Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act,1872 - Sections 3, 154- The first informant Shamshuddin is not an eye witness to the incident. He has categorically stated that the information about the incident has been received by at his house through Naeemuddin PW-1. Naeemuddin PW-1 has not supported the prosecution case and has been declared hostile. The person whose name surfaced later on as an eye witness is Faizuddin PW-4 - In the application of Shamshuddin, there is no reference of Faizuddin being an eye witness to the incident.The sole eye witness Faizuddin PW-4 after the other eye witness Naeemuddin PW-1 has been declared hostile is a chance witness and an interested witness as being the youngest brother of the first informant and the deceased. The evidence of the only eye witness being Faizuddin PW-4 does not inspire confidence. In so far as the fact that the deceased had given an oral dying declaration to Shamshuddin PW-3 whereby he had described the entire incident and detailed about it to him also does not appear to be true and trustworthy as the deceased while in an injured condition was in an unconscious state. There is no evidence or document on record showing his condition contrary to that. Thus, telling Shamshuddin PW-3 of the version of the occurrence as stated by Shahjuddin is a concoction.

It is settled law that although the Court can secure the conviction of the accused on the basis of the evidence of a solitary witness, but where the evidence of such solitary witness is false and concocted on the face of it and fails to inspire the confidence of the Court, then conviction of the accused cannot be secured on the basis of such untrustworthy evidence. Criminal Appeal Allowed. (E-2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Samit Gopal, J.)

[Delivered by Samit Gopal, J. for the Bench under Chapter VII Rule 1 (2) of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952]

1. The present appeal has been preferred from jail by the appellant Ram Das against the judgment and order dated 29.03.2016 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Kannauj, in Sessions Trial No. 428 of 2008 (State of U.P. Vs. Ram Ashrey) which was connected with Sessions Trial No. 445 of 2007 (State of U.P. Vs. Ram Das) whereby the appellant has been convicted and sentenced under Section 304 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 to Life imprisonment and fine of Rs. 25,000/-. In default of payment of fine, he is directed to undergo two years imprisonment.

2. Initially, in the present matter, a non - cognizable report was lodged by Shamshuddin which was registered as N.C.R No. 122 of 2005 at 22:45 hrs on 07.11.2005 at Police Station Thithiya, District Kannauj. The version as stated in the said report is that his brother was coming back home on a cycle from cold storage Thithiya and behind him Ram Ashrey son of Bechey Lal was also coming on a cycle and when they reached Bhadausa Road on the drain, Ram Das son of Sundar Lal met him and tried to sit on his cycle, to which, his brother refused and then Ram Das started abusing him. On being tried to stop, he assaulted his brother with kicks and shoes, as a result of which, his brother received injuries on his nose and face and started shouting. Co-villager Naeemuddin saw the incident and saved him. The incident is of 07:00 pm. It is further stated that the treatment of his brother is being done in Qasba Thithiya. He states that a report be registered and action be being taken. The name of his brother is Shahjuddin. The said application is marked as Exb: Ka-2 to the records.

3. Shahjuddin was got medically examined on 08.11.2005 at 10:00 am at PHC, Thithiya by Doctor S.B. Dwivedi (PW-2) wherein he was brought by the informant Shamshuddin. The doctor found one lacerated wound on his person which is as follows:-

"1. Lacerated wound 4.6 cm x 0.5 cm x bone deep on right side nose just away right eye brow. Irregular margin. Blood clot present. Unconscious. Heavy blood loss and swelling on forehead and nose, vomiting, Adv. X-ray and expert opinion."

The injury was kept under observation, X-ray was advised and expert opinion was also advised. The same was opined to have been caused by hard and blunt object and the duration was about half day old, the said medical examination report is marked as Exb: Ka-1 to the records.

4. Subsequently, Shahjuddin died on 09.11.2005 at 09:45 pm while being under treatment in L.L.R Hospital, Kanpur Nagar. The inquest was conducted on his body by Sub-Inspector Shyam Lal Das (PW-10) on 10.11.2005 between 11:40 am and 12:40 pm at L.L.R. Hospital Kanpur Nagar, the same is marked as Exb: Ka-4 to the records.

5. The postmortem examination of Shahjuddin was conducted on 10.11.2005 at 02:20 pm by Doctor Kamal Kumar (PW-9) and the doctor found the following injuries:

"1. Contused swelling 6.0 cm x 5 cm on left temporo-parietal area just above left ear.

2. Abraded contusion 5 cm x 4.0 cm on left side of face.

3. Stitched wound 3 cm long. Four stitches present on right eye lid.

4. Stitched wound 2 cm long. Two stitches present on nose."

The cause of death opined was coma as a result of head injury. The postmortem report is marked as Exb: Ka-6 to the records.

6. The investigation concluded and a charge sheet no. 9 of 2006 dated 10.02.2006 was filed against Ram Ashrey under Section 304 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860, the same is marked as Exb: Ka-4 to the records.

7. A charge sheet no. 9-A of 2006 dated 22.04.2006 was filed against Ram Das under Section 304 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 as an absconder, the same is marked as Exb: Ka-5 to the records.

8. The trial court framed charge under Section 304 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860

vide order dated 02.01.2009 against Ram Ashrey and under the same section vide order dated 04.02.2009 against Ram Das, to which, both the accused pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

9. By the impugned judgment and order, accused Ram Ashrey has been acquitted of the charges levelled against him but the present appellant Ram Das has been convicted and sentenced as stated above.

10. On receiving the medical examination report of Shahjuddin, the non-cognizable report was converted into a regular case vide GD No. 27 transcribed at 23:05 hrs on 09.11.2005 as Case Crime No. 421 of 2005 under Sections 323, 308, 504 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 by Head Constable Ram Dutt Rathore PW-7. On 13.11.2005, the first informant Shamshuddin gave an application to the Station House Officer, Police Station Thithiya, District Kannauj that the injured Shahjuddin after receiving injuries on 07.11.2005 was in a critical condition and hence was admitted in Hallet Hospital in the emergency in Kanpur and on 09.11.2005 at 09:45 pm while being under treatment, he died.

11. The accused persons pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried. They have led no defence.

12. The prosecution in order to prove its case produced Naeemuddin as PW-1 who claimed himself to be an eye witness. Doctor S.B. Dwivedi PW-2 conducted the medical examination of Shahjuddin while he was alive. Shamshuddin PW-3 is the first informant and the elder brother of the deceased. Faizuddin PW-4 is the younger brother of the deceased and the first informant. Smt. Munni PW-5 is the wife of the deceased. Ramnath Dwivedi PW-6 was the second Investigating Officer of the matter from 22.11.2005 upto 09.12.2005. Ram Dutt Rathore the Head Constable converted the present case from N.C.R. to a regular case after receiving information about the death of the injured. Dev Raj Singh PW-8, is the Investigating Officer of the case from 27.12.2005 after the N.C.R. was converted to a regular case. Dr. Kamal Kumar PW-9 conducted the postmortem examination. Ram Lal Das, Sub-Inspector PW-10 conducted the inquest on the body of the deceased and Mohd. Hafeej PW-11 was the first Investigating Officer from 09.11.2005 after the non-cognizable report was registered.

13. The trial court after considering the entire evidence on record came to the conclusion that there is sufficient evidence against the accused appellant Ram Das for committing the offence and as such convicted and sentenced him as stated above. The accused Ram Ashrey who was also tried with the appellant was acquitted of the charges levelled against him of the same judgment and order.

14. We have heard Sri Ajay Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the appellant who has been appointed in the present case by the High Court Legal Committee to represent the appellant in the present jail appeal and Ms. Kumari Meena, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

15. Learned counsel for the appellant made the following submissions:

i) Naeemuddin PW-1, the eye witness of the incident whose name finds place in the application dated 07.11.2005 given by Shamshuddin which is Exb: Ka-2 to the records did not support the prosecution case and has been declared hostile.

ii) The other eye witness of the incident namely Faizuddin PW-4 is the younger brother of the deceased and the first informant and his name has surfaced all of sudden as an eye witness and he is an interested and related witness.

iii) Shamshuddin, the elder brother of the deceased and the first informant is not an eye witness and he has given the application dated 07.11.2005 on the information received by him from Naeemuddin which was lodged as a NCR. It is thus apparent that the other eye witnesses examined being Faizuddin PW-4 who is the younger brother of the deceased and the first informant is a planted witness and is a related witness whose testimony is totally false just in order to falsely implicate the appellant.

iv) The testimony of the witnesses have major inconsistencies in themselves and as such it cannot be relied upon. Even the version given by Smt. Munni PW-5 is not inconsonance with that given by the other witnesses namely Shamshuddin PW-3 and Faizuddin PW-4 and as such even she cannot be relied upon as a truthful witness.

v) The medical evidence does not corroborate with the prosecution version at all.

16. Per contra, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State argued that the prosecution of the appellant is correct and true. It is argued that Naeemuddin though has been declared hostile but he was named as an eye witness in the application given by Shamshuddin dated 07.11.2005 and further Faizuddin PW-4 is also an eye witness whose presence at the place of occurrence is quite natural. It is further argued that the trial court has considered these aspects and has meticulously dealt with them and has thus convicted the appellant. It is argued that the present appeal lacks merit and be dismissed.

17. PW-1 Naeemuddin was produced as an eye witness to the incident. He states that on 07.11.2005 he was returning on his cycle to his village from Thithiya. He states that he did not see any marpeet. He states that he heard in the village that Shahjuddin is lying at the place of occurrence and when he reached there, he saw Shahjuddin lying unconscious. He states to have reached the place of occurrence at about 08:00 pm when Shahjuddin was lying in an injured condition. He states that he did not see any of the accused persons who are present in court assaulting. He states that he had gone to file an affidavit in the Court which was not read to him. He is illiterate. He was then declared hostile and was permitted cross examination by the ADGC.

18. In the cross examination, he was read over his statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., to which, he states that he did not give any such statement and as to how the same was recorded he does not know the reason. He was shown an affidavit, to which, he stated that on it, his photograph is affixed. He states that he did not go to the Tehsil for getting the said affidavit prepared. He also states that he does not know as to whether the thumb impression affixed on it is his or not. He states that he knows the deceased Shahjuddin. Accused Ram Ashrey is a resident of his village and he does not know as to where Ram Das lives. Ram Ashrey does the work of getting bidi prepared from Makanpur. He states that he does not know accused Ram Ashrey and deceased Shahjuddin used to come and go together or not. He did not see the deceased and did not see the injuries and even did not go to the place of occurrence. He had gone to Tehsil Tivo for getting the affidavit prepared. Along with him Shamshuddin and Faizuddin had gone. To a suggestion that he is giving false evidence as he has colluded with the accused, he denies. He states that the affidavit was read by an Advocate but it was not read over to him. He had affixed his thumb impression on it. He was then cross examined by the defence to which he states that he did not go to the place of occurrence and saw when the injured was brought to the village. He states that Shamshuddin and Faizuddin had taken him to Tehsil Terya and had got his thumb impression affixed on the same and prepared it. He does not know about any paper. He was not told where the paper will be used. He was not interrogated by the Investigating Officer. He states that the deceased Shahjuddin was of his family. There was no enmity between the family of the deceased and his family. The accused Ram Ashrey belongs to Kushwaha caste. The distance between the house of Ram Ashrey and his house is about half kilometre. There was no enmity between the family of the deceased and the accused.

19. Dr. S.B. Dwivedi PW-2 had examined Shahjuddin while he was in an injured condition on 08.11.2005 at 10:00 am when he was posted as the Medical Officer, PHC Thithiya. He states that the injured was brought by his elder brother Shamshuddin and states about the medical examination report which he prepared, the injury noted by him the advice mentioned therein. He states that the injured was unconscious. The injuries are not being quoted herein as they have already been quoted above. The injury report was proved by him which was marked as Exb: Ka-1 to the records. He states that it is possible that the injury might have been received on 07.11.2005 at 07:00 pm.

20. In his cross examination, he states that the injuries were about half day old. He states that when the injured came to him, blood was clotted. Police did not bring the injured to him. He states that the majroobi chitthi and the injured was brought to him by his brother. The injured had received injury on his nose and nowhere else. He states that the said injury can be caused from a stone or if any one bangs on a stone. X-ray of the injured was not brought to him. He did not prepare any supplementary report. The injured was unconscious. The injury cannot be caused by fall. The injury can be caused if any one bangs on a stone. If anyone bangs on a hard blunt object, the injury can be caused. He states that he found only one injury on the body of the injured and did not find any other injury. To a suggestion that there were other injuries on the injured except for one injury, he denies the same.

21. Shamshuddin PW-3 is the informant and the elder brother of the deceased. He is not an eye witness of the incident. He states in his examination-in-chief that the deceased Shahjuddin was his younger brother who used to work in bidi factory of Devi Prasad. Ram Ashrey also worked with him. Ram Das did not work with him. Devi Prasad used to get country made pistol made at his house. He states that his brother Shahjuddin had seen the said illegal work being done. Other employees had told Devi Prasad about it, to which, he said that the information may get leaked and then Devi Prasad give Rs. 30,000/- to Ram Ashrey for getting the murder of his brother. He states that the said information was told by his brother to him when he came from Makanpur, since then Ram Ashrey was trying to get the murder of his brother done. Due to the said reason, Ram Ashrey along with Ram Das committed the murder. The incident is of 07.11.2005 at about 07:00 pm. He states that at that time he was at his house. Naeemuddin co-villager came there and told him that he was returning by foot from Thithiya back to the village and at about 07:00 pm when he reached the drain on Bhadausa Road near the field of Ram Swaroop in Basawan Purva, he saw Ram Das assaulting Shahjuddin with kick, fists and danda by throwing him in the drain on the road. He states at that time Faizuddin PW-4 and Awadhesh reached there and also saw the incident. They exhorted Ram Das, to which, he ran towards Nathuvapur Road. Moonlight was the source of light present. Shahjuddin was lying in an injured condition in the drain of the field. His cycle was lying on the side of the road on the unmetalled part. He states that on the said information, he, Gayasuddin the younger brother, his son Raju and other villagers went to the place of occurrence and saw his brother was lying in an injured condition and the cycle also lying on the unmetalled side of road.

22. He further states that his brother in an injured condition told him that he was returning from cold storage of Thithiya on the cycle and behind him Ram Ashrey was also coming on his cycle. When they reached the place of occurrence, Ram Das met him and stopped him. Ram Ashrey went ahead. Ram Das told him that he may be permitted to sit on the cycle, his brother refused for the same, to which, he was thrown in the drain and assaulted by kick, fists and danda. At that time, Naeemuddin, Faizuddin and Awadhesh reached there and saved him and then Ram Das ran towards Nathuvapur. He then states that he took his injured brother on a cycle to the Police Station Thithiya and got the report lodged. The report was read to him, the same is marked as Exb: Ka-2 to the records.

23. He then states that he took his brother to Thithiya Government Hospital along with letter from the Police Station but did not meet the doctor as it was night and then got his brother treated privately and went home. On the next day, his brother was taken to PHC, Thithiya where he was treated. His condition was precarious and as such he was referred to Hallet Hospital, Kanpur where he was taken on a Marshal Jeep and was being treated. He died on 09.11.2005 in the night and inquest was conducted in the hospital. The postmortem was conducted there only on 10.11.2005 and then the dead body was handed over and the last rites was performed. He states that he had given an application dated 13.11.2005 about the death of his brother at Police Station Thithiya which was proved by him and marked as Exb: Ka-3 to the records. He was interrogated by the Investigating officer.

24. In the cross examination, he states that the day of the incident was Monday. At that time, he was present in the house. The incident is of 07:15 pm. His brother had gone to Thithiya from the house at about 02:00 pm. He does not know where he had gone. He generally used to go and come with Ram Ashrey and Shahjuddin and they were friends. He states that both of them had some differences between them but he does not know what it was. He states that Naeemuddin had informed him about the incident. The name of the father of Naeemuddin is Amjad. Naeemuddin is his nephew. He had informed him about the incident in the evening. When he reached the place of occurrence, Ram Ashrey and Ram Das were present there. He took the injured along with other persons to the police station. The accused persons did not go to the police station. The accused persons ran away after seeing them towards Nathuvapur which is at a distance of half kilometre from the place of occurrence. Night was moonlit. He states to have told it to the Investigating Officer but if the same has not been written in his statement, he does not know the reason for it. About 20 people went with him to the place of occurrence. The injured also went with him to the police station along with him Faizuddin, Naeemuddin, Pappu, Gayasuddin, Munni and other persons. They remained at the Police Station and the hospital together. After getting the report lodged they went away. He states to have given the statement for the first time in the present matter and prior to this he gave his statement to the police at the Police Station. He states that when he reached the Police Station, his brother was lying in an injured condition. His cycle was lying on the unmetalled side of road which was not broken. He stayed at the place of occurrence for half an hour. The injured was taken to the Police Station on the cycle. He was walking while holding him and reached the Police Station. The Police Inspector talked to him and his brother was sitting outside. Letter for medical examination was given to him and he went to the hospital. He does not know for how much time he remained at the police station. He states that it is false that this brother talked to police at the Police Station. His brother had told him about the incident. To a suggestion that he is giving a false evidence, he denies. He states that it is correct that when he reached the place of occurrence, his brother was unconscious and he regained consciousness after he was given treatment.

25. His brother was brought home after first aid and then he told him about the incident, the same was told to him in isolation. He states that he did not see the incident. He was told about it by Naeemuddin. He got the incident reported on the information given to him by his brother. Except for Naeemuddin no one else came to tell him anything. He discloses the names on the basis of information received from Naeemuddin. He has given the names of Ram Das and Ram Ashrey in his report. He states that when he reached the place of occurrence then except for his brother there was no one else present. He states that on the day of occurrence, the fields were vacant and there was no crop at the place of occurrence. There was a milestone fixed. To a suggestion that his brother in an intoxicated condition hit the milestone and received injuries and died, he denies the same. Further, to the suggestion that he has lodged the report on the basis of what he has heard, he denies the same.

26. Faizuddin PW-4 is the youngest brother amongst the first informant Shamshuddin PW-1 and the deceased Shahjuddin. He states that all the brothers live separately. Shahjuddin makes bidi. He was working in the bidi factory of Devi Prasad. He used to go to the factory daily from the house. Ram Ashrey who is also of the same village was also working in the same factory. He states that in the factory of Devi Prasad illegal country made pistol and guns were also manufactured which was seen by the deceased Shahjuddin. The said fact was told to Devi Prasad by the other workers of the bidi factory and stated that the said fact may be leaked on which he gave Rs. 30,000/- to Ram Das and Ram Ashrey for murdering Shahjuddin. This fact was told to him and his brother by Shahjuddin. Since then, Ram Das was in the search of committing murder of Shahjuddin. He states that the incident is of 07.11.2005 at about 07:00 pm. He and Naeemuddin were returning to the village from Thithiya on his cycle. He was driving cycle while Naeemuddin was sitting behind. At the place of occurrence, he saw Ram Das and Ram Ashrey assaulting his brother with danda and butt of a country made pistol. Shahjuddin received injuries due to the assault on his face and head. It was bleeding. His cycle was lying on the unmetalled road. They then exhorted, on which, Ram Ashrey ran towards the village and Ram Das ran towards Nathuvapur. He states that Ram Ashrey gave the information about the incident to his house. Apart from the said two persons, Awadhesh of village Bhadausa also came there who saw the incident and had exhorted. Then Shamshuddin, Gayasuddin, Raju and Munni came to the place of occurrence from the house. He, Awadhesh and Shamshuddin told about the incident. His brother was aged about 35 years. Then they took his brother to Police Station Thithiya report was got lodged at the Police Station by Shamshuddin. The Police had seen his injuries and had given majroobi chitthi then he was taken to Thithiya Hospital but doctor was not present and no treatment was given and his medical was not done. Then, he was taken to a private doctor Rajendra Katihar who gave him first aid and did dressing of the injury and the injured was brought to the house. Then, in the morning, he was taken to Thithiya from where he was referred to Hallet Hospital, Kanpur. He was treated for three days in Hallet Hospital and on the third day, he died.

27. The inquest was conducted and the dead body was sealed. He, Shamshuddin and other persons had gone to Kanpur. He, Shamshuddin, Pappu, Kaley Khan and Nanhey Khan were appointed as Panch witnesses to the inquest. He identifies his signature on the inquest which was marked as Exb: Ka-4 to the records. The postmortem examination was then conducted and they brought the dead body thereafter to the village and performed the last rites.

28. In cross examination, he states that he saw the incident and is an eye witness. To a suggestion that the incident was informed to the house and then he went to lodge the report, he states it to be false. He had started from the Thithiya at about 07:00 pm. The distance between Thithiya and the place of occurrence is two kilometres. Naeemuddin was with him. He first saw Ram Ashrey. His brother Shahjuddin and Ram Ashrey were going on different cycles. Ram Ashrey was going in the front. At that time it was dark. Vehicles also ply on the road on which he goes to his house. The accused ran away after the incident. He saw the incident from a distance of 50-60 steps. The accused saw them and ran away. He did not chase the accused but had shouted. He shouted as soon as he identified his brother. He does not know as to for how much time did the assault last. He states that his brother did not use to drink liquor before him.

29. The information of country made pistol being manufactured at the cold store was told to him by his brother 2-3 times. He did not give any application at the Police Station for any action. His brother also did not complain about the manufacture of the country made pistol. He did not see country made pistol being manufactured at the bidi factory. He does not know of any differences between the owner of the bidi factory and his brother and neither did his brother ever tell him. His brother did not see him coming behind. His brother did not raise a shout and he did not hear it. When he reached the place of occurrence and turned the person lying there then he identified him to be his brother. He states that there is a milestone fixed at the place of occurrence on the side of the road. To a suggestion that the dead body was found at the milestone, he denies the same and states that it was found about 30-40 steps away from it. It was 07:00 pm, he does not know where there was fog or not. He took his brother and came to the Police Station for lodging a report. The body was not sealed there. The body was sealed in Kanpur about after three days of the incident. The report was lodged on the same day. His brother was in an unconscious state. The police went to the place of occurrence later on but did not go before him. He states that the story of giving of Rs. 30,000/- was not witnessed by him. He had not told the said fact to the Investigating officer. To a suggestion that he did not go to the Police Station, he denies it.

30. The report was not signed by him but was got lodged by Shamshuddin. To a suggestion that his brother in an intoxicated condition banged on the milestone due to which he died, he states to be incorrect. He states that Ram Ashrey had gone to the house and had told about the incident to his sister-in-law Munni Devi. He does not know as to whether Ram Ashrey had gone to the house before he had reached or later. To a suggestion that he did not see the incident and came to know of it while he was at the house, he denies. He states that he told the incident at the house after Ram Ashrey had not given information. His family members went to his brother after receiving information from Ram Ashrey. To a suggestion that he is giving false evidence, he denies.

31. Smt. Munni PW-5 is the wife of the deceased Shahjuddin. In her examination-in-chief she states that the incident is of 07:00 pm. She has two sons and two daughters. Gudiya and Anas being the daughters and Gayasuddin and Shamshuddin are her sons. Her husband used to prepare bidi in the factory of Devi Prasad in Makanpur. He used to go to Makanpur from the house daily. On the day of incident, her husband left the house for Makanpur at 10:00 am and came back at 03:00 pm. He told her to prepare food to which she started preparing it. At that time, Ram Ashrey came to her house and told her husband to accompany him to the cold store at Thithiya for taking out potatoes and will sell them and then they will have food at Thithiya. Her husband then went to Thithiya with him without having food. He did not return till 06:00 pm. Then Ram Ashrey came at 07:00 pm and called her son Gayasuddin and told him that Ram Das has taken his father and is assaulting him at the Bhadausa Road in Thithiya. At that time, she states that both the hands of Ram Ashrey were blood stained and his clothes were also having blood. She then raised a hue and cry and along with her sons, nephew and Ram Ashrey went to the place of occurrence where she saw her husband lying in an injured condition. He was seen by her, Kallu and Gayasuddin and other persons. The cycle was also lying there. Then Ram Ashrey disappeared. She states that her husband had received injuries on face and nose which was bleeding. Then they picked him up and her jeth and other persons went to the Police Station. She came back to the house. The report was lodged by her jeth Shamshuddin. Her husband then died on 09.11.2005 at Hallet

Hospital, Kanpur. She states that she, Shamshuddin, Pappu, Nanhey Khan and Kaley Khan were present there. The inquest was conducted and the dead body was taken by the Police. Then the body was brought back home. She states that the death of her husband was due to the assault by Ram Das and Ram Ashrey. She was interrogated by the Investigating Officer.

32. In her cross examination, she states that she is illiterate. She does not know the day of the incident. Ram Ashrey and her husband were friends. They used to be together and often also used to have food together. They used to work together in the factory. They used to go together to the factory. Ram Ashrey for the first time came to her house on the day of the incident at 03:00 pm. He did not sit at the house. Both of them immediately went away. He told her husband to accompany him to Thithiya to which he immediately got ready. The second time Ram Ashrey came to her house was at 07:00 pm. Ram Ashrey did not tell about any fight between her husband and Ram Das. To a suggestion that she is speaking a lie, she denies. To a further suggestion that she had told the Investigating Officer that Ram Ashrey had come to the house and told her that her husband and Ram Das had a fight, she denies. The distance between the place of occurrence and her village is stated to be one kilometre by her. She states that she went on foot to the place of occurrence. She started from her house at 07:00 pm and reached the place of occurrence in half an hour. She was crying and then Ram Ashrey consoled her and made her reach the place of occurrence. She, her nephew and brother then lifted her husband and made him lie down on the road. Ram Ashrey did not hold him. Many persons of the family and about 100-200 peoples of the village were present there who had followed them. The night was moonlit. There was a milestone about 60 steps away from the place where the dead body of her husband was found. She on a suggestion that she did not go to the place of occurrence and is speaking a lie, she denies. She states that the report was got lodged by Shamshuddin after consultation. She did not tell Ram Ashrey to give evidence. The house of Ram Ashrey is about 10 house away from her house. Ram Ashrey did not meet her thereafter. She states her statement to be given for the first time in court and states that she has never given any statement before. She denies the suggestion that she had told Ram Ashrey to give evidence in the matter and as he had refused for it, he has been made an accused. She states that when she reached the place of occurrence, her husband was lying there. Ram Das had run away. She had reached the place of occurrence at about 07:30 pm. She did not see any one assaulting her husband. To a suggestion that she is giving evidence on the same being heard, she denies.

33. Further, to a suggestion that she is giving a false evidence she denies. To a suggestion that her husband was a drunkard and due to the same, he banged somewhere, she denies as result of which he received injuries, she denies.

34. Ram Nath Dwivedi PW-6 is the second Investigating Officer of the matter who took up the investigation on 22.11.2005 which remained with him upto 09.12.2005. He states that the investigation was taken over by him on 22.11.2005 from the previous Investigating Officer Mohd. Hafeez. He perused the case diary and recorded the statements of Faizuddin, Awadhesh, Gayasuddin and Raju on 26.11.2005. Later on, he recorded the statements of Vijay Dwivedi, Rajendra, Dr. S.B. Dwivedi on 09.12.2005. In his cross examination, he states to have recorded the statements of Faizuddin, Awadhesh, Gayasuddin and Raju and states that the said witnesses did not tell him that Ram Ashrey had a fight with the deceased. Further, he states that the said witnesses did not name Ram Ashrey in their statement.

35. Ram Dutt Rathore PW-7 was posted as the Head Constable at Police Station Thithiya. In his examination-in-chief he states that on 07.11.2005 at 22:45 hrs, a non-cognizable report no. 122 of 2005 was registered, in which, the injury report of Shamshuddin of Dr. Chhotey Khan was given by Vijay Kumar Dwivedi on the basis of which on 09.11.2005 GD No. 27 the N.C.R. was converted at 23:05 hrs in Case Crime No. 421 of 2005 under Sections 323, 308, 504 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860. He proves the same which is marked as Exb: Ka-4 to the records.

36. In his cross-examination, he states that in the N.C.R., Ram Das is only named and Ram Ashrey is not named. He did not tell the name of Ram Ashrey to the Investigating officer. He further states that the said case was converted on the basis of the medical examination report. To a suggestion that he did not see the medical report, he denies the same.

37. Dev Raj Singh PW-8 was the Investigating Officer of Case Crime No. 421 of 2005. In his examination-in-chief, he states that after getting the investigation of the matter he perused the case diary, copy of the inquest and postmortem in it. On 09.11.2006 he received the affidavits of Naeemuddin, Faizuddin and Shamshuddin which he copied the case diary. He recorded the statement of Smt. Munni the wife of the deceased on 10.11.2006 and also recorded the statement of Kallu, in which, the name of Ram Ashrey surfaced as an accused. He then recorded statements of other persons and started raids for arrest of Ram Ashrey. Ram Ashrey then surrendered on 03.02.2006. He concluded the investigation in so far as it related to Ram Ashrey and filed charge sheet no. 9 of 2006 against him which is marked as Exb: Ka-4 to the records. He then conducted raids for the arrest of Ram Das but could not find him and then initiated proceedings under Section 82/83 Cr.P.C. against him and later on filed charge sheet against him on 22.04.2006 being charge sheet no. 9-A of 2006. The same is marked as Exb: Ka-5 to the records. Later on, Ram Das was arrested on 26.10.2006 in Case Crime No. 173 of 2006 under Section 25 of the Arms Act.

38. In his cross examination, he states that he got the investigation of the matter on 27.12.2005 and perused the proceedings of the previous Investigating Officer. He states that the informant did not name Ram Ashrey in his statement given to the previous Investigating Officer. He states that the informant on 13.11.2005 gave statement to the previous Investigating Officer and had stated that witness Naeemuddin had seen Ram Das committing marpeet. In the said statement, he had stated that his brother is an injured condition and was only assaulted by Ram Das. Ram Ashrey had not assaulted him. The statement was recorded by the previous Investigating Officer that witness Naeemuddin and Awadhesh had reached the place of occurrence at the time of the incident. He states that the second Investigating Officer R.N. Dubey had recorded the statement of Faizuddin who stated that Ram Das had assaulted the deceased Shahjuddin. There is no reference that Ram Ashrey had participated in the incident. To a suggestion that he did not record any statement and has filed a false charge sheet against Ram Ashrey, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that due to party-bandi in the village, Ram Ashrey has been falsely implicated and false charge sheet has been prepared.

39. Dev Raj Singh PW-8 was then again summoned for cross examination. In his cross examination, he stated that he got the investigation of the matter on 27.12.2005. He stated that he did not go to the place of occurrence and had not prepared the site plan and as such he does not know about the place of occurrence. He had seen the site plan prepared by the previous Investigating Officer. Prior to him Mohd. Hafeez and R.N. Dubey were the Investigating Officers. He had again interrogated Smt. Munni Devi, Lallu, Faizuddin, Shamshuddin etc. The said witnesses were previously interrogated by the previous Investigating Officer. He took the statement of the witnesses again. The incident was of 07:00 pm. At the time of incident, there was dark. The witnesses had told him that the day was ending. He could not tell of any source of light. He states that in the month of November at 07:00 pm, visibility is from a close proximity. The witnesses did not tell him any torch etc. He did not recovery the cycle of the deceased. He did not find the previous Investigating Officer taking into possession plain mud and blood stained mud. He did not prepare the recovery memo of the clothes of the deceased. The previous Investigating Officer also did not take into possession the clothes of the deceased. To a suggestion that the deceased fell from his cycle and died and on the pressure of informant, false charge sheet has been filed after investigation, it is a false investigation, he denies.

40. Dr. Kamal Kumar PW-9 had conducted the postmortem examination of the deceased. In his examination-in-chief, he states about the injuries as noted by him which have been extracted above. He states that the cause of death was as a result of coma due to the injuries received by the deceased and the injury no.1 was sufficient to cause death. He further states that the injury of the deceased can be caused by something like lathi or blunt object. In his cross examination, he states that he had written the time since death from the documents which he had received along with police papers. He states that he did not receive the injury report of the deceased with the police papers. He was had found four injuries on different places on the body. He further states that the injury no.1 can be received by the deceased due to fall from cycle on any hard stone etc.

41. Ram Lal Das PW-10 is a Sub-Inspector who conducted the inquest on the body of the deceased in Lala Lajpat Rai Hospital, Kanpur (also known as Hallet Hospital, Kanpur) which was kept in mortuary on 10.11.2005. He had prepared the same which was proved by him and marked as Exb: Ka-4 to the records. He had further prepared the photo and challan lash of the dead body which was sent for postmortem, the same were marked as Exb: Ka-10 to the records. In his cross examination, he states that he has not brought his sample seal to the Court. He states that he does not know where the same is kept. He states that case crime number and sections are not mentioned in the document Exb: Ka-10 to the records. He states that the information of death was received on 09.11.2005 at 22:40 hrs. He went to the hospital on 10.11.2005 which is at a distance of a half kilometre from the police station. He states that the case crime number and section is not mentioned in any document. The dead body was sealed and then sent. When he reached, he was not able to tell. He states that he has signed on the document. He states that he did not fill the Panchayatnama.

42. Mohd. Hafeez PW-11 is the first Investigating Officer who took up the case on 09.11.2005 for the investigation. He states that the same was registered on the basis of a medical report received at the Police Station. He then recorded the statement of the first informant and inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site plan which is marked as Exb: Ka-11 to the records. In his cross examination, he states that he had perused the First Information Report and in the same there is no reference of Ram Ashrey committing marpeet. He interrogated the first informant on 13.11.20005 and the first informant told him that he had received information from Naeemuddin that Ram Das has assaulted the deceased with kicks, fists and danda on the road side after throwing him in the drain on the side of the road. He was not told about any assault by Ram Ashrey. The first informant had told him that he had gone to the place of occurrence and had asked Shamshuddin the deceased about the incident to which Shamshuddin told him that in the evening, he was returning from the cold storage Thithiya and behind him Ram Ashrey was coming on his cycle and on that place, Ram Das and Sundar Lal at about 07:00 pm met him and stopped him and Ram Ashrey went ahead. Ram Das then told him to make him sit on his cycle to which he refused on which he started abusing and pushed him, he fell from his cycle and he then started assaulting him with kicks, fists and danda. He states that the first informant had not told him about any assault by Ram Ashrey. He interrogated Naeemuddin and the other eye witness. He states that the assault by Ram Ashrey was not told by him. Naeemuddin had told him that moonlight was there and had told of Ram Das only committing the assault. Ram Ashrey was not seen at the place of occurrence. He had inspected the place of occurrence in the presence of the first informant and the eye witnesses. To a suggestion that no witness had given to any statement and he did not go to the place of occurrence and has done the entire work at the Police Station, he denies.

43. The two accused in their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C. have stated that the witnesses have given false statement and the case has been instituted against them falsely. They have not led any defence evidence.

44. The initiation of the present case is on the basis of an application dated 07.11.2005 given by Shamshuddin which was initially registered as a non-cognizable report. The first informant Shamshuddin is not an eye witness to the incident. He has categorically stated that the information about the incident has been received by at his house through Naeemuddin PW-1. Naeemuddin PW-1 has not supported the prosecution case and has been declared hostile.

45. After Naeemuddin PW-1 being declared as hostile, the person whose name surfaced later on as an eye witness is Faizuddin PW-4 who is the youngest brother of the first informant Shamshuddin PW-3 and the deceased Shahjuddin. In the application dated 07.11.2005 of Shamshuddin, there is no reference of Faizuddin being an eye witness to the incident. Faizuddin PW-4 claims that he has witnessed the occurrence from a distance of 50-60 steps. He in very categorical terms states that he did not see that his brother was being assaulted. It was later on when he went to the person who was being assaulted, turned him then he recognized him as that he is his brother Shahjuddin. He states that he was coming with Awadhesh who was also on the same cycle on which he was travelling. Awadhesh has not been produced before the trial court. The said witness has stated that it was dark.

46. Smt. Munni PW-5 has all together come up with a new story of her receiving information about the incident through Ram Ashrey, a co-accused in the present matter. She states that Ram Ashrey had come and had taken away her husband on the day of the incident on the pretext of getting potato from cold storage and then selling it out and after that having dinner and then returning on which her husband went with him. She states that Ram Ashrey had then come to her house and had stated that Ram Das had taken away the deceased and is assaulting him. She states that Ram Ashrey had both of his hands blood stained and even his clothes were having blood stains. She altogether gives a different story as that from the application dated 07.11.2005 and the evidence given by Shamshuddin PW-3 and Faizuddin PW-4.

47. The motive for the present case is stated to be that Devi Prasad, the owner of the bidi factory was involved in some illegal work of manufacture of country made pistol which was seen by the deceased and the said fact was informed to him by other factory workers on which he had given Rs. 30,000/- to Ram Das and Ram Ashrey for the murder of Shahjuddin. The said motive has for the first time come in the present case when the statement of Shamshuddin PW-3, Faizuddin PW-4 was recorded who claim that the deceased had told them about this fact. If the deceased had a threat to life from Ram Ashrey then would not have gone with Ram Ashrey, cannot be overlooked.

48. The argument of the learned counsel for the appellant that the sole eye witness Faizuddin PW-4 after the other eye witness Naeemuddin PW-1 has been declared hostile is a chance witness and an interested witness as being the youngest brother of the first informant and the deceased has substance. The incident has taken place at the time when it was dark. The same has taken place on a road.

49. The doctor conducting the postmortem examination has not ruled out the possibility of the deceased receiving the injury by hitting his head on a stone. The statement of Smt. Munni PW-5 that Ram Ashrey had gone to her house with blood stained hands and blood stains on his clothes, is an impossibility. Ram Ashrey though has been acquitted of the charges by the trial court but was not named in the First Information Report and his name had surfaced for the first time when the matter was taken up in investigation by Dev Raj Singh PW-8 from 27.12.2005.

50. The evidence of the only eye witness being Faizuddin PW-4 does not inspire confidence. In so far as the fact that the deceased had given an oral dying declaration to Shamshuddin PW-3 whereby he had described the entire incident and detailed about it to him also does not appear to be true and trustworthy.

51. Dr. S.B. Dwivedi PW-2 who had medically examined Shahjuddin while he was in an injured condition has specifically stated in the medical examination report and even in his examination-in-chief and in his cross examination that Shahjuddin was in an unconscious state. The doctor before whom the first aid was given for the first time to Shahjuddin in an injured condition being Dr.

Rajendra Katihar as stated by Faizjuddin PW-4 has not been produced and examined before the trial court.

52. The conclusion thus comes to be drawn that the deceased while in an injured condition was in an unconscious state. There is no evidence or document on record showing his condition contrary to that. Thus telling Shamshuddin PW-3 of the version of the occurrence as stated by Shahjuddin is a concoction.

53. In our opinion, the present case is such in which the benefit of doubt needs to be extended to the appellant Ram Das. We extend the benefit of doubt to him and acquit him of the charges levelled against him.

54. Thus the conviction of the appellant by the trial court is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The trial court committed an error in recording the conviction and sentence of the appellant. Hence the impugned judgment and order dated 29.03.2016 passed by the trial court is liable to be set aside, which is accordingly set aside.

55. The present appeal is allowed.

56. The appellant Ram Das is in jail. He is directed to be released forthwith unless wanted in any other case.

57. Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 the accused-appellant Ram Das is directed to furnish a personal bond in terms of Form No. 45 prescribed in The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 of a sum of Rs. 25,000/- with two reliable sureties in the like amount before the court concerned which shall be effective for a period of six months along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against the instant judgment or for grant of leave, the aforesaid appellant on receipt of notice thereof shall appear before the Apex Court.

58. The lower court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to the trial court concerned for compliance and necessary action.

59. The party shall file computer generated copy of such judgment downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad before the concerned Court/Authority/Official.

60. The computer generated copy of such judgment shall be self-attested by the counsel of the party concerned.

61.The concerned Court/ Authority/ Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the judgment from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code,1860- Section 304 –B , 302- Charges under Sections 304-B, 498-A IPC and Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act- Death by smothering- Elements of demand of dowry and harassment soon before death lacking - The presumption under Section 113-B of Evidence Act cannot attract and conviction under Section 304-B IPC cannot be held- Acquittal of the accused/in-laws of the charges under Sections 304-B, 498-A IPC and Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act- Conviction of husband of deceased under section 302 of the IPC with recourse of Section 106 of the Evidence Act- held- unsustainable.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Section 101, Section 106- Prosecution has to establish guilt of the accused filtered of all reasonable prognosis favourable to accused to secure conviction and it is never relieved of its initial duty. It is only when the initial burden has been discharged by the prosecution that the defence of the accused has to be looked into. Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act cannot be applied to fasten guilt on the accused, even if the prosecution has failed in its initial burden. Section 106 of the evidence act has to be read in conjunction with and not in derogation of Section 101 Evidence Act. Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act does not relieve prosecution of it's primary and foremost duty to establish the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubts independent of weaknesses of the defence. The fact required to be proved was "within the special knowledge of an accused alone" and prosecution could not have known it by due care and diligence, that Section 106 can be resorted to by shifting burden on the accused to disclose that fact which is "in his special knowledge".

The prosecution is never relieved of its initial burden to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt and the prosecution cannot shift the burden on the accused, u/s 106 of the Evidence Act, without discharging its initial burden. However, where the facts are within the special knowledge of the accused and cannot be possibly explained by the prosecution, then the burden shifts on the accused to explain the said facts.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 106- The evidence of doctor who conducted autopsy of deceased, is mere opinion which is in relation to cause of death of deceased but it is not indicative of guilt of appellant. The presence of appellant at his home at the time of incident is not established, therefore, his liability for death cannot be fixed. There is no any evidence or link to connect the appellant to the incident i.e. murder of deceased. Thus, in lack of any such link which can connect the appellant to the commission of crime, he cannot be held guilty of committing the crime only on the ground that he is husband of deceased. Death of deceased is not proved to be caused by hanging and the story as shown by father-in-law of deceased seems to be false and his presence on the spot stands proved. He was in exclusive possession of the house at the time of commission of incident. The actual fact was in his knowledge and he would have disclosed it. If he did not disclose or keep mum or disclosed the fact but false, he would become liable for the commission of crime with the help of section 106 of Evidence Act but this factual situation was not taken in view by the learned trial judge while concluding the judgment and acquitting the informant (father-in-law of deceased) of the charges.

Where the evidence establishes that the husband of the deceased was not present at the time and place of the occurrence and there is absence of any other evidence linking him with the commission of the offence, then his conviction caanot be secured with the aid of Section 106 of the Evidence Act. Rather, the burden under Section 106 of the Evidence Act will be upon the father-in-law whose presence in the house with the deceased stood established. (Para 25, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 45, 47)

1. This criminal appeal emanates from the judgment and order dated 15.12.2016 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Jaunpur in Session Trial No. 274 of 2015 (State Vs. Heera Lal and two others) arising out of Crime No. 271 of 2015, under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 302/34 of Indian Penal Code & Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station Sureri, District Jaunpur by which appellant Dharmendra Rajbhar has been convicted and sentenced under Section 302 IPC with life imprisonment and fine of Rs.10,000/-, in default of payment of fine to undergo additional imprisonment for a period of one year.

2. The prosecution case in brief is that Shakuntala Devi, the daughter of informant Pardeshi Rajbhar, was wedded to appellant-Dharmendra Rajbhar on 08.07.2008. Sufficient dowry was given in the marriage but her father-in-law, mother-in-law, sister-in-law and husband were not satisfied with the dowry. They were making demand for a golden ring and motorcycle but informant could not fulfill the demand owing to his meagre financial conditions. Consequently, the in-laws were harassing his daughter. She always told about this to the informant and members of his family. On 11.06.2015 at about 8.30 P.M. informant was communicated by the villagers that her daughter had been killed at about 8.30 P.M. by her husband, father-in-law, mother-in-law and sister-in-law. When he arrived at the spot, dead body of his daughter was lying at the door but her inmates were absent. All of them fled away leaving their home. He lodged an F.I.R. on 13.06.2015 at Police Station Sureri.

3. On 12.6.2015 at about 0.10 a.m. Hiralal Rajbhar (father-in-law of deceased) informed the police at police station Sureri that his daughter-in-law w/o Dharmendra Rajbhar aged about 27 years wedded in the year 2008 was aggrieved with matter related to tonsure (mundan) of her child. She hanged in the room while locking the door from inside. When door was not opened for long, she was called out but no response came from inside. They broke open the door and found her hanging with ceiling fan at about 8.30 p.m. He got down her dead body & lay it on the cot. This information was entered into G.D. Report no. 2 the same day.

4. Inquest of deceased Shakuntala was conducted by Nayab-Tehshidar Pradeep Tripathi on 12.6.2015 at about 8 O'clock in presence of witnesses. Dead body was sealed and handed over to constable Tribuwan Singh and constable Jaiprakesh Narayan for post-mortem. On 12.6.2015 at about 2 p.m. Post-mortem of dead body of deceased Shakuntala was conducted by Dr. Om Prakash Singh.

5. The details of post-mortem report are as below:

Deceased Shakuntala Devi was aged about 27 years. Average built body. Rigor mortis passed in upper limb present in lower limb. Rigor mortis in upper extremitis. Cyonosis present on face & upper extremities. Bleeding from nostrils.

Spinal column and spinal cord-not opened.

Death approximately about one day.

Cause of death was Asphyxia as a result of smothering.

6. Investigation of the case was handed-over to Circle Officer Virendra Kumar Srivastava who started the investigation and recorded the statement of informant, inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site plan. The statements of other witnesses were also recorded and charge sheet was submitted against accused Heera Lal, Girja Devi and Dharmendra Rajbhar under Sections 498-A, 304-B IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act before the court concerned.

7. Learned Chief Judicial Magistrate took the cognizance of the offences and provided copies of prosecution papers in compliance of Section 207 IPC to accused persons and committed the case to the court of session for trial.

8. The trial court after taking into consideration the material on record, framed the charges against accused persons under Sections 498-A, 304-B IPC and Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act and alternative charge under Section 302 IPC read with Section 34 IPC was also framed.

9. Charges were read-over and explained to the accused persons, they did not plead guilty but denied the charges and claimed for trial.

Consequently, the case was fixed for prosecution evidence.

10. In support of its case prosecution examined P.W.1 Pardeshi Rajbhar who is informant and father of deceased, P.W.2 Chandrama Devi who is mother of deceased, P.W.3 Santosh Rajbhar who is brother of deceased, P.W.4 Ranjeet Chauhan who is gram-pradhan of village Kathwatiya, as witnesses of fact. P.W.5 Dr. Om Prakash Singh who conducted the autopsy of the deceased Shakuntala Devi & P.W.6 S.I. Ajay Kumar Rai who prepared essential papers at the time of inquest were also examined as formal witnesses. Genuineness of first information report, charge sheet was admitted by the learned counsel for accused persons, therefore, no formal witnesses in this regard were summoned and examined. On conclusion of prosecution evidence, statements of accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in which they told the prosecution version false except date of marriage. They also stated that there was no evidence against them, thereafter, an opportunity for defence evidence was given to them but no evidence was adduced on their part.

11. After hearing the arguments for accused as well as the State, learned Additional Session Judge, Court No. 4, Jaunpur acquitted the accused persons (Heerala, Girja Devi & Dharmendra Rajbhar) under Section 498-A, 304-B IPC & Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act but convicted and sentenced the accused/present appellant Dharmendra Rajbhar under Section 302 IPC for a term of life imprisonment and with fine amounting to Rs. 10,000/- in default of payment of fine, to undergo one month additional imprisonment. Against this order of conviction and sentence this appeal has been preferred by the accused-appellant Dharmendra Rajbhar.

12. Heard Smt. Swati Agrawal, learned counsel for appellant as well as Shri Rajesh Mishra, learned A.G.A. for State and perused the record.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the impugned judgment and order of conviction is bad in law and against the evidence available on record. Learned trial court has erred in convicting the appellant without considering and appreciating the evidence. Prosecution could not prove its case with cogent and reliable evidence and learned trial court has decided this case wrongfully. Appellant is innocent. He has not committed any offence as alleged against him. Offences under Sections 498-A, 304-B IPC & Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act were not made out against the appellant, resultantly, he was acquitted by the trial court but convicted wrongfully under Section 302 IPC. All the witnesses of fact turned hostile as they had not supported the prosecution case. At the time of alleged incident, appellant was not present in the house because he was doing a job at Bombay. This fact was disclosed by all prosecution witnesses but trial court had not considered this aspect. One girl aged about 4 years and boy aged about 2 years were born from the wedlock of appellant and deceased. The responsibility of upbringing of these two issues is on the shoulder of appellant. There is no evidence constituting the offence under Section 302 IPC and charge sheet had also not been submitted under Section 302 IPC but only alternative charge under Section 302 IPC was framed by the trial court and without having any evidence on record, convicted the appellant mechanically by taking aid of Section 106 of Evidence Act while appellant was not present in the village at the time of incident. The cause of death was opined to be smothering by the Doctor. On this sole ground conviction has been recorded, whereas no other evidence in corroboration is available on record. In this way, the impugned judgment and order dated 15.12.2016 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge being erroneous in fact and law is likely to be set-aside and appellant is entitled for acquittal.

14. Learned A.G.A. opposed the contentions raised by learned counsel for the appellant and submitted that in this case all the witnesses of fact turned hostile. Deceased Shakuntla Devi died in the house of her husband. This was custodial death. In post-mortem, the cause of death was found to be asphyxia as a result of smothering. It was not a case of suicide but homicide. At the time of incident, husband of the deceased and members of his family were present in the house. How did she die in their house was specially in the knowledge of those persons. This fact could only be disclosed by them. Prosecution could not be expected to bring the evidence in this regard which was beyond its approach. The explanation given by the accused-appellant is not sufficient about the cause of death. It was stated by the father of appellant in his information tendered to the police station on the day of incident which was entered into the G.D. that deceased committed suicide by hanging from a bamboo used for suspending a ceiling fan in her room after bolting it from inside but during the course of autopsy no ligature mark was found on her neck, no external injury was found on her body except cyonosis on face and upper extremities with bleeding from nostrils. In the opinion of doctor, her death was caused due to asphyxia as a result of smothering. Doctor has also stated before the trial court that her death was not caused by hanging and it was not result of suicide. In this way appellant and members of his family including his father who informed the police about this incident had concealed the real cause of death of deceased. Whereas the persons living in the same house at that time could know as to how the death of deceased occurred. Since, it was custodial death and accused-appellant with other members of family was in his house and he was husband of deceased, so he was liable for her death. In this way, learned trial court has recorded conviction of the appellant with the recourse of Section 106 of Evidence Act which is just and lawful. There is no error in the impugned judgment and order.

15. From the submissions made by learned counsel for the appellant as well as learned A.G.A. for State and from the perusal of record, it transpires that as to whether conviction recorded against the accused-appellant under Section 302 IPC is based on the evidence on record or it is hypothetical and for reaching to the right conclusion, first it is necessary to re-appreciate the evidence available on record and secondly to consider the invocation of Section 106 of Evidence Act.

16. As per F.I.R. version, deceased Shakuntala was wedded to accused-appellant Dharmendra Rajbhar and she was married to him on 8.7.2008. From the date of marriage in-laws of the deceased were not satisfied. They made demand of golden ring and a motorcycle which could not be fulfilled by the parents of the deceased, as a result she was subjected to harassment by her in-laws. On11.6.2015 at about 8.30 o'clock, father of the deceased/ informant got information about the death of his daughter in her Sasural. In this regard, he lodged an F.I.R. at the police station on 13.6.2015.

17. Information regarding death of deceased was given to the police on 12.6.2015 at about 0.10 a.m. by the father of accused-appellant which was entered into G.D. No. 2. in which he stated that deceased was aggrieved in relation to tonsure (mundan) of her children. She closed herself into her room from inside and hanged in the bamboo fitted for suspending ceiling fan with her saree and committed suicide, when door was not opened for a long, no response came on call, he broke open the door and found his daughter-in-law hanging at about 8.30 p.m. He got down her dead body & lay it on the cot. On this information Nayab Tehshildar and one sub-inspector Ajay Kumar went to spot where inquest was conduced by Nayab-Tehshildar and dead body was sent for post-mortem. In the post-mortem, the cause of death was found asphyxia as a result of smothering.

18. P.W.1 Pardeshi Rajbhar (father of deceased) informant deposed before the trial court that he wedded his daughter Shakuntala on 8.7.2008 with Dharmendra Rajbhar. When her daughter went to her sasural and came back from there, she told that her husband, father-in-law, mother-in-law and sister-in-law demanded a golden ring and motorcycle. They beat her and subjected to torture. There was panchayat between both the parties but they insisted on demand. On 11.6.2015 at about 8.30 p.m., he was informed by the sister-in-law of deceased about her hanging. Then, he went to sasural of his daughter and found her lying dead on a bed in the room. In cross-examination, he turned hostile and stated that Shakuntala used to talk to him, his wife Chandrama Devi, his son Santosh, Chandan and daughter Pooja, Shankuntala never told them about demand of golden ring and motorcycle made by Hiralal, Dharmendra and Girja Devi. They never subjected her to torture. A boy Ajit and a girl Shreya were born-out of the wedlock of his daughter & appellant. His daughter was happy in her sasural. Dharmendra was earning his livelihood in Bombay. Prior to this incident, Shankuntala was insisting to go with Dharmendra to Bombay but he went to Bombay alone assuring her that he would take her later after making arrangements. She became depressed and committed suicide.

19. P.W.2 Chandrama Devi (mother of deceased) has also stated that Shakuntla was wedded Dharmendra Rajbhar on 8.7.2008. When she came back from her sasural, she always told her about her happiness. She never made complaint of any kind of harassment or torture. She did not tell her about the demand of golden ring and motorcycle. Information about the death of her daughter was given by her husband Dharmendra Rajbhar who was living at Bombay. She also stated that she along with other members of her family went to sasural of deceased Shakuntala where members of her daughter's Sasural were present. Neighbours told that Shakuntala was short tempered and she used to become angry as a result she committed suicide. Her daughter died accidentally. During cross-examination made by learned A.D.G.C. She again stated that her daughter Shakuntala was happy in her Sasural and at the time of incident her son-in-law Dharmendra Rajbhar was living at Bombay. Her daughter Shakuntala never told her that Dharmendra made demand of golden chain or motorcycle. She was never subjected to harassment or beating by inmates of her husband.

20. P.W.3 Santosh Rajbhar (brother of deceased) has also stated that she was wedded to Dharmendra Rajbhar on 8.7.2008. She nenver told about harassment or torture from her husband or inmates. She was happy in her sasural. Information about the death of Sakuntala was given to him by her husband Dharmendra Rajbhar who was living at Bombay. He was at Bombay at the time of incident. Her sister was never incited for suicide by her in-laws. During cross-examination by learned A.D.G.C. the witness clearly refused the fact of complaint made by her sister relating to harassment and torture. He has also denied with his statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. by the Investigating Officer.

21. P.W.4 Ranjeet Chauhan who was gram-pradhan village Kathwatiya has stated that on 12.6.2015 the daughter-in-law of Heeralal hanged. He also went there where police and magistrate were present. Inquest of deceased Shakuntala was done in his presence. On the date of incident Heera Lal and his wife went to their relative and Dharmendra was living in Bombay. Shankuntala was under depression from long period.

22. P.W.5 Dr. Om Prakash Singh (Medical Officer) has proved the post-mortem report Exhibit- Ka-3 in his handwriting and told that the cause of death was asphyxia as a result of smothering. There was no any external injury found on the body. Only cyonosis was present on face & upper extremities. During cross-examination, he has stated that there was not external injury on the dead body. Hyoid bone was found intact. There was no ligature mark on her neck. Deceased was died of asphyxia. There was bleeding from nostrils and her tongue, eyes were not coming out. He denied the suggestion made by learned counsel for defence that she committed suicide or used saree for committing suicide by hanging. On query made by court, he further stated that the case could not be suicidal in any way. No suicide can be committed by stopping breath herself.

23. P.W.6 S.I. Ajay Kumar has stated that on the information given by Heera Lal as entered into the G.D., he went to the place of incident and Nayab Tehshildar Pradeep Tripathi also came there who got prepared the inquest report and dead body was sealed there. It was sent for post-mortem. He has proved the inquest report Exhibit Ka-2 and also paper nos. 7-ka, 8-ka, 13-ka/1 and 13-ka/2 and Exhibit-Ka-4 to Ka-8.

24. From the statements made by the prosecution witnesses. It is evident that they denied the fact of demand of dowry and harassment with the deceased on behalf of her in-laws including her husband-appellant. They turned hostile and even during their cross-examination by learned A.D.G.C. nothing appeared to support the prosecution version relating to demand of dowry and harassment soon before death.

25. In the situation where the elements of demand of dowry and harassment soon before death are lacking, the presumption under Section 113-B of Evidence Act cannot attract and conviction under Section 304-B IPC cannot be held.

26. Keeping, this kind of unsupportive evidence in view, learned

Additional Sessions Judge has rightly acquitted the accused/in-laws of the charges under Sections 304-B, 498-A IPC and Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act but with the recourse of Section 106 of Evidence Act, convicted and sentenced the appellant under Section 302 IPC as being husband of deceased.

27. At this juncture, it is expedient to consider the legal position regarding invocation of Section 106 of Evidence Act in the case of custodial death in bridal home.

28. One of the earliest cases in which Section 106 of Evidence Act was examined and explained are Attygalle versus Emperior reported in (1936) 38 Bombay LR 700. Stephen Seneviratne versus King reported in (1937) 39 Bombay LR 1.

"In the aforesaid decisions, Their Lordships of the Privy Counsel dealt with Section 106 of Ordinance No. 14 of 1895 (corresponding to Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act). It was held that Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not affect the onus of proof and throw upon the accused the burden of establishing innocence."

29. Scope of section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act was examined inconsiderable detail by the Apex Court in the case of Shambhu Nath Mehra versus State of Ajmer reported in AIR 1956 SC 404, wherein learned Judges spelt out the legal principle in paragraph 11 which read as under :

11."This lays down the general rule that in a criminal case the burden of proof is on the prosecution and Section 106 is certainly not intended to relieve it of that duty. On the contrary, it is designed to meet certain exceptional cases in which it would be impossible, or at any rate disproportionately difficult for the prosecution to establish facts which are "especially" within the knowledge of the accused and which he could prove without difficulty or inconvenience. The word "especially" stresses that it means facts that are preeminently or exceptionally within his knowledge."

30. In Ch. Razik Ram versus Ch. J.S. Chouhan reported in AIR 1975 SC 667 it has been held as under:-

"116. In the first place, it may be remembered that the principle underlying Section 106 Evidence Act which is an exception to the general rule governing burden of proof - applies only to such matters of defence which are supposed to be especially within the knowledge of the defendant-respondent. It cannot apply when the fact is such as to be capable of being known also by persons other than the respondent."

31. In State of West Bengal versus Mir Mohammad Umar reported in 2000 SCC(Cr) 1516 it has been reiterated as under:-

"36. In this context we may profitably utilise the legal principle embodied in Section 106 of the Evidence Act which reads as follows : "When any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him."

37. The section is not intended to relieve the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. But the Section would apply to cases where the prosecution has succeeded in proving facts from which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, unless the accused by virtue of his special knowledge regarding such facts, failed to offer any explanation which might drive the Court to draw a different inference.

38. Vivian Bose, J. had observed that Section 106 of the Evidence Act is designed to meet certain exceptional cases in which it would be impossible for the prosecution to establish certain facts which are particularly within the knowledge of the accused."

32. The applicability of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 has been lucidly explained by the Apex Court in paragraph 23 of its judgement rendered in the case of State of Rajasthan versus Kashi Ram reported in JT 2006 (12) SCC 254 which runs as here under:-

"23. The provisions of Section 106 of the Evidence Act itself are unambiguous and categoric in laying down that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of a person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Thus, if a person is last seen with the deceased, he must offer an explanation as to how and when he parted company. He must furnish an explanation which appears to the Court to be probable and satisfactory. If he does so he must be held to have discharged his burden. Section 106 does not shift the burden of proof in a criminal trial, which is always upon the prosecution."

33. When an offence like murder is committed in secrecy inside a house, the initial burden to establish the case would undoubtedly be upon the prosecution. In view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act, there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution and there is no duty at all on the accused to offer an explanation.

34. The Apex Court in Trimukh Maroti Kirkan versus State of Maharashtra reported in (2007) 10 SCC 445 reiterated as here under :-

"14. If an offence takes place inside the privacy of a house and in such circumstances where the assailants have all the opportunity to plan and commit the offence at the time and in circumstances of their choice, it will be extremely difficult for the prosecution to lead evidence to establish the guilt of the accused if the strict principle of circumstantial evidence, as noticed above, is insisted upon by the Courts. A Judge does not preside over a criminal trial merely to see that no innocent man is punished. A Judge also presides to see that a guilty man does not escape. Both are public duties. (See Stirland v. Director of Public Prosecution 1944 AC 315 quoted with approval by Arijit Pasayat, J. in State of Punjab vs. Karnail Singh (2003) 11 SCC 271). The law does not enjoin a duty on the prosecution to lead evidence of such character which is almost impossible to be led or at any rate extremely difficult to be led. The duty on the prosecution is to lead such evidence which it is capable of leading, having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case. Here it is necessary to keep in mind Section 106 of the Evidence Act which says that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Illustration (b) appended to this section throws some light on the content and scope of this provision and it reads:

"(b) A is charged with traveling on a railway without ticket. The burden of proving that he had a ticket is on him."

15. Where an offence like murder is committed in secrecy inside a house, the initial burden to establish the case would undoubtedly be upon the prosecution, but the nature and amount of evidence to be led by it to establish the charge cannot be of the same degree as is required in other cases of circumstantial evidence. The burden would be of a comparatively lighter character. In view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give a cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution and there is no duty at all on an accused to offer any explanation."

35. P. Mani Vs. State of T.N. 2006 (3) SCC 161 the Apex Court held as here under :

10. We do not agree with the High Court. In a criminal case, it was for the prosecution to prove the involvement of an accused beyond all reasonable doubt. It was not a case where both, husband and wife, were last seen together inside a room. The incident might have taken place in a room but the prosecution itself has brought out evidences to the effect that the children who had been witnessing television were asked to go out by the deceased and then she bolted the room from inside. As they saw smoke coming out from the room, they rushed towards the same and broke open the door. Section 106 of the Evidence Act, to which reference was made by the High Court in the aforementioned situation, cannot be said to have any application whatsoever.

36. The Apex court in the case of Vikramjit Singh Vs. State of Punjab 2006 (12) SCC 306 observed as here under :

14. Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act does not relieve the prosecution to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt. Only when the prosecution case has been proved the burden in regard to such facts which was within the special knowledge of the accused may be shifted to the accused for explaining the same. Of course, there are certain exceptions to the said rule, e.g., where burden of proof may be imposed upon the accused by reason of a statute.

15. It may be that in a situation of this nature where the court legitimately may raise a strong suspicion that in all probabilities the accused was guilty of commission of heinous offence but applying the well-settled principle of law that suspicion, however, grave may be, cannot be a substitute for proof, the same would lead to the only conclusion herein that the prosecution has not been able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt.

37. The Apex Court in the case of State of Rajasthan v. Thakur Singh reported in (2014) 12 SCC 211, while allowing the appeal preferred before it by the State of Rajasthan against the judgment and order of the Rajasthan High Court, by which the High Court had set aside the conviction of accused Thakur Singh recorded by the trial court under Section 302 I.P.C. on the ground that there was no evidence to link the respondent with the death of the deceased which had taken place inside the room in the respondent's house, in which he had taken the deceased (his wife) and their daughter and bolted it from within and kept the room locked throughout and later in the evening when the door of the room was broken open the deceased was found lying dead in the room occupied by her and the respondent-accused, held:

The High Court did not consider the provisions of Section 106, Evidence Act at all. The law is quite well settled, that burden of proving guilt of the accused is on the prosecution, but there may be certain facts pertaining to a crime that can be known only to the accused, or are virtually impossible for the prosecution to prove. These facts need to be explained by the accused, and if he does not do so, then it is a strong circumstance pointing to his guilt based on those facts. In the instant case, since the deceased died an unnatural death in the room occupied by her and the respondent, cause of unnatural death was known to the respondent. There is no evidence that anybody else had entered their room or could have entered their room. The respondent did not set up any case that he was not in their room or not in the vicinity of their room while the incident occurred, nor he did set up any case that some other person entered room and cause to the unnatural death of his wife. The facts relevant to the cause of the death of the deceased being known only to the respondent, yet he chose not to disclose them or to explain them. The principle laid down in Section 106, Evidence Act, is clearly applicable to the facts of the case and there is, therefore, a very strong presumption that the deceased was murdered by the respondent. It is not that the respondent was obliged to prove his innocence or prove that he had not committed any offence. All that was required of the respondent was to explain the unusal situation, namely, of the unnatural death of his wife in their room, but he made no attempt to do this. The High Court has very cursorily dealt with the evidence on record and has upset a finding of guilt by the trial court in a situation where the respondent failed to give any explanation whatsoever for the death of his wife by asphyxia in his room. In facts of the case, approach taken by the trial court was the correct approach under the law and the High Court was completely in error in relying primarily on the fact that since most of the material prosecution witnesses (all of whom were relatives of the respondent) had turned hostile, the prosecution was unable to prove its case. The position in law, particularly Section 106, Evidence Act, was completely overlooked by the High Court, making it a rife at a perverse conclusion in law.

38. A Division Bench of this Court, in the case of Pawan Kumar versus State of U.P. and reported in 2016 SCC OnLine All 949 held as under:-

"Section 106 of the Evidence Act can not be utilised to make up for the prosecution's in ability to establish it's case by leading cogent and reliable evidence, especially when prosecution could have known the crime by due diligence and care. Aid of section 106 Evidence Act can be had only in cases where prosecution could not produce evidence regarding commission of crime but brings all other incriminating circumstances and sufficient material on record to prima facie probablise it's case against the accused and no plausible explanation is forthcoming from the accused regarding fact within his special knowledge about the incident. That section lays down only this much that if a fact is in the "special knowledge of a person" and other side could not have due knowledge of it in spite of due diligence and care then burden of proving that fact lies on that person in whose special knowledge it is. Section 106 Evidence Act has no application if the fact is in the knowledge of the prosecution or it could have gained it's knowledge with due care and diligence."

39. Thus, what follows from the reading of the law reports referred to herein above, is that prosecution has to establish guilt of the accused filtered of all reasonable prognosis favourable to accused to secure conviction and it is never relieved of its initial duty. It is only when the initial burden has been discharged by the prosecution that the defence of the accused has to be looked into. Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act can not be applied to fasten guilt on the accused, even if the prosecution has failed in its initial burden.

40. Section 101 to Section 114A of Chapter-VII of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 deal with subject "OF THE BURDEN OF PROOF." Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act provides that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proof to prove that fact is upon him. Section 106 is an exception to Section 101 of the Evidence Act which stipulates that whoever desires any Court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts must prove that those facts exist. Section 106 of the evidence act has to be read in conjunction with and not in derogation of Section 101 Evidence Act. Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act does not relieve prosecution of it's primary and foremost duty to establish the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubts independent of weaknesses of the defence. It is only when prosecution, for well perceptible and acceptable reasons, is unable to lead evidence because of circumstances beyond it's control including the reason that the fact required to be proved was "within the special knowledge of an accused alone" and prosecution could not have known it by due care and diligence, that Section 106 can be resorted to by shifting burden on the accused to disclose that fact which is "in his special knowledge" and if accused fails to offer any reasonable explanation to satiate judicial inquisitive scrutiny, he is liable to be punished. Section 106 is not meant to be utilized to make up for the prosecution's inability to establish its case by leading, cogent and reliable evidence.

41. However once the prosecution establishes entire chain of circumstances together in a conglomerated whole unerringly pointing out that it was accused alone who was the perpetrator of the crime and the manner of happening of the incident could be known to him alone and within his special knowledge, recourse can be taken to section 106 of the Evidence Act. Aid of Section 106 of the Evidence Act can be invoked only in cases where prosecution could produce evidence regarding commission of crime to bring all other incriminating circumstances and sufficient material on record to prima-facie probablise its case against the accused and no plausible explanation is forthcoming from the accused regarding fact within his special knowledge about the incident.

42. Section 106 of the Evidence Act lays down only this much that if a fact is in the "special knowledge of a person" and other side could not have due knowledge of it in spite of due diligence and care then burden of proving that fact lies on such person in whose special knowledge it is.

43. Thus before Section 106 of the Evidence Act could be applied in the instant case it was incumbent upon the prosecution to establish by cogent and reliable evidence inter alia that the appellant was in occupation of house at the time incident took place.

44. Considering the testimony as deposed by prosecution witnesses who are near relatives of deceased, it transpires that appellant Dharmendra Rajbhar was not present at his home when incident took place. He was at Bombay. P.W.2 has categorically stated that Dharmendra Rajbhar informed about the incident to her husband on phone from Bombay. P.W.3 brother of deceased has also made similar statements. P.W.4 who was pradhan of village has also supported the version of P.Ws.-1, 2 & 3 to the extent Dharmendra Rajbhar lived in Bombay at the time of incident. Though, the appellant has not made such statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. before the court, but it does not infer that he was present at his home at the time of incident. In such a situation, how can he be made liable for incident occurring in his house, when he was not present there. The inmates of the deceased have also stated that deceased was in depression she was never harassed or subjected to torture by the appellant or the members of his family.

45. The evidence of doctor who conducted autopsy of deceased, is mere opinion which is in relation to cause of death of deceased but it is not indicative of guilt of appellant. He can only be made liable for it when his presence in the home is proved and he does not tell the reason but keeps quiet in this regard. Here in this case the presence of appellant at his home at the time of incident is not established, therefore, his liability for death cannot be fixed. In the case of Maruti Kirkan inmates of deceased were held liable because they were proved to be present at home when the incident took place but in the present case position is different, therefore, the case of Maruti Kirkan is of no help to the prosecution. Except this, there is no any evidence or link to connect the appellant to the incident i.e. murder of deceased. Thus, in lack of any such link which can connect the appellant to the commission of crime, he cannot be held guilty of committing the crime only on the ground that he is husband of deceased.

46. As per version of prosecution witnesses, appellant Dharmendra Rajbhar was not in occupation of his house with the deceased at the time of incident, but he was at Bombay. So it cannot be said that the fact of cause of death of deceased was in his special knowledge and only he could disclose the real fact as to how she died in his house.

47. Exhibit Ka-10 G.D. Report No. 2 indicates that Hiralal father-in-law of deceased was at home when incident took place. He informed the police station that his daughter-in-law hanged by a bamboo used for fixing ceiling fan with the help of her saree but this fact of hanging was found incorrect after post-morterm of deceased. Doctor conducting post-mortem had opined that death was caused by asphyxia as a result of smothering. During his cross-examination and query by court, he had clearly stated that the death was not caused by hanging, it was not suicide in any case. He had denied the suggestion of causing death by using saree. In this way, death of deceased is not proved to be caused by hanging and the story as shown by father-in-law of deceased seems to be false and his presence on the spot stands proved. He was in exclusive possession of the house at the time of commission of incident. The actual fact was in his knowledge and he would have disclosed it. If he did not disclose or keep mum or disclosed the fact but false, he would become liable for the commission of crime with the help of section 106 of Evidence Act but this factual situation was not taken in view by the learned trial judge while concluding the judgment and acquitting the informant (father-in-law of deceased) of the charges.

48. Learned Trial Court has not taken this part of evidence in consideration while concluding the judgment that is why he has convicted the appellant on the basis of principle laid down in the case of Maruti Kirkan which cannot be said to be correct in the eye of law. In the well considered opinion of this Court, as per record, appellant cannot be held guilty for committing murder of his wife but he is liable to be acquitted to the charge under Section 302 IPC.

49. Therefore, this appeal succeeds and conviction and sentence against the appellant is set-aside. He is in jail, he be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other case.

50 Appeal is allowed.

51. Copy of this judgment alongwith original record of Court below be transmitted to the Court concerned for necessary compliance. A compliance report be sent to this Court within one month. Office is directed to keep the compliance report on record.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- This Section is based on doctrine of confirmation by subsequent facts. That doctrine is that where, in consequence of a confession otherwise inadmissible, search is made and facts are discovered, it is a guarantee that the confession made was true. But only that portion of the information can be proved which relates distinctly or strictly to the facts discovered. Clearly the extent of the information admissible must depend on the exact nature of the fact discovered to which such information is required to relate. It cannot be lost sight of that Section 27 of the Evidence Act has frequently been misused by the police against an accused. Court should, therefore, be cautious and vigilant about the application of the above provision. The protection afforded by the provisions under Sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act is sought to be overcome by the police by taking resort to the provisions of Section 27 of the Evidence Act. Mere recovery in pursuance of Section 27 of the Evidence Act is not a clinching proof for holding an accused guilty.

It is settled law that Section 27 of the Evidence Act is an exception to sections 25 and 26 of the Act and therefore, only that part of the confession is admissible in evidence u/s 27 which distinctly relates to the fact discovered in pursuance of the disclosure. However, since frequently misused by the prosecution, the Court should be cautious in matters pertaining to recovery made in pursuance of a confession.

Criminal Law- Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 313- The questions put to the appellant were not complete or in accordance with law. The questions should have been more clear giving the correct fact that during the investigation the accused had promised to the Investigating Officer to get the dead body recovered on his pointing out. It is duty of the Court to find out whether the circumstances put to the accused under Section 313 Cr. P. C. were intelligible to him and whether he could answer the same after understanding the same and whether the question has caused any prejudice to the accused. Both the said circumstances are quite different in themselves and do cause prejudice to the accused as at one point the place of recovery of dead body is different from the other. The question should only give the circumstances and not the details, which may otherwise amount to cross examination of the accused.

Questions put to the accused u/s 3131 of the Cr.Pc. should be clear, giving out only the circumstances and not the details, and must not be contradictory as the same would seriously prejudice the accused.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 3- Circumstantial Evidence- In a case based on circumstantial evidence the Courts ought to have a conscientious approach and conviction ought to be recorded only in case in which all the links of the chain are complete and pointing to the guilt of the accused. Each link unless connected together form a chain may suggest suspicion but the same in itself cannot take place of proof and will not be sufficient to convict the accused.

It is settled law that in a case resting on circumstantial evidence; it is the duty of the prosecution to link all the circumstances so that the same point unerringly to the culpability of the accused and failure to link all such circumstances in a complete chain cannot bring home the charge against the accused. (Delivered by Hon'ble Samit Gopal, J.)

1. The present appeal arises out of the judgment and order dated 10.01.2013 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No.4 Kanpur Nagar in Sessions Trial No. 823 of 2005 (State of U.P. Vs. Ashish Kumar) whereby the appellant Ashish Kumar has been convicted and sentenced under Section 302 IPC to life imprisonment, a fine of Rs. 10,000/- and in default of payment of fine to two months rigorous imprisonment, under Section 364-A IPC to life imprisonment, a fine of Rs. 10,000/- and in default of payment of fine to two months rigorous imprisonment and under Section 201 IPC to seven years rigorous imprisonment, a fine of Rs. 3,000/- and in default of payment of fine to one month rigorous imprisonment. The sentences have been ordered to run concurrently.

2. The trial court while passing the judgment impugned herein has directed that the period of incarceration of the accused will be set off against the sentence of imprisonment.

3. At the first instance, an application dated 17.03.2005 was moved by Hari Ram son of Narottam Ram before the Station House Officer, Police Station Chakeri, District Kanpur Nagar to the effect that his son Alok Kumar aged about 21 years went to give his exam at D.V.S. College on a cycle on 15.03.2005 at 05:30 a.m. but has not returned. His physical appearance was given in the said application and it was requested that appropriate action be taken. The said application about the disappearance of Alok Kumar was recorded in GD No. 54 dated 17.03.2005 transcribed at 19:30 hrs at the said Police Station. The same is marked as Exb: Ka- 1 to the records.

4. Thereafter, an application was given by Hari Ram at the Police Station Chakeri on 30.05.2005 informing that he has received calls on his mobile three times, on which, threat has been extended to him and on inquiry it transpires that one of the numbers from which call was received is of a P.C.O. and he stated that he has a suspicion that his son Alok Kumar may be murdered by the kidnappers and appropriate action be taken as soon as possible. The same was recorded in GD No. 41 dated 30.05.2005 transcribed at 17:10 hrs which is marked as Exb: Ka-8 to the records.

5. Subsequently, on an oral information given by Hari Ram, a First Information Report was lodged which was registered as Case Crime No. 413 of 2005 under Sections 364, 504 IPC, Police Station Chakeri, District Kanpur Nagar on 30.05.2005. The case was subsequently converted from Section 364 IPC to Section 364-A IPC, and later on, after the recovery of the remains of a human body, the same was converted into a case under Section 364-A, 302, 201 IPC.

6. The first informant handed over a packet to the Investigating Officer on 31.05.2005 while stating that the said gift packet contains the t-shirt of his son Alok Kumar which he was wearing when he left the house. The same was taken by the Investigating Officer and a recovery memo dated 31.05.2005 was prepared which is marked as Exb: Ka-3 to the records.

7. At the same time on 31.05.2005, the first informant Hari Ram gave a letter to the Investigating Officer by which a ransom of Rs. 3 lakh was alleged to be demanded for releasing his son. The said letter was dated 18.05.2005 and was received in the office of Hari Ram which was sent by post. A recovery memo of the same was prepared on 31.05.2005 which is marked as Exb: Ka-4 to the records.

8. Further, on the same day, the first informant Hari Ram also gave a chit to the Investigating Officer which was pasted on the gift packet, in which, t-shirt was wrapped. The said chit was taken into custody by the Investigating Officer and a recovery memo to the same was prepared which is marked as Exb: Ka-5 to the records.

9. Subsequently, a skeleton was recovered on 01.06.2005 on the pointing out of the appellant. A recovery memo of the same was prepared on 01.06.2005 which is marked as Exb: Ka-6 to the records.

10. A tape recorder was also recovered which was manufactured by Panasonic and was in a running condition which had a cassette in it, in which, it is said that there was some recording in the voice of the deceased Alok Kumar. The said tape recorder is also said to be recovered on the pointing out of the appellant. The recovery memo to the same is Exb: Ka-16 to the records.

11. Further, a cycle is said to have been recovered by the Investigating Officer from the cycle stand of Station Govindpuri, Kanpur Nagar. The recovery memo of the same was prepared on 01.06.2005 which is marked as Exb: Ka-17 to the records.

12. The skeleton was subjected to the postmortem examination. The doctor conducted the postmortem examination. While stating about the condition of the same as stated has follows:-

5'5" long skeleton. H.C. 21". Skull hair - 3". Mostache, sole and genitalia absent. Whole of skin except scalp, muscle & brain absent. All bones and vertebrae are seperated from each other. All viscera absent. 16 teeth present in upper jaw. Lower jaw absent. Ribs, metacarpals, carpals and all bones are loose and covered with decomposed flesh and mud. PMS - can't be found out.

Further, the doctor observed in the skeleton while observing the head and the neck region as follows:-

All cervical vert. seperated. Skull base is cut with sharp object above level of Ist cervical vertebra. Scalp covered with skin with hair 3" long.

The cause of death could not be ascertained and except for the bones of both hands were preserved for examination.

The time since death has been opined by the doctor as about 2½ months.

The postmortem report is marked as Exb: Ka-18 to the records.

13. The bones as recovered were sent for X-ray examination. The X-ray examination was done on 10.01.2006. The doctor conducting the X-ray examination was of the opinion that the bones appear to be human skeleton. He further opined that no further opinion can be given. The said X-ray report is marked as Exb: Ka-21 to the records.

The genuineness of the said document was admitted by the learned counsel for the defence and as such the formal proof of the same was dispensed with.

14. An admitted handwriting of the appellant along with the recovered letters were sent to the Forensic Science Laboratory, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow for comparison and examination by the Investigating Officer. The examiner vide his letter dated 16.06.2005 opined that the handwriting of the person who had written the Specimen-1 to 18 does not tally with the disputed document marked as Q1 to Q4.

15. The investigation concluded and a Charge Sheet No. 341 of 2005 dated 19.07.2005 was submitted against the appellant under Sections 364-A, 302, 201 IPC. The same is marked as Exb: Ka-20 to the records.

16. The trial court vide its order dated 01.09.2006 framed charges against the appellant accused Ashish Kumar Savita under Sections 364A, 302, 201 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860.

17. The accused appellant pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried. He has not led any defence evidence.

18. The prosecution in order to prove its case produced Hari Ram PW-1 who is the informant and father of Alok Kumar, the missing boy. Smt. Dharma Devi PW-2 is the wife of the first informant Hari Ram and the mother of Alok Kumar. Shahanshah Hussain PW-3 is the Constable Clerk who transcribed the general diary of the gumshudgi report on 17.03.2005. Rakesh Kumar Shukla PW-4 is the Head Constable who was given information about the kidnapping of Alok Kumar who had transcribed GD on 30.05.2005. Anjani Kumar Pandey PW-5 is the first Investigating Officer of the case who took up the investigation on 30.05.2005 which remained with him upto 01.06.2005. Doctor Ashok Kumar PW-6 is the doctor who conducted the postmortem examination of the skeleton. Shyam Singh Yadav PW-7 is the second Investigating Officer who took up the investigation from 02.06.2005, concluded it and filed charge sheet, and subsequently, again took up the same after receiving the report of the Forensic Lab regarding comparison and analysis of the handwriting in the documents and also after receiving the X-ray examination report of the bones and prepared supplementary case diary of the matter.

19. The trial court after considering the entire evidence on record came to the conclusion that there is sufficient evidence against the accused for kidnapping Alok Kumar and demanding ransom, murdering him and causing disappearance of the dead body and convicted the appellant and sentenced him as stated above.

20. We have heard Sri Mohd. Samiuzzaman Khan, learned counsel for the appellant-Ashish Kumar and Sri Gaurav Pratap Singh, learned brief holder for the State of U.P. and perused the records.

21. Learned counsel for the appellant made the following submissions:-

i) The present case is a case of circumstantial evidence. The chain of circumstances are not completed at all which have missing links in between.

ii) The evidence relied by the trial court of ransom being demanded by the appellant is totally fallacious. The handwriting of the appellant was sent for comparison and while being compared with the handwriting on the letter demanding ransom, the same was not found matching with the admitted handwriting of the appellant.

iii) The recovery of the dead body allegedly shown on the pointing out of the appellant, is false. The first informant Hari Ram PW-1 has stated that the appellant was arrested much prior than as shown by the police and further the dead body was recovered thereafter.

iv) The witnesses of recovery of the dead body have not been produced before the trial court. This fact also creates a doubt in the manner of the alleged recovery.

v) In the case, there was a letter received by the first informant which stated that Alok Kumar has run away with a girl named Fatima as he had a love affair with her and she has taken Rs. 3 lakhs and jewellery from her house with her but the Investigating Officer in spite of the same, did not investigate the said aspect at all.

vi) The appellant has no motive to commit the aforesaid offence.

22. Per contra, learned brief holder for the State opposed the submissions of learned counsel for the appellant and argued that there has been a recovery of the dead body on the pointing out of the appellant after being dug from a room which was rented to him and as such the accused was under a burden to disclose as to how the dead body was buried in the room occupied by him which he has not. It is further argued that the recovery of the dead body is a clinching evidence against the appellant, for which, he has tendered no explanation. It is further argued that the appeal lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

23. Hari Ram PW-1 is the first information and the father of Alok Kumar, the missing boy. He in his examination-in-chief has stated that his son Alok Kumar aged about 21 years left on a cycle for D.V.S. College to give his examination on 15.03.2005 at 05:30 a.m. He did not return home after giving the examination. He transcribed a missing report and gave it to the S.H.O., Police Station Chakeri on 17.03.2005, in which, he mentioned the physical appearance of his son by stating that he was about 5'4" in height having fair complexion and was wearing an almond coloured t-shirt and a grey coloured pant. He was having a small mark of injury on his forehead. He identifies the said application and proves it which was marked as Exb: Ka-1 to the records. He states that later on, a letter dated 18.03.2005 was received at his work place, in which, ransom of Rs. 3 lakhs was demanded. He gave the said letter to the Investigating Officer which was proved by him and was marked as Exb: Ka-2 to the records. He states that, subsequently, on 21.03.2005 at about 10:34 hrs, a call of some unknown person came on mobile no. 9336235161 on which a ransom of Rs. 5 lakhs was demanded. He states that the said mobile on which the call was received was of his master Sri L.C. Sharma which was attended by his wife. He identifies the accused appellant who was present in court and states that he knows him and recognises him and he only called from the phone and demanded ransom and also sent letter for the same. He states that the kidnapper of his son Alok Kumar and due to non fulfilment of demanded of ransom, he has been murdered and his dead body was got disappeared. He states that on 17/18.03.2005, he then got pamphlets printed and pasted on 22.03.2005 and on 23.03.2005 news in the newspapers was also got published. On 12.05.2005, on mobile no. 9336814524 belonging to one Hemant a call from phone no. 05222457449 was received from Charbagh, Lucknow about which he immediately informed Police Station Chakeri. On 13.05.2005, on the phone of Rajesh, a call from mobile no. 9336235161 was received, on which, it was stated that money be arranged. The said call was received by him which was done from phone no. 05122509258 of Devki Palace Vandana P.C.O. He then went to the P.C.O. and inquired about it and was told that a boy aged about 20-21 years had called up who was wearing a cream coloured t-shirt, was of grey complexion and had covered his face. He states that on 25.05.2005, the accused Ashish Kumar sent the clothes of his son and demanded ransom through rickshaw puller. The said rickshaw puller was apprehended by him and handed over to Police Station Chakeri. He states that later on the dead body of his son Alok Kumar was recovered from near a canal in Govindpuri Nagar. The police informed him about the said recovery on which he reached there and identified the dead body as that of his son. The said identification was done on the basis of the clothes on the body. Later on, he states to have signed the recovery memo relating to the t-shirt sent in the gift packet and the chit pasted on the gift pack through which Rs. 3 lakhs was demanded as ransom. The said three have been marked as Exb: Ka-3, 4 and 5 to the records. He states that his son Alok Kumar was studying with the accused appellant Ashish Kumar and as such he knew the accused very well and identifies him. He states that the said accused has kidnapped his son for ransom and due to the non fulfilment of the amount of ransom murdered him and got the dead body disappeared.

In cross examination, he states that at the time of the incident, he was working in Seal Foods and Fertilizer, Dulichand Oil Mill Company, Mill Area Fazalganj, Kanpur Nagar which is a private company. He is the D.O. Incharge. No other person except for him was working on the said post. Others were field employees. At that time, he was getting a salary of Rs. 3,200/-. He has four persons in the family who are living with him which included his wife, two daughters and a son Alok Kumar who is the deceased. The house, in which, they were living was a rented house which was taken on a rent of Rs. 1,100/- per month. The elder daughter had passed B.A. Amongst the children, the eldest was a daughter, then son and then another daughter. The younger daughter was studying in B.Sc. 1st year and was about two years younger to Alok Kumar. His son was studying in B.A. 1st Year and was given examination of the same. He was studying with Hindi, Economics and one other subject which he does not remember. His son Alok Kumar and the accused appellant Ashish Kumar were studying together in the same class and in the same section. He states that he does not know about the subject which Ashish Kumar was studying. Alok Kumar and Ashish Kumar were friends and as such he knew him quite well. Ashish Kumar never came to his house. He may have come in his absence, for which, he does not know. Ashish Kumar is a resident of village Nonpur Police Station Bhogsipur, and at the time of the incident, he was living with his maternal uncle in Bheemsen and used to go to D.V.S. College for his studies from there. The distance between Bheemsen and D.V.S. College Govindpuri Nagar, Kanpur is about 10-12 kilometres. The said two places are connected by a train also. Govindpuri Station is at a distance of half kilometre from DVS College. At the time of occurrence, he used to live in Koyla Nagar which is situated at a distance of about 15 kilometres from D.V.S. College. He states that his son used to go by cycle daily. He states that he does not know as to how many friends Alok Kumar had because they never used to come to the house. Purushottam is a friend of Alok Kumar whose father is a police personnel. Purushottam did not tell the name of other friends of Alok Kumar. He states to have identified the dead body of his son from the clothes. His clothes were of grey colour. Clothes of grey colour are available in the market and many people wear it. His son was from the science side in High School. He does not know as to when his son did his High School. He did his Inter from the science side but he does not know as to when his son did Inter. He states with his son had passed Inter in 2nd Division. He did not take admission in B.Sc. as he was not interested in sending him for studies. Then later on, after two years, he took admission in B.A. To a suggestion that his son was not serious about studies, he denies. To a further suggestion that his son was naughty boy, he denies. He states that his son had a technical mind and used to concentrate in studies. Further, to a suggestion that his son had a love affair with a girl named Fatima, he denies. Further, to a suggestion that due to the love affair with Fatima, his son used to roam about, he denies. He states that his son had gone to the college for giving examination on cycle at 05:30 a.m. He states that he cannot tell as to whether Fatima had taken Rs. 3 lakhs and jewellery from her house and had met his son at a fixed place and went with him. He further states that he cannot tell as to how the cycle of his son was found at Govindpuri Station. To a suggestion that his son has eloped with Fatima and is still alive. To a further suggestion that his son Alok Kumar and Fatima had a love affair and have eloped along with jewellery, he denies.

He was further cross examined wherein he states that his son was aged about 21 years at the time of incident. He states that he had received a letter, in which, it was written that his son Alok Kumar has eloped with Fatima, the sister of the said person and she has taken Rs. 3 lakhs and jewellery with her. He states that the said fact was written in the said letter. He states that Purushottam may not be involved in the elopement of the girl because the same is not written in the said letter. He proves the said letter which is marked as Exb: Ka-2 to the records. He states that he does not know that Purushottam to save himself has disclosed the acquaintance of Ashish with Alok Kumar. The father of Purushottam is a police inspector. To a suggestion that as the father of Purushottam is in the police, Ashish Kumar is being implicated in the matter just to save Purushottam, he denies. Further, to a suggestion that his son Alok Kumar is alive and is with Fatima, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that his son is intentionally not giving his correct address. He states that in Exb: Ka-1, the name of Ashish Kumar is not mentioned which is correct and true. He further states that it is true that the letter which was received by him is in the records, but the envelope of the same is not on record. He states that he had given them to the Investigating Officer. He states that except for the recovery memo Exb: Ka-4 relating to the demand of Rs. 3 lakhs as ransom there is no other letter has referred to in Exb: Ka-2 to the records. He states that there was no separate letter demanding ransom. To a suggestion that Exb: Ka-1 has been prepared in a forged manner and has been filed directly in Court and was not given at the Police Station, he denies the same. He states that it is correct that there is no signature of name of Ashish Kumar written at the bottom in the said letter. It is not even in the letter. He states that he had informed the Police Station Chakeri about the phone call from an unknown person received by him but had not given any written report. He states that the unknown persons phone call was received by his landlord which was for him. The information about the phone call was informed to him by his landlord. The landlord had given the phone to his wife, on which, his wife had interacted with the said person. The said person did not tell his name while talking. He further states that it is true that he had given his statement in Court that he knew accused Ashish Kumar and identifies him and he had called on phone for ransom and had sent the letter. He states that he had not given any written complaint at the Police Station. He states that he does not know the date, on which, he had received the said letter. He had given the pamphlets which he had got printed for searching his son to the Investigating Officer, the same is not on record. Further, to a suggestion that he has cooked up a false story due to a love affair of his son and under pressure of police, to which, he denies. To a further suggestion that all the letters have been prepared in a forged manner, he denies. He states that his son was studying in D.V.S. College. He states that after the disappearance of his son, the police had arrested the accused Ashish Kumar and had taken him with them. It was about two months after the disappearance of his son and about 15 days prior to the recovery, he states that the police had interrogated him and then had released him. About 3-4 times call was received on the mobile. The first call was about 5-7 days and second was after about a month and the third was after 2-3 days of the second call. He states that all the phone calls were done by accused Ashish Kumar. He states that accused Ashish Kumar did not tell his name on the phone and as such he was not named in the report. To a suggestion that he is stating the story about the phone calls on being tutored, he denies. He states that after the recovery of the dead body which he states to be of his son, he had gone to the Police Station and the paper work was done in the Police Station. To a suggestion that under the pressure of the police and out of love affection of his son, he has given a false evidence, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that his son is alive and has gone with a girl named Fatima. Further, he denies the suggestion that his son has misappropriated the jewellery of Fatima and to save himself, he is not coming forward, he denies.

24. Smt. Dharma Devi PW-2 is the wife of Hari Ram PW-1 and the mother of Alok Kumar. In her examination-in-chief she states that she has three children, in which, two are daughters and one son. Her son was studying in B.A. 1st Year in D.V.S. College, Govindpuri Kanpur. The examination of her son started in the 2nd week of March. For giving his 4th paper, he went on his cycle on 15.03.2005 at 05:30 a.m. He was wearing a grey coloured pant and almond coloured t-shirt. The exam was scheduled from 07:00 a.m. to 10 a.m. He did not return till evening. Then, her husband went to the college and inquired about him and came back and told her that Alok Kumar did not attend the exam. Later on, her husband started searching for him but his whereabouts were not known. Her jeth lives in Ghaziabad. On information, he also came. He also searched for Alok Kumar at various places but whereabouts of Alok Kumar could not be known. Information in newspaper and pamphlets were also printed. In the pamphlets, the mobile number of V.D. Kureel, her neighbour was mentioned. Her husband had informed him that if he receives any phone call then he may be informed about it. On 21.03.2005 i.e. after about a week of the disappearance of her son, her landlord received a phone call. The landlord informed them about the same. The call was received at about 10:30 a.m. Her husband was not at home at that time but was on duty. The call was received in his absence which was answered by her. The person calling immediately told her that if she wants her son then she should make arrangement Rs. 5 lakhs. She started crying, on hearing the same, to which, the phone was disconnected. She gave information to her husband. Her husband gets Rs. 3,200/- as salary from the work. The family affairs are met with difficulty in that money. After about 1¾ month, no phone call or any news was received. They used to search Alok Kumar through their contacts. If persons used to be arrested then they used to go to the police for inquiry. The information about the first phone call which was received, was not given to anyone. Later on, various phone calls were received wherein Rs. 3 lakhs was demanded for releasing Alok Kumar. A letter was also received and at the office of her husband, t-shirt of Alok Kumar which he was wearing on 15.03.2005 while going out from the house, was sent and received in a gift pack. The said facts were told to her by her husband. The fact regarding demand of Rs. 5 lakhs was also told by her husband to her. She did not believe that her son was kidnapped. She could understand that her son was in the clutches for about two and half months. There was a situation about her son not being recovered. She states that whenever the kidnapper used to call, she used to say that the family is very much under grief and trouble and help may be extended. She later on, came to know that accused Ashish Kumar who is the friend of Alok had kidnapped him for ransom, and due to non fulfilment of the same, has murdered him. She states that the Investigating Officer had interrogated her and had recorded her statement.

In her cross examination, she states that her daughter Yogita is the eldest amongst the children. She states to have come to the court with her husband who is standing behind her. She states that she has come to the court many times. Her husband always comes with her. Her second child was her son. Her son had stopped his studies on his own. He had stopped it for one year only. He had started learning work of electronics. Her son had started his studies from science side, and later on, restarted from the arts side. The phone call for ransom was received after about a week of his disappearance. The person who had called did not tell his name. The second call was received after about two and a half months. The person again did not disclose his name. Ashish Kumar Savita had called for ransom and the said fact came to be known to her after about two and a half months which was told by her husband to her. She does not know that Purushottam is the friend of her son. Ashish Kumar Savita did not ever come to her house with her son. For the first time, he was brought by the police. Police had told her that the said person is Ashish Kumar Savita and since then she knows him. The name of Ashish Kumar Savita is written in the diary of Alok Kumar but she does not remember as to which all other names are written in it. The diary was given to the Investigating Officer. She does not know as to whether the diary is part of the record or not. To a suggestion that since the name of Ashish Kumar Savita was written in the diary and her husband has tutored her to take the names she is disclosing the said name, she denies. She states that the name and roll numbers of other friends were also written but she does not remember. She states that when police had brought Ashish Kumar Savita to her house then she had told the police that he is not the accused in the case of her son. She then says that he is the accused. She states that as it was not known hence his name was not mentioned in the report. She states that she does not know that her son was having a love affair with a girl named Fatima. To a suggestion that her son was known to Fatima and has eloped with her along with jewellery and money, she denies. To a further suggestion that her son is living with a girl named Fatima and is still alive, she denies. She states that it is incorrect to say that her son has eloped with a girl named Fatima along with jewellery and just in order to save him, she and her husband are not disclosing his correct location. She states that whenever she comes to court, the Government Advocate used to meet her.

25. Shahanshah Hussain PW-3 was posted as Constable moharrir at Police Station Chakeri, Kanpur Nagar on 17.03.2005. He states in his examination-in-chief that Hari Ram came to the Police Station and gave an application regarding disappearance of his son Alok Kumar aged about 21 years, on the basis of which, a report of disappearance was transcribed in GD No. 54 at 19:30 hrs on 17.03.2005 by him. He proves the same which is marked as Exb: Ka-7 to the records.

26. Rakesh Kumar Shukla PW-4 was posted as Constable moharrir at Police Station Chakeri, District Kanpur Nagar on 30.05.2005. He states that previously, an information was given by Hari Ram on 17.03.2005 regarding the disappearance of his son Alok Kumar which was registered at the Police Station and a pamphlet was got printed and distributed by him, in which, he had given his and his neighbour's telephone numbers. He states that Hari Ram used to give information about the various phone calls received by them at the Police Station and he had then stated that looking to the said situation, he suspects that his son Alok Kumar may be murdered by the kidnapper and as such appropriate action be taken as early as possible. He states that the said information was transcribed in the general diary of the Police Station in GD No. 41 at 17:10 hrs on 30.05.2005 by him. The same was marked as Exb: Ka-8 to the records.

27. Anjani Kumar Pandey PW-5 is the 1st Investigating Officer of the matter. He took up the investigation on 30.05.2005 which remained with him till 01.06.2005. He states that after recovery of the dead body the inquest was conducted. The same is Exb: Ka-9 to the records. The dead body was sent for post-mortem and the required documents were prepared. The same were marked as Exb: Ka-10 to Ka-14 to the records which was prepared by him. He states that on 30.05.2005 he transcribed GD No. 41, GD No. 54 and recorded the statement of Constable Shahanshah Hussain and of Constable Rakesh Shukla. On 31.05.2005, he recorded the statement of Hari Ram and inquest. The letter for demand of ransom and also the chit which was pasted on the gift packet was sent to him. He prepared the recovery memos of the said papers, the gift pack and the t-shirt. He then inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site plan which was marked as Exb: Ka-15 to the records. On 01.06.2005, he states to have arrested accused Ashish Kumar Savita and on his pointing out recovered a human skeleton and recorded the statement of the accused and also recovered a tape recorder and prepared its recovery memo. He prepared the recovery memo of the dead body and of the cycle of the deceased. The same are marked as Exb: Ka-16 and 17 to the records. The investigation was then handed over to Ram Singh Yadav S.H.O.

In his cross examination, he states that he had mentioned the condition of the dead body as recovered. The dead body was in a decomposed state and as such the physical appearance could not be known. The whole body consisted of bones only, and it was only on the bones of the head that hairs were present. To a suggestion that the said recovery memos have been falsely prepared just in order to falsely proceed with the matter, he denies. He states that the clothes of the deceased as recovered are not present in court. To a suggestion that he has taken the clothes from informant and has falsely shown the recovery, he denies. He states that Pusushottam was a friend of Ashish Kumar. The father of Purushottam is the Sub-Inspector of Police. He states that it is correct that Purushottam had disclosed that a student named Ashish Kumar is a friend of Alok Kumar. Ashish Kumar was a student of DVS College. He had got the list of students named Ashish Kumar during investigation. He states that accused Ashish Kumar had disclosed that he was a friend of deceased Alok Kumar. He states that he did not take Ashish Kumar to the house of the informant Hari Ram for being identified by them. He states that Hari Ram had given a letter to him, in which, it was written that Hari Ram your son Alok Kumar has enticed away my sister Fatima. Fatima has taken Rs. 3 lakhs and jewellery along with her. He states that he did not do any investigation regarding the relationship and love affair of Alok Kumar with Fatima. Alok Kumar and Purushottam were friends. He states that he does not know that Purushottam had some relationship with a girl named Fatima. He states that he did not do any investigation regarding Fatima. To a suggestion that the father of Purushottam is a Police Inspector and to save him Ashish Kumar who was a friend of Alok Kumar and was known to him was falsely introduced and implicated in the matter, he denies the same. To a further suggestion that Alok Kumar is still alive and is hiding himself with Fatima, he denies. He states that he did not take any action against Purushottam. To a suggestion that in a hurried manner to show that the case has been worked out he been has falsely implicated Ashish Kumar, he denies. To a further suggestion that in order to save Purushottam falsely implicated Ashish Kumar, he recorded the false statement of witnesses, he denies.

28. Dr. Ashok PW-6 conducting the post-mortem examination of the recovered skeleton. The findings of the said doctor have already been stated above.

In his cross examination, he states that the time since death of the deceased, can be sometimes between 2-3 months. He states that from the skeleton, the dead body cannot be identified. He states that he cannot tell as to how the lower jaw of the skeleton is missing. He further states that it is true that along with skeleton, nine police papers were sent, on which, the name of the deceased was written as Alok Kumar and he read the same and as such he had mentioned the name of the deceased in the post-mortem report as Alok Kumar.

29. Shyam Singh Yadav PW-7 is the second Investigating Officer of the matter who took up the investigation from 02.06.2005, concluded it filed the charge sheet and then again took up the investigation and appended certain documents in it through a supplementary case diary. He states that on 02.06.2005, he perused the investigation as done by the previous officers and recorded the statement of Jakir. On 03.06.2005, he copied and annexed the post-mortem report and recorded the statement of the first informant and his brother Himmat Ram. He then inspected the place from where the dead body was recovered and prepared the site plan of the same which was marked as Exb: Ka-19 to the records. He then recorded the statement of witness Ramesh and Chaudhary Badri Prasad. On 04.06.2005, he recorded the statement of two witnesses of recovery. On 05.06.2005, he further recorded the statement of witnesses of recovery. On 06.06.2005, he recorded the statement of witnesses of inquest. On 07.06.2005, he states to have recorded the statement of two witnesses of the recovery of cycle. On 08.06.2005, he recorded the statement of witness of recovery of dead body and cycle. On 10.06.2005, he annexed the inquest with the case diary. On 11.06.2005, he recorded the statement of two witnesses. On 12.06.2005, he recorded the statement of three witnesses. On 13.06.2005 he sent a report to the court concerned regarding the gift packet, t-shirt and chit for being sent for examination. On 16.06.2005, the packet for the comparison of handwriting was prepared. On 19.06.2005, he disclosed about the preparation of the docket for sending material for handwriting comparison. On 21.06.2005, the statement of three witnesses were recorded. On 25.06.2005, he made an attempt to send the bones for examination. On 28.06.2005 and 06.07.2005, the bones were being sent for X-ray. On 12.07.2005, he made an attempt to obtain the handwriting of accused Ashish Kumar for comparison and also to send the bones for analysis. On 13.07.2005, the bones were sent for analysis. On 19.07.2005, he filed a charge sheet against the appellant which was marked as Exb: Ka-20 to the records. Subsequently, from 04.08.2005 to 18.11.2005, the inquest on the examination of the bones, x-ray and report of the handwriting expert was appended with the case diary. The case was then transferred to the Station House Officer.

In his cross examination, he states that on 03.06.2005, he recorded the statement of the first informant. He states that the first informant did not disclose the name and states that he knew and identifies accused Ashish Kumar and the said Ashish Kumar had called up for ransom and had sent letter but in the investigation it has come out that Ashish Kumar had called on phone and had also sent letter for an attempt to obtain ransom. He further states that the informant did not give him the statement that this accused had kidnapped his son Alok Kumar for ransom and due to non fulfilment of the same, has murdered him and has got the dead body disappeared but had stated to him that Ashish Kumar who is the murderer of his son Alok Kumar, be given strict punishment which would pacify him. He states that the informant did not give him the statement that on 25.05.2005 through rickshaw puller accused Ashish Kumar had sent clothes of his son and had demanded ransom but states that he had given the statement that a gift packet was sent through a rickshaw puller. He states that the first informant Hari Ram did not give him any letter. It was given to the previous Investigating Officer before him. To a suggestion that he has not prepared the site plan of the recovery of the dead body on the pointing out of the first informant, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that the site plan of the recovery of the dead body has been prepared in a false manner. He further states that he did not fill the inquest. He did not recover the cycle on the pointing out of the accused. He states that papers were sent to the Forensic Science Lab for handwriting comparison. He states that in the report of the Forensic Lab Science Laboratory, it is mentioned that the person who has written document marked S1 to S18 has not written the disputed document marked as Q1 to Q4. He states that he did not conduct investigation regarding the elopement of a girl named Fatima. To a suggestion he further states that it is incorrect to state that he has not conducted the correct investigation and has not unearthed the case properly and Ashish Kumar who is a poor person, has been falsely implicated and nominated in the matter and a false charge sheet has been filed.

30. The accused in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has stated that he has not committed the murder of Alok Kumar. Alok Kumar has run away with a girl named Fatima along with jewellery and as such he is hiding himself. He stated that Alok Kumar is still alive.

31. The trial court after considering the entire evidence on record and has convicted and sentenced the accused by the judgment impugned herein as stated above.

32. The present case is a case of circumstantial evidence. The rules to be followed in a case of circumstantial evidence are trite.

33. There is no eye witness of the incident and the entire case of the prosecution rests on circumstantial evidence.

34. The case of Queen-Empress Vs. Hosh Nak : 1941 All LJ 416 is worth referring at this juncture which is a locus classicus on the issue of circumstantial evidence. This is a very old decision which was printed in the Allahabad Law Journal after sixty years of its decision on the recommendation of Rt. Hon'ble Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru. In the case of Hosh Nak (supra), it has been held that to prove an offence by the circumstantial evidence four things are essential. They are:

(1) : That the circumstance from which the conclusion is drawn be fully established.

(2) : That all the facts should be consistent with the hypothesis.

(3) : That the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) : That the circumstances should, to a moral certainty, actually exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved.

35. Then in the case of Hanumant, son of Govind Nargundkar Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh : AIR 1952 SC 343 it has been held in para 10 by the Apex Court as under:

"10. .....It is well to remember that in cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established, and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused....."

36. Thereafter, in the case of Khasbaba Maruti Sholke Vs. The State of Maharashtra : (1973) 2 SCC 449 it was held by the Apex Court as under:

"18. In order to base the conviction of an accused on circumstantial evidence the court must be certain that the circumstantial evidence is of such a character as is consistent only with the guilt of the accused. If, however, the circumstantial evidence admits of any other rational explanation, in such an event an element of doubt would creep in and the accused must necessarily have the benefit thereof. The circumstances relied upon should be of a conclusive character and should exclude every hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused. The circumstances must show that within all reasonable probability the impugned act must have been done by the accused. If two inferences are possible from the circumstantial evidence, one pointing to the guilt of the accused, and the other, also plausible, that the commission of the crime was the act of some one else, the circumstantial evidence would not warrant the conviction of the accused....."

37. The circumstantial evidence must be so complete as to exclude every hypothesis other than that of guilt of the accused.

38. In the celebrated case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra : (1984) 4 SCC 116 the Apex Court has described five principles of circumstantial evidence as the pillars on circumstantial evidence. The five principles have been narrated in para 153 which is extracted herein :

"153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned "must or should' and not "may be' established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between "may be proved' and "must be or should be proved" as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of

Maharashtra : [(1973) 2 SCC 793; para 19, p. 807] where the following observations were made : "Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between "may be' and "must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable and any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty.

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as to leave by reasonable grounds for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

Further in paragraph 154 of the said judgment it was held as under:

"154. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence".

39. The cardinal principle of criminal jurisprudence is that the prosecution has to stand on its own legs and it should prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. Doubt must be of a reasonable man and reasonableness of doubt must be commensurate with the nature of the offence to be investigated.

40. Before appreciating the evidence on record it is necessary to point out Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 which reads as under:

"27: How much of information received from accused may be proved:

Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered may be proved."

41. It is clear from the reading of Section 27 of the Evidence Act that this Section is based on doctrine of confirmation by subsequent facts. That doctrine is that where, in consequence of a confession otherwise inadmissible, search is made and facts are discovered, it is a guarantee that the confession made was true. But only that portion of the information can be proved which relates distinctly or strictly to the facts discovered.

42. In the case of Ram Kishan Mithan Lal Sharma Vs. State of Bombay : AIR 1955 SC 104, it is held by the Apex Court that Section 27 of the Evidence Act is an exception to the rules enacted in Sections 25 and 26 of the Act which provide that no confession made to a police officer shall be proved against a person accused of an offence and that no confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a police officer unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against such person. Where, however, any fact is discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence in the custody of a police officer, that part of the information as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered can be proved whether it amounts to a confession or not.

43. In the case of Pulukari Kottaiah Vs. King Emperor : AIR 1947 PC 67 it has been held as follows : "the condition necessary to bring S. 27 into operation is that the discovery of a fact must be deposed to, and thereupon so much of the information as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered may be proved".

44. The Section is based on the view that if a fact is actually discovered in consequence of information given, some guarantee is afforded thereby that the information was true, and accordingly can be safely allowed to be given in evidence, but clearly the extent of the information admissible must depend on the exact nature of the fact discovered to which such information is required to relate.

45. In the case of Delhi Administration Vs. Balkrishan : AIR 1972 SC 3 the Apex Court has held that Section 27 of the Evidence Act is by way of a proviso to Sections 25 and 26 and a statement by way of confession made in police custody which distinctly relates to the fact discovered is admissible is evidence against the accused.

46. It cannot be lost sight of that Section 27 of the Evidence Act has frequently been misused by the police against an accused. Court should, therefore, be cautious and vigilant about the application of the above provision. The protection afforded by the provisions under Sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act is sought to be overcome by the police by taking resort to the provisions of Section 27 of the Evidence Act. The validity of Section 27 of the Evidence Act has been upheld by the Apex Court.

47. Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 is for the purpose of enabling the accused personally to explain any circumstance appearing in the evidence against him.

The nature of questions put to the appellant, under Section 313 of the Cr. P. C. also needs to be seen and referred. The questions put to the appellant were not complete or in accordance with law. The questions should have been more clear giving the correct fact that during the investigation the accused had promised to the Investigating Officer to get the dead body recovered on his pointing out.

48. Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 reads as follows:

"313: Power to examine accused :

(1) In every inquiry or trial, for the purpose of enabling the accused personally to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, the Court--

(a) may at any stage, without previously warning the accused, put such questions to him as the Court considers necessary;

(b) shall, after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called on for his defence, question him generally on the case:

Provided that in a summons-case, where the Court has dispensed with the personal attendance of the accused, it may also dispense with his examination under clause (b).

(2) No oath shall be administered to the accused when he is examined under sub-section (1).

(3) The accused shall not render himself liable to punishment by refusing to answer such questions, or by giving false answers to them.

(4) The answers given by the accused may be taken into consideration in such inquiry or trial, and put in evidence for or against him in any other inquiry into, or trial for, any other offence which such answers may tend to show he has committed.

(5) The Court may take help of Prosecutor and Defence Counsel in preparing relevant questions which are to be put to the accused and the Court may permit filing of written statement by the accused as sufficient compliance of this section."

49. From the reading of the Section it is clear that it is duty of the Court to find out whether the circumstances put to the accused under Section 313 Cr. P. C. were intelligible to him and whether he could answer the same after understanding the same and whether the question has caused any prejudice to the accused.

50. It is a matter of law that the circumstances appearing in evidence against the accused have to be put to the accused for the purposes of enabling the accused to explain such circumstances. This is a mandatory duty of the Court. In the present case, the prosecution in the question No. 1 has put to the accused that the dead body was concealed by him to case disappearance of it in the kacchi kothari in Kacchi Basti near a nahar in mohalla Sanjay Nagar, Police Station Govind Nagar and later on in question No. 3 he has been asked that P.W. - 1 has stated that the dead body of his son was recovered near nahar in Govind Nagar which both were denied by the accused. Both the said circumstances are quite different in themselves and do cause prejudice to the accused as at one point the place of recovery of dead body is different from the other. We have examined the entire statement recorded under Section 313 Cr. P. C.

51. In the case of Jai Dev and Hari Singh v. State of Punjab : AIR 1963 SC 612 it has been held by the Apex Court that the examination of the accused person under Section 342 Cr. P. C. (old) is intended to give him an opportunity to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him. In exercising its powers under Section 342, the Court must take care to put all relevant circumstances appearing in the evidence to the accused person. It would not be enough to put a few general and broad questions to the accused, for by adopting such a course the accused may not get opportunity of explaining all the relevant circumstances. On the other hand, it would not be fair or right that the court should put to the accused person detailed questions which may amount to his cross examination. The ultimate test in determining whether or not the accused has been fairly examined under Section 342 would be to enquire whether, having regard to all the questions put to him, he did get an opportunity to say what he wanted to say in respect of prosecution case against him. If it appears that the examination of the accused person was defective and thereby a prejudice has been caused to him, that would no doubt be a serious infirmity. It is obvious that no general rule can be laid down in regard to the manner in which the accused person should be examined under Section 342 Cr.P.C. The true position appears to be that passion for brevity which may be content with asking a few omnibus general questions is as much inconsistent with the requirements of Section 342 as anxiety for thoroughness which may dictate an unduly detailed and large number of questions which may amount to the cross examination of the accused persons.

52. From the above decision it is clear that the question should only give the circumstances and not the details, which may otherwise amount to cross examination of the accused.

53. In the case of State of Andhra Pradesh Vs. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao : AIR 1963 SC 1850 the Apex Court has held that the accused should not be put involved questions embracing a number of matters.

54. The recovery of the dead body on the pointing out of the appellant has been relied upon by the prosecution as one of the evidences against him. Te other being the letter demanding ransom and the various telephone calls.

55. No doubt, mere recovery in pursuance of Section 27 of the Evidence Act is not a clinching proof for holding an accused guilty. However, there is no doubt that it is good piece of evidence which may be relied upon as a link in the chain of circumstances in the present case for holding the guilt.

56. It is a well settled principle of law that a conviction cannot be founded on circumstantial evidence alone unless it cannot be explained on any hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused.

57. It is well settled that in a case which rests on circumstantial evidence, law postulates two fold requirements:-

(i) Every link in the chain of the circumstances necessary to establish the guilt of the accused must be established by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt.

(ii) All the circumstances must be consistent pointing only towards the guilt of the accused.

58. In the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra) has enunciated the aforesaid principle as under:-

"The normal principle in a case based on circumstantial evidence is that the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established; that those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the Accused; that the circumstances taken cumulatively should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the Accused and they should be incapable of explanation on any hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the Accused and inconsistent with his innocence".

59. It is well settled that in a case based on circumstantial evidence the Courts ought to have a conscientious approach and conviction ought to be recorded only in case in which all the links of the chain are complete and pointing to the guilt of the accused. Each link unless connected together form a chain may suggest suspicion but the same in itself cannot take place of proof and will not be sufficient to convict the accused.

60. In cases where the evidence is purely circumstantial in nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is sought to be drawn must be fully established beyond any reasonable doubt and such circumstances must be consistent and must form a complete chain unerringly point to the guilt of the accused and the chain of circumstances must be established by the prosecution. Referring to several earlier decisions the Apex Court in the case of Geejaganda Somaiah v. State of Karnataka : (2007) 9 SCC 315 in para 15 held as follows:-

"15. Sir Alfred Wills in his admirable book Wills' Circumstantial Evidence (Chapter VI) lays down the following rules specially to be observed in the case of circumstantial evidence: (1) the facts alleged as the basis of any legal inference must be clearly proved and beyond reasonable doubt connected with the factum probandum; (2) the burden of proof is always on the party who asserts the existence of any fact, which infers legal accountability; (3) in all cases, whether of direct or circumstantial evidence the best evidence must be adduced which the nature of the case admits; (4) in order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation, upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt; and (5) if there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted."

The same principle has been reiterated in a catena of later judgments.

61. In the present matter, the appellant is not named as an accused in the first information report. The name of the appellant appears on the basis of some information given by one Purushottam who has not been produced and examined as a witness. The recovery of the alleged skeleton is being strongly disputed by the defence as that of being of Alok Kumar the son of Hari Ram PW-1. Further, the prosecution relies heavily on the recovery of the alleged skeleton on the pointing out of the applicant which is stated to be buried in a room which is said to have been taken on rent by the appellant. There is no evidence whatsoever coming forth to substantiate that the recovery as alleged from the room was taken on rent by the accused appellant Ashish Kumar and was in his possession at the time of the incident as a tenant. No evidence to the said fact has been brought on record. Except for the said fact being mentioned in the recovery memo Exb: Ka-6 to the records which is dated 01.06.2005, there is no other evidence to show that the said room was rented to the accused appellant and was in his possession at the time of occurrence. Further, PW-1 Hari Ram in his examination-in-chief has very categorically stated that he discovered the dead body of his son Alok Kumar near a canal in Govindpuri and then informed the police about the same and had reached there and identified the said body on the basis of clothes worn by it. The said fact clearly runs contrary to the case of the prosecution that the dead body has been recovered on the pointing out of the appellant from a room where it was buried which was rented to him. A letter which was given by Hari Ram PW-1 to the police which shows to have been addressed to him and written by the brother of a girl named Fatima states that his son has eloped with Fatima who has taken Rs. 3 lakhs and jewellery from the house and has left the place. The said letter was handed over by Hari Ram PW-1 to the police but the police failed to investigate the said aspect of the matter. Specific questions were put to Anjani Kumar Pandey PW-5 and Shyam Singh Yadav PW-7 regarding the fact of any investigation being conducted in the matter of elopement of Fatima with Alok Kumar the son of Hari Ram PW-1 but they have categorically stated that they did not conduct any investigation as such. The letters and chit sent to Hari Ram PW-1 demanding ransom alleged to have been sent by the appellant, were sent along with the admitted handwriting of the appellant to the Forensic Lab for comparison of the handwriting. The opinion of the handwriting expert is very specific in terms of the fact that both of the same are not written by the same person. Even, the telephone calls which are said to be various in numbers and received by various persons are said to be only confined to the fact of disclosure of the amount of the alleged ransom but it has nowhere come as to who the person was who had called various times. Even, the said link fails to have any corroboration for implicating the appellant. PW-1 Hari Ram has in his cross examination stated that the appellant was previously arrested by the police after about two months of the disappearance of his son and then again after about 15 days prior to the recovery of the dead body. The said statement is also very categorical in its terms whereas the Investigating Officer states to have arrested the appellant on a different date.

62. The prosecution in the present case has failed to discharge its duty by fixing each and every link in the chain which would reach to an irresistible conclusion that the appellant is the accused in the matter.

63. Thus the conviction of the appellant by the trial court is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The trial court committed an error in recording the conviction and sentence of the appellant. Hence the impugned judgment and order dated 10.01.2013 passed by the trial court is liable to be set aside, which is accordingly set aside.

64. The present appeal is allowed.

65. The appellant Ashish Kumar Savita is in jail. He is directed to be released forthwith unless wanted in any other case.

66. Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 the accused-appellant Ashish Kumar Savita is directed to furnish a personal bond in terms of Form No. 45 prescribed in The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 of a sum of Rs. 25,000/- with two reliable sureties in the like amount before the court concerned which shall be effective for a period of six months along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against the instant judgment or for grant of leave, the aforesaid appellant on receipt of notice thereof shall appear before the Apex Court.

67. The lower court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to the trial court concerned for compliance and necessary action.

68. The party shall file computer generated copy of such judgment downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad before the concerned Court/Authority/Official.

69. The computer generated copy of such judgment shall be self-attested by the counsel of the party concerned.

70. The concerned Court /Authority /Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the judgment from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

Criminal Appeal No. 1132 of 1982

Udai Narain @ Udai & Ors.
...Appellants(In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri U.K. Misra, Sri Anurag Pathak

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A., Sri V.V. Mishra

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Sections 385, 386- Criminal Appeal- Records of court below weeded out- Reconstruction of record not possible- nor retrial possible as most of the accused persons had died.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Sections 385, 386- Criminal Appeal - After being convicted it is right of an accused to assail the impugned judgment and order in appeal and point out the ambiguity, perversity, illegality, irregularity and infirmity in the order and proceeding of the trial Court to prove his innocence, which is not possible in absence of original record of the Sessions Trial.

The purpose of the statutory right of appeal provided to the accused under Section386 of the Cr.Pc. to challenge the judgement of the trial court, stands defeated in the absence of the record of the court below since the infirmities, illegalities and perversities in the judgement of the trial court cannot be demonstrated before the Appellate Court.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 -Section 386- Criminal Appeal-In defining power of the Appellate Court, Section 386 Cr.P.C. enumerates that Appellate Court is empowered to reverse the finding of the Court below or uphold the sentence or acquit the accused and, in exercising its power, Appellate Court has to go through the record of Court below and submissions made by the appellant and Public Prosecutor. In this view of the matter, Appellate Court cannot properly exercise its jurisdiction of acquittal, reversal or upholding the sentence without perusing the record of Sessions Trial. Therefore, in the present scenario, taking into account the death of the parties and non availability of the documents, retrial in the present case is almost impossible.

The Appellate Court, while considering an Appeal against a judgement of conviction recorded by the trial court, cannot exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by Section 386 of the Cr.Pc. in the absence of the record of the trial court and a retrial would be an exercise in futility as most of the accused and the witnesses have died during the passage of time.

Criminal Appeal Allowed. (E-2)

Case law/ Judgements relied upon:-

1. St. of U.P. Vs Abhai Raj Singh & anr, AIR 2004 SC 3235.

2. Sita Ram & ors. Vs State, 1981 Cri.L.J. 65

3. Crl. Appeal No. 522 of 1980 (Bachchi Lal & ors. Vs St. of U.P.)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Pathak, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellants and learned A.G.A. for State-respondent.

2. Instant criminal appeal has been preferred challenging the judgment and order dated 26.03.1982 passed by 3rd Additional Sessions Judge, Ballia in Sessions Trial No.245 of 1980 convicting the appellants under Section 395 IPC and sentencing them to undergo five years rigorous imprisonment.

3. Vide impugned judgment and order dated 26.03.1982, eight accused persons had been convicted, out of them six had filed instant appeal.

4. As per FIR version, in the intervening night of 14/15 March, 1980 while first informant Ram Nagina Mishra (PW-2) was sleeping in his room situated towards north of the outer verandah of his house, a gang of 14-15 dacoits raided at his house and barged into the house after breaking the outer door. On strong resistance by the villagers, many of the dacoits managed to escape from the place of occurrence, but out of them five dacoits namely Udai Narayan, Ram Vachan, Jagdish, Mani Ram and Babban were caught by the villagers. Apart from that, two others namely Ghura and Dukhu were recognized by the villagers. During course of investigation police suspected one more accused namely Moti. In this view of the matter, total eight persons were blamed to be involved in commission of crime (i.e. dacoity). Informant Ram Nagina Mishra (PW-2) has moved written report dated 15.03.1980 (Exhibit Ka-1) with respect to incident in question on the basis of which Chik FIR (Exhibit Ka-5) has been registered under Section 395/397 IPC and same was scribed in the General Diary. Copy of which was exhibited as Exhibit Ka-6. After due investigation, the Investigating Officer has submitted charge sheet under Sections 395/397 IPC and case was registered in the Court of Judicial Magistrate-I, Ballia. Thereafter, case was committed to the Court of Sessions for trial.

5. In order to substantiate the charges levelled against the accused, prosecution has produced as many as ten witnesses. On the other side, defence has examined four witnesses. After considering the facts and circumstances and documents available on record, trial Court has passed the impugned judgment and order convicting the accused persons as mentioned above.

6. Against aforesaid judgment and order dated 26.03.1982, two criminal appeals were preferred which are registered as (i) Criminal Appeal No.1131 of 1982 (Ram Vachan and another vs. State of U.P.) and (ii) Criminal Appeal No.1132 of 1982 (Udai Narayan and five others vs. State of U.P.).

(i) So far as Criminal Appeal No.1131 of 1982 is concerned, it was preferred by two accused namely Ram Vachan (appellant no.1) and Mani Ram (appellant no.2). Aforesaid appeal was ordered to be dismissed as infructuous vide order dated 06.05.2013 passed by this Court on the ground that appellant no.1 Ram Vachan had already served out the sentence and has already been released from the jail. So far as appellant no.2 Mani Ram is concerned, he expired and appeal was already abated against him.

(ii) In the present criminal appeal i.e. Criminal Appeal no.1132 of 1982, which has been filed on behalf of six appellants/accused, out of them four had already died and vide order dated 12.03.2013, present appeal was ordered to be dismissed as abated against appellant nos.1, 2, 4 and 5. Now it survives only against appellant no.3 Babban Nonia and appellant no.6 Moti Ram.

7. Vide order dated 04.05.1982, instant appeal was admitted and notice was ordered to be issued to the State and appellants were enlarged on bail during pendency of appeal. With respect to the record of Court below, District Judge, Ballia had submitted report dated 18.02.2003 informing that record of Criminal Appeal No.1131 of 1982 relating to Sessions Trial No.245 of 1980 had already been weeded out by the concerned Record Keeper on 03.06.1992. After considering aforesaid report, this Court had passed order dated 29.01.2004 directing District Judge, Ballia for reconstruction of the record. Thereafter, sufficient number of communications have been made between Registry of High Court and concerned Court below. Ultimately, District Judge, Ballia had sent a detailed report dated 27.07.2016, through Special Messenger, along with a detailed enquiry report dated 06.07.2016 submitted by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court no.3, Ballia. Record further reveals that District Judge, Ballia had sent another report to the same effect vide communication letter dated 08.07.2016 along with the detailed enquiry report dated 06.07.2016 submitted by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Ballia. In the aforesaid report, District Judge, Ballia has specifically mentioned that despite best efforts, reconstruction of record of Sessions Trial no.245 of 1980 is not possible.

8. In support of his observation, showing his inability to reconstruct the record, District Judge, Ballia had appended enquiry report dated 06.07.2016 as mentioned above, which reveals that learned Additional District and Sessions Judge, Ballia had made mammoth effort for reconstruction of the record relating to Sessions Trial No.245 of 1980 from all possible corners i.e. Office of District Government Advocate (Criminal), Office of Senior Superintendent of Police, Ballia, Office of concerned police station, and Record Room but all his efforts proved to be futile. He had also summoned accused persons namely Babban Nonia (appellant no.3) and Moti Ram (appellant no.6), who had stated that their counsel, in trial Court, had already died and all record relating to their case was with them and they did not possess any document relating to the case. After enquiry, it was found that first informant Ram Nagina Mishra (PW-2) had also died.

9. In the light of enquiry at the ground level, Additional District and Sessions Judge, Ballia had submitted a detailed report dated 06.07.2016 that no record/document could be found relating to Sessions Trial No.245 of 1980, therefore, reconstruction of record is not possible. In the light of aforesaid enquiry report dated 06.07.2016, District Judge, Ballia had also made his observation to the same effect.

10. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that since the record of Court below is missing and neither the reconstruction of record is possible nor retrial relating to present matter is possible, in the light of the fact that most of the accused persons had died, hence, instant appeal may be allowed and accused-appellants, who are alive, may kindly be acquitted. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the appellants has relied on Hon'ble Supreme Court's case passed in

State of U.P. vs. Abhai Raj Singh and another, AIR 2004 SC 3235.

11. Learned A.G.A. has nodded the proposition of law, as submitted by learned counsel for the appellants, relating to the matter where record of trial Court is missing, and proper adjudication of the accusation against accused persons is not possible as required under Sections 385 and 386 of Cr.P.C.

12. In this view of the matter, the vexed question arose for consideration in this appeal is as to whether appeal can be allowed and accused-appellants can be acquitted for want of original record of Sessions Trial.

13. I have carefully considered the submissions advanced on behalf of both the parties and also gone through the relevant provisions of law.

14. After being convicted it is right of an accused to assail the impugned judgment and order in appeal and point out the ambiguity, perversity, illegality, irregularity and infirmity in the order and proceeding of the trial Court to prove his innocence, which is not possible in absence of original record of the Sessions Trial. As such, original record of Sessions Trial is most essential before the Appellate Court to examine the legality of conviction of accused-appellant

15. The procedure qua legitimate right of an accused to challenge the impugned judgment and order of conviction and prove his innocence is provided under Sections 385 and 386 Cr.P.C. Aforesaid sections fall under Chapter XXIX of Cr.P.C. which is captioned as "Appeals". Sections 385 and 386 Cr.P.C. deals with "Procedure for hearing appeals not dismissed summarily" and "Powers of the Appellate Court", respectively, which read as follows :

"385. Procedure for hearing appeals not dismissed summarily.-(1) If the Appellate Court does not dismiss the appeal summarily, it shall cause notice of the time and place at which such appeal will be heard to be given-

(i) to the appellant or his pleader;

(ii) to such officer as the State Government may appoint in this behalf;

(iii) if the appeal is from a judgment of conviction in a case instituted upon complaint, to the complainant;

(iv) if the appeal is under Section 377 or Section 378, to the accused, and shall also furnish such officer, complainant and accused with a copy of the grounds of appeal.

(2) The Appellate Court shall then send for the record of the case, if such record is not ready available in that Court, and hear the parties:

Provided that if the appeal is only as to the extent or the legality of the sentence, the Court may dispose of the appeal without sending for the record.

(3) Where the only ground for appeal from a conviction is the alleged severity of the sentence, the appellant shall not, except with the leave of the Court, urge or be heard in support of any other ground.

386. Powers of the Appellate Court.-After perusing such record and hearing the appellant or his pleader, if he appears, and the Public Prosecutor if he appears, and in case of an appeal under Section 377 or Section 378, the accused, if he appears, the Appellate Court may, if it considers that there is no sufficient ground for interfering, dismiss the appeal or may-

16. As per procedure embodied under Section 385 Cr.P.C., Appellate Court, in case not dismissing the appeal summarily, is entrusted with the duty to issue notice to persons as mentioned in several categories of Section 385 (1) Cr.P.C. Appellate Court has also been entrusted to call for the record of Court below with one exception, where the appeal is only to the extent or the legality of sentence, it may dispose of an appeal without summoning the record. Further, in defining power of the Appellate Court, Section 386 Cr.P.C. enumerates that Appellate Court is empowered to reverse the finding of the Court below or uphold the sentence or acquit the accused and, in exercising its power, Appellate Court has to go through the record of Court below and submissions made by the appellant and Public Prosecutor. In this view of the matter, Appellate Court cannot properly exercise its jurisdiction of acquittal, reversal or upholding the sentence without perusing the record of Sessions Trial.

17. Dealing with the matter wherein record of Court below is missing and reconstruction is not possible, even retrial of the case has also become difficult owing to so many reasons, Hon'ble Supreme Court has enumerated the law relating to these matter and expounded that in such eventuality, matter should be closed. In State of U.P. Vs Abhai Raj Singh (supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed as under :

"The powers of the appellate court when dealing with an appeal from a conviction are delineated in sub-clauses (I), (ii) and (iii) of clause (b) of section 386 of the code. The appellate court is empowered by section 386 to reverse the finding and sentence and acquit. Therefore, the acquittal is possible when there is reversal of the finding and sentence and acquit. Therefore, the acquittal is possible when there is reversal of the finding and sentence. The appellate court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to the appellate court or committed for trial . For exercise of the powers in cases of first two categories, obviously a finding on merits after consideration of the materials on record is imperative. Where that is not possible because of circumstances like the case at hand i.e. destruction of the records , the proper course for the appellate court would be to direct retrial after reconstruction of the records the same was impossible. If on the other hand, from the copies available with the prosecuting agency or the defence and/or their respective counsel, reconstruction is possible to be made, the said course indicated in sub-clause (i) and (ii). After perusal of the records and hearing the appellant's pleader and Public Prosecutor under section 377 or 378, the exercise of power as indicated above can be resorted to. As was observed in Bani Singh v. State of U.P. (1996) 4 SCC 720 . The plain language of section 385 makes it clear that if the appellate court does not consider the appeal fit for summary dismissal, it must call for the records and section 386 mandates that after record is received, the appellate court may dispose of the appeal after hearing as indicated.

A question would further arise as to what happens when reconstruction is not possible. Section 386 empowers the appellate court to order that the case be committed for trial and this power is not circumscribed to cases exclusively triable by the Court of Session.(See State of U.P. v. Shankar AIR 1962 SC1154).

It has been the consistent view taken by several High court that when records are destroyed by fire or on account of natural or unnatural calamities reconstruction should be ordered. In Queen Empress v. Khimat Singh 1889 AWN 55 the view taken was that the provisions of section 423(1) of the criminal procedure code,1898(in short " the old code") made it obligatory for the court to obtain and examine the record at the time of hearing. When it was not possible to do so, the only available course was a direction for reconstruction. The said view was reiterated more than six decades back in Sevuaperumal, Re AIR 1943 Mad 391(2). The view has been reiterated by several high Courts as well,even thereafter.

The High court did not keep the relevant aspects and consideration in view and came to the abrupt conclusion that reconstruction was not possible merely because there was no response from the Session Judge. The order for reconstruction was 1-11-1993 and the judgement of the high court is in Criminal Appeal No. 1970 of 1979 dated 25-2-1994. the order was followed in Criminal Appeal No. 1962 of 1979 disposed of on 16-9-1995. it is not clear as to why the high court did not require the session court to furnish the information about reconstruction of records; and/or itself take initiative by issuing positive directions as to the manner, method and nature of attempts,efforts and exercise to be undertaken to effectively achieve the purpose in the best interests of justice and to avoid ultimately any miscarriage of justice resulting from any lapse,inaction or inappropriate or perfunctory action,in this regard; particularly when no action was taken by the high court to pass necessary orders for about a decade when it received information about destruction of record. The course adopted by the high court, if approved, would encourage dubious persons and detractors of justice by allowing undeserved premium to violators of law by acting hand in glove with those anti-social elements coming to hold sway,behind the screen, in the ordinary and normal course of justice.

10. We , therefore, set aside the order of the high court and remit the matter back for fresh consideration. It is to be noted at this juncture that one of the respondents i.e. Om pal has died during the pendency of the appeal before this court .The High court shall direct reconstruction of the records within a period of six months from the date of receipt of our judgment from all available or possible sources with the assistance of the prosecuting agency as well as the defending parties and their respective counsel. If it is possible to have the records reonstructed to enable the high court itself to hear and dispose of the appeals in the manner envisaged under section 386 of the code,rehear the appeals and dispose of the same, on their own merits and in ordering retrial interest of justice could be better served-adopt that course. If only reconstruction is not possible to facilitate the high court to hear and dispose of the appeals and the further course of retrial and fresh adjudication by the sessions court is also rendered impossible due to loss of vitally important basic records- in that case and situation only, the direction given in the impugned judgement shall operate and the matter shall stand closed. The appeals are accordingly disposed of."

18. In Sita Ram and others vs. State, 1981 Cri.L.J. 65, it is held that appellant has a right to show in the appeal that the decision arrived at by the Court below, was not supported by the evidence on record and in absence of original record, it is not possible to examine the legality of the judgment in question that as to whether same is supported by the evidence available on record and order of conviction passed and sentence imposed is legally justified and proper. Relevant paragraphs 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 of aforesaid judgment are reproduced herein below :

"5. Since it is incumbent on the appellate court to send for the record and peruse it and hear the counsel for the parties before it can exercise its power under Section 386, the present appeal cannot possibly be heard and decided on merit.

6. The appellants have a right to show to this Court that the decision arrived at by the court below was not supported by the evidence on record. They can legitimately contend that material evidence and circumstances have either been ignored or incorrectly appraised. This right cannot be denied to the appellants. In the absence of the original record it is not possible for us to arrive at a decision that the impugned judgment is supported by the evidence on record and the order of conviction passed and the sentence imposed on the appellants is legally justified and proper.

7. In such a situation two courses are open to the Court; (1) to order retrial after setting aside the impugned judgment; or (2) to acquit the appellants. A situation like the present one arose before Courts earlier also. In re Sevugaperumal AIR 1943 Mad 391 (2) : 44 Cri LJ 611 the accused were convicted under Sections 457, 395 and 397 Penal Code, and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. Following the decision of this Court in Queen-Empress v. Khimat Singh 1889 All WN 55 (supra) the Madras High Court ordered retrial after setting aside the convictions. From the reports of these decisions it is not clear how much time had elapsed between the incident and the date when retrial was directed. In the Madras case the impugned order of the trial court was dated 22-6-1942. The appeal was filed on 6-8-1942 and the original record was destroyed by fire on 17-8-1942. The appeal came up for hearing on 5-11-1942. It may be that the time lapse between the date of the incident and the date of decision by the appellate court was not long. Moreover the Public Prosecutor conceded in those cases that no other course was possible under the circumstances.

8. In Madhusudhan v. State 1963 (2) Cri LJ 103 (Orissa) the appellant was convicted under Section 302, I.P.C. and sentenced to imprisonment for life by an order of the Sessions Judge dated 17-4-1962. The incident had taken place on 29-3-1962. The appeal came up for hearing on 12-12-1962. The appellate court directed retrial of the case. It may be noted that the order for retrial was passed well within two years of the incident.

9. A similar situation arose before this Court in Zillar v. State 1956 All WR (HC) 613. In this case the appellants were convicted by the Sessions Judge on 21-1-1951 under Sections 304 and 148, I.P.C. in respect of the offence committed on 2-4-1950. The appeal was filed in this Court on 24-1-1951 which came up for hearing in April 1956 when it was brought to the notice of the Court that the entire record of the case had been lost. Attempt was made to reconstruct the record but it proved futile. This Court refused to direct retrial of the case on the reasoning that the case related to an offence which was committed more than six years ago and five years had elapsed since the judgment of the Sessions Judge convicting the appellants was passed. The court took into account the further fact that even the copies of the F.I.R. and the statements of witnesses taken under Section 161 Cr. P.C. were not available as they had been weeded out in the ordinary course.

10. A Division Bench of this Court in Criminal Appeal No. 3235 of 1971 (Jit Narain v. State) decided on 15-3-1978 in similar circumstances allowed the appeal and acquitted the appellants instead of directing their retrial.

11. On a careful consideration of the relevant statutory provisions and the principle laid down in the cases cited before us we are of the opinion that where it is not possible to reconstruct the record which has been lost or destroyed it is not legally permissible for the appellate court to affirm the conviction of the appellant since perusal of the record of the case is one of the essential elements of the hearing of the appeal. The appellant has a right to try to satisfy the appellate court that the material on record did not justify his conviction and that right cannot be denied to him. We are further of the opinion that if the time lag between the date of the incident and the date on which the appeal comes up for hearing is short, the proper course would be to direct retrial of the case since witnesses normally would be available and it would not cause undue strain on the memory of witnesses. Copies of F.I.R., statements of witnesses under Section 161, Cr. P.C. reports of medical examination etc. would also be normally available if the time gap between the incident and the order of retrial is not unduly long. Where, however, the matter comes up for consideration after a long gap of years, it would neither be just nor proper to direct retrial of the case, more so when even copies of F.I.R. and statements of witnesses under Section 161, Cr. P.C. and other relevant papers have been weeded out or are otherwise not available. In such a situation even if witnesses are available, apart from the fact that heavy strain would be put on the memory of witnesses, it would not be possible to test their statements made at the trial with reference to the earlier version of the incident and the statements of witnesses recorded during investigation. Not only that the accused will be prejudiced but even the prosecution would be greatly handicapped in establishing its case and the trial would be reduced to a mere formality entailing agony and hardship to the accused and waste of time, money and energy of the State.

In the present case the incident took place on 23-8-1971. The appellants were convicted by the Sessions Court by an order dated 18-11-1974. The appeal has been pending in this Court for about six years. We are informed that copies of the First Information Report and statements of witnesses recorded under Section 161, Cr. P.C. have been weeded out and are not available. All attempts to reconstruct the record have proved futile. In such a situation it is not permissible for us to affirm the order of conviction of the appellants, since in the absence of the record we cannot possibly feel satisfied that the appellants have been rightly convicted. Due to lapse of time and non-availability of papers like First Information Report, statements under Section 161, Criminal Procedure Code etc, we do not consider it either just or expedient to order retrial of the case."

19. Similar view was expressed by a Division Bench of this Court in Criminal Appeal No.522 of 1980 (Bachchi Lal and others vs. State of U.P.) decided on 11.02.2020.

20. I have examined the matter in the light of the expressed view expounded by Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as Division Bench of this Court as mentioned above. It is apparent that in deciding appeal at the time of examining legality of judgment and order passed by Court below, Appellate Court is required to peruse the record of Sessions Trial to ascertain as to whether evidence which have been relied on by the trial Court in convicting or acquitting the accused, has properly been appreciated or not.

21. In the present matter, as discussed above, sincere effort had been made by the concerned authorities of Subordinate Court qua reconstruction of original record and after proper and elaborate enquiry made by the concerned Additional District and Sessions Judge, a report had been submitted by him that reconstruction of original record of Sessions Trial is not possible, inasmuch as, any paper or document relating to Sessions Trial No.245 of 1980, despite sincere efforts, could not be collected or procured from any possible corner, from where documents were expected to be available. So far as retrial of the case is concerned, after examining the matter in the light of report submitted by Subordinate Court and perusal of record, I am of the opinion that in the present scenario retrial of the instant matter is not possible. Out of eight accused, who had been convicted by impugned judgment and order dated 26.03.1982, five had already died and one accused namely Ram Vachan had already completed his sentence and released from jail. Here, it is made clear, as discussed above, that two accused namely Ram Vachan and Mani Ram had filed Criminal Appeal No.1131 of 1982, which was dismissed as infructuous vide order dated 06.05.2013 and remaining six accused persons have filed the instant criminal appeal. As per enquiry report of Additional District and Sessions Judge, Ballia, first informant Ram Nagina Mishra (PW-2) had also died years back.

22. In the light of aforesaid fact, that many of the persons relating to case including the accused and first informant had died, it is quite possible that many of the witnesses must have also died. Therefore, in the present scenario, taking into account the death of the parties and non availability of the documents, retrial in the present case is almost impossible. Time passed in the matter is also relevant to be considered. Initially incident took place long back in March, 1980 and impugned judgment and order was passed in March, 1982. Thereafter, appeal was filed and the same was admitted vide order dated 04.05.1982. Since, the date of occurrence up to till date, about 40 years had passed and at this stage issuing direction for retrial would be an exercise in futility, therefore, in the eventuality that record of Sessions Trial is missing, no fruitful purpose would be served in protracting the appeal.

23. In the light of law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court and provisions of law wherein record of Sessions Trial is essentially required to be perused before deciding an appeal, but same is neither traceable nor reconstruction of aforesaid record is possible nor even retrial of the case is possible, I am of the considered view that present appeal should be allowed and impugned judgment and order dated 26.03.1982 passed by Sessions Court should be quashed and surviving appellants should be acquitted.

24. Resultantly, present appeal is allowed. Impugned judgment and order dated 26.03.1982 passed in Sessions Trial No.245 of 1980 is hereby quashed so far it relates to conviction and sentence to appellant no.3, Babban Nonia and appellant no.6, Moti Ram.

25. A copy of this order along with lower Court record be sent to concerned Court forthwith for information and immediate compliance.

THE HON'BLE VIRENDRA KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 1536 of 2003

Smt. Chameli & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Subodh K. Shukla

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
Govt. Advocate

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 154- First Information Report- Delay in lodging- It is settled principle of law that only on the ground that F.I.R. was lodged by delay, the prosecution case cannot be thrown out because no time limit has been prescribed for lodging the F.I.R. either in Evidence Act or in the Code. The delay, caused in lodging the F.I.R., depends upon facts and circumstances of the each case and if such delay is natural and reasonable, it cannot be treated fatal to the prosecution story. (P.W.-1) has specifically stated that he had requested the concerned police at the time of inquest proceeding to take action against the appellants and after post-mortem examination, also had gone to concerned police station to lodge the F.I.R. but he was expelled from the concerned police station and no F.I.R. was lodged. Thereafter he had sent the written information (Ext.-Ka-1) dated 27.04.1998 to Hon'ble Chief Minsiter, U.P.

There is no uniform proposition of law that delay in lodging FIR will be invariably fatal for the case of the prosecution.The effect of delay depends on the facts and circumstances of each case- Delay is not fatal where the same is reasonable and sufficiently explained.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 498-A - Failure to take any legal step in such disputes against the in-laws of the deceased does not mean that neither dowry was demanded nor harassment or cruelty was committed to the deceased soon before her death. Although, P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 failed to lodge report at any police station but it cannot be said that they failed to protest the torture and harassment committed by the appellants.

Merely because the parents of the deceased failed to make any complaint before the authorities cannot lead to the inference that the deceased was not subjected to cruelty.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 306- The offence of Section 306 I.P.C. is lesser and different from the offence of dowry death. For this offence only abetment which leads to commitment of suicide of a person is required to be proved and if such suicide is done by women within seven years of her marriage, due to cruelty caused by her husband or any relation of her husband, the Court may presume the offence of abetment of suicide, in view of statutory presumption as provided under Section 113-A of Evidence Act- The appellants have failed to lead any satisfactory evidence to rebut the statutory presumption of Section 113-A of Evidence Act.

The presumption under Section 113-A of the Evidence Act may be available to the Court where the wife commits suicide within seven years of her marriage as a result of cruelty and the said act of cruelty will constitute abetment as defined under Section 107 of the IPC. However, the presumption under Section 113-A of the Evidence Act is rebuttable and failure to controvert the same will lead to the Court taking an adverse inference against the accused.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 306- Section 498-A- The appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli had categorically stated that they were leaving separately from their son - The prosecution has not made any specific allegation and made only general allegation, for either demand of dowry or harassment to deceased, against the appellant-Durg Vijay and Chameli. In view of above, if the said occurrence was taken place inside the house of appellant-Dinesh Kumar where his presence was most probable, looking into the whole facts and circumstances of this case, the prosecution evidence is not reliable and trustworthy so far it relates to the appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli and consequently the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli and they are liable to be acquitted, whereas it has successfully proved its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellant-Dinesh Kumar (husband of the deceased).

Where only general allegations of demand of dowry have been made against the in-laws of the deceased by the prosecution witnesses and they have adopted a specific plea of living separately from her, then they will be entitled to be acquitted.(Para 27, 29, 30, 32, 34, 35, 36, 39, 42)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Virendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred under Section 374 (2) Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as Code) by the appellants-Smt. Chameli, Durg Vijay and Dinesh Kumar (hereinafter referred to as appellants) against the judgment and order dated 19.09.2003, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court-I, Hardoi in Sessions Trial No.1099/98, arising out of Case Crime No.74/98, Police Station-Tadiyawan, District-Hardoi, whereby the appellants have been convicted and sentenced for seven years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.2,000/- for offence under Section 306 I.P.C. and for one year rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.1,000/- for the offence under Section 498A I.P.C.. It has further been directed that the appellants will have to undergo six months simple imprisonment in default of payment of fine for offence under Section 306 I.P.C. and three months simple imprisonment in default of payment of fine for the offence under Section 498-A I.P.C.. All the sentences shall run concurrently.

2. The prosecution case, in brief, is that the deceased-Guddi Devi (hereinafter referred to as deceased) was married with the appellant-Dinesh Kumar in the year 1994. The appellants-Durg Vijay and Smt. Chameli are the parents of the appellant-Dinesh Kumar. On 25.04.1998, the deceased-Guddi Devi died due to hanging. The appellant-Durg Vijay, who was Chaukidar of his village-Mugalipur, informed the said incident to concerned police of Police Station-Tadiyawan, District-Hardoi. Sri Krishna Bajpayee-Nayab Tehsildar (Executive Magistrate), on the direction of concerned Sub Divisional Magistrate, rushed to the place of occurrence on 26.04.1998, inspected the dead body of the deceased, conducted inquest proceeding, prepared inquest report (Ext.-Ka-6) and other document required for post-mortem examination, sealed the dead body and sent it for post-mortem examination to District Hospital, Hardoi.

3. Nanke (P.W.-1), brother of the deceased, made a written complaint dated 27.04.1998 to District Magistrate, Hardoi, endorsing its copy (Ext.-Ka-1) to Superintendent of Police and another copy (Ext.-Ka-3) to Chief Minister, U.P., alleging therein that his sister was married four years ago with the appellant-Dinesh Kumar and in her marriage, sufficient dowry was given but the appellants were demanding a she-buffalo and transistor in dowry which could not be given by them due to poverty. It was further alleged in the said report that due to non-fulfillment of said dowry, the appellants used to torture his sister, who (deceased) used to complain him. It is further alleged that on 29.04.1998, there was Mundon Ceremony of his son-Pinku and in order to get back (Bidai) of his sister, he (P.W.-1) had gone to his sister's matrimonial house (Sasural) on 26.04.1998 and when he reached there, he found the dead body of his sister, kept in room. It was further alleged that he narrated the whole story to the police Inspector, present on the spot, who assured him that necessary steps were being taken and also took his signature on a paper. It was further alleged in the said information that after post-mortem of his sister, he again tried to lodge an F.I.R. but failed to lodge it as the appellant-Durg Vijay, who was a Chaukidar, was having better relationship with the concerned local police. It was further alleged that his sister was hanged by the appellants, so necessary action be taken against them.

4. A criminal case, bearing Case Crime No.74/98, under Sections-498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and ¾ D.P. Act, was registered against the appellants and chik report (Ext.-Ka-12) and G.D. report (Ext.-Ka-13) was prepared by Constable-Mohd. Rashid Khan (P.W.-7). Investigation of the case was handed over to Dy. S. P. A. K. Vaidya (P.W.-9), who reached at the place of occurrence and after its inspection, prepared site plan (Ext.-Ka-14), arrested the appellants and recorded their statement as well as of other witnesses. After the transfer of P.W.-9, the investigation was handed over to Dy. S.P. Pradeep Gupta (P.W.-5), who concluded the investigation and filed a charge sheet (Ext.-Ka-5) against the appellants under Sections-498-A, 304-B I.P.C. & ¾ of D.P. Act before the concerned Magistrate, who took the cognizance and since the offence was exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, after providing the copy of relevant police papers as required under Section 207 of the Code, committed the case to the Court of Sessions, Hardoi, for trial.

5. The learned trial Court, after hearing the counsel for both the parties, framed charges for the offence under Sections 498-A, 304-B & ¾ D.P. Act against the appellants from which they denied and claimed for trial.

6. The prosecution, in order to prove its case, examined Nanhake (P.W.-1), Smt. Shanti Devi (P.W.-2), Prithvipal (P.W.-3), Dr. B. B. Tripathi (P.W.-4), Dy. S. P. Pradeep Gupta (P.W.-5), Executive Magistrate, Sri Krishna Bajpayee (P.W.-6), Constable Mohd. Rashid Khan (P.W.-7), S. I. Nishanath Pandey (P.W.-8) and Dy. S. P. A. K. Vaidya (P.W.-9) wherein Nanhake (P.W.-1), Smt. Shanti Devi (P.W.-2) and Prithvi Lal (P.W.-3) are witnesses of fact whereas rest are formal witnesses.

7. After conclusion of the prosecution evidence, the statements of the appellants were recorded under Section 313 of Code wherein they denied the prosecution allegations and stated that they were innocent and had been falsely implicated. The appellant-Dinesh Kumar stated that he was married with the deceased-Guddi Devi eight years ago and neither any dowry was demanded nor any harassment was given to the deceased. He further stated that the deceased was happily residing with him, a girl was born to deceased who had died 15-20 days prior to occurrence and due to which, she was shocked. He further stated that the deceased was suffering abdominal pain and her treatment was going on but she could not recover from that pain. He further stated that due to shock of death of her daughter as well as of her ailment, the deceased had committed suicide on 25.04.1998 at about 2:00 p.m. and information whereof had been given by his father, appellant-Durg Vijay, at 6:30 a.m. on 26.04.1998 at Police Station-Tadiyawan. He further stated that on the instigation of some person, who were inimical to the appellant, the informant (P.W.-1), lodged a false report against the appellants whereas his father-Durg Vijay and his mother-Smt. Chameli were residing separately from him.

8. The appellants in their defence examined Bharat (D.W.-1) to rebut the prosecution story.

9. After conclusion of trial, learned trial Court convicted and sentenced the appellants as above by the impugned judgment. Aggrieved by the above said judgment, the appellants have preferred this appeal.

10. Heard Sri Ashok Kumar Verma, learned Advocate holding brief of Sri Subodh K. Shukla, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri G. D. Bhatt, learned A.G.A. for the State.

of dowry and dowry death have been found false by the trial Court. Learned counsel further submitted that no complaint was made against the appellants, earlier to this occurrence and deceased had committed suicide in frustration as she was ailing abdominal disease. Learned counsel further submitted that the death information of the deceased was sent to the informant and his family members and informant was also present at the time of inquest proceeding ; he did not make any complaint to the Officer (P.W.-6). Learned counsel further submitted that after the cremation of the deceased in order to harass and extort money, informant, brother of the deceased, sent a written report by delay of three days which was lodged after seven days of the occurrence. Learned counsel further submitted that prosecution has failed to produce any explanation for causing such delay in lodging the F.I.R. Learned counsel further submitted that the appellants-Smt. Chameli and Durg Vijay are parents-in-law of the deceased, who are more than sixty years and they were living separately from the appellant-Dinesh Kumar, husband of the deceased, but the trial Court did not consider and discuss the evidence available on record and without application of proper mind, passed the impugned judgment and order, which is liable to be set aside.

12. Learned counsel for the appellants has placed reliance on the judgment delivered by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Kishori Lal vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2007 (58) ACC 1069, K. S. Radhakrishnan and Vikramjit Sen, AIR 2014 SC 1782 and Heera Lal and another vs. State of Rajasthan, 2017 (101) ACC 265.

13. Per contra, learned A.G.A. vehemently opposed and has submitted that the deceased had died by hanging inside the house of the appellants within seven years of her marriage and the appellants have failed to produce any proper explanation as to why the deceased had committed suicide as alleged by the appellants. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that there is no delay in lodging the F.I.R. because the local police failed to lodge the F.I.R. on the request of P.W.-1 as the appellant-Durg Vijay was Chaukidar of his village. Learned A.G.A. submitted that merely on the ground that informant was present at the time of inquest proceeding and did not make any complaint at that time, it cannot be said that the death of the deceased was natural. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that there is no illegality in the impugned judgment and order and the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

14. I have considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the appellants and perused the record.

15. In Kishori Lal vs. State of Madhya Prasad, 2007 (58) ACC 1069, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that where the deceased had committed suicide on 31.08.1982 and the prosecution had failed to adduce any evidence that the appellant, who was husband of the deceased, had induced or abetted her wife to commit suicide and also held that the mere fact that the husband treated the deceased-wife with cruelty is not enough to commit her suicide.

16. In Mangat Ram vs. State of Haryana, AIR 2014 SC 1782, where after few months of the marriage of the deceased, on 15.09.1993, according to prosecution, the appellant sprinkled kerosene oil on the body of the deceased and set her on fire, having failed to meet the dowry demand. On hearing the hue and cry, neighbours assembled and took her to Civil Hospital where she died on 17.09.1993, Hon'ble Supreme Court found that failure of the husband to take the deceased to his place of posting is not amount to wilful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide. Hon'ble the Supreme Court also held as under :

"23. Explanation to Section 498-A gives the meaning of "cruelty', which consists of two clauses. To attract Section 498-A, the prosecution has to establish the wilful conduct on the part of the accused and that conduct is of such a nature as is likely to drive the wife to commit suicide. We fail to see how the failure to take one's wife to his place of posting, would amount to a wilful conduct of such a nature which is likely to drive a woman to commit suicide. We fail to see how a married woman left at the parental home by the husband would by itself amount to a wilful conduct to fall within the expression of "cruelty', especially when the husband is having such a job for which he has to be away at the place of his posting. We also fail to see how a wife left in a village life "in the company of rustic persons", borrowing language used by the trial Court, would amount to wilful conduct of such a nature to fall within the expression of "cruelty'. In our view, both the trial Court as well as the High Court have completely misunderstood the scope of Section 498-A IPC read with its explanation and we are clearly of the view that no offence under Section 498-A has been made out against the accused appellant."

17. In Heera Lal and another vs. State of Rajasthan, 2017 (101) ACC 265, where the prosecution had failed to prove the charge of Section 498-A I.P.C. and the appellants were acquitted for the said charge, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the appellant could not be convicted for the offence under Section 306 I.P.C.

18. Coming to the facts of the present case, the deceased had died on 25.04.1998 within seven years of her marriage for demand of dowry and cruelty, inside the house of the appellants and the appellants have been convicted for offence under Sections 498-A and 306 I.P.C. The offence of present case was committed after insertion of Section 113-A and 113-B of Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (in short Evidence Act). The facts and circumstances of the case in Kishori Lal (supra), Mangat Ram (supra) and Heera Lal (supra) relied by the appellant are different to the facts of this case, hence, no benefit can be given to the appellants.

19. The deceased had died within seven years of her marriage, inside the house of the appellants where her death was unnatural and the appellants have been convicted under Sections-498-A I.P.C. and 306 I.P.C., the provisions of 498-A, 306 I.P.C. and 113-A of the Indian Evidence Act are relevant, which are as under :

"Section-498-A I.P.C.. Whoever, being the husband or the relative of the husband of a woman, subjects such woman to cruelty shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine.*

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section, "cruelty' means-

(a) any wilful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave

injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman; or (b) harassment of the woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand."

"Section-306 I.P.C. If any person commits suicide, whoever abets the commission of such suicide, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine."

"Section-113A Evidence Act. Presumption as to abetment of suicide by a married woman.- when the question is whether the commission of suicide by a woman had been abetted by her husband or any relative of her husband and it is shown that she had committed suicide within a period of seven years from the date of her marriage and that her husband or such relative of her husband and subjected her to cruelty, the Court may presume, having regard to all the other circumstances of the case, that such suicide had been abetted by her husband or by such relative of her husband."

20. It is also relevant to note that in most of the cases the death of married woman, for want of dowry, is caused inside the house of the accused persons and all the relevant facts as well as incriminating evidence are only in the knowledge of the accused persons but they do not come forward to disclose the fact, happened to the deceased soon before her death. So the prosecution cannot be blamed to produce such evidence which is not in the possession and knowledge of prosecution witnesses.

21. In Trimukh Maroti Kirkan vs. State of Maharashtra 2006 (10) SCC 681 where accused was charged for committing murder of his wife for want of dowry and it was established by the prosecution that shortly before the offence, he was seen with his wife inside his house where he and his wife were normally used to reside. Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under :

"Where an accused is alleged to have committed the murder of his wife and the prosecution succeeds in leading evidence to show that shortly before the commission of crime they were seen together or the offence takes placed in the dwelling home where the husband also normally resided, it has been consistently held that if the accused does not offer any explanation how the wife received injuries or offers an explanation which is found to be false, it is a strong circumstance which indicates that he is responsible for commission of the crime. In Nika Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh AIR 1972 SC 2077 it was observed that the fact that the accused alone was with his wife in the house when she was murdered there with 'khokhri' and the fact that the relations of the accused with her were strained would, in the absence of any cogent explanation by him, point to his guilt. In Ganeshlal v. State of Maharashtra (1992) 3 SCC 106 the appellant was prosecuted for the murder of his wife which took place inside his house. It was observed that when the death had occurred in his custody, the appellant is under an obligation to give a plausible explanation for the cause of her death in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The mere denial of the prosecution case coupled with absence of any explanation were held to be inconsistent with the innocence of the accused, but consistent with the hypothesis that the appellant is a prime accused in the commission of murder of his wife. In State of U.P. v. Dr. Ravindra Prakash Mittal AIR 1992 SC 2045 the medical evidence disclosed that the wife died of strangulation during late night hours or early morning and her body was set on fire after sprinkling kerosene. The defence of the husband was that wife had committed suicide by burning herself and that he was not at home at that time. The letters written by the wife to her relatives showed that the husband ill-treated her and their relations were strained and further the evidence showed that both of them were in one room in the night. It was held that the chain of circumstances was complete and it was the husband who committed the murder of his wife by strangulation and accordingly this Court reversed the judgment of the High Court acquitting the accused and convicted him under Section 302 IPC. In State of Tamil Nadu v. Rajendran (1999) 8 SCC 679 the wife was found dead in a hut which had caught fire. The evidence showed that the accused and his wife were seen together in the hut at about 9.00 p.m. and the accused came out in the morning through the roof when the hut had caught fire. His explanation was that it was a case of accidental fire which resulted in the death of his wife and a daughter. The medical evidence showed that the wife died due to asphyxia as a result of strangulation and not on account of burn injuries. It was held that there cannot be any hesitation to come to the conclusion that it was the accused (husband) who was the perpetrator of the crime."

22. Coming to the facts of this case, Nanhake (P.W.-1), brother of the deceased, has stated that his sister-Guddi Devi was married to appellant-Dinesh Kumar on 06.05.1993 ; the appellant-Durg Vijay and the appellant-Chameli were parents-in-law (saas and sasur) of the deceased. He further stated that at the time of marriage, he had given articles of worth Rs.25,000/- and some money in the dowry but the appellant-Dinesh Kumar had demanded she-buffalo and transistor as additional dowry to which he (P.W.-1) assured that he would manage the said dowry in future. He further stated that due to poverty, he could not manage the said dowry, due to which, the appellants used to beat and torture his sister. He further stated that whenever his sister (deceased) came his house, she used to complain and had said that if she-buffalo and transistor were not given to them, they (appellants) would kill her. He further stated that on 29.04.1998, there was Mundon Ceremony of his son and in order to get back (Bidai) his sister, he had gone to the house of the appellants and reached there at 7:00 a.m. on 26.04.1998. He further stated as he entered inside the house of the appellants, he saw that the dead body was lying in room and police were also present there. Stating that after seeing the dead body of his sister, he began to cry bitterly and asked the said police personnel, present there, to lodge a report, who assured him not to worry as legal action was being taken. He further stated that "darogaji" got his signature made on paper forcibly, hurled abuses and said that how he (P.W.-1) dare to implicate his chaukidar ("police walo se kaha ki meri report chal kar likh lijiye to unhone kaha ki wahi sab kaam kar raha hoon tum pareshan na ho | Kagaj number 10 a/4 gawah ne dekhkar kaha ki is par mere daskhkat darog ji ne jabardasti banbaye the aur gali dekar kaha ki mere chaukidar ko phasaonge").

23. Stating that the appellant-Durg Vijay was Chaukidar of his village, he further stated that the dead body was sealed and it was sent for post-mortem. Stating further that he had gone to the hospital, he further stated that after post-mortem, the dead body of the deceased was handed over to the appellant-Dinesh Kumar. Stating that again he had gone to lodge the first information report at Police Station-Tandiyawan but "daroga ji" chased him therefore he fled away. Stating further that on 27.04.1998, he had made complaint to District Magistrate, Hardoi, Superintendent of Police, Hardoi and Hon'ble Chief Minister, U. P., he further stated that he had also sent a copy (Ext.-Ka-4) of the said complaint by Fax to Hon'ble Chief Minister, U.P. whereupon a direction was made to lodge the F.I.R.

24. Shanti Devi (P.W.-2), mother of the deceased has also stated that her daughter (Guddi Devi) was married to the appellant-Dinesh Kumar, four years prior to her death and the appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli were parents-in-law (Sas and Sasur). Stating that the deceased was not literate, she further stated that at the time of her marriage, she had given sufficient dowry according to her capacity but in Kalewa (afternoon high tea in marriage ceremony) there was demand of she-buffalo and transistor to which she had assured to be given in future. She further stated that when the deceased returned back to her matrimonial house, she was very upset and upon query, she told that her in-laws were demanding she-buffalo and transistor as a dowry. She further stated that within two years of marriage, the deceased had gone so many times to her matrimonial house but she continuously complained regarding the torture and harassment, caused by the appellants, due to demand of dowry. She further stated that for 1-1/2 years, she did not send her daughter to her matrimonial home and just before her death, the appellant-Dinesh Kumar took away her to his house. She further stated that a girl also took birth to deceased, who died within one month. She further stated that her son (P.W.-1) had gone to invite the deceased to attend the Mundon Ceremony of his son but saw that the deceased had died. She also stated that after getting information, she had also gone to the matrimonial home of the deceased and saw her dead body.

25. Prithvi Pal (P.W.-3), co-villager of P.W.-1, stating that inquest proceeding was conducted in his presence and in presence of P.W.-1, has further stated that deceased Guddi Devi used to complain the demand of she-buffalo and transistor by appellant and harassment and torture caused to her by appellant.

26. So far as the submission made by learned counsel for the appellants that after the death of deceased, the information was sent to the family members of the informant and in presence of the informant, the inquest proceeding of the deceased was conducted but he did not make any complaint either to the police who prepared the inquest report or lodged the F.I.R. at that day and in order to extort money, he filed false report after three days of the occurrence which was lodged after seven days and no explanation for such huge delay was given, is concerned, admittedly, the deceased had died inside the house of the appellants. In inquest report (Ext.-Ka-6) it has been specifically mentioned that the information of the death of the deceased was given to the concerned police station on 26.04.1998 at 6:30 a.m. by the appellant-Durg Vijay and her death was caused by hanging. It is further mentioned in the said inquest report that inquest proceeding was concluded at about 15:30 p.m. on 26.04.1998 and thereafter dead body of the deceased was sent for post-mortem. According to Dr. B. B. Tripathi (P.W.-4) the post-mortem of the deceased was conducted by him at about 5:00 p.m. on 26.04.1998. It means that after post-mortem examination the dead body would have been handed over to the appellants and thereafter her cremation was taken place either in the night of 26.04.1998 or on 27.04.1998. The appellants, in their statements recorded under Section 313 of the Code, have not stated as to when dead body was received by them after the post-mortem examination or deceased was cremated by them. From perusal of the F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-1), it transpires that it was prepared on 27.04.1998 and was sent to District Magistrate, Hardoi, Superintendent of Police, Hardoi and also to Chief Minister, U.P. wherein it was specifically mentioned that informant was given assurance by the concerned police at the time of inquest proceeding i.e. after occurrence the legal action would be taken against the appellants and when no legal action was taken, he (P.W.-1) went to concerned police station and requested to lodge the F.I.R. but he was expelled from there as the appellant-Durg Vijay was the Chaukidar of his village and was having good relations with concerned police.

27. It is settled principle of law that only on the ground that F.I.R. was lodged by delay, the prosecution case cannot be thrown out because no time limit has been prescribed for lodging the F.I.R. either in Evidence Act or in the Code. The delay, caused in lodging the F.I.R., depends upon facts and circumstances of the each case and if such delay is natural and reasonable, it cannot be treated fatal to the prosecution story.

28. Hon'ble Supreme Court, on delay caused in lodging the F.I.R., in Tara Singh and others vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1991 SC 63 has held as under :-

"The delay in giving the FIR by itself cannot be a ground to doubt the prosecution case. Knowing the Indian conditions as they are we cannot expect these villagers to rush to the police station immediately after the occurrence. Human nature as it is, the kith and kin who have witnessed the occurrence cannot be expected to act mechanically with all the promptitude in giving the report to the police. At times being grief-stricken because of the calamity it may not immediately occur to them that they should give a report. After all it is but natural in these circumstances for them to take some time to go to the police station for giving the" report. Of course the Supreme Court as well as the High Courts have pointed out that in cases arising out of acute factions there is a tendency to implicate persons belonging to the opposite faction falsely. In order to avert the danger of convicting such innocent persons the courts are cautioned to scrutinise the evidence of such interested witnesses with greater care and caution and separate grain from the chaff after subjecting the evidence to a closer scrutiny and in doing so the contents of the FIR also will have to be scrutinised carefully. However, unless there are indications of fabrication, the court cannot reject the prosecution version as given in the FIR and later substantiated by the evidence merely on the ground of delay. These are all matters for appreciation and much depends on the facts and circumstances of each case."

29. Coming to the facts of this case again, Nanhake (P.W.-1) has specifically stated that he had requested the concerned police at the time of inquest proceeding to take action against the appellants and after post-mortem examination, also had gone to concerned police station to lodge the F.I.R. but he was expelled from the concerned police station and no F.I.R. was lodged. Thereafter he had sent the written information (Ext.-Ka-1) dated 27.04.1998 to Hon'ble Chief Minsiter, U.P.. This witness was cross-examined by the defence counsel on the point of delay but nothing had come out in his cross-examination to create any doubt in his statement whereby it can be shown that such delay was caused deliberately to falsely implicate the appellants in this case. In my view there is no delay in lodging the F.I.R. and if any delay is caused, the same is well explained and is not fatal to the prosecution case. Hence, there is no force in the submission of learned counsel for the appellants in this regard.

30. So far as the submission of learned counsel for the appellants that no complaint of demand of dowry or any cruelty was made by informant earlier to the occurrence, hence, the prosecution story, that the deceased was being harassed and tortured for demand of dowry since four years is not trustworthy, is concerned, admittedly, the appellants as well as informant belong to rural areas. They are not literate and aware to their legal right. The deceased was also illiterate. It is often seen that in rural areas generally the bride groom's family is well known to the family of the bride earlier to their marriage settlement, the bride and her parents do not agitate some problem and issues occurred between them with family of bride groom after her marriage as they believe that due to lapse of time the problem whether it is related to demand of dowry or otherwise, may be subsided or pacified in future. Parents of bride do not want to interfere in such disputes. The poor and helpless father of the bride used to prefer to remain as a silent spectator in such disputes and avoid to complain to police authorities because he believes that such step may deteriorate the relationship of his daughter with her husband and in-laws. Failure to take any legal step in such disputes against the inlaws of the deceased does not mean that neither dowry was demanded nor harassment or cruelty was committed to the deceased soon before her death.

31. Recently in Preet Pal Singh vs. Sate of U.P., AIR 2020 SC 3995 where Allahabad High Court had suspended the sentence of the appellant, convicted for the offence of dowry death, on the ground that no complaint for demand of dowry was made earlier by the father of the deceased, Hon'ble Supreme Court, setting aside the impugned order passed by this Court, has held as under :

"42. From the evidence of the Prosecution witnesses, it transpires that the Appellant had spent money beyond his financial capacity, at the wedding of the victim and had even gifted an I-10 car. The hapless parents were hoping against hope that there would be an amicable settlement. Even as late as on 17.6.2010 the brother of the victim paid Rs. 2,50,000/- to the Respondent No. 2. The failure to lodge an FIR complaining of dowry 23 and harassment before the death of the victim, is in our considered view, inconsequential. The parents and other family members of the victim obviously would not want to precipitate a complete break down of the marriage by lodging an FIR against the Respondent No. 2 and his parents, while the victim was alive." (Emphasis supplied)

32. Coming to the facts of this case again, P.W.-1 in cross-examination, stating that he had not lodged any report regarding torture or harassment with the deceased prior to her death, has stated that he had made a complaint at police station Pishawa regarding torture and demand of dowry. P.W.-2 has also stated that she had not made any complaint to any one regarding demand of dowry or torture committed by appellants. Both these witnesses had stated that they did not send the deceased to her matrimonial home for one and half year, due to demand of dowry and torture committed by the appellants. Thus, although, P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 failed to lodge report at any police station but it can not be said that they failed to protest the torture and harassment committed by the appellants. Thus in view of law laid down by Supreme Court in Preet Pal Singh (supra), the submission of learned counsel for the appellants has no force.

33. Appellants have been convicted for offence under Section 498-A and 306 I.P.C. For offence under Section 498-A I.P.C. not only physical but mental cruelty is also sufficient to constitute the offence of cruelty as required for this section. For offence under Section 306 I.P.C., the person, who abets the commission of suicide, is liable under this section. Offence of abetment has been defined under Section 107 and 108 I.P.C. Abetment includes, according to Section 107 I.P.C., instigating any person to do that thing. Instigation, for the offence of abetment, is not required pre-planned or intentional. Supreme Court, while convicting only the husband, acquitting other accused, discussing the legislative intent behind the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1983 and Dowry Prohibition Amendment Act, 1986 and the provisions of Sections 107, 108, 498-A and 304-B I.P.C. and Section 113-A and 113-B of Evidence Act in State of Punjab vs. Iqbal Singh and others, 1991 SCC (Crl.) 513, has held as under :

"5. The charge against the accused was under Section 306 I.P.C. That section must be read in the backdrop of the above facts. Under that section if any person commits suicide the person who abets commission of suicide shall be liable to be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years and fine. The question is whether on the facts proved it can be said that either Iqbal Singh or his sister were guilty of abetment. Chapter V of the Penal Code is entitled 'Of Abetment' and comprises Sections 107 to 120 of which we may notice Sections 107 and 108 only. 'Abetment' as defined by Section 107 comprises (i) instigation to do that thing which is an offence (ii) engaging in any conspiracy for the doing of that thing and (iii) intentionally aiding by any act or illegal omission the doing of that thing. Section 108 defines an abettor as a person who abets an offence or who abets either the commission of an offence or the commission of an act which would be an offence. The word 'instigate' in the literal sense means to incite, set or urge on, stir up, goad, foment, stimulate, provoke, etc. Since there is no question of parties being engaged in any sort of conspiracy we have to consider whether there was any intentional aiding for committing suicide. The dictionary meaning of the word aid is to give assistance, help, etc.

8. The legislative intent is clear to curb the menace of dowry deaths, etc., with a firm hand. We must keep in mind this legislative intent. It must be remembered that since crimes are generally committed in the privacy of residential homes and in secrecy, independent and direct evidence is not easy to get. That is why the legislature has by introducing Sections-113-A and 113-B in the Evidence Act tried to strengthen the prosecution hands by permitting a presumption to be raised if certain foundational facts are established and the unfortunate event has taken place within seven years of marriage. This period of seven years is considered to be the turbulent one after which the legislature assumes that the couple would have settled down in life. If a married woman is subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his family members Section 498-A I.P.C. would be attracted. If such cruelty or harassment was inflicted by the husband or his relative for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry immediately preceding death by burns and bodily injury or in abnormal circumstances within seven years of marriage, such husband or relative is deemed to have caused her death and is liable to be punished under Section 304-B I.P.C. When the question at issue is whether a person is guilty of dowry death of a woman and the evidence discloses that immediately before her death she was subjected by such person to cruelty and/or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, Section 113-B, Evidence Act provides that the court shall presume that such person had caused the dowry death. Of course if there is proof of the person having intentionally caused her death that would attract Section 302 I.P.C. Then we have a situation where the husband or his relative by his wilful conduct creates a situation which he knows will drive the woman to commit suicide and she actually does so, the case would squarely fall within the ambit of Section 306 I.P.C. In such a case the conduct of the person would tantamount to inciting or provoking or virtually pushing the woman into a desperate situation of no return which would compel her to put an end to her miseries by committing suicide."(Emphasis supplied)

34. It is also pertinent to point out at this juncture that for offence of dowry death as provided under Section 304-B I.P.C., prosecution has to prove unnatural death of a woman within seven years of her marriage. In addition to that, she was subjected to cruelty by her husband or his relatives in relation to demand of dowry soon before her death. If anyone of the above ingredients is not proved by prosecution, accused can not be convicted for offence of dowry death. The offence of Section 306 I.P.C. is lesser and different from the offence of dowry death. For this offence only abetment which leads to commitment of suicide of a person is required to be proved and if such suicide is done by women within seven years of her marriage, due to cruelty caused by her husband or any relation of her husband, the Court may presume the offence of abetment of suicide, in view of statutory presumption as provided under Section 113-A of Evidence Act. Further accused charged for offence of Section 302 or 304 I.P.C. may be convicted for offence under Section 306 I.P.C. without framing separate charge for offence under Section 306 I.P.C Three judges Bench of Supreme Court, relying on Constitutional Bench Judgment in Willie Slaaney vs. State of M.P. AIR 1956 SC 116 and three Judges Bench Judgement in Gurubachan Singh vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623, in Dalbir Singh vs. State of U.P., 2004 SCC (Crl.) 1592, where question arose, whether the appellant convicted for offence under Section 302 and 498 I.P.C. but acquitted for offence under Section 304-B I.P.C. by trial Court, can be convicted for offence under Section 306 I.P.C., convicting the appellant for offence under Section 306 I.P.C., has held as under :

"There are a catena of decisions of this Court on the same lines and it is not necessary to burden this judgment by making reference to each one of them. Therefore, in view of Section 464 CrPC, it is possible for the appellate or revisional court to convict an accused for an offence for which no charge was framed unless the court is of the opinion that a failure of justice would in fact occasion. In order to judge whether a failure of justice has been occasioned, it will be relevant to examine whether the accused was aware of the basic ingredients of the offence for which he is being convicted and whether the main facts sought to be established against him were explained to him clearly and whether he got a fair chance to defend himself. We are, therefore, of the opinion that Sangaraboina Sreenu [(1997) 5 SCC 348 : 1997 SCC (Cri) 690] was not correctly decided as it purports to lay down as a principle of law that where the accused is charged under Section 302 IPC, he cannot be convicted for the offence under Section 306 IPC."

35. Coming again to the facts and circumstances of the case, appellants were charged for offence under Section 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and under Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, but the trial Court convicted the appellants only for offence under Sections 498-A and 306 I.P.C. because the prosecution had failed to prove the demand of dowry and cruelty soon before the death of deceased. According to Section 113-A of the Evidence Act, if a woman commits suicide within a period of seven years from the date of her marriage and it is alleged by the prosecution that she was subjected to cruelty by her husband or relative of her husband, the Court may presume, having regard to all the other circumstances of this case, that such suicide had been abetted by her husband or such relative of her husband. Nanhake (P.W.-1) has specifically stated that his sister-Guddi Devi's marriage was solemnized with appellant-Dinesh Kumar on 16.05.1993. Shanti Devi (P.W.-2), the mother of the deceased has also stated that the marriage of the deceased was solemnized four years ago from her death. Although, the appellant-Dinesh Kumar in his statement under Section 313 of the Code, has stated that the deceased was married with him eight years ago from her death but he had not placed any reliable evidence in this regard and Bharat (D.W.-1), whose statement was recorded in 2003, stated that the deceased was married thirteen years ago, had admitted that he did not know the date or day of marriage of the deceased with the appellant-Dinesh Kumar. In addition to above, the appellants had not produced the "Pandit and Nai" who had played key role in solemnizing the marriage of the deceased with the appellant-Dinesh Kumar. Thus, it is clear that the death of the deceased was caused within seven years of her marriage. In addition to above, both the prosecution witness, Nanhke (P.W.-1) and Smt. Shanti Devi (P.W.-2) have categorically stated that the deceased was being tortured by the appellants for demand of dowry. Thus, in view of the law laid down by Supreme Court in Iqbal Singh (supra) and Dalbir Singh (supra) as well as the provisions as provided under Section 113-A of Evidence Act, the trial Court has not committed any illegality or infirmity for drawing the said presumption for offence under Section 306 I.P.C. and the submission of learned counsel for the appellants, in this regard, has no force.

