP Trivedi, (1993) 4 SCC 232.

(iv) The decree of divorce on the ground that the marriage had been irretrievably broken down can be granted in those cases also where the conduct or averments of one 35 party have been so much painful for the other party (who is not at fault) that he cannot be expected to live with the offending party as laid down in the cases of V. Bhagat versus D. Bhagat, (supra), Ramesh Chander versus Savitri, (1995) 2 SCC 7, Ashok Hurra versus Rupa Bipin Zaveri, 1997(3) AWC 1843 (SC), 1997(3) A.W.C. 1843(SC) and A. Jayachandra versus Aneel Kaur, (2005) 2 SCC 22.

(v) The power to grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage should be exercised with much care and caution in exceptional circumstances only in the interest of both the parties, as observed by Hon'ble Apex Court at paragraph No. 21 of the judgment in the case of V. Bhagat and Mrs. D. Bhagat, AIR (supra) and at para 12 in the case of Shyam Sunder Kohli versus Sushma Kohli, (supra)."

11. The above authorities have been followed by this Court in "Pradeep Kumar Vs. Smt. Vijay Lakshmi' in 2015 (4) ALJ 667 wherein one of us (Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal,J.) was a member of the Bench.

12. In Vishnu Dutt Sharma Vs. Manju Sharma, (2009) 6 SCC 379, it was held that under Section 13 of Act 1955 there is no ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage for granting decree of divorce. Court said that it cannot add such a ground to Section 13, as that would amount to amendment of Act, which is the function of legislature. It also referred to some judgments of Supreme Court in which dissolution of marriage was allowed on the ground of irretrievable breakdown but held that those judgments do not lay down any precedent. Supreme Court very categorically observed as under:-

"If we grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown, then we shall by judicial verdict be adding a clause to Section 13 of the Act to the effect that irretrievable breakdown of marriage is also a ground for divorce. In our opinion, this can only be done by the legislature and not by the Court. It is for the Parliament to enact or amend the law and not for the Court. Hence, we do not find force in the submission of learned counsel for the appellant."

13. The above view has been followed in Darshan Gupta Vs. Radhika Gupta (2013) 9 SCC 1. Similar view was expressed in "Gurubux Singh Vs. Harminder Kaur' (2010) 14 SCC 301. This Court also has followed the above view in Shailesh Kumari Vs. Amod Kumar Sachan 2016 (115) ALR 689."

51. The Division Bench of this Court in the case of Girish Chandra Srivastava v. Reeta Srivastava reported in 2019 SCC OnLine All 3554 observed as under:-

"17. Recently a Division Bench of this Court in Smt. Sarita Devi v. Sri. Ashok Kumar Singh reported in 2018 (3) AWC 2328 has considered the question of cruelty in detail in paragraphs 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 27 and 29 which reads as under:-- "16. In Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh, (2007) 4 SCC 511 Court considered the concept of cruelty and referring to Oxford Dictionary defines "cruelty' as "the quality of being cruel; disposition of inflicting suffering; delight in or indifference to another's pain; mercilessness; hard-heartedness'.

18. In Black's Law Dictionary, 8th Edition, 2004, term "mental cruelty" has been defined as, "a ground for divorce, one spouse's course of conduct (not involving actual violence) that creates such anguish that it endangers the life, physical health, or mental health of the other spouse."*

19. The concept of cruelty has been summarized in Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol.13, 4th Edition Para 1269, as under:*

"The general rule in all cases of cruelty is that the entire matrimonial relationship must be considered, and that rule is of special value when the cruelty consists not of violent acts but of injurious reproaches, complaints, accusations or taunts. In cases where no violence is averred, it is undesirable to consider judicial pronouncements with a view to creating certain categories of acts or conduct as having or lacking the nature or quality which renders them capable or incapable in all circumstances of amounting to cruelty; for it is the effect of the conduct rather than its nature which is of paramount importance in assessing a complaint of cruelty. Whether one spouse has been guilty of cruelty to the other is essentially a question of fact and previously decided cases have little, if any, value. The court should bear in mind the physical and mental condition of the parties as well as their social status, and should consider the impact of the personality and conduct of one spouse on the mind of the other, weighing all incidents and quarrels between the spouses from that point of view; further, the conduct alleged must be examined in the light of the complainant's capacity for endurance and the extent to which that capacity is known to the other spouse. Malevolent intention is not essential to cruelty but it is an important element where it exits."

20. In 24 American Jurisprudence 2d, the term "mental cruelty" has been defined as under:

"Mental Cruelty as a course of unprovoked conduct toward one's spouse which causes embarrassment, humiliation, and anguish so as to render the spouse's life miserable and unendurable. The plaintiff must show a course of conduct on the part of the defendant which so endangers the physical or mental health of the plaintiff as to render continued cohabitation unsafe or improper, although the plaintiff need not establish actual instances of physical abuse."

21. One of the earliest decision considering "mental cruelty" we find is, N.G. Dastane v. S. Dastane, (1975) 2 SCC 326, wherein Court has said:

"The enquiry therefore has to be whether the conduct charges as cruelty is of such a character as to cause in the mind of the petitioner a reasonable apprehension that it will be harmful or injurious for him to live with the respondent."

22. In Sirajmohmedkhan Janmohamadkhan v. Haizunnisa Yasinkhan, (1981) 4 SCC 250 Court said that a concept of legal cruelty changes according to the changes and advancement of social concept and standards of living. With the advancement of our social conceptions, this feature has obtained legislative recognition, that a second marriage is a sufficient ground for separate residence and maintenance. Moreover, to establish legal cruelty, it is not necessary that physical violence should be used. Continuous ill-treatment, cessation of marital intercourse, studied neglect, indifference on the part of the husband, and an assertion on the part of the husband that the wife is unchaste are all factors which lead to mental or legal cruelty.

23. In Shobha Rani v. Madhukar Reddi, (1988) 1 SCC 105, Court observed that word "cruelty' has not been defined in Act, 1955 but legislature, making it a ground for divorce under Section 13(1)(i)(a) of Act, 1955, has made it clear that conduct of party in treatment of other if amounts to cruelty actual, physical or mental or legal is a just reason for grant of divorce. Cruelty may be mental or physical, intentional or unintentional. If it is physical, it is a question of fact about degree. If it is mental, the enquiry must begin as to the nature of cruel treatment and then as to the impact of such treatment on the mind of the spouse.

Whether it caused reasonable apprehension that it would be harmful or injurious to live with the other, ultimately, is a matter of inference to be drawn by taking into account the nature of conduct and its effect on the complaining spouse. There may, however, be cases where conduct complained of itself is bad enough and per se unlawful or illegal. Then the impact or injurious effect on the other spouse need not be enquired into or considered. In such cases, cruelty will be established if conduct itself is proved or admitted. The absence of intention should not make any difference in the case, if by ordinary sense in human affairs, the act complained of could otherwise be regarded as cruelty.

24. In V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat (Mrs.), (1994) 1 SCC 337 considering the concept of "mental cruelty" in the context of Section 13(1)(i)(a) of Act, 1984, Court said that it can be defined as conduct which inflicts upon the other party such mental pain and suffering as would make it not possible for that party to live with other. In other words, mental cruelty must be of such a nature that the parties cannot reasonably be expected to live together. The situation must be such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with other party. It is not necessary to prove that mental cruelty is such as to cause injury to the health of other party. While arriving at such conclusion, regard must be had to the social status, educational level of parties, the society they move in, the possibility or otherwise of the parties ever living together in case they are already living apart and all other relevant facts and circumstances which it is neither possible nor desirable to set out exhaustively. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in another case. It is thus has to be determined in each case having regard to the facts and circumstances of each case.

25. In Chetan Dass v. Kamla Devi, (2001) 4 SCC 250, Court observed that matrimonial matters relates to delicate human and emotional relationship. It demands mutual trust, regard, respect, love and affection with sufficient play for reasonable adjustments with spouse. The relationship has to conform to the social norms as well. There is no scope of applying the concept of "irretrievably broken marriage" as a straitjacket formula for grant of relief of divorce but it has to be considered in the backdrop of facts and circumstances of the case concerned.

26. In Savitri Pandey v. Prem Chandra Panadey, (2002) 2 SCC 73, Court held that mental cruelty is the conduct of other spouse which causes mental suffering or fear to matrimonial life of other. Cruelty postulates a treatment of party to marriage with such conduct as to cause a reasonable apprehension in his or her mind that it would be harmful or injurious to live with other party. Cruelty has to be distinguished from ordinary wear and tear of family life.

27. In Vinita Saxena v. Pankaj Pandit, (2006) 3 SCC 778 Court held that complaints and reproaches, sometimes of ordinary nature, may not be termed as ''cruelty' but their continuance or persistence over a period of time may do so which would depends on the facts of each case and have to be considered carefully by the Court concerned.

28. In Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh (supra) Court said that though no uniform standard can be laid down but there are some instances which may constitute mental cruelty and the same are illustrated as under:

"(i) On consideration of complete matrimonial life of the parties, acute mental pain, agony and suffering as would not make possible for the parties to live with each other could come within the broad parameters of mental cruelty.

(ii) On comprehensive appraisal of the entire matrimonial life of the parties, it becomes abundantly clear that situation is such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with other party.

(iii) Mere coldness or lack of affection cannot amount to cruelty, frequent rudeness of language, petulance of manner, indifference and neglect may reach such a degree that it makes the married life for the other spouse absolutely intolerable.

(iv) Mental cruelty is a state of mind. The feeling of deep anguish, disappointment, frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of other for a long time may lead to mental cruelty.

(v) A sustained course of abusive and humiliating treatment calculated to torture, discommode or render miserable life of the spouse.

(vi) Sustained unjustifiable conduct and behavior of one spouse actually affecting physical and mental health of the other spouse. The treatment complained of and the resultant danger or apprehension must be very grave, substantial and weighty.

(vii) Sustained reprehensible conduct, studied neglect, indifference or total departure from the normal standard of conjugal kindness causing injury to mental health or deriving sadistic pleasure can also amount to mental cruelty.

(viii) The conduct must be much more than jealousy, selfishness, possessiveness, which causes unhappiness and dissatisfaction and emotional upset may not be a ground for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(ix) Mere trivial irritations, quarrels, normal wear and tear of the married life which happens in day to day life would not be adequate for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(x) The married life should be reviewed as a whole and a few isolated instances over a period of years will not amount to cruelty. The ill-conduct must be persistent for a fairly lengthy period, where the relationship has deteriorated to an extent that because of the acts and behavior of a spouse, the wronged party finds it extremely difficult to live with the other party any longer, may amount to mental cruelty

(xi) If a husband submits himself for an operation of sterilization without medical reasons and without the consent or knowledge of his wife and similarly if the wife undergoes vasectomy or abortion without medical reason or without the consent or knowledge of her husband, such an act of the spouse may lead to mental cruelty.

(xii) Unilateral decision of refusal to have intercourse for considerable period without there being any physical incapacity or valid reason may amount to mental cruelty.

(xiii) Unilateral decision of either husband or wife after marriage not to have child from the marriage may amount to cruelty.

(xiv) Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be concluded that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction though supported by a legal tie. By refusing to sever that tie, the law in such cases, does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties. In such like situations, it may lead to mental cruelty."

29. The aforesaid Division Bench judgement clearly explains different shades of "cruelty' which by itself are sufficient enough to dissolve the marriage on the ground of cruelty. The aforesaid judgement also prescribes the mode as to how "cruelty' has to be proved and in what decree it has to be proved so as to grant of decree of divorce on the ground of "cruelty'."

52. In the case of Ravinder Kaur v. Manjeet Singh, (2019) 8 SCC 308 : 2019 SCC OnLine SC 1069 313, the Hon'ble Apex Court observed as under:-

"12. In the above background, keeping in view the nature of allegations made and the evidence tendered in that regard, we find that the consideration made by the trial court with reference to the reliability of the evidence is more appropriate. As already noticed the High Court, while taking note of the nature of allegations made has proceeded on the basis that there is irretrievable breakdown of the marriage. Needless to mention that irretrievable breakdown of marriage by itself is not a ground provided under the statute for seeking dissolution of marriage. To this effect it would be apposite to refer to the decision rendered by this Court to that effect in Vishnu Dutt Sharma v. Manju Sharma [Vishnu Dutt Sharma v. Manju Sharma, (2009) 6 SCC 379 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 897] relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellant. No doubt on taking note of the entire material and evidence available on record, in appropriate cases the courts may have to bring to an end, the marriage so as not to prolong the agony of the parties. However, in the present facts, at this point in time even that situation does not arise in view of the changed scenario on the death of the respondent herein."

53. Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of R. Srinivas Kaumar vs. R. Shametha, (2019) 9 SCC 409, held as under :-

"5.1. At the outset, it is required to be noted and does not seem to be in dispute that since last 22 years both the appellant husband and the respondent wife are residing separately. It also appears that all efforts to continue the marriage have failed and there is no possibility of reunion because of the strained relations between the parties. Thus, it appears that marriage between the appellant husband and the respondent wife has irretrievably broken down. In Hitesh Bhatnagar [Hitesh Bhatnagar v. Deepa Bhatnagar, (2011) 5 SCC 234 : (2011) 2 SCC (Civ) 701] , it is noted by this Court that courts can dissolve a marriage as irretrievably broken down only when it is impossible to save the marriage and all efforts are made in that regard and when the Court is convinced beyond any doubt that there is actually no chance of the marriage surviving and it is broken beyond repair.

5.2. In Naveen Kohli [Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli, (2006) 4 SCC 558] , a three-Judge Bench of this Court has observed as under: (SCC pp. 579-80 & 582, paras 74, 85 & 86)

"74. ... once the marriage has broken down beyond repair, it would be unrealistic for the law not to take notice of that fact, and it would be harmful to society and injurious to the interests of the parties. Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be surmised that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction, though supported by a legal tie. By refusing to sever that tie the law in such cases does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties.

85. Undoubtedly, it is the obligation of the court and all concerned that the marriage status should, as far as possible, as long as possible and whenever possible, be maintained, but when the marriage is totally dead, in that event, nothing is gained by trying to keep the parties tied forever to a marriage which in fact has ceased to exist. ...

86. In view of the fact that the parties have been living separately for more than 10 years and a very large number of aforementioned criminal and civil proceedings have been initiated by the respondent against the appellant and some proceedings have been initiated by the appellant against the respondent, the matrimonial bond between the parties is beyond repair. A marriage between the parties is only in name. The marriage has been wrecked beyond the hope of salvage, public interest and interest of all concerned lies in the recognition of the fact and to declare defunct de jure what is already defunct de facto."

54. Thus, the legal position which emerges from the analysis of the entire case law on the subject referred to hereinabove is that it is the duty of the Court to consider and examine while deciding an issue of divorce whether the marriage between the parties has broken down irretrievably or it is dead emotionally and practically and there is no chance of its being retrieved before compelling the parties to live with each other.

55. From the facts of the case, it can be gathered that the relations between the parties are sufficiently spoiled and marital knot between them has completely shattered, it is in view of the allegations made by the husband against the wife and vice versa, as per her own admission, is living separately since the year 1999 i.e. wife is living separately for the last two decades. In the facts of the case, in our view, no fruitful purpose would be served in maintaining the matrimonial ties between the parties. For all the practical purposes, the marriage between the parties is dead. In the facts of the case, we are of the view that the marriage between the appellant and respondent-Smt. Reeta Singh has broken down irretrievably, leaving the Court with no option but to grant the decree of divorce.

56. For the foregoing reasons, the appeal is allowed. The order dated 05.09.2012, passed by the Family Court, Faizabad in Suit No. 105 of 2000 (Shailendra Kumar Singh v. Smt. Reeta Singh), is set-aside. The decree of divorce is hereby granted. No order as to costs.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE
DATED: LUCKNOW 23.10.2019

BEFORE THE HON'BLE RAJAN ROY, J.

Second Appeal Defective No. 268 of 2018

Dhiresh Pandey {R.E.R.A.} ...Appellant
Versus
Real Estate Appellate Tribunal U.P. Lucknow & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Santosh Kumar Shukla

Counsel for the Respondents:

A. Civil Law - Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Act, 2016 Section 44(2) - read with Uttar Pradesh Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Rules 2016, R. 25(2)(a) - Appeal - "a copy of the direction or order or decision made by the authority' – Annexing 'Attested copy' must & not E copy /down loaded copy - on a conjoint reading of S. 44 (2) with R. 25(2) & Form (L) it is clear that while filing an appeal, before Appellate Tribunal, against the order of the Regulatory Authority, it should be accompanied by an 'attested true copy' of the order, passed by such authority which is the subject matter of the appeal (Para 19)

B. Civil Law - Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Act, 2016 - calculation of the period of limitation - "is received by the ..... aggrieved person" - Communication of Order - S. 44 (2) provides for calculation of the period of limitation from the date the order or decision of the Regulatory Authority or Adjudicating Officer is received by the aggrieved person - but no a provision for communication of the order of the Regulatory Authority / Adjudicating Officer - legal position stated by court - As soon as the disposal of the proceedings is communicated through S.M.S. or e-mail, the person aggrieved who proposes to file an appeal should move an application for obtaining an attested true copy of the order and thereafter file an appeal accordingly.

C. Condonation of delay - Delay of 3 days - if the appeal is filed with some delay, the appellant does not have to explain each and every day's delay during the period of limitation - Required to explain the delay generally, especially from the date of expiry of limitation - Tribunal erred in not condoning the delay of merely three days in filing the Appeal when the Appellant had shown sufficient cause indicating that the Appeal was within time

D. Word & Meaning - Attested true copy vis-à-vis E copy - Meaning - copy of the order uploaded by the Regulatory Authority bearing his digital signatures cannot be said to be an attested copy of that order, as, the attestation is a subsequent act which is normally made by another officer or by some officer, by which he verifies that the copy being provided to the applicant is a true copy of the order originally passed on the file

Second Appeal allowed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy,J.)

1. This is an appeal under section 58 of the Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Act, 2016 (hereinafter referred as 'Act 2016') challenging the order dated 13.7.2018. This Court vide order dated 27.9.2018 has found the appeal to be within limitation.

2. Sri Shailendra Singh Chauhan, Advocate has put in appearance on behalf of respondent no.2. Sri Inder Preet Singh Chadha, Advocate has put in appearance on behalf of opposite party no.3.

3. This appeal was admitted on the following substantial questions of law vide order dated 26.3.2019:

"1. Whether the Tribunal below has not erred in interpreting section 44(2) of the Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Act 2016 so as to come to the conclusion that while filing an appeal certified copy or attested copy of the impugned order is not required to be filed alongwith the appeal before the Tribunal ?

2. Whether the interpretation given by the tribunal to Section 44(2) of the Act would not render Rule 25 of the Rules and form L appended thereto as redundant and Otiose ?

3. Whether, the Tribunal has not erred in not condoning the delay of merely three days in filing the Appeal when the Appellant had shown sufficient cause indicating that the Appeal was within time."

4. The facts of the case in brief are that an application was filed by the appellant before the Real Estate Regulatory Authority (R.E.R.A.), which was dismissed on 15.1.2018. On 18.1.2018 the appellant received an S.M.S. that the application of the appellant had been disposed off on 15.1.2018. It is said that the said order was uploaded on the website of R.E.R.A. on 18.1.2018. According to the appellant he went to file the appeal against the aforesaid order dated 15.1.2018 passed by R.E.R.A., on 17.3.2018, which was a Saturday, but, as the office of the Appellate Authority was closed on the said date, the counsel returned back. On 19.3.2018 when the appellant's counsel went to file the appeal, he was informed that an attested copy of the order dated 15.1.2018 was required necessarily and the appeal could not be accepted without the said order. In view of this an attested copy of the order dated 15.1.2018 was applied on 19.3.2018 itself and on its receipt the appeal was filed before the Real Estate Appellate Tribunal on 20.3.2018 under section 44 of the Act 2016. As the appeal was delayed by three days as calculated with effect from 18.1.2018, it was accompanied by an application for condonation of delay there being a provision for the same under section 44 itself. In the said affidavit delay was explained as aforesaid and in addition to it it was also stated in paragraph 7 that the appellant had to visit daily regularly in connection with his business and was pursuing the matter from there, as the appeal had to be filed at Lucknow. 17th of March 2018 being a Saturday appeal could not be filed as the office of the Appellate Tribunal was closed. When the appellant's counsel went to file the appeal on 19.3.2018, he was informed that an attested copy of the order was required, which was applied on the same day and was obtained on 20.3.2018 and appeal was filed accordingly on the said date. It was stated that the delay in filing the appeal is bona fide, unintentional and beyond the appellant's control and that the appeal be entertained for adjudication on merits, otherwise the applicant-appellant would suffer irreparable injury.

5. R.E.R.A. Appellate Tribunal in its wisdom dismissed the application of the appellant for condoning the delay of three days in filing the appeal.

6. Contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is that such a hypertechnical approach by the Appellate Tribunal is contrary to the grain of precedents of Supreme Court and this Court in a catena of decisions. The approach of the Appellate Tribunal should have been to advance the cause of substantial justice rather than to defeat it on mere delay, especially when the delay was only of three days and it had been appropriately explained. Instead of doing so the Appellate Tribunal undertook a laborious exercise making every effort to justify the dismissal of the application for condonation of delay by passing an order running into eleven pages with a fault finding attitude. Learned counsel submitted that this is not the first case where the Appellate Tribunal, as existing at that time, passed such order.

7. This Court in a number of decisions disapproved similar orders passed by the then Chairman of the Real Estate Appellate Tribunal, Luckow, Sri Atul Kumar Gupta, yet, the officer who was a senior officer of the Higher Judicial Service continued to pass such orders and to justify the same by giving the same reasoning again and again. In this regard he has referred to a decision dated 7.7.2019 rendered in R.E.R.A. Second Appeal No.250 of 2018.

8. His contention is that this Court should by its judgment guide the Appellate Tribunal so that such flaws are not committed in future and the ends of substantial justice are not compromised as also precious time of the Appellate Tribunal, the lawyers involved and this Court, as also the finances involved, are not wasted.

9. Sri Chadha, learned counsel for the opposite party no.3 submitted that he would not say much, but the delay should have been explained by the appellant.

10. On a perusal of the judgment passed by the Appellate Tribunal this Court finds that the Appellate Tribunal has laboured very hard to dismiss the application for condonation of delay of merely three days and has consequently dismissed the appeal itself. The reasons have also been given in great detail. It has been stated in the impugned judgment, firstly, that the appeal is delayed by three days in terms of section 44(2) of the Act 2016. The judgment having been rendered by R.E.R.A. Authority on 15.1.2018 appeal should have been filed by 16th March, 2018 when the limitation of 60 days expired.

11. The Appellate Tribunal disbelieved the contention of the appellant that on 18.1.2018 he had received an S.M.S from R.E.R.A. Authority about disposal of the complaint/application by observing that the S.M.S. was not regarding pronouncement of the order, but it only conveyed that the complaint was disposed of on 18.1.2018. The Appellate Tribunal did not accept the S.M.S. as a message regarding pronouncement of the order dated 15.1.2019, whatever it meant by it.

12. The Tribunal found that the appellant was present before the Regulatory Authority on 15.1.2018 and thus was aware about the impugned order passed on the said date. It also repelled the contention that the attested copy of the order dated 15.1.2018 was received only on 20.3.2018, in the circumstances already noticed hereinabove, on the ground that section 44(2) does not mention the words "certified copy or attested copy" but uses the words "a copy of the direction or order or decision made by the authority or the adjudicating officer." meaning thereby, the Tribunal was of the view that the order dated 15.1.2018 having been uploaded on 18.01.2018, a downloaded copy of the said order could have been annexed and the appeal could have been disposed off accordingly which would have been in accordance with Rules as there was no requirement of annexing a certified or attested copy of such an order of the Regularity Authority.

13. The Tribunal has further observed that the date of communication of the alleged information about disposal of case or about impugned order or date of uploading of the impugned order has no concern with the commencement of the period of limitation of sixty days as provided under section 44(2) of the Act, meaning thereby, according to him, limitation of sixty days is to be calculated with effect from the date the order is pronounced i.e. 15.01.2018. The Tribunal has further gone on to state that sending of certain e-mail or uploading of order has neither been provided in the provisions of the Act nor under the U.P. Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Rules 2016. It has further observed that the applicant/appellant has not mentioned anything in para of memo of appeal as well as the application for condonation of delay received the official copy of the impugned order which implied that he had received the official copy of the impugned order, without specifying as to when, according to the Tribunal, the appellant/applicant had received the said order. The Tribunal thereafter gone on to observe that the date of receipt of official copy of the order has also not been mentioned which also implied that he had received the official copy of the impugned order on 15.1.2018 itself without the Tribunal mentioning as to the basis of this recital/finding. Thereafter the Tribunal has observed that if the appellant/applicant would have mentioned about non-receipt of official copy of the order, in that eventuality, the appeal of the applicant/appellant would have been premature. He has, thus, concluded that the computation of commencement of the period of sixty days under the Act in the said case shall be from 15.1.2018 i.e. the date on which applicant/appellant received the official copy of the impugned order without mentioning as to on what basis this conclusion has been drawn. No evidence has been mentioned in the judgment of the Tribunal to show that the judgment dated 15.1.2018 was uploaded on the website of the Regulatory Authority on 15.1.2018 itself. Had it been so, even then there would have been some reasonable basis for the recitals contained in the impugned order. Learned counsel for the appellant on the other hand categorically stated that it was uploaded on 18.1.2018 and this is mentioned on the requisite upload itself which can be verified from the official website.

14. The Tribunal has disbelieved the averments made in para 6 of the application for condonation of delay regarding the Tribunal being vacant as also the assertions about regular visits to Delhi from Lucknow on account of professional commitments not being a justifiable ground for not filing the appeal within the limitation of sixty days as prescribed. It has also observed that the attested copy of the order should also have been obtained within the period of sixty days, which was not done, keeping in view the mandatory requirement of enclosing such a copy as per Rule 25(2)(a) of the Rules 2016.

15. The circumstance involving the filing of an application for rectification under section 39 of the Act 2016 before the Regulatory Authority by the appellant was also brushed aside as not being a hurdle in filing appeal within the limitation prescribed. The Tribunal declined to grant benefit of the time spent by the appellant in obtaining the attested copy on the ground that the provisions of Limitation Act 1963 are not applicable with reference to the decision of the Supreme Court of India in the case of Officer on Special Duty (Land Acquisition) v. Shah Manilal Chandulal & ors., (996) 9 SCC 414. Thus, the cause shown by the appellant was not found to be satisfactory and the application for condonation of delay of three days was dismissed on the ground that conduct of the appellant was evidence of prima facie negligence on his part.

16. Learned Tribunal thereafter referred to various decisions of the Supreme Court in support of conclusions drawn by him and dismissed the application for condonation of delay as also the appeal as a consequence thereof.

17. The appellant claims to be a 'Consumer/Allottee' within the meaning of the Act 2016 and the Rules made thereunder. The Act itself has been enacted to establish the Real Estate Regulatory Authority for regulation and promotion of the Real Estate Sector and to ensure sale of plot, apartment or building, as the case may be, for sale of Real Estate project, in an efficient and transparent manner and to protect the interest of Consumer/Allottees in the Real Estate Sector and to establish adjudicating mechanism for speedy dispute redressal and also to establish an Appellate Tribunal to hear the appeals from decisions, directions of the Real Estate Regulatory Authority and the Adjudicating Officer and for matter connected therewith or incidental thereto as is evident from long title/preamble of the Act 2016.

18. Every authority including the Appellate Tribunal under the Act 2016 should function to advance the object of the Act 2016, and not to frustrate it. Coming to the substantial questions of law on which the appeal has been admitted, as regards the first question, an appeal against the order of the Regulatory Authority lies before the Appellate Tribunal under section 44 of the Act 2016. As per sub-section (2) of section 44 every appeal made under sub-section (1) thereof shall be preferred within a period of 60 days "from the date on which a copy of the direction or order or decision made by the Authority or the Adjudicating Officer is received by the appropriate government or the competent authority or the aggrieved person" and it shall be in such form and accompanied by such fee as may be prescribed; provided that the Appellate Tribunal may entertain an appeal after the expiry of sixty days if it is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not filing it within that period. Sub-section (2) of section 44 thus prescribes a limitation for filing such appeal which is sixty days. This period of limitation is to be calculated from the date on which a copy of the direction or order or decision of the concerned authority/officer is received. The provision further provides that the appeal shall be in such form and accompanied by such fee as may be prescribed.

19. Now as regards the form and the fee prescribed we need to refer to the Uttar Pradesh Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Rules 2016 which have been made under section 84 of the Act 2016 and have come into effect from 27th October 2016 i.e. the date on which it was notified in the Gazettee. The provision with regard to filing of appeal before the Appellate Tribunal under section 44 is contained in Rule 25. Sub-Rule (2) of Rule 25 provides that every appeal shall be filed in Form (L) alongwith "an attested true copy of the order against which the appeal is filed" Form (L) is given at the end of Rules 2016 and according to Serial No. 10 of the Format under the heading "List of enclosures" one of the enclosures mentioned at (i) is "an attested true copy of the order against which the appeal is filed". Thus on a conjoint reading of sub-section (2) of section 44 with sub-Rule (2) of Rule 25 and Form (L) what comes out is that the appeal against the order of the Regulatory Authority should be accompanied by an attested true copy of the order passed by such authority which is the subject matter of the appeal, therefore, on a harmonious reading of the aforesaid provisions, especially in view of the words occurring in sub-section (2) of section 44 "it shall be in such format" as may be prescribed. The provisions contained in Rule 25 and Form (L) have to be read into the provisions contained in sub-section (2) of section 44, as part of it, because the Rules are in furtherance of the provisions contained in section 44.

20. In this view of the matter, for the Appellate Tribunal to have observed in the initial part of its discussion on the application for condonation of delay that there is no such requirement of filing an attested or certified copy of the order under challenge in appeal, is based on an absolute misreading and misunderstanding of the provisions of the Act 2016 and the Rules made thereunder. The copy of the order uploaded by the Regulatory Authority bearing his digital signatures cannot be said to be an attested copy of that order, as, the attestation is a subsequent act which is normally made by another officer or by some officer, by which he verifies that the copy being provided to the applicant is a true copy of the order originally passed on the file. Even in the High Court when we pass orders in judicial proceedings, they are uploaded by our Private Secretaries, but if a litigant or any other person downloads a copy of said order which is not attested or certified, then it would at best be an e-copy of said order, whereas there are separate Rules in the High Court for providing attested/certified copies of such orders which are on the original records of the case and the attestation/certification is made by a separate section headed by an Officer Incharge who does the attestation or certification. The word 'Attest' occurring in sub-Rule (2) of the Rule 25 and Form (L), has been defined in Black's Law Dictionary (9th Edition) to mean (1) to bear witness, testify (2) to affirm to be true or genuine, to authenticate by signing as a witness. When this Court peruses the attested copy applied for by the appellant on 19.3.2019 and which was provided to him by the office of the Regulatory Authority, it finds that the order passed by the Authority has been duly attested by the Additional Statistical Officer, U.P. Real Estate Regulatory Authority Lucknow with his signature and date alongwith seal embossed thereon It is such attested copy of an order that has to accompany the appeal to be filed by the appellant under section 44, thus, the finding of the Appellate Tribunal to the contrary is absolutely contrary to the requirement of law and is perverse. Filing of such an attested copy of the order is the requirement of the Act 2016 read with the Rules. Interestingly in the latter part of the discussion the Appellate Tribunal itself has referred to Rule 25(2)(a) and Form (L) as being a mandatory requirement where it has held that this attested true copy could have been obtained by the appellant within sixty days of limitation prescribed, but was not done, yet, in the earlier part of the discussion a contrary view has been expressed which is not tenable.

21. The word 'Attest' came up for consideration before the Supreme Court in the case of Benga Behra v. Briji Kishore Nanda, 2007 (9) SCC 728 wherein it was observed - "to attest is to bear witness to a fact". This was in the context of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act 1882 and the Registration Act 1908. The word 'Attest' also came up for consideration by the Supreme Court in D.R. Ratnamoorti v. Ramappa, 2011 (1) SCC 158, wherein it was observed that attestation testifies/certifies the genuineness of the document. Execution is different from attestation, one following the other, attestation after execution.

22. Reference may be made in this regard to the decision of the Supreme Court reported in 2012 (6) SCC 384, Bipromasz Bipron Trading Ltd. V. Bharat Electronics Ltd., wherein the distinction between dispatch and delivery was considered in the context of section 3(2) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 which provided that communication is deemed to have been received on the day it is so delivered. The Court after considering the said provision and the law with regard to the time of effectiveness of an order observed in the context of the said case that an order passed by an Authority cannot be said to take effect unless the same is communicated to the party affected. The Court finds that in the Act and the Rules there is an anomaly in the sense that sub-section (2) of section 44 provides for calculation of the period of limitation from the date the order or decision of the Regulatory Authority or Adjudicating Officer is received, inter alia, by the aggrieved person, but there is no a provision for communication of the order of the Regulatory Authority or the Adjudicating Officer in this regard, though there is such provision in the context of the orders and decisions by the Appellate Tribunal under section 44. This anomaly needs to be removed by making specific provision for communication, only then, sub-section (2) of section 44 would be applied meaningfully and effectively. Till then, the legal position is as already noticed hereinabove, meaning thereby, as soon as the disposal of the proceedings is communicated through S.M.S. or e-mail, as the case may be, the person aggrieved who proposes to file an appeal should move an application for obtaining an attested true copy of the order and thereafter file an appeal accordingly. Question No.1 is answered accordingly.

23. As regards Question No.2, in view of the discussion already made in the context of Question No.1 if the interpretation given by the Tribunal to section 44(2) of the Act 2016 regarding non-requirement of an attested true copy of the order, which is the subject matter of challenge in appeal, accompanying the appeal, then certainly it would be in conflict with Rule 25 and Form (L) referred therein and would render the latter provisions otios, therefore, the reading and understanding of the provisions of law involved as evinced in the Appellate Tribunal's order is unacceptable and disapproved. Question No.2 is answered, accordingly.

24. As regards Question No.3, this Court is compelled to say that the amount of effort made by the Appellate Tribunal in rejecting the application for condonation of delay of merely three days was quite unnecessary and uncalled for.

25. On a perusal of the affidavit in support of the application for condonation of delay, this Court finds plausible and satisfactory explanation for the same. No prudent person in the facts of the present case could have dismissed the application for condonation of delay of three days. It is well settled that if the appeal is filed with some delay, the appellant does not have to explain each and every day's delay during the period of limitation. He is required to explain the delay generally, especially from the date of expiry of limitation. Reference may be made in this regard to the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Collector, Land Acquisition, Anantnag & anr. v. Mst. Katiji & ors. reported in 1987 (2) SCC 107. A hyper technical approach in a matter involving a delay of barely three days was quite unwarranted. Reference to catena of decisions by the Appellate Tribunal without appreciating the factual matrix of the case and the explanation offered has merely burdened its judgment. The explanation given by the appellant in the affidavit constituted a sufficient cause, but the Tribunal failed to appreciate the same in the correct perspective. It did not adopt a judicious approach in the matter with the result that the ends of substantial justice have been defeated and technicalities have prevailed without any justification. In the affidavit it was stated that on account of engagement with his professional duties the appellant could not prefer the appeal earlier; his counsel went to file the appeal on 17.3.2018 which was within the period of limitation. Even if the S.M.S. sent to the appellant on 18.1.2018 intimating him about the disposal of his application on 15.1.2018 was communicated to him, as according to sub-section (2) of section 44 the limitation of sixty days is to be calculated from the date on which a copy of the direction or order or decision made by the concerned authority "is received by the ..... aggrieved person", therefore, this provision pre-supposes a communication of the order by the Regulatory Authority to the aggrieved person.

26. It appears that though that there is no provision in the Rules, but, there is a practise in the office of the Regulatory Authority of communicating the disposal of the application/complaint to the concerned parties through S.M.S. or e-mail. Now this S.M.S. or e-mail does not contain the attested true copy of the order, but as noticed by the Appellate Tribunal itself it is only a communication about disposal of the application/complaint. Even where e-mails are sent, a copy of the order uploaded on the website bearing the digital signature of the Authority which has passed the order, is sent, which, as already noticed hereinabove, is not an attested copy, as, the attestation has to be subsequent to the act of signing of the said order by the Adjudicating Officer or the Regulatory Officer, as the case may be, while passing the order. It is only on receipt of such communication that an aggrieved person would apply before the concerned authority for obtaining an attested true copy of the order in respect of which he or she proposes to file an appeal and on receipt of such an order the appeal can be filed.

27. It is true that once the communication had been received by the appellant about the disposal of the application/complaint and he in fact was present as per his own admission on 15.1.2018 when the Regulatory Authority, then he could have applied for the attested true copy of the order within the period of sixty days. In fact he should have as he is presumed to know the requirement of limitation for filing an appeal, but as already stated hereinabove, in the facts of the present case, even if he did not do so and applied for such a copy a day thereafter i.e. on 19.3.2019 which was provided to him on 20th March, 2019, then considering the explanation offered in the affidavit in support of the application for condonation of delay, the cause shown was sufficient, especially considering the delay which was only of three days. The cause of substantial justice should have prevailed. As observed by the Supreme Court the Courts do not put a premium on a decision by default, but on merits, therefore, in the facts of the present case the Appellate Tribunal erred in not condoning the delay in filing the appeal, thereby causing grave prejudice to his rights and materially affecting the same. Question No.3 is answered accordingly.

28. The learned Tribunal also adopted a hyper technical approach in declining to grant the benefit of the time taken by the Regulatory Authority in processing the application of the appellant for grant of attested true copy of the order of the Regulatory Authority by deducting it for the purposes of calculation of limitation on the ground that the provisions of the Act 1963 do not apply. Even if they did not apply, such period should normally be excluded on first principle, as after filing such an application the God is with the concerned Court or Tribunal or Authority and it is not in the hands of the applicant to ensure that the attested copy is provided at the earliest.

29. It would be better if the Rule Making Authority makes a provision for sending an attested true copy of the order passed by the Regulatory Authority/Adjudicating Officer under the provisions of the Act 2016. In view of the terminology used in sub-section (2) of section 44 read with Rule 25(2) and Form L for filing an appeal as in view of the analogy used in sub-section (2) of section 44. There appears to be an implicit application on the said authority/officer to communicate. Orders and the limitation is to b calculated from the receipt of such attested true copy of the order. Although in the facts of this case it has been held that the appellant should have applied attested true copy from the date of communication received through SMS but it would be better if the attested true copy of the order itself is communicated to the concerned parties in the proceedings as then the receipt of the order for the purpose of Sub-Section 2 of Section 44 would not be at the sweet will of the aggrieved person. This anomaly needs to be ironed out by the Rule Making Authority.

30. In view of the above discussion, the impugned judgment of the Appellate Tribunal dated 13.7.2018 passed in Miscellaneous Case No.9 of 2018, Dhiresh Pandey v. M/s Supertech Ltd., is hereby quashed. The appeal under section 58 of the Act 2016 is accordingly allowed. The delay in filing the first appeal under section 44 of the Act 2016 is hereby condoned. The Miscellaneous Case No.9 of 2018, Dhiresh Pandey v. M/s Supertech Ltd., is allowed. The First Appeal shall now be processed by the Appellate Tribunal accordingly and it shall be decided in accordance with law.

31. The Senior Registrar of this Court shall send a copy of this judgment to the Chairman, Uttar Pradesh Real Estate Appeal Tribunal, Lucknow for necessary action.

Counsel for the Appellant:

Counsel for the Respondents:

Civil Law - Civil Procedure Code (5 of 1908) - Order 43, Rule 1(u), Rule 23 A - Appeal against order of Remand - Tenability - Second Appeal is not maintainable against the remand order.

Second Appeal dismissed. (E-5)

List of cases cited: -

1. Jegannathan Vs Raju Sigamani and another (2012) 5 SCC 540

2. Narayanan Vs Kumaran and others (2004) 4 SCC 26

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Singh Baghel,J.)

1. This recall application has been moved by the defendant-respondent no. 1 for recall of the order dated 07th March, 2017, whereby this Court has admitted the second appeal, issued notices to the respondents and granted interim order. The recall application has been filed on the ground that the second appeal is not maintainable against a remand order in view of the provisions of Order XLIII Rule 1 (u) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 19081.

2. The plaintiff-appellant had instituted a civil suit in the Court of the Civil Judge, Senior Division, Hapur, which was registered as O.S. No. 66 of 2008, Ashok Kumar Sharma v. Smt. Rameshwari and others, for permanent injunction restraining the defendants from interfering in his possession over the suit property and to declare the sale-deed dated 10th December, 2007 as void and non est. The defendants contested the matter and the plaintiff's suit was decreed vide judgment and decree dated 09th March, 2016. Aggrieved by the said judgment and decree of the trial Court, the defendant-respondent no. 1 preferred a civil appeal, being Civil Appeal No. 29 of 2016, Smt. Beena Sharma v. Ashok Sharma and others, which was allowed by the lower appellate Court vide its judgment and decree dated 02nd February, 2017 and the judgment and decree dated 09th March, 2016 of the trial Court was set aside and the matter was remanded back to the trial Court to decide the matter afresh in the light of the observations made by the lower appellate Court.

3. Against the said remand order and decree dated 02nd February, 2017 and 13th February, 2017 respectively passed by the District Judge, Hapur in Civil Appeal No. 29 of 2016, the present second appeal has been filed by the plaintiff-appellant.

4. In the second appeal, vide order dated 07th March, 2017 the appeal has been admitted, notices have been issued to the defendants-respondents and the parties have been directed to maintain status quo. Against this order dated 07th March, 2017 the present recall application has been filed.

5. I have heard learned counsel for the applicant-respondent no. 1 and learned counsel for the appellant.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant-respondent no. 1 has urged that in view of the provisions of Order XLIII Rule 1(u) CPC the second appeal is not maintainable against the remand order. He has placed reliance on a judgment of the Supreme Court in Jegannathan v. Raju Sigamani and another2.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant-plaintiff has placed reliance on a judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Narayanan v. Kumaran and others3 in support of his submission that the second appeal is maintainable.

8. I have considered the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on the record.

9. Concededly, the second appeal has been filed against a remand order. The operative portion of the judgment and order of the lower appellate Court dated 02nd February, 2017 reads as under:

"तदनुसार यह अपील स्वीकार की जाती है। अधीनस्थ न्यायालय का निर्णय व डिक्री दिनांकितः 09.03.2016 निरस्त की जाती है। अधीनस्थ न्यायालय को पत्रावली इस निर्देश के साथ वापिस भेजी जाती है कि वह ऊपर किये गये विवेचनों व संदर्भित विधि व सुस्थापित विधि के मार्गदर्शक सिद्धांतों के संदर्भ में पक्षों को साक्ष्य व सुनवाई का अवसर देकर पुनः मामले में निर्णय व निष्कर्ष यथा शीघ्र 4 माह में देगी।"

10. I have perused the initial report of the Stamp Reporter, which does not raise any objection regarding maintainability of the appeal. A fresh report was called for from the Stamp Reporter, who made the following report on 11th March, 2019:

"In compliance with Hon'ble Court's order dt. 06.3.19, S.R. has to submit that on going through the appellate order, it transpires that the instant appeal has been filed against the remand order. Hence, the second appeal is not maintainable.

Inconvenience caused to the Hon'ble Court is deeply regretted."

11. Order XLIII Rule 1(u) CPC reads as under:

"1. Appeals from order.--An appeal shall lie from the following orders under the provisions of Section 104, namely:--*

*** *** ***

(u) an order under Rule 23 [or Rule 23-A] of Order XLI remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the Appellate Court;"

12. A perusal of the said provision clearly indicates that an appeal does not lie against the remand order.

13. The same issue fell for consideration before the Supreme Court in the case of Jegannathan (supra), wherein the Supreme Court considering the provisions of Order XLI Rule 23, Order XLI Rule 23-A and Order XLI Rule 25 CPC has held as under:

"11. The High Court relied upon a decision of this Court in Narayanan v. Kumaran4 in holding that civil miscellaneous appeal from the order of remand was not maintainable. The High Court was clearly in error. What has been held by this Court in Narayanan is that an appeal under Order 43 Rule 1 Clause (u) should be heard only on the ground enumerated in Section 100 of the Code. In other words, the constraints of Section 100 continue to be attached to an appeal under Order 43 Rule 1(u). The appeal under Order 43 Rule 1(u) can only be heard on the grounds a second appeal is heard under Section 100.

12. There is a difference between maintainability of an appeal and the scope of hearing of an appeal. The High Court failed to keep in view this distinction and wrongly applied the case of Narayanan in holding that miscellaneous appeal preferred by the appellant was not maintainable."*

14. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the judgment of Narayanan (supra).

15. Pertinently, the judgment of Narayanan (supra) has been distinguished by the Supreme Court in Jegannathan (supra) in paragraph-11 & 12 of the judgment, which has been extracted above.

16. In view of the said principle, it is evident that against a remand order the present second appeal is not maintainable. Accordingly, the recall application is allowed. The order dated 07th March, 2017 is recalled.

17. Resultantly, the second appeal is dismissed as not maintainable.

18. No order as to costs.

Writ-A No. 16055 of 2019

Smt. Geeta Devi & Anr. ...Petitioners
Versus
Additional District Judge/Special Judge (Prevention of Corruption Act), Gorakhpur & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
Sri H.N. Mishra, Sri Abhishek Misra

Counsel for the Respondents:

A. Civil Law - Code of Civil Procedure ,1908 - Order XLI Rule 27 - Production of additional evidence in Appellate court - Application 30 C - filed by the tenant for taking as additional evidence - rejected -

An application under Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C. must contain necessary averment as to why additional evidence is necessary to decide the real controversy involved in the Appeal or revision - additional evidence cannot be permitted to be adduced so as to fill in the lacunae or to patch up the weak points in the case. (Para 2 & 24)

B. Civil Law - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 - Order XLI Rule 27 - exception – Appellate court to take additional evidence in exceptional circumstances - The inadvertence of the party or his inability to understand the legal issues involved or the wrong advice of a pleader or the negligence of a pleader or that the party did not realise the importance of a document, does not constitute a "substantial cause" within the meaning of this rule. (Para 24)

The general principle is that the Appellate court should not travel outside the record of the lower court and cannot take any evidence in appeal. However , as an exception ,order XLI rule 27 CPC enables the Appellate Court to take additional evidence in exceptional circumstances if the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted or the party seeking to produce additional evidence, establishes that notwithstanding the exercise of due diligence, such evidence was not within his knowledge or could not, after the exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the decree appealed against was passed, or the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause. (Para 24)

Held: - It is not the business of the Appellate Court to supplement the evidence adduced by one party or the other in the lower Court. In the absence of satisfactory reasons for non-production of the evidence in the trial court, additional evidence should not be permitted in appeal as a party guilty of remissness in the lower court is not entitled to the indulgence of being allowed to give further evidence. A party who had ample opportunity to produce certain evidence in the lower court but failed to do so or elected not to do so, cannot have it admitted in appeal. (Para 24)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Surya Prakash Kesarwani,J.)

1. Heard Sri H.N. Misra, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Abhishek Misra, learned counsel for the defendant-tenant-petitioner.

2. This writ petition has been filed praying to quash the order dated 30.09.2019 in Rent Revision No.36 of 2016 (Krishna Devi Vs. Rajendra Kumar), passed by Additional District Judge/Special Judge (PC Act), Court No.2, Gorakhpur, whereby the application 30 C under Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C. filed by the tenant-petitioner for taking as additional evidence paper No.49 C and 50 C, has been rejected.

3. Briefly stated facts of the present case are that the disputed house was purchased by Smt. Premlata Devi, W/o Sri Krishn Mohan by a registered sale deed dated 25.10.1969. She raised new construction after getting the map passed on 25.05.1970 from the Nagar Palika Gorakhpur. A portion of the said house was let out for residential purpose by Smt. Premlata Devi to the original tenant Bansi Lal under a rent agreement dated 31.03.1971. It appears that subsequently, the original tenant made alteration in the tenanted portion and converted it for commercial use and started running a shop. After the death of the original landlady and her husband Krishn Mohan, the house in question was inherited by the plaintiff-respondent Dr. Rajendera Kumar Agarwal, who after determining the tenancy by notice to the tenant, filed SCC Suit No.25 of 2001 (Dr. Rajendra Kumar Agarwal Vs. Bansi Lal). During pedency of the suit the tenant Bansi Lal died and he was succeeded by his six heirs and legal representatives.

4. The SCC suit was filed mainly on two grounds, firstly, default in payment of rent and, secondly, that the tenant without permission in writing of the landlord made construction/structural alteration in the building which diminished its value, utility and disfigured it and started using it for a purpose other than the purpose for which he was admitted to the tenancy of the building. The suit was decreed by judgment and decree dated 19.10.2016, passed by the Judge Small Cause Court/Civil Judge (S.D.), Gorakhpur. The Judge Small Cause Court rejected the plea of the plaintiff-landlord regarding default in payment of rent by the tenant but accepted the grounds of structural alteration by the tenant without written permission and use of the tenanted premises for commercial purpose while the tenancy was for residential purpose. Aggrieved with this judgment, the tenant-petitioner filed SCC Revision No.36 of 2016 (Krishna Devi Vs. Rajendra Kumar) in which final arguments had commenced and the revision was argued on 16.09.2019 at length and thereafter, it was fixed for rest of the arguments. Instead of concluding the arguments, the tenant-petitioners filed an application 30 C on 24.09.2019 under Order XLI Rule 27 CP.C. Which is reproduced below:-

5. The aforesaid application 30 C has been rejected by the impugned order dated 30.09.2019, passed by the Additional District Judge/Special Judge (PC Act), Court No.2, Gorakhpur. Aggrieved with this order, the tenant-petitioner has filed the present petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

Submission:-

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that during preparation of the case the counsel advised to file in additional evidence paper No.49 Ga and 50 Ga which was not within the knowledge of the revisionist-petitioner despite due to diligence and as such it could not be filed before the Trial Court in SCC Suit No.25 of 2001. He submits that court below has committed a manifest error of law to reject the application. In support of his submissions he relied upon judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jaipur Development Authority Vs. Kailashwati Devi (Smt.) (1997)7 SCC 297, Union of India Vs. K.V. Lakshman and others (2016) 13 SCC 124, another judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court dated 6.5.2019 in Civil Appeal No.4628 of 2019 Jiten K. Ajmera & Anr. Vs. M/s. Tejas Co-operative Housing Society.

Discussion & Findings:

7. I have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsels for the tenant-petitioner.

8. Perusal of the application 30 C under Order XLI Rule 27 filed by the tenant-petitioner shows that it does not contain any averment as to why the additional evidence was necessary to decide the real controversy involved in the appeal. The main controversy involved in the revision is with regard to written permission of the landlord to the tenant for making structural alteration in the building and use of the tenanted premises for purpose other than the purpose for which it was let out.

9. A supplementary affidavit has been filed today by the tenant-petitioner stating that the copies of additional evidence filed before the revisional court is being filed as Annexure SA-1. Perusal of SA-1 shows that it is copies of five tenders of deposit of rent in SCC Suit No.25 of 2001 and photostat copies of two alleged rent receipts dated 05.04.1992 and 17.12.1991 and a photostat copy of some notice of the Sales Tax Department and a photostat copy of some certificate of labour department in the name of M/s. V.K. Enterprises.

10. The suit was contested by the tenant for about 16 years. There is no averment in the application 30 C that why the aforesaid alleged additional evidence is necessary to decide the real controversy involved in the revision. The application 30 C was filed by the tenant-petitioner allegedly on mere advise of the counsel and that too after arguments started. Thus, apart from the fact the application was frivolous and does not comply with the provisions of Order XLI Rule 27 CPC, it also appears that application was filed merely to delay the disposal of the revision.

10. The judgment in the case of Jaipur Development Authority (supra) relied by learned counsel for the tenant-petitioner has no application on the facts of the present case inasmuch as facts in that case were that a suit for permanent injunction was filed by the plaintiff on the allegation of possession which was decreed ex-party and the defendant in appeal sought to file two documents to show that the possession was taken over from the plaintiff long back. In these circumstances, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the application under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC was wrongly rejected by the High Court.

11. The judgment in the case of Union of India Vs. K.V. Lakshman(supra) relied by learned counsel for the tenant-petitioner also does not support the case of the petitioner rather law laid down therein is against him. The facts of that case were that the Union of India filed a suit for declaration of ownership of the suit property which was dismissed by the trial court as barred by limitation and also on the ground that the plaintiffs failed to prove their title over the suit land. In first appeal the plaintiffs - Union of India filed an application under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC for taking in additional evidence the documents issued by the State Land Revenue Department in relation to the suit land. That application was rejected and the appeal was dismissed by the High Court. The judgment in the case of Jiten K. Ajmera (supra) relied by learned counsel for petitioner is also distinguishable on facts as evident from paragraph 2.4 and paragraph 3.3 of the said judgment. Facts in that case were that the appellant of that case requested for permission to produce two documents which had come into existence after filing of the appeal. The plaintiff - Union of India challenged the judgment of the High Court before the Hon'ble Supreme Court questioning the rejection of application and dismissal of appeal in limine. On these facts Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:-

32) This takes us to the next question in relation to the application filed under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code. In our considered view, the High Court committed another error when it rejected the application filed by the appellant under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code. This application, in our opinion, should have been allowed for more than one reason.

33) First, there was no one to oppose the application. In other words, the respondents were neither served with the notice of appeal and nor served with the application and hence they did not oppose the application. Second, the appellant averred in the application as to why they could not file the additional evidence earlier in civil suit and why there was delay on their part in filing such evidence at the appellate stage. Third, the averments in the application were supported with an affidavit, which remained un-rebutted. Fourth, the application also contained necessary averment as to why the additional evidence was necessary to decide the real controversy involved in appeal. Fifth, the additional evidence being in the nature of public documents and pertained to suit land, the same should have been taken on record and lastly, the appellant being the Union of India was entitled to legitimately claim more indulgence in such procedural matters due to their peculiar set up and way of working.

(emphasis supplied by me)

12. Thus, all the judgment relied by learned counsel for the petitioner are clearly distinguishable on facts of the present case.

13. As already observed above, the application of the tenant petitioner under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC does not contain necessary averment as to why the additional evidence was necessary to decide the real controversy involved in the revision. In Union of India Vs. K.V. Lakshman (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed that such averment is necessary for allowing the application under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC. This legal position is also reflected from bare reading of Order XLI Rule 27 CPC which is reproduced below:-

"27. Production of additional evidence in Appellate Court.- (1) The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the Appellate Court. But if--

(a) the court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(aa) the party seeking to produce additional evidence, establishes that notwithstanding the exercise of due diligence, such evidence was not within his knowledge or could not, after the exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the decree appealed against was passed, or

(b) the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause,

The Appellate Court may allow such evidence or document to be produced, or witness to be examined.

(2) Whenever additional evidence is allowed to the produced, by an Appellate Court, the court shall record the reason for its admission."

14. Perusal of Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C. shows that it prohibits the parties to an appeal to adduce additional evidence either oral or documentary at the Appellate Court. However, it provides three exceptions in which the Appellate Court may allow such evidence or document to be produced or witness to be examined. These exceptions are provided in clauses (a), (aa) and (b) of Order XLI Rule 27(1) C.P.C.

15. In the case Malyalam Plantations Ltd. vs. State of Kerla, (2010) 13 SCC 487, (Para-17), Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the scope of Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C. and held as under:-

*"It is equally well-settled that additional evidence cannot be permitted to be adduced so as to fill in the lacunae or to patch up the weak points in the case. Adducing additional evidence is in the interest of justice. Evidence relating to subsequent happening or events which are relevant for disposal of the appeal, however, it is not open to any party, at the stage of appeal, to make fresh allegations and call upon the other side to admit or deny the same. Any such attempt is contrary to the requirements of Order 41 Rule 27 of CPC. Additional evidence cannot be permitted at the Appellate stage in order to enable other party to remove certain lacunae present in that case."

16. In the case of Union Of India vs Ibrahim Uddin, (2010) 8 SCC 148, (Paras-36 to 41), Hon'ble Supreme Court reiterated the principles of Order XLI Rule 27, C.P.C. laid down by it in its earlier decisions in the case of K. Venkataramiah v. A. Seetharama Reddy & Ors., AIR 1963 SC 1526; The Municipal Corporation of Greater Bombay v. Lala Pancham & Ors., AIR 1965 SC 1008; Soonda Ram & Anr. v. "36. The general principle is that the Appellate Court should not travel outside the record of the lower court and cannot take any evidence in appeal. However, as an exception, Order XLI Rule 27 CPC enables the Appellate Court to take additional evidence in exceptional circumstances. The Appellate Court may permit additional evidence only and only if the conditions laid down in this rule are found to exist. *The parties are not entitled, as of right, to the admission of such evidence. 38. Under Order XLI , Rule 27 CPC, the appellate Court has the power to allow a document to be produced and a witness to be examined. 18. In the case of Shri Kishore and another vs. Roop Kishore, 2006 (62) ALR 414, this Court relied upon a judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Natha Singh v. The Financial Commissioner AIR 1976 SC 1053 and held that it is only in exceptional and extraordinary circumstances that the appellate court may, on its own, direct production of any document or witness only to enable it to pronounce the judgment or for any other substantial cause. No substantial cause has been indicated before this Court. The true test in such a case would be as to whether the appellate court is able to pronounce the judgment on the materials before it, without taking into consideration the additional evidence sought to be adduced. The parties cannot be given opportunity to better the case or adduce additional evidence only to fill up gaps left out in the case before the trial court , or else this would be a never ending process, and the parties would continue to move applications for adducing additional evidence at every stage of the proceedings.

19. In the case of Shiv Karan and others vs. Special Judge, E.C. Act and another, 2011 (1) JCLR 864 (All) (LB), Lucknow Bench of this Court considered rejection of application of a case where the suit was filed in the year 1997 and the appeal against the order of the Trial Court was filed in the year 2009 and, thereafter, an application was filed to receive additional evidence seeking examination of marginal witnesses, this Court upheld the rejection of the application by the Appellate Court on the ground that the application so moved was not justified as giving an opportunity at that stage could mean to allow for filling up lacunae.

20. In the case of Satish Kumar Gupta etc. vs. State of Haryana and others, 2017 (2) JCLR 36 (SC)., Hon'ble Supreme Court held that it is clear that neither the Trial Court has refused to receive the evidence nor it could be said that the evidence sought to be adduced was not available despite the exercise of due diligence nor it could be held to be necessary to pronounce the judgment. Additional evidence cannot be permitted to fill-in the lacunae or to patch-up the weak points in the case. There was no ground for remand in these circumstances.

21. In the case of Smt. Ganga Devi and another vs. Bhagwan Das and others, 2014 (106) ALR 295, similar principles were reiterated.

22. In MATTERS UNDER ARTICLE 227 No. - 4904 of 2017 Prahlad And 7 Others Vs. Chandra Bhan And 6 Others decided on 07.09.2017, this Court held as under:-

"22. In view of the above discussion, I find that the general principle is that the Appellate Court should not travel outside the record of the lower court and generaly cannot take any evidence in appeal. However, as an exception, Order XLI Rule 27 CPC enables the Appellate Court to take additional evidence in exceptional circumstances. The Appellate Court may permit additional evidence only and only if the conditions laid down in this rule are found to exist. The parties are not entitled, as of right, to the admission of such evidence. Thus, provision does not apply, when on the basis of evidence on record, the Appellate Court can pronounce a satisfactory judgment. The matter is entirely within the discretion of the Court and is to be used sparingly. Such a discretion is only a judicial discretion circumscribed by the limitation specified in the rule itself. The Appellate Court should not, ordinarily allow new evidence to be adduced in order to enable a party to raise a new point in appeal. Similarly, where a party on whom the onus of proving a certain point lies fails to discharge the onus, he is not entitled to a fresh opportunity to produce evidence, as the Court can, in such a case, pronounce judgment against him and does not require any additional evidence to enable it to pronounce judgment. Under Order XLI , Rule 27 CPC, the appellate Court has the power to allow a document to be produced and a witness to be examined. But the requirement of the said Court must be limited to those cases where it found it necessary to obtain such evidence for enabling it to pronounce judgment. This provision does not entitle the appellate Court to let in fresh evidence at the appellate stage where even without such evidence it can pronounce judgment in a case. It does not entitle the appellate Court to let in fresh evidence only for the purpose of pronouncing judgment in a particular way. It is not the business of the Appellate Court to supplement the evidence adduced by one party or the other in the lower Court. Hence, in the absence of satisfactory reasons for the non- production of the evidence in the trial court, additional evidence should not be admitted in appeal as a party guilty of remissness in the lower court is not entitled to the indulgence of being allowed to give further evidence under this rule. So a party who had ample opportunity to produce certain evidence in the lower court but failed to do so or elected not to do so, cannot have it admitted in appeal. The inadvertence of the party or his inability to understand the legal issues involved or the wrong advice of a pleader or the negligence of a pleader or that the party did not realise the importance of a document, do not constitute a "substantial cause" within the meaning of this rule. The mere fact that certain evidence is important, is not in itself a sufficient ground for admitting that evidence in appeal."

23. In Satya Narayan Vs. Smt. Mohini Devi And Another in MATTERS UNDER ARTICLE 227 No. - 8925 of 2017, decided on 03.01.2018, this Court has taken similar view.

24. Thus, it is settled law that the Appellate Court should not travel outside the record of the lower court. It is also equally well-settled that additional evidence cannot be permitted to be adduced so as to fill in the lacunae or to patch up the weak points in the case. However, an exception is provided in Order XLI Rule 27 CPC that additional evidence may be produced in the Appellate Court if the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted or the party seeking to produce additional evidence, establishes that notwithstanding the exercise of due diligence, such evidence was not within his knowledge or could not, after the exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the decree appealed against was passed, or the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause. An application under Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C. must contain necessary averment as to why additional evidence is necessary to decide the real controversy involved in the Appeal or revision. In the case of Union of India Vs. Ibrahimuddin and another 2012(8)SCC 148 (paras 36 to 41) Hon'ble Supreme Court interpreted the phrase "for any other substantial cause" and held that it must be read with the word "requires" in the beginning of sentence, so that it is only where, for any other substantial cause, the Appellate Court requires additional evidence, that this rule will apply. It was further held that it is not the business of the Appellate Court to supplement the evidence adduced by one party or the other in the lower Court. In the absence of satisfactory reasons for non- production of the evidence in the trial court, additional evidence should not be permitted in appeal as a party guilty of remissness in the lower court is not entitled to the indulgence of being allowed to give further evidence. A party who had ample opportunity to produce certain evidence in the lower court but failed to do so or elected not to do so, cannot have it admitted in appeal. The inadvertence of the party or his inability to understand the legal issues involved or the wrong advice of a pleader or the negligence of a pleader or that the party did not realise the importance of a document, does not constitute a "substantial cause" within the meaning of this rule. The mere fact that certain evidence is important, is not in itself a sufficient ground for admitting that evidence in appeal. In Shri Kishore and another vs. Roop Kishore, 2006 (62) ALR 414 this Court relied upon a judgmnet of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Natha Singh v. The Financial Commissioner AIR 1976 SC 1053 and held that it is only in exceptional and extraordinary circumstances that the appellate court may, on its own, direct production of any document or witness only to enable it to pronounce the judgment or for any other substantial cause. The parties are not entitled, as of right, to the admission of such evidence. Thus, provision does not apply, when on the basis of evidence on record, the Appellate Court can pronounce a satisfactory judgment. The matter is entirely within the discretion of the Court and is to be used sparingly. Such a discretion is only a judicial discretion circumscribed by the limitation specified in the rule itself. The Appellate Court should not, ordinarily allow new evidence to be adduced in order to enable a party to raise a new point in appeal. Similarly, where a party on whom the onus of proving a certain point lies fails to discharge the onus, he is not entitled to a fresh opportunity to produce evidence, as the Court can, in such a case, pronounce judgment against him and does not require any additional evidence to enable it to pronounce judgment.