36. It is also pertinent to note at this juncture that as to whether the appellants have succeeded to lead any evidence in their defence regarding their innocence.

37. The appellant-Dinesh Kumar, in his statement recorded under Section 313 of the Code, has stated that the deceased had committed suicide on 25.04.1998 at about 2:00 p.m. and the information whereof was given on 26.04.1998. It is further stated by him at that time, the appellants were threshing wheat crops and no one was present in his house. The appellants had not stated that how and when they got information regarding the suicidal death of the deceased and why the information of death of deceased was given to concerned police station after eighteen hours of her death whereas Dr. B. B. Tripathi (P.W.-4) who conducted the post-mortem of deceased, had specifically stated that deceased would have died in the intervening night of 25-26/4/1998. This witness was not cross-examined by the defence on the point of time of death of deceased as stated by him (P.W.-4). Thus, the appellant-Dinesh Kumar's statement recorded under Section 313 of the Code, that the deceased had died on 25.04.1998 at about 2:00 p.m. and he was threshing wheat crops becomes doubtful in the light of statement of Dr. B. B. Tripathi (P.W.-4). In view of above, it is clear that the death of deceased was happened in the presence of the appellants. So far as defence of the appellants that the deceased had committed suicide in frustration as she was suffering from abdominal disease, is concerned, the appellants had not produced any documentary evidence that if the deceased was suffering from abdominal disease what efforts was made by them for her treatment whereas Nanhke (P.W.-1) and Smt. Shanti Devi (P.W.-2) had categorically denied that the deceased was suffering from abdominal disease. Thus, the appellants have failed to lead any satisfactory evidence to rebut the statutory presumption of Section 113-A of Evidence Act and in the light of law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Trimukh Maroti Kirkan (supra) their failure to produce any evidence in their defence to rebut the aforesaid statutory presumption of Section 113-A of Evidence Act, further strengthen of prosecution evidence and the submission of learned counsel for the appellants has got no force.

38. Now the question arises as to whether all the appellants are liable to be convicted in this case.

39. Admittedly, the appellant-Dinesh Kumar is husband of the deceased whereas the appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli are father-in-law and mother-in-law of the deceased. In statement of 313 of the Code, recorded in 2003, the appellant-Dinesh Kumar had disclosed his age as 30 years, the appellant-Durg Vijay as 70 years and the appellant-Chameli as 60 years. It means that at the time of occurrence i.e. in 1998, the appellant-Dinesh Kumar was 25 years old, the appellant-Durg Vijay was 65 years whereas the appellant-Chameli was 55 years old. It cannot be presumed that the appellant-Durg Vijay and the appellant-Chameli who were old aged person at the time of occurrence, were in position to govern either the appellant-Dinesh Kumar or the deceased or to control or interfere in their family relations. The appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli had categorically stated that they were leaving separately from their son. Nanhke (P.W.-1) in examination-in-chief had specifically stated that his brother-in-law-Dinesh Kumar had demanded she-buffalo and transistor ("ukt dahej ke alava mere bahnoi dinesh ne ek bhais aur ek transistor ki maang ki thi."). The prosecution has not made any specific allegation and made only general allegation, for either demand of dowry or harassment to deceased, against the appellant-Durg Vijay and Chameli.

40. Hon'ble the Supreme Court, discussing the object and reasons of Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 as well as Dowry Prohibition (Amendment Act), 1984 and taking cognizance of possibility of false implication of some other relatives of husband of the deceased in Kans Raj vs. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207, has held as under :

"A tendency has, however, developed for roping in all relations of the in-laws of the deceased wives in the matters of dowry deaths which, if not discouraged, is likely to affect the case of the prosecution even against the real culprits. In their overenthusiasm and anxiety to seek conviction for maximum people, the parents of the deceased have been found to be making efforts for involving other relations which ultimately weaken the case of the prosecution even against the real accused as appears to have happened in the instant case."

41. In Naresh Kumar vs. State of Haryana (2015) 1 SCC 797, in a case where appellant's mother and brother were acquitted but only appellant (husband) was convicted for dowry death of his wife, on plea raised by appellant that his case was at par with his mother and brother, three judges bench Hon'ble Supreme Court, dismissing the appeal, has held as under:-

"As regards the claim for parity of the case of the appellant with his mother and brother who have been acquitted, the High Court has rightly found his case to be distinguishable from the case of his mother and brother. The husband is not only primarily responsible for safety of his wife, he is expected to be conversant with her state of mind more than any other relative. If the wife commits suicide by setting herself on fire, proceeded by dissatisfaction of the husband and his family from the dowry, the interference of harassment against the husband may be patent. Responsibility of the husband towards his wife is qualitatively different and higher as against his other relatives."(Emphasis supplied)

42. In view of above, if the said occurrence was taken place inside the house of appellant-Dinesh Kumar where his presence was most probable, looking into the whole facts and circumstances of this case, the prosecution evidence is not reliable and trustworthy so far it relates to the appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli and consequently the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli and they are liable to be acquitted, whereas it has successfully proved its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellant-Dinesh Kumar (husband of the deceased). The impugned judgment so far as it concerned for appellant-Dinesh Kumar, is well discussed, well reasoned, it requires no interference and liable to be affirmed.

43. Now coming to the question of sentence whether the sentence passed by trial Court, is just and proper or not.

44. The appellant-Dinesh Kumar has been convicted for the offence under Sections-498-A and 306 I.P.C. He has been sentenced only for seven years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.2000/-for offence under Section 306 I.P.C. and for one year rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.1000/- for offence under Section 498-A I.P.C. It has further been directed that all sentences shall run concurrently. Thus, the maximum sentence, awarded against the appellants, is only for seven years.

45. It is settled principle of sentencing and penology that undue sympathy in awarding the sentence with accused is not required. The object of sentencing in criminal law should be to protect the society and also to deter the criminals by awarding appropriate sentence. In this regard Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed in State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Saleem @ Chamaru, AIR 2005 SC 3996 which is as under:-

"The Court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which the criminal and victim belong. The punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality with which the crime has been perpetrated, the enormity of the crime warranting public abhorrence and it should "respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal."

46. In this case, a helpless young woman had died inside the house of the appellant. Looking into the nature and gravity of the offence, I am of the view that the punishment awarded by the trial Court, against the appellant-Dinesh Kumar, is appropriate and requires no interference and so far as the appeal filed by him is concerned, the same is dismissed and the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial Court, convicting and sentencing the appellant-Dinesh Kumar, is affirmed.

47. The appellant-Dinesh Kumar is on bail and his bail bonds is cancelled. He is directed to surrender before the concerned Court forthwith to serve out the aforesaid sentence.

48. In the light of the aforesaid discussion, the impugned judgment and order, passed by trial Court so far it relates to the conviction and sentence of appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli, is set aside and they are acquitted from the charges levelled against them. They are on bail. Their bail bonds are cancelled.

49. The appeal is partly allowed and the impugned judgment and order is modified to the extent as above.

50. Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of the Code, appellants-Durg Vijay and Chameli are hereby directed forthwith to furnish a personal bond of a sum of Rs.20,000/- each and two reliable sureties each of the like amount before the trial Court, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against this judgment or for grant of leave, they, on receipt of notice thereof, shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

51. A copy of this judgment along with lower court record be sent to trial Court by FAX for immediate compliance.

Lalman and others). The suit was instituted for division of holdings of which the petitioners claim to be co-sharers.

4. The order-sheet is appended to the writ petition as Annexure-4. The order-sheet records the following dates in the proceedings, namely, 16.04.2018, 10.05.2018, 21.06.2018, 23.07.2018, 24.08.2018, 14.09.2018, 15.10.2018, 14.11.2018, 05.12.2018, 27.12.2018, 29.01.2019, 01.05.2019, 06.06.2019, 01.07.2019, 18.07.2019, 04.09.2019, 17.10.2019, 18.11.2019, 27.11.2019, 13.12.2019, 03.01.2020, 20.06.2020 and 04.07.2020. However, a perusal of the order-sheet shows that the dates were granted mechanically. No effective hearing whatsoever took place for almost two years since the institution of the proceedings. The first effective hearing happened when the order dated 08.06.2020 was passed by the respondent No.2-learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate (Judicial), Tehsil Pindra, District-Varanasi. The matter thus remains pending before the respondent No.2-learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate (Judicial), Tehsil Pindra, District-Varanasi. The proceedings have not moved forward thereafter. Hence, the writ petition.

5. The proceedings in a suit for division of holdings is controlled and guided by the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code, 2006 read with Rules framed thereunder.

6. Sections 116 and 117 provide the statutory backdrop for a suit for division of holdings. The provisions of Sections 116 and 117 are reproduced hereunder:

"116. Suit for division of holding.- (1) A bhumidhar may sue for the division of the holding of which he is a co-sharer.

[(2) In every such suit, the Court may also divide the trees, wells and other improvements existing on such holding but where such division is not possible, the trees, wells and other improvements aforesaid and valuation thereof shall be divided and adjusted in the manner prescribed.]

(3) One suit may be instituted for the division of more holdings than one where all the parties to the suit other than the[Gram Panchayat]are jointly interested in each of the holdings.

(4) To every suit under this section, the[Gram Panchayat]concerned shall be made a party.

117. Duty of Court in suits for division of holding.- (1) In every suit for division of holding under Section 116 the Court of Assistant Collector shall -

(a) follow such procedure as may be prescribed;

(b) apportion the land revenue payable in respect of each such division.

(2) A division of holding referred to in Section 116 shall not affect the joint liability of the tenure-holders there of in respect of the land revenue payable before the date of the final decree."

7. The relevant Rules material to the controversy provide for the procedure and the time-line for conclusion of the proceedings are Rules 108 and 109 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code Rules, 2016. The said Rules are extracted hereunder:

"108. Suit for division for several holdings (Section 116).-Where the suit relates to the division of more than one holding, the particulars specified in rule 107 shall be mentioned in the plaint in respect of all such holdings. "

109. Preliminary and Final decrees (Section 117).-(1) If the plaint referred to in rule 107 or rule 108 is in order, it shall be registered as a suit and the defendants shall be called upon to file their written statements. The suit shall then be decided according to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

(2) Before making a division the court shall-

(a) determine separately the share of the plaintiff and each of the other co-tenure holders ;

(b) record which, if any, of the co-tenure holders wish to remain joint ; and

(c) make valuation of the holding (or holdings) in accordance with the circle rate fixed by the Collector applicable to each plot in the holding.

(3) If the suit is decreed, the Court shall pass a preliminary decree declaring the share of the plaintiff.

(4) After the preparation of preliminary decree the Sub Divisional Officer shall get the Kurra prepared through the Lekhpal.

(5) The Lekhpal shall submit the Kurra report within a period of one month from the date of receiving the order in this regard and at the time of preparation of Kurra he shall observe the following principles-

(a) the plot or plots shall be allotted to each party in proportionate to his share in the holding;

(b) the portion allotted to each party shall be as compact as possible;

(c) as far as possible no party shall be given all the inferior or all the superior classes of land;

(d) as far as possible existing fields shall not be split up;

(e) Plots which are in the separate possession of a tenure holder shall, as far as possible, be allotted to such tenure holder if they are not in access of his share;

(f) If the plot or any part thereof is of commercial value or is adjacent to road, abadi or any other land of commercial value, the same shall be allotted to each tenure holder proportionately and in the case of second condition the same shall be allotted proportionately adjacent to road, abadi or other land of commercial value; and

(g) If the co-tenure holders are in separate possession on the basis of mutual consent or family settlement, the Kurra shall, as far as possible, be fixed accordingly.

(6) When the report regarding Kurra is submitted by the Lekhpal, the objection shall be invited thereon and thereafter the appropriate order shall be passed by the Sub Divisional Officer after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties and considering the objection, if any, filed against the report submitted by the Lekhpal.

(7) If the report and Kurra is confirmed by the Sub Divisional Officer, the final decree shall follow it.

(8) At the stage of the final decree, the Court shall-

(a) Separate the share of the plaintiff from that of the defendant by metes and bounds.

(b) Place on record a map showing in different colours the properties given to plaintiff as distinct from those given to the defendant.

(c) Apportion the land revenue payable by the parties.

(d) Direct the record of rights and map to be corrected accordingly.

(9) If, for adjusting the equities between the parties, payment of compensation regarding trees, wells or other improvements becomes necessary, the revenue Court concerned may also pass necessary orders at the stage of final decree.

(10) The Sub-Divisional Officer shall make an endeavour to decide the suit within the period of six months and if the suit is not decided within such period, the reason shall be recorded."

8. The constitutional courts are cognizant of the problem of delays in our judicial system. They have consistently attempted to purge the legal system of this menace. Various judgments have identified some of the causes of delays and appropriate judicial directions have been issued to address the problem.

9. Dispensing justice is the fundamental raison d'etre of the judicial system. Timely delivery of justice is indispensable to retaining the faith of the common man in the justice dispensation system.

10. The foremost goal set out in the Preamble of the Constitution, is to secure to all citizens: Justice, social, economic and political.

10.1 Justice to be meaningful has to be delivered in a relevant time frame. Delay invariably defeats justice. Indefinite delays are the bane of our judicial system. Interminable legal proceedings reflect the apathy of an impersonal system to the plight of helpless litigants. So long as timely justice is denied, so long the constitutional promise of justice will not be redeemed, and the constitutional mandate of the judicial system will not be implemented.

11. The constitutional courts are seized with, and the legislatures have taken cognizance of the malaise of delays in the judicial process. Delays in the judicial process have earned the displeasure of constitutional courts, and have evoked the concern of the legislatures. Law will not countenance delays in the judicial process. This is evident from the imperative directions issued by the constitutional courts to purge the judicial system of delays. This will also be apparent from the timelines set by the legislature to cure the mischief of delays in the judicial process. The judicial system will have to evolve an ethos to be alert to, and endeavour to respect timelines created by the legislature.

12. The failure to implement the statutory mandate can be determined once the nature of the statutory mandate is understood. Understanding the nature of the statutory mandate is essentially an exercise in interpretation of the statute.

13. The words of a statute are the best guide to legislative intent. The settled canons of interpretation of statutes are the best tools to ascertain the scope of the statutory duties.

14. The intent of the legislature is clearly to ensure an expeditious disposal of the appeal by the appellate authority. The legislature was clearly aware of the realities of governance and the limitations of quasi judicial authorities. In such circumstances, the legislature was conscious that it may not be possible to adhere to the letter of a strict time frame. But it was within the reach of the appellate authority to comply with the spirit of deciding the appeal with dispatch and expedition. The intendment of the legislature is revealed by the words employed in the provisions.

15. The legislature has taken a practical view. The legislature has set pragmatic standards which are achievable and not created idealistic goals which are beyond reach. The realities of administration have been balanced with the ideals of justice.

16. The legislative mandate to the appellate authority under Rule 109 (10) of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code Rules, 2016 is as under:

"109 (10) The Sub-Divisional Officer shall make an endeavour to decide the suit within the period of six months and if the suit is not decided within such period, the reason shall be recorded."

17. The word "shall" is indicative of the mandatory nature of the provision, but it is not conclusive. The Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the import and consequences of the word "shall" used by the legislature in different statutes. The import of the aforesaid provision and the nature of the statutory duty can be understood in the legal setting of authorities in point, and settled canons of interpretation of statutes.

18. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Raghubir Dayal, reported at (1995) 1 SCC 133, undertook this exercise and held thus:

"5. The use of the word 'shall' is ordinarily mandatory but it is sometimes not so interpreted if the scope of the enactment, on consequences to flow from such construction would not so demand. Normally, the word 'shall' prima facie ought to be considered mandatory but it is the function of the Court to ascertain the real intention of the legislature by a careful examination of the whole scope of the statute, the purpose it seeks to serve and the consequences that would flow from the construction to be placed thereon. The word 'shall', therefore, ought to be construed not according to the language with which it is clothed but in the context in which it is used and the purpose it seeks to serve. The meaning has to be ascribed to the word 'shall' as mandatory or as directory, accordingly/Equally, it is settled law that when a statute is passed for the purpose of enabling the doing of something and prescribes the formalities which are to be attended for the purpose, those prescribed formalities which are formalities which are essential to the validity of such thing, would be mandatory. However, if by holding them to be mandatory, serious general inconvenience is caused to innocent persons or general public, without very much furthering the object of the Act, the same would be construed as directory."

15. Clearly the consequences of using the word "shall" can vary and are not uniform. The mandatory effect of the word "shall" can be diluted depending upon the context in which the word "shall" is employed and the statutory scheme in which it is placed. In the context of the Rule 109(10) of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code Rules, 2016, the word "shall" is also qualified by the words "as far as practicable". The latter words limit the mandatory effect of the word "shall".

19. The phrase "as far as practicable" was interpreted by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of N.K. Chauhan Vs. State of Gujarat and others, reported at (1977) 1 SCC 308, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held thus:

"26. What does 'as far as practicable' or like expression mean, in simple anglo-saxon ? Practicable, feasible, possi- ble, performable, are more or less interchangeable. A skiagraph of the 1959 Resolution reveals that the revival of the direct recruitment, method was motivated by 'the inter- est of administration'--an overriding object which must cast the benefit of doubt if two meanings with equal persuasive- ness contend. Secondly, going by the text, 50% of the substantive vacancies occurring in the cadre should be filled in by selection in accordance With appended Rules. 'As far as practicable' finds a place in the Resolution and the Rule. In the context what does it qualify ? As far as possible 50% ? That is to say, if 50% is not readily forth- coming, then less ? Within what period should be impracticabilitv to felt ? What is the content of impracticabi- litv' in the given administrative 'setting ? Contrariwise, can you not contend that impracticability isnot a license to deviate, a discretion to disobey or a liberty with the ratio ? Administrative tone is too impor- tant to be neglected but if sufficient numbers to fill the direct recruits' quota are not readily available, substantive vacancies may be left intact to be filled up when direct recruits are available. Since the exigencies of administration cannot wait, expediency has a limited role through the use of the words 'as far as practicable'. Thereby Government is authorised to make ad hoc appointments by promotion or by creation of ex cadre posts to be filled up by promotees, to be absorbed in the 50% portion falling to the promotional category in later years. In short 'as far as practicable means, not interfering with the ratio which fulfils the interest of administration, but flexible provision clothing government with powers to meet special situations where the normal process of the government Reso- lution cannot flow smooth. It is a matter of accent and import which affords the final test in the choice between the two parallel interpretations.

27. We have given close thought to the competing contentions and are inclined to the view that the former is the better. Certainly, Shri Garg is right that the primary purpose of the quota system is to improve administrative efficiency. After all, the Indian administration is run for the service of the people and not for opportunities for promotion to a few persons. But theories of public administration and experiments in achieving efficiency are matters of governmental policy and business management. Apparently, the State, having given due consideration to these factors, thought that a blended brew would serve best. Even so, it could not have been the intention of government to create artificial situations, import legal fictions and complicate the composition of the cadre by deviating from the natural course. The State probably intended to bring in fresh talent to the extent reasonably available but not at the sacrifice of sufficiency of hands at a given time nor at the cost of creating a vacuum by keeping substantive vacancies unfilled for long. The straightforward answer seems to us to be that the State, in tune with the mandate of the rule, must make serious effort to secure hands to fill half the number of vacancies from the open market. If it does not succeed, despite honest and serious effort, it qualifies for departure from the rule. If it has become non-feasible impracticable and procrastinatory to get the requisite quota of direct recruits, having done all that it could, it was free to fill the posts by promotion of suitable hands if the filling up of the vacancies was administratively necessary and could not wait. 'Impracticable' cannot be equated with 'impossible'--nor with 'unpalatable'--and we cannot agree with the learned judges of the High Court in construing it as colossally incapable of compliance. The short test, therefore, is to find out whether the government, in the present case, has made effective efforts, doing all that it reasonably can, to recruit from the open market necessary numbers of qualified hands. We do not agree that the compulsion of the rule goes to the extreme extent of making government keep the vacancies in the quota of the direct recruits open and to meet the urgent needs of administration by creating ex cadre posts or making ad hoc appointments or resorting to other out-of-the-way expedients. The sense of the rule is that as far as possible the quota system must be kept up and if not 'practicable', promotees in the place of direct recruits or direct recruits in the place of promotees may be inducted applying the regular procedures, without suffering the seats to lie indefinitely vacant."

20. In the case of P.T. Rajan Vs. T.P.M. Sahir and others, reported at (2003) 8 SCC 498 while considering the same issue and similar provision, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held thus:

"48. Furthermore even if the statute specifies a time for publication of the electoral roll, the same by itself could not have been held to be mandatory. Such a provision would be directory in nature. It is well-settled pinciple of law that where a statutory functionary is asked to perform a statutory duty within the time prescribed therefor, the same would be directory and not mandatory."

21. A mandatory provision is required to be complied with strictly on pain of invalidation of the action. But merely because a provision is held to be directory, it does not provide an option of non-compliance to the authorities. The law has to be complied with in all circumstances. This is the essence of the rule of law. However, the rigors of compliance may vary depending upon the statutory provision. In case of a directory provision, a substantial compliance of the same would suffice to meet the ends of law. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has often dealt with the distinction between a mandatory provision and a directory provision, and the issue of compliance of directory provisions. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of

"9. The difference between a mandatory rule and a directory rule is that while the former must be strictly observed, in the case of the latter, substantial compliance may be sufficient to achieve the object regarding which the rule is enacted (emphasize added). Certain broad propositions which can be deduced from several decisions of courts regarding the rules of construction that should be followed in determining whether a provision of law is directory or mandatory may be summarized thus: The fact that the statute uses the word 'shall' while laying down a duty is not conclusive on the question whether it is a mandatory or directory provision. In order to find out the true character of the legislation, the Court has to ascertain the object which the provision of law in question is to sub-serve and its design and the context in which it is enacted. If the object of a law is to be defeated by non-compliance with it, it has to be regarded as mandatory. But when a provision of law relates to the performance of any public duty and the invalidation of any act done in disregard of that provision causes serious prejudice to those for whose benefit it is enacted and at the same time who have no control over the performance of the duty, such provision should be treated as a directory one. Where however, a provision of law prescribes that a certain act has to be done in a particular manner by a person in order to acquire a right and it is coupled with another provision which confers an immunity on another when such act is not done in that manner, the former has to be regarded as a mandatory one. A procedural rule ordinarily should not be construed as mandatory if the defect in the act done in pursuance of it can be cured by permitting appropriate rectification to be carried out at a subsequent stage unless by according such permission to rectify the error later on, another rule would be contravened. Whenever a statute prescribes that a particular act is to be done in a particular manner and also lays down that failure to comply with the said requirement leads to a specific consequence, it would be difficult to hold that the requirement is not mandatory and the specified consequence should not follow."

22. A Full Bench of this Court in the case of Vikas Trivedi Vs. State of U.P. and others, reported at (2013) 2 UPLBEC 1193 held as under:

"15. Maxwell On the Interpretation of Statutes (Twelfth Edition) in Chapter 13,while discussing "Imperative And Directory Enactments" said following:

'The first such question is: when a statute requires that something shall be done, or done in a particular manner or form, without expressly declaring what shall be the consequence of non-compliance, is the requirement to be regarded as imperative (or mandatory) or merely as directory (or permissive)? In some cases the conditions or forms prescribed by the Statute have been regarded as essential to the act or thing regulated by it, and their omission has been held fatal to its validity. In others, such prescriptions have been considered as merely directory, the neglect of them involving nothing more than liability to a penalty, if any were imposed, for breach of the enactment. An absolute enactment must be obeyed or fulfilled exactly, but it is sufficient if a directory enactment be obeyed or fulfilled substantially.' It is impossible to lay down any general rule for determining whether a provision is imperative or directory. 'No universal rule', said Lord Campbell, L.C., 'can be laid down for the construction of statutes, as to whether mandatory enactments shall be considered directory only or obligatory with an implied nullification for disobedience. It is the duty of Courts of Justice to try to get at the real intention of the Legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the statute to be construed.' And Lord Penzance said: 'I believe as far as any rule is concerned, you cannot safely go further than that in each case you must look to the subject matter; consider the importance of the provisions that has been disregarded, and the relation of that provision to the general object intended to be secured by the Act; and upon a review of the case in that aspect decide whether the matter is what is called imperative or only directory."

"76. At this juncture a note of caution is required to be given. All provisions of the statute are required to be complied with. It is useful to quote paragraph 5-052 of De-Smith Judicial Review 6th Edition in which while dealing with mandatory and directory statutes, following was observed:-

"5-052. A second reason for the tangle in this area is the use of the terms "mandatory" and "directory"; the latter term is especially misleading. All statutory requirements are prima facie mandatory. However, in some situations the violation of a provision will, in the context of the statute as a whole and the circumstances of the particular decision, not violate the objects and purpose of the statute. Condoning such a breach does not, however, render the statutory provision directory or discretionary. The breach of the particular provision is treated in the circumstances as not involving a breach of the statute taken as a whole. Furthermore, logically, a provision cannot be mandatory if a court has discretion not to enforce it."

23. In the case of Karnal Improvement Trust, Karnal Vs. Smt. Parkash Wanti (Dead) and another, reported at (1995) 5 SCC 159, the Hon'ble Apex Court laid down the law in the following terms:

"11. There is distinction between ministerial acts and statutory or quasi-judicial functions under the statute. When the statute requires that something should be done or done in a particular manner or form, without expressly declaring what shall be the consequence of non-compliance, the question often arise: What intention is to be attributed by inference to the legislature? It has been repeatedly said that no particular rule can be laid down in determining whether the command is to be considered as a mere direction or mandatory involving invalidating consequences in its disregard. It is fundamental that it depends on the scope and object of the enactment. Nullification is the natural and usual consequence of disobedience, if the intention is of an imperative character. The question in the main is governed by considerations of the object and purpose of the Act; convenience and justice and the result that would ensure. General inconvenience or injustice to innocent persons or advantage to those guilty of the neglect, without promoting the real aim and object of the enactment would be kept at the back of the mind. The scope and purpose of the statute under consideration must be regarded as an integral scheme. The general rule is that an absolute enactment must be obeyed or fulfilled exactly but it is sufficient if a directory enactment be obeyed or fulfilled substantially. When a public duty, as held before, is imposed and statute requires that is shall be performed in a certain manner or within a certain time or under other specified conditions, such prescriptions may well be regarded as intended to be directory only in cases when injustice or inconvenience to others who have no control over those exercising the duty would result if such requirements are not essential and imperative."

24. Rule 109 (10) as extracted above determines the time frame of the aforesaid proceedings. The statutory mandate of Rule 109 (10) can be distilled by consideration of the phraseology employed by the legislature while enacting the rule, the settled canons of interpretation of statutes. Benefit shall also be derived from authorities in point discussed in the preceding paras.

The word "shall" in Rule 109(10) is qualified by the word "endeavour". The mandatory nature of the word "shall" is also diluted by the phrase "if the suit is not decided within such period". The time period provided for deciding the suit for partition of holdings under Section 116 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code, 2006 read with rules, as provided in Rule 109 (10) of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code Rules, 2016 is directory in nature. However, the requirement to record reasons for exceeding the time-line of six months is mandatory.

25. I had the occasion to consider the nature of the legislative mandate to the courts, where directory provisions in a statute require the courts to render a final decision in a specified time frame in Tribhuwan Prasad Vs. Uttar Pradesh Sarkar and others, reported at 2018 (9) ADJ 466. In Tribhuwan Prasad (supra) the time frame provided in the statute for deciding the appeal was two months.

26. In Tribhuwan Prasad (supra) it was found that the provision containing a time frame to decide the appeal was directory, and then the consequences of the said holding were construed on the foot of good authority. The directory nature of the provision may not require strict adherence but insists on substantial compliance. Most pertinently it does not permit indefinite enlargement of the time fixed by the statute:

"21. Statutes fixing time-lines to accomplish an action, as discussed above, were held to be directory in nature. The legislative intent was sought to be defeated by a highly delayed compliance on the pretext of the provision being directory in nature. The action of the authorities was invalidated and such interpretation was negatived by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. Inordinate delay does not satisfy the requirement of substantial compliance of a directory provision. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. P.C. Wadhwa, IPS, Inspector General of Police and another, reported at (1987) 2 SCC 602, while laying down the law, dispelled all such doubts. The relevant parts of the judgement are being extracted for ease of reference:

"14. The whole object of the making and communication of adverse remarks is to give to the officer concerned an opportunity to improve his performance, conduct or character, as the case may. The adverse remarks should not be understood in terms of punishment, but really it should be taken as an advice to the officer concerned, so that he can act in accordance with the advice and improve his service career. The whole object of the making of adverse remarks would be lost if they are communicated to the officer concerned after an inordinate delay. In the instant case, it was communicated to the respondent after twenty seven months. It is true that the provisions of Rules 6, 6A and 7 are directory and not mandatory, but that does not mean that the directory provisions need not be complied with even substantially. Such provisions may not be complied with strictly, and substantial compliance will be sufficient. But, where compliance after an inordinate delay would be against the spirit and object of the directory provision, such compliance would not be substantial compliance. In the instant case, while the provisions of Rules 6, 6A and 7 require that everything including the communication of the adverse remarks should be completed within a period of seven months, this period cannot be stretched to twenty seven months, simply because these Rules are directory, without serving any purpose consistent with the spirit and objectives of these Rules. We need not, however, dilate upon the question any more and consider whether on the ground of inordinate and unreasonable delay, the adverse remarks against the respondent should be struck down or not, and suffice it to say that we do not approve of the inordinate delay made in communicating the adverse remarks to the respondent."

27. Thereafter, the duties of the court and the manner of implementation of a directory provision of law were laid down :

"23. In case the appeal is decided within two months, the letter and spirit of the statute is implemented. However, mere failure to decide the appeal within two months does not violate the statutory mandate. In the latter case, the statutory obligation will be defined by the quality of the efforts made to decide the appeal with promptitude and dispatch. The obligation will be met if the appeal is decided within a reasonable time, after the expiry of two months from its institution.

24. Statutes of limitation are statutes of repose. Statutes with time lines for decision making are statutes of endeavour. Statutory duty is discharged not only when the act is done but also when effort is made. However, the leeway to the authority is not unlimited and the time to accomplish the act is not indefinite. The statutory duty of the appellate authority, in the event the appeal is not decided within two months is to be seen.

25. The appellate authority shall have discharged its statutory duties initially, if it makes efforts commensurate to decide the appeal expeditiously, and finally when it enters a judgement, in a reasonable time after the expiry of two months. In such circumstances, the appellate authority can implement the law, by making honest endeavours and serious efforts to decide the appeal with dispatch and expedition. This is the statutory duty of the appellate authority. While the statutory duty of the appellate authority is to make earnest efforts to decide expeditiously, the proof of its performance is in the order-sheet of the court. The order-sheet of the appellate court is the most reliable evidence of the sincerity or earnestness of the efforts made by the appellate authority. The order-sheet of the appellate court is true testimony to the accomplishment of the statutory duty or the failure of the authority to perform its statutory duty. In the latter case the authority is liable to be mandamused."

28. Similar directory provisions providing for a time period to conclude legal proceedings also exist in the Arbitration Act. The mandate of Section 34(5)(6) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 came up for consideration before this Court in Matters Under Article 227 No.237 of 2020 (Mrs. Madhuri Saxena (since deceased) through L.R. Vs. Sahkari Awas Evam Vitt Nigam Ltd. Sarojni Marg Lucknow U.P.) rendered on 14.08.2020. The duty of the Court to implement a statutory mandate of Sections 34 and 35 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 were cast in the following paragraphs:

"40. A composite reading of Section 34 (5) and (6) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, the law laid by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Bihar and others (supra) and this Court in Tribhuwan Prasad (supra*) yields these results. Section 34(5) and (6) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 being directory in nature, prevent the courts from being rushed into decisions by breaching fundamental norms of fairness and justice. The timeline set by the statute, cannot stampede the courts into passing orders which cause miscarriage of justice. However, the courts cannot extend the statutory time frame indefinitely or unreasonably. Neither can the courts be purblind to the timeframe provided in the statute on the pretext that provision is directory. Substantial compliance of the said provisions is sufficient to satisfy the legislative mandate. What substantial compliance entails in regard to these provisions needs to be understood clearly to enable the courts to implement the law faithfully. The duties of the court while deciding an application under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 are distilled hereinunder.

41. The courts always have to be alert to the statutory time period of one year to decide the application, and make sincere efforts to adhere to the stipulated time line. In case the application is not decided within the statutory time limit of one year, the court should make all out endeavours to decide it within a reasonable time frame thereafter. At all times, the mandate of law requires the court to proceed with full diligence, and make earnest endeavours to decide the application under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, within the time prescribed by the statute or in proximity to it. An unreasonable delay in deciding the matter represents a failure to implement the law. If serious efforts to decide matter within the statutory time frame is the requirement of the law, the order-sheet of the court is the most reliable evidence of the implementation of the law."

29. From the facts of the case prised out at the very inception, and the law discussed in the preceding paragraphs these facts are established. The proceedings under Section 116 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code Rules, 2016 could not be concluded within the prescribed statutory time limit, or in a time frame proximate to it. No end to the proceedings is in sight. And if the order-sheet of the court below is a guide, the proceedings could well linger indefinitely. The delay in deciding the case is unreasonable and unacceptable. Further the reasons for failure to decide the suit within the aforesaid period have not been recorded in violation of the mandate of Rule 116 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code Rules, 2016.

30. The adherence to the law laid down by this Court in various authorities discussed earlier is not in evidence. The legislative mandate of Section 116 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code Rules, 2016 has not been implemented. The stakeholders have shown apathy towards the litigant, and indifference to the noble charter of the legal profession. Honest endeavours and earnest efforts to conclude the proceedings with diligence and dispatch are not disclosed from the order-sheet. No reasons for failing to decide as required under Rule 110(10) are in the order-sheet. The order-sheet of the case is equally a reflection and an indictment of the judicial process. The court has ample powers to ensure that the process of law is not stalled by the dilatory tactics of any party. The courts are not helpless and cannot be seen to be helpless.

31. The rule of law cannot be flouted or permitted to fail. It is the obligation of this Court to ensure that the rule of law is upheld under all circumstances.

32. In light of these facts and the authorities at hand, I am of the opinion that this is a fit case to exercise the jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India by issuing strict directions to decide the matter finally within a stipulated period of time.

33. The authority /learned court below has failed to perform its statutory duty. In view of the aforesaid facts, this Court has to issue a mandamus commanding the authority /learned court below to discharge its statutory duty.

34. A writ of mandamus is issued directing the respondent No.2/learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Pindra, District-Varanasi/learned court below or any other authority, before whom the aforesaid Suit No.RST/00213/2018, Computerized Suit No.T-201814700200213 (Ram Sanehy and another Vs. Lalman and others) under Section 116 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is pending, to execute the following directions:

I. The suit shall be decided by the respondent No.2/learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Pindra, District-Varanasi/learned court below within a period of four months from the date of production of a computer generated copy of this order, downloaded from the official website of the High Court Allahabad.

The computer generated copy of such order shall be self attested by the applicant (party concerned) along with a self attested identity proof of the said person (preferably Aadhar Card) mentioning the mobile number to which the said Aadhar Card is linked. The Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

II. The respondent No.2/learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Pindra, District-Varanasi/learned court below shall give shorter dates and not grant any adjournment to the parties.

III. In case any adjournment is granted for preventing any miscarriage of justice, the respondent No.2/learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Pindra, District-Varanasi/learned court below shall record reasons for the same.

IV. Further, the party seeking an adjournment shall be liable to pay costs to the extent of at least Rs.5,000/- per adjournment.

V. The respondent No.2/learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Pindra, District-Varanasi/learned court below, if necessary, shall proceed on a day to day basis to ensure that the above stipulated time-line of four months is strictly adhered to.

33. With the aforesaid directions, the writ petition is disposed of.

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE VIRENDRA KUMAR-II, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 116 of 2021

Mewa Lal Bhargav ...Appellant (In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Janendra Kumar Verma

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:
A.G.A.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Sections 156(3), 203- Dismissal of complaint under section 156(3) of the Cr.P.C at pre-cognizance stage- Options before the Magistrate- (i) At the pre-cognizance stage- he may direct to concerned police station to register F.I.R. on the basis of facts narrated in the complaint if commission of congnizable offence disclosed prima facie and Investigating officer would conduct the investigation.(ii) At the post cognizance- after taking cognizance, he may adopt procedure of complaint cases provided under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. If the Magistrate is not satisfied with the conclusions arrived at by the Investigating Officer in report submitted under section 173 Cr.P.C. then the Magistrate may take cognizance upon original complaint sent to S.H.O. at pre-cognizance stage and proceed further to examine the complaint under section 200 Cr.P.C. and his witnesses under section 202 Cr.P.C.

At the pre-cognizance stage, if the contents of the Complaint prima facie disclose the commission of a cognizable offence, the Magistrate may direct the police to register an F.I.R and conduct regular investigation. At the post Cognizance stage the Magistrate may follow the procedure under sections 200 and 202 of the Cr.P.C and in case where the Magistrate is not satisfied with the Police Report submitted under section 173 of the Cr.P.C then he may take cognizance of the Complaint and proceed in the matter like a complaint case.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 203 - Rejection of a complaint at the pre-cognizance stage under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. does not debar institution of second regular complaint. It would be post-cognizance stage, if the Magistrate takes cognizance on the original complaint or after rejection at pre-cognizance stage, if second complaint is filed by the complainant. The Magistrate may dismiss the complaint under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. if by way of instituting complaint, defence version is created to absolve the complainant from the case registered earlier or on the basis of allegations made in the complainant, if dispute is purely of civil nature or the Magistrate considers that the complaint is false and frivolous.

A second complaint is not barred where the Magistrate dismisses the earlier complaint at the pre-cognizance stage. However, a Magistrate can exercise his discretion and reject the complaint at the pre-cognizance stage wherte he finds that either the averments in the Complaint do not disclose the commission of a cognizable offence or where the Complaint is false, frivolous or vexatious.

Judge, S.C./S.T. Act, District Lakhimpur Kheri in Criminal Misc. Case No. 673/2020, Mewa Lal Bhargav Vs. Ram Milan Mishra & another, by which the complaint instituted by the appellant under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. has been dismissed at pre-cognizance stage and discretion has not been exercised in favour of complainant.

3. I have perused the record made available by the appellant/ complainant.

4. A primary duty to register First Information Report (F.I.R) regarding cognizable offence is of the Station House Officer of the concerned Police Station, if the Police Officer/Incharge does not register the F.I.R. then the Magistrate having jurisdiction to hear criminal case of the police station concerned has been empowered to issue directions under section 156(3) Cr.P.C to register and investigate the fact and circumstances narrated in the complaint. the relevant provisions defining the complaint and the procedure adopted by the concerned Magistrate is provided under the various provision of the Cr.P.C. At a post cognizance stage, the Magistrate is empowered to take cognizance on the complaint and may adopt procedure provided under section 200, 202 of Cr.P.C. The relevant provisions are as follows:-

Relevant Provision of Cr.P.C.regarding written complaint instituted in the magistrate court.

Provision of Sec. 2(d) of Cr.P.C defines complaint and Section 154 of Cr.P.C provides procedure for recording of First Information Report at Police Station

Section 2(d) of Cr.P.C.-

"complaint" means any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate, with a view to his taking action under this Code, that some person, whether known or unknown, has committed an offence, but does not include a police report.

Explanation.--A report made by a police officer in a case which discloses, after investigation, the commission of a non-cognizable offence shall be deemed to be a complaint; and the police officer by whom such report is made shall be deemed to be the complainant;

Section 154 in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973

154. Information in cognizable cases.--

(1) Every information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence, if given orally to an officer in charge of a police station, shall be reduced to writing by him or under his direction, and be read over to the informant; and every such information, whether given in writing or reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be signed by the person giving it, and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book to be kept by such officer in such form as the State Government may prescribe in this behalf:

(2) A copy of the information as recorded under sub-section (1) shall be given forthwith, free of cost, to the informant.

(3) Any person aggrieved by a refusal on the part of an officer in charge of a police station to record the information referred to in sub-section (1) may send the substance of such information, in writing and by post, to the Superintendent of Police concerned who, if satisfied that such information discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, shall either investigate the case himself or direct an investigation to be made by any police officer subordinate to him, in the manner provided by this Code, and such officer shall have all the powers of an officer in charge of the police station in relation to that offence.

Section 156 in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973

156. Police officer's power to investigate cognizable case.

(1) Any officer in charge of a police station may, without the order of a Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case which a Court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter XIII.

(2) No proceeding of a police officer in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one which such officer was not empowered under this section to investigate.

(3) Any Magistrate empowered under Section 190 may order such an investigation as above-mentioned.

Section 190 in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973

190. Cognizance of offences by Magistrates.--

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any Magistrate of the first class, and any Magistrate of the second class specially empowered in this behalf under sub-section

(2), may take cognizance of any offence--

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed.

(2) The Chief Judicial Magistrate may empower any Magistrate of the second class to take cognizance under sub-section (1) of such offences as are within his competence to inquire into or try.

5. Following expositions of law of Hon'ble Supreme Court and this Court regarding provisions under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. are relevant, which are as follows:

Following are the case law decided by the Hon'ble Supreme Court on Section 156(3) of Cr.P.C

Hon'ble Supreme Court held in the case of R. R. Chari Vs. State of U.P., reported in AIR 1951 SC 207 as under:

It is clear from the wording of the section that the initiation of the proceedings against a person commences on the cognizance of the offence by the Magistrate under one of the three contingencies mentioned in the section. The first contingency evidently is in respect of non-cognizable offences as defined in the Criminal Procedure Code on the complaint of an aggrieved person. The second is on a police report, which evidently is the case of a cognizable offence when the police have completed their investigation and come to the Magistrate for the issue of a process. The third is when the Magistrate himself takes notice of an offence and issues the process. It is important to remember that in respect of any cognizable offence, the police, at the initial stage when they are investigating the matter, can arrest a person without obtaining an order from the Magistrate. Under Section 167(b) of the Criminal Procedure Code the police have of course to put up the person so arrested before a Magistrate within 24 hours and obtain an order of remand to police custody for the purpose of further investigation, if they so desire. But they have the power to arrest a person for the purpose of investigation without approaching the Magistrate first. Therefore in cases of cognizable offence before proceedings are initiated and while the matter is under investigation by the police the suspected person is liable to be arrested by the police without an order by the Magistrate. It may also be noticed that the Magistrate who makes the order of remand may be one who has no jurisdiction to try the case.

In our opinion having regard to the wording of Section 3 of the Act the assumption that the Magistrate can issue a warrant only after taking cognizance of an offence under Section 190 of the Criminal Procedure Code is unsound. The proviso to Section 3 of the Act expressly covers the case of a Magistrate issuing a warrant for the arrest of a person in the course of investigation only and on the footing that it is a cognizable offence.

"What is taking cognizance has not been defined in the Criminal Procedure Code and I have no desire to attempt to define it. It seems to me clear however that before it can be said that any Magistrate has taken cognizance of any offence under Section 190(1)(a) of the Criminal Procedure Code, he must not only have applied his mind to the contents of the petition but he must have done so for the purpose of proceeding in a particular way as indicated in the subsequent provisions of this Chapter--proceeding under Section 200 and thereafter sending it for inquiry and report under Section 202. When the Magistrate applies his mind not for the purpose of proceeding under the subsequent sections of this Chapter, but for taking action of some other kind e.g. ordering investigation under Section 156(3), or issuing a search warrant for the purpose of the investigation, he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of the offence".

In the case of Gopal Das Sindhi Vs. State of Assam, reported as AIR 1961 SC 986, Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under -

When the complaint was received by Mr Thomas on August 3, 1957, his order, which we have already quoted, clearly indicates that he did not take cognizance of the offences mentioned in the complaint but had sent the complaint under Section 156(3) of the Code to the Officer Incharge of Police Station Gauhati for investigation. Section 156(3) states "Any Magistrate empowered under Section 190 may order such investigation as above-mentioned". Mr Thomas was certainly a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance under Section 190 and he was empowered to take cognizance of an offence upon receiving a complaint. He, however, decided not to take cognizance but to send the complaint to the police for investigation as Sections 147, 342 and 448 were cognizable offences. It was, however, urged that once a complaint was filed the Magistrate was bound to take cognizance and proceed under Chapter XVI of the Code. It is clear, however, that Chapter XVI would come into play only if the Magistrate had taken cognizance of an offence on the complaint filed before him, because Section 200 states that a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence on complaint shall at once examine the complainant and the witnesses present, if any, upon oath and the substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing and shall be signed by the complainant and the witnesses and also by the Magistrate. If the Magistrate had not taken cognizance of the offence on the complaint filed before him, he was not obliged to examine the complainant on oath and the witnesses present at the time of the filing of the complaint.

We cannot read the provisions of Section 190 to mean that once a complaint is filed, a Magistrate is bound to take cognizance if the facts stated in the complaint disclose the commission of any offence. We are unable to construe the word "may' in Section 190 to mean "must'. The reason is obvious. A complaint disclosing cognizable offences may well justify a Magistrate in sending the complaint, under Section 156(3) to the police for investigation. There is no reason why the time of the Magistrate should be wasted when primarily the duty to investigate in cases involving cognizable offence is with the police.

On the other hand, there may be occasions when the Magistrate may exercise his discretion and take cognizance of a cognizable offence. If he does so, then he would have to proceed in the manner provided by Chapter XVI of the Code. Numerous cases were cited before us in support of the submissions made on behalf of the appellants. Certain submissions were also made as to what is meant by "taking cognizance". It is unnecessary to refer to the cases cited. The following observations of Mr Justice Das Gupta in the case of Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, West Bengal v.Abani Kumar Banerjee [AIR 1950 Cal 437] :

"What is taking cognizance has not been defined in the Code of Criminal Procedure and I have no desire to attempt to define it. It seems to me clear, however, that before it can be said that any Magistrate has taken cognizance of any offence under Section 190(1)(a) of the Cr PC, he must not only have applied his mind to the contents of the petition but he must have done so for the purpose of proceeding in a particular way as indicated in the subsequent provisions of this Chapter --proceeding under Section 200 and thereafter sending it for inquiry and report under Section 202. When the Magistrate applies his mind not for the purpose of proceeding under the subsequent sections of this Chapter, but for taking action of some other kind, e.g., ordering investigation under Section 156(3), or issuing a search warrant for the purpose of the investigation, he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of the offence."

were approved by this Court in R.R. Chari v. State of Uttar Pradesh[1951 SCR 312]. It would be clear from the observations of Mr Justice Das Gupta that when a Magistrate applies his mind not for the purpose of proceeding under the various sections of Chapter XVI but for taking action of some other kind, e.g. ordering investigation under Section 156(3) or issuing a search warrant for the purpose of investigation, he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of any offence. The observations of Mr Justice Das Gupta above-referred to were also approved by this Court in the case of Narayandas Bhagwandas Madhavdas v. State of West Bengal [1960 (I) SCR 93] .

It will be clear, therefore, that in the present case neither the Additional District Magistrate nor Mr Thomas applied his mind to the complaint filed on August 3, 1957, with a view to taking cognizance of an offence. The Additional District Magistrate passed on the complaint to Mr Thomas to deal with it. Mr Thomas seeing that cognizable offences were mentioned in the complaint did not apply his mind to it with a view to taking cognizance of any offence; on the contrary in his opinion it was a matter to be investigated by the police under Section 156(3) of the Code. The action of Mr Thomas comes within the observations of Mr Justice Das Gupta. In the circumstances, we do not think that the first contention on behalf of the appellants has any substance.

In the case of Jamuna Singh Vs. Bhadai Shah, reported in AIR 1964 SC 1541 Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under:-

(i) when on a petition of complaint being filed before him a Magistrate applies his mind for proceeding under the various provisions of Chapter 16 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, he must he held to have taken cognizance of the offences mentioned in the complaint. When however he applies his mind not for such purpose but for purposes of ordering investigation under Section 156(3) or issues a search warrant for the purpose of investigation he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of any offence. It was so held by this Court in R.R. Chari v. State of U.P.[(1951) SCR 312] and again in Gopal Dass v. State of Assam [AIR 1961 SC 986] . In the present case,it is clear here from the very fact that he took action under s. 200 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that he had taken cognizance of the offences mentioned in the complaint, it was open to him to order investigation only under s. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and not under s. 156(3) of the Code. It would be proper in these circumstances to hold that though the Magistrate used the words "for instituting a case" in this order of November 22, 1956 he was actually taking action under s. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that being the only section under which he was in law entitled to Act.

Cognizance having already been taken by the Magistrate before he made the order there was no scope of cognisance being taken afresh of the same offence after the police officer's report was received. There is thus no escape from the conclusion that the case was instituted on Bhadai Sah's complaint on November 22, 1956, and not on the police report submitted later by the Police Sub-Inspector, Baikunthpur. The contention that the appeal did not lie under Section 417(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure must therefore be rejected.

(ii) The order of the Magistrate asking the police to institute a case and to send a report should properly and reasonably be read as one made under Section 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. So, the argument that the learned Magistrate acted without jurisdiction cannot be accepted. At most it might be said that in so far as the learned Magistrate asked the police to institute a case he acted irregularly. There is absolutely no reason, however, to think that that irregularity has resulted in any failure of justice.

An examination of these provisions makes it clear that when a Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence, a case is instituted in the Magistrate's Court and such a case is one instituted on a complaint. Again, when a Magistrate takes cognizance of any offence upon a report in writing of such fact's made by any police officer it is a case instituted in the Magistrate's Court on a police report.

It is well settled now that when on a petition of complaint being filed before him a Magistrate applies his mind for proceeding under the various provisions of Chapter 16 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, he must he held to have taken cognizance of the offences mentioned in the complaint. When however he applies his mind not for such purpose but for purposes of ordering investigation under Section 156(3) or issues a search warrant for the purpose of investigation he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of any offence.

(iii) Ajay Malviya vs. State of U.P. and others (decided on 06.07.2000 ALL HC) : (1997) 4 SCC 459.

(2) The following legal proposition emerge on a careful consideration of the facts and circumstances of this cases:

(i) That a Magistrate can order investigation under Section 156(3) only at the pre-cognizance stage, that is to say, before taking cognizance under Sections 190, 200 and 204 and where a Magistrate decides to take cognizance under the provisions of Chapter 14 he is not entitled in law to order any investigation under Section 156(3) though in cases not falling within the proviso to Section 202 he can order an investigation by the police which would be in the nature of an enquiry as contemplated by Section 202 of the Code.

(ii) Where a Magistrate chooses to take cognizance he can adopt any of the following alternatives:

(a) He can peruse the complaint and if satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for proceeding he can straightaway issue process to the accused but before he does so he must comply with the requirements of Section 200 and record the evidence of the complainant or his witnesses.

(b) The Magistrate can postpone the issue of process and direct an enquiry by himself.

(c) The Magistrate can postpone the issue of process and direct an enquiry by any other person or an investigation by the police.

(iii) In case the Magistrate after considering the statement of the complainant and the witnesses or as a result of the investigation and the enquiry ordered is not satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for proceeding he can dismiss the complaint.

(iv) Where a Magistrate orders investigation by the police before taking cognizance under Section 156(3) of the Code and receives the report thereupon he can act on the report and discharge the accused or straightaway issue process against the accused or apply his mind to the complaint filed before him and take action under Section 190.

It seems to me clear however that before it can be said that any Magistrate has taken cognizance of any offence under Section 190(1)(a) of the Criminal Procedure Code, he must not only have applied his mind to the contents of the petition but he must have done so for the purpose of proceeding in a particular way as indicated in the subsequent provisions of this Chapter -- proceeding under Section 200 and thereafter sending it for inquiry and report under Section 202. When the Magistrate applies his mind not for the purpose of proceeding under the subsequent sections of this Chapter, but for taking action of some other kind, e.g. ordering investigation under Section 156(3), or issuing a search warrant"

Section 156(3) appears in Chapter 12 which deals with information to the police and the powers of the police to investigate a crime. This section is therefore placed in a Chapter different from Chapter 14 which deals with initiation of proceedings against an accused person. It is, therefore, clear that Sections 190 and 156(3) are mutually exclusive and work in totally different spheres. In other words, the position is that even if a Magistrate receives a complaint under Section 190 he can act under Section 156(3) provided that he does not take cognizance. The position, therefore, is that while Chapter 14 deals with post cognizance stage Chapter 12 so far as the Magistrate is concerned deals with pre-cognizance stage, that is to say once a Magistrate starts acting under Section 190 and the provisions following he cannot resort to Section 156(3). Mr Mukherjee vehemently contended before us that in view of this essential distinction once the Magistrate chooses to act under Section 156(3) of the Code it was not open to him to revive the complaint, take cognizance and issue process against the accused. Counsel argued that the Magistrate in such a case has two alternatives and two alternatives only -- either he could direct re-investigation if he was not satisfied with the final report of the police or he could straightaway issue process to the accused under Section 204. In the instant case the Magistrate has done neither but has chosen to proceed under Section 190(1)(a) and Section 200 of the Code and thereafter issued process against the accused under Section 204. Attractive though the argument appears to be we are however unable to accept the same. In the first place, the argument is based on a fallacy that when a Magistrate orders investigation under Section 156(3) the complaint disappears and goes out of existence. The provisions of Section 202 of the present Code debar a Magistrate from directing investigation on a complaint where the offence charged is triable exclusively by the Court of Session. On the allegations of the complainant the offence complained of was clearly triable exclusively by the Court of Session and therefore it is obvious that the Magistrate was completely debarred from directing the complaint filed before him to be investigated by the police under Section 202 of the Code.

But the Magistrate's powers under Section 156(3) of the Code to order investigation by the police have not been touched or affected by Section 202 because these powers are exercised even before cognizance is taken. In other words. Section 202 would apply only to cases where the Magistrate has taken cognizance and chooses to enquire into the complaint either himself or through any other agency. But there may be circumstances as in the present case where the Magistrate before taking cognizance of the case himself chooses to order a pure and simple investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code.

The question is, having done so, is he debarred from proceeding with the complaint according to the provisions of Sections 190, 200 and 204 of the Code after receipt of the final report by the police?

From a combined reading of the above provisions it is abundantly clear that when a written complaint disclosing a cognizable offence is made before a Magistrate, he may take cognizance upon the same under Section 190 (1)(a) of the Code and proceed with the same in accordance with provisions of Chapter XV.

The other option available to the Magistrate in such a case is to send the complaint to the appropriate Police Station under Section 156 (3) for investigation. once such a direction is given under Sub-section (3) of Section 156 the police is required to investigate into that complaint under Sub-section (1) thereof and on completion of investigation to submit a 'police report' in accordance with Section 173 (2) on which a Magistrate may take cognizance under Section 190 (1)(b) but not under section 190 (1)(a). Since a complaint filed before a Magistrate cannot be a police report in view of the definition of complaint referred to earlier and since the investigation of a 'cognizable case' by the police under Section 156 (1) has to culminate in a police report the complaint as soon as an order under Section 156 (3) is passed thereon -transforms itself to a report given in writing within the meaning of Section 154 of the Code, which is known as the First Information Report (FIR). As under Section 156 (1) the police can only investigate a cognizable 'case', it has to formally registered a case on that report.

The proper order would be as follows:-

'to register a case at the police station treating the complaint as the First Information Report and investigate into the same.'

In the case of Suresh Chand Jain v. State of M.P., reported as (2001) 2 SCC 628 the Apex court observed as under-

Chapter XII of the Code contains provisions relating to "information to the police and their powers to investigate", whereas Chapter XV, which contains Section 202, deals with provisions relating to the steps which a Magistrate has to adopt while and after taking cognizance of any offence on a complaint. Provisions of the above two chapters deal with two different facets altogether, though there could be a common factor i.e. complaint filed by a person. Section 156, falling within Chapter XII, deals with powers of the police officers to investigate cognizable offences. True, Section 202 which falls under Chapter XV, also refers to the power of a Magistrate to "direct an investigation by a police officer". But the investigation envisaged in Section 202 is different from the investigation contemplated in Section 156 of the Code.

But a Magistrate need not order any such investigation if he proposes to take cognizance of the offence. Once he takes cognizance of the offence he has to follow the procedure envisaged in Chapter XV of the Code.

The position is thus clear. Any Judicial Magistrate, before taking cognizance of the offence, can order investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code. If he does so, he is not to examine the complainant on oath because he was not taking cognizance of any offence therein. For the purpose of enabling the police to start investigation it is open to the Magistrate to direct the police to register an FIR. There is nothing illegal in doing so. After all registration of an FIR involves only the process of entering the substance of the information relating to the commission of the cognizable offence in a book kept by the officer in charge of the police station as indicated in Section 154 of the Code. Even if a Magistrate does not say in so many words while directing investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code that an FIR should be registered, it is the duty of the officer in charge of the police station to register the FIR regarding the cognizable offence disclosed by the complaint because that police officer could take further steps contemplated in Chapter XII of the Code only thereafter.

In the case of Aleeque Padamsee Vs. Union of India, reported as (2007) 6 SCC 171, Hon'ble Supreme Court after considering provision of Section 154, 156, 190 and 200 to 203 Cr.P.C, has held that:

The writ petitions are finally disposed of with the following directions:

(1) If any person is aggrieved by the inaction of the police officials in registering the FIR, the modalities contained in Section 190 read with Section 200 of the Code are to be adopted and observed.

(2) It is open to any person aggrieved by the inaction of the police officials to adopt the remedy in terms of the aforesaid provisions.

(3) So far as non-grant of sanction aspect is concerned, it is for the Government concerned to deal with the prayer. The Government concerned would do well to deal with the matter within three months from the date of receipt of this order.

(4) We make it clear that we have not expressed any opinion on the merits of the case.

In the case of Anju Chaudhary v. State of U.P., reported as (2013) 6 SCC 384, Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under-

7. The complaint application under Section 156 CrPC was filed by Parvaz on 16-11-2007, nearly 10 months after the date of occurrence. This application, which was heard by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, was rejected vide order dated 29-7-2008. The learned Magistrate expressed the opinion that since Crime Case No. 145 of 2007 had already been registered, as noticed above, there was no propriety to register an FIR again.

7.11 .....As such, there was no legal bar in this case to get the first information report registered on the basis of the application moved by the applicant revisionist under Section 156(3) CrPC and its investigation by the police, because all the allegations made in the said application and in the FIR registered at Case Crime No. 145 of 2007 are not the same.

7.14. On the plain construction of the language and scheme of Sections 154, 156 and 190 of the Code, it cannot be construed or suggested that there can be more than one FIR about an occurrence. However, the opening words of Section 154 suggest that every information relating to commission of a cognizable offence shall be reduced into writing by the officer-in-charge of a police station. This implies that there has to be the first information report about an incident which constitutes a cognizable offence. The purpose of registering an FIR is to set the machinery of criminal investigation into motion, which culminates with filing of the police report in terms of Section 173(2) of the Code. It will, thus, be appropriate to follow the settled principle that there cannot be two FIRs registered for the same offence.

It is further held that however, where the incident is separate; offences are similar or different, or even where the subsequent crime is of such magnitude that it does not fall within the ambit and scope of the FIR recorded first, then a second FIR could be registered. The most important aspect is to examine the inbuilt safeguards provided by the legislature in the very language of Section 154 of the Code. These safeguards can be safely deduced from the principle akin to double jeopardy, rule of fair investigation and further to prevent abuse of power by the investigating authority of the police. Therefore, second FIR for the same incident cannot be registered. Of course, the investigating agency has no determinative right. It is only a right to investigate in accordance with the provisions of the Code.

The filing of report upon completion of investigation, either for cancellation or alleging commission of an offence, is a matter which once filed before the court of competent jurisdiction attains a kind of finality as far as police is concerned, may be in a given case, subject to the right of further investigation but wherever the investigation has been completed and a person is found to be prima facie guilty of committing an offence or otherwise, re-examination by the investigating agency on its own should not be permitted merely by registering another FIR with regard to the same offence. If such protection is not given to a suspect, then possibility of abuse of investigating powers by the police cannot be ruled out. It is with this intention in mind that such interpretation should be given to Section 154 of the Code, as it would not only further the object of law but even that of just and fair investigation. More so, in the backdrop of the settled canons of criminal jurisprudence, reinvestigation or de novo investigation is beyond the competence of not only the investigating agency but even that of the learned Magistrate.

33. Hon'ble Supreme Court has futher observed that While examining the abovestated principles in conjunction with the scheme of the Code, particularly Sections 154 and 156(3) of the Code, it is clear that the law does not contemplate grant of any personal hearing to a suspect who attains the status of an accused only when a case is registered for committing a particular offence or the report under Section 173 of the Code is filed terming the suspect an accused that his rights are affected in terms of the Code. Absence of specific provision requiring grant of hearing to a suspect and the fact that the very purpose and object of fair investigation is bound to be adversely affected if hearing is insisted upon at that stage, clearly supports the view that hearing is not any right of any suspect at that stage.

34. Even in the cases where report under Section 173(2) of the Code is filed in the court and investigation records the name of a person in column (2), or even does not name the person as an accused at all, the court in exercise of its powers vested under Section 319 can summon the person as an accused and even at that stage of summoning, no hearing is contemplated under the law.

35. Of course, situation will be different where the complaint or an application is directed against a particular person for specific offence and the court under Section 156 dismisses such an application. In that case, the higher court may have to grant hearing to the suspect before it directs registration of a case against the suspect for a specific offence. We must hasten to clarify that there is no absolute indefeasible right vested in a suspect and this would have to be examined in the facts and circumstances of a given case. But one aspect is clear that at the stage of registration of a FIR or passing a direction under Section 156(3), the law does not contemplate grant of any hearing to a suspect.

Power of the Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C.

37. Investigation into commission of a crime can be commenced by two different modes: first, where the police officer registers an FIR in relation to commission of a cognizable offence and commences investigation in terms of Chapter XII of the Code; the other is when a Magistrate competent to take cognizance in terms of Section 190 may order an investigation into commission of a crime as per the provisions of that Chapter XIV. Section 156 primarily deals with the powers of a police officer to investigate a cognizable case. While dealing with the application or passing an order under Section 156(3), the Magistrate does not take cognizance of an offence. When the Magistrate had applied his mind only for ordering an investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code or issued a warrant for the said purpose, he is not said to have taken cognizance. It is an order in the nature of a pre-emptory reminder or intimation to the police to exercise its primary duty and power of investigation in terms of Section 151 of the Code. Such an investigation embraces the continuity of the process which begins with collection of evidence under Section 156 and ends with the final report either under Section 159 or submission of charge-sheet under Section 173 of the Code. (Refer to Mona Panwar v. High Court of Judicature of Allahabad [(2011) 3 SCC 496 : (2011) 1 SCC (Cri) 1181]. In Dilawar Singh v. State of Delhi [(2007) 12 SCC 641 : (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 330 : (2007) 9 SCR 695] , this Court as well stated the principle that investigation beginning in furtherance of an order under Section 156(3) is not anyway different from the kind of investigation commenced in terms of Section 156(1). They both terminate with filing of a report under Section 173 of the Code. The Court signified the point that when a Magistrate orders investigation under Chapter XII he does so before taking cognizance of an offence. The Court in para 18 of the judgment held as under:

The clear position therefore is that any Judicial Magistrate, before taking cognizance of the offence, can order investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code. If he does so, he is not to examine the complainant on oath because he was not taking cognizance of any offence therein. For the purpose of enabling the police to start investigation it is open to the Magistrate to direct the police to register an FIR. There is nothing illegal in doing so. After all registration of an FIR involves only the process of entering the substance of the information relating to the commission of the cognizable offence in a book kept by the officer-in-charge of the police station as indicated in Section 154 of the Code. Even if a Magistrate does not say in so many words while directing investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code that an FIR should be registered, it is the duty of the officer-in-charge of the police station to register the FIR regarding the cognizable offence disclosed by the complainant because that police officer could take further steps contemplated in Chapter XII of the Code only thereafter.

43..... This Court in the case of Mohan Baitha v.State of Bihar, (2001) 4 SCC 340, held that the expression 'same transaction' from its very nature is incapable of exact definition

44. It is not possible to enunciate any formula of universal application for the purpose of determining whether two or more acts constitute the same transaction. Such things are to be gathered from the circumstances of a given case indicating proximity of time, unity or proximity of place, continuity of action, commonality of purpose or design.

In the case of Lalita Kumari v. State of U.P., reported as (2012) 4 SCC 1, Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:

"94.We deem it appropriate to give a brief ratio of these cases."

94.1. In the case of State of Haryana vs. Bhajan Lal reported as 1992

SCC(Cri.) 426, this Court observed as under(SCC p.355 para 33):

"33. It is, therefore, manifestly clear that if any information disclosing a cognizable offence is laid before an officer in charge of a police station satisfying the requirements of Section 154(1) of the Code, the said police officer has no other option except to enter the substance thereof in the prescribed form, that is to say, to register a case on the basis of such information."

94.2. In Ramesh Kumari vs. State (NCT of Delhi) reported as (2006) 2 SCC 677:(SCC p. 681, para 5)

"5. ... the provision of Section 154 of the Code is mandatory and the officer concerned is duty-bound to register the case on the basis of such an information disclosing cognizable offence."

94.3. In Parkash Singh Badal vs, State of Punjab reported as (2007) 1 SCC 1 this Court observed as under: (SCC p. 41, para 68)

"68. It is, therefore, manifestly clear that if any information disclosing a cognizable offence is laid before an officer in charge of a police station satisfying the requirements of Section 154(1) of the Code, the said police officer has no other option except to enter the substance thereof in the prescribed form, that is to say, to register a case on the basis of such information."

94.4 In Aleeque Padamsee vs. Union of India reported as (2007) 6 SCC 171 this Court observed as under: (SCC p. 175, para 7)

"7. ... The correct position in law, therefore, is that the police officials ought to register the FIR whenever facts brought to their notice show that cognizable offence has been made out."

95.There is another set of cases where this Court has taken a contrary view.

95.1. In Rajinder Singh Katoch vs. Chandigarh Admin., reported as (2007) 10 SCC 69 : this Court observed as under: (SCC p. 71, para 11)

"11. We are not oblivious to the decision of this Court in Ramesh Kumari v. State (NCT of Delhi) [(2006) 2 SCC 677 : (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 678] wherein such a statutory duty has been found in the police officer. But, as indicated hereinbefore, in an appropriate case, the police officers also have a duty to make a preliminary enquiry so as to find out as to whether allegations made had any substance or not."

95.2 In State of u.p vs. Bhagwant Kishore Joshi reported as AIR 1964 SC 221: Mudholkar, J. in his concurring judgment has observed as under: (AIR p. 227, para 18)

"18. ... I am of opinion that it is open to a police officer to make preliminary enquiries before registering an offence and making a full-scale investigation into it."

95.3. In P. Sirajuddin vs, State of Madras reported as (1970) 1 SCC 595, this Court quoted the observations of the High Court as under: (SCC p. 600, para 12)

"(a) "substantial information and evidence had been gathered before the so-called first information report was registered';"

95.4. In Sevi and Another vs, State of Tamilbadu reported as 1981 Supp SCC 43, this Court observed as under: (SCC p. 44, para 3)

"3. ... If he was not satisfied with the information given by PW 10 that any cognizable offence had been committed he was quite right in making an entry in the general diary and proceeding to the village to verify the information without registering any FIR."

96. It is quite evident from the ratio laid down in the aforementioned cases that different Benches of this Court have taken divergent views in different cases. In this case also after this Court's notice, the Union of India, the States and the Union Territories have also taken or expressed divergent views about the interpretation of Section 154 CrPC.

97. We have carefully analysed various judgments delivered by this Court in the last several decades. We clearly discern divergent judicial opinions of this Court on the main issue: whether under Section 154 CrPC, a police officer is bound to register an FIR when a cognizable offence is made out or he (police officer) has an option, discretion or latitude of conducting some kind of preliminary enquiry before registering the FIR.

98. The learned counsel appearing for the Union of India and different States have expressed totally divergent views even before this Court. This Court also carved out a special category in the case of medical doctors in the aforementioned cases of Santosh Kumar [(2006) 6 SCC 1 : (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 1] and Suresh Gupta [(2004) 6 SCC 422 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 1785] where preliminary enquiry had been postulated before registering an FIR. Some counsel also submitted that the CBI Manual also envisages some kind of preliminary enquiry before registering the FIR.

99. The issue which has arisen for consideration in these cases is of great public importance. In view of the divergent opinions in a large number of cases decided by this Court, it has become extremely important to have a clear enunciation of law and adjudication by a larger Bench of this Court for the benefit of all concerned--the courts, the investigating agencies and the citizens.

A Constitutional Bench of Supreme Court held in the case of Lalita Kumari v. Govt. of U.P., (2014) 2 SCC 1 has observed as follows: -

115. Although, we, in unequivocal terms, hold that Section 154 of the Code postulates the mandatory registration of FIRs on receipt of all cognizable offences, yet, there may be instances where preliminary inquiry may be required owing to the change in genesis and novelty of crimes with the passage of time. One such instance is in the case of allegations relating to medical negligence on the part of doctors. It will be unfair and inequitable to prosecute a medical professional only on the basis of the allegations in the complaint.

118. Similarly, in CBI v. Tapan Kumar Singh, (2003) 6 SCC 175 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 1305 , this Court has validated a preliminary inquiry prior to registering an FIR only on the ground that at the time the first information is received, the same does not disclose a cognizable offence.

119. Therefore, in view of various counterclaims regarding registration or non-registration, what is necessary is only that the information given to the police must disclose the commission of a cognizable offence. In such a situation, registration of an FIR is mandatory. However, if no cognizable offence is made out in the information given, then the FIR need not be registered immediately and perhaps the police can conduct a sort of preliminary verification or inquiry for the limited purpose of ascertaining as to whether a cognizable offence has been committed. But, if the information given clearly mentions the commission of a cognizable offence, there is no other option but to register an FIR forthwith. Other considerations are not relevant at the stage of registration of FIR, such as, whether the information is falsely given, whether the information is genuine, whether the information is credible, etc. These are the issues that have to be verified during the investigation of the FIR. At the stage of registration of FIR, what is to be seen is merely whether the information given ex facie discloses the commission of a cognizable offence. If, after investigation, the information given is found to be false, there is always an option to prosecute the complainant for filing a false FIR.

Conclusion/Directions

120. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we hold:

120.1. The registration of FIR is mandatory under Section 154 of the Code, if the information discloses commission of a cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation.

120.2. If the information received does not disclose a cognizable offence but indicates the necessity for an inquiry, a preliminary inquiry may be conducted only to ascertain whether cognizable offence is disclosed or not.

120.3. If the inquiry discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, the FIR must be registered. In cases where preliminary inquiry ends in closing the complaint, a copy of the entry of such closure must be supplied to the first informant forthwith and not later than one week. It must disclose reasons in brief for closing the complaint and not proceeding further.

120.4. The police officer cannot avoid his duty of registering offence if cognizable offence is disclosed. Action must be taken against erring officers who do not register the FIR if information received by him discloses a cognizable offence.

120.5. The scope of preliminary inquiry is not to verify the veracity or otherwise of the information received but only to ascertain whether the information reveals any cognizable offence.

120.6. As to what type and in which cases preliminary inquiry is to be conducted will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. The category of cases in which preliminary inquiry may be made are as under:

(a) Matrimonial disputes/family disputes

(b) Commercial offences

(c) Medical negligence cases

(d) Corruption cases

(e) Cases where there is abnormal delay/laches in initiating criminal prosecution, for example, over 3 months' delay in reporting the matter without satisfactorily explaining the reasons for delay.

The aforesaid are only illustrations and not exhaustive of all conditions which may warrant preliminary inquiry.

120.7.While ensuring and protecting the rights of the accused and the complainant, a preliminary inquiry should be made time-bound and in any case it should not exceed 7 days. The fact of such delay and the causes of it must be reflected in the General Diary entry.

120.8. Since the General Diary/Station Diary/Daily Diary is the record of all information received in a police station, we direct that all information relating to cognizable offences, whether resulting in registration of FIR or leading to an inquiry, must be mandatorily and meticulously reflected in the said diary and the decision to conduct a preliminary inquiry must also be reflected, as mentioned above.

In the case of Priyanka Srivastava v. State of U.P., reported as (2015) 6 SCC 287, Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

1- The present appeal projects and frescoes a scenario which is not only disturbing but also has the potentiality to create a stir compelling one to ponder in a perturbed state how some unscrupulous, unprincipled and deviant litigants can ingeniously and innovatively design in a nonchalant manner to knock at the doors of the court, as if, it is a laboratory where multifarious experiments can take place and such skilful persons can adroitly abuse the process of the court at their own will and desire by painting a canvas of agony by assiduous assertions made in the application though the real intention is to harass the statutory authorities, without any remote remorse, with the inventive design primarily to create a mental pressure on the said officials as individuals, for they would not like to be dragged to a court of law to face in criminal cases, and further pressurise in such a fashion so that financial institution which they represent would ultimately be constrained to accept the request for "one-time settlement" with the fond hope that the obstinate defaulters who had borrowed money from it would withdraw the cases instituted against them. The facts, as we proceed to adumbrate, would graphically reveal how such persons, pretentiously aggrieved but potentially dangerous, adopt the self-convincing mastery methods to achieve so. That is the sad and unfortunate factual score forming the fulcrum of the case at hand, and, we painfully recount.

3. .....it is further observed that the respondent 3, possibly nurturing the idea of self-centric Solomon's wisdom, filed Criminal Complaint Case No. 1058 of 2008, under Section 200 CrPC against V.N. Sahay, Sandesh Tiwari and V.K. Khanna, the then Vice-President, Assistant President and the Managing Director, respectively for offences punishable under Sections 163, 193 and 506 of the Penal Code, 1860 (IPC). It was alleged in the application that the said accused persons had intentionally taken steps to cause injury to him. The learned Magistrate vide order dated 4-10-2008, dismissed the criminal complaint and declined to take cognizance after recording the statement of the complainant under Section 200 CrPC and examining the witnesses under Section 202 CrPC.

5..... The order passed against the said accused persons at that time was an adverse order inasmuch as the matter was remitted. It was incumbent to hear the respondents though they had not become accused persons. A three-Judge Bench in Manharibhai Muljibhai Kakadia v. Shaileshbhai Mohanbhai Patel [(2012) 10 SCC 517 : (2013) 1 SCC (Cri) 218] has opined that in a case arising out of a complaint petition, when it travels to the superior court and an adverse order is passed, an opportunity of hearing has to be given. The relevant passages are reproduced hereunder: (SCC pp. 540-41 & 544, paras 46, 48 & 53)

6.46. ..... If the Magistrate finds that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding with the complaint and dismisses the complaint under Section 203 of the Code, the question is whether a person accused of crime in the complaint can claim right of hearing in a revision application preferred by the complainant against the order of the dismissal of the complaint. Parliament being alive to the legal position that the accused/suspects are not entitled to be heard at any stage of the proceedings until issuance of process under Section 204, yet in Section 401(2) of the Code provided that no order in exercise of the power of the revision shall be made by the Sessions Judge or the High Court, as the case may be, to the prejudice of the accused or the other person unless he had an opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader in his own defence.

6.48. .....the dismissal of complaint by the Magistrate under Section 203 of the Code either at the stage of Section 200 itself or on completion of inquiry by the Magistrate under Section 202 or on receipt of the report from the police or from any person to whom the direction was issued by the Magistrate to investigate into the allegations in the complaint, the effect of such dismissal is termination of complaint proceedings. On a plain reading of sub-section (2) of Section 401, it cannot be said that the person against whom the allegations of having committed the offence have been made in the complaint and the complaint has been dismissed by the Magistrate under Section 203, has no right to be heard because no process has been issued. The dismissal of complaint by the Magistrate under Section 203--although it is at preliminary stage--nevertheless results in termination of proceedings in a complaint against the persons who are alleged to have committed the crime. Once a challenge is laid to such order at the instance of the complainant in a revision petition before the High Court or the Sessions Judge, by virtue of Section 401(2) of the Code, the suspects get the right of hearing before the Revisional Court although such order was passed without their participation. The right given to "accused' or "the other person' under Section 401(2) of being heard before the Revisional Court to defend an order which operates in his favour should not be confused with the proceedings before a Magistrate under Sections 200, 202, 203 and 204. In the revision petition before the High Court or the Sessions Judge at the instance of the complainant challenging the order of dismissal of complaint, one of the things that could happen is reversal of the order of the Magistrate and revival of the complaint. It is in this view of the matter that the accused or other person cannot be deprived of hearing on the face of the express provision contained in Section 401(2) of the Code. The stage is not important whether it is pre-process stage or post-process stage.

6.53. .....In other word, where the complaint has been dismissed by the Magistrate under Section 203, upon challenge to the legality of the said order being laid by the complainant in a revision petition before the High Court or the Sessions Judge, the persons who are arraigned as accused in the complaint have a right to be heard in such revision petition. This is a plain requirement of Section 401(2) of the Code. If the Revisional Court overturns the order of the Magistrate dismissing the complaint and the complaint is restored to the file of the Magistrate and it is sent back for fresh consideration, the persons who are alleged in the complaint to have committed the crime have, however, no right to participate in the proceedings nor are they entitled to any hearing of any sort whatsoever by the Magistrate until the consideration of the matter by the Magistrate for issuance of process."

14. The labyrinth maladroitly created by Respondent 3 does not end here. It appears that he had the indefatigable spirit to indulge himself in the abuse of the process of the court. Respondent 3 had filed an application under Section 156(3) CrPC before the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate on 30-10-2011, against the present appellants, who are the Vice-President and the valuer respectively. In the body of the petition, as we find in Paras 19 and 20, it has been stated thus:

"That the aforesaid case was referred to the Deputy Inspector General of Police, Varanasi through speed post but no proceeding had been initiated till today in that regard.

That the aforesaid act done by the aforesaid accused prima facie comes in the ambit of Sections 465, 467, 471, 386, 504, 34 and 120-B IPC and in this way cognizable offence is made out and proved well."

15. ..... "It has been stated clearly in the application by the applicant that it is the statement of the applicant that he had already given 3 post-dated cheques to the financial bank for payment and despite the availability of the post-dated cheques in the financial society, even a single share in the loan account has not been got paid. The opposite parties deliberately due to conspiracy and prejudice against applicant have not deposited previously mentioned post-dated cheques for payment and these people are doing a conspiracy to grab the valuable property of the applicant. Under a criminal conspiracy, illegally and on false and fabricated grounds a petition has been filed before the District Collector (Finance and Revenue), Varanasi, which comes under the ambit of cognizable offence. Keeping in view the facts of the case, commission of cognizable offence appears to be made out and it shall be justifiable to get done the investigation of the same by the police."

Hon'ble Supreme Court has futher observed as follows:-

19. We have narrated the facts in detail as the present case, as we find, exemplifies in enormous magnitude to take recourse to Section 156(3) CrPC, as if, it is a routine procedure. That apart, the proceedings initiated and the action taken by the authorities under the Sarfaesi Act are assailable under the said Act before the higher forum and if, a borrower is allowed to take recourse to criminal law in the manner it has been taken, it needs no special emphasis to state, has the inherent potentiality to affect the marrows of economic health of the nation. It is clearly noticeable that the statutory remedies have cleverly been bypassed and prosecution route has been undertaken for instilling fear amongst the individual authorities compelling them to concede to the request for one-time settlement which the financial institution possibly might not have acceded. That apart, despite agreeing for withdrawal of the complaint, no steps were taken in that regard at least to show the bona fides. On the contrary, there is a contest with a perverse sadistic attitude. Whether the complainant could have withdrawn the prosecution or not, is another matter. Fact remains, no efforts were made.

20. The learned Magistrate, as we find, while exercising the power under Section 156(3) CrPC has narrated the allegations and, thereafter, without any application of mind, has passed an order to register an FIR for the offences mentioned in the application. The duty cast on the learned Magistrate, while exercising power under Section 156(3) CrPC, cannot be marginalised. To understand the real purport of the same, we think it apt to reproduce the said provision:

"156.Police officer's power to investigate cognizable case.--(1) Any officer in charge of a police station may, without the order of a Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case which a court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter XIII.

(2) No proceeding of a police officer in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one which such officer was not empowered under this section to investigate.

(3) Any Magistrate empowered under Section 190 may order such an investigation as above mentioned."

21.Dealing with the nature of power exercised by the Magistrate under Section 156(3) CrPC, a three-Judge Bench in Devarapalli Lakshminarayana Reddy v. V. Narayana Reddy [(1976) 3 SCC 252 :

1976 SCC (Cri) 380] , had to express thus: (SCC p. 258, para 17)

"17. ... It may be noted further that an order made under sub-section (3) of Section 156, is in the nature of a peremptory reminder or intimation to the police to exercise their plenary powers of investigation under Section 156(1). Such an investigation embraces the entire continuous process which begins with the collection of evidence under Section 156 and ends with a report or charge-sheet under Section 173."

22. In Anil Kumar v. M.K. Aiyappa [(2013) 10 SCC 705 : (2014) 1 SCC (Cri) 35] , the two-Judge Bench had to say this: (SCC p. 711, para 11)

"11. The scope of Section 156(3) CrPC came up for consideration before this Court in several cases. This Court in Maksud Saiyed [Maksud Saiyed v. State of Gujarat, (2008) 5 SCC 668 : (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 692] examined the requirement of the application of mind by the Magistrate before exercising jurisdiction under Section 156(3) and held that where jurisdiction is exercised on a complaint filed in terms of Section 156(3) or Section 200 CrPC, the Magistrate is required to apply his mind, in such a case, the Special Judge/Magistrate cannot refer the matter under Section 156(3) against a public servant without a valid sanction order. The application of mind by the Magistrate should be reflected in the order. The mere statement that he has gone through the complaint, documents and heard the complainant, as such, as reflected in the order, will not be sufficient. After going through the complaint, documents and hearing the complainant, what weighed with the Magistrate to order investigation under Section 156(3) CrPC, should be reflected in the order, though a detailed expression of his views is neither required nor warranted. We have already extracted the order passed by the learned Special Judge which, in our view, has stated no reasons for ordering investigation."

23. In Dilawar Singh v. State of Delhi [(2007) 12 SCC 641 : (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 330] , this Court ruled thus: (SCC p. 647, para 18)

"18. ..."11. The clear position therefore is that any Judicial Magistrate, before taking cognizance of the offence, can order investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code. If he does so, he is not to examine the complainant on oath because he was not taking cognizance of any offence therein. For the purpose of enabling the police to start investigation it is open to the Magistrate to direct the police to register an FIR. There is nothing illegal in doing so. After all registration of an FIR involves only the process of entering the substance of the information relating to the commission of the cognizable offence in a book kept by the officer in charge of the police station as indicated in Section 154 of the Code. Even if a Magistrate does not say in so many words while directing investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code that an FIR should be registered, it is the duty of the officer in charge of the police station to register the FIR regarding the cognizable offence disclosed by the complainant because that police officer could take further steps contemplated in Chapter XII of the Code only thereafter.'

24. In CREF Finance Ltd. v. Shree Shanthi Homes (P) Ltd. [(2005) 7 SCC 467 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 1697] , the Court while dealing with the power of the Magistrate taking cognizance of the offences, has opined that having considered the complaint, the Magistrate may consider it appropriate to send the complaint to the police for investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. And again: (Madhao v. State of Maharashtra [Madhao v. State of Maharashtra, (2013) 5 SCC 615 : (2013) 4 SCC (Cri) 141] , SCC pp. 620-21, para 18)

"18. When a Magistrate receives a complaint he is not bound to take cognizance if the facts alleged in the complaint disclose the commission of an offence. The Magistrate has discretion in the matter. If on a reading of the complaint, he finds that the allegations therein disclose a cognizable offence and the forwarding of the complaint to the police for investigation under Section 156(3) will be conducive to justice and save the valuable time of the Magistrate from being wasted in enquiring into a matter which was primarily the duty of the police to investigate, he will be justified in adopting that course as an alternative to taking cognizance of the offence itself. As said earlier, in the case of a complaint regarding the commission of a cognizable offence, the power under Section 156(3) can be invoked by the Magistrate before he takes cognizance of the offence under Section 190(1)(a). However, if he once takes such cognizance and embarks upon the procedure embodied in Chapter XV, he is not competent to revert back to the pre-cognizance stage and avail of Section 156(3)."

25. Recently, in Ramdev Food Products (P) Ltd. v. State of Gujarat [(2015) 6 SCC 439] , while dealing with the exercise of power under Section 156(3) CrPC by the learned Magistrate, a three-Judge Bench has held that: (SCC p. 456, para 22)"

22.1. The direction under Section 156(3) is to be issued, only after application of mind by the Magistrate. When the Magistrate does not take cognizance and does not find it necessary to postpone instance of process and finds a case made out to proceed forthwith, direction under the said provision is issued. In other words, where on account of credibility of information available, or weighing the interest of justice it is considered appropriate to straightaway direct investigation, such a direction is issued.

22.2. The cases where Magistrate takes cognizance and postpones issuance of process are cases where the Magistrate has yet to determine "existence of sufficient ground to proceed'."

In case of Lalita Kumari Vs. State of U.P. reported as (2014) 2 SCC 1, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:(SCC pp.35-36, 41, 58-59 & 61 paras 49, 72, 111 & 115, 120)

111. .....The Code gives to the police to close a matter both before and after investigation. A police officer can foreclose an FIR before an investigation under Section 157 of the Code, if it appears to him that there is no sufficient ground to investigate when he has "reason to suspect the commission of an offence". Therefore, the requirements of launching an investigation under Section 157 of the Code are higher than the requirement under Section 154 of the Code. The police officer can also, in a given case, investigate the matter and then file a final report under Section 173 of the Code seeking closure of the matter. Therefore, the police is not liable to launch an investigation in every FIR which is mandatorily registered on receiving information relating to commission of a cognizable offence.

115. Although, we, in unequivocal terms, hold that Section 154 of the Code postulates the mandatory registration of FIRs on receipt of all

cognizable offences, yet, there may be instances where preliminary inquiry may be required owing to the change in genesis and novelty of crims with the passage of time. One such instance is in the case of allegations relating to medical negligence on the part of doctors. It will be unfair and inequitable to prosecute a medical professional only on the basis of the allegations in the complaint."

e) Cases where there is abnormal delay/ laches in initiating criminal prosecution, for example, over 3 months' delay in reporting the matter without satisfactorily explaining the reasons for delay. The aforesaid are only illustrations and not exhaustive of all conditions which may warrant preliminary inquiry.

120.7. While ensuring and protecting the rights of the accused and the complainant, a preliminary inquiry should be made time-bound and in any case it should not exceed 7 days. The fact of such delay and the causes of it must be reflected in the General Diary entry"

We have referred to the aforesaid pronouncement for the purpose that on certain circumstances the police is also required to hold a preliminary enquiry whether any cognizable offence is made out or not.

Hon'ble Supreme Court has further held that:

27. Regard being had to the aforesaid enunciation of law, it needs to be reiterated that the learned Magistrate has to remain vigilant with regard to the allegations made and the nature of allegations and not to issue directions without proper application of mind. He has also to bear in mind that sending the matter would be conducive to justice and then he may pass the requisite order.

29. At this stage it is seemly to state that power under Section 156(3) warrants application of judicial mind. A court of law is involved. It is not the police taking steps at the stage of Section 154 of the Code. A litigant at his own whim cannot invoke the authority of the Magistrate. A principled and really grieved citizen with clean hands must have free access to invoke the said power. It protects the citizens but when pervert litigations takes this route to harass their fellow citizens, efforts are to be made to scuttle and curb the same.

30. In our considered opinion, a stage has come in this country where Section 156(3) CrPC applications are to be supported by an affidavit duly sworn by the applicant who seeks the invocation of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate. That apart, in an appropriate case, the learned Magistrate would be well advised to verify the truth and also can verify the veracity of the allegations. This affidavit can make the applicant more responsible. We are compelled to say so as such kind of applications are being filed in a routine manner without taking any responsibility whatsoever only to harass certain persons. That apart, it becomes more disturbing and alarming when one tries to pick up people who are passing orders under a statutory provision which can be challenged under the framework of the said Act or under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. But it cannot be done to take undue advantage in a criminal court as if somebody is determined to settle the scores.

31. We have already indicated that there has to be prior applications under Sections 154(1) and 154(3) while filing a petition under Section 156(3). Both the aspects should be clearly spelt out in the application and necessary documents to that effect shall be filed. The warrant for giving a direction that an application under Section 156(3) be supported by an affidavit is so that the person making the application should be conscious and also endeavour to see that no false affidavit is made. It is because once an affidavit is found to be false, he will be liable for prosecution in accordance with law. This will deter him to casually invoke the authority of the Magistrate under Section 156(3). That apart, we have already stated that the veracity of the same can also be verified by the learned Magistrate, regard being had to the nature of allegations of the case. We are compelled to say so as a number of cases pertaining to fiscal sphere, matrimonial dispute/family disputes, commercial offences, medical negligence cases, corruption cases and the cases where there is abnormal delay/laches in initiating criminal prosecution, as are illustrated in Lalita Kumari [(2014) 2 SCC 1 : (2014) 1 SCC (Cri) 524] are being filed. That apart, the learned Magistrate would also be aware of the delay in lodging of the FIR.

Direction has been given by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraph 35 as follows-

35. A copy of the order passed by us be sent to the learned Chief Justices of all the High Courts by the Registry of this Court so that the High Courts would circulate the same amongst the learned Sessions Judges who, in turn, shall circulate it among the learned Magistrates so that they can remain more vigilant and diligent while exercising the power under Section 156(3) CrPC.

Cases decided by Allahabad High Court

A Full Bench of this Court in the case of Ram Babu Gupta v. State of U.P., 2001 SCC OnLine All 264 (decided on April 27,2001) has observed as under:

15-"The position is thus clear. Any judicial Magistrate, before taking cognizance of the offence, can order investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code. If he does so, he is not to examine the complainant on oath because he was not taking cognizance of any offence therein. For the purpose of enabling the police to start investigation it is open to the Magistrate to direct the police to register an First Information Report. There is nothing illegal in doing so. After all registration of an First Information Report involves only the process of entering the substance of the information relating to the commission of the cognizable offence in a book kept by the officer-in-charge of the police station as indicated in Section 154 of the Code. Even if a Magistrate does not say in so many words while directing investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code that an First Information Report should be registered, it is the duty of the officer-in-charge of the police station to register the First Information Report regarding the cognizable offence disclosed by the complaint because that police officer could take further steps contemplated in Chapter XII of the Code only thereafter.

18.It is futher held that Coming to the second question noted above it is to be at once stated that a provision empowering a court to act in a particular manner and a provision creating a right for an aggrieved person to approach a Court or authority, must be understood distinctively and should not be mixed up. While Sections 154, 155 sub-section (1) and (2) of 156, Cr.P.C. confer right on an aggrieved person to reach the police, 156(3) empowers a Magistrate to act in a particular manner in a given situation. Therefore, it is not possible to hold that where a bare application is moved before Court only praying for exercise of powers under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., it will remain an application only and would not be in the nature of a complaint. It has been noted above that the Magistrate has to always apply his mind on the allegations in the complaint where he may use his powers under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. In this connection it may be immediately added that where in an application, a complainant states facts which constitute cognizable offence but makes a defective prayer, such an application will not cease to be a complaint nor can the Magistrate refuse to treat it as a complaint even though there be no prayer seeking trial of the known or unknown accused. The Magistrate has to deal with such facts as constitute cognizable offence and for all practical purposes even such an application would be a complaint.

In paragraph 45, Hon'ble Full Bench has also held that-

45. It is clear from the scheme of Chapter XII of the Code that it is obligatory upon the police to investigate cognizable offence and book the offender, if any. Therefore where the police fails in its duty to register and investigate a cognizable offence, the aggrieved person may complain to the concerned Magistrate. Where the Magistrate receives a complaint or an application which otherwise fulfils the requirements of a complaint--envisaged by Section 2(d) of Cr.P.C. and the facts alleged therein disclose commission of an offence, he is not always bound to take cognizance. This is clear from the use of the words "may take cognizance' which in the context in which they occur in Section 190 of the Code cannot be equated with "must take cognizance'. The word "may' gives a discretion to the Magistrate in the matter. Two courses are open to him. He may either take cognizance under Section 190 or may forward the complaint to the police under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. for investigation. Once he takes cognizance he is required to embark upon the procedure embodied in Chapter XV. On the other hand, if on a reading of complaint he finds that the allegations therein clearly disclose commission of a cognizable offence and forwarding of complaint under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. to the police for investigation will be conducive to justice and valuable time of Magistrate will be saved in inquiring into the matter which was the primary duty of police to investigate, he will be justified in adopting that course as an alternative to take cognizance of the offence himself.

An order under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. is in the nature of a reminder or intimation to the police to exercise their full powers of investigation under Section 156(1) Cr.P.C. such an investigation begins with the collection of evidence and ends with a report or charge-sheet under Section 173. It is obvious that power to order investigation under Section 156(3) is different from the power to direct investigation conferred by Section 202(1). The two operate in distinct spheres at different stages. The power under Section 156(3) is exercisable at a pre-cognizance stage while the other at post-cognizance stage. Once the Magistrate has taken cognizance of the offence, it is not within his competence to revert back to pre-cognizance stage and invoke Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. A great care is, therefore, to be taken by the Magistrate while deciding the course to be adopted. That discretion has to be exercised cautiously with application of judicial mind and not in a routine and mechanical manner.

Prem Narain Gupta v. State of U.P., 1997 SCC OnLine All 618 decided on September 4,1997.

Criminal Procedure Code,1973-section 156(3)-power under- Magistrate may direct the police to register and investigate a case- If a congnizable offence is disclosed- allegation thus made must be specific and not general in nature- prior to direction, no enquiry report is needed.

Paragraph no. 7 Under section 156(3) Cr.P.C., a magistrate may direct the police to register and investigate a case if a cognizable offence is disclosed from the averment made in the application. The allegation must be spacific and not in general in nature.

In the case of Bundhu Shah Vs.1st A.D.J. Siddhartha Nagar and others, reported as (1997) 35 ACC 580-

In the case, Hon'ble Allahabad High Court held that under section 156(3) Cr.P.C., a magistrate may direct the police to register and investigate a case if a cognizable offence is disclosed from the averment made in the application. The allegation must be spacific and not in general in nature.

Prem Wati v. State of U.P., 1998 SCC OnLine All 416:

3. The point raised regarding competence of the complaint is, however, worth consideration. It was contended that when an application is filed for action under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. it was at best a complaint and when the Magistrate directed submission of a police report, it could legally be interpreted that an investigation as thought of under Section 202 Cr. P.C. was really directed. When the Magistrate declined to take action upon receipt of the police report, the order should be read as one under Section 203 Cr. P.C. and, as such, the second complaint was barred. The contention of the learned counsel that the application for action under Section 156(3) must be read as a complaint is not acceptable because the simple prayer therein was not for proceeding under Section 200 Cr. P.C. and, in fact, the court did not proceed under Section 200 as he did not examine the complainant at all. The direction for submission of a police report cannot, therefore, be read as directing an investigation under Section 202 Cr. P.C. and, in fact, the order of the Magistrate makes it clear that he had declined to take action under Section 156(3) only and there is no reference to his refusal to summon the accused persons or dismissing the complaint.

Gulab Chand Upadhyaya v. State of U.P., 2002 SCC OnLine All 1221 :

1. The writ petitioner moved an application dated 23-8-2000 under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. before the Judicial Magistrate alleging that the respondents 4 to 6 herein had threatened and assaulted him, his wife and his brother, and had also damaged his property. It was alleged that the police had refused to register the FIR. It was prayed that a direction be issued by the Magistrate to the police to register the FIR and investigate the case.

2. The Magistrate by his order dated 3-1-2001 directed that the application under Section 156(3) be registered in the Court as a criminal complaint and fixed 5-1-2001 for recording the statement of the complainant under Section 200 Cr. P.C.

3. Instead of giving evidence, as required by the Magistrate, the petitioner preferred a criminal revision against the order dated 3-1-2001, which has been dismissed by the District Judge by judgment dated 11-5-2001.

4. Thus this writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed with the submission that the Magistrate was not right in directing the procedure of a complaint case to be adopted, and that he should have directed the police to register and investigate the case.

SECTION156(3) Cr.P.C-

5. Although it may not be strictly necessary for a complainant to approach the police before filing an application under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. (see para 7 of the Constitution Bench decision of the Supreme Court reported in (1984) 2 SCC 500 : AIR 1984 SC 718, A.R. Antulay v. R.S. Nayak), but as a matter of convenience and expedition, normally every genuine complainant first attempts to lodge an FIR at the police station. Thus most applications invoking Section 156(3) contain the averment that the police have (wrongly) refused to register the FIR of the cognizable offence. Section 154(1) makes it obligatory for officers in charge of police stations to register FIRs of cognizable offences. If the officer in charge of police station refused to do so the complainant has the remedy under Section 154(3) Cr. P.C. to send the substance of the FIR to the Superintendent of Police by post who has the power to investigate the offence himself or depute a subordinate officer to investigate. Experience shows that very few complainants avail of this right under Section 154(3) Cr. P.C. apparently due to lack of knowledge.

6. If even the Superintendent of Police also fails to act, in such a situation a complainant, if he wishes to pursue the matter further, adopts one of the following two alternatives. Either he seeks a direction under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. or he files complaint under Chapter XV Cr. P.C. before the Magistrate.

7. The causes for non-registration of FIR at police stations in cognizable case can vary widely. The overworked police may be indifferent to the common man's woes, the accused may be influential, registering of FIRs may be refused to keep the crime statistics of that police station low. Also, in some cases the police may be aware of the true state of affairs and may refuse to register false or pre-emptive FIRs.

8. In some of such cases the complainants may genuinely require the assistance of the Court by way of a direction to the police to register and investiage the case.

9. It is also possible that in some cases the complainant, with a poor or false case, knows that there is little or no possibility of securing a conviction. Therefore instead of filing a criminal complaint under Chapter XV of Cr. P.C. the complainant seeks the direction under Section 156(3) so that the accused may be arrested by the police and thereby harassed and humiliated.

SUGGESTION TO MAGISTRATES

11. Of late a manifold increase in the applications under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. can be noticed. And almost all orders for investigation passed under that section are challenged by the accused by way of revisions or applications under Section 482 Cr. P.C. or sometimes even writ petitions.

12. In the decision dated 6-12-2001 in Criminal Misc. Application No. 6193 of 2001 ''Masuriyadih v. Addl. District Judge & others', (reported in 2002 Current Bail Cases 36) a single Judge of this Court suggested as follows:

"Orders under Section 156(3) merely mean that an alleged cognizable offence should be investigated. It should not normally be open to the accused to say before the revisional or High Court that the allegation about a cognizable offence should not even be investigated. Thus interference by superior Courts with an order of a Magistrate U/s 156(3) should normally be confined to cases in which there are some very exceptional circumstances.

However, the major problem faced by the accused persons in such cases is the apprehension of arrest pending investigation by the police, and more importantly the apprehension about misuse by the police of this power of arrest. It is this apprehension which is causing the accused to file revisions and thereafter applications U/s 482 Cr. P.C. or writ petitions. Much of this litigation in superior Courts can be curtailed if every Magistrate while passing an order under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. also examines, having regard to the peculiar facts and circumstances of each case, the advisability of including in his order an incidental direction as to whether the power of arrest by the police (U/s 41 Cr. P.C. ?) for the purpose of investigation should be controlled by saying that the police will not make arrest for the purpose of investigation without first obtaining a warrant for the arrest from the Magistrate,

17. Apart from the reasons given above, it is also clear that under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. the Magistrate need not allow the application of the complainant in toto. For example if there are 5 offences alleged, it is legally permissible for the Magistrate to order investigation into say 3 offences only, holding that the other offences are not made out. Again if there are say 5 accused, the Magistrate can validly direct registration and investigation against 3 only saying that no offence is made out against the remaining 2 accused. Thus a limited investigation can also be ordered by the Magistrate. Therefore he can also limit the investigation by controlling the power of arrest which is a part of investigation. Lastly, keeping in view the circumstances obtaining in the present times, and the abolishing of anticipatory bail in Uttar Pradesh, the advantages of taking this view far outweigh the disadvantages, and will also reduce the burden on higher Courts. Therefore it was rightly concluded in Masuriyadin's case (supra) that the restriction could be placed by the Magistrate upon the power of arrest of police.

A FURTHER QUESTION

19. However there is no logical reason why the Magistrate cannot himself make a brief inquiry (akin to Section 159 Cr. P.C.) to satisfy himself about the allegations before ordering registration and investigation of the offence. There appears to be no reason why the trained judicial mind of the Magistrate should not be put to use for curbing frivolous applications under Section 156(3) at the very threshold. However at this stage the Magistrate is not holding trial. Therefore, if he finds the story of the complainant unconvincing, the Magistrate may examine the complainant and/or one or two key witnesses or ask for their affidavits, or ask for a copy of the injury report, or make such other inquiry as the circumstances of the case may require, to lend assurance to the case of the complainant before issuing a direction under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C.

GUIDE TO DISCRETION OF MAGISTRATE

21. In these circumstances, the question arises that when a Magistrate is approached by a complainant with an application praying for a direction to the police under Section 156(3) to register and investigate an alleged cognizable offence, why should he

(A) grant the relief of registration of a case and its investigation by the police under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. and when should he

(B) treat the application as a complaint and follow the procedure of Chapter XV of Cr. P.C.

22. The scheme of Cr. P.C. and the prevailing circumstances require that the option to direct the registration of the case and its investigation by the police should be exercised where some "investigation" is required, which is of a nature that is not possible for the private complainant, and which can only be done by the police upon whom statute has conferred the powers essential for investigation, for example

(1) where the full details of the accused are not known to the complainant and the same can be determined only as a result of investigation, or

(2) where recovery of abducted person or stolen property is required to be made by conducting raids or searches of suspected places or persons, or

(3) where for the purpose of launching a successful prosecution of the accused evidence is required to be collected and preserved. To illustrate by example cases may be visualised where for production before Court at the trial (a) sample of blood soaked soil is to be taken and kept sealed for fixing the place of incident; or (b) recovery of case property is to be made and kept sealed; or (c) recovery under Section 27 of the Evidence Act; or (d) preparation of inquest report; or (e) witnesses are not known and have to be found out or discovered through the process of investigation.

23. But where the complainant is in possession of the complete details of all the accused as well as the witnesses who have to be examined and neither recovery is needed nor any such material evidence is required to be collected which can be done only by the police, no "investigation" would normally be required and the procedure of complaint case should be adopted. The facts of the present case given below serve as an example. It must be kept in mind that adding unnecessary cases to the diary of the police would impair their efficiency in respect of cases genuinely requiring investigation. Besides even after taking cognizance and proceeding under Chapter XV the Magistrate can still under Section 202(1) Cr. P.C. order investigation, even thought of a limited nature (see para 7 of JT (2001) 2 (SC) 81 : ((2001) 2 SCC 628 : AIR 2001 SC 571)

In the case of Chandrika Singh v. State of U.P., reported as 2007 SCC OnLine All 1022, the Allahabad High Court has held as under-

17. In view of this observations of Hon'ble Apex Court on receipt of an application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. the Magistrate may pass an order out right for taking cognizance in the offencc and then proceed in view of the procedure laid down in Chapter XV Cr.P.C. But if the Magistrate is not intending to take cognizance of the offence then he may pass an order for register and investigation of the offence by the police. On receipt of an application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. both the options are open to the Magistrate and if the Magistrate in its discretion adopted any of the course then it cannot be said that the Magistrate has illegally applied his discretion.

24. In Vinay Pandey v. State of U.P. Reported in U.P. Cr.R. Page 670 (sic) the same law has been followed and it has also been held that in an application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. it is not mandatory for the Magistrate to allow every application, Learned Counsel for the revisionist also cited, (1980) 4 SCC 631 : AIR 1980 SC Page 1883 H.S. Bains v. State. It has been held by Hon'ble the Apex Court that "Criminal P.C. (2 of 1974), Ss. 156(3), 173(1), 190(1)(b), 200, 203 and 204 -- Complaint case -- Magistrate directing investigation u/S. 156(3) -- Police Report stating that no case was made out -- Still Magistrate can take cognizance and issue process." This judgment also does not lay down that in application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. the Magistrate is bound to pass an order for register the case and investigation. In this case the police after investigation submitted a report to the effect that no case is made out. Hon'ble Apex Court held that in such circumstances also the Magistrate can take cognizance and issue process as provided under Chapter XV Cr.P.C.

It will also be material to decide that whether an application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. can be treated as a complaint for the purpose of a procedure as provided under Chapter XV or the revisionist is at liberty to allege that if an application u/S. 156(3) is moved then the Magistrate must pass an order for registration of the case and investigation when a cognizable offence is made out and specially when no prayer has been made in the application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. to treat the application as a complaint and it has not been filed in the format of the complaint then the application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. cannot be treated as complaint. I disagree with this position. As has been stated above that an application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. can be treated as a complaint as has been held by Hon'ble Apex Court in Mohd. Yousuf v. Afaq Jahan, (2006 (2) ALJ 8). But in this context another Full Bench decision of this Court is also relevant. The Pull Bench of this court in Ram Babu Gupta v. State of U.P. reported in U.P. Cr.R. at Page 600 (sic): (2001 All LJ 1587) has laid down "Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 -- sections 156(3), 156(2), 156(1), 190 and 202 -- Powers of Court -- The Magistrate may direct the police to register a case and investigate -- Or he may treat the same as a complaint and proceed in matter contemplated in Chapter XV of Code -- He should apply his judicial mind -- Law discussed -- Magistrate if takes cognizance, he proceeds to follow the procedure provided in Chapter XV of Code -- Magistrate may either take cognizance under section 190 or may forward the complaint to police under section 156(3) for investigation."

26. This controversy must come to an end that an application u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. can only be treated as an application for passing an order for registration of the case and investigation and cannot be treated as complaint case. The Magistrate is not bound in each and every case to pass an order to register a case and investigate if cognizable offence is made out. The Magistrate is fully competent to use his judicial discretion in the matter. This is wrong notion that if an application has been moved u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. that the only order can be passed for registration in the matter. The Magistrate has got discretion u/S. 190 Cr.P.C. to take the cognizance directly or to pass an order that the police to investigate and then take cognizance on submissions of a report u/S. 173 Cr.P.C. The Magistrate is also expected to act under some guidelines and it should not be let at the arbitrary discretion of the Magistrate to pass an order or not to pass an order to register the case and investigation u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. Gulab Chand Upadhyaya v. State of U.P., (2002 All LJ 1225) Hon'ble Single Judge of this court laid down the guidelines for the guidance of Magistrate while deciding the application moved u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. and these guidelines cannot be said against any provision of law or check on the judicial discretion of the Magistrate Even Hon'ble Apex Court also held that the Magistrate has got a discretion to pass an order to register the case and investigation u/S. 156(3) Cr.P.C. Or to treat an application as a complaint case.

In the case of Sukhwasi v. State of Uttar Pradesh, reported as 2007 SCC OnLine All 1088, the Allahabad High Court has held as under-

1- The following question, has been referred, for consideration;"Whether the Magistrate is bound to pass an order on each and every application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. containing allegations of commission of a cognizable offence for registration of the F.I.R. and its investigation by the police even if those allegations, prima-facie, do not appear to be genuine and do not appeal to reason, or he can exercise judicial discretion in the matter and can pass order for treating it as "complaint' or to reject it in suitable cases"?

3-...In the case of "Ram Babu Gupta' (2001 (43) ACC 201) : (2001 All LJ 1587), it was held by the Full Bench of this Court that the Magistrate is supposed to exercise its discretion while acting on an application under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C, and he is not supposed to pass an order in a routine manner, and he has to apply his mind. This naturally means that the Magistrate has an option of refusing for registration of the first information report. This will appear from the following observations made in para-17 of "supra' Full Bench judgment;

"In view of the aforesaid discussion on the legal provisions and decisions of the Supreme Court as on date, it is hereby held that on receiving a complaint, the Magistrate has to apply his mind to the allegations in the complaint upon which he may not at once proceed to take cognizance and may order it to go to the police station for being registered and investigated. The Magistrate's order must indicate application .....of mind. If the Magistrate takes cognizance, he proceeds to follow the procedure provided in Chapter-XV of Cr.P.C. The first question stands answered thus."

4. It will further become clear from the following observations made in para-40 of the judgment:

"While resorting to the first mode in as much as directing the police for investigation he should not pass order in a routine manner. He should apply his judicial mind and on a glimpse of the complaint, if he is prima facie of the view that allegations made therein constituted commission of a cognizable offence requiring thorough investigation, he may direct the police to perform their statutory duties as envisaged in law."

That Is the Magistrate still bound to order registration of a First Information Report because the application discloses a cognizable offence? It is obvious that the answer has to be in negative and it cannot, therefore, be said that the Magistrate is bound to order registration of a First Information Report in all cases, where a cognizable offence is disclosed.

12. The next point, which remains for consideration is, the question whether the Magistrate can treat an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint?

13. It is clear from the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case Suresh Chandra Jain v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2001 (42) ACC 459 : ((2001) 2 SCC 628 : AIR 2001 SC 571), that a Magistrate has the authority to treat an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint. This will become clear from the reference in the said report to the case of Gopal Das Sindhi v. State of Assam, AIR 1961 SC 986, in which the following observations were made: (Para 7)

"If the Magistrate had not taken cognizance of the offence on the complaint filed before him, he was not obliged to examine the complainant on oath and the witnesses present at the time of filing of the complaint. We cannot read the provisions of Section 190 to mean that once a complaint is filed, a Magistrate is bound to take cognizance if the facts stated in the complaint disclose the commission of any offence. We are unable to construe the word "may' in Section 190 to mean "must'. The reason is obvious. A complaint disclosing cognizable offences may well justify a police for investigation. There is no reason why the time of the Magistrate should be wasted when primarily the duty to investigate in cases involving cognizable offences is with the police. On the other hand, there may be occasions when the Magistrate may exercise his discretion and "Take' cognizance of a cognizable offence."

14. It becomes clear from the said underlined portion that the Magistrate has the authority to treat an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint. Hon'ble Mr. Justice Vinod Prasad has also referred to the case of Suresh Chand Jain ((2001) 2 SCC 628 : AIR 2001 SC 571), "supra' and has extracted the following portion therefrom in order to take a different view: (para 7):--

"Section 156, falling within Chapter XII, deals with powers of the police officers to investigate cognizable offences. True, Section 202 which falls under Chapter XV, also refers to the power of a Magistrate to "direct an investigation by a police officer". But the investigation envisaged in Section 202 is different from the investigation contemplated in Section 156 of the Code."

15. It has been further held by the Apex Court in the same judgment. "But the significant point to be noticed is when a Magistrate orders investigation under Chapter XII he does so before he takes cognizance."

Scope of Section 156 sub-sec. (3). Cr.P.C. 1. Prior to the Supreme Court decision in Chari's case, there was a controversy as to whether the power to direct investigation under s. 156 (3) was confined to a case under s. 190 (1) (c) i.e., upon his own knowledge or information, but also extended to a case under s. 190 (1) (a0, i.e. when he was move by a complaint. This latter view seems to have been approved by the Supreme Court in Chari's case. In the result, as soon as a petition of compliant is filed, the Magistrate is not bound to take cognizance of the offence but that he may take "action of some other kind, e.g. , ordering investigation under s. 156(3), or issuing a search warrant for the purpose of investigation."

2. The courses open to the Magistrate on receipt of a complaint have been elaborated in a later case of the Supreme Court: Gopal Das Vs. State of Assam AIR 1961 SC 986 and Laxmi Narayan Vs. Narayana (1976) Cri.L.J. 1361 SC

S. 190 (1) (a) does not mean that once a complaint is field, the Magistrate is bound to take cognizance if the fact stated in the complaint discloses the commission of an offence. The word 'may' cannot be construed as 'must'. A complaint disclosing a cognizable offence may well justify a Magistrate in sending the complaint, under s. 156 (3), to the Police for investigation. There is no reason why the time of the Magistrate should be wasted when the duty to investigate in cases involving cognizable offences if primarily with the police.

On the other hand, there may be occasions when the magistrate may exercise his discretion and take cognizance of a cognizable offence, on receipt of a complaint, without police investigation. But if he does so, then he would have to proceed in the manner provided by Chap XVI of the Code.

3. The character of the subsequent proceedings would depend upon the question whether the magistrate has ordered investigation by the police (s. 202], after examining the complainant on oath under s. 200, or without examining the complaint. There was much confusion on this point, which was removed by the Supreme Court decision in Jamuna Singh's case, according to which-

(a) Whether the Magistrate has taken cognizance of an offence would depend upon the puspose for which he was applied his mind and the step taken by him in pursuance thereof.

(b) When a Magistrate applies his mind for the purpose of applying Chap. XVI, he must be held to have taken cognizance of the offence, e.g. when he examines the compliant on oath because the examination of the complainant contemplated by s. 200 is by a Magistrate taking congnizance of an offence on complaint. Hence, where the Magistrate, after examining the complainant, directs investigation by the Police, the report submitted by the Police on such investigation will fall under ss. 202-203, post. When cognizance had been taken by examining the compliant, there was no scope for cognizance being taken afresh of the same offence, after the receipt of the Police Officer's report. Therefore, the subsequent report by the Police officer, even though it purported to be a charge-sheet, should be treated as merely a consequence of the step the Magistrate has taken under s. 202, and not as a 'Police report' under ss. 156 (3), 190 (1) (b).

(c) But if the Magistrate directs Police investigation, without taking cognizance upon examining the complainant on oath, the report submitted by the Police consequent upon such investigation will fall within s. 156 (3), so as to have the effect of a 'police report' for purposes of s. 190 (1) (b).

Steps which a Magistrate may take after receipt of report of Police investigation, under s. 156.

1. A distinction must be made as between (a) the case where a Magistrate orders investigation by the Police, after taking cognizance upon a complaint, under s. 202 (1), and (b) the case where the Magistrate orders police investigation before taking cognizance upon a complaint, under s. 156 (3).

2. It is this latter contingency which is being dealt with in the present context, namely, where on receipt of complaint, the Magistrate orders Police investigation, without taking cognizance of the offence, upon the complaint. In such a case, the Police after making investigation, will submit a report under s. 173 (1), post. Upon receipt of such Police report, the Magistrate has several courses open to him:

(a) He may straightaway issue process against the accused, disagreeing with the police report to the effect that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding further. Even though he disagree with the Police report, in this case, he would be taking cognizance under s. 190(1)(b), and then issue process.

(b) Where he disagrees with Police report that no offence has been disclosed, the Magistrate may take cognizance of the offence under s. 190(1)(a), on the basis of the original complaint and proceed to examine the complainant and his witnesses under s. 200 H.S. Bains Vs. State AIR 1980 SC 1883.

(c) He may agree with the Police report that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding further and drop the proceeding.

In the case of Lalita Kumari Vs. Govt. of U.P. & Ors (decided on 12 November, 2013) [2014(2) SCC 1]

The Constitutional Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as above and guidelines have been given to the police officer regarding recording F.I.R. at the police station.

Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of H. S. Bains, Director, Small Saving-cum-Dy. Secy. Finance v. State (Union Territory of Chandigarh), (1980) 4 SCC 631 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 93 at page 634 in paras 6 and 8 has observed as follows:

6. It is seen from the provisions to which we have referred in the preceding paras that on receipt of a complaint a Magistrate has several courses open to him. He may take cognizance of the offence and proceed to record the statements of the complainant and the witnesses present under Section 200. Thereafter, if in his opinion there is no sufficient ground for proceeding he may dismiss the complaint under Section 203. If in his opinion there is sufficient ground for proceeding he may issue process under Section 204. However, if he thinks fit, he may postpone the issue of process and either enquire into the case himself or direct an investigation to be made by a police officer or such other person as he thinks fit for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding. He may then issue process if in his opinion there is sufficient ground for proceeding or dismiss the complaint if there is no sufficient ground for proceeding. On the other hand, in the first instance, on receipt of a complaint, the Magistrate may, instead of taking cognizance of the offence, order an investigation under Section 156(3). The police will then investigate and submit a report under Section 173(1). On receiving the police report the Magistrate may take cognizance of the offence under Section 190(1)(b) and straight away issue process. This he may do irrespective of the view expressed by the police in their report whether an offence has been made out or not. The police report under Section 173 will contain the facts discovered or unearthed by the police and the conclusions drawn by the police therefrom. The Magistrate is not bound by the conclusions drawn by the police and he may decide to issue process even if the police recommend that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding further. The Magistrate after receiving the police report, may, without issuing process or dropping the proceeding decide to take cognizance of the offence on the basis of the complaint originally submitted to him and proceed to record the statements upon oath of the complainant and the witnesses present under Section 200 of the Criminal Procedure Code and thereafter decide whether to dismiss the complaint or issue process. The mere fact that he had earlier ordered an investigation under Section 156 (3) and received a report under Section 173 will not have the effect of total effacement of the complaint and therefore the Magistrate will not be barred from proceeding under Sections 200, 203 and 204. Thus, a Magistrate who on receipt of a complaint, orders an investigation under Section 156(3) and receives a police report under Section 173(1), may, thereafter, do one of three things: (1) he may decide that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding further and drop action; (2) he may take cognizance of the offence under Section 190 (1)(b) on the basis of the police report and issue process; this he may do without being bound in any manner by the conclusion arrived at by the police in their report; (3) he may take cognizance of the offence under Section 190(1)(a) on the basis of the original complaint and proceed to examine upon oath the complainant and his witnesses under Section 200. If he adopts the third alternative, he may hold or direct an inquiry under Section 202 if he thinks fit. Thereafter he may dismiss the complaint or issue process, as the case may be.

8. In Tula Ramv. Kishore Singh (AIR 1977 SC 2401) the Magistrate, on receiving a complaint, ordered an investigation under Section 156(3). The police submitted a report indicating that no case had been made out against the accused. The court, however, recorded the statements of the complainant and the witnesses and issued process against the accused. It was contended that the Magistrate acted without jurisdiction in taking cognizance of the case as if upon a complaint when the police had submitted a report that no case had been made out against the accused. This Court held that the Magistrate acted within his powers and observed that the complaint did not get exhausted as soon as the Magistrate ordered an investigation under Section 156(3). We are, therefore, unable to agree with the submission of Shri Sibal that the Magistrate acted without jurisdiction in taking cognizance of the offence and issuing process to the accused notwithstanding the fact that the police report was to the effect that no case had been made out.

6. On the perusal of the above-mentioned provisions of Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and precedents of Hon'ble Supreme Court and of Allahabad High Court, it is well settled proposition of law that the concerned Magistrate has on institution of written complaint regarding commission of cognizable offence has the following two options:-

(i) At the pre-cognizance stage- he may direct to concerned police station to register F.I.R. on the basis of facts narrated in the complaint if commission of congnizable offence disclosed prima facie and Investigating officer would conduct the investigation. Thus the Magistrate exercises a very limited power under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and so is it's discretion. It does not travel into the arena of merit of the case, if such case was fit to proceed further.

(ii) At the post cognizance- after taking cognizance, he may adopt procedure of complaint cases provided under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. If the Magistrate is not satisfied with the conclusions arrived at by the Investigating Officer in report submitted under section 173 Cr.P.C. then the Magistrate may take cognizance upon original complaint sent to S.H.O. at pre-cognizance stage and proceed further to examine the complaint under section 200 Cr.P.C. and his witnesses under section 202 Cr.P.C.

7. Rejection of a complaint at the pre-cognizance stage under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. does not debar institution of second regular complaint. It would be post-cognizance stage, if the Magistrate takes cognizance on the original complaint or after rejection at pre-cognizance stage, if second complaint is filed by the complainant. In genuine cases, if averments of the complainant are true and trustworthy or these are found so after preliminary inquiry, then the Magistrate under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. may direct the S.H.O. to register F.I.R. and conduct investigation on the basis of averments of the complaint.

8. The Magistrate may dismiss the complaint under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. if by way of instituting complaint, defence version is created to absolve the complainant from the case registered earlier or on the basis of allegations made in the complainant, if dispute is purely of civil nature or the Magistrate considers that the complaint is false and frivolous. The Magistrate has to power to test the truth and veracity of the allegations levelled against the proposed accused persons and if there is no substance in the averments of the complainant then at pre-cognizance stage, the complaint may be dismissed under section 156(3) Cr.P.C.

9. Likewise, in the facts and circumstances of a particular case, Magistrate may take cognizance on the basis of the complaint instituted before him and may adopt the procedure provided under Sections 200 & 202 of Cr.P.C. and if there is no substance in the prima-facie evidence adduced by the complainant, the complaint may be dismissed under section 203 Cr.P.C.

10. In the present scenario of the society, several false and frivolous complaints are being filed by the unscrupulous litigants. Therefore, heavy duties have been cast upon the concerned Magistrate to exercise above mentioned discretion consciously, expeditiously and judiciously on the basis of the facts and circumstances of each case to ensure that faith of the litigants in the Justice Delivery System of India should be maintained at interest of justice should not be defeated.

11. On the basis of facts narrated in the complaint, the complainant is capable to adduce evidence regarding alleged incident of misappropriation of property of government school and trees, etc., by the respondents. The respondents abused the complainant indicating his caste as per the facts narrated in the complaint. These facts may be proved by adducing evidence by the complainant. This fact that respondents are pressurizing the complainant to compromise the matter is within the knowledge of complainant, it may also be proved by the complainant by adducing evidence.

12. Learned Magistrate has discretion at pre-cognizance stage to direct the concerned S.H.O. for registration of F.I.R. on the basis complaint instituted under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and investigate the matter. In the present case, the learned Second Additional Sessions Judge / Special Judge, (S.C./S.T. Act), Lakhimpur Kheri, at pre-cognizance stage, has not exercised the discretion in favour of complainant to direct the concerned S.H.O. to lodge the F.I.R. and to conduct investigation.

13. On the basis of above discussions, this appeal is liable to be dismissed.

14. Dismissed accordingly.

15. Learned Second Additional Sessions Judge / Special Judge, (S.C./S.T. Act), Lakhimpur Kheri has considered the facts on the basis of which complaint under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was instituted by the complainant. At post cognizance stage the complainant may institute regular complaint on the basis of which, the learned Second Additional Sessions Judge/ Special Judge, (S.C./S.T. Act), Lakhimpur Kheri may record statement of complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and the evidence under Section 202 Cr.P.C. and proceed according to law on regular complaint if instituted by the complainant. The impugned order dated 15.12.2020 will have no effect on the regular complaint, if instituted by the complainant.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Section 3 - Circumstantial Evidence- The circumstantial evidence must be so complete as to exclude every hypothesis other than that of guilt of the accused. In a case based on circumstantial evidence the Courts ought to have a conscientious approach and conviction to be recorded only in case in which all the links of the chain are complete and pointing to the guilt of the accused. Each link unless connected together form a chain may suggest suspicion but the same in itself cannot take place of proof and will not be sufficient to convict the accused.

In a case based on circumstantial evidence the prosecution has to connect all the incriminating circumstances against the accused to form a single chain which would lead to the inescapable conclusion about the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt- Suspicion alone cannot take the place of proof for convicting the accused.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 27- This Section is based on doctrine of confirmation by subsequent facts. That doctrine is that where, in consequence of a confession otherwise inadmissible, search is made and facts are discovered, it is a guarantee that the confession made was true. But only that portion of the information can be proved which relates distinctly or strictly to the facts discovered. The Section is based on the view that if a fact is actually discovered in consequence of information given, some guarantee is afforded thereby that the information was true, and accordingly can be safely allowed to be given in evidence, but clearly the extent of the information admissible must depend on the exact nature of the fact discovered to which such information is required to relate. It cannot be lost sight of that Section 27 of the Evidence Act has frequently been misused by the police against an accused. Court should, therefore, be cautious and vigilant about the application of the above provision. The protection afforded by the provisions under Sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act is sought to be overcome by the police by taking resort to the provisions of Section 27 of the Evidence Act. No doubt, mere recovery in pursuance of Section 27 of the Evidence Act is not a clinching proof for holding an accused guilty. However, there is no doubt that it is good piece of evidence which may be relied upon as a link in the chain of circumstances in the present case for holding the guilt.

Only that part of the disclosure made by an accused can be relied upon as evidence, that distinctly and strictly relates to the recovery. The recovery alone would not be sufficient to secure the conviction, although it would be a good piece of evidence in the links of the circumstances against the accused.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Circumstantial Evidence- Links in chain of circumstances not complete and reliable- The trial judge though had been cognizant of the fact that the present case is a case of circumstantial evidence and not a case of direct evidence has failed to specifically mention in the judgment as to what are the circumstances which the prosecution is relying in the matter and has failed to mention as to how the chain of circumstances get completed by linking each and every link to come to an irresistible conclusion about the guilt of the accused and has convicted him.

Accordingly Criminal Appeal Allowed. (E-2)

1. This Criminal Appeal has been preferred against the impugned judgment and order dated 28.11.2013 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Varanasi in Special Sessions Trial No. 260 of 2011, State of U.P. vs. Kaladhar Chaubey, whereby the appellant has been convicted and sentenced under Section 302 I.P.C. to life imprisonment with fine of Rs.10,000/- and in default of fine to undergo further six months rigorous imprisonment, under Section 201 I.P.C. to three years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.2,000/- and in default of fine to undergo two months rigorous imprisonment and, under Section 3(2)(5) Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 to undergo life imprisonment and a fine of Rs.10,000/- and in default of payment of fine to undergo six months rigorous imprisonment. Sentences have been ordered to run concurrently. It has further been ordered that the period of incarceration prior to the judgment shall be set off against the sentence of imprisonment.

2. The prosecution case as per the first information report lodged by Indrajeet P.W-1 the first informant who is a resident of village Hathiyar, Police Station Cholapur, district Varanasi is that on 27.2.2011 at about 7.00 P.M. Kaladhar Chaubey came to his house and asked about his brother Santosh @ Pillu Rathore (Nut). In the meantime Santosh reached the house and then Kaladhar Chaubey asked him to accompany up to market and on his saying so both proceeded from the house on which the first informant asked Santosh as to where he was going, to which he replied that he is going to the market, where he has some work and will return soon. It is further stated that Santosh did not return till late night to the house and then the first informant and other persons went to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey where he did not give satisfactory reply and stated that Santosh after having tea went back and he does not know about him. It is then stated that then brother of the first informant Indrapal said that yesterday at about 9.00 PM both of them were consuming liquor at the country made liquor shop at Ajgara Gumti and Santosh was with you, on which he said that he does not know about him and went away. It is then stated that the first informant along with his friend and family members then started searching for his brother but could not know anything about him. Later, on 01.3.2011 at about 10.30 A.M. when they were going to the police station they met Shri Niwas Singh on the way who was told about the said incident on which he told that on 27.2.2011 at about 11.00 P.M. when he was returning to his house from brick kiln he saw Kaladhar Chaubey throwing some heavy thing in the well from which a sound of throwing of heavy item came and on seeing him, he quickly ran away and then expressed his suspicion and stated that they may see in the well as to whether Kaladhar Chaubey would have murdered their brother and threw him in the well, on which the first informant and many other persons reached at the well and saw that dead body of Santosh was inside it and foul smell was coming out about which he informed the police of Police Station Cholapur. It is stated that the incident was committed in 'orchard' situated in village Chahin.

3. A first information report was got registered by Indrajeet on 1.3.2011 at about 14.30 hours under Sections 302, 201 I.P.C. and 3(2)(5) Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989. The same is Ex. Ka-3 to the records. An application dated 1.3.2011 was given by Indrajeet for lodging of the F.I.R. which is marked as Ex. Ka-1 to the records and the same has been registered as Case Crime No. 40 of 2011 at Police Station Cholapur, District Varanasi which is having a distance of about six kilometers from the place of occurrence.

4. Santosh Nut@Pulli aged about 27 years is the deceased in the present matter. His post mortem examination was conducted on 2.3.2011 at about 3.30 PM by Dr. K.R.R. The cause of death has been opined to be coma and hemorrhagic shock as a result of head injury and injury to neck.

5. The investigation in the present matter was taken up and charge sheet being charge sheet no. A-45 of 2011 dated 1.3.2011 under Section 302, 201 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)(5) SC/ST Act was submitted against the appellant Kaladhar Chaubey. The same is marked as Ex. Ka-8 to the records.

6. The trial court vide order dated 29.10.2011 framed charges against the accused under Sections 302, 201 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)(v) Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989. Accused pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

7. On 03.3.2011 it is stated that on the pointing out of the accused-appellant a 'gandasa' which was found to be blood stained, one lota of steel and one small glass of steel were also got recovered. A recovery memo regarding the said recovered articles was prepared which is marked as Ex. Ka-2 to the records.

8. Certain articles were sent to Chemical Analyst for which after examination a report dated 14.8.2012 was sent by the Chemical Analyst. While conducting analysis, the Chemical Analyst found blood stains on item no. 1 and 6 being 'gandasa' and a black thread and on item no. 2 to 4 being blood stained mud, shirt and banyan, human blood was found. It was further mentioned in the said report that blood on item no. 1/gandasa, item no. 5/underwear and item no. 6/black thread was found to be disintegrated. In so far as the test of blood on item no. 2 being blood stained mud is concerned, the same could not deciphered. Further it was opined that the blood stains on item no.3 and 4 being shirt and baniyan were insufficient for test of blood group.

9. The prosecution in order to prove its case examined Indrajeet P.W.-1 who is the first informant of the case and brother of the deceased and the witness of taking away of the deceased from his house. Shri Niwas Singh P.W.-2 is a witness of the accused-appellant throwing some heavy thing in the well on 27.2.2011 at about 11.00 P.M. who then tells that he saw the said event to Indrajeet P.W.-1 and his father on 1.3.2011 and then they went to the well and found foul smell coming from the well. Indrapal Singh P.W.-3 who is also the brother of the deceased and Indrapal P.W.-1 is the witness of the accused-appellant taking away the deceased with him on 27.2.2011 at about 7.00 P.M. and further is also a witness of last seen of the accused and the deceased together on 27.2.2011 at about 09.00 P.M. at the country made liquor shop at Ajgara where they were consuming liquor. Arun Kumar Yadav P.W.-4, is a driver by profession and a villager who has stated that in the night of 28.2.2011 at about 12.00 A.M. met the accused-appellant who demanded Rs.500/- from him and was in a drunken condition. Fauzdar Yadav P.W.-5 is the witness to the recovery memo Ex. Ka-2, Basant Lal P.W.-6 is Head Constable who had transcribed the Chik F.I.R. on the basis of an application given by Indrajeet. Dr. K.R.R. Singh P.W.-7 conducted the post mortem examination of the deceased Santosh Nut @Pillu. Ramanand Kushwaha P.W.-8 is the Investigating Officer of the matter who took up the investigation and submitted charge-sheet against the accused-appellant. Vinod Kumar Singh P.W.-9 conducted inquest on the dead body of the deceased and Shyam Dev Yadav P.W.-10 took the articles from Police Station to Forensic Science Laboratory, Varanasi for analysis.

10. The accused-appellant denied the occurrence and claimed false implication due to enmity with the first informant and his family and claimed to be tried.

11. In defense the accused-appellant produced Ram Pyare Pandey as D.W.-1 to show that in the night of occurrence it was dark as it was Dashmi of Krishna Paksha.

12. The trial court after considering the entire evidence on record came to a conclusion that the evidence of witnesses and the entire records goes to show that the accused Kaladhar Chaubey has committed the said offence which has been proved against him beyond reasonable doubts and the prosecution has been successful in proving the case against him and thus, convicted him under the aforesaid sections.

13. We have heard Sri D.K. Singh learned counsel for the appellant and Mrs. Archana Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State of U.P. and have perused the entire record including the impugned judgment and order or conviction.

Sri Rajiv Chaudhary, learned counsel for the first informant has not appeared even when the matter was taken up in the revised list.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant has made the following submissions before us:

(1) The present case is a case of circumstantial in nature and there is no eye witness to the murder of the deceased Santosh @Pillu Rathore (Nut).

(2) The prosecution has not come out with any motive for the accused-appellant to commit the said offence.

(3) Links in chain of events are conspicuously missing and the same even if taken together, did not make a chain so as to implicate the appellant.

(4) The story of last seen of the accused-appellant along with the deceased on 27.2.2011 at about 9.00 P.M. at the liquor outlet at Ajgara Gumti where they are said to have been consuming liquor together is an afterthought as given out in the statement of P.W.-3 Indrapal. The evidence of P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 is not at all trustworthy as their statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. were recorded after 14 days and 16 days respectively after the incident and as such their version as coming forward have seen the light of the day after an unexplained delay.

(5) The appellant is said to be arrested on 1.3.2011 but there is no document whatsoever to show conclusively about his arrest on the same day. He was not produced before the concerned Magistrate within 24 hours of his arrest. The prosecution is not at all sure about the date, time and place of arrest of the appellant. This fact also leads to irresistible conclusion that the accused-appellant was arrested, kept in the police lock up, tortured and then was falsely implicated in the present case.

15. Learned Additional Government Advocate for the State on the other hand opposed the submissions of learned counsel for the appellant by arguing that the presence of P.W.-1 Indrajeet, P.W.-3 Indrapal cannot be doubted for the circumstances of taking away the deceased by the accused-appellant on 27.2.2011 at about 9.00 P.M. as they were natural witnesses present in the house. It was further argued that even the evidence of Shri Niwas Singh P.W.-2 who is the witness of the accused-appellant throwing something in the well in the night of the day when he had taken away the deceased with him and later on recovery of the dead body of the deceased from the same well, also does not leave any doubt about the accused-appellant being involved in the murder. It is argued that the testimony of the said three witnesses are in the nature of true and truthful witnesses. The appeal lacks merit which is liable to be dismissed.

16. P.W.-1 Indrajeet is the first informant of the case and the brother of the deceased. In his examination-in-chief he states that on 27.2.2011 at about 7.00 P.M. the accused-appellant Kaladhar Chaubey resident of the same village who has been identified by him in court, came to his house and inquired about his brother Santosh. In the meantime Santosh came there, he then said to his brother to accompany him to market and both of them went out from the house. He asked his brother Santosh where he was going, on which he stated that he is going to market and will return soon. It is stated that till late night Santosh did not come back to the house and then the first informant and other persons went out to search him. In the said process they went to the house of accused-appellant Kaladhar Chaubey and asked about him, on which he did not give a clear reply and stated that Santosh had tea and then went back. Indrajeet and Indrapal had gone to Kaladhar Chabey. Indrapal then said that both the persons were consuming liquor at around 9.00 P.M. at the liquor outlet at Ajgara Gumti, to which Kaladhar Chaubey said that he does not know about it. Both of them then went back. He states that only a search was being done but they did not go to the police station. Even on the next day search continued. He then states that on 1.3.2011 at about 10.00 A.M. when he and other persons were going to police station then on the way they met Shri Niwas Singh and then they told him the entire story and asked him about it, then he told them that on 27.2.2011 at about 11.00 P.M. while he was returning from the brick kiln he saw Kaladhar Chaubey throwing some heavy thing in the well from which a sound of something being thrown came. He further stated that on seeing him, Kaladhar Chaubey ran towards his house. He states that it may be possible that his brother might have been thrown in the well. On hearing the story the first informant and other persons then returned and reached the well and saw the dead body of their brother in the well where foul smell was coming out. Information was then given to the police station Cholapur. He states to have given an application for lodging of the F.I.R. which was proved by him which is marked as Ex. Ka-1 to the records. He then states that Circle Officer then along with the police force went to the place and got the dead body out from the well and they saw that the neck of it was cut. The neck was mostly cut and little portion remained uncut. He states that later on Circle Officer had got recovered a 'Gandasa' also.

In the cross examination P.W.-1 states that he has three brothers amongst whom he is the eldest, Indrapal who is P.W.-3, is his younger brother and Santosh the deceased was the youngest brother. He stated to be doing business of milching cows and selling cows also. He is pradhan of village. He states that his younger brother Indrapal P.W.-3 also does the work of milching of cow. The deceased Santosh was also involved in the work of milching of cows and was having a good work. He was not of thin built. He was about 5-1/3 feet of height. He did not use to participate in wrestling. The distance between the house of the accused and his house is about 500 meters. In between both the houses there is a temple of Goddess Bhagwati Mai. He further states that he and his brother Indrapal did not use to consume liquor. Santosh used to consume liquor but never before him. On 27.2.2011 at about 7.00 P.M. the accused came to his house and asked about his brother, at that time he was present at his house and Santosh came then only. He came with a bulb. Santosh then went with the accused-appellant. Santosh stated that he is going to market and will come back soon. Kaladhar Chaubey also said that they are going to market and they will come soon. Santosh was wearing a pant and shirt at that time. Shirt was full sleeves having checks on it and pant was light coloured black pant. He states that after the night passed, then they went to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey and prior to that he has not met his brother Indrapal. They did not go to Kaladhar Chaubey's house on 27.2.2011 in the night. They went to Kaladhar Chaubey's house on 28.2.2011 in the night at about 9.00 P.M. Kaladhar Chaubey was present at his house at that time. His father and brother lived separately. When Kaladhar Chaubey was called his father and brother did not come out. Kaladhar Chaubey used to live at some distance from the house of his brother and father in a 'Marai'. He has shown 'Marai' to the Investigating Officer. When he went to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey it was moonlit night (ujali raat) and a bulb was lit. He states that the dead body of his brother was taken out from the well. Panchayatnama was conducted in his presence at the police station. The dead body was sealed at the police station. When the dead body was taken out from the well it had shirt and underwear. The police brought the dead body from there to the police station. Indrapal on 28.2.2011 had told Kaladhar Chaubey that yesterday i.e. 27.2.2011 at about 7.30 P.M. he with his brother were consuming liquor at Ajgara Gumti. He states that Indrapal had disclosed the fact about Kaladhar Chaubey was consuming liquor in front of him and not prior to it. He states that he does not remember as to whether on 28.2.2011 at about 8-9 P.M. Indrapal would have told the same fact to him or not. The well from which the dead body was taken out is about 40 feet deep. He states that he does not remember the circumference of the well. Well is at a corner in the orchard. On the South of the well their is an old brick kiln of Dina Nath Pandey @ Hosa Maharaj which is not in operation. He does not know whether there is brick kiln of Avaninder Singh in Ajgara village near the field of Lalchandra Singh or not. He states that distance between brick kiln of Hosa Maharaj which was not functioning and that of Avaninder Singh which is situated in village Ajgara is about one kilometer. He states that the well from where the dead body of his brother was recovered is a pucca well and on one of its side a platform (chabutara) is made. The distance between his house and the well is about 500 meters and at about 150 meters west side of the well there is a 'bans koth'. He states that there are two 'bans kothis' but he has not counted as to how many bamboos are in it. He states that shop of country made liquor in Ajgara is on main road. He can go to his house from the northern road of Nahar. There are some houses in between Nahar and the country made liquor shop situated in Ajgara. Bans kothi and orchard in which the well is situated belong to Rajendra Singh. He further states that recovery of 'gandasa' was not effected in his presence. He states that on 27.2.2011 he had slept in the night at around 10.30 P.M. His brother Indrapal had come back to the house before he went to sleep. When he had come back to the house after searching his brother Indrapal was present in the house. He did not meet him as they were disturbed. On 27.2.2011 he states that he and his brother were searching separately.

On 28.2.2011 he had gone to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey and had inquired as to where his brother Santosh is. At that time his brother Indrapal had also reached the house of Kaladhar Chaubey. He had gone to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey after searching for whole day on 28.2.2011 and then reached Kaladhar Chaubey's house in the night at about 9-10 P.M. On 27.2.2011 he searched his brother all alone as it was night. He started searching at about 9.00 P.M. He searched his brother near Inter College and also the shops situated adjacent to it. He states that he cannot tell as to who had come on 27.2.2011 after he went to sleep. He states that Santosh did not come to the house on 27.2.2011 after he went to sleep.

He states that he does not know regarding recovery done by Circle Officer of 'Gandasa', 'lota' and 'glass'. He states that Circle Officer did not get the said items recovered in his presence. He states that he got an application for lodging of the F.I.R. transcribed at his house at about 1-2 P.M. The police station is situated at a distance about 13-14 kilometers from his house. He had gone to the police station on his motorcycle. He states that on 28.2.2011 he met his brother Indrapal in the evening as he goes out for distribution of milk since morning. He states that he did not see gandasa and till date not seen it. He states that he did not go to the police station along with dead body.

The witness was then cross examined about his elections in which he states that around 2-1/2 and 3 months back he had contested the elections of village pradhan. His close rival was a Harijan. He does not remember his name. He states that 5-6 people were contesting the elections. The mother of Dhananjay Yadav was the pradhan prior to him. To a suggestion that since the seat was reserved, Dhananjay Yadav made him to contest the election and got him seat of village Pradhan to which he denies. He denies that Dhananjay Yadav did not help him in the elections. He states that Kaladhar Chaubey was not canvassing for him in the elections. The orchard in which the well is situated, has trees of mango and two cot of bamboos. There are about 7-8 trees of mango. Road is situated at a distance of 10-15 meters from the well and runs from east-west. He states that he did not ever go at about 2.00 A.M. in the night to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey.

He states that he does not know as to whether he had told the said fact to the Investigating Officer or not and if the Investigating Officer has not written the date of his going to the house of the accused then he cannot give the reason for it. He states that he did not tell in his statement that on 28.2.2011 he went to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey to know about his brother. He states that while going to the police station for getting the F.I.R. lodged he had met Shri Niwas Singh on the way and said fact has been mentioned in the F.I.R. He states that in the court also he stated the same and has also told the Investigating Officer while his statement was being recorded about the said fact. He states that around 4-5 years back people used the platform of the said well for bath, washing clothes. He got suspicion about some bad event occurring with his brother on 28.2.2011. On 1.3.2011 at about 10-11 A.M. he suspected something wrong to have happened to his brother. On 27.2.2011, 28.2.2011 and 1.3.2011 prior to 10.00 A.M. he had not lodged any missing report regarding his brother. He states that he was searching for his brother and hence, he did not get the missing report lodged.

To a suggestion that his brother often used to be away from the house he denies the same. On 28.2.2011 he states to have gone to the house of accused Kaladhar Chaubey to ask about his brother. Kaladhar Chaubey told him that after having tea his brother had gone back. He states that he did not inquire about his brother from the persons near the place of occurrence. He was searching his brother. He did not ask anybody about his brother. He did not search his brother in the orchard, well and bushes. On 1.3.2011 at about 10.30-11.00 A.M. Shri Niwas Singh told him that on 27.2.2011 when he was returning from brick kiln then he saw Kaladhar Chaubey throwing some heavy thing in the well and after seeing him the accused Kaladhar Chaubey went towards his house. On 01.3.2011 he informed at the police station that the dead body of his brother Santosh@Pillu is in the well situated in the village Chahin. The said fact has been mentioned in the application. He states that except for the said application given by him at the police station no other information was given by him at the police station prior. A suggestion has been given to him that the witness Shri Niwas Singh is a regular visitor of his house and used to take money from him to which he denies. To a further suggestion that Shri Niwas Singh consumes ganja and liquor he denies the same. He further states that he had gone to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey on 27.2.2011 and 28.2.2011. To a suggestion that he is stating a wrong fact that on 27.2.2011 the accused Kaladhar Chaubey came to his house in the evening and took his brother he denies the same. Further to a suggestion that he and his family are involved in selling and slaughtering of cow, buffalo and bullock, he denies the same. Further he denies the suggestion that the accused Kaladhar Chaubey used to resent the same. He states that he went to the police station alone for getting the report lodged. The report was written by him at the house. Dhananjay and Avanindra did not go with him to police station for lodging of the F.I.R. On 1.3.2011 he met with Shri Niwas Singh near the house of Raj Kumar and Ram Adhar. The place where he met him is situated on the pitched road. He states that Shri Niwas Singh comes directly on the chak road from his house. House of witness is not situated in between. He states that Shri Niwas Singh does not consume ganja and liquor. He states that Shri Niwas Singh does not accompany him regularly. He used to met Shri Niwas Singh in marriages etc. and as such he knows him. Shri Niwas Singh does not come to his house, he is of different caste. He states that he does not sell bullocks, buffalos for slaughtering. He is involved in the business of milching. His father also did not use to sell bullocks and buffalos to butchers. He states that his brother Indrapal did not go with him for lodging of the F.I.R.. To a suggestion that as he was involved in giving cows, buffalos and bullocks to butchers which was resented by the accused Kaladhar Chaubey and as such in annoyance the said case has been got registered against him, to which he denies. He further denied the suggestion that he is giving false statement knowingly.

17. Shri Niwas Singh P.W.-2 is a resident of village Udhhorampur, Police Station Cholapur, District Varanasi. He states that he knows Avanindra Singh, who has a brick kiln. Rakesh Singh is a clerk in the brick kiln of Avanindra Singh. He knows Rakesh Singh also. He is his friend. He met Rakesh Singh in Ajgara bazar in the evening at about 5-5.30 P.M. Both had informal talks between them. He reached the brick kiln at about 8.00 P.M. and had his food there only on 27.2.2011. He left the brick kiln at about 11.00 P.M. He states that while on his way, he saw Kaladhar Chaubey near the well and saw him throwing some heavy thing in the well because of which sound came from it. He states that distance between the house of the accused and the well is about 75-100 meters. After hearing sound from the well he went to his house. He was coming to Ajgara on 1.3.2011 and about 100 meters away from Inter College, he met Indrajeet and his father who was along with 2-3 persons. He thus inquired their well being on which they stated that on 27th Kaladhar Chaubey had taken away his brother who had not returned yet back home and they are searching for him. He got suspicion and he told them that on 27th when he was returning back after having his food from brick kiln, at that time he saw Kaladhar Chaubey throwing some heavy item in the well from which sound of throwing had come. Then Indrajeet and his father and 2-3 other persons along with himself went to the well and they saw inside the well and found foul smell coming out from it. They could not see anything inside but foul smell was coming out from it. Later on he went to Ajgara to purchase medicines. After that he does not know as to what happened. The Circle Officer recorded his statement after 14-15 days and had come to his house on 14.3.2011 and interrogated him.

In his cross examination he states that kachcha road from which he was going, is situated at a distance of about 8 hands from the well. He then states it to be around 10-12 hands away. He states that one hand is about 1-1/2 feet. He does not know as to how many mango trees are there in the orchard as he has not counted them. There were bushes also. He did not count the mango trees at the time of occurrence. The distance of well from the brick kiln of Avanindra Singh is about 600-700 meters. On the other side of orchard there are houses of Zalim Singh and others.

He has not seen as to whether any straight road goes from the house of Zalim Singh toward Ajgara. He cannot tell as to whether any main road goes from the house of Zalim Singh to Ajgara and on the same way brick kiln of Avanindra Singh is situated. The brick kiln of Avanindra Singh is in village of Ajgara. He has not seen bamboo trees in the orchard. The house of Mohal Singh is situated at a distance of around 100 meters. He does not know as to whether any house there except for the house of Mohal Singh. The house of Indrajeet, who is the informant, is situated at a distance of around 3-4 hundred meters from the well. The house of accused Kaladhar Chaubey is situated at a distance of around 200-300 meters from the house of Indrajeet. The road on which he was coming back walking merges on a pitched road and at that place there are some shops but he does not know as to whose shops are there. The road for walking merges with the main road and from there while going toward north there is a Harijan Basti but he does not know as to whose house is there.

He states that Udhorampur village is situated on the north side of village Ajgara and straight road joins them. If one goes from brick kiln to village Udhorampur through village Ajgara then distance will increase a lot. From the brick kiln of Avanindra Singh he cannot go to his village on bicycle from the 'merh' of the fields. He cannot tell as to whether a person can go on foot from the 'merh' of the fields. He states that he has not gone on foot from the said route. He states that if one travels from the brick kiln of Avanindra Singh and goes from the west towards orchard and then on the straight road and then towards north, Vishnu Bhagwan temple will come and later on on the east of temple, he will reach his village. He states that he did not use the route daily while coming back from the brick kiln.

He states that he has not seen Santosh @ Pillu before his death. He was a person of short height and healthy but not very healthy. He states that had Santosh @Pillu been alive, he could not throw him alone in the well. He further states that had Santosh @Pillu died he would have thrown him alone in the well. He had seen Kaladhar Chaubey throwing something in the well. He did not see the deceased being dragged near the well. He did not see as to what Kaladhar Chaubey threw in the well. He had heard the sound from the well from a distance of about 10 steps. The night was a moonlit night. He could not tell as to what was the time of moon rise but states that moon was visible. He states that he cannot tell as to whether the incident was of month of Phagun of 10th day of Krishna Paksha. He states that he did not see that moon was rising at that day at 3.11 A.M. To a suggestion that night in which he has seen the occurrence was a dark night and not a moon lit night, he denies the same. He states that he had told everything to the Investigating Officer. He states that he does not remember as to whether he had told the Investigating Officer that there was a distance of 10 steps from the well from where he had heard sound of throwing of something in the well. He states that if the Investigating Officer would have asked him he would have told him. He states that he did not tell the Investigating Officer that while going from village Ajgara Bazar to his village the route for traveling on foot is a kachcha road from orchard in village Chahin towards brick kiln of Avanindra Singh. He met Rakesh Singh on 27.2.2011 at about 5-6 P.M. in Ajgara Bazar. The investigating officer did not ask him as to what time he met Rakesh Singh. On 1.3.2011 at 10.30 A.M. he was going from his house to Ajgara Bazar wherein near village Chahin he met Indrajeet Rathore who was a person of his acquaintance who was accompanied by 2-3 other persons. He did not tell the Investigating officer about the name Prabhu Rathore being with them. In his presence Indrajeet Rathore did not give any information to Chauki Ajgara police station Cholapur about the writing of F.I.R. He did not give any such statement to the Investigating Officer that an information was given by Indrajeet Rathore in his presence to the police Chauki, Ajgara. When he met Indrajeet Rathore on 1.3.2011 Dhananjay Yadav and Avanindra Singh were not with him. He has seen the orchard in day time also. He does not use a spectacle. He can see about 15-20 steps in the night.

He denies the suggestion that in the night of incident he was coming at that place. To a further suggestion that in the night of incident he did not hear any sound from the well, he denies. On 28.2.2011 he did not meet the accused Kaladhar Chaubey. On 28.2.2011 in the morning, afternoon he did not see as to what was there in the well. He further states that on 28.2.2011 in the morning, afternoon and evening he did not tell anyone that he heard the sound of throwing something in the well. He further states that on 27.2.2011 in the night he all of a sudden travelled on the kachche raste. The well was dry and there was no water in it. He states that if in a dried well any heavy thing is thrown then sound will come. He does not know as to how many days before the election of village Pradhan was held. His village and Hathiyar village situated on the borders. Village Ajgara is also a border village of his village. He does not know as to when the elections were held.

He knows the date of incident. To a suggestion that he has been tutored about the date of incident, he states it to be incorrect. He further states that since the date of election was not tutored to him he is unable to tell the same to which he denies. He does not know whether Santosh@Pillu used to consume liquor or not. Santosh @ Pillu did not consume liquor with him. As on date pradhan of village is Indrajeet Rathore. He does not consume liquor. He states that all his property is in the name of his father. He does not know how much land he has. Cultivation is done from a Tractor. To a suggestion that he has sold his land he denies. To a further suggestion that he is managing his house on the expenses given by the first informant, he denies. He states that he has heard the name of Basantu Nut who is the father of Prabhu Nut who is the father of Indrajeet Rathore. He does not know that Basantu and Prabhu used to sell bullocks and buffalos etc. for slaughtering. He does not know that the accused Kaladhar Chaubey used to oppose the same. To a suggestion that in a conspiracy with the informant Indrajeet Rathore and after taking money from him he is falsely implicating Kaladhar Chaubey and giving a false evidence, he denies. Further he states that he does not know as to what Kaladhar Chaubey was wearing when he was standing near the well. To a suggestion that he states that it is incorrect to state that he did not see accused Kaladhar Chaubey at the well.

18. Indrapal P.W.-3 is the brother of the deceased. He is a witness of taking away of the deceased by the accused-appellant on 27.2.2011 at 7.00 P.M. and then they being last seen by him at 9.00 P.M. at the liquor shop at Ajgara consuming liquor. He in his examination-in-chief states that accused Kaladhar Chaubey took away his brother Santosh Rathore from his house at 7.00 P.M. He states that then they waited long for his brother to come back till 1.00-2.00 A.M. and then they went to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey and asked him about the whereabouts of his brother, to which he stated that he does not know. He states to have seen Kaladhar Chaubey and his brother at the country made liquor shop at 9.00 P.M. and they were consuming liquor together. Kaladhar Chaubey then avoided answering to the query and in an irritated condition he states that he does not know as to where he has gone. About the motive he states that his brother and Kaladhar Chaubey had a dispute previously wherein Kaladhar Chaubey had accused his brother of molesting his wife. After asking Kaladhar Chaubey of whereabouts of his brother, they again started searching for him and proceeded towards police station to give an information. He, his brother Indrajeet, Dhananjay Yadav and his father Prabhu Rathore proceeded for police station and on the way near Chahin in Udhorampur, Shri Niwas Singh P.W.-2 met them who was known to his brother. He inquired about their well being on which he was informed about the disappearance of his brother Santosh to which he stated that on 27.2.2011at about 11.00 P.M. he saw Kaladhar Chaubey near the well in the Chak of Markandey Singh throwing some heavy thing inside after which a sound of throwing something was heard. On the said information all the persons went to the well and saw that the dead body of his brother Santosh is inside the well and foul smell is coming on which his brother came back to the house, wrote an application and then went to the police station Cholapur and gave it on which F.I.R. was registered.

Circle Officer had inquired him about the incident. The dead body of his brother was taken out from the well in the presence of Circle Officer and other police personnel. His statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded after 16-17 days of the incident. In the course of examination he states that he did not go to the police station with his brother. He does not know as to how his brother went for getting the F.I.R. lodged as he was disturbed. When his brother came after getting the F.I.R. registered he was present at the house. He is unable to tell as to whether his father had also gone to the police station with his brother for getting the F.I.R. registered, because he was disturbed. He states that he is even disturbed today. When Shri Niwas Singh met him at that time they were not going to the police station along with any application. They were traveling on 2-3 motorcycles. Shri Niwas Singh met them near village Chahin. He was sitting on the motorcycle of his brother. His father was sitting on the motorcycle of Dhananjay Yadav. They were in total four persons. His brother had gone to the house and then got the report registered at 11-12 O'clock. At the time of the report being transcribed he was present there but was disturbed. They had come to the house at about 7.00 P.M. on the day of incident and at that time, Kaladhar Chaubey had taken his brother.

To a suggestion that he was not present at the house on 27.2.2011 at 7.00 P.M. he denies. He states that on 27.2.2011 he went to the country made liquor shop on a cycle. He had seen his brother and Kaladhar Chaubey from the road and had returned back to the house after about 30 minutes. He had seen both the persons going together and drinking liquor together. He reached his house at about 9.30 P.M. At that time his brother who is the first informant was present at the house. He did not talk to his brother and even did not meet him. His brother was awake at that time and he went to sleep. His brother also slept in the house. He woke up at about 2.00 A.M. and went to the house of Kaladhar Chaubey to ask about whereabouts of his brother. Santosh was his brother and used to sleep with him and as such he knew that he did not return. He states to supply milk which he used to purchase and then sell in Varanasi. He used to go to Varanasi from his house at 10.00 A.M. and used to return at about 4.00-5.00

P.M. He used to milch animals in the morning and evening at 7.00 A.M. and about 5.30 P.M. He used to return at about 6.00-7.00 P.M. to his house after milching animals. He had seen Kaladhar Chaubey and Santosh consuming liquor on 27.2.2011 at about 9.00 P.M. from a distance of 15-20 steps. Many other people were also consuming liquor there. About 7-8 people were consuming liquor. He states to have seen the two persons in the light of bulb which was lit by battery as there was no electricity and even moon light was not present. He had seen Kaladhar Chaubey and Santosh consuming liquor from the road. He got disturbed from 27.2.2011 from 2.00 A.M. He searched for his brother on the next morning also. He inquired about his brother from other people on 28.2.2011 in the morning at 7.00 A.M. and they came back. He had searched for his brother in the bushes near the well in village Chahin. On 1.3.2011 the F.I.R. was lodged and prior to it no missing report was lodged. He had gone to house of Kaladhar Chaubey alone at 2.00 A.M. He does not remember as to whether he had told his brother Indrajeet that he had seen his brother and Kaladhar Chaubey on 27.2.2011 consuming liquor. He states that his brother was consuming liquor at 9.00 P.M. on 27.2.2011 with Kaladhar Chaubey and not at 7.00 P.M.

He states that about one year back Kaladhar Chaubey had accused Santosh of teasing his wife at his door once. The allegation was leveled at 9.00 P.M. He had heard about the fact that of leveling of the said allegation. Prior to leveling of the allegation Kaladhar Chaubey and Santosh had some fight between them. No mar-pit took place but they abused each other. No report was registered. He states that on 28.2.2011 he did not search the well from where the dead body of his brother was recovered. He had searched the bushes around the well while searching his brother. House of Dhashrath Yadav, Mohala Yadav and Siri Harijan is situated at 50-60 meters from the well. There is a kachcha rasta on the south of the well which joins the main pucca road which is four meters away. The well from which the dead body was recovered was dry. On the south of the well the houses of workers of brick kiln are situated and on one corner about 60-70 meters away the house of Kaladhar Chaubey is situated. His house is at a distance of about 700-800 meters from the well. The dead body of his brother was taken out from the well in his presence at about 12.00 P.M. Circle Officer was not present at that time. Station House Officer was present. The liquor shop is about one kilometer away from the well. He had seen his brother at the liquor shop and after that his dead body was recovered. The accused and the deceased were consuming liquor on the same table. He saw them while going on cycle. He did not see as to where the deceased and the accused went after consuming liquor. He was in Varanasi on 27.2.2011 and as such is unable to tell as to whether his brother had taken food or not.

Prior to the incident the election of Village Pradhan took place. His brother Indrajeet was a candidate therein. To a suggestion that the accused Kaladhar Chaubey was canvassing and helping his brother in the elections, he denies. He states that Kaladhar Chaubey used to oppose his brother and did canvassing for someone else. He states that he had told the Circle Officer that the accused Kaladhar Chaubey had taken his brother in his presence, if same is not written in his statement he cannot tell the reason for it. To a suggestion that his brother Santosh was seen in a compromising position with the lady in the house and thereafter he murdered his brother and threw his dead body in the well he denies. He further denies that Kaladhar Chaubey is being falsely implicated due to enmity. He states that the liquor shop used to close at about 9.00 P.M. He denies the suggestion that the accused Kaladhar Chaubey did not take his brother on 27.2.2011 at about 7.00 P.M. in his presence. He further denies the suggestion that he did not see his brother consuming liquor with the accused Kaladhar Chaubey on 27.2.2011. He states that he has neither friendship nor enmity with Kaladhar Chaubey. His brother Santosh was not habitual to liquor but used to consume it off and on. To a suggestion that the accused Kaladhar Chaubey is being falsely implicated and false statement is being given, he denies.

19. Arun Kumar Yadav P.W.-4 is a driver by profession and drives a Tata Sumo vehicle. He states that sometimes he used to send Kaladhar Chaubey for driving the vehicle. He met Kaladhar Chaubey on 28.2.2011 at about 12.00 P.M. He states that Kaladhar Chaubey had gone to him and had asked for Rs.500/- to which he asked as to why it is needed. At that time he was drunk. He had told him that last year Santosh had molested his wife to which he has done a very wrong thing. He was asked about it to which he started crying. Kaladhar Chaubey had even previously taken money from him many times but never used to return and used to make excuses for not returning. He went to his sasural at about 5.00 A.M. to drop his wife and children and returned at about 11.30 A.M. and saw that there was a commotion in the village and he was told that the dead body of Santosh has been recovered from the well. Then he realized that Kaladhar Chaubey was referring about something and it is he who has done the incident. His statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded on 20.3.2011.

In his cross-examination he states that Kaladhar Chaubey came to his house on 28.2.2011. He was badly drunk and was not in a fit state of mind. He went to his sasural on 1.3.2011 at about 4.00 A.M. He and his family used to live in sasural. He used to drive Tata Sumo in Varanasi and lived in the house. He used to come and go to sasural. Kaladhar Chaubey was previously employed in C.I.S.F. He has four bighas of land in the village but does not know how much land Kaladhar Chaubey has. To a suggestion that Kaladhar Chaubey never drove his vehicle, he denies. To a suggestion that Kaladhar Chaubey has more property than him, he denies. Further in his cross-examination there is nothing much relevant stated therein. To a suggestion that he under pressure of his patidar and of the first informant is deposing falsely against Kaladhar Chaubey, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that he lives in his sasural in Chandauli.

20. Faujdar Yadav P.W.-5 is a witness of recovery of a 'gandasa' stated to have been recovered on the pointing out of the accused-appellant Kaladhar Chaubey on 3.3.2011 in his presence and also the witness of recovery of blood stained mud. The said recovery memo of recovered articles has been proved by him and marked as Ex. Ka-2 to the records.

In his cross-examination he states that gandasa which was recovered, was blood stained and blood was present on both sides. He states that he was taken by the Investigating Officer while going to recover the gandasa. He states that the lota and steel glass were not sealed and the said two articles are easily available in the market. He states that no lota and glass were recovered from the bans koth at that time. He states that the said gandasa was got recovered from the orchard situated in Chahin which was taken out and given by the accused. He further states that one lota and steel glass were also taken out and given by the accused from the bamboo shrubs which were stated to have been used for consuming liquor. Only drag injury is present on back. He states that he is unable to tell as to whether the injuries received by the deceased were from one weapon. Cut wound and lacerated wound can come from one weapon. Injury nos. 5 and 8 can be caused from sharp edged weapon. If the sharp edged weapon is used from its back then injury nos. 9, 10 and 11 can be caused. He states that minor injuries of the deceased could have been caused when he was in a sitting position. Injury nos. 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 were minor injuries. To a suggestion that the death of the deceased could have been caused on 27.2.2011 at about 9.30 P.M. he denies.

23. Ramanand Kushwaha P.W.-8 is Circle Officer and Investigating Officer of the matter. He states in his examination-in-chief that on 3.3.2011 on the pointing out of the accused in the presence of witness Ritesh Kumar Singh, he got the recovery done. He had then moved an application for getting the statement of accused under Section 164 Cr.P.C. recorded. He did the other formalities, interrogated the witnesses and then filed the charge-sheet bearing no. A45/11 dated 20.3.2011 against the accused-appellant. He had prepared site plan of the place from where the dead body was recovered and the place of recovery of weapon of assault which was marked as Ex. Ka-6 and 7 to the records. The memo of recovery of blood stained mud, lota, steel glass and gandasa done on the pointing out of the accused was marked as Ex. Ka-2 to the records. The charge-sheet was marked as Ex. Ka-8 to the records.

He states to have sent the blood stained mud, plain mud and blood stained clothes of the deceased to the Forensic Science Laboratory,Varanasi. In his cross-examination he states that no report of Forensic Science Laboratory, Varanasi is on record. He states that the date of arrest of Kaladhar Chaubey is not mentioned in the case diary. He states that on seeing the case diary though Kaladhar Chaubey was arrested on 1.3.2011 by Chauki Incharge but he does not know as to from where he was arrested and at what time he was arrested. He states that from the records and on seeing the arrest memo it is apparent that the accused was arrested from Ajgara Gumti but the date and time of arrest is not mentioned. He states that the G.D. of arrest is on the records. He received information about the arrest of Kaladhar Chaubey on 3.3.2011 but does not remember the time. He does not remember as to whether he had recorded the said information anywhere or not. He had interrogated Kaladhar Chaubey at the police station on 3.3.2011. The same is not mentioned in the G.D. Kaladhar Chaubey was taken from the police station on 3.3.2011 and the recoveries were effected. He does not remember the names of the persons accompanying him while going for recovery.

He states that he does not remember as to when he reached the orchard which is the place of occurrence and further states that it may be after 4.00 P.M. To a suggestion that the inquest was conducted at the police station in the presence of the informant he denies. He further denies that the dead body of the deceased was sealed at the police station. He states that in the inquest name of the accused has not been mentioned which was left out by inadvertence. The name of the accused being left out by inadvertence, is not mentioned in the statement of the person conducting inquest. He states that in the inquest the date and time of its start and end is not mentioned. To a suggestion that till the time the inquest was conducted, the name of the accused did not surfaced he denies. He states that he does not know as to whether Sub-Inspector Vinod Kumar Singh knew the name of the accused or during inquest the name was disclosed. He states to have sent blood stained mud collected by him and Sub-Inspector Vinod Kumar Singh to the Forensic Science Laboratory, Varanasi. He states that he does not remember as to whether the fingerprints on the lota and steel glass and the fingerprints of accused were collected or not. To a suggestion that after doing inquest in consultation with the first informant the F.I.R. has been registered, he denies. He states that recovery memo which is Ext. Ka-2, is not in his handwriting. The same is in the handwriting of Constable Moharir Ram Prakash Pandey which was dictated to him.

To a suggestion that Kaladhar Chaubey was called from his house and with the help of the first informant 'gandasa' was planted and under the pressure of the first informant in a forged manner recovery on the pointing out of the accused was shown, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that under pressure and help of the first informant false evidence has been created against the accused and he has been implicated in the present matter. He states to have reached the place of occurrence on 1.3.2011. The dead body was not taken out in his presence. He does not remember as to whether the dead body was in the well or not when he reached there. He reached the place of occurrence with the first informant. He does not remember as to whether he had seen the dead body in the well or not. To a suggestion that he has prepared a false statement of Shri Niwas Singh in the matter, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that under pressure and influence of the first informant during investigation, Shri Niwas Singh has been falsely introduced as a witness as he is a known person of the first informant. To a suggestion that the first informant, his family members and his friends have murdered Santosh and have thrown the dead body in the well, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that the accused Kaladhar Chaubey used to oppose the first informant as he was involved in the sale of animals for slaughtering and as such he has been implicated in the matter and false charge-sheet has been submitted, he denies the same.

24. Vinod Kumar Singh P.W.-9 was posted as Chauki Incharge at Ajgara on 1.3.2011. He states to have conducted the inquest on the dead body of the deceased Santosh@Tillu. In his examination-in-chief he states that he made 5 persons as Panch witnesses to the inquest who opined that the death of the deceased was from some sharp edged weapon. His opinion also matched with the opinion of Panch witnesses. The dead body was sealed after inquest and was sent for post mortem examination. The inquest is marked as Ex. Ka-9 to the records. He further proves the other documents prepared by him for getting the post mortem done which were marked as Ex. Ka- 10, 11 and 12 to the records.

In his cross-examination he states that he had started the inquest on 1.3.2011 at about 12.00 and concluded it at about 2.00 P.M. The said fact is not mentioned in the inquest which is correct. He had arrested the accused Kaladhar Chaubey along with other team members which was constituted by Circle Officer on 1.3.2011. He had arrested Kaladhar Chaubey from village Chahin but he does not remember the place and the time of arrest. He states that at the time when he had conducted the inquest, the copy of F.I.R. was not with him. The first informant had given information which was a written information. In the written information the name of the accused was mentioned. He states that the said information is on record and is Ex. Ka-1. He does not know when the same was given at the police station. The said information was not brought by him while going for inquest. When he had reached the well the dead body was in it. The well was dry.

He states to have written in the inquest that the dead body is lying in the well in Chahin on the basis of a written report Ex. Ka-9 given by the first informant. The F.I.R. was not with him when he started the inquest but had reached him before concluding it. He stated that outside the well there was drag mark up to a long distance which appears to have been tried to be removed. To a suggestion that he did not do the inquest at the place where the dead body was recovered, he denies. He further denies the suggestion that under the influence of the first informant he is giving statement to falsely implicate the accused and get him punished.

25. Shyam Deo Yadav P.W.-10 was posted as a Constable at Police Station Cholapur, District Varanasi on 14.03.2011. He took the said recovered Gandasa, blood stained mud, plain mud and the blood stained clothes of the deceased along with a docket to the Forensic Science Lab, Police Line, Varanasi. He proves the said docket which is signed by the then Chief Judicial Magistrate and then Circle Officer and has his specimen signatures. The same is marked as Exb: Ka-9 to the records.

In his cross-examination, he states that the articles which were sent for chemical analysis were taken by him to the Court of the Chief Judicial Magistrate and on the same day his ravangi was noted in the GD at the police station. The said GD is not enclosed with the records. The articles were received by him from the police station after taking them out from the malkhana of the police station along with the sample seal. The sample seal is not on record. The articles which were sent for analysis were not opened and seen by the Chief Judicial Magistrate but were sealed separately and stitched by wrapping them in different clothes. The recovered articles were sealed separately in different clothes. Four bundles were taken by him for chemical analysis. The number of seals were the same as number of bundles of the articles. He does not remember the number of seals of the Chief Judicial Magistrate and the Circle Officer. He had deposited both the seals in the Forensic Science Lab, Varanasi. The docket Exb: Ka-9 was prepared by the Circle Officer in his presence. His signatures were got done on the docket by the Circle Officer before him. He had taken the docket and the articles to the Chief Judicial Magistrate. The Circle Officer had not gone. To a suggestion, he did not do as he has stated in his statement, he denies. To a further suggestion, that under the pressure of the Circle Officer he is not telling the correct thing in Court, he denies.

26. The accused in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has denied the prosecution case against him. He has further stated that the first informant and his family members were involved in the sell and purchase of cows and buffaloes for slaughtering. His father is a pujari and he used to oppose the act of the first informant and his family members and due to the said reason they have falsely implicated him. He states that he neither murdered Santosh nor concealed his dead body. He states that he was arrested on 01.03.2011 at 2 PM and was tortured at the police station and under the pressure of the first informant he has been falsely implicated.

The same is mentioned at page 36 of the Panchang. He has filed the original Panchang which is Ex. Kha-1 to the records.

In his cross-examination, he states that on a dark night when the sky is clear and stars are present, a known person can be identified from 10 steps. He states that he knows Kaladhar Chaubey. He does not know Santosh @ Pillu who has been murdered. The distance from village Asgara to village Hatiyar is about one km.

He is living since birth in village Hatiyar. The accused and the deceased are also residents of village Hatiyar. He states that he does not know Santosh @ Pillu and cannot say as to whether he has been murdered or not. He has information that Kaladhar Chaubey is in jail. He does not know that Kaladhar Chaubey was working in B.S.F. and had run away from there. He does not know that there is a liquor shop in the market in Hatiyar. There are 2-4 shops in the market in Hatiyar. He states that he is giving statement on the basis of Mahavir Panchang. He has passed primary and has knowledge of Vedas. When he had passed class V, at that time Sanskrit was not taught up to class V. He states that on 27.02.2011 up to 5.48 was Mool Nakshatra and then was Purvasadha at 3.11 AM which was Purvasadha Nakshatra. He states that he was not present when the recovery of Gandasa was done. To a suggestion, that as he has not read Sanskrit and as such he cannot see the panchang, he denies the same.

28. The present case is a case of circumstantial evidence. The rules to be followed and things to be judged in a case of circumstantial evidence are trite.

29. There is no eye witness of the incident and the entire case of the prosecution rests on circumstantial evidence.

30. The case of Queen-Empress Vs. Hosh Nak : 1941 All LJ 416 is worth referring at this juncture which is a locus classicus on the issue of circumstantial evidence. This is a very old decision which was printed in the Allahabad Law Journal after sixty years of its decision on the recommendation of Rt. Hon'ble Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru. In the case of Hosh Nak (supra), it has been held that to prove an offence by the circumstantial evidence four things are essential. They are:

(1) : That the circumstance from which the conclusion is drawn be fully established.

(2) : That all the facts should be consistent with the hypothesis.

(3) : That the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) : That the circumstances should, to a moral certainty, actually exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved.

31. Then in the case of Hanumant, son of Govind Nargundkar Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh : AIR 1952 SC 343 it has been held in para 10 by the Apex Court as under:

"10. .....It is well to remember that in cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established, and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused....."

32. Thereafter, in the case of Khasbaba Maruti Sholke Vs. The State of Maharashtra : (1973) 2 SCC 449 it was held by the Apex Court as under:

"18. In order to base the conviction of an accused on circumstantial evidence the court must be certain that the circumstantial evidence is of such a character as is consistent only with the guilt of the accused. If, however, the circumstantial evidence admits of any other rational explanation, in such an event an element of doubt would creep in and the accused must necessarily have the benefit thereof. The circumstances relied upon should be of a conclusive character and should exclude every hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused. The circumstances must show that within all reasonable probability the impugned act must have been done by the accused. If two inferences are possible from the circumstantial evidence, one pointing to the guilt of the accused, and the other, also plausible, that the commission of the crime was the act of some one else, the circumstantial evidence would not warrant the conviction of the accused....."

33. The circumstantial evidence must be so complete as to exclude every hypothesis other than that of guilt of the accused.

34. In the celebrated case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra : (1984) 4 SCC 116 the Apex Court has described five principles of circumstantial evidence as the pillars on circumstantial evidence. The five principles have been narrated in para 153 which is extracted herein :

"153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned "must or should' and not "may be' established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between "may be proved' and "must be or should be proved" as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra : [(1973) 2 SCC 793; para 19, p. 807] where the following observations were made : "Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between "may be' and "must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable and any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty.

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as to leave by reasonable grounds for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

Further in paragraph 154 of the said judgment it was held as under:

"154. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence".

35. The cardinal principle of criminal jurisprudence is that the prosecution has to stand on its own legs and it should prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. Doubt must be of a reasonable man and reasonableness of doubt must be commensurate with the nature of the offence to be investigated.

36. Before appreciating the evidence on record it is necessary to point out Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 which reads as under:

"27: How much of information received from accused may be proved:

Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered may be proved."

37. It is clear from the reading of Section 27 of the Evidence Act that this Section is based on doctrine of confirmation by subsequent facts. That doctrine is that where, in consequence of a confession otherwise inadmissible, search is made and facts are discovered, it is a guarantee that the confession made was true. But only that portion of the information can be proved which relates distinctly or strictly to the facts discovered.

38. In the case of Ram Kishan Mithan Lal Sharma Vs. State of Bombay : AIR 1955 SC 104, it is held by the Apex Court that Section 27 of the Evidence Act is an exception to the rules enacted in Sections 25 and 26 of the Act which provide that no confession made to a police officer shall be proved against a person accused of an offence and that no confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a police officer unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against such person. Where, however, any fact is discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence in the custody of a police officer, that part of the information as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered can be proved whether it amounts to a confession or not.

39. In the case of Pulukari Kottaiah Vs. King Emperor : AIR 1947 PC 67 it has been held as follows : "the condition necessary to bring S. 27 into operation is that the discovery of a fact must be deposed to, and thereupon so much of the information as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered may be proved".

40. The Section is based on the view that if a fact is actually discovered in consequence of information given, some guarantee is afforded thereby that the information was true, and accordingly can be safely allowed to be given in evidence, but clearly the extent of the information admissible must depend on the exact nature of the fact discovered to which such information is required to relate.

41. In the case of Delhi Administration Vs. Balkrishan : AIR 1972 SC 3 the Apex Court has held that Section 27 of the Evidence Act is by way of a proviso to Sections 25 and 26 and a statement by way of confession made in police custody which distinctly relates to the fact discovered is admissible is evidence against the accused.

42. It cannot be lost sight of that Section 27 of the Evidence Act has frequently been misused by the police against an accused. Court should, therefore, be cautious and vigilant about the application of the above provision. The protection afforded by the provisions under Sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act is sought to be overcome by the police by taking resort to the provisions of Section 27 of the Evidence Act. The validity of Section 27 of the Evidence Act has been upheld by the Apex Court.

43. The recovery of the dead body on the pointing out of the appellant has been relied upon by the prosecution as one of the evidences against him.

44. No doubt, mere recovery in pursuance of Section 27 of the Evidence Act is not a clinching proof for holding an accused guilty. However, there is no doubt that it is good piece of evidence which may be relied upon as a link in the chain of circumstances in the present case for holding the guilt.

45. It is a well settled principle of law that a conviction cannot be founded on circumstantial evidence alone unless it cannot be explained on any hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused.

46. It is well settled that in a case which rests on circumstantial evidence, law postulates two fold requirements:-

(i) Every link in the chain of the circumstances necessary to establish the guilt of the accused must be established by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt.

(ii) All the circumstances must be consistent pointing only towards the guilt of the accused.

47. In the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra) has enunciated the aforesaid principle as under:-

"The normal principle in a case based on circumstantial evidence is that the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established; that those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the Accused; that the circumstances taken cumulatively should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the Accused and they should be incapable of explanation on any hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the Accused and inconsistent with his innocence".

48. It is well settled that in a case based on circumstantial evidence the Courts ought to have a conscientious approach and conviction ought to be recorded only in case in which all the links of the chain are complete and pointing to the guilt of the accused. Each link unless connected together form a chain may suggest suspicion but the same in itself cannot take place of proof and will not be sufficient to convict the accused.

49. In cases where the evidence is purely circumstantial in nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is sought to be drawn must be fully established beyond any reasonable doubt and such circumstances must be consistent and must form a complete chain unerringly point to the guilt of the accused and the chain of circumstances must be established by the prosecution. Referring to several earlier decisions the Apex Court in the case of Geejaganda Somaiah v. State of Karnataka : (2007) 9 SCC 315 in para 15 held as follows:-

"15. Sir Alfred Wills in his admirable book Wills' Circumstantial Evidence (Chapter VI) lays down the following rules specially to be observed in the case of circumstantial evidence: (1) the facts alleged as the basis of any legal inference must be clearly proved and beyond reasonable doubt connected with the factum probandum; (2) the burden of proof is always on the party who asserts the existence of any fact, which infers legal accountability; (3) in all cases, whether of direct or circumstantial evidence the best evidence must be adduced which the nature of the case admits; (4) in order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation, upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt; and (5) if there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted."

The same principle has been reiterated in a catena of later judgments.

50. The law regarding regarding evidence of last seen has been reiterated by the Apex Court in the case of Shailendra Rajdev Pasvan Vs. State of Gujarat : AIR 2020 SC 180 [2019 SCC Online SC 1616] which is quoted herein:

"14. Another important aspect to be considered in a case resting on circumstantial evidence is the lapse of time between the point when the accused and deceased were seen together and when the deceased is found dead. It ought to be so minimal so as to exclude the possibility of any intervening event involving the death at the hands of some other person. In the case of Bodh Raj Alias Bodha v/s State of Jammu and Kashmir, (2002) 8 SCC 45, Rambraksh v/s State of Chhattisgarh, (2016) 12 SCC 251, Anjan Kumar Sharma v/s State of Assam, (2017) (6) SCALE 556 following principle of law, in this regard, has been enunciated:-

"The last seen theory comes into play where the time gap between the point of time when the Accused and deceased were seen last alive and when the deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than the Accused being the author of crime becomes impossible. It would be difficult in some cases to positively establish that the deceased was last seen with the Accused when there is a long gap and possibility of other persons coming in between exists. In the absence of any other positive evidence to conclude that Accused and deceased were last seen together, it would be hazardous to come to a conclusion of guilt in those cases"."

51. The circumstances as being relied by the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused/appellant are as follows:-

a) The taking away of the deceased Santosh @ Pillu on 27.02.2011 at 7 PM from his house.

b) The accused / appellant being last seen in the company of the deceased on 27.02.2011 at 9 PM at the liquor outlet at Ajgara Gumti and consuming liquor together.

c) Shri Niwas Singh P.W.-2 saw the accused / appellant throwing some heavy thing in a well on 27.02.2011 at about 11 PM and on seeing him ran away. This information was told by him on 01.03.2011 to the first informant Indrajeet P.W.-1.

d) The recovery of blood stained Gandasa which is stated to have been used as the weapon of assault, a lota and a small steel glass on the pointing out of the appellant on 03.03.2011 stated to have been used for consuming alcohol and the recovery of the dead body on the pointing out of the accused.

e) The statement of Arun Kumar Yadav P.W.-4 in the nature of an extra-judicial confession of the accused to him.

52. In so far as the fact regarding the taking away of the deceased on 27.02.2011 at 7 PM and the time since death as noted by the doctor in the postmortem examination report being 1-3/4 days but subsequently, the doctor who was examined as P.W.-7 being Dr. K.R.R. Singh, stating in his cross-examination that the death of the deceased could also have occurred on 28.02.2011 at 9:30 PM would lead to a conclusion that from the time of the deceased being taken away, the probable time of his death could be about 26 hours thereafter. The evidence regarding the accused being in the continuous company of the deceased is not on record.

53. The evidence of Shri Niwas Singh stating about witnessing the deceased throwing some heavy thing in the well on 27.02.2011 at about 11 PM and then the accused ran away after seeing him which was told by him to the first informant on 01.03.20111 is a conduct not befitting of prudent man. The silence of Shri Niwas Singh for about 02 days in disclosing the fact of the accused throwing something heavy in the well to which he was a witness and had heard the sound of something falling in the well leaves much to be commented upon. The conduct of the accused, if the version of Shri Niwas Singh is taken taken to be true, that the accused was throwing something heavy in the well and then started running away on seeing him, would necessarily attract the curiosity of a prudent person in normal circumstances to further explore the situation. The same was not done by him and he remained ignorant and silent about it for 02 days. His testimony is thus not safe to be believed.

54. In so far as the recovery of the dead body on the pointing out of the accused / appellant, the recovery of the blood stained Gandasa and also of a lota and a steel glass on the pointing out of the accused / appellant is concerned, it is necessary to first deal with the arrest of the accused and the said recoveries under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, would then have relevance. The police officer who arrested the accused / appellant is Vinod Kumar Singh P.W.-9. He states in his cross-examination to have arrested him on 01.03.2011 but states that he does not remember as to from which place and at what time he was arrested. Subsequently, Ramanand Kushwaha P.W.-8 who was the then Circle Officer and the Investigating Officer of the matter was examined at length and meticulously, in so far as it related to the arrest of the accused / appellant is concerned. He states in his cross-examination that the accused / appellant was arrested on 01.03.2011 by the Chowki in-charge but he does not from where and when he was arrested. He places a document being the arrest memo of the accused on record which is paper No. 7 Ka/3 and states that the date and time of arrest is not mentioned therein.

He states that he received information about the arrest of the accused on 03.03.2011 and then he interrogated him on the same day but did not make any entry in the GD about the same. He then states about the accused giving his disclosure about the weapon of assault and other articles and the place of throwing of the dead body. The accused in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has specifically stated that he was called at the police station on 01.03.2011, was tortured at the police station and has been falsely implicated in the present matter. From the evidence and documents on record, the fact about the arrest of the accused on 01.03.2011 is undisputed. It is further not disputed that the accused was kept at the police station up to 03.03.2011 after which the recoveries under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act were affected. The detention of the accused for 02 days at the police station is contrary to law. The possibility as such of recoveries being planted and then the same being shown as recoveries under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, cannot be ruled out.

55. There is nothing on record to show that after the accused being arrested on 01.03.2011 which is admitted position he was produced before the nearest Magistrate as per the legislative requirement within 24 hours. Even further, the recovery of the Gandasa which is said to be blood stained and is said to have been sent to the forensic lab for examination along with blood stained and plain mud and the blood stained clothes of the deceased does not get corroborated for its use as the report of the forensic expert which is on record states blood present on it is disintegrated and as such the use of said weapon for murder is not corroborated. Further, the evidence as relied by the prosecution of the accused giving some statement in the form of extra-judicial confession given by the accused-appellant to Arun Kumar Yadav P.W.-4 is concerned, the same is vague and a conclusion is being tried to be taken out from it wherein it is said that the accused had stated him that he has done a big mistake after stating about the deceased molesting his wife. The said witness states that the accused came to him on 28.02.2011 and his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded by the Investigating Officer on 20.03.2011. His silence, if what he has said to be taken true, of about 21 days in not disclosing about the accused coming to him and repenting for his acts is also not reliable.

56. The dead body was found to have not got any postmortem injuries. The doctor conducting the postmortem examination while being cross examined has stated that, if the dead body is thrown in a well then the bones may get broken or injuries of different type would be found but there is no postmortem injury found on the dead body.

57. Ram Pyare Pandey D.W.-1 has while filing panchang of the year of incident stated that the day of the incident was Krishna Paksh and the tithi was Dasami. In his cross-examination, he has stated that the night will be dark and a known person could be identified from 10 steps only.

58. Shri Niwas Singh P.W.-2 has in his cross-examination stated that he did not see the deceased being dragged near the well. He has stated that the night was moon-lit and the moon had risen.

The three facts stated by him are totally a lie and do not get borne out from the records.

59. Vimal Kumar Singh P.W.-9 in his cross-examination has stated that he had seen some drag marks outside the well which were tried to be erased.

60. Further, D.W.-1 while placing reliance on the panchang of the year of the incident has conclusively stated that the day of the incident was Krishna Paksh and the tithi was Dasami which was a dark night.

61. Even from this fact, it is clear that Shri Niwas Singh P.W.-2 has consistently been stating lies throughout and even as such he is a witness not to be believed. The circumstances as being relied by the prosecution are concocted circumstances. The same cannot be trusted and relied.

62. The trial judge though had been cognizant of the fact that the present case is a case of circumstantial evidence and not a case of direct evidence has failed to specifically mention in the judgment as to what are the circumstances which the prosecution is relying in the matter and has failed to mention as to how the chain of circumstances get completed by linking each and every link to come to an irresistible conclusion about the guilt of the accused and has convicted him.

63. This Court comes to a conclusion, that the circumstances as relied by the prosecution are concoction and it is unsafe to rely upon the evidence led by the prosecution for the same. Thus the conviction of the appellant by the trial court is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The trial court committed an error in recording the conviction and sentence of the appellant. Hence, the impugned judgment and order dated 28.11.2013 passed by the trial court is liable to be set aside and is accordingly, set aside.

64. The present appeal is allowed.

65. The appellant- Kaladhar Chaubey is in jail. He is directed to be released forthwith unless wanted in any other case.

66. Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 the accused-appellant Kaladhar Chaubey is directed to furnish a personal bond in terms of Form No. 45 prescribed in The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 of a sum of Rs. 25,000/- with two reliable sureties in the like amount before the court concerned which shall be effective for a period of six months along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against the instant judgment or for grant of leave, the aforesaid appellant on receipt of notice thereof shall appear before the Apex Court.

67. The lower court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to the trial court concerned for compliance and necessary action.

68. The party shall file computer generated copy of such judgment downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad before the concerned Court/Authority/Official.

69. The computer generated copy of such judgment shall be self-attested by the counsel of the party concerned.

70. The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the judgment from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

विलम्ब क्षमा प्रार्थना पत्र पर आदेश-

1. कोविड-19 महामारी के कारण उत्पन्न असाधारण परिस्थितियाँ तथा विलम्ब क्षमा प्रार्थना पत्र में उल्लेखित विलम्ब के कारण, वर्तमान पुनरीक्षण याचिका के प्रस्तुत करने में हुए 113 दिनों के विलम्ब को क्षमा करने के लिये पर्याप्त है। अतः उक्त प्रार्थना पत्र स्वीकार किया जाता है और विलम्ब क्षमा किया जाता है। इसके साथ ही स्टैम्प रिपोर्टर द्वारा अन्य सुचित त्रुटियाँ, जो सिर्फ तकनीकी प्रकृति की है, को भी वर्तमान परिस्थितियों के कारण नज़रअंदाज किया जाता है तथा कार्यालय को इस आपराधिक पुनरीक्षण याचिका का नियमित क्रमांक संख्या आवंटित करने के लिए निर्देशित किया जाता है। पक्षकारों के अधिवक्ताओं की सहमति से यह याचिका आक्षेपित आदेश का विवरण- रूप से निर्णीत की जा रही है।

पुनरीक्षण पर आदेश

आक्षेपित आदेश का विवरण-

2. वर्तमान पुनरीक्षण याचिका में, विपक्षीगण सं0 2 व 3 द्वारा पुनरीक्षणकर्ता के विरुद्ध धारा 125 दं0प्र0सं0 के अंतर्गत दाखिल की गयी याचिका (मुकदमा नं0 718-2019, सी एन आर सं0- यू पी जे 02-002815-2019, जे ओ कोड- यू पी 06073 श्रीमती ज्योति यादव आदि बनाम अश्वनी यादव) में अपर प्रधान न्यायाधीश, पारिवारिक न्यायालय, झाँसी द्वारा, प्रार्थना पत्र "6 बी' में पारित आदेश दिनांक 27.01.2020 को आक्षेपित किया गया है, जिसके द्वारा पुनरीक्षणकर्ता को आदेशित किया गया है की वो विपक्षी सं0 1, जो उसकी पत्नी है, तथा विपक्षी सं0 2, जो उसकी पुत्री है, को बतौर अंतरिम भरण-पोषण क्रमशः ₹ 2500 व ₹ 1000 प्रत्येक माह की 27 तारीख तक अदा करे।

संक्षेप में प्रकरण के तथ्य-

3. विपक्षी सँ॰ 2 व 3 (ज़रिये विपक्षी सँ॰ 2) ने, उपरोक्त वर्णित मुक़दमा की याचिका में यह कथन किया कि विपक्षी सँ॰ 2 का विवाह हिन्दू विवाह रीति के अनुसार 29.09.2015 को पुनरीक्षणकर्ता के साथ वकुकाम, झाँसीं में सम्पन्न हुआ था, जिसमें उसके माता व पिता ने क़रीब ₹ 15,00,000 खर्च किये थे साथ ही साथ मोटर साइकिल, ज़ेवरात , सामान, नक़द रुपये आदि, जिसकी एक सूची याचिका के संग अनुसंगलग्न करी गयी है, भी दिया था। विपक्षी सँ॰ 3 का जन्म पुनरीक्षणकर्ता व विपक्षी सँ॰ 2 के संसर्ग से 10.12.2015 को हुआ। याचिका में यह भी कथन किया कि विपक्षी सँ॰2 ने हमेशा अपने स्त्रीधर्म का पालन किया, परन्तु उसके ससुरालीजन शादी में दिये गये दहेज़ से संतुष्ट नहीं थे व हमेशा उस पर मायके से कार लाने के लिये दवाब बनाते थे और इंकार करने पर उसका पति व ससुरालीजन उससे मारपीट करते थे। उसके मायके वालों ने बहुत बार समझाने का प्रयास किया, परन्तु उनके बर्ताव में कोई अन्तर नहीं आया। उसका पति इनके बहकावे में आकर रोज़ाना शराब पी कर उसके साथ बदसलूकी और मारपीट करता था । इसी के क्रम में एक राय होकर ससुरालीजन ने 28.06.2019 को क़रीब दो बजे, उसे व उसकी पुत्री को सिर्फ़ पहने हुए कपड़ों के साथ ससुराल से निकाल दिया और ऐसी हालत में वो अपनी पुत्री के साथ मायके आ गयी। 13.07.2019 को ससुरालीजन ने पंचायत बैठाई परन्तु वहाँ भी वो अपनी माँग पर अड़े रहे, जिससे पंचायत बेनतीजा रही। 16.07.2019 को ससुरालीजन व उसका पति उसके मायके आये और पंचायत में कार की माँग पूरी न करने पर भा0दं0सं0 व 3/4 दहेज विरोध सं0 के अन्तर्गत दर्ज भी कराई।

4. याचिक में आगे अभिलिखित किया कि वो अपनी बेटी के साथ मायके में ही रहने पर मजबूर है, जबकि उसका पति पर्याप्त साधन होते हुए भी, कि वो भैंसों की डेरी चलाता है तथा संविदा पर ठेकेदारी कर के क़रीब ₹ 60000 मासिक कमाने के बाद भी उसको व उसकी बेटी को न तो कोई भत्ता दे रहा है न ही कोई खोज ख़बर ही ले रहा है। विपक्षी सँ॰ 2 अपने और बेटी के रहन सहन व उसकी पढ़ाई लिखाई के लिये खर्च की पूर्ति उधार ले कर कर रही है। इसलिये याचिका के माध्यम से अपने लिए ₹ 15000 व अपनी बेटी के लिये ₹ 10000 (कुल ₹ 25000) मासिक भत्ता दिलाने की प्रार्थना की है।

भी मायके में पढ़ाती है जिससे वो मासिक ₹ 20000 कमा रही है। अपने माँ व बाप के बहकावे में आकर उसने अपनी मर्ज़ी से घर छोड़कर अपने मायके 22.4.2019 को चली गयी थी, क्योंकि वो कम पढ़े लिखे पति के साथ और नहीं रहना चाहती थी, क्योंकि साथ रहने से उसको शर्म और हीनभावना महसूस होती थी, इसी कारण से वो दिन प्रतिदिन उससे लड़ाई-झगड़ा करती थी। पुनरीक्षणकर्ता ने मार पिटाई के आरोपों को ख़ारिज किया है।

7. यह भी जबाब में लिखा कि वो कृषि का कार्य करता है व खेतिहर मज़दूर है, जिससे इसकी सीमित आय है, जिससे उसके माता पिता व बहन का खर्चा बमुश्किल चलता है। जबकि विपक्षी सं॰ 2 उच्च शिक्षा प्राप्त महिला है, जो प्राइवेट स्कूल में शिक्षण कार्य करती है व अपने माता पिता के घर में ट्यूशन कर क़रीब ₹ 30000 माह आय प्राप्त कर रही है। वो उसको अपने साथ रखना चाहता है इसके लिये उसने धारा 9 हिंदू विवाह अधिनियम के अन्तर्गत वाद दायर किया हुआ है। अंत में अंतरिम भरण पोषण के प्रार्थनापत्र को खारिज करने की प्रार्थना की।

8. अवर न्यायालय ने उभयपक्षों को सुनकर व पत्रावली का अवलोकन कर आक्षेपित आदेश पारित किया और अभिनिर्धारित किया कि "दोनों पक्षों ने एक दूसरे पर गम्भीर आरोप एवं प्रत्यारोप लगाए हैं, जिसकी सत्यता उभयपक्षों के साक्ष्य आने के उपरान्त ही सुनिश्चित हो सकेगी जिसमें की अभी विलम्ब है। ऐसी स्थिति में प्रार्थिनी संख्या 1 ज्योति यादव तथा प्रार्थिनी संख्या 2 कु0 राधा को दौरान मुकदमा अंतरिम भरण पोषण दिलाये जाने पर विचार किया जा सकता है।" तथा "यद्यपि दोनों ही पक्षों ने एक दूसरे की आय के संबंध में कोई साक्ष्य प्रस्तुत नहीं किया है। फिर भी प्रत्येक पति एवं पिता का यह नैतिक व विधिक दायित्व है कि वह अपनी पत्नी एवं बच्चे का भरण-पोषण करें।" तथा प्रार्थनापत्र 6बी आंशिक रुप से स्वीकार करते हुए पुनरीक्षणकर्ता को उसकी पत्नी व पुत्री को ₹ 2500 व ₹ 1500 क्रमशः मासिक भत्ता देने के लिए निर्देशित किया।

पुनरीक्षणकर्ता का कथन-

9. राजेन्द्र प्रसाद, पुनरीक्षणकर्ता के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने निवेदन किया कि आक्षेपित आदेश न्याय विरुद्ध, मनमाना, विधि की निगाहों में न टिकने वाला तथा न्यायिक विवेकाधिकार का उपयोग किये बिना पारित आदेश है। अवर न्यायालय ने आय के साक्ष्य के बिना ही अंतिरिम भरण पोषण के भत्ता का निर्धारण किया है जो अनुचित है। आगे यह भी कथन किया कि आक्षेपित आदेश धारा 125 (5) दं0प्र0सं0 के प्रावधान के विरुद्ध है, जिसके अनुसार "कोई पत्नी अपने पति से इस धारा के अधीन, भरण-पोषण का भत्ता और कार्यवाही के खर्चे, के जैसी भी स्थिति हो प्राप्त करने की हकदार न होगी। यदि वह जारता की दशा में रह रही है, अथवा यदि, वह पर्याप्त कारण के बिना अपने पति के साथ रहने से इंकार करती है। अथवा यदि, वे पारस्परिक सम्मति से पृथक रह रहे है।" क्यों कि पुनरीक्षणकर्ता की पत्नी अपनी इच्छा से मायके में रह रही है और उसने दाम्पत्य अधिकारों की प्रत्यास्थापन का वाद दाखिल किया है। अतः आक्षेपित आदेश विधि विरुद्ध है और यह पुनरीक्षण याचिका स्वीकार करने योग्य है।

प्रतिपक्षी का कथन-

10. ओम प्रकाश यादव विपक्षी सं0 2 व 3 के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने उपरोक्त निवेदन का विरोध किया और कहा कि आक्षेपित आदेश न्यायोचित है। अंतरिम भरण पोषण का निर्देश देते समय न्यायालय को समय प्रथम द्रष्टव्य मात्र

यह देखना है कि पक्षों के मध्य विवाह हुआ है तथा पति अपने पत्नी व बच्चे का भरण पोषण करने से पर्याप्त साधन होते हुए भी इंकार कर रहा है, जो वर्तमान प्रकरण में अविवादित है। धारा 125 दं0प्र0सं0 का उद्देश्य उन महिलाओं और बच्चों को त्वरित उपचार प्रदान करना है जो स्वयं का भरण पोषण करने में असमर्थ हैं और संकट में है। अभी अवर न्यायालय द्वारा याचिका पर गुण दोष पर अंतिम निर्णय लेना शेष है। अतः वर्तमान पुनरीक्षण याचिका निरस्त करने योग्य है। सरकार की ओर से शासकीय अधिवक्ता ने धारा 125 दं0प्र0सं0 के विधिक पक्ष का उल्लेख किया कि यह एक कल्याणकारी विधान है। अतः आक्षेपित आदेश में कोई विधिक त्रुटि नहीं है।

11. मैंने उभयपक्ष को सुना तथा पत्रावली का अवलोकन किया। वर्तमान पुनरीक्षण याचिका के निस्तारण करने के लिये सर्वप्रथम भरण-पोषण व पुनरीक्षण की विधि को उल्लेखित करना आवश्यक है।

12. धारा 125 दं0प्र0सं0 के अन्तर्गत पत्नी, संतान और माता पिता के भरण पोषण का प्रावधान 'सामाजिक न्याय की संकल्पना' पर आधारित एक 'कल्याणकारी धर्मनिर्पेक्ष विधान' है, जो भारतीय संविधान के 'अनुच्छेद 15(3), 21 व 39' के प्रावधानों व अधिकारों को प्रबलित भी करता है तथा जिसका उद्देश्य निराश्रित पत्नी, असहाय बच्चों व लाचार माता पिता जो अपना भरण पोषण करने में असमर्थ, उपेक्षित या वंचित हैं, उनकों पति, पिता या पुत्र (जैसी स्थिति हो) को उनको उचित मासिक भत्ते देने का निर्देश दिया जाना है। इस प्रावधान में उक्त कार्रवाई के दौरान अंतरिम भरण पोषण और कार्यवाई के खर्चे का उचित मासिक भत्ता संदाय करने का निर्देश, निर्धारित समय सीमा के अन्दर, जारी भी किया जा सकता है।

13. सक्षम न्यायालय द्वारा उपरोक्त प्रावधान के अंतर्गत निर्देश देने की कार्यवाही 'सामाजिक न्याय' की प्राप्ति के उद्देश्य के लिए की जानी चाहिए न कि 'विरोधात्मक (एडवरसरिएल)' दृष्टिकोण से। सक्षम न्यायालय को ऐसे प्रकरण में संवेदनशील होना चाहिये, जिससे प्रार्थी को घोर अन्याय से बचाया जा सके।

पुनरीक्षण की विधि-

14. पुनरीक्षण, उच्च न्यायालय के पर्यवेक्षी क्षेत्राधिकार से संबंधित है। पुनरीक्षण की शक्तियों का प्रयोग, उच्च न्यायालय द्वारा किसी अवर दंड न्यायालय के समक्ष की किसी कार्यवाही के अभिलेख को, किसी अभिलिखित या पारित किए गए निष्कर्ष, दंडादेश या आदेश की शुद्धता, वैधता या औचित्य के बारे में और ऐसे अवर न्यायालय की किन्ही कार्यवाहियों की नियमितता के बारे में अपना समाधान करने के प्रयोजन से, मंगा सकता है और उसकी परीक्षा कर सकता है।

15. पुनरीक्षण का क्षेत्राधिकार बहुत सीमित है, इसका उपयोग उन परिस्थितियों में किया जा सकता है, जहाँ आक्षेपित निर्णय पूर्ण रुप से गलत हो या जहां विधि के प्रावधानों का अनुपालन बिलकुल नहीं किया गया हो या आदेश के कारणों का आधार साक्ष्यहीन हो या तथ्यात्मक साक्ष्य को नजर अंदाज किया गया हो या न्यायिक विवेक का मनमाने या विकार रुप से प्रयोग किया गया हो। इस प्रावधान का उद्देश्य, किसी मूलभूत दोष या अधिकार क्षेत्र या विधि की भूल या विकार का सुधार करना है जो कार्यवाहियों में उत्तपन्न हो गयी हो। पुनरीक्षण की शक्तियों का प्रयोग किसी अपील, जांच,

विचारण या अन्य कार्यवाही में पारित किसी अंतर्वर्ती आदेश के बाबत नहीं किया सकता है। यह भी ज्ञातव्य रहे कि पुनरीक्षण संबंधी अधिकार का प्रयोग सदैव अपवादात्मक परिस्थिति में ही किया जाना चाहिए, जहाँ यह प्रतीत हो कि अधीनस्थ न्यायालय ने मामले में घोर अन्याय किया हो।

विचारार्थ विवाधक

16. उपरोक्त वर्णित विधि व वर्तमान प्रकरण के तथ्य, परिस्थितियों व उभयपक्षों के निवेदन से वर्तमान पुनरीक्षण याचिका, में निम्न विचारार्थ विवाधक उत्पन्न होता है- "क्या वर्तमान प्रकरण के तथ्य व परिस्थितियों में अवर न्यायालय द्वारा, धारा 125 दं0प्र0सं0 के अन्तर्गत अंतरिम भरण पोषण के संदाय का निर्देश न्यायसंगत है और क्या पुनरीक्षण की शक्तियों का उपयोग करने का कोई मामला बनता है?"

विश्लेषण-

17. भारतीय समाज में विवाह का बहुत महत्वपूर्ण स्थान है। हर माता पिता का स्वप्न होता है, कि उसकी पुत्री का विवाह एक अच्छे वर से हो। विवाह के बाद वो पुत्री अपना घर छोड़कर ससुराल चली जाती है और यह सोचती कि उसको वहाँ अपने मायके से ज्यादा प्यार मिलेगा, परन्तु जब कभी ऐसा नहीं होता है और उस पर जुल्म होता है तो न केवल उस बेटी के सपने टूटते हैं वरन् उसके माँ बाप को भी गहरा सदमा पहुँचता है। ऐसी घटनाओं से उस महिला पर न केवल मानसिक परन्तु आर्थिक असर भी होता है। क्योंकि वर्तमान प्रकरण में विवाह हिन्दू रीति से हुआ है, इसलिए यह कहना उचित है कि इस परम्परा में वैवाहिक संस्कार एक धर्मिक अनुष्ठान है, जिसमें बेटी के माता पिता अपनी बेटी को उसके होने वाले पति को सौंपते हैं, और यह विश्वास रखते वो उनकी बेटी व उससे होनी वाली संतान का हमेशा ध्यान रखेगा और उन्हे अपने जैसी हैसियत व जीवन स्तर प्रदान करेगा। इसका तात्पर्य यह है कि विवाहापरान्त पति को अपनी पत्नी व संतान को एक सम्मान पूर्वक व उचित स्तर का जीवन व्यतीत करने के लिये अपनी हैसियत के अनुसार उनका भरण पोषण करना न केवल उसकी विधिक, नैतिक व सामाजिक जिम्मेदारी वरन् विवाह संस्कार में लिये गये वचनों के प्रति वचनबद्धता भी है। इसी जिम्मेदारी व वचनबद्धता को कानूनी जामा पहनाकर, धारा 125 दं0प्र0सं0 में उल्लेखित किया गया है। जैसा पूर्व में कहा गया है कि धारा 125 दं0प्र0सं0 के अन्तर्गत पत्नी, संतान और माता पिता के भरण पोषण का प्रावधान 'सामाजिक न्याय' की संकल्पना पर आधारित एक 'कल्याणकारी धर्मनिर्पेक्ष विधान' है, जो भारतीय संविधान के अनुच्छेद 15(3), 21 व 39 के प्रावधानों व अधिकारों को प्रबलित भी करता है।

18. वर्तमान प्रकरण में यह अविवादित है, कि विपक्षी संख्या 2 ज्योति यादव का विवाह पुनरीक्षणकर्ता से हुआ है तथा विपक्षी संख्या 3 कु. राधा उनके संसर्ग से हुई है तथा वर्तमान में ये विपक्षीगण अपने मायके में रह रहे है तथा पुनरीक्षणकर्ता उनके भरण-पोषण की जिम्मेदारी वहन नहीं कर रहा है और उसके कथानुसार उसकी पत्नी व पुत्री न ही अंतरिम और न ही अंतिम रुप में भरण पोषण भत्ते के अधिकारी है । उसका कथन है कि उसकी पत्नी अपनी बेटी के साथ मायके में अपनी इच्छा से रह रही है और वहाँ ट्यूशन करके अच्छा कमा रही है। वो अभी भी उनको अपने पास रखना चाहता है, इसलिए उसने दाम्पत्य अधिकारों की प्रत्यास्थापन का वाद दाखिल कर रखा है। भरण पोषण न देने का एक कारण अपनी आर्थिक स्थिति अच्छी न होना भी बताया है।

19. यहाँ यह कहना आवश्यक है कि वर्तमान प्रकरण केवल अंतरिम भरण पोषण भत्ते के निर्देश से संबंधित है, गुण दोष पर अंतिम निर्णय होना अभी शेष है। अतः इस स्तर पर यह निर्धारित करना है कि अंतरिम भरण पोषण भत्ते के निर्देश देते समय सक्षम न्यायालय को क्या आधार ध्यान में रखने चाहिए। यह विवादित है कि पति का अपनी पत्नी व संतान का उचित भरण पोषण करना, उसका कानूनी, नैतिक, सामाजिक और वैवाहिक कर्तव्य है, जिसका निर्वहन वर्तमान प्रकरण में नहीं किया जा रहा है। अंतरिम भरण पोषण का निर्देश देते समय न्यायालय को प्रथम द्रष्टव्य संतुष्ट होना है कि पति अपनी पत्नी व संतान का भरण पोषण करने की उपेक्षा कर रहा है। वर्तमान प्रकरण में यह अविवादित है कि पुनरीक्षणकर्ता अपनी पत्नी व बेटी की जो मायके में रह रही है, उनके भरण पोषण की उपेक्षा कर रहा है। आय के निर्धारण का निर्णय अभी नहीं लिया जा सकता है क्योंकि यह एक विवादित विवाधक है जो पक्षों के साक्ष्य आने के बाद ही गुण दोष पर निर्धारित किया जा सकता है। अतः विपक्षी 2 व 3 पुनरीक्षणकर्ता से अंतरिम भरण पोषण भत्ते के अधिकारी है और ऐसा निर्देश दे कर अवर न्यायालय ने कोई वैधानिक त्रुटि नहीं करी है।

20. अवर न्यायालय द्वारा अंतरिम भत्ते की कुल राशि मात्र ₹ 3500 मासिक है, जो वर्तमान समय में साधारण जीवनयापन की दृष्टि से भी बहुत कम है। अतः अंतरिम भरण पोषण भत्ते के निर्देश के लिये प्रथम द्रष्टव्य यह मानना उचित है कि पुनरीक्षणकर्ता अपनी पत्नी व संतान का भरण पोषण करने की उपेक्षा कर रहा है, अतः वो अंतरिम भरण पोषण भत्ते के अधिकारी हैं। केवल इस कारण से कि पुनरीक्षणकर्ता द्वारा दाम्पत्य अधिकारों की प्रत्यास्थापन का वाद दाखिल किया गया है तथा जिस पर गुण दोष पर विचार करना अभी शेष है, यह प्रकरण धारा 125(5) दं0प्र0सं0 के अन्तर्गत आ जायेगा और अपेक्षित आदेश विधि विरुद्ध हो जायेगा, ऐसा निवेदन विधि के किसी भी मापदंड से बलहीन है, अतः पूर्ण रुप से अस्वीकार किया जाता है। पुनरीक्षणकर्ता की ओर से और कोई निवेदन नहीं किया गया है।

21. उपरोक्त विश्लेषण का निष्कर्ष है कि अवर न्यायालय ने प्रकरण के तथ्य व परिस्थितियों में जो अंतरिम भरण पोषण भत्ते का निर्देश दिया है, वो न्यायसंगत है तथा पुनरीक्षणकर्ता वर्तमान प्रकरण में ऐसा कोई भी तथ्यात्मक या विधिक त्रुटि प्रदर्शित करने में विफल रहा, जिससे यह प्रतीत हो कि उसके साथ घोर अन्याय हुआ हो तथा अवर न्यायालय ने न्यायिक विवेक का मनमाने या विकार रुप से प्रयोग किया हो जिससे पुनरीक्षण की शक्तियों का उपयोग करने का कोई मामला बनता हो। तदानुसार उपरोक्त विवाधक निर्धारित किया जाता है और वर्तमान पुनरीक्षण याचिका बलहीन होने के कारण निरस्त की जाती है।

REVISIONAL JURISDICTION

DATED: ALLAHABAD 15.12.2020

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SURESH KUMAR GUPTA, J.

Criminal Revision No. 907 of 2019

Govind ...Revisionist

Versus

State of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for the Revisionist:
Sri A.K. Mishra, Sri Sati Shanker Tripathi

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:
A.G.A.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 401/397,227 - Indian Penal Code,1860-Section 306-application-rejection-last scene evidence-revisionist and co-accused, both had evil eyes on deceased's wife-she threatened them to complaint against them-revisionist lodged false report against the deceased-accused challenged the deceased manhood by saying that they would eventually seek out his wife and implicate him in frivoulous cases-Later he found dead-accused died as a result of drowning-revisionists abetted him to commit suicide-the submission of revisionists that no charge was made out has no substance-accused can be discharged only when the charge is groundless.(Para 1 to 14)

B. It is well settled that at the stage fo charge the court is not required to consider pros and cons of the case. Marshalling and appreciation of evidence is not in the domain of the court at that point of time. What is required from the court is to sift and weigh the materials for the limited purpose whether or not a prima facie case for framing a charge against the accused has been made out.(Para 8 to 13)

The revision is dismissed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. This criminal revision has been filed by the revisionist against the order dated 27.11.2018 passed by IXth Addl. Sessions Judge, Mathura as well as consequential order dated 29.11.2018 by which learned trial judge rejected the discharge application of the revisionist bearing paper no. 16 Kha dated 7.9.2018 filed under section 227 Cr.P.C. vide order dated 27.11.2018 and without providing any breathing time to the revisionist framed the charges against him on 29.11.2018 in S.T. No. 66 of 2018 (State Vs. Govind Soni and Others) under section 306 I.P.C. Police Station Mahavan, District Mathura arising out of Case Crime No. 182 of 2015 pending in the court of IXth Addl. Sessions Judge, Mathura.

2. Brief facts of this case as per First Information Report is that the first informant's nephew namely, Nirmal Kumar, was a teacher at Purva Madhyamik School, Kinarayee and living with his family at Ashok Vihar Colony, Mathura. Whereas the revisionist, Govind Soni, who happened to be deceased's brother-in-law and co-accused, Brijesh Dixit, both have evil eyes on deceased's wife, Smt. Bhagwati, and also coerced her to see with their wrong intention. It is asserted that when Bhagwati threatened them to complaint against them, the revisionist lodged a false report at Police Station Sadar Bazar. And thereafter, the revisionist and co-accused, Brijesh Dixit have been continuously harassing and teasing the deceased, Nirmal Kumar, as they both knew that deceased, Nirmal Kumar, is a patient of high blood pressure and they also said that they were eventually seek out his wife and will keep on him impleading in frivolous cases. When deceased tried to confront the accused persons they challenge his manhood and said that he should kill himself or commit suicide. On 12.6.2015, one Sujeet Kumar saw the revisionist and co-accused chatting with Nirmal Kumar. Later on Sujeet Kumar received a whatsapp message about recovery of a dead body, at Gokul Dam and which is later on identified as dead body of deceased, Nirmal Kumar. Then Sujeet Kumar informed to the first informant (uncle of deceased) and the first informant identified the dead body of of Nirmal Kumar and lodged a report on same day at 9.45 P.M. against the revisionist and co-accused, Brijesh Dixit. Post mortem of the dead body of deceased was conducted and as per postmortem report of deceased, the deceased has died due to asphyxia as a result of drowning.

3. After lodging the First Information Report, the Investigating Officer conducted the Panchayatnama on 13.6.2015. During investigation on 19.6.2015, the investigating officer has recorded statement of Sukhbir and Jay Prakash. These independent witnesses have stated in their statements that deceased was mentally disturbed person and his treatment was going on in Agra. They further stated that deceased has left the place of Jay Prakash, who is the brother of deceased, and went somewhere in the morning and when he did not return, he tried to trace him. Investigating Officer of this case also recorded the statement of deceased's wife namely, Bhagwati, in which she has clearly stated that revisionist has evil eye on her and he mentally tortured her and she further stated that revisionist instigated her husband / deceased to commit suicide. It is further stated that only for torturing and harassing her husband / deceased, the revisionist has lodged a false N.C.R. No. 42 of 2015 under sections 323, 504 I.P.C. against the deceased. After conducting the investigation, the investigating officer submitted chargesheet against the revisionist, Govind Soni, and Brijesh under section 306 I.P.C. on 23.8.2015.

4. On the aforesaid chargesheet, the learned Magistrate has taken cognizance of the offence over the chargesheet. Thereafter, the case was committed to the Court of Sessions where it is registered as Sessions Trial No. 66 of 2018 (State Vs. Govind Soni and Another) under section 306 I.P.C.

5. After committal of the case, on 7.9.2018 the revisionist filed a discharge application under section 227 Cr.P.C. On 7.9.2018 on the ground that there was no evidence against him collected by the investigating officer during the course of investigation, which constitutes the offence under section 306 I.P.C. against the revisionist. Thereafter, learned trial court rejected the discharge application of the revisionist after hearing both the parties and fixed a date for framing of charge. Thereafter, on 19.11.2018, learned Sessions Court framed charge against both the accused under section 306 I.P.C. Being aggrieved with the said order of Sessions Court, this criminal revision has been filed by the revisionist.

6. Revisionist has challenged the order dated 27.11.2018 on the following grounds. Learned trial court has completely failed to record any reason that prima facie offence is made out or not against the revisionist and without applying its judicial mind, erroneously rejected discharge application of the revisionist. Solely on flimsy ground only evidence collected during investigation by the I.O. against the accused / applicant is that on 15.6.2015, nephew of the first informant namely, Sujeet Kumar, had simply seen the revisionist, Govind Soni, and co-accused, Brijesh Dixit, chatting with the deceased. Thus, only circumstances last seen evidence is available but there is absolutely no evidence to show that accused has incited the deceased to commit suicide or make his life so miserable that there was no option left to deceased except to end his life. Simply alleged that accused / applicant has evil eye and questioned upon deceased's manhood and induced him to kill himself. As no requisite mensrea to add the commission of offence of abatement of suicide. It is also further submitted that postmortem report of deceased clearly reveals that cause of death of deceased is aphexia, as a result of drowning, which shows that deceased died either accidental or suicidal death or it could be possible by murder or homicide. There is no successive evidence that deceased has committed suicide. It is also submitted that deceased was a patient of depression for long time and his treatment was going on in different hospitals. It is quite possible that deceased committed suicide due to his pathetic condition. Further submitted that there is no question arose that deceased commits suicide due to abatement by the revisionist and learned trial court without appreciating the evidence available on record, wrongly rejected the discharge application of the revisionist. Learned counsel for the revisionist has relied upon the following judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court.

i. Rajesh Vs. State of Haryana, SLP (Crl.) No. 8667 of 2016, SC.

ii. Gangula Mohan Reddy Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, 201 (1) SCC 750

7. Learned A.G.A. supported the order of learned trial court and stated that impugned order is legal and factually correct and there is no occasion for this court to interfere under revisional jurisdiction.

8. I have heard learned counsel for the revisionist and the learned A.G.A. and also perused the record.

9. A larger Bench of the Apex Court in the case of State of Orissa vs. Debendra Nath Padhi (2005) 1 SCC 568, has settled the legal position in regard to the relevancy of defence evidence at the stage of charge. In that case, the Apex Court has held as follows:

"16. All the decisions, when they hold that there can only be limited evaluation of materials and documents on record and sifting of evidence to prima facie find out whether sufficient ground exists or not for the purpose of proceeding further with the trial, have so held with reference to materials and documents produced by the prosecution and not the accused. The decisions proceed on the basis of settled legal position that the material as produced by the prosecution alone is to be considered and not the one produced by the accused. The latter aspect relating to the accused though has not been specifically stated, yet it is implicit in the decisions. It seems to have not been specifically so stated as it was taken to be well settled proposition. This aspect, however, has been adverted to in State Anti-Corruption Bureau, Hyderabad and Another v. P. Suryaprakasam [1999 SCC (Crl.) 373] where considering the scope of Sections 239 and 240 of the Code it was held that at the time of framing of charge, what the trial court is required to, and can consider are only the police report referred to under Section 173 of the Code and the documents sent with it. The only right the accused has at that stage is of being heard and nothing beyond that (emphasis supplied).....

18. ..... It only means hearing the submissions of the accused on the record of the case as filed by the prosecution and documents submitted therewith and nothing more. The expression 'hearing the submissions of the accused' cannot mean opportunity to file material to be granted to the accused and thereby changing the settled law. At the state of framing of charge hearing the submissions of the accused has to be confined to the material produced by the police."

24. As a result of aforesaid discussion, in our view, clearly the law is that at the time of framing charge or taking cognizance the accused has no right to produce any material. Satish Mehra's case holding that the trial court has powers to consider even materials which accused may produce at the stage of section 227 of the Code has not been correctly decided."

10. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the judgment passed in the matter of "P. Vijayan vs. State of Kerala and Ors. reported in 2010 (2) SCC 1398 " held that :-

"10. Before considering the merits of the claim of both the parties, it is useful to refer Section 227 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, which reads as under:-

"227. Discharge.- If, upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith, and after hearing the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in this behalf, the Judge considers that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing."

If two views are possible and one of them gives rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspicion, the trial Judge will be empowered to discharge the accused and at this stage he is not to see whether the trial will end in conviction or acquittal. Further, the words "not sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused" clearly show that the Judge is not a mere post office to frame the charge at the behest of the prosecution, but has to exercise his judicial mind to the facts of the case in order to determine whether a case for trial has been made out by the prosecution. In assessing this fact, it is not necessary for the court to enter into the pros and cons of the matter or into a weighing and balancing of evidence and probabilities which is really the function of the court, after the trial starts.

11. At the stage of Section 227, the Judge has merely to sift the evidence in order to find out whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. In other words, the sufficiency of ground would take within its fold the nature of the evidence recorded by the police or the documents produced before the court which ex facie disclose that there are suspicious circumstances against the accused so as to frame a charge against him.

(12) The scope of Section 227 of the Code was considered by this Court in the case of State of Bihar vs. Ramesh Singh, wherein this Court observed as follows:-

"4. ... Strong suspicion against the accused, if the matter remains in the region of suspicion, cannot take the place of proof of his guilt at the conclusion of the trial. But at the initial stage if there is a strong suspicion which leads the Court to think that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence then it is not open to the court to say that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. The presumption of the guilt of the accused which is to be drawn at the initial stage is not in the sense of the law governing the trial of criminal cases in France where the accused is presumed to be guilty unless the contrary is proved. But it is only for the purpose of deciding prima facie whether the Court should proceed with the trial or not. If the evidence which the prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, cannot show that the accused committed the offence, then there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial"

This Court has thus held that whereas strong suspicion may not take the place of the proof at the trial stage, yet it may be sufficient for the satisfaction of the trial Judge in order to frame a charge against the accused.

11. In a recent decision, in Soma Chakravarty vs. State, AIR 2007 SC 2149 this Court has held that :-

"The settled legal position is that if on the basis of material on record the court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed offence it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused has committed the offence. At the time of framing of the charges the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into, and the material brought on record by the prosecution has to be accepted as true.... Before framing a charge the court must apply its judicial mind on the material placed on record and must be satisfied that the commission of offence by the accused was possible. Whether, in fact, the accused committed the offence, can only be decided in the trial. (Para 11)

Charge may although be directed to be framed when there exists a strong suspicion but it is also trite that the Court must come to a prima facie finding that there exist some materials therefor. Suspicion alone, without anything more, cannot form the basis therefor or held to be sufficient for framing charge."

12. Apart from the aforesaid cases, in the case of Sajjan Kumar vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, JT 2010(10) SC 413, the Apex Court has formulated the following guidelines with regard to the question as to how a matter for framing a charge against the accused is to be dealt with:

"(i) The Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under Section 227 of the Cr.P.C. has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out. The test to determine prima facie case would depend upon the facts of each case.

ii) Where the materials placed before the Court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the Court will be fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial.

iii) The Court cannot act merely as a Post Office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the Court, any basic infirmities etc. However, at this stage, there cannot be a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial.

iv) If on the basis of the material on record, the Court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed offence, it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused has committed the offence.

v) At the time of framing of the charges, the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into but before framing a charge the Court must apply its judicial mind on the material placed on record and must be satisfied that the commission of offence by the accused was possible.

vi) At the stage of Sections 227 and 228, the Court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to find out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value discloses the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. For this limited purpose, sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at that initial stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case.

vii) If two views are possible and one of them gives rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspicion, the trial Judge will be empowered to discharge the accused and at this stage, he is not to see whether the trial will end in conviction or acquittal."

13. The aforesaid decisions have almost settled the legal position that at the stage of charge the court is not required to consider pros and cons of the case and to hold an enquiry to find out truth. Marshaling and appreciation of evidence is not in the domain of the court at that point of time. What is required from the court is to sift and weigh the materials for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case for framing a charge against the accused has been made out. Even in a case of grave or strong suspicion charge can be framed. The court has to consider broad probabilities of the case, total effect of the evidence and the documents produced including basic infirmities, if any. If on the basis of the material on record, the court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed offence, it can frame the charge, but the court should not weigh the evidence as if it were holding trial. Accused can be discharged only when the charge is groundless. In my opinion, the learned Sessions Judge has taken into account all the relevant materials and passed the impugned order keeping in view the parameters laid down by the Apex Court in the aforesaid cases. Therefore, the submission of the counsel for the revisionist that no charge was made out has no substance.

14. I shall now apply the principles enunciated above in the present case in order to find out whether or not the court below was justified in dismissing the discharge application filed under Section 227 Cr.P.C.

15. For the reasons discussed above, the revision has no merit and is accordingly dismissed. Interim order, if any, is vacated.

16. A copy of this order be communicated to the lower court for necessary compliance.

1. Heard Sri Amarnath, learned counsel for the Revisionist, Sri Yogendra Singh, learned Advocate, holding brief of Shri Yogesh Kumar Vaish, learned counsel for the opposite party Nos. 2 to 5, Sri Nitin Kesarwani, learned A.G.A. for the State on admission and perused the record on board.

2. Instant Revision has been preferred by Manoj Kumar Patel (victim) challenging the order dated 27.10.2020 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge/

Special Judge (E.C. Act), Varanasi, rejecting the application No. 79-Kha, dated 21.10.2020, u/s 311 Cr.P.C. filed by revisionist(herein) in Sessions Trial No. 118 of 2016 (C.N.R. No. UPVR01-000691-2016) (State Vs. Vansraaj Patel and Ors.) arising out of case crime No. 22 of 2016, under Section 307, 352, 727, 326-A of I.P.C., Police Station- Cholapur, District-Varanasi.

3. Factual matrix of the case shows that the informant and his cousin (son of his mother's sister) Manoj Kumar(revisionist herein) were working in the Madan Textile. On 07.01.2016, duo, after completion of their work, were going to the house of Manoj, situated in Benipur Khurd by their respective motorcycle. At about, 08:45 p.m., while they reached in the village Benikhurd near the house of Molaee, four persons namely Vansraaj Patel, Vijay Patel, Ramesh Patel and Mahendra, who were inimically with the Manoj, had stopped the motorcycle of Manoj and pored kerosene oil over him, with intention to kill and set him ablaze. Seeing the screams of Manoj, informant had raised alarm. While he had been chased by Vansraaj and Ramesh, he ran away after leaving his motorcycle. In the mean-time, co-villagers had gathered there and aforesaid four accused fled away from the scene. With the help of villagers fire of Manoj as well as his motorcycle was extinguished. During process of extinguishing, Prakash Patel and Golu Patel were also injured. With the help of the villagers Manoj was taken to the Kabirchaurra Hospital through ambulance from where he was referred to B.H.U. and due to paucity of place he has been admitted in Adarsh Hospital, Sundarpur.

4. In this backdrop, Chedi Patel (first informant) had lodged F.I.R. dated 07.01.2016 (Exhibit K-3), registered as Case Crime No. 22 of 2016, under Section 307, 352 and 427 I.P.C.

5. After investigation, Investigating Officer had submitted charge-sheet dated 31.01.2016. Vide order dated 29.03.2016, learned Trial Court, had framed charges against all the four accused persons, as mentioned in the F.I.R., under Section 307/34, 352 and 402 I.P.C.. As the matter proceeded, at hearing stage Manoj Patel(victim), revisionist herein, has moved an application dated 21.10.2020 (Application No. 79 Kha), under Section 311 Cr.P.C., beseeching acceptance/admission of medico-legal report, prescriptions, discharge-sheet of the injured and for marking of exhibit on the statement of victim recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. and also for putting a question to the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. with respect to written report (Ex. K-1)

6. Aforesaid application No. 79-Kha dated 21.10.2020, was rejected by the impugned order dated 27.10.2020, which is under challenged in the instant revision.

7. After hearing the matter at length, learned counsel for the opposite party Nos.2 to 5 has raised preliminary objection with regard to the maintainability of the present revision in view of the express bar engrafted under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, (In brevity Cr.P.C.) to entertain a revision u/s 397(1) Cr.P.C. against an interlocutory order passed during the pendency of trial of the case. He has submitted that impugned order dtd. 27.10.2020 passed by the Trial Court refusing the acceptance/admission of required documents on record as mentioned in the Application No. 79 Kha, dated 21.10.2020, under Section 311 of Cr.P.C. is an interlocutory order and the instant revision petition, which has been preferred challenging the impugned order by which aforesaid application filed by the present revisionist has been rejected, is not maintainable in the eye of law, therefore, same may be dismissed in limine. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the opposite party Nos. 2 to 5 has placed reliance on the judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in Sethuraman Vs. Rajamanickam, reported in 2009 (5) SCC 153. He has also cited the case decided by Hon'ble The Andhra Pradesh High Court in Goli Satyanarayan Reddy Vs G. Mahesh & Anr., Crl.R.C. No. 175/2018, decided on 30.12.2019.

8. Learned A.G.A. for the State has also supported the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the contesting respondents and submitted that revision u/s 379(1) Cr.P.C. is maintainable only against those orders which terminates the proceeding of the main case once for all and other orders which are passed during the pendency of the trial are interlocutory orders and revision against said orders are barred u/s 379(2) Cr.P.C. Instant revision is preferred against the order, which is interlocutory in nature, comes within the teeth of the provision as embodied under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C., therefore, the same is not maintainable in the eyes of law.

9. Per contra, learned counsel for the revisionist has vehemently opposed the preliminary objection raised by learned counsel for the opposite party Nos. 2 to 5 qua maintainability of the instant revision which has been filed against the interlocutory order, under Section 397(2) Cr.P.C. It is submitted that rejecting the application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. amounts to final disposal/termination of the interim proceeding which was initiated during the pendency of the trial on the basis of said application No. 79-kha dated 21.10.2020. Therefore, sanctity of the aforesaid impugned order could be examined by this Hon'ble High Court in exercising it's revisional power under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C.

10. It is further submitted that in exercising its power under the revisional jurisdiction Hon'ble High Court can also exercise it's inherent power to examine the legality and validity of the impugned order. That apart, learned counsel for the revisionist has tried to construed the nature of the impunged order as intermediate order. He contended that in the case of Amar Nath Vs. State of Harayana, reported in A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 2185, Hon'ble Apex Court has held that an order which substantially affect the right of the parties cannot be said to be an interlocutory order so as to attract the bar u/s 379(2) Cr.P.C. and those orders relating to rights or liabilities of the parties are to be termed as intermediate order and revision against the said orders is maintainable. It is further contended that it is right of the victim to maintain the admissibility of his statement u/s 164 Cr.P.C. by getting mark of exhibit over it and produce the medical record to prove inflicting injuries, therefore, order under challenged is to be construed as an intermediate order against which revision petition is maintainable u/s 379(1) Cr.P.C. It is further contended that law laid down in the case of Amar Nath (Supra) was subsequently approved by Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Madhy Limaye Vs. State of Maharashtra. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the revisionist has cited the full Bench decision of Apex Court in the case of Madhu Limaye Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in 1977 (4) SCC 551. He has also placed reliance on another full Bench decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Prabhu Chavala Vs. State of Rajasthan, reported in (2016) 16 SCC 30.

11. I have carefully considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record on board on the preliminary objection qua maintainability of the present revision, being barred under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C., filed challenging the impugned order which is said to be an interlocutory order in rejecting the application No. 79-Kha, dated 21.10.2020 filed under Section 311 of Cr.P.C. for taking the some of the documents on record relating to the medical treatment of the victim and for mark of Exhibit on the statement of victim recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. and also for putting a question under Section 313 to the accused with respect to the written report . In the case of Madhu Limaye (supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court has discussed in detail with respect to the scope of the revision, under Section 397(1) of Cr.P.C. and inherent power of Hon'ble High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. qua interlocutory order, intermediate order and the final order. It is pertenant to mention here that in the old Cr.PC of 1898, there was no provision of bar in filing the revision against the interlocutory order. Subsequently, seeing the flooded filing of revisions against all the orders including the interlocutory order with intention to protract the litigation, Legislation has embarked the bar under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 of Cr.P.C. to curb the unnecessary filing of revisions against each and every order passed by the trial court so that the expeditious disposal of cases could be ensured. Provision given under Section 397 of Cr.P.C. is reproduced as under:-

"The High Court or any Sessions Judge may call for and examine the record of any proceeding before any inferior Criminal Court situate within its or his local jurisdiction for the purpose of satisfying itself' or himself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order, recorded or passed, and as to the regularity or any proceedings of such inferior court, and may, when calling for such record, direct that the execution of' any sentence or order be suspended, and if the accused is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond pending the examination of the record.

Explanation:- All Magistrates, whether Executive or Judicial, and whether exercising original or appellate jurisdiction shall be deemed to be inferior to the Sessions Judge for the purpose of this subsection and of section 398.

(2) The power of revision conferred by sub-section (I) shall not be exercised in relation to any interlocutory order passed in any appeal, inquiry, trial or other proceeding.

(3) If an application under this section has been made any person either to the High Court or to the Sessions Judge, no further application by the same person shall be entertained by the of the them."

12. In the case of Madhu Limaye (supra), Hon'ble Supreme Court has approved the law laid down in the case of Amar Nath (Supra), in which it has been pointed out that the purpose of putting a bar on the revisional power in relation to an interlocutory order passed in an appeal, inquiry, trial or other proceeding, is to bring about expeditious disposal of case final.

13. Further, Hon'ble Supreme Court has enunciated and reiterated the view, with some modulation, taken in the case of Amar Nath (Supra), wherein two points were decided i.e. (i) where a revision to the High Court against the order of subordinate Court is expressly barred under Section 397(2) of Cr.P.C., the inherent power contained under Section 482 would not be available to defeat the aforesaid bar (ii) Impugned order of the Magistrate, however, was not an interlocutory order. Second point, with respect to the nature of impugned order being interlocutory order, was accepted by Hon'ble Supreme Court but first point, with respect to the exercise of inherent power in the matters where bar as contained under Section 397(2) Cr.P.C. came into the play, has been accepted with some modulation.

14. It is accepted by Hon'ble Supreme Court that on plain reading of Section 482 Cr.P.C., however, it would follow that noting in the Cr.P.C., which would include sub-Section (2) of Section 397 Cr.P.C. also, shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent power of the High Court. It is enunciated by Hon'ble Supreme Court that if it is said that bar under Section 397(2) of Cr.P.C. is not to operate in the exercise of the inherent power at all, it will be setting at naught one of the limitations imposed upon the exercise of revisional powers. Applying harmonious interpretation, Hon'ble Supreme Court has opined that bar provided in sub-Section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C. operates only in exercise of revisional power of the High Court, meaning thereby that the High Court will have no power of revision in relation to any interlocutory order and in the eventuality of orders other than interlocutory order, inherent power will come into the play, there being no other provision of Cr.P.C. for the redressal of grievances of the aggrieved party. Impugned order, in case, bring about the situation which is abuse of process of Court or for the purpose of securing the end of justice and interference by High Court is absolutely necessary, then provisions as contained under Section 397(2) can not limit or affect the exercise of inherent power of High Court.

15. In this view of matter, by introducing the bar under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C., legislation is intended to curb the protracted litigation and try to ensure early disposal of the cases.

16. Plain reading of Section 397 Cr.P.C. explicit the scope and applicablity of revisional power that aggrieved party can question the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order, recorded or passed and, to the regularity of any proceeding of inferior Court. It is significant to note that power conferred under sub-Section 1 of Section 397 Cr.P.C. shall not be exercised in relation to any interlocutory order passed in appeal, enquiry, trial or other proceeding as embodied under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C. Legislation has made the provision of bar under Section 397(2) of Cr.P.C. to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court and the Sessions Judge in entertaining a revision against an interlocutory order. Therefore, considering the intention of legislation and historical background in which bar has been imposed u/s 397(2) Cr.P.C. to entertain revision u/s 397(1) Cr.P.C. against an interlocutory order, interpretation of any particular order passed during the pendency of the trial to decide or ascertain as to whether it is a final order or interlocutory order or intermediate order for the purpose of maintaining a revision under Section 397(1) Cr.P.C. must be in consonance with the intention of legislation. In introducing the bar under Section 397(2) Cr.P.C. qua maintainability of revision against the interlocutory order, legislation was intended to expedite the trial. It is noteworthy that interpretation of any statute or any provision must always be made keeping in mind the object of the litigation and no effort should be made in derogation to the legislative intent.

17. As per the provisions enshrined under Section 397 (1) Cr.P.C., revision is maintainable against all those orders who are final in nature and the same cannot be assailed in any appellate jurisdiction. Appeal, in case, is provided against the order proposed to be assailed then preferring an appeal is the adequate remedy available under the procedure (Cr.P.C.) to the aggrieved persons. Addressing on the point of limited access of the revisional jurisdiction, Hon'ble Supreme Court enunciated in the case of Madhu Limaye (Supra) that on such a strict interpretation, only those orders would be revisable which are orders passed on the final determination of the action but are not appealable under Section XXIX of Cr.P.C.. This does not seem to be the intention of legislation when it retained the revisional power of High Court in terms of identical to one in the old Cr.P.C. 1898.

18. Hon'ble Supreme Court has considered the dictum of S. Kuppuswami Rao Vs. King Kania, reported in AIR 1949 F.C. I, wherein it is stated that if their decision, whichever may it is given, will, if it stands, finally disposed off the matter in dispute, I think that for the purpose of there, it is final. On the other hand, if their decision, if given in one way, will finally dispose of the matter in dispute, but if given in the other, will allow the action to go on, then I think it is not final, but interlocutory. Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that it is to be noticed that the test laid down therein was that if the objection of the accused succeeded, the proceeding could have end but not vice versa. The order can be said to be a final order only if, in either event, the action will be determined. It is further explicated that the real intention of legislature was not to equate the expression "interlocutory order" as invariably being converse of the words "final order". There may be an order passed during the course of proceeding, which may not be final as per the Judgment rendered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of S. Kuppuswami (supra), but, yet it may not be an interlocutory order pure or simple. Same kind of order may fall in between two. By applying a rule of harmonious constructions, Apex Court held that bar in sub-Section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C. may not be attracted on such kind of intermediate orders. They may not be final order for the purpose of Article 134 of the Constitution of India, yet, it would not be correct to characterize them as merely interlocutory order within the meaning of Section 397(2) Cr.P.C.

19. In this view of the matter, Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Madhu Limaye (Supra) has approved the concept of intermediate orders, which are neither the final order nor the interlocutory order as held in the case of Amar Nath (Supra). It is further enunciated that it is neither advisible nor possible to make a catalouge of orders to demonstrate which kind of order would be merely, purely or simply interlocutory orders and which kind of order would be final and then to prepare an exhaustive list of those types of orders which will fall in between the two.

20. In the case of Mohanlal Maganlal Thakar Vs. State of Gujarat, reported in AIR 1968 SC 733, wherein, after enquiry, an order was passed directing to file a complaint, against the appellant Mohanlal Maganlal Thakar which was affirmed by the High Court. The matter came to Hon'ble Supreme Court on the grant of certificate under Article 134(1)(C) of the Constitution of India. The majority view of Hon'ble three judges has held that aforesaid order for filing of a complaint is a final order within the meaning of said constitutional provision. Minority view of two Judges had given the dissenting judgment holding it as an interlocutory order. Enunciating the interlocutory order, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in the case of Parmeshwari Devi Vs. State, reported in (1977) 1 SCC 169, that an order made in a criminal proceeding against a person who is not a party to the enquiry or trial and which adversely affected him is not an interlocutory order within the meaning of Section 397(2) of Cr.P.C.

21. In a recent Judgment of ASIAN RESURFACING OF ROAD AGENCY PRIVATE LIMITED AND ANOTHER VS. CENTRAL BEAURU OF INVESTIGATION, reported in (2018) 16 SCC, 299, Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court has considered the dictum of Madhu Limaye (Supra) and other cases qua bar of filing revision against the interlocutory order under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 of Cr.P.C. and held that dictum of Madhu Limaye(Supra) hold the filed and has not been in any manner diluted. Relevant para No. 19,20,21 of the said judgment is reproduced below:

19. It is not necessary to refer to all the decisions cited at the Bar. Suffice it to say that a Bench of three Judges in Madhu Limaye [Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 10] held that the legislature has sought to check delay in final disposal of proceedings in criminal cases by way of a bar to revisional jurisdiction against an interlocutory order under sub-section (2) of Section 397 CrPC. At the same time, inherent power of the High Court is not limited or affected by any other provision. It could not mean that limitation on exercise of revisional power is to be set at naught. Inherent power could be used for securing ends of justice or to check abuse of the process of the court. This power has to be exercised very sparingly against a proceeding initiated illegally or vexatiously or without jurisdiction. The label of the petition is immaterial. This Court modified the view taken in Amar Nath v. State of Haryana [Amar Nath v. State of Haryana, (1977) 4 SCC 137 : 1977 SCC (Cri) 585] and also deviated from the test for interlocutory order laid down in S. Kuppuswami Rao [S. Kuppuswami Rao v. R., 1947 SCC OnLine FC 13 : (1947) 9 FCR 180] . We may quote the following observations in this regard: (Madhu Limaye case [Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 10] , SCC pp. 554-56 & 558, paras 6, 10 & 13)

"6. The point which falls for determination in this appeal is squarely covered by a decision of this Court, to which one of us (Untwalia, J.) was a party in Amar Nath v. State of Haryana [Amar Nath v. State of Haryana, (1977) 4 SCC 137 : 1977 SCC (Cri) 585] . But on a careful consideration of the matter and on hearing the learned counsel for the parties in this appeal we thought it advisable to enunciate and reiterate the view taken by two learned Judges of this Court inAmar Nath case [Amar Nath v. State of Haryana, (1977) 4 SCC 137 : 1977 SCC (Cri) 585] but in a somewhat modified and modulated form.

10. As pointed out in Amar Nath case [Amar Nath v. State of Haryana, (1977) 4 SCC 137 : 1977 SCC (Cri) 585] the purpose of putting a bar on the power of revision in relation to any interlocutory order passed in an appeal, inquiry, trial or other proceeding, is to bring about expeditious disposal of the cases finally. More often than not, the revisional power of the High Court was resorted to in relation to interlocutory orders delaying the final disposal of the proceedings. The legislature in its wisdom decided to check this delay by introducing sub-section (2) in Section 397. On the one hand, a bar has been put in the way of the High Court (as also of the Sessions Judge) for exercise of the revisional power in relation to any interlocutory order, on the other, the power has been conferred in almost the same terms as it was in the 1898 Code. On a plain reading of Section 482, however, it would follow that nothing in the Code, which would include sub-section (2) of Section 397 also, "shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court". But, if we were to say that the said bar is not to operate in the exercise of the inherent power at all, it will be setting at naught one of the limitations imposed upon the exercise of the revisional powers. In such a situation, what is the harmonious way out? In our opinion, a happy solution of this problem would be to say that the bar provided in sub-section (2) of Section 397 operates only in exercise of the revisional power of the High Court, meaning thereby that the High Court will have no power of revision in relation to any interlocutory order. Then in accordance with one of the other principles enunciated above, the inherent power will come into play, there being no other provision in the Code for the redress of the grievance of the aggrieved party. But then, if the order assailed is purely of an interlocutory character which could be corrected in exercise of the revisional power of the High Court under the 1898 Code, the High Court will refuse to exercise its inherent power. But in case the impugned order clearly brings about a situation which is an abuse of the process of the Court or for the purpose of securing the ends of justice interference by the High Court is absolutely necessary, then nothing contained in Section 397(2) can limit or affect the exercise of the inherent power by the High Court. But such cases would be few and far between. The High Court must exercise the inherent power very sparingly. One such case would be the desirability of the quashing of a criminal proceeding initiated illegally, vexatiously or as being without jurisdiction. Take for example a case where a prosecution is launched under the Prevention of Corruption Act without a sanction, then the trial of the accused will be without jurisdiction and even after his acquittal a second trial, after proper sanction will not be barred on the doctrine of autrefois acquit. Even assuming, although we shall presently show that it is not so, that in such a case an order of the Court taking cognizance or issuing processes is an interlocutory order, does it stand to reason to say that inherent power of the High Court cannot be exercised for stopping the criminal proceeding as early as possible, instead of harassing the accused up to the end? The answer is obvious that the bar will not operate to prevent the abuse of the process of the Court and/or to secure the ends of justice. The label of the petition filed by an aggrieved party is immaterial. The High Court can examine the matter in an appropriate case under its inherent powers. The present case undoubtedly falls for exercise of the power of the High Court in accordance with Section 482 of the 1973 Code, even assuming, although not accepting, that invoking the revisional power of the High Court is impermissible.

13. ... But in our judgment such an interpretation and the universal application of the principle that what is not a final order must be an interlocutory order is neither warranted nor justified. If it were so it will render almost nugatory the revisional power of the Sessions Court or the High Court conferred on it by Section 397(1). On such a strict interpretation, only those orders would be revisable which are orders passed on the final determination of the action but are not appealable under Chapter XXIX of the Code. This does not seem to be the intention of the legislature when it retained the revisional power of the High Court in terms identical to the one in the 1898 Code. In what cases then the High Court will examine the legality or the propriety of an order or the legality of any proceeding of an inferior criminal court? Is it circumscribed to examine only such proceeding which is brought for its examination after the final determination and wherein no appeal lies? Such cases will be very few and far between. ... There may be an order passed during the course of a proceeding which may not be final in the sense noticed in Kuppuswami case [S. Kuppuswami Rao v. R., 1947 SCC OnLine FC 13 : (1947) 9 FCR 180] , but, yet it may not be an interlocutory order -- pure or simple. Some kinds of order may fall in between the two. By a rule of harmonious construction, we think that the bar in sub-section (2) of Section 397 is not meant to be attracted to such kinds of intermediate orders. ..."

20. Referring to the judgment in Mohanlal Maganlal Thakkar v. State of Gujarat [Mohanlal Maganlal Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, (1968) 2 SCR 685 : AIR 1968 SC 733 : 1968 Cri LJ 876] , it was held that the test adopted therein that if reversal of the impugned order results in conclusion of proceedings, such order may not be interlocutory but final order. It was observed: (Madhu Limaye case [Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 10] , SCC p. 560, para 15)

"15. ... In the majority decision four tests were culled out from some English decisions. They are found enumerated at p. 688. One of the tests is "if the order in question is reversed would the action have to go on?" Applying that test to the facts of the instant case it would be noticed that if the plea of the appellant succeeds and the order of the Sessions Judge is reversed, the criminal proceeding as initiated and instituted against him cannot go on. If, however, he loses on the merits of the preliminary point the proceeding will go on. Applying the test of Kuppuswami case [S. Kuppuswami Rao v. R., 1947 SCC OnLine FC 13 : (1947) 9 FCR 180] such an order will not be a final order. But applying the fourth test noted at SCR p. 688 in Mohanlal case [Mohanlal Maganlal Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, (1968) 2 SCR 685 : AIR 1968 SC 733 : 1968 Cri LJ 876] it would be a final order. The real point of distinction, however, is to be found at SCR p. 693 in the judgment of Shelat, J. The passage runs thus: (Mohanlal case [Mohanlal Maganlal Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, (1968) 2 SCR 685 : AIR 1968 SC 733 : 1968 Cri LJ 876] , AIR p. 738, para 11)

"As observed in Ramesh v. Gendalal Motilal Patni [Ramesh v. Gendalal Motilal Patni, (1966) 3 SCR 198 : AIR 1966 SC 1445] the finality of that order was not to be judged by co-relating that order with the controversy in the complaint viz. whether the appellant had committed the offence charged against him therein. The fact that that controversy still remained alive is irrelevant.'"

21. The principles laid down in Madhu Limaye [Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 10] still hold the field and have not been in any manner diluted by the decision of four Judges in V.C. Shukla v. State [V.C. Shukla v. State, 1980 Supp SCC 92 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 695] or by the recent three-Judge Bench decision in Girish KumarSuneja v. CBI [Girish Kumar Suneja v. CBI, (2017) 14 SCC 809 : (2018) 1 SCC (Cri) 202] . Though in V.C. Shukla [V.C. Shukla v. State, 1980 Supp SCC 92 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 695] , order framing charge was held to be interlocutory order, judgment in Madhu Limaye [Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 10] taking a contrary view was distinguished in the context of the statute considered therein. The view in S. Kuppuswami Rao [S. Kuppuswami Rao v. R., 1947 SCC OnLine FC 13 : (1947) 9 FCR 180] , was held to have been endorsed in Mohanlal Maganlal Thakkar [Mohanlal Maganlal Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, (1968) 2 SCR 685 : AIR 1968 SC 733 : 1968 Cri LJ 876] though factually in Madhu Limaye [Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 10] , the said view was explained differently, as already noted. Thus, in spite of the fact that V.C. Shukla [V.C. Shukla v. State, 1980 Supp SCC 92 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 695] is a judgment by Bench of four Judges, it cannot be held that the principle of Madhu Limaye [Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 10] does not hold the field. As regards Girish Kumar Suneja [Girish Kumar Suneja v. CBI, (2017) 14 SCC 809 : (2018) 1 SCC (Cri) 202] , which is by a Bench of three Judges, the issue considered was whether the order of this Court directing that no court other than this Court will stay investigation/trial in Manohar Lal Sharma v. Union of India [Manohar Lal Sharma v. Union of India, (2014) 9 SCC 516] (Coal Block allocation cases) violated right or remedies of the affected parties against an order framing charge. It was observed that the order framing charge being interlocutory order, the same could not be interfered with under Section 397(2) nor under Section 482 CrPC. [Manohar Lal Sharma case, (2014) 9 SCC 516, paras 24, 25 and 27] It was further held that stay of proceedings could not be granted in the PC Act cases even under Section 482 CrPC. [Manohar Lal Sharma case, (2014) 9 SCC 516, para 32] It was further observed that though power under Article 227 is extremely vast, the same cannot be exercised at the drop of a hat as held in Shalini Shyam Shetty v. Rajendra Shankar Patil [Shalini Shyam Shetty v. Rajendra Shankar Patil, (2010) 8 SCC 329 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 338] as under: (Girish Kumar case [Girish Kumar Suneja v. CBI, (2017) 14 SCC 809 : (2018) 1 SCC (Cri) 202] , SCC p. 835, para 37)

"37. ... "49. ... (n) This reserve and exceptional power of judicial intervention is not to be exercised just for grant of relief in individual cases but should be directed for promotion of public confidence in the administration of justice in the larger public interest whereas Article 226 is meant for protection of individual grievance. Therefore, the power under Article 227 may be unfettered but its exercise is subject to high degree of judicial discipline pointed out above.' (Shalini Shyam case [Shalini Shyam Shetty v. Rajendra Shankar Patil, (2010) 8 SCC 329 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 338] , SCC p. 349, para 49)"

22. Learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance on the Full Bench judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Prabhu Chavla Vs. State of Rajsthan (Supra), wherein relevant scope of the revisional jurisdiction under Section 397 and inherent power of Hon'ble High Court, under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been discussed and held that there is no total ban on the exercise of inherent power where abuse of process of Court or other extraordinary situation warrants exercises of inherent jurisdiction and availability of alternative remedy of a criminal revision under Section 397, by itself cannot be a good ground to dismiss an application filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance on para 6 of the aforesaid judgement, wherein it is held that we venture to add a further reason in support . Since Section 397 Cr.P.C. is attracted against all orders other than interlocutory order, a contrary view would limit the availability of inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. only to petty interlocutory orders. A situation only unwarranted and undesirable. Aforesaid para no.6 as relied upon by counsel for the revisionist is not helpful in the present matter in holding the maintainability of the revision against the order impunged which is held to be interlocutory order by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Setthuraman(Supra). In para no.4 of the case of Setthuraman(Supra), Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

"4. Secondly, what was not realized was that the order passed by the Trial Court refusing to call the documents and rejecting the application under Section 311 Cr.P.C., were interlocutory orders and as such, the revision against those orders was clearly barred under Section 397(2) Cr.P.C. The Trial Court, in its common order, had clearly mentioned that the cheque was admittedly signed by the respondents/accused and the only defence that was raised, what that his singed cheques were lost and that the appellant/complainant had falsely used one such cheque. The Trial Court also recorded a finding that the documents were not necessary. This order did not, in any manner, decide anything finally. Therefore, both the orders, i.e. one on the application under Section 91 Cr.P.C. for production of documents and other on the application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. for production of documents and other on the application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. for recalling the witness, were the orders of interlocutory nature, in which case, under Section 397(2), revision was clearly not maintainable. Under such circumstances, the learned Judge could not have interfered in his revisional jurisdiction. The impunged judgment is clearly incorrect in law and would have to be set aside. It is accordingly set aside. The appeals are allowed."

23. Aforesaid observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court left no room for discussion to decide the nature of the order passed under Section 311 Cr.P.C. that order passed under the aforesaid section is an interlocutory order.

24. In the aforesaid case accused had moved an application under Section 91 Cr.P.C. and under Section 311 Cr.P.C. seeking direction to produce the Bank Pass-book, Income-tax account etc. and also for recalling the witnesses for cross-examination. Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that order rejecting the application under Section 91 of Cr.P.c. and under Section 311 Cr.P.C., where the orders of interlocutory nature which cannot be assailed in revision in view of the bar as embodied under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C.

25. In a recent judgment of this Hon'ble Allahabad High Court, (Lucknow Bench), decided on 12.12.2009 in Criminal Revision No. 1640 of 2019 (Anil Kumar Vs. State of U.P.), co-ordinate Bench of this Hon'ble High Court, after consideration the case of Sethuram(Supra) has held that rejection order under Section 311Cr.P.C. is an interlocutory order, hence, the revision is not maintainable u/s 397(1) Cr.P.C. In deciding the issue of maintainability of revision against the rejection order passed under Section 311 Cr.P.C, Hon'ble Court has also considered the decision of Division Bench of Allahabad High Court in the case of Asif Hussain Vs. State of U.P., reported in 2007 (57) ACC, 1036.

26. Further, in the case of Girish Kumar Suneja Vs. C.B.I. reported in (2017) 14 SCC 809, three-Judges Bench judgment, Hon'ble Supreme Court has discussed in detail the scope of revision under Section 397 Cr.P.C. in the context of intermediate and interlocutory order. In the aforesaid judgment, Hon'ble Supreme Court has considered the dictum of Amarnath(supra) and Madhu Limay(supra), relevant para 15 to 18 and 20 to 23 of the aforesaid judgments is reproduced as under:-

"15. While the text of sub-section (1) of Section 397 confer very wide powers on the court in the exercise of its revision jurisdiction, this power is equally severely curtailed by sub-section (2) thereof. There is a complete prohibition in a court exercising its revision jurisdiction in respect of interlocutory orders. Therefore, what is the nature of orders in respect of which a court can exercise its revision jurisdiction?

16. There are three categories of orders that a court can pass -final, intermediate and interlocutory. There is no doubt that in respect of a final order, a court can exercise its revision jurisdiction-that is in respect of a final order of acuqittal or conviction. There is equally no doubt that in respect of an interlocutory order, the court cannot exercise its revision jurisdiction. As far as an intermediate order is concerned, the court can exercise its revision jurisdiction since it is not an interlocutory order.

17.The concept of an intermediate order first found mention in Amar Nath Vs. State of Haryana in which case the interpretation and impact of Section 397(2) of the Cr.P.C. came up for consideration. This decision is important for two reasons. Firstly it gives the historical reason for the enactment of Section 39792) of the Cr.P.C. and secondly considering that historical backgourd, it gives a jurstification for a restrictive meaning to Section 482 of the Cr.P.C.

18. As far as the historical background is concerned, it was pointed out that the Criminal Procedure Code of 1898 and the 1955 Amendment gave wide powers to the High Court to interfere with orders passed in criminal cases by the subordinate courts. These wide powers were restricted by the High Court and this Court, as matter of prudecne and not as a matter of law, to an order that "suffered from any error of law or any legal infirmity causing injustice or prejudice to the accused or was manifestly foolish or perverse." (Amar Nath case (1977) 4 SCC 137 = 1077 SCC (Cri) 585). this led to the courts being flooded with cases challenging all kinds of orders and thereby delaying prosecution of a case to the detriment of an accused person.

20. As noted in Amar Nath (1977) 4 SCC 137 = 1077 SCC (Cri) 585) the purpose of introducing Section 397(2) Cr.P.C. was to curb delays in the decision of criminal cases and thereby to benefit the accused by giving him or her a fair and expeditious trial. Unfortunately, this legislative intendment is sought to be turned topsy turvy by the appellants.

21. The concept of an intermediate order was further elucidated in Madhu Limaye Vs. State of Maharashtra (1977) 4 SCC 551 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 10) by contradistinguishing a final order and an interlocutory order. This decision lays down the principle that an intermediate order is one which is interlocutory in nature but when reversed, it has the effect of terminating the proceedings and thereby resulting come to mind - an order taking cognizance of an offence and summoning an accused and an order for framing charges. Prima facie these orders are interlocutory in nautre, but when an order taking cognizance and summoning an accused is reversed, it has the effect of terminating the proceedings against that person resulting in a final order in his or her favour. Similarly, an order for framing of charges if reserved has the effect of discharing the accused person and resulting in a final order in his or her favour. Therefore, an intermediate order is one which if passed in a certain way, the proceedings would terminate but if passed in another way, the proceedings would continue.

22. The view expressed in Amar Nath ((1977) 4 SCC 137) and Madhu Limaye ((1977) 4 SCC 551) was followed in K.K. Patel Vs. State of Gujarat ((2000) 6 SCC 195: 2001 SCC (Cri) 200) wherein a revision petition was filed challenging the taking of cognizance and issuance of a process. It was said: (K.K. Patel case ((2000) 6 SCC (Cri) 200), SCC p. 201, para. 11)

"11..... It is now well-high settled that in deciding whether an order challenged is interlocutory or not as for Section 397(2) of the Code, the sole test is not whether such order was passed during the interim stage (vide Amar Nath Vs. State of Haryana ((1977) 4 SCC 137), Madhu Limaye Vs. State of Maharashtra ((1977) 4 SCC 551), V.C. Shukla Vs. State (1980 Supp SCC 92 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 695) and Rajendra Kumar (Sitaram Pande Vs. Uttam ((1999) 3 SCC 134 : 1999 SCC (Cri) 393). The feasible test is whether by upholding the objections raised by a party, it would result in culminating the proceeding, if so any order passed on such objections would not be merely interlocutory in nature as envisaged in Section 397(2) of the Code. In the present case, if the objection raised by the appellants proceedings would have been terminated. Hence, as per the said standard, the order was revisable." (Emphasis supplied)

23. We may note that in different cases, different expressions are used for the same category of orders - sometimes it is called an intermediate order, sometimes a quasi-final order and sometimes it is called an order that is a matter of moment. Our preference is for the expression 'intermediate order' since that brings out the nature of the order more explicitly."

27. Learned counsel for the opposite party nos. 2 to 5 has also placed reliance on judgment dated 13.12.1999 in Goli Satyanarayan Reddy(Supra) which was decided by single Bench of Andhra Pradesh High Court holding that order passed in rejecting the application under Section 45 of Indian Evidence Act do not decide the case finally, therefore, it is an interlocutory order and revision against the said order is not maintainable under Section 397(2) Cr.P.C.. In the aforesaid case, Hon'ble Judge has considered the law expounded by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Amarnaath(supra), Madhu Limay(supra) and Girish Kumar Sunija (supra)

28. In the light of the discussion as made above, now it is clear from the judgment of Girish Kumar Sunija(Supra), that those orders which have the effect of terminating the proceeding of the main case once for all, though passed at interlocutory stage, are alone can be construed as intermediate order or quasi-final order. On this basis alone, one can reach the conclusion that particular order is interlocutory order or intermediate order or quasi-final order for the purpose of maintaining revision under Section 397(1) Cr.P.C. It is significant to note that it has been consistently held right from the case of Amarnaath(supra) in the year 1979 till Girish Kumar Sunija(supra) in the year 2017 that an order of summoning a witness is an interlocutory order which is not revisible. I am not in agreement with the submission made by learned counsel for the revisionist that every order passed, during the trial, touching the right and liability of the parties is an intermediate order and liable to be assailed under the revisional jurisdiction. Order passed for summoning witness or for producing the documents are only an step in furtherance of the trial proceeding which does not terminate anything final against any person. If the contention of counsel for the revisionist is accepted and every order passed during the trial of the case is construed as an intermediate order on the ground that it touches right or liability of the parties in relation to trial of the case, it would defeat the very purpose of bar as enshrined under sub-section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C. and would dilute the legislative intend.

29. After decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Setthuraman(supra), there is no room left for discussion qua nature of rejection order passed in application under Section 311 Cr.P.C., which is held to be interlocutory order and assailing the said order in the revision petition is clearly barred under sub-Section 2 of Section 397 Cr.P.C. Dictum of Madhu Limay (Supra) and Prabhu Chawla (Supra) relied on by counsel for the revisionist are not come in his rescue to defeat the intention of legislation qua creating bar, in entertaining the revision petition assailing the interlocutory order which has been passed u/s 311 Cr.P.C. In Setthuraman (supra) case, Apex Court has clearly held in unequivocal term that an order passed under Section 311 Cr.P.C. to summon a witness or an order passed under Section 91 Cr.P.C. to call for the documents are pure and simple interlocutory order which do not decide anything final, as such revision petition is clearly barred under Section 397(2) Cr.P.C. Therefore, in the light of the aforesaid dictum, order in question cannot be construed as an order touching the right and liability of the victim in relation to trial of the case and it is not going to decide anything final resulting into the culminating of proceeding of main case once for all.

30. After considering the law enunciated by Hon'ble Apex Court in several decision as discussed above, it can easily be concluded that decision of application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. do not decide anything finally or results into the culminating the main proceeding of the case. Order impunged cannot be construed as an order which is a matter of movement or as an intermediate or quasi final order as discussed in the case of Amarnaath(Supra) and Madhu Limay (Supra), so as to maintain the revision against the said order.

31. Hence, the instant revision petition is held to be barred and not maintainable in the eyes of the law under the provisions of sub-Section (2) of Section 379 of Cr.P.C.. Accordingly the present revision petition, filed against the order dated 27.10.2020 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge/Special Judge (E.C. Act), Varanasi, in Sessions Trial No. 118/2016 (C.N.R. No.- UPVR01-000691-2016) (State of U.P. Vs. Vansraaj Patel and Others) arising out of case crime No.22 of 2016, under Section 307, 352, 327, 326-A of I.P.C., Police Station- Cholapur, District- Varanasi, is hereby dismissed.

32. Parties shall bear their own costs.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure,1973-Section 401/397 - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 376-D, 120-B, 452, 506, 504, 323, 34 & Juvenile Justice(Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015-Section 101 & Section 66A of I.T. Act and section 62/63 of Copyright Act-application- grant of bail to juvenile-delay of 8 days in lodging FIR -juvenile is entitled to the benefit of the provisions of the Act-revisionist was minor at the time of incident-the prosecution story does not support the medical report-Juvenile Justice Board declared him as minor determining his age 14 years 10 months -only gravity of offence is not relevant consideration for refusing grant of bail to juvenile as has been envisaged in Section 12 of the Act-the Board or the lower appellate court has not given any reason that his release would defeat the ends of justice in the event if he be released on bail.(Para 3 to 20)

B. Under Section 12 the prayer for bail may be rejected if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that the release of the juvenile is likely to bring him into the association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice. It is important to note that gravity or seriousness of the offence, should not be taken as an obstacle or hindrance by the Legislature to refuse bail to a delinquent juvenile. (Para 14 to 19)

The revision is allowed. (E-5)

1. This revision is directed against the judgment and order dated 21.11.2019 passed by First Additional Sessions Judge, Baghpat dismissing Criminal Appeal No.51 of 2019 (Vikki Alias Vikas versus State of UP) filed under Section 101 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 (for short "the Act') and affirming the order dated 4.9.2019 passed by Juvenile Justice Board, Baghpat refusing the bail plea to the revisionist in Case Crime No.383 of 2017 under Section 376-D, 120-B, 452, 506, 504, 323, 34 IPC and Section 66A of I.T. Act and Section 62/63 of Copyright Act, P.S. Khekra, District Baghpat.

2. Heard Sri J.B. Singh, holding brief of Sri Anil Kumar Jaiswal, learned counsel for the revisionist as well as learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

3. The prosecution case, as per the version of the FIR which was lodged by the mother of the victim, is that her daughter namely Km. Bharti was enticed away by co-accused Soni wife of Sunil, Sonam and Savita and thereafter revisionist Vikki alias Vikas committed rape with her and co-accused Sonu made the video clip of the same.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that the revisionist is innocent and he has been falsely implicated in the present case. He further submits that the alleged incident is said to have taken place on 3.10.2017 whereas the FIR was lodged on 11.10.2017 after a gap of 8 days but the victim has stated in her statement under Section 164 CrPC that the alleged incident took place on 16.11.2016. In fact, no such incident ever took place. The revisionist has been falsely implicated in the present case. As per medical report, the victim is major and she is aged about 21 years.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that the revisionist is juvenile and there is no apprehension of reasoned ground for believing that the release of the revisionist is likely to bring him in association with any known criminals or expose him to mental, physical or psychological danger or his release would defeat the ends of justice. He further submits that except this the revisionist has no previous criminal history. The brother of the revisionist is giving his undertaking that after release of the revisionist on bail, he will keep him under his custody and look after him properly. Further, the revisionist undertakes that he will not tamper the evidence and he will always cooperate the trial proceedings. There was no report regarding any previous antecedents of family or background of the revisionist. There is no chance of revisionist's re-indulgence to bring him into association with known criminals.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that it is not in dispute that the revisionist is a juvenile as he has already been declared juvenile by Juvenile Justice Board, Baghpat. The revisionist was a juvenile aged 14 years and 10 months on the date of occurrence. He is in jail since 12.10.2017 in connection with the present crime and has already undergone and completed the period of the sentence out of the maximum three years institutional incarceration permissible for a juvenile, under Section 18(1)(g) of the Act.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that thereafter the revisionist applied for bail before the Juvenile Justice Board, Baghpat upon which a report from the District Probation Officer was called for. The bail application was rejected vide order dated 4.9.2019, being aggrieved, the revisionist preferred an appeal under Section 101 of the Act, which was also dismissed vide order dated 21.11.2019. Hence the present criminal revision has been filed before this Hon'ble Court mainly on the following amongst other grounds:

(i) That the bail application of the revisionist was rejected by the court below in a very cursory and arbitrary manner.

(ii) That the revisionist, who is juvenile, is wholly innocent and has been falsely implicated by the first informant in the present case.

(iii) That the courts below have not appreciated the report of the District Probation Officer in its right perspective.

(iv) That the impugned judgment and orders passed by the learned courts below are apparently illegal, contrary to law and based on erroneous assumption of facts and law.

(v) That there was absolutely no material on record to hold that the release of the Juvenile would likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or his release would defeat the ends of justice, yet the courts below have illegally, arbitrary and on surmises refused the bail of juvenile.

(vi) That the courts have erred in law in not considering the true import of Section 12 of the Act, 2015 and thus, the impugned orders passed by the courts below suffer from manifest error of law apparent on the face of record.

(vii) That the courts below have acted quite illegally and with material irregularity in not properly considering the case of juvenile in proper and correct perspective which makes the impugned orders passed by the courts below non est and bad in law.

(viii) That bare perusal of the impugned orders demonstrate that the same have been passed on flimsy grounds which have occasioned gross miscarriage of justice.

8. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the revisionist have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the revisionist that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required and is also ready to accept all the conditions which the Court may deem fit to impose upon him. It has also been pointed out that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist has pointed out that the revisionist has already undergone and completed the period of institutional incarceration. The maximum period for which a juvenile can be incarcerated in whatever form of detention, is three years, going by the provisions of Section 18(1)(g) of the Act. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance of Hon'ble Apex Court judgment in the case of Kamal Vs. State of Haryana, 2004 (13) SCC 526 and submitted that the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment as under :-

"2. This is a case in which the appellant has been convicted u/s 304-B of the India Penal Code and sentenced to imprisonment for 7 years. It appears that so far the appellant has undergone imprisonment for about 2 years and four months. The High Court declined to grant bail pending disposal of the appeal before it. We are of the view that the bail should have been granted by the High Court, especially having regard to the fact that the appellant has already served a substantial period of the sentence. In the circumstances, we direct that the bail be granted to the appellant on conditions as may be imposed by the District and Sessions Judge, Faridabad."

10. Learned counsel for the revisionist has also placed reliance of Hon'ble Apex Court judgment in the case of Takht Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2001 (10) SCC 463, and submitted that the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment as under:-

"2. The appellants have been convicted under Section 302/149, Indian Penal Code by the learned Sessions Judge and have been sentenced to imprisonment for life. Against the said conviction and sentence their appeal to the High Court is pending. Before the High Court application for suspension of sentence and bail was filed but the High Court rejected that prayer indicating therein that the applicants can renew their prayer for bail after one year. After the expiry of one year the second application was filed but the same has been rejected by the impugned order. It is submitted that the appellants are already in jail for over 3 years and 3 months. There is no possibility of early hearing of the appeal in the High Court. In the aforesaid circumstances the applicants be released on bail to the satisfaction of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sehore. The appeal is disposed of accordingly."

11. In spite of service of notice upon opposite party no.2, no one has appeared on behalf of opposite party no.2 nor any counter affidavit has been till date. It appears that opposite party no.2 is not interested to file counter affidavit.

12. Learned AGA has opposed the revisionist's case with the submission that the release of the revisionist on bail would bring him into association of some known criminals, besides, exposing him to moral, physical and psychological danger. It is submitted that his release would defeat the ends of justice, considering that he is involved in a heinous offence.

13. This Court has carefully considered the rival submissions of the parties and perused the impugned orders. The juvenile is clearly below 15 years of age and does not fall into that special category of a juvenile between the age of 16 and 18 years whose case may be viewed differently, in case, they are found to be of a mature mind and persons well understanding the consequences of their actions. The provisions relating to bail for a juvenile are carried in Section 12 of the Act, which reads as under:

"(1) When any person, who is apparently a child and is alleged to have committed a bailable or non-bailable offence, is apprehended or detained by the police or appears or brought before a Board, such person shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law for the time being in force, be released on bail with or without surety or placed under the supervision of a probation officer or under the care of any fit person:

Provided that such person shall not be so released if there appears reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring that person into association with any known criminal or expose the said person to moral, physical or psychological danger or the person's release would defeat the ends of justice, and the Board shall record the reasons for denying the bail and circumstances that led to such a decision.

(2) When such person having been apprehended is not released on bail under subsection (1) by the officer-in-charge of the police station, such officer shall cause the person to be kept only in an observation home in such manner as may be prescribed until the person can be brought before a Board.

(3) When such person is not released on bail under sub-section (1) by the Board, it shall make an order sending him to an observation home or a place of safety, as the case may be, for such period during the pendency of the inquiry regarding the person, as may be specified in the order.

(4) When a child in conflict with law is unable to fulfil the conditions of bail order within seven days of the bail order, such child shall be produced before the Board for modification of the conditions of bail."

14. A perusal of the said provision show that bail for a juvenile, particularly, one who is under the age of 15 years, is a matter of course and it is only in the event that his case falls under one or the other disentitling categories mentioned in the proviso to sub-Section (1) of Section 12 of the Act that bail may be refused. The merits of the case against a juvenile acquire some relevance under the last clause of the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 12 that speaks about the ends of justice being defeated. The other two disentitling categories are quite independent and have to be evaluated with reference to the circumstances of the juvenile. Those circumstances are to be gathered from the Social Investigation Report, the police report and in whatever other manner relevant facts enter the record.

15. What is of prime importance in this case is that the juvenile, who is a young boy, has no criminal history. There is nothing said against the juvenile, appearing from the Social Investigation Report that may show him to be a desperado or misfit in the society. The two courts below have held the juvenile disentitled to bail on account of his case falling under each of the three exceptions enumerated in the proviso to sub section (1) of Section 12, for which no reason has been indicated. That finding, in both the orders impugned, is based on an ipse dixit, in one case of the judge and in the other of the Board. Even if it be assumed that the offence was committed in the manner alleged, it would be rather strained logic to hold that release of the juvenile on bail would lead to the ends of justice being defeated. Both the courts below have passed the impugned judgment and orders in cursory manner without placing due reliance on the report submitted by the District Probation Officer as well as facts and circumstances of the case.

16. This Court in the case of Shiv Kumar alias Sadhu Vs. State of U.P. 2010 (68) ACC 616(LB) was pleased to observe that the gravity of the offence is not relevant consideration for refusing grant of bail to the juvenile.

17. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also in the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and in view of the larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the dictum of Apex Court in the case of Dataram Singh vs. State of UP and another, (2018) 3 SCC 22 and the view taken by the Apex Court in the cases of Kamal Vs. State of Haryana (supra), Takht Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh (supra) and Shiv Kumar alias Sadhu Vs. State of U.P. (supra)., this Court is of the view that the present criminal revision may be allowed and the revisionist may be released on bail.

18. In the result, this revision succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 21.11.2019 passed by First Additional Sessions Judge, Baghpat in Criminal Appeal No.51 of 2019 (Vikki Alias Vikas versus State of UP) and the order dated 4.9.2019 passed by Juvenile Justice Board, Baghpat in Case Crime No.383 of 2017 under Section 376-D, 120-B, 452, 506, 504, 323, 34 IPC and Section 66A of I.T. Act and Section 62/63 of Copyright Act, P.S. Khekra, District Baghpat, are hereby set aside and reversed. The bail application of the revisionist stands allowed.

19. Let the revisionist, Vikki Alias Vikas through his natural guardian/brother Prem Chand be released on bail forthwith in Case Crime No.383 of 2017 under Section 376-D, 120-B, 452, 506, 504, 323, 34 IPC and Section 66A of I.T. Act and Section 62/63 of Copyright Act, P.S. Khekra, District Baghpat upon his natural guardian furnishing a personal bond with two solvent sureties of his relatives each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the Juvenile Justice Board, Baghpat subject to the following conditions:

(i) That the natural guardian of the revisionist will furnish an undertaking that upon release on bail the juvenile will not be permitted to come into contact or association with any known criminal or allowed to be exposed to any moral, physical or psychological danger and further that the natural guardian will ensure that the juvenile will not repeat the offence.

(ii) The revisionist and his natural guardian will report to the District Probation Officer on the first Wednesday of every calendar month commencing with the first Wednesday of February, 2021 and if during any calendar month the first Wednesday falls on a holiday, then on the next following working day.

(iii) The District Probation Officer will keep strict vigil on the activities of the revisionist and regularly draw up his social investigation report that would be submitted to the Juvenile Justice Board concerned on such periodical basis as the Juvenile Justice Board may determine.

(iv) The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad or the certified copy issued by the Registry of the High Court, Allahabad.

(v) The computer generated copy of such order shall be self attested by the counsel of the party concerned.

(vi) The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

20. However, considering the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the court below is directed to make every possible endeavour to conclude the trial of the aforesaid case within a period of four months from today without granting unnecessary adjournments to either of the parties.

20. However, considering the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the court below is directed to make every possible endeavour to conclude the trial of the aforesaid case within a period of four months from today without granting unnecessary adjournments to either of the parties.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. This criminal revision has been filed by the revisionist against the order dated 14.5.2019 passed by learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Gorakhpur in Criminal Case No. 313 of 2017 (Smt. Priyanka Pandey Vs. Abhimanu Pandey) under section 125 Cr.P.C., whereby application of maintenance of respondent no. 2 has been allowed and the present revisionist has been directed to pay Rs. 19,000/- per month from the date of order to respondent no. 2 as her maintenance on 11th day of each month.

2. The facts and circumstances giving rise to this revision are that the revisionist and respondent no. 2, Smt. Priyanka Pandey, got married on 9.7.2008 according to Hindu Rites and Rituals and at the time of said marriage, father of respondent no. 2 has given Rs. 3,00,000/- in cash to the family of revisionist as dowry. After some time on 28.4.2012, a baby boy namely, Abhiraj, born out of the said wedlock. For certain reasons, relationship between husband and wife becomes strained and due to harassment and additional demand of dowry, revisionist as well as family member of revisionist left respondent no. 2 at her paternal house. So respondent no. 2 has filed an application under section 125 Cr.P.C. for her maintenance alleging that revisionist has refused to maintain her. Learned Family Court after taking evidence of both the sides, on 14.5.2019 passed an order in favour of respondent no. 2, awarding Rs. 19,000/- as maintenance to the respondent no. 2. Being aggrieved with the said order, this revision has been filed by the revisionist against respondent no. 2.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist stated that marriage of revisionist and respondent no. 2 namely, Smt. Priyanka Pandey, was solemnized on 9.7.2018 according to Hindu rites and rituals in very simple manner and there were no demand of dowry by revisionist or his family members. After marriage, bidai of respondent no. 2 was held in 2010 and after a short period of living with respondent no. 2, the revisionist came to know that she is very outrageous, open minded and was not willing to co-ordinate with family members of revisionist. Revisionist tried his best to understand respondent no. 2 but she always refuses. On 28.4.2012 a baby boy namely, Abhiraj, born out of the said wedlock, who was suffered from Cerebral Palsy (hereinafter referred as C.P. child). Father of revisionist died in the year of 2013 and mother died in the year 2014. The revisionist, being eldest in the family was left by his parents with liability of his two sisters and one brother. Revisionist arranged marriage of his sister in which he spent about Rs. 24,00,000/- (Twenty Four Lacs) as well as he has taken a loan of Rs. 10,00,000/- (Ten Lacs) from a co-operative society for marriage of her sister, which is still being paid monthly from salary of revisionist by means of installments of Rs. 22,880/- per month. Revisionist is a Development Officer in LIC and his salary is approximately Rs. 58,000/- in hand per month. Revisionist is only earning member of his family and there are liability of his second sister namely, Km. Nisha Pandey, and his C.P. child son namely, Abhiraj, whose treatment is going on in Apolo Hospital, Delhi. Due to illness of his son, revisionist is facing huge medical expenditure. It is also submitted that on

2.9.2015, respondent no. 2 left her in-laws house and went back to her parental house with clothes and jewellery leaving behind her mentally challenged son. Revisionist tried his best to pacify his matrimonial dispute and also filed a case for restitution of husband and wife under section 5 of The Hindu Marriage Act in which respondent no. 2 willfully commit default and never appeared before the court. Respondent no. 2 also lodged a criminal case under section 498-A I.P.C. and 3 /4 of D.P. Act at Mahila Police Station, Gorakhpur in which the Investigating Officer filed final report in favour of the revisionist. Respondent no. 2 also filed a case against the revisionist under Domestic Violence Act before the District and Sessions Judge, Gorakhpur, which is still pending.

4. That respondent no. 2 filed an application under section 125 Cr.P.C. in which after receiving notice of maintenance, revisionist filed a written statement and also filed several evidence regarding the fact that respondent no. 2 has left the revisionist and his house without any reasonable excuse. Learned Family Court without considering any fact brought by the revisionist and without considering the material evidence regarding expenses of treatment of his physically challenged son as well as without considering the amount of loan passed impugned order of maintenance of Rs. 19,000/- per month in favour of respondent no. 2.

5. That learned Family Court did not consider this fact that revisionist has also absolute right over his income and by means of impugned order rights of dependents of the revisionist has been curtailed. Without discussing any material fact in this regard as well as without considering the emphasis of section 125 (4) Cr.P.C., learned Family Court has passed the impugned order. Learned Family Court passed the order only on the basis of surmises and conjectures and wrongly and illegally awarded maintenance of Rs. 19,000/- per month in favour of respondent no. 2 from the date of order without considering the financial burden of revisionist. On this allegation learned counsel prayed to allow this revision as well as to set aside the impugned order passed by the Family Court.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist has raised issues that, (i) findings of facts recorded by the Family Court are contrary to the evidence on record and being perverse, the same are liable to be set aside and the maintenance fixed is excessive.

7. Learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 and learned A.G.A. opposed the prayer of the revisionist by submitting that after getting birth of a C.P. child, behaviour of family of revisionist become violent against respondent no. 2. Despite that she always tried to maintain her relation as well as to understand her husband but they did not understand and used to threat to divorce her. It is further submitted that respondent no. 2 is a very sober and calm lady but revisionist is very modern type so he always used to taunt her the he do not want to keep her in his house as his wife, and he will do second marriage. That revisionist is a Development Officer in LIC of India and as per his salary slip his salary is Rs. 63,000/- (Rs. Sixty Three Thousand) per month and including commission, his salary is above Rs. 1,00,000/- (one lakh) per month. Father of the revisionist was a government employee and brother of the revisionist is also a government bank employee, then statement of the respondent of taking loan is only for misguiding the court. On the other hand, father of the respondent no. 2 is a 65 years old senior citizen and her mother is a house wife, her brother works in a private company for livelihood. Revisionist has forcefully kept son of respondent no. 2. Revisionist is a government employee, whose income is above one lakh rupees per month while respondent no. 2 is a helpless house wife and she has no source of income to fulfill her necessary requirements. It is lastly submitted that respondent no. 2 always wants to live with her husband but revisionist don't. Thus, order dated 14.5.2019 passed by learned family court does not warrant any interference, and revision is liable to be dismissed.

8. I have considered the rival submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and the written submissions filed on behalf of the revisionist.

9. The provisions of Section 125, Cr.P.C. is to provide for a social justice falling within the swim of Articles 15 (3) and 39 of the Constitution of India, which have been enacted to protect the weaker section of the society like women and children. It is in the form of secular safeguard irrespective of personal law of the parties. The object is to compel a man to perform moral obligations towards the society in respect of maintaining his wife, children and old parents so that they may not face destitution and become the liability of the society or may be forced to adopt a life of vagrancy, immorality and crime for their subsistence or go astray. The proceedings are summary in nature and provide for a speedy remedy against starvation of a deserted wife, children or indigent parents. To enforce the substantial issues of civil law, the only remedy available is in Civil Court, therefore, findings recorded in proceedings under Section 125, Cr.P.C. are not final and parties are always at liberty to agitate their rights in Civil Court. Order under Section 125, Cr.P.C. does not finally determine the status, rights and obligations of the parties and it only provides for maintenance of indigent wives, children and parents.

10. The case requires to be considered not only bearing in mind the aforesaid proposition of law but also considering that the powers of Revisional Court against such an order are very limited for the reason that in revisional jurisdiction the Court satisfies itself as to the correctness, legality and propriety of any finding, sentence or order and as to the regularity of the proceedings of the inferior Criminal Court.

11. In Amur Chand Agrawal v. Shanti Bose and Anr., AIR 1973 SC 799, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the revisional jurisdiction should normally be exercised in exceptional cases when there is a glaring defect in the proceedings or there is a manifest error of point of law and consequently there has been a flagrant miscarriage of justice.

12. In State of Orissa v. Nakula Sahu, AIR 1979 SC 663, Hon'ble Supreme Court, placing reliance upon a large number of its judgments including Akalu Aheer v. Ramdeo Ram, AIR 1973 SC 2145, held that the power, being discretionary, has to be exercised judiciously and not arbitrarily or lightly. The Court held that "judicial discretion, as has often been said, means a discretion which is informed by tradition methodolised by analogy and discipline by system".

13. In State of Karnataka v. Appu Balu Ingele, AIR 1993 SC 1126=II (1992) CCR 458 (SC), Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in exercise of the revisional powers, it is not permissible for the Court to reappreciate the evidence. In Pathumma and Anr. v. Muhammad, AIR 1986 SC 1436, the Apex Court observed that High Court "committed an error in making a re-assessment of the evidence" as in its revisional jurisdiction it was "not justified in substituting its own view for that of the learned Magistrate on a question of fact".

14. If the instant case is examined in view of the aforesaid settled legal propositions, it is not permissible for the Court to reappreciate the evidence. More so, there is nothing on record to show that the findings of facts recorded by the Family Court are perverse, based on no evidence or have been arrived contrary to the evidence on record.

15. Maintenance under Section 125 includes expenses for food, clothing, residence, medical and other expenses relating to normal persuit of fife and it has certainly no bearing from starvation maintenance so that the person maintained is forced to lead an indignified life. However, Court must consider that awarding such amount should not render the person liable to maintain a pauper.

16. It is admitted fact that there is no source of income of her wife / respondent no. 2, so she is unable to maintain herself. She is living separately due to continuous harassment and demand of dowry. Learned trial court after appreciating each and every fact awarded the maintenance allowance of Rs. 19,000/- to the respondent no. 2. Judgment of the learned family court is well reasoned and well discussed. There is no illegality or irregularity in the assessment of the maintenance allowance so there is no interference warranted in the order dated 14.5.2019 passed by learned family court.

17. Revision is devoid of merit and is accordingly dismissed.

18. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

19. A copy of this order be communicated to the lower court for necessary compliance.

Re: Civil Misc. Delay condonation Application No. 1 of 2020:-

1. Additional cause list has been revised. No one is present for the respondents.

2. Learned counsel for the appellant is present.

3. Perused the office report dated 9.10.2020, according to which, in respect of respondent nos. 1 to 5, 7 & 9 neither undelivered cover nor acknowledgement have returned after service and also no one has put in appearance and so far as respondent no.6 is concerned undelivered cover has returned with the remarks that she is dead. The respondent no.6 is also one of the claimants. Admittedly, the other claimants have received the notices. Notice in respect of other claimants is deemed to be sufficient in the light of the aforesaid office report and I proceed to hear the application.

4. The stamp reporter had reported delay of 3937 days in filing the present appeal.

5. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and perused the record.

6. Before proceeding further it would be appropriate to take note of paragraph of Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963, which is quoted as under:-

"5. Extension of prescribed period in certain cases:- Any appeal or any application, other than an application under any of the provisions of Order XXI of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, may be admitted after the prescribed period if the appellant or the applicant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal or making the application within such period.

Explanation.-- The fact that the appellant or the applicant was misled by any order, practice or judgment of the High Court in ascertaining or computing the prescribed period may be sufficient cause within the meaning of this section."

(Emphasis supplied)

7. For the purpose of disposal of the delay condonation application it would also be beneficial to take note of few judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court on this issue.

8. In Baljeet Singh (Dead) Through Legal Representatives And Others vs. State of U.P. And Others (2019) 15 SCC 33 in para 7 it was observed as under:-

"7. The matter requires examination from another aspect viz. laches and delay. It is a very recognised principle of jurisprudence that a right not exercised for a long time is non-existent. Even when there is no limitation period prescribed by any statute relating to certain proceedings, in such cases, courts have coined the doctrine of laches and delay as well as doctrine of acquiescence and non-suited the litigants who approached the court belatedly without any justifiable explanation for bringing the action after unreasonable delay. In those cases, where the period of limitation is prescribed within which the action is to be brought before the court, if the action is not brought within that prescribed period, the aggrieved party loses remedy and cannot enforce his legal right after the period of limitation is over, however, subject to the prayer for condonation of delay and if there is a justifiable explanation for bringing the action after the prescribed period of limitation is over and sufficient cause is shown, the court may condone the delay. Therefore, in a case where the period of limitation is prescribed and the action is not brought within the period of limitation and subsequently proceedings are initiated after the period of limitation along with the prayer for condonation of delay, in that case, the applicant has to make out a sufficient cause and justify the cause for delay with a proper explanation. It is not that in each and every case despite the sufficient cause is not shwon and the delay is not properly explained, the court may condone the delay. To make out a case for condonation of delay, the applicant has to make out a sufficient cause/ reason which prevented him in initiating the proceedings within the period of limitation. Otherwise, he will be accused of gross negligence. If the aggrieved party does not initiate the proceedings within the period of limitation without any sufficient cause, he can be denied the relief on the ground of unexplained laches and delay and on the presumption that such person has waived his right or acquiesced with the order. These principles are based on the principles relatable to sound public policy that if a person does not exercise his right for a long time then such right is non-existing." (emphasis supplied)

9. In Mohd. Sahid And Others vs. Raziya Khanam (Dead) Through Legal Representatives And Others (2019) 11 SCC 384, the rejection of delay condonation application for condoning the delay of 349 days in availing provisions of Order 9 Rule 13 CPC was upheld as reason given was not sufficient and satisfactory.

10. In Bhivchandra Shankar More vs. Balu Gangaram More And Others (2019) 6 SCC 387 in paras 15 and 16 it was observed as under:-

"15. It is a fairly well settled law that "sufficient cause" should be given liberal construction so as to advance sustainable justice when there is no inaction, no negligence nor want of bonafide could be imputable to the appellant. After referring to various judgments, in B. Madhuri, this Court held as under:-

"6. The expression "sufficient cause" used in Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 and other statutes is elastic enough to enable the courts to apply the law in a meaningful manner which serves the ends of justice. No hard-and-fast rule has been or can be laid down for deciding the applications for condonation of delay but over the years courts have repeatedly observed that a liberal approach needs to be adopted in such matters so that substantive rights of the parties are not defeated only on the ground of delay."

16. Observing that the rules of limitation are not meant to destroy the rights of the parties, in N. Balakrishnan v. M. Krishnamurthy, this Court held as under:-

"11. Rules of limitation are not meant to destroy the rights of parties. They are meant to see that parties do not resort to dilatory tactics, but seek their remedy promptly. The object of providing a legal remedy is to repair the damage caused by reason of legal injury. The law of limitation fixes a lifespan for such legal remedy for the redress of the legal injury so suffered. Time is precious and wasted time would never revisit. During the efflux of time, newer causes would sprout up necessitating newer persons to seek legal remedy by approaching the courts. So a lifespan must be fixed for each remedy. Unending period for launching the remedy may lead to unending uncertainty and consequential anarchy. The law of limitation is thus founded on public policy. It is enshrined in the maxim interest reipublicae up sit finis litium (it is for the general welfare that a period be put to litigation). Rules of limitation are not meant to destroy the rights of the parties. They are meant to see that parties do not resort to dilatory tactics but seek their remedy promptly. The idea is that every legal remedy must be kept alive for a legislatively fixed period of time.""

11. A reference may also be made to the judgment/order of this Court dated 10.10.2017 passed in First Appeal From Order Defective No. 1490 of 2017 (Ashok Kumar Alias Ashok Kumar Vohra vs. Zonal Manager Zonal Office National Insurance Co. & 4 Others) whereby delay condonation application was rejected. The extract of pragraph 2 of the said judgment is quoted as under:-

"2. This appeal under Section 173 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 has been filed with a delay of two years and 334 days. In the affidavit accompanying delay condonation application filed under Section 5 of Limitation Act, 1963 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1963") only explanation given is that concerned counsel has not given information but nothing has been placed on record to substantiate this defence."

12. In the above appeal also ground taken was that the learned counsel has not given the information. The Hon'ble Division Bench noted the related law in paragraphs 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13 of Ashok Kumar (supra) which are quoted as under:-

"4. The expression "sufficient cause" in Section 5 of Act, 1963 has been held to receive a liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice and generally a delay in preferring appeal may be condoned in interest of justice where no gross negligence or deliberate inaction or lack of bona fide is imputable to parties, seeking condonation of delay. In Collector, Land Acquisition Vs. Katiji, 1987(2) SCC 107, the Court said, that, when substantial justice and technical considerations are taken against each other, cause of substantial justice deserves to be preferred, for, the other side cannot claim to have vested right in injustice being done because of a non deliberate delay. The Court further said that judiciary is respected not on account of its power to legalise injustice on technical grounds but because it is capable of removing injustice and is expected to do so.

5. In P.K. Ramachandran Vs. State of Kerala, AIR 1998 SC 2276 the Court said:

"Law of limitation may harshly affect a particular party but it has to be applied with all its rigour when the statute so prescribe and the Courts have no power to extend the period of limitation on equitable grounds."

6. The Rules of limitation are not meant to destroy rights of parties. They virtually take away the remedy. They are meant with the objective that parties should not resort to dilatory tactics and sleep over their rights. They must seek remedy promptly. The object of providing a legal remedy is to repair the damage caused by reason of legal injury. The statute relating to limitation determines a life span for such legal remedy for redress of the legal injury, one has suffered. Time is precious and the wasted time would never revisit. During efflux of time, newer causes would come up, necessitating newer persons to seek legal remedy by approaching the courts. So a life span must be fixed for each remedy. Unending period for launching the remedy may lead to unending uncertainty and consequential anarchy. The statute providing limitation is founded on public policy. It is enshrined in the maxim Interest reipublicae up sit finis litium (it is for the general welfare that a period be put to litigation). It is for this reason that when an action becomes barred by time, the Court should be slow to ignore delay for the reason that once limitation expires, other party matures his rights on the subject with attainment of finality. Though it cannot be doubted that refusal to condone delay would result in foreclosing the suiter from putting forth his cause but simultaneously the party on the other hand is also entitled to sit and feel carefree after a particular length of time, getting relieved from persistent and continued litigation.

7. There is no presumption that delay in approaching the court is always deliberate. No person gains from deliberate delaying a matter by not resorting to take appropriate legal remedy within time but then the words "sufficient cause" show that delay, if any, occurred, should not be deliberate, negligent and due to casual approach of concerned litigant, but, it should be bona fide, and, for the reasons beyond his control, and, in any case should not lack bona fide. If the explanation does not smack of lack of bona fide, the Court should show due consideration to the suiter, but, when there is apparent casual approach on the part of suiter, the approach of Court is also bound to change. Lapse on the part of litigant in approaching Court within time is understandable but a total inaction for long period of delay without any explanation whatsoever and that too in absence of showing any sincere attempt on the part of suiter, would add to his negligence, and would be relevant factor going against him.

9. In Shakuntala Devi Jain Vs. Kuntal Kumari, AIR 1969 SC 575 a three

Judge Bench of the Court said, that, unless want of bona fide of such inaction or negligence as would deprive a party of the protection of Section 5 is proved, the application must not be thrown out or any delay cannot be refused to be condoned.

10. The Privy Council in Brij Indar Singh Vs. Kanshi Ram ILR (1918) 45 Cal 94 observed that true guide for a court to exercise the discretion under Section 5 is whether the appellant acted with reasonable diligence in prosecuting the appeal. This principle still holds good inasmuch as the aforesaid decision of Privy Council as repeatedly been referred to, and, recently in State of Nagaland Vs. Lipok AO and others, AIR 2005 SC 2191.

11. In Vedabai @ Vaijayanatabai Baburao Vs. Shantaram Baburao Patil and others, JT 2001(5) SC 608 the Court said that under Section 5 of Act, 1963 it should adopt a pragmatic approach. A distinction must be made between a case where the delay is inordinate and a case where the delay is of a few days. In the former case consideration of prejudice to the other side will be a relevant factor so the case calls for a more cautious approach but in the latter case no such consideration may arise and such a case deserves a liberal approach. No hard and fast rule can be laid down in this regard and the basic guiding factor is advancement of substantial justice.

12. In Pundlik Jalam Patil (dead) by LRS. Vs. Executive Engineer, Jalgaon Medium Project and Anr. (2008) 17 SCC 448, in para 17 of the judgment, the Court said :

"...The evidence on record suggests neglect of its own right for long time in preferring appeals. The court cannot enquire into belated and state claims on the ground of equity. Delay defeats equity. The court helps those who are vigilant and "do not slumber over their rights."

13. In Maniben Devraj Shah Vs. Municipal Corporation of Brihan Mumbai, 2012 (5) SCC 157, in para 18 of the judgment, the Court said as under:

"What needs to be emphasised is that even though a liberal and justice oriented approach is required to be adopted in the exercise of power under Section 5 of the Limitation Act and other similar statutes, the Courts can neither become oblivious of the fact that the successful litigant has acquired certain rights on the basis of the judgment under challenge and a lot of time is consumed at various stages of litigation apart from the cost. What colour the expression 'sufficient cause' would get in the factual matrix of a given case would largely depend on bona fide nature of the explanation. If the Court finds that there has been no negligence on the part of the applicant and the cause shown for the delay does not lack bona fides, then it may condone the delay. If, on the other hand, the explanation given by the applicant is found to be concocted or he is thoroughly negligent in prosecuting his cause, then it would be a legitimate exercise of discretion not to condone the delay. In cases involving the State and its agencies/instrumentalities, the Court can take note of the fact that sufficient time is taken in the decision making process but no premium can be given for total lethargy or utter negligence on the part of the officers of the State and / or its agencies/instrumentalities and the applications filed by them for condonation of delay cannot be allowed as a matter of course by accepting the plea that dismissal of the matter on the ground of bar of limitation will cause injury to the public interest." " (Emphasis supplied)

13. Since, the law is well settled that delay must be sufficiently explained and shall not be a dilatory tactic, I am not inclined to refer to other judgments and I proceed to consider the delay condonation application in the present appeal filed for condoning delay of 3937 days in filing the appeal on merits.

14. Paragraphs 7, 8 and 9 of the affidavit filed in support of the delay condonation application are quoted as under:-

" 7. That on 22.12.2008, Learned Tribunal has illegally and arbitrarily allowed the claim petition and awarded compensation of Rs. 3,25,000/- in favour of the claimants/ Respondent No.3 to 10 and given right to recovery to the Insurance Company to the amount of compensation from the Appellant. The aforesaid judgment passed by the Learned Tribunal was never communicated by counsel of the appellant to him therefore he is not aware about the judgment and the right to recovery given to the Insurance Company.

8. That in compliance of aforesaid award dated 22.12.2008, Respondent Insurance Company has deposited the awarded amount along with interest as Rs. 4,25,302/- before Learned Tribunal and thereafter, in the year 2015, after the lapse of more than 6 years of passing the judgment and award initiated recovery proceeding and filed R.M. 68/2015 (The Oriental Insurance Company Limited vs. Charanjeet Singh) against the Appellant for recovery of Rs. 4,25,302/- on which the notices were also issued to the Appellant by the Court below but the same has not been served upon the Appellant. A Photostat copy of the Application u/s 174 M.V. Act registered as R.M. 68/2015 (The Oriental Insurance Company Limited vs. Charanjeet Singh) is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.-3 to this affidavit.

9. That surprisingly, in the month of September 2019, Appellant received Recovery Warrant issued against him by the Court Below thereafter, he enquired the matter with his local counsel at Mathura only then he has came into knowledge about the passing of order dated 22.12.2008 and the recovery right given to the Insurance Company against him thereafter, without any further delay, he immediately on 19.09.2019 filed his Objection i.e. Paper No.9-Ga against the recovery proceeding in R.M. 68/2015 but the Learned Tribunal has illegally, arbitrarily and contrary to evidence and material available on record rejected the Objection i.e. Paper No. 9-Ga filed by the Appellant on 04.11.2019. For kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court, a xerox copy of the objection dated 19.09.2019 i.e. Paper No. 9-Ga filed by the Appellant and true and certified copy of entire order sheet of the R.M. 68/2015 (The Oriental Insurance Company Limited vs. Charanjeet Singh) are being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.- 4 & 5 to this affidavit respectively."(emphasis supplied)

15. Placing reliance on paragraphs 7, 8 and 9 of the affidavit filed in support of the delay condonation application it was submitted that the award was passed on 22.12.2008 awarding compensation of Rs. 3,25,000/- in favour of the claimants and giving right of recovery to the Insurance Company to recover the amount of compensation from the appellant. The said judgment passed by the learned Tribunal was never communicated by counsel of the appellant to owner- appellant and, therefore, he was not aware about the judgment and right of recovery given to the Insurance Company. It is further submitted that recovery proceedings were initiated in the year 2015 and when the owner-appellant received information about the recovery proceedings, he immediately filed his objection i.e. Paper No. 9-Ga against the recovery proceedings in R.M. 68 of 2015 on 19.9.2019. In such view of the matter, it is submitted that there is no deliberate delay on the part of the appellant.

16. On perusal, first of all I find that the annexure no.3 to the affidavit filed in support of the delay condonation application at page 81 clearly indicates that in paragraph 3 of the affidavit it has been mentioned that the entire award amount of Rs. 4,25,302/- was deposited vide Cheque No. 5083, Bank of Baroda, Mathura dated 13.04.2009. At the top, the case number is shown as R.M. ..... of 2009 and is duly signed by the Divisional Manager. However, it prima facie, appears from the order-sheet of the recovery proceedings in the present case that the same was filed on 14.8.2015 for the reasons best known to the officers/ officials of the Insurance Company. Insofar as recovery proceedings are concerned, fact remains that the owner-appellant had contested the claim petition and in the written statement filed by him it was not pleaded that the Driver was holding valid license. A finding on the issue that the driver was not holding the valid license was recorded on the basis of the report submitted by the Insurance Company being paper no. 71-Ga/1-4 and thereafter, the judgment was passed giving right of recovery to the Insurance Company to recover the amount from the owner-appellant herein. A bald statement in this regard that the owner-appellant was never informed about the passing of the award by the counsel for a period of more than 10 years is not acceptable in the case. The appellant-herein is a transporter by profession/ business and the vehicle involved was a water tanker.

17. Even in the application paper no. 9-Ga filed in the recovery proceedings it has nowhere been alleged that the owner-appellant was never informed about the award passed by the Tribunal by his counsel and was not aware of the same till the receipt of the recovery certificate.

18. The contention that the owner-appellant was not aware of the award for about more than 10 years is not acceptable also in view of the provisions of Section 168 (2) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 which clearly provides that "(2) The claim Tribunal shall arrange to deliver copies of the award to the parties concerned expeditiously and in any case within a period of fifteen days from the date of the award."

19. In such view of the matter, I am not inclined to condone the delay of more than 11 years in filing the present appeal.

20. Therefore, the delay condonation application has no merit and the explanation given in this regard is not sufficient. The same is, accordingly, rejected and consequently, the appeal also stands dismissed.

21. The statutory amount deposited before this Court shall be remitted to the Tribunal concerned for adjustment that is to be recovered from the appellant herein.

Re: First Appeal From Order Defective:-

1. Since the delay condonation application has been rejected by me by order of date, consequently, present appeal also stands dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Attau Rahman Masoodi, J.)

1. The checkered history which this case carries over a period of last about ten years may be briefly stated as under.

2. The sole respondent-plaintiff who was an employee of ICICI Bank Limited, while holding the post of Chief Manager, Band-I, was transferred from Lucknow to Hyderabad vide order dated 10.5.2011. This order was issued from the regional office (north) of the Bank at Delhi and served upon the respondent-plaintiff at Lucknow.

3. The respondent-plaintiff feeling aggrieved against the order of transfer approached this Court by filing Writ Petition No. 964 of 2011 but on the strength of a preliminary objection that the ICICI Bank was not a State within the meanings of Article 12 of the Constitution of India, therefore, challenge to the transfer order within the scope of writ jurisdiction failed and while dismissing the writ petition on 26.5.2011, this Court left it open for the respondent-plaintiff to raise his grievance before the appropriate forum.

4. The respondent-plaintiff chose to institute a suit i.e. R.S. No. 166/2011 against the order of transfer passed by the appellant-defendant on 10.5.2011 before the Civil Judge, Senior Division, Mohanlalganj, Lucknow. The suit was subsequently transferred from the court of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Mohanlalganj, Lucknow to the court of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Lucknow where it was renumbered as Regular Suit No. 971 of 2011. Later on, the appellant/employer proceeded to terminate the services of the respondent by order dated 7.6.2011 giving him two months' salary in lieu of notice. This part of the cause was also incorporated in the plaint by filing an amendment application which was allowed. The record reveals that an application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC was filed by the appellant Bank whereby the very maintainability of the suit in the light of Section 14 read with Section 41(e) and (h) of the Specific Relief Act was questioned. The application was allowed and the suit was dismissed by judgement/decree dated 2.12.2016.

5. The judgement/decree rendered by the court of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Lucknow in Regular Suit No. 971 of 2011 on 2.12.2016 came to be challenged in the first appeal under Section 96 CPC before the District Judge, Lucknow where it was registered as Regular Civil Appeal No. 17 of 2017. The first appeal so filed by the respondent-plaintiff was allowed and the proceedings were remitted back to the trial court for adjudication of the suit on merit.

6. This judgement passed by the first appellate court remitting the matter back to the trial court on 17.8.2017 was assailed before this Court in FAFO No. 306 of 2017. The FAFO filed by the Bank was allowed on 19.9.2017 remanding the matter back to the first appellate court for deciding the Regular Civil Appeal in consonance with the mandate of Order XLI Rule 31 CPC. The first appellate court below keeping in view the judgement rendered by this Court on 19.9.2017 has finally decided the first appeal by means of the impugned judgement dated 22.11.2017, whereby, the matter is remitted back to the trial court again for decision of the civil suit on merit.

7. The present FAFO under Section 104 read with Order XLIII Rule 1(u) CPC has questioned the remand order inter alia on the ground that the suit instituted by the respondent-plaintiff is barred by law.

8. In the context of challenge as above, It may be noted that the amended plaint prayed for the relief as under:

(i) That a decree be passed in favour of the plaintiff declaring the transfer order dated 10.5.2011 transferring the plaintiff from Lucknow to Hyderabad and the impugned order dated 7.6.2011 terminating the services of the plaintiff be declared as non est and illegal and the plaintiff be declared to be deemed in service w.e.f 1.6.2011;

(ii) That a decree of permanent injunction be passed in favour of plaintiff restraining the defendants from transferring the plaintiff from Lucknow and proceeding in furtherance of the impugned order dated 7.6.2011;

(ii-a) A decree of recovery of the unpaid salary for the months June 2011 to the completed month of September 2011 less the amount paid as two months basic salary towards notice period besides the pendente lite salary and future salary with all the promotional and annual increments and other benefits on being declared to be deemed in service by this Hon'ble Court."

9. Heard Sri N.K. Seth, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Prashant Kumar, Advocate and the respondent-plaintiff who appeared in person at length.

10. Sri N.K. Seth would contend that the relief sought in the plaint essentially seeks to enforce a right emerging out of a personal contract which is clearly unenforceable under the provisions of Section 14 read with Section 41(e) and (h) of the Specific Relief Act, hence the suit was rightly dismissed. The submission in nutshell is that a contract of service which essentially is personal contract, is not enforceable under the provisions of Specific Relief Act and for the termination of such a contract, the remedy for damages alone would lie before the competent civil court. The position of law, according to learned counsel, is well settled by the apex court in the following cases:

2.	Nandganj Sihori Sugar Co. Ltd. v. Badri Nath Dixit & others	(1991) 3 SCC 54

5.	State Bank of India v. S.N. Goyal	(2008) 8 SCC 92

11. The second submission urged by learned counsel for the appellant is that the ICICI Bank being a private body has already been held not to be a State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India, therefore, the respondent-plaintiff is not entitled to the protection of three exceptions propounded by the apex court in the case of State Bank of India v. S.N. Goyal. To impress upon the Court that ICICI Bank is not a State within the scope of Article-12 of the Constitution of India, the following decisions were cited:

Sl	Particulars	Citation
1.	Nandganj Sihori Sugar Co. Ltd. v. Badri Nath Dixit & others	(1991) 3 SCC 54

6.	Krishna Kumar Gujrati v. ICICI Bank	Decided on 26.5.2011 [Writ Petition No. 964 (SB) of 2011] Allahabad High Court

12. The third submission which revolves the same point is that the application filed under Order VII Rule 11 CPC has wrongly been rejected by the appellate court below once the suit was legally non-maintainable for the relief sought therein.

13. In support of this submission, the following case laws have been cited:

Sl	Particulars	Citation
1.	T. Avrivandandam v. T.V. Satyapal	(1977) 4 SCC 467
2.	Dhartipakar Madan Lal Agarwal v. Rajiv Gandhi	AIR 1987 SC 157
3.	Saleem Bhai v. State of Maharastra	(2003) 1 SCC 557

14. The respondent-plaintiff who appears in person has ably argued his case by referring to a large number of cases needless to mention but in substance the argument put forth may be noted as under.

15. The respondent-plaintiff has made a serious effort to impress upon the Court that he being a regular employee in the Bank ought to have been understood differently by the trial court as compared to those who are appointed for a fixed period, therefore, the appellate court below has rightly appreciated the fine distinction in the nature of employment calling for remedial protection. According to the respondent-plaintiff, an employee who is not protected within the three-fold exceptions carved out by the apex court in Goyal's case (supra) is nevertheless entitled to maintain a suit for revival of the contract of employment once his appointment is regular but not for a fixed period.

16. The respondent-plaintiff argued vehemently that this material distinction alters the very essence of express contract termination whereof by a juristic person, in violation of the principles of natural justice, would entitle him for reinstatement in service. The action against a regular employee taken in violation of the principles of natural justice, it is strongly contended, deserves protection within the ambit of Article 21 of the Constitution of India, therefore, the relief sought in the suit is maintainable for decision of the suit on merit.

17. For the sake of clarity it may be relevant to extract the relevant passage of S.N. Goyal's judgement on the aspect of personal contract. Para-11 is thus extracted below:

"11. Where the relationship of master and servant is purely contractual, it is well settled that a contract of personal service is not specifically enforceable, having regard to the bar contained in section 14 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. Even if the termination of the contract of employment (by dismissal or otherwise) is found to be illegal or in breach, the remedy of the employee is only to seek damages and not specific performance. Courts will neither declare such termination to be a nullity nor declare that the contract of employment subsists nor grant the consequential relief of reinstatement. The three well recognized exceptions to this rule are:

(i) where a civil servant is removed from service in contravention of the provisions of Article 311 of the Constitution of India (or any law made under Article 309);

(ii) where a workman having the protection of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 is wrongly terminated from service; and

(iii) where an employee of a statutory body is terminated from service in breach or violation of any mandatory provision of a statute or statutory rules.

There is thus a clear distinction between public employment governed by statutory rules and private employment governed purely by contract. The test for deciding the nature of relief damages or reinstatement with consequential reliefs is whether the employment is governed purely by contract or by a statute or statutory rules. Even where the employer is a statutory body, where the relationship is purely governed by contract with no element of statutory governance, the contract of personal service will not be specifically enforceable. Conversely, where the employer is a non-statutory body, but the employment is governed by a statute or statutory rules, a declaration that the termination is null and void and that the employee should be reinstated can be granted by courts. (Vide : Dr. S. Dutt vs. University of Delhi AIR 1958 SC 1050; Executive Committee of UP State Warehousing Corporation Ltd. Vs. Chandra Kiran Tyagi 1970 (2) SCR 250; Sirsi Municipality vs. Cecelia Kom Francies Tellis 1973 (3) SCR 348; Executive Committee of Vaish Degree College vs. Lakshmi Narain 1976 (2) SCR 1006; Smt. J. Tiwari vs. Smt. Jawala Devi Vidya Mandir AIR 1981 SC 122; and Dipak Kumar Biswas vs. Director of Public Instruction AIR 1987 SC 1422)."

18. Interestingly, the resting of authority to transfer an employee from one place to another or his termination from service by the appellant-employer is not in dispute. It is only when the authority is exercised by way of disciplinary action, the rule of opportunity becomes significant. The essence of master and servant relationship is that of personal contract in both the situations and it is immaterial whether the employment is regular or for a fixed period.

19. As is evident from the relief clause extracted hereinabove, the respondent-plaintiff has assailed both the orders passed by the appellant-defendant viz the order of transfer from Lucknow to Hyderabad passed on 10.5.2011 as well as the order of termination from service issued on 7.6.2011. This Court may note that as per the express service contract, the respondent-plaintiff was holding a transferable post, therefore, the transfer order passed by the employer was not a cause classified under any of the disciplinary measures defined in the rules applicable to the employees of the ICICI Bank.

20. The disciplinary action comprises of three types of measures viz cautionary action, deterrent action and capital action. The order of transfer from Lucknow to Hyderabad is not covered under any of the three measures mentioned above. Even if the action of transfer is arbitrary or mala fide, whether an employee of the Bank would have a remedy against the transfer of his services from one place to another, a question does arise. The answer as per the plain reading of the rules is in negative.

21. An employee who freely accepts the employment inclusive of a clause contemplating transfer of services from one place to another, looses his right to question such a cause. There was equally no impediment pleaded in the plaint subject to which the employer was bound to exercise the power of transfer. Therefore, respondent-plaintiff did not have a cause of action at all, insofar as the order of transfer passed on 10.5.2011 is concerned. In the circumstances of the case, the objection under Order VII Rule 11 CPC raised on the strength of the express bar envisaged under Section 14 read with Section 41 (e) and (h) of the Specific Relief Act coupled with the lack of cause of action, was rightly allowed. An employee whether regular or for a fixed period can not be subjected to servitude against his will and it is for this reason that the relief for reinstatement consequent upon the termination of master and servant relationship would not lie. The remedy for damages available, if any, was not prayed in the plaint.

22. It is also relevant to note that termination from service is a measure classified as capital action. Any order passed by the disciplinary authority by way of a disciplinary action is amenable to appeal within the period of limitation. The hierarchy of authorities before which the appeal lies is specified in the rules. The appellate authority is under a bounden duty to decide such appeals by a detailed and speaking order. Finality is attached to the reasoning recorded by the appellate authority.

23. In the present case, the termination of employment by order dated 7.6.2011 was not taken up in appeal on any grounds whatsoever, therefore, the infringement of procedure or the action amounting to punishment in the given set of circumstances was never raised. The respondent-plaintiff at his own risk had chosen to challenge the order of transfer from Lucknow to Hyderabad by filing a civil suit for which neither there was a cause nor a remedy. A whistle-blower employee was as helpless as any other employee on transfer of his services and had no right to challenge such an order on the ground of mala fides or otherwise. The authority to transfer the employees from one place to another by a competent authority was absolute. It is for this reason that the appellant-defendant decided to dispense with the services of the respondent-plaintiff on payment of two months' salary in lieu of notice. The action taken, according to the Bank, is not punitive. Even if the order of termination from service was punitive, the respondent-plaintiff never questioned the same on any ground before the appellate authority. According to the appellant Bank, the matter understood as capital action, unless taken up in appeal by the respondent, the entitlement for damages on any ground whatsoever, perished by the self inflicted injury of the respondent-plaintiff.

24. Insofar as the termination of master and servant relationship is concerned, undoubtedly the power was vested in the appellant Bank and so long as the same was questioned through a notice or appeal, a cause for claiming damages would be doubtful. The amendment application even if allowed by the trial court prior to the disposal of application under Order VII Rule 11 was inconsequential and the objection as to the maintainability of suit raised by the appellant Bank was rightly dealt with by the learned trial court.

25. The appellate court below while dealing with the three-fold question has firstly misdirected itself to frame the points of determination and secondly the distinction drawn on the aspect of regular employee and contractual employee is superfluous. The nature of contract in either of the situations remains one and the same. The cause of action was bound to be considered in the light of the master and servant relationship and the conditions of service which the first appellate court has failed to appreciate. To opine that ICICI Bank was a State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India is clearly in the teeth of judgements rendered by the apex court as well as by this Court. Maintainability of the application filed under Order VII Rule 11 CPC rightly concluded by the trial court has erroneously been set naught by the first appellate court below. Thus, the judgement rendered by the first appellate court impugned herein being erroneous deserves to be set aside and the judgement/decree passed by the trial court dismissing the suit calls for revival.

26. Even if it is assumed that the action of termination from service was punitive and resorted to without following the principles of natural justice, this by itself was a relevant consideration for the award of damages which the respondent has failed to claim but revival of service contract on that account and his reinstatement with all consequential benefits as prayed for in the plaint is misconceived. The trial court had rightly appreciated the position of law but for the reasons put on record, the first appellate court clearly fell in error to upset the trial court judgement. In my considered opinion, the impugned judgement passed by the first appellate court below deserves to be set aside and is accordingly set aside. The judgement passed by the trial court is upheld.

27. The operative part of this judgement was pronounced in the open court for the reasons to follow, hence the benefit of limitation would be available to the parties up to the date when this judgement stands uploaded on the official website of the High Court.

28. The FAFO stands allowed. Parties to bear their own cost.

2. National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs Mannat Johat & ors. 2019 (2) TAC 705 (SC)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sudhanshu Behari Lal Gour, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Vidya Kant Shukla, learned counsel for the respondent-claimants.

2. Facts giving rise to this appeal is that on 9.4.2016 Basant Kumar Dixit riding on his motorcycle bearing registration no. U.P.78/DD/5182 was going to Kanpur from M/s Jai Ambe Brick Field, Sarlekhpur, Ghatampur for realisation of the amount and as soon as he reached near closed shop before Raipur bridge, the driver of Truck No. U.P. 22/T/5888 came rashly and negligently without blowing horn and dashed the motorcycle badly on account of which he fell down on the road and driver of the truck proceeded ahead crushing him as consequence of which the deceased succumbed to his injuries on the spot.

3. The claimants approached the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.7, Kanpur Nagar (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal' by way of filing M.A.C.P. No.410 of 2016 claiming compensation of Rs. 20,00,000/- with 12% annual interest.

4. The Tribunal by way of impugned judgment and award dated 3.11.2017 awarded a sum of Rs.7,24,496/- as compensation with annual interest at the rate of 7% from the date of filing claim petition till date of payment. Being dissatisfied, the appellant-Insurance Company filed present appeal challenging the said award.

5. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is not in dispute. The Insurance Company has not challenged the liability imposed on them. The only issue to be decided is, the quantum of compensation awarded.

6. I have perused the Judgment and award impugned herein.

7. This appeal requires to be allowed as learned counsel Sri Vidya Kant Shukla, learned counsel appearing for the claimants could not dispute the fact that the addition for future prospects should not be 20% but it should be 10% as submitted by counsel for the Insurance Company. The age of the deceased was 59 years is admitted position of fact. Income of the deceased has been considered to be Rs.8,000/- to which 1/3rd has to be deducted for personal expenses which would be Rs.2,666/- (rounded figure) to which addition of 10% would be required instead of 20% as per the Judgment of National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050. The rest of the award shall remain undisturbed as I am unable to accept the submission of Sri Gour that as far as Pranay Sethi (supra), the amount of love and affection would have been Rs.70,000/-. The Judgment of Pranay Sethi (supra) has considered future addition at 10% per yer. The accident occurred in the year 2016, hence, the amount is not disturbed.

8. The interest at the rate of 7% is modified to 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johat and others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under:

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

9. The appeal is partly allowed. Amount has to be recalculated. Refund of excess amount has to be made to the Insurance company by account payee cheque, however, the amount at the rate of interest is more, the Insurance Company shall deposit the same.

10. With the aforesaid observations, present appeal is partly allowed.

11. Record and proceedings be sent to the Tribunal.

Counsel for the Appellant:
Komal Mehrotra

Counsel for the Respondents:

A. Interpretation of Statute - Golden Rule of Interpretation - Purposive Interpretation - Plain words have to be accepted as such but where the intention of the legislature is not clear - it is the Court's duty to discern the intention in the context of the background in which a particular Section is enacted - Courts have to give the statute a purposeful or a functional interpretation - provisions of Act have to be read so as to achieve and promote the aims and object of the Act - construction which would defeat the rights of the havenots and the underdog and which would lead to injustice should be avoided (Para 13)

B. Interpretation of Statute - when a provision is directory - provision in a statute which is procedural in nature although employs the word "shall" may not be held to be mandatory - if the procedural violation does not seriously cause prejudice to the adversary party - courts must lean towards doing substantial justice rather than relying upon procedural and technical violation - litigation is a journey towards truth & court is required to thrash out the underlying truth in every dispute (Para 18, 19)

C. Civil Law - Employee's Compensation Act, 1923 - Interpretation - this Act is a piece of social security and welfare legislation - dominant purpose is to protect the workman - Act has been enacted with a object to provide payment by certain classes of employers to their employees of compensation for injury by the accident - provisions of the Act should not be interpreted too narrowly so as to debar the workman from compensation - In case of doubt the interpretation in favour of the worker should be preferred (Para 11, 12, 14)

D. Civil Law - Employees Compensation Act (8 of 1923)- Section 10 - Claim petition - Maintainability - Statutory notice of the accident in writing without delay to the employer - Directory - Held - Act being a beneficial piece of legislation enacted for the benefit of the have-nots and Commissioner having been given power to entertain the claim petition & decide the same even in absence of notice u/s 10 of the Act - the statutory requirement of giving notice of accident u/s 10 of the Act is merely 'directory' and not 'mandatory' - claim petition would be maintainable even if no notice of accident is given to the Insurance company u/s 10 & even without any prayer for waiver of the statutory notice (Para 21, 29)

E. Civil Law - Employees Compensation Act (8 of 1923)-

Section 21(1)(b) - Claim petition - Venue of proceeding - Territorial jurisdiction - claim petition may be filed by the claimant where the claimant ordinarily resides - expression `ordinarly resides' - means where the person claiming compensation normally resides at the time of filing the claim petition - Not necessary that it should be filed where accident takes place - Claim petition cannot be rejected on ground of territorial jurisdiction alone, where claims are preferred under beneficial piece of legislation - as the Insurance Company has branch office everywhere and therefore, no prejudice is caused to the company (Para 26, 27)

Vehicle insured at district Siwan - accident took place in district Siwan (Bihar) - claimants landless labourers shifted to District Gorakhpur & residing there - Insurance Company has its regional office at Gorakhpur - Held - once the insurance Company has branch offices at different places, therefore, no substantial injury or injustice would cause to the insurance-Company (Para 28)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Kumar Birla, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant.

2. Present appeal has been filed challenging the award dated 16.7.2020 passed by Commissioner / Deputy Labour Commissioner, Gorakhpur in E.C. Case No. 79 of 2015.

3. Challenging the impugned award submission is that in view of the provision of Section 21 (1) (b) of the Employee's Compensation Act, 1923 (hereinafter referred to as the Act) learned Commissioner at Gorakhpur did not have the jurisdiction to decide claim petition inasmuch as the claimants are resident of district Siwan and the accident had also taken place in district Siwan. The vehicle was also insured by the branch office of the appellant-Company at district Siwan in the State of Bihar. It was further submitted that even in her statement the claimant no. 1 had stated that she has come from district Siwan and therefore, the claimants are not resident of Gorakhpur. Submission, therefore, is that the amendment is totally without jurisdiction.

4. It was further submitted that no notice under Section 10 of the Act was given to the Insurance Company and as such the claim petition was not maintainable. He has drawn attention to the substantial questions of law framed in the present appeal, which are quoted as under:-

"A. Whether the finding recorded by the Commissioner Employee compensation while deciding preliminary issue is illegal, erroneous and misappraisal of the records?

B. Whether the present claim petition was not maintainable as the learned Commissioner lacked jurisdiction in view of Section 21 of the Act?

C. Whether analogy derived by the Commissioner Employees Compensation Act while deciding preliminary issue is perverse and based on no reasoning?

D. Whether in the absence of notice under section 10 of the Employees Compensation Act the claim petition is maintainable without any prayer for waiver of the statutory notice?"

5. Submission, therefore, is that the claim petition itself was not maintainable in absence of notice under Section 10 of the Act without there being any prayer for waiver of the same and that in any case in view of Section 21 (1)(b) of the Act the Tribunal at Gorakhpur was coram non judice. Submission is that the impugned award is, therefore, without jurisdiction.

6. I have considered the submissions and have perused the record.

7. Before proceeding further it would be relevant to note Section 10 and Section 21 (1) (b) of the Employee's Compensation Act, 1923, which are quoted as under:-

"10. Notice and claim.- (1) No claim for compensation shall be entertained by a Commissioner unless notice of the accident has been given in the manner hereinafter provided as soon as practicable after the happening thereof and unless the claim is preferred before him within two years] of the occurrence of the accident or, in case of death, within two years] from the date of death:]

Provided that, where the accident is the contracting of a disease in respect of which the provisions of sub- section (2) of section 3 are applicable, the accident shall be deemed to have occurred on the first of the days during which the workman was continuously absent from work in consequence of the disablement caused by the disease:

Provided further that in case of partial disablement due to the contracting of any such disease and which does not force the workman to absent himself from work, the period of two years shall be counted from the day the workman gives notice of the disablement to his employer:

Provided further that if a workman who, having been employed in an employment for a continuous period, specified under sub- section (2) of section 3 in respect of that employment, ceases to be so employed and develops symptoms of an occupational disease peculiar to that employment within two years of the cessation of employment, the accident shall be deemed to have occurred on the day on which the symptoms were first detected:]

Provided further that the want of or any defect or irregularity in a notice shall not be a bar to the entertainment of a claim]--

(a) if the claim is preferred] in respect of the death of a workman resulting from an accident which occurred on the premises of the employer, or at any place where the workman at the time of the accident was working under the control of the employer or of any person employed by him, and the workman died on such premises or at such place, or on any premises belonging to the employer, or died without having left the vicinity of the premises or place where the accident occurred, or

(b) if the employer or any one of several employers or any person responsible to the employer for the management of any branch of the trade or business in which the injured workman was employed] had knowledge of the accident from any other source at or about the time when it occurred:

Provided further, that the Commissioner may entertain] and decide any claim to compensation in any case notwithstanding that the notice has not been given, or the claim has not been preferred], in due time as provided in this sub- section, if he is satisfied that the failure so to give the notice or prefer] the claim, as the case may be, was due to sufficient cause.

(2) Every such notice shall give the name and address of the person injured and shall state in ordinary language the cause of the injury and the date on which the accident happened, and shall be served on the employer or upon any one of] several employers, or upon any person responsible to the employer for the management of any branch of the trade or business in which the injured workman was employed.

(3) The State Government may require that any prescribed class of employers shall maintain at their premises at which workmen are employed a notice-book, in the prescribed form, which shall be readily accessible at all reasonable times to any injured workman employed on the premises and to any person acting bona fide on his behalf.

(4) A notice under this section may be served by delivering it at, or sending it by registered post addressed to, the residence or any office or place of business of the person on whom it is to be served, or, where a notice- book is maintained, by entry in the notice- book.]

(emphasis supplied)

21. Venue of proceedings and transfer - (1) Where any matter under this Act is to be done by or before a Commissioner, the same shall, subject to the provisions of this Act and to any rules made hereunder, be done by or before the Commissioner for the area in which-

(a) the accident took place which resulted in the injury; or

(b) the [employee] or in case of his death, the dependant claiming the compensation ordinarily resides; or

(c) .....

(2) .....

(3) .....

(4) .....

8. Now insofar as the submission that the claim petition was not maintainable in absence of notice under Section 10 of the Act, in Section 10(1)(b) a proviso has been added, whereby the Commissioner is empowered to entertain a claim petition and decide any claim to compensation in any case notwithstanding that the notice has not been give, or the claim has not been preferred, in due time as provided in this sub-section, if he is satisfied that the failure so to give the notice or prefer the claim, as the case may be, was due to sufficient cause. Therefore, in such view of the matter, this Court is of the opinion that in a case of beneficial legislation the requirement of the notice cannot be inferred in strict sense so as to hold a claim not maintainable in absence of notice under Section 10 of the Act. Clearly, the Commissioner is empowered to entertain and decide the claim to compensation.

9. Insofar as the applicability of provision of Section 21 (1)(b) of the Act is concerned, again the provision has to be interpreted in the manner so as to serve the purpose and object of this beneficial piece of legislation.

10. Therefore, although, I am of the opinion that the substantial questions of law as framed in the present memo of appeal do not arise for consideration, however, in view of the arguments raised by learned counsel for the appellant and in view of the observations made and as held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sir Chunilal vs. Mehta Sons Ltd. vs. Century Spinning and Manufacturing Company Ltd. AIR 1962 SC 1314, I proceed to decide the question nos. B and D as framed in the memo of appeal in view of the fact that such questions are repeatedly raised before this Court by the Insurance Company in appeals filed before this Court. Relevant paragraph 6 of Sir Chunilal (supra) is quoted as under:-

"6. We are in general agreement with the view taken by the Madras High Court and we think that while the view taken by. the Bombay High Court is rather narrow the one taken by the former High Court of Nagpur is too wide. The proper test for determining whether a question of law raised in the case is substantial would, in our opinion, be whether it is of general public importance or whether it directly and substantially affects the rights of the parties and if so whether it is either an open question in the sense that it is not finally settled by this Court or by the Privy Council or by the Federal Court or is not free from difficulty or calls for discussion of alternative views. If the question is settled by the highest Court or the general principles to be applied in determining the question are well settled and there is a mere question of applying those principles or that the plea raised is palpably absurd the question would not be a substantial question of law." (emphasis supplied)

11. It is the golden rule of interpretation that the provisions of any Act have to be read so as to achieve the aims and object of the Act. The Employee's Compensation Act, 1923 has been enacted with a object that this is an Act to provide that payment by certain classes of employers to their employees of compensation for injury by the accident.

12. It is needless to point out that it is too well settled that this Act is a piece of social security and welfare legislation and its dominant purpose is to protect the workman and, therefore, the provisions of the Act should not be interpreted too narrowly so as to debar the workman from compensation which the legislature thought they ought to have.

13. A reference may be made to a judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bharat Singh vs. Management of New Delhi Tuberculosis Centre, New Delhi and others 1986 (2) SCC 614, paragraph 11 whereof are quoted as under:-

"11. In interpretation of statutes, Courts have steered clear of the rigid stand of looking into the words of the Section alone but have attempted to make the object of the enactment effective and to render its benefits unto the person in whose favour it is made. The legislators are entrusted with the task of only making laws. Interpretation has to come from the Courts. Section 17-B on its terms does not say that it would bind awards passed before the date when it came into force. The respondents' contention is that a Section which imposes an obligation for the first time, cannot be made retrospective. Such sections should always be considered prospective. In our view, if this submission is accepted, we will be defeating the very purpose for which this Section has been enacted. It is here that the Court has to evolve the concept of purposive interpretation which has found acceptance whenever a progressive social beneficial legislation is under review. We share the view that where the words of a statute are plain and unambiguous effect must be given to them. Plain words have to be accepted as such but where the intention of the legislature is not clear from the words or where two constructions are possible, it is the Court's duty to discern the intention in the context of the background in which a particular Section is enacted. Once such an intention is ascertained the Courts have necessarily to give the statute a purposeful or a functional interpretation. Now, it is trite to say that acts aimed at social amelioration giving benefits for the havenots should receive liberal construction. It is always the duty of the Court to give such a construction to a statute as would promote the purpose or object of the Act. A construction that promotes the purpose of the legislation should be preferred to a literal construction. A construction which would defeat the rights of the havenots and the underdog and which would lead to injustice should always be avoided. This Section was intended to benefit the workmen in certain cases. It would be doing injustice to the Section if we were to say that it would not apply to awards passed a day or two before it came into force."

14. In Bharat Singh (supra) Hon'ble Apex Court has taken the view that welfare legislation should be given a purposive interpretation safeguarding the rights of the have-nots rather than giving a literal construction. In case of doubt the interpretation in favour of the worker should be preferred.

15. A reference may also be made to judgment of Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court in the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Rais and another 2016 (2) AICC 1502 (DB). Paragraphs 19 and 20 whereof are quoted as under:-

"19. In the written statement on behalf of the appellant a plea has been raised that application of the respondent no.1 is barred by Section 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 for want of statutory notice. A Workman, who is injured in accident, is duty bound to give a notice of it informing in writing without delay to the employer. The object of giving such notice appears to enable the employer to verify the accident and its nexus with the course of his employment, however, no claim for compensation will be rejected in case of accident resulted in the death of the workman in the premises of the employer or within his control or the employer had knowledge of the accident from any other source. Thus, there is no hard and fast rule about the compliance of Section 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923, which may render the claim not maintainable.

20. In the present case, the employer has not opposed the claim on the basis of want of notice. The Insurance Company has no locus to raise this plea. Moreover, in the application for compensation in para 11 specific plea has been mentioned that respondent no.1 had the knowledge of the accident, which resulted in the death of the deceased Mohd. Asif. For this reason there was no need to give notice under section 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923. This plea has not been controverted by the respondent no.1, who is the employer. In this background, we are of the opinion that in the present case the Commissioner has rightly waived the condition of notice and on this account no fault can be found in the impugned judgment and order."

16. In the present case, in paragraph 16 of written statement the owner / employer / insured has categorically stated that they have informed the Insurance Company Branch Officer Siwan in writing about the accident and death of Driver Govind Kumar. Further, they have not challenged the absence of notice under Section 10 of the Act and employer / insured has not opposed the claim on the basis of want of notice under Section 10 of the Act, Thus, Insurance Company cannot raise this plea.

17. In such view of the matter, facts as well as law as involved, in present case, insofar as notice under Section 10 of the Act is concerned, are fully covered the observation made by Hon'ble Division of this Court in Rais (supra).

18. In what circumstances and context a statute provision can be considered to be mandatory or directory a reference may also be made to a landmark judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of P. T. Rajan vs. T.P.M. Sahir 2003 (8) SCC 498. Paragraph 49 whereof is quoted as under:-

"49. Furthermore, a provision in a statute which is procedural in nature although employs the word "shall" may not be held to be mandatory if thereby no prejudice is caused. (See Raza Buland Sugar Co. Ltd v. Municipal Board, Rampur AIR 1965 SC 895, State Bank of Patiala v. S.K. Sharma 1996 (3) SCC 364, Venkataswamappa v. Special Dy. Commr. (Revenue) 1997 (9) SCC 128 and Rai Vimal Krishna v. State of Bihar 2003 (6) SCC 401)" (emphasis supplied)

19. It is the settled law that procedure is the handmaid of justice. Suffice to refer to a latest judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sugandhi (dead) by Lrs. and another vs. P. Rajkumar Rep. By his Power Agent Imam Oli 2020 SCC Online SC 870. Paragraph 10, whereof is quoted as under:-

"10. It is often said that procedure is the handmaid of justice. Procedural and technical hurdles shall not be allowed to come in the way the of the court while doing substantial justice. If the procedural violation does not seriously cause prejudice to the adversary party, courts must lean towards doing substantial justice rather than relying upon procedural and technical violation. We should not forget the fact that litigation is nothing but a journey towards truth which is the foundation of justice and the court is required to take appropriate steps to thrash out the underlying truth in every dispute. Therefore, the court should take a lenient view when an application is made for production of the documents under sub-rule (3)." (emphasis supplied)

20. No doubt, in the very first line of Section 10 (1) of the Act the word used is "shall" that "No claim for compensation 'shall' be entertained by a Commissioner unless notice of accident .....", has been used. It is also equally correct that in a normal sense word "shall" is used in mandatory sense. However, it is also golden rule of interpretation that in the field of law, to give the statute a purposeful or functional interpretation and that it should promote the purpose or the object of the Act, as observed in Bharat Singh (supra), a construction which would defeat the rights of the have-nots and the underdog and which would lead to injustice, should always be avoided. Keeping this in mind, coupled with the discretion given to the Commissioner by proviso to 3rd proviso to Section 10(1) of the Act by using word "may" that "provided further, that the Commissioner 'may' entertain and decide any claim to compensation in any case notwithstanding that the notice has not been given, ... was due to sufficient reason," to my mind, this discretion left with the Commissioner can be best exercised if the word "shall" in first line of Section 10(1) of the Act is taken or interpreted as directory and not mandatory, moreso, when this point is related to procedural part of preferring a claim, and to my mind, it is not referable to substantive right of a claimant, which stood accrued the moment untoward incident or accident has taken place. Moreso, when the Act is a beneficial piece of legislation.

21. Accordingly, it is held that in view of the Act being a beneficial piece of legislation enacted for the benefit of the have-nots and the Commissioner having been given power to entertain the claim petition and decide the same even in absence of notice under Section 10 of the Act, the interpretation of statutory requirement of giving notice under Section 10 of the Act is merely 'directory' and cannot be held to be 'mandatory', which may render the claim not maintainable.

22. Insofar as the applicability of provision of Section 21 (1)(b) of the Act is concerned, again the provision has to be interpreted in the manner so as to serve the purpose and object of this beneficial piece of legislation as the manner in which interpretation has to be given to this clause also is already settled by the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bharat Singh (supra) as noted above.

23. Insofar as territorial jurisdiction in such cases of accident and death is concerned, a reference may be made to certain judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Mantoo Sarkar vs. Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. and others 2009 (2) SCC 244, Malati Sardar vs. National Insurance Company Limited and others 2016 (3) SCC 43 and Morgina Begum vs. Md. Hanuman Plantation Limited 2007 (11) SCC 616.

24. Paragraphs 16, 18, 20, 21 and 23 of Mantoo Sarkar (supra) are quoted as under:-

"16. We say so because ordinarily an appellate court shall not, having regard to the provisions contained in sub-section (1) of Section 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure, entertain an appeal on the ground of lack of territorial jurisdiction on the part of the court below unless he has been prejudiced thereby. Other respondents did not raise any question of jurisdiction.

Although one witness each had been examined on behalf of the truck owner and owner of the bus, neither a question of lack of territorial jurisdiction was raised nor the question of any prejudice had been argued. It is only the first respondent who raised the question of territorial jurisdiction. However, no prejudice was caused to the appellant by the claim petition being tried by the MACT at Nainital.

18. The Tribunal is a court subordinate to the High Court. An appeal against the Tribunal lies before the High Court. The High Court, while exercising its appellate power, would follow the provisions contained in the Code of Civil Procedure or akin thereto. In view of sub-section (1) of Section 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure, it was, therefore, obligatory on the part of the appellate court to pose unto itself the right question, viz., whether the first respondent has been able to show sufferance of any prejudice. If it has not suffered any prejudice or otherwise no failure of justice had occurred, the High Court should not have entertained the appeal on that ground alone.

20. A distinction, however, must be made between a jurisdiction with regard to subject matter of the suit and that of territorial and pecuniary jurisdiction. Whereas in the case falling within the former category the judgment would be a nullity, in the latter it would not be. It is not a case where the Tribunal had no jurisdiction in relation to the subject matter of claim. As a matter of fact the civil court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. If the Tribunal had the jurisdiction to entertain a claim petition under the Motor Vehicles Act, in our opinion, the Court should not have, in absence of any finding of sufferance of any prejudice on the part of the first respondent, entertained the appeal.

21. In Bikash Bhushan Ghosh v. Novartis India Ltd., [(2007) 5 SCC 591], this Court has held :

"17. There is another aspect of the matter which cannot be lost sight of. If the provisions contained in the Code of Civil Procedure are given effect to, even if the Third Industrial Tribunal, West Bengal had no jurisdiction, in view of the provisions contained in Section 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure, unless the respondent suffered any prejudice, they could not have questioned the jurisdiction of the court. In Kiran Singh v. Chaman Paswan this Court held: (AIR p. 342, paras 6-7)

`6. ... If the question now under consideration fell to be determined only on the application of general principles governing the matter, there can be no doubt that the District Court of Monghyr was `coram non judice' and that its judgment and decree would be nullities. The question is what is the effect of Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act on this position.

7. Section 11 enacts that notwithstanding anything in Section 578 of the Code of Civil Procedure an objection that a court which had no jurisdiction over a suit or appeal had exercised it by reason of overvaluation or undervaluation, should not be entertained by an appellate court, except as provided in the section. Then follow provisions as to when the objections could be entertained, and how they are to be dealt with. The drafting of the section has come in--and deservedly--for considerable criticism; but amidst much that is obscure and confused, there is one principle which stands out clear and conspicuous. It is that a decree passed by a court, which would have had no jurisdiction to hear a suit or appeal but for overvaluation or undervaluation, is not to be treated as, what it would be but for the section, null and void, and that an objection to jurisdiction based on overvaluation or undervaluation, should be dealt with under that section and not otherwise.

The reference to Section 578, now Section 99 CPC, in the opening words of the section is significant. That section, while providing that no decree shall be reversed or varied in appeal on account of the defects mentioned therein when they do not affect the merits of the case, excepts from its operation defects of jurisdiction. Section 99 therefore gives no protection to decrees passed on merits, when the courts which passed them lacked jurisdiction as a result of overvaluation or undervaluation. It is with a view to avoid this result that Section 11 was enacted. It provides that objections to the jurisdiction of a court based on overvaluation or undervaluation shall not be entertained by an appellate court except in the manner and to the extent mentioned in the section. It is a self-contained provision complete in itself, and no objection to jurisdiction based on overvaluation or undervaluation can be raised otherwise than in accordance with it.

With reference to objections relating to territorial jurisdiction, Section 21 of the Civil Procedure Code enacts that no objection to the place of suing should be allowed by an appellate or revisional court, unless there was a consequent failure of justice. It is the same principle that has been adopted in Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act with reference to pecuniary jurisdiction. The policy underlying Sections 21 and 99 CPC and Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act is the same, namely, that when a case had been tried by a court on the merits and judgment rendered, it should not be liable to be reversed purely on technical grounds, unless it had resulted in failure of justice, and the policy of the legislature has been to treat objections to jurisdiction both territorial and pecuniary as technical and not open to consideration by an appellate court, unless there has been a prejudice on the merits. The contention of the appellants, therefore, that the decree and judgment of the District Court, Monghyr, should be treated as a nullity cannot be sustained under Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act.' "

23. We cannot also lose sight of the fact that the appellant herein was a labourer. The justness or otherwise of the amount of compensation has not been disputed before us. If the High Court judgment is to be complied with, appellant would again have to initiate another proceeding either at Bareilly or Gurgaon or at Delhi or at Jabalpur. The same evidence would have to be rendered once again."

25. Paragraphs 14 and 16 of Malati Sardar (supra) are quoted as under:-

"14. We are thus of the view that in the face of judgment of this Court in Mantoo Sarkar (supra), the High Court was not justified in setting aside the award of the Tribunal in absence of any failure of justice even if there was merit in the plea of lack of territorial jurisdiction. Moreover, the fact remained that the insurance company which was the main contesting respondent had its business at Kolkata.

15. Reliance placed on decisions of this Court in G.S. Grewal and Jagmittar Sain Bhagat is misplaced. In G.S. Grewal, the subject matter of dispute was not covered by the definition of "service matters" under Section 3(o) of the Armed Forces Tribunal Act, 2007 and on that ground, it was held that the Armed Forces Tribunal had no jurisdiction in the matter. Thus, it was a case of inherent lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter.

Similarly in Jagmittar Sain Bhagat, the claimant before the Consumer Protection Forum was found not be a "consumer" under Section 2(1) (d) of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986 and on that ground the order of the consumer forum was held to be without jurisdiction. The said cases did not deal with the issue of territorial jurisdiction.

16. The provision in question, in the present case, is a benevolent provision for the victims of accidents of negligent driving. The provision for territorial jurisdiction has to be interpreted consistent with the object of facilitating remedies for the victims of accidents. Hyper technical approach in such matters can hardly be appreciated. There is no bar to a claim petition being filed at a place where the insurance company, which is the main contesting parties in such cases, has its business. In such cases, there is no prejudice to any party. There is no failure of justice. Moreover, in view of categorical decision of this Court in Mantoo Sarkar (supra), contrary view taken by the High Court cannot be sustained. The High Court failed to notice the provision of Section 21 CPC."(emphasis supplied)

26. In the case of Morgina Begum (supra) even this controversy regarding provision of interpretation of Section 21 (1)(b) of the Act has also given. Paragrpahs 6, 7, 8 and 9 whereof are also quoted as under:-

"6. Section 21 (1)(b) of the Act clearly provides that the claim petition may be filed by the claimant where the claimant ordinarily resides. In our opinion, the expression `ordinarly resides' means where the person claiming compensation normally resides at the time of filing the claim petition. The proviso to Section 21 which is also relevant for the present controversy, provides that in case the Commissioner, other than the Commissioner having jurisdiction over the area in which the accident took place, entertains the claim petition then he shall give a notice to the Commissioner having jurisdiction over the area and the state Government concerned. The Amended Section 21 has been specifically introduced in the Act by Amending Act No. 30 of 1995 with effect from 15th September, 1995 in order to benefit and facilitate the claimants. The Statement of Objects and Reasons for the Amendment of the Act, a copy of which has been produced before us, clearly mentions that the amendment has been brought about for benefits of the claimants viz. either the workmen or their dependents. The relevant portion of the Statement of Objects and Reasons, reads as under:-

"It is also proposed to introduce provision for facilitating migrant workmen to file compensation claims before the Commissioners having jurisdiction over the area where they or their dependents ordinarily reside. Provision for transfer of compensation from one Commissioner to another has also been made."

7. The idea behind introduction of this amendment is that migrant labourers all over the country often go elsewhere to earn their livelihood. When an accident takes place then in order to facilitate the claimants they may make their claim not necessarily at the place where the accident took place but also at the place where they ordinarily reside. This amendment was introduced in the Act in 1995. This was done with a very laudable object, otherwise it could cause hardship to the claimant to claim compensation under the Act. It is not possible for poor workmen or their dependents who reside in one part of the country and shift from one place to another for their livelihood to necessarily go to the place of the accident for filing a claim petition. It may be very expensive for the claimants to pursue in such a claim petition because of the financial and other hardship. It would entail the poor claimant traveling from one place to another for getting compensation. Labour statutes are for the welfare of the workmen.

8. This Court has in Bharat Singh v. Management of New Tuberculosis Centre, New Delhi and Ors., [1986] 2 SCC, 614 has taken the view that welfare legislation should be given a purposive interpretation safeguarding the rights of the have-nots rather than giving a literal construction. In case of doubt the interpretation in favour of the worker should be preferred.

9. The view which we are taking has been taken by a Division Bench of the Orissa High Court in the case of S.K. Saukat Ali Alias Sekho S.K. v. Commissioner for Workmen's Compensation-cum-Deputy Labour Commissioner, Cuttack and Ors., (1999) 2 Transport and Accident Cases 638 (Ori) and the Andhra Pradesh High Court in the case of Noorjahan v. National Insurance Co. Ltd. Hyderabad and Anr. (1999) 3 T.A.C. 276 (AP). Hence, we are of the opinion that the view taken by both these High Courts is correct. A claimant can apply before the Commissioner having jurisdiction over the area where the claimant resides, and it is not always necessary to prefer a claim petition where the accident has taken palce. This is for the facility of the workmen and advances the cause of welfare of the worken. Therefore, the view taken by the Gauhati High Court in the impugned order that the claim petition could only be filed at the place where the accident had taken place, cannot be sustained. Section 21 (1)(b) read with its proviso is a beneficial legislation for the welfare of the workmen and by the above, interpretation, it will advance the cause of the workmen. Therefore, we are of the opinion that the view taken by the Gauhati High Court in the impugned order cannot be sustained and accordingly we set aside the impugned order."(emphasis supplied)

27. Clearly, as per the law laid down the claim petition cannot be rejected on the ground of territorial jurisdiction alone, where the claims are preferred under such beneficial piece of legislation.

28. On perusal of record, I find that although the vehicle was insured in the branch office of the appellant-Company at district Siwan and the accident had also taken place in district Siwan (Bihar), however, in paragraphs 16 and 18 it has been categorically stated that the claimants are landless labourers and have shifted to District Gorakhpur and are residing there. It has futher been stated that the opposite party no. 1 is also permanent resident of District Kushinagar and that the Insurance Company has its regional office at Gorakhpur (which is not in dispute). Hence, in the light of law settled by Hon'ble Apex Court that once the insurance Company has branch offices at different places, therefore, no substantial injury or injustice was done to the insurance-Company.

29. In such view of the matter, I do not find that any substantial question for consideration before this Court has arisen in this appeal on facts of the case. However, the question nos. A and D as framed in the memo of appeal are considered and answered in the light of the observations made by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sir Chunilal (supra) against the Insurance Company, that requirement of notice under Section 10(1) of the Act is directory in nature and the claim petition would be maintainable and cannot be thrown in absence thereof, and that in view of Section 21 of the Act, as the Insurance Company has branch office everywhere and therefore, no prejudice is caused to the company, the Tribunal did not lack jurisdiction to decide the claim petition.

30. Present appeal is devoid of merits and is accordingly dismissed.

A. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988) - Section 168 - Compensation - Determination - widow claimant getting family pension - Issue - Can the claimant, a widow who receives family pension be deprived of compensation ? - Held - there can be no deduction of pension, provident fund and insurance receivable by claimant widow - no deduction from the pension is allowed (Para 7, 10)

B. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act (59 of 1988)- Section 166 - Compensation - Interest - 'Tax Deducted at Source' TDS - U/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 - total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis - if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/- insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of TDS - if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority (Para 15)

Deceased a retired railway employee, getting pension - Pension was halved & the widow (claimant) was getting Rs.14,000 as family pension - Tribunal held that as the claimant was getting pension of Rs.14,000, hence, there was no loss to her and did not award any amount under the head of loss of earnings - Held - Rs.5000 x 12 x 7 = 4,20,000/- plus Rs.70,000/- plus 10% increase in every three years as per the decision in Sarla Verma namely Rs.7,000/-. Hence, the total compensation would be Rs.4,97,000/-

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vidya Kant Shukla, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Rajiv Ojha, learned counsel for the respondent and perused the record.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimant, challenges the judgment and award dated 11.12.2017 passed by Additional District Judge, Court No.14/Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Kanpur Nagar (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in M.A.C.P. No. 284 of 2014 awarding a sum of Rs.70,000/-with interest at the rate of 7% as compensation.

3. Brief facts as they emerge are that the deceased was 62 years of age at the time of accident which is not in dispute. The claimant was the sole surviving legal heir of the deceased is also not in dispute. The deceased was a retired railway employee and was getting pensions. The pension was halved and the widow was getting Rs.14,000/- which shows that she lost Rs.14,000/- because of the said demise of her husband. The Tribunal has awarded only Rs.70,000/- as per the judgment in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050 holding that there was no loss of income.

4. The Tribunal very strangely held that claimant was the legal heir and legal representative of the deceased, the deceased was 62 years of age whose income was shown to be Rs.30,000/- per month but no document was produced and, therefore, the Tribunal did not believe the income to the deceased to be Rs.30,000/-. The Tribunal thereafter went on to hold that the deceased had retired from Railways in the year 2010, he was receiving pension of Rs.28,000/- and after his death, family pension of Rs.14,000/- is being received by the claimant herself. Therefore, as the deceased was getting Rs.28,000/- approx as pension, 50% of the same he would be spending on himself and, therefore, Rs.14,000/- would be the monthly datum figure available to the widow.

5. The Tribunal thereafter very strangely held that she was getting pension of Rs.14,000/-, hence, there was no loss to her and, therefore did not award any amount under the head of loss of earnings and deducted the entire amount granting only Rs.70,000/- with 7% rate of interest. This could not have been done is the submission of learned counsel for the appellant.

6. Can the claimant a widow who receives family pension be deprived of compensation is the main question which arises for consideration. If the answer to it is in the negative, what compensation is she entitled to?

7. In support of his argument, learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the decisions of the Apex Court in Ramilaben Chinubhai Parmar and others Vs. National Insurance Co. Ltd. and others, 2014 ACJ 1430 and in Vimal Kanwar and others vs. Kishore Dan and Others, 2013 (3) T.A.C. 6 (S.C.) and has submitted that the deduction of provident fund, pension and insurance receivable by claimants has been deprecated in the said decision.

8. As against this Sri Rajiv Ojha, learned counsel for the respondent has submitted that pecuniary advantage is a different issue and the said judgment would not apply to the facts of this case.

9. Submission of Sri Ojha appears to be very attractive but in this case as can be seen, even if this Court goes by the principles of loss of dependency as propounded by the Apex Court and the High Courts, the Tribunal ought to have considered the fact that had her husband survived, she would have got a sum of Rs.28,000/- per month which has now been halved. The multiplier applicable would be '7' as the deceased was in the age bracket of 61-65 years in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121 which has been not considered by the Tribunal and has given reasonings which can be said to be questionable.

10. In view of the decision of this Court in First Appeal From Order No.3154 of 2013 (Regional Manager, UPSRTC Vs. Smt. Nisha Dubey and others), no deduction from the pension is allowed. In this case the Tribunal has not granted any amount leave apart deduction from family pension.

11. I am in agreement with learned counsel for the appellant and even if the rough datum figure is considered, it can be considered to be Rs.5000 x 12 x 7 = 4,20,000/- plus Rs.70,000/- plus 10% increase in every three years as per the decision in Sarla Verma (Supra) namely Rs.7,000/-. Hence, the total compensation would be Rs.4,97,000/-

12. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

13. Hence, amount of Rs.4,97,000/- with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of the filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited be paid to the claimant.

14. The claimant is widow of a railway officer and, therefore, she is not an illiterate, hence, all the amount need not be invested but shall be transferred to her account which shall be given by her within eight weeks from today. The amount already paid be deducted from the amount to be paid.

15. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansagori P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

16. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and award passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. Record and proceedings be sent to the Tribunal. A copy of this order be forwarded to the Tribunal concerned for knowledge.

17. This Court is thankful to both the learned Advocates for getting this matter disposed of during this pandemic.

3. Smt. Surekha & ors .Vs B.M. National Insurance Comp. Ltd Civil Appeal No. 10018 of 2017

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shreesh Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri S.K. Mehrotra, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. Sri A.K. Verma, Commissioner, Workmen's Compensation Act 1923/Assistant Labour Commsioner, Kanpur Region, Kanpur on 15.7.2020 has awarded a sum of Rs.6,24,000/- and has considered the application as if it is under the Motor Vehicles Act. He has passed an order which is conditional in nature that if within 30 days the Insurance Company does not deposit amount, they shall deposit the amount with interest at the rate of 7 per cent.

3. Fact that the appellant-claimant was an employee is not in dispute; vehicle caused him injuries which can be said to be arising out of his employment is not in dispute and; the Insurance Company having insured the vehicle with the workmen is not in dispute, hence, no facts are mentioned except that the accident occurred on 25.10.2017 and no technical pleas are raised. Compensation awarded is not in challenge.

4. The two questions of law which arise for consideration are-firstly that can Assistant Labour Commissioner award interest less than what the statute has fixed, namely, 12% under the provisions 4-A of the Workmen's Compensation Act (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act')? A similar issue has arisen before this Court where the Court has deprecated the practice of grant of interest less than what is specific under the statute. The reason being the word usef 'shall' which has been interpreted by the Courts time and again. The second question arises when the interest becomes due and from whom? Of course, as per the Judgement, it is for the Insurance Company to pay the interest as no other technical defects, as can be raised under the Employees Compensation Act, are raised.

5. I am pained to pen down that the Workmen's Commissioner in Uttar Pradesh are time and again to be conveyed that they are supposed to follow the statute under which they are functioning. I am supported in my view by the Judgments rendered by Supreme Court in Oriental Insurance Company Vs. Siby George and others, 2012(4) T.A.C. 4 (SC); Civil Appeal No. 7470 of 2009 North East Karnataka Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Sujatha decided on 2.11.2018; and Civil Appeal No. 10018 of 2017, Smt. Surekha and others Vs. the Branch Manager, National Insurance Company Ltd. decided on 3.8.2017 which holds that Insurance Company has to be made liable and further the relevant date from when the interest would be payable is decided therein, namely, one month of the date, it accrues.

6. Learned counsel Sri S.K. Mehrotra tried to point out that the Judgment is just and proper, however, I am not convinced as the statute demands that the claimant becomes entitled to interest within a period of one month from the date the amount accrues to him. In our case, the amount accrued to him one month after the accident took place, i.e., 25.10.2017 and the owner Vimal Kumar Verma, who was insured by the respondent no.2 did not make the payment.

7. In view of the aforesaid, Judgment and award impugned herein is modified. If the Insurance Company has not yet deposited the amount, it shall deposit the amount with interest at the rate of 12% from one month from the date of accident, i.e., 25.11.2017.

8. It goes without saying that once the amount is deposited, the Tribunal shall disburse the same and the Insurance company shall not deduct TDS as against the settled principles of law.

9. The appeal is, therefore, partly allowed.

10. This Court is thankful to Sri S.K. Mehrotra for ably assisting this Court and Sri Vidya Kant Shukla, for acting as Amicus Curiae for pointing out the Judgments on the matter.

4. Shorn of details, facts of the case are that on 17.6.2015 at about 10 p.m. on GT road near R.K. Hospital, P.S. Chaubeypur, district Kanpur when the deceased Jai Prakash was coming alongwith his friend on Motorcycle no. UP 77 Q 5127 he was hit by Truck no. UP 78 AT 2282 which was allegedly being driven rashly and negligently. He was taken to the Hospital and ultimately he died due to injuries suffered in the accident. It was claimed that he was aged about 35 years and was earning Rs.15,000/- per month as self-employed tailor working from home.

5. In view of the ground taken in the appeal this Court is concerned with Issue no. 2 which is to the effect as to what compensation the claimants are entitled for?

6. The appellant-Company is not challenging its liability as apparently there was no breach of policy conditions. Per month income of the deceased was assessed and presumed @ Rs. 6,000/- by the learned Tribunal is also not under challenge. However, learned counsel for the appellant submits that 1/4th amount is to be deducted towards personal expenditure of the deceased and not 1/5th. The Tribunal has committed mistake in making deduction of 1/5th only towards personal expenditure of the deceased on the ground that there are eight dependents. He submits that the minors are to be taken as half unit and therefore, the total unit comes to 5 and 1/2 only and accordingly 1/4th deduction has to be made towards personal expenditure. The multiplier applied is not in issue. However, he submits that only 40% could have been awarded towards future prospects and 50% has been incorrectly awarded. It was further submitted that in view of the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court passed in Civil Appeal No. 3093 of 2020, New India Assurance Company Vs. Pinki only Rs. 40,000/- should be awarded towards love and affection and consortium and separate amount cannot be awarded to different individuals. Submission, therefore, is that the compensation awarded is highly excessive.

7. Per-contra, learned counsel appearing for the claimant-respondents has supported the impugned award, however, he submitted that in view of the judgement of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation (2009) 6 SCC 121 : 2009 (2) TAC 677 the learned Tribunal has rightly deducted 1/5th towards personal expenditure of the deceased taking dependency of eight persons. He further submitted that 50% has rightly been awarded towards future prospects. He further submits that the award is not liable to be disturbed and justified amount has been awarded.