24. Applying the principles of law laid down in the above referred judgments of this Court and of Hon'ble Supreme Court on the facts of the present case as discussed above, I do not find any merit in this writ petition. Therefore, the writ petition is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashwani Kumar Mishra, J.)

1. Petitioner, Pradeep Kumar Awasthi was initially appointed as a Superintendent (Medical and Electrical) Grade-II in the Central Reserve Engineer Force, a unit in the Border Road Organization (hereinafter referred to as 'organization'), in the year 2001. He continued in the organization from 25.06.2001 to 08.04.2010. While in the employment of the Organization he appears to have applied for appointment to the post of Junior Engineer in the Minor Irrigation Department of the State of Uttar Pradesh, pursuant to an advertisement issued, and was ultimately selected. He joined as Junior Engineer in the Minor Engineering Department on 12.04.2010. Upon an application moved by the petitioner the competent authority in the department of Minor Irrigation has already passed an order on 05.10.2012 granting pay protection as also allowed his services rendered in the Organization to be counted towards qualifying services for pension etc. An application has also been moved by the petitioner for counting of his previous services rendered in the Organization for the purposes of grant of financial up-gradation under the Assured Career Progression scheme (hereinafter referred to as ACP). Some recommendations appear to have been made at the local level in favour of petitioner but no orders have been passed by the competent authority, in that regard, till date. However, the petitioner has come to know of the Government Order issued by the State of Uttar Pradesh on 05.11.2014, which denies benefit of ACP by excluding the services rendered in the earlier Organization. Clause (10) of this Government Order specifically excludes the services rendered in the Central Government or its authorities etc. for the purposes of grant of A.C.P. benefit to the employees of the State Government. Clause (9) and (10) of the Government Order dated 05.11.2014 are relevant for the controversy raised in this petition and are reproduced hereinafter:-

''9. किसी कार्मिक द्वारा प्रदेश के अन्य राजकीय विभागों में समान ग्रेड वेतन में की गयी नियमित सेवा को वित्तीय स्तरोन्न्यन के लिए गणना में लिया जायेगा, परन्तु ऐसे मामलो में ए0सी0पी0 की व्यवस्था के अन्तर्गत देय किसी लाभ हेतु नये विभाग के पद पर परिवीक्षा अवधि ;च्तवइंजपवद च्मतपवकद्ध सन्तोषजनकरूप से पूर्ण करने के उपरान्त ही विचार किया जायेगा एवं सम्बन्धित लाभ देय तिथि से ही अनुमन्य कराया जायेगा।

10- केन्द्र सरकार/स्थानीय निकाय/स्वशासी संस्था/सार्वजनिक उपक्रम एवं निगम में की गयी पूर्व सेवा को वित्तीय स्तरोन्न्यन के लिए गणना में नहीं लिया जायेगा। ''

2. Petitioner, accordingly, has challenged clause (10) of the Government Order dated 05.11.2014 by filing the present writ petition. It is alleged that Clause (10) of the Government Order dated 05.11.2014 is violative of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. A further prayer is made in this petition to command the respondents to count petitioner's services rendered in the Organization for the grant of pay upgradation under the ACP scheme. Reliance is placed upon the judgments of Apex Court in Food Corporation of India Vs. Ashis Kumar Gupta (2009) 7 SCC 734 and Purshottam Lal Vs. Union of India (1973) 1 SCC 651.

3. A counter affidavit has been filed by the State disputing petitioner's right to claim financial upgradation under the ACP scheme. A rejoinder affidavit has been filed by the petitioner denying the averments made in the counter affidavit and reiterating the averments made in the writ petition.

4. I have heard Sri Vikas Budhwar, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Vishal Singh, learned State Counsel for the respondents and have perused the materials brought on record.

5. The short question that arises for consideration in the facts of the present case is as to whether the State Government is justified in restricting the period of working in the employment of State, on the same scale, as a condition for grant of ACP benefit, and thereby denying services rendered earlier to other bodies like the Central Government/ Local Body/ Autonomous Body/ Government Corporation etc. The other connected issue is with regard to legality of Clause (10) of the Government Order dated 05.11.2014, and whether it offends Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India?

6. Facts giving rise to the controversy raised in this petition have already been noticed and, therefore, needs no reiteration. The moot question remains whether petitioner's working in the Organization is liable to be counted for the purposes of grant of financial upgradation under ACP scheme, introduced vide Government Order dated 05.11.2014.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the State cannot discriminate between employees/ officers engaged in the State Government vis-a-vis employees of the Central Government, Local bodies, Autonomous body, Public Sector Undertaking and Corporation etc., while extending benefit of financial upgradation under the ACP scheme. Argument is that Clause (10) is violative of Article 14 read with Article 39(A) of the Constitution of India inasmuch as having been appointed in the concerned department of the State of U.P. i.e. Minor Irrigation Department in the present case, the attributes referable to his earlier employment gets extinct and that all benefits admissible to an employee of the State Government are liable to be extended to him also. Learned counsel for the petitioner places reliance upon observation of Apex Court contained in para 29, 30 and 32 of Food Corporation of India and others Vs. Ashish Kumar Ganguli (2009) 7 SCC 734. The observations, relied upon, are reproduced hereinafter:-

"29. A statutory authority or an administrative authority must exercise its jurisdiction one way or the other so as to enable the employees to take recourse to such remedies as are available to them in law, if they are aggrieved thereby. The question which, however, arises for consideration is as to whether having exercised its jurisdiction in favour of a class of employees, a statutory authority can deny a similar relief to another class of employees. In a case of this nature, in our opinion, the writ court was entitled to declare such a stand taken by the statutory authority as discriminatory on arriving at a finding that both the classes are entitled to the benefit of a statutory rule.

30. It is contended that the deputationists who were the Central Government employees were transferred in terms of Section 12A of the Act. We may notice sub-section (3) thereof, which reads as under :

"12.(3) An officer or other employee transferred by an order made under sub-section (1) shall, on and from the date of transfer, cease to be an employee of the Central Government and become an employee of the Corporation with such designation as the Corporation may determine and shall subject to the provisions of sub-sections (4), (4A), (4B), (4C), (5) and (6) to be governed by the regulations made by the Corporation under this Act as respects remuneration and other conditions of service including pension, leave and provident fund, and shall continue to be an officer or employee of the Corporation unless and until his employment is terminated by the Corporation."

As in terms of the aforementioned provision, the employees so transferred would be deemed to be the employees of the Corporation upon cessation of the relationship of employer and employee between the Central Government and themselves and they would be subject to the provisions of the same regulations. We fail to understand, why the benefit of the said regulations shall be denied to the employees who were deputed to the Corporation from the State Government cadre.

32. Thus, for all intent and purport, the past services of the Central Government employees and the State Government employee whether appointed in the service of the Corporation by way of transfer or by way of absorption would result in cessation of relationship of employer and employee between the Central Government or the State Government as the case may be and the employees concerned. In other words, until their absorption, the respondents were the employees of the State Government and they become the employees of the Corporation only upon their absorptions. Furthermore in the cases of both the Central Government employees as also the State Government employees, common regulation would bind them since their absorption in the service of the Corporation either in terms of sub-section (3) of Section 2A of the Act or in terms of the order of absorption passed in respect of each of the respondents."

8. Sri Budhwar, learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that grant of financial upgradation under ACP scheme is based upon acceptance of pay commission recommendation of the year 2008. Argument is that once Pay Committee recommendations are accepted, provisions thereof would have to be implemented in its entirety and the services rendered by State Government employee earlier to Central Government etc. cannot be ignored for the purposes. It is also contended that classification introduced vide Government Order dated 05.11.2014, restricting ACP benefits to employees of State Government alone is clearly arbitrary and violates Article 14 of the Constitution of India. It is also urged that classification made on the basis of erstwhile appointing authority, as is sought to be done herein, is clearly impermissible in law. Learned counsel for the petitioner also places reliance upon the observation contained in para 14 of the Apex Court judgment in case of Purshottam Lal Vs. Union of India (1973) 1 SCC 651 which is reproduced hereinafter:-

"14. Mr. Dhebar on behalf of the Government maintains the same position and he says that the Pay Commission's Report did not deal with the case of the petitioners. We are unable to accept this contention. The terms of reference are wide, and if any category of Government servants were excluded material should have been placed before this Court. The Pay Commission has clearly stated that for the purposes of their enquiry they had taken all persons in the civil services of the Central Government or holding civil posts under that Government and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India, to be Central Government employees. It is not denied by Mr. Dhebar that the petitioners are paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India. "

9. Before proceeding to examine the contention advanced on behalf of the petitioner it would be necessary to examine essential ingredients/ attributes of the Assured Career Progression scheme itself. The Government Order dated 05.11.2014 records that previous Government Orders in respect of grant of ACP benefit are not getting implemented due to various reasons and, therefore, in supersession of previous Government Orders issued from time to time, the new Government Order dated 05.11.2014 is being issued. Clause (3) of this Government Order contemplates grant of three financial upgradation upon completion of regular satisfactory service in the employment of State i.e. 10 years, 16 years and 26 years, respectively. Manner of computation of such term has been specified in various clauses of the Government Order. It is thereafter that Clauses (9) and (10) have been added which have already been extracted above.

10. The justification for existence of the ACP scheme lies in acceptance of settled proposition in service jurisprudence that genuine stagnation in employment due to lack of adequate promotional avenues is detrimental to efficiency of administration and must be avoided. Opportunity of advancement in service career by promotion is considered a normal incidence of service. Efficient administration alone can serve public interest.

11. In the case of Council of Scientific and Industrial Research Vs.

K.G.S. Bhatt (1989) 4 SCC 635 Hon'ble Supreme Court has been pleased to emphasize the importance of ACP scheme to obviate stagnation in service. Para 9 of the report is relevant and is reproduced hereinafter:-

"...It is often said and indeed, adroitly, an organisation public or private does not 'hire a hand' but engages or employs a whole man. The person is recruited by an organisation not just for a job, but for a whole career. Once must, therefore, be given an opportunity to advance. This is the oldest and most important feature of the free enterprise system. The opportunity for advancement is a requirement for progress of any organisation. It is an incentive for personnel development as well. Every management must provide realistic opportunities for promising employees to move upward. The organisation that fails to develop a satisfactory procedure for promotion is bound to pay a severe penalty in terms of administrative costs, misallocation of personnel, low morale, and ineffectual performance, among both non-managerial employees and their supervisors. There cannot be any modern management much less any career planning, manpower development, management development much less any career planning, manpower development, management development, etc. which is not related to a system of promotions."

12. The observation in the case of Council of Scientific Industrial Research (supra) has been consistently followed in subsequent decisions of the Apex Court. See: (State of Tripura Vs. K.K. Rai (2004) 9 SCC 65 and Hukum Chandra Gupta Vs. ICAR (2012) 12 SCC 666).

13. Plea of stagnation in service can ordinarily be set up where an employee in his entire length of service is not even allowed three promotional avenues. The right against stagnation is thus available against the employer who fails to provide reasonable avenues of promotion to its employees. It is available with reference to the length of service in a particular employment/ organization. Financial upgradation as per ACP scheme is intended to compensate for the lack of promotional avenue available with the employer concerned and the benefit under the scheme is personal to the employee concerned.

14. The counting of services for the purposes of awarding financial upgradation under the ACP scheme, therefore, has a direct co-relation with the existence of stagnation in the employment itself. The employment is with reference to a particular employer or else, the very justification for existence of ACP scheme would seize to exist.

15. Where the employee takes up a new employment with a different employer, he can not ask for counting of his services rendered to the previous employer in order to make out a case of stagnation against the subsequent employer. Such a plea can ordinarily be raised with reference to the length of services rendered to the employer concerned only.

16. Clause (9) of the Government Order dated 05.11.2014 also limits the counting of regular service in the same grade of pay, in other Government Departments of the same employer i.e. State, and the benefit of ACP would become payable only after satisfactory completion of probationary period. The requirement, as per it, is that the employer remains the same i.e. State of Uttar Pradesh, and that the employee has continued in the same scale of pay for long without having requisite avenues of promotion.

17. In a case where the Government Servant has taken up fresh employment with the same employer i.e. the State, but on a higher grade of pay, then the services rendered earlier on the lower scale of pay would not be counted for the grant of benefit under the ACP scheme. This clause, therefore, clearly reveals that avoidance of stagnation for the employee concerned is with reference to his working for long period, in the same scale of pay without any promotional avenue.

18. Similarly, where services are rendered to a different employer i.e. one having distinct juristic personality i.e. Central Government / Local authority / Public Sector Undertaking / Government Corporation etc. the services offered to the previous employer would not be counted for the purposes of alleging stagnation against the new/ subsequent employer i.e. State of U.P.

19. The classification of employer vide Clauses (9) and (10) of the Government Order dated 05.11.2014, for the purposes of implementing ACP scheme in question, therefore, has a direct nexus with the object sought to be achieved and can not be said to be arbitrary or unreasonable inasmuch as it is based on intelligible differentia.

20. So far as judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Food Corporation of India Vs. Ashis Kumar Ganguli (supra) is concerned, this case related to grant of advance increment where distinction was drawn on the basis of source of recruitment. The Apex Court observed that deputationists from the State Government who have been absorbed in the employment of Corporation can not be treated as a class distinct from the employees on transfer from Central Government to the Corporation (Food Corporation of India) once they are governed by the same set of rules. Such classification has been held to violate equality clause enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

21. The judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Food Corporation of India (supra) has no applicability on the facts of the present case inasmuch as the distinction based on source of recruitment had no nexus with the object of grant of advance increment. This, however, is not the case here. In the present case, the benefit of financial upgradation under ACP scheme has direct co-relation with the existence of stagnation in a particular employment. Once the employment itself changes the services rendered to the previous employer would not be relevant and cannot be counted to determine stagnation in the subsequent employment or to grant financial upgradation in lieu thereof.

22. In Purshottam Lal (supra) the Apex Court had upheld plea of discrimination raised before it under Article 32 of Constitution of India. The Apex Court found that benefits of revised pay scale was admissible to the writ petitioners w.e.f. July 1, 1959, in accordance with recommendations of Pay Commission. Once the Pay Commission report was accepted the part implementation thereof was not approved. This judgment also has no applicability to the facts of the present case.

23. The grant of benefit under ACP scheme is otherwise a matter of policy and would not require interference by this Court once the plea of arbitrariness fails. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Secretory, Government (NCT Of Delhi) and others Vs. Grade-I DASS Officers Association and others (2014) 13 SCC 296 has been pleased to observe that power of judicial review would not be warranted once the policy itself is not found violative of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India.

24. The petitioner had worked with the Organization from 2001 to 2010 whereafter he has been offered fresh appointment in the Department of Minor Irrigation of the State of Uttar Pradesh. The fresh employment offered to petitioner is with a different employer and his services with the subsequent employer would be governed by entirely distinct set of rules from what existed earlier. The period of service rendered hitherto to the previous employer would not be relevant for the purposes of examining plea of stagnation against the subsequent employer, which alone justifies grant of financial upgradation under the ACP scheme in question. Other issues like pay protection and counting of services for grant of pensionary benefits are governed by separate and distinct consideration and set of rules/ executive instructions and have already been allowed to the petitioner by the subsequent employer and, therefore, these aspects requires no further examination.

25. In view of the aforesaid deliberations and discussions, I have no hesitation in rejecting challenge laid to Clause (10) of the Government Order dated 05.11.2014 on the ground of it being arbitrary and violative of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India. Clause (10) of the Government Order is found to be just and valid. Petitioner's plea for counting of his services rendered to the previous employer, for determining stagnation in the employment of the Department of Minor Irrigation, and thereby to grant financial upgradation in lieu thereof, also can not be sustained. Writ petition consequently fails and is dismissed. No order is passed as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajendra Rai, learned counsel for petitioners and Sri P.K. Pandey, Advocate holding brief of Sri Sharad Ranjan Nigam, learned counsel for respondent.

2. Writ Petition (A) No.10265 of 2005 (hereinafter referred to as "Petition-1") has been filed under Article 226 of the Constitution by nine petitioners namely, Durga Prasad, Prem Chandra Dubey, Chandrajeet Yadav, Krishna Joshi, Sri Ram Dubey, Vijay Shanker Singh, Krishna Mohan Tiwari, Ram Nagina Yadav and Arvind Rai praying for issue of writ of certiorari quashing order dated 14.02.2005 (Annexure 4 to writ petition) in so far as it relates to up-gradation of respondents 5 to 19 to the post of Sub Inspector, Railway Protection Force (hereinafter referred to as "R.P.F.") from the post of Assistant Sub Inspector, R.P.F. Petitioners have also prayed for issue of a writ of mandamus commanding respondents 3 and 4 not to apply rule of reservation for Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe while restructuring the cadre of Group C of R.P.F. Employee (Combatised).

3. All the petitioners are substantively appointed Assistant Sub Inspector (hereinafter referred to as "A.S.I.") in R.P.F. and posted at different places in North Eastern Railway, Gorakhpur (hereinafter referred to as "N.E.R., G.K.P.") when writ petition was filed. Private respondents 5 to 19 are also A.S.I.s in R.P.F. in different areas under control of N.E.R., G.K.P. A seniority list of A.S.I.s under control of N.E.R., G.K.P. was published on 30.01.2004/14.02.2004 in which petitioners are placed at serial numbers 26, 28, 31, 32, 34, 35, 36, 38 and 39 respectively. Railway Board decided to restructure Group 'C' and Group 'D' cadres of R.P.F. and Railway Protection Special Force (hereinafter referred to as "R.P.S.F."), both "Combatised" and "Non-Combatised", and issued a Circular dated 15.09.2004, determining 01.11.2003 as the date of giving effect for restructuring in respect of Artisan and Ancillary categories of RPF/RPSF Non-Combatised, and 01.07.2004 for restructuring in respect of 'combatised' staff of RPF/RPSF. The detail and the manner in which said restructuring is required to be done, was provided in aforesaid Circular but in para 9 it was said that existing instructions with regard to reservation of Scheduled Caste and Schedulec Tribe wherever applicable shall continue to apply. The restructuring was made on existing strength, but by up-gradation of certain posts. Procedure for existing classification and filling up of vacancies was prescribed in para 3, which reads as under :-

3. The existing classification of the posts covered by these orders as 'selection' and non-selection', as the case may be, remains unchanged. However, for the purpose of implementation of these orders the existing selection procedure will stand modified to the extent that the selection will be based only on scrutiny of service records and confidential reports without holding any written/viva-voce/physical test. In this procedure, the selection Board is supposed to consider the claims of the eligible staff one by one in order of their seniority. It will scrutinise the service records and confidential reports of staff beyond the number equal to the number of posts calculated in terms of para 3.1 below only to the extent the number of staff is found unsuitable for promotion. Further while implementing the restructuring on the basis of above procedure, instructions contained in Board's letter No.E(NG) I-92/CR/# dt. 08.10.93 should be kept in view. Naturally under this procedure the categorization as 'outstanding' will not figure in the panels. This modified selection procedure has been decided upon by the Ministry of Railways as a one time exception by special dispensation, in view of the numbers involved, with the objective of expediting the implementation of these orders. In the case of Artisan staff, the benefit of restructuring under these orders will be extended on passing the requisite Trade Test.

3.1 Normal vacancies existing on the date of effect viz, 01.11.03 (in respect of non-combatised staff) or 01.07.2004 (in respect of combatised staff), except direct recruitment quota, and those arising on that date from this cadre restructuring including chain/resultant vacancies should be filled in the following sequence :

(i) From panels approved on or before 19.03.2004 (in respect of non-combatised staff) or 01.07.2004 (in respect of combatised staff) and current on that date ;

(ii) and the balance in the manner indicated in para 3 above.

3.2 Such selections which have not been finalised by 19.03.2004 (in respect of non-combatised staff) and 01.07.04 (in respect of combatised staff) should be cancelled/abandoned.

3.3 All vacancies arising from the date following the date of effect (viz. 02.11.03 in respect of non-combatised staff and 02.07.04 in respect of compatised staff) will be filled by normal selection procedure.

3.4 All vacancies arising out of the restructuring (including chain vacancies arising out of restructuring) should be filled up by senior employees who should be given benefit of the promotion from the respective date of effect whereas for the normal vacancies existing on the date of effect junior employees should be posted by modified selection procedure but they will get promotion and higher pay from the date of taking over the posts as per normal rules. Thus the special benefit of the promotion from the date of effect (viz. 01.11.03 in respect of non-combatised staff) is available only for vacancies arising out of restructuring (including chain vacancies arising out of restructuring) and for other vacancies the normal rules of prospective promotion from the date of filling up of vacancy will apply.

3.5 In case where percentages have been reduced in lower grade and no new post becomes available as a result of restructuring, the existing vacancies already available on the respective date of effect should be filled up by the normal selection procedure.

3.6 Employees who retire/resign in between the period from the respective date of effect (viz. 01.11.03 in respect of non-combatised staff and 01.07.2004 in respect of combatised staff) to the date of actual implementation of these orders, will be eligible for the fixation benefits and arrears under these orders from the date of effect.

3.7 It is also clarified that the panels approved till 19.03.2004 and current on above date are to be operated to cover only the already existing vacancies of non-combatised categories (except DR quota) as on 01.11.2003 as per Para 3.1 (i) above and the remaining existing vacancies (except DR quota) and those arising out of restructuring (including chain/resultant vacancies) should be filled up as per para 3.1 (ii) above. In this connection the clarification contained in Board's letter No. III/2004/CRC/3 dt. 03.06.2004 may also be kept in view."

4. As per Annexure-A to the aforesaid Circular, revised percentage of various posts in rank/category of RPF (Combatised) was as under :

Rank/ Category	Pay Scale	Revised %age
Inspector -I Inspector-II	6500 - 10500 +200 SP 6500 - 10500	2.75
Sub Inspector	5500 - 9000	4.50
Asst. Sub Inspector	4000 - 6000	7.75
Head Constable	3200 - 4900	34.00
Constable	3050 - 4590	51.00

5. The question, "whether reservation will apply and no additional posts are created due to restructuring of cadre", came up for consideration before Supreme Court in All India Non SC/ST Employees Association Railway Versus V. K. Agarwal and others, (2001) 10 SCC 165, Cont. Petition (Civil) 304 of 1999 in Civil Appeal No.1481 of 1996, and Supreme Court in its order dated 31.01.2001, clarified the position as under :

"ORDER

It appears from all the decisions so far that if as a result of re- classification or re-adjustment there is no additional posts which are created and it is a case of upgradation, then the principle of reservation will not be applicable*. It is on this basis that* this court on 19th November, 1998 had held that reservation for SC & ST is not Applicable in the upgradation of existing posts and civil civil appeal no.1481/1996 and the connected matters were decided against the Union Of India*. The effect of this is that where the total number of posts remained unaltered, though in different scales of pay, as a result of re-grouping and the effect of which may be that some of the employees who were in the scale of pay of Rs.550-700 will go in the higher scales,* it would be a case of upgradation of posts and not a case of additional vacancy or post being created to which the reservation principle would apply. It is only if in addition to the total number of existing posts some additional posts are created that in respect of those additional posts the reservation will apply, but with regard to these additional posts the dispute does not arise in the present case*. The present case is restricted to all existing employees who were re-distributed in-to different scales of pay as a result of the said upgradation.*

The Union Of India shall re-work the seniority in the light of the clarification made today and report back within 6 weeks from today.

List after 6 weeks."

(emphasis added)

6. Following aforesaid order, an Office Memorandum was issued by Ministry of Personnel, advising Ministry of Railway to implement directions of Supreme Court contained in Union of India versus V. K. Sirothia, 2008 (9) SCC 283 and further clarification made in Contempt Petition No.304 of 1999, All India Non SC/ST Employees Association (Railways) Vs. V. K. Agarwal and others (supra). Government of India's Circular dated 25.10.2004 reads as under :

" The undersigned is directed to refer to the Ministry of Railways U.O. Note No. 2004-E(SCT)I/25/1 dated 7th May, 2004 on the subject noted above and to say that the Supreme Court in the matter of Union of India versus V.K. Sirothia has held that reservation for SCs and STs will not be applicable when making promotions to the posts upgraded on account of restructuring of cadres. The Hon'ble court in the Contempt Petition No.304 of 1999 [All India Non SC/ST Employees Association versus V.K. Agarwal And Others] further clarified that where the total number of posts remained unaltered, though in different scales of pay, as a result of re-grouping, it would be a case of upgradation of posts and not a case of additional vacancy or post being created to which the reservation principle would apply. If the case is restricted to all existing employees who were re-distributed into different scales of pay as a result of upgradation, there cannot be any reservation.

2. The matter has been examined keeping in view the observations of the Supreme Court. The Ministry of Railways are advised to implement the directions of the Supreme Court and *not to apply reservation while filling the posts upgraded on account of restructuring, by the existing employees."

(emphasis added)

7. Ignoring same, however, official respondents have applied reservation on upgraded cadre and promoted respondents 5 to 19 by impugned order dated 14.02.2005, mentioning their names from serial number 24 to 38 though they are all much junior to the petitioners finding place in seniority list from serial number 40 to 71 and, therefore, impugned list is illegal.

8. Respondents 1 to 4 have filed counter affidavit. It is said that before restructuring 123 posts of Sub Inspectors were sanctioned, out of which 3 posts were ex-cadre. 50 % of vacancies are to be filled in by direct recruitment and 50 % by departmental selection. Thus, 60 posts comes to be filled through different source of recruitment. As a result of restructuring 40 vacancies came together with 60 posts available for departmental selection and total comes to 100 posts. Out of 100 posts reservation for S.C. is 15 % and for S.T. is 7.5 %, but respondents could find only 7 S.C. and 3 S.T. candidates suitable and available against upgraded vacancies of Sub Inspectors and they have been promoted. Rule of reservation has been applied in the light of Circular dated 15.09.2004, clearly providing for reservation. With regard to directions of Supreme Court in V. K. Agarwal (supra), it is clear that aforesaid direction is not consistent with law laid down by Supreme Court in R. K. Sabharwal Vs. State of Punjab, 1995 (2) SCC 745 followed in Girdhari Lal Kohli vs. Union of India, Writ Petition No.7386-93 of 1984 decided on 26.07.1995.

9. Petitioners have filed rejoinder affidavit and I may refer to the same at a later stage whenever is required.

10. Counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of respondents 5, 6, 9, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 18. It is said that benefit of reservation has been given based on roster as per Supreme Court Judgment in R. K. Sabharwal (supra). Vacancy position of Cadre of Railway Protection Force, N.E. Railway, Gorakhpur as on 01.07.2004 in form of chart is given as under :

Rank	Existing % of sanctioned strength	Revised % of sanctioned strength	Sanctioned Strength Prior to 1.7.2004	Total posts After revised % of cadre under restructuring on 1.7.04	Vacancies created under restructuring w.e.f 1.7.0	Existing Vacancy Prior to Restructuring	Resultant vacancy

Inspector-I 6,500-10,500		2.75	67	84	+17	12	–
Sub Inspector Gr.5 500-9000		4.50	123	137	+14	2	29
Asstt. Sub-Inspector 4,000-6,000/-		7.75	180	235	+55	22	16
Hd. Constable 3,200-4,900		34.00	1059	739	-26	320	370
Constable 3,050-4,590/-		51.00	1609	1343	-60	264	574

11. The private respondents have also relied on Full Bench judgment passed by Central Administrative Tribunal, Banglore Bench, Banglore in M. L. Rajaram Naik and others vs. The Additional Director, CGHS, Banglore and others holding that appointment to the upgraded post amounts to promotion attracting the principles of reservation for special categories like SCs and Sts.

12. Writ Petition (A) No.27418 of 2005 (hereinafter referred to as "Petition-2") has been filed under Article 226 of the Constitution by three petitioners namely, Sanjay Kumar Singh, Babban Kumar Singh and Rakesh Kumar Singh assailing upgradation of respondents 5, 6 and 7 on the post of Inspector, R.P.F., North Eastern Railway, Gorakhpur on the ground that reservation could not have been applied. Respondent 5's upgradation has been challenged on additional ground that earlier he was posted at East Central Railway, Hajipur and thereafter transferred, therefore, he could not have been considered for restructuring. With respect to respondents 6 and 7, it is also contended that reservation quota is already full and, therefore, reservation cannot be applied.

13. Here also, the stand taken by official respondent in the counter affidavit is similar to that as has been taken in Petition I, therefore, I am not repeating the same.

14. The short issue up for consideration in these matters is "whether upgradation of posts on account of restructuring of cadre, can be treated as promotion so as to attract provisions of reservation relating to Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe and Other Backward Class etc".

15. From facts discussed above it is evident that as a result of restructuring, lower posts of Constable and Head Constable have reduced while there is increase in superior posts like A.S.I., S.I.

and Inspector-I. The existing strength of A.S.I. prior to 01.07.2004 was 180 and as a result of restructuring with effect from 01.07.2004, it has become 235.

16. I find that initially the issue, whether upgradation of posts will amount to promotion or not, was raised before Central Administrative Tribunals at different places wherein answer was given in negative. Union of India brought the matter in appeal and these appeals were decided vide judgment dated 19.11.1998 by Supreme Court in Union of India vs V. K. Sirothia (supra), and the short judgement reads as under :

"CA No.3622 of 1995

1. Heard counsel on both sides.

2. The finding of the Tribunal that "the so-called promotion as a result of redistribution of posts is not promotion attracting reservation" on the facts of the case, appears to be based on good reasoning. On facts, it is seen that it is a case of upgradation on account of restructuring of the cadres, therefore, the question of reservation will not arise. We do not find any ground to interfere with the order of the Tribunal.

3. The civil appeal is dismissed. No costs.

CA No.9149 of 1995

4. In view of the order passed in Civil Appeal no.3622 of 1995, etc., this appeal has to be allowed as in the order under appeal the Tribunal has taken a contrary view. The appeal is, therefore, allowed. No costs."

(emphasis added)

17. After above judgment it appears that grievance of non compliance was made in Contempt Petition No.304 of 1999, All India Non-SC/ST Employees' Association (Railway) vs. V. K. Agarwal and others (supra), wherein Supreme Court passed order on 31.01.2001 clarifying the position as under :-

"1. It appears from all the decisions so far that if as a result of reclassification or readjustment, there are no additional posts which are created and it is a case of upgradation, then the principle of reservation will not be applicable. It is on this basis that this Court on 19-11-1998 had held that reservation for SC and ST is not applicable in the upgradation of existing posts and Civil Appeal No.1481 of 1996 and the connected matters were decided against the Union of India. The effect of this is that where the total number of posts remained unaltered, though in different scales of pay, as a result of regrouping and the effect of which may be that some of the employees who were in the scale of pay of Rs.550-700 will go into the higher scales, it would be a case of upgradation of posts and not a case of additional vacancy or post being created to which the reservation principle would apply. It is only if in addition to the total number of existing posts some additional posts are created that in respect of those additional posts the reservation will apply, but with regard to those additional posts the dispute does not arise in the present case. The present case is restricted to all existing employees who were redistributed into different scales of pay as a result of the said upgradation.

2. The Union of India shall rework the seniority in the light of the clarification made today and report back within 6 weeks from today.

3. List after 6 weeks."

18. It is on the basis of these two orders of Supreme Court, petitioners have claimed that provisions of reservation could not have been followed and, therefore, promotion of respondents 5 to 19 in Petition-1 and respondents 5 to 7 in Petition-2 on upgraded posts treating the vacancies reserved, are illegal.

19. However, I find that subsequently the same issue has been examined by Supreme Court in detail in Union of India Vs Pushpa Rani and others, 2008 (9) SCC 244. Therein cadre restructuring given effect vide Railway Board's letter No.PC-III/2003/CRC/6 dated 09.10.2003 was up for consideration. Central Administrative Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") at its Bench in Chandigarh and Allahabad decided Original Applications filed before it under Section 19 of Administrative Tribunal Act, 1985 in favour of applicant employees following judgment in All India Non-SC/ST Employees' Association (Railway) Vs. V. K. Agarwal (supra). Writ petitions filed before Punjab and Haryana High Court and this Court, respectively, were dismissed. Thereafter matter was taken by Union of India before Supreme Court. It noted that till 1997 policy of reservation was applied on vacancy-wise basis. Later on following judgment of Supreme Court in R. K. Sabharwal (supra) wherein it was held that rosters must be operated with reference to the posts and not the vacancies, the policy was changed. Earlier provisions were revised by Railway Board's Circular No.113/97 vide Letter No.95-E (SCT)1/49/5 (1) dated 21.08.1997.

20. Provisions of restructuring which was up for consideration in Union of India Vs. V. K. Sirothia (supra) were provided in Railway Board's Circular No.181/85 issued vide Letter No.PCIII/84/UPG/19 dated 25.06.1985. Later on restructuring policy was circulated vide Letter No.PC-III/2003/CRC/6 dated 09.10.2003. Noticing provisions of both Circulars dated 25.06.1985 and 09.10.2003, Supreme Court found that there was substantial differences/dissimilarities in the provisions of two Circulars and those differences were highlighted in para 29 of the judgment which reads as under :

*"29. A cursory reading of the relevant extracts of Letters dated 25-6-1985 and 9-10-2003 reproduced hereinabove may give an impression that the policies contained therein are similar but a closer scrutiny thereof reveals the following stark dissimilarities :

*(i) In terms of Para 5.1 of Letter dated 25-6-1985, the existing classification of the posts covered by the restructuring orders i.e. "selection" and "non-selection" was to be retained. However, for the purpose of promoting an individual railway employee there was deemed modification of the selection procedure and the promotion was to be made without holding any written test and/or viva-voce. As against this, action in terms of para 4 of letter dated 9.10.2003 is required to be taken for making appointment on the basis of selection/non-selection/suitability/Trade Test and in para 5, the requirement of D&A/Vigilance clearance has been made mandatory for effecting promotion with reference to the cut off date.

*(ii) While the policy contained in letter dated 25.6.1985 did not specify any minimum period of services as a condition for promotion, para 6 of letter dated 9.10.2003 lays down the requirement of minimum period of services as a condition for promotion and also declares that residency period prescribed for promotion to various categories should not be relaxed.

(iii) Para 9 of letter dated 25.6.1985 postulated retention of basic functions, duties and responsibilities and addition of other duties and responsibilities, whereas para 7 of letter dated 9.10.2003 mandates that posts being placed in the higher scales of pay should include the duties and responsibilities of greater importance because restructuring is contemplated on functional, operational and administrative considerations.

(iv) While the policy contained in letter dated 9.10.2003 postulates progressive phasing out of excess number of posts in a particular cadre, no such provision was made in the policy circulated vide letter dated 25.6.1985.

(v) The instructions contained in letter dated 25.6.1985 did not provide for direct recruitment against upgraded posts, but para 15 of letter dated 9.10.2003 unequivocally lays down that direct recruitment percentages will not be applicable to the additional posts becoming available as a result of restructuring and the same will apply to normal vacancies after the cut-off date*.*

(vi) Para 18 of letter dated 9.10.2003 shows that the scheme of restructuring is a self-financing and expenditure neutral proposition. There was no such provision in the earlier policy.

(vii) Annexure 1 appended to letter dated 25.6.1985 shows that the percentage of the upgraded posts becoming available as a result of restructuring varied from 20 to 60 in different grades, except in the cadre of Tool Checkers where the percentage varied from 10 to 40. As against this, the percentage of additional posts (as indicated in Annexures A to K appended to letter dated 1.10.2003) becoming available as a result of restructuring of different cadres in Group C and D posts varied from 1 to 10, except in one or two cadres where it was more than 20."

21. Thereafter, Court in para 30 of judgment said as under :-

"30. From what we have noted above, it is clear that the policies contained in letters dated 25.6.1985 and 9.10.2003 are substantially dis-similar. The exercise of restructuring envisaged in the first policy was in the nature of upgradation of substantial number of posts in different cadres and the upgraded posts were to be filled simply by scrutinizing the service records of the employees without holding any written and/or viva voce test and there was no merit based selection. In contrast, the restructuring exercise envisaged in letter dated 9.10.2003 resulted in creation of additional posts in some cadres with duties and responsibilities of greater importance and which could be filled by promotion from amongst the persons fulfilling the conditions of eligibility and satisfying the criteria of suitability and/or merit*. Para 13 of letter dated 9.10.2003 is, in itself, demonstrative of the difference between simple upgradation of posts in the cadre of Supervisors which are required to be filled without subjecting the incumbents of the posts to normal selection procedure whereas the additional posts becoming available in other cadres are required to be filled by promotion."*

(emphasis added)

22. Court further held that in legal parlance, upgradation of a post involves transfer of a post from lower to higher grade and placement of incumbent of that post in higher grade. However, in some service rules provisions are/may be made for denial of higher grade to an employee whose service record may contain adverse entries or who may have suffered punishment. If such provisions are made, they are to be followed as held in D.P. Upadhyay vs. G.M., N.R. Baroda House and Others, 2002 (10) SCC 258.

23. In State of Rajasthan Vs Fateh Chand Soni, (1996) 1 SCC 562, Court held :-

"word "promotion" means "advancement or preferment in honour, dignity, rank or grade". "Promotion" thus not only covers advancement to higher position or rank but also implies advancement to a higher grade. In service law the expression "promotion" has been understood in the wider sense and it can be either to a higher pay scale or to higher post."

(emphasis added)

24. Having said so Court held that once it is recognized that additional posts becoming available as a result of restructuring of different cadres are required to be filled by promotion amongst employees who satisfy the conditions of eligibility and are adjudged suitable, there can be no rational justification to exclude the applicability of policy of reservation while effecting promotions, more so because it has not been shown that the procedure for making appointment by promotion against such additional posts is different that the one prescribed for normal promotion.

25. Thereafter Court referred to Railway Board's Circular dated 09.10.2003 and in paras 35 and 36 said as under :-

"35. A careful reading of the policy contained in letter dated 9.10.2003 shows that with a view to strengthen and rationalize the staffing pattern, the Ministry of Railways had undertaken review of certain cadres. The basis of the review was functional, operational and administrative requirement of the Railways*. This exercise was intended to improve the efficiency of administration by providing incentives to the existing employees in the form of better promotional avenues and at the same time requiring the promotees to discharge more onerous duties. The* policy envisaged that additional posts becoming available in the higher grades as a sequel to restructuring of some of the cadres should be filled by promotion by considering such of the employees who satisfy the conditions of eligibility including the minimum period of service and who are adjudged suitable by the process of selection. This cannot be equated with upgradation of posts which are required to be filled by placing the existing incumbents in the higher grade without subjecting them to the rigor of selection.

36. In view of the above discussion, we hold that the Railway Board did not commit any illegality by directing that the existing instructions with regard to the policy of reservation of posts for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes will apply at the stage of effecting promotion against the additional posts and the Tribunal committed serious illegality by striking down para 14 of letter dated 9.10.2003."

(emphasis added)

26. Thereafter Supreme Court in Union of India vs. Pushpa Rani and others (supra) also examined judgments of various Tribunals up for consideration in appeal including matter decided in Union of India Vs V. K. Sirothia (supra) and its follow up and then in para 59 said as under :-

"59. An analysis of orders passed by the Tribunals and this Court shows that all cases except that of K. Manickaraj's case involved upgradation of large number of posts which could be filled by placing the existing incumbents in the higher grade without subjecting them to the process of selection. Different Benches of the Tribunal referred to the policy decision taken by the Railway Board that reservation policy for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes is not applicable where cadre restructuring results in mass upgradation of posts and held that the administration was required to make appointment/placement against the upgraded posts without reserving posts for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. This Court repeatedly emphasized that the restructuring exercise did not result in creation of new posts/additional posts which could be filled by promotion by following the procedure of selection. Therefore, these decisions are of no help to the cause of the respondents. At the cost of repetition, we consider it necessary to emphasize that restructuring exercise envisaged in letter dated 9.10.2003 resulted in creation of additional posts in most of the cadres covered by the policy and the government had taken a conscious decision to fill up such posts by promotion from amongst eligible and suitable employees and the promotees were burdened with duties and responsibilities of greater importance. Therefore, the Tribunal and High Court were not justified in treating it as a case of upgradation of posts simplicitor. Consequently, the decision of the Tribunal to quash para 14 of letter dated 9.10.2003 and direction given for making appointments de hors the policy of reservation are legally unsustainable."

(emphasis added)

27. Ultimately, Supreme Court set aside orders of Tribunals and High Courts and upheld reservation as a result of restructuring of posts and promotion made thereunder.

28. I have examined the relevant provisions contained in Railway Board's Circular providing restructuring in the case in hand i.e. dated 15.09.2004 with Railway Board's Circular dated 09.10.2003 and find that the provisions are more or less similar to Railway Board's Circular dated 09.10.2003, which was considered by Supreme Court in Union of India Vs. Pushpa Rani (supra). This is evident from following clauses of Circular dated 15.09.2004 :

"1.1. This restructuring of cadres will be with reference to the sanctioned cadre strength as on the respective date of effect as indicated above. The staff who will be placed in higher grades as a result of implementation of these orders will also draw pay in higher grades from the respective date of effect.

*2. Staff selected and posted against the additional higher grade posts as a result of restructuring will have their pay fixed under Rule 1313 (FR-22)(I)(a)(1) R-II from the date of effect with the usual option for pay fixation as per extant rules. The benefit of fixation of pay from the date of of effect should also be given on promotion against chain/resultant vacancies, if the same would arise purely due to the restructuring.

3. The existing classification of the posts covered by these orders as 'selection' and non-selection', as the case may be, remains unchanged*. However, for the purpose of implementation of these orders* the existing selection procedure will stand modified to the extent that the selection will be based only on scrutiny of service records and confidential reports without holding any written/viva-voce/physical test. In this procedure, the selection Board is supposed to consider the claims of the eligible staff one by one in order of their seniority. It will scrutinise the service records and confidential reports staff beyond the number equal to the number of posts calculated in terms of para 3.1 below only to the extent the number of staff is found unsuitable for promotion. Further while implementing the restructuring on the basis of the above procedure, instructions contained in Board's letter No.E(NG)I-92/CR/3 dated 08.10.93 should be kept in view. Naturally under this procedure the categorization as 'outstanding' will not figure in the panels. This modified selection procedure has been decided upon by the Ministry of Railways as a one time exception by special dispensation, in view of the numbers involved, with the objective of expending the implementation of these orders. In the case of Artisan staff, the benefit of restructuring under these orders will be extended on passing the requisite 'Trade Test'.

3.4. All vacancies arising out of the restructuring (including chain vacancies arising out of restructuring) should be filled up by senior employees who should be given benefit of the promotion from the respective date of effect whereas for the normal vacancies existing on the date of effect junior employees should be posted by modified selection procedure but they will get promotion and higher pay from the date of taking over of the posts as per normal rules. Thus the special benefit of the promotion from the date of effect (viz.01.11.03 in respect of non-combatised staff and 01.07.2004 in respect of combatised staff) is available only for vacancies arising out of restructuring (including chain vacancies arising out of restructuring) and for other vacancies the normal rules of prospective promotion from the date of filling up of vacancy will apply.

4. Extant instructions for D & A/Vigilance clearance will be applicable for effecting promotions under these orders with reference to the respective crucial dates (viz.01.11.2003 in respect of non-combatised staff and 01.07.2004 in respect of combatised staff).

5. While implementing the restructuring orders, instructions regarding minimum period of service for promotion issued from time to time should be followed*. In other words, residency period prescribed for promotions to various categories should not be relaxed.*

6. Since the cadres as detailed in the annexures to this letter are being restructured on functional, operational and administrative considerations, the posts being placed in higher scales of pay as a result of restructuring should include the duties and responsibilities of greater importance."

(emphasis added)

29. The above paragraphs of Circular dated 15.09.2004 I have quoted are broadly similar to the Circular dated 09.10.2003 and it shows that upgradation in the case in hand resulting into increase in posts in superior cadres including that of A.S.I. have been treated to be a promotion, for which eligibility conditions and burdening of different responsibilities of greater importance in the higher posts are all to be shared by Officials, who are promoted against prescribed posts, hence, above judgment will apply with full force in the case in hand.

30. In that view of the matter, I am of the opinion that issued raised in present writ petitions is covered by decision in Union of India Vs. Pushpa Rani (supra) and, therefore, application of provisions of reservation for promotion of respondents 5 to 19 in Petition-1 and respondents 5 to 7 in Petition-2 pursuant to Circular dated 15.09.2004 providing restructuring in Cadre of rank/catogory of RPF (Combatised) which is up for consideration in present writ petitions, is neither illegal nor bad.

31. In the result, both writ petitions fail being devoid of merits and are dismissed accordingly.

32. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

A. Service Law - U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants (Dying in Harness) Rules, 1974 and U.P. Temporary Government Servants (Termination of Service) Rules, 1975 - Compassionate appointment- made on temporary basis , i.e., on probation under Rules 1974-appointment rejected under Rules,1975 - on the ground-that he had applied after five years-bad-compassionate appointment -a regular appointment - not to be treated as " temporary appointment"-Rules,1975 not applicable-if compassionate appointment not obtained by fraud-termination is arbitrary.

Held- it may be noticed that compassionate appointment of petitioner has not been terminated on the ground that he could not perform satisfactorily on probation but it has been terminated on the ground that he applied for compassionate appointment after five years. Though term of five years under Rules 1974 is not a period of limitation and instead a compassionate appointment could have been allowed even after five years if condition of family member of deceased employee continuing and persisting, penurious, justifying compassionate appointment. 8. Sr. General Manager, Ordnance Factory vs. Central Administrative Tribunal and others, 2016(2) ADJ (Distinguished)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Bhanu Bhushan Jauhari, learned counsel for petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for State of U.P., and perused the record.

2. Principal reliefs claimed in this writ petition reads as under:

"(i) to issue writ order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing order dated 10.5.2002 (Annexure No. 9).

(ii) to issue writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing and commanding the respondents to treat the petitioner in service and to make regular payment of the salary and other allowances of the petitioner with effect from 1.11.2001 till retirement of the petitioner."

3. It is contended by learned counsel for petitioner that petitioner was appointed as Lower Grade Clerk in the office of Executive Engineer Bhawan/Marg Service Khand Lok Nirman Vibhag Bareilly on compassionate basis vide order dated 1.10.1999 passed by Chief Engineer, West Zone, Lok Nirman Vibhag, U.P. Bareilly on probation. Thereafter, show cause notice was issued to petitioner on 2.1.2002 stating that as father of petitioner died on 22.12.1984 and application for appointment on compassionate basis under U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants (Dying-in-Harness) Rules, 1974 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules 1974") was submitted after more than 5 years, so he should show cause why his appointment be not terminated.

4. Petitioner submitted reply dated 14.1.2002. Thereafter impugned order dated 10.5.2002 has been passed terminating petitioner under U.P. Temporary Government Servants (Termination of Service) Rules, 1975 (hereinafter referred to as "Rules 1975").

5. It is contended by learned counsel for petitioner that appointment of petitioner was made on compassionate basis on a substantive basis and hence, he could not have been terminated under Rules 1975. Since the said Rules are not attracted in this case.

6. The basic facts when questioned, learned Standing Counsel could not dispute but submitted that an appointment on probation is also temporary appointment. Therefore, petitioner was terminated in purported exercise of power under Rule 3 of Rules 1975.

7. The respective submissions raised a question, whether appointment of petitioner be treated to be substantive or a temporary appointment which could have been terminated under Rules 1975. Thus, the question for consideration as this Court formulated for adjudication in this case is "whether compassionate appointment under Rules, 1974 could have been made on temporary basis and such appointment could have been terminated in purported exercise of powers under Rules, 1975".

8. I find that on a reference made by a learned Single Judge to a Larger Bench, this issue was considered by a Division Bench consisting of Hon'ble Markandey Katju (as His Lordship then was) and Hon'ble Kamal Kishore, JJ. in Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. and others, 1999(3) UPLBEC 2263. Earlier there were three Single Judge judgments in Dhirendra Pratap Singh v. District Inspector of Schools and others 1991 (1) UPLBEC 427; Gulab Yadav vs. State of U. P. and others 1991 (2) UPLBEC 995 and Budhi Sagar Dubey v. District Inspector of Schools and others 1993 ESC 21 wherein it was held that an appointment under Rules, 1974 is a permanent appointment. Subsequently a learned Single Judge disagreed with aforesaid three judgments and referred the matter to Larger Bench. In Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra), Larger Bench upheld the view taken in above three judgments and held that an appointment under Rules, 1974 has to be treated as permanent appointment since compassionate appointment, if treated to be a temporary appointment, it will nullify the very purpose of Rules applicable for compassionate appointment. Larger Bench (Division Bench) also held that in respect of appointment made on compassionate basis Rules, 1975 will not apply. Para 2 of judgment laying down law by Division Bench in Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra) reads as under:

"2. In our opinion, an appointment under the Dying-in-Harness Rules has to be treated as a permanent appointment otherwise if such appointment Is treated to be a temporary appointment, then it will follow that soon after the appointment, the service can be terminated and this will nullify the very purpose of the Dying-in-Harness Rules because such appointment is intended to provide immediate relief to the family on the sudden death of the bread earner. We, therefore, hold that the appointment under Dying-in -Harness Rules is a permanent appointment and not a temporary appointment, and hence the provisions of U. P. Temporary Government Servant (Termination of Services) Rules. 1975 will not apply to such appointments." (emphasis added)

9. Above judgment was followed by another Division Bench consisting of Hon'ble S.K. Sen, C.J. and Hon'ble Ashok Bhushan, J. (as His Lordship then was) in Sanjai Kumar vs. Dy. Director General (NCE), Directorate and others, 2002(3) UPLBEC 2748.

10. Another Division Bench in Ram Chandra vs. State of U.P. and others, 2008(2) UPLBEC 1431 again had an occasion to consider this aspect and following judgment in Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra), Court held that appointments made under Rules, 1974 are of permanent nature hence Rules, 1975 will not be applicable. Relevant exposition of law laid down by Division Bench in Ram Chandra vs. State of U.P. (supra) is reproduced as under:

"It is settled law that the appointments made under the provisions of the U.P. Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants (Dying-in-Harness) Rules, 1974 are of permanent nature*. Since appointment of the petitioner was of permanent nature, t*he provisions of U.P.

Temporary Government Servants (Termination of Service) Rules, 1975 were not applicable." (emphasis added)

11. Then came fourth decision in Jagdish Narain vs. Union of India and others, 2011(3) UPLBEC 2196 which was a matter not governed by Rules, 1974 and Rules, 1975 applicable to State Government employees but it was a case relating to employment under Central Government. The provisions with respect to compassionate appointment were made by Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances and Pensions (Department of Personnel & Training)'s Office Memorandum No. 14014/6/86-Estt. (D) dated 30.06.1987 . One Late Sarwan Lal, father of Jagdish Narain was appointed on probation for a period of two years with the rider that in case his work and conduct during period of probation is found unsatisfactory his services may be terminated. Subsequently when services of Jagdish Narain was found unsatisfactory he was terminated vide order dated 22.09.1994. This termination was challenged in Central Administrative Tribunal in Original Application No. 844 of 1995 which was dismissed. Thereafter matter came to this Court. Relying on three Division Bench judgments in Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra); Sanjai Kumar vs. Dy. Director General (NCE), Directorate (supra) and Ram Chandra vs. State of U.P. (supra), Division Bench in Jagdish Narain vs. Union of India (supra) held that appointment on probation amounts to a temporary appointment which is not permissible when an appointment is made on compassionate basis and, therefore, condition of probation stated in appointment letter was illegal and of no consequence. Petitioner's appointment on compassionate basis was liable to be treated as permanent in nature, hence termination was bad and with aforesaid findings writ petition was allowed and order of Tribunal as well as termination order were set aside.

12. In a subsequent matter which again arose in respect of employment in Central Government, in Sr. General Manager, Ordnance Factory vs. Central Administrative Tribunal and others, 2016(2) ADJ 751 correctness of judgment in Jagdish Narain vs. Union of India (supra) was examined by a Full Bench on a reference made by a Division Bench disagreeing with Division Bench judgment in Jagdish Narain vs. Union of India (supra). Three questions referred to be considered by Full Bench are as under:

"1. Where a person is granted compassionate appointment as a member of the family of a deceased employee of the government who has died in harness in relaxation of the normal rules for recruitment, is it not necessary that even a compassionate appointee be placed on probation in the first instance, in the same manner as any other direct recruit, since the provision pertaining to appointment on probation has not been excluded or exempted in the case of a compassionate appointment;

2. Since an appointment on compassionate grounds on probation is also a regular appointment and a person appointed as such is not offered a temporary appointment, whether there is any violation of law or principle in appointing a person in this category on probation in the first instance;

3. In view of the clear distinction in service jurisprudence between a regular and a temporary appointee, whether the appointment of a person on a compassionate basis on probation is permissible in law."

(emphasis added)

13. Above questions were answered by Full Bench, as under:

"26. We, accordingly, answer the questions which have been referred to the Full Bench in the following terms:

(1) Re Question (1): Where a person is appointed on a compassionate basis as a dependent member of the family of an employee of the State who has died in harness, such an appointment can be made on probation*. The object and purpose of appointing a person on probation is to determine the suitability of the person for retention in service.* Appointment of a person who is engaged on a compassionate basis on probation is not contrary to law or unlawful.

(2) Re Question (2): Since an appointment on compassionate grounds on probation is also a regular appointment and a person appointed as such is not offered a temporary appointment, such an appointee can be placed on probation in the first instance.

(3) Re Question (3): The appointment of a person on a compassionate basis on probation is permissible in law." (emphasis added)

14. Reply to Question (2) clearly shows that Full Bench held that appointment on compassionate basis is a regular appointment and is not to be treated as "temporary appointment". In para 18 of judgment Full Bench clearly observed that there is a distinction between appointment on probation and temporary appointment. The relevant observations read s under:

"An appointment on probation does not detract from the nature of the appointment which is to a regular service. Probation is merely an opportunity for the probationer to establish by dint of the work which is rendered during the period of probation, that he or she is suitable for being retained in service. On the part of the employer, probation enables the appointing authority to determine the suitability of the probationer for retention in service. There is a well accepted distinction in law and in service jurisprudence between a probationary appointment and a temporary appointment." (emphasis added)

15. Full Bench referred to earlier Division Bench judgments in Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra); Sanjai Kumar vs. Dy. Director General (NCE), Directorate (supra) and Ram Chandra vs. State of U.P. (supra) and distinguished aforesaid judgments on the ground that in all these matters, issue, whether a compassionate appointment can be made on probation or not was not involved and these three judgments, therefore, considered a different issue and in fact Division Bench in Jagdish Narain vs. Union of India (supra) mistakenly relied on above three judgments omitting the fact that question of appointment on probation was not involved in earlier cases. Full Bench, therefore, overruled Division Bench judgment in Jagdish Narain vs. Union of India (supra) and distinguished earlier three judgments in Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra); Sanjai Kumar vs. Dy. Director General (NCE), Directorate (supra) and Ram Chandra vs. State of U.P. (supra) observing that neither issue nor principle of law enunciated in above three judgments was applicable to the dispute which had arisen in Jagdish Narain vs. Union of India (supra).

16. In view thereof it is evident that Full Bench judgment in Sr. General Manager, Ordnance Factory vs. Central Administrative Tribunal (supra) is not applicable in the case in hand.

17. Instead issue in present writ petition is squarely covered by earlier three Division Bench judgments in Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra); Sanjai Kumar vs. Dy. Director General (NCE), Directorate (supra) and Ram Chandra vs. State of U.P. (supra) which were in respect of employment in State Government and had considered question of compassionate appointment under Rules, 1974 and have clearly held that in case of such appointments, Rules, 1975 are not applicable since compassionate appointment under Rules, 1974 is of permanent nature.

18. Here also respondents have clearly relied on the fact that compassionate appointment of petitioner was made on temporary basis i.e. on probation and has been terminated by taking recourse to Rules, 1975. It may be noticed that compassionate appointment of petitioner has not been terminated on the ground that he could not perform satisfactorily on probation but it has been terminated on the ground that he applied for compassionate appointment after five years. Though term of five years under Rules 1974 is not a period of limitation and instead a compassionate appointment could have been allowed even after five years if condition of family member of deceased employee continuing and persisting, penurious, justifying compassionate appointment. Herein, it is not a case of respondents that after five years family of deceased employee including petitioner were not facing penurious condition and therefore, compassionate appointment is not justified. Moreover, once compassionate appointment was made and there was no fraud, misrepresentation or other fault on the part of such employee, In my view, termination of compassionate appointment in such a case is patently arbitrary, whimsical and erroneous.

19. In the present case, however, since respondents have terminated petitioner treating his appointment only as temporary taking recourse of Rules 1975, this approach of respondents is clearly in the teeth of law laid down in above Division Bench judgments in Ravi Karan Singh vs. State of U.P. (supra); Sanjai Kumar vs. Dy. Director General (NCE), Directorate (supra) and Ram Chandra vs. State of U.P. (supra).

20. Considering the totality of the facts and circumstances of the case, the writ petition is allowed. Impugned order dated 10.5.2002 (Anexure No. 9) is hereby quashed. Petitioner shall be entitled for all consequential benefits.

A. Service Law - U.P. Basic Education (Teachers Service) Rules, 1981- Rule 14, 17, 18, 19, 22 - Seniority - Total 208 candidates were issued appointment letters on the same date - for appointment to the post of Assistant Teacher at junior basic School. They were given 15 days joining time - none of them lost seniority – inter se seniority to be determined from the date of initial appointment in substantive vacancy under Rule 18 (4) read with R.19 and 22 of the Rules, 1981.

Held:- Under the scheme of the Rules, 1981 as noted above, it was not open for the District Basic Education Officer to determine seniority of teachers from the date of their joining instead of date of their initial appointment on a substantive post. (Para 38)

Writ Petition allowed. (E-9)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sunita Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashok Khare learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Mukesh Kumar Singh learned Advocate for the petitioner, Sri Pranesh Dutt Tripathi learned Advocate for the respondent no. 4. Sri Arvind Prabodh Dubey learned Advocate has put in appearance on behalf of the respondent no. 5 and Sri Anup Dhar Dubey and Sri Yogendra Kumar Srivastava learned Advocates appear on behalf of respondent nos. 8 to 11.

2. The present writ petition has been filed by 47 persons working on the post of Assistant Teacher, Senior Basic School/Headmaster, Junior Basic School (both carrying the same pay scale), seeking for quashing of the promotion orders dated 31.7.2015 for granting promotion to the post of Headmaster, Senior Basic School to a total number of 437 persons. Further, prayer is to direct the respondents to redetermine the seniority position of the petitioners herein from the date of their substantive appointment and not from the date of joining on the post of Assistant Teacher, Junior Basic School.

3. The private respondent nos. 5 to 14 are impleaded in representative capacity to represent the promotees, who were granted promotion on the post of Headmaster, Senior Basic School on 31.7.2015.

4. Sri Anup Dhar Dubey and Sri Yogendra Kumar Srivastava learned Advocates appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 8 to 11 and have filed a counter affidavit on their behalf. Respondent no. 5 is represented by Sri Arvind Prabodh Dubey learned Advocate who had filed his Vakalatnama on 15.7.2019.

5. The facts in brief relevant to decide the controversy at hand are that total 208 candidates were issued appointment letters in District Kushinagar on 25.11.1999 for appointment as Assistant Teacher in Junior Basic School after completion of Special B.T.C. Training Course-1999, after getting certificate dated 25.10.1999 as successful candidates. There is no dispute about the date of issuance of the appointment letters to the petitioners herein, which is 25.11.1999 in case of all the candidates including the petitioners and the respondents herein. It is also admitted that 15 days time was provided to the candidates to join the post of Assistant Teacher in Junior Basic School.

6. The petitioners being teachers working in the schools run by Basic Education Board, their recruitment is governed by the provisions of U.P. Basic Education (Teachers Service) Rules 1981 (hereinafter referred to as "the Rules, 1981"). The appointing authority for all categories of posts under the Rules, 1981 is the Basic Education Officer of the concerned district.

7. In paragraphs '17' and '18' of the writ petition, it is contended that total 208 candidates had joined on different dates after receipt of the appointment letters dated 25.11.1999. The last batch of the candidates had joined on 10.12.1999. The petitioners herein joined the post of Assistant Teachers in Junior Basic School of District Kushinagar between 3.12.1999 and 7.12.1999.

8. It is stated in paragraph '19' of the writ petition that out of total 208 candidates as stated above, only 172 persons including the petitioners herein were in service on the date of filing of the writ petition.

9. It is then contended that all Assistant Teachers, Junior Basic School (including the petitioners herein) who were appointed by the orders dated 25.11.1999 were promoted to the post of Headmaster, Junior Basic School/Assistant Teacher, Senior Basic School. These promotions were made in two bulk.

10. All teachers who belonged to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes category were granted promotion on 30.6.2004 while the remaining teachers including the candidates belonging to Other Backward Classes were granted promotion on 27.7.2007.

11. Pursuant to the aforesaid promotion orders, all promotees including the petitioners herein had joined forthwith and started working on the promoted post. There was no dispute with regard to interse seniority of the Assistant Teachers in District Kushinagar at that point of time, since all the persons who were appointed on 25.11.1999 to the posts of Assistant Teachers in Junior Basic Schools were promoted on the same day to the post of Headmasters, Junior Basic School/Assistant Teacher, Senior Basic School (both posts carrying the same pay scale) and further for the fact that the said post is 100% promotional. It is contended that there exist total number of 565 Senior Basic Schools in District Kushinagar and consequently the same number of posts of the Headmaster.

12. The dispute arose when promotion exercise to the post of Headmaster in Senior Basic Schools was undertaken in the year 2015 with the circulation of a provisional seniority list of Headmasters, Junior Basic School/Assistant Teachers, Senior Basic School.

13. It is contended that prior to the year 2015, a provisional seniority list dated 15.7.2010 was circulated by the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar. But since the said seniority list did not include the names of teachers appointed on 25.11.1999 and was limited to the appointees uptil the year 1992, there was no question of raising any dispute by the petitioners. No final seniority list was published, thereafter, nor any promotion had been done till the year 2013. Fresh proceeding for promotion was initiated in the year 2013 with the publication of a provisional seniority list which included the names of the petitioners. A copy of the said seniority list is appended as Annexure '9' to the writ petition to assert that the said seniority list referred both the dates of first appointment and joining separately under different columns, but seniority had been fixed from the date of joining of individual candidates. Objections were filed but no final seniority list was published by the District Basic Education Officer. Certain promotions were made to the posts of Headmaster, Senior Basic Schools but since they were limited to the candidates appointed prior to 25.11.1999 as Assistant Teacher, Junior Basic School and no teacher appointed on 25.11.1999 was promoted in the year 2013, there was no question of raising any dispute.

14. It is further contended that the petitioners sought information under Right to Information Act in the year 2013 but the same was not properly replied and copy of district-wise seniority list as demanded by the petitioners was not supplied to them at that point of time.