8. I have considered the rival submissions and have perused the record.

9. In Sarla Verma (supra) in paragraph 42 it was held as under:-

"42. We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in column (4) of the Table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M-16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is, M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

10. In National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others (2017) 16 SCC 680 (5 Judges) : 2017 (4) TAC 673 in paragraphs 39, 40, 41, 42 and 59 it was held as under:-

"39. In Reshma Kumari, the three-Judge Bench, reproduced paragraphs 30, 31 and 32 of Sarla Verma and approved the same by stating thus:-

"41. The above does provide guidance for the appropriate deduction for personal and living expenses. One must bear in mind that the proportion of a man's net earnings that he saves or spends exclusively for the maintenance of others does not form part of his living expenses but what he spends exclusively on himself does. The percentage of deduction on account of personal and living expenses may vary with reference to the number of dependent members in the family and the personal living expenses of the deceased need not exactly correspond to the number of dependants.

42. In our view, the standards fixed by this Court in Sarla Verma on the aspect of deduction for personal living expenses in paras 30, 31 and 32 must ordinarily be followed unless a case for departure in the circumstances noted in the preceding paragraph is made out."

40. The conclusions that have been summed up in Reshma Kumari are as follows:-

"43.1. In the applications for compensation made under Section 166 of the 1988 Act in death cases where the age of the deceased is 15 years and above, the Claims Tribunals shall select the multiplier as indicated in Column (4) of the Table prepared in Sarla Verma read with para 42 of that judgment.

43.2. In cases where the age of the deceased is up to 15 years, irrespective of Section 166 or Section 163-A under which the claim for compensation has been made, multiplier of 15 and the assessment as indicated in the Second Schedule subject to correction as pointed out in Column (6) of the Table in Sarla Verma should be followed.

43.3. As a result of the above, while considering the claim applications made under Section 166 in death cases where the age of the deceased is above 15 years, there is no necessity for the Claims Tribunals to seek guidance or for placing reliance on the Second Schedule in the 1988 Act.

43.4. The Claims Tribunals shall follow the steps and guidelines stated in para 19 of Sarla Verma for determination of compensation in cases of death.

43.5. While making addition to income for future prospects, the Tribunals shall follow para 24 of the judgment in Sarla Verma.

43.6. Insofar as deduction for personal and living expenses is concerned, it is directed that the Tribunals shall ordinarily follow the standards prescribed in paras 30, 31 and 32 of the judgment in Sarla Verma subject to the observations made by us in para 41 above."

41. On a perusal of the analysis made in Sarla Verma which has been reconsidered in Reshma Kumari, we think it appropriate to state that as far as the guidance provided for appropriate deduction for personal and living expenses is concerned, the tribunals and courts should be guided by conclusion 43.6 of Reshma Kumari. We concur with the same as we have no hesitation in approving the method provided therein.

42. As far as the multiplier is concerned, the claims tribunal and the Courts shall be guided by Step 2 that finds place in paragraph 19 of Sarla Verma read with paragraph 42 of the said judgment. For the sake of completeness, paragraph 42 is extracted below :-

"42. We therefore hold that the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in Column (4) of the table above (prepared by applying Susamma Thomas, Trilok Chandra and Charlie), which starts with an operative multiplier of 18 (for the age groups of 15 to 20 and 21 to 25 years), reduced by one unit for every five years, that is M-17 for 26 to 30 years, M- 16 for 31 to 35 years, M-15 for 36 to 40 years, M-14 for 41 to 45 years, and M-13 for 46 to 50 years, then reduced by two units for every five years, that is, M-11 for 51 to 55 years, M-9 for 56 to 60 years, M-7 for 61 to 65 years and M-5 for 66 to 70 years."

59. In view of the aforesaid analysis, we proceed to record our conclusions:-

(i) The two-Judge Bench in Santosh Devi should have been well advised to refer the matter to a larger Bench as it was taking a different view than what has been stated in Sarla Verma, a judgment by a coordinate Bench. It is because a coordinate Bench of the same strength cannot take a contrary view than what has been held by another coordinate Bench.

(ii) As Rajesh has not taken note of the decision in Reshma Kumari, which was delivered at earlier point of time, the decision in Rajesh is not a binding precedent.

(iii) While determining the income, an addition of 50% of actual salary to the income of the deceased towards future prospects, where the deceased had a permanent job and was below the age of 40 years, should be made. The addition should be 30%, if the age of the deceased was between 40 to 50 years. In case the deceased was between the age of 50 to 60 years, the addition should be 15%. Actual salary should be read as actual salary less tax.

(iv) In case the deceased was self-employed or on a fixed salary, an addition of 40% of the established income should be the warrant where the deceased was below the age of 40 years. An addition of 25% where the deceased was between the age of 40 to 50 years and 10% where the deceased was between the age of 50 to 60 years should be regarded as the necessary method of computation. The established income means the income minus the tax component.

(v) For determination of the multiplicand, the deduction for personal and living expenses, the tribunals and the courts shall be guided by paragraphs 30 to 32 of Sarla Verma which we have reproduced hereinbefore.

(vi) The selection of multiplier shall be as indicated in the Table in Sarla Verma read with paragraph 42 of that judgment.

(vii) The age of the deceased should be the basis for applying the multiplier.

(viii) Reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- and Rs. 15,000/- respectively. The aforesaid amounts should be enhanced at the rate of 10% in every three years."

11. A reference may also be made to law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of New India Assurance Company Vs. Somwati 2020 Legal Eagle (SC) 541 : 2020 SCC Online SC 720, paragraph 63 whereof is quoted as under:

"63. At this stage, we consider it necessary to provide uniformity with respect to the grant of consortium, and loss of love and affection. Several Tribunals and High Courts have been awarding compensation for both loss of consortium and loss of love and affection. The Constitution Bench in Pranay Sethi (supra), has recognized only three conventional heads under which compensation can be awarded viz. loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses."

12. In this case "loss of consortium" is "loss of love and affection" has been dealt with in detail and it was held that consortium is to include loss of love and affection and if consortium is awarded to all the amount that can be awarded under the same head cannot exceed Rs. 40,000/-.

13. In such view of the matter, I am of the opinion that the amount awarded by the Tribunal is excessive in nature and the same is to be re-assessed which can be done in this appeal as well.

14. In so far as the award of deduction of 1/5th of the amount towards personal expenditure is concerned, in view of the fact that the total amount is being reduced ultimately, I am not inclined to interfere in the said deduction made by the Tribunal in the facts and circumstances of the case.

15. In so far as the award towards future prospects to the extent of 50% is concerned, in view of the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma (Supra) and Pranay Sethi (Supra) the same is to be reduced from 50% to 40% and is accordingly reduced.

16. In so far as the amount awarded towards love and affection to three persons at the rate of Rs. 1 lakh each that is to be reduced to Rs. 40,000/- maximum as held by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Somwati (Supra), however, a sum of Rs. 70,000/- is to be awarded to the maximum under all such head which includes loss of love and affection and funeral future expenses also. In view thereof, the total amount which can be granted under this head is modified to Rs. 70,000/-. Therefore, the amount is now to be calculated in the following manner:-

Income - Rs. 6,000 x 12	= Rs. 72,000.00
40% future prospects Rs. 2400 x 12	= Rs. 28,800.00
	= Rs. 1,00,800.00

1/5 Deduction for personal expenses	- Rs. 20,160.00
	Rs. 80,640.00
Multiplier	x 17
	Rs.13,70,880.00
Medical Bills	+1,12,176.00
Conventional Head as per Pranay Sethi	+ 70,000.00
	Rs.15,53,056.00

17. The awarded compensation is accordingly reduced from Rs. 20,13,376/- to Rs. 15,53,056/- as calculatee above, however, the aforesaid amount shall carry interest as dirtected by the learned Tribunal.

18. The appeal, accordingly, stands partly allowed.

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Vinod Sinha, Sri Krishna Agrawal, Sri Mahesh Sharma, Sri Manish Goyal

Counsel for the Respondent:
Sri Anil Kumar, Sri Tarun Varma

A. Civil Law - Arbitration and Conciliation Act (26 of 1996)- Section 11 - Appointment of arbitrators - Derogation - no derogation in the appointment of arbitrator can be made where the clause specifically provides for certain persons to be appointed as arbitrator - In the instant case clause 64(3)(b) of the agreement provided for the composition of the Arbitral Tribunal of two arbitrators, who are gazetted railway officer, who were to appoint an Umpire – as agreement itself provided for arbitrators, then no question arises to derogate from the said arbitration clause and appoint a retired Judge (Para 76, 88)

B. Civil Law - Arbitration and Conciliation Act (26 of 1996)- Sections 11, 34(2)(a)(v) & 37 - Arbitral award - Setting aside of on the ground composition of the arbitral tribunal was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties

Appellant awarded contract for construction of building complex - As respondents did not make full payment hence appellant invoked arbitration clause - Application filed for appointment of arbitrator under Section 11 (4) - Court on 26.08.1998 appointed two arbitrator in terms of Clause 64 of the GCC - Arbitral Tribunal entered into reference - Appellant filed modification Application filed with a prayer for appointing another person as presiding arbitrator - on 26.09.2003, the then Chief Justice, treated the modification application as application u/s 11 & appointed retired Chief Justice as the sole arbitrator without taking note of earlier Arbitral Tribunal - respondents filed objections u/s 16 raising preliminary objection regarding composition & constitution of the Arbitral Tribunal - Held - constituting fresh Arbitral Tribunal without replacing the earlier Tribunal or terminating its mandate, was against the agreement entered into between the parties - there was no dispute between the parties to the very constitution of the Arbitral Tribunal in the year 1998 - only a presiding arbitrator could have been substituted or after termination of the earlier Arbitral Tribunal, could have constituted a new Arbitral Tribunal (Para 53, 54, 89)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rohit Ranjan Agrawal, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (for short "Act 1996") has been filed assailing the judgment and order dated 09.09.2013 passed by District Judge, Allahabad allowing objection under Section 34 of the Act, 1996 in Arbitration Case No. 25 of 2008, Union of India vs. M/s. Vidyawati Construction Company, against award dated 21.02.2008 made by the sole arbitrator.

2. Facts in nutshell, are that appellant was awarded a contract for construction of multistorey RCC frame building complex (Ground + 3 stories) for office of General Manager, Railway Electrification, Allahabad (now Prayagraj) for total cost of Rs.87,76,517/-, and a letter of acceptance of contract was issued on 13.03.1989. Due to administrative reasons, awarded work was reduced from G+3 to G+2 and original cost was revised and reduced to Rs.66,32,912/- and the work was to be completed within 18 months (i.e. by 18.09.1990). However, actual work was completed on 31.05.1993, and final amount paid to the appellant was Rs.68.77 lacs.

3. Appellant submitted his final bill for Rs.4,26,54,807/- on 15.04.1994. As respondents did not make full payment hence on 18.05.1996, appellant invoking the arbitration clause sent a registered letter requesting that panel of arbitrators under Clause 64(3)(b) of General Condition of Contract be forwarded to them for selection of an arbitrator. The respondents authorities on 27.06.1996, 07.10.1996 and 17.01.1997, through the said letters required details of the claim made by appellant.

4. Sometimes in January, 1997, appellant filed Civil Misc (Arbitration) Application No. 35 of 1997 for appointment of arbitrator under Section 11 (4) of the Act of 1996. This application was contested by the Railway authorities and a counter affidavit was filed, wherein it was stated in para 6 that a panel of arbitrator was appointed by the General Manager. After hearing the parties, this Court on 26.08.1998 appointed one Smt. Tanuja Pandey, as railway nominee and Sri O.P. Narang as the appellant's nominee, as arbitrators. The order further required that as per Clause 64 (3)(b), before entering into the reference two arbitrators were required to nominate an Umpire who shall be the Gazetted Officer and to whom the case may be referred in the event of any difference between the two arbitrators. It was on 05.10.1998 that both the arbitrators jointly agreed and appointed one Sri P.K. Sharma, Chief Engineer N.F. Railway, as Umpire. But a Civil Misc. (Arbitration) Application No. 47 of 1998 was filed by the appellant for complying the earlier order dated 26.08.1998 for appointment of an Umpire by the two arbitrators so appointed. In the counter affidavit filed by Railways, it was stated that both the arbitrators have jointly agreed for name of Sri P.K. Sharma. This Court on 01.11.1999 disposed of the application approving the name of P.K. Sharma as the Umpire.

5. The Arbitral Tribunal entered into reference and statement of claim was filed by appellant on 06.01.1999, while statement of defence was filed by respondents Railway on 06.04.1999.

6. The appellant in the year 2000 filed a Civil Misc. Review/ Correction Application No. 101974 of 2000 in Arbitration Application no. 47 of 1998 with a prayer that the Umpire appointed by the Court may be treated as the presiding arbitrator of the Arbitral Tribunal in view of Act, 1996. This Court on 15.03.2002 allowed the application filed by appellant and held that the Umpire shall be treated as the presiding arbitrator of the Tribunal. It appears that on 24.04.2002, the presiding arbitrator, P.K. Sharma showed his unwillingness to act as a presiding arbitrator, thus, two arbitrators so appointed by this Court through letter dated 02.05.2000 informed the Registrar of this Court about refusal/ resignation of Sri P.K. Sharma and requested for nominating presiding arbitrator so that the proceedings can be resumed.

7. Meanwhile on 10.09.2002, appellant filed a Civil Misc. Modification Application No. 8 of 2002, with a prayer for modifying the earlier order of this Court dated 15.03.2002 for appointing another person as presiding arbitrator (not being a person belonging to Railway Department). This modification application was filed in the earlier Civil Misc. (Arbitration) Application No. 35 of 1997. But on 26.09.2003, the matter was placed before the then Chief Justice, who treated the modification application as application under Section 11 of the Act and appointed Mr. Justice H.N. Seth, a retired Chief Justice of this Court as the sole arbitrator, while the proceedings were pending before the earlier Arbitral Tribunal appointed by this Court on 26.08.1998.

8. The first arbitration meeting was held on 05.12.2003 before the sole arbitrator appointed on 26.09.2003, wherein the counsel for both the parties agreed that under order of Chief Justice constituting the Tribunal, appointment of two earlier arbitrators stands superseded and further agreed that respective statement of claim and defence already filed by the parties before previous arbitrators should form basis of adjudication in the present proceedings. Claimant was granted time until 02nd January, 2004 to file statement of claim, while respondents were granted time till 15th January, 2004 for filing statement of defence.

9. Both the parties filed their copies of statement of claim, defence and rejoinder, which were filed by them before previous arbitrators in the second meeting held before the sole arbitrator on 14.02.2004. Parties were given time to check and verify whether each of them has filed correct copies of documents and nothing has been omitted therefrom. It was made open to the parties to file additional documents for supporting their respective cases after serving the copies thereof on the other side, fixing 12.03.2004, as the next date.

10. In the third meeting held on 12.03.2004, claimant-appellant filed application of date praying that respondents be directed to supply copy of certain documents. On the said date, respondents agreed that they will furnish copies of bill, as far as Measurement Book (M.B's.) were concerned, it was stated that they are Railways internal records and there was no provision for giving copies thereof. After hearing the parties, the sole arbitrator directed the respondent-Railway to supply photo copy of M.Bs. It was further observed that parties had filed their respective statement of claim, defence and reply. As claimants had filed number of annexures as the record show, it had become necessary for the respondents to modify their statement of defence in the light of those annexures and were granted a month's time for this purpose.

11. On the next date i.e. 24.04.2004, respondents filed objections under Section 16 of the Act raising dispute to the effect that Tribunal has no jurisdiction to decide the claim. The arbitrator on 20.10.2004 rejected the preliminary objection regarding composition and constitution of the Tribunal on the ground of delay in raising the objections. The arbitrator, thereafter, proceeded and gave award on 21.02.2008. This award was put to challenge through objections under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 before the District Judge, Allahabad, which was numbered as Arbitration Case No. 25 of 2008. The court below on 09.09.2013 set aside the award dated 21.02.2008 passed by Mr. Justice H.N. Seth, a former Chief Justice of this Court considering the objections filed by respondent- Railway under Section 34 of the Act.

12. Heard Sri Manish Goyal, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Krishna Agrawal, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Tarun Varma, along with Sri Anil Kumar, learned counsel for the respondents.

13. It is contended on behalf of appellant that the sole basis of order impugned is the ground under Section 34(2)(a)(v) of the Act, 1996 inasmuch as the District Judge recorded a conclusion to the effect that appointment of sole arbitrator by the Chief Justice was against the terms and conditions of the agreement entered into between the parties.

14. Sri Manish Goyal, learned Senior Counsel submitted that challenge under Section 35(2)(a)(v) was not available to the respondents as ground of challenge does not fulfill the ingredients of Section 34(2)(a)(v), and the District Judge completely overlooked the qualifying part of the said section and has not noticed the fact that parties derogated and such derogation was permissible under the law. He further submitted that agreement between the parties cannot be the sole criteria and appointment of sole arbitrator cannot be said to dehors the agreement of parties. Section 10 of the Act specifically prohibits appointment of even number of arbitrators, while agreement of the parties specifically provided for appointment of even number of arbitrators and it was only in case when the even number of arbitrators were divided in their opinion that the matter could have travelled to Umpire. This was squarely in violation of Section 10(1) of the Act, and under such circumstances, provisions of Section 10(2) of the Act will apply. This aspect was not dealt by the court below and, therefore, the application could not have been allowed merely on the ground of applying under Section 34(2)(a)(v) of the Act which was to be read along with other provisions of the Act that includes Section 4, Section 10 and Section 16 of the Act.

15. According to him, a fundamental error was committed by the court below in setting aside the award on the misconceived ground of Section 34(2)(a)(v) and the application could not have been entertained.

16. Reliance has been placed upon decision in case of Narayan Prasad Lohia vs Nikunj Kumar Lohia & Ors, AIR 2002 SC 1139 (Para 16 and 19), and B.S.N.L. Ltd. vs. Motorola India (P. Ltd.), 2008 (12) SCALE 720 (Para 18).

17. Secondly, it was submitted that challenge to jurisdiction of appointment of sole arbitrator stood waived by conduct of respondents and hence by virtue of Section 4 of the Act, respondents were not competent to challenge the jurisdiction of arbitrator. It was submitted that order of appointing the sole arbitrator was made on 26.09.2003 and against the said appointment, neither any appeal was filed nor any objection was raised while the sole arbitrator was being appointed by the then Chief Justice. As it is evident from proceedings before the sole arbitrator on 05.12.2003, 14.02.2004 and 12.03.2004 that the parties and their advocates have acquiesced to the jurisdiction of sole arbitrator and also acquiesced to the previous appointment of two arbitrators being superseded. The objection for the first time came up after order were passed on 12.03.2004, directing respondents to provide photo copies of M.Bs. relating to reinforcement of steel to the claimant which was an uncomfortable order for respondents that an objection was raised on 24.04.2004 relating to jurisdiction of the Tribunal.

18. This according to him, was an abuse of process on the part of respondents who is a State and is bound to act fairly. All these aspects have been dealt in extenso by sole arbitrator but no reason has been given by the court below (District Judge) for upsetting the finding so recorded. It was also submitted that statement of defence was already on record and the parties in their first meeting had accepted that the statement of claim and defence filed before the previous arbitrator should form basis of adjudication before the sole arbitrator and the arbitrator had granted time till 15th January, 2004 for submitting statement of defence.

19. As the second meeting was held on 14.02.2004, parties had filed statement of claim, defence and rejoinder, as such any objections in regard to challenge to jurisdiction in view of provisions contained in Section 16(2) of the Act could have been raised till that point of time but respondents-Railways filed objection on 24.04.2004 after the filing of statement of defence which was rightly repelled by the arbitrator on 20.10.2004. Thus, by legal fiction, waiver will come into play as contemplated by Section 4 of the Act and challenge to jurisdiction of Arbitral Tribunal stood waived by conduct of respondents. Reliance on this point of waiver has been made in case of Narayan Prasad Lohia (supra), Motorola India (P. Ltd.) (supra) and State of Orissa and others vs. Gokulananda Jena, (2003) 6 SCC 465 (Paras 5, 6 and 7).

20. The third point canvassed by learned Senior Counsel was that the sole arbitrator rightly recorded finding while rejecting the objection of the respondents as to jurisdiction of Arbitral Tribunal, while the District Judge solely relying upon the decision of the Apex Court in the case of S.B.P. and Co. vs. M/s. Patel Engineering Ltd. and another, AIR 2006 SC 450, held that appointment of sole arbitrator could not have been challenged and the said judgment was prospective while the sole arbitrator was appointed in the year 2003 and only objections under Section 16(2) could have been made before the Arbitral Tribunal.

21. According to him, neither the points raised nor statutory provisions have been dealt by the court below and without appreciating the statutory scheme of Part-I of the Act, learned District Judge had proceeded to hold the appointment of sole arbitrator against the terms and conditions of the agreement. It was further contended that the court below misconstrued the provision and did not notice the fact that where technical qualifications are not mentioned in the arbitration clause, then the parties can derogate and under such circumstances, this Court rightly appointed a retired Judge as a sole arbitrator and the court below had not touched upon the impact of Section 10 or Section 4 of the Act.

22. Reliance has been placed upon decision in the case of Northern Eastern Railway and others vs. Tripple Engineering Works, 2014 (3) Arb. LR 327 (SC), Dakshin Shelters P. Ltd. vs. Geeta S. Jauhari, (2012) 5 SCC 152, Union of India vs. BESCO Ltd., AIR 2017 SC 1628 and Bharat Wire Ropes Ltd. vs. Union of India and others, (2012) 5 ADJ 644.

23. The next point canvassed by Sri Goyal was that the appointment of sole arbitrator and award pronounced by him have subserved the purpose of parties and this Court had rightly appointed a retired Judge as sole arbitrator instead of appointing presiding arbitrator, as the very purpose of Act of 1996 is to provide speedy remedy instead of formal process of litigation. It is designed to provide alternative dispute resolution and in order to achieve objective that different facets are to be weighed that, inter alia, include low cost, early disposal and convenience of parties, and these three facets are not exhaustive but illustrative.

24. According to him, what is to be made is that prejudice may not be caused to any of the parties and in the present case no single ground was taken in application under Section 34 by respondents that they suffered any prejudice in the decision making process of the sole arbitrator. The outcome may be their prejudice but that is how the law takes its own course. Further, there is no statement to the effect that arbitrator was biased or the decision making process stood invalidated by the conduct of arbitrator, thus, under such circumstances, proceedings before sole arbitrator subserved the purpose of arbitration and did not cause prejudice to either of the parties. Reliance on this issue has been placed upon decision in case of Abdul Gaffar vs. Sri Jaichandlal Ashok Kumar and Co. Pvt. Ltd. and another, JT (2000) 8 SC 152 and Citibank N.A. vs. TLC Marketing and another, (2008) 1 SCC 481.

25. Sri Goyal then invited the attention of the Court to Section 23 of the Act which is statement of claim and defence. Sub-section (1) of Section 23 provides that within the period of time agreed upon between the parties or determined by Arbitral Tribunal, the claimants shall state the fact supporting his claim, the points at issue and relief or remedy sought, and the respondents shall state his defence in respect of these particulars, unless the parties have otherwise agreed as to the required elements of those statements.

26. According to him, sole arbitrator on 05.12.2003 had granted time uptil 15th January, 2004 for filing statement of defence which was filed in the second meeting held on 14.02.2004 by respondents-Railways. Now, according to Section 16(2), plea regarding that Arbitral Tribuanl does not have jurisdiction shall be raised not later than the submissions of statement of defence, thus, Section 16(2) has to be read along with Section 23(1) of the Act, and in the present case objections challenging the very Arbitral Tribunal were raised by respondents on 24.04.2004 i.e in the fourth meeting, thus, the said objections were rightly rejected by the sole arbitrator.

27. While Section 25 provides for default of a party and Sub-section (b) of Section 25 is in regard to the respondent failing to file his statement of defence in accordance with Sub-section (1) of Section 23, in that case the Arbitral Tribunal shall continue the proceedings without treating that failure in itself has an admission of the allegation by the claimant. Thus as the statement of defence, according to Sri Goyal was filed on 14.02.2004 and objections to the constitution of the Arbitral Tribunal was not filed as per provisions of Section 16(2), there is a default committed by the respondents which cannot be cured and Section 25(b) provides for the default in case of non filing of statement of defence by respondent, the same shall be treated as a default by respondents in not filing the objections as mandated in Section 16(2), at the time of filing of written statement.

28. Replying to the above arguments, Sri Tarun Varma, learned counsel appearing for respondents submitted that as per Clause 64(3)(a)(ii) of General Condition of Contract two arbitrators, who shall be the Gazetted Railway Officer of equal status, were to be appointed in manner laid down in Clause 64(3)(b), one from the Department side and other from the side of contractor, and the two arbitrators so nominated shall nominate an Umpire who shall also be Gazetted Railway Officer.

29. According to him, this Court on the Application No. 35 of 1997, on 26.08.1998 had appointed Smt. Tanuja Pandey from the side of respondents and Sri O.P. Narang, from the side of contractor-appellant, as arbitrator and by the same order, they were required to nominate an Umpire as provided in Clause 64(3)(b). As one P.K. Sharma was jointly agreed as an Umpire, this Court on 01.11.1999, accepted his nomination. It was on the correction application filed by appellant in the year 2000 that Sri P.K. Sharma was treated as presiding arbitrator of the Tribunal instead of an Umpire vide order dated 15.03.2002.

30. As Arbitral Tribunal had already entered into reference on 06.01.1999, presiding arbitrator showed his unwillingness to act, which was intimated to the Registrar of this Court on 02.05.2002. Simultaneously, a modification application was also moved by the appellant for appointment of presiding arbitrator which was dealt by the Chief Justice as an application under Section 11 and a new Arbitral Tribunal de novo was constituted, without superseding or terminating the mandate of the earlier Tribunal.

31. Sri Varma submitted that the Tribunal which was constituted by this Court on 26.08.1998 was still in existence as the proceedings before the same were not terminated, neither the order appointing sole arbitrator took note of the fact that earlier Arbitral Tribunal was in existence and order passed on 26.09.2003 superseded the earlier Arbitral Tribunal. It is also contended that neither there was any prayer in the modification application for terminating the Arbitral Tribunal nor for appointment of sole arbitrator and prayer was made only for appointment of presiding arbitrator not being an officer of Railway. As the earlier appointments of two arbitrators were in terms of Clause 64 of the GCC, fresh appointment made was against the agreement/ contract entered into between the parties.

32. Sri Varma submitted that appointment of the sole arbitrator made on 26.09.2003 could not be challenged in view of the law prevalent at that time as in case of Konkan Railway Corporation Ltd. and another vs. Rani Construction Pvt. Ltd., (2002) 2 SCC 388, it was held by Apex Court that such an order was an administrative order.

33. He further submitted that on the first date before the sole arbitrator, consent given by counsel as regards constitution of Tribunal of sole arbitrator is not binding on the Railways as held in the case of B.S. Bajwa vs. State of Punjab, (1998) 2 SCC 523. As on that date appellants were directed to file claim by 2nd January, 2004 and respondents' statement of defence by 15th January, 2004. On 14.02.2004, which was the second date fixed before the sole arbitrator, the parties had filed their copies of statement of claim, defence and rejoinder which were filed by them before previous arbitrators and nothing new was filed and the sole arbitrator had granted time for verifying the documents filed by each of the parties and had also granted time to file additional documents for supporting their respective cases.

34. It was in the third meeting held on 12.03.2004 that claimant/ appellant had filed application requiring the respondents to file certain documents, wherein the sole arbitrator had directed the respondents to supply photo copies of M.B's. relating to reinforcement of steel to the claimant. The sole arbitrator had recorded in the said proceedings that claimant had filed number of annexures and thus respondents were granted liberty to modify their statement of defence in light of those annexures. On the next date fixed i.e. fourth meeting which was held on 24.04.2004, respondents had filed their objections under Section 16(2) and thus, there was no delay as the sole arbitrator had already granted time to modify their statement of defence, meaning thereby that statement of defence till that date was not complete.

35. He, next submitted that plea of waiver raised by appellant as mandated in Section 4 of the Act of 1996 cannot be attracted in the present case, as after the Arbitral Tribunal was constituted on 26.08.1998 by this Court in terms of agreement, there was no need to file objection as to jurisdiction. However, subsequently the Chief Justice on 26.09.2003 had appointed a retired Chief Justice of this Court as sole arbitrator against the agreement without terminating the mandate of the earlier Arbitral Tribunal, hence the Railways filed objection as to jurisdiction/ composition of Tribunal under Section 16 before the Arbitral Tribunal of sole arbitrator.

36. According to him, reliance placed on decision of B.S.N.L vs. Motorola India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) does not come to the rescue of appellant. He further submitted that proceedings before Arbitral Tribunal of Sri H.N. Seth was going on and no hearing had taken place, except exchange of pleadings and permitting respondents to rectify/ modify their defence statements, thus, no hearing commenced till 24.04.2004 nor defence statement filed by respondents had attained finality.

37. As far as Section 10 of the Act is concerned, he submitted that as agreement Clause 64 of General Condition of Contract provides for two arbitrators, who are to be nominated by both the parties (i.e Railway and Contractor) and the two appointed arbitrators were to nominate an Umpire, which was followed, while application under Section 11 of the appellant was decided on 26.08.1998. Reliance has been placed upon decision of the Apex Court in case of M.M.T.C. Limited vs. Sterlite Industries (India) Ltd., AIR 1997 SC 605.

38. The third point canvassed by Sri Varma is that while appointing Arbitral Tribunal under Section 11, the Court cannot alter the terms of contract and cannot direct for appointing a sole arbitrator in place of three arbitrators as provided in the agreement, as it would amount to altering the terms of agreement entered into between the parties.

39. Reliance has been placed upon decision of Apex Court in case of SVG Molasses Co. B.V. vs. Mysore Mercantile Co. Ltd. and others, 2007 (9) SCALE 89 (Paras 12 and 15), Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. vs. Raja Transport (P) Ltd., MANU/SC/1502/2009 and Antrix Corporation Ltd. vs. Devas Multimedia P. Ltd., (2014) 11 SCC 560.

40. Referring to Sections 12 and 13 of the Act, respondents counsel submitted that it is no doubt true that arbitrators may be challenged on the ground of justifiable doubts, independence, impartiality and not possessing qualification. While Section 13 provides a party who intends to challenge arbitrator on the grounds mentioned in Section 12 within 15 days after becoming aware.

41. He contended that Respondent-Railways never challenged the arbitrator on the ground of justifiable doubts, independence, impartiality and qualification and their case was not covered under Sections 12 and 13 of the Act, which is also reflected from the order of sole arbitrator dated 20.10.2004 rejecting their objection. The case of respondents is solely against the composition of the Arbitral Tribunal and objection was filed under Section 16(2) of the Act.

42. According to him, the law prevailing at the time when order under Section 11 was passed that it was an administrative order in terms of the law laid down by the Apex Court in case of Konkan Railway Corporation Ltd. (supra) and no appeal would lie against such order and the decision of S.B.P. and Co. (supra) came subsequently thus, was not applicable at that time and the Apex Court in the case of Gokulananda Jena (supra) had already held that all the grounds of attack can very well be raised before the arbitrator as alternative remedy is available under the Act itself.

43. Reliance has also been been placed on a decision of Division Bench of this Court in case of Rail India Technical and Economic Services Ltd. vs. Vidyawati Construction Ltd., Writ Petition No. 16445 of 2001, decided on 24.05.2001, wherein it was held that writ petition was not maintainable as any objection to be raised against the order of Chief Justice has to be raised under Section 16 of the Act.

44. It was then contended that Section 15 of the Act of 1996 provides that where a mandate of an arbitrator terminates, a substitute arbitrator shall be appointed. In the present case, as the presiding arbitrator P.K. Sharma resigned/ withdrawn, a substitute arbitrator could have been appointed as per Section 15(2) of the Act which was not done. Reliance has been placed upon a decision in case of National Highways Authority of India vs. Bumihiway DDB Ltd. (JV) and others., (2006) 10 SCC 763.

45. The next point raised by learned counsel was that provisions of Section 34 of the Act clearly provides the grounds for setting aside Arbitral Award, wherein Section 34(2)(a)(v) itself provides that award may be set aside when the composition of Arbitral Tribunal is not in accordance with agreement. As a retired Chief Justice was appointed as the sole arbitrator against the terms of the agreement, so this case squarely fell within the ambit of Section 34(2)(a)(v). As in the application filed under Section 34, answering respondents had requested that point raised as regards to the composition of Arbitral Tribunal be decided first as a preliminary issue, against which the appellant had filed objections and the court below after hearing the parties decided the objection on 09.09.2013. Reliance has been placed on decision of Apex Court in case of Lion Engineering Consultants vs. State of H.P. and others, 2018 (16) SCC 758.

46. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

47. Before proceeding to decide the issue in hand, a glance of the General Condition of Contract (GCC) is necessary, which is extracted hereasunder:

"64. (1) Demand of arbitration. - In the event of any dispute or difference between the parties here to as to the construction or operation of this contract, or the respective rights and liabilities of the parties, on any matter in question, dispute or difference on any account, or as to the withholding by the railway of any certificate to which the contractor may claim to be entitled to or if the Railway fails to make a decision within a reasonable time then and in any such case, but except in any of the excepted matters referred to in clause 63 of these conditions, the Contractor, after 90 days of his presenting his final claim on disputed matters, may demand in writing that the dispute or difference be referred to arbitration. Such demand for arbitration shall specify the matters which are in question dispute or difference and only such dispute or difference of which the demand has been made and no other shall be referred to arbitration.

(2) Obligation during pendency of arbitration.- Work under the contract shall, unless otherwise directed by the Engineer, continue during the arbitration proceedings and no payment due to payable by the Railway shall be withheld on an account of such proceedings provided however shall be open for arbitrator or arbitrators to consider and decide whether or not such work should continue during arbitration proceedings.

(3) (a) Arbitration*- Matter in question dispute or difference to be arbitrated upon shall be referred for decision to:-*

(I) A sole arbitrator who shall be General Manager or a nominated by him in that behalf in cases where the claim in question is below Rs. 300000/- and in cases where the issues involved not of a complicated nature. The General Manager, shall be the Sole Judge to decide whether or not the issues involved are of complicated nature.

(ii) Two Arbitrators, who shall be Gazetted Railway Officers equal status to be appointed in the manger laid down in claim 64(3)(b) for all claims of Rs. 300000/- and above and for all claim irrespective of the amount of value of such claims if the issue involved are of a complicated nature. The General Manager, shall be the sole Judge to decide whether the issues are of a complicated nature or not. In the event, of the two Arbitrators being divided in their opinion the matter under dispute will be referred to an Umpire to be appoint in the manner laid down in sub clause 3(b) for his decision.

3. (b) For the purpose of appointing two arbitrators as referred to in sub clause (a) (ii) above the Railway will send a panel of more then three names of Gazetted Railway Officers of one or more depart of the Railway of the Contractor, who will be asked to suggested to the General Manager one name out of the list for appointment as the contractor/ nominee. The General Manager, while so appointing the Contractor/ nominee will also appoint a second arbitrator as the Railway nominee either from the panel or from outside the panel, ensuring that one of the two arbitrators so nominated is invariably from the accounts Department before entering upon the reference the two Arbitrator shall nominate an Umpire who shall be a Gazetted Railway Officer whom the case will be referred to in the event of any difference between the two arbitrators. Officers of the Junior Administrative grade of the Accounts Department of the Railway shall be considered as of equal status to the officers in the intermediate administrative grade of other department of the Railway for the purpose of appointment as arbitrators.

3. (c) If the sole arbitrator appointed under sub clause (a)(i) or one or both the arbitrators appointed under sub clause (b) above resigns his appointment/ resign their appointments or vacated his office/ vacate their offices or is/ are unable or unwilling to act for any reason whatsoever or dies/ die. The General Manager may appoint a new arbitrators to act in his/their place in accordance with the provisions of sub clause (a)(i) of sub clause (b) above as the case may be. Such arbitrator/ arbitrators, as the case may be shall be entitled to proceed with the reference from the stage at which it was left by the previous arbitrator/ arbitrators.

3. (d) The Arbitrator or Arbitrators or the Umpire shall have power to call for such evidence by way of affidavit or otherwise as the Arbitrator or Arbitrators or Umpire shall think proper, and it shall be the duty of the parties here to do or cause to be done all such things as may be necessary to enable the Arbitrator or Arbitrators or Umpire to make the award without any delay.

3. (e) It will be no objection that the person appointed as Arbitrator, Arbitrators, Umpire are Government servants and that in the course of their duties as Govt. servants they have expressed view on all or any of the matter in dispute.

3. (f) Subject as aforesaid, Arbitrator Act 1940 and the Rules there under and any statutory modification thereof shall apply to the Arbitration proceedings under this clause."

48. From the perusal of Clause 64(3)(a)(ii), two arbitrators who are Gazetted Railway Officers of equal status are to be appointed for claims of Rs. 3 lacs and above, and in case of difference of opinion, the matter is to be referred to Umpire in a manner laid down in sub clause 3(b). As it is not in dispute that it was on the application of the appellant filed before this Court for appointment of arbitrator in terms of the agreement under Clause 64(3)(b) of General Condition of Contract, that this Court on 26.08.1998 after hearing both the parties appointed Smt. Tanuja Pandey, arbitrator from the side of respondent-railway and Sri O.P. Narang as arbitrator from the side of appellant. The Court made clear that as per Clause 64(3)(b), before entering into arbitration, arbitrators were required to nominate an Umpire.

49. As record reveals that though both the arbitrators had agreed on the name of one P.K. Sharma as an Umpire, but the same was not conveyed to the appellant, as such another arbitration application no. 47 of 1998 was preferred for the appointment of Umpire. It was through counter affidavit that Railways brought on record name of Sri P.K. Sharma as an Umpire and Court on 01.11.1999 granted approval to his name and the application was disposed of finally.

50. It appears that in the arbitration application no. 47 of 1998, a review/ correction application was filed by the appellant for treating the Umpire, P.K. Sharma as presiding arbitrator of the Arbitral Tribunal as the new act envisages provision for presiding arbitrator and not Umpire. This Court on 15.03.2002 while allowing the application, directed that Sri P.K. Sharma be treated as presiding arbitrator of the Tribunal instead of Umpire. In the meantime, the arbitrators had already entered into the reference and appellant had filed their statement of claim on 06.01.1999 and statement of defence was filed by respondents-Railways on 06.04.1999

51. The two arbitrators, on 02.05.2000 apprised the Registrar of this Court that presiding arbitrator, P.K. Sharma was unable to act and in his place another presiding arbitrator be appointed.

52. Simultaneously, appellant also approached this Court through Civil Misc. Modification Application No. 8 of 2002 filed in earlier Arbitration Application No. 35 of 1997, with a prayer for modifying the order dated 15.03.2002 and appointing another person as presiding arbitrator (not being a person belonging to Railway Department). It appears that this modification application was placed before the then Chief Justice who on 26.09.2003, treating the modification application as a fresh application under Section 11 of the Act appointed one Mr. Justice H.N. Seth, a retired Chief Justice of this Court as the sole arbitrator. The order appointing sole arbitrator did not take care of the fact that earlier Arbitral Tribunal constituted by this Court on 26.08.1998 was already in existence and proceedings were going on, as both the parties had filed their statement of claim and defence under Section 23, and mandate of the earlier Tribunal was not terminated.

53. The contention of learned counsel for the appellant to the extent that the order states that considering facts and circumstances of the case, the Chief Justice proceeded to appoint the sole arbitrator, meaning thereby that the mandate of the earlier Tribunal stood terminated, cannot be accepted on two counts, firstly, that the order dated 26.09.2003 was passed on the modification application which was filed by appellant himself with a prayer for appointing a presiding arbitrator in place of P.K. Sharma, who till then was presiding and had showed his unwillingness to act further. Thus, the Court was very much aware of the fact that Arbitral Tribunal was already in existence and there was a limited prayer for substituting presiding arbitrator in place of P.K. Sharma. The procedure adopted by the Court was not correct as it could not have made any fresh appointment under Section 11 and only a presiding arbitrator could have been substituted, when the mandate of the earlier presiding arbitrator had come to an end.

54. Secondly, the order dated 26.09.2003, in fact, launched a fresh arbitration proceeding by substituting Arbitral Tribunal of a sole arbitrator de novo without terminating the mandate of the earlier Arbitral Tribunal constituted by this Court in the year 1998 and the statement of claim and defence had already been moved by the parties. The only option which was left to the Chief Justice at that point of time was to have modified the order dated 15.03.2002 by substituting with a new presiding arbitrator or after termination of the earlier Arbitral Tribunal could have constituted a new Arbitral Tribunal.

55. In the case of SVG Molasses Co. B.V. (supra), the Apex Court held that the Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 11(6) of the Act cannot sub-plant the agreement of the parties, as they had entered into arbitration agreement with their eyes wide open. Relevant Paras, 11, 12 and 15 are extracted hereasunder:-

"11. The 1996 Act envisages party autonomy. The constitution of the arbitral tribunal in the manner in which it is to be appointed concededly depends upon the type of substantive agreement. When the parties to the agreement are to nominate one arbitrator each on their behalf, the third arbitrator is appointed by the nominated arbitrators. It is not in dispute that Respondents herein have failed and/or neglected to appoint an arbitrator in terms of the arbitration agreement. A submission was made by the learned Counsel appearing on behalf of Respondents that they would face immense difficulties in proceeding before an arbitral tribunal at Amsterdam in Netherlands; but this Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 11(6) of the 1996 Act cannot supplant the agreement of the parties. The parties entered into the Arbitration Agreement with their eyes wide open. They knew the terms thereof. This Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 11(6) of the 1996 Act cannot alter the terms of the contract.

It is idle to contend that there is no arbitration clause. It is furthermore not in dispute that the applicant is a company carrying on business from Netherlands. The goods are also said to be of Iranian origin. It would, therefore, not be correct to say that the agreement does not fall within the scope of International Commercial Arbitration as defined in Section 2(1)(f) of the 1996 Act. The identity and location of the Petitioner being a foreign country would bring the case within the purview of International Commercial Arbitration.

12. In this case, we are not concerned as to whether any of the respondents has complied with his obligations under the contract or not, the same would fall for determination by the Arbitral Tribunal, nor are we concerned with under what circumstances the said agreement was entered into. The plea raised on behalf of the respondents that by shifting the scene of activity to the Netherlands would be getting undue advantage of situation to the Petitioner is again a matter wherewith we are not concerned at this stage. The law applicable to the agreement may be the Indian law but the same would not mean that the arbitration agreement is invalid. This Court cannot also direct appointment of a single Arbitrator in place of three Arbitrators or change the place of Arbitration as provided for in the agreement. The same would amount to alteration of terms of the agreement entered into by and between the parties. In terms of Section 11(6) of the 1996 Act, the Court would derive jurisdiction only when a person being a party to the Arbitration agreement fails to perform a function entrusted to it thereunder. It is, therefore, not possible to accede to the request of the learned Counsel for the Arbitrator.

15. In National Highways Authority of India and Anr. v. Bumihiway DDB Ltd. (JV) and Ors. MANU/SC/4201/2006 : (2006)10SCC763 , it was opined:

44. The parties have entered into a contract after fully understanding the import of the terms so agreed to from which there cannot be any deviation. The Courts have held that the parties are required to comply with the procedure of appointment as agreed to and the defaulting party cannot be allowed to take advantage of its own wrong.

It is also not a case where Petitioner has waived its right under the arbitration agreement, as was the case of B.S.N.L. and Ors. v. Subhash Chandra Kanchan and Anr. MANU/SC/8490/2006 : AIR2006SC3335."

56. In Union of India vs. M.P. Gupta, 2004 LawSuit (SC) 139, the Apex Court held that in view of express provision contained, two Gazetted Railway Officers shall be appointed as the arbitrators, a Judge appointed by High Court was held to be invalidated. Relevant Paras 3 and 4 are extracted hereasunder:

"3. The relevant part of clause 64 runs as under:

"64. Demand for arbitration.- (3)(a)(ii) Two arbitrators who shall be gazetted railways officers of equal status to be appointed in the manner laid in clause 64(3)(b) for all claims of Rs. 5,00,000.00 (Rupees five lakhs) and above, and for all claims irrespective of the amount or value of such claim if the issues involved are of a complicated nature. The General Manager shall be the sole judge to decide whether the issues involved are of a complicated nature or not. In the event of the two arbitrators being undecided in their opinions, the matter under dispute will be referred to an umpire to be appointed in the manner laid down in sub-clause (3)(b) for his decision. (3)(a)(iii) it is a term of this contract that no person other than a gazetted railway officer should act as an arbitrator/ umpire and if for any reason, that is not possible, the matter is not to be referred to arbitration at all."

4. In view of the express provision contained therein that two gazetted railway officers shall be appointed as arbitrators, Justice P. K. Bahri could not be appointed by the High Court as the sole arbitrator. On this short ground alone, the judgment and order under challenge to the extent it appoints justice P.K. Bahri as sole arbitrator is set aside. Within 30 days from today, the appellants herein shall appoint two gazetted railway officers as arbitrators. The two newly appointed arbitrators shall enter into reference within a period of another one month and thereafter the arbitrators shall make their award within a period of three months. The appeal is allowed in part and to the extent indicated above. There shall be no order as to costs."

57. In Antrix Corporation Ltd. (supra), the Apex Court held that arbitration clause once invoked and an arbitrator having been appointed, the arbitration agreement could not have been invoked for second time. Relevant Para 31 is extracted hereasunder:-

" 31. The matter is not as complex as it seems and in our view, once the Arbitration Agreement had been invoked by Devas and a nominee Arbitrator had also been appointed by it, the Arbitration Agreement could not have been invoked for a second time by the Petitioner, which was fully aware of the appointment made by the Respondent. It would lead to an anomalous state of affairs if the appointment of an Arbitrator once made, could be questioned in a subsequent proceeding initiated by the other party also for the appointment of an Arbitrator. In our view, while the Petitioner was certainly entitled to challenge the appointment of the Arbitrator at the instance of Devas, it could not do so by way of an independent proceeding Under Section 11(6) of the 1996 Act. While power has been vested in the Chief Justice to appoint an Arbitrator Under Section 11(6) of the 1996 Act, such appointment can be questioned Under Section 13 thereof. In a proceeding Under Section 11 of the 1996 Act, the Chief Justice cannot replace one Arbitrator already appointed in exercise of the Arbitration Agreement.

It may be noted that in case of Gesellschaft Fur Biotechnologische Forschun GMBH v. Kopran Laboratories Ltd. and Anr. [(2004) 13 SCC 630], a learned Single Judge of the Bombay High Court, while hearing an appeal Under Section 8 of the 1996 Act, directed the claims/disputes of the parties to be referred to the sole arbitration of a retired Chief Justice with the venue at Bombay, despite the fact that under the Arbitration Agreement it had been indicated that any disputes, controversy or claim arising out of or in relation to the Agreement, would be settled by arbitration in accordance with the Rules of Reconciliation of the International Chamber of Commerce, Paris, with the venue of arbitration in Bombay, Maharashtra, India. This Court held that when there was a deviation from the methodology for appointment of an Arbitrator, it was incumbent on the part of the Chief Justice to assign reasons for such departure. "

58. In Grid Corporation of Orissa (supra), Supreme Court held that once the Arbitral Tribunal was constituted, no ground arose for the application to be entertained under Section 11 for appointment of arbitrator. Relevant Para 25 is extracted hereasunder:-

"25. In Konkan Railway Corporation Ltd. and Ors. (supra) it has been held (vide para 21) that in spite of an appointment having been made by the Chief Justice or his designate an objection as to the constitution of the arbitral tribunal being improper or without jurisdiction is capable of being raised before the arbitral tribunal itself under Section 16 of the Act, for an objection not only as to the width of jurisdiction but also one going to the very root of its jurisdiction is entertainable by the arbitral tribunal under Section 16. That being so assuming without holding that there is any substance in the plea of the petitions it is open for them to raise the same before the arbitral tribunal. Once the arbitral tribunal has come into existence, as it has - in my opinion in the facts and circumstances of the case a petition under Section 11(6) of the Act is not an appropriate remedy which the petitioners have chosen. None of the grounds contemplated by Clauses (a), (b) and (c) of Sub-section (6) of Section 11 exists. There is no deficiency in the constitution the arbitral tribunal attributable to any of the parties or the arbitrators. There is no occasion for filing a request petition under Section 11(6) of the Act. "

59. In Baghel Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. vs. N.T.P.C. Ltd. and three others, this Court on 10.11.2014, while deciding arbitration and conciliation application no. 37 of 2014, relying upon the various decisions of the Apex Court held that arbitrator already appointed as per terms and conditions of the agreement, then application moved under Section 11 to terminate the mandate of the earlier arbitrator is misconceived and not maintainable.

60. In the case of National Highways Authority of India and others (supra), after fully understanding the importance of arbitration agreement so agreed between the parties, held that there cannot be any deviation. Relevant Para 29 is extracted hereasunder:-

"29. As rightly pointed out by the appellants, the High Court failed to appreciate that in accordance with Section 15(2) of the Act on the termination of the mandate of the Presiding Arbitrator, the two nominated arbitrators were first required to reach a consensus and on their failure to arrive at a consensus only respondent No. 2 was authorized to make the appointment. Unless respondent No. 2 failed to exercise its jurisdiction, the High Court could not assume jurisdiction under Section 11(6) of the Act. Respondent No. 1 has wrongly invoked the jurisdiction of this Court without first following the procedure agreed to between the parties. Thus no cause of action had arisen in the facts of the case to seek the appointment from the High Court under Section 11(6) of the Act and thus the said petition was premature. The High Court also is not correct in relying on the contention of the respondent No. 1 that in case one of the arbitrators is retired Chief Justice, the Presiding Arbitrator should be at least a retired Chief Justice or a retired Judge of a High Court with considerable experience. It was submitted by learned Solicitor General appearing for the appellants that the said finding of the High Court is self contradictory inasmuch as if the Presiding Arbitrator is a retired Judge of the High Court and one of the arbitrators is a retired Chief Justice of the High Court, the member of hierarchy is upset. Even otherwise, there does not exist any such provision in law which requires that if one of the arbitrators is a retired Judge the Presiding Arbitrator also has to be a retired Judge. The parties have entered into a contract after fully understanding the import of the terms so agreed to from which there cannot be any deviation. The Courts have held that the parties are required to comply with the procedure of appointment as agreed to and the defaulting party cannot be allowed to take advantage of its own wrong. "

61. Thus, the very appointment made on 26.09.2003, ignoring the earlier Arbitral Tribunal constituted on 26.08.1998 and without terminating the mandate of the arbitrators who were appointed in terms of the agreement between the parties, was against the law laid down by the Apex Court, and the argument of the appellant that the earlier appointment of Arbitral Tribunal stood terminated once the Arbitral Tribunal consisting of sole arbitrator was appointed in the year 2003, cannot be accepted as the only application made by appellant was for substitution of presiding arbitrator in place of P.K. Sharma.

62. Thus, the finding recorded by court below on the objections filed under Section 34 is correct that the Court cannot go beyond the terms of agreement when there is a specially procedure laid down for the appointment of arbitrators.

63. Argument of Sri Goyal, learned Senior Counsel that the court below had not noticed the fact that parties derogated and such derogation was permissible under the law, cannot be accepted as the agreement Clause 64(3)(b) categorically provides for the appointment of two arbitrators, one from each side and two arbitrators to nominate an Umpire. As it is not in dispute in the present case that the appellant had approached this Court for invocation of the agreement Clause 64(3)(b), and Court had appointed two gazetted officers from the panel of Railways, one from the side of the appellant and other from the respondents' side, further, they were required to nominate an Umpire within a month. The appellant moved second application no. 47 of 1998 for the appointment of Umpire and agreed on the name of P.K. Sharma, who was to conduct as an Umpire and the Court approved his candidature vide order dated 01.11.1999.

64. Thereafter, it was on the application of appellant that designation of Sri P.K. Sharma, Umpire was changed/ modified to presiding arbitrator on 15.03.2002. Thus, the appellant cannot blow hot and cold at the same time, as it was on his application that the Court had appointed two arbitrators as well as presiding arbitrators who were conducting the arbitration and constituted Arbitral Tribunal of three persons. As both the parties in the year 1999 itself had submitted themselves to the Arbitral Tribunal and had filed their statement of claim and defence, thus, no question of Section 10 of the Act arises as the parties are bound by their agreement and the Court had appointed the arbitrators in pursuance to Clause 64(3)(b) and there was no violation of provisions of Section 10(1) of the Act and Section 10(2) does not come into play.

65. As the Apex Court had already ruled in case of SVG Molasses Co. B.V.(supra) that Court cannot alter the terms of contract/ agreement. Similarly, in M.M.T.C. Ltd. (supra) held that two arbitrators appointed shall appoint an Umpire before proceeding with the reference and there was nothing in the new Act to make such agreement unenforceable. Relevant Paras 11, 12 and 13 are extracted hereasunder:-

"11. The arbitration clause provides that each party shall nominate one arbitrator and the two arbitrators shall then appoint an umpire before proceeding with the reference. The arbitration agreement is valid as it satisfies the requirement of Section 7 of the New Act. Section 11(3) requires the two arbitrators to appoint the third arbitrator or the umpire. There can be no doubt that the arbitration agreement in the present case accords with the implied condition contained in para 2 of the First Schedule to the Arbitration Act, 1940 requiring the two arbitrators, one each appointed by the two sides, to appoint an umpire not later than one month from the latest date of their respective appointment.

12. The question is: whether there is anything in the New Act to make such an agreement unenforceable? We do not find any such indication in the New Act. There is no dispute that the arbitral proceeding in the present case commenced after the New Act came into force and, therefore, the New Act applies. In view of the term in the arbitration agreement that the two arbitrators would appoint the umpire or the third arbitrator before proceeding with the reference, the requirement of Sub-section (1) of Section 10 is satisfied and Sub-section (2) thereof has no application. As earlier stated the agreement satisfies the requirement of Section 7 of the Act and, therefore is a valid arbitration agreement. The appointment of arbitrators must, therefore, be governed by Section 11 of the New Act.

13. In view of the fact that each of the two parties have appointed their own arbitrators, namely, Justice M.N. Chandurkar (Retd.) and Justice S.P. Sapra (Retd.), Section 11(3) was attracted and the two appointed arbitrators were required to appoint a third arbitrator to act as the presiding arbitrator, failing which the Chief Justice of the High Court or any person or institution designated by him would be required to appoint the third arbitrator as required by Section 11(4)(b) of the New Act. Since the procedure prescribed in Section 11(3) has not been followed the further consequence provided in Section 11 must follow. "

66. Reliance placed by the appellant on the decision of Narayan Prasad Lohia (supra), does not help him much, as in the said case two arbitrators had arbitrated and the award was challenged on this ground, but in the present case the General Condition of Contract in Clause 64(3)(b) provided for the two arbitrators, one from each side who were to nominate an Umpire. However, relevant Paras 5, 14, 16 and 19 of the said judgment are extracted hereasunder:-

"5. On 22nd December, 1997 the 1st Respondent filed an Application in the Calcutta High Court for setting aside the Award dated 6th October, 1996. On 17th January, 1998 the 2nd Respondent filed an Application for setting aside this Award. One of the grounds, in both these applications, was that the Arbitration was by two Arbitrators whereas under the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter called the said Act) there cannot be an even number of arbitrators. It was contended that an arbitration by two arbitrators was against the statutory provision of the said Act and therefore void and invalid. It was contended that consequently the Award was unenforceable and not binding on the parties. These contentions found favour with a single Judge of the Calcutta High Court who set aside the Award on 17th November, 1998. On 18th May, 2000 the Appeal was also dismissed. Hence this Appeal to this Court.

14. We have heard the parties at length./ We have considered the submissions. Undoubtedly, Section 10 provides that the number of arbitrators shall not be an even number. The question still remains whether Section 10 is a Non-derivable provision. In our view the answer to this question would depend on question as to whether, under the said Act, a party has a right to object to the composition of the arbitral tribunal, if such composition is not in accordance with the said Act and if so at what stage. It must be remembered that arbitration is a creature of an agreement. There can be no arbitration unless there is an arbitration agreement in writing between the parties.

16. It has been held by a Constitution Bench of this Court, in the case of Konkan Railway Corporation Ltd. v. Rani Construction Pvt. Ltd. MANU/SC/0053/2002 : [2002]1SCR728 that Section 16 enables the arbitral tribunal to rule on its own jurisdiction. It has been held that under Section 16 the arbitral tribunal can rule on any objection with respect to existence or validity of the arbitration agreement. It is held that the arbitral tribunals authority under Section 16, is not confined to the width of its jurisdiction but goes also to the root of its jurisdiction. Not only this decision is binding on this Court, but we are in respectful agreement with the same. Thus it is no longer open to contend that, under Section 16, party cannot challenge the composition of the arbitral tribunal before the arbitral tribunal itself. Such a challenge must betaken, under Section 16(2), not later than the submission of the statement of defence. Section 16(2) makes it clear that such a challenge can be taken even though the party may have participated in the appointment of the arbitrator and/or may have himself appointed the arbitrator. Needless to state a party would be free, if he so choose, not to raise such a challenge. Thus a conjoint reading of Sections 10 and 16 shows that an objection to the composition of the arbitral tribunal is a matter which is derogable. It is derogable because a party is free not to object within the time prescribed in Section 16(2). If a party chooses not to so object there will be a deemed waiver under Section 4. Thus, we are unable to accept the submission that Section 10 is a Non-derivable provision. In our view Section 10 has to be read along with Section 16 and is, therefore a derogable provision.

19. In our view, Section 34(2)(a)(v) cannot be read in the manner as suggested. Section 34(2)(a)(v) only applies if "the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties". These opening words make it very clear that if the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure is in accordance with the agreement of the parties, as in this case, then there can be no challenge under this provision. The question of "unless such agreement as in conflict with the provisions of this Act" would only arise if the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure is not in accordance with the agreement of the parties. When the composition or the procedure is not in accordance with the agreement of the parties then the parties get aright to challenge the award. But even in such a case the right to challenge the award is restricted. The challenge can only be provided the agreement of the parties is in conflict with a provision of Part I which the parties cannot derogate. In other words, even if the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure is not in accordance with the agreement of the parties but if such composition or procedure is in accordance with the provisions of the said Act, then the party cannot challenge the award. The words "failing such agreement" have reference to an agreement providing for the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure. They would come into play only if there is no agreement providing for the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure. If there is no agreement providing for the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure and the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with Part I of the said Act then also a challenge to the award would be available. Thus so long as the composition of the arbitral tribunal or the arbitral procedure are in accordance with the agreement of the parties, Section 34 does not permit challenge to an award merely on the ground that the composition of the arbitral tribunal was in conflict with the provisions of Part I of the said Act. This also indicates that Section 10 is a derogable provision. "

67. Similarly, reliance placed upon judgment of Apex Court in case of Motorola India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) is also of no help to appellant. Relevant Para 18 is extracted hereasunder:-

"18. Pursuant to Section 4 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, a party who knows that a requirement under the arbitration agreement has not been complied with and still proceeds with the arbitration without raising an objection, as soon as possible, waives their right to object. The High Court had appointed an arbitrator in response to the petition filed by the appellant. At this point, the matter was closed unless further objections were to be raised. If further objections were to be made after this order, they should have been made prior to the first arbitration hearing. But the appellant had not raised any such objections. The appellant therefore had clearly failed to meet the stated requirement to object to arbitration without delay. As such their right to object is deemed to be waived."

68. The second ground raised on behalf of the appellant as to waiver by conduct of respondents in not challenging the order constituting the Arbitral Tribunal of sole arbitrator stood waived by virtue of Section 4 of the Act, cannot be accepted, as the law prevalent at that time was that it was an administrative order and the remedy available was by filing objections before the Tribunal, the judgment rendered by Apex Court in case of S.B.P. and Co. (supra) was delivered on 26.10.2005, which provided that appointment of arbitrator/ Arbitral Triubnal by designated authority was a judicial order. Till that date, the law prevalent was that such an order was an administrative order in view of Konkan Railway Corporation Ltd. (supra).

69. Argument raised by appellant as to respondents having acquiesced to jurisdiction of the sole arbitrator and their right stood extinguished, cannot be accepted, as the consent before the sole arbitrator will not amount to termination of mandate of Arbitral Tribunal constituted on 26.08.1998 in terms of the agreement executed between the parties. Moreover, time was granted on 12.03.2004 for amending the statement of defence, thus pleadings before sole arbitrator were not complete and the objection filed under Section 16(2) was within the time frame as mandated.

70. The Supreme Court in case of Motorola India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) had held that the objections were to be raised before the first date of hearing. In the present case, no hearing had taken place and only the exchange of documents were being made between the parties. In Gokulananda Jena, the Apex Court had held that grounds available for challenge in writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution is limited because of alternative remedy available under the Act itself, which is provided in Section 16 read with Sections 12 and 13 of the Act.

71. Coming to the next point raised by appellant that as no technical qualification of arbitrators were mentioned in the arbitration clause, then the parties can derogate and appointment of a retired Judge subsequently by the Court as sole arbitrator was justified and the court below had not touched upon the impact of Section 10 or 4 of the Act.

72. Decision in case of Tripple Engineering Works (supra) relied upon is distinguishable in the present case as in the said case, arbitration could not commence, as in the year 2002 the Northern Eastern Railway which had entered into contract with the contractor, was bifurcated into Northern Eastern Railway and East Central Railway and despite the agreement of year 1994, no arbitrator was appointed and the Court found that a period of two decades has elapsed since the contractor had raised his claim for alleged wrongful termination of two contracts. As it is evident in the present case that arbitration clause was invoked in the year 1997, on 26.08.1998 two arbitrators were appointed, while Arbitral Tribunal had already entered into reference in the year 1999 itself. Decision in the case of Dakshin Shelters P. Ltd. (supra) is also of no help to the appellant as the arbitrators were already appointed by the Court on 26.08.1998.

73. In the case of BESCO Ltd. (supra), the Court while appointing an arbitrator not being a railway officer was in terms of General Conditions and Special Conditions of Contract which did not provide specific railway officer while in the present case the General Condition of Contract, Clause 64(3)(b) provided for two gazetted railway officers, one from the side of appellant and other from the side of Railway and this Court on 26.08.1998 had appointed two arbitrators, who therein had chosen a presiding arbitrator which had the stamp of this Court on 01.11.1999, thus, no question arose for forming a fresh Arbitral Tribunal without terminating the mandate of the earlier one. Reliance placed on the decisions are totally distinguishable to the facts of the present case.

74. In Bharat Wire Ropes Ltd. (supra), the Court deviated from the agreement from appointing any gazetted railway officer as no name as contemplated by agreement came forward from either side. While in the present controversy, the Court invoking an agreement Clause 64(3)(b) on 26.08.1998, had already appointed two gazetted officers from the panel, as agreed by the parties, thus, this case is totally distinguishable in facts of the present case.

75. In Aargee Engineers and Co. and another vs. Era Infra Engineering Ltd. and others, (2017) 4 ADJ 513, this Court while deviating from the agreement, appointed arbitrator as the main arbitrator failed to act but in the present case it was not such a case and the Arbitral Tribunal was already in existence and only presiding arbitrator was to be substituted. Reliance placed in case of Basai Steels Pvt. Ltd. vs. Gobins India Engineering Pvt. Ltd. and another, 2018 (5) Arb. LR 480(Karn.) (DB) is not applicable in the present case.

76. Thus, it is clear that when agreement itself provides for arbitrators who are gazetted railway officer, then no question arises to derogate from the said arbitration clause and appoint a retired Judge. The law on this point is clear that no derogation in the appointment of arbitrator can be made where the clause specifically provides for certain persons to be appointed as arbitrator.

77. Now, coming to the next point as to the award made by sole arbitrator which could sub-serve the purpose of parties and whether the Court had rightly appointed a retired Judge instead of appointing a presiding arbitrator on the application moved by appellant for modification of order dated 15.03.2002. No doubt it is true that Act provides for speedy remedy for disposal of dispute between the parties, but that does not give any room for bypassing the procedure laid down in the Act itself.

78. As the Arbitration is creature of agreement, the parties cannot be allowed to deviate from the same where the agreement is a valid agreement as per Section 7 of the Act.

79. As it was never a case of the respondents that they had suffered any prejudice in the decision making process of the sole arbitrator, nor they had raised any bias against him and the only objection was to the composition of the Arbitral Tribunal, which was not in accordance as this Court had already constituted the Arbitral Tribunal in the year 1998 itself in pursuance of the agreement executed between the parties, thus, the argument raised that respondents not having raised any bias against the sole arbitrator nor the court below recording any finding, the award so made could not be set aside, cannot be accepted in the facts of the present case, as the constitution of the Tribunal is a very genesis of the dispute and the same having been raised by respondents within time, the arbitrator should not have proceeded and gave his award and the court below had rightly allowed the objections filed under Section 34.

80. Decisions rendered in Abdul Gaffar (supra) and Citibank N.A. (supra) are not applicable in the present dispute as this Court had already invoked the arbitration Clause 64(3)(b) on 26.08.1998 and appointed two arbitrators who were to appoint an Umpire.

81. As far as, argument regarding filing of statement of claim and defence under Section 23(1) read with Section 16(2), argument of Sri Goyal that objections under Section 16(2) cannot be filed later than submission of statement of defence is what the Act mandates. Now the question in the present case is the date on which statement of defence was filed by respondents-railways.

82. As it is not in dispute that before the earlier Tribunal, the statement of claim was filed by the appellant on 06.01.1999, while statement of defence was filed on 06.04.1999. These claims were agreed to be filed before the subsequent Arbitral Tribunal constituted on 26.09.2003, and on 05.12.2003, arbitrator had granted time till 15th January for filing the same. On 02.01.2004, arbitrator through his letter had extended that time for filing statement of defence till 05.02.2004. Proceedings of the second meeting, held on 14.04.2004, indicate that the copies of statement of claim, defence and rejoinder, which were filed before the previous arbitrators were filed before the subsequent Arbitral Tribunal, and parties were granted time to check and verify, and further time was granted for filing additional documents. Proceedings of third meeting dated 12.03.2004 indicates that appellant had required certain documents from the respondents and they were directed by arbitrator to provide the necessary copies and further time was granted to respondents to modify their statement of defence, as claimants had filed number of annexures before the arbitrator.

83. Thus, statement of claim and defence was not complete as the arbitral proceedings had started de novo before the second Arbitral Tribunal constituted by the Court, documents were being placed before the arbitrator and time was granted for amending their claims. It was on 24.04.2004 when objection was raised regarding composition of Arbitral Tribunal by respondents, thus, it cannot be said that time for filing of statement of defence had closed, as in the previous meeting, time was granted for amending the statement of defence, meaning thereby that statement of defence from the side of respondents was not complete.

84. In Motorola India Pvt. Ltd. (supra), objections were not raised before the first date of hearing and the Hon'ble Supreme Court was of the view that such objections cannot be sustained, while in the present case, the stage of filing of statement of defence was not over as mandated in Section 16(2). Moreover, later part of Sub-section (2) of Section 16 provides that a party shall not be precluded from raising plea that Arbitral Tribunal does not have jurisdiction merely because he has appointed or participated in the appointment of arbitrator. Thus, the right of respondents does not stand closed in view of fact that it had appeared and participated when the matter was heard on 26.09.2003, as the right of the respondents is preserved by this statutory provision for raising objection.

85. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, I find that the Tribunal constituted on 26.09.2003, consisting of sole arbitrator was without terminating the mandate of the earlier Tribunal, constituted by the Court on 26.08.1998, and by the consent of the parties before arbitrator, the mandate of the said Tribunal could not have been terminated and the arbitrator on 05.12.2003 wrongly assumed his jurisdiction and noted down that earlier Tribunal stood superseded in view of consensus made by learned counsel for the parties.

86. Furthermore, as the statements of claim and defence were being finalised between the parties before the subsequent arbitrator, the objections had come up from the respondents' side on 24.04.2004, which cannot be said to be beyond the period prescribed under Section 16(2), as till date the arbitrator himself had kept it open and had granted the opportunity to respondents to modify their statement of defence and in case respondents had not filed their objections on 24.04.2004, and had modified their statement of defence then, question of delay would have arisen.

87. No question of waiver in view of Section 4 arises on the part of respondents as they had never objected to the earlier Arbitral Tribunal and it was after 26.09.2003 when arbitration proceeded de novo, then before finalisation of statement of defence, statutory objections under Sub-section (2) of Section 16 were moved questioning the composition of Arbitral Tribunal.

88. Question of derogation does not arise as the agreement between the parties binds them and arbitration being creature of agreement, such derogation is not permissible under the law. Clause 64(3)(b) of the agreement provided for the composition of the Arbitral Tribunal of two arbitrators, who were to appoint an Umpire. As appointment of two arbitrators were made in pursuance to the order of this Court on 26.08.1998 and subsequently an Umpire was appointed on 01.11.1999, the court below rightly repelled the argument of derogation and further, no violation of Section 10(1) of the Act arises and appointment of de novo Arbitral Tribunal on the basis of Section 10(2) of the Act, cannot be justified.

89. Appointment of Arbitral Tribunal had been made as per the agreement clause invoked by the appellant before this Court in the year 1997, and constituting fresh Arbitral Tribunal without replacing the earlier Tribunal or terminating its mandate, was against the agreement entered into between the parties, as well as there being no dispute either between the parties to the very constitution of the Arbitral Tribunal in the year 1998. Simply, on the basis of modification application that fresh Arbitral Tribunal was constituted without taking note of the earlier proceedings.

90. The court below rightly after hearing and considering the objections under Section 34 of the respondents as well as the reply of appellant, set aside the arbitral award dated 21.02.2008.

91. No interference is required in the order dated 09.09.2013 passed by court below, the appeal is devoid of merits and is hereby dismissed.

92. However, parties to bear their own costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vijay Prakash Mishra, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Saurabh Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondent-Insurance Company.

2. Facts giving rise to this appeal in narrow compass is that on 5.11.2014, husband of appellant no.1, namely, Sarita along with her brother, namely, Pravin riding on his motorcycle bearing Registration No. DL7SBW 8095 was going to his village Asawar, Police Station Gulawati from Delhi and when driver, namely, Ankit driving a van bearing Registration No. UP 16 BT 8799 rashly and negligently dashed the said motorcycle on account of which Raj Kumar sustained severe injuries. He was rushed to district hospital where he breathed his last.

3. The claimants (dependents of the deceased) approached the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.9, Bulandshahr (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal' by way of filing M.A.C.P. No.174 of 2015 claiming compensation of Rs. 5,00,000/- and interest at the rate of 15%.

4. The Tribunal by way of impugned judgment and award dated 3.9.2016 awarded a sum of Rs.21,51,140/- as compensation with interest at the rate of 7% from the date of filing claim petition till date of payment. Being dissatisfied, the claimants filed present appeal challenging the said award.

5. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is not in dispute. The Insurance Company has not challenged the liability imposed on them. The only issue to be decided is, the quantum of compensation awarded.

6. I have perused the Judgment and award impugned herein. Submissions of the learned counsel for the appellant as well as submissions of learned counsel for the respondent are heard at length and are considered.

7. The submissions of the learned counsel for the appellants as well as learned counsel for the respondent are heard at length and are considered. Learned Tribunal has evaluated that for the sum of Rs.2,00,000/- there would be no tax to be deducted then the Tribunal, he has total amount of income and deducts 10% as tax which it could not have done. The income of the deceased as calculated was Rs.17,885/- and that is

7. The income of deceased would be Rs.17,855/- minus tax to be deducted. The appellant does not seek enhancement of salary amount and restricts his claim to Rs.17,855/- as decided by the Tribunal. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that The Tribunal has not granted any amount under the head of future loss of income in spite of the judgment of Apex Court rendered in Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121. Sri Saurabh Srivastava, learned counsel could not point out that Judgment of Sarla Verma (supra) and subsequent Judgment of Apex Court rendered in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050, would not apply to the facts of this case. The Tribunal deducted 1/3rd of the income, i.e., Rs. 5,961/- towards personal expenses of the deceased, which, according to the appellants, should be 1/4th . The same is vehemently opposed by Sri Srivastava and this Court is also in agreement with the submission of Sri Srivastava that it cannot be 1/4th but 1/3rd only and, thus, the same is maintained. Multiplier of 15 is also in consonance with the decision rendered in Sarla Verma (supra) and Pranay Sethi (supra), which calls for no modification. As far as amount towards non-pecuniary damages are concerned, the Tribunal has awarded Rs.15,000/- which calls for interference as looking to the Judgment of Pranay Sethi (supra), it should be

Rs.70,000/- plus Rs.10,000/- for every year, hence, lump sum amount would be Rs.30,000/-, and, thus, consolidated amount towards it would come to total of Rs.1,00,000/-.

7. The learned Tribunal has evaluated that for the sum of Rs.2,00,000/-, there would be no tax deduction then the Tribunal considers total amount of income and deducts 10% as tax which could not have been done. Income of the deceased as calculated was Rs.17,885/- and that is how the Tribunal has considered the amount. However, the amount of Rs.17,885/- will have to be considered. The finding of fact of the Tribunal is that son of the deceased has been given employment and, therefore, there is no question of addition of future income. The Tribunal could not have done this. The reason is employment and the income in employment would be because of the service which the son would do. Compensation is for the loss of the deceased. The decision of the Tribunal on this aspect cannot sustain because the Apex Court in catena of decisions laid down that the appointment of legal heir would not preclude the family from getting the amount under future loss of income. I am supported in my view by the decisions, namely, Vimal Kanwar & others versus Kishore Dan and others, 2013 ACJ 1441 and also in F.A.F.O. No. 1302 of 2006, The New India Assurance Company Ltd. Vs. Hoti Lal and another, decided on 31.1.2018. Non-addition of future loss of income cannot be made applicable. The Judgment of the Apex Court in K.R. Madhusudhan and others Vs. Administrative Officer and another, 2011 (4) SCC 689, lays down the principle for deciding future prospects of a salaried person which also nowhere suggests that on death of salaried person if family is benefited by way of retirement benefits or death benefits, the same should not be considered. Hence, the compensation would have to be recomputed.

7. Hence, thecompensation payable to the appellants in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Pranay Sethi (Supra) is computed herein below

i. Income: Rs.17,885/-

ii. Percentage towards future prospects :50% namely Rs.8942.5/-

iii. Total income : Rs. 17,885+ 8942.5= Rs.26827.5

iv. Income after deduction of 1/3th : Rs. 17,885/-

v. Annual income : Rs.17,885 x 12 = Rs.2,14,620/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 15

vii. Loss of dependency: Rs.2,14,620 x 15 = Rs.32,19,300/- viii. Amount under non pecuniary heads : Rs.1,00,000/-

ix. Total compensation : Rs. 33,19,300/-

8. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johat and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

9. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

10. The Tribunal be sent this order so that in future, it will remain vigilant while considering motor accident claims for death of a salaried person.

11. This Court is thankful to Sri Vijay Prakash Mishra and Sri Saurabh Srivastava, learned counsel for getting this old matter disposed of during this pandemic.

(A) Civil Law - Land Acquisition Act, 1894 - Section 4 - Publication of preliminary notification and power of officers thereupon, Section 6 - Declaration that land is required for a public purpose , Section 11- A - period shall be which an award within made , Section 30(1) - Dispute as to apportionment , Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 - Section 24(2) - Land acquisition process under Act No. 1 of 1894 shall be deemed to have lapsed in certain cases.

Writ petition filed for declaring the impugned notifications under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 to be invalid and to quash the consequential award given by the respondents - ground - entire proceedings shall be deemed to have been lapsed in terms of Section 11-A of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 - amount of compensation as determined under the award has not been deposited in terms of Section 30(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 - consequential award also would be a nullity as the petitioner, even though having been dispossessed is entitled to regain the possession - identical notification - quashed by High Court - connected petitions upheld by the Apex Court. (Para - 2,3)

HELD:- No material so as to establish that the amount (compensation) has been deposited in the Court and has been disbursed to the petitioner under the award dated 31st October, 2002 . Consequently, the writ petition deserves to be allowed on the short ground of the proceedings having lapsed in terms of Section 24(2) of the 2013 Act. (Para -16)

2. Delhi Development Authority Vs Sukhbir Singh & ors , (2016) 16 SCC 258

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amreshwar Pratap Singh, J. & Hon'ble Rajiv Lochan Mehrotra, J.)

1. Heard Sri Akhilesh Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for respondent nos. 1, 2 and 3 and Sri G.P. Gupta for the respondent no.4.

2. This writ petition has been filed praying for declaring the impugned notifications under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 to be invalid and to quash the consequential award given by the respondents on the ground that the proceedings should be presumed to have lapsed in terms of Section 11-A of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 and the consequential award also would be a nullity as the petitioner, even though having been dispossessed in the year 2007 is entitled to regain the possession as the very same notification has been quashed by the High Court by the judgment dated 8th September, 2010 in Writ Petition No. 41522 of 2007 as well as other connected petitions that has been upheld by the Apex Court as the special leave petition filed against the same has been dismissed on 2nd May, 2007. Copy of the said judgments are on record.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner has invited the attention of the Court to the averments made in the supplementary affidavit and the supplementary rejoinder affidavit filed on behalf of the petitioner to contend that not only the acquisition is invalid on account of the aforesaid facts but also in view of the provisions of Section 24(2) of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013. The entire proceedings shall be deemed to have been lapsed as the amount of compensation as determined under the award has not been deposited in terms of Section 30(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

4. Thus a two fold argument has been advanced, firstly that the acquisition proceedings have already lapsed and since identical notification has been quashed, the writ petition deserves to be allowed and alternatively applying the provisions of 2013 Act, even if the acquisition subsists, the same shall be deemed to have lapsed as no compensation has been deposited, keeping in view, the law laid down in the case of Delhi Development Authority Vs. Sukhbir Singh & Ors reported in (2016) 16 SCC 258.

5. Replying to the aforesaid submissions, learned counsel for the state and the learned counsel for the U.P.S.I.D.C. have both urged that the petitioner cannot question the proceedings of acquisition inasmuch as he had earlier filed a writ petition being Writ Petition No. 62263 of 2006 that was dismissed as withdrawn and a restoration application filed for restoring the said petition has also been rejected. Attention has been invited to the said orders dated 28.08.2008 and 29.04.2011.

6. Sri G.P. Gupta, further contends that even assuming for the sake of argument, that the possession was taken in the year 2007, even though on facts he has disputed the same and urged that possession had been taken on 23rd March, 1990, then to even keeping in view the law laid down in the case of Satendra Prasad Jain Vs. State of U.P. and others AIR 1993 Volume 5 JT page-385, once the land has been vested in the State free from all encumbrances then the issue of lapse does not arise and admittedly, the possession having been taken and handed over to the U.P.S.I.D.C., there is no occasion to grant the relief of quashing the acquisition proceedings or even otherwise interfering with the same in any manner whatsoever. He, therefore, submits that the acquisition cannot be annulled at this stage looking to the the facts of the case and consequently the writ petition deserves to be dismissed.

7. We have gone through the records and the pleadings. We find that the notification under Section 4 took place on 17th August, 1985 followed by the notification under Section 6 on 30th of March 1988. An award was delivered thereafter and compensation was also disbursed. The fact remains that the petitioner was also awarded the compensation who received the same, yet since the respondents were of the opinion that the acquisition has not resulted into the fulfilment of the purpose, therefore, they called upon the petitioner to refund the compensation amount. Since, the petitioner did not refund the amount a recovery certificate was issued and on non payment and non satisfaction of the said recovery amount, the petitioner was also sent behind bars and had to suffer civil imprisonment, whereafter he refunded the amount.

8. The aforesaid peculiar fact has been stated only with a view to point out that this acquisition proceedings had been intervened by a refund at the instance of the state itself, where the petitioner had to suffer imprisonment as well without there being any de-notification of the acquisition proceedings.

9. It so happened that the respondents again proceeded with the acquisition proceedings on the basis of the same notification and delivered a fresh award on 31st October, 2002. It is evident that this award came to be delivered with a finding that possession had been taken on 23rd March, 1990. It is this fact which has been disputed by the petitioner contending that the possession has been taken in the year 2007 and not in 1990 inasmuch as the respondents themselves have admitted not having utilized the land rather they had compelled the petitioner to refund the amount in the circumstances indicated above.

10. The newly awarded amount under the award dated 31st October, 2007, admittedly has not been deposited in any Court nor is it the case of the respondent that in compliance thereof the compensation has been disbursed to the petitioner. However, Sri G.P. Gupta submits that approximately, 95% of the tenure holders have received the compensation amount in relation to the acquisition in question.

11. At this stage, it is relevant to point out that the acquisition proceedings were challenged by the Ram Avtar and other co-tenure holders and these writ petitions were finally allowed on 8th September, 2010 holding that in view of the lapse of the period between the notifications and the award, the provisions of Section 11(A) of the 1894 Act were clearly attracted. The acquisition proceedings in respect of all the petitioners therein were therefore declared to have lapsed.

12. Against the aforesaid judgment of the High Court the U.P. State Industrial Corporation namely the 4th respondent herein filed a special leave to appeal no. 7422 of 2011, and the appeal was dismissed by the judgment dated 2nd May, 2011. The judgment also refers to a consideration of the judgment in the case of Satendra Prasad Jain and others (supra).

13. The position, therefore, that emerges is that in respect of other tenure holders the proceedings were treated to have lapsed on the ground that possession had not been taken under Section 11-A of the Act.

14. The distinction which is sought to be raised and pointed out in the present case by the learned counsel for the respondent is that in the instant case, admittedly the possession had been taken in the year 2007.

15. In our considered opinion, even if it is assumed that taking over of such possession disentitles the petitioner from any previous relief as granted to similarly situated tenure holders under the judgment referred to hereinabove, the question still remains as to whether the amount of compensation awarded under the award dated 31st October, 2002 has been deposited in terms of 1894 Act, before the concerned court or not. This is necessary inasmuch as as on date if the acquisition proceedings against the petitioner have already taken place and possession had been taken, the fact remains that under sub Section 2 of Section 24, the petitioner still has a ground made out for interference if the amount of compensation has not been deposited before the court concerned.

16. On a perusal of the affidavits on record and the averments that have been made in the respective affidavits. There is no material so as to establish that the amount has been deposited in the Court and has been disbursed to the petitioner under the award dated 31st October, 2002. To the contrary, the supplementary affidavit filed by the petitioner categorically states that after the judgment delivered by the Apex Court in respect of other co-tenure holders as referred to hereinabove, the name of the respondent no.4 has already been expunged and that all the tenure holders including the present petitioner has been restored. The situation, therefore, that emerges is that even if the petitioner had been dispossessed in the year 2007, the fact remains that his name has been restored in the revenue records by the respondent State authorities pursuant to the judgment of the Apex Court in relation to the same notification in respect of other co-tenure holders. However, no compensation has been deposited before the court concerned. Consequently, the writ petition deserves to be allowed on the short ground of the proceedings having lapsed in terms of Section 24(2) of the 2013 Act and the law as explained by the Apex Court in the Delhi Development Authority case (supra).

17. The writ petition, therefore, is allowed and it is hereby declared that acquisition of the land presently involved in the instant case in relation to the petitioner would be deemed to have lapsed. It is open to the respondents to take such steps as may be permissible in law for the purpose of further proceeding in the matter.

21. Surya Constructions Vs St. of U.P. & ors., (2019) 16 SCC 794

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava,J.)

1. Heard Sri Arun Mishra, learned counsel appearing for the petitioners in the three connected writ petitions, learned Standing Counsel for the respondents and Sri Mahboob Ahmad, learned counsel for respondent nos.2 to 5.

2. All the three writ petitions relate to similar facts and raise common questions of law, therefore, with the consent of the counsel for the parties, the three petitions have been heard together and are being decided by means of a common judgement.

3. In all the three writ petitions, the principal relief sought is with regard to certain claims for payment of contractual amounts in terms of agreements said to have been executed between the parties.

4. Sri Mahboob Ahmad, learned counsel appearing for respondent nos.2 to 5 has raised objections with regard to the maintainability of the writ petition on the ground that the petitioners seek to enforce certain contractual rights and obligations for which the appropriate remedy is to approach the civil court, or if there is any dispute with regard to the terms of the agreement, then in that case, the remedy is to invoke the arbitration clause under the agreement. He submits that the writ petitions are not liable to be entertained for the reliefs which have been prayed for.

5. In support of his contention, learned counsel appearing for the respondents has placed reliance upon the judgements of this Court in M/s Lalloo Ji Rajiv Chandra And Sons vs. Meladhikari Prayagraj Mela Authority and others, M/S Friscon Media Works vs. State Of U.P. And 3 Others and M/S Odyssey Computers through Marketing Manager Sri Ajai Singh vs. State Of U.P. and others.

6. Responding to the preliminary objection regarding maintainability of the writ petition, counsel appearing for the petitioners have sought to contend that there is no absolute bar to the maintainability of a writ petition even in contractual matters where there are disputed questions of fact or even where monetary claims are sought to be raised.

7. In order to appreciate the rival contentions, the facts relating to the writ petitions may be briefly adverted to.

8. Writ-C No.13388 of 2020 has been filed principally seeking a writ of mandamus commanding the respondent no.2- Managing Director, Purvanchal Vidhut Vitrana Nigam Ltd., DLW, Varanasi, to release an amount of Rs. 10,78,990/- to the petitioner relating to contractual payments, which the petitioner claims to be due.

9. It is submitted that after completion of the work the petitioner submitted the bills and thereafter despite several requests and representations made by the petitioner, the respondents have not made payment of the amounts which are said to be due to the petitioner as per the terms of the agreements.

10. The pleadings in the writ petition indicate that the petitioner had entered into an agreement with respondent no.4 to carry out the work of shifting of 11KV, LT line & transformer against E-Tender No.69/SE/EUDC-1-A/KM/2018-19 for a sum of Rs. 15,22,436.28 and of E-Tender No.70/SE/EUDC-1-A/KM/2018-19 for a sum of Rs.3,39,290.00. The above agreements are stated to have been entered into between the parties pursuant to L.O.I. issued vide letters dated 24.9.2018.

11. In Writ - C No.12479 of 2020, a claim is sought to be raised for payment of an amount of Rs.7,51,000/- alongwith interest in respect of certain work stated to have been completed by the petitioner pursuant to award of a contract relating to civil works. The payment has been claimed in terms of an agreement executed between the parties and the petitioner has asserted that despite reminders, the amount in question has not been paid.

12. Writ - C No.12480 of 2020 has been filed raising a similar claim with regard to the payment of an amount of Rs.10.11 lacs alongwith interest. In this case also, the petitioner claims to have been awarded a contract as per terms of an agreement entered into with the respondents for certain civil works. The petitioner has asserted that despite completion of the work as per terms of the agreement, the payment due to him has not been made.

13. Learned counsel appearing for the respondents, apart from submitting that the reliefs sought in the writ petition were in the realm of a contractual relationship and as such the same were not amenable to the writ jurisdiction, has also strongly disputed the claims sought to be raised by the petitioners. He has contended that the claims sought to be raised relate to disputed facts pertaining to interpretation of the terms of the agreement for which the appropriate remedy is to invoke the arbitration clause under the agreement or to avail the appropriate civil remedy.

14. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

15. The pleadings in the writ petitions and the material on record clearly indicate that the petitioners had executed agreements with the respondents for completion of certain civil works. The petitioners claim to have completed the work as per the terms of the agreements and submitted their bills as per specifications which they claim have not been paid to them.

16. A copy of the agreement which is on record in one of the writ petitions (Writ - C No.13388 of 2020) contains an arbitration clause for the purposes of settlement of any dispute which may arise between the contractor and the Engineer of the contract and the said fact has not been disputed.

17. The law with regard to the maintainability of a writ petition in contractual matters is fairly well settled, and it has been consistently held that although there is no absolute bar to the maintainability of a writ petition in such matters, the discretionary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, may be refused in case of money claims arising out of purely contractual obligations where there are serious disputed questions of fact with regard to the claims sought to be raised.

18. The remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution, has been held, to be available in a limited sphere only when the contracting party is able to demonstrate that the remedy it seeks to invoke is a public law remedy, in contradistinction to a private law remedy under a contract.

19. The legal position in this regard is that where the rights which are sought to be agitated are purely of a private character no mandamus can be claimed, and even if the relief is sought against the State or any of its instrumentality the pre-condition for the issuance of a writ of mandamus is a public duty. In a dispute based on a pure contractual relationship there being no public duty element, a mandamus would not lie.

20. The question as to whether jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution would be open to resolve disputes arising out of the contracts between the State and the citizen was considered in Radhakrishna Agarwal and others vs. State of Bihar and others and drawing a distinction with the case of a contract entered into by the State in exercise of a statutory power, it was held that in cases where the contract entered into between a State and the person aggrieved is non-statutory and purely contractual and the rights and liabilities of the parties are governed by the terms of the contract, and the petitioner complains about breach of such contract, the remedy of Article 226 would not be open for such complaints and no writ or order can be issued under Article 226 in such cases to compel the authorities to remedy the breach of contract by the State.

21. The Supreme Court took note of the three types of cases pertaining to breach of alleged obligation by the State or its agents, as referred to in the judgment of the High Court against which the appeals were before it. The three types were stated as follows :-

"(i) Where a petitioner makes a grievance of breach of promise on the part of the State in cases where on assurance or promise made by the State he has acted to his prejudice and predicament, but the agreement is short of a contract within the meaning of Article 299 of the Constitution;

(ii) Where the contract entered into between the person aggrieved and the State is in exercise of a statutory power under certain Act or Rules framed thereunder and the petitioner alleges a breach on the part of the State; and

(iii) Where the contract entered into between the State, and the person aggrieved is non-statutory and purely contractual and the rights and liabilities of the parties are governed by the terms of the contract, and the petitioner complains about breach of such contract by the State."

22. In respect of cases of the third category where questions purely of alleged breach of contract were involved, it was observed thus :-

"15. It then, very rightly, held that the cases now before us should be placed in the third category where questions of pure alleged breaches of contract are involved. It held, upon the strength of Umakant Saran v. The State of Bihar and Lekhraj Satramdas v. Deputy Custodian-cum-Managing Officer and B.K.Sinha v. State of Bihar that no writ or order can issue under Article 226 of the Constitution in such cases "to compel the authorities to remedy a breach of contract pure and simple".

17. Learned counsel contends that in the cases before us breaches of public duty are involved. The submission made before us is that, whenever a State or its agents or officers deal with the citizen, either when making a transaction or, after making it, acting in exercise of powers under the terms of a contract between the parties, there is a dealing between the State and the citizen which involves performance of "certain legal and public duties." If we were to accept this very wide proposition every case of a breach of contract by the State or its agents or its officers would call for interference under Article 226 of the Constitution. We do not consider this to be a sound proposition at all."

23. In Premji Bhai Parmar and others Vs. Delhi Development Authority and others a petition was filed under Article 32 before the Supreme Court contending that the surcharge collected by the authority in respect of a flat purchased by the petitioner was illegal. Considering the legal position, it was held that after the State or its agents have entered into the field of ordinary contract, the relations are no longer governed by the constitutional provisions but by the legally valid contract which determines rights and obligations of the parties inter se and that no question of violation of Article 14 or of any other constitutional provision arises when the State or its agents, purporting to act within this field, perform any act. The petition was dismissed with the following observations :-

"8...petition to this Court under Article 32 is not a proper remedy nor is this Court a proper forum for reopening the concluded contracts with a view to getting back a part of the purchase price paid and the benefit taken. ..... But after the State or its agents have entered into the field of ordinary contract, the relations are no longer governed by the constitutional provisions but by the legally valid contract which determines rights and obligations of the parties inter se. No question arises of violation of Article 14 or of any other constitutional provision when the State or its agents, purporting to act within this field, perform any act. In this sphere, they can only claim rights conferred upon them by contract and are bound by the terms of the contract only unless some statute steps in and confers some special statutory power or obligation on the State in the contractual field which is apart from contract."

24. In the case of Divisional Forest Officer Vs. Bishwanath Tea Company Ltd. the question of maintainability of a writ petition in respect of a claim arising out of the contractual rights and obligations flowing from the terms of a lease was considered, and it was held as follows :-

"8. It is undoubtedly true that High Court can entertain in its extraordinary jurisdiction a petition to issue any of the prerogative writs for any other purpose. But such writ can be issued where there is executive action unsupported by law or even in respect of a corporation there is a denial of equality before law or equal protection of law. The Corporation can also file a writ petition for enforcement of a right under a statute. As pointed out earlier, the respondent (company) was merely trying to enforce a contractual obligation. To clear the ground let it be stated that obligation to pay royally for timber cut and felled and removed is prescribed by the relevant regulations. The validity of regulations is not challenged. Therefore, the demand for royalty is unsupported by law. What the respondent claims is an exception that in view of a certain term in the indenture of lease, to wit, clause 2, the appellant is not entitled to demand and collect royalty from the respondent. This is nothing but enforcement of a term of a contract of lease. Hence, the question whether such contractual obligation can be enforced by the High Court in its writ jurisdiction.

9. Ordinarily, where a breach of contract is complained of, a party complaining of such breach may sue for specific performance of the contract, if contract is capable of being specifically performed, or the party may sue for damages. Such a suit would ordinarily be cognizable by the civil court. The High Court in its extraordinary jurisdiction would not entertain a petition either for specific performance of contract or for recovering damages. A right to relief flowing from a contract has to be claimed in a civil court where a suit for specific performance of contract or for damages could be filed."

25. We may also refer to the judgment in the case of Life Insurance Corporation of India Vs. Escorts Ltd. and others wherein it was held that in a matter relating to the contractual obligations the Court would not ordinarily examine it unless the action has some public law character attached to it. The observations made in the judgment are as follows :-

"102...If the action of the State is related to contractual obligations or obligations arising out of the tort, the court may not ordinarily examine it unless the action has some public law character attached to it. Broadly speaking, the court will examine actions of State if they pertain to the public law domain and refrain from examining them if they pertain to the private law field. The difficulty will lie in demarcating the frontier between the public law domain and the private law field. It is impossible to draw the line with precision and we do not want to attempt it. The question must be decided in each case with reference to the particular action, the activity in which the State or the instrumentality of the State is engaged when performing the action, the public law or private law character of the action and a host of other relevant circumstances. When the State or an instrumentality of the State ventures into the corporate world and purchases the shares of a company, it assumes to itself the ordinary role of a shareholder, and dons the robes of a shareholder, with all the rights available to such a shareholder. There is no reason why the State as a shareholder should be expected to state its reasons when it seeks to change the management, by a resolution of the company, like any other shareholder."

26. We may draw reference to the judgment in the case of Bareilly Development Authority and others vs. Ajay Pal Singh and others wherein it was held that even though the development authority had the trappings of a State, in a matter pertaining to determination of the price of the flats constructed by it and the rate of monthly instalments to be paid, the authority after entering into the field of an ordinary contract was acting purely in its executive capacity, and the right and obligations of the parties inter se would be governed only as per the terms of the contract. The observations made in the judgment are as follows :-

"21. This finding in our view is not correct in the light of the facts and circumstances of this case because in Ramana Dayaram Shetty Vs. International Airport Authority of India [(1979) 3 SCC 489] there was no concluded contract as in this case. Even conceding that the BDA has the trappings of a State or would be comprehended in 'other authority' for the purpose of Article 12 of the Constitution, while determining price of the houses/flats constructed by it and the rate of monthly instalments to be paid, the 'authority' or its agent after entering into the field of ordinary contract acts purely in its executive capacity. Thereafter the relations are no longer governed by the constitutional provisions but by the legally valid contract which determines the rights and obligations of the parties inter se. In this sphere, they can only claim rights conferred upon them by the contract in the absence of any statutory obligations on the part of the authority (i.e. BDA in this case) in the said contractual field.

22. There is a line of decisions where the contract entered into between the State and the persons aggrieved is non-statutory and purely contractual and the rights are governed only by the terms of the contract, no writ or order can be issued under Article 226 of the Constitution of India so as to compel the authorities to remedy a breach of contract pure and simple -- Radhakrishna Agarwal & Ors. v. State of Bihar (1977) 3 SCC 457, Premji Bhai Parmar & Ors. v. Delhi Development Authority & Ors, (1980) 2 SCC 129 and Divl. Forest Officer v. Bishwanath Tea Company Ltd. (1981) 3 SCC 238."

27. The question of maintainability of a writ petition under Article 226 in the case of a money claim again came up for consideration in the case of Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited and others Vs. Dolly Das and it was held that for invoking the writ jurisdiction, involvement of any constitutional or statutory right was essential and in the absence of a statutory right, the remedy under Article 226 could not be availed to claim any money in respect of breach of contract, tort or otherwise. It was reiterated that in absence of any constitutional or statutory rights being involved, a writ proceeding would not lie to enforce a contractual obligation even if it is sought to be enforced against the State or its authorities.

28. The maintainability of writ petition under Article 226 in disputes relating to terms of contract with a statutory body fell for consideration in Kerala State Electricity Board and other Vs. Kurien E. Kalathil and others and it was held that the writ court would not ordinarily be the proper forum for resolution of disputes relating to terms of contract with a statutory body and disputes arising from contractual or commercial activities must be settled according to ordinary principles of law of

"10...The interpretation and implementation of a clause in a contract cannot be the subject matter of a writ petition. Whether the contract envisages actual payment or not is a question of construction of contract? If a term of a contract is violated, ordinarily the remedy is not the writ petition under Article 226. We are also unable to agree with the observations of the High Court that the contractor was seeking enforcement of a statutory contract. A contract would not become statutory simply because it is for construction of a public utility and it has been awarded by a statutory body. We are also unable to agree with the observation of the High Court that since the obligations imposed by the contract on the contracting parties come within the purview of the Contract Act, that would not make the contract statutory. Clearly, the High Court fell into an error in coming to the conclusion that the contract in question was statutory in nature.

11. A statute may expressly or impliedly confer power on a statutory body to enter into contracts in order to enable it to discharge its functions. Dispute arising out of the terms of such contracts or alleged breaches have to be settled by the ordinary principles of law of contract. The fact that one of the parties to the agreement is a statutory or public body will not of itself affect the principles to be applied. The disputes about the meaning of a covenant in a contract or its enforceability have to be determined according to the usual principles of the Contract Act. Every act of a statutory body need not necessarily involve an exercise of statutory power. Statutory bodies, like private parties, have power to contract or deal with property. Such activities may not raise any issue of public law. In the present case, it has not been shown how the contract is statutory. The contract between the parties is the realm of private law. It is not a statutory contract. The disputes relating to interpretation of the terms and conditions of such a contract could not have been agitated in a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. That is a matter for adjudication by a civil court or in arbitration if provided for in the contract. Whether any amount is due and if so, how much and refusal of the appellant to pay it is justified or not, are not the matters which could have been agitated and decided in a writ petition."

29. Considering the maintainability of a writ petition under Article 226 in the context of a dispute relating to terms of a private contract where a mandamus was sought seeking to restrain authorities from making any deduction from bills in terms of the contract, it was held in State Of U.P. & others vs Bridge & Roof Co. (India) Ltd that proper course would be to refer the matter to arbitration or institution of a suit and not filing of a writ petition. It was observed thus :-

"15. In our opinion, the very remedy adopted by the respondent is misconceived. It is not entitled to any relief in these proceedings,i.e,in the writ petition filed by it.The High court appears to be right in not pronouncing upon any of the several contentions raised in the writ petition by both the parties and in merely reiterating the effect of the order of the Deputy Commissioner made under the proviso to section 8-D (1).

16. Firstly, the contract between the parties is a contract in the realm of private law. It is not a statutory contract. It is governed by the provisions of the contract Act or, maybe, also by certain provisions of the Sale of Goods Act. Any dispute relating to interpretation of the terms and conditions of such a contract cannot be agitated, and could not have been agitated,in a writ petition. That is a matter either for arbitration as provided by the contract or for the civil court, as the case may be. Whether any amount is due to the respondent from the appellant-Government under the contract and, if so, how much and the further question whether retention or refusal to pay any amount by the Government is justified, or not, are all matters which cannot be agitated in or adjudicated upon in a writ petition. The prayer in the writ petition,viz.,to restrain the Government from deducting particular amount from the writ petitioner's bill(s) was not a prayer which could be granted by the High Court under Article 226. Indeed, the High Court has not granted the said prayer.

17. Secondly, whether there has been a reduction in the statutory liability on account of a change in law within the meaning of sub-clause (4) of clause 70 of the contract is again not a matter to be agitated in the writ petition. That is again a matter relating to interpretation of a term of the contract and should be agitated before the arbitrator or the civil court, as the case maybe. If any amount is wrongly withheld by the Government,the remedy of the respondent is to raise a dispute as provided by the contract or to approach the civil court, as the case may be, according to law. Similarly if the Government says that any over- payment has been made to the respondent, its remedy also is the same.

18. Accordingly, it must be held that the writ petition filed by the respondent for the issuance of a writ of mandamus restraining the Government from deducting or withholding a particular sum, which according to the respondent is payable to it under the contract, was wholly misconceived and was not maintainable in law (See the decision of this Court in Assistant Excise Commissioner v. Isaac Peter (1994 (4) S.C.C.104), where the law on the subject has been discussed fully.) The writ petition ought to have been dismissed on this ground alone.

21. There is yet another substantial reason for not entertaining the writ petition. The contract in question contains a clause providing inter a1ia for settlement of disputes by reference to arbitration (Clause 67 of the contract). The Arbitrators can decide both questions of fact as well as questions of law. When the contract itself provides for a mode of settlement of disputes arising from the contract, there is no reason why the parties should not follow and adopt that remedy and invoke the extra-ordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226. The existence of an effective alternative remedy - in this case, provided in the contract itself - is a good ground for the court to decline to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226. The said article was not meant to supplant the existing remedies at law but only to supplement them in certain well-recognised situations. As pointed out above, the prayer for issuance of a writ of mandamus was wholly misconceived in this case since the respondent was not seeking to enforce any statutory right of theirs nor was it seeking to enforce any statutory obligation cast upon the appellants. Indeed, the very resort to Article 226 - whether for issuance of mandamus or any other writ, order or direction - was misconceived for the reasons mentioned supra."

30. The maintainability of a writ petition in a case where termination of an agreement between the private parties and the State Government was challenged under Article 226 of the Constitution came up for consideration in State Of Gujarat And others vs Meghji Pethraj Shah Charitable Trust and others and it was stated that as the matter was governed by a contract between the parties, the writ petition was not maintainable since it was a public law remedy and was not available in private law field i.e. where the matter is governed by a non-statutory contract. The observations made in the judgement in this regard are as follows :-

"22. We are unable to see any substance in the argument that the termination of arrangement without observing the principle of natural justice (audi alteram partem) is void. The termination is not a quasi-judicial act by any stretch of imagination; hence it was not necessary to observe the principles of natural justice. It is not also an executive or administrative act to attract the duty to act fairly. It was - as has been repeatedly urged by Sri Ramaswamy - a matter governed by a contract/agreement between the parties. If the matter is governed by a contract, the writ petition is not maintainable since it is a public law remedy and is not available in private law field, e.g., where the matter is governed by a non-statutory contract. Be that as it may, in view of our opinion on the main question, it is not necessary to pursue this reasoning further."

31. In the case of State of Bihar and others Vs. Jain Plastics & Chemicals Ltd. a grievance was sought to be raised against deduction of an amount from the final bill to be paid to the contractor due to breach of contract by him. The petition was allowed by the High Court. The matter was taken to the Supreme Court wherein it was held that even if it was possible to decide the question raised in the petition on the basis of affidavits and counter affidavits, it would not be proper to exercise extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution in cases of alleged breach of contract. The observations made by the Supreme Court are as follows :-

"2. Limited question involved in this appeal is -- whether the High Court ought not to have exercised its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for granting relief in case of alleged breach of contract.

3. Settled law -- writ is not the remedy for enforcing contractual obligations. It is to be reiterated that writ petition under Article 226 is not the proper proceedings for adjudicating such disputes. Under the law, it was open to the respondent to approach the court of competent jurisdiction for appropriate relief for breach of contract...

x x x

7...It is true that many matters could be decided after referring to the contentions raised in the affidavits and counter-affidavits, but that would hardly be a ground for exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution in case of alleged breach of contract. Whether the alleged non-supply of road permits by the appellants would justify breach of contract by the respondent would depend upon facts and evidence and is not required to be decided or dealt with in a writ petition. Such seriously disputed questions or rival claims of the parties with regard to breach of contract are to be investigated and determined on the basis of evidence which may be led by the parties in a properly instituted civil suit rather than by a court exercising prerogative of issuing writs."

32. Distinguishing private law from public law, it was held in K.K.Saksena vs. International Commission on Irrigation and Drainage and others that private law obligations of the State or public authorities are not amenable to writ jurisdiction. The relevant observations made in the judgement are as follows :-

"43. What follows from a minute and careful reading of the aforesaid judgments of this Court is that if a person or authority is "State" within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution, admittedly a writ petition under Article 226 would lie against such a person or body. However, we may add that even in such cases writ would not lie to enforce private law rights. There are catena of judgments on this aspect and it is not necessary to refer to those judgments as that is the basic principle of judicial review of an action under the administrative law. The reason is obvious. A private law is that part of a legal system which is a part of common law that involves relationships between individuals, such as law of contract or torts. Therefore, even if writ petition would be maintainable against an authority, which is "State" under Article 12 of the Constitution, before issuing any writ, particularly writ of mandamus, the Court has to satisfy that action of such an authority, which is challenged, is in the domain of public law as distinguished from private law.

44. Within a couple of years of the framing of the Constitution, this Court remarked in Election Commission of India v. Saka Venkata Rao that administrative law in India has been shaped in the English mould. Power to issue writ or any order of direction for "any other purpose" has been held to be included in Article 226 of the Constitution with a view apparently to place all the High Courts in this country in somewhat the same position as the Court of the King's Bench in England. It is for this reason ordinary "private law remedies" are not enforceable through extraordinary writ jurisdiction, even though brought against public authorities (see Administrative Law, 8th Edition; H.W.R. Wade & C.F. Forsyth, page 656). In a number of decisions, this Court has held that contractual and commercial obligations are enforceable only by ordinary action and not by judicial review."

33. The Constitution Bench Judgement in the case of Election Commission, India vs. Saka Venkata Subba Rao and others and the judgement in the case of R.(Hopley) vs. Liverpool Health Authority, were referred to for the proposition that contractual and commercial obligations are enforceable only by ordinary action and not by judicial review. It was stated thus :-

"50. We have also pointed out above that in Saka Venkata Rao this Court had observed that administrative law in India has been shaped on the lines of English law. There are a catena of judgments in English courts taking same view, namely, contractual and commercial obligations are enforceable only by ordinary action and not by judicial review. In R. (Hopley) v. Liverpool Health Authority (unreported) (30.7.2002), Justice Pitchford helpfully set out three things that had to be identified when considering whether a public body with statutory powers was exercising a public function amenable to judicial review or a private function. They are: (i) whether the defendant was a public body exercising statutory powers; (ii) whether the function being performed in the exercise of those powers was a public or a private one; and (iii) whether the defendant was performing a public duty owed to the claimant in the particular circumstances under consideration."

34. The nature of the prerogative remedy of a mandatory order as the normal means for enforcing performance of public duties by public authorities has been considered in Administrative Law by H.W.R. Wade & C.F. Forsyth, and a distinction has been drawn between public duties enforceable by a mandatory order, which are usually statutory, and duties arising merely from contract. It has been stated thus :-

"A distinction which needs to be clarified is that between public duties enforceable by a mandatory order, which are usually statutory, and duties arising merely from contract. Contractual duties are enforceable as matters of private law by the ordinary contractual remedies, such as damages, injunction, specific performance and declaration. They are not enforceable by a mandatory order, which in the first place is confined to public duties and secondly is not granted where there are other adequate remedies."

35. We may also gainfully refer to the judgment in the case of Joshi Technologies International Inc. vs. Union of India and others wherein the legal position in this regard has been taken note of and summarized in the following terms :-

"69. The position thus summarised in the aforesaid principles has to be understood in the context of discussion that preceded which we have pointed out above. As per this, no doubt, there is no absolute bar to the maintainability of the writ petition even in contractual matters or where there are disputed questions of fact or even when monetary claim is raised. At the same time, discretion lies with the High Court which under certain circumstances, it can refuse to exercise. It also follows that under the following circumstances, "normally", the Court would not exercise such a discretion:

69.1. The Court may not examine the issue unless the action has some public law character attached to it.

69.2. Whenever a particular mode of settlement of dispute is provided in the contract, the High Court would refuse to exercise its discretion under Article 226 of the Constitution and relegate the party to the said mode of settlement, particularly when settlement of disputes is to be resorted to through the means of arbitration.

69.3. If there are very serious disputed questions of fact which are of complex nature and require oral evidence for their determination.

69.4. Money claims per se particularly arising out of contractual obligations are normally not to be entertained except in exceptional circumstances.

70. Further, the legal position which emerges from various judgments of this Court dealing with different situations/aspects relating to contracts entered into by the State/public authority with private parties, can be summarised as under:

70.1. At the stage of entering into a contract, the State acts purely in its executive capacity and is bound by the obligations of fairness.

70.2. State in its executive capacity, even in the contractual field, is under obligation to act fairly and cannot practise some discriminations.

70.3. Even in cases where question is of choice or consideration of competing claims before entering into the field of contract, facts have to be investigated and found before the question of a violation of Article 14 of the Constitution could arise. If those facts are disputed and require assessment of evidence the correctness of which can only be tested satisfactorily by taking detailed evidence, involving examination and cross-examination of witnesses, the case could not be conveniently or satisfactorily decided in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution. In such cases the Court can direct the aggrieved party to resort to alternate remedy of civil suit, etc.

70.4. Writ jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution was not intended to facilitate avoidance of obligation voluntarily incurred.

70.5. Writ petition was not maintainable to avoid contractual obligation. Occurrence of commercial difficulty, inconvenience or hardship in performance of the conditions agreed to in the contract can provide no justification in not complying with the terms of contract which the parties had accepted with open eyes. It cannot ever be that a licensee can work out the licence if he finds it profitable to do so: and he can challenge the conditions under which he agreed to take the licence, if he finds it commercially inexpedient to conduct his business.

70.6. Ordinarily, where a breach of contract is complained of, the party complaining of such breach may sue for specific performance of the contract, if contract is capable of being specifically performed. Otherwise, the party may sue for damages.

70.7. Writ can be issued where there is executive action unsupported by law or even in respect of a corporation there is denial of equality before law or equal protection of law or if it can be shown that action of the public authorities was without giving any hearing and violation of principles of natural justice after holding that action could not have been taken without observing principles of natural justice.

70.8. If the contract between private party and the State/instrumentality and/or agency of the State is under the realm of a private law and there is no element of public law, the normal course for the aggrieved party, is to invoke the remedies provided under ordinary civil law rather than approaching the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and invoking its extraordinary jurisdiction.

70.9. The distinction between public law and private law element in the contract with the State is getting blurred. However, it has not been totally obliterated and where the matter falls purely in private field of contract, this Court has maintained the position that writ petition is not maintainable. The dichotomy between public law and private law rights and remedies would depend on the factual matrix of each case and the distinction between the public law remedies and private law field, cannot be demarcated with precision. In fact, each case has to be examined, on its facts whether the contractual relations between the parties bear insignia of public element. Once on the facts of a particular case it is found that nature of the activity or controversy involves public law element, then the matter can be examined by the High Court in writ petitions under Article 226 of the Constitution of India to see whether action of the State and/or instrumentality or agency of the State is fair, just and equitable or that relevant factors are taken into consideration and irrelevant factors have not gone into the decision-making process or that the decision is not arbitrary.

70.10. Mere reasonable or legitimate expectation of a citizen, in such a situation, may not by itself be a distinct enforceable right, but failure to consider and give due weight to it may render the decision arbitrary, and this is how the requirements of due consideration of a legitimate expectation forms part of the principle of non-arbitrariness.

70.11. The scope of judicial review in respect of disputes falling within the domain of contractual obligations may be more limited and in doubtful cases the parties may be relegated to adjudication of their rights by resort to remedies provided for adjudication of purely contractual disputes."

36. The question of maintainability of the writ petition under Article 226 for enforcement of a contractual right again came up in Life Insurance Corporation of India and others vs. Asha Goel (Smt.) and another, and it was held that pros and cons of fact-situation should be carefully weighed and the determination of the question as to when a claim can be enforced in writ jurisdiction would depend on consideration of several factors like, whether the writ petitioner is merely attempting to enforce his contractual rights or the case raises important questions of law and constitutional issues, the nature of dispute raised; the nature of enquiry necessary for determination of the dispute etc. It was held that the matter would be required to be considered in the facts and circumstances of each case. The observations made in the judgement in this regard are as follows :-

"10. Article 226 of the Constitution confers extraordinary jurisdiction on the High Court to issue high prerogative writs for enforcement of the fundamental rights or for any other purpose. It is wide and expansive. The Constitution does not place any fetter on exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction. It is left to the discretion of the High Court. Therefore, it cannot be laid down as a general proposition of law that in no case the High Court can entertain a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution to enforce a claim under a life insurance policy. It is neither possible nor proper to enumerate exhaustively the circumstances in which such a claim can or cannot be enforced by filing a writ petition. The determination of the question depends on consideration of several factors like, whether a writ petitioner is merely attempting to enforce his/her contractual rights or the case raises important questions of law and constitutional issues, the nature of the dispute raised; the nature of inquiry necessary for determination of the dispute etc. The matter is to be considered in the facts and circumstances of each case. While the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution cannot be denied altogether, courts must bear in mind the self-imposed restriction consistently followed by High Courts all these years after the constitutional power came into existence in not entertaining writ petitions filed for enforcement of purely contractual rights and obligations which involve disputed questions of facts. The courts have consistently taken the view that in a case where for determination of the dispute raised, it is necessary to inquire into facts for determination of which it may become necessary to record oral evidence a proceeding under Article 226 of the Constitution, is not the appropriate forum. The position is also well settled that if the contract entered between the parties provide an alternate forum for resolution of disputes arising from the contract, then the parties should approach the forum agreed by them and the High Court in writ jurisdiction should not permit them to bypass the agreed forum of dispute resolution. At the cost of repetition it may be stated that in the above discussions we have only indicated some of the circumstances in which the High Court have declined to entertain petitions filed under Article 226 of the Constitution for enforcement of contractual rights and obligation; the discussions are not intended to be exhaustive. This Court from time to time disapproved of a High Court entertaining a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution in matters of enforcement of contractual rights and obligation particularly where the claim by one party is contested by the other and adjudication of the dispute requires inquiry into facts. We may notice a few such cases: Mohd. Hanif v. State of Assam (1969) 2 SCC 782; Banchhanidhi Rath v. State of Orissa (1972) 4 SCC 781; Rukmanibai Gupta v. Collector, Jabalpur (1980) 4 SCC 556; Food Corpn. of India v. Jagannath Dutta 1993 Supp (3) SCC 635 and State of H.P. v. Raja Mahendra Pal (1999) 4 SCC 43."

37. Taking a similar view where a contractual right was sought to be enforced by filing a writ petition, this Court in M/s Lalloo Ji Rajiv Chandra And Sons vs. Meladhikari Prayagraj Mela Authority and others, reiterated the legal position that in a case of non statutory contract, the remedy available to the contractor, if he is aggrieved by non-payment, would be either to file a civil suit or if there is an arbitration agreement between the parties, to invoke the terms of the agreement. The writ petition was dismissed with the following observations :-

"10. In the present case there is nothing to held that the contract is a statutory contract. The remedy of the contractor, if he is aggrieved by non-payment, would be to either file an ordinary civil suit or if there is an arbitration agreement between the parties, to invoke the terms of the agreement.

11. In our view, it will not either be appropriate or proper for the Court under Article 226 of the Constitution to entertain a petition of this nature. The grant of relief of this nature would virtually amount to a money decree. The petitioner is at liberty to take recourse to the remedies available by raising such a claim either invoking an arbitration clause (if it exists in the contract between the parties) or if there is no provision for arbitration, to move the competent civil court with a money claim."

38. The aforementioned legal position with regard to the question of maintainability of a writ petition seeking enforcement of contractual and commercial obligations has been considered in detail in a recent judgement of this Court in M/s Ipjacket Technology India Private Limited vs. M.D. Uttar Pradesh Rajkiya Nirman Nigam Limited.

39. The general principles which may be culled out from the aforementioned judgments is that in a case where the contract entered into between the State and the person aggrieved is of a non-statutory character and the relationship is governed purely in terms of a contract between the parties, in such situations the contractual obligations are matters of private law and a writ would not lie to enforce a civil liability arising purely out of a contract. The proper remedy in such cases would be to file a civil suit for claiming damages, injunctions or specific performance or such appropriate reliefs in a civil court. Pure contractual obligation in the absence of any statutory complexion would not be enforceable through a writ.

40. The remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution being an extraordinary remedy, it is not intended to be used for the purpose of declaring private rights of the parties. In the case of enforcement of contractual rights and liabilities the normal remedy of filing a civil suit being available to the aggrieved party, this Court may not exercise its prerogative writ jurisdiction to enforce such contractual obligations.

41. To support the contra view that the High Court in exercise of powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India could interfere in such matters, attention of this Court has been drawn to the decisions in Naseem Ahmad vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others and Surya Constructions vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others.

42. In the case of Naseem Ahmad (supra), the amount in question had been clearly admitted by the respondent authorities and taking notice of the above, it was observed that in view of the peculiar facts of the case, the appeal was being allowed and a direction was made for payment of the amount. The case of Surya Constructions (supra) was one in which payment for extra work by the respondent authorities had not been made to the appellant though such work was expressly sanctioned and completed to their satisfaction, and the only reason assigned for not making the payment was that no money was available in the account of the respondent and that payment would be made after availability of the funds from the Government. It was, in this background, that the Court came to the conclusion that there was no dispute as to the amount which had to be paid to the appellant and therefore, the dismissal of the writ petition stating that the disputed questions of fact arise, was held to be not correct inasmuch as there was no disputed question of fact and on the contrary, the amount payable to the appellant was wholly undisputed.

43. We may, therefore, add that it cannot be held in absolute terms that a writ petition is not maintainable in all contractual matters seeking enforcement of obligations on part of the State or its authorities. The limitation in exercising powers under Article 226 in contractual matters is essentially a self-imposed restriction. A case where the amount is admitted and there is no disputed question of fact requiring adjudication of detailed evidence and interpretation of the terms of the contract, may be an exception to the aforementioned general principle.

44. In the present case, the claims sought to be set up by the petitioners have been strongly disputed. The payments in respect of which the petitioners have raised their claims pertain to contractual and commercial obligations, and the pleadings and the material which are on record, do not in any manner indicate that it is a public law remedy which the petitioners are seeking to invoke so as to persuade this Court to exercise its discretionary jurisdiction.

45. In view of the foregoing discussions, and keeping in view the facts of the case at hand, we are not inclined to exercise our extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

46. The writ petitions are accordingly dismissed.

Railways acquired land for "Eastern Dedicated Freight Corridor in District Gautam Buddh Nagar" by notification dated 24.08.2009 - issued under Section 20A and 20E of the Act, 1989 - Amendment Act 11 of 2008 has been repealed by Act 23 of 2016 - provisions of Section 20A and Section 20E not available - impugned notifications suffers from mala fide - issued without authority of law - deserve to be quashed - land in question has been acquired for a public purpose - all those persons whose land or houses are affected by acquisition shall get compensation in accordance with the provisions of Chapter-IV-A of the Act, 1989.(Para - 3, 4)

HELD:- Submission that Section 20A and 20E are not available after the Repealing Amending Act, 2016, is legally incorrect and baseless. The allegation of mala fide made by the petitioners is wholly vague and without proof. The petitioners have failed to discharge the burden of proving mala fide. The impugned notification does not suffer from any error of law or mala fide.(Para - 9,15)

Writ Petition dismissed. (E-6)

2. This writ petition has been filed praying for the following relief:

"(i) issue a writ, order or direction in nature of certiorari, thereby quashing the impugned notification i.e. the notification dated 11th February, 2019 (Annexure P-1) and the notification dated 6th November, 2019 under Section 20E of the Act of 1989s (Annexure P-2), being illegal, arbitrary and is void in law.

(ii) issue a writ, order or direction in nature of mandamus thereby restraining the Respondents, its officers, agents, servants etc from interfering with the possession of the petitioners from their existing Abadi in village - Chamravali-Boraki and land falling in village Hazratpur;

(iii) issue a writ or order or direction in the nature of mandamus thereby directing the Respondents, its officers, agents, servants etc to carry out the development of the "Eastern Dedicated Freight Corridor in District Gautam-budh Nagar in State of Uttar Pradesh" over the acquired land, as approved by the Central Government in terms of which the acquisition of land was made in terms of Annexure P-5 (colly);

*(iv) issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus thereby directing the Respondents, its officers, agents, servants etc from producing the entire record pertaining to the special railway project of "Eastern Dedicated Freight Corridor in District Gautam-budh Nagar in State of Uttar Pradesh" as approved by the Central Government for issuance of the acquisition notification being annexed as Annexure P-5 (colly);"*

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits as under:

(i) By the Railways (Amendment) Act, 2008 (Act 11 of 2008), the provisions of Chapter-IV-A (Section 20A to 20P) were incorporated in the principal Act, i.e. Railways Act, 1989. The aforesaid Amendment Act has been repealed by the Repealing Amendment Act, 2016 (No.23 of 2016) dated 09.05.2016. The impugned notifications have been issued under Section 20A and 20E of the Act, 1989. Since the Amendment Act 11 of 2008 has been repealed by Act 23 of 2016, therefore, the provisions of Section 20A and Section 20E were not available. Consequently, the impugned notifications have been issued without authority of law and, therefore, they deserve to be quashed.

(ii) Initially, the railways acquired land for "Eastern Dedicated Freight Corridor in District Gautam Buddh Nagar" by notification dated 24.08.2009. At that time, the respondents left the abadi area of the petitioners' villages Chamravali-Boraki and Hazaratpur but by the impugned notification some area of the petitioners' villages has been acquired. This cannot be done since the respondents have earlier not acquired the land in question while issuing acquisition notification dated 24.08.2009. Therefore, the impugned notification suffers from mala fide.

4. Sri Rajnish Kumar Rai, learned counsel for the respondent Nos.1, 2 and 4 submits as under:

(i) The land in question has been acquired for a public purpose, i.e. Eastern Dedicated Freight Corridor and all those persons whose land or houses are affected by acquisition shall get compensation in accordance with the provisions of Chapter-IV-A of the Act, 1989.

(ii) The provisions of Chapter IV-A of the Act, 1989 are not affected by repeal of the Amending Act, 2008 by the Repealing and Amending Act, 2016, which fact is also evident from Section 4 of the Repealing and Amending Act, 2016.

(iii) The acquisition notification dated 11.02.2019 was issued under Section 20A. As per provisions of Section 20B of the Act, 1989, the petitioners or the persons affected by acquisition notification, had liberty to make an objection within 30 days from the date of publication of the notification but neither there is any pleading in the writ petition nor any material has been brought on record to show that the petitioners have submitted any objection under Section 20B. The other impugned notification dated 06.11.2019 has been issued under Section 20E of the Act, 1989 whereby acquisition has been made.

(iv) The entire acquisition has been made well in accordance with law and only for a public purpose i.e. for construction of Eastern Dedicated Freight Corridor.

(v) Neither there is any mala fide in issuing the impugned notification nor the petitioners have placed any material on record to establish even prima facie that there is any mala fide on the part of the respondents. The submission of mala fide is wholly baseless and without any foundation.

Discussion and Findings:-

5. We have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsels for the parties.

6. In Jethanand Betab vs The State Of Delhi(Now Delhi Administration), Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"(5).....
..... .....
.....
.....

The substance of the aforesaid provisions may be stated thus: The Act of 1949 inserted S. 6 (1 -A) in the Act of 1933. The 1949 Act was repealed by the 1952 Act, but the latter Act saved the operation of other enactments in which the repealed enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to. The first question that arises for consideration is whether the amendments inserted by the 1949 Act in the 1933 Act were saved by reason of S.4 of the 1952 Act.

(6) The general object of a repealing and amending Act is stated in Halsbury's Laws of England, 2nd Edition, Vol. 31, at p. 563, thus:

"A statute Law Revision Act does not alter the law, but simply strikes out certain enactments which have become unnecessary. It invariably contains elaborate provisos."

In Khuda Bux v. Manager, Caledonian Press, A.I.R. 1954 Cal. 484,

Chakravartti, C.J., neatly brings out the purpose and scope of such Acts. The learned Chief Justice says, at p.486:

"Such Acts have no Legislative effect, but are designed for editorial revision, being intended only to excise dead matter from the statute book and to reduce its volume. Mostly, they expurgate amending Acts, because having imparted the amendments to the main Acts, those Acts have served their purpose and have no further reason for their existence. At times inconsistencies are also removed by repealing and 'amending Acts. The only object of such Acts, which in England are called Statute Law Revision Acts, is legislative spring-cleaning and they are not intended to make any change in the law. Even so, they are guarded by saving clauses drawn with elaborate care,. . .".

It is, therefore, clear that the main object of the 1952 Act was only to strike out the unnecessary Acts and excise dead matter from the statute book in order to lighten the burden of ever increasing spate of legislation and to remove confusion from the public mind. The object of the Repealing and Amending Act of 1952 was only to expurgate the amending Act of 1949, along with similar Acts, which had served its purpose.

(7) The next question is whether S.4 of the Act of 1952 saved the operation of the amendments that had been inserted in the Act of 1933 by the repealed Act. The relevant part of S.4 only saved other enactments in which the repealed enactments have been applied, incorporated or referred to. Can it be said that the amendments are covered by the language of the crucial words in S.4 of the Act of 1952, namely, "applied, incorporated or referred to". We think not. Section 4 of the said Act is designed to provide for a different situation, namely, the repeal of an earlier Act which has been applied, incorporated or referred to in a later Act. Under that section the repeal of the earlier Act does not affect the subsequent Act. The said principle has been succinctly stated in Maxwell on Interpretation of Statutes, 10th Edition, page 406:

"Where the provisions of one statute are, by reference, incorporated in another and the earlier statute is afterwards repealed the provisions so incorporated obviously continue in force so far as they form part of the second enactment."

So too, in Craies on Statute Law, 3rd Edition, the same idea is expressed in the following words, at p. 349:

"Sometimes an Act of Parliament, instead of expressly repeating the words of a section contained in a former Act, merely refers to it, and by relation applies its provisions to some new state of things created by the subsequent Act. In such a case the "rule of construction is that where a statute is incorporated by reference into a second statute, the repeal of the first statute by a third does not affect the second ".

The Judicial Committee in Secy. of State v. Hindusthan Co-operative Insurance Society, Ltd. 58 Ind App. 259: (AIR 1931 PC 149), endorsed the said principle and restated the same, at p. 267 (of Ind App): (at p.152 of AIR), thus:

"This doctrine finds expression in a common-form section which regularly appears in the amending and repealing Acts which are passed from time to time in India. The section runs: " The repeal by this Act of any enactment shall not affect any Act..... in which such enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to." The independent existence of the two Acts is therefore recognized; despite the death of the parent Act, its offspring survives in the incorporating Act. Though no such saving clause appears in the General Clauses Act, their Lordships think that the principle involved is as applicable in India as it is in this country."

It is, therefore, manifest that S.4 of the 1952 Act has no application to a case of a later amending Act inserting new provisions in an earlier Act, for, where an earlier Act is amended by a later Act, it cannot be said that the earlier Act applies, incorporates or refers to the amending Act. The earlier Act cannot incorporate the later Act, but can only be amended by it. We cannot, therefore, agree with the view expressed by the Punjab High Court in Mohinder Singh v. Mst. Harbhajan Kaur, ILR (1955) Punj 625; ((S) AIR 1955 Punj 141) and in Darbara Singh v. Karnail Kaur, 61 Pun LR 702 that S.4 of the Repealing and Amending Act of 1952 applies to a case of repeal of an amending Act.

11. For the aforesaid reasons, we hold that S.6 (1 -A) of the Act continued to be on the statute book even after the amending Act of 1949 was repealed by Act XLVIII of 1952, and that it was in force when the offence was committed by the appellant."

7. In Mohd. Junaid Ajaz and others vs. Union of India and others, a Division Bench of this court held as under:.

"6. The effect of these provisions is that where any enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to in any Act, the repealing provisions shall not affect the Act in which such enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to. As a result of the provisions of Amending Act No.27 of 2013 with effect from 1 November 2013, sub-sections (1) and (4) of Section 83 were substituted. Sub-section (1) expanded the jurisdiction of the Waqf Tribunal. Prior to the amendment, the jurisdiction of the Waqf Tribunal was to determine any dispute, question or other matter relating to a waqf or waqf property under the Act. In addition to this, the substituted provisions of sub-section (1) also empower the Waqf Tribunal to determine matters relating to eviction of tenants or determination of rights and obligations of a lessor and lessee in respect of property under the Act. Moreover, under sub-section (4), the Tribunal is, in terms of the substituted provisions, to consist of three members. Earlier, the Act had contemplated a one member Tribunal consisting of a judicial officer. Once the amendment was notified and came into force on 1 November 2013, the amendment was incorporated into the provisions of the parent Act. Hence, the provisions of Section 4 of the Repealing and Amending (Second) Act, 2015 (Act No.19 of 2015) would stand attracted and the repeal of the Amending Act would have no effect on the incorporation of the provisions of the Amending Act which had already been effected prior to the repeal.

7. The legislature adopts the device of repealing enactments which amend the parent legislation with a view to ensure that they do not crowd the statute book. The principle which however, emerges from a provision such as Section 4, is that the repeal of the amending legislation will not affect the amendments which have already been incorporated in the parent legislation. This principle has also been enunciated in the judgment of the Supreme Court in Jethanand Betab Vs State of Delhi. In that case, in the Indian Wireless Telegraphy Act, 1933, as it original stood, there was no specific provision making the possession of a wireless transmitter an offence. By an

Amending Act, Section 6 (1-A) was inserted by which, the possession of a wireless transmitter was constituted as a separate offence. The Amending Act was repealed by a Repealing and Amending Act 1952. The submission was that as a result, on the date of the alleged commission of the offence the said section was not on the statute book. The Repealing and Amending Act contained a provision by which, the legislature clarified that the repeal of any enactment by the Act shall not affect any other enactment in which the repealed enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to. The Supreme Court explained the import of Section 4 of the Repealing and Amending Act in the following terms:

It is, therefore, clear that the main object of the 1952 Act was only to strike out the unnecessary Acts and excise dead matter from the statute book in order to lighten the burden of ever increasing spate of legislation and to remove confusion from the public mind. The object of the Repealing and Amending Act of 1952 was only to expurgate the amending Act of 1949, along with similar Acts, which had served its purpose."

10. Following these principles, it is clear that once the provisions of the amending legislation, namely, Amending Act 27 of 2013 had been brought into force and the amendments have been incorporated in the provisions of the Waqf Act, 1995, the subsequent repeal of the amending legislation would not affect the amendments which had already been effected."

8. The Railways (Amendment) Act, 2008 (Act 11 of 2008) incorporated Chapter IV-A (Sections 20A to 20P) in the principal Act, i.e. The Railways Act, 1989. By the Repealing Amending Act, 2016 (Act 23 of 2016), the Amendment Act, 2008 has been repealed with a saving clause in Section 4 as under:-

"4.Savings.- The repeal by this Act of any enactment shall not affect any other enactment in which the repealed enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to;

and this Act shall not affect the validity, invalidity, effect or consequences of anything already done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred, or any remedy or proceeding in respect thereof, or any release or discharge of or from any debt, penalty, obligation, liability, claim or demand, or any indemnity already granted, or the proof of any past act or thing;

nor shall this Act affect any principle or rule of law, or established jurisdiction, form or course of pleading, practice or procedure, or existing usage, custom, privilege, restriction, exemption, office or appointment, notwithstanding that the same respectively may have been in any manner affirmed or recognized or derived by, in or from any enactment hereby repealed;

nor shall the repeal by this Act of any enactment revive or restore any jurisdiction, office, custom, liability, right, title, privilege, restriction, exemption, usage, practice, procedure or other matter or thing not now existing or in force."

9. The principles laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jethanand Betab (supra) and by this court in Mohd. Junaid Azad and others (supra) and reading of the Repealing Amendment Act, 2016 make it clear that the main object of the Repealing Amendment Act, 2016 was only to expurgate the Amendment Act

2008 along with similar Acts, which had served its purpose. Once the provisions of the amending legislation, i.e. the Amendment Act, 2008 had been brought into force and the amendments have been incorporated in the principal Act, i.e. the Railways Act, 1989, the subsequent repeal of the amending legislation by the Repealing Amendment Act 2016 would not affect the amendments which had already been effected. Thus, the first submission of learned counsel for the petitioners that Section 20A and 20E are not available after the Repealing Amending Act, 2016, is legally incorrect and baseless. Therefore, the first submission of the learned counsel for the petitioners is rejected.

10. The second and the last submission of learned counsel for the petitioners is that initially the respondents have not acquired the land in question, therefore, the acquisition by the subsequent notification dated 11.02.2019 under the Railways Act, 1989, suffers from mala fide. This submission has no force and deserves to be rejected. Under Section 20B of the Act, 1989, the person affected by the acquisition notification has the right to make an objection within 30 days from the date of publication of the notification but there is nothing on record to show that the petitioners have submitted any objection. After about one year of the acquisition notification, the petitioners have filed the present writ petition and made baseless allegation of mala fide. No evidence has been brought on record to establish that the impugned notification suffers from mala fide.

Burden of Proving Mala Fide:-

11. It is well settled that the burden of proving mala fide is on the person making the allegations and the burden is 'very heavy'. There is presumption of exercise of power bonafidely and in good faith. The allegation of mala fide are often more easily made than made out and the very seriousness of such allegation demands proof of high degree of credibility. The allegation of mala fide made by the petitioners is wholly vague and without proof. The petitioners have failed to discharge the burden of proving mala fide. Our conclusions on principles of law as afore-noted are also supported by the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ajit Kumar Nag vs. General Manager (PJ), Indial Oil Corpn. Ltd (Para-56) and E.P. Royappa vs. State of Tamil Nadu and another, (para-92).

12. In the case of Dhampur Sugar (Kashipur) Ltd. vs. State of Uttaranchal and others, (para-83), Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the question of mala fide and held as under:

"83.Allegations of mala fide are serious in nature and they essentially raise a question of fact. It is, therefore, necessary for the person making such allegations to supply full particulars in the petition. If sufficient averments and requisite materials are not on record, the court would not make fishing or roving inquiry. Mere assertion, vague averment or bald statement is not enough to hold the action to be mala fide. It must be demonstrated by facts. Moreover, the burden of proving mala fide is on the person levelling such allegations and the burden is very heavy. The charge of mala fide is more easily made than made out. As stated by Krishna Iyer, J. in Gulam Mustafa v. State of Maharashtra, (1976) 1 SCC 800 : AIR 1977 SC 448], it is the last refuge of a losing litigant. In the case on hand, except alleging that the policy was altered by the Government, to extend the benefit to respondent No. 4, no material whatsoever has been placed on record by the appellant. We are, therefore, unable to uphold the contention of the learned counsel that the impugned action is mala fide or malicious."

13. The principles laid down in the aforesaid case have been reiterated by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Chandra Prakash Singh and others vs. Chairman, Purvanchal Gramin Bank and others, (paras-15 and 16).

14. In the case of Tara Chand Khatri vs. Municipal Corporation of Delhi and others, (para-27), Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the High Court would be justified in refusing to carry on investigation into the allegations of mala fides if necessary particulars of the charge making out a prima facie case are not given in the writ petition. The burden of establishing mala fide lies very heavily on the person who alleges it.

15. In view of the discussion made above, we find that the petitioners have completely failed to prove the allegations of mala fide. The impugned notification does not suffer from any error of law or mala fide. Therefore, the second submission made by learned counsel for the petitioners, is rejected.

16. For all the reasons afore-stated, the writ petition is dismissed.

(A) Civil law - Land Acquisition Act, 1894 - Section 4 - notification , Section 28-A - application for Re-determination of the amount of compensation on the basis of the award of the Court - application under Section 28A of the Act would be maintainable when it is submitted within three months from the date of the award of the Reference Court - application submitted beyond the period given therein, would be barred by limitation - A direction for its consideration can be given only when it is maintainable and not otherwise. (Para -13,26)

Land belonging to the petitioners was acquired - notification - award - petitioners accepted compensation - compensation of other land determined on higher side - reference under Section 18 followed by the judgment of the Civil Court and finally by the Apex Court - application under Section 28A of the Act for enhancement of compensation - question for consideration - whether a direction for enhancement of compensation can be given in the light of Section 28A of the Act of 1894 and for that consideration of the application having not preferred within three months to the award of the Court . (Para - 2)

HELD:- A direction to the authority to consider the application cannot be given without considering relevant provisions of the law. The application under Section 28A is not maintainable in this case having been filed after lapse of three years of the judgment. Accordingly, the directions sought by the petitioners cannot be given.(Para -28)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Munishwar Nath Bhandari, J. &

Hon'ble Piyush Agrawal, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed with the following reliefs which are quoted herein for ready reference-:

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing to the respondent no.2 to decide the application of the petitioner under Section 28A Land Acquisition Act dated 20.02.2020 very expeditiously by the reasoned and speaking order and communicate to the petitioners.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing to the respondents to provide the compensation of the petitioners of the acquired land at the rate of Rs. 65/- per sq. yard along with other benefit and interest of the solatium according to law.

(iii) Issue any other writ, order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case.

(iv) Award to cost of the petition in favour of the petitioners."

2. It is a case where a land belonging to the petitioners in village Gujarpur was acquired. A notification under Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (In short "Act of 1894") was published on 01.03.1989. An award was thereupon made after completion of the process. The petitioners accepted the compensation. It is alleged that the compensation of other land was determined on higher side subsequently on a reference under Section 18 followed by the judgment of the Civil Court and finally by the Apex Court on 05.12.2016. The petitioners made an application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 on 20.02.2020 for enhancement of compensation. A perusal of the application shows that land of the petitioners was in village Gujarpur while the land of others was in village Haldona Ecchar Kaasna Tugalpur. In any case, the question for our consideration would be as to whether a direction for enhancement of compensation can be given in the light of Section 28A of the Act of 1894 and for that consideration of the application having not preferred within three months to the award of the Court..

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the issue raised in this petition is pending consideration before the Apex Court in the case of Muni Ram and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, Special Leave Petition (C) Diary No. 42598/2019. The prayer was to defer the matter awaiting judgment of the Apex Court.

4. For our perusal, judgment of this Court in the case of Patram and others Vs. State of U.P. and 2 others, Writ C No. 15726 of 2019 decided on 16.09.2019 has been referred wherein Muni Ram was alleged to be a party. The judgment in the case of Patram (supra) has been perused by us to find out as to whether it was in reference to the same facts, as are available on record. In the instant case, application is under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 and was not submitted within three months, rather it was after more than three years from order of the Court. We find that in the case of Patram (supra), the issue aforesaid has not been discussed and decided.

5. At this stage, learned counsel for the petitioners made a reference of the judgment of this Court in the case of Sukhdeo and others Vs. State of U.P., AIR 1992 Allahabad 142. A reference of paragraph 7 and 8 of the said judgment has been given to indicate that the period of limitation cannot be counted in rigid manner but has to be from the date of knowledge of the award of the Court and accordingly delay in maintaining the application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 should not be determined rigidly.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioners has further made a reference of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of K. Subbarayudu and others Vs. The Special Deputy Collector (Land Acquisition), 2017 (8) SCALE Page 61 wherein the amount was enhanced after condoning the delay, as the Special Appeal was dismissed by the High Court having being filed with the delay of 3671 days.

7. A further reference of the judgment of this Court in the case of Karan Singh and 16 others Vs. State of U.P. and 2 others, Writ C No. 329 of 2020 decided on 07.01.2020 has been given. Therein direction was given for consideration of pending application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894. Similar order was passed in the case of Ramesh and 31 others Vs. State of U.P. and 2 others, Writ C No. 603 of 2020 decided on 28.01.2020. The prayer of learned counsel for the petitioners is accordingly to pass a similar order.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioners has further made a reference of Section 28A (3) of the Act of 1894 to press upon the Court to direct the respondents to refer the matter for enhancement of compensation. It is submitted that irrespective of sub-section 1 and 2 of Section 28A, the matter needs to be referred to the Court under sub-Section 3 of Section 28A and accordingly prayer is to direct the authorities to refer the matter to the Court under sub-Section 3 of Section 28A of the Act of 1894.

9. We have considered the submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioners and perused the record carefully. The fact available on record shows that a notification under Section 4 of the Act of 1894 was published in the Gazette on 01.03.1989. The land belonging to the petitioners was acquired though copy of the award has not been enclosed along with the writ petition and even the petitioners have not given detail for it other than the date of award, which is 30.06.1990. The contents of the writ petition do not show refusal or protest to accept the amount of compensation and in the absence of any pleading, it goes without saying that the petitioners accepted the compensation without protest. The application under Section 28-A of the Act of 1894 was preferred on 20.02.2020 in reference to the judgment of the Apex Court dated 05.12.2016 after more than three years.

10. The question for our consideration is as to whether application under Section 28-A is maintainable in the instant case so as to direct for its consideration. For ready reference, Section 28A is quoted herein -:

28A Re-determination of the amount of compensation on the basis of the award of the Court-:

(1) Where in an award under this Part, the Court allows to the applicant any amount of compensation in excess of the amount awarded by the Collector under section 11, the persons interested in all the other land covered by the same notification under section 4, sub-section (1) and who are also aggrieved by the award of the Collector may, notwithstanding that they had not made an application to the Collector under section 18, by written application to the Collector within three months from the date of the award of the Court require that the amount of compensation payable to them may be re-determined on the basis of the amount of compensation awarded by the Court: Provided that in computing the period of three months within which an application to the Collector shall be made under this sub-section, the day on which the award was pronounced and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the award shall be excluded.

(2) The Collector shall, on receipt of an application under sub-section (1), conduct an inquiry after giving notice to all the persons interested and giving them a reasonable opportunity of being heard, and make an award determining the amount of compensation payable to the applicants.

(3) Any person who has not accepted the award under sub-section (2) may, by written application to the Collector, require that the matter be referred by the Collector for the determination of the Court and the provisions of sections 18 to 28 shall, so far as may be, apply to such reference as they apply to a reference under section 18.

11. An application under Section 28A is maintainable within three months from the date of the award of the Court enhancing the compensation. In the instant case, the petitioners have relied on the judgment of Apex Court dated 05.12.2016 and if at all it is taken to be in reference to the acquisition of land under the same notification, the application under Section 28A is much beyond the period of three months. In fact after more than three years and thereby is not maintainable. The exclusion is only the period requisite for obtaining a copy of the award of the Court. The "Court" otherwise means the "Principal Civil Court" as defined under the Act of 1894.

12. This Court is not having authority rather for that any other Court to make interpretation of the provisions different than what has been legislated by the Parliament. A direction for consideration of the application under Section 28A can be given if it is submitted as per the statutory provision and not otherwise. A perusal of the application filed by the petitioners reveals it to be in reference to Article 141 of the Constitution of India. Article 141 provides for precedence to be followed but in the instant case we do not find a judgment of the Apex Court in favour of the petitioners on the issues involved in the present case rather it is against them. The issue is as to whether application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 would be maintainable beyond the period given therein.

13. The issue in reference to limitation for maintaining an application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894, has been decided by the Apex Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Mangatu Ram and others, 1997 (6) SCC 59. It has been held that an application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 would be maintainable when it is submitted within three months from the date of the award of the Reference Court. If an application is submitted beyond the period given therein, would be barred by limitation. Paragraph 17 of the said judgment is quoted herein for ready reference-:

"17. In respect of the notification published on 18.06.1984, the Collector made his award on 31.01.1986 under Section 11. On reference under Section 18 at the instance of some claimants, the reference Court, by its award and decree dated 21.11.1988, enhanced the compensation. The application under Section 28A was filed on 01.10.1991. The written application can be filed by some who had not sought the reference under Section 18. Though they are entitled to make the application, the application should be filed within three months from the date of the award of the reference Court excluding the time taken for obtaining the certified copy of the award as provided under proviso to Section 28A. Since the application under Section 28A was filed beyond three months, on the above facts, the same is barred by limitation. The award of the enhanced compensation to the respondents in this appeal is clearly illegal and without jurisdiction."

14. The same issue was decided by the Apex Court in its earlier judgment in the case of Babua Ram and Others Vs. State of U.P. and another, 1995 (2) SCC 689. The issue was decided not only in reference to the limitation for an application but even as to which award of the Court should be taken note for the purpose of reckoning maintainability of the application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 and limitation. It was held that the subsequent award of the Court would not give successive cause of action when multiple awards are made at different times or dates. Paragraph 20 of the said judgment is quoted herein for ready reference-:

"20. The question then is when exactly the period of limitation starts running for making an application in writing under Sub-section (1) of Section 28-A. A bare reading of Sub-section (1) along with its proviso would indicate that the making of the award by the civil court or judicial officer which becomes the judgment and decree under Section 26, is the starting point from which the period of limitation is allowed for making an application under Section 28-A. However, the person aggrieved in computing the period of three months allowed for making an application under Section 28-A would be entitled to exclude the day on which the award was pronounced by the court or the judicial officer and the time requisite for obtaining the certified copy of the award which is a judgment and decree under Section 26. In other words, the proviso to Sub-section (1) of Section 28-A excludes the requisite time taken for obtaining the copy of the award and in computation of the period of three months from the date of the award, the time required to obtain a certified copy of the award should be excluded. Limitation begins to run from the date the award was pronounced by the court under Section 26. It is well-settled that the law of limitation limits the time after which a suit or other proceeding cannot be entertained in a court of justice or before appropriate authority, though it does not affect the substantive rights of the parties. Once the limitation begins to run, it runs in its full course until its running is interdicted by an order of the court. Explanation to Section 11 provides internal evidence in this behalf to make the point poignantly clear which states that in computing two years period to make award under Section 11, the period during which any action or proceeding to be taken in pursuance of the declaration under Section 6 is stayed by an order of a court, should be excluded. The legislature prescribed three months' limitation to quicken diligence like caveat emptor and provided to a non-protester right to redetermination provided the application in writing is made to the Collector within three months from the date of the award of the civil court of original jurisdiction, excluding the requisite time taken to obtain a copy of the award. In other words, the right and remedy provided by Section 28-A(1) stands extinguished with the expiry of three months from the date of the award under Section 26. It is true that in a given set of facts, there could be more than one reference under Section 18 at the behest of different claimants of the lands covered by Section 4(1) Notification and the court may make successive awards at various times. Compensation given in the respective awards may vary and may be higher than the one given in an earliest award. In the teeth of the express language in Sub-section (1) of Section 28-A, limitation of three months once expires in respect of earliest award by efflux of time, none of the later awards could provide any assistance to revive the lapsed time under Section 28-A(1) nor provide fresh cause of action or successive causes of action when multiple awards are made at different times or dates. Application under Section 28-A(1) may be made at the instance of the self-same person or different persons. Any other interpretation would amount to re-writing the proviso to Sub-section (1) of Section 28A. The judgment and decree of the Court of appeal either under Section 54 or under Section 96 of C.P.C. or under Articles 132, 133 or 136 of the Constitution does not furnish fresh cause of action nor provide fresh limitation to make application under Section 28-A(1) of the Act as has already been held in that they are not covered under Part III of the Act. May be that they are continuation of original decree made in Section 26(2) and in law the executable decree is that of the Supreme Court of the High Courts. But the legislature has conferred right of reopening the award under Section 11 only when the civil court under Section 26 awarded higher compensation in Part III to a person having an interest in the land covered by the same

Notification under Section 4(1) and an application in writing if made within limitation."

15. In the case of State of Andhra Pradesh and another Vs. Marri Venkaiah and Others, 2003 (7) SCC 280, the issue determined by the Apex Court is even in reference to the knowledge of the award of the Court, while considering the provision of Section 28A. It was held that only period requisite for obtaining copy can be excluded and not in reference to the knowledge of the order. Paragraph 7 of the said judgment is quoted herein for ready reference-:

"7. Plain language of the aforesaid Section would only mean that the period of limitation is three months from the date of the Award of the Court. It is also provided that in computing the period of three months, the day on which the award was pronounced and the time requisite for obtaining the copy of the award is to be excluded. Therefore, the aforesaid provision crystallizes that application under Section 28-A is to be filed within three month from the date of the award by the Court by only excluding the time requisite for obtaining the copy. Hence, it is difficult to infer further exclusion of time on the ground of acquisition of knowledge by the applicant."

16. A perusal of the para quoted above shows that in a given case, the acquisition of knowledge of the award of the Court by the applicant has not been accepted for exclusion of the period of limitation.

17. In the subsequent judgment, it was further held that the application under Section 28A of the Act should be in reference to the award passed by the Principal Civil Court. In any case, even if, in the instant case, subsequent order is also taken note of i.e. of the Apex Court, the application was moved much beyond the period of limitation. The issue aforesaid was decided by the Apex Court even in the case of Tota Ram Vs. State of U.P. and others, 1997 (6) SCC 280. Paragraph 3 of the said judgment is relevant and is quoted herein for ready reference-:

"3. A reading thereof clearly that a person whose land is acquired under a common notification issued under Section 4 (1) of the Act but who failed to avail of the remedy of reference under Section 18, is eligible to make a written application within three months from the date of the award of the court enhancing the compensation. It has been interpreted by this court that the "court " means court of original civil jurisdiction to whom reference under Section 18 would lie. Admittedly, the award of the reference court having been made on 18.05.1990, the limitation began to run from that date. The proviso to Section 28-A gives a right to the persons to obtain the certified copy of the award and decree and the time taken for obtaining the certified copy of the award and the decree shall be excluded in computing the period of three months. In view of the express language, the question of knowledge does not arise and, therefore, the plea of the petitioner that the limitation of three months begins to start from the date of the knowledge is clearly unsustainable and cannot be accepted. The High Court, therefore, is rightly in its decision in that behalf."

18. The para quoted above not only makes it clear that knowledge of the order would not be relevant rather exclusion is of the period requisite for obtaining certified copy and in the judgment (supra) it has further been held that the Court means "the Court of Original Civil Jurisdiction" to whom reference under Section 18 was made. In the instant case, the date of award by Principal Civil Court has not been given otherwise limitation has to be determined from the date of the award of the Principal Civil Court. However, as clarified earlier, even if it is taken from the date of the judgment of the Apex Court, the application was moved after more than three years i.e. period much beyond the limitation given under Section 28A of the Act of 1894.

19. In that regard, another judgment of the Apex Court relevant to the present matter is in the case of Sakuru Vs. Tanaji, AIR 1985 Supreme Court 1279. In the said case, it was made clear that Section 5 of the Limitation Act would not apply to an application before the authority. It applies only to the proceeding before the Court. Paragraph 3 of the said judgment is quoted herein for ready reference-:

"3. After hearing both sides we have unhesitatingly come to the conclusion that there is no substance in this appeal and that the view taken by the Division Bench in Venkaiah's case is perfectly correct and sound. It is well settled by the decisions of this Court in Town Municipal Council, Athani v. Presiding Officer, Labour Court, Hubli & Ors. [1970] 1 S.C.R. 51, Nityananda M. Joshi & Ors. v. Life Insurance Corporation of India & Ors. [1970] 1. S.C.R. 396 and Sushila Devi v. Ramanandan Prasad and Ors. [1976] 2. S.C.R. 845 that the provisions of the Limitation Act, 1963 apply only to proceedings in "Courts" and not to appeals or applications before bodies other than Courts such as quasi-judicial Tribunals or executive authorities, notwithstanding the fact that such bodies or authorities may be vested with certain specified powers conferred on Courts under the Codes of Civil or Criminal Procedure. The Collector before whom the appeal was preferred by the appellant herein under Section 90 of the Act not being a Court, the Limitation Act, as such, had no applicability to the proceedings before him. But even in such a situation the relevant special statute may contain an express provision conferring on the appellate authority, such as the Collector, the power to extend the prescribed period of limitation on sufficient cause being shown by laying down that the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act shall be applicable to such proceedings. Hence it becomes necessary to examine whether the Act contains any such provision entitling the Collector to invoke the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act for condonation of the delay in the filing of the appeal. The only provision relied on by the appellant in this connection is Section 93 of the Act which, as it stood at the relevant time, was in the following terms:-

"93. Limitation - Every appeal and every application for revision under this Act shall be filed within sixty days from the date of the order against which the appeal or application is filed and the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 shall apply for the purpose of the computation of the said period."

On a plain reading of the section it is absolutely clear that its effect is only to render applicable to the proceedings before the Collector, the provisions of the Limitation Act relating to 'computation of the period of limitation. The provisions relating to computation of the period of limitation are contained in Sections 12 to 24 included in Part III of the Limitation Act, 1963. Section 5 is not a provision dealing with computation of the period of limitation. It is only after the process of computation is completed and it is found that an appeal or application has been filed after the expiry of the prescribed period that the question of extension of the period under Section 5 can arise. We are, therefore, in complete agreement with the view expressed by the Division Bench of the High Court in Venkaiah's case that Section 93 of the Act did not have the effect of rendering the provision of Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 applicable to the proceedings before the Collector."

20. The judgment aforesaid has been quoted because learned counsel for the petitioners has made a reference of the judgment of the Apex Court where condonation of delay in filing of the special appeal before the Division Bench was allowed without realizing that Section 5 of the Limitation Act applies therein being in the Court proceeding whereas it does not apply to an application before the authority.

21. Thus, for all the reasons and in reference to the judgments quoted above, we do not find that any of the judgments cited by the counsel for the petitioners provides assistance. Yet, we are dealing with those judgments/orders, as cited before us.

22. In this regard, we are first considering the order of the Apex Court in the case of Muni Ram and others (supra) wherein after condoning the delay, notice on the S.L.P. has been issued. Learned counsel for the petitioners has referred to a copy of the judgment of this Court in the case of Patram and others (supra) to indicate that the S.L.P. in the case of Muni Ram and others was against the said judgment, though we do not find name of Muni Ram in the case of Patram and others (supra) but taking it as per the statement of the counsel, we have gone through the judgment in the case of Patram and others. We find no discussion in reference to the issue involved in regards to the period to make an application. The direction in the case of Patram and others (supra) is for consideration of the application and if the facts narrated in the said judgment are taken note of, the application for it was submitted on 04.03.2017 i.e. within a period of three months from the date of the judgment of the Apex Court dated 05.12.2016 and in the instant case, it is after the period of more than three years. Thus, judgment in the case of Patram and others (supra) will have no bearing on the issue involved in this case. The pendency of the S.L.P. is not in reference to the issue of delay in maintaining application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 so as to defer the hearing of this case.

23. So far as the judgment of the Coordinate Bench in the case of Sukhdeo and others (supra) is concerned, while considering the facts of that case, the Court noted about the knowledge of the award because application to seek reference under Section 18 was filed beyond the period given under the said provision. The Court noted the date of the award and the date of knowledge. In the said judgment, it has not been held that an application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 can be preferred beyond the period given therein and for that even an application under Section 18 rather had rigidly applied but was from the date of the knowledge of the award though the award is published in the Gazette but ignoring the aforesaid, the judgment in the case of Sukhdeo and Others (supra) was given but without ignoring the period of limitation. The judgment of the Apex Court in the case of State of A.P. Vs. Marri Venkaiah (supra) however deals with the issue otherwise and is binding on this Court. The date of knowledge is not relevant for Section 28A of the Act of 1894. The issue of knowledge was decided by the Apex Court even in the case of Tota Ram (supra).

24. The case of the petitioners is not otherwise in reference to the knowledge of judgment of the Apex Court rather it has not been even mentioned either in the writ petition or in the application. Accordingly, the judgment in the case of Sukhdeo and others (supra) provides no assistance to the petitioners.

25. The next judgment cited by the counsel for the petitioners is in the case of K. Subbarayudu and others (supra) wherein the issue was different then what is involved in the present matter. In that case, an appeal before the Division Bench of the High Court was preferred with the delay of 3671 days, thus, was dismissed. The Apex Court interfered therein but not in reference to the delay in filing of the application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 so as to apply the said judgment in the present case. An appeal before the High Court can be supported by an application under Section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act for condonation of delay but such a provision does not apply for an application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894. There is no provision for condoning the delay in maintaining the application under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 and there is no prayer for it in the application at Annexure-2. Thus, the judgment in the case of K. Subbarayudu and others (supra) does not provide any assistance rather the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Sakuru (supra) would apply. It is held that Section 5 of the Limitation Act would not apply for an application before the authority. It has been discussed in the earlier paragraphs of this judgment.

26. Learned counsel for the petitioner then cited other judgments of this Court where directions were given for consideration of the application. We find no discussion in reference to provisions of Section 28A (1) indicating the period for maintaining application whereas in the present matter, we have discussed the issue aforesaid. An application filed beyond the period given under Section 28A of the Act of 1894 would not be maintainable. A direction for its consideration can be given only when it is maintainable and not otherwise. Thus, any of the judgments by this Court where the issue in reference to Section 28A (1) has not been determined, cannot have bearing in the present matter.

27. An argument has been raised in reference to Section 28A (3) of the Act of 1894 without realizing that it is not independent but is in reference of sub-Section 2 of Section 28A. Sub-Section 2 directs the Collector to hold enquiry into the matter on the receipt of an application under sub-Section 1 and according to give notice to all concerned for opportunity of hearing. Sub-Section 3 to Section 28A provides that if an award passed under sub-Section 2 is not acceptable to any person then he may, by written application, seek reference of the matter for determination of the compensation by the Court. For application of sub-Section 3, the necessity is of an award under sub-Section 2 of Section 28A which does not exist.

28. In the light of the aforesaid, we are unable to pursue ourselves to accept any of the prayers made in the writ petition.

A direction to the authority to consider the application cannot be given without considering relevant provisions of the law. We have recorded our finding that the application under Section 28A is not maintainable in this case having been filed after lapse of three years of the judgment. Accordingly, the directions sought by the petitioners cannot be given.

29. The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. Heard counsel for the petitioner and Sri Hriday Narain Pandey, Advocate appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 2 to 4, the Board.

2. The present petition has been filed by the petitioner saying that the petitioner had appeared in the Secondary School Examination in the academic year 2011-13, i.e. Class-X bearing Roll No. 5118987 and Senior School Certificate Examination in the year 2015 i.e. Class-XII bearing Roll No. 5653747, conducted by the Central Board of Secondary Education, Delhi in the name of Rishu Jaiswal son of Santosh Kumar Jaiswal and had passed the said examinations also. The petitioner later on, with an intent to change his name from Rishu Jaiswal to Kabir Jaiswal got a notice published in the notification in the Gazette of India baring Gazette No. 44] New Delhi, Saturday, November 2-November 8, 2019 (Kartika 11, 1941) Part-IV, page No. 2060 and moved an application for correction of the name from Rishu Jaiswal to Kabir Jaiwal.

3. The petitioner claims that the name was changed in the Aadhar Card and the PAN Card also in pursuance to the Gazette Notification, however, when the petitioner moved an application through the school concerned for change of name in the certificates, granted by the CBSE, the school in question forwarded the request to the Board and the Board vide order dated 27.5.2020 has rejected the application for change of name on the ground that the particulars of the school records do not show the change of name as sought by the petitioner. The said order is under challenge in the present writ petition.

4. The counsel for the petitioner has argued that once a Gazette Notification has been issued and no objections have been filed, it has been announced to the world in "rem' that the petitioner intends to change his name and no plausible cause exists for the Board to reject the same. He further states that once the petitioner had made a request for change of name through the school concerned and there was no opposition to the same, the Board should have no objection in change of name as sought by the petitioner.

5. The petitioner has placed reliance on the judgment of this Court in the case of Anand Singh Vs. U.P. Board of Secondary Education and Others; 2014 (3) ADJ, 443 and the judgment of this Court in the case of Ankit Singh Vs. Union of India and Others; 2019(9) ADJ, 664. He thus argues that the Board is adopting a hyper technical approach in rejecting the request whereas the petitioner has taken all steps to announce to the world through the Gazette Notification. The petitioner also states that he shall not take any benefit only on account of change of name other than the rights to which the petitioner is entitled. He further argues that the identity of the person remains the same, only the petitioner intends to change the first name and, therefore, the writ petition deserves to be allowed.

6. Sri H.N. Pandey appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 2 to 4, the Board, has brought before me the copy of the examination bye-laws to argue that the request cannot be considered as the requirement is as under amended Rules 69.1 (i) and 69.1 (ii), which are quoted hereinbelow:-

"69.1(i)-

(Change in Candidate name, Mother Name & Father Name)

Applications regarding changes in name of surname of candidates will be considered provided the changes have been admitted by the Court of law and notified in the Government Gazette before the publication of the result of the candidate in cases of change in documents after the court orders caption will be mentioned on the document "CHANGE ALLOWED IN NAME/FATHER'S NAME/MOTHER'S NAME/GUARDIAN'S NAME FROM _____TO _____ ON (DATED) ____ AS PER COURT ORDER NO.____ DATED____

69.1(ii)

(Correction in candidate name, Mother Name & Father Name)

Correction in name to the extent of correction in spelling errors, factual typographical errors in the Candidate's name/Surname, Father's name/ Mother's name or Guardian's name to make it consistent with what is given in the school record or list of candidate (LOC) submitted by the school may be made.

Application for correction in name of Candidate/Father's/Mother's/Guardian's name will be considered only within Five years of the date of declaration of result provided the application of the candidate is forwarded by the Head of institution with the following attested documents.

a. True Copy of Admission form(s) filled in by the parents at the time of admission duly attested by the Head of the concerned Institution.

b. True Copy of the School Leaving Certificates of the previous school submitted by the parents of the candidate at the time of admission duly attested by the Head of the concerned institution.

c. True Copy of the portion of the page of admission and withdrawal register of the school where the entry has been made in respect of the candidate, duly attested by the Head of the concerned institution.

d. The Board may effect necessary corrections after verification of the original records of the school and on payment of the prescribed fee.

This rule will be applicable to all cases after Class X/XII 2015 examination onwards."

7. He has further prayed that the said Rule is applicable, however, he argues that he may be permitted time to file a counter affidavit to oppose the request so made by the petitioner.

8. After hearing the parties, I am not inclined to grant any time for counter affidavit as on the basis of the Rules produced by counsel for the respondents, the matter can be decided only on the grounds of reading of the bye-laws as the matter is to be decided only on interpretation of the Rules applicable.

9. A perusal of the Rules cited by the counsel for the respondents make it clear that Rule 69.1(i) pertains to the permission for change in the candidate name/mother's name/father's name in a case where the request is so made prior to the publication of the result of the candidate and Rule 69.1(ii) permits the correction in the candidate name, mother's name and father's name subsequent to the declaration of the results only if it is at variance with the names so recorded in the School records. Thus in sum and substance, either of the two Rules do not permit the change of name of the candidate or the father's name or mother's name subsequent to the declaration of result.

10. The question with regard to the change of name was considered by the Kerala High Court the case of Kailash Gupta v. CBSE, 2020 SCC Online Ker 1590, wherein the Court recorded as under:-

"1. Four centuries ago, when William Shakespeare wrote the Classic "Romeo and Juliet", he felt that name did not matter much. In the present times, if one is asked the same question "What's in a name"?, the answer would be:

"Its everything".

1.1 In this writ petition, this Court is confronted with an instance where a young girl, who wished for a change of name, stumbled upon an obstacle in the form of CBSE who turned down her request for incorporating the change of name on a hyper technicality.

8. Name is something very personal to an individual. Name is an expression of one's individuality, one's identity and one's uniqueness. Name is the manner in which an individual expresses himself to the world at large. It is the foundation on which he moves around in a civil society. In a democracy, free expression of one's name in the manner he prefers is a facet of individual right. In Our Country, to have a name and to express the same in the manner he wishes, is certainly a part of right to freedom of speech and expression under Article 19 (1) (a) as well as a part of the right to liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. State or its instrumentalities cannot stand in the way of use of any name preferred by an individual or for any change of name into one of his choice except to the extent prescribed under Article 19(2) or by a law which is just, fair and reasonable. Subject to the limited grounds of control and regulation of fraudulent or criminal activities or other valid causes, a bonafide claim for change of name in the records maintained by the Authorities ought to be allowed without hesitation.

12. Power of interpretation available to this Court to correct errors committed by the draftsman is quite wide. When the language of a statute in its ordinary meaning and grammatical construction leads to a manifest contradiction of the apparent purpose of the enactment or to some inconvenience or absurdity, hardship or injustice, presumably not intended, a construction may be put upon it which modifies the meaning of the words and even the structure of the sentence. The above mentioned principle has been restated in the decisions in Pentiah v. Mudalla Veeramallappa, (AIR 1961 SC 1107), Eera v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2017) 15 SCC 133), and also by a Full Bench of this Court in Viswambaran P.N. v. T.P. Sanu, ((2018) 2 KLT 947)."

11. The aforesaid judgment clearly stated that to have a name and to express the same in the manner, a person wishes, is a part of the right of the freedom of speech and expression under Article 19(1)(a) as well as right to liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. In the said judgment, the Kerala High Court was dealing with the scope of Rule 69.1(i) of the Rules of the CBSE and the Court permitted the change of name prior to the declaration of result by CBSE by holding the same to be a right flowing under Article 19(1) (a) and Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

12. In the present case at hand, a perusal of the Rules, as already recorded above, makes it clear that the case of the petitioner falls neither under Rule 69.1 (i) nor under Rule 69.1(ii) and thus this Court has to consider whether the request of the petitioner made for change of name in the certificate, issued by the CBSE, can be permitted at this stage or not.

13. The High Court of Delhi also considered the same issue in the case of Rayaan Chawla vs. University of Delhi & Anr., vide Judgment dated 06.11.2020 passed in W.P. (C) No. 6813 of 2020, wherein the Court was considering the request of the petitioner for permitting the change in the name in the records of the University of Delhi and the University of Delhi on the basis of a notification dated 1.7.2015 refused to permit the name change on the ground that in terms of the notification, the student is firstly required to get the name changed in the records of the CBSE. The Court held that it was impossible to get the name changed in the CBSE records as the Regulations in question do not permit the same, however, it directed the University of Delhi to permit the petitioner to change the name. The Court also considered that the publication for change of name itself provided that the change of name shall be prospective from the date of publication and thus it reconciled the difficulties that may arise on account of different names in the CBSE records and the University record by directing the University of Delhi to incorporate the changed name by recording the "changed name alias/nee earlier name" in the records of the University. The High Court passed the said order based upon the earlier Division Bench judgment of the Delhi High Court in the case of Abhishek Kumar v. Union of India & Ors., 2014 SCC Online Del 3459, wherein the Division Bench was dealing with a case of change of name and in respect to the petitioner therein who had sought to change his name after he had passed out of CBSE School. In the context of the said case, the Division Bench had held as under:-

"10. Else, we are of the opinion that the issuance of revised certificates with changed name as sought by the petitioner would create a discrepancy and reflect a status which did not exist at the time of issuance thereof. The petitioner though has changed his name, but after the date of issuance of the said certificates. Axiomatically the certificates cannot bear the changed name. If anyone were to make a deeper inquiry, they will wonder that if the name was changed only in 2011, how the changed name appears on certificates issued on a prior date. Rather the procedure of having a Gazette Notification for changed name is intended to obviate the said difficulties and to give sanctity to the change in name. The said view was taken by one of us (Rajiv Sahai Endlaw, J.) in Pallavi @ Pallavi Chandra v. C.B.S.E. MANU/DE/2842/2010 and in order dated 9th November, 2010 in W.P.(C) No. 4044/2010 titled Ashik Gurung v. CBSE and which matters are not found to have beenagitated further. We see no reason to take a different view."

14. The High Court of Delhi in the case of Rayaan Chawla vs. University of Delhi (Supra) also referred to the judgment of the Delhi High Court in the case of Jigya Yadav v. CBSE, MANU/DE/3700/2010, wherein a challenge was made to the constitutional validity of bye-law 69.1 (i) of the CBSE Education Examination Bye-Laws and had held as under:-

"20. The test laid down in Kruse Vs. Johnson (supra) has been adopted by the Indian Supreme Court in the case of H.C. Suman & Anr. Vs. Rehabilitation Ministry Employees' Cooperative House Building Society Ltd., New Delhi & Ors,. (1991) 4 SCC 485 at page 499 wherein it has been held as under:-

"In Kruse v. Johnson it was held that in determining the validity of bye-laws made by public representative bodies, such as country councils, the court ought to be slow to hold that a bye-law is void for unreasonableness. A bye-law so made ought to be supported unless it is manifestly partial and unequal in its operation between different classes, or unjust, or made in bad faith, or clearly involving an unjustifiable interference with the liberty of those subject to it. In view of this legal position the Notification dated October 27, 1987 deserves to be upheld as, in our opinion, it does not fall within any of the exceptions referred to in the case of Kruse v. Johnson."(emphasis supplied)"

22. Moreover, we are of the view that the Court should be extremely reluctant to substitute its own views as to what is wise, prudent and proper in relation to academic matters in preference to those formulated by professional men possessing technical expertise and rich experience of actual day-to-day working of educational institutions and the departments controlling them. It will be wholly wrong for the Court to take a pedantic and purely idealistic approach to the problems of this nature, isolated from the actual realities and grass root problems involved in the working of the system and unmindful of the consequences which would emanate if a purely idealistic view as opposed to a pragmatic one were to be propounded. It is equally important that the Court should also, as far as possible, avoid any decision or interpretation of a statutory provision, rule or bye-law which would bring about the result of rendering the system unworkable in practice - as contended by the respondent no. 1 in its counter affidavit."

15. In the context of the facts, as argued before the learned Single Judge of the Delhi High Court, the High Court permitted the name change in the University records by directing to record the "changed name alias/nee earlier name"

16. The question of change of name was also considered by the High Court of Madras in the case of Minor Raana Chariappa Kalianda Vs. CBSE and Anr, vide judgment dated 2.8.2019 passed in W.P. No. 20171 of 2019, wherein the High Court observed as under:-

"4. The above reasoning of the 1st respondent/Central Board of Secondary Education, is not in consonance with the intention of the petitioner as well as the law. The birth name of the petitioner herein has been now changed and wide publicity has been given both in the Government Gazette as well as Local daily as required under the law. Pursuant to that, the name of the petitioner has been changed in the Aadhar Card and other records. Unless and until, the petitioner Educational certificate also carries the present name, there will be confusion in the identity of the person and it will be misleading. Once a person opts to change his name and carries out the necessary change by publication in the Government Gazette as required under law, the said change should be uniformly carried out in all the documents to retain the uniqueness of the identity. If the contention of the 1st respondent, accepted, that the name change will only have prospective effect and not retrospective effect, then a person will be having more than two names on record and the identify of the person will be misleading. Therefore, the reasoning given by the 1st respondent for refusing to carry out the correction in the mark sheet is untenable and against the spirit of law.

5. In the said circumstances, the Writ Petition is Allowed. The 1st respondent is hereby directed to re-consider the request of the petitioner herein and pass appropriate order, within a period of four weeks from today. No order as to costs."

17. In view of the judgments as recorded above, this Court finds that the Kerala High Court as well as the Delhi High Court have held that the individual "name' is a facet of right of expression, which is guaranteed under Article 19(1) (a) read with Article 21 of the Constitution of India. The freedom of expression as guaranteed under Article 19(1) (a) includes within its sweep all forms of expressions and name in the present world is clearly a strong expression. Thus, I agree with the judgments of the Kerala High Court as well as the Delhi High Court to hold that change of name is an expression guaranteed under Article 19(1) (a) of the Constitution of India.

18. The next question, which is more important in the present case, is as to the Regulations of the CBSE, which prohibit the change of name except in the scenario as emphasized under Regulation 69.1 (i) and 69.1 (ii) can be used to deny the rights enshrined under Article 19 (1) (a) of the Constitution of India.

19. The Central Board of Secondary Education is a Society registered under the Societies Registration Act, and is governed by the Bye-Laws although the Central Board of Secondary Education Draft Bill-2012 was issued by the Legislative Department on 7th August, 2012, however, the said Act was never enacted and the CBSE continues to be a Society registered under the Societies Registration Act. The notification issued by the Examination Committee on 1.2.2018 itself records that the Rules with regard to the change of name were based upon the recommendation of the Examination Committee made at its meeting held on 15.12.2017. A bare perusal of the said notification read with the fact that the CBSE is a Society, the said Rules do not have any statutory flavour.

20. The right enshrined under Article 19(1) (a) of the Constitution of India are fundamental rights and can be taken away or restricted only in accordance with the procedure prescribed under Article 19(2) of the Constitution of India.

21. Thus, what is to be considered is whether the Rules framed by the CBSE would fall within the scope of Article 19(2). Article 19(2) of the Constitution of India is reproduced hereinunder:-

"[(2) Nothing in sub clause (a) of clause (1) shall affect the operation of any existing law, or prevent the State from making any law, in so far as such law imposes reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub clause in the interests of the [sovereignty and integrity of India,] the security of the State, friendly relations with foreign States, public order, decency or morality or in relation to contempt of court, defamation or incitement to an offence.]"

22. Constitution Bench of Supreme Court considered the scope of "law' as laid down under Article 19(2) and in the context of freedom enshrined under Article 19(1)(d), the Supreme Court considered as to how the restrictions can be placed under Article 19(2). The Supreme Court in the case of State of M.P. and another v. Thakur Bharat Singh; AIR 1967 SC 1170 recorded, as under:-

"In our judgment, this argument involves a grave fallacy. All executive action which operates to the prejudice of any person must have the authority of law to support it, and the terms of Article 358 do not detract from that rule. Article 358 expressly authorises the State to take legislative or executive action provided such action was competent for the State to make or take, but for the provisions contained in Part III of the Constitution. Article 358 does not purport to invest the State with arbitrary authority to take action to the prejudice of citizens and others: it merely provides that so long as the proclamation of emergency subsists laws may be enacted, and exclusive action may be taken in pursuance of lawful authority, which if the provisions of Article 19 were operative would have been invalid."

23. The Supreme Court was again confronted with the circulars issued by the Kerala Education Authorities providing a code of conduct for teachers and pupils and it was considered as to whether the said code qualifies the test as laid down under Article 19(2) and can have the effect of restricting the freedoms guaranteed under Article 19(1)(a). The Supreme Court in the case of Bijoe Emmanuel and Others Vs. State of Kerala and Others; (1986) 3 SCC 615 held as under:-

"16. We have referred to Article 19(1)(a) which guarantees to all citizens freedom of speech and expression and to Article 19(2) which provides that nothing in Article 19(1)(a) shall prevent a State from making any law, insofar as such law imposes reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by Article 19(1)(a) in the interests of the sovereignty and integrity of India, the security of the State, friendly relations with foreign States, public order, decency or morality, or in relation to contempt of court, defamation or incitement to an offence. The law is now well settled that any law which be made under clauses (2) to (6) of Article 19 to regulate the exercise of the right to the freedoms guaranteed by Article 19(1)(a) to (e) and (g) must be "a law" having statutory force and not a mere executive or departmental instruction. In Kharak Singh v. State of U.P. [AIR 1963 SC 1295, 1299 : (1964) 1 SCR 332] the question arose whether a police regulation which was a mere departmental instruction, having no statutory basis could be said to be a law for the purpose of Article 19(2) to (6). The Constitution Bench answered the question in the negative and said :

"Though learned counsel for the respondent started by attempting such a justification by invoking Section 12 of the Indian Police Act he gave this up and conceded that the regulations contained in Chapter XX had no such statutory basis but were merely executive or departmental instructions framed for the guidance of the police officers. They would not therefore be 'a law' which the State is entitled to make under the relevant clauses (2) to (6) of Article 19 in order to regulate or curtail fundamental rights guaranteed by the several sub-clauses of Article 19(1), nor would the same be 'a procedure established by law' within Article 21. The position therefore is that if the action of the police which is the arm of the executive of the State is found to infringe any of the freedoms guaranteed to the petitioner the petitioner would be entitled to the relief of mandamus which he seeks, to restrain the State from taking action under the regulations."

17. The two circulars on which the department has placed reliance in the present case have no statutory basis and are mere departmental instructions. They cannot, therefore, form the foundation of any action aimed at denying a citizen's fundamental right under Article 19(1)(a). Further it is not possible to hold that the two circulars were issued "in the interest of the sovereignty and integrity of India, the security of the State, friendly relation with foreign States, public order, decency or morality, or in relation to contempt of court, defamation or incitement to an offence" and if not so issued, they cannot again be invoked to deny a citizen's fundamental right under Article 19(1)(a). In Kameshwar Prasad v. State of Bihar [AIR 1962 SC 1166 : 1962 Supp 3 SCR 369, 383-4] a Constitution Bench of the Court had to consider the validity of Rule 4-A of the Bihar Government Servants Conduct Rules which prohibited any form of demonstration even if such demonstration was innocent and incapable of causing a breach of public tranquillity. The Court said:

"No doubt, if the rule were so framed as to single out those types of demonstration which were likely to lead to a disturbance of public tranquillity or which would fall under the other limiting criteria specified in Article 19(2) the validity of the rule could have been sustained. The vice of the rule, in our opinion, consists in this that it lays a ban on every type of demonstration -- be the same however innocent and however incapable of causing a breach of public tranquillity and does not confine itself to those forms of demonstrations which might lead to that result."

Examining the action of the Education Authorities in the light of Kharak Singh v. State of U.P. [AIR 1963 SC 1295, 1299 : (1964) 1 SCR 332] and Kameshwar Prasad v. State of Bihar [AIR 1962 SC 1166 : 1962 Supp 3 SCR 369, 383-4] we have no option but to hold that the expulsion of the children from the school for not joining the singing of the National Anthem though they respectfully stood up in silence when the Anthem was sung was violative of Article 19(1)(a)."