15. Be that as it may, on 12.6.2015, the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar circulated a provisional seniority list of Headmaster, Junior Basic School and Assistant Teacher, Senior Basic School inviting objections against the same. A copy of the list has been appended as Annexure '14' to the writ petition.

16. The names of appointees on the post of Assistant Teacher in Junior Basic School on 25.11.1999 (including the petitioners herein) are found in the said list.

17. A perusal of the said list indicates that the date of joining of individual candidates has been treated to be the date of their substantive appointment while determining their interse seniority.

18. The submission is that the petitioners herein had filed objection dated 17.6.2015 against the erroneous determination of interse seniority but without taking any decision on the said objections, without publication of final seniority list, promotion orders dated 31.7.2015 granting promotion to a total number of 437 persons as Headmaster, Senior Basic School, had been issued. The cause of action for filing the present writ petition arose on account of the said action of the respondents.

19. The submission of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners is that the determination of seniority of candidates under Rule 22 of the Rules, 1981 has to be made from the date of their appointment in a substantive vacancy. As all candidates who were appointed on the post of Assistant Teachers in Junior Basic School on 25.11.1999 were promoted on the same date to the post of Assistant Teacher in Senior Basic School/Headmaster, Junior Basic School, there cannot be any change in their interse seniority, which has to be determined from the date of their initial appointment in service on substantive post. That means interse seniority of all such appointees has to be determined from the date of their initial appointment i.e. 25.11.1999. The entire exercise of promotion in question, therefore, is contrary to the Rules, 1981.

20. These submissions are repelled by Sri Pranesh Dutt Tripathi learned Advocate for the respondent no. 4 from the averments made in the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the District Basic Education Officer.

21. Reference has been made to paragraphs '6' to '8' of the counter affidavit to state that seniority of Assistant Teachers in District Kushinagar had been determined on the basis of date of their joining and based on the said seniority list, promotions were granted to the post of Headmaster, Junior Basic School/Assistant Teacher, Senior Basic School in the years 2004 and 2007, when all the petitioners were also promoted. No objection had been raised by the petitioners against the said seniority list prepared on the basis of date of their joining. In the year 2015, the seniority list of Headmaster, Junior Basic School and Assistant Teacher, Senior Basic School was again circulated in all 14 blocks of District Kushinagar and objections were invited.

22. After decision on all objections, final seniority list was published and, thereafter, 626 Assistant Teachers had been called for counselling held between 11.2.2015 and 14.7.2015. The petitioners herein had also participated in the counselling process. They cannot be allowed to turn around to challenge the seniority list or the promotion orders, once they acquiesced with the fact of interse seniority of the Assistant Teachers in District Kushinagar. All teachers from serial no. 1 to 473 from the said seniority list promoted to the post of Headmaster in Senior Basic School are senior to the petitioners and there is no infirmity in consideration of the date of the joining and date of birth of the respective candidates for the purpose of determination of their interse seniority.

23. As the petitioners did not challenge the promotion exercise conducted in the years 2004 and 2007 and participated in the promotion exercise held in the year 2015, the challenge to the seniority list published in the year 2015 cannot be entertained.

24. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record, before entering into the controversy at hand, it would be appropriate to go through the scheme of the Rules, 1981, which provides for recruitment, promotion, seniority of Assistant Teachers in Basic Schools run by Basic Education Board.

25. The U.P. Basic Education (Teachers) Service Rules, 1981 (Rules 1981) have been framed by the Governor in exercise of powers under sub-section (1) of Section 19 of the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 1972").

26. The 'Basic School' as defined in Rule 2(c) of the Rules, 1981 means a school where instructions from class I to VIII are imparted. 'Junior Basic School' as per Rule 2(h) means a Basic School where instructions from Classe I to V are imparted. 'Nursery School' as per Rule 2(j) means a school in which children ordinarily of the age up to six years and taught in classes lower than class I. 'Senior Basic School' means a Basic School where instructions from Class VI to VIII are imparted. As per Rule 2(o), 'Teacher' means a person employed for imparting instructions in Nursery Schools, Basic Schools, Junior Basic Schools, or Senior Basic Schools.

27. Part II of the Rules, 1981 provides for 'cadre and strength' of the service.

Rule 4 as contained in Part II of the Rules, 1981 reads as under:-

"4. Strength of the Service. - (1) There shall be separate cadres of service under these rules for each local area.

(2) The strength of the cadre of the teaching staff pertaining to a local area and the number of the posts in the cadre shall be such as may be determined by the Board from time to time with the previous approval of the State Government :

Provided that the appointing authority may leave unfilled or the Board may hold in abeyance and post or class of posts without thereby entitling any person to compensation :

Provided further that the Board may, with the previous approval of the State Government, create from lime to time such number of temporary posts as it may deem fit."

Rule 5 in Part III of the Rules, 1981 provides for the 'Source of Recruitment' and reads as under:-

"5. Sources of recruitment. - The mode of recruitment to the various categories of posts mentioned below shall be as follows :

(a) (i) Mistresses of Nursery Schools	By direct recruitment as provided in Rules 14 and 15;
(ii) Assistant Masters and Assistant Mistresses of Junior Basic Schools
(b) (i) Headmistresses of Nursery Schools	By promotion as provided in Rule 18;
(ii) Head Masters and Head Mistresses of Junior Basic Schools	By promotion as provided in Rule 18;
(iii) Assistant Masters of Senior Basic Schools	By promotion as provided in Rule 18;
(iv) Assistant Mistresses of Senior Basic Schools	By promotion as provided in Rule 18;
(v) Head Masters of Senior Basic Schools	By promotion as provided in Rule 18;
(vi) Head Mistresses of Senior Basic Schools	By promotion as provided in Rule 18;

Provided that if suitable candidates are not available for promotion to the posts mentioned at (iii) and (iv) above, appointment may be made by direct recruitment in the manner laid down in Rule 15."

28. A careful reading of Rules 4 and 5 together shows that there is one cadre of service which is Basic Education Teacher local area-wise. Meaning thereby, in one local area there is only one cadre.

Different categories of posts i.e. Assistant Teacher (Junior Basic School), Assistant Teacher (Senior Basic School), Head Master (Junior Basic School) and Headmaster (Senior Basic School) are kept in one cadre of the local area in which they are appointed. The hierarchy of posts, however, is relevant for the purpose of promotion to the posts of Headmaster, Junior Basic School/Assistant Teacher, Senior Basic School and Headmaster of Senior Basic School as they are 100% promotional posts.

29. The essential qualifications for promotion to the aforesaid posts as per clause (b) of Rule 5 of the Rules, 1981 as provided in sub-rule (3) of Rule 8 of the Rules, 1981.

Relevant Rule 8(3) is reproduced as under:-

"8(3) The minimum experience of candidates for promotion to a post referred to in clause (b) of Rule 5 shall by as shown below against each-

Post	Experience
(i) Head mistresses of Nursery School	At least five years' teaching experience as permanent Mistress of Nursery School;
(ii) Head master or Headmistress of Junior Basic Schools and Assistant Master or Assistant Mistress of Senior Basic School	At least five years' teaching experience as permanent Assistant Mistress or Assistant Master of Junior Basic School;
(iii) Head master or Headmistress for Senior Basic School or Assistant Master or Assistant Mistress of Senior Basic School, as the case may be: Provided that if sufficient number of suitable or eligible candidates are not available for promotion to the posts mentioned at serial numbers (ii) or (in), the field of eligibility may be extended by the Board by giving relaxation in the period of experience.	At least three years' experience as permanent Headmaster or Headmistress of Junior Basic School or Assistant Master or Assistant Mistress of Senior Basic School, as the case may be: Provided that if sufficient number of suitable or eligible candidates are not available for promotion to the posts mentioned at serial numbers (ii) or (in), the field of eligibility may be extended by the Board by giving relaxation in the period of experience.

Rule 18 provides for 'Procedure for Recruitment by Promotion' which reads as under:-

"18. Procedure for recruitment by promotion. - (1) Recruitment by promotion to the posts referred to in clause (b) of Rule 5 shall be made on the basis of seniority subject to rejection of unfit through the Selection Committee constituted under Rule 16.

(2) The appointing authority shall prepare an eligibility list of candidates in order of seniority and place it before the Selection Committee alongwith their character rolls and such other records pertaining to them as may be considered proper.

(3) The Selection Committee shall consider the cases of the candidates on the basis of the records referred to in sub-rule (2).

(4) The Selection Committee shall prepare a list of selected candidates in order of seniority as disclosed from the eligibility list referred to in sub-rule (2) and forward the same to the appointing authority."

Rule 19 provides for Appointment after selection, which reads as under:-

"19. Appointment. - (1) The appointing authority shall make appointment to any post referred to in Rule 5 by taking the names of the candidates in the order in which they stand in the list prepared under Rule 17 or 17-A or 18, as the case may be.]

(2) The appointing authority may make appointments in the temporary and officiating vacancies also from the lists referred to in sub-rule (1).

(3) No appointment shall be made except on the recommendation of the Selection Committee, and, in the case of direct recruitment except on production of residence certificate issued by the Tahsildar.

Rule 22 provides for determination of seniority of teachers which is reproduced as under:-

"22. Seniority. - (1) The seniority of a teacher in a cadre shall be determined by the date of his appointment in a substantive capacity :

Provided that, if two or more persons are appointed on the same date their seniority shall be determined in which their names appear in the list referred to in Rule 17 or 17-A or 18, as the case may be.

Note. - A candidate selected by direct recruitment may lose his seniority, if he fails to join without valid reasons when a vacancy is offered to him whether the reasons in any particular case are valid or not shall be decided by the appointing authority.]*

(2) The seniority of a teacher who has been transferred from one local area to another in accordance with the provisions of Rule 21 shall be placed at the bottom of the list of teachers of the corresponding class or category pertaining to the local area to which he has been transferred, as on the date of orders for transfer are passed, such a persons shall not be entitled to any compensation.

30. A careful and conjoined reading of the Rules 8(3), 18, 19 and 22 of the Rules, 1981 shows that all such candidates who are eligible for promotion to the post of Headmaster, Junior Basic School and Assistant Teacher, Senior Basic School have to be kept in one eligibility list in order of their seniority by the appointing authority in terms of Rule 18(2) of the Rules, 1981, for consideration of their candidature by the Selection Committee constituted under Rule 16 alongwith their character rolls and other relevant records. Under Rule 18(4), the list of selected candidates is to be prepared by the Selection Committee in the same order of seniority as disclosed from the eligibility list referred to in sub-rule (2) of Rule 18, for forwarding the same to the appointing authority.

31. Rule 19 further states that appointing authority shall make appointment to the post referred to in Rule 5 by taking the names of the candidates in the same order as they stand in the list prepared under Rule 18.

32. Meaning thereby, the interse seniority of the candidates found eligible and suitable for promotion by the Selection Committee would remain the same on their appointment to the promoted post.

33. The interse seniority of directly recruited candidates at the entry level post i.e. the post of Assistant Teacher, Junior Basic School is determined as per Rule 17 at the time of their direct recruitment.

34. Rule 22 (1) readwith proviso appended to it further states that interse seniority of teachers in a cadre has to be determined according to the same order in which their names appear in the list referred to in Rule 17 or 18.

35. Only exception to the said position is by a 'Note' appended to the proviso to sub-rule (1) of Rule 22 which states that a candidate selected by direct recruitment may lose his seniority, if he fails to join within time given by the appointing authority without any valid reason.

36. Sub-rule (2) of Rule 22 further provides that a teacher would lose his seniority on transfer from one local area to another local area on his request or with his consent.

37. In the instant case, admitted position is that total number of 208 candidates were issued appointment letters on the same date i.e. 25.11.1999 for appointment to the post of Assistant Teacher in Junior Basic School in District Kushinagar, which is the entry level post. They were given 15 days of joining time and had joined within the said period. There is nothing on record which would indicate that any of such candidate had lost his seniority for the fact of non-joining within the joining time granted by the appointing authority. The 'Note' appended to the proviso to sub-rule (1) of Rule 22, therefore, is not attracted. None of them would lose their seniority and their interse seniority has to be determined from the date of their initial appointment i.e. 25.11.1999 as per rule 14 readwith rule 17 of the Rules, 1981. On promotion to the post of Assistant Teacher in Senior Basic School/Headmaster, Junior Basic School, their interse seniority would remain unchanged for the admitted fact that all of them were promoted on the same date. Their seniority has to be determined as per Rule 18(4) readwith Rules 19 and 22 taking into consideration the date of their initial appointment in substantive vacancy on the post of Assistant Teacher in Junior Basic School, which is 25.11.1999 for all such appointees.

38. Under the scheme of the Rules, 1981 as noted above, it was not open for the District Basic Education Officer to determine seniority of teachers from the date of their joining instead of date of their initial appointment on a substantive post. The said flaw in determination of seniority is evident from the averments made by the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar in his counter affidavit. His defence only is that the petitioners cannot be allowed to agitate the dispute pertaining to their interse seniority as promotions were made in the years 2004 and 2007 and they participated in the exercise, result of which is under challenge. The said argument is wholly unsustainable.

39. The obvious reason is that there was no occasion for the petitioners to raise any dispute as all teachers appointed on 25.11.1999 were promoted to the post of Headmaster in Junior Basic School and Assistant Teacher in Senior Basic School.

40. This fact is also admitted to the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar and private respondents in their counter affidavits.

41. In fact, the dispute with respect to the interse seniority petitioners and private respondents arose in the year 2015 when provisional seniority list was published on 12.6.2015 determining seniority of the Assistant Teachers from the date of their joining instead of the date of their initial appointment. The petitioners raised objections and filed the instant writ petition, immediately after receipt of the information of the promotion order. There is no latches on the part of the petitioners in challenging the wrong determination of their seniority vis-a-vis promotees. The entire exercise of promotion to the post in question on the basis of the said seniority list is, therefore, illegal.

42. In the facts and circumstances of the present case, it cannot be said that interse seniority of the teachers in the Basic Schools of District Kushinagar was settled and cannot be reopened.

43. For the above discussions, the promotion orders dated 31.7.2015 are liable to be set aside.

44. The District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar is hereby directed to prepare a fresh seniority list by determining interse seniority of the candidates appointed on 25.11.1999 from the date of their initial appointment as per the Rules, 1981. After re-determination of the seniority of all such persons, their candidature for promotion to the post of Headmaster in Senior Basic School, District Kushinagar shall be considered afresh. The orders of promotion shall, accordingly, be issued and implemented immediately after determination of their seniority.

45. It is further directed that in case, in the fresh exercise, the petitioners are found eligible for promotion and are selected as per their seniority against the vacancies of Headmaster, Senior Basic School filled by promotion on 31.7.2015, they shall be given notional promotion w.e.f. that date till actual promotion orders are issued.

46. It is further made clear that in case of reshuffling of the list of promotees and reversion of the respondents, no recovery shall be made from them.

47. The entire exercise shall be completed within a period of two months from the date of submission of certified copy of this order.

48. In view of the above observations and directions, the writ petition is allowed.

List of cases cited: -

1. Computer Sciences Corporation India Pvt. Ltd. v. Harishchandra Lodwaland Anr. AIR 2006 MP 34

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddhartha Varma, J.)

1. Learned counsel for the parties have filed their written arguments.

2. A dispute arose between the petitioner and the respondent no. 2 regarding payment for some goods supplied by the respondent no. 2 to the petitioner. From the record of the case it appears that the respondent no. 1 that is the U.P. State Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council, U.P. Kanpur entertained the dispute between the petitioner and the respondent no. 2 and ultimately an award was drawn on 11.5.2015 which was signed on 21.6.2015 and as per the award the respondent no. 2, (the petitioner before the U.P. State Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Facilitation Council) was entitled to get an amount of Rs. 19,86,951/- alongwith interest. The amount payable to the respondent no. 2 on the date of the award was Rs. 36,04,777/-. It was further provided that interest would be leviable till the entire payment was made. When this amount, it appears, was not being paid by the petitioner, the respondent no. 2 filed an application for executing the award before the District Judge, Faridabad. This application was filed under Section 36 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996. The petitioner who was the Judgement Debtor had appeared before the executing court and the execution proceedings had started. This writ petition, thereafter, during the continuation of the execution proceedings, was filed saying that as only the provisions of Sections 65 to 81 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 had been made applicable by Section 18 (2) of the Micro Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006, the provisions of Section 36 were not applicable and the Execution Case was not maintainable. Since the learned counsel for the petitioner readout Section 18 (2) of the Micro Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, the same is being reproduced here as under:-

"18. Reference to Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council:-(2) On receipt of a reference under sub-section (1), the Council shall either itself conduct conciliation in the matter or seek the assistance of any institution or centre providing alternate dispute resolution services by making a reference to such an institution or centre, for conducting conciliation and the provisions of sections 65 to 81 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, shall apply to such a dispute as if the conciliation was initiated under Part III of that Act "

3. Further learned counsel for the petitioner stated that even if the Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 was applicable then as per Section 42 of that Act the Court which had jurisdiction over the Arbitration proceedings alone would have the jurisdiction to deal with the execution etc. of the award.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner still further argued that under no circumstances would the award which was in the shape of a decree be executed by the Court at Faridabad. In this regard, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon AIR 2006 MP 34 (Computer Sciences Corporation India Pvt. Ltd. v. Harishchandra Lodwal and Anr.) and stated that it would have been proper had the execution been filed at Kanpur and thereafter it would have been transferred to some other Court. But, he stated, it could not have been filed at Faridabad.

5. Learned counsel for the respondents, in reply, however, submitted that though Section 18 (2) of the Micro Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006, had applied Sections 65 to 81 for the purposes of conciliation, arbitration had to take place as per the Section 18 (3) of the Micro Small and Medium Enterprises, Development Act. The council under the Act could either itself settle the dispute by arbitration or could refer a given dispute to any institution or centre for arbitration. For arbitration the provisions of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 had to apply as if the Arbitration was in pursuance of an arbitration agreement referred to under Section 7(1) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996.

6. Since learned counsel for the respondents referred to Section 18(3) of the Micro Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act 2006, the same is being reproduced here as under:-

"18. Reference to Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council:- (3) Where the conciliation initiated under sub-section (2) is not successful and stands terminated without any settlement between the parties, the Council shall either itself take up the dispute for arbitration or refer it to any institution or centre providing alternate dispute resolution services for such arbitration and the provisions of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, shall then apply to the disputes as if the arbitration was in pursuance of an arbitration agreement referred to in sub-section (1) of Section 7 of that Act."

7. Learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 submitted that under Section 35 there was a finality attached to the arbitration award if it had not been challenged and then its enforcement was possible under Section 36 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act. Since the learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 referred to Section 35 and 36 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, the same are being reproduced here as under:-

"35. Finality of arbitral awards:- Subject to this Part an arbitral award shall be final and binding on the parties and persons claiming under them respectively.

36. Enforcement.-(1) Where the time for making an application to set aside the arbitral award under Section 34 has expired, then, subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), such award shall be enforced in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), in the same manner as if it were a decree of the court.

(2) Where an application to set aside the arbitral award has been filed in the Court under section 34, the filing of such an application shall not by itself render that award unenforceable, unless the Court grants an order of stay of the operation of the said arbitral award in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3), on a separate application made for that purpose.

(3) Upon filing of an application under sub-section (2) for stay of the operation of the arbitral award, the Court may, subject to such conditions as it may deem fit, grant stay of the operation of such award for reasons to be recorded in writing:

Provided that the Court shall, while considering the application for grant of stay in the case of an arbitral award for payment of money, have due regard to the provisions for grant of stay of a money decree under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908)."

8. Learned counsel for the respondents further submitted that since an award was not a decree but was only being executed like a decree by a fiction of law created by the Arbitration and and Conciliation Act, the arbitral award could be executed anywhere in the country where such a decree/award could be executed and, therefore, there was no requirement to first file the execution application for executing the award in the Court which had jurisdiction and then get it transferred. In fact, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 submitted that the judgement cited by the learned counsel for the petitioner stood overruled by the judgement reported in AIR 2018 SC 965 (Sundaram Finance Limited vs. Abdul Samad and Ors). Since the learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 referred to paragraphs 22, 23 and 24 of the judgement, the same are being reproduced here as under:-

"22. We are, thus, unhesitatingly of the view that the enforcement of an award through its execution can be filed anywhere in the country where such decree can be executed and there is no requirement for obtaining a transfer of the decree from the Court, which would have jurisdiction over the arbitral proceedings.

23. The effect of the aforesaid is that the view taken by the Madhya Pradesh High Court and the Himachal Pradesh High Court is held to be not good in law while the views of Delhi High Court, Kerala High Court, Madras High Court, Rajasthan High Court, Allahabad High Court, Punjab & Haryana High Court and Karnataka High Court reflect the correct legal position, for the reasons we have recorded aforesaid.

24. The appeal is accordingly allowed and the impugned order dated 20.3.2014 is set aside restoring the execution application filed by the appellant before the Morena courts. The parties are left to bear their own costs. "

9.Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, I am of the view that the award could have been put into execution by the Court where the execution was filed. This is also the view which has been taken by the judgement reported in AIR 2018 SC 965.

10.The writ petition, therefore, lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

1. Heard Sri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Shubham Agarwal and Sri Radhav Dev Garg, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Manish Kumar Nigam, learned counsel for respondent nos. 6 and 7 and Sri Pranjal Mehrotra, learned counsel for respondent nos. 2 to 5.

2. Present petition has been filed by the petitioner for the following reliefs:

"a. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the entire proceedings of opening of financial bids in pursuance of the E-tender Notice dated 09.01.2019.

aa. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned letter dated 09.03.2019 issued by the Respondent no. 4 herein.

b. Issue writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus calling for the records of the technical bids submitted and further reject the technical bid submitted by the Joint Venture comprising of Respondent no. 6 and 7.

c. Issue writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus calling for the records of financial bids submitted and further declare the Petitioner as the successful bidder.

d. Issue writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus restraining the Respondent no. 2 from issuing letter of intent in favour of the Joint Venture (JV) comprising of the Respondent no. 6 and 7."

3. Petitioner is a company incorporated under the provisions of the Companies Act, having its registered office at Mumbai. According to petitioner, it is engaged in the business of manufacture of Prestressed Concrete Pipes, Hume Steel Pipes, Penstock Pipes, R.C.C. Hume Pipes, Prestressed Concrete Sleepers, Bar Wrapped Steel Cylinder Pipes and Prestressed Concrete Cylinder Pipes.

4. It was on 09.01.2019 that an e-tender notice was issued by the office of Superintended Engineer Vth Circle, U.P. Jal Nigam, Jhansi inviting bids on "Turnkey" basis for survey, design, construction, testing, commissioning, trial and run and handing over of work proposed in Jhansi Water Supply Reorganization Scheme (Phase-II) under AMRUT programme. As per the notice technical part of e-bids was to be opened on 07.02.2019, which was postponed to 04.03.2019, as 04.03.2019 was a holiday, the technical bid was revised to be opened on 05.03.2019.

5. According to petitioner, it submitted its bid on 01.03.2019. e-tender notice was accompanied by e-tender document, having all the conditions of eligibility in order to participate in the tender proceedings.

6. Technical bid was opened and the same was uploaded on the website on 05.03.2019 by respondent no. 2, and three technical bids including that of petitioner, as well as of Joint Venture (JV), comprising of respondent nos. 6 and 7 and one more bid was uploaded.

7. It is further stated that petitioner found certain discrepancies in the joint bid of respondent nos. 6 and 7, as such he wrote a letter on 08.03.2019, as well as sent, an e-mail on 09.03.2019 to respondent no.2. The objection of petitioner to the technical bid of respondent nos. 6 and 7 was that documents appended were not in conformity with the conditions prescribed in e-tender document. It is also stated that petitioner received an e-mail from respondent no. 2 on morning of 09.03.2019 that tender of petitioner has been accepted during technical evaluation and financial bid will be opened on 09.03.2019 at 5 p.m.

8. In the evening of 09.03.2019, financial bids of all the three bidders were opened and the Joint Venture, comprising of respondent nos. 6 and 7 was found to be the lowest being 5.55% less than the estimated value, while petitioner's bid was second lowest at 1.92% less than the estimated value, while financial bid of the third bidder that is respondent no. 8 was 9.45% more than the estimated value.

9. Sri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior counsel appearing for the petitioner submitted that entire proceedings and exercise undertaken by respondent no. 2 and its officers are ex-facie illegal and are in clear violation of terms and conditions provided in the e-tender document. Bid awarded in favour of respondent nos. 6 and 7 is being challenged on the following three grounds:-

9.1. Firstly on the basis of work experience of the Joint Venture which does not confirm with the criteria provided in e-tender document, according to him, criteria for pre-qualification with respect to work experience was provided in Clause 11 of the e-tender document. In technical bid submitted by JV of respondent no. 6 and 7, two certificates of work experience for the work done in Ghana and Angola was disclosed and the said work certificate for work done in a foreign country would not tantamount to work experience as per e-tender document.

9.1.1. He laid emphasis on Clause 2.13 of e-tender document which provides for effect of work experience in a foreign country, which is reproduced hereinunder:-

"2.13 The experience in foreign countries of a subsidiary or parent company will also be considered for qualification in case the company is not registered in India. The experience has to be certified by the respective Embasssy office."

9.1.2. According to Sri Khanna, work experience of a Company in a foreign country will be considered only if the same is not registered in India, while both respondent nos. 6 and 7 are Companies which are registered in India, hence work experience in Ghana and Angola as claimed by them cannot be counted as work experience. Further, the experience has to be certified by respective Embassy and from perusal of certificates so enclosed by respondents, it is clear that they are not certified by respective Embassies of Ghana and Angola, thus, the said work certificate cannot be considered and the condition as stipulated in the document has not been fulfilled. He further pointed out that work experience certificate submitted by respondent nos. 6 and 7 relating to certificate issued by Government of Karnataka, reflects that only 80.05% of total work was done and not the entire work, while eligibility criteria as per Clause 11 mandates that certificate of completed work was to be enclosed.

9.2. The second ground of attack is in regard to the solvency certificate provided by JV of respondent no. 6 and 7 which is not in conformity with the requirement of e-tender document. Emphasis has been laid on the list of documents in the e-tender document which a proposed bidder has to submit online on the e-tender website. Serial No. 27 requires a bidder to submit a solvency certificate issued by District Magistrate/ Nationalized Bank. According to petitioner respondent no. 6 submitted two solvency certificates, one issued by HSBC Bank, dated 21.02.2019, and other issued by Yes Bank on 25.02.2019, thus, total solvency of the two being 190 crores (Rs. 100 crores + 90 crores). While solvency certificate of Rs.75 crores issued by Punjab National Bank on 02.02.2019 was submitted by respondent no. 7. Stress has been laid on the fact that as Clause 27 provided for solvency certificate either issued by District Magistrate or by a nationalized bank, but in present case respondent no. 6 has submitted solvency certificate issued by HSBC Bank which is not a nationalized bank, nor any solvency certificate has been issued by District Magistrate. Thus, solvency certificate so submitted by respondents cannot be considered while reviewing the technical bids. It was also pressed that bidder was required to have a solvency of Rs.189 crores and respondent no. 7 had submitted a solvency certificate issued by Punjab National Bank to the tune of Rs.75 crores only which was not in accordance with the amount prescribed in e-tender notice.

9.3. The third ground of attack is that, working bid capacity of respondent no. 7 is less than the estimated cost of work supposed to be done by it. It has been contended that in the JV, respondent no. 6 was the lead partner as per their Joint Venture agreement dated 27.02.2019 and responsibility of work has been divided between them as per agreement, and scope of work of respondent no. 7 is limited to extent of supply, execution and maintenance during defect liability period of PCCP pipes.

10. Sri Khanna invited the attention of the Court to eligibility criteria in the e-tender document which requires the bidder to have working bid capacity equal to or more than the estimated cost of work put to tender. According to him, on calculating the estimated cost of work, earmarked for respondent no. 7, in pursuance of the JV agreement, from bill of quantity issued by respondent no. 2, is about Rs.165 crores, while respondent no. 7 has shown its bidding capacity to be Rs.127.31 crores which is less than the estimated cost of work, thus the respondent should not have accepted the technical bid of the JV.

11. Lastly, petitioner has raised an objection that financial bid was opened on a State Government holiday, as Clause 3.28.01 of e-tender documents provides that in case specified date of e-tender opening being declared a holiday for the Department, e-tender shall be opened at the appointed time and place on the next working day. As 09.03.2019 was a second Saturday of the Month, all Government Offices were closed, as such the opening of financial bid on the said date creates suspicion on the conduct of the respondents.

12. A supplementary affidavit was filed by the petitioner bringing on record the objections decided by respondent no. 4, dated 09.03.2019, wherein the objections raised by the petitioner before authorities concerned were decided. Sri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior counsel further, to impress upon his arguments relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in case of AFCONS Infrastructure Ltd. vs. Nagpur Metro Rail Corporation Ltd. and another, (2016) 16 SCC 818. Relevant paras 12, 13, 14 and 15 of the judgment are extracted hereasunder.

*"12. In Dwarkadas Marfatia and Sons v. Port of Bombay, (1989) 3 SCC 293 it was held that the constitutional Courts are concerned with the decision-making process. Tata Cellular v. Union of India, (1994) 6 SCC 651 went a step further and held that a decision if challenged (the decision having been arrived at through a valid process), the constitutional courts can interfere if the decision is perverse. However, the constitutional courts are expected to exercise restraint in interfering with the administrative decision and ought not to substitute its view for that of the administrative authority. This was confirmed in Jagdish Mandal v. State of Orissa, (2007) 14 SCC 517 as mentioned in Central Coalfields Ltd. v. SLL-SML (Joint Venture Consortium), (2016) 8 SCC 622.

13. In other words, a mere disagreement with the decision- making process or the decision of the administrative authority is no reason for a constitutional court to interfere. The threshold of mala fides, intention to favour someone or arbitrariness, irrationality or perversity must be met before the constitutional court interferes with the decision making process or the decision.

14. We must reiterate the words of caution that this Court has stated right from the time when Ramana Dayaram Shetty v. International Airport Authority of India, (1979) 3 SCC 489 was decided almost 40 years ago, namely, that the words used in the tender documents cannot be ignored or treated as redundant or superfluous - they must be given meaning and their necessary significance. In this context, the use of the word "metro' in Clause 4.2(a) of Section III of the bid documents and its connotation in ordinary parlance cannot be overlooked.

15. We may add that the owner or the employer of a project, having authored the tender documents, is the best person to understand and appreciate its requirements and interpret its documents. The constitutional courts must defer to this understanding and appreciation of the tender documents, unless there is mala fide or perversity in the understanding or appreciation or in the application of the terms of the tender conditions. It is possible that the owner or employer of a project may give an interpretation to the tender documents that is not acceptable to the constitutional courts but that by itself is not a reason for interfering with the interpretation given."

13. He also relied upon a judgment of the Apex Court in case of Haffkine Bio-Pharmaceutical Corporation Ltd. vs. Nirlac Chemicals and others, (2018) 12 SCC 790 as well as in case of Maa Binda Express Carrier and another vs. North-East Frontier Railways and others (2014) 3 SCC 760. In Paras 8 and 9, the Apex Court held as under:-

"8. The scope of judicial review in matters relating to award of contract by the State and its instrumentalities is settled by a long line of decisions of this Court. While these decisions clearly recognize that power exercised by the Government and its instrumentalities in regard to allotment of contract is subject to judicial review at the instance of an aggrieved party, submission of a tender in response to a notice inviting such tenders is no more than making an offer which the State or its agencies are under no obligation to accept. The bidders participating in the tender process cannot, therefore, insist that their tenders should be accepted simply because a given tender is the highest or lowest depending upon whether the contract is for sale of public property or for execution of works on behalf of the Government. All that participating bidders are entitled to is a fair, equal and non-discriminatory treatment in the matter of evaluation of their tenders. It is also fairly well-settled that award of a contract is essentially a commercial transaction which must be determined on the basis of consideration that are relevant to such commercial decision. This implies that terms subject to which tenders are invited are not open to the judicial scrutiny unless it is found that the same have been tailor made to benefit any particular tenderer or class of tenderers. So also the authority inviting tenders can enter into negotiations or grant relaxation for bona fide and cogent reasons provided such relaxation is permissible under the terms governing the tender process.

9. Suffice it to say that in the matter of award of contracts the Government and its agencies have to act reasonably and fairly at all points of time. To that extent the tenderer has an enforceable right in the court which is competent to examine whether the aggrieved party has been treated unfairly or discriminated against to the detriment of public interest. (See Meerut Development Authority v. Association of Management Studies and Air India Ltd. v. Cochin International Airport Ltd. (2000) 1 SCR 505)."

14. Further reliance has been placed in case of Union of India vs. Sankalchand Himatlal Sheth and another (1977) 4 SCC 193 wherein the Court held as under:-

"11. The normal rule of interpretation is that the words used by the legislature are generally a safeguard to its intention. Lord Reid in Westminster Bank Ltd. v. Zang, 1966 AC 182 observed that "no principle of interpretation of statutes is more firmly settled than the rule that the Court must deduce the intention of Parliament from the words used in the Act." Applying such a rule, this Court observed in S. Narayanaswami v. G. Panneerselyam, AIR 1972 SC 2284 that "where the statute's meaning is clear and explicit, words cannot be interpolated." What is true of the interpretation of an ordinary statute is not any the less true in the case of a constitutional provision, and the same rule applies equally to both. But if the words of an instrument are ambiguous in the sense that they can reasonably bear more than one meaning, that is to say, if the words are semantically ambiguous, or if a provision, if read literally, is patently incompatible with the other provisions of that instrument, the court would be justified in construing the words in a manner which will make the particular provision purposeful. That, in essence is the rule of harmonious construction. In M. Pentiah v. Veeramallappa, AIR 1961 SC 1107, 1115 this Court observed :

"Where the language of a statute, in its ordinary meaning and grammatical construction leads to, a manifest contradiction of the apparent purpose of the enactment, or to some inconvenience or absurdity, hardship or injustice presumably not intended, a construction may be put upon it which modifies the meaning of the words, and even the structure of the sentence……"

But, if the provision is clear and explicit, it cannot be reduced to a nullity by reading into it a meaning which it does not carry and, therefore, "Courts are very reluctant to substitute words in a statute or to add words to it, and it has been said that they will only do so where there is a repugnancy to good sense." In the view which I am disposed to take, it is unnecessary to dwell upon Lord Denning's edict in Seaford Court Estates Ltd. v. Asher, (1949) 2 All ER 155, 164 that when a defect appears in a statute, a Judge cannot simply fold his hands and blame the draftsman, that he must supplement the written word so as to give force and life to the intention of the legislature and that he should ask himself the question how, if the makers of the Act had themselves come across the particular ruck in the texture of it, they would have straightened it out. I may only add, though even that does not apply, that Lord Denning wound up by saying, may be not by way of recanting, that "a Judge must not alter the material of which the Act is woven, but he can and should iron out the creases."

15. Per contra, Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 6 and 7 submitted that petitioner had challenged the bid on technical grounds which were already resolved in pre-bid query and its reply submitted by respondent, Jal Nigam on 09.03.2019. Further, replying to the first argument made by counsel for the petitioner, it was submitted that respondent no. 6 is a registered Company under the Indian Companies Act, who has submitted its work experience of parent Company which is registered in Israel. As given in notice inviting tender (NIT Clause No. 3) which is the basis of all e-tender document, which states that experience in foreign countries of a subsidiary or parent Company will also be considered for qualification. As far as certification from respective Embassy is concerned, it is only necessary when neither parent Company nor subsidiary Company is registered in India.

16. As to the second argument regarding solvency certificate provided by the JV, it was submitted that being a global tender where foreign companies can participate providing solvency certificate from nationalized bank was struck down by the Department. This issue was also raised in pre-bid query of Koya and Company as well as JV, in which written reply was given by the Department, where word "nationalized" was removed and only "bank" was written for issuing solvency certificate. He further submitted that there is no mention about the fact that solvency certificate has to be issued by a Nationalized Bank, and the Master Circular only lays condition regarding solvency amount be equal to 40% or more than that of estimated cost of work. Neither e-tender notice or in Master Circular there is any requirement of solvency certificate from a nationalized bank, as the rationale behind such liberal drafting in the circular, pre bid qualification/ eligibility criteria and NIT was to afford opportunity for global traders to bid for the project.

17. He further submitted that Clause 15 of the e-tender notice provides for earnest money to be submitted in form of either FDR/ B.G. of a nationalized bank or other bank so provided. The same requirement has been given in Clause 8 of the Master Circular dated 16.11.2018 in regard to the performance guarantee/ security money in form of bank guarantee from any nationalized bank and other banks as provided therein.

18. Answering respondent had submitted bank guarantee for earnest money of Punjab National Bank and ICICI Bank. As e-tender notice as well as Master Circular of the Jal Nigam provides for the earnest money in form of FDR/ B.G. from nationalized bank or the banks provided therein, but for solvency certificate, it would be issued by a Bank.

19. Replying the third argument, Sri Shashi Nandan submitted that contention of the petitioner regarding the fact that working bid capacity of respondent no. 7 being less than the estimated cost of work supposed to be done by it is totally wrong. As per the agreement between JV of respondent nos. 6 and 7, respondent no. 7 was to execute 25% of total work within prestressed cement, concrete pipes and the lead partner that is respondent no. 6 will execute remaining 75% of work. As total cost of project is 472 crores and 25% of the same comes to Rs.118 crore, while the working bid capacity of respondent no. 7 being 127.31 crores, hence the same is much more than the required amount. Thus, the contention of the petitioner that acceptance of technical bid of the answering respondent being irregular is factually wrong.

20. According to him, working bid capacity of both the JV partners taken together has to be considered and it should not be less than estimated cost of work, while nowhere in the tender it required that JV partners have to individually show their working bid capacity to be in excess of the work individually.

21. Replying to the last objection raised by the petitioner as far as the financial bid being opened on State Government holiday, it was contended that the final bid was opened after prior information to all the parties concerned and there being no objection raised by any of the parties to the financial bid being opened.

22. Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Counsel invited the attention of the Court to the judgment of Apex Court rendered in case of Ramana Dayaram Shetty v. The International Airport Authority, AIR 1979 (SC) 1628, wherein the Apex Court while dealing with the grant of contract in Para 23 held as under:-

"23. We may also in this connection refer to the decision of this Court in C. K. Achuthan v. State of Kerala, (1959) Supp (1) SCR 787, where Hidayatullah, J., speaking on behalf of The Court made certain observation which was strongly relied upon on behalf of the respondents. The facts of this case were that the petitioner and the 3rd respondent Co-operative Milk Supply Union, Cannanore, submitted tenders for the supply of milk to the Government hospital at Cannanore for the year 1948-49. The Superintendent who scrutinised the tenders accepted that of the petitioner and communicated the reasons for the decision to the Director of Public Health. The resulting contract in favour of the petitioner was, however, subsequently cancelled by issuing a notice in terms of clause (2) of the tender, in pursuance of the policy of the Government that in the matter of supply to Government Medical Institutions the Co-operative Milk Supply Union should be given contract on the basis of prices filed by the Revenue Department. The petitioner challenged The decision of the Government in a petition under Article 32 of the Constitution on the ground inter alia that there had been discrimination against him vis-a-vis the 3rd respondent and as such, there was contravention of Article 14 of the Constitution. The Constitution Bench rejected this contention of the petitioner and while doing so, Hidayatullah, J., made the following observation: "There is no discrimination, because it is perfectly open to the Government, even as it is to a private party, to choose a person to their liking, to fulfil contracts which they wish to be performed. When one person is choosen rather than another, the aggrieved party cannot claim the protection of Article 14, because the choice of the person to fulfil a particular contract must be left to the Government." The respondents relied very strongly on this observation in support of their contention that it is open to the 'State' to enter into contract with any one it likes and choosing one person in preference to another for entering into a contract does not involve violation of Article 1a. Though the language in which this observation is couched is rather wide, we do not think that in making this observation, the Court. intended to lay down any absolute proposition permitting the state to act arbitrarily in the matter of entering into contract with third parties. We have no doubt that the Court could not have intended to lay down such a proposition because Hidayatullah J. who delivered the judgment of the Court in this case was also a party to the judgment in Rashbihari Panda v. State of Orissa (AIR 1969 SC 1081) which was also a decision of the Constitution Bench, where it was held in so many terms that the State cannot act arbitrarily in selecting persons with whom to enter into contracts. Obviously what the Court meant to say was that merely because one person is chosen in preference to another, it does not follow that there is a violation of Article 14, because the Government must necessarily be entitled to make a choice. But that does not mean that the choice be arbitrary or fanciful. The choice must be dictated by public interest and must not be unreasoned or unprincipled."

23. Reliance was also placed upon the decision of Supreme Court in case of Poddar Steel Corporation vs. Ganesh Engineering Works and others (1991) 2 SCC 273; Para 6 of the judgment is extracted hereasunder:-

"6. It is true that in submitting its tender accompanied by a cheque of the Union Bank of India and not of the State Bank the clause 6 of the tender notice was not obeyed literally, but the question is as to whether the said non- compliance deprived the Diesel Locomotive Works of the authority to accept the bid. As a matter of general proposition it cannot be held that an authority inviting tenders is bound to give effect to every term mentioned in the notice in meticulous detail, and is not entitled to waive even a technical irregularity of little or no significance. The requirements in a tender notice can be classified into two categories-those which lay down the essential conditions of eligibility and the others which are merely ancillary or subsidiary with the main object to be achieved by the condition. In the first case the authority issuing the tender may be required to enforce them rigidly. In the other cases it must be open to the authority to deviate from and not to insist upon the strict literal compliance of the condition in appropriate cases. This aspect was examined by this Court in C.J. Fernandez v. State of Karnataka, [1990] 2 SCC 488 a case dealing with tenders. Although not in an entirely identical situation as the present one, the observations in the judgment support our view. The High Court has, in the impugned decision, relied upon Ramana Dayaram Shetty v. International Airport Authority of India & Ors., [1979] 3 SCC 489 but has failed to appreciate that the reported case belonged to the first category where the strict compliance of the condition could be insisted upon. The authority in that case, by not insisting upon the requirement in the tender notice which was an essential condition of eligibility, bestowed a favour on one of the bidders, which amounted to illegal discrimination. The judgment indicates that the court closely examined the nature of the condition which had been relaxed and its impact before answering the question whether it could have validly condoned the shortcoming in the tender in question. This part of the judgment demonstrates the difference between the two categories of the conditions discussed above. However it remains to be seen as to which of the two clauses, the present case belongs."

24. In case of G.J. Fernandez vs. State of Karnataka and others (1990) 2 SCC 488, the Apex Court held that changes or relaxation given by the authority/ Department in terms of NIT effecting on all the intending parties should not result in arbitrariness or discrimination. Relevant Para 15 is extracted hereasunder:-

"15. Thirdly, the conditions and stipulations in a tender notice like this have two types of consequences. The first is that the party issuing the tender has the right to punctiliously and rigidly enforce them. Thus, if a party does not strictly comply with the requirements of paras III, V or VI of the NIT, it is open to the KPC to decline to consider the party for the contract and if a party comes to court saying that the KPC should be stopped from doing so, the court will decline relief. The second consequence, indicated by this Court in earlier decisions, is not that the KPC cannot deviate from these guidelines at all in any situation but that any deviation, if made, should not result in arbitrariness or discrimination. It comes in for application where the non-conformity with, or relaxation from, the prescribed standards results in some substantial prejudice or injustice to any of the parties involved or to public interest in general. For example, in this very case, the KPC made some changes in the time frame originally prescribed. These changes affected all intending applicants alike and were not objectionable. In the same way, changes or relaxations in other directions would be unobjectionable unless the benefit of those changes or relaxations were extended to some but denied to others. The fact that a document was belatedly entertained from one of the applicants will cause substantial prejudice to another party who wanted, likewise, an extension of time for filing a similar certificate or document but was declined the benefit. It may perhaps be said to cause prejudice also to a party which can show that it had refrained from applying for the tender documents only because it thought it would not be able to produce the document by the time stipulated but would have applied had it known that the rule was likely to be relaxed. But neither of these situations is present here. Sri Vaidhyanathan says that in this case one of the applicants was excluded at the preliminary stage. But it is not known on what grounds that application was rejected nor has that party come to court with any such grievance. The quesion, then, is whether the course adopted by the KPC has caused any real prejudice to the appellant and other parties who had already supplied all the documents in time and sought no extension at all? It is true that the relaxation of the time schedule in the case of one party does affect even such a person in the sense that he would otherwise have had one competitor less. But, we are inclined to agree with the respondent's contention that while the rule in Ramana's case (supra) will be readily applied by courts to a case where a person complains that a departure from the qualifications has kept him out of the race, injustice is less apparent where the attempt of the applicant before court is only to gain immunity from competition. Assuming for purposes of argument that there has been a slight deviation from the terms of the NIT, it has not deprived the appellant of its right to be considered for the contract; on the other hand, its tender has received due and full consideration. If, save for the delay in filing one of the relevant documents, MCC is also found to be qualified to tender for the contract, no injustice can be said to have been done to the appellant by the consideration of its tender side by side with that of the MCC and in the KPC going in for a choice of the better on the merits. The appellant had no doubt also urged that the MCC had no experience in this line of work and that the appellant was much better qualified for the contract. The comparative merits of the appellant vis-a-vis MCC are, however, a matter for the KPC (counselled by the TCE) to decide and not for the courts. We were, therefore, rightly not called upon to go into this question."

25. In Tata Cellular v. Union of India (1994) 6 SCC 651, the Apex Court held that judicial review in tender matters is limited and review can only be made on point of arbitrariness, illegality and excess exercise of power. Relevant paras 74, 77 and 94 are extracted hereasunder:-

"74. Judicial review is concerned with reviewing not the merits of the decision in support of which the application for judicial review is made, but the decision-making process itselt.

77. The duty of the court is to confine itself to the question of legality. Its concern should be :

1. Whether a decision-making authority exceeded its powers?

2. Committed an error of law,

3. committed a breach of the rules of natural justice,

4. reached a decision which no reasonable tribunal would have reached or,

5. abused its powers.

Therefore, it is not for the court to determine whether a particular policy or particular decision taken in the fulfillment of that policy is fair. It is only concerned with the manner in which those decisions have been taken. The extent of the duty to act fairly will vary from case to case. Shortly put, the grounds upon which an administrative action is subject to control by judicial review can be classified as under:

(i) Illegality : This means the decision- maker must understand correctly the law that regulates his decision-making power and must give effect to it.

(ii) Irrationality, namely, Wednesday unreasonableness.

(iii) Procedural impropriety.

The above are only the broad grounds but it does not rule out addition of further grounds in course of time. As a matter of fact, in R. v. Secretary of State for the Home Department, ex Brind (1991) 1 AC 696, Lord Diplock refers specifically to one development, namely, the possible recognition of the principle of proportionality. In all these cases the test to be adopted is that the court should, "consider whether something has gone wrong of a nature and degree which requires its intervention".

94. The principles deducible from the above are :

(1) The modem trend points to judicial restraint in administrative action.

(2) The court does not sit as a court of appeal but merely reviews the manner in which the decision was made.

(3) The court does not have the expertise to correct the administrative decision. If a review of the administrative decision is permitted it will be substituting its own decision, without the necessary expertise which itself may be fallible.

(4) The terms of the invitation to tender cannot be open to judicial scrutiny because the invitation to tender is in the realm of contract.

Normally speaking, the decision to accept the tender or award the contract is reached by process of negotiations through several tiers. More often than not, such decisions are made qualitatively by experts.

(5) The Government must have freedom of contract. In other words, a fair play in the joints is a necessary concomitant for an administrative body functioning in an administrative sphere or quasi-administrative sphere. However, the decision must not only be tested by the application of Wednesbury principle of reasonableness (including its other facts pointed out above) but must be free from arbitrariness not affected by bias or actuated by mala fides.

(6) Quashing decisions may impose heavy administrative burden on the administration and lead to increased and unbudgeted expenditure.

Based on these principles we will examine the facts of this case since they commend to us as the correct principles."

26. In Indian Railway Catering and Tourism Corporation Ltd. and another v. Doshion Veolia Water Solutions Pvt. Ltd. and others, (2010) 13 SCC 364, the Apex Court held as under:-

"42. For this conclusion, we are again supported by the decision in Kanhaiya Lal Agrawal v. Union of India, (2002) 6 SCC 315 in which this Court relying on G.J. Fernandez v. State of Karnataka [(1990) 2 SCC 488] held: (Kanhaiya Lal case, SCC p. 317, para 6)

"6. .....Whether a condition is essential or collateral could be ascertained by reference to the consequence of non-compliance thereto. If non-fulfillment of the requirement results in rejection of the tender, then it would be an essential part of the tender otherwise it is only a collateral term."

Hence, if on the recommendation of the Tender Committee, the accepting authority did not find the deviation from Clause (ii) of the Note by Ion Exchange very material and has accepted the offer of Ion Exchange, the Division Bench of the High Court could not have held that Ion Exchange committed a breach of an essential term by not mentioning the excise duty amount in rupees in its offer."

27. Counsel for the answering respondent also relied upon Para 15 of the judgment of the Apex Court in AFCONS (supra) and submitted that it is only the person who has authored the tender document, is the best person to understand and appreciate its requirement. Relevant portion is extracted hereasunder:-

"15. We may add that the owner or the employer of a project, having authored the tender documents, is the best person to understand and appreciate its requirements and interpret its documents. The constitutional Courts must defer to this understanding and appreciation of the tender documents, unless there is mala fide or perversity in the understanding or appreciation or in the application of the terms of the tender conditions. It is possible that the owner or employer of a project may give an interpretation to the tender documents that is not acceptable to the constitutional Courts but that by itself is not a reason for interfering with the interpretation given."

28. In case of Nabha Power Ltd. (NPL) v. Punjab State Power Corporation Ltd. (PSPCL) and another, (2018) 11 SCC 508, the Supreme Court while discussing the legal principal for interpretation of commercial contracts held as under:-

"72. We may, however, in the end, extend a word of caution. It should certainly not be an endeavour of commercial courts to look to implied terms of contract. In the current day and age, making of contracts is a matter of high technical expertise with legal brains from all sides involved in the process of drafting a contract. It is even preceded by opportunities of seeking clarifications and doubts so that the parties know what they are getting into. Thus, normally a contract should be read as it reads, as per its express terms. The implied terms is a concept, which is necessitated only when the Penta test referred to aforesaid comes into play. There has to be a strict necessity for it. In the present case, we have really only read the contract in the manner it reads. We have not really read into it any "implied term' but from the collection of clauses, come to a conclusion as to what the contract says. The formula for energy charges, to our mind, was quite clear. We have only expounded it in accordance to its natural grammatical contour, keeping in mind the nature of the contract."

29. Following the aforesaid judgment the Apex Court in Civil Appeal No. 3588 of 2019 (Caretel Infotech Ltd. v. Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited and others) decided on 09.04.2019 held that the Court should restrain from giving its interpretation to contracts, especially tender terms, at the behest of a party already competing for the tender, rather than what is propounded by the party framing the tender. His Lordship Sanjay Kishan Kaul, J. while deciding the issue held as under:-

"36. We consider it appropriate to make certain observations in the context of the nature of dispute which is before us. Normally parties would be governed by their contracts and the tender terms, and really no writ would be maintainable under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. In view of Government and Public Sector Enterprises venturing into economic activities, this Court found it appropriate to build in certain checks and balances of fairness in procedure. It is this approach which has given rise to scrutiny of tenders in writ proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. It, however, appears that the window has been opened too wide as almost every small or big tender is now sought to be challenged in writ proceedings almost as a matter of routine. This in turn, affects the efficacy of commercial activities of the public sectors, which may be in competition with the private sector. This could hardly have been the objective in mind. An unnecessary, close scrutiny of minute details, contrary to the view of the tendering authority, makes awarding of contracts by Government and Public Sectors a cumbersome exercise, with long drawn out litigation at the threshold. The private sector is competing often in the same field. Promptness and efficiency levels in private contracts, thus, often tend to make the tenders of the public sector a non-competitive exercise. This works to a great disadvantage to the Government and the Public Sector.

37. In Afcons Infrastructure Limited v. Nagpur Metro Rail Corporation Limited & Anr., (2016) 16 SCC 818*, this Court has expounded further on this aspect, while observing that the decision making process in accepting or rejecting the bid should not be interfered with. Interference is permissible only if the decision making process is arbitrary or irrational to an extent that no responsible authority, acting reasonably and in accordance with law, could have reached such a decision. It has been cautioned that Constitutional Courts are expected to exercise restraint in interfering with the administrative decision and ought not to substitute their view for that of the administrative authority. Mere disagreement with the decision making process would not suffice.*

42. We have considered it appropriate to, once again, emphasise the aforesaid aspects, especially in the context of endeavours of courts to give their own interpretation to contracts, more specifically tender terms, at the behest of a third party competing for the tender, rather than what is propounded by the party framing the tender. The object cannot be that in every contract, where some parties would lose out, they should get the opportunity to somehow pick holes, to disqualify the successful parties, on grounds on which even the party floating the tender finds no merit."

30. Sri Pranjal Mehrotra, learned counsel appearing for the respondent nos. 2 to 5 submitted that the objections of the petitioner-Company was decided and conveyed to it on 09.03.2019. There was no inconformity in the documents submitted by respondent nos. 6 and 7 with the terms and conditions prescribed in e-tender document. It was further submitted that bids submitted by petitioner was higher than the bid of respondent nos. 6 and 7 by about Rs.17,13,84,103.95 (Rupees Seventeen Crore Thirteen Lac Eighty Four Thousand One Hundred Three and Ninety Five Paisa) and in case the tender was awarded to petitioner, huge loss would have been caused to the public exchequer without any legal justification.

31. It was also stated that e-tender process was totally impartial, systematic and transparent. As Department had found the bid of the JV to be substantially responsive and also their financial bid to be lowest, as such law and equity requires issuance of letter of intent in their favour.

32. Sri Mehrotra replying to the first objection of the petitioner stated that Clause 2.13 of e-tender document is derived from Master Circular of the respondent no. 2 that is U.P. Jal Nigam dated 16.11.2018 and relevant portion being at Note (iii) to Serial No. 1 of the Circular which is reproduced hereinbelow:-

"(iii) the experience in foreign countries of a subsidiary or parent company will also be considered for qualification. In case the company is not registered in India, the experience has to be certified by the respective embassy office."

33. The said Master Circular is on record as CA-1. While the NIT in Clause 3 also provides the same which is extracted hereasunder:-

"3. The experience in foreign countries of a subsidiary or parent company will also be considered for qualification. In case the company is not registered in India, the experience has to be certified by the respective Embassy office."

34. According to counsel, it is only on account of typographical mistake in Clause 2.13 of the e-tender document that petitioner is incorrectly interpreting the said clause. According to him, clause relating to foreign experience in NIT was in consonance with the Master Circular. A perusal of the same reveals that foreign experience of parent Company shall also be considered for qualification, and this requirement has been framed keeping in mind that global tenders are issued, calling upon all major players to participate, so that world class infrastructure may be established in State of U.P.

35. He laid stress on the fact that experience certificate has to be certified by the Embassy office only in cases where Company is not registered in India, but in present case, both respondent nos. 6 and 7 are registered in India.

36. It was also contended that petitioner had raised a pre-bid query regarding foreign experience clause and the Jal Nigam had directed them to refer to NIT, the said fact has not been disclosed by the petitioner nor these documents are there in the writ petition, and they have not approached this Court with clean hands and writ petition suffers from supprsio veri suggestio falsi. The said document has been brought on record as Annexure- CA-3 by the Jal Nigam.

37. As far as the second argument regarding solvency certificate, it has been contended that Master Circular dated 16.11.2018 in Clause 5 provides "the solvency amount should be equal to 40% or more of the estimated cost of work". There is no stipulation in the Master Circular preventing the respondents from accepting solvency certificates from banks other than nationalized bank. This fact becomes more relevant when compared with Clause (7) and Clause (8) relating to earnest money and performance guarantee/ security money, as in Clause 7 Circular provides that earnest money should be in form of bank guarantee from any nationalized bank, Axis Bank, ICICI Bank, IDBI Bank and HDFC Bank. Similarly Clause 8 provides that performance guarantee should be in form of bank guarantee from any nationalized bank, Axis Bank, ICICI Bank, IDBI Bank and HDFC Bank.

38. Had the intention of the respondents been to restrict the banks for solvency certificates, a restriction similar to that as in Clause (7) and (8) would have been included in Clause 5 of the circular. Based on the Circular, NIT also specified amount for which solvency was required but did not specify the issuing authority/ bank.

39. Further, pre-qualification/ eligibility criteria (Clause d) also only provided for solvency amount but does not place any restriction on issuing authority, as rationale behind such liberal drafting in circular, pre-bid qualification/ eligibility criteria and NIT was that global participants were called to bid for the project. Foreign entities cannot provide solvency certificate from District Magistrate or Nationalized Bank, and if the contention and interpretation of the petitioner is accepted then it would exclude them from tendering process.

40. Replying the third argument of the petitioner in regard to the working bid capacity of respondent no. 7, Sri Mehrotra submitted that interpretation of the clause as made by the petitioner cannot be accepted and the working bid capacity of both JV partners are to be taken together and should not be less than estimated cost of work. Further, nowhere the Clause requires that JV partners will have to individually show their working bid capacity to be in excess of work individually undertaken by them. As the working bid capacity of JV of respondent nos. 6 and 7 is 4705.34 crore, which is in excess of work that has to be put to tender.

41. Lastly responding to the 4th objection of the petitioner it was stated that the date of SLTC meeting was proposed on 11.03.2019, therefore, it was required to work on holiday. In fact, the e-tender opening date for 09.03.2019 was declared in advance and same was communicated to all bidders including petitioner.

42. Sri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior Counsel replying to the counter allegations made on behalf of respondents submitted that e-tender document being issued subsequent to NIT would prevail over it and Clause 2.13 of the e-tender document is very clear and logical. He further submitted that Master Circular referred to, does not have binding statutory effect and the conditions enumerated in the e-tender document would prevail over the same. He further submitted that the work experience certificate was not certified from the respective Embassies and cannot be considered as respondent no. 6 was not registered in India and further, the work experience of the JV with the Karnataka Government being not considered by the Jal Nigam is a concession of fact that the JV did not have requisite work experience to qualify for technical bid. He further submitted that the solvency certificate acceptable is provided in the list of documents at Annexure-8 and the same submitted by respondent no. 6 was not issued by the Nationalized Bank or District Magistrate nor the same was provided by the partner that is respondent no. 7 to a tune of Rs.189 crores. He reiterated the objections made by him in regard to the fact that the technical bid of respondent nos. 6 and 7 should not have been accepted.

43. We have heard learned counsel for the parties at length and perused the material on record.

44. It is not in dispute that the respondent, U.P. Jal Nigam had issued an e-tender on 09.01.2019 for proposed work in Jhansi for supply of water under AMRUT programme. The tender being a global tender, various companies participated and submitted their bid. Petitioner and Joint Venture of respondent nos. 6 and 7 and also respondent no. 8 participated by submitting their bid. Technical bid was opened and uploaded on the website on 05.03.2019, wherein three bids qualified for the financial bid to be opened on 09.03.2019.

45. It is also not in dispute that when the financial bid was opened on 09.03.2019, bid comprising of Joint Venture of respondent nos. 6 and 7 was found to be the lowest, followed by bid of the petitioner, while financial bid of respondent no. 8 was at the third place.

46. Bid made by Joint Venture of respondent nos. 6 and 7 has been challenged by the petitioner on three technical grounds that the work experience certificate given by them was for work done in Ghana and Angola which was done in a foreign country and would not tantamount to work experience as per e-tender document. Secondly, solvency certificate submitted by respondent no. 6 was not from a nationalized bank and working bid capacity of respondent no. 7 was less than estimated cost of work supposed to be done by it.

47. The e-tender notice dated 09.01.2019 which prescribes the terms and conditions for participation in the bid has its very genesis from the Master Circular of the Department that is the U.P. Jal Nigam which is dated 16.11.2018. It has been pointed out that the terms and conditions of the e-tender notice as well as e-tender document goes back to the Master Circular issued by Jal Nigam.

48. The first ground so raised by the petitioner as far as the certificate of work experience of Joint Venture for work done in Ghana and Angola cannot be considered as work experience, is a fallacy, as from the reading of Clause 3 of e-tender notice as well as Master Circular, it is clear that in case of a Company not registered in India then the work done by a subsidiary or a parent company in a foreign country will not be considered, unless certified by the respective Embassy office. But in the present case, the Joint Venture is a Company registered in India, while the parent Company is registered in Israel, as such no certification of work experience done in Ghana and Angola are to be certified by their respective Embassies. Thus, objection made on the basis of Clause 2.13 of e-tender document is of no relevance, as also counsel for the Department stating that, it was due to typographical error which had occurred in the said Clause, would not change the very object of the Clause.

49. As far solvency certificate provided by the Joint Venture is concerned, it has been argued by both the counsel for the Joint Venture as well as Jal Nigam that it being a global tender inviting global players, it would not be possible to have solvency certificate issued by nationalized bank or District Magistrate. Further, the issue regarding solvency certificate was also settled in pre-bid query of Koya and Company, wherein the Jal Nigam in its written reply had removed the word "nationalized" and only bank was written for issuing solvency certificate. Further, Jal Nigam submitted that in global tender such conditions cannot be laid down as foreign entities cannot provide solvency certificate from District Magistrate or nationalized Bank. It is worth nothing that Clause 15 of e-tender notice in respect of earnest money provides for FDR/ B.G. of a nationalized Bank, Axis Bank, ICICI Bank, IDBI and HDFC Bank. While Clause 5 of the Master Circular only provides that solvency amount should be equal to 40% or more of the estimated cost of work, but does not specify whether it should be from a nationalized bank or bank. Similarly, Clauses 7 and 8 which are in regard to earnest money and performance guarantee/ security money, it has been specifically provided that the same should be in form of bank guarantee from a nationalized bank, Axis Bank, ICICI Bank, IDBI Bank and HDFC Bank. The argument of the petitioner to the extent that Clause 27 of the e-tender document which provides for solvency certificate issued by District Magistrate/ Nationalized Bank cannot be accepted as the Department itself while answering the pre-bid query had clarified that solvency certificate should only be equal to 40% or more of the estimated cost of work but not from any particular bank or Government authority.

50. The Supreme Court in the matter of Nabha Power Ltd. (supra), Caretel Infotech Ltd. (supra) and AFCONS Infrastructure Ltd. (supra) repeatedly held that the Court should not venture into the realm of terms of contract and it is the author of the tender document who is the best person to understand and appreciate its requirement and interpret the same.

51. As in the instant case, Jal Nigam had answered pre-bid query of the respondents and clarified the fact regarding solvency certificate, we refrain ourselves from interpreting the terms of contract.

52. The third objection as far as the working bid capacity of respondent no. 7 is concerned, Jal Nigam has submitted that working bid capacity of both JV partners are to be taken together and it should not be less than estimated cost of work, and it is not that the capacity of work individually undertaken by them has to be considered, while their joint working bid capacity being 4705.34 crores, which is excess of work that has been put to tender, as such the argument has no force.