24. The said two judgments, as recorded above, were considered and followed by the Supreme Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Naveen Jindal and Another; (2004) 2 SCC 510. While considering the executive instructions of the Government of India as contained in Flag Code viz a viz rights of the people enshrined under Article 19 (1) (a) of the Constitution of India, the Supreme Court recorded as under:-

"28. Before we proceed further, it is necessary to deal with the question, whether Flag Code is "law"? Flag Code concededly contains the executive instructions of the Central Government. It is stated that the Ministry of Home Affairs, which is competent to issue the instructions contained in the Flag Code and all matters relating thereto are one of the items of business allocated to the said Ministry by the President under the Government of India (Allocation of Business) Rules, 1961 framed in terms of Article 77 of the Constitution of India. The question, however, is as to whether the said executive instruction is "law" within the meaning of Article 13 of the Constitution of India. Article 13(3)(a) of the Constitution of India reads thus:

"13. (3)(a) 'law' includes any ordinance, order, bye-law, rule, regulation, notification, custom or usage having in the territory of India the force of law;"

29. A bare perusal of the said provision would clearly go to show that executive instructions would not fall within the aforementioned category. Such executive instructions may have the force of law for some other purposes; as for example those instructions which are issued as a supplement to the legislative power in terms of clause (1) of Article 77 of the Constitution of India. The necessity as regards determination of the said question has arisen as Parliament has not chosen to enact a statute which would confer at least a statutory right upon a citizen of India to fly the National Flag. An executive instruction issued by the appellant herein can any time be replaced by another set of executive instructions and thus deprive Indian citizens from flying National Flag. Furthermore, such a question will also arise in the event if it be held that right to fly the National Flag is a fundamental or a natural right within the meaning of Article 19 of the Constitution of India; as for the purpose of regulating the exercise of right of freedom guaranteed under Articles 19(1)(a) to (e) and (g) a law must be made.

30. In Kharak Singh v. State of U.P. [AIR 1963 SC 1295 : (1963) 2 Cri LJ 329] this Court held: (AIR p. 1299, para 5)

"Though learned counsel for the respondent started by attempting such a justification by invoking Section 12 of the Indian Police Act he gave this up and conceded that the regulations contained in Chapter XX had no such statutory basis but were merely executive or departmental instructions framed for the guidance of the police officers. They would not therefore be 'a law' which the State is entitled to make under the relevant clauses (2) to (6) of Article 19 in order to regulate or curtail fundamental rights guaranteed by the several sub-clauses of Article 19(1), nor would the same be 'a procedure established by law' within Article 21. The position therefore is that if the action of the police which is the arm of the executive of the State is found to infringe any of the freedoms guaranteed to the petitioner the petitioner would be entitled to the relief of mandamus which he seeks, to restrain the State from taking action under the regulations."

31. To the same effect are the decisions of this Court in State of M.P. v. Thakur Bharat Singh [AIR 1967 SC 1170] and Bijoe Emmanuel v. State of Kerala [(1986) 3 SCC 615] ."

25. In view of the judgments of the Supreme Court, the Rules as framed by the CBSE do not have any statutory flavour and cannot be considered to be the "law' as required for placing a reasonable restrictions on the rights enshrined under Article 19(1)(a), in terms of Article 19(2) of the Constitution of India.

26. In any event, even for restricting the scope of Article 19 (1) (a) by means of any law, it is clear that the operation of such law by the State imposing reasonable restrictions should be in the interest of the sovereignty and integrity of India, the security of the State, friendly relations with the Foreign States, public order, decency or morality or in relation to contempt of court, defamation or incitement of an offence.

27. In view of the law as pronounced by the Supreme Court, it is clear that the CBSE Regulations relied upon by the respondents cannot be considered to be a "law' as required under Article 19(2) through which reasonable restrictions can be imposed on the freedom of expression guaranteed under Article 19 (1) (a). Thus, I have no hesitation in holding that the right of freedom of expression guaranteed to the petitioner under Article 19 (1) (a), in the present case freedom of expression through change of name, cannot be denied to the petitioner and he is entitled to change his name.

28. It is further to be considered that different name in different records will lead to undue hardship to both the petitioner and the respondents, as such to reconcile the issue and the hardships that may be faced by the CBSE in changing the name, as the certificate issued by the earlier name has already been issued to the petitioner, taking a cue from the judgment in the case of Rayaan Chawla (Supra), I direct that the CBSE shall record in their records the name of the petitioner as "Kabir Jaiswal alisa/nee Rishu Jaiswal" in the records of the CBSE and shall issue a fresh certificate recording the name as directed above in respect of the Secondary School Examination of the academic sessions 2011-2013 Class-X bearing Roll No. 5118987 and the Senior School Certificate Examination of the year 2015 i.e. Class-XII bearing Roll No. 5653747. The said exercise shall be carried out by the respondents within a period of two months from the date a copy of the order is produced before the respondent no. 2.

29. The writ petition is allowed in terms of the said order.

30. Copy of the order downloaded from the official website of this Court shall be treated as certified copy of this order.

(A) Labour Law - Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - Section 10(1)(c) - U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - Section 4-K - reference - no principle known to law which permits an administrative review of judicial action - law envisages judicial review of administrative action, and in some cases, legislative action also - Judicial orders can be undone by invoking the appellate, revisional or supervisory procedures by approaching a higher judicial forum - It cannot be done by an executive or administrative action - impugned order passed by the Labour Commissioner and consequential notice issued by the Labour Court quashed. (Para - 18)

Reference was made by the State Government under Section 10(1)(c) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 at the behest of respondent no. 4, who are an employees' association of the petitioners - dispute referred was one relating to promotion of two employees of the petitioner - dispute has been referred by the State Government under Section 10(1)(c) of the Central Act and the same requires to be adjudicated by a Court constituted under the Central Act - reference order has referred the dispute to the Labour Court which was not a Court constituted under the Central Act. (Para - 8)

HELD:- Labour Commissioner is not a Court. He exercises the powers of the State Government to make a reference that is not a judicial power of any kind. All that he can exercise is an administrative or executive power conferred on the Government. Delegation of powers under Section 39 of the Central Act made by the Central Government is to exercise the administrative power of making a reference to the competent Court. It is in no way a judicial authority of supervision over the Labour Court, conferred on the Commissioner. Impugned order undoing a judicial order by an administrative determination is ultra vires and without jurisdiction.(Para - 18)

Writ Petition allowed. (E-6)

List of Cases cited :-

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed, challenging an order passed by the Labour commissioner, U.P. Kanpur dated 05.05.2020 and a notice dated 03.07.2020 issued by the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (3) U.P., Kanpur, in Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2020.

2. In compliance with the order dated 07.12.2020, a better affidavit has been filed by Mr. Mahadeo N. Bobde, presently a Member (Judicial), Board of Revenue at Lucknow and formerly, the Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur Nagar. By an earlier order dated 26.11.2020, the named officer was required to file a personal affidavit for the reasons indicated therein. He filed a personal affidavit on 07.12.2020. It was not found satisfactory. He was granted an opportunity to file a better affidavit. The affidavit dated 16.12.2020 has been filed, in compliance with the order dated 07.12.2020, as already indicated.

3. The explanation offered by Mr. Mahadeo N. Bobde is accepted.

4. Notice was issued to respondent no. 4, in compliance with this Court's order, by speed post, bearing Consignment No. EU296438326IN, which has been delivered to the fourth respondent on 01.12.2020. It is so indicated in the Office Report dated 05.12.2020. The Office report also shows that their conclusion about delivery by speed post is based on a post office report dated 05.12.2020, along with a track of the consignment that is attached. An affidavit of service dated 05.12.2020 has also been filed by Mr. Diptiman Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner, which encloses with it a copy of the dasti notice handed over to the petitioner by the office on 27.11.2020. A perusal of the second copy of the notice form shows that service has been effected dasti also upon respondent no. 4 on 01.12.2020. Accordingly, service upon the fourth respondent is held good. No one appears his behalf.

5. Heard Mr. Diptiman Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Vinod Kant, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Mr. Shriprakash Singh, learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 1, 2 and 3.

6. Hindustan Aeronautics Limited is a Central Government undertaking that functions under the Ministry of Defence, Government of India. It is a company incorporated under the provisions of Indian Companies Act, with its Registered Office at 15/1, Cubbon Road, Bengaluru. The Company is engaged in the manufacture, repair and overhauling of aircraft and other defence equipment. They provide services and cater to the requirements of the defence services in India. The petitioner has several units across the country.

7. This writ petition relates to the Transport Aircraft Division, HAL, Kanpur. The Transport Aircraft Division, Kanpur deals with the manufacture, maintenance, overhauling and repair of transport aircraft used by the Defence Forces of the Nation. It is represented on behalf of the petitioner that the President of India, being the Head of the Executive and Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces under Article 53 of the Constitution, commands 100% shares holding of the company : some directly, the others vicariously. The President of India holds six shares out of eleven and all the other five directors are high ranking officers of the Ministry of Defence, Government of India, who function under the direct control of the President of India as the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces. It is thus made out that the appropriate Government vis-a-vis the petitioner under the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 are the Central Government.

8. It figures that on 26.07.2007, a reference was made by the State Government under Section 10(1)(c) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (for short, "the Central Act') at the behest of respondent no. 4, who are an employees' association of the petitioners. The dispute referred was one relating to promotion of two employees of the petitioner w.e.f. 01.07.2005. It is pleaded on behalf of the petitioner that the reference order clearly shows that the dispute has been referred by the State Government under Section 10(1)(c) of the Central Act and the same requires to be adjudicated by a Court constituted under the Central Act. However, the reference order dated 26.07.2007 has referred the dispute to the Labour Court (5), Kanpur which was not a Court constituted under the Central Act.

9. The aforesaid case was registered as Adjudication Case No. 137 of 2008 on the file of the Labour Court (5), Kanpur. On January the 13th, 2009, the petitioners filed their written statement in the cause. A preliminary objection was raised with regard to the competence of the Labour Court inasmuch as the Labour Court was not constituted under the Central Act. It was urged that a Labour Court constituted under the Central Act alone could have jurisdiction relating to a dispute between the petitioner and its workman.

10. During the course of proceedings, two issues were framed on 9th September, 2009. Issue no. 1 was regarding the competence of the authorized representative appointed to represent the employer-petitioners. That is not of relevance here. The second issue framed as Issue No. 2 reads thus (translated into English from Hindi vernacular):

"Whether the Labour Court constituted by the Government of U.P. has jurisdiction to hear the reference or it is cognizable by the Labour Court constituted by the Central Government?"

11. There is no reason to disbelieve the petitioners' unrebutted case to the effect that after a detailed hearing, the Labour Court (3), Kanpur vide its order dated 17.07.2019, held that the Labour Court (3) is not competent to hear the matter, as it is not constituted under the Central Act. It was held that the reference was made under the Central Act and the Court constituted under the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 had no jurisdiction to hear and determine it. The order of reference dated 26.06.2007 was held to be bad in law and one conferring no jurisdiction.

12. It is averred in paragraph 20 of the writ petition that the order dated 17.07.2019 passed by the Labour Court has not been challenged by respondent no. 4 before any higher judicial forum/Court. Thus, the order dated 17.07.2019 has attained finality. It is also asserted that the order dated 17.07.2019 was made after hearing both parties at length and proper opportunity was provided by the Labour Court to the fourth respondent. It figures that on 14.11.2019 and 18.12.2019, the fourth respondent made applications to the Labour Commissioner, Kanpur seeking a review of the order dated 17.07.2019 passed by the Labour Court (3). Those applications are on record, compendiously annexed as Annexure-9 to the writ petition.

13. The Labour Commissioner, curiously enough, sought opinion of the District Government Counsel (Civil), Kanpur. The District Government Counsel vide his opinion dated 17.03.2020, advised the Labour Commissioner that the adjudication case could be heard by a Court constituted under the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. That opinion of the District Government Counsel dated 17th March, 2020 is also on record. The Labour Commissioner sent a memo dated 05.05.2020 to the Labour Court (3), with a request that the order dated 17.07.2019 may be reviewed and the adjudication case may be heard by that Labour Court. This communication from the Labour Commissioner to the Labour Court (3), Kanpur says after extracting the opinion that the Labour Commissioner had received from the District Government Counsel that bearing in mind the DGC's opinion the Government have decided (the Labour Commissioner exercising delegated powers of the State Government) to send back the matter to the Labour Court for a review of its judgment.

14. The memo dated 05.05.2020, which, in substance, is an order passed by the Labour Commissioner, also returns along with it the original order dated 17.07.2019 passed in Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2010 to the Labour Court (3), Kanpur, enclosing with it a photostat copy of the District Government counsel's opinion. This memo dated 05.05.2020 issued by the Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur and addressed to the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (3) Kanpur is hereinafter called "the impugned order'.

15. Acting on the impugned order, the Labour Court (3), Kanpur issued notice afresh to the petitioner, taking cognizance of the Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2010 which had already been decided by the Labour Court, in terms of which the award dated 17.07.2019, upholding the petitioner's objections on ground of lack of jurisdiction, was passed.

16. Looking to the peculiar circumstances attending the impugned order and the prima facie gross usurpation of jurisdiction by the Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur who virtually set aside a judicial order of the Labour Court by means of the impugned order, this Court required the then incumbent Labour Commissioner, U.P. to file his personal affidavit explaining circumstances in which he acted in the manner that he did. A personal affidavit dated 07.12.2020 was filed by Mr. S.M. Bobde, the then Labour Commissioner, U.P. and presently Member (Judicial), Board of Revenue, Lucknow. He did not at all show in that affidavit as to how he got jurisdiction to undo a judicial determination of the Labour Court, in the exercise of his administrative powers on behalf of the State Government to make a reference. The explanation being prima facie not found satisfactory, further opportunity was granted to Mr. Bobde to file a better affidavit. He came up with a better affidavit dated 16th December, 2020 (sworn on 10.12.2020) filed in Court on 17.12.2020, where he accepted that he had passed the impugned order dated 05.05.2020 inadvertently, under some misconception and wrong advice. He said that, now that he has been transferred to the Board of Revenue, he cannot recall/withdraw the impugned order.

17. This Court has considered the matter in substantial detail, though without the assistance of respondent no. 4, who have chosen not to appear. The issue here is whether the Labour Commissioner, who exercises delegated powers of the State Government to refer a dispute under Section 4-K of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, or, in the present case, under Section 10(1)(c) of the Central Act, could undo a judicial determination of the Labour Court, holding that the reference made to it by the State Government was incompetent. This Court does not think so.

18. A perusal of the impugned order shows that the Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur has held a judicial order of the Labour Court to be flawed. He has sent back the matter to the Labour Court to decide the reference on merits. The Labour Commissioner has decided that the reference is competent. He has done so on the basis of an opinion of the District Government Counsel, Kanpur Nagar. The Labour Commissioner is not a Court. He exercises the powers of the State Government to make a reference that is not a judicial power of any kind. All that he can exercise is an administrative or executive power conferred on the Government. Now, if there were a delegation in his favour under Section 39, assuming that he had the necessary delegation, the delegation of powers under Section 39 of the Central Act made by the Central Government is to exercise the administrative power of making a reference to the competent Court. It is in no way a judicial authority of supervision over the Labour Court, conferred on the Commissioner. In case, any party was aggrieved by the order dated 17.09.2019 passed by the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (3), U.P., Kanpur in Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2010, it was open to that party to approach this Court under Article 226 or 227 of the Constitution, for those are the only remedies that are open, apart from Article 136 of the Constitution, to challenge a judicial determination of the Labour Court, be it an order or an award. There is no principle known to law which permits an administrative review of judicial action. The law envisages judicial review of administrative action, and in some cases, legislative action also. But there is no concept known to law that permits an administrative review. Judicial orders can be undone by invoking the appellate, revisional or supervisory procedures by approaching a higher judicial forum. It cannot be done by an executive or administrative action. The impugned order is also bad, for another reason. It has proceeded substantially, if not entirely, on the opinion of the District Government Counsel. Even if an opinion were sought by the Labour Commissioner, who is presumably a layman (as opposed to a legally trained mind) ought not have referred to the legal opinion received by him. In fact, he should not have acted on any legal opinion at all. This is so because an order founded on legal opinion is not one where the Authority making the order, has done an independent application of mind. Rather, he has gone by the opinion of another, may be a legal expert. This in itself would vitiate the impugned order. In any view of the matter, this Court is of clear opinion that the impugned order undoing a judicial order by an administrative determination is ultra vires and without jurisdiction. Though, Mr. Diptiman Singh sought to justify the order dated 17.07.2019 passed by the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (3), U.P., Kanpur in Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2010, this Court is not minded to examine that question in the absence of a challenge to the order dated 17.07.2019 by a party who is aggrieved. It is also made clear that if any party, including the fourth respondent, is aggrieved by the order dated 17.07.2019, it would be open to them to challenge the said order through competent proceedings, as advised.

19. In the result, this writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned order dated 05.05.2020, passed by the Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur insofar as it relates to Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2010, is hereby quashed. The consequential notice issued by the Labour Court (3) U.P., Kanpur dated 03.07.2020 in Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2010 is also quashed.

20. There shall, however, be no order as to costs.

(A) Civil Law - voluntary dissolution - Societies Registration Act, 1960 - Section 13 - Provision for dissolution of societies and adjustment of their affairs - Section 13A - Power of Registrar to apply for dissolution , Section 13B - Dissolution by court - voluntary dissolution under Section 13 - simply requires the passing of a resolution by the members of the society no being less than three-fourth of the total members of the society - Once the said condition is met, no sanction is required from anyone and the Assistant Registrar need not be approached for giving a seal of approval to the resolution of dissolving the society.(Para -10,16)

Petitioners have dissolved their society by Resolution passed unanimously i.e., by more than three-fifth members of the society - accordance with the scheme of Societies Registration Act, 1960 - transferred assets and liabilities to the newly created trust - claim of petitioner - application moved before the Respondent No. 2 for approval of the resolution is pending consideration. (Para - 1,2,3)

HELD: - No seal of approval is required for dissolving the society as has been done in the present case, a writ, as prayed for cannot be granted, however, petitioners are directed to give an information in writing along with the copy of Resolution to the Assistant Registrar of Societies who shall record the same in his records. (Para - 17)

Writ petition disposed off. (E-6)

List of Cases cited :-

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. Present writ petition was filed alleging that the petitioners have dissolved their society by Resolution dated 1.4.2011 in accordance with the scheme of Societies Registration Act, 1960 (in short 'the Act') and have transferred assets and liabilities to the newly created trust in the name of Maharshi Kapil Muni Shiksha Trust.

2. Petitioner claims that in terms of the resolution passed, an application was moved before the Respondent No. 2 for approval of the resolution.

3. Counsel for the petitioner argues that the application filed before the Respondent No. 2 for approval of the resolution dated 1.4.2011 is pending consideration, as such, he prays that a suitable writ, order or direction be issued to the Respondent No. 2 to take a decision on the said application.

4. This Court raised a pointed query to the counsel for the petitioner as to where is the provision prescribed under the Act conferring the power on the Assistant Registrar to approve the resolution passed by the society for its dissolution.

5. Counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the provisions of Section 13 of the Act. There appears to be no such provision, as such, I consider it appropriate to discuss the scope of Section 13 containing a provision for dissolution of societies and adjustment of their affairs. The provision for dissolution of societies and adjustment of their affairs is contained in Section 13, which is as under:

"13. Provision for dissolution of societies and adjustment of their affairs.?Any number not less than three-fifths of the members of any society may determine that it shall be dissolved, and thereupon it shall be dissolved forthwith, or at the time then agreed upon, and all necessary steps shall be taken for the disposal and settlement of the property of the society, its claims and liabilities, according to the rules of the said society applicable thereto, if any, and if not, then as the governing body shall find expedient, provided that, in the event of any dispute arising among the said governing body or the members of the society, the adjustment of its affairs shall be referred to the principal Court of original civil jurisdiction of the district in which the 'registered office of the society'* (* as amended vide Uttar Pradesh Act 52 of 1975 w.e.f. 10.10.1975) is situate; and the Court shall make such order in the matter as it shall deem requisite:

Provided that no society shall be dissolved unless three-fifths of the members shall have expressed a wish for such dissolution by their votes delivered in person, or by proxy, at a general meeting convened for the purpose:

Provided that [whenever any Government] is a member of, or a contributor to, or otherwise interested in any society registered under this Act, such society shall not be dissolved [without the consent of the Government of the [State] of registration.]"

6. The State of Uttar Pradesh has amended the Societies Registration Act insofar its applicability in the State of Uttar Pradesh is concerned and Section 13A and Section 13B have been incorporated in the Act providing for dissolution of the society in manner other than a voluntary dissolution as provided under Section 13 of the Act, which is quoted hereinabove.

7. Section 13A and 13B amended by virtue of U.P. Act No. 52 of 1975 are quoted as under:-

"13A. Power of Registrar to apply for dissolution:- (1) Where in the opinion of Registrar, there are reasonable ground to believe in respect of a society registered under this Act that any of the grounds mentioned in clauses (a) to (e) of sub-section (1) of Section 13B exists he shall send to the society, a notice calling upon it to show cause within such time as may be specified in the notice why the society be not dissolved.

(2) if on or before the date specified in the notice or within such extended period as the Registrar may allow, the society fails to show any cause or if the cause shown is considered by the Registrar to be unsatisfactory, the Registrar, may move the Court referred to in section 13 for making an order of the dissolution of the society.

13B. Dissolution by court:- (1) On the application of the Registrar under section 13 A or under section 24 or on an application made by not less than one tenth of the members of a society registered under this Act, the Court referred to in section 13 may make an order for the dissolution of the society on any of the following grounds, namely:-

(a) that the society has contravened any provision of this Act or of any other law for the time being in force and it is just and equitable that the society should be dissolved:

(b) that the number of the members of the society is reduced below seven;

(c) that the society has ceased to function for more than three years preceding the date of such application;

(d)that the society is unable to pay its debts or meet its liabilities; or

(e) that the registration of the society has been cancelled under Section 12 D on the ground that its activities or proposed activities have been or will be opposed to public policy.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of sub-section (1) or of Section 12D, the Court may on an application of the District Magistrate in this behalf make an order for the dissolution of a society on the ground that the activities of the society constitute a public nuisance or are other wise opposed to public policy.

(3). When an order for the dissolution of a society is made under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), all necessary steps for the disposal and the settlement of the property of the society, its claims and liabilities and any other adjustment of its affairs take place in manner as the Court may direct."

8. Thus, in the scheme of the Act with regard to dissolution, it is clear that the dissolution of a society can take place by three modes, the first being a voluntary dissolution as provided under Section 13, wherein the requirement is that there has to be a resolution passed by number of members, who are not less than three-fifth of the member of any society and as soon as such resolution is passed, the dissolution happens forthwith or at any time i.e. agreed upon in the resolution. After the dissolution which happens on the passing of the resolution further steps are required to be taken for disposal and settlement of the property of the society, its claims and liabilities according to the Rules of the said society applicable thereto.

9. A perusal of Section 13 of the Act also makes it clear that an inbuilt mechanism is provided for contingencies that may arise in the event of any dispute arising among the said governing body or the members of the society or with regard to the affairs which have to be referred to the Principal Court of original civil jurisdiction of the district in which the registered office of the society is situate and such, Court is empowered to pass requisite orders.

10. A plain reading of the said section makes it clear that no sanction is required from anyone and the Assistant Registrar need not be approached for giving a seal of approval to the resolution of dissolving the society.

11. In addition to the voluntary resolution as provided under Section 13, two other modes of dissolution have also been provided in the State of Uttar Pradesh by incorporation of Section 13A and Section 13B in the Act.

12. Section 13A confers power on the Registrar to apply for the dissolution in the event of contingencies which are enumerated under Section 13A (1) of the Act.

13. Section 13B provides for yet another manner of dissolution by the Court on an application of the Registrar under Section 13A or Section 24 or on an application made by not less than one-tenth of the members of the society registered under this Act and the Court is empowered to pass orders for the dissolution of the society on the happening of any of the grounds as enumerated in Clause (a) to (e) of Section 13B (1) of the Act.

14. Curiously enough Section 13(B) (2) provides yet another mode of dissolution of the society by the Court on an application of the District Magistrate on the limited grounds enumerated therein.

15. Thus, under scheme of the Act, three modes of dissolution are prescribed, first one being voluntary dissolution under Section 13, second being dissolution at the instance of the Registrar and the third being dissolution under the orders of the Court.

16. In the present case, we are concerned with the voluntary dissolution under Section 13, which simply requires the passing of a resolution by the members of the society no being less than three-forth of the total members of the society. Once the said condition is met, no other condition is required to be fulfilled and the same does not require a seal of approval by any officer or authority. In the present case, it is alleged that by a resolution passed unanimously i.e. by more than three-fifth members of the society on 1.4.2011, the society has been dissolved, as such, no further approval is required and the dissolution would be deemed to be effective from the date of its passing i.e. 1.4.2011.

17. As I have recorded above that no seal of approval is required for dissolving the society as has been done in the present case, a writ, as prayed for cannot be granted, however, petitioners are directed to give an information in writing along with the copy of Resolution to the Assistant Registrar of Societies who shall record the same in his records.

18. The writ is disposed off.

18. The writ petition is disposed off.

Counsel for the Petitioner:

Counsel for the Respondents:

(A) Labour Law - The Uttar Pradesh Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - Section 4-K - Reference of disputes to labour court or Tribunal - Termination of services - Labour Court is a Court of referred jurisdiction - Labour Court, unlike a court of general jurisdiction, cannot answer anything, but what has been referred to it - impugned award is not liable to be disturbed and is upheld. (Para -15,16)

Petitioner is a workman, whose services have been terminated by the Employers - reference made to the Labour Court, under Section 4-K of the Uttar Pradesh Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - reference has been answered against the workman and in favour of the Employers - What has been referred to the Labour Court, is a dispute about the validity of the termination of the workman's services w.e.f. 20.02.2004 by the Employers, whereas the dispute is one about his transfer on that date.(Para - 2,3,4,15)

HELD:-Workman's services being never terminated, the Labour Court could not have decided the validity of the transfer on a reference made about termination of his services. The reference made certainly does not clothe the Labour Court with jurisdiction to decide upon the validity of the transfer order dated 20.02.2004. It is, however, ordered that the Deputy Labour Commissioner/ State Government, whoever is competent, shall make a fresh reference, under Section 4-K of the Act of 1947 in appropriate terms, referring the dispute that arises between parties, bearing in mind what has been said in this judgment. (Para - 15,16)

M/S Super Cassettes Industries Pvt. Ltd. Vs St. Of U.P. & 2 ors. , WRIT - C No.52897 of 2017, decided on 05.02.2020

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Alok Krishan Tripathi, learned Counsel for the petitioner and the learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.1.

2. The petitioner is a workman, whose services have been terminated by the Employers, the second respondent.

3. The following reference was made to the Labour Court, under Section 4-K of the Uttar Pradesh Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (for short, "the Act of 1947'):

"क्या सेवायोजक पक्ष द्वारा श्रमिक श्री मोहर सिंह पुत्र श्री स्व0 विजय सिंह की सेवायें दिनांक 20.02.2004 से समाप्त किया जाना उचित अथवा वैधानिक है? यदि नहीं, तो संबंधित श्रमिक क्या लाभ/ रिलीफ पाने का अधिकारी है, तथा अन्य किस विवरण सहित?"

4. The said reference has been answered against the workman and in favour of the Employers.

5. The workman's case elaborately set out in his written statement dated 19.04.2007 filed before the Labour Court is this: He was appointed as a peon at the Hindustan College of Science and Technology, Farah, District Mathura (for short, "the College') on 03.07.1998. The said College are the Employers. They are a unit of the Sharda Educational Trust. The Employers are recognized by the Uttar Pradesh Technical University, Lucknow. The workman discharged his assigned duties with devotion and sincerity with no cause of complaint ever to the Employers. In the year 2003, the workman was drawing a salary of Rs.2100/- per mensem. These emoluments, looking to the dearness, were far from adequate compensation. As such, the workman, along with other similarly circumstanced workmen, put forth their demand to the Employers for a raise. The Employers said that they would consider it in the next month. In the month of July, 2003, the demand was reiterated and led to the same response that the demand would be considered during the following month. The Employers instead of considering the workman's demand, acting on a stratagem, suspended him pending inquiry by an order dated 28.08.2003.

6. It was mentioned incorrectly in the suspension order that the workman was transferred to the Agra Headquarters by an order dated 21.08.2003, but he did not join in compliance with that order. It was indicated in the suspension order that since the workman did not comply with the transfer order, he was involved in activities against the Employers. The workman by a letter dated 01.09.2003, sent by registered post to the Employers, disputed the aforesaid allegations as incorrect and made up. However, the Employers without considering the workman's letter of 1st September, served him with a charge sheet dated 03.09.2003. The workman submitted his written statement to the charge sheet on 04.09.2003. The charges against the workman were of disobeying the transfer order and being involved in activities against the interest of the Employers, both of which are asserted to be false and made up. These charges had been brought in order to harass the workman with an object to suppress the just demand for a raise made by him and other similarly circumstanced workmen. It was a measure of reprisal and to make an example out of the workman, lost the others come up with a demand for a raise. The workman was not given any appointment letter or was there any condition carried in terms of appointment that he could be transferred. In addition, the workman was never served with the so called transfer order, the disobedience of which he was charged.

7. An inquiry was held into charges by one Sukhveer Singh, an Inquiry Officer, appointed by the Employers. The Inquiry Officer did not conclude the inquiry, but the suspension was withdrawn by a letter dated 19.02.2004. The letter said that the workman should go and join the Agra office on 28.02.2004. This shows that in the past, there was no transfer order and to fill up that lacuna, the letter dated 19.02.2004 was issued. The letter dated 19.02.2004 was again issued to harass the workman. The Employers did not intend to take him back in employment. On the one hand, the Employers initiated a departmental inquiry, suspending him from service, and on the other they withdrew the suspension order, requiring the workman to join at the Agra office, both of which are stances that are inconsistent action.

8. In answer to the letter dated 19.02.2004, the workman made an application dated 20.02.2004, pointing out the inconsistency in the Employers' stand, attended with a request to reinstate him with back-wages. The Employers refused to accept the workman's application dated 20.02.2004. Instead, they sent a copy of the letter dated 19.02.2004, again, to the workman by fax. The workman's services were terminated by an oral order on 20.02.2004, without serving him with a charge sheet or undertaking disciplinary proceedings or retrenching him in accordance with the law. Dispensation of the workman's services w.e.f. 20.02.2004 constitutes unlawful retrenchment. The workman is going without gainful employment. He is entitled to be reinstated with back-wages.

9. The Employers filed a detailed written statement on 24.01.2008 before the Labour Court. Their written statement carries a detailed defence and many facts about the dealings and actions between the workman and the Employers, that has led to the industrial dispute. What stands out in the Employers defence is the fact that the workman was transferred by an order dated 20.08.2003 to their Agra office, located at 10, Jawahar Nagar, Khandari, Agra. The workman never complied with the transfer order, last mentioned. Instead, he indulged in false propaganda against the Employers and presented a complaint against them to the Uttar Pradesh Technical University. He was, therefore, charge-sheeted on 28.08.2003 and placed under suspension, pending inquiry. During the course of inquiry, the workman disclosed to the Inquiry Officer that he had no knowledge about the transfer order. Therefore, concluding the inquiry, the Employers directed the workman by their order dated 19.02.2004 to join at Agra, granting him time until 28.02.2004, for the purpose. This transfer order was put to challenge in a Civil Suit instituted by the workman before the learned Civil Judge, Mathura and he also approached the Assistant Labour Commissioner, Mathura, with the same grievance.

10. Shorn of unnecessary details, it must be recorded that the stand of the Employers is that they never terminated the workman's services. To them, he is still in service. The reference has been secured to forestall any action that the Employers may take against the workman for his continuing disobedience of the order of transfer.

11. The Labour Court has considered the case of the parties and the evidence on record, led on both sides. He has recorded a finding to the effect that the services of the workman have not been terminated, but the dispute appears to be that the workman wants to serve at Mathura, and not at Agra. The dispute involved, therefore, is not at all about termination, but the validity of the transfer order dated 20.02.2004, which the workman has characterized as termination of his services, which in fact it is not. The Labour Court has held that if the validity of the transfer order dated 20.02.2004 is to be judged, a reference in appropriate terms is to be made. The reference here being about termination of the workman's services from 20.02.2004, the validity of the workman's transfer w.e.f. 20.02.2004, cannot be answered by the Labour Court on a reference cast in those terms. It is on this account that the Labour Court has answered the reference against the workman in terms that his services have not been terminated w.e.f. 20.02.2004.

12. This Court has carefully perused the record and heard Mr. Alok Kumar Tripathi in considerable detail in support of the motion to admit this petition to hearing. The learned Standing Counsel has opposed that motion.

13. A perusal of the material on record and the case of parties does indicate that the substance of the dispute between them is whether the workman can be transferred from the Employers' establishment at Mathura to their establishment at Agra. The stand of the Employers is clear that they never terminated the workman's services. Rather, they have transferred him out of Mathura and posted him at Agra. The workman assails that right of the Employers to transfer him out of Mathura. He wants to continue serving them at Mathura. The essence of the dispute between parties, therefore, appears to be whether the Employers can validly transfer the workman from Mathura to Agra. It is not at all about termination of the workman's service. The order dated 20.02.2004 is also an order requiring the workman to join at Agra. It is a transfer order in substance and not an order of termination of services. The reference made in this case, however, proceeds on the basis that the workman's services have been terminated w.e.f. 20.02.2004.

14. The Labour Court, on the basis of the respective case of parties and the evidence on record, found that the workman's services have never been terminated. That conclusion is not incorrect, particularly, in the face of the Employers' categorical stand that they have never terminated the workman's services and still would treat him to be part of their establishment. The reference, therefore, in the opinion of this Court ought to have been about the validity of the transfer order dated 20.02.2004.

15. The Labour Court is a Court of referred jurisdiction. It can decide what is referred to it. It cannot decided something else. What has been referred to the Labour Court, is a dispute about the validity of the termination of the workman's services w.e.f. 20.02.2004 by the Employers, whereas the dispute is one about his transfer on that date. The workman's services being never terminated, the Labour Court could not have decided the validity of the transfer on a reference made about termination of his services. It has to be remembered that the Labour Court, unlike a court of general jurisdiction, cannot answer anything, but what has been referred to it. In this connection, reference may be made to the decision of this Court in M/S Super Cassettes Industries Pvt. Ltd. vs. State Of U.P. And 2 Others, WRIT - C No.52897 of 2017, decided on 05.02.2020. In M/S Super Cassettes Industrial Pvt. Ltd. (supra), I had occasion to consider this question, where it was held:

"38. It may be true or otherwise that under the Certified Standing Orders, the Employers have power to transfer the workman away to the unit at Mumbai. The Model Standing Orders, 1991, if they apply in preference to the Certified Standing Orders, may or may not permit a transfer for the workman outside the State without his consent. This Court, however, would refrain from expressing any opinion about the issue. The reason is that the Labour Court is a Court of referred jurisdiction and a creature of the statute. Its jurisdiction is limited to answering questions that are expressly referred to it under Section 2-K of the Act. It may, however, go into incidental questions while answering the reference.

39. The very persuasive submission of Sri Shekhar Srivastava urging this Court to take the view that the order of transfer, dated 10.06.1996 is in fact an order of termination, that is camouflaged as a transfer order, cannot be regarded as an incidental issue to the reference made. The reference is express in its terms and speaks about an order of termination dated 10.02.1996. It does not speak about the validity of the transfer order, dated 10.02.1996. In fact, there is no order of termination from service passed on 10.02.1996. Even if the order of transfer were a camouflage to terminate the workman's services, and that too unlawful, consistent judicial opinion confines the Labour Court in its jurisdiction to answer whatever is referred to it by the appropriate Government. Unlike a Court of general jurisdiction or a Court of superior jurisdiction, it does not have authority to determine its own jurisdiction. Its jurisdiction flows from the terms of the order of reference, and in no way can the Labour Court travel beyond its terms. Incidental questions are quite different and these could be like the date from which wages are to be granted in the case of termination, that is declared unlawful, but would not include the rate of wages in a case where the reference is against the validity of an order of termination. Rate of wages can be decided if that is the subject matter of reference to the Labour Court; not otherwise. This would well illustrate the difference between incidental questions and those that are substantial, but not referred to adjudication. This principle is most eloquently expressed in the decision of their Lordships in Tata Iron and Steel Company Limited (supra) and also by this Court in M/s Triveni Engineering and Industrial Ltd. (supra).

45. Unfortunately for the workman here, the reference in the terms made does not clothe the Labour Court with jurisdiction to look into the validity of the order of transfer, dated 10.02.1996. The industrial dispute here has been referred in most callously worded terms dubbing a transfer order as one of termination, rendering the entire exercise before the Labour Court a nullity, whatever be the merits of the parties' case. Here, the Authority empowered under Section 4-K of the Act has utterly failed to refer what on its plain terms was an industrial dispute, relating to the validity of the transfer order dated 10.02.1996. If the dispute that actually arose between the parties were referred, depending upon the finding of the Labour Court about the validity of the order of transfer, the logical incidents of it would flow, to whichever parties' gain or prejudice it might have been. About this reference, this Court has no hesitation to hold that it is without any basis, and on the date it was made or with reference to the Employers' order that it was made, there was no termination of services for the workman. The industrial dispute in the terms it was referred was completely non-existent. The Labour Court being a Court of referred jurisdiction, could not have gone beyond or behind the terms of reference in which the industrial dispute sent to it was cast."

16. In view of the clear position of the law and the nature of dispute, that is involved here between the workman and the Employers, the reference made certainly does not clothe the Labour Court with jurisdiction to decide upon the validity of the transfer order dated 20.02.2004. Accordingly, the impugned award is not liable to be disturbed and is upheld. It is, however, ordered that the Deputy Labour Commissioner/ State Government, whoever is competent, shall make a fresh reference, under Section 4-K of the Act of 1947 in appropriate terms, referring the dispute that arises between parties, bearing in mind what has been said in this judgment.

17. This writ petition is disposed of in terms of the aforesaid orders. There shall be no order as to costs.

18. Let this order be communicated to the Deputy Labour Commissioner, Agra Region, Agra, U.P. by the Joint Registrar (Compliance).

CIVIL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SURYA PRAKASH KESARWANI, J.
THE HON'BLE YOGENDRA KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Writ C No. 21066 of 2020

Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. ...Petitioner
Versus
Smt. Uma Devi & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Parv Agarwal

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

(A) Civil law - General Insurance Business (Nationalization) Act, 1972 - Section 9 & Section 16 - petitioner - insurance company is fully owned subsidiary of the General Insurance Corporation of India - a Government Company - State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India - National Litigation Policy - Government should be a responsible litigant - should not involve in frivolous litigation - Prioritisation in litigation has to be achieved with particular emphasis on welfare legislation, social reform, weaker sections and senior citizens and other categories requiring assistance must be given utmost priority - In contract of insurance, rights and obligations are strictly governed by the policy of insurance - terms of the insurance policy have to be strictly construed in order to determine the extent of the liability of the insurer.(Para - 17,19,27,29)

Respondent No.1 is widow whose husband (petty farmer) and head of the family/ bread earner - died in an accident - covered under the Kisan Bima Yojna - filed an insurance claim with the petitioner - Aggrieved with the rejection of her claim by the petitioner - filed an application before the District Review Committee headed by the District Magistrate - passed the impugned "binding order" under the Kisan Bima Yojna - awarded the claim of Rs.5 lacs to the respondent No.1. - Committee allowed the insurance claim - recorded a findings of fact directed that in the event, the amount awarded is not paid by the petitioner - insurance company within one month, then penalty in terms of the Kisan Bima Yojna shall be paid to the respondent No.1 @ Rs.1,000/- per week - Aggrieved with this order, the petitioner insurance company has filed the present writ petition.(Para - 3,4,5)

HELD:-The petitioner insurance company not being an ordinary litigant and more particularly bound by the insurance contract should not have filed the present frivolous writ petition to challenge the impugned contractually "binding order". The conduct of the petitioner in filing the present writ petition deserves to be condemned inasmuch as a frivolous writ petition has been filed to drag in litigation the respondent No.1 who is a widow and belongs to economically weaker and socially and educationally disadvantageous section of the society - As per terms of contract of insurance, the petitioner is bound by the order of the respondent No.3 and was also bound to make payment within the time specified failing which penalty of Rs.2,500/- per week is payable to the claimant.(Para - 25,30)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Surya Prakash Kesarwani,J.)

1. The petitioner has challenged the binding order dated 20.12.2019 passed by the District Review Committee, Jhansi (respondent No.3) awarding insurance claim to the respondent No.1

under the "Mukhya Mantri Kisan Evam Sarvahit Bima Yojna" (in short "Kisan Bima Yojna").

2. Heard Sri Parv Agarwal, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Manoj Kumar Kuswaha, learned standing counsel for the State-respondents.

Facts:-

3. Briefly stated facts of the present case are that the respondent No.1 is widow whose husband and head of the family/ bread earner, namely late Pramod Kori aged about 25 years died on 20.06.2019 in an accident caused by a vehicle "Tavera". He was a petty farmer who owned one sixth share out of total area of 0.882 hectare of agricultural land. He was covered under the aforesaid Kisan Bima Yojna. After the death of her husband, the respondent No.1 filed an insurance claim with the petitioner under the Kisan Bima Yojna. She obtained an income certificate dated 29.08.2019 issued by the competent authority/ Tehsildar, Garautha, Jhansi, certifying income from all sources to be Rs.2,500/- per month, i.e. Rs.30,000/- per annum. The petitioner rejected the claim of the respondent No.1 by order dated 26.11.2019, observing as under:

"मृतक/ परिवार की वार्षिक आय का प्रमाणपत्र मृत्यु के 45 दिन बाद का बना है। जो योजना में मान्य नहीं है।"

4. Aggrieved with the rejection of her claim by the petitioner, the respondent No.1 filed an application before the District Review Committee headed by the District Magistrate Jhansi who passed the impugned "binding order" dated 20.12.2019 under the Kisan Bima Yojna and awarded the claim of Rs.5 lacs to the respondent No.1.

5. In the impugned order, the respondent No.3 has recorded a findings of fact that the deceased owned agricultural land as aforementioned, deceased was head of the family/ bread earner and income of the family was Rs.30,000/- per annum. The Committee allowed the insurance claim and directed that in the event, the amount awarded is not paid by the petitioner - insurance company within one month, then penalty in terms of the Kisan Bima Yojna shall be paid to the respondent No.1 @ Rs.1,000/- per week. Aggrieved with this order, the petitioner insurance company has filed the present writ petition.

6. This Court heard at length, the learned counsels for the parties on 10.12.2020 and directed the petitioner to file a supplementary affidavit annexing therewith complete scheme "Mukhya Mantri Kisan Evam Sarvhit Bima Yojna" and a copy of contract of insurance of the petitioner with the State Government. In compliance to the aforesaid order, the petitioner has filed a supplementary affidavit dated 15.12.2020. The scheme "Mukhya Mantri Kisan Evam Sarvhit Bima Yojna" as amended, is part and parcel of the agreement/ insurance contract dated 13.09.2018 between the petitioner and the Governor of Uttar Pradesh.

Submissions:-

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner has referred to the averments made in paragraphs-10, 19 and 20 of the writ petition, which are reproduced below:

"10. That to substantiate the claim, the claimant submitted an income certificate dated 29.08.2019 showing her annual income as Rs.30,000/-. The said income certificate was prepared after 45 days of the death. A True copy of the claim petition along with the income certificate is being filed here with and is marked as Annexure no.3 to this writ petition.

19. That it would be worth the mention here that the claimant has filed her claim under the scheme on the strength of the income certificate issued beyond the period prescribed under the MOU.

20. That it is categorically submitted that at the time of the renewal of the policy in 2018 the State has agreed to the term that the income certificate has to be issued within 45 days and not beyond that and as such the income certificate issued on 29.08.2019 was fatal for the claimant, for which the petitioner cannot be saddled with the liability."

8. Learned standing counsel supports the impugned order.

Claim process for Person Accidental Insurance

m) In case any discrepancies are found in the claim or if any controversy arises, the claim shall be investigated and the investigation report shall be presented to the concerned committee (headed by District Magistrate). The Committee shall include:

a. District Magistrate

b. Chief Development Officer

c. Chief Medical Officer

d. Sub- Divisional Magistrate

Representatives of the Insurance Company shall also be invited. The Committee shall take decision on all the discrepant/Controversial claims. The Insurance Company shall be bound to adhere to the decision taken by the Committee and make the payment within one month. In such cases. Insurance Company shall submit a cheque of amount payable to the District Magistrate who will hand over the cheque to the concerned Head of the family/ bread winner/nominee/ legal heir (as applicable) within 15 days."

13. The aforesaid Kisan Bima Yojna was amended and the amendment also forms part of the Insurance Contract between the petitioner and the State Government. Amendments include that income certificate is not required for B.P.L. card holders, beneficiaries of Samajwadi Pension and farmers, khatedar/ sah-khatedar. For the purposes of the aforesaid Kisan Bima Yojna under the agreement, the State Government as per clause (1) of the agreement, has paid annual insurance premium to the petitioner for Agra Cluster - Rs. 105,93,81,344/-, Meerut Cluster - Rs. 54,03,58,132/-, Bareilly Cluster - Rs. 74,22,45,091/-, Kanpur Cluster - Rs. 76,09,84,705/- and Basti Cluster - Rs.25,74,05,500/-.

14. From the facts as briefly noted above and the relevant portion of Kisan Bima Yojna, it is evident that the Yojna, which is part of insurance contract between the petitioner and the State Government; is an ambitious insurance for poor people, which has been launched with the pious object of welfare of the economically weaker, neglected and disadvantageous section of the society so as to provide them protection of medical/ treatment facility and to ensure medical facility and economic security to them in the event of disability or death of the head of the family or bread earner.

15. Undisputedly, the husband of the respondent No.1 i.e. the deceased was the head of the family/ bread earner. He was a small farmer and as such in terms of the Kisan Bima Yojna scheme (as amended), no income certificate was even required. The award made by the respondent No.3, i.e. the District Review Committee is binding in terms of the afore-quoted clause (m) of the contract. In terms of the contract, the petitioner was bound to adhere to the decision of the Committee and make the payment within one month. But instead of making the payment, the petitioner, as an "ordinary litigant" has filed the present writ petition on frivolous grounds to drag in litigation the respondent No.1 who is a widow and belongs to socially, economically and educationally disadvantageous section of the society.

16. In Bhusawal Municipal Council Vs Nivrutti Ramchandra Phalak and others, 2014(2) AWC 1407 (SC) (paras 16,17,18), Hon'ble Supreme Court made certain observations in a land acquisition matter with reference to the plight of farmers and poor persons of the society. It was observed, as under:

"16. The judicial process of the court cannot subvert justice for the reason that the court exercises its jurisdiction only in furtherance of justice. The State/authority often drags poor uprooted claimants even for payment of a paltry amount upto this Court, wasting the public money in such luxury litigation without realising that poor citizens cannot afford the exorbitant costs of litigation and, unfortunately, no superior officer of the State is accountable for such unreasonable conduct. It would be apt to quote the well known words of Justice Brennan:

"Nothing rankles more in the human heart than a brooding sense of injustice. Illness we can put up with. But injustice makes us want to pull things down. When only the rich can enjoy the law, as a doubtful luxury, and the poor, who need it most, cannot have it because its expense puts it beyond their reach, the threat to the continued existence of free democracy is not imaginary but very real, because democracy's very life depends upon making the machinery of justice so effective that every citizen shall believe in and benefit by its impartiality and fairness."

17. The fundamental right of a farmer to cultivate his land is a part of right to livelihood "Agricultural land is the foundation for a sense of security and freedom from fear. Assured possession is a lasting source for peace and prosperity." India being predominantly an agricultural society, there is a "strong linkage between the land and the person's status in the social system." "A blinkered vision of development, complete apathy towards those who are highly adversely affected by the development process and a cynical unconcern for the enforcement or the laws lead to a situation where the rights and benefits promised and guaranteed under the Constitution hardly ever reach the most marginalised citizens. For people whose lives and livelihoods are intrinsically connected to the land. the economic and cultural shift to a market economy can be traumatic." (Vide: Mahanadi Coal Fields Ltd. & Anr. v. Mathias Oram & Ors., (2010) 11 SCC 269; and Narmada Bachao Andolan v. State of Madhya Pradesh & Anr., AIR 2011 SC 1989)

18. A farmer's life is a tale of continuous experimentation and struggle for existence. Mere words or a visual can never convey what it means to live a life as an Indian farmer. Unless one experiences their struggle, that headache he will never know how it feels. The risks faced by the farming community are many; they relate to natural calamities such as drought and floods; high fluctuation in the prices of input as well as output, over which he has no control whatsoever; a credit system which never extends a helping hand to the neediest; domination by middlemen who enjoy the fruits of a farmer's hard work; spurious inputs, and the recent phenomenon of labour shortages, which can be conveniently added to his tale of woes. Of late, there have been many cases of desperate farmers ending their lives in different parts of the country. The Principles of Economics provides for the producer of a commodity to determine his prices but an Indian farmer perhaps is the only exception to this principle of economics, for even getting a decent price for their produce is difficult for them. Economic growth through the 1990's had made India a more market- oriented economy, but had failed to benefit all Indians equally. The problems that plagued the farmers several decades ago are still glaringly present today; there is little credit available. What is available is very expensive. There is no advice on best practice in conducting agriculture operations. Income through farming is not enough to meet even the minimum needs of a farming family. Support systems like free health facilities from the government are virtually non-existent. The drama of millions leaving their homes in search of jobs, which are non existent of villages swiftly losing able-bodies of adults, leaving behind the old, hungry and vulnerable. Families break up as their members head in diverse directions.

Government Insurance Company - whether an ordinary litigant?

17. Prior to independence, insurance business in India was owned and operated by private entities. The governing law of insurance in India was still the Insurance Act, 1938. Post independence, by the Industrial Policy Resolution 1956, the life insurance industry in India was to be nationalized. The Life Insurance Corporation Act, 1956 was passed creating Life Insurance Corporation as a statutory corporation and the assets of all the private Life Insurance Companies were transferred to L.I.C. Thereafter, the General Insurance (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1971 was passed by parliament which provided for taking over the management of general insurance business. Initially, the Central Government assumed management of general insurance business as an initial step towards nationalization. Thereafter, the General Insurance Business (Nationalization) Act, 1972, was passed. Section 16 of the Act, 1972 contemplated merger of the private insurance companies into four insurance companies namely, (a) National Insurance Company Ltd. (b) New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (c) Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. and (d) United India Insurance Co. Ltd. These four insurance companies are fully owned subsidiaries of General Insurance Corporation of India, which is a Government company registered under the Companies Act but incorporated as mandated under Section 9 of the aforesaid Nationalization Act. Thus, the petitioner - insurance company is fully owned subsidiary of the General Insurance Corporation of India.

18. Petitioner is a Government Insurance Company. In the case of Biman Krishna Bose vs. United India Insurance Company Ltd., (2001) 6 SCC 477 (para-3), Hon'ble Supreme Court considered a similar insurance company, namely United India Insurance Co. Ltd. and held that it is a State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India. It was further observed that even, in an area of contractual relations, the State and its instrumentalities are enjoined with the obligations to act with fairness and must not take any irrelevant and extraneous consideration while arriving at a decision. Arbitrariness should not appear in their actions or decisions. In United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Manubhai Dharmasinhbhai Gajera, (2008) 10 SCC 404 (Paras-25 and 26), Hon'ble Supreme Court held United India Insurance Company to be State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India and observed that it has been created under the General Insurance Business Nationalization Act, 1972 and preamble thereof shows that it was enacted for achieving certain purposes; economic benefit of the people and/or group of people, being one of it. It was further observed that there existed a distinction between a private player in the field and a public sector insurance company. Whereas a private player in the field is only bound by the statutory regulations operating in the field, the public sector insurance companies are also bound by the directions issued by the General Insurance Corporation as also the Central Government. Public sector insurance companies being State have a different role to play. It is not to say that as a matter of policy, statutory or otherwise, the insurance companies are bound to regulate all contracts of insurance having the statement of Directive Principles in mind but there cannot be any doubt whatsoever that fairness or reasonableness on the part of the insurance companies must appear in all of its dealings.

19. Thus, the petitioner Insurance Company being a Government Company is not an ordinary litigant. It is State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India.

20. In Dilbagh Rai Jerry Vs. Union of India and others, (1974) 3 SCC 554, Hon'ble Krishna Iyer J. (concurring) considered that what should be the approach of Government in litigation and observed as under:

"The judgment just delivered has my full concurrence but I feel impelled to make a few observations not on the merits but on governmental disposition to litigation, the present case being symptomatic of a serious deficiency. In this country the State is the largest litigant to-day and the huge expenditure involved makes a big draft on the public exchequer. In the context of expanding dimensions of State activity and responsibility, is it unfair to expect finer sense and sensibility in its litigation policy, the absence of which, in the present case, has led the Railway callously and cantankerously to resist an action by its own employee, a small man, by urging a mere technical plea which has been pursued right up to the summit court here and has been negatived in the judgment just pronounced. Instances of this type are legion as is evidenced by the fact that the Law Commission of India in a recent report on amendments to the Civil Procedure Code has suggested the deletion of Section 80, finding that wholesome provision hardly ever utilised by Government, and has gone further to provide a special procedure for government litigation to highlight the need for an activist policy of just settlement of claims where the State is a party. It is not right for a welfare' State like ours to be Janus-faced, and while formulating the humanist project of legal aid to the poor, contest the claims of poor employees under it pleading limitation and the like. That the tendency is chronic flows from certain observations I had made in a Kerala High Court decision which I may usefully excerpt here "The State, under our Constitution, undertakes economic activities in a vast and widening public sector and inevitably gets involved in disputes with private individuals. But it must be remembered that the State is no ordinary party trying to win a case against one of its own citizens by hook or by crook; for the State's interest is to meet honest claims, vindicate a substantial defence and never to score a technical point or overreach a weaker party to avoid a just liability or secure an unfair advantage, simply because legal devices provide such an opportunity. The State is a virtuous litigant and looks with unconcern on immoral forensic successes so that if on the merits the case is weak, government shows a willingness to settle the dispute regardless of prestige and other lesser motivations which move, private parties to fight in court. The lay-out on litigation costs and executive time by the State and its agencies is so staggering these days because of the large amount of litigation in which it is involved that a positive and wholesome policy of cutting back on the volume of law suits by the twin methods of not being tempted into forensic show-downs where a reasonable adjustment is feasible and ever offering to extinguish a pending proceeding on just terms, giving the legal mentors of government some initiative and authority in this behalf. I am not indulging in any judicial homily but only echoing the dynamic national policy on State litigation evolved at a Conference of Law Ministers of India way back in 1957. This second appeal strikes me as an instance of disregard of that policy."

21. In the case of Mundrika Prasad Singh Vs. State of Bihar, (1979) 4 SCC 701 (para-5, 6, 7), Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"5. The State of Bihar, like many other States in the country, has an enormous volume of litigation. Government litigation policy is vital for any State if resources are to be husbanded to reduce rather than increase its involvement in court proceedings. It is lamentable that despite a national litigation policy for the States having been evolved at an all-India Law Ministers' Conference way back in 1957 and despite the recommendations of the Central Law Commission to promote settlement of disputes where Government is a party what we find in actual practice is a proliferation of government cases in courts uninformed by any such policy. Indeed, in this country where government litigation constitutes a sizeable bulk of the total volume, it is important that the State should be a model litigant with accent on settlement. The Central Law Commission, recalling a Kerala decision, emphasised this aspect in 1973 and went to the extent of recommending a new provision to be read as Order 27 Rule 5B. The Commission observed:

27.9. We are of the view that there should be some provision emphasising the need for positive efforts at settlement, in suits to which the Government is a party.

27.10. With the above end in view, we recommend the insertion of the following rule :-

5-B(1) In every suit or proceeding to which the Government is a party or a public officer acting in his official capacity is a party, it shall be the duty of the Court in the first instance, in every case where it is possible to do so consistently with the nature of the circumstances of the case, to make every endeavour to assist the parties in arriving at a settlement in respect of the subject-matter of the suit.

(2) If, in any such suit or proceeding, at any stage it appears to the court that there is a reasonable possibility of a settlement between the parties, the court may adjourn the proceeding for such period as it thinks fit, to enable attempts to be made to effect such a settlement.

(3) The power conferred by Sub-rule (2) is in addition to any other power of the court to adjourn the proceedings.

6. The relevance of these wider observations is that avoidable litigation holds out money by way of fees and more fees if they are contested cases and this lures a lawyer, like any other homo economicus, to calculate income on a speculative basis, as this Government Pleader has done in hoping for a lakh of rupees.

7. We have been taken through the Bihar Government's rubs for fees of Government Pleaders in subordinate courts. Rule 115 appetises and is unrelated to the quantum or quality of work involved nor the time spent. Ad valorem calculation in fixing fees for land acquisition cases has a tendency to promote unearned income for lawyers. The petitioner here has presumably fallen victim to this proclivity. The time has come for State Governments to have a second economic look not only at litigation policy but lawyer's fees rules (like Rule 115 in the Bihar instance) especially in mass litigation involving ad valorem enormity and mechanical professionalism. Even a ceiling on income from public sector sources may be a healthy contribution to toning up the moral level of the professional system. After all, the cost of justice is the ultimate measure of the rule of law for a groaning people. Government and other public sector undertakings should not pamper and thereby inflate the system of costs. May be, this petition would not have been filed had the prospect of income without effort not been offered by Government Rules."

22. In the case of Urban Improvement Trust, Bikaner Vs. Mohan Lal, (2010) 1 SCC 512 (paras-10,11, 12), Hon'ble Supreme Court took notice of unwarranted litigation by Governments and State authorities and held as under:

"10. Unwarranted litigation by governments and statutory authorities basically stem from the two general baseless assumptions by their officers. They are:

(i) All claims against the government/statutory authorities should be viewed as illegal and should be resisted and fought up to the highest court of the land.

(ii) If taking a decision on an issue could be avoided, then it is prudent not to decide the issue and let the aggrieved party approach the Court and secures a decision.

The reluctance to take decisions, or tendency to challenge all orders against them, is not the policy of the governments or statutory authorities, but is attributable to some officers who are responsible for taking decisions and/or officers in charge of litigation. Their reluctance arises from an instinctive tendency to protect themselves against any future accusations of wrong decision making, or worse, of improper motives for any decision making. Unless their insecurity and fear is addressed, officers will continue to pass on the responsibility of decision-making to courts and Tribunals.

11. The Central Government is now attempting to deal with this issue by formulating realistic and practical norms for defending cases filed against the government and for filing appeals and revisions against adverse decisions, thereby, eliminating unnecessary litigation. But, it is not sufficient if the Central Government alone undertakes such an exercise. The State Governments and the statutory authorities, who have more litigations than the Central Government, should also make genuine efforts to eliminate unnecessary litigation. Vexatious and unnecessary litigations have been clogging the wheels of justice, for too long making it difficult for courts and Tribunals to provide easy and speedy access to justice to bona fide and needy litigants.

12. In this case, what is granted by the State Commission is the minimum relief in the facts and circumstances, that is to direct allotment of an alternative plot with a nominal compensation of Rs. 5000/- But instead of remedying the wrong, by complying with the decision of the Consumer fora, the Improvement Trust is trying to brazen out its illegal act by contending that the allottee should have been protested when it illegally laid the road in his plot. It has persisted with its unreasonable and unjust stand by indulging in unnecessary litigation by approaching the National Commission and then this Court. The Trust should sensitise its officers to serve the public rather than justify their dictatorial acts. It should avoid such an unnecessary litigation."

23. In the case of Gurgaon Gramin Bank Vs. Khajani, (2012) 8 SCC 781 (para-2), Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the approach of Government to litigate in small and trivial matters and held as under:

"2. Number of litigations in our country is on the rise, for small and trivial matters, people and sometimes Central and State Governments and their instrumentalities Banks, nationalized or private, come to courts may be due to ego clash or to save the Officers' skin. Judicial system is over-burdened, naturally causes delay in adjudication of disputes. Mediation centers opened in various parts of our country have, to some extent, eased the burden of the courts but we are still in the tunnel and the light is far away. On more than one occasion, this Court has reminded the Central Government, State Governments and other instrumentalities as well as to the various banking institutions to take earnest efforts to resolve the disputes at their end. At times, some give and take attitude should be adopted or both will sink. Unless, serious questions of law of general importance arise for consideration or a question which affects a large number of persons or the stakes are very high, courts' jurisdiction cannot be invoked for resolution of small and trivial matters. We are really disturbed by the manner in which those types of matters are being brought to courts even at the level of Supreme Court of India and this case falls in that category."

(Emphasis supplied by me)

24. In the case of Punjab State Power Corporation Ltd. Vs. Atma Singh Grewal, (2014) 13 SCC 666 (paras 8 to 14), Hon'ble Supreme Court noted the fact that courts are burdened with unnecessary litigation primarily for the reason that the Government or P.S.Us., etc. decide to file appeals even when there is absolutely no merit therein. Hon'ble Supreme Court further observed as under:

"8. It is not the first time that the Court had to express its anguish. We would like to observe that the mind set of the Government agencies/undertakings in filing unnecessarily appeals was taken note of by the Law Commission of India way back in 1973, in its 54th report. Taking cognizance of the aforesaid report of the Law Commission as well as National Litigation Policy for the States which was evolved at an All India Law Ministers Conference in the year 1972, this Court had to emphasize that there should not be unnecessary litigation or appeals. It was so done in the case of Mundrika Prasad Singh v. State of Bihar, 1979 (4) SCC 701. We would also like to reproduce the following words of wisdom expressed by Justice V.R. Krishna Iyer, who spoke for the Bench, in Dilbagh Rai Jarry v. Union of India and Ors. 1974 (3) SCC 554.:(SCC p.562, para 25).

But it must be remembered that the State is no ordinary party trying to win a case against one of its own citizens by hook or by crook; for the State's interest is to meet honest claims, vindicate a substantial defence and never to score a technical point or overreach a weaker party to avoid a just liability or secure an unfair advantage, simply because legal devices provide such an opportunity. The State is a virtuous litigant and looks with unconcern on immoral forensic successes so that if on the merits the case is weak, government shows a willingness to settle the dispute regardless of prestige and other lesser motivations which move private parties to fight in court. The lay out on litigation costs and executive time by the State and its agencies is so staggering these days because of the large amount of litigation in which it is involved that a positive and wholesome policy of cutting back on the volume of law suits by the twin methods of not being tempted into forensic show downs where a reasonable adjustment is feasible and ever offering to extinguish a pending proceeding on just terms, giving the legal mentors of government some initiative and authority in this behalf.

9. In its 126th Report (1988), the Law Commission of India adversely commented upon the reckless manner in which appeals are filed routinely. We quote hereunder the relevant passage therefrom:

"2.5. The litigation is thus sometimes engendered by failing to perform duty as if discharging a trust. Power inheres a kind of trust. The State enjoys the power to deal with public property. That power has to be discharged like a trust keeping in view the interests of the cesti que trust. Failure on this front has been more often commented upon by the court which, if it was taken in the spirit in which it was made, would have long back energised the Government and the public sector to draw up its litigation policy. When entirely frivolous litigation reaches the doorsteps of the Supreme Court, one feels exasperated by the inaction and the policy of do nothingness evidenced by blindly following litigation from court to court. Dismissing a Special Leave Petition by the State of Punjab, the Court observed that the deserved defeat of the State in the courts below demonstrates the gross indifference of the administration towards litigative diligence. The court then suggested effective remedial measures. It may be extracted: (SCC p.69, para 4)

'4. We [would] like to emphasize that Government must be made accountable by parliamentary Social audit for wasteful litigative expenditure inflicted on the community by inaction. A statutory notice of the proposed action under Section 80 CPC is intended to alert the state to negotiate a just settlement or at least have the courtesy to tell the potential outsider why the claim is being resisted. Now Section 80 has become a ritual because the administration is often unresponsive and hardly lives up to parliament's expectation in continuing Section 80 in the Code despite the Central Law Commission's recommendations for its deletion. An opportunity for setting the dispute through arbitration was thrown away by sheer inaction. A litigative policy for the State involves settlement of governmental disputes with citizens in a sense of conciliation rather than in a fighting mood. Indeed, it should be a directive on the part of the State to empower its law officer to take steps to compose disputes rather than continue them in court. We are constrained to make these observations because much of the litigation in which governments are involved adds to the case load accumulation in courts for which there is public criticism. We hope that a more responsive spirit will be brought to bear upon governmental litigation so as to avoid waste of public money and promote expeditious work in courts of cases which deserve to be attended to.

Nearly a decade has passed since the observations but not a leaf has turned, not a step has been taken, and the Law Commission is asked to deal with the problem!

2.6. A little care, a touch of humanism, a dossier of constitutional philosophy and awareness of futility of public litigation would considerably improve the situation which today is distressing. More often it is found that utterly unsustainable contentions are taken on behalf of Government and public sector undertakings.

10. Even when Courts have, time and again, lamented about the frivolous appeals filed by the Government authorities, it has no effect on the bureaucratic psyche. It is not that there is no realisation at the level of policy makers to curtail unwanted Government litigation and there are deliberations in this behalf from time to time. Few years ago only, the Central Government formulated National Litigation Policy, 2010 with the "vision/mission" to transform the Government into an efficient and responsible litigant. This policy formulated by the Central Government is based on the recognition that it was its primary responsibility to protect the rights of citizens, and to respect their fundamental rights and in the process it should become "responsible litigant". The policy even defines the expression 'responsible litigant' as under:

"Responsible litigant" means-

(i) That litigation will not be resorted to for the sake of litigating.

(ii) That false pleas and technical points will not be taken and shall be discouraged.

(iii) Ensuring that the correct facts and all relevant documents will be placed before the Court.

(iv)That nothing will be suppressed from the Court and there will not attempt to mislead any court or tribunal.

2. That Government must cease to be a compulsive litigant. The philosophy that matters should be left to the courts for ultimate decision has to be discarded. The easy approach, "Let the Court decide", must be eschewed and condemned.

3. The purpose underlying this policy is also to reduce government litigation in courts so that valuable court time would be spent in resolving other pending cases so as to achieve the goal in the national legal mission to reduce average pendency time from 15 years to 3 years. Litigators on behalf of the Government have to keep in mind the principles incorporated in the national mission for judicial reforms which includes identifying bottlenecks which the Government and its agencies may be concerned with and also removing unnecessary government cases.

Prioritisation in litigation has to be achieved with particular emphasis on welfare legislation, social reform, weaker sections and senior citizens and other categories requiring assistance must be given utmost priority."

11. This policy recognises the fact that its success will depend upon its strict implementation. Pertinently there is even a provision of accountability on the part of the officers who have to take requisite steps in this behalf. The policy also contains the provision for filing of appeals indicating as to under what circumstances appeal should be filed. In so far as service matters are concerned, this provision lays down that further proceedings will not be filed in service matters merely because the order of the Administrative Tribunal affects a number of employees. Also, appeals will not be filed to espouse the cause of one section of employees against another.

12. The aforesaid litigation policy was seen as a silver living to club unnecessary and uncalled for litigation by this Court in the matter of Urban Improvement Trust, Bikaner v. Mohan Lal 2010 (1) SCC 512 in the following manner:(SCC p. 516, para 11)

"11. The Central Government is now attempting to deal with this issue by formulating realistic and practical norms for defending cases filed against the Government and for filing appeals and revisions against adverse decisions, thereby eliminating unnecessary litigation. But it is not sufficient if the Central Government alone undertakes such an exercise. The State Governments and the statutory authorities, who have more litigations than the Central Government, should also make genuine efforts to eliminate unnecessary litigations. Vexatious and unnecessary litigations have been clogging the wheels of justice for too long, making it difficult for courts and tribunals to provide easy and speedy access to justice to bona fide and needy litigants."

13. Alas, inspite of the Government's own policy and reprimand from this Court, on numerous occasions, there is no significant positive effect on various Government officials who continue to take decision to file frivolous and vexatious appeals. It imposes unnecessary burden on the Courts. The opposite party which has succeeded in the Court below is also made to incur avoidable expenditure. Further, it causes delay in allowing the successful litigant to reap the fruits of the judgment rendered by the Court below.

14. No doubt, when a case is decided in favour of a party, the Court can award cost as well in his favour. It is stressed by this Court that such cost should be in real and compensatory terms and not merely symbolic. There can be exemplary costs as well when the appeal is completely devoid of any merit. [See Rameshwari Devi v. Nirmala Devi (2011) 8 SCC 249]. However, the moot question is as to whether imposition of costs alone will prove deterrent? We do not think so. We are of the firm opinion that imposition of cost on the State/PSU's alone is not going to make much difference as the officers taking such irresponsible decisions to file appeals are not personally affected because of the reason that cost, if imposed, comes from the government's coffers. Time has, therefore, come to take next step viz. recovery of cost from such officers who take such frivolous decisions of filing appeals, even after knowing well that these are totally vexatious and uncalled for appeals. We clarify that such an order of recovery of cost from the officer concerned be passed only in those cases where appeal is found to be ex-facie frivolous and the decision to file the appeal is also found to be palpably irrational and uncalled for."

(Emphasis supplied by me)

25. Thus, the petitioner insurance company not being an ordinary litigant and more particularly bound by the insurance contract (as briefly noted above) should not have filed the present frivolous writ petition to challenge the impugned contractually "binding order". The conduct of the petitioner in filing the present writ petition deserves to be condemned inasmuch as a frivolous writ petition has been filed to drag in litigation the respondent No.1 who is a widow and belongs to economically weaker and socially and educationally disadvantageous section of the society.

Applicability of National Litigation Policy:-

26. The petitioner being a subsidiary of the Central Government owned Corporation i.e. General Insurance Corporation of India and being State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India, must adhere to the National Litigation Policy, 2009 formulated by the Central Government. The relevant portion of the National Litigation policy is reproduced below:

*"National Litigation Policy

'Introduction

Whereas at the National consultation for strengthening the judiciay toward reducing pendency and delays held on October 24/25, 2009, the Union Minister of Law and Justice, presented resolutions which were adopted by the entire conference unanimously.

*And wherein the said resolution acknowledged the initiative undertaken by the Government of India to frame the National Litigation Policy with a view to ensure conduct of responsible litigation by the Central Government and urges every State Government to evolve similar policies.

The National Litigation Policy is as follows:

The Vision/Mission

1. The National Litigation Policy is based on the recognition that the Government and its various agencies are the pre-dominant litigants in courts and Tribunals in the country. Its aim is to transform the Government into an efficient and responsible litigant. This policy is also based on the recognition that it is the responsibility of the Government to protect the rights of citizens, to respect fundamental rights and those in charge of the conduct of the Government litigation should never forget this basic principle.

"Efficient litigant" means

Focusing on the core issues involved in the litigation and addressing them squarely.

Managing and conducting litigation in a cohesive, co-ordinated and time-bound manner.

Ensuring that good cases are won and bad cases are not needlessly persevered with.

A litigant who is represented by competent and sensitive legal persons: competent in their skills and sensitive to the facts that the Government is not, an ordinary litigant and that a litigation does not have to be won at any cost.

"Responsible litigant" means

That litigation will not be resorted to for the sake of litigating.

That false pleas and technical points will not be taken and shall be discouraged.

Ensuring that the correct facts and all relevant documents will be placed before the court.

That nothing will be suppressed from the court and there will be no attempt to mislead any court or tribunal.

That nothing will be suppressed from the court and there will be no attempt to mislead any court or tribunal.

2. The Government must cease to be a compulsive litigant. The philosophy that matters should be left to the courts for ultimate decision has to be discarded. The easy approach, "Let the court decide" must be eschewed and condemned -

3. The purpose underlying this policy is also to reduce Government litigation in courts so that valuable court time would be spent in resolving other pending cases so as to achieve the goal in the National Legal Mission to reduce the average pendency time from 15 years to 3 years. Litigators on behalf of the Government have to keep in mind the principles in corporated in the National mission for judicial reforms which includes identifying bottlenecks which the Government and its agencies may be concerned with and also removing unnecessary Government cases. Prioritisation in litigation has to be achieved with particular emphasis on welfare legislation, social reform, weaker sections and senior citizens and other categories requiring assistance must be given utmost priority."

27. The aforesaid National Litigation Policy clearly provides that the Government should be a responsible litigant and should not involve in frivolous litigation. Prioritisation in litigation has to be achieved with particular emphasis on welfare legislation, social reform, weaker sections and senior citizens and other categories requiring assistance must be given utmost priority.

28. Apart from the fact that the petitioner was bound by the impugned binding order under the terms of contract of insurance, the petitioner should also have adhered to the litigation policy and should have acted fairly and as a responsible litigant. The National Litigation Policy recognises that it is the responsibility of the Government to protect rights of citizens, to respect fundamental rights and those in-charge of the conduct of litigation should never forget this basic principle. Filing of the present writ petition shows that the petitioner has not only dis-respected the insurance contract between it and the State-Government but also acted unfairly against the rights of the claimant, i.e. respondent No.1.

Insurance Contract:-

29. In contract of insurance, rights and obligations are strictly governed by the policy of insurance, vide Deokar Export (P) Ltd. Vs. New India Assurance Co. Ltd., (2008) 14 SCC 598 (para-14). While construing the terms of a contract of insurance, the words used therein must be given paramount importance, and it is not open for the Court to add, delete or substitute any words. It is also well settled that terms of the insurance policy have to be strictly construed in order to determine the extent of the liability of the insurer. The endeavour of the Court should always be to interpret the words used in the contract in the manner that will best express the intention of the parties. The contract must be read as a whole. It is not permissible for the court to substitute the terms of the contract itself. No exceptions can be made on the ground of equity. These principles are well settled. Reference in this regard may be had to the judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Export Credit Guarantee Corporation vs M/S. Garg Sons International (2014) 1 SCC 686 (Paras-10 to 13), Industrial Promotion and Investment Corporation of Orrisa vs. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (2016) 15 SCC 315 (paras-9 to 13), General Assurance Society Ltd. vs Chandumull Jain And Anr, 1966 SC 1644 (para-11), Suraj Mal Ram Niwas Oil Mills Pvt. Ltd. Vs. United India Insurance Co. Ltd., (2010) 10 SCC 567 (paras- 23 to 26), M/S Sumitomo Heavy Industries Ltd vs Oil & Natural Gas Company, (2010) 11 SCC 296 (para-36) and Vikram Greentech (I) Ltd. & Anr. vs New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (2009) 5 SCC 599 (para-17).

30. We have extracted certain relevant portion of the insurance contract between the petitioner and the State Government. As per terms of the afore-noted contract, income certificate in case of farmers, is not required. The husband of the respondent No.1 was a farmer. That apart, even if he is assumed as labourer, yet the income of the entire family had not exceeded Rs.75,000/- as per own report of the petitioner dated 04.10.2019 and the report of the investigator of the petitioner dated 25.11.2019 as noted in the impugned order. As per terms of contract of insurance, the petitioner is bound by the order of the respondent No.3 and was also bound to make payment within the time specified failing which penalty of Rs.2,500/- per week is payable to the claimant and yet the petitioner has filed the present writ petition instead of making the payment to the respondent No.1. Thus, the present writ petition is a frivolous writ petition. Consequently, it deserves to be dismissed with cost.

31. For all the reasons stated above, the writ petition is dismissed with cost of Rs.5,000/-. The petitioner shall comply with the impugned order and shall make the payment of awarded amount and the penalty to the respondent No.1 forthwith.

Petitioner admitted to the Bachelor of Dental Surgery Course - asserts that he performed very well in the academic curriculum - petitioner wanted a re-evaluation of his marks obtained - After re-evaluation, result - "No Change' in both the papers - petitioner's grievance has already been placed in a second instance before the Examiners, who have done a re-evaluation - award not disturbed made in the first instance - petitioner asks for a further re-evaluation - seeks virtually a second re-evaluation.(Para -1,2 6)

HELD:- This matter relates to assessment of a paper relating to a specialized branch of medicine. This Court has no means to ascertain nor the requisite expertise to determine if the petitioner is right or the Examiners are wrong. In a situation like this, the Examination Authority is to be trusted for their conclusions. It would be unwise for this Court to convert itself into an expert and set about the task of reopening an Examiner's award twice done.(Para -7)

Ran Vijay Singh & ors. Vs St. of U.P. & ors., (2018) 2 SCC 357

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. The petitioner is a student of the Bachelor of Dental Surgery Course at the K.D. Dental College and Hospital, Mathura, an affiliate college of the Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar University, Agra. The petitioner was admitted to the Bachelor of Dental Surgery Course during the Academic Year 2014-15. He asserts that he has performed very well in the academic curriculum. He has appeared in the final professional examination under Roll no. 178627762009 and Enrollment no. 13572. It is his case that he was declared "Failed' in two papers, to wit, Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics (Paper-4) and Prosthodontics and Crown & Bridge (Paper-7). The petitioner says that he wanted a re-evaluation of his marks obtained in each of these papers because "he believes that his answer scripts were not properly evaluated' to borrow the words of the petitioner's assertion in paragraph no.7 of the writ petition.

2. It is also pleaded by him that looking to his past academic record, he expected much higher marks than those that have been awarded. He has also asserted in paragraph no.8 that he has secured copies of the scripts relating to the two papers in question and found the answers not to be correctly evaluated by the Examiners. He has pleaded in paragraph no.12, the details of the errors, that are subject matter of action here. It is pointed out that the petitioner applied for an online re-evaluation of the two papers, paying the requisite fee. After re-evaluation, there was a result of "No Change' in both the papers. The petitioner thereupon moved an application to the Vice Chancellor and the Registrar of the Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar University, Agra, seeking redress against the improperly done re-evaluation. No action being taken by the Vice Chancellor or the Registrar of the University, the petitioner has instituted this writ petition. He has prayed that a mandamus commanding the respondent University and the Vice Chancellor be issued to cause re-evaluation of the petitioner's answer book in the subject papers of Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics (Paper-4) and Prosthodontics and Crown & Bridge (Paper-7) of the B.D.S. Fourth Professional Examination, with a further direction that he be caused to be given correct marks after re-evaluation, within a period of time to be specified by this Court.

3. Heard Mr. Anirudh Kumar Upadhyay, learned Counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Gagan Mehta, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos.2, 3 and 4 and Mr. Sriprakash Singh, learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.1.

4. Mr. Anirudh Kumar Upadhyay, learned Counsel for the petitioner submits that it is a case of inaction on the University's part, who are a statutory body. It is their duty to see that re-evaluation once undertaken, ought to be a bona fide exercise and not merely an eyewash. He urges that the original award as well as the result of re-evaluation, are both vitiated on account of grave irregularities committed by the two sets of Examiners. The petitioner has pleaded that he has correctly solved question no.2(a) and 3(d) in the paper relating to Prosthodontics and Crown & Bridge (B) part 2 (Paper no.7). The Examiners in both instances have not awarded correct marks. It is likewise argued that the question paper in the subject of Conservative Dentistry and Endodontics (Paper no.4) carries question no.1, which has two parts and question no.3, both of which have been correctly answered by the petitioner. He has also answered question no.5 correctly. It is pleaded and argued that question nos.(I) (both parts), 3 and 5 have not led to any marks being awarded by the Examiners in error.

5. Mr. Gagan Mehta, learned Counsel appearing for the University, on the other hand, submits that re-evaluation has been undertaken once and that has led to no change. This Court cannot convert itself into an expert to sit over the judgment of the Examiners, which is expressed in their award. He also submits that there cannot be a second re-evaluation, which is not contemplated under the Rules or the Regulations applicable. Mr. Gagan Mehta has, particularly, placed reliance on the decision of the Supreme Court in Ran Vijay Singh and others vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others, (2018) 2 SCC 357. He has drawn the Court's attention to the following observations of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Ran Vijay Singh (supra):

"30. The law on the subject is therefore, quite clear and we only propose to highlight a few significant conclusions. They are:

30.1. If a statute, Rule or Regulation governing an examination permits the re-evaluation of an answer sheet or scrutiny of an answer sheet as a matter of right, then the authority conducting the examination may permit it;

30.2. If a statute, Rule or Regulation governing an examination does not permit re-evaluation or scrutiny of an answer sheet (as distinct from prohibiting it) then the court may permit re-evaluation or scrutiny only if it is demonstrated very clearly, without any "inferential process of reasoning or by a process of rationalisation" and only in rare or exceptional cases that a material error has been committed;

30.3. The court should not at all re-evaluate or scrutinise the answer sheets of a candidate--it has no expertise in the matter and academic matters are best left to academics;

30.4. The court should presume the correctness of the key answers and proceed on that assumption; and 30.5. In the event of a doubt, the benefit should go to the examination authority rather than to the candidate.

31. On our part we may add that sympathy or compassion does not play any role in the matter of directing or not directing re-evaluation of an answer sheet. If an error is committed by the examination authority, the complete body of candidates suffers. The entire examination process does not deserve to be derailed only because some candidates are disappointed or dissatisfied or perceive some injustice having been caused to them by an erroneous question or an erroneous answer. All candidates suffer equally, though some might suffer more but that cannot be helped since mathematical precision is not always possible. This Court has shown one way out of an impasse -- exclude the suspect or offending question.

32. It is rather unfortunate that despite several decisions of this Court, some of which have been discussed above, there is interference by the courts in the result of examinations. This places the examination authorities in an unenviable position where they are under scrutiny and not the candidates. Additionally, a massive and sometimes prolonged examination exercise concludes with an air of uncertainty. While there is no doubt that candidates put in a tremendous effort in preparing for an examination, it must not be forgotten that even the examination authorities put in equally great efforts to successfully conduct an examination. The enormity of the task might reveal some lapse at a later stage, but the court must consider the internal checks and balances put in place by the examination authorities before interfering with the efforts put in by the candidates who have successfully participated in the examination and the examination authorities. The present appeals are a classic example of the consequence of such interference where there is no finality to the result of the examinations even after a lapse of eight years. Apart from the examination authorities even the candidates are left wondering about the certainty or otherwise of the result of the examination -- whether they have passed or not; whether their result will be approved or disapproved by the court; whether they will get admission in a college or university or not; and whether they will get recruited or not. This unsatisfactory situation does not work to anybody's advantage and such a state of uncertainty results in confusion being worse confounded. The overall and larger impact of all this is that public interest suffers."

6. This Court has carefully considered the matter in hand. The petitioner's grievance has already been placed in a second instance before the Examiners, who have done a re-evaluation. They have not disturbed the award made in the first instance. Now, the petitioner asks for a further re-evaluation. What he seeks is virtually a second re-evaluation.

7. Learned Counsel for the petitioner has not brought to this Court's attention any regulation that may permit a second re-evaluation. That apart, re-evaluation once done, ought to bring the grievance to an end. No candidate can claim the right to a successive re-evaluation until some Examiner is persuaded to agree with the Examinee about the assessment of his own merit. This matter relates to assessment of a paper relating to a specialized branch of medicine. This Court has no means to ascertain nor the requisite expertise to determine if the petitioner is right or the Examiners are wrong. In a situation like this, the Examination Authority is to be trusted for their conclusions. It would be unwise for this Court to convert itself into an expert and set about the task of reopening an Examiner's award twice done.

8. In the result, this writ petition fails and is dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Virendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. The instant criminal appeal, under Section 374 (2) of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'Code'), has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 22.04.1996, passed by Ist Additional Sessions Judge, Unnao, in Sessions Trial No.191 of 1989, arising out of Case Crime No106 of 1988, P.S.-Achalganj, District-Unnao, whereby the appellant-Kamlesh (hereinafter referred to as appellant) has been convicted and sentenced for offence under Section 392 I.P.C. for seven years rigorous imprisonment and for offence under Section 397 I.P.C. for seven years rigorous imprisonment with further direction that both the sentences of the appellant shall run concurrently.

2. The prosecution case, in brief, is that Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1) informant, was carrier of sales money from Kannaudia Petrol Pump, situated at Azad Marg Crossing, Kanpur, to the office of the firm where he was posted. On 21.07.1988, at about 8:30 a.m. he had come to the Kannaudia Petrol Pump by scooter Super Bajaj bearing registration No.UMO 257, provided by the said firm to collect the sales money and he received Rs.21,100/- from Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier), kept it in diggie (side luggage box) of scooter and locked it. As he started the scooter to proceed towards Kanpur, three unknown persons, who were carrying with countrymade pistol and bombs, appeared there. One of them fired by his countrymade pistol with shouting that if anybody will move, he will kill all the persons, present at the spot, including informant (P.W.-1). Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier), Jagdamba Prasad Yadav (Manager), Sukhram (Betel shopkeeper) (P.W.-3), Pramod Kumar Singh (Truck Driver) became afraid and maintained silence due to fear. One of the said person (criminal) started the scooter of the informant and rest persons (other criminals) rode on rear seat of the scooter and fled away with cash, kept in scooter, towards Lucknow.

3. Written information of the occurrence (Ext.-Ka-1), prepared by Ghanshyam Srivastava (cashier) on the dication of Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1), was filed at P.S.-Achalganj on 21.07.1988, which was entered in G.D. report (Ext.-Ka-4) by Head Constable Purushotam Narayan Tandon (P.W.-7), who also prepared Chik F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-3) and registered the case as case crime No.106 of 1988 under Sections 392 and 397 I.P.C. against three unknown persons. Investigation of the case was entrusted to S.I. S. B. Singh (P.W.-11), who reached at the place of occurrence, took into his custody blank cartridges, prepared a recovery memo (Ext.-Ka-2) and also prepared site plan (Ext.-ka-8). During investigation, he also recovered the scooter of the informant, lying in jungle in damaged condition, prepared recovery memo, handed over the scooter to the informant (P.W.-1) and also prepared site plan (Ext.-Ka-11) of recovery of said scooter. During investigation, he was in training from 06.09.1988 to 14.09.1988 and in the meantime, the appellant-Kamlesh along with co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) were arrested on 07.09.1988 and they were put in Identification Parade Test (T.I.P.) on 22.09.1988.

4. After conclusion of investigation, S.I., S. B. Singh (P.W.11) filed charge sheet (Ext.-Ka-14) against Hari Prasad (since acquitted), Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) and the appellant-Kamlesh before the concerned Magistrate, who took the cognizance of the offence and since the offence was exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, after providing the copy of relevant police papers as required under Section 207 of the Code, committed the case to the Court of Sessions, Unnao for trial.

5. The learned trial Court framed charges for the offence under Sections 392 & 397 I.P.C against the appellant and other co-accused to which they denied and claimed for trial.

6. The prosecution, in order to prove its case, examined Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1), Ram Sajivan (P.W.-2), Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3), Ikramool Haque (P.W.-4), Head Constable-Purushotam Naraian Tandon (P.W.-5), Gaya Bux Singh @ Gyari (P.W.-6), Sri Janardhan Prasad (P.W.-7), Constable-Hari Shankar (P.W.-8), Constable-R. K. Sachan (P.W.-9), Constable-Chandra Bhan Singh (P.W.10) and S. I., S. B. Singh (P.W.-11).

7. During trial, co-accused Krishna Kumar had died and the trial against him was abated by the trial Court. The statement of appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Hari Prasad (since acquitted) were recorded under Section 313 of the Code wherein they denied the prosecution story and alleged that they were falsely implicated. The appellant-Kamlesh further stated that he was caught by police of Police Station-Achalganj two days prior to his arrest and after his photography, he was also shown to the witnesses.

8. The appellant, to controvert the prosecution story, had filed certified copy of judgment dated 26.09.1989, passed in Criminal Case No.1667A of 1989 (State vs. Kamlesh), P.S.-Achalganj, District-Unnao, whereby he was acquitted by concerned Magistrate, from the offence under Section 25 of Arms Act.

9. After conclusion of the trial, learned trial Court acquitted the co-accused-Hari Prasad, but convicted the appellant-Kamlesh as above by the impugned judgment and order. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment and order, the appellant has preferred this appeal.

10. Heard Sri Mohd. Mustafa, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Hansraj Verma, learned A.G.A. for the State.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the appellant is innocent and has been falsely implicated by the concerned police. Learned counsel further submitted that the appellant is neither named in the F.I.R. nor anything was recovered from his possession. Learned counsel further submitted that no special characteristics or identification marks of any accused person, involved in the said occurrence were either mentioned in the F.I.R. or stated by the prosecution witnesses. Learned counsel further submitted that according to prosecution witnesses, one of co-accused-Hari Prasad was employee of Kannaudia Petrol Pump firm but his name was neither shown in the F.I.R. nor stated by any witness. Learned counsel further submitted that arrest of the appellant as well as test identification parade are highly doubtful as the arrest of the appellant-Kamlesh and recovery of countrymade pistol have already been held doubtful and appellant has been acquitted. Learned counsel further submitted that the trial Court, without considering the material available on record, acquitted one co-accused-Hari Prasad and convicted the appellant-Kamlesh only on the basis of doubtful evidence of Identification Test, which is against settled provision of criminal jurisprudence and the impugned judgment is liable to be set aside.

12. Per contra, learned A.G.A., vehemently opposing the submission made by learned counsel for the appellant, submitted that the appellant has been identified in T.I.P. and also before the trial Court by the prosecution witnesses. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the appellant was kept in baparda from the date of his arrest till the identification proceeding and there was no chance of the photography of the appellant as well as showing him to prosecution witnesses. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the statement of prosecution witnesses is reliable and trustworthy ; the impugned judgment and order requires no interference and the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

13. I have considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for both the parties and perused the record.

14. Admittedly, the appellant is not named in the F.I.R., although, the occurrence took place in broad day light i.e. 21.07.1988 at 8:30 a.m. and the prosecution witnesses had full opportunity to see and identify the accused persons including the appellant, but no identification marks of any accused was mentioned in the F.I.R. In the F.I.R., lodged by P.W.-1, it has been mentioned that he (P.W.-1) and all witnesses, present on the sport, had seen properly the accused persons and can identify if they would come before him.

15. Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1) has stated that he was employee of firm of Kannaudia Petrol Pump and used to come by scooter Super Bajaj bearing registration No.UMO 257, provided by the firm. Stating that on 21.07.1988 at about 8:30 a.m., he had come on petrol pump to collect the sales money and parked his scooter near the northern door of the cash counter, he further stated that he received Rs.21,100/- from Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier) and kept it in diggie (side luggage box) of scooter along with relevant papers and also locked it. Stating that as he started his scooter, three unknown persons, carrying countrymade pistol and bomb (hathgola), came there and one of them made air fire and threatened him (P.W.-1) not to move from his place, otherwise, they would kill him, he further stated that Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier), Jagdamba Prasad Yadav (Manager), Ram Sajivan (P.W.-2) Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3), Pramod Kumar Singh (Truck Driver) and so many people, present on the spot, became afraid. He further stated that one of the accused started the scooter and rest two accused rode on rear seat of the scooter. Stating further that at starting point, the scooter was unbalanced but later on, the accused persons fled away on that scooter with looted money and relevant papers, he further stated that they could not chased the accused persons due to fear but Pramod Kumar Singh (Truck driver) chased them by truck and returned thereafter. Stating further that he had seen the faces of all accused persons to whom he did not know earlier, he further stated that he got report (Ext.-Ka-1) written by Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier) and lodged the same at P.S.-Achalganj at about 10:00 a.m. Stating further that he had also attended T.I.P. at Jail, Unnao, he pointed out the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) and said that he had identified them in District Jail, Unnao. Stating further that he had seen the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) at the time of occurrence, who committed the loot of sales money and thereafter, identified them in T.I.P., he further stated that he had not seen them in between and also did not know them prior to the occurrence.

16. Ram Sajivan (P.W.-2) has stated that he was posted at Kannaudia Petrol Pump since 7-8 years and was present at the time of occurrence. Corroborating the prosecution story as stated by Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1), he also stated that at the time of occurrence, Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier), Jagdamba Prasad Yadav (Manager), Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3) and Pramod Kumar Singh (Truck Driver) were present at the place of occurrence when the accused persons, carrying the countrymade pistol and bomb (hathgola), looted the sales money and fled away with scooter Super Bajaj bearing registration No.UMO 257 from there and they could not chase the accused persons due to fear ; Pramod Kumar Singh (Truck Driver) chased them but returned thereafter. Stating further that he had seen the faces of the accused persons, who were unknown to him, he further stated that he had attended T.I.P. in Unnao Jail and identified the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) to whom he had not seen after the occurrence and before T.I.P.. He further stated that the police, during investigation, recovered blank cartridges and prepared recovery memo (Ext.-ka-2).

17. Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3) has stated that at the time of occurrence, his betel shop was situated near Kannaudia Petrol Pump prior to 12-13 years of the occurrence and he knew the employees of said petrol pump. Corroborating the prosecution story and stating that Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1) took Rs.21,100/- (sales money) from Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier) and kept it in diggie (side luggage box) of scooter, he further stated that as Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1) started the scooter, he fell down and Ramashrey also fell down and thereafter they balanced the scooter and fled away to northern side with all accused persons. He further stated that the accused persons, carrying countrymade pistol and bomb (hathgola), threatened them not to move from their place, Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier), Jagdamba Prasad Yadav (Manager), Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1), Ram Sajivan (P.W.-2), Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3) and Pramod Kumar Singh (Truck Driver) were also present on the spot and Pramod Kumar Singh chased the accused persons but returned thereafter. Pointing out the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased), he further stated that he had seen the faces of all three accused persons to whom he did not know earlier but had identified the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) in T.I.P. at Unnao Jail.

18. Ikramool Haque (P.W.-4), tyre tube repairing mechanic, has stated that his repairing shop was situated near the Kannaudia Petrol Pump since 12-13 years prior to the occurrence. He further stated that at the time of occurrence, he was taking bath and on hearing the gun sound, he reached at the place of occurrence and saw that the accused persons were fleeing away with scooter from the place of occurrence. Stating that two old cycles were parked near by his shop and co-accused, Hari Prasad (since acquitted), took away one of cycle just after the occurrence, he further stated that since Hari Prasad was employee of the said petrol pump, one and half year prior to the occurrence, he knew him very well. He also stated that another cycle was taken into custody by Investigating Officer and recovery memo (Ext.-Ka-2) was prepared by him.

19. Purushotam Narain Tandon (P.W.-5) has stated that he had preapred Chik-F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-3) and G.D. report (Ext.-Ka-4).

20. Gaya Bux Singh @ Gyari (P.W.-6) has stated that on 29.07.1988, co-accused, Hari Prasad (since acquitted) had met with him and said that Ramashrey had enquired him regarding the daily transaction of Kannaudia Petrol Pump. He further stated that co-accused, Hari Prasad (since acquitted) also told him that he had accompanied Ramashrey to petrol pump at the time of occurrence and parked his cycle behind the truck and when Ramashrey and other accused persons, after looting the sales money, fled away with scooter, co-accused, Hari Prasad (since acquitted) also fled away with his cycle.

21. Janardhan Prasad (P.W.-7), retired Special Executive Magistrate, has stated that he had conducted T.I.P. of appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased). He further stated that Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1), Ram Sajivan (P.W.-2) and Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3) had identified the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased), Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier) had identified co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) and Jagdamba Prasad Yadav (Manager) had identified the appellant-Kamlesh. Stating that he had prepared identification memo (Ext.-Ka-5), he further stated that the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) were identified by four persons each.

22. Constable Hari Shankar (P.W.-8) has stated that on 07.09.1988, he was posted as constable at P.S.-Achalganj. He further stated that on that day, S.H.O., P. K. Mishra, S.I., J. P. Singh along with other police personnel came at police station with the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) in baparda and put them in lock up. He further stated that he was on pahra (guard) duty from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., he had not allowed any person to see the said arrestees. Verifying the relevant G.D. (Ext.-Ka-6), he further stated that he had handed over charge to one Constable Chandra Bhan Singh (P.W.-10). Stating that on 08.09.1988, he produced the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) before concerned Magistrate in baparda and thereafter, carried them to jail in baparda, and verifying the relevant G.D. (Ext.-Ka-7) of 08.09.1988, he further stated that during the period of journey from police station lock up to jail, no person was given opportunity to see the said arrestees.

23. Constable R. K. Sachan (P.W.-9) has stated that on 07.09.1988, he was posted at P.S.-Achalganj, where the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) were detained in lock up. Stating that he was on pahra (Guard) duty from 12:00 a.m. to 3:00 a.m. in the night and thereafter, handed over the charge to Constable, Hari Shankar (P.W.-8), he further stated that during that period, he had not allowed to any person to see the said accused persons.

24. Chandra Bhan Singh (P.W.-10) has stated that on 07.09.1988, he was posted at P.S.-Achalganj and took charge (pahra) from Constable-Hari Shankar (P.W.-8) and when he was on pahra

(Guard) duty from 9:00 p.m. to 12:00 a.m. (night), he had not allowed to any one to see the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased), who were detained as baparda in lock up.

25. S.I., S. B. Singh (P.W.-11) has stated that on 21.07.1988, he was posted at P.S.-Achalganj and was deputed as Investigating Officer of Case Crime No.106 of 1988. He further stated that during investigation, he recorded the statement of witnesses, inspected the place of occurrence and prepared site plan (Ext.-Ka-8). Stating that he also recovered blank cartridges from the place of occurrence and prepared recovery memo (Ext.-Ka-2), he further stated that he also recovered a scooter, used in the occurrence, in damaged condition, prepared a recovery memo (Ext.-ka-10) and site plan (Ext.-ka-11) and handed over the scooter to the informant (P.W.-1). He further stated that during investigation, on 22.09.1988, he also recorded the statement of S.H.O., P. K. Mishra, Constables-Bhagwati Prasad, Moti Lal and Lal Mohammad and on 29.09.1988, statement of S.I., J. P. Singh, Constable-Ramashrey and Constable-Umanath. Stating that from 06.09.1988 to 14.09.1988, he was in training and investigation was carried by S.I., S. N. Singh, he further stated that after investigation, he had submitted charge sheet (Ext.-Ka-12) against the appellant-Kamlesh and other co-accused.

26. It is settled principal of law that if the accused were not known to the prosecution witnesses and prosecution case is based only on the identification of the accused (T.I.P.) or on the identification produced before the Court, the prosecution must prove that the accused were not known to the prosecution witnesses prior to the occurrence and they had sufficient opportunity to see the special characteristics as well as identification marks on the person of the accused, committing the crime including identification marks on their faces. In addition to above, the prosecution also has to produce a link evidence to rule out of all the possibilities of opportunity of seeing the accused persons by the prosecution witnesses. Further, It is also settled principle of criminal jurisprudence that identification of accused by the witnesses before the Court is substantive piece of evidence whereas evidence of TIP is very weak evidence,it has only the corroboratory value and where the offenders were unknown to the witnesses and the prosecution case is based only on the evidence of identification, prosecution has to prove that prosecution witnesses had proper and sufficient opportunity to see and identify the respondents and they had properly seen and identified them.

27. In the case of Wakil Singh vs. State of Bihar, AIR. 1981 S.C.1392, where judgment and order of acquittal, passed by trial Court as the evidence of identification was doubtful, was reversed in appeal by the High Court in appeal, Hon'ble Supreme Court, setting aside the judgment of the High Court, has held as under :

"2. In the instant case we may mention that none of the witnesses in their earlier statements or in oral evidence gave any description of the dacoits whom they have alleged to have identified in the dacoity, nor did the witnesses give any identification marks viz., stature of the accused or whether they were fat or thin or of a fair colour or of black colour*. In absence of any such description, it will be impossible for us to convict any accused on* *the basis of a single identification, in which case the reasonable possibility of mistake in identification could not be excluded. For these reasons, therefore, the trial Court was right in not relying on the evidence of witnesses and not convicting the accused who are identified by only one witness, apart from the reasons that were given by the trial Court. The High Court, however has chosen to rely on the evidence of a single witness, completely over-looking the facts and circumstances mentioned above. The High Court also ignored the fact that the identification was made at the T.I. parade about 3 1/2 months after the dacoity and in view of such a long lapse of time it is not possible for any human being to remember, the features of the accused and he is, therefore, very likely to commit mistakes. In these circumstances unless the evidence is absolutely clear, it would be unsafe to convict an accused for such a serious offence on the testimony of a single witness."(Emphasis supplied)

28. The object of TIP is to find out whether the suspected offender arrested by police during investigation is real culprit or not. Evidence of TIP can be held as reliable and trustworthy only where the the suspects were neither shown to the witnesses nor the witnesses had an opportunity to see them prior to TIP and the proceeding of TIP is not irregular. Thus if evidence of TIP is shaky and doubt due to aforesaid reason, the evidence of identification before the court can not be relied upon.

29. In Shaikh Umar Shaikh and another v. State of Maharashtra 1998 SCC (Crl.) 1276, wherein the trial Court ,after rejecting the evidence of identification parade on the ground that suspects were shown the witnesses prior to identification parade, relied on the evidence of identification before it and convicted the appellant, Hon'ble Supreme Court while allowing the appeal has held as under :

"The Designated Court after having rejected the evidence of identification parade on the ground that the suspects were possible shown to the witnesses, relied upon the evidence of identification of the accused in the Court by the two witnesses and on that evidence recorded conviction against the appellants. No doubt, the evidence of identification parade is not a substantive evidence, but its utility is for purpose of corroboration. In other words, it is utilised for corroboration of the sworn testimony of witnesses in Court as to the identity of the accused who are strangers to them. The real and substantive evidence of the identity of the accused comes when witnesses give statement in the Court, identifying the accused. It is true that in the present case, PW-2 and PW-11 identified the two accused who are the appellants before us in the Court. But, the question arises; what value could be attached to the evidence of identity of accused by the witnesses in the Court when the accused were possibly shown to the witnesses before the identification parade in the police station. The Designated Court has already recorded a finding that there was strong possibility that the suspects were shown to the witnesses. Under such circumstances, when the accused were already shown to the witnesses, their identification in the Court by the witnesses was meaningless. The statement of witnesses in the Court identifying the accused in the Court lost all its value and could not be made basis for recording conviction against the accused. The reliance of evidence of identification of the accused in the Court by *PW-2 and PW-11 by the Designated Court, was an erroneous way of dealing with the evidence of identification of the accused in the Court by the two eye-witnesses and had caused failure of justice. Since conviction of the appellants have been recorded by the Designated Court on wholly unreliable evidence, the same deserves to be set aside."(Emphasis supplied)

30. Now, coming to the facts of this case, in F.I.R., it has been specifically mentioned that the said scooter, which was being used by Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1), was also used by the accused persons including appellant-Kamlesh for fleeing away from the place of occurrence, and was in working condition. Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1), in examination-in-chief, had not stated that the said scooter was recovered by the Investigating Officer in his presence or on the recovery memo prepared by I.O., he had put his signature. He had not stated that the said scooter was handed over to him by the I.O. (P.W.-11) whereas P.W.-11 had stated that the said scooter, lying in jungle in damaged condition, was recovered by him. P.W.-11 had specifically stated that after preparing the recovery memo of said scooter (Ext.-Ka-10), he had handed over it to the informant. ("Mukadma se sambandhit scooter jungle me khada mila jise kabje me liya | kharab dasha me tha | supurd wadi kiya |")

31. In addition to above, the prosecution has also not produced the Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier), Jagdamba Prasad Yadav (Manager) and Pramod Kumar Singh (Truck Driver). These witnesses were very important for the prosecution story because Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier) was witness of fact, who can depose as to whether he had given Rs.21,100/- to Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1) or not. Similarly, Jagdamba Prasad Yadav (Manager), who was responsible for whole transaction of petrol pump and Pramod Kumar Singh (Truck Driver), who had not only seen the occurrence but also chased the accused persons. Prosecution has not placed any explanation or justification as to why it withhold the said important witnesses. Non producing of the said important witnesses creates a doubt in the prosecution story.

32. Further, according to prosecution story, the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) were arrested on 07.09.1988 at about 14:45 p.m. by S.H.O., P. K. Mishra and S.I., J. B. Singh and were brought at police station-Achalganj at about 8:00 p.m. on same day. The prosecution has produced Constable-Hari Shankar (P.W.-8), Constable-R. K. Sachan (P.W.-9) and Constable-Chandra Bhan Singh (P.W.10), who were on pahra (guard) duty at P.S.-Achalganj and had deposed that they had not allowed to any person to see the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) but the prosecution had failed to produce the S.H.O., P. K. Mishra and S.I., J. B. Singh and other police personnel, who had arrested the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) on 07.09.1988 at about 14:45 p.m. and in whose custody, they were kept for more than six hours, to prove that the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) were not shown to any person during that period. Failure of the prosecution to produce these police personnels further creates a doubt in the prosecution story because there may be possibility that the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) were shown to the witnesses.

33. Further, in addition to above, in F.I.R., no identification marks or special characteristics of any accused have been mentioned by Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1) and none of the prosecution witnesses has stated that he had seen any special characteristics or appearance of any accused or any identification marks of their faces. Sakur Ahmad (P.W.-1), in cross-examination, has specifically stated that after firing, no one dared to see towards any of the accused and when accused persons had fled away from the place of occurrence, Ghanshyam Srivastava (Cashier) and Jagdamba Prasad (P.W.-7) came out from the cabin. (fire hone par kisi ki badmasho ki aur dekhne ki bhi himmat kisi ki bhi nahi hui jab badmash chale gaye tab ghanshyam va jagdamba cabin se nikle.) Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3), in cross-examination, has admitted that at the time of occurrence, he was behind the boundary wall which was six feets in height. Furthermore, from perusal of T.I.P. report (Ext.-Ka-5), it appears that there were 7-8 identification marks on the faces of the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) and Janardhan Prasad (P.W.-7) has stated that he had pasted paper-sticker (kagaj ki chippi) on each identification marks of accused persons but Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3), in his cross-examination, has specifically stated that no paper-sticker was pasted on the faces of the accused persons at the time of T.I.P. (shinakht ke samay mulzim ke chehre par koi chippi nahi thi.). Thus, in view of the above, where the appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) were having sufficient identification marks on their faces but none of the identification marks and their special characteristics were either mentioned in the F.I.R. or stated by the prosecution witnesses and in view of statement of Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3) that identification marks of appellant-Kamlesh and co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) were not concealed, the prosecution story becomes further doubtful.

34. Furthermore, appellant-Kamlesh, who was arrested with other co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) on 07.09.1988 at 14:45 p.m. with countrymade pistol and was also put on trial for offence under Section 25 of Arms Act but he was acquitted for the said offence by concerned Magistrate on 26.09.1989. In addition to above, no incriminating articles pertaining to this case i.e. looted properties were recovered from their possession. Non recovery of incriminating articles pertaining to this case and acquittal of the appellant-Kamlesh from the offence under Section 25 of Arms Act, further creates doubt in the prosecution version regarding his arrest on 07.09.1988 and also makes the prosecution story doubtful.

35. In Mohd. Sajjad @ Raju @ Salim vs. State of West Bengal, AIR 2017 SC 642, Hon'ble Supreme Court, relying on the judgment passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Lal Singh and others vs. State of U.P., (2003) 12 SCC 554, Subash and Shiv Shankar vs. State of U.P., (1987) 3 SCC 331 and Musheer Khan @ Badshah Khan and another vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2010) 2 SCC 748, expressing its concerned of delay on conducting the identification proceeding (T.I.P.) after arresting the accused persons, has held as under :

"In the instant case none of the witnesses had disclosed any features for identification which would lend some corroboration. The identification parade itself was held 25 days after the arrest. Their chance meeting was also in the night without there being any special occasion for them to notice the features of any of the accused which would then register in their minds so as to enable them to identify them on a future date. The chance meeting was also for few minutes. In the circumstances, in our considered view such identification simpliciter cannot form the basis or be taken as the fulcrum for the entire case of prosecution. The suspicion expressed by PW 8 Saraswati Singh was also not enough to record the finding of guilt against the appellant. We therefore grant benefit of doubt to the appellant and hold that the prosecution has failed to establish its case against the appellant."

36. Coming to the present case again, the appellant-Kamlesh was arrested on 07.09.1988 and was produced before the concerned Magistrate on 08.09.1988 but his identification proceeding along with co-accused-Krishna Kumar @ Munsi (since deceased) was conducted on 22.09.1988. The prosecution had not produced any explanation as to why identification proceeding was conducted after delay of 15 days. It has also not produced any evidence whether it (T.I.P.) was conducted after second remand of accused persons under Section 167 of the Code or during first remand of accused persons. Causing delay in holding T.I.P further creates doubt in the prosecution story. In addition to above, according to Gaya Bux Singh @ Gyari (P.W.-6), co-accused-Hari Prasad (since acquitted) had made before him extra judicial confession that one Ramashrey had come to him with two persons and had made enquiry regarding the cash of petrol pump to whom he (Hari Prasad) told everything ; he (Hari Prasad) also confessed that he (Hari Prasad) went with the said Ramashrey at the place of occurrence and was present behind the truck and he (Hari Prasad) further confessed that as Ramashrey and other co-accused looted the sales money and fled away from the place of occurrence with the said scooter, he (Hari Prasad) escaped there from by his cycle. Sukhram Chaurasia (P.W.-3) has also stated that one Ramashrey fell down at the time of occurrence. Thus, the presence of Ramashrey, at the time of occurrence, and his involvement have been alleged by these witnesses, but Investigating Officer had exonerated him and he was not placed in trial whereas the appellant-Kamlesh, who was neither named in the F.I.R. nor named by any witnesses and whose involvement in the said occurrence is doubtful, has been convicted in this case.

37. In the light of above discussion, I am of the considered opinion that the prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. Learned trial Court, without considering the aforesaid fact of the prosecution story, passed the impugned judgment and order in cursory manner. The impugned judgment and order passed by trial Court is liable to be set aside and the appellant is entitled to be acquitted.

38. I am, therefore, unable to uphold the conviction and sentence of the appellant. The impugned judgment and order, passed by the Trial Court, is accordingly set aside. The appellant is acquitted. Consequently appeal is allowed.

39. The appellant is on bail, his bail bond is cancelled and sureties are discharged.

40. Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of the Code, appellant is hereby directed forthwith to furnish a personal bond of a sum of Rs.20,000/- each and two reliable sureties each of the like amount before the trial Court, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against this judgment or for grant of leave, appellant on receipt of notice thereof, shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

41. A copy of this judgment along with lower court record be sent to Trial Court by FAX for immediate compliance.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 326-A - Conviction- Sentence of ten years rigorous imprisonment with fine- Appeal pressed only on the quantum of sentence.

Quantum of Sentence- "Proper Sentence"- While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the principle of proportionately. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically. The fundamental purpose of imposition of sentence is based on the principle that the accused must realize that the crime committed by him has not only created a dent in the life of the victim but also a concavity in the social fabric.Criminal jurisprudence in our country is reformative and corrective and not retributive.

The question of awarding proper sentence is based upon the doctrine of proportionality whereby sentence should be commensurate to the gravity of the offence, the impact upon the victim and the society at large and should be reformative and corrective instead of retributive.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Sections 326-A,326-B- Keeping in view the opinion of the Doctor that the injuries were not grievous or dangerous to life and body of the injured was not deformed or maimed. This Court, therefore, considers it a fit case to alter the conviction and sentence of appellant awarded under Section 326-A I.P.C. to Section 326-B I.P.C. This Court, therefore, considers to impose six years imprisonment to the accused and a fine of Rs. 5000 and in default of payment of fine the accused will have to serve out three months imprisonment.

As the act of the accused had not resulted in any permanent or partial damage or deformity to the victim, who is his wife, instead of Section 326-A of the IPC, the offence u/s 326-B of the IPC is made out. Accordingly, conviction altered to Section 326-A, IPC and sentence modified to 6 years with fine. (Para 10, 11, 13, 14, 16)

12. Ravada Sasikala Vs St. of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Singh, J.)

1. This criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 20.2.2016 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Nagina, district-Bijnor in S.T. No. 422 of 2015 (State vs. Furkan Ahmad), arising out of Case Crime no. 356 of 2013, under Sections 326A I.P.C., P.S. Kotwali Dehat, district-Bijnor, convicting and sentencing the appellant under Section 326-A I.P.C. for 10 years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.15,000/- and in case of default of payment of fine, he shall further undergo six months imprisonment.

2. The brief facts of this case are that the father of the complainant is a Rickshaw puller in Delhi. On 21.12.2013, the present accused who is the father of the complainant came back to his house at Islampur Bishnoiwala from Delhi and started quarreling with his wife Meena, aged about 50 years and thereafter went out from the house. On 22.12.2013 at about 5:00 O'clock in the morning when mother of the complainant had gone to the toilet to attend the call of nature, father of the complainant, who was already hiding there, poured acid on her mother, as a result of which she sustained serious burn injuries on her head, face and other parts of the body. Upon hearing the hue and cry, the complainant reached at the spot, then the accused-appellant fled away from the spot. The complainant had rushed her mother to the hospital in Ambulance 108.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that offence under Section 326-A I.P.C. is not made out against the accused-appellant as the victim has not received any fatal injuries on her person. Neither there was any permanent/ partial damage nor there was any deformity on the person of the victim. The victim was having superficial burn injuries on her face and back. The Doctor has opined that the injuries were caused by some chemical and the same were not grievous or dangerous to life and the conviction and sentence imposed under Section 326-A I.P.C. is not in consonance with the medical evidence, at the most offences can go upto the limit of under Section 326-B I.P.C.

4. Learned counsel further submits that the accused-appellant is the only bread earning member in the family. He further submits that the appellant is in jail since 17.11.2014 and the impugned order of conviction and sentence was passed on 20.02.2016, thus, by now, the accused appellant has been languishing in jail for more than six years. He lastly submits that on the question of legality of conviction he is not pressing this appeal and only pressing on the quantum of sentence and he has prayed that lenient view be taken considering the condition of family of the present accused.

5. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of injured Meena submits that the accused is the husband of the injured, and he is in jail since 17.11.2014 and the accused is now regretting for the acid injury caused by him to his wife and the victim is staying alone at her home, if the accused is released, then the victim will not feel any problem to live with him.

6. I have perused the entire material available on record and the evidence as well as judgment of the trial court. The learned counsel for the accused-appellant does not want to press the appeal on its merit and requests to take a lenient view of the matter.

7. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, AIR 1977 SC 1926, explaining rehabilitary & reformative aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization.Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

8. In Sham Sunder vs Puran, (1990) 4 SCC 731, where the high court reduced the sentence for the offence under section 304 part I into undergone, the supreme court opined that the sentence needs to be enhanced being inadequate. It was held:

"The court in fixing the punishment for any particular crime should take into consideration the nature of offence, the circumstances in which it was committed, the degree of deliberation shown by the offender. The measure of punishment should be proportionate to the gravity of offence."

9. In State of MP vs Najab Khan, (2013) 9 SCC 509, the high court, while upholding conviction, reduced the sentence of 3 years by already undergone which was only 15 days. The supreme court restored the sentence awarded by the trial court. Referring the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP (2010) 12 SCC 532, Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, (2012) 8 SCC 734, the court observed as follows:-

"In operating the sentencing system, law should adopt the corrective machinery or the deterrence based on factual matrix. The facts and given circumstances in each case, the nature of the crime, the manner in which it was planned and committed, the motive for commission of the crime, the conduct of the accused, the nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into the area of consideration. We also reiterate that undue sympathy to impose inadequate sentence would do more harm to the justice dispensation system to undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. The courts must not only keep in view the rights of victim of the crime but also the society at large while considering the imposition of appropriate punishment."

10. Earlier, "Proper Sentence" was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP (2004) 7 SCC 257 by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the principle of proportionately. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

11. In subsequent decisions, the supreme court has laid emphasis on proportional sentencing by affirming the doctrine of proportionality. In Shyam Narain vs State (NCT of delhi), (2013) 7 SCC 77, it was pointed out that sentencing for any offence has a social goal. Sentence is to be imposed with regard being had to the nature of the offence and the manner in which the offence has been committed. The fundamental purpose of imposition of sentence is based on the principle that the accused must realize that the crime committed by him has not only created a dent in the life of the victim but also a concavity in the social fabric. The purpose of just punishment is that the society may not suffer again by such crime. The principle of proportionality between the crime committed and the penalty imposed are to be kept in mind. The impact on the society as a whole has to be seen. Similar view has been expressed in Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, (2014) 7 SCC 323 , State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, (2015) 3 SCC 441, and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, (2016) 1 SCC 463.

12. In Kokaiyabai Yadav vs State of Chhattisgarh(2017) 13 SCC 449, it has been observed that reforming criminals who understand their wrongdoing, are able to comprehend their acts,have grown and nartured into citizens with a desire to live a fruitful life in the outside world, have the capacity of humanising the world.

13. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP (2010) 12 SCC 532, Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, (2012) 8 SCC 734, Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, (2014) 7 SCC 323 , State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, (2015) 3 SCC 441, and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, (2016) 1 SCC 463 and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformative and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformative approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

14. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformative and corrective and not retributive. This Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

15. Since the learned counsel for appellant has not pressed the appeal on merits, however, this Court after perusal of the entire evidence on record and judgment of the learned Trial Court considers that the appeal is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed. Hence, the conviction of the appellant is upheld.

16. After considering the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the appellant, considering the facts and circumstance of the case and specially keeping in view the opinion of the Doctor that the injuries were not grievous or dangerous to life and body of the injured was not deformed or maimed. This Court, therefore, considers it a fit case to alter the conviction and sentence of appellant awarded under Section 326-A I.P.C. to Section 326-B I.P.C.

17. On the question of sentence this Court after considering the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties, considering the facts and circumstance of the case and specially keeping in view the opinion of the Doctor that the injuries were not grievous or dangerous to life. This Court, therefore, considers to impose six years imprisonment to the accused and a fine of Rs. 5000 and in default of payment of fine the accused will have to serve out three months imprisonment.

18. Accordingly, the conviction is upheld. The appeal is partly allowed with the modification of the sentence as aforesaid. The appellant be released from the jail on deposit of the fine as the accused had served more than six years in prison.

19. Office is directed to transmit the lower court record along with a copy of this judgment to the learned court below for information and necessary compliance as warranted.

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 6- Res Gestae- Admissibility of Evidence- Accused was also identified by her during her examination before the court and she further stated that accused Pawan Kumar Mishra present in the court had committed rape to her.- PW-3 - She also during her examination corroborated the statement of victim.- PW-1 Virendra Kumar Agnihotri, the father of the victim is also the informant also corroborated the statement of victim in regard to occurrence as was told by victim to her parents respectively- The statement of PW-3 and PW-1 who are parents of the victim though are not the eye-witness, yet their evidence is admissible under Section 6 of the Evidence Act. which corroborates the substantive evidence of the testimony of PW-2 .- The conviction of the accused for the charge under section 376 and 506 I.P.C., is proved beyond the reasonable doubt and the same is affirmed in view of the appreciation of the evidence.

Where the testimony of the witnesses corroborates the substantive evidence and form a part of the same transaction, then such evidence would be admissible.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 376- Section 506- Quantum of sentence- The objective of criminal law in imposing appropriate sentence must be judged commensurate with nature of gravity of the crime and the manner in which the crime is committed. The twin objective of sentencing policy is deterrence or correction depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case to meet the ends of justice. The court should take into consideration the nature of the offence, gravity of the crime and other attending circumstances. The offence of rape is a social stigma and rape with a tender age of child is very heinous crime than that of other adult female.

Settled law that sentence is awarded on the considerations of the gravity of the offence, manner of its commission and its impact on the society. In the facts of the case, as the offence involves the rape of a minor, hence no interference in the quantum of sentence awarded by the trial court is warranted. (Para 17, 20, 22, 27, 31, 32)

Criminal appeal accordingly rejected. (E-2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Chand, J.)

1. The instant Criminal Appeal has been preferred on behalf of the appellant-convict Pawan Kumar Mishra against the State of U.P., against the judgment and order dated 18.2.2006 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 3, Fatehpur in Sessions Trial No. 251 of 2005 (State Vs. Pawan Kumar Mishra) arising out of Case Crime No. 75 of 2004 under Sections 376 and 506 I.P.C., P.S. Jafarganj, District Fatehpur whereby the appellant had been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 10,000/- was also ordered to undergo further imprisonment of two years in default of payment of fine and further convicted and sentenced for the offence under section 506 I.P.C with imprisonment of 3 years and a fine of Rs. 1,000/- was also ordered to to undergo further imprisonment of two months in default of payment of fine. All the sentences were to run concurrently.

2. The facts giving rise to this appeal in brief are that the informant Virendra Kumar, son of Jagdev Prasad Agnihotri, resident of village Kamasin, P.S. Jafarganj, District Fatehpur lodged F.I.R. with the concerned police station with these allegations that on 24.10.2004 at 5 p.m., his daughter Luxmi Devi 6 years old was playing under the Plum Tree nearby the house of Uma Shankar, son of Mahabir Pandey and was plucking plums; at the same time Pawan Kumar Mishra, son of Devi Prasad Mishra, 22 years old of the village attracted there and enticed away his daughter in a dilapidated house of Uma Shankar and committed rape to her whereby the blood was also oozing and his weeping daughter came to the house and told in regard to woe-tale to her mother. On this information he also reached to the place of occurrence and found blood there. There may, persons of the village also witnessed the place of occurrence along with him. His daughter was also criminally intimidated by Pawan Kumar Mishra if she disclosed in regard to occurrence. He and persons of the village made search of Pawan Kumar Mishra but he fled away. On this report the Case Crime No. 75 of 2004 was registered against Pawan Kumar Mishra under Section 376 and 506 I.P.C., with the police station concerned.

3. The Investigating Officer after concluding the investigation filed the charge sheet against the accused Pawan Kumar Misrha under Sections 376 and 506 IPC before the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Fatehpur who after taking cognizance of the same committed the case to the Court of Sessions for trial which was in turn transferred to the court of Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 3, Fatehpur.

4. The trial court framed the charge against the accused under sections 376 and 506 I.P.C., and the charge was read over and explained to the accused which was denied by him and claimed for trial.

5. On behalf of prosecution to prove the charge against the accused in documentary evidence filed the written information Exhibit Ka-1 Radiological examination report in regard to age of victim, Exhibit Ka-2, Medical Examination report of victim, Exhibit Ka-3 and Ka-4, Chik F.I.R. Exhibit Ka-5, G.D. Entry, Exhibit Ka-6, Site plan of the place of occurrence Exhibit Ka-7 charge sheet Exhibit Ka-8, Recovery Memo in regard to blood stained clay and plain clay, Exhibit Ka-9, Recovery Memo in regard to taking in possession blood stained panty of the victim, Exhibit Ka-10 and in oral evidence examined PW-1 Virendra Kumar Agnihotri-informant, PW-2 Luxmi Devi, PW-3 Sarojani Devi, PW-4 Dr. M.C. Tiwari, PW-5 Doctor B.K. Sharma, PW-6 Doctor Sudha Kashmiri, PW-7 Head Constable Ishwar Chand and PW-8, Sub-Inspector Sheshmani.

6. The statement of accused under section 313 Cr.P.C., was recorded in which he denied the incriminating circumstances in the evidence against him. No defence evidence was filed on behalf of the accused.

7. The learned trial court after hearing the contentions of the rival parties convicted the accused for the offence under section 376 and 506 IPC and sentenced as said above vide judgment dated 18.2.2006.

8. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment dated 18.2.2006 this criminal appeal has been preferred on behalf of the appellant-convict Pawan Kumar Mishra on the ground that the conviction of the appellant is against the weight of the evidence on record. The sentence awarded to the appellant is very severe. In Medical Examination Report neither dead or alive supurmetoza was found and there was no injury in the private part of the victim. There was also dispute of the property between informant and the appellant's father. Accordingly, prayed to allow the appeal and set-aside the conviction and sentence by the trial court.

9. We have heard Sri Suneel Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Gaurav Pratap Singh, learned A.G.A., and perused the materials brought on record.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that this appeal has been preferred challenging the order of conviction and sentence on merits; but he is arguing this appeal only on reduction of quantum of sentence. The appellant-convict has served out sentence about 16 years. The appellant was 22 years of old at time of occurrence and keeping in view the future prospect of being reformed his sentence may be reduced.

11. Learned A.G.A., vehemently opposed the contentions made on behalf of learned counsel for the appellant and contended that the victim was below 12 years of age at the time of occurrence and keeping in view the nature of the offence which is social stigma contended to uphold the sentence passed by the trial court and to dismiss this appeal.

12. Though this appeal has been preferred challenging the impugned judgment on merits, yet the learned counsel for the appellant argued only on the point of reduction of quantum of sentence. However, keeping in view the grounds taken in this appeal, it will be appropriate to decide this appeal on merits also.

13. On behalf of the prosecution to prove the prosecution examined PW-2 Luxmi who is victim of the occurrence. As per prosecution case victim was 6 years old at the time of occurrence. During her examination she has stated that at the time of occurrence she was plucking plum. Accused was also identified by her during her examination before the court and she further stated that accused Pawan Kumar Mishra present in the court had committed rape to her. The blood was oozing from her private parts. She reached her house and narrated the whole episode to her mother.

14. PW-3 Sarojani Devi is the mother of the victim. She also during her examination corroborated the statement of victim. PW-1 Virendra Kumar Agnihotri, the father of the victim is also the informant proved the written information Exhibit Ka-1 and has stated that on coming to know from her daughter in regard to occurrence he immediately reached to the place of occurrence and saw blood there and also corroborated the statement of victim in regard to occurrence as was told by victim to her parents respectively.

15. This ocular evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution was also corroborated with medical evidence. PW-4 Doctor M.C. Tiwari, Radiologist proved the radio-logical report Exhibit Ka-2 in regard to ossification test pertaining to age of victim in which age of victim was opined to be 9 years. PW-5 Doctor B.K. Sharma proved the medical examination and referal slip of the victim's examination by lady doctor, Exhibit Ka-3. During examination he found the number of intact RBC Cells and occasional pus cells present in the vagina. PW-6 Doctor Sudha Kashimiri proved the medical examination report of the victim Exhibit Ka-4 and found the breast not developed, blood dried discharge in the valva was seen and also stated that this bloody dried discharge in the valva can be caused due to insertion of hard object, it may be by sexual intercourse also. Therefore, the medical evidence also corroborates the ocular evidence in regard to commission of the rape with the victim.

16. Moreover, as corroborative evidence on behalf of the prosecution also examined PW-8, Investigating Officer Sheshmani who after recording statement of witness and concluding the evidence filed charge sheet. This witness also proved the blood stained Panty of victim which was taken in possession and the recovery memo of the same Exhibit Ka-10. The blood stained clay and plain clay was also taken in possession by the I.O., from the place of occurrence. The recovery memo of the same Exhibit Ka-9 is also proved by the witness.

17. The statement of prosecutrix who is victim of the occurrence is found trust worthy. The statement of PW-3 Sarojani Devi and PW-1 Virendra Kumar who are parents of the victim though are not the eye-witness, yet their evidence is admissible under Section 6 of the Evidence Act.

18. The Hon'ble Apex Court in State of U.P. Vs. Ramesh (2001) 2 SCC 493 the res gestate is an exception to the general rule of hearsay evidence although not in issue directly, yet is so connected with the fact in issue as to form the part of the same transaction. PW-1 eye-witness immediately after the occurrence told to PW-2 in regard to occurrence. The statement of PW-10 is indicating that PW-2 had come to him and told in regard to occurrence is admissible.

19. The Hon'ble Apex Court held in Mukhtiyar Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 2009 SC 1854 that the evidence of witnesses who came to the scene of occurrence immediately after the occurrence, though he did not saw the accused persons causing occurrence, but come to know about the same from the eye-witness. Although the information was hearsay yet same corroborated the substantive evidence of eye-witness; therefore was admissible.

20. In view of the above case laws of the Hon'ble Apex Court the statement of PW-1 Virendra Kumar Agnihotri and PW-3 Sarojani Devi are admissible in evidence which corroborates the substantive evidence of the testimony of PW-2 Luxmi Devi.

21. The Hon'ble Apex Court also held in S. Ram Krishna Vs. State represented by PP, Andhra Pradesh Hyderabad (2008) 8 SCC 617 the testimony of prosecutrix of sex offence can not be put at par that of accomplice and the same can be relied upon by the court unless and until she does not have any strong motive to false involvement of the accused.

22. Moreover, the criminally intimidation made by the accused is also proved from the statement of PW-2 victim and the same is also corroborated with the statement of PW-2 Virendra Kumar Agnihotri and PW-3 Luxmi.

23. Therefore, the conviction of the accused for the charge under section 376 and 506 I.P.C., is proved beyond the reasonable doubt and the same is affirmed in view of the appreciation of the evidence.

24. The next question which is to be considered by us is in regard to the reduction of quantum of sentence on which learned counsel for the appellant argued that the sentence awarded to the convict is too severe. The convict was 22 years of age at the time of occurrence and has been languishing in Jail for 16 years and further submitted to reduce the sentence of the convict to the extent which has been undergone by him.

25. The court while awarding sentence would take recourse to the principle of deterrence or reform or to invoke the doctrine of proportionality which depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. Certain offences touch our social fabric. The sentence, which is the ultimate goal of justice delivery system, the purpose of imposing the same must be kept in mind.

26. In the present case the victim was 7 years of old and the accused/convict was 22 years old at time of occurrence. The convict being 22 years old at the time of occurrence was quite mature. His act of committing rape to 7 years baby is abhorrent.

27. The objective of criminal law in imposing appropriate sentence must be judged commensurate with nature of gravity of the crime and the manner in which the crime is committed. The twin objective of sentencing policy is deterrence or correction depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case to meet the ends of justice. The court should take into consideration the nature of the offence, gravity of the crime and other attending circumstances. The offence of rape is a social stigma and rape with a tender age of child is very heinous crime than that of other adult female.

28. The Hon'ble Apex Court held in State of *M.P. Vs. Bala @ Bala Ram AIR 2005 SC 3567 rape is a heinous crime which is against the society and against the human dignity, which reduces a man to an animal. Such an offence once it is proved, lightly is itself an affront to the society. For reduction of the sentence, the reasons must be relevant to exercise the discretion by the court. The age of the offenders by itself is not the adequate reason. Long pendency of trial also can not be adequate reason. Under the guise of reform theory the court can not forget their duty to the society and to the victim as well. The court has to consider the plight of the victim and the social stigma that may follow the victim to grave and particularly ruins to the prospects of normal life of the victim.

29. In State of Karnataka Vs. Raju (2007) 11 SCC 490 Honb'ble the Apex Court held that the physical scar may heal-up but the mental scar will always remain. When a women is ravished, what is inflicted is not merely physical injury but the deep sense of some deathless shame. The judicial response to human rights can not be blunted by legal jugglery.

30. Since the rape was committed to a baby being below the age of 12 years of age in the year 2004, in view of section 376(2) (F) of IPC prior substituted by Act 13 of 2013, section 9, for section 376 (w.r.e.f.3.2.2013) the punishment for the same is rigorous imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than 10 years but it may be for life and shall also liable to fine.

Provided that the court may for adequate special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment impose a sentence of imprisonment of either description for a term less than 10 years.

31. The learned trial court while sentencing the convict with life imprisonment for the charge under section 376 IPC has recorded a finding that the victim was of a tender age and the accused who also lived in the same vicinity and was also uncle in relation committed rape to the child of 7 years innocent girl was heinous and affront to the society.

32. Keeping in view the aforesaid case law of Hon'ble Apex Court and the facts and circumstances of this case, tender age of the victim and matured age of accused, the sentence awarded to the convict by the trial court does not bear any infirmity and same needs no interference.

33. Accordingly, this criminal appeal deserves to be dismissed.

34. This criminal appeal is hereby dismissed. The judgment of conviction and the sentence passed by the trial court in Sessions Trial No. 251 of 2005 (State Vs. Pawan Kumar Mishra) arising out of Case Crime No. 75 of 2004 under Sections 376 and 506 I.P.C., P.S. Jafarganj, District Fatehpur is confirmed. The Appellant/ convict shall serve out sentence as awarded by the trial court.

35. Let the copy of this judgment/order be certified to the court concerned for necessary information and follow up action.

36. The party shall file computed generated copy of order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad, self attested by it alongwith a self attested identity proof of the said person(s) (preferably Aadhar Card) mentioning the mobile number(s) to which the said Aadhar Card is linked.

37. The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of the computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
& Hon'ble Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

1. Heard Sri V.P. Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Anshul Tiwari, learned Advocate for the appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. At the outset, it is submitted that the accused-appellant is in jail. This appeal challenges the judgment and conviction dated 11.2.2011 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.5, Varanasi in Sessions Trial No. 546 of 2009 convicting appellant under Sections 302 of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as 'I.P.Code') for life imprisonment with fine of Rs.10,000/- and in default of payment of fine, to undergo further six months imprisonment.

3. Information came to be lodged on 14.7.2009 which was converted into investigative F.I.R. which was propelled by the father of the deceased. The accused is the husband of the deceased.

4. The case being triable by the Court of Sessions was committed to it after the charge-sheet was laid before it and accused was summoned. On the accused appearing before the Court of Sessions, he pleaded not guilty and, therefore, on 2.1.2010 charge was framed against him for commission of offence under Section 302 of I.P.Code alleging that on 14.7.2009 at about 8.00 am at the residence of Raja Ram, namely the father of the deceased, the accused, Kanti Lal, by inflicting several stab wounds by the Scissors, which was found near the dead body, has caused the death of deceased.

5. The prosecution examined, in all, eight witnesses of facts which are as under:

1	Deposition of Raja Ram	26.2.2010 13.5.2010 26.7.2010	PW1
2	Deposition of Pramila	28/07/10	PW2
3	Deposition of Maina Devi	18/08/10	PW3
4	Deposition of Vijai Kumar	19/08/10	PW4
5	Deposition of Kishori Lal	19/08/10	PW5
6	Deposition of Ghanshyam Sharma	06/09/10	PW6
7	Deposition of Swami Nath Prasad	15/12/10 23.12.2010	PW7
8	Deposition of Dr. Ghanshayam	23/12/10	PW8

6. Out of the said eight witnesses, except police and doctor, none supported the prosecution case. Raja Ram, father of deceased, started building a new story. Though he was not treated to be a hostile witness, his evidence has several facets of being hostile to prosecution.

7. The prosecution tried to prove the facts by producing several documentary evidence also which are as under:

1	Written Report	14/07/09	Ex.Ka.1
2	F.I.R	14/07/09	Ex.Ka.4
3	Recovery memo of bloodstained cloth	02/08/09	Ex.Ka.2
4	Recovery Memo of bloodstained scissors	14/07/09	Ex. Ka.3
5	Recovery Memo of bloodstained and plain earth	14/07/09	Ex. Ka.8
6	Postmortem Report	15/07/09	Ex.Ka.15

8. At the end, the accused was put to questions under Section 313 of Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 which were, in fact, mostly of negativity. According to the accused there was no dispute between him and his wife and that he was not perpetrator of his wife's death. In his statement, he has stated that the Gram Pradhan had roped him as they had inimical relation. He was staying at Surat and he was not having any relation with his brother's wife.

9. P.W.2, 3, 4 & 5, who were relatives of the deceased, have not supported the prosecution case. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that this is a case of no evidence. According to him there are many missing chains as it can be said to be a case which hinges on circumstantial evidence.

10. He has further submitted that reliance by the Trial Court on the recovery of bloodstained clothes is bad in the eye of law. He has relied on judgments and has submitted that recovery memo of bloodstained clothes was though stated to be sent to the Forensic Science Laboratory, the same has not been proved before the Court below as the report has not been exhibited nor any witness has been examined. This shows the fallacy in the investigation also. According to the counsel for the appellant, the judgment impugned requires to be upturned as the decisions in Tarseem Kumar Vs. Delhi Administration, 1994 SCC (Crl.) 1735, Joga Gola Vs. State of Gujarat, AIR 1982 SC 1227 and Gambhir Vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1982 SC 1157 which were cited by accused before the Trial Court have also not been properly appreciated and he places reliance again on the said judgments before this Court as they would apply to the facts of this case.

11. It is submitted that the main plank of argument is on the doctor's evidence who has orally testified that there were multiple injuries which could have been caused by an instrument which may not be scissors. The injuries could have been caused by several persons and it was not proved that only one person had inflicted the injuries. It is further submitted that the chain is broken as the scissors were not sent for Forensic Science Laboratory examination nor it bears the finger prints of the accused.

12. The judgment of the trial court has also been assailed by the learned counsel for the appellant and he has taken us through the judgment impugned wherein there is no finding of fact that the bloodstained clothes were never subjected to any forensic expert's examination.

13. Learned A.G.A. has heavily relied on the deposition of Police Officer and has contended that it was the accused and accused alone who was the perpetrator of crime. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that the factum that the accused having accepted his guilt, is writ large which has come on record; the record also goes to show that it was the accused who volunteered to bear testimony against himself by producing bloodstained clothes. He further heavily relied on Sections 114 and 27 of the Evidence Act, 1872 which read as under:

"27. How much of information received from accused may be proved.-- Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved.

114. Court may presume existence of certain facts.-- The Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case."

14. The aforesaid proposition of learned A.G.A. has been rightly controverted by learned counsel for the appellant who has submitted that even if the recovery is at the behest of the appellant herein, presumption neither under Section 114 nor under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 can aid prosecution as it has failed to prove that it was voluntary disclosure of place which was in the knowledge of appellant alone. In support of arguments, learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the decisions in (a) Pulukuri Kottaya Vs. King Emperor, Cr.L.J. 1947 (533), (b) Bakshish Singh Vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1971 SC 2016, (c) Union Territory of Goa Vs. Boaventrua D'Souza and another, 1993 Cri. L.J. 181 so as to contend that chain is snapped at several places.

15. This is a case which hinges on circumstantial evidence as well as the oral testimony. The death of the deceased can be said to be homicidal death which was proved by the medical evidence and there is no doubt in our mind that the weapon used was scissor which was found near the dead body. Having answered the first question in favour of the prosecution, we would now venture on the other two questions namely (a) whether it was the accused and accused alone who by chain of circumstances is proved to have committed the murder and (b) can we hold the accused guilty only on the basis of suspicion? It is on record that P.W.2 to P.W.5, who are family members of deceased and in-laws of the appellant, have not supported the prosecution evidence and they have been declared hostile. It is rightly submitted by learned A.G.A. that the evidence of hostile witnesses as far as it supports prosecution can be looked into. From the depositions of the prosecution witnesses who are hostile and that of P.W.1 who takes different stand even before the Court below, only one thing emerges that the accused was found at the house of deceased which was the house of his in-laws but would that be sufficient to convict him? The other chain of evidence is absent. We are unable to persuade ourselves that the finding of fact recorded by the Court below that the accused was the only person who was concerned with the crime and the chain of circumstances unequivocally points at him and him alone, is correct. Statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has also not been considered by the Court below.

16. The bloodstained clothes whether contained blood of the deceased or that of the accused himself is the main missing chain in the prosecution version. Just because the appellant is said to have run away from the place of incident can it be said that it was he who was culprit? The medical evidence vis-a-vis ocular version will also have to be looked into. The witnesses would have heard the shouts of the lady who is said to have been brutely done to death by stab wounds which were seven in number. The medical evidence rather the ocular version of the Doctor has been brushed aside by the learned Trial Judge. The doctor has categorically stated in his oral deposition that the injuries could have been caused not only by scissors but by other weapons also.

17. Learned Trial Judge in paragraph 44 of the impugned judgment tried to show that the chain was complete but we are of the view that it is not a complete chain which would permit us to concur with the learned Trial Judge in holding the accused guilty.

18. We can safely rely on the decision of the Gujarat High Court in Criminal Appeal No. 437 of 2003 (Chetankumar Dahyabhai Patel Vs. State of Gujarat) decided on 3.9.2013 where in the Court has held as under:

"16. Thus, from the discussion of the evidence of the aforesaid witnesses following aspects emerges;

(1) Nobody has seen the crime actually being committed;

(2) There is no material on record to suggest that whether Sonali has expired or not or whether the death of Sonali was accidental, suicidal or homicidal;

(3) The case of the prosecution is based solely on the alleged disclosure made by the appellant, while he was in custody of the police in connection with the complaint made by P.W.-1;

(4) Even, as per the evidence of P.W.-8, when he made inquires about the discovery of body of a female from the river about the time of the incident, he was informed that no such body was discovered during the said time period and the aforesaid fact shakes the very basis of the case of the prosecution that the appellant had pushed Sonali from over the bridge;

(5) Though, P.W.-8 stated, in his evidence, that he had recorded the statement of the Manager of Relief Theater, Bharuch, to verify the aspect of running of movie "Meri Aan" on the date of the alleged offence, the Manager was not examined as a witness. Moreover, though, P.W.-8 stated that he had obtained evidence with regard to absence of the appellant from his duty on the date of the alleged incident, there is neither any document produced on the record of the case nor any witness was examined by the prosecution to establish the said aspect;

(6) P.W.-1 failed to explain as to why he did not made any inquires about Sonali for two years and as to what prompted him to lodge the complaint, Dated : 20.04.1996, after a period of about two years before the PI,Ankleshwar;

(7) In view of the fact that the body of Sonali was never recovered, it was incumbent on the prosecution to show as to on what basis Section 302 of the IPC was applied against the appellant;

(8) The prosecution has not been able to prove, even, the aspect of lastseen together, since, there is no witness was examined nor any material was produced to establish the same;

(9) The prosecution has not been able to establish the motive for the crime. Insofar as the aspect of doubt about the character of Sonali on the part of the appellant is concerned, there is no material on record was produced to substantiate the same.

Moreover, though, in the complaint it is stated that on the date of the alleged offence, the appellant had spotted Sonali talking with some unknown male at Relief Theater, Bharuch, which prompted him to commit the alleged offence, the aforesaid male was not examined by the prosecution to establish the said fact, and thus, the motive for commission of the alleged offence by the appellant remains shrouded in mystery.

17. Thus, from the above discussion it becomes clear that merely relying on the confession alleged to be made by the appellant, while he was in custody of P.W.-8, the trial Court came to the conclusion that the appellant was guilty of the alleged offence. It is very well-known that a statement made by an accused before the police, while in custody of police,cannot be used against him. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the trial Court committed an error in solely relying on the alleged statement made by the appellant before the police, while in custody of police. It is no doubt true that there are certain circumstances, which raises suspicion about the involvement of the appellant in the alleged offence. But, there is a well settled principle of law that the suspicion howsoever strong it may be, cannot be substituted for the evidence. In the case on hand, in view of the above discussion, it cannot be said that the chain of events stands completed and it points towards the guilt of the appellant only and that it is not possible to take a different view, then, the one taken by the trial Court. We are,therefore, inclined to accept the submissions made by Mr. A. D. Shah, learned Sr. Advocate for the appellant that the appellant requires to be granted the benefit of doubt.

18. In the result, the appeal is ALLOWED. The judgment and order of the trial Court, Dated : 05.04.2003, rendered in Sessions Case No. 134 of 1998, is quashed and set aside. The appellant - original accused is given the benefit of doubt and is ordered to be acquitted. The appellant is on bail, and hence, his bail bond stands canceled. The amount of fine, if any, paid, be refunded to the appellant. A copy of this order be sent to the concerned jail authorities, immediately."

19. One more aspect which goes to the root of the matter is that there is no forensic expert's evidence which would show that the scissors was used by the accused and accused alone.

20. In this case there is no eye witness, rather, P.W.1 nowhere states in his deposition that the appellant had run away with the bloodstained clothes from the residence of P.W.1. The reliance by Trial Court on the judgment in Salim Vs. State of U.P., J.I.C. 2010 (1) (Alld.) 44 is also bad in eye of law as, in the case in hand, no one has seen the appellant to have fled away with bloodstained clothes.

21. We are also fortified in our view by the latest decision of the Apex Court in Mohd. Younus Ali Tarafdar Vs. State of West Bengal, (2020) 3 SCC 747.

22. In view of the above, we are satisfied that the judgment of the learned Trial Judge cannot be upheld and it has to be quashed.

23. The appeal is allowed. Judgment and order impugned is set aside. The accused, if not required in any other offence, be set free by the police authority and if he has paid the fine, the same be refunded to him.

24. The record and proceedings of the Court below be sent to it forthwith.

25. This Court is thankful to both Sri V.P. Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate and learned A.G.A for ably assisting the Court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar Kumar Yadav, J.)

1. The present Criminal Appeal is directed against the conviction and sentence dated 07.06.2014 passed by Addl. District and Sessions Judge, Court No. 9, Moradabad in Sessions Trial No. 666 of 2004 (State Vs Ravi and others), whereby the appellants, namely, Ravi, Chhajju and Smt Premwati were convicted under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 302 I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act. They were sentenced for life imprisonment under section 304-B I.P.C. The appellants were also sentenced for life imprisonment under Section 302 I.P.C. along with fine of Rs. 10,000/- each with default stipulation and further all the appellants were also sentenced for three years rigorous imprisonment under Section 498-A I.P.C. along with fine of Rs. 2000/- each with default stipulation and under Section 3/4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, they were sentenced for one year rigorous imprisonment along with fine of Rs. 1000/- each with default stipulation. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

2. Adumbrated facts, as per the prosecution version are that the complainant Mahendra Singh (P.W.-1) submitted a written report (Ex-Ka-1) on 25.10.2003 at P.S. Mainather, District Moradabad to the effect that marriage of his sister, namely, Meena was solemnised with appellant no. 1 Ravi seven months ago. Her sister was at her parental home on the eve of Karwachauth, and at that time she narrated that she had some altercation with her mother-in-law and her mother-in-law tried to strangulate her with the help of her chunni; and when her husband came on Karwachauth to take her back then the said fact was complained to him, on which he said that they must come to his residence, next day after Deepawali, and then he would talk on the matter, and, thereafter, he is said to have taken his wife Meena with him. It is further alleged that on 25.10.2003 at about 7.30 in the morning, it was informed on telephone by appellant no. 1 Ravi that Meena is unwell and on getting this information, the complainant is said to have contacted the appellant no. 1 Ravi, thereafter, to know the situation, and Ravi (appellant no. 1) then told the informant that Meena has died, and, thereafter, the complainant along with other family members reached at his sister's matrimonial home, where he found his sister lying dead. It is further alleged in the report that the complainant suspects that her death was committed by her husband Ravi (appellant no. 1), her father-in-law Chhajju (appellant no. 2), her mother-in-law Smt Premwati (appellant no. 3) and her brother-in-law. It is further alleged that father of the appellant no. 1 used to demand dowry and on his demand a motorcycle was given at the time of marriage.

3. On the basis of the said written report, the FIR (Ex-Ka-6) was lodged on 25.10.2003 at 15.45 p.m vide Case Crime No. 276 of 2003, under Sections 498A, 304-B IPC and Section 3/4 of D. P. Act by Constable Clerk 279 Ramprakash Singh (P.W.-6). Investigation ensued. The post-mortem was conducted and on completion of the investigation a charge sheet (Ex-Ka-5) under Section 498-A, 304 B IPC and Section 3/4 of D. P. Act was submitted against the present appellants. Charges were framed against all the accused appellants under Sections 498-A, 304-B IPC and Section ¾ of Dowry Prohibition Act on 8.12.2004. Additional charge under Section 302 IPC was framed against the appellants, namely Ravi (appellant no. 1/Husband), Chhajju (appellant no. 2/father-in-law) and Smt Premwati (appellant no. 3/mother-in-law) on 29.05.2012. The trial of accused- appellant Sanjay (brother in law of deceased) was separated on account of his being a Juvenile and he has been tried by Juvenile Justice Board.

4. During course of trial of these three accused appellants, as many as eleven witnesses were produced by the prosecution, namely, Mahendra Singh

(P.W.1-brother of deceased/complainant), Smt Somati Devi (P.W.-2 mother of deceased), Dr. A. K. Jain (P.W.-3 who conducted postmortem), Smt Beena Rajkumari (P.W.4), S.I. Sunder Lal (P.W.-4), Dr S. P. Singh (P.W.-5), Constable Ram Prakash Sharma (P.W.-6-prepared check report and made G.D. entry), Shyamlal-Tehsildar (P.W.-7 conducted inquest), S.I. Ramveer Singh (P.W.-8-first Investigating Officer), Constable Naeem Abbas (P.W.-9), Constable Veerendra Singh (P.W.-10), and Constable Mehar Singh (P.W.-11).

5. The appellants abjured all the allegations against them in their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and contended that they have been falsely implicated on account of enmity, and, thereafter, as many as four witnesses were produced by the defence, namely, Dr J. K. Jain, (D.W.-1), Jai Gopal (D.W.-2), Ganpat (D.W.-3), and Dr. Vinay Kumar, Radiologist (D.W.-4).

6. Learned Trial Court after analysing all the evidences available on record pronounced its judgement of conviction on 7.6.2014 and sentenced all the appellants as aforesaid.

7. We have heard Sri R. K. Khanna, learned counsel assisted by Sri Amber Khanna, learned counsel for the appellants, Sri Ratan Singh, learned AGA and have perused the material on record.

8. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that there is no evidence on record to demonstrate that dowry was ever demanded or that the deceased was harassed or subjected to cruelty mental or physical, soon before her death in connection with demand of dowry. It is also argued that necessary ingredients of Section 304B IPC are not made out. It is also argued that Section 302 IPC is also not made out in the facts & circumstances of the present case. It is further submitted that mere fact that a married woman committed suicide within a period of seven years of her marriage would not directly attract the presumption under Section 113 B of the Indian Evidence Act. The important ingredient of showing that she had been subjected to cruelty had to be shown to exist. He further submitted that there is no automatic presumption that Section 113 A of the Indian Evidence Act would apply unless it is shown that the suicide was abetted by the accused.

9. It was next contended that the evidence produced by the prosecution to prove the offence under the Dowry Prohibition Act was inconsistent and unreliable, because the material prosecution witnesses - P.W.1 (brother of deceased) & P.W.-2 (Mother of deceased) are closely related to one another and no independent witness was examined in proof of demand of dowry by the prosecution, therefore, it is not safe to rely on the testimony of interested and related witnesses in absence of there being independent witness to corroborate their testimonies.

10. The submission of learned counsel further is that only on the basis of the fact that "Aluminium Phosphide' has been found in her viscera report, it cannot be assumed that poison was administered to her by her husband or her in-laws, and there is no evidence on record that under what circumstances or mental state, she consumed poison. It is further submitted that there may be possibility of death of deceased, who was having 32 weeks foetus, due to "Amniotic Fluid Embolism', i.e. to say that when the amniotic fluid entered into the bloodstream of the mother, it toxifies the mother's blood, which might result in her death.

11. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State opposed the appeal and argued that the deceased died in the house of the appellants under abnormal circumstances within seven months of her marriage. The evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution is sufficient for drawing inference that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty and torture in connection with the demand of dowry. The conviction and sentenced awarded to the appellants are based on reliable and clinching evidence.

12. Learned AGA has further submitted that the unfortunate death of deceased was certainly an unnatural death as the viscera report itself reveals that the poison ''Aluminium Phosphide' was found during its examination, which is evident from the report of the Forensic Science Laboratory (Ex-Ka-4), available on record. There is also no dispute that the death was caused within seven months of the marriage. Further submission of learned counsel for the State is that under these circumstances the presumption under Section 113-B and 113-A of the Evidence Act would arise and the burden would shift on the appellants to prove their innocence but they have failed to do so.

13. It is also submitted that the deceased had met her unnatural death inside her matrimonial home, therefore, under Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act too, the burden is on the appellants to explain under what circumstances the deceased chose to end her life. The submission further is that even assuming that it was a case of suicide, it will not make any difference because suicide is also an unnatural death and suicidal cases are also covered under Section 304-B of I.P.C. The defence has failed to discharge the onus that has shifted on it or to rebut the presumption by any cogent, reliable and trustworthy evidence as to what was the immediate reason/cause that led the deceased to take such drastic step of consuming poison. Therefore, the court below has rightly convicted the appellants and there is no need to interfere in the impugned judgment.

14. At the outset, we deem it appropriate to discuss the testimonies of material witnesses of the prosecution, more particularly the testimonies of P.W.-1 and P.W.- 2, who are brother and mother of the deceased respectively, who have levelled categorical allegations of cruelty and harassment, being meted to the deceased Meena by her husband (appellant no. 1) and his other family members.

15. P.W.-1, brother of deceased deposed before the court below as under:-

" मेरी बहन करवा चौथ पर हमारे यहां आई हुई थी उसने मुझे व परिवार वालों को बताया था कि इस घटना से कुछ दिन पहले किसी बात पर उसकी सास श्रीमती प्रेमवती से कुछ कहा सुनी हो गई थी तथा सास ने मीना का गला चुनरी से दबा दिया था।

जब रवि करवा चौथ पर मेरी बहन मीना को लेने हमारे घर पर आया तब हमने उससे इस घटना की शिकायत की तो उसने कहा कि दीपावली में अगले दिन आना बात कर लेंगें। रवि के कहने पर हमने अपनी बहन मीना को रवि के साथ ससुराल भेज दिया।

दिनांक 25/10/2003 को सुबह करीब 730 बजे हमारे घर मीना के पति रवि का फोन आया कि मीना की तबियत खराब है। सूचना मिलने पर मैनें रवि को मोबाईल पर फोन किया और मीना की स्थिति जाननी चाही तब रवि ने फोन पर बताया कि मीना मर गई है। सूचना मिलते ही मै अपने

परिवार के लोगों को लेकर जटपुरा पहुंचा जहां मीना मरी पड़ी थी।

हमें उसकी हत्या की इसलिए सन्देह हुआ कि मीना की ससुराल वाले मुल्जिमान बीच बीच में दहेज की मांग में 50000/ व अन्य सामान की मांग करते थे। उन्हीं की मांग पर हमने मोटर साईकिल लेकर दी थी लेकिन फिर भी दहेज के रूप में अन्य सामान की मांग करते रहते थे जिसकी शिकायत मीना हमसे बार बार करती थी। दहेज के कारण मीना की हत्या उसके पति रवि, ससुर छजजू सिंह, सास श्रीमती प्रेमवती व देवर संजय ने मिलकर की है। शादी के 7 माह के अन्दर ही इन लोगों ने उसकी हत्या दहेज के लिए कर दी।

मै अपने परिवार वालों को मीना की लाश के पास छोड़कर थाना मैनाठेर गया, वहां मैनें अपने हाथ से लिखकर तहरीर दी।——————————————

मीना की पोस्टमार्टम के बाद लाश हमारे सुपुर्द कर दी गई और हमने मीना का संस्कार विधि पूर्वकर कर दिया। हमारे पहुंचने पर मीना की ससुराल वाले घटना स्थल से भाग गये थे।"

16. P.W.-2, mother of deceased deposed before the court below as under:-

" मीना की शादी में एक मोटर साईकिल व 31000 रूपये नगद उनकी मांग पर दिये थे। मैनें अपनी लड़की की शादी में करीब एक लाख तिरपन हजार रूपये खर्च किये थे। मेरी लडकी मीना की ससुराल वाले इतना शादी के खर्च करने के बाद भी और दहेज की मांग करते रहते थे तथा उसके दहेज के लिए तंग व परेशान करते थे। मीना की ससुराल वालों ने मोबाईल तथा 50000/ की मांग की मैनें मोबाईल फोन उनको दे दिया था। लेकिन 50000/ रूपये नहीं दे पाई थी।

दिनांक 25/10/2003 को चारो मुलजिमान रवि, छज्जू, प्रेमवती व संजय ने एक राय होकर मेरी लड़की मीना को जहर देकर उसकी हत्या कर दी। मेरे पास दि0 25/10/2003 को सुबह 7:30 बजे फोन आया। इस पर मै, मेरा लड़का महेन्द्र व परिवार के व मिलने वाले कई लोग मीना की ससुराल गये। वहां पहुंच कर हमने देखा कि मीना की लाश बरामदी में पड़ी थी। और उसके पति रवि व ससुर छजजू से पूछने पर उन्होंने कोई संतोषजनक जबाब नहीं दिया और वहां से भाग गये।"

17. A close scrutiny of the testimonies of PW-1 and P.W-2, brother and mother of the deceased respectively, abundantly reveals that the deceased was subjected to cruelty on account of demand of dowry. Death of the deceased Meena occurred within seven months of her marriage. It is also not disputed that the deceased died in her matrimonial home otherwise than under normal circumstances, where she was living with her husband. Death of deceased was not under natural circumstances as the death of Meena could be said to be certainly an unnatural death on the evidence adduced by the prosecution.

18. In the light of the aforesaid evidence, it would be relevant to discuss as to whether the appellants have been rightly convicted under Section 304-B IPC ?

Section 304-B IPC reads as under:-

(1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

Explanation.-For the purpose of this sub-section, "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extent to imprisonment for life."

19. Thus, Section 304-B IPC provides for a statutory compulsion merely on the establishment of two conditions that (i) death of a wife should have occurred otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage; (ii) soon before her death, she should have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by the accused in connection with demand of dowry. If these two factual positions are established then, the court has to presume that the accused has committed dowry death. If any accused wants to escape the rigour of Section 304-B IPC, the burden is on him to disprove it. If he fails to rebut the presumption, the court is bound to act on it.

20. Section 304-B IPC is coupled with Section 113 B of the Indian Evidence Act. Section 113-B of the Indian Evidence Act reads as under:-

"113-B. Presumption as to dowry death.- When the question is whether a person has committed the dowry death of a woman and it is shown that soon before her death such woman has been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, the Court shall presume that such person had caused the dowry death.

Explanation.-For the purposes of this section, "dowry death" shall have the same meaning as in section 304B of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)."

21. Section 113-B of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 also provides that once it is shown that soon before her death a woman has been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, the Court "shall presume" that such person had caused the dowry death. The expression "shall presume" has been defined in Section 4 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, relevant part of which is extracted here in below:

"'Shall presume'.- Whenever it is directed by this Act that the Court shall presume a fact, it shall regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved."

22. Thus, Section 113-B read with Section 4 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 would mean that unless and until it is proved otherwise, the Court shall hold that a person has caused dowry death of a woman, if it is established before the Court that soon before her death such woman was subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry. Section 3 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 states that unless a contrary intention appears from the context, the word "disproved" would mean a fact is said to be disproved when, after considering the matters before it, the Court either believes that it does not exist, or considers its non-existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it does not exit.

23. It is, thus clear that irrespective of the fact that whether the accused has any direct connection with the death or not, he shall be presumed to commit dowry death provided the other requirements encapsulated in the Section are satisfied. It is not necessary for attracting the provisions of Section 304-B IPC that apart from showing that the death has occurred in unnatural circumstances within seven years of her marriage and that soon before her death and the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by the accused for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, it must also be shown that the accused had any direct nexus with the death.

24. The term "soon before her death" used in Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Indian Evidence Act connote a sense of proximity of time between the dowry related maltreatment amounting to cruelty and the incident of death. Therefore, an isolated incident of dowry related ill-treatment amounting to cruelty meted out to the woman in the past may not be independently relevant but it may be relevant if it forms a chain of continuous incidents of maltreatment amounting to cruelty.

25. Thus, in case of dowry death, prosecution is not obliged to establish that the accused persons were directly involved in the death of deceased in terms of inflicting physical injuries. If the ingredients of Section 304-B IPC are established by the prosecution, then the court would have no option but to presume that the accused has committed dowry death unless of course, accused or accused persons are able to successfully rebut the presumption.

26. Coming back to the facts of the present case, we find the following undisputed facts:-

(a) Death of deceased Meena occurred within seven months of her marriage thereby the main condition prescribed under Section 304-B IPC namely "within seven years of marriage" was fulfilled.

(b) Death of deceased was not normal as the unfortunate death of Meena was certainly an unnatural death as the viscera report itself reveals that the poison 'Aluminum Phosphide' was found during its examination, which is evident from the report of the Forensic Science Laboratory, Agra, available on record (Ex-Ka-4). It is, therefore, clear that her death was unnatural within seven months of her marriage.

27. It is also not disputed that the deceased died in the house of her matrimonial home where she was living with her husband and in-laws, and the deceased died in the circumstances which can never be said to be normal, therefore, it can safely be concluded that the second condition of Section 304-B IPC is also fulfilled and the appellants have rightly been convicted for the said offence. The testimonies of prosecution witnesses P.W.-1 Mahendra Singh, who is brother of deceased and P.W.-2 Smt Somati Devi, the mother of the deceased respectively also lends credibility to this conclusion.

28. Now, the second question is as to whether any dowry demands were made from the deceased or her parents ? and whether the deceased was tortured and subjected to cruelty on non fulfilment of these dowry demands and whether the appellants have rightly been convicted under Section 498-A IPC ?

29. In this regard, the prosecution has adduced and further relied upon the testimonies of two persons namely P.W.-1 & P.W.-2, the brother and mother of the deceased, which may be seen from the relevant extract of their testimonies, as under:

30. P.W.-1 has testified that " मीना की ससुराल वाले मुल्जिमान बीच बीच में दहेज की मांग में 50,000 व अन्य सामान की मांग करते थे। उन्हीं की मांग पर हमने मोटर साईकिल लेकर दी थी लेकिन फिर भी दहेज के रूप में अन्य सामान की मांग करते रहते थे जिसकी शिकायत मीना हमसे बार बार करती थी।". He has also testified that his sister came to her parental home two-three days prior to Karwachauth and at that point of time she disclosed the fact that some altercation took place with her mother-in-law on account of demand of dowry and at that time her mother-in-law also tried to press her neck with the help of her chunni. The relevant extract of testimony is "मेरी सगी बहन मीना की शादी रवि के साथ हुई थी। शादी 18/02/2003 को हुई थी मेरी बहिन करवाचौथ पर हमारे घर आयी थी उसने मेरी मां को बताया था कि दहेज मांगने के उपर सास से कहा सुनी हो गयी तो सास ने चुन्नी से गला दबा दिया था। इसकी सूचना उसने हम लोगों को दी थी, रवि करवाचौथ पर मेरी बहिन मीना को लेने आया तब इस बात की शिकायत रवि से की थी, उसने बोला दीपावली के अगले दिन आ जाना बात कर लेगें और बहिन को अपने साथ ले गया। मेरी बहिन ने ही बताया था कि दहेज के लिए मेरी ससुराल के सब मुझे प्रताड़ित करते है।" Similar statement has been made by P.W.-2 Smt Somati Devi, mother of the deceased. The testimonies rendered by these witnesses are sufficient to show that deceased was subjected to cruelty in terms of Section 498-A IPC explanation (a) which talks of mental cruelty as well. Both of these witnesses have been extensively cross examined where they have reiterated that the deceased was subjected to torture and cruelty on account of non fulfilment of dowry demand. We have carefully examined their testimonies and believe that they are trust worthy and reliable witnesses. There is absolutely no reason to disbelieve their testimonies especially in the light of dowry demand made directly to deceased, her brother and mother. It would not be out of place to mention that after the death of bride the details of harassment & torture is also not possible, but it may be inferred from the evidence of parents & other relatives of the deceased and the circumstances that the deceased was subjected to harassment & torture.

31. Hon'ble Apex Court in Mustafa Shahadal Shaikh Vs State of Maharashtra, AIR, 2013 SC 851 relied on the testimonies of parents of deceased and other witnesses, who in turn narrated the story of torture communicated to them by the deceased. In Kashmir Kaur Vs State of Punjab AIR 2013, SC 1039, Hon'ble Apex Court accepted the story of torture communicated by the deceased to her parents.

32. We have examined the testimonies of P.W-1 and P.W.-2, brother and mother of the deceased. Their testimonies can be accepted for establishing two other ingredients of Section 304-B IPC i.e. the demand of dowry and acts of cruelty on non fulfilment of such dowry demand soon before the death of deceased.

33. Further, as far as the stand taken by learned counsel for the appellants that P. W.-1 and P. W.-2 are interested witnesses and closely related to each other and hence their testimonies cannot be relied upon, is also not tenable in the eyes of law. Hon'ble Apex Court in a catena of decisions has held that the evidence of a closely related witness/s is required to be carefully scrutinized and appreciated before any conclusion is made to rest upon it, regarding the convict/accused in a given case and their evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon. (Ref: Anil Rai Vs. State of Bihar, (2001) 7 SCC 318; State of U.P. Vs. Jagdeo Singh, (2003) 1 SCC 456; Bhagalool Lodh & Anr. Vs. State of U.P., (2011) 13 SCC 206; Dahari & Ors. Vs. State of U. P., (2012) 10 SCC 256; Raju@Balachandran & Ors. Vs. State of Tamil Nadu, (2012) 12 SCC 701; Ganga bhavani Vs. Rayapati Venkat Reddy & Ors., (2013) 15 SCC 298; Jodhan Vs. State of M.P., (2015) 11 SCC 52).

34. In the present case, nothing has been brought on record to prove that the evidence of PW- 1 and P.W-2 cannot be believed and relied upon or they have falsely implicated the appellants due to some personal vengeance or have implicated the appellants in the present case at the instance of the prosecution. Therefore, aforesaid testimonies cannot be rejected on the mere ground of their relationship because relationship by itself is not a sufficient ground to discard the evidence of the witnesses and label it as inappropriate for credence and hence the argument of the counsel for the appellants with regard to interested witnesses and minor contradictions in the statements of prosecution witnesses holds no ground.

35. So far as the submission of the learned counsel for the appellants that no independent witness was examined to prove the demand of dowry by the prosecution itself renders the entire prosecution case doubtful, also cannot be accepted. There is no doubt that the P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 are closely related to each other but on that count their testimonies cannot be said to be unreliable in absence of any independent witness. Deceased would be the best person to speak about demand of dowry but where she is no more, then the only remaining evidence can be that of the parents of the deceased to whom she would be expected to confide and mention about such demands made time to time in order to ascertain if they could meet the same. The death of the deceased within seven months of her marriage is not disputed. We believe the testimonies of P.W.-1 & P.W.-2 with regard to the demand of dowry and torture of deceased with a view to coercing her to bring more dowry is also not disputed. Therefore, the prosecution story cannot be thrown away merely on the basis of not producing any independent witnesses to support the version of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2.

36. The law is settled on the point that in case the sole testimony of the prosecution witness is trustworthy, the same can be relied upon and it is the quality of the witness and not the quantity, which is relevant. Section 134 of the Evidence Act is also relevant to be referred to in the present case, which prescribes that no particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Maqsoodan Vs State of UP, 1983 AIR 126 has held that it is not the number of witnesses but the quality of evidence that counts.

37. The statements of PW-1 and P.W.-2 are sufficient to prove the demand of dowry against the appellants, as their statements are trustworthy and there is no reason to disbelieve their testimony.

38. We also find from the record that in this case deceased died in her matrimonial home on account of the poison "Aluminium Phosphide' and the medical/scientific evidence corroborating the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses shifts the burden of proof on to the accused to prove the facts and circumstances, which are within their special knowledge and conscience. Initially the burden to establish the case would undoubtedly rest upon the prosecution, but in our view, the initial burden has been discharged by the prosecution on the basis of the evidence on record, which establishes the fact that the deceased was subjected to cruelty on account of dowry demand. Accordingly, by virtue of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, the burden lay on the appellants to have explained the incriminating circumstances pointing against them. In the present case, harassment is caused within four corners of the matrimonial house of the deceased which is house of the appellants. When any harassment is committed in secrecy of four corners of the house, it is difficult to collect direct evidence against the perpetrators of the crime because either they are members of family or they assist in harassment, therefore, explanation is sought against presumption from the appellants, but no explanation was given by them and their version is plain denial which is without any merit. In these circumstances, it was the appellants who could give some plausible explanation as to how and in what manner the incident in question occurred and as the appellants have failed to discharge the burden under Section 106 of the Evidence Act not only by giving evasive answers but also by making an unsuccessful claim that the deceased died of some disease without any basis and evidence on record, in our opinion, this fictitious story cannot be believed.

39. It is also a settled legal position that Section 106 the Evidence Act is not intended to relieve the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused beyond any shadow of reasonable doubt. It is only, when such a burden is discharged by the prosecution that the onus eventually shifts on to the accused to prove any fact within his special knowledge, to establish that he/she/they is/are not guilty of the aforesaid alleged offence. We may refer to the following Para, from the judgment of the Apex court in Sucha Singh VS State of Punjab, reported in AIR 2001 SC 1436 as under:

"We pointed out that Section 106 of the Evidence Act is not intended to relieve the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt, but the section would apply to cases where prosecution has succeeded in proving facts for which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, unless the accused by virtue of special knowledge regarding such facts failed to Offer any explanation which might drive the court to draw different inference."

40. In the case of Raj Kumar Prasad Tamarkar Vs. State of Bihar (2007) 10 SCC 403 the Apex Court held that "if some occurrence happens inside the residential portion of the accused, where he was also available, at or about the time of the incident, he is bound to offer his version as to how the occurrence had taken place. The only other person who can speak about the occurrence will be the deceased and now that she is dead, if at all, the accused alone can offer an explanation. Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act states that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. It is true that this section cannot be used, so as to shift the onus of proving the offence, from the prosecution to the accused. However, in the present, there is satisfactory evidence, which fastens or conclusively fixes the liability, for the death of Gandhimathi, on the inmate of the house, present therein at the relevant time. So, in the absence of any other explanation, the only possible inference is that the accused participated in the act. If he claims contrary, under Section 106 of the Evidence Act, the burden of proving that fact is upon him, since that is within his special knowledge."

41. In the case of Prithpal Singh Vs State of Punjab and others, reported in (2012) 1 SCC 10, the Apex Court in the following Para has held as under:

"... if fact is especially in the knowledge of any person, then burden of proving that fact is upon him. It is impossible for the prosecution to prove certain facts particularly within the knowledge of the accused. Section 106 is not intended to relieve the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. But the section would apply to cases where the prosecution has succeeded in proving facts from which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, unless the accused by virtue of his special knowledge regarding such facts, failed to offer any explanation which might drive the Court to draw a different inference. Section 106 of the Evidence Act is designed to meet certain exceptional cases, in which, it would be impossible for the prosecution to establish certain facts which are particularly within the knowledge of the accused."

42. In the case of Harijan Bhala Teja vs State Of Gujarat, (2016) 12 SCC 665, it has been held as follows:-

"Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act provides that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Since it is proved on the record that it was only the appellant who was staying with his wife at the time of her death, it is for him to show as to in what manner she died, particularly, when the prosecution has successfully proved that she died homicidal death. "

43. Now the next argument of learned counsel for the appellants that charge under Section 304-B IPC and Section 302 IPC cannot go simultaneously, and all the appellants have wrongly been convicted under Section 302 IPC is required to be examined.

44. So far as the submission that charge under Section 304-B IPC and Section 302 IPC cannot be simultaneously prosecuted is concerned, the Apex Court in the case of Rajbir Vs State of Haryana, (2010) 15 SCC 116, has issued directions to all the trial Courts in India to ordinarily add Section 302 IPC to the charge of Section 304-B IPC, so that death sentence could be imposed in such heinous and barbaric crimes against women.

45. Subsequently, Hon'ble the Apex Court in Jasvinder Saini and others Vs.

State (Government of NCT of Delhi) reported in (2013) 7 SCC 256, observed that direction issued in Rajbir (supra) was not mean to be followed mechanically and without due regard to the nature of the evidence available in the case. It was clarified that Hon'ble the Apex Court in that case meant to say that in a case where a charge alleging dowry death is framed, a charge under Section 302 IPC can also be framed, if the evidence otherwise permits. The observations of Hon'ble the Apex Court in Jasvinder Saini (supra) read as follows: -

"14. Be that as it may, the common thread running through both the orders is that this Court had in Rajbir case directed the addition of a charge under Section 302 IPC to every case in which the accused are charged with Section 304-B. That was not, in our opinion, the true purport of the order passed by this Court. The direction was not meant to be followed mechanically and without due regard to the nature of the evidence available in the case. All that this Court meant to say was that in a case where a charge alleging dowry death is framed, a charge under Section 302 can also be framed if the evidence otherwise permits. No other meaning could be deduced from the order of this Court.

46. Now, the next argument of the appellants that merely because "Aluminium Phosphide' has been found in her viscera report, it cannot be assumed that poison was administered to her by her husband or by her in-laws, and there was no motive to commit the murder of the deceased.

47. It would not be out of context to quote the deposition of P.W.-3 Dr. A. K. Jain, who is said to have conducted the postmortem on the person of deceased. The deposition of P.W.-3 is as under:-

" दिनांक 26/10/2003 को मैनें केन्द्रीय पुलिस चिकित्सालय, मोरादाबाद में सर्जन के पद पर कार्यरत रहते हुए 1:45 पी0एम0 पर मृतका मीना के शव का पोस्टमार्टम किया था जिसे सी0पी0नं 397 मेहर सिंह व सी0पी0 नं0 1455 वीरेन्द्र सिंह थाना मैनेाठेर सीलबन्द अवस्था में लाये थे। मृतका की उम्र लगभग 22 वर्ष थी तथा दरमियाना कद की थी। मृत्यु के बाद की अकड़न शरीर से पास हो चुकी थी। चेहरा छाती का उपरी हिस्सा और नखून पर नीलापन था। शरीर पर कोई जाहिरा चोट नहीं थी। आन्तरिक परीक्षण पर मस्तिष्क व उसकी झिल्लिया कन्जस्टड थी। दोनो फेफड़े व उनकी झिल्लियां कन्जस्टेड थी। पेट की झिल्ली कन्जस्टेड थीं आमाशय की mucosa कन्जस्टेड थी आमाशय में 500 मिल0 भूरा पदार्थ था। पूरा अमाश मय पदार्थ के जार नं0 1 में सील किया गया। पेट की कैविटी में पीलापन लिये हुए द्रव्य पदार्थ था। फेलेक्स मौजूद थें होठ और जीभ का रंग नीलापन लिये हुए था छोटी आंत में द्रव्य व गैस थी। स्पलीन का एक टुकड़ा जार नं0 2 में सील किया गया था । जीगर, स्पलीन और गुर्दें कन्जस्टेड थे। जिगर का एक टुकड़ा, स्पलीन पूरी और बाया गुर्दा पूरा जान नं0 2 में सील किया गया था । बच्चे दानी बढ़ी हुई थी जिसमें लगभग पूरी समय का बच्चा था। मेरी राय में मृत्यु का कारण ठीक प्रकार से निश्चित नहीं किया जा सका था इसलिए उपरोक्त अंग आगे जांच करने हेतु सील किये गये थे।"

48. The F.S.L. report (Ex-Ka-4) clearly indicates that "Aluminium Phosphide' was found in the intestine, liver, kidney and spleen of deceased.

49. Learned counsel in support of his argument has further submitted that the deceased died due to "Aluminium Phosphide' produced because of "Amniotic Fluid Embolism' and also relied upon "Modi Medical Jurisprudence & Toxicology (Twenty-third Edition) (at pp.201-202)' and seeks to contend that Aluminium Phosphide cannot be administered in a deceitful manner because of its pungent smell. Taking recourse to the Medical Jurisprudence, where "Aluminium Phosphide' (Celphos) is stated as "Aluminium Phosphide (Celphos) is used as a fumigant to control insects and rodents in food grains and fields". In reported cases of poisoning, symptoms which have been found are burning pain in the mouth, throat and stomach, vomiting mixed with blood, dyspnoea, rapid pulse, subnormal temperature, loss of co-ordination, convulsions of a clonic nature and death. In the solid form, it acts as a corrosive in the mouth and throat as it precipitates proteins. In postmortem appearance, the tongue, mouth and oesophagus are oedematous and corroded. The mucous membrane of the stomach is corrugated, loosened or hardened and is stained red or velvety. The intestines are inflamed. Celphos once administered or consumed spreads rapidly in the body and kidney, liver, spleen, heart and lungs are affected by the poison.

50. We find from the record that Dr. A. K. Jain's (P.W.-3) opinion, as expressed by him during his deposition that, "चेहरा छाती का उपरी हिस्सा और नखून पर नीलापन था। आन्तरिक परीक्षण पर मस्तिष्क व उसकी झिल्लिया कन्जस्टेड थी। दोनो फेफड़े व उनकी झिल्लियां कन्जस्टेड थी। पेट की झिल्ली कन्जस्टेड थीं आमाशय की उनबवें कन्जस्टेड थी" also finds an authoritative support.

51. Record further discloses that a suggestion appears to have been put forth by the side of the defence to P.W.-3 Dr A. K. Jain, who conducted the postmortem report of the deceased, that as to whether death of deceased is possible due to carrying of a dead foetus by the deceased? The answer was in the negative. This witness has further testified that " मृतका के पेट में पोस्टमार्टम के समय एक बच्चा पाया गया था वह मृत था, वह लगभग 9 माह का था,,,,,,मृतका के शरीर पर कोई जाहिरा चोट नहीं थी और न कोई संघर्ष के निशान थे।" Further, the defence has also produced D.W-1 Dr G. K. Jain, who was also present with the doctor (P.W.-3) conducting the postmortem, in his defence, to contend that the deceased died due to excretion of some poisonous chemical substance after the death of the foetus. In this regard, D.W.-1 has testified that if any foetus dies in its mother's womb, then there is possibility of toxin coming out of the dead foetus, which might affect the mother and possibility of death of mother cannot be ruled out, but a suggestion put to this witness from defence as to whether any poison like "Aluminium Phosphide' (Celphos) etc. could be excreted/found after the death of foetus in the womb, was denied by this witness in quite specific terms. It is not disputed that the deceased died on account of the poison "Aluminium Phosphide' and the defence version also gets falsified itself from the testimony of D.W.-4 Dr Vinay Kumar, Radiologist, who had testified before the trial court "24/10/2003 को गर्भाशय में बच्चा सीधा व ठीक हालत में था, कोई बीमारी नहीं थी और न 24/10/2003 को बच्चा गर्भ में मरा था।" Thus, from the version of the defence witnesses, it is believed that though the foetus died in the womb of mother then also the mother could be alive for more than two or three days and it could not be attributed to be the cause of the death of the deceased.

52. In the case in hand, the accused/appellants are suspected to have administered poison to the deceased. Admittedly, it is a case where no direct evidence is available for administering poison. It is well settled that circumstantial evidence, in order to sustain the conviction, must satisfy that the circumstances from which the inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established on the basis of some set of evidence, which unerringly points towards the guilt of the accused persons. In other words, circumstances taken cumulatively should form a complete chain so that there is no escape from the conclusion that in all human probability, the crime was committed, by the accused and none else, and it should also be incapable of explanation on any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused.

53. The Supreme Court in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra reported in (1984) 4 SCC 116, in the case of death by poisoning held that the Court must carefully scan the evidence and determine the following four important circumstances which can justify a conviction:

i). the accused had the poison in his possession.

ii). the deceased died of poison said to have been administered.

iii). accused had an opportunity to administer the poison to the deceased.

iv). there is a clear motive for the accused to administer poison to the deceased.

54. From the aforesaid, it is clear that in the case of murder by administering poison, the Court must carefully scan the evidence and determine the aforesaid four important circumstances. In the light of above principles, it is necessary to ascertain whether in the present case, the aforesaid four important circumstances have been established or not ?

55. From the evidence available on record the prosecution has not been able to establish that the accused had any motive to commit murder of deceased by administering poison to her. Though prosecution has tried to suggest that the deceased was having foetus older than the period of her marriage and out of this fear and resultant shame, they might have committed murder of the deceased, also does not stand to appeal.

56. In the present case, it is undisputed that the deceased was carrying pregnancy of more than 32 weeks and 4 days and it was in the sole knowledge of the family of the accused persons and in that situation and for that reason no one would ever try to kill the deceased and also stop the birth of the child vis-a-vis no woman would even think of ending her life at the tender age of 22 years unless the circumstances had become such that to embrace death appeared to be a better option than to live. The prosecution has failed to adduce any concrete evidence on record to substantiate its case in relation to motive that all the appellants have conspired together to eliminate the deceased for carrying a foetus older than the period of her marriage, is not sufficient to connect the appellants with the commission of the murder of deceased by administering her poison. Therefore, we have no hesitation in rejecting the theory propounded with regard to the motive for the murder of the deceased. From the evidence available on record, we are of the considered opinion that the prosecution has failed to prove that the accused had any motive to administer poison to the deceased with an intention to cause her death.

57. Though, on the state of the evidence as it exists on record, it can not be concluded positively that "Aluminium Phosphide' (celphos) was administered to the deceased or the accused had any opportunity available to them for administering poison to the deceased, to prove the contrary circumstance that the accused/appellants had the poison in their possession, the prosecution has failed to bring on record any specific evidence to substantiate the said fact. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the prosecution has not been able to establish even this circumstance by adducing reliable and cogent evidence that the appellants were in possession of the poison or had actually administered the same to the deceased with the deliberate intention to kill her.

58. As regards the other two conditions i.e. the deceased died due to poisoning and the accused/appellants had an opportunity to administer the poison to the deceased, true it is that the prosecution has been able to prove the fact of presence of the appellants with the deceased at the relevant time and that the deceased died of poison, as is evident from the report of Forensic Science Laboratory (Ex. Ka-4) that "Aluminium Phosphide' poison was found in the viscera of the deceased, but, in absence of any concrete evidence establishing that the accused/appellants had any opportunity to administer poison to the deceased and that they had secured the poison from a particular source, it cannot be said that the prosecution has been able to prove the guilt of accused appellants under section 302 IPC by leading cogent and reliable evidence that it is the accused/appellants who have caused death of deceased.

59. From the facts and circumstances of the case, we find that there is no evidence on record to connect the appellants with the murder of deceased or at least to draw an inference that they had actually administered poison to the deceased. In other words the main link in the chain of circumstances is completely broken and there is no connecting evidence whatsoever worth mentioning incriminating the appellants with the murder of deceased. However, we find that the prosecution has been able to prove that the deceased-Meena was treated with cruelty by the appellants, who happened to be the husband, mother-in-law, and her father-in-law, in her matrimonial home and that she died in her matrimonial home otherwise than in normal circumstances within seven months of her marriage. Therefore, their conviction by the trial Court under Section 304-B IPC and Section 498-A IPC and Section ¾ of D. P. Act deserves to be affirmed and conviction and sentence of the appellants under Section 302 IPC deserves to be set aside.

60. The only issue now before this Court is with regard to the sentence to be imposed upon the appellants for the said offence. Section 304-B IPC prescribes the minimum and the maximum sentence, which may be imposed upon an accused. Since the minimum and maximum sentences are prescribed, the maximum sentence should be imposed in the "rarest of the rare case", and not at the drop of the hat. Some cogent reasons had to be given by the learned Trial Court for prescribing the harshest punishment for the said offence. Moreover, bare perusal of the impugned judgment clearly reveals that no such reasons have been assigned by the learned Trial Court for imposing the harshest punishment of life imprisonment under Section 304-B IPC.

61. In Hem Chand Vs State of Haryana, (1994) 6 SCC 727, the Apex Court observed that awarding extreme punishment, of life imprisonment for the offence under Section 304-B IPC, should be in rare case: and not in all cases. In that case a sentence of 10 years rigorous imprisonment was held to meet the ends of justice.

62. In Smt Shanti and Another Vs State of Haryana, Air 1991 Sc 1226, the Apex Court awarded the minimum sentence of 7 years rigorous imprisonment for such an offence. Again in Salamat Ali VS State of Bihar, A.I.R. 1995 Supreme Court 1863, their Lordships upheld a sentence of 7 years' imposed upon the husband for the dowry death of his wife.

63. In the case of Mohd. Hoshan Vs. State of A.P., 2002 SCC (Crl.) 1765, the Apex Court deemed it appropriate to modify the sentence of imprisonment to the period already undergone having regard to the fact that both the appellants were under imprisonment for about two months. The incident in that case had taken place on 09.03.1983; appellant No. 2 is the mother of appellant No. 1 and was aged about 60 years. In these circumstances, it was held that since both the appellants are on bail it may not be appropriate to sent them to jail. This was a case where the appellants were convicted under Section 306 read with Section 498-A IPC.

64. Similarly in the case of Devi Ram Vs. State of Haryana, 2002 (10) SCC 76, wherein the incident in question relates to the year 1987 and the appellant had already served a part of his sentence, after observing that the appellant was an aged person after upholding his conviction, the sentence was reduced to the period already undergone. However a condition was imposed on appellant to deposit the fine of Rs.10,000/- and in default to serve out remaining part of his sentence. This was also a case under Section 306 IPC and Section 498-A IPC.

65. Further, in the case of Satvir Singh Vs. State of Punjab (supra), 2001 (8) SCC 633, the Apex Court did not interfere with the conviction under Section 498-A IPC. In this case both the appellants were aged and had crossed the age of 70 years and therefore, the Apex Court decided to modify the sentence by reducing it to the period already undergone. However, the fine part of the sentence was enhanced to rupees one lakh.

66. In the case of Kansraj Vs. State of Punjab, 2000 (5) SCC 207, the conviction under Section 304-B and Section 306 IPC was upheld but the sentences awarded was reduced to five years besides payment of fine as imposed by the trial Court.

67. However, in the instant case, it is an admitted fact that a young and promising life has been snuffed out within seven months of her marriage. The deceased would have hoped that her married life would be happy and full of joy. But instead, she was subjected to cruelty and harassment at the hands of the appellants and therefore, the learned Trial Court is justified in convicting the appellants for the offences under Section 304-B, 498-A IPC and Section ¾ of D.P. Act. After giving our careful thought to the facts and circumstances of this case, we find that it is not that type of rare case, which may warrant imposition of the extreme sentence of life imprisonment under Section 304-B IPC without assigning any reasons. Learned Trial Court is not justified in imposing the harshest penalty of life imprisonment upon the appellants, therefore, a lesser sentence would be enough to meet the ends of justice.

68. Consequently, while affirming the conviction of the appellants for the offences under Section 304-B IPC, Section 498-A IPC and Section ¾ of D. P. Act, we reduce the sentence of life imprisonment imposed upon them for the offence under Section 304-B IPC to a period of imprisonment as directed hereinafter. The conviction and sentence of all the appellants under Section 302 IPC is hereby set aside.

69. Insofar as appellants no. 2 (Chhajju) and appellant No. 3 (Smt Premwati) are concerned, they are stated to be on bail by this Court and are aged more than 60 and 65 years respectively. In view of what has been laid down in the above-cited judgments, we find that after six years of their conviction as also looking to the old age of the appellants no. 2 & 3 and also that at the fag end of their lives, no useful purpose would be served in sending the appellants no. 2 & 3, to jail again and as such, the sentence awarded to them is further reduced to the period already undergone, while maintaining their convictions under Section 304-B, Section 498A IPC and Section ¾ of D. P. Act only. Appellant Nos. 2 and 3 are on bail. Their bail bonds stand cancelled and sureties are discharged.

70. As far as the case of the first appellant no. 1 Ravi, the husband of the deceased is concerned, his conviction is maintained u/s 304-B, 498A IPC and Section ¾ of D. P. Act. And so far as sentence of life imprisonment imposed upon him for the offence under Section 304-B IPC is concerned, the same is reduced to a period of 8 years. All the sentences under different count shall run concurrently in respect of appellant no. 1.

71. Let a copy of the judgment be sent to the court concerned through Sessions Judge, Moradabad within fifteen days. The trial court shall thereafter report compliance within one month.

72. With the above modification, this appeal stands disposed of.

1. These appeals emanate from the common judgment and order dated 25.07.2015 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Mau in Sessions Trial Nos. 110 of 2012 (State Vs. Rama Shankar and otehrs) and 203 of 2013 (State Vs. Gaurishankar @ Bhuwar) arising out of Case Crime No. 828 of 2011 under Sections 307, 302, 324 read with section 34, 352, 504, 506 IPC, Police Station Haldharpur, District Mau by which appellants have been convicted and sentenced under Section 302/34 IPC with life imprisonment and fine of Rs. 10,000/- for each, in default of payment rigorous imprisonment for a period of two months; under Section 307/34 IPC with rigorous imprisonment for the period of five years' and fine of Rs. 2000/- for each, in default of payment rigorous imprisonment for a period of one month; under Section 324/34 IPC with rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year for each; under Section 352 IPC with rigorous imprisonment for a period of one month each; under Section 504 IPC with rigorous imprisonment of three months' for each and under Section 506 IPC with rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year for each which are to run concurrently, therefore these appeals are heard and being decided together.

2. The prosecution case in brief is that on 06.11.2011 at 3.00 P.M. informant Anil

Kumar s/o Yodhan r/o Bilaujha (Banati), Police Station Haldharpur, District Mau alongwith his brothers Sunil, Pappu and Arvind was cutting down the boundary line of his field located beside Saiyad Baba in SHEEVAN of Naseerabad Kala. His cousin Rama Shankar, Surjeet @ Loha, Gaurishankar @ Bhuwar and their brother-in-law Phoolbadan came there and assaulted them with sticks and spade. Surjeet @ Loha was armed with spade and others with sticks. Surjeet @ Loha exhorted to kill them. They fell down on the ground as a result injured-Sunil and Pappu became unconscious. Informant and his brother Arvind cried for help. Villagers came there. Then accused-appellants fled away from the spot but Pappu succumbed to injuries and Sunil was brought to the hospital with the help of villagers where he also succumbed to injuries.

3. On the same day at 4.15 P.M. informant Anil Kumar lodged the F.I.R. at Police Station Haldharpur against accused-appellants Rama Shankar, Surjeet @ Loha, Gaurishankar @ Bhuwar and Phoolbadan as Case Crime No. 828 of 2011 under Section 307, 302, 324, 352, 504, 506 IPC read with Section 34 IPC. Entry of F.I.R. was made in G.D. Report No. 27 and chitthi majroobi of injured Sunil Kumar was prepared and he was sent to the hospital for treatment. Investigation of the case was handed over to Station Officer S.I. Indrajeet.

4. Injured Sunil Kumar was medically examined on the same day at 6.15 P.M. at District Hospital, Mau. Following injuries were found on his person:

I. Incised wound 9.5 cm x 1 cm x bone deep on left parietal region of skull, 8 cm above from left ear. Advised for x-ray of skull.

II. Contusion 3 cm x 2 cm on right occipital region of skull 11 cm post to right ear. Advised for x-ray of skull.

III. Abraded contusion 3 cm x 2.5 cm on left side of forehead 2 cm from left ear.

IV. Contused swelling 11 cm x 12 cm on dorsum of left hand including fingers. Advised x-ray of left hand.

V. Abraded contusion 14 cm x 8 cm dorsum of right hand including fingers. Advised x-ray of right hand.

VI. Lacerated wound 3 cm x 1.5 cm x 40 cm on left leg, 11 cm below from left knee joint. Advised x-ray of left leg.

VII. Abrasion 2 cm x 1 cm on front of left leg 3 cm above the injury no. 6. Advised x-ray of left leg.

VIII. Contusion with swelling 9 cm x 7 cm around the injury no. 6 and 7. Advised x-ray of left leg.

IX. Contused swelling 9.5 cm x 5.5 cm on lateral aspect of left ankle joint. Advised x-ray left ankle.

Opinion: all injuries KUO except injury no. 3. Injury no. 3 is simple in nature. Injury no. 1 caused by sharp object. Other injuries caused by hard & blunt object. Duration fresh. Patient admitted in emergency.

On the same day Sunil Kumar succumbed to injuries at District Hospital.

5. Investigating officer Indrajeet alongwith S.I. Shri Ram Vishwakarma arrived at the place of occurrence on the same day at about 4.45 P.M. and got prepared inquest report about deceased Pappu and his dead body was sealed and handed over to constable and Head Constable Hari Ram with essential papers for carrying the dead body to mortuary for post-mortem.

6. On 7.11.2011 inquest report of deceased Sunil was also prepared by S.I Shri Ram Vishwkarma and dead body was sent for post-mortem.

7. On the same day autopsy of the dead bodies of Pappu and Sunil Kumar was done and post-mortem reports were prepared by Dr. Mahendra Kumar Gupta.

8. The post-mortem report of deceased Pappu shows that he was aged about 18 years. Average built body. Eyes and mouth closed. Rigor mortis was present in lower extremitis. Ante-mortem injuries:- (1) Lacerated wound 3 cm x 2 cm on forehead right side just above eyebrow x bone deep underlying frontal bone fractured. (2) Lacerated wound 2 cm x 2 cm on bone of index finger of right hand x bone deep.

In internal examination: membranes and brain were found lacerated, right & left lungs were pale, right chamber was full and left chamber was empty, semi digested food material 200 ml was present in the stomach, fecal matter and gases were present in small and large intestine, rectum was partially loaded, gall bladder was half filled weighing 11 gm, pancrease 300 gm, spleen 250 gm, kidneys 200 gm, urinary bladder was empty. Cause of death was coma due to ante-mortem head injury.

9. The post-mortem report of deceased Sunil Kumar shows that he was aged about 22 years. Average built body. Eyes and mouth closed. Rigor mortis was present in all limbs. Other natural orifice were NAD. Ante-mortem injuries:-(1) Stitched wound left side skull after removal 9 stitch length 8 cm x width 1 cm x bone deep, 8 cm above the left ear pinna underlying temporal parietal bone fractured. (2) Stitched wound left side leg 4 cm below left side knee joint on removal of stitch length 3 cm x width 1 cm x bone deep. Underlying tibia fibula fractured. (3) Stitched wound 1 cm x ½ cm x muscle deep on right hand dorsal surface.

In internal examination: membranes and brain were found lacerated. Ribs cartilages pleura larynx were NAD. Right & left lungs were NAD. Pericordium was NAD. Right chamber was full and left chamber was empty. Oesophagus was NAD. Vocal cavity teeth 16/16. Semi digested food contents about 200 ml in the stomach. Small intestine and large intestine were full with gases & fecal matter. Rectum was partially loaded. Lever weighing 1100 gm. Gall bladder was half filled. Pancrease 250 gm. Spleen 250 gm. Kidneys 300 gm. Urinary bladder was empty. Cause of death was coma due to ante-mortem head injury.

10. On 06.11.2011, Investigating Officer Shri Indrajeet visited the site of occurrence, he recovered a blood stained spade and three sticks (lathies) from the spot. Taking these items in his possession, he sealed them and prepared the memo in presence of witnesses. He also took plain and blood stained soil from the spot where incident took place and sent them to forensic science laboratory for analysis. He prepared the site plan and recorded the statements of witnesses. Having collected the evidence, he filed charge sheet against appellants under Sections 307, 302, 324 read with Section 34, 352, 504, 506 IPC before the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mau.

11. The court concerned took cognizance of the offence and provided copies of papers to appellants in compliance of Section 207 Cr.P.C. The case was committed for trial to the court of session against appellants Rama Shankar, Gauri @ Bhuwar and Phoolbadan.

12. Accused-Surjeet @ Loha was found to be juvenile, therefore, case against him was sent to Juvenile Justice Board for inquiry.

13. The court of Session (hereinafter referred to as 'Trial Court') framed charges against appellants under Sections 307, 302, 324 IPC read with Section 34 IPC and 352, 504, 506 IPC. Charges were read over to appellants. They did not plead guilty but denied and claimed for trial.

14. In support of its case prosecution examined P.W.1 Anil Kumar (informant). P.W.2 Arvind as witness of fact. P.W.3 Dr. B.B. Singh who examined injured/deceased Sunil Kumar and prepared injury report. P.W.4 Dr. Mahndra Kumar Gupta who conducted autopsy and prepared post-mortem reports relating to deceased Pappu and Sunil Kumar. P.W.5 S.I. Indrajeet who investigated the case and prepared the charge sheet. P.W.6 Head Constable Rajendra Prasad Yadav who lodged the F.I.R. on the basis of tahreer (information) given by informant and made G.D. Entry. P.W.7 constable Siddheshwar Pandey as parokar.

15. After conclusion of prosecution evidence statements of accused-appellants were recorded under Section 313 in which they denied the prosecution version and said it to be false.

16. Appellants were given opportunity for defence. They examined D.W.1 Kamla Ram, D.W.2 Chhangur Rajbhar and D.W.3 Biggu and in defence they filed some papers form 55-kha to 58-kha through list of 54-kha.

17. Thereafter, arguments were heard for both the parties prosecution as well as appellants and they were found guilty as a result they were convicted and sentenced as aforesaid by judgment and order dated 25.07.2015 under challenge in these appeals before this Court.

18. We heard Mohd. Monis, learned counsel for appellants and Shri Ravi Prakash, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

19. Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that informant lodged the first information report after consultation which is ante-time. They have been falsely implicated. There is no motive to murder two real brothers by their cousin (appellants) and brother-in-law. P.W.1 and P.W.2 are real brothers. They are relative and interested witnesses. No any independent witness has been examined by the prosecution. P.W.1 is handicapped, he cannot reach the site of occurrence by jumping four feet high boundary wall of the field, so his presence and testimony becomes suspicious. P.W.2 is not reliable because he is not able to know whereabouts of the place of occurrence. Injuries have been said to be caused with spade which was in the hands of accused-Surjeet @ Loha who has been declared juvenile. So, these accused-appellants cannot be made liable for that. The injuries caused to deceased persons may happen by fall on edge of spade as opined by doctor, it creates doubt. Accused-appellant Phoolbadan was out in relation to employment. Inquest report has also not been testified by the witnesses. In this way whole prosecution story is not believable and trial court has erred in making proper appreciation of evidence on record. It has recorded the conviction and sentence only on the basis of surmises and conjectures which is liable to be set aside. Thus, accused-appellants are requested to be acquitted.

20. Learned A.G.A. opposed the argument advanced by learned counsel for appellants and submitted that there is no law which makes relative witness unworthy of credit. F.I.R. is not ante-time. There is no contradictions in the witness account. This is a case of direct evidence so absence of motive is of no effect. Informant and accused-appellants belong to the same family & village. Therefore, no person of the village dare to come as witness but testimony of witnesses inspires confidence. There is no iota of suspicion. Learned Trial Court has rightly convicted and sentenced to appellants for the charges, therefore, these appeals are liable to be dismissed.

21. From the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perusal of record, the following question emerge for consideration before this Court. Whether appellants are proved to be responsible for causing injuries to the deceased persons which later on, proved fatal to them and also as to whether the F.I.R. is anti-time; motive is absent; witnesses are relatives and credibility of their account; case of defense that deceased persons died of falling from a tree in which members of their family got monetary gain from the Government and accused/appellant Phoolbadan was not present at the time of occurrence but he was working for his livelihood in Benglore.

22. Before we deal with the contentions raised by learned counsel for the appellants, it will be convenient to take note of the evidence which has been adduced by the prosecution.

23. PW-1 Anil Kumar has deposed that on 06.11.2011 at about 3 o'clock, he alongwith his brothers Sunil, Pappu and Arvind was cutting down the boundary line of his field. Meanwhile his cousin Ramashankar, Sujit @ Loha, Gauri Shankar @ Bhunwar and Phoolbadan assailed with lathi, danda and spade. Sujit was equipped with spade and others with lathi. Sujit incited to kill. They all beat Sunil and Pappu with the help of lathi, danda and spade. Injured became unconscious then accused/appellants ran towards Arvind who was crying for help. Anyhow he managed to escape and informed the villagers who came there and appellants went away. Pappu succumbed injuries and Sunil was groaning due to injuries and was crying to rescue him. With the help of villagers Arvind brought him to the District Hospital where he also succumbed to injuries at 6:45 P.M.

24. PW-2 Arvind has deposed that occurrence took place at 3:00 P.M. on 06.11.2011. At the time of occurrence, he alongwith his brothers Anil, Sunil & Pappu was cutting down the boundary line of his field in the Siwan at Naseerabad Kalan. After a while appellants namely Ramashankar, Sujit @ Loha, Gauri Shankar @ Bhunwar and Phoolbadan having lathi, danda and spade came there. Sujit @ Loha exorted to kill and all the appellants started assaulting Sunil Kumar and Pappu. Sunil Kumar became unconscious and Pappu died on the spot. Anyhow he escaped and informed in the village. Villagers came on the spot then accused persons went away while abusing. He brought Sunil Kumar to District Hospital where he succumbed to injuries at 6:45 P.M.

25. Both these witnesses have been put through grueling cross-examination but they have categorically stated the names of these four accused/appellants for committing the murder of Pappu and Sunil Kumar. They have never said that they were not present on the spot though there are some contradictions in their testimony but they are of cosmetic nature so of no use.

26. There is no enmity between the parties. They belong to near relation. There is no dispute about identification of appellants. Occurrence took place at 3 o'clock in the day time. Appellants have also not disclosed any enmity with the informant as well as with prosecution witnesses which might adversely affect their reliability and become an excuse for implicating them falsely while absolving real culprits.

27. There is not even an iota of evidence on record which may even remotely suggest that PW-1 and PW-2 had any grouse against the appellants for any cause to implicate them falsely. In our opinion the evidence on record clearly establishes the case of prosecution against the appellants beyond any shadow of doubt.

28. Injuries on the person of deceased Pappu and Sunil Kumar were caused by spade, lathi and danda as stated by PW-1 and PW-2. Exibit Ka-2 is injury report of deceased Sunil Kumar which shows multiple injuries on his person. PW-3 Dr. B.B. Singh has proved the injuries and told that injury no.1 was caused by some sharp edged weapon and others were caused by some hard and blunt object. He also opined that injury no.1 might be caused with gadasa and others with lathi, danda. All the injuries were caused at about 3:00 P.M. on 06.11.2011. PW-4 Dr. Mahendra Kumar Gupta conducted post-mortem of the dead body of the deceased Pappu and Sunil Kumar. He stated that on the person of Pappu there was lacerated wound 3x2 cm bone deep on head above right side eye, frontal bone was fractured, other lacerated wound 2x2 cm x bone deep was on the base of index finger in right hand. Cause of death was ante-mortem injury on the head. He also opined that all these injuries might have been caused with lathi, danda and spade or by sharp edged weapon at about 3:00 P.M. on 06.11.2011. Likewise on the body of Sunil Kumar, he found temporal and parietal bone fractured. On left leg 4 cm below knee joint there was fracture in tibia and fibula bones. He opined that cause of death was coma as a result of ante-mortem head injury and all the injuries might have been caused on 06.11.2011 at about 3:00 P.M. by lathi, danda and spade like sharp objects.

29. In this way injuries found on the body of the deceased Pappu and Sunil Kumar are proved to have been caused with lathi, danda and spade at about 3:00 P.M. on 06.11.2011 and it corroborates the manner of causing injuries resulting into death as stated by PW-1 and PW-2. Thus, the eye witnesses account finds complete corroboration from the medical evidence on record.

30. There is no any inordinate delay in lodging the F.I.R. Occurrence took place at 3:00 P.M. and F.I.R. was lodged at 4:15 P.M. The distance between police station and village where the incident took place is 10 kms, therefore, F.I.R. is prompt.

31. PW-5 Sub-Inspector, Indrajeet Singh has proved investigation of the case. Exibit Ka-5 & Exibit Ka-6 are fard (recovery memos) of weapons lathi, danda and spade used in the commission of crime. He has also proved the bundles containing boxes of blood stained and plain soil. Exibit Ka-22 is report from Forensic Science Laboratory where lathi, danda and spade, blood stained and plain soil was sent for analysis and blood stains were also found on them. It proves that lathi, danda and spade were used in commission of crime and place of occurrence was the same as stated by PW-1 and PW-2.

32. It has been argued that PW-1 Anil Kumar has expressed in his cross-examination that he got tehrir written by Ashwani Kumar who met him at 6:00 P.M. on the place of occurrence but time of lodging the F.I.R. has been shown to be at 4:15 P.M. which is not possible. It clearly shows that F.I.R. was lodged ante-time. Not only this but PW-2 has also made similar statements.

33. In this regard the time mentioned in the F.I.R. is 4:15 P.M. when it was lodged at the police station on the basis of tehrir given by informant. G.D. Entry also shows the time of lodging the F.I.R. as 4:15 P.M. On inquest report of deceased Pappu Exibit Ka-11 time of lodging the F.I.R. has been mentioned by Sub-Inspector, Ramji Vishwakarma as 4:15 P.M. He has started inquest at 4:45 P.M. and concluded it at 5:00 P.M. This inquest report has been prepared in presence of witnesses Dashrath, Manoj, Vijay Kumar, Sunil Kumar and Anil Kumar. Chitthi Majrubi for injured/deceased Sunil Kumar was also prepared by Head Constable at police station concerned at the same time when F.I.R. was lodged and Sunil Kumar has been medically examined at about 6:20 P.M. at District Hospital. Medical Report prepared by the doctor is Exibit Ka-2 which is written on the back side of Chitthi Majrubi. It infers that F.I.R. was lodged at police station prior to 6:20 P.M. F.I.R. as well as medical report both cannot be said to be ante-time because Medical Officer might have no interest in preparing such report anti-time. In this way, the submission made by learned counsel for the appellants that tehrir was got written by Ashwani Kumar after 6:00 P.M. and F.I.R. was lodged ante-time i.e. at 4:15 P.M. does not get support. Discrepancies in the statements of PW-1 and PW-2 in this regard are immaterial and negligible. Thus, argument made by learned counsel that F.I.R. is ante-time is not sustainable.

34. Learned counsel has also drawn attention of this Court towards the absence of motive to commit murder. He urged that the prosecution has failed to prove any motive on the part of the appellants to commit the crime.

35. It is true that there is no mention of motive in F.I.R. about the commission of crime. Even PW-1 and PW-2 have also not disclosed anything that became the root cause of committing murder by the appellants. The instant cause of commission of crime cannot be said to be as cutting down of boundary line of their field by the deceased persons but there is no such principle or rule of law that where the prosecution fails to prove motive for commission of the crime, it must necessarily result in acquittal of the accused. Where ocular evidence is found to be trustworthy and reliable and finds corroboration from the medical evidence, a finding of guilt can safely be recorded even if the motive for the commission of crime has not been proved.

36. In State of Himachal Pradesh Vs. Jeet Singh 1999 (38) ACC 550 SC, it was held that no doubt it is a sound principle to remember that every criminal act was done with a motive but it's corollary is not that no offence was committed if the prosecution failed to prove the precise motive of the accused to commit it as it is almost an impossibility for the prosecution to unravel full dimension of the mental deposition of an offender towards the person whom he offended.

37. In Nathuni Yadav and others vs. State of Bihar and others 1997 (34) ACC 576, it was held that motive for committing a criminal act, is generally a difficult area for prosecution as one cannot normally see into the mind of another. Motive is the emotion which impels a man to do a particular act and such impelling cause unnecessarily need not be proportionately grave to grave crimes. It was further held that many a murders have been committed without any known or prominent motive and it is quite possible that the aforesaid impelling factor would remain undiscoverable.

38. In our opinion, in the facts and circumstances of the case the absence of an evidence on the point of motive cannot have any such impact so as to discard the other reliable evidence available on record which certainly establishes the guilt of the accused. In the case of Thaman Kumar vs. State of Union Territory of Chandigarh 2003 (47) ACC 7 the Hon'ble Apex Court has reiterated the same view after taking into consideration the aforementioned cases.

39. The next limb of argument of learned counsel for the appellants is that the prosecution had examined highly interested and relative witnesses and they have not produced any independent witness in support of its case. No doubt the witnesses of fact examined in the case are real brothers but both of them are clearly related to the deceased. Relationship itself is not a ground to reject the testimony of witness, rather he would be last person to leave the real culprit and falsely implicate any other person.

40. In the case of Brahm Swaroop and another vs. State of U.P. (2011) 6 SCC 288 the Hon'ble Apex Court in Para No.21 has observed as under "merely because the witnesses were related to the deceased persons, their testimonies cannot be discarded. Their relationship to one of the parties is not a factor that affects the credibility of a witness, more so, a relation would not conceal the real culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. A party has to lay down a factual foundation and prove by leading impeccable evidence in respect of its false implication. However, in such cases the Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse the evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible evidence."

41. The Court also referred cases of Dalip and others vs. State of Punjab A.I.R. (1953) SC 364; Masalti vs. State of U.P. (A.I.R.) 1965 SC 202.

42. In Masalti vs. State of U.P. (A.I.R.) 1965 SC 202, the Hon'ble Apex Court observed in Para No.14

"but it would, we think, be unreasonably to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. The mechanical rejection of such evidence on sole ground that it's partisan would inveriably lead to failure of justice. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how much evidence should be appreciated. Judicial approach has to be cautious in dealing with such evidence; but the plea that such evidence should be rejected because it's partisan cannot be accepted as correct.

43. It is common knowledge that village life is faction ridden and involvement of one or the other in the incidents is not unusual. One has also to be cautious about the fact that wholly independent witnesses are seldom available or are otherwise not inclined to comeforth. Lest they may invite trouble for themselves for future. Therefore, relationship of eye-witnesses inter se, cannot be a ground to discard their testimony. There is no reason to suppose the false implication of the appellants at the instance of the eye-witnesses. It would also be illogical to think that witnesses would screen the real culprits and substitute the appellants for them.

44. This Court has also made such observations in Para No.14 of Rameshwar and others vs. State 2003 (46) ACC 581.

45. Learned counsel for the appellants also argued that deceased persons were climbing on a tree and fell down on the spade kept thereunder as a result sustained injuries ensuing their death for which compensation was given to the dependents by the Government but owing to enmity they have been implicated in this case. To support this argument he has examined DW-3 Biggu who has stated in his examination-in-chief that there was no any dispute or marpeet between Ramashankar, Anil, Pappu and Sunil Kumar on 06.11.2011. In cross-examination he has stated that Sunil Kumar and Pappu were not murdered but they died of falling from a tree. They fell down from a tree at 12 o'clock in the day. He further stated that the tree from which Pappu and Sunil Kumar fell down is located at the site of Sayed Baba. They climbed on the tree for breaking woods and they fell down, he did not go there to rescue them. In the light of statement made by this witness, when we consider the evidence on record, it appears that the statements of appellants under Section 313 Cr.P.C. never spoke about such defense. Site plan Exibit Ka-7 shows that the site of Sayed Baba is located in the south at about 20 steps far from the place where the dead body of the deceased Pappu and injured Sunil Kumar were found lying as indicated by A & B. In between the two places there are bamboo shrubs in continuous like boundary wall. It can not be possible for the dead person and so grieviously injured person to go away from the place at Sayed Baba to the places A & B. Further, the witness said himself to be present in his field till 4:30 P.M. which was 10 to 15 steps far from the place of incident but he had not disclosed as to how dead body of deceased Pappu and injured Sunil Kumar reached on the place A & B. In addition to this no broken woods were found anywhere around the place of occurrence whether that be place A & B or near Sayed Baba site. In this regard no question has been put before the Investigating Officer on the part of appellants during his cross-examination before the trial Court. In this way the testimony of DW-3 is not reliable but appears to be totally false.

46. In this regard PW-1 and PW-2 have categorically stated before the Court that appellants assaulted Pappu and Sunil Kumar with lathi, danda and spade. Sujit @ Loha used spade. Medical report Exibit Ka-2 shows 8 injuries on the person of deceased Sunil Kumar; an incised wound Injury no.1 was found on the skull, 8 cm above left ear. Injury No.2 was on the right occipital region of skull; Injury No.3 abraded contusion was on the left side of forehead. Injury No.4 contused swelling on left hand. Injury No.5 abraded contusion on right hand including fingers. Injury No.6 lacerated would on left leg 11 cm below knee joint. Injury No.7 abrasion on left leg. Injury No.8 contusion with swelling around Injury Nos.6 & 7. Injury No.9 contused swelling on left ankle joint. Except Injury No.3 all injuries were kept under observation. Injury No.1 was caused by sharp edged weapon. Post-mortem report of deceased Sunil Kumar is Exibit Ka-4 in which ante-mortem injury shows fracture of parietal bone. Tibia and fibula in left leg was also fractured. Likewise post-mortem report of deceased Pappu shows fracture of frontal bone.

47. PW-3 Dr. B.B. Singh has stated that injury no.1 might be caused with sharp edged weapon and other injuries with lathi and danda. In his cross-examination he has expressed possibility that injury no.1 might be caused by falling on sharp edged weapon and likewise Injury no.2 to 9 might have also been caused by falling on the ground. PW-4 Dr. Mahendra Kumar Gupta who conducted post-mortem has stated in his cross-examination that Injury no.1 on the person of deceased Pappu might be caused by striking several times. He had also denied the possibility of death of deceased Pappu and Sunil Kumar by falling from any hill or highly situated place.

48. The nature of injuries on the person of Sunil Kumar shows that there are injuries all over his person. Usually a man falling from a free will get injury of fracture either on head or on legs but injuries (fracture) on both sides are not possible.

49. Exhibit Ka-7 is site plan. Investigating Officer has shown the place of occurrence as A & B where deceased Pappu and Sunil Kumar were found lying. There is no any tree on this place. There are trees of guavas, mullberries, neem and mangoes but far from that place. In this point of view also the arguments of learned counsel for the appellants is of no substance.

50. Learned counsel for the appellants has also argued that appellants Phoolbadan was not present on the spot at the time of occurrence but he was out in relation to his livelihood and was living at Benglore.

51. In the statement of Phoolbadan u/s 313 Cr.P.C. he has not made such statement. Suggestion in this regard has been placed before PW-1 but he has never acceded the absence of Phoolbadan. During his cross-examination he has asserted that appellant Phoolbadan was present with other appellants at the time of incident. PW-2 Arvind has also denied the suggestion regarding appellant Phoolbadan as not being present at the place of occurrence.

52. In defense appellants have examined DW-1 Kamla Ram who has stated that from 2008 to 2011 i.e. till December 2011 Phoolbadan worked at Benglore with him. For a period of one year Phoolbadan lived with him in a room thereafter Phoolbadan took his family and began to live in adjacent room. They, both, worked together. He got Phoolbadan admitted in hospital when he fell ill. At the time of coming home Phoolbadan fell ill and doctor advised him to take rest. He came back home in the last of month January, 2011. The hospital where Phoolbadan got admitted was called Municipal Hospital.

53. DW-2 Chhangur Rajbhar who was Village Pradhan of the village Pahdeva Jeet stated that on 06.11.2011 Phoolbadan was not in the Village Kharka. He had been living in Benglore from seven to eight months before and was working there. He came Kharka in the month of January, 2012. He has been implicated falsely in this case. His character is very good. In cross-examination he told that he is resident of village Kharka where Phoolbadan also lives. He was told by father of Phoolbadan that he is to witness in the case of Phoolbadan.

54. On considering the statements made by DW-1 & DW-2, it appears that there is nothing to support the defense version as stated by them. They have not narrated the specific place of work where he was employed. No any job card/duty card/attendance sheet has been filed to support his presence at that specific place at the time of incident. No any admission slip of hospital has been filed to show that on the date of occurrence appellant was not present. Even appellant Phoolbadan has not made any statement in this regard u/s 313 Cr.P.C. Paper nos. 58-kha/1 to 58-kha/4 are prescriptions of medicines but language used therein is not legible. Paper no. 59-kha is medical certificate in which appellant has been shown to be suffering from entric fever but the name & seal of the issuing authority is not legible. No any Authority/Officer has been examined to prove these papers and to support his defense version. So in lack of any such authentic evidence on record the bald statements made on behalf of appellant are of no help to him.

55. Having given our considerations to the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties, we are clearly of the opinion that the prosecution has succeeded in establishing its case against the appellants beyond any shadow of doubt and the view taken by learned Sessions Judge is right.

56. In the result the appeals lack merit and are hereby dismissed.

57. Copy of this judgment alongwith original record of Court below be transmitted to the Court concerned for necessary compliance. A compliance report be sent to this Court within one month. Office is directed to keep the compliance report on record.

(A) Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 376 (2) (g) - commits gang rape , Section 342 - punishment for wrongful confinement , Section 506 - punishment for criminal intimidation , Section 228-A - Disclosure of identity of the victim of certain offences - The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 - Section 3 (2) (v) - while appreciating evidence the number of counts of witnesses is not an important aspect in a matter - important is the quality of evidence given by the witness(s). (Para - 34)

P.W.-2 (First informant) - along with his wife, his two daughters namely "V" (prosecutrix/victim)(P.W.-1) and Thanwati and his son reached the brick kilns of Ram Chandra Mukhiya - allegation - first informant, his wife and his daughter were tied to a tree and about 8 meters away from the place and his elder daughter "V" aged about 16 years was then raped by the said three persons, which was witnessed by them helplessly as they were tied to the tree - accused/appellants have been convicted and sentenced under Section 342 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860. (Para - 3)

HELD:- Although "V" P.W.-1 is the prosecutrix/victim of the present case and P.W.-2 is the first informant and her father who claims himself to be an eye witness of the incident and both the witnesses have tried to narrate a version for implicating the accused appellants but the same is a concocted version is termed as a "concocted uniformity" and is thus not safe to be relied upon. The said two witnesses fall in the category of unreliable witnesses. Conviction of the appellants by the trial court is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The trial court committed an error in recording the conviction and sentence of the appellants. (Para - 42,43)

Criminal appeal allowed. (E - 6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Samit Gopal, J.)

[Delivered by Samit Gopal, J. for the Bench under Chapter VII Rule 1 (2) of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952]

1. The aforesaid appeals are connected together and arise out of judgment and order dated 31.10.2007 passed by the Additional District & Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No.4, Aligarh in Sessions Trial No. 367 of 1998 (State of U.P. vs. Anil) and Sessions Trial No. 278 of 1998 (State of U.P. vs. Vijay and another), whereby the accused/appellants Anil, Vijay Singh and Hariom Sharma have been convicted and sentenced under Section 342 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 for one year rigorous imprisonment, a fine of Rs. 1,000/- each and in default of payment of fine to one month simple imprisonment, under Section 376 (2) (g) of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 to Life imprisonment, a fine of Rs. 20,000/- each and in default of payment of fine to two months simple imprisonment, under Section 3 (2) (v) of The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 to Life imprisonment, a fine of Rs. 20,000/- each and in default of payment of fine to two month simple imprisonment. Further, the appellant no.2 Anil Kumar in Criminal Appeal No. 7686 of 2007 has been convicted and sentenced under Section 506 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 to two years rigorous imprisonment, a fine of Rs. 2,000/- and in default of payment of fine to two months imprisonment. The sentences have been ordered to run concurrently.

2. In view of the legislative mandate as contained in Section 228-A of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 and the observation made by the Apex Court in various judgments, the identity of the prosecutrix/victim is not being disclosed and she will be referred to as "V" hereinafter.

3. The prosecution case as per the first information report lodged by Paramsukh (P.W.-2) is that he along with his wife Smt. Kishan Pyari Devi aged about 55 years, his two daughters namely "V" aged about 16 years and Thanwati aged about 13 years and his son Ved Prakash aged about 10 years reached the brick kilns of Ram Chandra Mukhiya on 19.10.1994 at about 5.00 p.m. in the presence of Ram Singh Contractor, on which Ram Singh Contractor left him and his family members under the supervision of watchman Sherpal. After the contractor left the place, the first informant said to the watchman that his family will not be secured at the kiln and they be sent to the house of the owner but the watchman assured him that in an hour labours will come. The first informant pleaded many times to the watchman and later on went to his hut. Subsequently after sometime at about 7.00 p.m. three persons came to the hut and showed the first informant a country made pistol and directed him that he should call his family members out, otherwise they will burn the hut. It is further stated that the first informant then shouted for the watchman, who then went to the back side and the said persons then took his whole family along with himself to a field of paddy near the brick kiln. The first informant, his wife and his daughter were tied to a tree and about 8 meters away from the place and his elder daughter "V" aged about 16 years was then raped by the said three persons, which was witnessed by them helplessly as they were tied to the tree. It is further stated that out of the said persons he identified two of them, who are namely Thakur Pappu S/o Chintar Pal and Pandit Pappu S/o Babu Lal Sharma R/o Mulla Pada, Bhujpura and the third person was unknown. It is further stated that after about 30 minutes of the incident, the younger daughter of the first informant Km. Thanwati untied them. It is then stated that later on, the said incident was informed to the owner of the brick kiln, who told them that he will inform the police and he may not lodge any report, but since he did not take any action then he has come to lodge the present first information report.

4. An application for lodging of the first information report was given by Paramsukh, the same is marked as Exhibit Ka-1 to the records. On the basis of the said application, a first information report was registered on 22.10.1994 at about 17.30 hrs. at Police Station-Kotwali, District-Aligarh as Case Crime No. 219 of 1994, under Sections 342, 504, 376 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 and 3 (2) (v) of The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989. The said first information report is marked as Exhibit Ka-6 to the records.

5. The prosecutrix/victim "V" was medically examined on 22.10.1994 at 6.30 p.m. by Dr. S. Latoriya (P.W.-3) at Mohan Lal Gautam Women Hospital, Aligarh. The medical examination report is marked as Exhibit Ka-2 to the records. The doctor conducting the medical examination on local examination found the hymen to be torn, old tear present and the vagina admitting two fingers easily. It was mentioned in the medical examination report that no marks of injuries were seen over face, neck, chest, back abdomen and extremities. The opinion given by the doctor is as follows:-

"No definite opinion about rape can be given as she is used to intercourse."

For the determination of age of "V" she was advised X-ray, which was conducted on 24.10.1994 and a report was given by Dr. Qamar Ahmad (P.W.-4), in which after X-ray examination he opined as follows :-

"All centres of ossification united at the respective places."

The said report is marked as Exhibit Ka-3 to the records.

6. The accused/appellant Vijay Singh was also subjected to medical examination on 23.10.1994 at 8.25 p.m. and the doctor found the following injuries on his person:-

"(i) Abrasion 1 cm x ¼ cm on the right side of face.

(ii) Abraded contusion 2 cm x 1 cm on the bridge of nose.

(iii) Tenderness over the left elbow joint.

(iv) Tenderness over the left knee joint.

(v) Contusion 2 cm x 1 cm on the back of left midline chest.

(vi) Tenderness over the front of chest.

(vii) No sign of ext injury seen."

The doctor conducting the medical examination gave his opinion as follows:

"Injury No. 1 to 7 are simple caused by blunt object. Duration ½ day old."

7. The investigation concluded and a charge-sheet dated 21.11.1994 was submitted against the accused persons under Sections 342, 376, 506 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 and Section 3 (2) (v) of The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, the same is marked as Exhibit Ka-5 to the records.

8. The Trial Court vide its order dated 26.05.2003 framed charges against accused Vijay Singh and Hariom under Sections 342, 376 (2) (g) of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 and Section 3 (2) (v) of The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989.

9. Against accused Anil Kumar, the charges were framed vide order dated 12.10.1998 by the Trial Court under Sections 376, 342, 506 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 and Section 3 (2) (v) of The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989.

10. All the accused persons pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried. They have not led any defence evidence.

11. The prosecution in order to prove its case produced "V" as P.W.-1, who is the prosecutrix/victim and the daughter of the first informant. Paramsukh P.W.-2 is the first informant of the present matter and the father of "V", who claims himself to be an eyewitness of the incident. Amongst the formal witnesses Dr. S. Latoriya P.W.-3 conducted the medical examination of "V", Dr. Qamar Ahmad P.W.-4 is the Radiologist, who conducted the X-ray examination of "V", R.P. Chaudhary P.W.-5 is the Sub-Inspector, who took up the investigation and remained the Investigating Officer till 27.10.1994, after which it was transferred to Sharad Chandra Pandey, who had submitted the charge-sheet. The said witness proved the handwriting of Sharad Chandra Pandey and also of Constable Clerk Lakhan Singh, who had transcribed the chik first information report.

12. The Trial Court after considering the entire evidence on record came to the conclusion that there is sufficient evidence against the accused persons for committing rape on "V" and in so far as the evidence of "V" was concerned, which was recorded in Sessions Trial No. 367 of 1998 (State of U.P. vs. Anil Kumar), the Trial Court came to its conclusion that the statement of "V" was recorded after about 10 years of the incident as such the variations were of no consequence and convicted the accused persons and sentenced them as stated above.

13. We have heard Shri Yogesh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellants Hariom Sharma and Vijay Singh and Ms. Kumari Meena, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and perused the record.

14. In the present matter two sets of evidences have been recorded. One set of evidence has been recorded in Sessions Trial No. 278 of 1998 (State of U.P. vs. Vijay Singh and another), in which two accused persons, who were tried are Vijay Singh and Hariom Sharma. The second set of evidence has been recorded in Sessions Trial No. 367 of 1998 (State of U.P. vs. Anil Kumar), in which accused Anil Kumar is the sole accused.

Accused Anil Kumar, who is the appellant no.2 in Criminal Appeal No. 7686 of 2007 has died and as such his appeal stands abated vide order dated 08.09.2020 passed by this Court.

15. As of now, the appellant no.1 Hariom Sharma in Criminal Appeal No. 7686 of 2007 and the sole appellant Vijay Singh in Criminal Appeal No. 7704 of 2007 are the surviving accused persons before this Court in the two appeals.

16. The trial of Anil Kumar was separated being Sessions Trial No. 367 of 1998 (State of U.P. vs. Anil Kumar) and separate evidence was recorded in the same and since he has died and his appeal has abated, this Court will not be referring to the evidence recorded in his trial as the same would not be of any purpose and help to the surviving accused persons namely Hariom Sharma and Vijay Singh as the evidence in their trial has been recorded separately.

17. The learned counsel for the appellants made the following submissions:-

(i) The prosecutrix/victim "V" is a major girl. There is no evidence whatsoever in the present matter to show that rape has been committed on her.

(ii) The medical evidence in the present matter does not at all corroborate with the prosecution case. The doctor did not find any mark of injury on the body of "V". The doctor gave an opinion that she is used to intercourse and no definite opinion about rape can be given. The link, which comes forward by way of medical evidence for corroborating an incident of rape, is totally missing.

(iii) Except for "V" as P.W.-1 and her father Paramsukh as P.W.-2, who has claimed to be an eyewitness of the incident, no other person specially Smt. Kishan Pyari Devi, the wife of P.W.-2 and the mother of P.W.-1, her younger sister Km. Thanwati and her younger brother Ved Prakash have been produced as witnesses, who are also claimed to be eyewitnesses.

(iv) The delay in lodging of the first information report of 3 days does not have any plausible explanation and thus, the same has been lodged just to falsely implicate and harass the accused persons.

(v) There have been serious and material contradictions in the version given by "V" P.W. - 1 and Paramsukh P.W. - 2 in their statements.

18. On the other hand, the learned Additional Government Advocate for the State opposed the submissions of learned counsel for the appellants and argued that "V" was produced and examined as P.W.-1, who has stated categorically about rape being committed on her by the accused persons. It is further argued that even Paramsukh P.W.-2, who is the father of "V" and the first informant, is an eyewitness of the incident and had also categorically stated about rape being committed by the accused persons on his daughter. It is argued that the presence of P.W.-2 is very natural. It is argued that the appeal lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

19. "V" P.W.-1 is the prosecutrix/victim and the daughter of the first informant. She in her examination - in - chief states that she belongs to Jatav community. She identifies accused persons present in Court and states that they belong to Thakur community. She states that the incident took place around 4 years back. She used to work at Bhujpura brick kiln along with her father and mother. She states that in the night at about 8.00 p.m. three people came and took her away out of whom two accused are present in Court and the third was an unknown person. They took her forcibly to the jungle. The accused persons took her mother and father also. Her brother and sister were also taken by them. The said persons tied her father and mother with a tree and took her away. They took her 2 kms. away from that place. She was raped at that place. She then describes the manner, in which rape was committed upon her. She states that the accused ran away after committing rape upon her. Her mother and father then reached the place, where she was present and then she came back with them. She states that her father lodged the first information report and got her medical examination done. The accused persons threatened her of dire consequences.

20. In her cross-examination she has stated that she and her family members have never worked in the brick kiln for casting bricks, where the incident took place. She came to the said place along with her mother and father for the first time. She has no relative in Bhujpura. She prior to the present incident did not know any person of Bhujpura and even did not know accused persons from before. She was called to work in the brick kiln by Ram Singh Contractor. On the first day, they stayed at the kiln itself. There was a hut at the kiln and they stayed in it. Baking work at the kiln was not being done. There was no person at the kiln. The night was a dark night. It was so much dark that face of a person could not be seen. She states that it was about 8.00 p.m. She, her mother, her father and her brother and sister were in the hut. She states that when rape was being committed her both hands were not on the waist of the accused. Her hands were on the ground. It took about 30 minutes in committing rape. She states that she had bleeding from her private part. She states that her petticoat and dhoti got blood stained. She states that the accused persons had scratched on her chest. Her chest had marks of scratches of nails. She states that the accused persons had even injured her private part and she had received injuries. Her dhoti was taken off and thrown aside. She was only wearing petticoat and blouse. No cloth was spread her under her waist. She states that the place where she was thrown on the ground was a ploughed field. She was thrown in the open and the accused persons had turned her various times. All the three accused persons committed rape within 30 minutes and then ran away. She states that she received scratch on her face but she does not know whether there was any injury mark or not. Her legs were apart. She states that her family members were tied to a tree. Her mother was tied with a dhoti. She was made to stand near a tree and dhoti was wrapped all around. She does not know as to which tree it was, but it did not have any leaves on it. Her mother and father were got untied by her sister and then the family members took her back by lifting her. Her whole family and Ram Singh Contractor had gone to the police station. The accused persons did not let them go to the police station and they went after three days. They reached the police station on the third day at about 7.00--8.00 a.m. Police did not take her clothes into their possession. Her medical examination was conducted on the third day. She was interrogated by the police on the day when her medical examination was conducted. She states that she had told the Investigating Officer that it was dark night. She states that she has also informed the Investigating Officer that the accused persons had with their hands scratched her chest and private parts due to which she received injuries. She states that she also told the Investigating Officer that she did not know the accused from before. She states that watchman had told the names of the accused persons. She states that if the said facts have not been written in my statement by the Investigating Officer, she does not know the reason for the same. She states that she told the Investigating Officer that her family members had brought her to the house by lifting her and if the same has not been written in her statement by the Investigating Officer, she does not know the reason. To a suggestion that all the three persons did not commit rape on her, she denies the same. She further denies the suggestion that a false report has been got registered on the saying of villagers. Further to a suggestion that three unknown persons had come for a loot and on the saying of villagers they have been falsely implicated in a case of rape, she denies the same.

21. "V" was recalled by the prosecution for further examination by the orders of the Trial Court, wherein she stated that she came to know of the name of accused Vijay Singh @ Pappu Thakur and Hariom Sharma @ Pappu Pandit at the time of incident. The said accused persons were taking names of each other.

22. In her cross-examination she stated that the accused persons were taking names of each other at the time of incident. She heard the name of Hariom @ Pappu and Vijay @ Pappu. She states that accused persons were calling each other by taking names of their caste. They said Thakur Pappu may also come. Amongst the accused persons one was Pandit Pappu. She states that in her earlier statement she has stated that the accused persons were of Thakur community. She states that amongst the accused persons one was a Thakur and the other was a Brahmin. She states that her earlier statement that both the accused persons were of Thakur community was not correct. She states that she has not given any statement in Court that both the accused persons were of Thakur community. She further states that her father had gone for getting the first information report lodged. She had a talk with her father prior to the lodging of the first information report. She had told the entire incident to her father. She states that she did not know the accused persons from before. She states that the accused present in Court is Hariom. They were calling each other by name. She states that now she does not know as to of which caste the accused belongs. The name of Hariom was mentioned in the first information report. She states that when the accused persons were calling each other by taking their names. Her father was also present there. Her father was present at a distance of 10 to 20 steps. To a suggestion that she is giving a false statement, she denies.

23. Paramsukh P.W.-2 is the father of "V", the first informant of the present matter and also claims himself to be an eyewitness of the incident. In his examination - in - chief he states that "V" is his daughter. They belong to Jatav community. The accused are of higher caste. He states that around 4 years back he was working in a brick kiln in Bhujpura and were staying there in the night. At about 8.00 p.m., the accused persons along with one other person came to the kiln and asked him for "maal", to which he said that he has nothing and then he was called out of his hut. At that time his family consisted of himself, his wife Kishan Pyari, his daughter "V" and another daughter Thanwati and a small child. The said persons took them to the paddy field forcibly and tied them to a babul tree. The accused persons tied all of them except "V" and took "V" away at some distance from them. Thanwati could not be tied and she slipped from it as she was small. The accused persons then committed rape on "V" and ran away. His younger daughter Thanwati untied them and then they went to "V" and lifted her and brought her back. He states that then they went to the house of Mukhiya in the village, who called Ram Singh Contractor. Ram Singh Contractor then took him to his house. They did not let him lodge a report for 2 days. He then lodged a report after 2 days. He was read out the report, and states that he gave the same and also identifies his thumb impression on it, which was marked as Exhibit Ka-1 to the records. He states that the medical examination of his daughter was done. He states that at that time his daughter was aged about 14 years.

24. In his cross-examination he states that he had mentioned the age of his daughter as 16 years in his report. He states that he had earlier worked in the kiln and was driving a buggy. He states that at the time of incident except for his family there was no one else. The watchman had run away. He states that he does not know that the watchman had run away prior to the coming of the accused persons. He does not know the name of the watchman, who is a resident of Daudpur. The accused persons had come and asked for "maal" and they were referring to his daughter by saying so, the night was dark. He and his family members did not know the accused from before. He does not know the name of Mukhiya, who is called so. He states that the accused persons told their names after their arrest. Villagers had told the names of the accused persons. At the time of lodging of the report he knew their names. The accused persons made them walk ahead of themselves. Both the accused called him Pappu. He did not know the caste of the accused prior to lodging of the report. All the accused were of Thakur community. He states that he does not know the name of the person, who told him the name of the accused. He states that he had written in the report of the accused had detained them. If the same is not written in the report he does not know the reason for it. He states that his report was written at the police station by someone else and he cannot tell as to who wrote it. On the report his thumb impression was got affixed and the same was read to him. He states that the delay in lodging of the first information report was due to the reason that the accused had detained them. He states that he had told the name of third accused also, but if the same is not in the report he does not know the reason about it. All the persons were tied with a dhoti. They were tied for about 30 minutes. They had lifted the girl and brought her. The accused persons had stopped them from lodging of the first information report and had threatened them of dire consequences, due to which the same was got registered on the third day, for which they had gone by hiding for lodging the report. He was interrogated by the Investigating Officer on the day of lodging of the report. He had told the names of three Pappu's to the Investigating Officer, but if in his statement, the name of third person has not been written, he does not know the reason. He states that he had told the Investigating Officer that the accused persons had detained them due to which the first information report has been lodged with a delay, but if the said fact has not been written, he does not know the reason. To a suggestion that he has falsely named the accused on the saying of villagers, he denies. He states that he cannot say as to whether he could recognize the accused persons due to dark or not. Further to a suggestion that on the saying of villagers due to party-bandi he has falsely implicated the accused persons, he denies the same. He states that it is true that the Inspector at the police station had written his report and got his thumb impression affixed on it.

25. The said witness was recalled for further examination by the prosecution vide order of the Trial Court. He states that the accused persons were taking names of each other and were calling them by taking names and they used to come to the kiln for taking bricks. He further states that at the time of incident they had taken the names.

In the cross-examination he stated that they were taking name of Pappu. They were calling Thakur Pappu. They were saying that Pappu burn the hut. Both were Pappu Thakur. The third person was Anil he had written the names of all the three accused in the report. He is illiterate. He does not remember the name of the third person. He states that he had got the name of Anil written in the report, but if his name is not written he does not know the reason. He states on seeing the accused persons in Court that he now does not remember their names. The names of the accused were told to him by Ram Chandra Mukhiya. He states that previously he had stated that he had written the names on the saying of villagers. He states that he does not remember as to which police personal wrote the report. He states on seeing Exhibit Ka-1 that the same was written by a police personal at the Police Chauki. On a suggestion that he is giving the statement on the tutoring of the Government Advocate, he denies the same. He states that he had got the correct names of the accused written.

26. Dr. S. Latoriya P.W.-3 was posted as Medical Officer in Mohan Lal Gautam Women Hospital, Aligarh on 22.10.1994. She examined "V", who was brought by police constable. She states that she did not find any injury on the face, neck, chest, back, hands and legs of "V". She states that on internal examination she found the hymen to be old torn, which admitted two fingers easily. She had advised X-ray examination for ascertaining the age of "V". She states that she cannot give any opinion about rape as "V" was habitual to intercourse. She proves the medical examination report, which was marked as Exhibit Ka-2 to the records.

In her cross - examination she states that in the report there is no mention of any injury and if there would have been any injury, she would have written it. She states that it is true that the victim was habitual to intercourse. She further states that there is a variation of two years on other sides of age.

27. Dr. Qamar Ahmad P.W.-4 was posted as Senior Radiologist in M.S. Hospital on 24.10.1994. He got the X-ray examination done under his supervision of "V". He states that the right wrist, right elbow and the right knee was subjected to X-ray and it was seen that all centres of ossification are united at the respective places. He proves the X-ray plates, which is marked as Material Exhibit-1 to the records.

In the cross-examination he states that the age of "V" as per Radiological examination is about 19 years. He states that the age of girl can be 2 years above 19 years, but cannot be less than 19 years. He states that he has not mentioned the age in his report. The estimation of age is about 19 years. He states that the supplementary report is not on the record of this case. He states that he has disclosed the age of the girl on the basis of X-ray plates.

28. R.P. Chaudhary P.W.-5 is the first Investigating Officer of the case. The investigation remained with him from 22.10.1992 to 27.10.1994. During this period. He recorded the statement of the first informant, his wife and the victim. He prepared the site plan and inspected the place of occurrence. He then recorded the statement of Ved Prakash, the son of the first informant. He proves the site plan, which is marked as Exhibit Ka-4 to the records. He arrested accused Anil Kumar on 25.10.1994 with the help of the first informant and "V". He had recommended recording of the statement u/s. 164 Cr.P.C., which was recorded and then the investigation was transferred to Sharad Chandra Pandey. He identifies the handwriting of Sharad Chandra Pandey and proves the charge-sheet, which was prepared by him. The same is marked as Exhibit Ka-5 to the records. He then identifies the handwriting of Constable Clerk Lakhan Singh and proves the chik report as that written by him. The same is marked as Exhibit Ka-6 to the records. He proves the G.D. entry being G.D. No. 30 at 17.30 hrs. dated 22.10.1994 regarding the lodging of the first information report and proves the carbon copy of the same, which is marked as Exhibit Ka-7 to the records.

In his cross-examination he states that he prepared the site plan on the pointing out of the first informant on 22.10.1994. He has not mentioned the distance between the hut of the first informant and the place of occurrence in the site plan. He states that the field was not having any crop of paddy. It was lying vacant. He states that there was a closed well near the place of occurrence. He has not written the names of the person whose fields are near the place of occurrence. He states that the place of occurrence was a vacant land and was not used for cultivation. He states that there were 12 huts at the kiln. To a suggestion that he did not go to the place of occurrence and has thus, not mentioned the names of the owners of the tubewell and fields and has not mentioned the distance between the place of occurrence and the huts, he denies. He states that he has not mentioned the length and breadth of the kiln. He states that in the 12 huts, 12 families live. He did not interrogate any labour as they were not present at the spot. He states that he did not consider it necessary to interrogate the labours and as such did not make any effort again. He states that he did not show the route of the accused going as he did not consider it necessary. He interrogated "V" on 22.10.1994. He states that "V" did not tell him that the night was dark and the face of anyone was not visible. He states that he did not ask "V" about the blood stained clothes and she did not tell him about the accused scratching her chest. He states that she had told him that she knew the accused from before. He states to have interrogated Paramsukh on 22.10.1994 and have also read the first information report. He has stated that in the first information report it is mentioned that the delay in lodging the same was due to the fact that the brick kiln owner had told him not to lodge it. He states that the first informant had in his statement told him that the owner of the brick kiln has informed the police. He states that the scribe of the first information report is Vinod Kumar Gautam. The first informant told him in his statement that he does not know the name of the scribe of the first information report. To a suggestion that the application has been got written at the police station, he denies. To a further suggestion that the Inspector has written the report by his hand, he denies. He states that he has not taken into custody the petticoat and blouse of girl as the incident was 3 days old. He denies the suggestion that he did not go to the place of occurrence and did paper work falsely at the police station.

29. The accused in their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C. have denied the incident.

30. Accused Anil Kumar in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has stated that he is not named in the first information report, he has been implicated on the saying of others and has been falsely implicated and the investigation as done is totally faulty, he be acquitted.

31. Accused Vijay Singh in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has stated that he has enmity with Ram Chandra of kiln, who has falsely got shown him as an accused. He had purchased the land of someone and was digging mud from the boundary of his field due to which he was inimical. He states that he has been implicated in the matter due to enmity. Paramsukh was working in the kiln of Ram Singh Contractor. Paramsukh did not know him from before.

32. Accused Hariom Sharma in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has stated that he has no relationship with Vijay Singh, he is a Brahmin and has been falsely implicated due to village party-bandi and due to enmity.

33. "V" P.W.-1 states that she was raped by three persons but the medical evidence runs totally contrary to it. She also states to have received scratches caused by nails of the accused persons on her chest and private parts but there is no such injury found by the doctor who medically examined her. She states that she had bled while being raped and her clothes became blood stained but neither did she give any such clothes to the Investigating Officer nor did the doctor conducting her medical examination find any such injury on her private parts but to the contrary she found her to be habitual to sexual intercourse.

34. Similarly Paramsukh P.W.-2 has also given the same version of the incident and rape on his daughter as given by "V" P.W.-1. Even his statement does not find corroboration from the medical evidence. He states to be an eye witness to the incident alongwith his wife, younger daughter and son but the same also does not find corroboration from any source.

35. The other alleged eye witnesses of the incident being the mother, younger sister and younger brother of "V" P.W.-1 have not been produced before the trial court but their not being produced can in no manner be fatal to the prosecution and in a case like this the version of the prosecutrix/victim is sufficient to prove the charge against the accused persons but in the present case Paramsukh P.W.-2 who is the first informant and the father of PW 1 has deposed of being an eye witness of the incident.

36. This court has to appreciate the evidence of the said two witnesses viz. "V" P.W.-1 and Paramsukh P.W.-2 as to whether they are truthful witnesses and as to whether their evidence is of such quality that they are to be treated as fully reliable witnesses after testing their deposition from the corroborating evidence and circumstances to prove the charges against the accused persons.

37. The law regarding the test to assess the quality of oral evidence led by the prosecution for proving or disproving a fact is well settled. In the case of Vadivelu Thevar Vs. State of Madras : AIR 1957 SC 614, the Apex Court has held as follows:

"..... Generally speaking oral testimony in this context may be classified into three categories, namely (1) wholly reliable (2) wholly unreliable and (3) neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable. In the first category of proof, the Court should have no difficulty in coming to its conclusion either way- it may convict or may acquit on the testimony of a single witness, if it is found to be above reproach or suspicion of interestedness, incompetence or subornation. In the second category, the court equally has no difficulty in coming to its conclusion. It is in the third category of cases, that the court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, direct or circumstantial. There is another danger in insisting on plurality of witnesses. Irrespective of the quality of the oral evidence of a single witness, if courts were to insist on plurality of witnesses in proof of any fact, they will be indirectly encouraging subornation of witnesses. Situations may arise and do arise where only a single person is available to give evidence in support of a disputed fact.

The court naturally has to weigh carefully such a testimony and if it is satisfied that the evidence is reliable and free from all taints which tend to render oral testimony open to suspicion, it becomes its duty to act upon such testimony. There are exceptions to this rule, for example, in cases of sexual offences or of the testimony of an approver; both these are cases in which the oral testimony is, by its very nature, suspect, being that of a participator in crime. But, where there are no such exceptional reasons operating, it becomes the duty of the court to convict, if it is satisfied that the testimony of a single witness is entirely reliable."

38. Further, it is also well settled that while appreciating evidence the number of counts of witnesses is not an important aspect in a matter. What is important is the quality of evidence given by the witness(s). In the case of Laxmibai (Dead) through Lrs. and Another Vs. Bhagwantbuva (Dead) through Lrs. and others: (2013) 4 SCC 97, the Apex Court held as under:

"39. In the matter of appreciation of evidence of witnesses, it is not the number of witnesses but quality of their evidence which is important, as there is no requirement in law of evidence that any particular number of witnesses is to be examined to prove/disprove a fact. It is a time honoured principle that evidence must be weighed and not counted. The test is whether the evidence has a ring of truth, is cogent, credible and trustworthy or otherwise. The legal system has laid emphasis on value provided by each witness, rather than the multiplicity or plurality of witnesses. It is quality and not quantity, which determines the adequacy of evidence as has been provided by Section 134 of the Evidence Act. Where the law requires the examination of at least one attesting witness, it has been held that the number of witnesses produced do not carry any weight."

39. In the present matter the evidence of "V" examined as P.W.-1 that she was raped by three persons during which she bled from her private parts to such an extent that the clothes which she was wearing became blood stained and that she was injured by the accused persons by their act during the commission of rape does not find corroboration from any source. The medical examination done on her, though was after three days but that cannot give the result as given in the present case in the circumstances of the incident being taken place as alleged by "V" P.W.-1 and Paramsukh P.W.-2. Had "V" bled from her private parts due to rape being committed on her by three persons, the doctor would have discovered corresponding injuries in her private parts. Even her version that the accused persons has scratched her chest and private parts and she had received scratch marks and injuries on her chest and private parts also is conspicuously missing in the medical evidence. The blood stained clothes of "V" did not see the light of the day. The version even on this count does not find corroboration and is thus untrue. The finding of the doctor PW 3 in her medical examination report and statement in court also at this point is important to be referred and considered which says that "V" was habitual to sexual intercourse. The other factor that the incident was committed in a ploughed filed has been stated by "V" in her deposition. Her not receiving any bodily injury while being raped by three persons in a ploughed field while lying bare in it is also an impossibility.

40. Although the appellant Vijay Singh was medically examined and his medical examination report is on record but the same has neither been relied by the prosecution for any event nor has he taken use of it for any benefit. The same has not even been proved in the trial by any witness.

41. The evidence of Paramsukh P.W.-2 also suffers from the same lacunas as that of "V" P.W.-1.

42. This court comes to the conclusion that although "V" P.W.-1 is the prosecutrix/victim of the present case and Paramsukh P.W.-2 is the first informant and her father who claims himself to be an eye witness of the incident and both the witnesses have tried to narrate a version for implicating the accused appellants but the same is a concocted version is termed as a "concocted uniformity" and is thus not safe to be relied upon. The said two witnesses fall in the category of unreliable witnesses.

43. Thus the conviction of the appellants by the trial court is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The trial court committed an error in recording the conviction and sentence of the appellants. Hence the impugned judgment and order dated 31.10.2007 passed by the trial court is liable to be set aside, which is accordingly set aside.

44. The present appeals are allowed.

45. The appellants- Vijay Singh and Hariom Sharma are in jail. They are directed to be released forthwith unless wanted in any other case.

46. Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 the accused-appellants Vijay Singh and Hariom Sharma are directed to furnish a personal bond in terms of Form No. 45 prescribed in The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 of a sum of Rs. 25,000/- with two reliable sureties in the like amount before the court concerned which shall be effective for a period of six months along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against the instant judgment or for grant of leave, the aforesaid appellants on receipt of notice thereof shall appear before the Apex Court.

47. The lower court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent back immediately to the trial court concerned for compliance and necessary action.

48. The party(ies) shall file computer generated copy of such judgment downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad before the concerned Court/Authority/Official.

49. The computer generated copy of such judgment shall be self-attested by the counsel(s) of the party(ies) concerned.

50. The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the judgment from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

9. North East KRTC Vs Smt. Sujatha Civil Appeal No. 7470 of 2009 dt 2.11.2018

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. First Appeal From Order No.1244 of 2020 is preferred by claimants and First Appeal From Order Defective No.545 of 2020 is filed by the owner which have been placed before this Court for final disposal. Appeal preferred by Insurance Company namely F.A.F.O No. 1301 of 2020 has already been decided rather dismissed with costs by my brother Judge on 27.8.2020. Papers of the said matter are placed for perusal before this Court.

2. Heard Sri Sanjay Kumar Srivastva, learned counsel for the appellant-claimants, Mohd. Naushad Siddiqui, learned counsel for appellant-owner and Sri Subash Chandra Srivastava, learned counsel for respondent-Insurance Company.

3. Both these appeals arise out of the judgment and award dated 18.2.2020 passed by the Commissioner, Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 (for short as 'Act') being Additional Labour Commissioner, Kanpur (hereinafter referred to as 'Commissioner') awarding sum of Rs.6,30,062/- with interest at the rate of 9% from the date of accrual of compensation in favour of the claimants. The owner was saddled with liability to pay interest and notice for hearing as to why penalty should not be directed was issued. The Insurance Company was directed to satisfy decretal amount and interest from the date of judgment till deposit of amount.

4. As far as the appeal of the claimants is concerned, the only question of law to be answered is whether in the given facts and circumstances of the case, the Commission has committed manifest error of law holding that if the respondent has failed to deposit the awarded amount within 30 days from the date of judgment then only claimants are entitled for the interest at the rate of 9% from the date of award till the amount is deposited.

5. In support of his submission, learned counsel for the claimants has relied on the decision in First Appeal From Order No.1538 of 2020 titled (Miskina and 5 others Vs. M/s H.D.F.C. Egro General Insurance Co. Ltd. and other) decided on 26.11.2020 and decision rendered in First Appeal From Order No.1673 of 2020 titled (Sri Shiv Lal and another Vs.Sri Vivek Shaker Gupta and Another) decided on 10.12.2020.

6. As far as appeal of the owner is concerned, learned counsel for the owner has submitted that the Commissioner has committed patent error directing the owner to pay interest though the question is no longer res integra.

7. In support of his submission, learned counsels both for the claimants and owner have relied on the decisions in Oriental Insurance Company Vs. Siby George and others, 2012(4) T.A.C. 4 (SC); Smt. Surekha and others Vs. The Branch Manager, National Insurance Company Ltd. decided on 3.8.2017, First Appeal From Order No. 1553 of 2020 (Sanju Kushwaha Vs. Vimal Kumar Verma) decided on 3.12.2020 and First Appeal From Order No.1673 of 2020 (Sri Shiv Lal and another Vs.Sri Vivek Shaker Gupta and Another) decided on 10.12.2020.

8. As against this, learned counsel for Insurance Company tried to point out that the judgment and order impugned is just and proper as it was the duty of the owner to notify the insurance company about the accident which was not done and hence the owner was saddled with the payment of interest till date of decision and this is a finding of fact which does not require to be interfered with.

9. While dealing with the above questions of law, it would be appropriate to reproduce Section 4A of the Act which reads as under:

"4A. Compensation to be paid when due and penalty for default.?

1.Compensation under section 4 shall be paid as soon as it falls due.

2.In cases where the employer does not accept the liability for compensation to the extent claimed, he shall be bound to make provisional payment based on the extent of liability which he accepts, and, such payment shall be deposited with the Commissioner or made to the workman, as the case may be, without prejudice to the right of the workman to make any further claim.

3.Where any employer is in default in paying the compensation due under this Act within one month from the date it fell due, the Commissioner shall?

(a.)direct that the employer shall, in addition to the amount of the arrears, pay simple interest thereon at the rate of twelve per cent per annum or at such higher rate not exceeding the maximum of the lending rates of any scheduled bank as may be specified by the Central Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, on the amount due; and

(b.)if, in his opinion, there is no justification for the delay, direct that the employer shall, in addition to the amount of the arrears, and interest thereon pay a further sum not exceeding fifty per cent of such amount by way of penalty:

Provided that an order for the payment of penalty shall not be passed under clause (b) without giving a reasonable opportunity to the employer to show cause why it should not be passed.

Explanation.?For the purposes of this sub-section, ?scheduled bank? means a bank for the time being included in the Second Schedule to the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (2 of 1934)."

10. The Supreme Court in the case titled Oriental Insurance Company Vs. Siby George and others, 2012(4) T.A.C. 4 (SC) where in it has been held by the Apex Court that payment of interest is a consequence of default and it has to be directed to be paid without going into the reasons for the delay and only in case where the delay is without justification, the employer might also be held liable to penalty after giving him a show cause notice. Thus, just because the owner had not intimated to the Insurance Company, it cannot be the reason for not directing the Insurance Company to pay the interest.

11. Hence, the findings that the Insurance Company will not be liable for interest is against the spirit of taking the insurance policy and the very object for introducing insurance policy would get frustrated. I am even fortified in my view by the decision in the case titled Guru Govekar vs Miss Filomena F. Lobo & Ors, AIR 1988 SC 1332.

12. In K. Shivaraman and others Vs. P. Satishkumar and others, 2020 (4) SCC 594, after considering several decisions, the purpose of Workmen's Compensation Act has been reiterated. The scope of Section 4 and 4A has been reconsidered. In paragraph 16 of the judgment the word used is 'as soon as it falls due'. Thus the said decision would also help the claimant as well as the owner to the facts in this case.

13. I am even fortified in my view by the decision in Civil Appeal No. 7470 of 2009 North East Karnataka Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Sujatha decided on 2.11.2018, in Civil Appeal No. 10018 of 2017, Smt. Surekha and others Vs. the Branch Manager, National Insurance Company Ltd. decided on 3.8.2017, which holds that Insurance Company has to be made liable and further the relevant date from when the interest would be payable is decided therein, namely, one month of the date, when the compensation accrues. The decision of this Court in First Appeal From Order No.1538 of 2020 (Miskina and 5 others vs. M/s H.D.F.C. Egro General Insurance Ltd. and another) decided on 26.11.2020 and

First Appeal From Order No. 1553 of 2020 (Sanju Kushwaha Vs. Vimal Kumar Verma) decided on 3.12.2020 will also aid both claimants and owner.

14. In view of the above, questions of law framed in both these appeals are answered in the affirmative.

15. These appeals are partly allowed. The judgment and award of the Commissioner shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent namely to the extent that the Insurance Company shall deposit the decretal amount with interest at the rate of 12% from one month after the date of accident till the amount is deposited.

15. The appeal of the Insurance Company has been dismissed with costs quantified at Rs.10,000/-. Learned counsel for the Insurance Company has conveyed that amount of cost be converted to penalty if at all this Court feels that penalty has to be imposed. Normally the penalty will have to be paid if it is found that there was deliberate reason for delay in paying the amount. Here, it is the parents who are demanding from one son for the death of another son and they have claimed from Insurance Company with whom the vehicle was insured to make payment. Hence, the minimal penalty of Rs.10,000/- would suffice which was the cost inflicted by my brother Judge on the Insurance Company. Appellants of these appeals shall deposit a sum of Rs.10,000/- which would be substitution for penalty. The notice for penalty is also now not to be proceeded with further by the authorities in peculiar facts of this case.

16. This Court is thankful to all the learned Advocate for ably assisting the Court and Sri S.D. Ojha, learned Advocate for rendering services as Amicus Curiae.

3. Amar Pal Singh Vs St. of U.P. & anr. (2012) 6 SCC 491

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Sri Pradeep Kumar Rai, learned counsel for the applicant assisted by Sri Prakarsh Pandey, Advocate as well as learned Additional Government Advocate for the State of U.P. and Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, Advocate who has put in appearance on behalf of opposite party no. 2.

2. The present application under section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by a judicial officer whose judgment in Criminal Case No. 909/2019 convicting the accused under Section 406 and 411 IPC , was set aside in appeal by the Sessions Judge, who has also commented adversely on the applicant and therefore being aggrieved by the same, prayer has been made to quash/expunge the said remarks.

3. The facts in brief are that the applicant while posted as Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 01, Hardoi heard and decided Criminal Case No. 909/2019 (State Vs. Yamohan Singh). The accused therein, was alleged to have appeared in an examination on 20/04/1999, and during the said examination when the investigator had accompanied one other student outside the hall, the accused left the examination along with the question paper and the answer sheet. It is stated that he was subsequently apprehended and found to be in possession of the answer sheet and was therefore charged under Section 406 and 411 of the IPC. The applicant decided the said case on 17/08/2019 and found the accused guilty and sentenced him to 2 years simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5000/- failing which he was to undergo six months further imprisonment. The order of trial Court was subjected to appeal before the Sessions Judge, Hardoi.

4. The Sessions Judge, Hardoi allowed the Criminal Appeal No. 47/2019, filed by the accused against the order passed by the applicant. The Sessions Judge held that there was no eyewitness of the fact that the accused had ever participated in the said examination nor did anyone see him leaving the said examination hall along with the question paper. He also returned a finding that the Investigating Officer was not examined and therefore the recovery of the question paper itself was doubtful and therefore held that none of the charges could be proved by the prosecution and consequently allowed the said appeal. He also made the following remarks against the applicant:-

"विद्वान मजिस्ट्रेट ने बिना साक्ष्य का विश्लेषण किये हुए अपीलार्थी/अभियुक्त के विरूद्ध आरोप सिद्ध होने का जो निष्कर्ष निकाला है वह त्रुटिपूर्ण है। यहाँ यह उल्लेखनीय है कि विद्वान मजिस्ट्रेट के द्वारा जो निर्णय लिखा गया है, उसमें अभियोजन केस के उपरान्त उस साक्ष्य का वर्णय किया गया है जो अभियोजन ने प्रस्तुत किया है, जिसमें सभी साक्षियों की मुख्य परीक्षा व प्रतिपरीक्षा के बयान उसी रूप में उतार लिये गये हैं और फिर उसके बाद बिना साक्ष्य का कोई विश्लेषण किये हुए विद्वान मजिस्ट्रेट सीधे निष्कर्ष पर आ गये हैं और यह निष्कर्ष दे दिया है कि अभियोजन साक्ष्य से अभियुक्त के विरूद्ध धारा 406, 411 भा0दं0सं0 के आरोप सिद्ध हो रहे हैं। अपर मुख्य मजिस्ट्रेट स्तर के न्यायिक अधिकारी से ऐसे निर्णय की अपेक्षा नहीं की जा सकती। विद्वान मजिस्ट्रेट से निर्णय लेखन में सुधार अपेक्षित है।"

5. Aggrieved by the comments and observations made by the judgment passed in the criminal appeal, the Judicial Magistrate, who authored the trial Court's judgment, has approached this Court by means of present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

6. In the instant application we are not called upon to examine the correctness of the order passed by the Sessions Judge with regard to the findings recorded on merits of the case as sitting in appeal, but examine the impugned judgment only with regard to the aforesaid comments/observations made against the applicant who was discharging the duties of the presiding judge.

7. The question which arises for determination in the present application is whether it was appropriate or was there any justification for the Sessions Judge in his capacity as an appellate Court to pass any comments regarding the dexterity, knowledge or intelligence or manner of dealing with a case by the trial Judge. Numerous judgments have been placed before us passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as by this Court which have unequivocally discouraged the practice by the superior Courts from commenting upon the capabilities or in any manner reflecting upon the persona of the Judge of the subordinate Court while hearing an appeal or revision where such judgment is under challenge or even otherwise where such a judgment is placed for consideration before the higher Court.

8. We also heard Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, Advocate appearing on behalf of the High Court, who has submitted the written instructions. He has also informed that the remarks of the District and Sessions Judge are only advisory in nature and not condemnatory. He further informed this Court that on the basis of the said remark no action has been taken against the applicant nor is there any proposal of the same.

9. The jurisdiction of this Court under section 482 Cr.P.C. to expunge the remarks made in the order of subordinate Court was duly considered and answered in affirmative by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. Vs. Mohd. Naim, (1964) 1 CrLJ 549. The Hon'ble Apex Court duly considered the power of the High Court under section 482 Cr.P.C. and observed that it has inherent powers to expunge the remarks made by itself or by subordinate Court to prevent abuse of process of Court or otherwise secure the ends of justice. It was further observed in the said judgment that if there is one principle of cardinal importance in the administration of justice, it is :

"the proper freedom and independence of judges and magistrates will be maintained and they must be allowed to perform the functions freely and fearlessly and without undue interference by anybody, even by this Court, at the same time it is equally necessary that in expressing their opinions judges and magistrates must be guided by considerations of justice, fair play and restrain."

10. It is not infrequent that sweeping generalisation defeat the very purpose for which they are made to stop it has been traditionally recognised that the matter of making disparaging remarks against person/authority who's conduct comes into consideration before the Courts of law in the cases to be decided by them. It is relevant to consider (a) whether the party whose conduct is in question is before the Court or has an opportunity of explaining or defending himself, (b) whether there is evidence on record bearing on that conduct justifying the remark, (c) whether it is necessary for decision of the case, as an integral part thereof, to advert on that conduct. It has also been recognised that judicial pronouncements must be judicial in nature, and should not normally depart from some petty moderation and reserve.

11. The Sessions Judge while hearing the appeal had full powers and jurisdiction at his command to re-appreciate the evidence to disagree and come to a different conclusion that of the trial Court, but his jurisdiction fell short of commenting upon the shortcomings of the applicant while discharging the duties of trial Court dealing with the said case. It was not expected from him to remonstrate that applicant while discharging the duties of a trial judge had not written the judgment as expected from a judicial officer. The said comment starkly reflects upon the persona of the judicial officer, and while deciding the said appeal the Sessions Judge was expected to judge the case which were before him, and had no jurisdiction to judge the judicial officer who was the author of the judgment. Undeniably the District and Sessions Judge has administrative control over the judicial officers subordinate to him, but the administrative control cannot be equated to power of superintendence which is vested only with the High Courts. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in this regard has also even cautioned the High Courts to refrain from making observations extending to criticism of the subordinate judicial officer in as much as the said judicial officer is condemned unheard which is violative of principles of natural justice, and it should not be forgotten that the subordinate judiciary itself is dispensing justice and it gives chance to the litigating party to have a sense of victory not only over his opponent but also over the judge who decided the case against him. This is subversive of the judicial authority of the deciding judge and such an unsavory situation leads to the judicial officer filing a petition which reduces his status to a litigant and this is clearly not conducive of judicial functioning. In the case of In the Matter of "K" A Judicial Officer (2001) 3 SCC 54 it was observed:-

"Judicial restraint and discipline are as necessary to the orderly administration of justice as they are to the effectiveness of the army. The duty of restraint, this humility of function should be constant theme of our Judges. This quality in decision-making is as much necessary for Judges to command respect as to protect the independence of the judiciary. Judicial restraint in this regard might better be called judicial respect, that is, respect by the judiciary. Respect to those who come before the court as well to other coordinate branches of the State, the executive and the legislature. There must be mutual respect. When these qualities fail or when litigants and public believe that the Judge has failed in these qualities, it will be neither good for the Judges nor for the judicial process."

12. It should also be remembered that the conduct of the subordinate judicial officer unbecoming of himself and requiring corrective action should not be overlooked, but there is an alternative safe and advisable course available to choose from which is to intimate the Hon'ble the Chief Justice or the Administrative Judge along with the copy of the judgement for further action, rather than taking up the matter on the judicial side. The advantage of this course of action would be, that the subordinate judge concerned would have an opportunity to clarify his position and shall not be condemned unheard.

13. In the case of Amar Pal Singh vs State of Uttar Pradesh and Another, (2012) 6 SCC 491 the Apex Court observed as follows :

"27. A Judge is required to maintain decorum and sanctity which are inherent in judicial discipline and restraint. A judge functioning at any level has dignity in the eyes of public and credibility of the entire system is dependent on use of dignified language and sustained restraint, moderation and sobriety. It is not to be forgotten that independence of judiciary has an insegregable and inseparable link with its credibility. Unwarranted comments on the judicial officer creates a dent in the said credibility and consequently leads to some kind of erosion and affects the conception of rule of law. The sanctity of decision making process should not be confused with sitting on a pulpit and delivering sermons which defy decorum because it is obligatory on the part of the superior Courts to take recourse to correctional measures. A reformative method can be taken recourse to on the administrative side.

28. It is condign to state it should be paramount in the mind of a Judge of superior Court that a Judicial officer projects the face of the judicial system and the independence of judiciary at the ground reality level and derogatory remarks against a judicial officer would cause immense harm to him individually (as the expunction of the remarks later on may not completely resuscitate his reputation) but also affects the credibility of the institution and corrodes the sacrosanctity of its zealously cherished philosophy. A judge of a superior Court however strongly he may feel about the unmerited and fallacious order passed by an officer, but is required to maintain sobriety, calmness, dispassionate reasoning and poised restraint. The concept of loco parentis has to take a foremost place in the mind to keep at bay any uncalled for any unwarranted remarks.

29. Every judge has to remind himself about the aforesaid principles and religiously adhere to them. In this regard it would not be out of place to sit in the time machine and dwell upon the sagacious saying of an eminent author who has said that there is a distinction between a man who has command over "Shastras' and the other who knows it and puts into practice. He who practises them can alone be called a "vidvan'. Though it was told in a different context yet the said principle can be taken recourse to, for one may know or be aware of that use of intemperate language should be avoided in judgments but while penning the same the control over the language is forgotten and acquired knowledge is not applied to the arena of practice. Or to put it differently the knowledge stands still and not verbalised into action. Therefore, a committed comprehensive endeavour has to be made to put the concept to practice so that it is concretised and fructified and the litigations of the present nature are avoided.

30. Coming to the case at hand in our considered opinion the observations, the comment and the eventual direction were wholly unwarranted and uncalled for. The learned Chief Judicial Magistrate had felt that the due to delay and other ancillary factors there was no justification to exercise the power under Section 156 (3) of the Code. The learned Single Judge, as is manifest, had a different perception of the whole scenario. Perceptions of fact and application of law may be erroneous but that never warrants such kind of observations and directions. Regard being had to the aforesaid we unhesitatingly expunge the remarks and the direction which have been reproduced in paragraph three of our judgment. If the said remarks have been entered into the annual confidential roll of the judicial officer the same shall stand expunged. That apart a copy of the order be sent by the Registrar of this Court to the Registrar General of the High Court of Allahabad to be placed on the personal file of the concerned judicial officer."

14. Considering the dictum of the Hon'ble Supreme Court and applying it to the facts of the present case it is apparent that even though in his decision, the Sessions Judge has given adequate reasons for coming to a different conclusion in the criminal appeal, and setting aside the judgment of the trial Court, there was no occasion for him to observe that it was not expected of the judicial magistrate to write such a judgment and further that there is further scope of improvement. Though these comments on the face of it do not seem to be adverse but they clearly convey the dissatisfaction and displeasure of the District and Sessions Judge towards the applicant. It has repeatedly been observed by the Supreme Court as well as by this Court that criticism and observations touching upon the judicial officer incorporated in judicial pronouncements have their own infirmities for not only the judicial officers are condemned unheard of the harm caused by such criticism or observations also incapable of being undone. Sobriety, moderation and reserve are the greatest qualities of a judicial officer and he/she should never be divorced from them.

15. In the present case the Sessions Judge has re-examined the entire evidence and came to a contrary finding and has therefore allowed the criminal appeal. There was absolutely no occasion or any need to make any comments upon the applicant and in case he felt strongly about the shortcomings of the applicant, then it was always open for him to inform his Administrative Judge or Hon'ble the Chief Justice.

16. Therefore for the reasons stated above, I have no hesitation in deleting the following observations made in the judgment and order dated 19.10.2019, passed by the Sessions Judge, Hardoi in Criminal Appeal No. 47/2019 - Yamoham Singh Vs. State of U.P. :-

"विद्वान मजिस्ट्रेट ने बिना साक्ष्य का विश्लेषण किये हुए अपीलार्थी/अभियुक्त के विरूद्ध आरोप सिद्ध होने का जो निष्कर्ष निकाला है वह त्रुटिपूर्ण है। यहाँ यह उल्लेखनीय है कि विद्वान मजिस्ट्रेट के द्वारा जो निर्णय लिखा गया है, उसमें अभियोजन केस के उपरान्त उस साक्ष्य का वर्णय किया गया है जो अभियोजन ने प्रस्तुत किया है, जिसमें सभी साक्षियों की मुख्य परीक्षा व प्रतिपरीक्षा के बयान उसी रूप में उतार लिये गये हैं और फिर उसके बाद बिना साक्ष्य का कोई विश्लेषण किये हुए विद्वान मजिस्ट्रेट सीधे निष्कर्ष पर आ गये हैं और यह निष्कर्ष दे दिया है कि अभियोजन साक्ष्य से अभियुक्त के विरूद्ध धारा 406, 411 भा0दं0सं0 के आरोप सिद्ध हो रहे हैं। अपर मुख्य मजिस्ट्रेट स्तर के न्यायिक अधिकारी से ऐसे निर्णय की अपेक्षा नहीं की जा सकती। विद्वान मजिस्ट्रेट से निर्णय लेखन में सुधार अपेक्षित है।"

17. The application is accordingly allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ravi Nath Tilhari, J.)

1. Heard Sri Jitendra Singh, learned counsel for the applicant, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant for quashing the order dated 1.2.2020 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 11, Aligarh passed in Criminal Revision No. 200 of 2018 (Rahul Sharma Vs. State of U.P. and another) and the summoning order dated 19.9.2016 under Sections 302/120B IPC as well as the proceedings of Complaint Case No. 194/12 of 2015, New No. 16705 of 2016, (Dharmveer Vs. Rahul and others) pending before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Aligarh, District Aligarh.

3. Brief facts of the case as per the petition are that on 19.10.2013 the applicant and his brother, Naresh Chand were coming to home on Motor Cycle. They were assaulted by the son of opposite party no.2 and his grandsons, causing injury to them due to which Naresh Chand died. The applicant's father lodged an F.I.R. on 20.10.2013 registered as Case Crime No. 1333 of 2013 under Sections 302, 120B IPC, Police Station Kwarsi, District Aligarh. The investigating officer submitted the charge sheet against the son of opposite party no.2 and his granddaughter on 9.1.2014 where upon Additional Session Judge, Court No.9, Aligarh took cognizance and charges were framed on 16.5.2015.

4. The opposite party no.2/complainant filed an application No. 684/11/2013 (Dharmveer Vs. Rahul Sharma and others) under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. making allegations that the applicant with two other persons had killed his own brother Naresh Chand and falsely implicated the son of opposite party no.2, and her granddaughter. The Chief Judicial Magistrate directed for registration of the F.I.R. vide order dated 25.1.2014 and in pursuance thereof F.I.R. in Case Crime No. 1333A/2013 under Sections 302/120B IPC, P.S. Kwarsi, District Aligarh was lodged on 31.1.2014. The Investigating Officer submitted final report dated 12.10.2014 against which the Complainant/opposite party no.2 filed a protest petition, registered as Case No. 194/12/2015, New No. 16705 of 2016, (Dharmveer Vs. Rahul and others), on which summoning order dated 19.9.2016 was passed against the applicant. The Criminal Revision No. 200 of 2016 (Sri Rahul Sharma Vs. State of U.P. and another) filed against the summoning order was rejected by the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.11, Aligarh.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the summoning order is bad inasmuch as the Magistrate has not weighed the evidence and has passed the order without due application of judicial mind. The second FIR was lodged as a counter blast to the FIR lodged by the applicant's father. His further submission is that the allegations in the complaint are false and concocted story has been set up. In fact the son and grand daughter of the complainant committed murder of Naresh Chand and there was no motive for the applicant to commit murder of Naresh Chand. His further submission is that as the FIR in case Crime No. 1333 of 2013 under Sections 302, 120B IPC had already been lodged by the present applicants with respect to the incident of murder of Naresh Chand, the FIR/protest-treated as complaint case filed by the complainant opposite party no.2 herein was not maintainable and the Magistrate ought not to have taken cognizance thereon and ought not to have passed order of summoning. He submits that the summoning order passed by the Magistrate deserves to be quashed along with the order passed in revision.

6. Learned A.G.A. submits that the summoning order has been passed on consideration of the material before the Magistrate finding that the case for summoning of the accused on the basis of the said material was made out, prima facie. He further submits that the complaint could be filed notwithstanding the fact that the present applicant had lodged the FIR earlier in point of time. The complaint could not be said to be not maintainable. He submits that the summoning order and the order passed in revision are perfectly legal and justified and do not call for any interference by this Court in the exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

7. I have considered the submissions as advanced by learned counsel for the applicant, learned A.G.A. and perused the material brought on record.

8. The submission of the learned counsel for the applicant that once the FIR was lodged by the applicant with respect to the same incident in Case Crime No. 1333 of 2013 under Section 302 IPC, and the cognizance has been taken, the second FIR at the instance of opposite party no.2 with respect to the same incident was not maintainable, is legally not acceptable and deserves rejection.

9. In Surendra Kaushik and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, (2013) 5 SCC 148, the question was "whether after registration of FIR and commencement of the investigation, a second FIR relating to the same incident on the basis of a direction issued by the learned Magistrate under Section 156(3) of the Code, could be registered?", the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that it is quite luminous that the lodgment of two FIRs is not permissible in respect of one and the same incident. The concept of sameness has been given a restricted meaning. It does not encompass filing of a counter FIR relating to the same or connected cognizable offence. What is prohibited is any further complaint by the same complainant and others against the same accused subsequent to the registration of the case under the Code, for an investigation in that regard would have already commenced and allowing registration of further complaint would amount to an improvement of the facts mentioned in the original complaint. The prohibition does not cover the allegations made by the accused in the first FIR alleging a different version of the same incident. Thus, rival versions in respect of the same incident do take different shapes and in that event, lodgment of two FIRs is permissible. It is apt to reproduce paragraph Nos. 11 to 24 of Surendra Kaushik (supra) as under:-

"11. If the primary requirement is satisfied, an FIR is registered and the criminal law is set in motion and the officer-in-charge of the police station takes up the investigation. The question that has emerged for consideration in this case is whether after registration of the FIR and commencement of the investigation, a second FIR relating to the same incident on the basis of a direction issued by the learned Magistrate under Section 156(3) of the Code can be registered.

12. For apposite appreciation of the issue raised, it is necessitous to refer to certain authorities which would throw significant light under what circumstances entertainment of second FIR is prohibited. In Ram Lal Narang (supra), this Court was dealing with the facts and circumstances of a case where two FIRs were lodged and two charge- sheets were filed. The Bench took note of the fact that the conspiracy which was the subject-matter of the second case could not be said to be identical with the conspiracy which was the subject-matter of the first one and further the conspirators were different, although the conspiracy which was the subject-matter of the first case may, perhaps, be said to have turned out to be a part of the conspiracy which was the subject-matter of the second case. After adverting to the various facets, it has been opined that occasions may arise when a second investigation started independently of the first may disclose wide range of offences including those covered by the first investigation. Being of this view, the Court did not find any flaw in the investigation on the basis of the subsequent FIR.

13. In T.T. Antony (supra), it was canvassed on behalf of the accused that the registration of fresh information in respect of the very same incident as an FIR under Section 154 of the Code was not valid and, therefore, all steps taken pursuant thereto including investigation were illegal and liable to be quashed. The Bench, analyzing the scheme of the provisions of Sections 154, 155, 156, 157, 162, 169, 170 and 170 of the Code, came to hold that only the earliest or the first information in regard to the commission of a cognizable offence satisfies the requirements of Section 154 of the Code and, therefore, there can be no second FIR and consequently, there can be no fresh investigation on receipt of every subsequent information in respect of the same cognizable offence or the same occurrence or incident giving rise to one or more cognizable offences. It was further observed that: (T.T.Antony case, SCC p. 197 para 20)

"20..... On receipt of information about a cognizable offence or an incident giving rise to a cognizable offence or offences and on entering the FIR in the station house diary, the officer in charge of a police station has to investigate not merely the cognizable offence reported in the FIR but also other connected offences found to have been committed in the course of the same transaction or the same occurrence and file one or more reports as provided in Section 173 [of the Code].

14. It is worth noting that in the said case, the two-Judge Bench explained and distinguished the dictum in Ram Lal Narang by opining that the Court had indicated that the real question was whether the two conspiracies were in truth and substance the same and held that the conspiracies in the two cases were not identical. It further proceeded to state that: (T.T. Antony case, SCC p 198, para 21)

"21..... the Court did not repel the contention of the appellant regarding the illegality of the second FIR and the investigation based thereon being vitiated, but on facts found that the two FIRs in truth and substance were different [since] the first was a smaller conspiracy and the second was a larger conspiracy as it turned out eventually.

15. Thereafter, the Bench explained thus: (T.T. Antony case, SCC p 198, para 21)

"21.....The 1973 Cr.O.C. specifically provides for further investigation after forwarding of report under sub-section (2) of Section 173 CrPC and forwarding of further report or reports to the Magistrate concerned under Section 173 (8) CrPC. It follows that if the gravamen of the charges in the two FIRs -- the first and the second -- is in truth and substance the same, registering the second FIR and making fresh investigation and forwarding report under Section 173 Cr.P.C. will be irregular and the court cannot take cognizance of the same."

16. In Upkar Singh a three-Judge Bench was addressing the issue pertaining to the correctness of law laid down in the case of T.T. Antony. The larger Bench took note of the fact that a complaint was lodged by the first respondent therein with Sikhera Police Station in Village Fahimpur Kalan at 10.00 a.m. on 20th May, 1995 making certain allegations against the appellant therein and some other persons. On the basis of the said complaint, the police had registered a crime under Sections 452 and 307 IPC. The appellant had lodged a complaint in regard to the very same incident against the respondents therein for having committed offences punishable under Sections 506 and 307 IPC as against him and his family members. As the said complaint was not entertained by the police concerned, he, under compelling circumstances, filed a petition under Section 156 (3) of the Code before the Judicial Magistrate, who having found a prima facie case, directed the concerned police station concerned to register a crime against the accused persons in the said complaint and to investigate the same and submit a report. On the basis of the said direction, Crime No. 48-A of 1995 was registered for offences punishable under Sections 147, 148, 149 and 307 IPC.

17. Challenging the direction of the Magistrate, a revision was preferred before the learned Sessions Judge who set aside the said direction. Being aggrieved by the order passed by the learned Sessions Judge, a Criminal Miscellaneous petition was filed before the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad and the High Court, following its earlier decision in Ram Mohan Garg v. State of U.P., dismissed the revision. While dealing with the issue, this Court referred to para 18 of T.T. Antony and noted how the same had been understood: (Upkar Singh case, SCC p. 296, para 11)

"11. This observation of the Supreme Court in the said case of T.T. Antony is understood by the learned counsel for the respondents as the Code prohibiting the filing of a second complaint arising from the same incident. It is on that basis and relying on the said judgment in T.T. Antony case an argument is addressed before us that once an FIR is registered on the complaint of one party a second FIR in the nature of a counter- case is not registrable and no investigation based on the said second complaint could be carried out."

18. After so observing, the Court held that the judgment in T.T. Antony really does not lay down such a proposition of law as has been understood by the learned counsel for the respondent therein. The Bench referred to the factual score of T.T. Antony and explained thus: (Upkar Singh case, SCC p. 297, para 16)

"16.....Having carefully gone through the above judgment, we do not think that this Court in T.T. Antony v. State of Kerla has precluded an aggrieved person from filing a counter-case as in the present case."

To arrive at such a conclusion, the Bench in Upkar Singh case referred to para 27 of the decision in T.T. Antony wherein it has been stated that: Upkar Singh case, SCC p. 297, para 16)

"16..... '27..... a case of fresh investigation based on the second or successive FIRs, not being a counter-case, filed in connection with the same or connected cognizable offence alleged to have been committed in the course of the same transaction and in respect of which pursuant to the first FIR either investigation is under way or final report under Section 173 (2) has been forwarded to the Magistrate, may be a fit case for exercise of power under Section 482 [of the Code] or under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution.' (T.T. Antony case, SCC p. 200)" (emphasis in original)

Thereafter, the three-Judge Bench ruled thus: (Upkar Singh case, SCC pp. 297-98, para 17)

"17.....In our opinion, this Court in that case only held that any further complaint by the same complainant or others against the same accused, subsequent to the registration of a case, is prohibited under the Code because an investigation in this regard would have already started and further complaint against the same accused will amount to an improvement on the facts mentioned in the original complaint, hence will be prohibited under Section 162 of the Code. This prohibition noticed by this Court, in our opinion, does not apply to counter-complaint by the accused in the first complaint or on his behalf alleging a different version of the said incident."

19. Be it noted, in the said verdict in Upkar Singh case, reference was made to Kari Choudhary v. Sita Devi wherein it has been opined that (Upkar Singh case, SCC p. 298, para 18)

"18.....'11..... there cannot be two FIRs against the same accused in respect of the same case. But when there are rival versions in respect of the same episode, they would normally take the shape of two different FIRs and investigation can be carried [out] under both of them by the same investigating agency. (Kari Choudhary case, SCC p. 717, para 11)"

"11. Reference was made to the pronouncement in State of Bihar v. J.A.C. Saldanha wherein it has been highlighted that the power of the Magistrate under Section 156 (3) of the Code to direct further investigation is clearly an independent power and does not stand in conflict with the power of the State Government as spelt out under Section 3 of the Police Act."

20. It is worth noting that the Court also dealt with the view expressed in

Ram Lal Narang and stated thus: (Upkar Singh case, SCC p. 299, para 22)

"22. A perusal of the judgment of this Court in Ram Lal Narang v. State (Delhi Admn.) also shows that even in cases where a prior complaint is already registered, a counter-complaint is permissible but it goes further and holds that even in cases where a first complaint is registered and investigation initiated, it is possible to file a further complaint by the same complainant based on the material gathered during the course of investigation. Of course, this larger proposition of law laid down in Ram Lal Narang case is not necessary to be relied on by us in the present case. Suffice it to say that the discussion in Ram Lal Narang case is in the same line as found in the judgments in Kari Choudhary and State of Bihar v. J.A.C. Saldanha. However, it must be noticed that in T.T. Antony case, Ram Lal Narang case was noticed but the Court did not express any opinion either way."

Explaining further, the Court in Upkar Singh case observed (in para 23) that if the law laid down by this Court in T.T. Antony is to be accepted to have held that a second complaint in regard to the same incident filed as a counter complaint is prohibited under the Code, such conclusion would lead to serious consequences inasmuch as the real accused can take the first opportunity to lodge a false complaint and get it registered by the jurisdictional police and then that would preclude the victim to lodge a complaint.

21. In Pandurang Chandrakant Mhatre the Court referred to T.T. Antony Ramesh Baburao Devaskar v. State of Maharashtra and Vikram v. State of Maharashtra and opined that the earliest information in regard to the commission of a cognizable offence is to be treated as the first information report and it sets the criminal law in motion and the investigation commences on that basis. Although the first information report is not expected to be an encyclopaedia of events, yet an information to the police in order to be first information report under Section 154(1) of the Code, must contain some essential and relevant details of the incident. A cryptic information about the commission of a cognizable offence irrespective of the nature and details of such information may not be treated as first information report. After so stating, the Bench posed the question whether the information regarding the incident therein entered into general diary given by PW-5 is the first information report within the meaning of Section 154 of the Code and, if so, it would be hit by Section 162 of the Code. It is worth noting that analyzing the facts, the Court opined that information given to the police to rush to the place of the incident to control the situation need not necessarily amount to an FIR.

22. In Babubhai this Court (in para 21), after surveying the earlier decisions, expressed the view that the court has to examine the facts and circumstances giving rise to both the FIRs and the test of sameness is to be applied to find out whether both the FIRs relate to the same incident in respect of the same occurrence or are in regard to the incidents which are two or more parts of the same transaction. If the answer is in the affirmative, the second FIR is liable to be quashed. However, in case the contrary is proved, where the version in the second FIR is different and they are in respect of two different incidents/crimes, the second FIR is permissible. In case the accused in the first FIR comes forward with a different version or counterclaim in respect of the same incident, investigation on both the FIRs has to be conducted.

23. It is worth noting that in Babubhai case, the Court expressed the view that the High Court had correctly reached the conclusion that the second FIR was liable to be quashed as in both the FIRs, the allegations related to the same incident that had occurred at the same place in close proximity of time and, therefore, they were two parts of the same transaction.

24. From the aforesaid decisions, it is quite luminous that the lodgment of two FIRs is not permissible in respect of one and the same incident. The concept of sameness has been given a restricted meaning. It does not encompass filing of a counter FIR relating to the same or connected cognizable offence. What is prohibited is any further complaint by the same complainant and others against the same accused subsequent to the registration of the case under the Code, for an investigation in that regard would have already commenced and allowing registration of further complaint would amount to an improvement of the facts mentioned in the original complaint. As is further made clear by the three-Judge Bench in Upkar Singh, the prohibition does not cover the allegations made by the accused in the first FIR alleging a different version of the same incident. Thus, rival versions in respect of the same incident do take different shapes and in that event, lodgment of two FIRs is permissible."

10. In the case of P. Sreekumar v. State of Kerla AIR 2018 Supreme Court 1482 the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that there is no prohibition in law to file the second FIR and once it is filed, such FIR is capable of being taken note of and tried on merits in accordance with law. It was for the reasons interalia that the second FIR was not filed by the same person, who had filed the first FIR; it was filed as a counter complaint; the number of accused persons and the set of allegations were different.

11. It is apt to reproduce para Nos. 29 to 32 of P. Sreekumar (Supra) as under :-

"29) Their Lordships after examining all the previous case laws on the subject laid down the following proposition of law in the following words speaking through Justice N. Santosh Hegde:

"23. Be that as it may, if the law laid down by this Court in T.T. Antony case is to be accepted as holding that a second complaint in regard to the same incident filed as a counter-complaint is prohibited under the Code then, in our opinion, such conclusion would lead to serious consequences. This will be clear from the hypothetical example given hereinbelow i.e. if in regard to a crime committed by the real accused he takes the first opportunity to lodge a false complaint and the same is registered by the jurisdictional police then the aggrieved victim of such crime will be precluded from lodging a complaint giving his version of the incident in question, consequently he will be deprived of his legitimate right to bring the real accused to book. This cannot be the purport of the Code.

24. We have already noticed that in T.T. Antony case this Court did not consider the legal right of an aggrieved person to file counterclaim, on the contrary from the observations found in the said judgment it clearly indicates that filing a counter-complaint is permissible.

25. In the instant case, it is seen in regard to the incident which took place on 20-5-1995, the appellant and the first respondent herein have lodged separate complaints giving different versions but while the complaint of the respondent was registered by the police concerned, the complaint of the appellant was not so registered, hence on his prayer the learned Magistrate was justified in directing the police concerned to register a case and investigate the same and report back. In our opinion, both the learned Additional Sessions Judge and the High Court erred in coming to the conclusion that the same is hit by Section 161 or 162 of the Code which, in our considered opinion, has absolutely no bearing on the question involved. Section 161 or 162 of the Code does not refer to registration of a case, it only speaks of a statement to be recorded by the police in the course of the investigation and its evidentiary value."

30) The aforesaid principle was reiterated by this Court (Two Judge Bench) in Surendra Kaushik and others v. State of U.P. and others, (2013) 5 SCC 148: (AIR 2013 SC 3614) in the following words:

"24. From the aforesaid decisions, it is quite luminous that the lodgment of two FIRs is not permissible in respect of one and the same incident. The concept of sameness has been given a restricted meaning. It does not encompass filing of a counter-FIR relating to the same or connected cognizable offence. What is prohibited is any further complaint by the same complainant and others against the same accused subsequent to the registration of the case under the Code, for an investigation in that regard would have already commenced and allowing registration of further complaint would amount to an improvement of the facts mentioned in the original complaint. As is further made clear by the three-Judge Bench in Upkar Singh, the prohibition does not cover the allegations made by the accused in the first FIR alleging a different version of the same incident. Thus, rival versions in respect of the same incident do take different shapes and in that event, lodgment of two FIRs is permissible."

31) Keeping the aforesaid principle of law in mind when we examine the facts of the case at hand, we find that the second FIR filed by the appellant against respondent No.3 though related to the same incident for which the first FIR was filed by respondent No.2 against the appellant, respondent No.3 and three Bank officials, yet the second FIR being in the nature of a counter-complaint against respondent No.3 was legally maintainable and could be entertained for being tried on its merits.

32) In other words, there is no prohibition in law to file the second FIR and once it is filed, such FIR is capable of being taken note of and tried on merits in accordance with law."

12. From the aforesaid judgments of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Surendra Kaushik (Supra) and P. Sreekumar (Supra) it is very well settled that the lodgement of two FIRs is not prohibited in law. The concept of sameness has a restricted meaning which does not encompass filing of counter FIR relating to the same or connected cognizable offence. Rival versions in respect of the same incident do take different shapes and in that event lodgemet of two FIR's is permissible.

13. In the case at hand in the two FIR the accused persons are different. The incident is same but the informants are different. The version of both the FIR's is different. The two FIRs are on different set of facts. There is no legal bar as the concept of sameness is not attracted. The FIR is a counter FIR and is capable of taking note of and tried on merits as per law.

14. At the stage of summoning, the Magistrate is required to apply his judicial mind only with a view to find out whether a prima facie case has been made out for summoning the accused persons. At this stage, the Magistrate is not required to consider the defence version or materials or arguments nor is he required to evaluate the merits of the materials or evidence of the complainant, as has been laid down by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of R.R. Kapur Vs. State of Panjab, reported in AIR 1960 SC 866 and State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, reported in 1992 SCC 426. The power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is exercised by the High Court only in exceptional circumstances and only when a prima facie case is not made out against the accused persons. The disputed defence of the accused cannot be considered at this stage.

15. In "Sonu Gupta versus Deepak Gupta', reported in (2015) 3 SCC 424, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under in paragraph 8:-

"8..... At the stage of cognizance and summoning the Magistrate is required to apply his judicial mind only with a view to take cognizance of the offence or in other words to find out whether a prima facie case is made out for summoning the accused persons. At this stage, the learned Magistrate is not required to consider the defence version or materials or arguments nor is he required to evaluate the merits of the materials or evidence of the complainant, because the Magistrate must not undertake the exercise to find out at this stage whether the materials would lead to conviction or not."

16. From the perusal of record and the summoning order it cannot be said that no cognizable offence is made out against the applicants on the basis of the material available before the Magistrate for summoning. The Magistrate was satisfied that a prima-facie case for summoning was made out and such satisfaction is based on the material on record. Learned counsel for the applicants could not demonstrate as to how the summoning order suffers from illegality or perversity or improper exercise or any case for summoning was not made out even prima facie.

17. The submission of learned counsel for the applicant that no such incident occurred and the applicant has been falsely implicated is a disputed question of fact which cannot be determined in these proceedings at this stage. It requires evidence and can be ascertained only during the trial. In Harshendra Kumar versus Rebatilata Koley & others (2011) 3 SCC 351, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that it is fairly well settled that while exercising inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Or revisional jurisdiction under Section 397 of the Code in a case where complaint is sought to be quashed, it is not proper for the High Court to consider the defence of the accused or embark upon an enquiry in respect of the accusations.

18. The order passed by the learned Magistrate is in conformity with the settled law. I do not find any illegality in the order under challenge. The prayer for quashing the summoning orders and further proceedings of the complaint case is refused.

19. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is hereby dismissed.

20. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. The present 482 Cr.P.C. application has been filed to quash the charge sheet no. 1/2019 dated 5th January, 2019 and Cognizance taking order dated 19th July, 2019 passed in Criminal Case No. 3374 of 2019 (State Vs. Arvind & Others), under Sections 323, 504, 506, 376, 377 and 420 I.P.C., Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautam Budh Nagar, arising out of Case Crime No. 940 of 2018, under Sections 323, 504, 506, 376 and 377 I.P.C., Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautam Budh Nagar, pending in the Court of Additional

Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Budh Nagar. The applicants have further prayed for stay of the aforesaid criminal proceedings during the pendency of the present application.

2. Heard Mr. Ranjit Saxena, learned counsel for the applicants, Mr. Daya Shanker Pandey, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and Mr. Pankaj Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State as well as perused the entire material available on record.

3 . On the matter being taken up, on 19th October, 2019, a Coordinate Bench of this Court passed following order:

"Heard Sri Ranjit Saxena, learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Attreya Dut Mishra, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State and perused the record.

his application under Section 482 Cr.P.C has been moved with a prayer to quash the charge-sheet no. 1 of 2019 dated 05.01.2019 as well as cognizance order dated 19.07.2019 filed in Crl. Case No.3374 of 2019 (State vs. Arvind and others) under sections 323, 504, 506, 376, 377, 420 IPC arising out of Case Crime No.0940 of 2018, Police Station Surajpur, District Gautambudh Nagar and also to quash the entire proceedings of the aforesaid case and also a prayer is made to stay the proceedings in this case till the disposal of this application.

It is argued by the learned counsel for the applicants that the applicants have been falsely implicated by the opposite party no. 2. She has falsely implicated the other persons also by blackmailing them as it is her habit. She has disclosed her age to be different as one place she has disclosed her age to be 33 years and at another place to be 27 years. She is a fraud lady. She had tried earlier to blackmail the applicants regarding which the applicants had lodged FIR through an application under section 156(3) Cr.PC, copy of which is at pages 44-47 of the paper book. She had also refused herself to be medically examined which is evident from the report of Samudaik/Prarthamik Swasth Kendra, Gautambudh Nagar, copy of which is annexed at page-124 of the paper book. These aspects have not been taken into consideration by the Investigating Officer of this case and has filed charge-sheet in a routine manner, which is nothing but an abuse of the process of the Court. He has relied upon the judgments of Supreme Court rendered in Dhruvaram MurlidharSonar vs. State of Maharasthra and others, MANU/SC/1518/2018, Subhash Kashinath Mahajan vs. State of Maharashra and others, MANU/SC/0275/2018 and Hem Raj vs. State of Haryana, MANU/SC/0016/2014.

Learned counsel for the applicant has also argued that the accused-applicant no. 1 is suffering from kidney ailment and is on dialysis which is being done thrice in a week.

Learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the prayer for quashing the proceedings and has brought to the notice of the Court that in the statement of the victim recorded under section 164 Cr.PC. which is annexed at page-128, she has clearly supported the prosecution version by saying that she had met the applicant no.1 about 2 1/2 years ago at Sector 12, Noida for the purposes of getting job and during this period both of them developed nearness to each other and the accused had promised that he would marry her and under that promise, he continued to establish physical relationship with the victim against her wishes. Unnatural sex was also done with her. She used to work and all the money was taken by the applicant no. 1 by deceiving her. Subsequently, she came to know that he was a married man and keeping her in dark, she was being physically exploited.

I have gone through the FIR, in which the opposite party no. 2/victim has stated that she resides in Noida. About two years ago, the accused-applicant no. 1 had met her in Greater Noida in Designer Arch and during this period, he proposed to marry her and started coming to her flat. One day he had established physical relationship with her after assuring her that he would marry her and thereafter when she told the accused to marry her, he used to avoid and under false promise that he would marry her, he continued to commit rape upon her. He used to tell her that both his kidneys are dis-functional and if she leaves him, he would die and by saying this, he used to blackmail her and also used to commit unnatural sex. She did not know that he was already married. She used to give the entire salary to the accused-applicant no.1. Thereafter, when she became jobless in the year 2018, she brought some money from her father and opened a Cafe in Sector 62. When she asked for the money which was given to the accused to be returned, he refused and when she threatened that she would make complaint to the police in this regard, out of Rs.four lacs, which was given to him, about Rs.one lac and fifty thousand was given back to her through cheque. Rest of the money, she has taken from her father and thereafter the accused started running cafe with her, telling the people that they were husband and wife. He continued to have physical relationship with her despite resistance. She kept quiet but on 15.09.2018, when she called him on phone, she heard voice of some lady at the other end and when she reached the home of the accused-applicant no.1, she found that the accused-applicant no. 1 was a married person. Thereafter, the father of the applicant no. 1 had given her threat to kill her and also abused her. Thereafter, she called the police at 100 number and the police had picked up the accused-applicant no.1 and had also asked the opposite party no. 2 to show the place where she was raped in Noida. When she came to the police station Surajpur and gave an application, the accused-applicant was called there and then he fell on the feet of the opposite party no. 2 and told her that he would keep her properly and that he should be excused and feeling pity upon him, the accused was got released from there. When the opposite party no. 2 reached her home, the father of the accused-applicant no.1 Prem Pal Singh started abusing her and stated that he would not return her money nor his son would keep her and one of his friend Neeraj had also threatened to kill her. One Vipin and Kishan Kant had also abused and threatened that her life would be spoiled.

Matter requires consideration.

Learned A.G.A. has accepted notice on behalf of opposite party no. 1.

Issue notice to opposite party no. 2 returnable within four weeks.

Both the opposite parties shall file counter affidavits by the next date.

List this case on 06.12.2019.

Till then no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants in the aforesaid criminal case subject to the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Pvt. Ltd. vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, 2018 SCC Online SC 310."

4. Before addressing the legal aspects of the case before this Court, it would be worthwhile to record the following relevant facts for deciding the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C.:

On 17th September, 2018 at 04:34 p.m., opposite party no.2, namely, Vineeta Chauhan has lodged a first information report against five named accused persons including applicant nos. 1 and 2, namely, Arvind Kumar and Prempal Singh, who are allegedly son and father, under Sections 323, 504, 506, 376 and 377 I.P.C. at Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautam Budh Nagar. In the first information report, it has been alleged that the informant/ opposite party no. 2/victim has stated that she resides in Noida. About two years ago, the accused-applicant no. 1 had met her in Greater Noida in Designer Arch and during this period, he proposed to marry her and started coming to her flat. One day, he had established physical relationship with the informant on the promise that he would marry her and thereafter when she told the accused/applicant no.1 to marry her, he used to avoid and under false promise that he would marry her, he continued to commit rape upon her. He used to tell her that both his kidneys are dis-functional and if she leaves him, he would die and by saying this, he used to blackmail her and also used to commit unnatural sex. She did not know that he was already married. She used to give the entire salary to the accused-applicant no.1. Thereafter, when she became jobless in the year 2018, she brought some money from her father and opened a Cafe in Sector- 62. When she asked for the money, which was given to the accused/applicant no.1 to be returned, he refused and when she threatened that she would make complaint to the Police in this regard, a sum of about Rs. one lac and fifty thousand out of Rs. Four lacs which was given to him, was given back to her through cheque. Rest of the money, she has taken from her father and thereafter the accused/applicant no.1 started running cafe with her, telling the people that they were husband and wife. He continued to have physical relationship with her despite resistance. She kept quiet but on 15.09.2018, when she called him on phone, she heard voice of some lady at the other end and when she reached the home of the accused-applicant no.1, she found that the accused-applicant no. 1 was a married person. Thereafter, the father of the applicant no. 1 had threatened to kill her and also abused her. Thereafter, she called the police at 100 number and the police had picked up the accused-applicant no.1 and had also asked the opposite party no. 2 to show the place where she was raped in Noida. When she came to the police station Surajpur and gave an application, the accused-applicant was called there and then he fell on the feet of the opposite party no. 2 and told her that he would keep her properly and that he should be excused and feeling pity upon him, the accused was released from there. When the opposite party no. 2 reached her home, the father of the accused-applicant no.1 Prem Pal Singh started abusing her and stated that he would not return her money nor his son would keep her and one of his friend Neeraj had also threatened to kill her. One Vipin and Kishan Kant had also abused and threatened that her life would be ruined.

5. The said first information report lodged by opposite party no.2 has been challenged by all the five named accused persons including applicant nos. 1 and 2 by means of Criminal Misc. Writ Petition no. 27147 of 2018. The said writ petition has been disposed of by a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 28th September, 2018, wherein the arrest of the accused persons have been stayed till filing of the Police report under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C.

6. On lodging of the aforesaid first information report, the Investigating Officer has recorded statements of witnesses. After completing statutory investigation under Chapter XII Cr.P.C., the Police has submitted the charge-sheet against the applicants under Sections 323, 504, 506, 376, 377 and 420 I.P.C. On submission of the aforesaid charge-sheet, the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-II, Gautam Budh Nagar has taken cognizance vide order dated 19th July, 2019 and has directed registration of the case which has been registered as Criminal Case No. 3374 of 2019 (State Vs. Arvind & Others), under Sections 323, 504, 506, 376, 377 and 420 I.P.C., Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautam Budh Nagar. Both the applicants have also been summoned by the court below vide order dated 19th July, 2019. It is against the aforesaid charge-sheet and taking cognizance order/summoning order that the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed.

7. Mr. Ranjit Saxena, learned counsel for the applicants has made following submissions on behalf of the applicants:

I. The entire criminal proceedings being Criminal Case No. 3374 of 2019 (State Vs. Arvind & Others), under Sections 323, 504, 506, 376, 377 and 420 I.P.C., Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautam Budh Nagar, arising out of Case Crime No. 940 of 2018, under Sections 323, 504, 506, 376 and 377 I.P.C., Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautam Budh Nagar, initiated against the applicants are an abuse of process of law.

II. No case under Section 376 I.P.C. is made out against the applicants as there is no medical examination report because the victim/opposite party no.2 has refused to get herself medically examined internally. It is settled legal position that medical examination report is the only evidence for initiating a trial against the accused persons, who are son and father in the present case, and hence, they cannot be jointly held guilty for an offence under Section 376 I.P.C.

III. Initially Opposite party no.2 is a sly, liar, cheater and fraud woman, as is evident from her three different date of births mentioned in her Pan Card as 25th July, 1978, Aadhar Card as 25th July, 1985 and in the present first information report as 1990. She is habitual to scold and blackmail people by threatening to implicate them in a false rape case. She earned money by blackmailing many people in the past. Initially, opposite party no.2 married one Mohd. Malik resident of Jafrabad Delhi. Thereafter opposite party no.2 divorced Mohd. Malik about 8 years ago. Thereafter she remained with one Vikki Pandit resident of Noida in living relationship. Opposite party no.2 met with applicant no.1 through Sudhir Chauhan and they became friends and started meeting each other. But after some time, opposite party no.2 started asking for money from the applicant no.1 and when the applicant no.1 refused to give the same, then she started threatening him that if he does not give her money, she will implicate him in a false rape case. Thus, frightening the applicant, opposite party no.2 and her colleague, namely, Sudhir Chauhan took Rs. 2,95,000/- from applicant no.1. Fearing, neither applicant no.1 revealed the said blackmailing from his family nor his friends nor the Police. Thereafter opposite party no.2 again blackmailed applicant no.1 and demanded Rs. 10 lacs. Applicant no.1 gave Rs. 4 lacs to opposite party no.2 only through her colleagues, namely, Hussain Abbas and Sudhir Chauhan due to which opposite party no.2 along with her colleagues have beaten applicant no.1 by threatening to implicate him in a false rape case. Ultimately, applicant no.1 got fed up from such blackmailing and has made an application before the Station House Officer, Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautambudh Nagar on 16th September, 2018 for lodging of the first information report. When the Police has not considered the same, applicant no.1 has also lodged first information report on 26th September, 2018 against opposite party no.2, Hussain Abbas and Sudhir Chauhan through an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., which has been registered as Case Crime No. 0981 of 2018, under Sections 323, 384, 386, 389, 504, 506 and 507 I.P.C., Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautam Budh Nagar.

IV. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that the criminal case initiated by opposite party no.2 against the applicants is a case of counter blast to the criminal case initiated by applicant no.1 against opposite party no.2 and her two colleagues, as he has made an application before the Court below as well as before the Station House Officer of the concerned Police Station on 16th September, 2018, whereas Opposite party no.2 has lodged first information report against the applicants on 17th September, 2018.

V. Learned counsel for the applicants also submits that the allegations of opposite party no.2 that by concealing that applicant no.1 was already married, applicant no.1 has established physical relationship on the promise to marry her and he was living with opposite party no.2 as husband and wife and she gave her salary per month to applicant no.1, are totally false and incorrect. Applicant no.1 is already married with one Shashi Bala and is having one daughter, who was studying in B.Sc. Final year. Neither applicant no.1 promised opposite party no.2 to marry her nor lived with her as husband nor established any physical relationship with her. He has never taken any money from opposite party no.2.

VI. Learned counsel for the applicants next submits that neither the applicant no.1 has established physical relations with opposite party no.2 forcefully nor on the principle of deception of fact i.e. on promise to marry her due to which opposite party no.2 has refused to get herself medically examined internally. Applicant no.1 was also not living with opposite party no.2 in any relationship. Therefore no case under Section 376 I.P.C. is made out against the applicant no.1. The applicant is running a company in the name and style of Balaji Enterprises. Applicant no.1 is not involved in any criminal case. The kidney of applicant no.1 is not functioning and he used to get dialysis done twice a week in Max Hospital, Ghaziabad. Applicant no.2, who is a retired teacher, is also not involved in the alleged offence in any manner. Being the father of applicant no.1, he has been falsely implicated in the present case.

VII. Learned counsel for the applicants lastly submits that for the alleged incident took place in the year 2018, the present first information report has been lodged on 17th September, 2019 i.e. after so many days for which no plausible explanation has been given by opposite no.2, which also makes the prosecution story doubtful.

VIII. Learned counsel for the applicants, therefore, submitted that the present criminal proceedings initiated against the applicants are not only malicious but also amount to an abuse of the process of the court of law. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, it is submitted by learned counsel for the applicants that the proceedings of the above mentioned criminal case are liable to be quashed by this Court.

IX. In support of his case, the learned counsel for the applicants has placed reliance upon following judgments of the Apex Court:

(i) Thermax Ltd. & Ors. Vs. K.M. Johny & Ors. Reported in 2011 (11) SCC;

(ii) Hem Raj Vs. State of Haryana reported in 2014 (4) SCC 395;

(iii) Rishipal Singh Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2014 (7) SCC 215;

X. Learned counsel for the applicants has also placed reliance upon the following judgments of this Court:

(i) Habiburrahaman Vs. State of U.P. (Criminal Misc. Application U/S. 482

No. 1305 of 2018 decided on 9th January, 2019);

(ii) Laxman Prasad & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. (Criminal Misc. Application U/S. 482 No. 10821 of 2010 decided on 18th July, 2019); and

(iii) Akhilesh Mishra & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. (Misc. Bench No. 29683 of 2017 decided on 16th November, 2018).

8. Per contra, Mr. Pankaj Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State as well as Mr. D.S. Mishra, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 have opposed the prayer made by the learned counsel for the applicants.

9. I. Learned A.G.A. submits that applicant no.1 has committed rape upon the victim/opposite party no.2 forcibly against her wishes and thereafter the investigation was concluded and charge-sheet has been submitted against the applicants.

II. Learned A.G.A. further submits that the judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicants in the cases of Parminder Kaur, Rakesh Kumar Yadav, Santosh Prasad, In Re: Assessment of the Criminal Justice System in Response to Sexual Offences, P. Gopalkrishnan, Ganga Prasad Mahto and S. Khusboo (Supras) are either in appeals or against conviction or in different footing having no reliance to the person, as such the same are not applicable in the facts of the present case.

III. Learned A.G.A. further states that the submission made by the learned counsel for the applicant that in view of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Dhruvaram Murlidhar Sonar vs. State of Maharashtra & Others reported in 2019 (1) SCALE-64, Page-111-121, this Hon'ble Court exercising its inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. may quash the charge-sheet in such a heinous crime is liable to be rejected, as the said judgment is not applicable in the facts of the present case. In the said case, the complainant has forcibly raped the victim but in the present case the applicant no.1/accused raped the victim/informant not forcibly but against her wishes by promising to marry her.

IV. Learned A.G.A. further states that the judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicant in the case of Pramod Surya Bhan Pawar Vs. The State of Maharashtra will also not be applicable in the facts of the present case because in the aforesaid case the accused and the victim lived in relation upto 12 year w.e.f. 2004 to 2016. They knew each other since 1998 and were intimated since 2004. Further the judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicants in the case of Ahmad Ali Quaraishi & Others Vs. State of U.P. & Others is also not applicable in the facts of the present case. In the said case the Apex Court has quashed the charge-sheet because civil dispute was going on between the parties.

V. Lastly, the learned A.G.A. states that this High Court may not quash the entire criminal proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for which he has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Mohd. Allauddin Khan Vs. The State of Bihar & Others reported in 2019 0 Supreme (SC) 454, wherin the Apex Court has held that the High Court had no jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence of the proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C. because whether there are contradictions or/and inconsistencies in the statements of the witnesses is an essential issue relating to appreciation of evidence and the same can be gone into by the Judicial Magistrate during trial when the entire evidence is adduced by the parties. However, in the present case the said state is yet to come.

VI. Learned A.G.A. has further relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Rajeev Kaurav Vs. Balasahab & Others reported in 2020 0 Supreme (SC) 143, wherein the Apex Court has held that it is no more res integra that exercise of power under Section 482 CrPC to quash a criminal proceeding is only when an allegation made in the FIR or the charge sheet constitutes the ingredients of the offence/offences alleged. Interference by the High Court under Section 482 CrPC is to prevent the abuse of process of any law or Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. It is settled law that the evidence produced by the accused in his defence cannot be looked into by the Court, except in very exceptional circumstances, at the initial stage of the criminal proceedings. It is trite law that the High Court cannot embark upon the appreciation of evidence while considering the petition filed under Section 482 CrPC for quashing criminal proceedings. It is clear from the law laid down by this Court that if a prima facie case is made out disclosing the ingredients of the offence alleged against the accused, the Court cannot quash a criminal proceeding.

VII. The learned A.G.A. further relied upon the judgments of this Court in the cases of V.K. Rai & Another Vs. State & Another passed in Application U/S 482 No. 3707 2004, decided on 29th April, 2019 and Sri Rudra Prakash Tiwari @ Raju Tiwari & Another Vs. State of U.P. & Another passed in Application U/S 482 No. 12608 of 2020 decided on 6th October, 2020.

VIII. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, learned A.G.A. states that this Court may not exercise its inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. in the present case, and hence the present application is liable to be rejected.

10. I. Mr. D.S. Pandey, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 submits that the submission made by the learned counsel for the applicants that the criminal proceedings initiated by opposite party no.2 against the applicants is a case of counter blast to the criminal proceedings initiated by applicant no.1 against opposite party no.2 have no legs to stand on the ground that opposite party no.2 has lodged the first information report on 17th September, 2018 at 04:34 p.m, whereas applicant no.1 has lodged first information report against opposite party no.2 along with her two alleged colleagues on 25th September, 2018 at 22:31 p.m. under order of the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-II, Gautam Budh Nagar dated 20th September, 2018 in an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. Apart from the above, the submission of the learned counsel for the applicants that for lodging of the first information report, he has made an application before the Station House Officer, Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautambudh Nagar on 16th September, 2018, a copy of which has been enclosed at page nos. 52 to 54 of the paper book, has also no leg to stand, as the receipt of the speed post from which the said application has been sent is of dated 17th September, 2018. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2 applicant, therefore, submits that from the aforesaid it is clear that the criminal proceedings initiated by applicant no.1 against opposite party no.2 and her two colleagues are counter blast to the criminal proceedings initiated by opposite party no.2 against the applicants.

II. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2 further submits that the Investigating Officer has investigated both the aforesaid cases, but he has submitted the charge-sheet against the applicants in the criminal case which has been initiated by opposite party no.2, whereas the Investigating Officer has submitted final report in the criminal case which has been initiated by applicant no.1 against opposite party no.2 and her two colleagues. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2, therefore, submits that from the aforesaid, it is clear that the allegations made by applicant no.1 against opposite party no.2 and her two colleagues have been found to be fake and false, whereas the allegations made by opposite party no.2 against the applicants have been found to be correct and genuine.

III. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2 further submits that the submission of the learned counsel for the applicants that applicant no.1 was only a friend of opposite party no.2 and being married person, he has never lived with opposite party no.2 as her husband nor he has established any physical relations with her on the promise to marry her, is also liable to be rejected. Initially, applicant no.1 has concealed from opposite party no.2 that he is already married having one daughter. By concealing the said fact, he lived with her as husband and established physical relations with her on the promise to marry her, which is a case of rape as the same has committed against her wishes by cheating and deception, which makes out an offence under Section 376 I.P.C. against him. As soon as opposite party no.2 came to know that applicant no.1 was already married, she used to exert pressure upon him to marry with her but he again and again pretended and avoided and ultimately, opposite party no.2 was bound to lodge first information report.

IV. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2 further states that though opposite party no.2 has refused to get herself examined internally but from the medical examination report of external part of opposite party no.2, it is clear that physical relation has been established between opposite party no.2 and applicant no.1 as husband and wife and the same has been continued for more than two years as she has believed that applicant no.1 would marry her. On believing applicant no.1, opposite party no.2 was giving her salary to applicant no.1 for performing his business of cybercafe in which they spent sometimes and everybody knew that they were husband and wife.

V. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2 further states that it is heinous offence, as applicant no.1 has raped her on the promise to marry but against her wishes. On asking of opposite party no.2 as to when, he would perform marriage with her, he always avoided saying that at the earliest he would marry her but he has not solemnized marriage with her and also misbehaved and threatened her. Opposite party no.2 being innocent lady has believed the false promise of applicant no.1 and started living with him as his wife but she did not know that applicant no.1 was cheating and committing rape behind the false promise of marriage. It is not a case of living relation but it is case of cheating and deception by establishing physical relation with the victim on the promise to marry her but against her wishes. Since applicant no.1 has established physical relations with opposite party no.2 since long on the promise to marry her but against her wishes, case of rape i.e. offence under Section 376 I.P.C. is made out against the applicants.

VI. In view of the aforesaid submissions, the learned counsel for opposite party no.2, thus, submits that the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is liable to be rejected.

11. I have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the present application.

12. The submission made by the learned counsel for the applicants that neither applicant no.1 has committed rape upon the informant nor he has established any physical relations with her on promise to marry her or on deception that he is already married, he was only his friend, is liable to be rejected on the ground that the said issue cannot be examined at this stage because the trial has yet to come, in which documentary as well as oral evidence shall be led by the prosecution side as well as defense side and thereafter on the basis of the said evidence, the said issue can be examined and decided.

13. At this stage, as per the case of the prosecution, this Court comes on the issue as to whether case for the alleged offence under Section 376 I.P.C. is made out against the applicants or not. The Apex Court in the case of Anurag Soni Vs. State of Chhattishgarh reported in (2019) 13 SCC 1, has observed that if prosecution proves beyond reasonable doubt that consent of prosecutrix was obtained by accused on false promise to marry her, through knowing well from very beginning that he had no such intention, it cannot be treated as consent but amounts to cheating and consent given under "misconception of fact" within the meaning of Section 90 I.P.C. In paragraph nos. 14 to 19 the Apex Court has observed as follows:

"14. Considering the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case and the evidence on record, the prosecution has been successful in proving the case that from the very beginning the accused never intended to marry the prosecutrix; he gave false promises/promise to the prosecutrix to marry her and on such false promise he had a physical relation with the prosecutrix; the prosecutrix initially resisted, however, gave the consent relying upon the false promise of the accused that he will marry her and, therefore, her consent can be said to be a consent on misconception of fact as per Section 90 of the IPC and such a consent shall not excuse the accused from the charge of rape and offence under Section 375 of the IPC.

15. Though, in Section 313 statement, the accused came up with a case that the prosecutrix and his family members were in knowledge that his marriage was already fixed with Priyanka Soni, even then, the prosecutrix and her family members continued to pressurise the accused to marry the prosecutrix, it is required to be noted that first of all the same is not proved by the accused. Even otherwise, considering the circumstances and evidence on record, referred to hereinabove, such a story is not believable. The prosecutrix, in the present case, was an educated girl studying in B. Pharmacy. Therefore, it is not believable that despite having knowledge that that appellant's marriage is fixed with another lady - Priyanka Soni, she and her family members would continue to pressurise the accused to marry and the prosecutrix will give the consent for physical relation.

16. In the deposition, the prosecutrix specifically stated that initially she did not give her consent for physical relationship, however, on the appellant's promise that he would marry her and relying upon such promise, she consented for physical relationship with the appellant-accused. Even considering Section 114-A of the Indian Evidence Act, which has been inserted subsequently, there is a presumption and the court shall presume that she gave the consent for the physical relationship with the accused relying upon the promise by the accused that he will marry her. As observed hereinabove, from the very inception, the promise given by the accused to marry the prosecutrix was a false promise and from the very beginning there was no intention of the accused to marry the prosecutrix as his marriage with Priyanka Soni was already fixed long back and, despite the same, he continued to give promise/false promise and alluded the prosecutrix to give her consent for the physical relationship.

17. Therefore, considering the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case and considering the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decisions, we are of the opinion that both the Courts below have rightly held that the consent given by the prosecutrix was on misconception of fact and, therefore, the same cannot be said to be a consent so as to excuse the accused for the charge of rape as defined under Section 375 of the IPC. Both the Courts below have rightly convicted the accused for the offence under Section 376 of the IPC.

18. Now, so far as the submission on behalf of the accused-appellant that the accused had marriage with Priyanka Soni on 10.06.2013 and even the prosecutrix has also married and, therefore, the accused may not be convicted is concerned, the same cannot be accepted. The prosecution has been successful by leading cogent evidence that from the very inspection the accused had no intention to marry the victim and that he had mala fide motives and had made false promise only to satisfy the lust. But for the false promise by the accused to marry the prosecutrix, the prosecutrix would not have given the consent to have the physical relationship. It was a clear case of cheating and deception.

19. As observed hereinabove, the consent given by the prosecutrix was on misconception of fact. Such incidents are on increase now-a-days. Such offences are against the society. Rape is the most morally and physically reprehensible crime in a society, an assault on the body, mind and privacy of the victim. As observed by this Court in a catena of decisions, while a murderer destroys the physical frame of the victim, a rapist degrades and defiles the soul of a helpless female. Rape reduces a woman to an animal, as it shakes the very core of her life. By no means can a rape victim be called an accomplice. Rape leaves a permanent scar on the life of the victim. Rape is a crime against the entire society and violates the human rights of the victim. Being the most hated crime, the rape tantamounts to a serious blow to the supreme honour of a woman, and offends both her esteem and dignity. ....."

14. The submission made by the learned counsel for the applicants that no case for the offence under Section 376 I.P.C. is made out against the applicants, as there is no medical evidence, which supports the said offence, is also liable to be rejected on the ground that though applicant no.1 did not rape opposite party no.2 forcefully but he has established physical relations with her and lived as husband and wife on the promise to marry her but against her wishes, which amounts to rape on the principal of cheating and deception of fact. It is case of such heinous crime where the social ramification of such crimes are very dishonourable to the victim and she suffers social death. The offences of this nature which involves social defamation, there is always a general tendency to suppress such events at the initial stage in order to avoid the lady being stigmatized. The offence committed by the applicants is egregious in nature and it speaks about depravity of the applicants character, who had no moral qualms in violating modesty and honour of a lady due to which she suffers mental agony.

15. The submission made by the learned counsel for the applicants that there is delay in lodging of the first information report for which no plausible explanation has been given which makes the prosecution case doubtful, is also liable to be rejected on the ground that as per the prosecution case, applicant has concealed from opposite party no.2 that he was already married and by concealing that fact he lived with her as husband and wife and he has established physical relation with her on the promise to marry her but against her wishes. As soon as she knew that the applicant no.1 was already married, she exerted pressure upon him to marry her after taking divorce with her wife and when he denied to marry her, she has made an application before the Police Station concerned for lodging of the first information report and when her application has not been considered, she immediately moved an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C.

16. The submission of the learned counsel for the applicants that the present criminal case initiated by opposite party no.2 against the applicants is a case of counter blast to the criminal case initiated by applicant no.1 against opposite party no.2 and her two colleagues bearing Case Crime No. 981 of 2018 dated 26th September, 2018 under Sections 323, 384, 386, 389, 504, 506 and 506 I.P.C. has only been made to be rejected by this Court on the ground that the first information report has been lodged by opposite party no.2 against the applicants on 17th September, 2018 at 1731 hours, whereas the application has been made by the applicants on 20th September, 2018 under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. for lodging of the first information report against opposite party no.2 and her two colleagues, as a result whereof on the direction issued by the court below only on 26th September, 2018 first information report has been lodged against opposite party no.2 and her two colleagues. As a matter of fact, this plea has only been taken to build up a case of counter blast and nothing else.

17. Now, this Court comes on the issue whether it is appropriate for this Court being the Highest Court to exercise its jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to quash the charge-sheet and the proceedings at the stage when the Magistrate has merely issued process against the applicants and trial is to yet to come only on the submission made by the learned counsel for the applicants that present criminal case initiated by opposite party no.2 are not only malicious but also abuse of process of law. The aforesaid issue has elaborately been discussed by the Apex Court in the following judgments:

(i) R.P. Kapur Versus State of Punjab; AIR 1960 SC 866,

(ii) State of Haryana & Ors. Versus Ch. Bhajan Lal & Ors.;1992 Supp.(1) SCC 335,

(iii) State of Bihar & Anr. Versus P.P. Sharma & Anr.; 1992 Supp (1) SCC 222,

(iv) Zandu Pharmaceuticals Works Ltd. & Ors. Versus Mohammad Shariful Haque & Anr.; 2005 (1) SCC 122, and

(v) M. N. Ojha Vs. Alok Kumar Srivastava; 2009 (9) SCC 682.

18. In the case of R.P. Kapur (Supra), the following has been observed by the Apex Court in paragraph 6:

"Before dealing with the merits of the appeal it is necessary to consider the nature and scope of the inherent power of the High Court under s. 561 -A of the Code. The said section saves the inherent power of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code or to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. There is no doubt that this inherent power cannot be exercised in regard to matters specifically covered by the other provisions of the Code. In the present case the magistrate before whom the police report has been filed under s. 173 of the Code has yet not applied his mind to the merits of the said report and it may be assumed in favour of the appellant that his request for the quashing of the .proceedings is not at the present stage covered by any specific provision of the Code. It is well-established that the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court can be exercised to quash proceedings in a proper case either to prevent the abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Ordinarily criminal proceedings instituted against an accused person must be tried under the provisions of the Code, and the High Court would be reluctant to interfere with the said proceedings at an interlocutory stage. It is not possible, desirable or expedient to lay down any inflexible rule which would govern the exercise of this inherent jurisdiction. However, we may indicate some categories of cases where the inherent jurisdiction can and should be exercised for quashing the proceedings. There may be cases where it may be possible for the High Court to take the view that the institution or continuance of criminal proceedings against an accused person may amount to the abuse of the process of the court or that the quashing of the impugned proceedings would secure the ends of justice. If the criminal proceeding in question is in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by an accused person and it manifestly appears that there is a legal bar against the institution or continuance of the said proceeding the High Court would be justified in quashing the proceeding on that ground. Absence of the requisite sanction may, for instance, furnish cases under this category. Cases may also arise where the a11egations in the First Information Report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety, do not constitute the offence alleged; in such cases no ques- tion of appreciating evidence arises; it is a matter merely of looking at the complaint or the First Information Report to decide whether the offence alleged is disclosed or not. In such cases it would be legitimate for the High Court to hold that it would be manifestly unjust to allow the process of the criminal court to be issued against the accused person. A third category of cases in which the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court can be successfully invoked may also arise. In cases falling under this category the allegations made against the accused person do constitute an offence alleged but there is either no legal evidence adduced in support of the case or evidence adduced clearly or manifestly fails to prove the charge. In dealing with this class of cases it is important to bear in mind the distinction between a case where there is no legal evidence or where there is evidence which is manifestly and clearly inconsistent with the accusation made and cases where there is legal evidence which on its appreciation may or may not support the accusation in question. In exercising its jurisdiction under s. 561-A the High Court would not embark upon an enquiry as to whether the evidence in question is reliable or not. That is the function of the trial magis- trate, and ordinarily it would not be open to any party to invoke the High Court's inherent jurisdiction and' contend that on a reasonable appreciation of the evidence the accusation made against the accused would not be sustained. Broadly stated that is the nature and scope of the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court under s. 561-A in the matter of quashing criminal proceedings, and that is the effect of the judicial decisions on the point (Vide: In Re: Shripad G. Chandavarkar AIR 1928 Bom 184, Jagat Ohandra Mozumdar v. Queen Empress ILR 26 Cal 786), Dr. Shanker Singh v. The State of Punjab 56 Pun LR 54 : (AIR 1954 Punj 193), Nripendra Bhusan Ray v. Govind Bandhu Majumdar, AIR 1924 Cal 1018 and Ramanathan Chettiyar v. K. Sivarama Subrahmanya Ayyar ILR 47 Mad 722: (AIR 1925 Mad 39)."

19. In the case of State of Haryana (Supra), the following has been observed by the Apex Court in paragraph 105:

"105. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extra-ordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers Under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we give the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

1. Where the allegations made in the First Information Report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima-facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

2. Where the allegations in the First Information Report and other materials, if any, accompanying the F.I.R. do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers Under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

3. Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

4. Where, the allegations in the F.I.R. do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated Under Section 155(2) of the Code.

5. Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

6. Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

7. Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

20. In the case of State of Bihar (Supra), the following has been observed by the Apex Court in paragraph 22. :-

"The question of mala fide exercise of power assumes significance only when the criminal prosecution is initiated on extraneous considerations and for an unauthorised purpose. There is no material whatsoever is this case to show that on the date when the FIR was lodged by R.K. Singh he was activated by bias or had any reason to act maliciously. The dominant purpose of registering the case against the respondents was to have an investigation done into the allegations contained in the FIR and in the event of there being sufficient material in support of the allegations to present the charge sheet before the court. There is no material to show that the dominant object of registering the case was the character assassination of the respondents or to harass and humiliate them. This Court in State of Bihar v J.A.C. Saldhana and Ors., [1980] 2 SCR 16 has held that when the information is lodged at the police station and an offence is registered, the mala fides of the informant would be of secondary importance. It is the material collected during the investigation which decides the fate of the accused person. This Court in State of Haryana and Ors. v. Ch. Bhajan Lal and Ors., J.T. 1990 (4) S.C. 650 permitted the State Government to hold investigation afresh against Ch. Bhajan Lal inspite of the fact the prosecution was lodged at the instance of Dharam Pal who was enimical towards Bhajan Lal."

21. In the case of Zandu Pharmaceuticals Works Ltd. (Supra), the following has been observed by the Apex Court in paragraphs nos. 8 to 12:

"8. Exercise of power under Section 482 of the Code in a case of this nature is the exception and not the rule. The Section does not confer any new powers on the High Court. It only saves the inherent power which the Court possessed before the enactment of the Code. It envisages three circumstances under which the inherent jurisdiction may be exercised, namely, (i) to give effect to an order under the Code, (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of court, and (iii) to otherwise secure the ends of justice. It is neither possible nor desirable to lay down any inflexible rule which would govern the exercise of inherent jurisdiction. No legislative enactment dealing with procedure can provide for all cases that may possibly arise. Courts, therefore, have inherent powers apart from express provisions of law which are necessary for proper discharge of functions and duties imposed upon them by law. That is the doctrine which finds expression in the section which merely recognizes and preserves inherent powers of the High Courts. All courts, whether civil or criminal possess, in the absence of any express provision, as inherent in their constitution, all such powers as are necessary to do the right and to undo a wrong in course of administration of justice on the principle "quando lex aliquid alicui concedit, concedere videtur et id sine quo res ipsae esse non potest" (when the law gives a person anything it gives him that without which it cannot exist). While exercising powers under the section, the court does not function as a court of appeal or revision. Inherent jurisdiction under the section though wide has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself. It is to be exercised ex debito justitiae to do real and substantial justice for the administration of which alone courts exist. Authority of the court exists for advancement of justice and if any attempt is made to abuse that authority so as to produce injustice, the court has power to prevent abuse. It would be an abuse of process of the court to allow any action which would result in injustice and prevent promotion of justice. In exercise of the powers court would be justified to quash any proceeding if it finds that initiation/continuance of it amounts to abuse of the process of court or quashing of these proceedings would otherwise serve the ends of justice. When no offence is disclosed by the complaint, the court may examine the question of fact. When a complaint is sought to be quashed, it is permissible to look into the materials to assess what the complainant has alleged and whether any offence is made out even if the allegations are accepted in toto.

9. In R. P. Kapur v. State of Punjab (AIR 1960 SC 866) this Court summarized some categories of cases where inherent power can and should be exercised to quash the proceedings.

(i) where it manifestly appears that there is a legal bar against the institution or continuance e.g. want of sanction;

(ii) where the allegations in the first information report or complaint taken at its face value and accepted in their entirety do not constitute the offence alleged;

(iii) where the allegations constitute an offence, but there is no legal evidence adduced or the evidence adduced clearly or manifestly fails to prove the charge.

10. In dealing with the last case, it is important to bear in mind the distinction between a case where there is no legal evidence or where there is evidence which is clearly inconsistent with the accusations made, and a case where there is legal evidence which, on appreciation, may or may not support the accusations. When exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable appreciation of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge. Judicial process should not be an instrument of oppression, or, needless harassment. Court should be circumspect and judicious in exercising discretion and should take all relevant facts and circumstances into consideration before issuing process, lest it would be an instrument in the hands of a private complainant to unleash vendetta to harass any person needlessly. At the same time the section is not an instrument handed over to an accused to short-circuit a prosecution and bring about its sudden death.

11. The scope of exercise of power under Section 482 of the Code and the categories of cases where the High Court may exercise its power under it relating to cognizable offences to prevent abuse of process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice were set out in some detail by this Court in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal (1992 Supp (1) 335). A note of caution was, however, added that the power should be exercised sparingly and that too in rarest of rare cases. The illustrative categories indicated by this Court are as follows:

"(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused. (4) Where the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code. (5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the Act concerned (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or Act concerned, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

As noted above, the powers possessed by the High Court under Section 482 of the Code are very wide and the very plenitude of the power requires great caution in its exercise. Court must be careful to see that its decision in exercise of this power is based on sound principles. The inherent power should not be exercised to stifle a legitimate prosecution. The High Court being the highest court of a State should normally refrain from giving a prima facie decision in a case where the entire facts are incomplete and hazy, more so when the evidence has not been collected and produced before the Court and the issues involved, whether factual or legal, are of magnitude and cannot be seen in their true perspective without sufficient material. Of course, no hard-and-fast rule can be laid down in regard to cases in which the High Court will exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction of quashing the proceeding at any stage. (See: Janata Dal v. H. S. Chowdhary (1992 (4) SCC 305), and Raghubir Saran (Dr.) v. State of Bihar (AIR 1964 SC 1). It would not be proper for the High Court to analyse the case of the complainant in the light of all probabilities in order to determine whether a conviction would be sustainable and on such premises arrive at a conclusion that the proceedings are to be quashed. It would be erroneous to assess the material before it and conclude that the complaint cannot be proceeded with. In a proceeding instituted on complaint, exercise of the inherent powers to quash the proceedings is called for only in a case where the complaint does not disclose any offence or is frivolous, vexatious or oppressive. If the allegations set out in the complaint do not constitute the offence of which cognizance has been taken by the Magistrate, it is open to the High Court to quash the same in exercise of the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code. It is not, however, necessary that there should be meticulous analysis of the case before the trial to find out whether the case would end in conviction or acquittal. The complaint has to be read as a whole. If it appears that on consideration of the allegations in the light of the statement made on oath of the complainant that the ingredients of the offence or offences are disclosed and there is no material to show that the complaint is mala fide, frivolous or vexatious, in that event there would be no justification for interference by the High Court. When an information is lodged at the police station and an offence is registered, then the mala fides of the informant would be of secondary importance. It is the material collected during the investigation and evidence led in court which decides the fate of the accused person. The allegations of mala fides against the informant are of no consequence and cannot by themselves be the basis for quashing the proceedings. (See: Dhanalakshmi v. R. Prasanna Kumar (1990 Supp SCC 686), State of Bihar v. P. P. Sharma (AIR 1996 SC 309), Rupan Deol Bajaj v. Kanwar Pal Singh Gill (1995 (6) SCC 194), State of Kerala v. O. C. Kuttan (AIR 1999 SC 1044), State of U.P. v. O. P. Sharma (1996 (7) SCC 705), Rashmi Kumar v. Mahesh Kumar Bhada (1997 (2) SCC 397), Satvinder Kaur v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) (AIR 1996 SC 2983) and Rajesh Bajaj v. State NCT of Delhi (1999 (3) SCC 259.

12. The above position was recently highlighted in State of Karnataka v. M. Devendrappa and Another (2002 (3) SCC 89)."(emphasis added)

22. Thereafter, in the case of M.N. Ojha Vs. Alok Kumar Srivastava, reported in 2009 (9) SCC 682 has made observations in paragraphs 25, 27, 28, 29 and 30 regarding the exercise of power under section 482 Cr.P.C. as well as the principles governing the exercise of such jurisdiction:-

"25. Had the learned SDJM applied his mind to the facts and circumstances and sequence of events and as well as the documents filed by the complainant himself along with the complaint, surely he would have dismissed the complaint. He would have realized that the complaint was only a counter blast to the FIR lodged by the Bank against the complainant and others with regard to same transaction.

26. This Court in Pepsi Foods Ltd. & Anr. Vs. Special Judicial Magistrate & Ors. [(1998)5 SCC 749 held:

"28. Summoning of an accused in a criminal case is a serious matter. Criminal law cannot be set into motion as a matter of course. It is not that the complainant has to bring only two witnesses to support his allegations in the complaint to have the criminal law set into motion. The order of the Magistrate summoning the accused must reflect that he has applied his mind to the facts of the case and the law applicable thereto. He has to examine the nature of allegations made in the complaint and the evidence both oral and documentary in support thereof and would that be sufficient for the complainant to succeed in bringing charge home to the accused. It is not that the Magistrate is a silent spectator at the time of recording of preliminary evidence before summoning of the accused. The Magistrate has to carefully scrutinise the evidence brought on record and may even himself put questions to the complainant and his witnesses to elicit answers to find out the truthfulness of the allegations or otherwise and then examine if any offence is prima facie committed by all or any of the accused."

27. The case on hand is a classic illustration of non-application of mind by the learned Magistrate. The learned Magistrate did not scrutinize even the contents of the complaint, leave aside the material documents available on record. The learned Magistrate truly was a silent spectator at the time of recording of preliminary evidence before summoning the appellants.

28. The High Court committed a manifest error in disposing of the petition filed by the appellants under Section 482 of the Code without even adverting to the basic facts which were placed before it for its consideration.

29. It is true that the court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure cannot go into the truth or otherwise of the allegations and appreciate the evidence if any available on record. Normally, the High Court would not intervene in the criminal proceedings at the preliminary stage/when the investigation/enquiry is pending.

30. Interference by the High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure can only be where a clear case for such interference is made out. Frequent and uncalled for interference even at the preliminary stage by the High Court may result in causing obstruction in progress of the inquiry in a criminal case which may not be in the public interest.

But at the same time the High Court cannot refuse to exercise its jurisdiction if the interest of justice so required where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no fair-minded and informed observer can ever reach a just and proper conclusion as to the existence of sufficient grounds for proceeding. In such cases refusal to exercise the jurisdiction may equally result in injustice more particularly in cases where the Complainant sets the criminal law in motion with a view to exert pressure and harass the persons arrayed as accused in the complaint."(emphasis added)

23. In the case of Md. Allauddin Khan (Supra), which has been relied upon by the learned A.G.A. for the State, the Apex Court has held that the High Court had no jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence in proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C. The relevant paragraph nos. 15 to 17 are being quoted herein below:

"15. The High Court should have seen that when a specific grievance of the appellant in his complaint was that respondent Nos. 2 and 3 have committed the offences punishable under Sections 323, 379read with Section 34 IPC, then the question to be examined is as to whether there are allegations of commission of these two offences in the complaint or not. In other words, in order to see whether any prima facie case against the accused for taking its cognizable is made out or not, the Court is only required to see the allegations made in the complaint. In the absence of any finding recorded by the High Court on this material question, the impugned order is legally unsustainable.

16. The second error is that the High Court in para 6 held that there are contradictions in the statements of the witnesses on the point of occurrence.

*17. In our view, the High Court had no jurisdiction to appreciate the evidence of the proceedings under Section 482 of the Code Of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (for short "Cr.P.C.") because whether there are contradictions or/and inconsistencies in the statements of the witnesses is essentially an issue relating to appreciation of evidence and the same can be gone into by the Judicial Magistrate during trial when the entire evidence is adduced by the parties. That stage is yet to come in this case."(Emphasis added)

24. The Apex Court in its another judgment in the case of Nallapareddy Sridhar Reddy Vs. The State of Andhra Pradesh & Ors. reported in 2020 0 Supreme (SC) 45, dealing with a case under Sections 406 and 420 I.P.C. has observed that the Court does not have to delve deep into probative value of evidence regarding the charge. It has only to see if a prima facie case has been made out. Veracity of deposition/material is a matter of trial and not required to be examined while framing charge. The Apex Court further observed that the veracity of the depositions made by the witnesses is a question of trial and need not be determined at the time of framing of charge. Appreciation of evidence on merit is to be done by the court only after the charges have been framed and the trial has commenced. However, for the purpose of framing of charge the court needs to prima facie determine that there exists sufficient material for the commencement of trial. The Apex Court in paragraph nos. 21, 22 and 24 has observed as follows:

"21 The appellant has relied upon a two-judge Bench decision of this Court in Onkar Nath Mishra v The State, (2008) 2 SCC 561 to substantiate the point that the ingredients of Sections 406 and 420 of the IPC have not been established. This Court while dealing with the nature of evaluation by a court at the stage of framing of charge, held thus:

"11. It is trite that at the stage of framing of charge the court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to finding out if the facts emerging therefrom, taken at their face value, disclosed the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. At that stage, the court is not expected to go deep into the probative value of the material on record. What needs to be considered is whether there is a ground for presuming that the offence has been committed and not a ground for convicting the accused has been made out. At that stage, even strong suspicion founded on material which leads the court to form a presumptive opinion as to the existence of the factual ingredients constituting the offence alleged would justify the framing of charge against the accused in respect of the commission of that offence." (Emphasis supplied)

22 In the present case, the High Court while directing the framing the additional charges has evaluated the material and evidence brought on record after investigation and held:

"LW1 is the father of the de facto complainant, who states that his son in law i.e., the first accused promised that he would look after his daughter at United Kingdom (UK) and promised to provide Doctor job at UK and claimed Rs.5 lakhs for the said purpose and received the same and he took his daughter to the UK. He states that his son-in-law made him believe and received Rs.5 lakhs in the presence of elders. He states that he could not mention about the cheating done by his son-in- law, when he was examined earlier. LW13, who is an independent witness, also supports the version of LW1 and states that Rs.5 lakhs were received by A1 with a promise that he would secure doctor job to the complainant's daughter. He states that A1 cheated LW1, stating that he would provide job and received Rs.5 lakhs. LW14, also is an independent witness and he supported the version of LW13. He further states that A1 left his wife and child in India and went away after receiving Rs.5 lakhs.

Hence, from the above facts, stated by LWs. 13 and 14, prima facie, the version of LW1 that he gave Rs.5 lakhs to A1 on a promise that he would provide a job to his daughter and that A1 did not provide any job and cheated him, receives support from LWs. 13 and 14. When the amount is entrusted to A1, with a promise to provide a job and when he fails to provide the job and does not return the amount, it can be made out that A1 did not have any intention to provide job to his wife and that he utilised the amount for a purpose other than the purpose for which he collected the amount from LW1, which would suffice to attract the offences under Sections 406 and 420 IPC. Whether there is truth in the improved version of LW.1 and what have been the reasons for his lapse in not stating the same in his earlier statement, can be adjudicated at the time of trial.

It is also evidence from the record that the additional charge sheet filed by the investigating officer, missed the attention of the lower court due to which the additional charges could not be framed." (Emphasis supplied)

24 The veracity of the depositions made by the witnesses is a question of trial and need not be determined at the time of framing of charge. Appreciation of evidence on merit is to be done by the court only after the charges have been framed and the trial has commenced. However, for the purpose of framing of charge the court needs to prima facie determine that there exists sufficient material for the commencement of trial. The High Court has relied upon the materials on record and concluded that the ingredients of the offences under Sections 406 and 420 of the IPC are attracted. The High Court has spelt out the reasons that have necessitated the addition of the charge and hence, the impugned order does not warrant any interference." (Emphasis added)

25. The Apex Court in its latest judgment in the case of Rajeev Kourav (Supra), which has been heavily relied upon by the learned A.G.A., has clearly held that the conclusion of the High Court to quash the criminal proceedings on the basis of its assessment of the statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. is not permissible as the evidence of the accused cannot be looked into before the stage of trial. The relevant portions whereof read as follows:

*"*6. It is no more res integra that exercise of power under Section 482 CrPC to quash a criminal proceeding is only when an allegation made in the FIR or the charge sheet constitutes the ingredients of the offence/offences alleged. Interference by the High Court under Section 482 CrPC is to prevent the abuse of process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. It is settled law that the evidence produced by the accused in his defence cannot be looked into by the Court, except in very exceptional circumstances, at the initial stage of the criminal proceedings. It is trite law that the High Court cannot embark upon the appreciation of evidence while considering the petition filed under Section 482 CrPC for quashing criminal proceedings. It is clear from the law laid down by this Court that if a prima facie case is made out disclosing the ingredients of the offence alleged against the accused, the Court cannot quash a criminal proceeding.

7. Mr.Shoeb Alam, learned counsel appearing for Respondent Nos.1 to 3 relied upon several judgments of this Court to submit that allegations only disclose a case of harassment meted out to the deceased. The ingredients of Section 306 and 107 IPC have not been made out. It is submitted that there is nothing on record to show that the Respondents have abetted the commission of suicide by the deceased. He further argued that abetment as defined under Section 107 IPC is instigation which is missing in the complaint made by the Appellant. He further argued that if the allegations against Respondent Nos.1 to 3 are not prima facie made out, there is no reason why they should face a criminal trial.

8. We do not agree with the submissions made on behalf of Respondent Nos.1 to 3. The conclusion of the High Court to quash the criminal proceedings is on the basis of its assessment of the statements recorded under Section 161 CrPC. Statements of witnesses recorded under Section 161CrPC being wholly inadmissible in evidence cannot be taken into consideration by the Court, while adjudicating a petition filed under Section 482 CrPC1.

9. Moreover, the High Court was aware that one of the witnesses mentioned that the deceased informed him about the harassment meted out by Respondent Nos.1 to 3 which she was not able to bear and hence wanted to commit suicide. The High Court committed an error in quashing criminal proceedings by assessing the statements under Section 161 Cr. P.C.

10. We have not expressed any opinion on the merits of the matter. The High Court ought not to have quashed the proceedings at this stage, scuttling a full-fledged trial in which Respondent Nos.1 to 3 would have a fair opportunity to prove their innocence."(Emphasis supplied)

26. In view of the aforesaid, this Court finds that the submissions made by the applicants' learned counsel call for adjudication on pure questions of fact which may adequately be adjudicated upon only by the trial court and while doing so even the submissions made on points of law can also be more appropriately gone into by the trial court in this case. This Court does not deem it proper, and therefore cannot be persuaded to have a pre-trial before the actual trial begins. A threadbare discussion of various facts and circumstances, as they emerge from the allegations made against the accused, is being purposely avoided by the Court for the reason, lest the same might cause any prejudice to either side during trial. But it shall suffice to observe that the perusal of the F.I.R. and the material collected by the Investigating Officer on the basis of which the charge sheet has been submitted makes out a prima facie case against the accused at this stage and there appear to be sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. I do not find any justification to quash the charge sheet or the proceedings against the applicants arising out of them as the case does not fall in any of the categories recognized by the Apex Court which may justify their quashing. All the judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicants referred to above are clearly distinguishable in the facts of the present case.

27. The prayer for quashing the impugned charge-sheet as well as the entire proceedings of the aforesaid State case are refused, as I do not see any abuse of the court's process at this pre-trial stage.

28. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is, accordingly, rejected. There shall be no order as to costs.

29. Written submissions filed by the learned counsel for the applicants, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and the learned A.G.A. for the State are taken on record.

30 Interim order, if any, stands discharged.

Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code (2 of 1974),- Section 482 - Inherent power - Quashing of criminal proceedings - Compromise - Indian Penal Code- Sections 323,506,498-A - matrimonial disputes - If parties want to move on in a matrimonial dispute on the basis of compromise, they may be allowed to compound the offences in terms of settlement - After compromise/settlement arrived at between the parties, the chance of ultimate conviction is bleak - no useful purpose is likely to be served by allowing a criminal prosecution to continue, as the same would be futile exercise and a sheer wastage of precious time of the Court - continuation of a criminal proceedings after compromise would cause oppression and prejudice to the parties concerned (Para 14, 15)

Commission of offence u/Ss.323,506,498-A of Penal Code - Matter related to matrimonial dispute - Parties to dispute arrived at amicable settlement - No useful purpose to be served by allowing criminal prosecution against accused – Summoning order against applicant quashed (Para 14 15 16)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Deepak Verma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Vijay Tripathi, learned counsel for opposite party No.2, learned AGA and perused the record.

2. The present 482 Cr.P.C. application has been filed with a prayer to quash the Complaint Case No.1172 of 2018 (Nisha Singh vs. Vidyadhar Singh and others), under Sections 323, 506, 498-A I.P.C. and 3/4 D.P. Act, as well as impugned summoning order dated 20.09.2018 passed by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), FTC/Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sonbhadra.

3. It is germane to give actual facts regarding case. On 16.06.2017 opposite party No.2 filed complaint against the applicants and three other persons alleging therein that before marriage applicants came to parental house for solemnizing matrimonial ceremonies and that time demanded Rs.2 lacs dowry from her father and threatened them that if they did not fulfil the demand then applicant No.1 will not marriage her, thereafter some relatives intervened then applicant ready for marriage on condition that after marriage they would give Rs.2 lacs thereafter marriage was solemnize on 17.02.2016 and complainant went to her in-laws house, when father of complainant could not fulfil the demand of Rs.2 lacs they started torture and cruelty against her. Complainant told about cruelty of applicant to her father, complainant's father came and convinced them but they did not agree and continued threatening and tortured the complainant.

At last on 27.06.2016 they beaten and threatened her and thrown her out of house. Complainant filed complaint against the applicant and Magistrate after taking statement under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C., summoned the applicants under Sections 323, 506, 498-A I.P.C. and Section ¾ of Dowry Prohibition Act on 20.09.2018. Applicant by way of aforesaid 482 Application challenged the complaint case as well as summoning order dated 20.09.2018 passed by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), FTC/Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sonbhadra on the ground that entire allegations of case are baseless, false and concocted and no occurrence was taken place. No injury caused to opposite party No.2 but due to false implication and undue harassment, the opposite party No.2 taken false and fabricated stand in order to harass and humiliate the applicant. He further submitted that opposite party No.2 is a married lady and lived in a modern style and she dislike the living style of the applicants whereas the applicant No.1 always wants to keep opposite party No.2 with him and lead a happy marriage life with her with full honour and dignity but due to aggressive and non co-operative attitude of opposite party no.2, the Applicant No.1 filed Case No.274 of 2017 against opposite party No.2 under Section 9 of Hindu Marriage Act for restitution of conjugal rights before Principal Judge, Family Court, Ranchi which was decreed in favour of applicant No.1 on 15.09.2017. He further submitted that cause of action of the present case arose in District Ranchi, Jharkhand and in view of Hon'ble Apex Court law laid down in case of Geeta Mehrotra Vs. State of U.P., reported in 2012 (10) ADJ 464 (SC). The aforesaid complaint case is liable to be dismissed on the ground of jurisdiction and further impugned order as well as proceedings are arbitrary and mala fide and not supported by documentary evidence.

4. This Court on 20.11.2018 passed the following order:

"Heard learned counsel for the applicants and Miss. Poonam Singh Sengar, learned A.G.A. for the State.

This petition under Section 482, Cr.P.C. has been filed for quashing the proceedings of complaint Case No. 1172/2018, under sections 323, 506, 498A IPC & 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act (Nisha Singh Vs. Vidyadhar Singh and others) as well as the impugned summoning order dated 20.09.2018 passed by Civil Judge (Senior Division), F.T.C./Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sonbhadra.

It is contended by learned counsel for the applicants that the husband as well as entire family members of the husband-applicant no. 1 have been falsely implicated in the present case by the opposite party no.2 on the general allegations, which is against the well settled principles of law as laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court reported in 2012 (10) SCC 741 in the matter of Geeta Mehrotra and another Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh.

So far as the husband-applicant no. 1 namely, Vidyadhar Singh is concerned following orders is being passed:-

From the perusal of the material on record and looking into the facts of the case at this stage it cannot be said that no offence is made out against the applicant. All the submission made at the bar relates to the disputed question of fact, which cannot be adjudicated upon by this Court in exercise of power conferred under Section 482 Cr.P.C.. At this stage only prima facie case is to be seen in the light of the law laid down by Supreme Court in cases of R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 866, State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 426, State of Bihar Vs. P.P.Sharma, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 192 and lastly Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. Vs. Mohd. Saraful Haq and another (Para-10) 2005 SCC (Cr.) 283. The disputed defence of the accused cannot be considered at this stage. Moreover, the applicant have got a right of discharge under Section 239 or 227/228 or 245 Cr.P.C. as the case may be through a proper application for the said purpose and they are free to take all the submissions in the said discharge application before the Trial Court.

The prayer for quashing the proceedings is refused.

However, it is provided that if the applicant no. 1 appears and surrenders before the court below within 30 days from today and applies for bail, then the bail application of the applicant be considered and decided in view of the settled law laid by this Court in the case of Amrawati and another Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2004 (57) ALR 290 as well as judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court reported in 2009 (3) ADJ 322 (SC) Lal Kamlendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. For a period of 30 days from today or till the disposal of the application for grant of bail whichever is earlier, no coercive action shall be taken against the applicant. However, in case, the applicant does not appear before the Court below within the aforesaid period, coercive action shall be taken against him.

With the aforesaid directions, this application is finally disposed off so far as applicant no. 1 is concerned.

So far as the applicant nos. 2 and 3 are concerned the following orders is being passed:-

Issue notice to the opposite party no.2 returnable within four weeks. Steps be taken within a week.

Learned A.G.A. prays for and is granted four weeks time to file counter affidavit. The opposite party no. 2 may also file counter affidavit within the said period. As prayed by the learned counsel for the applicants two week thereafter is granted for filing rejoinder affidavit.

List after expiry of the aforesaid period before appropriate Court.

Till the next date of listing, no coercive action shall be taken against the applicant Nos. 2 and 3 in the aforesaid case."

5. Thereafter short counter affidavit has been filed by opposite party No.2 alleging therein after mutual consent both applicant No.1 (husband) and opposite party No.2 (wife) settled their disputes including the criminal case registered as Case Crime No.1172 of 2018 filed under Sections 323, 506, 498-A I.P.C. and Section ¾ of Dowry Prohibition Act. Both the parties came to settlement and prepared joint compromise petition under Section 13-B of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 on 29.01.2019 filed in the Family Court, Sonbhadra with prayer to divorce decree be granted in terms of compromise, the same has been filed with the short counter affidavit. He further submitted that opposite party No.2 has expressed willingness to respect and abide by the terms and conditions. He prays for quashing of proceedings of Complaint Case No.1172 of 2018, under Sections 323, 506, 498-A I.P.C. and Section ¾ of Dowry Prohibition Act (Nisha Singh Vs. Vidyadhar Singh and others).

6. This Court by order dated 21.09.2020 has passed the following order:

"Learned counsel for both sides are present.

It is being argued that parties have entered in compromise.

Let a compromise be filed before trial Court, where, it shall be verified and after its due verification, the same along with order of trial Court be filed by way of supplementary affidavit.

List before the appropriate Bench on 20.10.2020.

Interim order, if any, shall continue till the next date."

7. C.J.M., Sonebhadra in compliance of order dated 21.09.2020 submitted a report that which is on record. Appellant and his wife, opposite party No.2 (Nisha Singh) filed compromise application with affidavit and they were verified by their counsels, namely, Sri Ravi Prakash Tripathi and Sri T. P. Gupta.

8. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case there is no need to proceedings be further go on in terms of the above points.

9. Learned Additional Government Advocate as well as learned counsel appearing on behalf of opposite party No.2 do not dispute the aforesaid fact. Learned counsel for opposite party No. 2 has also submitted at the Bar that since the parties concerned have settled their dispute as mentioned above, therefore, opposite party No.2 has no grievance and has no objection in quashing the impugned criminal proceedings against the applicant.

10. After having heard the arguments of learned counsel for the parties, before proceedings further, it is apposite to give reference of some judgments of the Apex Court, wherein the Apex Court has laid down the guideline for quashing of criminal proceedings arising out of non-compoundable offences under Section 320 Cr.P.C. on the basis of compromise and amicable settlement of matrimonial cases between the parties concerned, which are as follows:-

(i) The Apex Court in case of B.S. Joshi and others Vs. State of Haryana and another (2003) 1 SCC (Cri) 848 gave its approving nod to the existence and exercise of High Court's power to quash the criminal proceedings on compromise in suitable matrimonial cases. Paragraph nos. 14 and 15 of the said judgment are reproduced herein-below:-

"14. There is no doubt that the object of introducing Chapter XX-A containing Section 498A in the Indian Penal Code was to prevent the torture to a woman by her husband or by relatives of her husband. Section 498A was added with a view to punishing a husband and his relatives who harass or torture the wife to coerce her or her relatives to satisfy unlawful demands of dowry. The hyper-technical view would be counter productive and would act against interests of women and against the object for which this provision was added. There is every likelihood that non-exercise of inherent power to quash the proceedings to meet the ends of justice would prevent women from settling earlier. That is not the object of Chapter XXA of Indian Penal Code.

15. In view of the above discussion, we hold that the High Court in exercise of its inherent powers can quash criminal proceedings or FIR or complaint and Section 320 of the Code does not limit or affect the powers under Section 482 of the Code."

(ii) The Apex Court in case of State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Laxmi Narayan and others, AIR 2019 SC 1296, considering previous judgments and section 320 Cr.P.C. has laid down guideline for exercising the inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. in case of settlement of dispute between the parties concerned. Paragraph no. 13 of the said judgment is reproduced herein-below:-

"13. Considering the law on the point and the other decisions of this Court on the point, referred to hereinabove, it is observed and held as under:

(i) that the power conferred under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings for the non-compoundable offences under Section 320 of the Code can be exercised having overwhelmingly and predominantly the civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes and when the parties have resolved the entire dispute amongst themselves;

(ii) such power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involved heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society;

(iii) similarly, such power is not to be exercised for the offences under the special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender;

(iv) offences under Section 307 IPC and the Arms Act etc. would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore are to be treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone, and therefore, the criminal proceedings for the offence under Section 307 IPC and/or the Arms Act etc., which have a serious impact on the society cannot be quashed in exercise of powers under Section 482 of the Code, on the ground that the parties have resolved their entire dispute amongst themselves. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 IPC in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of Section 307 IPC is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to framing the charge under Section 307 IPC. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delegate parts of the body, nature of weapons used etc. However, such an exercise by the High Court would be permissible only after the evidence is collected after investigation and the charge sheet is filed/charge is framed and/or during the trial. Such exercise is not permissible when the matter is still under investigation. Therefore, the ultimate conclusion in paragraphs 29.6 and 29.7 of the decision of this Court in the case of Narinder Singh (supra) should be read harmoniously and to be read as a whole and in the circumstances stated hereinabove;

(v) while exercising the power under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings in respect of non compoundable offences, which are private in nature and do not have a serious impart on society, on the ground that there is a settlement/compromise between the victim and the offender, the High Court is required to consider the antecedents of the accused; the conduct of the accused, namely, whether the accused was absconding and why he was absconding, how he had managed with the complainant to enter into a compromise etc."

11. Hon'ble Apex Court in the judgment while deciding Criminal Appeal No.1723 of 2017 in the case of Parbatbhai Aahir @ Parbhatbhai Bhimsinhbhai Karmur and others Vs. State of Gujarat and another has considered the decision in State of Tamil Nadu vs. R Vasanthi Stanley, the Court rejected the submission that the first respondent was a woman "who was following the command of her husband" and had signed certain documents without being aware of the nature of the fraud which was being perpetrated on the bank. Rejecting the submission, this Court held that:

"14... Lack of awareness, knowledge or intent is neither to be considered nor accepted in economic offences. The submission assiduously presented on gender leaves us unimpressed. An offence under the criminal law is an offence and it does not depend upon the gender of an accused. True it is, there are certain provisions in Code of Criminal Procedure relating to exercise of jurisdiction under Section 437, etc. therein but that altogether pertains to a different sphere. A person committing a murder or getting involved in a financial scam or forgery of documents, cannot claim discharge or acquittal on the ground of her gender as that is neither constitutionally nor statutorily a valid argument. The offence is gender neutral in this case. We say no more on this score.

15..... A grave criminal offence or serious economic offence or for that matter the offence that has the potentiality to create a dent in the financial health of the institutions, is not to be quashed on the ground that there is delay in trial or the principle that when the matter has been settled it should be quashed to avoid the load on the system ....."

12. The broad principles which emerge from the precedents on the subject, may be summarised in the following propositions :

(i) Section 482 preserves the inherent powers of the High Court to prevent an abuse of the process of any court or to secure the ends of justice. The provision does not confer new powers. It only recognises and preserves powers which inhere in the High Court;

(ii) The invocation of the jurisdiction of the High Court to quash a First Information Report or a criminal proceeding on the ground that a settlement has been arrived at between the offender and the victim is not the same as the invocation of jurisdiction for the purpose of compounding an offence. While compounding an offence, the power of the court is governed by the provisions of Section 320 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. The power to quash under Section 482 is attracted even if the offence is non-compoundable.