53. Lastly, the objection was raised in regard to the fact that financial bid was opened on 09.03.2019 which was a holiday, being second Saturday to which the answering Department had submitted that the date was declared in advance and communicated to all bidders including petitioner, as such the same being too technical as no prejudice is caused to either of the parties, the same is not accepted.

54. The petitioner has not alleged any arbitrariness, mala fide or excess of exercise of power by the respondents in the e-tender process. Further, the bid of the Joint Venture comprising of respondent nos. 6 and 7 was found to be the lowest being 5.55% less than the estimated cost of work which saved the Department about Rs. 17 crores, and in case they are ousted from the process and tender is awarded to petitioner, huge loss would be caused to public exchequer without any legal justification.

55. Argument raised by counsel for petitioner to the extent that the e-tender document came later in time to the e-tender notice, as such it would prevail cannot be accepted, as the very genesis of e-tender notice (NIT), and e-tender document is the Master Circular of U.P. Jal Nigam which guides and provides for all the work and contract to be undertaken by the Department. It is on the basis of this Circular that terms and conditions were laid down in the e-tender notice and further in the e-tender document. Once the author of the document itself has come out with clarification to the effect that what will be the work experience and the requirement of solvency certificate, there is no justification to interfere in the tender process on the ground of technicalities.

56. It is well-settled that the Courts should refrain from exercise of judicial review in matters relating to terms and conditions of the tender document, and only in case where breach of rules of natural justice has been committed, or decision has been reached which no reasonable Tribunal would have reached or there is an abuse of power, that the Court can interfere.

57. In the present case, we find that none of grounds raised by the petitioner for invoking extra ordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution arise and the bid of the Joint Venture being the lowest and there being no deviation in the tender process, we decline to interfere in the tender process of respondent no. 2.

58. The writ petition is dismissed. However, no order as to cost.

3. The writ petitions being based on similar set of facts, with the consent of parties, are being taken up and decided together.

4. Writ-C No.14272 of 2012, has been treated to be the leading petition, wherein the order dated 04.02.2012 passed by the Controlling Authority in Case No.139/P.G.A./2004 (decided alongwith the connected matters), is under challenge.

5. The records of the case indicate that upon an application filed by the respondent-workmen, Case No.139/P.G.A./2004 was registered before the Controlling Authority under the Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972/Deputy Labour Commissioner, U.P., Bareilly. In terms of the aforementioned application it was stated that only a part of the total gratuity amount due to them had been paid by the employer and accordingly claims were raised for payment of the balance amount. The aforementioned application came to be decided by the Controlling Authority by means of the order dated 17.03.2005 directing payment of the balance amount of gratuity.

6. Upon similar applications being filed by the workmen who are parties in the connected writ petitions, different orders bearing date 17.03.2005 were passed by the Controlling Authority allowing the claims for payment of difference of gratuity.

7. The aforementioned orders dated 17.03.2005 passed by the Controlling Authority came to be challenged by the petitioner, Bareilly Nagar Nigam, by filing writ petitions on the ground that the P.G. Act, 1972 was not applicable to the Bareilly Nagar Nigam. The particulars of these writ petitions are as follows:-

8. The aforementioned writ petitions were decided together as a bunch by means of a common judgment and order dated 04.04.2011. The judgment dated 04.04.2011 is being reproduced below:-

"1. In this entire bunch of writ petitions, the order passed by Prescribed Authority under Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as "1972 Act") has been assailed on the ground that the said Act has no application to Bareilly Nagar Nigam.

2. However, it is not demonstrated or shown to this Court as to how 1972 Act is not applicable to Bareilly Nagar Nigam. Application of 1972 Act is provided in Section 1(3) of the Act itself and read with definition clause, in my view, the Prescribed Authority has not erred in passing the impugned order applying the aforesaid Act to petitioner.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner, however, submitted that it was pleaded before the Prescribed Authority that the workman having already availed benefit of gratuity under the rules framed by Municipal Corporation and the same having been paid, cannot claim benefit under 1972 Act, inasmuch as, payment of gratuity can be claimed either under 1972 Act or under the terms of statutory rules framed by Municipal Corporation and not both.

4. This question has been considered by the Apex Court in Beed District Central Coop. Bank Ltd. Vs. State of Maharashtra & Ors. (2006) 8 SCC 514 and referring to Section 4(5) of 1972 Act, the Apex Court has held that provisions of the Act envisage for one scheme. It can not be segregated. Sub-section (5) of Section 4 of 1972 Act does not contemplate that the workman would be at liberty to opt for better terms of the contract, while keeping the option open in respect of a part of the statute. While reserving his right to opt for the beneficent provisions of the statute or the agreement, he has to opt for either of them and not the best of the terms of the statute as well as those of the contract. He cannot have both. The Apex Court in para 16 categorically held that the workman cannot opt for both the terms. Such a construction would defeat the purpose for which sub-section (5) of Section 4 has been enacted.

5. To the same effect is the decision of Delhi High Court in Municipal Corporation of Delhi Vs. Smt. V.T. Naresh & Anr. In Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.128/83 decided on 14th August, 1985.

6. In taking the above view I am also fortified by a judgement of this Court in Nagar Ayukt, Nagar Nigam, Kanpur Vs. Mujib Ulla Khan & Ors. 2008(117) FLR 277.

7. Learned counsel for the workmen-respondents submitted that they have been directed to be paid only the difference and not more than that which fact could not be shown to be incorrect by learned counsel for the petitioner.

8. Since only difference has been directed to be paid to respondents-workmen so as to give the benefit of only one scheme and not both, I do not find any reason to interfere with impugned orders. However, only by way of clarification, I provide that the claim of workmen having been made under 1972 Act shall be confined to the benefit admissible thereunder and if payment of gratuity has been made under the rules framed by the Municipal Corporation, such amount would be taken into consideration while satisfying demand of workmen under impugned orders.

9. In the circumstances, I find no reason to interfere with the impugned order.

10. Writ petitions lacks merit. Dismissed."

9. An application seeking clarification of the judgment dated 04.04.2011 was filed, which was rejected vide order dated 22.11.2011.

10. Pursuant to the aforementioned judgment dated 04.04.2011 a common order dated 04.02.2012 has been passed by the Controlling Authority in all the connected matters pertaining to the workmen who are parties in the present writ petition and the connected petitions. The Controlling Authority in terms of the order dated 04.02.2012 has directed the petitioner to make necessary deposit in terms of the earlier order dated 17.03.2005 whereunder the claims of the workmen for payment of difference of the amount of gratuity had been allowed.

11. The order dated 04.02.2012 which is a common order in the bunch of matters decided together, has been sought to be assailed on the ground that as per terms of sub-section (5) of Section 4 of the P.G. Act, 1972 the workmen could not opt for the benefit of the terms of the statute as well as those of the contract and benefit of only one scheme could be taken.

12. Learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents has supported the order passed by the Controlling Authority by submitting that in terms of the order passed by the Controlling Authority only difference of the gratuity amount has been directed to be paid and as such it could not be said that the claims have been raised seeking benefit of the terms of the statute as well as those of the contract.

13. The issue with regard to the applicability of the P.G. Act, 1972 to municipal corporations, governed in terms of the provisions contained under the U.P. Municipal Corporation Act, 1959 is no longer res integra in view of the pronouncement made in the judgment in the case of Nagar Ayukt, Nagar Nigam, Kanpur Vs. Mujib Ullah Khan & Ors. with Nagar Nigam, Gorakhpur Vs. Ram Shanker Yadav & Anr.2 wherein taking into view of the provisions of the P.G. Act, 1972 and the notification dated 08.01.1982 issued under Section 1(3)(c), the P.G. Act, 1972 was held to be applicable. The relevant observations made in the aforesaid judgment are being extracted below:-

"3. The appellant, the Municipal Corporation, Kanpur is governed by the Uttar Pradesh Municipal Corporation Act, 1959, whereas, the Respondent is an employee of the appellant. The employees in both cases claimed gratuity by invoking the jurisdiction of the Controlling Authorities under the Act. The argument of the Appellant before the learned Single Judge was that the gratuity is payable in accordance with the Retirement Benefits and General Provident Fund Regulations, 1962 framed Under Section 548 of the 1959 Act as amended on 11.01.1988. Such Regulations contemplate payment of gratuity at the rate of 15 days' salary per month for 16.5 months. It was found by the High Court that it is the Act which is applicable, whereby, gratuity calculated at the rate of 15 days' salary for every completed year without any ceiling of months or part thereof.

4. The argument raised by the appellant before the High Court is, that the gratuity is payable in terms of Rule 4(1) of the 1962 Regulations published Under Section 548 (1) of the 1959 Act as amended on 11.01.1988. Therefore, the employees of the Municipalities are entitled to gratuity only in terms of such Regulations and not under the Act.

5. The High Court relied upon a judgment reported as Municipal Corporation of Delhi v. Dharam Prakash Sharma AIR 1999 SC 293 to hold that only employees of Central Government or the State Government are exempt from the applicability of the Act, therefore, the employees of the Appellants would be governed by the Act and are entitled to gratuity in terms of the scale mentioned therein. It was held that the Act is not applicable only to the Central Government or State Governments in terms of definition of an "employee" under Section 2 (e) of the Act. Therefore, the employees of the Municipalities are entitled to the gratuity in terms of the provisions of the Act.

6. The appellant relies upon Section 3 of the U.P. Dookan Aur Vanijya Adhishthan Adhiniyam, 1962 which is to the effect that such Act will have no application to the office of Government or Local Bodies. Therefore, on the strength of such statutory provision, it was argued that the Act would not be applicable in respect of the Municipalities. The appellant is not a factory, mine, oilfield, plantation, port and railway company and that there is no notification as stipulated under Clause (c) of Section 1(3) of the Act. Therefore, the employees of the Municipalities are entitled to the gratuity in terms of the Regulations framed in exercise of powers of Section 548 of the 1959 Act and not under the Act.

7. On the other hand, the learned Counsel for the Respondent pointed out that the Central Government has published a notification in terms of Section 1(3)(c) of the Act on 08.01.1982 to extend the applicability of the Act to the Municipalities. Thus, the Act is applicable to the Municipalities…"

x x x x x

10. In terms of the above said Section 1(3)(c) of the Act, the Central Government has published a notification on 08.01.1982 and specified local bodies in which ten or more persons are employed, or were employed, on any day of the preceding twelve months as a class of establishment to which this Act shall apply.…

11. We find that the notification dated 08.01.1982 was not referred to before the High Court. Such notification makes it abundantly clear that the Act is applicable to the local bodies i.e. the Municipalities. Section 14 of the Act has given an overriding effect over any other inconsistent provision in any other enactment. The said provision reads as under:

"14. Act to override other enactments, etc. The provisions of this Act or any Rule made thereunder shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any enactment other than this Act or in any instrument or contract having effect by virtue of any enactment other than this Act."

12. In view of Section 14 of the Act, the provision in the State Act contemplating payment of gratuity will be inapplicable in respect of the employees of the local bodies.

13. Section 2(e) of the Act alone was referred to in the judgment reported as Municipal Corporation of Delhi. The said judgment is in the context of CCS (Pension) Rules, 1972 which specifically provides for payment of Pension and Gratuity. The Act is applicable to the Municipalities, therefore, it is wholly inconsequential even if there is no reference to the notification dated 08.01.1982.

14. The entire argument of the appellant is that the State Act confers restrictive benefit of gratuity than what is conferred under the Central Act. Such argument is not tenable in view of Section 14 of the Act and that liberal payment of gratuity is in fact in the interest of the employees. Thus, the gratuity would be payable under the Act. Such is the view taken by the Controlling Authority."

14. The notification dated 08.01.1982, referred to above, had been issued in terms of Section 1(3)(c) of the P.G. Act, 1972 whereunder the Central Government specified local bodies in which ten or more persons are employed or were employed, on any day preceding twelve months, as a class of the establishment to which the Act shall apply. The notification dated 08.01.1982 reads as under:-

"New Delhi, the 8th January, 1982
NOTIFICATION

S.O. No. 239....-In exercise of the powers conferred by Clause (c) of Sub-section (3) of Section 1 of the Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972 (39 of 1972), the Central Government hereby specified 'local bodies' in which ten or more persons are employed, or were employed, on any day preceding twelve months, as a class of establishments to which the said Act shall apply with effect from the date of publication of this notification in the Official Gazette.

15. The judgment in the case of Nagar Ayukt Nagar Nigam, Kanpur Vs. Mujib Ullah Khan & Anr. has been followed in a recent judgment of this Court in Nagar Nigam, Gorakhpur through Nagar Ayukt Vs. Suresh Pandey & two Ors.3 wherein the relevant statutory provisions and the case law on the subject has been considered in detail.

16. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner with regard to the point that the workmen concerned could not opt for better terms of gratuity as per the terms of the statute as well as those of the contract, was specifically considered by this Court in the earlier round of litigation which was decided by the judgment dated 04.04.2011 in Writ-C No.41977 of 2005 (and connected matters) and the said argument was repelled by stating that in terms of the orders passed by the Controlling Authority since only difference in the amount of gratuity had been directed to be paid to the respondent-workmen so as to give benefit of only one scheme and not both, there was no reason to interfere with the orders impugned. The judgment also clarified that the claim of the workmen having been made under the P.G. Act, 1972 shall be confined to the benefit admissible therein and if payment of gratuity has been made under the rules framed by the municipal corporation, such amount would be taken into consideration.

17. The judgment dated 04.04.2011 being inter partes and the same having not been put to challenge, the said judgment has attained finality and the petitioner cannot be allowed to re-agitate the same grounds again.

18. The order dated 04.02.2012 which is sought to be challenged in the present bunch of petitions having been passed in pursuance of the observations made in the judgment dated 04.04.2011 passed in Writ-C No.41977 of 2005 (and connected matters), the same cannot be faulted with.

19. Counsel appearing for the petitioner has not been able to dispute the legal proposition with regard to the applicability of the provisions of the P.G. Act, 1972 to municipal corporations, including the petitioner-Nagar Nigam.

20. No other ground was raised by the counsel for the petitioner.

21. The writ petitions lack merit and are accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Singh Baghel, J. & Hon'ble Piyush Agrawal, J.)

1. The petitioner has preferred this writ petition for issuance of a direction to the respondents to allot the developed abadi to the extent of 10% of the acquired land. The relief claimed in the writ petition reads as under:

"i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the Respondents to allot the developed Abadi Plot to the extent of 10% of the acquired land, subject to maximum of 2500 square meter in pursuance of the land of the petitioner acquired by the Authority bearing Khata No. 278 Khasra No. 152 measuring 2.6070 hectare situated at Village Pali, Pargana & Tehsil Dadri, District Gautam Budh Nagar."

2. It is stated that Greater Noida Industrial Development Authority (for short, "the Authority") acquired petitioner's bhumidhari land being Khata No. 278 Khasra No. 152 situated at Village Pali, Pargana & Tehsil Dadri, District Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. A large number of writ petitions were filed by the farmers. A batch of petitions was decided by a common judgement in the case of Gajraj and others v. State of U.P. and others1. The petitioner claims that he has also filed Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 46933 of 2011 (Raghubar & others v. State of U.P. & others) which was clubbed with the lead petition2. This Court in Gajraj (supra) has passed the following directions:

"482. ...

3. All other writ petitions except as mentioned above at (1) and (2) are disposed of with following directions:

(a) The petitioners shall be entitled for payment of additional compensation to the extent of same ratio (i.e. 64.70%) as paid for village Patwari in addition to the compensation received by them under 1997 Rules/award which payment shall be ensured by the Authority at an early date. It may be open for Authority to take a decision as to what proportion of additional compensation be asked to be paid by allottees. Those petitioners who have not yet been paid compensation may be paid the compensation as well as additional compensation as ordered above. The payment of additional compensation shall be without any prejudice to rights of land owners under Section 18 of the Act, if any.

(b) All the petitioners shall be entitled for allotment of developed Abadi plot to the extent of 10% of their acquired land subject to maximum of 2500 square meters. We however, leave it open to the Authority in cases where allotment of abadi plot to the extent of 6% or 8% have already been made either to make allotment of the balance of the area or may compensate the land owners by payment of the amount equivalent to balance area as per average rate of allotment made of developed residential plots.

4.The Authority may also take a decision as to whether benefit of additional compensation and allotment of abadi plot to the extent of 10% be also given to;

(a) those land holders whose earlier writ petition challenging the notifications have been dismissed upholding the notifications; and

(b) those land holders who have not come to the Court, relating to the notifications which are subject matter of challenge in writ petitions mentioned at direction No.3."

4. The said judgement was affirmed by the Supreme Court in the case of Savitri Devi v. State of Uttar Pradesh and others.3 Relevant part of the judgement of the Supreme Court reads as under:

"48. To sum up, the following benefits are accorded to the land owners:

48.1. Increasing the compensation by 64.7%;

48.2. Directing allotment of developed abadi land to the extent of 10% of the land acquired of each of the land owners;

48.3. Compensation which is increased at the rate of 64.7% is payable immediately without taking away the rights of the land owners to claim higher compensation under the machinery provided in the Land Acquisition Act wherein the matter would be examined on the basis of the evidence produced to arrive at just and fair market value.

49. This, according to us, provides substantial justice to the appellants.

Conclusion

50. Keeping in view all these peculiar circumstances, we are of the opinion that these are not the cases where this Court should interfere under Article 136 of the Constitution. However, we make it clear that directions of the High Court are given in the aforesaid unique and peculiar/specific background and, therefore, it would not form precedent for future cases.

51. ...

52. The Full Bench judgment of the High Court is, accordingly, affirmed and all these appeals are disposed of in terms of the said judgment of the Full Bench."

5. In the present case the petitioner claims that he has filed writ petition, therefore, he is entitled for 64.7% additional compensation and is also entitled for allotment of developed abadi plot to the extent of 10% of acquired land. The petitioner claims that his 2.6070 hectares land was acquired thus he is entitled for 2607 sq.mtrs. but in view of maximum limit of 2500 sq.mtrs he is entitled for the same.

6. The petitioner has made several representations but no decision has been taken as yet.

7. We have heard learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel and Sri Ramendra Pratap Singh, learned counsel for respondent nos. 2 & 3.

8. Sri Singh has placed reliance on the judgment in the case of Khatoon and others v. State of U.P. and others4, and a Division Bench judgement in Civil Misc. Writ Petition Nos. 26718 of 20185 and 16647 of 20186.

9. We have considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

10. The petitioner's plot no. 278 area 2.6070 hectare was said to be acquired. The petitioner has not enclosed the notification issued under Sections 4 & 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. In paragraph-6 of the writ petition the petitioner has claimed that he has filed Civil Misc. Writ Petition no. 46933 of 2011. A copy of the judgement of the said order is on the record as annexure-2 to the writ petition. The said writ petition has been filed by Raghubar and others which was disposed of on 21.10.2011 in terms of the judgement in Gajraj (supra).

11. The grievance of the petitioner is that in compliance of the judgment in Gajraj (supra) similarly placed persons have been paid 64.70% developed plot up to 10% of the total acquired land for residential purposes but the petitioner has been denied the allotment of developed abadi plot to the extent of 10% of his acquired land.

12. We find that the petitioner has made representations dated 26.9.2017 and 19.6.2019 to the authority concerned which is on the record.

13. Sri Ramendra Pratap Singh, learned counsel for the respondents has placed heavy reliance on the judgement of the Supreme in Khatoon (supra). In paragraph-15 of the said judgement it is recorded that the appellants in those cases have not filed any writ petition and for the first time on 15.2.2016 they approached the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution. Paragraph-15 of the said judgement reads as under:

"15. The appellants herein, whose lands were also acquired in these acquisition proceedings, then woke up out of slumber and filed the writ petitions for the first time on 15.02.2016 in the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad out of which these appeals arise."

14. It is pertinent to mention that the Full Bench in its operative portion of the judgement in Gajraj (supra) has made it clear that the land holders who have not filed writ petition, their case shall be considered by the Authority which shall take a decision as to whether the benefit of additional compensation and the allotment of abadi plot be also given to those land holders who have not come to the Court relating to the notification which are subject matter of challenge in Gajraj (supra) and companion petitions and all those land holders whose earlier writ petitions challenging the notifications have been dismissed.

15. It was urged by learned counsel for the petitioner that in compliance of the said directions the Authority has taken a resolution to extend the benefit to those persons also who have not filed writ petition and has sought approval of the State Government, however, the State Government vide its order dated 21.9.2016 addressed to the Chief Executive Officer, Greater Noida, Gautam Budh Nagar has rejected the said proposal. The said Government Order reads as under:

16. In the present case the said issue need not to be decided since the petitioner's case is that he had filed writ petition and it was tagged and decided along with the case of Gajraj and others.

17. In the present case the petitioner has averred that he has filed a writ petition and a copy of the order of Raghubar (supra) is also on the record hence the judgement of Khatoon (supra) is not applicable in the facts of the present case as the petitioner had filed writ petition which was tagged with the case of Gajraj and others as also it was disposed of in the same terms.

18. In any view of the matter, we are of the opinion that the grievance of the petitioner be considered at the first instance by the authority concerned by passing a reasoned order. Accordingly, the writ petition is disposed of with a direction upon the second respondent to consider the cause of the petitioner and pass appropriate order. The authority concerned shall make an endeavour to address the grievance of the petitioner expeditiously, preferably within three months from the date of communication of this order.

19. Needless to say that we have not expressed our opinion on the merits of the case, the authority concerned shall pass the order independently and in accordance with law.

20. No order as to costs.

4. Shiv Ram Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Others 2015 (5) AWC 4918

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pradeep Kumar Singh Baghel,J.)

1. The petitioner has laid challenge in the present writ petition the proceedings initiated under the provisions of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 (for short Act No. 33 of 1976)1 on the ground that the said proceedings stood abated in terms of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Repeal Act, 1999 (for short Act 15 of 1999)2 and for quashing of the order dated 02.05.2017 passed by the District Magistrate,Varanasi.

2. Brief factual matrix may be noted. The petitioner claims that he is owner of the araji nos. 31/1 area 11 decimal, 86/1 area 26 decimal, 86/4 area 20 decimal, 32/2 area ¾ decimal. He claims to have half share out of total araji. The said land was within the municipal limit of the Varanasi and the land was recorded as agricultural land but being the land within the municipal limit the provisions of the Act, 1976 were made applicable. The petitioner submitted ceiling return/statement under sub-section (1) of Section 6 of the Act No.33 of 1976 Act, which was registered as case no.915/7035/76-77 (State Vs. Lallan) and case no.916/7035/76-77 (State v. Bachau), Village Ranipur, District Varansari. It is stated that without serving the notice under Section 8(3) of the Act,1976 illegal order was passed on 27.10.1978 under Section 8(4) of the Act, 1976 and out of 3218.54 square meter land 218.54 square meter land was declared surplus. Thereafter a notice is said to be issued under sub-section (5) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976, it bears the date 15.02.1982. The petitioner has averred in paragraph 7 of the writ petition which has been repeated in other paragraphs also that the said notice dated 15.02.1982 was never served upon the petitioner and as such the land holders neither surrendered the land to the State nor the respondents have ever taken actual possession from the petitioner.

3. It is stated that the petitioner is still in physical and cultivatory possession of the land in question and since the order under sub-section (4) of Section 8 of the Act, 1976 was never served upon the land holder, therefore, he could not file any appeal under Section 33 of the Act, 1976.

4. The petitioner has further averred that no proceeding under sub-section (5) or sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act,1976 has been initiated, therefore, after repeal Act came into force respondents have no right to take possession from the petitioner.

5. It is worthwhile to mention that in the meantime the Act, 1976 was repealed by the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Repeal Act, 1999 (Act 15 of 1999). The said Act was adopted by the State of U.P. whereunder subject to the certain conditions mentioned in the provisions of the Act the pending proceedings shall be lapsed. That one of the relief sought in the writ petition is that to declare that the proceedings initiated under the Act, 1976 is abated in terms of the Repeal Act.

6. The petitioner had earlier approached this Court by way of Writ Petition No.6757 of 2017, Raju v. State of U.P. & 2 Others. The said writ petition was disposed of on 13.02.2017 with a direction upon the respondent no.2 to consider the fact relating to the actual physical possession of the plot in question and such an enquiry be undertaken at first instance by the District Magistrate. In pursuance of the order of this Court dated 13.02.2017 the petitioner had submitted detailed representation on 23.02.2017, wherein he has asserted that he is still in physical possession and no forceful possession has been taken under sub-section 6 of Section 10 of Act, 1976. It has also been averred that the petitioner never surrendered voluntarily his land after the alleged notice under sub-section (5) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 was issued to him. The District Magistrate has rejected the representation of the petitioner by a cryptic order only on the ground that the petitioner's land has been declared surplus vide order date 27.10.1978 under sub-section (4) of Section 8 of the Act, 1976 and 218.54 square meter has been declared surplus. Declaration under sub-section (1) and sub-section (3) of Section 10 of Act, 1976 was made in official gazette and after that the information in terms of sub-section (5) of Section 10 of Act, 1976 was issued on 15.02.1982 and the compensation amount Rs.1092.70 was determined on 21.08.1998 and the possession to the Varanasi Development Authority has been handed over before the Repeal Act came into force and accordingly the representation of the petitioner has been rejected. The order dated 02.05.2017 passed by the District Magistrate is also under challenge in the instant writ proceedings.

7. A counter affidavit has been filed by the State. The stand taken in the counter affidavit is that Lallan and Bachau, sons of Mitlu (father of the petitioners) had filed detailed documents under sub-section (1) Section 6 of Act, 1976 and a notice dated 21.10.1978 was issued under sub-section (3) of Section 8 of the Act, 1976 against which no objection was filed. Thereafter the competent authority on 27.10.1978 has passed an order under sub-section (4) of Section 8 of the Act, 1976 and declared 218.54 square meter as surplus vacant land. It is further averred that the necessary publication in terms of sub-section (1) and sub-section (3) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 was issued and after issuance of the Government Order dated 26.12.1978 and 22.03.1980 a notice under sub-section (5) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 was issued to the petitioner for delivering the possession of the land and that was done prior to the Repeal Act came into force.

8. A short counter affidavit was filed on behalf of the Varanasi Development Authority wherein it is clearly mentioned that the petitioner's land has not been transferred to the Varanasi Development Authority. The said counter affidavit was sworn by the Tehsildar, Varanasi Development Authority wherein it has been averred that the Competent Officer has not transferred any surplus land of plot nos. 3/6, 18/1, 18/9 and 18/11 at Mauja Lakhanpur, Pargana Dehat, Tehsil Amanat, District Varanasi to the Varansari Development Authority. It is averred that neither the disputed land has been transferred to the Varansari Development Authority nor the same is in its possession at present.

9. In the rejoinder affidavit the petitioner has denied the allegation made in the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State that the notice under sub-section (5) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 has never been served upon the petitioner and no proceeding under-section (6) of Section 10 has been held. It is also stated that the State in its counter affidavit has not given the date of peaceful possession or actual physical possession taken by the State. It is also averred that the possession of the land in dispute has not been taken by the State nor the petitioner has voluntarily handed over the possession of his land which was declared surplus land to the State.

10. We have heard Sri Raj Karan Yadav, the learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri M.C.Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri R.P. Pandey, learned counsel for the Varanasi Development Authority and the learned Standing Counsel and perused the materials on record.

11. The learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the petitioner has never handed over the possession of the disputed land under sub-section (5) of Section 10 of Act, 1976 to the State and no forceful possession has been taken from the petitioner under sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act,1976.

12. It has been vehemently urged that the petitioner is still in physical and cultivatory possession of the land and he has never handed over the possession to the authority. He further submits that in view of the fact that the petitioner is still in possession of the land and no forceful possession has not been taken over by the State, the proceedings under under the Act, 1976 stood abated in terms of sub-section 2(a) of Section 3 of the Repeal Act. Lastly, he has urged that the Varanasi Development Authority in its counter affidavit has clearly admitted that the land in question has never been transferred to it. Thus, a false statement has been made by the State in its counter affidavit that the possession was handed over to the Varanasi Development Authority. He further submitted that the State in its counter affidavit has not disclosed the date when the possession was taken.

13. The learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. v. Hari Ram3, Lalji v. State of U.P. and another4, Yasin and others v. State of U.P. and others5, and Ram Chandra Pandey v. State of U.P. and others6,

14. Learned Standing Counsel submitted that after the notification made under sub-section (1) of Section 10 and sub-section (3) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 the surplus land declared by the competent authority stood vested with the State and in the revenue records also the name of the State was recorded. He has placed reliance on a judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of State of Assam v. Bhaskar Jyoti Sharma and Others7, and Shiv Ram Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Others8,.

15. We have summoned the original record in the matter and the learned Standing Counsel has stated that in this batch of writ petitions there is no original possession memo in the original record. He also failed to point out in the original record which indicates that after taking possession from the petitioner it was handed over to the Varanasi Development Authority.

16. From the record it is also evident that no proceedings under sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 has been taken.

17. Before adverting to the submissions raised by the learned counsel for the parties it would be apposite to refer relevant provisions of the Act, 1976.

18. Section 2(o) of the Act, 1976 defines "urban land" and Section 2(q) defines "vacant land". Section 6 of the Act, 1976 provides that owner of the land shall submit a statement giving detail of the vacant land. Section 8(1) enjoins that the competent authority shall get a survey of the land conducted and on the basis of the said survey a draft statement under sub-section (3) of Section 8 of the Act, 1976 was required to be served upon the land owner calling for objection to the said statement within thirty days and the order is passed under sub-section (4) of Section 8 of the Act, 1976 and later a notification is issued under sub-section (1) of Section 10 for publication in the Gazette giving particulars of the vacant land. Thereafter another notice is published stating that the land shall be deemed to have been vested on the Government free from all encumbrances. Thereafter a notice under sub-section (5) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 is issued calling upon the land owner to hand over possession of the land declared surplus. If the land owner fails to handover the possession voluntarily in response to the aforementioned notice, sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 confers a power upon the competent authority to take forceful possession. For the sake of convenience, Sections 2(o), 2(q) and sub-sections (5) and (6) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 are reproduced hereunder:

"2(o) "urban land" means,--

(i) any land situated within the limits of an urban agglomeration and referred to as such in the master plan; or

(ii) in a case where there is no master plan, or where the master plan does not refer to any land as urban land, any land within the limits of an urban agglomeration and situated in any area included within the local limits of a municipality (by whatever name called), a notified area committee, a town area committee, a city and town committee, a small town committee, a cantonment board or a panchayat, but does not include any such land which is mainly used for the purpose of agriculture.

Explanation.--For the purpose of this clause and clause (q),--

(A) "agriculture" includes horticulture, but does not include--

(I) raising of grass,

(ii) dairy farming,

(iii) poultry farming,

(iv) breeding of live-stock, and

(v) such cultivation, or the growing of such plant, as may be prescribed;

(B) land shall not be deemed to be used mainly for the purpose of agriculture, if such land is not entered in the revenue or land records before the appointed day as for the purpose of agriculture:

Provided that where on any land which is entered in the revenue or land records before the appointed day as for the purpose of agriculture, there is a building which is not in the nature of a farm-house, then, so much of the extent of such land as is occupied by the building shall not be deemed to be used mainly for the purpose of agriculture:

Provided further that if any question arises whether any building is in the nature of a farm-house, such question shall be referred to the State Government and the decision of the State Government thereon shall be final;

(C) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause

(B) of this Explanation, land shall not be deemed to be mainly used for the purpose of agriculture if the land has been specified in the master plan for a purpose other than agriculture;"

"2(q) "vacant land" means land, not being land mainly used for the purpose of agriculture, in an urban agglomeration, but does not include--

(i) land on which construction of a building is not permissible under the building regulations in force in the area in which such land is situated;

(ii) in an area where there are building regulations, the land occupied by any building which has been constructed before, or is being constructed on, the appointed day with the approval of the appropriate authority and the land appurtenant to such building; and

(iii) in an area where there are no building regulations, the land occupied by any building which has been constructed before, or is being constructed on, the appointed day and the land appurtenant to such building:

Provided that where any person ordinarily keeps his cattle, other than for the purpose of dairy farming or for the purpose of breeding of live-stock, on any land situated in a village within an urban agglomeration (described as a village in the revenue records), then, so much extent of the land as has been ordinarily used for the keeping of such cattle immediately before the appointed day shall not be deemed to be vacant land for the purposes of this clause."

"10(5) Where any vacant land is vested in the State Government under sub-section (3), the competent authority may, by notice in writing, order any person who may be in possession of it to surrender or deliver possession thereof to the State Government or to any person duly authorised by the State Government in this behalf within thirty days of the service of the notice."

"10(6) If any person refuses or fails to comply with an order made under sub-section (5), the competent authority may take possession of the vacant land or cause it to be given to the concerned State Government or to any person duly authorised by such State Government in this behalf and may for that purpose use such force as may be necessary.

Explanation.--In this section, in sub-section (1) of section 11 and in sections 14 and 23, "State Government", in relation to--

(a) any vacant land owned by the Central Government, means the Central Government;

(b) any vacant land owned by any State Government and situated in the Union territory or within the local limits of a cantonment declared as such under section 3 of the Cantonments Act, 1924 (2 of 1924), means that State Government."

19. In the year 1999 the Parliament enacted the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Repeal Act, 1999 (for short Act 15 of 1999). The said Act was adopted by the State of U.P. also by a notification dated 18.03.1999. It is apposite to reproduce Sections 3 and 4 of the Repeal Act.

"3. Saving.-- (1) The repeal of the principal Act shall not affect--

(a) the vesting of any vacant land under sub-section 10, possession of which has been taken over by the State Government or any person duly authorized by the State Government in this behalf or by the competent authority;

(b) the validity of any order granting exemption under sub-section (1) of Section 20 or any action taken thereunder, notwithstanding any judgment of any court to the contrary;

(c) any payment made to the State Government as a condition for granting exemption under sub-section (1) of Section 20.

(2) Where--

(a) any land is deemed to have vested in the State Government under sub-section (3) of Section 10 of the principal Act but possession of which has not been taken over by the State Government or any person duly authorized by the State Government in this behalf or by the competent authority; and

(b) any amount has been paid by the State Government with respect to such land then, such land shall not be restored unless the amount paid, if any, has been refunded to the State Government.

4. Abatement of legal proceedings.-- All proceedings relating to any order made or purported to be made under the principal Act pending immediately before the commencement of this Act, before any court, tribunal or other authority shall abate:*

Provided that this section shall not apply to the proceedings relating to sections 11,12,13 and 14 of the principal Act in so far as such proceedings are relatable to the land, possession of which has been taken over by the State Government or any person duly authorised by the State Government in this behalf or by the competent authority."

20. विषय– नगर भूमि (अधिकतम सीमा एवं विनियमन) निरसन अधिनियम, 1999 ततक्रम में निर्गत शासनादेश तथा मा0 उच्चतम न्यायालय के निर्णय दिनांक 11.03.2013 के सम्बन्ध में।

महोदय,

उपयुर्क्त विषय पर मुझे यह कहने का निर्देश हुआ है कि भारत सरकार के अधिनियम संख्या–15/1999 दिनांक 18.03.1999 द्वारा नगर भूमि (अधिकतम सीमा एवं विनियमन) अधिनियम 1976 को निरसित करते हुए नगर भूमि (अधिकतम सीमा एवं विनियमन) निरसन अधिनियम 1999 प्राख्यापित किया गया जिसके क्रम में शासनादेश संख्या– 502/9– न0 भू0–99–21यू0सी0/99, दिनांक 31.03.1999 द्वारा उक्त निरसन अधिनियम को उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य में अंगीकृत किया गया। निरसन अधिनियम 1999 की धारा–3 में यह प्राविधान है कि मूल अधिनियम का निरसन निम्नलिखित को प्रभावित नहीं करेगा–

(1) (क) धारा–10 की उपधारा– (3) के अधीन ऐसी रिक्त भूमि का निहित होना, जिसका कब्जा राज्य सरकार या राज्य सरकार द्वारा इस निमित्त सम्यक रूप से अधिकशतक किसी व्यक्ति या सक्षम प्राधिकारी ने ले लिया है।

(ख) धारा– 20 की उपधारा– (1) के अधीन छूट देने संबंधी किसी आदेश या उसके अधीन की गयी किसी कार्यवाही की किसी न्यायालय के किसी निर्णय में उसके विरूद्ध किसी बात के होते हुए भी विधिमान्यताः

(ग) धारा– 20 की उपधारा– (1) के अधीन प्रदान की गयी छूट की शर्त के रूप मे राज्य सरकार को किया गया कोई संदायः

(2) जहां–

(क) मूल अधिनियम की धारा–10 की उपधारा (3) के अधीन किसी भूमि को राज्य सरकार में निहित होना मानी गयी है किन्तु जिसका कब्जा राज्य सरकार या राज्य सरकार द्वारा इस निमित्त सम्यक रूप से प्राधिकृत किसी व्यक्ति या सक्षम प्राधिकारी द्वारा नही लिया गया : और

(ग) ऐसी किसी भूमि के बाबत जिसके लिए राज्य सरकार द्वारा किसी रकम का संदाय कर दिया गया है तब तक प्रत्यावर्तित नही की जाय और जब तक कि राज्य सरकार को संदाय की गयी रकम का यदि कोई हो, प्रतिदाय नही कर दिया जाता।

उक्त के क्रम में शासनादेश संख्या–777/9न0भू0–135 यू0सी0/99 दिनांक

09.02.2000, शासनादेश संख्या–1623/9–न0भू0–2000 दिनांक 09.08.2000 एवं शासनादेश संख्या– 190/9–आ–6–2001 दिनांक 24.01.2001 निर्गत किये गये जिसमे मुख्य रूप से यह व्यवस्था की गई कि मूल अधिनियम धारा –8 (4) के अन्तर्गत जो भूमि रिक्त घोषित की गई थी और धारा–10 (3) के अन्तर्गत राज्य में निहित हो चुकी थी एवं धारा–10 (5) की कार्यवाही का आदेश हो चुका था परन्तु इस भूमि पर राज्य सरकार का कब्जा प्राप्त नही हो सका था, ऐसी भूमि के सम्बन्ध मे मूल भूधारक को अदा की गई धनराशि भूधारक द्वारा वापस करने पर भूमि मूल भूधारक को प्रत्यावर्तित की जा सकती है किन्तु अदा की गई धनराशि भू– धारक द्वारा वापस न करने की दशा में भूमि पर कब्जा किये जाने के सम्बन्ध मे विधि अनुसार अग्रिम कार्यवाही अमल मे लायी जाय। यह भी व्यवस्था की गई कि जिस भूमि के सम्बन्ध में धारा–10 (5) की कार्यवाही के उपरान्त धारा–10 (6) की कार्यवाही पूर्व हो चुकी है और भूमि पर राज्य सरकार द्वारा कब्जा लिया जा चुका है वह सरप्लस भूमि अन्तिम रूप से राज्य सरकार में निहित मानी जायेगी।

3. नगर भूमि सीमारोपण– गोरखपुर, वाराणसी, इलाहाबाद, लखनऊ, कानपुर, आगरा, मेरठ, मुरादाबाद, अलीगढ, बरेली, सहारनपुर में लम्बित अर्बन सीलिंग प्रकरणों का समुचित रूप से निस्तारण ने होने की स्थिति मे भू–धारकों/वादियों द्वारा मा0 उच्च न्यायालय में अधिक संख्या में रिट याचिकायें योजित की जा रही है। नगर बस्ती कार्यालयों द्वारा रिट याचिकाओं में विभागीय पक्ष समयान्तर्गत साक्ष्यों सहित प्रबलता से प्रस्तुत न किये जाने के कारण मा0 न्यायालय द्वारा पारित आदेशों के क्रम में शासन को असमंजसपूर्ण स्थिति का सामना करना पड़ रहा है।

4. अर्बन सीलिंग के अन्य प्रकरण में राज्य सरकार द्वारा मा0 उच्चचम न्यायालय नई दिल्ली में विशेष अनुमति याचिका संख्या–12960/2008 उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य बनाम हरीराम योजित की गयी। कालान्तर मे अन्य जनपदों के अर्बन सीलिंग से संबधित प्रकरणों मे योजित विशेष अनुमति याचिकायें उक्त विशेष अनुमति याचिका से क्लब की गयी। उक्त विशेष अनुमति याचिका संख्या–12960/2008 तथा उससे क्लब अन्य विशेष अनुमति याचिकाओं में पारित मा0 उच्चतम न्यायालय के निर्णय दिनांक 11.03.2013 मे अर्बन सीलिंग से संबधित प्रकरणों मे मार्गदर्शक सिद्धान्त प्रतिपादित किये गये हैं। निर्णय दिनांक 11.03.2013 का महत्वपूर्ण एवं क्रियात्मक अंश निम्नवत हैः–

प्रस्तर–39

The mere vesting of the land under sub-section (3) of Section 10 would not confer any right on the State Government to have de facto possession of the vacant land unless there has been a voluntary surrender of vacant land before 18.3.1999. State has to establish that there has been a voluntary surrender of vacant land or surrender and delivery of peaceful possession under sub-section (5) of Section 10 or forceful dispossession under sub-section (6) of Section 10. On failure to establish any of those situations, the land owner or holder can claim the benefit of Section 3 of the Repeal Act. The State Government in this appeal could not establish any of those situations and hence the High Court is right in holding that the respondent is entitled to get the benefit of Section 3 of the Repeal Act.

प्रस्तर–40

We, therefore, find no infirmity in the judgment of the High Court and the appeal is, accordingly dismissed so also the other appeals. No documents have been produced by the State to show that the respondents had been dispossessed before coming into force of the Repeal Act and hence, the respondents are entitled to get the benefit of Section 3 of the Repeal Act. However, there will be no order as to cost.

5- नगर भूमि (अधिकतम सीमा एवं विनियमन) निरसन अधिनियम, 1999 में विहित प्राविधान तथा तत्क्रम में निर्गत शासनादेश दिनांक 09.02.2000, शासनादेश दिनांक 09.08.2000 एवं शासनादेश दिनांक 24.01.2001 स्वतः स्पष्ट है। विशेष अनुमति याचिका संख्या–12960/2008 उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य बनाम हरीराम तथा उससे क्लब

अन्य विशेष अनुमति याचिकाओं में पारित मा0 उच्चतम न्यायालय के निर्णय दिनांक 11.03.2013 में उल्लिखित सिद्धान्त/आदेश भी स्वतः स्पष्ट हैं।

6- कृपया नगर भूमि (अधिकतम सीमा एवं विनियमन) निरसन अधिनियम, 1999 तथा उक्त शासनादेश दिनांक 09.02.2000, शासनादेश दिनांक 09.08.2000 एवं शासनादेश दिनांक 24.01.2001 में विहित व्यवस्था, विशेष अनुमति याचिका संख्या–12960/2008 उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य बनाम हरीराम में पारित मा0 उच्चतम न्यायालय के निर्णय दिनांक 11.03.2013 में उल्लिखित सिद्धान्तों/आदेशों के आलोक में लम्बित प्रकरणों मे स्महंस पदहतमकपमदजे देखते हुए आवश्यक कार्यवाही की जाय।

22. Now, the question before us is whether in present set of facts the proceedings shall abate in view of sub-section (2) of Section 3 of the Act, 1999. The issue regarding the abatement of the Urban Land Ceiling Proceeding in terms of sub-section (2) of Section 3 of the Repeal Act fell for consideration before the Supreme Court in some of the cases and in a large number of the cases in this Court. The law laid down in the unbroken line of the judgments are that if at the time of the enforcement of the Repeal Act the possession has not been taken by the State in terms of sub-section (5) or sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 then the proceedings under Section 1976 shall be abated.

23. In the case of Hari Ram (supra) the Supreme Court has elaborately considered the scope of sub-section (5) and sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 and the directions framed by the State Government under Section 35 of the Act, 1976 and the directions framed by the State Government under U.P. Urban Land Ceiling (Taking of Possession, Payment of Amount and Allied Matters) Direction 1983. The relevant part of the judgment of the Supreme Court reads thus:

"30. Vacant land, it may be noted, is not actually acquired but deemed to have been acquired, in that deeming things to be what they are not. Acquisition, therefore, does not take possession unless there is an indication to the contrary. It is trite law that in construing a deeming provision, it is necessary to bear in mind the legislative purpose. The purpose of the Act is to impose ceiling on vacant land, for the acquisition of land in excess of the ceiling limit thereby to regulate construction on such lands, to prevent concentration of urban lands in hands of few persons, so as to bring about equitable distribution. For achieving that object, various procedures have to be followed for acquisition and vesting. When we look at those words in the above setting and the provisions to follow such as sub-sections (5) and (6) of Section 10, the words "acquired" and "vested" have different meaning and content. Under Section 10(3), what is vested is de jure possession not de facto, for more reasons than one because we are testing the expression on a statutory hypothesis and such an hypothesis can be carried only to the extent necessary to achieve the legislative intent.

Voluntary surrender

31. The "vesting" in sub-section (3) of Section 10, in our view, means vesting of title absolutely and not possession though nothing stands in the way of a person voluntarily surrendering or delivering possession. The Court in Maharaj Singh v. State of U.P.13, while interpreting Section 117(1) of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 held that "vesting" is a word of slippery import and has many meaning and the context controls the text and the purpose and scheme project the particular semantic shade or nuance of meaning. The Court in Rajendra Kumar v. Kalyan14 held as follows: (SCC p. 114, para 28)

"28. ...We do find some contentious substance in the contextual facts, since vesting shall have to be a "vesting" certain. 'To "vest", generally means to give a property in.' (Per Brett, L.J. Coverdale v. Charlton15 : Stroud's Judicial Dictionary, 5th Edn. Vol. VI.) Vesting in favour of the unborn person and in the contextual facts on the basis of a subsequent adoption after about 50 years without any authorization cannot however but be termed to be a contingent event. To 'vest', cannot be termed to be an executor devise. Be it noted however, that 'vested' does not necessarily and always mean 'vest in possession' but includes 'vest in interest' as well."

32. We are of the view that so far as the present case is concerned, the word "vesting" takes in every interest in the property including de jure possession and, not de facto but it is always open to a person to voluntarily surrender and deliver possession, under Section 10(3) of the Act.

33. Before we examine sub-section (5) and sub-section (6) of Section 10, let us examine the meaning of sub-section (4) of Section 10 of the Act, which says that during the period commencing on the date of publication under sub-section (1), ending with the day specified in the declaration made under sub-section (3), no person shall transfer by way of sale, mortgage, gift or otherwise, any excess vacant land, specified in the notification and any such transfer made in contravention of the Act shall be deemed to be null and void. Further, it also says that no person shall alter or cause to be altered the use of such excess vacant land. Therefore, from the date of publication of the notification under sub-section (1) and ending with the date specified in the declaration made in sub-section (3), there is no question of disturbing the possession of a person, the possession, therefore, continues to be with the holder of the land.

Peaceful dispossession

34. Sub-section (5) of Section 10, for the first time, speaks of "possession" which says where any land is vested in the State Government under sub-section (3) of Section 10, the competent authority may, by notice in writing, order any person, who may be in possession of it to surrender or transfer possession to the State Government or to any other person, duly authorized by the State Government.

35. If de facto possession has already passed on to the State Government by the two deeming provisions under sub-section (3) to Section 10, there is no necessity of using the expression "where any land is vested" under sub-section (5) to Section 10. Surrendering or transfer of possession under sub-section (3) to Section 10 can be voluntary so that the person may get the compensation as provided under Section 11 of the Act early. Once there is no voluntary surrender or delivery of possession, necessarily the State Government has to issue notice in writing under sub-section (5) to Section 10 to surrender or deliver possession. Sub-section (5) of Section 10 visualizes a situation of surrendering and delivering possession, peacefully while sub-section (6) of Section 10 contemplates a situation of forceful dispossession."

24. The case of Hari Ram (supra) was followed by the Supreme Court in the case of Gajanan Kamlya v. Addl. Collector & Comp. Auth.& Ors.9. The relevant part of the judgment is extracted below:

"13. We have, therefore, clearly indicated that it was always open to the authorities to take forcible possession and, in fact, in the notice issued under Section 10(5) of the ULC Act, it was stated that if the possession had not been surrendered, possession would be taken by application of necessary force. For taking forcible possession, certain procedures had to be followed. Respondents have no case that such procedures were followed and forcible possession was taken. Further, there is nothing to show that the Respondents had taken peaceful possession, nor there is anything to show that the Appellants had given voluntary possession. Facts would clearly indicate that only de jure possession had been taken by the Respondents and not de facto possession before coming into force of the repeal of the Act. Since there is nothing to show that de facto possession had been taken from the Appellants prior to the execution of the possession receipt in favour of MRDA, it cannot hold on to the lands in question, which are legally owned and possessed by the Appellants. Consequently, we are inclined to allow this appeal and quash the notice dated 17.2.2005 and subsequent action taken therein in view of the repeal of the ULC Act. The above reasoning would apply in respect of other appeals as well and all proceedings initiated against the Appellants, therefore, would stand quashed."

25. In Special Leave Petition (C) No.17799 of 2015, which was also taken up with Special Leave Petition (C) No. 38922 of 2013, State of U.P. and another v. Vinod Kumar Tripathi and others, vide order dated 19th January, 2016 the Supreme Court has held as under:

"As could be seen from the original record, possession of the land in question is taken neither by the competent authority or his authorised representative by following the procedure as laid down under Section 10(5) and Section 10(6) of the Urban Land (Ceiling & Regulation) Act, 1976 (now repealed), therefore, the impugned order cannot be interfered. Hence, the special leave petition is liable to be dismissed and is hereby dismissed accordingly."

26. This Court in State of Uttar Pradesh and another v. Nek Singh10, has considered extensively the procedure which has to be followed for taking possession from the land holder. The relevant paragraph of the judgment reads as under:

"9. Otherwise also, the statutory benefit of the Repealing Act is also available to the landholder-respondent in the fact-situation of the matter, as the taking of the "possession" in the present case was neither de jure nor de facto. The term "possession" as per sections 3 and 4 of the Repealing Act and section 10(6) of the U.L.C.R Act means and implies the lawful "possession" after "due compliance of the statutory provisions". In State of U.P v. Boon Udhyog (P) Ltd. . 1999 4 AWC 3324 para 16, a Division Bench of this Court has held that where possession has been taken, its legality is to be decided on merits. Similarly, another Division Bench of this Court in State of U.P v. Hari Ram . 2005 60 ALR 535., has held that "in case possession is purported to be taken under section 10(6) of the Act, still Court is required to examine whether "taking of such possession' is valid or invalidated on any of the considerations in law. If Court finds that one or more grounds exist which show that the process of possession, though claimed under section 10(5) or 10(6) of the Act is unlawful or vitiated in law, then such possession will have no reorganization in law and it will have to be ignored and treated as of no legal consequence". On examination of the facts on record, it is crystal clear that the possession allegedly taken on 23.1.1986 was unlawful for plurality of reasons which are--Firstly, the possession allegedly taken on 23.1.1986 was pursuant to the CA's order dated 19.12.1985 under section 10(5) which was addressed to deceased Dhan Singh and, therefore, it was nullity and non est factum having no legal consequence and the possession taken on the basis was also void. Secondly, as per the Government Order dated 9.2.1977 issued by the State Government (filed with Supplementary Counter Affidavit and taken on record), the Collector was alone authorised under section 10(6) of the U.L.C.R Act to take possession on behalf of the State Government, but in the instant case, the possession was taken by the Tehsil officials and not by the Collector or the Additional Collector or by the Competent Authority himself. The Collector could not have delegated his authority to anyone else as a delegate could not have further delegated in view of the maxim--Delegatus non potest delegare. As such, the taking of possession by the Tehsil Officials was per se illegal being not as per the authorisation dated 9.2.1977 and, therefore, had no consequences. Thirdly, the possession was taken on 23.1.1986, while the alleged affixation of the order dated 19.12.1985 under section 10(5) of the U.L.C.R Act was made on 9.1.1986 by the process-server and, as such, the possession was taken on 23.1.1986 only after the expiry of 14 days instead of the statutory period of 30 days as enjoined in section 10(5) of the U.L.C.R Act. Fourthly, the possession certificate (Annexure-7 to the WP) did not mention the factum of "taking' possession, and it merely stated the factum of the transfer of possession to the State Government. Needless to say that unless the possession was first "taken', the same could not have been "transferred' to the State Government. The plain reading of the possession certificate does not show taking of possession from the occupants and, therefore, it cannot be termed as a possession certificate under section 10(6). Fifthly, the stand of the State Government before the Appellate Authority was that the State Government has "taken over only symbolic possession over the plots in question and the same cannot be treated physical possession". If it be so, then also, it would not be deemed to be "possession" within the meaning of section 10(6) of the U.L.C.R Act which meant actual and physical possession and not symbolic one."

27. The similar view has also been expressed by this Court in Ram Singh v. State of U.P. and others11. The relevant part of the judgment is extracted below:

"36. It is a matter of common notice and also matter of record that large number of cases which earlier came before this court and were decided and even at present also on getting the record it is clear that proceedings are either without any notice on the land holders or after the notice to the dead person or after the notice but not the proper service stating the name of the witnesses and their details and in most of the cases proceedings did not progress after the notice under Section 10(5) of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act 1976 and if there is notice under Section 10(6) of the Act it again do not contain proper service with the name/identity of the witnesses. For taking Dakhal document demonstrates the authority signing the paper is not competent. The emphasis on the word 'actual physical possession' has some special meaning and thus that rules out the paper possession and it is for this reason it has been said that mere entry will not reflect taking of actual physical possession.

28. In the case of State of U.P. Thru Secy Avas Avam Shahri Niyojan v. Ruknuddin and others12, the Court has observed as under :

"We having gone through the records and we find that the possession memo which was prepared on 22/23.03.1998, no where indicates as to how possession was taken and what is the name of witness in whose presence such possession was taken. There is no name indicated in the writ petition filed by the State or even in the rejoinder affidavit. The name of the Lekhpal in whose presence the alleged possession is said to have been taken has not been mentioned and the printed proforma of the possession memo is blank to that effect. The question as to how the factum of taking actual physical possession has been established by the State was discussed by a Division Bench in the case of Mohd. Islam & 3 Others Vs. State of U.P. in Writ Petition No. 15864 of 2015 decided on 4th December, 2017. The said decision was quoted with approval by a Division Bench in the case of Rati Ram Vs. State of U.P. & Others 2018 (4) ALJ 338 paragraph no. 8 as follows:-

"8. The 'Dakhalnama' a certified copy whereof has been produced before us does not even bear the signatures of any attesting witness. We find this to be a lapse and patent illegality the benefit whereof has to be given to the land holder in view of the Division Bench judgment in the case of Mohd. Islam and 3 others v. State of U.P. and 2 others, Writ Petition No. 15864 of 2015 decided on 4th December, 2017. It was also a case of District-Saharanpur. We extract paragraph Nos. 44 to 47 of the said judgment which are as under:

"44. Since, in the present case, neither factum of taking actual physical possession by Competent Authority under Ceiling Act has been fortified by placing any document nor factum of possession of Development Authority at any point of time has been shown, therefore, argument advanced by learned Standing Counsel on the basis of State of Assam (supra) will not help.

45. Viewed from the above exposition of law we find in the present case that no such exercise of issuing notice under Section 10(6) of the Act, 1976 and thereafter execution of memo on the spot had taken place which is mandatory for ceiling authorities as admittedly the original tenure-holder and then his successors had never voluntarily surrendered the possession of land. In the absence of voluntary surrender of possession of surplus land, the authorities were required to proceed with forcible possession. The document of possession memo would not by itself evidence the actual taking of possession unless it is witnessed by two independent persons acknowledging the act of forcible possession. As discussed above in the earlier part of this judgment we are not able to accept the alleged possession memo worth calling a document as such in the absence of certain requisites, nor does it bear the details of witnesses who signed the document. It bears mainly signatures of Chackbandi Lekhpal, a person taking possession and then the document has been directed to be kept on file. This is no way of taking forcible possession nor, a document worth calling possession memo. A mere issuance of notification under Section 10(3) and notice under Section 10(5) regarding delivery of possession does not amount to actual delivery of possession of land more especially in the face of the fact that the tenureholder had in fact not voluntarily made surrender of possession of surplus land and no proceeding under Section 10(6) had taken place.

46. Since, we have held that possession memo dated 20.06.1993 is not a possession memo and is a void document for want of necessary compliance under Section 10(6) of the Act, 1976, the petitioners are entitled to the benefit under Section 4 of the Repeal Act, 1999 that came into force w.e.f. 20.03.1999.

47. We may also place on record that respondents claim that possession of land in question was handed over to Saharanpur Development Authority pursuant to Government Order dated 29.12.1984 but here also we find that no material has been placed on record to show that any such actual physical possession was handed over to Saharanpur Development Authority and the said authority is in de facto possession of land in dispute. Except bare averment made in the counter-affidavit respondent have not chosen to place anything on record to support the stand that de facto possession over land in dispute is that of Saharanpur Development Authority. Therefore even this stand has no legs to stand and is rejected."

29. Applying the aforesaid principle in the present case, we find that there is no possession memo on the record. In the counter affidavit also copy of the possession memo has not been enclosed. The date when the possession has been taken either under sub-section (5) or sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 has not been mentioned in any of the affidavit filed by the State or the Varanasi Development Authority. Thus, it is evident that the averments made by the petitioner in the writ petition that he is still in possession acceptance.

30. In addition, to the above the Varanasi Development Authority in its short counter affidavit has categorically stated that the State has not handed over the surplus land to it. Paragraph nos. 4 and 5 of the counter affidavit filed by the Varanasi Development Authority are extracted below:

"4. That it is pertinent to state here that a perusal of relevant record reveals that the Competent Officer, Urban Land Ceiling, Varanasi has not transferred any surplus land of plot nos. 3/6, 18/1, 18/9, 18/11 at Mauja Lakhanpur, Pargana Dehat, Tehsil Amanat, District Varanasi to the Varanasi Development Authority, Varanasi till date.

5. That it is therefore reiterated that the aforesaid land in dispute has neither been transferred to the Varanasi Development Authority nor the same is in its possession at present."

31. From the above quoted paragraphs of the counter affidavit filed by the Varanasi Development Authroity it is clearly established that the possession of the plots in question has not been handed over to the Varanasi Development Authority. The statement made in the counter affidavit filed by the State authorities in this regard is incorrect. From the pleadings of the State and the submissions of the learned Standing Counsel it appears to us that the State authorities and the competent authorities are under impression that after the notification under Section 10(3) of the Act,1976 the land in question stands vested in the State, hence, the Repeal Act will have no application.

32. We do not agree with the submission of the learned Standing Counsel that the land is vested in the State irrespective of the physical possession taken by the respondents or not. If the proposition is accepted then the sub-section 2(a) of Section 3 of the Repeal Act shall be redundant which clearly provides that if the land is deemed to have been vested in the State under sub-section (3) of Section 10 of the principal Act but possession of which has not been taken over by the State Government, such land shall not be restored unless the amount paid if any, has been refunded to the State Government.

33. In the counter affidavit filed by the respondents there is no averment that the compensation has been paid to the petitioner.

34. The averments made by the petitioner that it has not surrendered the land to the respondents and they have not taken possession from him has not been effectively denied in the counter affidavit. It has also been stated that the petitioner is in actual possession and no proceeding under sub-section (5) and sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 has been initiated. Along with the counter affidavit only three documents have been brought on record, notice under sub-section (4) of Section 8 of the Act, 1976, notice under sub-section (5) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 and the letter sent by the competent authority to the Vice-Chairman of the Varanasi Development Authority dated 6/12.05.1998. This communication simply mentions that the possession was handed over to the Varanasi Development Authority but no possession memo has been enclosed. Moreover, when there is no document to support that the possession was taken from the petitioner by the State authorities in accordance with law then simply on the basis of a communication sent by the competent authority to the Vice-Chairman, Varanasi Development Authority to transfer the possession is not a compliance in terms of of sub-section (5) and sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act,1976. As discussed above, in the counter affidavit there is no averment that the petitioner was given compensation. Moreover, the communication of the competent authority to the Vice-Chairman, Varanasi Development Authority is not correct as the Varanasi Development Authority in its counter affidavit, as discussed above, has clearly stated that the surplus land has not been transferred to it.

35. As regards the judgment in the case of State of Assam (supra) it was admitted by the land holder therein that the actual physical possession of the land in question was taken over by the State on 07.12.1991. The judgment of the State of Assam (supra) was considered by a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Lalji v. State of U.P. & 2 Others13,. The Court has held as under:

[29]. Faced with a situation where respondents could not place even an iota of evidence showing actual physical possession of disputed land by respondent, learned Standing Counsel sought to rely upon Supreme Court judgment in State of Assam Vs. Bhasker Jyoti Sharma & Ors. 2015 (5) SCC 321 and contended that irrespective of any defect in notice under Sections 10(5) or 10(6) of Act, 1976, if possession has been taken in any manner, Repeal Act 1999 will have no application.

[37]. We may also mention at this stage that except bare averment that disputed land was transferred to ADA by competent Authority, no material has been placed on record about transfer of possession to ADA and infact nothing has been placed on record even to show that de facto possession of land in dispute before or after Repeal Act, 1999 is with ADA. ADA has also not placed on record anything to show that land in dispute is in its actual physical possession and in absence thereof, we had no occasion to require petitioner to prove, how de facto possession of land in dispute came in the hands of ADA. With regard to possession of land in dispute, except bare averments, nothing has been placed on record. It appears that respondents were under impression that once notification under Section 10(3) has been issued, land in dispute vested in 'State' and thereafter, irrespective of fact whether actual physical possession is taken by respondents or not, land owner would cease to have any right and Repeal Act, 1999 will have no application though this assumption on the part of respondents, as we have already discussed, stood negated by Court in State Vs. Hari Ram."

36. In the case of Shiv Ram Singh (supra) the petitioner has challenged the proceedings under the Act, 1976 after lapse of considerable long time. In the said case notice under sub-section (1) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 was issued in 1985 and a notification under sub-section (3) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 was issued on 02.06.1986. The State had taken possession on 25.06.1993 prior to the enforcement of the Repeal Act and the name of the State was recorded in the revenue records. In that case the petitioner for the first time challenged the proceedings in the year 2002 and when the matter was remitted to the District Magistrate to decide the issue of the actual possession on 10.05.2007, the District Magistrate after considering the evidence adduced by the petitioner and the State by its order dated 10.05.2007 found that the possession from the petitioner was taken on 25.06.1993 pursuant to the notice dated 25.02.1987, i.e., prior to the enforcement of the Repeal Act. Moreover, the order of the District Magistrate dated 10.05.2007 was challenged by the petitioner after lapse of two years in July, 2009 and in the meantime Jal Nigam at the surplus land had constructed Sewage Treatment Plant (STP) at the cost of Rs. 73.00 crores. In context of the said fact the Court had dismissed the writ petition of the petitioner therein.

37. In view of the above, we find that the physical possession of the land was never taken from the petitioner. He is still in cultivatory and physical possession. On the basis of the materials on record we are satisfied that the State authorities have not taken possession from the petitioner in terms of sub-section 5 or sub-section (6) of Section 10 of the Act, 1976 and he is still in possession. Hence, in our view, the proceedings initiated under the Act,1976 stands abated in terms of sub-section 2(a) of Section 3 of the Repeal Act. The order of the District Magistrate dated 02.05.2017 is set aside and the proceedings under Act, 1976 is abated. The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Dharmendra Vaish, learned counsel for the petitioner, Ms. Jyotsana Srivastava, learned counsel appearing for respondent nos.1, 2 and 3 and Sri Sandeep Kumar, learned counsel for respondent no.4.

2. The present petition has been filed seeking a direction to the Appellate Authority constituted under the Payment of Gratuity Act, 19721 to accept the bank guarantee furnished by the petitioner-bank in lieu of the deposit to be made as a pre-condition for filing of an appeal under Section 7(7) of the P.G. Act, 1972.

3. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that upon an application filed by the fourth respondent under sub-rule (1) of Rule 10 of the Payment of Gratuity (Central) Rules, 19722 alleging that he had not been paid due amount of gratuity by the Prathama Bank, Head Office, Ram Ganga Vihar, M.D.A, Moradabad (petitioner herein) an order dated 12.03.2019 was passed by the Controlling Authority under the P.G. Act, 1972/Assistant Labour Commissioner (Central), Bareilly allowing the application and issuing a direction to the Prathama Bank to pay the balance amount of gratuity together with interest to the fourth respondent.

4. It is submitted that against the aforesaid order passed by the Controlling Authority an appeal under Section 7(7) of the P.G. Act, 1972 was preferred before the second respondent with a request for accepting bank guarantee in lieu of deposit as required under sub-section (7) of Section 7. It is further submitted that the fourth respondent vide its communication dated 02.08.2019 has informed the petitioner-bank that in terms of Section 7(7) of the P.G. Act, 1972 bank guarantee cannot be permitted as there is no provision for the same and the petitioner has been advised to deposit the amount in the shape of demand draft within the specified period so that the appeal could be entertained.

5. Contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner is a rural bank and is facing financial crisis and in view of the same the condition of deposit of the amount would further aggravate its financial hardship and as such permission ought to have been granted for furnishing of bank guarantee in lieu of the requirement to make the pre-deposit.

6. The issue which thus arises in the present petition is as to whether the condition of pre-deposit under sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 is mandatory, and as to whether bank guarantee can be directed to be furnished in lieu of such pre-deposit.

7. In order to appreciate the contention which is sought to be raised by the petitioner the provision of filing of an appeal under sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 may be referred to. For ease of reference Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 is being extracted below:-

"7. Determination of the amount of Gratuity.--(1) A person who is eligible for payment of gratuity under this Act or any person authorised, in writing, to act on his behalf shall send a written application to the employer, within such time and in such form, as may be prescribed, for payment of such gratuity.

(2) As soon as gratuity becomes payable, the employer shall, whether an application referred to in sub-section (1) has been made or not, determine the amount of gratuity and give notice in writing to the person to whom the gratuity is payable and also to the controlling authority specifying the amount of gratuity so determined.

(3) The employer shall arrange to pay the amount of gratuity within thirty days from the date it becomes payable to the person to whom the gratuity is payable.

(3-A) If the amount of gratuity payable under sub-section (3) is not paid by the employer within the period specified in sub-section (3) the employer shall pay, from the date on which the gratuity becomes payable to the date on which it is paid, simple interest at such rate, not exceeding the rate notified by the Central Government from time to time for repayment of long-term deposits, as that Government may, by notification specify :

Provided that no such interest shall be payable if the delay in the payment is due to the fault of the employee and the employer has obtained permission in writing from the controlling authority for the delayed payment on this ground.

(4)(a) If there is any dispute as to the amount of gratuity payable to an employee under this Act or as to the admissibility of any claim of, or in relation to, an employee for payment of gratuity, or as to the person entitled to receive the gratuity, the employer shall deposit with the controlling authority such amount as he admits to be payable by him as gratuity.

Explanation.-- x x x x x

(b) Where there is a dispute with regard to any matter or matters specified in clause (a), the employer or employee or any other person raising the dispute may make an application to the controlling authority for deciding the dispute.

(c) The controlling authority shall, after due inquiry and after giving the parties to the dispute a reasonable opportunity of being heard, determine the matter or matters in dispute and if, as a result of such inquiry any amount is found to be payable to the employee, the controlling authority shall direct the employer to pay such amount or, as the case may be, such amount as reduced by the amount already deposited by the employer.

(d) The controlling authority shall pay the amount deposited, including the excess amount, if any, deposited by the employer, to the person entitled thereto.

(e) As soon as may be after a deposit is made under clause (a) the controlling authority shall pay the amount of the deposit--

(i) to the applicant where he is the employee; or

(ii) where the applicant is the employee, to the nominee or, as the case may be, the guardian of such nominee or heir of the employee if the controlling authority is satisfied that there is no dispute as to the right of the applicant to receive the amount of gratuity.

(5) For the purpose of conducting an inquiry under sub-section (4), the controlling authority shall have the same powers as are vested in a Court, while trying a suit, under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), in respect of the following matters namely--

(a) enforcing the attendance of any person or examining him on oath;

(b) requiring the discovery and production of documents;

(c) receiving evidence on affidavits;

(d) issuing commissions for the examination of witnesses.

(6) Any inquiry under this section shall be a judicial proceeding within the meaning of Sections 193 and 228, and for the purpose of Section 196, of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (45 of 1860).

(7) Any person aggrieved by an order under sub-section (4), may, within sixty days from the date of the receipt of the order, prefer an appeal to the appropriate Government or such other authority as may be specified by the appropriate Government in this behalf :

Provided that the appropriate Government or the appellate authority, as the case may be, may if it is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the appeal within the said period of sixty days, extend the said period by a further period of sixty days.

Provided further that no appeal by an employer shall be admitted unless at the time of preferring the appeal, the appellant either produces a certificate of the controlling authority to the effect that the appellant has deposited with him an amount equal to the amount of gratuity required to be deposited under sub-section (4), or deposits with the appellate authority such amount.

(8) The appropriate Government or the appellate authority, as the case may be, may, after giving the parties to the appeal a reasonable opportunity of being heard, confirm, modify or reverse the decision of the controlling authority."

8. A plain reading of the aforementioned statutory provision indicates that a right of appeal has been provided for against an order under sub-section (4) of Section 7 which is to be preferred within sixty days from the date of the receipt of the order. In terms of the first proviso the Appellate Authority is empowered to extend the aforesaid period by a further period of sixty days upon being satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the appeal within the prescribed time period.

9. The second proviso to sub-section (7) of Section 7 which has been inserted by Act 25 of 19843 stipulates that no appeal by an employer shall be admitted unless at the time of preferring the appeal, the appellant either produces a certificate of the Controlling Authority to the effect that the appellant has deposited with him an amount equal to the amount of gratuity required to be deposited under sub-section (4), or deposits with the Appellate Authority such amount.

10. The provision with regard to pre-deposit of an amount equal to the amount of gratuity as a condition precedent for the appeal being admitted has been introduced by insertion of the second proviso by Act 25 of 1984 and the same having been provided for in mandatory terms it would follow that the right to appeal under sub-section (7) of Section 7 becomes a vested right only when the pre-condition of deposit is complied with. The Appellate Authority is not to admit the appeal unless at the time of preferring the appeal, the appellant either produces a certificate of the Controlling Authority to the effect that the appellant has deposited with the authority an amount equal to the amount of gratuity required to be deposited under sub-section (4) or deposits such amount with the Appellate Authority.

11. The right of appeal, it is well settled, is a statutory right and it is open to the legislature which confers the remedy of an appeal to provide for conditions subject to which the right to appeal may be exercised. The power to regulate the exercise of the right of appeal by providing for a pre-deposit as a condition precedent to the entertainment of an appeal seeking to challenge the imposition of the amount came up for consideration in the case of The Anant Mills Company Ltd. Vs. State of Gujarat & Ors.4 and it was held that the right of appeal being a creature of a statute it was upon the legislature to impose an accompanying liability upon a party upon whom a legal right is conferred or to prescribe conditions for the exercise of the right. The relevant observations in the judgment are as follows:-

"40. After hearing the learned Counsel for the parties, we are unable to subscribe to the view taken by the High Court. Section 406(2)(e) as amended states that no appeal against a rateable value or tax fixed or charged under the Act shall be entertained by the Judge in the case of an appeal against a tax or in the case of an appeal made against a rateable value after a bill for any property tax assessed upon such value has been presented to the appellant, 'unless the amount claimed from the appellant has been deposited by him with the Commissioner. According to the proviso to the above clause, where in any particular case the Judge is of opinion that the deposit of the amount by the appellant will cause undue hardship to him, the Judge may in his discretion dispense with such deposit or part thereof, either unconditionally or subject to such conditions as he may deem fit. The object of the above provision apparently is to ensure the deposit of the amount claimed from an appellant in case he seeks to file an appeal against a tax or against a rateable value after a bill for any property tax assessed upon such value has been presented to him. Power at the same time is given to the appellate Judge to relieve the appellant from the rigour of the above provision in case the Judge is of the opinion that it would cause undue hardship to the appellant. The requirement about the deposit of the amount claimed as a condition precedent to the entertainment of an appeal which seeks to challenge the imposition or the quantum of that tax, in our opinion, has not the effect of nullifying the right of appeal, especially when we keep in view the fact that discretion is vested in the appellate Judge to dispense with the compliance of the above requirement. All that the statutory provision seeks to do is to regulate the exercise of the right of appeal. The object of the above provision is to keep in balance the right of appeal, which is conferred upon a person who is aggrieved with the demand of tax made from him, and the right of the Corporation to speedy recovery of the tax. The impugned provision accordingly confers a right of appeal and at the same time prevents the delay in the payment of the tax. We find ourselves unable to accede to the argument that the impugned provision has the effect of creating a discrimination as is offensive to the principle of equality enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution. It is significant that the right of appeal is conferred upon all persons who are aggrieved against the determination of tax or rateable value. The bar created by Section 406(2)(e) to the entertainment of the appeal by a person who has not deposited the amount of tax due from him and who is not able to show to the appellate Judge that the deposit of the amount would cause him undue hardship arises out of his own omission and default. The above provision, in our opinion, has not the effect of making invidious distinction or creating two classes with the object of meting out differential treatment to them; it only spells out the consequences flowing from the omission and default of a person who despite the fact that the deposit of the amount found due from him would cause him no hardship, declines of his own volition to deposit that amount. The right of appeal is the creature of a statute. Without a statutory provision creating such a right the person aggrieved is not entitled to file an appeal. We fail to understand as to why the Legislature while granting the right of appeal cannot impose conditions for the exercise of such right. In the absence of any special reasons there appears to be no legal or constitutional impediment to the imposition of such conditions. It is permissible, for example, to prescribe a condition in criminal cases that unless a convicted person is released on bail, he must surrender to custody before his appeal against the sentence of imprisonment would be entertained. Likewise, it is permissible to enact a law that no appeal shall lie against an order relating to an assessment of tax unless the tax had been paid. Such a provision was on the statute book in Section 30 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922. The proviso to that section provided that ". . . no appeal shall lie against an order under sub-section (1) of Section 46 unless the tax had been paid". Such conditions merely regulate the exercise of the right of appeal so that the same is not abused by a recalcitrant party and there is no difficulty in the enforcement of the order appealed against in case the appeal is ultimately dismissed. It is open to the Legislature to impose an accompanying liability upon a party upon whom legal right is conferred or to prescribe conditions for the exercise of the right. Any requirement for the discharge of that liability or the fulfilment of that condition in case the party concerned seeks to avail of the said right is a valid piece of legislation, and we can discern no contravention of Article 14 in it. A disability or disadvantage arising out of a party's own default or omission cannot be taken to be tantamount to the creation of two classes offensive to Article 14 of the Constitution, especially when that disability or disadvantage operates upon all persons who make the default or omission."

12. The right to appeal being subject to the obligatory condition of making a pre-deposit again came up for consideration in the context of Section 129-E of the Customs Act, 1962 in the case of Vijay Prakash D. Mehta & Anr. Vs. Collector of Customs (Preventive), Bombay5, and it was held that the right to appeal is neither an absolute right nor an ingredient of natural justice and the said right being a statutory right it can be circumscribed by the conditions in the grant. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"5. The aforesaid section provides a conditional right of appeal in respect of an appeal against the duty demanded or penalty levied. Although the section does not expressly provide for rejection of the appeal for non-deposit of duty or penalty, yet it makes it obligatory on the appellant to deposit the duty or penalty, pending the appeal, failing which the Appellate Tribunal is fully competent to reject the appeal. See, in this connection, the observations of this Court in respect of Section 129 prior to substitution of Chapter XV by the Finance Act, 1980 in Navinchandra Chhotelal v. Central Board of Excise & Customs (1971) 1 SCC 289. The proviso, however, gives power to the Appellate Authority to dispense with such deposit unconditionally or subject to such conditions in cases of undue hardships. It is a matter of judicial discretion of the Appellate Authority.

9. Right to appeal is neither an absolute right nor an ingredient of natural justice the principles of which must be followed in all judicial and quasi-judicial adjudications. The right to appeal is a statutory right and it can be circumscribed by the conditions in the grant."

13. A similar view was reiterated in the case of Gujarat Agro Industries Company Ltd. Vs. Municipal Corporation of the City of Ahmedabad & Ors.6 wherein the constitutionality of the pre-condition of deposit under Section 406(2)(e) of the Bombay Municipal Corporation Act, 1949 was upheld and it was stated that the right to appeal being a statutory right and not an inherent right it is for the legislature to decide to make the right subject to any condition or not. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are as follows:-

"8. By the amending Act 1 of 1979 discretion of the court in granting interim relief has now been limited to the extent of 25% of the tax required to be deposited. It is, therefore, contended that the earlier decision of this Court in Anant Mills case (1975) 2 SCC 175 may not have full application. We, however, do not think that such a contention can be raised in view of the law laid down by this Court in Anant Mills case (1975) 2 SCC 175. This Court said that right of appeal is the creature of a statute and it is for the legislature to decide whether the right of appeal should be unconditionally given to an aggrieved party or it should be conditionally given. Right of appeal which is a statutory right can be conditional or qualified. It cannot be said that such a law would be violative of Article 14 of the Constitution. If the statute does not create any right of appeal, no appeal can be filed. There is a clear distinction between a suit and an appeal. While every person has an inherent right to bring a suit of a civil nature unless the suit is barred by statute, however, in regard to an appeal, the position is quite opposite. The right to appeal inheres in no one and, therefore, for maintainability of an appeal there must be authority of law. When such a law authorises filing of appeal, it can impose conditions as well (see Ganga Bai v. Vijay Kumar (1974) 2 SCC 393)."

14. The provision restricting the right of appeal by requiring deposit of the amount concerned in appeal again came up in the case of M/s Elora Construction Company Vs. The Municipal Corporation of Greater Bombay & Ors.7, and it was stated that the right of appeal being a creation of statute could be taken away by the statute expressly or by necessary intendment and the provision restricting the right of appeal by requiring deposit of the amount concerned was held constitutionally valid.

15. Again, in the case of Government of Andhra Pradesh & Ors. Vs. P. Luxmi Devi (Smt.)8 the requirement of pre-deposit under Section 47-A proviso of the Stamp Act, 1899 was held to be constitutionally valid and not violative of Articles 14 and 19 or any other provision of the Constitution of India9.

16. The question as to whether the Appellate Authority has the discretion to say that an appeal could be preferred without satisfying the pre-condition of deposit where the statutory requirement has been specifically stated in a compulsive language came up for consideration in the case of Manik Lal Majumdar & Ors. Vs. Gauranga Chandra Dey & Ors.10, and it was held that the condition of pre-deposit being a statutory requirement no discretion was left to the Appellate Authority to hold that an appeal could be preferred without satisfying the said requirement.

17. The provision with regard to the requirement to deposit the amount of gratuity under the second proviso to Section 7(7) of the P.G. Act, 1972 came up for consideration in the case of National Textile Corporation Ltd. & Ors. Vs. Deputy Labour Commissioner Appellate Authority (P.G. Act) & Ors.11 and it was held that as per terms of the second proviso, the deposit of the amount of gratuity was required and as the same had not been complied the appeal had rightly been dismissed. The observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"3. ...the petitioners were required to deposit the amount of gratuity as provided under section 7(7) of the Act of 1972 and as they have not complied the statutory provisions as contained under the Act of 1972, their appeal has rightly been dismissed. This Court is of the considered opinion that the appeal preferred by the petitioners has rightly been dismissed due to non-compliance of the aforesaid statutory provisions."

18. In The Management, Tamil Nadu State Transport Corporation (Madurai) Ltd. Vs. The Controller under the Payment of Gratuity Act, Assistant Commissioner of Labour & Ors.12 it was held that the object of the legislation was very clear and the second proviso to sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the Act, 1972 had been introduced with the object of making pre-deposit of the gratuity amount determined by the Controlling Authority as a pre-requisite for preferring an appeal and failure to deposit the amount would mean that the appeal itself is incompetent. The relevant extracts in the judgment are as follows:-

"3. Once the Controlling Authority quantifies the amount of gratuity and directs the employer to pay the same, it should be required to be deposited before preferring appeal in terms of the provisions of the Payment of Gratuity Act. The intention and object of the legislation is very clear and the second proviso to sub section 7 of Section 7 of the Act, has been introduced with the object of making pre-deposit of the gratuity amount determined by the Controlling Authority as a pre-requisite for preferring appeal. Further, Clause (a) of sub-section 4 of Section 7 deals with voluntary deposit by the employer at the threshold where the employer has come forward with such deposit.

4. The Division Bench of this Court in Onward Trading Company, Madras and Deputy Commissioner of Labour, Madras and another reported in 1989 (2) LLN 672, held that the statutory precondition must be obeyed and also held that failure to deposit the amount would mean that the appeal itself is incompetent. As the petitioner Management has not deposited the amount, the relief sought for by the petitioner has got to be rejected…"

19. A similar position was reiterated in Hindustan Fertilizer Corporation

Ltd. Vs. Union of India & Ors.13 wherein it was held that the word "shall" used in the second proviso to Section 7(7) is to be read as mandatory and it curtails the right of an appellant not depositing the requisite amount to have his appeal heard or even admitted. Further, it was held that the relevant provision suggests that a duty has been cast on the Appellate Authority not to admit such an appeal unless it is accompanied either by a certificate or by a deposit as the case may be. The observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"6. For the purpose of filing of an appeal, there is certain requirement to be complied with. The second proviso to Section 7(7) of the said Act, inter alia, says that no appeal under Section 4 of the Act shall be admitted unless at the time of preferring the appeal, the appellant either produces a certificate of the Controlling Authority to the effect that the appellant has deposited with him an amount equal to the amount of gratuity required to be deposited under Section 4 or deposits with the appellate authority such amount. While rejecting the petitioner's appeal, the respondent No. 2 had specifically held that the employer had neither obtained a certificate from the Controlling Authority nor deposited the awarded amount with the appellate authority. Therefore, the appeal was rejected.

9. ...I find no infirmity in the order in rejecting the appeal. The second proviso to Section 7(7) of the Act which was incorporated by way of an amendment specifically says that no appeal shall be admitted unless the requirements as mentioned in the subsequent part of the proviso is complied with. The use of the word 'shall' is to be read as mandatory and there is no scope of reading it as directory. It curtails the right of an appellant not depositing the requisite amount to have his appeal heard or even admitted. A more close look at the relevant provisions of law suggests that a duty has been cast on the appellate authority not to admit such an appeal unless it is accompanied either by a certificate or by a deposit, as the case may be. The appellate authority merely followed the provisions of law which it was bound to."

20. The provisions with regard to making of a pre-deposit as a condition precedent for filing of an appeal having been inserted under sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 by way of a proviso, it would be apposite to refer to the manner in which a proviso is to be construed.

21. In Craies on Statute of Law14, referring to the rules regarding construction of a proviso, it has been observed as follows:-

"9.1. The effect of an excepting or qualifying proviso, according to the ordinary rules of construction, is to except out of the preceding portion of the enactment, or to qualify something enacted therein, which but for the proviso would be within it; and such a proviso cannot be construed as enlarging the scope of an enactment when it can be fairly and properly construed without attributing to it that effect."

22. Again, as has been pointed out by Craies in the treatise on Statute Law;

"The effect of an excepting or qualifying proviso, according to the ordinary rules of construction, is to except out the preceding portion of the enactment, or to qualify something enacted therein, which but for the proviso would be within it."

23. In Ishverlal Thakorelal Almaula Vs. Motibhai Nagjibhai15, the intendment of the proviso has been discussed thus:-

"8. The proper function of a proviso is to except or qualify something enacted in the substantive clause, which but for the proviso would be within that clause. It may ordinarily be presumed in construing a proviso that it was intended that the enacting part of the section would have included the subject-matter of the proviso. But the question is one of interpretation of the proviso and there is no rule that the proviso must always be restricted to the ambit of the main enactment. Occasionally in a statute, a proviso is unrelated to the subject-matter of the preceding section, or contains matters extraneous to that section, and it may have then to be interpreted as a substantive provision, dealing independently with the matter specified therein, and not as qualifying the main or the preceding section."

24. In Shah Bhojraj Kuverji Oil Mills & Ginning Factory Vs. Subbash Chandra Yograj Sinha16, the object of the proviso and how it is to be interpreted has been stated in the following manner:-

"9. The law with regard to provisos is well settled and well understood. As a general rule, a proviso is added to an enactment to qualify or create an exception to what is in the enactment, and ordinarily, a proviso is not interpreted as stating a general rule…"

25. Again, in S. Sundaram Pillai & Ors. Vs. V.R. Pattabiraman & Ors.17, various decisions with regard to the manner of construction of a proviso have been discussed and it has been stated as follows:-

"29. Odgers in Construction of Deeds and Statutes (5th Edn.) while referring to the scope of a proviso mentioned the following ingredients:

'p. 317. Provisos--These are clauses of exception or qualification in an Act, excepting something out of, or qualifying something in, the enactment which, but for the proviso, would be within it.

p. 318. Though framed as a proviso, such a clause may exceptionally have the effect of a substantive enactment.'

30. Sarathi in Interpretation of Statutes at pp. 294-95 has collected the following principles in regard to a proviso:

(a) When one finds a proviso to a section the natural presumption is that, but for the proviso, the enacting part of the section would have included the subject-matter of the proviso.

(b) A proviso must be construed with reference to the preceding parts of the clause to which it is appended.

(c) Where the proviso is directly repugnant to a section, the proviso shall stand and be held a repeal of the section as the proviso speaks the latter intention of the makers.

(d) Where the section is doubtful, a proviso may be used as a guide to its interpretation: but when it is clear, a proviso cannot imply the existence of words of which there is no trace in the section.

(e) The proviso is subordinate to the main section.

(f) A proviso does not enlarge an enactment except for compelling reasons.

(g) Sometimes an unnecessary proviso is inserted by way of abundant caution.

(h) A construction placed upon a proviso which brings it into general harmony with the terms of section should prevail.

(i) When a proviso is repugnant to the enacting part, the proviso will not prevail over the absolute terms of a later Act directed to be read as supplemental to the earlier one.

(j) A proviso may sometimes contain a substantive provision."

26. In the case of State of Rajasthan Vs. Leela Jain18, the following observation with regard to construction of a proviso has been made:-

"14. ...So far as a general principle of construction of a proviso is concerned, it has been broadly stated that the function of a proviso is to limit the main part of the section and carve out something which but for the proviso would have been within the operative part."

27. In S.T.O. Vs. Hanuman Prasad19, it was held as follows:-

"5. ... It is well recognised that a proviso is added to a principal clause primarily with the object of taking out of the scope of that principal clause what is included in it and what the legislature desires should be excluded."

28. In C.C.T. Vs. Jhaver Ramkishan Shrikishan20 following observations were made:-

"8. ...Generally speaking, it is true that the proviso is an exception to the main part of the section; but it is recognised that in exceptional cases a proviso may be a substantive provision itself."

29. The different purposes served by a proviso have been summarised in the case of Delhi Metro Rail Corporation Ltd. Vs. Tarun Pal Singh & Ors.21 in the following manner:-

"43. ...To sum up, a proviso may serve four different purposes:

(1) qualifying or excepting certain provisions from the main enactment;

(2) it may entirely change the very concept of the intendment of the enactment by insisting on certain mandatory conditions to be fulfilled in order to make the enactment workable;

(3) it may be so embedded in the Act itself as to become an integral part of the enactment and thus acquire the tenor and colour of the substantive enactment itself; and

(4) it may be used merely to act as an optional addenda to the enactment with the sole object of explaining the real intendment of the statutory provision."

30. In Haryana State Cooperative Land Development Bank Ltd. Vs. Haryana State Cooperative Land Development Banks Employees Union & Anr.22, the function of proviso has been considered and it has been observed as follows:-

"9. The normal function of a proviso is to except something out of the enactment or to qualify something enacted therein which but for the proviso would be within the purview of the enactment. As was stated in Mullins v. Treasurer of Surrey (1880) LR 5 QBD 170 at p. 173 (DC) (referred to in Shah Bhojraj Kuverji Oil Mills & Ginning Factory v. Subbash Chandra Yograj Sinha (AIR 1961 SC 1596) and Calcutta Tramways Co. Ltd. v. Corpn. of Calcutta (AIR 1965 SC 1728), when one finds a proviso to a section the natural presumption is that, but for the proviso, the enacting part of the section would have included the subject-matter of the proviso. The proper function of a proviso is to except and to deal with a case which would otherwise fall within the general language of the main enactment and its effect is confined to that case. It is a qualification of the preceding enactment which is expressed in terms too general to be quite accurate. As a general rule, a proviso is added to an enactment to qualify or create an exception to what is in the enactment and ordinarily, a proviso is not interpreted as stating a general rule.

"If in a deed an earlier clause is followed by a later clause which destroys altogether the obligation created by the earlier clause, the later clause is to be rejected as repugnant, and the earlier clause prevails. ...But if the later clause does not destroy but only qualifies the earlier, then the two are to be read together and effect is to be given to the intention of the parties as disclosed by the deed as a whole' (per Lord Wrenbury in Forbes v. Git (1921 SCC OnLine PC 102 : (1922) 1 AC 256).

A statutory proviso 'is something engrafted on a preceding enactment' (R. v. Taunton St. James (1829) 9 B&C 831 : 109 ER 309, ER p. 311).

"The ordinary and proper function of a proviso coming after a general enactment is to limit that general enactment in certain instances' (per Lord Esher in Barker, In re, ex p Constable (1890) LR 25 QBD 285 (CA)."

31. The function of a proviso to carve out an exception or to qualify something enacted therein which would otherwise be within the purview of the enactment was emphasised in Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway Company Ltd. Vs. Bezwada Municipality23 wherein it was stated by Lord Macmillan as follows:-

"The proper function of a proviso is to except and deal with a case which would otherwise fall within the general language of the main enactment, and its effect is confined to that case."

32. In "The Construction and Interpretation of Law" by Henry Campbell Black24, while considering the manner of construction of provisos it has been stated that the natural and appropriate effect of a proviso to a statute, or to a section thereof, is to restrain or qualify the provisions immediately preceding it.

33. The second proviso to sub-section (7) of Section having been introduced by way of an amendment in terms of Act 25 of 1984 and in terms thereof the requirement of pre-deposit of an amount equal to the amount of gratuity as a condition precedent for an appeal being admitted having been provided for in a language which mandatory in form clearly indicates that the intention of the legislature was to qualify the right to appeal under sub-section (7) of Section 7 by providing for pre-deposit of the amount as a condition precedent.

34. It may, therefore, be inferred that in terms of the second proviso introduced by the Act 25 of 1984 the right to appeal granted under sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972, has been qualified with the requirement of pre-deposit as a condition precedent, and the said condition having been introduced in a language which is compulsive in form the appeal cannot be held to be competent in the absence of fulfilment of the condition of pre-deposit.

35. It may also be seen that the right to appeal inheres in no one and such right being the creature of a statute, the same can be qualified or be made subject to fulfilment of conditions prescribed therefor.

36. The object of the legislation is very clear and the second proviso to sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 has been introduced with a view to make pre-deposit of the gratuity amount determined by the Controlling Authority as a pre-requisite for preferring an appeal and a duty has been cast on the Appellate Authority not to admit an appeal unless it is accompanied either by a certificate or by a deposit, as the case may be.

37. The Appellate Authority having been given no discretion to waive the condition of pre-deposit there is no scope for admitting the appeal unless at the time of preferring the appeal the appellant produces a certificate of the Controlling Authority to the effect that the amount in question has been deposited with the authority or deposits such amount with the Appellate Authority.

38. In view of the foregoing discussion, the stand of the Appellate Authority declining to grant permission for furnishing a bank guarantee in lieu of the requirement of pre-deposit under sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 stating that there is no provision for the same, cannot be faulted with.

39. The writ petition is devoid of merits and is accordingly dismissed.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE
DATED: ALLAHABAD 28.11.2019

BEFORE THE HON'BLE YASHWANT VARMA, J.

Writ-C No. 27730 of 2003

Vipin Kumar Agarwal ...Petitioner
Versus
Collector, Meerut & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Pramod Kumar Jain

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Civil Law - Indian Stamp Act 1899 – Article 23 – Explanation – Definition of Conveyance – Explanation inserted at the end of Article 23 – It is evident that it seeks to introduce a substantive provision in the law bringing a certain genre of agreements to sell within the ambit of the expression conveyance – It, in essence, introduces and creates new obligations and liabilities which were otherwise not contemplated by Article 23. (Para 8 & 11)

Held – On a more fundamental plane, the Court finds that the Explanation itself while bringing agreements to sell within the ambit of Article 23, uses the expression- "shall be deemed to be a conveyance…..". It is thus manifest that agreements to sell are brought within the scope of Article 23 by virtue of a legal fiction that is introduced.

B. Interpretation of statute – Construction of Explanation clause – One can never ignore that interpretation of statutes is fundamentally concerned with substance and not mere form – Merely because what is introduced is titled as an explanation, that in itself would not necessarily commend itself to be an exposition of the existing law – In case the explanation introduces a substantive law or makes provision for matters which cannot be viewed as being implicit and contemplated in the provision as it stood, the explanation cannot be recognised or held to be declaratory – In case it is found that the Explanation creates obligations or liabilities whose attributes were non-existent in the original provision, it cannot be interpreted to be an elucidation of that provision.

2. Union of India Vs. Martin Lottery Agency Ltd. (2009)12 SCC 209

(Delivered by Hon'ble Yashwant Varma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned Standing Counsel.

2. The instant writ petition assails the orders passed by the respondents in proceedings initiated against the petitioner under Section 47-A of the Indian Stamp Act 18991. The issue itself arises consequent to the execution of an agreement to sell on 31 May 1993 in favour of the petitioner. The aforesaid agreement to sell was followed by a sale deed being executed on 31 January 1994. The respondents, however, drew proceedings under Section 47-A of the Act holding the petitioner liable to pay additional stamp duty on the original agreement to sell which had been executed. Article 23 as appearing in Schedule 1-B prescribes the stamp duty payable on conveyances. It appears that the respondents proceeded in the matter on the basis of of Article 23 as it stood in its amended form after the promulgation of U.P. Act No. 22 of 1998 and more particularly the Explanation which came to be introduced pursuant thereto. Article 23, as it existed on the date of execution of the agreement to sell, namely 31 May 1993, carried no Explanation. This position is not disputed by the respondents.

3. By virtue of U.P. Act No. 22 of 1998 an Explanation came to be appended to Article 23 which reads thus:-

"For the purposes of this Article, in the case of an agreement to sell an immovable property, where possession is delivered before the execution or at the time of execution, or is agreed to be delivered without executing the conveyance, the agreement shall be deemed to be a conveyance and stamp duty thereon shall be payable accordingly:

Provided that the provisions of Section 47-A shall mutatis mutandis apply to such agreement:

Provided further that when conveyance in pursuance of such agreement is executed, the stamp duty paid on the agreement shall be adjusted towards the total duty payable on the conveyance."

4. According to the respondents since the agreement to sell also evidenced possession having been delivered, it was liable to be deemed to be a conveyance and stamp duty liable to be paid accordingly. Prior to the insertion of the said Explanation, Article 23 read thus:-

"23. CONVEYANCE as defined by Section 2(10) not being a TRANSFER charged or exempted under No. 62."

5. The petitioner contends that the agreement to sell would be exigible to duty in accordance with the provisions made in Article 23 as it stood on the date of execution of that instrument. According to the petitioner since Article 23 at that time only covered "Conveyance" as defined in Section 2(10) of the Act, an agreement to sell, with or without possession, could not have been taxed as a conveyance. According to the petitioner Section 2(10) of the Act brought within its ambit only actual conveyances and sales by which movable or immovable property may have been transferred. They would contend that an agreement to sell was neither contemplated nor covered in the definition of "conveyance" as embodied in Section 2(10). A more serious challenge is raised to the impugned orders on the ground that although the Explanation came to be added for the first time by virtue of U.P. Act No. 22 of 1998, the instrument in question has been taxed as if that amendment applied retrospectively. It was in that backdrop that it was submitted that the Explanation clearly introduced a new liability in respect of an agreement to sell and that consequently it could not be interpreted as having retroactive operation.

6. The Court at the outset notes that the petitioners appear to be correct in their submission that the amended Article 23 could have had no application since it came to be introduced after the execution of the instrument in question. It must be borne in mind that while the agreement to sell came to be executed on 31 May 1993, U.P. Act No. 22 of 1998 came to be promulgated on 1 September 1998 and therefore evidently after the execution of the instrument forming subject matter of the proceeding. Since an instrument becomes exigible to duty under the Act the moment it is executed, it necessarily must be taxed in accordance with the provisions made in Schedule 1-B as existing at that time. An amendment to Schedule 1-B which is introduced much after the execution of the instrument cannot be held to apply.

7. The Court additionally finds that while an agreement to sell with possession was brought within the ambit of a conveyance by virtue of the Explanation which came to be added to Article 23, that would still require the Court to answer the question whether that Explanation could be construed as being declaratory, having been added ex abundanti cautela or did it introduce a new liability which was otherwise not contemplated in the provision.

8. An Explanation when added to a statutory provision is generally understood as being aimed at ironing out the creases or expounding and clarifying the true intent of the statute. However, one can never ignore that interpretation of statutes is fundamentally concerned with substance and not mere form. Merely because what is introduced is titled as an explanation, that in itself would not necessarily commend itself to be an exposition of the existing law. At least such a conclusion cannot be held to be inevitable or one which brooks no exception. In case the explanation introduces a substantive law or makes provision for matters which cannot be viewed as being implicit and contemplated in the provision as it stood, the explanation cannot be recognised or held to be declaratory. In case it is found that the Explanation creates obligations or liabilities whose attributes were non existent in the original provision, it cannot be interpreted to be an elucidation of that provision.

9. In Keshavji Ravji & Co. v. CIT,2 the Supreme Court pertinently held:-

37. Sri Ramachandran urged that the introduction, in the year 1984, of Explanation I to Section 40(b) was not to effect or bring about any change in the law, but was intended to be a mere legislative exposition of what the law has always been. An 'Explanation', generally speaking, is intended to explain the meaning of certain phrases and expressions contained in a statutory provision. There is no general theory as to the effect and intendment of an Explanation except that the purposes and intendment of the 'Explanation' are determined by own words. An Explanation, depending on its language, might supply or take away something from the contents of a provision. It is also true that an Explanation may-this is what Sri Ramachandran suggests in this case-be introduced by way of abundant--caution in order to clear any mental cobwebs surrounding the meaning of a statutory provision spun by interpretative errors and to place what the legislature considers to be the true meaning beyond controversy or doubt. Hypothetically, that such can be the possible purpose of an 'Explanation' cannot be doubted. But the question is whether in the present case, Explanation I inserted into Section 40(b) in the year 1984 has had that effect.

38. The notes on clauses appended to the Taxation Laws (Amendment) Bill, 1984, say that Clause 10 which seeks to amend Section 40 will take effect from 1st April, 1985 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1985-86 and subsequent years. The express prospective operation and effectuation of the 'Explanation' might, perhaps, be a factor necessarily detracting from any evincement of the intent on the part of the legislature that the Explanation was intended more as a legislative exposition or clarification of the existing law than as a change in the law as it then obtained.....…"

10. Dealing with the characteristics of a declaration or clarificatory legislation, the Supreme Court in Union of India Vs. Martin Lottery Agency Ltd.3 held as under:-

43. The question as to whether a Subordinate Legislation or a Parliamentary Statute would be held to be clarificatory or declaratory or not would indisputably depend upon the nature thereof as also the object it seeks to achieve. What we intend to say is that if two views are not possible, resort to clarification and/or declaration may not be permissible.

44. This aspect of the matter has been considered by this Court in Virtual Soft Systems Ltd. v. CIT [(2007) 9 SCC 665], holding :

"50. It may be noted that the amendment made to Section 271 by the Finance Act, 2002 only stated that the amended provision would come into force with effect from 1.4.2003. The statute nowhere stated that the said amendment was either clarificatory or declaratory. On the contrary, the statue stated that the said amendment would come into effect on 1.4.2003 and therefore, would apply to only to future periods and not to any period prior to 1.4.2003 or to any assessment year prior to assessment year 2004-2005. It is the well settled legal position that an amendment can be considered to be declaratory and clarificatory only if the statue itself expressly and unequivocally states that it is a declaratory and clarificatory provision. If there is no such clear statement in the statute itself, the amendment will not be considered to be merely declaratory or clarificatory.

51. Even if the statute does contain a statement to the effect that the amendment is declaratory or clarificatory, that is not the end of the matter. The Court will not regard itself as being bound by the said statement made in the statute but will proceed to analyse the nature of the amendment and then conclude whether it is in reality a clarificatory or declaratory provision or whether it is an amendment which is intended to change the law and which applies to future periods."

48. The Gujarat High Court in CIT v. S.G. Pgnatal [(1980) 124 ITR 391 (Guj)] held that words "earned in India" occurring in clause (ii) must be interpreted as "arising or accruing in India" and not "from service rendered in India". Opining that the High Court proceeded on an incorrect hypothesis, it was held : (Sedco case[Sunrise Associates v. Govt. of NCT of Delhi, (2006) 5 SCC 603] [(2008) 5 SCC 176], SCC p. 723, para 9)

"9. The High Court did not refer to the 1999 Explanation in upholding the inclusion of salary for the field break periods in the assessable income of the employees of the appellant. However the respondents have urged the point before us.

10. In our view the 1999 Explanation could not apply to assessment years for the simple reason that it had not come into effect then. Prior to introducing the 1999 Explanation, the decision in CIT v. S.G. Pgnatale (supra) was followed in 1989 by a Division Bench of the Gauhati High Court in Commissioner of Income Tax v. Goslino Mario reported in [(2002) 10 SCC 165]. It found that the 1983 Explanation had been given effect from 1.4.1979 whereas the year in question in that case was 1976-77 and said : (ITR p.318)

". . . it is settled law that assessment has to be made with reference to the law which is in existence at the relevant time. The mere fact that the assessments in question has (sic) somehow remained pending on April 1, 1979, cannot be cogent reason to make the Explanation applicable to the cases of the present assessees. This fortuitous circumstance cannot take away the vested rights of the assessees at hand"."

49. Reverting to the decision of a Kerala High Court in CIT v. S.R. Patton [(1992) 193 ITR 49 (Ker)] wherein Gujarat High Court's judgment was followed, this Court noticed that explanation was not held to be a declaratory one but thereby the scope of Section 9(1)(ii) of the Act was widened. The law in the aforementioned premise was laid down as under : (Sedco case [2005) 12 SCC 717], SCC pp. 724-25, paras 17-19)

"17. As was affirmed by this Court in Goslino Mario (supra), a cardinal principle of the tax law is that the law to be applied is that which is in force in the relevant assessment year unless otherwise provided expressly or by necessary implication. [See also: Reliance Jute and Industries. v. CIT [(1980) 1 SCC 139]. An Explanation to a statutory provision may fulfil the purpose of clearing up an ambiguity in the main provision or an Explanation can add to and widen the scope of the main section (See: Sonia Bhatia v. State of U.P. [(1981) 2 SCC 585 at 598]. If it is in its nature clarificatory then the Explanation must be read into the main provision with effect from the time that the main provision came into force (See: Shyam Sunder v. Ram Kumar [(2001) 8 SCC 24 (para 44)]; Brij Mohan Laxman Das v. CIT[(1997) 1 SCC 352 at 354], CIT v. Podar Cement [(1997) 5 SCC 482 at 506]. But if it changes the law it is not presumed to be retrospective irrespective of the fact that the phrase used are 'it is declared' or 'for the removal of doubts'.

18. There was and is no ambiguity in the main provision of Section 9(1)(ii). It includes salaries in the total income of an assessee if the assessee has earned it in India. The word "earned" had been judicially defined in S.G. Pgnatale (supra) by the High Court of Gujarat, in our view, correctly, to mean as income "arising or accruing in India". The amendment to the section by way of an Explanation in 1983 effected a change in the scope of that judicial definition so as to include with effect from 1979, "income payable for service rendered in India".

19. When the Explanation seeks to give an artificial meaning 'earned in India' and bring about a change effectively in the existing law and in addition is stated to come into force with effect from a future date, there is no principle of interpretation which would justify reading the Explanation as operating retrospectively."

11. As this Court views the Explanation inserted at the end of Article 23, it is evident that it seeks to introduce a substantive provision in the law bringing a certain genre of agreements to sell within the ambit of the expression conveyance. It, in essence, introduces and creates new obligations and liabilities which were otherwise not contemplated by Article 23. Regards must also be had to the fact that the Act while defining the word conveyance did not include agreements to sell nor can the language employed in Section 2 (10) be understood as envisioning an agreement to sell.

12. On a more fundamental plane, the Court finds that the Explanation itself while bringing agreements to sell within the ambit of Article 23, uses the expression- "shall be deemed to be a conveyance.....". It is thus manifest that agreements to sell are brought within the scope of Article 23 by virtue of a legal fiction that is introduced. This additionally convinces the Court that the Explanation is neither clarificatory nor declaratory and in any case cannot be viewed as being a mere exposition of the statutory position that existed. For these reasons also, the Court finds itself unable to sustain the impugned orders.

13. The writ petition is consequently allowed. The impugned orders dated 30 April 2001, passed by the respondent No. 3 and 31 March 2003, passed by the respondent No. 2 are hereby quashed. All moneys deposited or recovered from the petitioner pursuant to the impugned order shall consequently be refunded forthwith.

A. Civil Law - U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 – Section 67 – Gao Sabha Property – Eviction – Resolution of the Gaon Sabha – Gaon Sabha cannot gift any land to anyone. It can, at best, grant a lease of agricultural land – Such lease is to be in accordance with the provisions contained in Section 198 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, after following the order of preference prescribed for grant of such lease – Moreover, such resolution requires approval of the Sub Divisional Officer – In absence of approval the resolution, for all practical purposes, it is a piece of waste paper. (Para 21)

B. Civil Law - U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 – Section 101 – Proviso to Section 101(2) – Exchange of the Gao Sabha land with bhumidhari land – Requirement of reference by the Sub Divisional Officer to State Govt. – No reference – Application of exchange has been rejected, against which revision is pending – Held, pendency of revision against an order rejecting application for exchange is no ground for interference because no rights can accrue in favour of any person over land which is land of public utility. (Para 26 & 27)

C. Civil Law - U.P. Revenue Rules, 2016 – Rule 102 – Exchange of land of public utility – Effect of absence of necessary rules – Since the Rules do not provide the manner in which the State Government is required to deal with an application for exchange referred to it by the Sub Divisional Officer, the power conferred by the proviso to Section 101(2) cannot be exercised – Direction issued to State Govt. to desist from exercising the power conferred by the proviso to Section 101(2) till such time the U.P. List of cases cited: -

1. Writ Petition No.26070 of 2019 Amar Nath Singh Vs St. of U.P. & others decided on 20.08.2019

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anjani Kumar Mishra,J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. Writ petition No.27953 of 2018 arises out of proceedings under Section 67 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 and seeks a writ of certiorari for quashing the order dated 06.07.2018 passed by the Tehsildar ordering eviction of the petitioner and the order dated 04.07.2018 passed by the Collector, Jaunpur affirming the order of the Tehsildar.

3. The case of the petitioner is that on 16.08.1996, a resolution was passed by the Gaon Sabha/ Land Management Committee that plot no.233 area 3.95 and plot no. 232 area 0.40 of village Golhapur, Pargana Anguli, Tehsil Shahganj, District Jaunpur be allotted to the petitioner for establishing a School.

4. Plot no.233 in the resolution is stated to be recorded as pasture land while the plot no.232 is stated to be reserved for plantation of trees but Educational work is being carried out over it.

5. It is stated that on the basis of the aforesaid resolution, on a time barred objection under Section 9, the Consolidation Officer reserved the plots in the name of the petitioner institution. It is stated that thereafter, the School was constructed thereon and as on date about 600 students are being imparted education.

6. An application for recall of the order was passed by the Consolidation Officer filed by the intervener in this writ petition, represented by Shri R.N. Yadav, was allowed and the order passed by the Consolidation Officer was recalled.

7. Against this order, the petitioner filed a recall application, which was rejected.

8. Thereafter, the petitioner filed two revisions; one against the order allowing the restoration application of the intervener and the other against the order rejecting his application for recall of the said order. Both these revisions are stated to be pending .

9. It appears that on 17.01.2018, a notice under Section 67 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 in RC Form 20 was issued to the petitioner.

10. In these proceedings, the Tehsildar vide order dated 16.04.2018, ordered eviction of the petitioners. The consequential appeal has been dismissed, vide order dated 04.07.2018, which orders are impugned in this writ petition.

11. The contention of counsel for the petitioner is that the land had been allotted/ gifted to the institution by the resolution of the Gaon Sabha and consequent thereto an order was passed in favour of the petitioner by the Consolidation Officer.

12. In pursuance of the aforementioned, the School has been established and is running. The order recalling the order passed by the Consolidation Officer, is impugned in a revision, which is pending consideration and therefore, the matter of allotment is yet to attain finality.

13. It is next contended that a large amount of money has been spent in establishing the institution. Therefore, the impugned orders, if allowed to stand shall occasion failure of justice.

14. It is lastly contended that the petitioner has filed an application under Section 101 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 for exchange of the land over which, the petitioner institution is situated with bhumidhari land of the petitioner no.2.

This application as also pending consideration.

15. In view of the submissions, a prayer for allowing the writ petition has been made.

16. Shri R.N. Yadav, counsel appearing for the intervener has submitted that the petitioner has encroached upon land of public utility, namely, pasture land as also the land, which was reserved for plantation of trees. The Gaon Sabha has no jurisdiction or power to pass a resolution for allotting land to a private institution or of gifting it to a private institution. Any allotment on the resolution of the Gaon Sabha, requires the approval of the Sub Divisional Officer, which has never been granted. Therefore, there is no gift or lease of the land in issue in favour of the petitioner.

17. It is next contended that although the case of the petitioner is that an application for exchange is pending consideration, however, no exchange is possible because only a bhumidhar can exchange his land. The petitioner no.2 is possessed of only 0.102 hectare of land, which, in any case, is recorded in the name of her husband.

18. It is also stated that the resolution of the Gaon Sabha in any case were absolutely illegal because, the petitioner no.2 as also her husband Sher Bahadur Yadav were at various point of time, Pradhan of the village. The resolution is wholly collusive and fraudulent at the instance of the erstwhile and present Pradhans.

19. Counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the decision of the Division Bench of this Court in Committee of Management, Durga Narain College and Adity Kumari School and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2018(140) RD 510 in support of his case.

20. I have considered the submission made by counsel for the parties and perused the record.

21. In so far as the resolution of the Gaon Sabha dated 16.08.1996 is concerned, the same cannot confer any right upon the petitioner institution. This is so because the Gaon Sabha cannot gift any land to anyone. The Goan Sabha, at best can grant a lease of agricultural land. However, such lease is to be in accordance with the provisions contained in Section 198 of the U.P.Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, after following the order of preference prescribed for grant of such lease. A resolution for an allotment of the Land Management Committee necessarily requires approval of the Sub Divisional Officer. Admittedly, in the case at hand, despite a resolution having been passed in favour of the petitioners, there is no approval of the Sub Divisional Officer. The resolution therefore, for all practical purposes, is waste paper.

22. For the same reason, the order of the Consolidation Officer in favour of the petitioner dated 23.10.1996, relying upon the aforesaid resolution, is patently illegal and wholly without jurisdiction. Therefore, this order has rightly been set aside on a restoration application filed by the intervener.

23. Although, the petitioner has challenged the order allowing the recall application by means of a revision, which is stated to be pending, yet this Court, in the facts and circumstances of this case is not inclined to interfere in the orders impugned on this ground, alone. The revision in my considered opinion, necessarily has to fail for the reasons already given herein-above.

24. The very fact that the proceedings under Section 67 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 were initiated against the petitioner shows that the land, despite the order passed by the Consolidation Officer on 23.10.1996, continues to be recorded in the name of the Gaon Sabha. The petitioners therefore, are wholly unauthorized occupants.

25. This situation is further compounded by the fact that the land over which, the institution is running is public utility land, governed by the provisions of Section 132 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act and/ or the parallel provisions contained in Section 77 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

26. In so far as the application for exchange under Section 101 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 filed by the petitioner is concerned, the same has been dismissed vide order dated 23.05.2018 passed by the Sub Divisional Officer. Although, it is stated that a revision against this order is pending consideration before the Commissioner, Varanasi Division, Varanasi, this Court does not consider it appropriate to interfere with the impugned orders on the plea aforesaid because no rights can accrue in favour of any person over land which is land of public utility as is the situation in the case at hand. The embargo in this regard under the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act was absolutely categorical. However, this embargo has been watered down to an extent by the proviso to Section 101(2) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

27. In view of the proviso, the State Government can permit exchange also of land of public utility, but on the matter being referred to it by the Sub Divisional Officer. No reference has been made by the Sub Divisional Officer. The Sub Divisional Officer has, in fact, rejected the application for exchange. Therefore, the proviso aforementioned does not come into play in the case at hand.

28. Even otherwise, this Court has in earlier decision in Writ Petition No.26070 of 2019 Amar Nath Singh Vs. State of U.P. & others decided on 20.08.2019 held that the proviso stipulates that the State Government may permit exchange of land of public utility on conditions and in the manner prescribed. However, the rules framed thereunder are absolutely silent with regard to the manner in which, the power is to be exercised by the State Government. The power provided to the State Government by the proviso aforesaid can be exercised only after relevant provisions have been incorporated in the rules and or the existing rules are suitably amended/ modified.

29. In view of the foregoing discussion, the impugned orders call for no interference. The writ petition is without merit and the petitioners claim found to be based on fraud.

30. For the same reason, no benefit can be granted to the petitioners decision of the Apex Court in Jagpal Singh & others Vs. State of Punjab & others, 2011(11) SC 396.

31. The writ petition No.27953 of 2018 is accordingly liable to be dismissed.

32. The connected writ petition no.27278 of 2019 has been filed for implementation of the orders impugned in Writ Petition No.27953 of 2018 above has been held liable to be dismissed. The respondents are therefore, liable to be directed to execute the orders, which stand affirmed upon dismissal of the writ petition No.27953 of 2018, expeditiously.

33. Writ Petition No. 31241 of 2019 arises out of an application for exchange filed by the respondent no. 5 who is petitioner no. 2 in Writ Petition No. 27953 of 2018.

34. This petition has been filed seeking the following relief:-

"(I) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding and directing the respondents/authorities specially respondent no. 1 not to undertake any proceedings to exchange the pasture land to the extent of area 0.821 Hectare from the Land Gata No. 326 total area 1.598 Hectare with the private owner of a school i.e. Baba Sukkhu Maa Prabu Devi Inter College Golagaur, Jaunpur in pursuance of recommendations dated 28.8.2018 and 8.3.2019 passed by one R.B. Singh, Joint Secretary U.P. Shashan as eviction order dated 16.4.2018 has been passed and the same has been affirmed by appellate order dated 4.7.2018 and exchange proceedings has been rejected vide order dated 23.05.2018."

35. This is so because an application for exchange filed by the respondent no. 5 was rejected by the Sub Divisional Officer and against that a revision is stated to be pending. The respondent no. 5 is the present Pradhan of the village. The order dated 23.05.2018 rejecting the application for exchange has been challenged before the Commissioner, Varanasi Division, Varanasi.

36. The contention of counsel for the petitioner is that wrongly and illegally, the State Government at the behest of the respondents is trying to interfere in the proceedings. The Joint Secretary, State of U.P. has written a letter dated 03.03.2019 addressed to the Commissioner and Secretary Board of Revenue calling for a report with regard to proceedings under Section 101 for exchange. It is sought to be contended that this report has been called for to enable the Government to exercise the powers conferred by sub-rule 4 of Rule 102. Proviso to Section 101 empowers the State Government to permit exchange of land, which is land of public utility having been entrusted to the Gram Panchayat or a local authority under Section 59 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 or is reserved for planned use or is land wherein bhumidhari rights cannot accrue, on the conditions and in the manner prescribed. Prescription necessarily has to be under the Rules. The relevant rule in this regard is Rule 102 of the U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016.

37. The said provision as also the corresponding Rules 102 has been considered in the judgement dated 20.08.2019 passed in Writ C No. 26070 of 2019 (Amar Nath Singh Vs. State of U.P. and 6 others). It has been held therein that the procedure for dealing with a reference made to the State Government by the Sub

Divisional Officer in proceedings under Section 101 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 has not been provided under the Rules. It has been observed as follows:-

"Moreover, since the rules namely the U.P. Revenue Code Rules 2016 do not provide the manner in which the State Government is required to deal with an application for exchange referred to it by the Sub Divisional Officer, the power conferred by the proviso to Section 101(2) cannot be exercised."

38. Further in the operative portion of the judgement, the following direction has been issued:-

"Learned Standing Counsel is directed to ensure that a copy of this order is forwarded to the competent authorities in the State Government, advising them to desist from exercising the power conferred by the proviso to Section 101 (2) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 till such time the U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016 are suitably modified/amended, prescribing the conditions and procedure for exercise of the said power."

39. Under the circumstances, Writ Petition No. 31241 of 2019 is disposed of in the terms of the directions issued in Writ C No. 26070 of 2019, wherein the State Government has been directed to desist from exercising the power conferred by the proviso to Section 101(2) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, till such time, the U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016 are suitably modified/amended, prescribing the conditions and procedure for exercise of power conferred by proviso to Section 101(2).

40. Writ Petition No.27953 of 2018 is dismissed while Writ Petition no.27278 of 2019, stands disposed of directing the respondents to execute the orders which stand affirmed due to dismissal of Writ Petition No.27953 of 2018 within four weeks of a certified copy of this order being filed before them.

2. Puran Singh vs. State of U.P. and others, (2010 (3) ADJ 659 (FB)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddhartha Varma, J.)

1. The petitioner's fair price shop was suspended on 12.05.2011. Thereafter, the suspension order was recalled on 10.06.2011. Again when the petitioner's fair price shop was suspended on 24.06.2011 and cancelled, thereafter, on 04.07.2011, the petitioner filed a writ petition being a writ petition No. 35438 of 2011. Initially an interim order was granted on 07.07.2011, which was subsequently vacated on 29.01.2014 and the petitioner was relegated for availing the remedy of Appeal. When the petitioner's Appeal was dismissed, he filed a writ petition being writ petition No. 62538 of 2014. This writ petition was allowed on 27.02.2019 and the Court after quashing the orders dated 04.07.2011 and 24.09.2014 restored the petitioner's shop. Thereafter, it appears in pursuance of the High Court's order on 30.03.2019 the petitioner was given back his shop. On 15.06.2019, a show cause notice was again issued to the petitioner stating that on 13.06.2019 a team which had been constituted as per the order dated 27.02.2019 had held a meeting in which the Gram Pradhan, the complainant Shri Pal himself had met along with other villagers and in the open meeting as many as 96 complaints were found and were brought on record. The petitioner, thereafter, was required to give his explanation to the show cause notice dated 15.06.2019. When, however, on 18.07.2019 the Sub-Divisional Officer, Rampur Maniharan, District- Saharanpur cancelled the licence of the petitioner, the instant writ petition was filed. The petitioner in effect made the following three submissions:-

i) Show cause notice if is perused shows that 96 complaints were made against the petitioner. What exactly were the complaints was not enumerated in the show cause notice given to the petitioner. Learned counsel for the petitioner states that as per the Govt. Order dated 29.07.2004 when the show cause notice was issued the punishment also which would have followed the enquiry should have been given out. Since this show cause notice was extremely vague and it only enumerated the complaints without any details the show cause notice was not a show cause notice in the eyes of law.

ii) Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that if the order dated 18.07.2019 is perused it becomes clear that when the petitioner was the given show cause notice a reply was expected from him. Various opportunities were given to the petitioner on 17.06.2019, 01.07.2019 and on 05.07.2019 and when the petitioner did not submit any reply it was presumed that he had accepted the charges and the licence was cancelled. Learned counsel relying upon a judgement reported in 2018(126) ALR

721 : (Aajad Kumar vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others), submitted that if the Enquiry Officer desired to punish the petitioner, he should have conducted a full fledged enquiry on his own. He should have called the complainants and should have got the complaints enquired into. Only after being satisfied that the complaints were correct he should have passed the order of punishment. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that simply because the petitioner had not filed his reply it could not be concluded that he was guilty.

iii) Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that though in the order it has been stated that no reply was filed, he had infact made an effort on 06.07.2019 to submit the reply. This he states in the Supplementary Affidavit, which he has filed today.

2. Learned Standing Counsel, however, in reply submits that when the petitioner was not submitting any reply then there was no other option left with the respondent/State to conclude that the petitioner had accepted his guilty. Learned Standing counsel further submits that a show cause notice did not require an enumeration of charges. The petitioner when was informed of his mistakes, he should have gleaned out the charges from the statement of facts which were supplied to him. There was no requirement to give a definite statement of charge.

3. Learned counsel appearing for the subsequent allotee, the Caveator adopted the arguments of the learned Standing counsel.

4. Having heard the learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel and the Counsel for the Caveator this Court is of the definite view, that the charges which the petitioner had to reply to should have been very clear and should have been enumerated seriatim. This is also what has been held in a judgement and order of this Court dated 19.09.2019 (Manoj Kumar Yadav vs. State of U.P. and 4 others). Even if the Govt. Order dated 29.07.2004 is perused along with the Full Bench decision of Puran Singh vs. State of U.P. and others reported in (2010 (3) ADJ 659 (FB), it becomes clear that when a delinquent fair price shop dealer is given a statement of charge then the charges should be very clear. Also, after the enquiry what punishment would follow also should be clearly given out in the show cause notice. Further the Court is of the view that as per the Govt. Order dated 29.07.2004 and 16.10.2014 and as per the law as has been laid down in 2018(126) ALR 721 : (Aajad Kumar vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others) a definite enquiry ought to have been undergone whereby a place, date and time ought to have been fixed for the enquiry. If the petitioner had failed to appear then the enquiry officer should have questioned the complainants, looked into the evidence and, thereafter, should have come to a definite conclusion as to whether the petitioner was guilty of the charges. It was improper for the Enquiry Officer to have simply stated that since the delinquent had not submitted his reply it had to be presumed that he had accepted his guilt.

5. With these observations, the order dated 18.07.2019 is quashed and the writ petition is allowed.

A. Civil Law - Society Registration Act, 1860 – Section 3 (1) and (2) – Registration of the society – Claim by rival group – Sub section (2) of Section 3 begins with a non obstante clause – Provision contained under subsection (1) of Section 3 would stand qualified by insertion of the proviso – Right to get certification of the registration of the Society under subsection (1) of Section 3 is not absolute and the same is subject to the powers of the Registrar to issue public notice or notices to other persons inviting objections against the proposed registration and considering all objections, which may be received by him before registration of society – Registrar is to refuse to register a society in a case where after giving an opportunity of showing cause he records his satisfaction regarding existence of the conditions specified under subsection (2). (Para 12, 17 & 38)

B. Interpretation of statute – Construction of Proviso – As a general rule, a proviso is added to an enactment to qualify or create an exception to what is in the enactment, and ordinarily, a proviso is not interpreted as stating a general rule. (Para 21)

Held - The insertion of the proviso to subsection (1) of Section 3 clearly indicates that the intention of the legislature was to qualify the right conferred in terms of subsection (1) for grant of a certificate of registration upon submission of memorandum of association and certified copy along with other necessary particulars and requisite fee by conferring upon the Registrar a discretion to issue public notice or issue notices to such persons as he thinks fit inviting objections, if any, against the proposed registration and to consider all such objections.

C. Interpretation of statute – Internal aid of construction – Nature and object of non obstante clause – Beginning with expression 'Notwithstanding' – A non obstante clause, as used in subsection (2) of Section (3), has been construed as a legislative device to modify the ambit of the provision or law mentioned in the non obstante clause or to override it in specified circumstances – It is generally appended to a section with a view to give the enacting part of the section, in case of conflict, an overriding effect over the provision in the same or other Act mentioned in the non obstante clause. (Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Lakshmi Kant Trigunait, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Mata Prasad, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State respondents.

2. The present petition seeks to challenge the order dated 11.07.2019 passed by the Deputy Registrar, Firms Societies and Chits Meerut Region, Meerut in terms of which, the application filed by the petitioners for registering it as a society under the provisions of the Societies Registration Act, 18601 has been rejected. Further, prayer has been made for issuance of direction to the respondents for consideration of the claim of the petitioners pertaining to registration of the Society.

3. The facts of the case as reflected from the pleadings of the writ petition indicate that an application bearing application No.10001114 dated 07.05.2018 was submitted before the respondent No.4 seeking registration of the petitioner No.1 as a society under the Act, 1860. It has also been stated that the other procedural formalities such as submission of the copy of the memorandum of association and the list of the managing body of the society had been completed and requisite fee was also deposited. It is stated that a public notice was issued by the respondent No.4 inviting objections with regard to the application filed by the petitioners for registration of the Society and thereafter the order dated 11.07.2019 has been passed rejecting the claim of the petitioners for grant of registration under the Act 1860 for the reason that there existed a dispute with regard to the management of the Society.

4. Aggrieved by the aforesaid order, the present writ petition has been filed.

5. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioners is that the application for registering the Society having been duly submitted after completion of all the necessary procedural requirements including the submission of memorandum of association, the list of members of the managing Committee and also deposition of the requisite fee, the respondent No.4 could not have refused to register the society. It is submitted that there existed no dispute pertaining to the Society and that the dispute which was sought to be raised by one person, namely, Harish Kumar Jain has nothing to do with the affairs of the Society. It is also sought to be contended that the petitioners having filed the application seeking registration on 07.05.2018 which is prior in time to the application dated 19.09.2018 submitted by the rival contenders the claim of the petitioners for registration of the society ought to have been considered.

6. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents has supported the order passed by the Deputy Registrar by submitting that as there existed a dispute with regard to the Society in question the Deputy Registrar has rightly rejected the application filed by the petitioners for grant of registration of the Society under the Act, 1860 .

7. In order to appreciate the rival contentions, the relevant provisions with regard to registration of a society under the Act, 1860 may be referred to. For ease of reference Sections 2 and 3 of the Act, 1860 are being extracted below:

"2. Memorandum of association:- The memorandum of association shall contain the following things (that is to say)-- the name of the society;

the object of the society;

the names, addresses and occupations of the governors, council, directors, committee, or other governing body to whom, by the rules of the society, the management of its affairs is entrusted.

A copy of the rules and regulations of the society, certified to be a correct copy by not less than three of the members of the governing body, shall be filed with the memorandum of association.