(iii) In forming an opinion whether a criminal proceeding or complaint should be quashed in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482, the High Court must evaluate whether the ends of justice would justify the exercise of the inherent power;

(iv) While the inherent power of the High Court has a wide ambit and plenitude it has to be exercised; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent an abuse of the process of any court;

(v) The decision as to whether a complaint or First Information Report should be quashed on the ground that the offender and victim have settled the dispute, revolves ultimately on the facts and circumstances of each case and no exhaustive elaboration of principles can be formulated;

(vi) In the exercise of the power under Section 482 and while dealing with a plea that the dispute has been settled, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the offence. Heinous and serious offences involving mental depravity or offences such as murder, rape and dacoity cannot appropriately be quashed though the victim or the family of the victim have settled the dispute. Such offences are, truly speaking, not private in nature but have a serious impact upon society. The decision to continue with the trial in such cases is founded on the overriding element of public interest in punishing persons for serious offences;

(vii) As distinguished from serious offences, there may be criminal cases which have an overwhelming or predominant element of a civil dispute. They stand on a distinct footing in so far as the exercise of the inherent power to quash is concerned;

(viii) Criminal cases involving offences which arise from commercial, financial, mercantile, partnership or similar transactions with an essentially civil flavour may in appropriate situations fall for quashing where parties have settled the dispute;

(ix) In such a case, the High Court may quash the criminal proceeding if in view of the compromise between the disputants, the possibility of a conviction is remote and the continuation of a criminal proceeding would cause oppression and prejudice;

13. On going through the judgments referred herein above makes it very clear that even in the cases which involved non compoundable offences, their quashing has been approved by the Apex Court if the nature of the offence is such which does not have grave and wider social ramifications and where the dispute is more or less confined between the litigating parties. The inherent jurisdiction of this Court may be suitably exercised if the parties inter-se have mutually decided to bury the hatchet and settle the matter amicably in between them in a criminal litigation emanating from matrimonial disputes, which are quintessentially of civil nature and other criminal litigations, which do not have grave and deleterious social fall-outs. The Court in the wider public interest may suitably exercise its power in appropriate case and terminate the pending proceedings in order to secure ends of justice or to prevent an abuse of the process of any court. Such positive exercise of the inherent jurisdiction can also find its vindication in a more pragmatic reason. When the complainant of a case or the victim of the offence itself expresses its resolve not to give evidence against the accused in the back drop of the compromise between the parties inter-se or if the fact of inter-se compromise in between the parties is apparent on the face of record, and they are still called upon the depose in the Court, they in all probability, go back on their words and resile from their previous statements, the truthfulness of which is best known only to themselves. They are in such circumstances very likely to eat their words and perjure themselves. The solemn proceedings of the Court often get reduced to a sham exercise and farce in such circumstances. The proceedings can hardly be taken to their logical culmination and in such circumstances, the prospect of the conviction gets lost.

14. The object of criminal law is primarily to visit the offender with certain consequences. He may be made to suffer punishment or by paying compensation to the victim, but the law at the same time also provides that it may not be necessary in every criminal offence to mete out punishment, particularly, if the parties concerned wants to bury the hatchet. If they want to move on in a matrimonial dispute on the basis of compromise, they may be allowed to compound the offences in terms of settlement.

15. After compromise/settlement arrived at between the parties in the present case, the chance of ultimate conviction is bleak and therefore, no useful purpose is likely to be served by allowing a criminal prosecution against the applicant to continue, as the same would be futile exercise and a sheer wastage of precious time of the Court. The continuation of a criminal proceedings after compromise would cause oppression and prejudice to the parties concerned.

16. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case in the light of dictum and guideline laid down by the Apex Court as mentioned above, this Court feels that this is a fit case, where this Court can exercise its inherent power to secure the end of justice. In view of above interest of justice would be met, if the prayer of parties is acceded to and the criminal proceedings and other litigation between the parties is brought to an end.

17. As a fallout and consequence of above discussions, Complaint Case No.1172 of 2018 (Nisha Singh vs. Vidyadhar Singh and others), under Sections 323, 506, 498-A I.P.C. and 3/4 D.P. Act, as well as impugned summoning order dated 20.09.2018 against the applicants are hereby quashed.

18. The instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is allowed in terms of compromise as mentioned above.

10. Baldev Singh Vs St. of H.P. , AIR 1987 SC 1239

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal, J. & Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Govind Krishna, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. By means of this writ petition, order dated 10.12.2014 (annexure-8) passed by respondent no. 5-District Magistrate, Allahabad has been challenged. By the impugned order, District Magistrate has rejected representation of the petitioner with regard to delimitation and separation of village, Bhavapur from gram panchayat Deeha on the ground that representation has been submitted after expiry of the period within which objection ought to have been filed.

3. In brief facts of the case are that petitioner is resident of village Bhavapur, gram panchayat Deeha, Tehsil Soraon, District Allahabad and is engaged in cultivation. State Government issued the order dated 16.8.2014 setting forthwith the guidelines for re-organization/delimitation of gram panchayats. Thereafter, petitioner made an application dated 15.9.2014 before respondent no. 3 praying for separation of village Bhavapur from gram panchayat Deeha. Another application dated 20.10.2014 with same prayer was also submitted to respondent no. 3 but all in vain. Thereafter, petitioner has approached this Court by means of Writ C no. 60848 of 2014 which was decided by this Court vide order dated 25.11.2014 directing respondent no. 3 to consider the grievance of the petitioner within eight weeks from the date of presentation of such representation. Pursuant to the order passed by this Court, petitioner has again approached to respondent no. 3 by representation dated 3.12.2014. Consequently, vide office memo dated 10.12.2014, said representation of the petitioner was rejected by respondent no. 5 i.e. District Magistrate on the ground that it was submitted after expiry of period mentioned in executive order dated 16.8.2014.

4. Counsel for petitioner contended that respondents ought to have constituted separate village Bhavapur from gram panchayat Deeha.

5. The submission is thoroughly misconceived. The contention that a particular part should have been included or excluded is not within right of any resident of concerned area since the exercise, in effect, is in the nature of legislative function, and, unless it can be shown to be violative of any statutory provision, no interference is called for in exercise of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution.

6. Learned counsel for petitioner could not show as to what statutory provision has been violated by the State Government. We, therefore, do not find any reason to interfere.

7. Constitution of Gram Panchayat, decision to include a particular area in a particular local body etc., are all legislative functions and policy matters of the State. Interference therein is not ordinarily within the domain of Court unless it is shown that exercise is in violence of some statutory provisions or the constitutional provisions or is so patently arbitrary, as is evidence from bare perusal of record. (See: State of Punjab Vs. Tehal Singh and Ors., JT 2002 (5) SC 40).

8. The legislative functions and policy matters of the State are not to be interfered ordinarily by the Court. In Union of India and others Vs. Kannadapara Sanghatanegala Okkuta & Kannadigara and others, 2002(10) SCC 226 it was held that it is not the function of the Court to decide location or situs of the headquarter since it is the function of Government and it was followed in Collector and others Vs. P. Mangamma and others, 2003(4) SCC 488. Similar is the view taken in State of Rajasthan and Ors. vs. Lata Arun, 2002(6) SCC 252 and Premium Granites and Another vs. State of Tamil Nadu and Others, 1994(2) SCC 691.

9. In State of Himachal Pradesh Vs. High Court of Himachal Pradesh, 2000(10) SCC 646 a direction was issued by the Court to construct road. It was seriously deprecated by Apex Court holding that it amounts to financial indiscipline since it is within the domain of Government and not Court. Similar is the view taken in J.R. Raghupathy and Ors. Vs. State of A.P. and Ors. AIR 1988 SC 1681 and Federation of Railway Officers Association and Ors. Vs. Union of India, 2003(4) SCC 289.

10. In Samvidhan Bahali Andolan and Anr. vs. Union of India (UOI) and Ors., AIR 1998 All 210 the Court said that creation of revenue districts etc. is the internal arrangement of State and a policy matter to be decided by the Government. It is not to be interfered by the Court unless it is shown that there is some violation of statutory provision.

11. No such violation of any statutory provision could be shown by learned counsel for petitioner in the case in hand. He, however, placed reliance on Apex Court's decision in Baldev Singh Vs. State of Himanchal Pradesh AIR 1987 SC 1239. Having gone through the aforesaid decision, in our view, the same has no application at all the the facts of this case and, therefore, does not help the petitioner in any manner.

12. In view of above, we do not find any merit in the writ petition.

13. Dismissed.

1. Heard Sri Anoop Trivedi, the learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Vibhu Rai for the petitioner, Sri Akhhileshwar Singh, learned standing counsel for the State and Sri Ravi Kant, the learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Rohan Gupta for the Development Authority.

2. The State of U.P. taking cognizance of the rise in population and demand for space specially for residential purposes enacted U.P. Apartment (Promotion of Construction, Ownership and Maintenance) Act, 2010 (for short "the Act").

3. The object of the Act is to give primacy to the interest of the owners of apartments and protection of their rights against arbitrary and profit oriented actions of the promoters / builders in which a role of an arbiter has been assigned to the competent authority in the Development Authority as held in M/s Designarch Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. vs. Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority, 2013 (9) ADJ 594.

4. We take judicial notice that of late large number of cases are coming to this Court on behalf of home-buyers who after having spent their hard-earned life savings, buy an apartment, only to face hostile and arbitrary actions from the promoters/builders/Development Authorities and instead of resolving such disputes, they become mute spectators. This is the genesis of the present petition.

5. The petitioner, a registered association of home-buyers, has preferred this writ petition highlighting several irregularities in violation of their agreements on the part of the respondent no. 3 being the developer-co-promoter of a residential project "Shipra Shritsti", owned and floated by M/s Shipra Estate Limited & Jay Krishan Estates Developers Pvt. Ltd which despite several representations to the competent authority/respondent no. 2, have gone unattended.

6. Sri Ravi Kant, the learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Rohan Gupta for the Development Authority and Sri Akhileshwar Singh, the learned standing counsel for the State submit that it would be in the fitness of things and in the ends of justice that this petition is disposed of with the direction to the Competent Authority under the Act to take a decision on the grievance of the petitioner, after hearing the parties concerned, in accordance with law.

7. We appreciate the fair stand taken by all concerned. However, as indicated above, there is an element of huge public interest involved in respect of each and every home-buyer whose legitimate grievance is to be addressed within the parameters of agreement and law.

8. We deem appropriate to issue a general mandamus to the Competent Authorities to dispose of the grievance of the home-buyers within a stipulated period so as to obviate an individual home-buyer or a registered association, as the case may be, from approaching this Court time and again. The benefit of this order shall also be extended to the competent authority envisaged under U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976 and other cognate enactments.

9. The writ petition is disposed of with the following directions:-

(i) A general mandamus is issued to the Competent Authorities under U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 & U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976 or any other cognate enactment to decide the grievance of the home-buyers or their associations, positively within 3 months from the date the grievance is brought to their knowledge, by reasoned and speaking order under intimation to the aggrieved persons.

(ii) The Competent Authority shall ensure that before any decision is taken, a right of audience is given to the parties concerned.

(iii) The Competent Authority shall ensure that an officer not below the rank of a Gazetted Officer shall periodically visit the apartment / building at least once in 6 months at a prior notice to the registered association which shall be obliged to circulate it amongst its member so as to give them an opportunity to ventilate their grievance, if any. Any reported violation shall be immediately brought to the notice of the Authority concerned which shall immediately take remedial steps.

(iv) Any inaction on the part of Competent Authority shall be construed as serious dereliction of duty, warranting interference from the State Government.

10. The Registrar General is directed to communicate this order to the Principal Secretary (Urban Development), U.P. Government, Lucknow, with a further direction to circulate the same to all the Competent Authorities concerned for due compliance, forthwith.

Ravi Yashwant Bhoir Vs District Collector, Raigad & ors. , (2012) 4 SCC 407

(Delivered by Hon'ble Surya Prakash Kesarwani, J. & Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned standing counsel for the State-respondents.

2. The petitioner filed a complaint against the respondent nos.5 and 6, who were Secretary and Gram Pradhan of Village Panchayat Karamchandpur, Block Kamalganj, District Farrukhabad. The complaint was with regard to certain work carried out by the village panchayat. An enquiry was made by the competent officer and the complaint was found to be without substance. The enquiry officer held that the entire work carried out by the village Pradhan was satisfactory. The copy of the enquiry report dated 19.11.2019 was also forwarded to the petitioner as appears from the subsequent order dated 13.03.2020. In the background of the aforesaid fact the impugned orders dated 13.03.2020 and 27.06.2020 have been passed by the District Panchayat Raj Officer, Farrukhabad.

3. In both the aforesaid impugned orders a finding has been recorded that in the enquiry the entire work was found to have been completed satisfactorily.

4. We do not find any good reason to interfere with the finding of the facts recorded by the respondent no.4 in the impugned orders.

5. Another aspect that requires to be taken note of is that the petitioner is a complainant.

6. It has been consistently held that only an aggrieved person can maintain a writ petition. In order to show that the petitioner is an aggrieved person, it must be demonstrated that he has a particular interest of his own beyond that of the general public with regard to the subject matter of the writ petition. There must be material to show that the petitioner has suffered some injury or has been denied or deprived of a legal right. In the absence of the aforesaid, he cannot be said to be a "person aggrieved" so as to maintain the writ petition.

7. In this regard we may refer to the decision in Ravi Yashwant Bhoir v District Collector, Raigad and others (2012) 4 SCC 407 wherein it was held that in the absence of any injury to his legal right or legally protected interest, a complainant cannot claim status of a party to an adversarial litigation.

8. For the aforestated reasons we are not inclined to entertain the present writ petition, and the same is accordingly dismissed.

(A) Civil Law - Issuance of writ - A challenge to an evaluation undertaken by examining bodies, in any case, on a mere allegation that "possibility of errors in calculation of marks cannot be ruled out..." cannot be countenanced - must stand on sounder footing. (Para -5)

Petitioner seeks the issuance of a writ commanding the respondents to undertake a revaluation of his answer script submitted in respect of the subject- "Community and Elementary Education" - Petitioner participated in an entrance examination for granting admission to its D.EL.E.D. course - unsuccessful in obtaining admission - petitioned Court for reevaluation of the answer script in question - prior to approaching Court petitioner has not obtained a copy of answer script from the respondents - procedure that could have been adopted . (Para -2,3)

HELD:- An evaluation undertaken by examining bodies should not be viewed with suspicion unless it is prima facie established that it was not fair or transparent. Courts must necessarily be wary of entertaining such challenges unless it be well substantiated and found to rest on a strong pedestal which is likely to succeed.. There must be a demonstrable illegality in the evaluation undertaken and only in such rare and exceptional cases would the Court be legally justified in invoking its jurisdiction. 2. Ran Vijay Singh Vs St. of U.P. , (2018) 2 SCC 357

3. High Court of Tripura Vs Tirtha Sarathi Mukherjee , (2019) 16 SCC 663

(Delivered by Hon'ble Yashwant Varma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Dhananjay Awasthi who appears for respondent Nos. 2 and 3 and Ms. Suman Jaiswal for the first respondent.

2. The petitioner seeks the issuance of a writ commanding the respondents to undertake a revaluation of his answer script submitted in respect of the subject- "Community and Elementary Education". The issue itself arises in the backdrop of the petitioner having participated in an entrance examination conducted by the second respondent for granting admission to its D.EL.E.D. course. Being unsuccessful in obtaining admission to that course, he has petitioned this Court for reevaluation of the answer script in question.

3. It becomes pertinent to note that prior to approaching this Court the petitioner has not obtained a copy of the answer script from the respondents, a procedure that could have been adopted and is permissible in law in light of the law as declared by the Supreme Court in Central Board of Secondary Education Vs. Aditya Bandhopadhya and others1. The Court is thus left to consider the reliefs claimed in the petition solely on the basis of the following averments as made in paragraphs 9 to 12 of the writ petition which read thus:-

9. That the petitioner has solved the question paper to the best of his ability but when the statement of marks awarded to the petitioner in Sub Code No. 507 he was shocked.

10. The the petitioner apprehends that answer book of the subject Community and Elementary Education on (Subject Code No. 507) has not been properly checked/evaluated.

11. That possibility of errors in calculation of marks, cannot be ruled out, but unless any direction to ensure rechecking or scrutiny is issued the Institute may not take any step.

12. That the petitioner has good academic career, he awarded 199/500 in Purva Madhyama, 323/600 in Uttar Madhyama, 1199/2200 in Shashtri Pariksha and 590/900 in Acharya Pariksha and in result of D.EL.Ed. Course subject Nos. 501 to 514 except Code No. 507 he awarded good marks and he hopes that he will get more than 28 marks."

4. The practice of approaching this Court directly without obtaining copies of the answer scripts or seeking directions requiring examining bodies to produce answer books cannot but be deprecated in the strongest terms, discouraged and curbed. The conduct of examinations by educational authorities cannot be lightly interfered with unless the petition rests on a strong foundation and it is at least prima facie established that there has been an apparent and evident mistake in the process of evaluation. The onus and burden on this aspect lies solely on the petitioner and is one which must be discharged at the threshold. In order to establish a stark or glaring mistake in the process of evaluation it is imperative for the petitioner to establish from the record that an apparent illegality has been committed by the examiner. That cannot possibly be done unless a copy of the answer script has been obtained and the petitioner upon a perusal thereof finds a manifest error or illegality in the evaluation undertaken. The burden to prove that a fair evaluation was in fact undertaken cannot stand shifted or placed upon the examining body unless this primary fact is established by the petitioner. This essentially since the examining body cannot be commanded to prove a fact in the negative.

5. An evaluation undertaken by examining bodies should not be viewed with suspicion unless it is prima facie established that it was not fair or transparent. Courts must necessarily be wary of entertaining such challenges unless it be well substantiated and found to rest on a strong pedestal which is likely to succeed. In any case a foray like the present cannot be entertained simply on the basis of a stated apprehension or the candidate's own assessment of performance in the examination. A challenge to an evaluation undertaken by examining bodies, in any case, on a mere allegation that "possibility of errors in calculation of marks cannot be ruled out..." cannot be countenanced. It must necessarily, for reasons aforenoted, stand on sounder footing.

6. More fundamentally the Court takes notes of the submission of Sri Awasthi who submits that no provision for reevaluation exists in terms of which a direction as claimed by the petitioner may be issued. While the absence of a provision for reevaluation may not completely denude the Court from examining a challenge to an evaluation process under Article 226 of the Constitution, its powers may be invoked in rare and exceptional cases and where the error or illegality is patent and manifest. The Court deems it apposite to notice the following conclusion as ultimately pronounced in Ran Vijay Singh Vs. State of U.P.2

30.2.If a statute, Rule or Regulation governing an examination does not permit re-evaluation or scrutiny of an answer sheet (as distinct from prohibiting it) then the court may permit re-evaluation or scrutiny only if it is demonstrated very clearly, without any "inferential process of reasoning or by a process of rationalisation" and only in rare or exceptional cases that a material error has been committed;

7. The above position was again explained in High Court of Tripura v. Tirtha Sarathi Mukherjee3 with the Supreme Court observing: -

20.The question however arises whether even if there is no legal right to demand re-valuation as of right could there arise circumstances which leave the Court in any doubt at all. A grave injustice may be occasioned to a writ applicant in certain circumstances. The case may arise where even though there is no provision for re-valuation it turns out that despite giving the correct answer no marks are awarded. No doubt this must be confined to a case where there is no dispute about the correctness of the answer. Further, if there is any doubt, the doubt should be resolved in favour of the examining body rather than in favour of the candidate. The wide power under Article 226 may continue to be available even though there is no provision for re-valuation in a situation where a candidate despite having giving correct answer and about which there cannot be even the slightest manner of doubt, he is treated as having given the wrong answer and consequently the candidate is found disentitled to any marks.

21.Should the second circumstance be demonstrated to be present before the writ court, can the writ court become helpless despite the vast reservoir of power which it possesses? It is one thing to say that the absence of provision for re-valuation will not enable the candidate to claim the right of evaluation as a matter of right and another to say that in no circumstances whatsoever where there is no provision for re-valuation will the writ court exercise its undoubted constitutional powers? We reiterate that the situation can only be rare and exceptional."

8. As is evident from the above exposition of the law on the subject, there must be a demonstrable illegality in the evaluation undertaken and only in such rare and exceptional cases would the Court be legally justified in invoking its jurisdiction. The petitioner here has miserably failed to meet the tests as evolved and noticed above.

9. The writ petition consequently fails and is dismissed.

(A) Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 107, 111 - Practice & Procedure - Notice - - The material is the foundation of the exercise of power u/s 107 Cr.P.C. which is clearly lacking in the notice. The notice either should clearly disclose the material indicating the satisfaction of the Magistrate or the same should be accompanied by the Police report and other material being relied upon by the Magistrate at the time of issuing of notice, in this case both are missing. (Para 14)

Application Allowed. (E-8)

List of Cases cited :-

1. Madhu Limaye Vs Sub- Divisional Magistrate, Monghyr & ors., (1970) 3 SCC 746

2. Sheo Raj Yadav Vs St. of U.P. & 2 ors., Criminal Misc. No. 492 of 2010

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shailender Singh, learned counsel for the applicant as well as learned Additional Government Advocate for the State of U.P.

2. By means of present application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. the applicant has challenged the notice dated 28.07.2020, issued by Assistant Police Commissioner/Special Executive Magistrate, Lucknow purportedly issued under Section 107 Cr.P.C., directing the applicant to show cause as to why he should not be directed to execute personal bond for maintaining peace and for which purpose applicant has been directed to appear in the office of Assistant Police Commissioner, Lucknow on 24.08.2020.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant has assailed the impugned notice on the ground that no reasons have been disclosed in the said notice and from the show cause notice applicant is unable to tender any response to the same as there is no mention or whisper about the acts which may have caused breach of peace for which applicant is being held liable to.

4. A notice under Section 107 Cr.P.C. is not an empty formality but is issued with purpose to elicit a response from a person to whom notice is issued. In absence of mentioning of any facts or any details in the show cause notice clearly disables the person to defend himself effectively or give any meaningful reply to the same. For ready reference, Section 107 Cr.P.C. is quoted hereinbelow :-

"107. Security for keeping the peace in other cases.- (1) When an Executive Magistrate receives information that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquility or to do any wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquility and is of opinion that there is sufficient ground for proceedings, he may, in the manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond with or without sureties, for keeping the peace for such period, not exceeding one year, as the Magistrate thinks fit.

(2) Proceedings under this section may be taken before any Executive Magistrate when either the place where the breach of the peace or disturbance is apprehended is within his local jurisdiction or there is within such jurisdiction a person who is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquility or to do any wrongful act as aforesaid beyond such jurisdiction."

5. This provision is in aid of orderly society and seeks to nip in the bud conduct subversive of the peace and public tranquility. For this purpose, the Executive Magistrates are invested with large discretionary powers for the preservation of public peace and order. The justification for such provisions is claimed by the State to be in the function of the State which embraces not only the punishment of offenders but, as far as possible, the prevention of offences.

6. Section 107, is a preventive provision enabling the Executive Magistrate to prevent disturbance of the public tranquility and breach of peace, by requiring the persons who are likely to cause disturbance to public pace, to execute bond with or without surety for keeping peace. It should be mentioned that preventive action under Section 107 is not meant for substitution of punishment or for harassment or humiliation to the non-applicants who are summoned.

7. The foundation of jurisdiction for action under Section 107 is credible information from a police officer or a private person. Prior to the initiation of proceedings under Section 107, information must be given against a person from whom it is sought to take security. The condition precedent to taking security is that the Magistrate should be informed that some person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquility or to do some wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquility. The law provides for a proceedings under Section 107, being started on information received, if in the opinion of the Magistrate there is sufficient ground for a proceeding. The Magistrate has to satisfy himself that a person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquility as mentioned in Section 107 before taking action.

8. Section 107, does not give a discretion to the Magistrate in the sense that he "may" require the person to show cause. But when he does exercise that discretion and does decide that he will issue a notice to show cause, then that notice to show cause must be a notice which satisfies thee requirements of Section 111. Persons who are sought to be bound over to keep the peace should be given an opportunity to show cause and all the procedure laid down in Chapter VIII should be followed.

9. For taking action under Section 107, the manner provided is clearly laid down under Section 111. Issue of a preliminary notice to show cause apart from what is provided in Section 111 does not appear to be justified. Before the Magistrate two courses are open. If he is satisfied on report on information, he will immediately draw up a proceedings under Section 107, but if he is not satisfied, then he will not take any action and leave the matter as it is.

10. A show cause notice has solemn purpose to inform the person about the material for which response is being sought with regard to the acts which may constitute breach of peace for which he is being directed to file personal bond for maintaining peace. For a person who is not aware of the acts or incident for which he may or may not be culpable, it is impossible for him to reply to such a show cause notice.

11. In the case of Madhu Limaye Vs. Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Monghyr and Others, 1970 (3) SCC 746, it has been held by Hon'ble the Apex Court that the person proceeded against show cause notice must be informed of the allegations made against him, by giving him the substance of the information so that he may meet such allegations.

12. This Court in Criminal Misc. Case No. 492 of 2010 - Sheo Raj Yadav Vs. State of U.P. and Two Others (decided on 15.02.2010), while dealing with a similar issue, has observed as under "The preliminary order contemplated under Section 111 Cr.P.C. is a judicial order and has to be prepared and drawn up cautiously and carefully in compliance with the provisions of Section 111 Cr.P.C. and the other must contain reasons of the Magistrate satisfaction. The substance of the information is the matter upon which he has to show cause. If substance of information is not given in the order under Section 111 Cr.P.C. the person against whom the order has been made will remain in confusion. The extent of information which must be set forth depends in each case upon the circumstances of that case. The basic object of preliminary order being to give the person proceeded against an opportunity to meet the allegation made against him as well as nature of the order proposed.

In the instant case, the impugned order without recording reasons show non-application of judicial mind. Notice under Section 111 Cr.P.C. containing vague apprehensions and allegations indicate pre-conceived notions. The impugned notice under challenge is void and proceedings against the petitioner are nullity and without jurisdiction as substance of information received as required is incomplete and ambiguous. Notice without substance of information vitiate the proceedings drawn on the basis of such vague notice are apparently abuse of process of Court. Failure to comply with the mandatory requirements of Section 111 Cr.P.C. vitiate the preliminary order and consequently the proceedings. The procedure followed by the learned Magistrate is not in consonance with the provisions of law."

13. Perusal of the impugned show cause notice clearly indicates that the same has been issued on printed proforma where proposed date of appearance and the name of the party has been written. It clearly indicates that such a notice has been issued without any application of mind and does not conform to the statutory provisions of Section 107 Cr.P.C..

14. The notice does not mention any act or omission on the part of the applicant which may have been considered by the Magistrate at the time of issuance of the notice. The material is the foundation of the exercise of power u/s 107 Cr.P.C. which is clearly lacking in the notice. The notice either should clearly disclose the material indicating the satisfaction of the Magistrate or the same should be accompanied by the Police report and other material being relied upon by the Magistrate at the time of issuing of notice. In the present case, both are missing and therefore, the impugned notice does not fulfill the prescription of law in this regard and therefore is liable to be set aside.

15. In the light of above, the impugned show cause notice dated 28.07.2020 (Annexure-1 to the affidavit filed in support of application), issued by Assistant Police Commissioner/Special Executive Magistrate, Lucknow is hereby set aside. It is open for the concerned Magistrate to pass fresh order in accordance with law, if he so chooses.

16. With the aforesaid directions, the application stands allowed.

(Para 12)

Section 195(a)(i) Cr.P.C. bars the court from taking cognizance of any offence punishable under Section 188 IPC or abetment or attempt to commit the same, unless, there is a written complaint by the public servant concerned for contempt of his lawful order. The court lacks competence to take cognizance in certain types of offences enumerated therein. The legislative intent behind such a provision has been that an individual should not face criminal prosecution instituted upon insufficient grounds by person actuated by malice, ill-will or frivolity of disposition and to save time of the criminal courts being wasted by endless prosecutions. 10. Vraj Pal Singh Vs St. of U.P. & anr. Application No. 482 No. 13876 of 2015 (followed)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vijay Singh Gour, learned counsel for the applicant, learned Additional Government Advocate ("AGA') for the State and Sri Birendra Singh, learned counsel for opposite party no.3/informant.

2. Learned counsel for the applicant is permitted to make necessary corrections during the course of the day.

3. On the consent of the parties, both the aforesaid applications arising from the same case crime number, based on the same allegations, are being heard and decided together.

4. The instant applications have been filed under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (for short "Cr.P.C.') assailing the charge-sheet dated 03.03.2017 and the consequential cognizance order dated 19.05.2017, passed by the Judicial Magistrate - I, Kanpur Dehat arising from Case Crime No. 35 of 2017.

5. The facts, briefly stated, is that a first information report ("FIR') being Case Crime No.35 of 2017, under Section 188 I.P.C. and Section 123 (B) (2) of the Representation of People Act, 1951, Police Station - Rasulabad, District - Kanpur Dehat, came to be lodged by opposite party no.2, Pawan Kumar Rawat posted as F.S.T. Magistrate at Assembly Area No.205, Rasulabad, Kanpur Dehat during the Uttar Pradesh Assembly Election.

6. As per the prosecution case, allegation against the applicants is that being a candidate they conducted an election meeting/rally at a premises without taking permission from the concerned Magistrate/Authority. After investigation, the Investigating Officer ("IO') filed a charge-sheet on 03.03.2017, on which the competent court has taken cognizance.

7. It is urged that the court below has mechanically, without application of mind taken cognizance, whereas, the cognizance is barred under Section 195(1)(i) Cr.P.C., wherein, it is categorically mandated that no court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under Sections 172 to 188 (both inclusive) of Indian Penal Code, 1860 ("IPC'), except on a complaint in writing of the public servant concerned or of some other public servant to whom he is administratively subordinate. It is further urged that the expression "complaint' is defined under sub-section (d) of Section 2 of Cr.P.C., which means any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate, with a view to his taking action under the Code, that some person, whether known or unknown, has committed an offence, but does not include police report. It is further submitted that no offence has been provided under Section 123(B)(2) of the Representation of People Act, 1951, that has been made punishable under the Indian Penal Code or under the Representation of People Act. The remedy available to the aggrieved candidate is by filing election petition under Section 100 of the Representation of People Act and not by lodging first information report. In this backdrop, it is urged that the entire proceedings pursuant to the charge-sheet and cognizance taken thereon is bad in law.

8. In rebuttal, learned A.G.A. and learned counsel for the first informant have not disputed the facts, it is admitted that the opposite party no.2, the designated Magistrate appointed for the Assembly election had filed an F.I.R. alleging violation of prohibitory orders. It is also admitted that pursuant to the F.I.R., investigation was carried out and charge-sheet came to be filed by the I.O.

9. Rival submissions fall for consideration.

10. Section 195 Cr.P.C. provides for prosecution for contempt of lawful authority of public servants, for offences against public justice and for offences relating to documents given in evidence. Sub-clause(1)(a) of Section 195 Cr.P.C. reads thus: (1) No court shall take cognizance-

(a) (i) of any offence punishable under sections 172 to 188 (both inclusive) of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), or

(ii) of any abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, or

(iii) of any criminal conspiracy to commit such offence, except on the complaint in writing of the public servant concerned or of some other public servant to whom he is administratively subordinate;"

11. Section 188 I.P.C. provides for disobedience to order duly promulgated by public servant. Section 188 is extracted:

"188. Disobedience to order duly promulgated by public servant.-- Whoever, knowing that, by an order promulgated by a public servant lawfully empowered to promulgate such order, he is directed to abstain from a certain act, or to take certain order with certain property in his possession or under his management, disobeys such direction, shall, if such disobedience causes or tends to cause obstruction, annoyance or injury, or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury, to any person lawfully employed, be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both;

and if such disobedience causes or trends to cause danger to human life, health or safety, or causes or tends to cause a riot or affray, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both."

12. On bare perusal of the legislative intend provided under Section 195 Cr.P.C., it is explicit that for the offence under Section 188 I.P.C., the prosecution can be initiated only on a complaint filed by the concerned public servant and not by a police report.

13. In the facts of the case at hand, applicants herein, are charged for offence under Section 188 IPC and for no other offence under the IPC. The cognizance taken on the chargesheet would thus be illegal and void in view of Section 195(1)(a)(2) Cr.P.C..

14. In M. S. Ahlawat v. State of Haryana & Anr.1, the Apex Court considered the matter at length and held as under :

"....Provisions of Section 195 CrPC are mandatory and no court has jurisdiction to take cognizance of any of the offences mentioned therein unless there is a complaint in writing as required under that section."

15. In Daulat Ram v. State of Punjab2, the Apex Court considered the nature of the provisions of Section 195 Cr.PC. In the said case, cognizance was taken on the police report by the Magistrate and the appellant therein had been tried and convicted, though the concerned public servant, the Tahsildar had not filed any complaint. The Court held as under :

"The cognizance of the case was therefore wrongly assumed by the court without the complaint in writing of the public servant, namely, the Tahsildar in this case. The trial was thus without jurisdiction ab initio and the conviction cannot be maintained....."

16. Thus, in view of the above, the law can be summarized to the effect that there must be a complaint by the pubic servant whose lawful order has not been complied with. The complaint must be in writing. The provisions of Section 195 Cr.PC are mandatory. Non-compliance of it would vitiate the prosecution and all other consequential orders. The Court cannot assume the cognizance of the case without such complaint. In the absence of such a complaint, the trial and conviction will be void ab initio being without jurisdiction.

17. Thus Section 195(a)(i) Cr.PC bars the court from taking cognizance of any offence punishable under Section 188 IPC or abetment or attempt to commit the same, unless, there is a written complaint by the public servant concerned for contempt of his lawful order. The object of this provision is to provide for a particular procedure in a case of contempt of the lawful authority of the public servant. The court lacks competence to take cognizance in certain types of offences enumerated therein. The legislative intent behind such a provision has been that an individual should not face criminal prosecution instituted upon insufficient grounds by persons actuated by malice, ill-will or frivolity of disposition and to save the time of the criminal courts being wasted by endless prosecutions. This provision has been carved out as an exception to the general rule contained under Section 190 Cr.PC that any person can set the law in motion by making a complaint, as it prohibits the court from taking cognizance of certain offences until and unless a complaint has been made by some particular authority or person. Other provisions in the Cr.PC like sections 196 and 198 do not lay down any rule of procedure, rather, they only create a bar that unless some requirements are complied with, the court shall not take cognizance of an offence described in those Sections. (vide Govind Mehta v. The State of Bihar3; Patel Laljibhai Somabhai v. The State of Gujarat4; Surjit Singh & Ors. v. Balbir Singh5; State of Punjab v. Raj Singh & Anr6; K. Vengadachalam v. K.C. Palanisamy & Ors.7; and Iqbal Singh Marwah & Anr. v. Meenakshi Marwah & Anr.8).

18. In the case of State of U. P. vs. Suresh Chandra Srivastava & Ors.9, a bench of three judges of the Supreme Court very succinctly explained that the provisions of Section 195 would affect the offences mentioned therein, and not offences which are separate and distinct from those contained in Section 195 CrPC observing as under;

"The law is now well settled that where an accused commits some offences which are separate and distinct from those contained in section 195, section 195 will affect only the offences mentioned therein unless such offences form an integral part so as to amount to offences committed as a part of the same transaction, in which case the other offences also would fall within the ambit of sec. 195 of the Code."

19. In the case at hand the applicants are not charged for any other offence save Section 188 IPC. The complaint was not filed by the concerned Magistrate/Public Servant. The cognizance taken thereon, by the court below is void abinitio being in violation of the mandatory provision-Section 195 Cr.P.C. (Refer: Vraj Pal Singh vs. State of U.P. and another10)

20. Section 123 of the Representation of People Act provides for corrupt practices. Section 123(2) is extracted:

"Undue influence, that is to say, any direct or indirect interference or attempt to interfere on the part of the candidate or his agent, or of any other person [with the consent of the candidate or his election agent], with the free exercise of any electoral right:"

21. The remedy available for corrupt practice has been provided under Section 100 of the Representation of People Act. The grounds for declaring an election to be void is provided therein. Sub clause (b) provides that any corrupt practice has been committed by a returned candidate or his election agent or by any other person with the consent of a returned candidate or his election agent, the High Court shall declare the election of the returned candidate to be void.

22. The Representation of People Act, and / or the Indian Penal Code do not provide for any punishment for corrupt practices. The remedy available to an aggrieved candidate is to get the election of the returned candidate declared void.

23. In view thereof, the petition succeeds, accordingly, allowed.

24. The proceedings arising from aforesaid Case Crime No.35 of 2017 and the consequential congnizance order is quashed.

Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code (2 of 1974)- Section 156(3) - Complaint - when a complaint/application is filed before a Magistrate with allegation that FIR is not being registered by police regarding a cognizable offence - the Magistrate has a discretion either to direct the police to investigate the case under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. or to proceed to examine the complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. (Para 6)

C.J.M. treated the application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case & fixed a date for recording of the statement of complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. - Held - no material on record to indicate that judicial discretion exercised by Magistrate was either arbitrary or perverse - merely because another view was possible it would not be an occasion for the High Court to substitute the judicial discretion exercised by the Magistrate - Order not liable to be quashed. 3. Rameshbhai Pandurao Hedau Vs St. of Guj.AIR 2010 SC 1877

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Heard Sri Yanendra Pandey, learned counsel for the applicant as well as learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. The instant application has been filed by the applicant with a prayer to quash the order dated 22.7.2020 passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Agra in Application No.251 of 2020 (Krishna Kant Dixit vs. Nikhil Agarwal and others) under Section 406, 418, 420, 467, 468, 471, 472, 120B, 504, 506 IPC, Police Station Hari Parwat District Agra, whereby the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. has been treated as a complaint case and a date has been fixed for recording of the statement of complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the order passed by the learned Magistrate has been passed in a mechanical manner, without appreciating legal proposition and the facts as mentioned in the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. It has been contended that the impugned order is wholly illegal and arbitrary and has been passed without application of mind and is against the facts on record and the learned Magistrate was bound to issue a direction for registration of the FIR and could not have treated the said application as a complaint case as police investigation was necessary.

4. Having heard the learned counsel for the applicant and the learned AGA and having perused the impugned order, this Court finds that the order by means of which the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. has been treated as a complaint case, which is impugned in the present case, is a well reasoned and speaking order which shows that the learned Magistrate has applied his mind before passing the impugned order and considered all the legal and factual aspects of the matter.

5. All the contentions raised by the applicants' counsel relate to disputed questions of fact. The court has also been called upon to adjudge the testimonial worth of prosecution evidence and evaluate the same on the basis of various intricacies of factual details which have been touched upon by learned counsel. The veracity and credibility of material furnished on behalf of the prosecution has been questioned and false implication has been pleaded. In the process of invoking its inherent jurisdiction, this court cannot be persuaded to have a pre trial before the actual trial begins. The submissions made by the learned counsel call for adjudication on pure questions of fact which may be adequately adjudicated upon only by the trial court and while doing so even the submissions made on points of law can also be more appropriately gone into by the trial court in this case.

6. The fact remains that when a complaint/application is filed before a Magistrate that the FIR is not being registered by police regarding a cognizable offence, the Magistrate has a discretion either to direct the police to investigate the case under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. or to proceed to examine the complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. It is an established law that the discretion so exercised by the Magistrate cannot be interfered with only because some other view is also possible, the legal position in this regard is very clear.

7. In the present case, a bare perusal of the averments as made in the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and the order passed thereupon which is the order impugned in the present case shows that there is no material on record to indicate that the judicial discretion exercised by the Magistrate was either arbitrary or perverse. Thus, this Court finds that even though or merely because another view was possible it would not be an occasion for the High Court to substitute the judicial discretion exercised by the Magistrate.

8. In this regard, reference may be made to the law as laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Smt. Mona Panwar Vs. High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, 2011 (2) ALJ 445. The relevant extract of the aforesaid judgment is being quoted herein below:-

"When the complaint was presented before the appellant, the appellant had mainly two options available to her. One was to pass an order as contemplated by Section 156(3) of the Code and second one was to direct examination of the complainant upon oath and the witnesses present, if any, as mentioned in Section 200 and proceed further with the matter as provided by Section 202 of the Code. An order made under sub-section (3) of Section 156 of the Code is in the nature of a peremptory reminder or intimation to the police to exercise its plenary power of investigation under Section 156(1). Such an investigation embraces the entire continuous process which begins with the collection of evidence under Section 156 and ends with the final report either under Section 169 or submission of charge sheet under Section 173 of the Code. A Magistrate can under Section 190 of the Code before taking cognizance ask for investigation by the police under Section 156(3) of the Code. The Magistrate can also issue warrant for production, before taking cognizance. If after cognizance has been taken and the Magistrate wants any investigation, it will be under Section 202 of the Code. The phrase "taking cognizance of" means cognizance of offence and not of the offender. Taking cognizance does not involve any formal action or indeed action of any kind but occurs as soon as a Magistrate applies his mind to the suspected commission of an offence. Cognizance, therefore, takes place at a point when a Magistrate first takes judicial notice of an offence. This is the position whether the Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence on a complaint or on a police report or upon information of a person other than a police officer. Before the Magistrate can be said to have taken cognizance of an offence under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code, he must have not only applied his mind to the contents of the complaint presented before him, but must have done so for the purpose of proceeding under Section 200 and the provisions following that Section. However, when the Magistrate had applied his mind only for ordering an investigation under Section 156(3) of the Code or issued a warrant for the purposes of investigation, he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of an offence. Taking cognizance is a different thing from initiation of the proceedings. One of the objects of examination of complainant and his witnesses as mentioned in Section 200 of the Code is to ascertain whether there is prima facie case against the person accused of the offence in the complaint and to prevent the issue of process on a complaint which is either false or vexatious or intended only to harass such person. Such examination is provided, therefore, to find out whether there is or not sufficient ground for proceeding further."

9. Similar view was taken by the Court in the case of Swayam Prabha Vs. State Of U.P. And Others 2012 (1) ALJ 204 wherein it has been held that "as far as the argument of learned counsel for the revisionist that police investigation is a must for recovery of the looted articles is concerned, the Magistrate still has power to order investigation by police at the stage of section 202 Cr.P.C. after recording the statement of the complainant under section 200 Cr.P.C. If the Magistrate, after examining the complainant, comes to the conclusion that prima facie the statement of the complainant is credible and recovery is to be made, he can still direct investigation under section 202 Cr.P.C."

10. The Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in the case of Rameshbhai Pandurao Hedau Vs. State of Gujrat AIR 2010 SC 1877 wherein it has been held that "the power to direct an investigation to the police authorities is available to the Magistrate both under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and under Section 202 Cr.P.C. and the Magistrate can invoke under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. even at the pre-cognizable stage."

11. Thus, the apprehension of the applicant in the present case that there would not be a proper investigation is misconceived. However, be as it may, liberty is given to the applicant that in case, he has any apprehension or is disgruntled with the investigation, he may file a proper application as per the Code of Criminal Procedure before the concerned Magistrate under the appropriate provisions and the concerned Magistrate shall decide the said application in accordance with law by reasoned and speaking order.

12. Thus, in view of what has been discussed above, no case for interference at this stage is made out by this Court in exercise of inherent power conferred under 482 Cr.P.C. jurisdiction.

13. Accordingly, in view of the observation made, the present application under Section 482 CrPC is finally disposed of. No order as to cost.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Deepak Verma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant; learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 and; learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present 482 Cr.P.C. application has been filed to quash the order dated 04.03.2020 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, FTC, Room No.1, Mau in S.T. No.207 of 2017 (State Vs. Subhash and others) arising out of Case Crime No.234 of 2017, under Sections 302 and 307 I.P.C., P.S. Mohammadabad, District Mau framing of charges only to extent Section 307 I.P.C.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that no offence under Section 307 I.P.C. is made out against the applicant and framing of charge under Section 302 and 307 I.P.C. is without any material on record. He further submitted that as per F.I.R. and material on record, no prima facie case or offence under Section 307 I.P.C. has been made out against the applicant and without any evidence on record and medical evidence, framing of charge under Section 307 I.P.C. is totally illegal and against the evidence on record.

4. Learned AGA opposed the prayer of applicant and submitted that at this stage trial court has rightly framed the charges against the applicant under Section 307 and 302 I.P.C. and framing of charges are based on evidence collected during the investigation and all the charges framed is to be scrutinized during trial, as such, no interference is required. It is further argued that while framing under Section 228 Cr.P.C., the judge is not required to record detailed reasons as to why such charge is framed. On perusal of record and hearing of parties, if the judge is of the opinion that there is sufficient ground for presuming that the accused has committed the offence triable by the Court of Session, he shall frame the charge against the accused for such offence.

5. Considering the arguments raised by learned counsel for the applicant as well as learned AGA, it is settled view that trial while framing of charges under Section 228 Cr.P.C., he had to see whether, prima facie, case is made out. In the aforesaid section, he is not required to record detailed reason as to why such charges framed.

6. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Mauvin Godinho Vs. State of Goa has held that the court while framing charges under Section 227 of the Code of Criminal Procedure should apply the prima facie standard. Although the application of this standard depends on facts and circumstance in each case, a prima facie case against the accused is said to be made out when the probative value of the evidence on all the essential elements in the charge taken as a whole is such that it is sufficient to induce the court to believe in the existence of the facts pertaining to such essential elements or to consider its existence so probable that a prudent man ought to act upon the supposition that those facts existed or did happen. However, at this stage, there cannot be a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial.

7. The court has to see is that the material on record and the facts would be compatible with the innocence of the accused or not. The final test of guilt is not to be applied at that stage.

8. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Amit Kapoor v. Ramesh Chander and another (2012) 9 SCC 460, has held as under:-

"17. Framing of a charge is an exercise of jurisdiction by the trial court in terms of Section 228 of the Code, unless the accused is discharged under Section 227 of the Code. Under both these provisions, the court is required to consider the record of the case and documents submitted therewith and, after hearing the parties, may either discharge the accused or where it appears to the court and in its opinion there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence, it shall frame the charge. Once the facts and ingredients of the section exists, then the court would be right in presuming that there is ground to proceed against the accused and frame the charge accordingly. This presumption is not a presumption of law as such. The satisfaction of the court in relation to the existence of constituents of an offence and the facts leading to that offence is a sine qua non for exercise of such jurisdiction. It may even be weaker than a prima facie case. There is a fine distinction between the language of Sections 227 and 228 of the Code. Section 227 is the expression of a definite opinion and judgment of the Court while Section 228 is tentative. Thus, to say that at the stage of framing of charge, the Court should form an opinion that the accused is certainly guilty of committing an offence, is an approach which is impermissible in terms of Section 228 of the Code.

19. At the initial stage of framing of a charge, the court is concerned not with proof but with a strong suspicion that the accused has committed an offence, which, if put to trial, could prove him guilty. All that the court has to see is that the material on record and the facts would be compatible with the innocence of the accused or not. The final test of guilt is not to be applied at that stage. We may refer to the well-settled law laid down by this Court in State of Bihar v. Ramesh Singh

4. Under Section 226 of the Code while opening the case for the prosecution the Prosecutor has got to describe the charge against the accused and state by what evidence he proposes to prove the guilt of the accused. Thereafter comes at the initial stage the duty of the court to consider the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith and to hear the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in that behalf. The Judge has to pass thereafter an order either under Section 227 or Section 228 of the Code. If the Judge considers that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing, as enjoined by Section 227. If, on the other hand, the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which (b) is exclusively triable by the court, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused, as provided in Section 228. Reading the two provisions together in juxtaposition, as they have got to be, it would be clear that at the beginning and the initial stage of the trial the truth, veracity and effect of the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce are not to be meticulously judged. Nor is any weight to be attached to the probable defence of the accused. It is not obligatory for the Judge at that stage of the trial to consider in any detail and weigh in a sensitive balance whether the facts, if proved, would be incompatible with the innocence of the accused or not. The standard of test and judgment which is to be finally applied before recording a finding regarding the guilt or otherwise of the accused is not exactly to be applied at the stage of deciding the matter under Section 227 or Section 228 of the Code. At that stage the court is not to see whether there is sufficient ground for conviction of the accused or whether the trial is sure to end in his conviction. Strong suspicion against the accused, if the matter remains in the region of suspicion, cannot take the place of proof of his guilt at the conclusion of the trial. But at the initial stage if there is a strong suspicion which leads the court to think that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence then it is not open to the court to say that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. The presumption of the guilt of the accused which is to be drawn at the initial stage is not in the sense of the law governing the trial of criminal cases in France where the accused is presumed to be guilty unless the contrary is proved. But it is only for the purpose of deciding prima facie whether the court should proceed with the trial or not. If the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, cannot show that the accused committed the offence, then there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial. An exhaustive list of the circumstances to indicate as to what will lead to one conclusion or the other is neither possible nor advisable. We may just illustrate the difference of the law by one more example. If the scales of pan as to the guilt or innocence of the accused are something like even at the conclusion of the trial, then, on the theory of benefit of doubt the case is to end in his acquittal. But if, on the other hand, it is so at the initial stage of making an order under Section 227 or Section 228, then in such a situation ordinarily and generally the order which will have to be made will be one under Section 228 and not under Section 227"

9. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bhawna Bai vs Ghanshyam and others, (2020) 2 SCC 217, has held in para 13 and 16, which are as follows:

"13. Though the circumstances alleged in the charge sheet are to be established during the trial by adducing the evidence, the allegations in the charge sheet show a prima facie case against the accused-respondent Nos.1 and 2. The circumstances alleged by the prosecution indicate that there are sufficient grounds for proceedings against the accused. At the time of framing the charges, only prima facie case is to be seen; whether case is beyond reasonable doubt, is not to be seen at this stage. At the stage of framing the charge, the court has to see if there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. While evaluating the materials, strict standard of proof is not required; only prima facie case against the accused is to be seen.

16. After referring to Amit Kapoor, in Dinesh Tiwari v. State of Uttar Pradesh and another (2014) 13 SCC 137, the Supreme Court held that for framing charge under Section 228 Crl.P.C., the judge is not required to record detailed reasons as to why such charge is framed. On perusal of record and hearing of parties, if the judge is of the opinion that there is sufficient ground for presuming that the accused has committed the offence triable by the Court of Session, he shall frame the charge against the accused for such offence"

10. In view of the observation of Hon'ble Apex Court, trial court's order is not required to be interfered, as Court prima facie has found case under Sections 302 and 307 I.P.C. read with Section 34 I.P.C. against the applicant and has rightly framed the charge therein.

11. After having considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and after perusing the material available on record, I do not find any good ground to interfere in the matter in exercise of inherent power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing of the impugned order.

12. The present 482 Cr.P.C. application lacks merit. It is accordingly, dismissed.

A. Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code,1860-Section 120-B ,302 - Arms Act, 1959-Sections 25(1)(b)(a),26,27-application-grant of third bail-undertrial remained in jail for more than 7 years-out of total 80 witnesses only 16 witnesses were examined till date nor is there any indication that they would be produced before trial court in near future-investigating agency has already completed investigation and chargesheet filed-presence of accused may not be necessary-applicant is liable to be enlarged on bail-no apprehensions against applicant of influencing witnesses and tampering with evidence-role of the accused is limited only to providing information of whereabouts of the deceased and of supplying the weapons.(Para 1 to 30)

B. The basic rule of our criminal justice system is 'bail, not jail'. The law presumes an accused to be innocent till his guilt is proved. As a presumably innocent person, he is entitled to all the fundamental rights including the right to liberty guaranteed under Article 21 of the constitution. one must not lose sight of the fact that any imprisonment before conviction has a substantial punitive content and it would be improper to refuse bail for the purpose of giving him a taste of imprisonment as a lesson.(Para 27 to 29)

C. In deciding bail applications apart from nature of accusation, severity of punishment, nature of supporting evidence, reasonable apprehension of tampering with witnesses, an important factor which should certainly be taken into consideration by the court is the delay in concluding the trial. Often it takes several years, and if the accused is denied bail but is ultimately acquitted, who will restore so many years of his life spent in custody.(Para 10 to 27)

The bail application is allowed. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arvind Varma, Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Rajendra Kumar Dwivedi, Ms. Meha Rashmi, Sri Harish Pandey and Sri Smrithi Sharma, learned counsel appearing for applicant and Sri Anurag Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the Central Bureau of Investigation-opposite party.

2. This is third bail application of applicant Rajiv Pratap Singh (Raju Singh) with regard to case crime no.RC 1 (S) 2013/CBI/SC-1 under Sections 120-B read with Section 302 I.P.C. and Sections 25 (1) (b) (a), 26 and 27 Arms Act, P.S. CBI/SC-1/ New Delhi, District Pratapgarh.

3. The first bail application of applicant has already been rejected on merits vide order dated 23.07.2015. The second bail application was thereafter rejected vide order dated 09.08.2016 directing the trial court to finally dispose of the Sessions Trial expeditiously without granting any unnecessary adjournments and to conduct the trial in accordance with Section 309 Cr.P.C., on a day to day basis.

4. In pursuance to directions issued by this Court earlier, the CBI Court, Lucknow has furnished a status report dated 04.12.2020 with regard to sessions trial in the present case. In the said report, it has been indicated that there are a total of 80 prosecution witnesses out of which 16 witnesses have already deposed since start of the trial from 2013. It has been stated that trial could not proceed since March, 2020 due to COVID-19 pandemic. It has subsequently recommenced in October, 2020 but the prosecution witnesses have not appeared on three dates due to the pandemic.

5. The allegations in brief as mentioned in the first information report no.18 of 2013 dated 02.03.2013 are that when complainant Phool Chander Yadav along with his brother Nanhe Yadav, his wife and two daughers and brother-in-law of Nanhe Yadav, who were on their way to home, stopped their Bolero vehicle no.UP 70-W-1805 near the tea shop of Chokhe Lal at Balipur Chauraha for taking tea, Kamta Prasad Pal, his son Ajay Kumar Pal, Ajit Kumar Singh and Rajiv Kumar Singh, both sons of Hari Singh, all hailing from Village Balipur, duly armed with weapons, arrived at the scene of the incident in their Bolero vehicle no.UP-64-7555 and fired many rounds targetting Nanhe Yadav with the intenion to kill him. Due to firing, Nahhe Yadav fell on the ground. This incident was also seen by Kallu son of Mata, resident of Sheikhpur Ashik, Police Station Kunda Kotwali besides many others. Thereafter Nanhe Yadav was brought to Kunada Hospital where the doctor declared him brought dead.

6. Learned counsel for applicant has submitted that although the first bail application was rejected on merits but while rejecting the second bail application, this Court has specifically directed the CBI court to conclude the trial expeditiously. It is submitted that the applicant is in jail since 04.03.2013 and although the trial is continuing since 2013, as yet only 16 witnesses have been examined in the past more than seven years with 64 witnesses remaining. It is further submitted that there is no possibility of trial concluding expeditiously as had been directed earlier. It is further submitted that at the time of rejection of the second bail application in 2016, only one prosecution witness had been examined and examination of the second prosecution witness was going on, which weighed heavily upon this Court for rejection of the second bail application. It is further submitted that during the time elapsed between the rejection of the second bail application and as on date, it is material factor that a new ground has cropped up which requires to be considered in this bail application.

7. Learned counsel for applicant has submitted that as per the charge sheet submitted by the Central Bureau of Investigation (hereinafter referred to as CBI), the only role assigned to applicant is of providing information with regard to whereabouts of the deceased, in pursuance of which the attack upon him was carried out. It is submitted that the aforesaid charge upon applicant is sought to be substantiated only on the testimony of the sole witness, Nitish Shukla, the alleged driver of the vehicle of applicant. Learned counsel submits that despite the long time having elapsed in the trial and 16 witnesses having been examined, the CBI has failed to produce the said Nitish Shukla for recording of his testimony till date. It is submitted that the CBI has also not indicated as to when they propose to produce Nitish Shukla for recording of his statement. As such, it is submitted that the applicant cannot be kept incarcerated for such a long time for no fault on his part.

8. Mr. Anurag Kumar Singh, learned counsel for CBI has opposed the bail application with the submission that once applicant's bail had already been rejected on merits and also on the ground of delay in conclusion of trial, the present bail application is also liable to be rejected since no new ground has been indicated or submitted, which is pre-requisite for considering the third bail application. Learned counsel has referred to numerous judgments of Hon'ble the Supreme Court indicating the law under which a third bail application can be entertained. It has been further submitted that bail cannot be granted merely on the ground of long detention or that the trial of the case had not progressed. Learned counsel further submitted that the offence indicated against the applicant are quite serious in nature and there is reasonable apprehension of witnesses being influenced and evidence being tampered with. Since some of the important witnesses had expressed apprehension of threat to life and accordingly application was filed in the Court of Special Judicial Magistrate, CBI Cases, Lucknow not to disclose the identity of certain important witnesses which was allowed by the court vide order dated 12.07.2013.

9. Upon consideration of material on record and submissions advanced by learned counsel for parties, it is apparent that conditions for entertaining the third bail application are quite stringent.

10. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Kalyan Chandra Sarkar v. Rajesh Ranjan @ Pappu Yadav and another reported in (2004) 7 SCC 528 in paragraphs 11, 12 and 20 of the report has held as follows:-

"11. The law in regard to grant or refusal of bail is very well settled. The court granting bail should exercise its discretion in a judicious manner and not as a matter of course. Though at the stage of granting bail a detailed examination of evidence and elaborate documentation of the merit of the case need not be undertaken, there is a need to indicate in such orders reasons for prima facie concluding why bail was being granted particularly where the accused is charged of having committed a serious offence. Any order devoid of such reasons would suffer from non-application of mind. It is also necessary for the court granting bail to consider among other circumstances, the following factors also before granting bail; they are:

(a) The nature of accusation and the severity of punishment in case of conviction and the nature of supporting evidence.

(b) Reasonable apprehension of tampering with the witness or apprehension of threat to the complainant.

(c) Prima facie satisfaction of the court in support of the charge. (See Ram Govind Upadhyay v. Sudarshan Singh [(2002) 3 SCC 598 : 2002 SCC (Cri) 688] and Puran v.Rambilas [(2001) 6 SCC 338 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 1124] .)"

"12. In regard to cases where earlier bail applications have been rejected there is a further onus on the court to consider the subsequent application for grant of bail by noticing the grounds on which earlier bail applications have been rejected and after such consideration if the court is of the opinion that bail has to be granted then the said court will have to give specific reasons why in spite of such earlier rejection the subsequent application for bail should be granted. (See Ram Govind Upadhyay [(2002) 3 SCC 598 : 2002 SCC (Cri) 688] .)"

"20. Before concluding, we must note that though an accused has a right to make successive applications for grant of bail the court entertaining such subsequent bail applications has a duty to consider the reasons and grounds on which the earlier bail applications were rejected. In such cases, the court also has a duty to record what are the fresh grounds which persuade it to take a view different from the one taken in the earlier applications. In the impugned order we do not see any such fresh ground recorded by the High Court while granting bail. It also failed to take into consideration that at least on four occasions order refusing bail has been affirmed by this Court and subsequently when the High Court did grant bail, this Court by its order dated 26-7-2000 cancelled the said bail by a reasoned order. From the impugned order, we do not notice any indication of the fact that the High Court took note of the grounds which persuaded this Court to cancel the bail. Such approach of the High Court, in our opinion, is violative of the principle of binding nature of judgments of the superior court rendered in a lis between the same parties, and in effect tends to ignore and thereby render ineffective the principles enunciated therein which have a binding character."

11. With regard to granting of bail only on the ground of unlikelihood of trial concluding in near future, it has been held as follows in the same judgment:-

"14. We have already noticed from the arguments of learned counsel for the appellant that the present accused had earlier made seven applications for grant of bail which were rejected by the High Court and some such rejections have been affirmed by this Court also.

It is seen from the records that when the fifth application for grant of bail was allowed by the High Court, the same was challenged before this Court and this Court accepted the said challenge by allowing the appeal filed by the Union of India and another and cancelled the bail granted by the High Court as per the order of this Court made in Criminal Appeal No. 745 of 2001 dated 25-7-2001 [Rajesh Ranjan v. State of Bihar, (2000) 9 SCC 222] . While cancelling the said bail this Court specifically held that the fact that the present accused was in custody for more than one year (at that time) and the further fact that while rejecting an earlier application, the High Court had given liberty to renew the bail application in future, were not grounds envisaged under Section 437(1)(i) of the Code. This Court also in specific terms held that the condition laid down under Section 437(1)(i) is sine qua non for granting bail even under Section 439 of the Code. In the impugned order it is noticed that the High Court has given the period of incarceration already undergone by the accused and the unlikelihood of trial concluding in the near future as grounds sufficient to enlarge the accused on bail, in spite of the fact that the accused stands charged of offences punishable with life imprisonment or even death penalty. In such cases, in our opinion, the mere fact that the accused has undergone certain period of incarceration (three years in this case) by itself would not entitle the accused to being enlarged on bail, nor the fact that the trial is not likely to be concluded in the near future either by itself or coupled with the period of incarceration would be sufficient for enlarging the appellant on bail when the gravity of the offence alleged is severe and there are allegations of tampering with the witnesses by the accused during the period he was on bail."

12. Similarly, in Chenna Boyanna Krishna Yadav v. State of Maharashtra & another reported in (2007) 1 SCC 242, it has been held as follows:-

"16.....It is true that when the gravity of the offence alleged is severe, mere period of incarceration or the fact that the trial is not likely to be concluded in the near future either by itself or conjointly may not entitle the accused to be enlarged on bail. Nevertheless, both these factors may also be taken into consideration while deciding the question of grant of bail."

13. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance on judgment rendered by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in State of Rajasthan, Jaipur v. Bal Chand reported in AIR 1977 Supreme Court 2447 in which the following has been held:-

"2. The basic rule may perhaps be tersely put as bail, not jail, except where there are circumstances suggestive of fleeing from justice or thwarting the course of justice or creating other troubles in the shape of repeating offences or intimidating witnesses and the like, by the petitioner who seeks enlargement on bail from the court. We do not intend to be exhaustive but only illustrative.

3. It is true that the gravity of the offence involved is likely to induce the petitioner to avoid the course of justice and must weigh with us when considering the question of jail. So also the heinousness of the crime....."

14. He has also placed reliance on the judgment of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Kashmira Singh v. State of Punjab reported in (1977) 4 SCC 291 in which the following has been held in paragraph 2 of the report:-

"2. The appellant contends in this application that pending the hearing of the appeal he should be released on bail. Now, the practice in this Court as also in many of the High Courts has been not to release on bail a person who has been sentenced to life imprisonment for an offence under Section 302 of the Penal Code, 1860. The question is whether this practice should be departed from and if so, in what circumstances. It is obvious that no practice howsoever sanctified by usage and hallowed by time can be allowed to prevail if it operates to cause injustice. Every practice of the Court must find its ultimate justification in the interest of justice. The practice not to release on bail a person who has been sentenced to life imprisonment was evolved in the High Courts and in this Court on the basis that once a person has been found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment, he should not be let loose, so long as his conviction and sentence are not set aside, but the underlying postulate of this practice was that the appeal of such person would be disposed of within a measurable distance of time, so that if he is ultimately found to be innocent, he would not have to remain in jail for an unduly long period. The rationale of this practice can have no application where the Court is not in a position to dispose of the appeal for five or six years. It would indeed be a travesty of justice to keep a person in jail for a period of five or six years for an offence which is ultimately found not to have been committed by him. Can the Court ever compensate him for his incarceration which is found to be unjustified? Would it be just at all for the Court to tell a person: "We have admitted your appeal because we think you have a prima facie case, but unfortunately we have no time to hear your appeal for quite a few years and, therefore, until we hear your appeal, you must remain in jail, even though you may be innocent?" What confidence would such administration of justice inspire in the mind of the public? It may quite conceivably happen, and it has in fact happened in a few cases in this Court, that a person may serve out his full term of imprisonment before his appeal is taken up for hearing. Would a Judge not be overwhelmed with a feeling of contrition while acquitting such a person after hearing the appeal? Would it not be an affront to his sense of justice? Of what avail would the acquittal be to such a person who has already served out his term of imprisonment or at any rate a major part of it? It is, therefore, absolutely essential that the practice which this Court has been following in the past must be reconsidered and so long as this Court is not in a position to hear the appeal of an accused within a reasonable period of time, the Court should ordinarily, unless there are cogent grounds for acting otherwise, release the accused on bail in cases where special leave has been granted to the accused to appeal against his conviction and sentence."

15. Upon applicability of the aforesaid judgments in the present case, it is apparent that the present bail application, being the third bail application, is to be seen not only with regard to gravity of offence and other like factors but also on the ground of any change in the fact situation which requires the earlier view taken by this Court to be interfered with.

16. Upon perusal of aforesaid judgments, it is clear that Hon'ble the Supreme Court has not put an embargo upon consideration of long period of incarceration of an undertrial as a factor while considering subsequent bail applications. It is clearly seen that such a factor can be considered by the Court concerned while hearing subsequent bail applications but the said factor has to be seen along with other relevant factors as indicated in the judgments hereinabove.

17. Although in the first information report, allegation of applicant also having fired upon the deceased has been made but in the counter affidavit dated 17.12.2017 filed by the CBI , the role of applicant has been limited to providing information of whereabouts of deceased to the actual killers as has been indicated in the charge sheet filed against applicant and of supplying weapon used.

18. It is very relevant that in paragraph 25 of the counter affidavit, the CBI has doubted the veracity of the complaint itself. The said paragraph of counter affidavit is as follows:-

"25. That in reply to the averments made in para nos. 5 and 6 of the affidavit, it is submitted that in this case the FIR was registered on the written complaint of Phool Chander Yadav, brother of deceased Nanhe Yadav. However, it came to light that the complaint on the basis of which FIR was registered was written by Pawan Kumar Yadav, brother of deceased Nanhe Yadav in his own writing. He has also signed the said complaint as Phool Chander Yadav. At the time of writing the complaint, Phool Chander Yadav was not present where the complaint was being written in the early morning of 03.03.2013 after the dead body of Nanhe Yadav was taken to Pratapgarh for post mortem. This clearly establishes that a concocted version was mentioned in the complaint which was signed by Pawan Yadav posing as Phool Chander Yadav. The FIR was lodged on 03.03.2013 and not on 02.03.2013 as has been shown in the document. "

19. The CBI in its counter affidavit has assigned the role of firing upon the deceased to Ajai Kumar Pal and Vijai Kumar Pal with no role of firing being assigned to applicant whose role as per the charge sheet is limited to providing information of whereabouts of the deceased and of supplying the weapons which were used in the actual killings.

20. Aforesaid charges against the applicant have been sought to be proved by the CBI upon testimony of one Nitish Shukla and one other person as indicated in paragraph 28 of the counter affidavit, although the said other person remains unnamed. It is relevant that as per the report submitted by the CBI Court, neither of aforesaid two persons have been produced by the CBI as witness in the trial proceedings till date. The counter affidavit is also silent as to when the CBI intends to produce the said two persons as witnesses in the trial.

21. It is a relevant fact that at the time of rejection of first bail on 23.07.2015, the trial proceedings were at a nascent stage with only one prosecution witness having been examined. Even at the time of rejection of the second bail application on 09.08.2016, the fact situation had not changed with only one prosecution witness having been examined and deposition of the second prosecution witness being underway. It was in these circumstances that the second bail application was rejected since no new good ground had been put forth by applicant. However, in view of the right of applicant to a speedy trial, direction had been issued to expedite the final decision of the Sessions Trial without granting any unnecessary adjournment and to conduct the trial in accordance with Section 309 Cr.P.C. on day to day basis.

22. It is also a rlevant fact that subsequent to order dated 09.08.2016, 15 witnesses have further been examined during the trial but as on date they do not constitute even 1/4th of the total 80 witnesses that are sought to be produced as prosecution witnesses by the CBI. The applicant has been in custody as an undertrial since 04.03.2013, i.e. more than seven and a half years.

23. The aforesaid factor clearly indicates the changed circumstances between rejection of the second bail application till today. Learned counsel for applicant therefore apprears to be quite correct in his submission that with just 16 witnesses having been examined out of a total of 80 witnesses to be produced by the CBI as prosecution witnesses, there is no hope of trial concluding even in far future, let alone the near future.

24. Although the offence with which applicant has been charged is a serious one but it is also a relevant factor to consider that the said charge being based on the testimony of two witnesses, neither of the two have been produced by the CBI in the trial, which is pending since 2013. Even counter affidavit of the CBI is silent with regard to the time frame within which the said two witnesses are to be produced in the trial proceedings. Prima facie, it appears that without the testimony of corroborating witnesses, evidence against the applicant is circumstantial at best and at present there cannot be any definitive conclusion that the offence with which the applicant is charged can be prima facie made out at this stage and would therefore be dependent upon evidence to be relied upon by CBI in future particularly by producing witnesses to support the same.

25. The CBI in its counter affidavit has stated that enlarging the applicant on bail could have an adverse effect on the trial since there is a likelihood that the applicant may try to influence the witnesses and tamper with evidence. However, except for a bland statement in the counter affidavit, there is not even a shred of prima facie evidence adduced by the CBI to support such claim. The only factor indicated in counter affidavit is that upon such apprehension, an application was filed before the trial court not to disclose the identity of certain important witnesses, which was allowed by the Court vide order dated 12.07.2013. However, it has not been indicated as to whether the application was filed by the witnesses or by CBI itself. As such, the apprehension of applicant tampering with evidence and influencing witnesses remains merely a bland statement at best, which has already been denied by the applicant in his reply.

26. The aforesaid factors clearly indicate the circumstances which have changed in the past more than four years since the date of rejection of the second bail appliation, particularly with regard to factor as to whether an undertrial can be indefinitely incarcerated during pendency of trial proceedings particularly in the present circumstances where not even 1/4th of the witnesses have been produced during the trial. Of particular importance is the factor that even after producing 16 witnesses, the CBI has not produced the two important witnesses against applicant till date nor is there any indication that they would be produced before the trial court in near future.

27. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Sanjay Chandra v. Central Bureau of Investigation reported in (2012) 1 SCC 40 has held as follows:-

"21. In bail applications, generally, it has been laid down from the earliest times that the object of bail is to secure the appearance of the accused person at his trial by reasonable amount of bail. The object of bail is neither punitive nor preventative. Deprivation of liberty must be considered a punishment, unless it is required to ensure that an accused person will stand his trial when called upon. The courts owe more than verbal respect to the principle that punishment begins after conviction, and that every man is deemed to be innocent until duly tried and duly found guilty."

"22. From the earliest times, it was appreciated that detention in custody pending completion of trial could be a cause of great hardship. From time to time, necessity demands that some unconvicted persons should be held in custody pending trial to secure their attendance at the trial but in such cases, "necessity" is the operative test. In this country, it would be quite contrary to the concept of personal liberty enshrined in the Constitution that any person should be punished in respect of any matter, upon which, he has not been convicted or that in any circumstances, he should be deprived of his liberty upon only the belief that he will tamper with the witnesses if left at liberty, save in the most extraordinary circumstances."

"23. Apart from the question of prevention being the object of refusal of bail, one must not lose sight of the fact that any imprisonment before conviction has a substantial punitive content and it would be improper for any court to refuse bail as a mark of disapproval of former conduct whether the accused has been convicted for it or not or to refuse bail to an unconvicted person for the purpose of giving him a taste of imprisonment as a lesson."

Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the said decision has further held as under:-

"40. The grant or refusal to grant bail lies within the discretion of the court. The grant or denial is regulated, to a large extent, by the facts and circumstances of each particular case. But at the same time, right to bail is not to be denied merely because of the sentiments of the community against the accused. The primary purposes of bail in a criminal case are to relieve the accused of imprisonment, to relieve the State of the burden of keeping him, pending the trial, and at the same time, to keep the accused constructively in the custody of the court, whether before or after conviction, to assure that he will submit to the jurisdiction of the court and be in attendance thereon whenever his presence is required."

42. When the undertrial prisoners are detained in jail custody to an indefinite period, Article 21 of the Constitution is violated. Every person, detained or arrested, is entitled to speedy trial, the question is: whether the same is possible in the present case.

"43. There are seventeen accused persons. Statements of witnesses run to several hundred pages and the documents on which reliance is placed by the prosecution, are voluminous. The trial may take considerable time and it looks to us that the appellants, who are in jail, have to remain in jail longer than the period of detention, had they been convicted. It is not in the interest of justice that the accused should be in jail for an indefinite period. No doubt, the offence alleged against the appellants is a serious one in terms of alleged huge loss to the State exchequer, that, by itself, should not deter us from enlarging the appellants on bail when there is no serious contention of the respondent that the accused, if released on bail, would interfere with the trial or tamper with evidence. We do not see any good reason to detain the accused in custody, that too, after the completion of the investigation and filing of the charge-sheet."

"44. This Court, in State of Kerala v. Raneef [(2011) 1 SCC 784 : (2011) 1 SCC (Cri) 409] has stated: (SCC p. 789, para 15)

"15. In deciding bail applications an important factor which should certainly be taken into consideration by the court is the delay in concluding the trial. Often this takes several years, and if the accused is denied bail but is ultimately acquitted, who will restore so many years of his life spent in custody? Is Article 21 of the Constitution, which is the most basic of all the fundamental rights in our Constitution, not violated in such a case? Of course this is not the only factor, but it is certainly one of the important factors in deciding whether to grant bail. In the present case the respondent has already spent 66 days in custody (as stated in Para 2 of his counter-affidavit), and we see no reason why he should be denied bail. A doctor incarcerated for a long period may end up like Dr. Manette in Charles Dickens's novel A Tale of Two Cities, who forgot his profession and even his name in the Bastille."

"46. We are conscious of the fact that the accused are charged with economic offences of huge magnitude. We are also conscious of the fact that the offences alleged, if proved, may jeopardise the economy of the country. At the same time, we cannot lose sight of the fact that the investigating agency has already completed investigation and the charge-sheet is already filed before the Special Judge, CBI, New Delhi. Therefore, their presence in the custody may not be necessary for further investigation. We are of the view that the appellants are entitled to the grant of bail pending trial on stringent conditions in order to ally the apprehension expressed by CBI."

28. Recently, Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Criminal Appeal No.742 of 2020 (Arnab Manoranjan Goswami v. State of Maharashtra and others) has held as follows:-

"63. More than four decades ago, in a celebrated judgment in State of Rajasthan, Jaipur v. Balchand [(1977) 4 SCC 308], Justice Krishna Iyer pithily reminded us that the basic rule of our criminal justice system is "bail, not jail". The High Courts and Courts in the district judiciary of India must enforce this principle in practice, and not forego that duty, leaving this Court to intervene at all times. We must in particular also emphasise the role of the district judiciary, which provides the first point of interface to the citizen. Our district judiciary is wrongly referred to as the "subordinate judiciary'. It may be subordinate in hierarchy but it is not subordinate in terms of its importance in the lives of citizens or in terms of the duty to render justice to them. High Courts get burdened when courts of first instance decline to grant anticipatory bail or bail in deserving cases. This continues in the Supreme Court as well, when High Courts do not grant bail or anticipatory bail in cases falling within the parameters of the law. The consequence for those who suffer incarceration are serious. Common citizens without the means or resources to move the High Courts or this Court languish as undertrials. Courts must be alive to the situation as it prevails on the ground - in the jails and police stations where human dignity has no protector. As judges, we would do well to remind ourselves that it is through the instrumentality of bail that our criminal justice system's primordial interest in preserving the presumption of innocence finds its most eloquent expression. The remedy of bail is the "solemn expression of the humaneness of the justice system". Tasked as we are with the primary responsibility of preserving the liberty of all citizens, we cannot countenance an approach that has the consequence of applying this basic rule in an inverted form. We have given expression to our anguish in a case where a citizen has approached this court. We have done so in order to reiterate principles which must govern countless other faces whose voices should not go unheard."

"65.....Every court in our country would do well to remember Lord Denning's powerful invocation in the first Hamlyn Lecture, titled "Freedom under the Law':

"Whenever one of the judges takes seat, there is one application which by long tradition has priority over all others. The counsel has but to say, "My Lord, I have an application which concerns the liberty of the subject', and forthwith the judge will put all other matters aside and hear it. ..."

It is our earnest hope that our courts will exhibit acute awareness to the need to expand the footprint of liberty and use our approach as a decision-making yardstick for future cases involving the grant of bail."

29. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Ankita Kailash Khandelwal and others v. State of Maharashtra and others reported in (2020) 10 SCC 670 has held as follows :-

"23.1. In Sumit Mehta v. State (NCT of Delhi) [Sumit Mehta v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2013) 15 SCC 570 : (2014) 6 SCC (Cri) 560] , it was observed: (SCC pp. 575-76, paras 11-15)"

"11. While exercising power under Section 438 of the Code, the court is duty-bound to strike a balance between the individual's right to personal freedom and the right of investigation of the police. For the same, while granting relief under Section 438(1), appropriate conditions can be imposed under Section 438(2) so as to ensure an uninterrupted investigation. The object of putting such conditions should be to avoid the possibility of the person hampering the investigation. Thus, any condition, which has no reference to the fairness or propriety of the investigation or trial, cannot be countenanced as permissible under the law. So, the discretion of the court while imposing conditions must be exercised with utmost restraint."

"12. The law presumes an accused to be innocent till his guilt is proved. As a presumably innocent person, he is entitled to all the fundamental rights including the right to liberty guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution."

30. Keeping the aforesaid enunciations by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in mind and upon a perusal of the material on record, it is apparent that without the production of relvant witnesses against the applicant even after seven long years, the charges levelled against the applicant at this stage, at best, are merely charges without any prima facie evidence being produced by the CBI It is also relevant that apprehension against applicant of influencing witnesses and tampering with evidence is also not borne out by any evidence on record. Even with regard to such apprehensions, Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Ankita Kailash Khandelwal(supra) has already held that adequate safeguards can be put in place while granting bail to an undertrial. As has been held in Sanjay Chandra(supra), we cannot lose sight of the fact that the investigating agency has already completed investigation and charge sheet has already been filed before the trial court, therefore presence of accused in custody may not be necessary for further investigation. It is also not the case of CBI that the applicant is required to be in custody for any other investigational purposes.

31. In view of aforesaid, this Court is of the considered opinion that the applicant is liable to be enlarged on bail pending trial.

32. Accordingly the third bail application is allowed.

33. Let applicant Rajiv Pratap Singh (Raju Singh), involved in the aforesaid case crime be released on bail on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned subject to the following conditions:-

(a) The applicant shall not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him to disclose such facts to the Court or to any other authority.

(b) He shall remain present before the court on the dates fixed for hearing of the case. If he wants to remain absent, then he shall take prior permission of the court and in case of unavoidable circumstances for remaining absent, he shall immediately give intimation to the appropriate court and also to the Superintendent, CBI and request that he may be permitted to be present through the counsel.

(c) He shall surrender his passport, if any (if not already surrendered), and in case, he is not a holder of the same, he shall swear to an affidavit of the said fact, to be produced before the trial court. If he has already surrendered it before the learned Special Judge, CBI, that fact should also be supported by an affidavit.

(d) It will be open to CBI to make an appropriate application for modification/recalling the order passed by this Court, if for any reason, the applicant violates any of the conditions imposed by this Court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Krishna Gautam, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned counsel for informant as well as learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

2. By means of this application, the accused-applicant, Brajesh Bind @ Brajesh Kumar Bind, who is said to be involved in Case Crime No. 781 of 2017, under Sections 363, 366 and 376 of I.P.C., read with Section 5/6 of Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (Hereinafter in short referred to as the 'POCSO Act'), Police Station- Mungra Badshahpur, District-Jaunpur, is seeking enlargement on bail.

3. Learned counsel for accused-applicant argued that the accused-applicant is innocent; he has been falsely implicated in this very case crime number and is languishing in Jail since 13.5.2020; accused-applicant is of no criminal antecedent; there is no likelihood of fleeing from course of justice or tampering with evidence in case of release on bail; prosecutorix was major; she, in her statement, recorded, under Section 164 of the Cr.P.C., has categorically said to have gone with the applicant and married with the applicant; she is having kids; Writ Petition No.6996 of 2019, Brijesh Bind and another vs. State of U.P. and 3 others, was filed before this Court, wherein, vide order, dated 14.3.2019, a protection was granted; age of the prosecutorix has been held to be of 17 years, in the medical age determination test and there is no accusation against the applicant, rather, an admission of marriage with the applicant and voluntarily going with the applicant is there, and as such, in view of the law laid down by this Court in the case of Smt. Ramsati @ Shyamsati through her husband vs. State of U.P. through Principal Secretary Home Department, Lucknow and others in Writ Petition No.247 of 2015, dated 7.9.2015, no offence, under Section 363 or 366 is made out because even a minor is a competent guardian for looking after welfare of his minor wife and in the present case, prosecutorix is wedded wife of the applicant, hence, applicant is entitled for bail.

4. Learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for informant have vehemently opposed the prayer for bail with this contention that occurrence was of 13.9.2017, whereas, medical age determination test was of the year 2019, wherein the Medical Board has determined the age of the prosecutorix of 17 years, i.e., on the date of the occurrence, the prosecutorix was minor, that too, of 15 years of age, which was mentioned in the first information report of about 16 years and a statement, with respect to consent or consensual relationship, made by the prosecutorix is, under her minorship, having no legal sanctity. Prosecutorix was enticed, abducted and taken by the applicant, who was next door neighbour and was also married one. It was mentioned in the first information report, itself, that the wife of the applicant herself apprised about this enticing and taking of minor by the applicant. Life of the prosecutorix as well as wife of the applicant has been put under hell by the applicant, who is saying to be in consensual living and marriage with the prosecutorix, but, this marriage or separation may be having no legal sanctity because the applicant was already a married man having his wife alive, with no judicial separation of any competent court. The aim and object of the Legislation of Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012, is to protect minor children from sexual assault and in present case, it was a sexual assault, made by the applicant with a minor girl of 15 years, who is next door neighbour of the prosectuorix and has committed offence of this heinous nature and there is every likelihood of tampering with evidence, in case of release on bail, hence, Bail Application deserves to be rejected..

5. Having heard learned counsel for both sides and gone through materials on record, it is apparent that in the medical age determination test, prosecutorix was held to be 17 years of age in the year 2019, whereas, the offence is of the year 2017, thus, at the relevant time, she was of 15 years of age, and as such considering aim and object of the Legislation of Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012, to protect minor children from sexual assault, heinousness of offence of rape with a minor, likelihood of tampering with evidence, in case of being released on bail, but, without expressing any opinion on merit of the case, there appears to be no ground for bail.

6. Accordingly, in view of what has been discussed above, Bail Application stands rejected.

4. Dataram Singh Vs St. of U.P. & anr.(2018) 3 SCC 22

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rahul Chaturvedi, J.)

1. Heard Shri Amit Daga, learned counsel for the applicant; learned A.G.A. and perused the record of the case.

2. Applicant, Arvind, who is husband, facing incarceration since 25.5.2019 in connection with Case Crime No.281 of 2019, u/s 304-B, 498-A I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, P.S.-Kotwali, District-Jhansi. He is seeking bail by means of the present bail application in aforesaid case crime.

3. Long and short of the prosecution case, as culled out from the F.I.R., is that the applicant-Arvind happens to be the husband of deceased-Ms. Poonam Kushwaha, who was the daughter of Prakash Chandra Kushwaha (the informant). On 27.6.2018 both of them were tied into nuptial knot as per Hindu Rites and Customs. Thereafter, an unfortunate incident took place whereby around 6.00 in the evening of 17.5.2019 the wife has committed suicide by hanging herself. For this incident, the informant lodged an F.I.R., on the same day i.e. 17.5.2019 at 22.57 hours. Thus, it is clear that within less than a year (11 months to be precise) of the marriage this unfortunate incident took place whereby the wife has lost her life by hanging.

4. Galvanized by the incident, her father within no time of the incident has succeeded in lodging the F.I.R., roping in all eight members of the in-laws including the husband-applicant, irrespective of their inter se relationship with the husband and their respective roles in commission of the offence. As per prevailing practice in the society now a days, a tailor-made story was stitched by mentioning that during the marriage of her daughter Poonam, the informant has spent Rs.9 lacs approximately, but her greedy husband and her in-laws were demanding Rs.5 lacs and a car as an additional dowry. On this score the deceased was severely harassed and tortured by all the named accused persons. On the fateful date and time, a call was made by his son-in-law (Arvind-Applicant) on the mobile phone of informant's daughter Neha, informing her sister has committed suicide by hanging herself and she was admitted in medical college. Soon after, the informant with his family members reached to the medical college, he saw that his daughter was lying dead. Thereafter he leveled a general and omnibus allegation for alleged torture/harassment against all the accused persons, resultantly she hanged herself. It was also revealed from the F.I.R., that at the time of incident, the deceased was carrying the pregnancy of about six months.

5. There is specific allegation of demand of Rs.5 lacs and a four wheeler as an additional dowry against all accused persons, attributing a general and omnibus role of torturing the deceased with regard to said additional dowry.

6. The autopsy of the deceased was conducted on 18.5.2019 by a panel of doctors at Post Mortem House Jhansi. As per the findings of the doctors, the deceased was 25 years of age. The doctors do not find any external injury over her person except singular ligature mark around her neck, obliquely placed. Hyoid bone was found intact. But her Uterus was detected as Gravid, in which a male foetus was present, aged about 5-6 months. As per the opinion of doctors, SHE DIED ON ACCOUNT OF ASPHYXIA AS A RESULT OF ANTE MORTEM HANGING.

7. During investigation the police has recorded the statements u/s 161 Cr.P.C. of the informant, Prakash Chandra Kushwaha; Rahul S/o informant; Geeta Devi W/o informant; Km. Neha D/o informant; Jitendra Kumar Dwivedi; Neeraj Kushwaha and Ravi Kushwaha. On a plain reading of all these statements, which are almost repetition of prosecution story as mentioned in the F.I.R., with minor and insignificant alterations. In their respective statements all these witnesses have alleged that, on account of demand of additional dowry in the shape of Rs.5 lacs cash and a four wheeler by the deceased, she was harassed and tortured on that score, and thereafter, she eventually was hanged by all her in-laws, including her husband. Only startling feature in these statements is that, none of these witnesses in their statements have revealed, that during life time she has ever made any complaint about the said torture or harassment to the informant or any other family members regarding alleged demand of additional dowry by her husband or in-laws.

8. On the above prosecution story, learned counsel for the applicant has drawn attention of the Court to the fact that the applicant is a poor Deed Writer in the chamber of one Mr. Akhilesh Sharma at the Tehsil premises of Jhansi. At the relevant point of time, the applicant was working in the chambers, whereas the deceased at the residence after bolting room from inside hanged herself.

9. Additionally, it was argued by Shri Daga, learned counsel for the applicant, that the applicant is a low paid deed writer and it is beyond his means or imagination to demand a four wheeler as he cannot afford the daily/recurring expenses of a four wheeler automobile, as alleged in the F.I.R.

10. The Court is in position to easily visualize the monthly or daily earning of a scribe of DEED and thus without referring or analyzing much on this issue that there is an unbridgeable gap in the daily/monthly earning of the applicant viz-a-viz the alleged demand of a four wheeler. In fact this is an entirely bald and speculative allegation has been levelled against applicant by the informant.

11. So far as the real reason behind taking of the ultimate step by the deceased is concerned, it has been canvassed by learned counsel for the applicant that the elder sister of the deceased was running a beauty parlor at her parental home prior to her marriage. Subsequently the deceased has took over its operation, but after her marriage the said beauty parlor got closed. The deceased has tried to persuade her husband to join her at her parent's place so that she may reopen the said beauty parlor. This offer seems to be unaccepted by her husband, due to which she got frustrated which eventually led to a serious discord and misunderstanding between the husband and wife. Not only this, during this period she became pregnant also. It appears that being a committed entrepreneur, her pregnancy was coming in her way of achieving her target/dream of reopening the beauty parlor. In fact, the deceased was forced to live with this diagonally opposite responsibility i.e. her natural inclination to run the beauty parlor with the help and co-operation of her husband BUT instead of this, she was forced to face the liability of her pregnancy. This was indeed a dichotomous situation for her, which all likely have prompted her to take this extreme, though foolish, step of hanging herself.

12. Per contra, learned A.G.A. while opposing the bail application has drawn attention of the Court to the provisions of Section 113-A of the Indian Evidence Act and has strenuously argued that, even assuming that deceased has self immolated her by hanging herself, the presumption would go against her husband or his relatives, if she died within the seven years of marriage and her husband or his relatives had subjected her to cruelty for want of additional dowry. In that event, the court MAY PRESUME that such suicide had been abetted by her husband or by his relatives.

13. After having rival submissions, factual as well as legal aspects of the issue, let us examine the applicability and operation of Section 113A of Indian Evidence Act in the context of present case.

14. Before dissecting Section 113-A of the Indian Evidence Act and its impact upon the prosecution, it is imperative to spell out the provisions of Sections 306, 107 and 498A of I.P.C. and also Section 113-A of the Indian Evidence Act, which read thus :-

"306 IPC. Abetment of suicide.--If any person commits suicide, whoever abets the commission of such suicide, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine."

"107 IPC. Abetment of a thing.-A person abets the doing of a thing, who--

(Firstly)-- Instigates any person to do that thing; or

(Secondly)--Engages with one or more other person or persons in any conspiracy for the doing of that thing, if an act or illegal omission takes place in pursuance of that conspiracy, and in order to the doing of that thing; or

(Thirdly)-- Intentionally aids, by any act or illegal omission, the doing of that thing. Explanation 1.--A person who, by wilful misrepresentation, or by wilful concealment of a material fact which he is bound to disclose, voluntarily causes or procures, or attempts to cause or procure, a thing to be done, is said to instigate the doing of that thing.

Explanation 2.--Whoever, either prior to or at the time of the commission of an act, does anything in order to facilitate the commission of that act, and thereby facilitate the commission thereof, is said to aid the doing of that act."

"498A IPC. Husband or relative of husband of a woman subjecting her to cruelty.--Whoever, being the husband or the relative of the husband of a woman, subjects such woman to cruelty shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine. Explanation.--For the purpose of this section, "cruelty" means--

(a) any wilful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman; or

(b) harassment of the woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand."

"113A of Evidence Act. Presumption as to abetment of suicide by a married woman.--When the question is whether the commission of suicide by a woman had been abetted by her husband or any relative of her husband and it is shown that she had committed suicide within a period of seven years from the date of her marriage and that her husband or such relative of her husband had subjected her to cruelty, the Court may presume, having regard to all the other circumstances of the case, that such suicide had been abetted by her husband or by such relative of her husband. Explanation.--For the purposes of this section, "cruelty" shall have the same meaning as in section 498A of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)."

15. The provisions of Section 113A of the Evidence Act was introduced by the Criminal Law (Second) Amendment Act, 1983 with effect from 26.12.1983 to meet out the social demand to resolve the difficulty of proof where helpless married women were eliminated by being forced to commit suicide by the husband or in-laws and incriminating evidence was usually available within the four corners of the matrimonial home and hence was not available to anyone outside the occupants of the house. However, this provision does not create any new offence nor does it create any substantial right, but merely a matter of procedure and its retrospective operation. It gives a discretion to the Court that under a given circumstance, the courts may infer and punish the wrongdoer.

16. The beauty of law is that if a person wants to get some remedy or get the alleged offender prosecuted, then before that he has to prove the existence of certain factual situation. Thus, before the provision u/s 113-A of Evidence Act activated, the burden of proving the fact lies on the person who affirms it. Before making the provisions of Section 113-A of Evidence Act operational, following factors has to be established/ proved beyond any iota of doubt :-

1. Suicide must be committed by a married woman

2. Suicide must have been abetted by the husband or any of the relatives of husband.

3. Suicide must be committed within seven years of marriage

4. She must have been subjected to "cruelty" (as defined in Section 498A I.P.C.) by her husband or his relatives.

17. Presumption u/s 113A of Evidence Act refers to one of the three ingredients of abetment as provided in Section 107 I.P.C. i.e. instigation; conspiracy and intentional aiding of the act.

18. Thus the first requisite for attracting this section is that it should be established that the wife was subjected to "cruelty" as defined in Section 498A I.P.C. 'Cruelty' does not embrace acts of physical torture alone, even scolding or extending derogatory remarks, too would come within its purview.

19. In the celebrated judgments of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of RAMESH KUMAR VS STATE OF CHHATTISGARH (2001) 9 SCC 618, is directly on this issue. It has been mentioned that where a married woman was eliminated or was forced to commit suicide within four corners of the wall of her husband and there is no independent witness to support the prosecution case, to cope up this eventuality Section 113A of the Evidence Act was incorporated for the first time in the year 1983, adding a presumption and making the husband and his relatives responsible for this unnatural mishap. However, despite of this presumption, the Court cannot lost its sight that presumption is intended to operate against the accused in the field of a criminal law. Before the presumption may be raised, the foundation thereof must exist. A bare reading of Section 113-A of Evidence Act shows that to attract the applicability of Section 113-A, it must be shown that (i) the woman has committed suicide, (ii) such suicide has been committed within a period of seven years from the date of her marriage, (iii) the husband or his relatives, who are charged had subjected her to cruelty. On existence and availability of the above circumstances, the court may presume that such suicide had been abetted by her husband or by such relatives of her husband. The Legislation has chosen to sound a note of caution. Firstly, the presumption is not mandatory; it is only permissive, keeping in view the employment of expression "may presume" as mentioned in the provisions itself. Secondly, the existence and availability of aforesaid circumstances shall not, like a mathematical formula, enable the presumption being drawn; before the presumption may be drawn the court shall have to regard to "all the other circumstances of the case". A consideration of all the other circumstances of the case may strengthen the presumption or may dictate the conscience of the Court to abstain from drawing the presumption. The expression "all the other circumstances of the case" used in Section 113-A suggests the need to reach a "cause and effect relationship" between the cruelty and the suicide for the purpose of raising a presumption. There shall be a direct nexus/linkage in the said abetment and its afterflow by means of committing suicide by the deceased. Last but not the least, the presumption is not an irrebuttable one. In spite of a presumption having been raised, the evidence adduced in defence or the facts and circumstances otherwise available on record may destroy the presumption. The phrase "may presume" used in Section 113-A is defined in Section-4 of the Evidence Act, which says-"Whenever it is provided by this Act that the court may presume a fact, it may either regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved, or may call for proof of it."

20. It would be not be out of context, while discussing the pivotal point on presumption, one must keep in mind that presumptions are of two folds, presumptions of fact and of law. Presumptions of fact are inferences logically drawn from one fact as to the existence of other facts. Presumptions of fact are rebuttable by evidence to the contrary. Presumptions of law may be either irrebuttable, so that no evidence to the contrary may be given or rebuttable. A rebuttable presumption of law is a legal rule to be applied by the Court in the absence of conflicting evidence. (Halsbury, 4th Edition paras 111, 112).

Among rebuttable presumptions there are again two folds. Section 4 of the Evidence Act defines the words 'may presume' and 'shall presume' as follows :

(a) 'may presume' : Whenever it is provided by this Act that the Court may presume a fact, if may either regard such facts as proved, unless and until it is disproved or may call for proof of it.

(b) 'shall presume' : whenever it is directed by this Act that the Court shall presume a fact, it shall regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved.

12. In the former case, the Court has an option to raise the presumption or not, but in latter case, the Court must necessarily raise the presumption. If in the case where the Court has an option, it chooses to raise the presumption, the distinction between the two categories of presumption ceases and the fact is presumed, unless and until it is disproved.

21. In this regard, this Court lays its hand to yet another judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of GURJIT SINGH VS STATE OF PUNJAB in Criminal Appeal Nos.1492-1493 of 2010 decided on 26.11.2019, whereby Hon'ble Apex Court has got an opportunity to dissect the provisions of Section 113-A of the Evidence Act in the light of Sections 306, 107 and 498A I.P.C. As mentioned above in the light of three essential prerequisites the Court may presume that such suicide has been abeted by the husband or his relatives.

22. In another case of STATE OF WEST BENGAL VS ORILAL JAISWAL AND ANOTHER, (1994) 1 SCC 73, Hon'ble Apex Court has cautioned that the law courts should be extremely careful and cautious in assessing the facts and circumstances of each case and the evidence adduced in the trial for the purpose of finding whether the cruelty meted out to the victim had in fact induced her to end her life by committing suicide. If it transpires to the court that a victim committing suicide was hypersensitive to ordinary petulance discord and differences in domestic life quite common to the society to which the victim belonged and such petulance discord and differences were not expected to induce a similarly circumstanced individual in a given society to commit suicide, the conscience of the Court should not be satisfied for basing a finding that the accused charged of abetting the offence of suicide should be found guilty. Section 498A and 306 I.P.C. are independent and constitute different offences. Though, depending on the facts and circumstances of an individual case, subjecting a woman to cruelty may amount to an offence under Section 498A and may also, if a course of conduct amounting to cruelty is established leaving no other option for the woman except to commit suicide, amount to abetment to commit suicide. However, merely because an accused has been held liable to be punished under Section 498A IPC it does not follow that on the same evidence he must also and necessarily be held guilty of having abetted the commission of suicide by the woman concerned. Thus, as observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court, the courts should be extremely careful and cautious in assessing the facts and circumstances of each case and the evidence adduced by the prosecution for the purpose of finding whether the cruelty meted out to the victim had in fact induced her to end her life by committing suicide. It has further been held that Section 498-A and Section 306 of the IPC are independent and constitute different offences. It has been observed, that dependent on the facts and circumstances of an individual case, subjecting a woman to cruelty may amount to an offence under Section 498-A of the IPC. It has been further observed, that if a course of conduct amounting to cruelty is established leaving no other option for the woman except to commit suicide, it may also amount to abetment to commit suicide. It is further observed that, however, merely because accused had been held liable to be punished under Section 498-A of the IPC, it does not follow that on the same evidence he must also and necessarily be held guilty of having abetted the commission of suicide by the woman concerned.

23. Thus, from the above discussion it is clearly established beyond any iota of doubt that if an accused is found guilty of an offence punishable under Section 498-A of the IPC and the death has occurred within a period of seven years of the marriage, the accused cannot be automatically held guilty for the offfence punishable under Section 306 of the IPC by employing the presumption under Section 113-A of the Evidence Act. Unless the prosecution established that some act or illegal omission by the accused has driven the deceased to commit suicide, the conviction under Section 306 would not be tenable.

24. Illumined by the guidelines of Hon'ble Apex Court, mentioned above, if the Court compares the facts and circumstances of the present case, the admitted position of fact is that within seven years of marriage (11 months to be precise) the deceased Poonam committed suicide by hanging herself and from the statements of witnesses it clearly indicates that there was a demand of Rs.5 lacs and a four wheeler as alleged in the F.I.R., unmindful of the fact that the applicant is a petty scribe of the deeds in the chambers of one Mr Akhilesh Sharma in a tehsil premise and he has got no means to cope with the daily/recurring expenses of a four-wheeler. During her life time, the deceased has never made any complaint with her family members about the alleged atrocities faced by her on account of alleged additional dowry. This is also admitted that she has committed suicide by bolting the doors from inside and there is singular ligature mark around her neck, obliquely placed, suggestive of the fact that she has hanged herself. There is no mark of any other injury over her person. Yet another startling feature of the case is that the deceased was carrying the pregnancy of 6-7 months and for every married woman this is the most precious time in her life. Ignoring all these, she has taken this extreme step of committing suicide. Under circumstances, the Court has every reason to presume that the deceased seems to be a hypersensitive lady, who has taken this extreme step and has given up the pleasure of being a mother. As suggested by learned counsel for the applicant that being a young entrepreneur she was direly interested in reopening her beauty parlor and wants to open an additional source of income, but the Court cannot ignore the fact that her dreams were shattered by non co-operation of her husband. This could be a reason of discord between the husband and wife, but the Court cannot expect that it could be such a big reason where she commits suicide, moreover, when she is in the valuable phase of her life. There is no such evidence collected during investigation that it could be said that the husband at any point of time either abetted her or created any situation for her or conspired anything where she has been left with no other option but to hang herself. The entire family has been roped in, unmindful of the fact of interse relationship by attributing a general and omnibus role to everybody. Taking the help of the above mentioned observations made by Hon'ble Apex Court, prima facie it seems that there might be a discord and bad breath between the husband and wife with regard to certain issues but rest of the attending circumstances nowhere indicates that the applicant's conduct at any point of time during her life time falls within the category of Section 107 of the I.P.C. i.e. either the husband has instigated her or hatched any conspiracy for doing any act or illegal omission pursuant to the conspiracy or intentionally aided her to act upon certain thing. Mere levelling a bald allegation of dowry harassment with regard to additional dowry the husband could be prosecuted for offence u/s 498A I.P.C. but certainly not within the four corners of Section 306 I.P.C.

25. Keeping in view the nature of the offence, evidence on record regarding complicity of the accused, larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the dictum of Apex Court in the case of Dataram Singh Vs. State of U.P. and another, (2018)3 SCC 22 and without expressing any opinion on the merits of the case, the Court is of the view that the applicant has made out a case for bail. The bail application is allowed.

26. Let the applicant Arvind, who is involved in aforementioned case crime be released on bail on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned subject to following conditions. Further, before issuing the release order, the sureties be verified.

(i) THE APPLICANT SHALL FILE AN UNDERTAKING TO THE EFFECT THAT HE SHALL NOT SEEK ANY ADJOURNMENT ON THE DATE FIXED FOR EVIDENCE WHEN THE WITNESSES ARE PRESENT IN COURT. IN CASE OF DEFAULT OF THIS CONDITION, IT SHALL BE OPEN FOR THE TRIAL COURT TO TREAT IT AS ABUSE OF LIBERTY OF BAIL AND PASS ORDERS IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW.

(ii) THE APPLICANT SHALL REMAIN PRESENT BEFORE THE TRIAL COURT ON EACH DATE FIXED, EITHER PERSONALLY OR THROUGH HIS COUNSEL. IN CASE OF HIS ABSENCE, WITHOUT SUFFICIENT CAUSE, THE TRIAL COURT MAY PROCEED AGAINST HIM UNDER SECTION 229-A IPC.

(iii) IN CASE, THE APPLICANT MISUSES THE LIBERTY OF BAIL DURING TRIAL AND IN ORDER TO SECURE HIS PRESENCE PROCLAMATION UNDER SECTION 82 CR.P.C., MAY BE ISSUED AND IF APPLICANT FAILS TO APPEAR BEFORE THE COURT ON THE DATE FIXED IN SUCH PROCLAMATION, THEN, THE TRIAL COURT SHALL INITIATE PROCEEDINGS AGAINST HIM, IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW, UNDER SECTION 174-A IPC.

(iv) THE APPLICANT SHALL REMAIN PRESENT, IN PERSON, BEFORE THE TRIAL COURT ON DATES FIXED FOR (1) OPENING OF THE CASE, (2) FRAMING OF CHARGE AND (3) RECORDING OF STATEMENT UNDER SECTION 313 CR.P.C. IF IN THE OPINION OF THE TRIAL COURT ABSENCE OF THE APPLICANT IS DELIBERATE OR WITHOUT SUFFICIENT CAUSE, THEN IT SHALL BE OPEN FOR THE TRIAL COURT TO TREAT SUCH DEFAULT AS ABUSE OF LIBERTY OF

BAIL AND PROCEED AGAINST HIM IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW.

(v) THE TRIAL COURT MAY MAKE ALL POSSIBLE EFFORTS/ENDEAVOUR AND TRY TO CONCLUDE THE TRIAL WITHIN A PERIOD OF ONE YEAR AFTER THE RELEASE OF THE APPLICANT.

27. In case of breach of any of the above conditions, it shall be a ground for cancellation of bail.

28. It is made clear that observations made in granting bail to the applicant shall not in any way affect the learned trial Judge in forming his independent opinion based on the testimony of the witnesses.

29. Since the bail application has been decided under extra-ordinary circumstances, thus in the interest of justice following additional conditions are being imposed just to facilitate the applicant to be released on bail forthwith. Needless to mention that these additional conditions are imposed to cope with emergent condition-:

(a). The applicant shall be enlarged on bail on execution of personal bond without sureties till normal functioning of the courts is restored. The accused will furnish sureties to the satisfaction of the court below within a month after normal functioning of the courts are restored.

(b). The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad.

(c). The computer generated copy of such order shall be self attested by the counsel of the party concerned.

(d). The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

29. However, it is made clear that any willful violation of above conditions by the applicant, shall have serious repercussion on his/her bail so granted by this Court and the trial court is at liberty to cancel the bail, after recording the reasons for doing so, in the given case of any of the condition mentioned above.

List of Cases Cited:

Dataram Singh Vs St. of U.P. & anr.(2018) 3 SCC 22

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Heard Sri R.K. Shukla, learned counsel for the applicant as well learned A.G.A. appearing for the State and S.P.S. Chauhan, learned counsel for O.P. No.2 and perused the record.

2. Applicant has moved the present bail application seeking bail in Case Crime No.358 of 2020, under Sections 452, 406, 376, 504 and 506 I.P.C., P.S. Jagdishpura, District Agra.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the applicant has been falsely implicated in the present case due to ulterior motive with the intention to harass the applicant and to defame him in the society. As per F.I.R. version as lodged by the victim on 13.07.2020 at 18:50 hours is that the Dharmendra Singh Parihar husband of the victim was doing service away from the city and the prosecutrix was living at home alone with her two children. The applicant was visitor to her house and so that was entangled in her evil design. She wanted to purchase a house for which the applicant was taking her hither and thither. On 16.10.2017 the applicant came to her house at 9-00 P.M. and had brought with him a bottle of cold drink and made her to drink due to which she became unconscious and the applicant committed rape upon her. Upon becoming conscious she found her clothes scattered and on being annoyed with the applicant showed her video clip on his mobile and threatened to viral it on internet if she had gone to police to lodge F.I.R. and the applicant also got her land at village sold and usurped the amount of sale consideration. Thereafter he got a house purchased and by making forgery he got recorded his name mentioned in place of the name of her husband. Thereafter on 02.06.2020 at 8-00 threatened the prosecutrix dragged her on the bed and committed rape upon her and fled away from there. As per the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. the prosecutrix reiterated the F.I.R. version. As per the statement of the prosecutrix under Section 164 Cr.P.C. she had stated that she was of 28 years of age and had studied upto Class 10th. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that medical examination was refused by the prosecutrix and she had not received any external injury.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that there is vast contradiction in the F.I.R. and statements of the prosecutrix recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. She is major and an ambitious and corrupt lady and due to her conduct her husband had left her and to fulfill her lust the prosecutrix has firstly developed relation with one Prem Kumar the friend of applicant and subsequently with the applicant. The prosecutrix was regularly extracting money from the applicant by one or another pretext. Though the prosecutirx had shown herself the wife of Dharmendra Singh Parihar but he did not come forward to defend her due to her illegal activity. The Investigating Officer contacted the husband of the prosecutrix on his telephone and he had clearly stated that he had not gone to his house as his wife had developed relation with Fauji i.e. the applicant. He further submits that the prosecutrix is a very clever lady and she had developed the relations with the applicant only to extract money. The prosecutrix has visited with the applicant at Dhaulpur Rajasthan on 31.08.2017 and stayed there at Jaya Place Hotel, Dhaulpur with her own free will which shows that she was a consenting party but when the applicant retired from service on 31.05.2020 and refused to fulfill the lust of prosecutrix, she lodged the instant F.I.R. with false and fabricated facts.

5. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the applicant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required and is also ready to accept all the conditions which the Court may deem fit to impose upon him. It has also been pointed out that the accused is not having any criminal history and he is in jail since 21.09.2020 and that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

6. Learned A.G.A. opposed the prayer for bail.

7. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dataram Singh vs. State of UP and another, (2018) 3 SCC 22, this Court is of the view that the applicant may be enlarged on bail.

8. The prayer for bail is granted. The application is allowed.

9. Let the applicant-Udai Veer Singh involved in Case Crime No.358 of 2020, under Sections 452, 406, 376, 504 and 506 I.P.C., P.S. Jagdishpura, District Agra, be released on bail on executing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned on the following conditions :-

(1) The applicant will not make any attempt to tamper with the prosecution evidence in any manner whatsoever.

(2) The applicant will personally appear on each and every date fixed in the court below and his personal presence shall not be exempted unless the court itself deems it fit to do so in the interest of justice.

(3) The applicant shall cooperate in the trial sincerely without seeking any adjournment.

(4) The applicant shall not indulge in any criminal activity or commission of any crime after being released on bail.

(5)The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad or certified copy issued from the Registry of the High Court, Allahabad.

(6) The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

10. It may be observed that in the event of any breach of the aforesaid conditions, the court below shall be at liberty to proceed for the cancellation of applicant's bail.

11. It is clarified that the observations, if any, made in this order are strictly confined to the disposal of the bail application and must not be construed to have any reflection on the ultimate merits of the case.

1. The narrative is being structured in the following framework to facilitate the discussion:

I.	Defining the controversy and its origins
II.	Submissions of learned counsels
III.	Right of bail
IV.	SC & ST Act- Relevant provisions: Discussion
V.	Final Directions
VI.	Review of Compliance of Directions
VII.	Consideration of Bail Application on merits

I. Defining the controversy and its origins

2. The amendments to the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 19891 made in the year 2016, brought in their wake an alteration in the practice and procedure for hearing of bail applications.

3. Learned counsels for the applicants in all connected bail applications pointed out certain anomalies in the practices of hearing of bail applications/bail appeals under the Act. This has created inconsistencies in the procedure for hearing of bail applications/bail appeals, uncertainty in the period of maturation of bail applications/bail appeals, and deferment of hearing of bail applications/bail appeals under the Act for undefined periods.

4. This issue is common to all bail applications before this Court. The individual bail applications will be decided on the respective facts of each case by separate orders.

5. Considering the importance of the issue raised by the learned counsel for the applicants in all the bail applications, the Court had requested the learned members of the Bar to assist the Court in defining and resolving the controversy.

6. Shri Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General was also requested to take appropriate instructions from the State Government and make submissions before the Court.

7. Simply put the questions of law which arise for determination are these:

I. What is the agency and mode for service of notice of bail applications/bail appeal upon the victim under the Act (as amended from time to time)?

II. What is the time period for maturation of a bail application/bail appeal before the High Court which implements the mandate of the Act (as amended from time to time) and agrees with the requirements of constitutional liberties?

II. Submissions of the learned counsels for the Parties:

8. Apart from the counsels for the applicants, Shri Nazrul Islam Jafri, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Mohd. Zubair Khan, Shri Vinay Saran, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Pradeep Kumar Mishra, learned counsel, Shri R.P.S. Chauhan, learned counsel, Shri Santosh Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel and Shri Raghuvansh Mishra, learned counsel kindly volunteered to assist the Court. On behalf of the State Shri Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Shri Gambhir Singh, learned counsel and Shri Ankit Srivastava, learned counsel for the State have made their submissions.

9. Learned counsel for the applicants in various bail applications, Shri Ajeet Srivastava, Shri Rajesh Chandra Gupta, and Shri Devendra Saini submit that the usual procedure adopted by the Court to effect the service of the notice of bail applications upon the victim under the Act, is to issue notice to the victim by regular mode or through the Chief Judicial Magistrate of the district concerned. The procedure is not contemplated in the Act, and delays hearing of bail applications/bail appeals for varying periods.

10. Shri Nazrul Islam Jafri, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Mohd.

Zubair Khan, learned counsel made the following contentions:

I. The disarray caused in the procedure for hearing of bails is primarily because of service of notice upon the victim by the process of Court, instead of direct service by the State as contemplated in the Act. Hearing of bail application is delayed for uncertain periods resulting in violation of Article 21 of the Constitution of India. The procedure and practice for bail hearing has to be rationalized urgently.

II. The right of the victim under the Act has to be balanced with the right of an accused to have his bail application heard within a reasonable period of time.

III. Learned Senior Counsel largely agrees with the timeline for maturation of bails suggested by the State Government. But efforts should always be made to reduce the time for maturation of bail applications.

IV. Learned Senior Counsel gave an account of real case studies of delays caused by the extant practice of service by Court process. In one case notice sent by the Court was not served for more than one and a half year and the bail application matured for hearing after that period.

11. Shri Vinay Saran, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Pradeep Kumar Mishra, agrees with the arguments of Shri Nazrul Islam Jafri, learned Senior Counsel and further submits:

I. The bail processual framework has to be consistent with the requirements of Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India.

II. The time period and procedure for maturation of the bail application has to be controlled by the fundamental rights of the accused under the Constitution, the rights of the victim under the Act, and the High Court Rules.

III. Practice of issuance of notice of bail by the Court to the victim by the court, has led to large variations in the time period for maturation of the bail applications for hearing. The process is not efficient and causes delays. Further such mode of service is not provided in the Act.

IV. The bail processual system needs to be rationalized urgently. Notice upon the victim has to be served directly by State, as specifically provided in the Act.

V. The time period of maturation of the bail applications as suggested on behalf of the State, is reasonable. Though he contends that efforts should always be made to improve the system.

12. Both learned Senior Counsels have called attention to various provisions of the Act.

13. Shri R.P.S. Chauhan, learned counsel assisted by Shri Santosh Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel made the following contentions:

I. The right of an accused seeking bail applications is conferred by statute but also effects his fundamental liberties under Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

II. All the Courts do not prescribe a uniform period for service of notice. Period and modes for service of notice varies in different Courts. This leads to inconsistency in time for maturation of bails for hearing.

III. The period of maturation of an a bail application cannot be unduly large, nor can it be vary from case to case.

14. Learned counsel has cited on the following authorities:

1. Hussain and another Vs. Union of India2

2. Arnab Manoranjan Goswami Vs. State of Maharashtra and Others3

15. Shri Raghuvansh Mishra, learned counsel adopted the arguments of learned Senior Counsels and then advanced the following additional submissions:

I. The State Government/ Special Public Prosecutor is nominated as the sole agency under the Act to effect service of the bail application upon the victim.

II. The creation of any additional agency or mode of service apart from the one prescribed under the Act would be contrary to law.

III. The Act is a criminal statute and has to be interpreted strictly.

IV. Section 15 (3) and Section 15(5) of the Act do not overlap and operate independently. Notice of bail application/bail appeal is served under Section 15(3), while Section 15(5) is invoked when the victim claims his/her right of hearing.

V. Failure of the State authorities to serve the notice upon the victim cannot deny the accused right to have his bail application/bail appeal heard within a stipulated period of time.

16. Learned counsel has placed reliance on the following cases in point:

I. Pramod Kumar Ray and Others Vs State of Odisha4

II. Dilip Kumar Sharma and Others Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh5

17. Shri Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Shri Gambhir Singh, learned counsel and Shri Ankit Srivastava, learned counsel for the State submitted as under:

I. Under the Act, the State is the sole agency vested with the duty to serve notice of bail applications/bail appeals upon the victim.

II. The State authorities need reasonable time to serve notice upon the victim.

III. The victim is also required to be afforded adequate time after service of notice to effectively tender his defence before the Court.

IV. The State machinery shall be geared up to implement the provisions of the Act in letter and spirit.

V. Upon the instructions received from the State Government, the following timeline is proposed on behalf of the State:

A. Time for service of notice upon the victim by the State agency should not be less than 96 hours.

B. Time required by the victim between the service of notice and hearing of the bail application should not be less than 72 hours.

III. Right of Bail

18. The right to bail has statutory origins but cannot be isolated from constitutional oversight.

19. Good authority has long entrenched the right of an accused to seek bail in the charter of fundamental rights assured by the Constitution of India. These authorities pivot the discussion.

20. Bail jurisprudence was firmly embedded in the constitutional regime of fundamental rights in Gudikanti Narasimhulu and Others Vs. Public Prosecutor, High Court of Andhra Pradesh6. Casting an enduring proposition of law in eloquent speech, Justice V.R. Krishna Iyer held:

"Bail or jail?" -- at the pre-trial or post-conviction stage -- belongs to the blurred area of the criminal justice system and largely hinges on the hunch of the Bench, otherwise called judicial discretion. The Code is cryptic on this topic and the Court prefers to be tacit, be the order custodial or not. And yet, the issue is one of liberty, justice, public safety and burden of the public treasury, all of which insist that a developed jurisprudence of bail is integral to a socially sensitized judicial process. As Chamber Judge in this summit court I have to deal with this uncanalised case-flow, ad hoc response to the docket being the flickering candle light. So it is desirable that the subject is disposed of on basic principle, not improvised brevity draped as discretion. Personal liberty, deprived when bail is refused, is too precious a value of our constitutional system recognised under Article 21 that the curial power to negate it is a great trust exercisable, not casually but judicially, with lively concern for the cost to the individual and the community. To glamorize impressionistic orders as discretionary may, on occasions, make a litigative gamble decisive of a fundamental right. After all, personal liberty of an accused or convict is fundamental, suffering lawful eclipse only in terms of "procedure established by law". The last four words of Article 21 are the life of that human right."

21. Engagement of fundamental rights in bail jurisprudence is a constant in constitutional law.

22. The nexus of fundamental liberties of the citizens and the right of bail came to the fore in Hussain and another Vs. Union of India7, when the Supreme Court was alerted to the issue of delay in consideration of grant of bail applications in the courts. In Hussain (supra), it was enjoined:

"Timeline for disposal of bail applications ought to be fixed by the High Court."

"29.1.1. Bail applications be disposed of normally within one week;"

23. Nearer home the Allahabad High Court in Emperor Vs. H.L. Hutchinson and another8 stated that grant of bail is the rule and refusal is the exception on the foot of the following reasons:

"The principle to be deduced from sections 496 and 497 of the Criminal Procedure Code, therefore, is that grant of bail is the rule and refusal is the exception. That this must be so is not at all difficult to see. An accused person is presumed under the law to be innocent till his guilt is proved. As a presumably innocent person he is entitled to freedom and every opportunity to look after his own case. It goes without saying that an accused person, if he enjoys freedom, will be in a much better position to look after his case and to properly defend himself than if he were in custody. One of the complaints made by the applicants in this case is that their letters sent from the custody have been opened and inspected and censored, and, therefore, they were not in a position to conduct their defence with the aid of such friends as may he outside the prison. As I have said, it is obvious that a presumably innocent person should have his freedom to enable him to establish his innocence."

24. The Supreme Court set its face against restrictions on the power of the courts to grant bail in Ranjitsing Brahmajeetsing Sharma v. State of Maharashtra9.

25. Constitutionality of onerous conditions for grant of bail imposed by Section 45 of the Money Laundering Act, 2002 was in issue in Nikesh Tarachand Shah Vs. Union of India and another10. This narrative will profit from a detailed consideration of the judgment.

26. The Supreme Court in Nikesh Tarachand (supra) predicated its holding by delving into the origin of the quest for liberty in English jurisprudence:

"18. What is important to learn from this history is that Clause 39 of the Magna Carta was subsequently extended to pre-trial imprisonment, so that persons could be enlarged on bail to secure their attendance for the ensuing trial. It may only be added that one century after the Bill of Rights, the US Constitution borrowed the language of the Bill of Rights when the principle of habeas corpus found its way into Article 1 Section 9 of the US Constitution, followed by the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution which expressly states that, "excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted". We may only add that the Eighth Amendment has been read into Article 21 by a Division Bench of this Court in Rajesh Kumar v. State [Rajesh Kumar v. State, (2011) 13 SCC 706 : (2012) 2 SCC (Cri) 836] at paras 60 and 61."

27. The enquiry into the constitutional correctness of the assailed provisions began with the tests for violation of Article 14 "both in its discriminatory aspect and its manifestly arbitrary aspect".

28. The discussion then proceeded to understand the scope and effect of Article 21 of the Constitution of India on the offending provisions for grant of bail. This enquiry was overlaid with a consideration of authorities "on the concept of due process in our constitutional jurisprudence whenever the court has to deal with a question affecting life and liberty of citizens".

29. Finally in Nikesh Tarachand (supra), onerous conditions for grant of bail in Section 45 (1) of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002, were declared unconstitutional being violative of Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India:

"46. We must not forget that Section 45 is a drastic provision which turns on its head the presumption of innocence which is fundamental to a person accused of any offence. Before application of a section which makes drastic inroads into the fundamental right of personal liberty guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution of India, we must be doubly sure that such provision furthers a compelling State interest for tackling serious crime. Absent any such compelling State interest, the indiscriminate application of the provisions of Section 45 will certainly violate Article 21 of the Constitution. Provisions akin to Section 45 have only been upheld on the ground that there is a compelling State interest in tackling crimes of an extremely heinous nature."

30. The following statement of law in the epoch making decision of Maneka Gandhi vs. Union of India11 will fortify this narrative:

"81... Procedure established by law", with its lethal potentiality, will reduce life and liberty to a precarious plaything if we do not ex necessitate import into those weighty words an adjectival rule of law, civilised in its soul, fair in its heart and fixing those imperatives of procedural protection absent which the processual tail will wag the substantive head. Can the sacred essence of the human right to secure which the struggle for liberation, with "do or die" patriotism, was launched be sapped by formalistic and pharisaic prescriptions, regardless of essential standards? An enacted apparition is a constitutional illusion. Processual justice is writ patently on Article 21. It is too grave to be circumvented by a black letter ritual processed through the legislature."

31. More recently in Arnab Manoranjan Goswami Vs. State of Maharashtra and Others12. The status of liberty in our constitutional value system, realities of the criminal justice process, and nature of the right of bail came up squarely for consideration.

32. The Supreme Court in Arnab Goswami (supra) was cognizant of the tendency to misuse criminal law and held unequivocally that the courts have to ensure that criminal law does not become "weapon for the selective harassment of the citizens".

33. The self imposed fetters on grant of bail under Article 226 of the Constitution of India were removed. The first principles of writ jurisdiction for upholding the fundamental liberties of the citizens were reiterated:

"..However, the High Court should not foreclose itself from the exercise of the power when a citizen has been arbitrarily deprived of their personal liberty in an excess of state power.

71. While considering an application for the grant of bail under Article 226 in a suitable case, the High Court must consider the settled factors which emerge from the precedents of this Court."

34. Reinforcing the connection between the concept of liberty and the process of criminal law, the Supreme Court in Arnab Goswami (supra), determined the characteristics of liberty and delineated the duties of courts across the spectrum:

"Courts must be alive to the need to safeguard the public interest in ensuring that the due enforcement of criminal law is not obstructed. The fair investigation of crime is an aid to it. Equally it is the duty of courts across the spectrum - the district judiciary, the High Courts and the Supreme Court - to ensure that the criminal law does not become a weapon for the selective harassment of citizens. Courts should be alive to both ends of the spectrum - the need to ensure the proper enforcement of criminal law on the one hand and the need, on the other, of ensuring that the law does not become a ruse for targeted harassment. Liberty across human eras is as tenuous as tenuous can be. Liberty survives by the vigilance of her citizens, on the cacophony of the media and in the dusty corridors of courts alive to the rule of (and not by) law. Yet, much too often, liberty is a casualty when one of these components is found wanting."

74. Human liberty is a precious constitutional value, which is undoubtedly subject to regulation by validly enacted legislation.

"...Our courts must ensure that they continue to remain the first line of defense against the deprivation of the liberty of citizens. Deprivation of liberty even for a single day is one day too many. We must always be mindful of the deeper systemic implications of our decisions."

35. Constitutional courts have to constantly be at the vanguard of the defence of liberties of citizens.

Provisions for bail in High Court Rules:

36. The process of maturation of a bail application before it is placed before the Court, is contained in Rule 18 of Chapter 18 of the Allahabad High Court Rules. The relevant part of Rule-18 (as amended on 19.09.2018) is reproduced below:

"[(3) Save in exceptional circumstances-

(a) No bail application shall be placed before the Court unless notice thereof has been given to the Government Advocate and a period of two days has elapsed from the date of such notice.

(b) If the application for bail has not been moved within seven days after the expiry of the aforesaid period of two days the applicant or his counsel shall give two days previous notice to the Government Advocate as to the exact date on which such application is intended to be moved.

(c) Where the prayer for bail is contained in a petition of appeal or application for revision, notice thereof may be given to the Government Advocate the same day prior to the hearing of such petition or application and the fact of such previous notice having been given, shall be endorsed on such petition or application. Alongwith such notice a certified copy or one attested to be true by the counsel, of the Judgment appealed from or sought to be revised shall also be given to the Government Advocate.]

(emphasis supplied)"

37. Thus under the Allahabad High Court Rules, the time to run various procedural formalities before a bail is placed before the court is two days.

38. The provision has an interesting history. The time period for maturation of the bail application under unamended Rule 18 of the Allahabad High Court Rules was ten days.

39. A bail processual framework violates fundamental rights and personal liberties of an accused guaranteed under Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India in the following situations:

A. Provisions with an unreasonably large time for maturation of a bail application;

B. Procedures where the time period for hearing of a bail application is undefined;

C. Practices causing indefinite deferment of hearing of a bail application.

D. Failure of police authorities to provide timely instructions to the Government Advocate before the hearing of bail application.

40. Such provisions and practices are vulnerable to a constitutional challenge.

41. Attributes of the processual framework of bails which are in accord with Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India are these. Bail applications have to be processed expeditiously and placed before the court for hearing in a reasonable and definite time frame. The procedure for processing the bail application needs to be consistent, and the time period for hearing of the bail application has to be certain.

42. The proposition that a bail application cannot be under procedural incubation for an unreasonable time, is the sequitor of the preceding tenets of constitutional law. These were at the heart of the efforts made by Shri Haider Rizvi, a public spirited lawyer to reform the bail procedures in this Court, and make them consistent with Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India. Efforts of Sri Haider Rizvi, learned counsel bore fruit when the necessary amendments were made to Rule 18 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, reducing the period of notice of bail from ten days to two days.

IV. The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities)Act, 1989 : Relevant Provisions and Discussion

43. The Constitution of India asserts the equality of all its citizens. However, the founding fathers were equally conscious of inequalities which blight our society. Many sections of our society are downtrodden and oppressed because of historical reasons. The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 (as amended from time to time), is a recognition of the fact of inequalities in our society; and a reflection of the resolve to do equal justice.

44. The controversy in hand requires a determination of statutory mandate of relevant provisions of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 (as amended from time to time). Determination of statutory mandate is an exercise in interpretation of the statute. The statutory mandate can be distilled by understanding the legislative intent, surveying the relevant provisions of the enactment, examining the words employed by the legislature, and being guided by settled canons of statutory interpretation.

45. The relevant extract of statements of objects and reasons of the Act is reproduced below:

"Statement of Objects and Reasons- The Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 was enacted with a view to prevent the commission of offences of atrocities against the members of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and to establish Special Courts for the trial of such offences and for providing relief and rehabilitation of the victims of such offences.

2. Despite the deterrent provisions made in the Act, atrocities against the members of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes continue at a disturbing level. Adequate justice also remains difficult for a majority of the victims and the witnesses, as they face hurdles virtually at every stage of the legal process. The implementation of the Act suffers due to (a) procedural hurdles such as non-registration of cases ;(b) procedural delays in investigation, arrest and filing of charge-sheets; and (c) delays in trial and low conviction rate"

46. The provisions of the Act (material to the controversy) shall now be considered.

47. Section 2 (bd) defines the "Exclusive Special Court", Section 2(d) defines the "Special Courts", while Section 2 (ec) defines "victim":

"(bd) "Exclusive Special Court" means the Exclusive Special Court established under sub-section (1) of section 14 exclusively to try the offences under this Act;"

"(d) Special Court means a Court of Session specified as a Special Court in section 14;"

"(ec) "victim" means any individual who falls within the definition of the "Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes" under clause (c) of sub-section (1) of section 2, and who has suffered or experienced physical, mental, psychological, emotional or monetary harm or harm to his property as a result of the commission of any offence under this Act and includes his relatives, legal guardian and legal heirs;"

48. Appeal against an order granting or refusing bail under the Act is regulated by Section 14 (A) of the Act, which is extracted hereinunder:

"[14A. Appeals. - (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure,1973, an appeal shall lie, from any judgment, sentence or order, not being an interlocutory order, of a Special Court or an Exclusive Special Court, to the High Court both on facts and on law.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (3) of section 378 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, an appeal shall lie to the High Court against an order of the Special Court or the Exclusive Special Court granting or refusing bail.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, every appeal under this section shall be preferred within a period of ninety days from the date of the judgment, sentence or order appealed from:

Provided that the High Court may entertain an appeal after the expiry of the said period of ninety days if it is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the period of ninety days:

Provided further that no appeal shall be entertained after the expiry of the period of one hundred and eighty days.

(4) Every appeal preferred under sub-section (1) shall, as far as possible, be disposed of within a period of three months from the date of admission of the appeal.]"

49. Rights of victim and witnesses and provisions for grant of bail have merited special attention from the legislature in Section 15 of the Act. Section 15 (A) (3) and (5) being central to the controversy are reproduced hereunder:

"(3) A victim or his dependent shall have the right to reasonable, accurate, and timely notice of any Court proceeding including any bail proceeding and the Special Public Prosecutor or the State Government shall inform the victim about any proceedings under this Act."

"(5) A victim or his dependent shall be entitled to be heard at any proceeding under this Act in respect of bail, discharge, release, parole, conviction or sentence of an accused or any connected proceedings or arguments and file written submission on conviction, acquittal or sentencing."

50. Section 15 A (3) has two limbs: The first is the nomination of the agency to inform the victim about such proceedings under the Act before the Court. The second limb provides for "reasonable, accurate and timely notice" of any criminal proceedings including a bail application/bail appeal to the victim or his dependent. Section 15(A) 3 visualizes some elements of process of maturation of bail, for being placed before the Court. However, it does not disclose any time frame for the same.

51. The legislature has employed the word "shall'.

52. The word "shall" mostly denotes the mandatory intent of the legislature (see State of Haryana Vs. Raghuvir Dayal13) Considering the context of the statute and the preceding discussion the provisions are mandatory.

53. The Orissa High Court in Pramod Kumar Ray and Others Vs State of Odisha14, has held the provisions to be mandatory.

54. The first principle of interpretation of criminal statutes of strict construction of language of the enactment, was relied upon by the Supreme Court in Dilip Kumar Sharma Vs State of M.P.15 :

"23. It is well settled that such a penal provision must be strictly construed ; that is to say, in the absence of clear compelling language the provision should not be given a wider interpretation and no case should be held to fall within which does not come within the reasonable interpretation of the statute. (M.V. Joshi V. M.U. Shimpi) If two construction are possible upon the language of the statute, the Court must choose the one which is consistent with good sense and fairness and eschew the other which makes ti operation unduly oppressive, unjust or unreasonable, or which would lead to strange, inconsistent results or otherwise introduce an element of bewildering uncertainty and practical inconvenience in the working of the statute."

55. The position which thus emerges is that under the Act the State Government or Special Public Prosecutor is nominated as the sole agency with the exclusive statutory duty to inform the victim about the bail proceedings. Any practice to create an intermediate agency or alternative method for service of notice upon the victim should be avoided.

56. Direct responsibility for service of bail notice upon the victim under the Act is upon the State. The Act does not contemplate sending of bail notice to the victim by the Court. At least not till the State fails in its duty to serve notice. Further, issuance of notice by the Court does not have added efficacy in these cases, since ultimately service upon victim is effected only by the State agencies.

57. The discussion shall now move to the second most critical aspect of the controversy. The time line during which the bail application matures, for being placed before the court for hearing. And the time period which will give "reasonable accurate and timely notice" to the victim.

58. While determining the aforesaid time line, the Court has to correlate and balance the mandate of statutory rights of the victim, with the imperative of constitutional liberties of the accused.

59. In the opinion of this Court, the time line suggested by the Sri Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General upon specific instructions from the State Government seems to be reasonable and just. This time line implements the mandate of the statute and upholds the demands of constitutional liberties. Though efforts can always be made to streamline functioning, improve the efficiency of the system.

60. Before finalizing the time line, another issue which was raised at the bar has to be adverted to.

61. In case State fails to serve notice upon the victim for various reasons, what would be the fate of the stipulated time line. The definition of victim under the Act is inclusive. The State is in possession of material details of the victim for service. Further State has the resources and the responsibility to serve notice. It is always open to the State to adopt different modes of service including publication in the newspapers.

62. Failure to serve notice of bail upon the victim, is failure of the State to perform its statutory function. The accused cannot be visited with penal consequences for the default of the State. The erring officials have to be proceeded against as per law. Placement of the bail application/bail appeal before the court cannot be deferred for non service of notice after the expiry of the time line stipulated below.

63. There is another aspect of the matter. A person may simply evade service in the certain knowledge that failure to serve shall defer the hearing of the bail application and extend the period of detention. This would be an abuse of the process of law and breach the fundamental right of liberty of the accused under Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

64. It was also urged on the foot of Section 15(5) of the Act, that in case the State cannot serve the notice within the stipulated period of time, it may move an application for enlargement of the time. For the reasons in the preceding part of the narrative this contention is being noticed only to be rejected.

65. Section 15(5) of the Act cannot be put in service for extension of the notice period. The said provision comes into play only where the victim exercises his right to be heard, when the bail is placed before the Court after its period of maturation. Section 15(5) of the Act is a stage subsequent to Section 15 (3) of the Act.

66. While the rights of the victim as contemplated under the statute have to be upheld at all times, service of notice of bail application/appeal cannot be unduly delayed by the State, nor can the victim cause indefinite deferment of the hearing of the bail application.

67. The discussion now turns to the interpretation of phrase "reasonable, accurate and timely notice to the victim" under Section 15(3) of the Act. The phraseology employed by the Legislature is comprehensive and the intent is unmistakable. The victim has to be given adequate time to prepare his defence, prior to placing of the matter before the Court. The time period of 72 hours between the receipt of notice by the victim and hearing of the bail application fully satisfies the statutory requirement.

V. Final Directions

68. In light of the preceding narrative, the following directions are issued.

69. The bail application/bail appeal under the Act shall be placed before the Court in strict adherence to the following time line and procedure:

(I) The notice of the bail application/ bail appeal under the Act shall be served upon the Government Advocate before 12:00 PM of any working day.

(II) The State Government shall ensure that service of notice of the bail application/ bail appeal is effected upon the victim not later than 96 hours after the receipt of the said notice.

(III) The victim will be entitled to 72 hours after the receipt of notice of bail.

(IV) Save in exceptional circumstances which are accepted by the Court, the bail application/ bail appeal under the Act shall be placed before the Court immediately after the expiry of 168 hours/7 days from the time of service of notice of bail application/bail appeal upon the Government Advocate as aforesaid.

(V) The report of the service of notice of bail application/ bail appeal shall be submitted by the State authority before the court showing due compliance of the provisions of Section 15(3) of the Act.

(VI) In case the counsel for the applicant does not move the bail application/bail appeal as per the current procedure to enable it to be placed before the Court 7 days after the initial service of notice, this procedure shall be followed. The applicant or his/ her counsel shall give 96 hours of notice to the Government Advocate as to the exact date on which such application is intended to be moved. The State shall thereafter cause such notice to be served again upon the victim so as to enable him to have "accurate, notice of the proposed bail application".

(VII) During this period of 7 days notice of the bail application under the Act, the police authorities shall ensure that appropriate instructions are available with the Government Advocates to assist the Court at the hearing of the bail application/bail appeal.

(VIII) The S.S.P/ D.C.P/S.P. (in districts where there is no post of S.S.P) of the concerned district shall be the nodal officer, who shall supervise the staff charged with the duty of actually serving the notice upon the victim and to provide instructions and relevant material to the Government Advocate on the bail application. In case, there is default on part of such official, the S.S.P./ D.C.P/ S.P. of the concerned district shall take immediate action in accordance with law against such erring official.

(IX) Before parting the Court cannot but take notice of the fact that we live in the age of information technology. The process of law cannot move at a bullock cart pace in the age of information technology. Institutions have to upgrade with the latest technological developments. Fruits of technology have to be put in the service of the people. In the legal process technology can play a critical role in effectuating the fundamental rights of the citizens in particular, and in upholding the process of law in general. The State Government and the Bar are stakeholders in the matter. On behalf of the State, it has been submitted that the office of the Government Advocate does not have the infrastructure and trained personnel to accept and process e-notices of bail applications.

(X) Accordingly, the State Government is directed to ensure that requisite infrastructure and trained personnel in the High Court (Office of Government Advocate), as well as in police stations are available to process the traffic of notices by e-mail. The bail application/bail appeal may be served upon the Government Advocate by e-mail. In case the notice is fully accurate and contains all the relevant annexures, the said service by e-mail shall be sufficient service upon the State.

(XI) In the event of service of notice of bail application/bail appeal upon Government Advocate by e-mail, the time limit for effecting service of the said notice by the State upon the victim shall be 72 hours and not 96 hours. The bail application in such cases shall be placed before the Court in 144 hours/6 days.

(XII) The option of e-filing of notice of bail applications/bail appeals under the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, shall be made effective w.e.f. 01.05.2021.

VI. Review of Compliance of Directions

70. The Director General of Police shall create a State Level Committee headed by Officer not below than the rank of Additional Director General of Police. The aforesaid committee shall review the working and implementation of the above said directions, streamline procedures, study the possibility of further reducing the time period of notice of bail appeals/bail applications upon the victims, and also examine the action taken against the concerned officials for violating the directions.

71. The Committee shall submit its report on annual basis before the State Government and make appropriate recommendations.

72. Expeditious service of notice of bail application/bail appeal will give an early intimation about the said proceedings to the victim. By providing the victim with early information about the notice of bail proceedings, the rights of the victim under Section 15-A (3) of the Act will be realized.

73. The review of the implementation of the directions of the Court shall also assist the Government in framing appropriate schemes for the victim to access justice as contemplated in Section 15(11) of the Act read with Rule 14 of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1995. The provisions are extracted hereinunder for ease of reference:

"15(11). It shall be the duty of the concerned State to specify an appropriate scheme to ensure implementation of the following rights and entitlements of victims and witnesses in accessing justice so as--

(a) to provide a copy of the recorded First Information Report at free of cost;

(b) to provide immediate relief in cash or in kind to atrocity victims or their dependents;

(c) to provide necessary protection to the atrocity victims or their dependents, and witnesses;

(d) to provide relief in respect of death or injury or damage to property;

(e) to arrange food or water or clothing or shelter or medical aid or transport facilities or daily allowances to victims;

(f) to provide the maintenance expenses to the atrocity victims and their dependents;

(g) to provide the information about the rights of atrocity victims at the time of making complaints and registering the First Information Report;

(h) to provide the protection to atrocity victims or their dependents and witnesses from intimidation and harassment;

(i) to provide the information to atrocity victims or their dependents or associated organisations or individuals, on the status of investigation and charge sheet and to provide copy of the charge sheet at free of cost;

(j) to take necessary precautions at the time of medical examination;

(k) to provide information to atrocity victims or their dependents or associated organisations or individuals, regarding the relief amount;

(l) to provide information to atrocity victims or their dependents or associated organisations or individuals, in advance about the dates and place of investigation and trial;

(m) to give adequate briefing on the case and preparation for trial to atrocity victims or their dependents or associated organisations or individuals and to provide the legal aid for the said purpose;

(n) to execute the rights of atrocity victims or their dependents or associated organisations or individuals at every stage of the proceedings under this Act and to provide the necessary assistance for the execution of the rights (emphasis supplied)

Rule 14. Specific responsibility of the State Government.--(1) The State Government shall make necessary provisions in its annual budget for providing relief and rehabilitation facilities to the victims of atrocity, as well as for implementing an appropriate scheme for the rights and entitlements of victims and witnesses in accessing justice as specified in sub-section (11) of Section 15-A of Chapter IV-A of the Act.

(emphasis supplied)

(2). The State Government shall review at least twice in a calendar year, in the month of January and July the performance of the Special Public Prosecutor and Exclusive Special Public Prosecutor specified or appointed under Section 15 of the Act, various reports received, investigation made and preventive steps taken by the District Magistrate, Sub-Divisional magistrate and Superintendent of Police, relief and rehabilitation facilities provided to the victims and the reports in respect of lapses on behalf of the concerned officers.

VI. Consideration of Bail Application on merits:

74. Matter is taken up in the revised call.

75. The office report indicates that the notices have been served upon the victim. None appears on behalf of the victim. The bail application is being heard on its merit.

76. A first information report was lodged against the applicant as Case Crime No. 137 of 2020 at Police Station-Karkanda, District Ghazipur, on 12.05.2020 under Sections 354 I.P.C, read with Sections 3(1)Da, 3(1) Dha of SC/ST Act and Section 7/8 of POCSO Act.

77. The bail application of the applicant was rejected by learned Special Judge (POCSO Act)-1, Ghazipur, on 23.10.2020.

78. The applicant is in jail since 12.10.2020 pursuant to the said F.I.R.

79. Sri Ajeet Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant contends that the F.I.R. was lodged six days after the incident. The F.I.R. is a result of a trivial altercation between the adults of the family. The F.I.R. was lodged six days after much deliberation and with a view to falsely implicate the applicant. There are material contradictions in the statements of victim under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. There is no independent witness of the alleged incident. The school certificate relied to establish the age of the victim is a fabricated document. The applicant claims parity with the cases of other co-accused persons, namely, Sonu Chaudhary and Kishan Chaudhary, who have been granted bail by this Court on 02.11.2020 in Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 31204 of 2020 (Sonu Chaudhary and another Vs. State of U.P.). It is also asserted that apart from the above said case the applicant does not have any criminal history.

80. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the bail application.

81. The submissions on behalf of the applicant clearly make out a case for grant of bail. In the light of the preceding discussion and without making any observations on the merits of the case, the bail application is allowed.

82. Let the applicant- Ajeet Chaudhary be released on bail in Case Crime No. 137 of 2020 under Sections 354 and 506 I.P.C. read with Sections 3(2) (5)-A SC/ ST Act and 7/8 of POCSO Act, registered at Police Station- Karkanda, District Ghazipur, registered on 12.05.2020 at Police Station- Karkanda, District Ghazipur, on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court below. The following conditions be imposed in the interest of justice:-

(i) The applicant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(ii) The applicant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, without sufficient cause, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iii) In case, the applicant misuses the liberty of bail during trial and in order to secure his presence proclamation under Section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the applicant fails to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iv) The applicant shall remain present, in person, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court absence of the applicant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

(v) The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad.

(vi) The computer generated copy of such order shall be self attested by the counsel of the party concerned.

(vii) The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

Counsel for the Applicant:
Anurag Srivastava, Kabir Ahmad Khan

Counsel for the Opp. Parties:

(A) Contempt of Courts Act, 1971: Section 10 - The High Court can exercise the power under Section 10 of the Act of 1971 where there is no provision under the Criminal Procedure Code or the Code of Civil Procedure for execution of the orders or for compliance of such orders. In other words, where there is an effective remedy for enforcing the order then the High Court would be justified in declining to entertain the contempt petition. (Para 9)

In the instant case, an execution case has already been filed and the applicant has already got a remedy of having an order passed by the Prescribed Authority executed consequently the present contempt petition would not be maintainable. (Para 10)

Contempt Petition Rejected. (E-8)

List of Cases cited :-

E Bapanaiah Vs K.S. Raju (2015) 1 SCC 451 (followed)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Moin, J.)

1. Heard Sri Navneet Kumar Awasthi holding brief of Sri Anurag Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant.

2. Present contempt petition has been filed alleging non-compliance of the judgment dated 05.02.2016 passed in Rent Appeal No.45 of 2011 in re:West Watch Company vs. Mohd. Asif Naseer, a copy of which has been filed as Annexure-3 to the contempt petition.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant contends that the applicant who is a landlord had filed a suit before the Judge, Small Causes Court which was numbered as P.A. Case No.10 of 2008 in re: Mohd. Asif Naseer vs. West Watch Company, against the tenant West Watch Company. The said case was decided vide order dated 04.10.2011, a copy of which is Annexure-2 to the contempt petition, whereby the tenant was directed to vacate the premises within thirty days and certain other orders were also passed. The tenant being aggrieved with the said judgment filed Rent Appeal No.45 of 2011 in re: West Watch Company vs. Mohd. Asif Naseer, before the Additional District Judge, Lucknow, which was dismissed vide judgment and order dated 05.02.2016, a copy of which is Annexure-3 to the contempt petition.

4. The tenant still being aggrieved filed Writ Petition No.3457 (R/C) of 2016 in re: West Watch Company vs. Addl. District Judge before this Court, which was allowed vide judgment and order dated 04.03.2016, a copy of which is Annexure-4 to the contempt petition, and the orders of the Prescribed Authority dated 04.10.2011 and Additional District Judge dated 05.02.2016 were set-aside.

5. The applicant/landlord being aggrieved with the order dated 04.03.2016 filed a S.L.P. which was registered as Civil Appeal No.2375 of 2020 and the Apex Court vide judgment and order dated 24.04.2020 allowed the civil appeal and set-aside the judgment of the writ Court and affirmed the order passed by the Prescribed Authority as affirmed by the appellate authority. However, the tenant was given six months' time to vacate the premises.

6. When the premises were not vacated despite the order passed by the Apex Court as well as the Prescribed Authority, present petition has been filed under Section 10 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 (For short, 'Act of 1971') alleging contempt of the judgment and order dated 05.02.2016 passed in Rent Appeal No.45 of 2011.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant contends that he has already filed an Execution Case No.62 of 2020 against the tenant for execution of the order dated 04.10.2011 passed by the Prescribed Authority. He also contends that despite having filed the execution case, present contempt petition would also be maintainable under Section 10 of the Act of 1971.

8. Having heard learned counsel for the applicant and having perused the records, what is apparent is that the present contempt petition filed under Section 10 of the Act of 1971 despite admittedly an execution case having been filed by the applicant would not be maintainable as per law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of E. Bapanaiah vs. K.S. Raju reported in (2015) 1 SCC 451 wherein it has been held as under:-

"25. Powers of the High Courts to punish for contempt including the powers to punish for contempt of itself flow from Article 215 of the Constitution of India. Section 10 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 empowers the High Courts to punish contempts of its subordinate courts which reads as under: -

"10. Power of High Court to punish contempts of subordinate courts. - Every High Court shall have and exercise the same jurisdiction, powers and authority, in accordance with the same procedure and practice, in respect of contempts of courts subordinate to it as it has and exercises in respect of contempts of itself:

Provided that no High Court shall take cognizance of a contempt alleged to have been committed in respect of a court subordinate to it where such contempt is an offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860).

27. The present case relates to a civil contempt wherein an undertaking given to Company Law Board is breached. Normally, the general provisions made under the Contempt of Courts Act are not invoked by the High Courts for forcing a party to obey orders passed by its subordinate courts for the simple reason that there are provisions contained in Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 to get executed its orders and decrees. It is settled principle of law that where there are special law and general law, the provisions of special law would prevail over general law. As such, in normal circumstances a decree holder cannot take recourse of Contempt of Courts Act else it is sure to throw open a floodgate of litigation under contempt jurisdiction. It is not the object of the Contempt of Courts Act to make decree holders rush to the High Courts simply for the reason that the decree passed by the subordinate court is not obeyed." (Emphasis by this Court)

9. From perusal of the aforesaid judgment in the case of K.S. Raju (supra*), it is apparent that the power exercised by the High Court under Section 10 of the Act of 1971 can be exercised where there is no provision under the Criminal Procedure Code or the Code of Civil Procedure for execution of the orders or for compliance of such orders meaning thereby that where there is an effective remedy for enforcing the order then the High Court would be justified in declining to entertain the contempt petition.

10. In the instant case, it is admitted by learned counsel for the applicant that an execution case has already been filed by him. The Apex Court in the case of K.S. Raju (supra) has already held that a civil contempt can be filed under the provisions of Section 10 of the Act of 1971 where there is no remedy for having an order executed. As in the instant case it is admitted that an execution case has already been filed and the applicant has already got a remedy of having the order passed by the Prescribed Authority executed consequently the present contempt petition would not be maintainable.

11. Taking into consideration the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case, present contempt petition is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Virendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 374 (2) Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as Code) has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 20.01.2020, passed by VIth Additional Sessions Judge, Lakhimpur Kheri, in Sessions Trial No.207/1992 arising out of Case Crime No.71/90, Police Station-Phardhan, District-Kheri, whereby the appellants-Kamlesh Kumar and Chotey Lal (hereinafter referred to as appellants) have been convicted and sentenced for the offence under Section 304 (2) read with 34 I.P.C. for four years rigorous imprisonment each.

2. The prosecution case, in brief, is that the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar is son of the appellant-Chotey Lal, resident of Village-Rousa, P.S.-Fardhan, District-Lakhimpur Kheri. The deceased-Ram Avtar was neighbour to the appellants. There was enmity between the deceased-Ram Avtar and the appellants due to land dispute. On 22.05.1990 at about 2:00 p.m., Ram Kishore (P.W.-2), brother of the informant, Ram Kishan (P.W.-1) and Rajesh Kumar, son of Ram Avtar (deceased) had gone to take water from hand pump. At the time of occurrence, Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) was operating the hand pump and Rajesh Kumar was taking water with hollowed palm (Chhullu). Meanwhile, Sunita, daughter of the appellant-Chotey Lal, came there and put soil (dust) in the hollowed palm (Chullu) of Rajesh Kumar and thereafter hot talk started between them. Meanwhile, the appellants-Kamlesh Kumar, Chotey Lal and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) appeared with lathi and started to beat Rajesh Kumar and Ram Kishore (P.W.-2). Upon hearing a noise, Ram Avtar and Maya Devi (P.W.-3) came there to save Rajesh Kumar and Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) but the appellants and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) also beaten them. Appellant-Kamlesh Kumar attacked on the head of the deceased-Ram Avtar with lathi, whereby he fell down and became unconscious. The said occurrence was seen by Rama Kant son of Girija Dayal, Sarafat Ali son of Karim and Kanhaiya Lal son of Kunj Bihari, resident of Parsehra Khurd, P.S.-Neemgaon and when so many people raised alarm, the appellants and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) by threatening fled away from the place of occurrence towards their house.

3. Ram Kishan (P.W.-1) got the first information report (Ext.Ka-1), prepared by one Parmesh Chandra Tiwari and carried the injured persons including Ram Avtar by tractor to police station-Fardan and lodged the report. On the basis of the said information, case crime No.71 of 1990, under Sections-308, 323, 504 and 506 I.P.C. was registered on 22.05.1990 at 3:45 p.m. by Constable-Narendra Nath Tiwari. The injured persons, including the deceased-Ram Avtar were sent for medico legal examination and for treatment to District Hospital, Lakhimpur Kheri where Ram Avtar was admitted due to critical condition but he died after sometime. The medico legal examination of other injured person namely Rajesh Kumar and Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) and Maya Devi (P.W.-3) was conducted by Emergency Medical Officer on 23.05.1990 between 00:30 a.m. to 00:50 a.m. The death information report of the deceased was sent to concerned police station. S.I.-Munna Lal Bajpayee conducted the inquest proceeding and prepared the inquest report (Ext.-Ka-2) in the presence of punch witnesses including Ram Kishan (P.W.-1). The dead body of the deceased was sealed and was sent for post-mortem examination to District Hospital, Lakhimpur Kheri.

4. Dr. Y. B. Chand (P.W.-4) conducted the post-mortem examination of the deceased-Ram Avtar on 23.05.1990 at about 4:00 p.m. and prepared the post-mortem report (Ext.-Ka-3). According to him, the deceased was aged about forty years and had died one day before, rigor mortis passed off from both upper limbs and post-mortem staining was present on back of deceased. According to him further, the following ante mortem injury was found at the time of examination :

"(1) Lacerated would 1 c.m. x ½ cm x bone deep on the right side of the head 4 cm above to right eye brow.

5. According to P.W.-4, clotted blood was present around the bony part of the head of the deceased and both the temporal and parietal as well as occpital bones were fractured in many pieces ; membrane and brain tissues were lacerated. According to him, the said ante mortem injury would have been caused by blunt object i.e. lathi on 22.02.1990 at about 2:00 p.m. and deceased had died due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante mortem injuries.

6. After conclusion of the investigation, charge sheet was submitted against the appellants and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) by Investigating Officer, S.H.O.-Harpal Singh, under Sections-304, 323, 504 & 506 I.P.C., before the concerned Magistrate, who took the cognizance of the offence and since the offence was exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, after providing the copy of relevant police papers, as required under Section 207 of the Code, committed the case to the Court of Sessions, Lakhimpur Kheri for trial.

7. The learned trial Court after hearing the counsel for both the parties framed charges for the offence under Sections 304, 323, 504 and 506 I.P.C. against the appellants including the co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) from which they denied and claimed for trial.

8. The prosecution in order to prove its case, examined Ram Kishan (P.W.-1), Ram Kishore (P.W.-2), Maya Devi (P.W.-3) and Dr. Y. B. Chand (P.W.-4).

9. During trial, co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) had died and after conclusion of the trial, the statement of the appellants were recorded under Section 313 of the Code wherein they denied the prosecution story as well as evidence produced by the prosecution and stated that they are innocent and had been falsely implicated. They further stated that after purchasing the house and landed property by them from one Ram Chandra, uncle of the informant filed civil suit for the said property, which was decreed in favour of the appellants and due to that enmity, they had been falsely implicated.

10. Learned trial Court after hearing the learned counsel for both the parties and considering the material available on record, convicted and sentenced the appellants as above by the impugned judgment. Aggrieved by the said judgment, the appellants have preferred this appeal.

11. Heard Sri Sumit Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri G. D. Bhatt, learned A.G.A. for the State.

12. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the appellants are innocent and have been falsely implicated. Learned counsel further submitted that the scriber of F.I.R. was not examined by the prosecution. Learned counsel further submitted that alleged place of occurrence is surrounded by the Abadi where so many people were supposed to be present at the place of occurrence but none of the independent witnesses were examined by the prosecution. Learned counsel further submitted that doctor who examined the injuries of Ram avtar (deceased) before his death, injuries of P.W.-2 and P.W.-3, was not examined by the prosecution. Learned counsel further submitted that no allegation has been made against the appellant-Chotey Lal, his son and another co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) to cause any injury to the deceased but the trial Court has convicted the appellant-Chotey Lal also. Learned counsel further submitted that Investigating Officer has also not been produced by the prosecution and, as such, the appellants have been denied their valuable right to cross-examine the Investigating Officer. Learned counsel further submitted that the trial Court, without considering the evidence and material available on record, convicted the appellants in cursory manner and the impugned judgment is illegal and is liable to be set aside.

13. Per Contra, learned A.G.A., vehemently opposing the submissions made by the learned counsel for the appellants, has submitted that the occurrence was happened nearby the house of the prosecution witnesses, as such, the presence of prosecution witnesses, at the place of occurrence, is natural. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the first information report (Ext.Ka-1) was prepared by one Parmeshchandra Tiwari whose name has also been mentioned as scriber of the written report. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that there is no delay in lodging the F.I.R. as well as in medico legal examination and since the deceased had become unconscious at the time of occurrence and died during his treatment, his ante-mortem injury was proved by Dr. Y. B. Chand (P.W.-4), non examination of other medico legal expert, who had seen the injuries of the deceased, will not affect the prosecution story. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the prosecution case is supported by Ram Kishan (P.W.-1), Ram Kishore (P.W.-2), brothers of the deceased and Maya Devi (P.W.-3) wife of deceased whose presence at the time of occurrence were natural and reliable and only on the ground that no independent witness was examined by the prosecution, their testimony cannot be disbelieved. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the judgment passed by trial Court is well reasoned, well discussed and requires no interference, the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

14. I have considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for both the parties and perused the record.

15. Ram Kishan (P.W.-1) has stated that on the day of occurrence at about 2:00 p.m., Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) and Rajesh Kumar had gone to take water on public hand pump. Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) was operating hand pump and Rajesh Kumar was drinking water with hallowed palm (Chullu) and in the meantime, Sunita, daughter of appellant-Chotey Lal, came there and put dust in the palm (Chullu) of Rajesh Kumar which ensued to hot altercation between them. He further stated that thereafter the appellants-Kamlesh Kumar, Chotey Lal and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) appeared there with lathi and by hurling abuses, they started to beat Rajesh Kumar and Ram Kishore (P.W.-2). He further stated that his sister-in-law, (bhabhi) Maya Devi and brother-Ram Avtar (deceased) came there to intervene the dispute but all the appellants and other co-accused also beat them. He further stated that the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar had caused injury by lathi on the head of Ram Avtar (deceased), who became unconscious. He further stated that upon hearing the noise, Rama Kant, Srafat Ali and Kanhaiya came there but appellants and co-accused fled away. He further stated that after the occurrence, he carried the injured, by tractor-trolly of one Parmesh Chandra, to police station and got the written information (Ext.-Ka-1) prepared by Parmesh Chandra and after putting his signature, filed at concerned police station. He further stated that injured were carried to hospital for treatment where Ram Avtar (deceased) was admitted but died during his treatment. He further stated that inquest report (Ext.-Ka-2) was prepared in police station.

16. Ram Kishore (P.W.-2), supporting the prosecution story, as stated by Ram Kishan (P.W.-1) has also stated that at the time of occurrence, he was operating the public hand pump ; Rajesh Kumar was drinking water with hallowed palm (Chullu) and meanwhile, daughter of appellant-Chotey Lal came there from toilet and put her dirty palm in the plam of Rajesh Kumar which ensued hot altercation between them. Thereupon appellants-Chotey Lal, Kamlesh and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) came there and started to beat them by kicks and fits. He further stated that menawhile, his elder brother-Ram Avtar (deceased) and his sister-in-law, Maya Devi (P.W.-3) came there. He further stated that the appellants along with co-accused also beat them. He further stated that co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) had caused injury to him by lathi on his right arm and the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar had caused injury on head of the Ram Avtar (deceased) by lathi. He further stated that on hearing the noise, Ramakant, Parmesh Chandra, Saraft Ali and Kanhaiya also reached at the place of occurrence but the appellants and co-accused fled away from the place of occurrence. Stating that all injured persons were carried to police station by his brother-Ram Kishan (P.W.-1) where information was given and thereafter medico legal examination was also conducted at hospital, he further stated that Ram Avtar had died after 1-1/2 hours.

17. Maya Devi (P.W.-3), corroborating the prosecution story as stated by P.W.-1 and P.W.-2, has stated that on the hearing noise, when she reached with her husband (deceased) at public hand pump, she saw that the appellants-Kamlesh Kumar and Chotey Lal and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) were beating by lathi to her son Rajesh Kumar and brother-in-law (devar) Ram Kishore (P.W.-2). She further stated that meanwhile her another brother-in-law (devar), Ram Kishan (P.W.-1) also reached there and he was also beaten by the appellants and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased). She further stated that the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar had caused injury on the head of her husband (deceased) by lathi whereby he fell down and became unconscious. She also stated that the appellant-Chotey Lal slapped and beaten her by lathi. She further stated that her brother-in-law got the first information report (Ext.-Ka-1) written by one Parmesh Chandra and carried all injured persons including deceased to concerned police station where information was lodged and their injuries were examined but her husband died during his treatment.

18. Admittedly, in this case, neither Investigating Officer, who investigated the case nor constable who lodged the first information report on the basis of the written report (Ext.-Ka-1), filed by Ram Kishan (P.W.-1), was examined by the prosecution. The alleged occurrence was happended on 22.05.1990 at about 2:00 p.m. as stated by prosecution witnesses i.e. P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3. According to these witnesses, just after the occurrence they reached the concerned police station to lodge the F.I.R. and for medical treatment and the F.I.R. was lodged on same day. Inquest report (Ext.-Ka-2) was prepared on 23.05.1990 at about 12:30 a.m. wherein it had been specifically mentioned that the report of the said occurrence was lodged on 22.05.1990 at about 17:45 p.m. at police station Fardhan, District-Lakhimpur Kheri under Sections-308, 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. Thus, in this case, there is no delay in lodging the F.I.R. So far as the non examination of scriber of F.I.R. is concerned, it is well settled of law that if the prosecution case is supported by eye-witnesses and F.I.R. was lodged without any delay, the non examination of the scriber will not affect the veracity of the prosecution case.

19. So far as the submissions made by learned counsel for the appellants that the place of occurrence is surrounded by Abadi where so many people were supposed to be present at the place of occurrence but none of the independent witnesses were examined, is concerned, it is settled principle of law that testimony of relative witnesses, if their presence on spot are natural and their statement are trustworthy, should be preferred on the testimony of other witness, because relative witnesses do not implicate false person, leaving real culprit and if it is alleged by accused person, they have to show as why the prosecution witness has falsely implicating him by leaving real culprit.

20. It is very pertinent to quote at this very stage the law laid down in Masalti and others vs. State of U. P., AIR 1965 SC 202, wherein Court said as under :

".....But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. Often enough, where factions prevail in villages and murders are committed as a result of enmity between such factions, criminal Courts have to deal with evidence of a partisan type. The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how much evidence should be appreciated. Judicial approach has to be cautious in dealing with such evidence; but the plea that such evidence should be rejected because it is partisan cannot be accepted as correct....."

21. Similarly, in Mohabbat vs. State of M.P., (2009) 13 SCC 630, Court held as under :

".....Relationship is not a factor to affect credibility of a witness. It is more often than not a relation would not conceal actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the Court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible."

22. Now coming to the facts and circumstances of this case, in the first information report, it has been mentioned that at the time of occurrence, Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) was present with his nephew-Rajesh Kumar and Maya Devi (P.W.-3) and Ram Avtar (deceased) had also appeared to intervene the occurrence. It is also mentioned that hearing the noise, Ramakant, Ram Kishore (P.W.-2), Sarafat Ali and Kanhaiya Lal had also appeared at the place of occurrence and saw the occurrence. Ramakant, Sarafat Ali and kanhaiya Lal were not examined. Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) has stated that these witnesses had been influenced by the appellants for Rs.2000/- and were not willing to give evidence. During trial, Ram Kishan (P.W.-1), Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) and Maya Devi (P.W.-3) were examined as eye-witnesses. They are nearest relative i.e. brother and wife of deceased. Their presence at the place of occurrence cannot be said as unnatural. The occurrence was taken in broad day light near the house of these witnesses as well as appellants. These prosecution witnesses in their cross-examintaion had specifically stated that at the time of occurrence, they reached the place of occurrence and saw the occurrence. Nothing has been come out in their cross-examination which creates any doubt regarding their presence at the place of occurrence. It can not be expected that prosecution witness, leaving the real culprit of broad day light occurrence, would falsely implicate the other person for death of their nearest relative.

23. In my view in the light of law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Masalti (supra) and Mohabbat (supra), the testimony of prosecution witnesses cannot be discarded only on the ground that they are relative of the deceased and independent witnesses were not examined.

24. So far as the next argument of learned counsel for the appellants that medico legal expert, who examined the injuries of Ram Avtar (deceased) for the first time before his death was not examined, is concerned, Ram Kishan (P.W.-1) had stated that after the occurrence the injured were carried to hospital and Ram Avtar got admitted in hospital. In cross-examination, he had clearly stated that they had carried Ram Avtar to district-Lakhimpur (District headquarter) and reached there at 5:00-6:00 p.m. where the Ram Avtar had died after one hour. Record shows that after death of deceased Ram Avtar, his dead body was sent for post-mortem examination. Dr. V. K. Dixit (P.W.-4) conducted the post-mortem and stated that deceased had died due to head injuries, caused on 22.05.1990 at 2:00 p.m. Thus, the prosecution case, so far it relates with cause of death of deceased-Ram Avtar, is supported with medical evidence and there is force in the submission of learned counsel for appellants.

25. So far as the submission of learned counsel for the appellants regarding non examination of Investigating Officer, is concerned, in this case, the prosecution has failed to examine the Investigating Officer and other police officials. Record shows that application for summoning the Investigating Officer, filed by the prosecution, was rejected by the trial Court. Thus it can not be said that prosecution had knowingly failed to examine the Investigating Officer. It is settled principle of criminal jurisprudence that any particular or specific number of witness is not required to prove the prosecution case. Investigating Officer, in prosecution case, specially based on direct evidence of eyewitness, normally is only formal witness. His examination is necessary only in such cases where material contradiction has been occurred between the statement of witnesses, recorded during trial and their statement, under Section 161 of the Code, recorded by the Investigating Officer or where prosecution has relied on such evidence which was collected, recovered or observed by Investigating Officer himself during investigation and his non examination causes failure of justice or adverse effect to accused. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Behari Prasad and others vs. State of Bihar, 1996 SCC (Crl.) 271, where the prosecution case was in conformity with F.I.R. and medical evidence but Investigating Officer was not examined, has held as under :

".....In the facts of the case, it appears to us that the involvement of the accused in committing the murder has been clearly established by the evidences of the eyewitnesses. Such evidences are in conformity with the case made out in FIR and also with the medical evidence. Hence, for non-examination of Investigating Officer, the prosecution case should not fail. We may also indicate here that it will not be correct to contend that if an Investigating Officer is not examined in a case, such case should fail on the ground that the accused were deprived of the opportunity to effectively cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution and to bring out contradictions in their statements before the police. A case of prejudice likely to be suffered by an accused must depend on the facts of the case and no universal strait-jacket formula should be laid down that non-examination of Investigating Officer per se vitiates a criminal trial*. These appeals, therefore, fail and are dismissed. The appellants who have been released on bail should be taken into custody to serve out the sentence."* (Emphasis supplied)

26. Coming to the facts and circumstances of this case again, the prosecution case is based on direct ocular evidence of three eye-witnesses, whose presence on the place of occurrence were natural, and is also supported with medical evidence of P.W.-4. During their examination before trial Court, no material contradiction was put by defence counsel from their statement recorded under Section 161 of the Code. Furthermore, Investigating Officer had not collected or recovered any material evidence for prosecution case. Learned counsel for the appellants has failed to show that how the appellants had been prejudiced by non examination of Investigating Officer. Thus, the submission of learned counsel for the appellants has got no force.

27. Now the question arises whether the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case against both the appellants. In this case, the appellants along with another co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) were implicated in the said occurrence. Co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) had died during the trial. In first information report (Ext.-Ka-1) no specific role has been assigned to the appellant-Chhote Lal and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased). It has been alleged that both the appellants including co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) hurled abuses and beaten the Rajesh Kumar and Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) and when Ram Avtar (deceased) and his wife Maya Devi (P.W.-3) tried to intervene the occurrence, they were also beaten by them. Meanwhile, the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar caused fatal injury on the head of the deceased whereupon he fell down and became unconscious. It is also pertinent to note at this juncture that Rajesh Kumar was not examined by the prosecution and doctor who examined the injuries of Rajesh Kumar, Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) and Maya Devi (P.W.-3) was also not examined by the prosecution. Ram Kishan (P.W.-1), (informant) had neither received any injuries nor stated that the appellants and co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) had made any attempt to cause any injury to him. In cross-examination, he has clearly admitted that at the time of occurrence, he was at his house and upon hue and cry when he rushed to place of occurrence, saw that injured after receiving injuries were lying on the road. He has also stated that during the occurrence, fatal injury to deceased was caused by only appellant-Kamlesh Kumar. He also admitted that only one injury was caused on the head of the deceased except that no injury was caused to him (deceased). Ram Kishore (P.W.-2) in examination-in-chief, has not stated that the appellant-Chhotey Lal was carrying lathi. He did not specially state that appellant-Chhotey Lal had caused any injury to any person by lathi. Stating that appellants and co-accused Ram Vilas (since deceased) had beaten him by fits and kicks and co-accused-Ram Vilas had beaten him by lathi, he further stated that only the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar had caused injury on the head of the deceased whereupon he fell down and became unconscious. Maya Devi (P.W.-3), in her examination-in-chief, has stated that only the appellant-Chotely Lal had slapped and beaten by lathi to her. She has not stated on which part of the body the said injury was caused by the appellant-Chotey Lal. Although, she further stated that due to injury she became unconscious but no prosecution witness had stated that Maya Devi (P.W.-3) had received such grievous injury whereby she became unconscious. Thus, it is clear that there is serious contradiction between the statement of prosecution witnesses regarding the role of the appellant-Chotely Lal as no specific role has been assigned to him by the prosecution witnesses to cause injury by lathi. Admittedly, co-accused-Ram Vilas (since deceased) had died during trial. Both the appellants-Chhotey Lal and Kamlesh have been convicted under Section 304-II I.P.C. i.e. only for causing the death of deceased-Ram Avtar. None of them have been convicted and sentenced for offence under Sections-323 or 307 I.P.C. for causing any injuries to prosecution witnesses. The appellant-Chotey Lal is father of the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar and his presence, at the time of occurrence, to participate in the said occurrence and to cause the death of Ram Avtar (deceased) and to cause any injury to other prosecution witnesses is doubtful, particularly, when the prosecution has failed to prove the medico legal evidence (injury report) of injured prosecution witnesses. Thus, the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellant-Chotey Lal but in view of the facts and circumstances of this case, the prosecution has succeeded to prove its case against the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar who has been convicted and sentenced by the trial Court for offence under Section 304 (II) I.P.C. Thus, the conviction of the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar, requires no interference.

28. Now coming to the question of sentence, whether the sentence passed by the trial Court is just proper, or not ?.

29. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar has no criminal history and at the time of occurrence, he was just 25 years old and according to prosecution story, only one injury was caused to the deceased by the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar. Learned counsel further submitted that the occurrence was happened in the year 1990 i.e. thirty years ago and at present, he is aged about 55 years and therefore, a lenient view is required to be adopted in awarding the sentence to the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar.

30. The appellant-Kamlesh Kumar has been convicted for the offence under Section 304-II and sentenced for four years rigorous imprisonment.

31. From perusal of Section 304 II I.P.C., it transpires that accused convicted under Section 304 II I.P.C. may be sentenced for a term which may extend to ten years or with a fine or both.

32. In India no guidelines has been provided by the Legislature for determination of quantum of sentence. Judiciary, especially Hon'ble Supreme Court, has evolved the theory of proportionality in awarding the sentence, subject to minimum sentence provided by the Legislature. There are several factors, although not exhaustive, which may be taken into consideration for awarding quantum of sentence, for example; gravity and seriousness of offence, age and numbers of offenders, age and number of deceased including injured persons, nature of weapons used in offence, educational and social background of accused, nature of injuries caused to deceased or injured persons, criminal antecedents of accused, motive, cause or intention of offence, weapons carried by deceased or injured persons if any, injuries caused to accused person or any member of his side if any, and duration of pendency of trial or appeal.

33. It is settled principle of sentencing and penology that undue sympathy in awarding the sentence with accused is not required. The object of sentencing in criminal law should be to protect the society and also to deter the criminals by awarding appropriate sentence. In this regard Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed in State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Saleem @ Chamaru, AIR 2005 SC 3996 which is as under:-

"The Court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which the criminal and victim belong. The punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality with which the crime has been perpetrated, the enormity of the crime warranting public abhorrence and it should "respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal".

34. In Ramashraya Chakravarti vs. State of Madhya Pradesh AIR 1976 SC 392, reducing the sentence of young accused, aged about 30 years, convicted for offence under Section 409 I.P.C., from two years to one year, has observed as under:-

"In judging the adequacy of a sentence the nature of the offence, the. circumstances of its commission, the age and character of the offender, injury to individuals or to society, effect of the punishment on the offender, eye to correction and reformation of the offender, are some amongst many other factors which would be ordinarily taken into consideration by courts. Trial courts in this country already over-burdened with work have hardly any time to set apart for sentencing reflection. This aspect is missed or deliberately ignored by accused lest a possible plea for reduction of sentence may be considered as weakening his defence. In a good system of administration of criminal justice pre-sentence investigation may be of great sociological value. Through out the world humanitarianism is permeating into penology and the courts are expected to discharge their appropriate roles"

35. Admittedly, the occurrence was happened thirty years back in the year 1990 and in the statement, recorded in the year 2000, under Section 313 of the Code, the age of the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar was recorded as thirty five years. In addition to above, the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar, at the time of occurrence, had suddenly appeared without any premeditation with lathi and had caused only one blow on the head of the deceased. Learned counsel further submitted that the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar has no criminal history.

36. Looking into the facts and circumstances of the case, I am of the view that the conviction of the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar for the offence under Section 304-II requires no interference and is accordingly maintained. But in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Saleem @ Chamaru (supra) and Ramashraya (supra), the sentence of four years awarded to the appellant-Kamlesh Kumar for the said offence is reduced to a rigorous imprisonment of three years.

37. The appellant-Kamlesh Kumar is on bail. His bail bond is cancelled and sureties are discharged. He is directed to surrender forthwith before the concerned lower Court to serve out the aforesaid sentence. The period of sentence under gone by the appellant, shall be set off as per the provision of Section 428 of the Code.

38. So far as the appellant-Chhotey Lal is concerned, the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against him, therefore, he is acquitted. The impugned judgment so far it relates with conviction of appellant-Chhotey Lal is set aside. His bail bond is cancelled and sureties are discharged.

39. Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of the Code, appellant-Chhotey Lal is hereby directed forthwith to furnish a personal bond of a sum of Rs.20,000/- each and two reliable sureties each of the like amount before the trial Court, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against this judgment or for grant of leave, he, on receipt of notice thereof, shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

40. Appeal is partly allowed and the impugned judgment and order is modified to above extent.

41. Let a copy of this judgment along with lower court record be sent to the concerned trial Court for necessary information and compliance.

THE HON'BLE VIRENDRA KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 1450 of 2003

Satya Narain & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Raza Zaheer, R.U. Verma, S.P. Singh, Sheo Prakash Singh, Vijay Kumar Yadav

Counsel for the Respondent:
G.A.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- First Information Report- Ante- Timing- It is settled principle of law that first information report is the first version in the shape of complaint, lodged by the aggrieved persons at concerned police station, in order to get the investigating agency into motion and to take action against the guilty person. If it is lodged promptly without any unreasonable delay, it strengthen the prosecution story whereas if it is lodged after unreasonable and unexplained delay, it loses the veracity of the prosecution story.

Where the FIR is lodged belatedly and the delay is unexplained and unreasonable , it can be presumed by the court that the FIR is ante-timed but the same depends upon the facts of each case.

Admittedly the first information report is not in writing of the (P.W.-1), though, he was educated and was able to write the same-The contradiction between F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-1) and statements of these prosecution witnesses further creates doubt in the F.I.R. as well as prosecution story. The time of occurrence, including the time of lodging the F.I.R. is doubtful. It is ante-timed, hence, the prosecution story is doubtful.

An ante-timed FIR that fails to corroborate the testimony of the witnesses renders the story of the prosecution doubtful.

Admittedly no person had received any injury although the P.W.-1 had stated that two bombs were thrown upon them by the appellants and the bombs were fallen and exploded just 1-2 step away from him-Neither causing any injury to any person nor causing any damage to the crops in the field where (P.W.-1) was harvesting, further creates doubt in the prosecution story.

The oral testimony of the witnesses of the prosecution would be rendered doubtful where the same lacks corroboration from the medical evidence or other evidences.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 114(g)- Section 134- Withholding of vital evidence by the prosecution- presumption against- Witnesses are nephew, uncle and cousin of (P.W.-1). Their presence would be natural but the prosecution has neither produced them nor placed any justification for their non examination. Although the prosecution is not bound to produce so many prosecution witnesses and the prosecution case can succeed only on the evidence of a single witness if he is reliable, but non examination of such witnesses, without any justification whose presence at the time of occurrence was natural and examination such witnesses whose presence has been doubtful, further creates doubtful in the prosecution case- The prosecution has not examined the Investigating Officer who collected the sample of ashes of crops and residue of exploded bombs and further recovered ashes or residue of bombs were neither produced before the trial Court nor were sent for chemical examination to prove whether it was ashes of crops or not or whether it was residue of any exploded bombs. Failure of prosecution to produce such important evidence, further creates doubt in prosecution story.

Although it is the quality and not the quantity of evidence that is important but where the prosecution withholds vital evidence then the court may take an adverse inference against the prosecution.

Criminal Appeal allowed. (E-2)

Case law/ Judgements relied upon-

1. Mohan Lal Gehani Vs St. of M.P., AIR 1982 SC 839
2. Sudarshan Vs St. of Mah., 2014 Cri LJ 3232 (SC)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Virendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. The instant criminal appeal, under Section 374 (2) of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'Code'), has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 04.09.2003, passed by IInd Additional Sessions Judge, Faizabad in Sessions Trial No.26 of 2001, arising out of Case Crime No.123 of 1999, under Sections-307/504/506/435 and 427 I.P.C., P.S.-Tanda, District-Ambedkar Nagar, whereby the appellants-Satya Narain, Amarjeet, Pawan Kumar and Ashok Kumar (hereinafter referred to as appellants) have been convicted and sentenced for offence under Section 307 read with 34 I.P.C. for four years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.2000/- each and for offence under Section 435 read with 34 I.P.C. for two years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.1000/- each. It has been further directed that the appellants will have to undergo six months imprisonment for both the offences. All the sentences of the appellants will run concurrently.

2. The prosecution case, in brief, is that the informant (Ram Milan) (P.W.-1) and the appellants are resident of Village-Shapur Kurmaul, Police Station-Kotwali Tanda, District-Ambedkar Nagar and civil suits pertaining to agricultural land i.e. Gata Nos.1095, 1096, 1047, 1146, 1230, 1065, were pending between them to which both parties were claiming as Bhumidhar with transferable rights along with possession. On 05.05.1999, Ram Milan (P.W.-1) was harvesting his wheat crops since 6:00 a.m. along with his nephew-Devdhar, uncle-Ramashray and cousin-Ramajore. Meanwhile, the appellants-Satya Narain, Ashok Kumar, Pawan Kumar and Amarjeet came there at about 12:30 a.m. The appellants-Satya Narain and Amarjeet were carrying bombs, the appellant-Ashok Kumar was carrying a katta (countrymade pistol) whereas the appellant-Pawan Kumar was carrying lathi. Upon exhortation of the appellant-Pawan Kumar, all the appellants hurled abuses and threatened to kill Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and his family members who were harvesting the crops ; the appellants-Satya Narain and Amarjeet threw the bomb with intention to kill them ; and the appellant-Ashok Kumar fired with Katta (countrymade pistol). Hearing the explosion of bomb, firing of Katta (countrymade pistol) and alarm raised by the informant of his family members, Ram Daur (P.W.-2), Ram Charitra (P.W.-3) and Ramajore and so many co-villagers came there and saw the occurrence. The appellants fled away from the place of occurrence by setting ablaze the field of wheat and sugarcane crops. A typed written information (Ext.-Ka-1) was lodged by the informant (Ram Milan) (P.W.-1) at Police Station-Tanda at about 4:35 p.m. which was entered into General Diary (Ext.-Ka-3) by S.I., Sheetla Prasad Upadhyaya (P.W.-4), the then Head Constable, who registered Chik F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-2), as Case Crime No.123/99 under Sections-307, 435, 504, 506, 427 I.P.C., against the appellants.

3. Investigation of the case was handed over to S.I., Bhuvneshwar Prasad (not examined), who visited the place of occurrence, collected sample of exploded bomb and ashes, prepared its recovery memo (Ext.-Ka-4 and Ext.-Ka-5), prepared site plan (Ext.-Ka-6) and after conclusion of investigation, filed charge sheet (Ext.-Ka-7) against the appellants, for offence under Sections-307, 435, 504, 506, 427 I.P.C., before the concerned Magistrate, who took the cognizance of the offence and since the offence was exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, after providing the copy of relevant police papers as required under Section 207 of the Code, committed the case to the Court of Sessions, Faizabad for trial.