3. Registration and fees:- (1) Upon such memorandum and certified copy being filed along with particulars of the address of the Society's office which shall be its registered address, by the Secretary of the Society on behalf of the persons subscribing to the memorandum, the Registrar shall certify under his hand that the society is registered under this Act. There shall be paid to the Registrar for every such registration a fee of [one thousand rupees] [or such smaller fee as the State Government may notify in respect of any class of societies]:

[Provided that the State Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, increase from time to time the fee payable under this sub-section:

Provided further that the Registrar may, in his discretion, issue public notice or issue notices to such persons as he thinks fit inviting objections, if any, against the proposed registration and consider all objections that may be received by him before registering the society]

(2) Notwithstanding anything in sub-section (1) the Registrar shall refuse to register a society, if after giving it an opportunity of showing cause against such refusal, he is satisfied that-

(a) the name of the society is identical with that of any other society previously registered under this Act;

(b) the name of society sought to be registered uses any of the words, namely, 'Union', 'State', 'Land Mortgage', 'Land Development', ' Co-operative', 'Gandhi', 'Reserve Bank' or any words expressing or implying the sanction, approval or patronage of the Central or any State Government or any word which suggests or is calculated to suggest any connection with any local authority or any corporation or body constituted by or under any law for the time being in force, or is such as is otherwise likely to deceive the public or the members of any other society previously registered under this Act;

(c) any one or more of the objects of the society sought to be registered is not an object mentioned in Sections 1 and 20; or

(d) its objects are contrary to any other law for the time being in force;

[Provided that the State Government may in exceptional circumstances, for reasons to be recorded permit any society to use the word' Union' or the word 'Gandhi' in its name, and thereupon, the use of that word in the name of the society shall not be a ground for refusal to register or to renew the certificate of registration of such society]"

8. A plain reading of the aforementioned statutory provisions as contained under Section 3 substituted in terms of U.P. Act No.52 of 1975, and also the provisions contained under Section 2 indicate that upon the memorandum of association containing the name of the Society and its objects being filed by the Secretary along with particulars of the address of the Society's office which shall be its registered address, by the Secretary of the Society on behalf of the persons subscribing to the memorandum, the Registrar shall certify under his hand that the society is registered under the Act and there shall be paid to the Registrar for every such registration a fee as the State Government may notify in respect of any class of societies.

9. The second proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 3 of the Act 1860 gives the Registrar a discretion to issue public notice or issue notices to such persons as he thinks fit inviting objections, if any, against the proposed registration and consider all objections that may be received by him before registering the Society.

10. Sub-section (2) of Section 3 mandates that the Registrar shall refuse to register a society, if after giving it an opportunity of showing cause against such refusal, he is satisfied that:

(a) the name of the society is identical with that of any other society previously registered under this Act;

(b) the name of society sought to be registered uses any of the words, namely, 'Union', 'State', 'Land Mortgage', 'Land Development', 'Co-operative', 'Gandhi', 'Reserve Bank' or any words expressing or implying the sanction, approval or patronage of the Central or any State Government or any word which suggests or is calculated to suggest any connection with any local authority or any corporation or body constituted by or under any law for the time being in force, or is such as is otherwise likely to deceive the public or the members of any other society previously registered under this Act;

(c) any one or more of the objects of the society sought to be registered is not an object mentioned in Sections 1 and 20; or

(d) its objects are contrary to any other law for the time being in force.

11. It is thus seen that the provision under sub-section (1) of Section 3 which enjoins that the Registrar shall certify under his hand that the society is registered under the Act upon the memorandum of association and certified copy being filed along with other necessary particulars and requisite fee is qualified by the second proviso in terms of which the Registrar may in his discretion issue public notice or issue notices to such persons as he thinks fit inviting objections, if any, against the proposed registration and consider all objections that may be received by him before registering the society.

12. Further, sub section (2) of Section 3 begins with a non-obstante clause and is stated in a compulsive language which mandates that the Registrar shall refuse to register the society if after giving it an opportunity of showing cause against such refusal he is satisfied regarding existence of the contingencies provided thereunder.

13. The Societies Registration Act 1860, which is an act for the registration of the literary, scientific and charitable societies, was enacted for improving the legal condition of societies established for the promotion of literature, science, or the fine arts or for the diffusion of useful knowledge, or for charitable purposes. The Act lays down the procedure for registration of the societies for various purposes stated in the Act.

14. The effect of registration of a society under the Act, 1860 is to grant it the status of a legal entity apart from the members constituting it. The legal effect of registration of society under the Act 1860 came up for consideration in the case of Pamulapati Buchi Naidu College Committee, Nidubrolu and others Vs. Government of Andhra Pradesh and others2 wherein it was stated as follows.

"11. Now, what is the legal effect of the registration of a Society? The Societies Registration Act was enacted for the registration of literary and scientific societies and the object of the Act, as stated in the preamble, is to make provision for improving the legal condition of societies established for the promotion, of literature, science, or the fine arts or for the diffusion of useful knowledge, the diffusion of political education, or for charitable purposes.

Under the provisions of the Act any seven or more persons associated for any literary, scientific, or charitable purpose, or for any such purpose as is described in S. 20 may, by subscribing their names to a memorandum of association and filing the same with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, form themselves into a society. The memorandum of association is to contain the name of the society, the objects of the society, the names, addresses and occupations of the governors, council, directors, committee, or other governing body to whom, by the rules of the society, the management of its affairs is entrusted.

The property, movable and immovable, belonging to a society may be vested in trustees, and if not so vested, is deemed to be vested for the time being in the governing body of such society, and in all proceedings, civil and criminal, may be described as the property of the governing body of such society by their proper title. Under S. 16 of the Act, the governing body of the society shall be the governors, council, directors, committee, trustees, or other body to whom by the rules and regulations of the society the management of its affairs is entrusted.

Xxxx

19. The basic assumption made by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the registration of society can be equated to the granting of a Royal Charter, does not rest on a solid foundation. A society registered under the Societies Registration Act is an association of individuals which comes into existence with certain aims and objects.

If it is not registered as a society under the Act it would have the character of an association which cannot sue or be sued except in the name of all the members of the association. The registration of the Society confers on it certain advantages. The members as well as the Governing Body the Society are not always the same. Even though the members of the Society or the Governing Body fluctuate from time to time, the identity of the society is sought to be made continuous by reason of the provisions of the Societies Registration Act.

The Society continues to exist and to function as such until its dissolution under the provisions of the Act. The properties of the society continue to be vested in the trustees or in the Governing Body irrespective of the fact that the members of the society for the time being are not the same as they were before; nor will be the same thereafter.

By reason of the provisions of the Societies Registration Act, once the society is registered the Registrar, by the filing of the memorandum and certified copy of the rules and regulations and the Registrar has certified that the society is registered under the Act, it enjoys the status of a legal entity apart from the members constituting the same and is capable of suing or being sued. But the fact to be noted is that what differentiates a society registered under the Act of 1860 a company incorporated under the Companies Act is that in the latter case the share-holders of company hold the properties of the company as their own whereas in the case of a society registered under the Act of 1860, the members of the society or the members of the governing body do not have any proprietary or beneficial interest; in the property the society holds.

Having regard to the fact that the members of the general body or the members of the governing body of the society do not have any proprietary or beneficial interest in the property of the society, it follows that upon its dissolution, they cannot claim any interest in the property of the dissolved society. The Societies Registration Act, therefore, does not create in the members of the registered society any interest other than that of bare trustees. What all the members are entitled to, is the right of management of the properties of the society subject to certain conditions…"

15. It would be relevant to take note of fact that Section 3 of the Act, 1860 which relates to registration of societies stood amended and substituted in the State of U.P. in terms of the Societies Registration (Uttar Pradesh Amendment) Act, 1975 (U.P. Act No. 52 of 1975).

16. As has been noticed in the earlier part of the judgment, the provision under sub-section (1) of Section 3 which enjoins the Registrar to certify under his hand that the society is registered under the Act upon the memorandum of association and certified copy being filed along with other necessary particulars and requisite fee is qualified by the second proviso in terms of which the Registrar may in his discretion issue public notice or issue notices to such persons as he thinks fit inviting objections, if any, against the proposed registration and consider all objections that may be received by him before registering the society.

17. In order to appreciate the extent to which the provision contained under sub-section (1) of Section 3 would stand qualified by insertion of the proviso in terms of the amendment made by U.P. Act No. 52 of 1975, it would be apposite to refer to the manner in which a proviso is to be construed.

18. In Craies on Statute of Law3, referring to the rules regarding construction of a proviso, it has been observed as follows:-

"9.1. The effect of an excepting or qualifying proviso, according to the ordinary rules of construction, is to except out of the preceding portion of the enactment, or to qualify something enacted therein, which but for the proviso would be within it; and such a proviso cannot be construed as enlarging the scope of an enactment when it can be fairly and properly construed without attributing to it that effect."

19. Again, as has been pointed out by Craies in the treatise on Statute Law;

"The effect of an excepting or qualifying proviso, according to the ordinary rules of construction, is to except out the preceding portion of the enactment, or to qualify something enacted therein, which but for the proviso would be within it."

20. In Ishverlal Thakorelal Almaula Vs. Motibhai Nagjibhai4, the intendment of the proviso has been discussed thus:-

"8. The proper function of a proviso is to except or qualify something enacted in the substantive clause, which but for the proviso would be within that clause. It may ordinarily be presumed in construing a proviso that it was intended that the enacting part of the section would have included the subject-matter of the proviso. But the question is one of interpretation of the proviso and there is no rule that the proviso must always be restricted to the ambit of the main enactment. Occasionally in a statute, a proviso is unrelated to the subject-matter of the preceding section, or contains matters extraneous to that section, and it may have then to be interpreted as a substantive provision, dealing independently with the matter specified therein, and not as qualifying the main or the preceding section."

21. In Shah Bhojraj Kuverji Oil Mills & Ginning Factory Vs. Subbash Chandra Yograj Sinha5, the object of the proviso and how it is to be interpreted has been stated in the following manner:-

"9. The law with regard to provisos is well settled and well understood. As a general rule, a proviso is added to an enactment to qualify or create an exception to what is in the enactment, and ordinarily, a proviso is not interpreted as stating a general rule…"

22. Again, in S. Sundaram Pillai & Ors. Vs. V.R. Pattabiraman & Ors.6, various decisions with regard to the manner of construction of a proviso have been discussed and it has been stated as follows:-

"29. Odgers in Construction of Deeds and Statutes (5th Edn.) while referring to the scope of a proviso mentioned the following ingredients:

'p. 317. Provisos--These are clauses of exception or qualification in an Act, excepting something out of, or qualifying something in, the enactment which, but for the proviso, would be within it.

p. 318. Though framed as a proviso, such a clause may exceptionally have the effect of a substantive enactment.'

30. Sarathi in Interpretation of Statutes at pp. 294-95 has collected the following principles in regard to a proviso:

(a) When one finds a proviso to a section the natural presumption is that, but for the proviso, the enacting part of the section would have included the subject-matter of the proviso.

(b) A proviso must be construed with reference to the preceding parts of the clause to which it is appended.

(c) Where the proviso is directly repugnant to a section, the proviso shall stand and be held a repeal of the section as the proviso speaks the latter intention of the makers.

(d) Where the section is doubtful, a proviso may be used as a guide to its interpretation: but when it is clear, a proviso cannot imply the existence of words of which there is no trace in the section.

(e) The proviso is subordinate to the main section.

(f) A proviso does not enlarge an enactment except for compelling reasons.

(g) Sometimes an unnecessary proviso is inserted by way of abundant caution.

(h) A construction placed upon a proviso which brings it into general harmony with the terms of section should prevail.

(i) When a proviso is repugnant to the enacting part, the proviso will not prevail over the absolute terms of a later Act directed to be read as supplemental to the earlier one.

(j) A proviso may sometimes contain a substantive provision."

23. In the case of State of Rajasthan Vs. Leela Jain7, the following observation with regard to construction of a proviso has been made:-

"14. ...So far as a general principle of construction of a proviso is concerned, it has been broadly stated that the function of a proviso is to limit the main part of the section and carve out something which but for the proviso would have been within the operative part."

24. In S.T.O. Vs. Hanuman Prasad8, it was held as follows:-

"5. ... It is well recognised that a proviso is added to a principal clause primarily with the object of taking out of the scope of that principal clause what is included in it and what the legislature desires should be excluded."

25. In C.C.T. Vs. Jhaver Ramkishan Shrikishan9 following observations were made:-

"8. ...Generally speaking, it is true that the proviso is an exception to the main part of the section; but it is recognised that in exceptional cases a proviso may be a substantive provision itself."

26. The different purposes served by a proviso have been summarised in the case of Delhi Metro Rail Corporation Ltd. Vs. Tarun Pal Singh & Ors.10 in the following manner:-

"43. ...To sum up, a proviso may serve four different purposes:

(1) qualifying or excepting certain provisions from the main enactment;

(2) it may entirely change the very concept of the intendment of the enactment by insisting on certain mandatory conditions to be fulfilled in order to make the enactment workable;

(3) it may be so embedded in the Act itself as to become an integral part of the enactment and thus acquire the tenor and colour of the substantive enactment itself; and

(4) it may be used merely to act as an optional addenda to the enactment with the sole object of explaining the real intendment of the statutory provision."

27. In Haryana State Cooperative Land Development Bank Ltd. Vs. Haryana State Cooperative Land Development Banks Employees Union & Anr.11, the function of proviso has been considered and it has been observed as follows:-

"9. The normal function of a proviso is to except something out of the enactment or to qualify something enacted therein which but for the proviso would be within the purview of the enactment. As was stated in Mullins v. Treasurer of Surrey (1880) LR 5 QBD 170 at p. 173 (DC) (referred to in Shah Bhojraj Kuverji Oil Mills & Ginning Factory v. Subbash Chandra Yograj Sinha (AIR 1961 SC 1596) and Calcutta Tramways Co. Ltd. v. Corpn. of Calcutta (AIR 1965 SC 1728), when one finds a proviso to a section the natural presumption is that, but for the proviso, the enacting part of the section would have included the subject-matter of the proviso. The proper function of a proviso is to except and to deal with a case which would otherwise fall within the general language of the main enactment and its effect is confined to that case. It is a qualification of the preceding enactment which is expressed in terms too general to be quite accurate. As a general rule, a proviso is added to an enactment to qualify or create an exception to what is in the enactment and ordinarily, a proviso is not interpreted as stating a general rule.

"If in a deed an earlier clause is followed by a later clause which destroys altogether the obligation created by the earlier clause, the later clause is to be rejected as repugnant, and the earlier clause prevails. ...But if the later clause does not destroy but only qualifies the earlier, then the two are to be read together and effect is to be given to the intention of the parties as disclosed by the deed as a whole' (per Lord Wrenbury in Forbes v. Git (1921 SCC OnLine PC 102 : (1922) 1 AC 256).

A statutory proviso 'is something engrafted on a preceding enactment' (R. v. Taunton St. James (1829) 9 B&C 831 : 109 ER 309, ER p. 311).

"The ordinary and proper function of a proviso coming after a general enactment is to limit that general enactment in certain instances' (per Lord Esher in Barker, In re, ex p Constable (1890) LR 25 QBD 285 (CA)."

28. The function of a proviso to carve out an exception or to qualify something enacted therein which would otherwise be within the purview of the enactment was emphasised in Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway Company Ltd. Vs. Bezwada Municipality12 wherein it was stated by Lord Macmillan as follows:-

"The proper function of a proviso is to except and deal with a case which would otherwise fall within the general language of the main enactment, and its effect is confined to that case."

29. In "The Construction and Interpretation of Law" by Henry Campbell Black13, while considering the manner of construction of provisos it has been stated that the natural and appropriate effect of a proviso to a statute, or to a section thereof, is to restrain or qualify the provisions immediately preceding it.

30. The insertion of the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 3 clearly indicates that the intention of the legislature was to qualify the right conferred in terms of sub-section (1) for grant of a certificate of registration upon submission of memorandum of association and certified copy along with other necessary particulars and requisite fee by conferring upon the Registrar a discretion to issue public notice or issue notices to such persons as he thinks fit inviting objections, if any, against the proposed registration and to consider all such objections.

31. Further, sub section (2) of Section 3 which begins with a non-obstante clause and has been stated in a compulsive language mandates that the Registrar shall refuse to register the society if after giving it an opportunity of showing cause against such refusal he is satisfied regarding existence of the contingencies provided thereunder.

32. A non-obstante clause, as used in sub-section (2) of Section (3), has been construed as a legislative device to modify the ambit of the provision or law mentioned in the non-obstante clause or to override it in specified circumstances.

33. The meaning of the term 'non obstante clause' has been explained in Advanced Law Lexicon by P Ramanatha Aiyar14 as follows.

"Non obstante clause. A clause in a statute which overrides all provisions of the statute. It is usually worded : '

'Notwithstanding anything in…'

Need not always have effect of cutting down clear terms of enactment. Enacting part when clear can Control non-obstante clause.

A clause used in public and private instruments intended to preclude, in advance, any interpretation contrary to certain declared objects or purposes.

Notwithstanding; an overriding clause."

34. The nature and object of a non-obstante clause as an internal aid of construction was considered in Union of India and another Vs. G.M.Kokil and others15 and it was held to be a legislative device employed to give overriding effect to some provisions over some contrary provisions that may be found either in the same enactment or some other enactment to avoid the operation and effect of all contrary provisions. The observations made in the judgment are as follows :-

"11....It is well-known that a non obstante clause is a legislative device which is usually employed to give overriding effect to certain provisions over some contrary provisions that may be found either in the same enactment or some other enactment, that is to say, to avoid the operation and effect of all contrary provisions.…"

35. The import and effect of a non-obstante clause again came up for consideration in Chandavarkar Sita Ratna Rao Vs. Ashalata S. Guram16 and it was stated that often a non-obstante clause is appended to a section in the beginning with a view to give the enacting part of the section in case of conflict an overriding effect. The observations in the judgment are as follows :-

"67.A clause beginning with the expression "notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or in some particular provision in the Act or in some particular Act or in any law for the time being in force, or in any contract" is more often than not appended to a section in the beginning with a view to give the enacting part of the section in case of conflict an overriding effect over the provision of the Act or the contract mentioned in the non obstante clause. It is equivalent to saying that in spite of the provision of the Act or any other Act mentioned in the non obstante clause or any contract or document mentioned the enactment following it will have its full operation or that the provisions embraced in the non obstante clause would not be an impediment for an operation of the enactment. See in this connection the observations of this Court in*South India Corpn. (P)Ltd.v.Secretary, Board of Revenue, Trivandrum*[AIR 1964 SC 207, 215 : (1964) 4 SCR 280]"

36. In the case of State of Bihar and others Vs. Bihar Rajya M.S.E.S.K.K. Mahasangh and others17 while considering the meaning, object and effect of a non-obstante clause, it was stated as follows :-

"45.A*non obstante*clause is generally appended to a section with a view to give the enacting part of the section, in case of conflict, an overriding effect over the provision in the same or other Act mentioned in the*non obstante*clause. It is equivalent to saying that in spite of the provisions of the Act mentioned in the*non obstante*clause, the provision following it will have its full operation or the provisions embraced in the*non obstante*clause will not be an impediment for the operation of the enactment or the provision in which the*non-obstante* clause occurs. (See*Principles of Statutory Interpretation*, 9th Edn., by Justice G.P. Singh -- Chapter V, Synopsis IV at pp. 318 and 319.)

47.Normally the use of a phrase by the legislature in a statutory provision like "notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this Act" is equivalent to saying that the Act shall be no impediment to the measure (see*Law Lexicon* words "notwithstanding anything in this Act to the contrary"). Use of such expression is another way of saying that the provision in which the*non obstante*clause occurs usually would prevail over other provisions in the Act. Thus,*non obstante*clauses are not always to be regarded as repealing clauses nor as clauses which expressly or completely supersede any other provision of the law, but merely as clauses which remove all obstructions which might arise out of the provisions of any other law in the way of the operation of the principal enacting provision to which the*non obstante*clause is attached. (See*Bipathummav.Mariam Bibi*[(1966) 1 Mys LJ 162] , Mys LJ at p. 165.)"

37. The scheme of the Act with regard to registration of a society as amended in terms of U.P. Act No. 52 of 1975 came up for consideration in the case of Muzaffar Hussain and others Vs. Assistant Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, U.P., Meerut Region Meerut and others18, and it was held that under the scheme of the Act the Registrar is not to act as an automaton and in terms of sub-section (2) which begins with a non-obstante clause the Registrar is to refuse registration upon his satisfaction as to the existence of any one or more of the grounds specified. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows.

"11. Under the scheme of the Act (as amended), the Registrar is not to act as an automaton. The satisfaction is objective on consideration of relevant material. Sub-Section (2) of S. 3 begins with the non obstante clause, that is, "notwithstanding anything in sub-section (I)". Sub-section (I) provides that upon memorandum of association and copy of rules and regulations being filed, the Registrar shall certify that the society is registered. Even if this could be classed as a ministerial act, it has definitely assumed a different character with the introduction of sub-s. (2) which places the Registrar under mandate to refuse registration upon his satisfaction as to the existence of any one or more of the grounds specified. The satisfaction is not subjective. This presupposes application of mind despite there being no formal opposition as such to the application for registration…"

38. It is, therefore, seen that the right to get certification of the registration of the Society under sub-section (1) of Section 3 is not absolute and the same is subject to the powers of the Registrar to issue public notice or notices to other persons inviting objections against the proposed registration and considering all objections, which may be received by him before registration of society. Further, the Registrar is to refuse to register a society in a case where after giving an opportunity of showing cause he records his satisfaction regarding existence of the conditions specified under sub-section (2).

39. In the instant case, after filing of the application dated 07.05.2018 by the petitioners seeking registration of the Society in the name of " Sri 1008 Parshvanath Digamber Jain Mandir Samiti, Sri 1008 Parshvanath Digamber Jain Mandir, Balram Nagar, Tehsil Loni, District Ghaziabad another application dated 19.09.2018 was submitted by one Sri Harish Kumar Jain claiming registration of a Society in the name of "Sri 1008 Parshvanath Digamber Jain Mandir Charitable Society B-60 Balram Nagar, Tehsil Loni, District Ghaziabad". The applications submitted by the petitioners as well as the other group were both accompanied by copies of memorandum of association and other requisite papers along with the necessary fee.

40. The applications having been filed by two sets of parties seeking registration of societies in similar names the Registrar in his discretion issued a letter dated 31.12.2018 to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Loni, District Ghaziabad to get a spot inquiry conducted, so that the exact situation may be verified and it may be seen as to whether there existed any dispute with regard to the management of the Society. The status of the entries in the revenue records was also directed to be verified.

41. In response to the aforesaid request sent by the Deputy Registrar the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Loni vide his letter dated 10.07.2019 forwarded an inquiry report stating therein that the matter was inquired into by the Tehsildar Loni and a report dated 05.07.2019 had been submitted wherein it has been stated that the property in question was not a public property and that there existed a dispute with regard to the management of the society in the name of "Sri 1008 Parshvanath Digamber Jain Mandir" and there also existed a dispute with regard to the title and ownership between two rival parties in respect of the property in question. It was disclosed that a civil suit being Original Suit No. 946 of 2018 (Sri 1008 Parshvanath Digamber Jain Mandir vs. Pravin Kumar Jain and others) was pending before the court of Civil Judge (Senior Division) Ghaziabad.

42. It is on the basis of aforesaid report submitted by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Loni that the Deputy Registrar has drawn an inference that there existed a dispute with regard to the ownership and title pertaining to the movable and immovable properties of the society in question and also a dispute with regard to the management of the society and that a civil suit was pending between the two rival factions both of whom applied for grant of registration under the Act, 1860.

43. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case the conclusion drawn by the Deputy Registrar with regard to the existence of a dispute in respect of the ownership of the properties of the Society and also with regard to its management and that it would not be appropriate to grant certificate of registration to either of the two sets of claimants and thereafter rejecting the applications filed by both the contesting parties leaving it open to them to submit applications afresh upon disposal of the pending suit between the parties cannot be faulted with.

44. No other ground was raised.

45. Learned counsel for the petitioners has not been able to point out any material error or irregularity in the order dated 11.07.2019 passed by the Deputy Registrar, Firms Societies and Chits Meerut Region, Meerut i.e. respondent No.4, which may warrant interference in exercise of powers in writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

46. The writ petition lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

A. Labour Law – Termination of service of workman – Domestic enquiry – Opportunity of hearing to the employer – Adjudication process to be adopted by Labour Court – Principle laid down – It is obligatory upon the Labour Court to first decide the preliminary issue as to the legality of the domestic enquiry and in case it proceeds to hold the domestic enquiry to be not fair and proper it would be open to the employer to ask for such opportunity to lead evidence to prove the charge of misconduct and once such prayer is made either orally or by application or in the pleading, the same is to be granted to enable the employer to prove the misconduct. (Para 18)

Held -In view of the specific pleading having been made by the petitioner-employer the Labour Court before proceeding to hold the termination to be illegal and invalid ought to have granted an opportunity to the petitioner-employer to lead evidence and prove its case and the Labour Court could not have straightaway proceeded to hold the termination to be illegal and invalid.

1. Supplementary counter affidavit filed by Ms. Bushra Maryam on behalf of the respondent no. 3 is taken on record.

2. Sri Diptiman Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner has stated that he does not propose to file any response to the aforesaid supplementary counter affidavit.

3. With the consent of the parties the writ petition is taken up for final disposal as per the Rules of the Court.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

5. The present petition seeks to challenge the award dated 27.03.2019, published on 25.06.2019, passed by the Labour Court, U.P. Saharanpur in Adjudication Case No.69 of 2008, whereby the Labour Court while answering the reference with regard to the legality/validity of the termination of the services of the respondent no.3-workman w.e.f. 14.03.2008 has held the termination to be illegal/invalid and directed his reinstatement with full back wages and consequential benefits.

6. The sole contention raised on behalf of the petitioner is that the services of the respondent-workman had been terminated pursuant to a domestic enquiry and the Labour Court having framed an issue with regard to the fairness of the domestic enquiry and having held the same to be not fair and proper it ought to have granted opportunity to the petitioner-employer to lead evidence and prove the case before the Labour Court. It is submitted that upon coming to the conclusion that the domestic enquiry was not fair and proper, the Labour Court could not have straightaway proceeded to hold the termination to be illegal/invalid without grant of opportunity to the petitioner-employer to prove the case before the Labour Court.

7. Counsel for the respondent no. 3-workman submits that though a plea was raised in the written statement filed by the employer that in the event the domestic enquiry is held to be not fair and proper it may be permitted to lead evidence and prove the case before the Labour Court, but the order-sheet does not indicate that the said plea was pressed by the employer at any stage of the proceedings.

8. In order to appreciate the controversy involved it would be relevant to advert to the legal position with regard to the scope of the powers exercisable by a Labour Court while deciding a dispute relating to the legality and correctness of a termination order passed against the workman pursuant to a domestic enquiry and the rights of the employer to lead evidence and defend the order of termination before the Labour Court.

9. The right of the Management to defend its action solely on the basis of a domestic enquiry by demonstrating it to be fair and proper, or taking the other course of relying firstly on the validity of domestic enquiry and alternatively and without prejudice to the plea that the enquiry is fair and proper also seeking to adduce evidence before the Tribunal to justify its action was upheld in the case of Management of Ritz Theatre (P) Ltd. Delhi Vs. Workmen1. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are as follows :-

"12...In enquiries of this kind, the first question which the Tribunal has to consider is whether a proper enquiry has been held or not. Logically, it is only where the Tribunal is satisfied that a proper enquiry has not been held or that the enquiry having been held properly the findings recorded at such an enquiry are perverse, that the Tribunal derives jurisdiction to deal with the merits of the dispute. It is quite conceivable, and in fact it happens in many cases, that the employer may rely on the enquiry in the first instance and alternatively and without prejudice to his plea that the enquiry is proper and binding, may seek to lead additional evidence. It would, we think, be unfair to hold that merely by adopting such a course, the employer gives up his plea that the enquiry was proper and that the Tribunal should not go into the merits of the dispute for itself. If the view taken by the Tribunal was held to be correct, it would lead to this anomaly that the employer would be precluded from justifying the dismissal of his employee by leading additional evidence unless he takes the risk of inviting the Tribunal to deal with the merits for itself, because as soon as he asks for permission to lead additional evidence, it would follow that he gives up his stand based on the holding of the domestic enquiry. Otherwise, it may have to be held that in all such cases no evidence should be led on the merits unless the issue about the enquiry is tried as a preliminary issue. If the finding on that preliminary issue is in favour of the employer, then, no additional evidence need be cited by the employer; if the finding on the said issue is against him, permission will have to be given to the employer to cite additional evidence. Instead of following such an elaborate and somewhat cumbersome procedure, if the employer seeks to lead evidence in addition to the evidence adduced at the departmental enquiry and the employees are also given an opportunity to lead additional evidence, it would be open to the Tribunal first to consider the preliminary issue and then to proceed to deal with the merits in case the preliminary issue is decided against the employer. That, in our opinion, is the true and correct legal position in this matter."

10. The question as to whether in a case where no enquiry as required under the applicable Standing Orders had been held could the Management justify the order of dismissal before the Industrial Tribunal was subject matter of consideration in the case of Workmen of the Motipur Sugar Factory Private Ltd. Vs. The Motipur Sugar Factory Private Ltd.2. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are as follows :-

"12. If it is held that in cases where the employer dismisses his employee without holding an enquiry, the dismissal must be set aside by the Industrial Tribunal only on that ground, it would inevitably mean that the employer will immediately proceed to hold the enquiry and pass an order dismissing the employee once again. In that case, another industrial dispute would arise and the employer would be entitled to rely upon the enquiry which he had held in the meantime. This course would mean delay and on the second occasion it will entitle the employer to claim the benefit of the domestic enquiry. On the other hand, if in such cases the employer is given an opportunity to justify the impugned dismissal on the merits, the employee has the advantage of having the merits of his case being considered by the tribunal for itself and that clearly would be to the benefit of the employee. That is why this Court has consistently held that if the domestic enquiry is irregular, invalid or improper, the tribunal may give an opportunity to the employer to prove his case and in doing so, the tribunal tries the merits itself. This view is consistent with the approach which industrial adjudication generally adopts with a view to do justice between the parties without relying too much on technical considerations and with the object of avoiding delay in the disposal of industrial disputes…"

11. The nature of the jurisdiction exercised by an Industrial Tribunal while examining the validity and propriety of a domestic enquiry held by the Management came up for consideration in the case of Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. Vs. Ludh Budh Singh3, wherein it was held that in a case where the termination order has been passed pursuant to a domestic enquiry it is open to the Management to request the Tribunal to try the validity of the domestic enquiry as a preliminary issue and also ask for an opportunity to adduce evidence before the Tribunal, if the finding on the preliminary enquiry is against the Management. The principles culled out in the judgment are as follows :-

"61. From the above decisions the following principles broadly emerge –

(1) If no domestic enquiry had been held by the management, or if the management makes it clear that it does not rely upon any domestic enquiry that may have been held by it, it is entitled to straightway adduce evidence before the Tribunal justifying its action. The Tribunal is bound to consider that evidence so adduced before it, on merits, and give a decision thereon. In such a case, it is not necessary for the Tribunal to consider the validity of the domestic enquiry as the employer himself does not rely on it.

(2) If a domestic enquiry had been held, it is open to the management to rely upon the domestic enquiry held by it, in the first instance, and alternatively and without prejudice to its plea that the enquiry is proper and binding, simultaneously adduce additional evidence before the Tribunal justifying its action. In such a case no inference can be drawn, without anything more that the management has given up the enquiry conducted by it.

(3) When the management relies on the enquiry conducted by it, and also simultaneously adduces evidence before the Tribunal, without prejudice to its plea that the enquiry proceedings are proper, it is the duty of the Tribunal, in the first instance, to consider whether the enquiry proceedings conducted by the management, are valid and proper. If the Tribunal is satisfied that the enquiry proceedings have been held properly and are valid, the question of considering the evidence adduced before it on merits, no longer survives. It is only when the Tribunal holds that the enquiry proceedings have not been properly held, that it derives jurisdiction to deal with the merits of the dispute and in such a case it has to consider the evidence adduced before it by the management and decide the matter on the basis of such evidence.

(4) When a domestic enquiry has been held by the management and the management relies on the same, it is open to the latter to request the Tribunal to try the validity of the domestic enquiry as a preliminary issue and also ask for an opportunity to adduce evidence before the Tribunal, if the finding on the preliminary issue is against the management. However elaborate and cumbersome the procedure may be, under such circumstances, it is open to the Tribunal to deal, in the first instance, as a preliminary issue the validity of the domestic enquiry. If its finding on the preliminary issue is in favour of the management, then no additional evidence need be cited by the management. But, if the finding on the preliminary issue is against the management, the Tribunal will have to give the employer an opportunity to cite additional evidence and also give a similar opportunity to the employee to lead evidence contra, as the request to adduce evidence had been made by the management to the Tribunal during the course of the proceedings and before the trial has come to an end. When the preliminary issue is decided against the management and the latter leads evidence before the Tribunal, the position, under such circumstances, will be, that the management is deprived of the benefit of having the finding of the domestic Tribunal being accepted as prima facie proof of the alleged misconduct. On the other hand, the management will have to prove, by adducing proper evidence, that the workman is guilty of misconduct and that the action taken by it is proper. It will not be just and fair either to the management or to the workman that the Tribunal should refuse to take evidence and thereby ask the management to make a further application, after holding a proper enquiry, and deprive the workman of the benefit of the Tribunal itself being satisfied, on evidence adduced before it, that he was or was not guilty of the alleged misconduct.

(5) The management has got a right to attempt to sustain its order by adducing independent evidence before the Tribunal. But the management should avail itself of the said opportunity by making a suitable request to the Tribunal before the proceedings are closed. If no such opportunity has been availed of, or asked for by the management, before the proceedings are closed, the employer can make no grievance that the Tribunal did not provide such an opportunity. The Tribunal will have before it only the enquiry proceedings and it has to decide whether the proceedings have been held properly and the findings recorded therein are also proper."

12. A similar view was taken in the case of State Bank of India Vs. R.K.Jain and others4, while considering the question as to whether the Management can produce evidence to prove the grounds for justification of discharge of the workman before the Tribunal and if so at what stage of proceedings. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are as follows :-

"35.It should be remembered that when an order of punishment by way of dismissal or termination of service is effected by the management, the issue that is referred is whether the management was justified in discharging and terminating the service of the workman concerned and whether the workman is entitled to any relief. In the present case, the actual issue that was referred for adjudication to the Industrial Tribunal has already been quoted in the earlier part of the judgment. There may be cases where an enquiry has been held preceding the order of termination or there may have been no enquiry at all. But the dispute that will be referred is not whether the domestic enquiry has been conducted properly or not by the management, but the larger question whether the order of termination, dismissal or the order imposing punishment on the workman concerned is justified. Under those circumstances it is the right of the workman to plead all infirmities in the domestic enquiry, if one has been held and also to attack the order on all grounds available to him in law and on facts. Similarly, the management has also a right to defend the action taken by it on the ground that a proper domestic enquiry has been held by it on the basis of which the order impugned has been passed. It is also open to the management to justify on facts that the order passed by it was proper. But the point to be noted is that the enquiry that is conducted by the Tribunal is a composite enquiry regarding the order which is under challenge. If the management defends its action solely on the basis that the domestic enquiry held by it is proper and valid and if the Tribunal hold0 against the management on that point, the management will fail. On the other hand, if the management relies not only on the validity of the domestic enquiry, but also adduces evidence before the Tribunal justifying its action, it is open to the Tribunal to accept the evidence adduced by the management and hold in its favour even if its finding is against the management regarding the validity of the domestic enquiry. It is essentially a matter for the management to decide about the stand that it proposes to take before the Tribunal. It may be emphasised, that it is the right of the management to sustain its order by adducing also independent evidence before the Tribunal. It is a right given to the management and it is for the management to avail itself of the said opportunity."

13. The jurisdiction of an Industrial Tribunal while adjudicating disputes relating to dismissal or discharge was exhaustively considered in the case of The Workmen of M/S Firestone Tyre and Rubber Co. of India (P) Ltd. Vs. The Management and others5, and certain broad principles were laid down. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are being extracted below :-

"31.We have exhaustively referred to the various decisions of this Court, as they give a clear picture of the principles governing the jurisdiction of the Tribunals when adjudicating disputes relating to dismissal or discharge.

32.From those decisions, the following principles broadly emerge:

(1) The right to take disciplinary action and to decide upon the quantum of punishment are mainly managerial functions, but if a dispute is referred to a Tribunal, the latter has power to see if action of the employer is justified.

(2) Before imposing the punishment, an employer is expected to conduct a proper enquiry in accordance with the provisions of the Standing Orders, if applicable, and principles of natural justice. The enquiry should not be an empty formality.

(3) When a proper enquiry has been held by an employer, and the finding of misconduct is a plausible conclusion flowing from the evidence, adduced at the said enquiry, the Tribunal has no jurisdiction to sit in judgment over the decision of the employer as an appellate body. The interference with the decision of the employer will be justified only when the findings arrived at in the enquiry are perverse or the management is guilty of victimisation, unfair labour practice or mala fide.

(4) Even if no enquiry has been held by an employer or if the enquiry held by him is found to be defective, the Tribunal in order to satisfy itself about the legality and validity of the order, had to give an opportunity to the employer and employee to adduce evidence before it. It is open to the employer to adduce evidence for the first time justifying his action, and it is open to the employee to adduce evidence contra.

(5) The effect of an employer not holding an enquiry is that the Tribunal would not have to consider only whether there was a prima facie case. On the other hand, the issue about the merits of the impugned order of dismissal or discharge is at large before the Tribunal and the latter, on the evidence adduced before it, has to decide for itself whether the misconduct alleged is proved. In such cases, the point about the exercise of managerial functions does not arise at all. A case of defective enquiry stands on the same footing as no enquiry.

(6) The Tribunal gets jurisdiction to consider the evidence placed before it for the first time in justification of the action taken only, if no enquiry has been held or after the enquiry conducted by an employer is found to be defective.

(7) It has never been recognised that the Tribunal should straightaway, without anything more, direct reinstatement of a dismissed or discharged employee, once it is found that no domestic enquiry has been held or the said enquiry is found to be defective.

(8) An employer, who wants to avail himself of the opportunity of adducing evidence for the first time before the Tribunal to justify his action, should ask for it at the appropriate stage. If such an opportunity is asked for, the Tribunal has no power to refuse. The giving of an opportunity to an employer to adduce evidence for the first time before the Tribunal is in the interest of both the management and the employee and to enable the Tribunal itself to be satisfied about the alleged misconduct.

(9) Once the misconduct is proved either in the enquiry conducted by an employer or by the evidence placed before a Tribunal for the first time, punishment imposed cannot be interfered with by the Tribunal except in cases where the punishment is so harsh as to suggest victimisation.

(10) In a particular case, after setting aside the order of dismissal, whether a workman should be reinstated or paid compensation is, as held by this Court in The Management of Panitole Tea Estatev.Workmen,(1971) 1 SCC 742 within the judicial decision of a Labour Court or Tribunal."

14. The consequences which would follow in a case where the domestic enquiry was found to be defective for violation of principles of natural justice and as to whether in such a case a duty would be cast on the Labour Court to give an opportunity to the employer to adduce evidence afresh and whether the failure to do so would vitiate the award was taken up for consideration in the case of The Cooper Engineering Limited Vs. Shri P.P.Mundhe6. The observations made in the judgment are as follows :-

"22.We are, therefore, clearly of opinion that when a case of dismissal or discharge of an employee is referred for industrial adjudication the Labour Court should first decide as a preliminary issue whether the domestic enquiry has violated the principles of natural justice. When there is no domestic enquiry or defective enquiry is admitted by the employer, there will be no difficulty. But when the matter is in controversy between the parties that question must be decided as a preliminary issue. On that decision being pronounced it will be for the management to decide whether it will adduce any evidence before the labour court. If it chooses not to adduce any evidence, it will not be thereafter permissible in any proceeding to raise the issue. We should also make it clear that there will be no justification for any party to stall the final adjudication of the dispute by the Labour Court by questioning its decision with regard to the preliminary issue when the matter, if worthy, can be agitated even after the final award. It will be also legitimate for the High Court to refuse to intervene at this stage. We are making these observations in our anxiety that there is no undue delay in industrial adjudication."

15. The question as to whether the Labour Court is duty bound to afford an opportunity to the employer to lead evidence and to prove the charge against the workman on merits in a case where the domestic enquiry is held to be illegal and improper fell for consideration in the case of Shankar Chakravarti Vs. Britannia Biscuit Co. Ltd. and another7, and while answering the aforesaid question it was held that it is for the employer to ask for such opportunity to lead evidence to prove the charge of misconduct and once such prayer is made in any form i.e. orally or by application or in the pleading the same cannot be denied to the employer. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are being extracted below ;-

"35...It is both the right and obligation of the employer, if it so chooses, to adduce additional evidence to substantiate the charges of misconduct. It is for the employer to avail of such opportunity by a specific pleading or by specific request.…"

16. The question with regard to the necessity of framing a preliminary issue to decide validity of domestic enquiry again came up for consideration in the case of Kurukshetra University Vs. Prithvi Singh8, and after referring to the earlier judgments in the case of Indian Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. Vs. Workmen9, and Shankar Chakravarti Vs. Britannia Biscuit Co. Ltd.7 it was observed that in the facts of the case the Labour Court committed an error in not framing a preliminary issue for deciding the legality of the domestic enquiry and having found fault in the domestic enquiry committed another error when it did not allow the employer to lead independent evidence to prove the misconduct/charge on merits and straightway proceeded to hold that it was a case of illegal retrenchment. The observations made in the aforementioned judgment in this regard are as follows :-

"12.The question as to what are the powers of the Labour Court and how it should proceed to decide the legality and correctness of the termination order of a workman under the Labour Laws in reference proceedings and what are the rights of the employer while defending the termination order in the Labour Court remains no more res integra and is settled by series of decisions of this Court beginning from Indian Iron & Steel Co. Ltd.v.Workmen till Shankar Chakravartiv.Britannia Biscuit Co. Ltd.[Shankar Chakravartiv.Britannia Biscuit Co. Ltd., (1979) 3 SCC 371 and also thereafter in several decisions as mentioned below.

13.In between this period, this Court in several leading cases examined the aforesaid questions. However, in Shankar case, (1979) 3 SCC 371, this Court took note of entire case law laid down by this Court in all previous cases and reiterated the legal position in detail.

Xxxx

20.We are constrained to observe that first, the Labour Court committed an error in not framing a "preliminary issue" for deciding the legality of domestic enquiry and second, having found fault in the domestic enquiry committed another error when it did not allow the appellant to lead independent evidence to prove the misconduct/charge on merits and straightaway proceeded to hold that it was a case of illegal retrenchment and hence the respondent's termination is bad in law."

17. The aforementioned proposition of law has been reiterated in the case of M.L.Singla Vs. Punjab National Bank and another10, and it has been stated that it is obligatory for the Labour Court to decide the validity/legality of the domestic enquiry and in case it is held that the domestic enquiry was illegal because it had been conducted in violation of the principles of natural justice the employer ought to be granted opportunity to lead evidence and prove the case before the Labour Court. The observations in the aforesaid judgment made in this regard after examining the earlier decisions in the case of Bharat Sugar Mills Ltd. Vs. Jai Singh11, Management of Ritz Theatre (P) Ltd. Delhi Vs. Workmen1, Workmen of the Motipur Sugar Factory Private Ltd. Vs. The Motipur Sugar Factory Private Ltd.2, SBI Vs. R.K.Jain4, Delhi Cloth and General Mills Co. Vs. Ludh Budh Singh3, Workmen of M/S Firestone Tyre & Rubber Co. of India (P) Ltd. Vs. Management and others5, Cooper Engineering Limited Vs. P.P.Mundhe6 and Shankar Chakravarti Vs. Britannia Biscuit Co. Ltd.7 are as follows :-

"13.It is necessary to examine the legality and correctness of the award of the Labour Court in the first instance and then the impugned order.

14.When we examine the award in the light of detailed facts set out above, we find that the Labour Court committed more than one jurisdictional error in answering the reference.

15.The first error was that it failed to decide the validity and legality of the domestic enquiry. Since the dismissal order was based on the domestic enquiry, it was obligatory upon the Labour Court to first decide the question as a preliminary issue as to whether the domestic enquiry was legal and proper.

16.Depending upon the answer to this question, the Labour Court should have proceeded further to decide the next question.

Xxxx

20.If the Labour Court had come to a conclusion that the domestic enquiry is illegal because it was conducted in violation of the principles of natural justice thereby causing prejudice to the rights of the employee, Respondent 1 Bank was under legal obligation to prove the misconduct (charges) alleged against the appellant (employee) before the Labour Court provided he had sought such opportunity to prove the charges on merits.

21.The Labour Court was then under legal obligation to give such opportunity and then decide the question as to whether Respondent 1 Bank was able to prove the charges against the appellant on merits or not.

Xxxx

25.Assuming that the Labour Court had the jurisdiction to direct the parties in the first instance itself to adduce evidence on merits in support of the charges yet, in our opinion, it was obligatory upon the Labour Court to first frame the preliminary issue on the question of legality and validity of the domestic enquiry and confine its discussion only for examining the legality and propriety of the enquiry proceedings.

26.Depending upon the finding on the preliminary issue on the legality of the enquiry proceedings, the Labour Court should have proceeded to decide the next questions. The Labour Court while deciding the preliminary issue could only rely upon the evidence, which was relevant for deciding the issue of legality of enquiry proceedings but not beyond it.

27.In other words, the Labour Court failed to see that it would have assumed the jurisdiction to examine the charges on the merits only after the domestic enquiry had been held illegal and secondly, the employer had sought permission to adduce evidence on merits to prove the charges and on permission being granted, he had led the evidence.

Xxxx

35.The law on this subject was examined by this Court in several decisions beginning from Bharat Sugar Mills Ltd.v.Jai Singh, (1962) 3 SCR 684;Ritz Theatre (P) Ltd.v.Workmen(1963) 3 SCR 461;Workmenv.Motipur Sugar Factory (P) Ltd.,(1965) 3 SCR 588;SBIv.R.K. Jain (1972) 4 SCC 304;Delhi Cloth and General Mills Co.v.Ludh Budh Singh,(1972) 1 SCC 595; Workmenv.Firestone Tyre & Rubber Co. of India (P) Ltd., (1973) 1 SCC 813 and Cooper Engg. Ltd.v.P.P. Mundhe,(1975) 2 SCC 661.

36.All the aforementioned decisions were examined in detail by a Bench of three Judges of this Court in Shankar Chakravarti v.Britannia Biscuit Co. Ltd.,(1979) 3 SCC 371.

37.Though in Shankar Chakravarti case,(1979) 3 SCC 371, the question was when the domestic enquiry is held illegal and improper by the Labour Court, whether the Labour Court is duty bound to afford an opportunity to the employer to lead evidence to prove the charge against the workman on merits before the Labour Court.

38.This Court while answering the aforesaid question in*Shankar Chakravarti case*,(1979) 3 SCC 371 held that it is for the employer to ask for such opportunity to lead evidence to prove the charge of misconduct and once such prayer is made in any form i.e. orally or by application or in the pleading, the same cannot be denied to the employer. It has to be granted to enable him to prove the misconduct. This Court further held that no duty is cast upon the Court to offer such opportunity to the employer suo motu, if he does not ask for it. In other words, he has to ask for from the Court by any of the three modes mentioned above."

18. From the forgoing discussion it follows that it is obligatory upon the Labour Court to first decide the preliminary issue as to the legality of the domestic enquiry and in case it proceeds to hold the domestic enquiry to be not fair and proper it would be open to the employer to ask for such opportunity to lead evidence to prove the charge of misconduct and once such prayer is made either orally or by application or in the pleading, the same is to be granted to enable the employer to prove the misconduct. It has been consistently held that the Management would have a right to defend its action solely on the basis of the domestic enquiry by demonstrating it to be fair and proper, or taking the other course of relying firstly on the validity of the domestic enquiry and alternatively and without prejudice to the plea that the enquiry is fair and proper also seeking to adduce evidence before the Tribunal to justify its action.

19. In the instant case, the records of the present case indicate that in the written statement filed by the petitioner-employer before the Labour Court it was specifically pleaded that in case the Labour Court finds any defect in the enquiry, the management be allowed to prove the case before the Labour Court and to lead the evidence for the said purpose.

20. In view of the specific pleading having been made by the petitioner-employer the Labour Court before proceeding to hold the termination to be illegal and invalid ought to have granted an opportunity to the petitioner-employer to lead evidence and prove its case and the Labour Court could not have straightaway proceeded to hold the termination to be illegal and invalid.

21. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent no. 3 has not been able to dispute the aforementioned legal position and has fairly submitted that in order to expedite the proceedings the matter be remanded to the Labour Court to proceed afresh after giving due opportunity to the petitioner-employer to lead evidence and prove the charge.

22. In the light of the foregoing discussion the award of the Labour Court is held to be legally unsustainable and is accordingly set aside and the matter is remanded to the Labour Court with an observation that the Labour Court would afford an opportunity, as sought by the employer in its written statement, to lead evidence to prove the misconduct, and thereafter proceed to decide the issue with regard to the legality/validity of the termination of the services of the respondent no. 3-workman, in terms of the reference made before it.

23. Counsel for the parties have jointly submitted that they would appear before the Labour Court and would not seek any unnecessary adjournment.

24. Having regard to the fact that the dispute had been referred for adjudication more than a decade ago it is expected that the Labour Court would proceed with the matter and endeavour to conclude the proceedings expeditiously, preferably within a period of six months from the date of receipt of a certified copy of the order of this Court.

25. The writ petition is allowed to the extent indicated hereinabove.

A. Nazul property – Nature and meaning – Nazul is an Arabic word. It refers to a land annexed to Crown. During British Regime, immoveable property of individuals, Zamindars, Nawabs and Rajas when confiscated for one or the other reason, it was termed as 'Nazul property' – It was neither acquired nor purchased after making payment – In Legal Glossary 1992 meaning of the term 'Nazul' has been given as 'Rajbhoomi' – It is only such land which is owned and vested in the State on account of its capacity of Sovereign, and application of right of bona vacantia. (Para 42, 43 and 44)

B. Constitution of India – Article 296 – Principle of escheat/ bona vacantia/ Doctrine of lapse – Empowering the king to take property – Recognized under common law of England – These principle would have been applicable prior to enforcement of Constitution of India – Article 296 has retained power of State to get ownership of such land, in respect whereof principle of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' applied – This power continued to apply after enactment of Constitution with the only modification that if such land is situate within the territory of State Government, it will vest in State and in other cases, it will vest in Union of India. (Para 46 and 49)

Held – Thus the land in question which is admittedly 'Nazul', belonged to the category as discussed above i.e. it came to be vested and owned by State in its capacity of Sovereign and right of bona vacantia. When acquisition is made under the provisions of a Statute, purpose of acquisition is already known and State pay its price but when land is owned by State, which is Nazul, objective of use of such land is not predetermined but it can be utilized by State for larger public welfare and its benefit, as necessitated from time to time. In other words 'Nazul' land forms the assets owned by State in trust for the people in general who are entitled for its user in the most fair and beneficial manner for their benefit. State cannot be allowed to distribute such largesse by pick and choose manner or to some selected groups etc.

Thus, land in question remained with State Government being its owner. Lease right transferred to Maharani Janki Kunwar ceased to continue with Lessee after her death that too issueless, and in any case after expiry of term of lease on 31.12.1960.

C. Nazul land – Right of State for resumption and re-entry – Public purpose – State has unrestricted power of re-entry to its own property and, that too, for public purpose and the above authorities are applicable to these petitions – Lease has already expired, which has not been granted to anyone else. Petitioners have no claim for conversion into freehold. Held, right of State to get its own land is not obstructed in any manner. (Para 74 and 75)

D. Civil Law - Transfer of property Act, 1882 – Section 106 – Tenant at sufferance – After expiry of lease, status of lessee, status of lessee becomes that of 'Tenant at sufferance' – 'Tenant at sufference' is one who comes into possession of land by lawful title, but who holds it by wrong after termination of term or expiry of lease by efflux of time – It does not create relationship of landlord and tenant – Therefore, even a quit notice is not necessary to be given and Section 106 TP Act, 1882 is not at all attracted. (Para 81 and 82)

6. The lease rights of above Nazul Plot was transferred by Sri Morean in favour of Maharani Janki Kunwar through Management of Court of Wards, Bettiah Estate, Bihar in 1925. Maharani Janki Kunwar was daughter of Rai Bahadur Sidh Narain Singh, Talukedar of Anapur Estate, Allahabad. She was married to Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh of Bettiah Raj in Bihar. Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh died issuless and intestate in 1893. His first widow Maharani Sheo Ratan Kunwar succeeded Bettiah Estate. Maharani Sheo Ratan Kunwar died issuless in 1896. Thereafter Estate was succeeded by second widow Maharani Janki Kunwar. In 1897, Court of Wards, Bihar, holding Maharani Janki Kunwar incompetent to manage Estate, appointed Manager to look after management of property of Bettiah Raj Estate. The properties in State of U.P. were being managed by Court of Wards, Uttar Pradesh through Collector, Gorakhpur. In 1959, Court of Ward Act was repealed in State of U.P. and Board of Revenue was authorized to manage and administer affairs related with Court of Wards.

7. Transfer of disputed land by Sri E.E.Morean to Maharani Janki Kunwar was approved by Collector, Allahabad and she was recorded as lease-holder of aforesaid Nazul Plot in Nazul Property Register. On the disputed land there was a bungalow constructed for residence of Maharani Janki Kunwar, who was residing therein till her death i.e. 27.11.1954. The term of lease expired on 31.12.1960.

8. Maharani Janki Kunwar was also lease-holder of another contiguous Nazul plot no.114, Civil Station, Allahabad and had one property i.e. 474, Mutthiganj, Allahabad. After death of Maharani Kunwar on 27.11.1954, a number of persons claimed property of 'Bettiah Estate' and filed petitions before Court of Wards, Bihar to get property released in their favour. State of Bihar also claimed aforesaid property through Escheat. Father of petitioner, Badreshwari Saran Singh, was minor in 1954. He was grandson and nearest blood relation of Maharani Janki Kunwar. Therefore, he also filed petition on 07.01.1955 claiming property of Maharani Janki Kunwar. The claim of parties over property of Bettiah Estate of Maharani Janki Kunwar was considered by Sri M.S.Rao, Additinoal Member, Board of Revenue and vide resolution dated 18.01.1955 he held that Court would retain charge of properties until dispute is determined by a competent Civil Court.

9. Petitioner claimed that he, being the great grand son and blood relation of Maharani Janki Kunwar, was entitled to get lease deed executed in his favour in respect of disputed Nazul land.

10. In the year 1960, when period of lease was going to expire, Manager of Court of Wards of Bettiah Estate requested Collector, Allahabad for renewal of lease and pursuant thereto a demand note was raised to deposit Rs.21,889/- as premium and Rs.202.11 towards yearly rent. Manager, Court of Wards deposited aforesaid amount by way of cheque to Nagar Mahapalika, Allahabad. It was encashed by Nagar Mahapalika, Allahabad on 31.03.1963. Administrator, Nagar Mahapalika, Allahabad vide letter dated 18.03.1967 sent proposal to Collector, Allahabad requesting execution of fresh lease of land in dispute. Collector forwarded the said proposal vide letter dated 07.04.1967 to Commissioner, Allahabad but it remained pending. Then, Collector, Allahabad, on 25.10.1993 again sent a detailed letter to State Government seeking advice in the matter relating to land in dispute. The said letter is on record as Annexure 5 to writ petition.

11. Petitioner filed an application in 2009 along with Treasury Challan dated 07.12.2009 to Collector, Allahabad requesting to convert disputed Nazul land into freehold in favour of petitioner. Thereafter petitioner filed Writ Petition No.3970 of 2010, seeking a mandamus commanding State of U.P. and others to convert Nazul plot No.112, Civil Station, Allahabad into freehold and accept petitioner's Treasury Challan dated 07.12.2009. He also prayed for quashing of nomination/consent letter dated 25.02.1999 issued by Manager, Court of Wards, Bettiah Estate in favour of M/s PUAENS Samiti (respondent-7 in that case) and application submitted by said Samiti for freehold of land in dispute. The writ petition was decided vide judgment dated 18.2.2010. This Court categorically held that petitioner has no right to make any application for free hold. The relevant observations in the judgment read as under :

*"We are satisfied that the petitioner has no right to make any application for free hold." (Emphasis added)

12. With regard to entitlement of M/s PUAEN Samiti for freehold right of disputed Nazul land, this Court did not adjudicate the same but observed that if said application is considered by District Magistrate, he shall also look into the question "whether there was any right of nomination in favour of M/s PUAENS Samiti", and "whether any nomination or any exercise of freehold could be made in respect of land in dispute". Subject to above observations, writ petition was dismissed.

13. Petitioner then filed Review Petition No.103754 of 2010, which was also rejected vide order dated 11.10.2012. It is said that the order rejecting review application has been passed without any logical reason. It is further said that in the backdrop of aforesaid judgment, respondents 1, 3 and 4 have not executed any lease deed in favour of petitioner.

14. Again petitioner made a representation dated 26.09.2015 and then filed Writ Petition No.59253 of 2017, which is pending. Relying on Supreme Court judgment in State of Bihar and others vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh and others, AIR 1983 SC 684, it is said that plea of escheat was not accepted by Supreme Court; property belonged to Maharani Janki Kunwar and under custody of Courts of Wards; petitioner being legal heir of Maharani Janki Kunwar is entitled to have claim over said property.

15. Further it is said that State of U.P. has filed Original Suit No.561 of 2001 in the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), seeking following reliefs:

"1. That through a declaration in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendant, it be declared that the plaintiff is owner of the properties of Betia Rajya detailed in Schedule 'A' & 'B' which earlier belonged to Late Maharaja Harinder Kishore Singh as it has devolved on it for want of any heir of Late Maharaja and his two widows.

2. That through decree of injunction in favour of the plaintiff against the Defendants, the defendants be restrained from disputing the plaintiff's title on the properties in suit and also from ejecting the plaintiff's forcibly over the suit properties.

3. That the cost of the suit be awarded to the plaintiff against the defendants.

4. That such other or further relief be awarded to the plaintiff against the defendants to which the plaintiff is found entitled." (Emphasis added)

16. Petitioner has pleaded that land in dispute, therefore, is in the custody of Board of Revenue. Claim of State of U.P. on the ownership of land in dispute is subjudice before Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Gorakhpur; hence, notice issued by respondent 3 for re-entry on land in dispute is illegal; it is also in violation of principles of natural justice as no opportunity of hearing has been given before issuing the aforesaid notice; Respondents have usurped authority of Board of Revenue, which has custody of property in dispute after repeal of Court of Wards Act, 1959 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1959") and notice is also in violation of judgment and direction given by Supreme Court in State of Bihar and others vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh and others (supra).

17. On behalf of respondents 3 and 4, a counter affidavit has been filed stating that disputed land having total area of 11433 Sq. meters was demised through an Indenture of Lease dated 05.12.1924 for a period of 50 years commencing from 01.01.2011 in favour of E.E.Morean by Secretary of State for India; the lease in question is governed by the provisions of Government Grants Act, 1895 (hereinafter referred to as "GG Act, 1895"); Lease expired on 31.12.1960; it has not been renewed thereafter; Lease deed contained provision of re-entry and in pursuance thereof State has exercised its right of resumption/re-entry; though GG Act, 1895 has been repealed by Repealing and Amending (Second) Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as "Repeal Act, 2017") notified on 05.01.2018 but by virtue of Section 4, right, title, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred have been saved; the disputed land has been sought to be resumed for the purpose of constructing a 'Multi Purpose Building' and for functioning of Industrial Tribunal/Labour Court, which is to be developed by Allahabad Development Authority renamed as Prayagraj Development Authority (Now titled and described as "PDA"); Petitioner's claim for freehold right has already been rejected by this Court vide judgment dated 18.02.2010 and the said judgment has attained finality, petitioner, therefore, had no right in respect of land in dispute; property in dispute of Bettiya Estate relates to property owned by Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh and his widows but property in question was never property of Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh or his widows; Nazul is owned by State, hence question of title over land in dispute of Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh does not arise; Petitioner has no right to claim execution of lease deed in his favour; respondents have rightly proceeded to resume land in dispute for public purposes and writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

18. Writ-2 has been filed by three petitioners namely Kunwar Udai Singh, Kunwar Vijay Singh and Kunwar Ajay Singh, all three sons of late Rajkumari Bina Singh alias Purnima Kunwar wife of Late Kunwar Narayan Singh. It has impleaded State of U.P. through Principal Secretary, Awas Avam Sahari Niyojan; District Magistate, Allahabad and Allahabad Development Authority (Now 'PDA') as respondents 1, 2 and 3, respectively. They have prayed for issue of a writ of certiorari for quashing notice dated 18.08.2018, which is impugned in Writ-1 also. They have further sought a declaration that property in dispute i.e. Nazul Plot No.112, Civil Station (Thornhill Road) also known as 7, Stretchy Road, Civil Lines, Allahabad, belongs to petitioners and not amenable to proceedings emanating from notice dated 18.8.2018 or any other action of respondents to re-enter and acquire the same under any law or administrative action.

19. The case set up by petitioners is that they are sons of late Kunwar Narayan Singh (Father) and (late) Rajkmari Bina Singh alias Purnima Kunwar (Mother). Sri Kunwar Narayan Singh died on 11.02.1975 and Rajkumari Bina Singh alias Purnima Kunwar died on 13.11.2012. Maharaha Harendra Kishore

Singh succeeded to throne of Bettiah Raj and died intestate on 26.03.1893. He left a testamentary instrument i.e. 'Will', dated 13.09.1892, in favour of Yuvraj Ramni Singh. Will dated 13.09.1892 was approved by King of England vide memorandum dated 25.05.1938. After death of Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh, Yuvraj Ramni Singh succeeded to the throne of Bettiah Raj. A letter was issued by Governor of Fort William, Bengal on 14.04.1937 addressed to Yuvraj Ramni Singh that order for his enthronement upon Rajgaddi of Bettiah Raj would be passed very soon and he shall be informed accordingly and till then he must have patience. Later on, Sri Rai Sahib J.O.N Shukla, Assistant Political Officer, Dehradun, U.P. sent a letter dated 07.10.1938 to Yuvraj Ramni Singh, remitting him a sum of Rs.1,55,000/- towards Annual State Grant for the year 1936-1937. Yuvraj Ramni Singh filed Original Suit No.428 of 1938 in the Court of Civil Judge, Allahabad, which was decreed vide judgment dated 19.03.1947 declaring him Successor of Late Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh and absolute owner of Bettiah Raj. He was also declared successor of all rights, privileges, honours, title and moveable and immoveable properties of Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh of Bettiah Raj. Appeal No.357 of 1947 filed by one Bhagwati Prasad Singh, who was defendant-11 in the said suit was dismissed by District Judge, Allahabad vide judgment and decree dated 30.07.1949. Some suits were filed in the State of Bihar and ultimately all these cases came to be decided by Supreme Court in State of Bihar & Ors. Vs. Radha Krishna Singh and others (Supra) wherein findings recorded by Court in para 265 read as under:

"(1) That the plaintiff has no doubt proved that he was a direct descendant of Gajraj Singh but that is of no assistance to him so long as it is not shown that the missing links the relationship of Gajraj Singh with Ramruch singh, and Ramruch Singh with Bansidhar Singh, and that Bansidhar Singh was one of the sons and that Bansidhar Singh was one of the sons of Hirday Narain Singh have been established.

(2) That the plaintiff has miserably failed to prove that Gajraj Singh was in any way connected with Bansidhar Singh, or that Ramruch Singh was the son of Bansidhar Singh and brother of Debi Singh.

(3) That Ex. J was admissible in evidence though of no assistance to the plaintiffs.

(4) That the documents, transactions, judgments, robkars, plaints, written statements, etc. produced by the plaintiffs are either inadmissible or irrelevant.

(5) That the oral evidence on the point of genealogy is utterly unreliable and unworthy of credence.

(6) That neither the documentary or the oral evidence adduced by the plaintiffs is sufficient to prove their case and hence the plaintiffs have failed to discharge the initial onus which lay on them to prove their case.

(7) That the majority judgment is wrong in law and on facts and has arrived at factually wrong and legally incorrect conclusions and, therefore, cannot be upheld.

(8) That we entirely agree with the judgment of M.M.Prasad, J. so far as the plaintiffs' case is concerned.

(9) The plaintiffs have not proved that they are the next and the nearest reversioners of the late Maharaja (Harendra Kishore Singh)" (Emphasis added)

20. With respect to claim of 'escheat' put forward by States of Bihar and U.P., in State of Bihar and others vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh and others (supra), Court said that for the properties under management of Court of Wards of State of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh, status quo will be maintained until any of the State is able to prove its plea of 'Escheat' in a properly constituted action.

21. Petitioners' mother being daughter of Yuvraj Ramni Singh, who died on 14.12.1950, was the only surviving legal representative but she was not aware of her rights and entitlement over assets of Bettiah Raj including disputed Nazul land. She filed an application dated 01.10.2003 before Board of Revenue claiming release and handing over possession of entire moveable and immoveable properties to her from management and possession of Court of Wards relating to Bettiah Raj. Board of Revenue did not take any action and in the meantime petitioner's mother died. Thereupon, petitioners' came to this Court in Writ Petition No.52820 of 2014 complaining that no decision has been taken on their application dated 01.10.2003. It was disposed of vide judgment dated 26.9.2014 directing Chairman, Board of Revenue, to take decision and pass a reasoned order. The order passed by this Court reads as under:

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

In substance, the petitioners appear to be aggrieved by non-disposal of their application dated 1.10.2003 made before the Chairman Board of Revenue, U.P. at Lucknow.

It is contended that since 2003, the application is pending before the Chairman Board of Revenue but no order has yet been passed thereon.

Having heard learned counsel for the parties, this writ petition is disposed of with the observation that the petitioner's application be decided in accordance with law by passing a reasoned speaking order by the Chairman Board of Revenue expeditiously

It may be clarified that I have neither addressed myself on the maintainability of the petitioner's application nor its merit and the Chairman Board of Revenue is free to pass an independent order in accordance with law."

22. Thereafter, petitioners filed an application under Section 13 of Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879 claiming release of possession of entire moveable and immoveable properties from management and possession of Court of Wards relating to Bettiah Raj. The said application has been registered as Case No.11 of 2018. Petitioner then received impugned notice dated 18.8.2018. Petitioners submitted reply to District Magistrate/Collector, Allahabad vide letter dated 29.09.2018 stating that disputed land and Nazul Land is part of assets of Bettiah Raj, which has been succeeded by petitioners and therefore notice is wholly illegal.

23. The notice has been challenged on the ground that it amounts to contempt of judgment in State of Bihar and others vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh and others (supra) passed by Supreme Court; property in question cannot be acquired by State except by due process of law and impugned notice amounts to violation of Article 300-A of Constitution; lease having expired in 1960, notice has been issued after 58 years without following procedure prescribed in law and in any case notice is barred by limitation; it is hit by doctrine of acquiescence and prescription; notice is unreasoned and case of petitioners for release is already pending before Board of Revenue hence it is to impede process of justice and there is an attempt to usurp property at the back of petitioners; it is contrary to statutory provisions and judicial precedence; Respondents have no right of re-entery/ resumption of disputed property; Property has ceased to be governed by provisions of GG Act, 1895; Impugned notice is devoid of legal statutory sanction; status of property in dispute has not been considered and it is otherwise illegal.

24. A counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of respondent-2 i.e. District Magistrate, Allahabad in which pleadings are basically the same as stated in counter affidavit filed in Writ-1. It is additionally stated that succession dispute with respect to Bettiah Estate has nothing to do with property in dispute since it is already owned by State of Uttar Pradesh and not being property of Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh, aforesaid dispute has nothing to do with the property in question.

25. A rejoinder affidavit has been filed by petitioners, wherein an application filed by Collector, Allahabad has been placed on record stating that Nazul Plot No.112 was property of Maharani Bettiah Raj; in the disputed land, Industrial Tribunal/Labour Court is working but since March, 1967, rent has been collected by Manager, Court of Ward, Bettiah Estate while Collector demanded rent from Tribunal, therefore, till the right of collection of rent is decided, rent should be deposited in Court. On that application filed by Industrial Tribunal, Court permitted deposit of rent in the Court. In State of Uttar Pradesh, right of management of Estate of Bettiah Raj is within the competence of District Administration on behalf of Board of Revenue, therefore, amount of rent, which has been deposited, be released to State and future rent by Industrial Tribunal should be paid to Administrator /Collector, Allahabad. Further, Secretary, Board of Revenue, Bihar (Patna) protested against deposit of rent in State Government Treasury vide letter dated 7.10.1974. Rest averments in rejoinder affidavit basically are reiteration of what has been said in writ petition hence we shall discuss the same in the process of discussion of issues raised in these petitions, wherever required.

26. Learned counsel for petitioner appearing in WP-1 contended that property right of Betttiah Estate has been ascertained by Supreme Court in State of Bihar and others vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh and others (supra); petitioner Lov Mandeshwari Saran Singh is great grandson of Maharani Janki Kunwar, thereafter after her death on 27.11.1954, he succeeded estate of Maharani Janki Kunwar, which included unexpired lease rights over land in dispute; there was some dispute over succession of estate of Maharani Janki Kunwar, therefore, estate of Maharani Janki Kunwar went into the hands of Court of Ward, Bihar for management and petitioner is entitled to transfer of leased land by Court of Ward, Bihar; when he submitted his application, Court of Ward held possession of land in dispute on behalf of legal heirs of Maharani Janki Kunwar; when it made application for renewal of lease, it was on behalf of such legal heirs; it is in furtherance thereof that petitioner applied for freehold in 2009 but this Court did not consider the matter properly and writ petition was dismissed holding that petitioner has no right for freehold of disputed land; claim of State Government with regard to ownership of land in dispute is subjudice in the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Gorakhpur in Original Suit No.561 of 2001 hence, notice issued to petitioner for re-entry/resumption of land is patently illegal; respondents have no right to resume land since dispute of ownership is still pending; impugned notice is also in violation of principles of natural justice and contrary to what has been said by Supreme Court in State of Bihar and others vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh and others (supra).

27. Petitioners of WP-2 claim themselves to be owner of land in dispute hence it is contended that State is not entitled to re-enter or resume the same. Here also reliance has been placed on Supreme Court judgment in State of Bihar and others vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh and others (supra). It is contended that notice in question amounts to contempt of judgment of Supreme court aforesaid; further notice in question amounts to acquisition of land by State without due process of law and notice is in violation of Article 300-A of Constitution; resumption is sought to be made after 58 years of expiry of lease without following procedure prescribed in law; it is barred by limitation, hit by doctrine of 'prescription' and 'acquiescence'; notice is unreasoned and dispute relating to release of land is pending before Board of Revenue, hence impugned notice would impede process of justice thereat; property in question ceased to be governed by provisions of GG Act, 1895 and moreso since it has been repealed therefore, State cannot take recourse of provisions of said Act.

28. Certain facts, which emerge from above pleadings we find it appropriate to place in a chronological manner hereinbelow for proper appreciation of dispute:

29. There is another set of facts relating to ownership of Bettiah Estate, Bihar and we find it appropriate to place the same in chronological manner hereat.

Date Events

… Maharani Janki Kunwar (daughter of Rai Bahadur Sidh Narain Singh, Talukdar of Anapur Estate) married to Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh of Bettiah Raj, Bihar.

1893 Maharaj Harendra Kishore Singh died issueless.

27.11.1954 Maharani Janki Kunwar died.

1959 Court of Ward Act repealed and thereupon Board of Revenue was authorized to manage and administer affairs related to Court of Ward.

30. There is third set of facts borne out from WP-2 and the same is also stated in a chronological manner as under:-

Date	Events
…	Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh succeeded to throne of Bettiah Raj, Bihar.
13.09.1892	Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh executed a Testamentary Instrument i.e. will in favour of Yuvraj Ramni Singh.
26.03.1893	Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh died, hence, in terms of will Yuvraj Ramni Singh succeeded Bettiah Raj Estate.
14.04.1937	Governor of Ford William sent a letter to Yuvraj Ramni Singh informing that throne of Bettiah Raj Estate would soon be assigned to him and till then he must have patience.

mother of petitioners of W.P. 2 succeeded to the entire estate.

11.02.1975 Kunwar Narayan Singh, petitioners' father died.

2001 Original Suit No.561 of 2001 has been filed by State of U.P. in the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Gorakhpur, seeking declaration that plaintiff is owner of property of Bettiah Raj, detailed in Schedule 'A' & 'B'.

23.11.2012 Raj Kumari Bina Singh alias Purnima Kunwar, petitioners' mother died.

31. Above facts make it clear that petitioners are trying to create confusion in property of Bettiah Estate/Bettiah Raj and Nazul Plot No.112, Civil Station, Allahabad, with which we are concerned. It is admitted by parties that plot no.112, which is disputed land in both these writ petitions, is 'Nazul land' and owned by State Government. It is also not in dispute that State Government has never transferred its ownership rights to erstwhile Ruler of Bettiah Raj and Bettiah Estate or anyone else. No material in this regard has been placed on record and it is also not the case of petitioners at all.

32. Here we are not concerned with title/ownership of Estate of Bettiah Raj as to whom the said ownership devolved after death of Maharaj Harendra Kishore Singh when he died in 1893 or thereafter. Before us, succession of ownership rights over estate of Bettiah Raj is not a subject matter of adjudication. Both the petitioners have heavily relied on Supreme Court judgment in State of Bihar and others vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh and others (supra) to contend that notice in question amounts to contempt of aforesaid judgment of Supreme Court but neither anything has been explained to us during course of argument nor anything has been shown as to how notice, which has been questioned in both writ petitions amounts to contempt of aforesaid judgment. We have also gone through entire judgment rendered by Constitution Bench (four Judges Bench) of Supreme Court dealing with set of appeals arising from Special Bench judgment of Patna High Court. From the aforesaid judgment, we find that Raja Hirday Narain Singh was admittedly owner of properties of Bettiah Estate. Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh was a direct descendant of Raja Hirday Narain Singh. After the death of Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh on 26.03.1893, claiming his impartible estate, a number of claims were set up by several persons. Property of Bettiah Estate comprised of huge moveable and immovable properties, such as land, houses, jewellery, etc. One suit i.e. T.S. No.3 of 1955 was filed at Varanasi by one Ram Bux Singh. Aforesaid suit, however, was withdrawn on 09.04.1956. Another suit was filed on 16.08.1955 in the Court of Sub-Judge, Patna and it was registered as T.S. No.44 of 1955. Plaintiff in that case was Suresh Nandan Singh. Third suit i.e. T.S. No.25 of 1958 was filed in the Court of Sub-Judge, Patna on 11.04.1958 by Raja Jugal Kishore Singh. Forth suit i.e. T.S. No.5 of 1961 was filed initially on 12.03.1959 in the Court of Sub-Judge, Chhapra, which was later transferred to the Court of Sub-Judge, Patna and re-numbered as T.S. 5 of 1961. Here

Principal Plaintiff was Radha Krishna Singh son of Bhagwati Prasad Singh. Matter reached Supreme Court as a result of decree passed in favour of Radha Krishna Singh by High Court while other two suits were dismissed.

33. Main contest before Supreme Court was between Radha Krishna Singh, State of Bihar and State of Uttar Pradesh, who claimed that Estate of Bettiah State vested in respective State Governments by 'escheat' after death of two widows of Maharana Harendra Kishore Singh who died issuless.

34. The entire history of Bettiah Raj has been given in the judgment of Supreme Court and, in our view, it is not necessary to go into that detail for the reason that in the present case we are not concerned with title/ownership/succession dispute of Estate of Bettiah Raj. Suffice it to mention that after death of second widow of Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh i.e. Maharani Janki Kunwar, management of Bettiah Estate went into hands of Court of Ward, Bihar and property in State of Uttar Pradesh came to be administered by Court of Ward, U.P. Succession and ownership dispute has to be settled in the light of respective litigation. Even in the suit filed by State of U.P. i.e. Original Suit No.561 of 2001, as we have noticed above, plaintiff i.e. State of U.P. has claimed ownership of property of Bettiah Raj which earlier belonged to late Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh, on the ground that it devolved upon State of U.P. for want of any heir of Late Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh and his two widows.

35. We are concerned here with Nazul Plot 112, which admittedly is owned and vested in State of U.P. and its title and ownership has never been transferred to anybody else at any point of time. Neither any such argument was advanced before us, nor there is any pleading, nor any material to support it.

36. Petitioners assume that transfer of lease rights of Nazul land is same thing as if title has been transferred. This assumption is wholly fallacious and lacks any legal sanctity.

37. In the present case, disputed Nazul land was let out through 50 years' Indenture of Lease executed by Secretary of State of India in Council, in favour of Enite Edward Morean w.e.f. 01.01.1911. In 1925, lease rights of Nazul Plot was transferred by Enite Edward Morean to Maharani Janki Kunwar through Management of Court of Ward, Bettiah Estate, Bihar. Maharani Janki Kunwar died on 27.11.1954 issuless. Term of lease also expired on 31.12.1960. Petitioners of both the writ petitions claiming rights in property of Maharani Janki Kunwar have undergone various litigation but Nazul plot was not property of Maharani Janki Kunwar at all. Therefore, question of any interest acquired by petitioners in Nazul land does not arise at all.

38. The very basic assumption on the part of petitioners in this regard is patently fallacious, illegal and erroneous in law.

39. At this stage, it would be appropriate for this Court to examine and made it clear as to what is 'Nazul'.

40. Every land owned by State Government is not termed as 'Nazul' and therefore it has become necessary to understand, what is 'Nazul'.

41. State Government may own land by having acquired and vested in various ways, which includes vesting of land in the capacity of a Sovereign body and having right of bona vacantia. Property may also be acquired and owned by State by way of acquisition under the Statute relating to acquisition of land or by purchase through negotiation or gift by an individual or in similar other manners. All such land, which is owned and vested in the State Government results in making State, owner of such land, but in legal parlance, the term "Nazul" is not applicable to all such land.

42. It is only such land which is owned and vested in the State on account of its capacity of Sovereign, and application of right of bona vacantia, which is covered by the term 'Nazul', as the term is known for the last more than one and half century.

43. In Legal Glossary 1992, fifth edition, published by Legal Department of Government of India, at page 589, meaning of the term 'Nazul' has been given as 'Rajbhoomi, i.e., Government land'.

44. Nazul is an Arabic word. It refers to a land annexed to Crown. During British Regime, immoveable property of individuals, Zamindars, Nawabs and Rajas when confiscated for one or the other reason, it was termed as 'Nazul property'. The reason being that neither it was acquired nor purchased after making payment. In old record, when such land was referred in Urdu, this kind of land was shown as 'Jaidad Munzabta'.

45. For dealing with such property, under the authority of Lt. Governor of North Western Provinces, two orders were issued in October, 1846 and October, 1848. Therein, after the words "Nazul property", its english meaning was given as 'Escheats to the Government'. Sadar Board of Revenue on May 20, 1845 issued a circular order in reference to "Nazul land" and in para 2 thereof it mentioned, "The Government is the proprietor of those land and no valid title to them can be derived but from the Government". Nazul land was also termed as "Confiscated Estate". Under Circular dated July 13, 1859, issued by Government of North Western Provinces, every Commissioner was obliged to keep a final confiscation statement of each District and lay it before Government for orders.

46. Right of King to take property by 'escheat' or as 'bona vacantia' was recognized by common law of England. Escheat of property was Lord's right of re-entry on real property held by a tenant, dying intestate, without lawful heirs. It was an incident of Feudal Tenure and based on the want of a tenant to perform Feudal services. On the tenant dying intestate without leaving any lawful heirs, his estate came to an end and Lord, by his own right and not by way of succession or inheritance from the tenant, re-entered real property as owner. In most cases, land escheated to Crown as the 'Lord Paramount', in view of gradual elimination of Intermediate or Mesne lords since 1290 AD. Crown takes as 'bona vacantia' goods in which no one else can claim property. In Dyke v. Walford 5 Moore PC 434= 496-13 ER 557 (580) it was said 'it is the right of the Crown to bona vacantia to property which has no other Owner'. Right of the Crown to take as "bona vacantia" extends to personal property of every kind. The escheat of real property of an intestate dying without heirs was abolished in 1925 and Crown thereafter could not take such property as bona vacantia. The principle of acquisition of property by escheat, i.e., right of Government to take on property by 'escheat' or 'bona vacantia' for want of a rightful owner was enforced in Indian territory during the period of East India Company by virtue of Statute 16 and 17 Victoria, C. 95, section 27.

47. We may recollect, having gone through history, that prior to 1857, several Estates were taken over by British Company i.e. East India Company by way of annexation. Doctrine of lapse applied in Jhansi was another kind of above mentioned two principles.

48. The above provisions had continued by virtue of section 54 of Government of India Act, 1858, section 20(3)(iii) of Government of India Act, 1915 and section 174 of Government of India Act, 1935. After enactment of Constitution of independent India, Article 296 now continues above provision and says :

'Subject as hereinafter provided, any property in the territory of India which*, if this Constitution had not come into operation,* would have accrued to His Majesty or, as the case may be, to the Ruler of an Indian State by escheat or lapse, or as bona vacantia for want of a rightful owner, shall if it is property situate in a State, vest in such State*, and shall, in* any other case, vest in the Union.' (Emphasis added)

49. Article 296, therefore, has retained power of State to get ownership of such land, in respect whereof principle of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' would have been applicable prior to enforcement of Constitution of India. The above power continued to apply after enactment of Constitution with the only modification that if such land is situate within the territory of State Government, it will vest in State and in other cases, it will vest in Union of India. Vesting of land and giving ownership to State Government or Union of India under Article 296 is clearly in respect of a land, which will come to it by way of 'escheat', 'lapse' or 'bona vacantia' and not by way of acquisition of land under some Statute or purchase etc.

50. In Pierce Leslie and Co. Ltd. Vs. Miss Violet Ouchterlony Wapsnare, AIR 1969 SC 843 Court has considered the above principles in the context of 'Sovereign India' as stands under Constitution after independence, and, has observed :

"....in this country the Government takes by escheat immoveable as well as moveable property for want of an heir or successor. In this country escheat is not based on artificial rules of common law and is not an incident of feudal tenure. It is an incident of sovereignty and rests on the principle of ultimate ownership by the State of all property within its jurisdiction". (Emphasis added)

51. Court also placed reliance on Collector of Masulipatam v. C. Vencata Narainapah 8 MIA 500, 525; Ranee Sonet Kowar v. Mirza Himmut Bahadoor (2) LR 3 IA 92, 101, Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. State of Bombay [1958] SCR 1122, 1146, Superintendent and, Legal Remembrancer v. Corporation of Calcutta [1967] 2 SCR 170, 204.

52. Judicial Committee in Cook v. Sprigg (1899) AC 572 while discussing, 'what is an act of State', observed :

"The taking possession by Her Majesty, whether by cession or by any other means by which sovereignty can be acquired, was an act of State."
(Emphasis added)

53. This decision has been followed in Raja Rajinder Chand v. Mst. Sukhi, AIR 1957 SC 286.

54. In Nayak Vajesingji Joravarsingji v. Secretary of State for India in Council AIR 1924 PC 216, Lord Dunedin said :

"When a territory is acquired by a sovereign State for the first time, that is an act of State. It matters not how the acquisition has been brought about. It may be by conquest, it may be by cession following on treaty, it may be by occupation of territory hitherto unoccupied by a recognised ruler. In all cases the result is the same. Any inhabitant of the territory can make good in the municipal courts established by the new sovereign only such rights as that sovereign has, through his officers, recognised. Such rights as he had under the rule of predecessors avail him nothing." (Emphasis added)

55. In Dalmia Dadri Cement Co. Ltd. v. CIT [1958] 34 ITR 514 (SC) : AIR 1958 SC 816, Court said (page 523 of 34 ITR) :

"The expression 'act of State' is, it is scarcely necessary to say, not limited to hostile action between rulers resulting in the occupation of territories. It includes all acquisitions of territory by a sovereign State for the first time, whether it be by conquest or cession."
(Emphasis added)

56. In Promod Chandra Deb v. State of Orissa AIR 1962 SC 1288, Court said, 'Act of State' is the taking over of sovereign powers by a State in respect of territory which was not till then a part of its territory, either by conquest, treaty or cession, or otherwise.

57. To the same effect was the view taken by a Constitution Bench in Amarsarjit Singh v. State of Punjab AIR 1962 SC 1305, where in para 12, Court said:

"It is settled law that conquest is not the only mode by which one State can acquire sovereignty over the territories belonging to another State, and that the same result can be achieved in any other mode which has the effect of establishing its sovereignty."
(Emphasis added)

58. In Thakur Amar Singhji v. State of Rajasthan AIR 1955 SC 504, in para 40, Court said :

"The status of a person must be either that of a sovereign or a subject. There is no tedium quid. The law does not recognise an intermediate status of a person being partly a sovereign and partly a subject and when once it is admitted that the Bhomicharas had acknowledged the sovereignty of Jodhpur their status can only be that of a subject. A subject might occupy an exalted position and enjoy special privileges, but he is none the less a subject..."

(Emphasis added)

59. In State of Rajasthan vs. Sajjanlal Panjawat AIR 1975 SC 706 it was held that Rulers of the erstwhile Indian States exercised sovereign powers, legislative, executive and judicial. Their firmans were laws which could not have been challenged prior to the Constitution. Court relied on earlier decisions in Director of Endowments, Govt. of Hyderabad vs. Akram Ali, AIR 1956 SC 60, and Sarwarlal vs. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1960 SC 862.

60. In Promod Chandra Deb vs. State of Orissa AIR 1962 SC 1288 "act of the State" was explained in the following words :

'an "act of State" may be the taking over of sovereign powers either by conquest or by treaty or by cession or otherwise. It may have happened on a particular date by a public declaration or proclamation, or it may have been the result of a historical process spread over many years, and sovereign powers including the right to legislate in that territory and to administer it may be acquired without the territory itself merging in the new State.'

61. This decision has been followed later in Biswambhar Singh vs. State of Orissa 1964 (1) SCJ 364, wherein Court said:

*"16. Thus, a territory acquired by a sovereign State is an Act of State but the land comprising territory does not become the land owned by State. The land owned by State may come to it in various ways, like confiscation, purchase, escheat or bona vacantia, gift, etc. In such a case the ownership vests in State, like any other individual and State is free to deal with the same in a manner like any other owner may do so.

17. Thus 'Nazul' is a land vested in State for any reason whatsoever that is cession or escheat or bona vacantia, for want of rightful owner or for any other reasons and once land belong to State, it will be difficult to assume that State would acquire its own land. It is per se impermissible to acquire such land by forcible acquisition under Act, 1894, since there is no question of any transfer of ownership from one person to another but here State already own it, hence there is no question of any acquisition."

62. Thus the land in question which is admittedly 'Nazul', belonged to the category as discussed above i.e. it came to be vested and owned by State in its capacity of Sovereign and right of bona vacantia. When acquisition is made under the provisions of a Statute, purpose of acquisition is already known and State pay its price but when land is owned by State, which is Nazul, objective of use of such land is not predetermined but it can be utilized by State for larger public welfare and its benefit, as necessitated from time to time. In other words 'Nazul' land forms the assets owned by State in trust for the people in general who are entitled for its user in the most fair and beneficial manner for their benefit. State cannot be allowed to distribute such largesse by pick and choose manner or to some selected groups etc.

63. Thus, land in question remained with State Government being its owner.

Lease right transferred to Maharani Janki Kunwar ceased to continue with Lessee after her death that too issueless, and in any case after expiry of term of lease on 31.12.1960.

64. The next submission that State cannot acquire land without acquisition proceeding is also misconceived, inasmuch as, there could not have been any occasion of acquisition of land vested in State, since State cannot acquire land already owned by it or vested in it. Law in this regard is well settled.

65. In Secretary of State Vs. Narain Khanna AIR 1942 Privy Council 35, it was held:

"where Government acquires any property consisting of land and buildings, and where land was the subject matter of Government grant, subject to power of resumption by Government at any time on giving one month's notice, then compensation was payable only in respect of such buildings as may have been authorized to be erected and not in respect of land." (Emphasis added)

66. A Division Bench of Judicial Commissioner in Md. Wajeeh Mirza vs. Secretary of State for India in Council, AIR 1921 Oudh 31, said as under:

"when Government itself claims to be owner of the land, there can be no question of its acquisition and the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act cannot be applicable. This opinion expressed by Judicial Commissioner has been approved in Sharda Devi vs. State of Bihar and another (supra). Court reiterate in Sharda Devi vs. State of Bihar and another (supra) that land or an interest in land pre-owned by State cannot be subject-matter of acquisition by State. If the land in question is Government land, there is no question of initiating proceedings of acquisition at all. Government would not acquire the land, which already vests in it."

(Emphasis added)

67. In Sharda Devi Vs. State of Bihar and another, 2003 (3) SCC 128, Court has said as under:

"the State does not acquire its own land for it is futile to exercise the power of eminent domain for acquiring rights in the land, which had already vests in the State. It would be absurdity to comprehend the provisions of Land Acquisition Act being applicable to such land wherein ownership or the entirety of rights already vests in State. In other words, land owned by State on which there are no private rights or encumbrances is beyond the preview of provisions of Land Acquisition Act."

(Emphasis added)

68. In Collector of Bombay Vs. Nusserwanji Rattanji Mistri (1996) 10 SCC 150, it was held:

"under the provision of Land Acquisition Act, Government acquires the sum total of all private interests subsisting in them. If Government has itself an interest in land, it has only to acquire other interest outstanding thereof so that it might be in a position to pass it on absolutely for public user."

(Emphasis added)

69. In State of U.P. and another Vs. Lalji Tandon (dead) through Legal Representatives (2004) 1 SCC 1 referring to the decision in Sharda Devi

vs. State of Bihar (supra), court said as under:

"the notification and declaration under Sections 4 and 6 of the Land Acquisition Act for acquisition of the land i.e. the site below the bungalow are meaningless. It would have been different if the State would have proposed the acquisition of lease hold rights and/or the superstructure standing thereon, as the case may. But that has not been done."

70. Further Claim of petitioner in WP-1 about conversion of lease into freehold under Government policy is thoroughly misconceived, inasmuch as, neither petitioners are Lessees nor otherwise entitled to claim freehold under any of the relevant Government Orders.

71. We could have gone in further detail on this aspect but this issue has already been considered by this Court while dismissing earlier petition of petitioner of WP-1 i.e. Writ Petition No.3970 of 2010 vide judgment dated 18.02.2010 observing that petitioner has no right to make any application for freehold and that is why we express our full agreement therewith and reiterate the same. The same reasoning applies to petitioners of WP-2 also.

72. In the circumstances, petitioners have no claim whatsoever over land in dispute and hence, they have no occasion to challenge impugned notice also for want of any right, interest etc. in the property in dispute.

73. Further, petitioners of WP-2 have claimed their right through alleged succession to Bettiah Raj by Yuvraj Ramni Singh pursuant to testamentary instrument i.e. Will dated 13.09.1892. Original Suit No. 428 of 1938 filed by Yuvraj Ramni Singh was decreed by Civil Judge, Allahabad, holding him successor of Late Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh and absolute owner of Bettiah Raj. Since land in dispute was not part of Estate of Bettiah Raj and it was never owned by Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh, therefore, aforesaid suit and decree passed by Civil Court in favour of Yuvraj Ramni Singh will have no concern or effect with respect to land in dispute. Their claim is also wholly devoid of any merit.

74. Now coming to right of State for resumption and re-entry, petitioners are only stranger so far as disputed land is concerned. Lease right has already expired on 31.12.1960. Lease has not been granted to anyone else. Petitioners have no claim for conversion into freehold. Hence right of State to get its own land is not obstructed in any manner.

75. Moreover, rights of State to resume its Nazul land is settled in Azim Ahmad Kazmi and others vs. State of U.P. and Another (2012) 7 SCC 278 as also by a Division Bench of this Court in Writ Petition No. 62588 of 2010 (M/s Madhu Colonizers Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of U.P. and others) decided on 2.4.2013 that State has unrestricted power of re-entry to its own property and, that too, for public purpose and the above authorities are applicable to these petitions.

76. Both the writ petitions therefore are wholly misconceived. Petitioners have no claim over property in dispute, therefore other issues raised by petitioner with regard to Repeal Act, 2017 etc. are not relevant and only academic. However, even in respect of effect of Repeal Act, 207, we do not find any merit in the submission advanced on behalf of petitioners.

77. It is contended that Section 4 of Repeal Act, 2017 only protects right, title, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred by State of U.P. under GG Act, 1895 to resume Nazul land according to resumption clause of lease-deed prior to repeal of GG Act, 1895 and nothing more than that. Since no right, title, obligation or liability was acquired or incurred or accrued to State Government by resorting to resumption under resumption clause before repeal of GG Act, 1895, resumption sought with reference to GG Act, 1895 after its repeal is wholly illegal.

78. Meaning of words 'accrue', 'acquired' and 'incurred' have been given in various paragraphs of writ petitions but we find that basic aspect has been ignored and missed by petitioners Terms of lease as soon as lease was executed caused in creating rights, obligations, duties and interest of both the parties i.e. Lessor and Lessee in accordance with terms and conditions of lease. Relevant clause says that it shall be lawful for the Secretary of State notwithstanding waiver of any previous cause or right of re-entry to enter into and upon said demised premises whereupon the same shall remain to the use of and vested in Secretary of State and said demise shall absolutely determine out. The Lessee, who agreed with said terms incurred duty to allow such re-entry to State whenever Government do exercises its right of re-entry and here lies the right of State to re-enter the land, which was required by State. By virtue of execution of lease deed and accepting the same, Lessee incurred liability not to obstruct the said right of State i.e. Lessor.

79. Petitioners, in our view, have misconstrued the provisions of Section 4 vis-a-vis terms of lease and therefore, entire argument in this respect is devoid of merit hence rejected.

80. The other issues have been raised with respect to resumption being barred by limitation, doctrine of 'prescription', 'acquiescence' and non speaking notice as also violative of Article 300-A of Constitution. However, counsel for petitioners has not placed anything to show as to how above argument are substantiated. It could not be disputed that petitioners are not claiming any right founded on adverse possession and therefore, doctrine of 'prescription' has no application. No limitation could be shown in the case in hand, which is applicable. The property belongs to State, therefore, question that Article 300-A of Constitution is violated also does not arise.

81. Record shows that petitioners are not in possession over the land is dispute and an Industrial Tribunal is running over it. Moreover, even possession of lessee after determination of lease or expiry of period of lease becomes that of "Tenant at sufferance", therefore, even a quit notice is not necessary to be given and Section 106 of TP Act, 1882 is not at all attracted. Relying on earlier decision in R.V. Bhupal Prasad vs. State of A.P. (1995) 5 SCC 698 in a recent decision in Sevoke Properties Ltd. vs. West Bengal State Electricity Distribution Company Ltd. AIR 2019 SC 2664, Court held that once it is admitted by lessee that term of lease has expired, lease stood determined by efflux of time and in such case, a quit notice under Section 106 is not required to be given. Court has said as under :

"Once the lease stood determined by efflux of time, there was no necessity for a notice of termination Under Section 106."

(Emphasis added)

82. In the above authority, Court held that after expiry of period of lease, status of Lessee becomes that of 'Tenant at sufferance'. 'Tenant at sufference' is one who comes into possession of land by lawful title, but who holds it by wrong after termination of term or expiry of lease by efflux of time. The tenant at sufferance is one who wrongfully continues in possession after extinction of a lawful title. There is little difference between him and a trespasser. Quoting from Mulla's Transfer of Property Act (7th Edn.) at page 633, Court observed that tenancy at sufferance is merely a fiction to avoid continuance in possession operating as a trespass. It has been described as the least and lowest interest which can subsist in reality. It, therefore, cannot be created by contract and arises only by implication of law when a person who has been in possession under a lawful title continues in possession after that title has been determined, without consent of person entitled. A "tenancy at sufferance" does not create relationship of landlord and tenant. Court further quoted from page 769 of Mulla's transfer of Property Act (7th Edition), that act of holding over after expiration of term does not necessarily create a tenancy of any kind. If lessee remains in possession after determination of term, the common law Rule is that he is a tenant at sufferance.

83. One more interesting fact we may notice at this stage. Petitioners of WP-2 are staking their claim over land in dispute on the basis of alleged Will executed by Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh on 13.09.1892 and he died on 26.03.1893. On that date, land in dispute was neither part of Bettiah Raj estate nor even lease was executed in favour of either Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh or Maharani Janki Kunwar. As per record, lease of land in dispute was executed on 01.01.1894 in favour of M/s Agra Savings Bank Ltd. for a period of 17 years, which expired on 31.12.1910. Thereafter, renewed lease deed was executed on 05.12.1924 with effect from 01.01.1911 in favour of Enite Edward Morean. In 1925, only lease rights were transferred by Enite Edward Morean in favour of Maharani Janki Kunwar. Thus, question of aforesaid lease land becaming part of Bettiah Estate, which could have been subject matter of Will dated 13.09.1892 executed by Maharaja Harendra Kishore Singh, would not arise and the very foundation and basis of petitioners of WP-2 falls on the ground and renders their entire claim wholly fallacious and misconceived. This reason alone is sufficient to reject their claim.

84. The last question up for consideration is "whether re-entry/resumption of land by Lessor i.e. State Government is valid?"

85. So far as validity of resumption of land in 'public purpose', it could not be disputed that land has been sought to be required by State for 'public purpose'. Allahabad City has been selected for development as a Smart City and respondents have pleaded that demand of lot of land has been made by various Government departments since various Offices, Workshops, Parks, Parking places etc. have to be constructed. The land in dispute has been found suitable for erection of building for 'Industrial Tribunal cum Labour Court' and construction of 'Multipurpose Building' by A.D.A. and development whereof is public purpose. In fact, on this aspect, no substantial argument has been made and in our view, resumption of land by State is for 'public purpose'.

86. In view of above discussion, we do not find any merit in both the petitions. The writ petitions are accordingly dismissed.

87. No costs.

C.S.C., Sri Girish Kumar Srivastava, Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta

A. Civil Law - Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972 – Section 7(7) – Ist Proviso – Limitation for filing Appeal – Extension of time – It is only the case where the appeal has been filed beyond the prescribed time period of 60 days from the date of receipt of the order passed under subsection (4), the first proviso to sub section (7) would be required to be invoked by filing an application for condonation of delay – Appellate Authority would thereafter be required to exercise its discretion in the matter and in case it records its satisfaction that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the appeal within the prescribed period of 60 days, the said period may be extended by a further period of 60 days. (Para 12)

Held – In this view of the matter, the order dated 05/06.08.2019 having been passed by the Appellate Authority without consideration of the facts relevant for deciding the issue of limitation the same cannot be legally sustained and is thus set aside.

Writ Petition allowed. (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava,J.)

1. Heard Sri Amrish Sahai, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Girish Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the first and second respondents and Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel appearing for the third respondent.

2. Counsel for the petitioner has confined his prayer to the prayer clause no.1 in terms of which a challenge has been raised to the order dated 05/06.08.2019 passed by the Appellate Authority under the Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972/Deputy Chief Labour Commissioner (Central), Kanpur in File No.K-36(89)2019/C.1., whereby the appeal under Section 7(7) of the Payment of Gratuity Act, 19721 has been rejected as being barred by limitation.

3. Contention of the counsel for the petitioner is that as per the terms of Section 7(7) of the P.G. Act, 1972 the limitation prescribed for filing an appeal is 60 days from the date of receipt of the order under challenge, which is extendable by a further period of 60 days upon sufficient cause being shown.

4. It is submitted that in the instant case the application filed by the third respondent for a direction for payment of gratuity amount, registered as Case No.JHS-36(23)/2018, was allowed by the Controlling Authority under the P.G. Act, 1972/Assistant Labour Commissioner (Central), Jhansi by means of an order dated 18.03.2019, and the said order was received by the petitioner on 09.04.2019.

5. It is further submitted that the order dated 18.03.2019 was modified in terms of a corrigendum bearing the same date i.e. 18.03.2019 and this corrigendum was received by the petitioner on 16.04.2019. Accordingly, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the appeal under Section 7(7) of the P.G. Act, 1972 which had been preferred before the Appellate Authority on 13.06.2019 was within the period of limitation of 60 days as provided for.

6. It is contended that the appeal having been filed within the prescribed period of limitation there was no occasion for filing of an application seeking condonation of delay and in this view of matter the order passed by the Appellate Authority dismissing the appeal as being barred by limitation for the reason of non-filing of the application for condonation of delay, cannot be sustained.

7. Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel for the third respondent raises a dispute with regard to the date of receipt of the corrigendum order dated 18.03.2019 and submits that there is no material on record to demonstrate that the appeal was filed within a period of 60 days from the date of receipt of the corrigendum order.

8. Be that as it may, the order passed in appeal does not show any consideration of the facts relevant for deciding the issue with regard to limitation so as to sustain the conclusion drawn by the Appellate Authority.

9. In this regard it would be apposite to refer to the provisions contained under sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 with regard to filing of an appeal against an order passed under sub-section (4) of Section 7. For ease of reference sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 is being extracted below:-

"7. Determination of the amount of Gratuity.-- x x x x x

(7) Any person aggrieved by an order under sub-section (4), may, within sixty days from the date of the receipt of the order, prefer an appeal to the appropriate Government or such other authority as may be specified by the appropriate Government in this behalf :

Provided that the appropriate Government or the appellate authority, as the case may be, may if it is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the appeal within the said period of sixty days, extend the said period by a further period of sixty days.

Provided further that no appeal by an employer shall be admitted unless at the time of preferring the appeal, the appellant either produces a certificate of the controlling authority to the effect that the appellant has deposited with him an amount equal to the amount of gratuity required to be deposited under sub-section (4), or deposits with the appellate authority such amount."

10. A plain reading of the aforementioned provision indicates that any person aggrieved by an order under sub-section (4) of Section 7, may, within 60 days from the date of receipt of the order, prefer an appeal to the appropriate Government or such other Authority as may be specified by the appropriate Government in this behalf. In terms of the first proviso the appropriate Government or the Appellate Authority, as the case may be, may if it is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the appeal within the said period of 60 days, extend the said period by a further period of 60 days.

11. It is thus seen that as per terms of sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 the prescribed limitation for filing an appeal against an order order under sub-section (4), is 60 days from the date of receipt of the order, and in a case where the appeal is preferred within the aforesaid prescribed time period the same would be held to be within limitation and there would be no requirement for seeking extension of the time period.

12. It is only the case where the appeal has been filed beyond the prescribed time period of 60 days from the date of receipt of the order passed under sub-section (4), that the first proviso to sub-section (7) would be required to be invoked by filing an application for condonation of delay, and the Appellate Authority would thereafter be required to exercise its discretion in the matter and in case it records its satisfaction that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the appeal within the prescribed period of 60 days, the said period may be extended by a further period of 60 days.

13. In this view of the matter, the order dated 05/06.08.2019 having been passed by the Appellate Authority without consideration of the facts relevant for deciding the issue of limitation the same cannot be legally sustained and is thus set aside.

14. The matter is remitted back to the Appellate Authority for a fresh decision in the light of the observations made above.

15. It would be open to parties to appear before the Appellate Authority and make their submissions on the point of limitation. The appeal, if found by the Appellate Authority to be within prescribed period of limitation, as provided under sub-section (7) of Section 7 of the P.G. Act, 1972 may be heard and decided on its merits thereafter.

16. It is made clear that this Court has not expressed itself on the rival contentions sought to be raised by the parties, either on the point of limitation or on merits.

17. The writ petition is allowed to the extent indicated above.

A. Constitution of India – Article 48A – Forest Conservation Act, 1980 – Section 2 – Environment protection – Forest conservation – Statutory interdict enshrined in Section 2 represents a momentous measure of 'we the people' to preserve and protect forests and the environment. This singular provision finally gave effect to the constitutional obligation placed upon the State by virtue of Article 48A of the Constitution – Decision of Apex Court in T.N. Godavarman Thirumulpad's case that the Act, 1980 is enacted with a view to check further deforestation which ultimately results in ecological imbalance may not be ignored. (Para 17 & 18)

B. Review – Maintainability – Absence of statutory provision – Formulation of adjudication process by Apex Court – Special procedure was formulated and evolved by the Supreme Court and put in place by virtue of its decisions of Banwasi Sewa Ashram's case. It was this unique and distinctive process of adjudication as evolved therein that was mandated to be adhered to by the adjudicating authorities while processing claims laid under the 1927 Act. It was this exceptional process of adjudication in terms of which all decisions taken by the FSO were liable to be placed before the Additional District Judge for scrutiny, appraisal and confirmation. The orders passed in Banwasi Sewa Ashram thus constituted the source and foundation for the authority which was to be exercised by the FSO's and Additional District Judges. (Para 20 & 21)

C. Civil Law - Indian Forest Act, 1927 – Section 4 & 5 – Notification dated 04.07.1970 issued u/s 4 of Act, 1927 – On the date when the notification came to be promulgated, the prohibition and bar as engrafted in Section 5 of the 1927 Act came to operate, which clearly mandates that no rights shall be acquired in or over the land comprised in such notification except by succession or under a grant of contract in writing made in that behalf by the Government – Consequently after 04.07.1970 no rights could have been acquired on land which came to be included in the notification u/s 4. (Para 28)

Held – While the private respondent asserts to have been in possession of the land prior to its vesting under the provisions of 1950 Act, no material or evidence was either alluded to or brought to the attention of the Court. That material also does not appear to have been placed for the consideration of either the FSO or the Additional District Judge. This, the Court notes, since no such material or evidence was ever noticed by either the Forest Settlement Officer or the Additional District Judge in the orders which were framed. It has also come on the record that the initial order made by the FSO on 30 August 1986 was ultimately recalled by that authority on 25 February 1992. The respondent never assailed that order in any proceedings.

Reverting to the individual facts, the Court notes that the Additional District Judge on both occasions has clearly failed to bear in mind that the initial order passed by the FSO 30 August 1986 had itself been recalled by that authority subsequently. That subsequent order of 25 February 1992 has neither been alluded to nor considered. The respondent did not lead any other evidence that may have established that he had been in cultivatory possession from prior to 4 July 1970 when the notification under Section 4 came to be issued or from before 15/16 May 1950 being the order of the State Government transferring Dudhi Forest to the Forest Department. The Additional District Judge rests his decision solely on the spot inspection report which formed the basis of the original order which was ultimately recalled. The Additional District Judge also does not rest his decision on any other independent or cogent evidence which may have established that the factual position as found by the FSO was incorrect. Viewed in that backdrop, it is manifest that the prayer for review was clearly liable to be granted.

D. Civil Law - U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reform Act, 1950 – Section 131-A – Scope – Overriding Effect – In its barest form, Section 131A seeks to protect the possession of persons on land which may vest in a Gaon Sabha by virtue of Section 117 of that Act – However, provision of Section 131A is neither stated to have overriding effect over the other parts of the 1950 Act nor it is worded to be in supersession of other statutes that may operate on the subject of forests. As is manifest, that provision is not worded so as to apply notwithstanding a prohibition or restraint contained in any other enactment which touches the field of forests and rights that may accrue on land on which forests may exist. (Para 23)

E. Meaning of word 'Forest' – Expression forest to be understood not just as defined in dictionaries but also to any land which answered the description of forest as generally understood as also land recorded as forest irrespective of ownership. The rights consequently claimed by virtue of Section 131A cannot be recognised as flowing unhindered by the restrictions imposed in that decision. (Para 26)

F. Interpretation of statute – Harmonious construction – Section 131A of Act, 1950 as is evident does not override or eclipse the prohibition put in place by Section 5 of Act, 1927 – In order to accord a harmonious construction upon Section 131A of the 1950 Act bearing in mind Section 5 of the 1927 Act, it must be interpreted to extend at best to land held in cultivatory possession from prior to the issuance of the notification under Section 4 – Assertion of a right under Section 131A and a recognition thereof in law would also have to be tested on the anvil of Section 2 of the 1980 and the orders of the Supreme Court referred to above – The extent of protection which can be recognised cannot be viewed in the abstract and in any case cannot be adjudged without bearing in mind the provisions made in the 1927 and the 1980 Acts. (Para 27)

2. This petition challenges the orders dated 30 January 1993 and 24 May 1994 passed by the Additional District Judge. The challenge itself arises in the backdrop of proceedings taken in District Sonbhadra pursuant to the procedure as evolved and laid in place by the Supreme Court in Banwasi Sewa Ashram Vs.

State of U.P. And Others1. The challenge arises in the context of the proposal of the State to constitute a reserved forest in accordance with the provisions made in the Indian Forest Act, 19272. On the record the Court finds an order dated 15/16 May 1950, issued by the Deputy Secretary in the Government of Uttar Pradesh and addressed to the Secretary, Board of Revenue conveying to him the sanction of the Governor to the transfer of the "Dudhi Forest" from the control and administration of the Revenue Department to the Department of Forest. The document stands testimony to the fact that the Dudhi Forest was under the control and administration of the State Government from prior to the date of this communication. On 4 July 1970, the State proceeded to issue a notification under Section 4 of the 1927 Act embodying its intent to constitute a reserved forest in the district. The land over which the respondent claims interest admittedly forms part of this notification. It appears that asserting that he had been in continuance possession of this land and was also cultivating the same, he approached the Forest Settlement Officer for a declaration in respect of his status and title which was granted on 30 August 1986. In terms of this order, the Forest Settlement Officer is stated to have recognized the respondent to be a bhumidhar in possession over the land in question.

3. It is pertinent to note that in the meanwhile the Supreme Court received a letter on or about 1983 which was treated as a petition under Article 32 of the Constitution. The grievance which was raised in that letter was in respect of the rights of tribals and traditional forest dwellers who were deprived of their status and rights of possession and cultivation over lands which had come to be included in notifications issued under Section 4 of the 1927 Act by the State Government. The Supreme Court was apprised that tribals and other individuals in possession of the land had been deprived of their right without the statutory procedure of due enquiry and settlement of claims having been undertaken. Entertaining that challenge the Supreme Court on 22 August 1983 passed the following interim order:

"The writ petition is adjourned to October 4, 1983 in order to enable the parties to work out a formula under which claims to Adivasis or tribals in Dudhi and Robertsganj Tehsils, to be in possession of land and to regularisation of such possession may be investigated by a high powered committee with a view to reaching a final decision in regard to such claims. Meanwhile, no further encroachments shall be made on forest land nor will any of the Adivasis or tribals be permitted under colour of this order or any previous order to cut any trees and if any such attempt is made, it will be open to the State authorities to prevent such cutting of trees and to take proper action in that behalf but not so as to take away possession of the land from the Adivasis or tribals."

4. The case before the Supreme Court proceeded further and ultimately after taking into consideration the reports of the Commissioners submitted to it and the peculiar facts of the case as appearing before it, it framed detailed directions for the consideration and disposal of claims that were to be raised. Those directions as embodied in its detailed decision of 20 November 1986 rendered on that petition read thus:

"(1) So far as the lands which have already been declared as reserved forest under Section 20 of the Act, the same would not form part of the writ petition and any direction made by this Court earlier, now or in future in this case would not relate to the same. In regard to the lands declared as reserved forest, it is, however, open to the claimants to establish their rights, if any, in any other appropriate proceeding. We express no opinion about the maintainability of such claim.

(2) In regard to the lands notified under section 4 of the Act, even where no claim has been filed within the time specified in the notification as required under section 6(c)of the Act, such claims shall be allowed to be filed and dealt with in the manner detailed below:

I. Within six weeks from December 1, 1986, demarcating pillars shall be raised by the Forest Officers of the State Government identifying the lands covered by the notification under Section 4 of the Act. The fact that a notification has been made under Section 4 of the Act and demarcating pillars have been raised in the locality to clearly identify the property subjected to the notification shall be widely publicised by beat of drums in all the villages and surrounding areas concerned. Copies of notices printed in Hindi in abundant number will be circulated through the Gram Sabhas giving reasonable specifications of the lands which are covered by the notification. Sufficient number of inquiry booths would be set up within the notified area so as to enable the people of the area likely to be affected by the notification to get the information as to whether their lands are affected by the notification, so as to enable them to decide whether any claim need be filed. The Gram Sabhas shall give wide publicity to the matter at their level. Demarcation, as indicated above, shall be completed by January 15,1987. Within three months therefrom, claims as contemplated under section 6(c) shall be received as provided by the statute.

II. Adequate number of record officers shall be appointed by December 31, 1986. There shall also be five experienced Additional District Judges, one each to be located at Dudhi, Muirpur, Kirbil of Dudhi Tehsil and Robertsganj and Tilbudwa of Robersganj Tehsil. Each of these Additional District Judges who will be spared by the High Court of Allahabad, would have his establishment at one of the places indicated and the State shall provide the requisite number of assistants and other employees for their efficient functioning. The learned Chief Justice of the Allahabad High Court is requested to make the services of five experienced Additional District Judges available for the purpose by December 15, 1986 so that these officers may be posted at their respective stations by January 1, 1987. Each of those Additional District Judges would be entitled to 30 per cent of the salary as allowance during the period of their work. Each Additional District Judge would work at such of the five notified places that would be fixed up by the District Judge of Mirzapur before December 20, 1986. These Additional District Judges would exercise the powers of the Appellate Authority as provided under section 17 of the Act.

III. After the Forest Settlement Officer has done the needful under the provisions of the Act, the findings with the requisite papers shall be placed before the Additional District Judge of the area even though no appeal is filed and the same shall be scrutinized as if an appeal has been taken against the order of the authority and the order of the Additional District Judge passed therein shall be taken to be the order contemplated under the Act.

3. When the Appellate Authority finds that the claim is admissible, the State Government shall (and it is agreed before us) honour the said decision and proceed to implement the same. Status quo in regard to possession in respect of lands covered by the notification under Section 4 shall continue as at present until the determination by the appellate authority and no notification under Section 20 of the Act shall be made in regard to these lands until such appellate decision has been made."

5. It becomes pertinent to note that the Supreme Court at the very outset clarified that the directions as framed would have no application to land which had already come to be included in a final notification issued under Section 20 of the 1927 Act. The directions consequently stood confined to land notified under Section 4 and in respect of which settlement proceedings had not concluded. The detailed directions framed inter alia provided for survey and settlement operations being undertaken by the FSO's in accordance with the statutory obligations placed under the 1927 Act, the appointment of adequate number of survey officials, the publication of notices in the area of the proposal of the Government to create a reserved forest and the establishment of special courts manned by Additional District Judges to facilitate the process of adjudication of claims. The Supreme Court, in a significant departure from the adjudicatory procedure otherwise provided for under the 1927 Act, provided that all orders that may come to be passed or made by the FSO's would be mandatorily placed for the consideration and scrutiny of the Additional District Judges concerned and treated as suo moto appeals. It was further provided that the decision taken by the Additional District Judges on these suo moto appeals shall be taken to be the final orders as contemplated under the 1927 Act. The special procedure was evolved principally to protect the interests of the large number of tribals and traditional forest dwellers who otherwise were handicapped in seeking legal redress for protection of their rights by virtue of their social status.

6. It would also be relevant to advert to another order passed on 8 February 1989 in Banwasi Sewa Ashram, where the Supreme Court held that land which had been included in a notification issued under Section 4 of the 1927 Act, would also be subject to the rigours of Section 2 of the Forest Conservation Act, 19803 which had in the meantime been promulgated. The Court takes note of this order since it would be of some significance while evaluating the correctness of the submissions which were advanced.

7. Reverting back to the issue of settlement of claims in accordance with the procedure evolved by the Supreme Court, it appears that on the detailed directions being brought to the attention of the respondents, the order of 30 August 1986 conferring the status of bhumidhar on the private respondents was recalled by the FSO on 25 February 1992. In the meanwhile and pursuant to the process of settlement that was initiated in accordance with the procedure prescribed in Banwasi Sewa Ashram, the claim of the respondent fell for consideration before the FSO. The FSO in his order of 26 March 1992 noted that the respondent rested his claim solely on the order of the Forest Settlement Officer, which had already been annulled on 25 February 1992. It noted that the nature of the land was such that it was suitable to be included and made part of the proposed reserved forest and consequently upheld the inclusion of the land in the notification issued under Section 4. In accordance with the procedure laid down in Banwasi Sewa Ashram, that order was then placed before the Additional District Judge for scrutiny by way of a suo moto appeal. The Additional District Judge on 30 January 1993 proceeded to reverse the decision of the FSO and held that since the earlier spot inspection had found the petitioner to be in possession of the land and having partly cultivated it, the plot in question was liable to be excluded from the proposed reserved forest.

8. In the meanwhile, the Supreme Court while in seisin of proceedings in Banwasi Sewa Ashram took note of various complaints that were made with respect to the manner in which settlement proceedings had moved forward. It took note of the complaints made both by landholders as well as the Forest Department of apparent and patent errors having been committed by the FSO's in the disposal of claims. Bearing those complaints in mind, on 10 May 1991 it passed the following order:

"... It appears that there have been taken some instances where decisions have been taken but they required to be reviewed. Both the parties, counsel for the parties agrees, that review can be filed within 30 days from today and if so filed the plea of limitation shall not avail...."

9. The complaints with respect to settlement proceedings were yet again noticed by it in its order dated 16 February 1993, when it proceeded to frame the following additional directions:

"4. The reports of the Commissioners (January 1, 1993) and of Justice Loomba reveal that there have been some errors whereby rights of non-occupants have been recorded without on-the-spot inspection, hearings and to the prejudice of the actual occupants on the spot. The Commissioners and Justice Loomba have identified 17 forest villages in this respect which are as under:

1. Chattarpur 2. Goetha
3. Jaampani 4. Dhuma
5. Sukhra 6. Supachuan
7. Naudiha 8. Madhuvan
9. Karhiya (Dudhi) 10. Nagwa
11. Gulaljharia 12. Kudri
13. Ghaghri 14. Kirbil
15. Sagobaandh 16. Jarha
17. Bailhathhi

Agreeing with the Reports of the Commissioners, Justice Loomba and the contentions of Mr. Rajiv Dhawan, learned counsel for the petitioner, we direct that special review be undertaken in the above 17 villages only in respect of those cases where there are complaints from the individuals and the errors are patent on the record. The Forest Department shall also be at liberty to ask for special review in the cases pertaining to the above villages where according to the Department records have not been correctly prepared."

10. On 4 October 1993, the Supreme Court was apprised by the Department of Forest that various orders passed by the Forest Settlement Officer and the Additional District Judges merited review and reconsideration. Dealing with that prayer it entered the following observations in its order of 4 October 1993: -

".....He seeks directions from this court for the review of those cases. The forest department may bring those cases to the notice of the Additional District Judge, who shall consider those cases in accordance with law…."

11. These three orders are also of significant import since the 1927 Act otherwise did not confer any right of a substantive review on the adjudicatory authorities constituted under that enactment. The State in purported exercise of the liberty granted by these orders preferred a petition for review before the Additional District Judge. That review petition has been dismissed on 24 May 1994. It is in the above backdrop that the instant writ petition came to be preferred challenging the orders passed by the Additional District Judge originally as well as on the review petition preferred thereafter.

12. Appearing in support of the petition, Sri Goswami, the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has submitted that the review was liable to be granted since on both occasions the Additional District Judge had failed to either allude to or consider the fact that the order made in favour of the respondent by the FSO on 30 August 1986 no longer survived having been recalled on 25 February 1992. It was submitted that the spot inspection report which was referred to in those proceedings was the same on which the order of 30 August 1986 rested. It was contended that in any case no rights could be recognized as having accrued in favour of the respondent post the issuance of the notification under Section 4 on 4 July 1970. According to Sri Goswami, the rights which had been claimed by the respondent on the basis of possession could not have been accorded recognition in law in view of the provisions made in Section 5 of the 1927 Act. Section 5 as amended in its application to the State of U.P. vide Act No. 23 of 1965 reads thus: -

"5. Bar of accrual of forest rights.-- After the issue of notification under section 4 no right shall be acquired in or over the land comprised in such notification, except by succession or under a grant or a contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of the Government or some person in whom such right was vested when the notification was issued; and no fresh clearings for cultivation or for any other purpose shall be made in such land, nor any tree therein felled, girdled, lopped, tapped, or burnt, or its bark or leaves stripped off, or the same otherwise damaged, nor any forest-produce removed therefrom, except in accordance with such rules as may be made by the State Government in this behalf."

13. It is pertinent to note that while Section 5 in the principal enactment stops at restraining individuals from clearing land included in a Section 4 notification for cultivation or any other purpose, the U.P. Amendment travels further and injuncts persons from cutting or felling trees or removing forest produce from such land. According to Sri Goswami there was an abject failure on the part of the respondent to establish any right or title over the land existing from prior to the issuance of the notification under Section 4. Sri Goswami drew the attention of the Court to the fact that the nature of the land as was found to exist on the spot was duly taken into consideration by the FSO in his order of 26 March 1992 and that the Additional District Judge clearly erred in overturning that verdict and failing to grant the prayer for review as made.

14. Refuting those submissions, Sri O.P. Singh, learned Senior Counsel who has appeared for the private respondent addressed the following submissions. According to Sri Singh, the Court must bear in mind that no provision of the 1927 Act grants a power of substantive review on the Appellate Authority. The power to undertake a substantive review, it was contended, must be statutorily conferred and cannot be available to be exercised in the absence of a specific provision in that respect being made in the statute. Sri Singh referring to the order of 4 October 1993 submitted that the direction of the Supreme Court was not liable to be viewed as conferring on the Additional District Judge the authority to undertake a substantive review. He submits that after noticing the contentions addressed it was only observed in that order that it would be open to the Forest Department to approach the Additional District Judges by way of an appropriate application that may be considered and disposed of "in accordance with law". According to Sri Singh, the tenor of the directions and observations entered in that order establishes that the question of the maintainability of the review petition was not decided and it was left open to the Additional District Judges to consider any application that the Forest Department chose to make in accordance with law. In view thereof it was submitted that the Additional District Judge could not have entertained the review petition. According to Sri Singh once the Additional District Judge had proceeded to allow the claim of the respondent on 30 January 1993 the same attained finality and therefore could not have been reviewed.

15. Sri Singh has further placed reliance upon the provisions made in Section 131-A of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act 19504 to submit that notwithstanding the orders passed by the authority in proceedings undertaken under the 1927 Act, the law itself accords protection to persons like the respondent in cultivatory possession of land and the extension of bhumidhari rights albeit on a non transferable basis. That provision is in the following terms: -

"131-A. Bhumidhari rights in Gaon Sabha or State Government land in certain circumstances.--Subject to the provisions of Section 132 and Section 133-A, every person in cultivatory possession of any land, vested in a Gaon Sabha under Section 117 or belonging to the State Government, in the portion of District Mirzapur South of Kaimur Range, other than the land notified under Section 20 of the Indian forest Act, 1927, before the 30th day of June, 1978, shall be deemed to have become a Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights of such land.

Provided that where the land in cultivatory possession of a person, together with any other land held by him in Uttar Pradesh exceeds the ceiling area determined under the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960, the rights of a Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights shall accrue in favour of such person in respect of so much area of the first-mentioned land, as together with such other land held by him, does not exceed the ceiling area applicable to him and the said area shall be demarcated in the prescribed manner in accordance with the principles laid down in the aforesaid Act."

16. Sri Singh placing reliance upon the provisions made in Section 131-A has submitted that in light of the statutory protection accorded and extended, no cause arises for this Court to interfere with the order ultimately passed by the Additional District Judge in the suo moto appeal. It was lastly urged that a reserved forest could not be viewed as land falling within the ambit of Section 132 of the 1950 Act since it essentially remains land per se till it is actually declared as reserved forest under Section 20 of the 1927 Act. This submission was addressed in light of the benefits extended by Section 131A being made subject to the provisions of Section 132 of the 1950 Act. Section 132 of the 1950 Act reads thus: -

"132. Land in which [bhumidhari] rights shall not accrue.- Notwithstanding anything contained in Section 131, but without prejudice to the provisions of Section 19, [bhumidhari] rights shall not accrue in--

(a) pasture lands or lands covered by water and used for the purpose of growing singhara or other produce or land in the bed of a river and used for casual or occasional cultivation;

(b) such tracts of shifting or unstable cultivation as the State Government may specify by notification in the Gazette; and

[(c) lands declared by the State Government by notification in the Official Gazette, to be intended or set apart for taungya plantation or grove lands of a [Gaon Sabha] or a local authority or land acquired or held for a public purpose and in particular and without prejudice to the generality of this clause--

(i) lands set apart for military encamping grounds;

(ii) lands included within railway or canal boundaries;

(iii) lands situate within the limits of any cantonment;

(iv) lands included in sullage farms or trenching grounds belonging as such to a local authority;

(v) lands acquired by a town improvement trust in accordance with a scheme sanctioned under Section 42 of the U.P. Town Improvement Act, 1919 (U.P. Act VII of 1919), or by a municipality for a purpose mentioned in clause (a) or clause (c) of Section 8 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 (U.P. Act VII of 1916); and

(vi) lands set apart for public purposes under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (U.P. Act V of 1954).]"

17. Before proceeding to deal with the rival submissions noted above, it would be apposite to notice certain noteworthy statutory and judicial interventions with regard to the subject of forests that intervened. The proceedings in Banwasi Sewa Ashram progressed during a period when the 1980 Act had already come to be promulgated. The statutory interdict enshrined in Section 2 of that enactment represents a momentous measure of "we the people" to preserve and protect forests and the environment. This singular provision finally gave effect to the constitutional obligation placed upon the State by virtue of Article 48A of the Constitution. Section 2, seemingly unpretentious and yet pregnant with purpose and intent, stipulates as follows: -

"2. Restriction on the de-reservation of forests or use of forest land for non-forest purpose.-- Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force in a State, no State Government or other authority shall make, except with the prior approval of the Central Government, any order directing,--

(i) that any reserved forest (within the meaning of the expression "reserved forest" in any law for the time being in force in that State) or any portion thereof, shall cease to be reserved;

(ii) that any forest-land or any portion thereof may be used for any non-forest purpose;

[(iii) that any forest-land or any portion thereof may be assigned by way of lease or otherwise to any private person or to any authority, corporation, agency or any other organisation not owned, managed or controlled by Government;

(iv) that any forest-land or any portion thereof may be cleared of trees which have grown naturally in that land or portion, for the purpose of using it for reafforestation.]"