4. The learned trial Court framed charges for the offence under Sections 307 read with 34, 504, 506 and 435 I.P.C against the appellants to which they denied and claimed for trial.

5. The prosecution, in order to prove its case, examined Ram Milan (P.W.-1), Ram Daur (P.W.-2), Ram Charitra (P.W.-3), S.I. Sheetla Prasad Upadhyaya (P.W.-4) wherein P.W.-1 to P.W.-3 are witnesses of facts and P.W.4 is formal witnesses.

6. After conclusion of the prosecution evidence, the statement of the appellants were recorded under Section 313 of the Code wherein they denied the prosecution evidence alleging that they have been falsely implicated due to previous enmity.

7. After conclusion of the trial, learned trial Court convicted and sentenced the appellants as above by the impugned judgment. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment, the appellants have preferred this appeal.

8. Heard Sri Sheo Prakash Singh, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Brijendra Singh-I, learned A.G.A. for the State.

9. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the appellants are innocent and have been falsely implicated due to previous enmity of civil disputes. Learned counsel further submitted that all the witnesses are interested witnesses and were not present at the time of occurrence. Learned counsel further submitted that in the said occurrence, no injury was caused either to Ram Milan (P.W.-1) or his family members. Learned counsel further submitted that the alleged residue of exploded bomb was not sent for chemical examination in order to prove whether it was residue of exploded bomb or not. Learned counsel further submitted that the first information report (in short F.I.R.) was not written by any person and the same was prepared on type writer machine by typist which shows that the F.I.R. was ante-timed and was lodged after due consultation. Learned counsel further submitted that all the appellants are family members and are aged about 50-70 years having no criminal history. Learned counsel further submitted that the trial Court, without considering the material and evidence available on record, has passed the impugned judgment, which is against the settled principles of criminal jurisprudence and is liable to be set aside.

10. Per contra, learned A.G.A., vehemently opposing the submissions made by learned counsel for the appellants, has submitted that in this case, the F.I.R. was lodged without any delay and the prosecution case cannot be thrown only on the ground that the prosecution witnesses are relative of the informant. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that just twenty days before the said occurrence, an order for interim injunction against the appellants and in favour of the informant was passed by the concerned Court whereby the appellant had annoyed, set fire to crops of the informant and caused the alleged offence. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the appellants had not denied the factum of destruction of crops in their statement under Section 313 of the Code and it cannot be presumed that the informant by setting fire on his crops, would falsely implicate the appellants. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that the impugned judgment is well reasoned and well discussed having no infirmity and is liable to be affirmed.

11. I have considered the rival submissions made by both the parties and perused the record.

12. Admittedly, both the parties were belligerent at the time of occurrence in civil dispute pertaining the disputed land and the name of Ramashray, father of appellant-Satya Narain was recorded on the disputed land as Bhumidhar which was set aside by Deputy Director of Consolidation vide order dated 12.04.1999. In addition to above, the informant (P.W.-1) had also filed Civil Suit No.227 of 1999 (Ram Milan and others vs. Satyanarayan) wherein vide interim injunction order dated 15.04.1999, passed by Civil Judge (J.D.), Tanda, District-Ambedkar Nagar, the appellants were injected to interfere in the peaceful possession of informant. From perusal of two records, filed by the informant (P.W.-1) before the trial Court on 11.10.2002, it appears that before the order dated 12.04.1999, passed by Deputy Director of Consolidation, Faizabad, the appellants were recorded as tenure holder and whose name was deleted by the aforesaid order.

13. Ram Milan (P.W.-1) has stated that on 05.05.1999, he was harvesting his wheat crops which was situated 60-70 meters towards north of his house since 6'o clock with his nephew-Devdhar, uncle-Ramashray and cousin-Ram Ajor. Meanwhile, the appellants came there at about 12:30 p.m. The appellants-Satya Narain and Amarjeet were carrying bombs, the appellant-Ashok Kumar was carrying katta (countrymade pistol) and the appelant-Pawan Kumar was carrying lathi. He further stated that upon exhortation of the appellant-Pawan Kumar, all the appellants hurled abuses with intention to kill them ; the appellants, carrying bomb, threw upon them ; and the appellant-Ashok Kumar, carrying katta (countrymade pistol), fired upon them. He further stated that upon hearing the noise, Ram Charita (P.W.-3), Ram Daur (P.W.-2) and Ramajore (co-villager), who were also harvesting the field with him (P.W.-1) but had gone to drink water, reached there. He further stated that the appellants, by hurling abuses, reached at chak No.1230 wherein wheat crops was sown, they set fire around (charo taraf) by match box and also set fire in another chak no.1047, wherein wheat crops was also sown, and thereafter they fled away. He further stated that about 45 minutes was taken in extinguishing the fire and thereafter he went Tanda through pagdandi (footpath) by hiding his identity (lukte chipate), dictated a written report to one typist and after putting his signature on the typed written report (Ext.-Ka-1), he filed it at concerned police station. In cross-examination, he admitted that he had not shown the place of occurrence to Investigating Officer. He further admitted that after the occurrence, he did not go to concerned police station directly and after getting report typed, he appeared at concerned police station with typed report (Ext.-Ka-1). He further admitted that no person had received any injury in the said occurrence. He further admitted that there was enmity of civil dispute with the appellant regarding Chak Nos.1146, 1230, 1047, 1065, 1095, 1096 and 1134. He further admitted that he had not mentioned in the F.I.R. either number of disputed field or number of said field wherein the occurrence was taken place. He further admitted that at the time of occurrence, he had taken 2-5 steps back out from the place of occurrence but did not flee away from there. He further stated that the appellants had threw bomb from a distance of 20-21 meters which had fallen just one feet near to him. He denied the suggestion that after explosion of bombs, he fled away from the place of occurrence. Stating that firstly the appellant had set fire in wheat crops and thereafter sugarcane crops, he further admitted that the appellant had set fire from one side only. He further stated that he had not mentioned in the F.I.R. that he had gone at concerned police station by hiding (lukte chipate) his identity.

14. Ram Daur (P.W.-2) has stated that at the time of occurrence, he was threshing (dauri) his wheat crops since 10'o clock at his threshing floor (khaliyan), situated towards east of Ram Milan's (P.W.-1) chak. Stating that at the time of occurrence, Ram Milan (P.W.-1), Ramashreay and Devdhar were harvesting wheat crops in their chak, he further stated that at about 12:00 p.m. the appellants came there, the appellants-Satynarayan and Amarjeet threw bombs at Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and others family members, with intention to kill them and the appellant-Ashok Kumar fired Katta upon them but no one received any injury. He further stated that upon hearing the noise, he, Ram Charitra (P.W.-3) along with other people, reached there and thereafter the appellants fled away from the place of occurrence by setting fire in wheat crops and sugarcane crops situated east to place of occurrence. In cross-examination, he admitted that father of the appellants belong to his common ancestor. Stating that at the place of occurrence, he had seen that the appellants throwing the bomb and firing with katta (countrymade pistol), he further stated that he had seen the empty cartridges and residue of exploded bomb. Stating further that fire was set on only two chaks which expanded due to month of May (Chait month) in two other chaks also, he denied that fire was set from four side. He further admitted that the appellant had not fled away after throwing the bomb and firing with katta (countrymade pistol) even till the extinguishing the fire. Stating further that 1-1/2 hour would have been taken to extinguish the fire, he further stated that appellants fled away from the place of occurrence when people reached there. He further stated that Investigating Officer had come in the evening on the place of occurrence and after collecting the ashes, sutli and residue of exploded bomb, had taken his signature on a paper at 6:00-7:00 p.m.

15. Ram Charitra (P.W.-3)- has also stated that at the time of occurrence, Ram Milan (P.W.-1), Devdhar, Ramashray, Ramajore were harvesting their wheat crops and he was threshing wheat at his Khaliyan. Stating further that the appellants-Satyanarayan and Amarjeet, Ashok Kumar and Pawan Kumar appeared at about 12'o clock in the chak of Ram Milan, hurled abuses ; the appellant-Ashok Kumar fired with katta (countrymade pistol) ; the appellants-Satyanarayan and Amarjeet threw bomb upon Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and others with intention to kill them whereas the appellant-Pawan Kumar, carrying lathi, was exhorting. Stating that no injury was caused to any person, he further stated that Ram Daur (P.W.-2) also reached there and saw the occurrence. He further stated that as they arrived, the appellants fled away by setting fire in the wheat and sugarcane crops of Ram Milan (P.W.-1). In cross-examination, he admitted that 1-2 hours would have been taken in extinguishing the fire . He further admitted that after throwing the bomb and firing with katta (countrymade pistol), when the appellants set fire on crops, he (P.W.-3) reached there and thereafter the appellants fled away.

16. Sheetla Prasad Upadhyaya (P.W.-4) had stated that on 05.05.1999, he was posted as Head Constable at Police Station-Tanda, District-Ambedkar Nagar and entered the written information lodged by Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and registered a Criminal Case Crime No.123/1999 under Sections-307, 504, 435, 506 and 427 I.P.C. against the appellants. He also proved a recovery memo (Ext.-Ka-4 and Ext.-Ka-5), residue of exploded bomb, site plan of place of occurrence (Ext.-ka-6) and charge sheet (Ext.-Ka-7) filed by S.I.-Bhuvneshwar Prasad (Investigating Officer).

17. It is settled principle of law that first information report is the first version in the shape of complaint, lodged by the aggrieved persons at concerned police station, in order to get the investigating agency into motion and to take action against the guilty person. If it is lodged promptly without any unreasonable delay, it strengthen the prosecution story whereas if it is lodged after unreasonable and unexplained delay, it looses the veracity of the prosecution story. Sometimes it is seen that the first information report is lodged after much delay with due deliberation and consultation but in order to show the reliability of first information report, the time of lodging the F.I.R. is shown much earlier to its actual time because the first informant or his legal advisor or police personnel knew that delay in lodging the F.I.R., will destroy the reliability of the prosecution story. There is no settled criteria to determine as to whether the F.I.R. was anti timed or not and it varies to facts and circumstances of each case. For example, if the informant was educated and able to write the F.I.R. but instead of going to police station to lodge the F.I.R., he went to another place to consult and F.I.R. was prepared with the help of machine i.e. typewriter etc. and thereafter had gone to police station and from the fact and circumstances of the case, it appears that actual time between occurrence and time of lodging the F.I.R. was more than time shown by prosecution, similarly, if it is proved that name of accused or witness or any facts were not known to the informant at the time of lodging the F.I.R. and it had come after the time shown in lodging the F.I.R., it can be said that the F.I.R. was lodged by delay after the time, which was shown in lodging the F.I.R. by concealing such delay to avoid to give explanation.

18. Hon'ble Supreme Court, in Mohan Lal Gehani vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1982 SC 839 where the name of accused was not known to the informant till the time of lodging of F.I.R. and it came in knowledge, after the time mentioned in the F.I.R. but his name was shown in the first information report, held that prosecution story was not reliable as F.I.R. was ante time.

19. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sudarshan vs. State of Maharashtra, 2014 Cri LJ 3232 (SC) where the informant after the occurrence did not go to the police station to lodge the F.I.R. but went to an Advocate at a distance of 15 kms. from the place of occurrence, for consultation and the copy of F.I.R. was not sent to the concerned Magistrate, held the F.I.R. was anti-timed and the prosecution story was not reliable.

20. Coming to the facts of this case, admittedly the first information report is not in writing of the Ram Milan (P.W.-1), though, he was educated and was able to write the same. Stating that after the occurrence he had not gone directly to the concerned police station to make complaint or to lodge the F.I.R., he admitted that before approaching the concerned police station to lodge the F.I.R., he had approached a person to dictate him the occurrence and get written report typed and thereafter, putting his signature had gone to police station. Stating that said occurrence was started at about 12:30 p.m., he further stated that 45 minutes was taken to extinguishing the fire whereas Ram Daur (P.W.-2) and Ram Charitra (P.W.-3) have admitted that 1-1/2 hrs. would have been taken in extinguishing the fire.

21. From perusal of chik F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-2), it is clear that the place of occurrence is situated 5 kms. away from the concerned police station. Ram Milan (P.W.-1) has also stated that due to fear, he had not gone Tanda by road and he, by hiding (lukte chipate) his identity, had reached at Tanda through pagdandi (footpath). According to prosecution, the said occurrence was taken at about 12:30 p.m. in the month of May. Generally, during this period, summer temperature is presumed too high that people do not harvest wheat crops at this time, they usually start the harvesting at or before sunrise and conclude before 11-12'o clock in order to avoid heat stroke. In addition to above, if fire was set on four fields of wheat crops including sugarcane crops by the appellants which damaged the crops of worth Rs.5000-6000/- in the year 1999, it means that the fire was caught in huge area of the crops and the statement of prosecution witneses that the said fire was put off in only 45 minutes as stated by P.W.-1 or within one and half hour as stated by P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 is not reliable.

22. Further, in F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-1), it was mentioned by P.W.-1 that the appellants appeared at the place of occurrence and due to previous enmity of civil suits, they hurling abuses, threw bombs, whereupon Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and his family members, harvesting the crops, fled away from the place of occurrence, in order to save their lives and thereafter the appellant-Ashok Kumar fired with Katta (countrymade pistol). Thus, in the F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-1), it was not mentioned that only appellants-Amarjeet and Satya Narain were carrying bombs and Pawan Kumar was carrying lathi whereas all the eye-witnesses i.e. P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 had stated that only appellant-Amarjeet and Satya Narain were carrying bombs and the appellant-Pawan Kumar was carrying lathi. P.W.-1 further stated that after explosion of bombs, he had not fled away from the place of occurrence. The contradiction between F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-1) and statements of these prosecution witnesses further creates doubt in the F.I.R. as well as prosecution story.

23. In view of the above discussion, it appears that either the alleged wheat crops were put on fire at any time before the time, as alleged by the prosecution or the first information report was lodged after due consultation and deliberation and was not lodged on 05.05.1999 at about 16:15 p.m. rather it was lodged after the said time as mentioned in Ext.-Ka-2 and Ext.-ka-3. Thus, in my view, the time of occurrence, including the time of lodging the F.I.R. is doubtful. It is ante-timed, hence, the prosecution story is doubtful.

24. In addition to above, admittedly no person had received any injury although the P.W.-1 had stated that two bombs were thrown upon them by the appellants and the bombs were fallen and exploded just 1-2 step away from him. None of the prosecution witness stated that any fire was caught in the field wherein Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and his family members were harvesting the wheat crops. In my opinion, if the bombs were exploded just 1-2 feet away from Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and his family members wherein wheat crops was also lying, it would have either caused some serious injury to them or had damaged the wheat crops also. Neither causing any injury to any person nor causing any damage to the crops in the field where Ram Milan (P.W.-1) was harvesting, further creates doubt in the prosecution story.

25. In addition to above, in F.I.R. (Ext.-Ka-1) it has also been mentioned that upon hearing the noise, Ram Daur (P.W.-2), Ram Chaitra (P.W.-3) and one Ramajore came there and saw the occurrence. In this report, it has not been mentioned that these witnesses were harvesting the crops with Ram Milan (P.W.-1) whereas P.W.-1, during examination, stated that Ram Daur (P.W.-2) Ram Chaitra (P.W.-3) and Ramajore were harvesting the crops with him (P.W.-1) ; they had gone to drink water and upon hearing the noise, they came there and saw the occurrence but Ram Daur (P.W.-2) and Ram Charitra (P.W.-3) had stated that at the time of occurrence, they were threshing their own wheat crops at their threshing floor (khaliyan). Thus, the statement of P.W.-1, that Ram Daur (P.W.-2) and Ram Charitra (P.W.-3) were harvesting the crops with Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and at the time of occurrence, they had gone to drink water and upon hearing the noise come back, is contradictory to the statement of Ram Daur (P.W.-2) and Ram Charitra (P.W.-3) and also with the fact mentioned in F.I.R. which makes the prosecution case further doubtful in the present case where there is enmity between the appellants and Ram Milan (P.W.-1).

26. Further in the first information report (Ext.-Ka-1) it has been clearly mentioned that when the bombs were thrown by the appellants upon Ram Milan (P.W.-1) and his family members, P.W.-1 along with his family members fled away from the place of occurrence but P.W.-1 has stated that he had not fled away from the place of occurrence after the explosion of bomb. According to prosecution, Devdhar, Ramashray and Ramajore were also harvesting the wheat crops with Ram Milan (P.W.-1). These witnesses are nephew, uncle and cousin of Ram Milan (P.W.-1). Their presence would be natural but the prosecution has neither produced them nor placed any justification for their non examination. Although the prosecution is not bound to produce so many prosecution witnesses and the prosecution case can succeed only on the evidence of a single witness if he is reliable, but non examination of such witnesses, without any justification whose presence at the time of occurrence was natural and examination such witnesses whose presence has been doubtful, further creates doubtful in the prosecution case.

27. In addition to above, the prosecution has not examined the Investigating Officer who collected the sample of ashes of crops and residue of exploded bombs and further recovered ashes or residue of bombs were neither produced before the trial Court nor were sent for chemical examination to prove whether it was ashes of crops or not or whether it was residue of any exploded bombs. Failure of prosecution to produce such important evidence, further creates doubt in prosecution story.

28. In the light of above discussion, I am of the view that the prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. The impugned judgment and order passed by trial Court is liable to be set aside and the appellants are entitled to be acquitted.

29. I am, therefore, unable to uphold the conviction and sentence of the appellants. The impugned judgment and order, passed by the Trial Court, is accordingly set aside. The appellants are acquitted. Consequently appeal is allowed.

30. The appellants are on bail, their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged.

31. Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of the Code, appellants are hereby directed forthwith to furnish a personal bond of a sum of Rs.20,000/- each and two reliable sureties each of the like amount before the trial Court, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against this judgment or for grant of leave, appellants on receipt of notice thereof, shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

32. A copy of this judgment along with lower court record be sent to Trial Court by FAX for immediate compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rohit Ranjan Agarwal, J.)

1. In all these seven criminal revisions, application for recalling the final order passed by coordinate Bench of this Court has been moved on the ground that the same was passed due to non presence of the counsel for the revisionists, as such, all the matters are being heard and decided by a common order, and Criminal Revision No.1649 of 1989 is taken as the leading case.

2. In Criminal Revision No.1649 of 1989, the order dated 31.07.2019, which is sought to be recalled, is extracted here as under:

"1. Called in revise. None appeared to press this revision. In the circumstances, I myself have perused the record.

2. This criminal revision under Section 401 read with Section 397 Cr.P.C. has been filed aggrieved by judgment and order dated 04.07.1989 passed by 4th Additional Munsif Magistrate, Moradabad in Case No. 507 of 1988 convicting and sentencing revisionists under Sections 323/34 and 324/34 I.P.C. Thereagainst accused-revisionists preferred Criminal Appeal No. 83 of 1989 which has been dismissed by Sessions Judge, Moradabad vide judgment and order dated 08.11.1989. This revision has been filed challenging both the aforesaid orders.

3. Having gone through the record, I do not find any manifest error or otherwise illegality, procedural or otherwise, so as to justify interference in criminal revision.

4. Dismissed.

5. The revisionists Yaqoob Husain and Kamal Anwar are on bail. Their bail bonds and surety bonds are cancelled. The Chief Judicial Magistrate, Moradabad shall cause them to be arrested and lodged in jail to serve out sentence passed against them. The compliance shall be reported within two months.

6. Certify this judgment to the lower Court immediately."

3. In the recall application the ground taken is that the revisionist was enlarged on bail in the year 1989 and thereafter this case was looked after by his uncle who was in contact with the concerned advocate. As the counsel was designated as senior advocate, he lost in touch and the matter was finally decided on 31.07.2019. It is contended that the said order be recalled and the criminal revision be restored to its original number.

4. In other revisions, which are also decided on various dates in the absence of counsel, similar prayer has been made for recalling the order passed by coordinate Bench and the matter be restored for decision afresh.

5. On behalf of the applicants-revisionists Sri Sanjeev Pandey, Sri Sunil Kumar, Sri Awadhesh Prasad Pandey, Sri Girish Tiwari, Sri Akhilesh Tripathi, Ms. Sufia Saba and Sri Shiva Ji Singh Sisodiya, Advocates, appeared and advanced their submissions. Sri D.K. Srivastava, learned A.G.A. appeared for the State.

6. The sole question which emerges for consideration is, as to whether in view of bar of Section 362 Cr.P.C., the judgment or order rendered/passed by any coordinate Bench can be recalled though passed in the absence of counsel ?

7. Addressing on this question, Sri Sanjeev Pandey submitted that bar, as contained in Section 362 Cr.P.C., is in regard to altering or reviewing the judgment or order, while in the present case the revision was decided in absence of counsel, thus, it was not a judgment or order and it can be recalled, as no prayer for review or altering the judgment has been made.

8. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of the Apex Court in case of Asit Kumar Kar vs. State of West Bengal and Others (2009) 2 SCC 703. Relevant paras 7 and 8 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"6. There is a distinction between a petition under Article 32, a review petition and a recall petition. While in a review petition the Court considers on merits where there is an error apparent on the face of the record, in a recall petition the Court does not go into the merits but simply recalls an order which was passed without giving an opportunity of hearing to an affected party.

7. We are treating this petition under Article 32 as a recall petition because the order passed in the decision in All Bengal Excise Licensees' Association v. Raghabendra Singh and Ors. (2007) 11 SCC 374 cancelling certain licences was passed without giving opportunity of hearing to the persons who had been granted licences."

9. Reliance was also placed upon a decision in the case of Vishnu Agarwal vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and Another (2011) 14 SCC 813. Relevant para 6 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"6. In our opinion, Section 362 cannot be considered in a rigid and over technical manner to defeat the ends of justice. As Brahaspati has observed:

"Kevalam Shastram Ashritya Na Kartavyo Vinirnayah Yuktiheeney Vichare tu Dharmahaani Prajayate" which means:

The Court should not give its decision based only on the letter of the law.

For if the decision is wholly unreasonable, injustice will follow."

10. Reliance has also been placed upon decision of Santosh vs. State of U.P. (2009) 16 SCC 400. Relevant paras 2, 3 and 4 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"2. Though many points were urged in support of the application it is not necessary to go into those in detail.

3. While issuing notice on 7.11.2008 it was indicated that the matter may be remitted to the High Court for fresh hearing as the revision petition was dismissed in the absence of learned Counsel for the appellant. During the hearing of the application learned Counsel for the appellant indicated various reasons for which there was non appearance on the day the matter was taken up. That being so, it would be appropriate to set aside the impugned order and remit the matter to the High Court for a fresh consideration on merits.

4. To avoid unnecessary delay let the parties appear before the High Court on 24.3.2009 so that a date of hearing can be fixed. The Hon'ble Chief Justice of the High Court is requested to post the matter before an appropriate Bench. The appeal is allowed."

11. He next submitted that in case of Central Bureau of Investigation vs. State of U.P. and others 2015(11) ADJ 739, this Court relying upon decisions, cited above, recalled the order and restored the revision. Relevant part of the order are extracted here as under :

"In view of the aforesaid discussion this Court is of the firm view that Section 362 Cr.P.C. only bars a "review" of the order. It does not bar "recall" of any order specially if the order has been passed ex parte against the principle of natural justice.

Accordingly, the recall application is allowed. The order dated 7.3.2013 is recalled. List this matter alongwith Crl. Revision No. 3385 of 2008 (old Crl. Revision (Defective) No. 457 of 2008) before the appropriate bench in the next cause list."

12. Reliance has also been placed upon a decision in case of Mithai Lal vs. State of U.P. and others decided on 12.9.2008 wherein the recall application was allowed relying upon the decision of a Full Bench of this Court.

13. Sri Sunil Kumar, Advocate, adding further to the argument made by earlier counsel, submitted that in view of sub-section (2) of Section 401 Cr.P.C., no order under this section shall be made to the prejudice of the accused or other person unless he had an opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader in his own defence.

14. Thus reading Section 362 along with sub-section (2) of Section 401 Cr.P.C., though the power of altering or reviewing of the judgment does not vest with the Court once it is signed, but, the power of recall exist so as to give effect to sub-section (2) of Section 401 Cr.P.C. According to him, the decision by the Court in the absence of the counsel of the revisionist amounted to prejudice being caused to the accused and was in the teeth of sub-section (2) of Section 401 Cr.P.C.

15. Apart from making the said submission, no other submission was advanced while all the other counsel appearing on behalf of different parties endorsed the argument advanced by two counsels.

16. Sri D.K.Srivastava, learned A.G.A. while setting note for his argument placed before the Court judgment of Full Bench of this Court in the case of Raj Narain and others vs. The State AIR 1959 Allahabad 315, wherein by a majority view, it was held that the power to revoke, review, recall or alter its own earlier decision in a criminal revision and rehearing the same exist in the High Court, while the then Chief Justice Hon'ble O.H.Mootham gave his minority view that the power of review or recall does not exist.

17. Learned A.G.A. then submitted that the judgment in Raj Narain and others (supra) was considered by the Apex Court in case of State of Orissa vs. Ram Chander Agarwala and others (1979) 2 SCC 305 wherein the minority view of this Court was upheld and the Court held that High Court was not competent to review or revise its own judgment in view of the bar as contained in Section 369 Cr.P.C., as it was then. Relevant para 20 of the judgment are extracted here as under :

"Before concluding we will very briefly refer to cases of this Court cited by counsel on both sides. 1958 S.C.R. 1226 relates to the power of the High Court to cancel bail. The High Court took the view that under Section 561A of the Code, it had inherent power to cancel the bail, and finding that on the material produced before the Court it would not be safe to permit the appellant to be at large cancelled the bail, distinguishing the decision in 1945 Law Reports and 72 Indian Appeals (supra) and stated that the Privy Council was not called upon to consider the question about the inherent power of the High Court to cancel bail under Section 561A. In Sankatha Singh v. State of U.P. (1962) (2) Supp. 817, this Court held that Section 360 read with Section 424 of the CrPC specifically prohibits the altering or reviewing of its order by a court. The accused applied before a succeeding Sessions Judge for re-hearing of an appeal. The learned Judge was of the view that the appellate court had no power to review or restore an appeal which has been disposed of. The Supreme Court agreed with the view that the appellate court had no power to review or restore an appeal. this Court, expressing its opinion that the Sessions Court had no power to review or restore an appeal observed that a judgment, which does not comply with the requirements of Section 369 of the Code, may be liable to be set aside by a superior court but will not give the appellate court any power to' set it aside himself and rehear the appeal observing that "Section 369 read with Section 424 of the Code makes it clear that the appellate court is not to alter or review the judgment once signed, except for the purpose of correcting a clerical error. Reliance was placed on a decision of this Court in Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs W.B. v. Mohan Singh (supra) by Mr. Patel, learned Counsel for the respondent wherein it was held that rejection of a prior application for quashing is no bar for the High Court entertaining a subsequent application as quashing does not amount to review or revision. This decision instead of supporting the respondent clearly lays down, following Chopra's case (supra) that once a judgment has been pronounced by a High Court either in exercise of its appellate or its revisional jurisdiction, no review or revision can be entertained against that judgment as there are no provisions in the Criminal Procedure Code which would enable the High Court to review the same or to exercise revisional jurisdiction. This Court entertained the application for quashing the proceedings on the ground that a subsequent application to quash would not amount to review or revise an order made by the Court. The decision clearly lays down that a judgment of the High Court on appeal or revision cannot be reviewed or revised except in accordance with the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code. The provisions of Section 561A of the Code cannot be invoked for exercise of a power which is specifically prohibited by the Code."

18. Reliance was also placed in case of New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Krishna Kumar Pandey, Manu/SC/1923/2019 wherein the Apex Court while considering the scope of revisional jurisdiction under Section 397 Cr.P.C. and the bar of Section 362, held that High Court cannot venture to do something which it was not empowered to do and granted benefit where in the garb of correction, the judgment was modified. Relevant para 12 of the judgment are extracted herein as under :

"The case on hand is one where the Respondent secured an order from the High Court, behind the back of his employer that his conviction will not have an impact upon the service career of the Respondent. The High Court did not have the power to pass such an order. If at all, the High Court could have invoked, after convicting the Respondent, the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, so that the Respondent could take shelter, if eligible, Under Section 12 of the said Act. In this case, the High Court ventured to do something which it was not empowered to do. Therefore, the Respondent cannot take umbrage Under Section 362 of Code of Criminal Procedure. The second reason why the argument of the learned Senior Counsel for the Respondent is fallacious is that the Respondent himself was a beneficiary of what he is now accusing the Appellant of. As we have stated earlier, the criminal revision petition filed by the Respondent in Cr.R. No. 402 of 2012 was disposed of by the High Court by a judgment dated 29.06.2012. Thereafter the Respondent moved a Miscellaneous Application in Criminal case No. 8951 of 2012 purportedly for the correction of the order. There was neither an arithmetical nor a clerical error in the judgment of the High Court, warranting the invocation of Section 362 Code of Criminal Procedure. The Respondent cleverly borrowed the language of Section 362 Code of Criminal Procedure to affix a label to his petition and the High Court fell into the trap. After having invited an order, which, by the very same argument of the Respondent, could not have been passed, it is not open to the Respondent today to contend that there was no jurisdiction for the High Court to pass such an order. It is nothing but a case of pot calling the kettle black."

19. I have learned learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

20. The question, which has cropped up for consideration, as to the maintainability of recall application in view of bar of Section 362 Cr.P.C., had been under consideration for long time. The Apex Court as well as different High Courts had been constantly addressing and adjudicating on the question of bar of Section 362 Cr.P.C.

21. Before this Court, the controversy for the first time erupted before their Lordships in the year 1958 when the old Criminal Procedure Code was in existence and the question, which was referred to the Full Bench was,

"whether this Court has power to revoke, review, recall or alter its own earlier decision in a criminal revision and rehear the same? If so, in what circumstances?"

22. The Full Bench constituted in Raj Narain and others (supra) by a majority view, held as under :

"105. Our answer to the question referred is as follows:

1. That this Court has power to revoke, review, recall or alter its own earlier decision in a criminal revision and rehear the same.

2. That this can be done only in cases failing under one or the other of the three conditions mentioned in Section 561-A, namely:

(i) for the purpose of giving effect to any order passed under the Code of Criminal Procedure;

(ii) for the purpose of preventing abuse of the process of any Court;

(iii) for otherwise securing the ends of justice."

23. While Chief Justice Mootham was of the view that as soon as a judgment in a criminal revision is signed and sealed, Court becomes functus officio and has no power to revoke, review, recall or alter the order it has already made. Relevant para 16 of the judgment in Raj Narain and others (supra) is extracted here as under :

"In all these cases there is, I think, as assumption, express or implied, that the provisions of the Code are subject to S. 561A. That assumption, for reasons which I have, endeavoured to state, I think to be unfounded. In my opinion this Court, as soon as its judgment in a criminal revision case has been signed and sealed, becomes functus officio and has no power to revoke, review, recall or alter the order it has already made. I assume of course that that order was made in the exercise of its jurisdiction: if for any reason the Court makes an order without jurisdiction that order or judgment is a nullity and the application in which it was made must be reheard."

24. While deciding a similar controversy, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Orissa vs. Ram Chander Agarwala and others (supra) while considering the scope of Section 369 Cr.P.C., as it was then, upheld the minority view of Chief Justice Mootham and held that once judgment was pronounced by High Court either in exercise of appellate or revisional jurisdiction, no review or revision can be entertained against that judgment as there is no provision in the Criminal Procedure Code.

25. In case of Chandrabali and another vs. State 1979 Cri.L.J. 1218, the Division Bench of this Court had a occasion to consider the scope of Section 362 (Section 369 of old Act) and held as under :

"8. It may be pointed out that even if there was any ambiguity regarding the applicability of Section 369 of the Code to judgments passed by this Court the same has been completely removed by the provision made in Section 362 of the new Code viz. Cr. P.C. 1973. Section 352 of the new Code provides as follows:

"Save as otherwise provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no court, when it has signed its judgment or final order disposing of a case, shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error."

Section 369 of the old Code provided as follows:

"Save as otherwise provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, or in the case of a High Court, by the Letters Patent or other instrument constituting such High Court, no court when it has signed its judgment, shall alter or review the same, except to correct a clerical error."

"Thus under Section 362 of the new Code a judgment which has been signed can be altered or reviewed only for correcting a clerical or arithmetical error. No such error has been pointed out in present petition and, therefore, the judgment passed by Hon'ble S.K. Kaul, J. cannot be altered, reviewed or substituted. The same view was taken by V.N. Varma. J. in Badri Prasad Rastogi v. State of U.P. 1979 All LJ 59 we are in respectful agreement with the view taken by the learned Judge.

9. We may also point out that in the Full Bench case of Raj Narain (supra) it was observed in the majority judgment that Section 561 A, did not authorise this Court to rehear a case where the applicant or appellant was not heard due to some fault of his or his counsel. Thus the applicant cannot gel any assistance even from the majority judgment in Raj Narain's case (supra) which on this point has not been overruled by their Lordships of the Supreme Court. Thus the applicant in the case on hand will not be entitled to claim rehearing even if we were to hold that the applicant could invoke inherent jurisdiction of this Court reserved under Section 482 of the Cr. P.C."

26. In case of Smt. Sooraj Devi vs. Pyare Lal & Another (1981) 1 SCC 500 the Apex Court while considering the scope of Section 482 Cr.P.C. and bar imposed by Section 362 Cr.P.C. held that attempt to invoke that power can be of no avail. Relevant para 5 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"The appellant points out that he invoked the inherent power of the High Court saved by Section 482 of the Code and that notwithstanding the prohibition imposed by Section 362 the High Court had power to grant relief. Sankatha Singh v. State of U.P. AIR1962SC1208 . It is true that the prohibition in Section 362 against the Court altering or reviewing its judgment is subject to what is "otherwise provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force". Those words, however, refer to those provisions only where the Court has been expressly authorised by the Code or other law to alter or review its judgment. The inherent power of the Court is not contemplated by the saving provision contained in Section 362 and, therefore, the attempt to invoke that power can be of no avail."

27. Similarly in Hari Singh Mann vs. Harbhajan Singh Bajwa and others (2001) 1 SCC 169 the Apex Court while considering the scope of Section 362 Cr.P.C., held as under :

"10. Section 362 of the Code mandates that no Court, when it has signed its judgment or final order disposing of a case shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error. The Section is based on an acknowledge principle of law that once a matter is finally disposed of by a Court, the said Court in the absence of a specific statutory provision become functus officio and disentitled to entertain a fresh prayer for the same relief unless the former order of final disposal is set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction in a manner prescribed by law. The court becomes functus officio the moment the official order disposing of a case is signed. Such an order cannot be altered except to the extent of correcting a clerical or arithmetical error. The reliance of the respondent on Talab Haji Hussain's case (supra) is misconceived. Even in that case it was pointed that inherent powers conferred on High Courts under Section 561A (Section 482 of the new Code) has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only where such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself. It is not disputed that the petition filed under Section 482 of the Code had been finally disposed of by the High Court on 7-1-1999. The new Section 362 of the Code which was drafted keeping in view the recommendations of the 41st Report of the law Commission and the Joint Select Committees appointed for the purpose, has extended the bar of review not only to the judgment but also to the final orders other than the judgment."

28. It has been constant view of the Apex Court that only a clerical or arithmetical error can be corrected and no more, in view of bar of Section 362 Cr.P.C. The same view was reiterated in State of Kerala vs. M.M.Manikantan Nair (2001) 4 SCC 752. Relevant para 6 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"The Code of Criminal Procedure does not authorise the High Court to review its judgment or order passed either in exercise of its appellate, revisional or original jurisdiction. Section 362 of the Code prohibits the court after it has signed its judgment or final order disposing a case from altering or reviewing the said judgment or order except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error. This prohibition is complete and no criminal court can review its own judgment or order after it is signed. By the first order dated 31.05.2000, the High Court rejected the prayer of the respondent for quashing the criminal proceeding. This order attained its finality. By the impugned order, the High Court reversed its earlier order and quashed the criminal proceeding for want of proper sanction. By no stretch of imagination it can be said that by the impugned order the High Court only corrected any clerical or arithmetical error. In fact the impugned order is an order of review, as the earlier order was reversed, which could not have been done as there is no such provision under the Code of Criminal Procedure, but there is an interdict against it."

29. Similarly, in R.Annapurna vs. Ramadugu Anantha Krishna Sastry and others (2002) 10 SCC 401, the Apex Court had held that High Court had no power to recall or review its own order. Relevant para 5 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"When appellant came to know of the said order, she moved the High Court with a prayer to recall the said order, but that was dismissed on the premise that the High Court has no power to recall or review its own order. To that extent, the High Court was correct. Hence, the special leave filed by the appellant challenging the order passed on the recall petition SLP (Crl.) No. 976/1998 has been dismissed by us."

30. Similar view was taken in State Represented by DSP, SB CID, Chennai vs. K.V. Rajendran and others (2008) 8 SCC 673. Relevant para 5 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"22. As noted hereinearlier, Section 362 of the Code prohibits reopening of a final order except in the cases of clerical or arithmetical errors. Such being the position and in view of the expressed prohibition in the Code itself in the form of Section 362, exercise of power under Section 482 of the Code cannot be exercised to reopen or alter an order disposing of a petition decided on merits.

25. As noted hereinearlier, Section 362 of the Code prohibits a Court from making alternation in a judgment after the final order or Judgment was signed by the Court disposing of the case finally except to correct clerical or arithmetical errors. In our view, therefore, Section 362 of the Code cannot apply in the facts and circumstances of the present case. There was no clerical or arithmetical error in the order."

31. In Sunita Jain vs. Pawan Kumar Jain and others (2008) 2 SCC 705 the Apex Court held as under :

"31. The section makes it clear that a Court cannot alter or review its judgment or final order after it is signed except to correct clerical or arithmetical error. The scheme of the Code, in our judgment, is clear that as a general rule, as soon as the judgment is pronounced or order is made by a Court, it becomes functus officio (ceases to have control over the case) and has no power to review, override, alter or interfere with it.

32. No doubt, the section starts with the words "Save as otherwise provided by this Code". Thus, if the Code provides for alteration, such power can be exercised. For instance, Sub-section (2) of Section 127. But in absence of express power, alteration or modification of judgment or order is not permissible.

33. It is also well settled that power of review is not an inherent power and must be conferred on a Court by a specific or express provision to that effect. (Vide Patel Narshi Thakershi and Ors. v. Shri Pradyumansinghji Arjunsinghji (1971) 3 SCC 844). No power of review has been conferred by the Code on a Criminal Court and it cannot review an order passed or judgment pronounced."

32. In Surya Baksh Singh vs. State of Uttar Pradesh (2014) 14 SCC 222, the Apex Court while laying down guidelines, had held that High Court cannot dismiss an appeal for non prosecution simplicitor without examining the merits. Their Lordships further held that the Court is not bound to adjourn the matter if both the appellant or his counsel/lawyer are absent. Further Court can dispose of the appeal after perusing the record and judgment of the trial court, and also if the case is decided on merits in the absence of the appellant, the higher Court is the remedy in the situation. Relevant para 24 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"It seems to us that it is necessary for the Appellate Court which is confronted with the absence of the convict as well as his Counsel, to immediately proceed against the persons who stood surety at the time when the convict was granted bail, as this may lead to his discovery and production in Court. If even this exercise fails to locate and bring forth the convict, the Appellate Court is empowered to dismiss the appeal. We fully and respectfully concur with the recent elucidation of the law, profound yet perspicuous, in K.S. Panduranga v. State of Karnataka (2013) 3 SCC 721. After a comprehensive analysis of previous decisions our learned Brother had distilled the legal position into six propositions: (SCC p.734, para 19)

*"19.1.that the High Court cannot dismiss an appeal for non-prosecution simpliciter without examining the merits;

*19.2. that the Court is not bound to adjourn the matter if both the Appellant or his Counsel/lawyer are absent;

*19.3. that the Court may, as a matter of prudence or indulgence, adjourn the matter but it is not bound to do so;

*19.4. that it can dispose of the appeal after perusing the record and judgment of the trial court.

19.5. That if the accused is in jail and cannot, on his own, come to court, it would be advisable to adjourn the case and fix another date to facilitate the appearance of the Appellant-accused if his lawyer is not present, and if the lawyer is absent and the court deems it appropriate to appoint a lawyer at the State expense to assist it, nothing in law would preclude the court from doing so; and

*19.6. That if the case is decided on merits in the absence of the Appellant, the higher court can remedy the situation."

33. In case of Mohammed Zakir vs. Shabana and Ors. (2018) 15 SCC 316, the Apex Court held that however patent error is there, the order can only be corrected in the process known to law and not under Section 362 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Relevant para 4 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"The High Court should not have exercised the power Under Section 362 Code of Criminal Procedure for a correction on merits. However patently erroneous the earlier order be, it can only be corrected in the process known to law and not Under Section 362 Code of Criminal Procedure The whole purpose of Section 362 Code of Criminal Procedure is only to correct a clerical or arithmetical error. What the High Court sought to do in the impugned order is not to correct a clerical or arithmetical error; it sought to rehear the matter on merits, since, according to the learned Judge, the earlier order was patently erroneous. That is impermissible under law. Accordingly, we set aside the impugned order dated 28.04.2017."

34. In a recent decision in case of Sanjeev Kapoor vs. Chandana Kapoor & Ors. AIR 2020 SC 1064, His Lordship Ashok Bhushan, J. while dealing with the bar of Section 362 held as under :

"18. The Legislative Scheme as delineated by Section 369 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, as well as Legislative Scheme as delineated by Section 362 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 is one and the same. The embargo put on the criminal court to alter or review its judgment is with a purpose and object. The judgments of this Court as noted above, summarised the law to the effect that criminal justice delivery system does not cloth criminal court with power to alter or review the judgment or final order disposing the case except to correct the clerical or arithmetical error. After the judgment delivered by a criminal Court or passing final order disposing the case the Court becomes functus officio and any mistake or glaring omission is left to be corrected only by appropriate forum in accordance with law.

35. During the course of argument a recent judgment dated 16.11.2020 rendered by Hon'ble Apex Court in Criminal Appeal Nos.750-751 of 2020 Parveen vs. State of Harayana was placed, where a criminal revision was dismissed for want of prosecution and not on merit, and their Lordships were of the view that a revision cannot be dismissed in default and the same was restored to its original number. Relevant paras 7 and 8 of the judgment are extracted here as under :

"7. The High Court, in our view, was manifestly in error in rejecting the revision in default, on the ground that the appellant's advocate had remained absent on the previous four occasions. Since the revision before the High Court arose out of an order of the conviction under the Arms Act, the High Court ought to have appointed an Amicus Curiae in the absence of counsel, who has been engaged by the Legal Services Authority, Rohtak. The liberty of a citizen cannot be taken away in this manner.

8. In the circumstances, we are of the view that it would be appropriate to allow this appeal and set aside the impugned orders of the High Court dated 11 February 2020 and 16 July 2020. CRR No.1316 of 2018 is restored to the file of the High Court. Since during the pendency of the Special Leave Petition, the appellant was admitted to bail by this court and the appellant was on bail during the pendency of the revision before the High Court, the order enlarging the appellant on bail shall continue to remain in operation pending the disposal of the revision by the High Court. The appellant shall cooperate in the disposal of the revision."

36. Coordinate Bench of this Court in Criminal Revision No.2930 of 2012 (Smt. Farhana vs. State of U.P. and Another) vide order dated 02.4.2019 had held once an order was signed by the Court disposing of a case, no Court shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error.

37. Tracing out the legislative history of an enactment in the earlier Code, Section 369 was similar to Section 362 of the present Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. The minority view taken by the Full Bench of this Court in Raj Narain and others (supra) was upheld by the Supreme Court in case of State of Orissa vs. Ram Chander Agarwala and others (supra) and since then it has been constant view of the Apex Court that once the judgment or order is pronounced and signed by the Court, it becomes functus officio and the power is only limited to the correction of clerical and arithmetical error and nothing beyond that.

38. Recalling the order would amount to setting aside the earlier order passed by the coordinate Bench and restoring the case for rehearing afresh. Reliance placed by the learned counsels representing revisionists upon decision in case of Asit Kumar Kar (supra) was in relation to writ petition filed under Article 32 of the Constitution of India, wherein their Lordships of Supreme Court held that there was a distinction between a petition under Article 32, a review petition and a recall while the present recall applications had been filed in criminal revisions, wherein final orders have passed on merits by the Court after perusal of the records and application of mind, though the counsel for the revisionist in respective cases were not present. The order itself indicates that the Judge had perused the record and after going through the same, passed the judgment. Recalling the order would amount to reviewing/rehearing the same. Thus, the case relied upon is of no help.

39. Now coming to the case of Vishnu Agarwal (supra) relied upon by the revisionists, from the perusal of the same it appears that relying upon the decision of Asit Kumar Kar (supra) the Court had recalled the order. The Supreme Court in case of Surya Baksh Singh (supra) had clearly laid down the legal position into six proposition wherein it is provided that Court is not bound to adjourn the matter if both the appellant or his counsel/lawyer are absent. Further the Court after perusing the records and judgment of Trial Court can dispose of the case. Lastly, it was propounded that if the case is decided on merits, in the absence of appellant, the higher Court can remedy the situation.

40. Thus in all the cases before this Court, the Court had proceeded to decide after going through the records as mandated in the above case, and passed judgment in the absence of counsel for the revisionists. Now the only remedy left, as per the decision of Surya Baksh Singh (supra), is of approaching the higher Court and no recall application is maintainable before this Court for remedifying the situation.

41. The argument raised as to sub-section (2) of Section 401 Cr.P.C. as to prejudice being caused to accused as he did not have opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader in his own defence is of no avail, as the Apex Court had in depth dealt with such situation where matters are being placed on Board and no one turns up to press the same and had laid down guidelines in case of Surya Baksh Singh (supra).

42. The Apex Court in K.S.Panduranga vs. State of Karnataka (2013) 3 SCC 721 had even held that it is not obligatory on the part of Appellate Court in all circumstances to appoint amicus curiae in a criminal appeal to argue on behalf of accused. Relevant para 15 of the judgment is extracted here as under :

"On a studied perusal of the said decision, it is noticeable that the Court has stated about the role of the lawyer and the role of the Bar Association in the backdrop of professional ethics and norms of the Constitution. It has been categorically held therein that the professional ethics require that a lawyer cannot refuse a brief, provided a client is willing to pay his fee and the lawyer is not otherwise engaged and, therefore, no Bar Association can pass a resolution to the effect that none of its members will appear for a particular accused whether on the ground that he is a policeman or on the ground that he is a suspected terrorist. We are disposed to think that in Mohd. Sukur Ali (supra), the aforesaid case was cited only to highlight the role of the Bar and the ethicality of the lawyers. It does not flow from the said pronouncement that it is obligatory on the part of the Appellate Court in all circumstances to engage amicus curiae in a criminal appeal to argue on behalf of the accused failing which the judgment rendered by the High Court would be absolutely unsustainable."

43. Simply because the counsels had not appeared in the revised call, the decision rendered by the coordinate Bench after perusing the record cannot be rendered otiose and the order cannot be recalled. Bar expressed under Section 362 Cr.P.C. is clear, that once the Court had signed its judgment or final order, disposing of a case, it shall not alter or review the same except to correct clerical or arithmetical error.

44. This bar has been provided by the legislature intentionally so as to put a safeguard that the final judgment and orders are not altered or reviewed now and then. Apex Court has also felt that if any leverage is granted and the orders are permitted to be recalled on the ground of absence of counsels, it would cause great chaos and thus has propounded six legal propositions wherein the Courts can decide the cases in absence of counsel only after perusal of record and the same can be remedified only by the higher Court.

45. Thus, in view of the law laid down by the Apex Court, no judgment or order can be altered, reviewed or recalled in view of bar under Section 362 Cr.P.C.

46. In the result, all the recall applications are hereby rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This is a habeas corpus writ petition effectively brought by Ram Kumar Gupta in the name of his son Anmol Shivhare, complaining that his minor son aforesaid is in the unlawful custody of Smt. Sanyogita @ Gunja, the minor's mother. He prays that the minor be ordered to be produced before this Court and emancipated in the manner that his custody be entrusted to Ram Kumar Gupta, relieving the minor from the mother's custody.

2. This petition was admitted to hearing on 04.11.2020 and a rule nisi was issued, ordering the minor to be produced before this Court on 17.11.2020. The minor was produced before this Court as ordered. On the date of return, the minor's father, Ram Kumar Gupta and the minor's mother, Smt. Sanyogita @ Gunja also appeared in compliance with the Court's direction to that effect, carried in the order dated 04.11.2020. The Court has interacted with the minor Anmol Shivhare, his mother Sanyogita @ Gunja and the minor's father, Ram Kumar Gupta.

3. Heard Sri R.K. Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Smt. Sanyogita who appeared in person.

4. Smt. Sanyogita, on being specifically asked, if she has instructed a counsel to represent her, declined and addressed the Court herself.

5. In answer to the rule nisi, no return in the form of a counter affidavit has been filed by or on behalf of Sanyogita @ Gunja, respondent no. 5. Thus, the facts before the Court are those that figure in the writ petition and the others the Court has gathered from the parties while interacting with them during hearing.

6. The facts are that Ram Kumar Gupta and Sanyogita were married according to Hindu rites on 8th December, 2009 at Kanpur Nagar. After marriage, Sanyogita came over to her matrimonial home and the two parties cohabited as man and wife. In time, a son was born to the parties. He was born on 07.08.2015. His name is Anmol Shivhare. Ram Kumar Gupta left his native place for Gurgaon, Haryana in search of better prospects to earn his livelihood. He landed in a private job there. He set up residence at Mohammadpur, Sector 37, Gurugram (earlier called Gurgaon), Haryana. Once established there, Gupta invited his wife along with his young son to stay there. The family moved together and settled at Gurugram. The minor, Anmol was admitted to a certain Divya Niketan Public School, Mohammadpur Jharsa, Gurugram, Haryana. He was enrolled in Class-1. The family were living a peaceful life or so it was thought by Gupta.

7. It is said in the writ petition by Gupta that all of a sudden, on 03.10.2019, Sanyogita went away somewhere taking along the parties' minor son, Anmol. Gupta lodged a first information report on 04.10.2019 at Police Station Sector 37, Gurugram. It was registered as Case Crime No. 295 of 2019, under Section 346 I.P.C. The Police investigated the matter. They found that Sanyogita along with the minor son of parties was staying with one Balram s/o Memwar Singh, a resident of Lahrauli Gate, Police Station Baldeo, District Mathura. The police from Gurugram came over to Police Station Baldeo, District Mathura and Sanyogita was called over. Her statement was recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. She was, thereafter, produced before the Magistrate so that her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. could be recorded. She said in both her statements that she had married Balram and also produced a marriage certificate dated 22.05.2018 from the Arya Samaj, Block Khera, Firozabad. A copy of that certificate is available on the record of this petition. The police on the basis of Sanyogita's statements under Section 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. submitted a final report to the Magistrate concerned, proposing closure of the investigation. Gupta, however, says that Sanyogita's marriage to Balram is a nullity because it is a second marriage in the lifetime of her husband. Apparently, she has not secured any kind of dissolution of her marriage with Gupta. She has not secured a decree of divorce or annulment. Gupta says further that upon coming to know of this claim of Sanyogita about a second marriage, he went over to Balram's house and attempted to meet his wife. He particularly tried to meet his son, the minor detenue Anmol. He moved an application to the Station House Officer, Police Station Baldeo, District Mathura asking the police to recover his son and deliver him the child's custody, but to no avail. Gupta says that Sanyogita has married a second time, and therefore, she has lost her right to Anmol's custody. The minor's custody with Sanyogita, in the home of a stranger, has been dubbed as unlawful. Gupta says that the minor's life in the stranger's home is at risk. The minor has a bleak future. It is the minor's welfare that he may be placed in his father's custody, who is his natural guardian, in preference to the mother, who has walked out on her lawfully wedded husband without a divorce, and staying in a live-in relationship with a stranger. This Court must remark here that these facts stare in the face beckoning an answer as to where the minor Anmol's welfare would be best secured.

8. Mr. R.K. Mishra, learned counsel appearing for Gupta, submits that notwithstanding the preference about custody indicated by the proviso to Section 6(a) of the Hindu Guardianship and Maintenance Act, 1956 (for short, "the Act of 1956') for the mother, in case of a minor below the age of five years, the facts here ought to persuade this Court to take a different view. Mr. Mishra says that this is not a case where the mother has secured a divorce or an annulment of marriage in accordance with law and honourably left her husband's home to marry another man. It is a case where the mother has acted in an immoral way to walk out on her husband, without telling anyone where she intends to go. She has not secured an end to her marriage with Gupta and has gone over to live with another man, Balram under the colour of a marriage solemnized with him. The mother's marriage to Balram is void under the law as her husband is alive and her marriage to Gupta subsists. She is, therefore, virtually in a live-in relationship with a stranger. The minor's welfare in a stranger's home is not at all secure. Rather, the minor's life is in peril, if Balram were to think that Anmol is an unwelcome presence and an unwanted burden on his resources. He submits that even if Balram has no criminal propensities so as to imperil the minor's life, the lack of affection from the bread winner of the home, where the minor is living, would certainly cast a dark shadow on the minor's future. The minor requires not only food, shelter and clothing but also an intent attention to his eduction - both literary and moral. Sanyogita, apart from the fact that she has no resources of her own to provide for the minor, would be under the perpetual influence of Balram, with whom she stays. Balram and the minor, being utter strangers, the very sensitive and concerned grooming that a young child requires would be a causality. It is, therefore, submitted that in all these circumstances, the minor ought to be relieved from his mother's custody and entrusted to his father.

9. In reply, the mother has said that she dissociated herself with her first husband, Gupta because he would torture her over triflings. He was unkind to the child also. She says that the child is young and requires her care. She has all the motherly affection for the child. She submits that she can raise him well, taking care of all his needs. She has emphasised that the minor's welfare is absolutely secure in her new home and her husband Balram Chaudhary is a good man, who has all the fatherly affection for Anmol. At this stage, this Court must remark that the submissions on behalf of Sanyogita being without assistance of legal counsel, the Court undertook to discharge somewhat of an inquisitorial role. The submissions from the mother came through mostly during interaction with parties. During the course of interaction with the minor's mother, she described Balram Chaudhary as her husband and Gupta as her former husband. She candidly acknowledged that Anmol was Gupta's son. She also told the Court that she has begotten another son of her wedlock to Balram, as she has chosen to describe her relationship. The other son is an infant of five to six months. About Gupta, she said that he would torture her everyday over triflings. On being asked how Gupta treated his son, Anmol, she said: "very badly'. She told the Court to Gupta's face, that Anmol once had a burn injury to his hand, but because of Gupta's unkind attitude, the child had to be taken for necessary medical aid and treatment by subterfuge. The Court put specific questions to Sanyogita about Gupta's outlook towards his son, which were answered by her in the terms indicated hereinabove.

10. She told the Court that her present husband earns his living by driving a Taxi. She also said that he wholeheartedly agrees to bear the minor's financial and other responsibilities. The Court further inquired whether the child was attending school. In answer, Sanyogita said, "Yes, but presently he is not attending school on account of the Covid-19 pandemic'. The Court inquired of her about her educational qualifications, to which she said that she had left her B.A. Course incomplete.

11. The Court interacted with Gupta in considerable detail. He told the Court that he does service for an occupation with the Kanpur Plastic Factory, which is located at Dada Nagar, Kanpur. It is near Panki. He earns a salary of Rs. 9,500/- per mensem, overtime wages, apart. Upon the Court asking him if he had remarried, he answered in the negative. Upon the Court further asking Gupta, if he intended to remarry, he said that for the present, he has not considered the matter. The Court then inquired of Gupta if he could raise the minor, considering that he is a very young child, Gupta said that he would be able to do that. The Court's impression of Gupta's stand about raising the minor was that it was a rather reluctant and hesitant response. Gupta informs the Court that he has done his graduation. It would be apposite to extract verbatim, the relevant questions put to Gupta and their answers during interaction. These read:

Q. Aapka naam?

A. Ram Kumar Gupta.

Q. Aap kya karte hain?

A. Naukari Kanpur Plastic Factory me. Kanpur, Dada Nagar me. Ye Panki ke paas hai.

Q. Aapki kitni salary hai?

A. Rs. 9,500/-, over time alag se.

Q. Aapne doosri shadi ki hai?

A. Nahi.

Q. Aap dusari shadi karenge?

A. Abhi vichar nahi kiya.

Q. Aap bachche ko kaise palenge, bachcha bahut chhota hai?

A. Paal lenge.

Q. Aap kitna padhe hai?

A. Graduation complete hai.

12. The Court interacted with the minor, Anmol. He is a young child aged a little over five years. The child on being asked his name kept quite. He appears to be lost deep in some thoughts. He did not appear to be very attentive. Bearing in mind the child's tender age, the Court interacted with the child at close quarters with a view to ascertain whether he was comfortable in his mother's custody. This Court attempted to elicit from the child in a subtle manner, if there is any truth to the mother's allegation about his father, Gupta being unkind to him. The child hardly said anything by word of mouth. Without uttering a word, he had tears welling in his eyes. He turned away and headed back to his mother, without answering any question. He appears to be attached to the mother. Walking back to her, he embraced his mother. The Court then drew the child's attention to his father, who was present in Court. The father attempted to touch the child, to which he sharply reacted, shunning the father's touch. At this juncture, the Court again called the child over and asked him, if he would like to go back to his father. Again, he did not speak anything. Instead, he nodded his head vigorously in refusal. The father asked the child to tell him who he was. The child said: "Koi Nahi'. This was the first word spoken by him since he appeared in Court. He spoke this word of refusal, when beckoned by his father.

13. This Court may re-emphasise that the child is young and it was certainly not the endeavour of the Court to know his intelligent preference about the choice of his guardian. The Court wished to know, again, as already said, if there was any truth to Sanyogita's allegations about Gupta being an unkind father. Again, whatever the Court says is no condemnation of the father or a perennial certification to the mother to hold the minor's custody, till he turns an adult. It is the Court's endeavour for the present to find out where the minors welfare would be best subserved.

14. It is by now well nigh settled that though the Act of 1956 and the Guardian and Wards Act, 1890 speak about the rights of the natural guardian, their appointment and declaration and also their rights to the minor's custody, the decision about the guardianship of a minor or his/her custody, which could be distinct from guardianship, is not so much about the guardian's right, as about the minor's welfare. If there is one principle that has become almost immutable in guardianship and custody disputes, it is this: the welfare of the minor is of paramount importance. A fortiorari everything else is subordinated to that consideration. The various injunctions about guardianship and custody, carried in different statutes and texts, embodying personal laws of parties, have all to take a back-seat and what rules is the principle about the minors welfare being the paramount consideration.

15. The legislative edict, carried in the proviso to Section 6(a) of the Act of 1956, is an expression of trust in the mother, that up to the age of five years, ordinarily a minor's interest would be better secured by the mother. This trust expressed in the mother is something that emanates from human nature. Five years is not a statutory cut off date after which the right, as it were, gets divested from one and vested in the other. The age mentioned in the proviso to Section 6(a) is no calibrated formula. It indicates a thought that young children are presumed to be better cared for by the mother, unless something is shown in the circumstances to outweigh that precipitate experience of mankind spread across eons.

16. In this connection, reference may be made with great profit to the decision of the Supreme Court in Roxann Sharma vs. Arun Sharma, (2015) 8 SCC 318. It has been held there:

"13. The HMG Act postulates that the custody of an infant or a tender aged child should be given to his/her mother unless the father discloses cogent reasons that are indicative of and presage the likelihood of the welfare and interest of the child being undermined or jeopardised if the custody is retained by the mother. Section 6(a) of the HMG Act, therefore, preserves the right of the father to be the guardian of the property of the minor child but not the guardian of his person whilst the child is less than five years old. It carves out the exception of interim custody, in contradistinction of guardianship, and then specifies that custody should be given to the mother so long as the child is below five years in age. We must immediately clarify that this section or for that matter any other provision including those contained in the G and W Act, does not disqualify the mother to custody of the child even after the latter's crossing the age of five years."

17. There is a very illuminating reference about the mother's priceless role in securing the minor's welfare to be found in a decision rendered by Rajul Bhargava, J. in Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 3921 of 2018, Aharya Baranwal and 3 others vs. State of U.P. and 2 others, in the order dated 22.05.2019. His Lordship's reference to a passage from Bailey on habeas corpus, deserves to be noticed in that decision, about the context here. In Aharya Baranwal (Supra), it was held:

"21. Sometimes, a writ of habeas corpus is sought for custody of a minor child. In such cases also, the paramount consideration which is required to be kept in view by a writ-Court is `welfare of the child'.

22. In Habeas Corpus, Vol. I, page 581, Bailey states;

"The reputation of the father may be as stainless as crystal; he may not be afflicted with the slightest mental, moral or physical disqualifications from superintending the general welfare of the infant; the mother may have been separated from him without the shadow of a pretence of justification; and yet the interests of the child may imperatively demand the denial of the father's right and its continuance with the mother. The tender age and precarious state of its health make the vigilance of the mother indispensable to its proper care; for, not doubting that paternal anxiety would seek for and obtain the best substitute which could be procured yet every instinct of humanity unerringly proclaims that no substitute can supply the place of her whose watchfulness over the sleeping cradle, or waking moments of her offspring, is prompted by deeper and holier feeling than the most liberal allowance of nurses' wages could possibly stimulate."

23. It is further observed that an incidental aspect, which has a bearing on the question, may also be adverted to. In determining whether it will be for the best interests of a child to grant its custody to the father or mother, the Court may properly consult the child, if it has sufficient judgment. (Emphasis supplied)

18. It must be remarked that the rather very vexed question about a child's custody torn between parents, who have chosen to part ways, has no answer to fit all situations. Provisions of different statutes and guidance in various authorities are but guides to reach a just conclusion in a particular case. What cannot be lost sight of, as said earlier, is that the principle about the welfare of the child being of paramount consideration cannot be given a go by. In this connection, reference may be made to the remarks of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Nil Ratan Kundu vs. Abhijit Kundu, (2008) 9 SCC 413. It has been held in Nil Ratan Kundu (supra):

"52. In our judgment, the law relating to custody of a child is fairly well settled and it is this: in deciding a difficult and complex question as to the custody of a minor, a court of law should keep in mind the relevant statutes and the rights flowing therefrom. But such cases cannot be decided solely by interpreting legal provisions. It is a human problem and is required to be solved with human touch. A court while dealing with custody cases, is neither bound by statutes nor by strict rules of evidence or procedure nor by precedents. In selecting proper guardian of a minor, the paramount consideration should be the welfare and well-being of the child. In selecting a guardian, the court is exercising parens patriae jurisdiction and is expected, nay bound, to give due weight to a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favourable surroundings. But over and above physical comforts, moral and ethical values cannot be ignored. They are equally, or we may say, even more important, essential and indispensable considerations. If the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference or judgment, the court must consider such preference as well, though the final decision should rest with the court as to what is conducive to the welfare of the minor."

19. Considering the overall behaviour of the minor towards his parents, this Court feels that at this age, depriving the minor of his mother's company, might have an adverse impact on his overall development. This, inturn would derogate from the minor's welfare.

20. Here, this Court, on a careful consideration of the matter, finds that the minor, though above the age of five years, is still a child of tender years. He may not be an infant, who needs to be weaned away from his mother, but he still needs the tender care that the mother alone can provide. The fact that the mother has walked away from her husband's home without securing a divorce and entered into a new relationship with Balram Chaudhary, which she represents and ostensibly believes to be a second marriage, may be something that the law and the society frown upon, but, in itself, is something not so depraved or immoral as to deprive the mother of her special place in the minor's life. The mother indicated that she was treated with cruelty by Gupta and that is why she walked out on him. That is not this Court's concern. It is this Court's concern, however, to determine whether the minor would be safe and his welfare ensured in his mother's new home. The way the minor's mother has detailed her circumstances in Balram Chaudhary's home, this Court feels that the minor, for the present, is well adapted into his mother's new family. In that family there is a new member, who is a consanguine brother to the minor. Sanyogita's younger son is begotten of Balram Chaudhary. In the opinion of this Court, Balram Chaudhary, Sanyogita and the two children, who are half brothers, are a family with reasonably good bonds, that can be trusted to secure the minor's welfare. On the other hand, Gupta is engaged in earning his livelihood and back home there may not be anyone, even half as able to take care of the minor at this young age as his natural mother. Sanyogita has also indicated that she is all inclined to raise the minor and ensure good education to him. By contrast, Gupta's reaction to the proposal of raising a young child was rather reluctant. He also said that for the present he has not considered a second marriage. If he does in future, of course, subject to a divorce, the minor might have a step mother. That might be more detrimental to the minor's welfare than a stepfather, who goes away to work. It is a prospect which has not yet come by. Nonetheless, it is a prospect that has to be borne in mind. Thus, so far as the dominant and substantial part of the minor's custody and care are concerned, this Court is of opinion that these would be better secured in the mother's hands, in comparison to the father. At the same time, the minor cannot be deprived of the company of his father.

21. The circumstances in which Gupta and Sanyogita are placed are not very conventional. Therefore, ensuring visitation rights to the father has to be ensured bearing in mind the subtler aspects of human behaviour. The rights of the minor to his father's company have to be ensured at all costs.

22. This Court is, therefore, of opinion that Sanyogita @ Gunja would be obliged to take the minor to his father's home at Kanpur once in two months, on any Sunday of the month. The child will stay with his father from 10:00 am to 5:00 pm. During this time, Sanyogita would have to stay close by, if she is not comfortable staying at Gupta's home. During this interaction, the father shall extend all courtesy to Sanyogita, and Sanyogita, likewise, will facilitate the meeting between the minor and his father. In case, during the period of stay, the minor needs his mother, Gupta will be free to inform her over cellphone and the mother shall take care of the minor's requirements. Reasonable expenses for the onward and return journey by Sanyogita and the minor shall be borne by Gupta, payable at the time of each scheduled visit.

23. It is in these terms that the rule nisi issued in this case is disposed of. There shall be no order as to costs.

THE HON'BLE VIVEK CHAUDHARY, J.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 16907 of 2020

Smt. Safiya Sultana & Anr. ...Petitioners
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
Adarsh Kumar Maurya, Archana Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:

A. Constitution of India,1950 - Article 226 - unlawful custody of dentenu/daughter by father- she converted into Hindu religion and married to her husband who Belongs to Hindu religion-both appeared before the court-her father accepted her decision as she is adult-marriage solemnized under Special Marriage Act, 1954-the said Act requires a 30 days notice to be published and invite objections from the public at large-such notice would be an invasion in privacy and violative of fundamental rights-such notice shall be optional-if the party intends it can make a request to the Marriage Officer to publish or not to publish a notice. (Para 1 to 49)

B. The law would be assessed not with reference to its object but on the basis of its effect and impact on the fundamental rights. The mere fact that the law provides for the deprivation of life or personal liberty is not sufficient to conclude its validity and the procedure. The quality of reasonableness does not attach only to the content of the procedure which the law prescribes with reference to Article 21 but to the content of the law itself. (Para 22 to 44)

The petition is disposed of. (E-5)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Chaudhary, J.)

1. The present Habeas Corpus Petition is filed by Petitioner no.1-wife through Petitioner no.2-husband, claiming that detenue-Petitioner no.1, Smt. Safia Sultana, who after converting to Hindu religion and renamed as Smt. Simran, married Petitioner no.2 as per Hindu rituals. However respondent No.4, her father, is not permitting her to live with her husband. They both are adults, duly married with their free will and desire to live together. Thus the custody of the detenue by her father is illegal. The Court directed for the presence of the detenue and her father. They both appeared in person, wherein, the Petitioner no.1 accepted the averments aforesaid and had shown her desire to live with her husband. The Respondent no.4-father of the detenue also fairly accepted that since she is an adult, has married with her choice and wanted to live with her husband, he also accepts her decision and wished both of them best for their future.

2. This matter could have come to an end at this stage, but, for the views expressed by the young couple while interacting with the Court on their personal appearance, the young couple expressed that they could have solemnized their marriage under the Special Marriage Act, 1954 but the said Act requires a 30 days notice to be published and objections to be invited from the public at large. They expressed that any such notice would be an invasion in their privacy and would have definitely caused unnecessary social pressure/interference in their free choice with regard to their marriage. The personal laws do not impose any such condition of publication of notice, inviting and deciding objections before solemnizing any marriage. They further state that such a challenge is being faced by a large number of similarly situated persons who desire to build a life with a partner of their own choice. Learned counsel for petitioners also stated that the situation may become more critical with notification of Uttar Pradesh Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Ordinance, 2020, as the same prohibits conversion of religion by marriage to be unlawful. Learned counsel for petitioners further argues that looking into the changing pattern of the society, amendments made to the Special Marriage Act, 1954 as well as the law declared by the Supreme Court in the last around a decade with regard to privacy, liberty and freedom of choice of a person, provisions of Special Marriage Act, 1954, directing publication of a notice before marriage and inviting public objections, require a revisit to understand whether now with the said change they are to be treated as mandatory or directory in nature.

3. It is further submitted that such young couples are not in a position to raise these issues before solemnizing their marriages as any litigation further attracts unnecessary attention which invades into their privacy and also causes unnecessary social pressure upon them with regard to their choice of a life partner.

4. Since, the issues raised by the petitioners and their counsels involves right of life and liberty of a large number of persons, therefore, this Court is duty bound to consider their submissions. Suffice would be to refer to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Shakti Vahini vs. Union of India and others1. The relevant paragraph reads:

"44. The concept of liberty has to be weighed and tested on the touchstone of constitutional sensitivity, protection and the values it stands for. It is the obligation of the constitutional courts as the sentinel on qui vive to zealously guard the right to liberty of an individual as the dignified existence of an individual has an inseparable association with liberty. Without sustenance of liberty, subject to constitutionally valid provisions of law, the life of a person is comparable to the living dead having to endure cruelty and torture without protest and tolerate imposition of thoughts and ideas without a voice to dissent or record a disagreement."

5. As the issue involves interpretation of a Central Act, Sri Surya Bhan Pandey, learned Assistant Solicitor General of India was also requested to assist the Court. Heard Sri Adarsh Kumar Maurya, Smt. Archana Singh, learned counsels for petitioners, Sri S.B. Pandey, learned Assistant Solicitor General assisted by Sri Amresh Rai and Sri Santosh Kumar Mishra, learned AGA-I for the State.

6. For the purpose of the present case, following sections of Special Marriage Act, 1954 are of relevance:

"4. Conditions relating to solemnization of special marriages*: Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force relating to the solemnization of marriages, a marriage between any two persons may be solemnized under this Act, if at the time of the marriage the following conditions are fulfilled, namely:—*

(a) neither party has a spouse living;

(b) neither party—

(i) is incapable of giving a valid consent to it in consequence of unsoundness of mind; or

(ii) though capable of giving a valid consent, has been suffering from mental disorder of such a kind or to such an extent as to be unfit for marriage and the procreation of children; or

(iii) has been subject to recurrent attacks of insanity

(c) the male has completed the age of twenty-one years and the female the age of eighteen years;

(d) the parties are not within the degrees of prohibited relationship:

Provided that where a custom governing at least one of the parties permits of a marriage between them, such marriage may be solemnized, notwithstanding that they are within the degrees of prohibited relationship; and

(e) where the marriage is solemnized in the State of Jammu and Kashmir, both parties are citizens of India domiciled in the territories to which this Act extends.

5. Notice of intended marriage*: When a marriage is intended to be solemnized under this Act, the parties to the marriage shall give notice thereof in writing in the form specified in the Second Schedule to the Marriage Officer of the district in which at least one of the parties to the marriage has resided for a period of not less than thirty days immediately preceding the date on which such notice is given.*

6.Marriage Notice Book and publication*: (1) The Marriage Officer shall* keep all notices given under section 5 with the records of his office and shall also forthwith enter a true copy of every such notice in a book prescribed for that purpose, to be called the Marriage Notice Book, and such book shall be open for inspection at all reasonable times, without fee, by any person desirous of inspecting the same.

(2) The Marriage Officer shall cause every such notice to be published by affixing a copy thereof to some conspicuous place in his office.

(3) Where either of the parties to an intended marriage is not permanently residing within the local limits of the district of the Marriage Officer to whom the notice has been given under section 5, the Marriage Officer shall also cause a copy of such notice to be transmitted to the Marriage Officer of the district within whose limits such party is permanently residing, and that Marriage Officer shall thereupon cause a copy thereof to be affixed to some conspicuous place in his office.

7. Objection to marriage: (1) Any person may, before the expiration of thirty days from the date on which any such notice has been published under sub-section (2) of section 6, object to the marriage on the ground that it would contravene one or more of the conditions specified in section 4.

(2) After the expiration of thirty days from the date on which notice of an intended marriage has been published under sub-section (2) of section 6, the marriage may be solemnized, unless it has been previously objected to under sub-section (1).

(3) The nature of the objection shall be recorded in writing by the Marriage Officer in the Marriage Notice Book, be read over and explained if necessary, to the person making the objection and shall be signed by him or on his behalf.

8. Procedure on receipt of objection: (1) If an objection is made under section 7 to an intended marriage, the Marriage Officer shall not solemnize the marriage until he has inquired into the matter of the objection and is satisfied that it ought not to prevent the solemnization of the marriage or the objection is withdrawn by the person making it; but the Marriage Officer shall not take more than thirty days from the date of the objection for the purpose of inquiring into the matter of the objection and arriving at a decision.

(2) If the Marriage Officer upholds the objection and refuses to solemnize the marriage, either party to the intended marriage may, within a period of thirty days from the date of such refusal, prefer an appeal to the district court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the Marriage Officer has his office, and the decision of the district court on such appeal shall be final, and the Marriage Officer shall act in conformity with the decision of the court.

46. Penalty for wrongful action of Marriage Officer: Any Marriage Officer who knowingly and wilfully solemnizes a marriage under this Act,—

(1) without publishing a notice regarding such marriage as required by Section 5, or

(2) within thirty days of the publication of the notice of such marriage, or

(3) in contravention of any other provision in this Act, shall be punishable with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both."

7. The society has an ever changing phenomenon. It keeps changing with time as per its new needs, expectation and other changing aspects. The very purpose of law is to serve the society as per its requirements; therefore, the law also keeps evolving with the changes in society. Thus, it would be appropriate, before coming to the Special Marriage Act, 1954 and its present relevance, to briefly visit the history and development of the law with regard to civil marriages in India.

8. A Bill was introduced by Sir Henry Maine for the first time proposing a law for inter-cast and inter-religion marriages in India. The proposed Bill permitted any two citizens of India to marry under the same instead of their respective personal laws. The Bill was vehemently opposed in the legislature and was vastly modified before it was enacted and enforced on 22nd March 1872 as "Special Marriage Act, 1872 (Act of 1872)". The law, as passed, provided that any two persons after declaring complete severance from their respective faith can marry under the Act of 1872. The Act of 1872 was amended in the year 1923 and thereafter it became permissible for the individuals to marry under the same without renouncing their religion.2 Section 2 of the Act of 1872 provided the conditions to be fulfilled before any marriage could be performed. Section 6 of the said Act provided procedure for a public notice to be made and thereafter Sections 7 and 8 and further sections provided the procedure for deciding the objections, if any, filed against the proposed marriage which could be filed by any person.

9. With the independence of India and coming into force of a secular Constitution in January, 1950, the Parliament proceeded to revisit the personal laws and laws with regard to marriages and thus along with other enactments, it also passed the Special Marriage Act, 1954 (Act of 1954). Under the Act of 1954 any two Indians living wheresoever, and whether professing the same or different religions (or no religion at all), could solemnize their marriage provided that they fulfilled the conditions provided under Section 4 of the said Act. Act of 1954 also provided that an existing marriage, solemnized under whatever law, could be registered under the new law, if the same fulfilled the conditions provided therein. After registration, the marriage stood covered under the provisions of Act of 1954 and not under the personal law wherein it was initially solemnized. The Act of 1954 also prescribed rights of persons concerned with regard to separation, divorce and inheritance etc. including judicial procedures for enforcement of the same and thus came in force a complete code with regard to civil marriages in India. The Act of 1954 was also amended from time to time as per the changing needs of the society. The procedure of publishing a notice and inviting objections from public at large, as was provided under Act of 1872 was, thus, also adopted by the Act of 1954 with minor variations.

10. The golden rule of interpretation of statute is that so far as possible plain reading of the provisions should be accepted. Further, if any penal consequences are provided the provision would be mandatory in nature. In view of aforesaid, more specifically in view of the punitive consequences under Section 46, the publication of notice under Section 6 and inviting objections and decision thereupon under Section 7 was treated as mandatory. Thus the Marriage Officers have always published a notice of intended marriage and invited objections. Marriages under the Act of 1954 were only solemnized after a period of thirty days of notice or after decision on the objections, in case filed.

11. The question raised before this Court is, whether the social conditions and the law, as has progressed since passing of Act of 1872 and thereafter Act of 1954 till now, would in any manner impact the interpretation of Sections 5, 6 and 7 of the Act of 1954 and whether with change the said sections no more remain mandatory in nature. This argument is based on another principle of interpretation, that, an ongoing statute should be interpreted on the basis of present day's changed conditions and not on old obsolete conditions. The Supreme Court considered the said principle in Satyawati Sharma vs. Union of India3. The Supreme Court, referring to its earlier judgments, held:

"32. It is trite to say that legislation which may be quite reasonable and rationale at the time of its enactment may with the lapse of time and/or due to change of circumstances become arbitrary, unreasonable and violative of the doctrine of equity and even if the validity of such legislation may have been upheld at a given point of time, the Court may, in subsequent litigation, strike down the same if it is found that the rationale of classification has become non-existent. It is trite to say that legislation which may be quite reasonable and rationale at the time of its enactment may with the lapse of time and/or due to change of circumstances become arbitrary, unreasonable and violative of the doctrine of equity and even if the validity of such legislation may have been upheld at a given point of time, the Court may, in subsequent litigation, strike down the same if it is found that the rationale of classification has become non-existent. In State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Bhopal Sugar Industries [AIR 1964 SC 1179], this Court while dealing with a question whether geographical classification due to historical reasons could be sustained for all times and observed: (AIR p.1182, para 6)

"6. ..Differential treatment arising out of the application of the laws so continued in different regions of the same reorganised, State, did not therefore immediately attract the clause of the Constitution prohibiting discrimination. But by the passage of time, considerations of necessity and expediency would be obliterated, and the grounds which justified classification of geographical regions for historical reason may cease to be valid. A purely temporary provision which because of compelling forces justified differential treatment when the Reorganisation Act was enacted cannot obviously be permitted to assume permanency, so as to perpetuate that treatment without a rational basis to support it after the initial expediency and necessity have disappeared."

33. In Narottam Kishore Dev Verma vs. Union of India [AIR 1964 SC 1590] the challenge was to the validity of Section 87-B of the Code of Civil Procedure which granted exemption to the rulers of former Indian States from being sued except with the consent of the Central Government. In the course of judgment, it was observed as under: (AIR p.1593, para 11)

"11. ..If under the Constitution all citizens are equal, it may be desirable to confine the operation of Section 87-B to past transactions and nor to perpetuate the anomaly of the distinction between the rest of the citizens and Rulers of former Indian States. With the passage of time, the validity of historical considerations on which Section 87-B is founded will wear out and the continuance of the said section in the Code of Civil Procedure may later be open to serious challenge."

34. In H.H. Shri Swamiji Shri Admar Mutt Etc, vs. The Commissioner, Hindu Religious & Charitable Endowments Department [1979 (4) SCC 642] this Court was called upon to consider the validity of the continued application of the provisions of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowment Act, 1951 in the area which had formerly been part of State of Madras and which had latter become part of the new State of Mysore (now Karnataka) as a result of the State Re-organisation Act, 1956. While declining to strike down the legislation on the ground of violation of Article 14 of the Constitution, the Court observed: (SCC p.658, para 29)

"An indefinite extension and application of unequal laws for all time to come will militate against their true character as temporary measures taken in order to serve a temporary purpose. Thereby, the very foundation of their constitutionality shall have been destroyed the foundation being that Section 119 of the State Reorganisation Act serves the significant purpose of giving reasonable time to the new units to consider the special circumstances obtaining in respect of diverse units. The decision to withdraw the application of unequal laws to equals cannot be delayed unreasonably because of the relevance of historical reasons which justify the application of unequal laws is bound to wear out with the passage of time. In Broom's Legal; Maxim (1939 Edition, page 97) can be found a useful principle "Cessante Ratione Legis Cessat Ipsa Lex", that is to say, "Reason is the soul of the law, and when the reason of any particular law ceases, so does the law itself."

32. In Motor General Traders vs. State of Andhra Pradesh (supra), validity of Section 32(b) of the A.P. Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control, Act, 1960 was considered. By that Section it was declared that the provisions of the main Act will not apply to the buildings constructed after 25th August, 1957. The Court noted that exemption had continued for nearly a quarter century and struck down the same despite the fact that validity thereon had been upheld by the High Court in Chintapalli Achaiah vs. P. Gopala Krishna Reddy [AIR 1966 AP 51]. Some of the observations made in the judgment are worth noticing. These are:

"16. What may be unobjectionable as a transitional or temporary measure at an initial stage can still become discriminatory and hence violative of Article 14 of the Constitution if it is persisted in over a long period without any justification."

"24. ... What was justifiable during a short period has turned out to be a case of hostile discrimination by lapse of nearly a quarter of century....We are constrained to pronounce upon the validity of the impugned provision at this late stage because of grab of Constitution which it may have possessed earlier has become worn out and its unconstitutionality is now brought to a successful challenge".

"24. ... As already observed, the landlords of the buildings constructed subsequent to August 26, 1957 are given undue preference over the landlords of buildings constructed prior to that date in that the former are free from the shackles of the Act while the latter are subjected to the restrictions imposed by it. What should have been just an incentive has become a permanent bonanza in favour of those who constructed buildings subsequent to August 26, 1957. There being no justification for the continuance of the benefit to a class of persons without any rational basis whatsoever, the evil effects flowing from the impugned exemption have caused more harm to the society than one could anticipate. What was justifiable during a short period has turned out to be a case of hostile discrimination by lapse of nearly a quarter of century. The second answer to the above contention is that mere lapse of time does not lend constitutionality to a provision which is otherwise bad. "Time does not run in favour of legislation. If it is ultra vires, it cannot gain legal strength from long failure on the part of lawyers to perceive and set up its invalidity. Albeit, lateness in an attack upon the constitutionality of a statute is but a reason for exercising special caution in examining the arguments by which the attack is supported."

12. Following Satyawati Sharma3 in case of Kashmir Singh vs. Union of India4 the Supreme Court holds:

"55. The superior courts must remember a well-known principle of law that the Court while construing an ongoing statute must take into consideration the changes in the societal condition. It would be a relevant fact. (see Satyawati Sharma[3])

68. For the purpose of giving an effective and meaningful construction of the provisions, the court is bound to take into consideration the situational change...

72. We, therefore, are of the opinion that in view of the situational change, a meaning which could be attributed in the year 1925 cannot be given the same meaning today. For the aforementioned purpose, Sections 40 and 70 of the Act must be read together. Therefore a holistic reading of the entire Act would be necessary."

13. Thus this Court is required to consider the changes in the social and legal aspects, if any, that may impact the interpretation of the provisions of the Act of 1954.

Reports of the Law Commission of India*:

14. Touching upon the Act of 1954, the changes occurring in the society over a period of time and need for consequential changes to be brought in law is aptly emphasised and followed by the Law Commission of India (Law Commission) in its following reports.

15. In its 59th report submitted in the year 1974, the Law Commission, while proposing amendments in the Act of 1954 as well as in the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, states:

"1.11: The object of law, whether personal or public, must be to sustain the stability of the society and help its progress: -

The structure of any society, which wants to be strong, homogeneous and progressive, must, no doubt, be steady but not static; stable but not stationary."

"1.16: It may sound platitudinous but is nevertheless true that revision of laws is a "must' in a dynamic society like ours which is engaged on the adventure of creating a new social order founded on faith in the value-system of socio-economic justice enshrined in our Constitution. With the changing times, notions of fairness and justice assume newer and wider dimensions, and customs and beliefs of the people change. These, in turn, demand changes in the structure of law; every progressive society must make a rational effort to meet these demands. Between the letter of the law and the prevailing customs and the dictates of the current value-system accepted by the community, there should not be an unduly long gap. Ranade often said that the story of social reform, which involves reform in personal law, is an unending story; it continues from generation to generation. Each generation contributes to the continuance of the effort of social reform; but the effort is never concluded and the end is never reached in the sense that no further attempt to reform is required. It is in that sense that we believe that the revision of personal laws, and indeed, of all laws, has to be undertaken by modern societies. These thoughts have been present in our mind when we embarked upon the present inquiry"

"1.20: In any civilised and progressive society, marriage is an institution of great importance. It is the centre of a family which in turn, is a significant unit of the social structure. Children who are born of marriage, also contribute to the stability of the institution of marriage."

16. Concluding the said report, the Law Commission proposed Marriage Laws (Amendment) Bill of 1974 suggesting amendments in the Act of 1954 as well as in the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. The Act of 1954 was duly amended in the year 1976.

17. The Law Commission again submitted a report No.212, in the year 2008, titled "Laws of Civil Marriages in India - A Proposal to Resolve Certain Conflicts". After taking into consideration the changes in the social norms as well as in law, the Law Commission made seven recommendations with regard to Act of 1954. Relevant for our purposes are:

"1. The word "Special" be dropped from the title of the Special Marriage Act 1954 and it be simply called "The Marriage Act 1954" or "The Marriage and Divorce Act 1954." The suggested change will create a desirable feeling that this is the general law of India on marriage and divorce and that there is nothing "special" about a marriage solemnized under its provisions. It is in fact marriages solemnized under the community-specific laws which should be regarded as "special."

2. A provision be added to the application clause in the Special Marriage Act 1954 that all inter-religious marriages except those within the Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh and Jain communities, whether solemnized or registered under this Act or not shall be governed by this Act.

3. The definition of "degrees of prohibited relationship" given in Section 2 (b) in the Special Marriage Act 1954 and the First Schedule detailing such degrees appended to the Act be omitted. Instead, it should be provided in Section 4 of the Act that prohibited degrees in marriage in any case of an intended civil marriage shall be regulated by the marriage law (or laws) otherwise applicable to the parties.

4. The requirement of a gazette notification for recognition of custom relating to prohibited degrees in marriage found in the Explanation to Section 4 of the Special Marriage Act 1954 be deleted."

18. Again the Law Commission submitted report No.242, in the year 2012, titled "Prevention of Interference with the Freedom of Matrimonial Alliances (in the name of Honour and Tradition): A Suggested Legal Framework." It states:

"4.1 The autonomy of every person in matters concerning oneself - a free and willing creator of one's own choices and decisions, is now central to all thinking on community order and organization. Needless to emphasize that such autonomy with its manifold dimensions is a constitutionally protected value and is central to an open society and civilized order. Duly secured individual autonomy, exercised on informed understanding of the values integral to one's well being is deeply connected to a free social order. Coercion against individual autonomy will then become least necessary.

4.2 In moments and periods of social transition, the tensions between individual freedom and past social practices become focal points of the community's ability to contemplate and provide for least hurting or painful solutions. The wisdom or wrongness of certain community perspectives and practices, their intrinsic impact on liberty, autonomy and self-worth, as well as the parents' concern over impulsive and unreflective choices - all these factors come to the fore-front of consideration."

19. It recommended to simplify the procedure under the Special Marriage Act. It says:

"9: it is desirable that the procedure under the Special Marriage Act is simplified. The time gap between the date of giving notice of marriage and the registration should be removed and the entire process of registration of marriage should be expedited. The domicile restriction should also be removed. We are aware, that already an amendment is proposed to the Special Marriage Act by the Government of India by introducing a Bill in the Parliament. It is, therefore not necessary to make a detailed study and give specific recommendation on this aspect."

20. It summarily recommended:

"11.1 In order to keep a check on the high-handed and unwarranted interference by the caste assemblies or panchayats with sagotra, inter-caste or inter-religious marriages, which are otherwise lawful, this legislation has been proposed so as to prevent the acts endangering the liberty of the couple married or intending to marry and their family members. It is considered necessary that there should be a threshold bar against the congregation or assembly for the purpose of disapproving such marriage / intended marriage and the conduct of the young couple. The members gathering for such purpose, i.e., for condemning the marriage with a view to take necessary consequential action, are to be treated as members of unlawful assembly for which a mandatory minimum punishment has been prescribed.

11.2 So also the acts of endangerment of liberty including social boycott, harassment, etc. of the couple or their family members are treated as offences punishable with mandatory minimum sentence. The acts of criminal intimidation by members of unlawful assembly or others acting at their instance or otherwise are also made punishable with mandatory minimum sentence.

11.3 A presumption that a person participating in an unlawful assembly shall be presumed to have also intended to commit or abet the commission of offences under the proposed Bill is provided for in Section 6.

11.4 Power to prohibit the unlawful assemblies and to take preventive measures are conferred on the Sub-Divisional / District Magistrate. Further, a SDM/DM is enjoined to receive a request or information from any person seeking protection from the assembly of persons or members of any family who are likely to or who have been objecting to the lawful marriage.

11.5 The provisions of this proposed Bill are without prejudice to the provisions of Indian Penal Code. Care has been taken, as far as possible, to see that there is no overlapping with the provisions of the general penal law. In other words, the criminal acts other than those specifically falling under the proposed Bill are punishable under the general penal law.

11.6 The offence will be tried by a Court of Session in the district and the offences are cognizable, non-bailable and non-compoundable.

11.7 Accordingly, the Prohibition of Interference with the Freedom of Matrimonial Alliances Bill 20___ has been prepared in order to effectively check the existing social malady."

21. It appears that the Bills proposed by the Law Commission in its reports No. 212 (year 2008) and 242 (year 2012) are still pending for consideration.

Development of Law:

22. Lata Singh Vs. State of U.P. and another5 was one of the initial cases which came up before the Supreme Court raising the issue of the right of a person to marry of his own choice. In the said case petitioner solemnized her marriage, with her own free will, with a person of another caste. The said marriage was strongly opposed by her brothers and they also committed violence upon her and her husband. Condemning the same, Supreme Court held:

"17. The caste system is a curse on the nation and the sooner it is destroyed the better. In fact, it is dividing the nation at a time when we have to be united to face the challenges before the nation unitedly. Hence, inter-caste marriages are in fact in the national interest as they will result in destroying the caste system. However, disturbing news are coming from several parts of the country that young men and women who undergo inter-caste marriage, are threatened with violence, or violence is actually committed on them. In our opinion, such acts of violence or threats or harassment are wholly illegal and those who commit them must be severely punished. This is a free and democratic country, and once a person becomes a major he or she can marry whosoever he/she likes. If the parents of the boy or girl do not approve of such inter-caste or inter-religious marriage the maximum they can do is that they can cut off social relations with the son or the daughter, but they cannot give threats or commit or instigate acts of violence and cannot harass the person who undergoes such inter-caste or inter- religious marriage. We, therefore, direct that the administration/police authorities throughout the country will see to it that if any boy or girl who is a major undergoes inter-caste or inter-religious marriage with a woman or man who is a major, the couple are not harassed by anyone nor subjected to threats or acts of violence, and anyone who gives such threats or harasses or commits acts of violence either himself or at his instigation, is taken to task by instituting criminal proceedings by the police against such persons and further stern action is taken against such persons as provided by law." (emphasis supplied)

23. Again the issue was considered in the cases of Arumugam Servai vs. State of Tamil Nadu6and Bhagwan Dass vs. State (NCT of Delhi)7. In both the cases, brutality was caused by "khappanchayat" or family members against the persons solemnizing marriage with their own choice. The Supreme Court referring to the case of Lata Singh5strongly condemned and criticized such atrocious acts and directed the State authorities to take immediate steps in all such cases.

24. In Indian Woman Says Gang-Raped on Orders of Village Court Published in Business and Financial News Dated 23-1-2014 in Re8 the Supreme Court found the right of freedom of choice in marriage to be a fundamental right and an inherent aspect of Article 21 of the Constitution of India. The court declared:

"16. Ultimately, the question which ought to consider and assess by this Court is whether the State police machinery could have possibly prevented the said occurrence. The response is certainly a "yes". The State is duty bound to protect the Fundamental Rights of its citizens; and an inherent aspect of Article 21 of the Constitution would be the freedom of choice in marriage. Such offences are resultant of the State's incapacity or inability to protect the fundamental rights of its citizens." (emphasis supplied)

25. Another case of honour killing came up before Supreme Court in Vikas Yadav vs. State of U.P. and another9. Again Court held:

"75. One may feel "My honour is my life" but that does not mean sustaining one's honour at the cost of another. Freedom, independence, constitutional identity, individual choice and thought of a woman, be a wife or sister or daughter or mother, cannot be allowed to be curtailed definitely not by application of physical force or threat or mental cruelty in the name of his self-assumed honour. That apart, neither the family members nor the members of the collective has any right to assault the boy chosen by the girl. Her individual choice is her self-respect and creating dent in it is destroying her honour. And to impose so called brotherly or fatherly honour or class honour by eliminating her choice is a crime of extreme brutality, more so, when it is done under a guise*. It is a vice, condemnable and deplorable perception of "honour", comparable to medieval obsessive assertions." (emphasis supplied)*

26. In Asha Ranjan vs. State of Bihar10, the Supreme Court again declared the right of a person in choosing a partner to be legitimate constitutional right recognized under Article 19 of the Constitution of India. The judgment reads:

"61. ...choice of woman in choosing her partner in life is a legitimate constitutional right. It is founded on individual choice that is recognized in the Constitution under Article 19, and such a right is not expected to succumb to the concept of "class honour" or "group thinking". It is because the sense of class honour has no legitimacy even if it is practised by the collective under some kind of a notion." (emphasis supplied)

27. Supreme Court considered the matter of the honour killing and right to marry at length in the case of Shakti Vahini1. The relevant paragraphs of the said judgment read as under:

"41. What we have stated hereinabove, to explicate, is that the consent of the family or the community or the clan is not necessary once the two adult individuals agree to enter into a wedlock. Their consent has to be piously given primacy. If there is offence committed by one because of some penal law, that has to be decided as per law which is called determination of criminality*. It does not recognise any space for informal institutions for delivery of justice. It is so since a polity governed by "Rule of Law" only accepts determination of rights and violation thereof by the formal institutions set up for dealing with such situations. It has to be constantly borne in mind that rule of law as a concept is meant to have order in a society. It respects human rights. Therefore, the khap panchayat or any panchayat of any nomenclature cannot create a dent in exercise of the said right.*

43. Honour killing guillotines individual liberty, freedom of choice and one's own perception of choice. It has to be sublimely borne in mind that when two adults consensually choose each other as life partners, it is a manifestation of their choice which is recognized under Articles 19 and 21 of the Constitution. Such a right has the sanction of the constitutional law and once that is recognized, the said right needs to be protected and it cannot succumb to the conception of class honour or group thinking which is conceived of on some notion that remotely does not have any legitimacy.

44. The concept of liberty has to be weighed and tested on the touchstone of constitutional sensitivity, protection and the values it stands for. It is the obligation of the constitutional courts as the sentinel on qui vive to zealously guard the right to liberty of an individual as the dignified existence of an individual has an inseparable association with liberty. Without sustenance of liberty, subject to constitutionally valid provisions of law, the life of a person is comparable to the living dead having to endure cruelty and torture without protest and tolerate imposition of thoughts and ideas without a voice to dissent or record a disagreement. The fundamental feature of dignified existence is to assert for dignity that has the spark of divinity and the realisation of choice within the parameters of law without any kind of subjugation. The purpose of laying stress on the concepts of individual dignity and choice within the framework of liberty is of paramount importance. We may clearly and emphatically state that life and liberty sans dignity and choice is a phenomenon that allows hollowness to enter into the constitutional recognition of identity of a person.

45. The choice of an individual is an inextricable part of dignity, for dignity cannot be thought of where there is erosion of choice. True it is, the same is bound by the principle of constitutional limitation but in the absence of such limitation, none, we mean, no one shall be permitted to interfere in the fructification of the said choice. If the right to express one's own choice is obstructed, it would be extremely difficult to think of dignity in its sanctified completeness. When two adults marry out of their volition, they choose their path; they consummate their relationship; they feel that it is their goal and they have the right to do so. And it can unequivocally be stated that they have the right and any infringement of the said right is a constitutional violation...

52. Once the fundamental right is inherent in a person, the intolerant groups who subscribe to the view of superiority class complex or higher clan cannot scuttle the right of a person by leaning on any kind of philosophy, moral or social, or self-proclaimed elevation. Therefore, for the sustenance of the legitimate rights of young couples or anyone associated with them and keeping in view the role of this Court as the guardian and protector of the constitutional rights of the citizens and further to usher in an atmosphere where the fear to get into wedlock because of the threat of the collective is dispelled, it is necessary to issue directives and we do so on the foundation of the principle stated in Lakshmi Kant Pandey vs. Union of India reported in (1984) 2 SCC 244, Vishaka Vs. State of Rajasthan reported in (1997) 6 SCC 241 and Prakash Singh Vs. Union of India reported in (2006) 8 SCC 1." (emphasis supplied)

28. Thus the Supreme Court in the case of Shakti Vahini1 again held the right to choose a life partner, to be a fundamental right recognized under Article 19 and 21 of the Constitution. Once the said fundamental right is inherent in a person, the same cannot be scuttled. It found that it is the duty of the Court to remove any interference with the legitimate rights of the young couples or anyone associated with them. The Supreme Court also issued preventive, remedial as well as punitive measures to be followed and implemented by the State authorities.

29. In a Habeas Corpus Petition Shafin Jahan vs. Asokan K.M. and Others11 again right of an individual to marry without any interference came up before the Supreme Court. In the said case, the High Court failed to take appropriate steps for releasing the detenue, a major lady, to live with her own choice, while trying to make out a case of attempts being made for taking her out of the country after change of religion in a clandestine manner. The relevant portions of the judgment read:

"52. It is obligatory to state here that expression of choice in accord with law is acceptance of individual identity. Curtailment of that expression and the ultimate action emanating there from on the conceptual structuralism of obeisance to the societal will destroy the individualistic entity of a person*. The social values and morals have their space but they are not above the constitutionally guaranteed freedom.* The said freedom is both a constitutional and a human right*. Deprivation of that freedom which is ingrained in choice on the plea of faith is impermissible. Faith of a person is intrinsic to his/her meaningful existence. To have the freedom of faith is essential to his/her autonomy; and it strengthens the core norms of the Constitution. Choosing a faith is the substratum of individuality and sans it, the right of choice becomes a shadow.* It has to be remembered that the realisation of a right is more important than the conferment of the right. Such actualisation indeed ostracises any kind of societal notoriety and keeps at bay the patriarchal supremacy. It is so because the individualistic faith and expression of choice are fundamental for the fructification of the right. Thus, we would like to call it indispensable preliminary condition.

53. Non-acceptance of her choice would simply mean creating discomfort to the constitutional right by a constitutional court which is meant to be the protector of fundamental rights. Such a situation cannot remotely be conceived. The duty of the court is to uphold the right and not to abridge the sphere of the right unless there is a valid authority of law. Sans lawful sanction, the centripodal value of liberty should allow an individual to write his/her script. The individual signature is the insignia of the concept.

54. In the case at hand, the father in his own stand and perception may feel that there has been enormous transgression of his right to protect the interest of his daughter but his viewpoint or position cannot be allowed to curtail the fundamental rights of his daughter who, out of her own volition, married the appellant. Therefore, the High Court has completely erred by taking upon itself the burden of annulling the marriage between the appellant and Respondent 9 when both stood embedded to their vow of matrimony.

84. A marriage can be dissolved at the behest of parties to it, by a competent court of law. Marital status is conferred through legislation or, as the case may be, custom. Deprivation of marital status is a matter of serious import and must be strictly in accordance with law. The High Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 ought not to have embarked on the course of annulling the marriage. The Constitution recognises the liberty and autonomy which inheres in each individual. This includes the ability to take decisions on aspects which define one's personhood and identity. The choice of a partner whether within or outside marriage lies within the exclusive domain of each individual. Intimacies of marriage lie within a core zone of privacy, which is inviolable. The absolute right of an individual to choose a life partner is not in the least affected by matters of faith. The Constitution guarantees to each individual the right freely to practise, profess and propagate religion. Choices of faith and belief as indeed choices in matters of marriage lie within an area where individual autonomy is supreme. The law prescribes conditions for a valid marriage. It provides remedies when relationships run aground. Neither the state nor the law can dictate a choice of partners or limit the free ability of every person to decide on these matters. They form the essence of personal liberty under the Constitution*. In deciding whether Shafin Jahan is a fit person forHadiya to marry, the High Court has entered into prohibited terrain.* Our choices are respected because they are ours. Social approval for intimate personal decisions is not the basis for recognisingthem. Indeed, the Constitution protects personal liberty from disapproving audiences.

86. The right to marry a person of one's choice is integral to Article 21 of the Constitution. The Constitution guarantees the right to life. This right cannot be taken away except through a law which is substantively and procedurally fair, just and reasonable. Intrinsic to the liberty which the Constitution guarantees as a fundamental right is the ability of each individual to take decisions on matters central to the pursuit of happiness. Matters of belief and faith, including whether to believe are at the core of constitutional liberty. The Constitution exists for believers as well as for agnostics. The Constitution protects the ability of each individual to pursue a way of life or faith to which she or he seeks to adhere. Matters of dress and of food, of ideas and ideologies, of love and partnership are within the central aspects of identity. The law may regulate (subject to constitutional compliance) the conditions of a valid marriage, as it may regulate the situations in which a marital tie can be ended or annulled. These remedies are available to parties to a marriage for it is they who decide best on whether they should accept each other into a marital tie or continue in that relationship. Society has no role to play in determining our choice of partners.

87. In Justice K S Puttaswamy vs. Union of India reported in (2017) 10 SCC 1, this Court in a decision of nine judges held that the ability to make decisions on matters close to one's life is an inviolable aspect of the human personality: (SCC pp. 498-99, para 298)

"298. ...The autonomy of the individual is the ability to make decisions on vital matters of concern to life... The intersection between one's mental integrity and privacy entitles the individual to freedom of thought, the freedom to believe in what is right, and the freedom of self-determination... The family, marriage, procreation and sexual orientation are all integral to the dignity of the individual."

A Constitution Bench of this Court, in Common Cause (A Regd. Society) vs. Union of India reported in (2018) 5 SCC 1, held: (SCC p.194, para 346)

"346. ...Our autonomy as persons is founded on the ability to decide:

on what to wear and how to dress, on what to eat and on the food that we share, on when to speak and what we speak, on the right to believe or not to believe, on whom to love and whom to partner, and to freely decide on innumerable matters of consequence and detail to our daily lives."

The strength of the Constitution, therefore, lies in the guarantee which it affords that each individual will have a protected entitlement in determining a choice of partner to share intimacies within or outside marriage.

88. The High Court, in the present case, has treaded on an area which must be out of bounds for a constitutional court. The views of the High Court have encroached into a private space reserved for women and men in which neither law nor the judges can intrude. The High Court was of the view that at twenty-four, Hadiya "is weak and vulnerable, capable of being exploited in many ways". The High Court has lost sight of the fact that she is a major, capable of taking her own decisions and is entitled to the right recognised by the Constitution to lead her life exactly as she pleases*. The concern of this Court in intervening in this matter is as much about the miscarriage of justice that has resulted in the High Court as much as about the paternalism which underlies the approach to constitutional interpretation reflected in the judgment in appeal. The superior courts, when they exercise their jurisdiction parents patriae do so in the case of persons who are incapable of asserting a free will such as minors or persons of unsound mind.* The exercise of that jurisdiction should not transgress into the area of determining the suitability of partners to a marital tie. That decision rests exclusively with the individuals themselves. Neither the state nor society can intrude into that domain. The strength of our Constitution lies in its acceptance of the plurality and diversity of our culture. Intimacies of marriage, including the choices which individuals make on whether or not to marry and on whom to marry, lie outside the control of the state. Courts as upholders of constitutional freedoms must safeguard these freedoms. The cohesion and stability of our society depend on our syncretic culture. The Constitution protects it. Courts are duty-bound not to swerve from the path of upholding our pluralism and diversity as a nation." (emphasis supplied)

30. A conflict in various decisions was found with regard to the right to privacy of an individual and true nature of such a right. The same was thus referred to a nine-Judge Bench in case of Justice K.S. Puttaswamy (Retd.) and another vs. Union of India and others12. The issue before the Supreme Court can be well understood from the following paragraphs of the judgment:

"2. Nine judges of this Court assembled to determine whether privacy is a constitutionally protected value*. The issue reaches out to the foundation of a constitutional culture based on the* protection of human rights and enables this Court to revisit the basic principles on which our Constitution has been founded and their consequences for a way of life it seeks to protect. This case presents challenges for constitutional interpretation. If privacy is to be construed as a protected constitutional value, it would redefine in significant ways our concepts of liberty and the entitlements that flow out of its protection.

*4. .....*The Attorney General for India urged that the existence of a fundamental right to privacy is in doubt in view of two decisions : the first - M P Sharma vs. Satish Chandra reported in AIR 1954 SC 300 ("M.P. Sharma")was rendered by a Bench of eight Judges and the second, in Kharak Singh vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in AIR 1963 SC 1295 ("Kharak Singh") was rendered by a Bench of six Judges. Each of these decisions, in the submission of the Attorney General, contained observations that the Indian Constitution does not specifically protect the right to privacy. On the other hand, the submission of the petitioners was that M P Sharma and Kharak Singh were founded on principles expounded in A. K. Gopalan vs. State of Madras reported in AIR 1950 SC 27 ("Gopalan"). Gopalan, which construed each provision contained in the Chapter on Fundamental Rights as embodying a distinct protection, was held not to be good law by an eleven-Judge Bench Rustom Cavasji Cooper vs. Union of India reported in (1970) 1 SCC 248 ("Cooper"). Hence the petitioners submitted that the basis of the two earlier decisions is not valid. Moreover, it was also urged that in the seven-Judge Bench decision in Maneka Gandhi vs. Union of India reported in (1978) 1 SCC 248 ("Maneka"), the minority judgment of Subba Rao, J. in Kharak Singh was specifically approved of and the decision of the majority was overruled.

5. While addressing these challenges, the Bench of three Judges of this Court took note of several decisions of this Court in which the right to privacy has been held to be a constitutionally protected fundamental right. Those decisions include : Gobind vs. State of Madhya Pradesh reported in (1975) 2 SCC 148 ("Gobind"), R. Rajagopal vs. State of Tamil Nadu reported in (1994) 6 SCC 632 ("Rajagopal") and People's Union for Civil Liberties vs. Union of India reported in (1997) 1 SCC 301 ("PUCL"). These subsequent decisions which affirmed the existence of a constitutionally protected right of privacy, were rendered by Benches of a strength smaller than those in M P Sharma and Kharak Singh. Faced with this predicament and having due regard to the far-reaching questions of importance involving interpretation of the Constitution, it was felt that institutional integrity and judicial discipline would require a reference to a larger Bench. Hence the Bench of three learned judges observed in its order dated 11-8-2015 in K. S. Puttaswamy vs. Union of India (2015) 8 SCC 735:.....

13. Therefore, in our opinion to give a quietus to the kind of controversy raised in this batch of cases once for all, it is better that the ratio decidendi of M.P. Sharma (supra) and Kharak Singh (supra) is scrutinized and the jurisprudential correctness of the subsequent decisions of this Court where the right to privacy is either asserted or referred be examined and authoritatively decided by a Bench of appropriate strength." (emphasis supplied)

31. Thus Supreme Court found that there was a conflict situation existing with regard to fundamental right to privacy under the Indian Constitution. Supreme Court in Puttaswamy12 case considered at length and detailed the right to privacy. To fully appreciate the same it is necessary to refer to the said judgment in some detail. The majority view is given by Dr. Justice D. Y. Chandrachud and in addition concurring judgments are also given by other members of the bench. Relevant portions for our purposes are:

"23. Following the decision in Maneka Gandhi vs. Union of India reported in (1978) 1 SCC 248, the established constitutional doctrine is that the expression "personal liberty" in Article 21 covers a variety of rights, some of which "have been raised to the status of distinct fundamental rights" and given additional protection under Article 19. Consequently, in Satwant Singh Sawhney vs. D. Ramaratham reported in (1967) 3 SCR 525, the right to travel abroad was held to be subsumed within Article 21 as a consequence of which any deprivation of that right could be only by a "procedure established by law". Prior to the enactment of the Passports Act, 1967, there was no law regulating the right to travel abroad as a result of which the order of the Passport Officer refusing a passport was held to be invalid. The decision in Maneka (supra) carried the constitutional principle of the over-lapping nature of fundamental rights to its logical conclusion. Reasonableness which is the foundation of the guarantee against arbitrary State action under Article 14 infuses Article 21. A law which provides for a deprivation of life or personal liberty under Article 21 must lay down not just any procedure but a procedure which is fair, just and reasonable.

24. The decisions in M. P. Sharma vs. Satish Chandra reported in AIR 1954 SC 300 and Kharak Singh vs. State of U.P. reported in AIR 1963 SC 1295 adopted a doctrinal position on the relationship between Articles 19 and 21, based on the view of the majority in A.K. Gopalan vs. State of Madras reported in AIR 1950 SC 27. This view stands abrogated particularly by the judgment in Rustom Cavasjee Cooper vs. Union of India reported in (1978) 1 SCC 248 and the subsequent statement of doctrine in Maneka (supra). The decision in Maneka (supra), in fact, expressly recognized that it is the dissenting judgment of Subba Rao, J. in Kharak Singh (supra) which represents the exposition of the correct constitutional principle. The jurisprudential foundation which held the field sixty-three years ago in M. P. Sharma (supra) and fifty-five years ago in Kharak Singh (supra) has given way to what is now a settled position in constitutional law. Firstly, the fundamental rights emanate from basic notions of liberty and dignity and the enumeration of some facets of liberty as distinctly protected rights under Article 19 does not denude Article 21 of its expansive ambit. Secondly, the validity of a law which infringes the fundamental rights has to be tested not with reference to the object of State action but on the basis of its effect on the guarantees of freedom. Thirdly, the requirement of Article 14 that State action must not be arbitrary and must fulfil the requirement of reasonableness, imparts meaning to the constitutional guarantees in Part III.

25. The doctrinal invalidation of the basic premise underlying the decisions in M. P. Sharma (supra) and Kharak Singh (supra) still leaves the issue of whether privacy is a right protected by Part III of the Constitution open for consideration. There are observations in both decisions that the Constitution does not contain a specific protection of the right to privacy. Presently, the matter can be looked at from the perspective of what actually was the controversy in the two cases." (emphasis supplied)

32. The Supreme Court referred to large number of judgments, two out of which relate to the issues in the present case and are thus quoted:

"62. The Court in R. Rajagopal vs. State of Tamil Nadu reported in (1994) 6 SCC 632 held that neither the State nor can its officials impose prior restrictions on the publication of an autobiography of a convict. In the course of its summary of the decision, the Court held: (SCC pp.649-50, para 26)

"(1) The right to privacy is implicit in the right to life and liberty guaranteed to the citizens of this country by Article 21. It is a "right to be let alone". A citizen has a right to safeguard the privacy of his own, his family, marriage, procreation, motherhood, child-bearing and education among other matters. None can publish anything concerning the above matters without his consent -- whether truthful or otherwise and whether laudatory or critical. If he does so, he would be violating the right to privacy of the person concerned and would be liable in an action for damages. Position may, however, be different, if a person voluntarily thrusts himself into controversy or voluntarily invites or raises a controversy.

88. In Ram Jethmalani vs. Union of India reported in (2011) 8 SCC 1: (2011) 3 SCC (Cri) 310 ("Ram Jethmalani"), a Bench of two Judges was dealing with a public interest litigation concerned with unaccounted monies and seeking the appointment of a Special Investigating Team to follow and investigate a money trail. This Court held that the revelation of the details of the bank accounts of individuals without the establishment of a prima facie ground of wrongdoing would be a violation of the right to privacy. This Court observed thus: (SCC pp.35-36, paras 83 & 84)

"83. Right to privacy is an integral part of right to life. This is a cherished constitutional value, and it is important that human beings be allowed domains of freedom that are free of public scrutiny unless they act in an unlawful manner*. We understand and appreciate the fact that the situation with respect to unaccounted for monies is extremely grave. Nevertheless, as constitutional adjudicators we always have to be mindful of preserving the sanctity of constitutional values, and hasty steps that derogate from fundamental rights, whether urged by Governments or private citizens, howsoever well-meaning they may be, have to be necessarily very carefully scrutinised. The solution for the problem of abrogation of one zone of constitutional values cannot be the creation of another zone of abrogation of constitutional values.

84. The rights of citizens, to effectively seek the protection of fundamental rights, under clause (1) of Article 32 have to be balanced against the rights of citizens and persons under Article 21.The latter cannot be sacrificed on the anvil of fervid desire to find instantaneous solutions to systemic problems such as unaccounted for monies, for it would lead to dangerous circumstances, in which vigilante investigations, inquisitions and rabble rousing, by masses of other citizens could become the order of the day. The right of citizens to petition this Court for upholding of fundamental rights is granted in order that citizens, inter alia, are ever vigilant about the functioning of the State in order to protect the constitutional project. That right cannot be extended to being inquisitors of fellow citizens. An inquisitorial order, where citizens' fundamental right to privacy is breached by fellow citizens is destructive of social order. The notion of fundamental rights, such as a right to privacy as part of right to life, is not merely that the State is enjoined from derogating from them. It also includes the responsibility of the State to uphold them against the actions of others in the society, even in the context of exercise of fundamental rights by those others." (emphasis supplied)

33. The Supreme Court further stated:

"108. Over the last four decades, our constitutional jurisprudence has recognised the inseparable relationship between protection of life and liberty with dignity. Dignity as a constitutional value finds expression in the Preamble. The constitutional vision seeks the realisation of justice (social, economic and political); liberty (of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship); equality (as a guarantee against arbitrary treatment of individuals) and fraternity (which assures a life of dignity to every individual). These constitutional precepts exist in unity to facilitate a humane and compassionate society. The individual is the focal point of the Constitution because it is in the realisation of individual rights that the collective well-being of the community is determined. Human dignity is an integral part of the Constitution. Reflections of dignity are found in the guarantee against arbitrariness (Article 14), the lamps of freedom (Article 19) and in the right to life and personal liberty (Article 21).

118. Life is precious in itself. But life is worth living because of the freedoms which enable each individual to live life as it should be lived. The best decisions on how life should be lived are entrusted to the individual. They are continuously shaped by the social milieu in which individuals exist. The duty of the State is to safeguard the ability to take decisions - the autonomy of the individual - and not to dictate those decisions.

"Life' within the meaning of Article 21 is not confined to the integrity of the physical body. The right comprehends one's being in its fullest sense. That which facilitates the fulfilment of life is as much within the protection of the guarantee of life.

119. To live is to live with dignity. The draftsmen of the Constitution defined their vision of the society in which constitutional values would be attained by emphasising, among other freedoms, liberty and dignity. So fundamental is dignity that it permeates the core of the rights guaranteed to the individual by Part III. Dignity is the core which unites the fundamental rights because the fundamental rights seek to achieve for each individual the dignity of existence. Privacy with its attendant values assures dignity to the individual and it is only when life can be enjoyed with dignity can liberty be of true substance. Privacy ensures the fulfilment of dignity and is a core value which the protection of life and liberty is intended to achieve.

260. The impact of the decision in Rustom Cavasjee Cooper vs. Union of India reported in (1970) 1 SCC 248 is to establish a link between the fundamental rights guaranteed by Part III of the Constitution. The immediate consequence of the decision is that a law which restricts the personal liberties contained in Article 19 must meet the test of permissible restrictions contemplated by Clauses (2) to (6) in relation to the fundamental freedom which is infringed. Moreover, since the fundamental rights are interrelated, Article 21 is no longer to be construed as a residue of rights which are not specifically enumerated in Article 19. Both sets of rights overlap and hence a law which affects one of the personal freedoms under Article 19would, in addition to the requirement of meeting the permissible restrictions contemplated in clauses (2) to (6), have to meet the parameters of a valid "procedure established by law" under Article 21 where it impacts on life or personal liberty. The law would be assessed not with reference to its object but on the basis of its effect and impact on the fundamental rights. Coupled with the breakdown of the theory that the fundamental rights are watertight compartments, the post-Maneka (supra) jurisprudence infused the test of fairness and reasonableness in determining whether the "procedure established by law" passes muster under Article 21...

262. Technology, as we experience it today is far different from what it was in the lives of the generation which drafted the Constitution. Information technology together with the internet and the social media and all their attendant applications have rapidly altered the course of life in the last decade. Today's technology renders models of application of a few years ago obsolescent. Hence, it would be an injustice both to the draftsmen of the Constitution as well as to the document which they sanctified to constrict its interpretation to an originalist interpretation. Today's problems have to be adjudged by a vibrant application of constitutional doctrine and cannot be frozen by a vision suited to a radically different society. We describe the Constitution as a living instrument simply for the reason that while it is a document which enunciates eternal values for Indian society, it possesses the resilience necessary to ensure its continued relevance. Its continued relevance lies precisely in its ability to allow succeeding generations to apply the principles on which it has been founded to find innovative solutions to intractable problems of their times. In doing so, we must equally understand that our solutions must continuously undergo a process of re-engineering.

264. The submission betrays lack of understanding of the reason why rights are protected in the first place as entrenched guarantees in a Bill of Rights or, as in the case of the Indian Constitution, as part of the fundamental rights. Elevating a right to the position of a constitutionally protected right places it beyond the pale of legislative majorities. When a constitutional right such as the right to equality or the right to life assumes the character of being a part of the basic structure of the Constitution, it assumes inviolable status: inviolability even in the face of the power of amendment. Ordinary legislation is not beyond the pale of legislative modification. A statutory right can be modified, curtailed or annulled by a simple enactment of the legislature. In other words, statutory rights are subject to the compulsion of legislative majorities. The purpose of infusing a right with a constitutional element is precisely to provide it a sense of immunity from popular opinion and, as its reflection, from legislative annulment. Constitutionally protected rights embody the liberal belief that personal liberties of the individual are so sacrosanct that it is necessary to ensconce them in a protective shell that places them beyond the pale of ordinary legislation. To negate a constitutional right on the ground that there is an available statutory protection is to invert constitutional theory. As a matter of fact, legislative protection is in many cases, an acknowledgment and recognition of a constitutional right which needs to be effectuated and enforced through protective laws. For instance, the provisions of Section 8(1)(j) of the Right to Information Act, 2005 which contain an exemption from the disclosure of information refer to such information which would cause an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of the individual.

291. Having noticed this, the evolution of Article 21, since the decision in Rustom Cavasjee Cooper Vs. Union of India reported in (1970) 1 SCC 248 indicates two major areas of change. First, the fundamental rights are no longer regarded as isolated silos or watertight compartments. In consequence, Article 14 has been held to animate the content of Article 21. Second, the expression "procedure established by law" in Article 21 does not connote a formalistic requirement of a mere presence of procedure in enacted law. That expression has been held to signify the content of the procedure and its quality which must be fair, just and reasonable.The mere fact that the law provides for the deprivation of life or personal liberty is not sufficient to conclude its validity and the procedure to be constitutionally valid must be fair, just and reasonable. The quality of reasonableness does not attach only to the content of the procedure which the law prescribes with reference to Article 21 but to the content of the law itself. In other words, the requirement of Article 21 is not fulfilled only by the enactment of fair and reasonable procedure under the law and a law which does so may yet be susceptible to challenge on the ground that its content does not accord with the requirements of a valid law. The law is open to substantive challenge on the ground that it violates the fundamental right.

297. What, then, does privacy postulate? Privacy postulates the reservation of a private space for the individual, described as the right to be let alone. The concept is founded on the autonomy of the individual. The ability of an individual to make choices lies at the core of the human personality. The notion of privacy enables the individual to assert and control the human element which is inseparable from the personality of the individual. The inviolable nature of the human personality is manifested in the ability to make decisions on matters intimate to human life. The autonomy of the individual is associated over matters which can be kept private. These are concerns over which there is a legitimate expectation of privacy. The body and the mind are inseparable elements of the human personality. The integrity of the body and the sanctity of the mind can exist on the foundation that each individual possesses an inalienable ability and right to preserve a private space in which the human personality can develop. Without the ability to make choices, the inviolability of the personality would be in doubt. Recognizing a zone of privacy is but an acknowledgment that each individual must be entitled to chart and pursue the course of development of personality. Hence privacy is a postulate of human dignity itself. Thoughts and behavioural patterns which are intimate to an individual are entitled to a zone of privacy where one is free of social expectations. In that zone of privacy, an individual is not judged by others. Privacy enables each individual to take crucial decisions which find expression in the human personality. It enables individuals to preserve their beliefs, thoughts, expressions, ideas, ideologies, preferences and choices against societal demands of homogeneity. Privacy is an intrinsic recognition of heterogeneity, of the right of the individual to be different and to stand against the tide of conformity in creating a zone of solitude. Privacy protects the individual from the searching glare of publicity in matters which are personal to his or her life*. Privacy attaches to the person and not to the place where it is associated. Privacy constitutes the foundation of all liberty because it is in privacy that the individual can decide how liberty is best exercised. Individual dignity and privacy are inextricably linked in a pattern woven out of a thread of diversity into the fabric of a plural culture.*

298. Privacy of the individual is an essential aspect of dignity. Dignity has both an intrinsic and instrumental value. As an intrinsic value, human dignity is an entitlement or a constitutionally protected interest in itself. In its instrumental facet, dignity and freedom are inseparably intertwined, each being a facilitative tool to achieve the other. The ability of the individual to protect a zone of privacy enables the realization of the full value of life and liberty. Liberty has a broader meaning of which privacy is a subset. All liberties may not be exercised in privacy. Yet others can be fulfilled only within a private space. Privacy enables the individual to retain the autonomy of the body and mind. The autonomy of the individual is the ability to make decisions on vital matters of concern to life. Privacy has not been couched as an independent fundamental right. But that does not detract from the constitutional protection afforded to it, once the true nature of privacy and its relationship with those fundamental rights which are expressly protected is understood. Privacy lies across the spectrum of protected freedoms*. The guarantee of equality is a guarantee against arbitrary State action. It prevents the State from discriminating between individuals. The destruction by the State of a sanctified personal space whether of the body or of the mind is violative of the guarantee against arbitrary State action. Privacy of the body entitles an individual to the integrity of the physical aspects of personhood. The intersection between one's mental integrity and privacy entitles the individual to freedom of thought, the freedom to believe in what is right, and the freedom of self-determination. When these guarantees intersect with gender, they create a private space which protects all those elements which are crucial to gender identity.* The family, marriage, procreation and sexual orientation are all integral to the dignity of the individual. Above all, the privacy of the individual recognises an inviolable right to determine how freedom shall be exercised*. An individual may perceive that the best form of expression is to remain silent. Silence postulates a realm of privacy. An artist finds reflection of the soul in a creative endeavour. A writer expresses the outcome of a process of thought. A musician contemplates upon notes which musically lead to silence. The silence, which lies within, reflects on the ability to choose how to convey thoughts and ideas or interact with others. These are crucial aspects of personhood. The freedoms under Article 19 can be fulfilled where the individual is entitled to decide upon his or her preferences. Read in conjunction with Article 21, liberty enables the individual to have a choice of preferences on various facets of life* including what and how one will eat, the way one will dress, the faith one will espouse and a myriad other matters on which autonomy and self-determination require a choice to be made within the privacy of the mind. The constitutional right to the freedom of religion under Article 25 has implicit within it the ability to choose a faith and the freedom to express or not express those choices to the world. These are some illustrations of the manner in which privacy facilitates freedom and is intrinsic to the exercise of liberty. The Constitution does not contain a separate article telling us that privacy has been declared to be a fundamental right. Nor have we tagged the provisions of Part III with an alpha suffixed right of privacy: this is not an act of judicial redrafting. Dignity cannot exist without privacy. Both reside within the inalienable values of life, liberty and freedom which the Constitution has recognised. Privacy is the ultimate expression of the sanctity of the individual. It is a constitutional value which straddles across the spectrum of fundamental rights and protects for the individual a zone of choice and self-determination.

316. The judgment in M. P. Sharma vs. Satish Chandra reported in AIR 1954 SC 300 holds essentially that in the absence of a provision similar to the Fourth Amendment to the US Constitution, the right to privacy cannot be read into the provisions of Article 20(3) of the Indian Constitution. The judgment does not specifically adjudicate on whether a right to privacy would arise from any of the other provisions of the rights guaranteed by Part III including Article 21 and Article 19. The observation that privacy is not a right guaranteed by the Indian Constitution is not reflective of the correct position. M. P. Sharma (supra) is overruled to the extent to which it indicates to the contrary.

317. Kharak Singh vs. State of U.P. reported in AIR 1963 SC 1295 has correctly held that the content of the expression "life" under Article 21 means not merely the right to a person's "animal existence" and that the expression "personal liberty" is a guarantee against invasion into the sanctity of a person's home or an intrusion into personal security. Kharak Singh (supra) also correctly laid down that the dignity of the individual must lend content to the meaning of "personal liberty". The first part of the decision in Kharak Singh (supra) which invalidated domiciliary visits at night on the ground that they violated ordered liberty is an implicit recognition of the right to privacy. The second part of the decision, however, which holds that the right to privacy is not a guaranteed right under our Constitution, is not reflective of the correct position. Similarly, Kharak Singh (supra) reliance upon the decision of the majority in A.K. Gopalan vs. State of Madras reported in AIR 1950 SC 27 is not reflective of the correct position in view of the decisions in Rustom Cavasjee Cooper vs. Union of India reported in (1970) 1 SCC 248 and in Maneka Gandhi vs. Union of India reported in (1978) 1 SCC 248. Kharak Singh (supra) to the extent that it holds that the right to privacy is not protected under the Indian Constitution is overruled.

318. Life and personal liberty are inalienable rights. These are rights which are inseparable from a dignified human existence. The dignity of the individual, equality between human beings and the quest for liberty are the foundational pillars of the Indian Constitution; 319. Life and personal liberty are not creations of the Constitution. These rights are recognised by the Constitution as inhering in each individual as an intrinsic and inseparable part of the human element which dwells within

320. Privacy is a constitutionally protected right which emerges primarily from the guarantee of life and personal liberty in Article 21 of the Constitution. Elements of privacy also arise in varying contexts from the other facets of freedom and dignity recognised and guaranteed by the fundamental rights contained in Part III.

321. Judicial recognition of the existence of a constitutional right of privacy is not an exercise in the nature of amending the Constitution nor is the Court embarking on a constitutional function of that nature which is entrusted to Parliament.

322. Privacy is the constitutional core of human dignity. Privacy has both a normative and descriptive function. At a normative level privacy subserves those eternal values upon which the guarantees of life, liberty and freedom are founded. At a descriptive level, privacy postulates a bundle of entitlements and interests which lie at the foundation of ordered liberty.

323. Privacy includes at its core the preservation of personal intimacies, the sanctity of family life, marriage, procreation, the home and sexual orientation. Privacy also connotes a right to be left alone. Privacy safeguards individual autonomy and recognises the ability of the individual to control vital aspects of his or her life. Personal choices governing a way of life are intrinsic to privacy*. Privacy protects heterogeneity and recognises the plurality and diversity of our culture. While the legitimate expectation of privacy may vary from the intimate zone to the private zone and from the private to the public arenas, it is important to underscore that privacy is not lost or surrendered merely because the individual is in a public place. Privacy attaches to the person since it is an essential facet of the dignity of the human being;" (emphasis supplied)*

34. Concurring with the same, Justice Chelameswar in his separate judgment, in paragraph 375 states:

"All liberal democracies believe that the State should not have unqualified authority to intrude into certain aspects of human life and that the authority should be limited by parameters constitutionally fixed. Fundamental rights are the only constitutional firewall to prevent State's interference with those core freedoms constituting liberty of a human being. The right to privacy is certainly one of the core freedoms which is to be defended. It is part of liberty within the meaning of that expression in Article 21."

(emphasis supplied)

35. Again agreeing, Chief Justice S. A. Bobde (then Justice S.A. Bobde) states in paragraphs 402, 403 and 407:

"402. "Privacy" is "[t]he condition or state of being free from public attention to intrusion into or interference with one's acts or decisions*", Black's Law Dictionary (Bryan Garner Edition) 3783 (2004). The right to be in this condition has been described as "the right to be let alone", Samuel D. Warren and Louis D. Brandeis, "The Right To Privacy", 4 HARV L REV 193 (1890).* What seems to be essential to privacy is the power to seclude oneself and keep others from intruding it in any way. These intrusions may be physical or visual, and may take any of several forms including peeping over one's shoulder to eavesdropping directly or through instruments, devices or technological aids.

403. Every individual is entitled to perform his actions in private. In other words, she is entitled to be in a state of repose and to work without being disturbed, or otherwise observed or spied upon. The entitlement to such a condition is not confined only to intimate spaces such as the bedroom or the washroom but goes with a person wherever he is, even in a public place....."

407. Undoubtedly, privacy exists, as the foregoing demonstrates, as a verifiable fact in all civilized societies. But privacy does not stop at being merely a descriptive claim. It also embodies a normative one. The normative case for privacy is intuitively simple. Nature has clothed man, amongst other things, with dignity and liberty so that he may be free to do what he will consistent with the freedom of another and to develop his faculties to the fullest measure necessary to live in happiness and peace. The Constitution, through its Part III, enumerates many of these freedoms and their corresponding rights as fundamental rights. Privacy is an essential condition for the exercise of most of these freedoms. Ex facie, every right which is integral to the constitutional rights to dignity, life, personal liberty and freedom, as indeed the right to privacy is, must itself be regarded as a fundamental right."

(emphasis supplied)

36. Justice R. F. Nariman also concurring in his separate judgment states:

"521. In the Indian context, a fundamental right to privacy would cover at least the following three aspects*:*

- Privacy that involves the person i.e. when there is some invasion by the State of a person's rights relatable to his physical body, such as the right to move freely;

- Informational privacy which does not deal with a person's body but deals with a person's mind, and therefore recognizes that an individual may have control over the dissemination of material that is personal to him. Unauthorised use of such information may, therefore lead to infringement of this right; and

- The privacy of choice, which protects an individual's autonomy over fundamental personal choices*.*

For instance, we can ground physical privacy or privacy relating to the body in Articles 19(1)(d) and (e) read with Article 21; ground personal information privacy under Article 21; and the privacy of choice in Articles 19(1)(a) to (c), 20(3), 21 and 25. The argument based on "privacy" being a vague and nebulous concept need not, therefore, detain us.

522. We have been referred to the Preamble of the Constitution, which can be said to reflect core constitutional values. The core value of the nation being democratic, for example, would be hollow unless persons in a democracy are able to develop fully in order to make informed choices for themselves which affect their daily lives and their choice of how they are to be governed."

(emphasis supplied)

37. Thus, the nine-Judges Bench concluded:

"644. The right of privacy is a fundamental right. It is a right which protects the inner sphere of the individual from interference from both State, and non-State actors and allows the individuals to make autonomous life choices.

645. It was rightly expressed on behalf of the petitioners that the technology has made it possible to enter a citizen's house without knocking at his/her door and this is equally possible both by the State and non-State actors. It is an individual's choice as to who enters his house, how he lives and in what relationship. The privacy of the home must protect the family, marriage, procreation and sexual orientation which are all important aspects of dignity.

646. If the individual permits someone to enter the house it does not mean that others can enter the house. The only check and balance is that it should not harm the other individual or affect his or her rights. This applies both to the physical form and to technology. In an era where there are wide, varied, social and cultural norms and more so in a country like ours which prides itself on its diversity, privacy is one of the most important rights to be protected both against State and non-State actors and be recognized as a fundamental right*. How it thereafter works out in its inter-play with other fundamental rights and when such restrictions would become necessary would depend on the factual matrix of each case. That it may give rise to more litigation can hardly be the reason not to recognize this important, natural, primordial right as a fundamental right." (emphasis supplied)*

38. Again the issue with regard to the personal rights of an individual came up before a Constitution Bench of Supreme Court in the case of Navtej Singh Johar and others vs. Union of India13. The vires of Section 377 I.P.C. came under consideration in the said case. The Court held:

"95. Thus, we are required to keep in view the dynamic concepts inherent in the Constitution that have the potential to enable and urge the constitutional courts to beam with expansionism that really grows to adapt to the ever-changing circumstances without losing the identity of the Constitution. The idea of identity of the individual and the constitutional legitimacy behind the same is of immense significance. Therefore, in this context, the duty of the constitutional courts gets accentuated. We emphasize on the role of the constitutional courts in realizing the evolving nature of this living instrument. Through its dynamic and purposive interpretative approach, the judiciary must strive to breathe life into the Constitution and not render the document a collection of mere dead letters. The following observations made in Ashok Gupta vs. State of U.P. reported in (1997) 5 SCC 201 further throws light on this role of the courts:- (SCC p.244, para 51)

"51. Therefore, it is but the duty of the Court to supply vitality, blood and flesh, to balance the competing rights by interpreting the principles, to the language or the words contained in the living and organic Constitution, broadly and liberally."

110. The Supreme Court as well as other constitutional courts have time and again realized that in a society undergoing fast social and economic change, static judicial interpretation of the Constitution would stultify the spirit of the Constitution. Accordingly, the constitutional courts, while viewing the Constitution as a transformative document, have ardently fulfilled their obligation to act as the sentinel on qui vive for guarding the rights of all individuals irrespective of their sex, choice and sexual orientation.

121. An argument is sometimes advanced that what is permissible between two adults engaged in acceptable sexual activity is different in the case of two individuals of the same sex, be it homosexuals or lesbians, and the ground of difference is supported by social standardization. Such an argument ignores the individual orientation, which is naturally natural, and disrobes the individual of his/her identity and the inherent dignity and choice attached to his/her being.

122. The principle of transformative constitutionalism also places upon the judicial arm of the State a duty to ensure and uphold the supremacy of the Constitution, while at the same time ensuring that a sense of transformation is ushered constantly and endlessly in the society by interpreting and enforcing the Constitution as well as other provisions of law in consonance with the avowed object. The idea is to steer the country and its institutions in a democratic egalitarian direction where there is increased protection of fundamental rights and other freedoms. It is in this way that transformative constitutionalism attains the status of an ideal model imbibing the philosophy and morals of constitutionalism and fostering greater respect for human rights. It ought to be remembered that the Constitution is not a mere parchment; it derives its strength from the ideals and values enshrined in it. However, it is only when we adhere to constitutionalism as the supreme creed and faith and develop a constitutional culture to protect the fundamental rights of an individual that we can preserve and strengthen the values of our compassionate Constitution.

131. The duty of the constitutional courts is to adjudge the validity of law on well-established principles, namely, legislative competence or violations of fundamental rights or of any other constitutional provisions. At the same time, it is expected from the courts as the final arbiter of the Constitution to uphold the cherished principles of the Constitution and not to be remotely guided by majoritarian view or popular perception. The Court has to be guided by the conception of constitutional morality and not by the societal morality.

167. The above authorities capture the essence of the right to privacy. There can be no doubt that an individual also has a right to a union under Article 21 of the Constitution. When we say union, we do not mean the union of marriage, though marriage is a union. As a concept, union also means companionship in every sense of the word, be it physical, mental, sexual or emotional. The LGBT community is seeking realisation of its basic right to companionship, so long as such a companionship is consensual, free from the vice of deceit, force, coercion and does not result in violation of the fundamental rights of others.

613. The choice of a partner, the desire for personal intimacy and the yearning to find love and fulfilment in human relationships have a universal appeal, straddling age and time. In protecting consensual intimacies, the Constitution adopts a simple principle: the State has no business to intrude into these personal matters*. Nor can societal notions of heteronormativity regulate constitutional liberties based on sexual orientation." (emphasis supplied)*

39. One of the issues before the court was the considerations to be taken into account by a court when a fundamental right is violated by a law. The Supreme Court held:

"428. When the constitutionality of a law is challenged on the ground that it violates the guarantees in Part III of the Constitution, what is determinative is its effect on the infringement of fundamental rights. This affords the guaranteed freedoms their true potential against a claim by the state that the infringement of the right was not the object of the provision. It is not the object of the law which impairs the rights of the citizens. Nor is the form of the action taken determinative of the protection that can be claimed. It is the effect of the law upon the fundamental right which calls the courts to step in and remedy the violation. The individual is aggrieved because the law hurts. The hurt to the individual is measured by the violation of a protected right. Hence, while assessing whether a law infringes a fundamental right, it is not the intention of the lawmaker that is determinative, but whether the effect or operation of the law infringes fundamental rights*." (emphasis supplied)*

Thus even in the said judgment, the Constitutional Bench again found that the personal liberty goes not merely with regard to matters of marriage but to the union of two persons, even if they belong to same sex.

40. The law as declared by the Supreme Court, since the case of Lata Singh5 till the decision in Navtej Singh Johar13, has travelled a long distance defining fundamental rights of personal liberty and of privacy. "once a person becomes a major he or she can marry whosoever he/she likes" (Lata Singh5); "an inherent aspect of Article 21 of the Constitution would be the freedom of choice in marriage"(Indian Woman Says Gang-Raped on Orders of Village Court8); "choice of woman in choosing her partner in life is a legitimate constitutional right. It is founded on individual choice that is recognized in the Constitution under Article 19" (Asha Ranjan10); "the consent of the family or the community or the clan is not necessary once the two adult individuals agree to enter into a wedlock.....it is a manifestation of their choice which is recognized under Articles 19 and 21 of the Constitution"(Shakti Vahini1); "Neither the state nor the law can dictate a choice of partners or limit the free ability of every person to decide on these matters..... Social approval for intimate personal decisions is not the basis for recognising them."(Shafin Jahan11) and finally the nine-judges bench "Privacy is the ultimate expression of the sanctity of the individual. It is a constitutional value which straddles across the spectrum of fundamental rights and protects for the individual a zone of choice and self-determination.....privacy is one of the most important rights to be protected both against State and non-State actors and be recognized as a fundamental right."(Puttuswamy12) is a long chain of decisions growing stronger with time and firmly establishing personal liberty and privacy to be fundamental rights including within their sphere right to choose partner without interference from State, family or society.

41. In view of the changed social circumstances and progress in laws noted and proposed by the Law Commission as well as law declared by the aforesaid judgments of the Supreme Court, it would be cruel and unethical to force the present generation living with its current needs and expectations to follow the customs and traditions adopted by a generation living nearly 150 years back for its social needs and circumstances, which violates fundamental rights recognized by the courts of the day. In view of law settled in Satyawati Sharma3 and Kashmir

Singh4as stated above, it is the duty of this court to revisit the interpretation of the procedure under challenge as provided in the Act of 1954.

42. In Githa Hariharan vs. Reserve Bank of India14,Supreme Court restates the principle of interpretation of statute, that, where two constructions of the statute are possible court will uphold the one that is in consonance with the Constitution of India rather one that would go against it.

"9. .....It is well settled that if on one construction a given statute will become unconstitutional, whereas on another construction which may be open, the statute remains within the constitutional limits, the court will prefer the latter on the ground that the legislature is presumed to have acted in accordance with the Constitution and courts generally lean in favour of the constitutionality of the statutory provisions.

40. ...It is now settled law that a narrow pedantic interpretation running counter to the constitutional mandate ought always to be avoided unless, of course, the same makes a violent departure from the legislative intent..."

43. In N. Kannadasan vs. Ajoy Khose15 again Supreme Court in held:

"71. ...Constitutionalism envisages that all laws including the constitutional provisions should be interpreted so as to uphold the basic features of the constitution."

44. In Puttuswamy12 also the guidelines provided by the Supreme Court in paragraph 260 "The law would be assessed not with reference to its object but on the basis of its effect and impact on the fundamental rights.....The mere fact that the law provides for the deprivation of life or personal liberty is not sufficient to conclude its validity and the procedure to be constitutionally valid must be fair, just and reasonable. The quality of reasonableness does not attach only to the content of the procedure which the law prescribes with reference to Article 21 but to the content of the law itself" and in paragraph 325 are "A law which encroaches upon privacy will have to withstand the touchstone of permissible restrictions on fundamental rights. In the context of Article 21 an invasion of privacy must be justified on the basis of a law which stipulates a procedure which is fair, just and reasonable. The law must also be valid with reference to the encroachment on life and personal liberty under Article. An invasion of life or personal liberty must meet the threefold requirement of (i) legality, which postulates the existence of law; (ii) need, defined in terms of a legitimate State aim; and (iii) proportionality which ensures a rational nexus between the objects and the means adopted to achieve them."

45. The interpretation of Sections 6 and 7 read with Section 46 containing the procedure of publication of notice and inviting objections to the intended marriage in Act of 1954 thus has to be such that would uphold the fundamental rights and not violate the same. In case the same on their simplistic reading are held mandatory, as per the law declared today, they would invade in the fundamental rights of liberty and privacy, including within its sphere freedom to choose for marriage without interference from state and non-state actors, of the persons concerned. Further, note should also be taken of the fact that marriages in India can be performed either under the personal laws or under the Act of 1954. In fact, even today, majority of marriages are performed under the personal laws. These marriages under personal laws are performed by a priest of the religion followed by the parties. Such marriages under any personal law do not require publication of any notice or calling for objections with regard to such a marriage. The individuals intending to marry approach the priest who performs the marriage as per the customs and rituals of the said religion. Their orally saying that they are competent to marry is regarded sufficient for solemnizing marriage under the personal laws. In case any party violates any condition of the said personal law, for example, if one of the parties conceals his/her marital status and commits second marriage; marriage is barred under any law (one of the parties is a minor and conceals age or marriage is within the degrees of the prohibited relationship etc.); the consent of any party is obtained by deceit or under pressure; or any other such circumstances arises, the issues are later decided by a court of law. But, the marriage takes place without any interference from any corner, even if it is later to be declared void. However, under Sections 6 and 7 of Act of 1954 the persons intending to solemnize a marriage are required to give a notice and the Marriage Officer thereafter is made duty bound to publish the notice for a period of 30 days and invite objections with regard to the same. Any person can object to the marriage on the ground that it violates any of the condition of Section 4 of Act of 1954. None of the conditions under Section 4 of Act of 1954 is such, violation of which would impact rights of any person in any manner different than the same would in case of a marriage under any personal law. Even if a marriage takes place in violation of any of the conditions of Section 4, legal consequences would follow and the courts can decide upon the same, including declare such a marriage to be void, as they do under the personal laws. There is no apparent reasonable purpose achieved by making the procedure to be more protective or obstructive under the Act of 1954, under which much less numbers of marriages are taking place, than procedure under the other personal laws, more particularly when this discrimination violates the fundamental rights of the class of persons adopting the Act of 1954 for their marriage.

46. However, in case, such individuals applying to solemnize their marriage under the Act of 1954 themselves by their free choice desire that they would like to have more information about their counterparts, they can definitely opt for publication of notice under Section 6 and further procedure with regard to objections to be followed. Such publication of notice and further procedure would not be violative of their fundamental rights as they adopt the same of their free will. Therefore, the requirement of publication of notice under Section 6 and inviting/entertaining objections under Section 7 can only be read as directory in nature, to be given effect only on request of parties to the intended marriage and not otherwise.

47. Thus, this Court mandates that while giving notice under Section 5 of the Act of 1954 it shall be optional for the parties to the intended marriage to make a request in writing to the Marriage Officer to publish or not to publish a notice under Section 6 and follow the procedure of objections as prescribed under the Act of 1954. In case they do not make such a request for publication of notice in writing, while giving notice under Section 5 of the Act, the Marriage Officer shall not publish any such notice or entertain objections to the intended marriage and proceed with the solemnization of the marriage. It goes without saying that it shall be open for the Marriage Officer, while solemnizing any marriage under the Act of 1954, to verify the identification, age and valid consent of the parties or otherwise their competence to marry under the said Act. In case he has any doubt, it shall be open for him to ask for appropriate details/proof as per the facts of the case.

48. Since the matter relates to protection of fundamental rights of large number of persons, the Senior Registrar of this Court shall ensure that a copy of this order is communicated to the Chief Secretary of the State of U.P. who shall forthwith communicate the same to all the Marriage Officers of the State and other concerned authorities as expeditiously as possible.

49. With the aforesaid, the present writ petition stands disposed of.

Shraddha Tripathi ...Petitioner
Versus
The Election Commission of India & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Shraddha Tripathi (In Per.)

Counsel for the Respondents:

(A) Civil Law - Election Symbols (Reservation and Allotment) Orders, 1968 - The Conduct of Election Rules, 1961: Rule 10(4) - Representation of Peoples Act, 1951: Section 38 Election - Reservation and Allotment of Symbols - - The Constitution of India: Article 324, 14- There being a valid classification of political parties between recognized political parties and unrecognized political parties as also independent candidates, based on such valid classification, there exists a valid distinction for reservation and allotment of symbols to such parties. Allotment of reserved or free symbols to candidates is made in relation to an election, however, reservation of symbols for a National party or a State part is not confined to any particular election but is good for all time as long as the said party continues to be recognized as per law. There is nothing in the Act, 1951, Rules, 1961 or the Order, 1968 that symbols can be reserved only after notification of elections, whereas, allotment of symbols takes place at the time of elections and not prior to its notification. (Para 43, 46)

The reservation of symbols is till such period as the political party continues to be recognized. The day it is derecognized or its recognition is withdrawn under Paragraph 16A of the Order, 1968 or any other provision which may be attracted, it will cease to have the benefit of the symbol reserved for it except in so far as is permitted under Paragraph 10A of the Order, 1968. (Para 54)

The Court is of the considered view that the symbol is reserved for a recognized political party because of their special status and for their use considering their importance in the democratic polity of this country. The symbol is reserved for their exclusive use and also for allotment to their candidates in an election but this does not mean that the symbol reserved for them is only for their use at the time of elections. Even prior to the elections they can use it so that the masses may identify themselves with the symbols based on their agenda and ideology. (Para 56)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy, J. & Hon'ble Saurabh Lavania, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Shraddha Tripathi, petitioner who is a practicing Advocate of this Court, in person, Shri O P Srivastava, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the Election Commission of India i.e. opposite party no. 1 herein. None has appeared for opposite parties no. 2 to 7.

2. This is a petition in public interest. The relief clause of the petition reads as under:-

1.) To issue writ of Mandamus, directing the respondent no. 1, the Election Commission of India to order/directions to all the recognized political parties to immediately stop and restrain from using the Reserved Election Symbols themselves (In the Party name) as their Party Trade-Mark, and for the 'Purpose and Period' beyond the 'Contested Election'.

2.) To issue writ/order or direction in the nature of Mandamus to the respondent no. 1 to strictly allow the use and operation of reserved symbols only the 'contesting candidates' set-up by 'Recognized Political Parties' in the notified elections.

3.) Such other writs, order or direction as this Hon'ble Court may feel just and proper in the interest of justice and instant circumstance to achieve the goal of 'Free and Fair' elections as per law.

3. In nutshell, the argument of the petitioner appearing in person is, firstly, that the Election Commission of India does not have any authority to allot symbols to a recognized political party while not allotting the same to an unrecognized political party. Secondly, the allotment of symbols is only to a contesting candidate as mentioned in Paragraph 4 and 5 of the Election Symbols (Reservation and Allotment) Order, 1968 (herein after referred as Order, 1968) and Rule 10(4) of the The Conduct of Election Rules, 1961 (herein after referred as Rules, 1961), as such, allotment of such symbols, even if in the garb of reserving it, to recognized political parties much prior to the stage is reached under Section 38 of the Representation of Peoples Act, 1951 (hereinafter referred as Act, 1951) when a candidate becomes a contesting candidate, is illegal, without jurisdiction and also discriminatory viz-a-viz the candidates of an unrecognized political party and also independent candidates to whom the symbols allotted to them are informed barely couple of days prior to the date of election, meaning thereby, on account of this arbitrary and illegal action, on one hand, the recognized (National and State) parties steal a march over the unrecognized political parties and independent candidates as they have benefit of the symbol reserved/allotted for them much earlier, which they continue to use irrespective of the fact whether an election is taking place or not or is to take place or not, whereas the candidates setup by an unrecognized political party and independent candidates do not have this benefit. This according to her, is detrimental to the cause of electoral democracy.

4. Thirdly, she contended that the powers under Article 324 can only be exercised in terms of the Act, 1951, the Rules, 1961 and the Order, 1968, not otherwise. The so called plenary powers available to the Election Commission of India under Article 324 cannot be stretched to act whimsical, arbitrary, in a discriminatory manner or to take decisions not within the domain of the Election Commission of India. In this regard, she placed reliance upon a decision of Supreme Court of India reported in AIR 1984 SC 921, A.C. Jose Vs. Sivan Pillai and others. In the said case while in some polling booths, votes were allowed to be cast by the Election Commission of India by use of ballot papers, in other polling booths they were directed to be cast through machines. In this context, the Supreme Court of India opined that if relevant Acts and Rules governing the conduct of elections cover a particular field then it is not open to the Election Commission of India to violate the same. In this very context, powers of the Election Commission of India under Article 324 were considered. The Supreme Court categorically held that the High Court fell into an obvious fallacy by acceptance of deposition that direction of the Commission was intended to operate in an uncovered filed. When the Act and the Rules prescribed a particular method of voting the Commission should not innovate a new method and contend that use of mechanical process was not covered by the existing law and therefore did not come in conflict with the law in the field. In this context, powers of the Election Commission of India under Article 324 were considered and it was held that the same could not be used to devise a new method of voting when the Act and the Rules prescribed the method for the same.

5. Fourthly, she contended that symbol is not allotted to a recognized political party but is reserved for it but the Election Commission of India has veritably proceeded on the premise as if such symbols are allotted to a recognized political party and have allowed them to use the symbol irrespective of the fact as to whether any elections are being held or are to be held in the near future, which according to her is against the provisions and scheme of the Order, 1968. She says that Paragraph 17 of the said Order, 1968 cannot be read in isolation and has to be read in the context of entire Order, 1968 and the other provisions as also the scheme contained therein which according to her lead to only one inference that the symbols are to be allotted to a contesting candidate after the election is set in motion and not prior to it. Therefore, reserving of a symbol for a recognized political party cannot be treated as allotment of symbol nor can the said political party use the symbol reserved for it when there are no elections taking place or when they have not been notified.

6. On being asked as to what prejudice was being caused to the public in this regard as this is a Public Interest Litigation, her contention was that this discriminates against the unrecognized, though registered, political parties and the independent candidates, as, the use of symbol by recognized political party allows them to score a march in seeking votes of the people at large as they have enough time to advertise their symbols and seek votes etc. as also seek support for themselves, whereas, unrecognized political parties and independent candidates do not have this benefit, as, no symbol is reserved for them nor are they allotted a symbol except barely a few days prior to the day of voting i.e. after they have filed their nomination. This had an adverse bearing on Democratic politics. She laid great emphasis on use of the word 'every candidate' in Rule 10 (6) of the Rules, 1961 to contend that the intent of the Order is that irrespective of the fact as to whether a candidate is of a recognized political party or an unrecognized political party or an independent candidate, he should be assigned a symbol on the same terms without any discrimination. She took us through various provisions of the Order, 1968 as also Section 29 A and 38 of the Act, 1951, Rule 5 and 10 of the Rules, 1961 to contend that the said provisions did not confer any power upon the Election Commission of India to allot a symbol to a recognized political party much prior to the onset of elections, even if in the garb of reserving it for such political parties.

7. Shri O.P. Srivastava, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the Election Commission of India contended that grievance of the petitioner , raised by her through a representation, was decided by the Commission on 08.07.2016 and the said order has been brought on record as Annexure No. - CA-1 to the counter affidavit, inspite of it, she has not challenged the same. He also submitted that none of the provisions of law including the provision contained in Paragraph 17 of the Order, 1968 have been challenged in these proceedings, therefore, he says that the petitioner's contention has no legs to stand especially, in view of the provisions contained in Article 324 of the Constitution of India, as also, the object and purpose which Order, 1968 seeks to achieve. He also invited attention of the Court to the order dated 08.07.2016 by which reasons for such action has been communicated to the petitioner. The said order refers to the Order, 1968. Further, it goes on to say that a party which is allotted a symbol as reserved symbol on fulfillment of the criteria prescribed in the Symbol's Order can use the symbol on regular basis as long as the party retains its recognition. There is no merit in the plea that a recognized party having a reserved symbol cannot use its symbol in the party office and on other occasions, meetings etc. outside the election period. The said order draws the attention of the petitioner to a decision of the Supreme Court of India in the case of All Party Hill Leaders' Conference, Shillong Vs. Captain W.A. Sangma and others, AIR 1977 SC 2155; The order goes on to refer to another decision of the Supreme Court of India in Kanhiya Lal Omar Vs. R.K. Trivedi and others, AIR 1986 SC 111; wherein observations have been made as to the importance of election symbols and its use by political parties. He has also placed reliance upon a decision of Supreme Court of India reported in 2008 (14) SCC 318, Subramanian Swami Vs. Election Commission of India through its Secretary in this regard. He has also referred to another decision of the Supreme Court of India rendered in the case of Rama Kant Pandey Vs. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 1766;.

8. In response, the petitioner submitted that none of the case laws cited by the Counsel for the opposite party apply to the case at hand.

9. India is a constitutional democracy. Its democracy is based on a multi-party system. Political parties compete at the elections to form a democratically chosen Government. Elections are the pillar of any democracy. Part XV of the Constitution of India specifically deals with Elections. Article 324 contained therein refers to superintendence, direction and control of elections to be vested in an Election Commission. It goes on to state that superintendence, direction and control of the preparation of the electoral roles for, and the conduct of all elections to Parliament and to the legislature of every State and of elections to the offices of President and Vice-President held under this Constitution shall be vested in a Commission i.e. the Election Commission of India. It is the Constitution which is the source of the power of Election Commission. Article 324 vests the Election Commission of India with the powers of superintendence, direction and control not only of preparation of electoral roles for but also the conduct of elections to Parliament and to the legislature of every State as also elections to the offices of President and Vice-President under the Constitution. Thus, the exercise of power by the Election Commission of India flows from this provision.

10. All wings of the Government as also various other constitutional bodies including the Election Commission of India derive their power from the Constitution of India.

11. Now, the Parliament of India has enacted the Representation of Peoples Act, 1951 to provide for the conduct of elections of the houses of Parliament and to the house or houses of the legislature of each State etc. of the Act, 1951.

12. Part IV-A of the Act, 1951 deals with registration of political parties. Section 29A refers to registration with the Election Commission of associations and bodies as political parties. As per Sub-section 1 thereof, any association or body of individual citizens of India calling itself a political party and intending to avail itself of the provisions of this part shall make an application to the Election Commission for its registration as political party for the purposes of this Act. Thereafter, the provision goes on to lay down the modalities for such registration and that the decision of the Commission in this regard shall be final. Section 2 (1) (f) defines "political parties" to mean an association or a body of individual citizens of India registered with the Election Commission as a political party under Section 29A which has already been referred hereinabove.

13. Part V of the Act, 1951 refers to conduct of elections. Chapter 1 refers to nomination of candidates. Section 33 refers to deliverance of a nomination paper completed in the prescribed form and signed by the candidate and by elector of the constituency as proposer to the returning officer as per the terms mentioned therein. Proviso to Section 33 goes on to state that a candidate not setup by a recognized political party shall not be deemed to be duly nominated for election from a constituency unless the nomination paper is subscribed by 10 proposers being electors of the constituency, meaning thereby, apart from other things, the Act itself draws a distinction between a candidate setup by a recognized political party and one who is not so setup and prescribes different conditions regarding them even for the purposes of submission of nomination papers. Section 35 deals with notice of nominations and the time and place for their scrutiny. Section 36 deals with scrutiny of nomination papers. Sub-section 2 of Section 36 empowers the returning officer to reject the nomination papers on the grounds mentioned therein. Sub-section 8 of Section 36 provides that immediately after all the nomination papers have been scrutinized and decisions accepting or rejecting the same have been recorded, the returning officer shall prepare a list of validly nominated candidates, that is to say, candidates whose nominations have been found valid, and affix to his notice board. Section 37 speaks of withdrawal of candidates. Section 38 refers to publication of list of contesting candidates. As per Sub-section 1 of Section 38, immediately after the expiry of the period within which candidatures may withdrawn under Sub-section 1 of Section 37, the returning officer shall prepare and publish in such form and manner as may be prescribed, a list of contesting candidates, that is to say, candidates who were included in the list of validly nominated candidates and who have not withdrawn their candidature within the said period. Sub-section 2 of Section 38 is important for our purposes, as, for the purpose of listing the names under the Sub-section 1 the candidates are to be classified as (i) candidates of recognized political parties; (ii) candidates of registered political parties other than those mentioned in Clause (i); (iii) other candidates; and under Sub-section 3 the said 3 categories are to be arranged in the order specified therein. Thus candidates of recognized political parties, registered though not recognized political parties and other candidates are classified separately.

14. Now, we may refer to Rules, 1961 which have been made under Section 169 of the Act, 1951 by the Central Government. The nomination paper referred in the provisions of the Act, 1951 as referred hereinabove are appended to these Rules, 1961 and they are referred in Rule 4 read with Rule 2 (1) (g). Part 1 of the nomination paper (Form 2A) relates to candidates setup by recognized political parties. Part 2 relates to a candidate not setup by recognized political parties. Part 3 which is relevant contains Clause C (i) in which the candidate is required to declare that he is being setup at the election by a party giving its name which is a recognized National political party/State party in the State and that the symbol reserved for the above party be allotted to him, meaning thereby, Rule 4 of the Rules 1961 when read conjointly with Form 2A referred therein speaks of symbol being reserved for a recognized party, be it National or State, therefore, the contents of the form have to be read as Part of Rule 4. Thus, there is a reference to reserving of symbol for a recognized National or State party in the Rules itself which have been made by the Central Government. We may also refer to Clause C (ii) of the same Part 3 of Form 2A which requires a candidate not setup by a recognized political party to make a declaration that he was being setup by a party giving its name which is a registered/unrecognized political party or that he was contesting the election as an independent candidate, striking off whichever was not applicable and that the symbols he had chosen are required to be mentioned in preferential order giving 3 options. Thus, Form 2A itself draws a distinction between recognized and unrecognized political parties as also independent candidates and the symbols which they are required to choose. In the case of a candidate setup by a recognized political party, the symbol reserved for such political party is required to be mentioned whereas in the case of a candidate setup by an unrecognized political party or an independent candidate, they have to offer 3 options in preferential order for being allotted as symbols. The note to the said form clearly mentions - a "recognized political party" means a political party recognized by the Election Commission under the election symbols (reservation and allotment) Order, 1968 in the State concerned.

15. Now, Rule 5 of the Rules, 1961 refers to "symbols for elections in Parliamentary and Assembly constituencies". Sub-rule 1 thereof says, the Election Commission shall by notification in the Gazette of India and in the official Gazette of each State specify the symbols that may be chosen by the candidates at election in parliamentary or assembly constituencies and the restrictions to which their choice shall be subject. Now, Sub-rule 2 of Rule 5 states that subject to any general or special direction issued by the Election Commission either under Sub-rule (4) or Sub-rule (5) of Rule 10, where at any such election, more nomination papers than 1 are delivered by or on behalf of a candidate, the declaration as to symbols made in the nomination paper first delivered, and no other declaration as to symbol, shall be taken into consideration under Rule 10 even if that nomination paper has been rejected.

16. Now, Rule 10 of the Rules, 1961 refers to "preparation of list of contesting candidates". Sub-rule 1 speaks of the list of contesting candidates referred to in Sub-section (i) of Section 38. Sub-rule 4 says that an election in a parliamentary or assembly constituency where poll becomes necessary, the returning officer shall consider the choice of symbols expressed by the contesting candidates in their nomination papers and shall subject to any general or special direction issued in this behalf by the Election Commission allot the symbols as per Clause (a), (b) contained therein. Sub-rule 5 thereof goes on to state that allotment by the returning officer of any symbol to a candidate shall be final except where it is inconsistent with any direction issued by the Election Commission in this behalf in which case the Election Commission may revise the allotment in such manner as it thinks fit. Sub-rule 6 requires that every candidate or his election agent shall forthwith be informed of the symbol allotted to the candidate and be supplied with specimen thereof by the returning officer.

17. As already stated, Form 2A read conjointly with Rule 4 of the Rules, 1961 speaks of symbol being reserved for a recognized National/State party. It draws a distinction between a candidate setup by a recognized political party who would be allotted the symbol reserved for such party and a candidate of an unrecognized political party or an independent candidate who will have to opt and give 3 preferences for the symbols which they want to choose. Therefore, the provisions of Rule 5 and 10 have to be read, understood and applied conjointly with Rule 4 and Form 2A referred therein. The words choice of symbols expressed by the contesting candidates in their nomination papers referred in Sub-rule 4 of Rule 10 would include the choice of symbols expressed by a candidate setup by a recognized political party in Clause C (i) Part 3 of Form 2A and will have to be the symbol of such political party whereas such choice in the case of a candidate not setup by a recognized political party or an independent candidate will have to be the choice expressed by such candidate in Clause C (ii) of Part 3 of Form 2A. The allotment by the returning officer of any symbol to a candidate under Sub-rule 5 has to be made accordingly keeping in mind the choice of symbols as expressed in Part 3 of Form 2A as discussed hereinabove.

18. From what we have discussed hereinabove, it is evident that even the Rules, 1961 read with requisite "Form" appended to it speak of reservation of symbols for recognized political parties and also draw distinction between recognized and unrecognized political parties as also independent candidates for all these purposes including for the purposes of allotment of symbols, nomination etc.

19. Now, we may come to the Order, 1968. This Order has been made by the Commission. This Order, 1968 has been made to provide for specification, reservation, choice and allotment of symbols at elections in Parliamentary and Assembly constituencies, for the recognition of political parties in relation thereto and for matters connected therewith. It is referred to have been made in exercise of powers conferred by Article 324 of the Constitution read with Section 29A of the Act, 1951 and Rules 5 and 10 of the Rules, 1961 and all other powers enabling it in this behalf. As already stated, the Commission has been vested with veritable plenary powers under Article 324 to do all that is necessary for the conduct of smooth, fair and proper elections and as already stated the exercise of this power is subject only to any constitutional or statutory limitation which itself has to be in consonance with the Constitution. The Election Commission is a constitutional body and the enabling provision from which its power flows is contained in Article 324.

20. Paragraph 2(b) of the Order, 1968 defines political party on the same terms in which Section 2 (1) (f) of the Act, 1951 defines it. Paragraph 4 refers to allotment of symbols. It refers to allotment of symbol to a contesting candidate in accordance with the provisions of the said Order in every contested election. Paragraph 5 of the Order, 1968 read as under:-

"5. Classification of symbols - (1) For the purpose of this Order symbols are either reserved or free.

(2) Save as otherwise provided in this order, a reserved symbol is a symbol which is reserved for a recognized political party for exclusive allotment to contesting candidates set up by that party.

(3) A free symbol is a symbol other than a reserved symbol.

21. Paragraph 5 classifies symbols for the purposes of the said Order as either reserved or free, meaning thereby, there are 2 types of symbols which are available for allotment, one, the reserved symbol which is reserved for a recognized political party and second, that which is not so reserved and which is referred as free symbol, therefore, a distinction has been made by Paragraph 5 between symbols which is in keeping with the provisions of the Act, 1951 and Rules, 1961 which also draw such distinction as already noticed hereinabove.

22. Paragraph 6 of the Order, 1968 is as under:-

[6. Classification of political parties - (1) For the purposes of this Order and for such other purposes as the Commission may specify as and when necessity therefore arises, political parties are either recognized political parties or unrecognized political parties.

(2) A recognised political party shall either be a National Party or a State Party."]

23. Paragraph 6 classifies political parties as recognized political parties or unrecognized political parties. Sub-paragraph 2 of Paragraph 6 further provides that a recognized political party shall either be a National Party or a State Party. This distinction again is in tune with the provisions of the Act, 1951 and the Rules, 1961 as already noticed, as, therein also distinction has been made at some places as already referred earlier.

24. Paragraph 6A reads as under:-

"[6A. Conditions for recognition as a State Party - A political party shall be eligible for recognition as a State Party in a State, if, and only if, any of the following conditions is fulfilled:

(i) At the lat general election to the Legislative Assembly of the State, the candidates set up by the party have secured not less than six percent of the total valid votes polled in the State; and, in addition, the party has returned at least two members to the Legislative Assembly of that State at such general election; or

(ii) At the last general election to the House of the People from that State, the candidates set up by the party have secured not less than six percent of the total valid votes polled in the State; and, in addition, the party has returned at least one member to the House of the People from that State at such general election; or

(iii) At the last general election to the Legislative Assembly of the State, the party has won at least three percent of the total number of seats in the Legislative Assembly, (any fraction exceeding half being counted as one), or at least three seats in the Assembly, whichever is more; or

(iv) At the last general election to the House of People from that State, the party has returned at least one member to the House of the People for every 25 members or any fraction thereof allotted to that State;] or

{(v) At the last general election to the House of the People from the State, or at the last general election to the Legislative Assembly of the State, the candidates set up by the Party have secured not less than eight percent of the total vlaid votes polled in the State.}"

25. Paragraph 6A delineates the conditions for recognition as a State party. We need not go into such conditions at length but suffice it to say that one of the conditions for recognition as a recognized State Party is that the candidates set up by such party should have secured not less than 6% of the total valid votes polled in the State and, in addition, the party must have returned at least 2 members to the Legislative Assembly of that State at such general election to the Legislative Assembly of the State. Now, there is no such condition for an unrecognized albeit registered political parties, meaning thereby, a political party though registered under Section 29A but not recognized under the Order, 1968 is not required to fulfill the aforesaid condition and other conditions mentioned in Paragraph 6A. Various other conditions are mentioned in Paragraph 6A as a mandatory prerequisite for a party to be recognized as a State party which would entitle it to certain benefits of a recognized political party especially in the matter of symbols.

26. Paragraph 6B reads as under:-

"6B. Conditions for recognition as a National party - A political party shall be eligible to be recognized as National Party, if, and only if, any of the following conditions is fulfilled:

(i) The candidates set up by the party, in any four or more States, at the last general election to the House of the People, or to the Legislative Assembly of the State concerned, have secured not less than six percent of the total valid votes polled in each of those States at that general election; and, in addition, it has returned at least four members to the House of the People at the aforesaid last general election from any State or States; or

(ii) At the last general election to the House of the People, the party has won at least two percent of the total number of seats in the House of the People, any fraction exceeding half being counted as one; and the party's candidates have been elected to that House from not less than three States; or

(iii) The party is recognized as State Party in at least four States.]"

27. Thus, the conditions mentioned in Paragraph 6B are a necessary prerequisite for any political party to be recognized as a National party, one of which is that the candidates setup by such party in any four or more States at the last general election to the House of the People or to the Legislative Assembly of the State concerned, must have secured not less than 6% of the total valid votes polled in each of those States at that general election; and, in addition, it must have returned at least 4 members to the House of the People at the aforesaid last general election from any State or States etc. and the party should be recognized as State Party in at least 4 States.

28. Now, as a logical corollary of the aforesaid provisions is that any party which does not fulfill the aforesaid conditions cannot be recognized as a National party or a State party, it will at best be a registered party and nothing more. Thus, there is valid distinction/classification based on a rational/intelligible differentia for classifying the parties as aforesaid. It being so, it is quite reasonable that the two separate categories of political parties are treated differently and if it is so done then it cannot be said that there is violation of Article 14 of the Constitution of India, even in the matter of assignment of symbols. Even at the cost of repetition, we need to reiterate that even as per the Act, 1951 and the Rules, 1961, a distinction has been made between recognized political parties and not so recognized political parties. The Order, 1968 merely continues the distinction and lays down the modalities in this regard with regard to reservation and allotment of symbols to such differently categorized political parties. An independent candidate also stands on a footing different from a recognized political party, therefore, he or she is treated differently and if it is so, as is the case even in the matter of allotment of symbols, it cannot be held to be arbitrary or unreasonable, especially for the reasons aforesaid and those which we are going to give hereinafter.

29. Paragraph 6C of the Order, 1968 deals with conditions for continued recognition as a National or a State party. According to it, continuance of party as a recognized National or State party is dependent upon the fulfillment by it of the conditions specified in Paragraph 6A or 6B, as the case may be, on the results of that general election.

30. Based upon the aforesaid classification which has a rationale, Paragraph 8 of the Symbol Order, 1968 provides that a candidate setup by a National Party or a State Party shall choose and shall be allotted the symbol reserved for that party in that State and no other symbol. Further, reserved symbol shall not be chosen or allotted to any candidate other than a candidate setup by a National Party for whom such symbol has been reserved or a candidate setup by a State Party for whom such symbol has been reserved in the State in which it is a State Party even if no candidate has been setup by such National or State Party in that constituency, obviously, because such symbol being reserved for such parties, the masses would be identifying the parties and its agenda, ideology etc. with the said symbol.

31. Paragraph 9 deals with restriction on the allotment of symbols reserved for State Parties in States where such parties are not recognized. It says that such symbol reserved for a State Party in any State shall not be included in the list of free symbols for any other State or Union Territory and shall not be reserved for any other State Party in any other State, subject to the proviso contained therein, which is also understandable in view of what has been stated hereinabove.

32. Paragraph 10 of the Order, 1968 deals with concession to candidates set up by a State party at elections in other States or Union Territories. It provides that if a political party which is recognized as a State Party in some State or States sets up a candidate at an election in a constituency in any other State or Union territory in which it is not a recognized State Party, then such candidate may, to the exclusion of all other candidates in the constituency, be allotted the symbol reserved for that party in the State or States in which it is recognized State Party, notwithstanding that such symbol is not specified in the list of free symbols for such other State or Union territory, subject to fulfillment of the conditions mentioned therein and subject to the proviso contained therein.

33. Likewise Paragraph 10A deals with concession to candidates setup by an unrecognized party which was earlier recognized as a National Party or State Party. It mentions the conditions in which such candidates may be allotted the symbol reserved earlier for that party when it was a recognized National or State Party notwithstanding that such symbol is not specified in the list of free symbols subject to fulfillment of certain conditions mentioned therein.

34. Paragraph 10B of the Order, 1968 deals with concession to candidates set up by registered (unrecognized) parties and to unrecognized parties which were earlier recognized parties more than 6 years back.

35. Paragraph 11 deals with restrictions on the choice and allotment of symbols allotted under Paragraph 10 or Paragraph 10A.

36. Paragraph 12 deals with choice of symbols by other candidates and allotment thereof.

37. Paragraph 13 deals with the subject as to when candidate shall be deemed to be set up by a political party.

38. Paragraph 16A deals with power of Commission to suspend or withdraw recognition of a recognized political party for its failure to observe Model Code of Conduct or follow lawful directions in instructions of the Commission.

39. We may now refer to Paragraph 17 of the Order, 1968 which reads as under:-

"17. Notification containing lists of political parties and symbols-

(1) The commission shall by one or more notifications in the Gazette of India publish lists specifying -

(a) the National Parties and the symbols respectively reserved for them;

(b) the State Parties, the State or States in which they are State Parties and the symbols respectively reserved for them in such State or States;

[(c) the un-recognized political parties and the addresses of their headquarters registered with the Commission;] and

[(d) the free symbols for each State and Union Territory.]"

40. Paragraph 17 refers to notification containing lists of political parties and symbols. Clause 1 of Paragraph 17 requires the commission to publish lists by one or more notifications in the Gazette of India specifying- (a) the National parties and the symbols respectively reserved for them; (b) the State Parties, the State or States in which they are State Parties and the symbols respectively reserved for them in such State or States; (c) the un-recognized political parties and the addresses of their headquarters registered with the Commission; and (d) the free symbols for each State and Union Territory. Clause 2 says that every such list shall, as far as possible, be kept up to date.

41. As regards contention of the petitioner that the Election Commission of India does not have any power to allot symbols to a recognized National or State level political party or to reserve a symbol for them, firstly, we are of the view that Article 324 vests ample power on the Election Commission of India for superintendence, direction and control of elections and in this context if such reservation or allotment is made it is in furtherance of the constitutional goal contained in Part XV of the Constitution of India. The only limitation is that this exercise of power cannot violate any constitutional or statutory provision or any rule made there under. We have already noticed that there is no such violation by the Election Commission of India in issuing Order, 1968 for allotment and reservation of symbols. There is no provision in the Act, 1951 or the Rules, 1961 which prohibits the Commission from reserving or allotting symbols as has been done by the Order, 1968. In fact, the said Act, 1951 and the Rules, 1961, hint or suggest such reservation and allotment of symbols, as already noticed. Vires of the Act, 1951 or Rules, 1961 are not under challenge before us. We therefore reject this contention. In fact, the vires of Order, 1968 was put to challenge before the Supreme Court of India in the case of Kanhiya Lal Omar Vs. R.K. Trivedi and others, 1985 (4) SCC 628. The Order, 1968 was held to be intra vires the Constitution, the Act, 1951 and the Rules, 1961.

42. The vires of Order, 1968 having already been upheld in Kanhiya Lal Omar's case, now the scope for considering and granting the relief prayed for in this petition is very narrow.

43. We have perused the Order, 1968 very carefully and we find that it deals with two subjects, one is of reservation of symbols and the other is of allotment of symbols. Paragraph 5 (1) of the Order, 1968 classifies symbols into reserved or free symbols. Clause 2 of Paragraph 5 defines a reserved symbol to mean a symbol which is reserved for a recognized political party for exclusive allotment to contesting candidates set up by that party. Clause 3 of Paragraph 5 defines a free symbol to mean a symbol other than a reserved symbol. Now Paragraph 8, 9, 10 and 10A of the Order, 1968 deal with allotment of symbols to the contesting candidates but these provisions do not deal with reservation of symbols for recognized political parties. Reservation of symbols is dealt with separately in Paragraph 5 (2) and this is in tune with the provisions of the Act, 1951 and the Rules, 1961 already discussed hereinabove. Even Paragraph 17 deals with reserved symbols and free symbols separately. As already stated, there being a valid classification of political parties between recognized political parties and unrecognized political parties as also independent candidates, based on such valid classification, there exists a valid distinction for reservation and allotment of symbols to such parties.

44. In fact there is a distinction between reservation of symbols and their allotment. While recognized political parties, who obviously have a large voter base and have fulfilled the prerequisites for being recognized as National or State political party as mentioned in Paragraph 6A and 6B of the Order, 1968, are entitled to have a symbol reserved for them considering their importance in the democratic polity of this country. Their existence and continuance is on much firmer ground than the unrecognized political parties. A political party is recognized only when it secures a particular percentage of votes and in the case of the recognized National political party when it has won particular number of seats in a minimum number of States as prescribed in the aforesaid provisions contained in Paragraph 6B whereas in the case of unrecognized political parties or independent candidates these conditions are not fulfilled and their existence and continuance is not on equally firm ground. In the case of a candidate setup by a recognized political party it is to be mentioned in Part 3 of the nomination paper Form 2A and as a symbol is already reserved for such recognized political party as a sequitor it is that symbol alone which would be allotted to the candidate under Sub-rule 4 of the Rule 10 of the Rules, 1961 and would be informed to him and his agents under Sub-rule 5 thereof, whereas, in the case of unrecognized political party and an independent candidate, the same would be allotted and informed as per the choice exercised from the list of free symbols and not the list of reserved symbols. Therefore, there is a clear distinction in this regard based on rationale discussed earlier. Paragraph 8 to 10A of the Order, 1968 are to apply accordingly.

45. Much emphasis was laid by the petitioner upon the fact that the word used in Rule 10 (6) of Rules, 1961 is 'every candidate'. Rule 10 (6) is a general provision and the reason the word 'every candidate' has been used is that it includes a candidate of a recognized political party and/or unrecognized political party an independent candidate. Allotment of symbols is in respect to all such candidates whether belonging to recognized, unrecognized political party or independent candidates hence the words 'every candidate'. This provision has to be read in consonance with the other provisions of the Rules, 1961 and Act, 1951 mentioned hereinabove, especially, Rule 4 of Rule, 1961 and Form 2A and the Order, 1968.

46. Allotment of reserved or free symbols to candidates is made in relation to an election, however, reservation of symbols for a National party or a State party is not confined to any particular election but is good for all times as long as the said party continues to be recognized as per law. There is nothing in the Act, 1951, Rules, 1961 or the Order, 1968 that symbols can be reserved only after notification of elections, whereas, allotment of symbols takes place at the time of elections and not prior to its notification. This is how we understand the scheme of the Act, 1951, the Rules, 1961, especially, the Order, 1968 which is in consonance with the aforesaid and not contrary to it.

47. Further, apart from the fact that the Order, 1968 does not violate any constitutional or statutory provision as already held by the Supreme Court of India in Kanhiya Lal Omar's case, we do not find any inconvenience or hardship to the public at large by such reservation of symbols. There is a purpose behind reservation of such symbols. Apart from the fact that a political party is recognized only after fulfillment of certain conditions prescribed in law therefore it is entitled to be treated differently as it has a much larger base amongst the masses, consequently, its importance in the democratic polity hardly needs to be emphasized rather it needs to be given an impetus, we must not forget that we live in a country where even now in the 21st century in many areas, especially rural and tribal areas the masses are either not literate or not so literate or politically aware as in the western world. Even now, they recognize a political party by its symbol and vote accordingly. Symbol/flag/logo including election symbol, are simple images that are easily identifiable by the general masses. Symbols of a recognized party including the election symbols reserved/allotted under the Order of 1968, help voters to identify the party of their choice while casting vote. Symbols facilitate the public at large including the voters. They may not know the individual candidate, yet, they cast their vote based on the symbol which they recognize, therefore, this is also an aspect which has to be kept in mind. They relate the ideology being pursued by a political party and its agenda based on its symbol i.e. the symbol reserved for it. From the provisions of order of 1968 as also the Act of 1951, it is apparent that the recognized party is having some privileges including allotment of reserved symbols while contesting the elections. This privilege is not available to unrecognized party or any individual candidate. The learned Counsel for the Commission has rightly referred to the decision in the case of Capt. W.A. Sangma (Supra), paragraph 29 of which reads as under:-