18. From a historical perspective, the development of the jurisprudence on the subject of environment protection would be incomplete if one were to ignore the epoch making decision handed down by the Supreme Court on 12 December 1996 in T.N. Godavarman Thirumulpad Vs. Union of India5 when it held: -

"4. The Forest Conservation Act, 1980 was enacted with a view to check further deforestation which ultimately results in ecological imbalance; and therefore, the provisions made therein for the conservation of forests and for matters connected therewith, must apply to all forests irrespective of the nature of ownership or classification thereof. The word "forest" must be understood according to its dictionary meaning. This description covers all statutorily recognised forests, whether designated as reserved, protected or otherwise for the purpose of Section 2(i) of the Forest Conservation Act. The term "forest land", occurring in Section 2, will not only include "forest" as understood in the dictionary sense, but also any area recorded as forest in the Government record irrespective of the ownership. This is how it has to be understood for the purpose of Section 2 of the Act. The provisions enacted in the Forest Conservation Act, 1980 for the conservation of forests and the matters connected therewith must apply clearly to all forests so understood irrespective of the ownership or classification thereof. This aspect has been made abundantly clear in the decisions of this Court in Ambica Quarry Works v. State of Gujarat [(1987) 1 SCC 213] , Rural Litigation and Entitlement Kendra v. State of U.P. [1989 Supp (1) SCC 504] and recently in the order dated 29-11-1996 (Supreme Court Monitoring Committee v. Mussoorie Dehradun Development Authority [WP (C) No 749 of 1995 decided on 29-11-1996]). The earlier decision of this Court in State of Bihar v. Banshi Ram Modi [(1985) 3 SCC 643] has, therefore, to be understood in the light of these subsequent decisions. We consider it necessary to reiterate this settled position emerging from the decisions of this Court to dispel the doubt, if any, in the perception of any State Government or authority.....…"

19. Again on 13 November 2000, the Supreme Court in Centre for Environmental Law Vs. Union of India6 passed the following order: -

"Four weeks for filing of affidavits by the States that have not already done so. List after 5 weeks. Pending further orders, no dereservation of forests/Sanctuaries/National Parks shall be affected."

In one sense the decisions and orders referred to above followed the trend which was set in the 8 February 1989 order of the Supreme Court in Banwasi Sewa Ashram which had held that land covered under a notification issued under Section 4 of the 1927 Act would also be covered by the prohibition imposed by Section 2 of the 1980 Act. It was these orders and the prevailing statutory regime that governed the field when the settlement proceedings forming subject matter of the instant writ petition were progressing before the FSO and the Additional District Judges. Having sketched the backdrop in which the impugned proceedings ensued before the authorities, the Court now proceeds to rule on the submissions addressed by respective parties.

20. Dealing firstly with the question of maintainability of the review petition, the Court notes that the provisions engrafted in the 1927 Act do not make a specific provision of substantive review being exercised by the authorities constituted thereunder. However, the Court also bears in mind that the 1927 Act also does not envisage a suo moto appeal being preferred or entertained by the Additional District Judge either. The facts which were obtaining in the region in which the reserved forest was proposed to be created, the manner in which the rights of tribal and traditional forest dwellers were overlooked and trodden over constrained the Supreme Court to modify the statutory procedure put in place by the 1927 Act. It was the special procedure formulated and evolved by the Supreme Court and put in place by virtue of its decisions and orders rendered from time to time in Banwasi Sewa Ashram that governed the field. It was this unique and distinctive process of adjudication as evolved therein that was mandated to be adhered to by the adjudicating authorities while processing claims laid under the 1927 Act. It was this exceptional process of adjudication in terms of which all decisions taken by the FSO were liable to be placed before the Additional District Judge for scrutiny, appraisal and confirmation. The orders passed in Banwasi Sewa Ashram thus constituted the source and foundation for the authority which was to be exercised by the FSO's and Additional District Judges. The consequential question to be posed would, therefore, be whether those orders empowered the Additional District Judges to exercise powers of review.

21. The Court finds that indubitably the orders of 10 May 1991 and 16 February 1993 made in Banwasi Sewa Ashram, the Supreme Court in unambiguous terms provided for individuals as well as the Department of Forest to prefer review petitions in those cases where mistakes and errors apparent on the face of the record were alleged to exist. The Supreme Court took note of the Reports of the Commissioners and Justice Loomba submitted on 1 January 1993, which had found that the settlement orders made in 17 forest villages suffered from manifest errors. These orders conferred a right on both the landholder as well as the Department of Forest to petition the Additional District Judge by way of review applications. The Supreme Court clearly permitted the Forest Department to move the Additional District Judges by way of "special review". It is also pertinent to note that while the orders of 10 May 1991 and 16 February 1993 granted this right to both individuals as well as the Department of Forest, the last order which is adverted to, namely, of 04 October 1993 only dealt with the grievance of the Department of Forest where it alleged that a review was mandated in numerous cases. It was these orders that conferred the right on individuals and the Forest Department to petition the Additional District Judges by way of a special review. The exercise of settlement and adjudication was an ongoing process being monitored and overseen by the Supreme Court and the directions issued from time to time aimed at ensuring purity of the adjudicatory process. These orders conferred a substantive right on parties to seek review of the orders passed by the Additional District Judges. The right so conferred was entitled to be exercised notwithstanding the absence of a statutory provision made in that regard in the 1927 Act. The orders alluded to above constituted the fountainhead and the source of the right of special review that was exercised by the petitioners here. In light of the aforesaid, the Court comes to conclude that the review applications were maintainable and were rightly entertained notwithstanding the fact that no statutory provision in that respect existed in the 1927 Act.

22. That then takes the Court to deal with the submission addressed in the backdrop of Section 131-A of the 1950 Act. Section 131-A was initially promulgated by way of Ordinance No. 7 of 1987. It was ultimately introduced in the statute by virtue of U.P. Act 14 of 1987. Section 131A principally extends protection to those persons who were found to be in cultivatory possession of land in the portion of District Mirzapur South of the Kaimur Range prior to 30 June 1978 and confers on such individuals the status of a bhumidhar with non transferable rights on such land. Whether this provision would be sufficient to safeguard the asserted interest of the private respondent is the issue that consequently falls for determination. While dealing with this question it would be apposite to bear in mind the fact that by the time that this measure was introduced, the 1980 Act already stood in place. The rights which are claimed by the respondents in terms of its provisions would merit examination and evaluation from a dual perspective- firstly, on the basis of the language of the section itself and other attendant provisions of the 1950 Act and secondly, in the backdrop of the statutory regime governing forests which otherwise exists.

23. On a plain reading of Section 131A, it is evident that the provision is neither stated to have overriding effect over the other parts of the 1950 Act nor is it worded to be in supersession of other statutes that may operate on the subject of forests. As is manifest, that provision is not worded so as to apply notwithstanding a prohibition or restraint contained in any other enactment which touches the field of forests and rights that may accrue on land on which forests may exist. In its barest form, Section 131A seeks to protect the possession of persons on land which may vest in a Gaon Sabha by virtue of Section 117 of that Act. Section 117 provides that the State Government may by a general or special order vest in a Gaon Sabha or other local authority land that had come to vest with it upon promulgation of the 1950 Act. It becomes relevant to recall that Section 4 of the 1950 Act envisaged the vesting of all estates situate in the State with the Government upon abolition of zamindari. Section 117 while enumerating the categories of vested land that may be transferred not just speaks of forests but also of land cultivable or otherwise, trees, fisheries, ponds, tanks, water channels, pathways and abadi sites. Consequently when Section 131A refers to land vesting in a Gaon Sabha under Section 117, it cannot be understood as being with regard to possession of persons upon forests alone. Possession of a person may be found to exist even on land cultivable or otherwise or on any other category of estates vesting in the State.

24. The second internal control on the benefit conferred by that provision is manifest from its opening lines itself which makes its provisions subject to Sections 132 and 133A of the 1950 Act. Section 132 of the 1950 Act essentially declares that bhumidhari rights shall not accrue upon the categories of land enumerated therein. This statutory interdict also applies to land declared or held by the Government for a public purpose in terms of Section 132 (c). It would be pertinent to recollect that the land forming subject matter of the instant writ petition formed part of the "Dudhi Forest" which was transferred by the State Government from the Department of Revenue to the Forest Department on 15/16 May 1950, a fact noted in the introductory part of this judgment. It is therefore apparent that a forest under the ownership and control of the State of U.P. existed in 1950 itself. Clearly, therefore, in 1950 the State of U.P. held land which constituted a forest. That the creation and preservation of forests is a constitutional obligation and would clearly constitute a public purpose cannot possibly be disputed. Significantly, clause (c) of Section 132 while expanding upon the categories which would constitute land held for a public purpose employs the phrase "..in particular and without prejudice to the generality of this clause...". It is thus evident that clause (c), while specifying categories of lands held for a public purpose, is not exhaustive but merely illustrative. On a foundational plane, therefore, the Court finds it difficult to accept the proposition that possessory rights claimed on forests were entitled to be perfected by virtue of Section 131A. The problem, however arises on account of that provision specifically referring to land in respect of which a notification under Section 20 of the 1927 may not have been issued and thus evincing an intent to extend the coverage of Section 131A even to forests.

25. The Court finds that there is no explicit or straightforward expression of intent to extend the benefits of that provision to land covered under Section 4 of the 1927 Act. Assuming that was the legislative intent, it was open for the Legislature to have said so plainly. It is apposite to note that the provision was introduced in 1987 by which time the 1980 Act was already in force and Section 2 thereof applied. It also becomes apposite to note that U.P. Act 14 of 1987 was not reserved for the assent of the President. More importantly, Parliament by virtue of Act No. 69 of 1988 introduced clause (iii) in Section 2 of the 1980 Act restraining State Governments from assigning forest land to persons by way of lease or otherwise. Of equal import is the order dated 8 February 1989 passed in Banwasi Sewa Ashram which clarified that land covered in a notification under Section 4 of the 1927 Act would also be subject to the rigours imposed by Section 2 of the 1980 Act. If Section 131A were to be conferred the interpretation as suggested by the respondents it would clearly breach the provisions of Section 2 of the 1980 Act.

26. The Court also bears in mind the decision rendered by the Supreme Court in Godavarman which explained the expression forest to be understood not just as defined in dictionaries but also to any land which answered the description of forest as generally understood as also land recorded as forest irrespective of ownership. The rights consequently claimed by virtue of Section 131A cannot be recognised as flowing unhindered by the restrictions imposed in that decision.

27. Viewed from the angle of the provisions engrafted in the 1927 Act, the Court notes that once the notification under Section 4 of the 1927 Act came to be issued on 4 July 1970, the statutory restraint comprised in Section 5 of that Act also applied. Section 5, it becomes important to recall, prohibits the acquisition of rights in or over land comprised in a Section 4 notification except by way of succession, grant, or contract in writing made by the Government. Section 131A as is evident does not override or eclipse the prohibition put in place by Section 5 of the 1927 Act. In order, therefore, to accord a harmonious construction upon Section 131A of the 1950 Act bearing in mind Section 5 of the 1927 Act, it must be interpreted to extend at best to land held in cultivatory possession from prior to the issuance of the notification under Section 4. The assertion of a right under Section 131A and a recognition thereof in law would also have to be tested on the anvil of Section 2 of the 1980 and the orders of the Supreme Court referred to above. The extent of protection which can be recognised cannot be viewed in the abstract and in any case cannot be adjudged without bearing in mind the provisions made in the 1927 and the 1980 Acts.

28. Undisputedly the State proceeded to issue the notification under Section 4 on 04 July 1970. From the moment that notification came to be promulgated the prohibition and bar as engrafted in Section 5 of the 1927 Act came to operate. That provision clearly mandates that no rights shall be acquired in or over the land comprised in such notification except by succession or under a grant of contract in writing made in that behalf by the Government. Consequently the position which emerges is that post 04 July 1970 no rights could have been acquired on land which came to be included in the notification under Section 4. It becomes pertinent to note that while the private respondent asserts to have been in possession of the land prior to its vesting under the provisions of 1950 Act, no material or evidence was either alluded to or brought to the attention of the Court. That material also does not appear to have been placed for the consideration of either the FSO or the Additional District Judge. This, the Court notes, since no such material or evidence was ever noticed by either the Forest Settlement Officer or the Additional District Judge in the orders which were framed. It has also come on the record that the initial order made by the FSO on 30 August 1986 was ultimately recalled by that authority on 25 February 1992. The respondent never assailed that order in any proceedings.

29. Reverting to the individual facts, the Court notes that the Additional District Judge on both occasions has clearly failed to bear in mind that the initial order passed by the FSO 30 August 1986 had itself been recalled by that authority subsequently. That subsequent order of 25 February 1992 has neither been alluded to nor considered. The respondent did not lead any other evidence that may have established that he had been in cultivatory possession from prior to 4 July 1970 when the notification under Section 4 came to be issued or from before 15/16 May 1950 being the order of the State Government transferring Dudhi Forest to the Forest Department. The Additional District Judge rests his decision solely on the spot inspection report which formed the basis of the original order which was ultimately recalled. The Additional District Judge also does not rest his decision on any other independent or cogent evidence which may have established that the factual position as found by the FSO was incorrect. Viewed in that backdrop, it is manifest that the prayer for review was clearly liable to be granted.

30. Accordingly and for the reasons noted, this writ petition shall stand allowed. The impugned orders dated 30 January 1993 and 24 May 1994 passed by the Additional District Judge, shall stand quashed and set aside. The order of the FSO dated 26 March 1992 shall stand affirmed and restored.

CIVIL SIDE
DATED: ALLAHABAD 14.11.2019

THE HON'BLE DR. YOGENDRA KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Writ-C No. 50174 of 2016

State of U.P. ...Petitioner
Versus
Presiding Officer, Labour Court, U.P. Jhansi & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri S.M. Iqbal Hasan, Sri Some Narain Mishra, Sri Mata Prasad

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sri Syed Mushfiq Ali

A. Civil Law - U.P. Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 – Section 4(k) and 10(1) – Reference – Undue delay – Though no limitation has been prescribed for making of a reference; however, delay in raising an industrial dispute would definitely be an important circumstance which must keep in view at the time of exercise of discretion by the Labour Court irrespective of whether or not such objection has been raised by the other side – Limitation period for making reference is coextensive with the existence of dispute, meaning thereby that the dispute should be alive on the day when the decision was taken to make a reference or to refuse to make reference. (Para 30 & 31)

Held –31. In respect of an alleged termination said to have been made on 01.10.1991 the reference was made on 29.03.2014 i.e. after a lapse of more than two decades there would be little reason to believe that there existed a live dispute when the reference was made and for this reason also the award passed by the Labour Court more particularly the directions issued for reinstating the respondent workman in service with effect from the date of termination and further holding him entitled to 25% of the back wages and also full back wages from the date of the award cannot be sustained.

B. Evidence Law - Evidence Act, 1972 – Section 101 – Burden of proof – Labour law – Law with regard to burden of proving the factum of 240 days of working in a calender year so as to claim benefit of being in continuous service as defined under Section 2(g) and consequently to claim of protection of Section 6N of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 is well settled – The burden of proof is thus the legal obligation on a party to prove the allegation made by him, and is often associated with the maxim 'Semper necessitas probandi incumbit ei qui agit' which means the burden of proof is on the claimant – Burden of proving the said fact lies upon the workman. (Para 13 & 25)

C. Rule of Evidence – Distinction between 'burden of proof' and 'onus of proof' – The burden of proof lies upon the person who has to prove a fact and it never shifts; however, the shifting of onus of proof is a continuous process in the evaluation of evidence.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava,J.)

1. Heard Sri Mata Prasad, learned Standing Counsel for the petitioner and Sri Syed Mushfiq Ali, learned counsel appearing for the respondent-workman.

2. The instant writ petition has been filed seeking to assail the award dated 21.12.2015 passed by the Labour Court, U.P., Jhansi in Adjudication Case No.62 of 2014.

3. Records of the case show that upon an industrial dispute being raised by the second respondent-workman a reference was made under Section 4K of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 which was registered as Adjudication Case No.62 of 2014 before the Labour Court, U.P., Jhansi, and the question which was referred for adjudication is as follows:-

"क्या सेवायोजक द्वारा अपने श्रमिक श्री कामता प्रसाद पुत्र श्री भगवान दास कारपेन्टर की सेवाएं दिनांक 01.10.1991 से समाप्त किया जाना उचित तथा /अथवा वैधानिक है ? यदि नहीं तो संबंधित श्रमिक क्या हितलाभ /उपशम पाने का अधिकारी है तथा अन्य किस विवरण सहित ?"

4. The reference, aforementioned, which was with regard to the legality/validity of the termination of the respondent-workman with effect from 01.10.1991 was answered by the Labour Court in terms of an award dated 21.12.2015 by recording a conclusion that the termination of services of the workman was not legal and valid and issuing a direction to reinstate him in service with effect from the date of termination i.e. 01.10.1991 and further holding him entitled to 25% of the back wages and also full wages from the date of publication of the award.

5. The records of the case indicate that as per the case set up by the respondent-workman in the written statement filed before the Labour Court it had been claimed that he had been paid wages as a daily wager for the period October, 1990 to 30.09.1991 and thereafter his services were terminated w.e.f. 01.10.1991, and in the aforesaid manner he had completed more than 240 days of work. It was further stated that the termination of his services had been made without any notice and following the due procedure.

6. The petitioner also filed a written statement before the Labour Court wherein it was stated that the workman had worked for a period of 30 days in the month of June, 1991 and the payment in respect of the said period of working had been made immediately. It was further submitted that the workman had never been appointed against any post and as such there was no question of termination of his services. It was also stated that he had not completed 240 days of continuous service during any calender year.

7. The award passed by the Labour Court does not refer to any documentary or oral evidence of the workman to support his claim. Only a reference has been made to an application filed by the workman for summoning of the records by the employer and in view of the non-production of the said documents by the employer the Labour Court has drawn an adverse inference and proceeded ex parte to allow the claim of the workman.

8. Learned Standing Counsel appearing for the petitioner has contended that the engagement of the respondent-workman having been categorically denied by the petitioner in its written statement the burden of proof with regard to the working of the respondent-workman in the petitioner-establishment for a period of 240 days in a calender year so as to establish his continuous working and claim the benefit of Section 6N of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 was upon the workman, and in the instant case, the workman had failed to discharge the said burden. It is also submitted that the alleged termination having been said to have been made on 01.10.1991 the reference made on 29.03.2014 was highly belated and was therefore bad in law. It is accordingly submitted that the conclusion drawn by the Labour Court with regard to the termination of the services of the workman being illegal and invalid with a further direction for reinstatement of the workman, payment of 25% back wages and also full wages from the date of publication of the award is legally unsustainable and is liable to be set aside.

9. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent-workman has supported the award of the Labour Court by asserting that the workman having pleaded in his written statement that he had been paid wages as a daily wager from the month of October, 1990 to 30.09.1991 it was evident that he worked continuously for a period of 240 days and the relevant records having not been produced by the employer the Labour Court has rightly drawn the adverse inference with regard to the same.

10. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

11. From perusal of the records of the case, it appears that only on the basis of an assertion made in the written statement that he had paid wages as a daily wager from the month of October, 1990 to 30.09.1991 the workman has sought to contend that he had worked continuously for more than 240 days and that he was entitled to a notice before his services could be terminated. No material evidence, documentary or oral, appears to have been led by the workman in support of his claim and the award of the Labour Court also does not refer to any such evidence.

12. The only indication in the award in this regard and what seems to have weighed with the Labour Court is the fact that an application had been filed by the workman for summoning of the records and pursuant thereto the records in question had not been produced by the employer. The Labour Court, accordingly, drew an adverse inference and thereafter proceeded ex parte to allow the claim set up by the workman.

13. The law with regard to burden of proving the factum of 240 days of working in a calender year so as to claim benefit of being in continuous service as defined under Section 2(g) and consequently to claim of protection of Section 6N of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 is well settled and it has been consistently held that the burden of proving the said fact lies upon the workman.

14. In the case of Range Forest Officer Vs. S.T. Hadimani1, where a claim had been made by the workman regarding working for more than 240 days, it was held that the onus to prove the said fact was on the workman. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"2. In the instant case, dispute was referred to the Labour Court that the respondent had worked for 240 days and his service had been terminated without paying him any retrenchment compensation. The appellant herein did not accept this and contended that the respondent had not worked for 240 days. The Tribunal vide its award dated 10-8-1998 came to the conclusion that the service had been terminated without giving retrenchment compensation. In arriving at the conclusion that the respondent had worked for 240 days, the Tribunal stated that the burden was on the management to show that there was justification in termination of the service and that the affidavit of the workman was sufficient to prove that he had worked for 240 days in a year.

3. For the view we are taking, it is not necessary to go into the question as to whether the appellant is an "industry" or not, though reliance is placed on the decision of this Court in State of Gujarat v. Pratamsingh Narsinh Parmar [(2001) 9 SCC 713 : 2002 SCC (L&S) 269 : JT (2001) 3 SC 326]. In our opinion the Tribunal was not right in placing the onus on the management without first determining on the basis of cogent evidence that the respondent had worked for more than 240 days in the year preceding his termination. It was the case of the claimant that he had so worked but this claim was denied by the appellant. It was then for the claimant to lead evidence to show that he had in fact worked for 240 days in the year preceding his termination. Filing of an affidavit is only his own statement in his favour and that cannot be regarded as sufficient evidence for any court or tribunal to come to the conclusion that a workman had, in fact, worked for 240 days in a year. No proof of receipt of salary or wages for 240 days or order or record of appointment or engagement for this period was produced by the workman. On this ground alone, the award is liable to be set aside. However, Mr. Hegde appearing for the Department states that the State is really interested in getting the law settled and the respondent will be given an employment on compassionate grounds on the same terms as he was allegedly engaged prior to his termination, within two months from today."

15. The aforementioned legal position was reiterated in the case of Rajasthan State Ganganagar S. Mills Ltd. Vs. State of Rajasthan & Anr.2, wherein it was held as follows:-

"6. It was the case of the workman that he had worked for more than 240 days in the year concerned. This claim was denied by the appellant. It was for the claimant to lead evidence to show that he had in fact worked up to 240 days in the year preceding his termination. He has filed an affidavit. It is only his own statement which is in his favour and that cannot be regarded as sufficient evidence for any court or tribunal to come to the conclusion that in fact the claimant had worked for 240 days in a year. These aspects were highlighted in Range Forest Officer v. S.T. Hadimani [(2002) 3 SCC 25 : 2002 SCC (L&S) 367]. No proof of receipt of salary or wages for 240 days or order or record in that regard was produced. Mere non-production of the muster roll for a particular period was not sufficient for the Labour Court to hold that the workman had worked for 240 days as claimed. Even if that period is taken into account with the period as stated in the affidavit filed by the employer, the requirement prima facie does not appear to be fulfilled. The following period of engagement which was accepted was 6 days in July 1991, 15-1/2 days in November 1991, 15-1/2 days in January 1992, 24 days in February 1992, 20-1/2 days in March 1992, 25 days in April 1992, 25 days in May 1992, 7-1/2 days in June 1992 and 5-1/2 days in July 1992. The Labour Court demanded production of muster roll for the period of 17-6-1991 to 12-11-1991. It included this period for which the muster roll was not produced and came to the conclusion that the workman had worked for more than 240 days without indicating as to the period to which period these 240 days were referable."

16. Again in the case of Municipal Corporation Faridabad Vs. Siri Niwas3, it was held, in the context of Section 25F of the Act, 1947 (containing provisions similar as under Section 6N of the Act, 1947), that the burden was on the workman to prove that he had worked for more than 240 days in the preceding one year prior to his retrenchment and the workman having not adduced any evidence with regard to the same the claim raised by him could not be allowed only on the basis of adverse inference drawn against the employer for not producing the muster rolls. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"13. The provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 per se are not applicable in an industrial adjudication. The general principles of it are, however applicable. It is also imperative for the Industrial Tribunal to see that the principles of natural justice are complied with. The burden of proof was on the respondent herein to show that he had worked for 240 days in preceding twelve months prior to his alleged retrenchment. In terms of Section 25-F of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, an order retrenching a workman would not be effective unless the conditions precedent therefore are satisfied. Section 25-F postulates the following conditions to be fulfilled by employer for effecting a valid retrenchment:

(i) one month's notice in writing indicating the reasons for retrenchment or wages in lieu thereof;

(ii) payment of compensation equivalent to fifteen days, average pay for every completed year of continuous service or any part thereof in excess of six months.

14. For the said purpose it is necessary to notice the definition of "continuous service" as contained in Section 25-B of the Act. In terms of sub-section (2) of Section 25-B that if a workman during a period of twelve calendar months preceding the date with reference to which calculation is to be made, has actually worked under the employer for 240 days within a period of one year, he will be deemed to be in continuous service. By reason of the said provision, thus, a legal fiction is created. The retrenchment of the respondent took place on 17-5-1995. For the purpose of calculating as to whether he had worked for a period of 240 days within one year or not, it was, therefore, necessary for the Tribunal to arrive at a finding of fact that during the period between 5-8-1994 to 16-5-1995 he had worked for a period of more than 240 days. As noticed hereinbefore, the burden of proof was on the workman. From the award it does not appear that the workman adduced any evidence whatsoever in support of his contention that he complied with the requirements of Section 25-B of the Industrial Disputes Act. Apart from examining himself in support of his contention he did not produce or call for any document from the office of the appellant herein including the muster rolls. It is improbable that a person working in a local authority would not be in possession of any documentary evidence to support his claim before the Tribunal. Apart from muster rolls he could have shown the terms and conditions of his offer of appointment and the remuneration received by him for working during the aforementioned period. He did not even examine any other witness in support of his case.

15. A Court of Law even in a case where provisions of the Indian Evidence Act apply, may presume or may not presume that if a party despite possession of the best evidence had not produced the same, it would have gone against his contentions. The matter, however, would be different where despite direction by a court the evidence is withheld. Presumption as to adverse inference for non-production of evidence is always optional and one of the factors which is required to be taken into consideration in the background of facts involved in the lis. The presumption, thus, is not obligatory because notwithstanding the intentional non-production, other circumstances may exist upon which such intentional non-production may be found to be justifiable on some reasonable grounds. In the instant case, the Industrial Tribunal did not draw any adverse inference against the appellant. It was within its jurisdiction to do so particularly having regard to the nature of the evidence adduced by the respondent.

16. No reason has been assigned by the High Court as to why the exercise of discretional jurisdiction of the Tribunal was bad in law. In a case of this nature, it is trite, the High Court exercising the power of judicial review, would not interfere with the discretion of a Tribunal unless the same is found to be illegal or irrational.

19. Furthermore a party in order to get benefit of the provisions contained in Section 114 Ill. (g) of the Indian Evidence Act must place some evidence in support of his case. Here the Respondent failed to do so.

21. ...The High Court, therefore, proceeded to pass the impugned judgment only on the basis of the materials relied on by the parties before the Tribunal. The High Court, in our opinion, committed a manifest error in setting aside the award of the Tribunal only on the basis of adverse inference drawn against the appellant for not producing the muster rolls."

17. The aforementioned position of law was restated in the case of M.P. Electricity Board Vs. Hariram4, in the following terms:-

"11. The above burden having not been discharged and the Labour Court having held so, in our opinion, the Industrial Court and the High Court erred in basing an order of reinstatement solely on an adverse inference drawn erroneously. At this stage it may be useful to refer to a judgment of this Court in the case of Municipal Corpn., Faridabad v. Siri Niwas [(2004) 8 SCC 195 : JT (2004) 7 SC 248] wherein this Court disagreed with the High Court's view of drawing an adverse inference in regard to the non-production of certain relevant documents…"

18. The question of onus of proof regarding the factum of working was again considered in the case of Manager, Reserve Bank of India, Bangalore Vs. S. Mani & Ors.5 and it was held that initial burden of proof is always on the workman to prove his working and that the onus of proof does not shift to the employer nor is the burden of proof on the workman discharged merely because the employer fails to prove a defence. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"28. The initial burden of proof was on the workmen to show that they had completed 240 days of service. The Tribunal did not consider the question from that angle. It held that the burden of proof was upon the appellant on the premise that they have failed to prove their plea of abandonment of service…"

x x x x x

"35. Only because the appellant failed to prove its plea of abandonment of service by the respondents, the same in law cannot be taken to be a circumstance that the respondents have proved their case."

19. The question of onus of proof and the evidence to be led again came up in the case of Surendranagar District Panchayat Vs. Dahyabhai Amarsinh6, and it was held that the burden to prove his working lies on the workman and it is for him to adduce evidence to prove the said factum and in a case if the evidence with regard to the same has not been led by the workman it would be held that he has failed to discharge the burden. It was only in a case where sufficient evidence was led by the workman that the Court could have drawn adverse inference against the other party. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"18. In the light of the aforesaid, it was necessary for the workman to produce the relevant material to prove that he had actually worked with the employer for not less than 240 days during the period of twelve calendar months preceding the date of termination. What we find is that apart from the oral evidence the workman has not produced any evidence to prove the fact that he has worked for 240 days. No proof of receipt of salary or wages or any record or order in that regard was produced; no co-worker was examined; muster roll produced by the employer has not been contradicted. It is improbable that the workman who claimed to have worked with the appellant for such a long period would not possess any documentary evidence to prove nature of his engagement and the period of work he had undertaken with his employer. Therefore, we are of the opinion that the workman has failed to discharge his burden that he was in employment for 240 days during the preceding 12 months of the date of termination of his service. The courts below have wrongly drawn an adverse inference for non-production of the record of the workman for ten years. The scope of enquiry before the Labour Court was confined to only 12 months preceding the date of termination to decide the question of continuation of service for the purpose of Section 25-F of the Industrial Disputes Act. The workman has never contended that he was regularly employed in the Panchayat for one year to claim the uninterrupted period of service as required under Section 25-B(1) of the Act. In the facts and situation and in the light of the law on the subject, we find that the respondent workman is not entitled to the protection or compliance with Section 25-F of the Act before his service was terminated by the employer. As regards non-compliance with Sections 25-G and 25-H suffice it to say that witness Vinod Misra examined by the appellant has stated that no seniority list was maintained by the department of daily wagers. In the absence of regular employment of the workmen, the appellant was not expected to maintain seniority list of the employees engaged on daily wages and in the absence of any proof by the respondent regarding existence of the seniority list and his so-called seniority, no relief could be given to him for non-compliance with provisions of the Act. The courts could have drawn adverse inference against the appellant only when seniority list was proved to be in existence and then not produced before the court. In order to entitle the court to draw inference unfavourable to the party, the court must be satisfied that evidence is in existence and could have been proved".

20. The question of burden of proof yet again came up for consideration in the case of R.M. Yellatti Vs. Assistant Executive Engineer7, wherein it was reiterated that burden of proof lies on the workman and it is for him to adduce cogent evidence, both oral and documentary, and mere non-production of muster rolls per se will not be a ground to draw an adverse inference against the employer. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"12. Now coming to the question of burden of proof as to the completion of 240 days of continuous work in a year, the law is well settled. In Manager, Reserve Bank of India v. S. Mani [(2005) 5 SCC 100 : 2005 SCC (L&S) 609] the workmen raised a contention of rendering continuous service between April 1980 to December 1982 in their pleadings and in their representations. They merely contended in their affidavits that they had worked for 240 days. The Tribunal based its decision on the management not producing the attendance register. In view of the affidavits filed by the workmen, the Tribunal held that the burden on the workmen to prove 240 days' service stood discharged. In that matter, a three-Judge Bench of this Court held that pleadings did not constitute a substitute for proof and that the affidavits contained self-serving statements; that no workman took an oath to state that he had worked for 240 days; that no document in support of the said plea was ever produced and, therefore, this Court took the view that the workmen had failed to discharge the burden on them of proving that they had worked for 240 days. According to the said judgment, only by reason of non-response to the complaints filed by the workmen, it cannot be said that the workmen had proved that they had worked for 240 days. In that case, the workmen had not called upon the management to produce the relevant documents. The Court observed that the initial burden of establishing the factum of continuous work for 240 days in a year was on the workmen. In the circumstances, this Court set aside the award of the Industrial Tribunal ordering reinstatement.

13. In Municipal Corpn., Faridabad v. Siri Niwas [(2004) 8 SCC 195 : 2004 SCC (L&S) 1062] the employee had worked from 5-8-1994 to 31-12-1994 as a tubewell operator. He alleged that he had further worked from 1-1-1995 to 16-5-1995. His services were terminated on 17-5-1995 whereupon an industrial dispute was raised. The case of the employee before the Tribunal was that he had completed working for 240 days in a year; the purported order of retrenchment was illegal as the conditions precedent to Section 25-F of the Industrial Disputes Act were not complied with. On the other hand, the management contended that the employee had worked for 136 days during the preceding 12 months on daily wages. Upon considering all the material placed on record by the parties to the dispute, the Tribunal came to the conclusion that the total number of working days put in by the employee were 184 days and thus he, having not completed 240 days of working in a year, was not entitled to any relief. The Tribunal noticed that neither the management nor the workman cared to produce the muster roll w.e.f. August 1994; that the employee did not summon muster roll although the management had failed to produce them. Aggrieved by the decision of the Tribunal, the employee filed a writ petition before the High Court which took the view that since the management did not produce the relevant documents before the Industrial Tribunal, an adverse inference should be drawn against it as it was in possession of best evidence and thus, it was not necessary for the employee to call upon the management to do so. The High Court observed that the burden of proof may not be on the management but in case of non-production of documents, an adverse inference could be drawn against the management. Only on that basis, the writ petition was allowed holding that the employee had worked for 240 days. Overruling the decision of the High Court, this Court found on facts of that case that the employee had not adduced any evidence before the court in support of his contention of having complied with the requirement of Section 25-B of the Industrial Disputes Act; that apart from examining himself in support of his contention, the employee did not produce or call for any document from the office of the management including the muster roll (MR) and that apart from muster rolls, the employee did not produce the offer of appointment or evidence concerning remuneration received by him for working during the aforementioned period…

14. In Range Forest Officer [(2002) 3 SCC 25 : 2002 SCC (L&S) 367] the dispute was referred to the Labour Court as to whether the workman had completed 240 days of service. Vide award dated 10-8-1988, the Tribunal held that the services were wrongly terminated without giving retrenchment compensation. In arriving at this conclusion, the Tribunal stated that in view of the affidavit of the workman saying that he had worked for 240 days, the burden was on the management to show justification in termination of the service. It is in this light that the Division Bench of this Court took the view that the Tribunal was not right in placing the burden on the management without first determining on the basis of cogent evidence that the workman had worked for 240 days in the year preceding his termination. This Court held that it was for the claimant to lead evidence to show that he had worked for 240 days in the year preceding his termination; that filing of an affidavit is only his own statement in his own favour which cannot be recorded as sufficient evidence for any court or tribunal to come to the conclusion that a workman had worked for 240 days in a year. This Court found that there was no proof of receipt of salary or wages for 240 days; that the letter of appointment was not produced; that the letter of termination was not produced on record and, therefore, the award was set aside.

15. In Rajasthan State Ganganagar S. Mills Ltd. [(2004) 8 SCC 161 : 2004 SCC (L&S) 1055] the workman had alleged that he had worked for more than 240 days in the year concerned, which claim was denied by the management. The workman had merely filed an affidavit in support of his case. Therefore, the Division Bench of this Court took the view that it was for the claimant to lead evidence to show that he had worked for 240 days in the year preceding his termination. This Court observed that filing of an affidavit was not enough because the affidavit contained self-serving statement of the workman which cannot be regarded as sufficient evidence for any court or tribunal to come to the conclusion that the claimant had worked for 240 days in a year. Further, this Court found that there was no proof of receipt of salary or wages for 240 days and, therefore, mere non-production of the muster roll for a particular period was not sufficient for the Labour Court to hold that the workman had worked for 240 days as claimed. On the facts of that case, the Court found that even if the period for which the workman had alleged to have worked was taken into account, as mentioned in his affidavit, still the said workman did not fulfil the requirement of completion of 240 days of service and, therefore, this Court set aside the award of the Labour Court.

16. In M.P. Electricity Board [(2004) 8 SCC 246 : 2004 SCC (L&S) 1092] the workmen were engaged by the Board on daily wages for digging pits to erect electric poles. It was the case of the Board that on completion of the project, the employment was terminated and whenever a similar occasion arose for digging pits, the workmen were re-employed on daily wages and, therefore, their employment was not permanent in nature nor had the workmen completed 240 days of continuous work in a given year. The project jobs came to an end in 1991 and the workmen were never re-employed by the Board. Being aggrieved by the said non-employment, the workmen filed applications under the M.P. Industrial Relations Act seeking permanent employment, primarily on the ground that they have completed 240 days in a year and their discontinuation of service amounted to retrenchment without following the legal requirements. The Board denied the allegations made in the application before the Labour Court. An application was moved before the Labour Court by the workmen seeking direction to the Board to produce the muster roll for the period concerned. However, no other material was produced by the workmen to establish the fact that they had worked for 240 days continuously in a given year.

Some of the workmen were also examined before the Labour Court. However, no document was produced in the form of letter of appointment, receipt indicating payment of salary, etc. After examining the entry in the muster rolls, the Labour Court came to the conclusion that the workmen had not worked for 240 days continuously in a given year, hence, they could not claim permanency nor could they term their non-employment as retrenchment. Aggrieved by the award of the Labour Court, the workmen preferred an appeal before the Industrial Court at Bhopal which took the view that since the Board has failed to produce the entire muster roll for the year ending 1990, an adverse inference was required to be drawn against the Board and solely based on the said inference, the Industrial Court accepted the case of the workmen that they had worked for 240 days continuously in a given year. Accordingly, the Industrial Court granted reinstatement to the workmen with 50% back wages. Drawing of such an adverse inference was challenged before this Court by the M.P. Electricity Board. In the light of the aforestated facts, this Court opined that the Industrial Court or the High Court could not have drawn an adverse inference for non-production of the muster rolls for the years 1990 to 1992, particularly in the absence of a specific plea by the claimants that they had worked during the period for which muster rolls were not produced. This Court observed that the initial burden of establishing the factum of their continuous work for 240 days in a year was on the workmen and since that burden was not discharged, the Industrial Court and the High Court had erred in ordering reinstatement solely on an adverse inference drawn erroneously.

17. Analysing the above decisions of this Court, it is clear that the provisions of the Evidence Act in terms do not apply to the proceedings under Section 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act. However, applying general principles and on reading the aforestated judgments, we find that this Court has repeatedly taken the view that the burden of proof is on the claimant to show that he had worked for 240 days in a given year. This burden is discharged only upon the workman stepping in the witness box. This burden is discharged upon the workman adducing cogent evidence, both oral and documentary. In cases of termination of services of daily-waged earners, there will be no letter of appointment or termination. There will also be no receipt or proof of payment. Thus in most cases, the workman (the claimant) can only call upon the employer to produce before the court the nominal muster roll for the given period, the letter of appointment or termination, if any, the wage register, the attendance register, etc. Drawing of adverse inference ultimately would depend thereafter on the facts of each case. The above decisions however make it clear that mere affidavits or self-serving statements made by the claimant workman will not suffice in the matter of discharge of the burden placed by law on the workman to prove that he had worked for 240 days in a given year. The above judgments further lay down that mere non-production of muster rolls per se without any plea of suppression by the claimant workman will not be the ground for the Tribunal to draw an adverse inference against the management. Lastly, the above judgments lay down the basic principle, namely, that the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution will not interfere with the concurrent findings of fact recorded by the Labour Court unless they are perverse. This exercise will depend upon the facts of each case."

21. After referring to earlier judgments on the issue of onus of proof, a similar view was taken in the case of Ranip Nagar Palika Vs. Babuji Gabhaji Thakore & Ors.8. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"8. ...the burden of proof lies on the workman to show that he had worked continuously for 240 days for the preceding one year and it is for the workman to adduce evidence apart from examining himself to prove the factum of being in employment of the employer."

22. In the context of burden of proof requiring 240 days continuous service and drawing of an adverse inference, reference may also be had to the judgment in the case of Sub-Divisional Engineer, Irrigation Project, Yavatmal Vs. Sarang Marotrao Gurnule9.

"21. The next question is how the workman is expected to discharge this burden? Does it follow from the observations in the judgments quoted above (underlined for the sake of convenience) that a workman is expected to tender a particular quantum of evidence, or to examine a particular number of witnesses in support of his plea? The Evidence Act, which does not apply to matter under the Industrial Disputes Act, too does not lay down that any particular number of witnesses must be examined to prove a particular fact. A fact is held as proved when a Judge upon considering the matter before him either believes it to exist or considers its existence so probable that a man of ordinary prudence would believe that it exists. Just as it would be futile to expect an employer to prove a non-existent fact, namely that a workman had not worked for 240 days, it would be futile to expect a workman to produce non-existent evidence. The best evidence rule would mandate that if the workman has in his possession any documentary evidence which would support his word on oath, he must produce such evidence, and, if he is not doing so, it would result in discrediting his word. The observations of the Apex Court that in addition to his own word, the workman must put in something more has to be read with this caveat. The difficulties and dangers in examining another workman in support of his own claim may be imagined. Ordinarily out of fear of reprisal a workmen who is already in employment is unlikely to step into the witness box to support the case of a colleague who has been thrown out. Workman's examining another workman who has been similarly thrown out would not cut ice with the Court because the Court may feel that two lies do not make one truth. Therefore, ultimately in the matter of appreciation of evidence, it is for the Judge who sees the parties in person and receives their evidence to decide whether he would believe them or not. Whether burden on workman is discharged by him or not would have to be decided by applying law declared in following few sentences from para 17 in judgment of three-Judge Bench in R.M. Yellati v. The Asstt. Executive Engineer (supra), which we wish to again reproduce, for, there would be no clearer pronouncement on the subject at pp. 448 & 449 of 2006 (1) LLJ 442.

"17. This burden is discharged only upon the workman stepping in the witness box. This burden is discharged upon the workman adducing cogent evidence, both oral and documentary. In cases of termination of services of daily-waged earners, there will be no letter of appointment or termination. There will also be no receipt or proof of payment. Thus in most cases, the workman (the claimant) can only call upon the employer to produce before the Court the nominal muster roll for the given period, the letter of appointment or termination, if any, the wage register, the attendance register, etc. Drawing of adverse inference ultimately would depend thereafter on the facts of each case. The above decisions however make it clear that mere affidavits or self-serving statements made by the claimant workman will not suffice in the matter of discharge of the burden placed by law on the workman to prove that he had worked for 240 days in a given year. The above judgments further lay down that mere non-production of muster rolls per se without any plea of suppression by the claimant workman will not be the ground for the Tribunal to draw an adverse inference against the management. Lastly, the above judgments lay down the basic principle, namely, that the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution will not interfere with the concurrent findings of fact recorded by the Labour Court unless they are perverse. This exercise will depend upon the facts of each case."

A careful re-reading of this passage would show that the Court does not hint at necessity of examining anyone in addition to the workman, while at the same time saying that affidavit alone would not be sufficient. What is expected of workman is to tender cogent evidence, by stepping in the witness box (and thereby allowing the truth of his version to be tested by cross-examination)."

23. The legal position with regard to the burden of proof and onus is well settled and it has been consistently held that the burden of proving a fact rests on the party who substantially asserts the affirmative of the issue and not upon the party who denies it. In this regard reference may be had to the judgment in the case of Haridwar Vs. Smt. Kulwant10, wherein it was held as follows:-

"12. In my view, learned counsel for the appellant is misconstruing the concept of term "burden of proof" and "onus" by identifying the two as synonymous. The onus probandi i.e. "Burden of proof" lies upon a person who is bound to prove the fact and it never shifts.

13. Section 101 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1872") talks of burden of proof, and says:

"Burden of proof.--Whoever desires any Court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts, must prove that those facts exist.

When a person is bound to prove the existence of any fact, it is said that the burden of proof lies on that person."

14. The burden of proving a fact rests on the party who substantially asserts the affirmative of the issue and not upon the party who denies it; for a negative is usually incapable of proof. The provision is based on the rule, ie incumbit probatio qui dicit, non qui negat. In Constantine Line v. I S Corpn, (1941) 2 All ER 165, Lord Maugham said;

"It is an ancient rule founded on consideration on good sense and should not be departed from without strong reasons."

15. A person who asserts a particular fact has to prove the same. Until such burden is discharged, the other party is not required to be called upon to prove his case. Whoever desires a Court to give judgment, dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts, must prove that those facts exist. The distinction between "burden of proof" and "onus" is that the former lies upon the person and never shifts but the "onus" shifts. Shifting of onus is a continuous process in the evaluation of evidence. For example, in a suit for possession, based on title once the plaintiff is able to create a high degree of probability so as to shift the onus on the defendant, it is then for the defendant to discharge his onus and in absence of such discharge by defendant, burden of proof lying on the plaintiff shall be held to have been discharged so as to amount to proof of plaintiff's title.

16. The above distinction between "burden of proof" and "onus" of proof has been explained in A.Raghavamma v. A. Chenchamma, AIR 1964 SC 136, followed in R.V.E. Venkatachala Gounder v. Arulmigu Viswesaraswami & V.P. Temple and another, (2003) 8 SCC 752.

17. Section 102 of Act, 1872 says that burden of proof in a suit would lie on a person who would fail if no evidence at all were given on either side. Here it is not degree of proof but the onus to lead evidence i.e. obligation to begin to prove a fact. The burden of proof as such has not been defined in the Act but looking to the substance and the context and spirit, it can be said that burden to establish case, loosely, can be said to be burden of proof.

18. For applying above provision in the case in hand, there can be no manner of doubt in holding that burden of proof lies upon the plaintiff. In the case in hand, to prove that sale deed in question suffers an infirmity, justifying its cancellation, as pleaded in the plaint and to prove those facts, burden lies upon plaintiff. But then it has to be understood that there is a distinction between "burden of proof" as a matter of law and pleading and as a matter of adducing evidence. In the first sense, the burden is always constant but burden in the sense of adducing evidence shifts from time to time, having regard to evidence adduced or the presumption of fact or law raised in favour of one or the other. On this aspect, more light emanates when we go through Sections 103 and 104 of Act, 1872, which read as under:

"S. 103. Burden of proof as to particular fact.--The burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the Court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any law that the proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person.

S. 104. Burden of proving fact to be proved to make evidence admissible.--The burden of proving any fact necessary to be provided in order to enable any person to give evidence of any other fact is on the person who wishes to give such evidence."

24. In the case of Rangammal Vs. Kuppuswami & Anr.11, referring to Section 101 of the Evidence Act, it was held that the burden of proving a fact always lies upon the person who asserts the fact and until such burden is discharged, the other party is not required to be called upon to prove his case. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"21. Section 101 of the Evidence Act, 1872 defines "burden of proof" which clearly lays down that:

"101. Burden of proof.-- Whoever desires any court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts, must prove that those facts exist.

When a person is bound to prove the existence of any fact, it is said that the burden of proof lies on that person."

Thus, the Evidence Act has clearly laid down that the burden of proving a fact always lies upon the person who asserts it. Until such burden is discharged, the other party is not required to be called upon to prove his case. The court has to examine as to whether the person upon whom the burden lies has been able to discharge his burden. Until he arrives at such conclusion, he cannot proceed on the basis of weakness of the other party."

25. The burden of proof is thus the legal obligation on a party to prove the allegation made by him, and is often associated with the maxim "Semper necessitas probandi incumbit ei qui agit" which means the burden of proof is on the claimant.

26. The essential distinction between "burden of proof" and "onus of proof" is legally well settled. The burden of proof lies upon the person who has to prove a fact and it never shifts; however the shifting of onus of proof is a continuous process in the evaluation of evidence. In this regard reference may be had to the judgment in the case of A. Raghavamma and another Vs. A. Chenchamma & Anr.12 wherein it was held as follows:-

"12. ...There is an essential distinction between burden of proof and onus of proof : burden of proof lies upon the person who has to prove a fact and it never shifts, but the onus of proof shifts. The burden of proof in the present case undoubtedly lies upon the plaintiff to establish the factum of adoption and that of partition. The said circumstances do not alter the incidence of the burden of proof. Such considerations, having regard to the circumstances of a particular case, may shift the onus of proof. Such a shifting of onus is a continuous process in the evaluation of evidence…"

27. The aforementioned position has been discussed in a recent judgment of this Court in M/s Triveni Engineering Industry Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. & Ors.13 and also State of U.P. & Anr. Vs. Chhunna Lal & Anr.14

28. In the instant case the aforementioned burden of proof having not been discharged by the respondent-workman the finding recorded by the Labour Court with regard to the workman having been completed 240 days in a calender year so as to claim entitlement of the protection under Section 6N of the Act, 1947 is not supported from the records and the same being contrary to the material evidence which is available on record the finding cannot be legally sustained. The respondent-workman having not been able to prove the factum of his continuous service he was not entitled to benefit of the protection of Section 6N of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and to the reliefs which have been granted by the Labour Court.

29. Presumption as to adverse inference for non-production of evidence is not obligatory and the burden of proof having not been discharged by the workman the Labour Court could not have proceeded to issue directions for reinstatement, back wages and other consequential benefits solely on the basis of adverse inference.

30. As regards the contention raised by the counsel for the petitioner that the alleged termination having been said to have been made on 01.10.1991 the reference made on 29.03.2014 was highly belated, this Court may take notice of the fact that though no limitation has been prescribed for making of a reference; however, delay in raising an industrial dispute would definitely be an important circumstance which must keep in view at the time of exercise of discretion by the Labour Court irrespective of whether or not such objection has been raised by the other side.

31. The limitation period for making a reference was subject matter of consideration in the case of Sapan Kumar Pandit Vs. U.P. State Electricity Board & Ors.15, wherein it was held that the limitation period for making reference is co-extensive with the existence of dispute, meaning thereby that the dispute should be alive on the day when the decision was taken to make a reference or to refuse to make reference. The observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"8. The above section is almost in tune with Section 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, and the difference between these two provisions does not relate to the points at issue in this case. Though no time-limit is fixed for making the reference for a dispute for adjudication, could any State Government revive a dispute which had submerged in stupor by long lapse of time and rekindle by making a reference of it to adjudication? The words "at any time' as used in the section are prima facie indicator to a period without boundary. But such an interpretation making the power unending would be pedantic. There is inherent evidence in this sub-section itself to indicate that the time has some circumscription. The words "where the Government is of opinion that any industrial dispute exists or is apprehended' have to be read in conjunction with the words "at any time'. They are, in a way, complementary to each other. The Government's power to refer an industrial dispute for adjudication has thus one limitation of time and that is, it can be done only so long as the dispute exists. In other words, the period envisaged by the enduring expression "at any time' terminates with the eclipse of the industrial dispute. It, therefore, means that if the dispute existed on the day when the reference was made by the Government, it is idle (sic ideal) to ascertain the number of years which elapsed since the commencement of the dispute to determine whether the delay would have extinguished the power of the Government to make the reference.

9. Hence the real test is, was the industrial dispute in existence on the date of reference for adjudication? If the answer is in the negative then the Government's power to make a reference would have extinguished. On the other hand, if the answer is in positive terms the Government could have exercised the power whatever be the range of the period which elapsed since the inception of the dispute. That apart, a decision of the Government in this regard cannot be listed (sic) on the possibility of what another party would think, whether any dispute existed or not. The section indicates that if in the opinion of the Government the dispute existed then the Government could make the reference. The only authority which can form such an opinion is the Government. If the Government decides to make the reference, there is a presumption that in the opinion of the Government, there existed such a dispute."

32. In Shalimar Works Ltd. Vs. Workmen16 it was pointed out that although there is no limitation prescribed for making a reference of a dispute to the Industrial Tribunal under Section 10(1) of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, the dispute should be referred as soon as possible and in that case the reference having been made after four years of the dispute having arisen it was held that relief of reinstatement should not be given to the discharged workmen in such a belated reference.

33. The issue of lapse of time in making a reference and the effect of the words ' at any time' used under Section 4(k) of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 was considered in the case of Western India Match Co. Ltd. Vs. Workers' Union17, and it was held that the discretion conferred upon the Government for making a reference was not unfettered. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are as follows:-

"8. From the words used in Section 4(k) of the Act there can be no doubt that the Legislature has left the question of making or refusing to make a reference for adjudication to the discretion of the Government. But the discretion is neither unfettered nor arbitrary for the section clearly provides that there must exist an industrial dispute as defined by the Act or such a dispute must be apprehended when the Government decides to refer it for adjudication. No reference thus can be made unless at the time when the Government decides to make it an industrial dispute between the employer and his employees either exists or is apprehended. Therefore, the expression "at any time", though seemingly without any limits, is governed by the context in which it appears. Ordinarily, the question of making a reference would arise after conciliation proceedings have been gone through and the conciliation officer has made a failure report. But the Government need not wait until such a procedure has been completed. In an urgent case, it can "at any time", i.e., even when such proceedings have not begun or are still pending, decide to refer the dispute for adjudication. The expression "at any time" thus takes in such cases as where the Government decides to make a reference without waiting for conciliation proceedings to begin or to be completed. As already stated, the expression "at any time" in the context in which it is used postulates that a reference can only be made if an industrial dispute exists or is apprehended. No reference is contemplated by the section when the dispute is not an industrial dispute, or even if it is so, it no longer exists or is not apprehended, for instance, where it is already adjudicated or in respect of which there is an agreement or a settlement between the parties or where the industry in question is no longer in existence.

13. It is true that where a Government reconsiders its previous decision and decides to make the reference, such a decision might cause inconvenience to the employer because the employer in the meantime might have acted on the belief that there would be no proceedings by way of adjudication of the dispute between him and his workmen. Such a consideration would, we should think, be taken into account by the Government whenever, in exercise of its discretion, it decides to reopen its previous decision as also the time which has lapsed between its earlier decision and the date when it decides to reconsider it. These are matters which the Government would have to take into account while deciding whether it should reopen its former decision in the interest of justice and industrial peace but have nothing to do with its jurisdiction Under Section 4(k) of the Act. Whether the intervening period may be short or long would necessarily depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case, and therefore, in construing the expression "at any time" in Section 4(k) it would be impossible to lay down any limits to it."

34. The nature and manner of exercise of powers under Section 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 to make a reference was restated in the case of Nedungadi Bank Ltd. Vs. K.P. Madhavankutty18, and it was observed that in spite of absence of a statutory limitation period the power to make reference cannot be exercised to revive settled matters or to refer stale disputes and in the facts of the case the reference having been made after seven years the same was held to be bad both on the grounds of delay as well as non-existence of an industrial dispute. The relevant extracts from the judgment are as follows:-

"6. Law does not prescribe any time-limit for the appropriate Government to exercise its powers Under Section 10 of the Act. It is not that this power can be exercised at any point of time and to revive matters which had since been settled. Power is to be exercised reasonably and in a rational manner. There appears to us to be no rational basis on which the Central Government has exercised powers in this case after a lapse of about seven years of the order dismissing the Respondent from service. At the time reference was made no industrial dispute existed or could be even said to have been apprehended. A dispute which is stale could not be the subject-matter of reference Under Section 10 of the Act. As to when a dispute can be said to be stale would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. When the matter has become final, it appears to us to be rather incongruous that the reference be made Under Section 10 of the Act in the circumstances like the present one. In fact it could be said that there was no dispute pending at the time when the reference In question was made. The only ground advanced by the Respondent was that two other employees who were dismissed from service were reinstated. Under what circumstances they were dismissed and subsequently reinstated is nowhere mentioned. Demand raised by the respondent for raising an industrial dispute was ex facie bad and incompetent.

7. In the present appeal it is not the case of the respondent that the disciplinary proceedings, which resulted in his dismissal, were in any way illegal or there was even any irregularity. He availed his remedy of appeal under the rules governing his conditions of service. It could not be said that in the circumstances an industrial dispute did arise or was even apprehended after a lapse of about seven years of the dismissal of the respondent. Whenever a workman raises some dispute it does not become an industrial dispute and the appropriate Government cannot in a mechanical fashion make the reference of the alleged dispute terming it as an industrial dispute. The Central Government lacked power to make reference both on the ground of delay in invoking the power Under Section 10 of the Act and there being no industrial dispute existing or even apprehended. The purpose of reference is to keep industrial peace in an establishment. The present reference is destructive to the industrial peace and defeats the very object and purpose of the Act. The Bank was justified in thus moving the High Court seeking an order to quash the reference in question.

8. It was submitted by the respondent that once a reference has been made Under Section 10 of the Act a Labour Court has to decide the same and the High Court in writ jurisdiction cannot interfere in the proceedings of the Labour Court. That is not a correct proposition to state. An administrative order which does not take into consideration statutory requirements or travels outside that is certainly subject to judicial review, limited though it might be. The High Court can exercise its powers under Article 226 of the Constitution to consider the question of the very jurisdiction of the Labour Court. In National Engg. Industries Ltd. v. State of Rajasthan (2000) 1 SCC 371 this Court observed:

24. It will be thus seen that the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain a writ petition when there is an allegation that there is no industrial dispute and none apprehended which could be the subject matter of reference for adjudication to the Industrial Tribunal Under Section 10 of the Act. Here it is a question of jurisdiction of the Industrial Tribunal, which could be examined by the High Court in its writ jurisdiction. It is the existence of the Industrial Tribunal (sic dispute) which would clothe the appropriate Government with power to make the reference and the Industrial Tribunal to adjudicate it. If there is no industrial dispute in existence or apprehended the appropriate Government lacks power to make any reference."

35. The period of limitation for making a reference under Section 10(1) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and the import of the words 'at any time' used in the said section again came up for consideration in the case of Prabhakar Vs. Joint Director, Sericulture Department & Anr.19, and the necessity of determining whether a claim is still alive or it has become stale while making the reference was reiterated and in that case where the services of the workman had been terminated on 01.04.1985 and the reference was made in the year 1999 it was held that the reference after fourteen years of termination without any justifiable explanation for delay was bad in law since it was in respect of a non-existing dispute. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are being extracted below.

"42.3. ...if the dispute is raised after a long period, it has to be seen as to whether such a dispute still exists? Thus, notwithstanding the fact that law of limitation does not apply, it is to be shown by the workman that there is a dispute in praesenti. For this purpose, he has to demonstrate that even if considerable period has lapsed and there are laches and delays, such delay has not resulted into making the industrial dispute cease to exist. Therefore, if the workman is able to give satisfactory explanation for these laches and delays and demonstrate that the circumstances disclose that issue is still alive, delay would not come in his way because of the reason that law of limitation has no application. On the other hand, if because of such delay dispute no longer remains alive and is to be treated as "dead", then it would be non-existent dispute which cannot be referred.

44. To summarise, although there is no limitation prescribed under the Act for making a reference under Section 10(1) of the ID Act, yet it is for the "appropriate Government" to consider whether it is expedient or not to make the reference. The words "at any time" used in Section 10(1) do not admit of any limitation in making an order of reference and laws of limitation are not applicable to proceedings under the ID Act. However, the policy of industrial adjudication is that very stale claims should not be generally encouraged or allowed inasmuch as unless there is satisfactory explanation for delay as, apart from the obvious risk to industrial peace from the entertainment of claims after long lapse of time, it is necessary also to take into account the unsettling effect which it is likely to have on the employers' financial arrangement and to avoid dislocation of an industry.

45. On the application of the aforesaid principle to the facts of the present case, we are of the view that the High Court correctly decided the issue holding that the reference at such a belated stage i.e. after fourteen years of termination without any justifiable explanation for delay, the appropriate Government had no jurisdiction or power to make reference of a non-existing dispute."

36. The facts of the present case are somewhat similar to the facts as in the case of Prabhakar Vs. Joint Director, Sericulture Department & Anr. as in the present case also in respect of an alleged termination said to have been made on 01.10.1991 the reference was made on 29.03.2014 i.e. after a lapse of more than two decades there would be little reason to believe that there existed a live dispute when the reference was made and for this reason also the award passed by the Labour Court more particularly the directions issued for reinstating the respondent-workman in service with effect from the date of termination and further holding him entitled to 25% of the back wages and also full back wages from the date of the award cannot be sustained.

37. In view of the foregoing discussion the award dated 21.12.2015 passed by the Labour Court, U.P., Jhansi in Adjudication Case No.62 of 2014 is held to be legally unsustainable and is accordingly set aside.

38. The writ petition is allowed in the aforementioned terms.

A. Deciding question of maintainability by Registrar of Tribunal - an issue which can be decided only by appropriate forum and not by ministerial staff, more so when no such provision is existing in statute empowering Registrar to take a decision on the question of maintainability. (Para 4)

Petition filed by petitioners before Debts Recovery Tribunal - returned by Registrar - on the ground of maintainability - Registrar has gone to the extent of disregarding the judgements , Narendra Kanti Lal Shah Vs. Joint Registrar Cooperative Societies & M. Babu Rao and others Vs. Deputy Registrar of Co-operative Societies and others , observing that judicial explanation does not become binding unless rules are subsequently modified to accommodate need for change - This approach and understanding on the part of Registrar speaks about not only impertinence but lack of judicial knowledge wherein it can ignore verdict of two High Courts on the ground that judgment itself is not binding unless rules are modified. (Para 3 & 5)

Held:- Order passed by Debts Recovery Tribunal set aside - Registrar of Debts Recovery Tribunal directed to register the original application filed by petitioners - it will be open to Tribunal to record deficiencies/ objections whatever it finds, where after final decision on correctness of those deficiencies/ objections will be taken by Tribunal. (Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J. & Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri B.S. Pandey, learned counsel for petitioners and learned Standing Counsel for respondents.

2. With the consent of learned counsel for parties we proceed to decide this writ petition at this stage, since only short legal issue in involved in this writ petition.

3. The petition filed by petitioners before Debts Recovery Tribunal has been returned by Registrar on the ground of maintainability vide order dated 29.09.2015, which is challenged in present writ petition.

4. Learned Standing Counsel, despite repeated query, could not show any provision under which question of maintainability can be decided by Registrar of Tribunal. This is an issue which can be decided only by appropriate forum and not by ministerial staff, moreso when no such provision is existing in statute empowering Registrar to take a decision on the question of maintainability.

5. We also find some impertinence on the part of Registrar, Debts Recovery Tribunal, Allahabad inasmuch as petitioners it appears placed reliance on a Full Bench decision of Bombay High Court in Narendra Kanti Lal Shah Vs. Joint Registrar Cooperative Societies, delivered on 12.12.2003 and a judgment of Andra Pradesh High Court in M. Babu Rao and others Vs. Deputy Registrar of Co-operative Societies and others, delivered on 05.07.2005 but Registrar has gone to the extent of disregarding aforesaid judgments observing that judicial explanation does not become binding unless rules are subsequently modified to accommodate need for change. This approach and understanding on the part of Registrar speaks about not only impertinence but lack of judicial knowledge wherein it can ignore verdict of two High Courts on the ground that judgment itself is not binding unless rules are modified. It is something like that where a provision is declared ultra vires by a Court but executive may say that since provision so declared has not been removed from statute book by legislature, therefore, he is bound to follow such provision. We, therefore, condemn this attitude and approach on the part of Registrar in disregarding judgments of two High Courts in such manner.

6. In the result, writ petition succeeds and is allowed. Order dated 29.09.2015 is hereby set aside. We further direct that original application filed by petitioners shall be registered by Registrar of Debts Recovery Tribunal concerned. However, it will be open to Tribunal to record deficiencies/ objections whatever it finds, whereafter final decision on correctness of those deficiencies/ objections will be taken by Tribunal.
